Mr. DANIELL, in proposing the toast "The Royal Society of Cumberlands," proceeded to relate the history and object of the Society, of which so little is known. The Society originated in the old company of "London Scholars," an Association of ringers in London churches. There is nothing to indicate the date of the foundation of this company, but there are evidences of its existence at the very beginning of the eighteenth century, for in 1702 its members published a treatise on the subject of bell-ringing. In 1716 they rang the first peal of which there is any record, which was of 5000 changes upon ten bells. There were further records of their ringing at St. Martin's, and at St. Michael's, Cornhill. In 1746 they rang at Shoreditch Church, in honour of the return of the Duke of Cumberland from his victories in Scotland. Approaching London by the old north road, this was the first peal he heard, and so pleased was he at the sound, that he struck a medal, which he presented to the society, and which is still worn by the Master on official occasions. From this event the London Scholars changed their name to the Royal Society of Cumberlands, which they now bear. Since 1748 there are complete records of the society, among which may be found an account of the celebrated peal of 12,000 changes rung in 1784. Mr. Daniell remarked that bell-ringing was a peculiarly English and national pursuit. Although bells were known in nearly every civilized country, "ringing," i.e., swinging the bell so that the hammer strikes when it is mouth upwards, was, until very latterly, unknown in any other country. It was probably at the beginning of the sixteenth century that the system of change-ringing now practised was originated. John Bunyan, with whom ringing seems to have had a strong attraction, speaks of ringing at Elstow, near Bedford, and throughout his works frequent allegorical mentions of bells and ringing are to be found. Contemporary with Bunyan lived Stedman, a printer, of Cambridge, who invented the method which is still practised and known by his name. In concluding his remarks, Mr. Daniell drew attention to the flourishing state of the society at the present time, which he trusted would long continue.

Mr. DAINS, who replied for the Society, thanked Mr. Daniell for his lucid explanation about the formation of the society, and sincerely hoped the members and also the visitors would benefit by it, as he was sure that but very few people knew little about the society, and less about ringing the methods.

"The Vicar and Churchwardens of St. Martin's," was proposed by Mr. A. H. GARDOM in a very efficient manner, who said in the course of his remarks, that the members of all ringing societies had much to be thankful for, as it was through the courtesy of the Vicar and Wardens that they were allowed to handle the ropes as frequently as they did, and especially did the members thank the Rev. J. F. Kitto and the Wardens of St. Martin's, for the very great indulgence they received at their hands, and he was sure that all members present would fully reciprocate his sentiments.

The toast, which was most heartily received, was replied to by the senior churchwarden, Mr. W. Laing, who said he had no idea that ringing had made such strides in late years as to bring together such a body of gentlemen who were, he supposed, enthusiasts in the art, and he could only say he should do all he could to further the efforts of the Royal Cumberlands in the direction of ringing, and should not fail to communicate to the Vicar all that had passed that evening, and concluded by remarking how gratified he was to be one of the company.

The toast of "The Visitors," was proposed by Mr. A. G. Thomas in suitable terms, and replied to by Dr. Dulcken on their behalf, in a witty and amusing speech, in course of which the worthy doctor expressed a wish to have his name enrolled on the Company's books as an honorary member.

The toast of "The Chairman and Master," by Mr. Daniell, was briefly given, and the speaker dwelt chiefly on the remarkable and successful efforts which Mr. H. S. Thomas had put forward for the benefit of the society, and he concluded by wishing him long life and success, and trusted he should meet him for many years to come.

The toast, which was received with loud applause and musical honours, was replied to by the Chairman in reciprocal terms, who said that he had always worked for the good of the society, and trusted as long as good health permitted him, he always should, and he hoped that the gathering that evening would throw new life and energy into the members, and inspire them to higher things. He thanked one and all for the hearty manner in which they had drunk his health, and hoped he might be spared to be among them for many years.

The toast list which was interspersed with some good songs and hand-bell ringing, now came to an end, and with it the most enjoyable evening the Cumberlands have ever spent, the members present far exceeding in magnitude any gathering ever held before.

During the evening a telegram of congratulation was dispatched to Her Majesty at Windsor, and replied to in reciprocal terms.

Wood and Ledgway, of the Knareborough society, and rang a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples in 48 mins. T. Ledgway, 1; R. Binns, 2; W. Pick, 3; A. H. Clark, 4; A. Ingleby, 5; M. Wood, 6; T. THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

NOTICE is hereby given that a District Meeting for business and ringing purposes will be held at Lewes, on Monday, August 1st. Two peals of eight bells will be open during the day. Full particulars in next issue. GEO. F. ATTREE, Hon Sec.

THE "MONSTER BELL" OF MONTREAL CATHEDRAL.

We have had submitted to us an extract from the Montreal Herald and Commercial Gazette of the year 1843, respecting the large bell at the Cathedral in that city, accompanied by the hope that after such a lapse of time, it may not prove unacceptable to the readers of "THE BELL NEWS." We yield to the entreaties made to us to publish the same.

Below we give an account of the largest bell that was ever cast in England, weighing no less than 7 tons 6 cwt. 16,352 lbs. It was cast at the foundry of Messrs. Mears and Co., of Whitechapel, London, from which it was removed on August 12th, on a truck drawn by eight horses, to the London Docks, preparatory to being put on board ship. The Dock officers, however, refused to allow it to pass over the accommodation bridge between the West Quay and the Brandy Quay, until it was sufficiently propped, as they were apprehensive that it was not strong enough to support so enormous a weight concentrated over a few feet of the structure, at one time, and traversing every portion of it in succession.

Some idea may be formed of its immense size from the fact that ten tons or twenty-thousand four hundred pounds of fused metal were required to form the casting, and the time occupied in running the fused metal from the furnace into the mould was fifteen minutes. The diameter of the bell at the mouth is seven feet three inches; its height is seven feet; and its thickness at sound-bow is six inches and a half. The weight of the tongue, or clapper, is about 3 cwt. (326 lbs). The wood work, which is of old English oak, weighs one ton, the iron work is over half a ton, and the bell itself is heavier than the Great Tom of Lincoln by thirty-two cwt. Its tone is very powerful and melodious.

It will be rung by means of two wheels, made of oak, and twelve feet in diameter, one on each side of the stock or bearer, which with its fittings (exclusive of the wood and iron work mentioned above), weighs about a ton. There will be four ropes used in the ringing, a man pulling at each side of the wheels. It will be hung in the southern tower of the Roman Catholic Cathedral in the Place d'Armes. Its whole weight be summed up as under:—

		tons	cwt.	qrs.	lbs.
Weight of casting	...	7	6	0	0.
" of clapper	...	0	2	5	18.
" of woodwork	...	1	0	0	0.
" ironwork and fittings	...	1	10	0	0.
Total		9	18	3	18.

The outside is divided into four compartments, each bearing a bas-relief, one of which has a figure of the virgin with the infant in her arms, and the word "Maria" below; on the opposite side is St. John the Baptist, with a crook in his hand, and leading a lamb, within a wreath composed of the rose, thistle, shamrock and maple leaves, and a beaver below; another compartment shews a vessel in full sail, representing commerce, and opposite are the emblems of the mechanic and farmer. On one side is the following legend:—

Negotiomini. dum venio, Omnis spiritus laudet Dominum.

Anno Domini 1843

Fundatæ Marianapolis, 201

Greg. P. P. XIV. Pontificatus XII

Regin Victoriæ Britanniarum VI

On the other side is inscribed;—

Expiisimo, Mercatorum, Artificium, Agricolarumque Marianapolitanensium Dono

On the rim is the maker's name:—

"Thomas Mears, Fecit, Londini, 1843."

It will cost upwards of £1200 sterling, or about six thousand dollars, and is a gift, as the inscriptions tells, from the merchants, mechanics and farmers of Montreal, to the parish church. It will be used as an alarum, and is to be named "Maria," as the cathedral is dedicated to the Virgin.

The bells which were hung in the old tower, were four in number. The first was the best in the country. It was cast in London in 1774, and sent out by Messrs. Watson and Rishleigh to M. Foretier for the Fabrique of Montreal. It weighed 19 cwt. 1 qr. 11 lbs., or 2167 lbs. without the clapper or stock, and cost, laid down in Montreal, £167 11s. 10d. currency.

The second was cast in Montreal by Messrs. Warwick, and weighed about 1700 lbs. It was badly cast, and it gave such a bad sound, that the people of Montreal always told to strangers that it had been struck by lightning.

The third was cast at Montreal in August, 1831, by J. D. Ward; it weighed 1230 lbs. It was given to the Fabrique by M. Souigny and Madame S. Beandry, who stood godfather and godmother. It was named Josephine.

The fourth was cast at London, weighed 630 lbs., and had a beautiful sound.

Bells, as is well known, are consecrated in the Roman Catholic church, and a distinct ritual is to be found in the service. The name of some Saint is given to them.

The Chinese are said to be very fond of bells. The city of Nankin at one time contained the largest set of bells in the world; one of them was 12 ft. high, 7½ feet diameter and 23 ft. circumference; the thickness of the metal near the edge was seven inches, and it was supposed to weigh 50,000 pounds. It was cast about 300 years ago; but the weight of the set brought down the tower in which they were suspended, and it has never been rebuilt. Father Le Comte says that there are seven bells at Pekin, each weighing 100,000 pounds but that the sound is poor because the clapper is made of wood, instead of metal.

They were introduced into Britain before the close of the seventh century, in the monasteries of Northumbria, and even in the sixth century they are mentioned as being in those of the North of Scotland; and upon the erection of parish churches in the island, a bell was a necessary appendage of the edifice.

In France they were first made of iron; but the English followed the Roman practice of casting them of brass. In the ninth century they began to be made of a large size, and the Abbot of Croyland is said to have given a great bell to the Abbey about the middle of that century, and afterwards to have presented it with six more. About the same time, Kinseus, Archbishop of York, gave two large bells to the church of St. John of Beverley, and ordered that the other churches in his diocese should be provided with bells. St. Dunstan is said to have given bells to the churches of the West.

ACCIDENT TO A RINGER.

An extraordinary fatality occurred on Sunday evening at the village of Shendleby, near Spilsby, Lincolnshire. The evening service commences at half-past six, and just as the ringers were preparing to begin ringing the church clock commenced to strike six. At the first stroke the cord suspending the striking weight broke, and the weight, weighing about 18 stone, fell a distance of 40 ft., striking one of the ringers named Frederick Hutchinson upon the head, and breaking his neck, death of course being instantaneous.

BEDDINGTON, SURREY.

By the kind permission of the Rev. Canon Bridges, the tower of St. Mary's, Beddington, will be open on Bank Holiday, August 1st. All ringers invited. Tower open at 2 o'clock.

The Chaplain-General (Dr. Edghill) has declined the bishopric of Nova Scotia, to which he was recently elected by the synod.

On St. Bartholomew's Day, Archdeacon Bardsley will be consecrated at York Minster as Bishop of Sodor and Man.

The Gloucester Chronicle says the Bishop of Worcester, who is staying at Hartlebury Castle, has been very unwell. As he is in his 81st year his condition causes some anxiety.

In the case of "The Queen v. the Rev. Bell Cox," Mr. Jeune applied on Tuesday, July 19th, in the appeal court, that the case, which was an appeal from a divisional court, should not be heard until after the long vacation. Both sides, he said, assented to this. The application was granted.

The vicar of St. John-the-Baptist, Toxteth-park, Liverpool, has been cited by one of his churchwardens to appear before the chancellor of the diocese, to whom application will be made for a faculty to remove the altar candlesticks and a hanging upon which an embroidered cross is worked. It will also be prayed that the platform upon which the altar stands may be removed, and the choir stalls cut down; and that a door by which the choir and procession pass out from the vestry may be stopped up.

On Thursday the Archbishop of Canterbury completed his fifty-eighth year. His Grace was consecrated for the new bishopric of Truro on the 25th of April, 1887, and translated to Canterbury in 1883. The same day, at Lambeth palace, the Archbishop and Mrs. Benson entertained at dinner Lord and Lady Mount-Temple, the Bishop of Winchester and Mrs. and Miss Browne, the Bishop of Derry and Mrs. Alexander, the Hon. and Rev. Francis and Mrs. Pelham, Mr. and Lady Wilfreda Biddulph, Sir George and Lady Bowen, Sir George Pringle, Sir Charles and Lady Warren, Canon and Mrs. Evans, the Rev. M. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Riley, Mr. W. Boyle, Mr. Hassard, and Miss R. Spooner.

On Wednesday, a meeting for the purpose of forming a branch of the Church Defence Institution for the Rural Deanery of St. George's, Hanover Square, was held at the parish-room, Little Grosvenor Street. In the absence of the Duke of Westminster, Canon Capel Cure, Rural Dean, presided. Amongst those present were Viscount Hailfax, Mr. Hardy, M.P., Sir George Wellesley, Colonel Haygarth, Mr. W. W. Karslake, Mr. F. A. White, and the Rev. H. Montagu Villiers. On the motion of Mr. Gathorne Hardy, M.P., seconded by the Rev. T. Shore, and supported by Canon Fleming, it was unanimously resolved to invite the Duke to accept the office of president. Lord Beauchamp moved, and the Rev. J. Storrs seconded, that the committee should consist of the incumbents of the rural deanery (ex officio), and one or more laymen from each parish. Mr. Alfred Holdsworth was invited to act as honorary secretary, and consented to do so.

The Rev. R. F. Herring, vicar of St. John the Baptist's Church, Park-road, Liverpool, was cited to appear at the Consistory Court held on Tuesday, July 19th, at St. Nicholas' Church, Liverpool, on a charge of making unauthorised alterations in the church. In the absence of Chancellor Espin, the court was presided over by Archdeacon Bardsley. The registrar read the citation, which set forth that it had been represented to the Chancellor by Daniel W. Burden and others, parishioners, that the vicar had, beyond certain alterations and additions, granted by a faculty of the court, made other and further alterations and additions. The different alterations were then specified, such as the introduction of candlesticks and candles and a wooden cross. The citation concluded by stating that great inconvenience was felt by the parishioners in consequence of such unauthorised alterations and additions. Some forms not having been duly complied with, it was found necessary to adjourn the case.

On Tuesday, July 12th, the Rev. John Nevill Calcraft, rector of Haceby, near Grantham, died at the advanced age of 86. Mr. Calcraft, who graduated from Clare Hall in 1824, was ordained in the following year. He was curate of Normanton-on-the-Cliff till 1832, and of Barkston-in-the-Willows from 1826 till 1829. In 1832 he was presented to Haceby, which he held for about fifty-five years, having been in holy orders sixty-two. A still more aged clergyman has passed away at Bath, in the Rev. John Bathurst Deane, who had reached his ninetieth year. Mr. Deane graduated from Pembroke (Sen. Op.) in 1820, and was ordained in the following year. For some years he was second classical and head mathematical master at Merchant Taylors', curate of St. Benetfink and St. Michael's, Wood-street, and preacher at the Philanthropic Institute, but in 1873 he was appointed to the rectory of St. Helen's, Bishopgate, with St. Martin-Outwich. He was the author of a work on "Serpent Worship," and a "Life of Richard Deane, General at sea in the Service of the Commonwealth," from whom he was descended.

The Manchester Guardian prints the following extract from a letter of Mrs. Fraser, written the day after the unveiling of her husband's memorial at Manchester Cathedral:—"I cannot say how touched and gratified I am to read the account of the impressive and touching ceremony of yesterday. Every one seems to have done his part admirably, Sir W. C. Brooks, the Dean, Bishop, and Archdeacon. Their words have thrilled through me, and I am deeply grateful. I have at once sent to the Dean a draft for £190, for the proposed oak screen, as an acknowledgment of my grateful sense of all that has been said and done on the occasion. The presence of the working men, the kindly gathering of dear friends, the old familiar names, have all an untold charm for me; and as I was with you in loving spirit, you will like to know how much I appreciate all that took place. I feel exactly with you that it is an immense comfort to have that beloved effigy given to us, and I know it will be a shrine to many loving hearts, who will turn aside and ponder over the days of old, and think of all the love and sweetness it commemorates."

ST. BRIDE'S, FLEET STREET, LONDON.

During a thunderstorm which passed over London on Friday, July 15th, it was reported that St. Bride's steeple had been struck. The vicar (the Rev. E. C. Hawkins) writes, however:—

It may allay some alarm and some anxiety if you will kindly allow me to say that the spire of this church is entirely uninjured. The only visible damage is the displacement of a little earth and of a stone about half the size of the crown of a hat just where the conductor enters the ground in the south-west angle of the tower and the nave. It is thought to be due to the interruption or delay of the electric current by the extreme dryness of the earth, and as thunderstorms generally come after a long drought it is well that those who are in charge of lofty or important buildings should know that it facilitates the passage of electricity to keep the earth damp where the rod enters it.

ANNIVERSARY AT SUDBURY, SUFFOLK.

On Tuesday, July 12th, this anniversary took place. It was to have been held on the 29th of June, but in consequence of the Jubilee festivities it was postponed for a short time. Ringing commenced at 7 a.m. at St. Peter's, where a touch of 559 of Bob Major was rung. F. Tolliday, 1; M. Silvester, 2; J. Campin, 3; W. Cross, 4; W. Howell, 5; W. Griggs, 6; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 7; A. Scott, 8. And a touch of 504 Grandsire Triples by the same band. The bells of All Saints and St. Gregory's were also rung during the day, only one short touch of Bob Major being rung on the former, the go of the bells not being tempting enough on a hot day for much ringing. At one o'clock the ringers and friends to the number of twenty-two sat down to a first-class hot dinner at the "Oak Inn," well served up by Host Gooch. The chair was taken (in the absence of the Rector) by Alderman J. B. Westby, Esq., J.P., churchwarden of St. Peter's the vice-chair being occupied by W. B. Ransom, Esq., an hon. member of the company. There were also present

Dr. W. J. Mason, N. W. Taylor, Esq., N. Cross, W. Cross, C. Sillitoe (Bury), W. Davies (London), etc. After justice had been done to the good things provided, and the cloth being removed,

The CHAIRMAN proposed the toast of "the Queen," which was heartily drank. He also proposed "the Health of the Rector," who he regretted was absent from home or he would have been present on this pleasant occasion. The toast was heartily drank, and at this point the chairman was obliged to leave to attend a children's service at St Peter's, being the festival of the Sunday schools. After a smoke and a chat a band was made up, who went to St. Peter's and rang a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes), in 52 mins. F. Tolliday, 1; M. Silvester, 2; A. Scott, 3; C. Sillitoe, 4; W. Howell, 5; W. Griggs, 6; H. Harper, 7; J. Campin, 8. Composed by E. Barnett and conducted by C. Sillitoe. Tower ringing was kept up till 9.30 p.m., when the ringers and friends all adjourned to the "Oak Inn," where the handbells were brought into use, and a course of Stedman Triples was rung by C. Sillitoe, 1-2; M. Silvester, 3; W. Cross, 4; W. Howell, 5-6; J. Morley, 7-8. Also a course of Grandsire Cinques. F. Tolliday, 1-2; A. Scott 3-4; C. Sillitoe, 5-6; M. Silvester, 7; W. Griggs, 8; W. Howell, 9-10; H. Harper, 11-12. Songs were sung by Messrs. Harper and Tolliday, and some selections were given on the handbells by the tune players, and a very pleasant evening was spent, the company breaking up at 11 p.m. well satisfied with the day's enjoyment.

On Saturday, July 16th, at the "Compasses Inn," for practice on handbells, retained in hand, a touch of Grandsire Caters (395 changes). A. Scott, 1; W. B. Ransom, Esq., 2; G. Brown, 3; M. Silvester, 4; F. Tolliday, 5; W. Griggs, 6; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 7-8; H. Harper, 9-10.

TITHE AGITATION.

The Ecclesiastical Commissioners have issued to the tithe-payers of the Principality a statement in English and Welsh of their position in relation to the present tithe agitation, as they desire that the farmers should clearly understand their position. They state that they are only trustees of a fund consisting partly of tithe rent-charge, partly of agricultural rents, and partly of other property. This fund is heavily charged with payments in augmentation of incomes of more than five thousand of the poor clergy. These payments amount to £600,000 per annum. The rent is fixed only after the deduction of the tithe rent-charge. The Legislature provided that the tithe rent-charge should vary with the price of corn on a seven years' average. At the present time it is 12½ per cent. less than the par value, and nearly 25 per cent. less than it was in 1878. The tithe Act provided that the tenant should pay the tithe rent charge on behalf of his landlord, and deduct it from his next payment of rent, but landlords and tenants have agreed between themselves that instead of the tenant paying a larger rent and deducting from it the tithe rent-charge, the tenant shall pay a reduced rent and take the payment of the tithe rent-charge upon himself. By so doing the tenant has had for several years past the benefit of the fall in that average. The Commissioners, as owners of agricultural lands, have made large and liberal allowances varying from 15 to 40 per cent., from the rent payable to them. It is only on these rents and not from the tithe rent-charge that allowances can rightfully be made. To enable the tenants to meet the severe agricultural depression, a recent Parliamentary paper shows that while the whole income derived by the Commissioners from property of every description in Wales does not exceed £31,000 per annum, the payments made by the Commissioners for the Church in Wales exceeds £65,000 per annum.

DEDICATION OF NEW BELLS AND OPENING OF NEW QUARTER CHIMES AT MELBOURNE, DERBYSHIRE.

ON Wednesday, July 13th, the two new trebles added to the existing ring of six in the parish church, Melbourne, were dedicated by the Very Rev. Dr. E. Bickersteth, Dean of Lichfield, which was also the occasion for the opening of the new Cambridge quarter-chimes. The two bells (the work of Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough), are remarkably sweet in tone, and reflect great credit on the makers. The chimes are by the celebrated firm of Messrs. Smith, of Derby, and the melody of them is greatly appreciated by all who have heard them. The shortened form of evening prayer was used for the occasion by the Rev. W. W. Rice (curate), the lesson being read by the Rev. J. S. Holden, R.D. After the third collect, the Old Hundredth was rendered with great effect. The sermon was preached by the Dean of Lichfield, who took for his text, Proverbs xiv, verse 34, "Righteousness exalteth a nation." In the course of his sermon the Dean said that on the 27th of April, 1882, he had the privilege of dedicating six new bells to be used to the glory of God in that really grand old Norman church. The day on which they were dedicated was the day of the wedding of the late lamented Duke of Albany, who too soon for his illustrious relatives, was called to rest within two years of his marriage. They now thought fit at the thanksgiving season of the Jubilee of their beloved Queen, to complete the octave of bells, and to enrich them with a set of chimes playing a melody dear to the heart of every Cambridge man. At the end of the sermon, the hymn, "When morning gilds the skies," was heartily sung, during which the offertory was made, after which suitable prayers were read by the Rev. W. Rice. At the conclusion, the Dean, with the clergy, choir, church-officers, and ringers, assembled under the tower, where the churchwardens (Messrs. W. Wood and W. Cook), handed the ropes of the two new bells to the Dean, requesting him to dedicate them. Dr. Bickersteth then formally performed the ceremony of dedication, and handed the ropes over to the aged Vicar, the Rev. J. Deans, charging him to see that they were never rung only for the glory of God and the benefit of his Holy Church. The Vicar, who spoke under deep emotion, said, "I accept these bells as a sacred trust committed to me as the appointed minister of Christ in this church and parish, and I will take care that they are ever and only rung for His glory and worship." At the close of the service, 252 of Bob Triples was rung. H. Hollingworth, 1; G. A. Fish, 2; F. W. Cook, 3; J. Warren, 4; H. C. Woodward (conductor), 5; G. C. Tunnichiff, 6; T. Hollingworth, 7; G. Thornley, 8. The general opinion of all who have heard the new bells is one of entire satisfaction. The cost of the new bells and chimes is about £135. In the evening the first quarter-peal of Plain Bob Triples (1260 changes), was rung in 49 mins. H. Hollingworth, 1; J. Vickers, 2; F. W. Cook, 3; J. Warren, 4; G. A. Fish, 5; G. C. Tunnichiff, 6; H. C. Woodward (conductor), 7; M. Jeynes, 8.

CRICKET MATCH BETWEEN THE CRAWLEY SOCIETY AND THE CHURCH CHOIR.

On Wednesday, July 13, the annual match between the above took place in a field adjoining the "George" Hotel. The day was beautifully fine, the company numerous, including many of the gentler sex, who had assembled to witness the game. The match ended as it was quite expected it would, in a victory for the ringers, the choir being evidently overmatched. In the evening the two teams, with friends, sat down to an excellent dinner, which was put on the table by host Mitchell at the "George" Hotel, Mr. T. Smith taking the chair, and Mr. J. Fillery being vice chairman. After dinner the party spent a very happy evening, and departed thoroughly well pleased, and looking forward to next year, the choir hoping, no doubt, that by careful practice they may defeat the ringers when they next try conclusions. The bowling of Wickens, Kenward and King for the ringers, and Day and Dye for the choir was very good.

GREAT ASHFIELD CHURCH BELLS.

For some time the bells in this parish, which are five in number, have been undergoing extensive repair, being all newly hung upon a stout English oak bell frame, with new stocks, wheels, and fittings, of the newest and modern principle. The bells have all been reversed for the clapper to strike in another place. On Jubilee Day they were rung for the occasion, and on Thursday last, July 14th, the ringers and friends held their annual meeting, and afterwards adjourned to the "Howell Arms," where a capital spread awaited them. The Vicar, the Rev. H. A. Swann, presided, supported by W. Pickering, and A. Barrell, Esq., churchwardens, Mr. A. Wakelin, etc. The work of restoration was entrusted to Messrs. G. Day and Sons, of Eye, Suffolk, who were also present. The loyal toasts were given, and complimentary ones followed, and several songs were sung, and a convivial meeting spent. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess for their catering, and thus closed a very happy evening, this being the winding up of the Jubilee in this parish. The bells which are a musical peal, have the following inscriptions:—

- Treble.—"Thomas Newman, of Norwich, 1745. Pull on brave boys, I am metal to the back, I will be hanged before I'll crack."
2nd.—"Thomas Newman, of Norwich, 1745."
3rd.—"Mundy Meritis Edmunda Maria Vocata."
4th.—"Sum Rosa pultrater Mundi."
Tenor.—"Cast by John Draper, 1631."

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1887.

ONE of the most important features in connection with the achievement of a peal is to ensure the correct time of its performance. In fact this may be said to be of almost as much value as the truth of the peal itself, because unless some pains are taken to have an accurate report with regard to the time occupied, the whole becomes a question of doubt, and those who are competent judges become incredulous when the same people again record another peal. At the present moment, one or two recent performances have become the subject of discussion in our columns, relative to the important matter of the time in which they took to execute. We have no desire to say anything in reference to these individual peals, or in fact any others, the time of the performance of which may be questioned. All we contend for is that more care should be taken in the matter. It is not right that such an important ingredient in the record should be left to such slipshod arrangement as in many instances it is, but some good plan of registering the time occupied by accurate timekeepers should be adopted. If a recognised mode could be determined on, which would become universal, a mode with faults reduced to a minimum, much unpalatable controversy would be avoided, and the creation of a great deal of bickering prevented. This very question of time, simple as it may appear, has given rise to an infinite amount of disputes, which have not always been accompanied with the most charitable feeling. The volumes of "THE BELL NEWS" unfortunately afford complete testimony to this statement.

There is practically no hard and fast time relative to the time which should be kept in ringing a peal, because a variety of circumstances militate against the slightest degree of similarity. What one company has done in a certain period may be done upon another occasion by the same people and the time occupied show a marked difference, both performances being of equal merit. We know there are some ringers that consider swift and speedy ringing a matter of importance, but the preference is merely fanciful. So long as excellent striking is maintained throughout a performance, the question of its being either a quick or slow peal is surely a matter of secondary or in fact of very little moment. The primary object is that the actual time taken be faithfully published, and that proper regulations be made for this purpose.

The committee announced with thankfulness that the income, under every head, had increased—the subscriptions from 2033*l.* to 2,228*l.*, the donations from 2,392*l.* to 4,256*l.*, and the collections from 499*l.* to 510*l.* The chairman moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Archdeacon Farrar, who spoke of the great work carried on by the corporation, and of the special need at the present time for its increased support.

NORTH NOTTS ASSOCIATION.

The Annual General Meeting of the above association will be held on Monday, the 1st August, 1887, at the Rectory Infant School, Cheapside, Workop. Members and intending members are cordially invited to attend. The bells (8) of the Priory Church will be at the disposal of ringing members after 11 o'clock in the morning. FRED. MAGKIE, Hon. Sec.

On Monday, Dr Danford Thomas held an inquest on the body of Mr. R. H. Hutton, of 36, Queen Anne's-gate—not, however, the editor of the Spectator, but a famous bone-setter. It appeared that on Saturday morning a medical rubber, named Shurmer, who daily attended Mr Hutton, entered his bedroom and found him in his usual health. Mr. Hutton immediately asked for "the draught on the table." Shurmer took up the bottle indicated and poured out the contents until Mr. Hutton said, "That is enough." Shurmer afterwards looked at the bottle and saw the word "Poison," and called Mr. Hutton's attention to it. Mr. Hutton replied, "You have poisoned me," and ordered him to get hot water and salt. This proved of no avail, and two doctors were sent for, but when they arrived Mr. Hutton, who was a very powerful man, silently resisted all attempts to administer an antidote or apply the stomach pump. This action on his part the medical man attributed to the action of the poison on the brain. It was stated that deceased had been in the habit of taking a black draught, a bottle of which was found in a drawer in the dressing table, and it was evident a mistake was made in the bottles. The jury returned a verdict of death by misadventure.

DEATH OF THE PRINCE CONSORT.—Hour after hour, as she watched by the sick bed, the Queen saw that her husband was slowly sinking. Still, in the afternoon he knew her—for as he laid his weary head on her shoulder, he kissed her and muttered, "Gutes frauchen." Then his mind would wander, and then he would doze in brief and troubled snatches of sleep. He took his children by the hand when they came and kissed him, but it is doubtful if he now knew them. Late in the afternoon he asked for Sir Charles Phipps, who came and kissed his hand, whereupon he again closed his eyes. So he lingered on, the Queen keeping her mournful watch with broken heart. At a late hour they changed his bed, and on the Queen pointing to a favourable sign, Dr. Jenner told her that the Prince's breathing rendered all favourable signs of no avail. At last she went to her room, but returned when she heard the breathing grow worse. The Prince was partially conscious, for when she kissed him and whispered, "Es ist kleines Frauchen"—"Tis your own little wife"—he kissed her also. But he seemed desirous of being left quite undisturbed, and so she retired to her room to weep. The end was coming fast. Clark soon saw that a serious change for the worse was setting in, and the Princess Alice went to summon the Queen. When she came she found the Prince still breathing, and she knelt at the bedside, taking his old hand in hers. On the opposite side knelt the Princess Alice—at the foot of the bed the Prince of Wales and the Princess Helena. The doctors, Generals Bruce and Grey, Sir Charles Phipps, the Dean of Windsor, Prince Ernest of Leiningen, and the faithful valet, Köhlein, stood around, hushed and grief-stricken, and the sobs of those to whom the Prince was dearest alone broke the stillness of the chamber of death. The dying man's face grew serenely soft and reposeful, as his breathing became feebler and feebler. At last he proved hard to take a long deep breath. In this effort he passed away to his last long rest, as the great clock of the Castle struck the third quarter after the tenth hour of the night. Those who heard the doleful chime at the Prince's deathbed will never forget it.—From "The Life and Times of Queen Victoria" for July.

THE UNITED COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION. PRIZE COMPETITION.

On Saturday last, July 16th, the first Annual Cup Competition of the above Association took place at the parish church, Chapel-en-le-Frith. This Association, which is only in its third year, consists of ringing and honorary members, the ringing members to have rung 720 or "covered" 1260 changes to be eligible. The districts included in the Association (according to the last report) are Ashton-under-Lyne seven members, Castleton one, Chapel-en-le-Frith five, Dinting seven, Glossop twenty-one, Gorton two, Haughton eight, Hayfield nine, Hyde twelve, Mottram fourteen, Northenden six, Royal George three, Saddleworth ten, Stalybridge five, Whitfield eleven, non-resident members nineteen. On Saturday there were also twenty new entries. In the words of the Committee, the only ambition of the members is "to improve the art of change-ringing, to make their meetings attractive and social, and their association one of the best." The hope is further expressed that the members of this and kindred societies may ring on harmoniously for all time, or what is equal to it—

"Till rival nations join their hands,
Till plenty crowns the happy lands,
Till knowledge gives new blessings birth,
And freedom reigns o'er all the earth."

To promote a spirit of friendly rivalry, the association offers two cups for the best ringing, one for six and the other for eight bells, and for a competing company to obtain absolute ownership of a cup it must be won three times. For Saturday's competition a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor, was rung by each company. There were two other prizes, the second being six silk pocket-handkerchiefs, with figured bells and ringing mottoes woven in by Mr. E. Matthews, of Macclesfield, given by the Chapel-en-le-Frith ringers; and the third, six silver scarf pins the shape of a bell, by J. Carter, of Birmingham, given by the president of the Association. The following were the competing companies, and the names are given in the order in which they rang:—Saddleworth, No. 2 company; Messrs. F. Brierley (conductor), J. Radcliffe, J. L. Buckley, J. Maloney, J. H. Shaw, and J. Pye, jun. (substitute for J. Radcliffe). Saddleworth, No. 1 company; Messrs. J. J. Brierley (conductor), J. Wrigley, J. T. Holden, J. Wood, E. Buckley, and E. Wood. Royal George; Messrs. J. W. Shaw, G. T. Shaw, O. Wood (conductor), S. Dicken, J. Dicken, and J. T. Dicken. Hayfield; Messrs. J. Vernon, J. Brocklehurst, T. Whitehead (conductor), A. Rangeley, J. Hardman, and T. Brocklehurst. Glossop; Messrs. J. Booth, J. Harrop S. Knott, sen. (conductor), J. Robinson, C. Jubb, and J. Pye, sen. The competition commenced at quarter-past twelve noon, and concluded in about four and a half hours. Throughout the contest the ringing was considered to be very good, and that of the winners particularly good. The awards were made according to the least number of faults, on the same principle that a good general is judged. It is not the one who makes brilliant points that wins, but he who makes the least blunders. Messrs. B. A. Dodson (Birstall, Yorkshire), and S. Wood (Ashton-under-Lyne), were the judges, and we believe no complaint was made with regard to their decisions. The results achieved were as follows: Saddleworth, No. 1, first prize, 160 faults; Royal George, second prize, 173 faults; Glossop, third prize, 183 faults; Saddleworth, No. 2, 323 faults; Hayfield, 331 faults (rung out). An enjoyable dinner was partaken of at 5 o'clock, at the house of Mr. Joseph Thornhill, "Bull's Head" Inn, after which Mr. John Holden (president), presented the prizes. Mr. J. J. Brierley received the cup, Mr. Owen Wood the second prize, and Mr. S. Knott the third prize, on behalf of their respective companies.

The CHAIRMAN said he hoped everyone had enjoyed the visit to Chapel-en-le-Frith, for it had been a nice, harmonious, and successful contest. He had great pleasure in presenting the cup to the winners.

Mr. BRIERLEY said he considered the first prize was a jubilee cup, and the other recipients also briefly responded.

Some ordinary business of the Association having been transacted, Mr. John T. Dicken (Royal George), moved a vote of thanks to the Chapel-en-le-Frith ringers for their kind presentation of the silk handkerchiefs as a second prize.

Mr. JAMES SELLARS (Glossop), seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. G. FORD (Chapel-en-le-Frith), said it gave him great pleasure to respond, and they were heartily welcome to the little gift.

A similar compliment was paid the Chairman for the third prize, which he accepted with an appropriate expression of his desire to do his best for the society.

Mr. EDGAR BUCKLEY (Saddleworth), moved a vote of thanks to the Vicar (the Rev. H. S. Pink), and the churchwardens of Chapel-en-le-Frith, for kindly allowing the use of the bells for the competition. He only hoped they would receive the same courtesy at their next contest.

Mr. JAMES SELLARS seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. G. FORD said on behalf of the ringers of that Association, he would convey to the Vicar and churchwardens that mark of their respect, and he had no doubt whenever the occasion occurred again, they would once more have the same privilege accorded them. There had been no trouble in having the present contest. It was only a question of going the proper way about it. Everything had passed off satisfactorily, and he hoped that on every other occasion it would be the same.

Votes of thanks having been accorded the chairman and judges, the chairman intimated that Mr. James S. Wilde, the secretary of the Association (Hyde), had sent a letter regretting his absence.

Mr. S. WOOD moved, and Mr. LONGDEN seconded, a vote of thanks to the host and hostess, to which Mr. Thornhill suitably responded.

The next Annual Meeting will be held at Leesfield near Oldham, in January 1888.—Local paper.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting of this Association will be held at Kingston, on Monday, July 25th. Tower open at 3 p.m. Tea at the Leopold Coffee Tavern at 6. Business meeting at 6.30, and ringing again afterwards.
ARTHUR B. CARPENTER. Hon. Sec.

Westminster Abbey will be reopened for divine service on Sunday week. On Tuesday last, the decorations used at the thanksgiving service were sold by Messrs. Horne, son, and Eversfield. The catalogue contained 448 lots, all of which found ready purchasers at what were considered good prices, the most valuable portion of the property being the several lots of Brussels carpeting, which realised about 3s. 6d. per yard. A number of cushions stuffed with hair and covered with maroon velvet fetched about 5s. each. The sale produced upwards of 2,000l.

DEATH OF SIR JOHN MOORE.—Sir John Moore, the consummate commander who had brought the battle to a crisis, was dashed from his horse by a cannon shot. It came from the battery on the rocks and had torn away all the flesh from his left breast and shoulder, "and broken the ribs over a heart undaunted even by this terrible—this ghastly mortal hurt." With an anxiety and impulse that rose superior to the pangs of pain or terror of death, he struggled into a sitting posture, and, with fixed look and unchanged countenance, continued to watch the struggle at Elvina; and when he saw the black and crimson plumes of the 42nd appear in the village again, something like a smile of gratification spread over his face. He then sank back and accepted succour. On being placed in a blanket for removal, an entanglement of his belt caused the hilt of his sword to enter the wound. Captain (afterwards Viscount) Hardinge, proposed to take the weapon away, but Moore said—"I would rather it went out of the field with me." Or, as Napier has it, "With martial pride, the stricken man forbade the alleviation—he would not part with his sword in the field! Epaminondas, mortally wounded at Mantinea, was anxious for the recovery of his shield; Moore, mortally wounded at Corunna, sustained additional torture rather than part with his sword." Six soldiers—42nd men and Guardsmen—now bore him slowly away in a blanket; and when a waggon came up, and it was proposed to place him beside Colonel Winch, of the 4th Regiment, who lay in it wounded, the poor fellows objected with tears in their eyes. "We will all keep step, and carry him more easily," they urged. As Moore was borne from the field of his glory, he frequently made the bearers halt and turn him round, that he might behold it and be assured that everywhere the French were already falling back. In the town of Corunna it was soon found that all hope was over; yet he lingered for a time, talking feebly but collectedly to those about him, and in many ways evincing the gentleness and kindness of his heart. "Anderson," said he to the colonel so named, an old and valued friend, "you know I have always wished to die in this way." After a pause—"Are the French beaten?" he asked; and on being assured that they were so, and retiring fast, he added with touching earnestness, "I hope the people of England will be satisfied; I hope my dear country will do me justice. Oh, Anderson, you will see my friends at home! Tell them everything—my mother—" Here his voice completely failed him, till he inquired if all his aides-de-camp were safe. To one of these, the son of Earl Stanhope, he said, faintly—"Remember me, Stanhope, to—to your sister." It was to the brilliant and famous Lady Hester Stanhope, of Djouna celebrity, who died in Syria in 1839, he referred, and whom he is said to have loved with great tenderness. Pressing to his breast the hand of Colonel Anderson, who had saved his life at the capture of St Lucia, he expired without a struggle, in his forty-eighth year, having been borne the Frigate of Glasgow, in 1761.—From "British Battles on Land and Sea" for July.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

A CORRECTION AND FALSE PEAL.

SIR,—In your last issue there appears from me two peals of Treble Bob Royal. The 5088 in eleven courses should read for second course two M. one H. The other 5080 is false. ROBERT WILLIAMS.

REPLY TO MR. FAKENHAM.

SIR,—In your last issue, I see the above gentleman doubts as to the peal which I called at Woolwich in May last being true, also the two peals rang at Holy Trinity, Newington, the last which was rang, as some other gentlemen would not believe it. I beg to state that each peal was rung true and contained 5040 changes. Mr. Fakenham ought to know that peals of Treble Bob Major have been rung at the rate of thirty-two per minute. I don't wish to hold any argument with Mr. F., but at any time he can obtain the use of the tower at Woolwich. I will attempt it again with the same band if possible, then he can take the lead-ends off and so satisfy himself that the peal is true and can be rung in 2 hrs. 37 mins. F. G. NEWMAN.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Would the Hon. Secs. of Change-Ringing Associations who have the privilege of obtaining cheap railway tickets for individual members to and from the quarterly or other meetings, kindly communicate particulars as to fares and by what Companies issued? to

JOSEPH GRFFIN

Hon. Sec. Midland Counties' Association.

5, St. Paul's Street East, Burton-on-Trent.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—In the peal of Albion Treble Bob published in your last issue, the foot note should read once repeated, not twice as it there appears. The peal of Cambridge Surprise Major in the same issue is false repeating at the middle in each part. This statement I think is only fair to prevent anyone ringing the same. JOHN R. PRITCHARD.

CAMBRIDGE SURPRISE.

SIR,—As there exists at present only one peal of Cambridge Surprise Major, namely, Middleton's, doubtless the composition in this method which appears in your last issue will have attracted considerable attention. I regret to have to point out that in each part, changes after the second M repeat with others before the first M of the previous part. If another peal is ever obtained, it will not be in equal divisions. A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

ALDBOURNE BELLS, WILTS.

SIR,—In the inscription I gave from Aldbourne tenor, in your issue of July 2nd, several printer's errors occurred. (1).—For "diabus" read "animabus," or the contracted form as on the bell "aiabus." (2).—For "camparium" read "campanum," and in my query about the sixth bell, for "pissima" read "pissima." I shall be greatly obliged if you will correct these errors. J. R. JERRAM.

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—Mr. Williams is about right. Had it not been for my anxiety to disown any claim to the 5024 of Treble Bob Major, he might now hold the honour of composing a first-class 5040 of Treble Bob Royal. But as he so willingly gave up his claim, I am sure he will pardon me saying that the 5080 he gives in this week's issue, July 16th, may be found on page 130, Hubbard's 1876 edition, also on page 108 of Snowdon's Treatise, in each case the late William Harrison's name is attached to this peal. Your correspondent does not seem to properly grasp my reference to an "unpalatable fact." I did not intend to be personal, neither do I now wish to appear so, but I will be more plain, and say I believe it impossible for anyone to compose an original peal upon the plan of the 5000 or 5040 under notice. This is the "unpalatable fact," and I have felt it as much as anyone. If however your correspondent or anyone else thinks I am going too far, let them go to work, and if successful, no one will be found more ready than myself to confess my error or compliment the meritorious one. In your issue of the 9th inst, Mr. S Marsh gives us a 6144 of Treble Bob Major in three parts, a good peal, which may be found on page 13 of Snowdon's

Treatise, with Mr. Tom Lockwood's name attached. In the same number, Mr. A. Sykes gives us a 5120 of Treble Bob Major, which peal may be found on page 3 of Snowdon's Treatise, with Mr. W. Sottanstell's name attached. I hope all these gentlemen will take my correction in the same friendly spirit it is given. In conclusion, I hope after the gentlemanly letter of Mr. Pritchard disclaiming two peals of Treble Bob Royal, he will allow me to point out to him how very false the composition he chose to call Cambridge Surprise Major is. If we title it Superlative, it also runs very false in each place, the false places are too numerous to mention. The only way to retain it true is to avail ourselves of Mr. A. Percival Heywood's recent discoveries in the science, and after obtaining Burton ringers' permission, entitle it a 5120 Burton variation of Superlative Surprise. The mention of Mr. Heywood's name recalls Duffield to memory, the most harmonious and symmetrical of all Major methods I verily believe; if ever we had a perfect method this is surely the one. Allow me to pay the author a humble compliment, not only upon its happy discovery, but upon the masterly way he brought out the method, and his clever expositions of detail. H. DAINS.

GREAT MALVERN PRIORY BELLS.

SIR,—The congratulations and thanks of all lovers of bells, and antiquarians, are due to the local antiquarian, Mr. James Nott, for his successful efforts in saving the old bell belonging to this tower, from the melting-pot, as recorded in your last issue (July 16th). It is lamentable how reckless of public property many—I fear I must say the majority—of Vicars and churchwardens are. This bell is certainly a 14th century production, though we do not know the founder's name. The inscription is not quite correctly rendered in your last number, viz.: the initial cross is omitted. This seems to be identical with Fig. 105 in Ellacombe's "Bells of Gloucestershire." The words "Egrecie," and "Mariœ" should be spelt "Egrecie," and "Marie" as the diphthong was not used at that period; and the stamp between each word is not an S, but an ornamental stop curving the reverse way to that letter. The whole of each word is in lombard capitals. Diameter 37 inches. In conclusion I will express a hope that the clock hammer—to the tender mercies of which this valuable old bell are handed over—may not speedily smash the veteran; for firms who ought to know better, are very apt (if given their own way) to put in hammers out of all proportion to the bell; utterly heedless as to the inevitable consequence. A. H. C.

SMALL BEGINNINGS.—Man is made in the image of God, and his mind is peculiarly interested and impressed by this feature of the Divine handiwork. And when, on a far humbler scale, it characterises his own works, he is greatly moved. Witness the delight of the schoolboy when a handful of snow rolled patiently along the garden becomes a huge lump taller than himself. Witness the satisfaction of some laborious writer, who, for years upon years has been toiling at a dictionary, or a history of the world, or a philosophy of the universe, or some such task, and at last sees the slender first day's page multiplied into a work of a dozen enormous volumes. A successful man of the people who founded an institute in a provincial town in Scotland, placed in it a little green box, more interesting to him than to the public, because when he started in life it contained the whole of his earthly possessions. In the hall of a splendid mansion on the edge of Loch Lomond, I have seen the picture of a little sailing vessel, which carried the owner and all his goods, when he set out for the East to begin what proved to be a vast and most lucrative business. And how often at firesides, or dinner-tables, in the course of friendly saunters by the way, do men who have acquired a position, delight to rehearse the story of their progress; and how interested are most of us in hearing or in reading how the gulf was spanned between the lawyer's first brief and the woosack, or the doctor's fee and his baronetcy, or, in the case of the American President, between the log cabin and the White House.—Professor Blaikie in "The Quiver" for July.

"EIGHT BELLS."

Now Campanologius, my friend, don't go and run away with the idea that I am going to write about that handy peal of eight, tenor about 14 cwt., upon which you rang your first peal of Grandsire, and upon which occasion you so nearly came to grief; you were ringing the fourth, if I remember rightly, and no doubt would have come to grief, only the old 'uns were on each side of you, and picked you up before you had hardly commenced to stumble, so to speak. Trust either of them to lose a peal of Grandsire in the last course, for a young 'un. One of them can smell when you are thinking of going wrong—it is well known he can't see six inches before his nose, without that old eye-glass; and he don't wear that when ringing—while as for the other, he rings his own bell with his hands, but he rings yours, the "young un's," with his head, and therefore knows, long before you know yourself, when you are becoming a little vague as to which is your course-bell. They're not the Ancients, either of 'em, to waste their time over a peal of Grandsire to oblige a young 'un, without making it nearly a moral certainty of "booking it."

Neither do I allude to that other heavier peal, about 24 cwt., of which you are so fond of ringing the tenor in Treble Bob, Double Norwich, etc., etc., since you became au fait in those intricate and pleasing methods.

And, whispers Campanaologius, I don't mean the "eight bells" that you are thinking of in connection with shandy-gaff either, although it is very natural that you should think I did, for this weather is dreadfully hot and trying, and after a long touch, or a short one either for the matter of that, a good draught of wholesome ale out of a bright flagon, or a deep, taper, sparkling goblet, is by no means to be despised.

I suppose you, and most of your friends would know something of all these sorts of eight bells upon June 21st, last past.

No Sir, the eight bells I mean are not eight bells at all, but only one bell, and that but a very "panny" sounding affair too, generally.

To come to the point, without further beating about the bush, or, as I should say in this case, without any more backing and filling, this latter being a nautical simile, I refer to the eight bells that the writers of nautical stories are so fond of introducing into their narratives.

Readers of salt water stories will call to mind that all, or most, of the thrilling incidents occur at or about "eight bells": the hero will order the stern-sails to be set, during a howling gale, or a double reef in the topsails while lying becalmed in the tropics, or a cast of the lead in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, or mayhap, to splice the main-brace, (this latter, alas, never occurs now in real ships, the others do sometimes among the new generation of seamen), and generally as I before remarked, at "just eight bells."

Now this is very unsatisfactory to the conscientious novel reader; he, or she, especially she, if there are any sentimental points in the yarn, don't feel satisfied to be told the bold fact that Edwin clasped Angelina gently by the hand, and leading her abaft the binnacle tremblingly told his love, at eight bells! She, naturally enough, from experience, thinks that this would occur about 9 p.m., whereas eight bells may be 4 o'clock a.m., dark and rainy, a high noon, blazing hot and dusty, both very unpoetic hours of the twenty-four to carry out a job of that sort.

And it strikes me that the writers themselves, for the most part, are as far at sea, metaphorically, as the majority of their readers; if they were not so, they would, evidently, be only too happy and proud to let us inferior mortals see that they knew all about it. For the bare statement that it was "just eight bells," is equally unintelligible to the seaman, as to his shore keeping brother, without it is accompanied by the name of the "watch" to which it belongs.

You know that bells are often attached to clocks, don't you, friend C? but this is the first that you have heard of bells in watches, isn't it?

Well then the twenty-four hours (no, not of the day, my friend), are divided into seven watches, five of four hours each, and two of two hours each, and the reckoning of them is commenced at 8 o'clock p.m. From 8 p.m. then to midnight is called the first watch, from midnight until 4 a.m. is the middle watch, 4 a.m. to 8 a.m. is the morning watch, 8 a.m. to 12 noon the forenoon watch, 12 noon to 4 p.m. the afternoon watch, 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. the first dog watch, and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. the second dog watch. These again are divided into half-hours, and at every recurring half hour, the ship's bell is struck the proper number of blows by the man appointed for the purpose; in large ships there are generally two bells, a small one hung close to the hand of the officer in charge, and near the clock, upon which he "makes" the number required; a heavier bell, large enough to be clearly heard all through the ship, is hung on the fore-castle, and upon this, the quartermaster, or seaman, repeats the number given him by the officer.

Thus half-past eight is one bell, nine o'clock two bells, half-past nine three bells, and so on until the end of the four hours is reached, when up comes (always true, this course end) the story writers' old favourite, "eight bells."

In the dog-watches, the bells are "made" as above until 6 p.m., four bells, then commences again, and half-past six is one bell, seven o'clock two bells, half-past seven three bells, and 8 p.m. being the conclusion of one working day and commencement of another, assumes its full dignity of "eight bells."

I may as well mention, friend C, that the bells are "made" or struck, London fashion, that is, with a good open lead at hand, and not like Yorkshiremen ring Treble Bob.

The reason for the dog-watches is this; the ship's company, or crew, are divided into two sets, or watches—port and star-board watches this time, Campanologius—one of which rest (when the weather will let them), whilst the other carry on the business of the ship, four hours on and four hours off duty, or to use the sea term, "watch and watch." By splitting one watch of four hours into two of two hours each, the men who last night had but four hours' rest, to-night get eight hours, and so on, turn and turn about. I am presuming, my dear friend, that you are aware it is not the custom for ships to be tied up to trees every night, from leaving one port until arriving at another, not a minute is lost, all possible progress is made, both by day and night.

Of course a little judgment is required in this sort of bell-ringing as in every other, for example, the man who performs on the tenor at night, does his spiriting very gently as far as seven bells, making as little noise as possible to disturb the weary mariners who are courting Momus in their respective hammocks or bunks, irreverently termed by the profane seaman "pews," but at eight bells he "wakes the dead," for until the one watch is posted on deck, the other cannot leave it to seek their modicum of repose.

In steam ships, this system of "watch and watch" applies only to the sailor portion of the crew, the engineer and firemen are sufficient in number to make three watches, having four hours of work and eight hours rest; the nature of their duties, owing to the great heat they labour in, is too exhaustive to be carried on for any time on the watch and watch system. There is however with them, no change of watches from beginning to end of the voyage, but as with the sailors, the reliefs are made at "Eight Bells."

ELIJAH ROBERTS.

The name of this renowned exponent of the art of change-ringing must be new to many of our readers. We, therefore, publish the following, taken from an illustrated paper of the year 1862, being of opinion that even such a brief and imperfect sketch of this wonderful man may prove of interest to many of our younger friends. There are ringers yet living who knew ELIJAH ROBERTS perfectly well, among them being Mr. Henry Johnson, who relates some piquant anecdotes concerning his life and times:—

"In the manly and scientific art of change-ringing' Elijah Roberts, we are told by one who ought to know, and with whose account we confess ourselves unqualified to meddle, 'is the most accomplished and unparalleled change-ringer upon the handbells the world has hitherto produced. Mr. Roberts has repeatedly challenged, and is still open to ring changes with any man in the world. He is now residing at the Derby Arms, Whitechapel, Liverpool. He commenced the study and composition of changes when about twelve years of age. In the year 1824 (then in his seventeenth year) he rung his first peal, which consisted of courses in various methods, commencing with changes on seven bells—namely Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob Triples, Stedman Triples, Treble Bob Triples. Changes on eight bells—Grandsire Major, Plain Bob Major, Treble Bob Major. Changes on nine bells—Grandsire Caters, Plain Bob Caters, Stedman Caters, Treble Bob Caters. Changes on ten bells, or Grandsire Royal—Plain Bob Royal, Treble Bob Royal. Changes on eleven bells, or Grandsire Cinques—Plain Bob Cinques, Stedman Cinques, Treble Bob Cinques. Changes on twelve bells—Grandsire Maximus, Plain Bob Maximus, Treble Bob Maximus; and finishing with a course of Double Treble Bob Major on sixteen bells, the whole containing 5186 changes, in three hours and twenty-seven minutes: rung at Birmingham. His next peal was rung on October 14, 1827, comprising 5040 changes of Treble Bob Maximus with the Kent variation, in three hours and twenty-two minutes: rung at Birmingham. His third peal was rung on the 6th of April, 1830, consisting of 7536 changes of Kent Treble Bob Maximus, occupying four hours and fifty-one minutes: rung at Birmingham. His next performance was rung on the 30th of June, 1833, being a very intricate peal of that much-admired and musical method, Stedman Cinques, with the bells in the tittums and every musical position, comprising 5016 changes, in three hours and twenty-four minutes: rung at Birmingham. His next peal was rung at Liverpool, on the 23rd of March, 1837, comprising 19,440 changes of Kent Treble Bob Maximus, being the full extent of changes with the large bells at home, occupying him thirteen hours and forty-three minutes. Thus Mr. Roberts has, solely and unassisted, surpassed by many thousands of changes the longest peals that have ever been rung on twelve bells by any twelve men in the world. Besides ringing the above peals, Mr. Elijah Roberts has composed, conducted, and rung upwards of 100 peals, on eight, ten and twelve bells, in various churches in the United Kingdom."

The following letter from ELIJAH ROBERTS was sent to a friend at Birmingham, and, with the foregoing, will be read with much interest:

"The 19,440 of the Treble Bob Maximus, I rung in Liverpool on the 23rd March, 1837, I commenced at 19 minutes before Four in the morning, and finished at 24 minutes past Five in the afternoon. I am sorry that no amateur heard it. The neighbours said they thought I should never give in, for they heard the bells ringing hours before they got up, and almost until bedtime again. The peal of Treble Bob, on 16 bells, if you can call it one (for the bells did not come round), I rung about a fortnight after the 19,440 in Liverpool, and is called exactly the same as the first six courses of the 19,000, and consisted of 6,720 changes, the course-end where I stopt being 1 4 5 6 2 3 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16. I was 6 hours and 28 minutes doing it. Now my ambition was to have rung all the 30 courses, which would be 33,600 changes, and at the same rate, I should have been five times 6 hours and 28 minutes, or 32 hours and 20 minutes, so I abandoned the idea; but I have rung every change by one course at a time. As you request me to send you all the particulars, I have rung the greatest number of Treble Bob Maximus and Treble Bob Cinques in the world. There has only been one peal of Treble Bob Cinques rung, and that was at St. Martin's, Birmingham. You and I assisted in it. The peal of Treble Bob Cinques I rung in contained 6,424 changes, and is the same peal as the 7536 of Treble Bob Maximus. I was 3 hours and 48 minutes. The first peal I rung on the handbells was about 20 years ago, for I don't know the precise date, but it was published in one of the Birmingham newspapers. The number of changes was between 5 and 6 thousand, and was composed of nothing but Plain courses, viz.:—Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob Triples, Treble Bob Triples, Grandsire Caters, Plain Bob Caters, Treble Bob Caters; Grandsire Royal, Plain Bob Royal, Treble Bob Royal; Grandsire Cinques, Plain Bob Cinques, Treble Bob Cinques; Grandsire Maximus, Plain Bob Maximus, Treble Bob Maximus. Also, one and the last course was Treble Bob Sixteen, for which I don't know what other name to give it. Now this may not be considered of much note, but I assure you that to ring three different methods, and on different number of bells; and as soon as one plain course is rung, and the bells come round, to strike immediately into another, from 8 bells unto 16, is no joke."

Mr. C. W. Clarke would be glad to know the addresses of Mr. H. J. Tucker, of Bishop Stortford, Herts., and of Mr. J. W. Washbrook, of the Oxford Diocesan Guild.

THE PREACHER AND THE MOUSE.—It is related of a young minister who was preaching "on trial," in the church of Portmoak, a small parish in Kinross-shire, that he began to thump the cushion in a very vigorous way. And as he kept on thumping a mouse that had found a home somewhere in the pulpit was seen running about on the sounding board over the speaker's head. Now it so happened that this mouse used always to come out when a certain favourite minister preached, and has he had not preached for six months, the little animal of course had not been seen for this period. When, therefore, the congregation saw that this young man preached so effectively that he had caused the mouse to come forth as before, they accepted the matter as "a sign," and forthwith chose him for their Minister.—From "Little Folks" Magazine for August.

A TERRIBLE RIDE.—The Mendip Hills were formerly a Royal Forest, wherein the earlier kings of England, before and after the Norman Conquest, took their pleasure in the chase. On one occasion indeed, it nearly cost a king his life, and the cliffs of Cheddar all but became as noted in English as those of Kinghorn are in Scotch history. Edmund was hunting the red deer in the forest of Mendip, when his horse took fright and galloped towards the brow of these cliffs, just where they are steepest and highest. Shortly before the time he had had a quarrel with Dunstan, and had expelled the holy man with scorn from his court. As his horse was dashing on towards the brink of the precipice, the king bethought himself of his injustice, as the scenes of his life flashed before his mind, and vowed if he escaped to make amends. On the brink the horse halted, as if checked by an invisible hand; the King rode off to seek Dunstan, and made him Abbot of Glastonbury.—From "Our Own Country" for August.

WHAT TO WEAR.—Young girls' summer gowns for smart occasions have been happy combinations of soft, inexpensive wool and silk; indeed though we heard a great deal of this being a silk year, most of the every-day gowns I have seen have displayed a preponderance of wool over silk. The French are very skilful in the amalgamation of their whites, especially when wool and silk are used together. Lacing is employed a great deal, both as a fastening and by way of ornamentation. Many panels on the sides of skirts are laced with thick cord; and I am happy to say most dinner-gowns are laced in front—a very easy comfortable arrangement as it is possible for the wearer to fasten them which cannot be done when lacing is at the back. Heliotrope remains the most fashionable tint in Paris, but it includes many tones, from the highest fleur de peche to deep rich violet. Parisians excel so much in the amalgamation of materials, which intensifies the beauty of colours. If velvet is introduced on silk, it is darker, and yet equally intense. Gold embroidery on heliotrope was a new idea, largely employed on the Jubilee gowns, and coloured lace to exactly match looks well in the peach tones: it shows them up better than white, which is, however, greatly employed with them. Many bonnets worn with this tint are composed entirely of violets.—From "Casell's Family Magazine" for August.

RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Saturday, July 23rd, the St. Nicholas company, Great Yarmouth, had their annual outing. Leaving Yarmouth (Vaux), by the 7.20 a.m. train, and Norwich (Victoria), by the 9.5 a.m. for Diss, they there enjoyed themselves with ringing on the fine peal of eight bells for an hour or two, after which they proceeded on foot to Palgrave, where there is a peal of six, but as they were much out of order, very little could be done. They then proceeded to Eye, where there is a peal of eight, in good order, having been rehung in 1871 by Messrs. G. Day and Son. Here a pleasant time was spent handling the ropes for an hour or two, and the party left by the 7.18 p.m. train for Norwich (Victoria), and Yarmouth, where they arrived at 10.41 p.m., much gratified with their outing.

VISIT TO MANCHESTER.

ON Saturday, July 9th, A. A. Waite, and G. Miles, spent a very pleasant day in Manchester. On their arrival they were met by Mr. A. E. Wreaks, the conductor of the Cathedral company, who acted as guide, taking them first to the Royal Jubilee Exhibition, where they found much to interest them. On leaving there he pointed out a few of the most interesting places of the town, thence to the Cathedral tower, where they met W. Sevier, of Gloucester, and H. Karn, of Cheltenham. Previous arrangements had been made for a peal of Treble Ten, but it unfortunately came to grief after ringing about 1000 changes, time not allowing for another start.

THE ROCHDALE AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The above society will hold a Quarterly Meeting at Milnrow parish church, on Saturday, August 6th. The bells will be at the disposal of ringers about 2 o'clock. Meeting at 4 o'clock in the school room, hoping all members will attend.

APPROACHING MEETING AT DUFFIELD.

The St. Martin's company, Birmingham, and the Holt society, Aston, will visit Duffield on August 1st. A peal of Stedman Caters will be started for at 11 a.m. Dinner at 2 p.m. at the Bridge Inn. All ringers will be welcomed. Train from Birmingham 8 a.m. Any ringers wishing to be included in the party must see Mr. Thomas not later than 7.45 a.m. at station gates.

A. THOMAS, Hon. Sec.

ROSES AND DAHLIAS.—The rose garden will, of course, occupy us largely this month. Here we may say it is good to have a few briars and stocks in the kitchen garden on which a few budding experiments may be made. In a good old-fashioned country garden, it is rare to find that all flowers are forbidden to put in any appearance in the kitchen and fruit garden. And in addition to the budding operations, do not be niggardly in picking roses for table and drawing-room decoration. When there is a good show, save all the petals of your roses as they fade, and fill your old china basins with them; their power of retaining fragrance is notorious, and of their kind and in their way nothing is more beautiful in death than these dried-up rose-petals. Next in order among our flowers come our dahlias, as in August these begin to give us their gaudy blooms, while the single dahlias, formerly so despised by our grandmothers, are now all the rage, and certainly most effective they are for hand-picking and decoration. For brilliancy of colour nothing surpasses them, and they possess another advantage, that when picked they do not quickly fade, or cockle up immediately in the hand, like the convolvulus. The older-fashioned ones will require still more support, and if the side branches are not properly secured, there is every likelihood of their breaking; the flowers will come finer in proportion as you remove the weak and useless buds, and, as we know, will continue blooming until late in the autumn, when nearly everything else is getting into a tangled and desolate state. This, however, in a properly-cared-for garden, ought never to be the case. From "Cassell's Family Magazine" for July.

GREAT PETER OF YORK.

[FROM AN HANDBILL OF THE PERIOD.]

"What triumph THAT, the hand of skill
Has moulded from the melted ore,
And formed a wonder to its will
That England ne'er had viewed before—
Cathedral bell! thy pondrous state,
Thy majesty of form and weight,
May well the gazer's looks surprise
Who scans thee with astonished eyes.

This BELL, cast expressly for York Cathedral at an expense of £2000, is larger than any other in the United Kingdom; its weight is 12 tons 10 cwt.—it is 7 ft. 7 inches in height without the Stock—and its diameter 8 ft. 4 inches; being heavier by 5 tons than Old Tom of Oxford (hitherto the largest in England), by 7 tons than the celebrated Tom of Lincoln, and by nearly 9 tons than the large Bell at St. Paul's. The Oak Stock in which the Bell is fixed, weighs with the Bolts 3 tons. Eighteen horses were required for the removal of the Bell from the Foundry in Whitechapel to the Bazaar.

The gigantic Clapper is of wrought iron, of Yorkshire Manufacture, (a beautiful specimen of workmanship,) and weighs 4 cwt.

The Bell was cast by MESSRS. MEARS, who prepared 17 tons of metal, and ran it in 7½ minutes. It took 14 days cooling before it could be uncovered, and is one of the most perfect specimens of of gigantic casting known. It is to be rung with two wheels, 14 ft. diameter each, and will require 15 men to ring it.

The tone (which is F sharp) is exceedingly grand, and may be compared to the full diapason stop of a pealing organ, and swells roundly on the ear with an indescribable mellow richness.

The following inscription, in Lombardian characters, is round the upper rim:

IN SANCTE ET ETERNÆ TRINITATIS HONOREM PECUNIA SPONTE
COLLATA REPARACENSES FACIENDUM
CURAVERUNT IN USUM ECCLESIAE METROP. B. PETRI EBOR.

And on the lower rim are the words,

ANNO SALUTIS MDCCCLV. VICTORIAE REG. VIII., EDVARDI
ARCHIEPI XXXVIII. C. ET G. MEARS, LONDINI, FECERUNT.

The arms of the City of York and those of the Archbishop (the Cross Keys) are on the bell in opposite positions to each other.

The Committee, after many solicitations have delayed the bell's being forwarded to York Cathedral, to afford the public an opportunity of seeing this extraordinary Work of Art, and arrangements have been accordingly made for its exhibition at the Bazaar, Baker Street, Portman Square, where it may be seen daily until further notice. After defraying the expenses, it is proposed to apply the surplus to a fund for the benefit of the York ringers."

CHRIST CHURCH, MITCHAM, SURREY.

ON Tuesday, July 26th, a well attended meeting of ringers was held in the belfry of the above church. Ringing commenced at 6.30 p.m., and continued at intervals till 9 o'clock. Touches of Grandsire Minor, Grandsire and Bob Doubles, &c., was rung. This meeting was to have been held on Monday, July 25th (birthday of W. J. Harris, Esq.), but the annual meeting of the Surrey Association being held at Kingston on that day, was adjourned till Tuesday, July 26th.

A CHINESE FESTIVAL.—Early in the month of June is held the festival of dragon-boats, which lasts five days, and is often spoken of as the children's festival. Picture to yourself several narrow boats, varying in length from forty to even a hundred feet. The bows are shaped like a dragon's head, and the body and stern of the boat are painted to represent his body. The helmsman sits in the stern, and two men in the middle make as much noise as they possibly can with a drum and gong. The rowers move their oars under the directions of a man who sits on the dragon's head and regulates their pace by waving a small flag. Races are rowed in these ungainly boats, and, as you may imagine, many accidents happen. In big places, like Canton, the din lasts from ten o'clock in the morning to four o'clock in the afternoon. When there is no water near the people console themselves by racing in carts, or on horses, or on camels instead.—From "Little Folks" Magazine for July.

BELLS AND GONGS AS FOG SIGNALS.

Bells appear to have been the first instruments employed to convey warnings by means of sound; nor is it surprising that they should have been adopted for this purpose, having been in use for centuries previously, for purposes of announcing, summoning, warning, etc. It is impossible to say, when or where, the first bell was put up to assist mariners; but we may quote the oft narrated tradition handed down by an old writer respecting the Bell Rock:—"By east of the Isle of May, twelve miles from all land, in the German Ocean, lyes a great hidden rock, called Inch Cape, very dangerous for navigators, because it overflowed every tide. It is reported in old times upon the saide rock there was a bell, fixed upon a tree or timber, which rang continually, being moved by the sea, giving notice to the saylers of the danger. This bell, or clocke, was put there and maintained by the Abbot of Aberbrothok; and, being taken down by a sea pirate, a yeare thereafter he perished upon the same rock, with shippe and goodes, in the righteous judgement of God."

The story, it is true, is only supported by tradition, the narrator being "an old writer" at the beginning of the present century; but it serves to show that the notion of marking a hidden danger by a sounding bell was certainly in existence—if not practically applied—at a very early period. We know it was practically applied at Poolbeg, in Ireland, in 1811, and at the Bell Rock in Scotland, in 1812; and we also know that up to the year 1860, bells were established to be sounded in foggy weather, at many other lighthouses on the coasts of Great Britain and Ireland, and of France, the United States, and other countries, many of which continue to be sounded at the present day. These bells vary in weight from 3 cwt. to 45 cwt., and are generally struck by means of clockwork. In no case does the bell itself move, the clapper, or clappers, alone being actuated by the machinery. It is well known that the sound of a bell is curiously fluctuating. In the open country, or at sea, in the neighbourhood of church bells, the sound may be heard rising and falling, the peal swelling out as if close at hand—now fading into the thinnest sound, as if retreating far, far away. These effects are familiar to most people, and in themselves are really beautiful; but they come into play injuriously when the sound is wanted to be evenly distributed over a certain area. The truth probably is, that the vibrations from the largest bell will not yield a sound capable of overcoming opposing influences even of a slight nature. The sound produced in the immediate vicinity of the bell seems no doubt exceedingly powerful, the greatest energy of vibration being there exerted; but at moderately long distances, this apparent energy is dissipated, and the bell ceases to be of use. It will be easily understood that little dependence can be placed upon bells as trustworthy fog signals. The effective sound range of the largest bell is at all times very doubtful—the wind may carry it to a distance even of ten or twelve miles, but against the wind it may be inaudible at a quarter of a mile.

In one form the bell continues to be serviceably employed, viz., when fixed on the top of a large buoy, with four hanging around the outside of the bell, which alternately strike the bell as the buoy is moved from side to side by the action of the waves. An incessant tolling is thus kept up; and at night or in foggy weather, the signal is most useful to mark the turning point at the entrances to important ports, and at other places where the navigation is intricate, or to mark isolated dangers. The number of bell buoys round the British coast is considerable.

GONGS.

The next kind of sound produces we have to notice is the gong. This instrument has been appropriated for use on board the light vessels round our coasts, owing, probably, to its peculiar distinctive sound. The gongs used in the Trinity House service are about two feet in diameter, of Chinese make, and cost about £4 each. They are struck with a stick with a padded head, the strokes being short, and delivered in very quick succession, so as to bring up the gong into a vigorous state of vibration. The sound is undoubtedly distinctive and serviceable at very short distances, but, like the sound of a bell, is soon dissipated after leaving the immediate vicinity of the instrument. Passing vessels may approach nearer to a lightship than to a rocky coast marked by a lighthouse; therefore, a sound with only a short range may oftentimes be of great service. In many lightships, however, the gong as a fog signal is now superseded by instruments of very much greater power, the principal of which are the reed-horn, or trumpet, and the SIREN, the latter an American invention, emitting most diabolical sounds of immense penetrative power, and moreover, its most valuable feature, being under perfect control as to the direction in which sounds may be thrown.

THORNBURY, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

On Monday next, Bank Holiday, there will be a large Temperance Fete in the grounds of Thornbury Castle. The tower will be open for ringing for the occasion.

The local band will be pleased to welcome any brother-ringer or Company in union for a pull. Bells go well, tenor 24 cwt.

A GREAT BELL FOR COLOGNE CATHEDRAL.—An official notice has been published of the great bell for the cathedral of Cologne, the solemn inauguration of which took place some days ago with great pomp. The bell weighs 27,000 kilos, or about 26 tons 13 cwt. The clapper alone weighs 800 kilos, or nearly 15½ cwt. Its perpendicular height is almost 14½ feet, its diameter at the mouth nearly 11½ feet. Twenty-two cannons taken from the French were assigned by the Emperor William for its manufacture: 5,000 kilos of tin were added. It was cast by Andreas Hamm, of Frankenthal, and 21,000m (£1,050) were paid for the casting. It will be known as the Kaiserglocke, or Emperor's bell; and as the two other large bells in the cathedral bear the epithets respectively of Pretiosa (precious), and Speciosa (beautiful), this one is styled Gloriosa. It bears above an inscription that "William, the most august Emperor of the Germans and King of the Prussians, mindful of the heavenly help granted to him whereby he conducted the late French war to a prosperous issue, and restored the German Empire, caused cannons taken from the French to be devoted to founding a bell to be hung in the wonderful cathedral then approaching completion." A likeness of St. Peter, the name-patron of the church, is on one side, beneath which is a quatrain in the style of the mediæval conceits, praying that, as devout hearts rise heavenward at hearing the sound of the bell, so may the doorkeeper of Heaven open wide the gates of the celestial mansion. On the opposite side is inscribed a sestet in German, of which the translation is:—

"I am called the Emperor's bell;
"I proclaim the Emperor's honour;
"On the holy watch-tower I am placed.
"I pray for the German Empire,
"That peace and protection
"God may ever grant to it."

The bell was solemnly blessed in the cathedral by the Archbishop of Cologne, according to the elaborate ritual set out in the Pontificale Romanum. The ceremony was very long, many Psalms being chanted by the clergy and choristers while the bell was being sprinkled with blessed water and anointed with chrism, and the portion of St. Luke, x, 38-42, was chanted by a deacon. Incense and myrrh were burnt within it, and many symbolical rites performed. The opinions of experts are divided as to whether the note which the bell sounds is C sharp or D.—Daily Paper.

ST. JAMES'S SOCIETY, BRISTOL.—ANNUAL OUTING.

On Monday, July 18th the members of the above society, accompanied by the Rev. W. E. Blathwayt, curate, Mr. G. W. Swinard, Reader, and honorary member of the society, and Mr. M. H. E. Cogan, Reader of St. Matthias, Bristol, paid a visit to Oxford, described of old by Spenser in his "Faerie Queen," as—

"That faire city, wherein make abode
So many learned imps that shoot abroad."

A better place could not have been selected, particularly for the thoughtful traveller, who, when he leaves "Puffing Billy" to wander amongst Oxford's famous halls, colleges, gardens, and walks, gains ample reward. Some of the company appeared to feel with one who has said, "It is a despair to see such a place and ever to leave it, for it would take a lifetime and more than one to comprehend and enjoy it satisfactorily." The party left Bristol at 7.50., arriving at Oxford some time after 11 o'clock. They proceeded at once to the Botanic Gardens, where some time was spent in looking at Nature's curiosities, and enjoying the cool shade of the trees. Magdalen (commonly called Maudlin) College and Chapel, were then visited, taking care to enjoy the delightful shades of Addison's walk, from which a fine view of the tower built by Wolsey is obtained. Christ Church with its fine bell was the next on the list. "Great Tom" of course could not be overlooked, some of the party seemed to admire the monster so much, that they talked of doing penance by crawling under. By this time the "inner man" began to exhibit signs of impatience, so one and all adjourned to the "Maiden's Head" Hotel, where a capital dinner was provided, to which all did good justice. New College and Chapel was then visited, and by kind permission, the company ascended the tower and rang a touch of 711 Grandsire Caters. A. Pearse, 1; W. Paddock, 2; G. Pymm, 3; A. Howell, 4; H. Tucker, 5; G. Pearse, 6; W. W. Porch, 7; W. Finch (Oxford), 8; H. Porch (conductor), 9; W. Hill, 10. From the beltry some proceeded to view the barges on the river, pursuing their way to the place of bathing, where the young and rising generation surpassed the elder, who could do little else than watch and "pull the wet." The hotel was again reached, and tea served (without the presence of Mr. Blathwayt, who was obliged to leave for London), which well fitted the company for a ring at the cathedral. At 7.30., the ringing here concluded with a plain course of Kent Treble Bob Major, finishing in time to catch the 9.15. train for Bristol. The journey homewards was spent in handbell ringing, songs, etc., and "smoky Bristol" was reached about 12.15., thus ending a most enjoyable day long to be remembered. It is much regretted that the Vicar was unable to accompany the "jolly boys" in consequence of recent illness. The company wish through the medium of this paper to tender their very best thanks to Mr. J. Field for his kind arrangements for ringing, and to Mr. Finch for his kindness to them.

SANDAL MAGNA, WAKEFIELD, YORKS.

Tuesday, July 19th, was a day of rejoicing to the ringers of the parish church, the bells having been entirely rehung with new fittings, and ~~balanced~~, so that the chappers hit in new positions, making the bells sound like a new peal. The bells are one of the finest toned peals of six in Yorkshire, having been cast and hung in the year 1812 by Thomas Mears, of London, and rehung by James Shaw, Son and Co., of Bradford, to the entire satisfaction of the ringers, clergy, and churchwardens, the expense being borne by Jas. Shaw, Esq., of "The Woodlands," Sandal, as a Jubilee gift to the parish. They were re-opened on the above date by the ringers on the occasion of the marriage of Captain Darby, R.A., aide-de-camp to the commander-in-chief of the forces in Ireland, and Miss Charlesworth, of Chapelthorpe Hall, youngest daughter of the late Colonel Charlesworth. The ringing was done at intervals from the following methods; Oxford 720, Violet 240, New London Pleasure, 240, Arnold's Victory, 360, Duke of York, 360, City Delight, 360, College Pleasure, 360. J. Brewin, 1; J. Moorhouse, 2; C. Robinson, 3; W. Reyner, 4; G. Moxon (conductor), 5. H. Robinson, 6. Tenor 13 cwt. in G.

HERE AND THERE.

At the present moment there seems to be somewhat of a dearth of news in the ringing world, perhaps I ought to say a scarcity of that peculiar intelligence which only interests bell-ringers. This is of course to some extent a pity, though not without its alloy. For it enables those who have not often the opportunity of growling, fully to give vent to their feelings; and those loquacious individuals who, like myself, have to wait patiently before they are allowed through this paper to edify and instruct their brethren, to have a look-in. I would like our Editor to believe that I don't suggest for a single moment in the least that our paper has suffered in quality or appearance because for the past week or two there has been a scarcity or dearth of ringing news. Quite the contrary, in fact; we have had a very nice readable paper—"from grave to gay, from lively to severe"—a paper with a variety—and variety is said to be charming—of matter which seemed to fit in very well with the character of "THE BELL NEWS." In common with many of my fellow-readers no doubt, I have often wondered how the various items of intelligence are got together, and where they come from. One would think that beyond the weekly records there could nothing else be provided to fill up the pages, yet there seems an inexhaustible resource somewhere. I don't know whether the idea has occurred to anyone else, but it has always struck me that the production of a leading article week after week must be a terrible grind (to use a vulgarism). It is, as a rule, always upon some subject connected with ringing, and the miracle is that such a continuity is kept up. But here I must change the subject, or else I shall be reckoned up by "those in the know."

That was a phrase, by the way, which appeared in print the other week: "those in the know." I happen to be one of "those" people, in connection with the particular instance, and the account which appeared in the local rag of my neighbourhood was too gushing, and the said rag deserved a "take-down." I don't see, of course, why the nuptials of ringers' daughters or sons should not be announced in the papers as well as those of other people. Not at all. Only any one reading that particular paragraph would have thought the bride's father had been a prodigy in the science, instead of a mere teller.

The recent correspondence anent the long peal at Birmingham, has not been productive of any real good, while some bad blood has been created which it will take time to allay. To nurse up in one's mind for years anything like scandal is a bad thing; to divulge it afterwards is still worse, and shows an unequally-balanced mind. When the next long peal is performed, what is to be said pro or con., will have to be said at the time, otherwise no attention will, or ought, to be paid to it.

The "new departure," as it is called, of the College Youths, has no significance whatever. It is curious, however, that the "scruffe" dinner of this Society was held the same day as the Cumberlands' Jubilee dinner. Of course there was no collusion, in fact I very much question whether either company knew of the other's intentions. By the way, the remarks anent the "London Scholars" and their medal are rather "high-falutin." That identical medal has had more vicissitudes than some people know, evidently.

Should my brother-strings wish anything to appear in this part of the paper, I shall be happy to entertain their applications. There are many, no doubt, who would like to have a say upon something. Communications may be sent under cover to the Editor. This column is for the next few weeks under the supervision and control of

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1887.

It has often been asserted with some show of reason, that the chances against achieving a peal when once started upon are a thousand to one. In other words, the forces at work militating against success are out of all proportion to those in its favor. This being so, it is the aim of all ringers on entering upon such a task, to reduce the antagonistic elements to a minimum, to prevent, in fact, their operation altogether, so far as human ingenuity can devise. These opposing forces cannot be enumerated, we are unable to define them by any system of nomenclature, so changeful and varied are they in their action, happening when least expected, and under the most inconceivable circumstances. Provision may be made with every possible care to prevent such untoward events, but after all they frequently take place, and appear from totally unexpected quarters.

We are not going to describe any specific for the reduction of such accidents, but there is one arrangement that has more than once been brought to our notice as affecting the security of a peal. It is a common practice in the metropolis for conductors to utter the word "stop" when at the close of a touch the bells are to be set. This word is frequently spoken in such a manner as to sound as much like "bob" as possible, and we are acquainted with more instances than one where "stop" has been mistook for "bob" by ringers, who have acted according to supposed instructions, and set their bell when they ought to been concerned in the making of a bob.

Such a source of danger as this can easily be destroyed, by adopting the word "stand" as the indication when bells are to be set. In fact, this word is the most universal sign of such a termination, and as effective a one as can be found. Out of the metropolitan radius the word "stop" is scarcely ever heard for such a purpose, and it is to be hoped that Londoners will see their way clear to abandon it. Of course there are obstinate people who will adhere to the worst mode of giving such a signal, because we have ventured to suggest a change for the better; they are at perfect liberty to please us in the matter by pleasing themselves.

RANDOM REMINISCENCES OF A SPECIAL ARTIST.—Having come into this troubled world while others in arms were making a noise in the Crimea, I have always taken an interest in the doings of that time; so it was quite con amore that I acted as "special" at the Balaclava Celebration Banquet twelve years ago. The roll-call was funny, remembering that it was that of the Light Brigade—some were "light," and many were heavy; one, I recollect, was about eighteen stone. I was standing close to Miss Thompson, and had she painted a sequel to her celebrated picture, I fear many of the figures would have had to be drawn out of the perpendicular. The scene was not altogether elevating to lookers-on, but we were repaid not only by Mrs. Stirling's delivery of the "Charge," but by a careful study (what a figure for immortal Charles Keane!) of one of the "Non Coms," who, no doubt, twenty years before was a better and a wiser man, and tackled the "Rooshings" with greater dexterity than he displayed on this occasion in managing a jelly. He had waiters to right of him, waiters to left of him, and waiters behind him, but that jelly defeated him, although he charged it with fork, spoon, and finally with fingers. Banquets are not easy to depict, for the men are generally as stiff as a row of Christy Minstrels (with chairman and two t masters for corner men).—Larry Farniss, in "The Magazine of Art" for July.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR.—Referring to the remarks of Mr. Dains in your issue of the 23rd ult. I find the peal of 6144 Treble Bob Major is a variation of one by Mr. Lockwood, published in the late Mr. Snowdon's Treatise. I therefore disclaim all credit for the same. At the same time I beg to explain that the peal was composed prior to the publication of Mr. Snowdon's work, and was sent with others to him, but suppose was not inserted owing to its affinity to Mr. Lockwood's composition. I have no wish to take credit when not due, though it frequently happens that two persons may hit upon the same idea, as witness the touches of Treble Bob by Mr. Smith, of Redenhall, and myself, in your last issue. The peal has been lying unthought of among some old manuscripts, and turned up by accident, hence its appearance.

SAMUEL MARSH.

A NEW SOCIETY.

SIR,—I beg to call your attention and the Exercise generally in North Wales, that the preliminary steps necessary for the formation of a Society for promoting change-ringing in Cheshire and North Wales, are about to be taken, and ask all ringing Societies who are desirous of co-operating and willing to give their cordial and hearty support to the object in view, to kindly communicate with me. The preliminary meeting will be held at Chester in about a month's time of which due notice will be given.

INTERVIEW BETWEEN FAVRE AND BISMARCK.—It would seem that M. Favre was out of health at the time, for he describes himself as being "perfectly exhausted" on the return of Count Bismarck. For a moment he thought he should faint, and turned away to hide the tears which suffocated him. Asking to be excused for his involuntary weakness, he took his leave in these words:—"I made a mistake, M. le Comte, in coming here; but I do not regret it. I have suffered sufficiently to excuse myself in my own eyes; but in any case I only yielded to a feeling of duty. I will report to my Government all that you have said, and should they consider it fit again to send me to you, however cruel the task for me, I shall have the honour of returning. I am grateful for the kindness you have shown me, but I fear that all that can be done is to let events take their course. The inhabitants of Paris are courageous, and resolved to make every sacrifice; and their heroism may change the course of events. If you have the honour of conquering them, you will never subjugate them. The whole nation is possessed with the same sentiments. As long as there can be found one element of resistance amongst us, we shall fight you. This becomes an interminable struggle between two nations who should extend their hands to each other. I had hoped for a different solution. I leave, most unhappy, but nevertheless full of hope." Having consulted with his colleagues, M. Favre, on the 24th of September, reported to Count Bismarck that the Government declined to sanction his propositions. They would accept an armistice in order to proceed to the election and meeting of a National Assembly, but could not subscribe to the conditions by which the armistice was to be surrounded. In concluding his narrative, M. Favre remarked that he and his colleagues had at any rate "abolished the equivocal position in which Prussia enclosed herself, and which Europe did not help to dissipate." Her real intentions were now apparent. France must now either disavow the Government, or fight to the end. The very dramatic narrative of M. Favre reflects with remarkable clearness the character of the two men—we might say of the two nations also—and shows, as in a microcosm, why the one succeeded and the other failed. M. Favre was all emotion, agitation, and hysterical vehemence; with (perhaps it may be added) a little hint of theatrical or forensic posturing. "I hardly know if I dare mention to my colleagues that you have made such a proposal to me"—"You forget you are speaking to a Frenchman, M. le Comte"—"I made a mistake, M. le Comte, in coming here"—all these elegant little turns of speech betray the Frenchman's besetting weakness for imagining that everything is to be accomplished by a start, an attitude, a sarcasm, or an epigram. On the other hand, we see Count Bismarck, cold, calm, collected, business like, inexorable as fate, knowing exactly what he wanted, determined to have it, and in the meanwhile playing with his victim in all the quiet superiority of power. Of course, the relative position of the two men should not be forgotten; but a negotiator with a greater command over his feelings than M. Favre possessed would have been better fitted, even with all the disadvantages of defeat, to encounter the iron strength of Bismarck.—From "Casell's Illustrated History of the War" for July.

THORNBURY, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

On Thursday, July 7th, the voluntary church workers including the choir, and ringers, with Mr. J. Hinton of Bristol, received a kind invitation from the Vicar and Mrs. Hodgson to attend a garden party at the Vicarage.

After a refreshing cup of tea, which was thoroughly enjoyed under the shade of the large old trees on the lawn, and a walk round the garden, the company had the pleasure of listening to Mr. Hinton tapping some tunes on his box of handbells, which had a very pleasing effect.

Before ascending the tower to ring for evening service, the ringers presented the Vicar with a portrait of themselves with their handbells, taken in a group on Jubilee day, for which the Vicar very kindly thanked them. After raising the bells in peal a short touch of Grandsire Triples was rung for service. The Rev. C. E. Cornish, Vicar of St. Mary, Redcliffe, Bristol, addressed the congregation, and after service a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes), in 44 mins. W. Davis, 1; C. Eddington, 2; G. Iles, 3; F. Symes, 4; F. Howell, 5; T. Alsopp, 6; J. Hinton, 7; J. Phillips, 8. Just as the bells ran home the Vicar, Mrs. Hodgson, and Rev. G. Fox entered the ringing chamber and congratulated the members on their good striking. The members then rang a touch on the handbells.

Mrs. Hodgson very kindly offered to give a peal board to record the peal rung in April last (the first peal ever rung in Thornbury with any local men taking part). After thanking her for her generous offer, which the company were very pleased to accept, another touch was rung on the tower bells. The above touches were conducted by Mr. Hinton.

The company then presented Mr. Hinton with a portrait of themselves as a small token of recognition for his valuable services rendered on several occasions to them. The company then separated, after spending a very pleasant evening.

BEDDINGTON, SURREY.

By the kind permission of the Rev. Canon Bridges, the tower of St. Mary's, Beddington, will be open on Bank Holiday, August 1st. All ringers invited. Tower open at 2 o'clock.

LORD ABERDEEN.—Lord Aberdeen was not only the trusted Minister, but the valued personal friend of the Queen and her husband. His experience of public affairs extended from the close of the war with Napoleon, to the beginning of the war with Russia, and no English Minister in modern times enjoyed in a higher degree the respect and confidence of foreign Governments and Sovereigns. His stainless integrity, and unscrupulous honesty won the confidence of the Prince Consort. The high moral courage which led him to speak the truth in public, however unpalatable and unpopular it might be, so endeared him to the Queen, that she expressed her admiration for it on the only occasion when she rebuked him for an impolitic indulgence in this virtue. Though a Peelite, he differed from his leader in having greater foresight, and a firmer grip of principle. Aberdeen did not, like Peel, work aimlessly from sheer expediency. He had a theory, a guiding idea, which, rightly or wrongly, always pushed him far in advance of his Party. This theory was that the less people were meddled with by Governments, the happier and more prosperous would they become. He carried his principle of non-intervention from foreign to home policy, and acted on the conviction that more good was to be done by repealing old laws, than by enacting new ones. For the salvation of the people he trusted to independence rather than patronage—to liberty rather than protection. He was blamed for buttressing the petty despotisms of the Continent, but he was blamed unjustly. He shrank from shedding English blood, and wasted English treasure in helping revolutionary movements, and he did so for two reasons. Nations worthy of freedom, he thought, must free themselves; the patronage of revolutionary movements must sooner or later involve England in a war with all the Great Powers of Europe. His failure to avert the Crimean War need not here be dwelt on. It was the great blot on his career. Yet it is but due to his memory to say, as even Mr. Disraeli admitted, that if Lord Aberdeen had been head of a Cabinet, the members of which all shared his views, and were all loyal in supporting his policy, the Crimean War would probably never have broken out. If Aberdeen had been master in his Cabinet, if he had been served at Constantinople by a loyal Ambassador, and at St. Petersburg by an Envoy who could have opposed with his own tact, patience, and cool common sense the monarchical ideas and arguments of the Czar, the conflict between Russia and England could have been averted.—From "The Life and Times of Queen Victoria" for July.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the above took place on Monday, July 25th, at Kingston. Ringing commenced at 3 o'clock, and was continued at intervals throughout the afternoon and evening, various methods being practised by mixed bands, including Stedman, and Grandsire Triples, and Treble Bob Royal. At 6 o'clock an adjournment was made to the Leopold Coffee Tavern, where a capital tea was provided, after which the business meeting was held. The Rev. A. S. W. Young, Vicar of Kingston, was in the chair, supported by A. B. Carpenter, Esq. (secretary), and representatives from Streatham, Mitcham, Croydon, Epsom, Ashstead, Kingston, London, Wimbledon, and Beddington. The Chairman in his opening remarks, said that he was very pleased to welcome the Association to Kingston once more, as it was something like two years since it held any meeting there. He hoped they would all enjoy themselves, and that the Association would still go on growing and prospering in the future as it had done in the past, especially since his friend Dr. Carpenter had taken up the secretaryship. The minutes of the previous meeting being read and confirmed, it was proposed, seconded, and carried, that the six peals rung since the beginning of the year be entered in the peal book, and that the peal of Stedman Triples, the first one in the method by the Association, rung by the Streatham band, be illuminated. The following were then elected officers and committee for this year: Rev. A. S. W. Young, Treasurer; A. B. Carpenter, Esq., Secretary; Rev. E. D. L. Harvey, Messrs. E. F. Cole, C. E. Malim, W. Gallagher, and one representative of each band in union, as committee. Beddington was then chosen for the next district meeting, and Mitcham for the next quarterly meeting. After the usual vote of thanks to the Chairman, Secretary, and others, an adjournment was again made to the belfry, where ringing was indulged in till rather late, several members having to leave before to catch their trains, thus bringing to a close the sixth annual meeting.

ST. MARY'S, BEDDINGTON.

On Saturday, July 16th, the members of the above society, with their wives, had their annual excursion, the place selected being Eastbourne. Starting from East Croydon at 6.58. a.m., they arrived at Eastbourne about 8.40. They at once made their way to the six bell church, and rang a 720 of Kent Treble Bob, and 120 of Stedman Doubles. Then they wandered on to the sea; there some of the party engaging a small pleasure boat. Meeting again at twelve at St. Paul's, they rang touches of Grandsire Triples and Treble Bob. They then made their way to the "Garibaldi Arms," where host Hollebome had provided a splendid dinner, to which ample justice was done. Having satisfied the inner man, they again put to sea, this time taking the handbells with them. Having had a good two hours' sail, they met at St. Saviour's at 5.30., ringing Grandsire Triples and Treble Bob on this fine peal of bells in D. Having finished ringing, they again made their way to host Hollebome, who had provided a refreshing tea, to which the ladies paid most marked attention. They now had to make their way to the station, starting from there at eight, they arrived at Croydon about 10.10, everyone having thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The Beddington company take this opportunity of thanking the steeple-keepers of the above-named churches for the great kindness showed to them. Should any of our ringing friends visit Eastbourne, they will do well to place their catering in the hands of host Hollebome, of the "Garibaldi Arms."

Thursday, November 3rd has been fixed for the consecration of Truro Cathedral the Prince of Wales, who laid the foundation stone, will be present at the ceremony.

MRS. BROWN AT WIMBLETON.

I was rather pleased when I was told that my visit to them Colledge Youths was printed in the paper, and I felt very much flattered, as the sayin' is; and as for Brown, he quite roared with lafter when he read it. Says he, "old 'ooman, you've bin and gone and dun it." "Dun what?" ses I. "Why writin to our paper about you goin to the burrow that other night. How the fellows will larf at me, to be sure." "Well then," I ses, "let em." But he took on so about it, that I could never get him to stick to his promise and take me on a visit to the Cumberlings, as they are called, and his refusal made quite a distance between us for a long time. But the very nice wether we have had o' late, not but that the 'eat has been so mity overpouring, as causes one to feel faint and langwid, as I was sayin' to my neighbour, Mrs. Jones, who feels it more than I do. But as I was about to remark, on account of such wether I thought I would try and cokes Brown to take me out somewheres this summer, being penned in all the winter I wanted some fresh are, and at last I got him in the proper kee. Ses he, after I had bothered him a bit, "Wot do you say to go to Wimbleton?" "Wot's on there," says I? Then he up and told me about the kamp, and the wolunteers, and the shootin' and all about it, and I got quite incited, and was reddy to go in no time. This is were the wonderment comes in, because all my life I have bin afraid of the name of firehams, and reding about them rewolvers as the Merrikins always has by em when they are doing anythink, wether eatin or drinkin, or sleepin, reddy to go right hoff and kill ther next door neighbour, and cares no more for em then if they was toothpix, allus made me a-creep when I heerd of em. I recollect heering say when I was quite a young gal, but that's a day or two ago, as the sayin' is, about them ere great big blundergutses, which they say is garranteed to kill one man, and that one him that fires em hoff, and I just mentioned quite kasualty to Brown, "I hope they won't be a practising with none of them orful things." He larfed and sed somethink about "quite a difrant weppon," and so after that I felt more esey in my mind. I gave Brown the credick of seeming werry pleased to take me to Wimbleton, and I soon made aste to get a few things reddy for my redicule, because I allus likes to have somethink with me for fear of haccidence on the way, as at my time o' life one can't say wot may appen. So away next morning we goes to Londun Bridge, and he goes an' gets the tickets for Wimbleton, an' we rides second class all the way. The wether was still wery 'ot, but we trudges our way on to the kamp, but we had 'ardly got on to the kommon before Brown found a 'quaintance, an' there was such han-shakin' that I was struck all of a 'eap, because how could Brown know any of them wolunteers which cums from all parts to shoot for prizis. Talkin' about prizis, I just puts me in mind of a young man who lodged next door—he was a wolunteer, I think a London Irishman—an' he was sayin' he was in a—conquest, I think he called it, were there was five prizis shot for by four competitoes, as he said, and one man got two prizis for 'itting the sandbag the oftenest. But I aint sure wether I am telling the cirkumstance krect or not. But here, as I sed, was Brown, met with an old friend, as it seemed, and I a standin' by. It all appeared like a comeunderein to me, so I ses, "Who is that young gent?" "Lor, missus," he says, "why this is my old pertickler, from Birnigham, cum to shoot for the Queen's prize!" Well, how was I to know? And then a thought came over me that this was the reson Brown wanted to cum to Wimbleton, because he should see sum one he knowed. So I ses, on the quiet, "Brown, is this gent a bell-ringer?" "Why, of course," ses he. "I thought as much," ses I. "Why," ses he, "he is one of the fust in England, from Birnigum, where only good uns is to be found." "Can't ybu inwite him to come and have a bit o' dinner to-morrow?" I ses to Brown. "You ask him, old gal," ses he, and I made up my mind to it, when I got the chance to speak a little private to him.

We all moves down the kamp, but I cannot say as I was particklerly amoused with what was going on. The sojers all looked werry well, leastways, most of 'em, because there were many who had only cum for a lark, shootin' for prizes bein out of their calculation. But they all seemed to enjoy themselves, howsomdever. There was many things I couldn't understand, and Brown was to much engaged with his "old partickler," as he called him, to hexplain anything. And they was both a-talking about ringin', all about ringin'. Sometimes I culd get to hear a word or two, but then its such gibberage they say to one another that you can't make top nor tail of it. And just like that we spent the time at Wimbleton; didn't see much of the sojers' practis, though the change of hair did me a world of good, and Brown enjoyd himself along with his Birnigham friend to his hart's content.

I sed I would ask the young gent from Birnigham if he would come and see us at our 'ouse, and when I had the chance, I did ask him. And he promised he would come, but I don't know the reson he never kept his promise. And that puts me in mind of one of them Colledge Youths who a short time ago told my 'usband he would come and spend an hour with us, and didn't, because it lookd inclined to be wet, the wether, I mean. We got a letter from the gent at Birnigham, after he got home, such a werry nice letter too, asking us to go and pay him a visit. But I've heerd such a orful karakter about Birnigham, though Brown says it is a grand place, and that he should like to go and ave a ring on the bells there. If the latter end of the summer is fine wether, we think of going down, and spendin' a few days in what Brown calls the 'tropolis of the middlelands.

Now Mr. Bell News, I should like to say that Brown isn't one of them sort of people that borrows a paper every week, but we as two, brought every week to the 'ouse by the boy from the news-shop. And Brown allus objects to lend out his number because, ses he, all ought to sport one. Ever since you put in what I writ about the Colledge Youths I have allus ad a number, and if you was to see the numbers all straight and in order in my old mahogany chest—which has been in our family for I don't know how many years—you would say that I sported the paper. And when we go to Birnigham, I will tell you how me and Brown enjoyed ourselves, but I should advise you to make 'quaintance with this young gent we are going to see. Perhaps you could come down with us, when I could interduce you to him, which would be more convenient to yourself, and you would have company all the way, you see.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE seventh annual festival of this society was held at Wycombe on Monday, July 18th. There was a large attendance of clergy and ringers of the diocese, and the proceedings of the day, favoured with fine weather, passed off in a highly successful manner. A touch was rung on the bells in the early part of the forenoon, and at 11 o'clock the visitors, with a few Wycombe residents, gathered at the parish church for service. The local clergy officiated, the Rev. H. Moxon saying the prayers, and the Revs. St. F. C. Methuen and H. V. Brown reading the lessons. The choir were present, and led the service with their accustomed ability, the order being as under:—Venite, Woodward in C; Proper Psalms (xlvii., xcvi., cl), Jacobs in A, Madox in D; Te Deum, Smart's service in F; Hymns, 303, 161, 223, A. and M. An appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. T. L. Papillon, Vicar of Writtle, Essex, late Fellow and Tutor of New College, Oxford. His text was Psalm cxvii, 1, 3, 8:—"I was glad when they said unto me, we will go into the house of the Lord. Jerusalem is built as a city that is at unity in itself. For my brethren and companions' sakes, I will wish thee prosperity." The preacher said—

This psalm, though its heading in the Bible ascribes it to David, belongs in all probability to a much later time, when the Jews had returned from their captivity in Babylon, and the worship of God was again held in the restored Temple. It is one of a group of Psalms called Songs of Degrees, or more correctly Songs of Ascents, being songs of joy and praise sung by the returning pilgrims as they went up to the Temple rejoicing in its restoration after the Captivity. It expresses the feelings with which people, reunited once more in both their national and religious life, after many years of depression and trouble, welcomed their restored prosperity, and gave thanks for it to God. Their first care, we read in the Old Testament, was to restore the House of God; their next was to go up to it with reverent rejoicing. They were glad when it was said unto them, Let us go into the House of the Lord, and their gladness found vent in such songs of praise as these, which are the inheritance of all ages—songs in which we too may give thanks as we go up to the House of the Lord. The spirit of this Psalm may be with us to-day, as it may be with every gathering of Churchmen who are glad of the opportunity to go up to God's house, and find all things there ordered decently and reverently. Time was, not so long ago but that some here can remember it, when ringers neither thought much themselves, nor got much credit from others for thinking about any special connection with the House of God. They pulled the Church bells for service, and too often went their way elsewhere when the service began; they practised their science like any other ordinary amusement, only so far connected with the Church that it could not as a rule be enjoyed without going into a Church Tower. The natural result of all this was that belfries were too often the scenes of conduct and proceedings utterly unfit for the house of God. It was in fact in many cases forgotten that the tower or the belfry were portions of the Church at all. I need not now dwell on these dark ages; they are, happily, almost over, thanks to this and similar organizations in almost every county or diocese. The science of ringing has been placed on its proper footing in connection with the House of God. The very title of your Association, Diocesan Guild of Church Bellringers, and the fact that you begin your annual meetings by coming here for the worship of Almighty God, are evidences of the spirit in which you meet as ringers, glad when it is said unto you, Let us go into the House of the Lord. And surely there is good reason why in these days of revived interest in change-ringing and improvement in the morale of ringers generally, we who meet on such an occasion as this should come up with gladness into the house of God, since that which we all have at heart is passing out of a period of darkness into full light and life, it is taking its proper place in connection with the Church and her services, its aims are elevated, its practices purified. Ringers are no longer the black-sheep or drunkards of the parish; the belfry is no longer the appendage to the pothouse. All that is changed, and changed, too, is the neglect and indifference with which the belfry and the ringers have too often been looked upon by the appointed guardians of the House of God. Now in many parishes the clergyman not only goes into the belfry, but even takes part in the ringing; and the more this is the case the better for the objects which this Diocesan Guild and similar societies have at heart, the reform and raising of the art and those who practice it. Like the Jews when they returned from the darkness and gloom of the captivity, we and all others of our art may rejoice in going up to the house of the Lord, for we may be sure the more we cultivate in ourselves and encourage in others reverence for the house of God and all that belongs thereto, the more we insist upon our connection with the Church and on behaviour consistent with that of Churchmen, the more we make the art of ringing what it has been said all arts and sciences ought to be made—the handmaid of religion, the more truly shall we advance our cause, the more shall they prosper that love it, and louder and more from the heart shall we raise the prayer of the returning exiles of Judea as they went up into the Temple of God—"Peace be within thy walls, and plenteousness within thy palaces. For my brethren and companions' sakes I will wish thee prosperity. Yea, because of the house of the Lord our God, I will seek to do thee good." Love of God's house, gladness to go up therein, were thus, we see, the first thought of the returning exiles. Their second thought was the sense of restored national unity. "Jerusalem is built as a city that is at unity in itself." They had been scattered as captives by the waters of Babylon, with no common centre either of worship or of political life to keep them together, and now they were returning to common civil and religious life, they were once more a church and once more a nation, and the feeling of restored unity was strong enough—for the moment at any rate—to override all smaller difficulties. Sects and parties, quarrels and jealousies were forgotten for the time, and Jerusalem was at unity in itself. This thought of the Jewish exiles, this feeling of unity, is worthy to take its place in our minds and in our lives, alongside of the first thought of gladness to go into the house of the Lord. The very reason for the existence of our Guild or Association is unity among those who have common interests—that they may not go on furthering those interests each by himself or each few by themselves alone, without system or method, but altogether in that organised union that is true strength, and further that the feeling of fellowship in a larger whole may help to soften the jealousies and frictions that will arise among all men, and which so often poison Christian unity. Let your membership in this Guild, your common interest in the art you love, help to keep alive amongst you not only on these days of general meetings, but at home among the members of each company, that Christian unity and forbearance, that freedom from jealousy, that unwillingness to quarrel in which alone can we prosper. Jealousies will sometimes arise, discontent will breed disunion among those who should be brethren, and wherever that is so, the cause must inevitably suffer. Let me urge you all as members of the Guild of church bellringers, to do your utmost to promote unity and banish jealousy among fellow-workers in a good cause—a cause that I know and that you know is in many parishes wrecked by miserable jealousies and quarrels about trifles. If the great requisite for the art of ringing is to remember its connection with the House of God, the second and almost equally important requisite is unity among ourselves. As the petty quarrels and divisions among professing Christians are sometimes a stumbling-block to the conversion of unbelievers, so on a smaller scale jealousies and disputes between ringers are a hindrance to that larger and more honourable recognition of our art, that prosperity of our restored Jerusalem that all of us wish to see. "Behold how good and joyful a thing it is to see brethren"—yes, and more than good and joyful, how vital and necessary a thing it is to see "brethren dwell together in unity." And surely the very practice of our art may read us this lesson of the beauty and necessity of unity. In the ringing of a peal each ringer is intent on his own course, but with an eye for all his fellows; all are different, yet all in harmony; each for himself, but in the strictest union with others—a union so strict that if one discards it and goes wrong, the peal breaks down. In this we have an apt example of the unity that should exist amongst us all—the Christian unity among men who are fellow Christians and fellow Churchmen, although they may differ widely in occupation, in character, in temper, and in ability. Life, my friends, is a great peal rung by many men with many changes, but through it all, if the peal is to be true, there must run the golden thread of Christian unity. Your membership in this Guild calls upon you to help, each according to his opportunity, in weaving the strands of that thread. And those who look on at your work from elsewhere, whether engaged or not in the same work themselves, if not as fellow ringers, at least as fellow Christians and Churchmen, will wish you prosperity, and will be glad when you say unto them, We will go into the house of the Lord; we will rejoice to see that Jerusalem is built as a city that is at unity in itself; for their brethren and companions' sakes, they will seek to do you good. I hope that none of those here who have listened so far to me will think it out of place for a stranger of far less experience than many of you to impress on brother ringers these two lessons of reverence for God's House and unity among yourselves. I speak as a ringer to ringers, and I wish that more clergy would qualify themselves, so to speak. It is our duty to expound the lessons of God's Holy Word, and show how they apply to various phases of human life, and it stands to reason that the more intimately we are ourselves acquainted with the special parts and ideas of those whom at any time it is our duty to address, the better we shall be able to help them, the more right we shall have to advise them. May God grant that these few words may bear some fruit to his glory and to the furtherance of that cause for which we are gathered together to-day, and believe me that it is no idle echo of the Psalmist's words, but in real love for and sympathy with your art, that for all our brethren and companions' sakes, and because of the House of the Lord our God, we wish you prosperity.

At the conclusion of the Benediction the choir sang Stainer's

Sevenfold Amen, and while the congregation dispersed, Guilmant's Grand Chorus in D major was played by the organist, Mr. J. G. Wrigley, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Guild took place at the White Hart hotel soon after the conclusion of the service at church. The Rev. F. E. Robinson, the President, was in the chair, and there was a good attendance of members. The minutes of the last meeting having been taken as read, the first business was the election of officers. The Rev. F. E. Robinson was by acclamation re-elected Master of the Guild, and as Secretary the Rev. Dolben Paul, Rector of Bearwood, Wokingham, was unanimously re-appointed. Both gentlemen also briefly expressed their thanks and assured the members of their continued interest in the Society. The Committee was chosen as under, all names being those of former members with the exception of Mr. Betteridge, who was elected in place of Captain Acland Troyte, who has removed from the diocese:—Elected members, Revs. A. Drummond, Boyn Hill; A. Majendie, Woodstock; S. F. Marshall, Farnham Royal; H. C. Sturges, Filkins, Lechlade, and R. Hart Davis, Dunsden; and A. H. Cocks, Esq., Great Marlow. Change-ringing members, Messrs. W. Newell, Reading; E. Rogers, Maidenhead; J. Field, Oxford; C. A. Hounslow, Oxford; Washbrook, Oxford; and Betteridge.

The SECRETARY said it was customary to issue a printed report of the proceedings of the Society, but he would no doubt be expected to say a word or two as to their position. This was their seventh annual meeting, and he was happy to say they had gone on increasing from the day they were born until now. Perhaps there had not been so many members elected during the past twelve months. He had hoped to have been able to say that they had reached four figures—a thousand members; but unfortunately members did not always continue members. During the year he had many resignations sent in, and even whole towers sometimes sent in their resignation. This was the case with a tower not far from here which had twelve or fourteen members, who through some difficulty either among themselves or with the parson, had all retired. He would not name the parish, but he thought it was a very sad thing; and he did not think they as clergymen were altogether blameless in the matter. He did not think the clergy in general—he spoke of course in the presence of those who did take an interest in the Society, and who were not included in his remark—took that personal interest in the Guild which they ought, and he only hoped that as the society went on and prospered they might be induced to take a more active part in it than they had done. He hoped, as one of the great objects of the Guild was to promote harmony and good feeling, that matters would go smoother and there would not be these differences. Although they had not quite reached four figures, they had come very near to it—987. With regard to the instructors they had not been made quite so much use of as was desirable. They had two or three such excellent instructors that it would be a great advantage if all bellries who wanting teaching would employ them. He hoped young ringers would not be content with the little they had learnt, but would aim at perfection in their art. Some were so modest that they said they were not good enough for an instructor, but that was a very poor reason; they were just the ones who wanted instruction. The Secretary mentioned the difficulty he had had in getting a railway ticket at reduced fare on showing his dinner ticket at Paddington. They told him they knew nothing about it, but fortunately he had the letter in his pocket from the superintendent offering to give the reduction. The matter was then referred “upstairs,” and after waiting 10 minutes and nearly losing his train, a message came down that it was all right. There had been a similar difficulty in former years, and it appeared that at some places the instructions were received and not at others. He thought he must write a complaint to the superintendent about it. He was afraid some disappointment had been caused this year, because they had for the first time been obliged to limit the free dinner tickets to change-ringing members, instead of including as hitherto the probationers. Last year they had such a successful meeting at Abingdon, over 300 attending, that it made a great inroad on their finances, and at the end of the year, instead of a balance of £40 or £50 it had dwindled down to £15. They thought prevention was better than cure, and therefore as they did not want to get into debt, they had limited the tickets to change-ringing members.

On the proposition of the Rev. G. F. COLERIDGE, a vote of condolence with Mr. Martin Routh, a member of the Society, who has recently met with an accident destroying the sight of one of his eyes, was passed.

A member remarked that it was not very encouraging for the probationers to be called upon to pay for their dinner plus their railway fare. He thought another year if any difference was made, the change-ringers should pay. 2s. plus the railway fare was a good deal out of the pockets of the probationers, who received nothing, as the ringers did.

The CHAIRMAN: Don't you think the prizes and privileges ought to be for the best men, not the worst?

The member: No, I do not think so in this case.

Mr. W. GURNEY proposed a vote of thanks to the Master and Secretary for their labours in connection with the Society. Referring to the question just raised Mr. Gurney said there was no doubt many of the probationers could not afford the sum they were called upon to pay, and he would suggest that if the funds would not another year allow of a free ticket being given, the clergyman of each parish should try to get the help of some gentleman who took an interest in the ringing. He himself had spoken to a gentleman in his parish, who said, “What do you want?” He told him he had sent for ten tickets and the gentleman at once gave him a sovereign. He believed it would not be difficult to find persons in other parishes ready to do the same. It should be remembered that joining a guild of this kind was a guarantee of good conduct on the part of members, and he thought they were worthy of a little encouragement.

The vote of thanks to the Master and Secretary having been carried unanimously the proceedings closed.

THE DINNER,

Afterwards the members of the Guild, to the number of over 100, assembled in the abbey grounds (kindly lent by Mr. Charles Waring) for dinner, which was well served in a fine tent by the proprietor of the White Hart Hotel. The chair was taken by Mr. O. P. Wethered, who was supported by the Rev. F. E. Robinson (Master), the Rev. A. H. Drummond (Boyn Hill), the Rev. H. C. Sturges (Filkins), the Rev. G. F. Coleridge (Caversham), Mr. L. Proctor, the Rev. T. L. Papillon (Writtle, Essex), the Rev. R. P. Newhouse (Boyn Hill), the Rev. A. Ll. Heigham (Englefield), the Rev. E. Broome (Hurst), the Rev. D. Paul (Bearwood), the Rev. A. Hamilton (Winslow), the Rev. W. C. Parr (Newbury), the Rev. T. H. Gregory (Padbury), the Rev. J. Price (Cuddington), the Rev. L. Challis-Stone, Messrs. Cocks, Gurney, Field, Hounslow, &c.

The CHAIRMAN, after grace, which was said by the Rev. the Master, briefly submitted the toast of “Church and Queen,” observing that the form of toast was in former days “Church and State.” They had heard a good deal during the last three weeks of the various events of Her Majesty's long and happy reign; and he thought that they, as churchmen, looking back on the past fifty years could in every matter trace a great improvement in the course of that reign, but in none could they trace a greater improvement than in Church matters generally, and especially in the minor details of church management. At such a meeting as that he might rightly refer to the fact that at the beginning of the Queen's reign there was scarcely a belfry in the country which was so well organized as the bellfries of our smaller village churches were now organized, so that in that matter alone the past 50 years had produced an improvement such as no previous period had seen. He felt that there should be a kind of belfry fund which should rest on the influential parishioners, so that the railway and dinner tickets of the members should be provided without taxing the funds of the parent society.

The Rev. F. E. ROBINSON moved a vote of thanks to the clergy of the church of High Wycombe for their kindness in arranging the service, and also to the Rev. Mr. Papillon for coming so great a distance to preach, and for the excellent sermon he had favoured them with that morning. He also wished to thank the very efficiently organised choir for their beautiful service. The words of the preacher were exceedingly sensible and exceedingly useful; and he hoped they would all remember them and act on them.

The Rev. T. L. PAPILLON, in reply, said it had given him great pleasure to come there that day, because he took a very great interest in the science of change-ringing, although he was only a recent convert to it, being twenty years too late in the field.

The CHAIRMAN proposed "Prosperity and perpetuity to the Oxford Diocesan Guild." He was not himself a change-ringer, or even a probationer; but he was present at the Oxford Diocesan Conference in 1880, when the Rev. Dolben Paul made a proposition that the Diocesan Guild should be formed under the sanction of the Bishop and with the approbation of the Conference, and it gave him (the speaker) great pleasure to vote for the resolution. When he was first appointed churchwarden of his parish 20 years ago, before he had been three months in office he effected a radical change in their own belfry at Marlow. At that time the bells had not been rung for many years, but simply chimed, and the belfry was without any regular head or rules. He took it on himself, with the then ringers, to institute new rules, and to a certain extent to lay the foundation of the better organization which that Guild had instituted. That such a Guild must be of very great use apart from the primary object with which it has been formed, was obvious to everybody. Besides its noble object of encouraging change-ringing, it brought together those who were in the lower classes of Church service, because everybody who was voluntarily employed in the belfry was so far a Church worker and a Church helper. Such gatherings as that brought together those animated by the love of change-ringing, and also those who were united in working together for the general good of the mother Church. He proposed, therefore, with the greatest pleasure "Prosperity and perpetuity to the Oxford Diocesan Guild."

The Rev. the MASTER, in reply, said that, as the Secretary had stated, the membership of the Guild was a very good test of its prosperity. The next very important test was the financial state, which the Secretary assured them was improving, and perhaps another item in the account was the number of peals rung, and the methods in which those peals had been rung, which he hoped was also satisfactory, as in "THE BELL NEWS" they stood a very good fourth in comparison with all the societies in England as to the number of peals rung this year; and when they came to the methods they might "crow very loud," because they had rung more than one peal in the method of Superlative, which was the highest of all, and he himself had fulfilled his promise to ring for a peal of Cambridge Surprise Major and a very excellent peal it was, and he hoped to ring many more. He would not promise a peal of "London" again, but he would grapple with the task if he could get a good team of men together. They had ringers in the Guild who, if they could only get and keep them at work, would accomplish that or any other undertaking upon the bells. The success of a number of these peals was not owing half so much to him as it was to their most efficient and able conductor, Mr. Washbrook, to whom was due the credit that they stood in their present high position, which he hoped and felt they would maintain. He wished his brother clergy to know of the ways in which he could help them. First was the question of bells that were out of order. The Guild had attained to such a point that they could without affectation ask that some of them should be called in to give an unbiased opinion before they applied to anybody in the profession. He had often been called to see bells, and when he had given his opinion—and he did not mind getting very dusty—he had found his calculation for repairing bells to be within a few pounds of the actual cost. That was a very useful branch of the work; and another matter to which he would call attention was that when bells had been hung, and before the bills were paid, the society should be called in, in order that a band of change-ringers should test them thoroughly, so as to prove whether the work was done properly or not. He was also prepared to advise any incumbent as to the treatment of the ringers. In the course of the present year he had had to interfere between an incumbent and one of his ringers, the incumbent having ejected the man from the belfry without sufficient reason; and he was happy to say that the incumbent was manly and sensible enough to take the advice of the committee; and to reinstate the man in his office.

The Rev. D. PAUL also replied, and proposed "The Health of Colonel Wethered." He was afraid it was almost thirty years since he and the Chairman were at Christ Church, Oxford, together; but although they had separated to a certain extent, they had ever since kept up their friendship; and he (the speaker) was constantly hearing of Colonel Wethered's excellent acts. It was a great thing for the clergy to have the support of the wealthy laity of the diocese, for they supported them not only by their means but also by showing them that they could work heart and soul with them. It was greatly owing to the fact of the union between clergy and laity that the prosperity of the Church during the last fifty years had been so great.

The CHAIRMAN, in reply, said he had accepted the very kind request of the secretary with the greatest pleasure. He cordially agreed with Mr. Paul that a great deal of the success which had attended the working of the Church of late had been owing to the cordial feeling which had been engendered between the clergy and the laity. In no diocese in the kingdom was that better exemplified than in the diocese of Oxford.

The company then broke up, and proceeded to ring in the tower of the parish church, and some also went in breaks to Hughenden, Beaconsfield, Great Marlow, Wooburn, West Wycombe, and Lane end.

HISTORY OF THE WYCOMBE CHURCH BELLS.

The grand old Parish Church of High Wycombe can boast of one of the finest peals in the county of Buckingham, and the only one composed of ten bells.

When the present nave was erected in 1273 the tower was, as usual at that period, placed in the centre of the building at the intersection of the transepts. This old tower contained a ring of six bells, which were removed into the present tower at its completion in 1522. There is no record preserved of the weight and inscriptions of the bells.

The earliest date at which we have any particulars given respecting the bells is 1639. According to the returns made in that year at the Visitation of Bishop Williams, of Lincoln, we find that they were at that time six in number, exclusive of a Sanctus Bell. With the exception of Wingrave no other church in this county was returned as possessing a peal of the same extent.

At the beginning of the eighteenth century the whole peal was recast by Richard Phelps, of Whitechapel. Of the six bells in existence before that period all, except the second, were dated, the oldest one having been cast in 1533, and the latest exactly a century later.

The four older bells of this peal were inscribed with pious ejaculations, those on the second and third being in Latin. The other two bells have upon them the names of the Mayors and Churchwardens at the date when they were cast.

The following is a list of the inscriptions upon the bells before their recasting by Phelps:—

- Treble.—Praise ye Lorde, 1620.
- 2nd.—Sit Nomen Domini Benedictum.
- 3rd.—Multis Annis Resonet Campana Johannis, 1583.
- 4th.—Love God, 1636.
- 5th.—Martyn Lluellyn, Mayr.; Robt. Roy, Chrstr. Weedon, Richd. Piggot, Robt Bowdrey, Church W's, 1672.
- Tenor.—Jos Pettiphur, Mayr.; Chas. Elliot, Ald.; Jno. Biggs, Thos. Grove, Chrstr. Landsell, Sam. Freeman, Robt. Ratliff, C.W., 1683.

In 1711 a clean sweep was made of the bells, it having been determined to have the whole peal recast, and their machinery renewed. Frames, wheels, stocks, etc., all underwent a process of restoration and re-adaptation.

The six old bells were taken down and removed by road to Spade Oak Wharf, Bourne End, whence they were taken by water to London. Five cwt. of new metal were added, and eight new bells were cast to replace the six old ones.

The cost of these alterations and additions by R. Phelps was £140, exclusive of the expenses incurred by the parochial authorities in taking the bells to Spade Oak Wharf, and bringing them back from there to Wycombe.

All the municipal officials from the Mayor and Aldermen down to the beadle have their names inscribed upon these bells, and so in like manner have the Vicar, Churchwardens, Parish Clerk, and Sexton, their names duly recorded.

The inscriptions upon these eight bells were as follows:

- Treble.—Wm. Shrimpton, T. Clerk; Jno. Rose, Serjeant; Wm. Hailey, Beadle; R. P., fecit. 1711.
- 2nd.—Edward Stevens, Clerk; Luke Gurney, Sexton; R. Phelps, fec. 1711.
- 3rd.—Richard Phelps, of Whitechapel, London, made these eight bells, 1711.

4th.—God preserve the Church of England, and our Gracious Queen Ann. R. P., fecit. 1711.

5th.—Messieurs Ben. Hickman, Jos. Pettipher, Ric. Shrimpton, Hen. Hunt, Aldermen. R. Phelps, fecit. 1711.

(An inscription exactly corresponding to this is found on the seventh bell at Wooburn, with the exception of the date, which is 1712 instead of 1711).

6th.—Messieurs John Lane, Tho. Stevens, Geo. Grove, Ferdo. Shrimpton, Thos. Welles, Aldermen. 1711.

7th.—Hugh Shrimpton, Mayr.; Thos. Russin, Justice; Tho. Wood, T.C.; Richd. Allen, Jno. Carter, Bail. R. P. fecit. 1711.

Tenor.—Saml. Guise, M.A., Vicar; Nathl. Morgan, Wm. Packer, Saml. Welles, Fra. Williams, C. W. Richard Phelps made mee. 1711.

Of these eight only three are retained in the present peal, viz., 2nd, 3rd, and 6th, now the 5th, 6th, and ninth respectively. To these were subsequently added the present 7th in 1756; the 2nd was given by the Earl of Wycombe in 1788, and the 3rd by his brother, Lord Henry Petty, the same year. Four were recast by Mears, of London, in 1802, which, with the three retained from those of 1711, make up the ten now in the tower. Here again we have, besides the donors of the 2nd and 3rd bells, the Vicar and Churchwardens, both parish and borough, named on the Tenor. Their inscriptions are as follow:—

Treble.—Thomas Mears, of London, Fecit. 1802.
2nd.—The gift of the Earl of Wycombe, eldest son of the Marquis of Lansdown. John Briant, Hartford, Fecit. 1788. W. Ball, G. Harman, Assistants.

3rd.—The gift of Lord Henry Petty, second son of the Marquis of Lansdown. John Briant, Hartford, Fecit. 1788. G. Harman, W. Ball, Assistants.

4th.—Recast by Thomas Mears, A.D. 1802.

5th.—Edward Stevens, Clark; Luke Gurney, sexton. R. Phelps, fec. 1711.

6th.—Richard Phelps, of White Chapel, London, made these eight bells, 1711.

7th.—Aron Wooster, Thomas Walker, Mr. Mead, Churchwardens. Thos. Swain made me 1756.

8th.—Recast by Thomas Mears, of London, A.D. 1802.

9th.—Messieurs John Lane, Thos. Stevens, Geo. Grove, Ferdo. Shrimpton, Tho. Welles, Alderman, 1711.

Tenor.—May all whom I shall summon to the grave the blessings of a well spent life receive. The Revd. James Price, Vicar, Messrs. Richard Barton, Samuel Bates, James Kingston, and Daniel Turner, Churchwardens, W. B. Thos. Mears, of London, Fecit. 1802.

Besides the inscription given above, the 3rd bell shows the obverse of a coin with the circumscription "Georgius III. Dei Gratia." The "W.B." on the Tenor means Wycombe Borough.

Upon the east wall of the Belfry there is an old tablet with a gilt frame, which bears the following inscription:—

"All Saints, Wycombe, April 8th, 1792. On the evening of the 8th instant was rung in this Steeple, a compleat Peal of Grandsire Caters, consisting of Five Thousand one Hundred and eleven Changes, by a Party of the Society of London College Youths, which they completed in three hours, forty-three minutes, in that masterly style for which they are famous. Performers—Mr. John Povey, Treble; Mr. John Holdsworth, 2; Mr. James Lance, 3; Mr. Willm. Wilson, 4; Mr. Richd. Wilson, 5; Mr. James Wooster, 6; Mr. John Inville, 7; Mr. Edmd. Sylvester, 8; Mr. Danl. Jenkins, 9; Mr. John Lyford, Tenor. The Peal call'd by Mr. John Povey."

Mr. James Wooster was probably a Wycombe ringer, who had been selected to fill the place of one of the College Youths.

The Wycombe bells have sometimes been made to sing a political tune. Thus, on May 17, 1832, when the news reached the town that all opposition to the Reform Bill had been withdrawn, the bells were rung all day by way of congratulation to the Government of Lord Melbourne. On the following day, when the Archdeacon of Buckingham, the Ven. Justly Hill, held his Visitation at Wycombe, the ringers refused to pay him the accustomed compliment, because the Bishop of Oxford had voted against the Reform Bill. Of late years the Bells have had the honour of welcoming to the town the Queen and the Heir Apparent upon more than one occasion.

The Bells were occasionally used for purposes in no way connected with the church, as the following extract from the Borough Records will show:—

"Feb. 6th, 1672. Henry Shepherd was discharged and ousted as a Burgess of High Wycombe for misbehaviour and being uncivil to several gentlemen, especially on the 3rd instant, at the Catherine Weell; and in token whereof it is ordered that the Great Bell be rung out according to custom, in testimony of his misdemeanours, and for his disfranchisement."

Many of the following interesting items in reference to the bells have been gathered from the old churchwardens' accounts. It is greatly to be regretted that most of the earlier volumes of these records have been destroyed. It is to such memorials of the past that we must refer for the elucidation of many religious and social customs of our forefathers. The parochial accounts of other places have proved to be a rich storehouse of varied and curious information, and doubtless those of Wycombe, had they been preserved, would, upon examination, have yielded much useful and interesting matter upon this and other branches of local history.

The following accounts of repairs to the bells occur:—

1760. Richard Stevens for mending the clappers of Great Bell, £00 05 00.

1764. Thos. Weller for work to ye bells, £00 01 00.

Paid Mr. Veary for work done to the Great Bell, £00 03 00.

1766. Wm. Mead for work about ye bells, £00 15 11½.

Thomas Wingrove for Carpenter's work to the Bells and Chimes, &c., £05 18 03.

John Wootton, his bill for ropes, £01 02 11.

1798. Beer for ringers changing the ropes, £00 05 02.

1821. William Brown, moiety of Bill for Bell rope.

1827-8. On a loose paper between these years—Expended on Organ and Bells, £29 9 0.

1829. John Youens for bell ropes, £6 0 0.

The Curfew Bell had been rung from time immemorial till within living memory. It was discontinued about forty years ago. The bell used for this purpose was not as usual, the tenor, but the 9th.

In going through the records for the last 120 years, that the successive ringers of the Curfew, or Eight o'clock evening bell, were as follow, with the amount of the annual payment on that behalf, and the date of their appointment:—

Joseph Allen, 1764, £1 5.

Edward Hearn, 1766, £1 5.

Thomas Phillips, 1770, £1 5. Died or resigned at the end of the same year, when William Stanworth, 1770, was appointed "at the finishing," and received 1s. for his services in completing the year commenced by his predecessor.

Robert Youens, 1807, £1 6. He remained Steeple-keeper until his death in 1824.

Edward Burnham, 1813, £1 10.

William East, 1823, £2.

Richard Russell, 1831, £2.

The Curfew Bell was generally rung by the Sexton, who was formerly provided with an official robe.

1760. Paid Edward Hearn for his suit of clothes, £00 16 10½.

1763. Making Sexton's coat, £00 03 00.

1766. Jos. Child, making Hearn's coat, £0 3 0. He resided in one of the cottages southward of the church, and probably had his house furnished by the churchwardens, which may, perhaps, explain the following otherwise inexplicable entry:—

1778. Bedstead and bolster, £01 05 00.

It was not an uncommon circumstance for the ringer of the Curfew to be provided with sleeping accommodation within the church, as the following, relating to Faversham, shows—22 Hen. VIII.—"Imprimis, the Sexton or his sufficient deputy shall lye in the church steeple: and at eight o'clock every nighte shall ryng the Curfewe by the space of a quarter of an hour, with such belle as of olde tyme hath been accustomed."

Another interesting custom was also kept up in Wycombe—the ringing of an early morning bell at 4 a.m. This was doubtless a relic of former days, when "Early to bed and early to rise" was more generally practised than at present, and people were accustomed to assemble in the church for Mass before beginning their daily labour. A similar custom is still kept up in Normandy.

This 4 o'clock morning bell was pretty general in England. From Bridge's "Northamptonshire" we find that a bell was rung at 4 a.m., at Byfield, and at 8 p.m., for which the clerk received 20s. paid him by the Rector. The 4 o'clock bell was also rung formerly at Newcastle, and one is still rung at 6 a.m. except on Sundays and holidays. Land was left at Mapouder in Dorsetshire "to find a man to ring the morning bell and Curfew throughout the year;" and at Ibberton, in the same county, £4 a year was left "for ringing the morning bell" (Hutchin's "Dorset" II, 267, 422.)

These examples plainly show that the custom was one of wide-spread observance, and not merely a local affair. This matutinal bell was rung in London, but at a different hour, as appears from the will of Mr. Donne, mercer, and citizen, who left two tenements in Hosier (now Bow Lane), to provide for the ringing of the Tenor Bell of Bow Church at 6 a.m., as well as at 8 p.m.

It appears that the 4 o'clock morning bell was discontinued in Wycombe at the same time as the curfew. Both bells were rung by the same person, and the double duty was included in the single payment as shown among other instances, by—1823. Paid East for 8 o'clock bell (two years), £4 0 0.

1824. Ditto for 4 o'clock and 8 o'clock bell, £2 0s. 0d.

Another ancient custom has been continued at Wycombe to our own day—the ringing of the Pancake Bell, as it is familiarly called, on Shrove Tuesday. The original design of this bell was to summon the people to confession before entering on the solemn Season of Lent; but the occasion was afterwards converted into a regular carnival for games and merriment, especially cock-fighting and cock-throwing—when people had ceased to do well they quickly learned to do evil.

Cock-throwing formerly took place on Shrove Tuesday in the churchyard at Wycombe, and on the waste piece of green beyond, now converted into Castle street.

An entry in 1774, when Ralph Spicer was Churchwarden, shows that the authorities disapproved of this cruel diversion, and endeavoured to put it down.

"Feb. 14. Paid Daniel Pearce for crying down the cocks being throw'd at in the churchyard, &c. on Shrove Tuesday, £00 00 02."

The Pancake Bell is rung in some places at noon, not at 11 a.m. as in Wycombe. The custom is not so generally observed as formerly.

In Poor Robin for 1684, we find—

"But, hark! I hear the Pancake-bell,
And fritters make a gallant smell."

The Wycombites showed themselves very loyal with their bells. There are entries regularly every year, on June 4th, and September 29th, during the reign of George III, being the King's birthday, and the Coronation day of the King and the Queen Consort, 14s being the sum paid to the ringers on each occasion. These dates subsequently gave place to January 29th, and July 19th, the Accession and Coronation days of George IV., the remuneration to the ringers being increased to £1 1s. on each occasion. These days are now discontinued, as there are no funds to pay the ringers.

The 5th of November was likewise duly remembered, the same sums being paid the ringers as on the royal days. On November 5th, 1772, 1s. extra was allowed them for beer.

Nelson's victory over the French at the Battle of the Nile, in August, 1798, was the occasion for great rejoicings in Wycombe, and the bells were rung for two days, for which £1 8s. is charged in the accounts for that year.

The ringers in 1770 were Messrs. Phillips, Brown, Wooster, Doney, Hearn, Wincheloe, Stanworth, and Bowles, there being at that time but eight bells in the peal. There may have been one or two more.

There is only one occasion mentioned in the parochial accounts when the bells were rung for a Confirmation, viz., May 20th, 1770. But in most instances the amounts only of the disbursements are entered, no specification of the several items being given, so it is not always possible to identify the occasions with certainty.

Not much has been done for the improvement of the bells of late years, and the 6th of the present peal is very badly cracked across the crown and down to the waist. The treble was re-hung by Mears and Stainbank, in February, 1885, and new ropes have just recently been added.

There is apparently no record of the date when the first set of chimes was added, and the earliest mention of them met with is in 1766, when they were repaired by Thomas Wingrove, of Wycombe. The following extracts from the Parochial Records relate to these old chimes:—

1767. Richard Carter, his Bill for looking the Clock and Chimes, £01 00 00.

1770. Edward Hearn, for sweeping the Church, and looking after ye Chimes, £02 08 00.

1770 Whitwell, for repairing the chimes, £01 13 00.

In 1790 Mr. R. Harman, of Wycombe, erected a new set of chimes at the expense of Lord Lansdown. The tunes were the same as those of the celebrated chimes of St. Giles' Church, Cripplegate, London, which were also erected by Mr. Harman, viz.:—

Sunday—Salisbury, or Easter Hymn.
Monday—Hymn of Eve.
Tuesday—Staughton.
Wednesday—Horsley.
Thursday—Sicilian Mariners' Hymn.
Friday—Britons, strike home!
Saturday—Bermondsey.

The old clock, which dated from about the year 1730, at length became worn out, and unable any longer to point the hour and mark the time. Accordingly, in the early part of 1876 a movement was set on foot for raising funds for the purpose of providing a new one. This was brought to successful issue in December of the same year. During the early part of 1877 a new set of chimes were put in by Messrs. Gillett and Bland, who had been also the contractors for the clock. The cost of the whole was above £500.

The tunes which the chimes play are as follows, with the names of the gentlemen who gave them:—

Sunday, "Easter Hymn," Rev. R. Chilton.
Monday, "Rousseau's Dream," J. O. Griffiths, Esq.
Tuesday, "O rest in the Lord," J. Parker, Esq.

Wednesday, "Sicilian Mariners' Hymn," F. Wheeler, Esq.
Thursday, "Blue Bells of Scotland," B. Lucas, Esq.
Friday, "Last Ro-e of Summer," W. V. Baines, Esq.
Saturday, "Home, sweet home," A. Vernon, Esq.

PENN, STAFFORDSHIRE.

Recently the All Saints' Society, Sedgley, paid a visit to this beautiful village church, which has a splendid light peal of six bells, in the key of G. Tenor about twelve cwt. A 720 of Grandsire Minor was rung, in 26 mins. J. Goodman, 1; D. Brase, 2; W. Johnson (Durleston), 3; S. Bunn, 4; R. S. Holfield (conductor), 5; J. Davinport, 6. This 720 changes contains a call at every lead. The bells are in good order, and any band will find it a treat to give the place a call. The ringers wish, through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," to thank the steeplewarden, Mr. Roden, for the use of the bells.

ST. MARY'S WITHOUT-THE-WALLS, CHESTER.

On Monday, August 1st, an attempt was made to ring Mr. York Green's peal of 5088 Kent Treble Bob Major, but owing to a shift-course after ringing 3456 changes in 2 hrs. and five mins., the bells were brought round. *C. Price, 1; *J. Gipson, 2; G. Caldwell, 3; W. Joinson, 4; A. Jones, 5; R. Pease, 6; A. Cross, 7; T. J. Bathel, (conductor), 8. The bells are a new peal, and were cast by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, in the present year, and were opened along with the church on the 18th of June, the key of the tenor is Eb., and weight 19 cwt. 3 qrs. 17 lbs. This is the longest length of changes rung on them, but we hope very soon to record the first peal. *College Youths.

AN ENQUIRY.

SIR,—I remember seeing lately in "THE BELL NEWS" (within the last five weeks, I think) an account of the origin of the service on the top of Durham Cathedral on the feast of Corpus Christi. I have since then been quite unable to find it, and if any reader happens to remember it, I should be much obliged if he could point it out to me. The origin of the custom was, if I remember rightly, the safe escape of the bells when the tower was struck by lightning. W. C. BARRETT.

THE HOME OF A PECULIAR PEOPLE.—In the heart of the textile trades, between Leeds and Bradford, and close to the town of Pudsey, is the Moravian settlement of Fulneck. It is a quiet oasis, amidst a lusty, busy, and even turbulent life. Pudsey is a typical textile town; its people rough, but honest and hearty, its men wearing in the street the slop or "checkerbrat" proclaiming the calling; and its bonnie lassies still wearing the shawl for their only head-covering. A few hundred yards from this place of warp and weft, of mills and looms, of oddly-angled houses of grey stone and dark roofs, and in great contrast with it in most particulars, is the settlement of the Unitas Fratrum. It is a large aggregation of buildings, the range extending to upwards of a mile in length. The main block is over a century old. There are the "Single Sisters' House," the "Widows' House," the house for the minister, and the three large schoolrooms and chapel. Close thereto is the God's Acre of the Moravians, a pleasant slope of sward, with many flat gravestones, bearing usually a number, a name, and the year of death. The graves of the sexes seem divided; the grass grows thickly over and around, at times obscuring the gravestone, and avenues of tall trees make music to serve as a monopoly. Though the settlement has been made for more than a century, there is still something distinctive about it and its people. It is not a trading village though a few traders are there; it is a settlement where education is the aim, and where that aim includes the training for the service of the Church in many lands. In the people who are seen, too, there is a wide distinction from those of the village, where chimneyneys may be seen from the terrace at Fulneck.—From "The Quiver" for August.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 6, 1887.

THE reports of the Guild meetings published in this issue of "THE BELL NEWS," will be read with great interest by all who are anxious for the welfare and extension of the art of change ringing, and rejoice to see outward and visible signs of its steady advancement and spontaneous growth. The proceedings at two of these meetings will be found at length, because the materials placed at our disposal for the purpose of framing a report did not warrant the least elimination. The Oxford Guild may indeed well be proud of the position it has gained in the diocese, and the interest created by its movements. The utterances of the preacher at the service which was held in the parish church of High Wycombe ought, in our opinion, to be circulated broadcast. The precepts contained therein especially apply to what we have always greatly valued—the importance of unity among ringers. "If," said the rev. preacher, "the great requisite for the art of ringing is to remember its connection with the House of God, the second and almost equally important requisite is unity among ourselves." The position thus taken up is enlarged upon in a manner which must have gratified the ears of many of the congregation, who felt not only at the time but ever, how good and joyful it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

The meeting of the Winchester Guild must also be considered a success. The prosperity of this body is mainly owing to the exertions of its Honorary Secretary, the Rev. H. A. SPYERS, and now he is located in a more convenient part of the county we may expect to hear that the Guild's operations may be quickened, and the fillip given to the members by the Rev. F. E. ROBINSON be productive of good.

The arrangements made for holding these meetings of the various Guilds appear, as a rule, to be every thing that can be desired. Ringers, however, after the meeting has been held, have a tendency to wander away, and at a moment when they should be kept together if possible. The adoption of a plan where all ringers may meet for the purpose of forming bands to visit the churches in the neighbourhood have been found to answer, and gives satisfaction to ringers, while keeping up an appearance of regularity and order.

AN OLD ENGLISH TOWN—TEWKESBURY.—The glory of Tewkesbury, and one of the finest architectural possessions of the West, is the Benedictine Abbey of the Virgin, hard by the field still called "Bloody Meadow," whereon "this summer sun of York" so brilliantly shone upon that fateful day in 1471. At Tewkesbury there was an inversion of the usual order of things: instead of the town growing up around the abbey, there is reason to suppose that the town existed first. There was a religious house there at a very early date; but the abbey, whose church is now the parish church of the town, was founded by Robert Fitz-Hamon about the end of the eleventh century. He was the first of the many exalted personages who were destined to be buried there—many of them his own descendants. For the Lords of Tewkesbury and patrons of the abbey were of the very salt of the earth—De la Mares, Desjencers, and Beauchamps; all names of might in their day, and full of great memories now. The King-maker became possessed of the united inheritances of these three families by his marriage with the Lady Anne Beauchamp, but he brought no luck to Tewkesbury. His daughter Isabel, who succeeded him in the patronage of the abbey, was the wife of "false, fleeing, perjured Clarence;" and both of them are buried here. The abbey derives most of its outward dignity from its beautiful arcaded Norman tower, which rises to a height of more than 100 feet. Within the church is very grand and massive, and of great size. The work is a remarkable blending of the Norman with the finely decorated achievements of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries.—J. Penderel-Broadhurst, in "The Magazine of Art" for August.

A FLOWER OF EVENING.—While most plants expand their blossom very freely in the life giving rays of the morning sun; while others, as the little pimpernel, will not expand at all if its genial influence be withdrawn—some few, like the evening primrose and the white campion, reserve their full sweetness for the closing hours of day, expand their blossoms to the chill dews of the night, and mingle their sweetness with the rich odours that float on the evening air in the woodland copse or the flower-spinkled hedgerow. The pure white of the blossom of the white campion and their large size, tend to attract attention; and in the gathering darkness its stellate flowers stand out from the gloom and indistinct forms of the hedge-bank like the happy host of heaven emerging one by one from the deepening twilight. The night-flowering catchfly, the Silene noctiflora of the botanist, a closely-allied plant.—From "Familiar Wild Flowers" for August.

OPENING OF A NEW RING OF EIGHT BELLS AT LLANGOLLEN, NORTH WALES.

On Mopday, August 1st (Bank Holiday), a new ring of eight bells were opened by the Ancient Society of College Youths and the Wrexham Society. Mr. George Longden, of Ashton-under-Lyne, travelled from Manchester by an early train to Chester, where he was met by Mr. James Moulton. Arriving at Wrexham station they picked up five of the Wrexham Society, and proceeded to Llangollen, where they found Mr. J. W. Taylor, jun., of Loughborough, waiting for them. They then ascended the belfry, and some good touches of Stedman were indulged in until the arrival of Mr. Rowland, the Wrexham conductor, who is a sergeant in the volunteers, whose Rifle Association Meeting was held the same day. At one o'clock they started for one of Mr. Thorp's peals of Kent Treble Bob Major, 5120 changes, but after ringing nearly twelve courses, a trip occurred which caused a breakdown, the time occupied in in ringing thus far being 1 hr. 35 mins. This mishap however only increased their determination to try again and secure the honour of ringing the first peal on these beautiful bells. Accordingly without three minutes' delay, another start was made with a successful result, as will be seen in the peal column of this paper. An adjournment was then made to a private room in the "Ponsonby Arms" Hotel, where Mr. James Moulton, of Chester, astonished the ringers present by his clever manipulation of the "Fairy Bells." A plain course of Stedman Cinques was tapped without a miss blow, and had time permitted the same gentleman would have given his hearers touches of Double Norwich, and Yorkshire and Bob Maximus. In fact almost any method he can tap with equal accuracy, his performances being listened to with wrapt attention, and eliciting the applause of all ringers and visitors who heard them.

The bells are a very musical ring of eight, the tenor weighs about 17 cwt. They are hung in a cast iron A frames, with all the latest improvements, and the "go" of them is simply perfect. The ringers wish through the medium of this journal to thank the Vicar, the Rev. E. Rhys James, for his kind permission for the use of the bells, and to state (in order that the ringing world may know), that it is through his indefatigable exertions that this new ring of bells has been obtained, and that notwithstanding the strong opposition of Nonconformist and other prejudices, he has succeeded in the praiseworthy object of celebrating Her Majesty's Jubilee in such an auspicious manner. The bells were cast and hung by the well-known firm of Messrs. John Taylor and Sons, of Loughborough, and form another tribute to the excellence of their workmanship.

VISIT OF THE CIRENCESTER SOCIETY TO LONDON.

On Saturday last, July 30th, the members of the above Society held their annual outing. Leaving Cirencester at 6 a.m., arriving in London a little after 9 o'clock, they proceeded thence to the "Goose and Gridiron," St. Paul's Churchyard, where they partook of breakfast, and along with Mr. Haworth rang several touches on the handbells. They visited several places of interest, and in the evening, making their way by boat to Westminster, they soon found themselves at St. Stephen's, where Mr. Lamb had made everything ready, and were there joined by H. Swain, of the Cumberlands, when several touches of Grandsire Triples were rang by the following:—Messrs. Panting, Jarvis, Hinton (conductor), Mason, Swain, Hughes, Davies, and Clutterbuck. After congratulating Mr. Lamb upon the going of the bells, and their fine tone, they proceeded to the Cumberlands' head-quarters, St. Martin's Lane, where they were joined by Messrs. Baron, Hopkins, Mansfield, &c. After spending an enjoyable hour together, the country visitors left for Paddington, expressing themselves much pleased with their visit, and they take the present opportunity of thanking the Vicar and Churchwardens for their kindness in allowing them the use of the bells, also Mr. Lamb for making preparations. VISIT TO SUFFOLK.

Having a few days at my disposal and not knowing exactly how to spend them, I ultimately decided on a ringing outing, and on Saturday, July 23rd, I proceeded by the Great Eastern Railway to Ipswich. After visiting St. Mary-le-Tower, and one or two more churches, it was time to return and start for Saxmundham, where I was met by four of the Leiston brethren. We drove to Woodbridge, and after the usual preliminaries were over, we attempted Taylor's bob-and-single variation, which unfortunately came to grief after ringing 1470 changes. J. Fosdike (Woodbridge), 1; A. Achfeld (Woodbridge), 2; Hy. Maiden (Lincoln), 3; T. Staulkey (Leiston), 4; A. Lincoln (Leiston), 5; G. Lindoff, R.E. (Leiston, conductor), 6; T. Shearing (Leiston), 7; A. Ward (Woodbridge), 8. Touches of Treble Bob, Bob Major, and Grandsire were rung. Having satisfied the inner man, a move was made for Ufford, a pretty little village about three miles from Woodbridge. Arriving at that place, the bells were pulled up, and a start was made for some Treble Bob Minor. The bells had not been going about ten minutes, when the breaking of the 6th rope brought it to an untimely end. Having re-adjusted the rope, several touches of Treble Bob were rung. Hy. Maiden, 1; T. Staulkey, 2; G. Lindoff, 3; T. Shearing, 4; A. Lincoln, 5; A. Ward, 6. We then proceeded on our way to Leiston, a distance of about fifteen miles, arriving there after several vicissitudes in the small hours of the morning. On Sunday morning, July 24th, for Divine Service, 448 of Grandsire Triples. H. Button, 1; R. Stannard, 2; A. Lincoln, 3; H. Maiden, 4; G. Lindoff (R.E.), 5; T. Staulkey, 6; T. Shearing (conductor), 7; H. Staulkey, 8. And for afternoon service, 840 of Grandsire Triples. R. Stannard, 1; R. Fisher (Kelsall), 2; H. Maiden, 3; A. Rodwell, 4; A. Lincoln, 5; G. Lindoff (R.E.), 6; T. Shearing (conductor), 7; H. Staulkey, 8. Also for evening service, 1008 of Grandsire Triples. T. Staulkey, 1; H. Maiden, 2; J. Wilson, 3; G. Lindoff (R.E.), 4; A. Lincoln, 5; W. Button, 6; T. Shearing (conductor), 7; H. Staulkey, 8. On Monday, July 25th, we again took the rope in hand for a peal of Grandsire Triples, which terminated rather abruptly by the breaking of the 7th rope after ringing about half an hour. T. Shearing, 1; H. Maiden, 2; J. Wilson, 3; R. Stannard, 4; A. Lincoln, 5; G. Lindoff, R.E., (conductor), 6; T. Staulkey, 7; J. Flegg, 8. The go of Leiston bells is simply perfect, and reflect great credit on Messrs. Taylor and Co. My time having now expired, I commenced my return to Lincoln, arriving there on Tuesday night just in time to hear Big Tom strike the hour of nine. I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the Woodbridge and Leiston ringers for their kindness to me during my stay amongst them. H. MAIDEN.

ALL SOULS' CHURCH, HALIFAX.

Through the kindness of the Clergy, Churchwardens, and Congregation, the voluntary ringers connected with the above church had their eighth annual excursion on Monday last, Malton and Castle Howard being the places chosen. The party left Halifax at 6.20 a.m., and reached Leeds at 7.15., where a good breakfast was partaken of at the Midland Dining Rooms in Boar Lane. Leaving Leeds at 9.0., two compartments being reserved for the party, Malton was reached at 10.30., where a conveyance took them to Castle Howard.

The fine collection of pictures, old china etc., were much admired, and a pleasant two hours was spent wandering about the grounds. Returning to Malton, where by the kindness of the Rev. R. W. Elliott, the ringers ascended the tower of St. Leonard's Church, but owing to the margin of time at their disposal being so small a touch of 960 changes Kent Treble Bob Major could only be only got through. H. Reynolds, 1; T. Parker, 2; G. D. E. Mercer, 3; H. Payne, 4; A. Parker, 5; C. E. Stewart, 6; A. F. Nicholl, 7; S. W. Stewart (conductor), 8.

Returning from Malton at 5.25 p.m., Leeds was reached at 7.40, where they adjourned to the Midland Dining Rooms again, and had a substantial tea. Leaving Leeds at 9.0 the ringers arrived home shortly after 10 p.m. being well pleased with their day's outing.

The above company wish to thank the Rev. Mr. Elliott through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" for his kindness in granting them the use of the bells.

BANK HOLIDAY AT CAMBRIDGE.

The Great Eastern Railway had, similar to other companies, provided for Bank Holiday extra services of trains to convey hard-worked Londoners into the country to enjoy a breath of fresh air. Among these arrangements was an excursion to the city of Cambridge, at a rate which caused it to be taken advantage of by many, especially those who had the good or evil fortune, which ever it may be, to dwell in the eastern portions of the metropolis. The society of ringers of St. Mary, White-chapel, had connected themselves in some manner not very clearly defined, with a body of excursionists who were designated along the route as "The Fathers," but whether this sobriquet was a parody or burlesque on the Pilgrim Fathers, we were unable to discover until enlightened upon the matter. The elucidation of the problem is not, however, material to the purpose. The pilgrimage of these eastern "Fathers" was evidently the means of a few ringers enjoying a day in visiting that renowned seat of learning situated on the banks of the Cam, and the end to a certain extent justified the means. Those who identified themselves with the movement already alluded to, met early at the rendezvous in order to attempt and complete before noon a peal at St. Andrew's Church, but a wedding was to take place within this edifice, and, strange to say, the principal parties to it objected to ringing in any shape or form. These bells had perforce to be silent throughout the day. The visitors who got down to Cambridge sometime in the forenoon, bearing no ringing at St. Andrew's Church on their arrival, at once came to the conclusion that the attempted peal was a failure, and sought their ringing brethren to hear its cause. They were found at the church of Great St. Mary, ringing Stedman Triples on the back eight, and where, after the touch was brought round, relations of the disappointment were given. During the day the party visited several of the Colleges, and much enjoyed a perambulation in the beautiful grounds, which it would appear is connected with each of these seminaries of learning. The weather being most delightful, walks along the banks of the river were greatly enjoyed, and an opportune place presenting itself, several of the Campanalogists bathed in the Cam—a pun, by the way, which was not lost sight of on the journey homewards.

After tea, another visit was made to the steeple of Great St. Mary, when changes were rang on the twelve bells, Mr. F. E. Dawe and Mr. W. Smith being at the heavy end, the whole conducted by Mr. James Pettit. The bells require absolute re-hanging before any good enjoyable ringing can be performed upon them, and therefore it will be understood that very little was done. The ringing visitors returned to town at an early hour.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The first quarterly meeting of the year will be held at Nottingham, on Saturday, August 6th, when the following towers will be open for ringing from 2.0 p.m., viz.: St. Mary's (10 bells), St. Peter's (8 bells), All Saints' (8 bells). Members on arrival are requested to proceed to St. Peter's schools, Broad-marsh, where bands will be formed for ringing at the various towers. Committee meeting at All Saints' schoolroom at 5.30 p.m. Tea in the Aboretum refreshment rooms at 6.0 p.m. General meeting immediately afterwards. JOSEPH GRIFFIN, Hon. Sec.
5, St. Paul's street East, Burton-on-Trent.

THE ROCHDALE AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The above society will hold a Quarterly Meeting at Milnrow parish church, on Saturday, August 6th. The bells will be at the disposal of ringers about 2 o'clock. Meeting at 4 o'clock in the school room, hoping all members will attend.

HERE AND THERE.

I have been honored with several communications during the week respecting this column. Some of my friends would have me do this, that, and the other, but I beg leave to tell them that I must take my own course, no matter to where it leads. To try and please all is not a wise game, because it ends in pleasing none, while the chances are that a great many may be offended. Vite fable.

One of the letters I have received this week contains some interrogatories about Elijah Roberts. I wish I could give any information concerning him, beyond what appeared in print last week. I have always understood him to be a prodigy, as a ringer, and his double Treble Bob performances were most remarkable. He used to drive a coach—I forget the route—and kept an inn for some years. In the end he committed suicide, poor fellow.

English people have done with duelling; not so the French. A former Prime Minister of France has said a something about an ex-War Minister, and the latter challenges him to mortal combat. This challenge is accepted, but now they cannot agree upon the conditions of fighting, and the newspapers of Paris are filled with dissertations upon what ought to be required by one, and what ought not to be insisted upon by the other combatant; and the exhibition of partizanship is delightful to witness. All the "authorities" upon the matter are ventilating their opinions much to the satisfaction of themselves, and the edification of the Parisians, but the affair, like others of its kind, appears very contemptible and childish to all but Frenchmen. Certainly there is something very Punch-and-Judy in this duelling business.

I'm not allowed to talk politics here, though my fingers itch to do so. But this is rather an Hibernicism. If such matters were not a sealed book I should like to take my readers into confidence, and after ascertaining the "principles" of the majority, "round" upon the opposite party. This is the style many papers adopt, though we all hold "THE BELL NEWS" too respectable an organ for such dirty work.

A very proper and sensible protest has been made against the word "stop." Many bob-callers pronounce the word "bob" as "wob" or "wop," and other indistinct expressions, all of which are much like "stop." The cases of mistake from this peculiarity happens oftener than may be imagined. The best plan is to adopt what is most common, and the word "stand" has use and plainness on its side. It is moreover recommended by our Editor, and also by

A NEW MAN.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

This Association, founded in the year 1879, held its eighth annual festival at Winchester on Tuesday, July 19th, the gathering being a successful one. The day's proceedings commenced with a preliminary ring on the Cathedral bells by the first arrivals, and at a quarter past eleven o'clock, a special service was held in the Lady Chapel of the Cathedral, which was well attended. The musical portion of the service was very efficiently performed by a portion of the Cathedral choir, the chanting of the Psalms, the Te Deum (Boyce in A), and the anthem being sung without accompaniment. A very practical address was delivered by the Rev. Canon Durst. At twelve o'clock the members made their way to the Guildhall, where, under the presidency of the Ven. Archdeacon of Surrey, they sat down to a first-rate hot dinner. The company numbered over 130, amongst the gentlemen supporting the chairman being the Revs. F. E. Robinson (Drayton, Berks), H. A. Spyers (Purbrook), F. T. Madge (Winchester), C. Baston (Ashe), F. Whyley (Alton), E. K. Douglass (Weybridge), R. F. Tompkins (Arundel), Cameron Brock, Esq. (Bishop's Waltham), and L. Proctor, Esq. (Benington).

At the conclusion of the repast, the CHAIRMAN, in proposing the health of "The Queen and the rest of the Royal Family," said there was no class of Her Majesty's subjects who had more duly celebrated the Jubilee of Her Majesty than the ringers of the parish churches in their harmonious speeches. The toast was right loyally received.

The Rev. H. A. SPYERS then submitted the toast of "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese," and on that day especially the Cathedral clergy. First, they were under a special obligation to the Rev. Canon Durst, who at much inconvenience to himself had come to give them such excellent advice at the service that morning, and he hoped they would all go back home and practise it; and, secondly, they were indebted to the cathedral clergy generally for the welcome they had given them, and more especially to the Ven. Archdeacon Atkinson, who had kindly consented to preside at that gathering in the unavoidable absence of their regular president. Mr. Moore, of Bourne-mouth, had informed him that he was called away from England last week, and regretted that he should not be able to be present that day, but he showed his interest in the Guild by forwarding a sovereign towards the expenses of the Annual Festival. Mr. Moore also expressed his willingness to continue in office for another year if he were elected. Being without their President, Mr. Spyers had to look round and see whom he could get to take the chair, and the Ven. Archdeacon readily consented.

The CHAIRMAN in responding, said that few men in the country were so much bound together as were the bellringers of the parish churches with their clergy. Ringers by doing their duty well, helped towards the keeping of good order and proper observance of religion in a parish, and an earnest zealous set of ringers were an element of strength to the clergyman. As to the way in which the Guild had been received by the Cathedral body, the Dean and Chapter were ever ready to help forward any object for good, and always felt satisfaction at such a body as the Guild coming to make use of their Mother Church, welcoming them with the most heartfelt cordiality. With regard to their Bishop, he could assure them he sympathised with the objects of the Guild, and if he were present no words wishing success to it would be more hearty than those of his lordship. He begged to thank those present for the hearty reception of the toast, and he would take the opportunity of informing them that the excellent sermon which the Rev. Canon Durst had addressed to them was his first official address as a Canon Residentiary. He would now introduce to them a gentleman whom he had last parted with in his beltry at East Hendon, one, was well-known to them all, the Rev. F. E. Robinson, Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild.

The Rev. F. E. ROBINSON, who was much cheered, said he had not forgotten the warm welcome he received when he met the Guild at Weybridge, and he now thanked the members for the kind reception they had again accorded him. The toast he had to propose for their acceptance was "Success to the Winchester Guild," and he did so with the greatest heartiness, because although he was member of the Oxford Guild, he was also a member of the Winchester Guild. He was glad to find that the finances of the Winchester Guild were in a healthy state, they having £20 in hand, and he congratulated them upon that; but as to the performances, Oxford had nothing to fear at present, and might well be emulated on that head. The Winchester Guild had not yet accomplished a peal of Stedman, while the Oxford Guild had rung over fifty. But they of the Oxford Guild wished that the Winchester Guild might go on and prosper, and if they meant to do this they must work, inasmuch as no secretary, however excellent he might be, could do it for them. The one road to success was hard work, perseverance, brotherly kindness, and love one towards another, and patience. The Oxford Guild had to a certain degree exercised those qualities, and had achieved something of success, and if they of Winchester would emulate the Oxford Guild they must pull together and do likewise. In order to succeed they must remember the excellent address of the Rev. Canon Durst, whose first advice was that they must all consider that they were bound to do their ringing as a duty, and next that they must do it conscientiously, and consequently with regularity and punctuality, for what was more annoying than that seven men should be kept waiting for half an hour on a cold winter's night for the eighth to turn up? Having made a few other remarks, the toast was formally submitted.

The Rev. H. A. SPYERS, in responding, thanked the Master of the Oxford Guild for the kind manner in which he had proposed the toast. Their numbers had not increased so much during the year as he could have wished, but the truth was that during the earlier part of the year, in the month of January, circumstances placed him at Chalton, and from this place he could not get away, as they were snowed up, and not even a butcher could visit them. He had now a benefice in the southern part of the county, and he hoped to be able to give more attention to the Guild. Two or three more bands had, however, joined the Guild during the year. There was one thing he should like to see improved, and that was that more attention should be given to learning the grammar of eight-bell ringing. One band would keep on floating about the 168 changes, and another about their 504, but they seemed to have no ambition to get on further. A great deal of this was caused by the man always taking the same rope, because after a time they began to learn their changes by heart, which was not desirable in the interest of progress. He trusted that all bands who could now ring "a touch" would make up their minds to get a peal before their next meeting. Mr. Spyers also advised that the district meetings should be better attended, which were of great service for improving the efficiency of local bands. There would be two district meetings next year in Hants, and two in Surrey at convenient centres.

The Officers of the Guild were then all re-elected unanimously.

The company then left the hall and dispersed for practice in the belfries in and around Winchester.

The Bagshot band visited Twyford, where they were hospitably entertained by the Vicar, the Rev. W. C. Bishop. The bells went capitally, and a 720 of Grandsire Doubles called differently was rung by H. Stapleton, 1; H. Houlton, 2; F. Francis, 3; T. Gould, 4; E. Spooner, 5; R. Weeks, 6. Also a 720 of Plain Bob Minor by the same, except that W. Houlton rang 5, and E. Spooner, 6. Also a 240 of Plain Bob Doubles. H. Stapleton, 1; H. Houlton, 2; T. Gould (conductor), 3; F. Francis, 4; W. Houlton, 5; W. Harding, 6.

The Bramley and Winchester bands went to Hursley, where great kindness was shown to them by the Vicar's family, and a 420 of Grandsire Minor was rung in 16 minutes. The Farnham, Basingstoke, Privett, Alton, Weybridge, and Walton bands went to Romsey, but owing to the hopeless condition of the bells (which are a fine ring of eight, tenor 26½ cwt., suffering from continued neglect), little in the way of change-ringing could be done, but the ringers were much pleased with the ancient Abbey Church, which is a noble specimen of Norman architecture.

The Bournemouth, Christchurch, Twyford, and Hursley bands visited Netley, where an excellent tea was provided by the Rector, the Rev. W. S. French, at the Jubilee Hall. The bells went very well, being a new ring by Warner & Son; the treble does not sound out well, being buried amongst the bigger bells. A 336 of Grandsire Triples was rung. A. Grist, 1; H. A. Garrett, 2; E. Merritt, 3; H. Vivash, 4; T. Green, 5; S. Merritt, 6; Rev. R. F. Tompkins, 7; A. Pearce, 8. And several 120's of Grandsire Doubles were rung by the Hursley and Twyford bands.

The following bands remained to ring at Winchester:—Leatherhead, Dorking, Fareham, Havant, Ryde, Catherington, Bishop's Waltham, with Rev. F. E. Robinson, Rev. C. C. Child, J. W. Washbrook, J. R. Haworth (London), A. Thomas (Birmingham), J. Hewett (Gosport), T. Newnham (Southampton). Touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples were rung at the Cathedral during the afternoon, and Grandsire Doubles and Treble Bob were rung at the college. The cathedral bells want re-hanging, as also the bells at Romsey.

NOTES ON SOME BELLS IN BELGIUM AND FRANCE.

They have some very fine large bells (bourdon), but their small bells seemed to me to be inferior to our own in most cases, especially those used for the chimes at Bruges, Antwerp, and elsewhere. I was not much impressed with these chimes. The music of bells struck simultaneously is harsh, and it is impossible to get good striking from the most delicate clockwork, when it is connected with rough hammers and wires passing through the open air. At Malines, however, I heard dance music played prettily by means of the clavessin, an instrument like a pianoforte, on a large scale. I was more interested with continental methods of ringing. I saw at Rheims the only peal of bells that I know of on the continent. It is a very fine peal of eight, tenor nearly 41 cwt. The eight are rung only on great festivals. I was there on a Sunday, and saw them ring five for service, omitting the trebles and tenor. The ringers stand with one foot on the cage, holding a stout iron bar conveniently placed before them, and with the other foot work a lever fixed at right angles to the stock. The bells are rung about half up, the treble of course higher than the heavy bells. I observed that the ringer of the treble got a back stroke with his foot when the lever rose before him, as well as the down stroke, which is made at the level of the cage. The rest of the ringers were boys. A little fellow of thirteen or fourteen rang the big bell, which must weigh over a ton, very efficiently, though he had to use both his feet and all his strength. In the other tower are two bourdons, weighing 11 and 7½ tons. The larger one is rung by propelling the clapper, because the cage is decayed and unsafe, and I am not sure that the other is rung up. However the stock in each case is fitted with two small wheels, over which are passed chains connected with iron rods, and with a portion of the floor in the chamber below, which moves upon an axle. To ring the great bell twenty men stand with one foot on the fixed flooring, and work the movable platform with the other foot. I do not know why so many men are employed in this case. Perhaps my informant meant twenty men for the two bells. At Malines I saw a bell said to weigh 10,000 kilos., or nearly ten tons, which was rung by six men with levers fixed to the stock, but it had a counterpoise of two tons. A counterpoise, consisting of a heavy stone or mass of iron placed upon the stock, is not unusual, and of course enables the ringer to raise a heavy bell without much labour, but the clapper strikes the bell with less force, and I have seen a man hang on to the rope at the end of the stroke with all his weight in order to get the bell to speak out. On the whole I think there is a gain of power in ringing with the foot at stock level, but it looks dangerous. The old man who showed me over the belfry at Malines said that he remembered only four men being killed in his time, which he seemed to think a very reasonable rate of casualties. At Malines they have six large bells besides the chimes, which are in another loft, 44 in number, weighing from a few pounds to 10 or 15 cwt. The large bells are rung in peals of three for deaths. The six are not in harmony, and are never rung altogether. The back three are rung only for grand funerals, and on other occasions they ring single bells. As a general rule on the continent, every bell or peal denotes some particular service, or event. At Antwerp there are, I think, nine heavy bells, besides the clock chimes and carillon, and altogether eighty-two bells. I saw them ring what they call the second, which weighs five or six tons. It was rung about one third up by nine men from both sides of a large wheel. The rope which passed over the wheel was a cable, and it terminated at each end in a number of ropes of the thickness of our bell-ropes. Some of the lighter bells, which are rung from one side only, have half-wheels. The great bell, weighing over seven tons, takes sixteen men to ring it. The nine men who were ringing the second, seemed to have quite enough to do to keep it going. At Paris I saw a peal of four bells with very long cannons, hung well below the stock. This was not the case at Antwerp, but the bells were not tucked up, and had no counterpoise. The heavy draught is due, I suppose, to coarse workmanship, and the exposure of the cage to the weather. I should say that I did not hear any of the ten-ton bells rung out, as I did not happen to be in the way on a great festival.

C. PEARSON.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.—RINGERS' OUTING AND PRESENTATION.

ON Bank Holiday, Monday, August 1st, by the invitation of the clergy and ringers of St. Cuthbert's, Benfieldside, a party, comprising Messrs. R. S. Story, W. Reed, F. Lees, F. Harrison, Joel Hern, R. Oliver, John Moffatt, and W. Story, visited Benfieldside. Proceeding to Lanchester by the 9.40 train, a 720 was attempted on the sweet little peal of six, but could not be rung on account of the bad state of the hangings the fifth rope persisting in sticking in the pulley. Returning to Consett by train, a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob was rung at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Blackhill, and the party were most hospitably entertained by the Rev. J. Foran, and the Rev. David Power, after which a move was made for Christ Church, Consett, where a hearty welcome was received from the vicar (the Rev. F. Steggall), and the local ringers. Having rung a 720 each of Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob, a return was made to Blackhill, where a 720 of Double Court was attempted, but failed midway. Here the party was very kindly and heartily refreshed by Mr. Sloane, and proceeded to Benfieldside, where a 720 of Kent was rung, but came out false somehow. The invited ringers had now the pleasure of joining the local ringers by the invitation of the latter, at a most substantial tea, provided at the "Crown Commercial Hotel." Having enjoyed the sumptuous repast, the handbells were exercised in the garden, Mr. F. Harrison, of Jarrow, picking up tunes on the grass plot until the tables were cleared. Having re-formed in the dining-room, on the motion of Mr. Whinney, the Rev. H. Ross Lewin (curate) took the chair, and in opening the proceedings remarked on the difficulties of teaching and acquiring the art of change-ringing, and announced the object of the meeting to be a presentation to Mr. R. S. Story, in recognition of his services as instructor to the ringers. After making some very complimentary remarks on Mr. Story's efforts, he called on the Vicar, the Rev. G. H. Ross Lewin, to make the presentation.

The VICAR, after expressing in most heartfelt terms the thanks of the ringers and himself, presented Mr. Story with a very handsome gold pencil case.

MR. STORY, in reply, stated that he was entirely unprepared for the occasion, as he never expected any such acknowledgement of his services, which were given as a member of the above Association, and in furtherance of its objects. He thanked them most heartily for the kindness they had shewn him, and remarked that never had he seen any band of ringers so attentive and so ready in applying the hints which were given them and hoped that they might go on in the same good way in which they had begun, and achieve great things. He again thanked them.

MR. WILLIAM REED then thanked the local clergy and ringers on behalf of the invited ringers for their kind hospitality, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman brought a most pleasant meeting to a close. A 360 of Bob Minor was then rung, and the party returned to Newcastle by the last 9.15 train. For particulars of ringing see ringing column.

BEDDINGTON, SURREY.

The 17th Anniversary of the opening of the bells was held as usual on Bank Holiday, but owing to counter attractions the company fell short of the number usually present. Touches in the following methods were rung: Grandsire, Union and Stedman Triples, Treble Bob Major and Royal, Grandsire and Stedman Caters.

Mr. Trappitt (although compelled by business to be absent), had arranged for tea, which was as usual served under the walnut trees, and enjoyed by all. The Beddington ringers desire to thank all those gentlemen who honoured them by their presence, and hope to see them again on future occasions.

THE REIGATE SOCIETY.

On Monday, August 1st, Bank Holiday, the members of the above society held their annual outing, the place selected being Tunbridge Wells, arrangements having been made for them to have a pull. On arriving at the parish church of SS. Peter and Paul at 10 a.m., the obliging steeple-keeper was waiting their arrival. They were soon engaged at the ropes, and rang 504 of Grandsire and two shorter touches, one of Grandsire and one of Union Triples. The "go" of these bells are good, they have been recently rehung with all new fittings and quarter-turned. Leaving here they were soon at the station waiting for the train, which was late. They arrived at Tunbridge Wells about noon, and soon made their way for St. Peter's Church to hear the completion of a peal of Grandsire Triples by members of the Kent County Association. After listening to good ringing for some time, the peal unfortunately came to grief when about two-thirds of it had been rung, so the visitors were soon in the tower, and the ringers that had just set the bells gave them a hearty welcome. After a few words of sympathy from the visitors for the misfortune, the ropes were offered them which they felt great pleasure in accepting. They then rang a short touch of Grandsire Triples and 252 of Stedman Triples, this being the first Stedman on the bells. This is a handy little peal, tenor about 14 cwt., and everything in good order. The bells being lowered, the visitors, with their friends, in all about twenty-five, made for the Oxford Temperance Hotel, where dinner had been ordered. Here they thoroughly satisfied the inner man. Arrangements had been made for them to ring at Speldhurst, three miles from Tunbridge Wells, but being much later at dinner than first arranged, they gave up the idea of going there, it being 3.40 p.m. when dinner was over, so most of them went to the Temperance Fete in a park close to St. Peter's Church, where there were plenty of amusements. Leaving there about 7 o'clock, they arrived at Redhill Junction at 9.10 p.m., all thoroughly satisfied with the day's outing. They desire through this medium to thank the Vicar and steeplekeeper at Tunbridge Wells, Mr. H. Barefield, for the able manner in which he made all the arrangements for them.

RAUNDS, WELLINGBOROUGH AND DISTRICT SOCIETY.

An extra or Jubilee Meeting of this society took place at Rushden, on Monday, August 1st. Owing to other Bank Holiday attractions, and the fact that no ringers attended from Finedon, Higham Ferrers, or Burton Latimer, the gathering was not as large as expected. Bands from Raunds, Rushden, Wellingborough, and Ringstead, handled the ropes during the day. At 1 p.m., dinner was provided at the Coffee Tavern. This was followed by a short business meeting, at which it was unanimously decided that ringers who were in default must pay up all arrears before being reinstated as members. It was also arranged that the next meeting take place at Kettering or Wellingborough or Easter Monday, that being a convenient day for the ringers, and one on which the noise of the bells would be less troublesome to places of business near the Church. The only hon. members present were the Rev. — Richards (Rushden), and Mr. Dennes (Wellingborough). A vote of thanks, given with three hearty cheers, was accorded to the respected Hon. Secretary, the Rev. Hugh Bryan, also to the Rev. Canon Barker, for the use of the bells, and for his kindness in throwing open the rectory grounds for the amusement of the ringers. Most of the afternoon was spent in the rectory garden, where the beautiful peal of handbells belonging to the Rushden men were brought into use. A game of cricket too was improvised, bats, ball, and wicket, being of a decidedly original character. The Church of St. Mary's, Rushden, is noted for its handsome spire, and "strainer" arch. The bells are a tuneful peal of six, cast by Taylor and Son, of St. Neots, 1794. The tenor which weighs 20 cwt. (diameter 48 inches), bears date 1818, so was probably recast at that time. The bells go remarkably well, the ropes are of excellent make, and the bell-chamber and fittings generally are in good order. There is a capital clock which chimes the Cambridge quarters. It would be a great improvement if the clock weights were "cased in," instead of being left exposed as at present.

THE SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS.

On Monday, August 1st, some members of the above society who meet at St. Sepulchre's every Sunday morning throughout the year, celebrated their tenth anniversary by dining together at the "Bush Inn," near Dorking. A sumptuous spread was provided by host Collins, who was untiring in his efforts to make all happy. The party made a strong endeavour to clear the cloth, but had to give the host best by a long way, as the supplies did not cease until the request was made to clear the table, after which the Chairman (Mr. Rumsey), gave the usual loyal toasts which were heartily received, followed by a course of Grandsire Caters by Messrs. Nelms, Davis, Church, Matthews, and Lovett. The toast of "The Vicar, Churchwardens, and Vestry of St. Sepulchre's" was received with musical honours, to which Mr. Hart responded. After songs by Messrs. Church, Davies, Wheeler, etc., and selections on bells by Clarkson, etc., "The Visitors" was next given.

Mr. JOHN NELMS, responding, thanked them for such a reception, and dwelt on the friendly and independent spirit of the party, urging them to work shoulder to shoulder, hoping they would have many more of these enjoyable days; after which the party separated for sports, etc. Time being called by the stewards, all made for the train, having thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and agreed that they had a right good Jubilee, thanks to host Collins.

ST. SIDWELL'S SOCIETY, EXETER.

On Monday, August 1st, this Society held its outing, the place chosen being Kingsbridge, where change-ringing has never or very little been heard of before. The members met at 7 a.m., and took train to Totnes, where a break was in waiting to convey them by road to Kingsbridge, a distance of ten miles. Arriving at the pretty little country town about 11 o'clock, and after the inner man was refreshed an adjournment was made to the tower of St. Edmund's church, where hangs a pretty peal of eight, by Mears and Stainbank, cast in the year 1876, tenor 14 cwt. in F. A start was made to ring a peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing about 1200 changes a mishap occurred which brought the peal to grief. C. Carter, 1; A. Shepherd, 2; E. Shepherd, 3; W. Mundy, 4; F. Shepherd (conductor), 5; J. Moss, 6; J. Batchelor, 7; G. Mundy, 8. Time not permitting to make another start for the peal, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung, in 40 mins. C. Carter, 1; W. Stocker, 2; A. Shepherd, 3; W. Mundy, 4; F. Shepherd, 5; E. Shepherd (conductor), 6; J. Moss, 7; T. J. Lake, 8. After this an adjournment was made for refreshments to the coffee tavern; and then the handbells were brought into use, some short touches being rung, also some tunes, to the enjoyment of the inhabitants, the rest of the time was very pleasantly spent with some ringing friends from Plymouth, Bickley, and the local ringers. After spending a most enjoyable day's outing, the party arrived home at 10.30 p.m. This society begs, through the medium of this paper, to thank the Rev. A. H. Simms, for granting permission to ring, and also the local ringers for their kindness in getting all things ready.

THE MAPLE.—The Maple (Acer campestre, L.) is the only truly indigenous representative of the genus Acer and of the order Sapindaceae. True, its congener, the Sycamore, is a very common tree, familiar to all, as is also the Horse-chestnut, which is more distantly akin; but neither of these has been more than a few centuries in our islands, whilst the Maple is not only common, but has never been doubted to be a truly wild tree. Some of its congeners are large trees; but the Maple is seldom more than ten or twenty feet high. In sheltered situations, however, it considerably exceeds these dimensions, trees of twenty years of age being recorded as reaching thirty-four feet in height. One at Farnham Castle, in Surrey, is recorded by Loudon, in 1835, as being thirty feet high at fifty years of age; one at Finborough Hall, Suffolk, forty feet at seventy years; one at Braystock, Essex, as fifty feet at eighty years; and one growing in stoney clay at Melbury Park, Dorset, a hundred years of age and only thirty-eight feet in height, having however a trunk two feet nine inches in diameter, whilst that of its head was thirty-seven feet. The finest recorded Maple, however, is probably that at Blairlogie in Stirlingshire, growing in an exposed situation in light loam on dry gravel, which at the age of three hundred and two years had reached the height of fifty-five feet, with a diameter of four feet, and a head forty-three feet across.—From "Familiar Trees" for August.

ST. STEPHEN'S SOCIETY, BRISTOL.

On Tuesday, the 26th July, the above Society held their annual outing, the places selected being Dunster and Minehead. The handbells were brought out, and fired in the station previous to departure, as one old member remarked "Just to show they were ringers."

Dunster was reached about eleven, and after luncheon they proceeded to the Church of St. George, and with the assistance of Mr. C. B. Craze, of Dunster, rang 630 of Grandsire Triples. G. Staddon, 1; C. B. Craze, 2; E. Duckham, 3; G. Morgan, 4; E. Beake, 5; F. Price (conductor), 6; G. Daltry, 7; G. Stallard, 8. Mr. E. Jones and Mr. Wm. Dowling stood out.

Great admiration was expressed by the ringers for this splendidly appointed belfry, none ever having seen its equal.

The ringing-room is match-boarded round, and ceiling of same stained and varnished, while every comfort for the ringers is studied, such as carpets, garden chairs, tables, looking glass, etc. The ropes fall in a good circle, inlaid mats are provided on tops of blocks to deaden sound of feet. The bells, the "go" of which is perfect, are a good ring of eight, with tenor 18 cwt. 3 qrs. 22 lbs., in F. After a course of Triples on the Dunster company's handbells, the party went by conveyance to Minehead, where in spite of the rain they managed to enjoy themselves. Selections of tunes were given on the handbells at Minehead station, and on the homeward journey, Bristol being reached shortly after twelve. The ringers wish through the medium of this paper to thank the Vicar of St. George's, Dunster, for the use of the bells, and Mr. G. B. Craze for his kindness.

G. DALTRY.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Monday, August 8th, eight members of the above Guild met at the church of SS. Peter and Paul, for the purpose of attempting a peal of Stedman Triples, as a farewell to Mr. G. Williams, who is leaving the neighbourhood, but after ringing 1100 changes in 39 mins., the men were startled by a noise as of something falling in the clock-case, which was found to have been caused by two or three bricks having become dislodged from the tower. J. Hewett, 1; J. W. Whiting, 2; H. White, 3; C. Privett, 4; F. Hill, 5; J. Staples, 6; G. Williams (conductor), 7; G. Grafham, 8. A short touch of Treble Bob Major was then rung, after which two of the party made their way to the station, and the Rev. H. A. Spyers arriving from Purbrook, a 700 of Grandsire Triples were rung. G. Williams, 1; C. Privett, 2; G. Grafham, 3; F. Hill, 4; Rev. H. A. Spyers, 5; J. W. Whiting, 6; H. White (conductor), 7; W. Swash, 8. And on Tuesday, August 9th, a 720 of Kent Treble Bob in 24 mins. C. Privett, 1; F. Hill, 2; G. Williams, 3; G. Grafham, 4; J. W. Whiting, 5; H. White (conductor), 6. A subsequent 720 of Oxford Bob came to grief through the breaking of a rope. After splicing the rope, a start was made for a 504 of Stedman Triples, but when about half-way through, the same rope broke in another place. H. White, 1; J. W. Whiting, 2; F. Hill, 3; C. Privett, 4; G. Grafham, 5; G. Williams (conductor), 6; T. Passingham, 7; T. Matthews, 8.

THE ST. JAMES' SOCIETY, LONDON.

The Annual Business Meeting of this Society was held on Monday, the 8th inst, after the usual fortnightly practice at St. Clement's, when important matters affecting the society were discussed, and the following Officers elected to serve for the forthcoming year.—

Master:—Mr. H. Langdon.

Secretary:—Mr. J. Barry.

Treasurer:—Mr. E. Albone.

Senior Steward:—Mr. R. T. Woodley.

Junior Steward:—Mr. H. R. Newton.

Towards the close of the meeting a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the officers for their services during the past year; especial reference being made to the retiring master, Mr. G. T. McLaughlin, who, in responding, thanked the members for the support they had given to him and the other officers during that period.

"HARRY OF MONMOUTH."

An interesting commemoration of the 500th birthday of King Henry V. of England—popularly designated "Harry of Monmouth," took place on Tuesday, August 9th, at Monmouth. The bells of St. Mary's Church, said to have been brought by that King from France, were rung throughout the day. The Mayor, the Lord-Lieutenant of the county (the Duke of Beaufort), and a large party assembled to lunch. The room in which the luncheon was given was hung with portraits of the soldier King and pictures representing events in his career. Before the company rose, the following telegram was received from the Queen: "The Queen is interested to hear that you are celebrating the 500th anniversary of Henry of Monmouth.—PONSONBY." High holiday was kept in the town all day, and public sports were held, concluding with a picturesque torchlight procession.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

THE FIRST QUARTERLY MEETING of the year was held at Nottingham, on Saturday, August 6th, when members attended from Burton, Derby, Duffield, Long Eaton, and Leicester. The towers of St. Mary's, All Saints', and St. Peter's churches were open to the Association during the afternoon and evening, and various touches were rung, including Stedman and Grandsire Caters, Kent Treble Bob Major, and Stedman Triples. After the General Meeting was concluded, the President, A. Percival Heywood, Esq., announced his intention of inviting the members of the Association to a garden party at Duffield Bank, on Saturday, September 3rd, which announcement was received with great cheering. The following were unanimously elected as officers for the Nottingham district for the ensuing year, viz., Mr. H. W. Abbott, 44 Lamcote Grove, Arkwright Street, Nottingham, Local Hon. Secretary; Mr. S. Burton, and Mr. S. Simkin, Committee.

LONG SUTTON, LINCOLNSHIRE.

The new tenor bell cast by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, London, was hung in the steeple of Long Sutton church last week. It will be remembered that the old tenor, cast by Mr. Henry Penn in 1716, was cracked last November, in tolling for the funeral of the late vicar (the Rev. E. L. Bennett). The new bell is inscribed "Te Deum Laudamus. George Spencer Leigh-Bennett, Vicar, John William Swain and Joseph Cartwright, Churchwardens, Queen Victoria's Jubilee Year, 1887." Weight 10½ cwt. in F.

AN UGLY CUSTOMER.—The Chamæleon has been thus termed after its curious designation by the Greeks. They called it Small Lion, and yet a more significant name might have been given to it, for Aristotle described the strange creature with his usual accuracy. It is one of the most extraordinary looking things in Nature, and its flattened body is surmounted by a crest of toothed skin on the thin back. The neck is creased, and the head is triangular in outline, having a pyramidal top. The eyes are large and glaring, and look in different directions, being moreover, covered with skin except in their centre. The ears are not visible, and the mouth is a slit. A long, compressed, pointed, prehensile tail is usually twisted around some object by way of safety, and the fore and hind feet have digits divided into fore and aft sets, and they clasp their supporting bough very much after the fashion of some birds. The skin is soft, knobbed, or tubercular, lax on the creature, and is like a minutely scaly shagreen, and its colour changes in a very remarkable manner. Usually very still, slow, and quiet in their movements, the Chamæleons can suddenly protrude an extremely long, fleshy, cylindrical, worm-shaped tongue, with a curious lobed cup-shaped end, and thus catch insects with singular rapidity and certainty. Indeed, it is the most active part of the animal, which usually hidden up under leaves, or on boughs much resembling it in colour, does not chase its prey, but watches and waits until an insect comes within the length of half of its body and tail, and then suddenly it protrudes its long tongue, and the victim is stuck fast to it by a viscid secretion. When the tongue is withdrawn it brings the insect into the mouth, and it is then packed away in a grove in the hard palate.—From "Cassell's Natural History" for August.

THE TWO BIG BENS.

The following paragraphs concerning these bells have been culled from various sources. They appear to be not unfit for publication in our paper, though we have no desire to initiate any discussion upon the Westminster bells. Mr. DENISON is now no more, at least under that patronymic, for he now sits in the House of Lords as Baron Grimthorpe.

REMOVAL OF THE BELL FOR THE GREAT CLOCK, WESTMINSTER PALACE.—There are few antiquarian subjects which have been so extensively popular as the history of bells. And the bells of our own day command a like share of attention; and to chronicle the casting, the naming, the removal, of a large bell, becomes an object of interest. Hence we have specially recorded the progress of the bell for the Westminster Great Clock, which on Tuesday was safely delivered from the Wave, by which it had been brought from the foundry, alongside Messrs. Maudslay's wharf, near Westminster-bridge, those gentlemen having kindly granted the use of their crane, etc., to Mr. Jabez James, of Broadwall, for that purpose. The Great Bell, which as our readers are aware, was founded by Messrs. Warner and Sons, was afterwards conveyed on a low truck drawn by sixteen horses, over Westminster bridge, and safely deposited in Palace-yard. Mr. Quarm, clerk of the works of the new Palace, superintended the arrangements, and Professor Taylor and Sir Charles Barry were both present. The crowd collected in Palace-yard after its arrival was so great that the police had considerable difficulty in keeping the approaches to Palace-yard clear. In the course of the afternoon the bell was lifted from the truck and swung under the massive frame erected for the purpose at the foot of the clock tower. It was then tested once or twice, and, having been pronounced entirely free from crack or flaw of any kind, it was propped up with timber to take the immense strain off the chains by which it is suspended, and so left to repose in silence after its journey for the night. All bells, we believe, are christened before they begin to toll, and on this occasion it is proposed to call our King of bells "Big Ben," in honour of Sir Benjamin Hall, the President of the Board of Works, during whose tenure of office it was cast.—The Illustrated London News for November 1st, 1856.

EXPERIMENT UPON THE GREAT BELL OF THE NEW PALACE AT WESTMINSTER.—Every stage of the manufacture and erection of this magnificent bell for the clock of the new Houses of Parliament is replete with interest. Indeed, from the extraordinary attention paid to the fabrication of the bell, and its involving several new theoretical views, it may be doubted whether, within memory, experimental science has been brought to bear to a like extent upon this class of manufacture. It may be as well to explain that the bell when placed in the Clock Tower, will be struck at each hour by means of a hammer, while the quarters will be struck upon four smaller bells. The first experiment made was to determine the proportionate weight of the striking hammer of the large bell, and the space through which it should fall upon the bow of the bell. The trial was made in New Palace-yard, at the foot of the tower, and here were assembled Mr. Denison, who designed the bell, Mr. Dent, the maker of the clock, and Mr. Quarm, the able clerk of the new Palace works. There were also present a few privileged spectators. To make the experiment, the ponderous hammer, of nearly, or quite a half ton weight, was placed on a stout framework of wood, at an inclination of about forty-five degrees, and slightly touching the bell: the hammer was then raised from this position some inches, at various times, by means of a crab, which was then thrown out of gear, and the massive hammer-head fell by its own weight, striking the bell with great precision, and bringing out the sound to its fullest extent. We believe the experiment to have been quite satisfactory. When the whole work is accomplished, we trust it will redound to the credit of those several gentlemen into whose hands this herculean labour has fallen.—The Illustrated London News for December 27th, 1856.

RECASTING THE CLOCK BELL FOR THE NEW HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.—Our readers will not have forgotten the interest excited by the elevation of "Big Ben" to his proper place in the clock tower of the Westminster Palace, nor the regret so generally felt on the discovery of his imperfect construction. They will remember his deposition from his "pride of place" and his subjection to the unpleasant process of being pounded into pieces. But, as the poet says, "even in our ashes live their wonted fires;" and old Big Ben, like a phoenix, arises anew from his own ruins. The recasting of the great bell for the clock tower of the new Houses of Parliament took place at the bell foundry of Messrs. Mears, Whitechapel Road, on Saturday, April 12th. The old bell was begun to be broken on February 17th, 1858, and the operation lasted nearly a week. The pattern of the new bell was begun in November, from a drawing given by Mr. Denison; and the making of the mould commenced on the 18th of December, and was continued without interruption about three weeks, when it was finally put together and rammed up. The mould consists first of the core, which is built up of bricks, covered with clay, and formed to the shape of the inside of the bell, by means of a board, called the sweep or crook, travelling round a centre. When this is well dried by a fire on the inside, what may be called a clay bell in made upon it, the outside of that being "swept" out by another crook in the same way. This also has to be thoroughly dried before proceeding to the next operation, which is the making of the cope, or inside mould of the bell. This is made of clay or loam, held together with iron bands, and fitted with hooks to lift it by when it is dry. When it is lifted it brings the clay bell with it, holding by means of the thin beads, which may be seen round all large bells, and technically called "wires." The clay bell is broken out of the cope, which is then put down again over the core; and in this instance was bolted down between a large iron plate under the core, and a smaller one on the top of the cope. The pit was thirteen feet deep, and the extreme height of the bell being seven and a half feet, there was considerable space left for a dead head, or pressure of metal, which is essential to produce sound casting at the top. After the cope is put on and bolted down, the pit is filled with sand and well rammed, and this operation occupied twenty-seven men four days. The metal was melted in three furnaces, holding together very nearly eighteen tons, of which nearly sixteen tons was the metal of the old bell, and the rest new metal, previously run into ingots, in proportion of seven of tin to twenty-two of copper, as in the former bell. The larger pieces of metal remained in the furnace about twenty hours, and the smaller ones about ten hours. Mr. Mears still uses only wood fuel, as the old founders did, which does not melt the metal so quickly as coal, but it is supposed to be better in its action. An operation was performed here for the first time in bellfounding, viz., blowing hot air into the mould during the whole of the day before casting. This is now usually done in large castings of brass or gun metal, and Mr. Denison wished to have it done with the former bell, but Messrs. Warner thought it unnecessary. On this occasion it was made one of the conditions of the contract. As soon as the metal in the furnaces was pronounced hot enough, the hot air was cut off, and the airhole filled up. The fountains of metal were opened at twenty-seven minutes to eight p.m., and the mould was filled up in twenty minutes. The skill, energy, and caution of Messrs. Mears throughout the whole of this delicate operation cannot be too highly praised. "Big Ben," however, was by no means the only great bell that turned "cracked." We learn from the Builder, that the great bell of Montreal, the largest ever made before Big Ben, was cracked in its first year. The St. Paul's bell was cracked, and had to be recast twice, even in Sir Christopher Wren's time, and the still famous bell of Notre Dame at Paris, was cast no less than three times over, between the years 1680 and 1686, before a satisfactory result was obtained. The sooner the bells of Oxford and York share the same fate, the better, as they are both obviously defective; the former so much so, that it has been doubted whether it is not really cracked somewhere already: and the latter is almost disused.

THE LAST TOLL OF "BIG BEN."—It is with great regret that we announce that "Big Ben" tolled his last on Saturday afternoon, and its heavy doleful E natural will never again be heard booming over the metropolis. For some time past the state of the great bell has caused considerable anxiety; his voice has been less sound and vigorous than formerly, and the catastrophe has at length occurred which must doom the metal of the great bell once more to the furnace. There cannot be much doubt as to what will be the verdict of the country upon the enquiry which must take place as to the cause of this untimely death. It was bad enough when a commission reported that there was no one in England who could make a bell, and ordered distinguished savans to visit every country in Europe to learn something about bell making: but it is far worse to have it proved upon two occasions that we are wholly incompetent to the work. Will no Frenchman, German, Russian, or Turk, come to our help and teach us how to make a bell that will not crack its own sides at the sound of its voice? The clock must be taken to pieces to get the broken bell down, and, of course, it cannot be put together again until a new bell has been cast, and hung in its place. So there will be more delay, more expense, in connection with these never ending Westminster clock and bells. The public is heartily sick of the whole question. We would recommend that Mr. Denison should be compelled to reside in the clock chamber, or belfry, of the tall tower, and himself strike the hours upon some large gongs until a proper bell is provided to do the work.—The Observer for October 4th, 1859.

A VISIT TO BRISTOL AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

ON Saturday afternoon, August 6th, Messrs. Priest and Howell visited Bristol for a friendly pull. All being arranged beforehand, a meet was made at Christ Church, where Mr. A. York had everything in readiness. The bells being raised in peal a start was made, which soon came to grief through the third rope slipping the wheel, and a second attempt shared the same fate, but the third start was more successful, with the bells running in fine style. A 1278 of Grandsire Caters was then rung. G. Pymm, 1; F. Tucker, 2; A. York, 3; W. Porch, 4; W. Paddock, 5; J. Priest, 6; F. Howell, 7; H. Porch (conductor), 8; J. Hinton, 9; C. Beak, 10. Aud on Sunday morning, August 7th, Messrs. Hinton, Daltry, and Howell took a walk over to Stapleton, and rang with some of the local ringers, a 720 of Grandsire Minor. F. Howell, 1; J. Bawn, 2; W. Plummer, 3; G. Daltry, 4; H. Bawn, 5; J. Hinton (conductor), 6. Also in the afternoon, Messrs. Hinton and Howell paid a visit to Twerton, near Bath, and attempted a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples, which came to grief one course from home. J. Hinton, 1; G. Temple, 2; G. Hill, 3; J. Blackmore, 4; F. Howell, 5; J. Wotton (conductor), 6; H. Wotton, 7; C. Bendall, 8. Also at St. Andrew's, Bath, for evening service, a short touch of Grandsire Triples. S. Wyburn, 1; J. Hinton (conductor), 2; G. Hill, 3; F. Howell, 4; —. Tovey, 5; D. Goodman, 6; —. Beasley, 7; —. 8. First quarter-peal of Caters by Messrs. Pymm, Tucker, W. Porch, Paddock, and Howell, and first 720 by Messrs. Bawn. Mr. F. Howell hails from Thornbury, and J. Priest from Wanstead, Essex. The visitors wish through the medium of this journal to tender their thanks to all the ringers of the various towers for making their visit such a pleasant one, and hope at some future date to pay another visit.

NEWHAVEN FISHER FOLKS' SUPERSTITIONS.—“Dwelling only a few bow-shots from the metropolis of an ancient kingdom, this people remain isolated,” says a writer in 1865—“apart—distinct in costume and dialect, in manners and mode of thinking. The customs, laws, and traditions of their forefathers appear as if they had been stereotyped for their use.” They believe in many of the whimsical and ideal terrors of past generations, and have many superstitions that are not entirely their own. Whilst at sea, if the idea of a cat or a pig float across their mind, their names must not be uttered, or if so, in veiled language. To think of dogs is unlucky: of hares, terrible! Should a reference be made to a “minis'er” as such, vague and undefined terror fills every bronzed visage, as he should be spoken of only as “the man in the black coat;” and Friday is an unlucky day for everything but getting married; and to talk of a certain man named Brounger is—according to the writer quoted—sure to produce consternation. John Brounger was an old fisherman of Newhaven, who, when to feeble to go to sea, used to ask for some oysters or fish from his neighbours on their return, and if not amply supplied, he cursed them, and wished them—on their next trip—“ill-luck,” and it sometimes came; to propitiate him, his moderate demands became, ere he died, an established claim. Hence it would seem that now to say to a crew at sea, “John Brounger’s in your head-sheets,” or “on board of you,” is sufficient to cause her crew to haul in the dredge, ship their oars, and pull the boat thrice round in a circle, to break the evil spell, and enough sometimes to make the crew abandon work.—From “Cassell’s Old and New Edinburgh” for August.

HERE AND THERE.

I should imagine that the probationer of the Oxford Guild who saw no encouragement in being called upon to pay for his own dinner, belongs to the “peculiar” people. He would have the practical change-ringer pay for himself and those who had not yet learnt, and I suppose those who would not learn to ring. Well, Mr. Probationer, no one deserves a dinner till it has been earned. When you can ring a bell in a 5040 of London Surprise, you will be entitled to a free ticket, and the Secretary of the Guild will be sure to send you one for the next meeting, and a free railway pass as well.

While the Cumberlands are to be congratulated upon booking the first peal upon the repleted ring of ten at Chelmsford, there are two matters in connection with the coveted ambition that are not be commended. When it became known on Whit-Monday that a band comprising members of the College Youths and Essex and Norwich Associations were arranging to start for a peal in the evening, the sudden disappearance of the contents of that mysterious black bag from the tower was bad taste. A similar band having applied for the use of the tower on Monday week the adoption of the latter title is straining rivalry to its utmost extent. By a perusal of the names of the band, it will be seen that some new blood was imported, probably this was thought requisite in order to avoid such a fatal blunder as that made on Whit-Monday.

Speaking of the appearance of the peal under three headings it is asserted that one of the band was not aware that he was a member of the Norwich Association till the peal appeared in print, while the name of another member of the band is not to be found in the list of members of the Essex Association. True, a plea may be set up that such member was elected in the tower, but no notification having appeared—as has hitherto been an unwritten law—the question arises if the peal was a bona fide one beyond the Cumberlands.

The attempt to book this honour by another band of the College Youths made a few weeks since did not terminate very satisfactorily. Gentlemen who do not wish to be compelled to modify their language in contending that they have never lost a peal, should not attempt a fourth’s place bob with the treble after ringing half-an-hour in Grandsire Caters.

It is unnecessary to recapitulate an account of the struggles that were made to secure the rehanging of the two Chelmsford trebles, but it would be interesting to know who has done the most fighting, the College Youths, the Cumberlands, or the outsiders that are not considered to have sufficient intelligence to belong to either of these societies. If permitted to be “in the know,” I should say that the latter have done more to secure the completion of the work than both Societies combined; under these circumstances it is far from creditable that the “Independents” should be excluded from even attempting a touch, upon the assumed ground that they had some connection with the black bag business. Bye-the-bye, if as hinted, the contents of this indispensable article form the subject of a fireside Christmas tale, we shall probably learn that the “Independents” were not in the hunt.

The heat of the past week has been most unfavourable for ringing. I suggest to my brother-strings the necessity there is of taking great care of themselves. I am told that a ringer living in the metropolitan area, after a few days ringing fell very ill and was unable to follow his employment the following day. The physician diagnosed his illness as a case of “sunstroke.” An attack of this kind fortunately does not hinder the active pen of

SATURDAY, AUGUST 13, 1887.

THE mention of "Cressy," "Poitiers," and "Agincourt" will ever raise within the breasts of Englishmen feelings of pride and exultation of a very pardonable character. Few readers of English history will refuse to grant that the battles fought at the three places here mentioned are the most remarkable encounters ever fought and won. Whatever the cause, just or unjust, of the war in which they were engaged, the bravery, hardihood, and exertions made by the English forces under HENRY V., led by him against the French five hundred years ago, are certainly to be classed amongst the most brilliant victories ever achieved by the arms of Britain. With only a small force of men the gallant and youthful HENRY completely shattered the immense army of France, himself performing those wondrous feats of arms which have since placed him in the front rank of the "Heroes of Britain." What wonder then, that the inhabitants of Monmouth should celebrate with the greatest enthusiasm the 500th birthday of that extraordinary man who was born in their town? As the Mayor said, when the anniversary was celebrated at Monmouth last Tuesday, and when he called upon the guests assembled to do honour to the occasion and drink in solemn silence to the memory of HENRY V., "the association of the mighty Prince with that town was a circumstance of which every inhabitant was justly proud. Within a few yards of where they seated, stood the castle in which was born one of the greatest heroes the Lancaster family had given to England." Ringing cheers greeted this remark; and if any proof was wanted that the good folk of Monmouth are loyal to the ancient traditions of their country, surely it was given when a little later on in the day the following telegram was read "The Queen is interested to hear that you are celebrating the five hundredth anniversary of the birth of HENRY of Monmouth," for the company cheered again and again, while a band near played the National Anthem. Such events as these have a peculiar interest to us, especially at the present time. The Jubilee year of our Queen has only just been celebrated, and one cannot fail to make comparisons between the days of the nineteenth century civilization, and the position of society at the time of HENRY V. What extraordinary differences existed in those days between the various classes of the people few can imagine, and perhaps none can realise. And what wonderful advances have been made in every department of public life and character! Wonderful indeed! and to the reader of history no more instructive lesson can be taught than that presented to him by the contemplation of the different stages through which this country has passed. True, the men of HENRY's days were capable of performing feats of strength in times of war, which were prodigious, and which would astonish the Britisher of to-day; but let us not forget that "peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," and that we have therefore privileges great and holy gained by the influences of peace-loving men which could not be gained nor enjoyed by all the power, wonderful though it was, of "HENRY of MONMOUTH."

There is a kind of application—we use the word in its rhetorical sense—to be reaped from such festivities as the one under notice. The old town of Monmouth has we know, a ring of bells, and a thriving young society of willing hands to ring them. A more fitting way of adding to the general rejoicing could hardly be conceived, than that provided by these same willing hands. And there was no lack in this respect. "Peals" were rung throughout the day in honour of the occasion, and again and again did the gladdening sound "float o'er hill and dale," as if once again telling the thrilling story of how victory had crowned the efforts of the soldier king. Our brotherhood all over the world will bear us out in saying that this is as it should be. Many steeples in the country, splendidly adapted to the placing of magnificent peals of bells, are yet unfortunately without such harbingers of joy. This is a fact to be deplored, but however much it may be regretted, it still exists, and until there is more advantage taken of the means of information on the subject of bells and bell-ringing, so easily to be obtained, we are afraid the reproach will be continued. There are any number of young men willing to learn the art if they have the opportunity given them, but it is impossible for such knowledge to be attained without the necessary materials. The application then is that when memorials are about to be erected for the perpetration of historical heroes, a ring of bells is one of the most appropriate it is possible to conceive.

The Select Committee on Sunday Postal Labour have completed their Report. They recommend that the Sunday delivery of books, circulars, and all printed matter other than newspapers, should be absolutely discontinued. In the case of letters they propose that the Sunday delivery should cease unless in boroughs a majority of two-thirds of the Council, and in rural districts a majority of two-thirds of the ratepayers, should declare in favour of its continuance. They suggest that where a Sunday delivery ceases there should be a window delivery, and that if a Sunday delivery is stopped in the mode proposed it should also be competent to restore it in the same way.

Throughout the whole of Wednesday afternoon, the Leyton and Leytonstone Fire Brigade was playing upon the peat in Epping Forest. In some places it was burning to the depth of nine or ten inches.

A COURT OF EQUITY.

DISPUTATIONS and wranglings are said to be proverbial among ringers. There is sufficient truth in such an assertion to give rise to a wish that some means could be devised whereby these disagreeable episodes could be abolished, and their unpleasant effects nullified. Their reduction to a minimum is not enough; we want their absolute and altogether total effacement. The many and various causes of disagreement or, it should be said, contrariety of feeling—for opinion has very little to do with it—are not so very complicated as to defy easy settlement. In fact it will generally be found that the bone of contention between ringers is a very small matter, only that the belligerents have not the tact or the sense, unfortunately, to suggest terms of accommodation or agreement between themselves. It sometimes happens, it is true, that the olive-branch is held out to promote harmony and peace. But how often do we see such a commendable action, such a movement towards goodwill, spurned and treated with contumely? It is useless to condemn such people. Those who prefer to be always habited in their war-paint are not amenable to the teaching which is given by experienced counsel. To cure such narrowmindedness it is necessary that some sort of coercion should be resorted to to force them to listen to the dictates of reason, and failing compliance, a penalty of some kind, such as a moral and social excommunication, should be inflicted.

There would under such circumstances seem to be a difficulty in denoting what kind of tribunal should be established for the purpose of bringing about such an desideratum as the amicable and just settlement of disputes, whether they savoured of reality, or were in fact merely sentimental. To advocate a species of judicature before which controversies of ringers shall be impartially decided, seems at first sight chimerical and utopian in the highest degree. Yet it appears that a judgment of such a kind has recently been given and acquiesced in. We have only to read the observations of the worthy Master of the Oxford Guild at the recent Annual Meeting to prove this statement. A member of a ringing company—so it would seem—in union with the Oxford Guild, felt himself aggrieved by the action of the Vicar of the Church to which he was attached, and the real or supposed wrong came under the cognisance of the Master of the Guild for the purpose of adjudication. As we understand the matter, the process adopted by Mr. ROBINSON and his decision, appears to have given satisfaction, and this fact in itself goes a long way to show the value of the theory and practice of arbitration to put an end to these kind of difficulties. It is contended here that similar courts of appeal could be easily established wherever Diocesan or County Guilds have sway. Maybe to some people the suggestion is ridiculous and not worthy of a moment's thought. But we are fortified in our belief in its efficacy by the example already mentioned; and there is no doubt whatever that a similar process as that could be adopted with benefit at the present time in other parts of the country.

Opposition to such a movement would of course be expected, but in the end surmounted. People who have been allowed to have their own way in belfry matters would be bound to object to anything which would have the least tendency to divest them of even a portion of their "little brief authority," but the race is nearly run of this sort of bugbear. At any rate they will not live for ever. The proposal we have ventured to shadow forth is at any rate worth consideration.

AGER FORUM.

St. Stephen's Review understands that the Queen has determined on instituting an order of literary merit, and that Her Majesty has called to aid her councils in the matter some of the leading literary men of the day. The order, as far as present arrangements go, is to consist of 20 knights, 50 knight companions, and 100 companions.

NEWS FROM AUSTRALIA.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,—I herewith send you a short account of how the ringers in this part of Her Majesty's dominions kept Jubilee Day.

It was arranged to meet and ring from twelve to one in the early morning. Accordingly a company of eight met and rang a touch of 504 Grandsire Triples, then home to bed for a few hours, to meet again at nine o'clock. When that hour arrived, or between that and ten, you should have seen the muster we had, perhaps in no other Church tower in England or out of England was there such a representative gathering, not less than twelve English counties being represented, most of them being strangers to each other, many of whom had not had a pull for a great many years. One old man turned up, saying it was forty-five years since he last tried his hand. "Do let me have a try," he said, "for I rang at the Queen's Coronation." Of course he had his try, and in fact everybody that liked. I should have said that the above old man's name, as he gave me, was T. Dwight, of London. He added—"I never was much in my day, but I had a brother who was all there at it."

I made an attempt to get five or six that actually rang at the Queen's Accession and Coronation to have a few rounds together, but could only get three. Of course in such a gathering the majority were Churchyard Bob men, but everyone was allowed to show his skill, such as it was, and so the morning passed quickly away. After a hasty dinner at an adjoining inn, and a course of Caters on the handbells, our best band took the ropes for, as the sailors would say, any port they could fetch, or in other words, to see how far we go toward the 5040, and we had some first-class ringing for 59 mins., getting nearly a third of the peal, when unfortunately the 3rd and 5th changed course, and the conductor (Mr. J. Guest, of Lichfield, Staffordshire), called "stand." We were placed as follows: C. Crang, 1; W. Shenton, 2; W. H. Albinson, jun., 3; J. Clark, 4; J. Guest, 5; W. Albinson, sen., 6; J. Murrey, 7; W. Pearson, 8. Nothing more in the shape of change-ringing was attempted, but the bells were not silent for another hour or so, for so many were there. I should have said that we rung at the Protestant Church of St. James, a light peal of eight, tenor between 13 and 14 cwt., the only peal in Melbourne in a Protestant Church, the other peal of eight being in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, which were quiet all day. Below are the English Counties represented here on this occasion:—

Mr. A. Thomas, of Birmingham, writes:—"In the peal of Stedman Caters rung at Duffield on August 1st, the foot-note should read, 'the peal which contains the 5th and 6th each twenty-three course-ends behind the 9th, etc.' Please correct this, it was my mistake in reporting the same."

RECEPTION OF THE PRINCESS ALEXANDRA.—There was some fear lest the entry of the Princess into the capital would not be an unalloyed triumph. The officials of the Court had contrived to irritate the populace by several of their arrangements. The people were at first annoyed because they had been told the procession was to pass through the metropolis at a smart trot. Then the municipal dignitaries were greatly affronted because in the original plan they were to have no part in the procession. The reason given for this prohibition was that the Lord Mayor would necessarily have headed the pageant, but inasmuch as his unwieldy State coach must proceed at walking pace, his presence would have prevented the Royal carriages passing along at high speed. But when the Corporation met and expressed their anger at this interference with their prerogative, the Court officials yielded, and so it was arranged that the Lord Mayor and his train should head the procession as far as Temple Bar. But the moment the Princess appeared, her grace, her beauty, her charming simplicity of manners, carried all hearts by storm, and London was quite delirious with joyful excitement when she came on the scene.—From "The Life and Times of Queen Victoria" for August.

DUFFIELD MAJOR.

* SIR,—I enclose you a peal of Duffield Major which has been forwarded to me by the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer. The composition is in two similar parts and contains as the only sixth place bells, the 4th and 6th each an equal number of courses in that position. Although no peal with the sixth moved can compare in musical value with those in which that bell remains at home throughout, still as a scientific production the peal under notice is most remarkable, and evidences an amount of labour and research which will be better appreciated when the method is more generally understood. ST. MARTIN'S COMPANY, BIRMINGHAM, AND THE HOLT SOCIETY.

ON Monday, August 1st, the above companies proceeded to Duffield for their annual picnic. They were timed to leave New Street Station by the 8 a.m. train, but thanks to the excellent arrangements of Messrs. Cook, a special carriage was promised to be attached to the 9 a.m. express to Derby, and consequently some thirty members of the party booked for this train, which on arriving at No. 1 platform was found to be already occupied, and one compartment only reserved, the traffic superintendent informing the remainder of the company that they must get in there (pointing to a luggage van "our special"), or be left behind. This they thought was rather "cool" treatment, but some twenty of them tumbled in, and to their surprise found that the compartment was more frigid still, one end of it being packed with blocks of ice. This no doubt acted in a somewhat refreshing manner upon their already overheated temperaments, at being so unceremoniously handled by the officials, for almost before they had well cleared Birmingham, joke were going freely around "our special coach." It will be readily imagined by the readers of "THE BELL NEWS," to what a severe strain the officials of these Companies were subjected, when we state that according to the "official returns" some 43,520 passengers left this station on Bank Holiday. On arriving at Duffield, the company proceeded to the tower, and after a few members had made a brief examination of the frame, fittings, etc., which were greatly admired, Mr. Bastable placed his band at their respective ropes, and a start was made for Stedman Caters. During the progress of the peal, a few members of the company could be seen strolling leisurely about in the adjoining meadows enjoying a quiet pipe, whilst others more venturesome were trying their skill at "feathering the oar." At 3 p.m. about forty assembled at the "Bridge Inn," where an excellent dinner had been provided, after which it was announced to the company that Mr. Heywood had very kindly invited them to his beautiful grounds, where they were soon rambling.

On entering the park-like grounds we passed along the drive and up the grassy slope at the back of "The Home," which we left on our right, and continuing our climbing came to a "wicket," and thence along the hilly path leading to "Lawn Tennis Station," where we found our host awaiting us.

An excursion had been arranged from this station, and having a general pass (thereby avoiding individual booking), the company lost time in securing seats, and in a few minutes found themselves steaming along the (D. B. R.) Duffield Bank Railway. This railway, although running almost contiguous to the Midland, will be in no way affected by the threatened strike of drivers on that section, inasmuch as the "Managing Director" piloted our train. The signals being against us, we were compelled to stay for a short time at "Gorse Station," but on continuing our trip through "a wild and hilly country" we found ourselves at the "Rough," a station facing due north, from which elevated position could be seen the hilly country around Matlock, whilst in the valley beneath us the Derwent was winding its course among the rocks, and on the opposite bank the busy trains of the Midland dashing along to and from Derby. Such scenes as these to the eyes of persons more accustomed to look upon the lofty smoke stacks of our manufacturing towns, and to hear the dull thud of the stamp, the shrill screech of the piercer, or the busy hum of the burnish brush, are not readily described. After leaving this beautiful natural panorama, we proceeded through the woodlands passing Manor Copse Station, and crossing over a chasm, at the bottom of which could be seen a hammock slung from the trees, and other indications of its being "a cool resort," whilst from the girders of the bridge swings were suspended for the juveniles.

We now crossed the home sidings, and on past the lawn entered a cutting, which forcibly reminded us of the notice affixed to the carriages that "passengers are requested to allow nothing to protrude beyond the sides of the carriages," whilst in this cutting the lofty head-gear of one of the company, who in order the better to view the circuitous route of our train, had been standing, seemed to be in imminent danger, but the shrill whistle from our engine reminded him of our nearness to the tunnel, and he resumed his seat.

After passing this tunnel we came into what appeared to be the bottom of a "huge george," with its rocks, and trees towering above us, and with another short tower for its outlet, this brought us to our destination, "Lawn Tennis station," from which we had started only a short time previously. On the lawn at this station, Messrs. C. and T. Hattersley, Buffery, Russam, Kent and Reeves rang some Grandsire Cinques, whilst others were amusing themselves at that old English game—Bowls. During an express round Messrs. Joynes, Kent, T. Hattersley and Dixon rang a touch of Grandsire Triples in the train, also some Bob Major. On arriving at the Lawn station, tea, which had been liberally provided by our host, was in readiness in the carriage sheds, after which Messrs. Kent, Carter, Russam and Heywood rang a course of Duffield Major, and Messrs. Carter, Day, Thomas and Heywood a short touch of Stedman Triples.

After a brief interval the company, which included ringers from Hull, Sheffield, Derby, Nottingham, Burton-on-Trent, West Bromwich, Tipton, Wolverhampton, whilst Birmingham towers were represented as following: St. Martin's, St. Phillip's, St. Chad's (R. C. C.), St. John's, Deritend, St. John's, Perry Bar, St. Mary's, Handsworth, and Aston parish church, these were assembled in one corner of the lawn, and then Mr. C. H. Hattersley, on behalf of the company, appropriately thanked Mr. Heywood for the privilege he had extended to the St. Martin's company by allowing them to ring a peal on the bells of his parish church, also for the hospitable manner in which he had entertained the company that afternoon. This was attended with musical honours.

MR. HEYWOOD in thanking the company remarked that it was at all times a very great pleasure to him to welcome such a company of ringers as St. Martin's, Birmingham, and their friends, some of whom he had that day met for the first time, but he trusted that the acquaintance may be extended through a number of years, and that they may have many such gatherings in the future.

An adjournment was now made to the tower, where touches were rung in the four standard methods, whilst those who had come from a distance left to catch the 7.12 p.m. train from Duffield. One of the company had become so much enraptured with the afternoon's entertainment, that he could not be induced to leave "our horse," until he had seen it brought down the steep declivity, and along its circuitous path, and safely housed in "its stall." Some of the members enjoyed a quiet evening through the fields to Derby, the remainder after ringing had ceased for the day, left by the 9 p.m. train from Duffield, and on account of its being Bank Holiday, did not reach Birmingham until the small hours of Tuesday morning, although they had again succeeded in securing "our special coach."

Mr. Justice Lawson, second Judge of the Queen's Bench Division in Ireland, died on Wednesday evening, aged 70, at his residence at Clanhara, county Dublin. He was called to the Bar in 1840, was made Queen's Counsel in 1857, Attorney General in 1865, and a Judge of the Common Pleas Division in 1868. He became Second Judge of the Queen's Bench in 1882. He also filled the office of legal member of the Irish Church Temporalities Commission.

EAST LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING AT SPILSBY.

The annual meeting of this association took place at Spilsby, on Saturday, July 30th. A company of campanologists left Boston at 7.30 by road, and at Sibsey Mr. Mawer joined them. They then proceeded through Stickney and Sticford, and a pleasant drive of about an hour brought them to the foot of the hill at West Keal. Here the second halt was made; W. Hand having kindly provided breakfast. Afterwards the tower of West Keal was visited, the bells having been got in readiness and a 720 of Bob Minor (fourteen bobs and two singles), was rung, in 21 mins. W. Vickers, (West Keal), 1; J. A. Hand, (West Keal), 2; G. Clark (Skirbeck), 3; J. Mawer (Sibsey), 4; A. Barber (Frieston), 5; E. Mason (conductor, Skirbeck), 6. The company then proceeded to Spilsby, and were met by ringers from Langton, East Keal, West Keal, Spilsby, Burgh, Halton Friskney and Frieston. At 12 Divine Service was held in the parish church, the preacher being the Rev. Canon Lonsdale, who is staying in the neighbourhood. The rev. gentleman took his text from Exodus xxviii., 34 and 35: "A golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate upon the hem of the robe round about. And it shall be upon Aaron to minister: and the sound shall be heard, when he goeth into the holy place before the Lord and when he cometh out." The preacher said:—

Very particular care the orders given for the holy garments which priest Aaron was to wear, when he went into the holy place before the Lord, as to the breastplate, too, with twelve precious stones, one precious stone for each tribe of Israel, the Urim and Thummim, the lights and perfections of holy worship, the plate of the priestly mitre, the ephod of all blue, pomegranates of blue and purple and scarlet, and bells of gold between the many coloured pomegranates round about, all upon Aaron so ministering. Tinkle, tinkle, little golden bells, may be a pretty, musical sound, heard in the holy place. Bells, says the prophet Zachariah, may be holiness to the Lord. By what is holy, we mean what is set apart from all profanity. There are steps of holiness, as of most things both good and bad. These steps are the steps of a divine ladder, set on earth reaching to heaven. Even lifeless things, as bells and vestures and stones and wood and brass and silver and gold, may be holy; hence God helping us up this mystic ladder, we may reach the holiness of persons, thence from the offices of persons, a step much higher (for here there is a large space between the steps) to holiness of heart; holy men and holy women; then higher still holy angels, and holy souls in holy heaven; then the highest step, Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Sabaoth, Holy Father, Holy Son, Holy Spirit, three persons one God. But though no profanity can touch God, no angels, nor spirits of men and women in Heaven, yet, alas! profanity may touch at times the hearts even of holy men and women on earth; it touches and defiles the hearts of common christians, though once baptized in an holy font; it touches all sorts of inanimate things, when neglected or little cared for, or debased to common or even bad uses. Very often has the tower of a Church been regarded as hardly part of the Church, separated from it, the lumber house, untidy and dusty and cobwebby and dirty, a scene of noise and quarrelling. Then did beer and bells go together, beer and bells, bells and beer, were the changes rung and drunk, beer not in moderation but in excess. In the life of Bunyan, who wrote the "Pilgrim's Progress," we are told that one day when he was with the bell-ringers in the belfry a terror got over him, and he fled from the tower to the outside, fearing that the steeple might come down upon him and bury him in the midst of his sin, and take him off straight to hell, where if any bells are rung they must be devil's bells. A clergyman in Somersetshire told me when he came to his parish, he found that all fights between the villagers were fought in the belfry, as the regular place. When he shut the doors of the belfry there was anger against him, so that he was threatened with violence. Then he made the belfry all one with the body of the church, and these scenes came to an end. It is a sign of improvement that the tower is regarded as part of the church, and bell-ringers as members of the Church and its belongings. From such orderly ringing Bunyan would not have fled. Bells have, as it were, voices, and may be thought to join in the praise of the Lord. Their voices reach far, over fields and rivers and valleys and hills. They reach further than the voice of any minister, however good his lungs. They are borne further than the hymn of any choir, however large and powerful. Distance makes them sound better. They are a music when rung skilfully. When a jubilee is kept they add to the joy. Evening bells are specially pleasant to one walking our fields. They are popular. They please the young and they soothe the sad. Somehow or another nothing brings back the past so much as the sound of bells. One has written thus:—

O! solemn bells whose consecrated tones
Recall the faith of old—
O! tinkling bells, that lulled with twilight magic
The spiritual fold.

A high wind and a wild evening make the sound of bells to rise and fall in a musical cadence. Merry are bells at a wedding; solemn is the passing bell, solemn is the tone at a funeral. We cannot tell what influence the sound may have on the heart. Bells ring out the old year with muffled peal; with unmuffled voice they ring in the new year. They celebrate merry Christmas. They summon to church. Heartily and earnestly should they be rung; not without joy, and yet with a thought of where they are rung, and in the honour and to the glory of whom, even our Lord God.

At 1.30 dinner was provided at the White Hart Hotel, and was presided over by the Rev. H. J. Cheales, Vicar of Friskney and president of the Association. He was supported by Canon Lonsdale and the Rev. F. Besant, Vicar of Sibsey, and thirty-five ringers and friends. After dinner, the Chairman in submitting "the Queen," said very few words of commendation were required in an assembly like this, because the ringing which had been done this jubilee year would speak for itself that ringers were as loyal as anyone. Referring to what they had heard from the preacher that morning, he said they really took upon themselves great responsibility when they became bellringers. He concluded by urging upon them to always remember their responsibility.—Mr. Mason (the secretary) being called upon for the yearly report, said he was able again to congratulate the members on another fairly successful year: they were steadily increasing in numbers. The quarterly meetings had been very well attended, and the ringing much better and more of it having been done. He was able to carry a good balance forward, as would be seen by the balance-sheet. He hoped next year the Association would still go on increasing. The Chairman proposed a vote of thanks to the Rev. Canon Lonsdale for his kindness in giving them an address that day. Canon Lonsdale briefly responded. The Rev. F. Besant proposed that the officers be re-elected for the ensuing year. It was also proposed, in addition, that Mr. J. A. Hand, of West Keal, assist the secretary in getting the subscriptions; in The President proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Mason for his services as hon. secretary, and complimented him on the way in which the business of the association was conducted. The company then proceeded to the tower and rang 720 of Bob Minor (eighteen bobs and two singles). F. Cheetham (East Keal), 1; J. A. Hand (West Keal), 2; G. Clark, (Skirbeck) 3; J. Mawer (Sibsey), 4; H. Daulton (West Keal), 5; E. Mason (conductor, Skirbeck), 6. Four 720's of Grandshire Doubles, and one 720 of Plain Bob were rung by Messrs. Seymour, Smith, Vickers, Hand, Green, Dalton, Smith and Wright S. Steeper (Frieston), W. F. Harwood, and J. Harwood. The company also paid a visit to Halton Church, which contains a fine peal of six bells. A 720 of Minor was attempted, but owing to the bells not going very well, was brought out at the half-peal end, by Messrs. Cheetham, Hand, Clark, Mawer, Barber, Mason (conductor). Several 720's of Grandshire Doubles were rung by F. Haw, J. Green, A. Barber, S. Steeper, J. Rogers Smith, F. Harwood, J. Harwood, Routen and Meads. Fourteen new members were were elected during the day, including the Rev. P. Kendall, Vicar of Spilsby. The company started for home at 7.30 after having spent one of the pleasantest days since the association has been formed.

On Saturday, July 22nd, a committee meeting was held at Sibsey, and the accounts were audited, after which two 720's of Bob Minor (one with eighteen bobs and two singles, and the other, fourteen bobs and two singles), were rung. A. Barber, 1; J. A. Hand, 2; G. Clarke, 3; J. Mawer, 4; J. M. Rylatt, 5; E. Mason (conductor), 6. The second 720 was rung with Mr. T. Rogers at the treble.

LITTLE BEDWYN, WILTS.

A new tenor bell cast by Mears and Stainbank, London, has been hung in the steeple in place of an old one which was cracked. The new bell weighs 9 cwt., and is inscribed "Recast in the Jubilee year of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, 1887, Charles Henry Townsend, Vicar, Samuel William Farmer, Churchwardens, Laus Deo." The peal consists of four bells only. The old tenor was by Wallis of Salisbury, 1581.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Bank holiday, August 1st, seven of the Rayleigh company (also members of the Essex Association), drove to Stanford-le-Hope, and, permission having been previously obtained, they proceeded at once to the tower, where 720 of Bob Minor was "struggled with" but finally lost. After this 720 of College Single was brought round in good style. H. Deal, 1; G. Smith, 2; J. Johnson, 4; F. Strugnell, 4; F. Brewer, 5; W. H. Judd (conductor), 6. Leaving Stanford they drove to Orsett, staying on the way to admire the beautiful scenery lying around that part of the country. Just before reaching Orsett, a Stanford ringer who had joined the party called at the house of the parish clerk of Orsett, who, bring an enthusiastic ringer at once expressed a wish to render all assistance in his power. But "alas for human wishes" his better-half (keenly alive to the situation) rushed out saluting with—"You ain't a'goen a' them, your goter come along a' we." She also improved the occasion by passing complimentary remarks on ringers in general. These had the effect of making the "hen-pecked" think that "discretion was the better part of valour," so he was "left alone in his glory." Some few minutes were spent by those present in recovering from the effects of the depression caused by the amiable spouse; as they, being bachelors, knew not what might be in store for them. Orsett being by this time reached, and some of our "silent original's" pupils being ready for the party, a move was made for the tower, where proceedings commenced with 720 Kent Treble Rob. G. Smith, 1; H. Deal, 2; J. Johnson, 3; F. Strugnell 4; F. Brewer, 5; W. H. Judd (conductor), 6. After which 240 with H. Smith, in place of W. H. Judd, the others as before. The Rector (Rev. Canon Whittington) gave the party a very hearty welcome, and kindly pointed out the many objects of interest in his beautiful church.

Leaving Orsett, the Laindon Hills were reached after considerable "bone-shaking," the noble steed provided going at a pace of two miles per hour. However the destination was at length reached, where a substantial dinner was partaken of. At Laindon a start was made for 720 of Oxford Treble Bob which was lost in the last course. This was followed by short touches as it was then to warm for much work. The bells are a very musical peal of six, tenor about 16 cwt. The local ringers of course came up to the tower, among other pretences for leaving their work one was from the steeplekeeper, who said that he was "looking for a cow" (a cow in a steeple!). As time would not permit of further delay, the party returned to Stanford, where 720 of Bob Minor was again attempted, this time successfully. G. Smith, 1; J. Johnson, 2; W. H. Judd, 3; F. Strugnell, 4; D. Howell (first 720), 5; H. Deal (conductor), 6. After partaking of more refreshment in the way of tea, the ringers returned passing through ten miles of waving corn and dusty road to Rayleigh, from a most enjoyable excursion.

The members take this opportunity of thanking the Vicar for the use of the bells, and the local ringers for having everything in readiness.

THE NIGHT OF HORRORS AT BADAJOZ.—Again and again did the fierce stormers hurl their strength up to the breaches, to be repelled by these barriers of bristling steel; while the bursting shells and the thundering powder-barrels shed tempests of iron splinters and blazing brands among them. Hundreds had fallen, and hundreds more were falling, wounded unto death by mutilations of every description. Blood and brains, torn corpses and dismembered fragments, made the ascent of the breaches and all the approaches thereto beyond description horrible and loathly. Barrels of flaming pitch, and bags of gunpowder that exploded on reaching the ground, were poured into the crowded ditches, where the bundles of hay that had been used to facilitate a descent took fire, and thus many of the helpless wounded were unhappily burned to death. Into these ditches the storming parties were ultimately driven, where, unable to advance, yet unwilling to retire, they remained, enduring with a degree of patience that was most marvellous the weight of a fire to which even they had seen no parallel. Gathered in dark groups, they leaned on their muskets and looked with fierce desperation at the Trinidad; while the French, stepping out upon the ramparts, aimed shot after shot among them by the brilliant but ghastly light of the fire-balls, which they threw over from time to time. "Why don't you come into Badajoz?" was ever and anon their mocking cry. Ere the cathedral bells tolled midnight more than a thousand of our men had fallen.—From "British Battles on Land and Sea" for August.

SOME MORE (MODEL?) WILTSHIRE BELFRIES.

SOUTH NEWTON.—Here we have a well kept, clean ringing chamber, and some elaborate rules for the guidance of the ringers, wherein it is set forth that the said ringers are not to resort to a public-house after ringing, that they are to attend to chime on Sundays, and that they are to ring for the love of the art, and not for money. This may be all very well as far as it goes, but when we ascend the belfry we find only four bells, tenor about 8 or 9 cwt. These bells are in very bad repair, the third stock is so decayed that it would probably fall all to pieces but for the cannon straps. The second bell, which appears to have been rehung comparatively recently, is very loose in the stock. There is plenty of room for a peal of five bells to hang all on the same level, but nevertheless the three largest of these four hang below, and the treble above. The treble is a very ancient bell, inscribed "AVE GRACIA." The second was cast by Messrs. Warner and Sons in 1862. The third has "+ Sancta Anna Pro Nobis" on it, and the tenor bears the simple legend "Hope well, I-W. 1610."

BOWERCHALKE.—Here we have "Belfry Reform" with a vengeance. There is a Guild of ringers attached to the tower, which was founded in 1879. The vicar is the warden of the Guild. Each member on joining receives a card of membership. Members must be strict churchmen, not under fifteen years of age. On joining they sign obedience to the rules, which are very elaborate, no one being allowed to sound a bell, except members, without the permission of the Vicar. With all this we should naturally expect to find a grand peal of eight bells at least, but on ascending the tower, lo! and behold, there are only three. It can hardly be very distressing to any ringer not to be allowed to ring here, so we do not suppose that the strictness of the rules causes much indignation among the ringing fraternity in the neighbourhood. Of the bells themselves, the first was recast by Warner and Sons some years ago, the second is inscribed "I.W. 1611," and the third "ABCD EFG."

ANNUAL OUTING.

ON Monday, August 1st, the members of the Southwark Youths paid a visit to Crayford and held their annual dinner and tea (kindly given by the rector of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, the Rev. Burman Cassin), at the "British Workman" tavern. After dinner the ringers went to the parish church and rang several touches on the bells, and in the evening returned to London, having spent a most enjoyable day.

ASPLEY GUISE, BEDFORDSHIRE.

On Saturday, July 23rd, the ringers took advantage of an excursion trip to Hastings and St. Leonards. On their arrival they were very kindly received by Mr. Butler, the aimable sexton of All Saints. This gentlemen had made arrangements for the excursionists to have a pull at both churches. Touches were rung on the five bells of All Saints and the eight steel bells of St. Clements were also put in motion. The ringers desire to thank the medium of the "THE BELL NEWS" to thank Mr. Butler for his kind offices rendered on that day. The ringers returned home quite elated with the day's proceedings.

RE-OPENING OF PAINSWICK BELLS.

On Thursday, August 11th, the annual industrial exhibition and flower show was held in Painswick. The Messrs. Morris had been busily engaged in getting the bells in ringing order, so as to ring for the occasion. The gudgeons and brasses of the bells were in a very worn condition, and had been condemned some months ago, by the Vicar and Churchwardens, as being unsafe for ringing. At a meeting of parishioners of Painswick, held in the parish room, it was unanimously agreed that the rehangings of the church bells would form a fitting memorial of Her Majesty's Jubilee, and with the aid of subscriptions the church authorities were enabled to have the whole of the lower ten rehung, new stocks being placed where necessary, and the whole having new gudgeons and brasses fitted to them. The new gudgeons were fitted in the stocks and turned in their position in the lathe, so that both sides are perfectly central, and work with great accuracy. The tenor has been raised in the stock four inches, and has a new clapper affixed to it. The "go" is beautiful, ringing as easily as any of the smaller bells, and is a decided improvement. The two trebles of the twelve, which have always been a source of annoyance on account of their not being in unison with the other ten, will, it is expected, be soon recast to their proper tune, the correct note for them has in fact been taken by the firm of Mears and Stainbank. As it was quite uncertain whether the bells would be ringable by Thursday, the 11th, no notice could be given in "THE BELL NEWS" for fear of disappointment, but Messrs. Morris finished at 8 o'clock on the night before, and the local company raised the bells in peal and rang a 448 of Grandsire Triples. A. Trigg, 1; A. Gwinnet, 2; W. Ryland, 3; W. Hale (conductor), 4; J. Wager, 5; D. Marment, 6; G. Smith, 7; T. Wright, 8. Also a 168 standing as before. The bells were left up during the night and it had been arranged that three of the Painswick Youths and five of the Stroud Society should attempt Taylor's bob-and-single peal in the morning at nine o'clock, but as only four of the Stroud Company came, it had to be abandoned, though with great regret, by the Painswick Youths. While waiting, two plain courses of Grandsire Doubles, two of Minor, and one of Triples, was tapped on the handbells by W. Hale, and one course with the bells retained in hand. W. Hale, 1-2; W. Sloman, 3-4; G. Latham, 5-6; F. Stephens, 7-8. The tower bells were then pulled off and a start made for a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples, but after forty-five minutes ringing it came to grief. A. Trigg, 1; W. Sloman, 2; C. King, 3; W. Hale, 4; J. Wager, 5; G. Latham (conductor), 6; F. Stephens, 7; G. Smith, 8. Another start was made, and a well-struck quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was brought round in 52 mins., standing as before, with the exception of D. Marment at the 5th. On the opening of the exhibition at 2 o'clock, another touch of Grandsire Triples (896 changes). A. Trigg, 1; A. Gwinnet, 2; D. Marment, 3; W. Hale (conductor), 4; J. Wager, 5; G. Latham, 6; F. Stephens, 7; J. Powell, 8. Afterwards the company adjourned to the "New Inn" where the inner man was attended to, and some excellent tunes and courses were rung on the handbells, retained in hand. Another move was made to the tower, when several plain courses were rung to give the young members a pull. The company then visited the exhibition, and at half-past eight the ten bells were rung in the Queen's changes and fired, and also fired down. On Sunday morning, August 14th, for Divine Service, some plain leads were rung, and after service a 448 Grandsire Triples. A. Trigg, 1; A. Gwinnet, 2; W. Ryland, 3; W. Hale (conductor), 4; J. Wager, 5; J. Everatt, 6; G. Smith, 7; J. Powell, 8.

There has not been a peal rung on these bells for more than twenty years, although several attempts have at different times been made, which have had to be abandoned on account of the bad "go" of the bells, but the members of the Painswick company trust now that the difficulty is overcome, their friends will take the opportunity of paying them a visit and scoring a peal. The society will make their visitors as welcome as possible, and assist them in anything they can if short-handed. If any society should contemplate a visit, who are unacquainted with the Vicar or Churchwardens, and do not know to whom to send any communication a letter will be received with pleasure and an answer returned by Mr. William Hale, The Rookery, Painswick, leader of the local company, who will also meet intending visitors at the tower, and see that all is in readiness for them.

THE ST. MARY'S SOCIETY, BLETCHINGLEY, SURREY.

The Annual outing of the St. Mary's Society took place on Monday, August 8th, Brighton being the place selected. The choir, joining in the excursion, with friends, to the number of about eighty, started from Red Hill by the 8.20 a.m. train, arriving at Brighton at 9.30. The ringers were met by Mr. Jay, the steeple-keeper of St. Peter's, and they made their way to that church, where some short touches of Grandsire and Union Triples being rung by the Bletchingley band, and a 576 of Treble Bob Major, with some of the Brighton band. L. Killick, 1; G. F. Attree, Esq., 2; F. Smith, 3; J. Bashford, 4; H. Weston, 5; G. King, 6; T. Boniface, 7; N. Hawkins (conductor), 8. Also a course of Stedman Triples. H. Weston, 1; G. King, 2; J. Bashford, 3; T. Boniface, 4; J. Jay, 5; G. F. Attree, 6; N. Hawkins, 7; W. Mayne, 8. The company then made their way to St. Paul's church, where they had been invited to have a pull by the steeple-keeper, Mr. Bennett. The day's ringing was brought to a close with touches of Grandsire and Oxford Bob Triples, and one of Bob Major. The party then broke up and went in different directions to enjoy themselves. After spending a most pleasant day they made their way to the station, and starting from Brighton at 9.30 they arrived at Red Hill in about an hour, all well-pleased with their day's outing. The members of this Society wish, through the medium of this paper, to thank all those that helped to make their outing such a pleasant one.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Monday, August 1st, eight members of the Stanstead branch of the Essex Association, paid a visit to Ickleton, Cambridgeshire, and rang on the fine toned peal of six a 720 of Plain Bob Minor, in 27 mins. J. Cavill, 1; I. Hammond, 2; J. Luckey, 3; H. Prior, 4; I. Cavill, 5; C. Prior (conductor), 6. And a short touch of College Single, and Bob Minor. I. Hammond, 1; W. Watts, 2; I. Cavill, 3; J. Luckey, 4; G. Prior, 5; H. Prior (conductor), 6. Tenor 22 cwt. On their way homeward they called at Newport (Essex), and rang on this fine-toned peal of six a 720 of Single Minor in 26½ mins. J. Cavill, 1; J. Luckey, 2; I. Hammond, 3; G. Prior, 4; H. Prior, 5; C. Prior (conductor), 6. And 720 Oxford Treble Bob Minor, in 27 mins. G. Prior, 1; W. Watts, 2; I. Hammond, 3; J. Luckey, 4; I. Cavill, 5; H. Prior (conductor), 6.

THE ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY, CAMBERWELL.

On Monday, August 15th, the members of this Society had an afternoon's outing at Bromley, Kent, where, by the kindness of the Vicar and churchwardens, they rang several touches upon the bells in the tower of the parish church. After the first touch the party adjourned to the Coffee Palace, where justice was done to an ample knife and fork tea, which was capitally served and much enjoyed by all the ringers, who after a short stroll in the recreation ground, again ascended the church tower and rang some touches of Grandsire Doubles, with the 4th, 6th, and 8th behind. The following members were present. Messrs. R. C. and E. French, H. Flower (Secretary), J. Hayward, T. Windley, H. H. Peters, T. Warwick, and J. E. Davis. The weather was very fine, and the outing greatly enjoyed by all who took part in it, the unavoidable absence of some of the members being much regretted.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.—DISTRICT MEETING AT LEWES.

THE Members of this Association held their third meeting for the present year, on Monday, August 1st, at the county town of Lewes, and from its central position attracted a considerable number of ringers, the following branches being represented: Alfriston, Arundel, Brighton, Chailey, Crawley, Eastbourne, Henfield, Southover, Ringmer, Steyning, Warnham, Westham, and several other independent members and visitors were also present. The proceedings commenced at the tower of Southover church (the only one out of the seven parish churches of Lewes which possesses a peal of bells) at 10 o'clock, when touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, Kent Treble Bob and Plain Bob Major were brought round. During the morning and afternoon bands were formed to visit Ringmer and Seaford. A list of touches rung at each place is given below. A capital luncheon was served at the "Bear Hotel" at 1.30, when about forty members were present. A larger number attended the business meeting which followed. One new branch, the nine ringers connected with the Lymminster Parish church, was elected. A discussion then followed upon the question of scoring peals for the challenge bell, several members suggesting that a branch ringing several methods, but a smaller number of peals should take precedence to another band scoring a larger number of peals, but all in one or two methods. It was decided on being put to the vote that for the present year the greatest number of peals should secure the bell, and the matter was referred to the sub-committee to prepare a scale for scoring peals in different methods for next year. It was then decided to hold the next district meeting at Warnham, during October or November, and votes of thanks were accorded to the rector of Southover, the vicar of Ringmer and Seaford, and the churchwardens of the respective churches, for kindly allowing the members the use of the bells, and to the Rev. J. Buttick, vicar of Alfriston, for kindly presiding at the luncheon and meeting.

The following touches were brought round:

At Southover church, a 504 Stedman Triples, in 18 mins. G. Mash (London), 1; L. W. Whiting, 2; J. Jay, 3; C. Tyler, 4; G. F. Attree, 5; G. Williams (conductor), 6; S. Brooker, 7; W. Chamberlain, 8. A 504 Grandsire Triples, in 17 mins. C. Nash, 1; J. Reilly, 2; G. Staples, 3; W. Chamberlain, 4; Rev. R. F. Tompkins, 5; H. Weston (conductor), 6; C. Tyler, 7; G. Mash, 8. And 288 Kent Treble Bob Major. J. Jay, 1; J. W. Whiting, 2; C. Mash, 3; H. Weston, 4; G. F. Attree, 5; C. Tyler, 6; S. Brooker, 7; G. Williams (conductor), 8. And a 518 Grandsire Triples, in 18 mins. Newnham, 2; W. Wadey, 3; T. Wood, 4; W. Short, 5; T. Hart, 6; H. Weston (conductor), 7; H. Cornwall, 8. A 504 Grandsire Triples, in 18 mins. Jesse Neve, 1; H. A. Bennett, 2; T. Colbran, 3; J. Reilly, 4; G. C. Hammond, 5; G. F. Attree (conductor), 6; T. Hart, 7; T. Lewis, 8. Also 576 Kent Treble Bob Major, in 22 mins. J. Jay, 1; J. Reilly, 2; W. Wadey, 3; C. Mash, 4; W. Short, 5; G. C. Hammond, 6; H. Weston, 7; T. Scarlett (Walthamstow, conductor), 8. At Ringmer church, a 504 Grandsire Triples, in 18 mins. A. A. Fuller, 1; G. Thwaites, 2; W. Siggs, 3; W. Wadey, 4; F. Harding, 5; T. Hart (conductor), 6; T. Lewis, 7; P. Hodges, 8. A quarter-peal of Stedman was also attempted but came to grief after ringing about 1000 changes. At Seaford church, 350 Grandsire Triples. A. A. Fuller, 1; H. A. Bennett, 2; J. E. Worsell, 3; J. Fox, 4; G. Biggerstaff, 5; G. Thwaites, 6; T. Lewis, 7; J. Mockett, 8. Also 168 in the same method.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting of this Association will take place at Gloucester, on Tuesday, August 30th, 1887. Divine Service in the Cathedral at 10.30. Short sermon by the Rev. J. P. A. Bowers. Business meeting in chapter room immediately afterwards. Dinner at the "Spread Eagle," 1 p.m. at 1s. per head to all who have sent notice to the Hon. Secretary by August 25th; 2s. 6d. to others, and to hon. members, who are also kindly asked to give notice. All members and friends are earnestly requested to attend Divine Service. The following belfries will be open to the Association: Cathedral of St. Peter, 8; St. Mary de Crypt, 8; St. Michael's, 8; St. Mary de Lode, 6; St. Nicholas, 6.

OUTING OF THE ST. MARY'S SOCIETY, BLACKHILL.

This Society had their annual outing on Saturday, August 6th, the trysting place this time being Hexham. Unfortunately, however, the Abbey bells were not placed at their disposal, for some reason best known to the authorities. Nevertheless they spent a most enjoyable day in examining places of interest in the old Abbey, and surrounding district, boating, etc. Tea was provided by Mrs. Richardson, of "The Bush," to which upwards of thirty sat down in right good earnest. Tea over, and the cloth removed, a pleasant hour was spent to the tune of piano, concertina, and the octave of handbells, mixed with a few songs by those present. Much credit is due to Mr. J. Moore, Secretary, and Mr. A. Nicholson (conductor), for the able manner in which they carried out the arrangements.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of the above Association was held at Newchurch, on Saturday, August 6th. Various companies were present, and rung at intervals during the afternoon and evening. A meeting was also held in the School at 6.30. Mr. J. T. Stott was elected chairman, and gave a cordial welcome to the visitors. Mr. Redford addressed the members, and returned thanks to the Rossendale company for joining the Lancashire Association in such large numbers. Mr. A. E. Wreaks and Mr. Nutter also addressed the meeting. On the motion of Mr. Curtis a vote of thanks was proposed to the vicar and churchwardens, and to the local company, which was suitably acknowledged by the chairman.

A curious bequest, which has had effect given to it by Mr. Justice Chitty, will no doubt attract the attention of many a poor curate besides the six who will be selected. Miss Ann Ball, of Islington, gave by her will numerous charitable legacies, including "to six episcopal curates of the Church of England whose respective incomes are less than £100 per annum, and who shall have each more than four children, the sum of £50 each. Such curates to be selected by my executors. In allowing the legacy on Thursday Mr. Justice Chitty gave the executors twelve months in which to select the recipients.

THE LAST PLACE ON THE EARTH.—A visitor describes Bruni as perhaps "the last place on the face of the earth;" and it is perhaps not accusing the world of too great geographical ignorance to say that there are not a hundred people in England who ever heard of it, though it is the capital of a kingdom. The whole city is built on piles in the usual Malay fashion—over the river or creek, which here expands into broad shallows. This system is very convenient for the lazy inhabitants, who simply raise the flimsy bamboo floor, and shoot all rubbish into the river beneath. It is also handy for those ladies who wish a flirtation without the risk of absenting themselves. The suitor paddles up under the house, when the signal of a white rag hung out informs him that the coast is clear: occasionally, also, elopements are effected by the same means. All locomotion in Bruni is effected by means of canoes—the gondolas of the city—and there is a market held, in which the shops are goods-laden praus and canoes. There is not a path outside the city in any direction. On every side is trackless jungle. How the people all manage to live is a mystery, for a little rice will suffice a Malay for a whole week. One might be driven to suppose that, like the Scilly Islanders, they subsist by washing each others clothes; but the general dinginess of the cotton garments forbids this hypothesis. The Chinese are the chief traders in the city, and though roguish, and often worse, they are infinitely the best class of the inhabitants—energetic, reasonable, liberal in their household arrangements, and altogether different personages from their countrymen at home. Many of them are intermarrying with the natives, and as a result of these marriages a new race is arising in Borneo, and other of the Malay islands, though there are grounds for believing that at an earlier date there were Chinese colonies as far south as the Malay Archipelago. But so bad is the Government that even the patient Celestials find it difficult to live in Bruni. Crime, if committed by the relations or followers of a high noble, is unpunished, as no one will act against him from fear of the enmity of his chief. Not long ago, a noted thief lived quite unpunished in the city, and was even received in "good society," though his character was perfectly well known. When in want of funds he made visits of inspection to the different shops, where he was treated with a kind of "familiar deference," though for days afterwards the Chinese lived in a state of nervous suspense until the coup came off—From "The Countries of the World" for August.

IS NONCONFORMITY DECLINING?

A correspondent of The Guardian says that the question is being anxiously discussed in some of the Nonconformist papers whether Nonconformity is advancing or not, and the answer is not by any means doubtful. From the statistics and reports of the various Dissenting communities it appears certain that they are all, with the one striking exception of the Salvation Army, either standing still or losing ground. The returns of the Methodist bodies for the year ending in March last have just been given in, and they are singularly alike in character. The Wesleyans have 412,287 members, a decrease of 71; the Primitive Methodists report 191,663, increase of 2; the New Connexion has 30,096 members, an increase of 182; whilst the Methodist Free Churches return a decrease of 448. The net result is that there are in the different Methodist communities of Great Britain 335 fewer members than there were twelve months ago. This is not a large number, it is true, but it is on the wrong side, and it comes at the close of the year which has been marked by an unusual amount of special effort, amongst the Wesleyans particularly, to gather in new members by means of revival missions. In the older Nonconformist bodies the same tale is being told. The last Baptist statistics showed a decrease in the total membership. From the Congregationalists no figures can be obtained, but all the indications of their numerical condition point in the direction of decline. The British Weekly said in a recent issue:—

The serious decrease of some of our Independent congregations in north and east London is becoming a grave matter. One North London church, formerly large and influential, presents a dreary account of empty pews, although admirably situated in the midst of a dense population. In the east the minister of one of the largest churches, and some time ago one of the most vigorous is said to have had to pay a considerable part of the year's expenses out of his own pocket.

The complaint of the Nonconformist that, "Nonconformity in Cardiff has not, in recent years, made satisfactory progress," is well known, and is doubtless applicable to many other towns. In Scotland it is said that the Free Church, which, with a membership of 331,242 has just reported an increase of 678 for the year, and the United Presbyterian Church are not keeping pace with the growth of the population. To these figures one most significant fact may be added, for which we are indebted to the admirable determination of the British Weekly to present Nonconformity as it really is. On April 29th, it said:—

We are told that every profession in this country is crowded, and that it becomes more and more difficult to push a way through the thick ranks. Is there not one striking exception? We mean the Nonconformist ministry. The experience in all the Nonconformist bodies is that when positions of first class importance become vacant it is most difficult to fill them satisfactorily. Prolonged vacancies are becoming the rule, and while there is no want of men of mark and likelihood amongst younger Nonconformist ministers, there is hardly in any Church the clear promise of adequate successors to the present leaders.

This decline appears to extend over the last two years. Up to that time, as the figures published in the Guardian twelve months ago conclusively show, Nonconformity, taken as a whole, was keeping pace in its increase with the growth of population. Now, according to its own adherents, "it is barely holding its own," while, according to the same authority, "in England and Scotland the State Churches are increasing in numbers." How is this most important change to be accounted for? The British Weekly sets it down to various causes:—The work of the Dissenters is not so directly aggressive as it ought to be; some chapels are placed in the midst of a decreasing population which under present circumstances is over supplied with places of worship; the true Gospel is not being preached in some pulpits; but most of all "the separate existence of so many denominations" is of doubtful justification; and it concludes that "the question of Church union is the first problem which will have to be faced by the Christian wisdom of our time." The United Methodist Free Church's Magazine, in acknowledging the present condition of that body to be "unsatisfactory," sets it down to the want of brave strong leaders and new methods of work, such as the Church of England is fearlessly employing.

The Methodist Times, in commenting on this statement, kindly suggests that now "the Wesleyan Connexion has been reformed and liberalised, the raison d'être of Free Methodism is gone."

The Christian World thinks that the pew-rent system and the want of more bright and lively preaching is largely answerable for the lack of success. It is, however, too soon to dogmatise. We must wait and see whether this decrease be a passing phase of Nonconformity or the beginning of a period of serious decline.

THE BANGOR DIOCESAN CONFERENCE.

This Conference was held on Thursday week, at the Penrhyn Hall, Bangor, under the presidency of the Bishop. The following resolution on the tithe question was proposed by Mr. J. R. Williams (Treffos):—

"That this conference of the diocese of Bangor, consisting of the clergy and lay delegates, desire to express its thanks to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the firmness with which they have resisted the demand for the reduction of the tithe rent-charge, upholding the principle that tithes are a first charge upon the land, and as such are due to the titheowner to the amount settled by the Act of Commutation, subject only to the fluctuation regulated from year to year by law. Also that the thanks of the conference are due to those landowners in this diocese who have assisted in allaying the present agitation by recognising their responsibility, and themselves paying the tithes chargeable on their property."

He considered that the present agitation had done incalculable good to the Church in Wales. The inquiry which was being held had brought out the truth. Every shilling allowed by the clergy in abatement went into the pocket of the landowner, whom in these hard times the clergy could not afford to assist. Alterations might be necessary in the tithe laws, and he thought that the period of seven years was too long for calculating averages. He hoped the landowners would not oppose the Tithe Bill, for they could not show whether they were true and honest friends to the Church. Mr. Powell seconded, and the Rev. Eleazer Williams supported the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

AUGUST GARDENING.—In August our single dahlias will be at their gayest. These and all flowers that require stakes must now be properly secured; the chrysanthemums, for example, will require this attention, for as the autumn comes gradually on, so also will these showy flowers, the last hope, for the most part, of our out-door flower-show. Then, again, for those who like to raise bulbous-rooted plants, this is a good month for sowing such seed, which can be done as soon as it is ripe; the seed, for example, of all sorts of lilies, hyacinths, tulips, crocuses, &c., may now be sown either in large pots or in the open ground; if in the last named, take care that the seed be not afterwards disturbed. Have it well raked in, and a little light earth sifted over the whole. If you sow in large pots, place them in a cool frame until the seeds germinate in the spring. August is also the month for that interesting operation of layering out carnations and picotees, and though this should not be done until the bloom has passed its prime, yet it is important to have the layering done early in the season, as unless the shoots get well rooted before they are cut off, they will run a chance of being "cut off" in a very different way by the severity of the winter. Then, again, in the rose garden, budding in a warm and thundery season may still go on, but a constant and careful examination of those stocks that were budded last month should be made; and most important is it for the first two months after budding that all growth be rubbed off the stock. Failing this attention, your buds will only fall off altogether.—From "Cassell's Family Magazine" for August.

SURF BOATS OF MADRAS.—Madras stands close upon the shore, and is unfavourably situated, either for the purposes of commerce or the requirements of a capital. The coast forms nearly a straight line, swept by the current above mentioned; and until the construction of the new harbour, with its double piers, there was neither port for shipping nor island to break the tremendous surge. The craft of the country, generally called masulaks, or accommodation boats, which are used for crossing this dangerous surf, are singularly formed. They are large and light, with a bench at one end, cushioned and curtained, so that passengers may be kept dry while the wild surf is breaking all round them. An European boat, enduring one-half of the concussions which these masulaks hourly undergo unharmed, would infallibly be torn to pieces.—From "Cassell's Illustrated History of India" for August.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 20, 1887.

ON all sides we hear of the extreme heat with which we have of late been favored—or afflicted, as the case may be. Man is to some considerable extent, so far as our climate is concerned, a very dissatisfied being. When a long period of fine weather occurs; then he wishes for the rain to fall, and scarcely has that made its appearance before he again sighs for the appearance of SOL's powerful and efficacious rays. If weather could be obtained to order, it is very doubtful that universal satisfaction would follow, so many different inclinations and necessities with respect to the climatic conditions are there.

It goes without saying that the weather has a most important influence upon the practice of ringing. Especially has this been exemplified during the past few weeks. The paucity of reports during the above period has never been equalled, we believe, since the establishment of our journal, and if we remember aright, never did "THE BELL NEWS" appear till last week without a record appearing therein of at least one peal of 5040 changes or upwards. This is to be accounted for in a great measure by the hot weather. The ringing-chambers of very many steeples have become unbearable, which proper ventilation would in some degree have prevented. Church towers, so far as the masonry is concerned, are frequently of such a thickness as to defy, to a certain extent, both cold and heat. But how frequently is it that the provision—or we ought to say want of provision—in the ringing-chamber neutralises such effects. A low ceiling to the room, small casement windows not made to open, and the necessity for some sort of artificial light, turns the apartment provided for the ringers into a kind of fiery furnace, impossible to be borne for any length of time, and not without some elements of danger to the health of its occupants. Where the apartment is properly built, and efficiently ventilated, ringing may be practised and enjoyed almost in defiance of all kind of weather, either cold or hot.

As we write, however, a most pleasant change in the atmosphere has arisen, which will be welcome not only to ringers, but to those whose anxiety with respect to the cultivation of crops has been shown during the season of drought. We, therefore, are not the only ones benefitted by the change. The grateful and copious showers now descending upon the parched earth, accompanied with intervals of glorious sunshine, will fill many hearts with joy and thankfulness. Meetings which many of our friends have put off; attempts at peals which have been postponed till the excessive heat had passed, will be brought forward once more, and dates fixed for their achievement. Those who from the same cause have deferred their day's outing will enter into the necessary arrangements with increased vigour, and when the day arrives, enjoy the few hours' innocent relaxation none the less because the month happens to be September instead of July. Under such circumstances the heat of the past few days will be entirely forgotten. And so we go on. We shall very soon be compelled to trudge to practice through November fog and December sleet, grumbling all the while at the weather's inclemency. But anon the snow and frost of December will set in, and we shall be found congratulating each other on its seasonableness.

THE TITHE WAR IN WALES.

THE REV. WILLIAM VENABLES-WILLIAMS, rector of Colwyn Bay, and chairman of the bench of magistrates for the Petty Sessional Division of Conway, makes a serious charge in the local papers against the anti-tithe residents in his parish. He asserts that the mysterious destruction of his church by fire in October last was the act of an incendiary. He alleges that the evidence in his possession, though, perhaps not yet quite sufficient for a legal conviction, leaves no doubt whatever as to the guilt of the individual. He had also received a letter threatening to blow up the vicarage with dynamite unless he conceded a reduction of 25 per cent. Mr. Venables-Williams concluded by alleging that shortly before the Mochdre riots a quantity of lime and two casks of gas tar were taken to a Welsh farmhouse, and that of these materials solid balls were made for the purpose of maiming the police, some of whom were confidentially warned not to go Mochdre.

NAPIER'S WITCHCRAFT.—The greatest inmate of Merchiston Castle, near Edinburgh, was John Napier, the famous mathematician (born 1550, died 1617). As was often the case in those days the people in the neighbourhood looked upon his lonely studies with much suspicion, and a black cock which he possessed was regarded as his agent in the working of marvels. Napier, who no doubt, rather enjoyed the terrors of which he was the cause, used to tell these ignorant folk that this barn-door fowl would detect any of their secrets. On one occasion, the story goes, he turned the silly fears to good account. Having lost some valuables, he ordered his servants to go one by one into a dark room in the castle tower and stroke the cock, telling them that it would crow when touched by the hand of the guilty person. The cock was silent during the process, but Napier found that the hand of one of the servants was quite free from the soot which had been smeared on the bird's feathers. This was the thief. He, of course, had believed the cock would really crow, and his safest plan, therefore, was not to touch it at all. As to the rest, knowing they were innocent, they did not hesitate to stroke the bird. By this ingenious device, then, Napier succeeded in discovering who had stole his valuable articles, and in freeing at the same time the other servants from all suspicion.—From "Little Folks" Magazine for August.

WAKEFIELD BISHOPRIC FUND.—The Guardian publishes a letter from the Bishop of Ripon embodying an appeal on behalf of this fund. It appears that about £9000 is still wanting to complete the scheme. A generous subscriber, Mr. W. Balme, has given £500 towards this sum, in addition to his previous munificence; and the Bishop promises another £250. The Earl of Devon, as Chairman of the additional Home Bishopricks Fund, also makes an appeal for the establishment of the new Northern See.

THE ENFIELD (MIDDLESEX) PARISH RINGERS.

The annual outing of the Enfield parish ringers took place on Saturday, July 30th. A cheap fast train from Liverpool Street at 7.15 a.m. being advertised to run to Yarmouth on that day, advantage was taken of the opportunity, and accordingly at 5.37 the company started from the Enfield Station, reaching Liverpool Street in ample time to catch the train to Yarmouth, which steamed out of the station at 7.35. After a most delightful ride, the famous sea-side town was reached at 10.50. Arrangements having been made for dining, the company made for the market, one of the finest in England. The market cross has gone, but a stone cross on the ground marks the place where, in days long gone by, bulls were baited, troublesome wives were whipped at the cart tail, and where in Cromwell's time banns of marriage were read, no less than 187 couples being published between the 1st February, 1653, and June 6th, 1657. Leaving the market, which was in a full swing of business, a visit was paid to the parish church of St. Nicholas, the largest parish church in the kingdom. The building is rich in memorial windows, those to the memory of Sarah Martin (a poor dressmaker), and to C. S. T. Mills, Esq., being very magnificent. Immediately underneath the latter is a most curious seat, formed of the base of the skull of a huge whale supposed to have come ashore at Caster, in 1582. The pulpit is a most elaborate work of art, carved figures at the lower part representing Jonah, Daniel, and seven other familiar Old Testament worthies, while the upper figures represent John the Baptist, St. Peter, St. Paul, and the four evangelists. The total cost of this most beautiful piece of workmanship was, we were informed £579 16s. The ancient reading desk, the vinegar Bible, etc., were viewed with much interest, and after the secretary had inscribed his name in the visitor's book, on behalf of his fellow ringers, the party left the church, much regretting that more time could not be spared to linger there still longer. A move was then made to the beach, and after a dip, the usual amusements to be had were freely indulged in. At 2.15 the company were assembled at the dining rooms of Mr. Coleman, near the Town Hall, discussing a most excellent dinner. This having been satisfactorily accomplished, a move was again made for the beach, where the few hours left were most merrily spent, and at 6.30 the company with very great regret turned their faces towards the station, Mr. Boswell, the foreman, being a great epicure in all that appertains to the finny tribe, purchasing on the way a box of real Yarmouth bloaters. The homeward journey began at 7.40, but owing to numerous stoppages, this train evidently being one of the noted fast trains that are advertised not to stop at the stations, but do so just outside, it was midnight by the time Stratford was reached. The last Enfield train from Liverpool Street, had by this time left, but luckily there was the 12.5 down main line to Ponders End. This the party availed themselves of, and at 1 a.m. reached this station. Now commenced the rather long walk for the somewhat weary travellers, but, buckling to the task, the ringers strode merrily along, Mr. Boswell manfully shouldering his box of real live Yarmouth, which however, seemed to get heavier, necessitating a constant shifting from shoulder to shoulder, but with the prospect of such a breakfast before him, what cared our foreman? Sad to relate, however, on arriving home and raising the lid to display his treasure, the box was found to contain nothing but coal, paper, straw, etc., evidently shipped at Chelmsford. Great was the disappointment, but our "old Charley" dearly loves a joke, and when the real fish were discovered in the belfry the same morning tied up in a very neat parcel, he was very ready to acknowledge that "they were all very fine and large." So ended the ringers' outing, a day that will ever be looked back upon with unmixed pleasure, and the parish ringers take this opportunity of tendering their sincere thanks to those parishioners of Enfield whose kind contributions enabled them to carry so pleasant a day to such a successful conclusion.—Local Paper.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The members of this Association are invited by the President to a garden party at Duffield Bank on Saturday, September 3rd, from 2 to 6 o'clock. The ten bells of the parish church will be at the disposal of ringers during the afternoon. Members' friends who belong to other Associations will also be welcome.

HERE AND THERE.

In common with many of my fellow-readers of our paper, I read the remarks of the Rev. F. E. Robinson relative to the dispute between the ringer and his vicar with very great interest, and as a correspondent once said, "with the most uncommon satisfaction." Could all disagreement be thus arranged what a world this would be. And it could be arranged in this or a similar manner if the leading spirits of the Guilds were to interest themselves about it, and go to work the right way. The writer who signs himself "Ager Forum" hits the nail on the head. If his ideas could be carried out, good-bye to the proverbial despotism of those tyrants and ignoramuses known as "Jacks-in-office." Their race is well-nigh run.

The "model" belfries of Wiltshire must be a source of infinite fun to my friend Mr. Jerram. There is no doubt he revels in this kind of thing, and he is just the man to make the most of it. To prate of belfry reform where there are only three bells is rather good. How J. R. J. must have laughed, to be sure.

Speaking of belfry reform and the spread of the art of change-ringing by different associations, the voluntary band at St. Swithin's, East Retford, in union with the Shireoaks and Work-sop and other ringers in North Nottinghamshire deserve a compliment for their pluck in organising, of their own free will, a ringing association for that division of their county, which possesses some splendid rings of bells, notably one of ten, several of eight, and many of six. The Dukes of Newcastle and Portland, with the Bishop of Southwell, are said to be patrons of this association, and if the clergy of the district evince an interest in the same, it may be expected to prosper as it deserves.

In my opinion, we don't hear often enough of the doings of our brother-strings on the other side of the world, so that the "News from Australia" published last week is very acceptable, and also very interesting. What are the ringers about in New Zealand, where they have a peal of ten? Wake up, some of you people over the way there. Can't you go in for the greatest length of Stedman or Grandsire Caters? Want a bob-caller or a tenor-man, do you? Let me know; because there's an individual in the old country who can call anything, and everything, and ring all the bells himself. That is to say, he has never called anything very difficult, not even such a simple matter as a peal of Stedman Triples off the treble, but he knows he could do it. He evidently can't get the opportunity here. The antipodes is the place for him, without a doubt, but even there I am afraid he couldn't rest. He would soon be wanting to ring a peal in Terra del Fuego or Spitzbergen.

It would have been a capital "get" for the "Melbournians" if they could have secured the peal they attempted on the Jubilee day. "The first peal out of the British Islands!" How well that sentence would have looked on a peal-board. This "first peal" business is becoming a nuisance here. But "the first peal in the Colonies" I am sure all would excuse.

"Forty-five years since I had a turn." * * * "I had a brother who was all there at it." The name of the individual who uttered the above in that far off tower on Jubilee morning bears a striking likeness to that of the hero of the once famous peal of Stedman Cinques. The period is a long one to go without a pull, but the desire to do so shows the love for the science that must once have reigned in our friend's bosom. It would be interesting to many of our readers to know if T. and J. Dwight are brothers, if so, has forty-five years elapsed without a return of the former to the mother country? while if our Editor will kindly give us a portrait of the latter and a history of his ringing career, he will much oblige his numerous readers, and earn the lasting gratitude of
A NEW MAN.

ANTWERP.

[From a Correspondent.]

The English visitor on arriving at this famous old Belgic city will inevitably be attracted to the Cathedral. If he should happen to be a lover of the fine arts, he will be anxious to see within the edifice that masterpiece of Rubens, "The Descent from the Cross," which is to be found on the wall of the south transept; similarly hung in the north transept is the beautiful but less famous picture of the "Elevation of the Cross." The fee to see these pictures is one franc, but on Thursday morning and Sunday they can be seen for nothing, thanks to the liberal thoughtfulness of the Antwerp municipality. The Cathedral itself is one of the finest Gothic structures in Europe, with a roof supported by 125 pillars, and a magnificent spire, which viewed from a short distance, has the appearance of Mechlin lace. From this lofty spire, frequent carillons are rung—five minutes before every hour and half-hour—and it is said that on the 99 bells which hung here, any known musical composition can be played.

The Cathedral is dedicated to Our Lady, and has fourteen side chapels, all containing works of art, more or less interesting, but in the chapel of St. Antony is a window specially interesting to the English tourist, as it represents the wedding of Henry the Seventh with Elizabeth of York. Visitors can freely walk about, except during the hours of Divine Service, and they will do well to notice the beautiful work in black and white behind the high altar, which cannot easily be distinguished from the surrounding sculptured marble. At a charge of 75c. for one person, and a franc for two, visitors can ascend the clock-tower, from the summit of which a noble view can be obtained. Immediately in front of the tower, in the square, the visitor will see the famous well of Quentin Matsys. The cover of this is a splendid piece of wrought iron work, hammered by the smith himself who, as all know, became afterwards a more famous painter, having forsaken the hammer for the palette and the brush, in order to win the love of one of Antwerp's maidens. A stone let into the Cathedral wall close by commemorates this pleasing episode of the early history of the town.

Near this stone and immediately at the base of the tower will be found another stone forming part of the pavement, on which will be seen certain marks made by the insertion of small pieces of metal. This is to indicate the exact spot on which a workman fell from the summit of the towering height above. According to popular tradition the metal pieces show how fearfully mangled the body was by its fall, the number of pieces being the same as the number of pieces into which the body was broken. "A death's head and cross bones" let into the base of the Cathedral wall is said to have under them a record of the incident, but age has rendered the lettering indecipherable.

Next in interest to the Cathedral, perhaps, come the churches, and as these lie close to each other the visitor can soon do the round of them. The first in importance is the church of St. Jacques, which has a venerable, imposing looking tower. The building is of later Gothic style, and contains pictures by Rubens, Vandyck, Otto Venius, etc. There are here some very fine statuary and a splendid organ. Next the church of St. Paul can be visited. This was built by Dominicans on the site of an ancient church. Visitors will do well to note the splendid entrance, and inside they will be charmed with the sculptured woodwork.

The tourist must not leave this church without seeing the famous Calvary, intended, according to the notions of former times, to excite feelings of religious devotion, but now inspiring little more than curiosity even in believers.

The Church of St. Charles Borromée, which lies midway between the Museum and the Cathedral is only interesting as furnishing an example of the architectural ability of Rubens. Nearly all the interior was destroyed by fire in 1718, so that there is little inside to tempt the visitor. Immediately opposite is the public library, and in front of this building is a statue to Henry Conscience, the popular Flemish novelist.

The church of St. André, Rue des Augustins, contains some good works of Art by Otto Venius, M.M. des Vos, Verlat, &c. There is here an interesting portrait of Mary Queen of Scots, by Forbes. The visitor will also do well to note the wood carving of the pulpit, and also a marble group by Verbruggen.

The church of St. Augustin, Rue des Peignes, contains a very fine altar piece by Rubens.

The church of St. Antoine also contains pictures by Rubens and Van Dyck.

There are several other churches in the town, but none of them contain objects of interest to the tourist.

The English church is in the Rue des Tannuers, a street opening out of the Place de Meir. The usual services are held on Sundays, and all visitors can easily find sittings. English Services are also held every Sunday in the Chapel of the Mariners' Institute, Avenue de Commerce. The services are intended for the seamen frequenting the port.

The transition from the churches to the printing of the Bible is an easy one, and it will be interesting to the English tourist to recall to mind that William Tyndale printed his translation of the Holy Scriptures into English at Antwerp, and that he was afterwards burnt as a heretic at Vilvorde near Brussels, A.D. 1536. The knowledge of this will make more interesting a visit to the Musée Plantin, which was once the dwelling place and business premises of the famous printer Christopher Plantin, who died here in 1589. His descendants carried on the business for upwards of two hundred years, and accumulated a perfect treasury of antique furniture, tapestries, miniatures, missals, and other interesting objects connected with printing and the fine arts. There are in the Museum no less than fourteen portraits by Rubens and two by Van Dyck. The whole was purchased by the town about ten years ago, and the treasures thrown open to the inspection of the public. The charge for admission is one franc, but it is free on Thursdays and Sundays.

Writing of Tyndale's martyrdom we shall next introduce our readers to the Old Steen, or Museum of Antiquities, which once formed part of the old castle of Antwerp. It is a fine monument of the feudal times, and a visit to its dungeons will vividly recall the horrors of the Spanish inquisition which held its tribunal within its gloomy walls. There are many interesting objects in the rooms above, if the tourist can devote time to their careful inspection. In the attic will be found the red shirt in which parricides went to execution, and immediately opposite the case containing it are the block and knife used to cut off the culprit's hand before he was led away to his doom. There is a charge for admission to the Steen, but on Thursday and Sunday all is free, except one penny each person, to defray the cost of the candle used in visiting the dungeons. On emerging from the Steen, the visitor will see a building a little nearer the town, a quadrilateral gothic structure built in red and white brick with hexagonal turrets at each corner. This is the House of the Butchers, a once powerful Corporation; and under the shade of this edifice the visitor will find himself in the centre of the old town. There are other houses belonging to the old corporations still standing in various parts of the city, the most interesting of which are those which belonged to the Hanseatic and Hessian Leagues. These will repay a visit, as they are silent witnesses of the power of the old trading guilds. The former is to be used in future for the storage of grain, and an American Elevator is now being fitted up in the interior.

A visit must be paid to the noble Town Hall, or Hotel de Ville, which was begun in the year 1560, but was burnt down at the time of the Spanish Fury in 1576. It was rebuilt in the Renaissance style and has an imposing exterior. There are inside some fine pieces of statuary by Geefs and others, and a collection of pictures by Leys (died 1869) which illustrate events in the history of Antwerp. On emerging from the town hall the visitor will see in the Grand Place a very picturesque old house of several stories in height, which is all that remains of the palace of Charles V. Leaving the Cathedral on his right the tourist can inquire for the Longue rue Neuve, where he will find the exchange or Bourse, which is a very handsome building, and if the visitor will but station himself in one of the galleries between one and two o'clock p.m., and gaze upon the surging mass below, he will behold a most impressive spectacle. When the business of the day is over he will do well to descend and inspect the maps, charts and plans which decorate the walls in a style quite unknown in England.

The visitor may quit the Bourse by the southern door, and pass on to the magnificent Place de Meir, up which he can walk and survey the exterior of the King's palace and the house of Rubens. In this same place there are other buildings of pronounced and elegant architecture. Passing the Place Teniers, where he will see the statue of the famous painter, he will reach the line of the Boulevards. These were once the limits of the city, and where now is the magnificent shaded drive nearly three miles in length, was once found the city moat.

Before leaving the town the tourist must visit the celebrated zoological gardens, which he can enter on payment of a franc. There he can inspect a magnificent collection of animals, finely housed in well laid out grounds. Bands of music frequently play, and there is a well ordered restaurant. Indeed it would be difficult to find a better place in which to lounge away the early summer evening. Here too is a fine panorama of the battle of Worth, the charge of admission to which is half a franc. Proceeding along the Boulevards either by fly (charge one and a half franc), or by tramway at a cost of twenty centimes, the visitor will arrive at the Palais de l'Industrie, where the triennial International Exhibitions are held. A visit to these beautiful grounds alone will amply repay the tourist, as he will see there, if nowhere else, how well the Belgians know how to enjoy out door life. Recreative pleasures of all kinds for young and old are to be found here. Fetes are of almost daily occurrence. Open air concerts are held twice a day in Summer, and there are frequent displays of fireworks. But the Exhibitions will naturally be the chief attraction. That of the present year is for furniture, textile fabrics, and ornamentation of parks and gardens.

In conclusion we may point out that Antwerp well deserves a visit not only on account of its own merit, but because it is an admirable centre from which to take trips or excursions into the interior of Europe. Holland is reached within an hour: Germany within six hours, and the excursionist may visit Spa, Brussels, Bruges, Ghent, and other well known places without ever being far from a part from which he may again easily reach the United Kingdom. From London, Dover, Grimsby, Hull, Newcastle, and Harwich frequent steamers run to Antwerp, and nothing can excel the passenger accommodation afforded by the steamers of the Great Eastern Railway which make a short and pleasant daily passage between Harwich and the river Scheldt.

RIGHT-HANDEDNESS.—Around the youthful pupil stand parents, nurse, preceptor all anxious that he should leave off the use of the "wrong hand," either in labour, or as a matter of courtesy. So persistent and universal is this education that some authorities have deemed the whole difference between right and left hand an affair of fashion; and that if both hands were educated alike, it would be a great gain. Nevertheless, if right-handedness be a fashion, it is all but universal, and the most ancient fashion we know. The history of writing, the evidence of language, and the drawings and tools, not only of Egyptians, Assyrians, Greeks, and Romans, but of races the memory of whose existence had passed away ere the earliest extant records had been penned, and whose rude tools, weapons, and artistic representations have been disinterred from caves, kitchen-middens, and crannogs, gives us early evidence of right-handedness. These drawings represent faces in profile, looking towards the left, just as a street Arab, unless he be left-handed, chalks them on any unoccupied surface. Such is a sketch of the mammoth, on a piece of ivory, found in the rock-shelter at La Madeline, in the Dordogne. So, also, is the reindeer, etched with great spirit and skill on bones procured from a cave near Bruniquel. Another drawing, in which an eel, two horses' heads, and what Dr. E. B. Tylor has pronounced as possibly the earliest known portrait of man, represents the implement held in the right hand. Professor Daniel Wilson has given three engravings of bronze sickles from the lake of Brienne, all constructed for right-handed men of the Bronze Period. One such handle, found in 1872 was the first example of a complete hafted instrument; and as Dr. Wilson remarks is carefully fashioned, so as to adapt it to the grasp of a very small hand, and as incapable of use by a left-handed shearer as a mower's scythe.—From "Science for All" for August.

ASSOCIATION MEMBERSHIP.

SIR,—In your issue of to-day it is hinted (by the writer of "Here and There") that the peal of Treble Bob Royal rung at Chelmsford on Whit-Monday last is not a bona fide Essex Association peal, because no public notification has been given of the election of one of the band in the tower before starting for the peal. Allow me to point out that the gentleman in question had rung in an Essex Association peal of Treble Bob Major at Galleywood, on the previous Saturday (see "THE BELL NEWS" August 6th) before, which peal I understand that he was duly elected by the members present. A report of his election, together with his subscription, has since been forwarded to me. If that election was valid, no further election was necessary two days afterwards. And it certainly is not invalidated, so far as the rules of the Essex Association are concerned, by the mere omission of the usual notification in a newspaper report of the peal.

T. L. PAPILLON,
Hon. Sec. Essex Association.

Writtle Vicarage, Chelmsford, August 13th.

A FALSE CLAIM.

SIR,—In your issue of August 6th, Mr. Charles Price, of Eccleston, published a peal of Treble Bob with the 6th bell extent all positions, and home at five course-ends. Now, Sir, this is a grave error, and one calculated to mislead readers. Mr. Price calls a bob at starting, which brings up 42356. This he terms a course-end, as I before said, in error. I hope Mr. Price will see, when pointed out to him, that this is simply a bob lead, and not a course-end, and that 34256 can be used as he uses 42356, in fact the whole peal can be given by bob leads, as in days of yore—see the Treble Bob peals in Clavis to wit. I am sure your correspondent will cheerfully relinquish his claim when he sees the peals I have made and placed beside his own, each properly described. He should try again and again if at first unsuccessful.

H. DAINS.

"USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS."

SIR,—If the peal of Superlative Surprise Major rang at Drayton, Berkshire, on Saturday, the 30th ult., be the same 6048 as published in your issue of the same date, then I wish to point to Mr. Washbrook that the same peal was composed in 1854 by the late John Cox. It was rang by Squire Proctor's band in 1855, and published on page 100 and 145 of Hubbard's 1876 edition, and again in your issue of "THE BELL NEWS" of Sep. 19, 1885, by the late J. W. Snowdon, Esq., in his lists of Surprise peals. It is reducible to 5152 changes, by omitting the last six bobs at home of any part, and was thus rang by members of the Royal Cumberlands at Redenhall, Norfolk, in the year 1877. I will give Mr. Washbrook credit for making the best possible variation the original peal is capable of, and for the correct description of the qualities contained, but as I entertain grave doubts as to the possibility of composing another original peal upon this plan, I hope the gentlemen concerned will place the composition to the credit of its author in their Association records. Allow me also to point out that the 6048 of Double Norwich Court Bob Major given by Mr. Washbrook, in your issue of August 6th, may be reduced to a various number of changes by omitting bobs at home in the last three or six courses of any part of his peal. I note the opening of a new column in "THE BELL NEWS," by "A New Man, under the title of "Here and There." This is all very well in a way, but if your assistant goes on as indicated, we shall all be laughing at one another soon, and so nobody can grumble. His remarks about long peals cause me to ponder as to the time that elapsed between the Earlsheaton performance and its denouncement, and let us venture a fervent hope that no other vicissitudes may overtake identical medals, and no other documents will be missing.

H. DAINS.

THE PEAL AT CHELMSFORD.

SIR,—In your last week's issue a correspondent signing himself "A New Man," objects to the above appearing under three headings. Were it not for the flippant style which the writer assumes (for reasons best known to himself), one would think that he was an aggrieved party in the transaction. I presume that J. Smith is the one whose name does not appear on the books of the Essex Association, but Mr. Smith was elected a member on Saturday, July 30th, previous to the peal at Galleywood. This was reported to the Secretary the following morning, being the day before the peal in question was rung. As regards the Norwich Association, as we were leaving our lodgings (in fact some of the members were already on their way to church) it was suggested that if we made two members the peal could also appear under the name of this Association. A quorum was formed, the two names were put to the meeting and carried, therefore all that was done was in conformity with the rules of the respective associations. Then as to the fresh blood imported, I may say the same members were invited that were in the attempt on Whit-Monday. Two could not attend, and their places were filled to the best advantage. I leave the black bag business for "A New Man" to explain, as it is evident by his remarks that he is quite as much "in the know" as myself in regard to this matter.

GEO. NEWSON.

SIR,—Thanks to the keen eye of "the New Man," the peal recently rung at the above place will probably not be entered in the Essex book until the worthy hon. sec. is satisfied that J. Smith is a bona fide member of the Association. Gentlemen who wish to have their peals entered in certain books should be certain that the whole band are members of the various societies in which they want their peals recorded.

HONESTY.

SIR,—I notice in your last issue some comments on the Chelmsford peal by "A New Man"? I am inclined to think that he is an "Old Un," but still too young to be in the peal referred to. He says that one of them are not to be found in the list of "Essex Members" (I suppose he means Mr. J. Smith). We know that or we should not have proposed and "elected" him in Galleywood tower previous to starting for the peal of Oxford. I am surprised, Sir, that the person who sent the report to you should have omitted to mention this matter, as it would then have satisfied the mind of the "New Man"? and others as to its being a bona fide "Essex Association peal." Your "New Man" first attacks Mr. Probationer, of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, as belonging to the "Peculiar people;" he goes on to say that when Mr. Probationer can ring a bell through a "5040" of London Surprise, he will be entitled to a free ticket, and so will the "New Man" when he can compose a peal in that method with that number of changes. And I certainly should favour a "promising" probationer with a free ticket rather than a conceited "Old Un," who happens "to be in the know;" my experience teaches me that their room is better than their company. After challenging the peal as an Association one, he says that the disappearance of the black bag from the tower was bad taste. I admit it, but as the ropes were brought from a distance, the parties concerned were compelled to take them off and replace the old ones before dark. I for one was sorry to see them taken off for the sake of our Ipswich friends, who I am sure all ringers (that know them) greatly respect. Then "new blood" was imported to avoid the "fatal blunder," Mr. Taylor was asked, but he could not come, as he was going out with his own company, and I am quite sure both him and Mr. Doran are reliable men in Treble Bob. We will "permit" The New Man to be in the know, as from what I can gather all who know him reckon he knows a lot.

Member of the Essex Association.

DOUBLE COURT AT HOLY TRINITY CHURCH, BARKING ROAD, WEST HAM.

SIR,—In the issue of "THE BELL NEWS" for August 6th, among the miscellaneous performances is a record of a 720 Double Court at the above church, which it states was rung at the first attempt. This, Sir, is an error. Dictionaries of the English language on the basis of Walker, Johnson, Webster, etc., give the word attempt "a trial." Allow me, Sir, to state that there had been five previous attempts upon the same ring for the same 720 in which three of the same band took part. This may appear rather a small matter to take up, but as our friends at West Ham are such staunch believers in infallibility, they should remember that it is dangerous for those who live in glass houses to throw stones.

B. KEEBLE.

WHY THE SIXTY COURSES OF STEDMAN CATERS SHOULD NOT BE GOT.

SIR,—There has been of late years a great deal of opinion as to whether the above number of courses "being all in course" is possible or not. I was talking to a gentleman the other day who went so far as to say that he had produced them. With your permission, Mr. Editor, I will just shew the utter impossibility of such a composition. Now with bells fixed at 2 7 8 and 9, you have the use of bobs at the 4th, 5th, and 16th sixes of each course. Any other effecting the other bells so must not be used. There are four sets of courses that can be utilized for the purpose, which are as follows:—

1st.	2nd.	3rd.	4th.
4 5 16	4 16	5 16	16 or 5 or 4
5 16	16	16	16 5 4
4 5 16	16	16	16 5 4
5 16	4 16	5 16	—
4 5 16	16	16	—
5 16	16	16	—
	4 16	5 16	—
	16	16	—

Each one of the above sets bring back rounds, with a chance of splicing in any other sets you want for your peal. Now suppose we start with the 3rd set, which is the best adapted by far, we shall have to splice our other courses in with bobs at 4. Well every bob at 4 transposes three bells, and therefore three bobs bring you back to the course from which you first call with two courses to the good, and if you splice in three 16's between each of your 4's, you get six courses to the good, and still further, if you splice in a 5 between the 16's you will have eighteen courses to the good. Suppose you find it possible to do this twice, "which of course can be done," reckoning your starting set, you would have forty-five courses, fifteen more courses wanting; well, say you splice in with 4's and 16's, you can easily get twelve more. Then by splicing in finally with 4's only, you get two more, alas! one short, and no remedy, as there are not sets of that number, thus impossible. If you use as your starting set number one, you arrive at the same difficulty, as you must use that family of bobs in courses where you first use them, and in the finish you are two courses short of sixty. And as all composers know that cutting up the courses leads to utter confusion and a much shorter finish, it is useless to say anything on those lines. By using a s, you can produce the 120 courses, but not the sixty without a s. This also applies to Double Norwich, Bob Major, Duffield Major, etc. I hope these few lines will be of interest to composers generally.

BELLS AND BELL-RINGING IN SHREWSBURY.—ST. MARY'S BELLS.

Some weeks ago we published a copy of the inscriptions on the bells of St. Alkmund's Church, in Shrewsbury. A resident of that ancient town has sent us the following extracts from various local publications which he would fain hope will be interesting to the readers of our journal. They are given under the respective headings as they first appeared.

The peal of ten bells in the steeple of St. Mary's Church is said by Mr. Pidgeon to be unsurpassed in tone by any peal in the kingdom. Owing to the altitude of their position they are heard with great advantage in the environs of the town. Mr. Pidgeon speaks of "their varying and soul-subduing melody," their "mellow cadences floating on the gale" as they peal "in sweetest numbers from the heavenward-pointed spire." Rhapsody apart, there is no doubt that St. Mary's bells may justly be considered a nulii secundi among parish church bells. They were originally a peal of eight, cast by Pack and Chapman, of London, in 1776. Of the bells of this church prior to this date there is no record beyond the fact that an old MS., dated 1594, calls St. Mary's "the pleasantest and comfortablest ring of bells in all the towne," and speaks of them being "ronge verrey solemnly to the comforte of all the hearers." The cost of the eight bells in 1776 was borne by public subscription, aided by the sale of the old bells. The Union Society, of which Mr. Ralph Vernon was then the moving spirit, was mainly instrumental in making the subscription a success. These eight bells bear the following inscriptions:—1, "We were fixed by voluntary subscription." 2, "Happiness to all worthy contributors." 3, "Success to the Worshipful Company of Drapers." 4, "Unanimity and welfare to all the suburbs of Salop." 5, "Peace and felicity to this Church." 6, "Prosperity to St. Mary's Church." 7, "Edward Blakeway, minister; John Watkiss, Edward Elsmere, Henry Kent, Churchwardens." Tenor, "May all who I summon to the grave enjoy everlasting blessings." In 1810 the parishioners held a meeting, of which the following are the minutes which I copy from a MS. appeal for subscriptions addressed to Colonel Lyster, of Rowton Castle:

"At a meeting of the parishioners of St. Mary's, held in the Vestry on July 23rd, 1810, it was resolved unanimously that the estimate of Mr. Mears for new hanging the bells be accepted, and that he be requested to execute the work as soon as possible. It was also agreed upon that two new bells be added to the present peal, provided a subscription can be raised sufficiently to defray the expense of the same, which is estimated at about 120 guineas. The gentlemen of the Committee and Churchwardens of St. Mary's, Shrewsbury, present their most respectful compliments to Colonel Lyster, and should feel themselves highly honoured and obliged if Colonel Lyster would do them the favour to sanction the above subscription with his name in whatever way he may think proper, and would please to signify to Mr. Gwyn, the Schools, Salop, as early as shall suit his convenience."

A copy of the subscription list to date is annexed, on which the following well-known Shrewsbury names of four-score years ago appear:—Ringing members of the Union Society, £10 10s; Earl Tankerville, £5 5s; Mrs. Powis (Powys), £5 5s; Hon. H. G. Bennett, £5 5s; Hon. W. Hill, £5 5s; Sir T. Jones, Bart., £5 5s; John Cotes, Esq., £5 5s; J. Kynaston Powell, Esq., £5 5s. Among lesser amounts are the names of Thomas Lloyd, Esq., Rev. Mr. Butler, Rev. J. B. Blakeway, the Saddlers' Company, Rowland Hunt, Esq., Mr. Tomlins, Mr. Burd, Mr. Carline, Rev. H. Owen, Mr. Oakley, Mr. Bowen, and many others, of some of whom the children and grandchildren live to listen to what is, as was said of the older peal three hundred years since, "the pleasantest and comfortablest ring of bells in the towne."

THE UNION SOCIETY.

The following notice of the annual meeting of this society in 1789 appeared in the then current issue of the Shrewsbury Chronicle:—

"On Tuesday the Anniversary of the Union Society was held at the "Lion Inn," where the members of the society met, and dined with the President, Mr. James Wilding. The evening was spent with that harmony and conviviality which has always distinguished that Meeting, when many loyal and constitutional toasts were drank."

OLD ST. CHAD'S CHURCH AND ITS DOWNFALL.

Extract of a letter from Thomas Telford, Esq., to a friend in Scotland. Mr. Telford, in reference to a consultation with the churchwardens of St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, writes:—"I discovered that there were large fractures in the walls, on tracing which I found that the old building was in a most shattered and decrepit condition, though until then it had scarcely been noticed. Upon this I declined giving any recommendations as to repairs of the roof, unless they would come to the resolution to secure the more essential parts, as the fabric appeared to me in a very alarming condition. I sent in a written report to the same effect. The Vestry met again, and the report was read. Popular clamour overcame my report. These fractures, exclaimed the vestrymen, have been there for time immemorial, and there were some, otherwise sensible persons, who remarked that professional men always wanted to carve out some employment for themselves, and that the whole of the necessary repairs could be done at a comparatively small expense." Mr. Telford then left the meeting, advising an adjournment to some place not likely to tumble on their heads. "Three days afterwards the church fell, and the very parts he had pointed out were those which gave way, and down tumbled the tower, forming a very remarkable ruin, which astonished and surprised the vestry, and roused them from their infatuation, though they have not recovered from the shock." I have taken the above from a MS. book, which is apparently in the handwriting of the late Mr. Pidgeon, compiled in the year 1836. I have not seen it in print, and it may be of use to collectors of materials for local history.

BELLS AND BELL RINGING IN SHREWSBURY.

A few more traces of the Union Society still linger. The late Mr. P. Cross, of Cophthorne, had in his possession an upright silver drinking cup without a handle, which formed one of a set presented to the society by one of its members, whose crest it bears (a bull's head) and the inscription "The gift of a Brother Member to the Union Society, Salop." On other parts of the cup are engraved two hands in friendly grasp and a bell. This came into its late owner's possession from Mr. Richard Cross, a prominent member of the Union Society, to whom reference will be made hereafter in noticing the history of St. Chad's bells. Another cup precisely similar is now in possession of Mr. T. Morgan, printer, of Swan-hill, Shrewsbury, who is also the possessor of the set of thirteen handbells, upon which the members of the Union Society were wont to add to the harmony of their festive meetings. Mr. Morgan's father was probably one of the last, if not the last, surviving member of the Union Society, of which, by the way, the Rev. Professor Lee was, during his early life in Shrewsbury, a member. Visiting Shrewsbury at a time when academical honours were thick upon him, the Professor met some of his old ringing associates in St. Chad's belfry to ring a peal, but his hand and ear had lost their cunning, so far as bellringing was concerned, and he had to confess that he was unable to go on with the business. Several records of successful change-ringing at St. Chad's by the Union Society are near me. Among these are those to be found recorded on the tablets in the belfry, and many others recorded from time to time in the columns of the Shrewsbury Chronicle: e.g.

"On Monday evening, December 6th, 1802, in St. Chad's tower, Shrewsbury, was completed in a correct and masterly stile by the Union Society, a peal of Grandsire Catons, containing 5058 changes in 3 hrs. 30 mins., forming a selection of the most harmonious courses with 5,2,4,6 behind the 9th in regular succession, being the first true 5000 ever rung on those bells in the above method, composed and called by Mr. William Bull."

"On the evening of August 4th, 1801, was rung at St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, by the Union Society, a peal of Bob Maximus, containing 5016 changes, which they compleated in forty-two minutes, being the first of that method compleated on those bells."

BELLS AND BELL RINGING IN SHREWSBURY.

In the tower of old St. Chad's were several tablets recording the execution of successful peals by the ringers of that church, and by members of the Union Society. Three peals of Grand-sire Triples were recorded in the years 1762, 1769, and 1770. In March, 1772 was rung a peal of Grandsire Caters, containing 6210 changes, in 3 hrs. 58 mins. and 30 seconds, the ringers being Thomas Hodges, treble; William Hodges, 2nd; John Wood, 3rd; George Farr, 4th; John Hanley, 5th; Philip Heath, 6th; William Farrall, 7th; William Fradgley, 8th; Andrew Doley, 9th; Samuel Hill, tenor. Other tablets described several remarkable peals subsequently rung by the Union Society at Shrewsbury and other places in the county, with references to their records for the particulars. All these tablets were destroyed by the falling of the church in 1788. It appears thus far that the Union Society, "began in 1714," and existing for some hundred and fifty years, was the source and life of the art for which Shrewsbury ringers were in the last century so famous. That the new Archidiaconal Association may be successful in reviving the popularity of bellringing is a desire in which few will refuse to participate. Commencing with the metropolitan church, I have gleaned the following particulars as to

ST. CHAD'S BELLS.

The bells of old St. Chad's originally consisted of a peal of five, the weight of the tenor being 28 cwt. 3 qrs. 17 lbs. It was stated on one of the tablets in the church that Mr. Rowley, of Hill's-lane, in addition to his other benefactions, gave a bell to make up six. The parishioners afterwards increased the number to eight, and subsequently, when the bells were increased to ten, two trebles (by far the best) were presented (as stated by the late Mr. H. Pidgeon), by a company of comedians! Of these bells the greater portion were broken to pieces by the fall of the church on July 9th, 1788 at 4 a.m. On the very day before that much to be lamented event, the Union Society had arranged to meet in the belfry to ring a peal of several thousand changes, composed by one of the members. At the appointed hour all were assembled except Mr. Richard Cross. A messenger was sent for him, but he refused to attend, alleging that he believed the tower of the church was unsafe. The peal, therefore, went unringed, and on the following morning Mr. Cross's worst fears were realised. When the new church was opened in 1792, a new clock of bad construction was erected in the tower, and three of the old bells hung for the hours and quarters to be struck upon. A subscription was also set on foot in the parish for the purpose of providing a good new peal, but several of the leading trustees of the church and its charities, were hostile to the purpose, and placed all the obstacles in their power in its way. In this state things remained for several years, until during the memorable contested election for the borough which commenced in 1796 between the hills of Hawkstone and Attingham, it was thought desirable to test the spirit and liberality of the contending parties, by soliciting the leading gentlemen on each side to complete the subscription. Accordingly a committee of eleven parishioners was formed, at the head of which was Mr. Thomas Powell, London waggon proprietor. Mr. Mears, bell founder, was applied to for an estimate for a peal of twelve bells, the tenor to be 36 cwt., and it was calculated that £800 would be wanted, exclusive of the value of the old bells and broken metal recovered from the ruins on Belmont.

BELLS AND BELL RINGING IN SHREWSBURY.

ST. CHAD'S BELLS (Continued).

A circular soliciting subscriptions was put forth by the Committee, and a deputation of the body appointed to wait upon Sir William Pulteney, the senior borough member, in the first instance. He received the deputation very courteously, asking them to name what sum they thought he, in heading the subscription list, should put down, as he was desirous to meet their views and wishes, by way of example, before they presented the list to other gentlemen. To this Mr. Powell replied that the deputation would think £100 very handsome, provided that amount met with approval. After some thought, Sir William said as £800 was a large sum to raise by voluntary subscription, he would beg of them to place £150 opposite his name. The subscription so fairly started realised £724 15s, the following being the names of all who gave more than two guineas each:

Sir Wm. Pulteney, Bart., £150; Sir Richard Hill, Bart., £100; John Hill, Esq., £50; Right Hon. Lord Berwick, £50; Hon. W. Hill, £50; John Kynaston Powell, Esq., £50; John Corbet, Esq., £30; John Mytton, Esq., £30; the Countess of Bath, £25; the Company of Mercers, £21; Ralph Vernon, Esq., £10 10s; Rev. George Scott, Betton, £10 10s; Rev. T. Stedman, £5 5s; Robert Jeffreys, Esq., £5 5s; the Company of Saddlers, £5 5s; the Company of Miners (Mr. Powell), £5 5s; Thomas Lloyd, £4 4s; Mr. Thomas Powell, £4 4s; Mr. E. Stanier, £4 4s; Mr. G. Crump, £4 4s; John Bishop, Esq., £2 2s; Humphrey Sandford, Esq., £2 2s; Mr. Purslow, £2 2s; Mr. Robert Hill, £2 2s; Mr. R. Lloyd, £2 2s; Mr. Richard Cross, £2 2s; subscriptions under two guineas, £97 7s. It being found necessary to put an additional floor in the tower, the same was paid for out of the subscription, and after paying for the bells, the frames, and the expenses of hanging and fitting with ropes, etc., a surplus of £33 was distributed by the Committee among the poor of the parish. This account of the subscription which is taken from an authentic document, shows that Archdeacon Owen's account of the same (vide Ancient and present State of Shrewsbury, p. 182), is to some extent inaccurate. On July 14th, 1798, the new bells arrived in Shrewsbury by water carriage, and were landed at Mardol Quay. On the 18th, the hanging was completed, and twelve members of the celebrated London Campanological Society, known as the College Youths, having tested the tone of the bells in the founders' yard at White-chapel, arrived in Shrewsbury at their own expense and were permitted to ring the first peal upon the new bells.

BELLS AND BELL RINGING IN SHREWSBURY.

ST. CHAD'S BELLS (Continued).

The mottoes on St. Chad's bells were specially composed by Mr. Wilding, the master of High Ercall Grammar School. They appeared in the Shrewsbury Chronicle for July 27th, 1798, but as no account of the bells of the town would be complete without them, I must repeat them here. The weight of each bell is also given:—

Treble, wt. 6 cwt. 2 qrs. 25 lbs.

In sweetest sound let each its note reveal;
Mine shall be first to lead the dulcet peal.

Second, 6. 1. 4.

The public rais'd us with a liberal hand,
We come with harmony to cheer the land.

Third, 6. 3. 13.

Wide thro' the air, extend each gen'rous theme;
And float melodious down SABRINA's stream.

Fourth, 6. 3. 0.

When female virtue weds with manly worth,
We catch the rapture, and we spread it forth.

Fifth, 7. 2. 13.

Does battle rage? do sanguine foes contend?
We hail the victor—if he's BRITAIN's friend.

Sixth, 8. 0. 16.

Here let us pause, and now with one accord,
Salute the Church, triumphant in the Lord.

Seventh, 10. 0. 10.

May GEORGE long reign who now the sceptre sways,
And British valour ever rule the seas!

Eighth, 12. 1. 3.

Success attend our gallant host in arms;
And glory crown the brave whom honour warms!

Ninth, 13. 3. 23.

May ENGLAND's coasts the pride of Commerce see,
And SALOP's pride be always to be free?

Tenth, 16. 2. 21.

May Peace return to bless BRITANNIA's shore,
And Faction fail to raise her head no more?

Eleventh, 24. 1. 5.

May each subscriber in these numbers live,
And UNIONS ever feel those joys they give.

Tenor, 34. 0. 23.

May all whom I shall summon to the Grave,
The blessing of a well-pent life receive.

The tenor belonging to this otherwise fine peal being complained of by competent judges as ineffective both for ringing purposes and for striking the hours, a meeting of the trustees was held on February 11th, 1825, the Venerable Archdeacon Owen in the chair. It was resolved that the bell should be recast with from six to eight hundredweight of additional metal, and the necessary instructions were given to Mr. Mears, of London, to carry out the work. The bell arrived in "Owner Rees's" barge at the Union Wharf in the following August, and was landed in the presence of the leading members of the Union Society. Its measurements are: height, 4ft. 6in., diameter, 5ft. 3in., circumference at mouth, 16ft. 6in., at head, 8ft. 9in.; weight 2 tons 1 cwt., being some 5 cwt. heavier than the old bell. Round the head is the following inscription in Roman capitals:—

"St. Chad's Peal of twelve bells was cast 1798. The Rev. T. Steadman, Minister; T. Jones. A. Drinkwater, W. Harley, R. Lloyd, Churchwardens. The Tenor having been found ineffective was exchanged for this bell 1825. T. Steadman. T. Mears, of London Fecit. Samuel Taylor, Philip Hughes, Thomas Jones, Charles T. Clarke, Churchwardens;" with the motto as on original bell.

At this period there were only eleven peals of twelve in the kingdom, seven of them belonging to the London churches.

THE ST. JAMES' SOCIETY, LONDON.

On Saturday, August 20th, punctually at the time appointed (6 p.m.), a friendly meeting of this Society arranged to meet at the Church of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, to celebrate the erection of a peal-board to commemorate a Jubilee Peal, rang on May 5th, which was the second in the City of London, and which was presented by Mr. Churchwarden Webb, who was present in the tower. The ringing commenced with a touch of Grandsire Triples, the performers standing the same as in the peal with the exception of Mr. West, who rang the sixth in lieu of Mr. Beech; the next was a touch of Stedman Triples by Haworth, Bonny, Langdon, S. Wood (Ashton-under-Lyne), Barry, M. A. Wood (conductor), Newman, D. Living, and afterwards a touch of Treble Bob Major. The ringers were subsequently very kindly invited to drink the health of Mr. Churchwarden Webb, and spent a very pleasant evening with the parochial ringers, and Messrs. Monday, Tyack, Cecil, &c. Mr. D. Living having brought in the handbells, a course of Grandsire Caters was rung by Messrs. Barry, 1-2; Haworth, 3-4; M. A. Wood, 5-6; S. Wood (Ashton), 7-8; W. H. George, 9-10.

THE WORCESTERSHIRE AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting of the above Association will take place in the National Schoolroom, Brierley Hill, on Saturday, September 3rd, 1887, at 5 o'clock prompt. The Rev. J. Stone, Rector, has kindly promised to preside. The towers of St. Michael's, Brierley Hill (six bells); St. Thomas's, Stourbridge (eight bells); and St. James's, Wollaston (six bells); will be open for ringing during the afternoon. The Secretary hopes that those members who have not yet paid their contributions will do so at this meeting, and to take this as a notice to attend should they receive no other.

JOHN SMITH, Hon. Sec.

37, Simms Lane, Netherton, near Dudley.

CO-OPERATIVE PRODUCTION.—Very few persons are probably aware how far this movement has extended, and what a considerable amount of success has attended it. The last Annual report of the Labour Association for promoting workshops, based on the principle of participation in profits between capital and labour, states that there are over thirty workshops of the kind in Great Britain with 5000 members, £90,000 share capital, and £70,000 loan capital. The average profit recorded was over 14 per cent. on the capital, a remarkable result in these times of commercial depression. Nearly all the leading Co-operative Workshops will be represented at the Exhibition attached to the National Co-operative Flower Show at South Kensington, on Tuesday next. The Exhibition will fill the whole of the East Quadrant attached to the Albert Hall, and will comprise, worsted linen and cotton fabrics, boots and shoes, bags, portmanteaus and trunks, watches, hardware, fustians, quilts, hosiery, bookbinding, locks and padlocks, agricultural materials and products, washing, wringing machines and furniture, and other productions. The London public will then, for the first time, have an opportunity of judging of the manufacturing skill and taste of the associated workers.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, August 20th, the ringers of St. John's Church, Deptford, had their annual outing, going by brake to Bromley, where they were met by Messrs. Golds and Dunn (Bromley), and Mr. Henry Bright (of Woolwich). Ascending the tower, a 504 Grandsire Triples was rung. G. Golds, 1; E. Dunn, 2; J. Rose, 3; W. Weatherstone (conductor), 4; T. Rose, 5; J. Laws, 6; W. Bedwell, 7; W. James, 8. After partaking of refreshments, a move was made to Hayes, where hangs a handy peal of six. Here they were met by Lord Sackville Cecil, who is captain of the Hayes band. Time not allowing for a 720, a 120 of Grandsire Doubles was rung. J. Rose, 1; T. Rose, 2; W. Jeffery, 3; J. Laws, 4; W. Weatherstone, 5; Lord Sackville Cecil, 6. The following also took part in the ringing: Messrs. Bright, Bedwell, Golds, Palmer, Wilkins, Bathe, and Eustace.

A move was then made to West Wickham, arriving at the Railway Hotel, the party sat down to a substantial tea. After doing full justice to the good things provided, the handbells were brought into use, and after various touches and tunes, also songs by Messrs. Jeffery, Palmer, Rose, Bathe, Weatherstone etc., it was found time to start for home, which was reached by 11.0 p.m., after a most enjoyable outing. The ringers wish through "THE BELL NEWS" to thank Mr. Golds (Bromley), and Lord Sackville Cecil (Hayes), for kindly making arrangements for ringing, which greatly added to the enjoyment of all.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The members of this Association are invited by the President to a garden party at Duffield Bank on Saturday, September 3rd, from 2 to 6 o'clock. The ten bells of the parish church will be at the disposal of ringers during the afternoon. Members' friends who belong to other Associations will also be welcome.

In Memoriam.

CHARLES STEER.

It is with deep regret that we have to announce the death of the above gentleman, who died at Sheffield on Sunday, August 14th, at the age of 61. The funeral took place on Thursday, August 18th, the service being conducted by the Vicar, who is a member of the Yorkshire Association. Mr. Steer had been a member of the Sheffield society for twenty-seven years, and joined the Ancient Society of College Youths in 1872, and the Yorkshire Association in 1878. A course of Grandsire Triples was rang over the grave, and at the parish church in the evening, Grandsire Caters and Cinques was rung with the bells muffled.

JOHN ECCLES.

We regret to have announce the death of the above gentleman, one of the parish church ringers of All Saints' Church, Higher Walton, and also one of the handbell ringers, who died after a short but severe illness, on Thursday, August 4th, and was interred at All Saints' Church on Saturday, August 6th. During the funeral procession, the parish ringers, kindly assisted by John Robinson, of Walton-le-dale, rang the whole pull and stand, with the bells deeply muffled, and after the interment with the bells half-muffled, a date touch of 1899 changes in four methods, in 1 hr. 13 mins., being the date of his death, viz., fourth day of the eighth month of 1887, and made up as follows; 99 Plain Bob; 360 Coronation Exercise; 720 College Single; and 720 Oxford Bob. G. Thornley (conductor), 1; J. Harwood, 2; H. Hunt, 3; H. Brewer, 4; J. Robinson, 5; J. Mather, 6. Tenor 16 cwt. 3 qrs. 26 lbs. Mr. Eccles was appointed a parish ringer in February, 1873, and with the exception of from May 29th, 1873 to January 31st, 1875, and September 21st, 1879, to November 30th, 1880, was a ringer up to his death, and has taken part in a host of miscellaneous performances.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 27, 1887.

THE letter of Mr. J. W. WASHBROOK, which appeared in our last number, has created more than a little commotion in the ringing world, at any rate among that portion of the Exercise who give their attention to the construction of peals. Very many of these latter gentlemen have got the whole history of composition at their fingers' ends, so to speak, so that the assertions of the gentleman in question, which appear to overthrow what for many years has been accepted as orthodox, naturally has created some little excitement. In fact the statements of our correspondent have been received in certain quarters with some degree of irritation, if not of resentment. Of course such feelings are not by any means personal, as we understand the word, but arise solely from a praise-worthy desire to champion the productions of those celebrated men who maintained that they had given to the world compositions which have now become historical, compositions which have hitherto been held to possess the properties claimed for them. Perhaps the somewhat authoritative manner of the writer might have had something to do in provoking a spirited retort. However this may be, the fact remains that a statement has been made, if not with assurance, at least with confidence, that a peal of Stedman Caters, containing sixty-courses with the large bells undisturbed, and with a fixed bell in second's place at the course-end has never yet been produced.

This is, at any rate, how we understand the position assumed by Mr. WASHBROOK. And here it should be understood that what follows need not be regarded as final or conclusive upon the matter. We will not arrogate to ourselves the right to decide upon such a question. We merely express an opinion upon it.

Those who have replied to the statements of Mr. WASHBROOK appear to have lost sight of one important fact. There is a difference between "the sixty courses" and "the sixty course-ends." The latter may be obtained without the former being had, as is well known. But it is the "sixty courses," not the "sixty course-ends," which Mr. WASHBROOK deals with. This may to some appear a distinction unworthy troubling about, a kind of straw-splitting, in fact, not worthy of notice. But this is without doubt the kernel of the question. Are there in any one or the peals alluded to in this week's number of our paper, sixty complete courses in regular order with the bells in question undisturbed? The opening course may have those bells in the positions only in part, and the same may be said of the last or coming round course, therefore such peals as those fail in not having the positions required.

What we have endeavoured to point out appears necessary in the discussion, the end of which cannot be foreseen, and that must be our apology for dealing with the matter.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

After an interval of two years, the Worcester branch of the above Association resumed their annual outing, which took place on Monday, the 15th ultimo., Cheltenham and Prestbury being the places selected.

On arrival at the first named place, the company was met by Mr. J. Belcher, G. H. Phillott, Esq., and others, who conducted them to the belfry of St. Mary's Church. The ringing business commenced with good touches of Grandsire Caters, an adjournment then took place for dinner, a rather important and almost an essential matter for ringers on these occasions. Dinner over, the company then proceeded, via road, to Prestbury, a delightful and picturesque village directly under the celebrated Cotswold Hills. The Churchwarden (Mr. Davis), was waiting to receive them, and in a very courteous manner welcomed the visitors, handing them the keys of the tower, which was at once ascended, when a well-struck quarter-peat of Grandsire Triples was rung, in which Messrs. Wale, Cotton, Pheasant, Blandford, Jenkins, Hobbs, G. Cleal (conductor), and W. Hale took part.

We here take the opportunity of remarking the pleasure felt by the company at the well appointed little tower, the musical tone of the bells, and the excellent go of them, which reflects the greatest credit on those who have recently been entrusted with the augmenting of the peal from six to eight bells.

Another touch of Triples, the party then made a move back to Cheltenham to meet the Society, as arranged in the morning, most of the members being there to receive them. The tower was again ascended, when some good touches of Stedman Caters and Kent Treble Bob Royal was rung, Messrs. Cleal, Cotton, and Jenkins among the visitors taking part.

A well-known adjacent Hostelry, "The Eight Bells," was then adjourned to, when touches upon the hand-bells were performed by a mixed band. Time had now arrived for departure for "The Faithful City," which was reached by 11.0 p.m., all expressing themselves thoroughly satisfied with the courtesy and kindness they had received at both churches.

They also take this opportunity of thanking the Vicars and Churchwardens for the use of the bells.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting of this Association will take place at Gloucester, on Tuesday, August 30th, 1887. Divine Service in the Cathedral at 10.30. Short sermon by the Rev. J. P. A. Bowers. Business meeting in chapter room immediately afterwards. Dinner at the "Spread Eagle," 1 p.m. at 1s. per head to all who have sent notice to the Hon. Secretary by August 25th; 2s. 6d. to others, and to hon. members, who are also kindly asked to give notice. All members and friends are earnestly requested to attend Divine Service. The following belfries will be open to the Association: Cathedral of St. Peter, 8; St. Mary de Crypt, 8; St. Michael's, 8; St. Mary de Lode, 6; St. Nicholas, 6.

THE LAST OF THE CONQUEROR.—It was in the Priory of St. Gervais that William the Conqueror ended his stormy career. Enraged at a coarse joke of the French King, he had been engaged in ravaging that monarch's territory, and was threatening to advance and attack Paris. But whilst gloating over the burning churches and convents of Mantes, his horse trod on some hot cinders and stumbled, and William received a severe internal injury from the pommel of his saddle. He travelled with great difficulty to his palace at Rouen, but there his troubled mind could find no rest, and he caused himself to be conveyed to the Priory of St. Gervais. For many weeks he lay in suffering, and professed the most sincere penitence, while to quiet his conscience he bequeathed money to rebuild the churches at Mantes, and had all prisoners set at liberty. His barons, fearing that anarchy or invasion would follow the decease of their leader, fled to guard their possessions. His sons departed to secure their inheritances. Friends and courtiers all forsook him. At length in September, 1087, the Conqueror died, praying to the Virgin. The servants scarcely waited for his last breath to lay hands on all within their reach, stripping the very body of its raiment, and leaving it alone and uncared for. A knight dwelling in the vicinity paid for the expenses of the funeral cortege, and escorted it to Caen, where, with maimed rights, the body of William I., King of England and Duke of Normandy, was hastily and ignominiously consigned to the tomb.—From "Cities of the World" for August.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, August 20th Messrs. Henry Barnett, George Lucas, Joseph Waghorn, sen., Arthur Hubbard, and Thomas Hughes (probationer), members of the All Hallows Society, Tottenham, proceeded to Dovercourt, where they were met by two other probationers, Messrs. Hammond and Randall, and after a refreshing dip in the briny, a pleasant walk through the Spa and along the esplanade brought them to St. Nicholas church, Harwich, where, thanks to Mr. J. Brewster, captain of the Harwich ringers, all was found in good order for ringing, the bells having been greased and the ropes looked to, and defects remedied so carefully that no mishap occurred to mar the day's pleasure. After raising the bells, and ringing a few rounds just to get the feel and go of them, an adjournment was made to the Hanover Square Hotel, when the host, Mr. Lawrence, had provided a substantial cold luncheon, to which ample justice was done. At the church tower they were met, as previously arranged, by Messrs I. S. Alexander, A. R. Aldham, and W. Motts from Ipswich, with whose assistance and with Mr. G. Knock, one of the Harwich band on the tenor, business was commenced with 312 of Stedman Triples, conducted by G. Lucas. Messrs W. Easter, W. Green, and F. Goddard, members of the Harwich band having arrived, with their assistance, 252 of Bob Major, conducted by H. Barnett, 527 of Grandsire Major conducted by Geo. Lucas, and 408 of Grandsire Triples conducted by F. Goddard, and a few shorter touches were rung, and during one of the intervals the Harwich band performed several tunes on the handbells in a masterly manner, affording very great pleasure to the visitors. Tea time having arrived. Host Lawrence again catered in a highly satisfactory manner. Again ascending the tower the Tottenham and Ipswich bands, with Mr. Hughes at the tenor, put together a well struck 420 of Stedman Triples, conducted by Mr. Aldham, after which 224 of Bob Major was conducted by Mr. H. Barnett. The inevitable train time having arrived the visitors were accompanied to the station by the Harwich company, after spending a most enjoyable day. The visitors tender their sincere thanks to the Harwich ringers for the very cordial reception they received, and to the Vicar and Churchwardens for allowing them the use of the tower. Just one wrinkle to visitors to Harwich. The accommodation at Host Lawrence's is good and clean, the viands choice and abundant, and the charges extremely moderate.

IDENTITY ESTABLISHED.

Our old friend Mr. James Dwight sends us the following letter:— "The Thomas Dwight, of Melbourne, who was mentioned in your issues of the 13th and 20th inst., is my own brother. He was born at Limehouse on April 7th, 1818, and is two years and about three months younger than myself. We both began to ring at the same time in 1830, and could only ring call changes, but he could do that well. He is in the same trade as myself, and worked with me up to the time of his going away, which was on September 4th, 1852, or about thirty-five years ago, but he did not ring for a long time before he went away. We scarcely rang anywhere else than Stepney, and never saw any half pull ringing. We have both rung on the twelve bells at Spitalfields, which church was burnt down in 1836. I had a letter from him about three years ago, but have lost it and have not got his address. If you want my ringing career I think it will be a long job for me, for as I have no writing to do I don't get on at it."

HERE AND THERE.

"A Daniel come to judgment" in the person of J. W. Washbrook! What's this about "sixty courses" of Stedman Caters? I thought that was settled long ago. Is it left for J. W. W. to discover that we have all along been the victim of a fraud, and that these "sixty courses" have never yet been got? What about the published and unpublished compositions of such men as Cox, Hubbard, Haley, and, last, but by no means least, oh no, of Henry Johnson? I shall be very anxious to hear what the yet living veteran says about the statements somewhat recklessly made, I think.

American steaks, so long as they come from Yarmouth, and are real, are to many a dainty morsel. They are known in almost every household from John O'Groats to Lands End, but to find them packed in a belfry is a new feature. A joke is all very well if not carried too far, but there is a medium to everything. Doubtless the owner of the box which found its way to Enfield was somewhat disappointed upon opening the same to find what a treasure awaited him. It is to be hoped, however, that after such disappointment he was not only consoled upon discovering his booty, but was enabled to far more enjoy it.

Well, Mr. Editor, if no other good comes out of the hints that I threw out respecting the Chelmsford peal, an increased revenue will be the result, for I have received various communications respecting the "job," and it is evident that an attempt has been made to put certain gentlemen on the scent as to my whereabouts, but up to the present they are not in the hunt, neither will they be there at the next course-end. Is there not, however, something in the background. I have just had the "tip" that one of the band who only went down on the Sunday state that "We' elected Smith."

I admit that Mr. Smith's "election" in the Galleywood tower was not invalidated by its non-publication, but judging from the rules of the Association which I now have before me, I cannot see that it is yet completed. Under these circumstances he is not a fully elected member of the Association, therefore the question arises, was he eligible to stand in the Chelmsford peal without a second formal election? The point to me is as it is to many of my correspondents, clear and simple, but as I am not a member of the Association perhaps I ought not to express an opinion.

I would advise Mr. Newson that when he again employs an amanuensis not to ask for so many stereotyped phrases. He is altogether in the wrong course if he assumes that I had any ambition to be in the peal. I have not yet heard the "ro," but when I wish to do so it will not be necessary to call in his assistance. Steady, George! It seems there is something in my statements regarding this peal; vide the letter of "Honesty," in last week's number.

Mr. Pitstow is to be congratulated upon his frank admission of the contents of the black bag. I had reason to believe that they were not altogether absent-minded. His theory, however, of removing the ropes before dark will not hold water. It is not often that it becomes dark at mid-day on Whit-Monday. This performance having taken place during the service in the church, and the report of the formal election of Mr. Smith on Sunday morning looks very much as if there are those that have belfry reform simply upon the surface. Thanking Mr. Pitstow for his compliments, what he knows is not what I know, and vice versa. His remarks anent a 5040 of London Surprise is scarcely ingenuous. He should have steered clear of that part of his observations, and have kept to the Chelmsford incident. I knew before he did what lengths could be got in any Treble Bob method. But 5040 came to my mind without thinking, as terms which are in common use sometimes do.

I see that Mr. Percival Heywood intends holding another garden party for members of the Midland Counties' Association and their friends. Mr. Heywood is a gentleman whom all ringers ought to know. But in saying this I don't mean that all and sundry ought to expect or try to attend these pleasant affairs at Duffield. That everybody would be welcome who attended, goes without saying. But what I mean is that such hospitality and welcome should not be spoilt by thoughtless people. I know plenty of people in London who would go in numbers to Duffield if it were situated near, and I know some of these, unfortunately, who would behave so that their admission "the next time" would be problematical. No offence intended, merely a hint.

My gossip is carried out above its length this week. Perhaps readers of "THE BELL NEWS" will pardon me this once. If I am in the way, or if they would that I should retire, they have only to say so, and I am sure our worthy Editor would listen patiently to their representations. If no such wishes are expressed, this will not be the last that will be heard of

A NEW MAN.

Cricket.

CRAWLEY RINGERS v. CHURCH CHOIR.

This match was played on the Crawley Cricket ground, on Wednesday, August 17th, but owing to the heavy downpour of rain the match could not be commenced till late in the evening. Considering the state of the wicket, there was some very good play shewn, especially by the ringers, who scored 65 for seven wickets. Owing to the darkness of the night there was not sufficient time for the ringers to complete their innings. The bowling of Kenward and Wickens for the ringers was very successful. Score:—

THE BELLS OF ST. SEPULCHRE.—At six o'clock last evening, a special messenger arrived at the residence of the man appointed to toll St. Sepulchre's bell on execution mornings. He bore a communication from the Governor of Newgate, Mr. Milman, to the effect that his services would not be required this morning. It is a curious fact that when on the great Jubilee Day, the ringers of St. Sepulchre's, who are men of considerable note in that line, were about to ring a two hours' peal in honour of Her Majesty, the tenor, or twelfth and largest bell, was immovable. Their services were, therefore transferred to St. Bride's, Fleet-street. The bell has since been re-hung, and is of a very sonorous tone. Indeed there are no more beautiful bells in London than those of St. Sepulchre. Some time since a medical student of St. Bartholemew's Hospital offered the man in charge of the bell a handsome bribe to be allowed to toll the funeral knell of a living man, but that functionary was immaculate, and would not permit any other hand but his own to perform the solemn duty.—Evening News.

GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.

So full was Gloucester once of churches, that the proverb ran, "As sure as God's faith is in Gloucester." There still remain beside the Cathedral, the choir of the Grey Friars' Church of the fifteenth century, the interesting church of St. Mary de Lode, early English, lately restored, St. Mary-le-Crypt, late perpendicular, St. Nicholas, with its once beautiful spire truncated, the Norman Chapel of St. Mary Magdalen Hospital, of the date of King Stephen, St. Michael's, the tower of which was constructed during the Lancastrian war, St. John the Baptist, the steeple of which is probably of the fourteenth century. The modern churches are St. Aldgate's, St. Mark's, St. Margaret's, St. Luke's, Christ Church, St. James's. There are also numerous Dissenting places of worship. The Roman Catholic Chapel is being rebuilt.

The Cathedral of St. Peter, approached through the west gate, the ancient entrance of the precinct, was formerly the minster of a mitred abbey of Benedictines. Its dedication was changed to that of the Holy Trinity, on the creation of the see, September 3rd, 1541. It stands in a secluded enclosure, and an air of solemnity breathes round it in harmony with its sacred associations. The building was begun in 1047, and enlarged at subsequent periods. It is 420 feet in length, 144 feet in breadth, and surmounted by a tower 129 feet in height. Besides the central tower, there is a south porch, a nave of eight bays with aisles, a with an apsidal chapel in each wing, a choir of five very unequal bays, with aisles and eastern ambulatory, with an apsidal chapel on either side, and a cruciform lady chapel. The interior is impressive; the stalls are said to be scarcely inferior to those of Windsor; the choir is richly ornamented, and there is a whispering gallery, seventy-five feet long, three feet wide, and eight feet high. On the wall are written these lines:—

Doubt not but God, who sits on high,
Thy secret prayers can hear,
While a dead wall, thus cunningly,
Conveys soft whispers to the ear.

The eastern window is said to be the largest in England, containing 8,927 square feet of glass, of tints multitudinous as the tissue of tapestry. The cathedral is built of fine-grained and ill-cemented oolite and red sandstone (north side) intermixed. The cloisters, a paradise of architecture, yet used as stables by the Parliamentarians, for extent and tracery unsurpassed, are on the north side; in the south alley is the lavatory; and the "carols" or recesses, where the monks wrote and illuminated missal and chronicle, remain perfect as when first erected. In the east walk is the entrance to the Chapter House, built 1088-95, and fitted up as a library in 1826-7. A crypt, restored by Waller, divided by two rows of small pillars, extends beneath the transept, choir, and Lady Chapel.

THE STATE OF PARIS IN SEPTEMBER, 1870.—The usual effects of invasion and social disruption were not long in making themselves felt over the unhappy territories thus torn in pieces by foreign armies and intestine disagreements. Bands of robbers infested the country in several parts. A mania for volunteer arrests on suspicion seized upon the people, and much injustice was committed in this way. An old gentleman in a civilian dress was seen on a certain September day walking about the fortifications near Vincennes taking notes. A National Guard went up to him and touching him on the shoulder, said, "You are Marshal Valliant. I arrest you." With the assistance of some of his comrades, the National Guard forced his prisoner into a hackney-coach and took him to the office of General Trochu, followed by a crowd shouting "Death to the traitor!" General Trochu was absent, but M. Grainer Pages appeared in his place, and mounting a chair, thus addressed the crowd:—"Citizens! we must have at this time but one thought—to drive away the invader. To do that, what is needed? Revolution? You have had that. As for treasons, if any be discovered, speedy justice will be done. You may rely upon the Government for the National Defence. It will watch and do its duty. Long live the Republic!" The mob responded with the favourite cry, and Marshal Vaillant, who was well acquainted with the place, found means of quietly escaping.—From "Cassell's Illustrated History of the Franco-German War" for August.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

"SIXTY COURSES OF STEDMAN CATERS, COMPOSED AND RANG."

SIR,—Mr. James W. Washbrook, of Oxford, has given us in your issue for August 20th inst., the result of some investigations of his upon Stedman Caters. I doubt he did not go far enough into the matter, and I therefore ask his particular attention to a peal which was rang by the Royal Cumberlands at St. Clement Danes, on Wednesday, January 18th, 1854, conducted by its author, the late John Cox. The composition may be found on page 176, in the 1864 edition of Hubbard on Ringing. I also wish to point out that the 8064 of Double Norwich Court Bob Major in the same issue of "THE BELL NEWS," by Mr. J. W. W. is false. Changes of the 2nd course repeat in the last course, but by calling the single at 6th of 32nd or 34th course in each part, a good 7000 in each case is obtained.

H. DAINS.

DOUBLE NORWICH COURT BOB MAJOR.

SIR,—The calling of the 6048 of Double Court by Mr. Washbrook is the same as a 6048 of Bob Major by me to be found in "THE BELL NEWS" for December 5th, 1884. I am well aware many peals of Bob Major may be rung as Double Court, and vice versa, for the 5376 of Double Court in last week's issue may be rung as a peal of Bob Major. I think Sir, the Double Norwich Court composers might so arrange their calling, so it is not like another man's peal of Bob Major.

EDWARD FRANCIS, Norwich.

DOUBLE COURT AT HOLY TRINITY, WEST HAM.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Keeble's letter of last week, I beg to state that what he says about this 720 not being rang at the first attempt is absolutely wrong. This, Sir, was rang at the first attempt, and was a different band to the one that started for it a fortnight previous. I can also say that three of the band had never rang a 720 in that method before. I should also like to know what he means by the infallibility of the West Ham friends, because he must not class them so, when he knows that only one man that thinks himself so. The whole fact of the matter is that Mr. Keeble is jealous because he was not in it, or else he would not have written upon such a trivial affair.

H. RANDALL.

THE BELLS OF OUSELEY.

SIR,—At Old Windsor there is a well-known tavern much frequented by anglers, called "The Bells of Ouseley." A subscriber to your paper would feel much obliged if you or any of your readers could give in your columns any information as to the origin of this sign, where Ouseley is situated, and whether it is or was remarkable for any especial peal.

B. E. BATTRUM.

76, High Street, Fulham.

IRREGULAR DEFINITIONS.

SIR,—As an old subscriber may I venture to give a friendly hint to our friends who send their new compositions for publication in "THE BELL NEWS," to pay a little more attention to their explanatory foot-notes, as I often find it very difficult to understand what is meant, without writing out the peal. For instance, in last week's issue the peal of Stedman Caters, by Mr. Williams, would be much clearer if it read as follows: "This course contains twenty-four sixes, and is produced by bobs 1, 2, 8, 11, 14, 18, 23. These nine courses three times repeated up to eighth course-end in fifth part, brings up 615423, when bobs at 10, 12, 16 will bring up rounds at seventeen sixes and one change.

T. B.

THE CHELMSFORD PEAL.

SIR,—What a change of tone there is in some people's mind according to the altered circumstances of the case. Not long since, when the rehanging of the two Chelmsford trebles appeared in the dim and distant future, a fear was expressed in a certain quarter that as the late hon. sec. of the Association was a College Youth, that a band of such would have the credit of booking the first peal when the chance came. This, if it came to pass, was to be denounced in the strongest terms possible, it being contended that there were in the county with about two from each of the Metropolitan Societies sufficient ability to make up a band for the purpose. Matters however are changed, the boot has got upon the other leg, and those who predicted what they termed would be shabby work have had the opportunity of performing such themselves, but in doing so have jumped out of the frying pan into the fire by ringing a non-association peal.

LITTLE BOB.

SIR,—I am glad that "A New Man" reported the black bag business at Chelmsford, on Whit-Monday, and I thank Mr. Pitstow for his remarks in last week's issue about us Ipswich men, which shows to us that some of the company concerned did not approve of it. But till then we had no idea that the taking off the ropes was an act directed against the members from Ipswich, but I suppose it was only following up the feeling exhibited by the same Messrs. Perkins and Co. during the "distinguished ringers" discussion at a former meeting. Certainly we are under no obligation to him for the use of his ropes, "which they were obliged to take off before dark," yes, eight hours before, and perhaps carry them to Writtle in the afternoon. But, Sir, there is another matter which wants explaining, that is the time in which the peal was reported to be rung on the 1st. How is it that the peal of Major at Galleywood, tenor 14 cwt., should take 3 hrs. 16 mins., and the peal of Royal at Chelmsford, with tenor at the least 20 cwt., and not one of the best running bells, can be booked at 3 hrs. 11 mins. Was the clock stopped, or did a few of the changes fall out somehow? To me it seems nearly impossible. This remark may also apply to the peal of Stedman Triples recorded at Oxford, tenor 42 cwt. There are a good many ringers who find it a difficult matter to believe these and other extra quick peals. I have no doubt but what I shall get it warm for writing this, but must say what we think.

W. L. CATCHPOLE.

SIR,—There are two questions which will decide if the above was a bona fide Essex Association peal, and these appear to me to lay in a nut shell. 1st, were Mr. Smith's services required at Galleywood? 2nd, if so, did his election in that tower make him a permanent member of the Association? Now, assuming that Mr. Smith's services were required at Galleywood, his election there must be confirmed at the next meeting of the Association, therefore his election is not completed. This being the case, for one I fail to see how the Chelmsford peal can be entered in the Essex Association peal-book. To return to the Galleywood part of the question, with all due respect to Mr. Smith, I cannot see how his services could be "required," as I not only know of several fairly good Treble Bob ringers in the neighbourhood, but there are several members of the Association who would have jumped at the chance of a peal. Under these circumstances I fail to recognise either as a bona fide Essex Association peal.

THOUGHTFUL.

SIR,—Mr. Pitstow must be fond of a nap after dinner, or his notions as to daylight on Whit-Monday are "peculiar." If no better excuse can be advanced than the one brought forward by that gentleman, I think the "parties" have a weak case, and I trust no stone will be left unturned to prevent this London society peal from appearing in our peal book. This shabby action is beyond toleration.

A MEMBER OF THE E.A.C.R.

STEDMAN CATERS.

SIR,—In your last issue of "THE BELL NEWS" you publish a letter from Mr. Washbrook, in which he has attempted to prove that a peal of Stedman Caters, containing the sixty course-ends with bells fixed at 2 7 8 and 9 to be an utter impossibility by using bobs only. He writes "With your permission Mr. Editor, I will just shew the utter impossibility of such a composition." Mr. Washbrook also writes that by using a S you can produce 120 courses, but not sixty without one. Now this is directly in opposition to his 13021 published July 30th last, the first sixty courses of which are got with bobs only! (the two S's coming in the 61st and 121st courses). If what Mr. Washbrook writes on August 20th is correct, then his peal published July 30th, is useless; but what about other composers, has no one succeeded in getting this coveted peal? I will (as I did a few weeks ago) most respectfully inform Mr. Washbrook, that peals containing the sixty course-ends were got with bobs only, years before he was born! and in order to prove to him that what I then stated was correct, I will mention some of the compositions.

In the year 1846 a peal of Stedman Caters was rung at St. James's Bermondsey, "having the bells fixed at 2 7 8 9, and containing the sixty course-ends with bobs only." This peal, 6701, was composed and conducted by the late Mr. John Cox, who was at this time a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, London (see Hubbard's 1854 edition), and is acknowledged to be the first composition having the above properties, but there are now many others. Mr. Johnson of Birmingham has eight peals containing the sixty course-ends, and having four bells fixed,—6 5 6 2, 6 4 6 1, 9 5 8 3, with the treble in second place, also 6 5 7 4, 6 5 9 3, with the above, but having the extra qualities of the 6th at home at every fifth course-end, also 6 5 9 1, 6 5 8 5, with second at home at every fifth course-end, and 6 5 6 2 with the treble at lead throughout (the bells fixed in this peal being at 1 7 8 and 9). The above nine peals are composed with bobs only, and coming from such eminent authorities as Messrs. Cox and Johnson, cannot be doubted.

I will now leave these facts with Mr. Washbrook, trusting that they will convince him that the sixty course-ends have been got with bobs only, and that it is therefore not an utter impossibility to get such compositions.

ALFRED THOMAS.

Birmingham.

P.S.—May I ask Mr. Washbrook how he gets 6 1 3 5 2 4 9 7 8 (the first course-end given in his 13021 of Stedman Caters), starting with the 4th a quick bell, and using bobs at 6, 12, 15, 20, 21, 27. It would also be very interesting to me, and doubtless to other lovers of "Stedman's System," to be permitted to see the peal of Stedman Triples rung by members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, and composed and conducted by Mr. Washbrook.

A. T.

SIR,—I cannot see what purpose Mr. Washbrook has got to serve by publishing his letter on the above subject. To say the sixty course-ends is not obtainable without a single is all nonsense, which every composer who has made a study of the method must know. I venture to say that there is not one ringer in fifty that can understand his plan of producing them—even if any did, they would never be so inconsistent as to work on his rule and then claim it as their own idea. I have no intention of opening a correspondence on this subject, as I am quite certain that any composer who is at all desirous of making it a study would prefer doing so on their own merits, which is far more satisfactory than to receive any hints through this journal. The course-ends published a few weeks ago by Mr. Washbrook are not altogether intelligible; either can I see his purpose for starting with a quick six, when the object can be gained by commencing in the ordinary manner. Other composers who have obtained this magic number don't profess to give any teaching, but are content to let the result of their labours speak for itself. Some people only ventilate their ideas on successful topics—if it was more all round it might prevent that in the future which has happened in the past, viz., mortification and disappointment.

CHARLES HENRY HATTERSLEY.

Snider Works, Sheffield, August 23rd, 1887.

ANSWER TO MR. DAINS.

SIR,—I am afraid Mr. Dains has gone astray as to what peal we rang at Drayton. I don't suppose he is out of place in what he says as regards the peal of Superlative Surprise published by me. I have not noticed the peal he mentions yet, but I believe Mr. Cox's? peal contains 3 M's in each part, that is if he means the one published in Hubbard. But there must be another for to be anything like mine, as this one could not be varied into the qualities by using 9 M's? and 3 W's? and only by the way I put it "in equal parts," but if the peal belongs to anyone I am willing to give it up, it is a matter of indifference to us whose peal it is, it is a good musical one, that's all we care about, and I composed it. If it was composed before, then so much more the disgrace it has not been rang in this form instead of the old form it would sure to be put in. I should think most conductors ought to know that homes can be cut out to shorten a peal if necessary, if not let them take "this hint once for all"; where the H's are full they can always omit them, and thus eliminate two courses of any Major method.

J. W. WASHBROOK.

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—In your issue of August 20th Mr. James Wilde gives what is supposed to be a 5088 Treble Bob Major. In a footnote he adds the first eight courses will repeat, and a peal obtained in 5312 changes, 6th extent all positions in two parts. This is quite correct, and I am sure your correspondent will allow me to add, as such as this was rung by the Norwich Association as my peal on January 2nd, 1882, called by Mr. Edward Smith, at St. Mary's, Redenhall, Norfolk. I made the peal in 1881. Mr. J. W. will allow me to further add that the piece he spliced on is not long enough by a course and two leads, and so his peal is only a touch of 4756 changes, but, Sir, the bells must be jumped to rounds, unless the tenors are parted for the purpose of producing them.

H. DAINS.

THE DEVONSHIRE GUILD.

The ancient market and borough town of Bodmin, pleasantly situated near the centre of Cornwall, was the destination for the annual outing of the Penzance branch of the above Guild, on the 3rd of August, the chief attraction, of course, being the good peal of eight bells in the parish church, and, moreover, that it was an unbroken field for the introduction of change-ringing.

Being up betimes in the morning to avail themselves of the first train, the "assize town" was reached soon after nine o'clock, when a light breakfast was sought for to refresh them after the journey. A short stroll around the town was then indulged in, much of whose ancient history might be related from the time when the monastery of Padstow, being near the sea shore, and exposed to the piracies of the Saxons, and after them of the Danes, the monks removed to Bodmin, bringing the body of Petroc with them, and to whom they dedicated their church; the town was thus called by the Saxons, Petrocstow, but by the Britons, Bodmanna, that is, the habitation of the monks. Subsequently, Edward the Elder here settled the Episcopal See in A.D. 950, which was afterwards combined with that of Exeter, and again re-established as a separate See at Truro, in 1876. In the fourteenth century, the town and population had so increased in size, as to contain thirteen churches and free chapels, the remains of some of which are still to be seen.

The church of St. Petrock, which belonged to the priory, and is the largest Cornish church of its style, was rebuilt in 1472, of stone with some Norman and early English details, but for the most part in later Perpendicular style, consisting of three spacious aisles, divided by nine pointed arches, rising from clustered columns, a south porch with groined roof and parvise and three saints' niches in front, and on the north side an embattled tower, formerly surmounted by a lofty spire, which was thrown down by lightning in 1699, on which occasion some or all of the then existing peal of six bells were broken. Some beautiful wood carvings are to be seen on the pulpit and reading desk, and some of the ancient seats, particularly the Vicar's chair, representing the primitive temptation. A very fine Norman font, with modern cover, and a curious pillar piscina, once used as an almsbox; the head of a gothic cross, with a sculptured representation of the Crucifixion, is preserved in the church. It contains several monuments of great antiquity, and in the chancel is the altar tomb of prior Vivian, Bishop of Megara. On the table is laid the effigy of the deceased, in his pontifical robes, with a mitre on his head, and the crozier by his side; the hands are clasped on the breast, and the face and also the feet shielded by two angels, the former supporting the arms of the Bishop and his priory. These adjuncts were wantonly mutilated by the Puritans during the civil wars. The sides of the tomb are ornamented with six niches, filled with statues of saints, at the head the arms of Henry VII., and at the foot those of Megara. The inscription encircling it bears the date 1533.

The tower contains a peal of eight bells, tenor 17 cwt., cast by Thomas Rudhall, of Gloucester, in 1767. The ring has been recently quartered and rehung. Several musical touches of Grandsire Triples were rung during the day, but the weather being very hot, and the tower very sparsely ventilated, no long touches were attempted. In one of 462 Grandsire Triples the tenor was very efficiently rung by the enthusiastic captain of the local band, Mr. William Rowe.

Subsequently the majority of the visitors availed themselves of an introduction, and visited the county Lunatic Asylum, when they were most courteously conducted through the male departments. A small contingent in the meanwhile hunted up a curious bell of considerable antiquity, removed from the ruins of the Priory, and now hanging in the market house, and used as a market bell. It is peculiar in shape, and in outline resembles an engrailed heraldic ordinary; one of a somewhat similar shape, but with the convolutions inverted instead of engrailed, is to be seen at the Hotel de Villa, at Arras.

Great interest was taken in the method of half-pull changes by those of the local band of ringers, who happened to be present, and it is hoped that the three or four who were so interested, and would be willing to study the truly scientific, and vastly more enjoyable style of ringing than that at present existing, will soon succeed in enrolling a few young recruits to combine with themselves to form a party for its practice, in which event every facility and encouragement will be afforded by the Guild to assist them in their task, by supplying a competent instructor in accordance with their rules.

An excellent luncheon at the Royal Hotel was thoroughly appreciated and done ample justice to in the middle of the day, after which a plain course of Grandsire Triples on the hand-bells was rung double-handed by Messrs. Boase, Richards, Symons, and Hicks.

That such outings are beneficial for all parties, as well as the art, may be inferred from their becoming so popular; and it is hoped that the St. Mary's company may spend such an enjoyable day on the occasion of their subsequent annual expeditions.

BICKLEIGH, DEVONSHIRE—RINGERS' OUTING.

On Friday, August 26th, the ringers of the above place, together with some young men friends, engaged a four-in-hand waggonette, to celebrate their first outing, leaving Bickleigh at 8.30, and journeying to Whitchurch, where a halt was made for two hours for the purpose of having a touch on the bells, but to the great disappointment of all hands, found the tenor out of working order. But notwithstanding this disappointment, the handbell party rang out some merry peals and tunes, while Mr. Taylor discovered the screws which were about to leave the tenor wheel, and by the use of a few tools to hand, soon enabled the band after very hard work to secure a 6-score. J. P. King, 1; J. Wilcocks, 2; J. Ham, 3; J. King, 4; E. Taylor (conductor), 5; W. G. Halls, 6. Time being called, all hands were soon neatly seated in the waggonette, and journeyed on through Tavistock to Lamerton. Here another halt was made, one hour and a half spent with the beautiful bells. These bells are all new, only a few years ago the church was burnt to the ground, and the old bells melted in the burning flames. Fortunately the property belongs to the Duke of Bedford, who has spared no expense in rebuilding, and has made the church and tower complete with six splendid bells. After a good look round, they went in for a touch on the bells, and many 6-scores were rung. J. P. King, 1; J. Wilcocks, 2; J. Ham, 3; J. King, 4; W. G. Halls, 5; H. Cole (conductor), 6. And several 6-scores, each called differently. J. P. King, 1; J. Wilcocks, 2; J. Ham, 3; E. Taylor (Plymouth, conductor), 4; W. G. Halls, 5; W. Giles, 6. Time again being called, justice was done to a good dinner, after which they again put horses to, and started for Newton Abbot, the end of their journey. Here they soon got the kind permission of the curate to do their best. Their best was far from good, the bells having not been rung during the summer, as they learnt from a ringer. The bad "go" of the bells, and the weather being so hot, has caused the long silence of this fine peal. However the visitors summoned courage to attack them, but after an hour's hard fighting they were defeated only by a few rounds of getting a 6-score. J. P. King, 1; E. Taylor (conductor), 2; J. Ham, 3; J. King, 4; W. G. Halls, 5; F. Moule, 6. Time being called for homeward, they bid farewell to Newton Abbot, by making their way straight for the Bedford Hotel, Tavistock, only to do justice to a tea which was a welcome spread for twenty-two, all told. By this time the tower clock had gone eight, and by 9.30 they were all safely landed at Bickleigh, after thirty miles drive. Altogether a most delightful day was spent.

OVERTON, FRODSHAM, CHESHIRE.

On Saturday, August 27th, the Daresbury society paid a visit to the beautiful church at the above place, and rang on the fine peal of bells a 720 of Bob Minor in 26 mins. T. Houghton, sen., (conductor), 1; P. Johnson, 2; A. de Prez, 3; C. Hartley, 4; P. Hamblett, 5; T. Houghton, jun., 6. And another 720 in the same method. P. Johnson (conductor), 1; D. Melbourne, 2; the rest standing as above. Tenor 19 cwt. This is the second time the society have visited this church since the reopening of the bells in the early part of the present year, they are in such splendid order, that it is quite a treat to ring them.

CURIOUS DEATH OF A SWALLOW.—Whilst playing on the Reading Cricket Ground, on Friday, August 19th, Mr. W. Newell, son of Mr. Newell, of the Mitre Brewery, West Street, in bowling struck a swallow with the cricket ball and killed the bird.

THE BIRMINGHAM AMALGAMATED SOCIETY.

On Monday, August 22nd, the members of the above society held their annual outing, the ancient town of Bridgnorth being the destination agreed upon. Starting from Snow Hill Station at 8.20 a.m., by an excursion train, they travelled slowly and safely, but it can hardly be said comfortably, as the (iron) horse although no doubt a valuable one, could hardly be described as quiet in harness, as he appeared to kick and plunge very much at each place, but perhaps the driver can explain that. Leaving the smoke of black Birmingham behind, the travellers passed through the harvest of the district into the beautiful and picturesque valley of the Severn, reaching that end of the journey at 10.20. The first "go" was to the Old Castle Inn, West Castle Street, and after refreshing the inner man, a start was made for the church of St. Leonard's, where a good long touch of Grandsire Triples was rung by the following members. C. Sparkes, 1; J. Carter, 2; R. Hackley, 3; T. Horton, 4; C. Barnacle, 5; J. T. Perry (conductor), 6; C. Carmell, 7; A. Hackley, 8. And a touch of Stedman Triples, with C. Sparkes, tenor. Being now time for dinner, the visitors again repaired to the inn, where a bountiful spread was awaiting them. At this touch all went remarkably well, the coming round course being first rate. Having done justice to the repast, which was served in excellent style, and sundry business matters disposed of, St. Mary's church, a peal of six, was visited, but only 120 of Doubles could be obtained by reason of the bad go of the bells. The visitors having still a little time in hand, two boats were chartered for a trip on the river, which was much enjoyed. Again gathering at the Old Castle Inn, a convivial hour was spent in songs, etc., concluding with a unanimous and hearty vote of thanks to the clergy and churchwardens for the use of the bells, and also to the hostess (Mrs. Lane), for the excellent manner in which she had catered for the company. So ended a very pleasant day at Bridgnorth, but the patience of the party was somewhat tried getting home, although it was the same (iron) horse, as they supposed, but he seemed more restive than ever, for after kicking and plunging, it varied its antics by stopping now and then for ten minutes at a time, causing them to do the thirty miles journey in two hours and forty minutes. On the arrival of the company in Birmingham, they heard that some visitors had been ringing at one of the belfries under their jurisdiction, without going to the trouble of communicating such intention to them. Wonder was rife among the "Amalgamateds" as to whom such visitors were. It transpired, however, that a few members of the St. Martin's company, taking advantage of the absence of the society at their outing, attempted a peal. Was this surreptitious proceeding done in order that their coming-round course might not be criticised?

THE CHILDREN'S HARVEST FESTIVAL.

Mothers' pets of baby size,
 Toddling feet and wondering eyes,
 Round-faced lads and lasses good,
 Budding slips of womanhood—
 Through the old lych-gate they press,
 Glad, yet grave, a goodly band,
 Garbed in decent Sabbath dress,
 Harvest gifts in every hand.

Once again beneath the eye
 Shorn and bare the cornfields lie;
 Once again o'er all the land
 Fairly domed the cornricks stand:
 New-year rains, and March's blast,
 August suns of golden cheer,
 Plumped the russet spikes at last—
 Lo! His goodness crowns the year.

HEREFORD CATHEDRAL.

The diocese of Hereford is one of the most ancient in England. It consists of the archdeaconries of Hereford and Salop, in the province of Canterbury. The Cathedral, built about 1280, stands on the south side of the city. It is a cruciform building, with a small transept towards the east, and a chapel beyond it, dedicated to the Virgin. From the interstices of the nave and transept rises a square tower, which had formerly a spire upon it, cased with lead, and rising 92 feet in height above the battlements; but this was pulled down in order to relieve the arches of the tower from so much superincumbent weight. The general dimensions of the cathedral are as follows:—Extreme length, 325 feet; from the west door to the choir, 130 feet; length of the choir, 96 feet; from the choir to the library door, 24 feet; length of the library, 75 feet; extent of the great transept, 100 feet; breadth of the nave and side aisles, 74 feet; breadth of the nave, 38 feet; height of the body of the church, 91 feet; height from the area to the vaulting, 70 feet. The exterior is very dissimilar in its parts, and has lost much of its original design, but the interior is still very attractive. Almost all the buildings dependent upon the Cathedral are situated upon its south side. The Bishop's Cloisters, which form the communication between the cathedral and the palace, enclose an area of almost 100 feet square, appropriated to the purposes of sepulture. The great feature of the church is its grand central tower of two storeys and battlemented. The pinnacles were added in 1858. The fifty canopied stalls of oak in the Choir are of the age of Edward II., and were restored under the care of Dr. Meyrick, of Goodrich Court. In this church in 1141, King Stephen took his seat crowned. In the Chapter-house is one of the oldest maps extant, a Saxon Mappi Mundi, having Jerusalem in the centre, with inscriptions of the date of Henry III. The triennial meetings of the choirs of Gloucester, Worcester, and Hereford, for charitable purposes in rotation, were established in 1724. The principal monuments are the following:—East Aisle, North Main Transept, St. Catharine's Aisle: Freestone shrine of Bishop Cantelupe, died 1282, with knights treading on lions and dragons. Transept, North Wing: Bishop Aqua Bella, died 1269; effigy, triple arcade and canopy. Bishop L. Charlton, died 1369, effigy under a rich pedimented canopy. Bishop Westphaling, effigy. Philips, the poet, is buried here. South Main Transept: Bishop Trevenant, died 1403. Alexander Denton, died in 1576; and his wife, effigies. Choir Transept, North Side: Bishop Richard Swinfield, died 1317, tomb. Bishop Goodwin, tomb. South Aisle Choir, North Wall: Bishop Mayo, died 1516, canopy, altar-tomb, with images, effigy. Bishop Raynelm, died 1115, effigy under arch, and arcade above. South Wall: Bishops Devere, died 1199; Foliot, died 1186; Betun, died 1145; and Melun, died 1167—effigies in triangular recesses. A brass of Dean Frocester, died 1529, on the floor. Nave, North Aisle: Bishop Boothe, died 1535, effigy. South Aisle: Sir Richard Pembroke, died 1375, effigy. Bishop W. de Lorraine, died 1079, effigy. Bishop G. de Bruse, died 1200. Lady Chapel, North Wall: Humphery de Bohun, effigy, time of Richard II. Effigy of a lady with frescoes, under recessed arch; several black incised slabs of the earlier part of the 15th century, the hands and face inlaid with white marble; a fragment of St. Ethelbert's image. Bishops Lothingar, died 1095; Clyve, died 1119; and Mapenore, died 1219, effigies. South Wall: John Berew, effigy, under arch.

Hereford Cathedral has a peal of ten bells, tenor 41 cwt., but sadly out of order; the ringing chamber presents almost insuperable difficulties to ringing worthy of the name. No record is in existence of anything having been done on them.

ST. MARY-LE-TOWER, IPSWICH.

Tuesday, August 30th, being practice night at the above church, by the kind arrangement of Messrs. W. L. Catchpole, and I. S. Alexander, the ringers met earlier than their usual time, to enable Mr. Hubbard, of Tottenham, who is staying in the neighbourhood, to have a pull with them on their splendid peal of twelve, of which they have good cause to be justly proud. Ringing commenced with a touch of Treble Bob Major, struck in the manner the "tower ringers" are noted for, after which a course of Treble Bob Royal, and a short touch of Treble Bob Maximus were rung. A course of Double Norwich Royal closed a very enjoyable ringing evening. On the previous Tuesday evening, the ringing consisted of touches of Stedman Triples, and Stedman Caters, Mr. Hubbard ringing the treble as before. St. Mary-le-Tower is a splendid place for ringing, the peal is a grand one, and the go of the bells and the fitting and appointments are all that could be desired, and in first rate condition, though this goes without saying as Mr. Catchpole's reputation as a steeplekeeper is too well known to make any other condition possible, whilst the evidence of the unusually numerous and handsome peal tablets (a large proportion of which are of recent date), with which the walls of the belfry are covered, is proof that the ringers are up to their work, and well able to sustain the reputation they have fairly earned, and a very short acquaintance with them is sufficient to show that they are ringers from the best possible motive—the love of the science.

ST. PETER'S SOCIETY, TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

On Wednesday, August 24th, the members of the above society had their annual outing, the place selected this year being Eastbourne. The party left Tunbridge Wells by the 7.30 train, arriving at their destination about 9.20. Here they were met by two of the local ringers, who conducted the party to St. Mary's church, when, after raising the bells in peal, they rang several touches of Grandsire Doubles for the purpose of giving the young hands a pull. The company then rang a 336 of Grandsire Triples. C. Latter, 1; E. Mankelow, 2; J. Colthup, 3; J. Muggeridge, 4; W. Latter, 5; H. Barefield (conductor), 6; G. Kember, 7; T. Gill, 8. Also a 504 with some of the Eastbourne band. J. Colthup, 1; W. Latter, 2; H. Barefield, 3; L. Huggett, 4; *T. Lewis, 5; T. Hart (conductor), 6; *G. Kember, 7; J. Muggeridge, 8. And a 308. W. Latter, 1; H. Barefield, 2; J. Colthup, 3; *C. Harfey, 4; *L. Huggett, 5; *T. Lewis, 6; *T. Hart (conductor), 7; T. Gill, 8. The party then lowered the bells, and after a dip in the briny, and dinner, they proceeded by break to Beachy Head, where a pleasant hour was spent. The company arrived at Tunbridge Wells about 9 o'clock, well pleased with their day's outing. The ringers wish through this paper to return thanks to the St. Mary's ringers for kindly meeting them, and arranging for the use of the bells. *Eastbourne ringers.

THOUGHTS IN OUR ORCHARD—Now the ripening boughs are "big with bending fruit," the apples grow like fire between the leaves, the pears down upon the grass, the plums make a rich show on many a sun-kissed wall. "'Go shares,'" says a pastor, "is an excellent rule to do with everything we get, not only as children." There have been seasons when fruit growers declared it scarcely paid them to pick the fruit, there was so much of it; but London Sunday-school teachers and other workers, arranging festivals with scanty funds, could have told of eager eyes and ready lips still more plentiful, and of work-rooms, sick chambers, lonely ones to whom a gift of fruit would have seemed a god-send. In sending flowers to the city, let all bear in mind just now a guerdon of fruit likewise. And as we stand amongst these trees that have fulfilled the promise of their blossom, should we not humbly ask ourselves if he who has spared us year by year is finding fruit to His praise? There are many whose bloom the world has beheld, of whom He may be sighing now, "Nothing but leaves;" there are those to whom earth scarce gives a thought, who are bringing forth fruit an hundredfold beneath the sunshine of the Master's smiles. One of Mrs. Prosser's helpful little fables concerns an espalier loaded with fruit, reproached by a tall apple-tree because its branches were lying on the ground. "Every one admires my fruit," it said: "no one can see whether you've any fruit or not."—"I'm not too low down," said the espalier, "for the master to find it when the time comes; till then I am content to wait."—From "The Quiver," for September.

HERE AND THERE.

The "sixty courses of Stedman Caters" business seems to grow. I cannot say that I am "up" in the method at all, and therefore I must not venture an opinion upon the subject. But we live and learn. While the gladiators of the science are employed I shall look on. Lookers-on, it is said, see most of the game. I can well understand the surprise, indignation, etc., etc., which the allegation of a member (not quite unknown) of the Oxford Guild has made. But law, the Thames isn't on fire yet with it.

This subject has engrossed more attention than the circumstances surrounding the Chelmsford peal, and well it is so, because I've got the tip that there has been enough said on the latter subject. Mr. Editor bids me to "draw the line." I don't know whether he intends that as a pun or not. We ringers all draw the line (or rope) occasionally. Better is it when the bell draws. Those correspondents, therefore, who have sent me their "copy" on the Chelmsford topic need not send any more, for I cannot deal with it again. If they feel themselves aggrieved, they must grin and endure it, that's all.

Now my old friend DAINS, your prophecy, or conjecture, has I hope come to pass. You recollect saying that if I go on as indicated, we shall all be laughing at one another soon, and so nobody can grumble. I hope this is the case with those gentlemen who have felt themselves hit by the remarks anent the Chelmsford peal—that they are in a good humour with me after all. But I forget; I must "draw the line." Let us have a laugh together, Harry, and blow the consequences. Ha! ha! ha!

I have been taking a general synopsis (I don't know whether that's the right word) or review of the touches, that is to say, the reports of them which appear weekly in our journal. There are many towns in England, I find, very rarely represented among such reports. Of counties, when do we hear of anything from Huntingdon, Rutland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, or Dorset? Not very often, I think. Can or will any one of my readers explain this?

This brings me to refer to other absentees among the records of performances. What's become of the Burton-on-Trent people? Since the lamented and somewhat untimely death of the Rev. J. H. FISH, they have been very quiet. If their silence is intended as a token of respect to his memory, I can heartily sympathise with and well understand it. It has however been hinted to me that now his supervision has ceased, the esprit de corps (I hope that's a correct quotation), has also vanished or become lessened. I think it is generally held that his strong force of character had a deal to do with the great successes the Burton gentlemen had achieved. This is written with the kindest intentions, therefore I hope Mr. WAKLEY or Mr. GRIFFIN will not be angry with me for just alluding to it.

A very remarkable feat in bellringing comes this week from Ireland. In that country there is a place called Herbertstown, where upon an estate some of those heartrending scenes—evictions—have been enacted. The approach of the law's myrmidons was signalled, (so says a daily paper), "by the tolling of the chapel bell. This bell broke in two, owing to the vigour applied by the ringers, who had commenced their work as early as three in the morning." In what category are these ringers to be placed? That of a benighted age, or what? Belfry reform has not reached Herbertstown; and of course there is no county or diocesan association. The chapel will require another bell, can nobody persuade the authorities to have six or eight? There will then be a chance for those obliging persons of mediocre attainments, who are so anxious to become instructors, many of whom are well known to A NEW MAN.

A JOURNEY TO EXETER.

ON Monday, August 15th, I started from Salisbury in company with Mr. C. A. Clements at about 10.0 a.m. We arrived at Shaftesbury at 2 p.m., and having dined we proceeded to Sherborne, arriving at 6.35 p.m. after a hot and dusty journey over bad roads. Here we made a stay of one day. We were met by Mr. Bishop and shewn over Sherborne Abbey. On Tuesday we examined the bells, which are the heaviest peal of eight in England, the tenor weighing 46 cwt. according to Warner's list. The original peal was one of six, with a tenor somewhat heavier than the present one, the treble and second being added by Mears in 1858, who also recast the sixth. The original tenor was given by Cardinal Wolsey, but she has been recast more than once, the last time being in 1865 by Messrs. Warner and Sons. A piece of the old bell is preserved in the King's School Museum. There is also a Sanctus bell and a fire bell of peculiar shape, something like a modern sheep bell. I shall not give full particulars of these bells here, but I propose to do so in the course of a week or two, as they are of special interest. In the evening we met Mr. S. Hunt and the rest of the Sherborne company, and had a pull on these grand bells. Ten men are required to ring them (there being two to each of the larger bells). The seventh does not go well; in my opinion the stock is much too large and heavy. These bells would make a grand peal of twelve if four trebles were added. After taking leave of our friends at Sherborne we made our way next day to Honiton, and thence on the following day to Exeter. The last twenty miles or so of the road was the worst we ever saw for a main highway road, being little better than the shingle on a sea beach, consequently we could only proceed at a very slow pace. Reaching Exeter at 2 p.m. on Thursday, we put up at the "Bude" Hotel, and in the afternoon we called upon Mr. F. Shepherd, who informed us that a peal was arranged at six o'clock at St. Sidwell's. Thither we betook ourselves in company with Mr. Shepherd, and there we met the rest of the St. Sidwell's company, and the Rev. G. F. Coleridge, who happened to be on a visit. Shortly before 7 p.m. we started for Hollis's five-part peal of Grandsire Triples, which unfortunately came to grief after ringing for a little over half an hour. As there was not time to start again we had to content ourselves with short touches. On the following morning Mr. F. Shepherd shewed us round the town and introduced us to Mr. Edworthy, the steeple-keeper at the cathedral, in company with whom we ascended the belfry and examined this grand peal of ten (the heaviest in England) tenor 67 cwt. These bells are not in very good order, as is well known. They are hung in rather a curious manner, the ropes falling in ranks one behind the other. The treble, fifth, eighth and tenor were cast by Wm. Evans in 1729. The second is inscribed "ANNO DO: 1616. I.B." The third is by John Pennington, 1658, the fourth and seventh and ninth by Thos. Purdue, 1676, and the sixth also by Purdue, in 1693. There is an extra fourth bell by J. Pennington, in 1630, which enables the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th to be used as a peal of six. In the ringing chamber is a tablet of rules enclosed with folding doors, within which is kept a constable's staff, which we were told was used to enforce obedience thereto. It requires sixteen men to ring the ten bells. A set of Ellacombe chiming hammers is used to chime for the services, but as the manual is placed below in the transept, the great length of cord makes it impossible to chime with any great precision, and only at a very slow pace. The effect outside is miserable. Mr. Edworthy informed us that it is impossible for him to hear the bells when he is chiming, and that it is only by practice that he knows whether the hammers strike or not. A full history and description of the bells was published by the late Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, in 1874, which it would be superfluous for me to attempt to supplement. On Friday afternoon we paid a visit to Clist St. George, and examined the beautiful carvings and other works of art in the church, many of which were executed by the late Rector (Rev. H. T. Ellacombe), with his own hands. Ascending the tower we had a look at the bells. These originally were but three in number, but in 1860 a treble was added, and again in 1862 another one above the former, the fourth being recast the same year. This treble was put up in memory of the late Prince Consort. In 1864 a new tenor was added by Mr. Ellacombe in memory of his grandson. Thus a peal of six was made up. On the stock of the tenor the initials "H. T. E." are carved (probably by the venerable rector himself). All the new bells are by Warner and Sons. On Friday evening we rang several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles at St. Thomas', Exeter, tenor 14 cwt. On Saturday we went to Tiverton with the Exeter company, where we met Mr. Monday, and started for a peal of Grandsire Triples, but we were again unfortunate, and as there was no time for a second attempt several short touches of Stedman and Grandsire were rung before returning. Tiverton bells are in the key of D flat, tenor 28 cwt. They are in excellent ringing order and the belfry arrangements are simply perfect. The restoration of the bells and belfry are mainly due to the exertions of Mr. Mackenzie. On Sunday morning we rang at St. Sidwell's, Exeter, after which Mr. Clements went to the cathedral service, whilst I made my way to St. Mary Major. Here I found a man pounding away at a bell of about 15 cwt. with a hammer and cord attached. The service at St. Mary Major was conducted in decidedly low-church style, the sermon was most evangelical and unpractical, and as soon as the celebration of Holy Communion began the whole of the choir, both boys and men, left the church. Evidently this part of the service was considered quite of minor importance. In the evening we rang a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples at St. Sidwell's. We attended the evening service at St. Sidwell's and found it a great improvement on my morning experience at St. Mary Major. The service was hearty and well rendered, without any excessive or ridiculous display of ritual, and the sermon thoroughly practical. After service we took leave of our Exeter friends, and on Monday morning began our homeward journey, which we safely accomplished in two days, having thoroughly enjoyed our visit.

THE BELLS OF ST. SEPULCHRE.

Much recently has been written concerning the bells of the church of St. Sepulchre, London. In Wednesday's City Press, the subject was referred to by "Dogberry." Perhaps it will be as well to state that in the belfry of St. Sepulchre's are eleven bells. One which is known as "the Saint's bell," occupies a distinct place in the tower. This has not been used for some years. Of the ten—which are used for ringing a peal—a full description was given in a recent number of the City Press. As was noticed in Wednesday's issue, the tenor, owing to some repairs, was slightly out of gear, and could not be depended on. The little difficulty has now been remedied, and "the peal that was to have been rung on Jubilee Day—written expressly for these ten bells," but which, owing to the fault in the tenor, was not rung on that occasion—will now shortly be given. With regard to the tolling on the occasion of executions at Newgate, a paragraph has been inserted in an evening contemporary to the effect that recently a medical student endeavoured to bribe the man who tolls to allow him to "pull the bell" when a certain execution took place. There is absolutely no foundation for any such rumour. The person deputed to do this particular work has never seen "a stranger on the subject." And it would be impossible for any person to get into the belfry without the knowledge and consent of the sexton. And this official has never so much as been asked about anything of the kind. There is a Sole's gift in connexion with this parish. Sole was an old resident in the parish of St. Sepulchre. He belonged to the Clothworkers' Company. He directed that out of his estate "£1 16s. 8d. shall be paid yearlie to the sexton of St. Sepulchre for hym to toll the big bell whenever an execution takes place at ye prison in the Old Bailey." There is a note in the will to the effect that this is to be paid "for ever." This bequest has been carried out with a slight deviation. For years the bell was tolled for an hour. Some short time since the inhabitants complained, since which the bell has tolled for half-an-hour only on execution mornings.—City Press.

HALSALL (near Ormskirk, Lancashire).—Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, have recast the cracked 5th of the peal of six, and newly hung the whole peal with entirely new fittings and iron framework. The weight of the new bell is 8 cwt. 2 lbs.

Brought round with calls at 2, 13s, 15, 16, 18 sixes. This peal has the 4th, 5th, and 6th their extent in fifth's place in natural courses—viz. twelve times each, and with a very slight exception is composed in the least number of courses possible for a peal to possess these qualities. The second course can be produced with calls at 1, 3, 4, 7s, 12s, 17, 19 sixes, and reduces the peal to 5153, but this could not be considered a natural course.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1887.

So many communications have reached us in connection with the statements concerning the possibility or impossibility of the production of a peal of Stedman Caters containing the sixty courses with the large bells undisturbed and a fixed bell in second's place, that we are impelled to again revert to the subject, and this without bringing into question either the propriety or otherwise of the discussion. The Exercise has hitherto believed that the question was decided long ago, and that the competition for the first peal having these coveted properties, which took place about forty years since, was final and conclusive. An assertion to the contrary cannot therefore lightly be ignored, in fact upon such an important matter it seems our duty to make an attempt to lead the several disputants to a correct view of the real points at issue, if not to a solution of what at present appears a problem.

The present contention is, then, that the peal with the properties referred to has never yet been obtained. To contradict this a number of well known peals are quoted to show that such a contention is without the least foundation. But here we would point out that such compositions as are brought forward to substantiate the latter hypothesis do not conform to the conditions laid down—viz., sixty courses (not merely course-ends), with bobs only. Therefore peals with singles or doubles are practically out of court, and no further reference therefore may be made to them for the present purpose.

Now let us look at those compositions which have always been held to contain the properties in question—produced with bobs only. And first is the 6701 by the late JOHN COX, rung at Bermondsey in the year 1846.

That this is an excellent and symmetrical composition no one will deny. The introductory course is a full one—eighteen sixes—but the fixed bells are not all brought into their position until the last six but one of that course. The sixty-first course-end from 231456 is 624135, a bob at the fifteenth six removing the treble, the bells being brought round from that course-end. There are two other peals in the same edition of Hubbard—one by HALEY, the other by COX. Both these appear to be nearer the mark desired by Mr. WASHBROOK, as in each of them the bells are by bobs at 1, 4, 5, 6 fixed at the last number, and keep their position up to and at the sixtieth course-end. But the desideratum is, as we take it, that the whole sixty courses, in regular and consecutive order, shall have these fixed bells in their places. The possibility of attaining this by the means already mentioned is denied.

The same idea which apparently has occurred to the Rev. H. EARLE BULWER has presented itself to us, viz., that the end at present in view is possible of attainment. We have just stated that in the last peals alluded to the treble is brought into the required position by three consecutive bobs at 4, 5, and 6, in the introductory course. If the idea of having the treble a fixed bell is abandoned, and the 3rd, being the bell already in seconds, is utilised in its place, the necessity for these three bobs is dispensed with, and the peal can of course be proceeded with at once, the bob on going off into changes to put the bells into the tittums having no effect whatever, because that bob, if used, is made exactly at the commencement of the course. It would seem that in this manner the sixty complete courses could be obtained, upon the plan of the peal of Mr. Cox's—6586 changes—published in Hubbard. At first sight it appears a matter of no difficulty, the doing away with the treble and taking in its stead a bell already in the place required, but the elimination of the three bobs may prove an important factor in the construction of the peal; and in fact overthrow it. If the peals which we have here alluded to are perused, our observations will no doubt be more easily understood.

It remains then to ask—"Has the sixty courses yet been produced?" For all practical purposes we may answer in the affirmative, though coming to the exact letter and spirit of the phrase, a production of the kind insisted on has, so far as we know, never yet been found in print. Though we can afford perhaps to make light of the assertion which has been made, as savouring of pedantry or conceit, yet it is not wise to ignore such a position, especially when taken up by an individual who evidently has probed the question. We are not at one with the innovation, for innovation it seems to be, nevertheless. But we have felt it our duty to examine it, and having done so, we have no love for it after all. The peal of JOHN COX will to us be the "sixty courses" so long as we are able to understand anything of the theory of composition.

Mr. J. Fisher, of Montpellier Lodge, Cheltenham, would be much obliged if someone would recommend him a good American newspaper for advertisements, with the name and address of the Editor.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

On Tuesday, August 23rd, Messrs. Allan, Cullip, Clarke, Chapman, Hills, Frossell (Bedford); and Mr. C. Craddock (Biggleswade), paid a visit to the parish of Southill, and rang at All Saints' church a 720 of Bob Minor (eight bobs and six singles). W. Allan, 1; C. Craddock, 2; H. Chapman, 3; C. W. Clarke (conductor), 4; J. N. Frossell, 5; I. Hill, 6. This was followed by some Oxford Treble Bob, and Grandsire Doubles. Also courses of Grandsire Triples, and Kent Treble Bob Minor, on the handbells, which brought the ringing to an end. The visitors wish to express their best thanks to the vicar for the use of the bells on this occasion. The bells are a nice ring of six, but they go badly. The following is the diameter's and height, and maker's name of each bell:

ENGINES AND DRIVERS.—It would be easy to give many stories of the drivers of the old locomotives—of those who, in days when "Time-tables" were not regularly stopped at one prolific field to gather mushrooms; of the straight-spoken engine-man who, when remonstrated with for "racing" at the rate of fourteen miles per hour, averred that he would keep up to that rate if he "burst the boiler;" and of the north-countryman who, not a score of years ago, declined to join in a strike because of his attachment to the engine he drove, and he "couldn't trust her" to a stranger. But the service "on the line" has been systematised now, and whilst the convenience of the public has been consulted, the idiosyncrasies of locomotive builders and drivers have gone. The construction of the engine is no longer confined to one small establishment at Newcastle, nor the repairs to a "barn-like erection" at Shildon, in Durham, as was the case in 1825. The Tyne is no longer the chief of constructing centres—Manchester and Glasgow are its rivals, so far as private builders are concerned; and Crewe, with its wonderful works, Derby, Doncaster, Manchester, Swindon, and other places are the centres of the works of those great companies which chiefly build their own iron steeds.—From Cassell's Family Magazine for September.

OLD CLEEVE, WEST SOMERSET.

For some time past it has been the general wish of the members of the Guild of Change-ringers connected with the parish church of St. Andrew, Old Cleeve, to have a day's ringing somewhere in the neighbourhood. We are all young beginners just able to ring Grandsire on five bells. After some discussion as to where we should go, it was finally decided to charter a conveyance and drive through Bishops Lydeard and Norton Fitzwarren finishing up with a pull on the fine peal of ten at St. Mary Magdalene's, Taunton. Permission having been kindly granted to us to ring at these various places, Saturday last was the day fixed. Rain rather threatened to mar some of our enjoyment, but eventually the weather turned out to be everything that we could wish. The party consisted of Messrs. C. Chapman, J. M. Williams, E. Cridland, J. Griffiths, W. H. Gaye, W. Cridland and H. W. Tomkins.

A start having been made about 7 a.m., we were soon bowling merrily along through Williton in the direction of the Quantock Hills, whose heath covered slopes and deep coombes looking picturesque in the distance will soon re-echo the merry sounds of the huntsman's horn, for early in September the renowned Devon and Somerset staghounds are to have their first meet close to the pretty village of Crowcombe, which lies nestled at the foot of the hills, and which we reached after about an hour's drive. We made a slight halt here for refreshment, and then without further delay on to Bishops Lydeard. The vicar, the Rev. W. F. Eustace, gave us a hearty welcome, and conducted us to the church, which, together with the tower is certainly very handsome, and was justly admired by us all. The fine old oak screen and the tastefully decorated chancel were special objects of admiration. Some of the carved work on the seat ends too were pointed out to us by the Vicar as being very old and rare, and of very curious design. On one was represented the heart, hands and feet of Our Saviour surrounded by the crown of thorns and the nails. On another we noticed a rude carving of a slip, representing the Church. We were now conducted by the Vicar to the belfry, where we hoped to find things in something like the same order as the Church, but we were doomed to be disappointed. The tone of the bells, which are a five ring of eight, tenor about 29 cwt., met with general approval, but the "go" of them drew from us a corresponding amount of disapproval. We could do nothing in the way of change-ringing, and rounds even could only be accomplished with difficulty. A 6-score of Grandsire Doubles was rung outside the tower in the presence of the Vicar, who expressed himself much pleased with it. Our journey was then resumed and on arriving at Norton Fitzwarren we raised the bells in peal, and rang several 120's on them. They are a nice ring of six, tenor about 13 cwt., and go very well, the ropes though are very small and our hands suffered in consequence. Leaving the tower we without further delay made our way towards Taunton. Dinner, a most important item on a ringer's programme of a day's outing, was next partaken of at Mr. Wickenden's, after which having fastened on Mr. T. Doble, the conductor of the St. Mary's company, we were soon in the belfry of the exceedingly handsome tower. Here there is a grand ring of ten, the finest in the county, in splendid going order, with a tenor about 38 cwt. Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, a short time since thoroughly overhauled these bells (formerly a peal of eight), cast two additional trebles, and recast those of the old bells that required it, and re-hanging the whole in a massive iron A frame. Several 120's of Grandsire Doubles were rung on the front six. C. Chapman, 1; J. M. Williams, 2; J. Griffiths, 3; W. H. Gaye, 4; H. W. Tomkins (conductor), 5; W. Cridland, 6. Mr. T. Doble then joined in some 120's both on the back and front six, and we finished up with some well-struck rounds on the ten, three members of the Taunton Guild joining with us. After spending a pleasant hour in the company of our Taunton friends, we started for home, everyone having thoroughly enjoyed himself.

It is much to be regretted that throughout the whole county of Somerset so little half-pull ringing is done, the old style of call changes seems to predominate everywhere, in fact there are only three or four places in which the scientific method is practised at all. At Dunster (four miles from Old Cleeve) there is a fine ring of eight, tenor 21 cwt., in first class condition, with a belfry which for excellency of its appointments is scarcely surpassed in England. Here several peals of Grandsire Triples have been rung, and other methods are practised, and it is to the members of the Dunster Guild that we are indebted for what we know about change-ringing. In our own tower we have a very musical ring of six, tenor 18½ cwt. cast by Messrs. Taylor and Co., in 1884, the "go" of them being perfect. Situated as we are, so far from any ringing centre, we can only read in "THE BELL NEWS" and wonder at such performances as we see recorded therein, methods which are so far beyond us down here in West Somerset. I feel sure that a hearty welcome would be given by our friends at Dunster and Taunton and by us here to any of those gentlemen whose names appear so often in connection with peals in "THE BELL NEWS," should they at any time contemplate a trip westward into this, the prettiest corner of West Somerset.

STRANGE ANTIPATHIES.—Charles Kingsley, naturalist as he was to the core, had a great horror of spiders; and in "Glaucus," after saying that every one seems to have his antipathic animal, continues:—"I know one [himself] bred from his childhood to zoology by land and sea, and bold in asserting and honest in feeling that all without exception is beautiful, who yet cannot, after handling and petting and examining all day long every uncouth and venomous beast, avoid a paroxysm of horror at the sight of the common house spider." The writer shares this dislike to a painful extent; in this case it is inherited from his grandfather. The genial author of the "Turkish Spy" says that he would far prefer sword in hand to face a lion in his desert lair, than have a spider crawl over him in the dark. The cat has repeatedly been an object of aversion. The Duke of Schomberg, though a redoubtable soldier, would not sit in the same room with a cat. A courtier of the Emperor Ferdinand carried this dislike so far as to bleed at the nose on hearing a cat mew. Dogs, too, have come in for their share of dislike. De Musset cordially detested them. When a candidate of the Academy he called upon a prominent member. At the gate of the château a dirty ugly dog received him most affectionately, and insisted on preceding him into the drawing room, De Musset cursing his friends predilection for the brute. The Academician entered, and they adjourned to the dining room, the dog at their heels. Seizing his opportunity, the dog placed his muddy paws upon the spotless cloth and carried off a bonne bouche. "The wretch wants shooting!" was De Musset's muttered thought, but he politely said, "You are fond of dogs, I see?" "Fond of dogs?" retorted the Academician. "I hate them!" "But this animal here?" queried De Musset. "I have only tolerated it because it was yours, sir." "Mine!" exclaimed the poet; "the thought that it was yours alone kept me from killing him!"—From "Cassell's Family Magazine" for September.

NICHOLAS POUSSIN.—In a letter to one of his friends, written in 1647, Poussin illustrates his ideas on painting from the Greek theory of modes in music. According to this theory a particular subject could only be treated in its appropriate mode. If it was grave, serious, and full of wisdom, the Doric mode would be used; if vehement and furious, the Phrygian; if melancholy or plaintive, the Lydian; if peculiarly sweet and touching, the Hypolydian; if jocund, Ionic. It is clear that he did himself practically apply this theory to painting, since, in this same letter, he says, "I hope before another year is over to paint a picture in the Phrygian mode. To discover, he said, the right mode in which a subject should be treated, the painter must carefully consider the dominant feeling it is intended to inspire. And if he does this he will not only discover the mode, but its exact variety. Nowhere can the results Poussin obtained by this rule be better seen than at the Louvre, where he is represented by thirty-nine paintings, among them being his finest.—Richard Heath, in the "Magazine of Art" for September.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

"USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS."

SIR,—I can assure Mr. Dains that I had not the least intention of using his property, and apologise for having unwittingly done so. With regard to the latter part of his letter, I may say there is an error in the peal as published (whether on my part or not I am unable to say), inasmuch as the 13th course is omitted altogether. That course I now give—

M W H
6 5 3 2 4 2 1 1

Mr. Dains will now readily perceive that (1), it is not a touch of 4756 changes; (2), that it is quite unnecessary to part the tenors; (3), that the bells need not be jumped into rounds; (4), that it is a true and complete peal of Treble Bob Major, containing 5088 changes. Of course I drop my claim to the peal in favour of Mr. Dains. Whilst writing, I may inform your correspondent that the peal published in your issue of the 20th, as the composition of Mr. Price, was claimed by Mr. Knights, and the claim allowed, and I consider that it was quite unnecessary for Mr. Dains to give the fourth edition of it. How Mr. Price came to publish the peal again as his own after relinquishing his claim in favour of Mr. Knights, I am quite at a loss to understand. Perhaps he will explain.

JAMES S. WILDE.

Hyde, August 30th.

ON PEALS TRUE AND FALSE.

SIR,—I think Mr. Dains is in error when he says that the 8064 of Double Norwich by Mr. Washbrook is false, for if it is examined it will be found perfectly true, the part end should be 53426 not 23546 as given, which of course alters the qualities of the peal, the 2nd being no less than 12 courses in 6th's place in the 2nd part. I think the Exercise should know that the peal of 5024 Albion Major, on 257, with Mr. Pritchard's name attached, is the first half of Mr. J. Barker's well known peal of 5024 Bob Major, from Rope-Sight. Also that the 12,320 Albion in "THE BELL NEWS" of July 30th, by Mr. J. J. Brierley, is false, at middle in the 1st and 4th courses.

K.

QUICK PEALS.

SIR,—I see in your last issue, Mr. Catchpole, of Ipswich, has an opinion a peal of Stedman Triples cannot be rung at Christ Church, Oxford, in 3 hrs and 9 mins; if he entertains any doubt as to the correctness of the peal, I will refer him to Mr. C. Hounslow and Mr. J. Field, two first-class men at putting down course-ends, and who heard all the peal, and I will also inform him we ring true peals, if he don't, and if he will come to Oxford we will show him that we can ring a peal at the same tower in less time than that. What would be the use of ringing false peals? Oh, no, Mr. Catchpole, we don't do that sort of thing about here. The peal in question was a splendidly struck one, and rung as Thomas Thurstans composed it, every six, and I hope Mr. Catchpole will always be as particular in that respect as

J. W. WASHBROOK.

SIR,—In your last week's issue of "THE BELL NEWS" I noticed a remark by Mr. Catchpole, on the peal of Stedman Triples rang at Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford, on August 11th last, tenor 42 cwt. He seems to doubt its performance. As a visitor to Oxford and one that rung in the peal, I can assure him it was as true and complete a peal of Stedman Triples as ever was rung, the striking being good and not a hitch throughout. I am sure if Mr. Catchpole were to visit Oxford Cathedral he would find that the back eight, tenor 42 cwt. could be rung at 26 and two-thirds per minute, as they were in the peal of Stedman Triples (conducted by Mr. J. W. Washbrook), on August 11th, 1887.

GEORGE WILLIAMS.

ANOTHER NEW METHOD—"GUILTY" SURPRISE.

SIR,—Arrangements were made on Sunday night last, by a mixed band, three from Christ Church, Barlow Moor, and three from Northenden, to attempt a 5040 of Plain Bob Minor, each 720 to be called different, to meet the following night. All went on well for 1 hr. 53 mins. 2760 changes being rung, at this moment the ringers were greatly surprised by enormous knocking at the door, which brought the company to confusion, and all was lost. On going out to see the matter, we were surprised to find one of the local ringers hiding round the corner of the church; strange to say this ringer has rang many 720's with the company. This shows that he is like the dog in the manger, if he cannot ring it no one else shall.

A LOVER OF CHANGE-RINGING.

THE CHELMSFORD PEAL.

SIR,—A word as to the above. In "THE BELL NEWS" of August 13th, I read amongst the remarks of "A New Man" the following sentence, apropos the election of Mr. Smith in the Galleywood belfry on July 30th, and his ringing in the Chelmsford peal on August 1st. "A plea may be set up that such member (sic) was elected in the tower but no notification having appeared—as has hitherto been an unwritten law—the question arises if the peal was a bona fide one beyond the Cumberlands." Now Sir, now what authority has "A New Man" to say that such an unwritten law has ever existed in our Association? I deny the truth of his assertion entirely. Since the rule about the election of members on the occasion of an attempt at a peal was made, such a thing has never even been hinted at at any meeting of the Association, or in the presence of any officer, unless within the last twelve months, which I do not think has been the case. As long as the ringer is duly elected in the tower, and intimation of his election given to the Hon. Secretary, no further notice of any sort is required, and the gentleman thus elected is fully entitled to consider himself a full member of the Association, from the time of election onwards, unless at the ensuing meeting his election is not confirmed. If it is not, of course, no peal of his can be inserted in the peal book, but if it is, any peals that he may have rung since his election with other members of the Association are just as much Association peals as the first. What is there in our rules that could lead "A New Man" to suppose that he might be a member three hours after his election, but that in two days time he would be so no more? Such an idea is utterly absurd. We shall next hear that "Mr. Jones was elected before starting for the peal, which however broke down after two hours ringing (owing to the treble attempting to go into the hunt at a bob). After a rest of half an hour a fresh start was made, and the peal brought round; but since Mr. Jones was not re-elected before the second attempt, the question arises if the peal was a bona fide Association peal." The question as to who did "most of the fighting" for the return of the two trebles, is neither here nor there. The "fighting" was done by members of the Essex Association. Whether they were Cumberlands or College Youths is no matter. Would that all members of our Association could remember and act up to the sentiment expressed a year or two ago at one of our Annual Meetings by my good friend, Mr. J. M. Hayes. "We are not College Youths, and we are not Cumberlands to day, we are members of the Essex Association." Were this the case we should see no more letters in your paper, teeming with black bags, or jealous, carping complaints from those who had not the good fortune to be in a "first peal," and have not the largeness of mind to feel pleasure at the success of brother members. By all means let the friendly rivalry between the two great societies be maintained, but a truce to such rivalry as that which appears to have been shown over this Chelmsford peal, and which to my mind is anything but friendly. And please, Mr. "New Man," let us in future be amused and interested by "Notes by the Way," not stirred up to wordy warfare and strife about a matter which might well have been passed over, since our worthy secretary knows what he is about, and would not have entered this peal till the election had been confirmed. Change-ringing will never flourish without unity and kindly feeling between change-ringers. Let us try and promote these, and leave squabbling and mutual recrimination to the "venerable society of tombstone Roberts." A word with Mr. Catchpole, and I have done. Surely it was a pity to raise the question of time. For a ringer of Mr. Catchpole's experience must know that there are many causes which may bring it about that a 5040 may be rung on a peal with a tenor of 20 cwt., in less time than on another with a tenor of 15 cwt. The two chief influences are of course the way in which the bells are hung, and the pace at which the ringers have been accustomed to ring. But again the pace must be considerably influenced by whether or no the ringers have been accustomed to ring together. One sees great differences in times even in the same tower, and sometimes by the same band. Does Mr. Catchpole know the Christ Church peal at Oxford? I do, being a member of the Oxford City, and Oxford University societies. The tenor is so much "tucked up," that the clapper has to ride on the wrong side even when the bells are up. The same with the ninth. This tucking up makes the 42 cwt. bell go very little, if any, harder than the Chelmsford tenor. That they go well is shewn by the fact that Mr. Coleridge and I have frequently raised the tenor and ninth in peal without help, and without discomfort. Add to this the fact that the Oxford men are some of the fastest ringers in the country, and I think Mr. Catchpole will allow 3 hrs. 11 mins. for a peal of Stedman Triples to pass. If he doubts my word as to the pace at which they ring, aye, and strike their bells at Oxford, let him betake himself to Magdalene Tower and have a go at Stedman Caters. If he doesn't keep his eyes very wide open, he will find himself out of the "slow" before he knows he has gone into it.

HERBERT A. COCKEY.

Bitton, Bristol, August 31st.

SIR,—The question unfortunately raised (and still more unfortunately discussed) in your columns respecting this peal seems reduced to one point, viz.: the interpretation of the latter part of Rule III. of the Essex Association. May I suggest that the proper course for any member of that Association, who considers that the rule has not been complied with in this case, is to bring the matter (after due notice given to me) before the next meeting of the Association; the members of which can then either decide the question at once or, if it seem good, agree to refer the interpretation of the rule to some authority whose decision shall be final. Meanwhile, it seems to me that anonymous communications and mysterious hints only breed ill-feeling, without really helping the solution of the question. It will be my duty to have this peal entered in the peal-book of the Essex Association, unless I am directed by a resolution of the Association that the peal is not to be so entered. As its genuineness has been publicly questioned

I shall take no steps towards booking it until the next district meeting, to be held at Walthamstow in the early part of October, and I may remind members of the Association that any notice of motion to be brought forward at the meeting must be sent to me at least one week before hand (rule XII.) If the motion involves addition to or alteration of the rules, it must be brought with a fortnight's notice before either the annual meeting or a "special" meeting summoned for the purpose (rule XI.)

T. L. PAPILLON,
Hon. Sec. E.A.C.R.

SIR,—I thought after the facts stated in my former letter on this subject I should not have to trouble you again on the matter, but from the amount of correspondence you have had, I think it only right that I should say a few words in reply. In the first place "A New Man" says that if nothing else comes of this affair, it will be an increase in the revenue. Probably this correspondent is a letter carrier and is upset at the extra weight occasioned by this business. He then goes on to say that an attempt has been made to disclose his whereabouts. I am quite sure, Sir, this is hardly necessary, for the last paragraph in his article of August 13th was quite enough to satisfy me as to who the writer is. Of course I may be mistaken, but it will take more than "A New Man's" feeble attempt to throw me off the scent. I should like to ask how it is if he is not a member of the Association that he has the rules. Probably he has not kept up his payments. As to the stereotype phrases, I must take the responsibility of them myself, as I can assure him I have had no one to dictate to me on the matter, and I am sure I never had any thought of his being in the peal for the best of reasons. In regard to the letter of "Honesty," I think if he is what his nom de plume implies, he need not have been ashamed of his own name. In reply to Mr. Catchpole as to the time, I can assure him that every lead of the peal was rung, and the time was actually nearer 3-10 than 3-11, which can be corroborated by ringers that were outside and heard every change.

GEO. NEWSON.

THE SIXTY COURSES OF STEDMAN CATERS.

SIR,—It is not surprising that Mr. Washbrook's statement on this subject should have met with a good deal of hostile criticism. But are we quite sure that even now we know what he means? The interpretation of his meaning advanced in your last leader seems to me to make the matter, if anything, worse for Mr. Washbrook than it was before, for this reason: that if we are not to be allowed to count the introductory course as one of the sixty, the impossibility of having sixty courses without that one, and without a single, needed no demonstration; for the introductory course finishes with one of the sixty course-ends with the fixed bells in the required positions. If therefore we are not to count that, there are necessarily only fifty-nine left which can be had complete in themselves, and in order to get sixty complete in themselves, we should need a sixty-first course-end, which, without a single is impossible and absurd! If this had been Mr. Washbrook's meaning, his letter should have been headed "Why sixty-one course-ends should not be got with five working bells without a single." At the same time Mr. Washbrook does not say that the sixty course-ends are not to be had. It is therefore rather difficult to say what he actually does mean. Either way, it seems to me that he lands himself in an absurdity. I should like, therefore, to put the question in another form, if you will allow me. Putting on one side for the moment all considerations of the position of the tenors and musical qualities, does Mr. Washbrook assert that with the 2nd, 7th, 8th, and 9th bells fixed at home and undisturbed throughout, the sixty complete courses without a single are not to be had? If he admits, as I think he must, that this is possible with the tenors in the position of 7, 8, 9, then it must be equally possible with them in the position 9, 7, 8, and with any other bell in 2nds; but, in the latter case, one course will not be complete in itself, but will be partly contained in the introductory and partly in the final course. Like Mr. A. Thomas, I also was totally unable to find the introductory course of Mr. Washbrook's long peal by the directions given; there is a mistake somewhere, and if the peal is to be of any value, it should be pointed out, and the correct calling supplied.

H. EARLE BULWER.

ANSWER TO MESSRS. HATTERSLEY AND DAINS.

SIR,—I am very sorry to see the above gentlemen failed to grasp my meaning as regards the sixty courses of Stedman Caters. It was plain enough that I did not mention anything whatever about ends of courses as I knew that had been achieved years ago. But I still say the sixty courses, that is, 6480 changes of Stedman Caters, with the bells at 2, 7, 8, and 9 fixed, and without singles, is an utter impossibility, for the reasons I have already mentioned. It is absolutely certain that the peals mentioned by these gentlemen fail in this respect. I expected to get it pretty hot, for I thought someone would not crack the nut. Still I say why should we be packed off with sixty course-ends for sixty full courses. We may just as well ring up to the first single of Holt's Original and then turn the tenor in a lead or two and call it the peal of Grandsire Triples with bobs only. It would be no more abuse to the method than to move your fixed bells in the interior of a course and call it "the course." This is what we have in the peals Mr. Thomas mentions, no doubt (of course I have not seen them) fifty-nine full courses and a part of the 60th; perhaps the bells brought into the tittums, and about one third of the course minus. Of course Mr. Thomas will allow that is not sixty courses. Now Mr. Dains says "the sixty courses composed and rang." Well, if that is the case I must draw it mild. But will he undertake to prove what he says? I cannot find the peal, and Mr. Hattersley cannot see what rubbish I have written. Can he refer me to a copy of the qualities in question? I did not put together those few remarks for people to compose from, I simply shewed the reason why it should be so and is not attainable. The question remains to be answered, "am I right or am I wrong?" If I am wrong there is nothing lost, if I am right there is something gained. It would be the last thing I thought of to trample on the ground I knew to be well trodden by men far greater in knowledge than myself; all I can say is to bring the peals forward and let us have a look at them, and see that we are not put off with a thing not genuine. If the above gentlemen had perused my remarks as keenly as the Editor, it would have been settled ere this. Mr. C. H. H. cannot see why I started with a quick six in my peal of Stedman Caters; well, I will tell him. He knows very well what recently happened at Cornhill, with the long peal of Stedman Cinques. It was to avoid as near as possible the same thing happening with us when we attempt it. In short, I did it to have a short coming-home course, for hardly before you know you are out of the tittums the bells are in rounds. I could put my men on their feet if they were to feel inclined to tumble about, but it is awkward in a long course with your big bells about after ringing so long. That was my reason. I am sorry to have to inform Mr. Dains that the 8064 of Double Norwich Court Bob Major by me was not forwarded correctly to our paper, but will appear in this week's number, by permission, in its proper form; then he can prove it if he likes. To conclude, I wish to point out that the first course of my peal of Stedman Caters is produced by the following calls: 6, s at 9, 12, 15, s at 18, 20, 21, 27, and the number of the peal 13,129. But it must be remembered that these two singles are called prior to the bells being in the tittums.

J. W. WASHBROOK.

DOUBLE COURT AT HOLY TRINITY, BARKING ROAD, WEST HAM.

SIR,—In bidding Mr. Randall adieu over this question, I will congratulate him upon the clever way in which he has cut the ground from under his feet by admitting that an attempt was made a fortnight previous, and under the circumstances will leave those with a spark of intelligence to judge who has the best of the argument. With respect to infallibility if my memory serves me right, it was Mr. Randall who disputed not long since the accuracy of the annual report of the Essex Association, and further made a similar complaint early in the present year as to the report of a district meeting held at West Ham. The only argument I could gather upon either occasion was that if Mr. Randall had furnished such, the reports would have proved infallible. Mr. Randall sails very wide of the mark when he insinuates that there is jealousy on my part. The plain indisputable facts are these: On the 30th June he was asked to secure the tower one Sunday evening, and to fix a date, the intention being to start for a 720 Double Court. This he consented, and afterwards having fixed the date, requested to be furnished with the rule for ringing the method. This was duly supplied, and although the afternoon proved miserably wet, I was at my post. After the unsuccessful attempts (in which two of the band came out faultless), a second visit was arranged. Before the date of such, however, arrived, Mr. Randall having through me had a thorough sound drilling in the method, obtained the assistance of others to enable him to ring his first 720 in the method. This I heard condemned as "dirty work."

THE GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.—ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting of the members of this Association was held in Gloucester, on Tuesday, August 30th. The Association was founded in January, 1878, for the promotion of belfry reform and the cultivation of the art of change-ringing, the Bishop being the president. About sixty members attended morning service in the Cathedral, and there were also present the Rev. Pitt Eykyn, of Magor, Newport, Hon. Sec.; Rev. F. E. Broome Witts, Hon. Treasurer; Rev. Dr. Smithe, Churchdown; and Rev. Mowbray Trotter, rector of St. Mary de Crypt. The Dean and Canon Evans were present, and an appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. J. P. A. Bowers, Diocesan Missioner, from the text: "There is neither speech nor language, but their voices are heard among them" (Psalm xix., Prayer-book version). The preacher said:—

It is a world of many voices in which God has called upon us to live—some noisy and uncultured; some like the bells, harmonious and pleasant, some like those spoken of in the text, and often the most eloquent, "silent." There is the voice of Nature, so silent yet so eloquent, speaking of God, His power, His work, His design. There is the voice of Revelation—the revelation of a Father, the revelation of Love, telling of the Gospel of the Kingdom. Both these voices are spoken of in this splendid nineteenth Psalm. Then there is the voice of the Church, coming to us with the two great books of Nature and Revelation in her hands, and formulating them for us, by Divine guidance, into a definite Creed. There is the voice of History, telling how other men have struggled and fought, how they succeeded and how they failed. There are also the voices of our own experience and of our own conscience. I take it, then, that whatever else this Festival of our Diocesan change-ringers may be, it is eminently "A Festival of Voices." There is the voice of welcome to the Mother Church of this great diocese. There is not, thank God, a single diocesan Association that is not welcomed right heartily for its festivals within the walls of this great Cathedral. The Dean and Chapter—those who are the trustees under God for this glorious Church and its usefulness in our midst—welcome every one of you here to-day and wish you God speed in your good work for your parishes, your diocese, your Church, and above all for your God. There are, however, other voices—the voices of the bells themselves—no speech, no language strictly so-called, but still how eloquent, how many voices! The voice of joy: when two young hearts set out on life's road together, you, my brethren, are there to cheer them with your merry peal. The voice of sorrow: when our homes are left unto us desolate. The voice of triumph, of jubilee, of passing into the paradise of God, or "The Curfew," "tolling the knell of parting day." All these voices speak to you and me with singular power of the many-sidedness of life. But to you who understand the science of using the bells there are many other lessons. For example: the least mistake of one man in change-ringing will throw all the rest out. Let this teach you your own individual responsibility in the great belfry of life, in the great workshop of the world. I am told that a skilful ringer can ring thirty changes a minute. Let this rapid change remind you of "the change and decay in all around you see," and let your heart go out in earnest prayer,—"O, Thou who changest not, abide with me." There is one other lesson from the bells interesting to the more thoughtful among you. Have you ever thought how the bells help you to value parts of God's Holy Word? For example, think how easy it would have been for Moses to have put the Order of Creation wrong if he had been guessing. There were seven periods of Creation. Those of you who are skilful change-ringers know that by what is called in arithmetic the permutation of numbers seven things can be varied as to order in no less than 5040 ways, seven bells, for instance, combining in 5040 changes. There were, therefore, 5039 chances to one that Moses would put the Order of Creation wrong; but it is, as we know, scientifically accurate. The science of the bells teaches us to value the accuracy of the Word of God. But there is one other voice. I do mention it last because it is least, but because it is greatest; and I want it to hang about your memories. Just now I said that some of the most eloquent voices in the world were silent. So I want to ask you: Is the voice of your life the silent eloquence of holiness? Is there written across it, "I am living by God's grace, to His glory?" Believe me, my brothers, you may be ever so skilful a ringer, able to conduct the most intricate peals, able even to master what I believe is perhaps the most difficult peal ever written, "The Superlative Surprise Major;" but unless your life rings true as well as your bell, all your "Superlative Surprises" are of little worth. Yes, your life must ring "true"—true to thy God, true to thy Church, true to thy country, true to thy better self, true to thy fellow-man. If you ask me why I emphasise this so much, I answer, "The condition of our age imperatively demands it." What is the ecclesiastical situation? On one side, a vast outside world, untouched by every Christian effort, quietly looking on; not antagonistic—I wish it was! but apathetic, indifferent. On the other side, judging from Mr. Spurgeon's account in The Sword and Trowel, and from the report of the Wesleyan Conference held in Manchester a few days ago, some of the larger Nonconformist bodies, to say the least, are inclined to dwindle, and in matters of doctrine are seriously divided. Some would simply rejoice over this last. I confess that to me it seems to have a more serious and solemn meaning. It is certainly a tremendous call to the English church—oh my brothers, such a call to consecration and to work. Every man is needed. It is a call to every worker in our midst, from the Archbishop of Canterbury down to the humblest bell-ringer in some remote village. As you take the bell-rope in your hand, oh! remember that you are not only a worker—that is good, dignified, noble—but that you are a "worker together with God." You are, for him, calling the world, the little world of your village it may be, to the life of worship calling the world to learn what it is of the utmost importance that it should know; calling the world to seek grace—power which she sorely needs, and without which the ideal life is an impossibility. See to it then, my brothers, that you who call others to these great things are using them yourselves—that you are striving to be Christ-like, noble, true, manly—that you know something of the life of worship—something of the life of grace in prayer and sacrament; so that—

"Whene'er the sweet church bell Peals over hill and dell," it may be true of your life, and then it will be true of your ringing—

"That Jesus Christ is praised."

The annual meeting was held in the Chapter House at noon. The Rev. M. TROTTER presided, and said their object was to spend as little time as possible over business matters, as they had other affairs in the town to attend to.

The SECRETARY then read the minutes of a recent committee meeting, and these were confirmed. He also explained the principal matters which were to come before the members, and said that the printed copies of the report had not yet reached him, but they would be handed to the members in the course of the day. The report stated:—

"As our members are aware, it was resolved last year to abolish two out of our four quarterly meetings, in order that the funds might be utilised in employing a change-ringing instructor. Our gathering to-day, therefore, is the second meeting held this year, instead of, as usual, the third. The first was at Stroud on February 7th (the anniversary meeting). At the committee meeting held on the 29th of July it was decided to put our annual meeting as far into August as the rules would allow, in order to steer clear of harvest operations. A vote of condolence with the Master in a recent family bereavement was proposed by the Rev. Pitt Eykyn, and seconded by F. E. Ward, Esq., and it is needless to add was most unanimously passed. Notice was also given by Mr. Ward that he would move at this meeting that Rule IV. should be altered so as to allow of the admission of probationary members. Several of the committee concurred in this, as it seemed hardly just to them that the Association should be paying an instructor to teach men to ring who might perhaps never become members of the Association at all. It should be recorded here that Mr. Sevier, whom we sent to a group of parishes in the Thornbury district for two months in the spring, worked with much energy and success, and the fact that the Thornbury band rang a peal is a practical proof of his good work there. It has been decided in future to publish the accounts of the Association at the commencement of every civil year, which will simplify matters very much. Our accounts, therefore, are now only published to the end of 1886. Members who have not yet paid up for the current year are urgently requested to do so. It has also been proposed in future to issue the list of members, rules, reports, etc., and all information respecting the Association, in pamphlet form; and in that new arrangement we shall hope to have the large double diocese mapped out into its rural deaneries, and the rural deaneries subdivided into their respective parishes, with the names of honorary and performing members under their own parishes. In time we shall hope to obtain the services of a sub-secretary for each deanery, and thus extend a greater interest in the work which it is our aim to accomplish." Details were then given of fifteen peals rung by the members since October, 1886; and the committee add: "The above added to those already recorded by the Association since its formation, shows a grand total of 37 peals. It will be noticed that a marked increase has taken place in the number of peals rung during the past eighteen months, and this we think will prove to be an indication that the Association has at last taken root in productive ground, to be followed we hope by still further fruits. Whilst congratulating our members upon the success which has until now attended them in their efforts towards carrying out the objects of the Association, we may remind them that there is still a wide field open for the expenditure of their energies. One idea which we would venture to suggest to those who are in a position to carry it out is the rendering of voluntary assistance to those who are on the threshold of change-ringing, as by a 'word in season' to perplexed learners, much good might be done by our own members themselves in extending the knowledge of the art. An increase in the variety of the methods is also advised. We are sorry to have to record the deaths of three of our members, Mr. G. Larnar and Mr. Jos. Barnard, of Northleach, and Mr. J. Gough, of Churcham. Several of our hon. members have dropped out from various causes, but we are glad to have been able to fill up their places with other friends who feel an interest in our work. Our numbers now stand at about eighty hon. members, 186 performing members, and twenty-four life members, a total of 290. We need hardly say how pleased the committee would feel if members of the Association would send them suggestions or communications which would be likely to further the objects of the Society, viz., the promotion of belfry reform, and the cultivation of change-ringing. It would be a great omission on our part if we here forgot to tender our most sincere acknowledgements to the Rev. M. Trotter, rector of St. Mary de Crypt, for always so readily lending us a meeting place for our committees. He has taken a great interest in the Association from its foundation, and again, with his characteristic hospitality, he kindly invites all our members to tea in the Crypt Schoolroom between the hours of 4.30 and six o'clock to-day. We are much indebted to him."

The Rev. Dr. SMITHE proposed a vote of thanks to the officers of the Association, warmly acknowledging their services during the year, and expressing a hope that those services would be continued.

The CHAIRMAN said as a past officer of the Society he knew that the work was no sinecure, and that a great deal had to be done, especially by the worthy Secretary, who kept the Association together, and who, he hoped, would continue his services.

The resolution was carried with applause, and the Secretary returned thanks, and said he had a letter from the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, Master of the Association, expressing his regret that he was unable to be present, and hoping the meeting would be successful. Mr. Davies, as they were aware, had lately lost his mother, and they could hardly expect he would attend.

The election of lay vice-presidents was then proceeded with.

The SECRETARY said he thought they might take it for granted that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach would still serve, and he had had a letter from Sir John Dorington stating that he should be much pleased to give them his name as a vice-president if it would be of any use, but that he was afraid he could not ring a bell. The election of Sir M. Hicks-Beach and Sir J. Dorington was unanimously agreed to.

The next appointment was that of Master of the Association, and it was mentioned that the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, who had served two years, wished to be relieved from the office, and that Mr. F. E. Ward should be elected as his successor.

On the motion of Mr. T. Davis, seconded by Mr. J. Thomas, Mr. Ward was unanimously elected Master.

In returning thanks, Mr. Ward said that Mr. Davies had perhaps done more than any man living for bell-ringing, especially in one special branch of the art, and he feared he should not make as efficient a Master as his predecessor, but he promised to do all in his power to promote the success of the Association.

The CHAIRMAN remarked that every member would give the new Master his cordial support, and they desired to give him a hearty welcome that day at the beginning of his work.

The election of the honorary treasurer was the next business.

The Rev. F. E. BROOME WITTS explained that in consequence of his removal from Norton to a distant part of the county he was unable to attend the meetings of the committee as frequently as he wished, and though he did not ask them to accept his resignation immediately of the office which he had held for five years, he must request them to look out for another treasurer. He should be very glad to hold the office until the end of the financial year, which might make it easier for any one who took his place; but he explained that the duties were very light, and suggested whether some one in Gloucester would not accept the office. The funds were in a satisfactory state, as he had a balance of £40 or £50 in hand.

The CHAIRMAN spoke of the satisfactory way in which Mr. Broome WITTS had carried out the duties, and Mr. WITTS was re-elected, it being understood that at the end of the year he would probably be succeeded by Mr. H. Hatherly, of the National Provincial Bank, Gloucester, and who displayed much interest in ringing at Stonehouse, where he lives.

Mr. WITTS said that though he was about to resign the office held, he should continue to take as much interest in the Association as ever.

Mr. A. COOK proposed and Mr. J. Hughes seconded the re-election of the Rev. Pitt Eykyn as hon. secretary; and the election having been carried with hearty applause,

The SECRETARY said that as he now lived in Monmouthshire he should be much pleased if some one nearer Gloucester would undertake his duties. Still he was willing to continue in office upon the same conditions as before.

The annual dinner was afterwards held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, under the presidency of the Rev. M. Trotter, and about sixty members of the Association attended.

The CHAIRMAN, in appropriate speeches, proposed "The Health of the Queen and the members of the Royal Family," and also "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese." With the latter toast he associated the name of the Rev. J. P. A. Bowers, and warmly thanked him for his admirable sermon that morning. He expressed his regret that the Mayor, who had promised to preside, had been prevented by civic duties from being present, and also acknowledged the courtesy of the Dean and Chapter in arranging the service that morning for them, and allowing them the Chapter House for the annual meeting.

The Rev. J. P. A. BOWERS responded, and said that going about as he did as Diocesan Missioner he saw what a large amount of good work was being done by the clergy in their parish churches, and thank God it was so, by the laity as well as the clergy. He also recognised that the ringers stood shoulder to shoulder with the clergy, and tried to do all the good they could both by example and precept, and it was therefore a real pleasure to him to join them at that table and to have had the privilege of speaking a few words to them in the Cathedral that morning. On the previous day he had driven from the village wherein John Keble used to officiate, and had for his companion one of the ringers of that parish, who was then present, and if he had been able to say a few words to them that day on ringing it was because he had "picked the brains" of his friend as they travelled together, and therefore any credit was due to his friend and not to him (Mr. Bowers).

The CHAIRMAN next proposed "Success to the Association," and spoke of its good fortune in always having had efficient and enthusiastic officers to guide its destinies. He thought there was still plenty of room for belfry reform, which was one of their objects. They often heard, in reference to another matter, of "One man, one vote." He should like to apply that principle to bellringing, and to have throughout our towns and villages "One belfry, one company of ringers." That might not be easy of achievement; and he felt grateful for what they had been able to accomplish through times of difficulty. Still he thought the Association should aim in the future to have a set of ringers for each belfry, as it would solve many of the difficulties connected with belfry reform. He associated with the toast the name of the new Master.

Mr. WARD returned thanks, and referring to the number of peals rung, as mentioned in the report, said the Association had made greater progress during the last eighteen months than in any previous period, and he hoped a still greater work would be accomplished in the next twelve months. He mentioned with regret that no peal had been rung in Gloucester, where there were now two good peals of eight bells in addition to the Cathedral. The blame did not rest with the ringers. He understood there was a feeling among some of the tradesmen against peal ringing, but he hoped that would be overcome. He repeated his desire to do all in his power to promote the success of the Association, and said he relied upon all the members to give him their assistance.

The SECRETARY proposed "The health of the Chairman," and mentioned his many services on behalf of the Association, and his hospitality to the members at their meetings in Gloucester.

The CHAIRMAN suitably responded.

One or two matters that had not been disposed of at the meeting in the Chapter House were next considered. Rule 4 provides that "No one shall be admitted as a performing member until he has satisfied the committee of his capability of taking the treble or tenor of a ring of bells or handbells in 120 changes."

The MASTER proposed an alteration in this rule, and incidental alterations in two or three other rules, the effect of which would be to admit probationary members. He said the late Master, and the Master of another similar Association, were in favour of the change proposed, and argued that it was useless to have a change-ringing instructor if every person must possess the qualification specified before being admitted as a member. He believed that by admitting probationary members there would be a considerable accession to the ranks of the Society.

Mr. JOHNSON HERN (Newnham) opposed the alterations proposed, on the ground that it would increase the expenses of the Association. He also maintained that anyone who aspired to become a member might easily qualify himself as the rules now stood.

The MASTER replied that under the rules as at present they provided an instructor but no pupils. His object was to increase the number of change-ringers.

After further discussion a show of hands was taken, and the proposal of the Master was negatived by 17 to 15.

It was next agreed to increase the number of honorary members on the committee from five to fifteen. Seven or eight new members were elected, including Mr. Henry Law James and Mr. H. Hatherly, and the proceedings terminated.

The following touches were brought round: At the Cathedral, 504 Grandsire Triples. G. Wanklin (Gloucester), 1; F. E. Ward (Cheltenham), 2; F. Hart (Gloucester), 3; J. E. Hern (Newnham), 4; B. An excellent tea was provided for the ringers in St. Mary de Crypt Schools by the esteemed Rector, the Rev. M. Trotter, formerly Treasurer of the Association. His generous hospitality was greatly appreciated by the members. During the tea, on handbells a course of Grandsire Triples. H. Gardner (Upton), 1-2; J. Hern, 3-4; T. Brown (Quedgley), 5-6; F. ST. PETER'S, GREAT TOTHAM, ESSEX.

The Coggeshall band of change-ringers visited the above church at the invitation of the Vicar, the Rev. H. Eyre, on Sunday, September 4th, and succeeded in ringing two 720's on the melodious ring of six, tenor 7½ cwt. in B flat. The first was a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob. J. Sadler, 1; W. Dyer, 2; J. Aust, 3; J. Nicholls, 4; W. Nicholls, 5. Jas. Sadler, 6. And a 720 of Plain Bob. Rev. H. Eyre, 1; W. Dyer, 2; J. Sadler, 3; D. Elliott, 4; W. Nicholls, 5; Jas. Sadler, 6. At its conclusion the ringers were entertained at the Vicarage, and at dusk returned home to Coggeshall after a pleasant afternoon.

HERE AND THERE.

There was a very strange statement, or allegation, or whatever it may be called, tacked on to the report of the outing of the Birmingham Amalgamated Society, which appeared last week in our paper. What I understood concerning it was that in the absence from the spot of the members of one society, those of another (friendly rivals, perhaps) had gained possession, for the purpose of a peal. I have no doubt that like every other, this question has two sides. Let us hope there is some mistake in the allegation. It seems hardly the thing that in such a place as Birmingham there should be more than one company, for the town isn't over-weighted with bell-metal, and these various companies not to be friendly together is to be greatly deplored. To me it seems there is a something lacking in the way of organization among the Birmingham ringers. There is also a kind of half-heartedness displayed in general ringing matters. Very seldom (of late) do we read of the St. Martin's Company achieving anything in the way of peal-ringing, and handbell performances have come to be very wide apart. If they would abolish these petty distinctions of "societies," and become "amalgamated" in reality, I am convinced they could do anything that is possible in the way of ringing, and do it well.

The newspapers publish an account of a suicide enacted in the parish church of Fulham, Middlesex. A man, formerly occupied as organ-blower, has been found hanging from a beam in the organ-loft. No reasons are assigned for the rash act; and the idea that he may have perpetrated it through the loss of office is apt to excite one's risible faculties. I don't recollect reading of a ringer committing suicide because he was expelled the tower, but there have been many tyrannical actions perpetrated by church officials towards ringers of highly nervous temperaments, which might have led to similar tragedies. If the feeling arising from the loss of his office led this poor man to destroy himself, what must be felt by ringers of excitable disposition when the "power of the keys" (of the belfry) is held by some "whipper-snapper" recently promoted to "cocked hat and gold lace," who in as lofty language as his education (or want of it) admits of, informs them that their services are not required; when "he" wants them he'll graciously condescend to let them know, etc., etc.

I thank Mr. Cockey for his graceful hint in the last number. I assure him nothing is further from my purpose than to stir up people to wordy warfare and strife. But if he has read my sayings from the commencement, he will see that I only compile this column "from information received," as the police say. But I'll be on my guard for the future. It must however be said that though Mr. Cockey has had plenty of experience among ringers, he does not quite accurately comprehend the position of affairs which the Chelmsford episode has brought about. But there, I must "draw the line."

I see there has been a peal rung at Painswick. But why choose a Sunday above all other days? Peal-ringing on Sunday don't add to our credit, in fact we have enough to put up with in the way of misrepresentation, without having the additional charge of breaking the Sabbath laid at our doors. This is not the best of beginnings, brethren of Painswick, though I rejoice that the ice is broken. May you go on excelling, and effectually rival the times when "Old Billy" was king among you. Intelligence of this sort from Painswick would be very grateful to the ears of

A NEW MAN.

PAINSWICK, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

ON Monday, August 21st, at the parish church, a 630 of Grandsire Triples. A. Trigg, 1; A. Gwinnett, 2; W. Ryland, 3; W. Hales (conductor), 4; J. Wager, 5; D. Marment, 6; G. Smith, 7; J. Powell, 8. Also two 168's, with T. Ireland, 3, and S. Wright, 4. And on Thursday evening, August 24th, 448 of Grandsire Triples, and 336, and five plain courses, with the bells deeply muffled, as a mark of respect for Mr. Joseph Gough, of Churcham, who was interred on that day, and who was a member of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association. In this D. Maiment, T. Ireland, and T. Wright, assisted, and as Messrs. Sevier, Romans, and Wilkins, from Gloucester, with G. Daltry, and J. Hinton, from Bristol, wished for a peal to be arranged for Sunday, August 28th, (the one inserted in the peal column of "THE BELL NEWS" of September 3rd), permission was asked of the worthy Vicar, who could not give an answer at once the Sunday school being held very near the tower, but the next evening the welcome message came that they were to attempt the peal, and he wished them all success. A beautiful Sunday morning dawned, and Messrs. Hinton and Daltry were met by Mr. Sevier at Stonehouse station, when they all rode to Painswick, and were met by W. Hale. As soon as Divine Service was over the bells were raised in peal, while Messrs. Hinton and Daltry walked to the Rookery, and partook of some dinner, after which a six-score of Grandsire Doubles were rung on the handbells. G. Daltry, 1-2; J. Hinton, 3-4; W. Hale, 5-6. And 120 of Stedman Doubles. G. Daltry, 1-2; J. Hinton, 3-4-5-6. While walking from the tower and back, some six-scores of Grandsire Doubles was rung by A. Gwinnett and D. Marment, and the visitors, and exactly at 1.58 "go" was called, and the ringing went on very well, when, after two parts was rung, the end of the fifth rope came out, and also the tenor, and they were forced to stand. The ropes being firmly tucked and tied in, "go" was again called at 2.58 exactly, and all ran merrily until the first Holt single came up at 4.36, which run over as smoothly as a plain lead, the striking never seeming to vary in the least, and at 6.8 the welcome second Holt's single, and "that's all," came, and with a few rounds, "stand" was called, and the peal was finished. The local company then came into the belfry, and congratulated the ringers on their success and excellent striking. Mr. David Marment said he wished that it might be mentioned that he had sat in the churchyard and listened to every change, and he considered it one of the best struck peals he ever heard. The local company then finished ringing for Divine Service, and they and the visitors descended into the churchyard which contained a large number of people who had congregated to listen to the peal. The worthy Vicar, the Rev. W. H. Leddon, congratulated them on their successful peal and good ringing, and all the parishioners' only wonder was that it was such a band of youths who rung it, as they did not see who went into the tower. The company then paid a visit to the "New Inn," and had a slight refreshment, and it was with much regret that in a quarter of an hour after the peal was finished that Messrs. Hinton and Daltry were safely landed in a conveyance, and with the ringers' and parishioners' best wishes and many thanks for their kindness, were travelling away to catch the train at Stonehouse for Bristol, to where we trust they had a safe and pleasant journey. The rest of the company adjourned to the coffee tavern and partook of a good tea, and a pleasant chat, after which the local men, with their Gloucester friends, walked over as far as Upton St. Leonards with them, which was half way to their home, where they parted, all having spent one of the most enjoyable days possible. It may be of interest to mention that the last peal before the one recorded in "THE BELL NEWS" of September 3rd, was a peal of Steman Triples by the Painswick Youths, on the 28th of February, 1862. The following were the ringers:—Jeremiah Birt (deceased), 1; F. Musty (rings with the Cheltenham Society), 2; H. Swain (rings in London), 3; Alfred Walkley (deceased), 4; David Beard (his whereabouts not known), 5; Robert Birt (conductor, deceased), 6; David Marment (still rings at Painswick), 7; John Powell (still rings at Painswick), 8. The peal contained 240 bobs and two singles, and the truth of it was attested by the late William Estcourt. Painswick Feast this year is on Sunday, September 25th, which is always regarded as a regular ringers' Sunday. All friends are kindly invited. H.

BELFRY REFORM IN NORTHAMPTON.

In the month of November, 1880, a number of young men met in All Saints' Vestry, under the presidency of the Rev. R. B. Hull, to form themselves into a Society, to perform the duties of ringing and chiming at that church. The Society was formed, rules were drawn up, and officers elected. This step was deemed necessary owing to the deplorable condition of the various belfries in the town. If you went to either of the four towers containing a peal of bells, you would find them a perfect disgrace, both to the church and the ringers using them. In one or two instances they resembled a dirty barn, and dirty sacks, ragged mats, empty bottles, tallow candles, were to be found scattered about in all directions. The ringers too, sad to say, seemed to be entirely ignorant of their positions. They could be seen on ringing days idling about the church in their beautiful aprons and a short clay pipe stuck in their mouths. One cannot but admit that the above meagre description of the state of things then existing required a speedy and effective remedy. This remedy first emanated from the newly-formed voluntary ringers for All Saints' parish. The Society was composed of young men of the parish, who were also regular attendants at the Church services. This great improvement naturally attracted the attention of the other parishes. That of St. Sepulchre's was next to follow in the footsteps of All Saints', and some little time elapsed after which the other two parishes, St. Giles' and St. Peter's, also instituted the same reformation in their respective belfries. Anyone who remembers the condition of the towers before the better state of things prevailed would now be agreeably surprised at the transformation which has been effected. In every tower proper decorum is observed, and prayers are printed for use before commencing to ring or chime. The meetings are usually presided over by the respective clergy, and thus a useful and at the same time a very respectable and thorough church-going set of men are enrolled as part of the body of earnest Church-workers. This is a cause of great thankfulness to our town, and one which, when ringers are harshly spoken of, may have its weight who are to this day entirely unaware of the different state of matters in the church towers of Northampton.—Local Paper.

CHRIST CHURCH RINGERS AND CHOIR, EASTBOURNE.

The senior members of the choir and also the ringers at Christ church joined in a holiday trip to Heathfield on Wednesday, August 31st. In point of weather, the day was not the best suited to an outing of this character, but notwithstanding the somewhat boisterous state of the elements, the party managed to spend a very enjoyable day. The Vicar of Christ Church (Rev. R. Allen) was detained in Eastbourne by counter engagements, and the holiday-makers were accompanied by the Rev. O. L. Tudor and the Rev. Irton Smith (two of the curates), who spared no effort to render the occasion a thoroughly enjoyable one to all present. Leaving Eastbourne by the 10.10 a.m. train, the excursionists reached Heathfield at an early hour. A short choral service took place in the parish church, which had been thrown open by the Vicar, the Rev. Mr. Pennethorne, whose wife kindly presided at the organ. The Rev. I. Smith, as Precentor of Christ Church choir, conducted the service and delivered an appropriate address. Subsequently the campanalogical section of the party, under the direction of Mr. T. Smith, captain, gave illustrations of their skill on the church bells, which they manipulated in a highly creditable manner. Dinner and tea were provided at the Star Inn at convenient hours. During the afternoon a match of cricket was engaged in, and later on the "lions of the parish," including the Jack Cade Memorial, were duly inspected. The party returned to Eastbourne by the train arriving there about nine o'clock.

LAVENHAM, SUFFOLK.

The Lavenham ringers who were prevented by the Jubilee rejoicings from holding their anniversary on the usual day, propose to hold it on September 29th, on which day it is also intended to hold a Service of Thanksgiving for the Harvest.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1887.

THE objections which have recently been taken by one or two correspondents to the election of a member of the Essex Association in the belfry previous to starting for a peal are in our opinion, futile. This we say without the least reference to the case in point, though it may appear that the election of which so much has been made of, need not have taken place so far as the above-named Association was concerned, for there is not the least doubt that had an Association peal, pure and simple, been required, it could have been attained by members of the Association whose election had been ratified at previous meetings, and whose co-operation for the purpose could without trouble have been easily secured. But if what may be considered sharp practice has been resorted to, for a specific object—and let it be understood that we do not allege that it has—it is no reason why the almost universally-recognised practice of election in the tower should be condemned. Those who, smarting under some feeling of disappointment, or indignation, perhaps, at the success of the alleged stratagem, condemn the election as irregular, do so inconsistently, for under what would appear to them happier circumstances, they would in all likelihood take advantage of the same process if by its adoption some after-benefit or advantage presented itself. Nearly one-third of peals rung in London and the suburbs, at any rate by young people, are performed under the actual conditions of society membership which is now so persistently objected to. We do not think the objection is on the whole, sincere. It is made under the unpleasant conditions we have already mentioned, and thus loses all claim to be seriously considered.

But while such a system of election is fully recognised, it would be well that its operations should never be attended with any real or colourable evasion or trespass. The original purpose of the system has no doubt been lost, and tortured into a kind of machinery for serving ambition not always of a worthy nature. If the conditions of this particular election were for the express purpose of securing a peal to a prominent London company as well as the Essex Association, there need be very little amazement shown, because other metropolitan companies would do the very same under like circumstances. But we contend that in such case a popular mode of election is strained, and made the vehicle of success of a third-class character.

THE STORY OF A TOWER.—One of the chief antiquities of Currie is Lennox Tower, on a high bank overhanging the water of Leith, and now called by the rather uncouth name of Lumphoy. It is a massive edifice measuring externally fifty-five feet by thirty-five, with walls about seven feet in thickness. It is entered by an archway on the north, where the gate was secured by an horizontal bar, the socket of which still remains in the wall. It is all built of polished ashlar; the hall windows are arched, with stone seats within them, and the ascent to the upper storeys had been by a narrow circular stair, part of which still remains within the thickness of the wall at the north-east angle, the steps of which are only three feet long. It is said, traditionally, to take its name from the Lennox family, to whom it belonged; and the same vague authority assigns it as a residence to Mary and Darnley, and afterwards to the Regent Morton. It occupies very high ground, commanding a beautiful prospect of the Firth of Forth, and has a subterranean passage to the river, which was closed up about the end of the eighteenth century, as cattle were apt to stray into it. The extent of the outer rampart, which goes round the brow of the hill, is given in the "Old Statistical Account" as measuring "304 paces, or 1212 ft. It was surrounded by a moat, and there can still be traced the remains of a deep ditch. Though small, it was undoubtedly a place of some strength. Amongst the many conjectures of which it has been the subject, one declares it to have been a hunting seat of James VI. and a residence of George Heriot, by whom it was bequeathed to a daughter, "from whom, along with the adjacent land, it was purchased by an ancestor of the present proprietor." It had been alleged that there existed a subterranean communication between it and Colington Tower, the old abode of the Foulis family; and the story is added that a piper once tried to explore it, and that the sound of his pipes were heard as far as Currie bridge, where he perished. But people were still living in 1845 who had explored this passage for a considerable way.—From "Cassell's Old and New Edinburgh" for September.

BRADNINCH, DEVON.—PRESENTATION.

On Friday, August 26th, the Bradninch band of handbell ringers, being also members of the Devonshire Guild, presented Miss Flora Wrighton, of Bowhill House, Bradninch, with a handsome edition of Tennyson, in thirteen volumes, as a mark of their esteem and gratitude to her for having trained them during the past year in music on the handbells. Mr. Jno. Webb, the oldest member of the band, made the presentation, followed by a few words by Mr. Jno. Heal, the representative of the band, who spoke of the kind and genial way in which they were always received at the practices. Miss F. Wrighton, in accepting the present with feelings of emotion, thanked the members, and said it was with feelings of deep regret that she could no longer continue the pleasant practices with them, but hoped they would still continue to make good progress under the tuition of the wife of the Rev. G. D. Melluish, who had consented to act in her stead. The health of Miss Wrighton was then duly honoured, and the company separated. The following are the members of the band: R. Greenslade, Jno. Heal (representative), A. Hellier, R. F. Hurley, Wm. Hawkins, Jno. Haydon, E. Jordan, Jno. Kibby, W. Owen, G. Parsons, Jno. Webb.

KETTERING, NORTHANTS.

THE CHURCH STEEPLE.—The erection of the scaffolding in connection with the work at the steeple was completed on Friday last, and the workmen at once started on the task of taking down the faulty portion of the structure. The weather vane and ball were lowered on Friday afternoon, and some ten feet of the stonework was removed on Saturday, each separate portion being numbered, so that if found to be sound and fit, it may be used again in the rebuilding of the steeple. Thirty-one feet, the length for which the architect recommended the contract to be obtained, was taken down by Tuesday, and on Wednesday, the architect, Mr. Blomfield, of London, went up to personally examine the spire. He found that the stone at the end of the 31 feet was sound, and decided that all below this could stand, with the exception of the highest east and west windows. Some of the stonework around these was a little insecure, and this is to be repaired; and the whole of the steeple re-pointed. Some iron bars in these windows are to be removed. The steeple, we understand, was last repaired in 1735, when iron supports were put in. The iron has corroded: and has really been the cause of the giving way of the stone in the upper portion of the steeple. Some of the old stone which has been taken down will be used again; but a considerable portion of new will be required, and the work has been suspended until the arrival of the new stone. It is a matter for gratification that the lower portion of the steeple is sound, as it was feared at one time that the whole might have to be taken down.

A DISTRICT MEETING will be held at Walthamstow, on Saturday, October 8th. The towers of St. Mary's (eight bells), and St. Saviour's (eight bells), will be open for ringing during the day. Further notice will be given of the time and place of the tea and business meeting.

CHELMSFORD, ESSEX.

A mixed band from Chelmsford, Galleywood, Widford, and Writtle, have begun to meet for practice on the ten bells, and have accomplished the plain course of Grandsire Caters. It is hoped that they may meet more regularly during the ensuing winter, and relieve Chelmsford from the reproach of having to let all the change-ringing on its ten bells be done by ringers from a distance.

Church News.

The Manchester Guardian is informed that the Bishop, acting, upon the advice of his Rural Deans and other official clergy, has appointed the Rev. Robert Catterall, rector of St. Philip's, Bradford-road, Manchester, to the office of Missioner for the diocese.

The Record "regrets to learn that the living of Barnborough, near Doncaster, vacant by the death of Canon Ware, has been conferred by the Lord Chancellor upon the Rev. George Edward Cole, rector of Exhall, Alcester. An Evangelical incumbent is accordingly displaced by a High Churchman who signed Dean Church's memorial in favour of the toleration of ritual."

Some of the parishioners of Bishop Cramer Roberts at Blackburn have requested him to administer the Holy Communion after evening service, but the right rev. prelate (who is the assistant of the Bishop of Manchester) has declined to do so, on the ground that evening celebrations are "irregular and an innovation."

The Council of the English Church Union announce that on the 24th ult. the sum of £9639 3s. 4d. had been received in aid of their "Special Defence Fund." The most recent disbursements from the fund are:—£426 paid up to date on account of the Bell-Cox case, and £84 in aid of Mr. R. F. Herring, vicar of St. John Baptist's, Toxteth Park, Liverpool.

On Sunday the Rev. Stewart D. Headlam, to whom a licence to preach in the diocese of London had been refused by the Bishop, officiated at the church of St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, Queen Victoria street, of which the Rev. H. C. Shuttleworth is rector. That gentleman is away on his annual holiday, but in a note in the current number of his parish magazine he says he finds it almost impossible to express his sorrow and indignation with which he regards the Bishop's action.

The rector of Bottesford, near Belvoir Castle, Canon Norman, having carefully considered the earnest solicitations of the churchwardens, supported by the unanimous entreaties of his parishioners, has unconditionally withdrawn his resignation of his benefice, which he proposed to leave on account of failing health. The Rev. R. M. Norman, who has been curate of the parish for nearly twelve months, has surrendered his promotion to the rectory, and consented to take the spiritual charge of a much less lucrative benefice in the Vale of Belvoir.

In a pastoral letter to his diocese the Bishop of Lichfield suggests that the Church does not sufficiently regard the contributions of the poor. Almost every parish (says his lordship) would furnish a sufficient staff of trustworthy collectors, to each of whom might be assigned a manageable district where once a week every house might be visited to collect, if it were only one halfpenny. The Church halfpenny, or Church penny, might do great things, and not the least of those would be the definite attachment of the givers to the Church in which they would think that they had a concern. His lordship says that he believes a halfpenny a week contributed by every Church family in England would raise no less than £400,000.

In announcing the decease of the Rev. Henry H. Ross-Lewin, the curate of St. Cuthbert's, Benfieldside, who had been found dead in bed at Kilkee, County Clare, wherein he held some landed property, the Consett Guardian says that he was aged about forty-two years, was educated at Lichfield College, and ordained in 1880 by the Bishop of Worcester. He was held in deep respect in the County of Durham, and the parishioners of Benfieldside greatly deplore his decease, which was quite unexpected, for when he left home on a holiday tour he was in the best health and spirits. He became curate of Benfieldside in 1881, having first served at Lighthorne, Warwickshire.

Wednesday being Dean Fremantle's eightieth birthday, the choir of Ripon Cathedral assembled under his window at an early hour and sang his favourite hymn, "O God, our help in ages past," which was followed by the anthem, "The Lord is my shepherd." A touch of 960 changes was also rung on the cathedral bells, the number of changes corresponding with the number of months in the Dean's life. At a later hour presents began to arrive, one of the most noteworthy being a carved oak casket from the ladies of the Dean's Bible class. This was surmounted by a silver plate, on which was an engraving of Ripon Cathedral, while at the four corners, on silver shields, were the initials and arms of the Dean, and the arms of the cathedral and city of Ripon. Inside was a richly illuminated address from fifty-five ladies. The Bishop also wrote a very kind letter, accompanied by a copy of his Jubilee sermon preached before the House of Commons, whilst Mrs. Carpenter sent a photograph of the Bishop. The Bishop also sent a pair of handsome Swiss vases. Among the family presents were two photographs of Lord Cottesloe, brother of the Dean, who is in his ninetieth year. One group included Lord Cottesloe, his eldest son the Hon. Thomas Fremantle, and the latter's eldest son, Mr. Thomas Fremantle. It may be interesting to note that Admiral Fremantle, who played a conspicuous part in the naval manoeuvres, is a son of Lord Cottesloe, and nephew of the Dean. The Dean, who was in strong and vigorous health, was touched as well as pleased with the unexpected expressions shown towards him.

In consequence of the use of the consecrated chapel by Dissenters at Barnstaple, the Rev. A. W. L. Rivett, vicar of St. Mary Magdalene in that town has applied to Mr. Arthur Burch, one of the secretaries of the Bishop, who has replied as follows:—"By the Act 15 and 16 Vic., c. 85, s. 30, the consecrated chapel is to be for the performance of the Burial Service according to the rites of the Church of England, and it appears to me that the Burial Laws Amendment Act, 1880, does not alter this provision, nor does it give Nonconformists the right to use the consecrated chapel, but only the right to bury in the ground. The burial board ought, I think, to take the necessary steps to prevent this chapel being used for any other than its legitimate purposes, but apparently they sanction its use by Nonconformists. It is not quite easy to say what is the best and proper method of proceeding to prevent the chapel being thus improperly used, but my impression is that you, as one of the incumbents of the parishes, who have rights of interment in the consecrated part of the ground, or you and the other incumbents jointly, should apply to the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice for an injunction to restrain the burial board from permitting the chapel to be used for purposes other than the performance of the Burial Service according to the rites of the Church of England. Proper notice should first be given to the board requiring them to confine the use of the chapel to its legitimate purposes, and that in default of their doing so application will be made for an injunction."

In Memoriam.

On Monday, July 18th, being the first time the ringers met since the lamented death of their conductor, Mr. William Knott of Cowleigh, the bells were muffled, and touches of Grandsire Doubles were rung during the evening. In no tower will Mr. Knott be more missed than in Colwall, no words can express the trouble taken by him in teaching and conducting his men, and it was under his conductorship that they rang a 5040 of Grandsire Doubles a few years back. Although of advanced age, Mr. Knott would walk from Kempsey and other long distances after an hard day's work to ring at Colwall, and at the early ringing at 5 a.m. on Festivals, Mr. Knott was always first, and sometimes caught the Colwall men napping. May he rest in peace, until the Great Treble Man once more calls upon him to arise, and may he then enter into the blissful rounds of everlasting life. From the "Colwall Parish Magazine," for August.

THE SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

Names of those purposing to attend to be sent to Mr. G. Parham, captain of the Longbridge Deverill company, before September 26th.

THE ST. STEPHEN'S (WESTMINSTER) SOCIETY.

On Saturday, September 3rd, the members of the above society had their first annual outing, the place selected to visit being Barking. Arriving at the tower of St. Margaret's church at four o'clock, they were met by Mr. Sewell and several members of the Barking company. A start was made for a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1260) changes, which was rung in 47 mins. W. Carter, 1; J. N. Oxborrow, 2; J. Willshire, 3; H. R. Newton, 4; T. R. Bell, 5; H. Ellis, 6; J. M. Hayes (conductor), 7; W. Cropley, 8. After which several touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples were rung. The party then adjourned to the "Lion Inn," where an excellent meat tea was provided by host Bosworth, which after doing good justice to, part of the band and friends paid another visit to the tower, whilst the remainder strolled round the town. An adjournment was again made to the "Lion Inn," where a most harmonious evening was spent, and Messrs. Duff, Gohns, Cropley, Carter, Newton, White, Hayes, Davis, etc., rendered some good songs.

Mr. BELL proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Sewell for his kindness in arranging for the use of the tower and the comfort of the inner man, and expressed the pleasure it gave the members at being so kindly received at this their first trip, during which they had all spent a most enjoyable time, and hoped to pay them another visit before long.

Mr. DUFF proposed the toast of "The Barking Company," to which Mr. S. Hayes responded.

Mr. GOHNS proposed the health of the Instructor, Mr. J. M. Hayes.

A touch of Grandsire Triples was rung on the handbells. J. N. Oxborrow, 1-2; H. R. Newton, 3-4; J. M. Hayes (conductor), 5-6; T. R. Bell, 7-8. After which "God save the Queen" was sung, and the party broke up with "Auld Lang Syne," making for the station in time to catch the 10.23 train to Fenchurch Street. The ringers wish through the medium of this paper, to thank the Vicar for the use of the bells, and Mr. Sewell for making arrangements for the visit.

ANNUAL OUTING OF THE ALL SAINTS' SOCIETY, FULHAM, MIDDLESEX.

This Association held its Annual Outing on Saturday, August 27th, the place selected being Brighton. Owing to the well-known kindness and sociability of Messrs. Attree and Jay, touches were obtainable both at St. Peter's and St. Nicholas. In spite of the gloomy appearance of the weather when leaving Victoria at 8.25 a.m., a lovely day presented itself at Brighton, enabling all to enjoy themselves in many pleasant ways. A start was made for home soon after 7 p.m., when the usual songs, etc. were indulged in on the homeward journey, Fulham being reached soon after 10 p.m.

The members of the above Society take this opportunity of thanking their Vicar, the Rev. F. H. Fisher, M.A. for his usual kindness in connection with the outing.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

"USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS."

SIR.—The peal of Treble Bob Major, 5184, in your issue of August 27th, by Mr. Wilde, is a variation of one published in Sottanstail's work, page 418, and also by Hubbard, page 91, and was composed by me thirty years since. I am aware this may occur by accident, and trust Mr. Wilde will excuse my pointing out to him that the peal cannot be considered original. I may also remark that the bob before marked in the 4th course, is an error. SAMUEL MARSH.

SIR,—Mr. J. S. Wilde gives a complete answer to my question; of course I don't want his composition, and the other editions he mentions escaped my notice. Mr. J. W. Washbrook's answer, re Drayton peal, in your issue of 20th ult., is most equivocating and evasive. His confession of inability to trace a relation of one peal to the other surprised me, and I think humiliates himself. But, sir, like his Stedman Caters scare, will not hold water. "It is a disgrace," says he, "if the peal is Cox's, it was not rang as I gave it." Query, say I, was it known in those days to possess the coveted quality? Mr. Washbrook, you and I live in enlightened times, and should profit thereby. Now, sir, I have it upon the best possible authority that the peal rung at Drayton and the one published in "THE BELL NEWS" of 30th July last, are identical. I will therefore give my friend a lesson on transposition of calls in this peal, showing how one obtains the others, and I hope it will prove useful. In this instance I will refer your readers to page 50, part 1., Snowden's Treatise on Treble Bob. There the original and first variation are side by side; to obtain Mr. Washbrook's, commence at seventh course of Miller's variation.

THE SIXTY COURSES OF STEDMAN CATERS.

SIR,—The Rev. H. E. Bulwer has just come to the "point." He states it is possible to obtain sixty courses from rounds to rounds again, without removing the 3rd, 7th, 8th or 9th. May I ask him if he has worked that out? I am afraid not; that gentleman must prove my absurdity before he verifies it, it is one thing to say a thing and quite another and more often an impossible one to do it. If the sixty courses of Stedman Caters are to had, we have no need to wait any longer for the extent with the tenors together of the Burton Variation of Superlative, or the sixty of Double Norwich Court Bob Major, or Albion. But, where are these much coveted peals? the 120 courses of Double Norwich has been composed in several different ways, but never has a peal of that number of courses been composed that will run home half-way. The part-end is made by a single; but without that single you must stop short of sixty courses. Stedman Caters is exactly the same from every point, and the more people argue on it, the more ridiculous the thing looks, and impossibility is an impossibility after all. Sir, when I see the sixty courses of Stedman Caters composed complete, I shall look for the Grandsire Triples by the same author. What I first said stands good till that time, if pedantic or not. J. W. WASHBROOK.

THE PEAL AT CHELMSFORD.

SIR,—As attention has been drawn by my friend Mr. Catchpole to the time occupied in ringing the peal of Treble Ten at Chelmsford and the peal of Treble Eight at Galleywood, I beg to offer a few remarks by way of explanation, as being one of the parties concerned. Speed in ringing very much depends on the "go" of the bells, and the physical capabilities of the band. The peal rung at Galleywood commenced late in the evening, and finished near midnight, and was performed by a band tired after having walked from Ingatesfane station to Galleywood. Some of them had come a long distance and must have been rather "sleepy" before the finish of the peal. The bells are rung on the ground floor, and the distance to the floor above is about 30 feet, between which there is no means of steadying the ropes, and although a light peal, are not fast running bells. On the other hand, the Chelmsford peal was rung early in the morning, and the band well placed, I did not handle the tenor, but my brother who rang it says it went splendidly, and gives great credit to Mr. Bowell, of Ipswich, for the work done in rehanging the peal. I cannot speak to the time, but am positive that none of the changes were cut out, as I followed the calling throughout, and consider that it was a well-struck peal, and none who took part in it need be ashamed of the performance. The appearance of Mr. Haley's ghost in the churchyard afterwards would not have made me feel uncomfortable as to whether I had rang a peal or not. "Little Bob's" effusion is not worthy of notice, but as "A New Man" stands in another position, I must inform him that I was the individual "who only went down on the Sunday," and was the last of the band to arrive at Chelmsford, and that the "tip" he had as to the election of Mr. Smith is entirely false. One of the objects of our paper should be to promote good feeling between ringers, but if "A New Man" is allowed to indulge in the "twaddle" and silly chit-chat he has treated us with up to the present, this object will be defeated, and the sooner he retires the better.

Saffron Walden.

N. J. PITSTOW.

SIR.—I have no desire to carry on this correspondence, which to me appears to be drifting in the wrong direction. Let the provocation given on Whit-Monday blow over, and deal with the case according to common sense and without any unfriendly feeling. My views are unchanged. I maintain, without the slightest doubt, that if the rules are complied with, it will be for some of the band to show that they were unable to obtain the services of any qualified member of the Association to ring in the peal before they can claim its entry in the peal-book. If this is not done, the fact that Mr. Smith's name will find its way there through the payment of a single shilling will be poor justice to those who assisted in building up the Association from its foundation, but who up to the present have failed to get their names in the peal-book.

THOUGHTFUL.

A REMARKABLE ALLEGATION.

SIR.—According to Mr. Washbrook's reply to Mr. Catchpole in your last issue he evidently leads your readers to believe that he would scorn at the idea of ringing a false peal; but does he remember the second attempt for a peal of Grandsire Triples at Ross, in which he was conductor, and which was published in "THE BELL NEWS" as the first peal of the Herefordshire Guild. This attempt, although published as true, was not a true peal, being about 3000 of Holt's Original to begin with, when the bells got misplaced, and after a lot of firing, with repeated entreaties from the conductor to keep on, the bells came out somehow, and he finished up by calling it Penning's one-part. Perhaps he will explain this.

TRUTH.

A CORRECTION.

SIR.—I notice in your last issue that Mr. Jerram, in a very interesting account of a trip to Exeter, says that the peal of eight at Sherborne Abbey, tenor 46 cwt., is the heaviest in England. This however is not so, for the peal of eight at Wells Cathedral (an account of which I sent to "THE BELL NEWS" on June 18th, 1887), has a tenor weighing 57½ cwt., recast with the 7th, by Messrs. Taylor and Sons in 1877. This is, I believe, the heaviest peal in England, the tone is grand, and the bells are all in very fair order, having been rung in 1877. With regard to the chiming at Exeter, I quite agree with Mr. Jerram that the effect is miserable. Surely something can be done to bring out something like the true tone of so grand a peal.

Birmingham, September 3rd.

WILLIAM A. CLARK.

DOUBLE COURT BOB AT HOLY TRINITY, WEST HAM.

SIR.—Just a few more words upon this subject and then I have done. I will admit all what Mr. Keeble says about securing the tower for one Sunday evening, but I strongly deny asking to be furnished with the rule for ringing the method. What do I want to ask him for the rule for, when I have a thorough good book on change-ringing myself. I was very much surprised to receive a letter on July 14th, containing a sheet of foolscap with the rule, three leads of the plain course, the way to make a bob, a single, and the whole of the 720 written out in hand and back-stroke leads. I should think he was sending it to a learner that did not know anything more about ringing beyond Grandsire Doubles. Now as to the second visit, as he calls it, I wish to say that I had nothing to do whatever in arranging this 720, but I knew who the band was. It was arranged to oblige the Rev. A. S. Dowling, who wanted to ring a 720 of Plain Bob, and when we were in the tower, I wanted to ring Plain Bob. But no, they said let us go for Double Court, and the clergyman being told that the treble was a plain hunt thought he could ring it, and believe me Sir, it was a much better 720 than several that I have heard and also that I have rung in the Plain Bob method. Mr. Keeble says that I sail very wide of the mark when I insinuate that there is jealousy on his part. Allow me to tell him that I received information through the post that he was very much upset about it; and not to be surprised if I saw something n "THE BELL NEWS" about it, not only myself but another of the band received something like the same information. What does he call that but jealousy? With respect to the infallibility he says, that I disputed the accuracy of the Annual Report of the Essex Association. I can't call it to mind just now, but I recollect about the district meeting at West Ham. This, Sir, is an extract from a letter that I received from the Honorary Secretary:—"January 22nd, 1887. I am sorry that an inaccurate report of our meeting appeared in 'THE BELL NEWS,' in future I must do it myself instead of trusting to anyone else present. I consider that the meeting was a successful one although the numbers were small. (signed) T. L. PAPILLON." I can't see that there is anything infallible in that. Mr. Keeble says he gave me a thorough sound drilling in the method. I can tell him this much, that when he has rung as many changes in the Grandsire method as I have in Stedman (which I think is much harder to ring than Double Court) then will be his time to talk about drilling people. Ringers that know can tell what sort of a ringer he is, but I can tell him that he is more good with the pen than he is with the rope. I will now finish with these few words that when he next writes to you, Sir, to keep to the question, and not bring in things that have not any thing to do with the subject.

H. RANDALL.

"THE BIRMINGHAM AMALGAMATED SOCIETY."

SIR.—Under the above heading in your last issue, I noticed some remarks alluding to a recently attempted peal at St. Chad's Cathedral in which it is stated that visitors had been ringing at one of the belfries under their jurisdiction, without communicating to them. It also states that the St. Martin's company, taking advantage of the absence of the society at their outing, attempted a peal. I beg to state that in the first place, the Amalgamated Society has got no claim in St. Chad's belfry, and therefore it cannot be under their jurisdiction. Secondly, as regards communicating to them, it amounts to nothing. Thirdly, instead of it being the St. Martin's society which attempted the peal, it was the Holt society, and would have been entered in their book had it been rung. Fourthly, it matters not whether they are absent or present, there is another attempt to be made for the same peal, as the administrator has promised them a new set of ropes to ring it on there. No blame on any company, I invited them with the Rev. Greun's permission.

T. MILLER.

SIR.—A peculiarly offensive and untruthful statement appears in your account of the annual outing of the above society. I refer to the four concluding sentences. It would be as well, Mr. Editor, that reports containing ex parte statements of this kind should carry the signature of the sender, in order that the ringing fraternity may not attach the same importance and belief to them as to your official utterances. The society who attempted the peal was not the St. Martin's, but the Holt society, of Aston, to which two of the most influential members of the Amalgamated Society belong. The invitation to ring at St. Chad's—the tower in question—was from a fellow-member of the Holt Society, who is also a ringer at St. Chad's, and a hearty welcome and permission to ring was granted by the clergy through the tower-keeper. These are the facts. It certainly did not occur to any member of our society that either of the belfries in this neighbourhood were "under the jurisdiction" of any ringing society. Was it due to such "jurisdiction" that the treble rope broke in the attempt at a peal, and has its unsoundness a counterpart in the Amalgamated Society and the dispositions of some of its members? 'Tis an ill bird that fouls its own nest," and the Amalgamated, in going out of their way to utter the innuendo contained in the last sentence of the report referred to, plainly show that their efforts are rather in this direction of detracting from than elevating the ringing in the neighbourhood. That they desire amalgamation in anything else besides the name of their society, seems very doubtful in the face of such conduct.

THE BELLS OF ALL SAINTS' CHURCH, BIRCHINGTON, THANET, KENT.

ON Wednesday, August 31st, the bells of Birchington church were rung for the first time for sixteen years, and the present seems therefore a favourable opportunity for giving as much of their history as can be gleaned from the parish records.

The silence, from a ringer's point of view, of these bells, was caused by the decayed state of the framework, and it is very satisfactory to mention that not only has the frame been renewed as a portion of the Jubilee work at the church, but a new treble bell, the sixth, has also been added. The re-hanging of the bells has been carried out in a most satisfactory manner by Mr. S. Snelling, of Sittingbourne, and the ringers express themselves as highly pleased with his workmanship, a tribute of great value, since they are accustomed to the well hung peal of bells at Quex Park, Birchington, and can therefore judge of the merits of bell-hanging. The new bell weighs 4½ cwt., and has been cast by Messrs. Warner and Son, at a cost of £22 10s. It bears the maker's name and date 1887, together with "S. Snelling hung us all, 1887." Mr. Snelling has been ably assisted in making the bell-frame by Mr. J. J. Bristow, carpenter, of Birchington, and a bellringer of many years' experience. The latter with some of his workmen (who are also bellringers), have spared no pains to carry out the work successfully, and in addition to making the frame, which cost about £35, they have transformed the ringing-chamber from a dusty lumber room into a panelled and comfortably carpeted apartment. After evensong on Wednesday, August 30th, the vicar, (the Rev. J. P. Alcock), and Mr. C. Moore (churchwarden), ringers, and a few visitors ascended to the ringing-chamber, and the following ringers first raised the bells. S. Snelling, 1; L. Willshire (leader), 2; G. Willshire, 3; T. B. Reed, 4; J. J. Bristow, 5; E. Golder, 6. The Vicar next repeated a few collects suitable for the occasion, and immediately afterwards ringing commenced with a six-score of Grandsire Doubles, and a 360 of Grandsire Minor. Subsequently several six-scores were rung in which Messrs. S. Fulcher, F. Carroway, and T. B. Reed, jun., took part. The first entry in the parish books respecting the bells is in the year 1532 as follows:

Item ij new belyroyps on to the grett bell, and other to the small bell. the pc (price) xviiijd.

Other entries in Henry VIII's reign are 1533.—Itm for ryngyng at the tempes to Thomas Norman, iijd.

Itm for one belyroype, xd.

Itm for me' dyng of the clappyr of the grayte bell ijsvj.

1535.—Itm for ryngyng at the tempes, vjd.

1537.—Itm for one rope to the pastall, viij.

1538.—Itm for ryngyng at the tempes in brayd and drink, ijd.

1540.—Itm for one bawdryk, xxd.

Itm to John Swan for me'dyng of the bell clappyr and the bokkyll, ijd.

1541.—Itm for ringyng tempes, ijd.

Itm to the smyth for me'dyng the greyte bell hernes, ijd.

1542.—Itm for one bellrope the pc, xvd.

Itm for on other bellrope the pc, viij.

All these entries might refer to two bells, but in the year 1548 there is proof that there were in the tower three bells since, we find the following item:

1548.—Itm for yron work for the myddel bell, xxd.

It is probable that this middle bell was not then in use, for we find it recast in 1551. A sale of church goods took place at Birchington, in 1550, providing money for recasting the bell, and the churchwardens' accounts for the year 1551 contain a minute statement of the expenditure incurred in sending the bell to Canterbury to be recast, the chief item being 1551.—Itm for casting of ye secon bell, Iiij s iij d.

Much has been written upon the action of the Commissioners of Edward VI. with regard to bells, but this fact is sufficient to prove that the bells of Birchington were not only not plundered, but actually improved in his reign.

Unfortunately none of the three pre-reformation bells are now in existence. The great bell was recast in 1578, and in 1606 the whole of the bells were recast by Johyne Hatch, at a cost of £23 18s. 8d. During the seventeenth century the bells proved to be an expensive luxury—whether it was owing to the method of ringing with bawdricks or to carelessness on the part of ringers, we cannot now discover, but it will suffice to give merely dates of recasting, the accounts being too elaborate for our purpose.

In 1620 Joseph Hatch recast one bell at a charge of £7 16s. 8d. for casting.

In 1623 the churchwarden was cited to Canterbury about a broken bell, and in 1624 £7 10s. was paid for new casting of ye bell, and £2 11s. for "thirty pound of mettle weighing more than ye old bell."

In 1633 there was spent at a meeting about ye broken bell 2s. 6d., and in 1634 the bellfounder received £6 for new casting of the treble bell in full, and £4 16s. for ninety-six pounds of new metal at js. ye pound. This bell which was then the treble, is now the fifth bell in the peal of six, and has the inscription, "Joseph Hatch me vincit 1633," and is the only one of the seventeenth century bells now remaining.

In 1663 the peal of three bells underwent a complete change, the tenor and second bells were taken down, and Thomas Palmer, bell founder, was employed to cast four bells in lieu thereof. The treble bell of Joseph Hatch, 1633, became the fourth bell in the peal, and the "greyt" bell disappeared. These four bells had a short life, and not one of Palmer's bells is in existence.

In 1728 and 1730, Samuel Knight recast the four bells, and these together with that of Joseph Hatch, 1633, still remain. The cost of the numerous recastings is fully set down in the churchwardens' accounts of the parish of Birchington, and may be had by the curious in such matters, but are too long for this account.

In connection with Birchington, it may be stated that the parishioners have not always shown that foresight which has prevailed in the present Jubilee year with regard to bells. The beautiful peal of bells now in Quex Park, was originally offered to the parish, together with the tower at the west end of the church to contain them, but the offer was declined. However it is an ill wind, etc., for the ringers now have a small peal in the village, and a larger one at the Park. May ringing flourish.

J. P. BARRETT.

Park House, Birchington.

THE ST. JOHN'S SOCIETY, DARLINGTON.

On Saturday, September 10th, this Society held its annual outing, the place chosen being Skelton-in-Cleveland, which happily possesses one of the finest and most harmonious peal of six bells in Yorkshire. The party, eight in number, on arriving, at once proceeded to the church and rang a 720 of Bob Minor, in 29 mins. J. Bolton, 1; H. S. Taylor, 2; W. Patton, 3; W. D. Lister, 4; R. Moncaster, 5; G. Overton (conductor), 6. Tenor 22 cwt. Afterwards several short touches of Grandsire Minor and Oxford Treble Bob were successfully brought round. The party then adjourned to partake of a substantial tea, and having done ample justice to the many good things provided, four of the company enlivened the hostess and her numerous friends with a course of Grandsire Triples, which was much applauded. After having had a good ramble through the village they again made for the belfry, when by special request of the Skelton company rang a six-score of Bob Doubles. J. Little, 1; W. D. Lister, 2; W. Patton, 3; J. H. Whitfield (conductor), 4; R. Moncaster, 5; J. Bolton, 6. At the conclusion the bells were lowered, thus terminating a most enjoyable afternoon's outing, which was mainly due to the hearty and indeed convivial welcome accorded by the Skelton ringers and villagers in general. By the deep interest which the Skelton ringers appeared to evince in change-ringing (but who are stayed from practising the art, solely owing to the want of a tutor) the writer is of opinion that if some encouragement was given them through the Secretary of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association, they might be induced to join that Society, and with a little assistance from that body some good change-ringing would be accomplished in place of the call-changes which are now (through want of assistance) indulged in, as the bells are certainly worthy of a much higher class of change-ringing than has ever yet been attempted.

R.

CORRECTION.—In the report of the peal at St. Martin's, Salisbury, the time should have been 2 hrs. 39 mins., and not 2 hrs. 41 mins., as stated by Mr. Jerram.

OPENING OF A RING OF SIX AT BARNBY-ON-DON, YORKSHIRE.

On Wednesday, September 7th, this new ring of bells was opened by ringers from Tickhill. The new bells were cast by Messrs. Warner, of London, and hung in a new frame with new fittings complete by Messrs. Mallaby and Sons, of Masham, Yorkshire, to the entire satisfaction of the vicar and churchwardens. The cost of the bells and fittings has been raised by the parishioners and friends in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee, which is recorded on an inscription on the tenor bell. The following is the inscription: "To the Glory of God, Victoria's Jubilee, 1887. Given by loving parishioners and friends. T. Duffin, B. A., Vicar. G. F. Milsthorpe, W. Oliver, S. Parker, churchwardens." The following methods were rung during the day: 720 Oxford Treble Bob, 720 Kent, 720 Woodbine, 720 Violet, 720 New London Pleasure, and 720 Cambridge Surprise. A. Wright, 1; Chas. Arley, 2; Frank Jenkinson, 3; J. Mausfield, 4; G. Gledell, 5; T. Jenkins (conductor), 6. Tenor 10 cwt. in A flat.

THE ANTIQUITY OF LARGE BELLS.

I addressed the readers of "THE BELL NEWS" some time ago on the subject of the antiquity of large bells. The late Mr. Ellacombe, who followed the old authorities, wrote thus:

"It is a satisfaction to be able to claim an unmistakably Christian origin for an instrument, which has laid so mighty a hold upon ecclesiastical architecture. The earliest names for bells, 'Nola' and 'Campania,' would seem to point to Nola in Campania as their birth-place, and the fifth and sixth century, as their earliest date."

Mr. Haweis, on the other hand, in his book on "Music and Morals," states that large bells have been used by the Chinese for thousands of years. It occurred to me to make enquiries from a friend in China, who belongs to the Civil Service there. The following extracts from his letter may perhaps interest my fellow-readers.

"I am quite surprised to find how little seems to have been written on the subject of bells in China. I believe that there was an article in 1869 or 1870, which appeared in the Builder, which gave a very accurate description of the great bell of China, which is in a temple a few miles outside Peking. Dr. Williams, in 'The Middle Kingdom,' vol. I. p. 79 (revised edition), writes that this was cast about 1406 A.D., in the reign of Yureg Loh. It is 14 ft. high, including the umbones (cannons), 34 ft. in circumference at the rim, and 9 inches thick. The weight is 120,000 lbs. av.; it is struck by a heavy beam swung on the outside. As to the antiquity of bells in China I cannot speak. I recollect reading of the great bells cast in the reign of the Emperor (B.C. 221-209), who built the great wall, but they do not seem to have been referred to on that occasion except on account of their size.

"The manner adopted for striking the bell is that mentioned by Dr. Williams. A huge beam is suspended outside the bell. This is drawn back by a rope, and when released strikes the bell. At a temple near Peking there was an old priest who did this for years and years at intervals of ten minutes. The feat was of course regarded as one of great piety. The big bell which Marco Polo speaks of as that of Cambaluc appears to be one in a tower near the wall of Peking, and inside the city. This is not I think of unusual size. Its uses are not connected with religion, but it is used I fancy as a fire, and generally as an alarm bell. Towns of the rank of a provincial capital in Corea are always provided with such. The big bell of Peking is swung only a few feet from the ground."

HERE AND THERE.

My remarks anent the Burton-on-Trent society the week before last were it seems rather premature. Little did I think these gentlemen had a peal of London Surprise under weigh. The performance of a peal in this method is very creditable indeed to them. Of course it is what we may have expected to hear from such a quarter. What I said respecting other absentees from the reports of performances will I hope in time bear fruit. Will any one in the counties mentioned make a sign? I should feel glad to know that my observations have been noticed by somebody who has a mind to try and remove the reproach. Failing this, I shall have to conclude that the counties in question are stony ground, very stony indeed, with regard to ringing.

The correspondents' page of our paper has of late been made good use of. To read between the lines the arguments of the various writers, is a process no doubt highly interesting to many. The "remarkable allegation" found in last week's number is indeed very "remarkable." Such a statement no doubt will elicit an indignant reply from Mr. WASHBROOK, and his friends will be glad if he substantiates an effective denial of the charge. If he does not, then the "high-falutin" (I use this Americanism for want of a better phrase) language he addressed to Mr. CATCHPOLE, will look flat, if not stale and unprofitable.

So according to "N. J. PITSTOW," the sooner I retire the better. This and its context hit me very hard, very hard indeed. Too bad of you, my dear Nathan. You are well aware I suppose, that you are merely a unit of the Exercise, i.e., not more than one person. And the only unit who has written to say (so our Editor informs me in reply to my question), that the sooner I retire the better. My remarks did not meet your views, and therefore they were "twaddle." Fie upon thee, Nathan; fie upon thee. But I'm not angry with thee, friend Nathan, after all. We shall, I hope, ring a peal in company before long; then we will probably have a laugh together, along with our mutual friend H. D.

There's evidently something wrong at Birmingham. Is there no master-mind there capable of uniting in one solid company the various skilled ringers the town contains? Men of Birmingham, has all cohesion left you? Is it impossible to solidify these conflicting elements of the various companies into one strong Association? It ought not to be. As I said before, if Birmingham had one good company, embracing all the members of the present existing societies, there would be no organization of the kind in the kingdom which could achieve what that could not.

The gradual approach of colder weather has already an effect upon the reports of performances. Out-door occupations now cease earlier in the evening, and ringers who earn their bread by such callings are thus able to meet for practice more regularly. Times were, and not a very many years ago, when we could only read of the performance of a solitary peal now and then through the columns of a paper devoted to the interests of what is called "sport," but we may now read of the weekly doings of almost every ringing company, big and little—patrician and plebeian. I enjoy reading the touches, even such matters as a 6-score of Grandsire Doubles, and I dwell upon the names of the performers as I read them, wondering who among them will in time to come do something to be spoken of with admiration. I hope therefore that my friends whose names appear in this number among the records of touches will read these observations, and if they would like to fraternise with me by the aid of the post, no one will be more pleased to accept their approaches to familiarity and acquaintanceship than

A NEW MAN.

SHERBORNE ABBEY BELLS.

According to promise I herewith give a short account of this heavy peal of eight. But before I begin, I must thank Mr. Clark for his correction in last week's issue as to the heaviest peal of eight in England; and here I must note that the original tenor at Sherborne was said to weigh 56 cwt., while the old tenor at Wells Cathedral weighed but about 53 cwt. Now when the seventh and tenor at Wells were recast, the weight of the new tenor was given by Messrs. Taylor and Co. in their list as 56 cwt., while the present tenor at Sherborne is quoted at 46 cwt. in Messrs. Warner's list. So if these weights be all correct, the case seems to be vice versa now.

With regard to Sherborne bells, the treble and second were cast by Mr. G. Mears, London, in 1858. The treble is inscribed "Lord, let folk below,—resound with living song,—Thy praise as I do now,—with iron tongue." The second, "We hang here to record,—that the choir was restored,—in the year of our Lord,—1858." The third is a very ornamental old bell, with very large cannons. There is a good deal of floriated ornament round the shoulder, and the inscription "R.A. 1658," and on the crown "THO. SAVL. WM. —ERS ME," the rest is hidden by the stock. The fourth has "Peace and plenty is the wish of Thomas Thorne and Samuel Jeffrey, Ch. Wardens, 1803, Thomas and James Bilbie, Chewstoke, Somerset, fecit." The fifth, "Bartholomew Watts, and Sweet Hart, Churchwardens, 1787—Be meek and lowly to hear the word of God, William Bilbie, Chewstoke, Somerset, fecit." The sixth is simply inscribed "G. Mears, founder, London, 1858." The seventh has "+ CAMPANA DOMINE (i.e. Domine) IOHN WHETCOMB IOHN COOTH WARDENS, 1653." This bell is called the "Lady bell." The tenor is thus inscribed "+ Gustavus Horne, Walter Pride, Churchwardens. This bell was new cast by me Thomas Purday, October 20th, 1670, again recast 1865, Edward Harston, Vicar, James Hoddinott, Francis Stokes, Churchwardens + By Wolsey's gift I measure time for all; To mirth, to griefe, to church I serve to call." There is also an old fire bell inscribed "Lord quench this furious flame; Arise, run, help put out the same,—IW, IC, 1653, R.A." This bell is spherical at the crown, and very little wider at the mouth than the shoulder. It is also slightly curved in at the lip. Lastly, there is a small Sanctus bell inscribed in Lombardic capitals "O S. MARIA ORA PRO NOBIS."

The ringing-chamber is very dark so that it is necessary to burn gas there in the day time. The bells go fairly well, and are easily rung by ten men. I am told that formerly when there were only six bells (and those rung from the ground floor), it used to require twenty-one men to ring them stock level. The clock is a new one, and has three dials, one on the gable of each transept, and one on the eastern gable of the choir. It chimes the Cambridge quarters on 2, 3, 4, and 7, and strikes the hour on the tenor by means of a 150lbs. hammer. J. R. J.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS' ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday, September 3rd, a Quarterly Meeting of this Association took place at Brierley Hill. The meeting, which was well attended by members from Areley Kings, Brierley Hill, Bromsgrove, Coseley, Dudley, Kidderminster, Netherton, Stourbridge, Tipton, etc., was held in the National Schoolroom, and was presided over (in the absence of the Rector, the Rev. J. Stone), by the Rev. C. W. Tibbetts (Coseley). The usual business being transacted, the Chairman offered some good suggestions, which, if acted upon, must result in doing the Association some benefit. Votes of thanks having been passed to the Chairman for presiding, to the Rev. J. Stone for the use of the tower and Schoolroom, and also to the Vicars of St. Thomas's Stourbridge, St. James's, Wollaston and St. Thomas' Dudley, for so kindly offering the use of their towers and bells for the occasion, the meeting was brought to a close. Owing to the downpour of rain during the evening the members could not visit the towers above mentioned for ringing, but each one enjoyed themselves with listening to some good touches of Grandsire Caters and Triples upon the handbells by various mixed bands, at the "Alma Inn." The bells of St. Michael's Brierley Hill were rung during the afternoon and evening.

STAPLEHURST, KENT.

The Ringers' Guild, accompanied by the late curate, the Rev. W. M. Rodwell, the rector's churchwarden, Mr. Jno. Nunn, and other friends, had their annual outing on Wednesday, September 7th. The places selected for this visit comprised Benenden, Rolvenden, Tenterden, and Biddenden, all eight-bell churches. Leaving Staplehurst at 8 a.m., they arrived at Benenden at 9.30. This beautiful church is very prettily situated, and contains a good peal of bells in first-rate going order, the tenor weighing about 19 cwt. Having inspected the church, they rang 308, 882, and 168 of Grandsire Triples. There being service at 11.30., they started for Rolvenden, which was reached by noon. Here the belfry had been got ready for them, but although the bells are light (tenor 16 cwt.), they do not go very well. Touches of Grandsire, 672, and 504, and 112 of Bob Major was rung. Dinner was then served at "The Bull," by host Pile, to which ample justice was done. A move was then made for Tenterden, which was reached about 4 o'clock. After some slight delay, which was caused by putting in fresh ropes, a start was made. They now found they had some more metal to deal with (tenor 30½ cwt.) and consequently had a bad quarter of an hour. After this however, the pace calmed down, and 377, 308, and 168 of Grandsire Triples were steadily struck. A pause was then made for tea, which was served by Mr. Bishop at "The Woolpack." Several of the band not being satisfied with the performance before tea, another start was made, and some better ringing done; this they thought was owing to the refreshment. At 7.30 they started for Biddenden, which was reached in about three quarters of an hour. Although getting late, they had heard so much of this fine peal of bells, that they could not pass without trying them. It was a true report they had heard, for it is a fine peal (tenor 28 cwt.), but it was only by the exercise of sheer brute strength that they could be forced through 336 and 377 of Grandsire Triples. At 10 o'clock another start was made for home, which was reached at 11 p.m., everyone having thoroughly enjoyed himself. They wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" to thank the incumbents of the parishes for the use of their bells, and the steeplekeepers and brother-strings for having things ready for them.

THE SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS.
OFFICERS FOR ENSUING YEAR.

Master—MR. JAMES HANNINGTON.
Stewards—MR. ALBERT E. CHURCH, SENIOR.
MR. DANIEL LOVATT, JUNIOR.
Hon. Treasurer—MR. WILLIAM BARON.

The election of officers and reception of annual balance-sheet took place at head quarters, on the 9th inst., and as will be noticed the Treasurer and Secretary retain their offices. At the close of the evening's business the newly-elected Master gave the usual vote of thanks to the officers of the past year, which was cordially received, as was the special mention of the outgoing Master, Mr. Henry S. Thomas, for the lively and deep interest taken by that gentleman in the Society's business during his tenure of office. The ex-master responded to the effect that his interest would long survive his vacation of the chair, and mutual congratulations followed.

Brought round with calls at 2, 5, 9, 10, 16, 17 sixes.

This peal, it will be observed, is the same composition as the 5285 of Stedman Cinques, with six introductory courses. Consequently it contains the same qualities with the 4th, 5th and 6th their extent in natural courses.

CORRECTIONS.—The last course of the 5037 of Stedman Caters by Mr. Lomas, published August 20th, should be 2, 4, 5, 7; and the peal of Stedman Cinques published September 3rd, the bob at 19 should be omitted in the last course of 1st, 2nd, and 3rd parts.

At Exeter Castle on Tuesday, the Rev. John Ingle was charged before the City magistrates with being drunk on the occasion of a funeral in the Higher Cemetery last week. Witnesses were called on both sides, and the Bench dismissed the case.

ADDRESS WANTED.—The Captain of the Society of Ringers, Melbourne, Australia.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1887.

THE society of St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, has attained to the topmost rung of the ladder. After a series of successes unparalleled in the most difficult exercises, viz.: Stedman, Double Norwich, Superlative and Cambridge, they have at last reached the highest altitude of scientific ringing by achieving a peal of London Surprise, by far the most complex of all Major methods. A suggestion or hint was recently hazarded by one who has become a regular contributor to this paper, that "the esprit de corps" of the Burton company might have become lessened or impaired, but the peal now alluded to has we should think, completely dispelled whatever fears in that direction may have been felt. The performances of the society in question, coming so quickly after each other, performances, by the way, which, from their complexity and rapidity have commanded the admiration of all, have been capped by this last exploit. How they have gradually worked their way up step by step, surmounting the various difficulties which presented themselves with a patience and perseverance worthy of imitation by all, whether ringers or not, is now a matter of history, and the future essayist of the ringing art in years to come, when the present and many succeeding generations shall be known no more, will be filled with delight and amazement when he reads of the grand results gained by the unflinching constancy and perseverance of the men of Burton. Their names will go down to posterity with renown, not merely for the reason that they have excelled in a particular peal or specific method, but that they have been eminent in them all, in fact, surpassed them all. And that not because their educational attainments were—if they will excuse us saying so—anything out of the common, their success in fact is due to nothing but their own perseverance, and determination to keep and sustain that unity and concord among themselves without which even the least measure of success is far from sure. Such an example of steady progress cannot be quoted too frequently, or held up for imitation too often, and there are organisations laying claim to greater distinction, and who pride themselves upon their antecedents and doings of their predecessors, who would do well to copy from this Society of modern growth.

While mentally reviewing the history of the Burton company, we are naturally led to think of him who was on every occasion their cheery counsellor and guide; the invaluable friend whose loss they will ever have cause to deplore. How he would have rejoiced to see the day when his own band had no more methods left for them to conquer; what pleasure he would have felt in penning the report of this last performance for publication; how he would have delighted in pointing out the final—in a sense—success of that society whose procedure from the commencement had the benefit of his fostering care. Probably the members of the Burton company reason with respect to their late Vicar in a similar strain; and while not daring to wish him back among them, it is only natural to suppose that they have some longing that he could know that they progressed still further than they were when he was called away.

Whether the position attained by the Burton company will be extended is beyond our knowledge. If they are to go further the peal at St. Paul's will have to be augmented. The tower is capable of holding ten, or even twelve bells; and everyone must hope that the latter augmentation may be carried out. The good folks of Burton have some reason to be proud of their ringers; and there is certainly sufficient wealth and enterprise in the town to effect such a welcome addition to the peal. We cannot help thinking that a movement upon these lines, carried to a successful issue, would form a fitting memorial to the late Vicar, and we may also be allowed to venture the opinion that the suggestion would have been approved by him. We shall anxiously look forward to the fulfilment of such an idea.

Church News.

The vicarage of Herriard, Hants, is likely to become vacant by the resignation of the present incumbent, the Rev. G. H. Butler.

A three-light window, by Messrs. Lavers and Westlake, has been placed in the south transept of St. John's, Brooklands, as a memorial to the late Mrs. Lloyd.

A ROYAL GIFT.—A Reuter's telegram, dated Copenhagen, September 14th, states: "Owing to the lack of funds the new English Episcopal church here, which is to be consecrated on Saturday next, is without bells. The Prince of Wales has consequently sent telegraphic instructions to London to provide them at his expense."

On Saturday, the Countess Grosvenor laid the foundation-stone of a new Sunday-school for All Saints', Hoole, near Chester. The Bishop of Chester delivered an address, in which he said he wanted to see Sunday-schools better taught and better organised, the Sunday-school teachers and scholars improved, and their appliances made quite as perfect as those in day schools.

The Lord Mayor of London has presented to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's Cathedral forty large Prayer-books, bound in morocco and gold, for the Bishop's, Dean's, Canons' and Prebendal stalls, in commemoration of the Jubilee Thanksgiving Service, held there on June 23rd last. Each book is stamped with the arms of the Cathedral and a suitable inscription.

"ICHABOD."—The Press Association's Londonderry correspondent telegraphs: "A singular outrage has occurred in this city. The Protestant Bishop, Dr. Alexander, having entertained Mr. Justin M'Carthy and his daughter at dinner, some persons, who are supposed to be Loyalists, have expressed their indignation by painting during the night the word "Ichabod" in several conspicuous places on the front of the Bishop's palace. The act has caused some stir in the city.

THE VICAR'S ADVICE.—The Rev. J. Black, vicar of Launcells, Stretton, Cornwall, is reported to have delivered a remarkable sermon at a harvest thanksgiving on Monday night. He warned the labourers that if they sanctioned a tax on corn they would simply enable the landlords to raise their rents. They had been driven from the land because landlords had thought it better to feed sheep than men, and it was their duty to see that the land was applied to the purpose for which it was made, so that there should be no unnatural divorce between the soil and the tillers, and consequent starvation of the poor.

The charge of Christ Church, Mentone, in the patronage of the Colonial and Continental Church Society, has been undertaken for the earlier part of the ensuing winter season by the Rev. E. W. Kissack, rector of Kirkbride, Ramsey, Isle of Man; and from the commencement of January till the close of the season by Dr. Pigou, Chaplain-in-Ordinary to the Queen, and Vicar of Halifax. The Rev. N. Dimock, who recently resigned the living of St. Paul's, Maidstone, has also accepted the charge of St. John's, San Remo, likewise in the gift of the above society.

The memorial windows which have been placed by subscription in St. Luke's, Mow Cop, Cheshire, were dedicated on Thursday. The following inscription appears on a brass plate:—"To the glory of God, and in loving and grateful memory of Randle Wilbraham, and Sibella his wife, who desired to be builders of the ark of Christ's Church, and labourers together with God, these windows are given by the parishioners and other friends, A.D. 1887."—The preacher at the special service of dedication was Canon Blackburn, rector of Warrington and Rural Dean, and the Preacher at evensong the Rev. L. H. Evans, vicar of Tunstall.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the Rev. Stewart Headlam has resolved to appeal to the Archbishop of Canterbury against the decision of the Bishop of London not to grant him a general license to officiate in the diocese. He does not doubt the Bishop's discretion in the matter, but he considers that the Bishop has deliberately made the question not one of his right to refuse leave to officiate where he likes, but of his right to refuse the leave for the specific reason which he has given, namely, that Mr. Headlam approves of ballet dancing, and refuses to excommunicate ballet dancers. If the Church thinks that the Bishop should have such absolute power, he is willing to submit, but he is advised that the Bishop's action constitutes a gross interference with the personal rights of the clergy.

An energetic movement for the maintenance of the marriage laws is going on in the north of England. At a conference held at Redcar on Wednesday week, it was unanimously resolved that the time had now arrived for the question of marriages within the prohibited degrees to be finally thrashed out by means of public and open discussion. It was stated that the students at Cuddesdon Theological College were taught that it was the duty of the clergy to repel from Communion any persons who contracted incestuous unions. On the following evening, Mr. G. W. Wardman, the organising secretary of the Marriage Law Defence Union, addressed an enthusiastic meeting of working men in the parish of All Saints', Middlesbrough, and was unanimously invited to open a discussion in the same place on a future occasion.

The Rev. W. M. Haslewood, vicar of Great Harwood, has had an interview with the Bishop of Manchester on the cemetery question in his parish. He informed his lordship that he had offered a reasonable portion of the glebe land in order to extend the churchyard for the use of the parishioners of Great Harwood and Rishton, as the latter place was at one time a portion of the parish of Great Harwood. The Bishop, it is stated, expressed an opinion that Mr. Haslewood had taken the very best and wisest course that he could do under the circumstances. The committee appointed by the parishioners will now take measures to bring the matter to a close as soon as possible. There will, no doubt, be two cemeteries at Great Harwood, one used by the church people, and the other by the Roman Catholics and Nonconformists.

A new Mission-church, with two classrooms for the Sunday-school, together with a cottage for the custodian, has lately been built at Newtown, in the parish of Mountain Ash, Glamorganshire, and on Monday evening the church was opened for Divine Service, the preachers being the two neighbouring Rural Deans—namely, the Revs. J. L. Meredith, rector of Galligaer, and W. Lewis, vicar of Ystadyfodwg. This is the second new church which has been opened in the parish during the present year. During the last four years three new churches have been built, and the parish church has been considerably enlarged. The population is almost exclusively of the collier class, and so rapid has been its increase that the enlargement of a new church, opened only in 1883, has become an urgent necessity.

The Yorkshire Post states that Mr. Jolly, who has been for seventeen years pastor of the Baptist Chapel, Boston, has seceded from that body, and is now a candidate for ordination by the Bishop of Ripon. The Baptists were a very influential body in Boston until recently, but in consequence of disputes between the pastor and the deacons, there has been a great falling off in the attendance at the chapel. A short time ago Mr. Jolly tendered his resignation, after which the triennial election of deacons returned a majority of staunch supporters of the pastor, who pressed him to withdraw his resignation. Mr. Jolly, before setting out on his holiday tour, promised to send an answer to the request. Nothing further was heard from him direct, but the application for ordination is a sufficient answer. Some of his admirers have determined to present him with a testimonial of their regard. Mr. Jolly has been the leading Nonconformist minister of the district, and his secession has caused quite a sensation in South Lincolnshire.

On Wednesday the Bishop of Salisbury re-opened [Wimborne, St. Giles', which had been thoroughly restored by the Countess of Shaftesbury as a memorial of her late husband. The church was rebuilt in the Georgian style, and though some improvements had been effected in the time of the seventh earl, it had no pretensions to beauty of any kind. Under the care of Messrs. Bodley and Garner, however, it has become an elegant and church-like structure. The altar, now properly vested, is ornamented with a cross and candlesticks, and two vases for flowers. There is also a white frontal to the altar, and on the wall behind is hung a dossal reaching to the roof. It is of a rich red colour, and shows off the altar very effectively. At the west end of the south aisle is inserted a brass tablet to commemorate the restoration of the church. The inscription is as follows:—"To the glory of God as a thank-offering for many happy years of married life, and as a memorial to her husband, Anthony Ashley Cooper, eighth Earl of Shaftesbury, and to fulfil his heart's desire, this church has been restored by Harriet, Countess of Shaftesbury." The Bishop celebrated at eight o'clock and preached at eleven, taking for his text St. John vi. 12.

The London Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, who was at St. Paul's on Sunday afternoon, says the preacher was the Canon-in-residence, the Rev. Henry Scott Holland. "Mr. Holland was appointed by Mr. Gladstone in the year 1883 at an unusually early age, and he has fully justified the appointment by proving himself one of the most effective and popular preachers in the Chapter of St. Paul's. At Oxford, where before his appointment he resided as a tutor of Christ Church, and elsewhere in the early days of his ministerial career, his style was marred by a startling redundancy of epithet and illustration which caused a little girl who heard him to exclaim in admiration, 'Oh, what a lot of adjectives he knows!' but the process of years has chastened his diction, while it has abated none of his fire, his brilliancy, his passionate earnestness. His text to-day was Galatians iii. 18, 19, and his sermon was an elaborate and ingenious parallel between the operation of law in the natural and spiritual worlds. Close to me was Mr. Reginald Palgrave, chief clerk of the House of Commons, who seemed thoroughly to enjoy the reposeful sensation of being hidden in the tabernacle from the strife of Parliamentary tongues."

At Dorchester, on Saturday, the Rev Robert Gray, D.D., rector of Toller, and formerly Dean of Pretoria, was charged with assaulting one of his parishioners named John Yeates. It was stated that a few days ago Yeates was in the village inn talking over the affairs of the parish with some friends, and was overheard by the rector, who was in an adjoining room, condemning the laws which allowed a clergyman to remain in a parish when two-thirds of the inhabitants were opposed to him. The rector entered the room and, putting his fist in Yeates's face, said "If I were not a clergyman of the Church of England I would knock you down." Yeates advised him not to touch him and called him a bad man. Dr. Gray thereupon struck the complainant, who is an old man, a violent blow on the head. Yeates closed with the rector and a struggle ensued. Ultimately the contestants were separated, the complainant bearing several marks of the affray. The rector pleaded provocation and practically admitted the assault. He said he had been subjected to great abuse from complainant, and remarked to the bench, "Even if I am a clergyman you would not have me lie down in the road and have my throat cut. I am a clergyman but I am a man." The bench imposed a fine of £5, which was paid. Another charge of assault was postponed on the application of the defendant.

In an article on the Strand churches, written in the interests of the iconoclasts who would pull them down, the Daily Telegraph describes the slums north of St. Mary's and St. Clement's, adding:—"Into this deplorable neighbourhood, full of vice and crime, few people except the parson, the doctor, and the police, penetrate; but Mr. Thomas (of the Clare-market Mission) is assisted in his work by at least one Judge—Sir W. Grantham—who is the treasurer, and frequently reads the lessons on Sunday nights. Assistance is also given by some half-dozen barristers and by a few devoted ladies, including Miss Alderson and Mrs. Willis. Legal firms liberally contribute to augment the slender allowance from the Bishop of London's Fund. The Sunday school is better attended than the classes are at the parent church (St. Clement's), and there is some meeting arranged for every week night, except Saturdays. The duties of the curate-in-charge are similar to those of a relieving officer. Nearly one hundred and twenty children have been sent into the country this year, each for a fortnight. Others have been emigrated. In one case the mother had exclaimed one night to her daughter, 'Go; I hope you'll be brought home dead.' Much of the degradation is attributed to drinking habits, which among women are increasing frightfully, the reason being, it is said that the poor creatures are underfed and abominably housed. In one short street the average to each house is forty persons, and no house is a large one."

On Wednesday week, a long meeting of the general committee for the consecration of the cathedral was held at Truro, the Earl of Mount Edgumbe in the chair, to consider the arrangements for November 3rd, when the Prince of Wales will be present. The noble chairman read a correspondence with the Prince of Wales, who had written to express his regret that the Princess would not probably be able to be present, as she would have only just returned from Denmark. His Royal Highness suggested that a public luncheon immediately after the service might not be appropriate. He also pointed out that as Mount Edgumbe, to which he had been invited by the noble Earl, was a long distance from Truro, it would perhaps be better for him to proceed to Falmouth direct from London, and to return to his quarters on board the yacht Osborne immediately after the ceremony. Amongst the other business transacted by the general committee, it was agreed that the high sheriff should make arrangements for drawing up a county address for presentation to the Prince. Three committees are now at work—namely, the reception, construction, and distribution of tickets committee. At the general meeting it was resolved, "that as the executive committee had decided that it was not possible to make any charge for admission to the cathedral on the opening day, a committee should be appointed to represent the county of Cornwall and the city of Truro, to ascertain what expense must be incurred in connection with the reception of the Prince of Wales on the opening day of the Cathedral, and to issue an appeal jointly with those who have to provide for the expenses connected with the opening services for the necessary funds." The committee desired it to be made known that the expenses would be large. A certain amount of construction would be required for the accommodation of people in the cathedral, and also for the public reception of the Prince. It is suggested that a joint choir should take part in the service on the opening day.

The Attorney-General has appointed Mr. Horace Avery one of the Counsel to the Treasury in Mint cases at the Central Criminal Court, in succession to the late Mr. Crawford.

PROPOSED RINGING ASSOCIATION FOR CHESHIRE AND NORTH WALES.

We are requested to print the following circular:—

"DEAR SIR,—With reference to the circular as to the formation of a Ringers' Association, we find that the Archdeacon of Chester had already mentioned the subject in his recent charge. He proposes to bring the matter before the Diocesan conference, and immediately afterwards to call a meeting at Chester, and as we think it will be desirable to take combined action in the matter, we hope you will be able to come to such meeting (of which you shall receive due notice) and to support the scheme.—We are, yours faithfully, Ven. Archdeacon Barber; Richard Pease, Secretary (pro tem)."

THE LEAVES OF THE BLACK BRYONY.—By no means conspicuous as regards its flower, this plant will probably be yet well known to all who, with any appreciation of the beauties of nature, have wandered along our hedgerows in the long days of summer—for the foliage of the black bryony is one of the most graceful and most ordinary draperies that fringe and festoon the plants of the hedge or copse. The long trailing stems are thickly covered with the great heart-shaped leaves, and one of its most beautiful features, noticeable on pulling down some six feet of it from its attachment, is the delicate gradation of form and size from the great leaves of the lower portion to the lighter forms near the extremity of the stem. The last leaves are often not more than an inch in length. The brilliant gloss of the leaves is another feature that will at once attract the eye; the young leaves near the extremities are a somewhat pale and yellowish green, and have little of this polished surface, but the main bulk of the foliage—all that most readily catches the eye—is of a dark-bluish green, and has the glossy surface that is so characteristic a feature as the plant, and that makes it very noticeable amongst the other foliage up which it climbs or that surrounds it in the hedgerow or coppice.—From "Cassell's Familiar Wild Flowers" for September.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

REPLY TO MR. WASHBROOK.

SIR,—I ought to feel grateful to Mr. Washbrook for pointing out to me his reason for starting with a quick six in his peal of Stedman Caters, but I fail to see the necessity for such a start, and contend that the coming round course has nothing whatever to do with it, therefore his reason become unreasonable. He then says for hardly before you know you are out of the tittums, the bells are in rounds. This sounds very nice to those that are unacquainted with the method, but it is nothing new, as this plan of turning the large bells was got years before Mr. W. began to think anything at all about ringing. In his letter he infers that I make use of the word rubbish; I do nothing of the kind, for in my letters to this journal I always endeavour to avoid offensive remarks—however now he has given us the correct calling for his first course in the 13129 of Stedman Caters, the word is applicable to it, as such calling makes his peal false. CHARLES HENRY HATTERSLEY.

TOWER ELECTIONS.

SIR,—According to last week's "BELL NEWS," I see the Chelmsford business is now confined to the question whether the election of Mr. Smith is valid or not, the other part of the question being dropped, and, I conclude, as the Scotch say, "not proven." If Mr. Smith's election is not valid then other elections in the tower by, not only the Essex Association, but other Societies will not hold good. Who is prepared to make such a statement as this? An attempt is being made to twist and cavil over the word "required." How is it this has never been done before? In the case of Mr. F. Dawe's election in Chelmsford tower, previous to starting for a peal of Grandsire Triples, was this objection then made? Was an objection made in Mr. Fussell's case at Barking? Was an objection made in Mr. Jacob's case at Romford? No, Sir, these three peals have been rung and entered in our Association peal-book, without the slightest opposition being offered, and since the rule referred to has been in force. Then why all this "ado about nothing?" There are many cases where ringers have actually stood out to allow a friend to take part in a peal that he was not originally intended to be in. For instance a friend of mine was asked to ring in another's stead in a St. James's peal in London, but it was necessary to make him a member previous to starting; if this peal had been rung, is it to be considered null and void, because he was not required, the gentleman that made room for him being outside the tower? The whole thing is ridiculous, and will not hold water. Without wishing to say anything harsh to any of my friends, I must say (not being unmindful of kindnesses done), that all this anonymous correspondence—this stabbing in the dark—will never answer in the long run. Persecutions in a good cause never succeeded yet, even though it might have been carried on for a length of years. I cannot help saying, Sir, that had a certain gentleman in a certain quarter have met the band at Chelmsford tower on Whit-Sunday evening, as he was asked to do, and tried his hand at his first touch of Caters—as one ringer did—that we should never have had our eagerly-looked-for "BELL NEWS" crowded over such an unwarrantable piece of business as this has been. Chelmsford tower has been open to any band since the two trebles were returned. There has been no real opening of the bells. The Archdeacon is no respecter of persons. He is willing to oblige all I believe. Facts speak for themselves—another band, as I understand, having attempted a peal since our first attempt. We rang our peal—a level 5000—and I shall always think of it with pleasure, as being one of the best peals I have ever rung. Why not give us our due?

ACLAND J. PERKINS.

MOCK ELECTIONS.

SIR,—You have in your editorial column again brought before us a question of considerable importance to the Exercise, namely the mock election of members in any out-of-the-way tower, in all cases without previous intimation to any officer and in many instances without any so-called after-ratification by the committee because the attempt for the peal proves a failure. It is a matter of little public concern whether or not a certain peal, rung, by say six bona fide members of an Association, assisted by two other ringers (whose names, simply as a matter of form have been proposed and seconded in the tower before starting), is registered as an Association peal. But this practice of mock elections opens a course of questionable procedure, which frequently causes ill-feeling among the members, and raises suspicion outside the Association. It is undoubtedly one of the first duties of County and Diocesan Associations to annihilate every custom (never mind how universally recognised a practice it be) that is open to such abuse. The rule of the Sussex County Association (of which I am a member) provides that all members shall be elected either at a committee or general meeting, and has worked satisfactorily during the past three years. I trust that members may be found in every Association to raise this question at their general meeting, and I look forward to a time, at no distant date, when these mock elections may be only known as an evil of the past.

RECKLESS STATEMENTS.

SIR,—In Mr. Washbrook's letter in last week's "BELL NEWS," in referring to the 120 course-ends of Double Norwich Court Bob Major, he says "but never has a peal of that number of courses been composed that will run home half-way." Now if Mr. Washbrook will take the trouble to look in "THE BELL NEWS" for July 23rd and August 20th, 1887, he will find two peals containing the 120 course-ends that will run home true at the half-way, by omitting the single. There has also been peals of Bob Major published, containing the 120 course-ends, that will run home true at the half way. I think Mr. Washbrook should not make such statements unless he is able to prove them.

LOOKER-ON.

DOUBLE COURT BOB AT HOLY TRINITY, WEST HAM.

SIR,—Will you permit me to say a few words respecting the above 720, in order that your readers may have a clear statement of the whole matter. In my humble opinion I consider Mr. Keeble has misapprehended the account in your issue for August 6th. The words used are, "also after service at the first attempt," which I understand to mean, on that particular night a 720 was struck by the band in the tower without any failure. Again, Mr. Randall is perfectly correct in stating this 720 to be the first in the method in Holy Trinity tower. Surely, Sir, we are not compelled to recognise any abortive attempts, such as were made on the 30th of June. If Mr. Randall's record had been worded differently your readers might see possibly some justification in Mr. Keeble's contention, but seeing that there can be but one construction placed upon it, I am surprised that Mr. Keeble has so blinded himself to its true meaning. I can confirm everything that Mr. Randall has stated in reference to myself in his last letter. Those who had the pleasure of ringing in this first 720 came over especially to oblige myself, and this promise had been given previously to June 30th. I quite agree with Mr. Keeble in thinking that his contention is a small matter, and being so, it is a wonder that as it appears to him in this light he has seen the necessity of sending his letter for publication. I hope that in the future he will find a worthier subject to write upon, and as a change-ringer endeavour not to raise discord and puerile arguments, which can only engender strife in an art where good feeling and unity should reign supreme.

A. S. DOWLING.

Holy Trinity Church, Barking Road.

THE BIRMINGHAM AMALGAMATED SOCIETY.

SIR,—As regards the statement under the above heading which appeared in your valuable paper, I consider Mr. Miller quite out of place in replying, as he was not a member of either society till elected on the occasion of the attempt of the peal at St. Chad's. And as to his invitation, it was not for want of an invitation they had not been, for I have asked them myself, and the tower has always been open to them, and I am quite sure our worthy steeple-keeper (Mr. Saniger), would have been very pleased to have had everything in readiness for them if, they had thought fit to pay him a visit at any time. Next the secretary of the Holt society writes to you a bombastic letter, although that society had not been mentioned. I suppose he thought if he threw a lot of dirt some of it would stick. I beg to tell him and any one it may concern, that the Amalgamated society consists of members from St. Chad's, St. Philip's, St. John's (Deritend), Moseley, and West Bromwich, also some unattached and honorary members, the membership not interfering with their duties in their respective companies, and that they have jurisdiction in some of the churches. We think "A New Man" has put the position of the Birmingham ringers very truly, and if he could conduct them through a real state of amalgamation, he would confer a lasting favour on the young ringers of the town and neighbourhood. If you would please insert this on behalf of our society, for whom I am writing with their full knowledge; we shall not trouble you with any more correspondence on this matter.

J. CARTER,

Secretary Birmingham Amalgamated Society.

THE CHELMSFORD PEAL.

SIR,—The late Hon. Sec. of the Essex Association has come to the rescue. In doing so he contends there is no unwritten law as to the notification of election before a peal. Surely the rev. gentleman must be aware that it is a custom to publish such elections, and that custom often becomes law. As an illustration, in civil actions at law counsel often submit and judges admit of evidence as to custom, and upon such, important actions have before now been decided. What better evidence need we in support of the custom of publishing tower elections through the columns of "THE BELL NEWS." Are not nine out of ten tower elections notified? Is the rev. gentleman aware that this very omission was the cause of keeping the Harlow peal out of the Essex Association peal-book? What would he say to a peal rang during Lent or upon a Sunday? Is he aware that attempts at the latter have been made since he left the county, by an Association band? There is nothing in the rules to prevent the entry of such in the peal-book, but would he not have supported a protest against such upon the grounds that it was contrary to custom to encourage them? Evidently "New Man" is well able to take care of himself, and knew perfectly well what he was about in making use of the objectionable term. I was discussing the question of this individual's identification the other day with a brother string, who remarked that he had in his possession a document showing that a certain gentleman one year neglected to pay his subscription, therefore if the idea that "A New Man" is the one in question who has failed to keep up his payments there need not be much beating about the bush, for the individual in question was actually a prominent member of the Chelmsford band.

LITTLE BOB.

[Correspondence upon this subject must now cease.—Ed.]

RINGING PEALS ON SUNDAY.

SIR,—"A New Man" has thought fit to criticise the Painswick peal in a manner rather unpleasant to those who were engaged in it. He says "why choose a Sunday above all other days?" Speaking for myself: because it was the most convenient, and I do not think it "Sabbath breaking" any more to ring a 5000 for service than a touch. Looking at it in another way, if the worthy Vicar could see no objection, why should "A New Man's" conscience be troubled? I shall feel extremely obliged to "A New Man" if his remarks are the means of placing any difficulty in our way of obtaining the bells at a future time.

BATH AND WELLS.

These two words surely possess some affinity, enough, in fact, to lead one to suppose that their diocesan nomenclature came into existence through such apparent relationship. Into a research, however, having for its object the origin of the names of these two cities, it is not intended to enter. Bath is well known and celebrated as a health resort by reason of the efficacy of its several springs. The Saxons called the place Hot Baden (hot baths), and Accindunes-ceaster (the city of sick men). It may now be regarded as one of the handsomest cities in England. To readers of this paper the principal object of interest would inevitably be the Abbey Church, the richly embellished west front of which will be seen with delight. There was a monastery situated here at a very early date, and a church which was elevated into a bishopric in 1090, and granted to John de Villola, Bishop of Wells, for the purpose of enlarging that see, and the two Abbey churches and dioceses have ever since remained united under the same episcopal head. This building having fallen into decay, the present church was commenced in 1495, by Oliver King, bishop of the diocese, who, it is asserted, was prompted to the good work by a vision he beheld in his sleep, wherein he saw the Holy Trinity with angels ascending and descending by a ladder to a fair olive tree supporting a crown. This dream the prelate construed into a command from Heaven to restore the Cathedral Church, which he immediately set about, but did not live to complete. The building was carried on by Priors Bird and Holway, or Gibbs, and the church was nearly completed when the dissolution of monasteries took place in 1539. "Viewed from beneath the Pump Room, Colonnade," says a modern writer, "and amid the bustle of Stall-street, the bishop's poetical idea of the ascent and descent of angels upon the ladder, sculptured in enduring stone on each side of the great west window, seems to realize some scripture dream of one's youth. But we fear that our praise must be confined to the effect of the west front; as neither the general design nor the details of the building are very beautiful. It was the last abbey built in England, and with it English ecclesiastical architecture, as a really living style, may be said to have died. In the Abbey Church there are several monuments by each of nearly all the British sculptors who are of acknowledged fame; Nollekens, Flaxman, Chantrey, Westmacott, and others of less note, yet far above mediocrity, besides a most interesting collection of ancient monuments, erected when artists never marked the marble with their name. There are also several of historical importance."

There is a ring of eight bells in Bath Abbey, and other rings of eight in and near the city. Formerly we used to read of an Association or Guild for Bath and neighbourhood, but it seems to be defunct, as no reports of its doings ever appear.

The city of Wells ("the city of the Mendip") is renowned for its magnificent Cathedral, which is said to "distance all its competitors, both in the completeness of its ground plan, the richness and profusion of its sculpture, the delicacy and grace of its architecture, the almost perfect preservation of its three gates, palace, college, and conventual buildings; the extent of grassy lawn, and harmonious and picturesque accessories. Flaxman, Stothard, and Cockerell—sculptor, painter, and architect—have all borne enthusiastic testimony to the superb west front, entirely covered with sculptures, 153 of the size of life and larger, including twenty-one crowned kings, eight queens, thirty-one mitred ecclesiastics, seven knights, fourteen nobles and princes, all drawn by Carter in 1784-6; and upwards of 450 smaller figures, embodying the whole Christian scheme, from the creation of the world to the day of final retribution, which crowns the central gable, while in the third tier are designs from the Old Testament, traditionally arranged on the south side, and those drawn from the New Testament to the north of the western portal. It was the work of an English artist, and the cost of production has been estimated at £20,000."

The ground plan of the church is perfect. It consists of a nave of ten bays, with aisles; a transept of two bays with aisles; in the north wing Holy Cross Chapel; in the south the chapels of St. Calixtus and St. Martin, and a choir of six bays, with aisles; a Lady Chapel of two bays with aisles; once the chapels on the north of St. Stephen, on the south of St. Catherine; and two lateral chapels, which form an eastern transept,—St. John's being to the south.

The front of the main north transept is of four stages. On the west angle is an astronomical clock, constructed in 1325 by Peter Lightfoot, a monk of Glastonbury; on the summit are five mounted figures, who revolve when the hours strike; two are knights, one is a hooded jester, the other has a Jacobæan costume. The seated figures strike the hours and quarters with their feet.

The situation of the building is remarkably imposing. From each of the high roads the three glorious towers forms a conspicuous object. The palace at Wells resembles an old baronial castle, with its strong military gateway, bastions, broad moat, embattled wall, built by Bishop de Salopia, in the year 1329, and an area of seven acres. In this palace Bishop Kidder and his wife were killed by a portion of the building falling in during the great storm of 1703. In the palace gardens is St. Andrew's well.

The ring of eight at Wells has recently been alluded to in these pages. Ringing seems here at a very low ebb. Perhaps what is required to give it an impetus is the establishment of a Diocesan Association, and if there should be any one who reads this brief account, that will but take the requisite initiatory steps, he may rest assured that his hands will be strengthened in so desirable a work.

ST. EDMUND'S SOCIETY, EXETER.

On Sunday, September 18th, before Divine Service in the morning at St. Edmund's Church, the first part of Reeves's variation peal of Grandsire Triples (560 changes). T. Townsend, 1; T. Herbert, 2; H. Swift, 3; E. Pitt (conductor), 4; W. Goss, 5; W. C. Marsh, 6; W. Richardson, 7; A. Searle, 8. In the afternoon several members walked to Poltimore, a village about four miles from Exeter. After asking permission to ring, the bells were raised in peal, and several six-scores of Grandsire Doubles rung. T. Townsend, 1; W. Goss, 2; E. Pitt (conductor), 3; A. Searle, 4; W. Richardson, 5; T. Halse, 6. After which some call changes was rung with the parish ringers. These bells, six in number, have recently been rehung by Mr. Stokes, of Woodbury, and it is needless to say they go splendidly. The tenor is a good toned bell about 14 cwt., and bears the inscription, "SIR COPLESTONE WARWICK BAMPFYLDE, BENEFACTOR, 1723, E E WE." Besides the bells, the church contains many things of interest to the visitor, among which is the family vault of the Bampfylde, the ancestors of the present Lord Poltimore. On the tomb is two figures in stone, dressed in the fashion of Queen Elizabeth's reign, and lying at the feet of the male is a dog, and at that of the female lays a lamb. The family seat of Lord Poltimore is also worth looking at. The return journey was a very pleasant one, the party passing through the beautiful grounds of Lord Poltimore, known as Poltimore Park. The party wish to return their thanks to the vicar for granting them permission to ring.

THE TEMPLE CHURCH, BRISTOL.—Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, have recast the four back bells of the peal of eight, the whole of which have been entirely new hung in iron framework. Weights of the new bells: 5th, 10 cwt. 2 qrs. 16 lbs.; 6th, 11 cwt. 1 qr. 14 lbs.; 7th, 14 cwt. 1 qr. 24 lbs.; tenor, 21 cwt. 2 qrs. 1 lbs. Inscription on all the bells: "In the Jubilee year of our gracious Queen Victoria, 1887. W. Hazledine, vicar; Robert H. Symes, Arthur E. White, Churchwardens."

DEDICATION SERVICE AT CRANHAM, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

There have recently been added three new bells to Cranham Church tower, making a peal of six. Mr. Joseph Horlick, of Rock House, Barnwood, near Gloucester, a former inhabitant of Cranham, very generously presented one, and also handsomely subscribed towards the general expense of the other two new ones, and the hanging, etc. Mr. W. F. Hicks-Beach, of Witcombe Park, Cranham, was treasurer, and also one of the principal donors. This gentleman has also given an entirely new leaden-covered roof to the tower. Mr. Clement Birt, of Painswick, very successfully carried out the work of the new roof. Mr. E. Gastrell, timber merchant of Cranham, gave the whole of the oak timber required for the framing of the bells. Mr. E. Bowl, of Overtown, very generously sent his teams and brought the bells from Stroud station. Mr. W. S. Hall (a large subscriber), undertook the whole duty of correspondent, and very much credit and the thanks of the parish are due to Mr. Hall for the great attention and the much valuable time he has cheerfully given to bring the work to a successful issue. Mr. G. Holloway, M.P., is also one of the largest subscribers. It would be invidious to mention more names, for nearly every person in the parish took more or less interest in the work. Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of London, supplied and fixed the bells, and are to be complimented on the efficiency of their work.

The opening and dedication service was held on Tuesday last by Archdeacon Sheringham, attended by the following clergymen:—Rev. R. H. Denne, rector of Brimpsfield and Cranham; Rev. E. Mogridge, curate-in-charge, Cranham; Rev. R. Strong, Shepscombe; Rev. Mr. Hayward, Winstone; Rev. Mr. Trye, Leckhampton; Rev. Mr. Woolcombe, Syde; Rev. Mr. Price, Elkstone; Rev. Mr. Wilson, Cowley, read the first lesson; Rev. Mr. Liddell, Cubberley, read the second lesson. The following dedication was pronounced by the Archdeacon:—"In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, we humbly offer and dedicate these three bells to the honour and Glory of God, and the uses of the church of Cranham for ever." The following prayer was offered:—"O Lord, we beseech Thee most graciously to accept the offerings which we make to Thee this day; sanctify these works of our hands to the purposes which they shall serve; bless with Thy favour those who shall be joined together before this Altar; comfort the heart of the mourner; order the steps of Thy servants in Thy way when these bells shall call them; sanctify Thy feasts which they shall celebrate with joyful sounds, and finally guard this Holy House from all harm of fire and tempest, flood and storm, through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen." The church was crowded to excess, and a collection amounting to £5 was made, which will be devoted towards building an organ chamber and a small vestry. It may be also added that about £20 balance in hand of the bell fund will be applied for the same purpose, also that next Sunday will be the annual harvest festival, when the Right Rev. Dr. Swells, of Clifton, will be the preacher morning and evening.

In the evening a capital dinner was given to all the local ringers, under the presidency of Mr. Horlick, supported by Messrs. W. S. Hall, Gastrell, Gardner, Richings, Hunt, etc., Cranham; Messrs. Wells, Elmbridge Court; Fewings and Pinching, Birdlip. The Chairman gave the usual loyal and other toasts, which were well received; and the health of the Chairman was then given, and very heartily responded to, and so closed one of the most eventful days in the history of Cranham.

Form of service was as follows:—Processional hymn, 391; Psalm 83; Collects for the day; Prevent us O Lord; Hymn; First lesson, Numbers x, 1-10; Psalm 122; Second lesson, Revelation xix, 1-9; Address to the Archdeacon; Hymn 215; Words of dedication; Touch on bells; Hymn 365; Te Deum; Benediction. The following ringing was done during the day. A 240 of Grandsire Minor. — Morris, 1; J. Middlecote, 2; W. Sevier (conductor) 3; J. Baldwin, 4; D. Marment, 5; G. Miles, 6. Also a 720 of Bob Minor (sixteen bobs and two singles). W. Hale, 1; H. Mitchell, 2; W. Sevier, 3; T. Downham, 4; E. Smart (conductor), 5; G. Miles, 6. Tenor 9 cwt. There were also a number of six-scores during the day. Ringers assembled from Gloucester, Upton St. Leonards, Barnwood, Brockworth, and Painswick, and they also attended Divine Service. The bands returned home at a late hour, very pleased with the day's proceedings.—Local paper.

A VISIT TO SAFFRON WALDEN.

On Saturday, September 3rd, I journeyed from Long Melford Station by the mid-day train to the above place, with the intention of starting for a peal the same evening. At 6 o'clock the ringers began to muster in force, and at 6.30 a start was made for a one-part peal of Kent Treble Bob, consisting of 5024 changes, and composed by N. J. Pitstow. The ringers were stationed as follows: G. C. Hammond (conductor), 1; F. Pitstow, 2; G. Martin, 3; N. J. Pitstow, 4; J. Penning, 5; G. Freeman, 6; E. Pitstow, 7; G. Taylor (Cambridge), 8. All proceeded favourably for 50 minutes (in which time nearly 1300 changes were rung), when a tremendous thumping was heard at the bottom door. This continuing, the steeple-keeper, Mr. F. Pitstow, called "stand," thinking that the Vicar had come to stop us, because of illness near the church. The last named gentleman descended the tower, to find out the cause of our being interrupted, when behold! four ringers? wanted admittance, saying, "Let us in, we're the Newport ringers!" These benighted ringers (?) after hearing the bells for nearly an hour to the tune of sweet Treble Bob, had the audacity to thump at the door, till we were obliged to stop. After this unfortunate occurrence, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples, and a 560 of Double Norwich Court Bob was attempted, but both came to grief. After falling the bells, an adjournment was made to the meeting house, "The King's Head," and the handbells were brought into requisition, when touches of Stedman, Grandsire, and Double Norwich were successfully brought round. The bells were rung for the three services on Sunday, and short touches in various methods were accomplished. A 356 of Grandsire Triples was brought round for the morning service, and the bells were going at the rate of thirty-three changes a minute, as they were timed by a competent ringer outside. As the tenor weighs 24 cwt., this coincides with some remarks lately made in "THE BELL NEWS" concerning quick peals. On Monday evening an attempt was made for Holt's Original, but was lost after ringing over 1000 changes. H. Lapstead, 1; G. C. Hammond, 2; J. Penning, 3; G. Martin, 4; E. Pitstow, 5; G. Freeman, 6; F. Pitstow (conductor), 7; A. Coe, 8.

The following morning I was en route for Long Melford, and in conclusion I wish to thank, through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" all those ringers who kindly met me, and who tried to make my visit a happy and successful one.

G. C. HAMMOND.

ST. MARY'S, TAUNTON, SOMERSET.

On Sunday, September 18th, being Harvest Festival, several six-scores of Grandsire Doubles were rung before the afternoon service. G. E. Harborne, 1; R. J. Pearce, 2; W. G. Burge, 3; C. E. May, 4; T. Doble (conductor), 5; T. Radford, 6. Also a six-score in the same method, conducted by R. J. Pearce, who attained his 21st birthday, his brother strings wishing him many happy returns, and also expressed a hope as he had begun, he would still go on and persevere in the noble art of change-ringing. The following evening, at the invitation of Mr. Pearce, several members of the Guild and friends spent a few hours together at his house, when several selections were played on the handbells, songs sung, and ample justice having been done to the good things our friend supplied, brought to a close one of the most pleasant evenings ever spent by any member of the Guild.

AMONGST LONDON RINGERS.

A short time ago, Mr. Editor, I thought I would go as far as London. Accordingly on Monday, August 29th, found me comfortably seated in the train leaving Manchester (London Road), at 12.15 a.m., for the great metropolis, where we arrived safely at 6.30 a.m. During the journey a sleep was out of the question, as my companions were of the convivial sort, singing all sorts of songs, a few recitations, etc., and of course the inevitable refreshments were brought out just to show there was no ill-feeling amongst us. We had to part at our journey's end however, which was done with best wishes for each other's future welfare. I will not trouble you with an account of as to what I did during the daytime whilst in London, but will proceed with my experiences anent the above.

The first night there was a meeting at St. Mary's, Lambeth, but could not attend, much to my disappointment. Tuesday was the night for practice at the headquarters of the College Youths (of which body I am a member), viz., St. Saviour's, Southwark. The night however turned out a very wet one, and in consequence only a few members turned up. Having seen a few of those present on a former visit, I was almost instantly recognised and was introduced to the others who had not previously seen me. There were not enough however to have a pull on the bells, so business was at once proceeded with. During the evening I had a look through the various peal books, album, etc., of the society, and especially the one presented by A. Percival Heywood, Esq., which is really a magnificent one. The only ringing done was a touch on the handbells by Messrs. McLaughlin, Winny, Hayes, and myself. The next night's (Wednesday) practice I was informed would be at St. Paul's, Shadwell. This church however must have hid herself under the Thames for that night at least, as on making enquiries where it was, no one seemed to know, so I had to be content with a long walk and no ringing. Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, I was unable to attend anywhere. Sunday I had intended being in the belfry of St. Paul's Cathedral to hear some Stedman Cinques, but not knowing the times of the early trains from Stratford (where I had been staying), I arrived at St. Paul's just in time to miss the ringers going up, so of course I had to be content with listening outside. In the afternoon however I was in time, and had the pleasure of being in the belfry whilst the touch of Stedman Cinques was rung. Here I was introduced to the affable and obliging conductor, Mr. J. Pettit. In the evening I had the pleasure of ringing the seventh to a touch of Treble Bob Major at St. Stephen's, Westminster, which are a splendid peal of eight, tenor 24 cwt.

Monday was practice at St. Clement Danes, Strand, the headquarters of the St. James' society. Here I conducted two touches of Grandsire Caters, one of 593, and the other 270 changes, and also rang the third to a touch of Stedman Caters, conducted by J. M. Hayes. The members then adjourned to the meeting-house in Wych Street, where the business of the society was then gone through, after which a little handbell ringing was done. Tuesday was practice at St. Paul's cathedral, where I rang the ninth in some Stedman Cinques; three touches were started for, but unfortunately not one was brought round. The meeting-house was then adjourned to, where the evening was finished up with a little handbell ringing.

Wednesday's practice was at Christ Church, Spitalfields. Here I conducted a touch of Grandsire Triples and two courses of Kent Treble Bob Major, and rang in a touch of Grandsire Triples and one of Stedman Triples, conducted by Mr. Pettit. Thursday no meeting at all. Friday being the fortnightly practice at St. Michael's, Cornhill, of course found me there. Here I rang the eighth to three courses of Stedman Cinques, conducted by J. Pettit, and also rang the same bell to a course of Treble Bob Maximus. For Saturday, Mr. Pettit had kindly arranged a peal of Stedman Triples at St. Paul's, Shadwell (the invisible church). This time with the aid of Mr. S. Joyce, the church was found. Having stripped and got the bells up, Mr. Pettit cried "go," but as we had not a very good start, we stopped. "Go" was called again, but we had only rung about five mins., when the sixth bell (the one I was ringing), caught something and would not rise. A second time she did this, but this time was worse, so I called "stand," and was just setting her when to my surprise I could find nothing to stop her, and not wishing to make a larger hole in the ceiling I let her go over and do as she liked. On going to see what was the matter, no slide bar could be found anywhere, and how it had got knocked off we could not tell. The bell was again pulled up, and "go" called a third time, and as we thought for the last time, but oh! horror. We had only rung ten minutes when there was some more knocking. This time it was at the front door, a little girl wanted to know if her mother had done cleaning. By this time we began to think those bells were haunted for peal ringing for that night, but at any rate we determined on having another try, and to our satisfaction we had the pleasure (mine especially) of hearing that favourite change come up 12345678. I need hardly say that this was my first attempt at a peal of Stedman Triples. The account of this peal was reported in last week's paper. On Sunday morning a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was to have been rung at St. Mary's, Lambeth, but proved unsuccessful. I had the pleasure of calling a short touch in the same method to make up time. In the afternoon I rang the ninth through three courses of Stedman Cinques at St. Paul's cathedral, this bringing to a close my ringing whilst in London, as the same night found me on the way to St. Pancras station, there to join in a train leaving at 12.15, mid-night, for Manchester. After giving you this account of my ringing, I should think it most ungenerous on my part if I did not give some recompense. I therefore wish to thank most heartily Messrs. Pettit, Greenleaf, Mash, Coofer, Hayes, Winny, McLaughlin, Horrex, Woodley, Barry, Cecil, Clark, Springhall, Joyce, etc., for the pleasure they gave me in the matter of ringing during the time I was in London. A. E. WREAKS.

ST. JAMES'S SOCIETY, BRISTOL.

ON Saturday afternoon, September 10th, the members of the above society paid a visit to Bath. The jolly boys who were accompanied by Mr. H. Porch, the foreman, Mr. W. Hill, Hon. Secretary, Mr. F. T. Jewell, Hon. Treasurer, started from St. James, Barton, at two o'clock, the weather being fine the joy of the boys was unbounded. Although passing through Brislington, where there is a ring of six, and Keynsham a ring of eight, the party did not stop until Twerton was reached. Upon arrival at the church they were met by Mr. H. Wootton, who very kindly had all things in readiness for a pull. After raising the bells, a 504 of Stedman Triples was rung. H. Tucker, 1; G. Pymm, 2; W. Paddock, 3; G. Pearse, 4; W. W. Porch, 5; H. Porch (conductor), 6; A. Howell, 7; W. Hill, 8. Also 168 in the same method, with Mr. H. Wootton at the 4th, it being his first touch of Stedman Triples. Just as the bells were lowered, Messrs. Gifford and Barkus, of Salisbury, put in an appearance, but the lads being in a hurry for tea, and anxious for a dip in Bath waters, they accompanied the party to Bath, and took tea with them at West's refreshment rooms, after which the bathers proceeded to the baths, while the rest wandered through the city and park to St. Andrew's Church, where the ringers were already in waiting to welcome the Bristol visitors. The bells being raised in peal, a 207 of Grandsire Triples was rung. F. Gooding, 1; A. Pearse, 2; A. W. Barkus, 3; H. Wootton, 4; G. Pymm, 5; W. W. Gifford, 6; H. Porch (conductor), 7; F. Jewell, 8. Also 252 of Stedman Triples. A. Howell, 1; W. W. Gifford, 2; W. Paddock, 3; G. Pearse, 4; G. Pymm, 5; W. W. Porch, 6; H. Porch (conductor), 7; W. Hill, 8. This is also Mr. Gifford's first touch in the method. It was now time for to think about the return journey, so under the guidance of Mr. Wootton, the party wended their way through the city to the old Bristol bridge, the boys exhibiting signs of being away from home. All being seated in the break, the return journey was commenced at twenty minutes to nine, songs of a very amusing character were indulged in, also some wit and humour from A. Owl, who appeared to be greatly delighted in the cool breezes of a starry night. Home was reached at a quarter to eleven, everyone having thoroughly enjoyed their half holiday to Bath.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1887.

WE have had our attention called to the tone which many of the letters sent for publication in this journal display. There is certainly some ground for animadversion relative to the manner in which several correspondents usually address themselves to their particular object, or weakness, and we have on previous occasions referred to such highly objectionable characteristics of the various letters. Recent communications however show, and most unfortunately make patent, that there is an inordinate amount of jealousy felt among particular sections of the Exercise. An apprehension of rivalry, a solicitude to maintain one's own, as it is called, is gradually but surely deadening all the finest influences in our nature, and unless a struggle is made generally to carry on the practice of ringing minus the exhibition of unrefined jealousy and ill-nature, we may safely prophesy that upon the art evil days are nigh. In short, the bitterness which is caused by the unmanly fear that some encroachment is in danger of being attempted upon ground which in fancied security has hitherto been considered a kind of private property, the jealousy, and the immense discredit attached to it, is beginning to give cause for great anxiety as to the future prospects of change-ringing, and the question is asked, not without some reason—"Is truthfulness and honesty to become the exception, not the rule, among ringers?" This is a very grave charge, for charge it is, and nothing else. And we are of opinion it is in no small measure deserved.

It is to be feared that many ringers lock themselves up, as it were, in their own individuality, that is to say, for their own aims alone do they follow the art, entirely careless of its general prosperity, so long as their selfish needs may be gratified. Such as these lead a miserable existence. The fear continually haunts them lest they should be second in the race instead of being first, and thus they allow their jealous feelings to get the better of them by indulging in something akin to abuse and misrepresentation of those whose efforts had gained the position they themselves were unsuccessful in attaining. It is very painful indeed to be compelled to write such assertions, but we do so from a strict sense of duty, nevertheless. We may be attacked by those on whom such language appropriately falls; we may be threatened, as we have before been, that our journal will be ostracised in circles in which they move. Evils of that character we must contend and bear with, as we have borne with greater and more permanent opposition. Our task is clear. To endeavour to remove a canker which is sapping the actual existence of change-ringing, at any rate an existence which is worth having, is a duty which will overcome any contrary force, no matter how determined it may be.

We have just intimated that the mode adopted by some in their public correspondence is sufficient to cause great anxiety for the future welfare of the art. To establish this statement we will quote a phrase or two from a letter (amongst others) which we have lately received. The writers of these letters possess names honored by the Exercise, and they speak therefore with authority. One gentleman says: "I should be strongly inclined to wash my hands of change-ringing altogether so far as it concerns anything or anybody outside my own parish." And again, "if discredit is to be thrown (without conclusive evidence) at random upon the performances published in our paper, where is the good of sending them to the public print at all."

What is required is that ringers should feel greater confidence in each other. Such confidence must certainly be begotten before it can be experienced. But this increase of confidence in one another and mutual respect between the various sections of ringers can be brought about if a powerful curb is put upon that kind of language which is usually created by jealousy. Mistakes, differences of opinion, or even attempts to hide the real truth needs not the practice of vituperation to lay them bare. Their disguise can be torn from them by good words far better than by bad ones. We hope our remarks will have some good effect, that they will act as a leaven to those whose inclination is not only to be brusque and ungentle, but to those who have too great a facility for ignoring the honesty of their opponents. Mutual respect, as we have just stated, is what is needed, and the absence of it is not only likely to cause much mischief to the Exercise itself, but also to lower it in the eyes of that portion of the public whom it should be our great aim and object to enlist upon its side.

Dibben, curate of St. John's, Chelsea, warns persons against a man who calls on clergymen, tells a plausible story about his immediate need of money, and presents a seaman's allotment note made out in favour of his brother (so he says), on a voyage to China. "The firm on whom the allotment note is drawn is Messrs. Shaw, Saville, of 35 Leadenhall Street, E.C. I advanced him ten shillings on one of these, expecting to recoup myself when the first instalment fell due, but on presentation I was informed that the document was a forgery, and that I was the third clergyman who had been taken in by, apparently the same impostor."

Two handsome candlesticks have been placed on the altar at Salisbury Cathedral. Each candlestick is thirty-two inches high, with a diameter at the base of ten inches. This stands upon three lions, which serve as a pedestal. The lower part is richly moulded to about one-fourth of the entire height, when it takes a hexagonal form, each face of the hexagon forming a richly canopied niche—the niches being filled with small figures of twelve angels bearing scrolls. Each scroll bears a title of our Lord, the six on one candlestick being from Isaiah, and the six on the other being from the Gospel of St. John. The shaft terminates in a corona elaborately ornamented with leaves and scroll work, and is an excellent example of the metal-worker's art.

On Thursday, the Rev. Robert Grant, father of the vicar of Portsmouth, died at Southsea in his ninety-first year. He was educated at Winchester and New College, and ordained in 1819. He was curate of Droxford from 1820 to 1822, and incumbent of St. Paul's Southsea from 1822 to 1828, when he was appointed by Winchester College to the vicarage of Bradford Abbas, near Sherborne, which he resigned a few years since. In 1828 he was also chosen a Fellow of Winchester College, and owing to his death the number of Fellows, which was originally ten, is now reduced to two only, the Rev. G. W. Heathcote, and the Bishop of St. Andrews (Dr. Wordsworth). The rev. gentleman was a non-residential Canon of Salisbury Cathedral, and the author of several works.

The restoration of Upton Pyne Church, begun some years ago, has just been completed by the erection of a reredos, designed by Mr. Medley Fulford, to frame a valuable altar piece brought from Italy 170 years ago by Mr. Hugh Stafford, of Pynes, and presented to the church. The design having been approved of by the late Earl, the Dowager Countess of Iddesleigh has had it carried out as the most suitable memorial of her husband that could be placed in the church. The painting in the reredos is a representation of the Last Supper, and it has been carefully restored by Mr. Worth, of Exeter. In the churchyard over the vault containing the late Earl's remains, has been placed a white marble cross, the cost of the work being borne by his sons and daughters. These interesting memorials of the late Earl were unveiled on Thursday just before the parishioners assembled to celebrate their harvest thanksgiving. The church of Upton Pyne, called in old documents Uppeton Pyn, is a little fourteenth century structure, dedicated to Our Lady. The present edifice was consecrated by Bishop Grandison in the autumn of A.D. 1328.

The innovation of a surpliced female choir, which was started some time ago at Melbourne, has found its way to England. It was introduced at the harvest festival at Skelton-in-Cleveland. A correspondent says—"The ladies' surplices are exceedingly tasteful, in shape not unlike an M.A. gown, and consist of Scotch lawn, with pleated backs. Purple velvet eaps, similar to those worn by D.C.L's, complete the attire." The following letter from Canon Liddon, dated May and, appeared in the Melbourne Argus of June 8th:—

Dear Sir,—There is no truth whatever in the statement that ladies have at any time, with or without ecclesiastical dress, taken part in the services at St. Paul's Cathedral, and I feel sure that no such innovation upon the practice of the Church would be permitted on any consideration whatever by the Dean of St. Paul's and my colleagues in the Chapter.

If I am right in understanding you to ask me for an opinion on the subject, I should find it difficult to say whether the spectacle of ladies dressed in surplices and so on in church is more irreverent than it is certainly grotesque. It is greatly to be hoped that the good sense and Christian feeling of the Australian churches will steadily discourage anything of the kind, and especially for the sake of the ladies concerned.

You are at liberty to make any use you like of this note. Pray believe me, my dear Sir, yours very truly,
Rev. J. F. Stretch.
H. P. LINDON.

On Thursday, the Bishop of Lincoln re-opened the ancient church of North Witham, after restoration under the care of Mr. Withers. The building is full of antiquarian interest. The nave and chancel date from the eleventh century, the chancel arch being probably of earlier date. Some minor alterations were made during the next century, and the church still further added to in the fourteenth, when the elegant tower and spire, three bells, and all the windows were completed. The whole fabric has now been carefully repaired, the roofs reconstructed in oak to the old pitch, recovered with the old lead recast in the churchyard, and all the interior refitted in oak in a most complete manner. The Bishop arrived at the rectory on Wednesday afternoon, and afterwards preached at evensong to the parishioners, by whom the church was filled. The next day began with Holy Communion at eight o'clock, the Bishop being celebrant, the rector, Canon Young, and Canon J. P. Young, vicar of Grimsby, assisting. At eleven o'clock a procession was formed at the schoolhouse consisting of choir boys and men, about thirty clergy in surplices, stoles, and hoods, the Bishop's chaplain carrying the pastoral staff, followed by his lordship in cope and mitre with attendant clergy. The church was already closely packed with parishioners, neighbouring gentry, and friends from long distances. Matins was then sung, the Bishop again preaching. Lunch was provided in a tastefully decorated barn, and afterwards a tea for the parishioners. Evensong followed, and a most enjoyable day came too soon to a close.

Last week the little church of Over Winchendon, near Aylesbury, was reopened by the Bishop of Oxford after renovation under the direction of Mr. William White. The plans were prepared some fifteen years ago, but the raising of sufficient funds proved a considerable difficulty. The chancel is transition Norman, with two lancet windows in the east gable, and a corbel between them inside. If circumstances should permit, it is proposed to put a large cross here made of old oak, with a reredos beneath containing a representation of St. Mary and St. John painted on canopied panels, for which the figures have been already drawn by the architect. There is a pointed chancel arch of rude construction and a screen of later date, against which new oak return stalls have been fixed. The nave is Norman. In its south wall is a richly moulded doorway, and one simple window, with a recessed arch inside. The timber porch has been reconstructed as before, but without the plastering. The north door has been opened out. The north aisle is of the fourteenth century. The aisle opens from the nave with two round arches and one pointed, with flat soffits and large rectangular tiers, evidently cut through the old wall.

On Saturday, the Rev. J. A. L. Airey, the newly appointed rector of the united parishes of St. Helen's, Bishopsgate, and St. Martin Outwich, read himself in. The event was looked upon as one of more than ordinary interest, inasmuch as it was the completion of an amalgamation of benefices which was begun fourteen years ago, and by which three districts outside the City were beneficially affected. The church of St. Martin Outwich stood at the Bishopsgate end of Threadneedle-street, and was removed as one of the superfluous City churches, and St. Helen's, which is within almost a stone's throw, and is sometimes called "the Westminster Abbey of the City," was constituted the church of the united parishes. The site of St. Martin's was sold, and the materials removed, and out of the surplus revenues three new churches were built—namely, Christ Church, Stepney (the living being in the gift of the Bishop of London); Holy Trinity, Dalston; and St. Peter's, Limehouse (in the gift of the Merchant Taylors' Company). The aged rector of St. Martin's (the Rev. J. B. Deane), thereafter lived in retirement at Bath, though he was nominated the rector of the amalgamated parishes, until his death, recently, when the Merchant Taylors' Company, who are patrons of the living, presented it to Mr. Airey, first mathematical master of the school belonging to the Guild. Meanwhile service was carried on at St. Helen's by Dr. J. E. Cox, the vicar, who is now also far advanced in years, and who during his lifetime will receive £400 a year, and Mr. Airey £800 a year. St. Helen's is one of the few churches which escaped the Great Fire of London, and is full of historical and antiquarian interest. It was originally a priory church, and portions of the fabric are some six hundred years old, but the foundation dates back further than that.

On Monday week a special meeting of the Church Missionary Society was held at Keswick to hear addresses from the Rev. F. E. Wigram and Mr. E. Wigram, who have just returned from a tour through India, China, Japan, and North America, having inspected all the principal Church Missionary Society's stations in those countries. The Bishop of London presided, and gave Mr. Wigram a hearty welcome back to England. His lordship said he regarded missionary work as one great reason why the Church of Christ had been created, and urged that the discoveries of science and the marvellously increased facilities of intercourse were a perpetual call to the Church, encouraging her to utilise them in the great work of spreading the Gospel. The Rev. F. E. Wigram said that one marked feature in all the stations which he visited in India was the spirit of enquiry amongst educated Hindoos. A large number had discarded their old idolatry and were seeking after something in its place. It was interesting to notice how nearly in many cases they were approaching to Christianity. Dr. Baumann, of Calcutta, asked one Hindoo gentleman if he had ever read the Bible and the reply was, "Yes, I have read the New Testament eighty-three times and the Old Testament twenty-seven times." There was also a strong feeling growing up in India that the infidelity to which secular education was so largely lending itself was not satisfactory, producing disrespect to parents and disregard of all lawfully constituted authority. Many had expressed a conviction that the spread of Christianity would confer a real benefit upon India. The Church Missionary Society was now occupying all the principal stations on the Indian frontier, and was thus opening out a way to Central Asia. The success which had attended the missionary work was in itself a great call to further efforts. Most of the Missions were at present seriously undermanned, and there was everywhere a cry for more men and increased resources. Mr. E. Wigram said a few words about Krishnagur, and described a Sunday in the native church. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Wigram for his address, and to the Bishop of London for taking the chair.

On Wednesday, shortly before evensong, a statey throne, designed for the nave, and presented to Lichfield Cathedral by the clergy of Derbyshire as a parting gift to the diocese and Bishop on leaving his Lordship's jurisdiction, was formally presented to the Dean and Chapter. The Chapter are bound by statute to provide a seat for the Bishop in the nave, and they have hitherto given him as dignified and convenient a position for hearing the sermons of his Prebendaries, and for conducting occasional nave services, as their means would allow; but this splendid gift will relieve them from all further responsibility on that score. Just at this season of the year it is difficult to gather together any large number of the clergy, and therefore only a small representative body assembled to do honour to the occasion. Their spokesman was Archdeacon Balston, who, in an address full of feeling dwelt upon the attachment they all cherished for the old Diocese to which their county had for ages belonged, upon the memories which clustered round the honoured names of Lonsdale and Selwyn, and upon the affectionate respect which the Derbyshire clergy entertained for the present occupant of the see. Bishop MacLagan then placed himself for the first time in the new seat of honour, and expressed his thanks and the thanks of the cathedral body and of the diocese for the gift. He reminded his hearers how Lichfield had indeed, by the Divine blessing, "been a fruitful mother of children"—having been privileged to be the parent of no fewer than twelve daughter dioceses, Southwell being the last and youngest of the numerous family. Indeed, he went further than that, and stated his belief that, in one way, Derbyshire rather than Staffordshire was the original and parent see, inasmuch as the first two or three Bishops of Mercia had made rather Repton than Lichfield their headquarters. Having commended the beautiful gift now in its permanent place near the mayor's official seat, to the faithful care of the Dean and Chapter for all time to come, the Bishop then offered a few short prayers, and closed the interesting little ceremony with his Benediction.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX BELL RINGERS.

The quarterly meeting in connection with the above Association was held on Saturday, September 17th, at Standish, when the following companies were represented: Blackrod, Chorley, Leyland St. Andrew's, Leyland St. James, Preston, and Standish. During the afternoon and evening, several 720's of Bob Minor and touches in other methods were rung. At 5 o'clock the members adjourned to the schoolroom, where the usual business was gone through, the meeting closing with a vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells and schoolroom, for the purpose of the Association.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

It is proposed to produce a certificate of membership for this Association, and a design will be submitted for approval at one of the Quarterly Meetings, as soon as it is ascertained how many members will require the certificate. It is calculated that the certificate will have to be charged for, at a price not exceeding one shilling per copy. All those members who wish to have a certificate on these terms are desired to send their names and addresses with date of election to the Hon. Sec., by Monday, October 3rd.

ST. MATTHEW'S DAY IN THE CITY.—On Wednesday, in accordance with custom on St. Matthew's day, the Lord Mayor (Sir Reginald Hanson) went in state from the Mansion House to Christ's Hospital to meet the Governors of the Royal Hospitals, and to hear Divine Service and a sermon in the adjoining church of Christ Church, Newgate-street. The Lord Mayor was accompanied by Alderman and Sheriff Sir H. A. Isaacs and by Sir John B. Monckton, the Town Clerk. The boys of Christ's Hospital, over 700 in number, were present at the service, and a sermon, specially addressed to them, was preached by an "old Blue"—the Rev. A. Maitland Wood, vicar of Runcorn, Cheshire. After the service the Civic dignitaries proceeded to the Court Room, where the lists of the governors of all the hospitals were presented by the Clerk of Christ's Hospital (Mr. Dipnall) to the Lord Mayor, and by him delivered to the Town Clerk for preservation among the records of the City.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

"THE BIRMINGHAM AMALGAMATED SOCIETY."

SIR,—On criticising the starting course of Mr. Carter's touch in the correspondence of your last issue, I find it to be false, as he says he considers me quite out of place in replying, as I was not a member of either society till elected on the occasion of the attempt of the peal at St. Chad's. This statement of Mr. Carter is false, as I was elected a member of the Holt Society more than three weeks previous to the attempt for the peal in question, and as regards him asking the Holt Society to St. Chad's I have strong reasons for disbelieving that, and I know the tower has not always been open to them. I think if Mr. Carter confines himself a little more minutely to facts, and not rush into print with random statements the space might be better utilised in this paper.

T. MILLER.

SIR,—I am sorry to take up more of your valuable space, but the secretary of the above society has again made a mis-statement which I should not wish to pass without contradiction. It would appear from Mr. Carter's letter taken in connection with the report of the annual outing of the Birmingham Amalgamated, that the St. Martin's society had met at St. Chad's for a peal, and previous to starting had elected T. Miller a member. The facts are that the society meeting at St. Chad's was the Holt, of Aston (to which Mr. Carter and another member of the Amalgamated belong), and of which T. Miller was elected a member on July 14th, or more than five weeks before the attempt in question was made. I may remind Mr. Carter that my former letter is not the more bombastic because he calls it so, and that the mud thrown is not in my letter, but in the concluding lines of the report of the annual outing of the Amalgamated, to which he has now given the official weight of his position. His society is in no way defiled by the mud thrown at it, but rather by that which proceeds from itself, and he will find that in handling the pitch of detraction he has only defiled his own highly deserved and eminent reputation as a ringer. This however is a matter between himself and a society of more than a hundred years standing, with a record which any Birmingham man should cherish and be proud of whether he owes it allegiance or not. Despite the assertion as to the jurisdiction of the Amalgamated society, I doubt whether any band of ringers will be found asking permission from any society to ring in certain towers in preference to obtaining it from the clergy as usual. If Mr. Carter really desires the unity and amalgamation among ringers of this district which he claims would be such a boon, he must most certainly repent the ill-timed words I have referred to. Others who have been working in that direction have been greatly grieved and annoyed by them.

W. H. GODDEN.

September 20th, 1887.

SIR,—Will you allow me to state to the St. Martin's ringers that I am in no way concerned in the publication of the letter ament the attempt for the peal at St. Chad's church.

T. RUSSAM.

AN ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

SIR,—I must thank Mr. Hattersley for pointing out the false going off course of my peal of Stedman Caters. I see the second six is false with the last one. I will, however, with your permission, substitute this calling instead, first course, bobs at 5,7,9,10,12,13,14,17; last course, 1,2,3,5,8, the intermediate calling the same, except that the fourth used in the last course must be used in the first in this, and the number 13121. I see "Looker-on" thinks I am reckless over my statements; well I think the boot is on the other leg, as the peals he refers me to are not "sixty courses" without singles, and are not therefore in-course. Of course the peals will run home half-way. But singles are used to do it. "Looker-on" ought to know that I should not be so stupid as to say a thing was not possible with the very thing before me. But perhaps "Looker-on's" opinion differs from other people's, if so, or not, he is not a very keen "Looker-on," whoever he is.

J. W. WASHBROOK.

A FINAL EXPLANATION.

SIR,—I am glad to see that you have vetoed further correspondence on the "Chelmsford peal" question. This being so, may I ask you privately to inform the person who writes this week under the signature "Little Bob," that he is quite wrong as to the cause of keeping the Harlow peal out of the Association book. The election which did take place in the Harlow tower (that of Mr. J. Luckey) was duly notified; but another member of the band was (unknown, I suppose, to the rest of the band) no longer a member of the Association, his name having been removed two years before for non-payment of subscription. This was the reason why the peal could not be entered. As no more can be said publicly, I think that "Little Bob" ought privately to apologise to Mr. Cockey for imputing to him ignorance of a matter upon which Mr. C. was perfectly well informed, I having consulted him before writing the letter which appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" of April 2nd, 1887. If "Little Bob" will kindly refer to that letter, he will find an official statement of the matter, by which to correct his own.

WARWICK; ITS CASTLE AND CHURCH.

On Warwick town, and castle fair,
I've teasted full my wond'ring eyes;
Where things abound, antique and rare,
To strike the stranger with surprise?

But if again I ere appear
On this unsocial, lifeless spot,
May I be spitted on Guy's spear,
Or boiled in his porridge-pot.

So Garrick apostrophised the sleepy old town of Warwick. But notwithstanding the quiet character of the place, to call it unsocial, or even lifeless, is a libel. Plenty of life and sociability is to be found, if the visitor selects the proper times and places to look for them. The county is proverbial for hospitality and festivity, and the various social coteries among the haut ton, develop into rounds of festivity which centres in Warwick—the county town. Hence we read of matinees arranged by the stewards of the hunt club, soirees connected with the county regiment of yeomanry, and other parties of like character are frequently held. The town contains the seat of the Earls of Warwick, and in the neighbourhood are many other demesnes of historic interest, whose residents are far from being of that unsocial disposition the above lines would indicate.

The position of the town of Warwick being upon a pleasant eminence overlooking the river Avon, commands a series of beautiful prospects. There are a great many objects of antiquarian interest, not only in the town itself, but also in the immediate neighbourhood, which will arrest the footsteps of the traveller, and claim the passing homage due to old Time. The splendid pile known as Warwick Castle, the seat of the Earls of Warwick, is not exceeded in historical interest by any other feudal remain in the country. From whatever point Warwick is entered, the stately towers of this renowned fortress will meet the traveller's gaze long before he gets near, and on reaching the bridge, which spans the Avon in one vast arch, 105 feet in span (every stone weighing from 2,000 to 3,000 lbs.), the finest view of the castle will be obtained, reflecting its massy lengthened line in the waters of the Avon. Close to the castle are the remains of the ancient bridge. The history of this fortress reaches as far back as the times of good King Alfred, to whose daughter Ethelfleda the kingdom of Mercia, of which the county of Warwick formed a part, was given. The edifice has undergone many changes during the barbarous conflicts of the feudal age, and was the subject of siege and attack during twenty-one days in the time of the wars between Charles and his Parliament, of which the traces are still visible. The march of Lord Brooke from London, with a number of the Parliament forces, broke up the siege, and an obstinate battle restored to him the quiet possession of the castle.

It would be difficult to find a rival to the glories of this feudal pile; at all events, in the same well-kept state of preservation. The masses of ivy that envelope the walls and towers add greatly to the picturesqueness of the effect, while at the same time they give the pleasing assurance that the necessity for warlike defence has long passed away.

Cæsar's Tower is said to be coeval with the Norman Conquest. It is of irregular construction, and, although it has braved the ravages of time and the depredations of man for nearly 800 years, still continues firm as the rock on which it is founded. This tower rises to the height of 147 feet from its base, and is also machicolated. It is connected with Guy's Tower by means of a strong embattled wall, in the centre of which is the ponderous arched gateway, flanked by towers, and succeeded by a second arched gateway, with towers and battlements rising far above the first. They were formerly defended by two portcullises, one of which still remains. Before the whole is now a disused moat, with an arch thrown over it as the gateway, where formerly was the drawbridge. The visitor should before knocking at the porter's lodge, proceed down the narrow street adjoining it, leading to the Mill, and which contains some interesting specimens of ancient domestic architecture.

At the porter's lodge the stranger will be detained to look at the enormous bowl, about the size of an ordinary domestic copper, which is shown as the porridge pot of the celebrated Guy, Earl of Warwick, with the spear and other warlike weapons of that renowned champion. A long winding way cut through the solid rock, and trellised with rich luxuriant ivy, conducts to the great gateway, flanked by two towers, which opens into the inner court. The Entrance Hall is an immense apartment, extending seventy feet in length, with a richly carved oak ceiling. The walls are hung with curious ancient armour, and other relics of a warlike age.

In two suites of apartments on both sides of this hall is arranged the old masters. It would be impossible to describe the immense collection of objects of art scattered in great profusion throughout the apartments, comprising costly garde-robes, cabinets, tables of buhl and marqueterie, vases and bronzes, with many veritable antiques. A few years ago a serious fire broke out at the castle, and many valuables were destroyed, but the ancient stronghold appears to rear its head as proudly as before, unconscious of the power of the devastating element.

Warwick, as we have before remarked, possesses several objects of antiquarian interest, which should not be overlooked by the tourist. Among these is St. Mary's Church, erroneously supposed to have been erected from the designs of Sir Christopher Wren, but now known to have been built under the direction of Sir M. Wilson. This church is deficient, in no ordinary degree, in architectural beauty, although its noble proportions give it a grandeur of appearance. It has a centre aisle, two side aisles, and a transept. Over the principal entrance is a fine and powerful organ, built by Swarebrick. The tower, 170 feet high, is seen to peculiar advantage in the neighbourhood from its imposing position in the highest part of the town. It is plain but massive. The furniture of the church is oak, deeply embrowned by age, and substantially made. It has galleries on the north, west, and south sides. It contains several monuments of interest, but the principal attraction, and one which has rendered this church famous throughout the world, is the Beauchamp Chapel, which fortunately escaped the great fire, which in 1694 laid not only the church as far as the choir, but nearly the whole town of Warwick in ashes. Near the entrance to this chapel is a marble monument, with brass effigies of Thomas Beauchamp, the founder of the church, and his wife.

The Lady Chapel is entered by a descent of several steps from the south transept of the church, beneath a doorway beautifully carved in stone, said to have been executed by a poor mason of Warwick, in 1704.

In this exquisitely beautiful mausoleum, second only to that of Henry VII's. in Westminster Abbey, are monuments to the memory of the founder, Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, Governor of France for Henry VI, whose effigy is represented in fine brass, beneath a hearse of the same metal; to Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, and his brother, Ambrose Dudley, Earl of Warwick: also to the noble "impe" (as the monument states), Robert Dudley, son of Queen Elizabeth's favourite, and who, according to tradition, was poisoned by his nurse. It is impossible to describe in a few words the gorgeous beauty of this chapel.

Deep stillness reigns, where priestly rite
And solemn dirge have blended;
Quench'd is the taper's hallow'd light,
The vigil hours are ended:
The muttered orison no more
Ascends, as it was wont of yore.

The chapel is fifty-eight feet long; the seats are of fine oak, elaborately carved. It is lighted by three large windows in the upper part of the side walls, on the west by a window looking into the church, and by a large and rich window of fine old stained glass on the east side. The ceiling of the chapel is nearly flat, and ornamented with groined ribs, at the inter-sections of which are bosses elegantly painted and gilt.

The bells are a ring of ten, tenor 28 cwt. in the key of D. They are hung so that the circle of ropes fall in what is known as the "left-handed" position, though perhaps right-handed would be the proper term, the second being to the right of the treble, instead of the left. Only two peals are known to have been rung here, and those not by local men. Indeed it is doubtful whether throughout the history of ringing, a change-ringer was ever found who was a native of Warwick. Mr. JOSEPH BICKERTON, who was for many years the respected vergier, was a very good ringer, but he hailed from Coventry. He evidently was unable to make any progress with the "Warwick Youths," whom he essayed to teach the art. The ringing-room is a spacious and somewhat comfortable apartment, and the bells at one time went fairly well. The church of St. Mary of Warwick ought to be an important headquarters of the Exercise. Perhaps if there was a County Association something would be done. The societies who could formulate and bring to perfection such an Association are those already in Birmingham, but as they seem to be at sixes and sevens with each other, it is very doubtful whether any co-operation from such a quarter can be looked for. Meanwhile the grand old tower and its bells are silent, and change-ringing continues unknown in the ancient borough.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

At the meeting of this Society held at head quarters on Tuesday evening, September 13th, 1887, the Master, Mr. G. T. McLaughlin, on behalf of Mr. J. R. Haworth, presented the company with a curiosity in the shape of an oak box. During Mr. Haworth's visits to Hughenden, near High Wycombe, and the country seat of the late Earl of Beaconsfield, he came into contact with an old ringer there, named Thomas Hussey, otherwise known as "Crippled Tom," who showed him this oak box, and expressed a wish that the above Society should have it, and accordingly Mr. Haworth, on behalf of "Crippled Tom," presented the Society with it. The company passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Hussey for his box and also to Mr. Haworth for his trouble in bringing the box to head quarters. The box is of oblong shape, being twelve inches in length and six inches in height. A peal of eight bells is carved on the box, four on the top, three at the sides, and one for the staple. Mr. Hussey used the box to collect subscriptions for defraying the expenses of the two new bells in Hughenden tower. The following is an inscription written and placed on the box by "Crippled Tom":

"This box was made from a block of brown oak,
That lay in a Chairmaker's yard,
Tom marked me out and saw'd me about,
And found I was solid and hard;
He said no doubt I should be about,
When asleep in the old churchyard.

Underneath the staple is another inscription written by Tom, viz.:-

Look beneath and you will see,
Crippled Tom presented me,
The College Youths' Society,
In the year of Jubilee.

September, 1887.

Inside the lid is another inscription, stating how Mr. Haworth got the box presented to the company. Mr. Hussey is now, and has been for some time a cripple.

RE-OPENING OF STAPLEFORD BELLS, WILTS.

The ring of five in this tower were re-opened by several ringers from Salisbury, on Friday, September 23rd. The company, consisting of Messrs. Gifford, Clements, Jerram, Adams, Lush, and Goddard, arrived about 4.30 p.m., Mr. T. Blackburn and S. Lawrence being already on the spot. They proceeded to raise the bells, and then rang several six-scores of Grandsire and Bob Doubles. Having ceased the bells about 7 p.m. they made their way to the "Pelican Inn," where an excellent supper was provided for them and the local ringers by Host Thring. Having done ample justice to the good things provided, songs and handbell-ringing were the order of the day. The Rev. F. W. Macdonald, vicar, although unable to be present at the supper looked in during the evening, and altogether a very enjoyable time was spent. The work of rehanging the bells has been successfully carried out by Mr. T. Blackburn, of Salisbury, and comprises entirely new fittings and repairs to frame. The fourth bell has also been recast by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and is inscribed: "F. W. Macdonald, Vicar, Mark Wallis, J. T. Grout, churchwardens, Jubilee, V.R., 1887." Mr. Blackburn is also fixing a set of Ellacombe chiming hammers to the bells.

An empty pit has been left in the frame with the intention of adding a treble to the peal when funds permit.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A District Meeting will be held at Folkestone, on Monday October 17th. The Secretary will be glad to hear from those who wish to attend. If reduced railway fare is desired, the request should reach him by October 11th, with full particulars as to numbers, route, and trains.

R. B. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN, Hon. Sec.
Wrinstead Court, Lenham, Kent.

THE DEVONSHIRE GUILD.—TIVERTON BRANCH.

ON Saturday, September 24th, the annual outing of the above branch commenced by a start from Tiverton by the eight o'clock train for Barnstaple. Arriving at Barum before 10 o'clock, they visited the ancient and interesting church of St. Brannock, at Pilton. Here they found a peal of eight, but not in a condition to suggest more than a short touch, so after a little time they let them down, and under the kind and instructing guidance of Mr. Hall, son of the vicar, they inspected the interior, and found grand reforms going on, and being conducted with great taste and judgment by Mr. Hall himself.

A pleasant drive of five miles brought them to their destination, Braunton, where they found a very pretty peal of eight, tenor 20 cwt., and hung in such a way as allowed them to go for a half-peal at least; this was being conducted by Mr. Munday, when a large stone falling on them just as they had reached the quarter-peal, threw them out, and made them cease; it proved to be a stone thrown in by some enemy at the open windows; it was fortunate it did not strike No. 6 in the face, or their day's trip would have had a sad ending. Some touches of Grandsire and Stedman allowed all the ringers to have a pull, and they received some help from a gentleman from Ilfracombe, who formerly hailed from Reading. It was a source of regret that they did not meet more of their Ilfracombe brethren. A drive back to Barnstaple, and supper at the Carnarvon Arms at Dulverton, which was duly appreciated, and a short run brought them to the "Home sweet Home," where they all agreed they possessed a peal for tone and perfection of hanging which they have not yet found equalled in Devonshire.

The following members took, part: Mr. Lewis Mackenzie (vice-president), Messrs. W. E. Allen, R. Grater, John Grater, Jas. Babbage, T. Harvey, R. Grater, jun., H. Hippisley, E. Munday, John Grater, jun., S. Hoare, Jas. Grater, and B. Grater. They wish to thank their genial and thoughtful secretary (the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote), for his kind assistance and help in promoting this holiday for them, and the Vicar of Pilton (the Rev. W. C. Hall), and the vicar of Braunton (the Rev. W. G. Morcom), for the use of their respective belfries.

HANDBELL RINGING CONTEST.

ON Monday last, the 33rd annual handbell tune-ringing contest took place at the Zoological Gardens, Belle Vue, Manchester, and it was understood to have been attended by a greater number of visitors than any other event this season. Fifteen bands competed. Each company performed a selection of six airs from Il Trovatore (Verdi), and a fantasia "Come l'Ardova," from Beatrice di Tenda (Bellini). Dr. Warwick Jordan, organist, Lewisham, London, Mr. J. Kendrick Pyne, organist, Manchester Cathedral, and Mr. Frederick Vetter, director of music, Manchester, were the judges. The ringing occupied about six hours, and very soon after its conclusion the three judges appeared on the orchestral platform, and Dr. Jordan proceeded to address the large audience somewhat as follows:-

He said that he and his colleagues had listened carefully to the performance of every band, and to the best of their judgment had estimated their abilities. He knew their verdict would not please everyone, they could not help that, however, all the judges could do was to give an honest and fair decision, and he believed that result they should arrive at, inasmuch as they did not even then know the order in which the bands rang. The awards were then made as follows: First prize, £15, Liversedge Albert, conductor, Mr. B. Cook; Second prize, £10, Almondsbury, conductor, Mr. B. Lodge; Third prize, £7, Whitefield, conductor, Mr. W. Gordon, of Stockport; Fourth prize, £5, Mirfield, conductor, Mr. W. Lee; Fifth prize, £2 10s., Holmfirth, conductor, Mr. John Moorhouse. Dr. Jordan also stated that the first and second prize winners were very close together in ability, and that the third prize winners were only two points out of a possible 120 behind the second. The first, second, fourth and fifth prize winners (Yorkshire bands all four), were also prize winners last year, but the third (Whitefield), is only a new company, who were not fully supplied with bells so late as the 1st of September last, and are therefore under those circumstances considered to have made very rapid progress.

VISIT OF BRIGHTON RINGERS TO WALDRON,
SUFFOLK.

On Monday, September 26th, at the invitation of the Vicar, four members of the Brighton branch of the Sussex County Association paid a visit to Waldron, on the occasion of the re-opening of the belfry. Starting from Brighton at 11.55, they arrived at Uckfield at 1 p.m. Procuring a trap we were soon on the road to Waldron, which lies about six miles from Uckfield, the direction being south-east. The scenery on the road was very picturesque. Waldron was reached about 2 p.m. They then adjourned to the village inn, where a cold collation was served, to which ample justice was done. At 3 o'clock they attended the dedication service at the church, which was very tastefully decorated, the previous day being the Harvest Festival. The service was opened with a processional hymn, "We love thy place, O God." After the lessons were read the clergy and the choir adjourned to the belfry, which is situated on the floor of the church. Prayers were then said by the rural dean, after which, the hymn, "Lift them gently to the tower," was sung, the bells during the singing of the hymn being rung by the local band. The Rev. Canon Sutton then preached the dedication sermon, the rev. gentleman taking for his text Psalm cl., verses 3, 4, and 5.—"Praise him with the sound of the trumpet, praise him with the psalter and harp. Praise him with the timbrel and dance, praise him with stringed instruments and organs. Praise him upon the loud cymbals, praise him upon the high sounding cymbals." The reverend gentleman in the course of his sermon exhorted the ringers to remember that every note they struck was a call to heaven. He alluded to the vicissitudes the bells which they had dedicated that day to the service of God had passed through, and to the vicissitudes they would in generations to come pass through. After the sermon, an offertory hymn was sung, the offertory being devoted to the defrayment of the expenses of re-casting the bells. The people were rung out of church by the local ringers and ringers from neighbouring towers, several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles being rung by them in the course of the day. The Brighton contingent, together with a party of four from Eastbourne, then took hold of the ropes and rang a half-peal (2520 changes) of Grandsire Triples, in 1 hr. 27 mins. T. Hart (Eastbourne), 1; G. A. King (Brighton), 2; W. Sigges (Eastbourne), 3; G. Thwaites (Brighton), 4; C. Harfey (Eastbourne), 5; T. Lewis (Eastbourne), 6; J. Jay, sen. (conductor, Brighton), 7; W. F. Vernon (Brighton), 8. The bells are a fine peal, tenor 11 cwt. in G. The go of the bells is splendid, the only detriment being that the tenor rope is much too thick for the weight of the bell. The ropes fall in a circle, and everything in connection with the hanging of the bells appears to give great satisfaction. After tea at the rectory they made the best of their way back to Brighton, where they arrived shortly after nine o'clock, having spent a most enjoyable day.

SHARNBROOK, BEDS.

A NEW BELL.—After long and patient waiting, the lovers of campanology in this village, have obtained a new treble bell, so as to make up a peal of six. The bell arrived by Midland Railway on Monday, and after being placed in position, on Tuesday morning the local company, by way of trial, gave several touches of Grandsire during the afternoon and evening. The bell weighs about six cwt., and bears the following inscription: "Cast by John Warner and Son, London, 1887, Queen Victoria's Jubilee, 1887." During the trial many considered the bell was too sharp or shrill, but by competent judges it is said to be in perfect tune.

THE BELLS OF CLUNBURY, SHROPSHIRE.

Among the many charitable bequests of the late Miss Nightingale, was one towards a new peal of bells to complete an otherwise thoroughly well-fitted little church. In 1880-81 the church was restored at a cost of above £1,600. The work was so well done that few who knew the old edifice would be able to recognise it in the present one. Since then a new organ has been placed in the chancel, chiefly by the exertions of Mrs. Jellicorse, leaving only the peal of bells. This blank the late Miss Nightingale, when an occasional worshipper, must have noticed, and thus her bequest of £200. The money was paid over to the Vicar and Churchwardens in May last, and they lost no time in forming a committee of the chief parishioners. A peal of six was decided on, and their erection placed in the hands of Messrs. John Warner and Sons, London. The old bells were at once removed to London, two to be recast, and the other (the tenor), re-stocked, and the clapper changed. For about four months the tower remained silent, the press at the founders being very great. The vicar, however was able on the return of the bells to note how well the whole of the congregation had attended, and with most praiseworthy punctuality. August 23rd saw the bells safely deposited in the vestry, and the following week found them well hung in their places. On Wednesday week, the combined services of harvest thanksgiving and dedication of the bells took place. The pulpit was occupied by the Lord Bishop of Hereford. The service was choral, and the anthem was "Ye shall dwell in the land" (Stainer). The Rev. Mr. Baxter (Sebdon), intoned the service. The Rev. W. Rowlands (Bishop's Castle), read the first lesson, and the Rev. Mr. Cresswell the second. In addition to these the following clergy were present: Revs.—Warner (Clun), R. Maul (Hopesay), —. Fixen (Bucknell), —. Field (Lydbury North), and the vicar (Rev. W. Jellicorse). The musical part of the service passed off in the usual satisfactory manner, while the decorations were, if anything, more beautiful than on former festive occasions. The church was packed to excess, and many could not even get inside. The procession was considerably inconvenienced by those unable to find seats, but who lined the aisle of the church, standing the whole service. The dedication service followed the grace. The Litany stool had been placed immediately in the tower entrance, but the Bishop however found it impossible to use it, so great was the press of the people. As the last "Amen" of the dedication sounded, the bells rang out a merry peal, being rung by the following: Messrs. J. G. Buchanan, R. Newill, W. Roberts, J. Roberts, Wood, Chester, and Tucker (instructor to the Herefordshire Guild). The sermon followed, and the Bishop went over the various functions of bells. He particularly dwelt on the "passing bell," and hoped many would ever be ready to answer its solemn call. He exploded the superstitious part of the old faith in bells, yet reminded the ringers that the tower was still part of the church, which would always demand of them becoming behaviour. At the close he made a powerful and urgent appeal that all would give cheerfully towards the clearing off the £28 still wanting to clear the bells. At the restoration the bell loft and ringing chamber did not come in for their share. Now these rooms had been renovated and the ringing-chamber coloured. A new double floor takes the place of the old single one. On this new floor rests the new oak frame. Among the inscriptions are the following:—"Vivos voco mortuos plango attendite populi;" "Ring in the love of truth and right;" "Jesus bee our speed, 1631;" "Jubilee, 1887;" "God save the Queen." After service the bells again rang merrily, and continued to do so till late in the evening. The tower and belfry were visited by a great number of people, while many who could ring were allowed to indulge in that pleasant and healthful art.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

THE Quarterly Meeting in connection with the above Society will be held on Saturday, October 1st, at Tipton. The bells at the parish church will be available for ringing during the afternoon. It is requested that members from each tower connected with the Society will be present, as the reports will be ready for distribution to all those who have paid their subscriptions.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

ON Saturday, September 24th, the first peal of Stedman Triples by the above Guild was rung at Fareham, in honour of the birthday of Mr. J. W. Whiting, one of the local band, the members of which have been untiring in their efforts to obtain a peal in the method. Meeting at the house of Mr. Whiting before proceeding to the tower, a course of Grandsire Caters was rung on the handbells. J. W. Whiting, 1-2; H. White, 3-4; J. Hewett, 5-6; J. W. Washbrook, 7-8; G. Williams, 9-10. The peal, a report of which will be found in the peal column, having been successfully brought round by 8 p.m., a course of Treble Bob Major was rung before leaving the tower. C. Privett, 1; J. Whiting, 2; F. Hill, 3; J. Hewett, 4; H. White, 5; G. Williams, 6; *G. Grafham, 7; J. W. Washbrook, 8. The party then returned to the house of Mr. Whiting, who had very kindly provided a substantial dinner, to which it need scarcely be added ample justice was done by the hungry band, who quickly convinced their host that bells were not the only things they could handle. At the conclusion of the repast, the health of Mr. and Mrs. Whiting was proposed and enthusiastically received, as also was that of Mr. Washbrook, the conductor of the peal. Mr. C. Privett, on behalf of the Fareham band, then presented Mr. G. Williams with a strongly bound copy of the Shipway Reprint, as a slight token of the respect in which he was held by them during his stay at Fareham, and as a small acknowledgement of his energetic endeavours to promote the art of change-ringing. The handbells were now brought into requisition, and the "March of the Men of Harlech," "Ring the bell, watchman," and "Keel Row," with accompaniments capitally rendered by Messrs. Grafham, Hill, and Whiting, Privett, and Passingham, after which the following touches were rung. A 252 of Stedman Triples. J. Hewett, 1-2; J. W. Washbrook (conductor), 3-4; G. Williams, 5-6; J. W. Whiting, 7-8. And a course of Grandsire Caters. J. W. Whiting, 1-2; H. White, 3-4; J. Hewett, 5-6; G. Williams, 7-8; J. W. Washbrook, 9-10. Also a course of Grandsire Triples. J. W. Washbrook, 1-2-3-4; G. Williams, 5-6-7-8. The company then separated for the night, the success they had achieved a few hours before having contributed greatly to the evening's enjoyment. On Sunday morning and afternoon for Divine Service at the church of SS. Peter and Paul, 252 of Stedman Triples. G. Williams (conductor), 1; J. W. Whiting, 2; H. White, 3; C. Privett, 4; J. Hewett, 5; J. W. Washbrook, 6; G. Grafham, 7; T. Passingham, 8. And a 420 of Stedman Triples. J. W. Washbrook, 1; C. Privett, 2; F. Hill, 3; J. Hewett, 4; H. White, 5; J. W. Whiting, 6; G. Williams (conductor), 7; T. Passingham, 8. Also a 336 of Stedman Triples. H. White, 1; J. W. Washbrook (conductor), 2; F. Hill, 3; C. Privett, 4; G. Grafham, 5; T. Passingham, 6; J. W. Whiting, 7; T. Matthews, 8. Also at Mr. Whiting's house, on handbells, a course of Grandsire Triples. G. Williams, 1-2-3-4; J. W. Washbrook, 5-6-7-8. And a course of Stedman Caters. G. W. Williams, 1-2; H. White, 3-4; J. Hewett, 5-6; J. W. Washbrook, 7-8; J. W. Whiting, 9-10. That every band in the Winchester Diocesan Guild may follow the example of the Fareham band, and that they may all climb the ladder step by step until they reach the top is the earnest wish of

HERE AND THERE.

I find I have got myself into hot water again in connection with the subject of "Peal-ringing on Sunday." I am not going to recapitulate the arguments upon the question, but it is generally understood that the practice is one which it is as well to refrain from as much as possible. Whatever us ringers may think about it, there are other persons who do not forget to call us hard names when they read of Sunday peal-ringing. That is all.

Geo. F. ATTREE, of Brighton, is down upon "mock elections." I doubt whether his remarks will be agreed with by the majority of metropolitan ringers, at any rate. But the metropolis of course should not be considered as inspiring or suggesting any question whatever. What will do for London must not be expected to do for all the rest of England. It is time we left off following the wake of a few people in London in matters of organization merely because they can (and do sometimes) write C.Y. after their name. Many a provincial ringer coming to the metropolis would imagine the purposes of his visit were not fulfilled unless he rang a peal. But how is he to ring one. The modus operandi is this: Whatever company he first meets with will listen to his desires, and make arrangements for carrying them out. At the church where the peal is to be attempted he will be asked to become a member of the society, if he has not been solicited before, and he very seldom refuses. Such a system however is not without its disadvantages. There is sometimes an actual competition between a few of the members of the two principal societies, who shall secure a visitor for their society, especially if such visitor happens to be, from a "social-position" point of view, well off.

Talking about the London Societies, there exists some dissatisfaction about the arrangements and what are considered the necessary fees for booking a peal. In one society in London the fee amounts to sixpence for each man engaged in the peal. This seems very reasonable, but there is another side to it. Members of this same society who attend meetings twelve times in a year, paying one penny on each occasion, have peals entered in the book free of charge. Members in suburban districts grumble at this. Why cannot they be allowed to pay the twelve pennies, they say, and be treated accordingly. Many of those who attend regularly it is alleged, would not do so, only that they are "of the scruffe," and their interests demand their presence. Something evidently requires adjustment here. It need not be done exactly as the grumblers wish, but they could, I should think, be met half-way. It would in fact be good policy to bring about an amicable arrangement in connection with the question.

I am thinking of taking a holiday for a few days, but where to go, whether east, west, north, or south, or by rail, road, or river, is a puzzler. Is there any good-natured society in England (Samaritanically inclined), who will invite one on the look-out for a charming spot, the scenery which will assist in recruiting his exhausted energies, both mental and corporeal? I hope I shall not have too many kind offers, because in such case there is a tremendous difficulty in the selection. I can ring, fish, ride a horse or a tricycle, play at chess, or draughts, and am a dead shot, especially at poultry or game, when on table. A cordial invitation (though it must be in a genial and exhilarating neighbourhood) of this kind, will be gratefully responded to by

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1887.

THE handbell performances, which have of late been achieved in the metropolis, redound very greatly to the credit of all the performers who have taken part in them. Especially do the conductors of these peals deserve some meed of praise, which is not to be qualified in the slightest degree by any reason of supposed simplicity of the composition selected for operation, for the most difficult of all peals of Grandsire Triples to call, viz.: "Holt's Original," has been taken in hand by them, and in the presence of critics, both friendly and otherwise, has been executed in a masterly manner, gaining the warm approbation of the company assembled. These performances vividly bring to remembrance the days of such men as HALEY and COX, COOTER and FERRIS, POWELL, BRITTEN, and other names, at one time well known and highly distinguished in this particular branch of the Exercise. These talented exponents of the most difficult branch of the ringing science did not, however, confine themselves to one particular method, or to any particular number of bells. Peals of Stedman Cinques was at one time more frequent with them than many who read these lines would believe. In this particular they were determined to excel, and did so.

And we should be glad if anything we could say would be the means of inciting those gentlemen who have rung so many peals of Grandsire Triples recently to go yet higher in the art, and prove themselves worthy successors of those, some of whom have gone to join the majority, while others, and not the least of them, are, we are happy to say, still amongst us. It is too late now to wish that in this especial branch of ringing the metropolis may always remain at the head; the skill shewn by provincial ringers of late, notably at Birmingham and Oxford, is sufficient to discourage such a thought. But it is not too late to point out to those energetic ringers whose recent feats we are noticing, that by extending their operations to other methods, and upon an increased number of bells, they will beyond a doubt place the London portion of the Exercise into as near a position as possible, in handbell ringing, as that which it formerly enjoyed.

We hope these observations may not be misunderstood, or received with churlishness; and will it be out of place here to give expression to a wish that taking into consideration the numerous facilities for handbell ringing, both as regards time and place, the first day of the week may be avoided as far as possible?

THE SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

A DISTRICT MEETING will be held at Longbridge Deverill, on Thursday, October 6th, when the bells will be at the disposal of members and friends from 4 p.m. Tea will be provided at 6 p.m., members free, others 6d. each. Names of those purposing to attend to be sent to Mr. G. Parham, captain of the Longbridge Deverill company, before September 26th.

THE TEMPLE CHURCH, BRISTOL.

Adverting to the paragraph in your last issue, it may interest some of your readers to learn that the peal of eight just set in thorough order by Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, are hung in a tower said to be seven feet out of the perpendicular, in fact a second tower of Pisa on a small scale. The declination is obvious, and does not even escape the notice of ordinary observers. The Ancient Society of St. James meet at this church, and on Tuesday evening, September 28th, rang 840 of Grandsire Triples, the longest touch since the re-opening of the bells on June 21st (Jubilee Day). Messrs. Taylor may be warmly congratulated on the go of the bells, which, singly, leaves nothing to be desired, but owing to the oscillation of the tower, in peal the third and fourth are somewhat "tricky." The touch above referred to was rung by the following: T. Salter (conductor), 1; C. Waters, 2; A. Anderson, Esq., 3; John Davies, 4; A. Parish, 5; C. E. D. Boutflower, Esq., 6; Robert Knill, 7; Henry Schusler, 8. Tenor 21 cwt.

In Memoriam.

THOMAS FULLER.

We regret to have to announce the death of the above named gentleman, after a very brief illness. He had been a member of the Reigate Society a great many years, and a member of the Nutfield company previously, making a total of over fifty years, and was a member of the Nutfield church choir for about fifty years. He was a good musician. He had rang thirteen peals of 5040 changes, namely twelve of Grandsire, and Holt's one-part peal of Bob Triples. He had also rang many 720's of Minor in various methods. He was an excellent striker and a sure ringer. His loss will be felt very much at Reigate. He died on Monday, September 21st, aged 70 years, and was buried in Reigate Cemetery on the 24th. The members of the local company met and rung before the funeral, with the bells deeply muffled, a touch of Grandsire Triples, after which all the members followed to the grave. After the interment the ringers returned to the tower and rang two more touches of Grandsire Triples.

TIPTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.—RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Saturday, September 24th, the St. Martin's society, Tipton, had their outing to Kidderminster. Arriving at the parish church, they made an attempt for Holt's ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing 1700 changes a slight mishap occurred which caused the band to stop, and time would not permit of starting again. H. Mills, 1; G. Hughes (conductor), 2; E. Goodreds, 3; W. Pardoe, 4; S. Jesson, 5; A. Hill, 6; W. R. Small, 7; B. Starkey, 8. Tenor 29 cwt. An adjournment was afterwards made to the meeting-house of the Kidderminster company by the Tipton and local ringers, after which they returned to the tower and rang a few short touches of Kent Treble Bob Minor, and Major, also several touches of Plain Bob Triples by the Tipton and Kidderminster companies, including Mr. G. Hayward, of Bromsgrove, again at the ringers meeting-house. The remaining part of the evening was spent with handbells, etc. Time getting short, and some of the band wishing to take home some memento of this visit, two of them purchased a lady's umbrella each, which upon inspection by return journey home, caused no small amount of amusement by discovering that one of them had been taken in a little, but "never mind Ben, don't buy another one in the dark." They wish to thank through "THE BELL NEWS," the church authorities for the use of the bells, and also the ringers of Kidderminster for getting the bells in order, as the go of them is very good. The Tipton band are all members of the Association for the Archdeaconry of Stafford, and the Worcester and Adjoining Districts Association.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

CATHERINGTON (Hants).—The ring of bells at St. Catherine's, which formerly consisted of five, and which has been enlarged to six (the old second having been recast and a treble added) by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, was re-opened on Thursday, September 22nd. The bells were set going at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Several six-scores of Grandsire Doubles were rung by the local band and visitors from Havant, Basingstoke, Gosport, and Fareham. A 720 of Grandsire Minor was rung in 27 mins. by the following members: G. Grafham, 1; H. White (conductor), 2; J. Hewett, 3; Rev. H. A. Spyers, 4; J. Staples, 5; J. Whitney, 6. At 5 o'clock the ringers adjourned to the Schoolroom near the church, where a capital tea was partaken of, provided by the Churchwardens. The bells were then rung for the service, and at 7 o'clock, and two well struck six-scores of Stedman Doubles were brought round. An appropriate sermon was preached to a crowded congregation by the Vicar, the Rev. R. F. Maynard. The Whitechapel firm have had rather a difficult task in splicing this ring, as the old bells were abnormally thin, but they have accomplished their task very satisfactorily, as the new bells harmonise well with the old ones, and they are now a very musical and handy peal, with tenor 10 cwt. in G.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS' ASSOCIATION.

On Friday evening, September 16th, the Bromsgrove and Hanbury branches of the above Association proceeded to Stoke Prior, to celebrate the twenty-first birthday of Messrs. Harry and Joseph Tompson, members of the above Association. The proceedings commenced with a 720 of Grandsire Minor, at St. Michael's church, in 28 mins. Harry Tompson (first 720 in the method), 1; Elijah Crump (Bromsgrove, conductor), 2; Alfred Moore (Hanbury), 3; Thomas Allbutt (Bromsgrove), 4; George Moore (Hanbury), 5; Walter Rea (Bromsgrove), 6. Afterwards several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles, by mixed bands, and then an adjournment was made to the house of Messrs. Tompson Brothers, to partake of refreshments. The cloth being removed the health of the Messrs. Tompsons were drank, and some capital songs and tune playing on the handbells brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

THE October meeting of the above Association will be held at Bradford, on Saturday, the 8th October, and not on the 1st, as heretofore.

Church News.

The gentleman who has been licensed by the Bishop of Ely to the curacy of Cockfield, is the Rev. Charles Arthur Williamson, not "Wilkinson."

The Temple Church will be re-opened on Sunday next, when the sermons will be preached by the Master (Dean Vaughan) and Canon Ainger.

On St. Luke's Day (Tuesday, October 18th), the Archbishop of Canterbury will consecrate at Westminster Abbey, Canon Camidge to the Bishopric of Bathurst. Canon Hudson, rector of Gilling, and late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, will preach the consecration sermon.

The Bishop of Southwell has appointed Mr. A. B. Kemp, of the Western Circuit, to the Chancellorship of the diocese, which has become vacant by the elevation of Mr. Justice Charles to the bench. Mr. Kempe, who was secretary to the Royal Commission on the Ecclesiastical Courts, is also Chancellor of Newcastle.

On St. Matthew's day, at Wells Cathedral, the Bishop admitted to the diaconate Mr. Gordon J. H. Llewellyn, who was afterwards licensed to the curacy of Yeovil. Mr. Llewellyn had for the last nine years been the minister of the so-called "Reformed Episcopal Church in Yeovil," but had returned with most of the congregation to the Church of England.

The preachers on Sunday mornings at Westminster Abbey next month will be—Oct. 2, Minor Canon Price; 9, the Rev. J. F. Kitto (offertory for Choir Benevolent Fund); 16, the Rev. J. H. J. Ellison vicar of St. Gabriel's, Pimlico (offertory for Wakefield Bishopric Fund); 23, the Rev. H. L. Paget, vicar of St. Pancras (offertory for Dr. Barnardo's Home for Boys); 30, the Precentor (the Rev. S. F. Jones). The Rev. G. Prothero, Sub-Dean, as Canon in Residence, will preach in the afternoons.

The preachers at Chapel Royal, Savoy, for October are as follows:—Mornings, Rev. Henry White. Evenings, 2nd, Hon. and Rev. Canon Leigh, rector of St. Mary's, Bryanston-square; 9th, Rev. Blomfield Jackson, Classical Master in King's College School; 16, Canon Hannah, vicar of St. Nicholas's, Brighton; 23, Rev. Henry T. Waters, vicar of Holmwood, Dorking; 30th, Rev. Lord Victor A. Seymour, rector of Carshalton.

At the Durham ordination the sermon was preached by Canon Falconer, and the Gospel read by Mr. Johnson. Chester—preacher, the Bishop; gospeller, Mr. Lea. Gloucester—preacher, the Rev. M. Trotter, rector of St. Mary de Crypt; gospeller, Mr. Norris. Llandaff—preacher, the Rev. C. E. T. Griffith, vicar of Blaenavon; gospeller, Mr. Hamsworth. Manchester—preacher, Canon Hicks; gospeller, Mr. Ram. Norwich—preacher, the Rev. W. Saumarez Smith, Principal of St. Aidan's; gospeller, Mr. Adams. Oxford—preacher, the Rev. W. Foxley Norris, rector of Witney; gospeller, Mr. Kidd. Peterborough—preacher, Canon MacDowell; gospeller, Mr. Kelsey. Worcester—preacher, the Rev. M. E. Welby; gospeller, Mr. Hugh Evans.

This week the first of the series of Sunday afternoon lectures, with music, has been given at St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, Queen Victoria-street. Weber's Harvest Cantata and The Wilderness by Wesley were performed, the principal soloists being Mr. Henry Cooper and Miss Waugh. Mr. Norris presided at the organ and Miss F. Baker at the grand piano; the rector (the Rev. H. C. Shuttleworth) conducting. Mr. Shuttleworth delivered a short address, in the course of which, anticipating the objection which might possibly be made by some to oratorios in a church, he said that music appealed to many persons more keenly than sermons, and expressed a voice to which words could not be given. We use it, added the rev. gentlemen, as a method of preaching and a form of prayer. The lectures on the next two Sundays will be on "Disestablishment," one being for and one against. The lecturers will be the Rev. F. N. Oxenham and the Rev. Bradley H. Alford.

On Sunday the services which had been given for some years past under the direction of Mr. H. Ehrlich, at the Pavilion Theatre, Whitechapel-road, were resumed with a harvest festival. In the afternoon there was a large attendance, the whole of the building, with the exception of the upper gallery being thrown open. The stage presented quite a remarkable appearance, the whole length of the front with the exception of a small space for a table, being banked up with a profusion of flowers, vegetables of all kinds, sheaves of wheat, small trusses of clover, and great loaves of bread. Prayers were read by the Rev. H. N. G. Hall, curate of St. Mary's, Whitechapel, and the Bishop of Bedford gave an extempore address of a very earnest and practical character upon the last verse of the 144th Psalm, "Happy is the people whose God is the Lord."

The St. Albans Diocesan Conference is to meet at the Town-hall, Stratford, E., on Wednesday and Thursday, October 12th and 13th. Among the selected subjects is the question of Tithe Rent-Charge Legislation, the speakers announced being the Hon. Baron Dimsdale, M.P., the Rev. E. G. Gepp, and the Rev. H. T. Armfield.

The Staffordshire Church Board of Education has, with the sanction of the Bishop, appointed the Rev. Dalhousie Ramsay to be Diocesan Inspector for West Staffordshire. Mr. Ramsay for the last two years has been helping the work of Church school inspection in the diocese of Rochester, more particularly as regards the examination of pupil-teachers and children; and will enter on his office with strong recommendations from those under whom he has served.

Among the clergymen who have completed a fifty years' rectorate is the Rev. T. G. F. Howes, M.A., Oriel College, Oxford, who was appointed to Belton in the diocese of Norwich in 1837. During his incumbency the church has been rebuilt except the outer part of the walls of the nave; schools and schoolhouse have been erected, the rectory has been largely added to, and a parish institute started. Last week the parishioners presented him with an illuminated address and a silver inkstand. Mr. Howes has this year also kept his golden wedding.

Yesterday week the Bristol Bishopric Committee held a meeting, Canon Mather in the chair. The hon. secretaries (Archdeacon Norris and Mr. Ward) reported that since Lady-day £1,092 had been paid to the bank by old subscribers, and £131 by new subscribers; and that £9,572 had been invested at three and two-thirds per cent. The anonymous offer of £10,000 was contingent on £30,000 being paid into the bank by next midsummer. In order to insure this, not only must all promises be paid up, but about £6,000 more must be subscribed. If £40,000 could be thus realised, there was good ground for believing that the endowment would be completed from another source, as the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol had several times pointed out. The question of a Bishop's residence was then considered, and the restoration of the Bishop of Bristol's ancient palace, adjoining the cathedral, appeared to those present the most likely to interest the people of Bristol.

The Bishop of Bath and Wells has issued a circular to his clergy stating that he has appointed the Rev. R. D. Monro to be Diocesan Missioner for his diocese. His lordship adds—"I have long felt a strong desire to have some additional machinery at work by which, with the gracious blessing of God, the Church life of the diocese might be fanned into a brighter flame, and the kingdom of God advance among us. This want from the nature of the case exists more strongly in country parishes than even in the towns. In the towns there is a great mental activity, more facility for meeting, more opportunity for intercourse among the clergy. In a country parish the great danger is stagnation. My hope is that the occasional ministrations of the Diocesan Missioner will be found a welcome both to the clergy and to the people of town and country. In selecting Mr. Monro for this responsible office, I have been guided by the strongest testimonials as to his personal piety, his experience in Mission work, and his sound Churchmanship. And I ask for him a loving, brotherly reception at your hands. The following are the chief ways in which I conceive the Missioner will be able to help in the diocese. 1. By conducting parochial missions whenever he is asked to do so by the incumbent of a parish. This will be his chief work. But he will be ready also to organise missions, to assist the clergy in finding capable missioners, for which his wide acquaintance with mission preachers gives him great facility; to hold preparatory services before a mission commences, and to visit parishes after an interval where missions have been held, in order to revive and deepen the work. 2. By holding quiet days for the clergy in the deanery or district for the Church workers. I attach great importance to this last as a means of strengthening and giving fresh life and power to the Church work throughout the diocese. 3. By addressing the clergy and laity in ruridecanal chapters and conferences on the subject of parochial missions. 4. By preaching sermons, or courses of sermons, at the special season of the year, Advent, Lent, Holy Week, or otherwise, as may be arranged. Mr. Monro will come into residence in the diocese as early as possible in the coming year."

SILEBY, LEICESTERSHIRE.

A very large clock has just been erected upon the church tower at the above place, by John Smith and Sons, Midland Clock Works, Derby, which strikes the hours upon a 21 cwt. bell, plays the Westminster quarters upon four bells, and shews time upon two dials each six feet across. The movement is fitted with all the latest improvements, and designed generally after the lines laid down by Lord Grimthorpe.

The same firm have also just completed a large clock at Kingsbury Church, Somerset, which shews time on two six-ft. dials.

On Thursday a special meeting of the Harwood Local Board was held to consider the written legal opinions which they have sought in regard to the cemetery difficulty. The advice received by the board confirmed their former belief that to consecrate the cemetery will be tantamount to handing over their rights and privileges to the ecclesiastical authorities. A resolution was therefore passed regretting that the board cannot see its way to the consecration under the present state of the law. With regard to preventing the provision of an opposition cemetery, the legal advice received by the board was not satisfactory.

The Dean of York and a sub-committee of the Burial Reform Association have issued for consideration and criticisms a draft statement setting forth the objects of the society.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

LONDON SURPRISE MAJOR.

SIR,—Your issue of the 10th inst. recorded a peal of London Surprise, rung at Burton-on-Trent, to which, as the composer, my name was appended. My friend Mr. Dains has pointed out to me that the composition in question is based on an old peal of Treble Bob Major by Thurston, of Norwich, and I have to tender my apologies for the involuntary piracy, but my excuse must be that I did not think of examining Treble Bob productions when informing myself of what previous peals of London had been composed, which is the more pardonable that I cannot find a single other one in the former method that is capable of the same use. I append the original and the variation, and merely trouble you with this explanation to prevent any future misapprehension as to the authorship of the composition in so important a performance as that of the Burton gentlemen.

CORRECTIONS.

SIR,—The 5184 Stedman Caters under my name in your issue of the 10th inst. is false, the second six from rounds repeating with two in the thirteenth course. The 5184 Treble Bob Caters, in your issue of the 24th inst. should read 5220, and the first course M 2B 1W 2H, and last course 2M 1B 1W H. The figures as published produce only 5112. The 5040 Treble Bob Royal in the same issue is not mine; I never having sent it, but from a conversation I had with my friend Williams, I fancy it will be found to be his. J. R. PRITCHARD.

SIR,—I thank you for publishing the peal rang at Waterloo, on the 17th inst. I observe you have put the date September 9th, instead of September 17th. If you will kindly call attention to the correct date in your next issue you will oblige. HENRY J. DAVIES.

EXETER CATHEDRAL.

AMID all the wonders to be seen at Exeter, its crowning glory is the Cathedral, which takes a high rank among those of the second class. Exeter Cathedral was commenced in 1107—1136 by Bishop William Warelwast; of this erection the transept towers only remain. The present building was commenced by Peter Quivil in 1288, and received additions in succeeding ages. The church is composed of a nave and choir, with aisles, Lady Chapel, and a transept formed out of the towers. The roof is crowned with a fleur-de-lys-ridge ornament of lead. The west front, restored by Kendall in 1817, is composed of three storeys: the first is an elaborate screen, with a central doorway, and covered with canopied imagery work; in the second is the great west window of the nave, 32 feet by 27 feet. The upper story is formed by the gable. Within, the splendid stone vaulting of nave and choir is the most beautiful in the kingdom, and the whole building is remarkable for grace and minute finish. The chapels and screens are numerous. The dimensions of the Cathedral, in feet, are as follows:—Nave, 180 feet in length, 60 in breadth, and 68 in height; choir, 132 feet in length, 54 in breadth, and 68 in height; transept, 140 feet in height, 32 in breadth, and 68 in height; Lady Chapel, 65 feet in length, 35 in breadth, and forty in height; Chapter House, 55 feet in length, 28 in breadth, and 50 in height; Towers, 28 feet in length, 28 in breadth, and 145 in height. Total length, 387 feet.

On entering the choir, the stranger will feel the force of the description of the Rev. Dr. Oliver, where he says—"The mind is enchanted with the exquisite richness of the noble east window, with the splendid episcopal throne, that towers in airy state to the vaulting, and seems to despise the modern desks and seats around it; and as the spectator advances to the sanctuary, he will acknowledge that the three stalls on the right are unrivalled in beauty and delicacy of sculpture." The throne is of oak, about 52 feet in height, the canopy of which is composed of pointed arches, columns, niches, pinnacles, and foliated ornaments, tastefully and delicately carved, rising in a pyramidal form, and finishing in a series of ascending spires. It was erected by Bishop Bothe, in the year 1470. During the Commonwealth it was taken down and concealed, but replaced at the Restoration, and now remains almost as perfect as when first erected. The pulpit, opposite the Bishop's throne, constructed in 1560, is an elegant piece of workmanship. The stone altar screen is a modern work by Mr. John Kendall, of Exeter, in 1819. It is in the pointed style of the fourteenth century, and composed of seven divisions. These divisions are separated from each other by receding buttresses, surmounted by pinnacles and supported by columns. The centre over the altar is enriched by a canopy entwined with ivy, combining the rose, thistle, and shamrock. The height of the centre is 21 feet, and length of the entire screen 41 feet.

The fine old monuments existing in this Cathedral are numerous, and especially worthy the stranger's attention. We cannot do more than enumerate some of the principal, and point out their situation. In the choir is a splendid monument of Bishop Stapleton, who was murdered in 1326, and chaste and elegant altar tombs of Bishops Marshall and Lacey; the former died in 1206, the latter in 1455. In a recess in the north aisle of the choir is a sepulchral memorial, representing a full-length skeleton lying on its winding sheet. Nearer the Lady Chapel, in the same aisle, is the statue of an armed knight, commonly supposed to the memory of Sir Richard Stapleton, the bishop's brother. In the chapel of St. Mary Magdalene, on the north of the Lady Chapel, is the sumptuous tomb of Bishop Stafford, who died in 1419. In the chapel of St. Gabriel, on the south of the Lady Chapel, stands the stately monument of Bishop Bronescombe, founder of the chapel, who died in 1280; this, perhaps, may be deemed one of the gems of the numerous ancient sepulchral mementoes within this Cathedral. In this chapel also are two of the finest specimens of modern art to be found within its walls. One is an exquisite piece of sculpture of a full-sized figure in white marble, by Sir Francis Chantrey, of Northcote, the painter, who died in 1831. The other is by Flaxman, in memory of Lieutenant-General Simcoe, who died in 1806. In the Lady Chapel are three monuments of early bishops, supposed to be those of Bartholomew Iscanus, Simon de Apulia, and Quivil. In the south choir are the effigies of two crusaders, one of whom is said to have been of the Chichester family, and the other of Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford. Besides these and many other monuments which the stranger will inspect with a high degree of interest in his round over this Cathedral, he cannot fail to be delighted with the exquisite remains of ancient art displayed in the beautifully pointed arches—the delicate sculpture of the decorations, particularly in the canopies of the stalls, and in the screens between the chapels,—and the other ornamental embellishments of the several monumental chapels with which this sacred edifice is enriched.

The bells of Exeter Cathedral are of well-known celebrity, and it is thus hardly necessary to refer to them. They are the heaviest peal in the world, the tenor weighing 67 cwt. It is greatly to be regretted that the capitolary body cannot see their way clear to have them put into good ringing order. Various suggestions have been made to this effect, but such a good work seems as far off as ever, though money can readily be collected for objects more ephemeral than bells. The good folks of Exeter can hardly know the treasure they have in the bells of their Cathedral. The late Mr. H. W. Haley, who was no mean judge, stated more than once that he had never heard anything in the least approaching them; to him other celebrated rings were insignificant in comparison. May we hope that at no distant day something in the way of restoration of such a national monument as the bells of Exeter Cathedral may be made.

A CURIOUS CASE.

The following novel case was submitted, in 1824, to Mr. Gurney, the eminent counsel, for his opinion: "Emma, the daughter of W. and A. G., was born after the house clock had struck, and while the parish clock was striking, and before St. Paul's had begun to strike twelve, on the night of the 4th January, 1815. As there are great estates in the family, it may be of importance to ascertain whether the said Emma was born on the 4th or 5th of January. Your opinion is therefore requested, whether the proper evidence is that given by the house clock, the parish clock, or the metropolitan clock?" Mr. Gurney's answer was as follows: "This is a case of great importance and some novelty; but I do not think I should be much assisted by reference to the ponderous folios under which my shelves groan. The nature of the testimony is to be considered with reference to the subject to which it is applicable. The testimony of the house clock is applicable only to domestic—mostly culinary purposes. It is the guide of the cook with reference to the hour of dinner, but it cannot be received as evidence of the birth of a child. The clock at the next house goes slower or faster, and a child born at the next house at the same moment may, according to the clock at the next house, be born on a different day. The reception of such evidence would lead to thousands of inconsistencies and inconveniences. The parochial clock is much better evidence, and I should think that it ought to be received, if there were no better, but it is not to be put into competition with the metropolitan clock. When that is present it is to be received with implicit acquiescence. It speaks in a great tone of authority, and is unquestionably of great weight. I am therefore of opinion that Miss Emma G. was born on the 4th of January, 1815, and that she will attain her majority the instant St. Paul's clock strikes twelve on the night of the 3rd of January, 1836."

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, WEDNESBURY.—DEDICATION OF TOWER AND BELLS.

ON Sunday morning, September 25th, the dedication of the new tower and peal of bells at St. Paul's Church, Wood Green, took the form of a special dedicatory service conducted by the Bishop of Lichfield. The church was erected some years ago at the cost of the Elwell family, and has just been completed by the addition of a tower and spire, also the gift of the same munificent donors, and a peal of eight bells, for which the late Mrs. Richards left a legacy of £700 nearly two years ago. A new entrance to the churchyard has also been formed at the angle of the roads, and the churchyard and walks re-arranged and improved. The building of the tower and spire was done by Mr. Willcock, of Wolverhampton, from the designs of Mr. E. R. Clarke, architect; the bells, which are of fine tone, were supplied from the celebrated foundry of Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, their cost exceeding the legacy before named: and Mr. Job Edwards superintended the improvements in the churchyard, and the erection of the new cast iron gates at the entrance. The Mayor (Alderman R. Williams), in cocked hat, robes, and chain, and the Aldermen and Councillors in robes, with the officers of the Corporation, assembled in the Sunday School room, and from there formed a procession, the Mayor, preceded by the mace-bearer, bringing up the rear. From the schoolroom the procession proceeded to the church gates, which were closed, and the other members of the procession having opened out into two lines, the Mayor, advancing to the front, took a firm hold of the iron gates and threw them wide open, and doffing his hat, said gravely, "I declare these gates to be open for ever to the worshippers of St. Paul's church upon all suitable and proper occasions." The Mayor, then advancing, was received by the Vicar, the Rev. G. Tuthill, who shook him by the hand warmly, and the procession then re-formed and walked into the church. The Bishop of Lichfield, the Rev. J. Eckersley (vicar), the Rev. W. G. Box, the Rev. G. Tuthill, the members of the choir, and the churchwardens (Messrs. Griffiths and Aston), entered the tower. The churchwardens took possession of the bell-ropes, and addressed the Bishop as follows:—"Right Reverend Father in God, we request you to dedicate to the glory of God, and the use of St. Paul's church, this tower and spire, together with this belfry and peal of eight bells contained therein." The Bishop having received the ropes said:—"By virtue of our sacred office, we do solemnly set apart and separate from all profane and unhallowed uses, this spire and belfry, and these bells, now dedicated to the glory of God, for the benefit of His Holy Church." His lordship afterwards delivered the ropes to the Vicar, and in doing so said:—"Receive these bells as a sacred trust, committed unto thee as the appointed minister of this church and parish; take heed that they be ever and only used in his services and for His glory. You are to take notice that these bells of the church are committed to the custody of the vicar of the parish, to be used by his consent, subject to the ultimate control of the Bishop of the diocese." The Bishop, clergy, and choir, afterwards entered the church, and the ordinary morning service was gone through, the Rev. W. G. Box intoning the prayers and preces, and the Rev. J. Eckersley reading the lessons. The Bishop preached from Psalm lxxv., 2—"Thou that hearest prayer, to Thee shall all flesh come." After using the words as a declaration, first of God's care for man, and of man's need of God, he said:—

The subject has a special fitness for our gathering here to-day. We are met to dedicate to the service of Almighty God these bells, which have come to you almost like a gift from the other world. They come to us as a gift from one whom we call dead, but Holy Scripture tells us such are not dead, but living before God: and their purpose and mission is truly nothing less than this, to call you to the service of that God "who heareth prayer, and to whom all flesh shall come." Let every sound of these bells be to you a continual reminder of these two great truths which we have been considering this morning—God's love and man's need—and whenever you hear them, whether you are on your way to the House of God, or hindered from coming by duties which God himself has given you to do, remember that by them, God's loving message comes to you, reminding you of that which alone can satisfy the soul, and bring rest to your heart. Nay, may it not be well sometimes when we hear these bells to whisper to ourselves the very words of the Psalmist, "Thou that hearest prayer, to Thee shall all flesh come." What tender words are there to occupy our thoughts as we draw near—Sunday after Sunday, or day after day—the House of God. "Thou that hearest prayer, to Thee shall all flesh come." It is the whole meaning of life, as it is seen by the eye of God, and the whole purpose of our existence. It was this which Christ breathed forth, as it were, at every moment of His life on earth, as he gave himself as a living sacrifice for us; it was to draw all men to Him, as He was lifted up on the Cross. His life was one long and loving invitation to come to Him; and in His resurrection we have the blessed assurance that God heareth and answereth prayer. And so we may trace in all the changes and chances of our earthly life, the same great purpose, finding in our cares, in the sound of the bells, and even in our joys and sorrows, if we read them aright, an intimation of God's love, and of His desire, by all means, to always to draw us to Himself. And so to-day, when your offerings are asked to complete the work which has been done for you by the munificence of one family, and for God's honor and glory, to complete the church by the addition of a clock, which will continually remind us that life's little span must soon run to a close, and how urgent it is that we should come to God, and also to provide for our bodies a quiet resting place in the churchyard which lies around this church—shall we not have deepened in our hearts the conviction of those truths which the Psalmist has taught us, so to number our days, that every fleeting moment may bring us one step nearer to God, and be helped to come to Him every day of our life, so that when we lie down and take our rest, we may indeed come to his very presence in the Paradise of God, and be satisfied with the assurance of His love.

Special hymns were sung, and special prayers were read, and an offertory was taken towards the improvements in the churchyard, and the cost of placing a clock in the tower. The bells were afterwards chimed again, the architect for the present not deeming it advisable to allow a peal to be rung. At the conclusion of the service, the Mayor's procession formed as before, marched back to the schoolroom, and from there the Mayor drove home in his brougham. The sermon in the evening was preached by the Rev. W. G. Box.

The collection for the day realised £27, including a donation of £5 from the Rev. William Thorn, of Ivy-gate, Worcester, and a guinea from Mr. Enoch Horton, of the Grange.

GRENDON, NORTHANTS.

THE CHURCH BELLS.—The church of St. Mary, Grendon, is at present undergoing restoration. It is to be hoped that this will include the re-hanging of the peal of five bells, for they are in a very unsatisfactory condition. The treble, second, and fourth are 17th century bells, dated 1618; but the third, judging from its shape and inscription, is probably much older. It is inscribed, "Sit Nomen Domini Benedictum." The tenor (a good bell) was cast by Thomas Eayre, of Kettering, in the year 1761, and weighs about 15 cwt. There is a tradition in the village to the effect that the Grendon and Earl's Barton tenor bells were both cast at Eayre's foundry at the same time, and that the Barton bell was sent to Grendon in mistake, the Barton folk of course getting the Grendon bell. The largest bell at Earl's Barton is dated 1761, so there may be some truth in the "old tale." Mr. North, in his "Church Bells of Northamptonshire," states that a similar tradition is current at Earl's Barton.

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

The following (which we give in extenso) is published in the form of a leaflet, for private circulation. The writer is Mr. W. H. Thompson, author of the celebrated "Note on Grandsire Triples," which as most of our readers are no doubt aware, proved the impossibility of a peal of Grandsire Triples with bobs only.

"A THREE-PART TOUCH OF GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

"By W. H. THOMPSON.

"Since the publication last year of my 'Note on Grandsire Triples,' I have been informed that all yet published touches of 4998 are in one part, and that ringers would like a three-part touch of 4998.

"I therefore now circulate one from which, on the advice of an accomplished ringer, I have omitted the B block which may be introduced at the end in the manner indicated.

"As printed, the touch contains 132 bobs. It can, however (by the device noted in the postscript to my "Note"), be transformed into a three-part touch of 4998, containing 147 bobs. For the purpose of effecting this transformation, the three Q sets of which the rows

POLEBROOK, NORTHANTS.

BELL ACCIDENT.—On Sunday, September 25th, during the ringing for evening service at this church, the gudgeon of the tenor bell broke, and let the bell go down into the frame with a crash. The wheel was smashed and other damage done. Fortunately the bell, a very fine-toned one of 14 cwt., was not injured. The services of a bellhanger have been brought into requisition, and the mischief will doubtless soon be repaired.

THE DEVONSHIRE GUILD.

ON Saturday, September 24th, about a dozen members of the above Guild visited the seat of Lord Poltimore, where they found a nice peal of six bells, by Evans, of Chepstow, and recently rehung by Stokes, of Woodbury, tenor 14 cwt. (not 14 cwt. as was stated in "THE BELL NEWS" of Saturday, September 24th). The bells were found to go well, and are a very pretty peal in the key of A. After a few six-scores were rung, a move was made for Broadclyst, about one mile distant. Here by the kindness of C. Pearson, Esq., of Whitsone, a nice tea was done justice to in a cosy room at the "Red Lion." A few six-scores on the tower bells (tenor 20 cwt.), brought the half day's ringing to a close, and the drive as well as the ringing was much enjoyed by all. The following members were present and took part in the ringing. Whitstone: C. Pearson, Esq., and Messrs. Sercombe, Pester (2), Baxter (2), and Skinner; Exeter: Messrs. B. Mundy, Moss, Davey, Carter, Bastin, and Shepherd (2). The County Guild begs through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," to thank the Vicars and wardens of each tower for placing the bells at their disposal. On Tuesday, September 27th, the Upton Pyne band had their annual outing. They were accompanied by their rector, the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote, Hon. Secretary of the Guild, who also invited Messrs. A. and F. Shepherd, from Exeter, to join them. A lovely drive along the estuary of the Exe and South Devon coast, brought the party, nine in number, to Dawlish. Dinner being over, provided by the kind generosity of the rector, a move was made to the tower, and some Doubles rung. A drive of five miles brought them to Ideford. Here they found a peal of six, by Warner and Sons, and hung by Stokes, of Woodbury, tenor 8 cwt. After ringing they were invited by the rector of Ideford to partake of his hospitality, and justice was done to the good fare provided, after which two courses of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells, which was much appreciated by the rector and family. The drive over Haldon Hills (ten miles), on a lovely moonlight night, brought them back again to Exeter, and so ended this year's outing of the Upton Pyne band. Besides the rector, and the brothers Shepherd, were Messrs. Webber (2), Bonner, Spear, Bradford, and Bennett. On Wednesday, September 28th, a dedication service was held at Powderham Church. This beautiful little church stands in Powderham Park, one of the grandest spots in Devon, with its fine old oaks, underneath which the deer are at home, but its greatest ornament is the ancient castle, the seat of the Earl of Devon. There were formerly three bells in the tower, founded by Pennington, the tenor was recast in 1879, and is in the key of G sharp. Mr. Stokes, of Woodbury, has put a new cage for six, recast the treble, and added three new trebles. These are founded by Warner and Sons, and both the hanging and splice are excellent, thus making a pretty peal of six. The dedication service was performed by the Hon. and Rev. H. H. Courtney, and the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote preached a very appropriate sermon. The Whitstone band, under the guidance of Mr. Ferris Shepherd, rang the bells for the first time for Divine Service, and a few rounds at the Dedication. After service two six-scores of Grandsire Doubles, the first on the bells. W. Pester, 1; H. Baxter, 2; W. Sercombe, 3; G. Baxter, 4; F. Shepherd (conductor), 5; S. Skinner, 6. Afterwards the bells were well handled by the Kenn ringers, then by a band made up from Upton Pyne, Clyst St. George, and St. David's, Exeter. C. Pearson, Esq., and the Hon. Secretary of the Guild also took part in the ringing. It is to be hoped that Kenton bells, six in number, close by, will now be put in order, and both bands join the County Guild, and learn to ring like their neighbours at Kenn.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A District Meeting will be held at Folkestone, on Monday October 17th. The Secretary will be glad to hear from those who wish to attend. If reduced railway fare is desired, the request should reach him by October 11th, with full particulars as to numbers, route, and trains.

R. B. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN, Hon. Sec.
Wrinstead Court, Lenham, Kent.

RYPE, SUSSEX.

Rype is a village about three miles from Berwick station, on the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway. The church, which is a mixture of decorated and perpendicular architecture, has been restored with much taste. Its square tower contains a ring of five bells. They have lately been re-hung by Messrs. Warner and Sons, of London, three of them being re-cast. A brass tablet on the south wall of the belfry records this as follows: "To the Glory of God and in memory of William Wyatt Woolcombe, B.D., these bells were restored by Robert Shuttleworth Sutton, M.A., Prebendary of Chichester and Rector of Rype, in the year of Our Lord, 1887." Belfry, bells, and fittings are now in excellent order. The belfry is open to the church, and the ropes fall to the pavement. Below are the inscriptions on the bells: Treble, "Praise the Lord. 1717." Second, "John Waylett Made Me. 1717"; Third (recast), "When I do call thee serve God all. 1887"; Fourth (recast), "God Save the Queen. 1887"; Tenor (recast), "All you that hear me ring, Praise the Lord your King. 1887." The tenor is in the key of G, and measures 39 ins. across the mouth. It weighs 10 cwt. 1 qr. 19 lbs. without clapper.

BATH AND KEYNSHAM DEANERY ASSOCIATION.

ON Monday afternoon, September 26th, the members of the above Association held their monthly meeting at Brislington, twenty-two of them journeying there by brake. On their arrival they at once proceeded to St. Luke's church, where a short service was held by the Rev. J. Lindsay, who placed the tower at their disposal, where they rang some good six-scores of Grandsire Doubles, after which they were invited to tea at the school-room, by the churchwarden, Dr. Charles H. Fox, the Rev. J. Lindsay presiding. After tea the members again went to the tower and rang some six-scores of Grandsire Doubles, Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob Doubles, and a touch of Grandsire Minor. Votes of thanks having been given to the rector and churchwardens, the party returned to Bath, having spent a very pleasant evening.

ST. OSYTH, ESSEX.

The Great Bentley band visited the above parish church at the invitation of the Vicar, the Rev. J. E. Potts, on Sunday, September 18th, being the Harvest Festival, to ring for the evening service, two six-scores of Grandsire Doubles, each called differently. A. Taylor, 1; J. King, 2; J. Taylor, 3; W. J. Nevard (conductor), 4; G. Hum, 5; A. Kidby, 6. Tenor 12 cwt. Before this they were kindly entertained to a capital tea, provided by the worthy vicar, and for which they return their best thanks. The bells are not in very good order for change-ringing, for they are so very false, but it is in hopes they will be rehung before long. The local band are only round ringers, but they hope to be change-ringers if they can only get this peal rehung.

In Memoriam.

JOHN MASON.

We regret to have to record the death of the above named gentleman, which took place at the residence of his daughter, 38, Cranworth Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, on Friday, September 23rd, in his 92nd year. From the year 1864 Mr. Mason had charge of the bells of Christ Church, Southport, until he met with an accident while ringing at a neighbouring church, and being disabled, was succeeded by Mr. Richard Hill. Mr. Mason was one of the oldest total abstinents in the country, and was at one time collector to the treasurer of the Southport Temperance Society. He was the first president of the Lancashire Association, and often used to talk of having rung for a whole day in the steeple of the Lancaster parish church, when but thirteen years of age, to celebrate the Jubilee of George the Third. The bells of Christ Church rang muffled peals to his memory.

The Rev. F. H. Gray, has placed his resignation of the rectory of the parish of Hockliffe, near Leighton Buzzard, in the hands of the Bishop of Ely. Mr. Gray was instituted to the benefice in 1869.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1887.

IN the page afforded to correspondents a letter will this week be found from Mr. WILLIAM IRELAND, of Diss, Norfolk, which is an appeal on behalf of a brother ringer who has unhappily met with reverses of fortune. In calmly reviewing what some people would call the ethics or philosophy of such an appeal as this, we have come to the conclusion that it is most appropriate. If there is any collective body under heaven which can consistently render help to its members when evil days overtake them assuredly it is the body of ringers. How often do we see the handicraftsman who has been unable to obtain employment seek the temporary assistance of his more fortunate brother, and in cases even where they are absolute strangers to each other? The connection and relationship between ringers is greater perhaps than with any other pursuit, and it would follow therefore that an unfortunate brother-string who had seen better days would readily enlist the sympathies of his more fortunate brethren of the Exercise when any appeal was made on his behalf. It cannot be said that ringers have not been ready to respond on occasions when they have been asked to contribute to various objects, and we doubt not that the appeal put before us will meet with a full measure of practical sympathy at their hands. Mr. RUDD, who has been overtaken by misfortune, has for many years been a most enthusiastic ringer; so great was his enthusiasm for the art that two of the "olive-branches" of his family bore the respective names of "BELL" and "RINGER." A hearty greeting was given to any one who took the trouble to look in upon him at any time, whether, like a true son of VULCAN, he was at the moment presiding over the interests of his forge, or was about to seek "a night's repose" after the labors of the day, and we speak from personal experience of the man. Now, however, the evening of his life has arrived, and it is for his ringing brethren to solace, in some measure, his downward journey by their seasonable and well-timed benevolence.

It is remarkable that among ringers the idea of some provision for mutual help in the time of adversity is not oftener made. Very many local ringing societies have some sort of constitution, which is kept together by small contributions, to which is added in some cases the fees earned by parochial and other ringing. The fund thus created, if not used to liquidate the expenses of the annual outing, is generally divided at Christmas among the members. If this fund could but once be made available as a nucleus for a kind of friendly society, to give relief in sickness or any other adversity, we have no hesitation in saying that it would be devoted to a very excellent purpose. There are societies in fact who have adopted such a plan, with happy results. Some months ago a printed balance-sheet was sent for our inspection of the society at Reigate, Surrey. This financial statement reflected great credit upon the company of ringers, and upon the administration of its finances in particular. After sick pay and loans to members were accounted for there remained a considerable balance to be carried forward to next year's account. This is a very satisfactory way of utilising the finances of any society. And there need be no fear of the usual bonus at Christmas if properly managed, and unless extraordinary calls are made upon the fund. But in this as in all other things, success can only be obtained by unity.

Attention is again directed to the regulations for the reception of reports, which will be found at the commencement of this page. Some of our friends appear to totally disregard the condition of publication that the name of the writer must always accompany the correspondence.

Church News.

At the St. Albans ordination on Thursday, the preacher was Canon Sharpe, and the gospeller Mr. Thompson.

The following Diocesan Conferences have been fixed:—October 12th and 13th, Chichester; Gloucester and Bristol, Lincoln, Llandaff, St. Albans; October 20th and 21st, Peterborough; October 25th and 26th, Gloucester; October 26th and 27th, Exeter, Hereford; November 30th, Liverpool.

As a result of inquiries held by a Commission appointed some time ago by the Archbishop of Canterbury, a scheme has been adopted for the amalgamation of three of the ecclesiastical parishes of the cathedral city, so as to do away with two of the existing churches. It is understood that his Grace has purposely cleared the ground for the arrangement by removing the present rector of St. Margaret's, Canterbury, to the rectory of Halstead, Kent.

The living of St. Michael's, Cornhill, has fallen vacant by the death, in his sixty-second year, of the Rev. William Hunt, who had been rector of the parish since 1875, and who formerly (1855-75) held the office of master and chaplain of Bancroft's Hospital. Before that he was Professor and Tutor in Queen's College, Birmingham, and afterwards (1858-75) Lecturer at St. Michael's. He took his degree at Corpus, Cambridge, in 1846, and was ordained in 1848.

On Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. West Wayet, vicar of Pinchbeck, near Spalding, and Prebendary of Lincoln, died after a short illness, having held the living (of which he was himself the patron) since 1834. He had graduated from Queen's, at Oxford, 1831, and been ordained in 1833. He was one of the first clergyman to commence the work of church restoration in Lincolnshire, and he devoted a large amount of money to the work out of his private income.

On Michaelmas Eve, the organ at St. Andrew's, Hoxton, which has undergone thorough repair and has been considerably enlarged by Mr. F. A. Slater, of Bow, was re-opened by Dr. Bridge, of Westminster, who most kindly came at considerable inconvenience, and who at the conclusion of the service gave a recital. The choir of St. Andrew's was augmented for the occasion, many members of the St. Leonard's choir, Shoreditch, giving their help. The vicar of Shoreditch preached the sermon.

An arrangement has been made by which the Rev. Charles J. Robinson, vice chairman of the Clergy Pensions Institution, will resign the living of West Hackney, in favour of the Rev. H. Bickersteth Ottley, vicar of Horsham, and brother of the incumbent of Quebec Chapel. Mr. Robinson has held the rectory of West Hackney more than ten years, during which period its population has largely increased, and much has been done to meet the requirements of the parish. The entire consent of the patrons—the Archbishop of Canterbury, and Mr. Tyssen-Amherst, M.P.—has been given to an exchange between the incumbents.

The Rev. G. Herbert Wooley, curate-in-charge, writes from St. Peter's vicarage, Bethnal Green:—"On the morning of the 21st ult. I was aroused by the unpleasant news that the house had been broken into during the night. On examination I found that the thief had cut through the kitchen shutters and had carried off not only nearly all my plate (very little of which was silver), but also a coat and my cashbox, the latter containing my letters of orders, licence of this curacy, and many private papers and letters which I value highly, but which are no use to any one else except for begging or impersonation. In view of this possibility, I ask you to allow me to warn my brethren and the public against being imposed upon by documents bearing my name."

The church of St. Michael, Garton-in-Holderness, East Yorkshire, was re-opened on the 22nd ult., by Archdeacon Blunt, after considerable repairs. The work has consisted of the repairing and cleaning of the whole of the interior masonry, a new fifteenth century window in the east end, filled with stained glass, to the memory of the late Colonel Marmaduke Grimston, and on the north side of the nave and chancel, other corresponding windows. The nave has been seated with open benches of pitch pine, and stalls and prayer desk of oak are placed in the chancel. The pulpit erected by his children to the memory of the Rev. H. Ward, a former vicar, is executed in various shades of Ancaster stone. The sacrarium floor is paved with encaustic tiles, and the nave and chancel with plain red tiles. The ancient rood screen has been carefully cleaned and replaced. A screen has also been erected between the south aisle and the vestry. The work, which has cost about £750, has been executed from the designs of Messrs. Smith and Broderick, of Hull.

On Wednesday a farewell service of unusual interest was held in the chapel within the house of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. The missionaries who were on the eve of their departure to their several fields of labour were the Rev. Arthur Westcott, lately tutor of St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, and recently appointed Principal of the society's theological college at Madras; the Rev. H. J. Foss, who returns to his work at Kobe, Japan; Miss Thornton and Miss Hicks, who have offered their services in the Associated Mission, formed by Bishop Bickersteth; Mr. Henham, of St. Augustine's, who goes to Bombay; and the Rev. F. J. Williams, who sailed the same day for North China. There were also present the Rev. C. Mitchell from Bloemfontein, the Rev. G. Ledgard from Bombay, and the Rev. J. L. Wyatt from Madras. Canon Westcott gave a devotional address of much beauty on "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the strength and support of all work for God, the love of God the motive, and the communion of the Holy Ghost the end." Forty persons received the Holy Communion, and with some quiet leave-takings in the society's house after the service the gathering dispersed.

On Friday the Church of England Soldiers' Institute at Aldershot celebrated its fifth anniversary. The Bishop of Winchester, who again presided at the luncheon, expressed his thankfulness at the continued success of the institute, and proposed the usual toast "Church and Queen." The Chaplain-General, Dr. Edgehill, said the ordinary duties of the chaplains needed to be supplemented. Something like this institute was wanted at every large station to fill up the lives of the men. It was useless to preach to men of strong passions, needing some pleasure and interest in life, a gospel of eternal negation. What they needed was to have their lives filled so full of good as to leave no room for evil. The last report of the Secretary of War on the condition of the army showed that the proportion of men belonging to the Church of England had never been so strong as at the present time, when it is 67, as against 58 per cent. ten years ago. Some place was needed offering the opportunity for personal intercourse, where you could get a man alone, and deal with him individually according to his own need. Only thus would it be possible to gain a real influence over him.

The Stratford-on-Avon Town Council on Tuesday adopted, with only two dissentients, estimates showing a reduction in the stipend paid to the vicar of £260 per annum to £210, the reduction to take effect immediately. King Edward VI.'s charter stipulates that the council shall pay the vicar £20, but owing to increased rentals the corporation have from time to time increased the amount. The rents, however, having lately fallen, the corporation contend that they are at liberty to reduce the amount. Some members are of opinion that they are only legally bound to pay the £20 mentioned in the charter.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

RINGERS' OUTINGS.

SIR,—It appears that bands of ringers who try to pass a pleasant day in visiting the towers of their neighbours are occasionally treated with less civility than they deserve. A rope is missing, or a stone flies through the window, or the gas goes out. Such things cannot be excused, but may they not be prevented by a little tact? It is not wise to reckon without your host. For instance, we write to the Vicar of X—, and ask if we may ring there next Saturday afternoon. He gives permission, and tells some functionary that we are coming. Meanwhile the ringers of X—, who are not consulted in the matter and think themselves slighted, eye us askance, and begin to imagine evil against us. If any unpleasantness follows it is scarcely to be wondered at. Would it not be better for us to request the ringers at X— to obtain permission from their Vicar, instead of addressing him over their heads. In that case no susceptibilities could be wounded.

Whitstone, Devon.

C. PEARSON.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—Will you kindly make a note for your next issue that the peal of Grandsire Triples (Holt's ten-part) rung at St. Stephen's, Westminster, should have been headed "The St. Stephen's, Westminster, Society," and "the Ancient Society of College Youths." Also that the name for No. 6 should be H. S. Ellis. T. R. BELL.

AN APPEAL.

SIR,—I shall be glad if you will allow me through the medium of your paper, to bring to the notice of all brother-strings the case of Mr. James Rudd, of Diss, a once noted Norfolk ringer, who I regret to say is now got into low circumstances. He has not been able to do scarce anything for the last five or six years, owing to ill-health, has recently lost his father, mother, and wife, all in six weeks, has been compelled to sell up his home, and now got into lodgings, and all he has coming now is three shillings out of a club. He has been the means of raising many a company of ringers, and has assisted in ringing over thirty peals, including three of 10,000, and now he does his best to learn any one on handbells. Should his case excite the sympathy of any ringers who know or who have read of him, and they make up their minds to help him through the winter by sending him a small sum it will be gratefully acknowledged in "THE BELL NEWS." Mr. Rudd's address is Parkfields Road, Diss.

On Wednesday afternoon, the Bishop-designate of Bathurst was presented with a large and beautiful photograph of the Thirsk National Schools, in oak frame, with the following inscription:—"Presented to the Rev. Canon Camidge, D.D., Prebendary of York, Proctor of Convocation, Rural Dean and vicar, on the occasion of his appointment to the Bishopric of Bathurst, by the teachers and scholars of the Thirsk National Schools." In acknowledging the gift, Dr. Camidge said it would always be a most pleasing reminiscence of his nearly eleven years' residence in Thirsk. In his thoughts they would often be present with him, and he hoped they would remember him in their prayers, for he was not going forth to be idle, he was not going forth to lie on a bed of roses, but because he thought there had been a distinct call given him, and he hoped by God's blessing to do some good in that great and distant colony.

THE COLLEGE BELLS OF OXFORD. CHRISTCHURCH.

I propose in these papers to give an account of the bells of the four college towers at Oxford, with particulars of the peals rung and attempted thereon in the last century. I shall begin with Christchurch Cathedral.

The peal at Christchurch originally consisted of six bells, which are said to have been brought from Oseney. These six bells were named respectively "Douce," "Clement," "Haustin," "Heckstetter," "Gabriel," and "John." They formerly hung in the central tower of the Cathedral, and from the inscriptions which I give below, they appear to have been augmented to ten in 1698.

Treble.—"Abra: Rudhall, Glouc: Bell-founder, 1698."

Second.—"God prosper the Church of England, A (a bell) R. 1698."

Third.—"A (a bell) R. 1747."

Fourth.—"Prosperity to all our benefactors. A.R. (a bell)."

Fifth.—"The Grace of our Lord. 1640."

Sixth.—"This bell was made 1611. W + Y."

Seventh.—"In multis annis resonet campana Johannis" (A shield charged with a chevron between three trefoils).

Eighth.—"Stella Matris Maris Succurre piissima nobis." (Two shields charged, one with a chevron between three lave-pots, and the other like the seventh).

Ninth.—"Prosperity to this College. A.R., 1740."

Tenor.—"Trinitate Sacra fiat haec campana beata W.I. M.H. (a rose and crown between two griffins). A.D. 1589."

In 1710, Dr. Aldrich, Dean of Christchurch, wrote his well-known catch, commencing—

"Hark! the bonny Christchurch bells,
One, two, three, four, five, six, etc."

Some years ago these bells were removed from the Cathedral tower to their present position in their wooden cage near the Hall. The tenor of the peal is estimated to weigh 42 cwt.

I shall now give some extracts from Hearne's diary, which will give some idea of the ringing in Oxford in 1733.

"Thursday, May 24th, 1733.—On Whit Sunday last (May 13th), came to Oxford on foot, fifteen ringers from London, and the day before came on horseback, one Mr. Skelton, about fourteen or fifteen years ago a Commoner of Queen's College, Oxford, and an excellent ringer, and at this time Register to the Bishop of London (Gibson), and a proctor in the Arches. The next day being Monday, May 14th, the Oxford ringers gave them a short peal at Magdalen College, as they did in the evening a short one at Christ Church, the Londoners laying still that day, that they might refresh themselves after the fatigue of their journey. . . . On Wednesday, May 16th, they (the Londoners) began to ring at Christ Church in the morning, a quarter or more before twelve, and they rang till two, most incomparably well, when the gudgeons being bad, the biggest bell (that is the tenth), fell down, but not through the loft, otherwise they proposed to have rang 5040 changes. . . . On Tuesday, May 22nd, the great bell at Christ Church was got up again, and in the evening the Oxford men rang all ten, and endeavoured to imitate the Londoners, but they were soon out, and made poor of it in comparison of the others."

"1734.—Jan. 2.—Wednesday, 4th, Christ Church bells being now in very good order, yesterday some select Oxford ringers rung them all for a wager. They were every man of them townsmen, but had received some considerable instructions from Mr. Stone, M.A., a man in orders, and a good ringer himself, Fellow of Wadham College. The wager was that they could not ring the 5040 changes, quater or cater changes, upon them. They were to have six tryals, and if upon the sixth trial they did not do it, they were to loose. Yesterday they began (being the first trial), just at twelve o'clock, and finished the whole twenty-seven minutes after three o'clock. This is the first time that this number of changes was ever rung in Oxford, the biggest bell at Christ Church falling down, and the ropes breaking at New College when the Londoners rang at both places lately, otherwise the said Londoners, who rang at each place above two hours, and never made the least fault, would have done it with the greatest ease imaginable. The Oxford ringers yesterday made many mistakes, so that 'twas expected they must have given over several times. I did not hear them till they had been at it about three-quarters of an hour, but afterwards I heard them quite out till they had done, and I observed fifty-two faults in the ringing, nine of which were very considerable ones. However, take it altogether, 'twas excellent ringing, and they may glory of it. The most considerable fault was occasioned by Dr. Gregory, Regius Professor of Modern History and Student of Christ Church, who yesterday broke in upon the ringers, to their great disturbance. The names of the ringers were:—

- 1.—Mr. Richard Hearne, a Taylor.
- 2.—Mr. John Vicars, Second Butler of New College.
- 3.—Mr. John George, a Taylor.
- 4.—Mr. Guy Terry, a Pot-ash maker in St. Clement's.
- 5.—Mr. Thomas Yates, Second Cook of Magdalen College.
- 6.—Mr. John Broughton, a Barber of St. Peter-in-the-East.
- 7.—Mr. Richard Smith, a Glover in St. Peter-in-the-East.
- 8.—Mr. William Barnes, Second Cook of Christchurch.
- 9.—Mr. Arthur Lloyd, of Holywell, Carpenter and Bell Hanger.
- 10.—Mr. Nicholas Benwell, Sexton of Christchurch."

"1734, Monday, Dec. 2.—On the 5th of November last some Oxford ringers were resolved to shew their zeal for the Government by ringing Cator changes as well as possibly they could upon Christchurch ten bells. They were some of the best ringers, and because they think they merited much by their performance, I shall here specify the names of everyone of them, at the same time noting that three excellent ringers, Mr. John George, a Taylor, Mr. Thomas Yates, the second Cook of Magdalen College, and Mr. John Broughton, the Barber, acted much more for their honour and credit, who declined ringing amongst them that day, by which these three avoided the censure of being poor mercenary ringers (for the others rang for money) and of giving credit to a downright false notion, that the Prince of Orange landed upon the 5th, whereas it was upon the 4th of November, to say nothing of the Powder Plot, which many wise men give out was a meer sham. I happened that day between three and four o'clock in the afternoon, to go through the White Walk, while the bells were ringing, and I heard several in the walk say 'twas exceeding good ringing'. Coming to the Cloysters I stood still to listen (which I should not have done on such a day as that were it not to see whether the character of its being exceeding good ringing were just or not), and in sixteen minutes I discovered eighteen considerable faults, the last six so very considerable that I found they would soon be confounded, as indeed they were, and so gave over, being not able to make clean work; and yet notwithstanding this, they boast that 'twas extraordinary good ringing, and that they rang two thousand. I cannot say anything to the number of changes nor for the goodness of the ringing before the last quarter of an hour, and how bad that was I have fairly signified, and yet 'twas good enough for the day. I should likewise here remark, that the reward of these mercenary ringers was only 15s. 6d. a man, and that one of the ringers was a learner or beginner (as it were) only, viz.: Mr. Crozier, a Cork Cutter, and yet so skilful, that he may deservedly be reckoned among the best Oxford ringers. The names (what I propose to give) of all these ten ringers were in order, just as they rang, as follow:—

- 1.—Mr. Richard Hearne, a Taylor.
- 2.—Mr. John Vickers, second Butler of New College.
- 3.—Mr. William Crozier, a Cork Cutter.
- 4.—Mr. Guy Terry, a Pot ash Maker.
- 5.—Mr. Brickland, a Schoolmaster.
- 6.—Mr. Thomas Nash, a Cabinet Maker.
- 7.—Mr. Arthur Lloyd, Carpenter and Bell Hanger.
- 8.—Mr. William Barnes, second Cook of Christ Church.
- 9.—Mr. Richard Smith, a Glover.
- 10.—Mr. Nicholas Benwell, Sexton of Christ Church."

So much for Mr. Hearne's notes on the ringing at Christchurch. I shall now finish this account by giving records of two more recent performances.

"Sept. 22nd, 1820, Rung in this tower a complete peal of Grandsire Cators, containing 5303 changes, in 3 hours and 32 minutes, by the Society of Oxford Youths. William Godfrey, Treble; Henry Taylor, Second; George Pavier, junr., Third; Henry Carr, Fourth; Richard Cater, Fifth; Joseph Taylor, Sixth; Thomas Godfrey, Seventh; William Parker, Eighth; Arthur Tyror, Ninth; Thomas Hanks, Tenor. Tenor 24 cwt.

(sic for 42) In this peal the 2nd was never behind the ninth. Composed and conducted by W. Parker."

"Jany. 19th, 1828, Rung in this tower a complete peal of Grandsire Caters, consisting of 5165 changes; with only the fifth and sixth behind the ninth, in 3 hours and 36 minutes, by the Society of Oxford Union Scholars. George Harris, Treble: Edward Nickolls, Second; Jonathan Pavier, Third; Henry Nunney, Fourth; Edward Whitebread, Fifth; Robert Young, Sixth; William Parker, Seventh; Thomas Hanks, Eighth; Arthur Tyror, Ninth; Henry Pill and George Nunney, Tenor. Tenor 42 cwt. Composed and conducted by W. Parker."

Before concluding this account of Christchurch bells, I must just say a word about "Great Tom," which hangs over the College gateway.

This monster bell weighs 7 ton 11 cwt. It is 85 and a quarter inches in diameter, 81 inches in height (extreme to top of cannons), and 6 and one eighth thick at the sound bow. The inscription is in plain Roman Capitals, "Magnus. Thomas. Clusius. Oxoniensis. renatus. Aprilis. VIII. Anno. MDCLXXX. Regnante. Caroli. ii. Decano. Iohanne. Oxon. Episcopo. Subdecano. Gul. Iane. SS. Th. P. Cura. et. arte. Christ; Hodison. Thesaurario. Hen. Smith. SS. Th. P." J. R. J.

FROME, SOMERSETSHIRE.

The Harvest Festival at the parish church of St. John-the-Baptist, Frome, was held on Sunday, October 2nd, when all the services were attended by crowded congregations, especially at evensong, the aisles being packed by people standing, sitting accommodation being out of the question. The decorations were very beautiful indeed, and included a number of hot house plants and flowers and choice fruit, kindly sent for the occasion by the Marchioness of Bath, from the Longleat gardens. At the high celebration at 8 a.m. the service was Schubert in F, a magnificent service, which was well rendered by the choir. At matins the sermon was preached by the Vicar of St. Barnabas, Pimlico, London, and in the evening by the Vicar of Knowle, Bristol. At the conclusion of the latter service there was a procession, the hymn sung being "Onward, Christian Soldiers," which was well taken up by the immense congregation. After this the choir and clergy returned to the chancel and grouped around the altar, and a solemn "Te Deum" was sung as a special thanksgiving for the in-gathering of the harvest. The offertories during the day were divided between the local Home for trained nurses, and the Convalescent Home at Clevedon. The ringers connected with the church assembled about an hour previous to Divine Service in the evening and indulged in their old favourite, "Churchyard Surprise." It might be well to add that this grotesque "art" is threatened soon to be eclipsed by change-ringing. A few new members have been admitted into the Society, and will join with those who have for their object to make progress, and establish a society of ringers for this grand old church, which hitherto it has never had the good fortune to possess. We are also pleased to hear that Mr. Blackburn, of Salisbury, has by the request of the churchwardens of the parish presented a report on the necessary repairs required to be done to put the bells in thorough going order.

LOWICK, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.

The Lowick ringers accompanied by three of the Woodford ringers, all members of the Higham Ferrers second Deanery Association, had their annual outing on Saturday, October 1st, when they paid a visit to Geddington, and although the bells were not in very good ringing condition, as some of them strike very false, they succeeded in ringing several 6-scores of Bob Doubles and Grandsire Doubles. From Geddington they proceeded to Weekly, where they were received by the Rector and some of the ringers. Here they rang some 6-scores of Antelope, St. Simon's Doubles, and Canterbury Pleasure. After partaking of tea at the rectory, they proceeded to Burton Latimer, where they were joined by W. Meadows, another of the Woodford ringers. Here they rang some touches of Stedman's Slow Course, Canterbury Pleasure, St. Simon's and Grandsire Doubles. When they had finished ringing, they found refreshments kindly provided by the Rector, after which they thought it was time to think of returning home, the Lowick ringers calling and having a touch at Thrapston. The ringers wish through this medium to thank the clergymen of the places where they visited, for allowing them the use of the bells. And on Sunday morning, for Divine Service, some 6-scores of Stedman's Slow Course, St. Simon's Doubles, and Canterbury Pleasure were rung.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of this Association was held at Bradford on Saturday, October 8th, when notwithstanding the very inclement weather, a large number of members and friends attended from Birstall, Bolton, Calverley, Drighlington, Earlsheaton, Huddersfield, Hull, Keighley, Kirkburton, Leeds, Low Moor, Ossett, Ripon, Sheffield, Rothwell, Shipley, Tong, Wakefield, York, and other places. The ring of ten at the parish church, and the rings of eight at St. John's and St. James's were by the kind permission of the respective vicars at the disposal of the members during the afternoon, which was taken advantage of by the visitors.

At six o'clock, the annual business meeting was held in the parish church schoolroom, which had been kindly lent by the Rev. Canon Bardsley, D.D., Vicar. Mr. W. Snowdon, President, occupied the chair, and commenced the business of the evening by reading the minutes of previous meetings, which were passed and signed. The "Officers' Roll" was then called, when, with two unavoidable exceptions, all the officers and committee answered to their names.

THE PRESIDENT next read the annual report, which stated that—

The Committee again find themselves in a position to congratulate the members on the past year's proceedings. Three successful and enjoyable meetings have been held, and everywhere has a hearty welcome, with abundant hospitality, been held out to the Association. Further than this, of the last six meetings, extending back over two years, we have been welcomed at each place by the respective rector or vicar, and of these six clergymen, five were at the time, or have since become, honorary members of the Association. All this goes to prove that the Association gains ground outside the Exercise itself, so that it only remains for each individual member to help forward this good result by every means that lies in his power, that in the end change-ringing, "considered both in its scientific aspect, and as a branch of church work," may attract the attention it deserves.

The meeting at Birstall is noteworthy as having—following the good example of Sheffield—seen the commencement of an annual church parade, according to a resolution passed by the committee, at which it is proposed to get a member of the Exercise to preach before the Association. The Ilkley meeting must have been specially gratifying to every member of our Association, as witnessing the unveiling of the memorial window to our late President, subscribed for by the nation's change-ringers. As on that occasion an excellent sermon was given to us by the Rev. Canon Wigram, the committee have not felt themselves bound to arrange another service this year, but it is trusted that when they again do so, it will be as well, or even better, attended than the three successful ones already held. Whilst on this subject, we would wish to express our high appreciation of the work and talents of the late Rev. J. H. Fish, Vicar of St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, who was the first change-ringing clergyman and member of our Association to preach before us.

With regard to the Jasper Snowdon memorial window, the Committee are proud to have had the honour of acting for the whole Exercise as the Executive Committee in this matter, and they are pleased to be able to report that all that now remains to be done is to expend a small surplus in a fitting manner, and to issue a balance-sheet to the subscribers. On this balance-sheet they propose to give an engraving of the window, feeling sure that those living at a distance from Ilkley will be interested therein, whether they are afterwards able to journey there or not.

The total numbers brought forward from last year were 525—that is, nineteen honorary, 464 ringing, and forty-two non-resident members. During the year four honorary and forty-four ringing members have been elected; but as nineteen of the former year's members have not renewed their subscriptions, the net increase amounts to twenty-nine members.

Five members have been transferred to the non-resident list; one honorary and eight ringing members have died, leaving as the numbers to be carried to the now opening year twenty-two honorary, 476 ringing, and forty-seven non-resident members, which make a total of 545 members on the Association's books.

During the year—Her Majesty's Jubilee—fifty-three peals have been rung at twenty-seven different churches. Amongst these may be mentioned a 5056 of Albion Major, rung at St. Chad's, Saddleworth, and a 5184 of Rose of England Treble Bob Major, rung at St. Wilfrid's, Calverley. These peals, rung by the local branches, take their place on the list as being the first in the methods rung by the Association.

First peals by members have been rung on the eight bells of the Cathedral, Ripon; St. James's, Grimsby; St. Mary's, Campsall; and St. Lawrence's, Rawmarsh; and on the six of All Saints', Woodlesford. The peals rung during the year are thus made up: Two peals of Kent Treble Bob Royal, one peal of Stedman Caters, two peals of Grandsire Caters, twenty-six peals of Kent Treble Bob Major, Five peals of Bob Major, one peal of Albion Major, one peal of Rose of England; two peals of Stedman Triples, one peal of Bob Triples, four peals of Grandsire Triples, four peals in seven methods on six bells, and one peal in fourteen methods on six bells. This year's end, the twelfth of the Society's existence, shows a total of 136 members who have paid ten yearly subscriptions, or an equivalent thereto, and have thus become life members.

MR. W. ABBISHAW (Birstall), proposed the adoption of the report, which motion was seconded by Mr. JAMES ANGUS (Bradford), and carried unanimously.

The annual balance-sheet was then read, which showed that on capital account the Association held £100 in Leeds Corporation Stock, and £64 11s. 2d. in the Leeds Provincial Building Society. The yearly account shewed that the receipts were (including cash advanced by the Hon. Secretary, £14 17s. 5d.), £45 7s. 4d., and the disbursements (including £6 16s. 8½d. repaid the Hon. Treasurer), £24 17s. 8d., leaving a balance of £20 9s. 8d., which had been paid into the Building Society.

MR. W. ELLIOTT (Birstall) and Mr. H. RAISTRICK (Bradford), the auditors, moved and seconded the adoption of the balance-sheet, which was unanimously agreed to.

THE PRESIDENT then announced that as no new nominations had been handed in up to the time specified by rule, all the retiring officers were re-elected, and in doing so, expressed the pleasure he felt on being re-elected, and at the mark of confidence which the members had thus evidenced. With regard to himself and the whole of the re-elected officers, he felt that the fact of their being re-elected shewed that the members were fully satisfied with the manner in which they had conducted the business of the Association. The same remarks would apply with regard to headquarters, which would thus remain at Bradford for the next three years.

MR. C. H. HATTERSLEY (Sheffield) then proposed a vote of thanks to the Rev. Canon Bardsley, for the use of the schools during the afternoon.

MR. J. H. HARDCASTLE (Bradford) seconded, and the motion was carried unanimously.

MR. T. HATTERSLEY (Sheffield) proposed, and Mr. C. JACKSON (Hull) seconded, a vote of thanks to the Vicars and Churchwardens of the parish church, St. James', and St. John's, for the use of the bells, which was also carried in like manner.

A vote of thanks to the Officers, Committee, and Auditors, was on the motion of Messrs. STICKNEY and SOUTHWICK (Hull), carried with applause, and

MR. W. ELLIOTT, after responding, proposed a most cordial vote of thanks to the President, for so ably conducting the proceedings. This motion was seconded by Mr. B. T. COPLEY, supported by Messrs. W. H. HOWARD and C. JACKSON, and carried amid loud cheers.

THE PRESIDENT having briefly replied, declared the meeting closed.

The members then adjourned to the towers, and the meeting-house, where touches on the tower bells and handbells were indulged in, which, in spite of the inclement weather, concluded a very pleasant gathering.

PRESENTATION TO MR. GEORGE NEWSON.

ON August 21st, a very large meeting of ringers was held at St. Stephen's, Hampstead, to witness the presentation of a silver English lever watch with inscription to Mr. George Newson on his 43rd birthday, as a testimony of great esteem and high appreciation of his valuable services as a composer, ringer, and conductor. In presenting the watch, Mr. E. F. Cole in a neat speech dwelt on Mr. Newson's many excellent and sterling qualities, and spoke of the remarkable zeal and energy always displayed by him.

ALL SAINTS', LOUGHBOROUGH.

The peal of eight at this church has just been augmented to ten by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., bellfounders. The opening is fixed for Friday, the 28th instant. A report of the proceedings on such an interesting occasion will be furnished in a future number.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING held at Walthamstow on Saturday, October 8th, was well attended by members from various parts of the county. Ringing began at St. Mary's church in the morning, and during the day touches of Grandsire Triples, Treble Bob Major, and Stedman Triples, were rung either there or at St. Saviour's church, where there is a very handy ring of eight, somewhat lighter than those at the parish church. The business meeting was held at 4.15 p.m. at the Infant School-room in St. Mary's churchyard, the chair being taken, in the absence of the Vicar, by the Rev. W. V. Palmer, curate of St. Mary's. After the Hon. Secretary (the Rev. T. L. Papillon) had read the minutes of the Annual Meeting held at Chelmsford on Whit Monday, the following new members were elected: Mr. G. F. Attree, of Brighton, Hon. Secretary of the Sussex County Association; Rev. A. S. Dowling, of Holy Trinity, Barking Road; Messrs. J. Cavill, T. Cavill, G. Gray, T. Hammond, and T. Smith, at St. Saviour's, Walthamstow, September 13th; Mr. Joseph Field, of Oxford, at Writtle, September 17th; and Mr. T. Waller, at St. Albans, October 1st.

On the motion of the Hon. Secretary, seconded by Mr. Samuel Hayes, it was resolved nem. con., "That no peal of 5000 changes and upwards be attempted at any church placed at the disposal of the Association on the day of the Annual Meeting, between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. or on the day of any District Meeting after 11 a.m. The meeting closed with votes of thanks to the Chairman for presiding, to the Vicars of St. Mary's and St. Saviour's churches for the use of their bells, and to the Hon. Secretary for conducting the arrangements for the meeting.

At 5 p.m. forty-seven members sat down to a meat tea at the Coffee Tavern in St. Mary's road, close to Hoe Street railway station, after which those who were able to remain returned to the towers for another pull.

Among those present at the meeting were the Rev. A. S. Dowling, Messrs. A. Estall (Master of the Walthamstow St. Saviour's company), W. A. Alps, R. Sewell, S. Hayes, H. Randall, F. and Pittsow, W. Doran, F. G. Newman, H. F. and E. De Lisle (Galleywood), Dains (Widford), Hawkes (Springfield), Rowland and Parmenter (Chelmsford), H. A. Barnett, G. B. Lucas, (Tottenham), W. H. L. Buckingham, G. The Secretary will feel obliged if the gentlemen whose names are given above as newly-elected members will forward to him their subscription of 1s. for the current year, ending at Whittide 1888. Certificates of membership can be supplied at 6d. each, exclusive of the cost of postage.

The time and place of the next District Meeting, to be held at or about Christmas, is not yet fixed, and the secretary will be glad to receive communications from any part of the county outside the immediate neighbourhood of London, to which a visit from the Association would be welcome.

MELBOURNE, DERBYSHIRE

On Saturday last, October 8th, the St. Michael's Society, Melbourne, had their annual outing, the place selected being Ashby-de-la-Zouch. The route chosen was very picturesque and interesting to ringers generally. Staunton Hall, the seat of Earl Ferrers, together with the private church of his Lordship adjoining it, could be plainly seen from the road. The tower of this church contains what is considered to be one of the prettiest rings of eight in the Midland counties, though change-ringing is never practised on them, except when a visit is paid by the Ashby or some other band of ringers. Tenor about 21 cwt. The spire of Coleorton church could also be discerned situated in Coleorton park. This church has also a ring of eight, tenor 14 cwt. It was intended at first to visit this church as well as Ashby, but it was found on account of the lateness of the season that it would be impossible to visit two towers in one day without starting much earlier, which was not convenient for the majority of the band. Arriving at Ashby about 2.30 p.m., a move was made for the parish church, where permission had been previously obtained to use the fine ring of eight, lately rehung with new iron frames, etc., by Messrs. Taylor and Co. The bells having been raised, a short touch of Bob Triples to get the "feel" of the bells was rung before starting for a quarter-peal in the same method which was brought round in 42 mins. H. Hollingworth, 1; J. Vickers, 2; J. Warren, 3; G. C. Tunnicliffe, 4; G. A. Fish, 5; H. C. Woodward (conductor), 6; T. Hollingworth, 7; F. W. Cook, 8. This was followed by a 336 of Bob Major. H. Hollingworth, 1; J. Vickers, 2; F. W. Cook, 3; J. Warren, 4; G. A. Fish, 5; G. C. Tunnicliffe, 6; T. Hollingworth, 7; H. C. Woodward (conductor), 8. An adjournment was then made to the "Queen's Head Inn," where an excellent tea had been provided, to which ample justice was done, the ride and the ringing together having sharpened the appetites of all present. After tea the ringers returned to the church and rang during the evening short touches of Grandsire Minor and Bob Triples. Also a 536 of Grandsire Triples, the first touch in the method by all the Melbourne ringers who took part in it. H. Hollingworth, 1; H. Canner (Ashby), 2; G. A. Fish, 3; J. Warren, 4; H. C. Woodward (Derby), 5; J. Vickers, 6; W. Canner (Ashby), 7; F. W. Cook, 8. Towards 8 o'clock, the bells which are in fine condition, and go remarkably well, were lowered, and a move was again made to the "Queen's," where touches of Grandsire and Plain Bob Doubles, Minor, and Triples, along with some of the Ashby ringers, were indulged in till about 9 o'clock, when the return journey was commenced, Melbourne being reached about 10.45, all having thoroughly enjoyed their first ringing visit to Ashby. The society wish through the medium of this paper to thank the vicar for the use of the bells, and also the Ashby ringers for the welcome accorded them.

ST. MARTIN'S SOCIETY, BIRMINGHAM.—VISIT TO LONDON.

On Saturday, October 8th, six members of the above society availed themselves of the opportunity to visit the metropolis by the day trip, and after viewing several objects of interest, including among them the Queen's presents, proceeded to All Saints' Church, Fulham, where they were met by several members of the College Youths' Society, who had kindly offered to make the band complete for a College Youths peal of Stedman Caters. After the usual preliminaries, such as adjusting ropes, etc., a start was made, and all went well until the forty-third course, when a mishap occurred in the ringing which brought the peal to an abrupt termination, after ringing 2 hrs. 59 mins. G. Mash, 1; J. M. Hayes, 2; *T. Reynolds, 3; *A. J. Jones, 4; *H. Bastable (conductor), 5; *J. Buftery, 6; *W. W. Gifford, 7; *C. Stanbridge, 8; C. F. Winny, 9; *H. Johnson, jun., 10. The composition was a 5028 of Mr. Henry Johnson, sen., and had not been previously attempted. The Birmingham men take this opportunity of thanking the Rev. H. Fisher for his kindness in allowing them the use of the bells, also the steeple-keeper for the first-class order in which they found everything in connection with the same. They would like also to thank these gentlemen who went to the trouble to make their band complete, and should like to return the compliment to them individually or as a body, any time they feel disposed to visit Birmingham. ADDRESS WANTED.—Mr. E. CRUMP, of Bromsgrove.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1887.

IN this issue we publish an account of the Annual Meeting of the Yorkshire Association. We have no hesitation in saying that this annual event is looked forward to with interest, not only by its own members, but also by the Exercise at large; and it is therefore very pleasing on perusal of the report to find the Association in the "county of broad acres" able to give so good an account of itself. It is also very creditable to the officers that this Association has so rapidly recovered itself after the great blow it sustained in the loss of its late President. With a membership roll of twenty-two honorary and five hundred and twenty-three ringing members—all of which latter class must have "rung at least 720 or covered 1260 changes"—with £164 11s. 2d. safely banked, and with a total of 53 peals for the year, it will at once be seen that the Association is in a prosperous condition both scientifically and financially. This continued success of the Yorkshire Association will, we confidently anticipate, have its effect in another way, namely, by encouraging other county Associations and Guilds in their work. What is done in one place it is reasonable to suppose may be accomplished in another; and when we see how the Yorkshire Association has so well recovered itself after its recent unspeakable loss, it should be an incentive to those of our brethren who are struggling amid great difficulties to carry on the work of organization in their various counties and districts, to greater efforts for the good and welfare of the Exercise.

There is, however, in connection with this subject, one point to which we would particularly refer, and we do this with all due deference to our Yorkshire brethren. In looking over the list of peals rung during the past year by them, we find that out of the fifty-three no less than twenty-eight—or over one half—have been in the Kent Treble Bob method. Without for one moment disparaging the beauties of this method, which it is well known is the principal method rung in the great northern county, we venture to suggest to our friends in Yorkshire, would it not be creditable to them, and beneficial also from a scientific point of view, if they set to work and break this preponderance of Kent Treble Bob, by putting it aside to some extent, and mastering other methods? We all know what has been accomplished by the Midland Counties' Association in this respect, and what they have done we are confident can be at least equalled by the Exercise in the neighbouring county. Why should good musical methods be allowed to lie dormant and unrun merely for want of practice? Those men who have proved themselves such proficient in Kent Treble Bob will surely be quite as successful in other and more intricate methods if only they will set to work and master them. We trust our remarks on this point will be received in the same spirit in which they are made, knowing also that they are in strict conformity with the opinions of the late revered President of the Yorkshire Association, who desired almost above all other things to raise the Exercise both in its scientific and social aspects.

THE ST. PETER'S SOCIETY, CAVERSHAM.

ON Saturday, September 10th, through the kindness of many friends, the parish ringers had their annual outing. London was their destination—"Buffalo Bill" their chief attraction. Most of the members, accompanied by the Rev. G. F. Coleridge, paid a visit in the morning to the bell foundry of Messrs. Warner and Sons. Here they were most courteously received, and every object of interest pointed out, a large mass of the original metal of Big Ben, and the design submitted by the then Sir Edmund Beckett; the process of casting bells was carefully explained, and ocular proof given by the workmen. Invitations to ascend the towers of St. Giles, Cripplegate, and St. Sepulchre, Snow Hill, had to be declined owing to pangs of hunger; these being duly allayed by a good dinner on Ludgate Hill, a trip was taken from the Temple to Chelsea by steamer, the various towers containing bells, together with other buildings of interest being duly pointed out. The rest of the day was occupied at the Exhibition, "the Wild West," the Switchback Railway, etc., coming in for their due share of patronage. It was agreed by all that never had they spent a more enjoyable day. In spite of many drawbacks, practice in the tower has been well kept up; the total number of changes rung during the past twelve months being 62,667, including one date touch of 1887 changes, five peals of Kent Treble Bob, and two half-peals, two of Oxford Treble Bob, seven of Yorkshire Court, and three half-peals, nine of Canterbury Pleasure, and three half-peals, ten of Oxford Bob, and four half-peals, five of College Single, and two half-peals, eighteen of Bob Minor, and eight half-peals, with a 720 each of Violet Treble Bob, and Double Bob Minor, as well as thirty-seven 6-scores of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles. Two new methods have been mastered during the year, thus securing the coveted position of being the Premier six-bell company in the diocese. An excellent peal of 5040 changes was rung on the occasion of the laying of the Dedication stone of St. John the Baptist's Church; it consisted of seven different 720's, being one each of Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, College Single, Yorkshire Court, Oxford Bob, Canterbury Pleasure, and Plain Bob. The following were the ringers:—H. Smith, 1; Rev. G. F. Coleridge, 2; E. Menday, 3; G. Essex, 4; J. Hands, 5; T. Newman, 6. The peal, which was ably conducted by Mr. T. Newman, was brought round true and complete, without a hitch of any sort, in the good time of 2 hrs. 54 mins.

THE ST. THOMAS'S SOCIETY, STOURBRIDGE:

On Saturday evening, October 8th, the members of the above Society held a supper at the "Crispin Inn," Church Street, Stourbridge, in honour of having completed a peal of 5040, which peal was duly published in this paper. Members were invited from Bromsgrove, Darlaston, Kingswinford, and the adjoining districts, but from some unaccountable cause they did not all put in an appearance. Before dinner the members ascended the tower of St. Thomas', and rang the following: A 480 of Bob Triples. H. Harris, 1; E. Crump, 2; T. Lees, 3; G. Hayward, 4; W. Lawrance, 5; *C. Barrett, 6; G. H. Pagett (conductor), 7; W. A. Pugh, 8. *Longest touch. Also 840 of Grandsire Triples. W. A. Pugh, 1; G. Hayward, 2; T. Lees, 3; W. Lawrance, 4; W. Johnson (conductor), 5; H. Harris, 6; G. H. Pagett, 7; J. Crump, 8. And a 480 in the same method, standing as above, G. Hayward (conductor). After falling the bells the ringers adjourned to the "Crispin Inn," where a substantial repast was partaken of. After the inner man had been attended to, and grace said, the cloth was removed and Mr. E. Crump, of Bromsgrove, treasurer of the Worcester and adjoining Districts Association, was elected to the chair, and Mr. C. Barrett, vice-chairman. The loyal toasts of course were the first on the list, and these were highly honoured.

Mr. G. H. PAGETT (Stourbridge Society), in giving these toasts said he thought ringers could show their loyalty more so than the ordinary citizen, because they could show theirs in a practical manner; and in this year of jubilee he thought they should not let it pass without some evidence of their loyalty.

The "Church and Clergy of all denominations" followed, and was duly appreciated.

Mr. GUEST (Brierley Hill), responded, and said he was sure the clergy were always very gentlemanly and courteous, and spoke of the interest they were beginning to take in bellringing.

Mr. C. BARRATT gave "The Churchwardens."

Mr. G. H. PAGETT, in seconding, said the churchwardens were gentlemen who were highly respected, and they took great interest in bell-ringing. They had had the gas brought into the belfry, and other comforts had been attended to through their instrumentality; and he was sure they were willing to do anything for the ringers that lay in their power.

The toast of the "Host and Hostess" was next given, and mention was made of the satisfaction they had given in the manner they catered. The toast was drank with musical honours. During the evening several well-known ringers spoke on the art of ringing.

Mr. JOHNSON (Darlaston), said he thought some time ago that change-ringing was forgotten in Stourbridge, but it pleased him to see that a band had now got together for the purpose of practising the art. It was nearly thirty years ago since he used to walk to Stourbridge to be enlightened in the art of change-ringing; and it gave him great pleasure to see the progress that was again being made. He hoped they would go on, and anything he could do for them he was quite willing to do.

Mr. GUEST, in the course of a few remarks, said the town of Stourbridge, years ago, used to be A1 in the county for change-ringing, and he hoped this band would continue to progress and get back its former name. They had begun very well, and it was to their credit that they had accomplished the peal at Hagley in so short a time from their starting.

Mr. E. CRUMP (Bromsgrove), gave "The St. Thomas's Society." In doing so he said he was extremely proud of the manner they had progressed in twelve months. When he first came over to them they could only ring twenty-four changes, and now they had successfully completed a 5040. He hoped they would continue to go on and be a credit to the town, as years ago it was noted for its change-ringing.

Mr. G. HAYWARD (Bromsgrove), also spoke of the rapid strides the St. Thomas's Society had made in the art, and said the peal rung at Hagley reflected the greatest credit upon them. Any little help he could render them was at their disposal. "THE BELL NEWS" and local press were next proposed and heartily accepted. They were greatly indebted to the papers for publishing their doings, which was a great stimulus to them.

Mr. W. LAWRENCE said it was on January 12th, 1869, that a peal of 5040 was rung at St. Thomas's, and he hoped it would not be so long again before another was rung. This remark of course brightened up old memories, and it was found that there were present at that meeting three who rung in the peal, viz.: Messrs. W. Lawrance, J. Guest, and T. Pugh. The order and standing in the peal was as follows: Charles Baggott, 1; John Guest, 2; William Cook, 3; William Whitehouse, 4; William Lawrance, 5; William Pugh, 6; Thomas Pugh, 7; William Eyre, 8. Some merriment was occasioned on the names being mentioned, from the fact that there were five Williams engaged in the peal. A considerable amount of fun was caused by an announcement from one that he had heard a 6-score whistled by one and called by another, at Dudley, some years ago. Both were well-known and scientific ringers, and it would be interesting if some person could say if it was a fact.

During the evening songs and recitations were given by Messrs. Pagett, Lawrance, E. Crump, Hayward, Barratt, and W. Pugh. The handbells were brought out, and some courses in various methods were skilfully executed. Tunes were also played by the members of St. Thomas's Society. A treat was given to the company by Mr. Johnson and Mr. Walter Pugh, who, by the way, is rather an experienced handbell player, by the playing of "The Blue Bells of Scotland," Mr. Johnson playing the variations. It is all the more creditable when it is made known that this is the first time the two above-mentioned gentlemen have played together; in fact Mr. Johnson thought it was a joke till the bells were being handled. The striking of 11 o'clock ("turning out") warned the company it was time to depart, so "God save the Queen" was sung, and thus ended a very pleasant evening. Mr. G. H. Pagett officiated as accompanist.

On Sunday morning, the visitors having been accommodated by their brother ringers, they journeyed to St. James's, Wollaston, where they rung a 720 of Kent Treble Bob, in 25 mins. H. Harris, 1; E. Crump, 2; W. Johnson, 3; W. Lawrance, 4; G. Hayward (conductor), 5; H. Deakin, 6. Messrs. E. Crump and G. Hayward hail from Bromsgrove; W. Johnson from Darlaston; W. Lawrance from Wordsley; H. Harris from St. Thomas's, Stourbridge; and H. Deakin from Wollaston. Before closing this account a word of praise is due to Mr. W. Lawrance and J. Guest for the manner in which they have brought on this young band of ringers; and during the evening (Saturday) they expressed their willingness still further to help them.

VISITORS AT ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE, LANCASHIRE.

On Sunday evening, September 25th, Mr. W. Newell, of Reading, accompanied by E. Bishop, of Bury (late of Reading), Wreaks, Turner, and Heald, of Manchester, assisted by the local company, rang at St. Peter's church, for service, 672 changes of Bob Major, conducted by John Hopwood, and 168 Grandsire Triples, conducted by Samuel Wood. The ringers stood as follows in both touches: T. Heald, 1; J. Hopwood, 2; G. E. Turner, 3; A. E. Wreaks, 4; E. Bishop, 5; J. Mellor, 6; W. Newell, 7; S. Wood, 8.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Durham on Monday, October 31st. Service in St. Oswald's Church at 2 o'clock. Dinner at the "Three Tuns" at 3 o'clock, followed by the Annual Meeting. G. J. CLARKSON, Hon. Sec.

RETURN OF THE VEN. ARCHDEACON CLARKE.—The Venerable Archdeacon Clarke, who was very ill for so long a period and who has for the past nineteen weeks been sojourning at Cheltenham, Buxton, and Harrogate, for recuperative purposes, returned to Southport from the last-named health resort the other day. The train he travelled by arrived at the Chapel-street station at eight minutes past six, and at that time a large number of the Christ Church congregation had assembled on the platform to welcome their popular vicar home again. On the arrival of the venerable gentleman, who by-the-by seemed to have been considerably benefited by the change, the bells of Christ Church rang a joyous peal.

Several of the leading men of the Gladstonian party met at Mr. Gladstone's home at Hawarden on Monday. Among those present were Lords Rosebery, Spencer, and Wolverton, Mr. John Morley, and Professor Stuart.

Church News.

The Rev. William Handcock, vicar of St. Matthew's, West Kensington-park, who has been suffering from ill-health, has resigned the living.

The rectory of Kelly, Devon, has lately become vacant by the resignation from ill-health of the Rev. I. P. Prescott, who was instituted in 1882.

Mr. Walter Besant, who is a native of Portsmouth, has undertaken to collect funds from literary men and others for a Charles Dickens memorial window in the parish church at Portsea.

Last week the council of the Church of England Burial Reform Association resolved at a meeting at Wolverhampton to present a petition to Convocation, requesting it to take into consideration the provision of a more suitable service for the burial of a child.

A stained glass east window has been placed in Mariansleigh church, Devonshire. It represents the baptism of our Lord, and His blessing little children, and is the work of Messrs. Moor and Co., of Southampton-row.

The Harvest Thanksgiving at St. Paul's was held on Monday night, and was attended by a very large congregation. The sermon was preached by Archdeacon Barber, of Chester. The music was eminently congregational, and was sung with great heartiness.

The Rev. Henry Codrington, late Fellow of Wadham, was last week inducted by the Bishop of Chichester to the college living of Wadhurst, Sussex. Dr. Codrington is well known for his work among the Melanesian Islands, being a great proficient in the native languages. It is forty years since his predecessor, the late Rev. J. Foley, was inducted into the living.

At St. Peter's, Swinton, a window has been placed in the north aisle in memory of Mr. Hesketh, of Trinity College, College, Cambridge, formerly curate of the parish. The inscription reads:—"Percy Lempriere Hesketh. Born All Saints' Day, 1855. At rest August 8th, 1886. To the Glory of God, and to the memory of those saints whose deeds of love and patience have been little known among men."

The body of the late Dr. Buck, a well-known physician of Leicester, was cremated at Woking cemetery last week, and on Saturday the ashes, which were encased in a white marble casket, were interred at Birstall Churchyard, near Leicester. The funeral service, which was choral, was conducted by Canon Clayton and the Rev. H. J. Fortescue. Two friends bore the casket, surrounded by flowers to the grave, which was inlaid with evergreens and adorned with floral tributes.

On Wednesday, the Bishop of St. Asaph consecrated a burial-ground at Llansantffridid-Glyn-Ceiriog. The site was acquired by the patron of the benefice, Lord Trevor, who voluntarily conveyed it to trustees for the purposes of a non-parochial burial-ground. Under the trust deed, burials must take place with the consent of the vicar, or in his absence, of one of the churchwardens. The service to be used must be that authorised by the Church of England, and performed by a clergyman of the Church of England.

The Rev. R. Raikes Bromage, who was appointed warden of the Gordon College, Cairo, in January last, having been obliged to return to his parish, the committee of the Association for the furtherance of Christianity in Egypt has appointed the Rev. Alfred W. B. Watson, assistant-curate of St. Michael's, Bedford Park, Chiswick, to the post thus rendered vacant. Mr. Watson will shortly proceed to Cairo and carry on the work there in conjunction with Mr. Sidley, which was fully described by the Rev. G. Greenwood in the paper he read at the Wolverhampton Church Congress.

Many will be grieved to learn that the Rev. Fred. Pigot, who has for nearly three years been curate of Knowsley, Prescott, Lancashire, died after an illness of three days, on Wednesday week. In him, the church and the parish have lost the services of an earnest, conscientious, willing worker, and the example of a sincere, humble-minded Christian, whose place will not be easily filled. His genuine kindly manners and ever-ready sympathy have gained the affection of all classes, and he will long be deeply regretted. He was the oldest son of the Rev. Octavius Frederick Pigot, chaplain of Kirkdale prison, and was only thirty years of age.

The living of Middle Claydon, Bucks, has been so unexpectedly vacated by the decease of the Rev. T. Huntley Greene, who died suddenly on Sunday evening last, having officiated at Claydon in the morning. Mr. Greene was also chaplain to the Bishop of Rochester, with whom he was connected through his Lordship's first marriage. This is the second benefice in Sir Harry Verney's patronage that has fallen vacant by sudden death within the last few weeks—Gramborough through that of the Rev. A. Newcombe, and now Middle Claydon. "The Claydons" are three parishes surrounding the estates of the right hon. baronet, and they are now plunged into deep affliction by the death of their beloved pastor.

In the parish church of St. Andrew, Moreton-on-Lugg, Herefordshire, Mrs. Evans, of Moreton Court, has recently erected a memorial of her only son, who died on August 4th, 1885. It consists of a new east window, and the decoration of the chancel with mosaics, both being the work of Dr. Salviati and Co. The chancel roof has also been decorated in blue and gold by the same artists. On the chancel wall there is a brass plate with the following inscription:—"To the glory of God, and in loving memory of Thomas Percival Evans, of Moreton Court, the east window was presented, together with the mosaic decoration of the chancel, by Harriett Evans, his mother, A.D. 1887."

A largely attended meeting was held on Thursday evening at Truro, under the presidency of the Mayor, to take steps for the reception of the Prince of Wales, on November 3rd, for the consecration of the Cathedral. It was explained that the Prince would travel to Plymouth on the 31st inst., and stay with the Earl of Mount Edgcombe until the morning of November 2nd, when he will go by train to Falmouth to lay the foundation stone of a new church. Next morning he will go back to Truro, and after the consecration of the cathedral will be entertained at luncheon at the public rooms, and leave Truro at four o'clock for Port Eliot, the residence of the Earl of St. Germans. A committee of over fifty gentlemen was formed to carry out arrangements for decorating the town and affording his Royal Highness a hearty welcome.

At the last sitting of the Manchester Consistory Court a faculty was granted, on the application of the incumbent, the Rev. J. Johnson, and the churchwardens of the Longton parish church, to enable them to pull down the old church as soon as the new church is consecrated, and sell the materials; also to remove forthwith the Communion table, and various other portions of the old church, to the new church. A number of pew-holders in the old church appeared on Friday to support claims for similarly situated pews in the new church, and all were sanctioned by Chancellor Christie. It was also arranged that a royal coat-of-arms which had been in the old church should be preserved in the vestry of the new church, and that an old sun-dial which stood in the old churchyard should be fixed on the site of the old church when it was pulled down.

On Michaelmas-Day the parish church of Westbury, Somerset, was reopened, after thorough restoration. The church has been erected at three distinct periods, the oldest part probably dating from the beginning of the thirteenth century; and the architect, Mr. W. B. Gough, of Bristol, has taken care to preserve the historical interest of the church by retaining every old feature wherever possible. The works now completed include the rebuilding of the north wall and tower, a new vestry and organ-chamber, and a new roof. The interior has been entirely cleared of the old pews and gallery and vestry which blocked up the side chapel, and oak seats have been provided throughout. The reredos of Bath stone and marble is composed of five divisions, having in the centre a representation of the Agnus Dei. The total cost of the restoration, not including the reredos and other special gifts, has been about £2300, and there is a balance of £250 still to be raised. The opening services beginning with an early celebration were very bright and hearty and well attended. The Bishop preached in the morning and in the evening the Rev. A. F. Forbes, vicar of St. James's, Southampton.

On Monday week Mr. Isaac Bone entered his one hundred and first year, having been for sixty two years parish clerk in his native village of East Tisted. In the evening, after having walked up the steep village lane to tea with Mr. Allam, churchwarden, Mr. Bone attended a public meeting, convened in his honour, in the schoolroom, stepping on his way into the church belfry, where to the admiration, not unmixed with the astonishment of numerous friends, he chimed three bells all at one and the same time, without any assistance—one rope in each hand, and his foot in a loop of the third. Arriving in the schoolroom the chair was taken by Mr. A. J. Scott, who was accompanied by Lady Mary, and after a truly genial and humorous address from the Chairman, supplemented by another from the rector, Mr. Scott fastened on Mr. Bone's breast a jubilee crown-piece, on which was a suitable inscription. The proceedings concluded by singing fervently the well-known hymn, "O God, our help in ages past."

On Monday, Sir William Miller, of Manderston, Duns, Berwickshire, died of heart disease. He was born in 1809, and represented the Leith Burghs in the Liberal interest from 1859 until 1868, and Berwickshire from 1873 until 1874, when he was created a baronet. He is succeeded by his son James Percy, who was born in 1864.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE FIRST 5000 OF MAJOR, ETC.

SIR,—Thinking it may interest some of your readers to see the composition of the first exact peal of 5,000 rung on eight bells, I enclose it for publication. It will be noticed that the bells come round at the third change in the last course. In absolute strictness the note below the notice of the peal is not accurate, for the 6th is parted from the tenors at the one change which constitutes the last course-end. This I have however thought hardly sufficient to deprive the composition of a title to contain "the 6th at home throughout." I shall hope by the end of the year to be able to present the Exercise with a compact pamphlet on the method, which I have been encouraged to believe will not prove unacceptable. A word on another matter. In Mr. Thompson's remarkable and novel three-part touch of Grandsire Triples, the letter s attached to two of the lead-ends of the "missing link" may be liable to misinterpretation. I think my friend will not deem me meddlesome if I point out that the first of these has to be made as a "Holt's plain lead single," and the latter as a "Holt's bob lead single" (the one in use in the ten-part peal). It is possible that an un instructed conductor might start for the peal thinking that, as in the "Original," these were common Grandsire Singles. It is further to be noticed that the last lead-end of each part (until the first single) is a plain lead. May I in conclusion express a hope that the suggestion contained in your valuable article in "THE BELL NEWS" of the 1st instant will meet with a worthy response at no distant date from those talented gentlemen who have during the past year so finely distinguished themselves by their numerous peals on the handbells. No real lover of the art can be without the wish that, as in this generation we are surpassing in tower ringing and in composition the achievements that have gone before, so in the remaining branch which you accurately term "the most difficult in the science," that of double handed peal-ringing, this age may also be able to claim a proud superiority.

"RINGERS' OUTINGS."

SIR,—The letter from Mr. C. Pearson under this heading, in your last issue, is very well so far as it goes. But even when the plan he suggests has been adopted, it does not always go on all right. It is well known that permission to visit a tower can sometimes only be had through the clerk or sexton, who in country places is very often an important personage, a small tradesman may be, the local ringers being afraid to contradict or oppose him, because by reason of his semi-public position he can often put a job in their way. When his sextonic majesty opposes any suggestion made by one of them, no matter how much they may be agreed upon it, he puts the stopper on, and they all sink into their boots directly, and are afraid to whisper the slightest hint of remonstrance. Where it is known that such a being reigns supreme, what is the use of applying to the ringers? They will have nothing to say in the matter, Mr. Bumble settles it all in his own way, and they dare not murmur. The best plan is therefore to ignore such and apply at once to the incumbent, who, if he can't see his way to grant leave, will treat the application with that courtesy which the sexton has not been educated to practise. Where such petty tyrants are not allowed to rule, of course, the case is different, and I should follow out Mr. Pearson's ideas, which I believe is generally done. But there is the drawback I have mentioned to a general or total adoption of the rule. CALLEE.

In the parish of Llanennidwyn, the farmers have not paid their tithes, and the rector (the Rev. David Jones) consequently refused to pay the poor-rates due upon them. Mr. Jeune, the well-known ecclesiastical lawyer, was consulted, and gave it as his opinion that a distress could not be levied on a clergyman for the poor-rate, but that the distraint must be made upon the lands out of which the tithe is collected. The overseers prosecuted to recover the arrears of poor-rates. Mr. Samuel Pope, Q.C., chairman of the Barmouth magistrates appears to have dissented from Mr. Jeune's view, but in the end the bench resolved not to issue a distress warrant against the rector on the understanding that he paid the poor-rate on the portion of the tithes collected, and the overseers were instructed to proceed against the farmers for the poor-rate on the balance of tithes uncollected.

We request that all correspondence intended for publication may reach us on or before Wednesday morning, in order to ensure insertion in the current number.

DEDICATION OF NEW BELLS AT DEAL, KENT.

ON Thursday, October 13th, a special dedication service took place at St. Leonard's, Upper Deal. The old peal of five bells had been for a long time in bad order, and at the beginning of the year they became unringable. Just as the rector and churchwardens were seriously considering the matter, Captain G. Coleman, of Rosway, Deal, very kindly came forward and offered to be at the sole expense of recasting the bells into six, and rehanging them. This has now been done, and a pretty little peal of six, tenor 9½ cwt. in G, is the result. The work was entrusted to Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, who have given the greatest satisfaction, the "go" of the bells being perfect.

The bells were opened by the Quex Park ringers, who rang some well-struck six-scores of Grandsire Doubles before the service, which took place at 3 o'clock. To the great regret of all present, the Rev. R. B. Hugessen, who was to have given the address, was unfortunately prevented from coming, through a severe accident. His place was filled by the rector, the Rev. T. L. Griffith, who delivered an excellent address. After the service, a dinner was provided by the rector in the schoolroom. The rector presided, being supported by Captain G. Coleman, the Rural Dean, the Mayor and Corporation of Deal, the churchwardens, the Quex Park ringers, the Upper Deal ringers, and other gentlemen. The health of Captain Coleman was drunk with musical honours, and after a few jother toasts the company separated.

The tenor bell bears the following inscription: "This peal of six bells was recast and rehung at the sole expense of George Coleman, of Rosway, Deal, in commemoration of the Jubilee year of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria's reign, 1887. Thomas Llewellyn Griffith, rector, Daniel Clarabut, Thomas Frederick Woodruff, churchwardens, the original peal of five bells being cast by Christopher Hodgson, 1685. Edward Smith, George Knowler, churchwardens."

OPENING OF A NEW RING OF SIX BELLS AT FENNY STRATFORD, BUCKS.

The Vicar and parishioners of Fenny Stratford have commemorated the Royal Jubilee year by adding five new bells to the one they previously had. The work was entrusted to a firm of bellfounders who proposed to melt down the old bell and make a new ring of six. A conservative Archdeacon, however, intervening to prevent the breaking up of the old bell, it has been retained as the tenor of the new ring. The five new bells are very sweet in tone, and harmonize well with the old one. Wednesday, October 12th, was the opening day, when a Service of Dedication was held at 4 p.m., the two last hymns being sung at the foot of the tower. Immediately afterwards some members of the Bedfordshire Association raised the bells in peal, and rang a 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor. F. Keech, 1; M. Warwick, 2; Rev. F. E. Robinson, 3; C. W. Clarke (conductor), Rev. W. W. C. Baker, 5; W. G. Biggs, 6. This was followed by an excellent 720 of Double Court (eighteen bobs and two singles). M. Lane, 1; M. Warwick, 2; S. J. Cullip, 3; H. Chapman, 4; T. Hills, 5; C. W. Clarke (conductor), 6. The ringers then partook of a substantial tea, kindly provided by the Vicar, after which they ushered in the congregation to the Harvest Festival service, with a 360 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor. F. Keech, 1; M. Warwick, 2; H. Chapman, 3; Rev. F. E. Robinson, 4; C. W. Clarke, 5; W. G. Biggs (conductor), 6. The go of the bells was excellent, and the ringing appeared to give general satisfaction. Tenor 8 cwt. in A.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting of this Association will be held at Mitcham, on Monday, October 24th, when the towers of the Parish Church and of Christ Church, Merton, will be open from 3 p.m. The tea and business meeting will be held at the Mission Room of Christ Church, by the kind permission of the Rev. F. S. Legg, at 6 p.m. ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

DR. A. B. CARPENTER begs on behalf of the Surrey Association of change-ringers, to thank Mr. W. H. Thompson for kindly sending a supply of his leaflets on Grandsire Triples to the Association.

THE ST. STEPHEN'S SOCIETY, BRISTOL.

"ON Sunday, on the occasion of the annual visit of the St. Stephen's ringers to St. Stephen's church, there was a very large congregation, advantage being taken of the occasion to celebrate the completion of the most recent improvement—the reseating of the sacred edifice, which has been undertaken and carried out by the society. As the clergy and choir entered the church from the vestry, the members of the Ancient Society of Ringers also entered in procession from the south porch and walked to their seats, preceded by the churchwardens. An appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Mather, rural dean. The offertory amounted to £17 10s. In the evening, when the rector preached, there was again a crowded congregation. Peals were rung on the bells of the church during the day."

This is a paragraph from "The Bristol Times and Mirror," printed during the latter part of 1886. We hear very little of the Ancient Society of St. Stephen's, Bristol, in the columns of this journal, although recently some interesting episodes connected with this important body of ringers have transpired, which reflect to their honour, and detract from our London societies part of that high-minded complacency which each seem to sustain so enviously. Do we read of the Ancient Society of College Youths or the Royal Cumberland Youths Society, or in fact any of the London companies, walking in procession to their seats in church? We should be glad to hear more of the badge presented to this Bristol society by a well-known local merchant—the cost exceeded £50—it was made up in silver and gold by Messrs. Elliott, of London, on it was represented the city arms and three bells, with date 1620. Again at a meeting held early in 1886, of the St. Stephen's Ringers' Church Restoration Committee, tenders for the reseating of St. Stephen's Church were opened, the highest amounting to £1350. That the work was carried out before the close of the year will be seen by the above cutting. Cannot some of our Bristol friends give us the history of this society? W. H. F.

BAGSHOT RINGERS AT WOKINGHAM.

ON Saturday, October 15th, eight of the above ringers journeyed to Wokingham by brake, to have a pull at the new church on the fine ring of eight. On arriving at the church they found everything ready for them, and after a few rounds had been rung, a start was made for a 720 of Grandsire Minor on the front six, 7, 8 covering, which was brought round in 27 mins. H. Stapleton, 1; R. Houlton, 2; F. Francis, 3; E. Spooner, 4; T. Gould, 5; W. Houlton (conductor), 6; T. Harvey, 7; *W. Harding, 8. *First 720 of Minor. Also 720 of Bob Minor on the back six. H. Stapleton, 1; H. Houlton, 2; F. Francis, 3; W. Houlton, 4; T. Gould, 5; E. Spooner (conductor), 6. Messrs. W. and R. Houlton, and T. Harvey belong to Wokingham.

After lowering the bells the visitors adjourned to an inn, where a pleasanthour and half was spent in singing a few songs, and a little chat. It being time to leave, they mounted their brake, and riding through Bracknell and part of Windsor Forest, they reached Bagshot safe, all well pleased with the little outing. They wish to thank the Vicar for the use of the bells, and the ringers for having everything in readiness, and hope to see them in Bagshot belfry, where they will be made welcome.

WALDRON, SUSSEX.

Eight members of the Eastbourne branch of the Sussex County Association visited the above village on Saturday, October 8th, for the purpose of trying the go of the musical peal of eight bells, recently rehung by Messrs. Warner, of London. A start was made for Shipway's ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples (5040 changes), which unfortunately came to grief after ringing 4956 changes in 2 hrs. 41 mins., through the conductor thinking he had made a mistake in calling a bob, immediately saying it was wrong. Some of the band attempted the bob, and others the dodge, consequently a collapse of the peal. A. Piper, 1; H. P. Bennett, 2; W. Siggs, 3; L. Huggett, 4; E. Willoughby, 5; T. Lewis, 6; T. Hart (conductor), 7; S. Lewis, 8. The band desire to thank the Vicar and churchwardens, also the local ringers, for the courtesy shewn on the occasion, wishing the ringers success in their endeavours to become efficient change-ringers.

STOKE-BY-CLARE, SUFFOLK.

THE CHURCH BELLS.—The bells of the parish church have lately been rehung, with new wheels, stocks, gudgeons, etc., and the frame has been strengthened. It is mainly through the exertions of Colonel Herbert, of Stoke College, that this much-needed restoration has been brought about, and the thanks of the inhabitants are due to him for being able once more to hear the pretty peal of six bells rung. The first trial of the bells took place on Friday, October 7th, when a party of ringers from Sudbury were invited to come and ring them. They arrived during the afternoon, and at once proceeded to the tower, and a well struck 720 of Bob Minor was rung at the first pull down. F. Tolliday, 1; W. Howell, 2; W. Cross, 3; A. Scott, 4; H. Howell (Ipswich), 5; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 6. This is supposed to be the longest touch that has been rung on these bells for upwards of sixty years. After this a course of Kent Treble Bob was rung, and the ringers and bellhangers were invited by the Colonel to supper at his residence, Stoke College. After supper, the ringers, who had brought their handbells, entertained the Colonel and household with some selections on the bells. An adjournment was then made to the church, where they found Mr. Ransom and Mr. Silvester had arrived from Sudbury, and a 360 of Bob Minor was rung by F. Tolliday, 1; W. Howlett, 2; W. B. Ransom, 3; M. Silvester, 4; A. Scott, 5; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 6. As a finish up to the day's proceedings, a 720 of Kent Treble Bob was rung by F. Tolliday, 1; M. Silvester, 2; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 3; W. Howell, 4; H. Howell, 5; A. Scott, 6. The bells were then "fired," and thus terminated the ringing proceedings. We may mention that Mr. Howell was the bellhanger, who had been engaged from Ipswich to superintend the work, and the ringers are well satisfied with the go of the bells, and hope to hear of a company of ringers being formed who will be able to do justice to them. The weight of the tenor bell is about 15 cwt., in F sharp.

STROUD, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

The ninety-fifth birthday of Mr. Giles Mansfield, of Stroud, the oldest ringer living at the present time, was celebrated on Saturday, October 15th. Eight members of the Stroud and Painswick societies rang at the Stroud parish church a touch of Grandsire Triples, 1330 in changes, 50 mins. A Trigg, 1; C. King, 2; W. Sloman, 3; W. Hale (composer and conductor), 4; J. Nash, 5; G. Latham, 6; F. Stephens, 7; G. Smith, 8. Afterwards all the above ringers visited the residence of Mr. Mansfield, to cheer the old veteran on his birthday. A course of Grandsire Triples was rung on the handbells, under his bedroom, and although insensible at times, the old ringer was so confident that he could ring two bells to a course himself in bed, that the company consented to try him, and with breathless silence, except the sound of the bells, he rang 3-4 to a course of seventy changes, perfectly true, although with feeble strokes. When finished tears ran down the old man's face. He said my will is with you, my intellect is good, but my body is feeble. The ringers in the course were W. Hale, 1-2; Giles Mansfield, 3-4; G. Latham, 5-6; F. Stephens, 7-8. Mr. William Sloman and other ringers witnessed the performance, and declared it well and truly rung. He is the only surviving ringer that rang the long peal of Grandsire Caters, on May 5th, 1817, consisting of 12,312 changes, in 7 hrs. and 44 mins. He has been bed-ridden now about three years, but is cared for and comforted by his daughter and friends, who attend to his wants, which are many.

NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

THE NEXT GENERAL QUARTERLY MEETING of the members of the above Association will be held at Market Rasen and Claxby, on Saturday, October 29th. The bells at Market Rasen (8), and Claxby (5), will be at the disposal of members for that day. Tea will be provided at Market Rasen. All members are invited. Those intending to visit Claxby will please arrange to arrive early in the day. Societies or members intending to be present, will please communicate not later than Wednesday next, October 26th, with the Hon. Secretary, Market Rasen.

ST. SAVIOUR'S BELLS, BACUP.

ON Monday evening, a meeting of the bell committee was held in St. Saviour's schoolroom under the presidency of the Rev. William Johnson, M.A., chairman of the committee, when a statement of the accounts was submitted by the auditors, Messrs. W. Mitchell and J. R. Howorth. The total receipts from all sources amount to £634 15s. 9d., and the expenditure to £587 19s. 8d., leaving a balance in the hands of the treasurer of £46 16s. 1d., the appropriation of which will be considered at the next meeting. The committee are much pleased at such a result, and hereby beg to tender their sincere thanks to all parties who have responded to their appeal, particularly so to the gentlemen who have (through Mr. Johnson), defrayed the cost of four of the largest bells, viz. J. M. Holt, Esq., J.P., Edward Hoyle, Esq., J.P., Henry Maden, Esq., J.P., and Miles Ashworth, Esq. Special mention must also be made of the excellent services rendered to the movement by Mrs. Johnson and Miss Entwistle, whose labours in the collecting department have been productive of no less a sum than £163 16s. 3d. The secretary, committee, and other collectors are also entitled to the highest praise for the admirable manner in which they one and all have worked, and as a reward for their services have the pleasure of listening to a peal of bells that give entire satisfaction throughout the neighbourhood, and reflect the highest possible credit on the contractors, Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, bell founders, London.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

THE 250TH ANNIVERSARY DINNER of the above society will take place at the "Bridge House Hotel," London Bridge, S.E., on Saturday, November 5th, at 7 o'clock precisely. The following towers will be open for ringing: St. Magnus, Thames Street, E.C., ten bells, 1.15 p.m. and 5.0 p.m.; St. Saviour's, Southwark, S.E., twelve bells, 2.30 p.m.; St. Michael's, Cornhill, E.C., twelve bells, 4.0 p.m. It is to be hoped that members residing in the country ringing centres will endeavour to be present on such an auspicious occasion. Members and friends wishing to be present, will please communicate as soon as possible with the Dinner Committee or their Secretary, enclosing postal order for 3s. 6d., the price of the dinner ticket, when same will be forwarded to them. Application is requested by Saturday, October 29th. Final particulars of arrangements in next week's issue. Tickets can be obtained of the following: Mr. George T. McLaughlin (master); Messrs. Pettit (treasurer), Joyce and Clarke (stewards); Winny, Woodley, and Tyack (committee).

Obituary.

ALFRED BROCKWELL.

ON Wednesday, October 12th, the above named ringer departed this life after a very brief illness, at the age of 45 years. Deceased had been a ringer nearly twenty years, and belonged to the Surrey Association, SS. Peter and Paul, and the Christ Church Society, Mitcham. He had rung in several peals, and had also conducted some. The last one he rung and conducted, was a muffled peal for the late F. Baker, of Mitcham, also a ringer. He was buried on Monday, October 17th, in the parish churchyard. The coffin was borne to the grave by his brother ringers, assisted by ringers from Streatham, and Singlegate, Merton, who afterwards rang a muffled peal, an account of which will be found in the touch column.

EASTBOURNE, SUSSEX.

THE PARISH CHURCH.—The old parish church of St. Mary, Eastbourne, possesses a musical peal of eight bells cast by Mears, of London, in the year 1818, the tenor weighing 16 cwt. Everything here seems to be in capital order; a practical proof of the revived interest in matters appertaining to the "art and mystery of change-ringing." The ringing-room is a model of neatness and comfort, in fact the very idea of what such a place should be. On the walls hang several peal-boards and old date tablets, also a fine engraving of the venerable Vicar, the Rev. Canon Pitman.

ST. SAVIOUR'S.—After some years waiting, the octave of bells in the beautiful spire of this church has been completed, and St. Saviour's now owns the heaviest ring in the town. As might be expected with a church so well appointed in all ways, the belfry is no exception to the rule. All appears to be in good order. The ringing-room, like that at "old town," is most comfortable. The ceiling was low at first, but that, after some little difficulty, has been lifted with screw jacks. Ellacombe's chiming apparatus is fitted to the bells for service chiming, and also Seage's Dumb Practice arrangement for the benefit of young ringers. The following extract from St. Saviour's Parish Magazine for May, 1886, gives many interesting particulars concerning this grand ring of bells:—

"The peal of bells is now completed by the gift of Nos. 2, 3, and 4; notes C sharp, B, and A, of the octave of D. This last gift is by Miss Bayly, the well-known writer of 'Donovan,' 'We Two,' 'In the Golden Days,' and other works, under the signature of 'Edna Lyal.' The first estimate for the peal was obtained from Messrs. Warner and Co., Bell Founders, Cripplegate, London, in the year 1874. They advised a peal of eight, being as many as could be placed upon one level in the tower, and having the tenor or largest bell of the size and weight fairly manageable by one ringer. The octave is that of D; the weights of the several bells range, from the lower D, about 25 cwt., to the upper D, about 7 cwt., the collective weight of the entire peal being about 5 tons 3 cwt. The frame on which they are hung is of English oak, together with iron in parts. The first estimate of cost, inclusive of frame and bells, was £975, but as the bells have been cast at different intervals, when the price of bell metal has varied between £7 10s. and £5 per cwt., the actual cost has been somewhat less. The donors of them are, severally: 1, The late Mrs. Dickenson; 2, 3, and 4, Miss Bayly; 5, Mrs. Grantham; 6, Subscriptions by the congregation; 7, The late W. Thompson Whelpton; 8, The Duke of Devonshire."

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

NOTICE is hereby given that a district meeting of this Association will be held at Warnham, on Saturday, October 29th, for business and ringing purposes. The peal of eight at Warnham and several peals in neighbouring parishes will be available during the day. A detailed notice will in due course be sent to each member.

GEO. F. ATTREE, Hon. Sec.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH, LOUGHBOROUGH.

The Dedication of the two new bells (augmenting the peal to ten, presented by Messrs. J. W. Taylor and Co.,) by the Right Reverend Bishop Mitchinson, D.D., D.C.L., Archdeacon of Leicester, will take place on the festival of SS. Simon and Jude, Friday, October 28th. The service will commence at 3.30 p.m. The offertory will be given to defray the heavy expenses incidental to the re-hanging of the old peal, and the repairing of the Clock.

THE SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL.

A memorial to Shakespeare has been presented to the town of Stratford-on-Avon by an American, in the form of a drinking fountain and clock-tower. It has been erected in Rother-street, a broad open space near the centre of the town, where several thoroughfares meet. The tower is described as having a square base, with projecting buttresses placed diagonally at the four corners, terminating in acutely pointed gables, surmounted by a lion bearing the arms of Great Britain alternately with the American eagle and the stars and stripes. The following inscriptions are engraved on the four sides of the memorial:—

(1) The gift of an American citizen, George W. Childs, of Philadelphia, to the town of Shakespeare, in the Jubilee year of Queen Victoria.

(2) In her days every man shall eat in safety
Under his own vine, what he plants; and sing
The merry songs of peace to all his neighbours:
God shall be truly known; and those about her
From her shall read the perfect ways of honour,
And by those claim their greatness, not by blood.

—Henry VIII., Act V., sc. 4.

(3) "Ten thousand honours and blessings on the bard who has gilded the dull realities of life with innocent illusions." (Washington Irving's Stratford-on-Avon.)

(4) "Honest water, which ne'er left man i' the mire." (Timon of Athens, Act I., sc. 2).

The tower terminates in a spire, beneath and surrounding which are smaller spires and turrets. From the road to the top of the vane the height of the structure is 50ft. The architect is Mr. Jethro A. Corsing, of Birmingham. The ceremony of "inauguration" the fountain was performed on Monday by Mr. Henry Irving, who said that on that spot, of all others, Americans ceased to be aliens. In the course of a speech at the luncheon, Mr. Phelps, the American Minister, urged that there was no stronger bond of union between Englishmen and Americans than that of a common literature. Among other speakers was Sir Theodore Martin, who said that even were we to throw out of account Shakespeare's poems and sonnets, priceless as these are, three or four of his plays alone would suffice to make a transcendent reputation. Subsequently, Mr. Walter explained that Mr. Childs, who has given the memorial, was a Philadelphian who had begun life in a very humble capacity, but had amassed large sums of money as the proprietor of the journal the Public Ledger.

CONSECRATION OF A BISHOP.—On Tuesday, October 18th, being the festival of St. Luke, the Rev. Charles Edward Camidge, Prebendary of York, and vicar of Thirsk, was consecrated at Westminster Abbey, Bishop of Bathurst, New South Wales, in the room of Dr. Marsden, who had been consecrated in the same place eighteen years before, but who had resigned his see in 1885. The Archbishop of Canterbury was assisted by the Bishops of Rochester, Sodor and Man, Bishop Perry, late of Melbourne, and Bishop Marsden himself. The sermon was preached by another member of York Chapter, the Rev. T. P. Hudson, rector of East Gilling, who took for his text, Acts xx. 28. In the course of his remarks, Prebendary Hudson said that his rev. brother, who was soon to receive consecration in a church replete with historical associations, would on the following day take leave of his Yorkshire friends at another church not less splendid, and hardly less interesting, York Minster, with which four generations of his family in succession had been intimately connected. Mr. Camidge himself had spent his earlier days at the cathedral school, and his later as a member of the Chapter. It would be difficult to imagine a greater contrast than his new home would present to his old; but the country he was going to might well be called the Land of Hope. He would, probably, reach it in time to join in celebrating the centenary of the first Australian Colony; for it was not yet a hundred years since the first party of Englishmen, and they convicts, were landed in Botany Bay. It was but fifty years since the first Bishop was consecrated for all Australia, and now there were twenty sees. Who should say that in the future of the great country which was growing up on the other side of the globe there might not be poured forth a flood of the knowledge of the Lord, which should cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. After the sermon, the Bishop-elect was conducted to the Islip chapel to put on his rochet, the anthem, "The Lord is my Shepherd" (Macfarren), being in the meantime sung by the choir. He was presented to the Archbishop by the Bishop of Rochester and Bishop Marsden. The Litany, with the proper suffrage, was sung by the Precentor, the Rev. F. S. Jones, but the Archbishop said the Lord's Prayer and the two collects, with the preceding versicle of each.

THE TEWKESBURY ABBEY SOCIETY AT BIRMINGHAM.

On Monday, October 3rd, a party, ten in number, visited Birmingham, leaving Tewkesbury by the 8.5 a.m. train, and arriving at Moseley about 10.20, where they were met by Mr. A. Thomas, a member of the St. Martin's society, who had kindly arranged with those in authority at several churches for some ringing upon their bells. Moseley being the first place for a pull, where a 518 of Grandsire Triples was rung upon a peal of eight steel bells. C. W. Dyson, 1; R. H. Witherington, 2; F. J. Moore, 3; J. Hale, 4; S. Cleal, 5; J. Devereux, 6; Jos. Wathen (conductor), 7; Jno. Wathen, 8. A move was then made by way of steam tram into the town, and after a brief inspection of various things of interest, made their way to St. Martin's, and with the assistance of their Birmingham friends, a short touch of Grandsire Caters was brought round, this being the first attempt at Caters by most of the visitors. C. W. Dyson, 1; R. H. Witherington, 2; F. Moore, 3; A. Thomas (conductor), 4; —. Brooks, 5; S. Cleal, 6; H. Johnson, jun., 7; J. Devereux, 8; Jos. Wathen, 9; Jno. Wathen, 10. Also at St. Philip's, a touch of Caters in the same method was rung. C. W. Dyson, 1; R. H. Witherington, 2; F. J. Moore, 3; J. Hale, 4; —. Brooks, 5; A. Thomas (conductor), 6; S. Cleal, 7; Jno. Wathen, 8; Jos. Wathen, 9; H. George, 10. Bishop Ryder's and St. Chad's were also visited, and a 168 of Stedman Triples was rung at the former, and 504 of Grandsire Triples at the latter place. The party returned home by the 8.40 train, arriving at Tewkesbury about 10.40, and this ended one of the most enjoyable day's outing they ever had. The ringers wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," to tender their best thanks to Mr. A. Thomas and other ringing friends who met them, also to thank those in authority at the various churches for allowing them to ring upon their bells.

DURSLEY, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

On Sunday, October 2nd, fourteen members of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association paid a visit to the ancient market town of Dursley, with the object of attempting a Jubilee peal on the parish church bells. The rector, the Rev. N. Gresley, was communicated with as to permission to make the attempt, and he most kindly replied that the members of the Association would be welcome to attempt the peal, as he thought it would be an excellent thing to ring a Jubilee peal on the bells, as there had never been a peal in any method rang there, the local company only ringing round and call changes. Six members of the Painswick society arrived there at quarter past ten, viz., A. Trigg, T. Wright, W. Ryland, J. Everatt, G. Smith, W. Hale, and with the help of two of the oldest members of the local company, the bells were raised in peal, and six plain courses of Grandsire Triples were rung. The rector very kindly welcomed them, and while ringing he went and made arrangements at the Victoria Coffee Tavern for their dinner and tea, which was kindly given by him. The ringers attended Divine Service, and special mention was made of the visit of the ringers, and the proposed attempt. The Union Jack also was flying from the church tower, and there was also a crowded congregation. The Painswick men were joined outside the church by Messrs. Hinton, Daltry, and C. Gordon, from Bristol, and directly after by the Gloucester ringers, S. Romans, R. J. Wilkins, W. J. Sevier, T. Brown, and H. G. Gardner, and before adjoining to the Coffee Tavern to dinner, a course of Grandsire Major was rung on the handbells. C. Gordon, 1-2; J. Hinton, 3-4; W. Hale, 5-6; G. Daltry, 7-8; and one of Triples, standing as before. After having done justice to the good things provided, a move was made to the tower, and the following ringers attempted Mr. John Holt's six-part peal of Grandsire Triples. H. G. Gardner (conductor), 1; T. Brown, 2; R. J. Wilkins, 3; S. Romans, 4; G. Daltry, 5; J. Hinton, 6; W. Hale, 7; G. Smith, 8. "Go" was called at 2.30, and the ringing progressed beautifully for 1 hr. and 35 mins. About 3004 changes having been rung, a slight mistake occurred, and rather than stand in changes, the bells were called round, much to the dislike of the ringers, as the peal would have been a quick one. The bells all go pretty well, but to ring them is rather difficult, as only about three of them can be heard distinctly in the ringing-chamber, which is on the ground floor. The parishioners then came into the church and congratulated the ringers on their good striking, and the following ringers then rang a 504 of Bob Triples. T. Brown, 1; H. G. Gardner, 2; R. J. Wilkins, 3; S. Romans, 4; G. Daltry, 5; J. Hinton (conductor), 6; W. Hale, 7; G. Smith, 8. A start was made for 504 of Stedman Triples, but was lost after ringing 300 changes. T. Brown, 1; S. Romans, 2; R. J. Wilkins, 3; W. Hale, 4; J. Hinton (conductor), 5; H. Gardner, 6; G. Daltry, 7; G. Smith, 8. And a course with the local ringers, and the bells were lowered. The company met the rest of the ringers outside, six of them had been to Stinchcombe to Divine Service, which is about two miles distant, and with the kind permission of Sir George Prevost, the bells were raised in peal, and 120 of Grandsire Doubles was rang. A. Trigg, 1; T. Wright, 2; W. Ryland, 3; W. Sevier (conductor), 4; C. Gordon, 5; J. Everatt, 6. The rector of Dursley having wished the ringers to call at the rectory, a move was made there, and he thanked the ringers for coming, and hoped they would come again and make another attempt, which was promised in about three Sundays from then. The ringers thanked him for his great kindness, and a course of Grandsire Caters was rung in the hall on the handbells. H. G. Gardner, 1-2; R. J. Wilkins, 3-4; T. Brown, 5-6; J. Hinton, 7-8; S. Romans, 9-10, which was greatly appreciated, and was rung on Mr. J. Hinton's peal of fairy bells. The company then adjourned to tea at the Victoria Coffee Tavern, there being an excellent spread, after which a course of Grandsire Major was rung on the handbells. W. Hale, 1-2; J. Hinton, 3-4; T. Brown, 5-6; G. Daltry, 7-8. Also a course of Grandsire Caters. W. Hale, 1-2; R. J. Wilkins, 3-4; T. Brown, 5-6; J. Hinton, 7-8; S. Romans, 9-10. And a course with W. J. Sevier, 9-10. The company then parted, it being 7 o'clock, having spent a very pleasant day. The ringers take this opportunity of thanking the Vicar for the use of the bells, and also for his great kindness.

BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

A quarterly meeting of the above Association was held on Saturday, October 15th, the place of meeting, as announced in "THE BELL NEWS," being Birmingham. The towns represented were Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Darlaston, Harborne, Moseley, and Selly Oak. Touches of Grandsire and Stedman were rung on the bells of St. Philip's, after which an adjournment was made to the club house, "The White Swan Hotel," Edmund Street, were, under the presidency of Mr. Charles Carmell, the business of the Association was got on with. This being quickly dispatched, recourse was had to the handbells, when touches of Triples, Caters and Major were rung, after which several tunes were rung, these being interspersed by songs by several of the members, altogether this being the most satisfactory meeting of the year. It is hoped that the impetuous given by Saturday's meeting will prove beneficial not only to the association, but also to the members generally, who appear now to be raising themselves to that energy which a short time since was so characteristic of the association. Arrangements having been made for the next meeting, the business terminated with the usual votes of thanks.

THE DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Durham on Monday, October 31st. The Cathedral and St. Oswald's bells will be at the disposal of the ringers during the day. Divine Service will be held in St. Oswald's Church at 2 o'clock, which all members present at the meeting are respectfully requested to attend; preacher, the Ven. the Archdeacon of Durham. At 3 o'clock dinner will be provided at the "Three Tuns." After dinner the Annual Meeting will be held for the election of officers and other business. Mr. W. Story has given notice that he will move that the day for holding the Annual Meeting be changed to a Saturday, and that Rule VI. be expunged. Mr. E. W. Pyle has given notice that he will move that none of the rules shall be altered except at the Annual Meeting, when they may be altered without notice. Dinner tickets should be applied for to the Secretary not later than Monday, October 24th.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1887.

EVERY ringer, it may reasonably be supposed, is possessed of a laudable ambition to hand down the records of his fame to posterity. It is not enough that he should proclaim or have proclaimed for him the results of his prowess to his contemporaries, he is anxious that the record should be read by future ages of men, and his accomplishments admired, talked over, and dwelt upon by those who in ages to come will visit the scene where his abilities were displayed. Hence we see tablets erected in almost every steeple which at one time was the rendezvous or trysting-place of bands of ringers; and it is a fact that such records are in these days read and regarded by well-balanced minds with that respect which those who erected them in all probability hoped for.

Another, and we may say more indelible method of perpetuating the ringing of peals, is the records in the peal-books of the various companies. From several well-known causes it would be impossible to erect peal-tablets for every performance achieved, and therefore in most cases a volume, dignified for its important use by binding and other et ceteras of a very elaborate character, is provided. The admission of records into these books are regarded as valuable and as important as those of a tablet, in fact, from the care which is taken of such volumes, they may be considered as imperishable, while, on the other hand, belfry records may decay and suffer from the effects of time and violence.

The peal-book then may be considered as the recognised record; the official stamp of approval, as it were, by a society of the ringing achievements of its members, an approval, by the way, scarcely withheld unless for very satisfactory and legitimate reasons. Yet a few members of the London St. James's Society, in their wisdom have, so we learn by a letter from a correspondent in another column, thought fit to carry a resolution that a peal of Bob Triples rung with seven bells only should not be booked on this account. We are not amazed that our correspondent should stigmatize such a puerile objection as "absurd." Triples are rung upon seven bells only, and whether with a bell to "cover" or not it is "Triples" all the same. We should be inclined to give more praise to a performance like the one objected to than if it had been accompanied by a bell covering, because we consider that without it the ringing was rendered more difficult of execution. If our knowledge of the matter be correct, that the St. James's Society protest against the peal being entered because seven bells only were rung, then we say the position they have taken up is unwarrantable, and betrays no small degree of shallowness. Our correspondent appeals to our country readers; we hope his appeal may not be made in vain. We appeal to the members of the St. James's Society who years ago were among its principal supporters to save its credit by attending at the next meeting and insisting upon the rescission of so odious a resolution.

ST. MARK'S, WORSLEY.—Among the records this week will be found a report of a peal rung at this church. We are requested to say in connection therewith that "a few years ago change-ringing was unknown at St. Mark's, but the Lancashire Association holding a meeting there put the ringers on t study, and by the generosity of the Eccles ringers, who offered to help them all they could, they soon overcame the difficulty of Grandsire Triples, of which they rang a few peals. Not being content with that method alone, Plain Bob and Grandsire Major were surmounted, their latest achievement being the peal of Kent Treble Bob recorded this week. Any brother-string who may be in the vicinity of Worsley on a Sunday or practice night (Thursday), he can have a pull in any of the above methods."

Church News.

A window, by Messrs. Warrington, has been placed in the east end of Charlton Abbots Church, Andoversford.

The Rev. William G. Royle, M.A., on leaving the cure of Bolingbroke-with-Hareby, has been presented by the parishioners with a gold signet ring and gold embroidered stole.

Grosvenor Chapel, South Audley-street, having undergone somewhat extensive alterations under the direction of Mr. Blomfield, was reopened for Divine Service on last Sunday.

The wills have been proved of the Hon. and Rev. Edward Hanbury-Tracy, of Folkestone, and Stratton-street, personalty sworn at £77,348 2s. 10d.; and of the Rev. John Henry Hughes-Hallett, of Westbere (£17,311 9s. 10).

The announcement of the death of the Rev. Edward Garbett, long editor of the Christian Advocate, reminds us (says the Guardian) of the connection therewith of another, who, suffering from the same illness for nearly the same length of time, by a few days preceded Canon Garbett to a better land.

St. Olave's Church, Old Jewry, is about to be demolished, and the churchwardens have given notice of their intention of removing the bodies interred in the churchyard to Ilford Cemetery. The tablets and plates in the church will be removed and set up in St. Margaret's, Lothbury, with which parish St. Olave's is now united.

Mrs. Humphry has erected a drinking fountain at the corner of Duncannon-street and Adelaide-street, in memory of her husband, who was vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields from 1855 to 1886. It is of grey granite, and has been designed by the Metropolitan Drinking Fountain Association, who will maintain it in decency and purity.

New Sunday Schools, to take the place of an old iron church adjoining the church of Holy Trinity, Armley, Leeds, were opened on Saturday week by Mr. Samson Fox. The Bishop of Ripon afterwards preached in the parish church from St. Luke xi, 2. Despite the heavy rain which fell all day, the attendance was good. The schools have cost £1000.

The Rev. Cyril C. Child, of Christ Church, Oxford, and Cuddesdon College, has been appointed travelling organising secretary to the Universities Mission for the north of England. Letters addressed to Mr. Child, at York, will find him. Mr. Child is a distinguished member of the Oxford University Guild of Change-Ringers, being one who took part in the clerical peal. We wish him God-speed in his new sphere.

On Monday week, the Bishop of Llandaff consecrated the new church of Christ Church, Ynysybwl, in the parish of Llanwono, Glamorgan, the fourteenth new church consecrated and licensed for Divine worship during the last two years, the erection of which has been mainly due to the assistance given in grants from the Bishop of Llandaff's Fund. The sermon in the morning was preached by the Bishop, who during the service baptised three adults, one male and two females, converts from the Baptist denomination, together with the infant child of one of the female adults.

The Lincoln Diocesan Conference at their recent session, on the motion of the Dean of Lincoln, seconded by Sir C. H. J. Anderson, resolved not to elect representatives to the Central Council, the conference believing that now the House of Laymen had been created by the action of the Primate, such a body as the Central Committee was no longer necessary. But much gratitude was expressed for the work done by the Central Council in the past, and their belief that its existence had prepared the way for the more speedy creation of the House of Laymen.

A remarkable piece of restoration has been effected at Woolfardisworthy, near Bideford. The tower is a square one, standing 80 feet high, and it was found that the west of it was in a dangerous condition. Mr. Arnold Thorne has therefore cut the tower in two, taking down the west side from top to bottom, and part of the north and south sides, and rebuilt that portion. The bells have also been rehung. The total cost of the work has been about £300, most of which was provided by the vicar, the Rev. C. W. Finzel, and the parishioners. The tower was re-opened at the harvest thanksgiving service.

On Saturday last, the Bishop of London consecrated the new chancel of Christ Church, Gunnersbury, which has been erected under the direction of Mr. James Brooks, at a cost of £1250, of which about £750 has been raised. The church was built about 1843, and though designed by Sir G. Scott, who was then in partnership with Mr. Moffatt, it presents the characteristic irregularities of that period. Mr. Brooks has, however, designed the new chancel to correspond in some degree with the nave as he found it. The Bishop preached the consecration sermon, which was of an instructive character, on the Eucharist.

On Saturday, the Rev. Thomas Twysden died at the age of eighty-six. He graduated from Merton in 1824, and in 1828 was ordained. In 1842 he was presented to the rectory of Charlton, near Kingsbridge, Devon, by his wife, who survives him. For upwards of forty years he carried on the duties of the parish without help, but three or four years since he obtained the services of a curate, though he still took his share of parish work. He was greatly respected by all who knew him, and beloved by his parishioners. He was kind to the poor, and always willing to help in any good work, and his death will be felt by many to whom he has held out a helping hand.

Thursday being the anniversary of the translation of Edward the Confessor, a pilgrimage was made to his shrine in Westminster Abbey. At noon about fifty persons, headed by a Roman Catholic priest, were admitted by special order to the chapel which contains the ashes of the king. They clustered round the shrine, and engaged in silent devotions. Mr. Thomas McClure, the hon. secretary of the Working Men's Protestant League, who followed the pilgrims, offered audible prayer by way of protest, but his devotions were speedily stopped by the authorities, and he left the chapel protesting against what he described as "the idolatrous practices proceeding with the sanction of the Abbey authorities."

An altar-piece, consisting of a fine copy of a picture by Cavazzuela, now in the museum at Verona, has been presented to St. Thomas's, Regent Street, by Major Bridson, in memory of his wife, who for more than thirty years was a communicant at the church whenever she was in town. The parish rooms and parsonage building is now in course of erection, opposite the east front of the church in King-street. This important undertaking will meet a want which has long been felt. It includes the purchase of a freehold site, and the erection of a substantial building at a total cost of more than £7000. The money for the site (£3384), was raised some time back, but towards the cost of the building, which will amount to nearly £4000, only £2000 has yet been subscribed.

The Young Men's Friendly Society, which was established in 1879, has now more than 270 branches in England, Scotland, and the colonies, upwards of 20,000 members, and associates, and above fifty affiliated institutions. It is rapidly increasing. Its objects are to promote purity, temperance, and general morality; to befriend young men leaving home or moving from one place to another, and protecting them from evil influences; to promote thrift and independence, especially by encouraging young men to make provision against sickness, accident, and want, on sound principles; to promote a healthy tone of literature and amusement among young men, and to promote co-operation amongst institutions existing for kindred objects. The general secretary is Mr. W. R. Arbuthnot, Northumberland chambers, Charing Cross, W.C.

The death, in his fifty-sixth year, is announced of the Rev. Robert Gray, D.D. Dr. Gray was educated at Durham University, and was Lindsay Scholar of Hatfield Hall. He graduated in 1856. After holding the curacy of Lever Bridge, Lancashire, for two years, in 1858 he was appointed Head Master of the Grammar Schools of Simons-town and Georgetown, and went out to South Africa. In 1864 he became Head Master of the High School, and Inspector-General of the Government schools of St. Helena. In 1868 he was named Archdeacon of Pietermaritzburg, and was afterwards Dean, under Dr. Colenso. From 1878 to 1884 he was chaplain of the Martley Union, and in the latter year he was appointed vicar of Great Toller, Dorchester, which he held at the time of his death. He was no relation to the Bishop of Capetown.

Mr. Frank Spence, the hon. secretary of the Anti-Narcotic League has made some inquiries as to the smokers and non-smokers on the bench of Bishops. Among the latter are the Bishops of Lichfield, Llandaff, Lincoln, Chester, St. Asaph, Salisbury, Hereford, Chichester, Exeter, Bangor, Truro, Southwell, St. David's, and Winchester. The Bishop of Bath and Wells has not used tobacco in any form for between fifty and sixty years. The Bishop of Worcester never smokes pipe or cigar, and never did. The Bishop of St. Albans has never smoked in his life, but does not think that the case of the opponents of tobacco would be much strengthened by the fact of the abstinence of fifty or sixty Bishops. The Bishop of Durham is a non-smoker, but does not wish the statement to convey any sympathy with or feeling of necessity for a league against tobacco. The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol was a moderate smoker until 1860. "When I found benefit from it cease I gave it up," he says. The Bishop of Oxford is not, and never has been a smoker. He believes that in time, in purse, in health, and in cleanliness, he has been the gainer. If he has lost, as some as his friends tell him, a measure of personal enjoyment, he can only say that the loss has not been felt. The Bishop of Liverpool is a non-smoker, and entirely approves of the objects of the Anti-Narcotic League.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

YORKSHIREMEN AND KENT TREBLE BOB.

SIR,—Your issue of this week is peculiarly an interesting one, and I cannot resist the temptation to take up my pen and give you the benefit (or otherwise) of my opinions on some of its contents. First of all, your "leader" dealing with our Yorkshire Association. The opening paragraph will no doubt be read with pleasure by all brother-strings, but the other is the one which to my mind deserves the most attention. Our strong predilections for Kent Treble Bob in this "county of broad acres" must be well known to the Exercise. No doubt one great cause of this is that it has been a "standard method" for so many years here, consequently it has received the greatest attention, and as a natural result been mostly rung, and what is to a Yorkshireman's mind of the most importance, well rung. If there is one thing above all others that a "tyke" likes to hear in connection with the art, it is good striking; consequently, when he could have that to his heart's content with Treble Bob, the temptation has been too strong for him to put it on one side to practice other methods to any great extent. There is, it must be confessed, a good deal of the "rest and be thankful" policy about this, and I hope your pertinent remarks on this score will lead to a new departure during the coming winter. The next thing which I observed was the report of a peal of Duffield Major having been accomplished by Mr. Heywood and his worthy band. That announcement came to me as a most striking commentary on your remarks. Mr. Heywood has with great ability placed this new system before the Exercise; he has also had the pleasure of conducting the first peal in it with his own band, and in his own tower at home, which circumstances will, I am sure be exceedingly gratifying not only to himself but to every change-ringer in the land. Now comes the point. I have no doubt in my mind that it has been the desire of us all that Mr. Heywood should conduct the first peal in his own method. That being now a fait accompli, we may fairly consider the system an open one to the Exercise, and I do most sincerely hope that my Yorkshire brethren will not "let the grass grow under their feet" in this matter, but will adopt the spirit of your editorial remarks, and endeavour to accomplish the next peal. The winter practice season has now commenced, and I would venture to urge upon my brethren in making their arrangements for the season, to take your words well to heart, break down this "preponderance of Kent Treble Bob," and by tackling other methods make this year's ringing more varied, and at the same time more interesting, than that of any previous period. Change-ringing, like other things, must not be allowed to stand still, and Yorkshire ringers may depend upon it that if they do not "mettle," they will some day find themselves left behind in the march of improvement in connection with our art. While on this point I may be met with the remark that if there is a preponderance of Kent Treble Bob ringing in Yorkshire, the same charge may be made with reference to other methods in different counties. Well, even allowing that to be so, it does not affect the tenour of your observations; to quote an old saying, "two blacks don't make one white," and if such be the case, then I say, let Yorkshire take the lead in this matter, as it has done in the work of county organisation; practice and accomplish peals in other good musical methods, which have hitherto laid "dormant and unring" amongst us. There are two or three other matters which I should like to have mentioned, but as I fear my letter has already assumed an inordinate length, I will leave them for the present, and subscribe myself

YORKSHIREMAN.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION REPORT.

SIR,—In looking over the peals rung by this Association for the past year, I find one I took part in is duly recorded, but not in the manner I forwarded it to the Secretary of the above. It reads, "The calling of this peal will be found under No. 247 of the Association's performances." This last statement I deny, and say it cannot. It was conducted by me as published in Sottanstill's Work of 1867, and should read under No. 384 performance, and was rung for the first time by the Association. I conducted it as the composer forwarded it before the Exercise. I doubt if the calling of No. 247 performance can be found with Mr. Tebbs' name attached, and therefore claim it as stated by me.

AN EXTRAORDINARY RESOLUTION.

SIR,—I shall feel obliged if you will allow me to call attention to what me and my fellow-members of the Tottenham (Middlesex) Society consider a most extraordinary resolution passed by the members of the London St. James's Society at a recent meeting held at their meeting-house. Last January our Society arranged to attempt a peal of Bob Triples. We met one short of eight, but not to be disappointed, we determined to ring seven bells only, leaving the 2nd bell out, and having no cover. This we accomplished, and rang a true peal, and competent judges say it was rang well. Being all members of the St. James's Society, we sent up the usual fee to the head-quarters of that Society for booking, and thought no more about it till the other day when we happened to hear that a resolution had been passed that such a performance could not be regarded as a peal because we only rang seven bells. I venture to say this objection is absurd. The 5040 changes were rung, and we think that it was much more difficult than if we had had a cover. I should like to hear what some of your country readers think of such a resolution. I consider it anything but correct, and we shall not let the matter rest in its present position.

THE NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the above Association was held at Norwich, on Monday, October 17th, when ringers from the following places were present: Norwich (St. Peter Mancroft), Ipswich, Aylsham, Hingham, Diss, Halesworth, Oakley, Haske-ton, Leiston, Tunstead, Somerleyton, Kenninghall, Wenhaston, Pulham St. Mary, North Elmham, Great Bentley, Kelsale, Dickleburgh, Aldeburgh, Fundenhall, Banham, Redenhall, Star-ston, etc. In accordance with the arrangements made by the energetic secretary (the Rev. N. Bolingbroke), the members of the various companies assembled in Blackfriars hall shortly after their arrival in the city, and the programme for the day was announced. Visits were subsequently paid to the following churches, where several excellent touches were rung: St. Peter Mancroft, St. Andrew, St. Giles, St. John Maddermarket, St. Gregory, St. Lawrence, and St. Peter-per-Mountergate. It is worthy of note that general complaints were made of the unsatis-factory state of the bells, and there was a consensus of opinion that the only tower in Norwich where ringing could be done with any degree of comfort and pleasure was that of St. Peter Mancroft. Ringing ceased at 12.30, and at a quarter to one the company assembled in the church of St. Peter Mancroft to take part in Divine Service. This consisted of a shortened form of prayer, which was read by the Vicar, the Rev. F. Baggallay. The hymns were "O God, our help in ages past," and "We love the place, O God." The lesson, the second chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Thessalonians, was read by the Rev. N. Bolingbroke.

The Rev. Dr. RAVEN, Vicar of Fressingfield, Suffolk, preached the sermon, which was deeply interesting and admirably suited to the occasion. His text was taken from the 14th chapter of St. Paul's first Epistle to the Corinthians, seventh verse, "And even things without life giving sound, whether pipe or harp, except they give a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped?" He said:—

At this, our annual gathering as a Diocesan Society of change-ringers, it is not easy to find a passage of Scripture bearing at all directly on the object which calls us together, for in the apostle's days such large bells as we use were unknown, save perhaps in the far east, and the art which we practise is only emerging out of its second century. Yet it is no straining of words to add to the "things without life giving sound," such as pipe or harp, the tuneful inhabitants of our church towers. Certainly through human skill they give a distinction in their sounds or notes, so that to the trained ear the method used is as clear as a common tune to the common hearer, or the composition of a chord to the educated musician. The inspired apostle, in the words of the text, is using the significance of instrumental music to re-buke the Corinthians for the scandal which they brought on the Church by their abuse of the gift of tongues which God had granted to them. The unseemly and irregular noise caused by several of them rising at once and speaking in different languages, was bringing the message of salvation through Jesus Christ into contempt. St. Paul shows them "a more excellent way," enjoins them to speak one by one, and to bring into action the gift of interpretation. Otherwise, as he points out, the great and glorious gift of language actually falls below the rational manner of handling lifeless instruments. For it is known by them, when they are rightly handled, what is intended to be conveyed to the mind. Let us see whether to-day these words of St. Paul to the Corinthians can be applied to the object for which we are assembled. The early Church, of course, knew nothing of the use of bells. Their assemblies, generally held in the first hours of the morning, were no matters for public proclamation, but rather the contrary. And when first the times of worship came to be announced, the Theodromoi, or runners, carried notice, which was afterwards conveyed by wooden clappers, called Semantra, or by the sacred bars, or plates, called Hagiosidera. Nor is it possible now to assign to any man, or to any date, the introduction of the bell rung from God's House to summon worshippers to prayer and praise, and more especially to the great distinctive act of Christian worship, the Eucharist. The oft-repeated reference to Paulinus, Bishop of Nola, as the first to inaugurate the use of Church bells, has no foundation in fact, and has been refuted time after time by learned writers on bells. But error is persistent, and truth, though a vigorous plant, is apt to be overgrown by weeds. This, however, is not the occasion to enlarge on the subject. A more probable theory is that bells came into partial use for Christian purposes when under the rule of Constantine the Great many basilicas, or court-houses, and other public buildings, were handed over to Christians to be used as churches. We find at Treves, in Germany, one of these basilicas, with a turret which looks as though adapted for a bell. It is certain that the Romans announced by a bell the hour for the opening of the public bath, and at this day the great chamber of the Baths of Diocletian at Rome is a church. But whatever conjectures we may adopt, and however they may be supported, there is no doubt that in England during the Saxon period there were bells, often several in number, in the church towers. And as time advanced, the art of casting bells in sequence of musical sounds became more and more developed, till rings of three sounded in almost all the villages of Norfolk, and in larger places we find many instances of four or five bells of majestic size and deep sonorous tone. It naturally followed that the order in which they sounded should have some variety. Then by degrees sundry methods for regulating this variety arose, till Fabian Stedman employed his scanty leisure in recording the peals in use before his time, and setting out others of improved character. From his days to our own there has been constant progress. The towers have received increased numbers of bells. The methods have multiplied, and have undergone more scientific arrange-ment. And in many a city and town in our beloved country the hearts of men are gladdened, as on this occasion, by that majestic group of musical intervals which results from the changes on the full number of twelve tuneful and full-voiced bells. But, after all, what is it that the bells proclaim? Surely their most important use is the original summoning to Divine Service, and especially on the Lord's Day. And as no use can possibly compare with this in antiquity and in dignity it does not seem unreasonable to ask why those who are skillful in ringing do not more often delight their fellows by the practice of their melodious art before service on a Sunday. Often in places where there are six or eight good bells, a feeble and irregular jangling of three or four is all that greets the ear. But I suspect that in many cases it comes to this—that ringers would ring except for staying to service afterwards, and that they very rightly judge that it is a mockery for a man to summon others to those acts of worship in which person-ally he is not disposed to participate. And this there is no gainsaying. But I would ask, earnestly, is this a right position for a man to place himself in? Nothing, all will admit, is more graceless than to see a man who has been ringing or chiming, swing carelessly out of church so as to meet those who are entering the porch. But, after all, is it not unseemly that a man to whom God has given the clear under-standing and the bodily vigour, without which no one can be a ringer, should withhold on the Lord's Day, through sloth or indifference, that tribute to his Maker which he could so easily render? Ringers are often in natural gifts something more than ringers. Besides mind and muscle, they are generally lovers of music, and would be able to assist in rendering the voice of praise in Divine Service more heartily by their presence in the congregation, if not in the choir. And this, brethren of the Guild, is a matter which I venture to recommend to the atten-tion of all, whether clergy or laity; as I would fain impress it on my-self. The voice of the bells on the Lord's day reaches farther than we are apt to think. Many a sufferer on the bed of sickness when the chimes go out for church bethinks him of the assembling of the congre-gation in the old church, where perchance prayers may specially be put up for his recovery. These dear patient brethren of ours, some languishing in weakness of body for months, or even years, though the desire and longing which they have of worshipping in the Courts of the Lord may linger in the letter unfulfilled, yet is a God of mercy to them (in the words of the prophet Ezekiel), "a little Sanctuary," and Sunday still seems Sunday, and the word of comfort read in the inval-id's chamber sounds the sweeter when with it come the remem-brances of bygone days, when they went with their fellows in joy and thanksgiving to keep holy day. Hope, too, will lend its light to features worn with pain, as the veil lifts, and the towers of "Jerusalem which is above" are descried through this world's mist, as the broken uncer-tain voice of worship here below swells into the song of triumph sung before the Throne of God by the spirits of just men made perfect, by an innumerable company of angels and archangels, through Jesus, the Mediator of the New Covenant. In a very different way, also, the voice of bells may go forth for warning. Let me give you an instance from the experience of my venerable friend, the Rev. Henry Thomas Ellacombe, equally noted as a skilful ringer and a learned historian of bells, not long since called to his rest, after a life prolonged far beyond the usual days of man on earth. "When I was a young man," so said to him an old collier, an original member of Mr. John Wesley's con-gregation at Kingswood, "I paid no respect to the Lord's Day, nor to public worship; and one Sunday morning as I was wandering through some fields, lo! on a gate, I heard the bell ring out for morning ser-vice, and I thought within myself, 'How many will listen to that call and go to church, and pray and hear God's Word, while I am doing worse than nothing?' And so from that day ever after I never forgot the bell, which was the blessed instrument, I always consider, which God in His mercy made use of, to recall me from the error of my ways, and to incline my will to seek the salvation of my soul." Thus also in old days the passing bell, while it called on neighbours to pray for the departing soul, also reminded them of their own speedy departure from this life, and the necessity of preparation for the great change which must pass on all at death. The function of the change-ringer is often exercised on the joyful occasion of a wedding, or the solemn pub-lie thanksgiving for some great national mercy. May the marriage tie ever be honoured amongst us in thought, and word, and deed, for in the domestic virtues lies a mighty element of a nation's strength. So long as we, Englishmen, live in the remembrance of the God of our fathers, so long shall we abide under His Almighty protection, and then never shall there be wanting days when our grand bells peal forth to the praise of Him by whom alone the battlements of our land stand unshaken. Known of all men then shall be the utterances of our bells, without life in themselves, but caused to give a distinction in their sounds—known for joy, for sorrow, for national thanksgiving, it may be for national humiliation. And ourselves, may all our words and works be guided by those few words of an old inscription on a bell—Omnia fiant ad gloriam Dei; "Let all things be done to the glory of God."

The annual dinner of the members of the Association took place in Blackfriars Hall, at two p.m., when the Mayor, Sir Harry Bullard, presided. He was supported by the Revs. Dr. Raven, F. Baggallay, N. Bolingbroke, T. H. Marsh, H. J. Coleman, A. G. Blyth, R. H. Gwyn, W. Barlee, H. Earle Bulwer, Captain Moore, Mr. J. W. Spratt, Mr. C. H. Scriven, etc. Mr. L. A. Browne, of the Shirehall Tavern, catered in excellent style. After dinner,

The MAYOR said that during his term of office he had attended many entertainments, but he had never before been at a gathering of this kind. It gave him much pleasure to meet those who were well versed in the art of bell-ringing. The great majority of people knew nothing of the mysteries of the science of campanology, or of the vast amount of time, practice, and care that were needed to send forth from the church steeples the melodious sounds they so frequently heard. The history of bells was very interesting, and equally interesting was it to think of the various occasions on which they were rung. The joyous and festive peals, and the solemn notes of the funeral bell alike awakened a responsive echo in their hearts. This Society, which had accomplished so much on behalf of those who rung the bells, deserved support from the general public, and especially from persons occupying official positions. Having referred to the prominent part played by the ringers throughout the land on the Jubilee day, his Worship concluded by cordially proposing "The Queen, and the rest of the Royal Family." This toast was drunk upstanding, and the National Anthem was played on the handbells by Mr. Knights' company of Norwich ringers.

The Rev. H. EARLE BULWER gave the "Preacher of the day," and expressed regret that Dr. Raven, who had delivered so excellent and interesting a discourse, had been compelled to leave the gathering before his health was proposed. The toast having been heartily honoured,

The MAYOR proposed "Success to the Association, and the Health of its Secretary, the Rev. N. Bolingbroke." He congratulated the members of the Society on the fact that so many had banded themselves together to cultivate an art which, a short time ago, was in danger of almost dropping out of existence. In the church steeples of Norwich and Norfolk there were tablets on the walls recorded that many great feats of bell-ringing performed by various companies, and he hoped that the art which was so ably fostered by this society might go on and flourish in the future as heretofore. The success of the Association was in no small degree owing to the valuable services rendered by their excellent secretary. Mr. Bolingbroke was an old schoolfellow of his, and he knew from the energy he had always thrown into whatever work he undertook that the members had adequate reason for being satisfied with his labours.

The Rev. N. BOLINGBROKE having acknowledged the personal compliment which had been paid to him, proposed "The Health of the Chairman," and said that not only the people of Norwich and Norfolk, but those who lived at the extremity of the diocese were proud of the dignity which had been conferred upon the Mayor. It was therefore with exceeding pleasure that he asked them to drink the health of Sir Harry Bullard. The toast was drunk amid much cheering, and "He's a jolly good fellow" was rung upon the handbells.

The MAYOR then replied, and said that Mr. Bolingbroke had very kindly accepted him as a life member of the Society. He expressed a hope that after the necessary improvements had been done to the bells in the church of St. Michael-at-Coslany—the parish of his birth—that the members of the Association would accept an invitation to ring upon the peal. His Worship at this part of the proceedings left the meeting in order to attend to his official duties, and for the remainder of the time the chair was occupied by the Rev. F. Baggallay.

The Rev. N. BOLINGBROKE, in presenting the annual report of the Society, expressed regret that the state of the peals in several of the city churches were in anything but a satisfactory condition, and hoped that the publicity given to the fact would lead to an improvement in the bells. The report was as follows:—

Our association has lived to see the completion of the first decade of its existence. At this general gathering of our members and friends we beg to submit our tenth annual report. Our objects, as stated in our rules, are the "Promotion of Change-ringing and Belfry Reform." We trust that during the past twelve months we may note that both these objects have been forwarded and encouraged in the diocese of Norwich.

There has been no falling-off in the number of peals rung, nor in the excellency of the performances, but we must again express our great regret that so few of these peals were accomplished in the county of Norfolk.

The total number of peals rung since our last annual meeting is 29; of these six were rung at St. Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich, three at Coddensham and Debenham, two each at Cretingham and Helmingham, one each at Alburgh, Kenninghall, Redenhall, Stowmarket and Woodbridge, one peal out of the diocese at St. Giles-in-the-Fields, London, and two peals on the hand-bells by the Ipswich members.

Perhaps the most noteworthy of these peals are the two of Double Norwich Court Bob Royal, at Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich. We believe that there has not been a peal in this method rung since 1801, nor at any time of the same number of changes. In addition to these are one of Kent Treble Bob Maximus, one of Stedman Caters, and two of Double Norwich Court Bob Major. Although we single these out for especial mention, we must always bear in mind that many of the performances which seem more humble are really equally creditable to the performers. A 5000 in different methods, on five or six bells, one of Bob Triples or of Bob Major, very often indicate the greatest perseverance and industry in our younger members. We, therefore, desire to congratulate and encourage one and all, our younger members as well as our older ones, on what they have accomplished.

We held our last annual meeting at Ipswich, on October 4th, 1886. Certainly we were favoured with fine weather, and we hope those who attended were pleased with the arrangements made. The annual service was held at Mary-le-Tower Church, and an excellent address, full of practical advice to ringers, was given by the Rev. B. W. Raven, vicar of Leiston.

We tender him our hearty thanks, as also for his kindness in presiding (in the absence of the Rev. Canon Turnock) over the dinner and business meeting. At the close of the meeting a collection was made in aid of the Snowdon Memorial Fund. The amount was not great, but we have the satisfaction of feeling that such a worthy object was recognised by the association. We think our choice of a public building, the old Museum, for our meeting was again justified, though, perhaps, at a slightly increased cost.

During the past year two district meetings have been held, at Halesworth and Woodbridge. A meeting at Halesworth is always satisfactory, as the ringers are so well supported by the churchwardens and other residents in the town. One of the objects of our association is to foster this good feeling, and we should be wrong in not placing on record our obligation to Mr. J. Parry, senior churchwarden, for the part he took at the meeting.

The meeting at Woodbridge, on May 2nd, was of a different nature. It was essentially a parochial festival on the occasion of re-opening the grand ring of eight bells. It was considered a very suitable occasion for a gathering of the members of the association to express their appreciation of the good work carried out by the Vicar and churchwardens. We heartily congratulate them, and also our Woodbridge honorary performing members.

The hearty services in the church, and the excellent sermon by Archdeacon Perowne, will be long remembered by those members who had the privilege of being present. (We may here mention that the work was carried out by Messrs. G. and F. Day, of Eye.)

It was hoped that many parishes in the diocese would have considered an addition to, or restoration of, their church bells a suitable memorial of our honoured and respected Queen Victoria's Jubilee. In this we have been disappointed. We only know of two instances in which this form of memorial was adopted. At Lynn, where two trebles were added to the bells at St. Margaret's, making them a very fine ring of ten, and at Cawston, where a new third has replaced the former cracked one, thus enabling this ring of six to be heard once more after their long silence.

But there are other improvements we gladly record. Woodbridge we have already mentioned.

The five bells at Broome have been rehung. The rings of eight at St. Michael Coslany, Norwich, and at Kelsale are at the present time in course of restoration, and we hear orders have been given for good work at Monk Soham, Stratton Strawless, and East Bergholt, and one of our own members, the Rev. C. H. Iacon, vicar of Wangford, has started a fund for restoring the bells of that parish. We may here mention that the bells of Thorpe St. Andrew, near Norwich, were rung on December 21st, 1886, on the occasion of Mr. Hansell's marriage. We do not think that even yet ringing will be carried on there to any great extent.

We greatly regret having to record the death of the Rev. Maynard W. Currie, rector of Hingham. He was not one of our performing members, but as an honorary member he most thoroughly upheld the objects of the association. His zeal in encouraging the ringers of his parish, and his recognition of them as Church-workers, requires this simple acknowledgement. We hope our members will not grudge the space given in our report to the record of departed ringers. We think it important that from time to time records should be given of some of the old ringers of the diocese who lived and died long before the existence of our association. If this matter is not taken in hand at once we shall be unable to acquire the accurate information we desire to give.

Our secretary desires to retire from his office, as for a long time he has felt unable to do justice to such a responsible position. He has continued his duties because no one could be found who would take his place.

There can be no doubt that our association must be somewhat re-arranged, and the resignation of the secretary at the end of the financial year will be the most suitable time to hold a committee meeting and thoroughly discuss this important matter, and then submit their recommendations to a general meeting.

We cannot complain on the whole of the way in which our members have responded to the calls made upon them for subscriptions. But it would be much more advantageous to the association if all, whether hon or performing members, would try to send their subscriptions at the commencement of the year, or inform the secretary that they desire to withdraw their names. We greatly regret that some valuable members have resigned, and that probably others will do the same. Still we must not despair; we must exercise yet more patience, and hope that before long the cloud of depression will be dissolved by the mighty power of God's good providence. We hope that a newly-arranged committee and a system of local secretaries may strengthen our association; and that it may be found in years to come a powerful agent in promoting every kind of belfry reform and in encouraging the grand art of change-ringing.

On the motion of Captain MOORE, seconded by Mr. J. FOSDIKE, the report was adopted.

The Rev. T. H. MARSH said he hoped the secretary would reconsider his decision to retire from office, and continue in the post he had so ably filled.

The Rev. N. BOLINGBROKE said that his duties as a city clergyman were so pressing that he felt unable to undertake the business of the Society to his satisfaction, and he must therefore retire at the end of the financial year.

The meeting having appointed Mr. I. S. Alexander, of Ipswich, as auditor, and elected Sir Harry Bullard and the Rev. W. H. Cleaver, rector of Pulham St. Mary, as honorary members of the Association, the proceedings terminated.

The company then adjourned to the towers, and ringing was indulged in for the rest of the afternoon.

BRENTWOOD, ESSEX.—DEDICATION OF THE BELLS BY THE BISHOP OF THE DIOCESE.

[BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.]

It is a common custom among many of the uninitiated to describe Essex as a very flat surface; this is an error, for though the county forms part of that tract of country on the eastern side of England which comprises the largest connected space of level ground in the whole island, it has many gentle hills and dales, and in some places rises to a considerable height above the level of the sea. A tourist from London proceeding by Chigwell Row, Hainault Forest, Havering, South Weald, Brentwood, and Laindon Hills, would traverse some of the finest country in the kingdom. The village of Havering presents great variety of scenery, commanding in some places extensive prospects over great part of Essex, Herts, Kent, Middlesex, and Surrey. Among other positions may be mentioned Hainault, where can be seen the Metropolis with its numerous spires, the towers of the Crystal Palace, with its central arch flashing back a flood of light, from where also the eye embraces a vast and distant range. A long line of Kentish hills like a chain of clouds in the distance—many miles of the Thames with its masts of vessels in the pool, while nearer are its numerous park lands and rich woody scenes. To the antiquarian the hamlet of Hainault is of great interest. It was a favourite retreat of Edward the Confessor, who spent a great part of his time here, where it is said that he either built a new palace or renovated the old one of his predecessors. At the present time there is a small village green, which in the days of yore formed part of the royal palace gardens. Other occupants of the throne have also resided in the village. Passing on through magnificent scenery at South Weald, the traveller arrives at Brentwood, and still further he reaches Laindon Hills. A local historian says, that "perhaps the finest view in England is that beheld from the brow of Laindon Hills. As you emerge from a deeply shadowed lane, a magnificent prospect bursts upon the eye, extending in some directions nearly forty miles: an almost boundless valley beneath, painted with the finest verdure, enriched with farms, and studded with mansions, hamlets, villages, and woods; the Thames winding through it, full of ships, and bounded by the hills of Kent. I never," says Arthur Young, "beheld anything equal to it in the west of England, that region of landscape. Nothing can exceed it, unless that which Hannibal exhibited to his disconsolate troops when he bade them behold the glories of the Italian plains."

Brentwood stands nearly 500 feet above the level of the Thames, and was considered by Dr. Mead, a physician, the Montpellier of Essex. There is a tradition that the doorstep at the White Hart Hotel in the High Street, is level with the cross upon the top of St. Paul's Cathedral. It is a picturesque and unpretentious little town, situated in one of the most healthy rustic districts of the county, and has of late years made rapid and extensive improvements. Being within a reasonable (eighteen miles) distance of London, surrounded by sylvan scenery of almost unsurpassed loveliness, and having an excellent train service, it has become the residence of a large number of city gentlemen. The town abounds with useful institutions, some bearing the stamp of antiquity, others of more modern architectural design. Sir Anthony Browne's Grammar School was built and endowed here in 1557. Till a few years ago, Brentwood was a hamlet of South Weald, and was formerly a market town, such having been granted in the time of Stephen. It was once the Assize town for the county, and until recently, the old assize house built in the time of Philip and Mary stood in the High Street. Standing upon the old Roman road from London to Colchester, there is a halo of romance that lingers around some of the old noted houses. Notwithstanding the rapid improvements in the town, nothing has exceeded the progress made by the Church, which has kept pace with the times. There has during the last few years been an entire transformation of the church, and a grand revival of its services. In 1221 a chapel was built at the request of David, Abbot of S. Osyth, and dedicated to St. Thomas the Martyr, in honour of Thomas a Becket. The living was a curacy in the Archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London, of the certified value of £2 10s., annual value P.R., £125. At the present time the living is of the estimated value of £280, and is held by the Rev. C. Grinstead, M.A., of St.

Catherine's College, Cambridge, who was appointed in 1876. The rev. gentleman soon found that the church erected in 1835, which was a plain brick building in the Early English style, with a square tower, was inadequate for the Church accommodation of the neighbourhood, and so in February, 1877, steps were taken in the matter. After a failure to obtain a fresh site, Mr. F. C. Lee was instructed to prepare plans for a new church, in which was to be incorporated the chancel of the old church, at an estimated cost of £8000. Having secured the promise of £4000, a contract was signed in 1880. By March, 1882, upwards of £5400 had been subscribed to the fund, but as the Committee had expended beyond this sum owing to it having been found impossible to work in the old chancel of the old church, the works were stopped for the want of funds. In the following May however, the Vicar was in a position to announce the receipt of an anonymous gift of £6000, and so with the exception of seating the church with oak benches and erecting a tower, which had already been carried up about twenty feet, the church was completed, the consecration taking place on April 26th, 1883. The general plan of the church consists of a long nave and wide and lofty side aisles, and separated from nave by an arcading of seven arches. The chancel carries through the nave lines, and is flanked on the north side by the morning chapel, with the organ chamber and vestries on the south. The total accommodation is for 1,050, chairs being used instead of pews throughout. On entering the church one is struck by the apparent lightness of the nave. The actual dimensions are—Total length internally, 138 feet; total width, 60 feet; width of nave, 19 feet; height to plate of nave roof, 33 feet; height to boarding, 45 feet. The choir and clergy stalls are in oak, of careful design, and with some delicate carving, that on the front of the clergy stalls embodying the symbols of SS. Peter and Paul and St. Thomas the Martyr. The morning chapel is well shut off from the chancel by high oak panneling at back of stalls, and a wrought iron grille similar in character to that between chancel and nave. The whole is in the Early English style, and there are several beautiful stained glass windows. Upon the death of the Rev. C. A. Belli, formerly vicar of South Weald, it was found that he had made a bequest for the construction of the tower and spire. At the same time it was further announced that the rev. gentleman was the anonymous donor of the £6000. As the tower and spire had now been erected at a cost of about £4000, the rev. gentleman thus contributed £10,000, one half of the total expenditure. It may be mentioned that the services at Brentwood church have for some years been recognised as those advocated by the High Church party, while the views of the late Mr. Belli are understood to have been in the opposite direction. A magnificent ring of eight has been placed in the tower, and the result is that Brentwood possesses one of the finest churches in the county, and one of which the townspeople may be justly proud.

The tower is a fine piece of masonry. Over the groined porch is a store-room; the ringing-chamber comprises the next storey, the west window bearing a shield with the arms of Mr. Belli carved upon it. Above the ringing-chamber is the clock-chamber, the clock faces being on the north and west fronts. Access to the floors is given by a turret staircase carried up to the cornice of the tower, and a wooden staircase leads from the top of the turret to a platform over the bells. From this platform is a staircase leading to a gallery running round the outside of the tower at a height of seventy-two feet. Up to the level of the belfry the tower is square in form, but above this the angles are splayed off, and at the gallery level form octagonal turrets, attached to the base of the spire by stone archways, and connected along the front by an embattled parapet. The octagonal base of the spire is carried up nine feet above the level of the gallery, making the height to the top of the stonework eighty-one. The spire is of wood throughout, and is covered with oak shingles, the dormers on four sides being covered with lead. This material is also used for the apices of the spire, and the four small spirelets at its base. The spire is surmounted by a copper weathercock about four feet in height. The total height to the point above the weathercock is 170 feet. The work has been satisfactorily carried out by Messrs. Brown, Son, and Blomfield, of Mautree. The tower entrance has been finished by the addition of a pair of wrought iron gates, with a grille above containing the monogram of Mr. Belli and the date.

The carving in the arch and the panel above has been completed, the "Good Shepherd" having been sculptured in the panel. The west doorway has been enriched by sculpture and carving. On either side of the door are sculptured figures of the four Evangelists, standing on corbels representing their respective symbols. Below these figures are carved panels, that on the left representing the martyrdom of St. Thomas-a-Becket, and that on the right the penance of Henry II. at Canterbury Cathedral. Upon the panel over the door is represented the parable of the ten virgins, and above this in the tympanum of the arch is our Lord in majesty. The carvings and sculpture were executed by Messrs. Earp, Son, and Hobbs, of Lambeth, and the entire works were carried out from the designs, and under the superintendence of Mr. Ernest C. Ayton-Lee, of London.

The dedication of the tower and spire took place on Wednesday, October 19th, and was performed by the Bishop of St. Albans. In addition to the dedication service, there was early celebration at 6 a.m., second celebration at 7 a.m., matins at 10.45, Holy Eucharist and Address, 11.30, Evensong and Sermon at 7 p.m. The latter was fully choral, and an eloquent sermon was preached by the Rev. C. L. Acland, Head Master of Colchester Grammar School. At the close of the service, the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers," was sung, the choir and clergy, headed by cross-bearer, marching in procession down the south aisle and up the central aisle. The dedication service took place at 3 p.m., a procession being formed from the chancel, headed by the cross-bearer, and followed by the choir and the following clergy: The Bishop of Colchester, Rev. C. Grinstead (vicar), Rev. F. Stewart (Doddington), Rev. C. R. N. Burrows (curate of St. Thomas', Brentwood), Rev. H. D. Heatley (Ingrave), Rev. R. T. Pollexfen (curate of South Weald), Rev. P. T. Claughton (Hutton), Rev. G. H. Raynor, Rev. M. R. Barnard (Margaretting), Rev. L. N. Prance (Stapleford Tawney), Rev. C. Earle (Ingatstone), Rev. Henry Elwell (Harlow), Rev. H. Patch (Coggeshall), Rev. H. J. Henry (Little Warley), Rev. R. T. Crawley (North Ockendon), Rev. E. S. Tiddeman (West Hanningfield), and Rev. R. W. Chilton (Mountnessing). The dedication form of service was the one commonly used for the purpose. At its conclusion, Mr. W. Oliver, from Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, chimed a few rounds upon the bells, after which the hymn, "Lift them gently to the steeple," to a tune specially composed for the occasion by Mr. F. Austin, organist of the church, was sung, the procession returning to the chancel.

The BISHOP of ST. ALBANS preached, taking for his text, Numbers x, 10. The sermon, like all the Bishop's sermons, was marked throughout by intense earnestness. The preacher referred in kindly terms to the donors of the bells—Mr. E. Howell Palmer, a nephew of the late Mr. Belli, and Mrs. Boreham, and said he hoped the congregation felt moved in their hearts at the sound of the bells, to devote some portion of the substance God had given them unto His praise and glory. He could wish that the parish, for which so much had been done by others, and for which the Vicar had laboured so earnestly, would strive to complete the work which had made Brentwood church the church they had long wished to see it. The sound of the bells was the link between the world in which they lived, and that world invisible, in which they hoped to appear hereafter. He reminded them of the recollections the sound of the church bells brought to the colonists far away. More than once, to his knowledge, subscriptions had been raised to send out bells to them. He need scarcely remind those, he thought, who used their sturdy strength and skill to send the sounds of the bells forth, that theirs was an honourable office, and it behoved them to be circumspect in their walk before God and men. He would put a question to every person present. Was it not a shame to be seen on the Lord's Day, when the church bells sounded, going, as thousands did, away from the Lord's House, taking their pleasure on the holy day, teaching their children and those to come after them to do the like, when their neighbours were assembling for prayers?

The service concluded by the singing of hymn 303 A & M, and the Blessing. There was a large and fashionable congregation, the offertory amounting to £37.

The old established firm of Mears and Stainbank were entrusted with the order for the new ring of eight, which has been hung in an iron frame. The bells, the gift of Mr. C. Howell Palmer and Mrs. Boreham, in memory of the Rev. C. Belli, are in the key of B flat, and are as follows:—

INSCRIPTIONS.

- Treble*.—5 cwt. 3 qrs. 18 cwt.: "J. C. Quennell, M.D., et C. J. Wallis, custodes sacrorum; Carolus Grinstead, Vicarius. A.D. 1887."

The bells are hung in two tiers, the fourth and fifth being above the others, and the whole is so arranged as not to have any bearing upon the outer walls. The whole ring is provided with the firm's improved chiming apparatus, which includes hammers connected with the keys of an oak table, by means of spindles, brackets, copper wire, &c. Previous to the dedication service the bells had not been struck round, but when such was done, not only was the ring in perfect tune, but the whole of the appliances were found in perfect order.

The ringing chamber is 12 ft. 8 in. square, and notwithstanding the difficulty in obtaining a good circle when it becomes necessary to mount any or ring above the others when the ropes are fixed, there cannot be any doubt but what a good circle will be the result. At a future date we understand it is intended to add a couple of trebles, for which space has been left. As previously stated in this journal the bells are not to be raised for two years by the express order of the architect; this is owing to the fact that the tower has only just been erected and it is considered desirable to let the masonry become well set before there is any vibration in order that no damage is done to the tower. With the exception of the ropes everything has been left ready for ringing. The ringing-chamber and the clock room are about 25 feet in height combined, and troughs run through the latter. As far as can be judged from an inspection, the whole has been carried out by the firm of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, that there is not the slightest room left for criticism. Mr. Oliver made good use of the chiming apparatus on Wednesday evening, and the musical qualities of the whole ring leave nothing to be desired. The tenor has a rich mellow tone, and proves an excellent cover. Mr. Baker, who has charge of the tower, and Mr. B. Keeble, of Romford, tested the apparatus, the latter striking off some Grandsire Doubles. On Sunday evening the tower was visited by Messrs. A. J. Perkins and B. Keeble, of Romford, the former striking a course of Grandsire Triples. Those who have had the pleasure of listening to the bells, or paying a visit to the belfry, have expressed entire satisfaction with the whole of the arrangements, and consider the tower and bells bid fair to stand at the top of the list of those in the county of Essex.

There remains but one point to allude to, for which we may be pardoned. A unanimous desire has, at a large meeting of the Essex Association, been already expressed that openings in the county should be left in the hands of bona fide members of the Association, and it is to be hoped that when the proper time arrives for raising the bells, care will be taken to comply with this fair and reasonable desire of the Association.

THE ROCHDALE AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The above Association will hold the Quarterly Meeting at Todmorden, Saturday, November 5th; the bells will be at the disposal of ringers from two till seven, when the meeting will be held in the Schoolroom. Teas and refreshments can be obtained at the Fielding Coffee House close by.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1887.

THE interesting papers now appearing in this journal, the compilation of our friend MR. JERRAM, will no doubt be read by many who will be amused at the somewhat quaint explanations given by an Oxford ringer of the last century—a MR. HEARNE. We can well picture the smile which will overspread the reader's features as he reads the accounts of the various attempts which were made by these Oxford worthies to secure a peal. We wonder when they were taxed with the apparent fruitlessness of several of their trials they consoled themselves with the modern joke that it was "all practice," and it would be interesting to learn whether the culprits who caused so many disasters received at the hands of their companions a sample of those merciless verbal castigations the like of which we sometimes hear in the present day, and which no doubt they fully merited. Little did the Taylor, and the Pot-ash Maker, and the Barber, and the Cook, and the rest of them imagine that their shortcomings would ever be brought to the ken of ringers a century after they had departed the way of all flesh, in a journal devoted to an art the practice of which they seemed at times to hold too cheap.

Yet it would be well when the account of these various unsuccessful attempts are read to pause and consider whether there are not plenty of ringers to be found at the present day whose gross carelessness is not often the cause of a breakdown in a peal. The allusion is too often deserved. Among bands attempting peals there are frequently to be found those whose want of care is proverbial; who have to be continually watched—a most unpleasant duty—and who give the retort un-courteous when their errors are made too plain for them. Others are to be found guilty of attempting to guide and direct when it is well-known that they require all their attention to themselves to keep straight. And there are others whose general want of care makes them the principal culprits when a change-course or other unfortunate event occurs.

If the publication of the shortcomings of latter-day ringers could be depended upon, these papers now appearing would certainly point a moral. The habitually careless ringer would certainly have the fear of exposure constantly before him, which would possibly teach him to take more pains when occupied in the belfry. Perhaps however, the hints which our remarks convey to such people may lead them in the future to greater efforts towards something near perfection. We hope so.

We have received several communications approving of our comment last week upon the action taken by a few members of the St. James' Society in prohibiting the booking of a peal of Triples because seven bells only were rung. We are unable to find room for these letters, nor do we think it necessary to publish them. A special meeting of the society is announced for Monday next, when unless some other reason than the one alleged can be shown, it is hoped the previous decision may be reversed.

Church News.

The Earl of Harewood has given the site, worth £1,500, for a new church, schools, and parsonage at South Stockton.

A window has been placed in the north-east transept of Canterbury Cathedral by Mr. Loftus Pemberton, as a memorial of his uncle, Lord Kingsdown.

The Torquay local board have decided upon inspecting every building, including churches and chapels, capable of accommodating 100 or more persons, in order to secure adequate means of exit in case of fire or panic.

On Sunday week, owing to some defect in the heating apparatus at Oldbury church, about twenty persons fainted, and many, both adults and children, had to be carried from the building. The service was abruptly closed.

As the income of the vicarage of Llanllugan amounts only to £87 the governors of Queen Anne's Bounty have offered £200 to improve this living, provided that an additional £200 be raised by next December. As the population are very poor the sympathy and support of the public are solicited.

The examination for the Bishop of Newcastle's Advent Ordination will begin at Benwell Tower on Wednesday, November 23rd. Candidates for deacon's orders to arrive at Benwell Tower on the previous evening and candidates for priest's orders not later than ten o'clock on the morning of the following Friday.

On Saturday the Mayor of Exeter presented to the vicar of Upton Pyne (the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote) a window which had been placed in the church by parishioners and by Exeter friends in memory of the late Earl of Iddesleigh. The Dowager Countess, the Earl and Countess of Iddesleigh, Mr. H. S. Northcote, M.P., and other members of the family of the late Earl were present.

On Tuesday week, the Bishop of Chester consecrated St. John's, Newton, Macclesfield. The building, which was designed by Messrs. Killmister and Briggs, is in the style of the thirteenth century. It furnishes accommodation for 600 worshippers, without reckoning the choir. The entire cost has been about £6000. The sermon was preached by the Bishop from Isaiah liv., 2.

On Wednesday week, the Bishop of Chester re-opened the chapel attached to Copethorne Hall, the seat of Mr. Bromley Davenport, M.P. for Macclesfield. The building has been thoroughly restored by Mr. Davenport's mother, as a memorial to her late husband, Mr. W. B. Davenport, M.P. About £5000 has been expended on the work, one of the features of the ornamentation being a representation in mosaic above the altar of the death-bed of the deceased gentleman.

On Wednesday, the Bishop of Bathurst attended a farewell service at York Minster, of which he was a Prebendary. The music was selected from the compositions of his family, and the sermon was preached by the Archbishop. At the conclusion of the service a meeting was held in the Zouch chapel. Archdeacon Yeoman presented Bishop Camidge with an address from the members of the Cleveland and South Durham Clerical Society.

On Thursday, Maids Moreton Church, Buckinghamshire, was re-opened by Archdeacon Randall. The whole of the church has now undergone complete restoration at a cost of about £1500, including £600 given by Miss Turnour Andrewes, the lady of the manor. The Architects have been Messrs. St. Aubyn and Wadling. A new pulpit has been presented by the Bishop of Winchester. It is of carved wainscot with open tracery panels.

The annual meeting of the Parochial Missions to the Jews' Fund was held on Friday at Sion College, the Bishop of Bedford in the chair. Bishop Blyth explained the nature of the work which the committee, at his desire, were about to undertake among the Jews in Alexandria, provided the special appeal which they were about to make should meet with a sufficiently favourable response. The Bishop of Bedford urged the claims of the fund to support from churchpeople, on the ground that its method was best suited to the difficult circumstances in which certain East-end parishes were placed by the great influx of Jews.

Mrs. Temple, wife of the Bishop of London, presided on Friday week at a drawing-room meeting of the London branch of the Ladies' Home Mission Association, of the Society for Employing Additional Curates held at Bridewell Hospital, New Bridge-street. Mrs. Temple referred with regret to the loss which the society had recently suffered by the death of Mrs. Walsham How (wife of the Bishop of Bedford), who was one of the vice-presidents of the society. The Rev. E. C. Brooke, of St. John-the-Divine, Kennington, referred to the great need of additional curates in many of our London parishes. The old voluntary church school system was one means of great good being done among the masses.

On Thursday week, the Lord-Lieutenant of the county (Lord Clinton) laid the corner-stone of a new cloister at south side of Exeter Cathedral. The scheme is to restore the old cloister with a library, and the former foundation has been traced and the building erected according to the original formed. The library will be over the cloister, extending from east to west. The total cost has not been estimated but that portion in hand will be £4000. The greater portion of this money is provided by bequests of the late Chancellor Harrington and the late Dean (Dr. Boyd), Canon Cook, and the other Canons of the Cathedral also contributing. The £4000 will provide five bays of cloister, with library, staircases, and lavatories. The architect is Mr. Pearson, A.R.B.

The re-opening of the church of St. Barnabas, Queen Camel, Somersetshire, took place on Thursday week. This place derives its name from Godwin, the Earl of the West Saxons, having given Camel to his wife Gytha, the mother of Eadgyth and of Harold, as a dowry, A.D., 1019. On the death of Harold, William the Conqueror claimed Camel as spoils of war, and granted it to his Queen, and for 500 years it belonged to the Queens of England; but in the year 1188, William de Romara, Lord of Cleve, held the manor of Queen Camel on certain conditions under the Queen. He founded an abbey for Cistercian monks, and on his dying without issue in 1202, his father-in-law, Hubert de Burgh, Earl of Kent, and Chancellor of England, by permission of the Crown, granted the church of Queen Camel to the abbey founded by De Romara. In the sixteenth century Queen Elizabeth exchanged the manor of Queen Camel for that of Great Weldon, in Essex, with Sir Walter Mildmay, founder of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and the ancestor of the present Lord of the Manor, and patron of the living, the Rev. Arundell St. John Mildmay, of Hazelgrove. The tower, with its six bells, was restored thirty years ago, and during the last twelve months an entire restoration of this noble church has been carried out under the direction of J. L. Pearson, R.A.

Speaking at a Church defence meeting at Birmingham Town Hall on Monday night, the Earl of Selborne said that the gross doctrine of materialism which was being taught sapped the very foundations upon which morals, society, and law ultimately rested. They were now in the middle of this great battle. There was a common enemy for all good Christians to resist, a common faith to defend, and he urged them to make most of the points on which they agreed, instead of, as sometimes happened, those on which they differed. The great unity of the Church of England had pervaded our history, moulded our institutions, and formed our morals. It had, in fact, done more good than all other religious bodies together to educate generations of Englishmen in the pure faith and sound morality of the true Gospel. To disturb the centre of gravity, as he might term it, of the Church, of the whole religious and moral system of the country, would unsettle to an incalculable extent everything that depended upon it. After referring to the tithe question, Lord Selborne said that if Churchmen would only hold together they would be a great power in the State. Let them be as liberal as possible in their views on public questions, but don't let them sell their Church for political objects of any kind.

DEATH OF MR. BERESFORD-HOPE.

A distinguished churchman, after a most eventful life, has been called to his rest. It is impossible in the space allowed us here to do very little more than announce that fact. The daily and weekly press dwell at some length upon the life and doings of the deceased, and his principles and speeches. We can best close this brief notice by quoting the words of Dr. Vaughan, in the course of his sermon before the University of Cambridge, on Sunday afternoon :—

"In this University church to-day I should feel that something was wanting if the preacher did not give one word of respectful sorrow to the memory of our chosen representative in the great council of the nation, the honoured and lamented Beresford-Hope. Politics must be silent, absent here; but they may be silent or absent and yet leave this man, leave all that was characteristic of him—for the characteristic of the man, all will agree, was his independence. It is a blameless, a beautiful life to look back upon it from undergraduate days, and remember nothing in it that would not bear the scrutiny of the sunbeam. The Church may well mourn him, for he was her devout and devoted son and munificent benefactor, her dauntless champion in good report and ill, most of all in the latter. But I think that England mourns him too, were it but that he suffered not himself to be tripped under foot and ground to powder by the juggernaut of party; willing to stand alone, if need be, in the maintenance of principle, and never suffering principle to be moulded or manipulated by considerations of that sort of convenience which men seek to dignify by the more respectable title of expediency or policy. We have other such men. These late days of trial have brought them out as gold from the furnace; but his was a religion not merely of political independence; he sought nothing and he gained nothing by it save the testimony of his conscience and the respect of good men. Peace be with him. May another like-minded with him in the sensitiveness of conduct, in the delicacy of honour, in tenacity of purpose, in fervour of faith, in munificence of piety, be found—if it be by long research—to replace him, and may his example provoke very many to go forth from this place to play the man in England!"

THE COLLEGE BELLS OF OXFORD.—NEW COLLEGE.

The tower of New College contains a peal of ten bells, tenor 20 cwt., 49 in. diameter, E flat. They are thus inscribed:—

- Treble*.—"Manners maketh man. A (a bell) R. 1712."
Second.—"Manners maketh man. W. W. 1712."
Third.—"Michael Darbie made me. W. W. 1655."
Fourth.—"Manners maketh man. A. R. 1703."
Fifth.—"Michael Darbie made me. W. W. 1655."
Sixth.—"Henry Knight of Reading made me. 1672."
Seventh.—"Prosperity to New College. A. R. 1712."
Eighth.—"Michael Darbie made me. W. W. 1655."
Ninth.—"Manners maketh man. A. R. 1723."
Tenor.—"Michael Darbie made me. W. W. 1655."

I must here observe that these bells were originally a peal of five; they were recast into eight by Michael Darbie, in 1655, when the surplus metal overpaid all expenses. The two trebles were added by Rudhall, in 1712.

In Mr. Hearne's diary for 1733 (referring to the visit of the London ringers, mentioned in my account of Christ Church bells) he says: "On Thursday, May 17th, they began to ring at New College, proposing to ring the said number of changes, viz., 5040 there. They began a little before twelve, and rang about three quarters of an hour, when one of the ropes broke, and so they were stopped. Afterwards they dined at the Weers beyond Friar Bacon's Study, and some (if not all) of them stepping over to Ifley, they rang the six bells there (viz., 700 changes upon them)."

"The next day being Friday, May 18th, they were resolved to ring the above mentioned number of 5040 changes upon New College ten bells, as they had begun to do before. Accordingly they began a little before twelve, and rang full two hours in the morning, wanting two minutes, when the ropes broke and put a stop to the peal, for which all were very sorry, as they were at the fall of the great bell at Christ Church. For their ringing at both places, as well as elsewhere, was most surprisingly fine, without the least fault from beginning to end, such as never was before in Oxford, and 'tis a scandal that the bells should not be in good order. Saturday, May 19, they went out of town."

"1734, May 2, Thursday. Yesterday an attempt was made upon New College bells of 6876 changes. They began a quarter before ten in the morning, and rang very well till four minutes after twelve, when Mr. Brickland, a schoolmaster of St. Michael's parish, who rang the fifth bell, missing a stroke, it put a stop to the whole, so that they presently set them, and so sunk the peal, which is pity, for 'twas really very good true ringing, excepting five faults, which I observed (for I heard all the time, though 'twas very wet all the while) in that part of the parks which is on the east side of Wadham College, where I was very private; one of which five faults was the treble that was rang by Mr. Richard Hearne, and the other four were faults committed by the above said Mr. Brickland, who 'twas feared by several before hand would not fully perform his part, but they took him now because Mr. Broughton (who otherwise should have rang) was out of town, attending as barber in a progress of Magdalen College. Excepting this Broughton and George the ringers were all the same with those mentioned under January 24 last. Mr. George's hands (he is above fifty years old) being not quite recovered from of some blisters he received the last ringing on April 15 last, Mr. Nash, cabinet maker (who came from London, but now lives at Oxford), who is an excellent ringer, supplied his place, and rang the third bell, so they were as follows: Mr. Hearne the 1st or treble, Mr. Vicars the 2nd, Mr. Nash the 3rd, Mr. Terry the 4th, Mr. Brickland the 5th, Mr. Yates the 6th, Mr. Smith the 7th, Mr. Barnes the 8th, Mr. Lloyd, the 9th, Mr. Benwell the 10th or tenor. Mr. Yates before rang the fifth, and then the sixth was rung by Mr. Broughton, in whose room Mr. Brickland was now taken. When I mentioned afterwards my observations to ye sd Mr. Smith, he told me, that tho' he rung himself yet he minded the faults also himself. Upon which I ask'd him, how many there were? he said three before that wch stopp'd them. I told him there were just five before that, at which he admired my niceness. They rang in the said two hours and nineteen minutes 3475 changes, which wanted 3401 of the number proposed."

"1734, September 28, Saturday, 4 Kal Oct. Yesterday being the obit of William of Wickham (founder of New College) and the festival of St. Cosmas and Damianus, some of the Oxford ringers agreed to ring at New College, proposing to ring 6876 Cator changes upon the ten bells there. They designed to have begun at eleven in the morning, but 'twas near twelve before they began, for they had rang only two hundred changes when the clock struck twelve. They had so many gross faults that 'tis not worth while to particularize them all, only thus much may be noted, that a bob was missed being called before they had got two hundred, and that they strangely blundered a little after they had rang 600, and so again after they had rang 1100, and so after 1400 and 1900; and at length when they had rang 2714 (which wanted 4162 of the whole), they were quite out, it being then three-quarters after one. Then they set the bells and soon after began and rang 650, and made an end at very near half hour after two, so that the whole both times were 3364 changes in two hours and nineteen minutes. I was very apprehensive yesterday when they first began, that they would not perform their task, the compass being too wide, and the person who rang the ninth bell making a bad step even at first. Though 'twas so wet, I heard them all the time, walking for that purpose up and down the parks on the east side of Wadham College. Had they finished the peal and done it well, I should have taken care to transmit in print (in one of my books that I print at the Theater), the names of the several ringers to posterity, 6876 changes having never as yet at one time been rung in Oxford. But as the performance was bad (considering the character each ringer bore for his skill in the art of ringing), as it will not be for their credit to have their names mentioned so neither will it be for the honour of William of Wickham, to discover who the persons were that perform'd so lamely on the day he died, which day ought to be observ'd with all possible decorum, and the ringing should be then as clear and true as can be, for which reason I shall pass over (what might be further observed) in silence."

Mr. Hearne however seems to have thought better of his intention of concealing the names, for in a further extract after mentioning the ringing at Christchurch on November 5th, 1734, already recorded in the account of Christchurch bells, he says—"And now I have mentioned this 5th of November ringing, I will beg leave to take notice of the names of those who rang at New College (Friday), September 27th last, being the founder of New College's Obit, a thing I should not have done, had not the ringers been so proud of this 5th of November at Christ Church, and been so much ashamed of that at New College, and yet, I think, there is much more reason to be ashamed of that at Christ Church, than of this at New College. That they are ashamed of what was done at New College, appears from all accounts. In so much that they have endeavoured, as much as ever they could to conceal the names of those that chiefly erred or blundered in the ringing, which notwithstanding I have been able to find out. The names of the ringers are in order thus:—1, Mr. John Vickers; 2, Mr. Thomas Nash; 3, Mr. John George; 4, Mr. Guy Terry; 5, Mr. Thomas Yates; 6, Mr. John Broughton; 7, Mr. Richard Smith; 8, Mr. William Barnes; 9, Mr. Arthur Lloyd; 10, Mr. Nicholas Benwell. The day before the ringing, Mr. Vickers told me that Mr. Richard Hearne was to ring the first and himself the fifth, and Mr. Yates the sixth; but Hearne excusing himself from being one of them, Vickers thereupon rung the first, and Mr. Yates the fifth, and Mr. Broughton (who was not otherwise to have been one) the sixth. As to Mr. Vicars, he is very ingenious in the art of ringing, and is excellent in calling the bobs, and managing the musick of ringing. I think he is one of the very best in England, as he is with all a very good ringer himself; and yet at this time he miss'd calling two of the bobs (one of which was before she had gone two hundred changes), as at the same time did likewise Mr. Arthur Lloyd and Mr. William Barnes (otherwise two famous ringers), committ most notorious blunders, and these were the three chief blunders in this undertaking, and 'twas from their mistakes that the peal was spoiled; and yet it must be own'd that it happened purely from their being much in liquor, whereas they ought to have been sober, as indeed there can never be any true ringing but by persons that come perfectly sober."

"1734, March 12th, Monday.—Yesterday a new attempt was made at New College by Oxford ringers, to ring 6876 cator changes, but they did not succeed as it was hoped they would

They began about half an hour after twelve, and rang till a little after three in the afternoon. Being indisposed with a diarrhoea, I could not go out to hear them, and so will not pretend to be critical about the ringing."

"1734, March 22nd, Saturday.—On Thursday last the Oxford ringers began to ring at New College at three-quarters after twelve o'clock, and rang completely what they had attempted several times before, 6876 cator changes, finishing the peal about three-quarters of an hour after four o'clock. 'Tis the first time that such a number of cator changes was ever rung in Oxford upon ten bells. I did not hear the ringing myself for the same reason I have specified above March 12th inst., but I have heard from good judges, that take it altogether, 'twas a glorious performance. For tho' there were two very great blunders and some other bad ringing, yet considering the length of the peal, it was admirable ringing, such as can hardly be mended, unless it be by the Londoners, it being a thing as it were next to impossible to go through such a long tedious work without faults. The names of the ringers were (as before) 1734.

1. Hearne, the Taylor.
2. Mr. Vickers, second Butler of New College.
3. Mr. George, the Taylor.
4. Mr. Guy Terry, the Pot-ash maker in St. Clements.
5. Mr. Yates, second Cook of Magdalen College.
6. Mr. John Broughton, Barber.
7. Mr. Richard Smith, Glover.
8. Mr. Barnes, Second Cook of Christ Church.
9. Mr. Arthur Lloyd, of Holywell, Carpenter and Bell Hanger.
10. Mr. Nicholas Benwell, who shew'd Great Tom.

They were much caressed when they had done, and were handsomely treated or entertained at New College, but Mr. Barnes could not be at the entertainment, being obliged, as soon as the ringing was done, to go to his brother the waggoner's in St. Aldate's, then dying, who indeed died that evening of a dropsy. He is the same Barnes that set up a waggon in opposition to the Vice-Chancellor."

Thus much for Mr. Hearne's account of the ringing at New College. I shall conclude this article with a copy of a tablet in the belfry.

"March 27th, 1815. Rung in this Tower a complete peal of Grandsire Cators, containing 10,008 changes, in 6 hrs. and 42 mins., by the Junior Society of Cumberland Youths. Thomas Pavier, Treble; William Parker, Second; John Tagg, Third; George Pavier, Fourth; Henry Carr, Fifth; Charles Pavier, Sixth; Joseph Montague, Seventh; Edward Nickolls, Eighth; Jonathan Pavier, Ninth; Thomas Cook, Tenor.

This was the greatest number of changes ever rung in the University of Oxford. Composed and conducted by E. Nickolls. Tenor 19 cwt. J. R. JERRAM.

THE EASTERN COUNTIES' GUILD.

A general meeting of the above Guild was held on Saturday, October 22nd, at Spalding. Ringing commenced at the parish church at eleven o'clock, when three 120's of Grandsire Doubles were rung by the Spalding company; also 360 of Plain Bob by six of the Walpole company, the two tenors being rung by Spalding men; and 350 of Oxford Treble Bob. J. Brett, G. Richardson, H. Hill (conductor), R. Grimes, Dr. Seccombe, and H. Holland. Dinner was excellently served by Mr. Emerson at two o'clock in the National Schools. Dr. Seccombe presided, supported by the Rev. Canon Moore and Mr. H. Watkinson. After dinner, the toast "Church and Queen" was proposed by Dr. Seccombe. Votes of thanks were accorded to the Vicar for the use of the bells and schoolroom, and his kindly interest in the Guild, and to the chairman. The meeting for the transaction of business was then held, at which five new members were elected, and the next place of meeting fixed, namely, Long Sutton, subject to the approval of the Vicar. On ringing being resumed, 360 of Plain Bob was rung by a mixed company, and a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob. J. Brett, W. Day, H. Hill (conductor), R. Grimes, H. Merrishaw, W. Wright; six 120's of Grandsire Doubles by a mixed band, and 363 of Oxford Treble Bob, the day's ringing being brought to a end with 336 of Grandsire Triples, by J. S. Wright, J. Mackman, G. Ladd, C. Neaverson, G. L. Richardson, R. Mackman, J. W. Jarvis, and R. Jarvis.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

A QUARTERLY MEETING was held on Monday, October 24th, at Christ Church, Mitcham, by the kind permission of the Rev. F. S. Legg. A little ringing was done here between 3 and 4 o'clock, by some members from Kingston, and then a move was made to the parish church of SS. Peter and Paul. Here they were met by F. W. J. Rees, Esq., of Guildford, lately returned from Bengal. At 6 o'clock some thirty-five members met at the Mission Room of Christ Church, and sat down to a capital meat tea, the Vicar, the Rev. F. S. Legg, kindly presiding, and saying grace. The large joint of beef, to which ample justice was done, was very kindly provided by the Vicar, so that the cost of the tea to the Association is comparatively small. The Meeting was also very kindly assisted by the two Misses Nicholson, who presided at the tea urns, and were kept very busy. After the good things had been despatched, the business of the evening was commenced. Mr. Rees was elected an honorary ringing member. Mr. Thompson's leaflets containing his 3-part touch of 4998 Grandsire Triples, with directions for completing peal, were passed round, and a vote of thanks to him was carried unanimously. The question of the proposed certificate of membership was discussed, and it was resolved that the arrangements for its production be proceeded with. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to the Rev. F. S. Legg, for his kind hospitality, and for allowing the Association to make use of the Mission Room and the belfry. It was resolved to hold the next District Meeting at Battersea, and the next Quarterly Meeting at Kingston-on-Thames. It was also resolved that collections should be made by the representative of each band for the widow and orphans of the widow and orphans of the late Mr. A. Brockwell, of Mitcham, who are sadly in need of help.

Afterwards five of the Kingston band rang a capital course of Grandsire Caters on the handbells, and then three of them, with Mr. T. Miles, of Epsom, rang a course of Grandsire Triples. In the belfry ringing was kept up until about 9.30 p.m. in Bob Minor, Cambridge Surprise, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob Minor. The thanks of the Association are due to Mr. H. J. Schneider for the capital arrangements he made for their entertainment, and his indefatigable exertions at the tea.

THE TITHE QUESTION.

At Hemyock, near Tiverton, hay belonging to two of the leading tithepayers, which had been taken under distraint by the Rev. E. W. L. Potnam, the rector, was sold yesterday week by public auction by Mr. J. B. Daniels, of Taunton. The owners were Mr. Edward Sutley, of Whitehall, whose arrears were (with costs) £31 10s. 9d., and Mr. J. Clist, of Mountshayne, whose arrears (with costs) were £11 7s. The dispute with the rector had its origin in his refusal to allow what was thought an adequate reduction the tithe, and the farmers considered their grievance aggravated by the spirit in which their proposals to discuss the situation were met. The sale of the hay was in itself a very formal matter. For each lot there was a single bid of the amount for which distraint had been made, and it was at once knocked down to a friendly purchaser.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

THE 250th ANNIVERSARY DINNER of the above society will take place at the "Bridge House Hotel," London Bridge, S.E., on Saturday, November 5th, at 7 o'clock precisely. The following towers will be open for ringing: St. Magnus, Thames Street, E.C., ten bells, 1.15 p.m. and 5.0 p.m.; St. Saviour's, Southwark, S.E., twelve bells, 2.30 p.m.; St. Michael's, Cornhill, E.C., twelve bells, 4.0 p.m. It is to be hoped that members residing in the country ringing centres will endeavour to be present on such an auspicious occasion. POWERSTOCK, DORSETSHIRE.

The venerable church of this place, of which Archdeacon Sanctuary is Rector, has just been enriched by the erection of a large chiming clock in the tower. It was finished a few days since, and was started by Mrs. Sanctuary. It has two dials each five feet across, facing south and west. The Cambridge quarter chimes are played upon four bells, and the hours struck upon the largest bell, which is a very fine-toned one. The clock movement is of the finest construction, generally upon the lines laid down by Lord Grimthorpe. It is fitted with all the latest improvements to ensure perfect accuracy of performance, and is guaranteed by the makers (John Smith and Sons, Midland Clock Works, Derby), to maintain true time with less variation than fifteen seconds a month. All the brass wheels of the clock have their teeth cut from the solid by powerful engines, so as to be perfectly accurate and smooth. The main frame is of one solid iron casting, planed smooth and true with all the various wheels, levers, etc., affixed to it by screws in such a manner that any separate one might be removed without interfering with the remainder. The whole of the works are fitted in a pitch pine case with glass front.

The same firm are also now about completing church clocks at Salcombe, Kingsbury Street, and others in neighbouring counties of Somerset and Devon.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—MANCHESTER AND THE SURROUNDING DISTRICTS.

NOTICE is hereby given, that a meeting of ringers of the above places, will take place on Saturday, November 12th. Time and place will be given next week. The object of the meeting will be to consider the advisability of forming the said districts into a branch or district of the above Association. All towers, containing six or more bells, within the proposed boundaries of Rochdale and Bury on the north; Walkden and Worsley, to Flixton on the west; Cheshire on the south; and Yorkshire on the east, are earnestly requested to send one or more members to the meeting. This invitation is for non-members as well as members of the Association. Communications respecting this meeting must be addressed to

UMPIRES.

SIR.—Knowing that there has been a lot of handbell performances done lately, and of course a great deal of credit is due to the performers, as I can testify by hearing a lot of it, and always seeing Mr. G. Wild of the Royal Cumberland Society, umpire, I had a notion I would introduce myself to him, as the saying is, to have a look, and found myself deceived in the man in respect of ringing abilities, but it appears anything will do for umpire. I really thought it was bad taste of our old friend Winny, at Fulham, the other Saturday, in introducing all in the room to the Birmingham men except the man G. Wild, who had sat umpire for him on several occasions. I do think umpires should know a little about ringing.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION REPORT.

SIR.—I think Mr. R. Binns has been somewhat hasty in his complaint about the non-insertion of the calling of his peal, for if he would take the trouble of looking at the ninth annual report he will find that the peal in question was rung at Drighlington, on Saturday, November 10th, 1883, conducted by Henry Smith. Had Mr. Binns made a proper investigation of the matter, I think he would have saved himself the trouble of "rushing into print." A MEMBER OF THE Y.A.C.R.

The exhibition of Her Majesty's Jubilee presents at St. James's Palace will close after Wednesday, the 23rd of next month.

Some burglars broke into Madame Patti's house, Craig-y-nos Castle, on Monday night, and stole some valuable trinkets belonging to Signor Nicolini. Patti's own jewellery, valued at £30,000, escaped the thieves. On Thursday there was a burglary at Tupsley, near Hereford, and Mr. Ballard was so seriously injured by the ruffians that he died on Tuesday.

On Thursday week it was discovered that Nelson's flagship Victory, lying in Portsmouth harbour, had sprung a leak and that there were many feet of water in the hold. Two hundred sailors and marines were at once placed on board with pumping appliances, and by their efforts and the aid of a tug the water was reduced so as to enable a diver to descend and stop up a hole which was found in the hull. The following day was the eighty-second anniversary of Trafalgar.

As the Rev. Richard Glover, vicar of St. Luke's, West Holloway, was returning from the Bishop's Visitation at St. Paul's, on Friday afternoon, he was knocked down by a light van, and narrowly escaped being run over. His injuries were attended to at St. Bartholomew's Hospital and he was soon able to go home. The van was driven by a boy of fifteen in the usual reckless manner of boys, and no policeman being near, he made off before the name on the van could be taken.

THE COLLEGE BELLS OF OXFORD.—MAGDALEN.

The tower of Magdalen College contains a peal of ten bells, tenor 21 cwt. in E flat. They are thus inscribed:—

Treble.—"The gift of Wm. Freeman, Esq. A (a bell) R. 1740."

Second.—"The gift of Wm. Freeman, Esq. of Magdalen College, A (a bell) R. 1739."

Third.—"God save the Queen. A.R. 1712."

Fourth.—"Peace and good neighbourhood. A.R. 1712."

Fifth.—"Recast at the expence of Wm. Freman, Esq. A.R. 1748."

Sixth.—"PRAYSE YE THE LORD. 1623. E.K."

Seventh.—" + Sum Rosa Pulsata Mundi Materina Vocata."

(This bell has also three shields, each charged with a chevron between three lave pots). (There is also a medallion charged with two birds on a tree and surrounded by the words "William Ffoundor me fecit.")

Eighth.—"Omnia fiant ad gloriam Dei. Recast by R. Taylor 1828."

Ninth.—"HONOR THE KINGE. 1641."

Tenor.—"LET YOVR HOPE BE IN THE LORD. E.K. 1623."

The eighth bell was by A. Rudhall, in 1712, previous to being recast by Taylor, and was inscribed "Est Campanarum sine me symphonia nulla. A.R. 1712." The peal appears to have been made into eight by Rudhall in that year, and increased to ten in 1740, as the inscriptions on the two trebles testify. The sixth and tenor are by Ellis Knight, of Reading.

Hearne says in his diary in 1733 (there were only eight bells here then) speaking of the visit of the London ringers in that year, before alluded to—"Wednesday, May 16th, in the evening, they (the Londoners) rang the eight bells at Magdalen College, but two or three ropes breaking, they could not proceed above half an hour."

On April 19th, 1742, at Magdalen College, ten thousand changes were started for, but after ringing seven thousand in fine style, the bob-caller by mistake brought the bells round in a little more than four hours.

Coming to the present century I note the following performances:—

"On Friday, April 11th, 1862, was rung on these bells Mr. J. Holt's original peal of Grandsire Triples, containing 5040 changes, in 3 hrs. 19 mins., by the following persons:—J. Hine, Treble; T. Hill, Second; W. Saunders, Third; C. Hounslow, Fourth; H. Mills, Fifth; R. Young, Sixth; D. Higgins, Seventh; J. Caste, Tenor. Conducted by C. Hounslow."

"Art hath no Enemy but Ignorance."

Rung in this tower, Monday, October 8th, 1866, a true peal of Grandsire Caters, consisting of 5021 changes, with the 5th and 6th behind the 9th, in 3 hrs. 18 mins., by the following persons. A. I am sorry to say that there is little or no change-ringing done at Magdalen now, and the bells are never heard except on the College ringing days, one of which is May 1st, when an early peal ~~is~~ is rung between 4 and 5 a.m., when the choristers of the College ascend the tower and sing the morning hymn.

The College authorities rarely allow the use of the bells to change-ringers at all. On one occasion I heard that a gentleman, a well-known and influential member of the Oxford Guild, brought a company, and upon asking leave to ring, was informed that the matter should be laid before the College authorities at their next official meeting, in about two months' time from that day.

There are some curious clock chimes here, which strike two bells at the first quarter, four at the half-hour, six at the three-quarters, and eight at the hour. The arrangement is anything but musical, but I have no doubt that an old Magdalen man, who may have got accustomed to it in his youth, when visiting Oxford again in after years, and hearing the same old chime, would feel somewhat moved by the memories it would raise up.

J. R. JERRAM.

ALRISTON, NEAR BERWICK, SUSSEX.

The parish church of this quaint old town is a large cruciform building, dating from the 14th century, the whole of the outer walls being faced with flint, which has an unusual but very pretty effect. Its low central tower is supported by four lofty arches, and capped by a shingle spire. The church is now undergoing restoration. Owing to the bell frame resting upon the floor immediately above the tops of the tower arches, there is no possibility of making a ringing room, hence the ropes fall in the centre of the church. This makes an unpleasantly long pull for the ringers, and were it not for the iron guides about half way up, it would be most difficult to keep the ropes under control. There is no turret stair up to the bell chamber, so access to the bells is obtained by means of a ladder running up the side and across the roof of the north transept. The six bells are in anything but good order. They need re-hanging, and the third bell (which is cracked in the shoulder) re-casting, for its wretched flat sound sadly mars the harmony of the peal. We have heard an old Sussex ringer say that there was originally a peal of five, but that early in the present century the Alfriston folk bought a bell belonging to Berwick church, and added it to their own, after some little "tuning" by a local ringer. This may be true, for the second bell (a rather rough casting) is evidently a stranger. It has been much cut away at the lip to reduce its diameter, doubtless to make its tone in unison with its new companions.

As will be seen from the dates given below, the fourth bell is the oldest of the ring, having been cast in the year 1587, and a very fine sounding bell it is too.

Dates on the bells: Treble, 1819; second, 1628; third, 1811 (cracked); fourth, 1587; fifth, 1698. The tenor is not dated, but is evidently an old bell. It measures 36½ in. across the mouth, and is reported to weigh about 12 cwt., but we question if it weighs more than 10 cwt., as it is not a particularly thick bell. There is no church clock.

Ringers visiting Alfriston will find excellent accommodation at that ancient Inn, the "Star," said to have been built in the year 1520; whilst tradition states that there has been an hostelry on that spot since the time of King Alfred. Charles II. once took shelter at the "Star." The obliging hostess, Mrs. Page, still points out the place where the "Merrie Monarch" was hidden. Readers of Harrison Ainsworth's "Ovingdean Grange" will find the incident recorded in that interesting tale of old times in Sussex.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

Two very successful district meetings have been held during October. On the 6th inst., at Longbridge Deverill, between fifty and sixty were present, and ringing was kept up during most of the afternoon and evening. Service was held at the parish church in the evening, when a sermon was preached by the Rev. E. G. Wyld, Vicar of Mere. Tea was also provided for members and friends at 6 p.m.

On the 21st inst. another meeting was held at Cranborne, Only a few attended, but several new members were elected. The Rev. R. P. Thompson, Vicar, kindly entertained the members to tea at the Foresters' Hall.

THE NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

THE GENERAL QUARTERLY MEETING of this Association was held at Market Rasen on Saturday, October 30th, and despite certain unfortunate mishaps at the last moment, a very successful and enjoyable gathering was held.

As soon as the visitors arrived, the bells at Market Rasen were raised in peal, and subsequently a company was despatched in a waggonette to the neighbouring village of Claxby, in response to the kind invitation of the Rev. S. W. Andrews, rector of Claxby and Normanby-le-Wold, vice-president for this centre. At Claxby several six-scores of Grandsire and Bob Doubles were rung on the melodious bells, the esteemed and popular rector coming into the belfry during the ringing, and kindly inviting the visitors to the rectory to partake of refreshment. The bells were lowered in peal, and an adjournment was made to the rectory, where, after partaking of the rev. gentleman's hospitality, the visitors rang on their handbells double-handed, courses of Grandsire Triples and Bob Major.

Thanks were expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Andrews for their kindness, and the company hastened back to Market Rasen. On arriving at the Aston Arms, they found several old and new friends awaiting them, as well as a substantial and well-provided tea.

The Rev. S. W. Andrews at once took the presidential chair, being supported by the Rev. W. W. Cooper, rector of West Rasen; the Rev. W. F. W. Westbrooke, vicar of Caistor; the Rev. F. H. Dalby, vicar of Faldingworth; Dr. E. W. Barton; Mr. — Dalby; Mr. J. Casterton, Mr. C. Reeve. Mr. T. Nettleship occupied the vice-chair.

The genial Chairman submitted the customary loyal toast, which was cordially received.

Dr. E. W. BARTON said he was sure it would require no words of his to tell them how gladly he proposed and asked them to drink to the health of "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese." They were all Churchmen, and united in their church. They all knew the Bishop by repute; they knew him as a most agreeable gentleman, a great favourite, and one of the most kind-hearted gentlemen wherever he went. With regard to the clergy, they were intimately known to most of them, and they had the best wishes of everyone present. He had pleasure in coupling with the toast the name of their worthy friend and Rural Dean—the Rev. W. W. Cooper.

In responding, the Rev. W. W. COOPER said Dr. Barton, in proposing this toast, passed the greatest eulogium that could be passed on any one when he spoke of their Bishop as a gentleman. That word "gentleman" had given him (Mr. Cooper) a text. Gentlemen were not confined to palaces or to big houses, or to positions of that kind; some of the best gentlemen he had known he had found in some of the smallest cottages. He considered that man was a real gentleman, and that man only was a true gentleman, who was a good Christian. Now a good Christian was a man who remembered from morning to night, and from night to morning, that he was a Christian, that he was a servant of God, and as a servant of God he was bound to treat all his fellow creatures in every way with the greatest consideration, and to be very careful he did not, to use a common phrase, tread on anybody's toes. A real gentleman was one who never said an unkind word, or did anything likely to produce pain in others, unless he was like his friend who had proposed this toast (Dr. Barton), and who had sometimes to use a surgical knife. He was very pleased to be present, and hoped this might not be the last time he might have the pleasure of meeting them.

The Rev. W. F. W. WESTBROOKE said he was extremely pleased to be here; he had very often wished to be present at one of these Association meetings, because he had from the first the welfare of the Association at heart, but the multiplicity of engagements had prevented him from attending before; however, he was very glad to have the privilege of being with them on this occasion. He felt especially interested in the welfare of this Association, and he thought, as he thought at the first, that it was an institution very well calculated to be most beneficial not only to the ringers themselves, by bringing them together for mutual conferences and enjoyment, but also to encourage one another in systematic and skilful bell-ringing. He was sure Associations as this, whose object was to promote belfry reform, and to encourage the science of bell-ringing, were very important indeed, and calculated to lead their thoughts and hearts to good and holy things. What was so cheering or so encouraging as to hear the pealing of bells from their old steeples on jubilee days, on festival days, and on other red letter days in society and in the church? What was so calculated to draw forth from the heart feelings towards all which was good and elevating, and for the welfare of their country and those around them? And in the rural and town parishes what was so calculated to arouse spiritual feelings, and lead them to think of spiritual and holy things as the joyous pealing of the church bells? Many of their happiest and earliest thoughts seem to be those connected with the ringing of the bells. On these grounds he heartily wished success to the Association, and he hoped as time went on it would very perceptibly increase in numbers, and would also increase in the number of towers which should be opened for the admittance in the county, until it became a much larger and more important society. He believed the organisation had already done a great deal of good, and he wished it every prosperity. He should be glad to welcome the Association to Caistor at any time.

The CHAIRMAN said it was his honour to respond to this toast, and to thank them very much for the way in which they had wished the Association every success. As usual, Mr. Westbrooke and the other friends around always showed their readiness and zeal to help in any work which tended to the elevation of the lives of their fellow-creatures, and especially to do good to God's holy church. Therefore they as an Association of ringers were stimulated and highly glad to find their friends gathering round them from year to year, and were very pleased indeed that they were beginning to think what a wonderful body they as ringers were. He daresay when this Association first started, some thought it was a new and fantastical idea, while others might be disposed to think, considering what bell-ringers used to be, bringing them together again might mean nothing but a revival of the old mischief; but the effect of their associating together had proved, as it did in many other cases when people met together, that it tended to the elevation of people in many ways, and that it had been elevating to the ringers themselves; that they were as an Association not only themselves doing good, and not only promoting their own happiness on convivial occasions like this, but were also seeking to help each other to secure and extend the elevation of those around them, and to relieve the tedium of the work of life by a little innocent recreation and enjoyment. In conclusion, he thanked them for the way the toast had been received, and promised Mr. Westbrooke that if they went to Caistor they would do the best they could with his bells.

Mr. NETTLESHIP proposed "The Honorary Members," and said he was pleased to give this toast because he knew perfectly well that honorary members were a part of all Associations to whom honour was due. He had been connected with many associations, and his experience led him to say that they had been greatly indebted to honorary members. He always found there were a lot of gentlemen who could not take part in things in which they might take a great interest, still they could help by their subscriptions to forward the work in which they took such a great interest, when they could not take part in it. He missed from amongst those present the Rev. T. P. Holdich, who he believed was an honorary member of this Association. Mr. Holdich gave them an idea of what an honorary member could do, and that a man who was an honorary member could be a practical ringer as well; he was an example of what an honorary member should be—that he should take not only an interest in any particular thing which he encouraged, but should also, if possible, be able to take a practical part. He had pleasure in coupling with the toast the name of the Rev. W. W. Cooper, who, he believed, although he did not always suit everybody, always acted according to his conscience in endeavouring to do right.

The Rev. W. W. COOPER responded.

Mr. CASTERTON said it was the first time he had been at one of these meetings, but it afforded him very great pleasure to be present and to propose the toast of "The Visitors." Bells had a language of their own; at one time telling in mournful tones of the death of the departed, and at other times in joyous tones of the marriage, of some other period of rejoicing. When in large towns he had heard the merry peals of bells it had thrilled him with pleasure and happiness, as he had listened to them calling the people to prayer and praise. He wished the visitors a long life, and hoped they would meet again on a future occasion.

The Rev. F. H. DALBY replied.

The business portion of the meeting followed. It was decided that the next quarterly meeting should be held at Gainsboro' in January. The Rev. C. Moon, of Owersby, the Rev. F. H. Dalby, and Mr. J. Casterton were elected honorary members; five new ringing members, three from Louth and two from Market Rasen, and two non-resident life members were enrolled. A very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for presiding, and for hospitality he had shown to the ringers, was carried with acclamation, the Chairman acknowledging the vote.

The company were enlivened with songs, contributed by Messrs. J. Hackney and W. Southwick, and handbell-ringing by several ringing members.

After the meeting the visiting and home ringers repaired to the Market Rasen belfry, and rang several touches of Grandsire Triples (this being the first time that method has been rung here). S. Marshall, 1; H. Burkitt, 2; H. Gadd, 3; *W. Southwick, 4; *T. Bennett, 5; W. Lunn, 6; *C. Jackson (conductor), 7; T. Gibbons, 8. *Hails from Hull.

Thus ended a very happy and successful meeting.

DEDICATION OF BELLS AT BLOXWICH, STAFFORDSHIRE.

On Monday, October 31st, the peal of eight bells placed in the tower of Bloxwich church in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee was formally dedicated by the Bishop of Lichfield, and there were many tokens of rejoicing about the place in the shape of flags, banners, and other decorations, while the ceremonial not only drew together large numbers of the residents in the immediate locality, but also many visitors from adjacent towns. The peal consists of the old tenor bell, and seven new ones given by the following: Mrs. Foster, Mr. W. R. Lazenby, the Thomas family, the Somerville family, Mr. Thomas Foster, the Wesleyans of the locality, and the children. The bells were founded and hung by the well-known firm of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of London, and proved to be of fine tone. The proceedings began with a procession from the vicarage to the church, consisting of the choir and the clergy present, amongst whom were the Revs. Dr. Wilson (Moxley), R. B. Stoney (Wednesbury), G. W. Johnson (Short Heath), B. Wright (Darlaston), J. Pritchard (Blakenall), G. Tuthill (Wood Green, Wednesbury), E. M. Fitzgerald and W. B. Cowan (Walsall), J. Norris (Bridgetown), J. Venables and J. C. Hamilton (Bloxwich), W. Biaby (Blakenall), S. O. Dixon, F. E. Robinson, and J. Barrow (Vicar of Bloxwich), with the Bishop. The processional hymn was "Hark, the sound of holy voices;" the Psalms were the 148th, 149th, and 150th; the prayers were intoned by the Rev. J. C. Hamilton and the Rev. J. Barrow; and the Revs. Dr. Wilson and A. M. Fitzgerald read the lessons. Mr. J. H. Gower, Mus. Doc., presided at the organ. At the close of the third collect, the Bishop, with the clergy, choir, and churchwardens, repaired to the tower, where the churchwardens took the ropes of the bells, and, handing them to the Bishop, said: "Right reverend father in God, we request you to dedicate to the Glory of God and the use of Bloxwich church this peal of eight bells." His lordship, receiving the ropes, replied: "By virtue of our sacred office, we do solemnly set apart and separate from all profane and unhallowed use these bells, now dedicated to the glory of God, for the benefit of His holy Church;" and then, delivering the ropes to the vicar, he added: "Receive these bells as a sacred trust, committed unto thee as the appointed minister of this church and parish, and take heed that they be ever and only used in His service and for His glory. You are to take notice that these bells of the church are committed to the custody of the Vicar of the parish, to be used by his consent, subject to the ultimate control of the Bishop of the Diocese." Afterwards he recited the prayers used in the diocese of Lichfield on such occasions. The ringers then rang a short touch, and on the return of the procession to the church the service was continued, and an address was delivered by the Bishop. He said that as he came through the parish that day, and saw the signs of rejoicing on every side, and the crowds of happy faces gathered around the church tower, he could not help thinking of other and different occasions and different purposes for which people had lately been gathered together in other parts of the kingdom, and thanking God for that beautiful and happy occasion that called them together that day, for he read in their faces that they were a happy people, and from all he heard they were a united people. He thanked God, as bishop of the diocese, that it should be so; and he was told that in the preparation of the bells which had just been dedicated to the service and the glory of Almighty God their kindly feeling one towards another, and their goodwill towards the Church, had been most beautifully shown. He was told that each one of the new bells had been provided for by the gifts of some one individual or by persons who had joined together, and that even the little children had had their share in giving these bells to the parish. He rejoiced, also, to hear that even those who did not belong to their Church but to other religious communities, had shown their brotherly goodwill by themselves providing one of the bells. He trusted that this might not be only—as it was—an evidence of a happy feeling existing in the parish now, but that this common work might continue to bind them all more closely together in the bonds of Christian charity. Although he had to ask for their offerings that day, it was not for the bells themselves, which had been provided by others, but for the expenses, which they might well believe, were considerable, for placing them in the beautiful tower of the church. Tea was served in the National School Rooms, and an entertainment followed in the Music Hall, Mr. R. Thomas, jun. presiding. A peal of 5040 Stedman Triples was rung on the bells by members of the Staffordshire Association, mostly drawn from the ringers of St. Matthew's, Walsall, under the direction of the Rev. F. E. Robinson, M.A., Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. On Tuesday special services were held in the church, and a committee have arranged for miscellaneous jubileations, including a bonfire, in which twenty tons of coals, it is said, are to be consumed; a torchlight procession, masqueraders on foot, masqueraders on ponies, fireworks, music, and much else.

Obituary.

GEORGE MARRIOTT.

We regret to record the death of the above-named ringer, who died on Sunday, October 30th, in his 76th year. He rang his first peal (Grandsire Triples), which was a friendly or otherwise a non-society one, at St. Botolph's, Bishopgate, on the 12th March, 1835, conducted by the late John Cox, with whom he was always an allied friend and associate. He had been a member of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths for upwards of half a century, and during that time had taken part in some good performances on eight, ten, and twelve bells in company with those bearing such well-known names as Goozee, Shipway, Tolladay, Jameson, Dwight, Miller, Lobb, Britten, M. A. Wood, Ferris, H. W. Haley, Powell, &c., the majority of whom ringing has ceased to charm, and are with their fathers. The interment will take place to-day (Saturday), at 3 p.m., in Manor Park Cemetery.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

THE Annual Meeting for the election of officers will take place at headquarters, on Tuesday evening next, November 8th. Members are requested to be present.

GEORGE T. McLAUGHLIN, Master.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.—DISTRICT MEETING AT WARNHAM.

The fourth meeting of this Association for the present year took place on Saturday, October 29th, and proved as successful and enjoyable as any of its predecessors. The centre for the day was Warnham, a village about three miles north of Horsham, possessing a church, the entire fabric and appointments of which have during the past few years been restored in a most costly way, and now presents a pattern country parish church. Prior to 1886 the tower contained a ring of six bells with a tenor of 14½ cwt., it was then decided to add two trebles, recast one or two of the old bells, and rehang the whole, and since the completion in June, 1886, the local band have succeeded in ringing twelve peals of 5040 changes in nine different Triple and Major methods. The proceedings commenced on Saturday shortly after 9 a.m., with a 720 of Oxford Bob Minor, which was followed by touches of Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob, and Kent Treble Bob Major. At 1 o'clock an adjournment was made to the "Sussex Oak," where a cold luncheon was provided, and between forty and fifty members sat down under the presidency of the Rev. R. Bowcott, Vicar of Warnham, who was supported during the luncheon and business meeting by the following gentlemen: C. J. Lucas, Esq., (Warnham Court), Rev. J. H. Masters, rector of Slinfold; Rev. R. Hay Hill, rector of Parham; Rev. H. A. Spyers, vicar of Purbrook; C. Bartlett, Esq. (Ex-Mayor of Arundel); Rev. R. Tompkins, vicar of Tortington; Rev. G. C. Walpole (Amberley). The cloth having been cleared, business commenced by the Hon. Secretary reading the minutes of a District Meeting held at Lewes on Monday, August 1st. Nineteen fresh members were elected, including a new branch connected with the parish church of Midhurst. Mr. G. Williams was appointed as an additional instructor to the Association for Midhurst, and the western portion of the county. The names of four places were next mentioned for holding the next district meeting, when on counting the votes, the choice fell to Buxted, the date being afterwards fixed for the second or third Saturday in January. It was then suggested by the Rev. J. H. Masters, that in too many places the old custom was still in force of the ringers considering that they had performed their part of the religious service when the bells were lowered, instead of remaining to the service; he hoped that the Sussex and all other kindred Associations would endeavour to wipe out this inconsistency. The next motion was by the Rev. R. Hay Hill, seconded by C. J. Lucas, Esq., to the effect that at all future District Meetings of the Association, the rector or vicar of the place to be visited should be communicated with at least one month previous, and be asked to arrange a short service with an address to the members.

Votes of thanks were accorded to the Vicars and Churchwardens of Warnham, Horsham, and Slinfold, for the use of the church bells, and to the Rev. R. Bowcott, for kindly presiding at the luncheon and business meeting. During the afternoon bands were formed to visit Horsham and Slinfold, where various touches (a record of which is published in another column), were brought round. Tea was provided at six o'clock, and the parish church bells at Warnham were kept swinging till a late hour. The following branches were represented: Amberley, Angmering, Arundel, Balcombe, Brighton, Crawley, Horsham, Lower Beeding, Ruspur, Slinfold, Steyning, Warnham, and Worth.

SALISBURY CATHEDRAL.—For the last three weeks the cathedral choir has been composed of men only singing in unison. It appears that the complaint known as "mumps" broke out in the choristers' school about three weeks ago, and all the boys, except one, have been attacked by it. Although there have been times before when juvenile disorders have broken out in this school, never before (as far as can be recollected), have the whole school been laid up at one time. Most of the boys are now progressing favourably under the care of Dr. Coates, and it is to be hoped that in the course of another week the voices of most of the choristers will again be heard in the cathedral.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1887.

TO-DAY—the fifth of November—the members of the Ancient Society of College Youths celebrate their Two Hundred and Fiftieth anniversary. Many of our provincial friends, at any rate those who are not au fait with the historical data of this Society, will be inclined to ask why among other days in the year is the fifth of November selected for this purpose, and suppositions may arise in their minds whether the founders of this body were not in some degree connected with the perpetrators or exposees of that famous conspiracy known to all readers of history as "The Gunpowder Plot." Whatever chain of reasoning may beget such thoughts it is certain that there is no tangible fact in existence to denote the remotest connection between the founders of this Society and the dynamitards of the Stuart period. Such men as LORD BRERETON, SIR CLIFF CLIFTON, and SIR MATTHEW HALE—the latter a most distinguished jurist of the age in which he lived—were not the ones to tamper with sedition even in its weakest form, and yet if history—accompanied with a moiety of tradition, it is true—is to be depended on, these men with their contemporaries fixed this particular day of the year for the holding of the Annual Festival of the ringing Society which they established at a church then situate upon College Hill, in the City of London. It is more than probable that the day was selected for the purpose of celebrating the time with sufficient eclat when the land was providentially delivered from the results of what would have been a frightful tragedy had it been successful. We can in this present day well picture the horror created among our forefathers when the conspiracy of the Gunpowder Plot was brought to light, and their feelings of thankfulness at the escape of the King, Lords, and Commons from the heinous and dreadful machinations of the irreconcilables of the time. The circumstance naturally filled the minds of people so much that the day on which the conspirators were baffled in their dark designs came to be held in some sort of veneration by them; a day in fact to be kept as an holiday, to be celebrated and immor-talised in history. The Church did her share towards strengthening this feeling, by adding to her incomparable Liturgy a special service of thanksgiving to be performed on the same day annually, and which has only within recent years been removed from the Book of Common Prayer out of sympathy with the feelings of our Roman Catholic brethren.

There is no doubt that the fifth of November was selected by the early members of the College Youths for the reasons which we have indicated. Tradition informs us that the members were wont to assemble, headed by their beadle clad in the effusive panoply of his office, for the purpose of proceeding to church on that day, and as customary among Englishmen, and especially among ringers, to dine together afterwards. We must not expect to witness to-day a similar procession by the "Colls." The procession to Church to participate in Divine Service would of course be a grand revival of a very excellent old custom; but their appearance in the streets clad in any kind of distinctive regalia would only afford room for facetious observations and pungent satire. The latter however, we do not imagine will occur, either now or at any time in the future. The anniversary which will be celebrated to day is, as we have stated in a previous number, a "new departure." For many years the festival was held during the summer months, and the members were thus enabled to enjoy on "dinner-day" some delightful vista of country scenery, but this has been thought by some not in accordance with the traditions of the Society, and a movement to celebrate it in future on the original date has thus proved successful.

On Monday the Bishop of Rochester unveiled a window which has been erected at the west end of St. Peter's, Walworth, in memory of the Rev. F. Evelyn Alexander, the late vicar, who died in February last.

Church News.

On Tuesday Sir J. P. Deane formally prorogued the Southern Convocation till December 1st.

On Tuesday the Rev. Philip Deedes, of St. Albans, was appointed secretary of Haileybury College, on the retirement of the Rev. Lewis Deedes, after twenty-five years' service.

The consecration of Archdeacon Matthew as Bishop of Lahore, in succession to Dr. Valpy French, will, it is stated, take place at Westminster Abbey on St. Thomas's Day, December 21st.

On Monday the Bishop of Rochester unveiled a window which has been erected at the west end of St. Paul's, Walworth, in memory of the Rev. Evelyn F. Alexander, the late vicar, who died in February last.

The preachers at the Chapel Royal, St. James's, for the current month will be:—November 6th, the Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal; 13th, the Rev. W. H. Bliss; 20th, the Rev. A. H. Williams; 27th, the Rev. J. E. Kempe.

The Bishop of Chester has appointed the Rev. Herbert Bury, vicar of St. Peter's, Stockport, to succeed the late Canon Brown as honorary secretary of the Diocesan Church Building Society for the Macclesfield archdeaconry.

On Friday week the Bishop of Ripon held a special ordination at the Palace Chapel, and admitted Mr. Walter Mansell Merry, B.A., of Exeter College, to the diaconate. Mr. Merry will act as the Bishop's domestic chaplain and private secretary.

On Saturday week the Bishop of Ripon laid the foundation-stone of St. Luke's, Cleckheaton, on a site which had been presented by the Lowmoor Iron Company. The building will be erected from the designs of Mr. Medland Taylor and will accommodate 643 persons. The cost is to be about £5,000.

A special service was held at Nicholas Cole-Abbey on Thursday, November 3rd, at noon, to enable Cornishmen and others interested in Truro Cathedral to associate themselves with the consecration service. A short sermon was preached, and the service was over at 12.45. Holy Communion was celebrated at eight o'clock.

As the Rev. E. T. Hoare, vicar of Chilworth, Hants., was crossing the railway at Swathling on Monday, he was knocked down by a goods engine. He was conveyed to the Hampshire County Hospital, where his arm was amputated. He was also injured in the head, and is in a precarious state.

The east window of Bondwell church, Gloucestershire, has been filled with stained-glass from the studio of Messrs. Ward and Hughes. It bears the following inscription:—"To the glory of God and in memory of his father, the Rev. W. Thursby, who died Oct., 1884, aged 82, this window is erected by Piers Thursby, 1887." Mr. and Mrs. P. Thursby also gave an organ a short time back in memory of Mrs. Thursby, senior.

The Bishop of London has inhibited the Rev. Thomas Greenland, late rector of Raithby, Lincolnshire, from further preaching in Christ Church, Harlesden, a place of worship connected with the Reformed Episcopal Church. Mr. Greenland preached in the church on the 16th ult., and was announced to do so on Sunday next. Mr. Greenland, though he has resigned his living, has not severed his connection with the Church of England.

On Saturday afternoon the Rev. R. Raynbird, rector of Wentworth, Ely, feeling unwell, walked to a couch to rest himself, and expired almost immediately. His wife at the time was attending a special service at Holy Trinity, Ely, in connection with the Servants' Friendly Society. Mr. Raynbird was a scholar of Christ's College, Cambridge, where he graduated in 1843. He was ordained the next year, and in 1856 was appointed to Wentworth by the Dean and Chapter.

The living of Dolwyddelan, North Wales, having become vacant, the patron, Baroness Willoughby d'Eresby, has written to the parishioners offering to place the appointment in their hands. If they choose to nominate a fit and proper clergyman she will present him to the benefice. The parishioners have selected three candidates, whom they have submitted to the Bishop of the diocese for his selection. The parishioners will then submit the clergyman chosen to the Baroness Willoughby d'Eresby.

On Saturday week Countess Cowper laid the memorial-stone of the Church of the Holy Redeemer, which is about to be built in Exmouth-street, Clerkenwell. The Rev. E. V. Eyre delivered an address, in the course of which he stated that they were under a special debt of gratitude to the Marquis of Northampton for presenting them with the site for the church. When the Church was completed it would cost between £8,000 and £9,000., and they were now about £4,000 short of that amount; but within the last few days he had received an anonymous donation of £1,000.

An inquest was held at Baginton, Warwickshire, on Tuesday, on the body of the Rev. Frederick Gooch, D.C.L., aged eighty-four. Mr. Gooch, who was connected by marriage with the Speaker, had latterly been in poor health, and on Saturday he went into his library and shot himself twice in the neck. He was found dead on the floor. A verdict of suicide whilst in an unsound state of mind was returned. Mr. Gooch graduated from Christ Church, Oxford, in 1826. He was Fellow of All Souls' College from 1828 till 1853, and was appointed rector of Baginton as long ago as 1833, and was rural dean of Baginton from 1838 till 1884.

The Rev. E. Hodgson, vicar of Shocklach, Cheshire, who recently removed the communion table cover and substituted for it the pall used to cover coffins at funerals, in order to show the parishioners what a Low Church service was like, has placed his resignation in the hands of the Bishop of Chester. The ritualistic ornaments, subsequently removed into the churchyard by Mr. Piggott, churchwarden, were taken back by the rev. gentleman. They were carried out a second time, and the vicar has since conducted the services without these adjuncts.

In the unavoidable absence through indisposition of the Bishop of Oxford, Bishop Abraham consecrated, on Friday week, an addition to the churchyard and a chancel to the church of Holy Trinity, Hermitage, Newbury, of which the Rev. Philip Longmore is the vicar. This church was built in 1835 for the district which was then separated for ecclesiastical purposes from the parish of Hampstead Norreys. It was exceedingly plain and unattractive both externally and internally; but improvements have from time to time been effected. The new chancel, with appropriate fittings and a vestry, has been built under the direction of Mr. Maurice Hulbert. The consecration sermon was preached by the Bishop. The same evening a service was held, at which the sermon was preached by the Rev. J. Abernethy Coldbeck, licensed preacher in the diocese of London.

The clergy of the Diocese of Bath and Wells will rejoice in the announcement made last Monday, that the canonry at Wells, vacant by the death of Professor Gandell, has been conferred by the Bishop (Lord Arthur Hervey), on his examining chaplain, the rector of Weston-super-Mare. The Rev. George Buckle has been for thirty-five years identified with the work of the diocese, and he would have had probably the unanimous support of the clergy had the election rested with them. Mr. Buckle took his degree at Oxford in Easter term, 1842—First Class Mathematics and Second in Classics—at the same time with Bishop Temple, of Balliol; President Wayte, and the Right Hon. Mountague Bernard, of Trinity, who were also in First Classics. He was Fellow and Tutor of Oriel College, 1843-1852; Public Examiner in 1846 and 1850. Cardinal Newman, Bishop Fraser, Dean Church, Arthur Hugh Clough, and Matthew Arnold, were also Fellows of Oriel during these years. In 1852 Mr. Buckle succeeded to the college living of Twerton, and in 1868 was appointed Prebendary of Wells by the then Bishop, Lord Auckland; examining chaplain to Lord Arthur Hervey in 1872, and rector of Weston-super-Mare by the same Bishop in 1875.

OUTING OF THE ST. MARY-LE-TOWER SOCIETY, IPSWICH, TO LONDON.

On Saturday, October 15th, nine members of the above society paid a visit to London, where arrangements had been made to attempt a peal of Kent Treble Bob Maximus at St. Giles, Cripplegate, where after ringing in good style for 2 hrs. and 23 mins., it came to grief, through the 4th casting her rope. C. Mee (conductor), 1; J. Pettit, 2; I. S. Alexander, 3; W. P. Garrett, 4; F. Mee, 5; S. E. Joyce, 6; E. Horrex, 7; R. H; Brundle, 8; A. R. Aldham, 9; T. Steward, 10; F. Tillett, 11. E. Pemberton, 12. Tenor 36 cwt. On Sunday for morning service at St. Saviour's, Southwark, three courses of Stedman Cinques, and for afternoon service at St. Paul's Cathedral, three courses of Stedman Cinques, and for evening service at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, a course of Kent Treble Bob Maximus. On Monday morning they were kindly met by Messrs. Horrex and Woodley, who shewed them over the Guildhall, and St. Paul's Cathedral, where a pass was obtained, and in the afternoon arrangements had been previously made to attempt a peal at Fulham, but had to be abandoned on account of a funeral, so they went to Rochester Row instead, and rang some touches of Double Norwich, Treble Bob, and Stedman Triples, from whence they made their way to Liverpool Street, to catch the 8 p.m. train for Ipswich, having thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The company wish to thank all their London friends for their kindness in arranging peals, touches, etc., and also Messrs. Pettit, Horrex, and Woodley, for spending a great part of Monday with them, and also wish to thank their friends of the Royal Cumberland Society, for providing ringing at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields; hoping that they will soon again renew their visit, and then have the good luck to ring a peal.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.—CRAWLEY BRANCH.

On Sunday, October 9th, by the kind invitation of Mr. W. Wadey, six members, viz., Messrs. F. and G. Wickens, Hillier, Parsons, Newnham, and King, paid a visit to Billingshurst. Permission had been obtained to visit the parish church, and they rang a 360 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor, for morning service. In the afternoon a 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor, in 25 mins., and 360 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor. For evening service, 720 of Warnham Court Bob Minor, in 25 mins. Several other touches were rung during the day with the local ringers. Mr. W. Wadey is a member of the Crawley branch, and had generously provided a very substantial dinner for his brother members, and to which ample justice was done; they then left for Crawley in the evening, highly gratified with the trip. The following Sunday, October 16th, permission had been obtained to ring at the parish church at Horley, when Messrs. Hillier, Wadey, F. and G. Wickens, Newnham, Collison, Rice, Pierce, and D. Jordan of Capel, started to ring a peal of Court Bob Triples, but after ringing 55 minutes it came to grief through a change-course. Afterwards they rang two 640s Kent Treble Bob Major, for evening service.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION REPORT.

SIR,—In answer to a member of the Y. A. C. R. as he styles himself, saying the calling of my peal will be found in the ninth report, and rung at Drighlington November 10th, 1883, conducted by Henry Smith, is as I said in my first letter to your paper on this subject, not to be found, and if he says again it is there to be found after this second investigation he recommended, and in answer to this letter, I am convinced he will be absolutely in the wrong. Apart from all hastiness in my complaint about the non-insertion of my calling, I believe a peal was rung at the place and date above mentioned, and conducted with the same calling referred to in the ninth annual report, but he must allow me to inform him it cannot come round with that calling at 5056 changes, rung as published in the ninth report. Now allow me to ask him where the hastiness comes in. A conversation cropped up with the gentleman who rang the 7th bell in both peals when retiring from the tower after my peal, and he said it had been rung some time back in a revised form at Drighlington, and with this result; that No. 247 performance, or speaking like "rushing into print," the calling was false. I forward the calling of mine so that members with the ninth report may compare them, and hope he may, next time be writes on this subject, sign his name properly, so that I may see if he is a member of the Y. A. C. R., and hope, in conclusion that more attention may be paid to reports of peals rung by the officials who prepare them for printing in the report, and not alter them after being forwarded as mine was. R. BINNS.

THE TOTTENHAM PEAL.

SIR,—As perhaps you may have heard, the question of the booking of the peal of Bob Triples was brought on at the meeting of the St. James's society last Monday. The proposer of the resolution that the peal should not be booked was J. M. Hayes, and he was fully attended by the band of St. Stephen's, Westminster, where he is employed in teaching. These members of course followed as he led, as did the seconder of the resolution, C. F. Winny, and R. French and others. Their victory is not decisive, however,—16 for and 16 against. Mr. Langdon, the master of the company, gave the casting vote against us, and I wonder at this because he seemed to be inclined to our side, though perhaps he did not like to give offence to the persons above named. It was rather a boisterous meeting, and the marshalling of the forces against us was plainly seen. We were told previously, and not in a very courteous manner, that we could do what we liked, but we should not get the peal booked. Perhaps the individual who said that will tell us if it is at all correct to propose a person for membership in a public-house on a Sunday and then ring a peal with him there. Our peal, refused admission into the St. James's peal-book by a few members who want it all their own way, will be recorded in a manner equally as lasting as it would have been if entered in the St. James' peal-book. This record will state in full the unwise opposition of these people, and the proposer, seconder, and casting-voter will have their names added for the benefit and amusement and indignation of posterity. H. A. BARNETT.

SIR,—Messrs. J. M. Hayes—who proposed the resolution that a true and complete peal of Triples rung upon seven bells should not be recorded—C. F. Winny, who seconded the same, and Messrs. Hayward, McLaughlin, French, and others who supported it, are certainly very squeamish. They are not always so. In "THE BELL NEWS" of October 1st, I read of a peal being rung on handbells on a Sunday in a public-house, in which Messrs. Hayes, Winny, and McLaughlin took part. The other man who took part in the peal was a stranger—not a member of the St. James' Company. But they did not care for that. They made him a member there and then. Why not; there were three of them to do it. One of them proposed him, another seconded, and the third and last man carried him. And all this on a Sunday, at the meeting house of the St. James' Society. Is this according to rule? And yet these are the people who with their followers object to record a good peal merely because it was rung without a tenor. Shallowness, did you say, in your leading article on the subject? It's something more than that. Such pettifoggery ways will prevent me going to the St. James' Meeting for a long time. The fact is Messrs. Hayes or Winny or the rest of the objectors were not in the peal. Some of the others who were brought up to vote against this performance of a young deserving company, are only famous for their strength of lung, and are no ornament to any Society. ALEPH.

THE DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

THE annual meeting of the members of the above association was held in Durham, on Monday, October 31st, and like all previous meetings of the society held in Durham was most successful, the attendance of members being larger than ever. Performing members were present from Staindrop, Ripon, Winton, Durham (St. Oswald's), Jarrow (St. Peter's), Newcastle, Consett, Shotley Bridge, Darlington, Bishop Auckland, South Shields, North Shields, Chester-le-Street, Thirsk, and Stockton. The ringing during the day consisted of a 720 each of Bob Minor, Oxford, and Kent Treble Bob Minor, at St. Oswald's, and a 504 of Grandsire Triples at the Cathedral. At St. Oswald's church, a 720 of Plain Bob Minor was rung by the following mixed company: Wm. Henry Craggs, St. Oswald's, 1; E. Titt, South Church, 2; D. Skipp (conductor), Staindrop, 3; F. Charlton, South Church, 4; Lancelot Newton, St. Oswald's, 5; F. Cleminson, South Church, 6. At two o'clock in the afternoon a special service was held in St. Oswald's church, which was very largely attended. Prayers were intoned by the vicar (the Rev. Arthur William Headlam), whilst the special preacher was the Ven. Archdeacon Watkins. The annual dinner was subsequently held at the Three Tuns Hotel. About 70 sat down to a most excellent repast, which was served up in Mrs. Brown's best style. The vicar of St. Oswald's presided, whilst the vice-chair was occupied by Mr. R. S. Story, president of the association.

The CHAIRMAN proposed "Church and Queen," and hoped done of them would live to see the day when these two were reunited (applause).

The VICE-CHAIRMAN, in proposing "The Bishop and Clergy of the Dioceses of Durham and Newcastle," referred to the marked improvement in the relationship which now existed between the clergy and the association, and went on to allude to the success which had attended the efforts of their excellent secretary, Mr. Clarkson, to get the bells of Durham Cathedral placed in a state of good repair. Much had already been done, and doubtless the bells would be put in proper order as soon as the authorities appreciated the endeavours of the association and what they had in view (hear, hear). With regard to the bells of the Cathedral of St. Nicholas', he thought they would ultimately succeed in what they wanted by perseverance.

The CHAIRMAN, in responding to the toast, said that wherever there was a peal of bells he knew there was no clergyman who cared for the interests of his church and parish who would not cordially welcome the assistance of the Association to promote the art of change-ringing. Mr. Headlam also referred to the cordial manner in which Archdeacon Watkins responded to the request to address them in St. Oswald's that afternoon, and certainly all who had the privilege of hearing the Archdeacon would agree that he delivered a most excellent and appropriate address.

Mr. CLARKSON, the hon. sec., then read his annual report.

Mr. THOMPSON, Chester-le-Street, who referred in eulogistic terms to the manner in which Mr. Clarkson always drew up his reports, moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Mr. NORR, of South Shields, and carried unanimously.

Mr. G. W. ROUTLEDGE, of Newcastle, proposed "The Health of the President and Vice-Presidents," which was most enthusiastically drunk.

The PRESIDENT and Mr. LEE having responded, Mr. W. STORY, of Newcastle, gave "The Health of the Secretary." Mr. Story alluded to the arduous nature of the duties performed by Mr. Clarkson, and said that having that gentleman as their hon. secretary they had the right man in the right place.

Mr. CLARKSON said it was very gratifying to receive from year to year such unqualified terms of their approval of the work which as their secretary he had performed. Of course, one gained confidence as time went on, and he thought that an incompetent secretary would have worn the life out of the toughest society in existence in ten years. But they were still in a prosperous condition, and, although perhaps he commenced the report on terms which might not seem of a very congratulatory nature, still he was convinced that good seed was being sown for the future in these two dioceses, and the results would be richly produced in some future report. Mr. Clarkson said he did not wish to claim that the success of the association was entirely due to the way in which a single office had been fulfilled, because from the very commencement up to the present moment he had always received the warmest and most hearty support from every member who was in a position to afford it.

The members then proceeded to discharge the usual business.

Mr. W. STORY moved, and Mr. SCOTT seconded, "That the day for holding the annual meeting be changed to a Saturday, and that rule vi. be expunged."

An interesting discussion followed, after which the motion was rejected by an overwhelming majority.

The president (Mr. R. S. Story), the vice-presidents (Mr. F. Lees and Mr. T. Clark), and the hon. secretary and treasurer (Mr. G. J. Clarkson) were unanimously re-elected. A number of new members were also elected.

Mr. CLARKSON proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar of St. Oswald's for the use of his church, and for presiding at that meeting; also to the Archdeacon of Durham for his address, and to the Dean and Chapter for having so far taken into consideration the Association's complaints about the Cathedral bells, and for having had something done to them by that meeting. It was perhaps his fault, to begin with, that the work was not put in hand some time ago. Unfortunately, owing to several circumstances, they had been short by two or three days of carrying out the work in its entirety, and thus the bells which had given them most trouble that day were those which there had not been time to touch. These matters would be attended to in due course, and the peal in Durham Cathedral would be looked upon as a ringable peal for good long touches, or even 5000's, and when that time came he was sure that the Sacrist of Durham Cathedral would always be willing to do his utmost to afford every facility for ringers who could handle the bells to go and ring them at any time.

The SECRETARY announced to the meeting that in accordance with the decision of the Committee the February meeting would go to Chester-le-Street, the Whit-Monday meeting to Stockton including the peal of eight at Middlesboro, the annual meeting going of course to Newcastle.

RE-OPENING OF TWYFORD CHURCH, BUCKS.

ON Thursday, November 3rd, this ancient church was re-opened after partial restoration, which included the rebuilding of the tower. The bell-frame was shored up during this latter operation, to save the expense and trouble of taking it to pieces and refitting it. The "go" of the bells was found to be somewhat rough and heavy, and the position of the tenor rope very awkward, viz., close to the north east corner of the tower. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, however, two very fair 720's were rung by the following members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. J. W. Washbrook (conductor), 1; W. Woods, 2; H. D. Betteridge, Esq., 3; F. Field, 4; S. Hounslow, 5; Rev. F. E. Robinson, 6. Tenor about 11 cwt. Sermons were preached at Matins by the Ven. Archdeacon Randall, and at Evensong by the Rev. Dr. Merry, Rector of Lincoln College, Oxford, and the day passed off very pleasantly, notwithstanding the weather.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—MANCHESTER AND SURROUNDING DISTRICTS.

Notice is hereby given that the meeting of the above has been postponed until Saturday, November 19th. The meeting will take place at Manchester. Those intending to be present are requested to meet at Mr. Woolley's, Crown Hotel, Blackfriars Street, at 4.30 p.m. prompt. Subscriptions can be paid and new members elected at this meeting. The cathedral bells will be at liberty for the use of the members at the close of the meeting.

WANDBOROUGH, WILTS.

The peal of five bells at Wandborough, near Swindon, were re-opened on Saturday, November 5th, by a local band. The 2 bells have been entirely rehung by Mr. T. Blackburn, of Salisbury, who has also fixed a set of Ellacombe chiming apparatus. The go of the bells is all that can be desired.

THE BELLS OF ALL SAINTS' CHURCH, LOUGHBOROUGH.—AUGMENTATION TO A RING OF TEN.

The town of Loughborough has long claimed distinction throughout the country, or, perhaps, to speak more correctly, over the whole of the civilised world, as being what is popularly designated "the home of bells." For many years the numerous peals of bells which have received their form at the large bell foundry carried on by Messrs. J. W. Taylor and Co. have been despatched far and wide over the face of the globe, while that triumph of modern bell-founding, the famous "Great Paul," attracted so much attention to the town, that Loughborough has ever since been associated in people's minds with the production of church bells. It therefore seems only natural and quite apropos that the town should be in possession of a distinctive if not unique ring of bells. Up to the present we have had a choice peal of eight bells, and it is to Messrs. Taylor and Co. that the town is now indebted for the enlargement of these to a ring of ten, a distinction to which no other place in the county (except the county town itself) is entitled. In Leicester there are two rings of ten bells each, and the one now completed at Loughborough makes the third in the county. The two additional bells at Loughborough have been presented as a jubilee gift by Messrs. Taylor and Co., who have also been most liberal in recasting, with additional metal, some of the old bells. The task of augmenting the bells and re-hanging them on new frames was commenced in the spring of this year, and has been brought to a successful issue this week. On Tuesday evening the work was so far advanced that a trial peal of short duration was rung on the bells, and after such a lengthened silence, the melodious strains from the fine old tower of All Saints' attracted much attention.

On Friday the new ring was dedicated by the Right Rev. Bishop Mitchinson, D.D., D.C.L. (Archdeacon of Leicester), at a special service, which was attended by a large and aristocratic congregation. The Rev. T. Pitts (rector) officiated as Bishop's chaplain, and conducted the introductory portion of the special form of service used on the occasion. The following clergy of the town and neighbourhood also attended in surplices:—The Rev. O. Glover (rector of Emanuel), the Rev. E. Bell (vicar of Holy Trinity), the Rev. E. Smythies, R.D. (Hathern), the Rev. R. Burton (Rothley), the Rev. J. H. Killick (Prestwold), the Rev. Stuart Taylor (Sutton Bonington), the Rev. R. A. Parsons (Worthington), the Rev. F. J. Otley (Thorpe Acre), the Rev. J. Evans (Woodhouse), the Rev. W. R. Tagart (The Oaks), the Rev. G. Pope (Rempstone), Rev. V. Baker (East Leake), the Rev. J. Bird (Walton-on-the-Wolds), the Rev. R. C. Green (Wymeswold), the Rev. A. Shears (Sileby), the W. H. F. Hepworth (Sheepshed), the Rev. A. S. Newman, the Rev. J. G. Williams, the Rev. T. Masheder (Long Whatton), the Rev. S. Penny, (the Rev. S. Hosgood (Kegworth), the Rev. R. Copeman (Leicester), the Rev. A. Young, (Long Whatton), the Rev. A. L. Watherston (Hinckley), the Rev. C. E. Lambert (Sileby), together with Mr. W. Berridge (Loughborough), and Mr. Shuttlesworth (Sileby), lay readers. The processional hymn was the Old Hundredth, and the dedication ceremony was preceded by the formal licensing of Mr. A. B. Churchill as lay reader of the parish. Special psalms (47th, 81st, and 134th) were chanted, and the selected lessons (Numbers x to v. 11; and 1 Corinthians xiv. to v. 11) were read by the Rev. O. Glover and the Rev. E. Smythies respectively. Appropriate prayers were said by the Bishop, who standing under the tower, formally declared the bells to be "dedicated and consecrated to the service of Almighty God." The bells were then rung, and the hymn "When morning gilds the skies," having been sung, the Bishop preached an interesting sermon from the text "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him" (Colossians iii. 17). In the course of his sermon the right rev. preacher said that they never thought a church furnished until it had a bell to call the people together: There was nothing like being out of reach of the sound of a peal of bells (as he had been in a distant colony) to convince people how closely they were connected with worship and with the calm enjoyment of the Lord's Day. They could not be too thankful that religious persons from time to time determined to augment the bells of old churches and to invest new churches with such a desirable adjunct. Need he point out, too, how wonderfully bells symbolised the work of the Church of Christ in four of her most important functions—namely, to rouse the sleeper, to warn those in danger, to guide those who were lost, and to soothe and comfort those in pain or suffering. They had been invited that day to what might be called a reasonable service, and were carrying out the injunction of St. Paul by dedicating to Almighty God the peal of bells in that parish church. They were striking the key-note of a harmony which would keep on sounding throughout all ages, sometimes in a minor, sometimes major key, according to the circumstances which set the bells ringing, but all to the glory of God. That day saw the completion of the first part of a great work, for the re-hanging of the bells and the increase of their number formed but a small portion of a great task, boldly entered upon in the town of Loughborough. One of the objects of the scheme, thanks to individual munificence, had been carried out, for the defective pier in the church had been restored. Then they came to what had been completed that day so far as the work was concerned, making Loughborough pre-eminent in the diocese, and distinguished throughout the country for the possession of a peal of ten bells. The expense of re-hanging the bells had not yet been defrayed, and he hoped that day they would receive a liberal contribution towards the sum required. The scheme seemed a very big business, but it was a most reasonable one, and there was not one of the objects which could be dispensed with; they were all desirable for the town of Loughborough. He said the town advisedly, for he did not consider the benefits of them would be confined to the parish of All Saints. The Bishop concluded by appealing for support in the undertaking, first to the congregation present to aid in wiping off the debt on the bells before the campaign was fairly opened to carry out the other objects: secondly, for the general scheme, to the parishioners, and particularly to those who lived outside the parish, but who, as employers of labour therein, were reminded that they were equally liable in the sight of God for the spiritual welfare of the parish. He exhorted all to rally round the Rector to make it as easy as possible for him to carry out what he had undertaken for the parish. A voluntary was played by the organist (Dr. Briggs) during the offertory, and the service concluded with the recessional hymn, "O praise ye the Lord." The collection realised £24 towards the cost of re-hanging the bells.—Local paper.

UPTON ST. LEONARDS, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

On Saturday evening, November 5th, being one of the principal ringing days, eight members of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association made an arrangement to celebrate the evening by ringing Mr. Hubbard's peal of Plain Bob Triples, but there was a great detriment, one of the members not turning up according to promise, whose name I shall expose (W. J. Sevier), but another member accidentally dropped in, and by great persuasion he was enlisted to join us in the peal, telling us he thought he should not be able to stand out the peal, for he did not feel very well, but he would try and do his best. A start was made, and everything went on comfortable till just before the half-way single was due, a sound came from the member in question, to say he could not keep on much longer, so the conductor brought the bells round at the half-peal (2520 changes), in 1 hr. 35 mins. J. Middlecote, 1; J. Yates, 2; H. Mitchell, 3; R. J. Wilkins, 4; D. J. Aston, 5; S. Romans, 6; A. A. Waite (conductor), 7; and T. White, 8. Great credit was due to the conductor for the masterly way he conducted it, this being his second attempt. This is the longest touch by all, and the longest on these bells in the above method, hoping soon to obtain the whole peal, consisting of 5040 changes. H. M.

YORK MINSTER.—ASSIZE SUNDAY.

It being customary to ring the judges to service, the ringers took the opportunity, and rang for morning service a touch of 1349 Grandsire Caters, in 55 mins. I. Underwood, 1; R. Long, 2; G. Worth, 3; I. C. Cundall, 4; A. C. Fearnley, 5; E. Dawson, 6; J. Haigh (conductor), 7; T. Hodgson, 8; J. Thompson, 9; W. H. Howard and E. Morrod, 10. The above is the first part of the peal composed by W. H. Howard that appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" a short time back.

THE EAST LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of this Association was held at Algarkirk and Sutterton, on Saturday, October 22nd. By 9 a.m. the bells at Algarkirk were in motion, and the local company rang three 120s of Grandsire Doubles, two of Bob Doubles, and one of Hudibras. G. Oldacre, 1; W. Muse, 2; W. F. Harwood, 3; F. Clow, 4; G. Clow, 5. Members began to arrive from Boston, Skirbeck, Sibsey, East and West Keal, Longton, Friskney, Frieston, and Fishtoft. The company drove from Boston, and a halt was made at Kirton, when 360 of Bob Minor was rung. T. Cheetham, J. A. Hand, W. Vickers, J. Mawer, H. Daulton, J. M. Rylatt. At 2 p.m. dinner was provided at the Bridge Arms in a very creditable manner by Mr. Hudson, presided over by the president, the Rev. H. J. Cheales, who was supported by the Rev. J. Heath, Rev. F. Formby, and thirty-nine ringers and friends. After dinner the minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary and confirmed.

The CHAIRMAN congratulated the members on such a large gathering that day. He thought they were now at their extreme point. Having explained the three Associations in Lincolnshire, North, East and South, he hoped their friends in the South would not think they were getting too near them. He would have liked to have seen them altogether, but the time had not arrived yet. He thanked the Vicars of Algarkirk and Sutterton for the use of the bells that day, he said he hoped before they paid another visit the peal of eight at Sutterton would be ringable; the vicar said they would soon be attended to, two of the bells not being ringable, the others going very bad.

The Rev. J. HEATH, Vicar of Wigtoft, proposed success to the Association, and said he was very glad to be able to meet them, he having been a ringer himself some years ago. He gave a very interesting address on bells and bell-ringing.

Several new members were admitted, including the Rev. J. Heath, Rev. F. Formby, Captain Austins, Captain Stockdale, and Mr. T. Hand as honorary members, and three skilled members. The Secretary proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was well received.

Ringling was then resumed at Algarkirk. The Frieston company rung Grandsire, Bob Doubles, Dream, London Doubles, Hudibras, Antelope, and Dunstan's Doubles. Some Bob Minor was rung at Sutterton, but the bells going so bad only 360s were attempted. A call was made at Kirton going home, and 168 of Grandsire was rung. Some of the Kirton company become members of the Society, and it is now hoped that they will start in earnest for Grandsire Triples.

WALTHAM, GRIMSBY.

On Thursday evening, October 27th, with the kind permission of the Vicar (the Rev. J. A. Gaussen), the members of St. James's branch (Grimsby) journeyed over to Waltham to have a pull on the new peal of six just completed by Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. Owing to it being such a wet night they were obliged to seek a conveyance, which made it 8 o'clock before they arrived. The ringers were waiting for them, and had almost given up all hopes of seeing them, however they ascended the tower and found the bells were a nice ring, with a very good circle; tenor about 13 cwt. A few rounds and call changes just to feel the bells was rung, and then several attempts were made to secure the first 120 of Grandsire Doubles but owing to the third bell casting her rope did not succeed (this has since been altered). Afterwards, by the invitation of the Vicar they proceeded to the vicarage, and rang on the hand-bells a 120 of Grandsire Doubles, in good time. A move was then made for home, having spent a very comfortable evening. On Monday evening, October 31st, being appointed for the opening of the bells, they again visited Waltham, with a determined will to secure the first 120 of Grandsire Doubles on the bells, which they succeeded in doing. D. Seamer (conductor), 1; T. Bates, 2; A. Bramall, 3; W. Heyhoe, 4; G. Weldon, 5; A. Shephard, 6. They wish to thank the Vicar and ringers for the use of the bells, and the kind manner in which they received them, and hope they will have the pleasure of visiting Waltham again shortly.

OLD ST. JAMES' SOCIETY, BRISTOL.

On Wednesday, November 9th, eight members of the above Society rang at the Temple church, Bristol, a date touch of 1887 Grandsire Triples. This is the longest length ever known to have been rung in this tower, and probably the first date touch ever rung in a leaning tower. For this massive piece of masonry, which is about 90 ft. high, is no less than 4 ft. 6 in. out of the perpendicular, and this at a point about 60 ft. from the ground, the upper portion having been built on after the sinking of the foundations. The bells are a fine peal of eight, tenor 22 cwt., and have been recently rehung by Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, and four of them recast. The band stood as follows: T. Salter, 1; J. Walters, 2; A. Anderson, Esq., 3; J. Davies, 4; R. Knill, 5; C. Boutflower, Esq., 6; Rev. H. A. Cockey (conductor), 7; H. Schusler, 8. The touch was composed by J. Carter, of Birmingham, and was rung in 1 hr. 12 mins.

READING RINGERS AT BEENHAM, BERKS.

On Saturday, October 22nd, three members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild paid a visit to Beenham, to have a ring on this fine peal (tenor 10 cwt.) in good order. After raising them in peal the ringers from Reading, namely, Reeves, Sweetzer, and Evans, with the assistance of three of the local band, rang a 720 of Plain Bob Minor. T. Greetham, 1; A. Richardson, 2; F. Sweetzer, 3; A. Evans, 4; J. Richardson, 5; A. E. Reeves (conductor), 6. Also a 720 of Grandsire Minor. A. E. Reeves (conductor), 1; F. Sweetzer, 2; A. Richardson, 3; T. Bidmead, 4; A. Evans, 5; J. Richardson, 6. The ringers from Reading wish, through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," to thank the vicar, the Rev. T. Bushnell, for allowing them the use of the bells.

In Memoriam.

GEORGE MARRIOTT.

On Friday night, November 4th, the usual practice-night of the Royal Cumberland Society, the bells of St. Martin's in-the-Fields were rung half-muffled, as a token of respect and esteem to the memory of the late George Marriott, who for forty-seven years was a member of this society. The ringing consisted of the usual whole pull and stand, followed by some Grandsire and Stedman Cinques. On Saturday, November 5th, the mortal remains of the deceased were deposited in Manor Park Cemetery, followed by numerous members of his family, the solemn ceremony being witnessed by Messrs. Gobbett and Dains, of the Royal Cumberlands, Messrs. Newman and Smith, of the College Youths. In his day Mr. Marriott has taken part in some first-class performances, and when circumstances required it, he figured as a bob-caller. He was also a good handbell ringer, and ever ready to lend a hand to young and aspiring ringers. The connection of the deceased with this society has been both constant and true, like the ever celebrated names of Shipway, Miller, and Squire Procter. By the death of Mr. Marriott another connecting link between ringers of the present day and those of the last century is severed and torn asunder. This is apparent from the fact that George Marriott assisted in the funeral peal of Malachi Channon, the ringer of the ninth bell of the 12,000 in 1784 at Shoreditch. There is one consolation, and it is gratifying to know that the memory of the deceased will ever be held by members of the Cumberlands in highest respect and veneration, and further that after a long and honourable life of seventy-six years, George Marriott died peacefully and comfortably, without apparent pain, conscious and able to speak with his friends and children we are told, within four minutes of his decease.

On Sunday evening last, October 6th, at the parish church of St. John-at-Hackney, eight members of the Ancient Society of College Youths, as a last tribute of respect to the memory of Mr. George Marriott, rang a half-muffled peal, consisting of the usual whole pull and stand, J. Davidson, 1; F. Rumens, 2; C. Lee, 3; J. Pettit, 4; G. Page, 5; T. Page, 6; R. J. Turner, 7; W. D. Smith, 8. And a well-struck touch of Stedman Triples. T. Page, 1; W. D. Smith, 2; C. Lee, 3; J. Pettit (conductor), 4; G. Page, 5; R. J. Turner, 6; W. Prime, 7; E. Marriott, 8. Mr. G. Marriott had been a parochial ringer at the above church for fifty-four years.

RESTORATION AT WALTHAM, LINCOLNSHIRE.

On Monday week, the villagers of Waltham enjoyed a fete day, in commemoration of the completed work of restoring their Parish Church. All Saints' Church is of the early English style of architecture, and dates from the end of the 12th century. The edifice was partially stored in 1867 by subscription; the chancel being restored by the present Rector, the Rev. John Ash Gaussen, M.A. The tower has been almost entirely rebuilt, from the plans of Mr. Farebrother, architect, of Grimsby. The work, both in design and in execution, has been thoroughly well carried out; the mouldings of the belfry windows are very beautiful. A peal of six bells has been supplied by the Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough at a cost of nearly £250. The tone of the bells is exceedingly soft and pleasant—as the parishioners and their immediate neighbours had the opportunity of judging on Monday. The following is a description of the bells:—Tenor bell, inscription "Jubilee Year, George White, in memory of his parents and to the glory of God"; second bell, "Hosanna in the highest; J. W. Hembrough, M.D." The third and fourth bells have the founder's name and date when cast, 1887; the fifth bell, "Te Deum Laudamus"; John Ash Gaussen, vicar, Arthur Soames, James Anderson, churchwardens"; sixth bell, "James Harrison, Barton," cast in 1820.

The completion of the work was duly celebrated by a special service on the evening of Monday, at which the Bishop of the Diocese attended, and was supported by a large circle of the neighbouring clergymen. His lordship and the clergy were the guests of the Rector, whose labours in this important matter of church restoration have been unwearied; and are deserving of the success ultimately reached. At the same service, harvest-home was honoured and likewise the festival of All Saints, to whom the church is dedicated. There was thus a four-fold festival, and as may be anticipated the whole village united to do fitting honour to the occasion. Many friends from Grimsby were present, and the church was filled to overflow. The church had been very tastefully decorated with fruit, flowers, cereals, garden produce, &c.; this artistic preparation—at once chaste, effective and appropriate.

The Bishop preached from Hebrews xii 1—"Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses." He said they were called on that night to keep, by God's help, a four-fold festival. One festival was suggested to them under the authority of the season and also by the book of nature. The harvest festival came from the calendar of that book which God had spread round about them and made so easy that the simplest could read it if they would. Two of the others came from their own parochial calendar—they were met to rejoice and thank God for the restoration of their church tower and the completion of its peal of bells. There was also another festival which they were called on to begin that night, and that festival was partly under the authority of their own Parish Church and partly under the general authority of the Church—he meant the festival which the Church kept, the great festival of All Saints, to whom their church was dedicated—a day of great rejoicing, the harvest home of the Church at large. They would remember when they came to keep the festival of the restoration of their church tower, that it was a witness directing attention to God's House and to a society of men and women—a divinely-founded society. Then, there was another witness in this festival, which was partly to celebrate the restoration and perfecting of their church bells. That was a witness which must not be suffered to pass unheeded. They must not look upon the bells merely as pleasant music—pleasant as they were. The bells were more than that. They were meant to teach something from their position. Whence came their music? Not from the ground, nor quite from heaven; but somewhere between the two. When, therefore, they heard the music of the church bells, it ought to be a warning and a hope. It told them where they should be and what they should do. "Lift up your hearts to God," that was the message of the church bells. That was what they said to men and women. Whence did they ring? From out the church tower; away off and above the earth. Each one should ask himself or herself, "Have I anything to do off the earth?" Yes, the position from which the bells rang was a constant witness calling them to lift their minds off the earth. The Bishop went on to refer to the deep and heartfelt pleasure with which, in far away lands, the English villager heard the church bells, and then he spoke of the mission of the bells in ringing marriage and funeral peals; counselling young and old alike in earnest terms to live so that the music of the marriage peal, or the funeral tolling, should bring no thoughts of sadness or regret. Next, reference was made to the festival of All Saints and the dedication of their church, also celebrated at that service, pointing out that in these holy men and women who had gone on high, they had an exceedingly great cloud of witnesses calling on them to be also ready when the time came to take their places with them.—The Bishop preached fifty minutes, and was heard with rapt attention throughout his sermon, of which the above is a simple outline.

The offertory hymn was 431; after which the Bishop pronounced the benediction. Whilst the recessional hymn, 436—"Hark the sound of holy voices"—was being sung, the Bishop and Clergy returned to the Rectory; and thus ended a service long to be remembered in Waltham.

ANNUAL OUTING OF THE BRIGHTON PARISH CHURCH SOCIETY OF AMATEUR CHANGE-RINGERS.

ON Saturday, October 22nd, this annual event took place, and at 7.35 a.m. the members together with some ringing friends to the number of eighteen, were on their way to the city of bells and fogs (London). Arriving at London Bridge shortly after nine o'clock, a move was made for St. Bride's church, Fleet Street, where Mr. Moore, the steeple-keeper had everything ready. Short touches of Kent Treble Bob Major and Grand-sire Triples were brought round, and an attempt made for a course of Treble Bob Royal (the first by the whole band), which came to grief twenty changes from home. The bells though heavy, are in first-class ringing order. The next church visited was St. Stephen's, Rochester Row, where Mr. Lamb was found waiting. Touches of Stedman and Grand-sire Triples were rung, Mr. Church forming one of the band. An adjournment was next made to the refreshment rooms at Victoria Station, and the inner man was satisfied with a hot luncheon. At 3 o'clock the party witnessed the performance at the Wild West, and at 5 o'clock a small crowd (not of the unemployed, but of hard working ringers), assembled in Trafalgar Square in front of St. Martin's Church. Here the following well-known Cumberlands were kind enough to meet and enable the party to enjoy a ring on the grand peal of twelve; Messrs. Dains, Baron, Rogers, Mansfield, Hopkins, Thomas, Wild, Davies, Porter. Two short touches of Grand-sire Caters and three courses of Grand-sire Cinques were rung. A meat tea was partaken of at Gatti's restaurant, and the remainder of the evening was spent at the meeting-house of the Royal Cumberland Society. Here the visitors were treated to some double-handed ringing, songs, and inspected the peal-books, and other property of the society. Before parting to catch the ten o'clock train from Victoria Station, the Hon. Secretary thanked all those London friends who had so kindly assisted in making the excursion one of the most enjoyable ringing outings on record, and especially to Mr. Dains, who had obtained the use of the respective church bells.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A District Meeting of the above Association will be held at Luton, on Saturday afternoon, November 12th. The bells of the parish church (eight) will be at the service of the members, by the kind permission of the Rev. J. O'Neill. Ringing friends from Herts will be welcomed. CHAS. HERBERT, Hon. Sec.
Woburn, November 1st, 1887.

ROCHDALE AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The above Association held its Quarterly Meeting at Todmorden, on Saturday, November 5th, ringers being present from Rochdale, Walsden, and Todmorden. Ringing commenced about 3.30, and was continued by mixed companies until 7.30, when the meeting was held. A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought a very pleasant meeting to a close about 8.30.

A CORRECTION.—The peal at St. Stephen's, Bristol, was rung on Monday, October 31st, not October 20th, as stated in our last issue.

RYTON, SALOP.

To commemorate Her Majesty's Jubilee, two small bells have been cast for the tower of Ryton church, making, with the three old bells, a ring of five. The new bells, being the trebles in a light peal, are necessarily very small, but the founders have succeeded in producing two maiden bells excellent in tone and tune. The bells bear the inscriptions given below. That on the treble is a chronograph, for, if the numbers represented by the numeral letters occurring in the inscription, viz., MDCCLXXVVIIIIIIIIIII are added together, the date 1887 is obtained.

+ VICTORIA · REGINA · ET · IMPERATRIX · ANNO · IVBILAEI · PERFECTO · GRATES · AGIT · SIT · GLORIA · DEO · REGINAE · SALVS
+ GILLET · DE · CROYDON · NOS · DVAS · MINIMAS · FECIT · IACOBO · CLARKE · ROBERTS · RECTORE · ROBERTO · BRADLEY · GARDIANO · MDCCLXXXVII

The new ones have been hung, and the old bells at the same time re-hung most successfully, by Mr. Harry Stokes, of Woodbury, near Exeter, his work being, as usual, not only substantial and good, but thoroughly well finished. The bells were rung for the first time on October 6th, and gave great satisfaction.

NEW GUILD FOR THE DIOCESE OF CHESTER.

At the Chester Diocesan conference held recently, Archdeacon Barber introduced a discussion on a proposal to form a Diocesan Guild of Church Bellringers, which had been made in January last. The advantages of such a Guild would be to raise the status and condition of church bellringers by recognising them as distinct church officers; to improve change-ringing; to draw up and circulate a code of rules and regulations for bell ringing; and to give competent advice as to the enlargement of belfries and repairs that might be required. He moved a resolution affirming the desirability of forming a Guild of church bellringers for the diocese of Chester. Mr. J. H. Cook, Northwich, in seconding, enumerated some of the benefits believed to be secured by the neighbouring Lancashire Association—the cultivation of the science of change-ringing, the abolition of the obnoxious practice of prize-ringing (which, he considered, reduced the belfry to the level of the bowling-green), the promotion of friendly peal ringing, and the provision of teachers for those who desire them. Rev. R. G. Barnacle, Holmes Chapel; Rev. H. B. Blodd, Frodsham; Canon Upperton, and several others supported the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

The following circular in connection with the above proposal has been circulated:—

DEAR SIR,—At the Diocesan Conference last Wednesday the following resolution was carried unanimously: "That it is desirable to form a Diocesan Guild or Association of church bell-ringers." In furtherance of this object a meeting will be held in the Old Refectory of the Cathedral (by kind permission of the Dean), on Saturday, November 12th, at 2 p.m., at which your attendance (with any ringers or others interested in the matter) is respectfully requested. I should be glad to know how many would be likely to attend, so that due provision may be made. Kindly bring this to the notice of your ringers, and if unable to attend or to send representatives, would you let me know whether your ringers would be likely to join?

Church News.

The Rev. Champion Welbank Streatfeild has resigned his vicarage of Isycoed, in the diocese of St. Asaph.

The Dean and Chapter of St. Asaph have reduced the salaries of their officials by 10 per cent. in consequence of the decreased value of their revenue, which consists entirely of tithe rent-charge.

The Rev. J. F. Kitto, after prolonged hesitation, has re-introduced evening communion at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, where it had for some years been unknown.

The Church Parochial Mission Society has published a list of forty-four Missions which it has arranged to take place during the present month.

The Crown living of Chipping Barnet, Herts, has fallen vacant by the death of the Rev. Robert Rosseter Hutton. Mr. Hutton, who graduated from Trinity College, Oxford, in 1868, was ordained in the following year, and was appointed to Chipping Barnet in 1866.

The Bishop of Chichester, who is the oldest prelate of the Church of England, completed his eighty-fifth year on Wednesday last. He graduated at Oxford in 1826, and was consecrated Bishop of Chichester in 1870.

The Bishop of Pretoria has appointed the Rev. James Hoare Masters, rector of Slinfold, Horsham, to be his commissary in England, conjointly with the Rev. Dr. Baker, head master of Merchant Taylors' School.

On Monday, the Duchess of Teck, who was accompanied by the Princess Victoria, opened a large hall in Hanbury Street, Spitalfields, which had been bought by Prebendary Billing, of Christ Church, and a number of friends, in which to hold entertainments and meetings in connection with the parish church.

On Wednesday week the Bishop of Ripon confirmed twenty-five male and ten female prisoners at Wakefield. The men answered clearly and firmly the questions put to them, and after the laying on of hands, they were addressed by the Bishop from St. John xvi, 33—"In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

A new altar is about to be presented to Lincoln Cathedral by the Bishop of Nottingham. Various necessities are still required, a new set of altar linen being needed. The estimate for three frontals, red, white, and green (the violet is already provided), and super-frontal, and for the complete set of linen, is £300. The linen will cost about £20.

The statement which has gone the round respecting the consecration of Archdeacon Matthews is incorrect. Dr. French's resignation of Lahore does not take effect till December 21st, when he will complete the tenth year of his episcopate, and his successor cannot possibly be consecrated before Christmas.

It is understood that the Rev. F. J. Mount, prebendary of Sutton, and vicar of Cuckfield, has accepted the Archdeaconry of Chichester, vacant by the death of Canon Walker. Mr. Mount graduated from Oriel in 1854, and was ordained the next year. In 1870 he was appointed examining chaplain to the Bishop of Chichester, whose nephew he is.

The Rev. W. H. Hewlett-Cooper, M.A., was last week presented by the parishioners of St. Peter's, Belsize Park, with a purse of 150 guineas, and an illuminated address, on his preferment to Bradenstoke, Wilts, as a token of their respect and esteem for him. He is an able and earnest preacher, an energetic worker, and possesses great tact in dealing with young persons. Mr. Cooper is also well known in the neighbourhood, as a successful and interesting lecturer on scientific subjects. Mrs. Hewlett-Cooper at the same time received a handsome and suitable gift.

At a meeting of the Drapers' Company, at which the applications of nearly a hundred candidates were received for the vacant rectory of St. Michael's, Cornhill, void by the death of the Rev. W. Hunt, a letter was read from the Bishop of London, suggesting that the endowment, which is about £1,200 a year, should be devoted as a stipend for a second Suffragan Bishop of London. The Bishop proposed that the company should nominate two clergymen, one of whom he would select, and forward his name with another nominated by himself to the Crown, who would appoint. The company almost unanimously agreed to adopt the Bishop's proposals.

Kenchester, the site of a Roman station, midway between Hereford and Staunton-on-Wye, boasts a very small early Norman church and a font supposed to be older than the Conquest. The late rector, Mr. Parkin, provided a temporary reredos of painted tinfoil, which has now been replaced by one of solid oak, the gift of the Hon. Mrs.

Griffiths, daughter of the late Archdeacon (Lord Saye and Sele), in memory of her husband, Major Griffiths, of the Weir. Mrs. Griffiths has associated with herself in this handsome donation two old retainers of the Griffiths family, Messrs. Stait and Simmonds, who were desirous of paying some tribute to the memory of a good master and an excellent country gentleman.

On the eve of All Saints', the Bishop of Rochester visited the parish of St. Paul's, Lorrimore Square, to unveil a window to the memory of its late vicar and his chaplain, the Rev. E. F. Alexander. After the second lesson his lordship was conducted to the west end by the choir and clergy, singing in procession "For all thy Saints who from their labours rest," and beneath the unveiled window the Bishop delivered an earnest address on the work and character of the clergyman whose six years' faithful efforts had set together the vigorous organisation of St. Paul's. From the church the Bishop passed to give his blessing to a home established in Lorrimore Square for lady-workers among the poor.

On All Saints' Day the dedication-stone of the permanent church of St. Mary Magdalene, Wandsworth Common, was laid by Lady Barbara Yeatman. Shortened evensong was said in the temporary church at 3 p.m., and after the laying of the stone an address was given by Archdeacon Burney. He remarked that he had been present seventeen years ago when the temporary church was opened by Bishop Wilberforce, who took great interest in the progress of the district. The neighbourhood has increased rapidly of late years, and steps are in process for the formation of a separate parish and the building of a permanent church, of which the Rev. W. Starkie Shuttleworth is vicar-designate. It has been decided at present to build the western half of the permanent church, and to wait until further funds have been raised before attempting to complete the building. The cost of the present work will be about £2,000, and at least £2,000 more will be required to finish the whole undertaking. The architect is Mr. E. D. Ferrey.

Book Notices.

THE QUIVER for November—(Cassell and Co., London and New York.)—This is the first part of a new and enlarged series of this deservedly popular magazine. The illustrations are if possible better than ever, and there is a very good coloured frontispiece entitled "Good-bye to the old Home," which appeals very strongly to the feelings. It is really impossible to select any particular portion for especial approval where all is excellent. One thing we may say, that though the size has increased, the price of publication remains the same.

THE HISTORY OF THE FRANCO-GERMAN WAR, issued by the same publishers, maintains its character. It is a concise and faithful narrative of the late European war and the influences which led to it. It is plentifully illustrated.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE TOTTENHAM PEAL.

SIR,—I thank you for your able leading article on our peal at Tottenham, which I suppose was the cause of the large meeting at the St. James society meeting-house on October 31st. My friend Mr. Barnett is quite right when he said our opponents' victory was not decisive. It would have been a victory for us if Mr. J. M. Hayes had acted as a gentleman while the voting was going on, and not to have pulled one of the member's hand down when he was voting against him, and called across the room and ordered one of his dupes to hold up his hand and vote for him, which was answered at once. But where was that man's conscience? Had he got one? Yes, certainly, but he dare not use it. I think we had the sense of the society with us, for out of the sixteen for us, there were eight conductors, while out of the sixteen against us there were about that number who hardly knew how to handle a bell, and four conductors.

G. B. LUCAS.

SIR,—I am much surprised at the decision of the St. James's Society as to recording this peal. It is utterly useless for anyone to try to prove that the absence of a cover can interfere with the correctness of a peal. It is rather odd, but one never hears of a peal of seven bells, although there are plenty of five. Now when a six-score is rung upon five bells no one ever for a moment objects to it. In fact Doubles are generally considered preferable when rung on five bells to being rung on six with the tenor covering. At the same time, as the music of seven bells is very bad, I do not think that ringing a peal on that number is a thing to be encouraged, although it is most unjust and absurd to refuse to book a peal for the reasons above mentioned.

KERAULOPHON.

SIR,—I see a great deal of correspondence over the peal recently rung at Tottenham, and if you will allow me I should like to point out that there was once a peal rung at Witney, Oxon, where the tenor-man had to give up, and the other seven men kept on for an hour or more without him in a peal of Grandsire Triples, the peal being truly rung and duly recorded, and why not? From a practical point of view it is far more worthy of record than a peal with a tenor. Of course the music must be rather odd. But a peal of Triples is only on seven bells after all, and why not record it? This is the opinion of the ringers of this neighbourhood, which I am asked to convey to you.

Oxford.

J. W. WASHBROOK.

SIR,—In last week's issue of "BELL NEWS" your correspondent, H. A. Barnett, says that "J. M. Hayes was fully attended by the band of St. Stephen's Society, Westminster, and these members of course followed as he led," inferring that they were brought there to vote against the Tottenham men. There were six members present belonging to the St. Stephen's Society, one of whom (his junior steward of St. James's Society; but that is out of the question, as it was a St. James's Society meeting, and they are all members of that society and meet the company regularly, which is more than the Tottenham Society can say, for they admitted at the meeting that they had only come then to try and put aside a resolution passed by a majority of members at a bona fide meeting, and were backed up by as many of their own members as they could coax there. This was not the case with the St. Stephen's Society, who came in the ordinary way to practice; and they have as much right to vote as they please, as well as the Tottenham Society, perhaps more. The St. Stephen's Society may be young members, but they are old enough to have and express an opinion of their own.

T. R. BELL, Secretary.

St. Stephen's, Westminster.

SIR,—It was with mingled feelings of surprise and regret that I read in your last issue that the above peal is to be boycotted by the St. James Society, especially when I saw the names of the gentlemen who framed and carried the resolution. Triples have always been described (in this part of the country), as seven bell ringing, so whether you have a tenor to cover or not, so long as the 5040 changes are rung true on seven bells, it would be a peal of Triples. If the gentlemen who took part in the opposition have no other reason to advance why the peal should not be recorded, I think that they have made themselves the laughing stock of the whole ringing community. If they are correct in their reasoning, perhaps they will be consistent in their practice, and at once tack a cover bell on to their peals of Major, Royal, and Maximus. Just one word more. The St. James Society have rung I believe twenty-three peals this year, of this number the Tottenham band have scored seven. These figures speak for themselves.

Kidderminster, November 7th, 1887.

COMMON SENSE.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION REPORT.

SIR,—I fear my last letter to you has caused an ebullition of ill-temper on the part of Mr. Binns, otherwise he would not have penned the very disjointed and almost unintelligible epistle which appeared last Saturday. But facts are stubborn things, and as he challenges further investigation, I give the peals in question side by side, to tell their own story.

MR. BINNS'.				Course-ends of both.				No. 247 in Report.
M	B	W	H					M	B	W	H
	I				5	2	3	6	4
	I	I	2		2	5	4	6	3
I		2	2		6	3	5	4	2
2		2	2		4	6	3	2	5
2		2	2		2	4	6	5	3
2		I	2		3	2	5	4	6
I	I		2		4	5	2	3	6
Repeated.								Repeated.

Now, Sir, will any man in his sober senses attempt to argue that these two are not the self-same peal. It will be noticed that the bobs wrong in the second and third courses are reversed in the Report, but that is so palpably a "printer's error," that it needs no explanation. Any one with the slightest knowledge of the table of course-ends, will see that at a glance; or how could the course-ends have come up in proper order? It seems superfluous to argue the point further. With his regard to his insinuating remarks about my signature, I need only say that I am a life member of the Yorkshire Association (as you,

Mr. Editor, will no doubt be able to testify), and the simple reason of my writing anonymously is that (perhaps unlike Mr. Binns in this respect), I do not feel ambitious to "see my name in print." If a correspondent advances facts, it is immaterial what patronymic he writes under. I am also of opinion that had Mr. Binns taken the sensible course of bringing this matter before the Committee of the Yorkshire Association, he would have got a satisfactory explanation, and thus have rendered unnecessary this complaint which is as puerile as it is unwarranted.

A MEMBER Y.A.C.R.

SIR,—It seems to me that the unpleasantness that has arisen with respect to the publishing of peals in the Yorkshire Association report is simply a mistake, which all ringers know well can take place, and stop any peal when the accomplishment is almost certain. If No. 247 in the Association's performances been printed as sent, no doubt it would have been like R. Binns' peal. The second course 1B, 1W, 2H, in place of 1B, 2W, 2H, and third course 1M, 2W, 2H, instead of 1M, 1W, 2H, that is the mistake. The course-ends are all right but not the calling. The peal was taken by the conductor from Snowdon's "Treatise on Treble Bob," Part 2, page 35. It is also in an old manuscript of the late George Carter, as Tebbs' farewell peal. I remember having said the peal had been rung in a revised form, but I referred to the report as printed. Had I been the conductor in either peal I might have made a closer investigation, and that would have been with the result as above stated. In R. Binns' first letter he states the peal was not reported as sent. That being admitted; but if all peals were reported as sent, we should have more mistakes than the paltry one in question. If R. B. will look at his report once more, No. 391, he will find a peal reported as sent, but no fault to be found, it being more pleasing to the conductor. It reads: "This peal, which was now rung the first time by the Society, was composed by Joseph Fleming, and conducted by R. Binns." This statement I say is false, as it was rung at Drighlington, and stands No 173 of the Society's performances conducted by Ben. Lightfoot. I trust that expert conductors will assist the officials to issue a true and sound report, and if they find something wrong to communicate to the Secretary or President, who is always willing to be corrected at any time.

Tong, November 7, 1887.

GEORGE BOLLAND.

ADVICE WANTED.

SIR,—Perhaps some of your correspondents would help us with their experience in the following case. We are intending to place movable wooden louvres or some contrivance inside the hard stone louvres of our bell-chamber, for the double purpose of keeping out the wet and keeping in the sound when desirable, so as not to be an annoyance to those who live near the church. I may state that we have made some little progress in change-ringing, having been able to ring Grandsire Doubles for some years, and now, as more men are joining us, we wish to try Triples, but are afraid our efforts will not meet with that encouragement we could wish if the bells clash, and are considered a nuisance by the round ringers' friends who live close by. I believe a similar difficulty has been found in other places, I think at the new cathedral at Edinburgh, and I should be glad to know how it has been met, and if successful.

P. H. JACKSON.

Beaminster, Dorset.

A SUGGESTION.

SIR,—As there seems to be a great deal of trouble to get to know, where the leaders of ringers reside, would it not be as well if the old ringers' guide was revised, say about once a year, and sold at about 2d. so as to be within the reach of every ringer?

WILLIAM CLAYTON.

"A FACT WORTH KNOWING."

SIR,—In calling Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples, I believe it is the custom of many conductors to adopt the plan of calling by the bells which come "before," and to rely upon the fact of their turning up in their proper order to prove the truth of the peal as it progresses. It may be of interest to these gentlemen to know that in a recent attempt it was found that a change-course had occurred within the first half hour's ringing, but for an experiment the peal was continued on the plan I have mentioned, with the result that not until 2 hrs. and 15 mins. had elapsed from the commencement was it found that the bell required for a call "before" was in the hunt. This fact I hope will act as an inducement to those who do not as yet understand the system of proving if the bells be in or out of course, to make themselves acquainted with this indispensable knowledge.

ALL SAINTS', LOUGHBOROUGH.

The bells of All Saints' Church possess quite an history of their own, and the churchwardens' accounts contain numerous allusions to them, dating several centuries back. One of the earliest records concerning the peal dates back as far as 1553, when in Edward VI. the Commissioners reported that there were in the church of "Loughborowe fyve belles." A curious old document which appears to have been drawn up about the same time, defines the duties belonging to the bellman's office, and from this it appears he had to sleep in the church, to ring the curfew at eight o'clock at night on week days, and seven on Sundays and other holy days, besides numerous other matters not concerning the bells, which must have fully occupied his time. At this time there were five bells in the tower, and in the year 1583 there occurs an entry in the churchwardens' accounts of a sum of 6s. 8d. paid to "Joseph Bynglaze, for mending and keeping in repair the great bell clappers. In 1585 there is the following item: "Received of the Townsamen of this parishe towards the payment of the Castinge of the great bell. . . . vli vjs ijd,"; also a further entry "Item paid to franncis Watts and M. Newcome, the bellfounders of Leic, for one half of the payment for Castinge the great bell. . . . iiijli." About this time there are many curious entries of expenditure connected with the casting of the "great bell" at Leicester, such as "Imprimis payed and layed downe for our Suppers at Leicester at the casting of the Bells," "Paid for our Brekefasts the next day," "Paid for our Suppers the same daye," "Paid for drink for the bell-founders' men," "Paid to Mr. Newcome's maides," and "Paid for Aale." In the year 1586 numerous sums appear to have been expended for keeping the bells and their fittings in repair, and in 1613 the "great bell" was twice recast by a Mr. Ouldfeld, of Nottingham. It was in the year 1616 that the ancient ring of five bells was increased to six, as is shown by the following entry in the accounts:—"It. Paid to John fowler for carryeing the third bell to Nottingham, and for bringinge it and the new bell back, xjxs. vjd." The bells at this date bore the following inscriptions, copied by the eminent botanist, Dr. Pulteney, when he was at the free school of the parish:—

- 1.—I will sound and resound unto all Christian people,
And to the benefactors that gave me to this steeple. 1616.
- 2.—In multis annis resonet campana Johannis.
- 3.—Sit nomen Domini benedictum; laudate illum cymbalis sonoris.
- 4.—Nos sumus constructi ad laudem Domini, 1616.
- 5.—Sir Georg Hastings made me Anno Domini 1586.
- 6.—Hec. campana sacra fiat Trinitate Beata 1613.

From 1642 to 1647 there are several entries concerning the ringing of the bells which possess historical interest; for instance—"1642. Paid to the Ringers for His Majesty, 10s." "Paid to the same when Prince Rupert went to Leicester." and when "Prince Rupert came to view the Trayne band." "1645. It. payed to ye Ringers when ye King's Majesty came by, 2s. 6d." "1646. Spent on ye Ringers when Sir Thomas Fiarefax passed by, 1s." and "Spent on ye Ringers when the Lord Protector was proclaimed, 4s. 6d." In 1754 the six bells were recast by Thomas Eayre, of Kettering, the cost being defrayed by public subscription, and a list of the subscribers appears in the parish records. At this time the weight of the bells was augmented as follows:—

						cwt.	qrs.	lbs.
1st Bell	10	3	10
2nd "	11	0	11
3rd "	11	2	5
4th "	12	3	15
5th "	14	1	10
6th "	24	2	14
						85	1	9

The inscriptions on the bells cast by Eayre were as follows;

- 1.—Vox Mea Dulcis Mea Scintillans Vultus.
- 2.—Statutum est Omnibus Semel Mori; Omnia Fiant ad Gloriam Dei.
- 3.—Nos Sumus Constructi ad Laudem Domini; in Dei Gloriam; in Ecclesiae Commodum.
- 4.—Sit Nomen Domini Benedictum, Laudate Illum Cymbalis Sonoris.
- 5.—Morte Beata Nihil Beatius. Thomas Eayre, Fecit. Richard Mansfield and John Warren, sidesmen.

6.—Thomas Alleyne, Rector; Francis Winfield and Edward Savage, Churchwardens. Thomas Eyre, Fecit, Anno Domini, 1754.

In 1840 these six were recast and augmented to a ring of eight by John Taylor, son of Robert Taylor, of St. Neots, Hunts, who at that time and for that purpose removed from Oxford, and established the Loughborough Bell Foundry, which has since been successfully carried on and extended its fame, as well as its dimensions, under the management of Mr. J. W. Taylor and his sons. Two years ago the seventh bell was fractured, and upon being recast, 2 cwt. 2 qrs. 20 lbs. additional metal was put in it. The next event concerning the history of the bells is that to which we have alluded in the early portion of this notice, viz., the augmentation of the bells to a ring of ten by the addition of two trebles. In addition to presenting these two bells, Messrs. Taylor have materially improved the tone of the old bells by recasting several of the larger ones and adding more metal. The two new bells weigh respectively 6 cwt. 1 qr. 4 lb., and 7 cwt. 6 qrs. 19 lbs. Nos. 6, 8, 9, and 10 have been recast, with the addition of 12 cwt. 2 qrs. 17 lbs. of new metal, and the total weight of the ten bells is 117 cwt. 0 qrs. 18 lbs. Only three of the old bells are rehung without recasting.

By the courtesy of the founders we are enabled to give the following particulars of the bells and their inscriptions:—

Treble, note, F sharp, 6 cwt. 1 qr. 4 lb. "A.M.D.G. Presented by J. W. Taylor, the founder, on the occasion of the Queen's Jubilee, 1887."

Second bell, E, 7 cwt. 0 qrs. 19 lb. Inscription same as on treble.

Third bell, D, 6 cwt. 1 qr. 7 lb. (old bell). "A voice from the Temple, a voice from the Lord. Rev. J. Plaice, Officiating Minister, A.D. 1840."

Fourth bell, C sharp, 6 cwt. 1 qr. 18 lb. (old bell). "Glory be to God on High. Taylor, Founder, June 18th, 1840, Loughborough. Rev. W. Holme, B.D., Rector, John Farmer, D. Cartwright, Churchwardens."

Fifth bell, B, 6 cwt. 3 qrs. 21 lb., (old bell). "Rev. W. Holme, B.D., Rector, John Farmer, D. Cartwright, Churchwardens. Taylor, Fecit, 1840."

Sixth bell, A, 10 cwt. 3 qrs. 21 lb. "J. Taylor and Co., Bellfounders Loughborough, 1887."

Seventh bell, G, 12 cwt. 2 qrs. 23 lbs. "Recast by John Taylor and Co., Loughborough, 1885. Thomas Pitts, M.A., Rector, William, Frederick Beardsley, Edward Parkinson White, Churchwardens."

Eighth bell, F sharp, 13 cwt. 2 qrs. 1 lb. "A.M.D.G."

Ninth bell, E., 18 cwt. 3 qrs. 16 lb. "A.M.D.G."

Tenor bell, D., 28 cwt. 0 qr. 0 lb. "Thomas Pitts, M.A., Rector; Edward Parkinson White, James Cartwright, Churchwardens. A.M. D.G. The sixth, seventh, and eighth bells of the old peal of eight were recast, with additional metal, on the peal being augmented to ten by the kindness of the founder, J. W. Taylor." On the reverse side the initials of the founder and two of his sons, who are now conducting the business: J. W. T., J. W. T., E. D. T. 1887.

The trade mark of the founders also appears on five of the bells. We may add that the munificent gift of Messrs. Taylor and Co. to the parish (comprising the new bells and weight of metal used in recasting), is of the value of £270. New ropes for the bells have been presented by Mr. Pritchard. The old bell-frame and beams, which were very much decayed, and had no doubt carried three rings of bells in succession, have been removed, and the bells have been hung on the improved cast iron A frames which have been supplied by Messrs. Taylor at a cost of £350. The frames stand on oak beams, which are supported by an iron girder. A new floor has been placed in the bell chamber, about four feet below the iron girder, this part of the work having been entrusted to Mr. Abraham Smith.

It was originally intended that the bells should be dedicated on All Saints' Day, November 1st, but this date was not convenient to Bishop Mitchinson, who performed the dedicatory ceremony at a special service in All Saints' Church on Friday afternoon, November 4th. A number of members of the Midland Counties' Association paid a visit to the belfry on that and succeeding days, so that there was every facility for hearing the tone of the bells. Nearly the whole of the cost of the new bell frame has yet to be raised.

On Monday, the Hon. and Rev. F. R. Grey, rector of Morpeth, on attaining his Jubilee as priest, was presented by his parishioners and friends with an illuminated address and a cheque for nearly £300. A gold bracelet was also presented to Lady Elizabeth Grey.

BURNSALL-IN-WHARFEDALE, YORKSHIRE.

Burnsall-in-Wharfedale is a pretty and picturesque village—the gem of Wharfedale—alike noted for its fine old parish church, St. Wilfrid's, of Saxon origin, its musical peal of six bells, its fine old Grammar School, founded in 1602, and its beautiful surroundings, best described by its local poet, Mr. J. A. Bland, of Woodhouse Manor, Burnsall, in lines written on the occasion of the representatives of the press paying him a visit on the 21st of June, 1880:

A Wharfedale welcome to the "press," we hail ye in our bowers,
Of sunny scenes, of crystal streams, of spreading fields and flowers;
Of woody groves, of rippling rills, that sing in shady dells,
Of upland scene, of tow'ring mount, of crag-crowned purple fells;
Of villages all hoar with age, with bridge, school, church and tower,
Whose merry bells, in tuneful swells, ring out the passing hour,
Of nestling homes in snug retreat, squat by Wharfe's winding stream.
Where generations of our sires have loved and lived life's dream.
The feather'd throng, in merry song, all greet you now you've come,
And welcome you to sights and scenes around our Wharfedale home.

Alike noted, too, as the place from which many of our Wharfedale worthies spring—Dr. Stackhouse, who wrote the "History of the Bible," Dr. Whitaker, the historian, etc., etc. And also noted for some who have excelled in the art of change-ringing, likewise—

That the dale, all dales surpasses,
For cheerie boys and bonnie las-es.

The art of change-ringing, however, through some little misunderstanding or disagreement amongst the members of the St. Wilfrid's company, has been in abeyance for some time past. Saturday week, however, being the historic "Gunpowder Plot, is never forgot"

two of the old company of ringing repute—J. Birch and C. Inman—had managed to get together the required number of six, to ring the "plot peal," who assembled in the ancient tower of St. Wilfrid's at the appointed hour, 7.30 in the evening. Though the first of those mentioned below had ceased to be a ringer some forty-three years ago, his love for change-ringing, or bell music is not in the slightest degree abated, and he at once with his two sons willingly consented to take part, as it "would not do" for the peal to be omitted in this the year of jubilee. They took to the ropes in the following order: J. A. Bland, 1; J. Birch, 2; W. A. Bland, 3; J. Wilkinson, 4; C. Inman, 5; R. Bland, 6.

Who rose the bells in famous style,
That might be heard for many a mile;
And then as well as they were able,
Struck up so gaily Oxford Treble.

And then to celebrate the "Plot,"
With truthful aim the bells they shot;
Resolved to let the people hear,
The "Plot Peal" rung another year.

In the intervals of rest Mr. Bland gave a recital of his learning and exercising the delightful art of change-ringing in his boyish days, telling how he with five others met together in the tower of St. Wilfrid's, one Sunday evening, in October, 1841, to try at a treble lead of Grandsire or Bob Minor, having previously learned to manage a bell, which they accomplished, each striking his bell in good time. That peal was ultimately mastered. The next peal attempted was Oxford Treble Bob, Violet, Duke of York, and Kent Treble Bob, and on Christmas morning, 1843, they rung 2520 changes in the above Treble Bob methods, in good style and time, in 1 hr. 33 mins. The ringers were stationed as follows: J. A. Bland, 1; S. Bland, 2; M. Pullan, 3; J. Horner, 4; R. Clark, 5; J. Pullan, 6. Conducted by J. A. Bland. This was the longest touch that had been rung on the bells (hung in 1793). Shortly after this the company's ranks were broken by some of its members leaving the village. Mr. Bland, who took up his abode in Leeds, occasionally rung with the St. Peter's company, at the parish church, of whom at that time were Wm. and J. Groves, J. Lockwood, Gawkrudgers, C. Iles, Pullan (tenor), and young Pawson, learner, now Mr. Pawson, handbell founder. He assisted in ringing on the occasion of the Repeal of the Corn Laws. The company recently dissolved at Burnsall, when in the prime of change-ringing, a few years ago accomplished the feat of ringing 5040 changes in seven different methods of Treble Bob, in 3 hrs. 15 mins., the longest rung on the bells.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The Autumn Quarterly Meeting of the above Association was held at Burton-on-Trent, on Saturday the 5th inst. Touches in various methods were rung on the peals of eight at St. Modwen's and St. Paul's. At 5.30 some forty members sat down to a most substantial tea, which, thanks to the excellent administrative powers of the local Hon. Sec., Mr. John Jaggar, was provided at 1s. per head. The following gentlemen were elected honorary members of the Association: The Very Rev. the Dean of Lichfield, the Rev. F. H. Beaven, the Rev. T. H. Freer, the Rev. Geo. Woodyatt, the Rev. T. V. Evans, and W. E. B. Farnham, Esq., Quorndon House. Two life members and two ringing members were also elected.

The President (A. P. Heywood, Esq.) congratulated the Association on the large accession of clergy to its ranks, adding that he felt sure that the work of the Society only required to become known to ensure the support of all those incumbents whose churches contained peals of bells, a support than which none was more valuable to the progress of ringing. He then recapitulated the peals rung during the quarter, noting with especial pleasure the arrival of their hosts, the St. Paul's Society, at the summit of eight-bell ringing by their achievement of a peal of London Surprise. He urged those companies who had not already done so to endeavour to score a peal of some kind before the close of the Jubilee Year, and concluded by moving a vote of thanks to the clergy, whose bells had been so kindly placed at their disposal during the day, expressing also the gratification it gave him to welcome the new Vicar of St. Paul's (the Rev. F. H. Beaven) among them.

The Rev. F. H. Beaven in replying said how wishful he was to do all in his power to promote the well being of the Association, and offered an ever ready welcome to its members.

The next meeting has been fixed to take place at Ashby-de-la-Zouch, on Saturday, January 7th, 1888, and all notices as to any proposed "alterations of rules, etc." must reach the Hon. Sec., Mr. Joseph Griffin, 5, St. Paul's Street East, Burton-on-Trent, at least one month before the meeting.

MAYFIELD, SUSSEX.

About three miles from Rotherfield (a pleasant walk) is the interesting old village of Mayfield. Visitors will scarcely fail to notice the ancient timbered house in the main street, the restored monastic buildings close to the church, and, lastly, the fine old church itself with its mixture of Early English and Decorated architecture. The Church is in excellent order. It contains several slabs and tables to the Baker family, also one or two mementos of the old Sussex ironworks, in the shape of iron memorial slabs, rather roughly cast. The tower is the usual Sussex low, spacious, structure, with shingle spire, the lower part having lancet windows which are, unfortunately, closed up with red bricks. The belfry is partly shut off from the church, and is, seemingly, used as a sort of lumber-room. Signs of reform are however apparent, in the shape of a new floor to the clock-room, fresh clock face, &c., and we are pleased to learn that new chimes to supersede the old apparatus were talked of. Though, before having chimes fixed, the parishioners would do well to get their bells re-hung and put in proper order, for they need it very much. There is a heavy peal of six with a tenor measuring 50 inches across the mouth, and weighing possibly about 23 cwt. The bells bear the following dates:—Treble, 1724; Second, 1724; Third, 1602; Fourth, 1629; Fifth, 1712; Tenor, 1630.

The tenor was cast by a founder named Eldredge. At some time or other it has had a good-sized piece knocked out of its lip on the clock-hammer side.

HOPE, DERBYSHIRE.

A large clock and chimes have just been erected in the parish church of Hope, in the peak of Derby. It strikes the hours upon a large bell, and chimes the Westminster quarters upon four bells, and is fitted with all the latest improvements. The work has been carried out by the celebrated firm of John Smith and Sons, Midland Clock Works, Derby.

THE COLLEGE BELLS OF OXFORD.—MERTON.

MERTON tower contains a peal of eight bells. The tenor is said to weigh 36 cwt., key of E flat, diameter 54 inches. These bells are thus inscribed:—

Treble.—"Christopher Hodson made me, 1680."

Second.—"D: Hen: Abyndon, S. T. D. Coll: Hvivs Cvst: R. R: H. R. C. N: Christopher Hodson Instavratvm, A.D. 1680."

Third.—"Ex Dono Thoma Milbovrn, A.M. et Coll: Hvivs nvyer Socii. Christopher Hodson made me, 1680."

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh.—"Christopher Hodson made me, 1680."

Tenor.—"D: Hen: Abyndon, S. T. D. Coll: Hvivs Cvst: R. R: H. R. C. N: Christopher Hodson Instavratvm, A.D. 1680."

The last five bells have each the arms of Merton College on them, viz., three chevrons on a shield.

The following history of these bells is given in the "Life of Anthony a Wood": "Anthony Wood, his mother, and his two brothers, Rob. and Christopher Wood, gave 5 li. to Merton Coll. towards the casting of their five bells into eight. These five were antient bells, and had been put up into the tower at the first building thereof, in the time of Dr. Hen. Abendon, Warden of Merton Coll., who began to be Warden in 1421. The tenor or great bell (on which the name of the said Abendon was put) was supposed to be the best bell in England, being, as 'twas said, of fine mettall silver found. The generality of people were much against the altering of that bell, and were for a treble to be put to five, and so make them six; and old Sarjeant Charles Holloway, who was a very covetous man, would have given money to save it, and to make the five, six bells, that is to put a treble to them. But by the knavery of Thom. Jones, the subwarden (the warden being then absent) and Derby (i.e. Michael Darbie) the bellfounder, they were made eight. Dr. Joh. Wilson, Dr of Musick, had a fee from the College to take order about their tuning."

"May 14. 1657. All the eight bells of Merton Coll. did begin to ring: and he heard them ring very well at his approach to Oxon in the evening, after he had taken his rambles all that day about the country to collect monuments. The bells did not at all please the curious and critical hearer. However he plucked at them often with some of his fellow colleagues for recreation sake. They were all afterwards recast" (by Christopher Hodson, in 1680, the present peal.)

Concerning Michael Darbie, the founder of the former peal of eight, Dr. Raven, in his "Church Bells of Cambs," says, "Michael was a rolling stone that gathered no moss, while John, his brother's travels were confined to East Anglia. Michael's wretched bells are to be found in many districts, for one specimen of his casting appears to have been enough for a neighbourhood."

The present peal at Merton are hung two on each of the four sides of the tower. There is a large vacant space in the centre of the bell-chamber, large enough to hang another peal of eight in. The ringing is performed from a gallery below, which extends along each of the four sides of the tower, two ropes descending on each side. This gallery is little more than three feet wide, and the space between is quite thirty feet, through which one may look down into the chapel below. The distance across, and also from rope to rope, is so great that it is difficult to get a good sight of the ropes all round when ringing. When I visited the belfry in September last, the bells were sadly out of order for want of a little attention in the way of screwing up, etc. We started for a peal, but were glad to desist after ringing for about ten minutes.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS. ANNUAL DINNER.

[BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

THE unparalleled success of the many rejoicings during the Jubilee year will doubtless form an important epoch in the nation's history. for in every instance nothing but success has attended whatever has been attempted in this direction. It will be allowed that within this Jubilee year of Her Majesty's reign, it is a peculiar coincidence that one of our most noted and oldest ringing societies should be enabled to celebrate its fifth Jubilee after a long historical record certainly not without its vicissitudes. Our editorial comment of a fortnight ago, will have shown the uninitiated that it was 250 last Saturday week that the Ancient Society of College Youths was founded, and that the holding of the last annual dinner upon that particular day was in some respects a "new departure." The revival of old, and at one time regular custom has proved such a grand success that it is well deserving of being recorded as an important event during Her Majesty's reign.

In accordance with the announcements made previously, arrangements were made for ringing, and during the afternoon the following touches were rung:—

AT ST. MICHAEL'S, CORNHILL, a 323 of Grandsire Caters. J. Davidson, 1; G. T. McLaughlin, 2; J. Bonny, 3; J. Comb, 4; Dr. A. B. Carpenter, 5; E. Horrex, 6; J. Pettitt, 7; R. T. Woodley, 8; W. L. Both touches conducted by W. L. Catchpole.

AT ST. MAGNUS-THE-MARTYR, a 395 of Grandsire Caters. J. Bonney, 1; J. Comb, 2; C. Relton, 3; R. T. Woodley, 4; Dr. A. B. Carpenter, 5; M. A. Wood (conductor), 6; F. L. Carpenter, 5; G. T. McLaughlin, 6; F. L. Davies, 7; S. E. Joyce, 8; J. M. Hayes (conductor), 9; J. Davidson, 10.

The Dinner took place at 7 p.m., at the Bridge House Hotel, London Bridge, and was under the management of a dinner committee consisting of Messrs. G. T. McLaughlin (Master), J. Pettitt (Treasurer), S. Joyce and E. C. Clark (Stewards), R. T. Woodley, C. F. Winny, W. Tyack, and G. Mash. The arrangements for the comfort and convenience of those attending were everything that could be desired. The Master of the Society—Mr. McLaughlin—presided, and among the metropolitan members present were:—Messrs. G. T. McLaughlin, J. Pettitt, G. Mash, G. A. Muskett, S. E. Joyce, E. C. Clark, C. F. Winny, W. Tyack, W. Making, J. R. Haworth, A. Murphy, W. Greenleaf, E. E. Vinen, F. E. Dawe, W. H. Judd, S. Hayes, Y. Green, H. R. Newton, T. Jackson, Hughes (Mears and Company), W. Prime, T. Coxhead, J. Digby, W. Digby, A. Rea, J. M. Hayes, T. R. Bell, J. Willshire, A. F. Ingerfield, W. Cropley, J. N. Oxborrow, W. Carter, G. C. Mash, W. Cecil, J. Bonney, E. Wallage, H. Langdon, S. How, J. W. Driver, J. Davidson, E. Horrex, J. W. Rowbotham.

The country members comprised Messrs. W. L. Catchpole, Ipswich; E. Debenham, W. H. L. Buckingham, G. Cartmel, J. C. Mitchell, St. Albans; R. Sewell, E. Davies, Barking; H. Pearce, Maidstone; W. Wadey, Billingshurst; Dr. A. B. Carpenter, Croydon. The following members of the Royal Cumberland Society were present: H. S. Thomas, Esq., A. G. Thomas, Esq., W. Baron, H. A. Hopkins, W. H. D. Porter, W. Ambrose, E. Chapman, W. Jones, G. Wild, Mr. Baker, Mr. Swetman. Among other visitors were T. Dale Hart, Esq., L.L.B. and Dr. Spilsbury, of Ontario, Canada, and party; Mr. Edgar Manning, of Plymouth; Messrs. F. L. Davies, H. Partington, E. H. Wilson, Waterloo Society of change-ringers; Mr. R. Keeble, Essex Association; Messrs. H. Burgess, J. Prior, E. Duff, St. Stephen's Society, Westminster.

Ample justice having been done to the excellent dinner provided, the pleasant proceedings which followed were commenced by Mr. Tyack with a pianoforte selection, after which

The CHAIRMAN said—Mr. Vice-Chairman and gentlemen, the first toast upon the list is one that is always well received, and I am sure will be heartily received by you this evening as loyal subjects. It is "The health of Her Majesty the Queen and Royal Family." Gentlemen, I have great pleasure in proposing this toast. As you are aware this is Her Majesty's Jubilee year, and it is also our 250th anniversary, therefore we have a double event.

Song, "Queen of my heart," Mr. R. T. Woodley. Song, "The Tipperary Christening," Mr. A. Murphy.

The CHAIRMAN: The next toast is one which I hardly know if I can do credit to. It is "Prosperity to the Ancient Society of College Youths." Wherever Englishmen are known, the Ancient Society of College Youths is represented. I consider it gentlemen a great honour to occupy the chair this evening, and to be supported by so many ringers and friends. I have collected one or two facts which have been recorded by this society during the past year. I find first of all that we have enrolled fifty-two new members. The next item is an interesting one; it relates to the number of peals that have been rung. I consider that as a society it stands at the top of the list. We have rang one peal of Treble Bob Maximus, one of Stedman Cinques, two of Double Norwich Royal, four of Stedman Caters, two of Superlative Surprise Major, one of Cambridge Surprise Major, one of Double Norwich Court Major, three of Kent Treble Bob Major, one of Bob Major, sixteen of Grandsire Triples, thirteen of Stedman Triples; also two of Kent Treble Bob Royal upon handbells, which were rung by our Ipswich friends, and nine of Grandsire Triples, two of which were non-conducted peals, the Original and the ten-part. I can say but little more than to ask you to drink to the prosperity of the Ancient Society of College Youths, and with that toast I will couple the name of Mr. Haworth, who is the oldest living member present with us this evening. The toast was duly pledged with musical honours.

Song, "Dream of the Albert Hall," Mr. S. Joyce.

Mr. J. R. HAWORTH: I consider you have done me a great honour in placing my name upon the programme and coupling it with the toast. It is I suppose because as the Chairman has said that I am the oldest member present that you have done me this honour. Well I became a member of this Society in 1839, so if all goes well you see I shall soon have a jubilee. I rang my first peal in 1842—you'll excuse me speaking about myself for a minute—we rang a peal of Treble Bob, and a Mr. Mills gave each of the band a medal—either the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman has got mine—there were eight medals given, and Mr. Mills said he would give ten medals if we rang a peal of Royal; this Mr. Mills was Master of the Society, he was was a tobacconist in a large way of business, and often came amongst us. Our Master has reminded us that this is Her Majesty's Jubilee Year, we know that; but we have five of them, we have five jubilees. This is our 250th anniversary, so it is our fifth jubilee. As you are aware it was established in 1637, and it is now 1887, so if you add 250 to 1637 it makes 1887. The Ancient Society of College Youths was founded November 5th, 1637, in the reign of Charles I.; its name is derived from the first members, Lord Brereton, and Sir Cliff Clifton, Knt., and meeting at St. Martin's, College Hill, Upper Thames Street, to practice ringing. For some time only rounds and call changes were rung, but at length about 1642, 120 of Bob Doubles were achieved. Slow progress was made till 1677, when Mr. Fabian Stedman, a native of Cambridge, and a printer by profession, published his "Campanalogia." About this time Stedman's method was first rung at St. Benet's, Cambridge, by the College Youths, who paid a visit to that town. Two other members are deserving of mention, Mr. Benjamin Annable and Mr. John Holt. To the former is due the merit of throwing Caters and Cinques into the Tittum position, and composing the first peal of Grandsire Triples. To Mr. Holt the credit is due of producing the greatest number of changes with bobs only, now universally known as Holt's Original. The first great performance that we have any account of was at St. Saviour's, Southwark, on the six large bells, November 18th, 1684, when the College Youths rang three 720's, the first time so many changes were rung without stopping. Since January 19th, 1724, at which time it became the practice to record peals of 5000 changes and upwards, to May 7th, 1887, the members of the society had accomplished in various towers in the United Kingdom placed at their disposal, 1111 peals. The society has on its time honoured roll of members, many names of eminence, amongst whom may be cited Sir Richard Everard, Sir Hy. Tulse, Brian Eldridge, Sir John Bollis, Bart., Sir W. Culpepper, Hon. R. Cecil, Hon. C. Cecil, Slingsby Bethell (afterwards Alderman of the City, and Lord Mayor), Abraham Rudhall, Sir Watkin William Wynne, Sir Hy. Hicks, John Patrick, John Hardham, a celebrated ringer and an extensive tobacconist in Fleet Street, the inventor of the snuff called "Hardham," Francis Geary (afterwards Admiral), who rang in the first peal of Bob Maximus, Sir Watkins Lewis, Knt., Alderman and Lord Mayor, Samuel Birch, Esq., Lord Mayor in 1815, John Powell Powell, Esq., who erected in his park a tower in which he placed a peal of twelve bells; W. Maunsell, Esq., Recorder of Stamford, Mr. R. Mills, who presented some members with silver medals for a peal of Treble Bob; C. A. W. Troyte, Esq., J. E. Troyte, Esq., Rev. Canon Cattley, Sir Bartle Frere, K.C.B., G.C.S.I., Messrs. Thomas, Charles and George Mears, Robert Stainbank, Esq., John William Taylor, Esq., Alfred Sylvia Lawson, Esq., Dr. John Stainer (organist of St. Paul's Cathedral), A. Percival Heywood, Esq., and J. W. R. Rees, Esq., of the Bengal Civil Service.

Song, "The Skipper," Mr. Making.

Mr. R. T. WOODLEY: I have a toast to propose, which to me is a pleasure, it is that of "The Master and Officers of the Society." The duties of our Master are arduous indeed, especially to keep a company like this in order. Gentlemen, the Ancient Society of College Youths is extended throughout the country, there is a large area over which it is extended. Those who come to our meetings cannot have failed to observe the thorough business manner in which everything is transacted by the Master and Officers of the Society whose health I ask you to drink with full musical honours.

Song, "Beautiful Isle of the Sea," Mr. W. Greenleaf.

The CHAIRMAN: I thank Mr. Woodley for the manner in which he proposed the toast of the "Master and Officers of the Society," and you, gentlemen, for the hearty manner in which you responded to his call. What we have done has been a matter of love to us. Each time that we have met—and we have met many times—it has always been a pleasure for us to meet. Gentlemen, I can only express the hope that I shall have the pleasure of meeting the officers for many years to come.

Handbell performance, a course of Stedman Triples. J. C. Mitchell, 1-2; W. H. L. Buckingham, 3-4; C. F. Winney, 5-6; G. Cartmel, 7-8. Pianoforte Selections, Mr. E. E. Vinen.

Mr. W. H. JUDD: It falls to my lot to propose the next toast, and I do so with pleasure, it is the "Health of the Dinner Committee," which I am sure you will heartily drink. Anyone who has anything to do in organising a show like this, must know that there is a deal of work to do. This has been well carried out, or we should not have had such a capital show as this, or so large a gathering. Well, gentlemen I have been up to some of the meetings, there has been a deal of talk, a deal of writing, a deal of work, but they have got through it all. I ask you to drink to the Health of the Dinner Committee, they are McLaughlin, Pettit, Joyce, Mash, Clarke, Woodley and Winny, and this I ask you to drink with musical honours.

Song, "Peggy o' Yarmouth Town," Mr. W. Porter.

Mr. G. MASH: I rise to thank you on behalf of the Dinner Committee, for the very hearty manner in which you have responded to the toast so ably proposed by Mr. Judd. We have done our best in making the arrangements for this evening's festivities, and if we have given you satisfaction it has given us a pleasure to see so many kind friends present. It is somewhere about thirty years since I became a member of the Society, I have been in harness by passing through the chair several times, and that which was considered to be in the interest of the Society has always been done. My father was a member of the Society, and there are those that can testify to his having worked hard in the interest of the Society, in fact he was called the recruiting sergeant. When anyone came up from the country or anyone wanted coaching up, he would always take them in hand, and having got them on would naturally introduce them as members to the Society which he had the honour of belonging to. Gentlemen, I again thank you on behalf of the Committee for the toast.

Duet, "The Army and Navy," Messrs. Judd and Tyack.

The CHAIRMAN: The next toast I have the honour of asking you to drink as that of the "Provincial Members." We are all very pleased to see Mr. Catchpole here this evening, he is sent by the members of our Society at Ipswich, to represent them at this meeting. I trust it will be put upon record that we gave him a hearty welcome, and that we should have been pleased to have seen more of the company that he represents, of which he is so worthy a member. We have also gentlemen present this evening, some representatives from St. Albans, who are young members of this Society, but they are ornaments to it. The performances which they have accomplished speak wonderfully for their ability. I have no doubt but that they will do yet more, and that their names will shine in the records of the Society. It is a great pleasure for me to propose the toast of the "Provincial Members of the Society," and with it I couple the name of Mr. Catchpole.

Song, "Ringing Reminiscences," Mr. W. H. Judd. By some original hits combined with a fluent and facetious style of delivery, Mr. Judd was rapturously applauded, and on being encored gave "The real old Irish gentleman."

Mr. CATCHPOLE, who on rising met with a hearty reception, said—I think you have made a mistake in placing my name down upon the programme to respond to this toast, as there are some provincial members present who have done more than I have. I may mention that my own company were to start this evening at about five o'clock for a peal of Royal in honour of this event, and if successful I was to receive a telegram, but it has not come, and therefore I am afraid they have not met with success. I can assure you, gentlemen, that the provincial members of the society are as much interested in the College Youths as those who reside in the metropolis. Speaking on behalf of my own company, I may say that if at any time any of you or the members of any company like to pay us a visit, a hearty welcome will be given them. We have a capital ring of bells that go like tops, and whenever you like to come you will be welcomed. I always look in "THE BELL NEWS" each week, and any performances we see we take a deep interest in, and we take a deep interest in anything that is done by this society. As in everything in change-ringing, there is sure to be bars of discord, but we have to get over them, and meetings like this do much good. I am sure that no one will leave this meeting to night with the slightest animosity to any one.

Mr. DEBENHAM: On behalf of the St. Albans contingent I beg to thank you for the kind way in which you received the toast last proposed by the Chairman. We had tried to do our best to make progress, and have succeeded as far as we can. You, Mr. Chairman, referred to the non-conducted peals of Grandsire Triples. I think it should be mentioned that you took part in them, and no doubt it was your modesty that you did not put more stress upon such extraordinary performances; these were peals that two of the St. Albans men took part in. I had the pleasure of meeting with Mr. Cartmel and Mr. Buckingham, and Mr. Winny, and got through a 5000. I consider it is rather remarkable that there should have been two non-conducted peals, and this dinner take place in the 250th year of the society.

Song, "I am waiting," Mr. W. L. Catchpole.

Mr. J. PETTIT: The toast entrusted to me is "The London and Provincial Ringing Societies," and is one which I have great pleasure in proposing. We have the honour of the presence of some of the members of the other London societies here to night, to help us to celebrate this the fifth jubilee of the society. With regard to the provincial ringing societies, I am sure we must all feel a pleasure to see so many societies springing up to promote the art, we are so fond of, and with this toast I shall couple the name of Mr. Thomas, of Battersea. I do not think there is any ringer in the room who reads "THE BELL NEWS," who is unacquainted with the name of that gentleman, who has been so much amongst change-ringers in the society to which he belongs, therefore gentlemen, it gives me very great pleasure to couple his name with this toast of "The other London and Provincial Ringing Societies."

Song, "The Cottage and Mill," Mr. S. Hayes.

Song, "The Hole in the Shutter," Mr. H. Hopkins.

Mr. THOMAS: First of all I must thank you, or rather thank the Committee, for so kindly sending an invitation to us at Battersea; and I am pleased to say that nine of our members are here this evening. I am sure it has given me very great pleasure myself to be present, and I have thoroughly enjoyed myself, and I shall never forget your 250th anniversary. On behalf of the other Societies that Mr. Pettit so kindly mentioned, the other London and Provincial Ringing Societies, I thank you very heartily indeed, and I can only say that many of you have been down to Battersea, and many more have not; but at any time that you think proper to journey down to see us, we will be pleased to make you very welcome. I may tell you that next year I want to try and arrange a little outing down to Birchington, in Kent, for I am very anxious to see a peal rung by six of your company and six of the company to which I belong; and I should like to see a peal rung on the twelve, I have seen an eight bell peal carried through, and also a ten bell peal, and I have it in my mind to see the thing carried out next year. I thank you very kindly for inviting my brother members and myself this evening, and I will repeat that I should like you to come to Battersea. Our meetings are on Tuesday evenings, and also on Sunday mornings. One of the members of your Society has asked permission to come for a peal at Battersea, and we shall be pleased to see you there; but at the present time our bells are in a defective state, two or three wheels and such like want repairing, but no doubt that will all be done by Christmas, and after then if you will arrange a convenient date, I shall have very great pleasure in meeting you. Gentlemen, I thank you.

Song, "Balaclava," Mr. J. Prior.

Mr. JONES, who saw some active service in 1853 and at other periods, gave a few details of his connection with the army, and how he was twice wounded and finally invalided home. Some said he was a ringer, they put him down as such, but that he must leave to those present. He had spent a very pleasant evening.

The CHAIRMAN: Gentlemen—Owing to the difficulties to be surmounted in preparing this programme so as to suit the various tastes of the company, a most important toast was omitted to be put down. I refer to the toast of "The Clergy." Unfortunately, we have no rev. representative of the Church of England here to respond, but I am sure that a toast which finds an appropriate place at every ringers' meeting will meet with a fitting reception at your hands.

Song, "The Village Blacksmith," Mr. E. Duff.

The CHAIRMAN: There is one other toast which was omitted from the list, and that is that of "The Visitors." We are honoured with the presence of several gentlemen this evening, and with the toast I will couple the name of Mr. Hart.

Song, "The Rose of Allandale," Mr. T. Jackson.

Mr. HART: I am inclined to quarrel with you Mr. Chairman, for having called upon me to respond to this toast, but I must thank you all for the hearty way in which you received it. It has given me great pleasure to have come among you this evening. Dr. Spilsbury comes from that great country which is one with us, I mean Canada, and when he returns, he will have pleasant recollections to carry to his home. As ringers, you may know that at Stroud in Gloucestershire, there is one who is ninety-five years of age. You will know his claim as the Prince of Ringers when I tell you that he once took part in a peal of 12,900. Upon his ninety-fifth birthday a band paid the old man a visit, and notwithstanding his feeble condition he rang a couple of bells held in his hands, so enraptured was the veteran, that during the night he frequently kept making signs of still ringing. The best wish I can make you is that you may all have ninety-five years, and enjoy them with the same honour as Giles Mansfield does. We know in our national history how important a part bells have played. No event of importance takes place but what the bells are rung. They have called to arms our warriors, and in the time of war added solemnity to sorrow, but with peace have added to our rejoicing. Some of us have had our births welcomed by a peal; we hear the welcome message upon the Sunday morning, and the merry peal at our weddings, while they have added solemnity to the occasion when we have carried those we loved to the grave. I would remind you that whatever is worth doing is worth doing well. Your Society has a work to teach people, so that there is not a discord to those that hear them. I congratulate you upon the fact that the Society has in a chain a history extending over 250 years, and that despite the trials and troubles, you may go on in harmony. Gentlemen, I wish you in your corporate capacity long life, health, and success.

In complimentary terms, the CHAIRMAN proposed a vote of thanks to Messrs. Tyack, Vinen, and Porter, who had officiated during the evening at the pianoforte, and the company having sang "Auld Lang Syne" the proceedings terminated. We observed with pleasure the presence of Mr. F. E. Dawe, who after his long illness was again looking himself.

A neatly-printed programme of the evenings proceedings was circulated among the guests. The absence of the toast of "The Press" was however remarked upon.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1887.

PRESSURE upon our space has prevented us having our usual comment both this week and last. Several reports of meetings and a number of touches are thus unavoidably left over till next week. The correspondence upon the question known as the Tottenham peal appears to grow week by week; we should like to give a hint to the writers to practise brevity when putting their ideas relating to this matter on paper. A hint may be also taken that we cannot allow the discussion to be prolonged, in fact it would have been closed this week but for the desire to give "the other side" an opportunity of making any statement if they wished to do so. Our desire is not only to feel that we do act fairly to all disputants upon any question, but that our readers shall have a sincere conviction of our impartiality. This we say because we are informed that one or two noisy turbulent spirits who have been hit by the recent statements of correspondents assert the contrary.

These are a nice light ring of six bells, tenor about 12 cwt., and the striking throughout was excellent.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

The Annual Meeting of this Society was held on Tuesday, the 9th inst., when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year, viz.: Master, Samuel E. Joyce; Honorary Secretary, Richard T. Woodley; Treasurer, James Pettit; Senior Steward, Edgar E. Clark; Junior Steward, Henry Springhall; Auditors, Messrs. F. E. Dawe and W. Tyack.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday last, November 12th, a Committee Meeting was held in the vestry of St. Mary's church, Kidderminster, and was presided over by the Rev. Sydney Phillips, Vicar. The following towers were represented: Bromsgrove, Bellbroughton, Chad-desley Corbett, Cradley, Dudley, Kidderminster, Netherton, Stourbridge, etc. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the usual business was transacted. Ten new performing members were proposed for election, and the rev. chairman was admitted an Hon. Member. A vote of thanks having been passed to the Vicar for presiding and for the use of the tower, the rev. gentleman said in response that it gave him very great pleasure to preside over such an important branch of church workers, and should at all times be very pleased when called upon to do all in his power to assist the movement, which he was sure was worthy of support, and a step in the right direction. He welcomed the members most heartily to Kidderminster, and should always receive them with the same kindness whenever they wished to hold a meeting there. The business being over, the members adjourned to the house of Mr. J. Crane (one of the Kidderminster company) the "Rose and Crown" inn, where a good substantial tea had been provided for the inner man, and to which ample justice was done, this being a new feature in the Association, and was much admired by all present. After the removal of the cloth, songs and touches of Grandsire Caters and Triples were rung upon the handbells, and thus brought one of the most pleasant and enjoyable evenings to a close. Touches of Grandsire Triples, Kent Treble Bob Major, and Kent Treble Bob Minor were rung upon the tower bells during the afternoon and evening.

KEYNSHAM, SOMERSETSHIRE.

On Tuesday, November 8th, some members of the Old St. James's Society, Bristol, and the Rev. H. A. Cockey, of Bitton, met at Keynsham with the intention of ringing a date-touch of Grandsire Triples on the fine peal of eight at the parish church, tenor about 27 cwt. (diam. 52½ inches) in E flat. The bells were rehung in the early part of this year, but the tenor goes so badly that two men were unable to ring her for more than twenty-five minutes. The ringers stood as follows:—C. Gordon, 1; T. Salter, 2; A. Anderson, Esq., 3; J. Davies, 4; A. Parish, 5; C. Boutflower, Esq., 6th; Rev. H. A. Cockey (conductor) 7th; H. Schusler and J. Tompkins, 8. Touches of 112 and 504 were afterwards rung, the former with the ringers in the same order, the latter with A. Parish on the 3rd, and R. Knill on the 5th.

BATCOMBE, SOMERSETSHIRE.

Batcombe is a village in a very remote part of Somersetshire, about three and half miles from Evercreech station, on the Somerset and Dorset Railway. The tower of the parish church contains a ring of six bells, the tenor of which was cracked, and as a jubilee memorial to Her Majesty's reign has been recast. On Wednesday, October 26th, a party of the St. James' Society, Bristol, who were engaged, came down to ring the bells, when upon raising them in peal the new bell was pronounced to be exquisite in tone, and in perfect harmony with the rest of the peal. During the afternoon six 6-scores of various methods were rung. For evening service a six-score of each of the following methods were rung: Grandsire, Plain Bob, and Stedman. G. Pearse, 1; H. Tucker, 2; H. Porch (conductor), 3; W. W. Porch, 4; F. J. Porch, 5; J. York, 6. After the service a six-score of Grandsire Doubles and one of Stedman Doubles were rung, and the bells were lowered in peal. The weight of the tenor is 19½ cwt., and bears the following inscription:

"For fifty years a bright example seen,

We praise our God for giving us such a Queen.

W. C. Baker, Rector, T. Brown, T. James, Churchwardens."

A large clock with three dials each four feet six inches across, has just been completed at Bladon church, near Blenheim, Oxfordshire, by John Smith, Midland Clock Works, Derby. It was started by the rector and churchwardens on the 10th instant.

WELLINGBOROUGH, NORTHANTS.

CURFEW.—The ancient custom of ringing Curfew at eight o'clock each evening has been revived at Wellingborough during the past month. Formerly the old fourth bell (now the sixth), was used for the purpose, but it will now be rung on the present fourth bell (the old second), the senior bell of the peal. Cast by Newcombe, of Leicester, in the reign of James I., A.D. 1604, it has remained in the tower for over 280 years uninjured, but bearing many a dint from clapper and chime-hammer. The ringing of Curfew is supposed to have been instituted by King Alfred; but was, as is well known, enforced by William the Conqueror.

FROME, SOMERSETSHIRE.

The churchwardens of the parish church of St. John-the-Baptist, Frome, Selwood, Somersetshire, having decided to have the tower bells thoroughly overhauled, have entrusted the work to Mr. T. Blackburn, of Salisbury, who commenced, and will no doubt do his very best to make the bells pealable; they being a rather heavy ring of eight, tenor 36 cwt. It is to be hoped that at the completion of the necessary repairs Mr. Blackburn will bring a competent band of change-ringers and start for a peal, seeing that there has never been such a thing attempted in Frome, and thus show the parishioners that the bells are not too heavy for change-ringing as some of them imagine, especially as there has been such a deal of correspondence going on of late in the local papers about the formation of a Guild of change-ringers for the diocese of Bath and Wells.

THE TOWN HALL BELLS, MANCHESTER.

On Saturday, November 12th, the Ashton-under-Lyne society visited Manchester, and having previously obtained permission, started for a peal of Grandsire Caters on the above heavy peal of bells. But through some misunderstanding after ringing for 1 hr. 45 mins., a note was sent into the tower from the Chief Constable ordering the bells to be stopped, and the conductor called the bells round in 1 hr. 55 mins., after ringing 2610 changes, which is by far the longest touch on these bells. The Ashton company hope to have the pleasure before long of making another attempt for the peal. T. Taylor, 1; J. Hopwood, 2; T. Wroe, 3; J. Wood, 4; B. Broadbent, 5; J. Mellor, 6; S. Andrew, 7; J. Thorp, 8; S. Wood (conductor), 9; G. Longden and J. Harrison, 10. Tenor 52 cwt. Composed by the late J. Wood.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—ROSSENDALE BRANCH.

A ringing meeting of the above branch took place on Saturday, November 12th, at Haslingden parish church, when a good muster of ringers attended, over 30 ringers being present from the following towers, viz.: Christ Church and St. Saviour's, Bacup Parish Church, New Church, St. James's, Waterfoot; St. Paul's, Ramsbottom, and the Haslingden Parish Church. Several touches were rung by mixed bands during the afternoon and evening in the following methods: Bob Minor, College Single, and Grandsire Triples. At the meeting following it was resolved to ring a date touch as soon as possible, the first practice to be on Saturday, November 19th, at New Church. Votes of thanks to the Vicar and Wardens for the use of the tower, to the Chairman, Mr. Nutter, for presiding, and the Local Secretary for his services brought one of the best meetings of the branch to a close, all returning home well pleased with their visit to Haslingden.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE TOTTENHAM PEAL.

SIR,—The discussion upon this question is getting painful. I am strongly of opinion that a point has been stretched too far in refusing the entry of this peal. The disclosures which have been made in this correspondence will not be the means of adding to the respect in which the St. James' Society is held. When three members ring a peal under circumstances I would for their sake rather not repeat, and then object to a good and somewhat difficult performance, there is a tremendous flavour of inconsistency, which if persisted in shows dogged obstinacy, some people would call it pig-headedness. The more courageous behaviour would be to give way and let the peal be booked, and thus avoid the perpetuation of that rancour which the affair has begotten. To heal the breach instead of widening it would be a splendid task for the retiring Master of the College Youths, and, no one would rejoice more than I if he would undertake it. His name would then be handed down to posterity in a much more desirable manner than if this bitter but simple contention proceeds. From the tenour of the correspondence and the allegations made therein, it is too plain that the principal objectors regret the course they took, and would now gladly stop the ball rolling any further. Then why not behave as men, and have acted too hastily? I would counsel them to be magnanimous, and give way. Never jeers of the ignoramus or two, who at the meeting the other night indulged in language which is never seen in print. They will be glad in the long run that they withdrew their opposition, even though it be at the eleventh hour.

CENTRIFUGAL FORCE.

SIR,—'T'aint often I trouble you with any ideas of my own, but I should like just now, through you, to thank Mr. Whinney, Mr. Murry Haze, Maclockling, French, Hayword, Woodleigh, and a few other dear old friends of mine for the very manly and spirited way in which they have vindicated the position of a valuable portion of the ringing community. I have been a ringer nearly fifty years, and I have seen some strange changes in that time. In our parish there has been a band of young ringers established, who do things quite different from what I used to see. Our Vicar, he says to me, "Roper," says he, "Why don't you join the new band, and go in for the Standard Methods, instead of hanging on behind?" "Vicar," I says to him "the tenor is the backbone of all ringing. If you takes your leads off the tenor, and looks out for your course bell you can't go wrong; don't talk to me about inside bells, it's in the tenor where the science comes in." Well, the other ringers all laughed, but I took a rise out of them last week, Vicar and all, when I showed them that all the great London Societies say "there is more in ringing the tenor than there is in all the others"; and they have passed an act of parliament to say that "there shan't be any peals booked unless there is a tenor behind." Well, that fairly fetched 'em, and now our ringers are arranging to ring a peal of 5040 rounds, with the tenor behind, and they are going to call it "Murry Haze's Original," and if we get it, we shall send it up to the St. James' Society, and get it booked on the page where the Tottenham men want their peal booked. And I hope this will be a lesson to them for the future, as I am told they don't think nearly as much of the importance of the tenor behind as they ought. I think it is like their presumption to start ringing a peal with seven bells. Such a thing has never been done before, and therefore why should it be countenanced now. They say they met for a peal of Bob Major, but meeting one short they rang a peal of Bob Triples on the seven. What I says is this: "When they found they was one short, why did they not go to the public house and improve their minds by genial conversation, same as ringers, what are ringers, have always been in the habit of doing?" I don't agree with these new fangled notions, which are turning ringing upside down. Why up to now lately, our belfry was the comfortablest spot on earth; it was all snug and to itself, nobody ever came up there, in fact they couldn't well get up, and we could smoke, and enjoy ourselves over our pot of beer, and we used to ring Tombstone Bob in all its variations, as true as ever you heard it in your life. But now all this is changed, the belfry was all cleaned out, and the walls all painted, and matting put down for the floor, and all that sort of thing. Tombstone Bob is banished, they wont allow no smoking, not even to finish your pipe, no beer, no matter what the weather may be, while if you spit about on the floor they make as much fuss as if you were in the church. And worst of all they don't think no account of their tenor ringer, and I am real thankful to the gentlemen what took the pains to let the people know that the tenor behind is of a deal more importance than they think it is, whatever the Tottenham men may have to say about it to the contrary. And if our friends only persevere in the course they have taken they will soon bring back the good old times, when "beer and bells" went hand in hand, and county associations and Tottenham bands were unknown, and Tombstone Bob, with the tenor behind, was reckoned real science. And now I will tell you how I would serve those Tottenham men for making such a fuss about this peal. I would have all their names struck off the books of the St. James' Society. I know you will say they can't do that, because there is no rule which gives the power; but let me tell you that does not matter a bit. Just get one of them (say Mr. Haze, he is a good one at that sort of thing), to move a resolution one night when there are none of the Tottenham men present that they be struck off the books, never mind what for, and the thing is done. There is no need to tell them about it, and the Society can go on taking their subscriptions for booking peals, etc., and quietly put it into their own pockets, the same as they have done with the booking fees for the now famous Tottenham peal. And serve them right too, says I. Once more thanking the kind gentlemen who have taken such pains to bring about so desirable a state of things, and trusting that their names may not be allowed to sink into obscurity, but be handed down as they deserve, as shining lights in the Exercise, I remain yours truly,

BOB ROPER, TENOR BELL RINGER, HIS + MARK.

SIR,—I have hesitated somewhat in writing to you on the subject of the Tottenham peal of Triples; hoping that you might receive a full account of the transaction from some other source. As however among the many separate points raised, this seems to have been over your readers' heads, I have been obliged to ask the judgment of your readers on the whole case. The peal was rung in July last, and was reported to the society for booking in the ordinary course, the sum due being paid in. Then, without any previous notice being given to ensure the attendance of one of the ringers concerned, a resolution was passed at a small meeting that the peal should not be booked. No notice of this decision was sent to the Tottenham society or any one connected with it. The matter being accidentally discovered some months after, the band naturally desired a chance of justifying themselves to the society, and notice of a resolution to rescind the minutes of a previous meeting was given at the earliest possible date, and came on in due course at the last meeting with the well-known result. There are however one or two things about this meeting worth remarking. One, the composition of the majority has already been noticed; no one denying the legal right of the six young ringers of the St. Stephen's society to vote as their conductor told them; that's what they came for. But no one has noticed the treatment experienced by the Tottenham men at the meeting. Before any resolution was before the meeting, Mr. McLaughlin (from whose general moderation I should have expected better things), objected at some length to the matter being gone into; and also to the action of the Tottenham society in placing the case in the hands of your readers before it had come before the society. Please note that the "Society" had disposed of it, as they thought, several months before. His speech was listened to with respect, the only interruption—of no consequence—being an expression by a well-known ringer, which called forth an ironical retort that such ringer was "a gentleman," an accusation it must be confessed he did not appear to understand. When, however, Mr. English came to lay the other side of the matter before the meeting, he was obstructed in every possible way, it being only allowed to go to a division in response from a word or two from Mr. McLaughlin, who I suppose saw that he then had enough votes. I should say that the Master had previously in answer to questions from myself, explicitly declined to receive the resolution, holding that the meeting was not competent to deal with it, the secretary not having been authorised to insert the special notices convening it which appeared in the ringing papers. A point which seemed to have some weight, was the question whether the society could rescind its own minutes. On that I would point out that we had in our favour the opinion of one of the oldest and most consistent supporters of the St. James' society—Mr. Chew; and that within the last month the Court of Common Council has rescinded a previous resolution relating to the appointment of City Architect, a good precedent enough surely. I doubt if the matter is to end here. The Chairman ought not to have presumed to settle it without more careful consideration; and it now appears that the opinion of the country members is strong against his vote. If the resolution does stand, it will stand for ever as an example of narrow-minded personal feeling and jealousy; and as a sign post to warn young ringers against joining the society which harbours such feeling.

EDWARD F. STRANGE.

SIR,—The action taken by a few members of the St. James' Society respecting the booking of the above peal appears to be a direct opposition to rule IX. of the Society: "That a book be kept exclusively for the insertion of peals accomplished by members only." As the above was a bona fide peal of Bob Triples, rang by members, I maintain that the Tottenham members are justified in demanding that their peal should be booked accordingly.

ALF. FOX.

SIR,—In your last week's issue, Mr. Bell makes some remarks about coaxing our members to attend the St. James' meeting, held on the 31st ult. Allow me to inform him that we did not require any of that. We went there to protest against (what every ringer with common sense terms) a very creditable performance being boycotted—it is nothing more or less—and it was extremely unfortunate for us that some four or five more of our members could not attend, owing to circumstances over which they had no control. Speaking of performances, I suppose the last peal of Grandsire Caters rung at St. Clement Danes will be booked in the usual manner, because the head of the clique called it. Nevertheless it was one of the worst struck peals rung on those bells for some years, in fact I am informed it ranks not very far behind the peal of Stedman Caters fired out on the same bells a few years back. Mr. Bell seems to think that he and his company have more right to vote at a St. James' meeting than we have. If he will just peruse the following, I think he will alter his mind. Suppose his company attend the meetings regularly, as he says they do, they pay about 1s. 6d. into the funds yearly, whilst the majority of us have to pay 4s., and one of us 5s., besides occasional steeples. Last Monday (14th inst.), the ordinary fortnightly meeting of the company took place, and at this meeting the minutes of the special meeting of the 31st ult. were confirmed. Then a new rule is proposed, seconded and put to the meeting in spite of the strong protests lodged against such procedure; but it was useless protesting, as the above mentioned clique (Messrs. Hayes, Winny, Woodley, and Co.) have everything their own way, and do just as they please; and as they are ignorant of the simplest rules of procedure, your readers will readily imagine the ridiculous manner in which the affairs of the St. James' Society are got through. Another bright specimen of the way in which the Society's affairs are "worked" is to be found in your correspondent Aleph's letter of a week or two back, respecting the election of a member and ringing a handbell peal in a public house on Sunday. The new rule, which will appear on the Society's books, was proposed and seconded by Messrs. J. M. Hayes and C. F. Winny, and is to the following effect: "That no peal be recognised by the St. James' Society unless, 8, 10, or 12 bells are rung." I should like to know what they are going to do with six-bell peals. Seven different methods on six bells is infinitely more creditable to the performers than a peal of Treble 8, 10, or 12. I must apologise for the length of my letter, and in conclusion remark that the most surprising feature in the proceedings of the St. James' Society is, that some ringers of fair repute should lend their support to such a clique of bigots.

J. WAGHORN, JUN.

Member of All Hallows' Society, Tottenham.

SIR,—Your correspondent, Mr. Bell, seems a very innocent sort of person. He says the St. Stephen's Society of Westminster meet the St. James' Company regularly. When it was proposed and carried that our peal should not be booked, there were only about 9 or 10 members present, so that with J. M. Hayes and Winny the members of the St. Stephen's company transacted the job, led by their teacher as I again assert. Mr. Bell thinks his party have more right to vote than we have, but I don't think so, as I myself have taken part in 13 peals since January, 10 of which are St. James' peals, and I have to pay 6d. for each, which means 5s., so I think that is paying more for my vote than he will do in 12 months. Messrs. Hayes, Winny and Co., are good ringers beyond doubt, and it has been their fortune of late to become associated with a few gentlemen from various parts of the country on their visits to London for ringing purposes, but that is no reason why they should try to overrule others. I must sympathise with them in the altered opinions some of these gentlemen will form of them, through their straining a gnat in objecting to our peal, but swallowing a camel in ringing a peal upon handbells in a public-house on a Sunday.

H. A. BARNETT.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION REPORT.

SIR,—In answering the two letters on this subject in last week's issue, I am afraid the member of the Y. A. C. R. has got the illtemper only on his own account, I have none in this matter. Facts are stubborn things, and if he has any difficulty in grasping the meaning of my letters, I can only say I am sorry for his dullness in that respect. How does he know which way the course ends turned in the 247 performance? and if conducted as George Bolland said it was, the course ends he forwarded would not be seen. If he chooses to arrange a peal, I will endeavour to show him how they should turn up in a different manner than probably he is aware of. I say there's no insinuation in asking a man to give his proper name. The patronymic he has chosen has caused me no difficulty in making him out (I will not ask you, Mr. Editor, to applaud anything I may have said on this subject). If it is, as Mr. Bolland says, more pleasing to the conductor to read "this peal which was now rung for the first time by the society," that has been sent once too often by me, and I hope to be excused. I shall not attempt to say it's a printer's error, but this is the excuse they put forward for the calling of the 247th performance in the ninth report, which I shall not believe after what one said at Pudsey. Any suggestions Mr. Bolland or the member of the Y. A. C. R. may make in getting a more accurate report in future (one being a vice-president and the other a member) they can make without my assistance. I assure you the complaint was more needed than the officers might like to be reminded of.

DEDICATION OF NEW BELLS AT ROWLEY REGIS PARISH CHURCH.

On Wednesday evening week, the new bells which have been placed in St. Giles' Church, Rowley Regis, Staffordshire, were formally dedicated. The proposition for providing three new bells, in order to make a complete octave, was suggested some three or four months ago as a jubilee memorial, and the idea was very heartily taken up by the vicar, churchwardens, and others, who felt that the provision of additional bells would be a much-desired acquisition, and a very suitable manner of celebrating the 50th year of the reign of Queen Victoria. Consequently the task of raising the required funds to carry out the scheme was commenced in earnest, the result being that the subscription list was soon headed by Mr. T. P. Jones, of Oakham, with a donation of £70, which amount was followed by other considerable sums from various donors. Though the appeal for funds met with a general response, more money is still required, and it is hoped that the subscriptions will still come in to enable them not only to liquidate the debt incurred by the additional bells, but to provide a silent apparatus for the belfry and to put two glass dials to the clock. The order for the bells was entrusted to Mr. James Barwell, church bell founder, Birmingham, who has executed the commission in a very satisfactory manner. The proceedings commenced with service in the church, which was well-filled. Prayers were intoned by the Rev. C. W. Barnard (vicar), and the Rev. A. E. Farrar (curate); and the lessons were read by the Rev. W. T. Taylor (Oldbury), and the Rev. S. J. Marriott (Netherton). After evening service, the clergy, churchwardens, sidesmen, and bell-ringers proceeded to the belfry, immediately after which the congregation sang an appropriate hymn, the first verse being as follows:—

Lift them gently to the steeple,
Let our bells be set on high;
To fulfil their daily mission,
Midway 'twixt the earth and sky.

The following was the order of the procession, which was made from the east side of the church:—Clergy: Rev. Canon Pelham (Lambeth), Rev. S. J. Marriott (Netherton), Rev. C. Manby (Quinton), Rev. C. W. Barnard, and the Rev. A. E. Farrar. Churchwardens and Sidesmen: Messrs Danks, Beasley, White, Blades, Owen, Richards, Pewtress, Allen, G. Williams, Merris, Hand, and Hickman. Representatives of the bell founder: Messrs. Godden, Flock, Miller, and Buffery. Bell-ringers: Messrs. Oakley, D. Woodhouse, J. Oakley, Bennett, J. Woodhouse, T. Brocks, Ingram, and Lowe. The form of dedication used in the belfry and also repeated in the church, was as follows: "In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, we humbly offer and dedicate these bells to the glory of God, and the uses of the church of Rowley Regis." The three new bells were then rung thrice, and after the dedicatory prayers had been gone through, a touch was rung. The procession then returned to the church, when the hymn, "Songs of praise the Angels sang" was sung, after which Canon Pelham preached, taking for his text the third verse of the first chapter of the first epistle of St. John, "That ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with His Son Jesus Christ." At the conclusion of the service, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung on the bells by the ringers of Old Hill parish church. All those connected in a practical way with the scheme for providing the bells, together with the ringers and others, then adjourned to the Mission Room close by, where a capital supper was provided, at the conclusion of which the Rev. C. W. Barnard proposed a vote of thanks to Canon Pelham for coming to preach that night. He said it was a very great thing on an occasion like that, when an addition was being made to their church, that the event should be made as interesting as possible, and they were fortunate in securing the services of one so widely known as Canon Pelham. It was not often that they could get a minister from the other side of the Thames to come all the way to Rowley to preach to them, and when he received Canon Pelham's acceptance to be present with them that evening he considered that they had much cause for congratulation on being so fortunate. Referring to Canon Pelham's sermon, he said he had expressed their views exactly, and if they could get some more of that broad, loving, sympathetic, practical Christianity of which he had been speaking to them about that evening, it would be a good day for them.

Mr. DANKS, in seconding the vote of thanks, said he was thankful that they were able to have ministers from such distances. They had greater assistance in their church work than they had ever had in the past; and he thought that the event of that day was the beginning of better days at Rowley.

CANON PELHAM, in responding, said he had been caught in a trap, for he thought that he had been brought there merely to admire that room and to see some people enjoy themselves, and never anticipated being called upon to make a speech. He thanked them very heartily for the kind expressions that had been made on his behalf. He was glad to have the opportunity of coming down that day in answer to the request of his old friend, the vicar, who he was pleased to see was receiving much encouragement from them in that work, which appeared to be going on with so much success in Rowley. So far as he could judge he should think they had a very good peal of bells, and that they had been very well rung. There was a time when belfries were not thought to be part of the church, nor the place where seemly conduct was to be found; but whatever had happened of a disreputable character in belfries fifty or sixty years ago it certainly did not exist now, for the belfry was considered to be part of the church, and should be only used for sacred purposes. Bellringers had not only a great amount of responsibility resting upon them, so far as calling the people to church, but they took part in the actual service, and if they took pains and rang the bells skilfully they were really doing church work. Amongst the things that he had seen that day, which showed to him that they were doing a good work, he should not forget that beautiful room which he had seen for the first time.

THE REV. A. E. FARRAR proposed a vote of thanks to the ringers of Old Hill for coming to ring that evening, and coupled with it the name of Mr. A. H. Bassano. He said that almost everyone could appreciate the music of bells when they were well rung, and they certainly had had a treat that evening, thanks to their friends from Old Hill, who they would be able to compete with now that three bells had been added. He agreed with Canon Pelham that bellringers in calling people to church did a great work.

Mr. PEWTRESS, in seconding, said that the infection of increasing the number of bells in those churches that had not a full octave had greatly spread of late, for Oldbury amongst other towns had been affected. He hoped that the spread of the infection would be general throughout the country. He thought the Old Hill bellringers ought to consider it a great honour to have had the privilege of being the first to ring the new bells. There could be no doubt that a good work was going on in Rowley, but he hoped that they would do much more than they had done yet.

Mr. A. H. BASSANO thanked them most heartily on behalf of the Old Hill bellringers for the warm vote of thanks that had been passed, and whilst doing so he could not refrain from congratulating them for the splendid ring they had and upon the efficient manner in which they were hung. They had been pleased to find how nicely they went. It was to them a great pleasure and honour to have had the privilege of ringing the bells first, and ever since the scheme was inaugurated they had had a great desire to do so. That desire had been gratified, and they thanked them for conferring upon them the honour of being allowed to ring the bells first. He was very glad to see that there was a society of change-ringers being formed at Rowley. They might devote an unlimited amount of time to change ringing, but there was still something fresh to learn. In conclusion he expressed a hope that a great deal of friendly rivalry would exist between them and the Rowley bellringers.

Mr. WHITE moved a vote of thanks to the bell founder, Mr. Barwell, and coupled with it Mr. Godden, the manager, and the others who had assisted in the work of hanging the bells. He said that when the tenders came in he was strongly against accepting that of Mr. Barwell, but seeing the excellent manner in which the work had been carried out, he only regretted that he had ever entertained any doubt as to the efficiency of the person to whom they had entrusted it. He was highly pleased with the work, and he considered that they now had a peal of bells second to none in the district.

MR. H. BENNETT, leader of the bell ringers, in supporting the remarks of the previous speaker, said that so far as he could see, the whole of the work done in the tower was an excellent job, and it only rested with the bell ringers to do their work in an efficient manner. The Vicar said he endorsed all that had been said as to the efficiency of the work, and although he was not an expert he had had a little experience with bell ringing, and it was his opinion that the physical work of ringing the bell was now reduced to a minimum by the excellent manner in which the bells were hung.

MR. GODDEN, said that as the representative of the bellfounder he had to apologise for Mr. Barwell's absence through illness, but he should not forget to tell him of the complimentary remarks that had been made in reference to the bells. He could assure them that they had done what they could to make the peal a success, and thought they had now as beautiful a peal of eight bells as were to be found anywhere.

The VICAR said that Mr. Barwell had sent a contribution of one sovereign towards the bell fund. In moving a vote of thanks to the committee he said that as Vicar of the parish he had had as a matter of course a great deal to do with the committee, but he did not wish them to think that he was at all referring to himself, but he wanted to express his pleasure at the amount of enthusiasm which had been displayed on the part of the committee. They had been a very hard working committee, but he should couple with the vote the names of two or three other persons who had also laboured most assiduously in the movement, namely, those of Dr. Beasley, treasurer; Mr. White, who had acted as lieutenant; and Mr. Allen, secretary. When they took the matter in hand the great difficulty was how to raise the required amount of money. The question of providing additional bells to the church was not a new one; it had been mooted a long time ago. They thought that they would make a desperate effort amongst the bellringers, and the arrangement was that if they went round and succeeded in getting £50, he was to obtain the other £100; but this scheme did not meet with much success because they had only just completed building that room, the raising of the funds for which had drawn rather extensively on the generosity of the parishioners. But this jubilee year the scheme took a final shape by an offer from Mr. Thomas Jones, of Oakham, of £50, which was afterwards increased to £70. They had raised considerably over £200 altogether, and it was a marvel to him that they had got so much. They had had a great deal of begging to do to carry out the scheme, and in connection with this hard begging and carrying out of the work, the persons names he had coupled with the proposition had done a great deal. He thanked the churchwardens, who were always willing to come to the front when anything was taken in hand in Rowley, for the assistance they had rendered; and he hoped that when the next scheme for improving the church was taken up that it would be received with a similar amount of enthusiasm.

MR. GRIFFITHS responded on behalf of the committee, and in the course of his remarks said that a pleasing feature in connection with the movement was the fact that out of the whole of the people they had asked to subscribe towards the fund, they could count the refusals on their five fingers.

MR. ALLEN also responded, and in doing so expressed the pleasure he had derived in doing what he could to assist in carrying out the scheme successfully.

The assembly having been addressed by others the proceedings terminated. Special services in connection with the dedication of the bells was held on Sunday.

BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The above Association will hold their next monthly meeting on Saturday, December 3rd, at St. Philip's (10 bells). Should any ringer be in Birmingham on that date they will receive a hearty welcome, and will be sure of a touch, be he member or not. Time of meeting 5.45. As the time is limited it is necessary that all should be punctual. It is also hoped country members will avail themselves of this opportunity of meeting their brother strings.

Fisher, 3; F. Rolfe, 4; H. Croucher, 5; S. Barker (conductor), 6; F. Slingsby, 7; W. Booth, 8. Ringing was continued during the afternoon until 5, when an adjournment was made for dinner. After doing justice to the good fare provided, a very pleasant evening was passed, interspersed with songs and hand-bell music; also courses of Grandsire Triples and Bob Major. The bells are a nice handy peal in F, tenor about 18 cwt. They have been quartered and rehung by Messrs. Warner and Sons in their usual efficient manner.

MOSSLEY, LANCASHIRE.

The Mossley Church people and friends have raised money and built a new church near the site of the old parish church. It is a very commodious and handsome building, and has a beautiful square tower surmounted by four pinnacles, sufficient space being allowed for a peal of eight bells upon one level. The parishioners have worked hard and earnest for several years to this end, and during the next twelve months they hope to crown their labours with the opening of a peal of bells and an organ, the former of which will be a great acquisition to the town, as the inhabitants have not yet been able to boast of possessing a peal.

"We are pleased to hear that we are now within a measurable distance of having a peal of bells at Mossley Church. Five of the eight bells have already been promised, and a contract has been entered into with Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, bell founders, London, to supply a peal of eight. The five bells presented are by the following gentlemen, who are each giving one: the Mayor (Councillor John Mayall, J.P.), Councillor Andrew Beswick, the Vicar of Mossley (the Rev. Anthony Hall, M.A.), Mr. John Knott, and the young men of St. George's school. We expect that there will now be a rush of ladies and gentlemen to immortalise themselves by giving the remaining three bells. We do not consider that in giving these bells to St. George's, that they will in any way be the exclusive property of that church. Their sweet melody will be enjoyed by all, and thus this is a work in which men of all creeds can join."

On the 7th inst., under the patronage of the worshipful the Mayor of Mossley, a Grand Concert in aid of the bells and organ fund was given by the Liversedge Albert handbell prize ringers, and the Huddersfield Arion Prize Quartette, in the Mechanics' Institution. The ringers gave several selections, and were well received. The members of the quartet party were in excellent voice, the prominent characteristics of their performance being admirable balance, artistic and unanimity of phrasing, and the intelligent interpretation of the several selections which they had chosen. The concert was promoted by the Bell and Organ Committee, and realized a profit of £16 13s. 0d., which was handed over to the Bell and Organ Fund. The committee have, as already stated, entered into a contract with Messrs. Mears and Stainbank to supply a peal of eight bells, and intend to have them hung and ready for opening next Easter.

THIRSK, YORKSHIRE.

The ringers of the above-named church assembled for practice, on Thursday evening last, November 17th, and rung on their melodious peal of bells a date touch of Plain Bob Triples, assisted by T. Clark and Son, from the Ripon Society, in 1 hr. and 9 mins. T. Clark, 1; H. Brown, 2; Geo. Wright, 3; A. H. Clark, 4; Kirby Dales, 5; Geo. Wrightson, 6; Joseph Wrightson, 7; and David Long, 8. Tenor 19 cwt. Composed by T. Clark, and conducted by Joseph Wrightson, president of the Thirsk Society, whose indefatigable exertions are worthy of imitation, when a couple of years previous the society could ring only call changes, and none of them could ever ring in any method; he also having greatly improved the "go" of the bells, fixing improvements, thereby rendering the belfry less noisy from the sound of the bells, which was very bad, and has made the ringing room more comfortable and convenient than heretofore. He also hopes of having the long looked-for pleasure, before the present year expires, in having to record a jubilee peal, in which the writer of this paragraph wishes him every success.

J. C.

THE TEWKESBURY ABBEY SOCIETY.

Monday, the 14th ult., being Mr. L. Longney's birthday, the above society met at the abbey, and after wishing him many happy returns, rang the following touches:—A 518 of Grandshire Triples. H. Brown, 1; S. Cleal, 2; L. Longley (conductor), 3; J. Hale, 4; J. Wathen, 5; T. Devereux, 6; Jos. Wathen, 7; W. Haines, 8. A 168 of Stedman Triples. L. Longney, 1; R. Witherington, 2; F. Moore, 3; J. Hale, 4; J. Wathen, 5; T. Devereux, 6; Jos. Walker (conductor), 7; C. W. Dyson, 8. And a 504 of Union Triples. R. Witherington, 1; L. Longney, 2; F. Moore, 3; J. Hale, 4; S. Cleal, 5; T. Devereux, 6; Jos. Wathen (conductor), 7; C. W. Dyson, 8. After ringing, the ringers (twelve in number) sat down to an excellent supper, to which, it needs hardly be said, full justice was done. The cloth being removed, the handbells were brought into use, and tune and change-ringing, interspersed with songs, was indulged in during the remainder of the evening, Mr. Longley rendering in capital style, "The Midshipmite," "The Old Brigade," and "Staunch and True." At a late (or rather early) hour the company separated, one and all having thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Church News.

On Tuesday, Canon Trevor was elected without opposition Proctor for the clergy of the archdeaconry of the East Riding.

The Rev. Richard Joynes, Hon. Canon of St. Albans, has resigned the rectory of Great Holland, Essex, to which he was presented by Corpus Christi College, Oxford, in 1861.

It is understood that the committee of the Church Missionary Society have been unable to accept Bishop Blyth's proposal that they should contribute a sum of £2000 for one year to aid in the establishment by Mrs. Meredith of a Woman's Mission-house at Jerusalem.

The Rev. Thomas Greenlaw, late rector of Raithby, who was recently inhibited by the Bishop of London for preaching at the Reformed Episcopal chapel at Harlesden, has seceded from the Church of England.

Canon Jarratt, rector of North Cave, Yorkshire, and his wife, who are both over ninety years of age, are seriously ill, the former having fallen down in a procession at the consecration of a church and the latter from fright at seeing her husband brought home ill.

The adjourned meeting for the election of Proctor for the Archdeaconry of Sheffield, in place of the late Canon Ware, took place on Friday. The candidates were the Rev. T. Rigby (vicar of Laughton-en-le-Morthen) and the Rev. E. C. Oldfield (vicar of Harthill). When the adjournment took place Mr. Rigby had received 31 votes and Mr. Oldfield 11. The result of the final poll was as follows:—Mr. Rigby 42. Mr. Oldfield 32.

A meeting of the committee of the Leeds General Infirmary appointed by the subscribers to the chaplain's fund was held on Saturday. The chaplaincy was unanimously offered to the Rev. F. J. Jayne, vicar of Leeds, and has been accepted. The stipend will be used by Mr. Jayne for the engagement of another curate, and one or more of his large staff will take special charge of the infirmary work, the vicar himself retaining general supervision and being responsible to the committee.

We hear that the Rev. Ambrose Sneyd Cave-Browne-Cave, of Brigeton, has been received into the Roman Catholic Church by the society of Jesuits. Mr. Cave graduated from Corpus Christi, Oxford, in 1856, and was ordained the next year. He was curate of Deddington 1857-9, and rector of Strensham 1859-1860. In 1869 he was presented to the rectory of Stretton-en-le-Feld; but his name has disappeared from the last edition of Crookford.

On Monday the Bishop of Rochester presided at a meeting of his Diocesan Society, when the following grants were made.—£250 for a church for the St. John's College, Cambridge, Mission district, in the parish of St. John's, Walworth; £150 for a church at Sutton; £325 for various Mission buildings; £250 for a parsonage for the parish of Christ Church, Rotherhithe; £50 towards the expenses of the Sunday evening services in the Victoria Hall, Lambeth; and £1,080 for the salaries of living agents for the Christmas quarter.

The Bishop of Worcester (Dr. Philpott), completed his eightieth year on Thursday, and the event was made the occasion of an interesting celebration. The Bishop planted a jubilee oak, and especial interest attached to this, as the young tree was descended from the famous Mitre oak at Hartlebury. Tradition asserts that St. Augustine's conference with the British bishops of his time took place on the spot where the Mitre oak stands. The Rev. D. Robertson, rector of Hartlebury, stated that twenty years ago one of their oldest inhabitants, Mrs. Chellingworth, set an acorn from the old Mitre oak. This grew and produced acorns, and five years ago some of these were sown. The little tree which the Bishop was asked to plant as a memorial of the Queen's Jubilee was one which had been thus grown, and it was grandchild of the old Mitre oak. The Bishop gave an address, in which he narrated how he had rescued the ancient oak from being cut down, and the land was now held on the condition that the tree was not to be touched. The Bishop then planted the young oak, and a second oak, and Mrs. Philpott, the Bishop's wife, planted a memorial yew tree in the burial-ground of St Mary's Church.

THE PARISH CHURCH, BRADFORD, YORKS.

ON Saturday afternoon, November 12th, ten members of the Yorkshire Association rang in this tower a 5000 of Kent Treble Bob Royal, particulars of which are to be found in the usual place. The peal was well struck throughout, and at its conclusion, Mr. W. Snowdon, accompanied by a goodly number of members and friends, entered the belfry and congratulated the ringers on their performance. After the bells had been lowered, Mr. Snowdon at the request of the Bradford company mounted a platform and uncovered a memorial board recording two muffled peals which had been rung on those bells: the first in respect to the memory of the late Jasper W. Snowdon, the other to the memory of the late G. R. Mossman, for many years Magistrates' Clerk of the borough, a gentleman who was much esteemed in the town, a true-hearted Churchman. Mr. Snowdon in performing the ceremony spoke briefly, expressing the pleasure—melancholy though it was—he felt in being asked to undertake that duty; the existence of that board shewed that the name of his brother would not die out, at all events among Yorkshire ringers.

The company then adjourned to the lodge room of the "Ring of Bells," where the worthy host and hostess (Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Fowlds), had prepared an excellent and substantial dinner, the various courses of which were brought round and completed in a masterly fashion. This portion of the proceedings being over, the tables were cleared.

Mr. B. T. Copley was then voted to the chair, being supported by Mr. W. Snowdon, President of the Yorkshire Association, Mr. G. Bolland (vice-president), Messrs. T. Haigh, John McKell, and J. H. Hardcastle (committee men), there being also present a large assembly of members and friends.

THE CHAIRMAN, in opening the proceedings, acknowledged the compliment they had paid him in calling upon him to preside, and then proposed the health of "The Queen and Royal Family," which toast was duly honoured. He then proposed "Success to Change-ringing, particularly to the Yorkshire Association," coupling with the toast the name of the President, who he thanked in the name of the company for the honour he had done them in being present, and who had won such golden opinions in the Association since he took the place of his lamented brother. This toast was drank very heartily and amid loud applause.

Mr. SNOWDON, who on rising to respond was received with cheers, after thanking them for the very kind manner in which they had honoured the toast, referred to the growth of the Yorkshire Association, and the consequent large amount of work which devolved upon the officers in conducting that work efficiently. It was, he said, impossible to carry on the work without some mistake or slight mishap occurring here and there, but when the extent of that work was considered, and taking into account the scarcity of complaints which were made, coupled also with the fact that the action of the officers had invariably met with the approval of the members, he claimed that the officers had fully deserved that confidence which the Association generally had placed in them.

Mr. JOHN HODGSON then gave the toast of "The conductor and ringers of the peal to-day," which was honoured in proper fashion, and responded to by Mr. J. H. Hardcastle.

Mr. JAMES ANGUS next proposed the health of "Our Visiting Friends," which was duly drunk and responded to by Mr. Jesse Naylor.

The health of the host and hostess was likewise drunk, Mr. Fowlds replying. During the evening Mr. Snowdon presented a certificate of membership to Joe Hardcastle, at the same time giving the new member some kind words of advice and encouragement. Several courses of Grandsire and Treble Bob were rung at intervals, and the hour of eleven brought to a close a gathering which had been most agreeable and interesting to all present.

RINGERS' SUPPER AT ST. ALBANS.

ON Monday evening, November 7th, the local handbell ringers held a supper at Mr. Orpin's, George Street, St. Albans. The Chairman was Mr. E. P. Debenham, and Mr. Henry Lewis occupied the vice-chair, and they were supported by Messrs. W. H. L. Buckingham, J. C. Mitchell, G. W. Cartmel, A. Barnes, W. Battle, T. Waller, and R. M. Pratt. After the first course had been accomplished to the satisfaction of all present, the programme was opened with a 42 of Grandsire Triples by Messrs. Barnes, Mitchell, Buckingham, and Waller. A course of Stedman Triples was then rung by Messrs. Mitchell, Debenham, Cartmel, and Battle, and one of Caters by Messrs. Lewis, Mitchell, Cartmel, Buckingham, and Battle; 168 of Grandsire Triples by Messrs. Waller, Buckingham, Debenham, and Pratt, and 78 of Grandsire Caters by Messrs. Lewis, Cartmel, Buckingham, Debenham, and Battle: a short touch of Bob Major by Messrs. Mitchell, Debenham, Cartmel, and Buckingham; plain courses of Bob Minor, Kent Treble Bob Minor, College Single, and Grandsire Minor, by Messrs. Mitchell, Cartmel, and Buckingham; a course of Grandsire Cinques by Messrs. Waller, Mitchell, Buckingham, Debenham, Cartmel, and Battle: 97 of Grandsire Triples by Messrs. Mitchell, Cartmel, Buckingham, and Pratt; and a plain lead of Bob Maximus by Messrs. Lewis, Mitchell, Cartmel, Buckingham, Debenham, and Waller. It should be mentioned that Mr. Barnes was obliged to leave early which accounts for his name only appearing in connection with the first touch. During the evening songs were sung by Messrs. Debenham, Cartmel, Buckingham, Battle, and Waller. The company separated at midnight, after having spent a most enjoyable evening, and hoped before long to have another gathering similar to this. The ringers desire to acknowledge the very excellent supper provided by Mr. and Mrs. Orpin, and the admirable manner in which their other creature comforts were looked after; likewise to record their thanks to Mr. Buckingham for the pains he took to render the meeting a success.

DUNSTER, SOMERSET.

ON Thursday, October 10th, the Dunster Guild had an outing by the invitation of the Rev. J. U. Todd, who was conductor of the Guild, and who still takes a lively interest in their proceedings, and never omits to pay the tower a visit when in the neighbourhood; the place chosen being Taunton, to have a ring upon the peal of ten at St. Mary's church. Having arrived there about 9.30, a move was at once made for the beautiful tower, and permission to ring was soon granted. After raising the bells in peal, a few short touches were rung, also after the arrival of the Rev. H. A. Cockey from Bitton, a touch or two more was rung, when they all repaired to the Castle Hotel for dinner. Dinner being over, a start was made for Holt's six-part peal of Grandsire Triples on the back eight, and all went well up to 2,300 changes when a shift occurred which brought the bells round at 2365, the striking being good, also the raising in peal was exceedingly good. E. Hole, 1; Rev. J. U. Todd, 2; R. Hole, 3; J. Tudball, 4; J. Grabham, 5; C. B. Craze, 6; Rev. H. A. Cockey (conductor), 7; J. Payne and W. Thrush, 8. After having a substantial tea at the Coffee Tavern, a move was made for the station. Grandsire Caters was rung on the handbells during the journey home, and the expression of all was that it had been one of the pleasantest days spent by the Guild, thanks being due to the Rev. J. U. Todd for his great kindness. The ringers wish through the medium of this paper to thank the Vicar and Churchwardens for the use of the bells, also to Mr. Doble for his kindness.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

TONBRIDGE.—On Friday evening, November 18th, the members of the local band walked to Hadlow (about four miles), in a dense fog, and rang several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles on the parish church bells. Afterwards the members had tea at the "Greyhound," and after a few songs, started on their return journey to Tonbridge, arriving there about 11.30 p.m., having spent a very enjoyable evening. The Tonbridge band beg to thank the Hadlow band for their courtesy in allowing them the use of their bells.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—MANCHESTER AND SURROUNDING DISTRICTS.

In response to the notice calling a meeting of the above, about thirty members attended representing the following places: Manchester, Walkden, Worsley, Eccles, Ramsbottom, Heywood, Oldham (Moorside), Whitfield, Northenden, and Bolton. Mr. H. H. Nutter (Ramsbottom), was unanimously elected chairman, and after a few introductory remarks, A. E. Wreaks (Manchester), explained the object he had in view of making the Association more successful in the future than it had been in the past. He then proposed—"That the county should be split up into small branches or divisions," which was seconded by R. Ridyard (Worsley), and carried unanimously. The next motion was also proposed by Mr. Wreaks, viz.,—"That the boundaries of this branch be Rochdale on the north, Yorkshire on the east, Cheshire on the south, and Flexton to Worsley on the west," seconded by F. Birtwistle (Rochdale), and after considerable discussion was agreed to, subject to the approval of the committee. Mr. E. Cash (Manchester), proposed Mr. J. E. Pollitt (Manchester), as local secretary, who was seconded by Mr. Barratt (Eccles), and carried. Three new members from St. John's church, Deansgate, Manchester, were then admitted into the Association. Mr. Harrison proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Nutter for the excellent manner in which he had acted as chairman, which was seconded and carried unanimously. Mr. Nutter thanked the members for their vote of thanks, expressing the hope that all meetings would be conducted in the same friendly spirit as that had been. A vote of thanks to Mr. Woolley for the use of the room, and to which Mr. Woolley briefly responded, brought a very pleasant meeting to a close. The members then adjourned to the Cathedral, where touches of Grandsire Triples, Caters, and Kent Treble Bob Major were successfully brought round. The rest of the evening was spent in ringing various courses on the handbells. The next meeting of the above will be held at Eccles on Saturday, December 10th.

CHILMARK, WILTS.

On Sunday, November 20th, in response to an invitation from their Chilmark friends, several ringers from Salisbury, viz., Messrs. Short, Highman, Devonport, Gaisford, Lush, Barkus, Tydeman, Goddard, and Gifford, visited this place and spent a very enjoyable afternoon. Ringing commenced with some rounds and call changes, and six 120's of Grandsire Doubles, each called differently. J. Short, 1; A. W. Barkus, 2; A. Goddard, 3; W. E. Tydeman, 4; W. W. Gifford (conductor), 5; C. Gaisford, 6. Tenor 18 cwt. Then some very good call changes were rung in which some of the Chilmark gentlemen took part, and after several more six-scores, the bells were lowered. The ringers take this opportunity of thanking Mr. Viney and their other Chilmark friends for the trouble they took to make the meeting a success. On the way to the station the ringers called on their old friend Mr. Tom Wright, of Dinton, who, with his usual kindness quickly had everything in readiness for a ring at this church. Here only four 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles were rung, and the bells lowered, as time would not allow of more being done. Few places can boast of such excellent rings of six bells as Chilmark and Dinton.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

A District Meeting will be held at Basingstoke, Hants, on Wednesday, December 14th. The Belfry of St. Michael's will be open from 3.30 p.m. Tea and business meeting at the Chapter Room near the Church at 6.30. All ringers will be welcome. Those who wish to be present at the Tea must send notice to the Rev. H. A. Spyers, Purbrook, Cosham, Hants., before Saturday, December 10th. H. A. SPYERS, Hon. Sec.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING of the members of the above Association was held at Luton on Saturday afternoon, November 12th. There was a moderate attendance of members present from Bedford, Bromham, and Woburn; several ringers attended from St. Albans, but owing to the deplorable condition of the bells but little work could be done. With much labour however, a number of touches of Grandsire Triples and Doubles were rung.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1887.

THE subject of Prize-Ringing has ever been a hard nut to crack. The most eminent among the Exercise have regarded it as a difficulty, and one to be left alone, or at any rate not to be attacked, on account of the terrible opposition which would from certain quarters be displayed. It has been held to be, in fact, a matter purely for the clergy; where they see no reason to interfere for its prevention it is hardly proper for ringers to attempt to teach them their duties either way. This of course, is a capital mode of shelving the discussion of the question. We think what objections can in the present day be advanced against Prize-ringing, will not be lessened as time rolls on.

A letter upon this subject from Mr. JAMES WILDE appears this week upon another page. He puts the matter very fairly from, of course, his point of view. But the advocates for Prize-ringing generally manage to elude the principal point in connection with it. As far as Prize-ringing—in the abstract—is concerned, no one could say anything against it when managed under such conditions as are arranged by Mr. WILDE and his friends. But the real gist of the thing is "Is the competing for prizes in the House of God right or wrong?" If right, then it is right to have a singing competition, or a preaching competition, or any other tournament held in the church. Even a game of bowls, as harmless as any other recreation, could be had in the naves of many of our churches, and many a noble transept could be made available for that innocent recreation known as "skittles." Perhaps the advocates of Prize-ringing would hardly go so far as this. Where then is their consistency?

That Prize-ringing under approved conditions would have a great tendency to improve the Art and its interests, we do not deny for one moment. But the difficulty remains. The churches of our land, with their furniture and appendages are to be treated with solemn reverence. They are sacred to the worship of God alone, and the holding of secular amusement or entertainment within them are acts of profanity. Among all places of public worship, the Church of England has kept till now her edifices undefiled by objects which are foreign and distinct from that purpose. We think that the practice of Prize-ringing—praiseworthy though it may be under different circumstances—will never make universal head-way.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]
To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE PROOF OF TREBLE BOB MAXIMUS.

SIR,—I should like to ask our Treble Bob composers their opinion on the proof required for Treble Bob Maximus. Mr. Snowdon, in his Treatise on Treble Bob, part 1, page 68, says "The general mode of composition on twelve bells is to produce the number on eight that will run to the required number on twelve, as the causes that work to produce false changes on eight are the same against twelve, the treble leads and course-ends requiring to be true as in Major." Now if this statement is correct, it makes several peals in part II. useless, as they will not stand the Major proof, viz., the 7488 on page 111, by J. Miller, and the last five peals on page 113, the two peals of 7008 by Mr. Haley on page 114, and the 4th and 5th peals on page 117. Also the two peals of Maximus in a recent number, by Messrs. Williams and Pritchard, will not stand the Major proof. If all these peals are false, I think the exercise should be made aware of the fact.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION REPORT.

SIR,—It was not my intention to have troubled you further on this subject, but the characteristic letter of Mr. Binns constrains me to write once more. That gentleman seems properly to have got "out of the mud into the quagmire," and his best friends would do him a kindness by bringing him to a proper sense of the situation, and preventing him getting still further in the muddle. His letter of Saturday last substantiates nothing—proves nothing in his favour—and will convince nobody of the correctness of his complaint. It is but the reiteration of "so are you," a policy usually adopted by disputants when real argument fails them. But, for the benefit of your readers, allow me to state the whole matter "in a nut-shell" (as the saying goes). On November 10th, 1883, Mr. Tebbs' peal of 5050 Kent Treble Bob Major was rung at Drighlington and entered in the year's report, numbered 247. It the printing of the Report a mistake was made by reversing the bobs wrong in the second and third courses. That slight mistake was so palpable to any one with an ordinary knowledge of Treble Bob, that it needed no explanation. On December 4th, 1886, this same peal was rung at Pudsey, consequently, in the last Report, the calling was not repeated, as is the custom with the Yorkshire Association; but a foot-note was appended, stating the number of the Association peal under which it would be found. These as the plain unvarnished facts of the case, and Mr. Binns may write—or get his friends to write for him—until doomsday. I maintain he cannot gain-say the fact that it is one and the same peal which is in the two Reports as having been rung at Drighlington and Pudsey. But, instead of attempting to prove anything to the contrary, he asks (very unwisely, I think) how do I know which way the course-ends turned in the 247th performance? My answer to this is simple. I know precisely in the same way in which I know that the peal was rung at all, viz.: by reference to the Ninth Report. But what does he really mean by this query? Is it an insinuation that the peal numbered 247 was sent for insertion, but was not actually rung, as stated? If so, then why does he not out with it in an honourable manner, instead of hiding his meaning behind abstruse queries and inappropos observations? I am obliged to him for his offer to show me how a peal "will turn up in a different manner than probably I am aware of," but he must excuse me if I deny his ability to do anything of the sort, and venture to express the opinion that a man who undertakes to call a peal, without himself first proving its correctness, and then conducts the same for three hours without knowing that a bob has been omitted in the calling, is scarcely competent to instruct me in the matter. A sensible man will first show his ability to teach himself before he presumes to teach others. The question at issue, however, resolves itself into this:—if Mr. Binns means to substantiate his case, he must either prove that the two peals in question are not one and the same (which he certainly has not done yet), or otherwise that the peal numbered 247 in the Report was not actually rang at all. Let us have no side issues, but come to the point. And this matter I cannot refrain from noticing. Mr. Binns concludes his letter with the words, "I assure you the complaint was more needed than the officers might like to be reminded of." This statement is, I have no hesitation in saying, as void of truth as it is ungenerous. From my personal knowledge of the Officers and Committee of the Yorkshire Association, since its formation, I can say that I never found a body of men more anxious to carry on the business entrusted to them in a faithful manner; who have always been extremely anxious to avoid any cause of complaint, and to conduct the affairs of the Association to the satisfaction of the members. In proof of which I challenge Mr. Binns to show a single instance where the action of the Committee has not met with the approval of the members in general meeting assembled. These concluding words of his, however, convince me that his real motive has not been so much to correct a mistake as to create a cause of unpleasantness; in which object I can assure him he will ignominiously fail. If Mr. Binns will confine himself to real facts and arguments, instead of indulging in so much "off-side play," I will deal further with him; and should he be able to prove his case, will give him all credit for it; but so long as he persists in his present line of action, I shall decline to continue this correspondence, considering it derogatory to myself and the Association to which I have the honour and pleasure to belong.

A MEMBER Y. A. C. R.

THE LATE REMARKABLE ALLEGATION.

SIR,—I usually read your valuable paper with profound tranquility of mind, but now and then I am moved from this lethargic state and induced to intrude my opinions on the readers of "THE BELL NEWS." This, however, is only very rarely and under most extreme provocation, and then only after all others have had the chance of saying what they will. I know not who made that remarkable allegation, neither have I any personal knowledge of the accused, but this much is plain to every reader, that there has been a mistake made somewhere. Either the accuser is speaking what is not true, or the conductor in question did get mixed between Penning's peal and Holt's. To make such a remarkable allegation without proof is in every way calculated to bring our craft into disrepute, and he who would do such is no credit to any association or society. On the other hand, a conductor, never mind what his powers may be, who would publish a peal, knowing it to be false, is anything but an ornament to our craft. Aristotle would argue that he who makes a false accusation, knowing it to be false, is decidedly more base than he who says what is not true to gain honour thereby, for the latter has an eye to virtue and would like to possess it, though he strives to become famous in a mean way. I suppose it is a good thing to call Penning's peal and that it brings honour to call Holt's as many times as possible, therefore the man who says he has done it when he has not, has an eye to what is good and famous, though he cannot at that time attain to it by honourable means, but the man who falsely and knowingly strives to malign another is very despicable. I think Associations would do well to make rules to cover such cases in the future. Associations and societies would do well to have such a rule as the following: "Any member who shall publicly declare a conductor to have knowingly published a false peal as though it were true, shall be called upon at the general meeting to prove the truth of his allegation, and in the event of his failing to do so to the satisfaction of two thirds of the members then assembled, he shall be expelled from the Association, and any conductor proved to have knowingly published a false peal as a true one shall be suspended for the space of two years from taking part in peals rung by the Association."

THE TOTTENHAM PEAL.

SIR,—I have read the correspondence which has appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" with reference to the above, and am afraid that it is rapidly becoming a personal dispute, which is very much to be regretted. I would like to suggest that the matter in dispute should be referred to the arbitration of some disinterested body (the Committee of the Sussex County Association, for instance). Both parties have a good argument in their favour, and the Tottenham men have a cause of complaint against the Society, probably through a mistake on the part of one of the officers. Hoping that some one will second my proposal, and that it will be carried into effect, I am, sir,

A MEMBER OF THE S. C. A.

PRIZE RINGING.

SIR,—In a recent issue you have an account of a meeting lately held at Ghester, when a discussion took place on the proposed formation of a Guild of Church Bellringers for the Diocese of Chester. I heartily agree with the objects of the proposed Guild as laid down by Archdeacon Barber, the second of which is to improve the art of change-ringing. Mr. J. H. Cook, of Northwich, in seconding the Archdeacon's proposition, referred to the obnoxious practice of prize-ringing, which he averred reduced the belfry to the condition of a bowling-green. Well, Mr. Editor, is there something very wrong in participating in the manly and invigorating game of bowls? I confess I can see no harm in it whatever, and I am equally as short-sighted with respect to prize-ringing. In fact, in common with all my ringing brethren at the east end of this county and its surrounding districts, I sincerely wish there was a great deal more of it, and less of the absurd and nonsensical cry of "down with prize-ringing," a cry I may say that has become quite infectious with most of our associations who, by the way, should be the first to encourage it by giving substantial prizes, thereby gaining that standard of efficiency that is only acquired by steady and constant practice. Who or what Mr. Cook is I have no means of knowing, but if he is desirous of improving the art in this county, I have no doubt he will find plenty of support if he will drop his obnoxious cry, but not otherwise. If it were not too presumptuous on my part, I would ask him to take the first opportunity that presents itself of attending one, and, in the event of his doing so, I venture to assume he will greatly regret ever having supported the abolition of contesting. It is the intention of the Association to which I have the honour to belong, and whose only object is the promotion of good, sound change-ringing, to give a valuable silver cup for the best three courses of Kent Treble Bob Major, the competition for which will take place at Leesfield, near Oldham, about the middle of January next, of which due notice will be given. If there be no other prize-ringing in the meantime, let those who, like Mr. Cook, are prejudiced against prize-ringing, come and listen to this one. I can assure you, sir, we do not fear the severest criticism. In conclusion, let me impress upon the minds of the officials (if there be any) of the proposed Guild that the only way to secure constant good ringing is by frequently holding prize-ringing meetings.

JAMES S. WILDE,

Hon. Sec. of the United Counties' Association.

REPLY TO THE REV. P. JACKSON.

SIR,—In "THE BELL NEWS," No. 294, Mr. Jackson writes for advice on church towers, louvres, etc. Having had some experience in this matter, I venture to write a few lines, which I trust may be beneficial to those who have complaints about the noise of the bells. The tower of St. Lawrence, Reading, where I have the honour to be captain, stand in the market place, and is surrounded with shops and offices, and we found that the noise of the bells was more than the inhabitants cared for, and as we were very anxious to make progress in the art of change-ringing, and wishing to avoid any unpleasantness, we got twelve doors to fit between the mullions of the windows (in addition to the wooden louvres already there). They were hung on hinges, and fastened with a bolt into the stone. The effect is admirable, the bells sound as if they were some distance away. If it is not practicable to hang doors as above, sliding doors would answer as well, which ought not to be less than one inch in thickness. Of course they may be closed for practice, and opened for public rejoicings. If our church architects would consult some experienced ringers when they are going to build a church tower for bells, many defects and blunders would be avoided. I believe long slabs of slate or iron are the very worst kind of louvres that can be used, as they conduct the sound down about people's ears. Nothing is better than wood, and the louvres put as close together as possible, say about 2½ or 3 inches apart, the sound will then get away into the air, and appear more sweet below. I think tower windows or louvres ought not to be made lower than the mouth of the bells when they are up; also I believe that bells sound more sweet from a flat roof tower, than from a long pointed spire. The bells of St. Giles, of this town, used to be considered a sweet peal when in the old tower with wood louvres, but now in the new tower with the long slabs of slate, the noise is unbearable below. I noticed the same nuisance at Boyne Hill, Maidenhead, also at St. Thomas, Belfast, and there are several new towers in this neighbourhood without bells at present, that have the tower windows lower than the roof of the church. Surely this must be a great mistake on the part of the architects, as I understand the towers are intended for bells. My opinion is that bells ought to be kept up quite clear of any other building. I think it would be a good plan, if when ringers knew that a church tower was going to be built for a ring of bells, they would make themselves acquainted with the architect and point out any improvement, or offer any suggestions which may prevent many inconveniences which ringers have to endure, because it is too late to make alterations, as the architect will no doubt say. W. NEWELL.

THE FROME BELLS.

SIR,—In your last issue of "THE BELL NEWS" I observed an editorial paragraph, suggesting that after the completion of the laborious task, Mr. Blackburn, of Salisbury, has undertaken in restoring and strengthening the framework, etc. of the bells of the parish church of St. John-the-Baptist, Frome, Somersetshire, they should be opened by a competent band of change-ringers. Could not one of the Bristol Societies or any other company be found to volunteer to go for a peal? Surely it would be an honour, whoever succeeded in the attempt. Nothing of the kind has ever been accomplished on the grand old ring of eight as yet, other than churchyard Surprise. Considering the new Vicar of the above church, the Hon. and Rev. Hanbury Tracy, only a year ago hailed from Bristol, perhaps it would appear more appropriate and interesting for a Bristol Society to achieve the first honour. Should this elicit any favourable consideration from the Bristol gentlemen, I feel sure the Frome ringers would give the visitors a hearty reception.

ALFRED J. J. GIDDINGS.

P.S.—It is the earnest wish of the Frome ringers that Mr. Blackburn should impress on the Vicar and churchwardens of the parish church the necessity of reinstating them in their original ringing chamber, also the adoption of Seage's Dumb Practice Apparatus, and improved clapper stays, that they may the easier surmount the rudiments of change-ringing without being an annoyance to the outside public.

THE COLLEGE BELLS OF OXFORD.—ST. MARY-THE-VIRGIN.

I shall conclude my account of the College bells of Oxford with a description of the peal of six at St. Mary-the-Virgin, the University church. I do not propose to give an account of the numerous peals of six at the various parish churches in the town.

The steeple of St. Mary-the-Virgin contains, as I said before, a peal of six bells, tenor 53½ inches diameter, note D, weight about 32 cwt.

The inscriptions on the bells are as follows:—

Treble.—“Prosperity to the Church of England. A.R. 1731.”

Second.—“Gloria Deo in excelsis. F.S: G.A: H.O: T.H: 1623.”

Third.—“A.P.R. 1641. R.E: F.B: Churchwardens.”

Fourth. (This bell I shall notice below. It is the only one in England with such an inscription).

Fifth.—“Be yt knowne to all that doth me see: That Newcombe of Leicester made mee. Tho. L: Ellesmere L: High Chancellor of England and Chancellor of the Vniversitye of Oxon, Anno 1612. Thomas Singleton Doct: in Divinitye and Vice-Chancellor. Thomas Sellor, Senior Proctor, Richard Corbett, Junior Proctor.”

Tenor.—“M.L: L.B: Churchwardens 1639. LOVE GOD.” (Engraved on the waist) “Roger Bracegirdle, Matthew Chub, Gent.

The fourth bell is one of the greatest curiosities in bells, as regards the inscription, which I have heard of. The legend commences like the fifth with “+Be yt knowne to all that doth me see, that Newcombe of Leicester made mee 1612.” Above and below this is a wavy pattern of leaves and flowers which Newcombe often used. Below this are two lines of music, the upper one going all round the bell, and the lower one part of the way. The notes are lozenge shaped, like Gregorian music, and there are five lines to the staff as in modern music. The staves measure about 1½ inches across. There are no bars except a double one at the end of each strain, the C clef is used for the three upper parts, and the F clef for the bass, and all the parts have the signature of B flat. It would be impossible for me here to give an engraving of the music, but one is given by the late. Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, in his “Bells of the Church,” page 266. At the beginning of each of the four parts is a medallion 2½ inches diameter. These medallions represent men in the costume of the period (all four different), and surrounded by the following inscriptions: “+The last strayne is good,”—“+Keep tyme. in anye case.”—“Then lett vs singe it againe,”—and “+Well songe my harts excelent.”

What this music is and why it was placed upon the bell is a mystery. No record about it can be found in the parish archives, nor is there any other bell cast by Newcombe or anyone else with music on it. I am no musician myself, nor can I read music, but for the most part the notes appear to me simply to run up and down the scale with a few variations. I got an organist to play the piece over to me some years ago, but I could make no tune of it, nor could he. Mr. Fowler remarks upon this music: “It is very much in the madrigal style, and like such compositions as ‘In going to my lonesome bed,’ which is often sung as an anthem to words from the Psalms. It seems as well adapted to sacred words as to secular words of a sober or pathetic character. It may however have been meant solely as an exercise in what we now call ‘vocalization,’ or solmization,’ according to circumstances. It has also been suggested that it may have been meant to be performed on four viols, on which it would sound exceedingly well.”

INFORMATION WANTED.—Would any ringer kindly inform me if any peals of Bob Triples have been obtained and published with a call at every m w n throughout, before the one which appeared in this paper on July 2nd, 1887, containing these properties. A RINGER.

FENNY STRATFORD, BUCKS.

We chronicled in our columns a few weeks ago the dedication of a ring of six bells in the tower of St. Martin, Fenny Stratford. The ring consists of five new bells, and the old one, which together make a first-class ring of six, and a fitting memorial of Her Majesty's Jubilee in the town of Fenny Stratford. The Church of St. Martin was erected in 1724 and six succeeding years, chiefly through the exertions of Dr. Browne Willis, the antiquary, on the site of a chapel dedicated to St. Margaret, which was destroyed, and its burial ground desecrated during the Civil War. Dr. Willis died on the 5th February, 1760, aged 78, and was buried in the chancel of this church beneath a slab of white marble inscribed with an epitaph written by himself. The celebration of St. Martin's day, November 11th, regularly maintained by Browne Willis during his life, is still observed here, Divine Service, with a sermon being held in the chapel in the morning, and in the afternoon a dinner takes place at the “Bull Inn,” the occasion being also marked by repeated salvoes from six little pieces of ordnance of curious size and shape, used from time immemorial, and known as the Fenny Poppers. The observance of the dedication day of the present year was marked by the ringing of the new bells, and showed a marked improvement over that of the old two bells, which were always rung on the like occasions.

The Vicar of Fenny (the Rev. A. H. Barrow) kindly invited the change-ringers of the neighbouring towers of Aspley Guise and Woburn, to assist in the demonstration by the ringing of the church bells. As many as were able to attend did so, and kept the bells going at intervals, from 3 till 9 p.m. A number of touches in six bell methods were nicely struck, including a 720 of Plain Bob Minor (18 bobs and 2 singles), in 22 minutes. G. Usher, 1; W. Smith, 2; E. Norman, 3; J. Carwell Cooke, 4; W. Mynard, 5; W. Chibnall (conductor), 6. Also another (with 34 bobs and 2 singles) in the same time, the men standing as before. And a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor (9 bobs), in 22 minutes. W. Smith, 1; E. Norman, 2; W. Mynard, 3; J. Carwell Cooke, 4; W. Chibnall, 5; Mark Lane (conductor), 6.

The ringers in the evening, at the kind invitation of the Vicar, had supper at the “Bull Inn,” which was well served, and thoroughly enjoyed by all the party. The Vicar is making efforts to establish a company of change-ringers, the belfry is in every respect a pattern one, the appointments wisely made under the direction of the Rev. F. E. Robinson, Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, being all that can be desired. The Vicar, the Curate, and a number of young men have already enrolled themselves as ringers, and their ringing neighbours in Aspley Guise and Woburn will cheerfully help them on to attain proficiency in the well-beloved craft of change-ringing.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

The subscriptions of some members of the Association for the year 1886-7 (ending at Whitsuntide last), are still in arrear; and I hereby give notice that unless these arrears are paid by December 31st inst., it will be assumed that the members in question do not wish their names to remain any longer upon our books. I may also remind members of the Association that the subscription for the current year, 1887-8, was due last Whit Monday, and should be paid as soon as possible by those who have not already forwarded it. T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec. Writtle, Chelmsford.

BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The above Association will hold their next monthly meeting on Saturday, December 3rd, at St. Philip's (10 bells). Should any ringer be in Birmingham on that date they will receive a hearty welcome, and will be sure of a touch, be he member or not. Time of meeting 3.45. As the time is limited it is necessary that all should be punctual. It is also hoped country members will avail themselves of this opportunity of meeting their brother strings. JOHN WRIGHT, Hon. Sec.

THE CHESTER DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday the 26th inst., a largely-attended meeting was held in the Old King's School, Chester, for the purpose of forming a Diocesan Association of Church Bell-ringers similar to that which already exists in many dioceses throughout England. The Ven. Archdeacon Barber presided, and the attendance included Rev. Canon Greenall, Rev. Canon Upperton, Rev. Canon Blencowe, Rev. Canon Atkinson, Revs. J. H. Acheson, G. A. Robins, E. D. Green, R. J. Fairclough, W. Lowe, J. F. Buckler, E. O. Rawson, J. Godson, A. M. Wood, — Miller, G. Egerton Warburton; Messrs. H. Hattcock, Gamlin, John Tinsley, A. Heywood, Freeman Ball, &c., and representing Chester Cathedral, and St. Mary's, St. Peter's, and St. Michael's Chester; Eastham, Grappenhall, Tarvin, Audlem, Davenham, Eccleston, Holmes Chapel, West Kirby, Bidston, Witton (Norwich), Mottram, Tattenhall, Daresbury, Neston, Gawsworth, Waverton, Bunbury, Bromborough, Great Budworth, and Rhyl. The Chairman congratulated those present on having such a representative gathering, and especially on the attendance of so many of their excellent friends, the ringers themselves, shewing by their presence their personal interest in the formation of an association or guild of bell-ringers, and he hoped giving them very good augury of a successful commencement. At the outset he might state the objects of the association, a point that was touched upon at the recent Chester Diocesan Conference. Its first object was to give Church bell-ringers due recognition as officers of the Church, and to endeavour to raise and improve their status as such. He felt sure he would carry the ringers with him when he said that their second object was to improve, as far as possible, the art of change-ringing. Particularly they should do what they could to raise the tone of their belfries, and he was thankful to say, and the ringers would agree in that thankfulness, that a very great improvement in that respect within the last quarter of a century had occurred. The belfries were now very much more recognised as parts of the House of God than they were, and there were in many a belfry a tone which they would not wish to raise or improve, and which was sufficiently high already, but what they wanted to see was that their belfries were in every respect worthy of that position which they occupied as really part of God's House. Lastly, he ventured to suggest that an association like that would be a very valuable means of giving information to those who desired it relating to the improvement of their belfries, the enlargement of their peals, the repair of their bells, and work such as that. When they had established, as he hoped soon to be able to announce, a fully accredited society on such lines as these, those persons in need of advice would be able to get it from qualified men, and thus avoid what had taken place too often in the past, letting many peals of bells be spoiled for want of timely attention or capable workmanship when renovation or repair was necessary. Under the influence exercised by the Association they hoped to see an improvement both in the personnel of the ringers and of the belfries themselves. He might also add that letters had been received from distant parts of the diocese expressing approval of the objects of the Association and sympathy with the movement altogether.—Canon Upperton, in the course of a few remarks supporting the Association, pointed out where its work would be of special service in instructing ringers in the treatment of bells and preventing them from being injured by unskilful practices. Resolutions were unanimously passed that the association be called "The Chester Diocesan Association of Church Bell-ringers," appointing the Bishop president, the Dean and Archdeacons Barber and Gore vice-presidents, and a representative committee and framing a code of rules.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

A District Meeting will be held at Basingstoke, Hants, on Wednesday, December 14th. The belfry of St. Michael's will be open from 3-30 p.m. Tea and business meeting at the Old Angel Cafe in the market place at 6.30. Those who wish for an order to travel at reduced fares must send notice to the Rev. H. A. Spyers, Purbrook, Cosham, Hants, before Thursday, December 8th, stating number and station. Tickets for the tea, 1s. each, may be had on application before Saturday, December 10th. All ringers will be welcome. H. A. SPYERS, Hon. Sec.

WIGAN, LANCASHIRE.

On Thursday, the 17th inst., the following members succeeded in ringing Holt's Ten-Part peal of Grandsire Triples, 5640 changes, in three hours and one minute: George B. Walker (conductor), 1; Samuel C. C. Turner, 2; James Leyland, 3; George Turner, 4; Jonathan F. Hall, 5; Samuel Hall, 6; Robert Fisher and Alexander Shaw, 7; John E. Gomerson and John Meadow, 8. First peal as conductor by G. B. Walker, and first peal by John Meadow. Tenor 28 cwt. in C.

The above peal being recorded on a tablet (presented to the company for such purposes in 1879 by the Rev. D. S. Murray), on the following Thursday, having met for their usual practice, they were content with a short touch only, as by arrangement they were due at the house of Mr. Gilbert C. Hall, an ex-ringer, where a repast was awaiting them. After partaking of the good things provided, and the cloth removed, Mr. T. Halliwell was called to the chair, and Mr. Harrison to the vice-chair.

The toast of the "Queen" was proposed by the Chairman, and heartily responded to. The toast of the "Lord Bishop of Liverpool and the Clergy of the Diocese," coupling with it the health of their worthy friend and ringer, the Rev. H. F. Lloyd, who in responding, spoke in warm terms of congratulation on their success, and at the same time, on behalf of the ringers, presented the chairman with an elaborate silver pendant, bearing on the front a bell, with the monogram "T. H." on the back, "Presented to Mr. Halliwell by the All Saints' Ringers, as a mark of their esteem. Wigan, November 24th, 1887."

Mr. Halliwell, on accepting the present, an altogether agreeable surprise, upon recovering himself expressed a hope that other of his pupils then present would follow the example set them, and do their best to promote the science.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING of this Association will be held at Streatham Common (by the kind permission of the Vicar), on Saturday, December 10th. The tower will be open for ringing from 4.30 p.m. A Committee Meeting will be held at 6 p.m. to consider the sketches which have been drawn for the proposed certificate of membership. ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon Sec.

SALISBURY CATHEDRAL.

An altar desk of perforated brass, executed by Messrs. Singer, of Frome, has been given to the Cathedral by those chorists who have acted as "Bishop's Boy" during the episcopate of the late Bishop Moberley. The following inscription is engraved thereon. "In honorem Dei & mem Georgii Moberley, S.T.D. epi sarum omnes qui olim choristæ patri eidem inservierunt parvulum hoc monumentum dedicaverunt.—A. S., MDCCCLXXXVII."

DEATH OF THE "KING MAKER."—The battle of Barnet commenced at four o'clock in the morning, and lasted till ten. The rage of the combatants was terrible, and the slaughter was proportionate, for Edward, exasperated at the commons, who had shown such favour to Warwick on all occasions, had, contrary to usual custom, issued order to spare none of them, and to kill all the leaders if possible. The conflict was terminated by a singular mistake. The device of the Earl of Oxford, who was fighting for Warwick, was a star with rays, emblazoned both on the front and back of his soldiers' coats. The device of Edward's own soldiers on this occasion was a sun with rays. Oxford had beaten his opponents in the field, and was returning to assist Warwick, when Warwick's troops, mistaking through the mist the stars of Oxford for the sun of Edward, fell upon Oxford's followers, supposing them to be Yorkists, and put them to flight. Oxford fled with 800 of his soldiers, supposing himself the object of some fatal treachery, while, on the other hand, Warwick, weakened by his apparent defection of Oxford, and his troops thrown into confusion, rushed desperately into the thickest of the enemy, trusting thus to revive the courage of his troops, and was thus slain, fighting. No sooner was the body of Warwick, stripped of its armour and covered with wounds, discovered on the field, than his forces gave way, and fled amain. Thus fell the great "king-maker," who so long had kept alive the spirit of contention, placing the crown first on one head and then on another. With him perished the power of his faction and the prosperity of his family.—From "Cassell's Illustrated History of England" for December.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF ST. STEPHEN'S, BRISTOL.

Mr. Goodeneough Taylor, the Master of this society, presided at the annual banquet held at the Montague Hotel, Bristol, on Thursday night, November 24th, and was supported by an influential company. The usual toasts list was gone through, and it was announced that the collection amounted to £223. Music and songs were contributed by ringers, colts, and visitors. The menu card was very attractive. It was in the shape of a bell, the front of which bore three bells, the centre one bearing the date 1620, and the portraits of Queen Bess and Queen Victoria; and on the reverse side was an illustration of the tower of St. Stephen. It may be interesting to state that during the present Master's year of office, the re-seating of the church has been entirely completed, and additional lighting has been provided in the north and south aisles. Provision also is now being made for the ventilation of the church, which will be completed in a few days. The carving of the seats has been beautifully carried out by the well-known artist, Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter, and the work to the lighting and ventilating by Messrs. Jones and Hudson, the whole under the direction of the architects to the Restoration Committee (Messrs. Pope and Paul). It is hoped that before long steps will be taken for opening up the western door, and so forming a much-needed access to the church.

The members of this society paid their annual visit on Sunday morning, November 20th, to St. Stephen's church, when a sermon was preached by the Rev. C. E. Cornish, vicar of St. Mary Redcliff. There was a large congregation present, and amongst those who attended were the Master (Mr. Goodeneough Taylor), the Junior Warden (Mr. William Henderson), the Warden-elect, Mr. Alfred B. James), Mr. Alderman Cope-Proctor, and Mr. E. Beadon Colthurst (Senior Warden Merchant Venturers).

RINGERS' SUPPER.

The local ringers belonging to St. Martin's, Tipton, Staffordshire, having accomplished with the assistance of Mr. Samuel Reeves, of West Bromwich, a peal of Grandsire Triples a few weeks ago, determined upon having a supper in honour of the event, which was partaken of on Saturday, November 26th, at York House, Whitehall Road, Great Bridge, the residence of the tower keeper, Mr. W. R. Small. After supper the chair was taken by Mr. Samuel Reeves, Hon. Sec. of the Association for the Archdeaconry of Stafford, supported by Mr. William Micklewright, jun., of Dudley, the vice-chair being occupied by Mr. John Smith, of Netherton, Hon. Secretary of the Worcester and Adjoining Districts Association, supported by Mr. W. R. Small. The evening was spent with song, toast, and sentiment, songs by the chairman, recitation by the vice-chairman, and songs by Messrs. Small, Micklewright, Hughes, etc., with plain courses on the handbells of Grandsire Major and Triples, Treble Bob Minor, Plain Bob Minor, and Stedman Doubles, by various ringers present. The chairman and vice-chairman also spoke of the advantages of change-ringing societies, by which members of such societies could meet together for the mutual enjoyment and assistance to one another in the art of change-ringing, for which their associations were formed. Mr. A. Hill spoke of the advantages of having a practical change-ringer in their tower-keeper, which had been the means of their ringing in so short a time the peal for which they were met together for at the present time. Time getting on, a vote of thanks was given to the ladies, Mrs. Small and Mrs. Hill, for the very able manner in which they had provided for the company, to which ample justice was done, a very enjoyable evening being spent by all present.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—MANCHESTER AND DISTRICT.

NOTICE is hereby given that the first ringing meeting in connection with the above newly formed district will take place on Saturday, December 10th, at St. Mary's church, Eccles. Members are requested to assemble at the "Oddfellows Arms" at 4 p.m., where ringing companies will be arranged.

HANDBELL PEALS.

SIR,—Seeing in your last issue, under three Societies' names, a report of a peal rung on handbells at St. Albans, and no umpire being given, I should like to know if the peal was rung without being watched by anyone as a guarantee to the Exercise of its correctness, especially as there appears from reports in your paper, to be a number of good ringers in St. Albans. Surely some one could have been found to act. Perhaps it was so, and is an omission on the part of the sender of the report. If there was no umpire, and it is entered in the society's books, it will be setting a bad precedent, for any four persons could meet and arrange among themselves to start for a peal, which may not come out true, and send it to be entered, thus filling the books with false peals, or peals never rung at all. Surely Messrs. Hayes, Winny, and clique, who want to be cocks of the walk of the College Youths, after their recent action in regard to the Tottenham peal and the St. James' Society, will not consent to this being entered in the College Youths book, as it would be encouraging peals to be rung in any hole and corner place without a guarantee of correctness. I cannot attend the meetings of the College Youths, or I should certainly oppose the entry of any handbell peals unless watched by two or more competent persons, for the satisfaction of the ringing community, especially as we hear so much now-a-days of false and wretchedly rung peals. I think too, sir, that when handbell peals are sent for insertion in "THE BELL NEWS" without an umpire, they should be placed among the touches, and not the peals, as without an umpire they would be considered very doubtful performances.

COLLEGE YOUTH.

PRIZE-RINGING CONTESTS.

SIR,—I read the letter from Mr. Wilde on the above subject with admiration, but your article on it is I consider altogether uncalled for. You, above all other men, should be careful in giving your opinion on any question you may not approve of. I wish it to be distinctly understood that I am friendly opposed to your views, and to others who are of your opinion. Although you are the Editor of this journal, it is only right you should be approached. You have had your say, and in justice to those who are of my opinion (and there are many) I should have mine. Taking that portion of your comment where you say "And many a noble transept could be made available for that innocent recreation known as skittles." Who ever before read of such a method of arguing? If you don't agree with us having prize ringing contests, you might be a little more forbearing, and not infer we should go in for skittles also. Allow me to say that ringing contests are got up for the edification of noted ringers—men who are the very essence of the Exercise in striking—and not for men who I venture to think never heard really first class Treble Bob Major ringing—and there are many that have not, unless they have been at a contest either in Yorkshire or Lancashire. The excellence of ringing on those occasions is generally sufficient in itself to withstand all the running down process from men who have not the necessary talent to enable them to take part in an undertaking of this kind; they know full well that if they did they would make themselves look ridiculous. Let them bark that like, I shall do my best to prevent them from biting. The more a man is in earnest, and the more is he under the influence of a strong mind, and I shall to the end do all I possibly can to uphold the science in striking by advocating prize ringing. Competition takes place on the church organ when an organist is going to be selected. It will be said there is no money prizes in connexion with it. Well, I grant that, but still it is a prize of a monetary consideration to the successful candidate. Ever since I was seventeen years of age I have given my attention to this subject. I was a contestant at the time, and was so impressed with the ringing that I have always been in favour of contests. Had it not have been for this circumstance I might have taken my stand at your side. But no, Sir, I am proud of my county and its neighbour. I have visited a many of the leading centres of ringing, and what I have heard has occasionally been good, but not one patch on what I have heard at a prize-ringing contest. If a contest could take place outside the church the objectors would have just cause to complain, but as it cannot be so, why should we forbear in our desire to excel, for the sake of a few that oppose us. I am quite certain we can do very well without such people; anyhow, we can in this part of the country, for it is here (viz. Yorkshire and Lancashire), that we can beat anything in Treble Bob Major ringing. You also say in your article that "the advocates for prize ringing generally manage to elude the principal point in connection with it"; and you also say "we have a capital mode of shelving the discussion." I should like to know how you come to this unwarrantable conclusion. The principal point I have already mentioned, and that it tends to, and does improve the striking, and you cannot say I am shelving the discussion. The conditions are truthfully laid before those in authority, and with their permission the contest takes place, in spite of sentimental opposition. I am fully acquainted with the management of this kind of thing, and I also know what I am talking about, and must say that I neither elude or shelve anything in connection with ringing, in fact I am too well known to be quite the reverse. And now Mr. Editor, I have had my say, and differ with you on this subject only, and shall not at present trouble you with any further correspondence on the matter, but in the future as in the past I shall encourage prize ringing contests.

CHARLES HENRY HATTERSLEY.

THE TOTTENHAM PEAL.

SIR,—My Nevvy has been reading "THE BELL NEWS" to me this week, and I am very much pained to find that notwithstanding the awful judgement which has overtaken the Tottenham Society, the Kidderminster men have this week presumed to ring a touch of 840 of Grandsire Triples on seven bells only, and then had the effrontery to send it to you for publication. This is to my mind a far worse offence than the other, for the Tottenham Society, not having the advantage of any of the shining lights of the Exercise among them, may perhaps have done what they did in ignorance, as I understand they are very benighted out there, but the Kidderminster men cannot now even urge that plea, for they must have known by the recent correspondence that those who have the power of dictating what may or may not be rung, have said "there shant be no more ringing on seven bells," and I think it very wrong to go and disobey such an order directly afterwards. I remember a long time ago, I went to Drury Lane Theatry, to see a play written by a man named, I think, Mr. Spokeshave. I don't remember much about the play, but in it there was a gentlemen came on the stage, and I recollect he was a good deal like my old friend Mr. Murry Haze, and he said, says he, "I am Sir Orackle, and when I ope my mouth let no dog bark"; well I think that is a most beautiful sentiment, and wonderful appropriate to the present case, and when one of the old masters in the craft lays down the law as he has done, I think it ought to be obeyed. I very much believe in copying the old masters in everything where possible. That is what we did when we started for our peal of Murry Haze's Original last week. I had been up early in the day and greased the ropes, and rosined the stays, and got all ready for a grand start. We went off in grand style, and though some of the little bells got behind the tenor, and some of the big ones got in front of the treble, still we got on all right. Then we had some firing (volleys and feu-de-joie), then some whole-pull and stand, and then some more firing, in fact we made it nearly an exact copy of the peal of Grandsire Capers rung by the St. James's Society at St. Clement Danes, on the 7th of October. After that we got a shift-course, and though I kept on by myself for some time, at last I found I was a half-pull out, and was obliged to call "stand." It was a great pity, for it was a splendid copy of the old masters, where everything is blurred and indistinct, and you can't tell which is composition and which is execution. I stood and listened for a long time to that peal of Capers, and I knew that my old friend Murry Haze must be conducting it, as no other conductor would ever have had skill enough to have put the ringers through all the variations of time and tune that they indulged in. It was a great treat to me, and I stood at the corner of the Strand and enjoyed it a long time, when just as they were firing for the last time two of my teeth dropped out, and I had to go home, but the music of them bells still lingered in my mind, and I reckon our fust try for the "Original" was about as correct a copy as you are likely to hear of. I think that as we did not succeed in our attempt, it would be only right to enter this wonderful peal of Grandsire Capers on a double page in the St. James's peal book, with a full account of all the particulars relating to it, as everybody who heard it say it was a most "wonderful" performance. This could easily be done, as they have all the money paid by the Tottenham Society still in hand, and the St. James's is an exceedingly wealthy Society, as I heard it publicly stated, that at their last audit they had a balance of nearly six pounds (including the Tottenham money) at their bankers. Once more cautioning the Kidderminster and other kindred societies to take warning by the awful fate of the Tottenham Society, as to what may happen to them if they disobey the dictates of those in authority over them, and trusting shortly to be able to announce to you the successful accomplishment of "M H's Original," I remain, yours truly,

BOB ROPER, His + Mark.

SIR,—As you have been good enough to publish several letters relating to the controversy about the above peal, I should be obliged if you will insert this short account of the meeting of the St. James' society held on November 28th. The proceedings commenced with the reading of the minutes of November 14th, against which several members desired to have their protests recorded, inasmuch as at an ordinary meeting of the society what was practically a new rule had been passed, disallowing the entry of peals rung on odd numbers of bells. It was decided that the protests of the members in question should not be entered, so an amendment protesting against the minutes was proposed and supported by twelve of those present. After the election of a new member, a motion of which Mr. Woodley had previously given notice was brought before the meeting. This notice was to the effect that he would propose that the Secretary should write calling upon Messrs. Barnett and Lucas to appear at the meeting on December 12th, to explain their conduct in writing letters to "THE BELL NEWS" which were calculated to bring the St. James' society into disrepute. Mr. Woodley now added the names of Messrs. Strange and Waghorn, jun., to his motion, and in eloquent and glowing phrases described the communications which had been addressed to "THE BELL NEWS," as scurrilous, morose, and morbid. Could anybody in an ordinary frame of mind regard these epithets as applicable to letters which told the plain unvarnished truth? Perhaps Mr. Woodley felt that he and his friends had been shown in their true colour, and he might also have felt the keen dart of Bob Roper's satire. Messrs. Mansfield, Strange, and Waghorn tried to propose as an amendment to Mr. Woodley's motion that the question of writing to "THE BELL NEWS" be taken no notice of, but it was not allowed, and the motion being proposed and seconded, was put to the vote and defeated. A cheer greeted the defeat of this inflated and tyrannical proposition, as the members at length realized that the domineering clique led by Mr. Hayes and his satellites, Winny and Woodley, was not identical with the St. James' society. It is a pity that the discussions with regard to the Tottenham seven bell peal should have become so personal, but the Tottenham men can hardly be blamed for taking up their opponents' weapons. Mr. Woodley (who had been previously warned that if he began throwing mud, some of it would be sure to stick to him), looked considerably surprised when notice was given that at the next meeting a motion would be brought forward requesting that gentleman to explain his misconduct at the meeting on October 17th, when several strangers were present. It remains to be seen whether several members of the St. James society regard his offence in the meeting room as equal to the awful crime of writing a letter to "THE BELL NEWS."

T. C. GROVE,

All Hallows Society, Tottenham.

THE TOTTENHAM PEAL AND PRIZE RINGING.

SIR,—The present time seems to be one of surprises in the ringing world. I do not refer to Surprise methods, but to matters which have been published in the correspondence columns of your paper, under the above heads, during the past week or two. In the first place the authorities and certain members of a leading London Society decide that they will not allow a true and complete peal of 5040 changes, to be entered in their peal book because it was pure and simple Triples. Possibly the Secretary of the St. James' Society will be kind enough to explain the cause or inform the Exercise how long Triples has been an eight-bell method. Under the second heading we are told "That the only way to secure constant good ringing is by frequently holding prize ringing meetings." These are the sentiments of Mr. James S. Wilde, who, if I am not greatly mistaken was born some fifty or sixty years too late to find the ringers of his day agree with him on this point. The above-named gentleman adds to his name the title of Hon. Sec. of the United Counties' Association. Does he wish it to be understood that he wrote his letter officially, and that he in reality represents the views of the members of his Association, or was the title of Hon. Sec. only added to give greater weight to the weak arguments used in favour of returning to days of prize-fights, beer and desecration. Should anyone require a proof of the fallacy of Mr. Wilde's statement, the following quotations will I think be conclusive. "In 1886 the United Counties' Association, aided by prize ringing contests, rang twenty-five peals, as against sixty-five rung by another Association." Whereas during the present year their performances like their ideas show a retrograde movement, having accomplished only sixteen peals, as against fifty-one each rung by two Associations (who ring for the love of the art instead of prize gains) during the same period.

GEO. F. ATTREE.

THE ALL HALLOWS SOCIETY, TOTTENHAM.

SIR,—Referring to the note at the foot of the peal of Union Triples rung by this society on the 1st inst., stating that the members had resigned from the St. James' society, I am requested by them to inform you that this is not so, they having resolved not to do so for the present.

W. PYE-ENGLISH, Hon. Sec.

ANSWER TO "K."

SIR,—In answer to K, I beg to say that in proving Treble Bob Maximus I use the Major proof. The peal he draws my attention to has evidently been sent you through an oversight, for which I beg to apologise.

Obituary.

DAVID HOLLAND DENDY.

It is with regret that we have to announce the death of the above-named gentleman, who died on Wednesday, November 9th, at the age of sixty-six years. He was for many years a member of the Dartford company, and had taken part in a good number of peals of 5000 and upwards on eight, ten, and twelve bells, in the four standard methods, conducting several. He has been absent from the belfry for a considerable time through his declining health. His remains were interred in Crayford churchyard, on Saturday, November 12th. On Sunday evening, November 13th, at the church of St. Paulinus, for Divine Service, a quarter-peal of Grandfire Triples, with the bells half-muffled, in 45 mins., as a mark of respect to the deceased gentleman. L. Hammant, 1; W. J. Cook, 2; E. W. Snowdon, 3; J. Blackman, 4; E. Saxby, 5; J. Saxby, 6; F. French (conductor), 7. W. Saxby, 8. Messrs. Snowdon and Blackman hail from Dartford; G. CONYARD.

COLONEL AKROYD.

On Saturday, November 19th, the above-named gentleman died at St. Leonard's-on-Sea. He was the founder of All Souls' Church, Halifax, which he erected, from designs by the late Sir Gilbert Scott, at a cost of about £100,000. The funeral took place on Wednesday, November 23rd, when the people of Halifax did all that was possible to show respect for his memory. He was buried in the family vault at All Souls' cemetery. After the funeral, a half-peal of Kent Treble Bob Major (2624 changes), was rung with the bells deeply muffled, in 1 hr. 50 mins., being the longest touch rung by the following company. H. Payne, 1; T. Parker, 2; G. D. E. Mercer, 3; J. S. Ambler, 4; A. Parker, 5; C. E. Stewart, 6; A. F. Nicholl, 7; S. W. Stewart (conductor), 8. Tenor 25½ cwt. in D.

THE BELLS OF HATFIELD, HERTS.

The bells of Hatfield Church, dedicated to St. Etheldreda, have just been rehung and quarter-turned by a local bell-hanger, after having remained silent for some few months. On Saturday, November 12th, ringers from St. Albans succeeded in ringing a peal of Grandsire Triples, as reported in our issue of the 19th inst. The bells have been rehung in a skilful manner, and no pains have been spared to make the job a complete success. They have been placed back in the old frame (which is a splendid piece of work), made by the noted founder of Hertford, John Briant, in 1786, who by the way cast the ring of eight, two of which have since been recast. Those members of the ringing fraternity who have rung at Hatfield Church during the past few years, since the demolition of the old belfry chamber, and who have experienced the "pleasurable delight" of walking across the belfry for their sally, not knowing within a few feet where it would fall, will be pleased to know that the draught has been shortened from twelve to fifteen feet, a new chamber having been made, overlooking the body of the church. In addition to the work on the bells, a new chiming apparatus has been fitted up and the old chimes re-adjusted, which we trust will long continue to send forth their melodious tunes to the delight and amusement of all who love to hear "Old England's Merrie bells." At the conclusion of the peal before mentioned, the company adjourned to the "Salisbury Arms" Temperance Hotel, where the inner man was refreshed, which was brought to a successful issue, the last single being called in time to catch "Puffing Billy." Mr. E. P. Debenham, on behalf of the St. Albans contingent, expressed the pleasure he had derived from listening to the peal, which he considered a masterly performance, and the best he had ever heard. On Wednesday, November 16th, Leonard Procter, Esq., and his band from Bennington, although somewhat behind in the field, formally opened the bells, and succeeded in bringing round some good touches of Cambridge and Superlative Surprise Major, Kent Treble Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples. We are pleased to hear that the Hatfield ringers are going in for change-ringing, having on a previous practice-night rung some Grandsire Doubles, under the instruction of Mr. T. Gathard, late of Hertford.

REOPENING OF THE BELLS OF HARWELL CHURCH, BERKSHIRE.

The bells of this church having been rehung, they were reopened on Thursday, November 24th. Evensong, at which the sermon was preached by the Rev. F. E. Robinson, Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, was said at 3 p.m., several of the neighbouring clergy being present. Immediately afterwards two 720's of Grandsire Minor were rung by the following members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild: T. Hibbert, 1; H. D. Betteridge, Esq., 2; F. Field, 3; W. Napper, 4; Rev. F. E. Robinson, 5; J. W. Washbrook (conductor), 6. Tenor about 18 cwt. Several 120's of Stedman and Grandsire Doubles were also rung.

WEYBREAD, SUFFOLK.

On Thursday, November 17th, a 720 of Bob Minor was rung on the bells of Weybread Church for the first time by a bona-fide Weybread company. This reflects great credit on the band as they are almost entirely self-taught. The bells were cast and put up in a small round tower by Messrs. Moore, Holmes, and Mackenzie, of the Redenhall Bell Foundry, in 1879. W. Wiskins (age 20), 1; A. Smith (age 16), 2; G. S. Leggett (age 26), 3; R. Day (age 17), 4; J. Collier (aged), 5; G. Staff (conductor (age 17), 6. Tenor 9 cwt. 10½ lbs.

REOPENING OF THE BELLS OF THE PARISH CHURCH, NEWBURY, BERKS.

On Saturday, November 25th, these bells having been rehung by a firm at Appleton, were reopened with a peal of Stedman Triples, rung by members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. They were cast by Wells, of Aldbourn, Wilts, and make a respectable ring of eight, with a tenor of about 25 cwt. in E flat. The ringers were kindly entertained by the Rector and churchwardens.

RE-OPENING OF EDMOND PARISH BELLS, SHROPSHIRE.

One of the bells of this church having been cracked a few years ago, it was determined to have it restored as a public memorial, also the others re-hung and various improvements made. The work was entrusted to the well-known firm, Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, and the result is that Edmond can now boast of possessing one of the finest rings of six in the county. At the special re-opening service, on Wednesday evening, November 30th, there was a large congregation, not only of parishioners, but of friends from the neighbouring parishes. Special collects were said, afterwards the hymn,

"Lifted gently to the steeple,
See our bells set up on high," &c.

After the singing of the hymn the Tibberton church ringers, assisted by two members of the St. Peter's Society of Change-ringers, Wolverhampton, rang a short touch. The rector, the Rev. C. F. C. Pigott (rural dean) then ascended the pulpit and preached an appropriate sermon from 1 Cor. xii. 26. In the course of his remarks he explained the use of bells, their connection with the church, &c., asking the ringers to remember the solemn office they had to discharge, saying the belfry was not the place for light talk, jesting, eating or drinking. He would end by praying that the words of our greatest modern poet might represent and describe the words those bells would carry out to this and future generations:—

"Ring out the old, ring in the new;
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

After the service several very good courses of Grandsire Doubles were rung, the ringers standing thus:—A. Norton, 1; J. Vickers, 2; W. Podmore, 3; C. F. Vickers, 4; J. Simpkins (conductor), 5; J. Pardoe, 6. The ringers were entertained at the rectory to a substantial repast. We hope to hear of a band of change-ringers being formed here before long. The inscriptions on the different bells will, no doubt, be interesting to some of our readers:—

Treble.—"Freeholders of Edmond." 2ft. 6in. diameter.
2nd.—"Recast A.D. 1887, Jubilee year. J. R. E. J." 2ft. 7in. dia.
3rd.—"God bless our noble Benefactor, 1721." 2ft. 7½in. diameter.
4th.—"Robert Mancell, John James, Churchwardens, 1721." 2ft. 9in. diameter.
5th.—"Dryden Pigott, Rector and Benefactor, 1721." 3ft. diameter.
Tenor.—"Robert Pigott, Benefactor." Weight 11½ cwt. 3ft. 4in. diameter.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

The next District Meeting will be held at Colchester, on Saturday, January 7th, 1888. The ring of eight at St. Peter's church is in good order, but change-ringing has as yet made made little progress in the town. It is hoped, therefore, that there may be a good attendance, so that the meeting may be successful. Further notice of time and place will be given.

The subscriptions of some members of the Association for the year 1886-7 (ending at Whitsuntide last), are still in arrear; and I hereby give notice that unless these arrears are paid by December 31st inst., it will be assumed that the members in question do not wish their names to remain any longer upon our books. I may also remind members of the Association that the subscription for the current year, 1887-8, was due last Whit-Monday, and should be paid as soon as possible by those who have not already forwarded it. T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

Writtle, Chelmsford.

HELLINGLY, SUSSEX.

Hellingly Church is a spacious building of considerable antiquity, some portions of it (particularly the chancel), bearing evident marks of early English architecture. It is always understood to be the "mother church" of Hailsham. The tower is comparatively modern. The church has been well restored, and is in excellent order, from chancel to belfry. An iron ladder leads up to the bells, a peal of six, mostly of different dates, but all from the Whitechapel Foundry. Treble, 1751; second, 1751; third, 1816; fourth, 1813; fifth, 1752; tenor, 1828. According to Messrs. Mears and Stainbank's list, the tenor weighs 12 cwt. These bells need attention. We believe a movement is now on foot to re-hang them. An additional clock dial has lately been fixed on the tower.

MEETING OF THE RINGERS OF THE MACCLESFIELD DISTRICT.

On Saturday last, December 3rd, a meeting of the above was held in the choir vestry of St. Michael's, Macclesfield, to hear an address from the Venerable Archdeacon Barber, of Chester, who has taken such an active part (and is doing now) in the newly-formed Chester Diocesan Guild, for which this meeting had been called. There were five belfries represented, viz.: Alderly (six bells), Bollington (eight bells), Gawsorth (six bells), Macclesfield St. Michael's (ten bells), and Prestbury (eight bells). The Rev. Canon Turner, Vicar, took the chair, and after a few remarks from him, the Venerable Archdeacon gave a beautiful address, and read the rules, etc. of the above. His remarks were well appreciated, and all the ringers present consented to become members. Mr. Matthews, of St. Michael's, made a few good remarks, and after some matters had been discussed, the last-named gentleman proposed that a branch of the above Guild should be formed at Macclesfield, which was seconded by Mr. Fairness (Bollington), and a Secretary who should be Treasurer, pro tem., both being carried unanimously. Votes of thanks were then accorded to the Venerable Archdeacon for his address, and also to Canon Turner for occupying the chair.

N.B.—The first meeting of the Macclesfield branch of the above Guild will be held on Saturday, January 14th, 1888, of which due notice will be given. Touches of Grandsire and Stedman were rung on the tower bells after the meeting.

WILLIAM WALMSLEY,

Gurnett, near Macclesfield.

Sec. and Treasurer pro tem.

NAYLAND CHURCH BELLS.

The bells of the parish church have been put in ringing order with new gun metal bearings, and the old gudgeons turned up, the wheels and other fittings repaired, and the frame re-fastened. The local company were invited to try their skill, and a mixed company rang for morning service a 720 of Plain Bob Minor, being the longest length on the bells since May 2nd, 1874. J. Taylor (Great Bromley), 1; H. Howell (Ipswich), 2; J. Starling (Great Bromley), 3; H. Harper (Sudbury), 4; W. Smith (Higham, conductor), 5; W. J. Nevard (Great Bentley), 6. Also for evening service a 720 of Treble Bob. W. Howell (conductor), 1; J. Starling, 2; W. Griggs, 3; H. Howell, 4; H. Harper, 5; W. J. Nevard, 6. The work was entrusted to Mr. H. Howell, of Ipswich. Tenor 18½ cwt.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING of this Association will be held at Streatham Common (by the kind permission of the Vicar), on Saturday, December 10th. The tower will be open for ringing from 4.30 p.m. A Committee Meeting will be held at 6 p.m. to consider the sketches which have been drawn for the proposed certificate of membership. ARTHUR B. 57 Chorley Road, Blackrod, HONOUR TO A DRONFIELD RINGER.

ON Tuesday, November 29th, being the seventy-fourth anniversary of the birth of Mr. Samuel Allen, the ringers of St. John's church rang a 720 of Oxford in honour of that event. The touch, which was conducted by Mr. Allen, was rung by the following, all being family relations. Joseph Platts, 1; Edward Platts, 2; Samuel Allen, sen., 3; George Platts, 4; S. Allen, jun., 5; H. Allen, 6. At this stage the veteran retired, his place being taken by George Leivesly, when the following methods were rung; Violet, London Scholars' New London Pleasure, College Pleasure, Duke of York, Arnold's Victory, and City Delight. At the conclusion of the ringing the performers were entertained to a sumptuous dinner at the "Green Dragon" Hotel, the house of Mr. Hy. Allen, also a lover of the art. After the cloth was drawn, Samuel Baggaley, Esq., Churchwarden, was called to the chair, and the Rev. H. P. Smith to the vice-chair. The Chairman, in proposing the health of the guest of the evening, alluded at length to the object of their gathering, during his remarks mentioning the fact that Mr. Allen had been a ringer over fifty-seven years. The other toasts following were "The Clergy," "The Churchwardens," etc., which were suitably acknowledged. The speeches were interspersed with glees, songs, recitations, etc., a very agreeable evening being spent.

TENDING CHURCH BELLS.

Through the exertions of the Rev. —. Page to commemorate the Jubilee, the bells have been rehung with new stocks, wheels, and gun metal bearings, new pulleys, ropes, and all other necessary fittings: they are quarter-turned, and hung with cast iron carriages, and the frame has been strengthened, so that the bells are in a perfect and easy ringing order. On Wednesday, November 30th, the following members of the Essex Association, Messrs. J. Taylor (Great Bromley), W. J. Nevard and company (Great Bentley), were engaged to ring them. The work has been carried out by Mr. H. Bowell, of Ipswich, to the satisfaction of all concerned. The bells were cast by Miles Gray, 1618—1624—1627. The others are by Mears, 1864. On Thursday and Friday, twenty young trees of various sorts were planted in the churchyard to commemorate the Jubilee.

Obituary.

MRS. SAMUEL WOOD.

WE regret to have to record the death of the above lady, wife of Mr. Samuel Wood, of Ashton-under-Lyne, which sad event took place on Wednesday week. Mrs. Wood had given birth to another infant, on the previous Tuesday evening, but she succumbed about noon on the following day. The funeral took place on Saturday last, and in addition to a large number of relatives and friends, many ringers were present. In the evening the following ringers ascended the tower of St. Peter's church, and rang a muffled touch, consisting of 1632 changes, which number corresponded with the number of weeks of the deceased's age. T. Moss, 1. T. Wroe, 2; W. Smith, 3; J. Adams, 4; B. Broadbent, 5; J. Gillott, 6; J. Thorp (composer), 7; G. Longden, 8. Mrs. Wood, who had just entered upon her thirty-second year, leaves four children. We feel assured that Mr. S. Wood's many ringing friends will sympathise with him in his bereavement.

A GIFT OF BREAD-AND-CHEESE.—In the twelfth century there lived in Biddenden, in Kent, two women named Chulkhurst, whose bodies are said to have been joined together in the same way as those of the Siamese twins were united. They left some land—about twenty acres—the rental of which was to provide a meal of bread and cheese for the poor of Biddenden. The food is distributed every Easter Monday. It seems strange that so large a sum of money—unless, indeed, the rental be very low—should not furnish a more substantial and more varied repast.—From "Little Folks Magazine" for December.

THE SHOE STRIKE AT NORTHAMPTON.—The distress in Northampton in consequence of the shoe strike is becoming great. On the 7th inst. between 400 and 500 children were breakfasted at two cafes by a anonymous gentleman, and Mr. William Cooper, a local fishmonger, distributed gratis to women 2 tons 3 cwt. of fish.

Church News.

The Yorkshire Post says the Duke of Newcastle proposes to give a new altar cross to St. Paul's Cathedral. Messrs. Bodley and Garner design it, and the cost will be £600.

The sermons preached at the consecration of Truro Cathedral and during the octave, have been published, by authority, by Messrs. Heard, of Truro.

The Dean and Chapter of Manchester have accepted the offer of a well-known citizen to place a window in the cathedral as a memorial of General Gordon.

The Rev. J. L. Bateman, formerly vicar of Haile, Cumberland, who was sentenced by Mr. Justice Day to eighteen months imprisonment for solemnising a marriage without due publication of the banns, is to be released, the remaining six months of the term being remitted.

Three stained glass windows have been placed in the parish church, Faversham, Kent, during the present year. They are the work of Messrs. Lavers, Westlake, and Barraud. Since 1869 fourteen stained glass windows have been erected in the church.

A handsome gateway has been erected at the entrance of St. Andrew's, Southport, after designs by Messrs. Aldridge and Deacon, of Liverpool. It is intended as a memorial of the completion of the fiftieth year of the reign of Queen Victoria, and was formally opened on St. Andrew's Day by the Bishop of Sodor and Man.

On Friday night, owing to the announcement that Mr. Lyne ("Father Ignatius") would occupy the pulpit at St. Mark's church, Coburg road, Old Kent road, a large congregation assembled; but it was announced that the Bishop of Rochester had prohibited the rev. gentleman from preaching at that church.

News has been received at Thirsk, from Suez, as to the health of the Bishop of Bathurst. His lordship was much better than he was at Naples, and it was thought that ere he reached Australia he would have quite recovered from the attack of debility from which he was suffering during the voyage down the Mediterranean, caused by overwork previous to his departure.

At a meeting of the Chapter of Truro, held on St. Andrew's Day, under the presidency of the Bishop, who is also Dean, Canon H. H. Du Boulay was unanimously elected Proctor. Canon Du Boulay was chaplain and secretary to Bishop Phillpotts, of Exeter, from 1864 to 1867, and is now vicar of Newlyn Eass. He has been editor from 1877 of the Truro Diocesan Calendar.

The first of the Advent lectures at St. Alphage, London-wall, was preached on Friday evening by the Rev. C. J. Ridgway, vicar of Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, who took for his text, St. Matthew xxi, 10, "When He was come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, Who is this?" and delivered an eloquent and striking sermon in reply to this question, which was attentively listened to by a good congregation, consisting chiefly of men. The lecturer on Friday evening next will be Prebendary Barker, rector of St. Marylebone.

The Rev. E. Penwarne-Wellings, vicar of Stanford-in-the-Vale, Berks, and Rural Dean of the Deanery of White Horse, having resigned his preferment, has been presented by the clergy of the deanery with a silver inkstand and an address expressive of regret at his departure. The parishioners have also presented him with a silver salver, and a similar address beautifully illuminated. Mrs. Penwarne-Wellings has been presented with a tea service by the members of her Sunday School class.

A successful meeting was held, on behalf of the Bishop of St. Albans Fund for the East End of London, on the 26th ult., at Copped Hall, Totteridge, the residence of Mr. S. B. Boulton, who took the chair, and gave his experience of the working of the fund from a layman's point of view. He was followed by the Bishops of St. Albans and Colchester, by Canon Boyd, Principal of Hertford College, Oxford, himself a distinguished pioneer in the spiritual work carried on in "London over the border," and by Archdeacon Lawrence and Canon Proctor, the secretary of the fund. An East End clergyman, the Rev. C. J. Buckley, excited the sympathies of the audience by an account of the present state of the work, the early beginnings and struggles of which had been graphically described by Canon Boyd. The principal residents in the parish and the neighbourhood, and a large number of the clergy of the diocese attended to show their sympathy with their Bishop in his difficulties, and to support his plea on behalf of the St. Albans Fund. On the following day two sermons were preached in Totteridge church for the same object, that in the morning by the Bishop of Colchester, that in the evening by Canon Boyd. The collection at the meeting amounted to £164 2s. 5d., and the two offertories to £19 7s. 6d., making a total of £183 9s. 11d.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

HANDBELL PEALS.

SIR,—Allow me to make a few remarks with regard to the above. Your correspondent College Youth asks if the handbell peal reported as rung at St. Albans, on November 19th, 1887, was rung without an umpire, or whether it is an omission. I beg to say I have ascertained that no one was present but the performers. Another peal is recorded in last week's issue, December 3, as rung by the St. Albans Cathedral and other Societies, at Spicer Street Schoolroom, on November 29, umpire, Mr. Henry Brewer, of the St. Peter's Society, and I understand still another peal has been rung, and no doubt sent to you umpired by another member of the St. Peter's Society. I beg to say Mr. T. Waller is not a member of the St. Albans Cathedral Society, but a member of the St. Peter's Society, which Society ring nothing else on the church bells but that intricate and much abused method designated by your correspondent as "Tombstone Surprise," etc., and I believe I am right in saying that only two of the members of that Society, viz., Messrs. Debenham and Waller, are competent to join any change-ringing Society at the present time. I am very pleased to hear they are taking up change-ringing, and I am sure with the assistance of such able ringers as Messrs. Buckingham, Cartmel and Mitchell, they ought very soon to be proficient, and I hope we in St. Albans will soon have the pleasure of listening to some well-struck Caters, instead of the well-struck but monotonous call-changes, from their beautiful peal of ten. To return to the subject. Messrs. Mitchell, Cartmel, Buckingham and Barnes are very honourable young men, and I have no doubt the peal was rung true, and I for one give them all credit for it, but if they wish their peals recorded I certainly think they ought to secure one or two competent umpires. Of course if they only ring for their own amusement it is nothing to do with anyone. The peals appear under the head of three Societies, of which I have the honour of being a member, and I must say I protest against such peals being entered in the peal-books; first, because it is my opinion all handbell peals should be umpired; second, that the umpire should be a competent ringer, that is one who can ring at least 500 inside on the church bells, as we know it would be an easy matter for such ringers as our friends in question to pull anyone through a touch on handbells, ringer or no ringer, and I very much doubt if the gentleman mentioned as umpire has ever rung the treble through a plain course on church bells; third, the umpire should be a member of the Society or Societies, under whose name the peal appears, and is expected to be entered. I think this very necessary, as then the umpire feels as much interest in the peal as the ringers themselves. I think the committees of the two leading Societies should meet or frame some rules to govern handbell peals, or, as "College Youth" says, they may soon get their books full of peals, true or otherwise, especially if they give a precedent by entering peals virtually not umpired.

THE PEAL AT ST. BOTOLPH'S, BISHOPSGATE.

SIR,—I notice in your issue of December 3rd that the peal which I conducted at the above church, on Thursday, November 19th, 1887, is not to be called a St. James's peal, because one of the performers in that peal had omitted to pay his entrance fee, which I was quite unaware of. The same performer rang a peal on the 5th of February, 1887, at St. Mary's, Lewisham, and also at St. Mary's, Woolwich, on the 24th March, 1887, and those peals are called St. James's Society peals. Now I should like to know why the one I conducted should not be called a St. James's Society peal.

W. H. FREEMAN.

THE PEAL OF BOB TRIPLES AT BROMSGROVE.

SIR,—Will you just allow me to call the attention of your readers to a peal that was published on November 26th, which was said to have been rung at Bromsgrove, and said to contain 5040 changes, and rung in 2 hrs. and 59 mins. Being an attentive listener, I noticed in the Bromsgrove Messenger it read 2 hrs. and 57 mins. But the truth is they rung 4998 changes, in 3 hrs. 24 mins., which was rounds and clashes. I don't know what some would call it, but I am of opinion it was fox and duck hunt.

ATTENTIVE LISTENER.

PRIZE RINGING.

SIR,—I was surprised when I got my paper last Saturday to see a letter from Mr. C. H. Hattersley, a very prominent member of the Yorkshire Association (to which I have the pleasure to belong) in favour of the above subject. I have always been under the impression that our Association was to promote change-ringing and belfry reform, but I am afraid if we have many more like Mr. Hattersley, the latter object will not derive much benefit from our Association. I am not going to say that prize-ringing does not improve striking, but I do say that if good striking cannot be got without this means, then it is a dark look out for the Exercise. Prizes are given to children for regular attendance at Sunday school, but I think that true ringers have got a step above receiving a prize for taking a good part in the work of the church they attend. He refers to the organ competitions as much as to say they are wrong in having such competitions, and that he has just as much right to do wrong as the organists; and so he has, but supposing that they are doing wrong, I think that does not justify him in "letting the blind lead the blind," especially when he knows they are going the wrong way; but looking at it in its proper light, it may be quite necessary for organists to compete for their situation, but a young ringer can be taken into the tower and trained for his place without such competitions. If a peal of bells could be found apart from church or chapel, or any place of worship, then we should have no cause to complain as to the use of such bells, but to have a competition on a peal belonging to any church, is, in my opinion using the bells for a purpose they were never intended for, and I am sure Mr. Hattersley is very soon misled if he thinks it is right, simply because the Vicar or churchwardens have given their permission, to hold such contests.

FRED LONDON.

Moorhead, Shipley.

SIR,—It is very amusing to read Mr. Attree's letter on the above subject about Associations ringing the most peals to be the best striking. Allow me to inform Mr. Attree he is altogether mistaken. I have attended as many Association meetings as he, and to speak the truth I have never heard any ringing to come up to prize ringing, yet as for ringing the most peals, it does not say they are the best. I daresay Mr. Attree was born sixty years too late for striking, or he would not have written in the strain he did. Mr. Wilde has not written on his own account, it is the wish of the members of the Association that it should be known to the ringers at large.

GEORGE LONGDEN.

P.S.—The peal by Mr. Holdcroft, with sixty calls, is false; and the peal by W. J. Sevier is the composition of the late W. Harrison.

SIR,—After the able remarks on your leader of the 26th by Mr. Hattersley, I think comment thereon by me is not required. I must, however, take exception to the latter part of the letter signed "G. F. Attree." To begin with, I must ask that gentleman to keep a little more to the point under discussion, and never mind quoting analyses of peals rung by different associations, or asking whether I write officially, or telling us I was born half a century or more too late. This sort of thing is beside the point altogether, though before going further I may say that there are five members of our association who have took part in more than 120 peals each, in various methods, four of whom are under thirty years of age, and I might add there are many more members who are rapidly approaching this number. Of course I do not wish it to be understood that all these are association peals—only a few of them are credited to the association. I simply quote the above facts so that it may be distinctly understood that we do not discourage peal-ringing, as the tone of Mr. Attree's letter would seem to imply. As to adding "Hon. Sec." to my name, I must tell him that as I considered that the expense of calling a special committee meeting (to say whether or not I was to use the abbreviations in question) would swell the already slender funds, I had the awful presumption to use the title of an officer, which was unanimously accorded to me at our last annual meeting for the fourth time in succession. But all the same, I firmly believe my views, as set forth in my last letter, do meet with the approval of the 160 members who form our association. With regard to the falling off of peals rung by us, I can assure you, sir, that no one regrets it more than myself. However, let us hope that another year will see us near the top of the ladder. So much for matter that does not bear upon the main point at all. Mr. Attree is good enough to call attention to the following sentence in my last—"That the only way to secure constant good ringing is by holding prize ringing meetings." That seems to tickle his feelings rather, but I still stick to what I wrote, and defy him to prove the contrary. He holds up his hands in horror against prize-ringing, saying that it leads to prize-fights, beer, and desecration. Out upon such arguments. What has prize-fights to do with prize-ringing? I should like to know. The comparison is simply ridiculous. Again, if he does not drink a glass of beer now and then, is that any reason why other ringers should not, provided they desire it and willing to pay for it? Does he wish it to be understood in the event of prize-ringing being done away with, that we shall have no more of prize-fights or drunkenness? As to desecration, that is a matter of opinion, and I venture to say that the majority are with us. If he cannot advance any stronger arguments than these, he had better hold his peace. I remember reading, some time ago, an account of the annual meeting of the Sussex Association, wherein Mr. Geo. F. Attree proposed that this Association (Sussex) give a silver cup to the company that ring the most peals during the next twelve months. What does he say to that, I wonder? If that is not prize-ringing, what is it? There's an old saying that "those who live in glass houses should not throw stones," and Mr. Attree would do well to remember it, otherwise he might have his windows smashed. I will just place his position before your readers, and then I have done for the present. His position amounts to this, that whilst he would give prizes to the companies that ring the most peals, he would debar any one from giving prizes to the companies that did the best striking. In other words, prizes for quantity but none for quality. JAMES S. WILDE.

A RINGER'S ADVENTURE.

SIR,—The St. Andrew's company having to ring in the evening at St. Andrew's church, Bath, on Wednesday, November 30th, it being St. Andrew's Day, and after doing so, knowing that it was the St. Saviour's company's practice-night, we all took a walk to their tower, and found some of the ringers waiting outside, so two or three invited us to go up to raise the bells, and some of the others went across the road to a public-house, saying "good night, if we don't see you again," but when we had got the bells half-way up there was a loud thumping noise came at the door, and when opened proved to be no other than those who had bid us good night. They were just like a lot of lunatics, and shouting "pull 'em down again, pull 'em down," at the same time two of them took hold of the tenor, and then the others all had to come down the same way, and they never explained any reason for doing so. We put on our coats again and left the tower. If they did not want us to ring why did they not act like Englishmen, and give us the information at first, or told us in a polite manner when we had got the bells up. After we had gone away they raised six of the bells, and rang a plain course of Doubles, but the ringing was very bad. Now, Mr. Editor, when these people come to our tower they are always treated with courtesy, and asked to have a pull, as ringers ought to treat one another, and not stop others, like a bull running wild in a china shop, and at the same time knowing we were members of the Bath and Keynsham Association, the same as themselves. Now Mr. Editor, this is not the spirit that should exist between one ringer and another, but they should all pull together, and then they would get a little farther than a plain course on five. J. HOLMAN.

AN EXPLANATION WANTED.

SIR,—I see in "THE BELL NEWS" of last Saturday, an account of a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes), rung at Great Yarmouth, in 45 minutes, on Tuesday, November 22nd. I heard the quarter-peal as your correspondent calls it. Now most of the time the bells were clashing two and three at a time, and every now and then they were completely firing, therefore the number of changes could not have been rung. The following is what this quarter-peal company done for Divine Service last Sunday:—In the morning an 18-score of Plain Bob Minor was attempted without success; for evening service a try for Grandsire Triples was made. They had not been ringing more than ten minutes when the bells were fired into rounds. Another try was made, but this time they could not get a lead before the bells were again all of a lump. After service, for 15 minutes, this disgraceful ringing was again gone on with. Perhaps the conductor or one of the company will be able to explain. D. HAYWARD.

St. Nicholas' Road.

ST. ALBAN'S, COPENHAGEN.

A peal of eight of the new tubular bells has just been erected in the belfry of the above new English church, having been supplied to the order of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. As there is only one set of six bells in any church in the city, and those of the most wretched description, much interest was evinced in the installation of the eight tubulars, which were chimed for the first time on Sunday, November 20th, in a touch of Grandsire Triples, the first ever heard from a church tower in Copenhagen. The British Ambassador (Sir Edmund Monson), and many others expressed their great pleasure at the result. The Chaplain (the Rev. C. A. Moore), himself an old ringer, is training eight members of his choir for ringing in the English methods, which will now be well represented. A set of these tubular bells has also been fixed at St. Michael's church, Folkestone, where a ringing society is to be formed from members of the church choir.—Communicated.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1887.

A footnote to a peal recorded in this number, though it is of modest proportions, will be sufficient to excite wonder in the minds of many of our readers. A noted ringer, well-known to the metropolitan section of the Exercise—MATTHEW WOOD, last Saturday scored his 300th peal. The summary of these performances, which we give below, comprise a list which will be read with admiration. There are not so many performances in the most difficult Treble Bob methods as we have lately seen, but for all that such a record is one to be proud of. Three hundred peals! It would be interesting to hear how many unsuccessful attempts in addition were made by our old friend MATTHEW WOOD throughout his ringing career. That would doubtless be a difficult result to arrive at.

There are other interesting features about this three-hundredth peal which may be noticed. We believe it is the one-hundredth peal rung by Mr. Wood at Bethnal Green Church. This, if correct, is certainly worth mentioning. And we also hear that this performance is the two hundredth peal of one of Mr. Wood's most esteemed colleagues—MR. WILLIAM COOTER, a ringer whom by reason of his innate modesty seems to have almost dropped out of the science altogether. Though little is heard of him at the present, and unknown as he may be, even by repute, to many of the rising generation of ringers, we shall not be wrong in regarding him as one of the most clever ringers of the day. More however concerning him anon.

We have thought that the attainment of such a number of peals by two London worthies such as we have alluded to, not out of place. They rang, it appears, their first peal together in 1846, and they have since then preserved an acquaintanceship which has had few events, if any, to mar it. We shall hear no doubt of other performances being rung in which they will take a part, in fact there is no good reason to doubt, should their health be preserved to them, that they may yet ring another hundred peals. We are sure every one of our readers will join us in the hope that they may be spared many years to ring, if not the other hundred, very many more than they have already achieved.

SIR HENRY LAWRENCE AT LUCKNOW.—When the preparations for a possible mutiny began at Lucknow, Sir Henry Lawrence cleared away many of the small houses near the Residency, but leaving some of them standing so as to build walls from one to the other, thus making a rampart, or wall all round the Residency. Inside this enclosure he conveyed a large number of cannon, powder, and quantities of food, and all the English women and children were put in there for safety. It was not till the end of June that the first real struggle took place. Hearing that a large rebel army was approaching the city, Sir Henry Lawrence determined to go out and meet them. On June 30th, therefore he marched out of the Residency with all the men he could spare from the work of building the walls—about seven hundred in all, including some hundreds of faithful natives—and met the enemy near the village of Chinhut. The rebels mustered about six thousand, and on seeing them, the natives on the English side began to run away. The English soldiers, as usual, fought with the greatest bravery, but unfortunately they were worn out with hard work, and could not beat back the thousands of rebels who rushed forward like a torrent. They fell back in retreat; this soon became a rout, and those who were not shot nor cut down, got back to the Residency as best they could. The enemy rapidly followed, and on the night of June 30th, the siege of the Residency, which was to last many months, commenced. A sad calamity now fell upon a little party of English men and women who were preparing to defend themselves against a merciless foe. During the night a shell burst into Sir Henry Lawrence's bedroom, and inflicted wounds from which that brave and good man died, after lingering till the morning of July 4th, amid the constant thud of cannon balls against the walls of the building, and the ceaseless rattle of guns night and day. WILLINGDON, SUSSEX.

The ancient church of Willingdon, near Eastbourne, has a peal of five bells of the following dates:—Treble, 1860; second, 1732; third, 1875; fourth; 1618; tenor, 1732. The diameter of the tenor is 38 inches. It weighs probably about 10 cwt. Sir Walter Parker, of Ratton, gave this bell, and his ancestor, Sir Nicholas Parker, was the donor of the fourth bell. The treble, second, third, and tenor, were cast at the Whitechapel Foundry. Owing to the belfry being so small, several of the ropes are led to the ceiling by means of wooden "shoots." A clock has been placed in the tower during this Jubilee year, which is a boon to the inhabitants. It strikes the hours on the tenor bell with a hammer weighing about 20 lbs., bringing out the fine tone of the bell admirably. The Church contains several interesting monuments and brasses to the Parker and Thomas families.

It was in Kensington Palace, in this parish, the Queen was born, and it was thought fitting before the close of the Jubilee year that a peal should be rung on the bells. permission being obtained from the Vicar and churchwardens, by the kindness of R. A. Daniel, Esq., Captain of the Kensington Guild: The recent death of Lord Wolverton, brother of the respected vicar, the Hon. and Rev. Carr Glynn, and other causes, delayed the performance to the present; it being the nearest available date to Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales' 43rd birthday and was thought a suitable opportunity for the attempt. This peal, the second on these grand-toned bells, was also the first in the method on them. It was also the first performance on bells by R. A. Daniel, Esq.

REOPENING OF THE BELLS OF KELSEALE,
SUFFOLK.

WHEN the Jubilee was celebrated all over the country in June last, Kelsale had its share in the rejoicings, and there was a public feast, with sports, and a bonfire at night, but the celebrations were not confined to these. It was determined that there should be some more permanent memorials, and with this view that the church bells should be rehung and a Jubilee oak planted. The cost of rehanging the bells was £90. Up to 1831 the bells were six in number, and in that year the fifth was recast and two added. The present rector (the Rev. G. I. Davies), who has held the living for nearly twenty years, has, from his first connection with the two parishes of Carlton and Kelsale, of which he is rector, taken the greatest interest in preserving and improving the churches; that of Carlton has been restored, and the restoration of Kelsale church has been proceeding by instalments, and now the bells of the latter church have been rehung. They have been taken up and entirely rehung with improved modern fittings, while they have all been turned on the new stocks, so that the clappers strike in a fresh place. The carriages are of cast iron, with gun metal bearings, and they are hung upon crank gudgeons fitted into iron bed-plates to intersect the stocks. The clappers are new, and fitted with reversed crown staples through the bell and stock. The old pulleys and ropes have been replaced by fresh ones, and the bells are now, in short, in perfect ringing order. They bear the following inscriptions:

Treble and Secoud.—"T. Mears, of London, fecit 1831."

Third.—"John Darbie made me, 1681."

Fourth.—"J. Peele me fecit E H Bvrsor, churchwarden, 1708."

Fifth.—"T. Mears, of London, fecit, 1830."

Sixth.—"S. Newton, J. Peel, fecit E Hobart E H Bvrsor, John Brothers Ralph Eade, churchwardens, 1708."

Seventh.—"A 14th century bell, bearing the shield of Brayszer, founder, Norwich, and the following lines:—

"Dona rependé pia

Rogo Magdalene Maria."

Tenor.—"John Darbie made me 1681. Ralph Eade, churchwarden, Philip Eade, assistant, A E Feoffees, William Wright, MWCR."

On Tuesday, November 20th, the bells were reopened. The proceedings commenced with Holy Communion at the church at eight. At ten Morning Service was held. At eleven the ceremony of planting the Jubilee oak was performed by Mrs. Woodyard in the meadow of Mr. Edward Woodyard, in which the sports were held in June. There was a large attendance of parishioners, and when Mrs. Woodyard had placed the earth round the little tree, she said, "I plant this tree in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee, and it will be called the Jubilee oak." The National Anthem was then sung, and all present in turn, the rector leading the way, shared in filling the earth in round the tree. The opening service was held at three o'clock. After the ordinary service, the clergy, preceded by the surpliced choir, marched from the chancel to the belfry, where prayers and responses were said, and a hymn sung, commencing—

"Lift them gently to the steeple,
Let our bells be set on high."

On returning to the chancel, the procession halted, and the rector unveiled a window enriched with stained glass at the expense of Mrs. Woodyard, in memory of that lady's mother. The window is in the north wall, near the fine old Jacobean pulpit. It consists of two lights, and the subject is the "Law and the Gospel;" in the left light is the figure of Moses, with the word "Lex" engraved in the diamond panes, in the right the figure of St. John, with the corresponding word "Evan." The sermon was preached by the Rev. C. W. Furse, Canon of Westminster. The offertory was in aid of the fund for the restoration of the church tower. In the evening a parochial tea was held.

Ringin' commenced soon after 6 a.m., when short touches of Bob Major and Treble Bob were rung, and continued till 3 p.m., when service was held. Members of the following companies attended: Aldeburgh, Framlingham, Halesworth, Leiston, Woodbridge, and Redenhall, with their secretary, the Rev. N. Bolingbroke, who had to leave soon after the service to catch the train. In the evening the following members rang 1008 of Bob Major. W. Watling, 1; J. Heffer, 2; A. Lincoln, 3; R. Wells (conductor), 4; F. Cooper, 5; J. Heffer, sen., 6; H. Cooper, 7; W. Lambert, 8. The Messrs. Heffer hail from Framlingham, Lincoln from Leiston, and F. Cooper from Aldeburgh; the rest are local men. On Saturday evening, December 3rd, the members of the Kelsale company met for practice and rang 1008 of Bob Major. W. Watling, 1; H. Cooper, 2; W. Lambert, 3; R. Wells, 4; T. Page, 5; F. Thompson, 6; W. Fisher (conductor), 7; J. Edmunds, 8. Also 768 of Oxford Treble Bob, standing the same as before.

THE BELLS OF HEADCORN, KENT.

This fine old church, dedicated to SS. Peter and Paul, contains a peal of eight bells, one of the oldest rings of that number in the County, as the inscriptions, which run thus, will show:

Treble.—"Given Bb. John Hudds: Richd. Greenhill · Executor Thos. Bayly, Thos. Ledger Ch. Wardens. Lester & Pack of London · Fecit · 1766."

Second.—"Given by John Hudds: Richd. Greenhill · Executor · T. Bayly · T. Ledger Ch. Wardens · Lester & Pack of London Fecit · 1766."

Third.—"SK. 1732."

Fourth.—"R. Phelps · Fecit 1714."

Fifth.—"R. Phelps made me · 1714."

Sixth.—"R. Phelps made me 1714."

Seventh.—"Edmond · Peché · Daniel Benison CW. Richard Phelps made me 1720."

Tenor.—"Unto the Church I doo you call.

Death to the grave will summons all.

Samuell Knight made me 1732."

The tenor measures forty-nine inches in diameter, and is reputed to weigh 24 cwt., in E flat. Numbers two, three, and six are cracked, and want recasting, and the fourth's cannons are broken off. This bell is bolted to the stock. A peal of Oxford Treble Bob Major was rung here in 1766, the first peal on the bells. In the churchyard stands one of the finest old oak trees in England, measuring about thirty-six feet in circumference five feet from the ground. Through the kindness of John Gowns (one of the local ringers) I was allowed to take off the inscriptions.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.—HULL BRANCH.

On Friday, November 11th, this branch of the above Association had a supper at the Alexandra Hotel, Cogan Street, to commemorate the erection of a peal tablet recording the first peal of Stedman Triples rang in the East Riding. The supper, which was served in excellent style by host Aistrophe, was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The chair was taken by Mr. Charles Jackson, and the vice-chair by Mr. J. W. Stickney. After the usual loyal toasts were duly honoured, a course of Caters on handbells, followed by a song, "The Village Blacksmith," by Mr. Newham; encore—"The Old Brigade"; recitation—"The Charge of the Light Brigade," Mr. Reed. A course of Stedman Triples. Song—"Anchored," Mr. Dawes; Recitation "A Happy Discovery, the culprits found out, the bells are all to blame," Mr. Jackson. Tune on handbells; Song—"Dear Old Pals," Mr. Chaffer; Song—"Ah! never deem," Mr. Littlefield; Toast—"The Yorkshire Association," The Vice-Chairman Duet—"The Larboard Watch," Messrs. Newham and Littlefield. A course of Grandsire Triples. Song—"They all love Jack," Mr. Newham; encore—"The Queen of the Earth,"; Song—"Happy Moments," Mr. Feetham; Recitation—"We sailed from the Downs," Mr. Jackson. Herr F. Koser ably presided at the piano. After the toast "The Host and Hostess," given by Mr. Southwick, the company wended their way home after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX BELL

JAMES HIGSON, Sec,

57 Chorley Road, Blackrod,

FROME, SOMERSETSHIRE.—RE-OPENING OF THE PARISH CHURCH BELLS.

To-day, Saturday, ere the arrival of "THE BELL NEWS" in this busy manufacturing town, the bells of the magnificent parish church, dedicated to St. John-the-Baptist, which was founded by St. Aldhelm, and now acknowledged to be one of the grandest, if not the best, parish churches in England, will enliven the parishioners for the first time in their history with an attempted peal of Grandsire Triples, provided no unforeseen difficulty presents itself to alter the arrangements. The bells will be opened by members of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild. Mr. Blackburn, of Salisbury, Wilts, has been entrusted with the restoration of the frame-work, and general machinery of the bells, which has been a very laborious task, and has taken several weeks to accomplish. The visitors have the good wishes of the local ringers connected with the church, as well as that of the parishioners, for success in their attempted peal of to-day. The following has been culled from the Parish Church Magazine, but which appeared first in the history of this church by the late Vicar, the Rev. W. J. E. Bennett, M.A., and doubtless will prove of interest to the readers of "THE BELL NEWS."

THE BELLS, WEIGHTS, AND INSCRIPTIONS.—The treble, which weighs about 8 cwt., "William Cockey, bellfounder, 1724." The second, which weighs about 10 cwt., "William Cockey, bellfounder, 1724." The third bell weighs about 13 cwt., and has the inscription on its waist—"Josiah Ames and Timothy Lacey, Churchwardens, 1778. Wm. Bilbie, Chewstoke, Fecit." The fourth bell weighs about 16 cwt., and has the inscription on its waist—"I am Hee for John Lott made Mee + Anno Domini, 1624." The fifth bell weighs about 18 cwt., and has the inscription on its waist—"Water Bearens, John Phitman, C. W. + Anno Domini, 1624." The sixth bell weighs about 22 cwt., and has this inscription on its waist—"Mr. Wm. Barton and Mr. Joseph Claney, C. Wds. William Cockey, bellfounder, 1746."

It is supposed that the treble, second, and sixth, which were made by William Cockey, were cast in Bell Lane, Frome, hence the origin of "Bell Lane," one of the thoroughfares leading from the great Printing Works and the church. The name of Cockey still lives in the town, and the largest iron foundry in Frome trades under the name of Messrs. Cockey and Company, Limited.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—MANCHESTER DISTRICT BRANCH.

The first meeting of the above recently formed district took place at Eccles on Saturday, December 10th. There was a very fair number of ringers representing the following places:—Manchester, Eccles, Worsley, Walkden, Bolton, and Northenden. Ringing commenced at 4.30, and was continued at intervals until 8.30 p.m., during which time touches in the following methods were indulged in: Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob Major, and Stedman Triples. There was also various courses rung on the handbells, after which the following business was transacted. Mr. W. Diggle was initiated a member. It was proposed that the next District Meeting be held at St. James's Church, Birch, Rusholme, of which due notice will be given. Quite a gloom was cast over the meeting owing to the death of Mrs. Wood, of Ashton, a lady who was greatly respected by all ringers with whom she came in contact, her amiable disposition and generous hospitality were among the pleasant reminiscences of a ringers' visit to Ashton. It was proposed by Mr. Wreaks, seconded by Mr. Cash, and unanimously carried "That the secretary be requested to forward a letter of condolence to Mr. Samuel Wood." A vote of thanks to Mr. John Curtis (Bolton), for his services in the chair, brought a very satisfactory meeting to a close. JOHN E. POLLITT, Local Sec.

THE WATERLOO SOCIETY, LONDON.

Notice is hereby given that the two peals of Grandsire Triples rung at Holy Trinity, Newington, on the 29th April, and the 13th May last, and recorded in this paper as Waterloo peals, will not be entered in the Society's peal book, owing to the Society being unable to recover the entrance fees of the three persons elected in the tower, namely, Messrs. Waghorn, jun., Barnett, and Lucas.

By ORDER.

WHITCHURCH, SALOP.

On Tuesday, November 29th, Mr. H. Gardiner, of Gloucester, visited this town. The local ringers met him at the parish church, and a start was made for Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing 2½ hours, the conductor called "stand," something having gone wrong. H. Gardiner (conductor), 1; G. Wright, 2; W. Hutchinson, 3; G. Woodhall, 4; J. Griffiths, 5; R. T. Holding, 6; T. Barron, 7; F. Ryder, 8. On Wednesday evening a waggonette was hired, and a start made for Market Drayton, Salop, distance about eleven miles from Whitchurch. These bells have been rehung and augmented to eight by the addition of two new trebles as a Jubilee offering, Messrs. Warner and Sons securing the contract, and were opened about three months ago by the Whitchurch ringers. Arriving there, no time was lost in making a start for the peal missed the evening before, but fate was against them, for after ringing upwards of 1000 changes, the Vicar came and asked them to stop, as a man was dying close to the church. The ringers stood in the order as before, except that J. Griffiths rung the 7th, and Jno. Gibson the 5th. Tenor about 16 cwt. A move was then made to the "Elephant and Castle" Hotel, and they had not been long there when Colonel Hill, of that town entered, and having expressed his regret at the unfortunate ending of the peal, said that he hoped the same band would visit them again, and get the first peal on the bells. He then ordered the host to attend to their wants in the way of refreshments, and left them. About half-past nine news was brought that the man for whom the peal was stopped was dead. Shortly afterwards a start was made for home which was reached about midnight.

INVASION OF PERSIA BY ALEXANDER THE GREAT.—The period is among the most interesting in the history of the ancient world, because of the results which followed. The great expedition of Xerxes was about to be reversed. On that earlier occasion, the enormous numerical forces of an Asiatic despotism were poured upon the shores of Europe, with every accompaniment of barbaric splendour which boundless ostentation could prompt, and boundless wealth supply. Had the Persian invader been successful, the great ideas of Grecian polity and culture—ideas essentially European, and immeasurably superior to the ferocious despotisms of the East—might have been destroyed in their adolescence, beyond all hope of renovation in that part of the world. The invasion of Persia by Alexander was the returning wave of Greek civilization, breaking upon the enormous, but decaying, bulk of Persian sovereignty. The force thus directed by the Macedonian monarch was singularly small for such an enterprise. It had neither the multitudinous vastness nor the external pomp which distinguished the hosts of Xerxes but it was handled by consummate genius, and regulated by a scientific organization which had been advancing to perfection during many years. The expedition from Asia into Europe was the operation of matter upon mind; and it failed. The expedition from Europe into Asia was a manifestation of intellectual force, fresh, concentrated, and active, against the dull mass of Oriental immobility and tradition. It succeeded, because active forces are necessarily more potent than passive; because the Persian Empire had reached the stage of decrepitude; because the power of Macedon was youthful, energetic, and self-confident; and because the time had arrived when a new order of things was to be prepared in the most important regions of the globe. However much we may dislike the character or the personal aims of Alexander, we may say that, in a certain sense, he was a providential agent for effecting much which the world was the better for obtaining. His armies, and the kingdoms which arose out of his transitory empire, spread Greek civilization, Greek thought, and the resources of the Greek tongue, over the whole of Western Asia; and the subsequent history of the Western world has been widely and deeply influenced by the campaigns of Alexander. It is amazing that a man of the intellectual power of Demosthenes should not have seen that, as the day of republican Greece, with all its virtues and all its faults, had manifestly passed, it was better that a Hellenised Macedon should prevail over Persia, than that the designs of Alexander should be thwarted by an alliance between the commonwealth of Greece and the unprogressive despotism of Susa.—From "Cassell's Illustrated Universal History" for December.

Of late several correspondents have acquired the pernicious habit of posting their communications without taking the trouble to affix the usual penny stamp which is required. Correct and not fictitious names and addresses should also be appended, and in this particular many are exceedingly remiss. Failure to comply with these regulations inevitably brings disappointment.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"In essentials, Unity; in non-essentials, Liberty; in all things, Charity."

What a miscellaneous and interesting array of news last week's issue contains! Re-opening of peals at Egmond and Tending; establishment of a new Guild for the Diocese of Chester; Matthew Wood's 300th peal; three pages of peals, and three more of touches. Surely things must be looking up in the Exercise. No less than thirteen peals are recorded as having been rung on Saturday week alone. All this is very satisfactory and proves that there is no lack of enthusiasm (but much the contrary) in connection with our art.

* * * * *

Ringers throughout the country will note with pleasure the veteran "Matt. Wood's" accomplishment of his 300th peal; and although necessarily a very large number of our brethren have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with that gentleman, yet I feel assured, they will be no less hearty in their congratulations and good wishes towards him on his accomplishment of this unequalled feat. Allow me, Mr. Editor, to add my humble word of praise to Mr. Wood, and at the same time express the hope that his work in connection with change-ringing will prove an incentive to younger men.

* * * * *

While, however, Mr. Matt. Wood, of London, was gaining his laurels, his namesake, the well-known and respected Mr. Samuel Wood, of Ashton-under-Lyne, I am truly grieved to read, has sustained a great bereavement in the loss of his good wife. Your kindly words of condolence will find an echo in all hearts, and there can be no doubt that his many ringing friends will sympathize with him in his bereavement. I often think that we ringers—selfish that we are, like the rest of suffering humanity—do not appreciate fully the part taken by our good wives in the matter of ringing. While in the belfry, rope in hand, weaving our way through the intricacies of Stedman, Treble Bob, Grandsire, etc., or in the meeting house afterwards, enjoying good fellowship, we are too prone to forget that there is one at home—the children having been put to bed—who is waiting patiently, ever and anon looking at the clock, watching for the arrival of the "master of the house," and when we arrive home, and are greeted with a loving smile and the query "have you had a good ring?" we feel that the evening's enjoyment is complete. I maintain none but those who are thus blessed, know the value of a good ringer's wife, and none but those who have themselves experienced it, can fully comprehend the loss of such a helpmate. We may, nevertheless, by the expression of our heartfelt sympathy, mitigate in some small degree the extent of his great loss.

* * * * *

On the top corner of page 455 is a piece of information which deserves special notice. Two young probationers at Rothwell, Yorks, have succeeded in qualifying themselves for membership in the Yorkshire Association by ringing a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor. There might be nothing very special about this, but for the statement which follows, to the effect that some months ago the Rev. F. Fawkes, Vicar, offered to give £1 each to the two students of his Sunday Bible Class who first mastered the art of change-ringing. On reading this, I felt inclined to shout "bravo, Mr. Fawkes!" This is prize-ringing with a vengeance; prize-ringing, too, which needs no arguments in its favour. When I had the pleasure some time ago to visit Rothwell, to be present at a meeting of the Yorkshire Association there, I was much struck with the very hearty words of the reverend Vicar at the assembly. He seems to be formed of the "true grit," and when he made the regretful observation that his education in the matter of ringing had been neglected, I respected him for it, but little thought that he had so endeavoured to make up for his own deficiency in this respect by offering such an inducement to the young men of his parish to take up their studies and perfect themselves in the art. The ringers of Rothwell ought to be—and I have no doubt they are—proud of their Vicar, and it is to be hoped that this example of his will be extensively followed in other parts of the country.

* * * * *

The correspondence of Saturday last is calculated to give rise to thoughts many and varied. Mr. Hulks contends that all handbell peals should be properly umpired. So think I too; but I could go further than him, I would have every peal rung, whether on handbells or the tower bells, properly umpired before being sent for insertion. I have—very reluctantly, it is true—come to the conclusion that many peals have been recorded as having been rung, which in fact have not been actually completed and "brought round." This may be thought a serious charge against the Exercise, but I need only point to the columns of "THE BELL NEWS" week after week for evidence in support of this charge, grave though it be. I can well understand the anxiety of a company who meet for a peal to accomplish their desire; and if a "shift" occurs, or the bells do not come round in proper fashion, the temptation may be great for them to agree and say "Let us call it true, no one is about to contradict it;" but my brethren, is this right? Is this honest? Better far bear the disappointment with good grace and clear conscience, than announce a performance which has never actually existed, and by so doing perpetuate a fraud. I believe that if our county Associations and Guilds were to adopt some system of umpiring peals such as Mr. Hulks suggests, there might perhaps be less peals and "lengths" recorded, but at any rate we should then have confidence in accepting the same as having been faithfully and truly "brought round" as stated.

* * * * *

The question of prize-ringing, I am glad to say, is now occupying the attention of your correspondents. This is a question which to my mind ought to be thoroughly "thrashed out" in your columns; and without expressing any opinion of my own on the point, I do hope that the advocates pro and con will endeavour to state their case fairly and with good feeling, as I believe the outcome of the controversy will be beneficial to the Exercise.

* * * * *

There is just one more point I would mention this week, and that is the letter headed "A Ringer's Adventure;" which arouses in me feelings I can scarcely express. What in the name of goodness do ringers think the pages of "THE BELL NEWS" are intended for? Do they think them of no better use than as the receptacle of all the petty squabbles and personalities between one company and another? Why should your readers—who may be numbered by thousands—have inflicted upon them the pettifogging story narrated by Mr. Holman? Let neighbouring companies settle their private affairs among themselves, and not take up the circumscribed room of your valuable paper, thereby bringing upon them also the odiums of their brethren, and the censure of all true friends of the Exercise. But more of this anon.

FIGHTING THE SIKHS AT MIDNIGHT.—At midnight, the Sikhs found that Sir Harry Smith had been forced to retire from the village, and that their batteries were not occupied, brought some guns to bear, and again opened a destructive fire in the dark. On this, the Governor-General mounted his horse, and called to the 80th, or Staffordshire Regiment, which was at the head of the column, "My lads, we shall have no sleep until we take those guns." The battalion immediately deployed, advanced, and supported by the 1st Bengal Europeans (now H.M. 101st Fusiliers) drove a large body of Sikhs from three guns, which they spiked. Falling back steadily, as if on parade, the gallant 80th took up its old position at the head of the column, their steady appearance so winning the admiration of the Commander-in-chief, that he exclaimed as the soldiers passed him, "Plucky dogs!—plucky dogs!—we cannot fail to win with such men as these." The remainder of the night passed with occasional cannonades from the Sikhs, whenever the moonlight showed our position, which was one of danger; however, Sir Hugh Gough and Sir Henry Hardinge resolved to keep the ground they had won, and await the coming dawn to attack the batteries of the enemy if they still manned them, or to take them in reverse, and conquer or die. If ever troops were inspired with perfect confidence in their leaders, it was ours at Perozesah, under the gallant Sir Hugh, so kind in heart, and so heroically brave, and the veteran Hardinge. Well did they know that the struggle would be a hard one, but they cheered all around them with the certainty of victory.—From "British Battles on Land and Sea" for December.

"CORRECT" ADDRESS WANTED.—Will the correspondent "Attentive Listener," who wrote about a peal rang at Bromsgrove, send his "correct" address. We have a letter for him, which has been sent to the address he gave, but which has been returned.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

The next District Meeting will be held at Colchester, on Saturday, January 7th, 1888. The ring of eight at St. Peter's church is in good order, but change-ringing has as yet made made little progress in the town. It is hoped, therefore, that there may be a good attendance, so that the meeting may be successful. Further notice of time and place will be given.

The subscriptions of some members of the Association for the year 1886-7 (ending at Whitsuntide last), are still in arrear; and I hereby give notice that unless these arrears are paid by December 31st inst., it will be assumed that the members in question do not wish their names to remain any longer upon our books. I may also remind members of the Association that the subscription for the current year, 1887-8, was due last Whit-Monday, and should be paid as soon as possible by those who have not already forwarded it. T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.
Writtle, Chelmsford.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING was held at Streatham Common on Saturday, December 10th, by the kind permission of the Vicar. At 6 p.m., a Committee Meeting was held at the Beehive Coffee Tavern, to which all the members present were invited. One of the sketches for the certificates of membership was selected, and a few minor alterations decided upon. This finished the business of the meeting, which then adjourned to the tower, where change-ringing in several methods was practised.

UNVEILING OF A TABLET AT SALISBURY.

On Saturday, December 10th, a tablet, recording the first peal ever rung in Salisbury, was unveiled at St. Martin's church by Mr. T. Blackburn. This tablet was executed by Mr. J. R. Jerram, and is a black board with gold letters. There is a representation of a bell at the top with an ornamental scroll, then follows the peal as recorded in "THE BELL NEWS" of September 10th last, and below are the names of "John Wordsworth, D.D., Bishop of Sarum, Frederick Griffin, Mayor, C. N. Wyld, Rector, A. Tucker and W. T. Webb, Churchwardens," these being the officers in this the Jubilee year.

THE GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A band composed of members of this Association will again make an attempt to ring the long peal of Stedman Caters (12,345 changes), at the Parish Church, Cheltenham, on Boxing Day, December 26th, 1887. The peal is the composition of Mr. Henry Johnson.

GEORGE F. ATTREE.

It will be remembered that the Marquis of Ailesbury has been warned off Newmarket Heath for acts which were adjudged by the Jockey Club to be irregular; and his lordship has therefore been presented by his tenantry of the Savernake estate, to the number of 112, with an address expressing their grief and sorrow at the position in which circumstances had placed him, and an acknowledgment of his open-heartedness and genial kindness towards them. In reply Lord Ailesbury said it would not become him to discuss the circumstances, to which his tenantry alluded, but although his position as their landlord had been of short duration he had ever been treated by them with the greatest loyalty and kindness, and it was no small consolation to him to have in their address so spontaneous an expression of their sympathy, goodwill, and regard.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

ANSWER TO MR. LONGDEN.

SIR,—I thank you for taking the trouble to inform me that the peal published by me in "THE BELL NEWS" of December 3rd is false, and I see the one published on December 10th is false also in the same place, and I have to tender my apology to the Editor for sending them.

T. HOLDCROFT.

THE PEAL OF BOB TRIPLES AT BROMSGROVE.

SIR,—Will you allow me to answer "Attentive Listener's" remarks about the peal of Bob Triples we rang. If he will put his name to his letter, so that we shall know whether he is a change-ringer or not, as there are a great many attentive listeners in Bromsgrove who are not change-ringers, and who have congratulated us on our ringing. But there is one in Bromsgrove that professes to know, and he has been trying all he can for the last eighteen months to do us all the injury he can. But the ringers round the neighbourhood know who that man is. He did not know that we rang very near the first part of the peal, and a mistake occurred, and we stopped and commenced again, not till one of our members told him last week, and then he said he did not hear that, so how could he know we only rang 4998 changes, but for the information of the Exercise at large we have answered "Attentive Listener's" letter. He wrote several letters to our local paper about us till he had such a dressing not only from us but from the companies of ringers in the locality, so I suppose he is going to try "THE BELL NEWS" for the same purpose.
E. CRUMP.

SIR,—I beg to say that the peal of Bob Triples rung at Bromsgrove was rung correctly in 2 hrs. 59 mins., the whole of the 5040 changes being rung and the striking was good. Sir, the "Attentive Listener" says we rang 4998 changes, which was rounds and clashes. Now Sir, the "Attentive Listener" must be very clever to pick 4998 changes out of rounds and clashes. I did not know, Sir, that we had such a clever man in Bromsgrove that could tell us that we rung 4998 changes out of rounds and clashes. This is the cleverest man I ever heard of. I do not think there is such a clever man in England as Mr. Listener. I shall not correspond with you any more on this subject.
GEORGE HAYWARD.

PRIZE-RINGING.

SIR,—Mr. James S. Wilde, as the representative of the United Counties' Association, makes the assertion that prize-ringing contests alone produce constant good ringing, and sticks to what he has said in true bell-ringers' fashion, or in other words, he implies that there is no good striking excepting in Districts where meetings are held and money prizes competed for in consecrated buildings. This is a theory that Mr. Wilde or any other authority will find it exceedingly difficult to convince the Exercise of, otherwise good ringing would be yet unknown except in the United Counties' Association, and in some one or two other benighted parts where prize-ringing is still carried on. Will anyone who has been fortunate to hear a touch of Stedman Cinques by a good London band either on the Cathedral bells, at St. Martin's, or elsewhere, believe in the necessity of prize-ringing to produce good striking? I think, Sir, it is an admitted fact, that a peal is less likely to come to grief when the striking is good, than if bad time is kept, and this is why I quoted the small number of peals rung by the United Counties' as compared with other Associations. Because if the only way to secure constant good ringing is by holding prize-ringing meetings, and as the United Counties' Association encourage this mode of desecration in place of general belfry reform, therefore it follows that with their superior striking their success in peal-ringing ought to exceed those of all other Associations. With regard to the other matter referred to in Mr. Wilde's letters, they are so far from the point, that I will pass them without comment. But I must ask him to be a little more careful in keeping to facts and not to put words into my mouth which were never uttered. Instead of my proposing, as Mr. Wilde puts it, that a silver cup should be given by the Sussex County Association to the company that rung the most peals in the twelve months (which would indeed be a prize-ringing contest), my suggestion was that a model bell should be obtained, to remain the absolute property of the Association, but to be held for the year by the branch who succeeded in ringing the greatest number of peals each year, and that the name of each branch holding it should be recorded on the bell. My object therefore was not to promote personal gain of filthy lucre, as Mr. Wilde suggests, but to encourage the desire to excel in that which we have taken in hand. In conclusion, Sir, my sole reason for writing upon this subject was that Mr. Wilde's statement (which to my mind is a degradation to the Art), should not remain unchallenged.

GEO. F. ATTREE.

SIR,—Our friend Mr. London [says he was surprised when he got his paper last Saturday to see Mr. Hattersley figuring as a prize contester. I think Mr. Hattersley's idea of good ringing far supercedes Mr. London's. As for prize-ringing, I think I have seen as many contests as the majority of ringers, and I also think I have assisted in winning more prizes than any other man living. I think Mr. London is something like the farmer's son who knew a great deal more than his father when he was eighteen years old, but at thirty he only knew about as much, but at forty he went to his father for advice. I am really astonished at Mr. London writing about the subject at all, because he is little more than a beardless youth. He may have rung a few long peals on a big bell, and so considers himself equal to anybody. I myself belong to the Yorkshire Association, and have been at a good many quarterly meetings, but I have never heard any good ringing. Ever since the quarterly meetings begun, the quality of ringing has gradually got worse. If you mean to have any good ringing, you must get up contests. I think it would be far better if Mr. Attree and some of his belfry reform friends would try and ring a few short touches, and ring them well, instead of grinding and tumbling through Holt's Original ten-part peal, which has been worn thread-bare ever since I can recollect.
JOHN CORDINGLEY.

Calverley, near Leeds.

UMPIRES.

SIR,—Everybody will agree with the contention of Mr. Hulks that in the performance he alludes to umpires should be had. But it is to be hoped that we shall not have such an office abused by people clamouring for it for payment. This may be absurd though it isn't, altogether. I should to ask the Committee or those in power in the Kent County Association, how much fee the umpires had awarded to them for coming from London to Aylesford to sit in the tower and see that no one "gave the office" during the late attempt for a silent peal. I should also like to know why people should be sent for from London for this purpose. And another query: Who proposed or instigated the attempting of this peal? We see people advertising for instructorships, and this, that, and the other. If the post of umpire is made a good paying job, there will be contests for this as well as other prizes. There is too much looking out for the loaves and fishes even now, Sir; scruff-jobs and such like. I shall have a question about these later on.

THORNBURY, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

On Monday evening, December 12th, a meeting was held in the ringing chamber of the parish church, for the purpose of unveiling a peal tablet, the gift of the Vicar's wife, Mrs. Hodson, recording the first peal ever rung on the bells by any local men. Amongst those present were Mr. E. T. and Lady Rachael Howard, Rev. H. B. and Mrs. Hodson, Rev. F. L. Haines, Mrs. Fox (Oldbury), O. E. Thurston, Esq., J. C. Gwynn, Esq., Miss Morgan, Mr. J. T. and Mrs. Chambers, Mr. J. T. and Mrs. Taylor, Mr. T. J. and Mrs. Fill, Mr. Eddington, and others interested in ringing, which lately has been taken up with a good deal of zeal, in fact nowhere has the advance of education been more apparent than amongst the ringers, belfry reform having rightly taken place in the parish church. Prayers having been offered by the vicar, he said they had come together on the invitation of their captain, for an occasion of considerable interest, to unveil the peal tablet recording the first peal on the bells by any of the Thornbury ringers. The work of the ringers was essentially a Church work, the bells were considered church furniture to be used for the services of the church, and the ringing of them was a matter of considerable importance, and as all work worth doing at all was worth doing well, they naturally felt a great interest in the work of the ringers. Mrs. Hodson was then called upon by the captain, Mr. F. K. Howell, to unveil the tablet, which was done with an appropriate speech. It bears the following inscription:—

"Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association of Change-ringers (jubilee peal). This tablet was presented by Mrs. Hodson, to record Holt's ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples, consisting of 5040 changes, which was rung on Sunday, April 24th, in 3 hrs. and 16 mins. W. Davis, treble; W. Sevier, 2; G. Daltry, 3; G. Iles, 4; J. Hinton, 5; H. Mitchell, 6; F. Howell, 7; J. Phillips, tenor. Conducted by W. Sevier. H. B. Hodson, vicar. J. Y. Sturge, J. H. Thurston, T. D. Till, churchwardens. First peal by any local men."

The following ringers then took the ropes and rang a course of Grandsire Triples. W. Davis, 1; C. Eddington, 2; G. Iles, 3; F. Symes, 4; C. E. D. Boutflower, Esq., 5; T. Alsop, 6; F. K. Howell, 7; J. Phillips, 8. The Captain, on behalf of his brother ringers, then said: "We heartily thank you for the honor you have done us by your presence here this evening. Although it is the first time we have witnessed such a meeting, we hope it will not be the last by many. We tender our best and hearty thanks to Mrs. Hodson for this beautiful tablet, and we hope she may long be spared to hear the church bells rung. We also thank our worthy Vicar for his kindness in allowing us the use of the bells at all reasonable times. We also thank our late Vicar, Rev. T. Waters, and churchwardens for the improvements made in the ringing chamber for the comfort of the ringers. We also thank the parishioners for their kindness in responding to the appeal for subscriptions for our change-ringing instructor. We also thank those members who took part in the peal, Messrs. Hinton, Daltry, Sevier, and Mitchell, they being unable to attend to-night. We also thank Mr. Boutflower for coming from Bristol to assist us this evening. I also thank my brother ringers for the attention they have given to change-ringing, hoping that the time is not far distant when those whose names are not on the peal tablet, will have an opportunity of attempting a peal, hoping when that is accomplished we shall not feel that we have arrived at the top of the tree, but that we are only just at the lower branches, and that we shall endeavour to see the four standard methods rung in the tower, and try and imitate some of our brother-strings' ability as we see recorded in 'THE BELL NEWS.' We should feel very proud to have such a company present here this evening, and we heartily thank you for your presence here, wishing you all a happy Christmas, and bright New Year, and may we all be spared to hear our grand old bells announce the birth of our blessed Saviour."

E. T. HOWARD, Esq., expressed the great pleasure it gave him to be present that evening. They ought not to forget the good work commenced by their late vicar, Mr. Waters, who took such an interest in the bells, and through whose efforts the bell-chamber has been improved. Mr. Hodson was continuing this good work, and he could assure them that the bells were no nuisance to him or his family, but a pleasure; his earliest recollections were bound up with these bells, and he was glad the inhabitants were taking such an interest in the matter.

They all rejoiced at the improvement that had taken place, and thanked Mrs. Hodson for the tablet presented by her.

O. E. THURSTON, Esq., regretted the absence of the churchwardens at their meeting, but he supposed they were getting old and afraid of ascending the tower. He could recollect the Thornbury ringers a great many years back, and he was delighted to see such an improvement in the tone of the present ringers to what he could recollect, and he was exceedingly pleased to hear the bells.

During the evening various touches were rung, including a 336 and 168 of Grandsire Triples, a 6-score of Bob Doubles, and a course of Grandsire Minor.

FROME, SOMERSET.

On Saturday, December 17th, the bells of St. John's church, one of the most beautiful parish churches in England, were re-opened after having been rehung by Mr. T. Blackburn, of Salisbury. It was intended to start for a peal of Grandsire Triples, but Mr. J. W. Washbrook, who was to have met the ringers from Salisbury, was unfortunately delayed on his way to Frome, not arriving until the afternoon, when it was too late to attempt it. During the morning a 1008 Grandsire Triples was rung. W. Alley, 1; C. A. Clements, 2; W. E. Tydeman, 3; H. D. Adams, 4; W. McCaffrey, 5; T. Blackburn (conductor), 6; W. W. Gifford, 7; C. Gaisford and Jno. Rebbeck, 8. And a 504 by the same band, conducted by W. Alley. In the afternoon a 1260. W. E. Tydeman, 1; C. A. Clements, 2; W. McCaffrey, 3; H. D. Adams, 4; T. Blackburn, 5; J. W. Washbrook (conductor), 6; W. W. Gifford, 7; C. Gaisford and J. Rebbeck, 8. Time 46 mins. Tenor 30 cwt. The Rector, the Hon. and Rev. A. Hanbury Tracy, and the churchwardens, Messrs. G. W. Willshire and C. Bailly, afterwards entertained the ringers to dinner in a most hospitable manner.

ASHBY-DE-LA-ZOUCH, LEICESTERSHIRE.

On Monday December 19th, at the parish church of St. Helen, an attempt was made to ring Holt's ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples, but owing to a mishap in the first part of second half, it came to grief. Time 1 hr. 47 mins. Tenor 18 cwt. in E flat. W. Liggins, 1; H. Canner, 2; T. Jacques, 3; J. Hopkins, 4; J. Dunmore, 5; J. Jagger (conductor), 6; W. Canner, 7; J. Curtis, 8. After falling the bells in peal, the ringers were entertained at supper at the residence of Mr. Thomas Jacques, who were joined by Messrs. H. G. W. Howe and R. Davenport. After doing justice to the roast beef and plum pudding and an abundance of mince pies, etc.,

The Chairman, Mr. HOWE, proposed "Success to the Ashby Society," and wished them better luck next time. Other toasts followed, including "The Midland Counties' Association," "The Chairman," and "Host and Hostess," the remainder of the evening being spent in songs, etc., interspersed with some rare anecdotes by brother Curtis.

THE GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A band composed of members of this Association will again make an attempt to ring the long peal of Stedman Caters (12,345 changes), at the Parish Church, Cheltenham, on Boxing Day, December 26th, 1887. The peal is the composition of Mr. Henry Johnson.

RINGING BY ELECTRICITY.

How wonderfully ignorant appear to be the general readers of Modern Society, when such a suggestion as appeared in that paper recently, is made by one of their correspondents without contradiction, viz.

His Holiness the Pope is certainly in luck's way. Presents continue to flow in upon him, whether in celebration of his jubilee, or as memorials of his birthday. The latest of these gifts is from a French engineer, who has designed and completed an apparatus for ringing church bells by electricity. Now that every modern house is fitted with electric bells, it is certainly right that the House of Prayer should not be forgotten or given over to the tender mercies of some old sexton whose rheumatic limbs feebly set the church's clapper twanging on Sunday mornings. For it is not to be supposed that the Pope will have a monopoly of this invention, which will doubtless speedily find its way over here, and revolutionise the present old-world mode of summoning the congregation to worship. The vicar will but have to press a button while he is buttoning on his dog-collar, and the intinnabulations of the "church going" will be heard far and wide.

It will doubtless be a long time before such an invention will find favour in the Ringing Isle. "Ringing" must entirely die out, which does not seem probable judging by the contents of this paper, or our church bells will have to be hung on a "dead stock" similar to those on the continent. The electric invention of Mr. Lane, of Beaconsfield, could, we believe, have been well adapted for such a purpose, and that was patented long before we heard of the Frenchman's design. W. H. F.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX BELL RINGERS.

On Saturday, December 17th, the quarterly meeting of the above Association was held at St. Mark's, Preston. Shortly after 3 o'clock a mixed band ascended the tower, and rang a 720 of Bob Minor, after which they handed the ropes over to the Leyland Company, who rang a 720 of London Single Bob. The members then adjourned to the School-room where the usual meeting was held, Mr. William Bowling in the chair, and Mr. George Higson, vice-chair. After the business was gone through it was decided to hold the next meeting at Chorley. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Vicar and Churchwardens for the use of the bells and school-room. The bells were again set in motion, and a 720 of Bob Minor, and other touches brought the afternoon's ringing to a close.

THE GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

The anniversary meeting of the above Association will be held at Almondsbury (eight bells), near Bristol, on Monday, January 9th, 1888. The nearest station is Patchway, two miles. Divine Service at the parish church of St. Mary, at 11 a.m. Short address by the Vicar, Rev. Canon Cooper. Dinner at the Swan at 1 o'clock, at two shillings and sixpence per head; one shilling and sixpence allowed by the Association to all members who inform the Hon. Secretary of their intention of being present by the 4th inst.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The Third Quarterly Meeting of the year will be held at Ashby-de-la-Zouch, on Saturday, January 7th, 1888, and the bells of the parish church (eight) will be open for ringing from 2 p.m. Committee Meeting in the Vestry at 4.30 p.m. Tea at the Queen's Hotel at 5 p.m., tickets 1s. 6d. each. General Meeting immediately after tea, to which all ringers and friends are invited. It is particularly requested that those members who intend being present at the tea will send their names to the local Hon. Sec., Mr. John Jaggar, 145, Shobnall Street, Burton-on-Trent, on or before Wednesday, January 4th, 1888.

CHRISTMAS SIGNS.

The creaking wain, with wheels which tell
Of ruts cut through the red marl soil,
Laden with boughs from knoll and dell,
Red-berried holly—Forest spoil,
And mystic plant whose luring spell
Tangles young hearts in love's soft coil,
Moves slowly up long Westgate slanting way—
A welcome sign of coming Christmas Day.

O'er city din, in street and lane,
O'er suburbs wide—the city round,
O'er Severn's flood and village green,
O'er hill and dale without a bound,
To young and old, and grand and mean,
The bells ring out with glad some sound,
To busy town and quiet countryside,
Right cheerful signs of merry Christmastide.

Displayed before our eyes awhile,
In varied form of tempting show,
Choice fruits of our own fruitful isle,
And with red tints and golden glow,
In dainty box, and fancy pile,
Fruits such as might in Eden grow;
Sweet spoils of many a summer clime,
All welcome signs of Festive Christmas time.

The larger heart, the broader thought,
Hope's brighter smiles, Love's warmer words,
The mind with plans of kindness fraught:
The strengthening of old friendship's cords,
Good deeds attempted, good deeds wrought,
The joys which love for love affords.
Welcome, ye best of signs; come and abide,
Signs of a good and happy Christmastide.

Church News.

The consecration of Archdeacon Matthew as Bishop of Lahore will take place on the Feast of the Epiphany at Westminster Abbey.

Intelligence has been received at Thirsk of the safe arrival at Adelaide of the vessel in which the Bishop of Bathurst (Dr. Camidge) sailed.

On Sunday morning, Professor Lumby, Norrisian Professor of Divinity, Cambridge, was installed at York as Prebendary of Wetwang, in succession to Dr. Camidge.

The son of the Rev. H. M. Fearn, vicar of Arkesden, Essex, who unaccountably disappeared last week, has been found. The lad, who was only nine years old, ran away to London, and for some days nothing was heard of him. He was, however, discovered by the police wandering about the docks, and was taken to Poplar Workhouse, when a telegram was sent to his friends, and he was removed home. It is stated that he had expressed a wish to become a sailor.

On the 7th inst, at the annual meeting of the London Gregorian Choral Association, the chair was taken by the Duke of Newcastle, who has been elected president, in succession to Lord Beauchamp. In the course of address he said the idea had struck him whether it might not be possible later on to form a branch in America. He happened to be going there next month, and he could then bring the association to the notice of some who would be likely to take an interest in its object, and ask them to join it; and when their American friends had grown strong enough in numbers they might form a branch of their own.

In response to an influentially signed requisition, Canon Gray, vicar of Blythe, and senior Rural Dean in the archdeaconry of Nottingham, has consented to be nominated to the Proctorship of Southwell, vacant by the advancement of Canon Hole to the deanery of Rochester. Canon Gray was formerly Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, Canon of Ely, and examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Winchester. He has been working in the diocese for over twenty years, and enjoys the respect of all classes of society. The Record says a requisition is being signed asking Canon Vincent Jackson, vicar of St. Peter's, Nottingham, to allow himself to be nominated. Canon Jackson opposed Canon Hole at the last election, and obtained the support of a large number of the clergy on Evangelical grounds.

The Bishop of Colchester presided last week at a meeting at the town hall, Brentwood, in aid of the Bishop of St. Albans Fund. He said that the population of the district was estimated at 300,000, and it was rapidly increasing. The fund had been instrumental in building many churches, and maintained seventy clergymen and layworkers. Without this fund he did not think the work of Church extension could be extensively carried on in the diocese. Canon Proctor, the hon. secretary, said although the income for the year amounted to nearly £10,000, they had not been able to renew the grants to the living agents for more than six months. Mr. David Howard and the Rev. F. G. Nash, of the Tilbury Docks Mission, also addressed the meeting.

A correspondent of the Manchester Guardian states that the Rev. Bartholomew Edwards, rector of Ashill, Norfolk, still takes his share of the Sunday services, and preaches alternately with his curate. Mr. Edwards, who has now entered his ninety-ninth year, graduated at St. John's, Cambridge in 1811, as Seventh Senior Optime, and was ordained in the year following. The Rev. E. Oldfield, curate of Wilmslow, writes:—"The church, which, like many others in that part of the country, is built of Norfolk flint, has been well restored by Mr. Edwards at his own cost. He also maintains the schools without aid from any one, although there are many in the locality who would gladly give their share. But the worthy rector is more like a father to the parish than anything else, and the general opinion of the parishioners may be expressed in the words, "Mr. Edwards must have his own way as long as he lives."

Last week the Bishop of Ripon, who preached at the opening of an organ presented by the family of Mr. J. T. Leather, to Swillington Church, said that at the beginning of this year it was hoped that the task of raising the Wakefield Bishopric Fund was done; but it was found that £10,000 which had been expected from a society in London was not forthcoming, and after waiting a while in the hope that the society would take some action, the promoters of the scheme were obliged to go forward themselves. Under the circumstances they felt themselves justified in once more throwing themselves upon the kindness of the people, and asking them once more to put their shoulders to the wheel. The story of the last five or six months had been a story of the response to their appeal. One friend when he knew that £9,000 was wanted, generously said that if the promoters could get the rest by the end of the year, he would give £1,000. Another promised £100 if £900 was contributed in sums of £100, or £50. There was just a fortnight before the end of the year. They wanted to secure—and he thought they would—these conditional promises. All he could say was that they were very near the goal. It was difficult to say within £100 or £200, how much had been raised, because there were offer-tories which had yet to come in; but it could be said that a few hundred pounds would just make the difference between absolute certainty and a feeling of doubt.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1887.

ONCE more we have the pleasure of wishing our many kind friends a merry and happy Christmas, trusting that it may indeed be a time of hearty good will and affectionate regard one toward another, friendship being more closely cemented, and where differences exist, may they be surveyed in the light of our own necessity of forbearance to those against whom we may have offended. It will be the duty of most who read these lines to take their part in welcoming this glad Yuletide in that exercise to which they devote so much patience and energy, and as the joyous voices of the bells go forth, let them remember what a momentous anniversary they are celebrating, and the many important lessons it teaches. First, glory to Him "from whom all blessings flow;" appreciating the privilege of joining in the acclamations of the heavenly and terrestrial host; "Gloria in excelsis" being specially rendered to Him on this occasion for that it was ordained in the Divine Counsels that "Emmanuel" should establish a sure and certain method for the salvation of "all who put their trust in Him." Such contemplations naturally lead to the second part of the angelic anthem "On earth peace," and it should stir the hearts of all as to what is their duty in establishing and maintaining this most desirable beatitude. What good will it be that "the organ rings, and the sweet choir sings," and the bells tell out their joyful clamour, if something is not done to warrant the grand harmony and provoke the jubilant sounds? The practical issue should be the reuniting of friendships broken, the forgiveness of injuries sustained, and the putting aside of those emotions tending towards strife and animosity. We all have heart burnings and bitter feelings of resentment at many wrongs, real or supposed, which we have received from those who professed true attachment to us, and as the Christmas greeting falls on our ears it should stimulate us to our duty in doing what we can to make "In terra pax" universal. The business and social aspects at present are anything but cheering, trade in most departments being very much depressed, consequently money stagnates, and bread winning becomes an arduous task. In such circumstances it behoves those who can afford the luxuries of life, to consider their poorer fellow creatures. A little self denial will ensure many comforts to those who sorely need the necessities of existence, and the restraint will bring its reward, the liberality of the donors winning the thanks of the needy recipients. There are a thousand ways of gladdening the hearts of the distressed, discrimination being used according to the circumstances of those whom we would befriend. How cheering are a few gentle words and kindly wishes sent through the medium of a Christmas card, and how acceptable comes a present from any one who sympathises with a friend or acquaintance on whom adversity's sad mantle rests. Only to-day we heard of a city gentleman, who sent to an old friend: "I know your pecuniary circumstances are not so flourishing as hitherto, so I trust you will not be offended at the little present I have sent to somewhat appease your wants this Christmas." Noble the impulse, and graceful the way of offering the gift. The delightful imagery of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" will be vividly recalled at this festive season, and should any of our readers not be acquainted with that beautiful composition we recommend them to let no further delay transpire ere they secure it. The perusal of that charming narrative cannot fail to stimulate brotherly love and generous sympathy, whilst the characters depicted are such as cross our every day path. We earnestly trust that the moral taught by the great novelist will be exemplified this year, for who does not delight to hear of avarice overcome and oppression discarded, and the wrongs of a lifetime repented of and restitution made as far as practicable? In many homes will be found "the vacant chair," and memory will fondly dwell on the lives and loves of those endeared to us by kinship and sacred ties of natural affection; and we will remember them when in the midst of our convivial friendly gatherings. we are called upon to pledge the toast "May old friends never be forgotten for new ones." The ringing fraternity are now a very large family, and to them all we wish health, plenty, and prosperity, trusting that all will endeavour in every way to elevate the art of change-ringing. There have of late been a few differences of opinion on certain subjects, and the discussion has sometimes been a trifle acrimonious, we sincerely hope, however, that no enmities have been formed, and that future controversies may be based upon the good old adage, "May difference of opinion never alter friendship."

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

PRIZE RINGING.

SIR,—In answer to my letter, Mr. Cordingley says he has seen as many contests as the majority of ringers, which I do not dispute at all, but I hope he does not think it right to hold contests, just because he has witnessed a great number of them; then again he says he has assisted in winning more prizes than any other man living, which I have no doubt will make him look very big in the eyes of prize-ringers, but I should like to know how many decisions he has been satisfied with out of the number of contests he has competed in, and not taken a prize. Again, he says he is astonished at me writing on the subject at all, "because I am only a beardless youth." According to his ideas, we young ones should not learn to write or ring, so that such as himself will have the honour of holding a situation which no one else can fill after he is gone. Of course he is to be excused, as I think he is one of those who cannot bear to see any one get on only himself and his company, and if he sees any one up the ladder on the same step as himself, and he cannot get another step higher, then the only way to be above them is to push the others down as much as he can. And as for asking father for advice at forty, I think it is high time Mr. Cordingley went to his father for a lesson or two (or three) in letter writing. He writes (or rather pretends to do) about twenty lines on prize-ringing, but ten out of the twenty is on me and not on the above subject at all. And as for considering myself equal to anybody, I do say that if I cannot ring Prince Albert, etc., the methods I do know I can ring as well as Mr. Cordingley or any of his Calverley company, and that is saying a great deal, taking into consideration the small number of years that I have been a change-ringer. Of course he will say this is a little self praise, and so it is, but I do not feel inclined to be pushed down by a man like him, especially when he sets the ball himself. He also refers to me ringing a few peals on a big bell; I should like to ask him how the ringers of the little bells would score as many peals as they do if the young ringers did not come forward and take hold of the heavy end; perhaps this accounts for the small number of Association peals (one) which I see at the end of his name in the last report. Perhaps if he helped the young ones instead of pushing them down all he can, we should see this small number increase. He says he has been to a great many meetings of the Association, but has never heard any good ringing, but I think the majority of the meetings he has attended were at the commencement of the Association, as I find on referring to my report that he is a younger member than myself, although he may have been a member before, which I think he has. He takes the ringing at the meetings as samples of what the Association can do, but I think it is unfair of him to do so, as members do not go for the sake of ringing only, but to see what progress the Association is making, and to see how matters stand. If he wants to hear any good ringing he should go and listen to peals that are constantly being rung by the Association in different parts of the county, and not stick at home till there is a contest, then go out and say he never heard any good striking except at contests. He can give as good a prize as he likes, he will not get good striking unless the company is a picked lot, and I am pleased to say the Yorkshire Association can get plenty of good ringers together without offering a prize at all. It is to be hoped the next time he writes a letter under the head of prize-ringing, that he will write on that subject only, then I shall be able to go further into the subject with him if he wishes.

FRED LONDON.

Moor Head, Shipley.

SIR,—I have read with great interest the recent remarks of your correspondents regarding prize-ringing, and I should like to ask Mr. Hattersley and his party one or two questions, the answers to which will I think be of assistance in arriving at a decision in the matter, as far as regards the practical side, that is the attainment of good striking, and the advancement of the Art. 1. Is it not a fact that since prize-ringing has gone out of fashion, and the leaders of the Art have rung for the love of it, it has spread, advanced in attainments and taken, along with its followers, a purer and more elevated social position? 2. Do such evil and bitter feelings exist between bands of ringers, and even between whole towns and districts, as existed under the old condition of matters, and do our friends wish to tempt or risk a return to such a state? 3. Do these gentlemen consider that it would have been possible with prize-ringing in force, for such bands of ringers, as, say our Burton and Ipswich bands, to have attained the high pitch of excellence which they at present practice. Would their time not have been consumed in winning and practising for prizes, instead? 4. Are these gentlemen sceptical as to there being any ringing in the country equal to that found in the prize-ringing centres. Looking at the localities where prize-ringing was most common, say Devonshire and Yorkshire, in the latter of which districts its ashes still seem to smoulder, let us try to trace any benefits that may have resulted from its practice, and let us weigh them against the benefits that have accrued in other parts where the low feeling of greed or gain which exists in every man's heart has not been applied to in order to induce superiority. Let us take Devonshire first. I think everyone will admit that there the plan has signally failed, or rather instead of inducing progress, it seems to have stifled it in its infancy, and prevented it making any headway. As a result, this corner of the country has until recently, been more backward in ringing than any other part. Then with regard to its stronghold in the north, the one thing—good striking—for which no one could be more anxious than I, and as to which no one more critical, this has certainly been secured at the cost of a most intolerable monotony. I have had some experience of ringing in various parts of the country, and it is most distressing to find in the neighbourhoods to which I allude, the almost invariable contentment with which bands ring day after day the everlasting Kent Treble Bob Major, till one is sick of the first few leads. Of late years, I think, a satiety of this one method has been felt in several parts, and owing to the lack of prizes to keep ringers in the long worn rut, there has been a strong inclination to break out into new methods. But if the prize for the half peal of Kent is established, I fear the numerous belfries which have shown an ambition to progress will return to their own level. Perhaps our friends will reply, Yes; but look what perfect striking you get. In answer to this, I deny that the practice of various and higher methods is detrimental to good striking. On the contrary, I contend that it is the wisest, most scientific, and most successful way to ensure this object, as difficult methods cannot be rung without clear and precise striking, whereas the easier methods, unless there is some special object, may be rung in a very slipshod manner, and a band of prize-ringers might perform very slovenly until shortly before a match, when they would exert their energies for a time so as to be prepared for the match. On the other hand, with a band continually advancing in new methods, good striking must continue with them, or they will do no good at any method at all. The very fact of a closer study and a wider knowledge of the Art, must produce a more experienced and proficient ringer, as compared to the man who sticks in a sort of rule of thumb way to one method. As an example of this, I may fairly quote the band at Ipswich, where I have heard Double Norwich Royal rung on an ordinary practice night with as much precision as any Major in Yorkshire. Now this band is I believe quite beyond the influence of prize-ringing, and where as a general rule a Yorkshire band that can win a prize, can ring little beyond the one method, this band can ring almost anything from a 5000 on a heavy peal of five, to Maximus, and strike it too. In my own locality I can point to a six bell band equal to any in the kingdom, where the perfection of striking is attained, purely from the love of the art, and although all working men, with one exception, I suspect they would be insulted if it were seriously proposed to them to ring for a prize. Would Mr. Hattersley make me believe that he rings more carelessly when ringing in an ordinary way to what he would do if he had a £5 note in view? I think we know him better, and any man who would avow such a statement, would I think be promptly sent to Coventry by all good ringers. No Sir, these gentlemen have the right thing at heart, but wish to go the wrong way about it. Unfortunately, while I think their means will not attain their object, they at the same time violate principles which I consider cannot be disregarded, being moral and religious, and which I think, even if the practical side of the case were made good, would be sufficient to condemn it. I leave however this side of the question to the able advocates it has. Although comparatively a young ringer, I trust Mr. Cordingley, for whom I have a great respect, will not have the same fault to find with me as he had with a recent writer, for I heartily sympathise with him in his object of improving the striking, and I have also often wondered like him at the records of Grandsire Triples rung week after week be the same bands, frequently to my surprise, including some of our noted ringers. This is especially the case in the Metropolis, and here one would expect much better things. I have frequently thrown my "BELL NEWS" aside in disgust, to see the list of peals headed by perhaps three or four of Grandsire Triples from the Metropolis, followed by an overwhelming majority of the same bald method in the country. Give me Kent Treble Bob before this. Could not peals be given a value, say, make a peal of Grandsire Triples equal, one, a peal of Superlative twelve, all to a properly drawn up scale. If such an arrangement of value of peals could be carried out, I think some of our ringers with their great number of peals, would after all, cut an indifferent figure. By-the-by, before I close this letter, for the length of which I must apologise, may I ask if the stars of the Exercise, say, Holt, Stedman, Jasper Snowdon, Shipway, Mr. Heywood, the inventor of the latest new method, are the products of prize-ringing or not. DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE.

SIR,—Having read the correspondence which has appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" for the past few weeks on prize-ringing, I shall esteem it a favour if you will grant me a small space in your valuable paper, to say a few words on the subject. Now, as a prize-ringer myself, and taken part in many contests throughout Yorkshire, and also won many prizes, I ought to know a little about how they are carried out. Now, Mr. Editor, if the rules laid down at a contest be properly carried out, which I have always found them to be, I can't see why any vicar, or churchwardens, or even the ringers, has anything to be ashamed of. Now, Sir, I am also a member of the Yorkshire Association, and have attended a great many meetings, but have always found the ringing three or four standards below that at any contest I have ever been to. It is all very well for a band of ringers to go into a tower and tumble through a peal of nobody knows but themselves whether it is Grandsire, or Treble Bob, or Choppy, or something worse. I wonder the grave stones don't rise in a body and strike against such like rubbish. And we are told by some of these so called ringers that prize-ringing is an evil. Now, Sir, you will see that I hold the same opinion as Messrs. Wilde, Hattersley, and Cordingley; that is, if you want good ringing you must get up contests. I should advise Mr. Attree to give up talking about prize-fights, and playing at skittles, and so forth, and start ringing a few short touches, and do them well, and when his band is qualified to take part in a contest by all means enter one, and get a prize, if this can be done Mr. Attree will for ever after hold his peace with regard to prize-ringing. Has Mr. London, I won't say anything, he got enough last week, it was rather too bad, John, striking him so hard as you did, he is only a youth you know, and a promising young man, all I can advise him is to keep out of the muddle, and leave it in the hands of experienced men to be well thrashed out. TENOR BELL.

SIR,—As to prize ringing contests, ringers in the eastern counties do very well without them, even for a set of gloves. There is one part of Mr. Hattersley's letter rather sweeping where he says "that we can in this part of the country (for it is here, viz., Yorkshire and Lancashire) that we can beat anything in Treble Bob Major ringing. Well Sir, I had the honour to be umpire last Saturday when four members of the Ipswich Society rang a three-part peal of 5088 changes of Treble Bob Major, when from the slowest to the fastest part only varied ten seconds. I have rung Treble Bob in Yorkshire and out of it with Yorkshire men. They make the bob just as we do in the eastern counties, which, was, once famous for Oxford Treble Bob. As for umpiring, no peal on handbells ought to be recorded without one, its very easy to change place when passing three. In the steeple with three or four able conductors there is not much fear of recording a false peal.

DANIEL PRENTICE.

SIR.—I have read with interest the correspondence on this subject which has appeared during the last few weeks, and hoped to gain some information on the question of prize-ringing. It was not my intention to have troubled you with any remarks of my own, but I feel I must enter my protest against the letter of Mr. Cordingley's which appeared in last Saturday's issue, containing as it does such an ungentlemanly attack upon a brother ringer. I imagine that Mr. Cordingley will be by this time sorry he wrote it; at any rate if he is not he ought to. I should be thoroughly well ashamed of myself had I in a hasty moment so far forgot myself as to have penned such a tirade of abusive language. But what does his letter amount to as regards the point at issue? Literally nothing. His boast about his successful prize-ringing experience does not affect the subject under discussion; he might have won fifty thousand prizes, that would not prove prize-ringing to be either right or wrong. Neither do his remarks about the ringing at the meetings of the Yorkshire Association. The idea of forming an analogy between prize-ringing and meetings of the Yorkshire Association is as ludicrous as it is absurd. The first named are got up with the specific object of ringing the best touch or half-peal, as the case may be; for which object the competitors too often forget the real work for which they engage themselves, and go about on Sundays practising on different peals. On the other hand, the Yorkshire Association meetings are not, and never were, intended as mere occasions of "exhibition ringing," their motive is to get ringers together for mutual intercourse, and by the recognised strength of unity raise the art from the slough of despond to which it had sunk prior to the establishment of these county associations. Mr. Cordingley's statement that the ringing at these meetings "has gradually got worse," is only calculated to create a smile and a wonder that a man will travel so far away from the truth in order to make an assertion in support of a cause which he is defending. "If you mean to have good ringing, you must get up contests," so he says. That assertion must have been made without due thought, for it carries its own condemnation. If change-ringers will not endeavour to perfect themselves in the science without the bribe of a money prize, then I say let them give it up; they are unworthy of their calling; and if that has been the inducement which has caused Mr. Cordingley to ring through life, then I am sorry for him and his ideas of the objects of change-ringing. Should he ever write again, I hope he will let us have fewer personalities and more argument.

FAIR PLAY.

SIR.—Mr. Attree cannot admit the truth of my assertion, viz., that contesting is the only means of producing constant good striking. He was evidently under a false impression when he wrote that I implied that there was no good ringing done outside a contest. What I did imply, and what I mean to maintain, is that to have ringing constantly good (not occasionally good) we must frequently hold contesting meetings. Some of your readers, most, I hope, can appreciate the difference between the kind of ringing known as fair, and the kind which by reason of the accurate regularity and general uniformity is distinguished by the appellation of "clockwork." There are good ringers, and many of them who know by reason of their long experience that it is only on isolated occasions that they hear anything approaching this kind of ringing, unless it be at a contest. Now I take it for granted that Mr. Attree and those who think like him, have never attended a contest. Well I will try to give them a faint outline of the proceedings. First of all the necessary leave is obtained from the Vicar of the church. Then the local company (who we may assume are the promoters), after working hard all day long, turn out every night (Sundays excepted) until sufficient money has been collected. In the poorer districts the collecting extends over a period of three or four months, notwithstanding the dogged perseverance of the collectors. The money having at length been obtained, circulars are issued, stating the contest will take place in about two months, and also setting forth the rules and regulations to be observed, together with the touch about to be rung. The prize may amount to £20, divided as follows: first, £10; second, £5; third, £3; fourth, £1 10s.; fifth, 10s. Imagine nine or ten companies practising separately twice or three times a week, some of which will occasionally have to go a long distance to practice on a peal of bells near the weight of those they will ring on at the contest day, the bells at their own tower being much too heavy or light, as the case may be. After long and regularly continued practice, the eventful and anxiously looked for time arrives. Every company is allowed what is considered sufficient practice on the first day, a privilege which is invariably taken advantage of by all. The draw for order of ringing takes place very early next morning, the judges previous to the draw having been located in a neighbouring building. Shortly after the draw the first company ascends the tower, and the ringing is kept up till all the competing bands have finished, and finally the decision is announced. Take the case of the eight men who have won the first prize. Their individual share amounts to £1 5s each. What has it cost each man to gain the prize? Practice twice or three times a week for two months, and occasionally getting off work; railway fares and loss of two days work while the contest has been in progress. How much has each man left out of his twenty-five shillings I wonder? Yet Mr. Attree would have us believe that these competitions are got up for the sake of "filthy lucre" and personal gain. Sir, I think the above outline is sufficient to dispel any ideas your readers may have of ringers ringing for the sake of pecuniary gain, and consequent degradation of the Church. In answer to Mr. Attree's query, I may say that I have had the pleasure of hearing the twelve at St. Paul's Cathedral ringing Stedman Cinques very well indeed, but at the same time I have no doubt I should have heard them rung better had the honour of the society been at stake. He writes with their (the United Counties' Association) superior striking their success in peal-ringing ought to exceed those of all other Associations. Has some one informed him that the ringing done by us is so very superior that he must needs comment upon it, or has he dreamt it? I rather fancy the latter. Respecting peal-ringing he would have your readers think that we have started for as many peals as those Associations who head the list in peal-ringing. This assertion is as false as it is unfounded; for I can assure you, Sir, we accomplish nearly all the peals we start for, accidents excepted. I apologise for misquoting Mr. Attree in my last; though in justice to myself I must state I quoted from memory. But now he has given his suggestion in his own words. Does he find himself clear of the stigma he would fasten upon others, and does he not confirm what I said in my last—prizes for quantity, but none for quality.

ANALYSIS OF PEALS.

SIR.—I have been studying Mr. Geo. F. Attree's analysis of peals in this week's "BELL NEWS" with a deal of pleasure, and though I usually get a deal of information from these monthly reports, I am this time fairly puzzled. In my young time we could ring Tombstone Bob on as many bells as we liked and no questions were asked, but things is different now, and I can hardly keep all the different methods in my head. Of course I know that Bob Triples is an eight bell method, because St. James's Society says so, and Murray Haze's Original is capable of extension to more or less, but how Oxford Bob Triples can be rung in 21 Minor Methods on six bells, fairly bothers me. Kindly enlighten me, Mr. Attree, and tell us where it happened and how. The "ditto" I can understand, as they doubtless refer to attempts at "Murray Haze's Original," which I understand is getting a very popular method, though I prefer the old name best. I hope that among the eleven peals of Bob Triples mentioned Mr. Attree does not include the Tottenham peal; but there, I need not fear, as I know he has too much respect for the powers that be to think of counting it after their fiat has gone forth.

BOB ROPER (His + Mark).

THE WATERLOO SOCIETY.

SIR.—In your last issue you have a notice that the peals rung at Trinity Church, Borough, are not to be booked in the Waterloo Society's peal-book, because they cannot recover the entrance fees of Messrs. Waghorn, jun., Barnett, and Lucas. Now Sir, I think it would have been more straightforward of that Society if they had stated the reason in their notice why the entrance fees were not paid up at the time the peals were rung. The entrance fee is two shillings, and after expending one shilling and three pence to get the affair settled satisfactorily, I get a note on December 3rd to say that the Society will not delay the business any longer than Wednesday, December 7th. I saw Mr. Waghorn on Sunday evening, when he promised me that he would go to the meeting on the above date and pay the money, so I gave him the two shillings to pay for me; but, owing to unforeseen circumstances in his business he was unable to attend.

CHRISTMAS SUPPLEMENT TO
The Bell News and Ringers' Record.

MR. WILLIAM WAKLEY;

Member of the St. Paul's Society, Burton-on-Trent; the Midland Counties' Association; the Ancient Society of College Youths, &c., &c.

MR. WILLIAM WAKLEY was born at Gittisham near Honiton in Devonshire, in the year 1853. His education in ringing began on the three bells of his parish church, and he became a noted call-change ringer, visiting most of the neighbouring belfries, and eventually taking his place as one of the regular band at Ottery St. Mary, where, on the peal of six, he proudly called 24 changes, quite a feat in a locality in which scientific ringing was as yet unknown.

It may be mentioned as a curious coincidence that among this band was Mr. F. T. Gover, who left for London in the same year in which Mr. WAKLEY entered into business at Burton-on-Trent, and who took part in the College Youths' peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major which antedated the first in that method at Burton by five weeks, both companies having begun to practice simultaneously in the early part of 1882 (see Snowdon's Double Norwich, p. 60).

It was in the spring of 1874 that Mr. WAKLEY came to Burton, at the very time at which the now well known church of St. Paul's, built at the sole expense of the late Mr. Bass, was consecrated. Towards the end of the same year the then vicar, the Rev. J. H. Fish, occupied himself in starting a company to learn change-ringing, and requested Mr. WAKLEY, who had already found his way to the belfry, to join it. With him came his brother, Mr. Arthur Wakley, and provided with copies of Troyte's treatise, the young band set to work, Mr. WAKLEY being elected secretary.

In April, 1876, he was successful in conducting the first peal on the bells—Grandsire Triples. The years 1877 and 1878 saw each another peal in the same method, but as the company did not pull well together, Mr. Fish broke it up, and commissioned Mr. WAKLEY to select such of the old members as he saw fit, and to form a new one. It was now (1879) that the present distinguished "St. Paul's Society" took shape; Messrs. Jaggar, Stone, and Griffin enlisting about this time. A peal of Treble Bob Major was, as a result, scored before the end of the year, and, after considerable labour, Brook's peal of Stedman Triples in 1881, both conducted by Mr. WAKLEY. This was followed up within the month by Thurstan's peal, and thus in seven years seven peals were recorded, including one of Grandsire Triples by the St. Martin's Society, Birmingham. Considering that forty years had elapsed since a peal was heard in Burton, such progress was considered wonderful, but in fact the work of the company had scarcely begun. In 1882 nine peals were achieved, three of them being "Double Norwich"; among the latter the 7200 which remained until last year the longest length in the method, and in which Mr. J. W. Snowdon took part.

Twelve peals followed in 1883, the greater share of the conducting falling to Mr. WAKLEY. In this year the "Midland Counties' Association" was formed, and was joined by the St. Paul's Society with the Rev. J. H. Fish as the first president. How the Burton company, led by the energy of their Vicar, have been the main-spring of the success of this Association is a matter too well known to need notice here; suffice it to say that their brilliant example has been the cause of a responsive vigour among several of the neighbouring bands, and of a more enthusiastic regard for the science throughout the district.

In 1884 among many other peals came a remarkable and historical performance. On the death of the founder of the church, Mr. Bass, the St. Paul's Society rang four muffled peals within six days in the methods of Grandsire Triples, Kent Treble Bob, Double Norwich, and Superlative Surprise, the latter being the first peal of the band in the method. These peals were all conducted by Mr. Wakley, and he thus performed the extraordinary task of calling four peals in four different methods within a week, no mean illustration of his ability in that capacity.

Since the year 1884, the St. Paul's society have, further, under Mr. WAKLEY'S leadership, succeeded in ringing peals, not only of Superlative Surprise, but also of New Cumberland Surprise and Cambridge Surprise, crowning all their previous achievements with the recent performance of a peal in that most intricate of known methods, London Surprise; a climax which, alas, their late Vicar, always the life and soul of his ringers, was not spared to witness.

Mr. WAKLEY'S total score of peals, of which he has conducted 58, is 113, made up as follows:—

Grandsire Triples	14
Stedman	24
" Caters	2
" Cinques	2
Bob Major	1
Kent Treble Bob Major	16
" " " Royal	1
Double Oxford Bob Major	1
Double Norwich Court Bob Major	22
New Cumberland Surprise Major	1
Superlative	"	"	23
Cambridge	"	"	5
London	"	"	1

Such a list of performances is unique, and we can but hope that the ability and energy that has been in great measure the means of placing the St. Paul's society a great way ahead of any Society of eight bell ringers that has yet existed, may long continue to lead and to encourage progress in the art of ringing.

As an acquaintance, Mr. WAKLEY'S popularity is wide spread. Courteous and obliging both to strangers and friends, dignified in manner and address, thoughtful and pertinent in speech, he well illustrates the old saying that "the more you know him the better you like him." As a conductor, calm and clear-headed, seldom speaking yet usually righting any mistake; as a bob-caller, rigidly unflinching and exact; as a ringer, sure in his work and particular in his striking. Although at home in any part of the circle, MR. WAKLEY is seen to greatest advantage at the heavy end. His muscular physique is well adapted to the continuous and, with a weighty tenor, heavy work of the "back-stroke dodging" so common in the more advanced methods, and to a young ringer who aims to excel "on the box" there can be few more instructive sights than that of seeing MR. WAKLEY'S neat form and perfection of judgment in the handling of his favourite, an exhibition which has not seldom evoked the admiration of the best judges.

Outside the belfry MR. WAKLEY is a keen volunteer of twenty years standing, during the first few of which he was under the command of Colonel Troyte; while for the past ten he has earned credit as a sergeant. He has also held successively the offices of church-warden and sidesman in his parish, and with excellent health and a vigorous and active mind has, it may be hoped, before him at the age of thirty-four a long career of usefulness as a churchman, a ringer, and a loyal subject of the Queen.

THE BELLE OF BELSHAM.

WE have a grand peal of bells at Belsham. There are six of them, tenor about 17 cwt., though they call it a ton. They were all cast by the Rudhalls of Gloucester, 150 years ago, except the third, which was broken when the tower fell in grandfather's time. This bell has a curious inscription:

"Recast by J. Taylor and Son.
Who the best prize for Church bells won,
At the Great Exhibition
In London,
1851."

Each bell bears the name of a member of the family of Sir Thomas Devereux, who was Squire at that time, I mean in 1740, and the tradition is that all of them could ring. My father is the Rector now, you know. We are all of us ringers, more or less, even the girl. Charlotte, that is the eldest, has rung the treble through a six-score, but mother came to hear of it, and since then they have not been allowed to touch the ropes. However, they can do almost anything with the handbells. Charlotte composed a date touch for last New Year's Eve, and the girls and Tom rang it, while Uncle John and I were at the ringers' supper at the club. But I was going to tell you Uncle John's story. He told it to us after the supper when we were sitting up at home to hear them ring the old year out and the new year in. Uncle John, you must know, is General John Milford, C.B., a distinguished Indian officer. Father was in the Indian army too, but he was badly wounded at Chilianwalah, and afterwards when he was home on sick leave, he went up to College and was ordained. This suited very well, because grandfather was terribly disappointed when Uncle John enlisted.

Well! we were sitting over the fire, and conversation began to flag. Perhaps we were getting rather sleepy, as it was after our usual bedtime, and Emmy, who generally keeps us alive, seemed to have something on her mind, for she was very quiet and thoughtful. At last she said, "What a handsome old woman Mattie Robson is!"

"Five-and-thirty years ago she was the prettiest girl in the county," said Uncle John emphatically.

"And so she is now, though she is not exactly a girl. But, Uncle John, why are you such friends with her? You always go to see her when you come here."

"Well, my dear, you know she is my foster-sister, and we used to see a good deal of each other when we were children."

"Yes, I suppose that accounts for it. But, Uncle John, why did you enlist? Was it anything to do with Mattie?"

Uncle John started as if he had been shot, and we all began to contemplate the toes of our shoes in fear and trembling except the audacious Emmy, who calmly regarded the changing features of her uncle.

"Well! my dear, he said slowly, as soon as he had recovered himself, I never told that story yet, but I don't know that there is any reason for making a mystery of so common-place an affair, so here goes."

UNCLE JOHN'S STORY.

When I was an undergraduate at Cambridge, the people of Belsham were much what they are to-day, though most of the old faces have disappeared. Your grandfather was not so good a man of business as the present rector, but he had a high reputation as a scholar and divine, and I believe had been candidate for the Professorship of Poetry at Oxford. As he grew old he seemed to find the parish work rather a bore, and the Sunday duty always knocked him up. He would have been glad of some help, but could not bear the idea of a curate. There was not enough work, he thought, to keep them out of mischief. If they were serious they would want daily services and night schools, and if they were frivolous there would be croquet and complications with the young ladies of the flock. So, until one of his sons should be of an age to be ordained, he was content to leave a good deal of the work—perhaps more than he should have done—to his right-hand man, Henry Frost, who was sexton and clerk, and had a finger in most of the parochial pies. He might have done worse. Frost was in his way a man of considerable ability, and strictly upright. If he had a fault it was a weakness for a glass of spirits. Not that he was ever the worse for liquor, as it is called, but certainly he was none the better for it. It made him dictatorial and offensive, and probably shortened his useful life by ten years. I would rather speak of his good qualities. He was a born ruler of men, and might have been one of Oliver Cromwell's Major-Generals, if he had lived two centuries before. He was a tailor by trade, and a radical, though he seldom talked politics, and ignored most of the party questions of the day. He used to sit plying his needle upon a table in a bow window overlooking the village green, and seemed to know his neighbours' affairs and characters by intuition, for he never gossiped. Some of you may remember him, and of course you know that he was Mattie's father. Mrs. Frost was rather an elegant person. She had been ladies' maid in great houses, and latterly at the Hall, and all her tastes were aristocratic. She had a fine voice when she was young, and used to sing in church. That is how she came to marry Frost, who used to train the choir. Her singing seems to have been too much for his republican principles, much in the same way as his love of ringing had drawn him away from the chapel. Mattie was their only child, and the parlour at the back, opening into a charming little garden, and in full view of the Church, was considered the prettiest room in the neighbourhood. It was embellished with wedding presents from duchesses and such people, and quite took the shine out of the drawing-room at the rectory, which had been overrun from time immemorial by troops of unruly children. I should add that Mrs. Frost was an amiable good woman, though she had not the talent of her husband or daughter.

Mattie, who was the same age as myself, was very clever with her needle, and had wonderful taste in dress. She had several advantageous offers of employment from milliners, but her parents were well off, and preferred to keep her at home, except that her services were always in request for the ladies at the hall and rectory. In fact, Frost had his own plans for Mattie's future. She was so pretty and well-behaved that she might easily have made a fine match. But this was not at all in accordance with her father's ideas. The husband he designed for her was young George Robson, the son of a man after his own heart, a self-made man who a few years before had been simply the village carpenter, but was now becoming a person of some consideration in the place. Old George Robson was about ten years Frost's senior. When a young man he had been one of the ringers, and this had led to his becoming a bell-hanger in addition to his other work. Bell-hanging was not such a good business then as it had been in the last century, or as it is now, but it took him away from home and led to other things. Then he began to take contracts and made money by them, and lastly he had bought a farm. It was now his intention to move to the farm, leaving the carpenter's shop to his son, who, it was supposed, would marry Mattie and set up house for himself. Young George was quite ready and eager to fall into this arrangement, but Mattie, without absolutely setting her face against the wishes of her parents, was inclined to procrastinate. Not that she admitted, even to herself, a preference for any one else, and she liked young George better than any other of her suitors, but she did not like the idea of being taken over with a business, and did not happen to be in love. Some people said she had no heart. This was a mistake, but she inherited from her father a habit of coolness and self-possession which might deceive a superficial observer. Apart from that she had a natural grace and brightness of manner which charmed everyone who came in contact with her.

Of course I had fallen in love with her to the extent that every undergraduate falls in love with every pretty girl he sees, but she was so used to keeping lovers at a distance, and managed them so skilfully that flirtation between us was out of the question, although I used to meet her constantly when I was at home. She used to come to the rectory for one reason or another, and I used to be at her father's house to get the keys of the belfry, or for practice on the handbells. Frost was steeple-keeper, and an enthusiastic change-ringer. He had trained us all, and I believe one of the chief reasons why he was so bent on Mattie's marriage was because young George Robson was a first-rate ringer. Young George knew more about ringing than any of us. Latterly he had done all the bell-hanging business for his father, and this took him among first-class ringers with whom he had rung several long peals.

I must now tell you something about myself. At this time I had been two years at Cambridge, and on the whole had done pretty well there, though not so well as to satisfy my father's expectations. He was one of those persons who are always building castles in the air, and then are terribly disappointed when things do not turn out as they have arranged them. I had been one of Dr. Kennedy's favourite pupils at Shrewsbury, and under him it was impossible for anyone to help learning, if he had anything of the nature of a scholar in him. Dr. Kennedy had assured my father that I ought to get a fellowship if I worked, and I dare say I might have done so, but there were obstacles. I did not want to be a parson, and I wished to go into the army. I liked Latin and Greek, and Mathematics well enough, but the three R's which absorbed my enthusiasm were riding, rowing, and ringing. A young man must have exercise and amusement, and there was no harm in the ringing, nor much in the rowing. I cannot say that for the riding, which got me into debt and bad company, though afterwards I turned it to good account. However, at the end of my first year I had given all that up, and with the help of your father, whose pay had been accumulating when he was on service in India, I paid off my debts and turned over a new leaf.

One afternoon in June I came home to spend the long vacation. The first thing I heard was that there had been a discussion about the safety of the church tower, and that the bells were no longer rung for practice, or even for service. There had always been a formidable-looking crack from top to bottom of the north wall of the tower. This was supposed to be an original settlement, and not to affect the stability of the tower, which had been strengthened by buttresses. Whenever the crack opened, as it would do from time to time, it was thought sufficient to close it up with cement. Recently however a corresponding crack had appeared in the south wall. The architect had been consulted, and he had chipped off a bit of the mortar, and declared that the tower would stand for a hundred years. The Churchwardens were of the same opinion. They had known these cracks, they said, for the last fifty years, and there was no harm in them so long as the weather was kept out. On the other hand Frost, who knew every stone of the church, and Robson, who had a good eye for a building, declared that the tower would come down within six months. These two generally opposed the magnates of the parish, whom they regarded with some contempt, and it was no doubt because Frost had raised the alarm that the architect and churchwardens went the other way. My father, as usual, was ruled by Frost, who, indeed, was master of the situation so far as the ringing was concerned, as he kept the keys of the belfry, and now he would not have any bell rang except one which he "clocked" himself for service, a thing he was known to abominate under other circumstances. I was disappointed to find that there was to be no ringing, and wished to judge of the cracks in the tower for myself, so I went to the village and called at the Frost's for the keys of the belfry. Mattie, who was laying the tea table in the little garden opening into the churchyard, went to fetch the keys. She was neatly dressed for the evening and I thought I never saw her looking so lovely. "How are you Mattie?" I said, "I am sure you are looking quite"—

I did not venture to use the word which was at the tip of my tongue, and stood staring at her. She blushed a little—which was a good deal for her—and changed the subject.

"Whatever you do, Master John, do'n't touch the bells. Father says the tower is'n't safe, and he won't let anyone ring them but himself."

"All right, Mattie," I said. "I'll take care of myself." I went into the churchyard, and began to survey the tower from the outside. Somehow I was thinking now more about Mattie than the cracks. Could there be such a thing as love at first sight between people who had known each other all their lives? If so, would it not be embarrassing for us both on Sundays when she was singing in the choir, divinely, and I facing her from the rectory pew on the other side of the chancel? I had great confidence in her presence of mind, but not at all so much in my own, with the eye of the congregation upon us.

In the meantime I had completed my investigations below without coming to any conclusion, and went into the church. There was a turret staircase at N.E. angle of the tower, which opened into the bell-loft by a door on the same level as the windows a foot or two below the upper part of the cage. This arrangement, which is I think unusual, probably saved my life. Standing in the doorway with one foot on the cage, and was studying the cracks which had an ugly gaping look, I saw that a wedge which had been put between the wall and the bellframes to prevent them from rocking, had dropped out, and that some fresh crumbs of mortar had fallen. Forgetting Mattie's caution, and wishing to see if anything would move I put my hand upon the stay of the bell which was nearest to me, and swayed it gently. There was an ominous noise, such as you may hear when skating upon unsound ice. I started back, and in a moment bells and tower had gone down with a tremendous crash, and I was standing upon a ruin in the open air. Of course I had a terrible fright, but the danger was over, so I had nothing to do but to walk down stairs, at the bottom of which I found Frost much alarmed for my safety. While I was in the church, as I heard long afterwards from your Aunt Jane, Mattie's father and mother had joined her at the tea-table in the garden, and they were seated there when the tower fell. Mattie cried out "Oh mother! master John was in the tower," and went into hysterics in her mother's arms. Frost rushed off to the tower, and in less than five minutes we both came back looking scared, and covered with white dust. When Mattie saw us she seemed dazed, and then sat down in a chair and began to cry. After a bit she got up and went into the house, and her mother followed her. After a few words with Frost I went home and much as I was upset by my wonderful escape, I was still more disturbed by Mattie's behaviour. It was plain that she cared for me a great deal more than I had imagined, and that she knew that she had betrayed herself. For my part I was by no means indifferent to her, and the more I thought about the deeper I became involved. When I next saw her she was pale, and had a hard determined look which I could not bear to see, instead of her usual bright cheerful smile. In short, at the end of a week I had formed a resolution, which was perhaps not very unreasonable under the circumstances. A friend of mine, one of the masters at Shrewsbury, had gone out to New Zealand as Principal of a College. He had often asked me, half in jest and half in earnest, to come out and join his staff. I knew he would be glad to have me there. Why should I not read hard, get a good degree, marry Mattie, and settle in the colonies? Mattie was fit to be anyone's wife, and for any society, and in the colonies there were not the same differences of rank as in the old country. The more I thought of my plan of campaign the better I liked it. I felt sure that Mattie would consent. Why should she not? And then I should have an object in life, instead of wasting my time, waiting for something to turn up. Of course my father would not like it, nor any of my relations, but there are times when a man must put those considerations aside. I knew that I was right, and meant to do as I pleased. Accordingly one afternoon when I had seen Mattie going to the hall, I lay in wait for her, as I felt sure she would come back about tea time. At the bottom of the park on the footpath to the village there is a spot suitable for such an interview as I contemplated. A deep lane skirts the park through a kind of ravine, and the ground rises and falls again on either side of it. The place is overlooked from two or three points, and you might be surprised by anyone coming along the lane, but no one, I thought, was likely to be about at that time of day. I posted myself here, and had been waiting about half an hour when Mattie appeared. As soon as she saw me, a shade of displeasure passed over her countenance, and I perceived at once that the course of true love was not about to run smooth. However, I put on a bold face, and when she came up I said, "Mattie, I have something to say to you."

"Oh! Master John," she replied, "you didn't ought to meet me out here. You can always find me at home when you want to speak to me."

"But I have something very particular to say to you, and I must say it at once."

Thus appealed to, she was obliged to listen, and I unfolded my plans with as much eloquence as I could command.

"Oh! no, Sir," she said, "you are too young, and it is too sudden. You would have never thought of it if I had not been upset about you being in the tower, and that should not make any difference. Father would not hear of it, and I've often heard mother say she never knew any good come of young gentlemen marrying beneath their station. You would be sorry for it all the rest of your life, and what good would that be to you or to me?" Something more was said to the same purpose, but the end of it was that she would not give me the slightest encouragement. She had her Father's determined look, and I saw that nothing on earth would move her. Besides, she had reason on her side.

"Very well, Mattie," I said, "you must judge for yourself, and I dare say you know best, though it is a great disappointment to me, and I really don't know what I shall do now. I hope we part friends." And I held out my hand.

"I am sure we shall always be that, Sir, and I am very much for your good opinion of me."

Then we shook hands somewhat effusively, and she left me and hurried home.

Unluckily at the moment of our leave-taking, young Robson had reached the high ground near the clump of firs. He also had seen Mattie go to the hall and wanted to catch her in the lane to say something of importance to her. But he had been delayed by a job at the hamlet, and had taken a short cut across the fields in hopes of being in time to carry out his purpose.

He was too far off to observe the expression of our features, and the wicked baronets of whom he had read in the Family Magazine made love to their victims in a different fashion, but hand-shaking was bad enough and might lead to worse. For a moment he stood rooted to the ground, and then surprise gave way to a tempest of emotions—jealousy, suspicion, rage, revenge, and he felt that he must do something desperate to relieve his mind.

I was leaning on the stile watching wistfully the path where Mattie had disappeared over the brow of the hill, when I heard a quick step behind me and an angry voice.

"You call yourself a gentleman! Stand up if you are a man."

I turned round and saw young George white with rage, and bent on mischief. There was no time for explanations, and I threw myself at once into an attitude of defence. I had the advantage of him in length of arm, and I knew how to use my fists, which he did not. Besides, his position was bad. The ground sloped away towards him, and was slippery from recent rain. He struck at me furiously. I parried his blow with ease, and planted one between the eyes which knocked him down flat.

"Stop! I cried," as he picked himself up for a second onslaught, "It's all a mistake. I have just asked Mattie to be my wife, and she won't have me. I suppose there is no harm in that."

"Bless it all!" he said after a pause, during which we both collected our ideas. "I never thought of that. I ought to have known you better, Sir, after so many years. And her too. But my feelings when I saw——. All the same, if it had been on the level I would not have gone down like that."

"Never mind," I said, "a man who can take punishment like you is sure to win in the end. I suspect your head is harder than my fists. You have crippled my right hand already, and if you could stand another blow like that, you would have it all your own way afterwards."

"No thank you Sir," he laughed. "I've had quite enough for to day. Only if I had been on the level——."

"You have a good deal to learn besides that, Robson; I'll give you a lesson with the gloves some day, and shew you." So we parted the best of friends, as indeed we always had been heretofore.

In the meantime Mattie was pursuing her path and making her plans, unconscious of the quarrel which had arisen on her account. "Mother," she said, as soon as she was in the house, "I think I will go to Aunt Richard's. I will send her word by the post. Father can drive me in with him to market to-morrow, and she will take me back with her."

"Very well, dear," said Mrs. Frost, rather surprised. "How long will you stay?"

"Till Michaelmas. Aunt Richard has been waiting me to come for a long while, but I didn't like to leave the Sunday School and the choir. But I think I had better go now." Here there was a little catch in her voice, and her mother saw that something had gone wrong. However nothing more was said on the subject.

Nothing more was said by the principals, but it could not remain unobserved in the village that Mattie Frost had gone to Aunt Richard's, that young George Robson's forehead bore the marks of knuckles, and that my hand was in a sling. Mrs. Clack Free remarked that she had long ago said that pride would have a fall, that she had seen Master John and Mattie ogling each other in church, and that for her part she thought the Robsons were well rid of people who gave themselves airs without being any better than their neighbours, or than they should be. However, young George was not at all of that opinion, and two years afterwards he prevailed upon Mattie to become Mrs. Robson, and an admirable wife she has been to him, I have no doubt.

Well, my castle in the air had fallen to the ground like the church tower, and unfortunately there were no materials, or not enough of them, to build it up again. But I felt that home would not be the same place to me that it had been, and that I could no longer go on without an object in life, waiting for something to turn up. My favourite author at this time was Samuel Taylor Coleridge. When a young man Coleridge had enlisted in a dragoon regiment because he disliked horses and soldiers, and thought it right to try to conquer his aversion. At least that was the account which he gave of it himself. His adventure did not turn out very happily, as might have been expected; but I was passionately fond of horses and soldiering, and I did not see why I should not enlist and get a commission after a time, as some others I knew of had done, without being half as fit for such a career as I thought myself. At the end of another week I had made up my mind. I packed a few things in a knapsack, and under pretext of a walking tour in Scotland, went to Hounslow, and enlisted in the 4th Light Dragoons. After a fortnight or so, when I had given the new life a sufficient trial, I wrote home to say what I had done, and begged them not to think of buying my discharge, as I was determined to make my way in the world in the line which I had chosen for myself. I never repented of the step which I had taken. It was a hard life till I got used to it, and some things I never got used to, but I don't know that I was not as happy as a private soldier as I ever was before or after. I like the work, and my riding brought me into notice. Of course the riding-master told me that I should have to forget more than ever I learnt before I came to him, but he took so much pains with me that I did not mind what he said, and I soon picked up all he had to teach me. And I must say that I learnt in the ranks a good deal that came in useful to me afterwards, when I was adjutant of the Lancers, and when I had to raise and train a regiment of native cavalry in the Indian Mntiuy. So on the whole I look upon that affair with Mattie Robson as the beginning of my success in life.

"After all, Uncle John," Emmy said, "I don't see why she should not have married you."

"Ah! We shall get out of our depth if we go into that question."

At this moment the bells struck up, one, two, three, four, five, six, and we listened to hear them raised in peal.

"Well done, Belsham ringers;" said Uncle John, as soon as the bells were on the stays, "not a fault after the clappers struck on both sides."

Then they tolled the old year out, and struck twelve upon the tenor, and then all the bells burst out into a merry peal, and we wished each other a Happy New Year, and went to bed.

HIS FIRST ATTEMPT.

SIMPKINS was a poor but pertenant ringer; he had floundered about for a whole year before he managed to get through his first 6-score, but now, after continual practice, he was able to manage Grandsire Triples fairly well.

His own company consisted of a lot of old stagers who had rung a few touches over and over again for years past, but were too lazy to attempt a peal. Simpkins had rang these touches, (none of which exceeded 1000), till he nearly knew them by heart, and he dearly longed for a chance of trying for a peal.

He was not acquainted with any of the companies whose exploits he read of weekly in "THE BELL NEWS," in fact, he had never handled a bell anywhere but in his own tower, and occasionally in one or two other towers in the neighbourhood where there were no change-ringers at all.

At last an opportunity for gratifying his long-cherished wish presented itself. He had recently joined a newly-formed association of ringers which had been started in the district in which he resided, and at one of the quarterly meetings of this association which he attended he made the acquaintance of the conductor of the Slopminster ringers, who were pretty well known for their achievements in ringing throughout the county and district.

Now Slopminster was nearly fifty miles from Sludgecombe, the town where Simpkins lived. However, Mr. Fetchemround, the Slopminster conductor, informed him that any Saturday afternoon he liked to name, if he would write a day or two beforehand, he and his company would be very pleased to meet him at their own tower and go for a peal with him, unless anything of a special nature prevented them, in which case he would let him know. He further pointed out that there was a train left Swindlesham Junction (a station about two miles from Sludgecombe) about mid-day, by which he could arrive at Slopminster by 2 p.m., and need not leave until the last train at 9.5 p.m.

Thanking Mr. Fetchemround for his kind offer and his information Simpkins returned home, and a week or two afterwards he wrote to him asking if the following Saturday would be convenient to go for the peal. He received a letter by return of post saying that as far as he knew everything would be all right.

Accordingly on the next Saturday Mr. Simpkins took the mid-day train for Slopminster, arriving there at 2 p.m. He soon found out the address of Mr. Fetchemround, in fact the street in which he lived was not five minutes' walk from the station. That gentleman had just finished dinner when he arrived.

"Well, I am glad to see you" said Fetchemround, "but now I think of it, it's almost a pity you didn't come last Saturday or next; you see to day's Dufferton flower show, and I expect a lot of our chaps will be off there this afternoon, and we shall have a job to get a company. I forgot about that when I wrote, but never mind, we'll see what we can do. Just wait a minute and we'll go round and see Jack Dodger, he's sure to be at home."

So saying, Mr. Fetchemround left his visitor and proceeded to the back kitchen to have a wash at the tap, whence he returned in a few minutes, wearing a different coat and looking quite another man. "Have a glass of ale?" said he; "I have'n't got any in the house, but we can stop at the 'Dragon,' at the corner of our street, they keep some capital stuff there."

Now Simpkins did not really care for any beer just at that moment, in fact he was so nervous about the success of his first attempt at a peal that he had made up his mind that morning to drink no beer till it was over. However, he did not like to refuse Mr. Fetchemround's offer, as he thought it would look unsocial, so they entered the "Dragon" together and had a glass. Here they met a man, a gardener by occupation (but not a ringer), with whom Mr. Fetchemround was well acquainted. Now Mr. Fetchemround had a small slip of garden at the back of his house, and he dabbled a little in growing vegetables. A long discussion ensued with this man as to the best method of raising cauliflowers, and what with one thing and another it was nearly three o'clock when they left the "Dragon." They then proceeded to Jack Dodger's house. Fetchemround knocked, and the door was opened by a blushing and stylishly dressed damsel.

"Is your father at home?" said Fetchemround.

"If you mean my papa, he's in the shop," said the girl with a toss of the head.

"All right, we'll go through to him," said Fetchemround, and so saying he and Simpkins made their way down a passage into a small tinman's shop, where they found Dodger at work. "Now then, can you make one for a peal this afternoon? Here's the gentleman from Sludgecombe come. Mr. Simpkins, allow me to introduce you to one of the oldest members of our company—Mr. Dodger."

The introduction over, Jack slowly put a copper bit in the stove, and scratching his head remarked that it was rather a bad day to come for a peal on. "You see," said he, "there's a lot of our men sure to be off to the flower show; you should have come next Saturday sir, mostly we could raise enough hands for two companies when there's nothing on. I am a bit busy to-day too, but there, we'll see, just wait a bit till I've finished this little job, I shan't be five minutes, and we'll go and see if Dick Sloper can come. I know he's at home."

The five minutes swelled into a quarter of an hour before Jack had finished his job, and then he took quite another quarter of an hour to get cleaned and dressed, so that it wanted only a quarter to four when they arrived at Dick Sloper's house. Dick kept a small general retail shop in a back street. They found him in his shirt sleeves behind the counter. When he had been informed of their errand he said "Well you see, it comes rather awkward to me to-day; Saturday evening is a busy time with me. I shouldn't mind though, only the missus went up to London by that cheap trip this morning to visit her relations, and she won't be back till Tuesday, and I'm all alone till my daughter comes home at five o'clock. Howsever I'll see what we can do."

In the end, Dick was pretty sure he could manage to be at the tower by half-past five at a pinch, and with this promise they left him.

They then called on one or two more ringers and at last secured seven men, only a tenor man being wanting. It must be confessed that several of the band were rather unsafe, and two of them had never rung a peal before. By this time it was getting on for five o'clock, and Dodger suggested that they should go and have a glass together at the "Eight Bells," the company's meeting house, and consider what to do about getting a tenor man.

This they did, although Simpkins was getting somewhat fidgetty and would rather not have gone in.

While at the "Eight Bells" Dodger suddenly bethought him of a man named Platten who was employed at the office of The Slopminster Dustcart, a weekly local paper which collected all the scandal of the week and disbursed it in its issue which came out on Saturday evenings. Unfortunately, when they came to consider the matter over, they remembered that this man would not be able to get away from the printing office before the paper came out, which was generally about eight o'clock at night.

Just then the landlord entered, and overhearing the conversation, said that his son William was at home just now for a few days. Now this young man had been a ringer some years before, but since he had left the town he had done very little ringing. However they managed to get him to promise to try and ring the tenor for them that evening, with the stipulation that if he began to feel knocked up, he should stop—peal or no peal.

Fetchemround, Dodger and Simpkins, now made their way to the church. The clock struck a quarter past five as they entered the churchyard. Arrived at the ringing-chamber, they found three men there already, among whom was old Tom Binks, the steeplekeeper, who was splicing a rope and did not appear to be in any hurry about it. The clock struck the half-hour before the rope was put on, and they then proceeded to get the bells up. Whilst this was going on, Mr. Fetchemround called Simpkins' attention to the numerous tablets which adorned the walls of the ringing-chamber, and he enlarged on the merits of each performance at full length. At any other time Mr. Simpkins would have been greatly interested in all this, but just now it nearly drove him wild. At last all had arrived except Dick Sloper. They waited a few minutes for him, and then the landlord's son from the "Eight Bells" said "he wasn't going to stick about there waiting,"—no, not he,—he he should go home—and when the other man came, they were to give him a call by pulling one of the bells off. So he left the belfry.

After he had been gone about five minutes, Sloper arrived. They pulled off a bell, and in another ten minutes the young man came back again. It was now nearly six o'clock; however, after ringing a few preliminary rounds, they started into changes at just one minute to six. The striking was not good, and soon the want of proficiency in some of the company was evident. To do Simpkins justice, he for his part rang well, but after they been ringing nearly an hour, somebody forgot to make thirds, and persisted in running up behind, thereby interfering with the bells dodging in four-five, which caused the whole thing to smash up.

The company expressed their regret, and proposed to go for a half-peal. This also unfortunately came to grief. It was now nearly eight o'clock, but Mr. Fetchemrownd said there was still time for a quarter-peal if they started at once for it. They accordingly started and rang nearly to the end of it, but broke down close to the finish.

Simpkins now looked at his watch, and found he had only ten minutes left in which to catch his train, and he had nearly a mile to go; so he took a hurried leave of the rest of the company and made his way to the station as fast as he could.

He arrived at the station just as the train came in, and it was moving off as he rushed on to the platform. "Here you are, Sir" said a porter, and opening a carriage door he gave Simpkins a helping hand, and pushing him in, he shut the door. When he had time to look about him, he found only one seat vacant, the compartment being nearly filled with women, two of which had babies, which squalled during the whole of the journey. Thus Simpkins returned home, and I can hardly say that he "returned well satisfied with his days' outing," which we so often read of ringers doing in "THE BELL NEWS."

CURIOSITIES.

There are three well known ringers in London, members of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths, who, if ever they should stroll in the neighbourhood of Oxford Street, W., will find three thoroughfares in close proximity to each other, bearing their surnames,— "Mansfield," "Moore," and "Orchard." The two former are excellent steeple-keepers, the latter a musical "W. H."

Don't imagine that "Carpenter" of Croydon is an undertaker as well, far from it, his profession is to preserve as many patients as possible from the hands of these gentlemen.

"Hounslow," of Oxford, was not born on "Hounslow Heath," and we cannot believe for a moment that the "Hayes" brothers first saw daylight at a small town of the name of Hayes near Hounslow.

When you mention the name of "King," of "Windsor," don't think that the steeple-keeper of St. John's church is the owner and occupier of "Windsor Castle."

You will be wrong in supposing "Griffin," of Hornsey, is a brother of "Griffin," of Burton, and neither of these gentlemen were ever Landlord of "The Griffin" at Caversham, neither are they anything to do with that effigy which now occupies the place of Temple Bar. By the bye, "Hands" and "Young," of Caversham, don't make bad "Hands" for "Young" ones, do they? in Minor ringing.

Generally there are two "sides" to a "Page," but it is doubtful if any has ever seen the "inside" of Mr. "Page," of Highgate. Should you feel disposed, however, at St. Anne's, you may get on the "wrong" and the "right" side, any practice night.

It is to be hoped very few ringers were "let in" by backing "The Baron," at the last Derby races, the owner is not an able conductor residing in London, of that name. Mr. Baron is not the author of the song entitled "The Baron" of Battersea "Park," notwithstanding the fact that he is often in a certain "part" of "Battersea," neither did he supply the "Baron of Beef" to Her Majesty this Christmas.

EPITAPH.

"St. Matthew's" Green, at Bethnal "Wood,"
Has rung three hundred peals,
When cased in "Wood," and neath the "Green,"
We'll wonder how he feels.

The members of the Cumberlands seem to be partial to Birching-on, we never heard that "The Powell Arms" was named after the late member of this society, Mr. T. Powell, now residing at Waltham Abbey.

Ringers, when travelling on the Metropolitan railway, who hear the station porters call out "Mark Lane," must not conclude that it is one of the "Apsley End" ringers who is being enquired for.

Mr. "R." "Martin" is still steeple-keeper of "S." Martin's, "Ruislip," so is W. "Leader," of Slough, the latter, who has held office for twenty-five years, always rings the treble, "Leader by name, leader by nature, so follow my leader."

"Gordon," the Bellhanger, is not an offspring of "Chinese Gordon," "The Plough Inn" at Beddington, is not kept by "Flowman," the steeple-keeper, neither he nor the landlord are "Plowmen."

"Ye 'Banks' and 'Brayes' of 'Bonnie' Doon,
And ye 'Bonney' and 'Woods' of London toon."

It would be out of place to conclude that "Rumsey Abbey" was the birthplace of Mr. "James Rumsey." That the "Thomas's" of Battersea or Birmingham are lineal descendants of "Thomas-a-Beckett," or that Mr. Jones, the lifeguardsman, was at the battle of "Waterloo,"—when his regiment is in town, he may be frequently found in "Waterloo Belfry."

"Dainsene" is a nickname applied to one of our best composers. "Danes Inn" is situated in the Strand. "Danesbury House," the title of an excellent novel, and Mr. "Henry Dains" is the secretary of the Society of Cumberlands.

It would be interesting to read of the following ringers being together: "Perryman," of Slough; "Merryman," of Bradford; "Merrison," of Hull; "Merrishaw," of Walpole; "Kitchener," of Bennington; "Titchener," of Highgate; "Heffer," of Crawley; "Bullock," of Winhill; "Honeybell," of Glemsford; "Treadgold," of Alrewas; "Viner," of Abingdon; "Vinen," of London.

Do not mistake "Pheasant," of Worcester, for a "Hen" merely because the initial H precedes his surname, nor believe Mr. D. "Living's" christian name is dead, nor suppose by their appellations that Messrs. "Hogsflesh," of Warnham, and "Bacon," of Loughton, are breeders of Berkshire "Porkers."

Observe by the following how ringers delight to reside in places bearing their cognomen: "Albert" Edward Wreaks, "Albert" Terrace; W. H. L. "Buckingham," "Buckingham" Terrace.

It is untrue that "Privett," Hants., was the birthplace of Mr. "Privett," in the same county, or that Mr. W. Hoverd joined the "Cumberland" Society because he resided in "Cumberland" Street, Pimlico. Also that the "Cash" Brothers, of "Eccles," have so much spare "cash" that they intend presenting a new ring of bells to "Ecclesfield" parish church.

We think it very unfair that four "Popes" should only allow one "Nunn" to ring in their peal at Staplehurst. They should also have invited the "Chaplin," of Yarmouth, "Parsons," of Bolney, and "Bishop," of Bury, to take part in it.

The peal rung at Ipswich by the "Motts" and "Mees," was a very extraordinary handbell achievement, it was performed "in no time" and by "no society,"—if you doubt it read "BELL NEWS."

In years to "come," when our successors read of Messrs. "Jacob" and "Moses," they will exclaim naturally enough—"what an old society the Cumberlands must be, wonder if "Adam" was a College Youth or Cumberland?"

It would be a novelty to record a handbell peal by Messrs. "French," of London, "English," of Tottenham, "Ireland," of Diss, and "Scotcher," of Galleywood, on a set of bells by "Welch," of Bankside, S.E.

NURSERY RHYME.

"Wash" me in the "brook" and I shall be "white" as snow,
Stedman "White," of Appleton, last summer told me so,
Said the sexton, Mr. "Lamb," of St. Stephen's, Rochester Row.

Now the dreariness of winter is upon us, we can look back with pleasure to the time when we enjoyed, during the summer months, the "Shades" of the "Greenwood" trees at "Greenwich," the delightful stroll, after a heavy week's work in the smoking city, through the country "Meadows" and "Fields" of Suffolk and Oxford, and later, as the autumn advanced, saw the ever varying colors of what once were only "Greenleaf."

In conclusion, this opportunity is taken of respectfully wishing "The Compliments of the Season" to three special performers, whose names we have had the honour to see in the columns of "THE BELL NEWS":—Miss E. C. Sharland, of Tiverton; Mrs. J. W. Washbrook, of Oxford; Mrs. W. Lawrence, of Whitchurch.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Nothing extenuate: naught set down in malice."

By the time these lines reach your readers, Christmas-tide will be close upon us once more. Allow me, therefore, to hold out the right hand of good fellowship to all my "brother-strings," and to give utterance to the grand old time-honoured sentiment—may we all have "A Merry Christmas!" a merry one in the truest sense—merry in the sense in which a good Christian man accepts the term—merry by being in pleasant concord with each other—merry so that we may in after-time look back with pleasure to this festive season, which is once more added to our brief life's span. And while we are swinging joyfully

"Those glad Christmas bells," let us remember our ringing brethren scattered all over the world. Let us hope that, though they cannot like us commemorate this great festival with merry peals, they may at any rate have happiness and joy in their far-away homes. And as we cannot doubt that their thoughts will "oft homeward turn," and that they will in imagination once more hear the melody of the bells in the old tower at home, let us every one, as we ring on Christmas morning, breathe a hearty wish that they may all with us have a right merry commemoration of the Nativity of our Lord and Saviour.

* * * * *

Two more rings have been re-hung and re-opened—at Kelsale and Frome. Well done! People are fond of talking about the prevalent bad trade, but it would appear as if bell-hangers at any rate have little cause to complain. Every week we read of new peals being opened, or old peals augmented or re-hung. There can be no doubt that this new life which is being infused into our belfries, is in a very large measure due to the establishment, the organisation, and the efficient working of our County Associations and Guilds. I would say to these societies, "Go on and prosper," do not relax for one moment your efforts until every bad and unmusical peal has been cast into the melting pot, and replaced by a good musical ring; till every bell-frame and every belfry has been put into proper condition; till you have got every ringer in the land within the ranks; and last, but by no means least, till you have brought every ringer to a true sense of his position and have made him not only a good scientific ringer, a true striker, but also an ornament to his profession and to the Church to which he belongs.

* * * * *

The number of peals recorded last week is nineteen. That is again creditable to the Exercise; but what strikes me most in this list of peals is the constant recurrence of "Holt's ten-part," which I notice has been rung no less than six times out of the total of nineteen for last week. To a person who has not rung or conducted this now venerable peal before, there is, of course, as much credit due as if he had rung any other for the first time; but I venture to suggest, would it not be preferable to strike out into new lines instead of falling back time after time upon the old "Original." Let us have some new "Originals"; let us have more peals with the note appended, "This peal is now rung for the first time," &c. It will then be seen that our brethren are bringing intelligence to bear in connection with the science, and there will be a brighter look out for the change-ringing of the future.

* * * * *

The correspondence on prize-ringing still continues. Last week I expressed the hope that personalities would be avoided, and that the disputants would argue the point fairly. I am very sorry to see this week a letter, the characteristics of which are the very reverse to what I had hoped for. Personal attacks on one another prove nothing; they too often denote the losing side, for we generally find that when argument fails, abuse is brought into requisition. Let us have no more of this discreditable mode of conducting a controversy: it fulfils no useful purpose, and the gentleman of Calverley may be assured that he is simply laying himself open to attack by adopting it, and moreover does the object which he supports far more harm than good.

FREE LANCE.

THE BELFRY OF BRUGES.

The most conspicuous object in approaching or perambulating the town of Bruges, is the lofty octagonal brick tower in the market place, called the Tour des Halles, which commands from its top an extensive view of the surrounding country. It was originally isolated from the buildings which now are connected with it, being one of those belfries which, in the thirteenth century, every town in the Netherlands claimed as a right, not only for the custody of its archives and public records, but for the purpose of enabling the municipal guard to watch over the safety of the inhabitants. They were therefore provided with enormous bells, which were duly christened and honoured with sponsors, who like other godfathers, found they had little control over the objects of their adoption when they, under the mandates of the popular will, sounded the tocsin of rebellion. The ringing of these ponderous bells, on all occasions, summoned the citizens to meet together; but it was customary in Bruges for the night patrols on duty at the top of the tower to blow a trumpet every hour, as a security for their not slumbering upon their post. The public records and the great town seal (Zegal Van Serban), were here safely kept in an immense coffer, which was secured by ten different locks: one key of which was consigned to the Corporation of the college of burgomasters, while the other nine were confided to the nine deacons of the principal trades. The civic authorities, therefore, could not complete any treaties for the levy of money, or make any other contracts affecting the interests of the people, without the college convoking the heads of these trades to obtain their respective keys, for the purpose of procuring the impression of the town seal, without which all such documents were null and void. The warders of the tower still keep their night watch on the top of the tower, and give the alarm in case of any fire occurring in Bruges, or any of the surrounding villages. It also contains one of the sweetest toned carillons in Belgium. The old edifice which this belfry originally surmounted, and which was replaced by the present Market Hall in the thirteenth century, was called the Water Hall, because it was constructed over a canal which permitted the boats of merchants to pass under the vaulted arches, and land their goods under its galleries.—Chambers Journal.

OLD CHRISTMAS DELICACIES.

'Good old English fare' is a phrase very much in people's mouths; much oftener than the thing they praise. Let us see what a Christmas dinner consisted of in the reign of Charles I. 'A soup of snails,' 'a powdered goose,' 'a joll of salmon,' 'a dish of green fish buttered with eggs.' This was a first course. Then came a 'Lombard pie,' 'a cow's udder roasted,' 'a grand boiled meat,' 'a hedgehog pudding,' 'a rabbit stuffed with oysters,' 'Polonian sausages,' 'a mallard with cabbage,' and 'a pair of boiled cocks.' To these succeeded, as hors d'œuvres and entremets, 'a spinnage tart,' 'a carbonadoed hen,' 'a pie of aloes,' 'eggs in moonshine,' 'christeal jelly,' 'jumballs,' 'quiduny,' 'bragget,' and 'walnut suckets.' Cock-ale, surfeit water, canary sack, and Gascony wines, served to moisten this heterogeneous repast.

WIGSTON (Leicestershire).—On Monday, December 5th, at the parish church, six of the local company rang six 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles, each called differently. W. Humberstone (conductor), 1; T. Humberstone, 2; J. Tailby, 3; R. Roe, 4; H. Smith, 5; H. Vann, 6.

DEDICATION OF CHURCH BELLS AT SETTLE, YORKSHIRE.

This town, so effusive in loyal demonstrations at Midsummer, has been happy enough to secure a more permanent memorial of the Queen's Jubilee. The dedication of a peal of eight new bells, which took place on Thursday, December 22nd, at its church of the Holy Ascension, is, we believe, an unique occurrence this year in the diocese, and up to the last moment it was hoped that the Bishop himself would be present. The cost of the bells has been raised by subscription. The scheme originated at a vestry meeting, where a Jubilee Bells' Committee was formed and the vicar promised one bell. The success of the project was largely due to the prompt and unexpected liberality of Mr. Christopher Beverley, of Stanningley, who gives the tenor bell in memory of his father, Christopher Lodge Beverley, a Craven man, and formerly educated at Giggleswick Grammar School. Thus stimulated, local interest followed, and the committee were speedily encouraged by several handsome donations in the town, and by the cordial help of W. Morrison, Esq., M.P. The bells, which promise to be a musical peal, were cast by Warner, of London, and hung by the Yorkshire firm of Mallaby Brothers. They average in weight from six cwt. to fourteen cwt., and bear the following inscription in Latin, pentameter verse:—

Pro te, Ecclesia, adit vox renovata Deum.
Qui Domini ascendent in juga sancta rogo.
Pura quibus manus est puraque cardo, cano.
Christie, poli clavis, te celebramus, adi.
Jubilat ascendens voce tubaque Deus.
Integra sit patrie pax, sine tæbe fides.
Vox mea, presbyteri voce tacente vocat. I.M.
Vox mea Christopherum Lodge Beverley memorat (with crest).

Some readers may prefer an English version ;

Church of God in newer mould,
I'm thy prayer-bell as of old.
Pure their hand and heart must blend
Who the hill of God ascend
Christ the key of realms on high,
Open, open to our cry ;
Voice and trump with one accord
Tell of our ascending Lord.
Peace in Britain would ye see,
Stand United loyally.
When the priest's voice silent falls,
Loudly mine his people calls.
Him of pious name sing I,
Christopher Lodge Beverley.

On the four walls of the belfry are four rhyming scrolls illuminated by ladies in the parish.

Numerat Aurea,
Lustra Victoria.
Pax ei laurea.
Sit Deo Gloria.

Also a brass plate bearing the inscription:—

"This peal of bells was raised by public subscription in 1887, the fiftieth year of the reign of Queen Victoria, and dedicated to the Glory of God and the welfare of his Church. Jackson Mason, Vicar; Thomas Clark, John Handby, Churchwardens."

The ceremony of the day began in the belfry, where Canon Pulleine receiving the ropes from the churchwardens, dedicated the bells to the glory of God, and then delivered them as a sacred trust to the vicar as custodian. Then followed a musical service in the church, which, with the sermon by Canon Pulleine, was most impressive. Much both of the words and music was original, and Mr. Barnett's setting of the 150th Psalm was much admired. The bells were first heard during the service, at the conclusion of which Mr. Arthur Knights' peal of Treble Bob Major (5440 changes), was attempted by the following members of the Yorkshire Association. J. H. Bell, 1; W. Clarke, 2; W. Mallinson, 3; W. Wilks, 4; J. Broadley, 5; W. Whitaker, 6; J. McKell (conductor), 7; J. McGoun, 8. All went well for over two hours, when, through the intrusion of a very talkative verger, a change-course took place, and "stand" was called at the end of 2 hrs. 10 mins., to the very great disappointment of everyone concerned.

A DAY'S OUTING TO SHEFFIELD.

On Bank Holiday, December 26th, accompanied by my brother, I paid a visit to the above town, where we arrived at 10.15 a.m., and soon afterwards found ourselves in company some of our brother strings. After a ramble through the town, we journeyed back to the "Brown Bear," the meeting-house of the St. Mary's Society, where we were met with that welcome so well known to Yorkshire ringers. After refreshing the inner man we ascended the tower of St. Mary's, and rang a touch of Grandsire Triples. O. Dixon, 1; G. Seed, 2; C. Williams, 3; R. Williams, 4; J. Mulligan, 5; W. Biggan, 6; T. Dixon (conductor), 7; G. Taylor, 8. Time not permitting for any more ringing on these bells, being due at the parish church, where Mr. C. H. Hattersley and his band would be in waiting. After a minute's walk we soon found ourselves in the above tower, and was soon ringing a touch of Grandsire Caters. W. Midgley, 1; C. H. Hattersley, 2; C. Williams, 3; J. Mulligan, 4; W. Biggan, 5; T. Hattersley, 6; J. Dixon, 7; A. Brearley, 8; R. Williams (conductor), 9; G. Taylor, 10. Also a course of Treble Bob Major on the back eight. J. Dixon, 1; C. H. Hattersley, 2; J. Lomas, 3; C. Williams, 4; T. Dixon, 5; T. Hattersley, 6; R. Williams, 7; A. Brearley, 8. This was followed by 537 of Stedman Caters. C. H. Hattersley, 1; T. Hattersley, 2; J. Lomas, 3; C. Williams, 4; J. Mulligan, 5; W. Lomas, 6; J. Dixon, 7; A. Brearley, 8; R. Williams (conductor), 9; W. Midgley, 10. We descended the tower, and made our way to the meeting-house known as "Queen Victoria," where we found a large gathering of brother-strings from different parts of Yorkshire, among whom was our friend "The Skipper," who as is usual with the class of seafaring men who bear the above cognomen, could not be comfortable without that very useful vegetable, viz., an onion. The kind landlady made every endeavour to oblige him, and upon it being placed before him, he shed his tears. The remainder of the evening was spent in great jollification—by toasts, handbells, songs, etc., till time gave us the signal for departure, and after the friendly parting, we soon found ourselves with the steam horse, jogging along, and landed safely home in Liverpool at 2 a.m. on Tuesday, well satisfied with our outing.

THE YEAR'S OBITUARY.

The obituary for the year includes among politicians Lord Iddesleigh, whose sudden death was mourned by all parties as a national loss; Peter Rylands, well known as a useful economist in the House of Commons; Mr. Beresford Hope, whose consistent, though independent support of Church views and munificent contributions to Church action leave a void which will not easily be filled; Lord Wolverton, who was equally liberal in the promotion of party objects; and Lord Dalhousie, by whose death, a few hours after that of his wife, a promising career was brought to an early close. Abroad the Italian Prime Minister, Signor Depretis, who in this respect as well as in his clever management of conflicting parties recalls Lord Palmerston, has died at his post. Among soldiers General Macgregor, the conqueror of Burmah, was snatched away in the hour of victory; Sir Henry Gordon has followed the more illustrious brother whose life he has done so much to illustrate; and Valentine Baker Pasha, whose career in the English army was cut short by the just punishment of a dishonourable crime, did what he could to redeem his reputation by valuable services in Egypt, and at last succumbed unexpectedly to disease. Of those who minister to soldiers by supplying the material of war there are no more famous names than two which have passed away during the year, Sir Joseph Whitworth and Herr Krupp. Russia has lost in Katkoff the one great journalist who exercised an independent power. An eminent scholar has been lost in Dr. Scott, the late Dean of Rochester. A sad fate has overtaken Alexander Heriot Mackonochie, who, after an ardent but stormy life, perished at last in a holiday walk through a Scotch snowstorm. Sodor and Man has lost its Bishop, Dr. Rowley Hill; and two eminent clergymen have been removed in Archdeacon Harrison and J. W. Joyce. A famous American preacher, Henry Ward Beecher has gone; and so have so have two Roman Catholic ecclesiastics, occupying prominent but very different positions, Monsignor Jacobini, the Papal Secretary, and Father Beckx, the General of the Jesuits, though the latter had previously resigned the practical control of the society in the hands of his successor, Father Anderledy. Rome has also lost a recent convert in Lord Lyons, who had only just retired from a long and successful diplomatic career. A modified opponent of Rome, Johannes Ronge, has also passed away, who enacted in Germany something of the same part which Father Hyacinthe has played in France. We have lost a great and original schoolmaster in Dr. Thring, of Uppingham. An eminent light in science has been extinguished in Professor Balfour Stewart, one of the joint authors of the "Unseen Universe." Besides Richard Jefferies, literature regrets two lady novelists of repute in Mrs. Henry Wood and Mrs. Craik, the author of "John Halifax," and a lady traveller in Lady Brassey, who was cut off prematurely at sea by malarial fever: while Music has lost a well-known composer in Sir George Macfarren, and a famous singer, though she had long retired from the public eye, in Madame Lind-Goldschmidt, better known as Jenny Lind.

THE CHURCH IN 1887.

The Church history of the year has been interesting, but hardly eventful. Attention was greatly drawn last winter to the sufferings of the clergy owing to the agricultural depression, and we are glad to think that we were able to contribute in some degree to the diffusion of accurate information on this important subject. One result of the interest excited by this very grave state of things was a creation of a Clergy Relief Fund, under the direction of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy. In this way about £40,000 was raised, a sum which, though quite inadequate to the permanent relief of the distress, has it may be hoped, done something to lessen it in individual cases. In the early part of the year the two Archbishops and the Bishop of London determined to consecrate a Bishop to superintend the Anglican congregations in Palestine. The motives of this revival of a bishopric with so unfortunate a history have not been disclosed. We only mention it here as having evoked a unanimous expression of regret from an unusually representative body of Churchmen. The embers of the ritual controversy have been shown to contain more fire than was supposed by the imprisonment of Mr. Bell Cox, and though for the time he is at large owing to the intervention of the Queen's Bench Division, the Court of Appeal has already pronounced his discharge illegal, and if the House of Lords confirms this judgment he will probably be sent once more to gaol for adopting a ceremonial which in London and elsewhere has been in use in certain churches for many years and with the general consent of all concerned. The consecration of Truro Cathedral drew together an imposing gathering of Bishops and clergy, and gave striking evidence of the renewed life of the Church in a county which at one time was regarded as almost wholly given over to Dissent. The ecclesiastical legislation of the year extended the time in which loans to incumbents must be repaid, and made the pensions payable to incumbents who have resigned their benefices vary with the tithe averages. Of proposed legislation there was a good deal, the most important measures being the Glebe Lands Occupation Bill, the Church Patronage Bill, which underwent a complete and most beneficial revolution at the hands of Lord Salisbury in the course of its passage through the house of Lords, and the Tithe Rent-Charge Bill. How important it was that so much at all events of this Bill as dealt with the incidence of the charge should have become law has been abundantly proved by the tithe riots in Wales and by the growing lawlessness in the Principality of which these riots are at once the evidence and the encouragement. In the Convocation of Canterbury there has been much useful discussion, but it has rather prepared the way for conclusions to be arrived at next year than yielded any which can be recorded as part of the history of 1887.—Guardian.

WELLINGBOROUGH, NORTHANTS.

The late Mr. W. H. Henson (Churchwarden), Finedon, having been an influential member of the Raunds, Wellingborough and District Ringers' Society, the church bells at Wellingborough and Raunds were rung muffled on Tuesday evening, the funeral taking place at Finedon in the afternoon. Born at Kettering in 1826, Mr. Henson was one of a noted family of Kettering ringers, and learned to manage a bell when quite a boy. All through his life he took great interest in everything appertaining to the belfry. As churchwarden of Finedon, he was leader of the ringers there, and was instrumental in bringing about the re-casting of the Tenor, and re-hanging of the bells in 1875. His father was present at the opening of the bells in 1825, fifty years previous. At the Society's Meeting at Rushden, in 1884, the Finedon Ringers with Mr. Henson at the treble, and Moon on the tenor, rang Grandsire Doubles in a style never equalled, the "time" and "striking" being simply perfection. Mr. Henson was particularly well known to, and much respected by the Wellingborough men, for he often rang at the parish church in the "old days," and frequently expressed a wish to have a pull on the increased ring of eight. He generally rang the seventh (the old fifth), therefore this was, according to custom, raised and rung by itself, previous to the muffled peal.

THE ATTEMPTED LONG PEAL AT CHELTENHAM.

The attempted long peal of Stedman Caters was unfortunately not accomplished here yesterday. It collapsed after about 5500 changes had been rung, in 3 hrs. and 21 mins.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Ring out the false, ring in the true;
Ring out the old ring in the new."

A Happy New Year to all! The festal season is once more over, and Christmas of 1887 is a thing of the past. Following closely, the few remaining days of the Old Year are fast drawing to a close: and "Anno Domini 1887" will soon cease to exist save in history, as the memorable Jubilee Year of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen.

From a ringer's point of view, the year which is now virtually over, can scarcely be said to have possessed many extraordinary features. Two events, however, will no doubt cause the year to be remembered throughout the Exercise, viz., the lamented death of the late Rev. J. H. Fish, and the uncovering of the memorial window to the late Jasper Snowden. Another event too, is hardly likely to be forgotten—the introduction by Mr. Heywood of his new method "Duffield."

But if the year has not been characterised by "startling occurrences" amongst us, it cannot by any means be regarded as a twelve months of lethargy. On the contrary, its records will be especially satisfactory. If we take the number of peals and touches that have been rung, and the variety of methods which have been performed, I feel sure that 1887 will be found to have been equalled—not to say excelled—by no previous year in the history of change-ringing. Again (no doubt in a great measure due to the fact of its being Jubilee Year), bell-founders and bell-hangers have had a pretty brisk time of it, from the reports given week after week of new peals "mounted," and old ones augmented, rehung, or otherwise put into better order than they were before. Our County Associations have steadily but surely been making progress, increasing their numerical strength, and bringing the art more to its proper position, and causing it to receive its due recognition and support from the authorities of the Church.

We may thus fairly assume that altogether the year has been one of good substantial progress; one calculated to give the best friends of the Exercise cause to rejoice and take heart for the future. Let us all, therefore, while rejoicing in the successes achieved and the progress made in the past, resolve to do our best in the future—humble though our individual efforts may be—to help on this march of improvement; so that at the close of the coming year, those of us who are spared to ring in its successor, may likewise view with satisfaction the accomplishment of much good work, and have the happy consciousness of being able to say that they have each and everyone done their duty.

I have no desire to lay myself open to the charge of flattery, but I must compliment you, Mr. Editor, on the appearance of your Christmas number, with its very acceptable portrait of Mr. Wakley. I have only had the pleasure of that gentleman's personal acquaintance once, but the remembrance of that brief experience convinces me of the truthfulness of your commendatory remarks respecting him. We want men like him who always "cast a sunshine" about them wherever they go, imparting good feeling and brotherly love amongst us. Apart even from his abilities as a ringer, I do not wonder at the fact that he is such a popular officer of the Midland Counties' Association.

The Sussex Association is "pulling up" well with its peals; seven being recorded in its name last week. I am anticipating with some interest Mr. Attree's final analysis for the year, and imagine there will be a "tight run" for the top places in his list. The members of the Sussex County Association evidently do not intend to be far away from the premier position. I have had a notion for some time of analysing Mr. Attree's analyses (if I may be excused the term), but will wait till the appearance of his "final."

The controversy on prize-ringing still "grows apace," but so far, I fear, with little good result. And so I am of opinion it will continue so long as the disputation is carried on on its present lines. My brethren, if this controversy is to be carried on, do not let it develop into a series of mutual recriminations, but argue the question on its proper basis—that of principle. If I may not be deemed presumptuous, I would suggest, let us have a right, fair, honourable "pitched battle" on the matter, taking as the question to be debated "Is prize-ringing justifiable or expedient?" I think if the question was thoroughly well "thrashed out" on the broad basis of principle, we should all learn something by the correspondence. We should at any rate get acquainted with the arguments for and against. Recriminations and cutting personal remarks, however smart they may be considered, will never tend to convince anybody or settle the point at issue. If that object is to be attained, it will have to be by real arguments upon the matter in question. I am almost ashamed to be found recurring to this question, but my only excuse is my anxiety for the good of the Exercise.

FREE LANCE.

THE CHURCH TOWER, IRTHLINGBOROUGH, NORTHANTS.

An appeal is very reluctantly made for funds to take down and rebuild this well-known structure. The tower has, notwithstanding the erection of large and costly buttresses during the early part of the present century, and further efforts at preservation made some forty years ago, become so unsafe that it has been resolved, after obtaining the advice of the best authorities, to remove the whole building. Mr. Pearson examined the tower in 1883, and reported as follows: "The tower is a most interesting work, and I have the strongest feelings in favour of keeping it up; yet in spite of this, I cannot arrive at any other conclusion than that it must come down and be rebuilt." The cracks in the tower have continued to widen year by year, and the fall of stones from time to time has given the clearest warning of a quickly impending catastrophe, if the building be not taken down. Its fall would not only have endangered life, and property adjoining, but would also have rendered the expense of rebuilding immensely greater. To avoid this contingency, the upper stage has been already removed, and the lower stages are now in process of pulling down. The greatest care is being taken to stack and mark the stones as they are brought down, so as to render their exact replacement possible, and it need hardly be stated that the most careful drawings and measurements of every part of the building have been taken. The Committee are most anxious to commence the re-erection of this extremely interesting Tower, which formed part of the conventual buildings of the college of Irthlingborough, and contained in its upper stages arrangements for domestic occupation. They therefore do not hesitate to appeal far and wide to all interested in the preservation of ancient and historical buildings, to aid in providing funds to enable them to carry out the work in 1888, believed to be the 500th anniversary of the original erection of the building.

RINGERS' CONCERT AT CLUN, SHROPSHIRE.

The Third Concert given by the Clun change-ringers took place in the National Schools on Tuesday, December 20th. There was a good attendance. An attractive programme was provided, and all its items were very satisfactorily rendered. The instrumental pieces were performed in a very tasteful and correct manner, and the music of the handbells was immensely appreciated. Most of the performers received a hearty encore, to which they kindly responded. Miss B. Harrop ably accompanied upon the piano. At the conclusion of the programme, the Rev. W. Glen moved a vote of thanks to Mr. J. S. Buchanan for his great efforts made on behalf of the change-ringers to provide the excellent programme they had all so much enjoyed. The motion was carried with enthusiasm. Mr. J. S. Buchanan thanked the audience, and also gratefully acknowledged his obligations to the performers, and to Mr. T. L. Brown and Miss B. Harrop for their valuable and kindly co-operation. The church bells, he said, were still in a sad state of dilapidation, but he trusted the time was not far off when their renovation would be effected.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1887.

AGAIN do we find that the latest of the numerous progeny of Old Father Time has all but run his course, for before the next number of this journal appears the year of grace One thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight will be of the present instead of the future. The commencement of such a period invariably affords a grand opportunity for moralists to descant, at inordinate length in some cases, upon the wisdom of examining ourselves—our habits, our likes and dislikes, our antipathies and sympathies, our jealousies and other shortcomings which are the heritage of the children of ADAM; to take stock, as it were, of what has been our behaviour throughout the year which has just fled: whether during that period we have faithfully exercised that duty towards our neighbour which is enjoined upon us by that great teacher the anniversary of whose nativity we have been recently celebrating, or our gratitude towards that teacher Himself. To exhort to such self-examination is without doubt commendable from many points of view, though cynical people may decry and jeer at the preacher who is content to impress upon his auditors but once in a twelvemonth the necessity for such a personal investigation. Inquiry like this may not be pleasant to every one; the retrospect of the flying year may be in many cases too sad even for a passing view, let alone dwelling upon; contemplations upon the future, with settled and decided purposes of improvement, are perhaps the most agreeable. Yet the lesson of the past cannot be regarded as anything but salutary and beneficial. Periodical glances at the mirror of life, though its painful shadows may reflect forms repulsive to the inward workings of conscience, have their advantage if in the end they lead to the happy effect of persevering in good resolutions.

As we have just hinted, however, considerations of the future are likely to be more pleasant than retrospects of the p. st. That the year upon which we are entering will be more eventful and important, so far as the Exercise is concerned, than any of its predecessors, no one who has had his eyes open upon recent events can scarcely doubt.

Greater ringing achievements may not be performed than we have already heard of, but efforts will no doubt be made to revise and improve the organization of several well known ringing societies. The imperfect constitution of some of these bodies is notorious, and rank among the principal ingredients which militate against the progress of ringing. The Metropolitan societies are not the pink of perfection in this respect which a number of people believe. When we say that their constitutions need revision of the most radical character, we only utter a mere truism. The arrangements respecting the fees for what an old and valued friend terms "parochial ringing," are by no means everything to be desired, and the pleas of custom or antiquity cannot save them for many years longer. The present election to the office of a "parochial ringer" is not always attended with that dignity which we would fain behold; nor is it possible to look with approval upon the eagerness of some aspirants for the position, or, if reports be true, the means sometimes employed to ensure election. A statement is current that a steeple-keeper of a noted church just outside the city—himself a tenor-man—informed a very old half-pull ringer that his services would not be wanted on the next scruffe-day, and this it is averred is owing to the attitude taken by the old man in a question which affects the prestige of the society which has its head-quarters at the church alluded to. Such regulations, or we may say the want of them, is a matter which we believe is ripe for consideration, and will be dealt with during the coming year. The constitution of the society in question has recently received a severe wrench, and if in addition the above incident is correct, a great reform is surely needed. But when changes either for the better or worse are mooted, vulgar personalities between opponents, it should be remembered, have a tendency to defeat the objects in view. The senseless repartee of the meeting room, as well as the epistolary mud which is sometimes thrown, is never edifying to lookers on, who generally discern the weakest points of each combatant.

That the coming year may be a happy and prosperous one with all is our earnest wish. Happy not only in business, and domestic concerns, but happy and prosperous in the practice of the science. Whoever labours to this end among his fellows fulfils a part of that duty for which he is suffered to walk God's earth; whoever knowingly and wantonly creates offences among them is certain to meet with a sure reward sooner or later. The feelings and sympathies of many ringers are most acute. Their attachment to one particular church and its bells is often very great, and a compulsory expropriation from them has been known to produce tragic results. To seek peace, and endeavour to keep it is the bounden duty of all, and whoever is the wilful cause of discord incurs a terrible responsibility. May occasions for unseemly differences become less and less, and may the practice of generosity and self-denial become the current coin of all ringers' daily existence. If these sentiments are taken to heart there is but little doubt that our brother strings will, in the practice of the art, enjoy what we heartily wish them—

"A HAPPY NEW YEAR."

ST. EDMUND'S SOCIETY, EXETER.

The members of the above Society (including Messrs. S. Herbert, H. Swift, Crane, Tucker, Gubb, Webber, Northcott, Goss, Roberts, Pitt, Allen, Townsend, Fraser, Shobbrook and Meadows) have presented Mr. W. Richardson with an eight-day clock, together with a scroll containing the names of the subscribers, it being the occasion of his marriage. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. C. Marsh, who made the presentation, and in the course of his remarks spoke in high terms of the ability of Mr. Richardson as a change-ringer. Those remarks were confirmed by Mr. S. Herbert (Vice-Chairman), who reminded those present that he had the privilege some years ago of introducing Mr. Richardson to the art of change-ringing, which he was pleased to see was making such rapid progress in Devonshire. He was glad to see among those present, members of the Society (Messrs. Marsh, Swift, and Goss) who were instrumental with others in introducing change-ringing into the city, and it must be very gratifying to Colonel Troyte, President of the Devonshire Guild, to know that he has so thoroughly established the science in the county. Several toasts were drunk, songs were sung, and a very pleasant evening was spent. The clock was supplied by Mr. Sidney Herbert, and the scroll was the work of Mr. E. Pitt, both members of the Society.

Church News.

We regret to learn that the Bishop of St. Albans was unable to preside at his ordination on St. Thomas's Day, and is now confined to his house through illness. He is suffering from weakness resulting from over-work, and is ordered complete rest for the present.

Mrs. Wyatt, wife of the vicar of Hawley, near Farnborough, has presented the Dean and Chapter of Winchester a superb altar frontal worked by herself and her daughter. The work has occupied the two ladies seven years.

Canon Scott, of St. John's, Leeds, Commissary of Bishop Scott, of North China, requests the Bishop's correspondents to address "Cheefoo," instead of Peking, after the 1st of January, and not to write at all after the 1st of February, as the right rev. prelate will leave China at the end of March to be present at the Lambeth conference.

The Queen has, through the Dean of Windsor, presented to Mr. Mitchell, the oldest member of the choir at St. George's chapel, an engraved portrait of herself in consideration of his long musical services. Mr. Mitchell, who is upwards of seventy-eight years of age, has sung in the chapel for seventy-two years.

The Northampton Herald says that, owing to their greatly reduced income through the agricultural depression, the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough decided last week to reduce the salaries of officials 5 per cent. The decision was arrived at with reluctance; but as the Dean and Canons have had for a long time to submit to a reduction of 30 or 40 per cent., it was imperative that something should be done, the falling off in the annual income amounting to about £2000.

The last Advent lecture at St. Alphege, London Wall, was preached on Friday evening by the Rev. Gordon Calthrop. It was a very striking and original sermon, based on St. Matthew i., 21, "Thou shalt call His name Jesus; for He shall save His people from their sins," and was listened to with great interest and attention by the congregation. Some carols were sung by the choir after the service.

The Yorkshire Post says that on Sunday week the Rev. F. W. Paul, vicar of Emanuel Church, Nottingham, who is himself a football player of some repute, and has a brother of still greater renown both as a cricketer and a football player, delivered a sermon on the revival of pugilism. He did not take a text, saying it would be merely a matter of form to do so, but proceeded at once to refer to the revival of prize-fighting. They had the spectacle, he said, of a prince of the blood royal one day laying the foundation stone of a house of God, and another day shaking hands with a professional prize-fighter, who had avowedly come to this country to break the law. So far from bravery, prize-fights were generally displays of cowardice. He was determined to protest against prize-fighting, as he considered it the duty of the church to do so. The leading newspapers published side by side reports of innocent sports, such as football and foot-racing, accounts of encounters between those bruisers, and it was put under the heading of "sporting news," without word or comment to show disapproval of it. Such newspapers silently approved of such practices, and what humbug it was for them to hold up their hands with horror when Mr. Gladstone said "Remember Michels-town," for themselves to encourage the breaking of the law. He would not have the assistance of such publications—no, not to save disestablishment of the Church.

Spittlegate church, Grantham, (says the Lincolnshire Chronicle) was about the last church in the diocese where we should have expected to hear of any unpleasantness between parson and people respecting High Church practices, but on Sunday week, when the Bishop preached, the vicar sent to the Churchwardens asking them to be at the church in good time before the commencement of the service. On their arrival the vicar informed them that a lady in the neighbourhood whose husband had taken a leading part in the recent mission, had sent a cross to be placed on the communion table, and he asked the senior churchwarden, when taking up the alms of the congregation, to present the cross to the Bishop, and ask him to place it on the communion table. The churchwardens, well knowing the feelings of many members of the congregation, both declined to take part in such a ceremony, and so for a time the matter ended. At the evening service, however, the cross was upon the table, and very great offence it has given. At least two of the sidesmen forthwith resigned their offices, and they and many of the seatholders declare that they will not enter the church again unless the cross is taken away. This the vicar does not see his way to do, feeling that to remove it now would be a desecration. No one appears to really object to the cross in itself, but it is pointed out its presence is the first step to high church practices, which they detest, and so they think it their duty to protest now. The congregations on Sunday were exceedingly small.

ROCHDALE, LANCASHIRE.

On Tuesday, evening, December 22nd, at St. Alban's church, eight members of the Lancashire Association attempted Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples, in honour of the 84th birthday of Mr. Thomas Bamford, an old ringer at the Rochdale parish church for over 60 years, but was unfortunately lost through a change-course, after ringing 1 hr. 25 mins., after which Queens, firing, and a short touch was gone through in the same method. Mr. Bamford is an exceptional ringer, as we do not hear of many at that advanced age ringing for Divine Service every Sunday; he, at 78 years, having rung a 5000, and another on his 80th birthday, and on his 82nd birthday a 2520 for Divine Service, and now he thinks he could ring another. Mr. Bamford possesses a wonderful memory and is able to ring any pair in a course of Caters, and will talk as well about events in ringing which took place when he was a young man as if it only took place yesterday, he is also a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths. Mr. Bamford also takes a very great interest in "THE BELL NEWS," and always expresses great admiration for such men as Mr. Wakley, Mr. Washbrook, Mr. Heywood, and Mr. Wood of the long peal fame. The ringers take this opportunity of wishing Mr. Bamford, and also Mr. Walmsley, whose birthday it was, many happy returns of the day. The band was as follows; George Hoyle, 1; James Adshead, 2; F. Birtwistle (conductor), 3; J. Pilkington, 4; W. H. Walmsley, 5; W. R. Barrett, 6; J. Millett, 7; Samuel Brierley, 8. J. Adshead is a member of the local company, and was proposed a member of the Lancashire Association previous to the commencement of the peal. Hoyle and Birtwistle belong to Rochdale; Brierley hails from Milnrow; the rest belong to Heywood.

BIRCHINGTON, KENT.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION AND THE ROYAL CUMBERLANDS' QUEX PARK BAND.

On Christmas morning, in accordance with the usual custom, the band mustered at the tower at 7 o'clock, and some good touches of Grandsire Triples were brought round, conducted respectively by Leon and Charles Willshire. After ringing, by the kind hospitality of H. H. Powell Cotton, Esq., the band sat down to a substantial breakfast, provided for them in the servants hall, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the band, this being a new but very acceptable addition which is very enjoyable after two and a half hour's ringing. At four o'clock, by kind permission of the Rev. J. P. Alcock, vicar, six members of the band rang at All Saints church, a 720 of Grandsire Minor, in 27 mins. G. Willshire, 1; T. B. Reed, 2; C. Willshire, 3; T. B. Read, jun., 4; L. Willshire (conductor), 5; J. J. Bristow, 6. This is the first 720 in the method by all the band, and the first 720 at the parish church, the five old bells having been rehung by a local bell-hanger, and a new treble added by Warner and Sons, a beautiful bell, clear in tone and perfectly in tune, a credit to the firm who supplied it. The go of the bells is all that a half-pull ringer could wish for.

MEETING OF RINGERS AT CAMBRIDGE.

It is proposed to hold a meeting of ringers at Cambridge on January 21st, to commemorate the centenary of the long peal of 6600 of Bob Maximus rung at Great St. Mary's, on January 21st, 1787. There will also be a meeting of the Ely Diocesan Association on that day. Further arrangements will be announced. Ringers who will attend the meeting are requested to communicate with M. C. Potter, 17, Fitzwilliam street, Cambridge.

In Memoriam.

ARTHUR CRUWYS SHARLAND.

One of the oldest of the Devonshire ringers has passed away this week, in the person of Arthur Cruwys Sharland, Esq., of Tiverton, at the ripe age of eighty years.

Mr. Sharland was a vice-president of the Devonshire Guild and the St. Peter's Society. In his earlier days he became attached to the art of change-ringing in his native parish at Cruwys Morchard, and was well-known as one of the band of that village for many years. His zeal and interest did much to keep at a high state of perfection the ringing in this part of Devon. Though originally a round ringer, he was a true sympathizer with change-ringing, and all the improvements connected with it; and on special occasions rang a bell until he was seventy years of age. His daughter, Miss E. Cruwys Sharland, is well-known as an accomplished campanologist, and she has composed date touches which have been rung in many parts of England quite recently. The St. Peter's Society rang a knell at St. Peter's church, Tiverton, on Friday, December 23rd, for eighty minutes, and the muffled, as well as the real sounds of the beautiful bells could be distinctly heard at Cruwys Morchard (six miles off) when the body of their faithful vice-president was being placed in the family vault of that churchyard. The following members took part: Richard Grater, John Grater, Jas. Babbage, Richard Grater, jun., Jas. Grater, Tom Harvey, John Grater, jun., Sam Hoare, Ben Grater.

THE UNITED COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

A trial of skill in the art of change-ringing on eight bells will take place at St. Thomas's church, Leesfield, Lees, on Saturday, January 21st, when the Association Cup will be competed for (according to the terms stated in the last Annual Report), and two other prizes given, namely: 2nd prize: eight silk pocket handkerchiefs, with figured bells and ringing mottoes woven in, by Edward Matthews, of Macclesfield, given by the Leesfield ringers. 3rd prize: Eight walking sticks of exquisite design and workmanship, given by a few friends. The draw for priority of ringing will take place at the undermentioned house at 12 o'clock. This competition is for members only. The annual dinner and meeting will take place on the same day at the house of Mr. William Taylor, "Devonshire Arms," Lees, near Oldham. Dinner at 4 p.m., tickets 1s. 6d. each. Those intending being present at dinner must signify the same to host Taylor on or before Thursday, January 19th. Members are notified that the annual subscription is due at this meeting.

JAMES S. WILDE, Hon. Sec.

CRAWLEY, SUSSEX.

Having obtained permission from the vicar of Heene, near Worthing, for the use of the bells on Boxing day, nine members of the Crawley branch of the Sussex County Association journeyed there to ring a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, but after ringing 1296 changes, in 50 mins., they came to grief. W. Collison, 1; M. Heffer, 2; B. King, 3; W. Wadey, 4; A. F. Hillier, 5; H. Burstow, 6; D. Jordan, 7; F. Wickens (conductor), 8; and J. Newnham as spare member. They visited afterwards the Broadwater church, and rang two 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles with Mr. B. Bassett, a member of the Heene branch, the bells not being in good going order for Minor. The members wish to express their best thanks to the vicar for use of bells, and to the members of the Heene and Broadwater branches for their kindness in making the visit so enjoyable, although not able to get the peal tried for, to the great disappointment of the conductor.
