Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

To Geo. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

RINGERS' DINNER AT WESTMINSTER.

THE FIRST ANNUAL DINNER of the St. Stephen's Society took place at the Victoria Restaurant, on Saturday, February 26th, the Rev. W. M. Sinclair (vicar), presiding, and Mr. W. H. Baker occupying the vice-chair. Among the visitors were the Revs. G. Tiley and — Twining (curates), and the Rev. J. Sinclair, of All Saints', Fulham. In all about twenty-eight sat down to dinner. After the cloth was removed, the usual loyal toast was given, "The Queen and Royal Family," proposed by the Chairman, and in doing so he alluded to the importance of bellringers in furthering church work, in fact he considered, next to the choir, they were the next important connected with the Church. He also spoke upon the coming Jubilee, after which the whole company sang "God save the Queen." The next on the programme was a song given by Mr. Pryor, entitled "The Golden Wedding." In proposing the health of "The President and Vice-President," Mr. Bell said they all considered themselves very fortunate in having the chair filled that evening by their worthy President, especially as it was their first dinner, but he sincerely hoped that it would not be the last, and he hoped the President would become a ringing member, but he knew it would be asking too much considering what little time he had to spare; the same remarks applied to the other rev. gentlemen. The society seemed to be progressing very favourably, and he hoped it would long continue to do so, and he hoped also that the President and Vice-President would continue to fill the positions they now held. They had through the kindness of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, began to learn change-ringing, under the able tuition of Mr. J. M. Hayes. The President in responding, said he was very pleased to be present, and hoped to be on many more occasions, and he was also pleased that the society was getting on so well. He thought that the instructor was doing his best, especially as one of the members had already rang a 5040, and he hoped that many of the others would soon follow his example. The Rev. J. Sinclair then sang "Hearts of Oak," and Mr. Duff, "Tom Bowling."

THE VICE-CHAIRMAN in proposing the toast of "The Society," said it gave him much pleasure to be in the position he held that evening. He thought the members deserved great praise for the way in which they had kept together, for he knew it had been a very uphill game both for them and their instructor, and once or twice the society seemed likely to collapse. He was very pleased to see that they had felt themselves strong enough to meet together in the manner they had done that evening, and he joined with Mr. Bell in hoping it would not be the last time. He felt rather sorry that he was not a ringer himself, but he wished them every success and hoped the Society would continue to progress as it had done of late. This was responded to by Mr. Newton. Afterwards a touch of Grandsire Triples was rang on handbells by Messrs. Newton, McLaughlin, Hayes, and Copley. Mr. W. H. Baker then sang "Jack's the ring of all." Mr. Lamb (steeple-keeper), proposed the health of "The Chairman and Vice-Chairman," which was received with much enthusiasm, being given with musical honours. Several other toasts were then proposed, including one for "The Visitors," to which the Rev. J. Sinclair, and Mr. Trotter responded, and one for "The Stewards," responded to by Mr. Burgess. Afterwards songs were given by Messrs. Ellis, Burgess, and Trotter. The visitors left, having wished everybody good night, and hoping they would enjoy themselves. It still being quite early, Mr. Lamb was elected chairman, and Mr. Hayes to the vice-chair, when some capital singing followed, including "The long peal at Bethnal Green," by Mr. Hayes, and "Jack's Yarn," by Mr. McLaughlin, the whole terminating with "God save the Queen," and "Auld Lang Syne." The members then separated, all agreeing they had spent a very enjoyable evening.

BIDDENHAM, BEDS.

On Friday, the 11th inst., several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles were rung by the local company, with the bells deeply muffled, as a mark of respect for the late Mrs. Lavender, mother of the late Churchwarden, and who was buried in the afternoon. The deceased lady was much beloved by the inhabitants of this small village, amongst whom she had lived all her life, and a large number of people attended the burial service, to pay their last respects to the deceased, who had reached the uncommon age of 94 years. Before falling the bells, the "Original whole pull and stand," was rung 94 times. D. Green, 1; C. West, 2; A. Ingram, 3; H. King, 4; C. R. Howard, 5; W. West, 6. On the Sunday afternoon following, several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles were rung with the bells half-muffled, as a last token of respect to the above lady. A. Ingram, 1; H. King, 2; W. Biggs, 3; W. King, 4; C. R. Howard, 5; D. Green, 6. The captain begs herewith to thank the head ringer of St. Paul's, Bedford, Mr. I. Hills, for the use of the muffers, which he so kindly lent them.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING of the above Association was held on Saturday, March 19th, at Harwich, but owing partly to the distance and partly to the weather, there was a very small attendance, the only visitors besides the Secretary being Messrs. Parmenter, Hawkes, and Rowland, from Chelmsford; W. Nevard, from Great Bentley; N. Hawkins from Walter Belchamp; and W. Lincoln, from Writtle. The bells of St. Nicholas Church were set going soon after their arrival, and a 924 of Grandsire Triples (Queen's Tittums, and 9,6,7's), were brought round. N. Hawktns, 1; W. Rowland, 2; W. J. Nevard, 3; W. Hawkes, 4; W. Green (Harwich), 5; Rev. T. L. Papillon, 6; W. Lincoln (conductor), 7; J. Parmenter, 8. In the afternoon after an unsuccessful attempt at a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples by seven of the local company with W. Lincoln, of Writtle, a 672 of Bob Major. *W. Green (Harwich), 1; *W. Eester (Harwich), 2; W. Rowland (Chelmsford), 3; W. Hawkes (Springfield), 4; W. J. Nevard (Great Bentley), 5; J. Parmenter (Chelmsford), 6; *W. Lincoln (Writtle, conductor), 7; N. Hawkins (Walter Belchamp), 8. *First touch of Major. The belfry which is approached by an easy staircase, is in thoroughly good order, and the ropes fall in a good circle, the only drawback being the position of the ringer of No. 5 under a sloping ladder, against which he may, if not careful, knock his head or hands. The bells are a nice ring, tenor 13½ cwt., and go easily, but one or two appear to strike somewhat false. Take it all in all, however, the Harwich belfry is a pleasant place to ring in, and the ringers (a young band), seem to have plenty of the right spirit of perseverance. Tea was served at 4 p.m. at the "Great Eastern Hotel," the Rev. G. W. Druce, Vicar of the parish, presiding. At the business meeting which followed, Messrs. H. Fruin (College Youth), Barking; A. Knight (Probationer), Harwich; and T. Goodall (Sandon), were elected ringing members of the Association, and the provisional election of Messrs. E. P. Debenham (St. Albans), and W. L. Garrard (London), on the occasion of a peal rung at Southgate, on February 5th, was confirmed. The Secretary read a letter from the firm entrusted with the entry of peals in the peal book, showing that the style of entry, and consequent charge, was in accordance with the instructions of previous secretaries, and it was agreed to reserve the question for the Annual Meeting on Whit Monday. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman, who expressed his warm interest in the progress of ringing in his own parish, and his hope that the Association would pay another visit to Harwich in more genial weather. After some excellent tune playing on the handbells by five of the Harwich ringers, the party broke up for the visitors to catch the 5.40. train (the last from Harwich in the direction of Chelmsford and London), with many regrets that the railway arrangements did not permit of a return to the belfry.

The Annual Meeting will be held on Whit-Monday, at Chelmsford. Besides St. Mary's at Chelmsford (which we hope may by that time have ten bells), there are three eight bell towers—Baddow, Galleywood, and Writtle, and three six bell towers—Broomfield, Widford, and Springfield, within easy reach, so that Chelmsford is an exceedingly good centre for a ringer's gathering. T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

PRESENTATION OF A PUBLIC CLOCK TO MOSSLEY CHURCH.

It is with much pleasure that we announce that the new tower of St. George's is to be fitted with a public clock, the gift of Mrs. Kershaw and Miss Beswick, Mount Gambier, sisters of Councillor Beswick. The two ladies have intimated to the Vicar, the Rev. A. Hall, M.A., that they have commissioned a firm of clockmakers to manufacture a public clock for the tower, which it is their intention to present to the Church in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee. The clock will have three large-sized cast-iron dials, facing east, north, and west, with raised figures and minutes, sunk centres and copper hands, and the motive power will be fitted with Lord Grimthorpe's gravity escapement and compensation pendulum, and all the latest improvements. The makers have undertaken to have the clock fixed and ready for starting on the 20th of June next, on which day it is intended to set it in motion. The clock will supply a public want.

THE ROYAL CUMBERLAND SOCIETY.

NOTICE.

This Society's annual supper takes place at the headquarters, 54, St. Martin's Lane, W.C., on Friday evening, April 1st. Members and friends will please accept this invitation, and signify their intentions to the Hon. Secretary by Friday the 25th inst. Tickets for the occasion 2s. 6d. each. Supper will be ready at 8 p.m. precisely.

THE NUMBER OF BELLRINGERS IN ENGLAND.

The following list, taken from the Official Year Book of the Church of England, has been forwarded to us by a correspondent. We can scarcely agree with the figures given, though the source from which they emanate may be from a general point of view, trustworthy. Had the Editor of the Year Book condescended to write to us upon the matter, perhaps we could have made one or two suggestions to him.

PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.—It has been truly said that the business of this great Company continues to progress by leaps and bounds. The assurance funds have increased during the year by the sum of £1,122,054, viz.: the Ordinary branch £319,496, and the Industrial Branch £802,558. The total assets of the Company amount to £6,811,954. It may therefore with correctness be stated that the "Prudential" possesses to-day the extraordinary sum of £7,000,000 sterling. This is a very startling fact, and is without a parallel in the history of Life Assurance. The advantages to the insured are greater and more solid than any benefits offered by any other company. The management take, as it were, the general public into their confidence, everything is laid bare for inspection and criticism, and the result is astounding.

THE CONDITION OF ST. PETER'S BELFRY, ST. ALBAN'S, HERTS.

ON Wednesday, March 9th, after the evening service at St. Peter's, a meeting of the congregation, parishioners, and others interested in the church work, was held for the purpose of receiving a report concerning the belfry. The chair was taken by Mr. H. S. L. Harding, and there was an attendance of about thirty, including the two curates. A letter was laid before the meeting from Messrs. Taylor's and Co., reporting that Mr. Taylor had examined the church bells and found the fifth bell cracked, so that it must necessarily be recast, and ought long ago to have received attention. The main beams which carry the belfry are scarcely strong enough for the weight they have to sustain, and Messrs. Taylor suggested two rivetted girders being fixed under the beams.

Mr. DICKSON asked the chairman if it was true that the tower itself was unsafe, because that impression was made by his circular which was placed in the pews on Sunday.

The CHAIRMAN replied that the feeling when in the tower was anything but a safe one.

The Rev. T. PITMAN said he had been in the tower and noticed that it rocked enough to send a babe to sleep.

Mr. TARTE (an architect, who is a member of the congregation), at once explained that the tower was not unsafe because it oscillated; in fact no tower would be safe unless it did oscillate. He did not consider the oscillation of the St. Peter's tower of any great account. As he was a member of the congregation and took a great interest in Church affairs, he had made an examination, and would be pleased to make a report gratuitously if the meeting would desire it. He did not approve of the suggestion for rivetted girders, because they would be too rigid, and to use iron girders to those beams would be unscientific, and might do a deal of harm to the tower. He saw there was a crack in the tower of about two feet long, and looked like one of long years' standing. What he should advise them to do would be to cut out the crack and fill in with brick in cement and hoop iron bonding, and the cost would be, comparatively speaking, a few shillings. As he had said, if they would care for him to do so, he would get ready a report for them gratuitously.

Mr. MASTERS said it was necessary to keep before them that it was the state of the bells that required attention. £120 had been stated to be the cost of recasting and rehanging, but that not including the expenses of scaffolding, etc., would have to be increased, so that probably £200 would be wanted.

Mr. TARTE said that when he made an examination, all the timbers he tested were sound, though there were a few joists in the floor gone, yet all the large timbers were sound.

Colonel RIND thought the chief difficulty was in getting the money, for having once the funds they could then do all that was necessary, though it was satisfactory to hear that the tower was not unsafe. He should move that a committee be formed to raise a fund.

Mr. TARTE said St. Peter's was the best peal of bells in the neighbourhood, and ought of course to be kept in good condition.

The CHAIRMAN remarked that he did not understand quite what it meant, but there were great objections made to the "clogging." Of course what the churchwardens, and indeed he supposed all of them, were anxious to do, was to get the belfry in a fit state before the Jubilee celebration day, as he was sure they would be heartily sorry if they were not able to ring a peal on that occasion.

Mr. DICKSON then seconded Colonel Rind's proposition, that a committee be formed, and the following gentlemen consented to serve: the Chairman, Colonel Rind, and Messrs. Dickson, Debenham, Masters, Wroot, Tarte, Lewis, Grant, Ivory, and Fowler. The meeting then accepted Mr. Tarte's offer to prepare a report, and thanked him for his kindness, and awaiting this report it was agreed that the proceedings should be adjourned till that evening fortnight.

ST. SAVIOUR'S CHURCH, BACUP.—A peal of bells will be placed in the tower of this church, and they will be rung for the first time on the Queen's Jubilee Day, June 21st. Four bells have already been promised, the donors being James Maden Holt, Esq., J.P., Stubbylee (whose father gave the ground and the money for building the church); E. Hoyle, Esq., J.P., Moorlands (Wesleyan); Henry Maden, Esq., J.P., Rockliffe House (Wesleyan); and Councillor Miles Ashworth, Acre Mill (Churchman). Tenders for the necessary work have been already accepted.

AT ST. STEPHEN'S.

"SAINT STEPHEN'S, WESTMINSTER," in fact; not that church in Rochester-row, redolent of Grandsire Major and Triples, but the palace of St. Stephen's, on which site laws, for the benefit and sometimes for the wholesome reproof of Englishmen, Irishmen, aye, and even Scotchmen, are enacted. In short the Commons' House of Parliament. Readers of "THE BELL NEWS" will be surprised to hear that one of their brother-strings is a member of such an august body, and on being told so will very likely puzzle their brains to find out who the individual is, but the task will be needless and futile, because under no circumstances must his name be divulged, and no questions regarding his identity will be satisfactorily answered. The reason for such reticence must be obvious to the meanest capacity, for what is written here may be made a question of "privilege," and some busybody in the House may be impertinent enough to put a question to the Government respecting "THE BELL NEWS," its intent and objects. Imagine the hon. gentleman the member for Bottlewash asking the Home Secretary if he can inform the House whether the member for the city of ——— belongs to a secret society, whose occult problems as published week by week in their own organ are calculated in future to affect the Budget; and to move a resolution! Therefore the writer must be practically incog. Sufficient is it for the Editor to know his contributor, and enough for the readers of "our" paper if they find one agreeable moment while perusing these lines. By the way, I should be grateful for the names and addresses of some of the latter, just for encouragement. I shall be greatly disappointed if I do not get a host of communications denoting approval of this new feature of "THE BELL NEWS." Letters may be addressed to "M.P.' care of the Editor." So much by way of preface.

MONDAY.—The Speaker took the chair at four o'clock (and, adds a waggish fellow who is looking over my shoulder at the time I write never brought it back again). The papers say this; I can't vouch for it, because I was not present at the time. It is my invariable practice to get down to the House about half-past four, the time at which the "G. O. M." invariably arrives, and getting behind a few paces, I share the protection furnished by the police-serjeant who always follows, at a respectful distance, the right hon. gentleman the member for Midlothian, as he walks down to the house. Then as we near the palace yard, I close up, and gain some of the plaudits and enthusiasm intended for him, which of course is very gratifying. We enter Westminster Hall just as the clock is striking the half-hour, and I proceed through the corridor to my seat, which is always courteously vacated upon my entrance. Mr. W. H. Smith, the First Lord of the Treasury, is this evening answering a question respecting the Navy Estimates. The first motion was moved by the Secretary for Ireland which was in fact, what is now known as the "Irish Crimes Bill." The motion created some amount of opposition, especially from Mr. Morley, who gave notice of the following amendment: "That this House declines to set aside the business of the nation in favour of a measure for increasing the stringency of the criminal law in Ireland, while no effectual security has been taken against the abuse of the law by the exaction of excessive rents." This amendment of course was received with boisterous applause from the Home Rulers and non-Unionists. After a short desultory discussion, the House went into Committee of supply, and the vote of £992,000 for the clothing of the seamen and marines was met by a storm of opposition, in which the Home Rule members were prominent. The disclosures made one evening last week by a former navy constructor, had no doubt something to do with the repugnance displayed to this vote, and it really seems that the administration of our navy requires an efficient overhauling, or else our fancied security will some day explode. Every form of the House was brought into use to defeat the Government. At a quarter past one in the morning, Mr. Labouchere moved to report progress. This was defeated, as was also another motion for the purpose of delay. Speaking upon the question of victualling, Mr. J. O'Connor humorously "impressed upon the Government that, instead of resorting to foreign countries, they might, with great economy, obtain a better provision supply for the navy from Ireland. There was no need to go beyond Ireland for an adequate supply of pork. Ireland, indeed, might be said to be the home of the pig. A credit to the family, he was the gentleman that paid the rent, the rates, and the taxes; and no doubt, if his unlimited resources were called upon, he would be equal to the requirements of the British navy." So much for the pig. The sitting having been inordinately prolonged, at half-past four the leader of the House proposed that the "Closure" be adopted, which was carried by a majority of 153. But this did not do away with the power of the opposing forces arrayed against the Government proposals in Supply. Personalities were freely bandied about, and as fast explained away or withdrew; relays of members, belonging to both sides of the House, kept up the proceedings, and competent chairmen came in, one after another, to relieve each occupant. At length, the orders having been disposed of, the House adjourned at twenty minutes past one on Wednesday, the sitting having lasted more than twenty-one hours.

TUESDAY.—In a somewhat brief speech, Mr. Smith pleaded "urgency" for the Crimes Bill. He was answered by Mr. Morley, who refused to accept the dictum laid down that it was necessary to have coercion previous to remedial measures, in fact it was absolutely necessary in legislating for Ireland, to pass first a measure to tranquillise that unfortunate country. Mr. Morley was very eloquent, as may have been expected, but from the views he makes plain upon the Irish difficulty, it is well known his sympathies lie in the direction of Home Rule, which, judging from the present state of political parties, does not seem to be near. Mr. Balfour (the Irish Secretary), retorted upon "the gentleman who had just sat down" in no measured terms, and at the close of the sitting (quarter past eleven), it became obvious that the Government would pursue the passage of the Bill to the bitter end. It may be confidently assumed, therefore, that should the verdict they seek upon this question be an unfavourable one, they will resign office, but whether we shall by that act be landed in the throes of a General Election, is purely a matter of conjecture.

WEDNESDAY.—This is generally a rather slack day in the House and on this occasion the questions were comparatively few, but not far between. The adjourned debate on Mr. Morley's amendment to Mr. Smith's motion for "urgency" in favour of "the introduction of several stages of the Criminal Law Amendment (Ireland) Bill," was resumed by Sir G. Campbell, and well maintained by Messrs. Bradlaugh, Brice, Lockwood, and others, the last named gentleman describing amid laughter, a previous speaker as an "Irish Scotch Unionist Liberal." After the debate upon this question had been adjourned, Mr. Smith appealed to the House to bring it to a speedy conclusion, on account of its importance to the continuation in office of the present Government. In general language Mr. Gladstone concurred in the appeal, though the reasons mentioned by the leader of the House were sufficient to prevent the debate being unduly restricted. After a few words from Mr. Parnell intimating that five or six of his party desired to have their say before the motion was put from the chair, the House adjourned at six o'clock.

THE RINGER IN PARLIAMENT.

DINTON, WILTS.

On Saturday, March 19th, six members of the Salisbury City Company paid a visit to the village of Dinton. Arriving at about 4 p.m. after an hour's drive, they were met by Mr. Wright, the captain of the Dinton Company, who had kindly got the bells all up and everything arranged for the visitors. They proceeded at once to ring a 6-score of Grandsire Doubles, Mr. Wright ringing the fourth. The Salisbury men then rang a 720 Bob Minor. J. Judd, 1; C. A. Clements, 2; W. E. Tydeman, 3; W. W. Gifford, 4; T. Blackburn (conductor), 5; J. R. Jerram, 6. Another 720 (eighteen bobs and two singles) was then rung, after which the ringers adjourned to the "Wyndham Arms" and partook of tea. After tea they again visited the tower, and rang a 720 Bob Minor (with forty-two singles), composed by Mr. C. Jackson of Hull. J. Judd, 1; J. R. Jerram, 2; W. E. Tydeman, 3; W. W. Gifford, 4; C. A. Clements, 5; T. Blackburn (conductor), 6. Tenor 16 cwt. After a "friendly glass" at the "Wyndham Arms" they made their way home to Salisbury, well satisfied with their day's outing.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The index to the fifth volume is in course of preparation, and we hope to have it ready for our readers earlier than has been usually the case. An extra number will then be issued with a PORTRAIT and MEMOIR of a well-known ringer.

REPRINT OF ANOTHER WORK ON CHANGE-RINGING.

The publisher of "THE BELL NEWS" has the pleasure to announce the issue, in penny weekly numbers, of a rare old work upon ringing, entitled "Campanalogia Improved; or the Art of Ringing made easy," &c. This work is printed uniform with "Shipway" and the "Clavis," which have been so eagerly taken up.

The Publisher believes that the re-issues of these various old ringing works, which at the present day are from their scarcity, so difficult of perusal, will be approved of by ringers. Their publication enables all who have an inclination for the useful, as well as the curious, to possess in time a valuable and complete ringing library. The copy, which has been kindly lent to the editor of this journal by Mr. S. B. Goslin, of the Crescent Foundry, Cripplegate, belongs to a fifth edition, "Corrected by J. Monk." For the purposes of easy publication it is called after his name, and those intending to take in the penny weekly numbers, should ask for "Monk on Ringing."

All who are desirous of securing copies should do so without delay, as a second reprint is out of the question.

"THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD" will be forwarded, post free, on the following terms:—

One copy, 12 months	6s. 6d.
" 6 "	3s. 3d.
" 3 "	1s. 8d.

All Subscriptions and Orders for papers must be sent direct to the Publisher E. W. ALLEN, Ave Maria Lane, London.

Everything for insertion in this Journal to be addressed "The Editor of THE BELL NEWS, Walthamstow, London." Letters forwarded for publication, and performances under 5000 changes must reach us not later than Wednesday morning; and the insertion of any communication arriving later than the first Postal delivery on Thursday morning cannot be guaranteed in that week's number. When it is found impossible from want of space to insert all touches forwarded, the earlier ones will have the preference.

All communications respecting advertisements must be addressed to the office of "THE BELL NEWS," Walthamstow, London.

SATURDAY, MARCH 26, 1887.

THERE is a very marked increase of power, at the present day, in the torrent of opposition which is manifested towards the continuance of existing institutions in their present shape and form. Notably is this the case in matters connected with the Church, whether they have a remote or near relation to it. At present the chief theatre of hostility appears to be the question of what is known as "tithe," and the inconsistency shewn in the attack is in many cases too visible to allow one atom of respect being exhibited towards the agitators. The payment of any impost is objectionable, and apt to create a certain amount of irritation. We may say the same of land-tax or ground-rent, or in fact of every conceivable amount of tribute which the world has experienced since the time of the Emperor Augustus, in whose reign, we are told, all the world came up to Jerusalem to be taxed. Perhaps land-tax bears the greatest analogy to tithe, both being charges upon land. But whoever thinks of submitting to legal restraint upon their household goods because they object, "on principle," to pay either land-tax or ground-rent? There is evidently something else besides this "principle" that excites the opposition to tithe. It may be the want of principle; certainly it is that in many cases the objectors to the payment of tithe seem to possess little of that commodity, for how can it be regarded but as a gross breach of faith to refuse, even "upon principle," to fulfil solemn contracts entered into, merely because the honest and due performance of the covenant tends to assist the already ridiculously low stipend (in many cases) of a priest of the Church of England. The cry out at the present time against tithe is a grand sham. It really is another of the dastardly projects of the Liberation Society and its myrmidons for reopening a fresh campaign against the Church. The wire-pullers of the present agitation in Wales are fully aware that if tithes were abolished to-morrow, those who have to pay it would not be one whit the better off. If tithe were simply done away with, the landowner would gain its full amount in an increased rent, and no advantage would therefore accrue to the tenant. And if it were diverted to a "secular" purpose, in conformity with the confiscation notions of the "Member for West Birmingham," the tenant would still have to pay it like he does at present, as part of his rent. Therefore, agitation upon such a question will never materially benefit the tenants who are being made a catspaw of by enemies of the Church, for the purpose of giving aid to another conspiracy against her.

We hear of no agitation in regard to land-tax or ground-rent, though either of such payments is just as objectionable as tithes. There are those possessed of real estate who rejoice to hear of these attacks upon tithe, but who would at the same time put the law in motion to confiscate the effects of a creditor who owed them ground-rent. And yet there is very much in common between the two. Those who hire farms and other kinds of property which are subject to tithe, enter into the necessary covenants for such payment with their eyes open, and become fully acquainted with the responsibilities their tenancy enjoins. So does the lessee of property where there is a ground-rent or land-tax to be paid. But in neither of the latter do we yet hear of any organised opposition to its payment.

It is very clear that the mainspring of this agitation lies in the fact that the proceeds due from tithe goes not into the pockets of money-grubbers and land speculators, but to the incomes of benefices. This is very objectionable to the Church's enemies, and those who labour for her downfall, and it unfortunately gives occasion for the blatant atheistical demagogue or rabid Dissenter to display their abilities. But why should the parson—in many cases the only man of refinement and gentility in the parish—be mulcted of his rights, when successful land jobbers, who have nothing but their impudence to recommend them, get their improved ground-rents without trouble? The fair play, upon which an Englishman prides himself, is wanted here, certainly. It would be thought a curious thing if those who have to pay ground-rents were to object—"on principle"—to pay them when the demand came, on the plea that payment was objectionable. We can picture the visages of some of those who are in the receipt of such lucrative sources of income, if a refusal, instead of prompt payment, was tendered to them—"on principle." Dire threats of legal process would of course follow. Mark the consistency of such people! Object to tithe if we will, but let us be somewhat near straightforward and consistent in our objection.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE HOLT SOCIETY, (ASTON-JUXTA-BIRMINGHAM), AND THE BIRMINGHAM AMALGAMATED.

SIR,—As Secretary of the Birmingham Amalgamated society, I most emphatically deny that any resolution was passed prohibiting members of the Amalgamated Society from ringing with the Holt Society in their handbell performances. In January of last year, I myself rang two peals with the Holt Society, though I had been requested by four of our members not to ring handbell peals with the Holt Society, under that designation, neither Mr. Townsend or any other members of our society knowing this requisition. How Mr. Kent reconciles this with a resolution of the Amalgamated Society, I cannot understand. I may add that two of the above members alluded to have seceded from our ranks. What shape Mr. Kent's substantiation of which he speaks will now take I am utterly at a loss to discern, and I think that were ringers to make themselves more conversant with facts, they would prevent a great deal of unpleasantness, which is the outcome of ignorance of the subject under discussion.

RINGING WITHOUT ROPE-SIGHT.

SIR,—Deaf and blind men have before now been successful change-ringers, and it may be worth while to bring to the notice of your readers a method which should be useful to clergymen and others who wish to be able to ring without giving much time to practising with a band. I do not suppose that this method is new, though I have had to work it out for myself, from a rule-of-thumb system, which I was taught many years ago. Each ringer had a slip of paper, shewing the order of the bells, which he followed in a set peal, and which he learnt by heart. I give a specimen below: The course of your bell may be shewn by marks, with which I need not trouble the printer. The peal is Grandsire Doubles. The bars are for leads.

For the Fifth.		For the Treble.
Plain Course.	Bob	Single

It is not absolutely necessary to have any knowledge of "Ropesight," but it will be much better to learn the very simple rule that "each bell in hunting up, follows the bell, which in the preceding change struck after it." The learner will then, after leading, have only to note where he passes the treble, and to pursue his course till he leads again, taking the bells in an order which he will have learnt by observation. My own experience of this plan is limited to Grandsire Doubles and Grandsire Minor, and I have had no opportunity of putting the latter method to the test of practice. But there is no theoretical difficulty in the matter. Take a paper and pencil, and you will soon find the order in which the bell you suppose yourself to be ringing, will follow the others through every peal in which the treble has a plain hunt. When you can do this readily on paper, do it in your head, then try it on a muffled bell in the steeple, and then with the band.

Whitstone, 19th March.

CORRECTIONS.

SIR,—The peal of Treble Bob Royal, rung at Manchester Cathedral on the 10th of March, and reported in your impression of the 19th inst., was one of 5080 changes, and not 5040 as stated. Thanking you for inserting this correction.

A. ED. WREAKS.

SIR,—The quarter-peal by H. J. Tucker (No. 128 "BELL NEWS") rung at Galleywood, and reported last week, as containing twelve 7-4's, twelve 4-6's, and twelve 6-7's is wrong as regards these qualities. The quarter-peal contains twelve 7-4's, eight 4-6's, and eight 6-7's.

SIR,—In "THE BELL NEWS" of March 12th, a date touch that read Major should read Royal.

A REQUEST.

SIR,—Will you allow me space in your column to ask our bell ringing friends if some one will forward me a lead, with a bob and a single of Warnham Court Bob Minor, for the good of a six bell company.

DIAGRAMS versus FIGURES.

SIR,—Allow me to congratulate you on the completion of your fifth volume and the enlargement of your paper, and to answer your appeal to those who read regularly but do not write by this letter. First, I should like to begin with a little grumble. Since I have been a ringer I have been a diligent reader of your paper, and I always look forward to its arrival; but from time to time my pleasure in reading it has been greatly marred by the little squabbles and private disputes and personalities which have happened in the correspondence column. Do you not think that ringers, as office bearers in the House of the Prince of Peace, might be a little more peaceably disposed one to another? If one claims a method or a peal as original that seems hardly enough to make another fly at him as a pirate and a robber, because he happens to have seen the method or the peal before. May I make an appeal through you for a little more politeness and gentleness amongst the brothers of the art? I want to bring before your readers a plan that I have used with success for learning various methods. I do not claim it as original, and if others have used it before, I gladly give place to them, but I have not come across it and I think it useful both for beginners and also in learning more advanced methods. It has always seemed to me that one of the great difficulties or obstacles in the way of learning for a beginner, is that he sees in his book, or he pricks down on his paper, a number of figures, and when he sees the figure 2 or the figure 4, it for a time means the 2nd or the 4th bell for him and no other. Now, it occurred to me that if the learner could be taught without the use of figures at all, he would escape a good deal of difficulty, and would be saved having to unlearn afterwards much that he learns at first. The diagrams of Snowdon's "Standard Methods" gave me the idea. I printed a quantity of paper with a cyclostyle ruled into little squares. The copying paper is ruled with about nine to the square inch, so that by ruling another line in between those on the paper I got about 36 to the square inch which I found a convenient size. Now suppose I want to learn a triple method, I take a sheet of my paper and with a pen and ink, rule it into columns with seven squares in a row (for Minor, of course, there would be six, for Major eight, and so on). Then a horizontal line at every fourteenth row and the paper is ready for working out the plain course. Each little square will represent the place of a bell and each row of seven will be a change. I then take a red pencil and mark out the path of the treble through as many leads as there are in the plain course, and if there is a bell in the hunt I put that in with a black lead pencil. Then with a blue pencil I put in the work of an inside bell, in the same way as in Snowdon's diagrams, but without any figures. In this way the work may be learnt with comparative ease. Of course, one pencil may be used instead of three, but the different colours make it clearer. The paper will be found useful also for writing out or composing peals, and I should think that learners, conductors, and composers would be grateful if you were to issue paper ruled in this manner, as every one is not able to print it for themselves.

BOB MINOR VARIATIONS.

SIR,—My attention having been called to the correspondence on the above subject in "THE BELL NEWS," I beg to state that the complete 720 with 148 calls, was composed by me in 1868, as stated by Mr. Spencer. Previous to that time only 616 had been accomplished. The following copies of Mr. Dixon's letters which he subsequently addressed to me, and which I still retain in my possession, should leave no doubts in the minds of anyone as to who or who is not the author of the 720 above-mentioned. "St. Martins', Stamford, September 13th, 1868. Mr. Hollis,—Dear Sir,—I am much delighted with your accomplishment of 720 changes of Bob Minor Variations; I tried to get the full peal a long time in the year 1830, but could not accomplish more than 616 changes, it would give me great pleasure if you would kindly forward me by letter upon what bells you have made the bobs through the peal, as also what bells the singles are made upon. I purpose being at Maxey feast the last week in September, and after receiving your information, the Maxey society and others no doubt will endeavour to ring the peal." The peal was afterwards printed on sheets of paper by some person who gave Mr. Dixon all the credit of composing, etc., a copy of which Mr. Dixon forwarded to me with the following note. "May 10th, 1869—Sir,—Please accept the enclosed which was printed without my knowledge, the cause of double paper at the top is, that the parties had given me all the credit of composing, but knowing it was not due to me, I had it printed in its present state." I may say that on a visit to Mr. Dixon on a subsequent occasion, he presented me with a copy of Hubbard's work on ringing, saying, "Accept this as a present from me, you have done well my boy."

Jno. T. HOLLIS.

ANSWER TO OBSERVER.

SIR,—In your issue of the 12th inst., I notice a letter from one who subscribes himself "Observer," asking for information respecting the weight of the tenor bell at Chichester Cathedral, and interrogating the original plan concerning the bells at St. Paul's Church, Brighton, by enquiring whether "the big bell, which is clocked previous to Divine Service on Sundays, was ever intended for a tenor to a ring of ten." In answer to your correspondent's first query, I beg to state that the weight of the tenor at Chichester is about 21 cwt. This statement is borne out to a great extent by the fact that her dimensions do not exceed 44 inches in height and 49 inches in diameter. This bell is somewhat similar to the tenor of a ring of eight which is to be met with in the tower of S. Mary's Church, Scarborough, weighing 21 cwt. 2 qrs. 13 lbs., and measuring 50½ inches in diameter. I must not omit to mention that both these bells are in the key of E flat. Your correspondent observes that there exists a difference of opinion as to the weight of the bell in question. This, undoubtedly, arises from the fact that the Chichester campanologists are wont to declare that their tenor weighs 27 cwt. If one were to visit their campanile he might see this weight recorded in a manuscript book kept in the ringing chamber. I have always received with some amount of incredulity the statements of ringers regarding weights of tenors, simply because they are so apt to assert that a bell weighing 21 cwt. weighs no less than 27 cwt. It is greatly to be wished that ringers would turn their attention to the importance of ascertaining the accurate weights of tenors.

In answer to "Observer's" second query, I will quote a passage from Vol. 16 of the Sussex Archaeological Collections, which was written before the bells of S. Paul's were augmented to their present number. "The big bell at S. Paul's, Brighton, weighs more than two tons; it is destined to be the tenor of a peal of eight, of which the four smaller bells are already provided." The four bells alluded to were, with the big bell, the sole occupiers of the tower for a period of 20 years. The number was afterwards increased by the addition of four lighter ones in the year 1873.

The S. Paul's Guild, Brighton, March 22nd, 1887.

PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.

CHIEF OFFICE: HOLBORN BARS, LONDON.

Summary of the Reports presented at the Thirty-eighth Annual Meeting, held on 3rd March, 1887.

In the Ordinary Branch the number of policies issued during the year was 25,567, assuring the sum of £2,715,429, and producing a New Annual Premium Income of £125,604. The Premiums of the year were £396,940, being an increase of £93,665 over the year 1885. The claims of the year amounted to £135,361.

The rate of expenditure of the Branch was little more than Ten per cent. on the Premium Income. The number of policies in force was 85,089.

An alteration has been made in the Regulations of the Company, empowering the Directors in future to pay an interim bonus upon all Participating Policies on their becoming Claims, in respect of any Premiums paid subsequent to the last distribution of profits.

The Premiums received during the year in the Industrial Branch were £2,911,295, being an increase of £116,773. The claims of the year amounted to £1,123,428. The number of deaths was 135,851. The rate of expenditure of the Branch shows a slight reduction. The number of Policies in force, including 58,099, Free Policies, was 7,111,828.

A supplement to this Report will also be submitted, showing how the assets of the Company are invested.

The tables of the Industrial Branch have been again revised, and additional advantages are secured to the Assured which the Directors believe will yet further enhance the popularity of the Company.

SUMMARY OF THE QUINQUENNIAL REPORT.

FOR THE PERIOD ENDING 31ST DECEMBER, 1886.

In the Ordinary Branch the Annual Premium Income has increased from £142,732 to £407,360. The Assurance Fund has grown from £744,583 to £1,764,600.

In the Industrial Branch the Annual Premium Income has increased from £2,051,024 to £3,065,551. The Assurance Fund has grown from £1,721,493 to £4,937,003.

The Total Assets of the Company have grown from £2,580,002 to £6,811,954, being an increase of £4,231,952 in the five years under inspection. The rate of expenditure during the Quinquennium in the Ordinary Branch has remained nearly stationary, at little more than ten per cent. A reduction of seven and a-half per cent. has been effected in the expenses of the Industrial Branch.

It will be seen from Mr. Dewey's Report that the average duration of all the Policies in the Industrial Branch is now no less than five and a-half years, a satisfactory indication of the success which is attending the efforts of the Directors to increase the duration of the assurances.

Extract from Mr. A. H. BAILEY'S Report.

Having from time to time been consulted as to the principles upon which the valuations should be made of the outstanding liabilities of your Company on the 31st December last, I have now examined the results of those valuations, the processes employed in obtaining and checking the particulars from the records, and the methods adopted to insure accuracy in the calculations.

Some notion may be formed of the magnitude of the work when it is stated that the number of assurances in force, exclusive of annuity grants, is 7,196,917; so that if each policy were on a different life, which is probably not very far from the truth, the lives of 19.6 per cent., or very nearly one-fifth of the entire population of Great Britain and Ireland are assured in this Company.

The business is carried on under two distinct branches, the "Ordinary" and the "Industrial." In the former, the premiums are payable annually, half-yearly, or quarterly; and the terms and conditions resemble those of the majority of the Life Assurance Companies of the country. In the latter branch the rates are higher, because, without exception, the premiums are payable weekly, an arrangement which the ordinary Companies will not adopt on account of the heavy expense and trouble of collection, but which experience seems to show is the only way whereby the wage-earning portion of the community can be reached.

For ten years the two Branches have been conducted independently of each other, as if they were distinct societies; separate accounts being kept, and separate investments made for each. Being now, however, practically worked by the same agents, the public select whichever best suits their convenience, and consequently the distinction between the character of the business of the two branches is becoming less. As an instance of this it is noticeable that while the average amount assured by each policy in the "Ordinary" Branch has diminished since the last valuation, being now £116 against the £137 five years ago; in the Industrial Branch the average amount has slightly increased, and is now £9 8s.

ORDINARY BRANCH.—The growth of this Branch has been very remarkable. The premium income from the assurances is £406,852, having nearly trebled in the quinquennium, and being surpassed by only four other Life Assurance Companies in the United Kingdom. The basis upon which the valuation of the liabilities has been made is explained in Mr. Hughes' report. It may be shortly described as follows:—The past experience of Assured and Annuitant lives has been adopted for the rates of mortality; 3 per cent. for the rate of interest, and 22.7 per cent. of the premium income, which is the whole of what is called the loading, has been reserved for future expenses, profits, and contingencies. Of the ample sufficiency of this reserve no doubt can be entertained, especially as it has now been resolved that the whole expenses of this Branch shall be limited to 10 per cent. of the premium income.

INDUSTRIAL BRANCH.—In this Branch the Premium Income has now reached the enormous total of £3,065,551, payable in weekly premiums averaging about twopence each. The ages of the lives assured vary from 1 year to upwards of 100, fourteen centenarians being found upon the registers. The females outnumber the males in the proportion of 1,075 to 1,000, an excess somewhat above that of the general population, whereas in the ordinary Companies the number of male lives assured is found to be about eight times that of the females. A large number of the policies in force have been effected on the lives of children. And if death occur during the first year of assurance, the contract provides that, with some exceptions, a deduction shall be made from the sum assured.

From these circumstances some modifications in the principles of valuation adopted for the Ordinary Branch become necessary. These are explained by Mr. Dewey in his report, with which I concur. For instance, the table of mortality employed for the Ordinary Branch represents the experience of adult male lives only, children being altogether omitted. For the Industrial Branch, therefore, Farr's English Life tables have been used, and separate valuations made for the male and female risks, the mortality of the two sexes being different. Again, the rate of mortality of children, unlike that of adults, diminishes from year to year up to a certain age. And therefore the risks on the lives of children not exceeding ten years of age, and those under all Policies granted during last year, have been treated as short term assurances, for which a nominal reserve only is necessary. With these exceptions, a valuation on the principles as in the Ordinary Branch has been made of all the outstanding Policies.

These facts and figures speak for themselves, and it is hardly necessary to add how eminently satisfactory the results of this elaborate investigation must be to all who are interested in the welfare of the Company.

Extract from the Report of Mr. W. HUGHES, Actuary of the Ordinary Branch.

The Valuation is as before on the net premium system, the whole of the loading or difference between the premiums payable and the risk premiums being reserved as a provision for future expenses and profit. This loading amounts to £91,078 per annum. The number of Policies in force at 31st December last was £85,089, assuring with Bonus £10,226,238, and producing an annual premium income of £407,360 8s. Of this amount £13,726 is re-assured at an annual cost of £508 7s.

A feature worthy of note is the large proportion of Endowment Assurances lately effected. At the last Valuation, 1881, these Policies formed 16 per cent. of the whole number in force; on the 31st December, 1886, there were 31,120 of these Policies, being no less than 36 per cent. of the whole number of Assurances.

The net results of the Valuation are as follows: Life Assurance Fund, 31st December, 1886, £1,764,600; Reserve for Life Assurance and Annuity Contracts, £1,457,873.

Extract from the Report of Mr. T. C. DEWEY, Actuary of the Industrial Branch.

The Policies in existence on the 31st December, 1886 (the date of Valuation), were 7,111,328 in number, assuring the sum of £66,689,111, and producing a weekly income from

Premiums of £58,953, and an Annual Income of £3,065,551. The number of Free or Paid-up Policies which have been granted in lieu of Discontinued Policies is now 58,099, and will be seen that the average amount assured by each is £9 8s., and that the average weekly premium is twopence.

The experience of the Quinquennium shows that business is yearly becoming of a more stable character, notwithstanding the large influx of new business during the period, the average duration of the Policies now in existence is about five and a-half years.

I believe that as Industrial Assurance becomes better appreciated, it will assume an even more permanent character, and that the difference in this respect between Ordinary and Industrial Policies will disappear. I can see no reason, therefore, why different principles should now be adopted in the valuation of the two classes of assurances, and I consequently value pure premiums only, reserving the whole of the loading, distinguishing male from females. The proportion of the premium reserved is 43.3 per cent. The mortality of this Branch having been recorded for many years, I find that the English Life Table (No 3) most closely accords with our experience, and I therefore adopted that Table for every description of assurance. In all calculations I have assumed that £3 per annum will be realised on the investments.

The result of the Valuation is as follows: Present value of sums assured, £32,760,509; present value of future premiums, £28,283,658. Net liability, £4,476,851.

It may be contended that the principles which are adopted in the valuation of Ordinary assurances are not applicable to Industrial risks, but it must be a source of the highest gratification to you and to everyone connected with this Company, to feel that the business of this Branch will bear a test so severe and one hitherto unknown in the history of Industrial Assurance.

APOLOGY.—To Mr. Alfred York, Hillgrove Hill Bristol.

I, FRANCIS PRICE, of 19, Harford Street, Cathay, Bristol, beg to express my regret for having published certain statements affecting you in your business as a bell-hanger in "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD," and other papers, and I now unreservedly withdraw such statements, and apologise to you for having made them.

Dated this 10th day of March, 1887,

FRANCIS PRICE.

THE PARISH CHURCH, DUFFIELD, DERBYSHIRE.

It will be remembered that a few years ago a new peal of eight bells was hung in Duffield Church, its dedication by the Bishop of Lichfield forming quite an impressive function. After the formal service on that occasion the bells began their first joyous melody, and continued to ring for several hours. The Duffield men were congratulated on having raised and rung this new peal as well as they did, considering that they had not only to contend with the difficulty of new ropes, but also with the disadvantage of having only once rung on eight bells before. They were almost entirely self-taught in the hard-to-be-acquired accomplishment of change-ringing. After they had mastered Grandsire on five bells, they engaged the services of Mr. John Howe, of Derby, who rapidly initiated them into the mysteries of the art, of which they are now such able exponents. The Duffield ringers have had an excellent guide in A. Percival Heywood, Esq., of Duffield Bank, President of the Midland Counties' Association change ringers, and now a recognised authority throughout the country on matters campanalogical. Under his conductorship they accomplished the first full peal of 5,040 changes, and since that time peals have been rung by the local band in Grandsire, Stedman, Bob Major, Double Oxford, and Double Norwich Court methods, which have nearly all been composed and conducted by Mr. Heywood. The original peal of four bells at this church was increased to the half-dozen by the addition of two trebles in 1720, between which year and 1799 each of the older four was at various times recast in a more or less indifferent manner. The inscriptions were as follow:—On all the date; on three the founder's name; on three the names of the churchwardens; on one bell the vicar's name; on the fourth bell the motto "God save the Church," which was reproduced on the present tenor. In 1866 an attempt was made to put the bells in order, they being in a very dilapidated condition; but although repeated breakdowns kept the case continually under public notice, nothing was done until the occasion above mentioned, when, on a report by Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, of the uselessness of rehanging them on account of their many defective qualities, it was resolved to replace them by a peal of eight. This desirable decision was successfully carried into effect, and one of the most enthusiastic and hopeful among the parishioners to bring about the result was Mr. Heywood. Since then, as previously indicated, this gentleman has done much, both by example and precept, in the direction of educating the Duffield men, until now there is undoubtedly not a better village band of ringers in the Midland Counties. This leads us to make an announcement which we are sure will be hailed locally with much pleasure. There being ample room and strength in the tower of Duffield's fine old tower, Mr. Heywood has signified his intention of presenting at his own cost two more bells, making a peal of ten. This will place Duffield in the proud position of being the only village in the county possessing such a numerically strong peal, and will, indeed, enable it to rank next to Derby (All Saints') among the towns. It is, we believe, the determination of the donor that the new bells shall be hung by jubilee day, when the peal of ten bells will be rung for the first time. This novel method of celebrating the jubilee is one that should commend itself to the emulation of other villages, where difficulty has arisen as to a means of marking the fiftieth year of her Majesty's accession, and is, we understand, being taken up in at least one other place in Derbyshire, viz., Melbourne, where the bells are to be increased from six to eight. A good peal of bells, says a local contemporary, is as much a desideratum, especially in connection with country churches, as a good parson. Instead of the sepulchral one, the tingle-tangling one-two, or the ridiculous one-two-three (suggestive of the lamentable end of that particular member of the feline genus whose sad story is familiar to the occupants of every nursery), how much better it is to hear and interpret the music and romance of a melodious peal, stealing over and hallowing the country side on calm summer evenings or starlit winter nights, and crowding the mind with higher aspirations than those engendered by the contact with the sordid world!

"How soft the music of those village bells,
Falling at intervals upon the ear
In cadence sweet!"

ST. PETER'S CHURCH, ST. ALBANS, HERTS.

The adjourned meeting of parishioners and others interested in the restoration of this structure, was held in the vestry on Wednesday evening, March 23rd. There were present—Mr. S. L. Harding (churchwarden), in the chair, Revs. V. Faulkner and T. Pitman, Messrs. Masters and Brabant (churchwardens), Colonel Rind, Messrs. Tarte, Dickson, E. P. Debenham, Ivory, Fowler, Wroot, Waller, H. Lewis, Wise, Parkins, Barnes, Cartmel, Hull, Tatt, etc.

The CHAIRMAN said the object of the meeting was to receive a report from Mr. Tarte with regard to the state of the Church. Also to ascertain what the committee had done towards getting the £200 together, and to arrange how the collecting should be worked. He had received about £6 6s., being two guineas each from three persons, and Mr. Brabant had received a letter from the Earl of Verulam promising £10.

Mr. TARTE, who had volunteered to examine the condition of the Church, then read a report, of which the following is a resumé:

The parish church of St. Peter is one of the three churches founded by Abbot Ulsin, in the reign of Edred, about the middle of the tenth century, the other two being St. Stephen's and St. Michael's. The church, as it originally stood, had a tower rising from the intersection of the nave, chancel, and transepts, the tower being 33 feet square, and the chancel extending 40 feet. The original belfry obstructed the view of the chancel, therefore the churchwardens had a new belfry erected, the floor of which was about 22 feet higher than the old floor, this opened the view, but did essential injury to the building. It appears that originally there were four large piers supporting the tower, and it was found in 1785 that they were in a dangerous and ruinous state. A carpenter from the parish was employed to carry out the work, and a friend of his acted as architect. These men actually under-pinned the piers of the tower with nine large upright timbers under each pier, and plastered the outside of them to make them appear massive. £2,790 was wasted by these men. In 1790 a survey was made, and in consequence of which the ringing was discontinued for a time, the close of the scene being that on Saturday morning, November 21st, 1801, the belfry floor fell into the body of the church. An Act of Parliament, passed in 1803, empowered certain trustees to raise £4,000 by means of a tax on the parishioners, the tower having been pulled down previously. Robert Chapman, architect, carried out this restoration, the chancel being rebuilt about two-thirds shorter, the transepts done away with, and the tower was rebuilt on a much smaller plan. A second Act of Parliament passed in 1806 allowed £2,000 more to be raised. Many of the slain in the battles of St. Albans were buried in the church and churchyard, the helmet and anklets hanging in the vestry belonged without doubt to some of the warriors. At one time there were many fine brasses, one being the figure of a priest, another a knight in armour, Sir Bertin Entwysel. It is said that at the commencement of this century his sword was dug up in the choir. I have found four brasses in a cupboard in the vestry. No. 1—the family of Roger and Elizabeth Pemberton, a brass about twelve inches square. Nos. 2 and 3 a man and a woman, each eighteen inches long. These are probably Roger and Elizabeth Pemberton. I find these brasses fit into the stone in the south aisle. Nos. 4 sixteen inches long by twelve inches, with an inscription and coat of arms impaled on a shield, dated 1735. The old glass in north aisle windows dates from about 1400. The shield represents the coat of arms of Edmund of Langley, fifth son of Edward III. Some of the subjects are quite decipherable. I have found about 100 small pieces, but have not yet put them together. I conclude that originally there were only six bells, four still bear the date of 1725. Not only is the fifth bell cracked, but I find the cannons of the third are broken, and it would be dangerous to ring it. The oak window sills are very decayed, and the louvred frames admit a quantity of snow and rain, the lower frame on south side being loose and dangerous. The floor is defective in places. The present bell frame is too weak, and has been most injudiciously cut to allow the ropes to come through. The weakness of the present frame probably accounts for the damage two of the bells have sustained. I would strongly urge the necessity of stopping ringing until the frame and bearings, etc., are in a more satisfactory state. The beams under the bells are sufficiently strong, but the weight of the bells (which is considerable when being rung), should be brought down to near the ringing chamber floor, where the walls of the tower thicken about 1ft. 3in.; by this means the upper portion of the tower would be greatly relieved. Ringling Chamber.—The stone of the windows is much decayed, being of soft local stone, probably from the Totterhoe quarries. These windows threaten shortly to become dangerous, the design being weak, and the jointing opposed to all rules of good masonry. The crack on east side should be treated in the way I described at the previous meeting. Exterior of Tower.—There is no lightning conductor to the church, and from its exposed and elevated position it seems marvellous that it has escaped being struck. The slating requires being put in order, and the battlements should be rebuilt where defective. The flag pole, weather vane, and door to lucerne are sadly in need of paint. The rough cast is rapidly peeling off, and presents an extremely shabby appearance. The design of tower is bad, being moulded on gothic lines, but having classic pilasters in pairs at each angle in place of Gothic buttresses. I recommend the rough cast be hacked off, and the whole fabric pointed. The nave is faced externally with flint and local rubble, with local dressings plastered with rough cast which will never key properly on the ashlar. The porch and vestry are modern, and in many places decayed. Many windows are much decayed. The brick chimney on the vestry is out of the perpendicular, and it is questionable as to whether it is safe. The turrets at the west end of nave require restoration, the south-west turret being in an unsafe condition. The nave was most probably rebuilt in the 13th century, the west doorway being a very fair example of that period, the south and north doorways are also of the 13th century. The interior of the nave is of the 15th century period. The organ is the gift of Christopher Pache, M.D., the gallery for it being erected by voluntary contribution, and the whole being opened in 1725-6. There is ample room under the tower for the choir, and if thought fit, at some future date, the organ could, without great cost, be removed, and placed in the more modern and suitable position, in a chamber at the south side of the tower, having an opening for the pipes in the east end of the south aisle.

The CHAIRMAN asked what would be the approximate cost of doing the repairs proposed at the previous meeting—to recast the bells, put the framework in order, and to make the tower safe.

Mr. TARTE replied that he thought it would be a little over £250. He then gave some further details of the work required to be done.

The CHAIRMAN said he was sure they all felt indebted to Mr. Tarte for his report, and proposed a vote of thanks to him, which was seconded and carried unanimously.

A discussion then took place as to the best way of raising the necessary money, during the course of which it was elicited that the cost of putting the whole edifice into good order would be something like £3000.

Mr. GRANT suggested that the churchwardens should have the necessary work carried out, and borrow the £250 it would cost, until the committee could raise that sum. He understood that a gentleman had offered to find the money at 5 per cent., and he thought it would be well to accept the offer.

Mr. MASTERS said that Mr. Grant was mistaken. The churchwardens had not heard of any such offer, or it would have been accepted at once.

The CHAIRMAN said the vicar had kindly offered to let £50 which would be due to him in June out of the offertory fund, stand over for twelve months. They could fall back on that if necessary.

COLONEL RIND said his idea was that twelve or thirteen members of the committee should guarantee each to raise £12 or £13.

Mr. DICKSON supposed some one would be appointed to look after the work. Were they going to appoint a stranger or Mr. Tarte, who had taken interest in the matter? Of course, commission would have to be paid. There was no doubt the money would be raised.

It was ultimately agreed to adjourn the meeting for a fortnight, and for the committee to meet in the meantime to decide as to how the necessary amount of money should be raised.

BELLS.

From the Newcastle Chronicle.

"Ring out, wild bells?" cries Mr. Alfred Tennyson; and Edgar Poe has apotheosised the tintinnabular nuisance in some wonderfully fluent and melodious verses. But these poetic invitations find no echoes in the prosaics of everyday life. Not only have a large number of metropolitan householders taken up the deadly arm of the pen against bells, but in several provincial towns there are murmurs against the infliction, and letters from people who describe themselves as distracted grow apace in the weekly issues of the local prints. No doubt it is easy to say many pretty things about the clanging discords of the church steeple. English poetry is full of verses about the melodious tinkling which calls the faithful to worship. Then, again, gentlemen taking their holiday pleasures abroad have written luxuriantly about Continental bells. And, heard at a very great distance, and for a short time only, the village or any other bell may be fairly admitted to contribute a pleasing colour of sound to the landscape. But when a clashing peal is located close to the house in which you live, the cadences and harmonies of bells take a very serious and uncomfortable significance. All the poetry vanishes. The weary parishioner groans over the eternal jangle, and would part with a round sum of money for the privilege of muffling the clappers of the bells with the bodies of the men who tug at ropes. Schiller has a fine poem on the casting of the bell: but we may rest assured that that would not have been the only poem he would have written on the subject had that same bell been suspended within a few hundred feet of his house, and rung when he was writing "Fiesco" or the "Robbers," or when he was doing a wiser thing than writing plays—going to bed. Is it quite tolerable that a whole parish of hardworking business men, of invalids, children, and others, should be awakened every morning at an unearthly hour by a clanging summons to early matins? In what sort of temper do people who are called by a peal of bells at daybreak to their devotions attend them? We all know how Clothair was obliged to raise the siege of Lens by the Bishop of Orleans terrifying the King's army by violently ringing the bells. And is it not recorded that Pope John IX. ordered the bells to be rung as a defence against thunder and lightning? If whole armies—nay, if the very elements can be subdued and frightened off by bells, how much greater must be the terror and fear they inspire in the poor sleeping parishioner? In olden days bells had a use which is no longer required of them. There was, for instance, the curfew bell, which knelled the hour of parting day and gave an excuse to the weary ploughman to light his pipe and wend his way homewards. That was before steam horns and "buzzers" were invented. But when the curfew bell had dispatched the weary ploughman home and summoned all peaceable villagers to extinguish their "dips," it did not go on tolling and knelling and keeping the weary ploughman and his neighbours awake. In this busy age, there are scores of people who work to a very late hour in the night, and sometimes to a very late hour in the morning. To them it is something worse than a nuisance; it is a positive hardship, to be awakened an hour after they have fallen asleep by the torturing notes of a bell. It is a tyranny at which we cannot be surprised to hear that people are protesting violently in other places than in London, where the grievance is most felt. That our forefathers suffered in this way—though not to any extent—is shown by an old canon of 1603, which prohibits churchwardens from allowing their bells to be rung "superstitiously on holidays for ever abrogated by the Book of Common Prayer, nor at any other time without good cause, to be allowed by the minister of the place and by themselves." This was better than a strong hint, and furnished ancient parishioners with days on which they could study or sleep without risk of distraction from the bell-ringers. As a rule the parson is as much to blame as the churchwardens: but there have been times—and one reads such law reports with mixed emotions—when the rector has actually been forced to apply for protection to a court of justice against the intolerable nuisance of bells inflicted upon him by his own churchwardens. One such instance came before Lord Stowell, brother to Lord Eldon, whom Newcastle has reason to remember. The rectory was near the church, and the churchwardens insisted upon having the bells rung at what the rector chose to consider unreasonable hours. "If," said Sir William Scott, "the bells are so constantly rung as to be a nuisance, the parties who are guilty of that nuisance might be punished at the common law, and the mere consent of the churchwardens would not be a sufficient defence to such a prosecution." Apparently we have here a legal decision which aggrieved parishioners might apply with some tolerable certainty of relief. Many years ago, but subsequent to Lord Stowell's time, in the days of Vice-Chancellor Kindersley, a gentleman applied to be relieved from the nuisance of a peal of bells that awoke him every morning at five o'clock. In the plaintiff's affidavit were set out, in eloquent terms, all the suffering of mind and body inflicted on him by that peal of bells. He obtained an injunction, and was disturbed no more. The principle of the Vice-Chancellor's judgement was sound and instructive. In his opinion the important question to be decided was whether such complaints were merely fanciful, emanating from the delicacy or fastidiousness of the complainants, or whether the nuisance was not an inconvenience which materially interfered with the ordinary comfort of human existence, not merely according to elegant and dainty modes and habits of living, but according to plain, sober, and simple notions amongst English people. He founded his judgment upon the latter conclusion, and no one who considers it carefully will dispute its wisdom. There cannot be a doubt that the constant ringing of bells does materially interfere with the ordinary comfort of human existence, and it is surprising that sufferers, instead of writing letters to the papers, should not proceed against such bell-ringers as annoy them on the ground that such dangling discord is not "according to plain, sober, and simple notions among English people."

WRITTLE, ESSEX.

A visit from Mr. Joseph Field, of Oxford, at whose hands the local company received their first instruction in change-ringing eighteen months ago, was the occasion on Saturday and Sunday, March 26th and 27th, of some satisfactory meetings in the Writtle belfry. On Saturday evening, the ringers from the neighbouring parish of Widford, with Mr. W. Hawkes from Springfield, came over, and the following touches were rung by mixed bands:—A 882 of Grandsire Triples. J. Everard, 1; J. Dains, 2; A. Shuttleworth, 3; J. Field (conductor), 4; W. Hawkes, 5; Rev. T. L. Papillon, 6; W. Piper, 7; W. Harvey, 8. And 504 of Grandsire Triples. A. Edwards, 1; J. Everard, 2; J. Dains, 3; F. Radley, 4; J. Field, 5; A. Tarbun, 6; W. Lincoln (conductor), 7; W. Piper, 8. On Sunday, March 27th, for Divine Service in the morning, the Writtle company, with Mr. Field, rang the first two parts of Holt's ten-part peal (1008 changes). A. Edwards, 1; J. Everard, 2; R. Wood, 3; F. Radley, 4; J. Field (conductor), 5; Rev. T. L. Papillon, 6; W. Lincoln, 7; H. Bonnington, 8. After afternoon service, standing in the same order, a half-peal was attempted, but was stopped to avoid annoyance to an invalid, when 2086 changes had been rung. This is the longest by any of the Writtle company.

NEWTON BROMSWOLD, NORTHANTS.

The Church of St. Peter, in this parish, has three bells only, the second is missing, and the Rector is anxious during this year of Jubilee to replace it. He asks contributions from relations, friends, and neighbours. The cost will be about £50, which would include taking down and tuning, and replacing the bells. There is not quite a whole tone between the middle bell and the largest, and rather more than a minor third between the middle bell and the smallest; there is therefore a space left between the two latter for another bell.

THE WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of this Association will be held in the Chapter House, Worcester Cathedral, on Easter Monday, April 11th, 1887, at two o'clock, when the Dean, Dr. Gott, president, will preside, and also deliver an address after the business. Full particulars next week.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The fifth ANNUAL MEETING of this Association will be held at Derby, on Easter Monday, April 11th, 1887, and the usual towers will be open for ringing between the hours of 10.0 a.m. and 3.0 p.m., and from 7.0 p.m. to 9.0 p.m. Tea will be provided "free of charge" to all visiting members (except those belonging to the Derby district) who have previously paid their subscriptions, by giving seven clear days' notice of their intention to be present, to the local Honorary Secretary of the District to which they belong. Committee Meeting in St. Andrew's Sunday School at 3.0 p.m.—Tea in the schoolroom at 4.0 p.m., tickets 1s. 2d. each. General Meeting and election of officers immediately after tea, to which all ringers and friends are earnestly invited. The Easter "Handbell Competition" will take place after the General Meeting. JOSEPH GRIFFIN, Hon. Sec.
5, St. Paul's Street, E., Burton-on-Trent.

DEDICATION OF NEW BELLS AT SILVERDALE.

On Friday afternoon, March 18th, an interesting event in the annals of the picturesque village of Silverdale was enacted, namely, the dedication of a fine peal of six bells for the beautiful parish church of St. John's, which was consecrated by the Bishop of Manchester (Dr. Moorhouse), on the 14th of July last. From the time of the opening of the sacred edifice, the sound of the church-going bell has not been heard summoning the parishioners to worship, therefore the inauguration of the new bells has been looked forward to with more than ordinary pleasure, although, by the way, that pleasure would have been enhanced if the worthy donor who was the means of providing the peal had been spared to hear the melodious strains resulting from his noble gift to the church in which, during his life-time, he had taken such a warm and practical interest. We are, of course alluding to the late Mr. Henry Boddington, of Silverdale, whose death some months ago was a matter of much regret, and who was greatly esteemed by those who knew him. The volunteer band of ringers, who have been practising with the bells during the last few weeks, have given the inhabitants an opportunity of judging of the quality of tone and general merit of the peal, and there is no question that it forms a very pleasing and valuable addition to the spacious and noble-looking church, whilst it is one in every respect worthy of the donor, and reflects the highest credit upon the founders, Messrs. John Warner and Sons, of Cripplegate, London, who have succeeded in producing a most perfect and harmonious set of bells, of which local ringers, as well as the residents generally, may justly feel proud. Subjoined is a detailed account of the size, weight, &c., of the different bells:—

The bells are hung in the a massive oak frame, well bolted together, with iron T plates, &c., wood head stocks, gun-metal bearings, wheels, stays, sliders, pulleys, rope stay irons, grease and slider boards, complete for ringing. The cost has been about £420. The inscription on the tenor bell is as follows:—"For the honour of God, and the use of this church, these bells were raised by Henry Boddington, of Silverdale, A.D. 1886."

The dedication service at the church took place last Friday afternoon.

IRCHESTER CHURCH, NORTHANTS.

The restoration of the above Church is going to be taken in hand at once by Mr. Pearson, R.A., as architect, and Mr. Henson, of Wellingborough, as builder. The Committee are afraid that their means will only allow them to substitute a new pine roof for the present dilapidated oak one. Mr. Pearson says, justly, that the Church is not an ordinary one, but has a wide-world interest attached to it from its architectural peculiarities; that it would be "absolutely wrong" to put up a deal roof. But what are the Committee to do? If the churchmen of the county would be good enough to interest themselves in the work (some have done so, whose assistance the committee desire gratefully to record); or if those in the neighbourhood, who, not being churchmen, look nevertheless upon such architectural ornaments as Irchester Church, as national glories and treasures, would assist the Committee (especially now, in our Queen's Jubilee year), the Committee feel that a complete restoration might still be possible. They have raised £2132 (some of which is conditional upon £2500 being raised), and a balance of £368 is required, or else the restoration cannot be a complete one. It is to be hoped the five bells will also receive attention, as they much need rehanging. The tenor (diameter 50 inches), is a beautiful bell weighing about 23 cwt. It was cast by Arnold of Leicester, 1792.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

By the kind permission of the rector and churchwardens, twelve members of the above society will attempt a peal of 10,000 Stedman Cinques at St. Michael's, Cornhill, on Easter Monday, April 11th. Meeting time 9.30. a.m.

AT ST. STEPHEN'S.

THURSDAY.—A weekly contemporary, which presumes to educate "the people" in the paths of Radicalism, says that the Imperial Parliament spent the first portion of its time to-day in discussing the question whether the district of Kensington should be allowed to cremate its dead cats, dead dogs, and street sweepings. This sort of language savours of frivolity, at any rate it is not calculated to command the respect of those who lay claim to some degree of refinement. It seems that the authorities of the parish above-named wanted to erect a "destructor" for all the collected refuse, and the grievance, real or supposed, was the idea of its being built in a part of the parish inhabited by the poorer classes. Such a grievance is a capital thing to-go-ahead with, in fact, it is a hobby with many people, who ride it to death. The "dead dogs' bill," as this weekly calls it, was, however, carried, forming a strange prelude to what followed. The G.O.M. was in force this evening. Truly, Mr. Gladstone is a wonderful man, a man in fact of whom all Englishmen, no matter how strongly they may be politically opposed to him, ought to be proud of. He rose on this occasion to attack the proposals of the Leader of the House for urgency on the Crimes Bill. He protested against Mr. Smith's request for all the time of the House, and denied there was any urgency for giving precedence to coercion over cure, contending that the circumstances of to-day were entirely different from those of five or six years ago, when the number of crimes was double the highest figure it had reached in any year since 1844. In those days there was an agitation against rent as such; nowadays the agitation is directed against unfair rents only. The remainder of the speech was principally devoted to General Buller's evidence. Mr. Chamberlain girded himself ready for the affray, and after a brief interval, which was filled by a clever young barrister, Mr. Asquith, the member for West Birmingham rose to reply. In a speech of some length, the hon. gentleman intimated that he would not be satisfied unless the league was suppressed. Crime in Ireland, said Mr. Chamberlain, springs from Chicago. He rejected Mr. Morley's demonstration of its natural origin in the abuses of Irish landlordism. But he would not administer a general and strong dose of coercion; he would restrict the treatment to a limited area. He disowned any knowledge of the bill. He had no objection to coercion over a limited area, implying suppression of the National League; this coercion to be accompanied by a measure for temporarily suspending evictions; and, later on, the production of a grand scheme for abolishing the present system of landlordism in Ireland—in other words, for the establishment of proprietorship—this scheme not to involve risk to the taxpayers of Great Britain. Believing all this could be done, he would support the Ministerial motion for urgency.

FRIDAY.—The final debate on Mr. John Morley's amendment occupied nearly the whole of to-day's sitting, and came to an end at half-past one of the clock on Saturday morning. Six hundred and nine members took part in the division, which resulted thus:—260 for the amendment, 349 against; majority, 89. The debate was opened by Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, a late Cabinet Minister, who expressed surprise at Mr. Chamberlain's acquaintance with the contents of the bill. What an "unprecedented circumstance" it was, he remarked, that they should have heard from an Opposition leader a "fuller exposition" of the Ministerial scheme than Mr. Smith or Mr. Balfour, or any of them, had vouchsafed. Sir Henry James took part in the debate. It goes without saying that he adhered to the Government proposals. The learned gentleman, as is well-known, would have been Lord Chancellor in the late Government had he agreed with the Home Rule measure of Mr. Gladstone; and a knowledge by the House of such a sacrifice of his prospects for conscience sake, enhances the respect in which he is held. Sir William Harcourt wound up the debate on the Liberal side, and was very merciless on the position he thought Mr. Chamberlain had taken up.

MONDAY.—Mr. Balfour was loudly cheered by his party when he rose to ask leave to bring in the bill for the Prevention and Punishment of Crime in Ireland. And as usual, the Parnellite section of the House did not fail to make the most of the opportunities afforded them for obstructing business, especially when the Irish Secretary asked the question "Whence come this paralysis of the Courts of Law in Ireland?" The first answer he had to give was "That evidence to convict was not forthcoming." He said he would not trouble the House with any long particulars on the subject. Here an Irish member said, with no light voice, "We want particulars." Mr. Balfour replied that he thought he could give enough to satisfy the hon. member. In the counties he had just enumerated the number of offences since the previous Summer Assizes amounted to 756. The number of cases in which there was no clue to the offenders was 536. At this juncture Mr. J. Kenny interpolated the remark "How many threatening letters?" Mr. Balfour said "That the figures he was giving had no reference to threatening letters. The number of cases in which the injured persons declined to swear any information, was 422. So terrified were they by the system of intimidation—(cheers)—which prevailed in those counties, that they did not dare to come forward and bear evidence against those who had outraged them. Thus it went on until the hon. gentleman resumed his seat, after a long and stirring speech, amid Ministerial cheers and Home Rule derisive cheers and laughter. Mr. Dillon, rising amid loud Home Rule cheers, replied in the manner so characteristic of Irishmen. At once going into the question, he said if now after 87 years of the pretended Union, the best proposal that could be made by the people of England for the Government of Ireland was to suspend in that country every liberty which the English people held dear, then he, for one, would either abandon all public agitation, or if the people were brave and willing, he would lead them to battle. Concluding, after a powerful speech, he said if the bill pass in spite of the opposition of the people, he should continue to carry on the Plan of Campaign. He did not care whether Her Majesty's Government tried him in Dublin or at the Old Bailey, and if they succeed by packed juries in convicting him, and put him into prison, on their head be the crimes and horrors of the situation. After other members of the Government had made remarks of the question, the debate was adjourned at five minutes to one, and the House itself at a quarter-past two.

TUESDAY.—After a certain amount of time had been devoted to the asking and answering of questions, Mr. Gladstone resumed the debate on Mr. Balfour's motion. As I saw the hon. gentleman from my seat I could not help being struck with the remarkable power of the veteran "parliamentary hand" as taking up his cudgels he combated the question before the House. Attacking the arguments put by the hon. gentleman referred to, he asked how the case stood with respect to cases other than threatening letters, because, said he, this is the first count in the speech of the hon. gentleman. He kept back the figures, but I have got them. He prudently had no desire—. Here he was interrupted by Mr. Balfour with: "they are already before the House." Mr. Gladstone: Before the House, before the compilers of public papers, before those who can go and bury themselves in the library and can search out the papers of successive years, who can do work which is and ought to be done in the public offices, and which on every occasion was being done. Mr. Balfour: The right hon. gentleman asked for a return a few days ago. I put the matter into the hands of those whose business it is to furnish such returns. Mr. Gladstone: As a supplement to that I return my thanks to the right hon. gentleman for the mercy he was pleased to show me. Then proceeding in his own incomparable style, he works up to the belief that their course would tend towards a restraint of crime, until he concludes with that belief he certainly, as he hopes they would, resist this deplorable proposal, and remain convinced that in resisting and in serving the cause of Ireland, shall more essentially and effectually serve the cause of Britain and of this wide-spread Empire. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Gane, Mr. Austin, Sir T. Esmonde, and others having spoken on the question, the House adjourned at twenty minutes to one.

WEDNESDAY.—There was some sharp shooting in the House to-day between supporters of the Government and the Opposition, the debate on Mr. Balfour's motion being resumed by Mr. M'Neil, who said Ireland in spite of coercion would emerge from her struggles victorious, self-governed, and free. Mr. De Lisle represented the Roman Catholic Tories of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and he believed also the Roman Catholic Unionists, who were grieved at the attitude of the majority of Irish representatives.—Viscount Kilcoursie followed as a supporter of Mr. Gladstone. Mr. Dalrymple attributed Ireland's sufferings to the Land League. Mr. Broadhurst, Mr. Schwann, and Lord Geo. Hamilton followed, and here Mr. Healy interrupted by questions on matters purely personal, and the noble lord said the Government asked for powers which would end in working out the prosperity of Ireland, and secure the maintenance of the Union.—Mr. Coleridge opposed the Bill, and the debate was adjourned on the motion of Mr. Labouchere.

THE RINGER IN PARLIAMENT.

DEVONSHIRE CLERGYMEN AS BELLRINGERS.

On the occasion of the dedication of the enlarged and restored ring of bells in St. Brannock's Church, Braunton, North Devon, on Easter Monday, one of the first peals will be rung by an octave of Devonshire clergymen, composed of the following:—The Rev. R. Martin, Swymbridge, and Vicar Designate of Ilfracombe; the Rev. W. E. Cox, Lynton; the Rev. W. W. Arthur, Atherington; the Rev. H. Bremridge, Winkleigh; the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote, Upton Pyne; the Rev. R. W. S. Vidal, Abbotsham; the Rev. H. A. Bowles, Arlington; and the Rev. W. E. Durham, Eastdown. This is a gratifying evidence of an increased interest in a noble art of an elevating influence when rightly used, and as an adjunct to Divine worship.—From the Exeter Gazette.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The index to the fifth volume is in course of preparation, and we hope to have it ready for our readers earlier than has been usually the case. An extra number will then be issued with a PORTRAIT and MEMOIR of a well-known ringer.

REPRINT OF ANOTHER WORK ON CHANGE-RINGING.

The publisher of "THE BELL NEWS" has the pleasure to announce the issue, in penny weekly numbers, of a rare old work upon ringing, entitled "Campanalogia Improved; or the Art of Ringing made easy," &c. This work is printed uniform with "Shipway" and the "Clavis," which have been so eagerly taken up.

The Publisher believes that the re-issues of these various old ringing works, which at the present day are from their scarcity, so difficult of perusal, will be approved of by ringers. Their publication enables all who have an inclination for the useful, as well as the curious, to possess in time a valuable and complete ringing library. The copy, which has been kindly lent to the editor of this journal by Mr. S. B. Goslin, of the Crescent Foundry, Cripplegate, belongs to a fifth edition, "Corrected by J. Monk." For the purposes of easy publication it is called after his name, and those intending to take in the penny weekly numbers, should ask for "Monk on Ringing."

All who are desirous of securing copies should do so without delay, as a second reprint is out of the question.

"THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD" will be forwarded, post free, on the following terms:—

One copy, 12 months	6s. 6d.
" 6 "	3s. 3d.
" 3 "	1s. 8d.

All Subscriptions and Orders for papers must be sent direct to the Publisher E. W. ALLEN, Ave Maria Lane, London.

Everything for insertion in this Journal to be addressed "The Editor of THE BELL NEWS, Walthamstow, London." Letters forwarded for publication, and performances under 5000 changes must reach us not later than Wednesday morning; and the insertion of any communication arriving later than the first Postal delivery on Thursday morning cannot be guaranteed in that week's number. When it is found impossible from want of space to insert all touches forwarded, the earlier ones will have the preference.

All communications respecting advertisements must be addressed to the office of "THE BELL NEWS," Walthamstow, London.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 2, 1887.

A SLIGHT difference of opinion, which has recently occurred between prominent members of the Birmingham ringing societies, and which has found vent in our correspondence columns, points very forcibly to a matter which is not without importance. But simple as the question may appear, it is one which, for the purpose of comment, presents some difficulty, because, however it is dealt with, there is the risk, and a very great one, too, of injuring the susceptibilities of one or other of the parties concerned.

As long as the art of ringing lives, we may expect that rivalry among ringers will never cease. In fact, the absence of competition would denote at once its decadence and loss of popularity. But rivalry, if it is to exist at all, should be real, and competition bona fide. Let us suppose, for the sake of illustration, a contest between university crews—Oxford and Cambridge. What sort of a contest would it be thought if it was discovered that Oxford, not having sufficient reliable men, had induced some Cambridge men to "come over" and help them? On Easter Monday next the College Youths intend to attempt a 10,000 at St Michael's, Cornhill. What would be said if they were previously to seek the assistance of a few leading members of the rival society to help them on that occasion? And yet something of this kind happens very frequently in the ringing Exercise.

The root of the evil lies in the fact of ringers belonging to two or more different societies within their immediate neighbourhood. The question why ringing companies should be multiplied in places where one good company would thrive and flourish, can only be answered at the expense of a certain few of the members of such societies. To come to the point. What is the reason of the existence of more than one ringing company in the town of Birmingham? Or the question should be, perhaps, why do not the existing ones amalgamate and form one grand society? Whatever may be said by members of these societies themselves, we unhesitatingly assert that the present state of affairs in that town is to be deplored. Each of these separate bodies may be, and no doubt are, in a most flourishing condition. Then, if so, what a magnificent body the combined whole would make; such a company, in fact, that would be able to score anything that is possible of accomplishment. At any rate, whatever may be said relative to the existence of more than one society in a town, the fact remains that where the interests of these societies clash, confusion is the result, which will continue to reign till an amalgamation is carried into effect. When two societies are striving for some especial honour, such as the first peal in a particular method, any collusion between them should not be encouraged; and whoever, under such circumstances, secretly connives by such means to obtain this desirable end, is guilty of a dishonourable action. The recent case of handbell ringing at Birmingham is not, however, of this description, we are glad to say, though unfortunately, we know of such instances that our allusions will fitly apply to. Maybe, however, some of the parties concerned in these latter cases are not mentally qualified to discern between honour and dishonour.

WHITSTONE (near Exeter).—On Thursday, March 3rd, for practice, ten 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles, each called differently. W. Chudley, 1; F. Shepherd (conductor), 2; W. Sercombe, 3; G. Baxter, 4; W. Sampson, 5; W. Pester, 6. On Sunday, March 27th, before evening service, ten 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles, being the first ten 6-scores rung by the band. W. Chudley, 1; H. Baxter, 2; W. Sercombe, 3; G. Baxter, 4; W. Sampson, 5; W. Pester, 6. Tenor 12 cwt.

ST. SEPULCHRE'S, LONDON.

On Saturday, March 12th, after an unsuccessful attempt to ring a peal of Grandsire Caters, the local band dined together at the White Hart Hotel, Giltspur-street, E.C., Mr. Churchwarden Simpson kindly acting as chairman. Having done full justice to the good things provided and the cloths removed, the Chairman proposed the "Health of the Queen and Royal Family," which was heartily drunk by all. A course of Caters on the handbells followed, and a duet on the pianoforte by Messrs. Harrington and Rumsey was listened to with marked attention. Several other toasts followed, viz., the "Rector," "Churchwardens," and "Ringers," which were received with musical honours. The Chairman remarked that this being the Jubilee Year he hoped the ringers would accomplish a few peals on the fine old ring of ten bells that hang in the tower of St. Sepulchre's Church. At intervals songs were given by Messrs. Barry, Church, Clarkson, Stackwood, and Rumsey, jun., and some excellent marches, &c., on the handbells were given by the tune band attached to St. Sepulchre's, viz., Messrs. Clarkson, Lovett, Matthews, Nelms, Rumsey, &c., accompanied by the pianoforte. After thanking the chairman for presiding, Mr. T. Harrington for so ably performing on the pianoforte, and Mr. D. Lovett for arranging everything so satisfactorily, the company separated, having thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

In Memoriam.

FRANCIS R. SHEPHERD.

With great regret we record the death of the above gentleman, which took place on March 20th, in his 21st year. Deceased (one of the four brothers Shepherd) joined the S. Sidwells Society on June 19th, 1882, and for 12 months fulfilled the duties of hon. secretary to this society, but was compelled to resign last Easter through ill health. Although so young, he had taken part in five peals of 5040 Grandsire Triples, his last peal being at S. Sidwells on April 11th, 1885, when he rang the 5th. Deceased was also a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths and the Devonshire Guild. The number of change ringers in Exeter being very limited, his death is a great loss to the exercise in that city. His progress in change-ringing was very rapid, and his quiet and unassuming disposition, as well as his abilities both on tower and handbells, caused him to be a general favourite with all whom he came in contact. The funeral took place on Saturday, March 26th, and he was carried to his last resting-place by his brother ringers, the funeral ceremony being performed by the Rev. Samuel Hosking, foreman of S. Sidwells Society. In the evening muffled peals were rung at St. David's, St. Thomas's, and also at S. Sidwells, by the following:—C. Carter, 1; T. Townsend, 2; W. Goss, 3; H. Swift, 4; W. Mundy, 5; W. Richardson, 6; J. Moss, 7; T. J. Lake, 8.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

THE NEXT QUARTERLY MEETING will be held at St. Peter's, South Croydon, by the kind permission of the Vicar, on Easter Monday, April 11th. Tower open from 3 p.m. At 6 p.m. there will be a plain tea in the church room, followed by the business meeting. All who wish to be present at the tea are requested to send their names to the Hon. Secretary by Friday, April 8th. The tea will be free to all ringing friends, who have paid their subscriptions for the current year, and who have sent in their names as directed above.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

AN ENQUIRY.

SIR,—Can any of your readers inform me whether it is the custom to ring muffled on Good Friday, if so where, and whether full or half-muffled. I would also like the opinion of our clerical brother strings, as to whether they think it advisable to do so or not. An early reply through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" will oblige.

ENQUIRER.

M. TUCKER'S REPLY.

SIR,—Seeing in your last issue of "THE BELL NEWS," some correspondent writes to say that the quarter peal composed by me, and lately rung at Galleywood, Essex, only contains twelve 6-7's, eight 7-4's, and eight 4-6's, and not twelve of each as stated, I beg leave to inform him that if he will only take the trouble to prick it out he will find that it does contain twelve 7-4's, twelve 4-6's, and twelve 6-7's, and I defy him to alter it.

H. J. TUCKER.

Bishop Stortford, March 28.

HON. MEMBERS.

SIR,—In your issue of March 12th (pages 421), a peal of Bob Major rung at Harlow on March 12th, is headed "The Essex Association." Six of the ringers were previously members of this Association, and one was duly elected by them in the tower before starting for the peal. The eighth member of the band was, but is not now, a member of the Association; his name having been removed in the year 1885-6, after notice given by the then secretary, for non-payment of the subscription due for that and two previous years. Under these circumstances, the peal cannot be reckoned as an "Essex Association" peal, or entered as such in our peal book. I regret this, for the sake not only of the ringers in the peal, but of the Association itself, for we are anxious to have more records of peals rung by its members within the limits of the county.

T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

INFORMATION WANTED.

SIR,—I see in "THE BELL NEWS" for this week a peal of 5040 changes, rung in twenty-one different methods on five bells. As I am a regular reader of "THE BELL NEWS," and a young change ringer practising with a band who are at present only able to ring Doubles, I through the medium of your valuable and interesting paper ask one of those gentlemen if he could send me the methods mentioned, as I am not acquainted with any of them but Stedman, and Grandsire. Hoping I am not trespassing too much on your valuable space, and not asking too much at the hands of either of those gentlemen.

Biddenham, Bedford.

THE SNOWDON MEMORIAL.

SIR,—Since the announcement in "THE BELL NEWS" of the 19th inst., that the Snowdon Memorial Fund would be closed at the end of this month, we have been asked to keep it open for a week or two longer. The committee have therefore decided to finally close it on the 30th of April, when we hope that all who are desirous to contribute to the above object will have done so before that date, as no further postponement can take place. We would also take this opportunity of again asking those friends who have so kindly promised, and whose names have appeared in the list as paid, to send in their subscriptions as soon as possible, in order that we may get our accounts ready for issuing the balance sheet, which the committee are anxious to place in the hands of all subscribers.

PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED

CHIEF OFFICE: HOLBORN BARS, LONDON.

Summary of the Reports presented at the Thirty-eighth Annual Meeting, held on 3rd March, 1887.

In the Ordinary Branch the number of policies issued during the year was 25,567, assuring the sum of £2,715,429, and producing a New Annual Premium Income of £125,604. The Premiums of the year were £396,940, being an increase of £93,665 over the year 1885. The claims of the year amounted to £135,361.

The rate of expenditure of the Branch was little more than Ten per cent. on the Premium Income. The number of policies in force was 85,089.

An alteration has been made in the Regulations of the Company, empowering the Directors in future to pay an interim bonus upon all Participating Policies on their becoming Claims, in respect of any Premiums paid subsequent to the last distribution of profits.

The Premiums received during the year in the Industrial Branch were £2,911,295, being an increase of £116,773. The claims of the year amounted to £1,123,428. The number of deaths was 135,851. The rate of expenditure of the Branch shows a slight reduction. The number of Policies in force, including 58,099, Free Policies, was 7,111,828.

A supplement to this Report will also be submitted, showing how the assets of the Company are invested.

The tables of the Industrial Branch have been again revised, and additional advantages are secured to the Assured which the Directors believe will yet further enhance the popularity of the Company.

SUMMARY OF THE QUINQUENNIAL REPORT.

FOR THE PERIOD ENDING 31ST DECEMBER, 1886.

In the Ordinary Branch the Annual Premium Income has increased from £142,732 to £407,360. The Assurance Fund has grown from £744,583 to £1,764,800.

In the Industrial Branch the Annual Premium Income has increased from £2,051,024 to £3,065,551. The Assurance Fund has grown from £1,721,493 to £4,937,003.

The Total Assets of the Company have grown from £2,580,002 to £6,811,954, being an increase of £4,231,952 in the five years under inspection. The rate of expenditure during the Quinquennium in the Ordinary Branch has remained nearly stationary, at little more than ten per cent. A reduction of seven and a-half per cent. has been effected in the expenses of the Industrial Branch.

It will be seen from Mr. DEWEY's Report that the average duration of all the Policies in the Industrial Branch is now no less than five and a-half years, a satisfactory indication of the success which is attending the efforts of the Directors to increase the duration of the assurances.

Extract from Mr. A. H. BAILEY's Report.

Having from time to time been consulted as to the principles upon which the valuations should be made of the outstanding liabilities of your Company on the 31st December last, I have now examined the results of those valuations, the processes employed in obtaining and checking the particulars from the records, and the methods adopted to insure accuracy in the calculations.

Some notion may be formed of the magnitude of the work when it is stated that the number of assurances in force, exclusive of annuity grants, is 7,196,917; so that if each policy were on a different life, which is probably not very far from the truth, the lives of 19.6 per cent., or very nearly one-fifth of the entire population of Great Britain and Ireland are assured in this Company.

The business is carried on under two distinct branches, the "Ordinary" and the "Industrial." In the former, the premiums are payable annually, half-yearly, or quarterly; and the terms and conditions resemble those of the majority of the Life Assurance Companies of the country. In the latter branch the rates are higher, because, without exception, the premiums are payable weekly; an arrangement which the ordinary Companies will not adopt on account of the heavy expense and trouble of collection, but which experience seems so show is the only way whereby the wage-earning portion of the community can be reached.

For ten years the two Branches have been conducted independently of each other, as if they were distinct societies; separate accounts being kept, and separate investments made for each. Being now, however, practically worked by the same agents, the public select whichever best suits their convenience, and consequently the distinction between the character of the business of the two branches is becoming less. As an instance of this it is noticeable that while the average amount assured by each policy in the "Ordinary" Branch has diminished since the last valuation, being now £116 against the £137 five years ago; in the Industrial Branch the average amount has slightly increased, and is now £9 8s.

ORDINARY BRANCH.—The growth of this Branch has been very remarkable. The premium income from the assurances is £406,852, having nearly trebled in the quinquennium, and being surpassed by only four other Life Assurance Companies in the United Kingdom. The basis upon which the valuation of the liabilities has been made is explained in Mr. Hughes' report. It may be shortly described as follows:—The past experience of Assured and Annuitant lives has been adopted for the rates of mortality; 3 per cent. for the rate of interest, and 22.7 per cent. of the premium income, which is the whole of what is called the loading, has been reserved for future expenses, profits, and contingencies. Of the ample sufficiency of this reserve no doubt can be entertained, especially as it has now been resolved that the whole expenses of this Branch shall be limited to 10 per cent. of the premium income.

INDUSTRIAL BRANCH.—In this Branch the Premium Income has now reached the enormous total of £3,065,551, payable in weekly premiums averaging about twopence each. The ages of the lives assured vary from 1 year to upwards of 100, fourteen centenarians being found upon the registers. The females outnumber the males in the proportion of 1,075 to 1,000, an excess somewhat above that of the general population, whereas in the ordinary Companies the number of male lives assured is found to be about eight times that of the females. A large number of the policies in force have been effected on the lives of children. And if death occur during the first year of assurance, the contract provides that, with some exceptions, a deduction shall be made from the sum assured.

From these circumstances some modifications in the principles of valuation adopted for the Ordinary Branch become necessary. These are explained by Mr. Dewey in his report, with which I concur. For instance, the table of mortality employed for the Ordinary Branch represents the experience of adult male lives only, children being altogether omitted. For the Industrial Branch, therefore, Farr's English Life tables have been used, and separate valuations made for the male and female risks, the mortality of the two sexes being different. Again, the rate of mortality of children, unlike that of adults, diminishes from year to year up to a certain age. And therefore the risks on the lives of children not exceeding ten years of age, and those under all Policies granted during last year, have been treated as short term assurances, for which a nominal reserve only is necessary. With these exceptions, a valuation on the principles as in the Ordinary Branch has been made of all the outstanding Policies.

These facts and figures speak for themselves, and it is hardly necessary to add how eminently satisfactory the results of this elaborate investigation must be to all who are interested in the welfare of the Company.

Extract from the Report of Mr. W. HUGHES, Actuary of the Ordinary Branch.

The Valuation is as before on the net premium system, the whole of the loading or difference between the premiums payable and the risk premiums being reserved as a provision for future expenses and profit. This loading amounts to £91,078 per annum. The number of Policies in force at 31st December last was £85,089, assuring with Bonus £10,226,238, and producing an annual premium income of £407,360 8s. Of this amount £13,726 is re-assured at an annual cost of £508 7s.

A feature worthy of note is the large proportion of Endowment Assurances lately effected. At the last Valuation, 1881, these Policies formed 16 per cent. of the whole number in force; on the 31st December, 1886, there were 31,120 of these Policies, being no less than 36 per cent. of the whole number of Assurances.

The net results of the Valuation are as follows: Life Assurance Fund, 31st December, 1886, £1,764,600; Reserve for Life Assurance and Annuity Contracts, £1,457,873.

Extract from the Report of Mr. T. C. DEWEY, Actuary of the Industrial Branch.

The Policies in existence on the 31st December, 1886 (the date of Valuation), were 7,111,828 in number, assuring the sum of £66,689,111, and producing a weekly income from

Premiums of £58,953, and an Annual Income of £3,065,551. The number of Free or Paid-up Policies which have been granted in lieu of Discontinued Policies is now 58,099. It will be seen that the average amount assured by each policy is £9 8s., and that the average weekly premium is twopence.

The experience of the Quinquennium shows that the business is yearly becoming of a more stable character, for notwithstanding the large influx of new business during that period, the average duration of the Policies now in existence is about five and a-half years.

I believe that as Industrial Assurance become better appreciated, it will assume an even more permanent character, and that the difference in this respect between Ordinary and Industrial Policies will disappear. I can see no reason, therefore, why different principles should now be adopted in the valuation of the two classes of assurances, and I have consequently valued pure premiums only, reserving the whole of the loading, distinguishing male from female lives. The proportion of the premium reserved is 43.5 per cent.

The mortality of this Branch having been carefully recorded for many years, I find that the English Life Table (No 3) most closely accords with our experience, and I have therefore adopted that Table for every description of Assurance. In all calculations I have assumed that £3 per cent. per annum will be realised on the investments.

The result of the Valuation is as follows: Present value of sums assured, £32,760,509; present value of future pure premiums, £28,288,658. Net liability, £4,471,851.

It may be contended that the principles which are adopted in the valuation of Ordinary assurances are not applicable to Industrial risks, but it must be a source of the highest gratification to you and to everyone connected with the Company, to feel that the business of this Branch will now bear a test so severe and one hitherto unknown in the history of Industrial Assurance.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

I.—INTRODUCTORY.

SOME apology is due to readers of "THE BELL NEWS" for the space lately absorbed in these columns by my papers on Cambridge Surprise, which can have had little or no attraction for the ordinary reader. The present subject will, I hope, arouse a wider interest, and prove less wearisome than an abstruse dissertation on a system which, though historical, can never with its many defects become popular.

At the outset, I am desirous of directing attention to the present state of the Art in regard to ten and twelve bell ringing. Eight bell ringing has for many years past received a large share of notice in the more advanced methods, until at the present time there are several bands and very many individual ringers who can tap away in peals of Double Norwich and Superlative with as much ease and certainty as in Treble Bob. But when we turn to ten and twelve bells, the same progress is by no means apparent; in fact the proportion of peals of Royal and Maximus to those of Major is much less than it was in the last century. Doubtless one reason is because the advance in Major ringing has been chiefly effected by country companies, who, being confined to eight bells, have concentrated thereon their energies. Again, the unprecedented and deserved popularity of Stedman Caters and Cinques, so infinitely more interesting and convenient to ring than long and monotonous courses of Treble Bob, has perhaps kept town companies from turning their tenors in so frequently as formerly.

But the question arises:—Why has ringing on ten and twelve bells been confined to Treble Bob? I make the statement under correction, but I believe it to be a fact that for seventy years no peal of Royal or Maximus had been rung in any other method, except perhaps an odd peal of Plain Bob, until the somewhat discreditable spell was last year broken by the energy of the Ipswich Society, whose peals of Double Norwich Royal indicate the possibility of Double Norwich Maximus in the near future; a performance which, if achieved, will place that company on a pedestal of fame not second to the Norwich of the past.

The question admits of an answer in the extreme difficulty of attempting new methods where there are a large number of ringers, and where, consequently, the practices of a special band in a ten or twelve bell tower would entail temporary exclusion on the rest. It may be argued that Plain Bob was learnt and rung in several variations, and subsequently Treble Bob; then why not other methods? The reply to this is, that all these were methods which could be equally well practised on eight bells, and of which the extension to ten and twelve involved no material alteration in the work; that is to say, that anyone who could ring them on eight could ring them equally well on higher numbers when accustomed to the extra ropes. The rapid rise of Stedman from five to eleven bells was doubtless due to this valuable property.

Now of the finer Major methods—except Double Oxford, in which the length of dodging would be excessive—none can be extended to Royal or Maximus without entailing alterations in the work so extensive as to leave the original hardly recognisable in its new form. Such a case is that of Double Norwich, in which the relation of Major to Royal and Maximus is so slight as to make them to all intents and purposes different methods. The same applies to Superlative, which, though extended to ten bells by Shipway has never been practised. The difficulties in the way of learning such methods with a band of so many as ten ringers seem too great to justify any hope that more than an occasional attempt will be made in this direction. The impediment seems absurd, but it none the less exists, and taken together with historical evidence, clearly points to the inference that no further general advance in ten and twelve bell-ringing can be expected until some more musical and interesting method than Treble Bob makes its appearance, which, in addition to being fairly easily learnt, shall be capable of extension from Major to Royal and Maximus without any radical change in the work.

Before proceeding further let us glance briefly at the musical properties of the ten and twelve bell methods now existing. Plain Bob we may dismiss as having had its day and no longer possessing any special attraction. Treble Bob, at present in general use, is in many ways very defective, as has been pretty clearly stated by greater authorities than myself. The endless making of seconds place in front, together with the wide and frequent parting of the heavy bells, causes the music to be, except at the course-ends, very unsatisfactory.

I am aware that many leading ringers hold Treble Bob as excellent music, but with all deference to their opinion I must take leave to observe that excellence is a comparative quality, and that no one with the slightest ear for harmony who has heard Superlative or Double Norwich would again take the same pleasure as before in Treble Eight. The regard for Treble Bob is simply due to the fact that those who admire it have never heard anything better.

With respect to Double Norwich Royal and Maximus, the music cannot for a moment be compared to that of Double Norwich Major, for while the latter is one of the most perfect of methods, the former, in which the beautiful double dodging is entirely done away, have little more to recommend them than that they keep the tenors well together; a most important point, however, for with ten and twelve bells the effectiveness of the beat is largely dependent on the regular and equidistant positions of the heavy bells. On these grounds Superlative Royal, in which they are mercilessly knocked about, stands at once condemned. Double Oxford on the higher numbers would not be pleasing, for as the bells in front and behind dodge till the treble parts them, what are only five pull dodges in Major would be extended to seven and nine pull dodges in Royal and Maximus, a length tedious alike to hand and ear.

Other ten-bell methods there are, but not meriting notice here, as their virtues are few and their faults many, and there is no likelihood of their ever being practised. Shipway's principle alone remains to be noticed. For the benefit of those who are unacquainted with its lines I may say that there is four bell work in front, and triple dodging in all the other places, the bells going in alternately quick and slow as in Stedman. Here one would think was just the desired method, as with simply the extra places to dodge in it runs the same on all even numbers. Unfortunately the alternating quick and slow work parts the tenors so widely that, except at the course-ends, there is no regularity in the music, and there is the further objection that the slow work is complicated, and the continuous triple dodging tedious.

We arrive therefore at the conclusion, not only that there is no ten or twelve bell method in existence that can be said to produce the best of music, but also that, of such methods as there are, none but Plain Bob and Treble Bob are suitable for general practice—Grandsire I altogether ignore as being on even numbers a bastard system—and that therefore, as has already been stated, no general advance can be anticipated in the direction indicated until some more harmonious method than these is found, which shall be equally capable of easy extension from Major to Royal and Maximus. The possibility of this will be considered in the next paper.

RINGERS' DINNER AT SOUTHPORT.

The first Annual dinner of the Christ Church society, took place at Messrs. Thorp and Co.'s restaurant, Nevill street, on Saturday, March 26th. In the unavoidable absence of the Rev. Canon Clarke vicar, and W. J. Robson, Esq., J.P., Churchwarden, the Rev. F. Pearman, M.A., curate of Christ Church, presided, and Mr. J. Redford (secretary of the Lancashire Association), occupied the vice-chair. There were visitors by invitation from Liverpool, Ormskirk, Aughton and Bolton, and a few personal friends of the ringers. In all about thirty sat down to an excellent dinner provided in Messrs Thorp and Co.'s usual style. After the cloth was removed, the rev. Chairman proposed the loyal toast of "The Queen," and in suitable terms alluded to this her Jubilee year; also to the importance of the office of ringers in Church work, after which the whole company sang "God save the Queen." The next toast was "The Prince and Princess of Wales, and all the Royal Family." Next on the programme was a well struck course of Grandsire Caters on the handbells. The next toast was "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese," by the vice-chairman, and suitably responded to by the rev. Chairman. The health of the visitors was enthusiastically received and responded to first by the Vice-Chairman, who gave a very excellent explanation of the work being done by the Lancashire Association, stating that it numbered about 400 members, 30 having joined since the Annual Meeting in October last, and that it was proposed to divide the county into three or four districts, and each district to appoint its own local secretary, and be represented on the committee, and to arrange their own local ringing meetings, postage expenses, etc., to be paid out of the general fund, and all subscriptions to be paid to the Association, and to hold the Quarterly and Annual Meeting alternately in each district. The other ringers responded in very suitable terms, expressing themselves highly pleased with the hospitality of the Southport ringers. The rest of the evening was enjoyed in songs, recitations, and course ringing on the handbells (by various companies) which have recently been put in excellent repair and tune (twenty-one in number), by Messrs Mears and Stainbank, of Whitechapel, London, who cast them some years ago, every one present pronouncing them a first class lot of bells. The tower bells were open from three till six in the afternoon, and kept going most of the time, the toast of the "Town and Trade of Southport," "the Chairman," "Vice-Chairman," "Messrs Thorp and Co.," brought a very enjoyable evening to a close at a little after ten o'clock by again singing "God save the Queen."

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday last, April 2nd, a Committee Meeting was held at headquarters, Bradford, Mr. W. Snowdon, President, in the chair. After the usual routine business had been disposed of, a drawing of the dedication brass for the Snowdon Memorial window was submitted, and with a few alterations, approved of. It was agreed that the unveiling of the window should take place on Saturday, June 11th, instead of June 4th, so as not to clash with the Whitsuntide holidays, and that the ordinary meeting of the Association shall take place on the same day at Ilkley, Mr. W. Snowdon (President), Mr. R. Tuke (Treasurer), and Mr. W. Whitaker (Secretary), were appointed a sub-committee to carry out the necessary arrangements.

Smith, 4; H. Bond, 5; W. Large (conductor), 6; T. E. Glanville, 7; H. Shaylor, 8.

PONTEFRACT, YORKSHIRE.

After ringing out their merry peals for more than fifty years, the bells (eight in number), in the parish church, were found to be in a very unsafe condition. Messrs. Mallaby and Son, of Masham, were called in, and they reported that the entire peal required to be rehung. After a short delay, the work of rehanging was undertaken, by that firm, who have just completed the same to the entire satisfaction of the Vicar and Churchwardens, and those who had the oversight of the work. On Friday, March 18th, the bells were reopened by the ringers who spent the afternoon in change ringing; later, they were entertained at supper by the Vicar and Churchwardens, and a most enjoyable evening was spent, and one that will not be forgotten by those present for many years to come.

AT ST. STEPHEN'S.

THURSDAY.—While Earl Cadogan in the Upper House introduces his Irish Land Bill, Mr. Labouchere in the Lower House resumes the debate on the motion of Mr. Balfour for leave to introduce the Criminal Law Amendment (Ireland) Bill. The hon. member criticised the Bill, and though he deplored it, he had the consolation of believing that if it were passed and administered in Ireland, it would advance more than anything else within the last few years the cause of Home Rule. The hon. member found his arguments supported and combatted at every point by both sides of the House, and when the Attorney-General had concluded his speech, the adjournment of the debate was moved by Mr. Parnell, and here a scene arose which shows how prone members are to forget their dignity.—Mr. W. H. Smith, in assenting to the adjournment, called attention to the fact that Mr. Parnell had an amendment on the paper which appeared on Saturday morning. It was the custom of Parliament that such amendments should be moved at an earlier date than the hon. member had thought proper to do. He was under the necessity of saying that he should invite the House on Friday to come to a decision on the main question. It was now the eighth day of debate, and four days had been spent in asking leave for the motion. Nine days had been devoted to practically one subject, and he was sure that the House would feel that the time had come when a decision should be taken. Sir W. Harcourt dissented from this on the ground that while Sir Robert Peel in 1846, there was a debate of seven nights, and now the closure was to be applied after four nights. Mr. Smith here rose, and he and Sir William maintained their position facing each other at the table for a considerable time, amid fierce cheering from the Ministerial and Opposition benches. The Speaker: The right hon. gentleman is in possession of the House.—Sir W. Harcourt said he did not wish to interfere if the hon. gentleman wanted to make an explanation.—Mr. Smith said he wished to correct the mistake of Sir William, into which he had evidently fallen. He simply said he should invite the House to come to a decision. This did not seem like an expression of intention on his part to close the debate. In this way crimination and recrimination was continued for some time, Mr. Smith maintaining his point until the adjournment was agreed to.

FRIDAY.—This was by far the most important day of the whole debate in that, as anticipated by the Leader of the Government, a decision was come to on the main question before the House. Mr. Parnell opened the debate and was frequently the cause of explanation and interruption, and when he had resumed his seat the discussion was taken up with marked vigour by both sides of the House, during which certain members were called to order. Mr. Healy moved the adjournment of the debate, but this was lost by a majority of 107. The adjournment of the House was next moved, but was lost by a majority of 108. And now amid intense excitement, the Speaker put the question, accompanied with cries of "shame" and "oh! oh!" from Irish members, and Ministerial cheers. As Mr. Gladstone, on the House being cleared for decision, walked towards the "no" lobby, he was loudly cheered, and one of the Irish members shouted "We'll fight you to the death." The Speaker called order, when another voice was heard "Down with the Speaker." The House then divided, when for the closure being applied, there was a majority of 108. Cheers and counter cheers greeted the result, and cries of "Down with the Speaker" and "Tyranny." Mr. Gladstone then left the House, and the main question being put, leave was given to bring in the bill. The House adjourned at ten minutes to three o'clock.

MONDAY.—As Mr. J. Morley rightly said, a very painful incident occurred to day. Mr. Chaplin interrogated Mr. Speaker as to certain remarks which had fallen from the member for the Camborne Division of Cornwall, and which remarks reflected on the Speaker's conduct, in the chair. The Speaker in a most dignified and courteous manner, removed the imputation from himself upon the House by saying that it was not a reflection upon him personally, but upon the House through its elected Speaker. It was his duty and his wish while in the chair to allay party feeling if he could. It was a strange thing, and he hoped an unprecedented fact that an hon. member should charge him with becoming a partisan under any circumstances.

He was content to leave his public conduct in the chair to the judgment of every fair and right-minded and honourable man. This statement called the hon. member who had made the remarks alluded to, to the front, and after a most abject explanation, and further speeches from other gentlemen being uttered, the subject was dropped. On the orders of the day being read, Mr. Duff called attention to the administration of Harbour Loans, and moved a resolution thereon; and Mr. Beckett was beginning to make a speech in support, when the Speaker left the chair followed by the Clerk of the House who returning immediately afterwards informed the House that the Speaker in consequence of ill-health was obliged to leave the House and would not be able to resume the chair this evening. There was about the whole proceedings something of an almost unique character, besides being most regrettable in every particular; and though the business did not stop, the two incidents were not forgotten by the time the House adjourned.

TUESDAY.—The Speaker being still unwell, the Deputy-Speaker presided over the National Senate, and had to listen to an unusually large number of questions, on almost every subject connected with the affairs of the country. Even a speech of Lord R. Churchill was the subject of discussion, and did not fail to call forth the tart remarks in reply the noble lord knows so well how to make. Questions being over, Mr. A. J. Balfour formally moved the second reading of the Crimes Bill, and Sir B. Samuelson immediately followed with an amendment to the effect that the House declined to proceed with the Bill, considering that if it became law, it would tend to increase disorder in Ireland and endanger the union between that country and the other parts of the Empire. The usual arguments in favour of Home Rule were adduced by the hon. member, and he was supported by Sir J. Pease, Mr. Chaplin, Sir C. Russell, and others, until the Solicitor-General, in language as trenchant as concise, produced additional evidence from a legal point of view, why the union should be maintained.—Dr. Commins declared that the Bill was bare and naked coercion, and Mr. Lea moved the adjournment of the debate, which was agreed to after some "raal" Irish from Irish members, and shortly afterwards the House itself adjourned.

THE RINGER IN PARLIAMENT.

THE WORCESTERSHIRE AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of this Association will be held in the Chapter House, Worcester Cathedral, on Easter Monday, April 11th, 1817, when the Dean Dr. Gott, President, will preside. The towers of All Saints (ten), St. Helen's (eight), St. Swithin (six), St. Martin (six) St. Nicholas (six), and St. John's (six bells), will be open during the day for ringing. Nothing is decided about the Cathedral bells being rung, as a serious report has been received from the Architect. General Meeting and election of officers at 2 o'clock, after which an address will be given by the Dean, to which all members and friends are earnestly invited. All members who have not paid their subscriptions are requested to do so, that their names may appear in the lists.

N.B.—Those members who have not received an invitation will please take this as such.

COLLAPSE OF A SOCIALIST MEETING AT MORPETH.

ON Friday evening last, April 1st, an open air meeting in connection with the above movement was advertised to take place in the Market Place, when addresses were to be delivered by Messrs. Williams and Fielden. At the hour appointed, neither of the gentlemen had arrived, and when Mr. Fielden came by himself, he said he had been delayed through an accident. He commenced his address, but it so happened that the enemy was in the audience, in the shape of the bellringers. They told some of the audience in a quiet manner that they would soon stop the Socialist, and stop him they did, for they went forthwith and began their practising in the old clock tower, and in a short time Mr. Fielden had to give in, notwithstanding his strong voice, as only a few could hear him.

REPRINT OF ANOTHER WORK ON CHANGE-RINGING.

The publisher of "THE BELL NEWS" has the pleasure to announce the issue, in penny weekly numbers, of a rare old work upon ringing, entitled "Campanalogia Improved; or the Art of Ringing made easy," &c. This work is printed uniform with "Shipway" and the "Clavis," which have been so eagerly taken up.

The Publisher believes that the re-issues of these various old ringing works, which at the present day are from their scarcity, so difficult of perusal, will be approved of by ringers. Their publication enables all who have an inclination for the useful, as well as the curious, to possess in time a valuable and complete ringing library. The copy, which has been kindly lent to the editor of this journal by Mr. S. B. Goslin, of the Crescent Foundry, Cripplegate, belongs to a fifth edition, "Corrected by J. Monk." For the purposes of easy publication it is called after his name, and those intending to take in the penny weekly numbers, should ask for "Monk on Ringing."

All who are desirous of securing copies should do so without delay, as a second reprint is out of the question.

THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD " will be forwarded, post free, on the following terms:—

One copy, 12 months	6s. 6d.
" 6 "	3s. 3d.
" 3 "	1s. 8d.

All Subscriptions and Orders for papers must be sent direct to the Publisher E. W. ALLEN, Ave Maria Lane, London.

Everything for insertion in this Journal to be addressed "The Editor of THE BELL NEWS, Walthamstow, London." Letters forwarded for publication, and performances under 5000 changes must reach us not later than Wednesday morning; and the insertion of any communication arriving later than the first Postal delivery on Thursday morning cannot be guaranteed in that week's number. When it is found impossible from want of space to insert all touches forwarded, the earlier ones will have the preference.

All communications respecting advertisements must be addressed to the office of "THE BELL NEWS," Walthamstow, London.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1887.

EASTER MONDAY has ever been considered by ringers the day of the year, par excellence, upon which to visit their brethren who dwell in neighbouring localities. And journeys of this kind are not always taken for the express object of ringing, but they are in many instances made for the purpose of enjoying the society of old friends, who, in social interchange of opinion and retrospective conversation, live once again the days that have passed. That next Easter Monday will be very different to its predecessors in this respect we do not believe. The formation of ringing Associations and Guilds, combined with the great facilities for transit from place to place, increases such opportunities. The various notices of meetings which have of late appeared in our pages go far to show that these reunions of members of the Exercise are much appreciated; and in cases where the revival of friendship is not the principal object sought, a great interest is felt by the members in the proceedings of those particular Associations who on the day in question meet to transact important matters of business connected with their government. No doubt ringers have been attracted to such meetings before now by the—to them—novelty of such an assemblage. The presence of one hundred or more ringers meeting together at a particular point, attending the church services, and hearing from a member of their own organization how to apply the teachings of the Word of God to the work they are engaged in, is a spectacle which, generally speaking, has not antiquity on its side, in fact it may to some extent be a novelty, but it is one which we are all glad to find is becoming more and more common. And the published utterances of many of those who from the pulpit have edified and instructed their brethren, may be classed as "pearls of great price" among what is known to us by the term—"ringing literature." These homilies, which have been repeatedly preached, have we know, taken root, the seed has been sown on good ground, and in due time the harvest will be reaped. It should be the endeavour of all to make these meetings a grand means of doing some good; some excellent scheme for each others' well-being should ever be in hand, to be unfolded and carried through at the Easter Monday gathering. No matter to what degree of perfection society is brought, there will always be room for improvement among us. Changes for the better should be sought for diligently; reformation of any kind, from whatever source, should be cordially entertained and advocated. Courtesy and genteel behaviour, even among those whose surroundings are not always of the most refined character, is a thing worth practising, with a view to ultimate perfection. Let us hope this hint will not altogether be forgotten when at the meetings about to be held opinions and inclinations have a tendency to differ.

TOTTENHAM, MIDDLESEX.

On Tuesday, March 17th, at the parish church of All Hallows, for Confirmation Service, 840 of Bob Triples, and 1376 of Bob Major. And on Saturday, March 26th, a 1296 of Bob Major, by Messrs. Davidson, Hubbard, Newman, Langram, Waghorn sen. and jun., Lucas and English. This touch was rung on the occasion of fixing a peal board commemorating the peal of Bob Triples rung on seven bells last January. The board, which is the gift of Mr. Arthur Hubbard, is unique in design, and has a massive Oxford frame finished in black and gold, upon which hangs a well written scroll. Much amusement has been caused by those not in the "know" asking, "Why dont you take down that sheet of paper and let us see the writing underneath?" W. PYE-ENGLISH, Hon. Sec.

THE BELLS OF ST. MARTIN-IN-THE-FIELDS.

The following account of the Church bells of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, &c., may prove interesting to your readers; it was written by my grandfather, who was connected with the Vestry about 1812:—

3rd Nov., 1724.—Eight new bells ordered to be hung.

8th Dec., 1724.—Ordered that 2 bells be added to the number agreed on the 3rd November last.

The weight of the ten bells. Width of the bells.

				24th May, 1726.
Tenor	31	2	18	4	7½
Ninth	23	2	14	4	3
Eighth	17	2	17	3	9
Seventh	15	2	10	3	7
Sixth	12	2	2	3	4
Fifth	10	1	20	3	1

Third	7	3	15	2	8½
Second	6	2	26	2	6½
Treble	6	1	27	2	5½
	141	1	3

The following year two bells were added to make the peal twelve, about 600 lbs. each, and a peal of 6000 Cinques rang on them by "The London Scholars."

1726, Oct. 4.—Ordered that the Churchwardens be requested to apply to the Bishop of London to consecrate the Church on the 20th inst.

23.—Thanks given to Dr. Pearce for his sermon preached on the 20th instant, on the consecration of St. Martin's Church.

Chrstr. Shrider built the Organ.

Mr. Gibbs allowed £550 as Surveyor.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE.—It is proposed to hold two meetings of this Guild during the month of May next. One at Poole on Tuesday, May 10th, and one at Trowbridge on Thursday, May 12th.

SHELLEY & COS. COMPLETE PRESS DIRECTORY FOR 1887.—This Directory claims to be "a full and impartial guide to the Press of the United Kingdom," arranged in sections handy for reference. Special attention has been devoted to the Provincial sections. In one part of the book Provincial Newspapers are arranged in Alphabetical order of towns being at the same time classified under the headings of "Daily Morning," "Daily Afternoon" and "Weekly, &c." A considerable amount of interesting information is given respecting each town, including the names of the Local Banks with their London Agents, the Local Members of Parliament, Officials, Railways, &c., and the most available London departure stations. In another part the Provincial Papers are grouped in Counties and there Classified as "Daily, Weekly," &c., so that a comprehensive view of the press enterprise of any County is given at a glance. Each County list is headed by several lines of valuable information. The following summary of the Press of the United Kingdom is given. Morning Newspapers, London 16; English Provincial 45; Welsh 3; Scottish 10; Irish 12. Evening Newspapers, London 12; English Provincial 83; Welsh 2; Scottish 10; Irish 6; British Isles 1; Weekly Newspapers, &c., London and Suburbs 666; English Provincial 1148; Welsh 76; Scottish 179; Irish 160; British Islands 20; Magazines, Periodicals, &c., London 342; Provincial 288; Total 3579. The Directory is demy quarto in size, contains about 300 pages, is handsomely bound in scarlet cloth, with gilt lettering, and is published at 1s. by Shelley & Co., Advertising Contractors, 5, Leadenhall Street, London, E.C.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

ANSWER TO "ENQUIRER."

SIR,—In reply to "Enquirer," I beg to inform him that each year on Good Friday, the bells of St. Peter's Church, Stoke-on-Trent, are rung muffled on both sides. At Retford, Nottinghamshire, the bells of the churches of St. Swithin and St. Michael, are also rung muffled, I believe on one side.

W. B. ALLISON.

Stoke-on-Trent.

SIR,—In answer to "Enquirer" I may inform him that in many places it is the custom to ring the bells half-muffled on Good Friday. In other places the tenor bell alone is used for all services on that day. This bell is in some cases rung up half muffled. For my own part I think the best plan to pursue with regard to service bells during Holy Week is to chime in the usual way according to the custom of the place, for the services on the Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday before Easter, and on Easter even, but to ring the tenor alone half-muffled for all services on Good Friday.

J. R. JERRAM.

SIR,—"Enquirer" wishes to know whether it is the custom to ring muffled on Good Friday, and would like the opinion of clerical ringers. Our custom here is to do so, half-muffled, of course, as there is comparatively no beauty in bells muffled both sides. As to the hours for ringing, they would naturally vary according to the services. Our plan is to ring from 9.30 to 10.15 a.m., and again from 6.30 to 7.45 p.m., i.e., before the morning and evening services. It would be preferable in addition to ring at 3 p.m. at the conclusion of the three hours' service, where held—we cannot however do so here, as a children's service is held at 3.30 p.m. Our bells are left on their stays till Easter Day, when, as is most meet and right, every tower in England should pour forth its peal of thanksgiving "very early in the morning," certainly not later than 6 a.m. We begin here at 5.30 a.m., so as not to interfere with the service bell for the first celebration at 6.30 a.m. A few sleepy neighbours may object, but as it possibly has the effect of bringing them to the second celebration at 8 a.m., instead of putting off their Easter Communion till mid-day, it is a thing much to be desired. Of course we ring for morning and evening service, at 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., as well as at the conclusion of the latter.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—Looking over the peal of Treble Bob Major of mine in this day's issue, I find two printer's errors, viz.—In the second and third courses, the bobs at the wrong being superfluous and would cause the same to be false. To prevent disappointment to any one calling it, and not fully conversant with the method, I thought it advisable to point it out and ask you to notice it in your next issue. SAMUEL MARSH.

West Bromwich, April 2nd, 1887.

USELESS COMPOSITIONS.

SIR,—Some few months ago I called your attention to the fact that many of the peals which appeared in the "BELL NEWS" were not worth the space they occupied, neither from an original point of view, or from any particular merit in their construction, and intimating that composers should use greater care to test the originality of their productions, but there appears to be an utter disregard by some people in this particular. The very fact of composers reproducing old peals and ascribing their names to them is simply absurd, and if this kind of thing is going to be recognised by the Exercise at large compositions of an original character will soon become scarce, if people cannot or will not see the difference between an original peal and a variation of one then the sooner they cease to waste their time the better it will be. In your last issue there is a 5088 of Treble Bob Major by Mr. Y. Green, which is the reverse of one composed thirty or forty years ago and as been rung a great many times more on account of its simplicity than any musical qualities it may possess. Mr. Green has been equally unfortunate in reproducing the best half of another well known peal. These peals may have been composed on legitimate principles, but it makes very little difference whether they have or not as they cannot possibly be held up as original compositions. I have heard it said there is nothing new to be obtained in Treble Bob but I beg to differ on that point, improvements are yet to be made and I have mentioned this fact to some few of my friends in the country who are of the same opinion. It is not my intention to give any advice on the subject as to how such improvements are to be brought about for I well know there are many composers who are capable of judging, and can readily see the accuracy of my remarks.

CHARLES HENRY HATTERSLEY.

Snider Works, Sheffield, April 4th, 1887.

[Mr. Green writes this week renouncing all claim to the above-mentioned peal.—Ed.]

DOUBTFUL AUTHORSHIP.

SIR,—In your list of peals &c., of last week there appears a peal of Treble Bob Major (5088 changes), by York Green, of West Ham, which peal is also stated to have been first rung at Putney. On reference to Snowdon's work on Treble Bob (part 2, page 27) I find this same peal, accompanied with the statement that it "was rung at St. Peter's, Sowerby, December 26th, 1858." In Sottanstell's Elements of Campanalogia published in 1867, (page 419), this same peal appears with Mr. Sottanstell's name appended as the composer. While writing on this point, I would like to ask what is the meaning of the initial "B" at the first course, and "B B" at the last course of Mr. Pritchard's peal of Royal? The course ends come up with the calling given without these prefatory signs. Also what is the meaning of the letter "B" at the end of first course of Mr. Sykes' peal of Treble Bob Major?

SUNDAY PEAL RINGING.

SIR,—Will you favour me, as a member of the K.C.A.C.R., by inserting the following remarks on the above subject. Since the formation of our Association, the science of campanology has been largely developed, as is evidenced by (1) the number of bands now belonging to the Association, (2) the restoring of belfries, (3) the addition of bells to incomplete peals, (4) the hanging of peals, (5) the number of reports of our achievements all over the country appearing in "THE BELL NEWS," and (6) by the great interest manifested in it even by non-ringers. Every band has its fixed evenings for ringing, and of course this regularity of practice is the only way of attaining excellence in the art; but I regret to have read occasionally that even the Sabbath has been appropriated as a peal-day, and this not by the home band only, but by some making excursions to other places for the purpose. Now I, as the mouthpiece of our band, respectfully submit that this practice is, to say the least, an act of irreverence, and will be pleaded by outsiders in justification of their desecration of the Sabbath by secular recreation. Moreover, will not the very fact of these exploits being reported in the papers, lead others to make light of such texts as Isaiah lviii., 13, etc., and shew that our own view of our work as Church officials is certainly much lower than the above and similar texts would sanction. A MEMBER OF THE K.C.A.C.R.

PRESTBURY SURPRISE MAJOR (A NEW METHOD).

SIR,—This method is new to myself, also to many of my ringing friends. If it has been rung before kindly say when and where, and give the composer's name. I add the first lead of the plain course. Bobs the same as Plain Bob.

THE BELLS OF EWELL CHURCH, SURREY.

SIR,—On Tuesday, March 23rd, the Epsom branch of the Surrey Association paid a visit to Ewell, and rung a 720 of Grandsire Minor in 27 mins. H. Pederick, 1; J. Hawkins, 2; H. Kenten, 3; R. Harden, 4; J. Easton, 5; T. Miles (conductor), 6. Also two 120's of Stedman Doubles, and some touches of Grandsire Doubles and Bob Minor, in which A. E. Bassett, W. Saunders, and G. Stone took part, and great credit is due to all who took part in the ringing. The bells are in a very dilapidated condition, four of them being badly cracked, and the go of them such as requires a good deal of bodily strength, combined with the greatest care to keep the ropes from slipping the wheel. I think it is a great pity belfry reform has not reached Ewell, as it is a nice little tower, and well deserving of a good ring of eight, which I think might be got without much trouble, if some one would only give it a start, and then perhaps the dust and cobwebs might get disposed of, as it looks very much as though the spiders have a good try to make their webs as long as the ropes, that a stranger going into the ringing room would hardly think a human being had seen inside the place since the church was built. I trust this may meet the eye of some one interested in the parish of Ewell and its bells, and that I have not encroached on your valuable columns. NIL DESPERANDUM.

REPLY TO REV. T. L. PAPILLON.

SIR,—With reference to the peal rung at Harlow on March 12th, I wish to state that I went there on the understanding that it was to be for the Hertfordshire Association, but, just as we were about to commence, it was proposed to make it an Essex Association peal in addition. Mr. Tucker then proposed Mr. Luckey as a member, thinking that all the other seven were also members; whereupon I informed him that I was not. I must say that I was quite surprised to find the peal booked as an Essex peal instead of Hertfordshire.

THE SNOWDON MEMORIAL.

SIR,—Allow me to express my pleasure on seeing that the fund for the above is to be kept open until the last day of April, and I trust that those ringers who have not yet contributed, will see their way to do so at once, and materially assist (if at the eleventh hour) in swelling the fund to a good round sum, thus enabling the committee to erect a window which shall be worth looking at, and in every way a fitting memorial from the ringers of England to one who has done more to promote the art of change-ringing in both public and private than any man who ever entered into the subject. To those of us who were personally acquainted with Mr. Snowdon, his death was a terrible blow, for in him we had one who always took the greatest pleasure to help any one out of their difficulties in learning ringing even though they were only five bell ringers, while his written works show the master hand in all that he undertook. Without in any way disparaging the many other noble men who are or have done good work, I have no hesitation in saying that no man ever deserved such national recognition as Mr. Snowdon. I hope that all ringers will send their mite at once to the Secretary of the fund, even my dear friends in Norfolk and the Eastern Counties, as I have an idea some of them have not given too much yet. Honour to whom all honour is due. Jasper Whitfield Snowdon was the man for all ringers to honour.

OXFORD SURPRISE MAJOR.

SIR,—I saw in last week's "BELL NEWS," a little information given by the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer concerning Oxford Surprise Major. Of course every ringer would be glad of such information that could not see it for himself, and with thanks receive it; but at the same time they ought to know that it is impossible to produce a perfect method without false changes. As a plain course, this method is a perfect one, that is, it contains alternate quadruple and triple changes, and never two whole pulls following each other before or behind, never two belis lying together, and the bells meeting in their relative positions. This is the only method possible to obtain with these qualities. I have thoroughly worked out the thing from beginning to end, both in single methods and double ones, and find there are no other methods to be obtained worthy of bringing before the Exercise. Of course there are plenty of methods to be had by departing from their in and out-out, or by making joint places; but I maintain that such methods as those are mongrel ones, and not scientifically perfect ones. In this method seconds place has to be made at a bob, which is the only slight flaw in it, and cannot be remedied; there are about five other methods to be had, but in each of them we get the second or the third dodging on the wrong with the tenor, enough to choke anyone, and it would be impossible to fix another bell in these places for any length of time; so scientifically speaking, we are left with only Oxford Surprise to fall back upon, as a method with the qualities required to make it perfect. The extent with the tenors together is 6720, the same as Superlative, and the compositions without b's something of the same nature.

THE SILENT PEAL OF GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—It gave me very great pleasure to read the article in your last issue concerning the silent handbell peal of Grandsire Triples rung on March 11th last, especially as I was invited to follow the peal through I cannot think of allowing this excellent performance to pass without endorsing every word reported, and beyond expressing an opinion that it would be impossible for any band to accomplish a better peal, as the striking from the commencement to the finish was simply machinery itself.

W. BARON.

Mr. Arthur Symonds, of Market Lane, Lavenham, writes: "Will you through the columns of 'THE BELL NEWS,' allow me space to thank Mr. G. H. Howse, of Eastbourne, Sussex, for answering my request of Warnham Court Minor."

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

Report for the fortnight ending April 5th, 1887.—By the Arundel, Augmering, and Goring branches at Goring.—On Sunday, April 3rd, six 6-scores of Cantsire Doubles. F. Hayler, 1; H. Evans, 2; F. CHARLES HERBERT, Hon. Sec.

PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED

CHIEF OFFICE: HOLBORN BARS, LONDON.

Summary of the Reports presented at the Thirty-eighth Annual Meeting, held on 3rd March, 1887.

In the Ordinary Branch the number of policies issued during the year was 25,567, assuring the sum of £2,715,429, and producing a New Annual Premium Income of £125,604. The Premiums of the year were £396,940, being an increase of £93,665 over the year 1886. The claims of the year amounted to £135,361.

The rate of expenditure of the Branch was little more than Ten per cent. on the Premium Income. The number of policies in force was 85,089.

An alteration has been made in the Regulations of the Company, empowering the Directors in future to pay an interim bonus upon all Participating Policies on their becoming Claims, in respect of any Premiums paid subsequent to the last distribution of profits.

The Premiums received during the year in the Industrial Branch were £2,911,295, being an increase of £116,773. The claims of the year amounted to £1,123,428. The number of deaths was 135,851. The rate of expenditure of the Branch shows a slight reduction. The number of Policies in force, including 58,099, Free Policies, was 7,111,828.

A supplement to this Report will also be submitted, showing how the assets of the Company are invested.

The tables of the Industrial Branch have been again revised, and additional advantages are secured to the Assured which the Directors believe will yet further enhance the popularity of the Company.

SUMMARY OF THE QUINQUENNIAL REPORT.

FOR THE PERIOD ENDING 31ST DECEMBER, 1886.

In the Ordinary Branch the Annual Premium Income has increased from £142,732 to £407,360. The Assurance Fund has grown from £744,583 to £1,764,600.

In the Industrial Branch the Annual Premium Income has increased from £2,051,024 to £3,065,551. The Assurance Fund has grown from £1,721,493 to £4,937,003.

The Total Assets of the Company have grown from £2,580,002 to £6,811,954, being an increase of £4,231,952 in the five years under inspection. The rate of expenditure during the Quinquennium in the Ordinary Branch has remained nearly stationary, at little more than ten per cent. A reduction of seven and a-half per cent. has been effected in the expenses of the Industrial Branch.

It will be seen from Mr. Dewey's Report that the average duration of all the Policies in the Industrial Branch is now no less than five and a-half years, a satisfactory indication of the success which is attending the efforts of the Directors to increase the duration of the assurances.

Extract from Mr. A. H. BAILEY'S Report.

Having from time to time been consulted as to the principles upon which the valuations should be made of the outstanding liabilities of your Company on the 31st December last, I have now examined the results of those valuations, the processes employed in obtaining and checking the particulars from the records, and the methods adopted to insure accuracy in the calculations.

Some notion may be formed of the magnitude of the work when it is stated that the number of assurances in force, exclusive of annuity grants, is 7,196,917; so that if each policy were on a different life, which is probably not very far from the truth, the lives of 19.6 per cent., or very nearly one-fifth of the entire population of Great Britain and Ireland are assured in this Company.

The business is carried on under two distinct branches, the "Ordinary" and the "Industrial." In the former, the premiums are payable annually, half-yearly, or quarterly; and the terms and conditions resemble those of the majority of the Life Assurance Companies of the country. In the latter branch the rates are higher, because, without exception, the premiums are payable weekly, an arrangement which the ordinary Companies will not adopt on account of the heavy expense and trouble of collection, but which experience seems to show is the only way whereby the wage-earning portion of the community can be reached.

For ten years the two Branches have been conducted independently of each other, as if they were distinct societies; separate accounts being kept, and separate investments made for each. Being now, however, practically worked by the same agents, the public select whichever best suits their convenience, and consequently the distinction between the character of the business of the two branches is becoming less. As an instance of this it is noticeable that while the average amount assured by each policy in the "Ordinary" Branch has diminished since the last valuation, being now £116 against the £137 five years ago; in the Industrial Branch the average amount has slightly increased, and is now £9 8s.

ORDINARY BRANCH.—The growth of this Branch has been very remarkable. The premium income from the assurances is £406,852, having nearly trebled in the quinquennium, and being surpassed by only four other Life Assurance Companies in the United Kingdom. The basis upon which the valuation of the liabilities has been made is explained in Mr. Hughes' report. It may be shortly described as follows:—The past experience of Assured and Annuitant lives has been adopted for the rates of mortality; 3 per cent. for the rate of interest; and 2.77 per cent. of the premium income, which is the whole of what is called the loading, has been reserved for future expenses, profits, and contingencies. Of the ample sufficiency of this reserve no doubt can be entertained, especially as it has now been resolved that the whole expenses of this Branch shall be limited to 10 per cent. of the premium income.

INDUSTRIAL BRANCH.—In this Branch the Premium Income has now reached the enormous total of £3,065,551, payable in weekly premiums averaging about two pence each. The ages of the lives assured vary from 1 year to upwards of 100, fourteen centenarians being found upon the registers. The females out-number the males in the proportion of 1,075 to 1,000, an excess somewhat above that of the general population, whereas in the ordinary Companies the number of male lives assured is found to be about eight times that of the females. A large number of the policies in force have been effected on the lives of children. And if death occur during the first year of assurance, the contract provides that, with some exceptions, a deduction shall be made from the sum assured.

From these circumstances some modifications in the principles of valuation adopted for the Ordinary Branch become necessary. These are explained by Mr. Dewey in his report, with which I concur. For instance, the table of mortality employed for the Ordinary Branch represents the experience of adult male lives only, children being altogether omitted. For the Industrial Branch, therefore, Farr's English Life tables have been used, and separate valuations made for the male and female risks, the mortality of the two sexes being different. Again, the rate of mortality of children, unlike that of adults, diminishes from year to year up to a certain age. And therefore the risks on the lives of children not exceeding ten years of age, and those under all Policies granted during last year, have been treated as short term assurances, for which a nominal reserve only is necessary. With these exceptions, a valuation on the principles as in the Ordinary Branch has been made of all the outstanding Policies.

These facts and figures speak for themselves, and it is hardly necessary to add how eminently satisfactory the results of this elaborate investigation must be to all who are interested in the welfare of the Company.

Extract from the Report of Mr. W. HUGHES, Actuary of the Ordinary Branch.

The Valuation is as before on the net premium system, the whole of the loading or difference between the premiums payable and the risk premiums being reserved as a provision for future expenses and profit. This loading amounts to £91,078 per annum. The number of Policies in force at 31st December last was 85,089, assuring with Bonus £10,226,238, and producing an annual premium income of £407,360 8s. Of this amount £13,726 is re-assured at an annual cost of £508 7s.

A feature worthy of note is the large proportion of Endowment Assurances lately effected. At the last Valuation, 1881, these Policies formed 16 per cent. of the whole number in force; on the 31st December, 1886, there were 31,120 of these Policies, being no less than 36 per cent. of the whole number of Assurances.

The net results of the Valuation are as follows: Life Assurance Fund, 31st December, 1886, £1,764,600; Reserve for Life Assurance and Annuity Contracts, £1,457,873.

Extract from the Report of Mr. T. C. DEWEY, Actuary of the Industrial Branch.

The Policies in existence on the 31st December, 1886 (the date of Valuation), were 7,111,828 in number, assuring the sum of £66,689,111, and producing a weekly income from

Premiums of £58,953, and an Annual Income of £3,065,551. The number of Free or Paid-up Policies which have been granted in lieu of Discontinued Policies is now 58,099. It will be seen that the average amount assured by each policy is £9 8s., and that the average weekly premium is two pence.

The experience of the Quinquennium shows that the business is yearly becoming of a more stable character, notwithstanding the large influx of new business during the period, the average duration of the Policies now in existence is about five and a-half years.

I believe that as Industrial Assurance becomes better appreciated, it will assume an even more permanent character, and that the difference in this respect between Ordinary and Industrial Policies will disappear. I can see no reason, therefore, why different principles should now be adopted; the valuation of the two classes of assurances, and I have consequently valued pure premiums only, reserving the whole of the loading, distinguishing male from female lives. The proportion of the premium reserved is 4.33 per cent.

The mortality of this Branch having been carefully recorded for many years, I find that the English Life Table (No 3) most closely accords with our experience, and I have therefore adopted that Table for every description of Assurance. In all calculations I have assumed that £3 per cent. per annum will be realised on the investments.

The result of the Valuation is as follows: Present values sums assured, £32,760,509; present value of future pure premiums, £28,288,658. Net liability, £4,471,851.

It may be contended that the principles which are adopted in the valuation of Ordinary assurances are not applicable to Industrial risks, but it must be a source of the highest gratification to you and to everyone connected with this Company, to feel that the business of this Branch will not bear a test so severe and one hitherto unknown in the history of Industrial Assurance.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

To Geo. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

BY A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

II.—CONSTRUCTION.

In the last paper it was pointed out that before any very general progress in ten and twelve-bell ringing could be expected, some more musical and convenient method than those at present existing must be found. The possibility of obtaining such a method will now be considered, but, before doing so, it will be well to state the necessary conditions upon which to go to work.

The required method must be:—

I.—Capable of being practised on eight bells, and of extension to ten and twelve without material alteration in the work.

II.—Regular in its work, keeping the heavy bells well together, more especially when they come behind.

III.—Not too lengthy in the courses, thus admitting of handy touches.

IV.—Arranged to have as much double-dodging as possible, for the sake of the music.

With regard to this last condition, it is generally admitted that double dodging is the finest movement in change-ringing. It brings out the full force of a musical position but yet stops short of monotony, and occurs continually in every one of the more harmonious systems on seven and eight bells. For this reason no ten or twelve-bell method could, without it, be considered as entitled to a first rank.

The conditions thus settled, it is next necessary to decide on which of the known principles of method-building it will be advisable to proceed. They are three in number, namely—the Treble Bob hunt, the Plain hunt, and Stedman's Principle. Now, any method founded on either of the two first of these can scarcely, when extended to twelve bells, comply with condition III., as the courses would consist of 528 and 264 changes respectively. Neither could IV. be observed, because careful study shews that, unless all the bells approximately move in the same manner, no method can be extended from eight bells without radical alterations in the work, and so contravening I. For instance, in Treble Bob the general work is a single dodge at every step, and in Plain Bob a straight hunt. Thus within the leads the bells, treble included, preserve a regular coursing order, and here is the explanation of why these methods will run equally well on all even numbers. To enter further into this would be foreign to the present subject, but it will be found to be the case that the moment a varying general movement of the inside bells relatively to the treble is introduced, a method becomes incapable of complying with I. If then the bells must move in either a single dodging hunt or a plain hunt, it is clear there can be but little double dodging, and IV. would not be carried out. The Treble Bob hunt and plain hunt principles must therefore be abandoned as unsuitable. There has been a principle brought out, it may be remarked, in which the treble has a double-dodging hunt, and which might for this reason appear promising; but the enormous length of the courses, to say nothing of the overwhelming liability of falseness condemn it at once. Stedman's principle remains yet to be considered, and here let me distinguish most carefully between the method itself and the principle on which it is founded. The principle, the only point now under examination, depends on the alternating quick and slow work to produce within the course the effect in other methods achieved by a regular hunting treble, namely an alteration in the coursing order of the bells. Shipway's system, noticed in the first of these articles, is on this plan. This principle unfortunately is still less adapted to even bell ringing than the previous ones, for whereas in these the hunt of the treble leaves the relative coursing order of the other bells untouched, its own alone being changed; in the present one the varying work in front moves every bell from its proper order, which is not regained until close upon the end of the course. The result, when applied to even-bell methods, is to make every alternate journey behind of the heavy bells a complete muddle, the regularity of their working as defined by II. being entirely upset. Saving this fatal objection, however, it will be noticed how otherwise eminently adapted this principle is to end in view, for it amply satisfies each of the remaining conditions. The question at once suggests itself: Can not this confusion caused by the alternating quick and slow work be got rid of? The answer is: Only by each bell on coming to the front doing similar work. This introduces a totally new principle, or rather no principle at all, because on such a plan all the bells would course in exactly the same order from beginning to end of the course; a result which all the above principles have been specially designed to avoid, as it not only causes the courses to be exceptionally short, but also introduces a multiplied liability to falseness. Since, however, no other way seems to offer a solution of the problem under consideration, it will be well carefully to examine this plan; "principle" it can scarcely be called, as I have defined the latter to mean the arrangement by which the coursing-order of the bells is altered within a plain course, whereas any such alteration is now to be discarded.

It is at once evident that if it be possible to construct a method on these lines, such method will, from the very nature of the plan, comply with conditions II. and III. To carry out IV., double dodging must be made the foundation on which to work. I. will be best settled by the obvious arrangement of continuous double dodging in all the places above 6ths, and thus the extension from eight bells to ten and twelve will, as in Stedman, entail only extra dodging places. It is indisputable that the music behind would in this way be absolutely perfect. Let it be agreed, then, that the method shall contain double dodging in 7-8 and all places above. It only remains to formulate the work on eight, and the same will be equally applicable to the higher numbers of bells. Four-bell work in 1-2-3-4 with double dodging in 5-6 as well as 7-8 is the first palpable idea. Now it is of course clear that continuous double dodging will cause the method to run in sixes like Stedman, therefore after leaving 1-2-3-4 each bell will dodge four sixes before returning there again, namely 5-6 up, 7-8 up, 7-8 down, 5-6 down. Consequently, as the bells are to course one another regularly, each must be four sixes also in 1-2-3-4, that is, in the four-bell work; one of the four going out at each six end, and a fresh bell entering from 5-6, all, of course, working in identically the same way. Several arrangements of four bell work are possible which will effect this, and give a neat method. But to avoid false rows, 7, 8, the only fixed bells, must never fall into the same position a second time within the course unless the two rows which contains the similar positions are the one in and the other out of course. When, however, 7, 8 are together in 7-8, they strike 7 8 three times, two of which will be of a like nature, and entail a false row. The same will occur when 7 is in 5-6 up, and 8 in 7-8 up; also when 7 is in 7-8 down, and 8 in 5-6 down; a further false position will be found when 7, 8 are in the four-bell work, making altogether four false rows each with a different false course-end. Evidently then this method is hopelessly false. A fresh departure must be attempted, and six-bell work in front presents itself as worth a trial, for it would still leave untouched the double-dodging in 7-8. But into this it is needless to enter, for although methods might thus be obtained, the desired regularity of work would be impaired. One resource, and one only, remains; namely, to place the four bell work in 3-4-5-6, and the double-dodging, previously in 5-6, in 1-2. There is now the chance of avoiding the false rows that previously occurred with one of the tenors in 5-6, and the other in 7-8, also the further beauty of continuous double-dodging on the lead. With a simple form of four-bell work, it will be found that this plan gives the very remarkable result, due to its being a perfect double method, of a course of forty-eight changes, with one false course-end covering the whole. On pricking and proving such a course, the (Major) method will be found to possess the following extraordinary list of qualities:—

1.—One false course-end only, against the whole plain course so long as 7, 8 are kept together, and none as long as 6, 7, 8 are together, even if singles be used.

2.—Perfect in construction, quadruple and triple changes alternating with one another, thus causing all the places and whole pulls, of which there are the minimum number, to come at hand and back in the proper manner, none of these being made adjoining, except at a single, and all the dodging being double.

3.—The tenors well together, except in the four-bell work, where the brief parting brings up the identical music for which Superlative is renowned, the Queen's change coming in the plain course. No splitting up of the heavy bells by the treble when they are behind.

4.—Capable of producing an endless variety of peals, in which, if desired, the 6th may be kept at home throughout, and of which the calling is simple, averaging three calls in two courses.

5.—Very convenient for short touches, also for date touches, as the bells may be brought round in various ways, and bobs may be called at six out of the eight sixes of which the course is composed without parting the tenors, thus giving a scale of course-ends unapproached by most other Major methods.

6.—Avoiding any difficulty as to who shall ring the treble in a peal, all the bells working alike.

7.—Easily learnt by a good band after a few minutes examination of the plain course, and capable of extension to ten and twelve bells by simply double-dodging in the extra places, as in Stedman, thus making the ringing of Royal and Maximus a mere question of opportunity.

8.—Producing quickly recurring course-ends with the 7th and all bells above it double-dodging in the home position, viz.:—on eight bells every 48, on ten every 60, and on twelve every 72 changes.

It is needless to describe further the capabilities and attractions of this method; those composers and ringers who have already studied it will bear me out in saying that the deeper it is followed, the more is its wonderful adaptability apparent, and that in practical ringing, although regular and easy, no little attention is necessary. A complete description will appear in the next paper.

I have explained thus fully, every step of a line of study which has occupied a large share of my leisure time during the past year, because I was anxious to make perfectly clear the definite objects I had in view, the whole bearings of which I could not otherwise expect to see grasped. It is too much to suppose that all readers of these columns will have followed my train of reasoning; I will merely say that from those who have done so I invite, and from those who have not I deprecate criticism of what is set forth.

I have no wish to lay claim to any particular credit in the matter, but I desire to guard against misinterpretation. New methods may be had by the dozen by any person conversant with method-building, but my advice to such has always been to be sure, before they publish any new system, either that it is better than what already exists, or meets a definite want, or contains some distinct novelty. In the present instance I have followed a strictly consecutive line of argument, and have shewn how that which was sought was obtained, namely, a more convenient and musical method than Treble Bob, applicable to all even numbers of bells from eight upwards; a result which I trust may have in time the effect of stirring up progress in ten and twelve-bell ringing, for with this new method, whether as Major, Royal, or Maximus, in simplicity, adaptability, and musical properties, I unhesitatingly challenge comparison.

In laying these and the following papers before the Exercise, I confidently ask from that portion of it which is able to judge of such matters, a careful and impartial attention, not for the sake of any personal credit, a conceit I do not aspire to, but for the sake of an art, which, far though it has already progressed, possesses many secrets yet unfathomed, and possibilities still unattained, and in the advance of which the hearty support of its many admirers should be willingly forthcoming.

RINGERS' OUTING.—HAGLEY, WORCESTERSHIRE.

On Easter Monday, the members of the St. Thomas's Society paid a visit to the above place, by the kind permission of the Rector, the Rev. W. C. Gibbs. Several 720's and touches of Bob Minor (amounting to 2520 changes) were rung by Messrs. W. Lawrence, J. Guest, G. H. Paget, H. Harris, C. Barrett, T. Lees and J. Crump, and conducted by Messrs. Guest, Paget, Harris and Lees. Also 120 of Grandsire Doubles. C. Barrett, 1; T. Lees, 2; H. Harris, 3; J. Guest, 4; W. Bradley, 5; G. H. Paget, 6. The "go" of the bells was all that could be desired, and the striking was very good, one and all thoroughly enjoying themselves. The members of the above society wish, through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," to thank the Rector for the use of the bells, and hope it will not be the last time they will have the pleasure of visiting the pretty little church, which is situated in Hagley Park.

RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Easter Monday, the Bradford Parish Church company, twelve in number paid a visit to Derby. Leaving Bradford at 5.30 a.m., they were joined at Leeds by Mr. Tom Lockwood, and after a very pleasant journey, they arrived at Duffield at 9.5., where they alighted. After partaking of breakfast, they assembled in the tower, and rang a touch of Kent Treble Bob Major, during the ringing of which the Manchester Cathedral company arrived. This touch completed, the visitors betook themselves to the grounds of A. Percival Heywood, Esq., at Duffield Bank, where they had an opportunity of inspecting Mr. Heywood's railway, of course, came in for a principal share of attention, after which the workshops were visited. The view from Duffield Bank was the theme of universal admiration, and while gazing on it, the sound of Duffield bells, manipulated so well by the Manchester men in the intricacies of Kent Treble Bob, lent additional pleasure. Ten minutes past the hour of noon saw the visitors on the Duffield railway platform, and soon afterwards they were on their way to Derby, which was reached by 12.30. St. Andrew's tower was the first place visited, where a touch of Grandsire Triples and another of Kent Treble Bob was rung, after which an adjournment was made to All Saints', where they indulged in a touch of Treble Ten. This having been accomplished, a move was made to St. Andrew's school-room, where they partook of tea with their brethren of the Midland Counties' Association, attended the meeting, and then listened to the handbell contest which followed. Another touch of Kent Treble Bob was rung at St. Andrew's, at the conclusion of which good-bye was said, and the Bradfordians repaired to the station, where, having got comfortably seated, a start was made, and after repeated dodgings on the part of the driver, the ringers were brought round to Bradford about 2 a.m., having spent a very pleasant day. The members take this opportunity of expressing their thanks to Mr. Heywood for his kind permission for them to view his grounds, possessing as they do so many interesting features.

AN INTERESTING GATHERING.

ON Wednesday evening, April 6th, by invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stead, of Longroyd Bridge, Huddersfield, a select party of friends, ringers, ringers' wives, assembled at the above gentleman's residence to a good substantial supper, to which full justice was done, after which the evening was spent in a very convivial manner with ringing the handbells, etc. The gathering was in commemoration firstly of Mrs. Stead's birthday, and it not being good manners to ask any lady her age, we will conclude she is the three F's, she having the good wishes of all present for a long and prosperous life. Secondly, to commemorate the twentieth anniversary of the ringing on April 6th, 1867, at Batley parish church, in 2 hrs. 58 mins., of the following peal, being a 720 each of the following:

- A 720 of Violet, with the 2nd bell the observation.
- A 720 of Oxford Treble Bob, 2nd bell the observation.
- A 720 of New London, 4th bell the observation.
- A 720 of Duke of York, 5th bell the observation.
- A 720 of London Scholars, 6th bell the observation.
- A 720 of City Delight, 2nd bell the observation.
- A 720 of Arnold's Victory, 3rd bell the observation.

The above was rung without the bobs being called, or a signal of any description being given, and each 720 having a different bell for the observation as will be seen above, and was witnessed by Mr. Jesse Holt, of Mirfield, and Mr. John Farrar, of Batley, who sat in the tower during the whole of the performance as witnesses that it was a bona fide performance. The following was the company who rang the peal. John Stead (Huddersfield), 1; George Clay (Huddersfield), 2; Hy. Robinson (Mirfield), 3; Thomas Stead (Huddersfield), 4; John Collins (Huddersfield), 5; Tom Haigh (Huddersfield), 6. Tenor 11 cwt. This extraordinary feat in the art of change-ringing, was never performed by any party of ringers on six bells, and from the style in which it was rung and brought round to a successful termination, will always be considered as one of the greatest achievements in the art of ringing on that number of bells. All the ringers in the above peal were present at supper, also Mr. Jesse Holt, of Mirfield, one of the witnesses, who is in his 82nd year, Mr. John Farrar being dead.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

WOKINGHAM.—On Easter Monday, April 11th, at St. Paul's Church, the St. Peter's Society, Caversham, after failing in a peal of Grandsire Triples, rang at the above church a Jubilee touch in the same method, containing fifty leads. H. Simmonds, 1; J. Hands, 2; E. Menday, 3; W. Houlton, 4; G. Essex, 5; T. Newman, 6; Rev. G. F. Coleridge (conductor), 7; H. Smith, 8. Tenor 18 cwt. This very musical touch, which begins and ends with the Queens, and contains all the 2, 4, 6's, was composed by Miss E. Cruwys Sharland, of Tiverton, Devon.

AT ST. STEPHEN'S.

THURSDAY.—One of the most important questions asked to-day was that with reference to Somerset House clerks, put by Mr. Conybeare. The hon. gentleman asked if the Board of Inland Revenue had submitted to the Treasury a scheme for the revision of the Legacy Duty Office at Somerset House, which would involve the compulsory retirement of a number of clerks who were in the prime of life, and whether in that case the Chancellor of the Exchequer would undertake to postpone the consideration of any scheme which would further burden the Pension List, and whether in the case of offices where work had fallen off, or where, on other grounds it might be necessary to reduce numbers, he would consider the advisability of doing this by transferring the supernumerary clerks to other departments, rather than by adding to the Pension List. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply, said that by a reprehensible act of disloyalty, such as had rarely occurred in the extremely well-managed department of the Inland Revenue, the existence of a plan for the re-organisation of the Legacy Duty Office had been revealed to the hon. member. The plan was still in an inchoate state, and had not been decided upon. He was, however, unable to state whether any of the clerks to be compulsorily retired were in the prime of life or not, but with scarcely an exception, they had seen over thirty years' service. He could not undertake to deter any reform such as this, and he should always consider whether it would not be better to transfer officers who had still good work in them, than to place them on the Pension List. Mr. Childers asked if any steps would be taken to ascertain how the secret was divulged. The Chancellor of the Exchequer said he would consider whether any steps could be taken in this direction; but he would also say that it would be more satisfactory if hon. members to whom such revelations were made would themselves point out the injury they inflicted on the public service, and the likelihood thereby of defeating the necessary reforms. Mr. Conybeare wished to assure the right hon. gentleman that he had no idea this was an official secret divulged to him, or he would not have put the question. Other questions having been asked and answered, among them being one relating to income tax, one on the discharge of dockyard workmen, and another on the Irish Land Bill, Mr. W. H. Smith said he had received a communication from the other side of the House to the effect that it would be agreeable to hon. members that he should move the adjournment of the House until Tuesday in Easter week. If that was the desire of hon. gentlemen, he would conclude with a motion to that effect. After some remarks from both sides of the House, Mr. Smith's motion for adjournment was agreed to, and we all set off to spend the Easter holiday as we thought best.

TUESDAY.—Well, my brother strins, I am here again, in the House, after a very brief holiday, to watch over the affairs of the country, as well as the business of the House, from my seat as member for—. But I must not divulge, or I shall be getting into trouble. However, I am sure all will join with me in congratulating the Speaker on his reappearance in the chair, and take part in the cheers we gave him when he expressed his acknowledgments to the House for the indulgence shown him during the period of his indisposition, as well as thanking the Chairman of Ways and Means for occupying his chair during his absence. After some questions had been put relating to the North Sea fisheries, Mr. Conybeare to the front again, and alluded to the incident of Monday week, and complained that the report of his speech, wherein he was said to have made remarks reflecting on the Speaker, was neither full nor accurate. He was sure he made a remark which was omitted in the report he complained of, and which remark was to the effect that he hoped no word would escape him which could be considered as unworthily reflecting on the Speaker. The debate on Sir B. Samuelson's amendment to the second reading of the Criminal Law Amendment Bill was then resumed by the Attorney-General for Ireland, who stigmatised the hon. members on the other side of the House with not having read, much less carefully considered, the measure now before the House. Some sharp passages of arms, or rather words, were made between the speakers on both sides of the House, the Home Secretary being interrupted many times during his speech. The right hon. gentleman was, however, proof against all attacks, and after showing how much or how little the criticisms on the measure bore on the question, he said the Government appealed, not to Hyde Park demonstrations, but to the judgment of the House of Commons, which was the proper tribunal to deal with cases of this kind, and asked them to support them in upholding in Ireland the authority of the Queen and of the law. Mr. Stansfield passed some strictures on the Bill, and on the motion of Lord H. Bruce the debate was adjourned.

WEDNESDAY.—The business to-day was principally confined to a discussion on the Irish Crimes Bill. Two maiden speeches were delivered; one by the noble lord who resumed the debate, Lord Bruce; and the other by Mr. Theobald. Both hon. gentlemen supported the measure, Mr. Theobald causing much laughter by the witty manner in which he replied to the criticisms against the bill, and the epithets he applied to the National League. Sir W. Foster asked the House to pause before they passed the measure, because, if it became law it would be a shame and a dishonour to this country. Sir H. Holland said the case put forward by the Government had been greatly strengthened by the facts and figures which had been placed before the House and the country during the discussion of the measure. After a speech of some duration the hon. member concluded by saying that by this bill the Government stood or fell, and he believed the country would be with them; but if it was against them, they would cheerfully retire. Mr. Gully believed the bill was impolitic, ill-timed, and unnecessary; and Mr. W. H. James remarked that the Government had entered upon a most perilous path, and one that would lead to the most serious danger. The Solicitor-General for Scotland denied that the bill infringed the liberties of the Irish people. Concluding, he said that probably the constituencies were thinking that the House of Commons were standing chopping logic too long over this bill. Sir U. Kay-Shuttleworth said the proposed change of venue he regarded as most insulting to Ireland. The adjournment of the debate was then agreed to, on the motion of Mr. Baggaley, and the House itself adjourned at ten minutes to six. THE RINGER IN PARLIAMENT.

ESSEX ITEMS.

"Better late than never." Probably such may be the opinion of some of the members of the Essex Association upon their becoming acquainted with the fact that during the past week the two new trebles at Chelmsford have at last found their way back into their original quarters. To ordinary intelligent observers, their journey to a hamlet church is a mystery—one which there is no need for us to attempt to unravel; the circumstances which had led to their return may be briefly summed up. When the Essex Association was formed in 1879, there was a general outcry as to the neglected condition of St. Mary's, and to the absence of these two particular bells. During the restoration of the Rettendon ring, the late Hon. Sec. of the Association finding that there was a suitable bell, hit upon the happy idea of a treaty between Rettendon and Moulsham, which tower was under restoration, and further between Moulsham and Chelmsford, the result of which was the return to the latter tower of the particular bells under question. By the reports of the meetings of the Association, it will have been seen that there has been delay in the rehanging not brought about by any particular stumbling block, and apparently the difficulty was little more if any than imagination. However, by certain members continually pegging away at the question, all difficulties have vanished, and the Association is to be congratulated not only upon the improved condition of the tower of St. Mary's (which probably may become the cathedral of a county diocese), but upon the completion of that which it has endeavoured to accomplish. The success will strengthen the Association in bringing its influence to bear upon authorities where apathy is the order of the day.

Another feature which comes this week from Essex, is the unique chiming record at Romford. Opinions we know vary as to these performances, some scorn them, contending they are but child's play, and yet these very individuals if you ask them to join in a touch double-handed, even only upon the handbells, would shake their heads. Others contend that such feats are an impossibility, while others admit "it wants doing." This latter of course is perfectly true, and those who rank in the second class can satisfy their unbelief any Sunday by a visit to Romford. There is however an ugly rumour respecting the restoration of what we consider we once justly termed a "slaughter house." It will be remembered that the church improvement fund there included new choir vestry, organ improvement, and rehanging of the bells, each to follow according to the order given. A general fund was opened, and resulted in the collection of about £40 of the estimated cost of the two first objects. The whole of £40 was spent upon the second scheme, and a suggestion has been made to close the fund, leaving the bells in their present condition. Such a proposal is beyond toleration, and if permitted will be a standing disgrace to the town. Probably the Association may sift the matter, making use of its influence in the right direction, it is to be hoped may finally be as successful at Romford as it has been at Chelmsford. B.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of the above Association will be held at Southport, on Saturday, April 23rd. The bells of Christ Church will be at the disposal of the members. Meeting in the Schools at 6 p.m. Ringers from the adjoining districts will be welcomed.

Also a meeting of the Rossendale Branch of the above Association will be held at St. Paul's Church, Ramsbottom, on the above date.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

REPLY TO MR. POLLITT.

SIR,—The B's in the peals of Treble Bob Royal recently published in your columns, denote what I thought everyone acquainted with Treble Bob knew, viz., "befores." The one in the first course to put the bells in the tittum position, and the two in the last course to bring them home again. Of course the same course-ends are produced if no "befores" are used, but the number of changes are not the same.

PRESTBURY SURPRISE MAJOR.—A NEW METHOD.

SIR,—In answer to Mr. W. T. Pates, allow me to say that on calling upon Mr. Johnson, sen., he informed me that he composed the above mentioned method in the year 1852, a copy of which he produced for my inspection, and gave to it the name of Birmingham Bob Major, but says that to his knowledge it has never been rung; he also adds that it runs equally simple on six, ten, and twelve bells.

GOOD FRIDAY RINGING.

SIR,—In looking through the letters in answer to "Enquirer," as to ringing on Good Friday, I think Mr. Jerram's plan far better than the Rev. G. F. Coleridge's; and I think it is a plan generally adopted (at least as far as my experience goes); but there is one question I should like to ask Mr. Coleridge—that is, why it is a thing to be desired that people should partake of the Lord's Supper early in the morning instead of at the hour it was instituted—in the evening?

THE RINGERS OF ENGLAND.

SIR,—The statement contained in last week's issue, under the above heading, is incorrect as far as the Sussex County Association is concerned. The true figures are 52 bands, 510 ringing members, and 121 honorary members: Total, 631. Perhaps I may be allowed to suggest that, if it is thought desirable to have a complete list, for the sake of comparison, the Hon. Sec. of each Diocesan and County Association should send on a post card, addressed to the Editor of "BELL NEWS," such particulars as the number of ringing and honorary members, number of bands in union, number of peals of 6, 8, 10, and 12 bells in the diocese or county, and date of formation of association. I notice under the heading of County Associations, the names of Goscombe, Higham Ferrers, Framland. I presume that these are District rather than County Associations.

GEO. F. ATTREE,

Hon. Sec. Sussex County Association.

SUNDAY PEAL RINGING.

SIR,—Will you please insert a few lines in "BELL NEWS" to show that though no one has had the courage to write against ringing peals on Sunday, there are many who would wish to return their hearty thanks to the member of the K. C. A. C. R. for boldly coming forward and standing up for the right. I have looked week after week for some reply to the suggestions made some time ago by a Mr. Custance, of the Oxford University Society, with regard to this matter, and I rejoice that one has come forward to condemn it.

ANOTHER MEMBER OF THE K. C. A. C. R.

SIR,—With all due respect to our worthy friend who flatters himself of being the mouthpiece of his company, I think that, instead of throwing cold water on what few peals are rung, he would try and ring a few more peals, it might then be a credit to the Association, which musters 400 ringing members, and according to the number, ring the least peals of any Association in existence.

R. SIMMONDS.

OXFORD SURPRISE.

SIR,—I am glad that my remark has drawn from Mr. Washbrook a statement of the grounds on which he described his new method as a "perfect" one, and "the only perfect Treble Bob method yet invented." This description was based, it seems, on certain structural features, which, however, desirable and symmetrical in themselves, do not, by themselves, constitute that absolute perfection which Mr. Washbrook seemed at first to claim, and the assertion of which, I confess, somewhat startled me when I read it. After an examination of the method, I felt that the assertion was one that ought not to be allowed to pass without protest. Nine persons out of ten, on reading it, would come to the conclusion that not only was the method structurally "perfect," but also scientifically accurate; i.e. not treacherous in composition in the sense of being liable to run false within the leads. As regards the attainment of a "perfect" Treble Bob method in this double sense, the outlook, I am afraid, is not particularly hopeful. The Treble Bob system is in itself scientifically unsound, and no method whatever that could ever be produced on this system could, from the nature of the case, be absolutely perfect. When I say that the system is scientifically unsound, I mean that it would be impossible on this system to obtain the full extent of the permutations without a host of repetitions interpolated. Short of this within certain limits and conditions, the system is sound enough for all practical purposes. The limit usually adopted is that defined by the expression "Tenors together." But this is, comparatively, a narrow limit; and the system is quite capable of "true" extension far beyond this limit with the Tenors "parted." Now Mr. Washbrook admits that his method is unsound considerably within even this narrow limit; for he says that "the extent with the tenors together is 6720;" that is, half way only to the boundary line of the real limit of "tenors together." He also admits that the second's place bob introduces a blemish, so that the existence of this flaw disposes at once of the claim that the method is even structurally perfect. The statement that "perfection" is to be gauged by the presence, or absence, of certain structural features and arrangements of changes, without regard to the errors and inaccuracies which they may entail, seems to me a very arbitrary one. I have always understood that "the proof of a pudding is in the eating;" and I can quite imagine that many a pudding with a fair and attractive exterior might disagree with you horribly when it got into your stomach. So in a change-ringing method. It may appear ever so correct on the surface; but if it shows unsoundness in working, it is not entitled to an unqualified description as a "perfect method." It is easy to say "my dog is perfect, and everybody else's is a mongrel;" but this is hardly the language of courtesy, and a little beside the mark also, if your neighbour's dog happens to hunt better than your own. Mr. Washbrook thinks the Exercise should be informed that in Treble Bob a perfect method cannot be had without false changes. This sounds to me like a contradiction in terms. If a method develops false changes within the narrow limit of "tenors together," it is unsound; and if it is unsound, it can hardly be called "perfect." But I give all credit to Mr. Washbrook for his painstaking researches into the Treble Bob system, and I entertain no doubt that the conclusion at which he has arrived is perfectly accurate, viz., that on the particular lines which he advocates as "perfect," Oxford Surprise is the only method to be had worth placing before the Exercise. But, Sir, unfortunately (and this is my point) the vessel built upon these lines turns out to be a bad sailer, and has been already beaten over the course by several other vessels built on other lines. What is the inference? That the lines in question are really perfect, as asserted? Let your readers judge for themselves. He who would construct a Treble Bob method finds himself face to face with two alternatives: either he must sacrifice certain alleged structural perfections, and musical arrangements of changes to scientific accuracy and soundness in working, or he must sacrifice soundness and accuracy to the structural features. Personally, I incline to the former alternative. The ideally perfect Treble Bob method, which will avoid this sacrifice on the one hand and on the other, has not come yet; and I much doubt if it ever will.

AN ENQUIRY.

Could any of the ringing community kindly inform me if a 720 of Stedman's Slow Course Minor, or Double Stedman's Slow Course Minor, has ever been rung? If so, when and where; and whether there is any Stedman's Slow Course Major? Also, if the Victoria or Albert Surprise Major is not written on a similar principle?

DOUBTFUL AUTHORSHIP.

SIR,—Will you kindly put a notice at the bottom of your composition page next week, that the 5040 of Treble Bob Royal by J. R. Pritchard, is Reeves' old peal, and the 12320 Albion is Shipway's 6160 Bob Major, and the 10240 Albion, which is 5120 Bob Major, will be found in "THE BELL NEWS" for April 3rd, 1883, reduced to 5008, the only difference being the 2nd and 4th bobs at home are called a course sooner.

THE BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

A QUARTERLY MEETING of the above Association will be held at Harborne, on Saturday, April 23rd, when members and friends alike will receive a hearty welcome. Through the kindness of the Vicar, the Rev. E. Roberts, the tower will be open during the afternoon. The business meeting of the Association which will be conducted in the infants school connected with the parish church, will take place at 6 p.m., the Vicar attending the same. The Secretary will be obliged to the local secretaries, who will receive all monies due, and pay them over to him on or before the above date. JOHN WRIGHT, Hon. Sec.

Crumph's Cottage, Silver Street, King's Heath.

MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The Fifth Annual Meeting of this Association was held at Derby, on Easter Monday, and witnessed a larger assemblage of ringers than at any previous gathering. Friends were present in force from Bradford, Leeds, Manchester, Sheffield, and Birmingham, besides a large contingent of members from the various towns within the district. The sudden death, however, within the week, of the Rev. James Fish, the vicar of St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, cast a gloom over the proceedings, for it was felt that in him the Association had lost one whose constant aim was to raise the standard of excellence in everything connected with ringing. The day began with a 504 of Stedman Triples, rung at St. Andrew's church, with the bells half-muffled, as a tribute of respect to his memory; after which, the muffles having been removed, various touches followed. Two touches of Stedman Caters were rung on the ten at All Saints, St. Werburgh's tower also being freely patronised.

At the tea, which was set out in St. Andrew's School-room, some 130 sat down, after which the President (A. P. Heywood, Esq.) addressed the meeting. In the course of his remarks, the President drew the attention of those present to the fact that fifty-five peals had been rung by the Association in the year, in no less than eleven different methods, viz.: Cambridge Surprise Major, Superlative Surprise Major. Ditto, in the Burtoa Variations, New Cumberland Surprise Major, Double Norwich Court Bob Major, Double Oxford Bob Major, Stedman Triples, Grandsire Triples, Bob Triples, and further directed particular notice to the Silent Peal of Stedman Triples lately accomplished at Burton, and to that of Stedman Caters, by the Leicester Company, the latter, the first performance of the kind by the Association. He also commented on the grievous loss sustained by the death of the late President, and suggested that a resolution expressive of sympathy should be forwarded to Mrs. Fish, in accordance with which a motion to that effect was unanimously agreed to. The President desired the members to notice that they should bestir themselves in the matter of peals, as the Association was being rapidly distanced since the commencement of the year by the performances of other societies, and concluded by congratulating the meeting upon the large assemblage not only of their own members, but of friends from all parts.

After the usual business a vote of thanks was passed to the Vicars of the various churches for the use of the bells. A handbell contest then took place, at which bands from Derby, Leicester, and Nottingham, and Burton were all successful in carrying off prizes; the first-mentioned especially distinguishing themselves in a well-struck 336 of Grandsire Triples. The success of this, the first competition of the kind in the district, leads to the hope that on the next occasion a still more interesting contest may be the result. The judges were Messrs. Charles Hattersley and John Carter, who most ably carried out the duties of their office, to the satisfaction of all concerned. The thanks of the Association are especially due to these gentlemen, who came at considerable expense to undertake this somewhat onerous task; as also to Messrs. Taylor for providing an excellent set of handbells for the performance.

The vicar of St. Andrew's, the Rev. Robert Hey, to whom thanks are also due for the use of the schools, then addressed a few well-chosen words to the assembled company, pointing out the beneficial effect of change-ringing both on mind and body, and offering to the Association at all future times a hearty welcome.

A few touches in the tower, notably a well-struck one of Treble Bob by the Bradford Company, brought to a close a day with the result of which universal satisfaction was expressed; the success of the proceedings being mainly due to the exertions of the indefatigable Hon. Sec., Mr. Joseph Griffin, who was everything to everybody; and to the excellent arrangements made by the local Hon. Sec., Mr. H. C. Woodward, and the steeple-keeper of St. Andrew's, Mr. W. Shardlow.

VISIT OF DEWSBURY RINGERS TO GRIMSBY.

On Monday last, April 11th, the above Company of Ringers visited the above place for a day's outing. A start was made from Dewsbury at about 6.30 a.m., arriving at Grimsby at 10.15. Mr. D. Seamer and several friends met them at the station, and escorted them to the church tower, where they were met by the vicar, the Rev. J. P. Young, who cordially welcomed them. Considerable amusement was caused by the peculiar way up to the ringing chamber, the passage and steps to which being very narrow, and several of the ringers, being worthy rivals of the late Daniel Lambert, had considerable difficulty in getting up. The bells were raised in peal, and a short touch was rung. They are hung in a very good circle, but they are very noisy, being only in the next chamber. This will no doubt be altered in course of time, as it is a pity for so splendid a peal of bells to be spoiled. Their "go" is very good indeed. After the bells had been brought round the Company adjourned to the White Hart, where, at the invitation of the Grimsby ringers, they sat down to a substantial dinner, to which ample justice was done. They then re-ascended the tower and rang a half-peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, comprising 2,528 changes, in 1 hr. 35 mins. The band were stationed as follows:—J. Garforth, 1; G. Taylor, 2; I. Idle, 3; H. Robinson, 4; N. Hepworth, 5; G. H. Hardy (composer and conductor), 6; J. Buckley, 7; J. H. Dixon, 8. An adjournment then took place to the "Greyhound," on the invitation of Mr. North, the worthy host, where the remainder part of the day was spent in handbell ringing and conversation on ringing matters in general. The party left Grimsby station about 6.40, having spent one of the most enjoyable days possible. Many thanks are due to Mr. Seamer and friends for their kindness and hospitality, and also to the Vicar for the use of the bells.

STOKE-ON-TRENT ARCHIDIACONAL ASSOCIATION.

On Easter Monday the meeting of the above Association was held at Kingsley and Cheadle. It being a splendid day, there was a large attendance (including the Rev. W. W. Bolton, Hon. Sec.), ringers being present from Norton, Leek, Horton, Golden Hill, Uttoxeter, Stoke, Wolstanton, and Cheddleton. The bells having been raised, "go" was called for a 720 of Plain Bob—18 Bobs and 2 Singles, which was brought round in 27 mins. E. Glover, 1; W. H. Armitt, 2; D. Bradbury, 3; J. W. Brough, 4; J. Wood, 5; J. Baddeley (conductor), 6. An adjournment was then made to the Church Room, where a substantial dinner—to which about thirty sat down—had been provided by the Rev. E. D. Pollock, to whom the best thanks of the meeting are due. After dinner another visit was made to the belfry, but owing to being a funeral, another peal could not be attempted. A move was then made to Cheadle. Having arrived at the church, a band was formed for another 720 of Plain Bob, which was accomplished in 27½ mins. Rev. A. H. Hitchcock, 1; E. Glover, 2; W. H. Armitt, 3; J. W. Brough, 4; D. Bradbury, 5; H. Booth (conductor), 6. Tenor 15 cwt. A 720 of Kent Treble Bob was then started for, but a "change course" occurring, it was called round when 660 had been rung in 24 mins. E. Glover, 1; J. W. Brough, 2; J. Baddeley, 3; J. Wood, 4; H. Kamster, 5; S. Spencer (conductor), 6. A short touch of Plain Bob was then rung. H. Kamster, 1; J. Burton, 2; S. Burton, 3; J. Shenton, 4; Rev. A. H. Hitchcock, 5; S. Spencer (conductor), 6. This bringing a most enjoyable meeting to a close.

PULFORD, CHESHIRE.

The beautiful new church in this village, which is five miles from Chester, on the highway to Wrexham (six miles distant), was erected by His Grace the Duke of Westminster at a cost of about £11,000, and presented to the parish in 1884. The edifice is the third on the same site (which adjoins the ducal mansion of Eaton Hall) within fifty years, the original building dating from the 12th century. The old tower contained only two bells, but the present one contains a nice ring of six from the foundry of Messrs. Taylor of Loughborough, tenor 10 cwt. in Ab.

The local society of ringers, who are all very young, started together as novices in the art of change-ringing, but with the kindly assistance and direction of Mr. C. Price (College Youth) of Eccleston, the youthful aspirants were duly initiated into the mysteries of the art. They accomplished their first true and complete 720 changes in Plain Bob Minor just a year ago, since which time they have rung peals in the following nine methods:—March 15th, 1886, Plain Bob Minor; July 3rd, Kent Treble Bob; July 23rd, Oxford Treble Bob; November 1st, Grandsire; December 6th, Superlative Surprise (first in the county); December 20th, College Single; December 28th, Oxford Bob; February 21st, 1887, Woodbine; March 7th, Westminster. Practice on Mondays, ringers are welcomed.

THE REIGATE SOCIETY.

REIGATE (Surrey).—On Easter Sunday, April 10th, for Holy Communion at 8 a.m., 630 of Grandsire Triples. W. Bone, 1; F. Hoad (conductor), 2; G. Croucher, 3; F. Linter, 4; W. Argent, 5; E. Moses, 6; E. Kenward, 7; H. Gooch, 8. And a 252 of Grandsire Triples. G. Croucher, 1; F. Hoad (conductor), 2; F. Linter, 3; W. Bone, 4; E. Moses, 5; E. Kenward, 6; W. Argent, 7; H. Gooch, 8. And for 11 o'clock service, a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes), in 46½ mins. J. Howard, 1; F. Hoad (conductor), 2; W. Bone, 3; T. Fuller, 4; W. Argent, 5; E. Moses, 6; E. Kenward, 7; H. Gooch, 8. And for evening service, 448 of Grandsire Triples. J. Howard, 1; F. Hoad (conductor), 2; W. Bone, 3; T. Fuller, 4; E. Moses, 5; E. Kenward, 6; W. Argent, 7; H. Gooch, 8. And 224 of the same method, the band standing as before. And after evening service, 168 of Grandsire Triples. H. Gooch, 1; G. Croucher, 2; W. Bone, 3; T. Fuller, 4; W. Argent (conductor), 5; E. Moses, 6; E. Kenward, 7; J. Howard, 8. Also a 630 of Grandsire Triples. J. Howard, 1; G. Croucher, 2; W. Bone, 3; T. Fuller, 4; E. Moses, 5; E. Kenward (conductor), 6; W. Argent, 7; H. Gooch, 8.

REPRINT OF ANOTHER WORK ON CHANGE-RINGING.

The publisher of "THE BELL NEWS" has the pleasure to announce the issue, in penny weekly numbers, of a rare old work upon ringing, entitled "Campanalogia Improved; or the Art of Ringing made easy," &c. This work is printed uniform with "Shipway" and the "Clavis," which have been so eagerly taken up.

The Publisher believes that the re-issues of these various old ringing works, which at the present day are from their scarcity, so difficult of perusal, will be approved of by ringers. Their publication enables all who have an inclination for the useful, as well as the curious, to possess in time a valuable and complete ringing library. The copy, which has been kindly lent to the editor of this journal by Mr. S. B. Goslin, of the Crescent Foundry, Cripplegate, belongs to a fifth edition, "Corrected by J. Monk." For the purposes of easy publication it is called after his name, and those intending to take in the penny weekly numbers, should ask for "Monk on Ringing."

All who are desirous of securing copies should do so without delay, as a second reprint is out of the question.

"THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD" will be forwarded, post free, on the following terms:—

One copy, 12 months	6s. 6d.
" 6 "	3s. 3d.
" 3 "	1s. 8d.

All Subscriptions and Orders for papers must be sent direct to the Publisher E. W. ALLEN, Ave Maria Lane, London.

All communications respecting advertisements must be addressed to the office of "THE BELL NEWS," Walthamstow, London.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL, 16 1887.

In our editorial comment of last week a reference was made to the pulpit utterances of many of the clergy who from that spot have edified and instructed their brethren of the Exercise. Little did we think, while such remarks were being penned, that one of the most distinguished of those clerical ringers, one whose homilies always proved most profitable to his hearers, had that morning succumbed to the king of terrors, to the infinite grief and consternation, not only of his immediate relatives, but of those who it may be said dwelt together with him in unity. Owing to "THE BELL NEWS" being issued a day earlier last week than usual, in consequence of Good Friday occurring, the announcement of the death of the Rev. JAMES H. FISH could not be made, but this week it is our melancholy duty to publish the painful intelligence to be found in another column.

The interest which the deceased gentleman took in the art of ringing was unique. This opinion may be gathered by what is written concerning him in the place just referred to. Perhaps not even the most ardent of the beneficed priests who are now ringers adhered with such tenacity to the interior concerns of their own ringing company as he did. We recall with some degree of pleasure his frequent correspondence with ourselves, as it was his wont until recently to forward all the reports of performances achieved by the Burton company for publication, correspondence frequently accompanied by observations of his own, couched in urbane and affable language. He was ever to be found rendering assistance to any movement with which ringers sympathised, and when it was held that his presence, as a vicar of an important parish, as president of that Association with which his name is identified, or as a change-ringer merely, was desirable, he was always found ready and willing to work with those who desired his co-operation.

Mr. FISH was a man whom at this particular juncture the Exercise can ill afford to lose. The growth of new ideas in connection with it, the cultivation and opening up of new fields of thought and inquiry which find their way into print week after week, naturally demand able and trained exponents in a study which the bare principles of composition do not touch. We have in such men as Mr. HEYWOOD, and the Revs. EARLE BULWER and C. D. P. DAVIES, those well qualified to enter upon new and abstruse speculations; but such men as Mr. FISH could well gauge the value of these new ideas, and their influence assists in making them popular. His loss, however, must be borne, but the burden will be most heavily felt by those with whom he was in daily contact, whose names, through his energies, will be immortalized in the annals of ringing. What memorial may be raised to our departed friend of course we cannot tell. But let us be allowed the privilege of saying that a careful collection of his public utterances in connection with ringing—of inestimable value indeed to all ringers—should be undertaken. By such means he would for ever live in the hearts of succeeding generations.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

A Quarterly Meeting was held at S. Peter's, South Croydon, on Easter Monday, April 11th, by the kind permission of the Rev. J. White. The ringing began at about half-past 3 o'clock, when touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, and Treble Bob Major were rung. At 6 o'clock some forty members sat down to tea in the Church-room, and after tea was despatched the usual business was transacted, under the presidency of the vicar. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and passed, the hon. secretary informed the meeting that he had received on their behalf the current reports of the United Counties' Association, the Yorkshire Association, the Oxford Diocesan Guild, the Midland Counties' Association, and the Stoke-on-Trent Archidiaconal Association. A rule was passed enabling honorary members residing out of Surrey, to become life members by a donation of not less than two guineas. Ten new members were elected, including the Rev. J. White. Finally it was decided to hold the next District Meeting at Reigate, on Whit Monday, and the Annual Meeting at Kingston, in about three months' time. Subsequently more ringing was done both at S. Peter's and at the parish church, until about 9 p.m. This meeting was attended by ringers from Beddington, Benhilton, Bletchingley, Croydon, Dorking, Leatherhead, Mitcham, Reigate, Streatham, and Wimbledon.

GEO. F. ATTREE, Hon. Sec.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH BELLS, LOUGHBOROUGH.—It having been decided to accept Messrs. Taylor and Co.'s munificent offer to add two new bells to the peal of eight at All Saints' Church, on condition that the parishioners undertake the work of re-hanging the peal, the work is being rapidly pushed forward with a view of having the new peal in position by the date of the Queen's Jubilee. In addition to the present of two new bells, Messrs. Taylor and Co. have also very generously undertaken to improve some of the larger bells of the existing peal, in order to make the new peal one in every respect worthy of the fine old church in which it is to be placed, and also a credit to the town which, through the enterprise of Messrs. Taylor and Co., has obtained world-wide reputation in connection with the manufacture of bells. The sixth, seventh, and eighth bells (the latter being the large tenor bell) are to be replaced by new ones of superior tone and greater weight, an alteration which will effect much improvement in the musical excellence of the peal. The work of casting the three large bells was successfully carried out on Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a number of spectators.

In Memoriam.

THE REV. JAMES H. FISH.

In the prime of life, in the midst of active and vigorous work, the Vicar of St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, has been suddenly called away from the post he so ably filled.

Mr. Fish retired to rest on Tuesday evening, April 5th, apparently in his usual health, when shortly before midnight he was seized with an attack of the heart to which he succumbed before medical aid could be summoned. At the age of 41, the same at which his close friend Mr. Snowdon died, the ringing world has lost another valuable supporter.

In his earlier years, while at college, Mr. Fish distinguished himself as a member of the Oxford crew in the inter-University boat race, and this capacity for excelling he carried into later life, adding thereto an uncommon power of organization, and a remarkable directness and cogency of address.

On his appointment, exactly 13 years ago, to the vicarage of St. Paul's—a church then just completed at the expense of the late Mr. Bass—amongst other objects to which Mr. Fish turned his energies was that of forming a band of ringers to do justice to the peal of eight bells with which the tower was provided. How he worked and how he succeeded is best understood by the position which the company he created now occupies. He was once heard to remark that he did not believe there was a likely man in Burton that he had not taught to handle a rope; and his grief on the occasion of the secession of one of his band was expressed in the words: "It will take me ten years to make another like him."

Although it was more as an organizer than as a practical ringer that Mr. Fish's influence made itself felt, he yet was no mean exponent of the art, having taken part in several notable performances, foremost among which may be mentioned the 6720 of Superlative Surprise rung at Burton on January 24th, 1885.

The Midland Counties' Association, at present the foremost method ringing society in the country, owes its prominence almost entirely to his wise and energetic direction. Founded originally as a local Society under the title of the "Derby and District Association," Mr. Fish and his talented company joined, and entered heartily into its objects. Widening in reach, the name was altered to "The Midland Counties' Association" so as to embrace the four important towns of Derby, Leicester, Nottingham, and Burton. Aided by the sage counsels of Mr. Snowdon, Mr. Fish, as president, gave heart and soul to the work; a work which culminated last year in his being able to address the Association from the pulpit, on the occasion of the Annual Meeting, in these memorable words: "I am going to address myself to you as being to-day the premier Association of Change-ringers in the Kingdom. Whether you will continue to be so for long in the future will of course depend upon Providence and yourselves, but I say that to day, unquestionably and without exception, you are a long way ahead of all similar Associations in the country."

The cares and increasing work of a large parish obliged him at this meeting to resign his position of President, and the opportunity was taken to present a testimonial of the regard in which he was held. Since this time Mr. Fish had retired from any active connection with ringing, but he was none the less always ready with his advice and support, having acted as one of the referees of the silent peal of Stedman Triples rung at Burton on November 20th, 1886, and so late as the day of his death having arranged with the hon. sec. of the Association to assist him in his duties on the occasion of the Easter Annual Meeting.

Mr. Fish was a thorough disciplinarian, sound in his knowledge and appreciation of the best methods and the best peals, and, an admirable striker himself, unsparing in his criticism of slovenly ringing. "It is not sufficient to record a peal," he once said, "the compass and beat must be regular or I would not own the performance."

By his death the Exercise has lost an ardent supporter; the Midland Counties' Association their best friend; and the St. Paul's Society one who was to each member of it nothing less than an affectionate brother.

The funeral took place at Eccleshall, near Sheffield, on Saturday last. Before leaving Burton-on-Trent, a choral service took place at St. Paul's Church, and from the church to the station the body was followed by a very large number of people. The body arrived in Sheffield at 11.45, and hearse and mourning coaches being in readiness, the funeral procession proceeded at once to Eccleshall. In the first carriage were the Rev. G. Fish, the Rev. H. H. Moore, Mr. Edward Moore, and Mr. Hudson; in the second, Mr. Churchill (architect), Mr. C. A. Winder, and Mr. Henry Winder; in the third, Lord Burton, the Rev. H. O. Hall, and the Rev. Jas. Addenbrooke (curates of St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent), and Mr. Ellis (vicar's warden); in the fourth, Mr. A. Plant, Mus. Bac. (organist at St. Paul's), Mr. G. A. Barnes (assistant organist), Mr. Churchill and Mr. Addenbrooke; and in the fifth, Captain Nicholls, Councillor Stirk, Mr. Addenbrooke, and Mr. W. Ryley. At the churchyard were Mr. William Boden, Mr. J. Holleyhead, Mr. Boome, Mr. Neale, Mr. Squire, Mr. Daniels, and other friends of the deceased from Burton-on-Trent, in addition to numerous friends of the deceased resident in Sheffield. The service was conducted by the Rev. G. Sandford, assisted by the Rev. F. G. Sandford, (who represented the ringing community, being himself a ringing member of the Yorkshire Association), the Rev. V. Odom, and the Rev. C. F. Knight, the latter representing the Archdeacon of Sheffield. A large number of wreaths, composed of exquisite flowers, were placed on the coffin, among them being one formed of arum lilies, the tribute of the Rev. H. H. Moore. After the funeral rites had been performed, ten members of the Sheffield Amalgamated Society of Change-ringers, who are also members of the Yorkshire Association, of which the late rev. gentleman was a member, met at the Sheffield parish church, where formerly Mr. Fish was curate. A peal was rung with the bells deeply muffled, particulars of which appear in our peal column.

ALGERNON TAYLOR.

We regret to record the death of Algernon (Alfred) Taylor, of Hull, which took place on Saturday, the 2nd inst., in his 28th year. The deceased commenced his ringing career at St. James's, Hull, in 1874, and had endeared himself to all by his amiable and unassuming disposition. He afterwards joined the Holy Trinity Society, to which he belonged for nine years. He had been in failing health for the past two years. He was a member of the Yorkshire Association and the Ancient Society of College Youths, and rang twenty-two peals, consisting of twelve of Grandsire Triples, two of Grandsire Major, six of Bob Major, one of Kent Treble Bob Major, and one of Yorkshire Court Major, this last being rung on 31st July, 1885. The funeral took place at the general cemetery on the 5th inst, and he was borne to his last resting place by his brother-ringers and fellow-workmen, and a course of Grandsire Triples was rung over his grave upon handbells by the following:—T. Stockdale, 1-2; W. Southwick, 3-4; C. Jackson, 5-6; R. Chaffer, 7-8. The coffin was a very handsome one of polished pitch pine with brass mountings, and was made by Mr. J. W. Stickney, the conductor of the St. James's Society, Hull. After the funeral a start was made for a muffled peal at St. James's Church, but owing to the indisposition of one of the company, "stand" was called when 1120 changes had been rung. A peal was rung to his memory at Holy Trinity Church, with the bells muffled, on Good Friday, an account of which appears in another column.

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

A Handbell Prize Ringing Contest will take place at the house of Joseph Walton, Esq., the "Royal Hotel," Hayfield, Derbysire, when £6 will be given in prizes for the best course of Grandsire Triples, Grandsire Major, and Grandsire Caters..

THE WORCESTERSHIRE AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the above was held on Easter Monday in the Chapter House of the Cathedral at Worcester. In the unavoidable absence of the President (Very rev. Dr. Gott, Dean of Worcester), the Rev. Canon Creighton presided, supported by the Revs. Canon Cattley, W. R. Carr (St. John's, Worcester), W. C. Gibbs (rector of St. John's, Hagley), Messrs. S. Spittle (Master), J. Smith (Secretary), E. Crump (Treasurer), and upwards of eighty members from all parts of the county. Prayers having been said by the Rev. W. R. Carr, the Chairman, in welcoming the Association to Worcester, said the Dean and Chapter were pleased to accede to the request made by his friend Mr. Carr on behalf of the Association to hold their meeting in the Chapter House. He wished to say that it was only within the last hour or so that he was asked to preside at that meeting, which office he undertook with much pleasure. He thought it was the duty of the clergy, and especially those connected with the Cathedral, to take an active part in all Church work. He was sure that bell ringing was one branch which ought to be made useful in giving glory to God. Bells were placed in our churches to be used not as mere ornaments, and he trusted the members of this Association would make themselves proficient in the use of them. He ventured to hope that while they gave their time and energy to excel in the art of bell ringing, they would remember that they were workers in the Church not for their own glory, but for the glory of God, their lives therefore should be in harmony with their calling. He trusted the time was gone by when the ringers, after ringing others to church, walked away themselves, such conduct making a bad impression upon those who cared little for the worship of God. Meeting in the belfry, which was a part of God's House, ought to impress them with a feeling that they were engaged in God's work, then would their Exercise be to them not only a pleasure, but a real blessing. In conclusion, he gave an interesting description of bells, their origin, and use.

The Secretary having read the Annual Report, the Rev. W. R. Carr, in proposing its adoption, said that he was able to do so with pleasure. Much good had been done already through the Association, but much now might be done. He was sure that nothing would be allowed to be done or said in the belfries of our churches which would disgrace either the calling of a ringer or the place in which he rings. If all would do their duty to themselves and to their Church, he was sure they would form a useful band of Church workers. He wished them not to be mere buttresses of the Church (outside workers), but pillars of the Church also, having done their duty well outside, to be equally earnest to take part in the services inside.

Canon Cattley, in seconding the proposition, endorsed the remarks of the proposer, and trusted the kindly advice given by him and the Chairman would be received and acted upon by the members of the Association.

The Rev. Dr. Gott was re-elected President, as were also Canon Cattley and the Rev. W. R. Carr, Vice-Presidents. Mr. T. Brown (Worcester), was re-elected, and Mr. J. Naylor (Dudley), elected lay vice-presidents. The following were elected to serve on the Committee: Revs. Canon Claughton, W. C. Gibbs, E. J. Hall, S. J. Marriott, and C. W. Tibbets, with one representative from each company in union, the Worcester branch to send two. Several new members, honorary and performing, were added to the roll. Some slight alterations were made in the rules, and the usual vote of thanks to the Chairman for presiding, and to the Dean and Chapter for the use of the Chapter House, were unanimously passed. The rev. gentleman thanked them most heartily for the same, and pronounced the benediction, after which the members dispersed to the various church towers in the city, where some good touches of Grandsire Caters, Grandsire Triples, Grandsire Minor, Bob Major and Minor, were rung, as was also a peal of Grandsire Caters by the St. John's society, Bromsgrove, at All Saints' Church, Worcester, before the meeting, as recorded in last week's "BELL NEWS."

THE HOLT SOCIETY, ASTON-JUXTA-BIRMINGHAM

The Quarterly Meeting of the above society will be held at the "Ring of Bells," Aston, on Thursday evening next (28th instant), at eight o'clock. I also give notice that practice on Thursday evenings, from 7.45 till 9, will be resumed after the above date; also that ringing will take place on the first Sunday morning in each month (March and April excepted) from 9.45 till 11.0 a.m. T. HEMMING, Sec.

156, Queen's Road, Aston Park.

LONG SUTTON, LINCOLNSHIRE.

The cracked tenor bell has been taken to the foundry of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank to be recast. This bell is rather a curiosity in bell-founding. She measures thirty-nine and seven-eighths inches in diameter, weighs only 10½ cwt., and yet is in the key of F. (a rather flat F. according to the modern pitch).

A VISIT TO DUFFIELD AND DERBY.

On Easter Monday a party of ringers from Manchester, Eccles, and Worsley, sixteen all told, paid a visit to the above places. Arriving at Duffield about 9.45 a.m., the morning salutations were exchanged between the party and A. Percival Heywood, Esq., who proceeded to Derby by the same train the ringers alighted from. A move was then made for Duffield Church, where, after the Bradford company had rung an excellent touch of Treble Bob Major, another touch in the same method was rung by J. Eachus, 1; Edward Cash, 2; Joseph Grimshaw, 2; F. Darbyshire, 4; J. Welsby, 5; T. Darbyshire, 6; A. E. Wreaks (conductor), 7; R. Ridyard, 8. This being over preparations were then made to start for a peal (5024 changes) in the same musical method. "Go" was called at 10.54 a.m., and all went well for an hour and thirty-five minutes when a slight mistake by one ringer took place. This, however, was speedily made right, and the welcome cry of "this is all" brought the bells into rounds at the end of three hours and four minutes. The account of this peal was published in the columns of "THE BELL NEWS" last week. Descending the tower it was found that several of the party had gone on to Derby, so steps were taken to Little Heath station to catch the train, but the train had been gone a quarter of an hour. Nothing remained but to adopt the means of travelling usually resorted to after the last train has gone, viz., walking. By this means Derby was reached at 4.10 p.m., just in time for tea at St. Andrew's Schools, as due notice had been given to the hon. sec., Mr. J. Griffin. This part of the business being over the meeting was then held, presided over by A. Percival Heywood, Esq., after which the handbell contest took place, which the visitors enjoyed very much. Train time being near, a move had thus to be made for the station en route for Manchester, where they arrived in perfect safety at 10.15 p.m. The above ringers wish to thank A. Percival Heywood, Esq., for his exceeding great kindness in allowing them to look round his grounds and also for making the arrangements which helped to make the day a most enjoyable one for them.

In the two previous papers I have given at length my reasons for bringing forward a new method, and also a general description of its construction and qualities. I will now proceed to a more detailed explanation. I have named the method "DUFFIELD" after my own parish. A plain course of Major is given above, the consideration of Royal and Maximus being postponed till later.

I fancy I see a smile at the idea of dignifying with the title of "method" that which looks little more than a lead; yet the smile is on my side, for this little bit of a course of only 48 changes is capable of what not even the long courses of Treble Bob Major can accomplish, namely, of producing a 5000 with the 6th at home throughout, a tolerable indication of its musical extent.

Like Stedman, the method runs in sixes, but here the first change of each six is a back stroke, owing to the necessity that the whole pulls in front and behind, which must occur at the parting of the sixes, should come "right," that is at hand and back. Thus the go off is at the second change of a six. As each of the eight bells does exactly the same work in a plain course, merely starting at a different part of this work, if the course of any one bell, say the tenor, is followed, the simplicity of the movements of all will be at once apparent. I have placed a specially conspicuous figure to indicate this bell, as its course will thus easily be distinguished, and its position at the various calls be more readily understood. Let us now follow the tenor through the course. On going off it makes a double dodge in 7-8 down and goes into the "four-bell" work. This, from behind, consists in hunting down and making thirds place (first thirds), up to and making sixths place (last sixths), and straight to lead. A double dodge in 1-2 down, a whole pull, and a double dodge in 1-2 up; then the "four-bell" work as before, but the reverse way, viz.: up and make sixths (first sixths) down and make thirds (last thirds), and straight out behind, when a double dodge in 7-8 up and a whole pull brings the course-end—in strictness it should be termed the course beginning—and the tenor into position for the double dodge in 7-8 down, with which it started. To a Double Norwich ringer the work in front and behind will be clear, when told that it is identical with Double Norwich "full work."

The bob, as in Stedman, is on the last three bells, the pair behind dodging together an extra six, and the bell just about to go behind making sixths place (bob sixths), thus taking up the work of a bell just leaving behind, that is beginning the "four-bell" work down. An illustration of this is given above where a bob at "home" is called, the 4th making the bob, and 7, 8 dodging behind the extra six. Singles are also made as in Stedman, by the two back bells lying still over the bell making the bob. It will scarcely be necessary to take up time with further explanation, as the work is so extremely simple as to require little more than a glance to master it. Being, on eight bells, a perfect double method, the work down is of course an exact reverse of the work up. The thirds and sixths places are denominated "first" or "last" according as they are made in the first or last of the two sixes during which each bell, on its way either up or down, remains in the four bell work. Thus "first sixths" and "last thirds" are made going up, "first thirds" and "last sixths" going down. Every place and whole pull is, without exception, made "right," that is at hand and back, and every dodge is an ordinary Major backstroke dodge.

As regards the coursing order in the plain course, I may remark that it is the same as in the generality of even bell methods, with the exception that the 4th and 5th are transposed, and the treble, as a working bell, introduced between the 3rd and 2nd. The plain course order is therefore, 874312568. This interchange of the 4th and 5th is unavoidable, and has the advantage of giving better music where the 7th is in 7-8 down or 1-2 up, 7, 4 being a more harmonious pair than 7, 5.

Some curious rhythmical changes of considerable beauty come up in the plain course. By "rhythmical" is meant those changes that have a simple arithmetical relation to one another, in contradistinction to those that are purely musical. Such a change as 13745268, being an example of the latter, while the back change, 87654321 is an instance of the former. These rhythmical changes have a pleasing effect, as they are for the most part musical. Among them we get 56781234, 78563412, and several other unusual sequences, which at once strike the ear as novel. Among the more strictly harmonious changes we have, in addition to "Queens," the same backwards, 86427531. "Whittington" and "Tittums," although not in the plain course, are easily obtained, together with most of the 468's, without parting the tenors, which in this method would be liable to produce numerous false rows.

If the plain course of Duffield Major is rung on handbells—and thus individual changes are best distinguished—it will be found to contain a greater variety of good music than a course of any other method; for while giving the greater part of the fine changes that are found in that Prince of methods. Superlative, it is quite free from the many wild changes that the latter possesses, that is, changes with the tenors one in front and the other behind, or in other irregular positions. Duffield only parts the tenors for a few blows, and then merely just enough to bring up the musical effects, and will amply repay the little trouble necessary to acquire it on handbells. And here it may be pointed out that as 2 courses 1, 3 courses 4, 6 courses 5, and 7 courses 8, every pair does the same work, the only difference being that in the case of 1-2 and 5-6, the righthand bell courses before the left, while with 3-4 and 7-8 the left goes before the right. The changes in the last half of the course will be seen to be nothing more than those in the first half exactly reversed.

I shall now go on to some hints for ringing the method in the tower, of which a few week's practice has proved the utility, and indeed the necessity, for the moment we come to bobs, considerable attention is required. What follows, therefore, may be passed over until wanted.

There are three bells in particular the positions of which in practical ringing it is well to observe; your "course" bell, or bell you are coursing, your "courser," or bell which is coursing you, and your "double," or bell which is doing work the exact reverse of your own. If, in the plain course given above, a pencil line, after the manner of Mr. Snowdon's diagrams, is drawn following the figure 8, and another following the figure 1, these two lines will be seen to form an exact symmetrical pattern; the treble being always, throughout the plain course, in a position relatively the exact opposite of that occupied by the tenor. When the treble leaves the front the tenor leaves behind; when the treble makes "first sixths," the tenor makes "first thirds"; when the treble makes "last thirds," the tenor makes "last sixths"; when the treble goes out of the "four-bell" work to dodge behind, the tenor goes down to dodge in front, and so forth. Thus a ringer knowing his "double" knows exactly at any moment the work that bell should be doing, for it is doing the same going up as he is doing going down, or vice versa.

Now it is in the "four-bell" work that the fatal mistakes always occur, and it is here that the practical use of the "double" bell comes in. Suppose you are leaving behind; you go down to make "first thirds"; as you go down—see 1, 8 in the plain course—you find your "double" in the bell you strike over at your blow in 5th's place, that is, the bell you strike next after your "course" bell. If there has been no bob called since you left the "four-bell" work going up, your "double" is the same as it was then, and on striking in 5th's place coming down you know beforehand which bell you will strike over. Now while in the "four-bell" work, you strike three blows in 5th's place; the first, as you go down to make "first thirds"; the second, as you turn back to make "last sixths"; the third as you go down to lead. Each of these three blows in 5th's place is over your "double." Here is the value of the observation. You always pass your "double" in 4-5 whether going up or down, consequently you can set your work by his, or his by yours, according to which is the weaker. A bob does not affect your relation to him during the time you are in the "four-bell" work, but if one is called as you are going down to lead after striking him for the third time, he makes it. Thus the bell going down to lead always knows the bell that is making the bob, a knowledge of no slight value, as if a clash occur, the former can call to the latter to make "bob sixths," a term necessary in contradistinction to "first" and "last sixths," which appear immediately before and after "bob sixths." The rule as to your "double" of course holds equally in going up from front to behind, and your "double" always remains the same, and does the reverse work to yourself, until a bob moves one or the other of you.

Next as to your "course" bell. This is a most important aid. It is with this bell that you always dodge first on reaching the front or back. It is also well to know the blows you strike over him in the "four-bell" work. These are two; you strike him, on leaving front or back, next after the bell going to take your place; you also pass him as he goes out of the "four-bell" work as you finish your "first" places, whether thirds or sixths. But the great use of the "course" bell is when, as is sometimes the case, a ringer forgets either which way he is going, or whether he is making "first" or "last" places. The simple rule is: Whenever you come into third's place, notice if your "course" bell is dodging in front, if so, join him at once, if not, make thirds and turn back. Similarly when you come into sixths place, if he is dodging behind, join him at once; if not, make sixths and turn back. In short, never leave the "four-bell" work till you see your "course" bell in the dodging. The only exception to the rule is when your "course" bell is called to make "bob sixths" and turns back again. There are three positions in which a bob will alter your "course" bell; to find the new one the following observations are useful: If you are making the bob (bob sixths,) your new course bell is that you strike at your backstroke in sixths place. If making "first sixths" when the bob is called, it is that which is dodging in 7-8 up, and strikes over you at backstroke as the call is made. If dodging 7-8 down, it is that you strike at hand the blow next after the call is made.

Lastly, as to your "courser" bell. A knowledge of the blows you strike over him in the "four-bell" work is useful. You pass him in 3-4 when about to make "last thirds," and in 5-6 when making last sixths, according as you are going up or down. You dodge in front and behind with him after dodging with your "course" bell; thus if there is any hesitation, you will know what bell to call to join you. When in the "four-bell" work, your "course" bell is with you during the first six, and your "courser" during the last. To those ringers that possess the power of keeping others straight, the following hints will prove of service: When in the dodging, if any bell tries to join you at first dodge, send him right away to the opposite dodging; if at second dodge, tell him to make the far (last) place and come back again; if it is directly a bob is called, you being behind and making the first of the extra dodges, tell him to go down and make "first thirds," as he is the one that made the bob. Notice also that the last (backstroke) blow of "first thirds" or "first sixths" is made at the same time as the last dodge of the bells in front and behind; the "first thirds" and "sixths" being made a whole pull previously.

The above information may, by many, be deemed superfluous, but I have had considerable experience in method teaching, and I find that by setting forth the various hints, ringers are enabled to pick those that suit them best, seldom choosing alike, for scarcely any two men work by exactly the same mental process. I may say, however, that in Duffield it will be found next to impossible to ring with certainty without watching the "course" bell and the "double" bell.

In the next paper a table of course-ends will be given, with instructions for pricking the method.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

On Monday, May 2nd, 1887, a District Meeting will be held at Woodbridge, on the occasion of opening the bells after rehanging. Dinner at the Crown Hotel at 1 o'clock. Service in the church at 3 o'clock, with sermon by Ven. Archdeacon Perowne, Rector of Redenhall. Members intending to dine are requested to inform the Secretary on or before Wednesday, April 27th, with name of station.

4, Bracondale Terrace, Norwich.

N. BOLINGBROKE, Hon. Sec.

NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the above Association will be held at Lincoln, on Saturday, the 30th instant, when and where the Committee hope to see all members and others interested in the welfare of the Association. Arrangements are being made to provide tea, and several towers will be open for ringing on that day. Societies and members of kindred Associations intending to be present will please communicate, not later than Wednesday morning's post, with Mr. J. W. Watson, Knight Street, Lincoln, or the hon. secretary,

Market Rasen

W. LUNN.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

LUNCHEON AT THE "SWAN" HOTEL.

The annual luncheon and meeting took place on Easter Monday, at Bedford, about fifty members attending. The Mayor (Mr. G. Hurst), occupied the chair, supported by Archdeacon Bathurst, Rev. Lambert Woodard (St. Paul's), Rev. A. C. Downer (St. Cuthbert's), Rev. J. Copner (Elstow), Mr. T. Bull (hon. auditor), Mr. T. G. E. Elger, F.R.A.S. (hon. treasurer), took the vice-chair, having for his supporters the Rev. W. W. C. Baker (Milton Bryant), Mr. E. Ransom, and Mr. C. Herbert (hon. secretary).

The excellent luncheon provided by host Prickett having been disposed of,

The SECRETARY read the annual report as follows:—

The Committee, in presenting their fifth annual report, are glad to be able to state that the Association has made good progress in the past year. This is evident from that which is the true criterion of advance, viz., the list of performances for the year, which, though still falling far short of the achievements of the more prominent ringing societies, are both in quantity and quality distinctly ahead of those chronicled last year. They comprise peals in the following methods: Bob Triples, one; peals of 5040 changes made up of seven 720's on six bells in various plain and Treble Bob methods, three. In addition to these, several peals have been rung with the assistance of ringers not belonging to the Association, which cannot therefore be reckoned among the performances of the Association, but are worthy of mention as shewing the energy of members. Noteworthy among these is a peal of Bob Major rung at Cardington, on February 12th, 1887. This was brought round by six members of the Bedford company, assisted by the brothers Pitstow of Saffron Walden, and is the first known to have been rung in the county since a peal at Dunstable in 1776 by the College Youths. In their anxiety to obtain opportunities for peal-ringing, members have journeyed into Northamptonshire, and even as far as Staffordshire. It is to be hoped that the present year will witness successful attempts for peals by other companies, who at present do not travel beyond 720's. Several companies have done much good work on six bells during the year. The Committee regret that such centres as Luton, Dunstable, and Leighton Buzzard still supply no members to the Association, and would gladly welcome and assist to the best of their power, any endeavour to promote change-ringing in these towns. District meetings have been held at Toddington, Husburne Crawley, Bletsoe, and Woburn. The Committee are much pleased with the belfry reform at Bletsoe, Biddenham, Houghton Conquest, and other places. The Committee recommend that a circular be drawn up, setting forth the objects of the Society and what it has already accomplished in the county, and urging the co-operation of the clergy, churchwardens, and others in furthering the work of scientific change-ringing and belfry reform. It is gratifying to the Committee to be able to report that the hearty good feeling and spirit of mutual co-operation between all members and companies which has characterised the Association from its establishment, still animates it.

Mr. BULL, in proposing the adoption of the report, suggested that it should be printed and circulated immediately after the meeting; if it was not printed until the following Easter, much of the interest in it was lost.

The SECRETARY explained that the report would have been printed much earlier last year but for the fact that he and the Treasurer living so far apart, he was unable to get the accounts in time.

The Rev. W. W. C. BAKER seconded, and the report was adopted and ordered to be circulated as suggested by Mr. Bull.

A considerable number of new members were then elected.

Some discussion ensued as to the formation of the Committee, and ultimately it was decided to increase the number, the following gentlemen being appointed:—Rev. E. J. Hillier (Cardington); Rev. A. C. Downer (Bedford); Rev. W. W. C. Baker (Milton Bryant); Mr. W. Biggs (Bromham); Mr. W. C. Chibnall (Aspley Guise); Mr. E. Ransom, Mr. I. Hills, Mr. C. W. Clarke, and Mr. S. J. Cullip (Bedford); Mr. W. E. Turney (Woburn); Mr. C. Howard (Biddenham); Mr. J. Dickens (Sharnbrook).

On the motion of the VICE-CHAIRMAN, seconded by the Secretary, the Rev. Lambert Woodard was appointed a vice-president in the place of the Rev. R. E. R. Watts, the services rendered by the latter to the Association being referred to by the proposer.

The Rev. L. WOODARD said he took a great interest in bell-ringing, for he considered bells were a great help to worship, and he should do his best to promote change-ringing.

The VICE-CHAIRMAN gave notice that at the next meeting he should propose that the number of vice-presidents be increased from three to six.

In answer to Archdeacon Bathurst, the TREASURER said there was a balance in hand of nearly £17.

The question of a paid instructor then came up, the Secretary observing that in many places there were young men who wished to ring on their newly-restored bells. They were men belonging to the Association who were willing to learn them, but could not afford to lose their time and pay their own railway fares. It was such a small matter, however, that it could be well disposed of by the Committee.

This being the whole of the business,

The MAYOR said he was very pleased to have met the members of the Association. Of all people he considered bell-ringers the most loyal, and there was proof of that in the fact that when anything occurred to honour the Queen, as in the case of the Jubilee, all the bells in England were set ringing. In all other societies, there were generally some members who were not quite loyal, but from their conduct, bell-ringers were clearly the most loyal people in England.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Mayor, on the proposition of the Rev. A. G. Downer, seconded by Archdeacon Bathurst.

During the day, the members rang several touches on the bells of St. Paul's and St. Mary's, and at a special service held at St. Paul's at 5 p.m., a brief address was given by the Rev. J. Copner, vicar of Elstow. Holt's ten-part of Grandsire Triples (5040 changes), was rung in the morning at Cardington, and which was recorded in last week's issue.

THE ORMSKIRK SOCIETY.

The members of the above society had their annual outing on Easter Monday. Assembling at the railway station, they took the 7.15 a.m. train to Preston, on reaching which they partook of refreshments, and then journeyed by the 8.20 a.m. train to Houghton, which was reached at 9.0 a.m. The bells of the parish church having been kindly placed at the disposal of the ringers by the vicar, the Rev. J. Shortt, at 9.40 a.m. a start was made to ring the Rev. C. D. P. Davies's peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing 3523 changes, a misunderstanding arose by the tenor bell rope coming in contact with the case containing the works of the clock lately erected there, and so the peal came to grief. J. Prescott, 1; J. Sholicar (conductor), 2; W. B. Lloyd, 3; W. Ellis, 4; W. J. Taylor, 5; H. Winrow, 6; G. Prescott, 7; P. H. Harvey, 8. The bells, which have just been erected by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, were then lowered, after which the vicarage was visited, and several touches and tunes rung on the handbells. The Vicar then entered into conversation respecting bells and bell-ringing, and read some very amusing inscriptions on bells, and gave them some pleasing information respecting the tenor bell at Ormskirk. After a hearty shaking of hands, and a hope that they would shortly pay another visit to Houghton, they proceeded to Houghton Tower, at the invitation of Sir Charles-de-Houghton, who kindly showed them over the grounds, and through the ancient and historic tower, which contains many relics of the past. Lunch was then provided for them, which having been heartily enjoyed, the handbells were again brought into requisition, tunes and touches being rung, with which Sir Charles and the ladies present were highly pleased. The time being limited, shaking of hands and a wish from Sir Charles to hear them ring on the bells again at some future visit, brought that part of their journey to a close. Proceeding to the station, they took the 2.20 p.m. train to Blackburn, where, at the invitation of Mr. J. Walker, they found a first-class spread awaiting them, which was served up in Mrs. Walker's best style, and to which ample justice was done. At the parish church they found some of their Southport friends awaiting them. They then rung a course of Grandsire Caters, and attempted a peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing 2310 changes it had to be abandoned, some of the band evidently being too fatigued to proceed further. The bells were then lowered and the different places of interest visited and at 9.0 p.m. a start was made for the railway station, where they found that ever-welcome friend of the weary (the iron horse) awaiting them. A hearty "good-bye" from their Blackburn friends, and the visitors left for home, which was reached at 11.10 p.m., thus bringing a long and very pleasant day to a close. The Society desire to take the present opportunity, through the "BELL NEWS," of thanking the Rev. Mr. Shortt, of Houghton, and the Churchwardens of Blackburn parish church, for their kindness in granting the use of the bells; also those who so kindly assisted in making the outing a pleasant one.

THE DEVONSHIRE GUILD.

A concert in connection with the St. Sidwell's society, Exeter, was held on Wednesday evening, the 13th inst., at the St. Sidwell's church Institute, before a very fair audience, under the presence and patronage of the Hon. and Rev. J. Northcote, the Hon. Sec. of the Devonshire Guild. The proceeds will be towards a new set of handbells for the St. Sidwell's society, a long felt want. The following programme was very creditably performed, and very much enjoyed by all present. Piano overture, "Zampa," Mrs. Scanes; song "The Old Brigade," Rev. W. Scott; song "When my Jim comes Home" Miss. E. Cliff; handbell selection "Jenny Jones," members of the Devonshire Guild; song "Dream Stars," Miss I. E. Scanes; glee "O who will o'er the Downs so free" Miss E. Cliff, Miss M. Gay, Rev. S. Hosking, Mr. F. Easterling; song "The Press Gang" Mr. F. Easterling; duet "The Happy Pair of Souls" Miss E. I. Scanes, Mr. E. R. S. Munday; song "The river of years" Miss M. Gay; handbell selection, "There's nae luck about the house," members of the Devonshire Guild; piano solo "The plough boy" Mrs. Scanes; song "Anchored," Mr. E. R. S. Munday; song "What next," Miss E. Cliff; handbell selection "Home, Sweet Home" members of the Devonshire Guild; song "The Hunting Day," Rev. W. Scott; glee "Sweet and Low," Miss E. Cliff, Miss M. Gay, Rev. S. Hosking, and Mr. F. Easterling; song "Ruddigore," Miss M. Gay; song "They all love Jack," Mr. F. Easterling; duet "Taming the Shrew," Miss E. I. Scanes, and Mr. E. R. S. Munday. National Anthem.

REPRINT OF ANOTHER WORK ON CHANGE-RINGING.

The publisher of "THE BELL NEWS" has the pleasure to announce the issue, in penny weekly numbers, of a rare old work upon ringing, entitled "Campanalogia Improved; or the Art of Ringing made easy," &c. This work is printed uniform with "Shipway" and the "Clavis," which have been so eagerly taken up.

The Publisher believes that the re-issues of these various old ringing works, which at the present day are from their scarcity, so difficult of perusal, will be approved of by ringers. Their publication enables all who have an inclination for the useful, as well as the curious, to possess in time a valuable and complete ringing library. The copy, which has been kindly lent to the editor of this journal by Mr. S. B. Goslin, of the Crescent Foundry, Cripplegate, belongs to a fifth edition, "Corrected by J. Monk." For the purposes of easy publication it is called after his name, and those intending to take in the penny weekly numbers, should ask for "Monk on Ringing."

All who are desirous of securing copies should do so without delay, as a second reprint is out of the question.

"THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD" will be forwarded, post free, on the following terms:—

One copy, 12 months	6s. 6d.
" 6 "	3s. 3d.
" 3 "	1s. 8d.

All Subscriptions and Orders for papers must be sent direct to the Publisher E. W. ALLEN, Ave Maria Lane, London.

Everything for insertion in this Journal to be addressed "The Editor of THE BELL NEWS, Walthamstow, London." Letters forwarded for publication, and performances under 5000 changes must reach us not later than Wednesday morning; and the insertion of any communication arriving later than the first Postal delivery on Thursday morning cannot be guaranteed in that week's number. When it is found impossible from want of space to insert all touches forwarded, the earlier ones will have the preference.

All communications respecting advertisements must be addressed to the office of "THE BELL NEWS," Walthamstow, London.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1887.

ON more than one occasion have we urged the necessity of the practice, between members of the ringing Exercise, of mutual courtesy and forbearance. And in a recent number we gave utterance to the opinion that friendly rivalry and competition between different societies should be real and thorough. There is nothing incongruous or inconsistent in the dictum we have laid down with regard to these positions. The abolition or total disregard of courtesy is surely not demanded at a time when competitors are engaged in endeavouring to secure the first prize; and especially may this be said in connection with ringing concerns. The keener the struggle, the more polite to each other should be the demeanour of the contending parties.

Whether the pursuit of ringing prevents its followers from maintaining this ideal, or otherwise, is said to be a matter of opinion. We do not share in this view. Ambition which has for its object the attainment of not only excellence in ringing, but also the satisfaction of the many special desires which occasionally become paramount, may be gratified quite as easy, or in fact easier, when it is accompanied by the display of gentlemanly conduct, as in those cases when such conduct is wanting. Neither is it necessary, or at any rate it ought not to be thought necessary, in the promotion of any laudable and fair desire, to resort to mean stratagems to attain the end in view. We fear, however, that such cases are not infrequent. The unfortunate fact remains that there are many cases on record where, to gain a point, a great amount of secrecy and mystification is brought into play, in order to defeat the intentions of others who would be likely to make an attempt to snatch a coveted honour. But it is these eternal attempts at forestalling, and the fear of them, which we condemn.

There is no doubt that selfishness, the besetting sin of many ringers, is at the bottom of many of these unpleasant episodes. Let us state a case, one not absolutely fictitious, but founded on fact in a most remarkable degree. A new ring of eight being placed in a village church, the ringers of the vicinity were anxious for the honour of the first peal. Some of these men lived five or six miles away from each other, but that did not militate against the notion they had set their minds on. Matters being arranged, a gentleman living nearly forty miles off was invited to call the peal. He attended, travelling at his own cost. There was no regard paid to what London Society the band were connected with, in fact it was of that character known as "mixed." Three visits were paid to the place, a great part of the journey having to be made by road across country, and being winter time, the journey, as may be imagined, was not too delightful. Each of these attempts, from various causes, failed. Another date was then fixed for a still further trial, the band seemingly determined on this fourth visit not to leave till they had secured the peal. The day for the meeting drew nigh, when suddenly the columns of this journal betrays the fact that the deed has been done! accomplished by a band from one of the Metropolitan societies, got together, surreptitiously be it said, by two of the party who were in each of the previous attempts.

Now here we may say is a case which, though it might be considered sharp practice, is certainly the reverse of respectable. And what did it lead to? The break-up of the connection between the local bands concerned, who up to that time periodically visited each other, and rang together in their respective towers. This is an instance of the most acute selfishness, a desire on the part of two persons that the peal should be rung by members of their own company exclusively, coupled with a total disregard of the wishes of those who had at great inconvenience attended on the previous occasions. The case points out a rivalry certainly—of a sort—but at the expense of something far more valuable; in fact such conduct leads to the total extinction of that which all should practise one towards another, viz., courtesy and refined bearing, and consideration for the feelings of others.

ACCIDENT TO MR. ROBERT TUKE, OF BRADFORD.

WE regret to announce that an accident of a somewhat serious nature happened on Monday last to Mr. Robert Tuke, of Bradford. As he was driving in his own dog-cart, from some cause or other, he was thrown out, sustaining injuries to the left hand, jaw, ribs, and knee-cap. These injuries, under the most favorable surgical treatment, will prevent Mr. Tuke ringing for some time, in fact mere writing at the present time is to him a painful infliction. Such an untoward occurrence will be deeply regretted by all ringers, and especially by those who like ourselves, have the honour of Mr. Tuke's personal acquaintance. It will prevent him taking part in many performances which are arranged to take place both in Yorkshire and elsewhere, at any rate, for some time to come. We hope to hear very soon that Mr. Tuke is getting on as well as his medical attendant hopes for, and that his temporary effacement from the belfry may be much shorter than he himself anticipates.

Mr. S. B. Goslin, of the Crescent Foundry, writes to say that in the list of English bell founders, published last week, the name of John Warner and Sons was omitted. We consider the inaccuracy as remarkable, and wonder at the omission made by our correspondent. In North's Church Bells of Northamptonshire we read the following:—

John Warner was in business, in the year 1763, as a bell and brass founder, at a house known as the Three Bells and a Star, in Wood-street, Cheap-side, London. He had a brother named Tomson Warner, who, after serving his apprenticeship as an ironmonger, at Amptill, in Bedfordshire, came to London and joined his brother John in business. Some time between the year 1763 and 1782 they removed to Fore-street, Cripplegate, near to their old premises, and also close by the side of the present foundry. In the latter year the brothers dissolved partnership, Tomson remaining in Fore-street, and John going to Fleet-street, where he carried on business as a bell-founder, under the name of John Warner and Sons. He sometimes placed his own name on bells, as at Strood, Kent, in 1788, and sometimes that of his firm, as at S. Stephen's, Norwich, in 1796, and at Colby, Norfolk, in 1802. The bell at Cripplegate church was also cast by him. From Tomson Warner (whose eldest son was named John after his uncle), the business has descended to his grandson, Mr. Robert Warner, F.R.H.S., who, under the style of John Warner and Sons, is the present proprietor. Prior to 1850 the bells cast by Messrs. Warner were in sand, and did not exceed eighteen inches in diameter, but in that year, being established in the present premises, Mr. Warner commenced casting large bells in loam. The foundry stands on ground said to have been occupied by the Jews, and given—upon their banishment in the twelfth century, to the Dean of S. Paul's—hence Jewin-street, and Jewin-crescent. The trade mark of the foundry, adopted, I suppose, from the name of the last-mentioned locality, is a bell within a crescent. A handsome band encircles some of the more recent bells cast here, upon which also appears some appropriate inscriptions in fine gothic letters.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES ASSOCIATION.

On Easter Tuesday, April 12th, the Leicester Branch of the above Association met at the house of Mr. S. Cooper, "Defiance Inn," to celebrate the peal of Stedman Caters, rung on the 19th March, the said peal being the first rung by the Association. A very ample repast was provided, which was much enjoyed. Messrs. T. Holmes, Burton-on-Trent, and R. Lane, of Loughborough, were present on the occasion; Mr. S. Cooper, the local vice-president, was voted to the chair, and Mr. J. Buttery, the conductor of the peal, to the vice-chair.

The CHAIRMAN, in a few choice words, proposed the health of the "Queen," which was duly honoured. The Chairman next proposed the "Prince and Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," and spoke of the enthusiastic reception the Prince and Princess met with at the opening of the Leicester Abbey Park.

Song, "The Old Church Bell," Mr. T. Wilson.

The CHAIRMAN, in proposing the "Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese and Ministers of all Denominations," said he thought the present opportunity ought not to pass without acknowledging the courtesy and kindness which had at all times been rendered to the ringers by the Rev. Canon Clayton, the much esteemed vicar of St. Margaret's, and he begged to propose "That a hearty vote of thanks be accorded that gentleman for the use of the bells on this and many former occasions."

Song, "The Cottage by the Mill," Mr. Jarvis.

The VICE-CHAIRMAN next proposed success to the "Midland Counties' Association," coupled with the name of the President (A. P. Heywood, Esq.), and said that this Association was fortunate in having so talented and energetic a president, and hoped the Leicester Branch would not be satisfied without endeavouring to emulate the performances of another very important branch. A course of Grandsire Caters was then rung.

Song, "Bonnie Mary of Argyle," Mr. J. W. Wilson; other songs and sentiments following.

Mr. A. MILLIS then proposed the "Host and Hostess," which was suitably responded to by Host Cooper, which brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

The following is the Ringing done by the St. Peter's Society, Caversham, during the months of February and March.—On Sunday, February 20th, at the Parish Church, a 360 of Plain Bob Minor, and 180 of Stedman Doubles. And on Tuesday evening, February 22nd, for practice, a 720 of Canterbury Pleasure, and 360 of Stedman Doubles. Also on Sunday, February 27th, a 720 of Plain Bob Minor, and a 120 of Stedman Doubles. And on Sunday, March 13th, a 720 of Yorkshire Court, and 360 of Stedman Doubles. Also on Sunday, March 20th, a 360 of Plain Bob Minor, 360 of College Single, and a 120 of Stedman Doubles. And on Sunday, March 27th, a 720 of College Single, and a 360 of Stedman Doubles. And on Sunday, April 3rd, a 360 of Oxford Bob Minor. And on Good Friday, April 8th, a 720 of Kent Treble Bob, with the bells half-muffled. And on Easter Sunday, at 6 a.m., a 720 of Plain Bob Minor, and for morning service, at 11 a.m., a 720 of College Single, and a 120 of Stedman Doubles. And for evening service, a 720 of Double Bob Minor, being the first in the method by the society. And after service a 720 of Canterbury Pleasure. And on Tuesday evening, April 12th, for practice, a 720 of Plain Bob Minor. Also on Sunday, April 17th, for Divine Service in the morning, a 720 of Oxford Bob Minor. The following took part in the above:—Rev. G. F. Coleridge, T. Newman, G. Essex, J. Hands, H. Smith, E. Men-day, H. Simmonds, F. Simmonds, C. Bush, C. Parfitt. Conducted by Rev. G. F. Coleridge, T. Newman and G. Essex. Tenor 17 cwt.

ANNUAL OUTING.

On Easter Monday, the Christ Church (West Bromwich) Society had their usual Easter outing to Manchester, travelling by the Great Western Railway, and arriving there soon after ten o'clock a.m., when they were met at the station by Mr. West, one of the Cathedral ringers, who conducted the party to the Cathedral, where previous arrangements had been made for an attempt for a peal of Grandsire Caters, which, after ringing about one hour, unfortunately came to grief, and there not being sufficient time for a second start, a touch was rung containing 503 changes. J. Hares, 1; T. Horton, 2; J. Frisby, 3; W. R. Small, 4; B. Hill, 5; S. Reeves (conductor), 6; R. Hall, 7; C. Price, 8; C. Timms, 9; H. Hipkiss, 10. The afternoon was spent in visiting the various places of interest in the City. The party wish to thank the Manchester band for placing the bells at their disposal, and having everything in readiness for the start, assuring them that they shall be treated in the same way any time they may think proper to pay a return visit. The return train left the station at 7.45 p.m., and the party reached West Bromwich about 12 o'clock, not quite so pleased as they would have been had the peal been finished.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, April 16th, the Quex Park (Birmingham) Band availed themselves of the opportunity of visiting the country village of Ash, next Sandwich, for the purpose of attempting a peal of Grandsire Triples, which was successfully brought round in 2 hrs. 57 mins., particulars of which will be found in the peal column. This is the first peal on the bells since they were rehung by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and is believed to be the second peal ever rung on these bells. There is no other record than a tablet which records a peal of Grandsire Triples, rung by the Quex Park Band, on Feb. 18, 1826. The "go" of the bells is all that can be desired, and reflects great credit on the Whitechapel firm. After ringing, an adjournment was made to the White Lion Inn, where a substantial meat tea was provided by the Host, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. After doing justice to the good things provided, the handbells were brought into use, and a pleasant hour was spent in change-ringing, to the great amusement of a few residents of Ash, and the parting time came too soon. After a hearty "shake hands" the happy party commenced their return journey (via Sandwich), arriving home quite safe shortly after ten o'clock, all well pleased with their achievement. The ringers wish, through the medium of this paper, to tender their sincere thanks to the Vicar and Churchwardens for the use of the bells on this occasion.

MUFFLED TOUCHES AT ST. PAUL'S, BURTON-ON-TRENT, IN MEMORY OF THE REV. J. H. FISH.

On the sad news of the death of their beloved Vicar and friend reaching the St. Paul's ringers, steps were at once taken to muffle the bells in order to pay the last sad tribute of respect to his memory. Touches of Stedman Triples were rung on Wednesday and Thursday. On Good Friday there was no ringing, one bell only being tolled for Divine Service on that day. And early on Saturday, during the conveyance of the body to the church (where the first part of the service for the burial of the dead was said in the presence of a very large congregation) and from the church to the station, the bells were rung deeply muffled, the back stroke of the tenor only being unmuffled, the bells being rung very slowly, having a very solemn effect. In the afternoon the week's ringing was brought to a close by an attempt for a peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major, but this, to the great regret of the ringers, came to grief after over three hours' ringing, owing to one of the ropes slipping from the wheel and becoming unmoveable. J. Jaggard, 1; E. I. Stone, 2; A. Wakley, 3; J. Austin, 4; H. Wakley, 5; J. Griffin, 6; S. Holmes, 7; W. Wakley (conductor), 8.

THE SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS.

On Saturday, the 16th inst., a band of the above society met at St. Ann's, Highgate, in the afternoon, to attempt a peal. The fourth rope slipped off its wheel, after ringing an hour and thirty minutes, the bell at the same time set itself. An adjournment was made to the "King of Bohemia," when Mr. E. Chapman, of Hampstead, entertained his friends and brother Cumberlanders with refreshment, the above date being the commencement of another year of that gentleman's existence. Two out of the three Jemmies invited were present, the other one, it was presumed, having gone to Burton. A pleasant evening was spent in a quiet way, notwithstanding the mishap. Mr. John Woods, of Kenninghall, was also one of the party. W. H. F.

THE ST. MARTIN'S SOCIETY, BIRMINGHAM.

On Tuesday, the 19th instant, the above Society attempted a muffled peal of Stedman Cinques, as a mark of condolence with the bereaved family of the late Rev. J. H. Fish, vicar of St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, which was stopped by the conductor, owing to the "buffs" becoming detached from the back bells fourteen courses from "that's all," after ringing 2 hrs. 20 mins. After ringing 37 mins. on the 16th inst. the company had a similar mishap. J. Buffery, 1; Thos. Reynolds, 2; J. Joynes, 3; W. R. Small, 4; A. Thomas, 5; H. Bastable, 6; W. Kent, 7; J. Sanders, 8; S. Reeves, 9; F. H. James, 10; H. Johnson, jun., 11; C. Stanbridge, 12. Composed by H. Johnson, sen., and conducted by H. Bastable.

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

A Handbell Prize Ringing Contest will take place at the house of Joseph Walton, Esq., the "Royal Hotel," Hayfield, Derbyshire, when £6 will be given in prizes for the best course of Grandsire Triples, Grandsire Major, and Grandsire Caters.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE RINGERS OF ENGLAND.

SIR,—With reference to the statistics given in your number of April 9th, under the head of "The Ringers of England," I should like to point out an error into which the compiler has apparently been led. The statement that the Oxford Diocesan Guild contains seventy-two bands, 700 ringing and 210 honorary members is approximately correct. But these numbers really include those of the General Guild and local branches which follow. These last therefore should have no separate place in the table, and the various totals will then be considerably reduced, i.e. the ringing members by 534; the honorary members by 215, and the bands by seventy-one. I have little doubt that the compiler has derived his information from the Official Year Book of the Church of England, and that the mistake has arisen from the form in which the statistics of the Guild are there given, and for which I am alone responsible. DOLBEN PAUL, Sec. to O.D.G.B.

AN ANSWER.

SIR,—If "K.C.A.C.R." likes to send me his name and address, I shall be pleased to answer his question, and possibly enlighten him on a subject which he, and I am sure, you, Sir, will agree with me in saying is wholly unsuited for discussion in the columns of "THE BELL NEWS." G. FREDK. COLERIDGE.

Caversham, Reading.

THE HOLT SOCIETY, AND THE BIRMINGHAM AMALGAMATED SOCIETY.

SIR,—Referring to Mr. Carter's letter in your issue of March 26th, I fail to understand the force of his denial of my statement. Undoubtedly he rang two peals on handbells with the Holt Society at the beginning of this year, and with this commenced the jealousy on the part of the members of the Amalgamated Society. Mr. Carter himself is my authority for stating that a resolution was passed by members forming the backbone of the Amalgamated Society, and his information was confirmed by another of their members, who in addition stated that no special meeting was held for the purpose, but that it was unanimously agreed to by the leading stars of the handbell performers of their society at a private meeting. Our thanks are due to Mr. Carter for being the first to divulge this, but unfortunately not until we had been victimised. A member of the Holt Society, in arranging for a birthday peal on handbells, picked a member of the Amalgamated as one of his band. This friend, the originator of the present correspondence, promised to come faithfully, but failed to put in an appearance at the appointed time, and on being remonstrated with, trumped up some paltry apology. This sort of thing would probably have continued, had not Mr. Carter's feelings revolted at such duplicity. Then it was that to prevent a recurrence of the like, he exposed the obnoxious resolution to others as well as to myself. With the view of testing its power, and if possible of rescinding it, he asked me several times to arrange a peal in which he might take part, but up to the present such a peal has not been rung. This substantiates my first letter, and bearing in mind the forcible and indignant proverb relating to the stirring up of unsavoury matter, I must now decline further correspondence on the subject. I most heartily concur with the views expressed in your able leader as to unity in this district. Taking St. Martin's as a centre, with a radius of six miles, there is an amply sufficient number of really excellent ringers to form a society, which as a united body could not fail to be powerful and influential in the furtherance of the Exercise. I am confident that a scheme is possible by which such a society could be worked with great ease. Under its auspices, the unwholesome jealousy now too frequently existing would cease, and give way to a healthy emulation of the deeds of kindred societies. WILLIAM KENT, Fentham Road, Birchfields.

RINGERS AT ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRALS.

SIR,—I notice in the new report of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild of ringers that some of the members have been ringing at a Roman Catholic Cathedral at Birmingham. What have your readers to say to that? Not long ago, I heard of a Bishop's son preaching in a dissenting chapel. EX-CHURCHWARDEN.

SUNDAY PEAL RINGING.

SIR,—Now that the question of Sunday Peal Ringing is again under discussion in your columns, I should be glad if you would spare me space for a few words on the subject. When the question was first mooted by Mr. Custance, I watched the correspondence column for some weeks to see what replies would be evoked, and what arguments brought forward for and against, but I watched in vain. No reply came. From this I was led to one of two inferences; either that the subject was one of minor importance, or that the arguments brought forward by Mr. Custance in favour of peals being rung on Sundays, were so thoroughly sound and consistent that they were practically unanswerable. The first of the two I could not bring myself to believe, the second I fully coincide with. But I find at last that a few of your many correspondents have "agreed to differ" with that gentleman's views upon the subject. It is to be regretted, however, that after taking so much time to think over the question, the replies of neither of your correspondents attempt to answer or refute the arguments brought forward by Mr. Custance in favour of peals being rung on Sundays, both letters being abstract and, to my mind, inconsistent condemnations of the practice. The custom of ringing for an hour, and in some places even longer, before the services is almost universally upheld throughout the country, then why a peal taking three hours should be "an act of irreverence" I utterly fail to see. The narrow-minded philosophy of the majority of Englishmen at the present time only admits of the propriety of two classes of public buildings being opened on Sundays, viz.: the Church and the public-house, and in places where the church holds its services in the afternoon, in the evening one place alone is open; and though I would be the last to advocate a meeting there, the fact remains, that any body of men having an interest in common, will meet somewhere in their leisure time to discuss and further that interest. The part of ringing done by any scientific band, in the interests of the church, and the part done by the same band in the interest of the science, is practically inseparable, in spite of all finely drawn theories to the contrary. If any further arguments were needed in favour of allowing peals to be rung on Sundays, I need only point out the convenience to many ringers, how often a meeting for a peal is unavoidably brought to naught by the absence of one detained at the last moment by pressure of business. The readers of your columns are only too often treated to the compressed groan of the disappointed seven. My honest opinion, therefore, is that in places where churches are so situated that the ringing for so long a time would not inconvenience those outside the tower (for they too should be considered), a clergyman should be fully justified in granting permission to a band of orderly and well-behaved ringers to ring a peal, leaving the question of motive to an Omniscient power. E. NORMAN HOWARD.

Eynsford, Kent.

SIR,—I am glad to find that there are many besides the company to which I have the honour to belong, and in whose name I wrote last week on the above subject, who condemn the practice. I would remind Mr. Simmonds, and all who are in favour of the practice, that the pleasure connected with it is not profitable at any price—that they are endeavouring to raise bell-ringing as an art at the expense of depreciating the sanctity of God's holy day, and thus are honouring their work more than God (see 1 Sam. ii. 30), and so cut themselves off from the blessing of Him who commanded us "to keep holy the Sabbath Day." I trust none will be induced by Mr. Simmonds' remark (that we ring the fewest peals of any association, &c.), to deaden their conscience and disobey God by yielding the point and following where he would lead. A MEMBER OF K.C.A.C.R.

STEDMAN'S SLOW COURSE AND PRESTBURY SURPRISE.

SIR,—About twenty peals of Stedman's Slow Course have been rung by the Stockton-on-Tees Society, one of which was included in the 5040 of Minor rung here September 15th, 1883. We never turned our attention to Double Stedman's Slow Course on account of the abominable character of its music. Whatever may be the merits of the methods published in "THE BELL NEWS" as Prestbury Surprise, the author should show more discrimination than to apply the term "Surprise" to a method which has none of the features peculiar to what are known as Surprise methods, and which is not in the slightest degree entitled to such distinction. G. J. CLARKSON.

A QUOTATION.

SIR,—I beg to submit a paragraph quoted from the Brighton Herald of the 16th inst. for insertion in the "BELL NEWS," concerning the peals obtained in the two respective places by the Brighton gentlemen, as follows:—"CAMPAENOLOGY.—Eight members of St. Peter's Amateur Change-Ringers rang Holt's 10-part peal of Grandsire Triples, consisting of 5040 changes, at Lower Beeding Church, on Monday. The ringers subsequently visited Bolney and rang Hollis's 5-part peal of Grandsire Triples (containing 5040 changes) in three hours; the ringers being Messrs. A. A. Fuller, 1; H. Weston (conductor), 2; G. King, 3; W. Palmer, 4; G. F. Attree, 5; J. Reilly, 6; J. Jay, sen., 7; and H. Cornwall, 8. The feat of ringing two peals in a day had not been accomplished in Sussex since 1818, when two peals were rung at St. Nicholas Church, Brighton."—Trusting, Sir, it may elicit a reply in the columns of your valuable journal regarding the authenticity of the statement. TINTINNABULA.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

BY A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

IV.—PRICKING THE METHOD.

Before entering on the subject of pricking by course-ends, it may be as well to explain how "Duffield Major" is pricked by sixes. Rounds being the first change of a six, transposition by the following scale will give the first changes of successive sixes.

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Plain Six	2	5	1	3	6	8	4	7
Bob "	2	5	1	3	6	4	7	8
Single "	2	5	1	3	6	4	8	7

As in Stedman, the bob mark must be placed against the six that results from transposing by the bob scale.

It has been remarked to me that it is always usual to prick by the last change of a six or lead. I think, however, that the plan adopted in Stedman of not pricking direct from "rounds" is unnecessarily inconvenient, and as in "Duffield" 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 comes the first change of a six, I prefer the simple course of working straight from it by successive six "beginnings." This plan has the additional advantage of making it easier to prick the remaining changes of a six, should they be required, than where the work has to be done backwards.

We are in the habit of calling the backstroke of the treble's full lead, in even bell methods, a lead end; this however, is a misnomer, for the row in question is in reality the first change of the following lead. Bobs are always made between the treble's hand and backstroke leads; that is, at the handstroke of its full lead the bells are in the coursing order due to the last bob, while at the backstroke they are shifted by the bob into a fresh order, which continues until the next bob. This backstroke is therefore, to speak correctly, a lead "beginning," and not a lead end, and we should be equally justified in calling the six "beginnings" of "Duffield" six-ends, as we are in denominating the backstroke treble leads of other even bell methods lead-ends.

It is clear, then, that "Duffield" is pricked by the usual row, namely; that at which the bob first takes effect.

The same reasoning applies to the term "course-ends," which in all even bell methods, is in fact the first change of the next course. As, however, the expression is in universal use I shall adopt it after this protest against its misapplication.

The vocal call of "bob" or "single" is to be made at the last backstroke, or fifth change, of the six; that is, at the second dodge of the bells in front and behind, thus giving as in Stedman, a whole pull's notice of the alteration. It is important the call should not be given earlier, or the bell making "first sixths" may be confused into thinking he is making the bob (bob sixths). A complete scale of course-ends is appended, and opposite each is given the number of courses the same calling will run.

SCALE OF COURSE-ENDS.

Bob at Home.				2 5 1 3 6 4	6
Middle (with a double).				4 3 6 5 1 2	3

There are four calls that can be made in a course without affecting the tenors, namely, In, Before, Out, and Fourths. The sixes at which these calls are made are noted by the side of the plain course published in the last number, under the head of "Calls on the tenor."

My object in adopting the usual even bell names for the calls, in preference to the Stedman plan of the number of the six, is that in the former case they will be the same on the various numbers of bells; whereas, in the latter, a bob, say at B, would in Major be at the fourth six, in Royal at the fifth, and in Maximus at the sixth, thus causing a call of the same nature to be differently styled according to the number of bells, a confusion of terms which it is as well to avoid.

The bob B answers to the H in other methods, affecting only the three front bells. Bobs at B and "Out" affect in addition the 5th's place bell, leaving the 4th's and 6th's place bells untouched. The 4th, it will be remembered, takes the place occupied by the 5th in other methods, and is shifted by a bob "In." The course-ends obtainable by these three calls are placed by themselves, as they do not affect the 6th, which may remain at home throughout a peal, bobs at "In," B, and "Out," being capable of producing considerably over 5000 changes.

The bob at "Fourths" moves the 6th away. Besides these four calls there are two others that may be made without parting the tenors, namely, "Home" and "Middle." In the former of these 7, 8 dodge together behind, and the effect is that of a "Before" in other methods, the relative order of the rest of the bells being unchanged, the tenors alone having their position shifted. Bobs at H are pricked from the course-end by the scale 251364; this gives a new course-end from which another H can be pricked, and so on as required, these course-ends being but one six apart, and the last of them forming the basis for continuing the composition. It is well to consider each of these H sixes as a separate course, for not only are they necessary for proof, but also, if they are not all set down, it is difficult to see how the bells have previously been working. The case is different to Treble Bob, in which it is usual to put down as a course-end only the last of the lead ends produced by one or two bobs at H; because, as these affect only the three front bells, there is no trouble in seeing the order before the calls, nor are such lead ends required for internal proof as is the case with the H sixes in "Duffield."

A curious and most useful property of bobs H remains to be noticed, namely, that each successive one turns the course of the changes, and thus acts as a single, owing to the fact that the first changes of the sixes are alternately in and out of course, and that, therefore, keeping 7, 8 an extra six behind causes these bells to go down at a six of opposite nature to that at which they otherwise would have started away. An odd number of bobs H thus leaves the bells out of course, while an even number keeps them in course. Mr. Dains has pointed out to me how this may be taken advantage of to obtain peals with the sixth at home throughout, without the use of singles, a bob at H answering the same purpose, after which a bob at "Fourths" brings the 6th in place again; this process being repeated half way through the peal, causes the course-ends in the first half to be out of course, and those in the last half in course.

Bobs at M remain to be noticed. As this call causes the tenor to make the bob, it is requisite that a bob should also be called at the following six, which the 7th will make, and thus the tenors will be kept together, the effect being to cut out two sixes from the course, and with them the course-end. An M is therefore always to be called "with a double," and produces a long course of 84 changes. To prick M (2) let the course run to its natural course-end, and from this prick by the scale 436512, thus obtaining an imaginary course-end from which to prick the remainder of the course following the calls. For example, suppose a course to be called from rounds B, M (2), B; prick first from 123456 by the B scale, which gives 312456; this is the natural course-end cut out by the M, and from this, transposing by the M (2) scale 436512 gives 426531, from which the changes succeeding the M (2) would naturally come; proceeding again by the B scale gives 642531, the course-end required. To keep the 6th at home it would be necessary to call a bob "Fourths" after the first B, as in this way that bell would make the bob at the six before the M, and remain in course in front of the tenor. Thus:

1 2 3 4 5 6
3 6 2 4 1 5	B. 4ths.
4 2 5 1 3 6	M (2).
5 4 2 1 3 6	B.

It will be seen that only the last of these three course-ends is a bona fide one, the other two being purely imaginary, but required for internal proof. Being imaginary, they cannot be set down as part of the completed composition, this long course would therefore appear thus:

1 2 3 4 5 6

in which 542136 is the actual course-end from which to proceed.

I will now shew the different ways in which the bells may be brought round. The natural coming home is at the first change of a six which, unless there be a bob at H, is invariably preceded three rows earlier by the "Queen's" change. This change is a sure indication of the approaching end, as it can by no possibility be brought up anywhere else, except the tenors get parted. If however the bells come round with one or more bobs at H, "Queen's" will not appear. Rounds may also come at the third change of a six from the out of course course-end 125364, that is, two changes later. In this case, unless there be a bob at H, "Tittums" will come up three rows earlier, and as the same is true of this change as of "Queens," it also is a certain prelude to the finish. Clearly therefore "Queen's" and "Tittums" cannot be had in one and the same composition.

By the strict method the bells can be brought round at no change of a six but the first and third, thus the possible numbers obtainable are limited to any that will divide by 6 without remainder, or with a remainder of 2. A remainder of 4 would necessitate coming round at the fifth change of a six, which is impossible, as the first change of the last six would be the same as the fifth of the first. If however such a number is required, the go off has only to be changed from the second to the last change of the six, and the bells will come round true two changes after the out of course course-end 125364. The required go off is annexed.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8
2 1 4 3 6 5 8 7

2 4 1 6 3 8 5 7
4 2 6 1 8 3 7 5
2 4 6 8 1 3 5 7
4 2 8 6 3 1 7 5
2 4 8 3 6 1 5 7
4 2 3 8 1 6 7 5

4 3 2 1 8 7 6 5

The method cannot properly be brought round at hand, as the change preceding rounds would be the same as that on going off; but in case of date touches or other exact lengths of uneven number, the odd change is easily managed by 7,8 lying still to bring up rounds. In this manner the bells can come home as follows:

From the out of course course-end 214365 at one change.
„ the in course „	216453 „ three changes.
„ out of course „	215634 „ five changes.

Such touches will run without variation from the method till the change 21436578 comes up (at backstroke). If the conductor at this change calls "single, this is all," rounds will be produced at the following handstroke by the tenors striking 7 8 a second time. "Duffield" is thus capable of producing without irregular changes, any required number; if exactly divisible by 6, or with a remainder of 2, by the strict method; if with a remainder of 4, by going off at the last change of a six; if with a remainder of 1, 3, or 5, by 7,8 lying still on coming round.

Some authorities are, I am aware, opposed to any alteration from the method at the end of a touch, preferring to introduce irregular changes at the beginning, no matter how awkward these may be. My opinions may be heterodox, but I none the less assert that any such changes disqualify the touch from a title to be spoken of as having been rung in this or that method. Holt's ten-part peal is not a peal of Grandsire Triples, and Hollis' peals with two irregular calls are not peals of Grandsire Triples, any more than is Shipway's with the five fifth place bobs, because none of them are got by proper Grandsire bobs and singles, although all are doubtless in other respects fine compositions, especially the latter, which indeed is the only complete peal of continuous triple changes yet composed in any method.

I further assert that such a peal as Mr. Lockwood's 9120 of Treble Bob Major is a peal in this method, because, although it is brought round from the change 1 2 3 4 5 7 6 8 by an irregular single, and thus the rounds at the finish are not got by the method, still the peal may be claimed to have started with rounds as the first change; and therefore 9120 changes have been rung by the method, although they have not been brought round by the method. The same argument will apply to peals of Stedman starting from the last change of a six, because here again rounds comes by the method at the end, although it is not connected with the peal by the usual beginning. In fine, I hold that for a touch or peal to have a legitimate claim to be considered as rung in a particular method, the sole variation from the method must be either between rounds and the first change, or between the last change and rounds, thus properly connecting the peal with rounds at one end or the other; and of course such variation must contain no "jump," or movement of any bell more than one place up or down.

It will be said that this makes date touches in many methods impossible except in certain years. This is true, but I do not see that it impairs the above reasoning. A method should be chosen which is capable of what is required. Do not let it, however, be supposed that I am an advocate for an irregular starting or finishing change. Unless there be a definite object to be attained, any variation whatever from the method is undesirable. All I contend is that, where this is confined to the first or last change, the length may be fairly termed "rung in the method," which cannot be accurately claimed if one or more irregular changes or calls are inserted within the composition. In "Duffield," I submit, therefore, is found a method in which date touches of any exact number may be truly rung, for all the requisite alterations are confined to the first or last change.

In the next paper the proof of the method will be considered.

ABERGAVERNNEY, MONMOUTHSHIRE.

The bells at the parish church of St. Mary's, which were a peal of six, tenor 20 cwt. in E, and which were in a very wretched condition, has been thoroughly rehung and augmented to eight by the addition of two new treble bells, as a jubilee memorial to Her Majesty. Wednesday, April 13th, being the day fixed for the opening ceremony, a band of the St. James' Society, Bristol, who were engaged for the occasion, started by the train leaving Bristol at 7.55. Upon arriving at Newport they were met by the Rev. Pitt-Eykyn, Vicar of Magor, and Hon. Sec. of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, who accompanied them to their destination. Here they were greeted by one of the belfry restoration committee, and conducted to the Imperial Hotel, where an excellent luncheon was provided. They afterwards proceeded to the tower, raised the bells, and rang a 784 of Bob Major. G. Pymm, 1; W. Paddock, 2; A. Howell, 3; G. Pearce, 4; J. York, 5; W. Porch, 6; H. Tucker, 7; J. Hinton (conductor), 8. Also a 252 of Stedman Triples. W. Paddock, 1; H. Tucker, 2; G. Pymm, 3; G. Pearce, 4; A. York, 5; J. York, 6; J. Hinton (conductor), 7; H. Porch, 8. Dinner having been partaken of under the presidency of Iltryd Gardner, Esq., a 1008 of Stedman Triples was rung. G. Pymm, 1; H. Tucker, 2; A. Howell, 3; J. York, 4; G. Pearce, 5; W. Porch, 6; H. Porch (conductor), 7; J. Hinton, 8. And a 630 of Grandsire Triples. The bells were then lowered, and great surprise was expressed by the local ringers at the ease with which the bells were rung by the Bristol ringers, as the 7th and tenor bells required two men to each to ring them, before they were rehung.

On the return journey the ringers called at Magor, where there is a little ring of six, and rang a 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor. H. Tucker, 1; A. Howell, 2; A. York, 3; W. Porch, 4; J. Hinton, 5; H. Porch (conductor), 6. The remainder of the party then rang a six-score of Stedman Doubles, and two courses of Bob Minor. The company arrived home a little after 9 p.m.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—ROSSENDALE BRANCH.

A ringing meeting of the above branch took place at St. Paul's, Ramsbottom, on Saturday last, when ringers from the following places were present: Bacup, Waterfoot, Newchurch, Ramsbottom, Heywood, Church, and Whitefield. Several 720's of Plain Bob, and 360's of College Single, and Oxford Treble Bob. Touches of Grandsire Triples and Bob Major was rung on the tower and handbells by various mixed teams. At a meeting in the class room, it was decided to hold the next ringing meeting at St. James's, Waterfoot, on the second Saturday in May. Votes of thanks was passed to the Vicar and Wardens for the use of the bells and schoolroom. In reply to the vote, the Vicar said it gave him great pleasure to meet the members of the Rossendale branch at his Church, and referred at great length to the position of ringers at the present day to the ringers of bygone days, and hoped that the Association would continue in the great and good work it had undertaken, that the ringers could be looked upon with respect and esteem both by the clergy and parishioners, and urged the members present to stick together and persuade their clergy to become honorary members, so that the clergy and ringers would be brought more together, and that the ringers would feel it to be their duty to attend service in the church after they had called others. Votes of thanks to the Vicar for his able address, and to Mr. Nutter for presiding, brought a very pleasant meeting to a close, after which the ringers again adjourned to the tower, and ringing continued till 9.45., when the ringers departed by the various trains to their homes.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Rev. Lambert Woodard, the new vicar of St. Paul's, having expressed a desire to become acquainted with the local company practising change-ringing at St. Paul's, they attended the service on Wednesday evening in Easter week, and by his kind invitation had supper at the vicar's age, the vicar in the chair, his good lady being vice. The Rev. Mr. Brierley the curate, was also present. Handbells were used for changes and tunes entertaining music and singing being introduced. The Vicar recited a pleasing poem, by the Rev. E. W. Bowling, of Houghton Conquest Beds., whose bells have been recently restored. He also expressed his appreciation of what he had already seen of the ringers, and felt an inclination to take a rope in hand himself. He was in favour of Sunday ringing for services, especially on the days of the Church's great festivals. The gathering was in every respect a pleasant and sociable one, and good impressions have already been created by the kindly and Christian touch of recognition initiated by the Vicar. The Bedford Company are all members of the Beds. Association.

WOBURN.—Saturday, 16th April, being the tenth anniversary of the opening of the complete ring of eight bells, and the Marquess of Tavistock's birthday, several thousands of Bob Major were rung in the afternoon by the local company, assisted by Mr. I. Hills, of Bedford, who took the place of a member who had cut his fingers.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

THE QUARTERLY MEETING in connection with this society was held on Saturday, April 23rd, at Penkridge, when the following places were represented by members and friends: West Bromwich, Perry Barr, Wombourne, Tettenhall, Willenhall, and Stafford. Ringing commenced about 3 p.m., with a 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor, after which a touch of Grandsire Triples was rung. At the Committee Meeting held in the vestry, two hon. members and two ringing members were elected, and it was decided to hold the annual meeting at Lichfield on Saturday, June 18th. At 6 p.m. the whole of the party adjourned to the vicarage where tea was in readiness, and after doing justice to the good things provided, a vote of thanks was given to the vicar of Penkridge, and the proceedings were brought to a close with a short service in the church.

ORMSKIRK, LANCASHIRE.

On Thursday, April 14th, being the birthday of Messrs John Aspinwall, Henry Winrow, and William Bentham, a start was made at the parish church to ring Mr. Aspinwall's peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing 1260 changes, in 43 mins., the conductor brought the bells round. W. Bentham, 1; J. Sholicar, 2; W. B. Lloyd, 3; He Winrow, 4; W. J. Taylor, 5; J. Aspinwall (conductor), 6; G. Prescott, 7; P. H. Harvey, 8. The bells being lowered the ringers proceeded to the "White Lion" Inn, where the health of those whose birthday it was was duly toasted, their brother-strings wishing them many happy returns, with a hope that their next birthday peal may be successfully accomplished. The handbells being brought into use the rest of the evening was spent in change and tune-ringing, the company separating shortly after 10 p.m.

THE BELLS OF LIMERICK CATHEDRAL.

The following tradition connected with the fine peal of bells in Limerick Cathedral, is taken from "Curiosities of the Belfry," by J. Potter Briscoe, F.R.H.S., and Librarian, Nottm., F.P.L.

"They were originally brought from Italy, having been cast by a young native, who devoted himself enthusiastically to the work, and who after the toil of many years succeeded in finishing a splendid peal, which answered all the critical requirements of his own musical ear. Upon these bells the artist greatly prided himself, and they were at length bought by the prior of a neighbouring convent, at a very liberal price. With the proceeds of that sale the young Italian purchased a little villa, where in the stillness of the evening he could enjoy the sound of his own melodious bells from the convent cliff. Here he grew old in the bosom of his family, and of domestic happiness. At length, in one of those feuds, common to the period, the Italian became a sufferer amongst many others. He lost his all; and after the passing of the storm, he found himself preserved alone amid the wreck of fortune, friends, family and home. The bells, too, his favourite bells were carried off from the convent, and finally removed to Ireland. For a time their artificer became a wanderer over Europe; and at last, in the hope of soothing his troubled spirits, he formed the resolution of seeking the land to which those treasures of his memory had been conveyed. He sailed for Ireland, and proceeding up the Shannon, on a beautiful evening, which reminded him of his native Italy, his own bells from the towers of Limerick Cathedral suddenly struck upon his ear. Home and all its loving ties, happiness, early recollections; all, all were in the sound, and went to his heart. His face was turned towards the cathedral in the attitude of intently listening; but when the vessel landed he was found to be a corpse.

THE SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS.

On Friday, April 22nd, ten members of the above Society rang a funeral peal with the bells muffled, to the memory of the late Mr. Henry Wyber, of the "White Swan," Farringdon-road, London, who died on Monday, the 18th inst., after a long and painful illness, aged 52 years. The funeral took place on the above date amidst every mark of respect, nearly all the shops in the neighbourhood being partially closed. The body was taken into St. Sepulchre's, where the first part of the Burial Service was impressively read by the Vicar, the Rev. J. Jackson, M.D. The cortege then proceeded to the City of London Cemetery at Ilford, Essex, where the deceased vestryman was interred. The ringers stood as follows:—J. Nelms (conductor), 1; J. Barry, 2; A. Moggeridge, 3; W. H. Moore, 4; H. J. Davies, 5; D. Lovett, 6; H. Alford, jun., 7; G. Wilds, 8; J. Rumsey, 9; A. E. Church, 10.

On Sunday, 24th inst., on the occasion of the annual sermon before the Lord Mayor on behalf of the schools of the parish, the local members assisted by Messrs. French and Newman, and J. W. Taylor, jun., Esq., of Loughborough, Leicestershire, rang for Divine Service in the morning, 395 of Grandsire Caters, and also after service, 395 of the same method, conducted by Messrs. Newman and Nelms respectively.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

On Monday, May 2nd, 1887, a District Meeting will be held at Woodbridge, on the occasion of opening the bells after rehanging. Dinner at the Crown Hotel at 1 o'clock. Service in the church at 3 o'clock, with sermon by Ven. Archdeacon Perowne, Rector of Redenhall. Members intending to dine are requested to inform the Secretary on or before Wednesday, April 27th, with name of station.

4, Bracondale Terrace, Norwich.

N. BOLINGBROKE, Hon. Sec.

NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the above Association will be held at Lincoln, on Saturday, the 30th instant, when and where the Committee hope to see all members and others interested in the welfare of the Association. Arrangements are being made to provide tea, and several towers will be open for ringing on that day. Societies and members of kindred Associations intending to be present will please communicate, not later than Wednesday morning's post, with Mr. J. W. Watson, Knight Street, Lincoln, or the hon. secretary,

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

A DOUBTFUL QUOTATION.

SIR,—In your last week's issue I observed a letter from a correspondent, in which he doubts the authenticity of two peals which were rung by the Brighton branch of the Sussex County Association, on Easter Monday last. Your correspondent appears to me to be one who delights to make a mountain out of a mole-hill, as the only incorrect statement the paragraph contains is that it was rung by members of the St. Peter's Amateur Society. Now in point of fact these peals were rung not by a band composed entirely of the St. Peter's Society, as the band included two members of the St. Nicholas' Society, one member of the Paul's Society, and one ringer unconnected. The announcement of the peals in "THE BELL NEWS" was to the effect that they were rung by the Brighton branch of the Sussex Association no mention whatever of St. Peter's Society being made. Surely if the announcement in the paper devoted to the interests of campanology is correct, it is mere folly and waste of your space to criticise an article in a local paper which has not been read, perhaps by a dozen campanologists. It is, I own, an error into which no Society should fall, that if the ringing of a peal is taken in hand by a Society, and finding themselves short-handed apply to their brother-strings for assistance, in the event of the peal reaching a successful termination to apply to themselves all the credit for the performance. But such is not the case with the peals under discussion, as undoubtedly the announcement in "THE BELL NEWS" would be from Mr. Attree, being the Hon. Sec. of the Association, whereas I have got good reason to believe that the paragraph did not emanate from Mr. Attree, therefore it cannot be considered an official announcement. The correspondent to the Brighton Herald had fallen into the same mistake before on the occasion of a peal being rung at St. Peter's church about six weeks ago, which peal was rung by a mixed band, consisting of five members of the St. Peter's Society, two from St. Paul's, and one from St. Nicholas' Societies. This peal was also recorded in the Brighton Herald as being rung by eight members of St. Peter's amateur Society. It is a wonder your lynx-eyed correspondent has not discovered and made comment upon that likewise. The whole affair seems to be thoroughly illustrated by the words "much ado about nothing." A MEMBER OF THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

SIR,—In the columns of "THE BELL NEWS" of last week, I perceived a letter from a correspondent who signs himself "Tintinabula," the letter being a quotation copied from the Brighton Herald, concerning two peals that were rung on Easter Monday by nine members of the Sussex County Association at Lower Beeding and Bolney respectively. But I fail to see what "Tintinabula" hopes to elicit regarding the authenticity of the statement, as the two peals were duly recorded in the peal column of "THE BELL NEWS" of April 16th. Brighton. S. RINGERS AT ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRALS.

SIR,—Being one of those who took part in the 5040 of Grandsire Triples at the Roman Catholic Cathedral, Birmingham, last August, allow me to say that I never saw such a ridiculous letter in my life as that of "Ex-Churchwarden." He is evident grossly ignorant of the ways of change-ringers, if he thinks that they consider what denomination a church belongs to before starting for a peal on the bells thereof. If he knew anything of the way in which ringing is managed in large towns, he would be aware that the same society of men who ring at the other churches, ring also at the Roman Catholic church (if there happen to be one with bells), in most cases. Very seldom do we find any of the ringers members of the Roman Catholic church themselves, although I believe that at Birmingham one or two of them happen to belong to that body of Christians. I cannot see any possible connection between the case of a Bishop's son preaching in a Dissenting chapel and a Churchman ringing at a Roman Catholic church. In the former case we should naturally suppose that the preacher believed in the doctrines held by whatever body the chapel he preached in belonged to, but in the latter there is nothing of this sort involved. Surely "Ex-Churchwarden" must be a man of very ultra-Protestant and very narrow-minded ideas, to send you such an absurd query. ALSO AN EX-CHURCHWARDEN.

SIR,—I was sorry to see such a want of Christian charity as was displayed in an "Ex-Churchwarden's" letter in your valuable impression of last week. Your correspondent is evidently one of those curious kind of persons who, not having the courage of their con-vidions, shelter themselves under such a mean subterfuge as to wit, "What have your readers to say to that" (ringing at a Roman Cathedral at Birmingham). I am a ringer at one of the oldest churches in England, but I am glad to say I have never heard the slightest objection on the part of ringers to God's praises rung either at one church or another. I can assure an "Ex-Churchwarden" that I have rung at Roman Catholic churches, and have been treated with the greatest kindness, much more so in fact than at many of my own churches where I and my brother ringers have been treated with the barest courtesy. I also knew of Methodists being paid ringers at Protestant churches, but I suppose an "Ex-Churchwarden's" breadth of mine (?) would grant a privilege to a Methodist which he would refuse to a Roman Catholic. For shame, "Ex-Churchwarden;" to display your depth of bigotry in such a paltry manner as you have done in your letter of last week. An "Ex-Churchwarden" is also good enough to inform us of the fearful and degrading (?) fact, a Bishop's son preaching in a dissenting chapel—awful! Not even the fact that the said Bishop's son might have the means of converting the congregation from the errors of their ways, appears to strike your correspondent. Hoping you will kindly insert this letter as a protest against such a foolish and absurd letter as that of an "Ex-Churchwarden." ECCLESIA.

ANSWER TO THE REV. G. F. COLERIDGE.

SIR,—The reason why I asked Mr. Coleridge the question I did, was because he stated in his previous letter that it was a thing to be desired that people should communicate in the early morning rather than later in the day. Now Sir, I should think if this be so, that it must be for the public good, or why so much to be desired, and in that case there may be many of your readers, like myself, who have yet to learn why so much desired. For my own part, I know of no better way of ending the Sabbath Day than to meet God's children round His table to commemorate His dying love for us, after the evening service. But, in case Mr. Coleridge would prefer writing to me, I append my name and address. HENRY BAREFIELD.

MR. SYKES' JUBILEE TOUCH.

SIR,—In your issue of April 9th, you published a "Jubilee touch of Treble Bob Major" of 2601 changes, said to contain as many changes as the Queen has reigned weeks. By what process of arithmetic Mr. Sykes arrives at that number I confess I do not understand; according to my reckoning it should be 2609, as I will endeavour to demonstrate. If we take as a commencement, 50 years of 52 weeks each, we get 2600; then, as each year of 365 days comprises 50 weeks and 1 day, we must of course add 50 days, or 7 weeks and 1 day; and as there have been 12 leap-years, that makes 12 days more, or a total of 2608 weeks 6 days. So that, if the Jubilee be celebrated on the 21st, will make exactly 2609 weeks. To "bring up" this number will, of course, require a considerable alteration in Mr. Sykes' first lead (which, by the way, is not original as it appears in Mr. Sottanstell's book, page 389, where it is stated to have been rung at All Soul's, Halifax, on January 28th, 1865), and I take the liberty of submitting the following for the consideration of Mr. Sykes and the Exercise generally:—

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Back stroke	1	2	4	3	5	6	7	8
	2	1	4	3	6	5	8	7
	2	4	1	6	3	8	5	7
	2	4	6	1	8	3	7	5
	2	6	4	8	1	7	3	5
	2	6	8	4	7	1	5	3
	2	8	6	7	4	5	1	3
	2	8	7	6	5	4	3	1
	2	7	8	5	6	3	4	1
	2	7	5	8	3	6	1	4
	2	5	7	3	8	1	6	4
	2	5	3	7	1	8	4	6
	2	3	5	1	7	4	8	6
	2	3	1	5	4	7	6	8
	2	1	3	4	5	6	7	8
	1	2	4	3	6	5	8	7
	1	4	2	6	3	8	5	7

The principal characteristics of this lead are that no "foreign" changes are introduced, and every change appears in the first full lead, thus rendering false changes impossible if the remainder of the touch be true; also that each bell on coming down makes 2nd's place over the hunt bell, and has a straight course each way, falling into its proper positions at the back stroke lead of the treble, so that there will be no difficulty in ringing it. Trusting that Mr. Sykes will accept my correction in the same friendly spirit in which it is made.

JAMES SCOTT.

STEDMAN MAJOR.

SIR,—Having been a reader of "THE BELL NEWS" for some considerable time and acquainted with all the various names and titles to the different methods in practice, and also having Hubbard's and Snowdon's books on "Change Ringing," I see that Plain Bob, Grand-sire, and several methods can be rung either as an odd or even bell methods. Hubbard, speaking of the Stedman Principle, says it is unquestionably the masterpiece of all odd bell methods, and frequently seeing records of peals of Stedman Triples, Caters, and Cinques, the thought occurred to me why that beautiful ringing produced by the continuous dodging of the bells behind could not also be used with the same effect in Stedman Major, Royal, or Maximus. I have composed a plain course of Major which differs from the Stedman Principle now before the Exercise, viz., instead of being rung in a composition of sixes with three bells in the slow work and dodging in 4-5, 6-7, I have substituted four bells in the slow work rung in a composition of eights with dodging places in 5-6 and 7-8, the extra bell in the slow work being the course of Major to 128 changes composed of sixteen eights, beginning with an even eight and going even and snapping to the end of the course. I have shown the course to several of my friends and as they had not seen one of the same I put the course before the Exercise to kindly ask if it could be rung as a true method, or whether the same has ever been published before. If not a true composition, perhaps some ringer would kindly state the reason why Stedman Principle with a little alteration of the slow work could or could not be rung as an even bell method, knowing I shall receive what your friend, a constant reader, has asked for a reply, whether it be true or false.

WILLIAM HALE.

SUNDAY PEAL RINGING.

SIR,—As a former member of the K.C.A.C.R., I should like to say a few words upon this subject. I quite agree with Mr. Simmonds that it is to be deplored that more peals are not rung by the Association considering the number of ringers and fine peals of bells there are in the county. A peal can only be rung by practice, and I consider that trying to ring a peal is the best practice a man can have, and I know from experience that in the country, as Mr. Howard remarks in his very able letter, that it frequently happens that one of the band finds himself unable to meet the others through pressure of business, where if the peal was rung on Sunday, this difficulty would be obviated and much disappointment would be avoided, and why it is irrelevant to ring a peal on Sundays I confess I cannot imagine, on the contrary, I think that change-ringing elevates a man, and if by ringing, men can be made better members of society, then one great object of our Church is attained. I give an instance. For five consecutive Sundays I have had to witness over a score of youths playing football on a piece of ground in front of my house, although within 200 yards of a church with a fine tower with one bell in it. Do not those members of the K.C.A.C.R. (who, however, seem ashamed of their name) think that those young men would be far better employed in ringing a peal than playing football to the annoyance of all right thinking people? In conclusion, sir, as this is a question of great practical importance to a large body of men, I would like to see some of the clergy, who are change-ringers, express their opinion, and then, perhaps, we may arrive at a proper solution of the question. JABEZ HORTON.

SIR,—As a member of the K.C.A.C.R., will you kindly allow me to protest against the Puritanical and Pharaesical nonsense about Sunday Ringing, which the mighty mouthpiece (of perhaps a bumpkin band) has the boldness to write, but seems ashamed to name. If he has a complaint to make and is so religious, why don't he be honest and bring the matter before a public meeting of the Association when it is held, or else sign his name to his correspondence. I also see in last week's issue a touch of 2520 of Grandsire Triples at Tonbridge, Kent, and supposed to be the first on the bells. I am very much mistaken if the Leeds band haven't rang a peal or two of Oxford Treble Bob on them nearly 100 years ago. TOMMY DODD.

In Memoriam.

JAMES HARRISON.

It is with regret that we have to announce the death of the above gentleman at his residence, Lower Sandgate Road, Folkestone, on Easter Monday, April 11th, after a brief illness, in his 80th year. Mr. James Harrison was a ringer of Folkestone for nearly sixty years, and had rang at nearly all the towers in Kent. His name is recorded in several peals in the Hythe and Folkestone towers. He conducted a peal of 5040 Bob Triples at Folkestone, on November 21st, 1836, and on May 6th, 1846, he assisted in a peal of 13,444 Bob Major at Hythe. He took part in the first peal on the new bells at St. Mary's, Folkestone, 5040 of Grandsire Triples, at the age of 74. He was always a great advocate for ringing, and was the principal when the bells were worn out to get them cast and rehung at the cost of £1000, and for the active part he always took in ringing. His name was cast on the seventh bell as captain of the ringers. He rang his last touch on Sunday, April 3rd, a 504 of Grandsire Triples, in the Kent County Association. He will be very much missed, as he has headed the list of subscriptions from honorary members every year since it started in 1880, and during the seven years has collected £43 3s. for the Association. His funeral took place on Thursday, April 14th, at Folkestone Cemetery. The vicar, the Rev. Matthew Woodward, M.A., performed the service, which was attended by a great many of the principal tradesmen and the friends and relatives of the deceased. The coffin was borne to the grave by the ringers, and brother ringers from Mersham and Cheriton attended and assisted at the funeral. His wish was to hear the bells to the last, and he said Good Friday was the first time he had been absent from the belfry through illness. He had the window opened to hear the bells, although they were muffled. He said that he enjoyed it very much; he had cancer in the throat, and said a few days would finish his time on earth, but he wished to live so that he might hear the bells on Easter Monday, and he breathed his last a few minutes after the ringing was over. After the funeral, the company rang a 504 of Grandsire Triples with the bells muffled, 672 half-muffled, the same as he took part in at the opening of the bells on April 1st, 1879. A subscription has been opened for the erection of a tombstone over his grave, and a tablet to his memory in the belfry, which is being heartily supported, and will soon be carried into effect.

FREDERICK POWELL.

ON Friday, April 15th, the above-named gentleman departed this life at his residence, 14, Elizabeth Street, Liverpool, at the age of fifty-eight. Deceased had been connected with the ringing societies of this town for forty years, the first peal he took part in being a peal of Stedman Triples, rang at St. Luke's Church, on Monday, December 31st, 1855, by eight Liverpool members of the Ancient Society of College Youths. On Sunday evening, April 17th, before service at the Cathedral church of St. Peter, a muffled peal of Stedman Caters was rung, and after service, a muffled peal of Grandsire Caters. Richard Williams, Robert Williams, Charles Williams, Thomas Hammond, John Brown, John Moore, Edwin Booth, William Booth, William Brooks, John R. Pritchard, William Woodhead, Henry Coley. Deceased was laid at rest on Tuesday, April 19th, in St. James's Cemetery. Deceased was highly esteemed, as he took deep interest in Church matters, references being made of his loss at several vestry meetings.

REPRINT OF ANOTHER WORK ON CHANGE-RINGING.

The publisher of "THE BELL NEWS" has the pleasure to announce the issue, in penny weekly numbers, of a rare old work upon ringing, entitled "Campanalogia Improved; or the Art of Ringing made easy," &c. This work is printed uniform with "Shipway" and the "Clavis," which have been so eagerly taken up.

The Publisher believes that the re-issues of these various old ringing works, which at the present day are from their scarcity, so difficult of perusal, will be approved of by ringers. Their publication enables all who have an inclination for the useful, as well as the curious, to possess in time a valuable and complete ringing library. The copy, which has been kindly lent to the editor of this journal by Mr. S. B. Goslin, of the Crescent Foundry, Cripplegate, belongs to a fifth edition, "Corrected by J. Monk." For the purposes of easy publication it is called after his name, and those intending to take in the penny weekly numbers, should ask for "Monk on Ringing."

All who are desirous of securing copies should do so without delay, as a second reprint is out of the question.

"THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD" will be forwarded, post free, on the following terms:—

One copy, 12 months	6s. 6d.
" " 6 "	3s. 3d.
" " 3 "	1s. 8d.

All Subscriptions and Orders for papers must be sent direct to the Publisher E. W. ALLEN, Ave Maria Lane, London.

Everything for insertion in this Journal to be addressed "The Editor of THE BELL NEWS, Walthamstow, London." Letters forwarded for publication, and performances under 5000 changes must reach us not later than Wednesday morning; and the insertion of any communication arriving later than the first Postal delivery on Thursday morning cannot be guaranteed in that week's number. When it is found impossible from want of space to insert all touches forwarded, the earlier ones will have the preference.

All communications respecting advertisements must be addressed to the office of "THE BELL NEWS," Walthamstow, London.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1887.

THE various attempts—the results of which have been recently published—to manufacture something new in change-ringing, by exploring the regions of methods unknown, have but in very few instances been attended with success, at any rate with such favourable results as those embarking in these essays probably expected. We know it is a very serious thing to make light of such matters, as a recent case proves, but we cannot help it if we incur displeasure or animadversion when we speak of such "discoveries" as practically worthless, and calculated to provoke ridicule in the minds of discerning people at the expense of these would-be authors. Let us not be misunderstood. We are not making the least allusion in this article to the exertions of those two or three gentlemen who seem to have a peculiar gift for such studies, and who have amazed and interested the Exercise by their ingenuity and research. We merely question the value, as well as the necessity, of other endeavours, strained for the purpose of enjoying a brief popularity, attempts in fact, which will not bear the least scientific investigation.

In our correspondence columns this week will be found one of these essays at a "new method," which the writer has the temerity to call "Stedman Major." No doubt he acts in perfect good faith, and imagines that his production is something new. But we protest against the system, now too much practised, of taking up a method, and after manipulating it to one's heart's content, calling it by the original name. If the splendid method discovered by STEDMAN is in any way tampered with, it is his principle no longer. And the same may be said of other methods. If, for instance, Grandsire Triples is mutilated, as it sometimes is, for the purpose of producing an exact number of changes, the mutilation destroys the method, and it becomes a bogus, or mongrel system. This should always be borne in mind by the innovator. In the case before us the method is that of SHIPWAY, named after him by himself, and published in his book on ringing. The slow work and the dodging are exactly the same, the difference being one or two matters of trifling detail. "Shipway's Principle" has been alluded to by Mr. Heywood in the valuable and interesting papers he is now engaged upon; and for the present we would advise all aspirants for fame in the direction we are dealing with to make themselves acquainted with the current ringing literature before they rush into print with their own ideas. This will at least save some disappointment.

Perhaps it may be thought that we might at times place some restraint upon the correspondence and other matters which are sent for publication. A reasonable supposition, without doubt; but our readers will pardon us for saying that there are a variety of circumstances known only to ourselves which impels us to gratify the desires of everyone. This explanation will satisfy those of our friends who occasionally demur to our space being taken up by matters in which they may feel little or no interest.

Bailey, 8. *Longest touch of Grandsire Triples.

RINGSTEAD (Northamptonshire).—On Saturday, April 23rd, some members of the Raunds, Wellingborough and District Association met at St. Mary's Church and rang 720 of Plain Bob Minor (eighteen bobs and two singles). *W. Lewis, 1; G. Burton, 2; H. Stubbs (conductor), 3; W. A. Hall, 4; E. Maize, 5; F. Slade, 6. Also another 720 of Plain Bob. W. Lewis, 1; G. Burton, 2; R. Shipley, 3; W. A. Hall (conductor), 4; *J. Bailey, 5; F. Slade, 6. *First 720. Also 360 of London Single (nine bobs). T. Roberts, 1; J. Braybrook, 2; E. Maize, 3; F. Chapman, 4; W. A. Hall (conductor), 5; J. Stubbs, 6. W. Lewis, J. Bailey, and G. Burton hail from Rushden; W. A. Hall, F. Slade, J. and H. Stubbs, from (Raunds), the rest belong to Ringstead. The visitors wish to thank the Vicar, the Rev. W. O. Lead-bitter, for the use of the bells, and the ringers for meeting them.

ROCHDALE (Lancashire).—On Friday evening, April 15th, for practice, a 720 Plain Bob Minor, (sixteen bobs and two singles) by the resident band. W. Lord, 1; J. W. Howarth, 2; J. T. Bartle, 3; J. Lord, 4; A. A. Stott, 5; J. Stott (conductor), 6. The same was repeated for afternoon service on the following Sunday, making their third performance of a full 720, having rung their first 720 on Friday, February 4th last. This is the first resident band that have succeeded in accomplishing a 720, although the bells were hung in 1870. The above band wish to take this opportunity of thanking the Bacup company for their welcome services on Easter Sunday, and other occasions, and also to correct an mistake as regards the weight of the tenor, which is 15½ cwt. in Eb, not 18 cwt. as it has been thought to be up till recently.

Chapman, from Bythorn; the rest hail from Titchmarsh.

TURVEY, (Beds).—On Easter Monday, April 11th, five ringers from Emberton, who had joined the Bedfordshire Association that day, on their way home (calling at Turvey), with the kind permission of the Rev. — Mumby, rector, rang at the parish church 720 Bob Doubles, with the four different observations; and 120 Grandsire Doubles. W. Wright, 1; H. Booth, 2; W. Mynard, 3; C. Line, 4; W. Freeman, 5; T. Sargent (Turvey), 6.

TUE BROOK (Near Liverpool).—On Easter Monday, April 11th, at St. John the Baptist Church, 1664 of Kent Treble Bob Major. R. Williams, 1; W. Walmsley (conductor), 2; W. Ingham, 3; C. Williams, 4; W. Booth, 5; J. R. Pritchard, 6; W. Davies, 7; R. Williams, 8. Tenor 20 cwt. Messrs. Walmsley and Ingham hail from Macclesfield.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Friday, April 22nd, eight members of the above Guild attempted to ring three peals of 5040 changes in one day, and at three different places, the places chosen being Hagbourne, Dorchester, and Drayton, about ten miles apart, the first peal being started for at Hagbourne at 6 a.m., and was successfully brought home. The company then made their way to Dorchester, where they lost their peal of Stedman after ringing 2 hrs. 15 mins. After refreshing the inner man, a move was made to Drayton, and the peal there seemed an absolute certainty, when suddenly just before the end single was called, with not a minutes ringing wanted, the treble rope broke. This was a bad job, as it was splendid ringing, and would have been the quickest peal on the bells, as it would not have occupied much more than 2 hrs. 30 mins. J. W. W.

LINDFIELD, SUSSEX.—VESTRY MEETING.

The Vicar, the Rev. E. F. d'Auvergne, presided at a meeting held at the National Schoolroom on Friday evening, April 22nd, to sanction the removal of the old tenor bell to the Lindfield Cemetery. After much discussion of a somewhat factious character, it was resolved that the bell should be retained at the church in the custody of the vicar and churchwardens.

The CHAIRMAN said he was opposed to it being hung in the tower, and guaranteed that he would do his best to carry out Mr. J. T. Comber's suggestion that it should be placed somewhere in the Church where it could be seen. At present the bell remains on the floor of the Church tower.

WELLINGBOROUGH, NORTHANTS.

THE NEW CHIMES FOR THE PARISH CHURCH.

The arrangements for the working of the new carrillon machine in the belfry of St. Luke's church are now complete. On Thursday evening, April 7th, a preliminary trial was made in the presence of the Vicar (Archdeacon Lightfoot), the churchwardens, Mr. Wm. Woolston (the donor), and others, and was regarded as very satisfactory. The following is the number of tunes which will be played (fourteen in all), with the names attached:—barrel I: 1, "O rest in the Lord;" 2, "The Minstrel Boy;" 3, "The Harmonious Blacksmith;" 4, "The Last Rose of Summer;" 5, "The Harp that once through Tara's Hall;" 6, "Hanover;" 7, "Home, sweet Home." Barrel II: 1, "Ein Feste Burg," A.M. 378; 2, "See the conquering hero comes;" 3, "The Soldier's Tear;" 4, "The Blue Bells of Scotland;" 5, "The Vicar of Bray;" 6, "Aurelia;" A.M. 358; 7, "There is nae luck about the house." It is understood they will not be used before June 20th. Mr. Weston has been appointed to attend to the winding of the chimes and the clock. According to custom, the parish church bells were rung early on the morning of Easter Day, commencing at 6.15. It is worthy of notice that not a single mishap of any kind occurred during the ringing. Notwithstanding the multitude of wires, levers, cranks, and hammers, that have been fixed in connection with the new chimes, everything worked smoothly and well, none of the fittings being in any way disturbed.—Local Paper.

MIDDLETON PARISH CHURCH, LANCASHIRE.

The re-opening of the peal of six bells at this church is fixed for the first Saturday in May, to celebrate the birthday of one of the oldest ringers, John Heywood, who has rung at the above church ever since 1836. The bells have been rehung by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of the Whitechapel Foundry, London. They are splendidly hung, the work being superintended by Mr. George Vincent, of the above-named firm. All ringers will be heartily welcomed.

ROCHDALE AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of this Association will be held on Saturday, May 7th, at Manchester Cathedral. Meeting place, Crown Hotel Blackfriars Street, Salford. Business to commence at 4, after which the bells will be at the disposal of the members.

A UNIQUE PEAL.—ITNOTGAOTU.

Ringers owning their allegiance to the above, and who are willing to go for a peal, are requested to send their numbers, names and addresses to H.A., 61, Palace Chambers, Westminster, stating what methods and what bell they are prepared to ring, and whether able to call a peal. Out of the number of ringers in the country at the present time, there ought to be no difficulty in arranging for a peal, which would certainly be a unique one. HIRAM ABIFF.

THE BATTLE OF THE NILE.—Within a quarter of an hour after the action commenced, the two first ships of the French line had been dismantled, and all the rest had been so terribly mauled that a victory seemed certain; and by half-past eight the third, fourth and fifth were in our possession. It was about this time that Nelson received a severe wound from a piece of langridge shot, which struck him on the forehead. Cut from the bone, a flap of skin had fallen over one eye, and as the other was blind, he was in total darkness. As he was falling backward, Captain Berry caught him in his arms; and so great was the effusion of blood that all thought the wound was mortal. When carried below, where the horrors of the cockpit far exceeded those of the upper deck, the surgeon came to him at once, relinquishing a seaman who was under his hands. "No," said Nelson; "I shall take my turn with my brave fellows." Nor would he suffer his wound to be attended to until his time again. From its severity he was certain that he was about to die, and desired the chaplain to bear his last remembrance to Lady Nelson; but a burst of joy resounded through the cockpit when the surgeon pronounced the wound to be merely superficial.—From "British Battles on Land and Sea," for May.

LONDON.—At the time the new thoroughfare from Charing Cross to Oxford was opened by His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, it was omitted in our paper to report that three courses of Cambridge Surprise was rang, at the church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, on the back eight, by a band of the Royal Cumberland Society. This was after an unsuccessful attempt for a peal of Stedman Cinques on Saturday, February 26th, to commemorate the opening of Charing Cross Road.

VISIT OF RINGERS TO TYLDESLEY, LANCASHIRE.

On Saturday, April 16th, the Leyland parish church ringers, and the St. James's company paid a visit to this place, at the invitation of the Tyldesley ringers. On arriving they made their way towards the church, and rang a 720 of Plain Bob Minor. O. Worden (conductor), 1; Thos. Bowling, 2; W. Nelson, 3; S. Watkinson, 4; Thos. Baron, 5; Jas. Banister, 6. Afterwards they were entertained to dinner, and after partaking of most of the good things provided, they returned to the belfry and rang a 720 of College Single, with the same band excepting Jas. Bretherton, 4. Afterwards a convivial meeting was held, when selections and touches were rung on the handbells in good style by the Tyldesley ringers. Songs were given by other members of the company, which was kept up till ten o'clock, when the Leyland men had to return, highly pleased with their first visit to Tyldesley.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

V.—PROVING THE METHOD.

In order that these papers may deal exhaustively with the subject under consideration, it will be desirable, before proceeding to examples of composition, that a description should be given of the proof by which such productions must be tested. The proof of Duffield Major, like that of all methods which contain false internal changes, is of a two-fold character. It is not sufficient to establish the truth of the first change of each six, but enquiry must also be made with a view of detecting whether repeating rows come within the sixes from dissimilar first changes. These are two entirely independent processes, each of which must be carefully attended to in order to ensure correctness.

In explaining the proof of the first changes of the sixes, I shall use the term "six" as denoting this row alone. It is needless to remark that if, in every course, the sixes at which the tenors are in position for a call are pricked, and these are true with one another, all the sixes will be true. They are, as usual, set down in columns, there being a separate one for each calling place, so that each column consists of rows with the tenors in the same position, and no row has to be compared with any but those in its own column. If in a given composition there are calls at In, Before, Out, and Fourths, four columns will be required. If, however, there are no calls at Fourths, three columns will suffice. Now as no call—except an M which will be seldom used, and which I will therefore for the present neglect—can be made after Fourths until the course-end has come up, it will save trouble if, instead of pricking the six produced by Fourths, the effect on the bells is noted at the course-end. In the same way, if there are no calls at Fourths in the composition, the effect of the order at the Out may be equally well shewn at the course-end without pricking the six which the Out produces. The following tables are arranged on this plan, the first being adapted for compositions that contain calls at Fourths, the second for those that do not.

	C.E. to In.	In to B.	B. to Out.	Out to C.E. with a
Plain Six	652413	124635	314625	463152 Plain 4ths.
Bob Six	652134	124356	314256	423165 Bob 4ths.

	C.E. to In.	In to B.	B to C.E. with a
Plain Six	652413	124635	654321 Plain Out.
Bob Six	652134	124356	264351 Bob Out.

A bob at H takes effect at the six following the course-end, and as it produces a fresh course-end, the course preceding which consists of one six only, such a call must be pricked by the scale 251364 from the course-end after which it occurs, and the resulting six set down under the other course-ends, as in the ordinary pricking of the method already explained. An example will make these matters clear:—

(348).

C.E. to In.	In to B.	B. to Out.	123456	H. In. B. Out. Fourths.
465213	462351	243165	251364	—
654132	651432	164532	143256	—
632541	635241	562134	524136	—
			142536	—
			431265	—
563412	564231	452163	152436	—
635412	634512	465312	325416	—
612435	614235	462513	532416	—
613452	614352	463132	123456	—

If the tenor is called M, it must be "with a double," that is, as has been already stated, there must be a bob at the next six also to keep 7, 8 together; the course-end is thus cut out, and it remains to show how such courses are to be proved.

The best way is to proceed on the plan adopted in pricking Ms, which was set forth in the last paper, namely, to prick the natural course-end that would come up if no M was called, using one or other of the above tables, according as the composition contains, or not, bobs at Fourths. From this natural course-end transposing by the scale 436512 will give the course-end from which the order following an M (2) called in the previous course would naturally come. Thus there are two natural course-ends, both of which must be set down under the other course-ends, and which may be marked m^1 and m^2 respectively. The proof can then be continued by pricking forward from course-end M^2 by the table previously selected. An example is again given:—

C.E. to In.	In to B.	123456	H. In. B. Out.
346521	345162	251364	—
		562143	—
		261543	(m^1) —
		513426	(m^2) —
621453	624153	231456	—
653421	654321	123456	—

The call M (2) is made before the natural course-end 261543; it is here placed opposite the natural course-end 513426 because the latter contains the order produced by these calls. The calling will be better understood from the following, which is the proper mode of expressing the touch:—

1 2 3 4 5 6	H. In.	B. Out.
2 5 1 3 6 4	—	—
5 6 2 1 4 3	—	—
2 3 1 4 5 6	—	—
1 2 3 4 5 6	—	—

As in the above touch there are no repeating rows in any one column, all the sixes are true. The M sixes are true because the course-ends m^1 and m^2 shew the order both before and after the M (2) calls. The position at the six between the first and second of these bobs is one into which the tenors can never fall in any ordinary course, therefore this six can only repeat with a similar six occurring at another M (2), but in such a case the repetition would be shewn both by the m^1 and m^2 course-ends; therefore the proof is complete so far as the first changes of the sixes are concerned. Although, however, the fact that the course-ends m^1 and m^2 do not appear again among the other course-ends is proof of the truth of the M sixes, it does not follow that if one or both of them did so appear the composition would be false. To explain this it is necessary to examine carefully what part of the courses which these natural course-ends represent actually occurs. The bob at In initiates the order which is shewn at the natural course-end m^1 , but the first of the M (2) calls breaks off the course one six before the course-end, therefore all that really appears of the course 261543 is that part of it which lies between the In and the M, so that if 261543 came at another part of the touch by a bob H, it might continue to the In following without being false. Similarly all that actually occurs of the course 513426, which is the natural m^2 course-end, is that part which lies between the third six, at which point the second of the M (2) calls breaks in, and the following B; so that if the same order came at another part of the touch not earlier than at a B, and was allowed to run no farther than the following H, where a bob would have to be called, no repetition would take place. An extension of the last touch will make this clear.

(152).

C.E. to In.	In to B.	123456	H. In. B. Out.
346521	345162	251364	—
		562143	—
		261543	(m^1) —
		513426	(m^2) —
621453	624153	231456	—
653421	654321	513426	—
		125364	—

Round in two changes.

Here is carried into effect the latter of the above two suppositions. The course-end 513426 appears first as a natural m^2 course-end, and again as a fixed course-end followed by a bob H, under which conditions there are no false sixes. It may be well to explain, for the benefit of those to whom they are not familiar, that the term "fixed" course-end implies a course-end actually occurring in a composition, while a "natural" course-end is one to which or from which, a certain "fixed" part of the course would naturally run if it were not for certain bobs which disturb it; thus a natural course-end is purely imaginary, and is merely obtained as a convenient way of working out some kinds of proof.

From what has been shewn, it may be thought that the proof of the truth of the sixes in this method is somewhat complicated, yet, with the exception of bobs at M, such is not really the case. It was necessary, for the sake of completeness, to go fully into the effect of the latter calls, but composers will not in all probability make much use of them. With regard to the general proof of the sixes, I have given the elementary basis on which to proceed. With this before them, experienced composers will readily see how far the full proof can be abbreviated, and to what extent, as may often be the case in the simpler peals, an examination of only the course-ends will suffice. Saving bobs at M, the proof of Duffield Major by sixes is identical in principle with the proof of other even bell methods by lead-ends.

In proving compositions that contain calls at In, B, and Out only, the 6th need not be pricked, and the following table may be used:—

	C.E. to In.	In to B.	B. to C.E.	with a
Plain Six	52413	13524	54321	Plain Out.
Bob Six	52134	13245	15324	Bob Out.

The remaining part of the proof, that of the internal changes of the sixes, will be considered in the next paper.

Erratum:—In the last number, page 61, second column, near the end of the third paragraph, for "bobs at In, B, and Out," read "calls at In, B, and Out."

LOCAL USES OF CHURCH BELLS.

The following particulars, drawn from the interesting works by the late Mr. Thomas North, and Mr. J. C. L. Stahlschmidt, of the various uses to which church bells are locally put in Hertfordshire, succeed naturally to our previous notice of that part of the book dealing chronologically with the bells and their founders. We may take this opportunity of adding to our former remarks, that the work of Messrs. North and Stahlschmidt bears evidence of being as complete and accurate as any record of the kind can possibly be, and that alike to campanists and to those who are interested in the church history of the county the volume will be indispensable.

At the present day it would seem from the Prayer Book that one bell is all that is required; the sole rubric dealing with the matter orders the curate that ministereth to "cause a bell to be tolled a convenient time before he begin . . . that the people may come to hear God's Word and to pray with him." The Canons however contemplate the use of more than one bell, speaking of "one short peal" in connection with ringing for the dead; and the government of the belfry is placed in the hands of the priest and the churchwardens. Local uses, says Mr. North, may be divided into two classes: ancient and modern—comprising among the former those which at the present day are continued, although their meaning has been lost or perverted, such as early week-day or Sunday ringing, and the "curfew" and "pancake" bells; while among the latter are classed those which, although as ancient in origin, are adapted to the requirements of the present day, as well as those which are distinctively modern in their inception. Of early Sunday ringing, that at seven o'clock only obtains now at four churches in the county: at Much Hadham, where the tenor is rung and called the "sermon" bell; at Tring (treble); and at Watford and at St. Peter's, St. Albans, at both of which the first and second bells are chimed. Rickmansworth retained the custom until six years ago; and at Hitchin the treble was rung at that hour. At Ashwell a bell known as the "horse-keepers' bell" was rung, doubtless from the habit of those in charge of horses to rise by it to attend to their duties—a perversion to the original meaning of the ringing, which was to call the faithful to Matins. Ringing at eight o'clock, the usual time for Matins, is very much more common, thirty-three churches still continuing the custom. At some places this bell is called the "sermon" bell, as at Hexton, the origin of which at this and other hours is somewhat obscure. It would seem likely to have begun early in Elizabeth's reign, when for a time many churches were served by "readers," who were strictly forbidden to preach; and an early peal at some hour on Sunday seems to have been intended to announce a sermon by a priest licensed for such work by the bishop. The nine o'clock, or Mass bell, is of rare occurrence in the county; it is stated to have been rung at Pirton from time immemorial, and Great Gaddesden, Hinxworth, and Little Berkhamstead also preserve the custom. At Ashwell the second bell is then rung, and is called the "Sunday School" bell, this being a very doubtful case of survival. It is said that the treble used formerly to be rung at Albury at ten o'clock on Sundays, as to which Mr. North thinks tradition has shifted the hour from nine to ten, unless it was a "sermon" bell, which is still rung at the latter hour at Westmill. Two examples of the evening Angelus, or "Curfew," bell still remain. At Baldock the third bell is used for this as for the early morning peal, from March to October, at eight o'clock, the day of the month being tolled; at Hitchin the tenor is rung at this time from September 29th to March 25th. Tradition has preserved instances of this custom at Ashwell, Harpenden, Bishop Stortford, and other places. The "pancake" bell—really the Shroving bell, rung on Shrove Tuesday to call men and women to confession—is still rung at Ashwell at noon; it was also formerly rung at Baldock, Hitchin, and Hoddesdon. Of ringing on the great Church festivals there are of course many instances. Good Friday is specially marked in one parish alone—Ayot St. Peter, where the cemetery bell is tolled thirty-three times at three o'clock in the afternoon—the "ninth hour."

Coming to modern uses, Sunday mid-day ringing obtains in several places. It is difficult to say whether this should not be regarded as a survival of the mid-day Angelus bell. At Bennington and Hitchin the treble is rung at the conclusion of morning service "to show that service is over." At Rickmansworth the treble is rung at one o'clock, this seeming the most likely case of survival. At Walkern the tenor was once rung after morning service if evensong was to follow; at Watford the fourth bell was rung after morning service "to give notice to gentlemen's servants to get their masters' carriages ready." There are instances of the use of the "sermon" bell at other times than eight o'clock, generally either before or after the ringing (or chiming) for service, as at Barkway and Rushden, and formerly at Walkern and Baldock. As the use of church bells in connexion with weddings has almost universally sunk into a question of pounds, shillings and pence with the "happy pair," there are few instances of past and present usage of a different character to be noted with regard to this. "Banns peals" used to be rung at Hinxworth on the first Sunday of publication, a custom which has apparently died out. Wedding peals are rung at Essendon after the ceremony, and also in the evening. At Stanstead Abbots there is a short peal, for which payment is optional; at Wyddial a peal is rung when the newly-married people return from their honeymoon. The "Passing" bell, properly so called—that is, a bell rung while the dying man or woman is actually passing away—is not, so far as is known, ever rung now. In a few instances, however, there is a near approach to this old custom, as to Hexton, Little Munden, Sandon, and Royston, where the death-knell is tolled as soon as notice is given to the parish clerk or sexton. At other places it is rung on the day following, or at twelve or twenty-four hours subsequent to death. The number of years of the deceased is tolled at Chorley Wood, Ickleford, St. Ippolyts, and Willian; while at Walkern the age is approximately denoted by the use of different bells for different ages. The frequent postponement of the death-knell may, says Mr. North, have originated in the Protestant prejudice against praying for the dead. The custom is almost invariably to mark the sex of the departed by what are technically known as "tellers," the normal use being three times two strokes for a female, and three times three strokes for a male—in which, says the author, is seen the explanation of the proverb, "Nine tailors make a man," that is, "Nine tellers make a man." At Widdford there is no distinction of sex. Dedication peals are rung only at Ardeley, on August 10, the church being dedicated to St. Lawrence; this is said to be a revival, rather than a survival, due to reverence for old customs on the part of the late Rev. W. Malet, the vicar.

Of secular uses, the most common is the ringing of peals on Royal anniversaries, as on the Queen's birthday; the birthdays of the Prince and Princess of Wales are similarly marked at Great Berkhamstead. On Restoration-day, May 29, peals are rung at Kingswolden, King's Langley, and Watton. The custom also obtained formerly at Essendon, Hitchin, and Little Hadham, but is now discontinued. November 5, Guy Fawkes's-day, is noticed by ringing at Cottered, Furneaux Pelham, Flamstead, Watton, Great Gaddesden, Much Hadham, Hemel, Hempstead, King's Langley, North Mimms, Redbourn, Westmill, and Wyddial, and the custom has been discontinued at other places. The "Vestry" bell—the modern representation, and doubtless in some cases the survival, of the ancient "Moot"; or assembly bell of the people—is rung in many places. At Ashwell both for vestry and town meetings the tenor is tolled. Another purely secular use of the bells was to mark the time in harvest when gleaning was to begin and end; and in some parishes where the "gleaning" bell was a useful institution from the absence of watches and clocks it has survived to the present day. At Ashwell, Barley, Buckland, Bennington, Cottered, Kelshall, Rushden, Sandon, Alberry, Redbourn, Clothall, Much Hadham, Little Munden, and Standon it is rung at eight in the morning and five in the afternoon; at Watton and Thorley the hours are eight and six, at Ickleford seven and six, at Hertingfordbury eight and seven, at Ardeley nine and four, and at Stocking Pelham nine and five. The custom has been recently discontinued, among other places, at Aston, Datchworth, Essendon, Walkern, Anstey, Baldock, Barkway, Hinxworth, and Furneaux Pelham. The use of one or other of the church bells as a "fire-bell" seems to have died out. The second bell at Tring is still called the fire-bell; the fifth is rung at Ashwell, and this seems to be the only example in the county of a church bell so used. A curious instance of bell usage is given by Salmon as existing in 1728 in Hinxworth parish. He says:—"The cow commons were given to keep the Church in repair. A tax for that purpose hath been ever since laid upon inhabitants, who keep 84 cows upon the common, and pay to the repairs according to the number of cows they keep, except the Rector, who keeps three and pays nothing to it. This is kept in memory by the tolling a bell on Whitsun Eve. There is a tradition that this was given by two maiden sisters: but it is generally thought that John Ward, the Lord Mayor, was the benefactor." Hertfordshire Express.

In Memoriam.

JOSEPH STOKES.

We regret to record the death of the above named gentleman, who died at Folkestone, March 15th, 1887, aged 71 years. The deceased was a member of the Kent County Association from its commencement, and had been a ringer 41 years. Although not able to take part in any performance for the last few years of his life, he had accomplished some remarkable performances in his younger days at Aldington, where he was a native and learnt change-ringing. He had assisted in ringing a great many 720's of Bob Minor, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob and Double Court Bob, he also rang in several peals of 5000 changes and upwards. Also at a change-ringing contest at St. Stephens, Hackington, near Canterbury, in 1845, when two trebles were added to make a peal of eight, four bands entered the contest, viz., Ashford, Faversham, Wye, and Hythe, the last named in which four of the Aldington band assisted in ringing the required number of changes, viz., 1008 in any method, this one being Bob Major, which was pronounced by the judges to be the best performance, each one of this band receiving a pair of white kid gloves as a Prize. He also rang the 4th bell through a 6720 of Bob Major at Hythe in the same year (1845), and the same peal at Folkestone in the same year, and on May 4th, 1846, he rang the 4th bell through the 13,440 of Bob Major, at St. Leonard's, Hythe, Kent, in 7 hrs. and 55 mins., it being the longest length rung in the county by one set of men. Two only now survive him, James Harrison having died at Folkestone, on Easter Monday, April 11th, aged 79 years. Edward Hyder and Thomas Post, who rung the 7th and tenor respectively, are the only two living of the band, both belonging to Aldington. The deceased was buried at Aldington, on Monday March 21st, and the local company rang in the evening, at St. Martin's church, a 720 of Bob Minor (nine bobs and six singles), with the bells deeply muffled. Charles Slingsby, 1; Thomas Hodgkin, 2; William Post, sen., 3; Edward Hyder, 4; William Hyder (conductor), 5; Phillip Hodgkin, 6. And on Saturday evening, April 23rd, the Aldington company rang a 720 of Bob Minor (eighteen bobs and two singles), with the bells deeply muffled, as a last mark of respect to James Harrison, of Folkestone. W. Post, sen., 1; D. Hodgkin, 2; F. Wanstall, 3; E. Hyder, 4; W. Hyder, 5; P. Hodgkin (conductor), 6. Tenor 14 cwt. in G.

HANDBELL CONTEST.

A change-ringing contest on handbells will take place at the house of Mr. Jos. Walton, Royal Hotel, Hayfield, Derbyshire, on Saturday, May 21st, 1887, when £6 will be given in prizes by the proprietor, in the following order: for Grandsire Triples and Grandsire Major, first prize, £2 10s.; second, £1 10s.; third, 17s. 6d.; fourth, 7s. 6d. There will also be an extra two prizes for the two best courses of Caters. First prize, 10s.; second, 5s. To take place at 5 p.m. Every company to ring one set of bells, which will be provided, and 18 size in the key of G. Competent judges will be provided. All enquiries to be made to Thomas Brocklehurst, Jumble Farm, Hayfield.

We are requested to say that the statement which appeared in the issue of "THE BELL NEWS" of February 12th, 1887, to the effect that the bad condition of the 11th bell of St. Mary Redcliffe, Bristol, was due to the inferior workmanship of a local bell-hanger, had nothing whatever to do with the firm of Llewellyn and James, of the above city.

Dinner at the "Crown" Inn at 1.15 p.m. Towers open for ringing, Poole, Canford, Wareham, Corfe Castle, and Bournemouth, St. Peter. A meeting will also be held at Trowbridge on Thursday, May 12th. Dinner at 1.30 p.m. Towers open, Trowbridge, Bradford, North Bradley, Westbury and Steeple Ashton.

DEDICATION OF A NEW PEAL OF BELLS AT POYNTON, NEAR STOCKPORT, CHESHIRE.

Tuesday last will form a red-letter day in the history of the parish church of Poynton, as being the day on which the bells were dedicated to the service of Almighty God, and which had been looked forward to with feelings of pleasurable anticipation by all concerned. The dedication ceremony had been fixed to take place at six o'clock, and before the confirmation ceremony, and previous to the service, a right merry peal was rung out by a set of ringers from Macclesfield, and the bells were clearly and distinctly heard as far as Hazel Grove, and there is no mistake as to their sweetness. At the time of commencement, the church was crowded in every part, the greatest interest being manifested in the proceedings. Amongst those present was the Dowager Lady Vernon and other members of the Vernon family, the other leading families of the neighbourhood being also well represented. Exactly at six o'clock, the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Chester (Dr. Stubbs), entered the sacred edifice, attended by the Rev. Canon Brown, rural dean, the Rev. Canon Symonds, rector of Stockport, the Rev. Marshall Wild, a former vicar of Poynton, the Rev. G. N. Wilmer, vicar of Hazel Grove, the Rev. Mr. Freer, vicar of Sudbury, the Rev. T. Bridge, vicar of Poynton, &c. The form of service was the usual evening service to the end of the third collect, with a special lesson and special psalms, the latter being the cxxii and the cl. the service opening with a hymn, which was heartily sung. The lesson was read by the Rev. Marshall Wild. Then followed prayers having special reference to the occasion which had brought them together, and in which the blessing of Almighty God was invoked "that all they who with their outward ears shall hear the sound of these bells, may be moved inwardly in their spirits, and draw nigh unto Thee, the God of their salvation, through Jesus Christ our Lord." A blessing was also asked upon those who shall ring the bells, that they "may be filled with all reverence and godly fear, and may ever be mindful of the sacredness of Thy House, putting away all idle thoughts and light behaviour, and continuing in holiness of life." At the conclusion of these prayers, there was a pause in the service, during which there was a short touch upon the bells, and the scene was most impressive as the large congregation sat in silence listening to the bells, with which everybody seemed to be highly pleased. This was followed by the "general thanksgiving" and the prayer of St. Chrysostom, after which a hymn was sung. The Bishop then advanced to the pulpit and delivered a short sermon, basing his observations upon the tenth verse of the eighteenth chapter of Proverbs, "The name of the Lord is a strong tower." He said there were other thoughts besides those of congratulation, which might be taken for granted on an occasion like that, when then were met for the dedication of their new bells. They had recently completed their new tower and otherwise improved the Church, and it might be asked what was the meaning of all this, and of what use was it all? It was right that these questions should be answered, and he would endeavour to supply a few answers that might be given. His lordship then went on to show why churches were built, which was to promote the continuity of our spiritual worship, and to preserve our treasures of faith and prayer. They built their houses of prayer strong and beautiful, and different from our ordinary dwelling houses, so that people could break away from the secular and harassing cares of daily life, and get to the place where there were purer and more elevating suggestions; and they furnished the House of God in such a manner that all classes might find a place in it. The preacher then referred to the uses of towers and bells in the past, a most historical reference. Sometimes towers were used as beacons and lights to guide the way-faring traveller. Bells were heard as warnings in the days of civil war, and were often rung in honour of triumph, and the church tower was a place of refuge where people could hide their little treasures. After some further reference in this connection, the Bishop said that the bells in the tower of that Church would call the people to assemble in the House of their Heavenly Father, the place where they would be enabled to reach forward in faith to the Lamb that was slain. They could come to meet God in His sanctuary, where He had promised to give to them His blessing. He hoped the bells, the first hallowed peal of which they had just heard, would fulfil the spiritual ends to which they had been dedicated. They would be rung under different circumstances—at the solemn hour when they had to bury their beloved friends, at the time when loving hearts would be united in holy matrimony, and at times of general rejoicing; but they would also be rung for people to come to church, and he trusted that the parishioners would always recognise the call. Another hymn was sung, and the service was then concluded, and was followed by the confirmation. The bells rang out several touches in various methods after the service, and the ringers were highly complimented for the skilful manner in which they handled the bells, and the beautiful harmony brought out. Though the above was the formal dedication of the bells, they were rung for Divine Service on Easter Sunday by ringers from Hayfield, Derbyshire. The bells were cast by Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough.

THE NORTH NOTTINGHAMSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The first Committee Meeting of the recently formed Association for North Nottinghamshire was held at Worksop, on Saturday, April 16th. The objects of the Association are: (1) To recognise the true position of ringers as church workers. (2) To cultivate the art of change-ringing. (3) To promote order, good feeling and friendship amongst ringers. (4) Belfry reform. A set of rules for the guidance of members has been adopted, and it is hoped that the Association may be the means of greatly benefiting ringers in the district. It is intended that the Association shall consist of honorary and performing members. Honorary members to subscribe not less than 5s. annually, or become life members by a donation of not less than £2 2s., and performing members to subscribe 1s. annually payable at Easter at each year. The Association will amongst other things provide Instructors for societies who have not mastered change-ringing, the societies benefited paying half the cost of providing such instructors and the Association the other half.

Ringings meetings will be held monthly in the towers of the Association by permission of the Incumbents and Churchwardens, and the first of such meetings will be held at Retford on Saturday, May 28th, when and where the peal of eight bells at the East Retford parish church, and the peal of six bells at West Retford parish church will be put at the disposal of visitors.

The Patrons of the Association are, His Grace the Duke of Newcastle; His Grace the Duke of Portland. The Officers are: President, the Bishop of Southwell; Vice Presidents, the Rev. A. F. Ebsworth, Rev. G. Osborne Browne, Rev. Marshall Wild, Rev. Watkin Homfray, Rev. Canon Gray, Rev. H. T. Slodden; Treasurer, George R. Lucas, Esq., Worksop; Hon. Secretary, Mr. Fred. Mackie, the Square, Retford.

THE DEVONSHIRE GUILD.

BICKLEIGH (near Plymouth).—A band in connection with the above Guild has been formed at Bickleigh, near Plymouth, under the instruction of Mr. Taylor of Plymouth. There are at present seven members of the band, who stand as follows: Messrs. John P. King, 1; John Willcocks, 2; John Ham, 3; James King, 4; William J. Halls, 5; Harrington P. Cole, 6; and Mr. William Giles, an old ringer, also rings the tenor. On Wednesday, April 27th, Mr. Batchelor of Plymouth, accompanied Mr. Taylor to Bickleigh, to certify that the band are capable of ringing Grandsire, so as to be eligible for membership of the Guild. Several six-scores of Doubles were rung by the band, standing as aforesaid, in a most creditable manner, conducted by Messrs. Halls, and J. P. King alternately; Messrs. Taylor and Batchelor remaining outside the tower. Afterwards several six-scores were rung with Messrs. Taylor and Batchelor taking part, conducted by Mr. Taylor. The go of the bells, tenor about 13 cwt., is very good, and the belfry is commodious and well-arranged. The practice night is Wednesday, and the band rings for the Sunday services.

PLYMOUTH (St. Andrew).—The band here ring for Sunday morning service, and on Thursday evenings. The woodwork of the bells being warped by the long-continuance of dry weather, causes the hinder bells (tenor 35 cwt.) to go rather badly, so the band has not for some time done any longer length than 168 of Triples, but a representation on the subject has been made to the churchwardens, and no doubt the matter will be attended to. Good progress is being made here; but with the bells in their present condition it would be "cruelty to animals" to attempt a long touch.

DEVONPORT (Dockyard Chapel).—Practice here is regularly kept up on Saturday evenings, and several long touches of Grandsire Triples have recently been rung, extending to 800 or thereabouts, conducted by Mr. Banister.

THE HERTS. COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

Members are requested to take notice that the next Quarterly Meeting will be held at Braughing, on the 10th of May, and that the following resolutions will then be proposed: 1; That the Association be divided into four districts, after the model of the Oxford Guild, viz.: the northern, the western, the central, and the Eastern. 2; That this resolution be considered at the annual general meeting at St. Albans, next October. Each band to make its own arrangements as to the 10th of May.

W. WIGRAM, General Secretary.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1887.

OUR correspondence columns have of late been taken advantage of greatly for the purpose for which they are open to our readers, viz.: the ventilation of their opinions and grievances, in their own phraseology. We often feel desirous of entering the lists against much that is written in this way, but we know that to do so under the form of correspondence would for us scarcely be honest.

There are occasions when remarks possessing the influence of editorial comment should be made. A subject last week suggested our observations, and this week we cannot refrain from alluding to a very important matter which is brought before the notice of the Exercise by Mr. GEORGE MUSKETT, the respected Secretary to the Ancient Society of College Youths. The publication of the assertions contained in the letter from that gentleman had doubtless been well considered before its author determined upon its appearance. Whether these are true or not—and in our opinion they are highly colored, to say the least—is a matter for the Exercise, after hearing, as they no doubt will, both sides of the case, to determine. If there is any ground for them, it seems a most unfortunate thing that they were not made public at an earlier date, indeed directly after the peal had been rung. Honesty of purpose would have strengthened the intention—if it ever existed—to challenge the truth of the performance immediately, and not wait the lapse of years before making a statement condemnatory of it.

It must be conceded that the step taken by Mr. MUSKETT in making such an assertion public is no more than what could be expected of one who took part in the peal which the Birmingham performance was intended to supersede. The condemnation he gives to the author of the rumour, if incorrect, and to the performance, if untrue, will find an echo in the minds of all. What we condemn is the delay in bringing such statements forward, a delay unpardonable. The matter will have to be thoroughly and impartially sifted to the bottom, as it greatly affects those whom all have looked to as the fountain of honour and truth. We hope the answer of those immediately concerned will be one not made under feelings of panic or anger, but we believe the accusations will be proved to be without a shadow of foundation. Such incidents as are related in connection with this performance seems extremely hyperbolic. May be they are begat from a feeling of pique or disappointment on the part of some one who imagines he will, by such a report, be revenged for a supposed injury.

SAMUEL WEBSTER, a native of Tong, but who has resided in Pudsey many years, died suddenly on Thursday, April 28th, aged 78 years. He was formerly (for some years) one of the company of ringers upon the old peal of five bells at Tong. A treble was cast in August, 1841, making them six, when he took the interest to learn a few methods. He was also a very popular and well-known vocalist, and for many years carried on a very active life in that capacity. His remains were brought to his relatives at Tong, on Saturday, April 30th, and respectfully interred at Tong church, on Sunday, May 1st, at 1 p.m. He was carried to his last resting-place by the Tong company, who after the interment rang several touches, with the bells deeply muffled, as a last token of respect to the old veteran.

THE NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The third annual meeting of the members and friends of this Association, took place at Lincoln on Saturday last, and was attended with great success. Through the kindness of the clergy and churchwardens, all the towers containing peals of bells in the fine old city, were open for ringing purposes, and there being a good muster of members, this privilege was taken full advantage of. The Association was favoured with the presence of representatives of several kindred societies, including St. Peter's Amalgamated Society, Sheffield, the Eastern Counties' Guild, East and South Lincolnshire Associations, and the Newark Society. The branches of the North Lincolnshire Association represented were Lincoln (four societies), Gainsborough, Market Rasen, Nocton, and Grimsby. At four o'clock, tea was provided in the Odd-fellows' Hall, to which a company numbering close upon fifty sat down, and after tea the meeting was held. In the absence of the President (the Very Rev. the Dean of Lincoln, Dr. Butler), the Rev. S. W. Andrews (rector of Claxby, and vice-president for the Market Rasen local centre) presided, being supported by the Rev. Canon Venables (Precentor of Lincoln Cathedral), F. F. Linley, Esq. (Vice-president for the Gainsboro' centre), and others.

In opening the meeting, the CHAIRMAN said he was very sorry indeed that their president, the Dean, so able and so true a friend of the Association, was unable to be present in the place which he (Mr. Andrews) so unworthily filled. He had a letter from the Dean which told them he was obliged to be at Ely, a place without bells, at least so far as the Cathedral was concerned; they at Ely were therefore behind the Cathedral at Lincoln, and Lincolnshire in this matter, as indeed in other matters, took the lead. He (the Chairman), thought when Lincolnshire men took anything up, they took it up with a will and determination to be if possible at the top of the tree, and he had no doubt that in a short time there would be no bell-ringers Association that would excel their own. At the same time he was quite sure he did not wish to depreciate the work of other Associations, some of the members of which they were glad to welcome amongst them in North Lincoln, and hoped they would come again. He had a very pleasing duty to perform, and that was in the name of the Dean to present to the Association, what he ventured to think all would consider a very handsome present, and one which their President said he trusted would be of great use to the Association, and record many triumphs of Lincolnshire ringers—it was a peal book. He thought the members would only be too glad that he should in their name tender to the Dean very hearty thanks for his kind, handsome, and useful present. He could not help on an occasion like this, feeling what a very happy and very beneficial thing it was for them from time to time to have an opportunity of coming together and joining in social intercourse, to compare notes as it were, and to be of one heart and one mind. It surely was one of the bright features of the times that different associations were springing up and being formed, that one association could work with another association, that the clergy and the laity and all other associations could strive together to carry forward the great work set before them. He was sure by so doing, they would in their respective spheres do a great deal to elevate the tone of the people amongst whom they lived, and surely that was a great and desirable thing. At the same time, they would themselves be deriving a great benefit from thus uniting together in the furtherance of the several good works for which associations of this kind were formed. He did not think there was anything hardly more needed than a bell-ringers' association, and they had only to look a few years back to find what improvement such institutions as this had effected in the character of their ringers, and the order in the belfry. It was no doubt a very great privilege to have any gift, and did they not think it was a wonderful gift and a privilege to be able to brighten up and throw an extra bit of sunshine into the Lord's Day? The ringing of the church bells always seemed to him to lift one up, and make one think more of heaven. And when one heard, as they did in Lincoln, two or three peals of bells clanging together, sounding the praises of God, and showing forth his glory, it did seem to elevate him, and seemed to throw extra sunshine and brightness into God's Day. Surely that was a great privilege, and the bells also provided a grand opportunity for men after the day's work—all of them nowadays, parsons as well, were workers—to take up the art of bell-ringing, exercising their strength as well as their skill. It was very nice when they could take to bell ringing. He hoped this Association would continue to carry on its good work, and that they would have many such happy gatherings as the present one; he had no idea they had such a large Association, and was heartily glad to find its objects were so thoroughly appreciated.

The business of the meeting was then proceeded with. The hon. secretary read the report for the past year; the accounts shewed a balance in the treasurer's hands of nearly £10, and the numerical statement was also very satisfactory. The report of ringing work done was highly encouraging, showing that since the last annual meeting there had been accomplished one complete peal of 5040 changes (the first recorded by the Association, and rang by the Gainsboro' branch), two half-peals of 2520 changes one of Grandsire Triples at Grimsby, and the other of Bob Triples at Lincoln Cathedral, a date touch (1886 changes), in three methods, by the Market Rasen branch; 720's of Kent Treble Bob Minor at Lincoln, Market Rasen, Nocton, and Lea; a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob at Nocton; a 720 of Grandsire Minor at Lea; peals of Oxford Bob at Market Rasen; several 720's of Plain Bob Minor; and a 720 in six different methods at Skellingthorpe. The Very Rev. the Dean was unanimously re-elected the president for the ensuing year. S. F. Hood, Esq., of Nettleham Hall, having kindly acceded to the request of the city of Lincoln local centre, was elected vice-president for that centre, vice the Rev. A. G. Musson, who resigned through leaving the district; F. F. Linley, Esq., was re-elected vice-president for the Gainsboro' centre, and the Rev. S. W. Andrews, vice-president for the Market Rasen centre. Mr. H. Gadd, of Market Rasen, was re-appointed hon. treasurer, and Mr. W. Lunn, of the same place, hon. secretary. Mr. F. F. Linley, of Gainsboro', and Mr. J. W. Watson, of Lincoln, were selected for auditors. The question of what peals were to be inserted in the new peal book was considered, and it was resolved to insert the first 720 rung upon five bells in two or more methods; the first 720 in each method on six bells, and also date touches in not less than three methods; on seven and eight bells, also half-peals, or whole peals of 5040. It was proposed that the annual subscription remain the same as last year, and that the headquarters of the Association remain at Lincoln. Two efficient members were enrolled, also four probationers. It was decided to hold the next general quarterly meeting at Grimsby, in July, the exact date to be left in the hands of Mr. Seamer, conductor of the Grimsby company, and the hon. secretary. A vote of thanks to the Dean for the gift of the peal book, was enthusiastically carried. The proposal of having a jubilee ringers meeting (an amalgamation of the three Lincolnshire associations) in June, having been introduced, Mr. J. C. Tinker, of Gainsboro', Mr. E. Mason, of Boston (secretary of East Lincolnshire), and Mr. R. Creasey, of Spalding (secretary of South Lincolnshire), gave their opinions on the subject, after which it was decided that the secretary of North Lincoln be authorised to attend a committee meeting of the three Associations to be held at Boston shortly. A vote of thanks to the clergy and churchwardens for kindly granting the use of their church bells to the members of the Association on that day, was carried unanimously.

The Rev. PRECENTOR VENABLES acknowledged the compliment in a nice speech, in the course of which he welcomed the members and friends to Lincoln, and said he should be glad to become an honorary member of the Association, the aims and objects of which he fully sympathised with.

Mr. D. SEAMER, of Grimsby, conveyed to the meeting the regret of the Vicar of Grimsby (the Rev. J. P. Young), that he was unable to attend, and hoped to see and welcome the members of the Association at Grimsby.

Mr. R. MACKMAN, of the Eastern Counties' Guild, proposed that the best thanks of the visitors be given to the North Lincolnshire Association for the hospitable manner in which they had been entertained; this was seconded by Mr. Creasey, and carried. A vote of thanks was accorded to the Rev. S. W. Andrews for presiding, the chairman briefly responding.

The ringers then repaired to the various towers, where they exercised their skill in Grandsire, and Plain Bob Triples, Kent Treble Bob, and Plain Bob Minor, Grandsire and Bob Doubles, and other methods.

BRAMSHAW BELLS, NEW FOREST.

In the New Forest is the church of Bramshaw, the wooden belfry of which contains two bells, neither have any inscription or date. The smallest is rather a curiosity, and apparently was cast in the fifteenth century. The crown is perfectly round, forming a complete hemisphere, and the height of the bell from the lip to the cannons is the same as the diameter at the mouth, viz., 19½ inches. This gives it a very long and narrow appearance. The other bell is more modern, and measures 21 inches at the mouth. The wheels are of a very peculiar and clumsy construction. Both bells would well repay an archeologist for a visit.

WILL any lover of Church Bells kindly HELP a Country Vicar in his scheme for RESTORING (and if possible, adding to) the BELLS (Five) of his parish Church, which are in an unringable and dangerous condition; estimated cost, £320; the name of any donor of £25 or upwards will be memorialised on new bells.—Address: The Vicar, Wangford, Suffolk.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

PEALS OF "DUFFIELD."

SIR,—I have received numerous communications on the subject of the new method now under notice in your columns, most of them containing peals. May I courteously request any who require information on the subject to wait a few weeks, until the whole of the details are before them, after which, if there remains any point yet requiring elucidation, I shall be most happy to give it by private letter. Nearly all the peals forwarded to me are false, simply because their authors are unacquainted with the necessary methods of proof. To give these in writing to each one of my correspondents is entirely beyond my power. Will they kindly accept this apology and exercise a little patience.

A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

Duffield Bank, May 1st, 1887.

THE ANTIQUITY OF LARGE BELLS.

SIR,—Can any of your readers give me any information with respect to the origin and antiquity of larger bells? We know that Aaron wore golden bells round the hem of the high priest's ephod, "that his sound might be heard when he went in unto the holy place, and when he came out" (Exodus xxviii. 34). We know also from specimens and ancient drawings preserved in museums, that small bells and gongs of every form existed before the Christian Era, but I am not aware of anything like a tower-bell in those early times.

The old dictionaries stated that church bells were invented at Nole, in Campania, in the fifth century, but the Encyclopædia Britannica affirms, without reference, that large bells were known in China and India long before. There is a large bell at Pekin said to weigh fifty tons, and Mareo Polo speaks of a bell in the same city which was used as a curfew in the 13th century. The great bell-tower of Nankin was built about 1420 A.D. I do not think it likely that India can claim the invention of large bells, but for several reasons it seems to me probable that they came to us from Eastern Asia.

C.P.

THE AUTHOR OF "DUFFIELD" AND HIS REMARKS.

SIR,—Every ringer will, I think, give Mr. Heywood credit for his new method, but his remarks respecting peals of Grandsire Triples and Treble Bob will not go down with all. He says "Holt's ten-part is not a peal of Grandsire Triples." Well, this is something new to get from such a man as Mr. Heywood. He objects, I presume, at the singles. If he had said the Original was not a peal I could have understood him better. I take it that you cannot get a peal of Grandsire Triples without two singles. The ten-part has these two singles pure and simple; they are single changes, whereas in the Original they are really doubles, and, I believe, this was the term originally given to them. Again we are told that "Lockwood's 9120 of Treble Bob is a peal in this method. I say it is not a properly recognised peal. The origination of Treble Bob never meant—and there is no authority for saying anything to the contrary—that singles (call it anything else you like) should be used to suit a certain purpose in this method. The longest legitimate length with tenors together is Harrison's 8896, rung at Highgate, April 27th, 1876; and considering (according to Snowdon) that it is possible to get a greater number than this, I do not think that such means for bringing bells round should be countenanced.

BOB MAJOR.

PEAL-RINGING ON SUNDAY.

SIR,—Allow me, as a clerical ringer of about twenty years' experience to offer some thoughts upon this subject. First, a protest against arguing backwards. If we once begin to reason "This is not wrong, therefore that is right," we can justify anything. Let us lay down sound principles, and then go on fearlessly wherever they may lead us. I start with these principles. The Lord's day commemorates three events; the Creation, the Resurrection of Our Lord, and the descent of the Holy Spirit. It points forward to a fourth, the rest of Heaven. Now a day, the one day in seven, given to man, with these associations is to be observed as a day of religion and of rest. And religion is to come first. We have no right to accept the gift, and to shut out the giver, from His own day. Apply these thoughts to peal-ringing. A peal requires, one thing with another, four hours; exclusive of any timespent upon the road. That is to say: If a band agree to meet at ten in the morning, you must not order dinner before two o'clock. And to answer for myself, a peal leaves me comfortably tired, and more than comfortably hungry. Now there is a good deal of work for everyone upon a Sunday, which must be done. If to it we add four hours in the belfry, and all the travelling, how much will be left for religion? I think that practically religion will be crowded out. Then there are our neighbours to think about. In every parish are many who connect with the Sunday, all the traditions inherited from the Jews and from the puritans. They are mistaken. But still, their convictions are not to be trodden down harshly. Further, we know that most trades leave work at four o'clock on the Saturday, and that a Monday half-holiday is not uncommon. Hence I fail to see the difficulty of getting a band together on one or other of those days, provided that men will make arrangements beforehand, and that they will keep the engagements which they have undertaken. Such, in my judgment, is the case against Sunday peal-ringing.

Hertford.

W. WIGRAM.

SIR,—Will you allow me in your next issue to protest against the practice of peal-ringing on Sunday. While no one can love bells and ringing more than I do, yet I think that while our ringing on a Sunday should be our very best, both as to striking and music, so that our service, which ought to be considered by all of us as part of the Divine Services of the church, it might be as acceptable as possible, and also be in harmony with the other parts of the service. I would like to ask the advocates of peal-ringing on Sunday, how many men could be found whose minds would be in a fit state to join in the worship of Him whom we are told "must be worshipped in spirit and in truth," after having successfully completed a peal, and being filled with the elation and excitement which always follows. Or on the other hand, having for some reason or other failed in the attempt, and consequently filled with disappointment and vexation, which we know is always the case. I think peal-ringing on Sunday would rather tend to bring back the old state of things and lead ringers to the public house rather than into church, and would consequently be a decided step in the wrong direction and undo what our Associations are trying to bring about. Let us remember that Sunday is the Lord's day specially hallowed to himself, and let our ringing be for His praise and glory, and not be seeking our own pleasure and unfitting ourselves for His service during the remainder of His Holy Day. There are many other reasons which might be urged against the practice, which perhaps some one more able than myself will take up, as I know plenty of ringers who are opposed to it.

W.D.C.R.A.

A POINTED QUESTION.

SIR,—I see Mr. Barefield, of Tunbridge Wells, is an excellent correspondent, and perhaps he can give the members of the Kent County Association some information as to how the ringers are getting on at Tonbridge. Also who is instructing them, and how much cash will be extracted from the funds before the men are competent to ring 120 changes?

A MEMBER OF THE COMMITTEE.

ANSWER TO MR. SCOTT.

SIR,—All I have to say about the Jubilee Peal I have sent out is that I have worked it on the almanack principle that there are 52 weeks in a year, and have taken seven days from the leap years to make one week, and as to what you have stated about those changes that appear in the first lead being in Mr. Sottanstell's book, if so I do not know, as I have not had his book for some nine years, nor yet have I any other, as what I sent out is simply out of my own head. I trust that Mr. Scott will take this reply in the same friendly spirit in which it is made.

THE LONG PEAL OF STEDMAN CINQUES AT BIRMINGHAM.

SIR,—As one who took part in the long peal of Stedman Cinques at St. Michael's, Cornhill, I beg respectfully to ask a question, through the medium of your valuable paper, as to the accuracy of a verbal statement gratuitously made last Easter Monday, respecting the long peal of Stedman Cinques rang six years back at Birmingham. The statement is as follows: (by Mr. Joseph Cattle, late of Birmingham, who heard the peal from beginning to the finish). "The last course was nothing but firing, and when the bells came into rounds the second bell was down, so that only eleven bells came into rounds, and the one who rang the second was first out of the tower, and said it was no peal. If this statement is false, I must say it is a cruel and unjustifiable assertion to make. If on the other hand this statement turns out to be accurate, I for one would say it is an unpardonable fraud on the ringing public. Will some one set the ringing community right on the matter?"

GEORGE MUSKETT.

INFORMATION WANTED.

SIR,—I should be glad if you would recommend any ringing association in the neighbourhood of the London Hospital, to which I might belong. As yet I have only mastered Grandsire Doubles, and I should like to extend my knowledge of the art.

E. WYCHE.

The London Hospital, May 3rd, 1887.

REPLY TO A MEMBER OF THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

SIR,—A correspondent who signed himself as above appeared to be very decisive as regards "A Doubtful Quotation" he dealt with in your last issue of "BELL NEWS." At the same time this lofty-minded gentleman gave your readers an index to the vocabulary of worn-out adages in which he seems to have such a complete mastery over. Surely the apparition in which I appeared to him "to be one who delights to make a mountain out of a mole-hill," and "Much ado about Nothing," ought to have contained a final character, viz., "Abuse was no argument," but perhaps that would have been too reproachful for your correspondent's feelings. This worthy member of the Sussex County Association wondered that I had "not discovered and made comment upon" a similar error in the Brighton Herald of about seven weeks previous, on the occasion of a peal being accomplished at St. Peter's Church, Brighton. Allow me to state that I had noticed it and thought it might have been an editorial error, but when it was again indulged in concerning the ringing on Easter Monday at Lower Beeding and Bolney, I determined to challenge its authenticity through the medium of "BELL NEWS," as being the chief organ of the ringing community. Again, your correspondent had "good reason to believe that the paragraph did not emanate from Mr. Attree," which was published in the local paper! Did it appear to him possible that any ringer would for a moment entertain such an insane idea as to imagine that that gentleman would be a party to such a mean action? I hope not. It is pleasing to find that the above correspondent "owns it is an error into which no society should fall," to claim a peal when rang by a mixed band as rang by eight members of their own, although it might have been obtained under the auspices of that society. In conclusion, sir, allow me to ask your correspondent which of the two ringers who rang the 7th and tenor bells at Bolney through the peal, was the one he describes as unconnected.

TINTINABULA.

Brighton, May 3rd, 1887.

THE RECENT HALF PEAL OF GRANDSIRE TRIPLES, RANG AT TONBRIDGE, KENT.

SIR,—I should like to ask the conductor of the above why he allowed the same to be published as a half peal when it is well known that they started for a whole peal and a shift course occurred before the half way and forced into rounds when they got to that place.

HARRY PEARCE.

BEDFORD RINGERS AT LEICESTER.

ON Saturday, April 30th, seven members of the St. Paul's company arranged to visit Leicester by an excursion train that was run by the Midland Railway Company. On arriving there, the visitors were met by several of the Leicester company at their meeting house, and from there to the church of St. Margaret's, which tower contains a noble ring of ten. After raising the bells in peal, the visitors, with the assistance of one of the Leicester company, rang 378 of Grandsire Triples. F. Keech, 1; C. W. Clarke (conductor), 2; ———, (Leicester), 3; W. Allan, 4; W. Biggs, 5; H. Chapman, 6; I. Hills, 7; J. Spencer, 8. Afterwards seven of the Leicester company with three of the Bedford company, rang 285 of Stedman Caters. J. Wilson, 1; T. Wilson, 2; S. Cooper, 3; G. Burrows, 4; W. P. Cooper, 5; C. W. Clarke, 6; W. Biggs, 7; A. Millis, 8; J. Buttery (conductor), 9; H. Chapman, 10. This was the first touch of any sort on ten bells by Messrs. Biggs, Clarke, and Chapman, and rang at the first attempt. Afterwards a touch of Grandsire Caters, by a mixed company, conducted by C. W. Clarke. After lowering the bells in peal, a move was made to the meeting-house, when after doing justice to the inner man, the handbells were made use of, when touches of Bob Minor, Treble Bob Major, Grandsire Triples, Caters, the last being a plain course of Grandsire Cinques. S. Cooper, 1-2; C. W. Clarke (first attempt at Cinques), 3-4; A. Millis, 5-6; J. Buttery, 7-8; T. Wilson, 9-10; W. P. Cooper, 11-12; which ended a very enjoyable evening. The Bedford company take this opportunity of heartily thanking their Leicester friends for the very kind and courteous manner with which they were received, and they hope at some future occasion to have the pleasure of returning the compliment in Bedford.

RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Saturday, April 23rd, a party of ringers from Frindsbury, St. Margaret's, Rochester, and Gillingham, journeyed to Aylesford, near Maidstone, for the purpose of having a pull on the fine peal of eight, tenor about 14 cwt. Several touches of Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob Minor, and Grandsire Doubles, with 4,6,8, behind, were rung. The "go" of the bells is splendid, and great credit is also due to the ringers of Aylesford for their clean belfry. A meat tea was provided at the "George Inn," and in all a very pleasant evening was spent. They wish through the medium of this paper, to thank the Vicar for the use of the bells, and also the ringers for having everything ready.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

To Geo. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

BY A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

The necessary steps for ascertaining the truth of the first changes of the sixes having been made clear, it remains to enquire how far such proof is a guarantee of the truth of the other five rows. In this method, between each backstroke and the following handstroke, every bell changes its place as 21436587 from 12345678; therefore, as the present proof takes for granted that the tenors are never parted or reversed, every handstroke is inseparably wedded to the preceding back-stroke, and no handstroke row can come at back, or backstroke row at hand. It follows that if all the backstrokes are true, the handstrokes must also be true.

Repetition cannot occur except between rows that have 7, 8 in the same position, and, putting aside for the present the six produced by an M call, every other position into which 7, 8 can relatively fall is found in a plain course, and any of these occurring in duplicate will be liable to produce false rows.

In the following diagram the positions of 6, 7, 8 are given at every backstroke throughout the plain course; the other bells are, for the sake of clearness, omitted, and their places denoted by dashes.

A ¹	-	-	-	-	6	8	7	8	E	1

	6	8	-	-	-	7	-	-	E
	6	8	-	7	-	-	-	-	O
B ¹	8	7	6	-	-	-	-	-	E	5
B ²	8	7	-	-	6	-	-	-	O

	-	-	-	-	7	-	-	8	E
	-	-	-	-	-	7	-	-	O

A little attention will shew that there is no row in which 6, 7, 8 occur a second time in the same position, and therefore, so long as the 6th is kept at home, no proof other than that already set forth is necessary, even if singles be used.

In compositions in which the 6th is moved the duplicate positions of 7, 8 must be examined. The rows containing these are denoted on the left of the diagram by similar letters; on the right, in addition to the numbering of the sixes, is given the nature of each row, whether in or out of course. In my explanation I shall avoid the lengthy expressions "in course" row or course, and "out of course" row or course, by using the terms "even" and "odd" rows or courses, as these words more briefly and accurately express what is meant. In the diagram therefore, E denotes the in course and O the out of course rows. I shall also speak of rows or courses that are either all even or all odd, as being of "like nature;" and of those of which one or more are even and one or more odd, as being of "opposite nature." By the term "order," which I have already made use of in such expressions as "the order of the bells at a six," I mean their coursing order as distinct from the actual places they occupy; thus, in a plain course, the "order" of the bells is the same in every row. These abbreviations are essential that redundancy in the use of the words "course" and "coursing" may be avoided.

In the diagram, four of the sixes, 1, 3, 5, and 7, will be seen to contain 7, 8 in duplicate positions. In the first and fifth sixes these positions occur in the same six, while in the third and seventh sixes they recur reciprocally between one and the other. All these duplicating rows are even, except A² and B³; therefore the latter rows can only run false against a course of opposite nature to the plain course. The enquiry, however, will be for the present confined to courses of like nature.

The remaining duplicate rows repeat in couples, A¹ with A³, B¹ with B³, C¹ with C², and D¹ with D², so that against any one row there can never be more than one false row. More than this, and here is the most remarkable property of the method, one course, 126543, contains everyone of the rows that can be false against the plain course 123456. Therefore every even course has one and only one even course false against it. Of the duplicate rows A and B alone require attention, because, as no call can be made between D² and the course-end, or between the course and D¹, any order producing false rows at these places would be the same and recognizable at the following or previous course-end respectively.

The six containing the A rows is the course-end or H six, and that containing the B rows is the six at which a bob B takes effect. In a plain course the rows of the B six are the exact converse of the rows of the H six; thus the first row in the latter is 12345678, and in the former 87654321, and the rest of each six in like manner; thus the reason of one false course covering both these sixes is apparent. If, therefore, the order in the B six of a course were always the same as that at either the previous or following course-end, it would be sufficient in proving a composition to transpose each course-end by the false course-end 126543, and to see that none of the resulting false course-ends were made use of. In any course, however, where bobs are called at In or B, and also at Out or Fourths, the B six, which lies between B and Out, will not have the order of the bells in it shewn at either the previous or following course-end. For instance, if from rounds a course is called In, B, Out, which produces 542136, neither this course-end or the previous 123456 shew the order at the B six. A distinctive plan of proving these B sixes must therefore be adopted.

If from rounds the course-end resulting from In, B is pricked, a natural course-end, 432156, is obtained shewing the order of the bells at the B six in the course called In, B, Out. In the same way the order at every B in the composition must be found, and set down in a column, headed "Natural course-ends from the B," along side of the fixed course-ends. It is by no means always requisite to be at this trouble, but in such form the proof will be more easily understood. An example is annexed.

Nat. C. Ends from the B.	123456	In. B. Out. 4ths.
432156	462135	- - -
246135	356124	- - -

154326	214356	- - -
123456	123456	- - -

The false course-end against any course has the same two bells in front and the four remaining bells reversed, as 126543 to 123456. It is not therefore necessary to prick the false course-ends, as the transposition can be made at sight. Looking down the column of fixed course-ends, only those that have the same two bells in front need be compared. The only one that presents itself is 215364; reversing the four hinder bells gives 214635, and as this does not appear as a course-end, 215634 is true. From the reciprocal nature of the false course-ends it follows that, if 215364 does not repeat with 214356, neither can the latter repeat with the former, therefore 214356 need not be proved. The natural course-ends denoting the order at the B sixes must also be looked over, and will be found true. A quick prover will notice that for two course-ends to repeat, not only must the same two bells be in front, but the 6ths place bell in one must be a 3rds place bell in the other, and vice versa. Thus by observing say the 6th, a glance will shew what course ends repeat without troubling to reverse the last four bells.

If the sixes of a composition have been pricked out for proof, it is unnecessary to obtain the natural course-ends from the B sixes, because, in the B column of the proof by sixes, is presented the identical order required, the only difference in treatment being that the figures must be read backwards, or tested by the reverse of the false course-end 1 2 6 5 4 3, viz.; 3 4 5 6 2 1, in applying which, rows with the same bells in 5-6 must be first looked for, instead of, as before, in 1-2.

Having explained the internal proof requisite for compositions in which the courses are all of like nature, the next step is to shew what is necessary for such as contain both odd and even courses. Referring again to the diagram, A³ and B³, the only odd rows liable to run false, will in an odd course become even rows, under which conditions they may repeat either with the A¹ and B¹ or A² and B² rows of an even course. That is, against any course, in addition to the false course of the same nature, there are two of opposite nature. Of the latter, one will cover both A¹ and B¹, the other A² and B². Against 1 2 3 4 5 6 they are as follows:—

odd against odd.	}	1 2 5 3 6 4.
Even courses against odd
or	}	1 2 4 6 3 5.
odd against even.

It may here be remarked that, in proving, it is immaterial in the abstract whether the courses are odd or even; the gist of the proof lies in testing those of like nature by one process and those of opposite nature by another, no matter of which specific nature they may be.

A convenient example will be found in the touch of which the sixes have already been proved.

The column to the left of the course-ends contains the actual B sixes copied from the proof by sixes given in the last paper, for having this, it is, as has been shewn, unnecessary to go to the trouble of obtaining the natural course-ends from the Bs.

In order to make the proof of the touch clear, I must here make a brief digression. It has been mentioned that a bob at H acts as a single in changing the nature of the courses. How this comes about may be seen by examining the diagram. The first rows of the sixes will be observed to run alternately even and odd, and as the first row of the plain course, 123456, is even, if a course is employed of which the first row is odd, the rest of such a course will be of opposite nature to the plain course. Now a bob at H keeps 7, 8 an extra six behind, and produces a fresh course-end at the beginning of the next six. This course-end, being only one six removed from the previous course-end, will be of opposite nature, and thus a course is initiated of opposite nature to the one which preceded it. If the new course be taken as odd, the following courses will remain odd till another bob at H or single is called. If two bobs at H are called consecutively after an even course-end the courses will remain even, and vice versa, but the six between the calls will be of opposite nature to those before and after them.

In the above touch, then, the first four courses are odd, after which the second bob at H causes the last five to be even. To prove these, taking the course-ends first, transpose each by 126543, and compare the false course-ends resulting from the first four with each of the first four, and those from the last five with each of the last five, recollecting that the false course-end 126543 is to be used only for testing courses of like nature. Now take either the first four or the last five, that is, all the odd or all the even course-ends,—it is best to choose the kind of which there are fewest—transpose them by each of the false course ends 125364 and 124635, and compare the resulting false course-ends with the course-ends of opposite nature to those selected; absence of repetition will shew all the course-ends to be true. Proceed in a similar way with the B sixes, but as in these the bells are exactly reversed, the false course-ends by which they are to be tested must also be reversed, 126543 being taken as 345621, and the other two in like manner. The B sixes being thus proved true the entire proof is completed.

In the next paper the proof of the method will be concluded with the treatment of courses containing bobs at M.

Erratum.—In the last number, page 73, second column, in the eighth line from the top, for "M²" read "m²."

THE FIRST PEAL IN DORSETSHIRE.

In the peal page will be found an account of the first peal ever rung in the county of Dorset. The occasion was that of the dedication of a new peal of eight bells, tenor 20 cwt., by Messrs. Warner, at Bridport. Before going further it may be well to call attention to the fact that the hanging of these bells was only completed a few minutes before the peal was started for, and several odd jobs had to be finished the next day. The dedication service was performed at 3.30 p.m. by the Ven. Archdeacon Sanctuary, and an address given by the Rev. A. D. Hill. At 4 p.m. a short touch was rung, immediately after which the ringers (members of the Salisbury and Devonshire Guilds) started for the peal which, under the circumstances, they had but faint hopes of accomplishing. However their doubts and fears proved groundless, for the bells were successfully brought round in 3 hrs. and 2 mins. Evening service was to have taken place at 7.30 p.m., but as the peal was not rung by that time it was delayed for a quarter of an hour through the kindness of the authorities. Nothing could exceed the kindness and hospitality shewn to the ringers on this occasion by the rector and churchwardens, and by Mr. Northover, the Hon. Sec. of the newly-formed Bridport Guild of ringers. The latter gentleman had the entire management of the day's proceedings, and too much praise cannot be given to him for the admirable manner in which he managed everything for the comfort and convenience of the ringers. The company desire to take this opportunity of publicly thanking him; and also the Rector and churchwardens for their kindness. It may be added that this peal created a great deal of excitement in the town, and a large crowd assembled outside the church towards the end to hear the completion of it.

THE ST. JAMES'S SOCIETY, LONDON.

On Saturday, May 7th, twelve members of the above society met at St. Saviour's to attempt a peal of Stedman Cinques, but owing to one of the bells not being pealable, the attempt came to an abrupt conclusion. They afterwards adjourned to the "King's Head," Winchester Street, Borough, where handbells being brought into requisition, a course of Grandsire Cinques was rung by Messrs. H. Swain, 1-2; G. T. McLaughlin, 3-4; C. F. Winny, 5-6; H. A. Hopkins, 7-8; J. M. Hayes, 9-10; F. G. Newman, 11-12. Next came a course of Kent Treble Bob Major by J. Rogers, 1-2; C. F. Winny, 3-4; H. A. Hopkins, 5-6; W. Baron, 7-8; and lastly a touch of Grandsire Caters. G. T. McLaughlin, 1-2; J. Rogers, 3-4; C. F. Winny, 5-6; J. M. Hayes (conductor), 7-8; W. Doran, 9-10. The remainder of the evening was devoted to harmony. Mr. R. T. Woodley acted as chairman, and sang "The Maid of the Mill," and "Some Day,"; Mr. G. Mash, "The Shoeblack," and "They are coming,"; Mr. McLaughlin, "Jack's Yarn,"; and Mr. W. Baron, "When we were boys." The comic element was ably represented by Mr. H. A. Hopkins with "Matilda Gorgier," and "Hear, Hear,"; Mr. Frank Davies, "Two lovely black eyes,"; and Mr. George Wild, "Oh what must it be to be there." Mr. J. Rogers amused the company with his well known "nautical fantasia," and another entitled "Tea leaves and snowballs." Messrs. Partington and Prime also sang two songs. Besides the above mentioned, there was present Messrs. Tyack, Garrard, H. and S. Davies, and others. During the evening, the Master (Mr. G. T. McLaughlin), proposed "Prosperity to the St. James's Society," mentioning the names of Rogers, Hayes, and Baron, who responded, stating that through the medium of this society, many young ringers had become proficient in the art of change-ringing, and it also allowed a friendly meeting between the two head societies of London. The company separated at an early hour, having spent a very enjoyable evening.

THE CHANGE-RINGERS' MEMORIAL WINDOW TO JASPER WHITFIELD SNOWDON.—UNVEILING CEREMONY AT ILKLEY CHURCH, YORKSHIRE, ON SATURDAY, JUNE 11TH.

THE PRESIDENT of the Yorkshire Association writes as follows:—

Will you kindly call the attention of all subscribers to the above, who are considering the question of being present, that arrangements are being made at Ilkley to give a hearty welcome to all who come. In order to ensure a good day's ringing the Yorkshire Association's June Meeting is to be held concurrently. The gathering therefore will certainly be large, and, it is hoped, influential and representative.

The eight bells—by kind permission of the Vicar of Ilkley—Rev. Howard Kempson, M.A., will be at the disposal of the visitors from an early hour, immediately following the removal of the muffles after an In Memoriam touch by our officers.

Divine Service will be held at 4.30, at which—at the invitation of the Vicar of Ilkley—a sermon will be preached by a change-ringer in holy orders; the window will then be unveiled.

As the subscriptions of a great number are massed together under the names of their churches and associations, it will probably prove to be impossible to communicate with each one direct. Those organizing the Ilkley arrangements will therefore be much obliged if every subscriber will take this letter as a direct invitation to be present. In order that the final arrangements may be satisfactorily carried out, it will be necessary, later on, for every subscriber intending to be present to forward his name to some one of the organizers, whose name will be duly announced in these columns. It is hoped that this letter, written one month before the date of the meeting, will enable each one to so arrange his plans that those at Ilkley, when the time draws near, may learn exactly what numbers are to be expected.

BICKLEIGH, DEVONSHIRE.

The ringers of the above place intended visiting Meavy on Sunday last, May 8th, for a touch on the bells of the parish church, but owing to the illness of two of the band the trip was abandoned. The arrival of Messrs. Taylor and Manning from Plymouth in the afternoon, completed a band for a touch on the bells of Bickleigh Church. Several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles were then rung, conducted by Messrs. Halls and Taylor. In the evening, for service, nine 6-scores of Grandsire were rung in different callings, in 41 mins. Edward Taylor, 1; John Willcocks, 2; John Ham, 3; Edgar E. Manning, 4; William J. Halls, 5; Harrington Cole, 6. The Vicar expressed his great satisfaction as to the striking, and was pleased to find that the ringing was conducted with less noise than the old system of "Stoney," which used to sound so loudly through the church immediately before the services. Mr. Taylor is to be complimented on the great progress made by his pupils here, three of whom could not handle a rope in rounds nine weeks back. It is hoped that the ringers of many of the neighbouring moorland churches will before long devote themselves to the study of the art.

THE PEAL AT ST. LAWRENCE JEWRY.

It will appear curious to change-ringers when we record the fact that although the church has been built 207 years, when the bells were placed in the tower, only four peals, including the one reported last week have been rung; the first three by members of the Ancient Society of College Youths as follows: 5040 Union Triples, 1727; 5440 Court Bob Major, 1735; 5120 Oxford Treble Bob Major, in 1762. A start was made for the above peal, Mr. Haworth conducting, but it came to an end through two bells changing after ringing about 2000 changes; another attempt was made directly afterwards, Mr. Haworth wishing Mr. French to conduct the peal, and it was finished, thus ringing more than 7000 changes, occupying more than four hours. The caretaker of the bells and headringer, Mr. Haworth, deserves some credit for the excellent condition of the bells, as the men rang a well-struck peal, with comparatively little fatigue, considering the great weight of the metal (tenor 36 cwt). A tablet, it is expected, will be placed in the ringing-chamber, recording the Jubilee peal, the first rang in the city of London to commemorate the event.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Chelmsford on Whit-Monday, May 30th. Divine Service at St. Mary's Church at 12.30 p.m., with an address by the Bishop of Colchester. Dinner at 1.30 p.m. in the Charity Schools, to be followed by the usual business meeting. The towers of Chelmsford (ten bells), Galleywood (eight bells), Broomfield (six bells), Springfield (six bells), Widford (six bells), will be open for the use of the members during the day. Writtle tower (eight bells), is at present closed to ringers owing to a case of serious illness near the Church. Members intending to be present, are requested to inform the Secretary on or before Wednesday, May 25th, whether they wish for dinner tickets (price 1s.), and if arriving by train, from what station they propose to start. Return tickets at 1½ fare will be issued to those who produce their receipt for the current year's subscription. Subscriptions for the ensuing year (1887-8), fall due on Whit-Monday. Any subscriptions still unpaid for the present year (1886-7), should be forwarded to me at once, that the accounts for the year may be closed. T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

THE HANDBELL CONTEST AT HAYFIELD, DERBYSHIRE.—On Saturday, May 21st: 1—The contest commences at 4 p.m.; 2—That the committee have the power to withhold any prize or prizes, should there not be a sufficient number of entries; 3—That if there are above twelve entries the committee do not hold themselves responsible if any of the bands have not time to compete.

THE ANDAMAN ISLANDERS.—The aborigines, whose total number does not exceed 2,500, are an anomalous race of the most degraded and repulsive description; and are supposed to be the descendants of a cargo of African slaves wrecked upon these isles, which before that had been uninhabited. Fierce, cunning, and vindictive, they are perfectly black, never over five feet in height, with huge disproportioned heads, high shoulders, small limbs, and protuberant stomachs. The only covering of their persons consists of mud, in which they are constantly coated as a protection from the noxious insects which infest these isles. Their woolly hair they dye red with ochre. Their habitations are branches of trees, spread over four short poles; their couches are leaves, and they have no vessels capable of resisting the action of fire. Their weapons are bows and lances of iron-wood. The former are bamboo, strung with vegetable fibre; their arrows reeds, pointed with fishbone. Their mode of running up a cocoa-tree is remarkable—running up like a monkey, and descending with astonishing velocity. In tempestuous weather they are reduced to the utmost want, feeding on rats, lizards, and snakes, and perishing when these resources fail. Their language has no affinity to any other in India, and they worship the celestial bodies and various imaginary genii, especially one named the Demon of the Storms, whose wrath they deprecate in wild and barbarous choruses. In the time of Kæmpter they were deemed cannibal, but this has been since disproved. The necessity for a British establishment, as shelter for shipping east of Bengal, and also as a depot for the reception of convicts, induced the Government to establish a colony at Port Chatham (in 1791), a well sheltered, picturesque embayment at the south-eastern extremity of the great Andaman. Two years subsequently a similar attempt was made at Port Cornwallis, in the same island; but the extreme unhealthiness of the locality, together with the ferocious disposition of the natives, and their excessive hostility to all strangers, rendered the attempt abortive.—From "Cassell's Illustrated History of India" for May.

A VISIT TO LONDON.

Starting from Kenninghall on Saturday, April 9th, for Eccles Road station, I and my son booked to London by the 2.50. train, and arrived at Kentish Town Station quite safe at 6.15. p.m. We made our way to Highgate New Town, and after refreshing the inner man, we went in search of my old friend Mr. Thomas Titchener, whom we very soon found. He informed me that there was ringing at Hampstead on Easter Sunday morning for early service at eight o'clock, and he kindly consented to walk over with us. So to promise, we were astir by half-past six, and we made our way to the church of St. Stephen's, where we found the local company in readiness, and my esteemed friend Mr. George Newson invited us to take part in a touch of Grandsire Caters. After the ringing was over, Mr. Newson asked me if I would kindly take his place at St. Anne's, Highgate, as he could not attend on account of his having to attend to the duties of steeple-keeper at Hampstead: so we met and rung a very good touch of Grandsire Triples for the morning service, and in the evening we met the local company at Hornsey, and rung two six-scores of Grandsire and Bob Doubles, and two courses of Grandsire Minor, and a course of Bob Minor, my son taking part in it. We could not do anything of any importance, as they are quite a young band; it finished the ringing for the Sunday. On the Monday, it was intended to start for a peal of Treble twelve at St. Bride's, Fleet Street, but we could not make up a band for it, so we started for a peal of Grandsire Caters, and all went well for fifty minutes, when for some cause to our dismay, the conductor called "stand." Thus ended the ringing for that day, with the exception of a short touch or two of Treble Bob Major. On the Tuesday evening I met the local company at Hampstead, and rang a touch of Grandsire Triples, and a 500 of Stedman Triples, and after the ringing was over, Mr. W. H. Fussell kindly invited me to take part in a peal of Grandsire Caters that was arranged to take place on the Friday evening at St. Clement Danes, which I kindly accepted, and met to promise, and the peal was duly accomplished in 3 hrs. and 20 mins. by the following members of the St. James's society. W. W. Thorne, 1; J. Barry, 2; A. R. Aldham, 3; R. T. Woodley, 4; W. Weatherstone, 5; R. French, 6; J. Woods, 7; G. R. Banks, 8; W. H. George, 9; A. Hayward, 10. It was duly recorded in "THE BELL NEWS," and on the Saturday, a band of the Royal Cumberland Youths met at St. Anne's, Highgate, for a peal of Treble Bob Major, it being the birthday of Mr. E. Chapman, of Hampstead. A start was made, but the peal came to grief after an hour and thirty minutes, good ringing, by the fourth bell casting rope. J. Page, 1; E. Chapman, 2; G. Newson (conductor), 3; W. H. Fussell, 4; T. Titchener, 5; J. Woods, 6; J. Barrett, 7; A. Jacob, 8. On Sunday morning, I met the local band at Hampstead, and rang a 500 of Grandsire Caters for morning service, and then I had to say farewell to my Hampstead friends, trusting to meet at some future time. In the evening, I and my son met the local band at St. Martin's Church, Haverstock Hill, and rung for Divine Service in the evening, a 720 of Bob Minor. J. Woods, jun. (first 720), 1; J. Hannington (conductor), 2; T. Glead, 3; T. Titchener, 4; J. Woods, sen., 5; J. Nixon, 6. This brought our visit to a close, so we had to say farewell to all brother strings, trusting to meet again at some future time. I take this opportunity of thanking all friends who took part to make this visit a pleasant one, and to Mr. George Newson for arranging for the ringing, and also to Mr. Thomas Titchener for conducting us about. We left for home on the Monday, and arrived quite safe, after a most pleasant visit.

MAJOR DATE TOUCHES.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

I have had several applications lately for Major date touches. I append one in each of the methods that I know of as being rung at the present time on eight bells. They all run without any variation from the method until the 1886th change; to bring up the 1887th (rounds), it is simply necessary for 7 8 to lie still at the hand stroke of the treble's full lead, which in every case comes by the method 1 2 3 4 5 6 8 7. It is unnecessary to call the last bob, as the bells are round before it can be made. It is simply given to show what would be the natural course-end at the 1888th change if 7 8 did not lie still at the 1887th. Probably this plan has already occurred to many of the readers of "THE BELL NEWS."

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 14, 1887.

ONE other of the English counties has this week vindicated its claim to be considered an integral part of "the ringing island." The county of Dorset, where hitherto the ringing of a peal was absolutely unknown, has been the scene of the performance of 5040 Grandsire Triples, the town of Bridport being the first town in the county so honoured. The occasion was the opening of a new ring of bells, which have just been erected at St. Mary's Church, Bridport, by Messrs. Warner and Sons, and though the ringers of the peal came from other places outside the county, being well-known members of the Salisbury and Devon Guilds, that fact is none the less satisfactory, because the impetus they have given to the movement in Dorsetshire will do incalculable good, and materially strengthen the hands of those who in another part of the county are exerting themselves to spread a knowledge of the art.

Years ago the late Rev. H. T. ELLACOMBE was wont to say—and with truth—that there was no ringing worthy of the name below Bristol, and though he lived long enough to see a great change for the better in the South-western counties, he would, we believe, have rejoiced in the fact of a peal being rung in Dorsetshire.

It is to be hoped this initial performance will be the means of promoting, to a great extent, the art of change-ringing in the county. With feelings of satisfaction we hear of the formation of the Bridport Guild, and we shall wait anxiously for some report of their progress. We would have them know that to excel as change-ringers entails some amount of hard study, and a great deal of unflinching perseverance, but the greater the labour the greater honour will be acquired by them. And when they have begun to see the beauty and poetry of the ringing science, let them not stay their hand, and think their task is ended. Be it their mission to carry the practice of the art into other parts of the country, and assist, both by precept and example, in making it universally known and honoured. By the constant perusal of the reports which particularise the doings of other bodies of ringers, they will be able to see what course to take, and they may depend upon always receiving good counsel and advice from whatever quarter of the ringing world they may seek it.

"THE CHURCH BELLS OF HERTFORDSHIRE."

To the general reader, no doubt, the portions of this handsome volume which will appear most interesting are, first, that which gives a chronological account of the bells in the county and their founders, and, next, that which relates the various uses to which the bells are locally put. We propose in this notice to confine ourselves to the first of these, hoping in future issues to reproduce a part or the whole of the second. The subject of ringing in Hertfordshire, and a historical description of the bells in St. Albans Abbey, each occupies a short chapter; and these, with one containing a detailed account of the bell inscriptions in the parish churches, will be attractive in the main only to students or to those who make a pursuit of the music of the steeple. The chronological account of the bells and their founders is, we are told, the only part of the volume which is from the pen of Mr. Stahlschmidt, all the rest having been prepared and in part put into manuscript by Mr. North before his death. Mr. Stahlschmidt in his prefatory remarks mentions the name of upwards of thirty clergy of the county to whom the authors are indebted for rubbings and copies of inscriptions, many lay members of the Church having likewise rendered their assistance.

Of the 718 bells in the county (this number including the clock and market bells in the Clock Tower at St. Albans, the clock and two quarter bells in that at Hoddesdon, and the bell in the Clock Tower at Layston), 31 are attributed to pre-Reformation times, 21 are to the years 1560-1600, 188 to the years 1701-1800, and 228 to the interval between the last date and 1884, 29 being unscribed to any period. The number of 52—or seven per cent.—cast before 1600 is the smallest in any county except Surrey, Bedfordshire, for instance, having nine per cent. of its bells so dated. The only complete ring of certainly ancient bells is that of two at Clothall. The single bell at Letchworth, which has its inscription in Lombardic letters, is ascribed to the fourteenth century. The second bell here has disappeared, tradition being silent as to how and when; this being one of the several instances of the loss of bells from various churches in the county by robbery or neglect. At Hexton, where pits for five still exist, there are only three. In some cases, as at Stocking Pelham, bells have been sold to pay for repairs; but the most reprehensible transaction, say the authors, was that enacted by the Welwyn folk, who, having a ring of five bells, sold them in 1746 to raise money to erect a turret, "or some other convenience," for the hanging up of a single large bell and a priest's bell, these being all the bells they now possess. Of the 52 ancient bells, five have reference to the Virgin Mary. Two at Ardeley are inscribed "Voco Maria;" the second bell at Hexton has "Ave Maria;" the bell at Letchworth bears the words, "Ave Maria gracia plena." An unhung bell at Barkway has a similar inscription, in black letter, and correctly spelled; the second at Little Berkhamstead has the salutation in full, "Ave Maria gracia plena dominvs tecvm benedictatv in mvlioribvs." The sixth bell at Ardeley and the fifth at Kimpton are inscribed, "Sit nomen Domini benedictum." The only bell dedicated to a purely English Saint is the fourth at Kimpton, to St. Dunstan ("Sancte Dvnstane"). The largest bells are the tenors at St. Albans, Baldock, Hitchin, Sawbridgeworth, and Tring. The initial cross on the second bell at Little Berkhamstead, one of the nine in the county having Lombardic lettering, is different to any found elsewhere, and it is supposed to be the earliest in origin.

The treble bell at Clothall is, by reason of its puzzling inscription, singularly interesting. The mysterious legend is "Calit me Ioannes," the third letter in "Calit" being inverted. The most likely interpretation is that the word "calit" stands for "calefecit," in which event the bell would be the handiwork of some founder whose name was John; it is thought possible that the inverted letter may be intended as a mark of abbreviation. Two Lombardic bells at Wyddial bear likenesses of Edward III. and Queen Philippa. The sole remaining bell at Stocking Pelham has the curious inscription—indicative of its having been re-cast and of the mediæval belief in the power of bells to drive away evil spirits—"Vincencius Reboat Vt Cuncta Noxia Tollat." The second bell at Norton is interesting for the reason that it has on its crown the symbols of the four Evangelists. The fifth bell at Braughing, notable as being, with one exception, the earliest dated Elizabethan bell in existence, has upon it an inscription in black letter, without any capitals, meant for "Deus in auditorium meum intende;" its founder would seem to have been an Hertfordshire man. Among the Land Revenue papers preserved at the Revenue Office is a certificate, dated 1557, of the "weyght of the four bells of Grauley sum tyme belonging to the Priore of Wymundelay," made by Edward Brokett and Edward Pulter; "the weyght of the said four bells by estimation of a bell funder woos name is Clarke dwellyng at Theshewurth in the county of Hertford drowth wey xvij hundryth weyght and that is with the most." The document bears the names of the rector, Richard Bedell, and of John Wode and Herycus Wren, wardens; Theshewurth, the dwelling-place of the bell-founder, is readily identifiable with Datchworth, formerly spelled and still locally pronounced Thatchworth. It seems not unlikely, says Mr. Stahlschmidt, that this Braughing bell was by this man, especially as there is still at Eastwick a bell dated 1601, by one John Clarke, proved by other productions in this quarter—notably in Cambridgeshire, Essex, and Bedfordshire—to have been a local bell-founder, and not at all improbably a son or grandson of the Clarke above-named. A thorough examination of the parish register of Datchworth, which begin only in 1570, has shown that in 1572 to 1585 there was a John Clarke living in the parish, the baptisms of seven of his children, and the deaths of two, being recorded—one son (the eldest) also a John, being baptised on May 8, 1575; Joane Clarke, the wife, was buried in May, 1584. The only later entry was the marriage of the daughters—this pointing to a general migration of the family. Without confirmatory evidence, however, it could not be taken that either the father or the son was the founder of the Braughing bell. Another local founder, John Dyer, or Dier, supplied eleven bells, still existing, ranging in date from 1580 to 1597. They are the fourth at Ardeley, the third at Graveley, the third and fourth at Much Hadham, the second at Little Hadham, the third at Offley, the fourth at Therfield and Wadesmill, the third at Great Wymondley, and the second at Little Wymondley. John Dier's place of abode has not yet been found out, and it is surmised from the fact that no less than five out of the eleven bells were dated in the same year, 1595, that he was an itinerant founder. A bell each at Clothall and Norton, and the single bell at Newnham, from the nearness of these places to Baldock, are supposed to have been the work of some one whose abode, permanent or temporary, was in that town. No sense is to be made of the inscriptions, so far as regards the lettering, on any of the three bells.

A founder of bells in the seventeenth century, Robert Oldfield, has some claim to be regarded as a Hertfordshire man. His place of abode is a matter of doubt, but that he was living at Hertford in 1638 is known from the churchwarden's account of Shillington, for which place in that year he cast the treble bell still hanging in the church; the Hertford parish registers show no trace of him. Forty-six of his bells are in Hertfordshire, nineteen of them bearing, in several varieties of spelling, his favourite inscription of "Praise the Lord," "God save the King," appears on eleven; and seven bears the pious ejaculation "Jesus be our spede." Forty bells of this period are by members of a family of Grays, several others being by London founders. Of eighteenth century bells, Thomas Russell, of Wootton, Beds., supplied two to the county, the tenor at Ickleford, dated 1726, and the fourth at Pirton, dated 1731. Many came from the St. Neots foundry of Thomas Eayre. His bells include seven out of the ring of eight at Hitchin parish church, the second at great Wymondley, and the only large bells which the parishioners of Welwyn allowed to remain in their church. These last two bells bear the following curious inscription, apparently recording Eayre's solemn protest against methodism and all the other forms of belief: "Prosperity to the Established Church of England—no encouragement to enthusiasm;" they are both dated 1760. John Briant, who may, says Mr. Stahlschmidt, be described as the Hertfordshire founder par excellence, began business by casting the ring of eight bells for St. Andrew's church, Hertford, in 1782. He has many fine bells both in and out of the county, but his chief merit was as a "splicer." Specimens of his skill in adding trebles to rings of bells are to be found at All Saints', Hertford, and St. Peter's, St. Albans. His last bell in the county, at Hinxworth, is dated 1825. Briant had an excellent tuner of bells, Henry Symondson, who, speaking of him to Mr. Leonard Proctor, Bennington, said that "no man took so much pains and trouble in turning out superior bells in perfect tune;" and that "oftentimes he would rather lose by a job than have the reflection that he had sent out a bad bell." Briant had as foreman bell-caster Henry Skerman, a native of Hertford. Briant's reputation as skilful founder is shown by the fact that the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, being perplexed about their "Great Tom," which was then cracked, sought his advice in 1827, when he was eighty years of age and had retired from business. Briant, who was so honest, was far from prosperous, and falling into extreme pecuniary difficulties, was driven to seek a home in the Spencer Almshouses, St. Albans, where he died in February, 1829. It is related that he "would have one gross of iron screws put into his coffin; which was done." He was buried at Hertford, in All Saints' churchyard. For further interesting details of this local bell-founder we refer our readers to the book itself.—Hertfordshire Express.

THE QUIVER Medal for heroism in the saving of life has been awarded to Thomas Whiting, of Stratford-on-Avon, who recently saved a woman from drowning at the risk of his own life. The medal was publicly presented by the Mayor, Sir Arthur Hodgson, K.C.M.G. Whiting has also received the medal of the Royal Humane Society, in recognition of the same brave deed.

Miscellaneous Touches.

(These touches arrived too late for insertion in their proper place.)

THE EASTERN COUNTIES' GUILD.

SPALDING.—On Tuesday evening, May 10th, for practice, at the parish church of SS. Mary and Nicholas, a quarter-peal of Union Triples (1260 changes), in 47 mins. R. Jarvis, 1; J. W. Jarvis, 2; J. S. Wright, 3; C. Neaverson, 4; G. L. Richardson, 5; R. Mackman (conductor), 6; G. Skeef, 7; G. Ladd, 8.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

BARNWOOD (Gloucestershire).—On Tuesday, April 26th, six members of the above Association rang a 720 of Bob Minor, in 27 mins. (fifteen bobs and six singles, composed by the Rev. C. D. P. Davies). H. Barnes, 1; S. Romans, 2; D. Aston, 3; R. J. Wilkins, 4; H. Mitchell, 5; W. Sevier (conductor), 6.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

HARWELL.—On Monday, April 25th, at St. Matthew's Church, a few 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles and one of Stedman Doubles. E. Pether, 1; E. Napper, 2; A. Thomas, 3; D. Napper, 4; W. Napper, 5; C. Allen, 6. Tenor 19 cwt. This is without doubt the first record of half-pull ringing on these bells, which date from 1597, 1611, 1613, and are supposed to have been founded by Joseph Carter and William Yare, who were founders in Reading at these times. The second has an embossed seal on its shoulder (similar in size to our florins) with an arm in the top right-hand division. Can any antiquarian state to whom this belonged?

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

SWANSCOMBE (Kent).—Muffled peal.—On Sunday, May 8th, at Milton parish church, with the bells deeply muffled, a 720 of Kent Treble Bob, in 26 mins. A. Cornford, 1; F. King, 2; F. Hayes (conductor), 3; B. Spinner, 4; H. Davies, 5; G. Hayes, 6. This peal was rung as a tribute of respect to the Rev. W. D. Johnston, M.A., Vicar of the above parish.

BRIERLEY HILL (Staffordshire).—On Sunday, April 24th, at the parish church, for Divine Service in the evening, 1440 changes, being a 170 of Plain Bob Minor and a 170 of Grandsire Minor, in 47 mins. L. Griffiths, 1; H. Lloyd, 2; D. Garbett, 3; W. F. Hartshorne, 4; A. Beddall (conductor), 5; H. Hartshorne, 6. Muffled peal.—On Friday, April 22, several touches of Plain Bob Minor, with the bells half-muffled, as a token of respect for the late Miss Stone, only surviving sister of the Rector of the parish church. H. Lloyd, 1; A. Whatmore, 2; D. Garbett, 3; A. Beddall, 4; T. Allden, 5; H. Hartshorne (conductor), 6.

BETCHWORTH (Surrey).—On Tuesday, May 10th, at the parish church, 720 of Oxford Treble Bob. F. Sanders, 1; E. Moses, 2; *F. Arnold, 3; *F. Bridger, 4; R. Arnold, 5; W. Sadler (conductor), 6. *First 720 in the method.

BUCKLAND (Surrey).—On Thursday, April 28th, at the parish church, 120 of Stedman Doubles. J. Poplett, 1; Fredk. Sanders, 2; R. Arnold, 3; F. Sanders, 4; W. Sadler (conductor), 5. On Sunday, May 8th, for morning service, four 120's of Bob Doubles. W. Bowyer, 1; Fredk. Sanders, 2; J. Poplett, 3; F. Sanders, 4; W. Sadler (conductor), 5.

CRAYFORD (Kent).—On Sunday evening, May 1st, at St. Paulinus Church, for service, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes), in 45 mins. R. Lee, 1; G. Conyard (conductor), 2; W. Cook, 3; E. Saxby, 4; J. Slooper, 5; G. Shepherd, 6; F. French, 7; W. Saxby, 8. G. Shepherd hails from Chislehurst.

LANCASTER.—On Tuesday, May 10th, at St. Mary's church, the local company rang for practice, a half-peal (2520 changes) of Grandsire Triples (Taylor's bob-and-single variation), in 1 hr. 35 mins. Robert S. Hirst (conductor), 1; William Clayton, 2; George Winn, 3; William Jackson, 4; Henry Wilcock (first half-peal), 5; Thomas J. Parker, 6; Robert Swart, 7; James Beatie, 8. Tenor 32 cwt.

COOKLEY (Worcestershire).—On Friday evening, April 29th, for practice, at St. Peter's church, 600 of Grandsire Minor. A. Meredith, 1; G. Salter, 2; T. Pitt, 3; T. Salter, 4; H. Adams, 5; H. Williams (conductor), 6. And a 360 with T. Salter, 3; W. Smith, 4; the rest as above. And on Tuesday evening, May 10th, a 720 of Grandsire Minor, in 26 mins. J. Bennett, 1; G. Salter, 2; T. Pitt (first 720), 3; T. Salter, 4; H. Williams (conductor), 5; H. Adams, 6.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

ANSWER TO "BOB MAJOR."

SIR,—In your issue of last week appears a letter subscribed "Bob Major" in which exception is taken to some remarks made upon irregular calls, in No. IV. of my papers. All criticism of the method itself I propose to note, and deal with collectively, as thus a running fire of correspondence will be avoided, and the interest of your readers best consulted. In the present case, however, a side issue is touched which has no direct connection with the main object, and which I will therefore at once answer, although I fear I am already absorbing more than a fair share of your space. Your correspondent, unintentionally no doubt, misrepresents my meaning. He quotes the sentence "Lockwood's 9120 of Treble Bob is a peal in this method," but he omits the end of the sentence; "because although rounds at the finish are not got by the method, still the peal may be claimed to have started with rounds as the first change, and therefore 9120 changes have been rung by the method, although they have not been brought round by the method." The last three paragraphs of the paper shew that the subject under notice is the composition of exact lengths, such as date touches, and that the distinction drawn is between those that have an irregular change within them, and those in which such change comes as the first or last. I give my reasons for preferring the latter plan, on the principle that "of two evils choose the less." Mr. Snowdon held the same opinion, in evidence of which, while excluding from his book on Treble Bob all peals obtained by irregular internal calls (sixth place bobs), he admitted the 9120, which runs to the change before the final rounds by the strict method. He, however, like myself, would have been the last to place this peal on the same footing as Harrison's 8896, which remains the longest legitimate length. Unless there be a definite object to be obtained, I consider, as I have clearly stated in the concluding paragraph of the paper referred to, that any variation whatever from the method is undesirable. Any such mutilation disqualifies a touch or peal from comparison on terms of equality with those that are obtained by legitimate means. It is for this reason that Holt's ro-part peal, and all others in which calls not properly those of the method are used, cannot, to my mind, be ranked with such peals as the Original, in which the real Grandsire bob and single alone are employed. As to the term "single," your correspondent, like many others, appears to labour under a misconception. The Clavis, Hubbard, and Shipway all define it as a means by which to turn the course of the changes, and the latter authority explains that the expression owes its origin to the single change that takes place on five or six bells when the course is turned, all but two of necessity lying still. The word is in reality altogether misapplied, because the bells that make the single change are not those affected by the call, and those that are technically said to "make the single," invariably lie still. The same author, while accepting the term in its arbitrary sense, goes on to point out the absurdity of cumbering it with its original and misapplied meaning, in these words: "As the alteration (single) on seven and eight bells causes double changes, some have denoted it in this case by the term 'double.'" But, if this distinction were adopted, it would become necessary on nine or ten bells to use the term "triple." It is therefore thought better to adhere to the term "single" to mark the alteration on any number of bells, and as it is the method generally used, it will be followed throughout this work when two or three bells lay still to turn the course." "Two or three" is here evidently a misprint for "three or four." As the chief authorities are all in accord, a single in any method and on any number of bells may be defined to be an alteration which turns the course of the changes the opposite way to a bob. It may also be laid down that there is one, and only one, legitimate bob for each method; those methods that are not on the Treble Bob system possessing in addition one, and only one, legitimate single. Holt's single has therefore no right to the appellation, for it does not turn the course, and is thus nothing but another sort of bob. It is no more legitimate than the sixth place bob in Treble Bob, and is a departure from the method manufactured by its author to suit his own purposes. So that, while admiring the ability that has produced this and kindred compositions, I unhesitatingly assert that they cannot be considered legitimate peals of Grandsire Triples. If otherwise, where is the line to be drawn?

A REPLY TO "TINTINABULA."

SIR,—Might I be allowed to say a few words on the subject which the above correspondent has brought forward in "THE BELL NEWS." Now I think it a great pity that such trivial affairs are brought forward in "THE BELL NEWS," as in my opinion, and that of many others, it tends in a degree more or less to provoke a feeling of malignity among ringers generally. It seems so trifling a matter to attempt to raise a controversy upon argumentum ad ignorantiam. "Tintinabula" no doubt had an excellent motive in view when he exposed the error—"Honour to whom honour is due"—but on the face of it, it is too weak a subject to broach in the columns of "THE BELL NEWS." Would it not have been better for "Tintinabula" to have made an effort to find out the author of the paragraph that appeared in the Brighton Herald and apprised him of the mistake personally, a mistake all correspondents are liable to make, but which, I admit, should be avoided at all times. In conclusion, I hope "Tintinabula," whoever that lofty-minded personage might be, will take this in the same friendly rival spirit in which it is written.

St. Paul's Guild, Brighton, May 10th, 1887.

JAMES E. WORSSELL.

SIR,—The reply of your correspondent "Tintinabula," in answer to a previous letter of mine which appeared in the "BELL NEWS," amply bears out the statement which I then made, viz., "that he appears to be one who delights to make a mountain out of a molehill." That adage may be a worn out one, as your correspondent would wish to imply, but that argument does not prevent it from still applying to him. As regards the reproachfulness of my feelings in respect to that worn-out adage, "abuse was no argument," I hope that my previous letter was not too reproachful for your correspondent's feelings. "Tintinabula," I see, hails from Brighton. If he is a change-ringer, he is a member of the Sussex County Association, at whose expense he is evidently trying to raise this correspondence against. If he is not a member, he is certainly discussing a subject of which he can know very little. If he is a member, I am sorry I cannot return which he has paid to me, viz., by referring to me as a worthy member of the Association. Your correspondent states in regard to the previous insertion in the Brighton Herald, that "he had noticed it and thought it might have been an editorial error." If he imagines that the compositors of the Herald would make an error extending to several words by substituting words of an entirely different character in place of the original ones, I must say I am sorry for his opinion of Brighton journalists. The secretary of a society is the proper person, I believe, to write and answer all correspondence connected with the society of which he is secretary, therefore I wished to make it clear to "Tintinabula" that as the announcement never came from the hon. sec., it was not worth the trouble of noticing. I presume your correspondent may be classed with the ringers with insane ideas of whom he speaks, because if he knew it was not an official announcement, he would not (provided of course his ideas were sane) consider it worth a moment's consideration. The question which he asks in the latter part of his letter I must decline to answer, not because of want of information, but because I see in that question a desire to drag personalities into the discussion. Your correspondent started his letter with such lofty-minded ideas that I am greatly surprised at the end he should so far forget himself as to wish to discuss personal affairs. I must decline to correspond upon this subject any more, as I consider it has been fully discussed.

WHERE SHOULD RINGERS RING?

SIR,—I do not at all agree with "Also an ex-Churchwarden" as to the places where church bell ringers should ring. I have taken much interest in church bells and ringing for more than thirty years, and my principle has always been "Church bells for church purposes, and Church bell ringers for Church bells and no other bells." And for the same reason that I should object to see church singers in the buildings of any other denomination. Church bells are meant for the service of God in the church, and those who are trained to ring them should consider themselves as bound to ring them and no others, just as members of a church choir are bound to sing in a church and no other place of worship. Every man is bound to be clear in his religious belief, and not to be that curious being called a Christian unattached. The folly of a bishop's son is no justification for like errors.

R. F. T.

A QUOTATION.

SIR,—I do not generally take any notice of letters, the authors of which disguise themselves with a nom de plume or only give initials, but under the present circumstances feel that a few lines from me may prevent any further waste of your valuable space upon a subject of no public interest and but little private importance. I have not the pleasure of knowing who "Tintinabula" is, or who replied to him in "THE BELL NEWS" of the 23rd of April, nor did I act as correspondent to the Brighton Herald, but I can vouch to the following facts which may have the effect of satisfying those concerned, viz.:—That Holt's ten-part peal was rung at Lower Beeding, and Holliss' five-part at Bolney on Easter Monday last; that all, excepting the ringer of the tenor (W. F. Vernon) in the first, took part in the second, with H. Cornwall on the tenor, and further that eight of the nine ringers were elected members of the Sussex County Association prior to May, 1885, and the ninth ringer was also elected on the 2nd of August, last year, therefore both peals were strictly association peals and no unconnected ringer took part as suggested by your correspondent. I also (from enquiry made) believe that the statement "that two peals had not been rung in Sussex by one band on the same day since 1818," is quite correct. In conclusion, I would add that the St. Peter's (Brighton) Society has never claimed to have rung a peal exclusively with its own members (although ten or twelve members of the Society have taken part in different peals), and in my opinion the longer the existing friendly arrangement lasts, by which members of the three Societies in the town are always ready to unite in forming a band to attempt a peal, the better.

GEO. F. ATTREE.

REPLY TO MR. MUSKETT.

SIR,—Having seen a letter in your record of Saturday, May 7th, signed "George Musket," I was greatly surprised to see in your valuable paper respecting the long peal of Stedman Cinques, which was rung at St. Martin's, Birmingham, on February 28th, 1881. I beg to reply a few remarks respecting it, as I am the person referred to as the one who rang the second bell. He (Mr. Cattle) says there was nothing but firing in the last course, which is utterly untrue. As regards the man who rang the second bell being first out of the tower, it is utterly a very great falsehood, as I am the party who has to stop and see that everything is all right, also to lock up and take the keys and hand over to the beadle of the Church, and not under any circumstances could I leave the tower first. In this peal referred to, there were 9238 changes rung, and I should think out of this great number there were only about twenty-four bad changes, caused by the treble and seventh man stopping and wanting to dodge too long, which created a little confusion, and I was so vexed at this occurring after ringing so well and so long, that as soon as the bells came round back way, I tried to set the second bell, and it did not happen to set, so I loosed the rope and it run down. I am greatly surprised that Joseph Cattle did not make his remarks before he left Birmingham, as I think it would have looked more business-like than to let it go over so many years. I cannot tell whether his memory is bad, or whether he is troubled with a weak intellect. But we rang a peal of Grandsire Cinques about seven or eight years back at St. Martin's when Joseph Cattle was present outside with Amos Cresser, when he said he never heard Stedman Cinques rung better!

JOB JOYNES.

ST. MARTIN'S, CONEY-STREET, YORK.

We are glad to report that the sum required to pay off the annual charge upon this living has been raised and the liability discharged. For some years past the living has been subject to an annual charge of £20, which, but for the efforts put forth by the vicar, the Rev. H. Lowther Clarke, would have continued until the year 1902. The amount required to clear off the debt was £205 3s. 10d.—portion of a debt contracted in building the vicarage house, and which, according to the terms of the loan, was to be discharged by annual payments. Towards that sum the vicar contributed £25 10s., Mr. G. Oldfield, £10, Mr. J. Oldfield £10, and other gentlemen sums varying from £5 10s (Mr. Councillor Milward) to 10s 6d, the total amount of these subscriptions being £129 0s. 6d. The parish gathering of 1886 realised £21 0s. 5d., harvest thanksgiving (1886) £7 8s., and parish gathering and sale of work, held a month or two ago, £47 14s. 5d. A meeting of the parishioners was held on Thursday evening, May 5th, in the vestry of the Church, the Rev. H. L. Clarke, presiding, to consider the repairs necessary to be done to the tower of the church. It was unanimously resolved that the repairs be undertaken at once, under the superintendence of Mr. Penty, architect. A committee was appointed, consisting of the vicar, the churchwardens, and Messrs. Sampson, Milward, Border, and Balmford, to superintend the work. The committee was also authorised to borrow a sum of money, not exceeding £300, to be spent upon the repairs of the tower and church, and re-hanging of the bells.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING will be held at Tonbridge, on Monday, June 13th. Committee Meeting at 11; service in the parish church at 12; dinner at 1; allowance to practising members, 1s. and dinner. Secretaries of bands that mean to attend, and other members, must communicate by the end of this month with the Hon. Secretary, the Rev. R. B. Knatchbull-Hugessen, Wrinsted Court, Lenham, and all are requested to be so good as to notice the change of address.

R. B. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN, Hon. Sec.

WILL any lover of Church Bells kindly HELP a Country Vicar in his scheme for RESTORING (and if possible, adding to) the BELLS (Five) of his parish Church, which are in an unringable and dangerous condition; estimated cost, £320; the name of any donor of £25 or upwards will be memorialised on new bells.—Address: The Vicar, Wangford, Suffolk.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

BY A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

VII.—PROVING THE METHOD (concluded).

The last point in the proving of Duffield Major requiring notice is the examination of courses containing bobs at M for false internal rows. A diagram containing the three sixes in which these may occur is annexed. The first is the seventh six of an ordinary course, at the end of which six the first of the M calls is made. The second is the M six proper, in which 7, 8 fall into a relative position different to any which they occupy in the plain course. Here the second of the M calls is made, in consequence of which, at the third six, the tenors come into the places they would naturally take in the third six of an ordinary course.

E ¹	- -	7 8 - 6	- -	E	7
	- -	8 6 7 -	- -	O
	- -	6 - 8 7	- -	E
F ²	- -	- 7 6 8	- -	O	M
E ²	- -	7 8 - 6	- -	E
	- -	8 6 7 -	- -	O
F ¹	- 6	- - 8 7	- -	E	3
	- 6	- 7 - 8	- -	O
	- 6	7 8 - -	- -	E

The rows E¹ and E² repeat in pairs, as also do the rows F¹ and F², the middle row of the M six being common to both E and F. No notice is to be taken now of the possible repetition of rows in the seventh six with those in the third six, because as the natural course-ends of these sixes have to be obtained and proved as ordinary course-ends, such proof, as has been already shewn, will also cover the sixes in question. All that is at present under consideration is the possible falseness of an M six with sixes 7 and 3, with which alone it can repeat.

In the diagram the 6th is given in the position it would take from a bob at the previous Fourths, which call keeps it coursing in front of the tenors. For the moment, however, this bell will be held as taking no part in the proof.

If, as directed in the proof of the first rows of the sixes, the course in which an M (2) is called is pricked to the natural m¹ course-end obtained as before by transposing m² by 436512, m¹ and m² will serve as a convenient basis from which to detect false rows that may come from the M six, without any fresh process. The following are the false course-ends against the natural ones, and are in each case given as against 123456:—

False against m¹ { 3 2 4 1 5 6 (comp. with m¹ only)
 { 4 2 1 3 5 6

False against m² { 1 5 3 4 6 2 (comp. with m² only)
 { 1 6 3 4 2 5

Of these false course-ends, transposition by the first of each pair is not necessary except in compositions that contain more than one M course, for the false rows which they produce come in an M six and cannot therefore occur in an ordinary course.

Having transposed m¹ and m² respectively by their several false course-ends, these latter must be compared with the fixed course-ends, and also with any other m¹ and m² course-ends, should there be such; in which latter case the false course-ends from m¹ have only to be compared with the natural m¹ course-ends, and those from m² with the natural m² course-ends. Otherwise, as m¹ represents the order at a seventh sixth, and m² that at a third six, it would amount to comparing E rows with F rows, whereas the above false course-ends only relate to comparison between rows lettered alike. Further, the false course-ends from m¹ cannot run false with a course-end brought up by a bob at H, nor that from m² with one followed by a bob at H, for the reasons given in paper No. V. in regard to the proof of M sixes.

So much for repetition between the M six, and sixes 7 and 3. The proof between the two latter, which was deferred, has also to be considered. It is covered by testing the natural m¹ and m² course-ends by the ordinary false course-end 126543, and now the converse of the last plan of treatment is necessary, namely that the false course-end from an m¹ be compared with that from an m², and vice versa, because in this case the false rows repeat reciprocally between sixes 7 and 3 which are on different sides of the course-ends. For the same reasons this ordinary false course-end from an m¹ cannot run false with a course-end followed by a bob at H, nor that from an m² with one brought up by a bob at H.

It is, further, well to notice whether this proof can be modified when the 6th, as in the diagram, is kept coursing at the M in front of the tenors. A little attention will shew that the only possible false M rows in such a case will occur between E¹ and E², therefore the testing of the m² course-ends may be altogether omitted, the rest of the proof being required as before.

Calls at M do not disturb the course of the changes, and in proving M courses, it is only requisite to compare those of like nature. Under no circumstances can courses of opposite nature repeat with one another either at the M or adjoining sixes, for in these three sixes there are no rows of opposite nature in which 7, 8 fall into a duplicate position.

It will be understood that the B sixes in M courses require their usual proof, every such course having two sixes thus calling for attention.

I may, in concluding the proof of the method, draw attention to an exceptional course-end, namely, 125364. Being one of the odd course-ends false against 123456, it might on that account be deemed useless. This, however, will not prove to be the case, and as by it compositions can be brought round at the second backstroke of a six, its importance is considerable.

A (even.)	B (even.)	C (odd.)	D (odd.)
123456 E.	126543 E.	124635 O.	125364 O.
124635 O.	125364 O.	126543 E.	123456 E.
126543 E.	123456 E.	125364 O.	124635 O.

The above are the backstrokes of the four sixes of which 123456 and its three false course-ends respectively form the first rows. In every composition A must of necessity come the first six, therefore B can never be used as a course-end, for its first row comes in A. C can never be used, for its second backstroke comes in A. D, the course-end under notice, has only its last backstroke false against A, and if D be used this row will not come up, as the previous backstroke is rounds, therefore as much of D as is required will run true with A. Consequently, whenever the course-end 513426 comes up, a bob at H may be called and the bells brought round at the next six without any possibility of producing false rows thereby. If, however, D comes as a course-end in the usual way, the B sixes must be carefully examined, for at the B any one, but only one, of A, B, C, and D is admissible.

I have now set forth the whole proof of Duffield Major. The study of it will be passed over by all but those interested in composition, and even these latter will find it scarcely repay them to enquire into the use of bobs M. Still, in order not to have at any future time to return to the subject, I have thought it well to exhaust the proof of all possible combinations that did not part the tenors. Unless involved compositions are attempted, the necessary testing will be found extremely easy, far more so than, for instance, in Treble Bob. There are also much shorter ways of arriving at some of the results than those I have given. Since these, however, would not have answered as a basis for explanation, I prefer not to cumber my papers by entering on them, the more so, as few composers work on exactly the same lines, and those who are experienced are perfectly well able to make out their own proof scales without my assistance.

If I have failed to render plain the several processes treated of, and the reasons for them, I must take refuge in the excuse that of all sciences that of ringing is possessed of the most inadequate, most indefinite, and most ambiguous phraseology. I know of no greater trial of temper than to have to render intelligible, by means of the terms in common use among ringers, a problem of any degree of intricacy. In the manuscript book from which these papers are drawn, less than a dozen pages serve to cover the whole of the subject, simply because, by the use of the ordinary mathematical symbols, combined with abbreviated expressions for all lengthy and uncertain terms, the necessary matter can be compressed into very small compass, with the additional advantage of being far more readily grasped. Take the following by no means improbable sentence:—"When the course is turned, an out of course course, throughout which the bells of course course in an out of course coursing order, may still repeat with an in course course." Is there not here enough to shew the need of reform? One is reminded of Dean Alford's puzzle, which, although no doubt excellent English, is scarcely creditable to our language, and runs somewhat thus:—"It is incomprehensible that that 'that' that that grammarian uses should be correct."

It is worth the serious consideration of the leading members of the Exercise whether, having in view the advance in the theory and practice of change-ringing during the last twenty years, some endeavours should not be made to bring the language of the art up to the same level. At present it remains pretty much as it was at the date of the Clavis a century ago. A remodelling of the old with the addition of new terms has been found a necessity in the sciences of music, astronomy, chemistry, mechanics, and others; why should the science of ringing alone be wedded to a vocabulary entirely of the past, and be backward to initiate a similar reform?

In the next paper the qualities and extent of compositions in the method will be dealt with, and some touches given.

THE CHANGE-RINGERS' MEMORIAL TO JASPER WHITFIELD SNOWDON.—UNVEILING CEREMONY AT ILKLEY PARISH CHURCH, YORKSHIRE, ON SATURDAY, JUNE 11TH.

The President of the Yorkshire Association writes with further information regarding the above, as follows:—

Will you kindly call the attention of all subscribers to the above, who are considering the question of being present, that arrangements are being made at Ilkley to give a hearty welcome to all who come. In order to ensure a good day's ringing the Yorkshire Association's June Meeting is to be held concurrently. The gathering therefore will certainly be large, and it is hoped influential and representative.

The eight bells, by kind permission of the Vicar of Ilkley, the Rev. Howard Kempson, M.A., will be at the disposal of the visitors from an early hour, immediately following the removal of the muffles, after an in memoriam touch by our officers.

Divine Service will be held at 4.30, at which a sermon will be preached by the Rev. Canon Wigram, M.A., Rector of St. Andrew's, Hertford, and Rural Dean; member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, the St. James's Society, and the Hertford County Association, etc., etc. The window will be then unveiled.

As the subscriptions of a great number are massed together under the names of their churches and Associations it will probably prove to be impossible to communicate with each one direct. Those organizing the Ilkley arrangements will therefore be much obliged if every subscriber will take this letter as a direct invitation to be present.

In order that the final arrangements may be satisfactorily carried out each subscriber intending to be present must send in his name to Mr. Joe Beanlands, jun., the Amateur Society of Change-ringers, Ilkley, via Leeds, on or before the last day of this month.

The organizing committee are obliged to notify that it will be beyond their power to entertain as visitors any who have failed to comply with this request.

WM. SNOWDON.

THE DEVONSHIRE GUILD.

The Whitstone Branch of the above Guild had their annual outing on Saturday, May 14th, and rang at Bishopsteignton and Kingsteignton, some six-scores of Grandsire Doubles. They intended ringing at Highwick, near Newton Abbott, but the rope of the third bell was removed, so they had their walk of several miles for nothing. The day was beautifully fine, the scenery of the south Devon coast, and the valley of the Teign was lovely. The evening parade of the 1st Devon Yeomanry, and sword exercise on the Den at Teignmouth, was a very interesting sight, especially as one of the troops was under the command of Colonel Troyte, President of the Guild. Some courses of Triples were rung on the handbells, and the party returned home after a thorough day's enjoyment. The following was the band; W. Chudley, H. Baxter, W. Sercombe, G. Baxter, W. Sampson, and W. Pester, from Whitstone, they were also accompanied by the three brothers Shepherd, from Exeter. This is the first annual outing of the branch.

A PLEASANT MEETING AT ST. GILES, CRIPPLE-GATE, LONDON.

On Tuesday, June 10th, the parochial ringers of St. Giles, Cripplegate, who are also members of the Ancient Society of College Youths (established 1637), with the master of the Society (Mr. McLaughlin), were kindly invited to supper by the vicar (the Rev. A. Barff, late master of St. Paul's School choir). The ringers met in the tower, and the following members—Messrs. Cooter, French, Cecil, Mash, Jameson, Haworth, Dorrington, Springall, Joyce, Horrocks, Hayes, and Railton—rang three courses of Stedman Cinques. After this they repaired to the vicarage, and were received by the reverend gentleman. The company's insignia having been placed on the table, and grace having been said by the vicar, the good things provided began to disappear. During the progress of the meal some interesting talk on matters concerning ringing and ringers took place, and the name of the late Rev. H. T. Ellacombe was mentioned, also the name of Mr. Ellicott (a pupil of the vicar's), who is now in America, he having rang peals with some of the ringers present. Mr. J. R. Haworth, who is the oldest member of the society living, gave the history of the silver bell (which was placed on the table), also of the two silver cups; while the senior steward (Mr. S. E. Joyce) was explaining the intricacies of change-ringing to the curate (the Rev. C. E. Carter). After supper the vicar returned thanks. Then followed a course of Grandsire Caters on handbells by Messrs. Horrocks, Haworth, French, Hayes, and Pettit, as an illustration of the art of change-ringing. The Master of the society, in proposing "The Health of the Vicar," thanked him on behalf of his brother ringers for the pleasant time they had spent together that evening. The vicar thanked the Master for the kind words he had said, and thought the thanks of the clergy and laity were due to the ringers for the part they took in the joys and sorrows of the community, ringing merrily on all festive occasions, and in times of sorrow ringing muffled peals.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Chelmsford on Whit-Monday, May 30th. Divine Service at St. Mary's Church at 12.30 p.m., with an address by the Bishop of Colchester. Dinner at 1.30 p.m. in the Charity Schools, to be followed by the usual business meeting. The towers of Chelmsford (ten bells), Galleywood (eight bells), Broomfield (six bells), Springfield (six bells), Widford (six bells), will be open for the use of the members during the day. Members intending to be present, are requested to inform the Secretary on or before Wednesday, May 25th, whether they wish for dinner tickets (price 1s.), and if arriving by train, from what station they propose to start. Return tickets at 1½ fare will be issued to those who produce their receipt for the current year's subscription. Subscriptions for the ensuing year (1887-8), fall due on Whit-Monday. Any subscriptions still unpaid for the present year (1886-7), should be forwarded to me at once, that the accounts for the year may be closed. The West Ham band of handbell ringers, with a peal of 70 bells, have kindly offered to perform some selections of music at the Charity School. Arrangements are in progress for a peal of Royal at Chelmsford, and of Triples either at Galleywood or Writtle.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY BANQUET.—On one occasion a judge was proposing "Science" in a dull, technical oration, when his neighbour, a noble lord, famous in several walks of life, but lately gone hence for ever, sank peacefully, as was his wont under such provocation, into slumber. The toast was duly honoured, and "Literature" proposed, and just as the poet-inspector "Mr. Luke," as Mr. Mallock aptly called him in his "New Republic," was replying, the sleepy one awoke, more or less, to reality and "flowery nothings." He listened for a moment, then turned to the judge and curtly growled, "Who's that speaking now?" "Mr. Luke." "H'm," he grunted, "his drivel's as bald as the idiot's that sent me off." And re-adjusting his skull-cap, he composed himself once more, and was soon again unconscious in Morpheus' lap.—M. H. Spielmann, in "The Magazine of Art" for May.

THE SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

The annual gathering of the members of the above Guild was held at Poole on Tuesday, May 10th. There was service in the church at half-past eleven o'clock, when there was a fair congregation. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. A. Lawson. A special psalm was sung, and a proper lesson read by the Rev. H. T. Cavill from Zach. xiv. In place of the office hymn, the anthem, "I will extol thee," from Sir Michael Costa's Eli, was sung by Mrs. Hunkin with great expression, and after the concluding prayer of the service, the hymn "Hark, hark, my soul" was sung. The Rev. J. L. Williams, Rural Dean, was the preacher, and founded an appropriate sermon upon Exodus xxvii, 34, 35. In the course of his observations, he said that undoubtedly as far as they could make out, bells and the use they made of them to-day, were comparatively unknown in ancient times, and bells and churches, as far as they could discover, were eminently Christian, and there could not have been devised by the wit of man, anything more solemn, anything more sweet, for calling people to pray. Mr. Williams pointed out that although this was the primary use of the bells, yet they were only used to announce the death of Christians, and pealed joyfully at marriages. They in that society were living in the day of small things, but he trusted that the time would quickly come when the number of belfries connected with the society would increase from 30 to 300, and that among the churches of the diocese it would be the exception, instead of the rule, not to belong to a society like that. In welcoming them to the House of God, he did so with very great earnestness, for he was one of those who looked upon the existence of a society like that with the greatest anticipation for good. He dwelt at some length upon the importance of their avocation, reminding them that their's was a work for God, and concluded by asking them to remember this fact whenever they were engaged in ringing. The National Anthem having been sung, the Rector pronounced the benediction, and the congregation dispersed.

The business meeting was then held in the vestry of the church, when the Rev. M. Hankey, rector of Maiden Newton, presided. Earl Nelson was re-elected President; the Rev. A. D. Hill, Master; Mr. William Pinckney, Treasurer; Mr. J. R. Jerram, General Secretary, in place of the Rev. F. Wright Anderson, who had gone to reside in another diocese; the Rev. M. Hankey, secretary for Dorset; and the Rev. C. W. Hony, secretary for Wilts. The following were elected on the Committee; the Revs. E. G. Wyld, and C. N. Wyld, Messrs. W. W. Gifford, C. A. Clements, and H. A. Garrett. Votes of thanks to the Secretary, and of condolence to the Rev. J. L. Williams, who preached that day under most trying circumstances, having just lost his son, concluded the proceedings.

At quarter past one, nearly eighty of the ringers sat down to a capital dinner provided by Mr. J. C. Charlton, of the "Crown Hotel." Earl Nelson presided, and there were also present, the Revs. M. Hankey, J. A. Lawson, and A. C. Gibson (Salisbury), Mr. H. Mackintosh (Sheriff), Mr. H. W. Parker, etc. In giving the health of the Queen, the Chairman said he was sure they would not like to meet together without giving a cheer for the Queen. They all knew there would be very little jubilee without ringers, and not only did they ring, but they were loyal. Therefore he proposed that they should give three cheers for the Queen. This having been very heartily responded to, Earl Nelson said the next toast was "Prosperity to the Diocesan Guild." He owed them an apology, for when they kindly made him their president, he promised that he would always go to the meetings, but having been very unwell, he really did shirk going to one on a cold frosty day, but he had regretted it ever since, and his lady had "pitched" into him for not going. He was sorry they would not be able to get the bells of Kingston, and they could not ring also at Bournemouth in consequence of illness close to the church. He hoped they would do better next time, for when they came together they liked to give them the best ringing they possibly could. After expressing the pleasure it gave him to see so many of them present, he referred to the importance of their office, sending out beautiful sounds at a time of rejoicing as far as the wind would carry them, and tolling the bells solemnly for their departed friends. These were the responsibilities and duties which belonged to them, and they ought to be done to the honour of our Lord and Saviour. He coupled with the toast the names of the Rev. M. Hankey and Mr. Jerram, of Salisbury.

Mr. JERRAM said he felt very much obliged for the kind way in which they had received his name. As far as regarded the Guild, they were prospering fairly well, both as concerned numbers and finances. He was glad that they had got more change ringers than formerly, and some of them were aware that eight members achieved the first 5040 Grandsire Triples ever rung in Dorset, at Bridport, on Thursday, May 5th.

The Rev. M. HANKEY also responded. He said they were met together for the purpose of raising the tone of the bell-ringers. He hoped the Guild would prosper; they talked about not being able to get helpers, but he looked forward to the day when nobody would dare to refuse the Guild the bells.

Earl NELSON suggested that they should drink the Rev. J. Lawson's health, and in doing so he wished to refer to the great kindness of the Rural Dean in sticking to his engagement, notwithstanding the deep sorrow in which he had been plunged. He knew they had passed to Mr. Lawson a formal vote of thanks for the use of the church, but he thought that they might drink his health also, and that of the Rural Dean.

The Rev. J. A. LAWSON briefly responded, and said he was glad to welcome them for three reasons; because it was the jubilee year of the Queen, because they had a good peal of bells, and thirdly because in the large centres of population, he thought that the Church should be seen in her corporate capacity. He hoped that the Guild would prosper in every sense of the word, and that that would not be the last time they would visit the old town of Poole. Three cheers having been given for Earl Nelson, a similar compliment to the Sheriff terminated the proceedings. Representatives from Bournemouth (St. Peter's), Salisbury (St. Edmund's), Fontmell Magna, Mere, Downton, Okeford Fitzpaine, Broadwindsor, Canford Magna, Ebbesborne, Wimborne, and Cattistock, attended the meetings. During the afternoon, the ringers visited the churches at Wareham, Poole, and rang touches on the bells.

A meeting of the above Guild was held at Trowbridge, on Thursday, May 12th. About 100 members and friends were present. There was service at St. James's Church at 10 o'clock, with a sermon by the Vicar of Westbury. After service, Mr. A. Mackay entertained the whole company to dinner in St. James's Hall. He presided, and was supported by the Rev. H. Trotter, rector of Trowbridge, the Rev. A. D. Hill, Rev. M. Hankey, Rev. R. Hill, and other clergy. The usual toasts were proposed and responded to. The health of Mr. Mackay was most heartily drunk. This is the third time this gentleman has shown his bountiful liberality to the Guild by entertaining the whole company on the occasion of a general meeting. During the afternoon, the various companies present rang at Trowbridge, Westbury, and Bradley. At Trowbridge, 504 of Grandsire Triples. W. Alley (conductor), 1: J. R. Jerram, 2; Rev. A. D. Hill, 3; J. Hayward, 4; C. A. Clements, 5; T. Blackburn, 6; W. McCaffery, 7; G. Holton, 8. Also by the Longbridge Deverill company, several six-scores of Bob Doubles. A. Dufosse, 1; A. Smith, 2; G. Parham, 3; E. Payne, 4; F. Pearce, 5; H. Gibbs, 6.

In Memoriam.

WILLIAM TURNER.

At the age of 65, the above-named, at one time a well-known Worcester ringer, has been called to that "bourne from which no traveller returns." Though he was never what may be termed a "clever" performer at the rope's-end, he had many characteristics which begat feelings of attachment towards him from those who were his superiors in ability and social status. The tenor was his forte, the position in which he shone, it may be said literally, for while so employed his healthy-looking face appeared radiant with delight. A very fair treble ringer too, and when occasion demanded, could make a shift inside. Poor Bill! Of late years he enjoyed very bad health, and his straitened circumstances in consequence compelled him to become an inmate of the Worcester Union, where he died from paralytic seizure. On Monday, May 2nd, the members of the Worcester Society met at All Saints' and rang 1080 of Grandsire Caters, with the bells muffled, as a mark of respect to their late brother. N. Wale, 1; S. Cotton, 2; H. Pheasant, 3; W. Jenkins, 4; W. Powell, 5; W. Blandford, 6; H. Wilks (conductor), 7; J. W. Reynolds, 8; G. Cleal, 9; J. Hale, 10.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Monday, May 9th, the ringers of St. Anne's Church, Bagshot, visited Horsell for the purpose of having a pull on the fine ring of bells, which have recently been rehung by Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough. On arriving at the church the bells were raised in peal, and a 720 of Grandsire Doubles was rung by the following:—E. Angell, 1; H. Houlton, 2; F. Francis (conductor), 3; T. Gould, 4; E. Lee, 5; R. Weeks, 6. And a 720 of Grandsire Minor, in 26 mins. H. Stapleton, 1; E. Spooner, 2; F. Francis, 3; T. Gould, 4; E. Lee, 5; W. Houlton (conductor), 6. This is the first 720 on the bells. And an attempt was made for a 720 of Plain Bob Minor, but it unfortunately came to grief after ringing 320 changes. H. Stapleton, 1; H. Houlton, 2; T. Gould, 3; W. Houlton, 4; E. Lee, 5; E. Spooner (conductor), 6. Tenor 12 cwt. It being too late for another attempt the bells were lowered in peal, and the ringers retired to an inn, where they spent the remainder of the evening with the Horsell company, till "go" was called out by the landlord, and so ended a very pleasant evening. The Bagshot ringers wish, through the medium of this paper, to thank the Vicar for the use of the bells, and also the ringers for having everything ready. On Tuesday, May 10th, at St. Anne's Church, Bagshot, a 720 of Grandsire Minor. E. Angell (first 720 of Minor), 1; T. Gould, 2; F. Francis, 3; E. Spooner, 4; E. Lee, 5; W. Houlton (conductor), 6. Tenor 21 cwt.

THE ST. MARY'S SOCIETY, MONMOUTH.

On Sunday, May 15th, the members of the above Society visited the parish church of Llangattock, Monmouthshire, and after oiling and seeing that the bells were all right, a start was made for a few six-scores of Grandsire Doubles, which was brought home all right. W. Preece, 1; J. Ward, 2; G. Hearne, 3; J. Brown, 4; T. N. Jones (conductor), 5; H. Brown, 6. Afterwards "go" was called for a 720 of Bob Minor, which was brought round in 27 mins. W. Preece, 1; J. Ward, 2; W. Walters, 3; J. Brown, 4; T. M. Preece (conductor), 5; T. H. Jones, 6. And after a few more six-scores of Doubles the ringers (at the invitation of the Rev. A. Maclaverty, M.A. Vicar,) adjourned to the Vicarage, where a substantial tea was provided for them. A start was then made for home, which, after a little dodging and shifting about, was reached just in time for chiming for service at 6.30 p.m. at St. Mary's, their own parish church. The members wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," to thank the rev. gentleman for the use of the bells, and for their tea, and also to the ringers for the kind way in which they were received.

MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.—(DERBY BRANCH).

A meeting of the members of the above branch of the Association was held in St. Werburgh's Belfry, Derby, on Monday evening, May 16th, for the election of district officers for the ensuing year. The following gentlemen were unanimously chosen to fill the following positions:—Vice-president, Mr. Thomas Beresford (re-elected); committee, Messrs. Samuel Maskrey and William Shardlow (re-elected); district secretary, Mr. Austin Taberer, 41, Watson-street, Derby. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the officers for their past services, which was briefly acknowledged by the Vice-president.

ROYSTON, YORKS.

On Friday, May 13th, the remains of the late Sergeant George Wroe, a member of the Royston company, died at the ripe age of seventy-four years. He was a far-learned ringer on six bells, and a general favourite with the ringing fraternity. Sergeant Wroe was a pensioner, having served twenty-one years in the army. He took part with the 18th Lancers in the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny. He was borne to the grave by his late comrades, at Royston church, and after the service a muffled peal was rung, consisting of 720 Violet, and 240 Arnold's Victory, favourite methods of deceased. John Moorhouse, 1; Thos. L. Moorhouse, 2; Henry Cutt, 3; Jos. Haigh (conductor), 4; Geo. Cutts, 5; Geo. Moxon, 6. John Moorhouse and Geo. Moxon belong to the Sandal Magna Society; Thos. L. Moorhouse, Wakefield; the rest belong to the local company.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1887.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE has been honoured by royalty. H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge has visited the city with the object of opening the Royal Industrial Exhibition at present being held there. The Duke's visit, we are told, was in every way most successful, his reception in the streets being very flattering, and the attendance at the Exhibition itself being somewhat beyond the accommodation available. It is to be regretted that in what is of most interest to the readers of this journal, namely, the ringing, the city was very far behind what was proper, and a long way short of what other places do on such auspicious occasions. One would have thought that all the bells in the town would have been commissioned to contribute to the general rejoicing. Instead of this, the Cathedral was the only place to which the Corporation saw fit to give an order to ring, although the Church of St. John's, with eight bells, is close by the central station where the Duke came in, and also on the route which the Duke twice took on going and returning to the Assembly Rooms. All Saints' Church also has a beautiful peal of eight, which are heard, if the wind be favourable, very sweetly in the neighbourhood of the Exhibition. Our readers may possibly think that no ringers could be found to ring at the churches named, and that only at the Cathedral good ringing could be obtained, but the pitiable facts are that at the Cathedral, the beautiful peal of bells (tenor 36 cwt.) is in such a deplorable condition that the tenor is never rung up and the 7th seldom or never, the bells being almost invariably "clocked" or "clogged," at the great risk of being cracked. On this occasion, for some reason or other, probably as a kind of variation, one of the bells, 5th or 6th, was left out, and the front four appeared to be rung in set changes, the three heavy bells being monstrously "clocked" throughout the whole day. Doubtless the ringers were handsomely paid for this brilliant performance. At St. John's there is a band of amateurs who are change-ringers, and who gladly ring if favoured with an order from the corporation, and in such case the payment has on previous occasions been devoted to the restoration, &c., of their tower and bells. All Saints also has a band who ring the bells of that church in place of the old chiming arrangement, thanks to the energetic vicar, the Rev. A. S. WARDROPER, who appears to have done what he could in the belfry, pending the settlement of the debt on the spire, by providing a new set of ropes and a new wheel, &c. From the newspapers it would appear that some mention has been made to the corporation with regard to the present disgraceful state of affairs in the Cathedral tower, and it is to be hoped that something will shortly be done. The bells themselves as a peal, with perhaps the exception of the tenor, are a noble ring. All who love the old peal, require to see them rehung by a good firm, the recasting of the tenor, and the addition of two light trebles. This would be quite within the bounds of the corporation powers, and would not greatly trench on their munificence, as it could be done at a very moderate cost, and the public would very highly appreciate the change.

If such a restoration could be effected, future royal visits to Newcastle could, in the matter of ringing, be done justice to.

THE RECTOR OF ST. PAUL'S, BEDFORD, AND THE BELLS.

The Duke of Bedford has at various times acted in a liberal manner towards the town from which he holds his ducal title, his last act of generosity being the presentation of a fire-engine, the arrival of which was, says The Bedford Times and Independent, "signalized by a public holiday and general rejoicings." It appears that the Vicar of St. Paul's did not see his way clear to allow the bells to be rung on this occasion, and his refusal has brought forth the following spirited leader from our contemporary:—

"WHY WERE NOT THE BELLS RUNG?—The only thing wanted to complete the welcome given on Tuesday by the people of Bedford to the Duke of Bedford's liberal present, was the ringing of St. Paul's bells. For the silence of these bells the Vicar alone was responsible, he having met the expostulations of the churchwardens by pleading that the bells were to be used only for 'the glorification of God.' Bedford was not absolutely without the sound of bells on Tuesday; and the thanks of the town are due to the authorities of St. Peter's for allowing the best possible use to be made of what is unfortunately a small and defective set of bells. But the interruption of the custom unbroken from time immemorial, of ringing St. Paul's bells on occasions of public rejoicing in the town, caused much disappointment and not a little indignation. No one wishes to contest the Vicar's legal right to control the use of the bells; but everyone is puzzled to know on what ground he can base a conscientious objection to permit the ringing of them on such an occasion as last Tuesday's rejoicings. Doubtless there has been in many places an indecorous license in the use of bells, which have been rung in honour of all kinds of events—political victories, local saturnalia, and horse races. But there are events and events. Has the Vicar come to the conclusion that nothing is to 'the glorification of God' but what takes place in the edifice or is technically connected with the officials of the parish church? Should St. Paul's suffer a misfortune similar to that which not long since befel St. John's, would it not be 'the glorification of God' that we possess a steam fire-engine that will make it a comparatively easy matter to extinguish fire? Moreover, it ought not to be forgotten that the Corporation still retains a kind of official interest in St. Paul's Church. The Corporation has, by special faculty, a pew in that church; and it gives yearly a handsome subsidy to the organ expenses—a payment, by-the-by, which is of every uncertain legality. Had the welcome to the engine included a service at church we should doubtless have had the bells rung throughout the day; but since the Vicar's participation in the ceremony was confined to his presence as Mayor's chaplain, the whole affair seems to have been regarded as too 'secular' to justify the recognition by the ringing of bells consecrated to 'the glorification of God.' We ask, however, why should not the commendable rejoicing of the people find an echo in the church? Is it a part of Mr. Woodard's creed that nothing but what is distinctively ecclesiastical or theological should receive the sanction of religion? Surely he does not hold that no secular ground for sorrow or rejoicing should ever be recognised by the Church? If not, why should not the bells, which are consecrated to God's service, be employed to give God's sanction to the rejoicing of the people when that rejoicing has an innocent and worthy cause? We contend that the Vicar, by refusing to allow the bells to be rung on Tuesday, withheld from a praiseworthy public ceremony the religious sanction which his office made it his duty to give. The bells could not possibly have been desecrated by being used in such a way as to show that the religion of the Church of England is not something quite apart from the everyday joys and sorrows of life. We always thought it was a leading principle of that religion that everything not sinful had a direct connexion with God; and we therefore ask again why the customary sanction of the 'National Church' was refused to a public rejoicing in which there could not possibly be any element of wrong. Let us not be misunderstood. We can appreciate and respect actions based on conscientious motives. We do not press the argument that the Vicar's conduct has been most impolite in the present attitude of the general public towards the Established Church. We give the Vicar credit for not allowing himself to be biassed by questions of policy when conscience is concerned. But may lay journalists be forgiven if they ask for the grounds on which this conscientious action is based? That a man is acting according to conscience is no proof that his conscience is not under the influence of prejudice or of culpably narrow views. What is there in the history of Christianity to justify the Vicar's very narrow interpretation of the right use of church bells? He cannot appeal to primitive Christianity, for that had no bells. He cannot appeal to continental Christianity, for, as he very well knows, change-ringing is a peculiarly English custom. Ours is, in a special and technical sense, the land of bells. We ask what is there in any part of English ecclesiastical history to justify the Vicar's decision?

Has there ever been a time, since peals of bells were first rung in England, when they were not rung on occasions of public rejoicing, even though those occasions were not Church festivals? If the Vicar's ruling is to be consistently carried out, we shall have no bell-ringing in future when we elect a mayor, or on any civic or local festival when the public has been accustomed to give expression to its rejoicing by the ringing of bells. Since the Vicar's settlement in Bedford, we have had a large extension of bell-ringing on Sundays, and at other times when services are being held, or when the ringers are pleased to practise. So much is this the case, that serious complaints of excessive bell ringing have been made. And yet when everybody wishes to hear the bells, when a generous donor has enriched the town with what is at the service of all to save life and property from destruction, when public gratitude for a noble present, and public satisfaction at possessing a means of protection against a common and a constant danger seek to find joyous and appropriate expression, we are told that the matter has not enough to do with 'the glorification of God' to make it consistent with a clergyman's scruples to ring the bells."

So much for our contemporary's strictures. Not altogether logical perhaps, and sometimes not strictly correct. The uncharitable letter which follows, and which we cull from the same print, would we imagine, entirely defeat the object sought by the writer.

"CHURCH BELLS.—TO THE EDITOR.—Sir,—Things the most offensive and the most atrocious have been done in the name of 'conscience.' In Church matters we find conscience covering the impudence of the 'superior person' and the arrogance of the 'priest of God.' At St. Paul's, Bedford, the new vicar, the Rev. Lambert Woodard, has been 'mingling the cup,' adding water to the wine, and he has burned lights in the day time. Last Sunday, like other law-breakers of his cloth, he asked sympathy for the law-breaking Bell Cox, who is now in gaol for using a church belonging to the Establishment for performances which the law of that Establishment forbids. On Tuesday afternoon last, our vicar, it was stated, forbade the public bells of his public church, to be rung, because the occasion was a secular one.

PAULINE."

Most of our readers will on reading the above, be under the impression that the worthy Vicar has "strained a point" in this matter. But how much better to bow to his dictum with regard to bell matters, than to be controlled by such a person as the writer of this letter. We can gauge his (the writer's) leanings and broad mind to a nicety, and wish him joy of them.

"THE TWELVE 6-7's."

A report of a touch, published lately in our columns, purporting to contain the above properties, called forth an assertion from a correspondent that it did not in fact possess these qualities. This assertion was in turn contradicted by the composer, who at once emphasized his original statements regarding it. Without entering into the question of this particular touch, we think that such a sentence as "the twelve 6-7's" may not be exactly understood by everyone. Perhaps a few observations by way of elucidation may not be out of place.

In the extent of Grandsire (or any other) Triples there are 120 changes with 6-7 at home the right way; that is with the 7th behind the 6th. But these 120 changes are not accepted, either of them, in the point under discussion. It is only when the treble is at lead, either at hand or back-stroke, with the two bells above-named behind, that a 6-7 can be claimed. The number of 6-7's in a 5040 is thereby reduced to twenty-four, one-half being produced at the handstroke, the other half at the backstroke lead of the treble; twelve in-course and twelve out. And when these twelve in-course lead-ends are produced, the touch is properly designated as having the features in question. But should twelve 6-7's be obtained by the use of singles, part of them thus being in-course, and part out, such a definition of quality should not be employed. We may say of such a touch that it has twelve 6-7's, certainly, but not "the" twelve.

When the whole of the 6-7's are produced, twelve at hand and twelve at backstroke, it may be said that the touch has "all" the 6-7's. But the best way is to have them all at backstroke, which can only be done by a judicious use of singles, agencies which are at the best of times treacherous, as many young composers can testify.

The same remarks apply to the extent of 7-4's or 4-6's, positions which are as much esteemed in ringing Triples.

WHITSUNTIDE HOLIDAY ARRANGEMENTS.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.—This company have made ample arrangements for the extra traffic, which will ensue, not only on account of the holiday season, but in consequence of great jubilee exhibitions being held at Manchester, Liverpool, and other places, on May 28th. THE ACCIDENT TO MR. ROBERT TUKE.

A few weeks ago we informed our readers, that Mr. Tuke, of Bradford, had experienced a severe accident through being thrown from his trap. It was hoped at the time that the injuries sustained were not of a serious nature, but we are sorry to say these anticipations have not been realised, and Mr. Tuke has been ordered a complete cessation from all business engagements. In accordance with medical advice, he has gone abroad for a short time, and we feel we are but expressing the earnest hope of the Exercise, that he may return with renewed health to continue his work in the Association, which can ill afford to lose his services. In the meantime, we are desired to say that all communications intended for him should be addressed to Mr. B. T. Copley, 3, St. Jude's Square, Bradford.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

WHERE SHOULD RINGERS RING?

SIR,—How many more times shall I have to try to explain to some of your correspondents the difference between the offices of ringers and singers and others who actually take part in the church services? Here is someone again trying to assimilate these two. Again let me point out that clergy, choirmen, chorister boys and others who actually help in the performance of Divine Service, including the worshippers who attend the service, nominally at least, and it is to be hoped really and spiritually too, enter into and take part in such services. Therefore if any of the above attend or take part in worship at a Roman Catholic church or a dissenting chapel, they are acting a false part by outwardly countenancing doctrines and practices which they profess not to believe in. But, as I have often said before, with ringers the case is totally different. All they have to do is to ring at certain times. Although ringing for service or on a great festival of the church may be looked upon as a church work, it is no use to compare this with ringing long peals for pleasure. The latter is simply and solely for man's gratification and glorification and nothing else. It is no use to talk about doing it to the honour and glory of God in any higher sense than that all things, which are not positively wrong, should be done to God's honour and glory, even entirely secular work which has no connection with the church at all. This time I give my real signature.

J. R. JERRAM, ALSO AN EX-CHURCHWARDEN.

SIR,—We live in stirring times, and consequently should not be surprised at anything, but I certainly never expected to see the opinion of "R. F. T." as expressed in your columns of last week. That a man, because he rings the bells of his parish church, should on that account, not be allowed to ring the bells of any church not in communion with his own, appears to me so narrow-minded and bigoted as to carry its own condemnation. R. F. T. mentions choir-men as a contemporaneous case, but in that also he fails, for where will he find a church choir, the members of which are "bound to sing in a church, and no other place of worship." I have had many a pleasant ring in towers not belonging to the Church of England, and certainly do not consider, when doing so, that I am compromising my faith in my own church.

A.B.

THE TENOR AT ST. LAWRENCE, JEWRY.

SIR,—It is at all times interesting to a lover of bells to read something in connection with their founding, hanging, and the more or less use of them by ringers, and especially rang on what may be termed notable rings. Such interest, however is frequently qualified in the reports of peals appearing in print by mis-statements of the weights of the tenor bells. In making this latter remark I now more especially allude to the record appearing in "THE BELL NEWS" of the recent peal (the fourth on the bells) at St. Lawrence, Jewry, the weight of tenor being given as 36 cwt. I should like to ask the gentleman who makes the assertion, where he obtained his information enabling him to notify so decisively 36 cwt. as the correct weight. I have heard from one, who was a practical authority (I refer to the late Mr. Boswell), that the appropriate weight of the St. Lawrence tenor, in accordance with its diameter at rim, and thickness at sound bow, would give the figures at about 28 cwt., certainly not exceeding 29 cwt. And I have had further information from another authority, of several years experience, that a bell to weigh 36 cwt., note C, should measure at its diameter of rim 4 ft. 10, and the thickness at the sound bow at least three-seven-eighths. In my somewhat imperfect recollection is that Mr. Boswell's figures gave the dimensions of the bell of St. Lawrence as 4 ft. 7 inches in diameter, by 3½ inches thick at the sound-bow.

MATTHEW A. WOOD.

[Our opinion on this coincides with that of Mr. Wood. We have in fact maintained it recently in conversation with one who took part in the peal.—Ed.]

THE 7008 OF DOUBLE OXFORD BOB MAJOR.

SIR,—In your ringing columns a few weeks ago there was an account of a 7008 of Double Oxford Bob Major, and in a foot-note it was stated that it beat the 6000 rung at Gravesend, in 1820. We have no record of any Double Oxford Bob being rung here. There was 6000 of Double London Court Bob rung here in 1817, and the same number of Double Norwich Court Bob in 1818. The manuscripts of peals rung by the late Mr. W. Eversfield do not mention it either, though he rang at that time.

H. D. DAVIES.

DEATH OF A CELEBRATED RINGER.

It is our painful duty to record the death, at the advanced age of 72 years, of a person whose name as a composer, conductor, and ringer, has been celebrated for more than half a century in the annals of change-ringing in Lancashire—namely, Mr. James Wood, sen., of Ashton-under-Lyne, whose death took place on Tuesday, May 3rd. Another painful fact connected with this matter, was that his death was followed by that of his wife, (who was a member of another ringing family in Ashton), on the 6th of the same month, and they were both interred on Monday, May 9th, at St. Peter's, Ashton, (of which he had been sexton for over a quarter of a century, and took a great interest in getting the bells put in the tower, which have been of great use to the ringers of Ashton), amidst a large concourse of spectators and ringers of Ashton and neighbouring towns. Ringers were present from the following places: Manchester, Hyde, Stockport, Stalybridge, Saddleworth, Southport, and Sheffield. Immediately after the funeral ceremony was concluded, the following rang a course of Grandsire Caters at the graveside: G. Longden, 1-2; T. Hattersley, 3-4; J. Thorp, 5-6; J. S. Wilde, 7-8; B. Broadbent, 9-10. Muffled touches were rung in the tower afterwards by various bands of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, and Treble Bob, and Double Norwich Court Bob Major. One noted performance of this celebrated ringer, an account of which appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" of February 13th, 1886, of a peal which he composed (after the bells had been crossed), as it was being rung. Mr. Wood rang his first peal of Grandsire Caters at St. Michael's Church, Ashton, on October 17th, 1836, since which time he has taken part in 114 peals of 5000 changes and upwards, and rang his last peal of Treble Bob Major, on December 1st, 1877, at St. Peter's, Ashton. His longest peal was 10,259 of Grandsire Caters, which he composed and conducted; he also composed and conducted 8240 of Treble Bob Royal, both were rung at St. Michael's, Ashton. The following is a list of peals he took part in: Grandsire Triples, 13; Grandsire Major, 2; Grandsire Caters, 36; Grandsire Royal, 1; Grandsire Cinques, 2; Bob Major, 4; Bob Royal, 1; Treble Bob Major, 41; Treble Bob Royal, 13; Treble Bob Maximus, 1. Mr. Wood was the father of Samuel and James Wood, who took part in the long peal of Treble Bob at Mottram, which thus prove their descent from so celebrated a ringer and conductor.

ADULTERATION.—Undoubtedly one of the greatest curses of the age in which we live is adulteration. Whatever we eat, it is hard to get away from the tricks of those whose one motive in life is making haste to be rich. Of course it is impossible to adulterate a leg of mutton as a leg of mutton, but means have been found to adulterate the sheep if I may be allowed the expression. Beef and mutton are not to be got now as they were to be obtained fifty years ago. Man has seen fit to improve on Nature; the result is that the grazier and the butcher make more money, while we eat inferior meat. Bullocks are now fed on oil-cake, and are thus brought prematurely fat to the slaughter-house. There is a distinct difference in the smell of the roast fat of a sirloin of beef from a bullock that has been fed on oil cake and one that has eaten nothing but grass. Of course in country places it is quite easy to know the history of the animal we eat. It is not every house-keeper in towns, however, that is able to say, like the impertinent waiter in the Boots at the Swan, "I can recommend that 'ere bit of beef, for I know'd him when he was a bullock." It will always be found that animals fed on Nature's food are preferable in flavour to those fed artificially. A wild rabbit is very superior to a tame rabbit. Pheasants that fly about in the woods are superior in quality to those that are reared like chickens on a farm. One of the greatest delicacies of the table is a haunch of venison, which comes into season next month. Possibly some few years hence some enterprising dealer in game will breed and rear deer in stalls like bullocks, and then one more luxury will be blotted out from our bill of fare.—From "The Lady's World" for May.

WILL any lover of Church Bells kindly HELP a Country Vicar in his scheme for RESTORING (and if possible, adding to) the BELLS (Five) of his parish Church, which are in an unringable and dangerous condition; estimated cost, £320; the name of any donor of £25 or upwards will be memorialised on new bells.—Address: The Vicar, Wangford, Suffolk.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

To Geo. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

BY A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

VIII.—EXTENTS, QUALITIES, AND TOUCHES.

Before giving touches and peals, it will be well to glance at the extent and qualities of composition in Duffield Major. The full extent with the 6th at home will be the number of courses the remaining five bells can work, for the whole of these are available, as 6,7,8 never fall into a duplicate position in any one course. The extent is therefore 120 courses, half of which will be odd and half even, amounting to 5760 changes. I was in doubt whether it would be possible to obtain the whole, but the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer has promptly settled the question by forwarding to me a 5760 in which the 6th is never shifted. This peal is in eight equal parts, a most remarkable division, and one which I have never known before in any method. With the 6th moveable, the extent will be the number of courses that can be worked on six bells, less the false courses. The total number would be 720, of which half are even and half odd. Thus the even false course-end, 126543, and the two odd ones, 125364 and 124635, will all act against each of the 720 courses. Now it will be noticed that as 126543 is to 123456, so is 124635 to 125364, and these four course-ends form a block complete in themselves, affecting, and affected by, no other course-ends. In this way the whole 720 is divisible into 180 blocks of four courses each, any one of which four, and only one, is available. From this two points are clear: first, that the whole extent of Duffield Major is 180 courses, amounting to 8640 changes; second, that the number is obtainable with even courses only, providing it should be possible to compose such a peal. This however is in the highest degree improbable, and most likely singles will have to be used, causing part of the courses to be even and part odd. In no attempt for extents can bobs at either H or M be used, for both entail an irrecoverable loss of a portion of the course.

Having shewn the extent of the method, so far as concerns eight bells, I will indicate the lines of composition which will give the best musical results. The finest peals are those with the 6th at home throughout, for in these there is not a single discord from beginning to end. The most harmonious courses will be those having the 4th in either 4ths or 2nds place, in addition to the 6th at home, as 468s will come before all the course-ends. Courses with the 4th at home are, of the two, to be preferred, as thus 7, 4 will dodge together both in front and behind, producing a very pleasant effect. If the 6th is shifted, the 4th will naturally be selected as the best bell to fill the place, and peals with the 4th and 6th sharing the 6ths place work may most probably be obtained. With the 6th in either 3rds or 5ths place, 678s will come at the course-ends as well as when this bell is at home. Another plan is open, namely to fix the 6th in 4ths place during the time it is away from home. Such a composition would have the 6th right and wrong, for the 4ths place bell courses after the 7th, thus doing the work of the 5th in other methods. This treatment offers considerable facilities to the composer, but is open to the objection that the small bells will get into 6ths place and spoil the harmony when the tenor is dodging wrong.

In regard to the actual plan of composition in this method, it bears a close resemblance to that on which peals of Stedman Caters are worked, that is, it must be broadly speaking a five-part plan. A further point of likeness is found in the fact that there are six working bells, and, if one is fixed, all liability to internal falseness is avoided. More than two consecutive bobs should also, as is the practice in the above method, be as far as possible avoided, although this is not always feasible. With these remarks I conclude my observations on "Duffield Major" and proceed to touches and peals.

In the following touches the most musical are marked for the convenience of inexperienced conductors. Several are only given as examples of peculiar calling, without reference to the quality of the music. It must not be forgotten that a course called H consists of only one six, and one in which M (2) occurs is what may be termed a double course, of 84 changes. Touches that finish with the course-end 125364 will come round two changes later. When this course-end comes up otherwise than by a bob at H it is immediately preceded by "Tittums," and if 123456 comes otherwise than by a bob at H it is immediately preceded by "Queens." "Whittington," 12753468, will under similar circumstances precede the course-end 142536. I have not thought it necessary to present many of the touches which it is possible to obtain from a direct use of the scale of course-ends, for these can be easily arranged as occasion requires. Any that have the 6th at home throughout may be doubled by calling a single instead of some one bob, and repeating the calling; all such will prove musical, indeed when the 6th is away half the music is lost. The touches I have marked are some which are specially harmonious from having the 4th in position in addition to the 6th. The letters H, I, B, O, F, and M (2), represent respectively the calls: Home, In, Before, Out, Fourths, and Middle with a double.

Erratum:—In the last number, page 97, first column, fourth paragraph, for "If, as directed in the proof of the first rows of the sixes, the course in which an M (2) is called is pricked to the natural m¹ course-end obtained as before by transposing m¹ by 436512," &c; read "If, as directed in the proof of the first rows of the sixes, the course in which an M (2) is called is pricked to the natural m¹ course end, and the natural m² course-end obtained as before by transposing m¹ by 436512," &c.

GEO. F. ATTREE, Hon. Sec.

THE CASE OF MR. BELL COX.

With reference to this case, in which so many of our readers feel an interest, the Dean of Durham sends the following letter to The Standard :—

"SIR,—As one of your readers who has in times past often admired the ability and fairness of your ecclesiastical articles, you will allow me, I hope, respectfully to express my strong dissent from your statement that Mr. Cox's 'release from prison is the only point on which he will have with him the sympathies of upright and impartial men.' Such a sentence would bring thousands of us clergy, as well as of the laity, under a rather strong and sweeping anathema, for we believe that Mr. Cox's imprisonment has been cruel and unjustifiable, that many of those who have contributed to it are open to charges of illegality at least as grave as those which have been brought against Mr. Cox himself, and that the scandal of which you justly complain, as injurious in the highest degree to the interests of the Church, will continue to be so, unless the two great parties in the Church of England can be led by their rulers to tolerate each others' diversities, both of opinion and of Ritual.

"With regard to the legality of Mr. Cox's proceedings I will speak presently; but first let me say that nothing can be more mistaken, and indeed unjust, than to represent the points at issue, as is sometimes done, as being mere trivialities. The real state of the case has seldom been better put than it was in an article of your own—written a few years since, and which struck me so much at the time that I preserved it—in which, after a striking statistical account of the progress of what is called Ritualism, you say:—'Thus, Ritualism of one kind or another continues to flourish, as if no laws had been made to restrain it. It is no secret that a highly ornamental service is popular with a very numerous class; that the labouring classes, men as well as women, attend the early services and the late ones' (I saw myself notices of four Communion services, at six, seven, eight, and eleven o'clock, on Ascension-day, at a small church near Regent-street); 'and that the young are filled with a reverent and religious spirit productive of excellent results.' And you conclude your statement with these remarkable words: 'This development of Ritualism is only what was foreseen by Cardinal Newman as the necessary sequence of the High Church revival. If the Anglican Church were to compete with any success against the Roman it must have (he said) a Ceremonial, a Ritual, and a fulness of doctrine and devotion which it had not at present; and as we see the hold on the popular mind which the service evidently possesses, we should consider, perhaps, how best to regulate and chasten it, rather than entirely to extirpate it.'"

"Will you allow me, sir, to say that no better justification seems to me required than is contained in these words for such services as those of Mr. Bell Cox and of many other clergymen of our Church—services which, I am persuaded, must go on and flourish, and the attempt to crush which would only create a most formidable schism among us. Such services, right or wrong, are not trivial—they are realities, both as expressing doctrine and devotion. Their object is to give, according to Cardinal Newman's idea, a rich and beautiful Ritual to the English Church, and, above all, to restore the Holy Eucharist to its true position as the great service of the Church—a position which it would be a defiance of all history to assert that it has really held among us till within the last forty or fifty years. These are objects dear to the hearts of thousands, and tens of thousands, of our people; they are too closely entwined with the religious thoughts and convictions of the past and present generation of Churchmen to be put down without something very like the dismemberment of the Church itself.

"Of course, it is a ready answer to all this to say that the acts complained of have been pronounced to be illegal, and that clergymen must obey the law, especially when they are required to do so by their own Bishop. But such an answer really ignores the most important circumstances of the case. Every one knows that nothing is more uncertain than the law of Ritual; that contradictory decisions have been given on almost every important point; that no clergyman strictly obeys it, the Bishops least of all; and that, if it is to be enforced strictly, the Bishop of Liverpool is a far greater offender against it than Mr. Bell Cox. 'It is monstrous,' says the Spectator, with perfect truth, in an able article of only last Saturday, 'that while Bishop after Bishop, and especially Mr. Bell Cox's own Bishop, ignores the very same ecclesiastical law which Mr. Cox ignores, he should even be deprived of his living for disobeying, with the full approval of his congregation, just such a law as the bishops disobey without any evil consequences at all; and it proceeds to ask 'What would be said if a Bishop was sent to a felon's cell, and compelled to perform the ordinary duties of a prisoner, simply for refusing to wear a cope in administering the Communion?' And this fact, the non-compliance of the bench of bishops with only one or two exceptions with the laws of Ritual, which are distinctly laid down in Canon after Canon, and in judgments which they themselves have passed, constitutes no small part of the strength of the case both of Mr. Bell Cox and of the whole

Ritualist Party. If there is any point which recent judgments have brought prominently forward it is this, that for the due celebration of the Holy Eucharist the Bishop, or the chief minister in a Cathedral, is to be 'vested in a cope.' Their Lordships, including the Archbishop of York and the then Bishop of London, are of opinion, says the Purchas judgement in 1871, that the cope is to be worn in ministering the Holy Communion on high feast days in Cathedrals and collegiate churches. And yet, though the Bishop of London felt himself bound to obey this judgement, the chief Episcopal Judge has never done so. I do not venture to canvass the course adopted by the Bishops; they may say that the dress enjoined is obsolete, or that its revival would have been unpopular; some, I believe, even say that they use it already. But is there any possible answer to the statement that their general non-compliance with so distinct a law of the Church deprives them logically of the power of sanctioning charges of less manifest illegality in the others? I must, however, add that the very large majority of the Bishops are well known to be opposed to the line which the Bishop of Liverpool has taken. I am confident that nine out of ten of his brethren would have used the power which the Ecclesiastical Courts Commission deliberately retained in their hands of refusing to sanction the course by which Mr. Cox was committed to prison.

"I venture, then, to hope that, both on general grounds, and especially on that of a fair administration of the law, those who consider that Mr. Cox has been treated both unwisely and unjustly may still be 'upright,' and even to a reasonable extent 'impartial.' With regard to Mr. Cox himself, very few will deny that his tone and bearing, from first to last, during this unhappy case, which has now been a trial to him for years, has been such as even his strongest opponents have respected. And I have only to add that while I certainly think that the Bishop of Liverpool has acted both inconsistently and unwisely, I trust that I have said nothing which is not consistent with a high respect both for his character and his office. I have many kind remembrances of him derived from old Oxford days. I am sure that the course which he felt himself bound to pursue has caused him real pain, and equally so that no one (in his private capacity, at least) is more rejoiced that Mr. Cox should be released from a position of cruel and prolonged suffering.

Sixth.—"Thomas Mears, founder, London, A.D. 1727. Recast 1843, and 1887; R. Tucker and E. S. Knight, C.W." Diameter 40 in. 12 c. 1q.

Seventh.—"A.D. 1630. Recast by John Warner & Sons, London, 1887." Diam. 44 in. 14c. 3q.

Tenor.—"Thomas Mears, founder, London. The gift of J. Grancell and Joan, his wife. Sing praises to God. A.D. 1734. Recast 1843. R. Tucker and E. S. Knight, C.W., and by Warner & Sons, London, 1887." Diam. 49 in., weight 19 cwt. 3 qrs. Note E.

The district church has two bells. The large one, weighing about 8 cwt., is inscribed "T. Mears, of London, Fecit 1827," and the small bell has on it "S.P. 1631 W."

SUDBURY, SUFFOLK.

Ascension Day was a day long looked forward to by the ringers of this town, as it was the day appointed for the first ringing of the bells of St. Peter's church after rehanging. The bells have been rehanging in a new English oak frame, the four large bells have been fitted up with new stocks, wheels, stays, clappers, etc., the 7th and tenor have had the large ugly cannons cut off, which have greatly improved them. The work was entrusted to Messrs Barton and Co., engineers of this town, who with the assistance of Mr. H. Howell, of Ipswich, have certainly made a splendid job of it, the go of the bells being perfect. We may mention that the bells were weighed with the stocks and wheels on, but the tenor was weighed with nothing at all on, and was found to weigh 23 cwt., and it has always been recorded as 22 cwt. The first touch on the bells was a 336 of Bob Major. G. L. Andrewes, Esq., 1; F. Tolliday, 2; J. Campin, 3; W. Griggs, 4; W. Howell, 5; H. Harper, 6; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 7; A. Scott, 8. The next touch was a 504 of Grandsire Triples. F. Tolliday, 1; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 2; A. Scott, 3; W. Griggs, 4; W. Howell, 5; H. Harper, 6; H. Howell (Ipswich), 7; J. Campin, 8. Various touches of Treble Bob, Bob Major, and Grandsire Triples, were rung during the day, the longest being an attempted 1088 of Treble Bob, which was unfortunately lost in the last lead but one, through the treble man getting out of his place. All being well, a peal will be attempted on Whit-Monday. The formal opening of the bells will not take place till after the Jubilee Day.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX-BELL RINGERS.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the above will be held on Whit Saturday, June 4th, at Standish, when punctual attendance is requested. A tea will be provided in the parish church schoolroom at 5 o'clock. After tea, the usual business meeting will be held, to pass accounts, to elect the officers for the year, to elect new members, and to transact any regular business of the Association. JAMES HIGSON, Sec.

57 Chorley Road, Blackrod, Near Chorley.

PROPOSED RINGING DAY AT LINCOLN.

On Saturday last, the Rev. H. J. Cheales, M.A., Vicar of Friskney, invited the presidents and secretaries of the Lincolnshire societies to meet him in the vestry of the parish church, Boston. Representatives attended from the North Lincolnshire, Eastern Lincolnshire, and the Eastern Guild societies. The chair was taken by the Rev. H. J. Cheales, President of the East Lincolnshire Association. The object of the meeting was to discuss the wishes of several members, that they should meet in Lincoln and ring together, and also to have a special service in the Cathedral in celebration of the Queen's Jubilee, and as a preliminary step of the meeting once a year. Letters were read from the Bishop of Lincoln, expressing his hearty approval of the scheme, and his willingness to give an address, and the Dean of Lincoln, who is President of the North Lincolnshire Association, also promised his support. It is much to be regretted that no representative from the South Lincolnshire Association could make it convenient to attend, it being the oldest society in Lincolnshire. It was proposed that meeting be held at Lincoln on Saturday, June 25th, and the Dean be asked to hold a special service in the Cathedral, and that a dinner be provided, at which the Bishop and Dean will be asked to attend and speak. Particulars can be obtained by members from their respective secretaries, who will in due time issue notices to their members, when it is hoped that a good meeting will be held.

THE WATERLOO SOCIETY, LONDON.

NOTICE is hereby given that Mr. W. Tyack has been appointed Secretary to this Society. 18th May, 1887.

THE CHANGE-RINGERS' MEMORIAL TO JASPER
WHITFIELD SNOWDON.—UNVEILING CEREMONY AT ILKLEY PARISH CHURCH, YORKSHIRE,
ON SATURDAY, JUNE 11TH.

The President of the Yorkshire Association writes with further information regarding the above, as follows:—

Will you kindly call the attention of all subscribers to the above, who are considering the question of being present, that arrangements are being made at Ilkley to give a hearty welcome to all who come. In order to ensure a good day's ringing the Yorkshire Association's June Meeting is to be held concurrently. The gathering therefore will certainly be large, and it is hoped influential and representative.

The eight bells, by kind permission of the Vicar of Ilkley, the Rev. Howard Kempson, M.A., will be at the disposal of the visitors from an early hour, immediately following the removal of the muffles, after an in memoriam touch by our officers.

Divine Service will be held at 4.30, at which a sermon will be preached by the Rev. Canon Wigram, M.A., Rector of St. Andrew's, Hertford, and Rural Dean; member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, the St. James's Society, and the Hertford County Association, etc., etc. The window will be then unveiled.

As the subscriptions of a great number are massed together under the names of their churches and Associations it will probably prove to be impossible to communicate with each one direct. Those organizing the Ilkley arrangements will therefore be much obliged if every subscriber will take this letter as a direct invitation to be present.

In order that the final arrangements may be satisfactorily carried out each subscriber intending to be present must send in his name to Mr. Joe Beanlands, jun., the Amateur Society of Change-ringers, Ilkley, via Leeds, on or before the last day of this month.

The organizing committee are obliged to notify that it will be beyond their power to entertain as visitors any who have failed to comply with this request.

WM. SNOWDON.

REOPENING AT WOODBRIDGE, SUFFOLK.

Considerable interest was aroused in Woodbridge on Monday, by the re-opening of the Church bells at the old parish church (St. Mary's), by the Norwich Diocesan Association. A short history of the Woodbridge bells, (which are noted as being a very fine peal), may not be inappropriate. They in their original form, date, as far as can be ascertained, from the fifteenth century. In 1676 two bells were added to the peal, and in 1798 they were re-cast and re-hung by Thomas Osborne, of Downham. Nothing had been done to them since, and the consequence was they at length got into a very worn condition. Therefore it was that a few weeks ago, Messrs. Day, of Eye, were engaged to re-hang the bells, and thoroughly has the work been performed. The bells have all been taken up and re-hung on entirely modern principles. They have been turned on new stocks, so that the hammers of the bells now strike the unworn portions of the metal. The crown staples have been taken out, and new ones put direct through the crown of the bells. All the bells have been supplied with new clappers, and cast-iron bell carriages securely bolted at the top of the frame. They have also new gun-metal bearings, and cast-iron bed plates on the sides of the stocks, and the gudgeons fitted into the same. The wheels are all new, and there are also new improved bell boxes. The bells are now in first-class condition, and work with all the ease imaginable. The inscriptions on the bells, with their respective weights are as follows: 1.—"The Lord to praise my voice I'll raise,"—8 cwt. 1 qr. 17 lbs.; 2.—"Hear me when I call,"—8 cwt. 0 qrs. 23 lbs.; 3.—"Strike me, and I'll sound sweetly,"—9 cwt. 26 lbs.; 4.—"Peace and good neighbourhood," 9 cwt. 2 qrs. 27 lbs.; 5.—"Our voices shall with joyful sound make hills and valleys echo round,"—11 cwt. 1 qr. 17 lbs.; 6.—"In wedlock's bands all ye who join with hands your hearts unite, so shall our tuneful tongues combine to laud the nuptial rite,"—12 cwt. 2 qrs. 2 lbs.; 7.—"We to the Church the living call, and to the grave do summon all,"—17 cwt. 3 qrs. 8 lbs.; 8.—"John Hammond, Robert Allen, churchwardens,"—26 cwt. 3 qrs. 11 lbs. Each bell also bears the name of Thomas Osborne, Downham, founder. The bells were started ringing soon after six o'clock on Monday morning by some of the local contingent, but during the day a large number of members of the Norwich Diocesan Association arrived from Redenhall, Great Bentley, Norwich, Ipswich, Yarmouth, Beccles, Diss, Eye, Kelsale, Aldeburgh, Wenhamston, Badley, Otley, Rendham, and Southwold, and the consequence was that the bells were kept ringing the whole of the day, with the exception of the time Divine Service was in progress.

What was termed the "Belfry" service was held at 10 o'clock in the morning, when the collects used were those especially suitable for the occasion. The clergy in attendance were the Rector (Rev. R. C. M. Rouse), the Rev. T. H. Marsh, and the Rev. N. Bolingbroke.

At one o'clock about 70 persons sat down to dinner at the Crown Hotel, the coach-house of which had been for the nonce converted into a dining room. The chair was occupied by Rev. R. C. M. Rouse (rector of St. Mary's, Woodbridge), who was supported by Rev. N. Bolingbroke (hon. sec. of the N.D.A.R.), Ven. Archdeacon Perowne (Redenhall), Mr. W. Arnott and Dr. H. Airy (Churchwardens of St. Mary's), Mr. J. B. Hart, Mr. W. W. Welton, Mr. G. Carter, Mr. T. Carthew, Mr. H. C. Edwards, Mr. A. S. Gross, Mr. J. H. Loveless (organist of St. Mary's), Mr. A. Barnes, Mr. W. Hawes, Mr. J. W. Andrews, Mr. J. Arnott, Mr. W. Bloxsome, Mr. J. Fosdike, Mr. G. Day (Eye), Mr. F. D. Blyth, Mr. H. Lloyd, Mr. Mr. W. M. Meadows, Mr. G. W. M. Meadows (Otley), Mr. Woods, Mr. J. Spratt (Norwich). At the conclusion of the repast the Chairman proposed "The Queen," remarking that Woodbridge was second to none in feelings of loyalty to the Crown, and it was by means of the bells they gave voice to their loyalty.—Mr. W. Arnott proposed "The bishop and clergy of all denominations." He said they had got a very excellent bishop, who attended very carefully to, and worked very hard for the interests of his diocese, and he could say the same of the clergy of the diocese, as a rule. They would all agree that lately the Church generally had been infused with new energy, and had been bestirring itself for the benefit of the people of this country.—Archdeacon Perowne responded. He said the proposer of the toast was kind enough to say he thought the clergy were doing their duty more heartily and earnestly than perhaps they had done at some periods of the Church; he was sure his clerical brethren present would agree with him that was due, in part at least, to the hearty co-operation and kindly feeling of their lay brethren. The clergy, important as their post was, were not the church, and they must all pull together, work together, and feel together if the church was to prosper. He was sure everybody present heartily concurred in what had been said about their good and venerable Bishop. He (the speaker) had from the first taken a very hearty interest in the Diocesan Association. Hitherto he had only known it in connection with Norfolk, but he accounted it a privilege and an honour to step across the border and to take part in one of its celebrations in Suffolk. In conclusion, he proposed "Prosperity to the Norwich Diocesan Ringers' Association."

The Rev. N. BOLINGBROKE responded. In the course of his remarks he explained that at their last meeting at Halesworth a proposition was made that the Diocese should be divided into districts, and that they should have four secretaries for those districts. He attributed the reason of their not having heard any more of that scheme to the want of time on his part, as he had a very big family in King Street, Norwich, of something like 1500 people to look after, and a big family in his own house. The speaker then, amidst shouts of "No, no," announced his intention of resigning the position of secretary of the Association. He proposed the election of Dr. Airy, and Messrs. W. A. Arnott, C. Cutting, and William Taylor, as members of the Association. In conclusion he proposed "Success to the Woodbridge Bells," and paid a tribute to the excellent work which had been performed by the bellhangers. He coupled with the toast the names of Dr. Airy and Mr. Fosdike (Master of the Ringers), both of whom briefly acknowledged the compliment.

The CHAIRMAN proposed "The health of Messrs. G. Day and Son," both Mr. G. Day and Mr. F. Day responding.

Evensong took place in the church at three o'clock, when the anthem "Oh, taste and see" (Goss) was rendered by the choir. The sermon was preached by the Ven. T. T. Perowne, Archdeacon of Norwich, and rector of Redenhall, the preacher taking for his text the words, "What mean ye by this service?" Exodus xii., 26. In the course of his remarks the Ven. Archdeacon pointed out that whilst the church rejected the late superstitious practice, which was neither Catholic nor primitive, of consecrating, anointing, blessing, and naming the bells, they thought it right, when a new peal of bells was hung in the church tower, or when bells had been restored, that there should be a dedication service. He ventured to throw out some few suggestions of the way in which bells carried out the purposes claimed for them. Church bells were obviously a church's call to worship; they were the consecration of its joys; they solaced its sorrows, and they commended to them the churches use of the power of association. The speaker concluded with a special exhortation to those who take part in the ringing of the bells. Another service was also held in the evening.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1887.

In our number of last Saturday we animadverted upon the condition of the bells in the Cathedral of Newcastle. The present number of "THE BELL NEWS" records a performance of no mean character, as having been rung in the same part of the country; we allude to the seven Surprise Minor methods rung at the town of Stockton-on-Tees, on Tuesday last. This performance, coming as it does immediately after our comment of last week, seems to partake of the character of an additional protest against the supineness of the authorities of the Cathedral just mentioned, and the fact of its being conducted by the Honorary Secretary of the Durham and Newcastle Association adds considerable force to such an hypothesis. It would almost appear that our friend Mr. CLARKSON and his confreres had intended to show that though the efforts of ringers in the northern diocese were not appreciated at their proper worth, and their continued representations on bell matters did not receive the consideration due to them, yet they were still able to publicly show in a marked manner that ringing was not that small, insignificant, trifling pursuit some people, in their bliss, had imagined it to be. We are afraid that the irony of the position is lost upon those for whom it seems created. The semi-private nature of ringing is certainly a drawback in many cases to its best interests, and the present is an apt illustration of it. It is performed away from the public gaze, and the plaudits of the crowd being thus withheld, its merits are practically unknown. How can public bodies be taught that such feats as that recently performed at Stockton requires a clear head, a retentive memory, and unclouded faculties, both mental and physical? People who would be ready, aye, in fact, anxious to vote a sum of money for the "corporation plate" at the next race meeting are those, as a rule, who can hardly sympathise with a movement for bell restoration. To hint to such persons that the ringing of a 5000 of Surprise Minor requires a greater nicety of calculation than that process which is known to sporting men as "standing upon velvet," would create a doubt in their minds as to the sanity of those who gave utterance to such an insinuation. It is when a spirit of inquiry is prevalent that we can hope for reformation. We may point out, and condemn, and suggest, and in fact go down on our knees and supplicate, but to no purpose. But when we hear of a search for the truth, questions as to what is the meaning of this, or the purpose of that, then we may begin to hope. And such achievements as this one at Stockton are well calculated to promote inquiry.

Also on Sunday morning, May 22nd, for service at St. Gregory's Church, 576 Kent Treble Bob. J. Campin, 1; W. Howell, 2; G. Brown, 3; M. Silvester, 4; N. J. Pitstow, 5; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 6; A. Scott, 7; H. Harper, 8.

ST. PAUL'S, FISHERTON, SALISBURY.

The new tenor bell for this church has been hung in the tower after being on view in the church below for several days. Her weight is about 12½ cwt. and she is inscribed "Mears and Stainbank, founders, London; Rev. E. N. Thwaites, Rector; M. W. H. Devenish, W. Fawcett, Churchwardens; Jubilee V.R., 1887." The hanging was done by Mr. T. Blackburn, who is also carrying out further repairs and improvements in the belfry.

NORTH NOTTINGHAMSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A ringing meeting will be held at East Retford on Saturday, May 28th. Two first-rate peals, one of eight, the other of six, will be at the disposal of the visitors who are cordially invited to attend.

FRED MACKIE, Hon. Sec.

RESTORATION OF THE BELLS AT ST. THOMAS', SALISBURY.

Many times in past years have we called attention to the disgraceful state in which this grand and heavy peal of eight have continued to remain for so long a time. Now we have the pleasure of recording their thorough restoration. Last February the work was taken in hand, and Mr. T. Blackburn received the order to rehang the sixth bell, which had become quite unringable. Before he had completed this work he was authorized to rehang the four heaviest bells with entirely new fittings, and sometime afterwards it was agreed to have the whole peal rehung and the frame repaired and strengthened by bracing together and bolting with long iron bolts.

The work has now been completed, and the eight were rung for the first time since their restoration on Ascension Day. The back six, five of which were then finished, were rung at Easter. The "go" of the bells is everything that can be desired. It being Ascension Day the town ringers were occupied at all the churches during the day, and consequently there were only enough to ring rounds and call-changes in the morning. But in the evening, when the ringing at the other churches was ended, a full company for Grandsire Triples mustered at St. Thomas' and rang two touches of 168 and two plain courses in that method. A longer length would have been attempted, but as many ringers were present and everyone was anxious to have a pull, short touches only were rung: and as these bells were ringing (as is usual on great festivals) for the Cathedral service, at 8 p.m. (the Cathedral not possessing more than one bell), they had to be falled by that hour. As far as they can judge all the change-ringers who handled the bells say that they should have no hesitation in starting for a peal on them. This would have to be done on some public holiday, as the church is situated in the very centre of the town, and great complaints are made if the bells are rung for long together during business hours. In fact those employed in the adjacent shops and offices say that "they can't hear themselves speak when St. Thomas' bells are on." In addition to rehangings the bells, the old chime barrel has been put in repair and was heard on the Sunday after Ascension Day for the first time after being silent for over three months.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—ROSSENDALE BRANCH.

A Ringing Meeting of the above took place at St. James's church, Waterfoot (six bells), when upwards of thirty ringers from Bacup, Waterfoot, Newchurch, Ramsbottom, Whitefield, and Strawforth were present. Several 720's of Plain Bob Minor, College Single, and Oxford Treble Bob were rung. A excellent meat tea was provided in the schoolroom by the Waterfoot company, at which the Rev. W. Wilson joined the ringers and visitors. A meeting was afterwards held, presided over by Mr. H. Nutter, when it was decided to hold the next meeting at Helmspace, on Saturday, July 9th. Votes of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells and school, to the chairman and to the Watertoot company for the excellent arrangements made for the comfort of the visiting ringers was passed.

The Vicar in reply said it gave him great pleasure to be amongst his own ringers and their friends on occasions like the present, and urged the members to persevere in the good work they had in hand. After giving them a short account of his early college life, as connected with bells and ringers, compared the present condition of ringers to the past. He concluded by stating that he should be very glad to become a member of the Association. A few touches on the handbells for the pleasure of the Vicar, Mrs. Wilson and family, brought a very pleasant meeting to a close.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

Ten members of this Association intend to attempt a long peal of 12,000 of Stedman Caters, at St. Mary's Parish Church, Cheltenham, on Whit-Monday, May 30th. Time of starting about 10.30 a.m. The peal is the composition of Mr. H. Johnson, of Birmingham.

MEETING OF RINGERS AT RINGSTEAD, NORTANTS.

The Annual Meeting of the Raunds, Wellingboro', and District Society, took place at Ringstead, on Monday, May 16th, when there was a good muster of members from Raunds, Ringstead, Rushden, Kettering, and Wellingborough. Ringing commenced at 9 o'clock, when the Ringstead men raised the bells and rang a 720 of Plain Bob and a 720 of London Single. The Raunds company next handled the ropes, and rang some 360's of Plain Bob, and some in other methods. Rushden followed with a good band. Mixed bands were afterwards formed, and a series of touches of Grandsire and Bob Doubles, as well as a number of 360's in different Minor methods were rung. The ringing was kept up till 12.30, and service was held in the parish church of St. Mary, at 1 o'clock. The clergy present were the Rev. W. O. Leadbitter, the Vicar, who read the prayers, the Rev. J. P. Goodman (Keyston), who read the lessons, the Rev. Hugh Bryan (Raunds), and the Rev. G. Edmonds, rector of Stoke Doyle, who was the preacher on the occasion. The rev. gentleman in an admirable address, pointed out to the ringers and congregation generally, how the church bells spoke out from the church tower of God. Many who never went to hear the preacher, heard the call of the church bells, which must remind them of holy things and God. An offertory was then collected in aid of the funds of the Society.

At two o'clock the honorary and performing members assembled in the schoolroom for dinner, the catering being done by Mr. Wilson, of the "Swan Hotel," Thrapston, under the direction of the Hon. Sec. of the Society, Rev. H. Bryan. The Rev. J. P. Goodman, Rev. W. O. Leadbitter, Rev. H. Bryan, and Mr. W. J. Henry (Wellingboro') presided at the table. A business meeting followed immediately after the dinner. In the absence of the vicar of the parish (Rev. W. O. Leadbitter), who had to leave, the Rev. H. Bryan, the Hon. Sec., took the chair. Letters of apology for not being present were stated to have been received from Canon Baker, Canon Lindsay, Revs. G. H. Hopkins, G. W. Paul, F. B. Newman, and others. The accounts submitted showed the receipts, including balance last year, £20 17s., and the expenditure £3 9s. 6d., leaving a balance in hand of £17 7s. 7d. The Rev. J. P. Goodman, the treasurer, remarked that as this money was in the bank there was also a little interest to add to it as well. The Hon. Sec. (Rev. H. Bryan) then submitted a rough draft of some rules, which were read and discussed at some length. With regard to employing a professional instructor to teach the art of change-ringing, it was decided to employ local men in preference. On the motion of Mr. F. Gilbert, seconded by Mr. Slade, it was resolved to give 10s. 6d. to the memorial to the late Jasper Whitfield Snowdon. Being the year of jubilee, it was unanimously resolved that the next meeting be held on August Bank-Holiday, and that the place of meeting be either Kettering or Wellingborough. Votes of thanks were then accorded to the Revs. H. Bryan, the Hon. Sec.; J. P. Goodman, the treasurer; Rev. W. O. Leadbitter for the use of the church, the bells, and the school; and to the Rev. G. Edmonds for his powerful and able address. Ringing was resumed about four o'clock, several touches were rung in good style, after which the bells were lowered. They were, however, subsequently raised again, and several other touches rung in different methods. After the ringing, the whole company adjourned to the "New Inn," where a pleasant evening was spent, closing at ten p.m. with the National Anthem, which was first played on the handbells and then sung by the company.

THE ROYAL CUMBERLAND SOCIETY.

JUBILEE FUND.

The Committee of the above have fixed Saturday, June 25th, 1887, for holding their Banquet at the Holborn Restaurant, in commemoration of Her Majesty's Jubilee, and all members who have already placed their names on the subscription list are respectfully requested to send their respective donations to me, at the address given below, on or before Saturday, June 11th.

The Committee sincerely hope that as they have fixed the banquet to take place on a Saturday, they may be honoured by the presence of as many of their country brother strings as can make it convenient to attend, and the Secretary will be glad to communicate with any members who are desirous of receiving any further information.

The subscription tickets, which are 10s. 6d. each, will cover the cost of the Banquet (five shillings, refreshments two and six), leaving three shillings towards defraying the incidental expenses connected with the evening's entertainment and any balance that may remain will be dealt with by the Committee for the future benefit of the Society. The chair will be taken by the Master, Mr. H. S. Thomas, at 5 p.m.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

CHIMING.

SIR,—We get all kinds of information concerning ringing in the columns of your useful little paper, but I never remember seeing much with reference to chiming. To ringers in country towns and villages, chiming is of considerable importance, as it is part of their regular work. A few articles on the subject with an account of its origin, and the various customs connected therewith in different parts of the country, would I think be interesting to many of your readers, and might possibly result in a little reform in places where the bells are simply jangled or chimed in a careless way by one or two men instead of the full complement of ringers. In my own county (Northants), ringing for service is almost unknown, except on Festival Sundays. Much pride is however in the chiming, which is generally varied by "ringing in" the tenor, or by ringing the tenor and another bell "up." This custom is objected to by many, owing to the noise and clatter made in raising the one or two bells, and the extra loud sound they make when "up." From a musical point of view, this method is certainly a mistake, though it has a very pretty effect at a distance. The genuine "quiet chime" seems to me in better taste for "Sabbath bells."

GRANDSIRE BOB.

DOUBTFUL AUTHORSHIP.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me to inform Mr. C. Price, that the peal of 5056 Treble Bob published in last week's "BELL NEWS," with his name attached, was rung at Chesterfield on July 15th, 1882, and published in "THE BELL NEWS" for August 5th, 1882, as a 5088, the only difference being the 3rd course-end in the second part. The second part of both peals are appended.

Of course Mr. Price was not aware that it had been rung, or he would not have claimed it as his composition. ARTHUR KNIGHTS.

JUBILEE TOUCHES.

SIR,—Mr. Sykes, of Huddersfield, contributes another (what he calls a) Jubilee touch, and which he states contains as many changes as the Queen has reigned weeks, if rung on the 20th of June next. In the face of the very conclusive letter from Mr. Scott the other week, I cannot conceive how Mr. Sykes reconciles 2601 as the number of week's Her Majesty will have reigned at that time. I am afraid his education in the matter of arithmetic must have been sadly neglected, for if you ask any schoolboy to cast up the sum, he will quickly give you the result as 2608 weeks and six days, so that if you include both 20ths of June, you have exactly 2609 weeks, as Mr. Scott in his letter showed very plainly. It seems to me, therefore, absurd on the part of Mr. Sykes persisting in the number 2601. He surely must have a low estimate of the intelligence of his ringing brethren, if he imagines that they will ring these touches which he sends you under the impression that they are what he states truly representative of the number of the weeks of Her Majesty's reign. If he is ambitious to pose as a composer of Jubilee touches, why does not at least take care to have them correct in their number. To ring a 2601 as a touch corresponding with the number of the weeks Her Majesty has reigned, would just be as ridiculous a proceeding as ringing a touch of 1881 changes and calling it a date touch for the present year.

H. R.

THE TENOR AT ST. LAWRENCE JEWRY.

SIR,—As I am responsible for sending the account of the peal and weight of the tenor at St. Lawrence Jewry, appearing in "THE BELL NEWS" a fortnight ago, I hasten to quiet the doubts of Mr. Wood, and you Sir, as to the question of weight. I was assured at the time of the time of ringing the peal, that the tenor weighed 36 cwt, and since the appearance of Mr. Wood's letter, I have had dimensions of the bell taken by a practical bellhanger, viz., Mr. G. R. Banks, assisted by Messrs. Weatherstone, and Albone, and find them to be as follows: Diameter, 4 feet 8½ inches; thickness at sound-bow, four inches, which will show that Mr. Wood's recollection of Mr. Boswell's figures is indeed imperfect. Perhaps he would also question the weight of the tenor at Westminster Abbey, which measures—diameter, 4 feet 7½ inches; thickness at sound-bow, 3½ inches, being less than St. Lawrence, and yet always has been recognized as 36 cwt.

JOSEPH BARRY.

THE 7008 OF DOUBLE OXFORD BOB MAJOR.

SIR,—In reply to your correspondent Mr. H. D. Davies, my authority for referring to a peal of 6000 of Double Oxford as rung at Gravesend in 1820 is a letter, which I still have in my possession, from Mr. J. W. Snowdon. He wrote as follows: "I think Double Oxford will be a very good method to take up. There has been a 6000 (exact) rung in it at Gravesend in 1820, but otherwise there has hardly been anything done in it. The Norwich Scholars, when the band was in its prime, rang a peal of it." I have no further information on the subject, and it is possible Mr. Snowdon may have been in error. Your correspondent would appear to intimate that the records to which he has access include all the performances of, or near, that date, in which case it is difficult to understand how a somewhat important peal could be omitted. I will however ask Mr. William Snowdon whether he has any papers that may throw light on the matter. I should be obliged to Mr. H. D. Davies if he would write me privately whether he finds any mention of Double Oxford having been rung in his neighbourhood, and if so, the details of what was done. I have hitherto neglected to send you for publication the calling of the 7008, of which, as of any peal claiming to beat record, the Exercise has a right to examine the composition. I therefore append it, with apologies for the delay.

This composition is in six parts with the first one shortened, in it the 2nd and 3rd are never in 6ths place. Rung at Duffield, April 23rd, 1887.

A FALSE PEAL.

SIR,—The peal of Oxford Surprise, published in your paper of last week, by me, is false. I did not get my paper in time to let you know before; I must apologise for publishing it without proving it.

J. W. WASHBROOK.

THE LONG PEAL OF STEDMAN CINQUES AT ST. MARTIN'S BIRMINGHAM.

SIR,—As secretary for St. Martin's company, Birmingham, I am directed to inform you that W. Cattle's statements (referred to in Mr. Muskett's letter of the 7th inst.), are absolutely false. We have considered this peal worthy of record in our peal-book, and upon a tablet erected in St. Martin's belfry. We trust this explanation will be received by the ringing community. "PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A new Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. JONES, F.R.S.L., F.R.M.S., etc., Surgeon-Dentist, 57, Great Russell Street, facing British Museum entrance, London, containing a List of Diplomas, Gold and Silver Medals, and other Awards, obtained at the great International Exhibitions, forwarded gratis and post free.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

IX.—PEALS OF DUFFIELD MAJOR.

In the following selection of peals it is not pretended that composition in the method is in any way fully represented. I myself have had but little time of late to give to the subject, while more eminent composers have hardly as yet studied its various and novel peculiarities sufficiently to make, with some exceptions, the peals now published a fair basis for estimating the capabilities of which "Duffield" is possessed. No Major system hitherto constructed allows of peals of exactly 5000. Such compositions, or others but a few changes longer, will be found comparatively easy of attainment in the present method. The peals here given, with one exception, have the 6th practically at home throughout. It is difficult to imagine that conductors would care to select, for ringing, one without this quality, as it would be equivalent to choosing a peal of Stedman Caters with the 7th shifted. The probability is, therefore, that if composers produce peals of "Duffield" in which the 6th is moved, it will only be because of the inherent difficulties, or greater possible length, of such compositions, and it is thus merely as a curiosity that I present a specimen in which the course of the bells is never turned (except in the last six, to obtain an exact 5000), this being of course an impossibility without disturbing the 6th.

The following peal is the first composed in the method. It is in reality a ten-part peal in exactly similar divisions of calling, but it is brought round by a bob at Home after the fifth course-end of the last part. If this part is called in full like the previous ones, the number will be 5280. In either case the 6th is at home throughout, with the exception of the last three changes in the 5000. There are never more than two consecutive calls.

H. DAINS, Feb. 1887.

The next composition, although called in the main like No. 1, is on a somewhat peculiar plan, being in two exactly similar parts of 2496 changes each, the remaining eight changes being supplied by the final bob at H. The singles must be called where shewn.

The next two peals are by the same composer as the last, and are on a different plan to those as yet presented, which have all been on the five-part principle. These are on the three-part plan, doubled by singles. At the end of each division the 5th comes home, while at the part-ends both 4th and 5th are brought back. The 6th is at home throughout, and both peals contain the 24 5678s.

f. The next peal is the one by the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer, already referred to, which contains the complete extent with the 6th at home. This composition is in eight equal parts; each is subdivided into three sections at the end of every one of which the treble is at home; the ends of the twenty-four sections are thus the twenty-four changes of which 2345 are capable. The remarkable point is the way in which these are brought up true by varying the calling of the last course only of each part. The singles, of which there are only two, cannot be called at any other six than where shewn. If the 55th course is called in with a single, Before, and Out, the 65th course-end will come up, reducing the peal to 5280.

The three following peals by Mr. Carter have also each the extent with the 6th at home. They all contain a considerable number of singles, and are worked on a reverse plan to No. 8, in which there are eight parts each consisting of three divisions, while the compositions under notice are divided into six parts each consisting of four divisions, the 5th being at home at the end of each division, and both 4th and 5th at the part-ends. No. 9 is remarkable for having calls only at In and Out, and consequently, also, never more than two consecutively.

The next peal is one in which the course of the bells is not turned till the last six, and only there in order to bring the bells round at an exact 5000. The 6th is first fixed in 4ths place, and then brought home. This composition has the 6th 50 times wrong and 49 times right. The two courses omitted near the end of the third division of the last half cannot be introduced, or the peal would be false.

Round at two changes. A. P. H. May, 1887.

It will be noticed that all these peals partake of the five-part principle, such as are not actually on the five-part plan being in divisions of five courses.

The next paper will treat of the application of the method to 10 and 12 bells.

SOUVENIRS OF HER MAJESTY.—In the Drawing-room of Lady Seton hangs a pen-and-ink drawing by Her Majesty the Queen, done in the year 1840, and signed with the initials "V.R." and the date. This little drawing, which represents two Dutch peasant-girls, was given to Sir Henry Seton by the Queen. If you are an amateur of Royal souvenirs, Lady Seton will show you also what is probably the earliest autograph letter of the Queen's extant. Her Majesty must have been still in socks when she indited this little note, for it is in large printed, not written, characters, and consists of the following artless lines:—"How do you do, my dear Sir Henry?—Your little friend, Victoria." From "London Drawing Rooms and Their Châtelaines" in "The Lady's World" for June.

Lucas, 5; J. Waghorn, 6; H. A. Barnett (conductor), 7; J. Waghorn, jun., 8. And a short touch of Stedman Triples, and a Plain Course of Oxford Treble Bob Major.

TROWBRIDGE SOCIETY, WILTS.

On Whit-Monday the Trowbridge company of ringers visited Salisbury. Arriving about 9 a.m., they proceeded to St. Thomas' Church and rang one or two touches. There some of the Salisbury city ringers met them, and before service they rang together 336 Grandsire Triples. W. Alley (conductor), 1; W. E. Tydemah, 2; A. Prescott, 3; J. Hayward, 4; W. McCaffrey, 5; J. R. Jerram, 6; A. Palmer, 7; C. Gaisford, 8. Tenor 32 cwt. The company were well satisfied with the "go" of the bells. After this they visited the Cathedral, and then proceeded to St. Martin's, where 1260 Grandsire Triples was rung by—W. Alley, 1; J. Hayward, 2; A. Prescott, 3; W. E. Tydemah, 4; W. McCaffrey, 5; T. Blackburn (conductor), 6; J. R. Jerram, 7; C. Gaisford, 8. Tenor 15 cwt. Time, 44 minutes. At 1.15 p.m. the whole company lunched together at the "Goat" Inn. The chair was occupied by Mr. C. A. Clements, and the vice-chair by Mr. J. R. Jerram. After lunch the health of the Queen was drunk, then that of Mr. Jerram, as Secretary to the Diocesan Guild, and then that of Mr. Blackburn, the instructor to the Guild. Mr. J. Short then proposed the health of the Trowbridge company, coupled with the name of Mr. Alley. Each toast was suitably responded to. During the afternoon several of the Trowbridge ringers entertained the company with tunes on the handbells and part songs, which were well rendered by Messrs. W. McCaffrey, A. Palmer, J. Hayward, and another gentleman. The visitors returned home by the 6.15 p.m. train, having evidently enjoyed their outing.

ENVILLE, STAFFORDSHIRE.

On Whit-Monday the St. Thomas' Society, Stourbridge, visited the above place, and by the kind permission of the Rev. W. Sandwith, rang a 720 of Bob Minor, with 6-8 behind. C. Barrett, 1; T. Lees, 2; G. H. Pagett, 3; J. Guest, 4; W. Lawrence (conductor), 5; W. A. Pugh, 7; J. Rogers and J. Crump covering. Also some creditable touches of Bob Triples. The ringing being over an adjournment was made to the meeting house, where some ringing and tunes on handbells brought a very pleasant day to a close. The above company wish to thank the Rector through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," or the use of the bells.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.—ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting of the above Association was held at Chelmsford, on Whit-Monday, when there was still a further larger gathering of members of the Exercise. Ringing commenced on the previous Saturday evening, when an attempt was made for Holt's Original at Chelmsford, under the conductorship of Mr. W. L. Buckingham. The attempt, however, had to be numbered with the unsuccessful, owing to the breaking of a rope at the end of about 950 changes. A start was afterwards made for a double-handed handbell peal, which unfortunately also came to grief. On Sunday bands visited Galleywood, Widford, and Writtle, and were successful with various touches, and in the evening a touch of Grandsire Caters and a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung at Chelmsford. On Monday morning a band started at 8.28 for a peal of Treble Bob Royal. After about a quarter of an hour's ringing everyone appeared to have settled down and the ringing continued to run smoothly for nearly two hours, but a sudden turn of the scale brought up a scramble, which ended in a stand. An attempt for a peal of Triples at Galleywood met with a similar fate after two and a quarter hours ringing; but fortune awaited an attempt for another at Writtle in the evening, particulars of which will be found elsewhere. Bands visited Great Baddow (8 bells), and Bloomfield, Widford, and Springfield (6 bells) during the day, and various methods were rung. The annual service was held in St. Mary's, Chelmsford, the Bishop of Colchester giving the address. The business meeting followed, afterwards the dinner at which there were 115 members present. The Hon. Secretary's report was considered highly satisfactory. A sum of £1 1s. was voted to the Jasper Snowden Memorial Fund. The usual vote of thanks was passed to the authorities for the use of the bells. A detailed report will appear in our next issue.

THE DEVONSHIRE GUILD.

On Saturday last, May 28th, Mr. W. W. Gifford, of Salisbury, paid a visit to Exeter for a little ringing. The St. Sidwell's band met him at 7 p.m., and some touches of Grandsire Triples was rung on the tower and handbells, of which one was a 504. E. Shepherd, 1-2; F. Shepherd (conductor), 3-4; W. W. Gifford, 5-6; A. Shepherd, 7-8. And a 280, with W. Mundy, 7-8, the rest as before. On Sunday morning, May 29th, at 7 a.m., the grand peal at the Cathedral was in motion, and at 9 St. Sidwell's was set going to a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples. F. Davey, 1; A. Shepherd, 2; F. Shepherd (conductor), 3; W. Mundy, 4; E. Shepherd, 5; W. W. Gifford, 6; J. Moss, 7; C. Carter, 8. And in the evening another 1260. W. Chudley (Whitstone), 1; F. Davey, 2; F. Shepherd, 3; A. Shepherd, 4; W. Mundy, 5; E. Shepherd (conductor), 6; W. W. Gifford, 7; B. Mundy, 8. First quarter-peal by Messrs. Davey and Chudley. On Monday, May 30th, a party was made up for a peal at St. Mary's Church, Torquay, and meeting Mr. Batchelor, of Plymouth, at Newton Abbott, he was pressed to take part in it. A start was made at one o'clock, and the bells came into rounds at four, after three hour's good ringing. An hour was spent with the local ringers, who are a very jolly set, and the walk back to Torquay by way of Babbicombe, was much enjoyed, especially by Mr. Gifford, it being his first visit to Devon. The ringers desire through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," to tender their best thanks to the Vicar for placing the bells at their disposal, and also to Mr. Potter, the steeple-keeper, for seeing that affairs were in proper order before starting for the peal.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

On Tuesday, May 24th six members of the above Association attended a 5040 in seven different methods upon six bells at St. Owen's church, Bromham, but after ringing 720 each of Double Oxford Bob Minor (eighteen bobs and two singles), Woodbine Treble Bob (nine bobs), and upwards of 700 of Oxford Treble Bob, the treble man missed his sally, and unable to recover it in time the peal, much to the ringers' regret, came to grief. F. Keech, 1; M. E. R. Warwick, 2; I. Hills, 3; H. Chapman, 4; C. W. Clarke, 5; W. Biggs (conductor), 6. The above was attempted on the occasion of the conductor's 22nd birthday, his brother strings wishing him many happy returns of the day. After descending the tower a move was made to Bromham, Mills, the residence of Mr. Biggs, where he had in readiness a capital spread, to which ample justice was done.

After the cloth had been removed Mr. I. Hills, of the Bedford company, presented Mr. Biggs with a valuable album, on behalf of the members present. The rest of the evening was spent in change-ringing, tune playing, and songs, Mr. A. Andrews very ably presiding at the piano. The party broke up shortly after 11 o'clock on their return to Bedford, having had a most pleasant and enjoyable afternoon's outing.

THE CHANGE-RINGERS' MEMORIAL TO JASPER WHITFIELD SNOWDON.—UNVEILING CEREMONY AT ILKLEY PARISH CHURCH, YORKSHIRE, ON SATURDAY, JUNE 11TH.

We again call the attention of all subscribers to the above, who are considering the question of being present, that arrangements are being made at Ilkley to give a hearty welcome to all who come. In order to ensure a good day's ringing the Yorkshire Association's June Meeting is to be held concurrently. The gathering therefore will certainly be large, and it is hoped influential and representative.

The eight bells, by kind permission of the Vicar of Ilkley, the Rev. Howard Kempson, M.A., will be at the disposal of the visitors from an early hour, immediately following the removal of the muffles, after an in memoriam touch by our officers.

Divine Service will be held at 4.30, at which a sermon will be preached by the Rev. Canon Wigram, M.A., Rector of St. Andrew's, Hertford, and Rural Dean; member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, the St. James's Society, and the Hertford County Association, etc., etc. The window will be then unveiled.

As the subscriptions of a great number are massed together under the names of their churches and Associations it will probably prove to be impossible to communicate with each one direct. Those organizing the Ilkley arrangements will therefore be much obliged if every subscriber will take this letter as a direct invitation to be present.

In order that the final arrangements may be satisfactorily carried out each subscriber intending to be present must send in his name to Mr. Joe Beanlands, jun., the Amateur Society of Change-ringers, Ilkley, via Leeds, on or before the last day of this month.

The organizing committee are obliged to notify that it will be beyond their power to entertain as visitors any who have failed to comply with this request.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

On Whit-Monday, May 30th, 1887, twelve members attempted to ring at St. Michael's Cornhill, Mr. H. W. Haley's peal of 10,030 Stedman Cinques, but unfortunately got out in the last course, after ringing upwards of 9900 changes, in seven hours and thirty-five minutes. J. Pettitt (conductor), 1; H. Springall, 2; S. E. Joyce, 3; E. F. Winny, 4; E. Gibbs, 5; G. T. MacLaughlin, 6; F. E. Dawe, 7; E. E. Clark, 8; W. Greenleaf, 9; F. G. Newman, 10; E. Horrex, 11; J. M. Hayes, 12. Tenor 41 cwt. When the band came out of the tower they were met by A. Percival Heywood, Esq., of Duffield Bank, Derbyshire, who had journeyed to London on purpose to hear the ringing, after expressing his sorrow for their hard luck he very kindly invited them to the Bell Tavern to partake of a substantial meat tea which he had most liberally ordered for them, for which they tender their best thanks.

THE ATTEMPTED LONG PEAL AT CHELTENHAM.

As announced in our last issue, the long peal of Stedman Caters consisting of 12,345 changes, was duly started for at the parish church, on Whit-Monday, May 30th, and all went well for upwards of seventy-eight courses, when an unfortunate "trip in the slow" brought it to an untimely end in 5 hrs. 12 mins., some 8500 changes having been rung. F. Musty, 1; G. H. Philpot, Esq., 2; T. Reynolds (Birmingham), 3; H. Roberts, 4; F. E. Ward, Esq., 5; H. Karn, 6; Rev. C. D. P. Davies, 7; W. T. Pates (conductor), 8; J. Buffery (Birmingham), 9; A. W. Humphris, 10. Tenor 23 cwt. Composed by H. Johnson, sen. Mr. A. Thomas, of Birmingham, and Mr. J. Rowbotham, of London, were referees, and checked off the course-ends as they came up.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING will be held at Tonbridge, on Monday, June 13th. Committee Meeting at 11; service in the parish church at 12; dinner at 1; allowance to practising members, 1s. and dinner. Secretaries of bands that mean to attend, and other members, must communicate by the end of this month with the Hon. Secretary, the Rev. R. B. Knatchbull-Hugessen, Wrinsted Court, Lenham, and all are requested to be so good as to notice the change of address.

R. B. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN, Hon. Sec.

EAST LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

On Monday afternoon last, the Rev. H. J. Cheales, President of the above Association, in company with E. Mason, of Boston, visited West Keal, and with the assistance of the home company, rung several touches of Bob Minor. W. Vickers, 1; Rev. H. J. Cheales, 2; J. A. Hand, 3; J. Green, 4; H. Daulton, 5; E. Mason, 6. The Rev. H. J. Cheales having another engagement to attend, could only stay for a short time, after which Mr. Daulton who is staying in the neighbourhood of Stickney, and a member of the Yorkshire Association, arrived, and a 720 of Bob Minor (sixteen bobs and six singles), was rung in 27 mins. E. Mason, 1; J. A. Hand, 2; W. Vickers, 3; J. Green, 4; H. Daulton, 5; H. Dodds, 6. Col. Grantham kindly entertained the company to tea at the Hall.

A DISGRACEFUL WILTSHIRE BELFRY.

In the tower of Woodford Church, Wilts, hang three bells, tenor about 14 cwt. The two largest bells have been cracked, and useless beyond the memory of anyone now living. The tenor has no clapper, and the second is scotched up at an angle of about 45 degrees, to allow of the insertion of the hammer of a new clock recently put up, which strikes on the treble, the only sound bell of the peal. Even this bell is only tolled, as the fittings are so out of order that she cannot be raised. This bell is inscribed "Honor the EWE BRB king, I.W., 1613." The second is inscribed "Feare the Lord, I.W., 1608," and the tenor, "AVE MARIA GRACIA PLENA," in lombardic capitals.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX-BELL RINGERS.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the above will be held on Whit Saturday, June 4th, at Standish, when punctual attendance is requested. A tea will be provided in the parish church schoolroom at 5 o'clock. After tea, the usual business meeting will be held, to pass accounts, to elect the officers for the year, to elect new members, and to transact any regular business of the Association.

JAMES HIGSON, Sec.

57 Chorley Road, Blackrod, Near Chorley.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The June Meeting will be held at Ilkley on Saturday, June 11th, concurrently with the meeting at which the change-ringers' Memorial window to Jasper Whitfield Snowdon is to be unveiled. All members intending to be present at the service, and afterwards at the tea, should signify the same to Mr. Joe Beanlands, jun., the amateur society of change-ringers, Ilkley, on or before the last day of this month.

W. WHITAKER, Hon. Sec.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting of this Association will be held on Saturday, June 4th, in St. John-the-Baptist Schoolroom, Hagley, at 5 o'clock. The Rev. W. C. Gibbs, Rector, will preside. Each company is respectfully requested to send one or more members, as the rules, report, balance-sheet, etc., will be ready for distribution at this meeting.

JNO. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

LONG PEALS.—The "bell-scare" is again on the move. The Standard of Thursday had the following letter from "Medical Practitioner": "A patient of mine, living in the City, within less than a stone's throw of a City church, has been on a bed of suffering for more than twelve months, racked with the most excruciating pains, almost day and night. I was grieved to find, on visiting her on Monday last, that she had been subject to the annoyance of one ceaseless clang of bells from half-past ten a.m. until six p.m. The poor lady was simply distracted. She almost wished that to her present affliction deafness had been added. The rector has been appealed to, but in vain. He pleads that he is powerless in the matter. Then, who is responsible? This is not the only case I could quote in which the sick-room has its horrors intensified by the perpetual monotonous ding-dong and clang-clang of our church bells."

NOTICE.—Any ringers or friends going to Ilkley through or from Leeds and other surrounding districts, to attend the Yorkshire Association meeting on June 11th, are kindly invited to join the Leeds St. Peter's society at Wellington station. Meet under the clock 2.30 p.m., travel fast train 2.40 p.m. The above society are making arrangements with the Midland Railway Company to go by pass at reduced fares. All are welcome; handbells will be provided for this party's travelling convenience.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1887.

THE uncertainty—not by any means glorious—of peal-ringing has been exemplified during the past week in a most marked degree. On Whit-Monday twelve members of the College Youths attempted a 10,000 peal of Stedman Cinques at St. Michael's, Cornhill, and lost it, to use a metaphor, by the skin of their teeth. This was certainly a great disappointment, as the body of the peal had all been got through very well, the misfortune happening in the coming-home course, where to get round it is necessary to invert the positions of the large bells, which have hitherto all along remained in the tittum position. The change wrought by this process demands at such a critical period the most steady attention and care, for the danger of a mistake which ruins the whole is great, especially when such lengths as the one we are alluding to are near completion. There is no help for such untoward accidents except the practice of the most uncommon care; such a truism is of course no emollient for the disaster. All our readers must sympathise with their twelve brethren who made such a show on the occasion, and wish them greater success when they next make the attempt.

A report of this failure does not unfortunately fill the "agony column" of "THE BELL NEWS" this week. The attempt for a 12,000 peal of Stedman Caters at St. Mary's, Cheltenham, "came to grief" after five hours' ringing, more than 8000 changes having been rung. Here the coming-round course was not reached; a trip in the slow-work after more than two thirds had been rung, causing the mischief. We must congratulate this band upon having such a good "look in," though success did not attend their efforts. The ringers of the beautiful Gloucestershire town have of late become somewhat conspicuous, and it cannot be doubted that they, alone, will eventually accomplish whatever they determine upon. The thought arises upon hearing of this attempt that we may see in their progress a quickening of that renown once enjoyed by the ringers of the neighbouring town of Painswick, thus rendering their own county again famous. The members of the Cheltenham Society possess every requisite for becoming celebrated. And no one will be more pleased than ourselves to hear that when this peal of the first five figures is accomplished, some other undertaking, equally as colossal, is about to be taken in hand by them.

"NOTES ON THE BELLS OF ST. ANDREW'S ABBEY CHURCH, HEXHAM."—[A paper read at the Meeting of the Society of Antiquaries of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, April 27, 1887, by J. P. GIBSON.] This is a small but interesting brochure of a somewhat historical character. It relates the vicissitudes of Hexham Abbey bells through the various successive dynasties which have governed England, and much interesting data respecting them is given. A native of Hexham living in the year 1755 writes thus to the Gentleman's Magazine respecting them:—

"Six bells, which were broken and in great disorder about sixteen years ago, we had recast into eight, and they are now, without controversy, as fine a ring as any in England of the weight. They were made and hung by your London artists." At this time, says the author of the book we are dealing with, change-ringing had been introduced and had become a fashionable pastime, so fashionable indeed that in many of the belfries rules were posted up imposing fines on any one who should ring the bells in spurs or who should bring a whip into the belfry. The peal of eight bells was cast in 1742 by Thomas Lester, of London, who had at that time the celebrated foundry now carried on by the firm of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. Thomas Lester had been foreman to Richard Phelps, under whose management the foundry had very much increased in importance. He had been taken into partnership, and at the death of Richard Phelps in 1738 he bequeathed to him by will the whole plant of materials and implements on the premises. In 1743, a year after casting the Hexham bells, Thomas Lester cast two bells for Westminster Abbey, which are still in existence. Of Thomas Lester's peal only two bells—the treble and the tenor—remain intact, the other six having been broken and recast.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

MR. PRICE'S PEAL.

SIR,—The reason advanced by Mr. Knights is hardly sufficient to deprive Mr. Price of all credit for the production of the 5056 of Treble Bob appearing in your last number but one. Mr. Knights says "The only difference is in one course-end," but this alone is sufficient to establish a distinction. There are, however, other differences which Mr. Knight appears to have failed to notice. The 5088 as compared with the 5056 has an extra bob H: and the 5056 as compared with the 5088 has an extra bob B. Moreover, the course-end 46532 in the 5088 places the bells in a position which for musical qualities is the worst possible; whereas the course-end 32654 in the 5056 places the bells in one of the most harmonious positions there are. In other respects, it is true, the two peals are alike. But the differences mentioned, slight as they may appear at first sight, are, I repeat, sufficient to constitute distinction. One peal is not the same as another unless (1) it is in all respects identical; (2) the direct "reverse"; (3) a variation produced by commencing the calling at a different course. Mr. Price's peal does not offend under any of these heads; and he is consequently entitled to the credit of independent production of a distinct peal. It may be noted in addition that the 5088 reverses to the same peal, but the 5056 does not.

H. EARLE BULWER.

THE TENOR BELL AT ST. LAWRENCE JEWRY.

SIR,—Mr. Barry deserves great commendation in coming forward so boldly to take upon himself the sole responsibility of the statement which appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" of May 14th, giving the weight of the above tenor as 36 cwt. Great credit is also due to him, for having since had measurements taken to satisfy me (along with whom he couples your worthy self), that the statement was correct. I am quite willing to concede all praise to Mr. Barry for the trouble he has taken to set himself and us right, but while I would not wish to impute wilful error of measurements, yet I must, like another Thomas à Didymus, be allowed to doubt the correctness of such, till I have seen with my own eyes whether I may believe or not. I have been told it requires great carefulness to measure a bell correctly, a little sleight of hand, more or less, either way, may give the figures very much at variance with the truth. But taking it for granted that Mr. Barry has not been deceived, the dimensions he gives do not make it indisputable that his weight is right. I have in my possession an old list of peals of bells, hung, and rehung, by a celebrated bell hanger, of some seventy years ago, and in it is a record of some work done at St. Lawrence to the eight bells, the tenor being put down as 29 cwt. Now Sir, surely bell hangers are not likely to err on the light side when publishing their performances in the somewhat difficult task of hanging church bells, more especially large ones, because all good ringers know (or are supposed to know), that to make a big bell ring easy, is no easy thing to accomplish, hence the bell hanger should not fail consistently with truth to make his tenors as important as possible. A friend has kindly given me dimensions and weight of a bell recently cast, which I think if compared with the particulars given by Mr. Barry, will tend to curtail some of the vaunted 36 cwt. in St. Lawrence's tower. The bell I allude to measures 4 feet 10½ inches in diameter, by thickness of sound bow, 4 inches, bare weight, 35 cwt. 1 qr. 27 lbs. I do not think it necessary to enter into a controversy respecting the bells of Westminster Abbey, which are most likely in the same category as many others, overrated, yet to many minds the opportunity of learning the truth, and nothing but the truth in such matters, would be a calamity, for "where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

MATTHEW A. WOOD.

WHO ARE THE LAW BREAKERS?

SIR,—Having read in "THE BELL NEWS" the letter printed from Church Bells signed by "Pauline," I see he calls the Rev. Lambert Woodard a law breaker, because amongst things he has burned lights in the day time. Now just before the order of Morning Prayer in our Prayer-book is the following order: "That such ornaments of the Church and of the ministers thereof, at all times of their ministrations shall be retained and be in use as were in the Church of England by the authority of Parliament, in the second year of the reign of King Edward the Sixth." In this Prayer book, altar lights at the time of celebrating of the Holy Communion are ordered, and so all ministers of the Church of England when they are ordained have full authority for lighting the altar lights. Still certain people object to them on the score of their having been made illegal in recent law transactions, such as the Knightsbridge case, and one is constantly coming across such touchy people. Not knowing myself what law had to say in the matter, but only knowing what every clergyman is allowed to do by the Prayer-book, I have taken the trouble to find out, and although I find that individuals have brought actions against the clergy on this point, yet curiously enough the Judges could only agree that they were perfectly legal, and altar lights are now, as they always have been, right both in the Church, and also in that of the civil courts of justice. In the Knightsbridge case, the judgment has authorised the following important principle: "In the altar lights, not only a symbolical allusion of especial propriety, but what is far greater, a relative dignity as due to the place and time of the special Christian mystery, and a denaturalising influence." As many ringers, I know, talk about such things, and imagine them illegal, and as you have printed "Pauline's" letter, in justice I ask you to insert this as to the legality of altar lights, so that everyone who reads this will have no excuse in the future for creating ill feeling by talking about things as illegal when they are legal.

PAX.

RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Wednesday, May 11th, being a general holiday on Tyneside for the opening of the Newcastle Exhibition, Messrs. Smith, Wilkinson, Holmes, Heron, Pattison, Sharp, and Oliver, accompanied by the Rev. P. J. B. Ffoulkes, left Jarrow about eight o'clock in the morning, driving to Gateshead, and after being photographed in group, proceeded to Winlaton. Mr. Scott having the bells up, they rang a touch of Kent Treble Bob, some Plain Oxford, and College Single, the Winlaton men taking part. After ringing 600, the tenor cast her rope, and brought the touch to grief. An adjournment was then made for dinner, after which they were soon on the road, bound for Newton Hall, where they have an handy peal of six, tenor 12 cwt., enjoying the drive and scenery very much. Arriving at Newton they rang a touch of Kent, and then a considerable amount of place-making with fresh eggs, bread and butter, and the rest, then a start for a 720, which they managed. After a touch of Bob Minor with the local men, they took the road, having a twenty miles drive before them, arriving at Jarrow about eleven o'clock, after spending a very enjoyable day. They beg to thank all their friends for the use of the bells, and the kind manner in which they received them. On Sunday, May 15th, owing to a lady being ill near the church, there was no ringing. In the afternoon, Messrs. Smith, Pattison, Holmes, Heron, Sharp, and Oliver, walked from Jarrow to Chester-le-Street, where they were kindly received by the ringers, and they allowed them to ring a 720 of Oxford Bob, standing in the above order, R. Oliver (conductor). Tenor 20 cwt.

In Memoriam.

EDWARD WEBSTER.

We have to record the death of the above-named ringer at Tong, near Bradford, Yorks, on the 23rd of May, 1887, in the 66th year of his age. His interment took place at St. James's church, on Thursday, May 26th. The coffin was borne to the grave by ringers and old friends from various places. After the service a course of Grandsire Major was rung over his grave.

The deceased had been a ringer at Tong church for forty-eight years. Though unable of late to take part in any peals, he has assisted in accomplishing some good performances on six and eight bells. He rung his first 5040 in 1842 at Tong Church, and the longest peal he took part in was one of 6720 of Oxford Treble Bob Major at Pudsey. He was one of a company which rang 6000 changes on six bells, in twenty-five different methods, in such a masterly style as to merit the approbation of all admirers of campanology. He has assisted in winning twenty-eight prizes of the aggregate value of £145 12s. 6d. He joined the Yorkshire Association in 1887, and with that Society, has rung thirteen peals of 5000 and upwards. By his decease the Tong Manor Cricket Club has lost a valuable officer as Secretary. The fact of his being re-elected to this post for seven successive years is undeniable proof that the duties were satisfactorily performed, and also that he was held in high esteem. His loss will be long felt and deeply lamented.

WILL any lover of Church Bells kindly HELP a Country Vicar in his scheme for RESTORING (and if possible, adding to) the BELLS (Five) of his parish Church, which are in an unringable and dangerous condition; estimated cost, £320; the name of any donor of £25 or upwards will be memorialised on new bells.—Address: The Vicar, Wangford, Suffolk.

IN the introductory papers I stated that my object was to lay before the Exercise a more musical method than at present exists for ten and twelve bells. I have been led to dilate at greater length upon the system as applied to eight bells than I at first intended because, although not originally designed as a Major method, "Duffield" in this respect offers very considerable attractions, all of which were hardly at first apparent. It is, however, to Royal and Maximus that I am more particularly desirous to direct attention, and after the full explanation of Major that has gone before little more remains than to give a general idea of the extension of the method to ten and twelve bells. I may mention that the proof is now greatly simplified, while the beauty of the music is much increased from having two or three pairs of bells double dodging above the four-bell work instead of only one pair.

A plain course of Duffield Royal is given above, the course of the tenor being indicated, as in the Major, by a specially conspicuous figure, so that the work may be easily followed. An example of a bob is also appended. I have thought it unnecessary to give more than the first two sixes of Maximus, as the extension from Royal is the same as that of the latter from Major, namely, by the addition of another dodging place. A bob in Maximus is also shewn, and as in Royal, a "before" has been selected, because when this call is made in the plain course, 1,2,3 are alone affected, and the alteration is thus seen without trouble. It will be noticed that whether on eight, ten, or twelve bells, the bobs and singles are invariably, as in Stedman, made on the three behind. Now, however, owing to the extra dodging places, the making of the bob is completely clear of the four-bell work, which is no longer liable to confusion by the sudden return of the bell that in Major makes "bob sixths." In Royal, the bell called to make the bob is the one dodging in 7-8 up, and it makes 8ths place, and falls into the dodging in 7-8 down. Similarly, in Maximus, the bell dodging 9-10 up, makes 10ths place, and falls into 9-10 down, the bells in 7-8 being in no way affected. The work at the bobs is, in fact, exactly like that in Stedman, but on the opposite stroke; the places being laid, as is invariably the case with all whole pulls in "Duffield," at hand and back.

It will be needless to give further directions for the practical ringing of the extended method, as, with the exception that the rules for finding the new course bell after a bob are modified, and the same "double" bell no longer met both up and down, the hints already given still hold good. Some directions were given for ringers who look after their neighbours; it will easily be seen which of these are yet applicable, and which require modification.

The following are the scales for pricking by the first changes of the sixes.

As it is unusual and unnecessary to part the bells above 6ths place in the ringing of Royal and Maximus, I shall proceed upon the assumption that we have only, as in Major, the first six bells to deal with. The scale of course-ends already given in No. IV of these papers will, therefore, serve equally well for ten and twelve bells, with the one exception that a bob at home, which would part the heavy bells, is henceforth useless. With regard to bobs Middle, the same scale as before is available but, in conducting, four consecutive bobs in Royal, and six in Maximus are required to produce the desired effect. Thus an M call in Royal will be denoted by M (4), in Maximus by M (6). It must further be noticed that on all numbers of bells it is always the 8th that has to be called to make the first of these M bobs. The place for calling the first M is, therefore, invariably at the six next after that at which a bob Fourths would be called. I have thought it better to retain the appellation, for although it is only on eight bells that the first of the M bobs calls the tenor to the Middle, yet each of the heavy bells is in turn called there. As in Royal and Maximus bobs M constitute the only means of altering the length of the courses, they assume a greater importance than in Major.

In pricking, for proof, by the first changes of the sixes, the scales given in paper No. V are equally available for ten and twelve bells. In pricking bobs M, if the natural course-end of the course in which they are to be called is obtained, and transposed as before by 436512, the natural course-end from which the course following the M would naturally come is produced, whatever be the number of bells. There is no need to prove any of the M sixes, but only the natural course-ends, as directed in Major. If these latter do not repeat either between themselves, or with any of the fixed course-ends, all the M sixes will be true. In case, however, of a course being lengthened by more than one set of M calls, repetition between the natural course-ends may appear and yet produce no falseness. To understand this, reference must be made to paper No. V, where the proving of Ms is explained. The natural course-ends before transposing by 436512 must all be marked m^1 , and those obtained by transposition marked m^2 . An m^1 course-end can never repeat with an m^2 , nor an m^2 with an m^1 , because they represent, the one the last part of a course, and the other the first part. If between two sets of M calls there are no other calls, it is clear that the m^2 after the first M calls will be the m^1 before the next. The following example giving the proof of a touch containing the three sets of Ms as arranged for introduction into a peal, will shew what is meant.

C.E. to B.	123456
654213	312488	m^1 B M (4)
135624	428531	m^2 M (4)
243165	561342	m^1 M (4)
	312456	m^2
654132	231456	B
654321	123456	B

Here is an instance of two repeating natural course-ends, but the one being an m^1 , and the other an m^2 , no false changes are produced. The same touch will in Maximus run to 324, six bobs being called at each M. In regard to the internal proof of the sixes, it is impossible that any false rows can occur, except in the H (course-end) six, even if singles be called. In this part of the proof it is, therefore, only necessary to test the course-ends of like nature by the usual false course-end 126543, and those of opposite nature, as in Major, by 125364 and 124635. None of the natural course-ends at M calls need be so treated, as such course-ends never actually come up, and at no other place but the H six is internal falseness possible, for the greater number of fixed bells eliminate all chance of it.

The plain course on ten bells runs sixty changes, and on twelve seventy-two changes. Without the use of bobs M it is, therefore, impossible to obtain a less length, over 5000, than 5040. Every set of M calls cuts out two sixes, and thus, by the use of three such sets in a peal, the number can be reduced to 5004. Musically considered, this treatment is objectionable, as three course-ends are thereby cut out.

It has been shewn how, in Major, the bells will come round at the third change of the six from the course-end 125364. The same can be effected in Royal and Maximus, but as bobs at H cannot be called, this course-end which is an odd (out of course) one, can only be brought up by the use of one or an uneven number of singles. The result is that two changes are added to the last course. Thus the numbers which it is possible to produce are limited to those which will divide by 12 without remainder, or with a remainder of 2.

With the 6th at home, and without the use of bobs M, the extent on ten bells is $120 \times 60 = 7200$, on twelve bells $120 \times 72 = 8640$. The same peals that on eight bells run to 5760, will also run the extent of the 6th on the higher numbers. By the use of bobs M, preceded by bobs at Fourths to keep the 6th in place, it would be possible to obtain a much greater length, as the courses are thereby extended without the introduction of any rows liable to be false. Such compositions would, however, be wanting in quality, and are therefore undesirable. The use of bobs M should in any case be confined to the first or an early course of a peal. The extent with the 6th movable, without the use of bobs M, is on ten bells $180 \times 60 = 10800$, on twelve bells $180 \times 72 = 12960$. Owing to the three false course-ends, the 720 courses of which the six bells are capable must, as pointed out in Major, be divided by 4, giving 180 only as available. In this case again bobs at M could be introduced to extend the number.

Any of the compositions already given in Major that do not contain bobs at H will run equally well in Royal and Maximus. As the plain courses consist respectively of 48, 60, and 72 changes, any Major composition will, if rung on ten bells, be increased by one quarter of the number of changes it contains; if on twelve, by one half. A special calculation must, however, be made where bobs M are introduced.

The touches which follow are chiefly given to illustrate the use of bobs M, and the coming round from the course-end 125364. A few other simple ones are, for the convenience of conductors, included, but the scale of course-ends will supply any further need in this direction. In the duplicate heading, the first number applies to Royal, and the second to Maximus. The M calls should be noted as M (4) or M (6) respectively, but for simplicity I have omitted the figures, and the conductor must call either four or six bobs running, according as he is ringing on ten or twelve bells, remembering that the 8th must always be called to make the first of these bobs, the 7th of course making the last.

ERRATUM.—In the peals of Major in paper No. IX. the only error is a misplaced bob mark in peal No 1., in which the calling of the first course of the last part should read: 215436 I. B.

In Memoriam.

FREDERICK RICHARD STEED.

We are sorry to have to record the death of the above-named gentleman, sexton and parish clerk of Long Melford, who died on Tuesday morning, May 24th, at the early age of 29 years, of consumption, and leaves a widow and four children to mourn his loss. Deceased was a member of the choir, and was master of the company of ringers, but through ill-health was unable to take part in but little ringing. He rang his first 720 of Bob Minor at Glensford on Saturday, May 3rd, 1879, with the following band: F. R. Steed, 1; J. Slater, 2; C. Honeybell, 3; O. Garwood, 4; Z. Slater, 5; S. Slater (conductor), 6. Mr. Steed only rang only on peal, 5040 of Bob Major, at Long Melford, on Tuesday, October 27th, 1885, and reported in "THE BELL NEWS" of that time. The coffin was borne to the grave by members of the choir. The service was conducted by the rector, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, who also performed the burial service of the Oddfellows, deceased being a member of that order. After the service was over, the ringers ascended the tower, and to pay the last tribute of respect to their departed brother, rang with the bells deeply muffled, 560 of Bob Major. J. Slater, 1; P. C. S. Scott, 2; C. Adams, 3; S. Slater (conductor), 4; Z. Slater, 5; F. Wells, 6; G. Maxim, 7; O. Garwood, 8. The bells were then half-muffled, and a 576 of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung. Z. Slater, 1; C. Honeybell, 2; C. Adams, 3; S. Slater, 4; J. Bird, 5; F. Wells, 6; G. Maxim, 7; G. Hammond (conductor), 8.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

On Whit-Monday, May 30th, the members of the Bromsgrove branch of the above Association journeyed to Chaddesley Corbett to play their brother ringers a cricket match. Arriving there about 10.30, and after refreshing the inner man, they adjourned to the tower, and rang a short touch of Bob Major and one of Grandsire Triples, and then an adjournment was made to the cricket field. Bromsgrove winning the toss, sent to the wicket Messrs. Hayward and Bourne, to the bowling of Messrs. Broad and J. Nicholls, and the Bromsgrove men not being so good in cricket as they are in ringing, were very soon disposed of for the small total of 32 runs, and the Chaddesley band being better cricketers than ringers, made the grand total of 114 runs. The Bromsgrove men going in again, made the small total of 29 runs, thus leaving the Chaddesley band victorious by an innings and 63 runs to spare. The batting of W. James, G. Moore, J. Broad, Perrins, and Gilbert, and the bowling of J. Nicholls, Broad, James, and Rea, for their respective sides, was worthy of praise. Score:—

The members of both bands afterwards sat down to a substantial dinner at the "Fox Inn," to which ample justice was done, and the cloth being removed, Mr. H. Bough was appointed to the chair, and in proposing the health of the Bromsgrove band, said that this cricket match had been a long while talked about, as it was to have been played about four years ago; and now that it had come off, he (the speaker) hoped it would be an annual affair. He coupled with the toast the name of Mr. G. Hayward, who, on rising to respond, said that this was the first cricket match that he had ever played in his life, and hoped it would not be the last, and he also hoped that Bromsgrove and Chaddesley men would ring peals together as well as play cricket together. The health of the Chaddesley band being proposed by Mr. W. Rea, and responded to by Mr. J. Broad, and that of the host and hostess, some good songs were sang by several members of both bands, and afterwards an adjournment was made to the tower, where some good touches of Grandsire Triples brought the day's enjoyment to a close, and the Bromsgrove company returned home, hoping to have another day like Whit-Monday.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

Report of ringing done by the Bishop Auckland Branch, at the parish church of St. Andrew's, Auckland, during the month of May:—

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.—ANNUAL MEETING.

THIS Association, which was founded at Writtle in 1879, has held several successive gatherings at Chelmsford, the county town, but the Eighth Annual Meeting, as briefly noticed in our last, which took place on Whit-Monday of the present year, will not only rank as the most successful yet held, but also as a red-letter day in the history of the Association. In its early days the Association not only found that the ring of ten, which formerly existed at St. Mary's, Chelmsford had been reduced to eight, but that the appliances for ringing were in a deplorable condition. The latter was a matter of considerable regret, especially as Chelmsford is not only situate in one of the most favourable positions for access from all parts of the county, but its immediate neighbourhood offers greater facilities than any other part of the county for a large gathering, there being within a circle of three miles, as many additional rings of eight and six. Considering these important advantages, combined with the fact that the Association was founded for the purpose of promoting the science, and for belfry reform, no time was lost in drawing the attention of the authorities to the neglected condition of the tower, with the result that considerable improvement was effected, and the Association enabled to make Chelmsford its centre. Having accomplished this, the question naturally arose whether it was possible that any steps could be taken to make the ring of ten again replete. According to the best reliable information, it appears that in 1820 two new trebles were added to the Chelmsford ring. When the hamlet church known as St. John's, Moulsham, was built in 1841, in some extraordinary way, probably without any protest, these two trebles were taken to the hamlet church. Fortunately, after the improvement had been carried out at Chelmsford, the Rev. H. Cockey, late Hon. Sec. to the Association, who was restoring Rettendon tower, found that there was an old tenor which could be parted with; just at the nick of time some alterations were taking place at Moulsham, the rev. gentleman by considerable tact and skill planned arrangements by which the Rettendon tenor was sent to Moulsham, and the two trebles sent from the latter to Chelmsford. Some stumbling block however turned up and the Association held two Annual Meetings, at which members were afforded an opportunity of seeing the bells resting beneath the belfry floor. Upon both occasions, and at district meetings, the question of rehanging was pegged away at. Probably it was thought that the question was so continually before the Association, that like the jubilee year which gives a name for everything from the Jubilee baby to the stage coach, it had for the present no end but that it was for the dim and distant future to see such a desire accomplished. At the Annual Meeting of 1886, there were signs however of the progress, the bells having been taken up upon the ringing-floor, with the result that shortly before Easter of the present year, the services of Mr. H. Bowell, of Ipswich, were called in, and that gentleman has been successful in carrying out his work to perfection, and thus there is once more at Chelmsford a ring of ten, which probably would never have been restored except for the existence of the Association. This accomplishment cannot be regarded but as a great achievement, and will doubtless prove of vast assistance to the Association in bringing its influence to bear upon other towers requiring reform. This satisfactory result no doubt led to the large gathering present on Whit-Monday.

Ringling in connection with the meeting commenced on the Saturday evening, when the following band started for the "Original" upon the back eight. B. Keeble, 1; W. Rowland, 2; H. De Lisle, 3; G. Cartmel, 4; W. H. L. Buckingham (conductor), 5; W. Hawkes, 6; W. Lincoln, 7; W. Battle, 8. It was originally intended for a peal of Caters, but as the temptation was not sufficient to bring about a muster, Triples had to be attempted. Owing unfortunately to the breaking of a rope the attempt proved a failure short of an hour's ringing. A 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor being rung upon the front six, and a short touch of Bob Major upon the back eight, an adjournment from the belfry was made, and the following started for a double-handed peal: B. Keeble, 1-2; G. Cartmel, 3-4; W. H. L. Buckingham (conductor), 5-6; W. Battle, 7-8. Messrs. Lincoln and De Lisle acted as referees. This however came to grief short of a 1000 by an unfortunate shift. On Sunday, Galleywood, Widford, and Writtle were visited, touches of Grandsire Triples being brought round in both eight-bell towers, and a 720 of Oxford at Widford. In the evening the band returned to Chelmsford, and after service a capital quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung. M. Rolph, 1; W. Rowland, 2; B. Keeble, 3; G. Cartmel, 4; W. H. L. Buckingham, 5; W. Hawkes, 6; W. Battle, 7; J. Parmenter, 8. A band of the Cumberland Society having arranged to start on Monday for a peal of Treble Bob Royal, made arrangements to meet at Chelmsford on Sunday afternoon, when a touch of Grandsire Caters was rung. The band afterwards visited Writtle, and in the evening attempted a peal of Stedman Triples, this proving a failure after an hour's ringing. 560 Double Norwich Court Bob Major was rung by W. Doran, 1; W. Fussell, 2; C. Chapman, 3; A. J. Perkins, 4; F. Pitstow, 5; A. Jacob, 6; G. Taylor, 7; G. Newson, 8. A start was made early on Monday morning for a peal of Grandsire Triples at Galleywood, which by an accident with the 9th came to grief at the end of two and a quarter hours' good ringing. The arrangement for starting at Chelmsford fixed 8.15 as the time. Considering it was desirable to have the tower open for all comers at the earliest possible moment in this respect the band made, although not a serious one, a mistake. Having rung touches for the early morning service ropes should have been adjusted and a start made at the proper time, instead of which it was 8.28 before the bells went off into changes. The band was comprised as follows: G. Newson (conductor), 1; A. J. Perkins, 2; A. Jacob, 3; N. J. Pitstow, 4; W. H. Fussell, 5; E. Cole, 6; W. Doran, 7; E. Chapman, 8; G. Taylor, 9; F. Pitstow, 10. By the time of starting some forty members had assembled, and those competent to criticise simply remarked upon what was said to be slow striking by one who should be nameless. At the end of a quarter of an hour adverse criticism ceased, and for two hours all but about three minutes everything (with the exception of a case of illness near the church) appeared in favour of success. Suddenly, however, the 7th man had the misfortune to miss a dodge and to follow up the mistake by the extraordinary blunder of attempting to travel in the wrong direction. A general scramble resulted, and as matters could not be set right there was no alternative but to stand. Some, who had been admiring the ringing were disappointed, but there were not absent those who were not disappointed, because as they contended that the peal should not have been attempted unless it could be brought round in time to open the tower by 9 o'clock or thereabouts to all comers, while others in supporting such, contended that in meeting as members of the Association other societies should be ignored upon such occasions, and if bands were made up for peal-ringing they should not be confined to one Society. During the day several touches of Stedman and Grandsire Caters were rung, the bands including members from Ipswich, who also rung touches of Double Norwich and Stedman at Galleywood. Various 720s and touches were rung at Widford and Springfield, and at Writtle, Holt's Original was successfully brought round in the evening, and the desire expressed in the able report read at the meeting by the Hon. Sec. that some of the members who twelve months back had not advanced beyond Doubles would before twelve months find their names recorded in the peal-book, no longer needs any doubt. Upon conclusion of the peal the band adjourned to the Vicarage, where they were entertained by the Vicar and Mrs. Papillon, and the handbells made use of.

The usual service in connection with the meeting was held at 12.30 at St. Mary's. The Rev. D. Green read the prayers, Archdeacon Johnson the first lesson, the Rev. T. L. Papillon the second, and the address was given by the Bishop of Colchester from the words "And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the spirit."

The members to the number of 115 afterwards sat down to a capital dinner in the schoolroom, the Bishop presiding. Representatives were present from most of the towers connected with the Association. The business meeting followed, when the Hon. Sec. read the following report.

I am glad to begin the first Annual Report which I have the honor of presenting to the Association by recording a further increase in our numbers of four honorary and 70 ringing members, the number of the latter being now 339 as compared with 269 on Whit-Monday, 1886. This continual growth is gratifying not only for the addition which it brings to the funds of the Association, but still more as an evidence that the cause of change-ringing is making way in the country. Three new companies, Broomfield, Danbury, and Newport, have been added to our list, and one other, Sandon, is on the point of joining us. The decision of the Association at the last Annual Meeting to assist in providing instructors for companies who are willing to join the Association as probationers has already done something and will no doubt do more to encourage change-ringing. Payments have been made on account of instruction at Chelmsford, Danbury, Harwich, and Stanford-le-Hope, and I received inquiries from clergymen in several other places which, if we are able to help them towards the cost of instruction, will probably lead to further additions to our members. The correspondence which I have had upon this subject makes me confident that there is no use to which we can put such funds as we are able to spare, that is better calculated to advance the objects for which the Association exists. Of ten peals rung during the year by members of the Association, only three were rung in Essex, our non-resident members, particularly those of the Cathedral society of St. Albans, being still the chief contributors to our peal-book. Two remarkable performances upon handbells by four non-resident members of the Association deserve special mention, viz.: the ringing double-handed without any call or intimation of a call throughout Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples on March 11th, and Holt's Ten-part peal on April 20th of the present year. Such silent peals are real intellectual feats of which we may all be proud. The work, however, of the Association must be judged not only by the silent performances of experts, but also by the progress made among its less accomplished members, and the record of each fresh step gained by a young band is in its way as important as an entry in the peal-book. I am glad to say that there has come under my own observation in the immediate neighbourhood of Chelmsford much satisfactory evidence of progress, and I hope that before our next Annual Meeting the peal book will contain the names of some among us who at the Annual Meeting in 1886 had not advanced beyond Doubles. I would urge all our young ringers to cultivate and all my brother clergy to encourage and stimulate in them that perseverance and regularity which seems distasteful to so many men in our country districts, but which is the only sure road to success in the art of ringing. That the Association has still much work before it will appear from the following statistics: there are in the county of Essex 141 rings of five or more bells, viz.: two rings of ten bells; twenty-one of eight; forty-seven of six; and seventy-one of five. Of these the two ten-bell towers, sixteen eight-bell towers, twenty-two six-bell towers, and eight five-bell towers, in all forty-five, are at present on our list, leaving ninety-three towers, viz.: five eight-bell towers, twenty-five six-bell towers, and sixty-three five-bell towers in which at present we have no footing, and in the great majority of which we may assume that change-ringing is unknown. Last Autumn, in accordance with a desire expressed at the Annual Meeting, a copy of our report, together with a form to be filled in with particulars as to number, weight, and condition of bells was sent to the incumbent of each of these ninety-three parishes with a request for information, but only eighteen of them replied. In some places, no doubt, the bells are in a bad condition, and there is either no money or no wish to improve them, in others the clergy and churchwardens are indifferent, in others the conservatism of the established round and call change-ringers block the way. But when every allowance has been made for these drawbacks it is clear that there must remain many parishes in Essex where change-ringing might be introduced, and with it possibly in some instances, much needed bellfry reform. The new certificate of membership of the Association has been issued this year at the price of 6d. each, and over a hundred members have already applied for them. I mention this in order to remind those who do not yet possess a certificate that they can now be supplied. Our meetings have not been all so well attended this year. At the Annual Meeting on Whit-Monday last, ninety-three members were present, service being held as usual at St. Mary's church, and an address delivered by the present secretary. At Braintree on September 25th, thirty-eight members were present; at West Ham on January 8th, twenty-six; and at Harwich, on March 10th, only sixteen, nine of whom belonged to the local company. With regard to the Harwich meeting, however, it must be said that the railway arrangements at that time of the year are almost prohibitive to members from a distance. In bellfry improvement, the chief event of the year has been the recent restoration of the two trebles to their place at St. Mary's, Chelmsford. The county town and centre of the Association now possesses a good ring of ten bells, and all that is wanted is a band of Chelmsford ringers to do them justice. The promised ring of eight at Brentwood is not yet hung, and it is stated that on the advice of the architect they will not be rung until two years after the tower is finished. Subscriptions are being invited in Moulsham for the addition of five bells to that which now hangs in the tower in commemoration of Her Majesty's jubilee, but it is not yet known what the result will be. A new ring of six will shortly be opened at Holy Trinity church, Canning Town. Last but not least comes the state of our finances. The income for the year, provided the whole of the arrears are paid up, will be £52 12s. 6d., the expenditure has been £45 4s. 3d. This will leave a balance to be placed with the reserve fund in the Savings Bank. The preparation of the plate and printing 400 copies of the members' certificate cost £13 0s. 6d., to meet which £10 was withdrawn from the reserve fund, and the remaining £3 0s. 6d. paid from the funds in hand. The sale of 105 certificates at 6d. each has replaced £2 12s. 6d. of this latter sum, leaving 8s. to be entered under the year's expenses, and I propose that in future all payments received from members for certificates be repaid to the credit of the reserve fund, so that the original outlay upon certificates may gradually be recouped. The Association will, I trust, continue to promote yet widely a knowledge of scientific change-ringing (which is an admirable exercise both in mind and body) and the cause of bellfry reform, by which expression we shall all agree to understand the improvement not only of our bells and bellfries, but of the tone and position of ringers and ringing. We must all do our best to further these objects, remembering that the science of ringing has still to make way against a good deal of indifference and prejudice, in former years only too well founded, but now, thanks to the efforts of this and similar Associations in all parts of the country almost if not quite unjustified.

Mr. PAPILLON then read extracts from letters received, one of which was from an eight-bell tower in the county not connected with the Association, in which the writer said the old call-change ringers were a great stumbling block against the introduction of change-ringing, and that they seldom rung but upon paid occasions. The rev. gentleman also read a letter from the Rev. H. A. Cockey, stating that although absent in body he should be present with them in spirit and wished to be favoured with an opinion of the Chelmsford ten.

The usual officers for the year were elected, as were also four hon. members and forty ringing members and probationers.

Mr. PAPILLON, in pursuance of notice, then proposed that any application for grants towards the rehanging or augmentation of peals in the county shall first be considered by the Committee and referred by them to the next annual meeting of the Association. He had received one or two inquiries as to whether the Association gave help of that kind, and he thought without judging as to whether it was desirable to do so or not, at any rate if such applications were made they ought to go before the Committee, and then they ought to be decided by the annual meeting, when the greatest number of members were present. If the Association passed such a resolution it would enable him to give an answer to the application, and the Association could decide whether the cases were deserving of help. One letter he received asked for help in adding a sixth bell to a country church, and his reply to the writer was that he could tell him nothing at present, but that the subject would probably be brought before the next meeting of the Association. The resolution was seconded by Mr. B. Keeble, and carried.

The Hon. Sec. referred to a resolution passed at the last annual meeting, by which it was resolved to pay instructors to teach bands willing to join the Association as probationers. The Committee afterwards decided that one half of the fee to an instructor should be paid from the funds of the Association, leaving the band having the services of the instructor to pay the other half. He thought that there should be some limit placed upon the amount that an instructor should receive from the funds of the Association, and in accordance with notice that he had given he would move that the fees should not extend beyond thirty shillings, which would allow of twelve lessons, which ought to be sufficient for a band.

Mr. ROLPH (Springfield), said he did not see why the funds of the Association should be used for such purpose, and he would propose that the Association should not pay any fees.

Mr. RADLEY (Sistled) seconded.

Mr. PAPILLON pointed out that the resolution was passed at the annual meeting, and no steps could be taken to rescind such only by notice given previously.

An opinion having been expressed that the resolution last year was passed under a wrong impression, Mr. ROLPH said he would give notice of moving that the resolution passed at the 1886 annual meeting as to paying instructors' fees should be rescinded.

Mr. PAPILLON said under those circumstances he would not press his resolution.

Mr. B. KEEBLE pointed out that the question was one of some importance, and asked if it was intended to bring it before a district meeting or the next annual meeting, and Mr. Rolph decided to adopt the latter.

Mr. B. KEEBLE proposed, and Mr. S. Hayes seconded that the Association contribute the sum of £1 10s. to the Jasper Snowdon Memorial Fund, which was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. B. KEEBLE proposed a vote of thanks to the authorities of the surrounding towers for the use of the bells, and to the Bishop for his sermon, which was carried with acclamation.

The West Ham band, consisting of Messrs. J. P. Bradley (conductor), H. Randall, F. Searle, H. Linstead, and A. Linstead, played the following selections on their handbells: March from Norma, Lord Hardwick's March, and the "Huntsman's Chorus." The pieces were given in capital style, but the ringers had the misfortune to break off the clapper of one of their bells.

The restoration of the two trebles has reproduced a fair ring of ten, but not possessing such musical qualities as that of West Ham, the only other ring of ten in the county. West Ham has obtained a Corporation, Chelmsford, although the assize town for the county, does not at present possess such an honour, but is seeking to obtain it. It is to be hoped that the privilege may be granted, and that finally Essex may not be left without a twelve bell tower.

During the past two years there has been some very satisfactory progress in the immediate neighbourhood of Chelmsford. At Writtle (8 bells) where there had been little or no change-ringing for many years, first Grandsire Doubles and then Bob Minor and Grandsire Triples have been mastered. At Broomfield (6 bells) a band has been formed, and has accomplished 720 of Bob Minor. At Danbury (5 bells) a band which joined the Essex Association as probationers in 1886, can now ring Grandsire Doubles on the tower bells, and Bob Minor on handbells; and at Sandon, a small village with a 5-bell tower, Grandsire Doubles have been learnt within the last three months. At Springfield (6), Widford (6), Boreham (6), and Galleywood (8), there have always of late years been good ringers to keep alive the art. With so many towers in the immediate neighbourhood, and so much newly awakened zeal for ringing, Chelmsford, with its peal of ten bells, ought to become a first-rate ringing centre, to which all the neighbouring villages might look for help and the supply of deficiencies in their own bands. But alas! in the county town and central meeting place of the Essex Association, there is little or no movement. The paid ringers of the parish church are content with rounds and call-changes, and the few who have recently tried something better, seem to have gone very half-heartedly to work. It was scarcely creditable to Chelmsford that on the visit of the Essex Agricultural Society to the town this week, the committee of the Society should have had to pay the local ringers for doing nothing but rounds and call-changes on the ten bells. Had they thought fit to invite the Essex Association of change-ringers to find a band to ring on one at any rate of the two days upon the bells of a county town, there might have been a graceful recognition of one county organisation by another, and a somewhat better sound of welcome on the bells.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX-BELL RINGERS.

The Ninth Annual meeting of the above Association was held at Standish, on Saturday, June 4, when the following companies were represented. Leyland parish. Leyland St. James, Preston, Chorley, Blackrod, Eccleston, and Standish. Ringing commenced at 3 o'clock and the bells were kept going till 5 o'clock, when the members adjourned to the schoolroom, where a splendid knife and fork tea was provided by Mr. James Hunt (a member). After ample justice was done, the general meeting was held, the president (Mr. W. Bowling) in the chair, supported by the rector and curate of Standish, the meeting being opened with prayer by the rector. After a few remarks by the rev. gentleman, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, the report of the receipts and expenditure was read by the auditors, which gave a satisfactory balance. The next proceeding was to elect officers, after which it was decided to hold the next quarterly meeting at Eccleston. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the rector for his presence, also for the use of the bells and schoolroom on this occasion.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1887.

As the space which is generally afforded us for our usual comment is this week somewhat curtailed owing to the publication of one or two lengthy reports, the occasion may be improved by pointing out to our readers what we consider a growing evil, an evil, by the way, which is in their power to remove. Our remarks have reference to the sending of what may be termed reports of minor performances. For a long time past some of our friends have apparently desired to see the results of their weekly practice in bulk, this being effected by omitting to send reports of ringing week by week, as is most usual, but remit them altogether at the end of the month. This habit seems to be growing, until it becomes necessary to point out what the effect will be if the plan is allowed to make headway. We are always most anxious, and have ever been, to meet the views of our friends in every respect, but if the mode we are alluding becomes contagious, as we are afraid it will do, our weekly issues will appear with very few touches, but every fourth week will be inundated with monthly summaries of them, to the total exclusion of every other topic. It seems to us that weekly reports are by far the best from more than one standpoint. We are of opinion that short accounts of touches, 720's of Minor, and so forth, stand a better chance of being read through than when they are in the shape of a voluminous monthly summary. If all reports were sent monthly we should require to enlarge our paper to double its present size for one week out of every four, while the ordinary weekly numbers would have to be reduced. We are certain this is not what our friends desire, and the irregularity of such a publication would be totally out of the question. Better will it be to run on the old lines, at any rate so far as the weekly ringing reports are concerned.

While speaking of arrangements connected with the paper, we may again call attention to the notice at the head of this column respecting the time we should receive communications to be dealt with in the current week. A total disregard of this notice often leads to disappointment which we would rather not hear of.

A DAY AT NORTHWICH, CHESHIRE.

On Saturday, June 4th, a rather mixed band of ringers from Eccles and district, paid a visit to the above place, in response to an invitation kindly sent to them some time back. Owing to various circumstances, this visit had been postponed two or three times until the above day. Proceeding from Manchester (central), by the 9.33 a.m. train, the party arrived at Northwich station at about 10.30 a.m., where several of the local company were waiting for them. The usual morning greetings over, steps were made towards the meeting house. Here a slight repast was partaken of, a few ringing matters talked over, and as it was found there would be an interment at 4 p.m., it was decided to go and start for the peal at once, as previously arranged. Arriving in the belfry, the ringers at once "peeled." It may be as well to mention that the bells, eight in number, were formerly a peal of six, but have this year had two trebles put to them from the foundry of Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, and who also rehung the other six. The "splice" is a first class one, and the "go" of the whole peal cannot be found fault with. The most remarkable feature about them is they run the reverse way, viz., from left to right. The plain course of Bob Major was rung as a preliminary, after which "go" was called at 12.9 p.m., for a peal of Bob Major (three-part). The ringing needs no comment, as all went on smoothly till 3.11 p.m., when the northern cry of "this is all," showed that the peal was finished, the time occupied being 3 hrs. 2 mins. Several of the local band then entered the belfry and congratulated the visitors on their achievement, and the regular striking observed throughout. The account of this peal is reported in its proper place. The whole party then made their way to the Coffee Tavern, where a good substantial tea was provided. This being over, the visitors were shown many of the houses and shops that had given way, owing to the brine being pumped out from beneath their foundations. At one place especially, the space between two shops was 3 feet when they were first built, but now are only about 18 inches on the footpath level, and at their roofs there is about six inches between them. There are a great many other houses whose foundations have given way on one side, and would fall altogether, only the houses next them have given way the other side, and thus practically hold each other up. The visitors expressing a wish that they would like to go down into one of the rock salt mines, they were there and then taken to one, as one of the local band is the engineer there. The shafts of the mine are about three feet in diameter, and circular, and the depth, 110 yards. The means of descent is by a kind of tub (the visitors forgot its proper name), about 4 feet six inches in depth, and will hold for ordinary persons (with no elbow room), and is let down by a flat wire rope worked by a beam engine. Each one took his coat off before the descent, to prevent its being spoilt by rubbing against the side of the shaft. Landing at the bottom, the visitors were supplied each with a candle, as the darkness is darkness. The guides then took them along one of the passages which had been made by the miners, and along which tramways are laid for the trucks to run on, which carry the tubs filled with rock salt. Arriving at the end of the passage, the party were shewn the manner in which the rock is cut or blown out by powder. On one ledge of the rock there happened to be one of these holes, which had been drilled out, about three or four handfuls of coarse powder put in, plugged up, a fuse put in and then lit; in a few seconds the fuse had ignited the powder, and then bang! the rock was seen to lift up and then drop into pieces. The visitors then picked up a small piece of the rock salt and took it home as a sort of relic. Time being short, they all ascended above ground, and train time being near, a move was then made for the station, the last train for Manchester leaving at the early hour of 8.25 p.m. During the day the party rang several courses and tunes on the handbells. Whit-Saturday being a very busy day for the railways, the train did not arrive in Manchester till 10.40 p.m., an hour and a half late. The visitors wish to tender through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," their most sincere and grateful thanks to the Northwich and Budworth ringers for the exceeding great kindness and hospitality shown towards them on this their first, and it is to be hoped not the last visit to Northwich.

THE CHANGE-RINGERS' MEMORIAL TO JASPER WHITFIELD SNOWDON.—UNVEILING CEREMONY AT ILKLEY PARISH CHURCH, YORKSHIRE, ON SATURDAY, JUNE 11TH.

Divine Service will be held at 4.0 pm, (i.e. half an hour earlier than previously announced) at which the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Canon Wigram, M.A., Rector of St. Andrew's, Hertford, and Rural Dean; member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, the St. James's Society, and the Hertford County Association, &c., &c. At this service the window will be unveiled. The first half of the visitors will sit down to tea at 5.30 pm., and the second at 6.15 pm. Those arriving by the train which reaches Ilkley a few minutes before four o'clock are requested to go straight to the church, where seats will be kept for them.

W. WHITAKER, Hon. Sec. of the Yorkshire Association.

A WHIT-MONDAY EXCURSION.

On Monday, May 30th, a small party of ringers from Haverstock Hill, paid a visit to King's Langley, Herts. Meeting at Willesden for the 9.30 a.m. train, they were soon steaming away, but found themselves when they stopped two stations, further than they wished, having got into a special Berkhamstead train. They were soon taken back to the right station, but found those who were to meet them gone away disappointed at not meeting them by the right train. However they had no difficulty in finding the church and the steeple-keeper, Mr. Ridgway, who soon joined them. Ascending the tower, 120 of Grandsire Doubles was first rung by J. Nixon, 1; J. Comb, 2; A. Pitham, 3; A. Tennant, 4; N. Alderman, 5; T. Titchener (conductor), 6. A 720 of Plain Bob was then rung in 25½ mins. J. Nixon, 1; A. Tennant, 2; J. Leach, 3; A. Pitham, 4; N. Alderman (conductor), 5; T. Titchener, 6. And a course of Kent Treble Bob. The "go" of the bells not tempting them to stop, they finished with 120 of Doubles, falling in peal. The tenor is about 13 cwt., and this is supposed to be the first 720 rung in the tower. Mr. Ridgway next conducted them to his own house, where they enjoyed a substantial meal of cold ham, beef, fresh butter, watercress, etc. They then took leave of their friends here, and started for Apsley End, about two miles off. Here after another slight delay, they were introduced to the Vicar, the Rev. Percival Ward, who readily gave permission to use the bells, and they were also very warmly welcomed by the local ringers, three of whom succeeded in ringing 120 of Grandsire Doubles, it being the first they had ever rung. A 720 of Plain Bob was again rung in 26 mins. A. Tennant, 1; J. Nixon, 2; J. Leach, 3; A. Pitham, 4; N. Alderman (conductor), 5; T. Titchener, 6. Also a 720 of Kent Treble Bob in 36 mins. N. Alderman, 1; A. Tennant, 2; J. Leach, 3; T. Titchener (conductor), 4; J. Nixon, 5; A. Pitham, 6. These are a musical peal in good going order, the tenor about 19 cwt. Time getting short, they finished up with a course of Oxford Treble Bob, and falling in peal, a glass of ale, and a rush to the station, and a ride home in a well packed train, they landed again at Willesden well satisfied with their day's pleasure.

WORCESTERSHIRE AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday last a quarterly meeting of this Association was held (by the kind permission of the Rector (the Rev. W. C. Gibbs who presided) in St. John-the-Baptist school-room, situate in the picturesque grounds of Hagley Park, Worcestershire, the seat of the Lytteltons. The meeting was attended by members from Bromsgrove, Chaddesley, Brierley Hill, Dudley, Hagley, Kidderminster, Netherton, Stourbridge, Tipton, &c. The minutes of the last Annual Meeting were read and confirmed, and several new members added to the roll. Reports were received from the Instructors as to the progress the Societies (they were visiting) were making in the art of change-ringing. Although the reports were not so favourable as could be wished, the Association hope to hear better results at the next meeting. The usual vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman for presiding, for the use of the tower and school-room. The rev. gentleman in responding thanked the members most heartily, and said he should always feel it a pleasure to meet them and to allow the use of the bells at any time to a band of change-ringers. During the afternoon several touches of Grandsire Triples &c. were rung on the tower bells, which are in good ringing condition.

SIGNALLING MOVING TRAINS.—Since the first edition of this work was issued, induction currents have been practically utilised in order to effect communication with trains actually travelling on a railway. Phelps' arrangement depends upon the elementary phenomena described in connection with figs. 1, 2, 3. A telegraph wire is stretched all along the centre of the railway-track, through which any required message is sent. Another wire is fixed under the bottom of the guard's carriage, with which is connected some sensitive telegraphic receiving instrument inside the carriage. However fast the train is moving, if the two wires are tolerably close, a signal passing through the line-wire produces an induced current in the carriage-wire, which transmits the signal; or conversely, a signal sent through the carriage-wire can produce an induced current in the line-wire, and transmit the signal to the station. Communication has been effected in this way with a train running forty miles per hour. In another system, devised by Eddison and Gilliland, induction is effected between the wires hung on telegraph poles in the usual way, but brought nearer, and the metal roofs of the carriages, which are insulated, and connected together end to end. The receiver may be an ordinary telephone, with a sounder and switch to complete the circuit, or a pair of telephones may be worn permanently at the ears by a head band. In Edison's system the receiver is connected with an induction-coil in such a way that the surface of the metal roofs also acts as a condenser to the coil, and increases the effect of the current in producing the clicks or signals of the Morse code.—From "Science for All" for June.

OUTING OF THE WANSTEAD AMALGAMATED SOCIETY

On Whit-Monday eight of this society, starting from Wanstead with a pair of horses and brake, paid a visit to the picturesque village of Finchingfield, Essex. After stopping at various places for refreshing both man and beast, the first tower that was visited was Dunmow, a rather heavy ring of six, tenor about 24 cwt. Here was scored a 720 of Plain Bob in 26 mins. J. Priest, 1; J. Nunn, 2; J. S. Wincey, 3; W. Manning, 4; A. S. Barrell, 5; T. Scarlett (conductor), 6. From what could be ascertained from some of the local "stone" ringers, it is believed to be the first 720 on the bells, which was only achieved through great perseverance, on account of the bells going very badly. After playing a few tunes on the handbells, a move was made towards Finchingfield, arriving there about 1.30 pm. Some refreshments being partaken of, the bell-chamber was then visited to examine ropes, wheels &c. The visitors were informed by one of the local "stone" men that the bells all went well, except the 6th, which they afterwards found out to be too true. At all events a start was made for Hollis's 5-part peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing about three-quarters of an hour the conductor was obliged to call "stand" on account of the 6th bell going so badly. The band stood as follows: J. Wincey, 1; J. Nunn, 2; J. Priest, 3; W. Manning, 4; A. S. Barrell, 5; A. Gardom (conductor), 6; T. Scarlett, 7; G. Cornell, 8. During the evening (by special invitation) a visit was also paid to the parish church at Wethersfield, where a 720 of Plain Bob was brought home in 27 mins. A. Gardom (conductor), 1; W. Manning, 2; J. Wincey, 3; J. Nunn, 4; A. S. Barrell, 5; G. Cornell, 6. Also a 720 Kent Treble Bob, in 27 mins. A. Gardom, 1; J. Priest, 2; W. Manning, 3; J. Nunn, 4; A. S. Barrell, 5; T. Scarlett, (conductor) 6. On Tuesday morning a start was made for Thaxted (eight bells), arriving there about 12 o'clock. Here the visitors found the bells in good order, but the ropes were much too large to make half-pull ringing easy. Hollis's 5-part peal of Grandsire Triples was attempted, but time getting short the bells were brought round about half-way. J. Wincey, 1; T. Scarlett, 2; J. Nunn, 3; W. Manning, 4; J. Priest, 5; A. Gardom (conductor), 6; A. S. Barrell, 7; G. Cornell, 8. Although the ringers had never had the pleasure of ringing these bells before, they were complimented on their good striking. A course of Grandsire Caters on the handbells concluded the ringing at this stage. On the return journey, a stoppage was made at Bishops Stortford, where, after finding the steeple-keeper (Mr. H. Tucker), a 720 of Bob Major was brought home. J. Wincey, 1; J. Nunn, 2; W. Manning, 3; J. Priest, 4; A. S. Barrell, 5; G. Cornell, 6; T. Scarlett, (conductor) 7; A. Gardom, 8. Also with the assistance of three of the local company, two courses of Grandsire Caters. G. Cornell, 1; A. Gardom, 2; H. Tucker, 3; J. Nunn, 4; A. Tucker, 5; W. Manning, 6; A. S. Barrell, 7; J. Priest, 8; T. Scarlett, 9; —, 10. At 7.30 a final start was made for Wanstead, but having travelled about 8 miles one of the band (who had a sharper ear than the others), called out, "Hark! I hear the sound of bells." The brake was at once stopped, and then came the sound of Stedman, from the peal of eight at Sawbridgeworth. The company quickly found their way towards the church, and after an introduction, had the pleasure of ringing a 360 of Bob Major, the band standing as at Bishops Stortford. This concluded two thoroughly enjoyable days outing, with which the band were all very much pleased, and they thank their ringing friends for the kind attention shown them on their visit.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Whit Monday, May 30th, the members of St. Anne's Church, Bagshot, visited Ewhurst for the purpose of having a pull on the bells. Starting at 6.30 by break from Bagshot, Ewhurst was reached at 11.45 where on arriving they were met by the local company, and Messrs. Charman, Farnfield, and Knight of Cranleigh. A 720 of Grandsire Minor, was then rung in 26 mins. H. Stapleton, 1; T. Gould, 2; F. Francis, 3; E. Spooner, 4; E. Lee, 5; W. Houlton (conductor), 6. Afterwards a start was made for dinner, which was done justice to after the long ride over the Surrey hills. Dinner being over, they ascended the tower again and started for a 720 of Bob Minor, which unfortunately was lost at the last single. E. Angell, 1; T. Gould, 2; F. Francis (Ewhurst), 3; E. Spooner (conductor), 4; W. Knight (Cranleigh), 5; W. Houlton, 6. After a few Doubles had been rung, the bells were lowered, and a start was made for Cranleigh about three miles farther. On arriving there, they had tea at the Institute (which was built at the expense of a gentleman of that place). Tea being over, they ascended the tower and rung a 720 of Bob Minor. E. Angell, 1; F. Francis (Ewhurst), 2; F. Francis, 3; E. Spooner (conductor), 4; —, Streeter (Cranleigh), 5; G. Farnfield (Cranleigh), 6. Afterwards a start was made for a 720 of Grandsire Minor, but was lost when near the finish. H. Stapleton, 1; J. Charman (Cranleigh), 2; E. Spooner, 3; T. Gould, 4; E. Lee, 5; W. Houlton (conductor), 6. After the bells were lowered they spent the remainder of the evening in songs, &c., and started back to Bagshot at 10.20 p.m., which was reached at 1.45 a.m. Tuesday morning. So ended a long and pleasant day.

THE SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS

On Saturday afternoon, Messrs Newson (conductor), Rogers, (Cattle, Fussell, Jacob, and Dains, paid a visit, at the invitation of Messrs. John Warner and Sons, Bellfounders, to Holy Trinity church, Barking Road, and formally opened a new ring of six bells, cast and hung by this firm, with a good touch of Kent Treble Bob Minor. Mr. Clockmaker stayed proceedings at this stage for the purpose of attaching the pendulum to the church clock, which by the way, had not struck the hour of day for some time. Upon the completion, ringing was resumed and 720 of Plain Bob, with 720 Kent Treble Bob Minor was performed in good style. Mr. H. Randall taking part in 120 of Stedman Doubles. The ringers hereupon received an invitation to the vicarage, and during a short interval there, Mr. R. Lowe, organist, performed some fine selections of music upon the piano, and accompaniments to some good singing by Mr. Waite, churchwarden. Both these gentlemen with ten others subsequently gave the secretary their name and will become members of the society in due course. After thanking the Vicar for his kindness, the belfry was again visited, and another well struck 720 Kent Treble Bob Minor was rang. We believe the principal members selected a tutor for this Society, and let us hope that success will attend every effort both of tutor and pupil alike. The bells are a handy ring, tenor 7½ cwt. in Bb, and when the young band has sufficiently advanced upon the six, means may be forthcoming to argument the ring to 8, by adding two trebles. Upon inspection of the work, it was considered that Messrs Warner and Sons had carried it out very creditably. The ringing was listened to by hundreds of people of the neighbourhood, who seemed interested, and to appreciate the bell music.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

The Annual Meeting of this Society will be held at Lichfield on Saturday, June 18, 1887. Members will assemble at 2.0 p.m. in the Cathedral belfry. There will be a special service in the Lady Chapel at 5.0 pm., and tea in the coffee rooms at 6.0 pm., free of charge to those who have paid all subscriptions due. The meeting for the election of officers, &c., will be held immediately afterwards.

HOW TO TREAT SERVANTS.—A little real interest in and sympathy with the recreation, friendships, and perhaps homely tragedy, of a servant's life will do more for her morals than acres of lectures and tons of sermons—sermons generally are heavy. But if religion and morality are not taught merely by catechisms and formal acts of worship, then it is the example of each member of a family that makes or mars the morals of such a one as Bunch. She will copy everything the young ladies do, and a word of encouragement from them will be much appreciated. If they rise early so will she; if they show a pattern of order, neatness, and cleanliness, so will she; if they are conscientious in reference to little things, so will she be. In a word, if the ladies of a house look after their own morals, they cannot but improve those of Bunch. Here, then, is a work you young ladies may do as holy and useful as the most painstaking district-visiting without going beyond the door of your father's house. Teach girls like Bunch to become good servants, and therefore in time to become good wives and mothers, and you will be doing a work for God and man of quite inestimable value.—From "Cassell's Family Magazine" for June.

ERRATUM.—The report of the silent handbell peal rung on Wednesday, April 20th, at the Head Quarters of the St. James's Society, by the College Youths, should read Holt's ten-part, not Original.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE 7008 OF DOUBLE OXFORD.

SIR.—Mr. William Snowdon has kindly supplied me with the following quotation from a letter, dated August 31st, 1881, from Mr. Henry Hubbard to Mr. J. W. Snowdon, which will explain the mistake as to the 6000 of Double Oxford stated to have been rung at Gravesend in 1820.

"I am the last of the company who rang the six remarkable Major peals:

688a Oxford Treble Bob.
672a "
6160 Double Norwich Court Major.
6000 Double Oxford Bob Major.
5376 Superlative Surprise Major.
5280 London Surprise Major."

It would thus appear that the late Mr. Snowdon writing to me no doubt from memory, credited the Gravesend band, instead of the Norwich Scholars with the 6000 of Double Oxford, for although he mentions that the latter company rang a peal in this method, he does not give the number of changes. Of the above peals, that of Double Norwich was rung in 1881, and that of Superlative in 1835, both at Norwich. Presumably, therefore, the Double Oxford peal was rung about the same date. The year 1820 was about the time at which Gravesend accomplished its celebrated performances, but in placing Double Oxford among them, Mr. Snowdon was apparently mistaken. A second peal in the method was rung at Redenhall in 1881, consisting of 5040 changes. No other achievements of Double Oxford, except these two, seem to have been registered previous to the peals rung at Duffield, and in any case there was one of 6000 to beat, which from your correspondent's letter I feared was not the fact.

A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

THE LONG PEAL OF STEDMAN CINQUES AT BIRMINGHAM.

SIR.—Your Correspondent Mr. Geo. Musket, in his letter upon the subject did not state the case correctly. What I did say and what I say now is this, from the time the eleventh goes in quick in the last course there was nothing but a jumble, and rounds was never struck, the whole of the other part of the performance was good ringing. Mr. Job Joynes was first out of the tower, expressed his disgust at such work so close to the finish, and in plain course and not get it. In reply to a query he could not say if it would be acknowledged as a peal until he had seen Mr. Johnson. As regards him holding the keys of the Church this is nonsense. Mr. Thomas Miller had the keys on this occasion. I regret I have not had time to write you before but I have been very busy lately.

J. W. CATTLE.

123, Bow Common Lane, Bow, E., June 6th, 1887.

ST. LAWRENCE (JEWRY) TENOR.

SIR.—Mr. Wood has adopted a very easy method of dealing with my contention with regard to the tenor bell of St. Lawrence Jewry, viz., questioning the accuracy of the figures given by Mr. Banks. I presume he intends to settle the matter finally by measuring the bell himself, and until he gives us the result of this, I am, and think the readers of "THE BELL NEWS" generally, will be prepared to adhere to my original statement. It may interest you to know that according to Messrs. Taylor's list, the tenth bell at St. Paul's Cathedral measuring 4 feet 7½ inches (less than St. Lawrence), is given as 30 cwt. 2 qrs. 22 lbs.

J. BARRY.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

Brighton was visited on Whit-Monday, May 30th, by upwards of 100 active members of the above Association, the gathering being occasioned by the third Annual Meeting. The proceedings commenced at the towers of St. Peter's and St. Nicholas, at 9 o'clock, between which hour and 11 o'clock, several touches of Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob Major, and Treble Bob Major, were brought round. At 11 o'clock a special service was held at the parish church, at which the Ven. Archdeacon of Lewes (a vice-president), delivered a thoroughly practical address. The service was attended by between fifty and sixty members. Luncheon was served at the Oddfellows Hall, to about 100 members. The Ven. Archdeacon Hannah occupied the chair, and was supported by the Rev. R. H. Hill, M.A., rector of Parham, the Rev. R. F. Tompkins, B.A., vicar of Tortington, and treasurer to the Association, the Rev. J. Puttick, vicar of Alfriston, Mr. Mr. G. Attree, churchwarden of Brighton, the Revs. W. W. Kelly, and W. G. Deighton, curates of Brighton, the Hon. Secretary, Mr. G. F. Attree. The business meeting followed, when after the minutes of a district meeting held at Crawley had been confirmed, the Lord Bishop of Chichester was unanimously elected president of the Association for the ensuing year, as were also the vice-presidents (22 in number), the Hon. Treasurer (Rev. R. F. Tompkins, rector of Tortington), and the Hon. Sec. (Mr. G. F. Attree). Five honorary members, and sixty ringing members were elected, including Mr. A. G. Thomas, and Mr. W. Baron, of London, bringing up the total number of active members to over 560.

There was a proposition by the Hon. Sec. (Mr. G. F. Attree), that local meetings should be held at six-bell towers, and after some discussion it was agreed to. It was also decided to hold the next district meeting at Southover, Lewes, on August 1st. Mr. G. F. Attree suggested that a model bell should be obtained and held for one year by the society ringing the most peals, and that the name of each society holding the "Challenge Bell" should be engraved on it. The suggestion was unanimously agreed to.

The report, which was taken as read, said the necessity for an Association had now been fully proved, both by the hearty support it had received from nearly fifty parishes, and from the rapid strides which had been made in the art of change-ringing in Sussex during the two years of its existence. Five meetings have been held during the past year, at Brighton, Chichester, Eastbourne, Cuckfield, and Arundel. The three instructors of the Association gave upwards of sixty lessons in the science to the following branches: Ardingley, Arundel, Battle, East Hoathley, Heene, Ringmer, and Westham, several of which have made good progress, whilst many fresh societies will during the present year need similar assistance. The expenditure under this head must of necessity be very heavy for some years to come in a county where change-ringing for half-a-century or more has been almost entirely neglected. There were seven peals of Triples rung in 1885, and twenty-three in 1886, when the Association stood ninth compared with other Associations; whilst from January to April this year twenty-five peals have been recorded the Association now standing third in the analysis of peals rung by the thirty principal Associations in England. One entirely new ring of eight bells have been hung at Lower Beeding, three bells supplied to complete the octave at St. Saviour's, Eastbourne, and two trebles at Warnham, thus converting a ring of six into eight, in addition to which the bell-hangers have been busy re-hanging and repairing bells and fittings in several churches. Much also has been done to improve some of the ringing chambers, but while this is so the fact that the belfry is part of the church and therefore consecrated, continues to be overlooked in many parishes in the county. "Surely," the report adds, "it is time that the authorities (we refer to the rectors and churchwardens) should turn their attention to this, and avoid the continuance of such a reproachful state of things as has for years been allowed, namely that the bells have remained silent through decay and neglect, and the ringing chambers used only as 'lumber rooms.'" The long anticipated concession from the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway Company, in the form of return tickets at a single fare and a quarter, was granted in November, and has proved a boon to the members. In conclusion, the committee ask every member to use his best efforts in promoting all the branches of work the Association has taken in hand, for success is alone to be attained through individual and united action.

The statement of accounts show that the receipts have been £112 9s. 10d., and the expenditure £88 18s. 7d., leaving a balance in hand of £23 10s. 9d. The report and balance sheet were adopted.

Mr. Churchwarden ATTREE, in proposing a vote of thanks to the Venerable Archdeacon for welcoming the members to Brighton, and for presiding pointed out the amount of good work that was being done by the Association, and said he felt assured that its future would be as bright as its past.

The ARCHDEACON acknowledged the vote, and said he fully appreciated the work performed by the ringers, and was always ready and willing to assist them in any way that lay in his power.

Votes of thanks were also accorded to the hon. secretary and treasurer for their services during the year, and to the several Vicars and Churchwardens for allowing the use of their bells. The proceedings then terminated.

During the day, touches in Kent Treble Bob and Plain Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples, and in several minor methods, were rung.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

To Geo. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

XI.—PEALS OF ROYAL AND MAXIMUS.

The annexed collections of peals is not a very exhaustive one. There is enough, however, to shew what may be done, and to tempt composers to try for further productions. It seems strange that in all methods the musical qualities of Major are very generally understood, while but little attention appears to be bestowed on Royal or Maximus. For instance, and I have not yet left the beaten track myself, we compose peals of Maximus with great regard to the 6th, as if it were the same bell as the glorious 6th in Major. A little attention will shew that this Maximus 6th, as a musical bell, is a fraud, for it is nothing but that wholesale offender the Major 2nd, promoted to the title of 6th by the increase of family. The discussion of this subject is foreign to the present papers, but I would suggest to any musical ears who has a piano or handbells, to work the matter out for themselves. It will be found that in Royal the 4th, and in Maximus both 4th and 6th, are bells which it is extremely desirable to keep from contact with the heavy end. Whether the advantage of hearing an extra bell ring home at the course-ends is alone sufficient atonement for the discords in other parts of the course I will not attempt to decide. At all events if the 5th in Maximus is thrown into 6ths place the harmonies are much improved, as this bell fills up the common chord of 8,10,12. Both in Royal and Maximus the 3rd is better beating with the large bells than the 4th for similar reasons. If the 4th in Royal, and both 4th and 6th in Maximus, are thrown behind the large bells the music will be better than when they are coursing before them. The whole subject may be easily fathomed by any one who has a moderate acquaintance with musical intervals, and is, with certain limitations, not one of taste but of fact.

Among the following peals illustrations are given of the use of bobs M, and the coming round from the course-end 125364. Compositions are also included that have the course never turned, shewing how singles may be avoided. With the exception of these latter, the compositions are obtained without noticeably moving the 6th. It will be needless to do more than remark that Major peals containing the extent with the 6th at home (5760) will also run the extent either in Royal or Maximus, producing respectively 7200 and 8640 changes.

PEALS OF ROYAL.

The following peal has the sixth at home throughout.

THE SNOWDON MEMORIAL.—CEREMONY OF UNVEILING.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

The morning of Saturday, June 11th, dawned brightly, and the sun shone clear over the lovely valley of the Wharfe, where nestles the picturesque health-resort known as Ilkley. Everything bore a pleasant aspect; even the moor, on the summit of which rest the celebrated "cow and calf" rocks, and from the side of which flow the well-known springs of cool water, seemed to be specially attractive. It was, in sooth, a morning calculated to furnish food for pleasant reflections in the future. A sensation of absolute quiet seemed to pervade the scene, for with the exception of a few early risers who had taken the opportunity afforded of having a ramble to the wells or down by the river side, nature seemed to be enjoying sweet repose. As the time wore on, the distant sound of a railway whistle announced the approach of the first morning train from the neighbouring town of Bradford, which after steaming into the station, discharged its freight of human passengers who had left their busy haunts to enjoy for a while the fresh air and opportunities for rest which the locality so well affords. A little while after the Leeds train followed, bringing with it another contingent of suffering humanity seeking a brief repose; and the little town soon assumed a comparatively busy aspect. The hour of nine having struck, the sound of bells muffled vibrated through the air from the old church tower, their solemn tones arresting the attention of the inhabitants. This was the commencement of a ceremonial—sad though it was—which had been looked forward to, it might be said, with great interest by the whole of the ringing world. All having been got ready and in order, the following eight officers of the Yorkshire Association then rang an "In Memoriam" date touch of Kent Treble Bob Major (1887 changes). Arthur Spurr, Ossett (Committee), 1; W. H. Howard, York (Vice-President), 2; W. Whitaker, Leeds (Hon. Sec.), 3; J. Broadley, Bradford (pro steward), 4; W. Stainthorpe, Birstall (Committee), 5; J. H. Harcastle, Bradford (Committee), 6; J. T. Hollis, Wakefield (Committee), 7; J. McKell, Gargrave (Committee), 8. The touch was conducted by Mr. J. H. Harcastle, and completed in 1 hr. 14 mins. After its conclusion, the muffles were removed, and as friends had begun to arrive from various parts the belfry was placed at their disposal, in accordance with regulations previously issued, a privilege which was taken advantage of by the visitors, the bells being kept going throughout the day, except during the time occupied by the service in church. As noon approached the arriving trains brought numbers of visiting brethren from various parts of the country, and during the afternoon the numbers increased. At 3.45, according to arrangement, the members and visitors assembled at the schoolroom, where they formed into procession, marshalled by the stewards, Mr. T. Hattersley (Sheffield), and Mr. B. T. Copley (Bradford), and headed by Mr. W. Snowdon, A. Percival Heywood Esq., Messrs W. H. Howard, W. Whitaker, R. S. Story, J. W. Rowbotham, and the officers of the Association, they walked to the Church, the Leeds members meanwhile ringing a service touch of Stedman Triples. In church, the shortened form of evening prayer was used, the service commencing with the hymn

"All people that on earth do dwell,"

The special psalms being being the 103rd, "Praise the Lord, O my Soul;" and the 150th, "O praise God in His holiness." After the Deus Misereatur was sung, and at the conclusion of the collects the hymn

"O God, our help in ages past."

During the singing of this hymn, Canon Wigram ascended the pulpit, and taking as his text the concluding words of the 150th psalm just sung, "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord," he said:—

The subject of this psalm is Praise. Let me direct your attention to the divisions of this great subject and the order in which they are set before us here. First—Praise God in His holiness; second—praise Him in the firmament of His power. His noble acts, His excellent greatness; and farther, let every thing that hath breath, praise the Lord. The first injunction then is—to praise God in His holiness. The appeal is to our higher powers—to the spirit of man; "In the image of God created He man." One part of our selves—the spirit of man—is like unto the angels. Sin clouds the faculties of the spirit, but it has not destroyed them yet, at all events. We can still appreciate goodness for its own sake. We can feel without affection that piety is something very noble; devotion commands our respect, love rules, and we are glad to obey it; and duty, that is of God indeed, it is one of those gifts that has not forsaken earth. Then praise the Holy One—praise Him who has taken man's nature to restore and raise it; praise Him who is the author of holiness and giver of all good things. Recall for one moment the vision of St. John. "I heard," he said, "the voice of many angels round about the throne, and the beasts, and the elders; and the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands; saying with a loud voice 'Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.' Such no doubt is the highest fulfilment of the highest praise, which was glorified by the Church triumphant; and now on earth we shew forth the death of the Lamb, and celebrate at the altar in the way appointed for us how that he hath redeemed us to God by his blood; thus does the Church militant swell forth the tones of highest praise—the praise of adoration, and we praise God in his Holiness.

Next, we are told to praise God in the firmament of His power. Apply this thought to what we call nature, and to the mind of man enabled to appreciate the works of nature. No age has studied this so deeply as has our own, but if there be one point of fact science has brought out more clearly than another it is this, that we cannot create any force, or any energy, or indeed any matter. But we can combine forces—we can rearrange their action, we can balance one against another, we can concentrate them, we can direct their energy and apply it almost at will. Witness the manner in which we can call out all the heat and all the strength stored up in our coal fields, and employ it upon our steam engines. Witness the manner in which we have learned to concentrate and make use of that great power yet more subtle and perhaps greater, the power of electricity and magnetism. Then praise God in his power, study nature, and recognise the Creator. Think of her systems with wonder in its beauty, and appreciate the order of all law. Use this the mind which you possess, develop the powers of intellect with which you are endowed, and offer up your grateful thanks to Him whose wisdom is infinite.

And more, praise Him in the cymnals and dances. Yes, life has a lighter side as well as a graver; to unend the bow is as necessary as to string it. Relaxation is a part of a healthy life equally with work; and amusement also can be consecrated. As a child takes flowers for a present, and laughs in the very enjoyment of their beauty, so we may receive our pleasure as from God and return Him praise.

And as to our favourite amusement; if I wish to prove that it calls forth the higher powers of man, and helps to develop faculties of extensive value, could I do better than point to that window and recall the character of him whose name it bears? Patient in study, accurate in thought, clear in his arrangement of details, and able to take a comprehensive grasp of a complicated subject, so as to perceive the elements of real importance, and to put each lesser point into its fitting place. These are high qualities; so too is that energy prompt to grasp its opportunities, and to apply them to the service of his application and his investigations. If this were all we had to say, we could still feel that what was called "the Exercise" is honoured by the fact that it can reckon Jasper Whitfield Snowdon among its members. But there was also that which belonged to the true man—qualities of spirit and heart, as well as of head and hand—which went deeper than physical energy and deeper than intellectual application, qualities which endeared him to his own circle, which won for him, as we are glad to testify this day, by this window erected in his own parish church, the respect and affection of even those who knew him but imperfectly.

Today is a great day for us ringers, but at the same time let us learn the lessons which it suggests. Take much in our pursuit which involves very useful discipline. Good ringing means a quick eye, a trained ear, a careful hand, sustained attention, and not a little work outside the tower. It means abundant perseverance and mutual co-consideration. Ringers must keep their temper, they must bear and forbear. We must recollect that all learned on others, and must be content that others learn on us. The impatient man, the fretful man, the man who cannot be told he has made a mistake, and who cannot recollect that mistakes must be made, and that the mistakes of others, however disagreeable, are still unintentional—such a man is simply a nuisance in a company. Another point learned in a belfry is consideration for others. To be punctual is a small thing on paper, yet how important. "Exactness is the politeness of princes," said Louis XVIII., "to keep people waiting is downright bad manners," said a well-known English lady. We are all absolutely dependent on each other. He that dawdles for but fifteen minutes and keeps seven others waiting, has wasted an hour and three quarters of other people's time. He that never looks at his methods at home, but thinks to learn all on the ropes, spoils evening after evening for a whole company, and keeps all back because of his carelessness. We have no right to selfish indulgence or selfish want of thought to cause inconvenience and disappointment, to inflict on others the loss of time which results from breaking an engagement, or the trouble which arises from our own share done carelessly. One who is a good ringer all round is also a good neighbour. But also let us go a step higher, nor serve ourselves only, nor our neighbours only, but our God. Act on the truth that He is really like a Father—pained at our ill-doing, interested in our success, pleased at honest service, gratified at our pleasure. And let us carry hence this thought: man is connected with the spiritual world at all times, for good or ill. Every point on which we rise above the mere drudgery of life is also a point on which we can find one more contrast with those above us. The world must have much of our mind—much of our time; let worship habitual, steady, regular, counteract the tendency of the world to crowd out all but itself. And, as it is our privilege, so it should be our effort, to dedicate our spirit to God. Let us recognise the power displayed throughout all nature, the wisdom with which all is done and guided, the kindness which surrounds us with so many enjoyments, and above all, the goodness, the holiness, and the love of Our Father who is in Heaven.

The sermon was listened to with marked attention, the preacher's eloquent words in reference to the object which had brought them together, and his very practical remarks respecting the need for mutual consideration and forbearance on the part of ringers, evidently striking home to many hearts. The hymn commencing chosen with special reference to her Majesty's Jubilee, was then sung very heartily, and after the Benediction had been pronounced by the Rev. Howard Kempson, Vicar, the congregation, which completely filled the venerable edifice, slowly dispersed, lingering on the way to have a look at the window as they passed out by the north door. Representatives were present from the following towns: Birstall, Batley Carr, Great Bentley, Bingley, Burnsall, Bolton, Bradford, Calverley, Guiseley, Drighlington, Gargrave, Headingley, Huddersfield, Holbeck, Ilkley, Kirkburton, Keighley, London, Liverpool, Leeds, Lindley, Masham, Newcastle, Ossett, Pontefract, Ripon, Rothwell, Sheffield, Shipley, Saltaire, Tong, York, etc.

"Lord of heaven, and earth and ocean,"

It should be mentioned that the choral portions of the service was rendered by the Ilkley parish church choir, under the personal direction of the choir master, Mr. Clough, who also presided at the organ.

The visitors then wended their way back to the schoolroom, where a most substantial and in every way excellent meat tea had been provided by the ladies of the congregation, who also served at the tables and attended most sedulously to the wants of their guests; two "sittings down" being necessary, owing to the large number attending. It will no doubt be a source of gratification to those ladies to know that their generous labours in connection with this tea met with such universal and unstinted approbation. Another very pleasing and thoughtful circumstance in connection with the tea was the presentation to each visitor of a very neatly printed memento card, containing on the first page the verse on Mr. Snowdon's tomb:—

Year by year the bells so softly,
O'er the grave shall music pour,
Till the dust of saints is garnered,
And the Master comes once more.

At the foot is a pretty little sketch of Ilkley parish church. The inside two pages contain the memoriam lines by Mr. Routh, which appeared in "THE BELL NEWS," and the last page Canon Wigram's reference to the sad loss sustained by the Exercise, from the "Official Year Book" of 1886. This little present from the ladies was not only unexpected, but very much appreciated.

Tea being over, and the tables cleared, the general meeting of the Yorkshire Association was held, at which, although the beautiful weather and pleasant surroundings must have been a great temptation to wander away, a goodly number attended. Mr. William Snowdon, President, occupied the chair, and was supported on the platform by the Rev. Canon Wigram, M.A., Rector of St. Andrew's Hertford, the Rev. Howard Kempson, Vicar of Ilkley, A. Percival Heywood, Esq., Mr. W. H. Howard, Mr. W. Whitaker, Mr. R. S. Story, Mr. J. W. Rowbotham, etc., etc., nearly all the officers being also present, as well as many ladies.

The PRESIDENT, in opening the meeting, briefly referred to Mr. Snowdon's early career as a ringer, and expressed the satisfaction which he felt, and which he was sure they would all feel, that the proceedings of the day had been so very satisfactory. He then read the minutes of the preceding meeting at Rothwell, which were adopted; after which the officers' roll was called, when it was found that nearly all the officers were present. He next proceeded to read and briefly explain some proposed alterations in the rules, of which previous notice had been given, which alterations were adopted nem. con. without discussion.

This portion of the business having been concluded, the PRESIDENT asked for invitations for the place where to hold the Annual Meeting, but none being forthcoming, this matter was, according to rule, left in the hands of the Committee.

Mr. T. LOCKWOOD (Leeds) and Mr. W. Elliott (Birstall) were then unanimously elected as Auditors for the ensuing year; after which the President, according to custom, read the list of officers whose term of office expires this year, those officers being:—Mr. W. Snowdon (President); Mr. W. H. Howard (Senior Vice-president); Mr. T. Hattersley (Steward); Messrs. J. H. Hardcastle, C. H. Hattersley and A. Spurr (Committee).

Mr. W. H. HOWARD gave notice of a proposition for the re-election of Mr. W. Snowdon as President, an announcement which was greeted with rounds of applause.

The PRESIDENT, after thanking them for the compliment they had paid him in receiving that proposal in such a manner, read apologies which had been received from the Rev. Canon Kemp, Vicar of Birstall, the Rev. C. Quirk, Vicar of Rotherham, the Rev. J. Longsdon, Vicar of Keighley, the Rev. F. Hawkes, Vicar of Rothwell, the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer, the Rev. F. E. Robinson, and others; he then called upon

Mr. R. S. STORY (Newcastle), who proposed—"That a vote of thanks be given to the Vicar of Ilkley for his arrangements for the special service, and to the other clergy, the organist, and choir, for their assistance therat." He said his Association had taken a very active part in the affair which had brought them together that day. With reference to the motion which he had submitted, he was very strongly in favour of having special services at ringers' gatherings. He had been greatly impressed by the service in which they had taken part that afternoon, and was glad he would be able to report that all had been accomplished in such a satisfactory manner.

The PRESIDENT, in putting the resolution, remarked that this was the Vicar's birthday, a piece of information which caused a renewal of the applause with which the vote of thanks was carried.

The REV. HOWARD KEMPSON, M.A., who was warmly greeted on rising, thanked the meeting for the vote and accompanying good wishes on his birthday. There were, he said, two things in particular that he would congratulate them on as ringers; first that they had made their work recognised as a distinct branch of Church work; and second, that they seemed so determined to perpetuate the name of Snowdon. When he first came to Ilkley he found unmistakable evidences of the great respect in which the members of the Snowdon family were held by all classes in the town, and he trusted that he might in time acquire a portion of that respect which was so deservedly bestowed upon them. He had much, as Vicar of the parish, to thank the ringers for, in the present of such a beautiful window—a window which he felt sure the more they looked at it, the more they would like it; and the ringers' choice of perpetuating Mr. Snowdon's memory by something which would adorn the House of God, instead of adopting some mode which would simply benefit themselves, was to him peculiarly creditable and gratifying. He concluded by assuring the Yorkshire Association of a very cordial welcome should they again decide to visit Ilkley.

A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD, Esq., then proposed a vote of thanks to the Rev. Canon Wigram for his excellent sermon in church, and also for his kindness in travelling so great a distance to take his part in the day's ceremony. He was exceedingly glad in being able to be present at that day's proceedings as representing the Midland Counties' Association. They were duly grateful to the Yorkshire Association, through Mr. Snowdon, for much valuable assistance, and he felt bound to say that they managed things better in Yorkshire with regard to their meetings than was the case in his own society. He would be able to go back and tell them at home that what England had generously subscribed for, Yorkshiremen had well and nobly carried out. Thanks for the service had already been rendered, and he thought the best way to thank Canon Wigram for his sermon was by trying to carry out the lessons he had taught.

The motion was briefly seconded by Mr. ROWBOTHAM (London) and carried.

The Rev. CANON WIGRAM in responding, said reference had been made to the great distance he had travelled, but he assured them it was worth travelling any distance to be able to take part in such a celebration as they had had that day; it was one worthy of the occasion, worthy of the man whose memory they were perpetrating, and worthy of the cause which they had so much at heart. Comparing the ringers of to-day and twenty years ago, he was sure that a very great improvement indeed had taken place during that time, which improvement there could be no doubt was principally due to such Associations as the one which Mr. Snowdon was so instrumental in forming. There was one suggestion which he would like to add to his previous words in church, and it was that they should always demand full recognition for themselves as churchworkers—claim their place as church officers, always be seen in their accustomed places, and let the absence of a ringer from service be the exception. At the same time he did not exonerate the clergy from their neglect to visit their bellfries; he was sure that if each did his duty to the best of his ability they would all be then helping to carry on the work properly and efficiently.

Mr. W. H. HOWARD (York) proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells, and to the Ilkley branch of the Association, the ladies and friends for their generous hospitality.

Mr. T. HATTERSLEY (Sheffield) seconded the motion, which was carried with acclamation.

The PRESIDENT next proposed that the hearty thanks of the members and subscribers be given to Mr. W. Mitton, Ilkley (the Hon. Treasurer), Mr. Robert Tuke, Bradford, and Mr. W. Whitaker (Leeds), Hon. Secretaries, for their services in connection with the memorial window.

This motion, seconded by Mr. Howard, was carried very heartily.

Mr. W. WHITAKER (Leeds) briefly replied on behalf of himself and co-workers, and concluded by moving a resolution "That this meeting of the Yorkshire Association of change-ringers and their friends, assembled at Ilkley, take this opportunity of placing on record the valuable services rendered to them and their art by the labours of the late Rev. J. H. Fish, Vicar of St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, late President of the Midland Counties' Association of change-ringers, and that an expression of their deep sympathy be conveyed to Mrs. Fish in her great and sudden loss. Also that this meeting expresses its sympathy with the Midland Counties' Association, and especially the St. Paul's branch, whose achievements during the last few years have been most marked, and which were no doubt due in a great measure to the influence he exercised over them as Vicar." They would many of them remember the eloquent words spoken by Mr. Fish at their tenth Annual Meeting at Sheffield, how he exhorted them to bear and forbear one with another, and to remember always that the tower was an integral part of the House of God. They would remember how that a very few weeks after that memorable and joyful meeting, they were summoned together in the old churchyard at Ilkley, to lay tenderly by the side of his father, the remains of him whose memory was so dear to them, and which they were perpetuating to day. It seemed therefore to him a sad but none the less striking coincidence that at this meeting where they had fondly looked for the presence of Mr. Fish, and hear from him words of encouragement, it was instead their painful duty to express their deep regret at his loss, and their sympathy with his faithful and suffering widow. He commended the resolution to them, feeling sure that though the loss had been so sudden and unexpected, their sympathy would be all the more warm towards those who had suffered such a sad bereavement.

Mr. J. H. HARDCASTLE (Bradford), briefly seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously in silence.

A cordial vote of thanks to the President, on the motion of Mr. Howard, seconded by Mr. B. T. Copley, was carried with much applause, and Mr. W. Snowdon having replied, the meeting concluded.

While the business of the meeting was proceeding, the members of the Calverley branch rang a well-struck touch of Prince Albert Treble Bob Major. Other touches of Minor and Major were also rung by the visitors.

The following sketch of the Memorial Window, which has been issued by the Committee will be interesting to those who were unable to be present at the unveiling.

With regard to the subject selected it was felt by the Committee of the Yorkshire Association of Change-Ringers, when considering the matter on behalf of the Subscribers, that it should, if possible, have some distinct connection between the Church and her bell-ringers. After careful consideration the subject of PRAISE—especially as set forth in the 150th Psalm—commended itself above all others as embracing everything that a change ringer could desire.

The Committee therefore drew up a general description of their idea of the treatment, with a plan of details of the loud cymbals and their arrangement. Three firms of Artists in different parts of country were then asked to prepare designs, and tenders based on the tracing and particulars thus submitted to them. The final choice was unanimously given to that of Messrs Powell Brothers, of Leeds, who, in place of the previous canopy representing a carved oak bell frame, have introduced Gothic details of stone work with swinging bells visible through the windows.

As finally carried out the window is well worth studying for its details. The bells in the canopy are shown swinging in almost every position, and their tongues, ropes, and wheels all carefully drawn in their correct places. Three transverse views of bells are given in the base showing them "at rest" and when "set" at "hand and back-stroke." A special endeavour has been made to correctly represent everything now in use in change-ringing, including even the "stays" and "sliders."

Across the three lights run Gothic scrolls bearing the words:—

O PRAISE GOD IN HIS HOLINESS
PRAISE HIM ON THE STRINGS AND PIPE.
PRAISE HIM ON THE WELL TUNED CYMBALS.
PRAISE HIM ON THE LOUD CYMBALS.

The position of the concluding verse of the psalm, LET EVERYTHING THAT HATH BREATH, PRAISE THE LORD, brings the eye to the group of angels who form the leading feature of the window. These are portrayed offering praise on strings and pipe, the central figure carrying the last named text. In the upper part of the middle light the heavens are shown opening, and permitting the sacrifice of praise to ascend, whilst hovering above is the emblem of the Holy Spirit sanctifying the offering.

As already stated this group of angels forms the leading subject of the window from the ordinary point of view, but the various details of the "loud cymbals" carry the mind further, and give a double interest to the whole. The colouring is rich, and with the quiet northern light very effective.

The dedication brass bears the following inscription:—

* TO THE GLORY OF GOD * IN MEMORY OF JASPER WHITFIELD SNOWDON, HISTORIAN AND EXPOSITOR OF CHANGE-RINGING.
DIED NOV. 16TH, 1885, AGED 41.—THIS WINDOW WAS INSERTED IN 1887 AT THE SOLE COST OF THE CHANGE-RINGERS OF THIS COUNTRY.

The Committee hope to issue an Engraving of the Window to all Subscribers, which they trust will prove of interest, especially to those living at a distance, to whom a visit to Ilkley may prove almost an impossibility.

TWO MORE SPECIMENS OF WILTSHIRE BELFRIES AND BELL HANGING.

AMESBURY.—This is a large village not far from Stonehenge. The church is a massively built structure, with an immense central tower. Going through the church the visitor ascends a staircase at one of the angles where the nave and transepts intersect, and finds himself in a huge, dark, barn-like apartment with rough flint walls and uncouthly fashioned timber-work overhead. On one side is the clock, supported by two roughly-made wooden brackets. Although there is so much room, and only six bells, it seems to have been thought necessary to carry the treble and second ropes right through the clock case, leaving but a limited height for the ringer to stand below the stage whereon the clock rests. The other four ropes hang all exactly in a line on the opposite side of the belfry. The bells themselves (tenor about 20 cwt.), are all hung far out from the stocks, so as to give them a good swing and make it as hard work as possible, and put as much strain on the frame as possible! This plan also has the advantage of making it necessary to have wheels ranging from 7 to 8 ft. in diameter instead of from 6 to 7 ft. This makes the bells look more imposing! The "go" of these bells is something atrocious, it generally requiring two men to the tenor. This again, however, has an imposing effect on any admiring stranger who may happen to be present to witness the ringing! With regard to the bells themselves the treble is inscribed, "Come at God's Call. I.W., 1619." The second has no inscription. The third has, "I. Corr, 1728," and the fourth, "Chrisr. Ingram and John Waters, churchwardens, James Wells, Aldbourne, Wilts, fecit, 1801." The fifth has, "Be strong in faythe, prayes God well; Francis Countess Hertford's bell, I.W., 1619." The tenor, which has recently been recast, is inscribed, "In holy memory of Annie W Phelps, died to live, February 6, 1879. The love thou gavest I give to Thee. With Thee I joy, Lord weep with me. R cast by John Warner and Sons, London, 1881." It is a pity when this bell was put up that the authorities did not have the whole peal properly rehung and the belfry made to look respectable.

WHITEPARISH.—Just off the main road between Salisbury and Southampton lies the village of Whiteparish. Its small old-fashioned church is surmounted by a wooden tower placed on the roof like a saddle. On entering the church three ropes (with sallies about 6 ft. long) may be seen depending in the middle aisle. A short ladder enables the visitor to mount to the top of the lobby of the west door, from which position he can ascend to a trap door in the roof by means of a long fixed iron ladder. Passing through the trap-hole he will find himself in a small wooden chamber with an old clock in one corner. Immediately above are three bells, tenor about 8 cwt. The fittings appear to be nearly new, and are evidently the work of some local carpenter. The bells hang far out of the stocks, and the wheels are nearly 7 ft. in diameter! The stocks average full 20 inches in depth (strong enough for a bell of 30 cwt. The bells are thus inscribed: "Treble: Give thanks to God, I.D., 1631." Second, "O GINE + GOD O THE O GLO + RYE O 1652, I.H." (i.e. "Give God the glory." The stops between the words consist of crosses, coins, and bells). Tenor, "O IN + GOD (a bell) IS + MY + HOPE + I.H (a bell) 1652." The inscriptions on these two last bells are in Lombardic capitals.

EASTERN COUNTIES' GUILD.

The annual meeting of the above Guild was held on Saturday last at Tydd St. Mary. The proceedings commenced with a shortened evensong in the parish church, at which a sermon was preached by the rector, the Rev. C. B. Lowe. The rev. gentleman referred to the sacred uses of bells from the earliest times of the Jewish Church, and reminded ringers of the sacredness of the many and various offices, such as Matins and evensong, holy matrimony, and the burial of the dead, at which bells are used. He would have them take for their motto the words which the Jewish High Priest bore upon his garments—"Holiness to the Lord." Immediately after the service, a meeting was held in the National Schoolroom, H. Watkinson, Esq., vice-president of the Guild, occupying the chair. The report, which announced the prosperous condition of the Guild, both numerically and financially, was adopted unanimously. A proposal to alter certain of the rules in favour of the admission of probationers to participation in the benefits enjoyed by skilled ringers, was negatived. The officers for the previous year were unanimously re-elected. Votes of thanks were accorded to the rector of Tydd St. Mary for his excellent sermon and for the use of the church bells, and to the Rev. Canon Evans, rector of Newton, for the use of the bells of his church. It was resolved that the next ordinary meeting be held at Spalding, about the end of October next. An excellent dinner was served at the "Five Bells Inn," by Mrs. Dack, Mr. Watkinson again occupying the chair, supported by Dr. Secombe, and the Rev. J. M. Coates was the vice-chairman. After dinner the ringing commenced, a division of forces being made. One company stayed at Tydd Church and rang several touches of Grandsire Doubles, and the other took advantage of the glorious summer weather, and walked to Newton Church, where six-bell touches were attempted. Little success however crowned their efforts, owing to the bad state of the ropes, a breakage occurring in the middle of the first touch, and the remaining touches being rung under great disadvantages. On re-assembling, the members of the Guild took tea at the rectory, Tydd St. Mary, by the kind invitation of the Rev. C. B. Lowe. A lovely summer afternoon rendered the visit to the pretty little village a pleasant treat, and all expressed themselves as pleased with the arrangements made for their enjoyment.

GISBURNE, YORKSHIRE.

The bells of this old church, which have for some time been silent, owing to extensive alterations and repairs, were rung for the first time after their completion, on Trinity Sunday. They are a beautiful peal of six, and were cast by T. Mears, of London, in 1818. Each of them bears the name of the maker, and in addition the fifth has on it this inscription: "King of the Church and Liberty." The tenor, which weighs about 10 cwt., gives the names of minister and wardens.

Many of our readers, who were acquainted with the go of these bells, will be pleased to learn that they now run as smoothly as is possible for any bells to do, and that there will be no difficulty whatever in obtaining permission to have a pull on them.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1887.

NEXT Tuesday will be celebrated the Jubilee of Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain; Empress of India. The event has certainly cast many of its shadows before, and the loyalty of the subject need not be impeached if some relief is felt when the festivities about to be held are over and done with. It is meet and proper that such an important event as the jubilee year of the monarch of these realms should be celebrated worthy of the might and power of the Empire, though the steps taken for this purpose by many people are hardly to be commended. The sublime and the ridiculous are only divided by a very thin partition, we are told, and the saying has been exemplified again and again in connection with the forthcoming celebration. The Exercise will, however, have no cause to complain, for the bell-founders have been at their wit's-end to complete the numerous orders they have in hand for new rings, or the augmentation of old ones, by the time desired. We shall expect to hear from different quarters of efforts made to obtain the "first peal on the bells" where new rings have been erected, and the employment of the usual strategy for such an end; efforts indeed, worthy of a better and less evanescent pursuit. This however by the way. The day we are alluding to would appear particularly favourable for something to be done out of the common, something that will arrest the attention of that portion of the public we would wish knew more of the science, or enough, at any rate, to lead them to respect it. Such a hope may not be gratified, probably. While our brethren throughout the land are contributing their quota to the festivities of the Jubilee celebration, it will be too much to expect that they will receive for their reward such ovations as will be accorded to a third-rate brass band, or to the hackneyed exploits of a troupe of minstrels. We must, however, rest content; and in some instances feel thankful that we are allowed to ring at all.

We hear on all sides of entertainments suggested to be given to this body and that, but a proposal to pay "the ringers" a similar compliment has escaped our notice. Probably this may be from the fact that no such proposal has been made, fearful of the opposition it may cause from dissenting parishioners. The public records of the week in connection with meetings held to consider the best local measures for celebrating the jubilee, afford some ludicrous specimens of the local vestryman, the genus homo so well portrayed by Dickens; and characters of this description shine in all their refulgence in metropolitan suburban parishes. For instance, in the parish of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, where, as many of our readers know, there is a poor ring of eight—a motion was brought forward that the bells should be rung on Jubilee day, at a cost to the parish of one pound four shillings, the exorbitant sum of three shillings per man! Such a resolution was indignantly negatived by a large majority. To pay the enormous sum of twenty-four shillings for the purpose of exhibiting their loyalty, forsooth! This was too much for the vestrymen, or we should say, some of them, of St. George's. Perhaps they thought such an outlay would not enable them to come out so strong as when in the wake of the parish beadle, clad in silver lace, they perambulate the confines of the parish on "possession-day," and feel a sapient dignity while swaying their staves of office. We would advise the ringers of St. George's to put these men to shame by ringing at all events, whether they get the necessary order or not. That they will have the worthy rector on their side is certain; that the loyal parishioners will reimburse them beyond their expectations we have very little doubt.

Pugh, Paget, Harris, and Barrett, belong to St. Thomas's, Stourbridge, the rest are local men. The above was rang in honour of the 59th birthday of Mr. Lawrence, his brother ringers wishing him many happy returns of the day.

GARGRAVE, YORKSHIRE.

The following letters, taken from a local newspaper, refer to the "silence" of the Gargrave bells lately. No one regrets this more than the local ringers themselves, but they have had the temerity to feel as men, and after twelve years of wholly gratuitous labour, ringing the bells for service during that long period without the cost of a single farthing to the Churchwardens, thought that something in the way of acknowledgment might be shown to them. An offertory for the purpose did not prove satisfactory, as the letter of the Churchwarden shows. The ringers therefore asked that a sum of £12 a year may be guaranteed to them, and it appears that such a request is looked upon as preposterous:—

"OUR SILENT BELLS.—To the Editor,—Sir,—How is it that we can't have the bells of our parish church rung at Gargrave? Our neighbours are repairing and increasing the number of their bells, and had we not the full octave already, it is but reasonable to suppose that we should have done the same. It is clearly the duty of the churchwardens to see that the bells are rung for the services of the Church, and as clearly an injustice to the subscribers to bell fund that they are not rung. I suppose it is a question of more money, and I should say the men deserve all they ask, but I suppose one story is good till another is told, and I would like to hear what the churchwardens say about it. I consider our village is not at all like itself on the Sabbath day, when the bells are silent—as has now been the case for nearly three months—therefore by all means let us have the bells rung by somebody. All will agree that the ringers were a respectable body of men, and great credit is due to our energetic townsman, Mr. McKell, for the way he has worked in the cause. In conclusion let me say that if subscriptions should be wanted for a ringer's fund, I am sure they would be forthcoming if a little tact were expended in securing them.—Your obedient servant, SUBSCRIBER."

"OUR SILENT BELLS.—To the Editor,—Sir,—As your correspondent 'Subscriber' observes, the churchwardens have a little to say in answer to his remarks, as to why the bells at Gargrave are silent. First let me tell him that the subscriptions fall short by a very considerable sum of what they should be for the church expenses. In the year 1885-6 the deficit was large, and was made up by the vicar; this year it is still larger, there being a deficiency of above £27 (I speak from recollection, being in town away from the book). This would have been a very serious falling off, if it had not been for the handsome way in which the vicar and one or two other gentlemen came forward and cleared off the debt, the vicar alone giving some £15. Certainly, before subscriptions can be asked for a ringers' fund, the inhabitants of Gargrave should act with a little more liberality towards the maintenance of the Church. The churchwardens, though grieved at the silence of the bells, do not feel themselves justified in adding another £12 to the existing necessary expenses. In 1882 the amount at their disposal came to about £64; this year it only reaches some £20 less. The ringers were the people who, when we only had six bells, grumbled that they were unable to keep up with the ringers of other churches, in not having a full octave peal; and when it was said that the ringing of the bells would not be kept up, and that the ringers, when the novelty ceased, would allow them to fall into disuse, the very idea was scouted. And now they wish to be paid. It seems very odd to me, that in a large village like Gargrave, there cannot be found sufficient energetic young men to ring the church bells without payment. I, for one, would much rather get a chiming machine, which can be now procured for merely the amount they want for one year's ringing, which would make the parish independent of them. We most gratefully acknowledge Mr. J. McKell's energy and work for the Church, for the last (at least) twelve years. The art of bell-ringing, I have always understood, is in itself a pleasure, and I am sorry that Mr. McKell is not backed up in his work by men of equal energy. It must not be forgotten, moreover, that the bell ringers have had an annual offertory, though though was some hitch about it last year, I don't recollect what. I, for one, trust that a stand may be made against paying the ringers of the parish church, as I consider there ought to be sufficient volunteers in a place like Gargrave, and as the inhabitants do not find enough money for the annual necessary expenses of the church, lighting, cleaning, repairs, insurance, etc., the churchwardens cannot support a subscription like that proposed by your correspondent.—Yours faithfully, J. N. Preston, Vicar's Churchwarden."

It would be interesting to hear this Churchwarden's opinion as to volunteer organists, volunteer sextons, volunteer gravediggers, and so forth. We can well understand Mr. Preston's difficulty to get sufficient funds for the liquidation of the necessary Church expenses, and deplore the fact that other Churchwardens are in the same predicament. But why should it always be held that ringers should be the only volunteers among the Church workers? Their work requires as much talent and skill as the work of the choir, a competent authority, the late vicar of St. Paul's Burton-on-Trent, said and maintained that it required more thought and study than any other part of the Church service. Ringers of course are out of sight, when employed; their part of the church service is remote from the ken of Mr. Churchwarden, they cannot, like the choir in many instances, be absolute masters of the situation, dominating over clergy, wardens, sidesmen, and all concerned. They are, nevertheless, content with their position; and when organists and those pompous individuals known as choirmasters are willing to perform their part from a sense of duty only, and not for the sake of emolument, Churchwardens will find that skilled ringers will readily do their part.

RE-OPENING OF ST. EDMUND'S BELLS, EXETER.

The pretty and sweet-toned peal of eight bells belonging to the above church was re-opened on Tuesday, June 7th, after having being re-hung, and the occasion was one of general rejoicing among the parishioners. The bells, owing to the unsafe condition of the bearings, etc., have not been regularly rung for many years past. Recently, however, the churchwardens and leading parishioners took the matter up warmly, the result being that a few months since Mr T. Hooper, of Woodbury, received instructions to put the bells in a thorough state of repair. Immediately the work of re-hanging was commenced steps were taken to form a Society, having for its object the promotion of change-ringing and belfry reform. In this respect the promoters were most successful, and succeeded in quickly placing the Society on a firm footing. Members were speedily enrolled, many of them being old hands in the art of change-ringing. The officers of the Society are:—President, the Rector (the Rev. W. W. Secretan); Vice President, the Rev. H. W. McGrath; Treasurer, Mr. H. Swift; Secretary, Mr. W. C. Marsh; Assistant Secretary, Mr. Sydney Herbert. The dedication service commenced at 12 o'clock with the singing of hymn 242, "We love the place, O God." The proper Psalms used were the 29th and 150th, and the Lesson was taken from the 10th chapter of Numbers, 1-11. The prayers were read by the Rector and the Lesson by the Rev. H. W. McGrath. After hymn 395 had been sung, a break was made in the service to allow of the campanologists ringing a plain course of Grandsire Triples. At the conclusion of the touch hymn 303 was sung, after which the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote (Rector of Upton Pyne) delivered an address, taking as his text the 9th verse of the 96th Psalm—"O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness." The rev. gentleman, who specially addressed the ringers present, urged upon them the necessity of remembering, whether in practice or otherwise, the sacredness of their office, and also in whose house they were. Continuing, he said that there had been times in which bells had been greatly misused. There had been times and places in which bells had been rung in honour of the winner in a horse race. There was a case in which a squire of a certain village, who was very fond of betting and gambling, won a large bet and sent an order to the ringers to ring the bells of the parish church in honour of the bet which he had won. Was not such a thing as that a great nuisance, and a great degradation of the sacred use to which bells were dedicated? Let them not forget that bells were sacred instruments, and never allow them to be rung for any purpose which might jar upon the minds of some, or which might annoy those who did not agree with them. Therefore bells should not be rung on any occasion except it was one in which all people might take part. He thought that bells were misused if they were rung at election times in honour of the victory of one candidate over another. He said this because he had known frequent instances of bells having been rung upon such occasions, and in his opinion it was a very bad purpose to put them to. To his dear friends, the ringers, who delighted in the same act as he loved, let him say one word more to them concerning their sacred calling. If they were shut up in a belfry, working away at the art which they loved, let not their hearts be shut up too, but let them offer praises to God continually. He thought that sometimes when they were ringing they were apt to forget all about the sacredness of their office, to become selfish; to have too much practice; and to ring to such an extent that they might annoy the ears of those who lived around them. Let them not be wrapped up in such selfish thoughts as these, but remember the people who listened to the music of the bells, so that they might inspire in their minds pure and holy thoughts.

The singing of the hymn, "Now at length our bells have mounted," brought the service to a close. The collection was in aid of the expenses of the service. Immediately after the service and during the day, short touches of Grandsire Triples were rung upon the bells. The ringers present included the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote, Messrs. H. Swift, S. Herbert, Marsh, W. Goss, Townsend, A. W. Searle, W. H. Webber, E. Pitt, Richardson, Peardon, Halse, Truman, and others.

A WHITSUNTIDE TRIP.

Saturday morning (May 28th, found me) travelling to the West. My first stopping place was Bath, where the Abbey church and Roman Baths were the chief objects of interest. From thence I proceeded to Shepton Mallet, a mere village possessing a fine market cross, and ancient tiled market stalls, and a very fine old church with a peal of eight, which with the striking of the clock sounded good. Time, however, did not permit of a closer examination, for I was bound for the city of Wells, five miles distant through grand scenery. This part of the journey was done in a goods train, for the regular trains are few and far between. Arrived at the lovely little town of Wells, the cathedral, which is the very life of the place, was the first place that claimed attention. It may not be generally known that Wells possesses the most complete cathedral in the kingdom. The chapter house, cloisters, deanery, lady chapel, chain gate (leading to the college from the cathedral) are all complete and in capital preservation. From the market place of the town an ancient gate leads into a space beautifully spread with trees between the cathedral on the left, and the Bishop's garden and palace on the right. This latter is partly in ruins and partly inhabited, and it is entirely surrounded by the ancient moat, the draw-bridge over which is in perfect order. The spot is very interesting, so peaceful and refreshing to a townsman. The water that fills the moat rises in the Bishop's garden (the town takes its name from these wells) then flows down a cascade and into the moat. On leaving the moat it disappears underground for some distance and appears in the market place in the two gutters which are always filled with the crystal stream. On Sunday morning I woke at 6 o'clock and found they were just raising the cathedral bells for ringing. I hastened to the tower (South West) and found a capital muster of strapping young men ready to handle the ropes. The peal (the heaviest ring of eight in existence I believe) is a very fine one, the tenor, 57½ cwt. and 7th were recast and the whole peal re-hung in 1877 by Taylor. The tenor requires 3 to ring her, and the 7th (which is a fine maiden bell) two. Of course the peal is much too heavy for change ringing, but the striking in the set changes is excellent, especially when the weight is considered and shows that the ringers (mostly young men) have their heart in the ringing and take a pride in it. I have to express through the medium of this paper my thanks to the energetic Secretary Mr. Collins for allowing me to have a pull several times during the day, and to Mr. Smart for his courtesy in showing me the bells and other points of interest in the cathedral. From Wells I proceeded on Monday morning to Glastonbury, where after visiting the ruins of the fine old Norman Abbey (which by the way are most awkward to get at, the only entrance being through a bakers yard) I went to St John's, where the bells, a capital peal of eight tenor 26 cwt, were just being raised. I soon found my way up aloft and through the courtesy of the ringers was soon ringing the tenor. The ringers are most anxious to learn half-pull ringing and an instructor would soon put them right, their striking is excellent, the belfry a model, and the bells go as well as they can do. I hope to hear through the medium of your paper of their further progress and I also hope they will all become subscribers to your excellent chronicle "The Bell News" which I am sure is indispensable to all ringers. After looking at the church of St. Benedict (which has a light peal of six bells) on the site of the first English Church, I proceeded to Exeter, where of course the cathedral was the first place visited. Close by I was delighted with the tone of the fine old clock bell "Peter," but I am of opinion that if the full power of the bell is to be brought out, the clapper should be at least three times as heavy. The bell cannot be heard at two or three streets length. On Tuesday in company with the worthy tower keeper Mr. Edworthy, I had a thorough look round the south tower with its magnificent and historical peal of ten. The ninth seems to be the finest toned bell in the peal, but all are excellent. The treble especially struck me as being a remarkably clear toned bell, would that all trebles were the same. It would be presumptuous of me to give a further account of this grand and unrivalled peal; others of more ability have fully described them in the pages of your valuable paper. It seems a great pity that this peal so dear to us, through one who has departed hence, should be almost useless. The fittings seem in fair order but they are altogether too primitive for such a heavy peal. Wednesday morning found me speeding away from the sound of these bells towards home, and so ended one of the pleasantest and most enjoyable trips I ever had. I wish again to heartily thank through the medium of this paper all those ringers and friends who contributed so much to my enjoyment.

GEO. F. ATTREE, Hon. Sec.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

ON Whit-Monday, the members of this Association held their first meeting at Alnwick, the most northerly point at which they have ever met. A party of ringers, including four of the Ripon Cathedral company, went to Alnwick on the Saturday, and called at Morpeth on their way. Here an attempt was made for a 5000 of Kent Treble Bob Major on the peculiar but musical bells in the watch tower. This proceeded merrily until the bells ran out shortly before the half-peal was reached. The party then proceeded to Alnwick and rung the bells there for the Sunday services. On the Monday, ringers assembled from Newcastle, Hexham, Newton Hall, North Shields, Stockton, and Ripon, the principal achievement of the day being a 1024 of Kent Treble Bob Major. A meeting of the Committee was held in the Star Hotel at 12.30, the following gentlemen being present; Messrs. Clarkson (hon. secretary), R. S. Story (president), F. Lees, and T. Clark (vice-presidents), W. Story, H. F. Lockhart, W. G. Routledge, Lisle, Stobart, Whinney, and Simpson. The topics discussed were the state of the bells at St. Nicholas' Cathedral, Newcastle, the granting of ringer's certificates to performing members, and the appointment of representatives to attend at the unveiling of the memorial to Jasper W. Snowdon, at Ilkley, on June 11th. The secretary and president were empowered to make public the defective state of the cathedral bells, and to press for their restoration. The granting of certificates to members of ten years standing was carried despite Mr. Lee's opposition. The secretary and president were deputed to attend the unveiling of the memorial window to Mr. Snowdon. The secretary informed them that their Association had subscribed £5 12s. 6d towards the funds for erecting this memorial, and congratulated them upon it. After some minor discussions, the meeting adjourned to the dining room, where a good company of members were assembled. The Rev. Mr. Perry, vicar of St. Paul's, took the chair, and the usual toasts were drunk. Mr. Clarkson urged the Alnwick people to form a society of ringers. Mr. Perry, Mr. R. S. Story, Mr. Reed, and Mr. Lockhart, all spoke on the subject; and the nomination of new members brought this successful meeting to an end. It is to be regretted that Alnwick is without a band of ringers, for, given in moderation, bell music is very pleasing to the accustomed ear.

AN OLD FORM OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.—Death by precipitation is one of the oldest modes of capital punishment. It prevailed widely over the earth in primitive times. Traces and traditions of it are found here and there in different countries, and in localities far apart. We can easily understand how this should be so, for in ancient times towns and villages were almost exclusively built upon elevated rocks and heights, for the sake of security. The nucleus of a town was usually a large isolated rock, such as the rock of the Parthenon at Athens, the rock of the Palatine at Rome, the rock of the Chateau at Nice, and the rock of Zion at Jerusalem. Precipitation among the Jews was one form of stoning, which was the recognised legal punishment for blasphemy. Indeed "stoning," as the Mishna informs us, was regarded as merely a term for breaking the culprit's neck. It was made imperative that "the house of stoning," as the place from where the criminal was cast down was called, should be at least "two storeys high"; and it was the duty of the chief witness to precipitate the criminal with his own hand. If he was not killed at once by the fall, the second witness had to cast a stone on his head; and if he still survived, the whole people were to join together in putting an end to him with a shower of stones. This precipitation constituted an essential and humane feature in the act of stoning. Both modes we must regard as an exceedingly primitive custom, the most natural method in which a rude people would wreak their vengeance, or inflict deserved punishment.—Dr. Hugh Macmillan in "The Quiver," for June.

A CORRECTION.—The 555 of Grandsire Triples published in June 4th, should read 559, and the 5040 of Triples rang at St. Paul's, on May 30th (W. Allan) it was his first peal in the method, not first peal. There should also be a 720 of Kent Treble Bob (nine bobs), in the report of the attempt for a peal at Bromham, on May 24th.

Marriage.

June 14th, at St. Matthias' Church, Dublin, by the Rev. J. C. Irwin, M.A., Vicar of Coolock, Raheny, JOHN SYMONS, Esq., Surgeon, Penzance, to SARA AMELIA, youngest daughter of the late Benjamin Hayes Jagoe, Esq., of Bandon, co. Cork.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE LONG PEAL OF STEDMAN CINQUES AT BIRMINGHAM.

SIR.—Having seen a reply in your valuable paper on Saturday last to my letter from Mr. Joseph Cattle, in which he says Mr. Thomas Miller had charge of the keys of the church, I must confess he had charge of the keys during the time we were ringing the peal, in case any of the ringers should want anything, but I beg to say that after the peal, the keys were handed to me by Mr. Miller before anyone had left the tower. The first two who left the tower were Messrs. Reynolds and F. H. James, and several others came down after them before I came down. When I did come down, Mr. Cattle was in the street, and he came to me and said "It is a pity you made such a bad finish of it," and my reply was "It is." He then went away with some of the ringers to our meeting-house, and on the way there he asked Mr. Johnson, sen., the way in which the bells came round. Mr. Cattle says in his letter the bells never came round, if not it must be an absurd question to ask Mr. Johnson, sen. Instead of me going up with them, I took the keys and handed them over to the beadle, and then went up to the meeting-house. Mr. Cattle had then gone to post a letter to Messrs. Hopkins, of London, stating we had rung the peal. JOB JOYNES.

P.S.—I should be very glad if some one in London that are interested in the affair would kindly ask the Messrs. Hopkins if ever they received a letter from Mr. Cattle dated Birmingham, February 28th, 1881, on the subject.

SIR.—When reading "THE BELL NEWS" last week I noticed a letter from Joseph Cattle, in which he states that Mr. Thomas Miller held the keys of the tower. He did, but only during the time the peal was being rung. When it was finished he delivered the keys up to Job Joynes, who has been my assistant for the past 14 years. J. C. also makes another great error in saying that the peal did not come round. I beg to state that it did. Why he should bring it up after seven years I cannot make out. JOHN JAMES, Steeple Keeper.

SIR.—Will you kindly allow me space for a few remarks respecting this peal now under discussion in your columns? I believe I am correct in stating that I was the first person in London that knew of its achievement, as I have in my possession a letter from Mr. Cattle, early on the following Tuesday morning, wherein he states that the ringing was good throughout, but in the last course the bells were fired round. This, Sir, I contend is a very serious assertion to make if not true, and I think it is only just (not only to those who took part in it), but the Exercise generally, that this matter should be cleared up. I have had the pleasure of ringing with most of these gentlemen, all of whom I very much respect, and I confess it grieves me to hear the ugly rumours afloat concerning this peal. Mr. Joynes states in his letter that there was a little confusion in the last course, caused by two bells dodging wrong. I should like to ask him candidly if he thinks they ought to have stopped. I would like to suggest that the conductor (Mr. Hallsworth's) opinion be given on the matter, also Mr. Henry Johnson, sen., and last, but not least, Mr. Charles Henry Hattersley, who I know is a great upholder of good striking. I think if these gentlemen are unanimous that the mistake has been over-rated, then I say let the 9238 be acknowledged as the longest peal. While writing I may state that I was exceedingly sorry to hear of the unfortunate mishap which occurred in the last course at St. Michael's, on Whit-Monday, and beg to express my sympathy with those gentlemen who rang in it, but as one of them remarked to me, "if we cannot ring the last course then we deserve to lose the peal," and I quite agree with him, still, I wish they had been successful as I consider any further discussion on the matter would have been unnecessary. I sincerely trust these few remarks will be received in the same friendly spirit they are meant, and that this matter may be settled to the satisfaction of all concerned. HENRY A. HOPKINS.

MR. PRICE'S PEAL.

SIR.—I cannot quite agree with all the Rev. H. E. Bulwer's remarks respecting the peal of Treble Bob in question. In referring to the only difference in the two peals, viz., the 8th course-end, he says "but this alone is sufficient to establish a distinction," and further on he says "Mr. Price is entitled to the credit of independent production of a distinct peal." Now, Sir, I think this is something new for Treble Bob composers to learn, for in some cases (in one-part peals) it is very easy to cut out a course and substitute another, which will alter the calling of the course in question, and the calling of the succeeding course, or to interlope a course, which will alter the calling of two courses, and the other part of the peal remain unaltered. Now I contend that such an alteration does not constitute an independent or distinct peal. If so any one can soon become a Treble Bob composer, by simply altering one course-end of an old peal and claiming it as an independent and distinct peal. With regard to the other differences which Mr. Bulwer thinks I must have failed to notice, namely the omission of a bob here, and the addition of a bob there, in the 8th and 9th courses, any one knows that if a course-end is altered it must alter the calling, as I have already stated. At the conclusion of the letter Mr. Bulwer says "it may be noted in addition that the 5068 reverses to the same peal, but the 5056 does not." Now my object in composing this peal was to obtain one that would reverse to the same. That is why the unmusical course-end 46532 was allowed to remain. In fairness to Mr. Price I may say that he has written me privately, disclaiming the peal altogether, as he never saw "THE BELL NEWS" for 1882, so was not aware that the peal had been published.

ARTHUR KNIGHTS.

THE TENOR AT ST. LAWRENCE JEWRY.

SIR.—I very much question whether I am acting wisely in again troubling you with correspondence respecting the above tenor bell, for, indeed, like measuring bells, it seems no easy matter to gauge Mr. Barry's statements, they seem to me so very flighty and fragile, like the proverbial straws clutched at by drowning folks. It matters not to me about the weight of St. Paul's 10th bell, I am satisfied to allow the St. Lawrence tenor to be to my mind that which the list of peals I have in my possession gives it, viz., 29 cwt. For my part Mr. Barry and his friends may call it what they please, and if such pleases them far be it for me to disturb their self (?) satisfaction. I shall not continue the subject beyond this communication, as I feel assured the space in your journal can be devoted to something better.

MATTHEW A. WOOD.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS, SUFFOLK.

On Saturday, June 11th, a band of ringers visited this town for the purpose of attempting a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major on the magnificent peal of eight at St. Mary's church. A start was made at 1.40, and all went well for two hours, during which time 3000 changes were rung, when it unfortunately came to grief. C. Sillitoe (Sudbury, conductor), 1; P. C. S. Scott (Long Melford), 2; C. Adams (Glemsford), 3; S. Slater (Glemsford), 4; F. Wells (Glemsford), 5; J. Lee (Foxearth), 6; A. Osborne (Bury St. Edmunds), 7; E. Pemberton (Ipswich), 8. An adjournment was then made to St. James's and a touch of Bob Major was rung on the back eight. P. Scott, 1; J. Lee, 2; C. Adams, 3; F. Wells, 4; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 5; O. Garwood 6; E. Pemberton, 7; S. Slater, 8. The ten were also rung round, there not being enough to ring anything on them.

THE UNITED COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The half-yearly meeting of the above will take place on Saturday, July 9th, 1887, at Chapel-en-le-Frith. The draw for priority of ringing in the cup competition will take place at the house of Mr. Joseph Thornhill, "Bull's Head" Inn, at 10.30 a.m., where the committee will sit. The first company to enter the tower at 11.30 a.m.

Dinner will be provided at the above house at 5.0 p.m., tickets 1s. 6d. each, when ringing will cease for an hour. Those intending being present at dinner must signify the same, on or before Thursday, July 7th, to Mr. George Ford, Terrace Road, Chapel-en-le-Frith.

Members are requested to note that the levy of 1s. per member is due, and the president and secretary will attend in the committee-room to receive same, also back subscriptions and entrance fees of new members. JAMES S. WILDE, Hon. Sec.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

XII.—PEALS OF ROYAL AND MAXIMUS.—(Continued).

PEALS OF MAXIMUS.

It will be noticed that ten-part compositions are peculiarly adapted to Maximus, as seven courses nine times repeated give a peal of 5040. Of course any peals of Major without bobs at H can be rung on twelve bells as well as on ten. Likewise any peals of Royal can be similarly utilized if required. A 5040 of Royal runs to 6048 in Maximus.

The following is an exceedingly simple peal with the 6th at home throughout, and never more than two consecutive calls.

No. 27.	(5040)

	3 2 5 1 4	- -
	5 3 2 1 4	- -
	2 5 3 1 4 6	- -

Nine times repeated, with bobs instead of the single except in the sixth part.

A. P. H., Sept., 1886.

The next peal is an example of shortening by bobs M. If the first part is called like the rest, it will run, as the preceding peal, to 5040, with the same qualities.

DEDICATION OF NEW BELLS AT DUFFIELD, DERBYSHIRE.

On Sunday, the 19th inst., the two trebles presented by Mr. Heywood to All Saints' church in commemoration of Her Majesty's Jubilee were dedicated, and rung for the first time. The ceremony was performed by the Vicar, the Rev. F. W. Moore, at the close of the morning service, immediately after which the members of the Duffield Society set the ten bells going. Ringing was continued for an hour, when an adjournment was made for dinner. During the afternoon some good touches of Stedman Caters were rung, and also, to oblige friends from Derby, a few courses of Grandsire Caters. In spite of the intense heat, the ringing was decidedly successful, and the new trebles were listened to with strong expressions of satisfaction by the parishioners.

The peal of eight to which the addition has been made were hung by Messrs. Taylor in 1884. The tenor is 17 cwt. in F; the difficulty, therefore, of casting suitable bells to increase the peal to ten was by no means slight. Messrs. Taylor deserve to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts in a work which they were by no means desirous of undertaking, on account of the doubtfulness of the result. Were it not for the fact that the windows of the belfry are very low, and the new bells entirely above them, it is probable that the trebles would quite hold their own at a distance, as they do in the immediate vicinity of the church. They are in perfect tune and beautifully mellow in tone.

The additions to the frame, together with the hanging, were carried out under Mr. Heywood's superintendence by the workmen employed in his experimental workshops, all of whom are ringers. The whole of the bells run in self-adjusting bearings, by which perfect contact between gudgeon and step is ensured however much the frame may twist. The two tenors have now been hung on this plan for two years, and have been remarkable ever since for the unaltered smoothness and liveliness of their "go." The sound of the trebles is brought down to the ringers by the pipe which carries off the foul air from the sunlight in the ceiling of the ringing chamber. This pipe is carried up, and finished with an inverted mouth immediately over the upper tier of bells. The ropes hang in an almost perfect circle, with ample room for every ringer. All the necessary appliances being thus complete, it is to be hoped that the local band will not be long in accomplishing the first peal on the ten.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

The Annual General Meeting was held at Tonbridge on Monday, June 13th. The service at the parish church was at 12 o'clock, when the Rev. A. T. Scott, of Tunbridge Wells, preached the sermon. One hundred and twenty two members and guests attended the dinner, at which Colonel Knatchbull took the chair. It appeared by the report read after dinner, that eleven new bands have joined the Society, which is in a flourishing state. More peals would have been entered in the new book, but for the circumstance of the conductor not forwarding them to the secretary. The belfries of the parish church, Tonbridge, as well as those of Hadlow, and St. Peter's, Tunbridge Wells were visited during the day. Applications from secretaries of bands may now be made for the number of the new lists which they require.

WILTSHIRE BELFRIES.

A Correspondent writes:—Seeing in your interesting paper lately, frequent mention made of Wiltshire belfries and bell hanging, I should like to communicate to you what I know regarding a north Wiltshire belfry. In the massive tower of Aldbourne, Wilts, there swings one of the most musical peals of eight in the country, and it is now just the completion of a century since the addition of the two higher bells E and D (higher in two senses, as they hang above the old six) the donors being Robert Wells, the bell founder of this village, Josh. Pizzie, and Wm. Gwynn, so that since the year 1787 the octave has been complete (with the exception of a slight crack in the 5th), as there are many lovers of bells and ringing to whom I feel sure this will be interesting, I forward the inscriptions on the first seven. The tenor, Eb, is very complicated and indistinct, and time would not allow me to take off the same. A word on the third and fifth bells. I believe I may safely conjecture, that there is little doubt that William and Robert Corr were the founders of these bells in 1709 and 1703 respectively as on the third for instance "by the skill of William and Robt. Corr here I sound." It is more than probable that the 6th bell of this peal was cast some considerable time before the Reformation, as, at any time since that date, a founder would scarcely quote the Virgin Mary in such an ecstatic manner it seems to appear on this casting. The draught of rope is very long, some 65 feet of more, and the bells do not "go" sufficiently well to attempt anything like a reasonable touch of change-ringing.

A YOUNG CHANGE-RINGER.

"STANDARD METHODS."

As a sign of the present active interest taken in learning change-ringing, it may be noted that it has been found necessary to issue a second thousand of Jasper Snowdon's Standard Methods. The following notes on this issue fully explains matters:—

"The demand for a further supply of Standard Methods following so soon after my brother's death is a gratifying proof of the value of his writings to the Exercise and of its appreciation of them. It further shows that the author's confidence in the usefulness of coloured diagrams (which are costly to execute), was not exaggerated nor misplaced when he ordered one thousand copies to be prepared for him of this his most expensive work.

"After careful consideration, I have had this issue struck off simply as a reprint—page for page—correcting the clerical errors, and adding a few notes in an appendix.

"My reasons are these:—Being one of the band of amateurs who took up change-ringing at Ilkley along with the author, I am of course fully aware of the valuable aid which the eye can give to the mind and memory after a careful examination of such coloured diagrams. These aids we nearly all used. A special value attaches to them when a band of ringers systematically use them when they are first learning or trying a new method. Further, the advantage of each member of a rising band possessing a copy—which he is then able to study at home—was fully impressed upon me. Nothing is so irritating as being held back and hindered in one's progress by the want of knowledge, or the forgetfulness of a brother ringer. Looking on those who already possess copies of Standard Methods as pioneers amongst learners, I feel that it would be vexatious to them if the uniformity of the two issues were spoilt by unnecessary alterations. As owner of the copyright of my brother's writings, I am anxious to keep each in its most useful form, and I fully believe that as a text book to follow Rope Sight, this reprint of Standard Methods as he left it, will prove to be the most acceptable.

WILLIAM SNOWDON.

"Old Bank Chambers, Leeds, May 1887."

From the advertisement pages of this same issue, we note the following, which will no doubt interest our readers:—

"In the press, and will be issued during the summer of 1887, Grandsire, the method, its peals, and history, by the late Jasper Whitfield Snowdon, with portrait and memoir, edited by his brother, William Snowdon, President of the Yorkshire Association of Change Ringers, together with an appendix by the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, M.A., late scholar of Pembroke College, Oxford, Master of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, Member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, the St. James' Society, the Oxford University Society, &c., &c."

JUBILEE RINGERS.

From the Newcastle Weekly Chronicle.

The following might be interesting to our readers just now, when another Jubilee has been celebrated. The author is the Rev. R. S. Hawker, and the title "The Ringers of Lancelles Tower." They rang at the accession of George III., and all lived to ring again on the fiftieth anniversary of his reign:—

They meet once more, that ancient band,
With furrowed cheek and failing hand;
One peal to-day they fain would ring—
The Jubilee of England's king.

They meet once more—but where are now
The sinewy arm, the laughing brow,
The strength that hailed in happier times
King George the Third with lusty chimes?

Yet proudly gaze on that lone tower,
No goodlier sight hath hall or bower;
Meekly they strive, and closing day
Glids with soft light their locks of grey.

Hark! proudly hark! with that true tone
They welcomed him to land and throne;
So, ere they die, they fain would ring
The Jubilee of England's king.

Hearts of old Cornwall, fare ye well;
Fast fade such scenes from field and dell—
How wilt thou lack, my own dear land,
Those trusty arms, that faithful band!

NEWS FROM THE ANTIPODES.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,—Perhaps a short account of the doings of the Victorian Society of Bellringers (who have their headquarters in Melbourne) during Easter Week, may be interesting to some of your readers. If you think so please find a corner in "THE BELL NEWS" for it, it may let some of our ringing brethren in the old country know that the art is followed up as lovingly here as in dear old England, although under great difficulty, as we have so very few bells and those so very far apart. I might say that your valuable paper finds its way even to this remote corner of the world, and is eagerly read by all of us here in Melbourne.

DOINGS OF THE VICTORIAN SOCIETY FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 17TH, 1887.—On Monday morning, April 11th, being Easter Monday, thirteen members journeyed 100 miles by rail to Ballarat, the premier gold field of the Colony. Leaving Melbourne by early morning train we reached Ballarat about half-past ten, and soon found our way to the town hall, where the fine peal of eight are hung as a memento of the visit of the Duke of Edinburgh to the Colony in 1867. After being hospitably entertained by Major Thompson, an adjournment to the belfry was made, and during the afternoon several 504's of Grandsire Triples were rung, and just as we began to feel them nicely, found it was time to make for the train for another 100 miles' ride. In an interval between the touches we were entertained at dinner by the Ballarat company, and spent a pleasant hour, but found we had crowded too much into one day's proceedings. Next morning, April 12th, found us back in Melbourne at St. James's Cathedral, to ring a welcome touch to the new Bishop of Melbourne, Dr. Goe, who arrived that morning from the old country. On Thursday, April 14th, the Bishop's installation at St. James's, another busy day. On Sunday April 17th, the Bishop's first sermon, a 504 before morning service, and in the evening before service rang our best touch for the week (1036 changes of Grandsire Triples, in 38 mins., by the following members of the Society: Charles Crang (Somersetshire), 1; James Murray (Colonial), 2; John Heather (Colonial), 3; Joseph Clark (Lancashire), 4; John Guest (Stafford), 5; William Shenton (Hillingdon, Middlesex), 6; Sam. Wilkinson (Midland Counties), 7; William Pearson (Colonial), 8.

THE UNITED COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The half-yearly meeting of the above will take place on Saturday, July 9th, 1887, at Chapel-en-le-Frith. The draw for priority of ringing in the cup competition will take place at the house of Mr. Joseph Thornhill, "Ball's Head" Inn, at 10.30 a.m., where the committee will sit. The first company to enter the tower at 11.30 a.m.

Dinner will be provided at the above house at 5.0 p.m., tickets 1s. 6d. each, when ringing will cease for an hour. Those intending being present at dinner must signify the same, on or before Thursday, July 7th, to Mr. George Ford, Terrace Road, Chapel-en-le-Frith.

Members are requested to note that the levy of 1s. per member is due, and the president and secretary will attend in the committee room to receive same, also back subscriptions and entrance fees of new members.

JAMES S. WILDE, Hon. Sec.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

I would remind all members of the above Association who have not yet paid their subscription for this year to do so before the 31st of July next, or they will cease to be members and their names will be consequently struck off the roll. I would ask those who have taken part in ringing peals since August 1st last, will kindly see they are sent in at once in order that they may be entered in our next report.

THE ST. LAURENCE'S SOCIETY, READING.—ANNUAL OUTING.

ON Saturday, June 11th, this society had their annual campanological tour in the counties of Hants and Surrey. Leaving Reading at 8.50 a.m. by train, they arrived at Basingstoke by 9.20, where they were joined by Mr. H. White, honorary member of the society. A brake and pair was in waiting, and all having taken their seats, they journeyed on through the villages of Winslade and Herriard, down a magnificent beech avenue, arriving at Alton, Hants, by 11 o'clock. Here the Vicar, the Rev. F. Whyley, kindly provided light refreshment, and gave his visitors permission to ramble through his grounds. Having partaken of his hospitality, the company moved to the Church and rang a 504 of Grandsire Triples in 20 mins., conducted by the worthy instructor, Mr. W. Newell. The Vicar was very pleased with the ringing, being a change-ringer himself, and having a young band whom he is trying hard to bring to perfection in the art of change-ringing. At 12.20 the bugle sounded, and the campanologists assembled and made another start, driving through a beautiful country, passing by hedgerows of May, which was out in full bloom by large hop gardens, for which this part is so famous, and on to Farnham, Surrey, which was reached by 1.30. Here they were met by Mr. Balfett, the head ringer, and having repaired to the church, a 503 of Grandsire Triples was rung in 18 mins., conducted by the secretary, Mr. W. J. Williams, and afterwards a course of Bob Major. The bells go like tops, and are of excellent tone. The ringers expressed their regret at not having time to start for a peal, but as this was impossible, they contented themselves with touches. Several peals have been rung in this tower, although there are no boards to indicate such, they being taken down during the restoration of the church, but the records of the peals are preserved, being written on parchment, framed, and hung in the tower. After lowering the bells in peal, the excursionists adjourned to Cleve's dining rooms, and sat down to a sumptuous repast. Having done justice to the good things provided (which can well be imagined after a drive through this hop country), and after a ramble in the town, the company met, and commenced the homeward journey at 4.15, returning by another route, through the village of Crondall, and on to Odiham, Hants. Here a halt was made to view the church, and to ring a 720 of Bob Minor, but as the bells were not in first rate condition this could not be accomplished; however, a 360 of that method was rung, conducted by Mr. Tom Hibbert, also a 120 of Grandsire Doubles, conducted by Mr. J. E. Willshire. Resuming the journey at 6.20, an hour's ride brought the tourists back to Basingstoke, where they sat down to tea at the Old Angel Cafe. Having satisfied the cravings of the inner man, St. Michael's church was visited, and after raising the bells, Mr. Henry White successfully brought round a 518 of Grandsire Triples, taken from Holt's ten-part, the worthy captain, Mr. W. Johnson, contributing his mite by conducting a 350 in the same method. The time was now getting short, so they were not able to attempt any more touches, but hurrying off to the station, they caught the 8.40 train, arriving in Reading by 9.5, after spending a most enjoyable day. St. Laurence's ringers wish, through the medium of this paper, to thank those gentlemen who so willingly contributed towards the day's enjoyment, the Vicars for giving them permission to ring, and the steeplekeepers for seeing to the bells and getting everything ready.

HALESOWEN, WORCESTERSHIRE.

The Queen's Jubilee was celebrated here in a right royal fashion amongst the ringers, the bells having been left up from the previous night. At five o'clock, the next morning, they were pulled off, and Holt's ten-part was commenced with handbell regularity, the striking being very good, until past the midway single. Here a rather trying misfortune, taking the form of the sun glaring through a little window full into the conductor's face, averting his gaze, and almost bringing things to grief. This having been rectified, change after change rang merrily out until "single" was again called a few minutes after eight, the peal having taken 3 hrs. 5 mins. This is the first time this peal or any other has been recorded on these bells since June 1776 by Halesowen men, the present being a young change-ringing band. This ring is a very fine one, six of which were cast at Edgbaston, and rehung in the year 1707, a new seventh at the same time was given by Sir Charles Lyttleton, then Lord of the Manor. About 1753, a gentleman of London, named Skittleton, came on a visit to Halesowen, and admiring the sweetness of their tone, and at the same time lamenting that they were not a full octave, generously made a present of the first and second bells. They bear the date of 1753. Impressions of course adorn most of the bells, and there is a shilling of William III very perfectly cast upon the fifth bell. The whole peal was rehung in 1883, and is one of the finest in the county.

SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1887.

We turn aside for the moment to allude to the event of the week, viz., the celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee. Did we omit any reference to such an auspicious event which has stirred the hearts of legions of the Queen's subjects, we should certainly deserve to be considered disloyal. But not the least taint of any of those doctrines which are in opposition to our present glorious constitution attaches to us. The ceremonies of last Tuesday, carried out in the manner they were, are sufficient to fill the heart of every Englishman with no small amount of honest pride. A daily contemporary well portrays sentiments like the following: "A cavalcade of Princes, several of whom rule or will rule some of the mightiest monarchies of the earth, is not a spectacle to be seen every day, and the long line of state carriages filled with Sovereigns, who have come from the remotest parts of the earth to do honour to our Island Queen, was a sight interesting as a mere show, but more interesting still for the thoughts which it suggested. A troop of Indian Cavalry in the English capital, a bevy of Indian Princes in the train of the English Monarch, could not but be a stirring spectacle for the millions who have only a vague, intangible idea of the mightiness of the Empire which their fathers won. And the fact that for fifty years a woman has been the head of this immense Confederation of Kingdoms and Colonies must have reminded the least thoughtful of the singular good fortune enjoyed by these Islands. In fifty years every civilised State in the world has suffered more than one Revolution. Several of them—the Republics among the number—have had civil wars, and in many the dynasty and the form of government have been changed. Yet England is to-day stronger and steadier than she was when the Queen's reign began. The secret of this solidarity was no secret to those who looked on the living walls which lined the streets. They, after all, were the most remarkable feature of the spectacle. Soldiers are at their Commander's beck, and Princes and official guests come at the bidding of their Governments. But more than a million of people, orderly, loyal, and eager to acclaim their Sovereign, cannot be brought 'by order' into the positions they occupied. From day dawn, and in some cases even from the night before, many of those who could afford any more select point of 'vantage than the pavement began to assemble, and there they waited patiently for hours in the summer sun. Like the 'men of Rome' whom FLAVIUS apostrophised, though under very different circumstances, they climbed to 'walls and battlements, to towers and windows, yea, to chimney tops,' their infants in their arms, and there 'sat the livelong day with patient expectation,' to see the Queen pass along the streets of her capital. There was no quarrelling. A London mob is rarely ill-natured, and the foreigner who has been taught to regard us as a race sad and not sober, must have felt the necessity of revising his verdict in view of the merry, but perfectly orderly crowds that met his gaze. We must, of course, admit that the love of sightseeing had something to do with this enthusiasm, but curiosity and conventionality played only a minor part in the motives which brought the vast multitude into the streets."

After this we need not regard foreign pageants as anything very formidable. That of QUEEN VICTORIA'S Jubilee surpasses anything we have ever heard of. It was not the procession of some mighty conqueror with his captives following ignominiously in his train, but that of a peaceful monarch of the greatest empire, accompanied by a retinue of loving subjects from all parts of the world, many of them scions of Royal houses and descendants of mighty and once powerful dynasties. That such pageants can take place without even the slightest danger or fear to the principal actors must be to some foreigners a matter of envy, to ourselves it ought to beget a spirit of thankfulness.

Nor was the metropolis alone enthusiastic upon the Jubilee. Every town, village, and remote hamlet throughout the land contributed its quota to the general carnival. The dependencies of the Empire were not one whit behindhand; and those of high birth who owe no allegiance to the monarch of these realms, appeared to believe that the occasion was one in which passiveness was unpardonably wrong.

THE NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

REDENHALL (Norfolk).—On Tuesday, June 21st, the Redenhall branch of this Association celebrated the jubilee of Her Majesty in good style. They commenced with rounds and firing the bells fifty times, the number of years Her Majesty has reigned, and rang a good touch of Oxford Treble Bob before breakfast. Afterwards they rang a long touch of the same, and a shorter one before the service at eleven o'clock. They then rang another as the congregation were leaving the church and rang at intervals during the rest of the day. The oldest hands present declare they had never heard better ringing, for a days ringing on these bells, than on this occasion. The following members took part in the ringing. Edward Smith, John Bently, William Sheldrake, Charles Candler, Esq., William Fork, George Mobbs, Frederick Smith, James Souter, and Captain Moore.

THE ST. JAMES' SOCIETY, BRISTOL.

BRISTOL.—On Wednesday afternoon, June 22nd, at St. James's church, a 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor. E. Davis, 1; H. Tucker, 2; F. Green, 3; A. Howell, 4; H. Porch (conductor), 5; J. Hinton, 6. And 120 of Stedman Doubles. E. Davis, 1; J. Hinton, 2; F. Green, 3; A. Howell, 4; H. Porch, 5; F. Robertson, 6. Messrs. Davis and Green, who hail from Caerlon, in Monmouthshire, was inspecting the exterior of the church when quite accidentally a band came together and rang the above.

BLACKHILL (Durham).—The ringing at St. Mary's (R.C.) church on Jubilee Day consisted of firing royal salutes and several six-scores of Grandsire Doubles at intervals from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m. by the following: J. Moore, C. McElrue, J. McPhillips, J. Moore, B. King, M. Rodgers, E. J. Sloane, J. T. Dobson, and A. Nichols, conducted respectively by J. Moore, A. Nichols and J. T. Dobson.

BRISTOL.—On Tuesday, June 21st, at All Saints' church, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples. G. Staddon, 1; A. York, 2; J. York, 3; E. Duckham, 4; J. Hinton, 5; E. Beake, 6; H. Porch (conductor), 7; J. Falser, 8. Composed by H. Johnson, of Birmingham.

PIMLICO.—Handbell Ringing.—On Wednesday, June 15th, by eight members of St. Stephen's band, at the residence of Mr. Bell, upon handbells retained in hand, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples. H. R. Newton, 1-2; *E. Duff, 3; *H. S. Ellis, 4; J. M. Hayes, 5; *R. T. Bell, 6; J. N. Oxborrow, 7-8. *First quarter-peal on handbells.

PAINSWICK (Gloucestershire).—On Tuesday morning, June, 21st, in honour of Her Majesty's Jubilee the local company met at the Parish Church, at four o'clock in the morning, and fired ten bells for twelve times, fifty times, with rounds between each fifty, that being the number of years and months of Her Majesty's reign, also a 336 of Grandsire Triples and a 448 in the same method, and afterwards some more firing with two plain courses between, after which the bells were fired down. A. Trigg, A. Gwinnet, W. Ryland, D. Marment, J. Everett, J. Wager, J. Powell, T. Wright, T. Ireland, M. Ireland, W. Hale (conductor). The Painswick bells are all being rehung and fitted, they have been silent now some four months and are now only temporary rang for the Jubilee. The work of rehanging is being done most satisfactory by Messrs. Morris, bellhangers, sons of the late John Morris, one of those renowned Painswick Youths that rang in the long peals of Stedman Caters and Cinques.

THE JUBILEE PEAL AT ST. LAWRENCE JEWRY.

Eight members of the St. James's Society who rang the Jubilee peal at this church, were entertained at Supper at the "Goose and Gridiron" Hotel, St. Paul's churchyard, by Mr. Churchwarden Benningfield, who took the chair, and was supported by Mr. Ex-Churchwarden Chretien, the Rev. R. A. England, and Mr. J. R. Haworth, etc. The loyal toasts having been drunk with musical honours, a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on the handbells by Messrs. Haworth, Weatherstone, French, and Barry.

The CHAIRMAN, in the course of an interesting speech, referred to the St. James's Society, wishing it prosperity, and to the interest he had begun to take in the art of change-ringing, thanking Mr. Haworth for the insight he had given him. He took greater interest in this performance as it was rung on the last day of his churchwardenship, and nothing could please him more than to be connected with anything that related to the church and the bells of St. Lawrence Jewry. He also referred to the great pleasure it gave him to see his old friend, Mr. Chretien, and he asked the company to drink his health.

Mr. CHRETIEN responded, and said how pleased he always was to hear of anything going on concerning the parish of St. Lawrence, and happy to be in the midst of it. He also referred to the long connexion of his family, who were also deeply attached to St. Lawrence, his father's name appearing in the parish book as far back as 1816. Mr. Chretien was warmly applauded when he announced that he intended to ask the sanction of the Churchwardens to erect a tablet in the ringing-chamber to record the event of the Jubilee peal being rung.

After supper, the table and room being elegantly decorated, some pleasant tunes on the handbells were played by Mr. G. R. Banks, and courses of Grandsire and Stedman Triples were also rung by them, the latter being greatly applauded. Miss Alice Banks and Mr. F. Cockayne performed some fine duets and selections on the pianoforte with great taste, and songs were given by Messrs. Making, Haworth, Barry, French, and Weatherstone, the Rev. R. A. England reciting Father Prout's "Bells of Shandon." Altogether a most enjoyable evening was spent.

THE SHEPLEGH BELL.

[From the Dartmouth and Brixham Chronicle.]

The fine old tenor bell, which has been at Sheplegh Court since 1877, has been removed to Dartmouth. This bell has a history attached to it, having been originally the tenor bell for St. Mary Church, Torquay, which Church was re-built in 1851-61, after designs by Hugall, at a cost of £10,000. The old tower remained until 1871, when a loftier one was erected with an entire new peal of bells to the memory of Bishop Phillpotts, who lies interred in the churchyard. Some difficulty arose in utilising the tenor bell in the new peal, and it was ultimately sold. It was cast in the year 1707, is 44 inches in diameter at the mouth and weighs upwards of 15 cwt. It bears the following inscription in Roman characters round its upper part:—"J. A. Salter, Vicr., F. R. Tapley, Sol. Smerdon, Wardens. I. E. (followed by a shilling of William III.), I. B. (another shilling), I. G. (another shilling) I (bell) P. s I (bell) P. l. Four Fleur de lys. 1707: John Leer, Esq., followed by a half-crown of the same reign." Unlike many large bells it has never been chipped to regulate the tone, but is as perfect as when it was cast, 180 years ago. Its tone is fine and clear in the key of E. It is supposed to contain a considerable per centage of silver, which in the early days of bell founding was thought to improve the tone. Later experience in the fusion of metals has however proved that this was not the case. The presence of silver is more likely due to the fact that in the days when the transit of heavy weights over the Devonshire hills, it was the practice to cast the tenor bell on the spot—frequently in the churchyard—and by way of increasing the interest which such an occurrence would naturally create in a rural parish, it was held to be a "good work" to aid in the casting by contributions of money or metal utensils which were brought by the parishioners and by themselves thrown into the melting pot. The reign of Queen Anne was remarkable for a revival of the silversmiths' art in this country; and, doubtless, much of the silver of the earlier and less decorative period went in this way. The half-crown and shillings referred to as forming part of the inscription were doubtless the gifts of the lord of the manor and churchwardens, and must have been placed in their positions at the time of casting, before the bell had completely cooled. It would form a splendid Jubilee bell for a public clock to strike on, or for a chapel of ease. It is for sale. For particulars apply to Mr. R. Cranford, Dartmouth.

SALISBURY.—WATERLOO DAY.

Amid all the busy preparations for the forthcoming Jubilee the anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo (June 18th), was not forgotten at Salisbury. The bells of St. Martin's church pealed forth merrily in commemoration of this event, and several flags were seen floating in different parts of the city.

DEDICATION OF A PEAL OF BELLS AT OXHEY, HERTS.

The parish of Oxhey presented an animated appearance on Saturday last, June 18th, that being the day devoted to the commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee. It was determined some time since that the form the memorial should take for Oxhey was that a peal of bells should be hung in the tower, in the place of one which had hitherto been used. The work of collecting subscriptions, and pushing forward all necessary accessories for the thorough carrying out of the scheme, have been pursued with energy, the result being that all was in readiness for the dedication service which took place on Saturday. Complete preparations had been made to make the proceedings as enjoyable as possible, and everything passed off most satisfactorily. Bushey was well to the front in the matter of decorations, the principal feature being a triumphal arch, decorated with evergreens, flags and streamers, whilst suspended from the centre, stretching from side to side of the arch with the inscriptions "Victoria, whom God preserve," and "God Save the Queen." Lines of flags were also to be seen across the streets in different parts of the village, whilst to the tops of many of the houses were affixed flags and streamers. Numerous inscriptions also met the eye, among others being: "May God preserve our Queen," "Victoria 1837-1887," "Long may she reign," "Victoria our Queen," and "God bless our Queen." With the prospect of the dedication sermon by the Ven. Archdeacon Lawrance, of St. Albans, a large congregation assembled at five o'clock in the church. The service was fully choral. The processional hymn was the well-known one commencing—

Lifted safe within the steeple,
Now our bells are set on high,
To begin their holy mission,
Midway 'twixt the earth and sky.

and was powerfully rendered by the choir to a setting by H.R.H. the late Prince Consort. The choir, in this, as also the other hymns, were accompanied by the organ, which was effectually handled by Miss E. M. Savill, and by the Watford Town Band, under the conductorship of Mr. T. Mullett. The Psalms were 122, "I was glad when they said unto me" H. Leslie, and 150, "Praise ye the Lord" (Grand chant). The Nunc Dimittis being sung to Goss in A. The Rev. H. F. Hogson, of Abbot's Langley, read the lesson (Luke ii. 8-15), the other surpliced clergy present being Ven. Archdeacon Lawrance, Rev. Newton Price, Vicar, Rev. H. Burchell-Herne, Rev. Canon Townsend, and Rev. Gregory Nicholl (Leavesden Asylum).

The sermon was preached by Archdeacon Lawrance from Exodus xxviii. 33, 34, 35. "And beneath upon the hem of it thou shalt make pomegranates of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, round about the hem thereof; and bells of gold between them round about: a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about. And it shall be unto Aaron to minister; and his sound shall be heard when he goeth in unto the holy place before the Lord, and when he cometh out, that he die not." He said:—

Seventy-two years ago this very day that great victory was won which finally and completely broke the power of Napoleon, and which set every bell in all the belfries of the kingdom ringing with sounds of jubilation. We are met on this occasion on the eve of a different kind of jubilation, of a more peaceful triumph, and you, the members of this congregation, may well congratulate yourselves and thank God that you will hear your new bells ring on the eve of that great jubilee week which is kept throughout all the vast dominions of our most beloved Queen, and that during the ensuing week, when you hear the melodious notes of those bells, you will bear in mind what a blessing her reign has been to this country, and also what a priceless blessing has been her example. I have chosen these words of the text for the few thoughts I shall put before you this afternoon, because they seem to point out to us the origin of bells in churches. Those golden bells on the robe of the High Priest, which gave forth their sweet sound as he went into the holy place, and at one and the same time warned him of the sacredness of the office he was about to discharge, and told the listening worshippers outside that he was entering upon his duties as their representative to God, are in all probability the origin of the use of bells in the Church for the purpose of calling the people to worship. Widely differing both in their composition and construction from the large bells which we associate with churches the idea is the same. With those large bells which we associate with churches the use is the same—that some special sound should arouse the attention and remind the hearer that something special was about to take place in which he either personally or as in the Mosaic ritual, by deputy was to bear a part, as it is said in Ecclesiasticus, "He compassed him with many golden bells round about, that as he went there might be a sound, and a noise made that might be heard in the temple, for a memorial to the children of his people." Those little hammered bells of gold performed in their time a similar function to that which is discharged nowadays by our great cast bells of copper and tin, without one or more of which no church in the land would consider itself properly equipped. For nearly fifteen centuries those large bells have been used, and twelve centuries ago, in 680, Bede tells us of a bell being used at Whitby, and in 870 we hear of a ring of six at Croyland of which Ingulphus says there was not then such a ring of bells in all England. I am reminded, speaking in this church, so closely once connected with the great neighbouring Abbey, of the good gentleman who sold many sheep to purchase a bell for the mighty tower then new, and as he listened to its melodious voice, said, "Hark! how sweetly my lambs do bleat." Bells have been employed not merely in their primary office of ringing or tolling for divine service, but in other ways which the imagination of earlier ages assigned to them. If there were a pestilence, or a thunderstorm, or a gale of wind, the bells were called on to play their part in abating them. Side by side with these uses of which I have spoken were the more natural ones of ringing an alarm on the approach of an enemy, or the outbreak of a fire, or as recorded in a beautiful modern poem, of the advance of the devastating high tide on the Lincolnshire coast in the 16th century. Strange stories, too, gathered round the belfries of the ancient churches, and a special sanctity was supposed to cling to them; as at Durham, where in the year 1429, on the feast of Corpus Christi, the belfry was struck by lightning and set on fire, but although the flames ranged all night and till the middle of the next day the tower escaped serious damage and the bells were uninjured. To this day, I believe, the fact is commemorated by the singing of the Te Deum on that day in the tower by the choristers. When in the general spoliation of church property which took place in the reign of Henry VIII. bells were sold as mere metal many strange things were said to happen. The ships that bore them across the sea foundered. Fourteen of the Jersey bells were wrecked at the entrance of the harbour of St. Malo, and people fancy they hear them ringing still when the wind blows. A certain Bi-hov of Bangor who sold the bells of his cathedral was stricken with blindness when he went to see them shipped, and many similar stories attest the devout regard in which bells were held from their connexion with the more prominent events of life and with its ending. But the purposes more directly and closely connected with divine things were naturally the most abiding, and it is such uses of the bells that gives a meaning to our short service of dedication to-day. With the increased attention paid not merely to the fabric but to the services of our churches in this generation, there has grown up an increased interest in all the accessories of divine worship, and the belfry has naturally come in for its share. The reaction from the superstitious use and exaggerated reverence of bells had produced in puritanical quarters a dislike to their very sound, in connexion with worship as seeming to savour of Popery, whilst their use, though continued after the Reformation, was greatly restricted. And in the laxity of religious observance and the low tone of Church life from which we are now happily recovering, the bells were frequently rung on most unfitting occasions, such as elections and even races, and the belfry was too often a scene of drunkenness, disorder, and profanity. Now it is coming to be regarded as what in truth it is, a part of the house of God. The ringers are not the idle and dissolute of the parish, but take their place as Church workers, doing their part in divine service as a choir do theirs—the one to call the faithful together to worship, the other to lead their prayers and praises when so assembled. There is surely therefore every fitness in a service such as we have held—first, as a reminder to the present band of ringers and to those who shall succeed them of the part they have to play in divine worship, and of the message that the bells have to tell to the people around, when rung on different occasions of solemnity, of joy, and of sorrow. Bell-ringing, as is pretty well known now, is an art, and by no means an easy art when properly carried out in what is called change-ringing; for it demands no little skill and practice and no small strain on the eye and memory, but those who have attained proficiency in it describe it as a fascinating pursuit, and one of a distinctly instructive and intellectual nature; and I believe I am correct in saying that in no other country has this art reached the perfection it has arrived at in England, largely owing to the unremitting exertions of the good old clergyman, Mr. Ellacombe, who helped to ring in the new year in his Devonshire parish at the age of 91, and who has lately passed to his rest at 95. But this service is also a reminder to us who take no active part in the work of bell-ringing. The bells that ring for worship tell us of the duty we all owe to our Heavenly Father of assembling ourselves together in His courts; and they are a sign to those who do not come, of blessing offered, and despised or disregarded. Or should sickness keep us away, they tell us at what time we may join in spirit with those who are within God's house, and when we may mingle our supplications with theirs. The joy bells at a marriage may waken many memories—thoughts, perhaps, of the time when they rang for us, and may draw forth a prayer for those about to enter together upon the untrodden path now open before them. The bells that ring at Christmas or at the close and opening of the year have their special melodious burden for our ears, and the connexion of their voices with the news which they from year to year proclaim, celebrated by countless poets, has a deepening significance for us as we grow older, and look back, in our midnight meditation, on the increasing number of departed Christmas times, and years once so full of promise, yet carrying into the irrevocable past their story of so much undone, and so much less time left to do it in. And the bell that sounds, not indeed as once for the parting, but for the departed soul, must, as we listen, forewarn us of the hour, unknown but certain, when it shall tell out to those who hear the tidings that one more life has gone over to that "majority" which is always increasing, one more spirit has returned to the God who gave it, and that spirit is our own. It is something, therefore, deeper than a mere sentiment which gives church bells their importance even in these latter days. They have, from immemorial custom, been so blended with the various and more important events of human existence, that we value them as performing offices which must otherwise have no outward record. This new ring of bells may, I trust, long occupy the place to which they have been lifted, and worthily perform the duty which will be laid upon them, for those who still live, and for those who shall in this place come after them. It is the sacredness of their function which is the reason of their continuing use in our churches; it is the sacredness of their function which has given all its meaning to our service of to-day, and although it be but a mechanical voice that speaks through them, it is a voice that we do well to heed, for it tells us of a spiritual world in which we have a share, it bids us to adore Him through whose blessed Son and sanctifying Spirit alone we can hope to enter the house not made with hands, of which all these houses of God, how great soever their dignity and beauty, are but poor and humble types, and the richest harmony of bells, or of organ, or of choir, are harsh and untunable when set beside the song of the redeemed.

On the conclusion of the sermon the hymn

Praise the Lord! ye heavens adore Him; was sung, a procession at the same time being formed, consisting of the clergy and choir, who made their way to the principal entrance of the church, where the dedication of the bells took place, both before and after the service the Ven. Archdeacon tolling the tenor three times. On the conclusion of the service the bells rang out their first peal merrily, under the manipulation of a band of ringers from Langleybury Church, the hymn commencing being sung by the choir and congregation, while a collection in behalf of the Bells Fund was taken.

Hark! hark! the bells do loudly peal,
Our thankful hearts inviting.

The work of casting and hanging the bells has been carried out satisfactorily by Messrs. Warner and Sons, of Cripplegate, the key being A b. The weight of the whole is 40 cwt., the tenor being 9½ cwt. Owing to the limited space the bells have necessarily been hung somewhat close together, and it would also be a considerable advantage to the ringers if more space had been left between some of the ropes in the belfry. One or two matters also need attention being paid to them—to obtain more ventilation for the belfry, and to insert a trap door in the floor between the belfry and bells, thus preventing a volume of sound assailing the ears of the ringers. It was at first intended that the ring should consist of six bells only, but upon the advice of some practical change-ringers, it was decided to have eight, and there is now, therefore, a peal which will enable the ringers of the parish, when they understand the art of change-ringing, to treat the inhabitants to some fine melody, as the bells are exceedingly pretty in tone. Great assistance in the preliminary details and carrying out of the work has been afforded by Mr. R. A. Fowler and Mr. H. S. Waddington, of the St. Albans Cathedral society, the former having visited the place daily to see how the work was progressing. On Saturday, after the Langleybury band had concluded their ringing, the following members of the St. Albans Cathedral Society, with Messrs. Gibbard and Downer, of Oxhey, rang touches in various methods. R. A. Fowler, 1; —, Gibbard, 2; E. P. Debenham, 3; A. Barnes, 4; W. Battle, 5; G. W. Cartmel, 6; H. L. Waddington, 7; —, Downer, 8. The bells which gave great satisfaction to all who heard them, and upon the possession of which the parish is to be highly congratulated, bear the following inscriptions:—Treble, "Glory to God in the highest, R. R. Carew gave me." 2nd, "On earth peace, Mrs. R. R. Carew gave me." 3rd, "Goodwill towards men, T. F. Blackwell gave me." 4th, "We praise Thee, S. J. Blackwell gave me." 5th, "We bless Thee, Mrs. Eley gave me." 6th, "We worship Thee, in mem: W. A. Tooke, given by his mother." 7th, "We glorify Thee, Jubilee year, 1887, Newton Price, Vicar." Tenor, "We give thanks to Thee for Thy great glory, David Carnegie gave me." If the inhabitants of the parish are to be congratulated upon the possession of the bells, they are likewise equally so upon the fact that the whole amount required has been subscribed or promised. Previous to the collection on Saturday, the financial position was as follows:

Estimated cost of bells and expenses	£405.
In hand	£214 8 0
Promises	£165 10 0

From six to seven o'clock the Vicarage grounds were kindly thrown open by the Vicar, a large number accepting the invitation to be present. The proceedings were enlivened by a selection of music excellently rendered by the Watford Town band, and a feature of great interest was the handbell ringing by Messrs. A. Barnes, G. W. Cartmel, E. P. Debenham, and W. Battle, who gave a touch of 336 of Grandsire Triples. Subsequently a supper took place in the Board school, Bushey, when a large number sat down, the chair being occupied by the Vicar, the vice-chair by Mr. G. Biggs. On the conclusion of the repast,

The CHAIRMAN proposed the health of "The Queen." It was not necessary for him to say one word in commendation of the toast, as all present being churchmen it followed they were loyal. He did not say that others were not loyal, but as a matter of fact, churchmen must be, and moreover they were determined to the utmost of their power to uphold the throne and institutions of the country. They were very proud of the personal character of the Queen, and in this respect she stood foremost among the sovereigns of the world. Some articles had recently appeared in the newspapers as to the growth of the kingdom during the past fifty years, and remembering that the Queen during that long period had been the head of our race and our sovereign, he was sure they were hearty and sincere in the wish that day that God would spare her to reign over us.

The toast was drunk with enthusiasm, a verse of the National Anthem being sung.

Mr. TALBOT having appropriately proposed "The Prince and Princess of Wales and all the members of the Royal Family,"

Mr. SAVILL, one of the churchwardens, proposed the toast of "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese." As to the Bishop, he would say that he was one of the best they could possibly have, whilst of the clergy they had had a specimen in the gentlemen who gave them the discourse at the afternoon service. In his remarks in that sermon he mentioned the jubilee, and also the battle which was fought at Waterloo on June 18th, 1815. He (Mr. Savill), remembered the battle of Waterloo most distinctly, and he also remembered that it was stated the guns could be heard even at Harwich, though he rather doubted the accuracy of the statement. Even at the risk of wandering from his subject, he would wish success to the bells. He thought that so far as they had tried them they appeared to be a beautiful set, of which they might well be proud. They had been talking that day of what had happened many years ago, and he might mention that in 1815 the only way a light could be obtained was by the use of the tinder box, flint, and steel, as matches were not then in use. Again, when he first went to business in London, there were no steel pens, and every morning before he commenced his duties, he had to spend about three-quarters of an hour mending his fifty quill pens. At that time the postage from London to Watford was fourpence, London to Birmingham ninepence, and to Manchester and Liverpool elevenpence. There were then no telephones, or telegraph, neither railways, the first one not being opened in London until the year 1834 and within a week of the opening of the London and Greenwich lines he had a ride on it. They would then see even by his mentioning these matters, that their progress had been really wonderful. He had great pleasure in submitting his toast to them, with which he coupled the name of their respected Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN, in reply, observed that it was a matter of regret both to themselves and to the Archdeacon, that he had been unable to remain. As to the Bishop they all knew that he was generally respected, having endeared himself not only to the clergy, but also to the laity in his diocese. He was also glad to observe that the laity cordially assisted the clergy in the work the latter had to perform, always being ready with counsel, and otherwise to promote the interests of the church. There was much work in connection with the church to be performed, and he would desire that Sunday-school teachers, and the choir, should always remember this. To the bell ringers also he would say they were engaged in church work, as they spoke to people about things that were pleasing or solemn as the case might be, and he should be very proud also to become one of the band of bell ringers. The work of the church was becoming more and more organised, and the great thing for them to do was to work together.

In proposing the toast of the "Band of ringers from St. Albans Cathedral," the CHAIRMAN remarked that he hardly knew what he should have done to have carried on operations in connection with the work had it not been for the kind assistance afforded him by Messrs. Fowler and Waddington, two of the members of the band, who had attended that day. The bells were now up, and he hoped would be used among other things for change-ringing. The science or art of change-ringing was little known in west Herts, and in no belfry, except Aspley End, was it practised, for even at Rickmansworth, Watford, and Tring, where they had magnificent peals, the highest style of bell ringing was comparatively unknown. They intended, however, to have change-ringing at Oxhey, and in their St. Albans friends they had those who could and would teach them how to perform this.

Mr. FOWLER, in reply, said he need hardly mention that anything they could do to forward the adoption of change-ringing throughout the country would be most willingly performed, and, in fact, it was their endeavour and pleasure to do so. They were pleased to have been present that day, because they took a great interest in introducing the art of change-ringing where it was so little practised, and they hoped it would soon be in full swing where it had been neglected so long.

Two touches of Grandsire Triples were rung by the St. Albans ringers on handbells between the toasts, each touch being heartily applauded.

Various other toasts were given during the evening, the proceedings being of enjoyable character.

The Registrar General reports that 2513 births and 1390 deaths were registered in London last week. Allowing for increase of population, the births were 358, and the deaths 43, below the average numbers in the corresponding weeks of the last ten years. The annual death-rate per 1000 from all causes, which had been 19.0, 17.9, and 17.5 in the three preceding weeks, further declined last week to 17.2. During the first eleven weeks of the current quarter the death-rate averaged 18.3, and was 2.3 below the mean rate in the corresponding periods of the ten years 1877-86. The 1390 deaths included 113 from measles, 8 from scarlet fever, 16 from diphtheria, 66 from whooping-cough, 1 from typhus, 7 from enteric fever, 2 from ill-defined forms of continued fever, 20 from diarrhoea and dysentery, and not one from small-pox or cholera; thus, 233 deaths were referred to these diseases, being 3 above the corrected average weekly number.

On Wednesday morning, the Queen paid a visit to the Duchess of Cambridge at St. James's Palace. In the afternoon Her Majesty received a deputation of noble ladies, who presented the Women's Offering—seventy-five thousand pounds, subscribed by three millions of women. It was accompanied by an address, which Her Majesty graciously acknowledged. The Queen afterwards received numerous presents from foreign Sovereigns, as well as from all parts of the country, and after inspecting them with interest, thanked the donors.

CANON WIGRAM'S SERMON.

SIR,—May I venture to suggest that extracts from the excellent sermon in your issue of the 18th inst. should be printed in larger type, on a fly-leaf, and enclosed in a number of "THE BELL NEWS," or sold separately, as the principles laid down are so exceedingly sound, and would indicate so strongly the direction of reform in many belfries, were they hung, framed. I should be much obliged if you would ask, in your columns, some one to send me a lead of Canterbury Pleasure and Arnold's Victory with bob and single of each.

A. H. BASSANO.

THE LONG PEAL OF STEDMAN CINQUES AT BIRMINGHAM.

SIR,—Mr. Henry A. Hopkins expresses a wish that "this matter may be settled to the satisfaction of all concerned." That is impossible. If the peal is to be held as true, it will be a decision not satisfactory to Henry A. Hopkins' friend, Joseph Cattle, evidently. Mr. Hopkins lays claim to being the "first person in London that knew of the achievement." I take his own words. His friend Mr. Cattle wrote to inform him that it was good ringing throughout, but in the last course the bells were fired round. Now what is the meaning of this, Messieurs Cattle and Hopkins? If in the last course the bells "fired," how could that be "good ringing throughout?" I do not suppose that Mr. Cattle will be taken as any authority, or the letter he sends to his friend be regarded as of any consequence. But it seems strange that these clever people did not at the time make known the fact of this "firing-out." And upon that ground I say their statements at the present time should be very lightly esteemed. Mr. Cattle heard the bells "fired round." He at once relates to Henry A. that they "fired round," and for seven years they both lock this important secret of "firing-out" in the inmost recesses of their bosoms. Mr. Hopkins was the first person in London to hear of this "firing-out." But as he knows so well the idiosyncracies of his friend Cattle, may be he thought that Cattle himself had been "firing-out" just previously, and had got into some confusion, mixing up his own calling of a fireman with that of firing as applied to ringing. Whether the peal was "fired round" or not, it is not at all creditable to either Messrs. Cattle or Hopkins to have held their peace all this time. There is one resource open to the men of Birmingham. They can abandon their claims to regard their performance as a "peal," but republish it, calling it 9000 and odd "revolutions" of the bells. This suggestion will be thoroughly understood by Messrs. Cattle and Hopkins.

Birmingham, June 21st.

RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Monday, June 13th, the Annual Meeting of the Kent County Association was held at Tonbridge, the Gravesend and Swanscombe bands travelling thither in a waggonette. Leaving Swanscombe shortly after 5.30, and journeying to Gravesend where the local band was waiting, they proceeded to Meopham, where a halt was made for a few minutes, to condole with a member of the Gravesend band who was working there and unable to accompany them. Wrotham Hill being reached, a number of them walked down the hill to enjoy the beautiful valley. Wrotham Hill, by the way, is part of a range running from Shakespeare's Cliffe, Dover, through Kent into Surrey. At Wrotham another halt was made, and two members of the Association belonging to the Ash band joined the company. A proposition to ring there was negatived by some of the Wrotham ringers, who thought the time, 7.45, too early, so it was agreed to call coming back. Travelling onward through Boro' Green to Ightham, everybody got out and walked up a steep hill, about a mile and a half long. Having reached the top of the hill, where the waggonette was waiting, a long gentle descent through avenues of trees, which threw a grateful shade, the sun by this time making his power felt, brought them to the foot of Shipbourne Hill, up which they walked into the village. Here another stop was called to give the horses breathing time, and also to wash the dust out of the ringers' throats. By the kindness of the Vicar, who is an honorary member of the Association, they were permitted to ring on the bells, and also to look over the church. The church was built in 1879 by E. Cazalet, Esq., on the site of an old one, and consists of nave, transept, and chancel, the tower being at the intersection. At the west end of the nave are stalls for the ringers, who are thus enabled to take their places without disturbing the congregation. Ascending the belfry by the spiral staircase, an attempt was made for a 720 of Kent Treble Bob, but without success, so touches of that method, Bob Minor, and Grand-sire Minor, were rung to enable all to have a pull. Time being called, on they went to Tonbridge, getting there just in time to enable two Committee-men to attend the Committee. Service being held in the church at twelve, they all attended, and then went to the old Town Hall to dine. After dinner they went to the steeple, and rang touches of Grandsire Triples with other bands, and it being very warm, it was decided to have an hour on the river. Having had that, it was time to have tea, so they took a coffee house keeper by surprise, he not expecting to have sixteen thirsty souls wanting tea at a minute's notice. But he rose to the occasion, and tea was made and drank with very little delay, as the time for starting for home was more than up. Getting away from Tonbridge at 6.30, they went to Hadlow, and the constable stationed there having been stationed at Swanscombe, he was well known, and being in sight, a stoppage occurred in order to shake hands with him. On again, through East Peckham to Mereworth, where there being a steep hill, a walk was called for, then on to Wrotham. The ringers there being assembled, thought the time 9.10 rather too late to start ringing, and the visitors thinking so as well, an adjournment was made to the "Crown and Anchor," and the handbells being brought out, a merry half hour was passed, winding up with the company rising and singing the National Anthem with heads uncovered. On getting outside, it was discovered that the waggonette had gone on to climb Wrotham hill, so all had to walk it. The freight having been made up, and the horses having had a rest at the foot and top of the hill, started off, and home was reached about 11.30, everybody being pleased with the day's outing.

ST. MATTHEW'S, BETHNAL GREEN, LONDON.

The bells of the above parish church rang merry peals on Tuesday, June 21st, to announce, as numberless other peals were doing, the joyful news of the full completion of Her Majesty's Jubilee. The first peal (only humble set changes), starting at 7 a.m., consisted of the time honoured "Queens" after rounds, and then firing fifty times. One of the band, Mr. George Cecil, taking part in the ringing, as he did for the accession and coronation of Her Majesty. On those occasions, however, George Cecil was a hale and strong little man, but fifty years having been added to his life, finds him all the worse for the toiling of the past, and while expressing himself pleased to have the opportunity of again ringing at his old parish church, stated that it would be his last time, as his strength now fails him for such exertion.

BIRCHINGTON, KENT.—CELEBRATION OF THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE BY THE QUEX PARK BAND.

ON Tuesday, June 21st, the band met at the tower at eight o'clock. They commenced with a peal of Grandsire Triples, particulars of which will be found in the peal column, after which some good rounds on the twelve was rung, and at twelve o'clock the bells were fired fifty times, the number of years the Queen has reigned. At 1 o'clock the band, also the gardeners and employees on the Quex Estate, and several of the tradesmen, in all about thirty-five in number, were by the kind liberality of Mr. Cotton invited to a capital dinner at the "Powell Arms" Inn. The chair was taken by Mr. J. Cornford (head gardener), and the vice-chair by Mr. T. B. Reed. Ample justice was done to the good things provided. Dinner over, the Charman proposed the health of the Queen, which was heartily drank, and the National Anthem sung by all present. Then followed the health of the Prince and Princess of Wales and other members of the Royal family. The Chairman next proposed the health of Mr. Cotton and family, which was given with musical honours. Several songs and touches on the handbells were given by the band, and a very enjoyable time was spent. In the evening some good touches of Grandsire were brought round at the tower and a Royal salute of twenty-one fired on the bells, and at 8 o'clock the bells were lowered, the band going to their homes well pleased with having been successful in ringing a jubilee peal.

JNO. J. BRISTOW.

ROCHDALE AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The above Society held an intermediate meeting on Saturday, June 18th, at Healey church, when the Vicar was made an honorary member. After the business was transacted, the bells were rung by several mixed bands. The ringers wish through this journal to thank the Vicar and the churchwardens for the use of the bells and school.

A MUSICAL METHOD FOR EIGHT, TEN, AND TWELVE BELLS.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

XIII.—CONCLUSION.

In the foregoing papers is contained a full description and explanation of the new method which I have brought before the Exercise. An apology is due to the readers of these columns for the amount of valuable space that has been occupied in the minuter details of proof and composition, without which, however, a professedly exhaustive treatment of the subject would have been incomplete. Mr. Snowdon's Treble Bob is the only published attempt to deal thoroughly with the anatomy of a method, and the value of his mode of treatment has been so constantly brought home to me that I have endeavoured in the present papers to give, like him, the reasons for every step, although I am unable to approach his power of condensed expression. The soundness of this way of procedure cannot be disputed, for if it be argued that the deeper parts of such a subject come within the comprehension of but few, the answer is ready, that it is not necessary on their account to deprive of the fullest information those whose keener powers are sure to make them probe matters to the bottom. Till Mr. Snowdon wrote, no attempt had ever been made to bring the wonderful results of the work of successive composers within proper arithmetical laws. As a consequence of this, the writings of every previous author were surrounded, in the estimation of all but a few privileged masters of the art, with a halo of mystery, the more impenetrable that a partial explanation was generally given. Nor is the work that Mr. Snowdon began by any means completed. How few composers, for instance, in Stedman Caters or Cinques appear to have a clear comprehension of the requisite proof. Yet, although there are here certain circumstances which introduce special liability to falseness, the careful analysis of a course will bring every possibility under definite and absolute rules; and in no method is it safe, till the principles have been formulated and wholly grasped, to attempt abbreviated modes of proof.

Thus much, then, in vindication of the detailed explanations I have entered into in regard to "Duffield." As to the method itself, I do not propose again to go into an elaborate summary of its merits, for I will ask those whose interest has been aroused to once more peruse the two first articles of this series, when it will be gathered how far what was there indicated has been achieved. No other method, so far as I am aware, exists in which it is possible to keep the 6th, in addition to the bells above it, at home throughout a peal. The principle of thus making the 6th a fixed bell instead of, as in most other methods, the treble, must from a musical point of view be admitted to be sound. The beauty of continuous double dodging is likewise incontrovertible, as is also the advantage of never parting the heavy bells. It will therefore, I think, be freely conceded that the title of "A musical method" has been fairly justified; the intention being to meet a want the nature of which was fully set forth in the introductory paper. How long the method may be in becoming generally known and practised it is impossible to surmise, but I entertain no doubt that the intrinsic merits of the system will, in the present rapidly advancing state of the art, eventually bring it into notice. I should wish to be allowed again to disclaim any credit for the method as an "invention" of my own; I look upon it as the natural outcome of a careful enquiry into the defects of the even-bell systems generally. If any person with a knowledge of method building had had placed before them the four distinct conditions on which to set to work which were given in article No. II., it is most probable they would have arrived at an exactly similar result. For this reason I feel no diffidence in speaking strongly as to the musical and other qualities, nor in forecasting the ultimate acceptance of the method.

It has been a pleasure to learn how many bands have already rung a few courses, but as this is, to a good company, a very easy task from the simplicity of the work, it is not to my mind necessarily an indication that any have taken the method up in earnest, nor do I expect that such is likely to be the case at present. In the course of the year I hope to issue these papers in cheap pamphlet form, when the whole subject will be presented in a more concrete manner, freed from the disjointedness which is inseparable from all periodical publications. I am bold enough to believe that, as in Stedman is found the perfection of odd bell ringing, so in this new method, or in some kindred variation on the same basis, will be found the most musical and pleasing even bell system possible of attainment. I now leave the result of my studies in the hands of the Exercise with all confidence that the motto of "Excelsior," which in these days of progress is the resistless mainspring of every art, will not long allow our beautiful science to lag behind its fellows, and that new ideas will freely receive such consideration as they merit.

OTTERY ST. MARY, DEVON.

ON Thursday, June 16th, a dedication service took place at the parish church. The six lower bells have been re-hung, and two upper ones added. The work has been carried out by Mr. Stokes, of Woodbury, and the new bells were cast by Messrs. Warner and Sons. The bells are placed in the south tower, and the south transept has to be utilized as a ringing chamber, an arrangement which will we fear prove inconvenient alike to the ringers and congregation. The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. W. H. Metcalfe, and the Rev. A. Scott (curate), the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote (secretary of the Devon Guild), the Rev. A. A. Hunt, and Archdeacon Sanders, assisting, whilst the sermon was preached by the Rev. F. Coleridge, of Cadbury, who chose for his text, "I will accept you saith the Lord," Ezekiel xii. 27. The preacher spoke strongly of the improvements that were taking place in belfries, and the increased interest in the bells and bell ringers, which was being taken by clergy and laity; he urged ringers to rise to the full appreciation of the sacred character of their work, and asked them to try and be like a good bell—harmonious, true, with no flaw or crack in it, and with no uncertain and faulty ring about it. A public luncheon at which the Vicar presided, was given at the Town Hall, and after the service a Jubilee touch of Grand-sire Triples, composed by Miss E. Cruwys Sharland, of Rose Bank, Tiverton, was rung by members of the Tiverton branch of the Devon Guild. J. Grater, jun., 1; E. Munday (conductor), 2; T. Harvey, 3; R. Grater, jun., 4; L. Mackenzie, 5; J. Grater, 6; J. Babbage, 7; S. Hoare, 8. Several shorter touches were also rung, the weather proving too hot for any attempt at a peal. Some touches of Stedman Triples were rung on handbells on the vicarage lawn, where the Tiverton ringers were hospitably entertained by the Vicar. We hope before long to hear that a change-ringing society has been started in Ottery, and with such a peal of bells much pleasure to ringers and inhabitants will be sure to follow.

ST. MARTIN'S CHURCH, TIPTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

ON Jubilee day, June 21st, the ringers of the above church met in the tower at 7 a.m., to send their share of national joy from the bells of the above church with short touches of Grand-sire, etc., and firing. There was also a special service at 11 o'clock a.m. Dinner was also provided for nearly 400 of the aged of the parish, also tea for the school children, who were also presented with a Jubilee medal. The old folks were on their leaving the schools presented with a beautiful Jubilee plate. The ringers were not forgotten by the churchwardens; breakfast, dinner, and other refreshments were provided by them throughout the day. During the dinner of the aged, the band rang a quarter-peal of Grand-sire Triples (1260 changes). *H. Mills, 1; S. Jesson, 2; *E. Goodreads, 3; W. R. Small, 4; *A. Hill, 5; W. Pardoe, 6; G. Hughes (conductor), 7; *B. Starkey, 8. The above are all members of the society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford. The bells are now in good ringing order, they having been put in proper condition, with new gudgeons and brasses, and other repairs requisite, by the newly appointed tower-keeper, Mr. W. R. Small. The band would be pleased with a visit from any brother string. Practice night on Monday, 7.30 p.m. *Longest touch of Grand-sire.

A CURIOUS PEAL, OR RING OF BELLS.

THE city of Catania, a large seaport in the island of Sicily, lies at the foot of Mount Etna, at a distance of fifteen miles from the central crater of the huge volcano; being over two miles (10880 feet) high, and of nearly a regular slope from its summit to its foot resting on the sea, the apex of the cone appears to be much nearer when viewed from the city, than it really is, and at the times of active eruptions presents a grand and sublime, but withal a very terrifying spectacle to the inhabitants.

History records the destruction, or partial destruction of Catania by its overwhelming neighbour no less than fourteen times; at the present day many of its streets indeed are cut through solid lava to a depth of twenty to thirty feet, and the houses built on the rock and approached by stairs cut out of the lava, while the sea coast to the north is in many places, sheer, black horrid rocks of the all pervading material.

But the Catanians revenge themselves upon their dead and cold enemy, by quarrying and cutting him into shapely blocks, and trampling on him, or building their prisons, palaces for princes, and hovels for the lazzaroni; a massive breakwater to the harbour is in course of construction, and three thousand years ago the Grecians, who then held the eastern parts of Sicily, built them a modest theatre, capable of seating thirty-two thousand spectators, all of lava. But in the latter case the luxurious Hellenes coated, as was their custom (the shoddy and speculative builder being then unknown), the entire structure of the auditorium with slabs of many-hued marbles of Sicily, about one and a half inches in thickness.

About one-eighth of the circle of this enormous amphitheatre is still in excellent preservation, containing fragments of the great chair or throne sacred to the use of the governor of the province or city. The massive staircase and arched galleries that provided means of entrance to the auditorium, lesser galleries built on an inclination instead of with steps, for the use of the attendants and fighting beasts, aqueducts which conveyed, and still convey the cold, clear, mountain streams from Etna into and through the arena, and so to the sea, all stand as clear cut as on the day the mason placed them, for lava suffers nothing from the atmosphere in thousands of years.

The Cathedral of St. Agatha, too, is built upon the remains of a Greek temple dedicated to Bacchus. Descending a steep lava staircase immediately under the western porch, the visitor finds himself, by the aid of lantern, surrounded by cyclopean Græco-Romano masonry, many of the huge blocks of lava being of several tons weight each, and as far as can be seen, built without mortar, but exquisitely jointed. Especially noticeable are the semi-circular arches of about seven feet span, and three or four feet through, each arch being composed of but five blocks of suitable shape. In places, a frieze in basso-relievo, the figures about twenty-five inches high, representing the worship of the wine-God, is still very visible, showing the indestructible nature of the material. A clear cold stream from Etna's snowy sides runs through this, now, crypt, and there are remains of baths, one indeed being nearly perfect as the day whereas in it laved and purified his body, the last priest of the temple, previous to administering the rites of the rosy God, who was, doubtless, the remote ancestor of Sir Wilfrid.

Preserved too as mementos of those shadowy times, are sarcophagi baths, and querns or corn-mills, some of the latter very large, with a square socket cut deep in the running stone, for a wooden shaft or spindle to be driven by oxen; others, small affairs, suited to the strength of the women whose task it would be to grind the corn for the day's supply of bread to the household; the last have the running stone and handles, by which to grasp it, all cut out of one solid block of lava. The excessively hard nature of the material, combined with its extreme porosity, rendered it eminently fit for grinding purposes.

But, says Campanalogius, what has all this stuff to do with bells? Don't be impatient, my friend, the course end will turn up all right, presently.

As I said before, Catania has been many time a heavy sufferer from the effects of molten lava, and a few of these little fiascoes have occurred since the Roman see held sway in Sicily. As you know, Campanalogius, or should know, if you read your "Bell News" regularly (I mean buy it and read it, not borrow it and skim it, and so miss all the interesting bits), bells, or at least Church bells, were invented by Paulinus, Bishop of Campagna, about the eighth century, and it was quickly discovered that the ringing of bells was a powerful means of averting evil, that is, provided the threatened party duly paid the fees, a scale of which, graduated to suit smaller and greater calamities, was drawn up by a clever and aspiring lay brother (he eventually obtained the hat), who was serving as clerk in the Roman treasury.

Of course, the first time that Father Etna began kicking up a dust, and belching forth rivers of molten lava, the new remedy was tried, but with a by no means remarkable amount of success, as some 22000 people, with a corresponding amount of houses and lands, were destroyed upon this occasion. Still there was something to show as of the City Fathers who had actually paid the fees (out of the coal and wine dues), not one had suffered in person, although several of them whose property lay in the tract of the fiery streams had lost heavily in real estate.

After a time it was found that the efficacy of the remedy bore a certain fixed ratio to the rapidity with which the bells were rung; now as it is obvious that large bells cannot be rung very quickly, it was a fortunate as well as curious coincidence when it was discovered that the size of the bells was a matter of no moment whatever.

As no College Youths who could ring peals, two in hand, without calls, or Cumberlands who could ring Stedman four in hand, or even a solitary Keeble to knock about six in hand existed in those times, some other method of rapid manipulation had to be sought, and as it has ever been in the world's history that the occasion produced the man, so now a genius stepped forth from the ranks of mediocrity, and put no less than sixteen bells, of three or four inches diameter, upon the periphery of a wheel with the mouths extended outwards; then a spindle through the centre of the wheel, and a crank handle at one end of the spindle, with gudgeons to run in, behold a machine capable of striking sixteen hundred blows a minute, without any very great exertion upon the part of the conductor (and ringers), of the peal, surely enough, one would suppose, to stop the mightiest stream of lava that old Etna could pour forth.

The scale of fees was now re-constructed (and considerably enhanced), and the next eruption awaited with the calm fortitude of conscious power. It came, and a strong armed, but rather thick headed brother (he was only a tenor man), who could be trusted to stick to his post, was told off to perform on the crank, while the rest of the brethren busied themselves packing up all the portable property, in view of possible eventualities.

It was very unfortunate that the inventor of the wheel, or ring of bells, was but a self-taught genius, had he gone through the curriculum of the Crystal Palace school of Engineering, or been sufficiently advanced after he had passed the fifth standard, to have obtained a Whitworth Scholarship, he would have been acquainted with the laws of centrifugal force; which force acting upon the clappers of the bells, the faster the wheel was rotated, the more impossible it became for them to strike a single blow. The terror of the faithful but thick-headed brother intensified as the lava approached, and he strained every muscle and nerve to get some sound out of his machine, but it was not until the molten mass had nearly engulfed him that he dropped the crank and ran for his life, and then the bells as they gradually decreased in speed, struck a few blows.

The stream of lava was nearly cold, and as the building was situated on the edge of a deep valley, the destruction was stayed within a few yards of the ring of bells. Full credit was claimed for the stoppage, but a council was called to devise means to cause the bells to strike, be they revolved never so fast.

It has been shown by the historians, that Catania is the "besieged city of Æsop's writings, writings that were for many ages erroneously supposed to be mere fables. Richard Porson showed conclusively, after spending five consecutive days and nights in a Fleet Street tavern, that the Greek in the original does not justify the vulgar translation of "cobbler," as applied to the patriotic individual, who is responsible for the axiom that "there is nothing like leather"; on the contrary, this gentleman was in a large way of business as a currier and leather manufacturer, with a branch establishment at Bermondsey, and at the time of which I am now writing, a descendant still carried on the business. His tanyards lying in the southern suburbs had escaped damage, but as several thousands of people had been swallowed up, naturally a disturbance of trade resulted.

Having large stocks of leather on hand, and having in his mind his ancestor's lucky coup on the market when he succeeded in obtaining the contract to preserve the city walls from a tanning by covering them with his wares, he cudgelled his brains for a scheme to enable him to work his goods into the saving business. He at length conceived the idea of a sort of wreath or circular brush of leather, composed of a quantity of strips, the ends of which overhang and pointed to the centre, and of such a diameter that the ends just touched the bells as they revolved, thus causing every bell to strike an infinite number of blows in the course of one revolution. It would require an extended multiplication table to show how many blows to the minute could be struck, with the crank in the hands of an energetic ringer, one like F. E. Dawe, or Samuel Wood, for example.

There are no records existing of the actual amount of benefit obtained by this now perfected machine, but good reasons are extant for computing it to be at least equal in extent to that which has been gained by the use of the Hindoo praying cylinder.

However, new inventions continually thrust aside those of an earlier age, and during the last eruption, that of May 1886, a picture, or image of the Virgin Mary, was successfully made use of to divert the lava stream that was threatening to overwhelm the town of Nicolosi, situated some miles higher up the mountain side. Of course no stream of lava, of well regulated mind, would injure the likeness of a lady, be it a picture or image, whereas it might allow its native hot temper to so far get the better of it as to totally ignore the ring of bells.

Be that as it may, every church, chapel, and monastery, in and around Catania, contains just such a peal as I have tried to describe to you, used now I believe at certain portions of the regular services.

There you are, Campanalogus, there is the connection between lava and bells, that you were worrying about, and I hope you are satisfied. If not, I can't help it; it is much too hot here to try to write sense; sense requires a prodigious effort, rarely effective, while nonsense comes naturally forth. When the weather gets cooler, I will perhaps tell you something about some of the big bells of TRINACRIA.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

The fifth anniversary of this society was held at Lichfield on Saturday, June 18th. About fifty members were present from all parts of South Staffordshire. The steeples of the Cathedral, St. Mary's, and St. Michael's, were open, and various touches were rung during the afternoon and evening. Subscriptions were paid, and the Committee Meeting was held in the Cathedral belfry at 4 p.m. A special service was conducted in the Lady Chapel of the Cathedral at 5 p.m., by the Rev. Prebendary Scott, who gave an address to the ringers. Tea was served in the Coffee House at six, after which the General Meeting was held, the Rev. J. R. Keble taking the chair, in the unavoidable absence of the President, Archdeacon Iles. The report and balance-sheet were read and approved, and the Rev. C. H. Joberns was re-elected Hon. Treasurer for the ensuing year. The Rev. J. R. Keble and Mr. S. Reeves were re-elected Hon. Secretaries. Members of the society have rung during the past year two peals of Grandsire Caters, two of Stedman Triples, seven of Grandsire Triples, and twenty-five peals of Minor in eight various methods. The next meeting will be held at Tipton on October 1st.

RE-OPENING OF BELLS AT HARKSTED.

On Sunday, June 19th, the bells of this rural village were re-opened after having been rehung with new stocks, wheels, and gun-metal bearings, and put in good ringing order in memory of the Queen's Jubilee, the work being entrusted to Mr. H. Bowell, of Ipswich. The "go" of the bells is all that can be desired the local company being the first to handle the ropes. On Sunday, five members of the St. Mary-le-Tower society paid a visit to have a pull and hear the bells which four of the company had never heard before, and rang several 120's of Doubles. W. Lines, 1; H. Bowell, 2; I. Alexander, 3; J. Motts, 4; W. Motts, 5. Tenor 10 cwt.

GARGRAVE, YORKSHIRE.

The following additional letters have appeared in a local paper relative to the silence of the bells, mentioned in our issue of the 18th:—

"THE CHURCH BELLS.—Mr. Editor, Sir,—I can't agree with what Captain Preston says about the ringers being volunteers. We all know the handsome way in which the ringers are treated, and I think that the ringers ought to be on a level with them. No one would think of an organ blower, or the church cleaner, or the organist doing their work for nothing, and why should the ringers any more than these. If one is to believe one's ears, however, there are signs of the breach being healed. I for one hope that this may be the case and that the men will be well paid, as they richly deserve.—Yours truly, SUBSCRIBER."

"OUR SILENT BELLS.—To the Editor, Sir,—As I am the only person who has taken an active part in ringing the Church Bells of Gargrave, from the time they were first made a ring of six, I feel entitled to say a word on this subject. At the outset allow me to tender my thanks to your correspondent 'Subscriber' for first addressing you on the subject, and both to him and Captain Preston for their kind expressions concerning myself, though in any glory there may be my comrades in the work have an equal share with me. Of course we all sympathise with the churchwardens on the question of Church finance, but with that we have nothing to do further than to remark that, as in this case, so in ours, the vicar is the only one who has stood by us from first to last. Captain Preston says, 'The ringers were the people who, when we had only six bells, grumbled that they were unable to keep up with the ringers of other churches, and when it was said that the ringing of the bells could not be kept up, and that the ringers, when the novelty ceased, would allow them to fall into disuse, the very idea was scouted.' Now the ringers can't accept the 'grumbled,' but are quite ready to admit that they were first to moot the idea of the bells being increased to eight, and in doing so they consider they have nothing to be ashamed of, but rather the reverse. And so far as novelty is concerned I contend that the ringers are the very persons with whom the novelty has not ceased, for, during the first few years we were frequently visited in the belfry by some one or other of the principal residents, and these visits were conducive of very good results. This however, has all ceased, and we have been left to fight our way as best we could. Nobody has come near us with a word of encouragement or advice, and had the novelty not remained, I think there would have been nothing worth fighting for. By the sentence I have quoted I take it that Captain Preston means one of two things,—either (1) that if we had at present only six bells they would be rung voluntarily; or (2) that if we had at present only six bells the churchwardens would be willing to pay for the ringing of them. Now suppose it is to be the former, is there any guarantee that this would be the case? or if the latter, is it at all likely that they would be rung for less than £12? Beside all this the ringers have many things to complain of beside the "hitch" alluded to, but as these have already been pretty well aired privately they need not be mentioned here. I am, however, strongly in favour of the machine and its attendant independence, though I doubt whether volunteers could be found for that. In conclusion, allow me to say that if the churchwardens had met the ringers as they were requested, to talk the matter over (and however short of funds they were that need have cost them nothing), I doubt not an arrangement would have been come to, and this (so-called) strike, and the consequent silence of the bells would not have been heard of, for I assure you, sir, that throughout the affair we have been totally misunderstood. I may just add that this letter is not written in any offensive spirit. I trust, sir, you will find a corner for it in your pages, and believe me to remain, respectfully yours, J. McKELL.—Gargrave, June 14th."

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

May I ask those members of the above Association whose subscriptions for the year 1886-7 ending at Whitsuntide last are still in arrear, to forward the same at once, if they wish to continue their membership. Circulars to this effect have already been sent to them, but have apparently not reached their destination. The subscription for the current year 1887-8 became payable (see rule vii.) on Whit-Monday last.

T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

WISHFORD, WILTS.

A new fourth bell is being hung in Wishford tower by Mr. T. Blackburn, who is repairing the fittings of the rest of the peal. The new bell was cast by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and is inscribed "The Jubilee Year of the Queen's reign, V.R., 1887." The other bells were cast by James Burrough, of Devizes, in 1751. The tenor is inscribed "Finis coronat opus."

WOBURN, BEDS.—DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT OF ROUND-RINGERS.

[Communicated.]

Ever since the introduction of scientific change-ringing was made in Woburn in 1865, there has been on the part of a few individuals, some hostile feeling shown to the practitioners of the noble art, and on several occasions this hostility has been openly manifested by mean and petty acts of annoyance, such as removal of stays, sanding the gudgeons, etc. The local company of change-ringers met on the evening of the 20th (Jubilee Eve), and after a short practice, made arrangements for the morrow's ringing to commence at eight o'clock in the morning, and leaving the bells up. About four o'clock in the morning, a ladder was procured and the window of the belfry forced, and six persons commenced bad rounds for about half an hour, leaving the bells up and sneaking away. Just after eight o'clock on the morning of the Jubilee day, the local company ascended the tower and struck a well executed touch of 352 of Bob Major, but after the dirty trick of the morning, rang again no more on that day. The Rev. W. W. C. Baker, rector of Milton Bryan, very kindly congratulated Mr. C. Herbert upon the success that had attended his efforts to promote change-ringing in the county of Bedford, and assured him that he would stand by him in the cause. Mr. W. Chibnall and other ringers of Aspley Guise, near by, also accompanied the change-ringers to the tower, and strongly protesting against the mean and petty harassing tricks of idle men, devised only for the purpose of hindering the good work which was progressing, declared their intention of supporting the practice of change-ringing in the neighbourhood. Strange it is that these round-ringers should say how much they like ringing, when they are never seen at the tower on a practice night, and although repeatedly implored to come and join like men, they never turn up, and should the company lack one of the required number to make eight, they would delight in keeping aloof, however much pressed to take part. There is no doubt but that the progress made in change-ringing in the neighbourhood, by members of the Bedfordshire Association has again revived the old jealousy with which its introduction was met some twenty years ago, and Mr. Herbert being the Hon. Secretary of the Association, is singled out for petty personal annoyance. Mr. Thomas North, F.S.A., in his work on "The Church Bells of Bedfordshire," says at page 32:

"In 1801 we find a record of the society of College Youths ringing 5040 of Grandsire Triples at Leighton Buzzard, but it is evident that the love of change-ringing had then waned in Bedfordshire. Since that time, and until quite recently, the bells of the county—speaking generally—have been much and sadly neglected. Many of the rings have been allowed to fall into a deplorably dilapidated condition. But, as it may be accepted as an axiom that whenever real ringing is unknown, dirt and neglect of all matters connected with the bells and belfry reign supreme, it is satisfactory to know that a Bedfordshire Association of change-ringers has recently been formed. It has been originated mainly by the exertions of Mr. Charles Herbert, of Woburn, who has spared neither time or energy in endeavouring to bring about a better state of things in the belfries of his county. Being himself an enthusiastic ringer, he has imbued others with a love for bell music, and also by inculcating the proper use of bells as ornaments of the Church, he has enlisted—as he well deserves to do—the sympathy and co-operation of very many of the clergy and gentry of Bedfordshire in the welfare of the new society, which will, it is hoped, be the means of reviving that love for change-ringing which we have seen was so well understood here two hundred years ago." Comment is needless.

THE JUBILEE DAY AT SALISBURY.

During this day the bells at St. Thomas, St. Martin's, St. Edmund, and St. Paul's, were rung, and the ringers dined at the public dinner in the Market Place. After the first pull at St. Thomas's at 6.30 a.m., the following members of the city company were photographed in a group outside the tower: Messrs. T. Blackburn, C. A. Clement, J. R. Jerram, W. M. Lush, C. Gaisford, G. Devonport, W. Higham, and J. Short, of St. Thomas's; and Messrs. W. W. Gifford, W. E. Tyde-man, H. D. Adams, and A. W. Barquis, of St. Martin's. The photo is a very good one, and was taken by Messrs. Witcomb and Co., Catherine Street. An attempt at a peal of Grandsire Triples was made at St. Martin's on Tuesday, June 21st. It proved abortive after ringing nearly half of it.

OPENING OF THE JUBILEE BELLS AT ST.
SAVIOUR'S, BACUP.

The above bells were formally opened on Monday, June 20th. They were set in full swing a little before nine o'clock by the Christ Church ringers, who rang several touches on them. A. L. Hardman, 1; J. Hardman, 2; Z. Lord, 3; A. Chew, 4; J. Smith, 5; W. Smith (conductor), 6; A. White, 7; W. Ormerod, 8. The dedication service was commenced at 9.30, the preacher being the Rev. H. W. Jones, of Ramsbottom. Immediately after the service, the Newchurch company entered the belfry, and rang 504 of Grandsire Triples, taken from Holt's ten-part peal. G. Pickup (conductor), 1; G. Harrison, 2; H. Nutter (Ramsbottom), 3; T. N. Pickup, 4; G. B. Taylor, 5; G. Lord, 6; J. L. Stott, 7; J. Kershaw, 8. Then followed the ringers from Waterfoot Church, who rang 720 of Plain Bob. G. Bolton (conductor), 1; W. Maden, 2; J. Ashworth, 3; G. E. Whittaker, 5; W. Whittaker, 6. The ringers were then entertained by the churchwardens to a first-class dinner, over thirty partaking of the things provided. After dinner, the ringers returned to the belfry and rang Taylor's bob-and-single peal of Grandsire Triples (5040 changes), which was recorded in our last week's issue. After the ringing of this peal, the ringers adjourned to the "George Inn," where a jovial evening was spent, the chair being taken by James Ashworth, and the vice-chair by Mr. W. Mitchell. Songs and recitations were given by those present, and selections were played upon the handbells. Votes of thanks were passed to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. G. Oliver, the bell-hanger, and to the Churchwardens, and bell committee. Great praise has been bestowed on Mr. Oliver for the manner in which he has carried out the work, by the various ringers from different parts of the neighbourhood, and they are described by the ringers as being well hung, and of good tone. The bells will be rung to-morrow, when a special sermon will be preached by the Vicar.

QUINTON, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

Her Majesty's Jubilee was celebrated here in true old English fashion. Months ago the landowners of the district had determined that the bells of the parish church, which had so long been in an unpealable condition, should undergo a complete restoration, and lend their aid in the general rejoicing and celebration of this auspicious event. The services of a band of skilled ringers under the leadership of that well-known conductor, H. Bastable, were obtained from Birmingham by Mr. T. C. Hiatt, of Upper Quinton, and in order that the day's ringing might start early, they took up their quarters in Quinton the night previously. At early dawn the village was astir, and the ringers after a quiet walk in the fresh morning air, and viewing the roasting of a fine young ox, with other preparations for the day's feasting, at the stroke of six once more gladdened the ears of the inhabitants by the sound of their beloved bells. Ringing for service and at short intervals took place throughout the day, and besides bringing round two 720's, which will be found in our miscellaneous column, the ringers performed several 120's of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, touches of Plain and Treble Bob Minor, with the usual amount of firing, rounds, and cross changes. The ringers feel that they cannot speak too highly of the liberal hospitality extended to them by Mr. T. C. Hiatt, and the parishioners generally. Their every comfort was evidently most carefully studied, and they will ever look back to their entertainment at Quinton as one of their most pleasurable experiences. It may be mentioned that the work of restoration, which included an entirely new frame, new fittings, and re-tuning, has been carried out by Mr. James Barwell, of Birmingham, in such a thorough manner as to make the bells in every way an easily handled and enjoyable ring of six.

SEDGLEY, STAFFORDSHIRE.

On Tuesday, June 21st, the Queen's Jubilee was celebrated in a right royal fashion by the ringers. The bells having been raised in peal at 6 a.m. the local company rang short touches of Grandsire Triples until eight o'clock, and then a service was held. A 5040 was started for, but something being wrong with the tenor it came to grief after 1800 changes had been rung, in 1 hr. 6 m. ns. John Goodman, 1; David Bruce, 2; William Mills, 3; Samuel Bunn, 4; William Johnson, 5; Robert Schofield (conductor), 6; Joseph Devenport, 7; Albert Screen and John Flavell, 8. Tenor 19 cwt 3 qrs. Mr. William Johnson is instructor to this company, and hails from Darlaston.

J. W. ROWBOTHAM.—We think such an explanation hardly necessary.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 2, 1887.

THE discussion about the Birmingham long peal of Stedman Cinques after such a long interval becomes painful in the extreme. Whether the writer of the letter casting doubt upon its authenticity was anxious to immortalise his name, or to gain an unenviable notoriety, we know not, but whatever object he had in view, we think he may be complimented upon the acquisition of the latter possession. The letter from three gentlemen who took part in the peal, which appears in this number of "THE BELL NEWS," will doubtless be considered satisfactory and conclusive by the Exercise at large.

The right of criticism upon any ringing performance is not to be questioned, but it is absolutely necessary that such right should be exercised only at a proper and reasonable time. And seven years and upwards is rather beyond the period which is considered reasonable for a discovery of the truth or falsehood of any performance. It would be a pertinent question to ask of Mr. Cattle why all this time he kept quiet the allegations he now makes. As a writer plainly hinted, there must be some reason for this. The question is one which ought to be answered without any reserve or equivocation. Until he assigns the real reason for his long silence, his action in the matter will appear something very like contemptible, and whether the peal is worth anything or not, his position will not be materially altered.

These attempts to blacken and destroy the prestige of good performances cannot be too greatly discouraged by ringers. Let us have criticism as sharp and acute as possible, and when it is necessary to speak the truth, even at the sacrifice of a lengthy performance, let the truth be uttered. But it should be uttered at the time, and questioned in the light and by the aid of the memory when green and fresh. There is no trouble to do this; no complicated mode to be adopted with reference to the publication of any such criticisms. The doings of the Exercise are circulated week by week through every quarter of the globe, and full opportunity to its youngest member to ventilate his grievances and his opinions is given. There is not, so far as we can see, the least shred of an excuse for this charge against the Birmingham peal being nursed so long. A limit must be placed upon such gossiping statements, or else the spirit of envy or bitterness, or something worse, will be able at any period to invent statements inimical to other performances which we at the present time regard as clever, and depend upon their genuineness.

This week Mr. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD completes those chapters which for several weeks have interested our readers, and what may be considered his valedictory address on "DUFFIELD" may be read in another column. We do not think that any apology is due from him on account of the space in this journal which his observations have occupied; in fact our readers will rejoice that the subject under treatment has been dealt with in such a lucid manner. Those who prefer not to practise the method will not be able to plead ignorance of its principles unless it be they who never by any means purchase a copy of this paper, and are content to remain ignorant of all ringing matters which are going on around them. The author of "Duffield" has in his treatment of the subject brought several important facts prominently before the Exercise, and has also exposed more than one favored error which has hitherto been adhered to tenaciously. By his researches we find the sixth bell divested of a certain amount of power which in the minds of many composers it has always enjoyed. Thus we learn that that bell "her extent wrong and right," ought not to be regarded always as a sine qua non of musical composition, but in many instances the reverse. Mr. HEYWOOD is evidently well acquainted with what is known in music as counterpoint and harmony, and this knowledge has enabled him to give in his papers the best lessons we have ever read or heard upon musical composition as applied to the construction of peals. It is with satisfaction we read that the talented author intends to re-issue his remarks in pamphlet form, and as we have been interrogated more than once as to the possibility of such a determination on his part, we are pleased to find that the wishes of our readers in this respect will be fulfilled. We hope Mr. HEYWOOD will not yet be content to lay down his pen. But while we give vent to such a hope, it ought to be borne in mind that such work is not of a light or easy character. To perform the task effectually demands time and patience, not always to be secured. And this perhaps is the chief cause why we are not not treated oftener to a knowledge of the researches of those gentlemen who, like Mr. HEYWOOD, have now and again taught and interested us.

THE ST. JAMES' SOCIETY, LONDON.—THE JUBILEE PEAL AT ST. CLEMENT DANES, STRAND.

On Thursday, June 16th, the ringers of the above peal were invited to supper at "The Shakespeare" Hotel, Wych Street, Strand, the meeting house of the Society, by Herbert Hayes Twining, Esq., who took the chair, and has been churchwarden for three successive years. After ample justice had been done to the inner man, the Chairman proposed the health of the Queen and Royal Family. A course of Grandsire Caters was then rung on the handbells by Messrs. Weatherstone, Haworth, French, Mitchell, and George. The Rector, the Rev. J. Lindsay, D.D., ex-churchwardens and other gentlemen were present, one of them remarking how pleased he and his friends were to be at such a meeting of the parochial ringers, especially as he and some of his friends could remember when boys, more than forty years ago, listening to the beautiful peal of bells at St. Clement Danes.

The Chairman in response said he was very gratified to be present and to be in company with men whom he was sure were above the average, both in intellect and strength, when they could ring such a long peal as 5147 changes, in three hours and twenty-five minutes, at the first attempt. There was much more applause when the Chairman announced his intention of placing in the ringing-chamber a tablet to record the fact that a jubilee peal had been rung during his wardenship, to commemorate the fiftieth year of Her Majesty's reign. Altogether a most enjoyable evening was spent, finishing up with some more handbell ringing, and songs by Messrs. French, George, etc.

CANTERBURY PLEASURE AND ARNOLD'S VICTORY.—Mr. A. H. Bassano is very much obliged for the prompt answers to his enquiry for leads in these methods.

LINDFIELD, SUSSEX.

For upwards of 200 years the old tower of this church has been the home of a ring of five bells, dating from 1573 to 1682, the tenor weighing about 18 cwt. It was always hard work to ring anything in the way of changes upon the bells, owing to the long draught (the ropes hanging to the floor of the church), and also the bells not being tucked up. For several years the question of rehanging and augmenting the peal had again and again been raised, but the necessary funds could not be obtained. At length, however, C. E. Kempe, Esq., churchwarden of the parish, gave his attention to the matter, and followed up his suggestion by offering to give three treble bells, costing about £100, providing the parishioners responded sufficiently to have the whole peal rehung, and if necessary to recast any of them. A general meeting was called in January to consider what steps should be taken to celebrate the Jubilee. Various schemes were brought forward, viz: A general feast for all, purchasing allotment grounds (about four acres), planting of trees in the village, and on the large common, erecting a Town Hall and Free Library in the village, and the church bell scheme as stated above. The whole of these ideas met with general approval, except the bell movement, which fell through at the time. Several weeks afterwards, however, Mr. Kempe called another meeting of the inhabitants, and that gentleman having in the meantime obtained plans from Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, was able to fully explain what really ought to be done to the bells, so that they should be a credit to the parishioners and a pleasure to ringers to ring them. On this occasion hearty support was given to the movement, Wm. Sturdy, Esq., of Pax Hill Park, offering to pay the expense of recasting the old tenor, she being condemned as a bad bell, and very soon subscriptions and promises of support came in from all sides. Nevertheless the spirit of opposition crept about, and a certain section thought that it would not be advisable to interfere with the old tenor, for various reasons, which need not be repeated here, as they were for the most part trivial; however, on Mr. Sturdy hearing that the Lindfield folk were so attached to the bell, that gentleman most handsomely said he would give them an entirely new tenor, costing £115. The work was then put into Messrs. Taylor's hands; the five bells were taken down, four of them sent to Loughborough to be tuned, and the old tenor remaining on the floor of the church. During the past few weeks, the work of putting in the new timbers, etc. to carry the frame has been completed by Mr. Anscombe, builder, of Lindfield. The bells have been hung five on a level in a iron frames, and three above. They were rung for the first time on Jubilee day, by the local ringers; in the morning with rounds, and in the afternoon the first peal was rung on them by members of the Sussex County Association, as reported in the peal column last week. It is the unanimous opinion that they are a splendid peal, and the ease with which they can be rung reflects great credit on the contractors. The ringing chamber has been raised, and when another floor is put in under the bells, and deadened, it will be better, as the volume of sound is rather too much to hark the calling.

JUBILEE DAY AT LINDFIELD.

Lindfield was early astir on the eventful morning of the 21st, putting the finishing touches to the decorations which were very profuse and tasty. A splendid archway of evergreens, occupying the site of the old toll gate in the centre of the village, had an imposing appearance, bunting was flying from nearly every house in the little township, "The Queen, 50 not out" met the eye on entering the village by the pond. At 5 o'clock a.m. a smith's salute was given on the anvils and was repeated at 1 o'clock. The new bells were rung in rounds by the local ringers for the morning service, which was conducted by the vicar, the choir singing the National Anthem as a processional. The church was crowded. The old Lindfield blind organist, Mr. Thos. Creser, played the Coronation Anthem as a voluntary in his usual excellent style; despite the old gentleman's age he is still a first-rate performer on the organ. After service the bells again pealed forth, and the congregation marched in procession, headed by the Brighton Drum and Fife and Bugle Band to the common, where trees were planted by Miss Sturdy and Master Dudley Sampson. An excellent luncheon was provided, to which about 700 sat down, and later on a free tea to all parishioners. A long programme of sports was gone through, including a donkey race, which was very amusing, and a two mile steeplechase, which was won in capital style by Manvill, who ran well throughout. Mr. Sturdy gave an ox to be roasted whole, and this was cut up and given away during the evening.

ABOUT THE COSTER.—Many of you have seen a costermonger, and knows that he sells vegetables and fruit in the streets from a small cart. He is, in short, a kind of roving greengrocer. The term, however, was originally used of apple sellers only, costard being an English word, and meaning a large apple. It is, of course, easy to see that besides trading in apples, he would soon learn to sell other fruits also, and then vegetables.—From Little Folks Magazine for July.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

WILTSHIRE BELFRIES.

SIR.—The correspondent who sent you an account of Aldbourn bells last week omitted to give the inscription on the tenor. As it is rather important, I give it here: In tonat e celis vox campanae Michaelis, Deus propicius esto diaboli Ricardi Goddard quondam de Upham, Elizabeth et Elizabeth uxorem ejus ac diaboli o' im liberorum et parentum suorum qui hanc campaniam fieri fecerunt, anno dui MCCCCXVI. This inscription is in old English black letter. The bell is 48 inches in diameter and weighs nearly 20 cwt. With regard to the sixth bell, may I ask your correspondent whether the last word but one is not "pussima," not "dulcima," which would not make sense. I cannot even find such a word as the latter in the Latin language.

J. R. JERRAM.

W. A. CLARKE'S VISIT TO THE WEST OF ENGLAND.

SIR.—We observe in the interesting account of Mr. William A. Clarke's visit to the West of England it is stated that the grand and heavy peal of eight in Wells Cathedral were rehung by us in 1877. This is not the case. The recasting of the 7th and tenor bells was executed by us but the hanging was done by a west country firm. We may inform your correspondent that we did new hang the peal of eight at Glastonbury as well as add two new trebles to complete the octave and recast the tenor.

JOHN TAYLOR & Co.

ST. MARTIN'S, SALISBURY.

SIR.—Seeing in last week's issue of your paper that the bells of St. Martin's Sarum were ringing on June 18th in honour of the battle of Waterloo, I, as one of the ringers of that steeple, beg to state that the person who wrote the paragraph must have been misinformed, as the bells were only ringing for the usual practice, which takes place every Saturday evening.

C. A. CLEMENTS.

THE LONG PEAL OF STEDMAN CINQUES AT BIRMINGHAM.

SIR.—I think your correspondent "Fair Play" (who I presume is ashamed of his name), might have been a little less sarcastic in his remarks. I don't know who he is, but I question very much whether he is one of the gentlemen to whom I appealed to in my last letter. "Fair Play" asks my friend Mr. Cattle and myself "What is the meaning of this (he alludes to the ringing being good throughout), with the exception of the last course which was fired round." Surely he cannot be so devoid of common sense as not to be able to understand it. I may inform him that I gave the letter word for word as it is written, so if it is not explicit enough for "Fair Play" he must blame the writer not me. He goes on to say "I do not suppose that Mr. Cattle will be taken as any authority, or the letter he sends to his friend be regarded as of any consequence." I can only say, as far as he is individually concerned, he is quite at liberty to please himself. I am content to leave that part of it to those who I consider are more capable of judging than "Fair Play," whether Mr. Cattle is an authority or not. As regards "locking this important secret in the inmost recesses of my bosom," your correspondent is entirely mistaken. I first made this known at a College Youths Meeting and in the presence of the late Mr. Haley the same evening as I received the letter from Mr. Cattle, I told them it was a rough coming home. I certainly did not know until recently that the "firing" was of so serious a nature. This has been no secret ever since, as they can testify. In conclusion allow me to say that I think your correspondent's letter is anything but to the point, but simply one mass of sarcasm from beginning to end. I must now decline to hold any further discussion on the subject, but leave it to those who are as well acquainted with this matter as myself.

H. A. HOPKINS.

SIR.—We beg to submit to you the result of a communication between us the undersigned in respect to the unwarrantable and untruthful assertions made by Mr. Cattle in connexion with the above subject. We almost feel too disgusted to reply to all his shifty and evasive remarks, but we are unanimous in stating that the peal in question is worthy of recording. We should have thought that the explanation given by Mr. Thomas a few weeks ago (who is secretary to the St. Martin's company), would have been sufficient to have established the honour of the band and the confidence of the remaining few who were led to doubt the accuracy of its performance by one who has gained for himself such an unenviable position as Mr. Cattle. We hope this letter will be accepted by our friends, and trust we have not lived too long for its contents to be doubted.

WILLIAM HALLSWORTH.

CHARLES HENRY HATTERSLEY.

A GOOD IDEA.

SIR.—Having been a reader of "THE BELL NEWS" since its commencement, I have seen many subjects concerning bells, ringing, and ringers, discussed in its pages, but never a word upon the branch contained in my letter, though I have often thought it would be exceedingly useful where it could be carried out. Considering the great difficulty experienced in many places in keeping up a good company, I have often wondered the reason why gentlemen, clergymen, and tradesmen, who are ringers and employers of labour, do not gather into their employment men of good character, and who are ringers, thus avoiding the difficulty and disappointment often experienced in teaching young hands. In nearly all places the clergyman if not an employer of labour himself, has influence with local employers, and might use that influence to get good ringers imported. Then again various mechanics, etc., being ringers, knowing situations of work, might intimate the same to the Art, by which means hands could be made up, and ringers taken from idleness to usefulness in the art, and bands made up to further proficiency, and saving much time, trouble, and anxiety, I do not think it could be practicable in all cases, but might in many, but I have thrown out the idea in hopes that some one more able will take the matter up and prepare a plan, so that "THE BELL NEWS" could be used more extensively on an enlarged scale. I have known several young men this year that would gladly have migrated to ringing districts if such information could have been conveyed to them.

EAST ANGLIA.

BICKINGTON, DEVON.

The three bells of this parish have just been rehung and a new treble bell added by Mr. Harry Stokes, church bell-hanger, of Woodbury, who has put in new oak beams and floor, and hung the four bells in a new oak frame with new fittings, and fixed the Ellacombe chiming apparatus. The new bell was cast by John Warner and Son, London, and was dedicated by Archdeacon Earle at the service that was held at the unveiling of a beautiful carved oak reredos, the gift of the Vicar, the Rev. W. Smith.

WELLINGBOROUGH, NORTHANTS.—THE JUBILEE.

In addition to the hearty celebration of the Jubilee of Queen Victoria by means of dinners to the old folk, teas to children, trade's procession, and general decoration and illumination of the town, Wellingborough will have a permanent and practical memorial of the "year of Jubilee" in the new chimes which were set in motion on the 20th inst. Owing to one or two little defects the start was not a good one, but these were remedied by the afternoon, and all worked smoothly and well when the second barrel of seven tunes was played over at 3 p.m. Old inhabitants have pleasant recollections of the ancient chime machine with its quaint six-bell tunes, but the new carillons playing on the full peal of eight are vastly superior, and will be a continual source of pleasure and delight. Mr. W. Woolston is the kind donor of the chiming machine. There was a special thanksgiving service at the parish church on Monday evening June 20th. The bells were rung instead of chimed for this service and again as the congregation left the church. The advent of Jubilee Day was announced by a "midnight peal" commencing with the "Queen's change" punctually on the stroke of twelve. At 6 o'clock on Tuesday morning the ringers "pulled off" for an "opening peal." Shortly before 7 o'clock the bells were "fired" fifty times in honour of the fifty year's reign of our Gracious Queen. The ringing (interspersed with firing of 21 guns at intervals) was continued during the day, the ringers being handsomely remunerated by the Jubilee Committee.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

ST. MARTIN'S CLOCK, BELLS, AND CHIMES.

It has been suggested to us that as St. Martin's, Birmingham, has lately received some attention, the following brief account of the clock, bells and chimes therein, taken from the Midland Counties' Herald of May 19, 1859, will not be inappropriate:—

When, at the Easter Vestry Meeting for St. Martin's parish, the Rev. Dr. Miller, the rector, alluded in congratulatory terms to the completion of the new clock, and the renovation of the bells and chimes, as having followed upon the restoration of the tower and spire of the venerable mother church of Birmingham, he only uttered sentiments which, we are quite sure, will find an echo in the breast of every native of the town, to whatever religious sect or political party he may belong. The clock contributes very materially to the convenience of the public both by day and night, while the music of the bells and chimes awakens so many associations, that it is listened to with pleasure at all times and all seasons. For confirmation of this opinion we may recall to the recollection of our readers the zeal with which the project for renewing the one and rendering the other efficient was taken up, and the readiness with which the necessary funds were contributed. The friends of the movement met for the first time at the Public Office, on the 31st of March in last year, and, including a donation of £20 from the Mayor, the sum of £200 was subscribed on that occasion. A few days later a committee, of whom Mr. Morris Banks was chairman, and Mr. W. B. Mappleback, honorary secretary, was appointed to canvass the borough, and by April 16th the contributions amounted to £550, some further additions being made at a subsequent period. A very strong and natural desire having been expressed in many quarters that the bells should be ready to ring out a merry peal on the occasion of Her Majesty's visit to open Aston Hall and Park, an estimate of Messrs. Mears and Son to supply the framework and other appliances was accepted, and that loyal object, as our readers are aware, was happily attained. Meanwhile the response to the appeal made by the committee was so liberal and spontaneous that they determined to incur the expense of providing an illuminated clock in the tower of the church, and of repairing the chimes. Various estimates for the work were sent in, and that of Messrs. Smith and Sons, the eminent clock makers, who offered to perform the whole for £360 was accepted. After some delays, which were quite unavoidable, the undertaking has been carried out to the unqualified satisfaction, we believe of the committee, who placed the fullest reliance, and, as the event has shown, justly so, in the integrity as well as ability of that firm. The subscribers and their friends will be invited, as early as possible, to inspect the results, so far as the interior of the sacred edifice are concerned, but we may supply a few details for the information of such persons as may be unable to avail themselves of the opportunity.

It will be proper to observe, in the first place that the committee, from a praiseworthy desire to discharge their duties in a satisfactory manner, resolved to obtain a clock of the highest quality and best construction. The lighting of the several faces was regarded as a great desideratum, but it was found impossible to supply it in the usual way without endangering the structure, and some modifications were accordingly adopted. Messrs. Smith and Sons have introduced some novelties of their own into the construction of the dials, and in the mode of illumination. The consequence is that the numerals and hands are remarkably distinct, and the time may be easily ascertained at a greater distance than would be otherwise possible. The dials are secured in wrought-iron drums, which contain the gas lights; but as those individuals who care to incur the trouble, may form their own judgment on this point, we will proceed to give a brief description of other parts of the horological apparatus. The frames, we may observe, are massive, and so constructed that, while giving all the necessary length of barrel for lines, the upper portion is considerably narrowed. We understand the advantages of this contrivance to be that all the arbours are reduced in length, while accuracy and strength are thus obtained without any increase in the diameter of the pivots, and the friction is greatly lessened. The frames, moreover, are so constructed, that particular works may be removed for cleaning without disturbing the whole. Each of the bosses or bearers is fitted and secured with screws, and all the bosses and wheels are of gun metal of the same composition as that used in the manufacture of cannon. The large wheels are twenty-four inches in diameter. The escapement is on the principle of Graham's dead beat, the same as is generally used for first-class regulators or astronomical clocks. It has moveable flanges, consisting of parts of a turned solid steel hoop secured by steel bolts and screws so constructed that the flanges may be removed or adjusted to the greatest nicety. The pendulum rod is of prepared pine, about fourteen feet long, coated and finished with polish. It is set in beat by a traversing screw with large nuts, and it has also a small regulating sliding weight. The ball is we believe the heaviest which has yet been applied to any turret clock at present completed. It is a sphere; this form being recommended by Messrs. Smith and Sons as the best, on account of its being less affected than others by draughts of air, as well as more steady in its motion. The striking hammer weighs fifty-four pounds, and is lifted from the second wheel, bringing out the tone of the fine old tenor bell in good style. The four quarter hammers are lifted from a gun-metal barrel, in which are secured forty conical shaped steel pins working into the tails of the hammer levers, which are steeled and tempered and partly hollowed to suit them. The times of striking, and quarter trains, which have two flies, are regulated by altering the angle of the moveable fans or sails. There is also attached to the movement of the clock, a contrivance to turn on the gas as well as for the discharging of the chime barrel, which is placed in the centre of the clock room, after the quarters. Every three hours the chime barrel is released, and plays on twelve bells one of seven old favourite tunes. The truth and accuracy of the workmanship generally, is proved by the fact that although the clock goes over eight days with once winding, the motive power, or going weight, is not much more than one-third the weight of the pendulum. The dials are connected with the clock in the ordinary way, by means of bevel wheel and universal joints. The dial-motion work is large, and all of gun-metal.

As regards the dials themselves, we have to add that they are of different sizes. The old ones were thought sufficiently large for the east and west sides of the tower, and they have accordingly been retained with some embellishments. The diameter of both is six feet; while the diameter of the one on the south or Smithfield side, is nine feet, exclusive of the gilt moulding which surrounds it. The adoption of this enlarged scale was a very judicious step on the part of the committee, owing to the wide extent of the district which it is specially intended to accommodate. The remaining dial on the north side is only eight feet in diameter, and had the committee been desirous of increasing its dimensions, they would have been precluded by the window immediately underneath. Such a restriction did not exist on the south side. The figures on the north dial are thirteen inches in length, and one inch and three quarters in width. The length of the hour hand is two feet four inches, and of the minute hand three feet nine inches. On the south side the figures are sixteen inches long, and two inches across. The length of the hour hand is two feet eight inches, and of the minute hand four feet one inch. The figures on the old dials were only eight and a half inches in height, the hour hands being two feet, and the minute hands two feet eleven inches in length. The bells, as some of our readers are probably aware, are twelve in number, and remarkably sweet in tone. The tenor alone weighs 36 cwt. The whole weighs 7½ tons. Originally the peal was composed of only ten bells, which were cast in 1758 by Messrs. Lester, Pack, and Chapman, of Whitechapel, London. Twelve years later, in 1770, the number was increased to twelve, the ninth bell being recast in 1790 by Messrs. Mears and Son, the predecessors of the present firm bearing that name. On a board lately removed from the walls of the belfry, and about to be replaced, it is recorded that the following peals have at various periods been rung by the St. Martin's company, and the particulars entered in the books of the society:

			H.	M.
November 19, 1758	5040 Grandsire Caters,	in	3	22
August 28, 1768	6210 Grandsire Caters,	in	4	26
June 3, 1773	5324 Grandsire Cinques,	in	3	30
October 25, 1779	5280 Bob Maximus,	in	3	56
December 5, 1789	8027 Grandsire Caters,	in	5	25
April 8, 1793	6000 Oxford Treble Bob Maximus,	in	4	22
April 27, 1813	5104 Grandsire Cinques,	in	3	36
June 12, 1815	5040 Grandsire Maximus,	in	3	30

December 28, 1822	5016 Grandsire Cinques,	in	3	40
January 29, 1827	5040 Kent Treble Bob Maximus,	in	3	44
December 13, 1830	5040 Stedman Triples,	in	3	10
May 18, 1846	5040 Stedman Triples,	in	2	53

The chimes were made, as an inscription on the metal frame informs us, by W. Worton, in 1751. They have been adjusted and thoroughly repaired by Messrs. Smith and Sons. They play every three hours, namely, at three, six, nine, and twelve o'clock. A change of tune takes place each day, as will be seen from the subjoined list:

Sunday	"Hanover"—104th Psalm.
Monday	"Portuguese Hymn."
Tuesday	"Rule Britannia."
Wednesday	"Haste to the Wedding."
Thursday	"God save the Queen."
Friday	"Easter Hymn."
Saturday	"Blue bells of Scotland."

The quarters are struck on four bells, according to the following arrangement:

First	5, 6, 7, 8
Second	8, 7, 6, 5
	5, 7, 6, 8
Third	6, 7, 5, 8

A SHORT HISTORY OF YORK MINSTER.

It was a wooden church, founded in the year 627, and in 642 it was constructed in stone, but in 741 it was destroyed by fire. It was rebuilt by Archbishop Egbert, and was demolished by the Danes, together with a great part of the city. In the year 1137, the building was destroyed by accidental fire, together with St. Mary's Abbey, which had been rebuilt by King William Rufus, and thirty-nine parish churches. The Cathedral after this event lay in ruins for more than thirty years.—On February 2nd, 1829, part of the interior of the Church was destroyed by fire. The two west front towers are 196 feet high (or 65 yards), the central tower is 188 feet high from the pavement, and sixty feet square. The eastern window is beyond dispute the finest in the world, the painted glass represents the first eight Archbishops and eight Saints of the church. It is seventy-five feet in height, and thirty-two in breadth; it was began to be glazed in 1405; John Thornton, of Coventry, contracted to glaze it for his own work at four shillings per week, and was to finish the whole in less than three years. On May 20th, 1840, the south-west front tower, and part of the nave was again destroyed by fire, together with a fine peal of ten bells, tenor 53 cwt in C. In 1842 it was again restored to its beauty, and a fine-toned peal of twelve bells put up, tenor 53 in C. In 1845, the great bell was cast expressly for York Cathedral at an expense of £2000. It was the largest bell in the United Kingdom, its weight is 12 tons 10 cwt., the tone F sharp, is exceedingly grand. It is 7 feet seven inches in height without the stock, and its diameter 8 feet 4 inches, being heavier by five tons than Old Tom of Oxford, previously the largest in England. This and the peal of twelve were cast by Messrs. Mears of London. The Cathedral has been four times fired, and once demolished.

RE-OPENING OF ST. ANDREW'S BELLS, COLEBROOKE, DEVON.

Wednesday, June 15th, was the occasion for much rejoicing among the inhabitants of the parish of Colebrooke, near Crediton, consequent upon the re-opening of the bells of the above church, after having been entirely rehung, and a new treble added to the peal of five bells previously in the tower. A little over twelve months ago the tenor became cracked, and remained so until last December, when A. O. Silifant, Esq., of Coombe, generously came forward and offered at his own cost to restore the whole of the bells, have a new frame made, and add a new treble to the peal of five already in the tower. The work of restoring the bells was entrusted to Mr. Harry Stokes, of Woodbury, who has carried out the work in a most satisfactory manner. The new treble was cast by John Warner and Son, of London, and the old tenor, note F, was recast by the same firm. In the ringing chamber is a brass plate fixed by the ringers of the parish, as a slight recognition of the munificence of Mr. Silifant, bearing the following inscription:—"These bells were restored, and the tenor recast, and a new treble given, forming a peal of six, by A. O. Silifant, Esq., of Coombe, and Gertrude his wife, July 15th, 1887." The dedication service, which was full choral, commenced at eleven o'clock. Previous to the singing of the hymn "Now at length our bells are mounted," the ringers rang a short touch on the bells. The sermon was preached by the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote, rector of Upton Pyne, from the 4th and 5th verses of the 12th chapter of St. Paul's first Epistle to the Corinthians. In connexion with the re-opening of the bells, the Guild of Devonshire ringers, of which the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote is Hon. Secretary, had a District Meeting, and during the day bands from St. Sidwells, and St. David's (Exeter), Crediton, Kenn, Lapford, Cheriton, and Whitestone, arrived in the village, and rang the bells. The scientific bands went through some six-scores of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, while the other bands rang some rounds and call changes. During the evening the whole of the bands sat down to a tea laid in the Board School, and provided by the Guild. Altogether the day was a most enjoyable one, and passed off without a hitch.

THE NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The General Quarterly Meeting of this Association took place at Grimsby, under very favourable circumstances, on Saturday last. Every possible preparation had been made by Mr. D. Seamer, the conductor of the St. James's company of ringers, and there being a good attendance of visitors, the gathering could not be regarded otherwise than a great success. Several of the ringing brethren arrived during the earlier part of the day, excursion trains bringing a fair contingent from Lincoln and Market Rasen in the afternoon. Ringing commenced on the splendid ring of eight in St. James's church tower about one o'clock, and was continued at intervals throughout the afternoon, various methods being practised by mixed bands. Subsequently four of the Hull members of the Yorkshire Association, including Mr. C. Jackson, came upon the scene, and received a hearty welcome.

At five o'clock an adjournment was made to the Ship Hotel, where a capital tea was provided. The Rev. S. W. Andrews, rector of Claxby, and vice-president of the Market Rasen local centre, presided, being supported by the Rev. Canon P. Young (vicar of St. James's, Grimsby), the Rev. J. Spawforth (vicar of St. Andrew's, Grimsby), C. S. Barton, Esq. (solicitor, Grimsby), and upwards of thirty ringing members, representing the Cathedral, St. Peter's-at-Arches, St. Peter's-at-Gowts, and St. Botolph's (Lincoln) societies; the Gainsborough society; the Market Rasen Society; the St. James' Society (Grimsby), etc., etc. After justice had been done to the bountiful spread, the CHAIRMAN opened the business proceedings by remarking that he thought such meetings as these were very good indeed for a variety of reasons; he was pleased to state that this Association of Church Bell-ringers, like many other associations, in spite of much opposition, was progressing satisfactorily; it had now become thoroughly established, and he believed every year would show that its good and interesting work was increasing and extending, and being more thoroughly appreciated. A quantity of correspondence was read, amongst which were letters from the President (the very Rev. the Dean of Lincoln), the Rev. Precentor Venables, S. F. Hood, Esq. (vice president of the Lincoln centre), and Mr. F. F. Linley (vice-president of the Gainsborough centre), regretting their inability to be present, and wishing the Association every success. The hon. Secretary (Mr. W. Lunn) reported that he had, in accordance with the resolution passed at the annual meeting at Lincoln, attended a conference of the officers of the various Lincolnshire Ringers Associations, held at Boston, with a view to having a united Jubilee ringers' meeting at Lincoln, and forming an amalgamated association for the diocese. The proposed Jubilee meeting had unfortunately fallen through, but there was a decided feeling in favour of amalgamation, especially between the East and North Lincolnshire Associations, and he (the Secretary) had good reasons for believing this happy idea would ere long be consummated. Thanks were given to the Secretary for attending the conference. It was unanimously resolved that the next Quarterly Meeting be held during the month of October jointly at Market Rasen and Claxby, Mr. T. B. Gibbons remarking that the peal of bells at the former place had just been augmented to eight in honour of the Queen's Jubilee. Six new probationary members were enrolled, the Rev. J. Spawforth stating that he had no doubt the ringers at his (St. Andrew's) church would join the Association at the next meeting. The Rev. J. Spawforth, and C. S. Barton Esq., both expressed their willingness to become honorary members of the Association, such announcements being productive of great cheering. A desire having been expressed that a new rule should be made enabling non-residents to become life members of the Association on payment of the sum of 5s., it was decided to recommend the adoption of such a rule. Messrs. C. Jackson and W. Southwick (of Hull) were elected non-resident members. On the proposition of Mr. T. Gibbons, a vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to the clergy and churchwardens of Grimsby, for their kindness in granting the use of the church bells to the members of the Association for the day. The Rev. Canon Young, and the Rev. J. Spawforth acknowledged the vote, the former commenting upon the increased interest taken in bell-ringing in late years, and the desire manifested to uphold the character of the ringers, and to advance the art and science of good ringing; the Rev. J. Spawforth hoped he might become an efficient as well as a honorary member, and said this particular form of church music was much more appreciated, studied, practised now than it used to be, and he trusted one result of this Association would be to further the attainment of good and skilful ringing. He had deferred the opening of the new peal of bells in St. Andrew's church tower until this day, and hoped that after tea the ringers would give them a good peal. A vote of thanks was tendered to the visitors, a similar compliment being paid to the honorary members. A vote of thanks to the Rev. S. W. Andrews for coming at considerable personal inconvenience to preside on this occasion, brought the meeting to a close.

The members then proceeded to St. Andrew's church where the new and musical ring of eight bells were raised in peal, after which several touches were nicely rung, the principal method being "Grandsire Triples." A very enjoyable day's programme closed about nine o'clock. The Committee desire to acknowledge the valuable assistance rendered by Mr. D. Seamer, and also sincerely thank the clergy of Grimsby, together with their churchwardens, for so kindly contributing towards the success of the meeting by granting the use of their respective bells.

FESTIVITY AT LEICESTER.

Mr. Chater, one of the late sidesmen of St. Saviour's church, has recently given a late dinner to the ringers and sacristan. The Vicar, owing to excessive duties, was prevented from being present. After ample justice was done to the good things, the good old church was given, to "Church and Queen." The health of Mr. and Mrs. Chater was heartily joined in, and the health of the Vicar, Mrs. Stocks, and family, coupled with the Churchwardens. They all deeply regretted to hear of the sad accident which befel C. F. Harris, Esq., the late Vicar's warden. A vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Chater for their hospitality, a very pleasant evening was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

ST. DUNSTAN'S-IN-THE-EAST, LONDON.

As early as the year 1667, says an old document, the worthy inhabitants of St. Dunstan's began the good work of raising their church from its ruins.

On October 20th, 1671, it was agreed that six parishioners with the churchwardens, "doe attend Doctor Christopher Wrenn about the money ordered by the Lords Commissioners to this parish, for the rebuilding of the Church, out of the moneys arising from the imposition layd upon coales by Act of Parliament, for the rebuilding of Churches burnt down in the Citye of London."

From this date Sir Christopher Wren had the superintendence of the repairs; and he has left us in the tower and spire, which were built from the ground, and are the only parts remaining of his building, undeniable proofs of his architectural taste and great mechanical skill. The elegant and airy spire is supported on four arched ribs springing from the angles of the tower. There is a tradition that the plan of this admirable work was furnished by the daughter of the architect. We have no authentic record of this circumstance, nor is it to be found even hinted at in the Parentalia, compiled by the son, and published by the grandson of Sir Christopher Wren. Yet there is something pleasing, and not improbable in the story. This great man who was styled "the miracle of our age and country," conducted the building and restoration of fifty-four London churches, besides St. Paul's, "all which," says he, "were executed during the fatigues of my employment in the service of the crown." His only daughter Jane died in 1702, at the age of twenty-six, and was buried in a vault under the choir of St. Paul's. A Latin inscription on her monument describes her, as possessed of her father's talent, a lover of literature, pious, benevolent, fond of home, highly accomplished in the art of music. It is not, perhaps, assuming too much to suppose that a person so gifted as she was may have rendered the essential help to an honoured relative in his labours, heavy as those above mentioned must have been, in addition to his avocations as Surveyor-General of all the royal buildings, President of the Royal Society, &c. The date of the completion of the tower and spire of St. Dunstan's, A.D. 1698, is not unfavourable to the notion which, however vaguely, has assigned to this lady the most tasteful part of the undertaking. In the catalogue of Wren's churches, given in the Parentalia, the following is the description of this structure:

St. Dunstan's-in-the-East is situated in the middle way between Tower street north, and Thames street south, in Tower ward. The church was only repaired, and new beautify'd, but the steeple was erected as it now appears, in 1698. The windows and steeple are of a modern Gothic style, but the pillars and arches within are Tuscan. The altitude of the steeple, consisting of a stone tower and spire at each corner of which tower are four neat smaller spires, and the fifth or principal, erected on four Gothic arches, is seventy-five feet.

It is said that after the dreadful hurricane, in November 1703, Wren, on hearing that the steeples in London had suffered severe injury during the night, said that he felt sure of finding St. Dunstan's perfectly safe. Sir Christopher died in 1723, aged ninety-one.

"DOCTOR, IS MY HEART ALL RIGHT?"—A Family Doctor tells the following amusing story in the July number of Cassell's Magazine. Professor Blank, of E——, devoted a whole week of the session to his students on the subject of heart diseases. He had a private apartment opening off the class-room, to which he was wont to retire after he had finished his discourse, in order to take off his gown, and enjoy a little meditation by the fire. On the afternoon of the second day, a modest knock came to the door. "Enter," said Professor Blank. And, bat in hand, appeared one of his students, looking somewhat worried and pale. "What can I do for you, Mr. M.?" "Nothing, I fear," was the reply. "Nothing on earth can aid me. I have the very symptoms that you were to-day describing. Sound me and see, sir." The "sounding" was soon performed. "You're in perfect health as regards your heart." That was the verdict. And Mr. M. went away happy. But hardly had the kind old professor resumed his seat before another knock resounded on the door. "Come in. Well, what's the matter with you, Mr. C.?" "I'm a dead man," gasped Mr. C., looking wildly round as if he wanted to clutch something. "I've got heart disease, as sure as a gun." "Not quite as bad as that, I trust. Take off your coat." Auscultation and percussion were speedily performed; then the professor laughed in C's face. "Sound as a bell, man," he said. "Go home to your dinner and don't be a fool." The doctor did not sit down again, however. No, he was afraid there would be more of them, so he hurried along through the quad, and got into his carriage. But he had two more visits at his residence on the same night, from frightened students, and every day during the remainder of that week he had a visit or two of the same kind. On the following Monday he got on to fevers, and the students completely recovered from their cardiac complaints.

WOBURN, BEDS.

At a meeting of the members of this society held previously to the ordinary practice at the tower on Monday evening the 27th ult., the recent case of a scrap six round ringers making a forcible entry into the tower and ringing rounds at 4 a.m. on Jubilee morning, thereby anticipating the company in the ringing, was discussed, and after a general expression of disapproval of the proceedings, a committee of five was appointed to take such steps in the matter as would in their judgment meet the case. The committee subsequently met and agreed to call the attention of the authorities to the matter. The following is the text of the letter addressed to the Vicar and both churchwardens, which will no doubt be read with interest by the members of the Bedfordshire Association and others interested in ringing matters in the neighbourhood.

Woburn, June 30th, 1887.

To the Vicar and Churchwardens of Woburn.

We, the undersigned members of the Woburn company of change-ringers, have been deputed by the company to lay the following facts before you, and respectfully to ask you to give them your kind and attentive consideration.

The Vicar having intimated to the foreman of the company his wish that the bells should be rung on the morning of June 21st on the occasion of the celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee, it was arranged that the company should meet for the purpose, and the bells were raised in readiness on the previous evening (being the regular practice night). But when the company assembled at the appointed hour on Tuesday morning, they were surprised to find that a forcible entrance had been previously effected into the tower (apparently by breaking a pane of glass in the window of the belfry, which was then entered from a ladder placed outside), and the bells rung by the intruders.

We feel that it is impossible to pass by such a flagrant breach of order without strong protest, and therefore ask you to take such steps as shall vindicate your authority.

The bells and their fittings are costly items of the Church property committed to your safe keeping, and liable to be easily damaged by ignorant or careless usage, and we think that those whom you place in charge of them have a right to claim that they shall not be subjected to the forcible and unauthorized inroads of irresponsible practical jokers.

May we respectfully remind you that the Woburn company of change-ringers was established in the year 1867 for the promotion of change-ringing, and the custody of the tower and bells (or ringing purposes), was entrusted to the foreman of the company, Mr. Charles Herbert, by the then Vicar, the Rev. S. F. Cumberlege, and Messrs. Thomas Bennett and John Gilby.

From that time to this the company has laboured to carry out the objects for which it was formed, and at the present moment, both in number of members and attainments is as strong if not stronger than at any previous time. It has been and is animated by an earnest desire at all times to carry out the commands and meet the wishes of the Vicar and churchwardens in the use of the bells.

We have also always endeavoured to maintain a conciliatory and kindly bearing towards all ringers, and we believe we can state with perfect truth, that during these years, no ringer, whether a change-ringer or not, has ever entered the tower without being invited to take a rope. Such being the case, we are at a loss to account for the present exhibition of illfeeling and bad taste. The incident in itself is not worthy of so much notice, but we regret to be obliged to state that it is but the last of a series of annoyances and interferences spread over a considerable period.

We therefore feel constrained to appeal to you to reaffirm the decision of your predecessors giving the use and custody of the bells for ringing purposes to our company under the leadership of Mr. Herbert, and to intimate to those concerned in the present disorderly proceedings, that such will not be tolerated in the future.

We have heard, but can with difficulty credit the report, that a letter of thanks for their ringing has been sent to these interlopers by the Jubilee Committee. If such be the case, their names are known to you gentlemen who were members of that Committee. It however, as we cannot but think, it is a false report, we are in a position to furnish you with them.

Should it seem good to you, we should have much pleasure in meeting any malcontents before you, and clearing up finally any supposed grievance. With apologies for the length of this letter,

We remain, Gentlemen,

Your obedient humble servants,

(Signed)—FRED TANGHERAY.

MR. GEORGE MARRIOTT.

Mr. Marriott was amongst the band of ringers engaged at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields on Jubilee day, and did his work like a Trojan. The bells were fired for the Jubilee number "fifty," and all the most musical and golden changes familiar to bell music were brought into active use, and thoroughly appreciated by the numerous and attentive audience who were privileged to assemble upon the roof of the favourite old church. Ladies and gentlemen, old and young, found their way thither, for the purpose of doing honour to the stately pageant of Queen Victoria's Jubilee visit to Westminster. Our hero is not a novice, he is about seventy-six years of age, has been honourably associated with ringers and ringing for sixty-three years. He took part in the ringing for Her Majesty's Coronation, and it is interesting to say that he has assisted in ringing for every successive anniversary during these fifty years. Mr. Marriott has been an excellent ringer in any of the practiced methods on any number of bells. He figures too as conductor of peals. He has been a member of the Royal Cumberland Society for many years. It is some satisfaction to know that Mr. Marriott remains in good health, and in his old age is surrounded by a large family of sons and daughters, and a host of grandchildren to comfort him. His old ringing friends wish him happy returns. After the ringing his health was drunk with musical honours, and response suitably came forth.

RINGING JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS AT AYLISHAM, NORFOLK.

At this place about 1700 persons dined off cold meat, hot plum pudding, etc. The day commenced with merry touches on the peal of ten, which were rung at intervals throughout the day. A thanksgiving service took place in the church at 1.30, the sermon being preached by the vicar, the Rev. R. Hake. The day's rejoicings concluded with athletic sports, dancing, and fireworks on the grounds of W. Forster, Esq. During the day the ringers visited Hevingham and Cawston, and rang Jubilee touches, the former parish church consisting of a peal of five, and Cawston six bells, which had not been rung for several years owing to the third being cracked, but it was decided by the rector and parishioners to have the bell recast as a Jubilee memento, which was done by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank in a very satisfactory manner and rehung by Mr. Edridge, of Marsham. The ringers were supplied with refreshments by the Rev. T. He Marsh on the vicarage grounds, and promised when all the bells were in good ringing order there would be a general re-opening of the peal. The ringers were also invited to ring at Felmingham, but being unable to attend on Jubilee day, they went on the following Wednesday and rang a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob. The vicar gave them a hearty welcome, and had the bells (a good peal of six), in ringing order. He also let them (the ringers) have the use of a new peal of handbells, No. 22, for use at the Marsham Jubilee celebration, which was held on the 28th, the Queen's Coronation. The peal of eight at Marsham were rung during the day. A good dinner of meat and plum pudding was given on the beautiful grounds of C. L. Buxton, Esq. The ringers rang on the handbells, after the Queen's health was proposed, a course of Grand sire Caters, which was highly appreciated. The day's festivities finished with sports, dancing on the lawn, and a good display of fireworks. The ringers who assisted in the ringing were *E. Fitt, *T. Greenwood, *C. Clements, J. Edridge, P. Cushion, W. and R. Stackwood, A. Nale, G. May, J. M. Roberts, J. Matthewson, and H. Kidd. Those marked thus rang for a similar celebration at Aylsham on the Queen's Coronation in 1838.

MELBOURNE, DERBYSHIRE.

The two new trebles added to the old ring of ring of six in the parish church, Melbourne, as a Jubilee memorial, will be dedicated on July 13th, by the Very Rev. the Dean of Lichfield. Service to commence at 1.30 p.m. The Melbourne Horticultural Society will hold their summer show close by the same day, and this will undoubtedly interfere with the ringing, but all ringers will be welcome.

BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

A QUARTERLY MEETING of the above Association will be held on Saturday, July 16th, at Birmingham. The tower of St. Philip's (ten bells) will be open during the afternoon. Business meeting to be held at the "White Swan Hotel," Edmund Street, at six o'clock. Members are particularly requested to attend this meeting as important business will be transacted.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 9, 1887.

AN occurrence, more remarkable than gratifying, has recently happened in the small town of Woburn, in Bedfordshire, an important rendezvous of the county Association. The particulars of the case may have been gathered by what appeared in our last issue, such intelligence is however made plainer by what may be found in another column of our present number. It would appear that the recognised body of ringers at the parish church, members by the way, of the above-named Association, had made arrangements to ring on the morning of the 21st ultimo, in honour of Her Majesty's Jubilee. But on the company arriving at the tower, they were surprised to find that they had been forestalled, and that some unauthorised persons had previously gained admittance to the steeple in a surreptitious manner by breaking a window in the ringing-chamber, and by such means enabled to ring.

Our readers will not be surprised to hear that such proceedings has caused no small amount of indignation among our Woburn friends. And well it may. The local party strive with all their might to promote salutary reform, and progress in the art, but their work has not been altogether smooth. The "original" ringers of the town have not only withheld their co-operation, but have hindered, to the best of their ability, the good work commenced, until we find their actions have culminated in the dastardly behaviour we are now alluding to.

Such conduct as this we had hoped was for ever done for. It is true, we hear now and then of schemes in preparation having some preoccupation, or forestalling, for their object. Such designs, however, frequently meet with the treatment they deserve. But to burglariously enter a church through feelings of jealousy, spite, or bravado, surpasses all that we have ever read or heard of, and we should imagine that the perpetrators of the outrage have rendered themselves amenable to the law. In fact, unless some notice is taken of the offence by the church authorities at Woburn, it will be believed that such an unwarrantable trespass can at any time be committed with impunity. It is absolutely necessary that wrongdoers of this sort must be taught in a forcible manner that such offences as breaking into a church will be punished with severity.

The memorial of the local company to the Vicar and Churchwardens of Woburn respecting this unfortunate affair is couched in temperate and charitable language. This of course could only be expected of such a body of gentlemen who, being Churchmen, are anxious for the proper and reverent usage of the bells. We are happy in believing that such an appeal will meet with due consideration, and if it be preferred that no steps should be taken to punish the offenders in this instance, yet we doubt not some provision will be made against the repetition of a similar occurrence.

Below will be found recorded the achievement of a peal of Grandsire Triples in which a ringer with only one arm took part. To say the least, this is a most extraordinary feat, and if the striking of the peal was fair we must certainly award to our afflicted brother-string a considerable amount of praise. Deprivation of one's limbs is generally understood to materially hinder the chances of earning a satisfactory living, but in this case we should say that Mr. HUGHES, though he labors under such a drawback, did not feel the loss of his limb so greatly as may be imagined. We hope at some time to have the pleasure of a pull with Mr. HUGHES.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

BEDFORD.—On Monday evening, June 20th, at St. Paul's church, a 308 of Grandsire Triples. J. Spencer, 1; M. Warwick, 2; F. Keech, 3; W. Allan, 4; H. Chapman, 5; C. W. Clarke (conductor), 6; I. Hills, 7; C. Pass, 8. Also on Tuesday, June 21st, in honour of Her Majesty's Jubilee, the local company met at five o'clock in the morning, commencing with rounds, and firing the bells fifty times, the number of years Her Majesty has reigned; afterwards a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was attempted, but a shift course occurred after ringing over 1000 changes, this ended it before breakfast. LONG MELFORD, SUFFOLK.

The Jubilee of our most Gracious Queen was noted in this parish by the ringing of the bells of the parish church on Tuesday, June 21st, this being all that was done that day, as the Rector was engaged at Westminster Abbey, being one of Her Majesty's Chaplains. 1008 changes were rung by the following band:—John Slater, 1; Chas. Adams, 2; E. F. Cole, Esq. (London), 3; S. Slater, 4; R. Mingay, 5; Z. Slater, Geo. Maxim (Cavendish), 7; A. Garwood (conductor), 8. Other touches were rung during the morning, and in the afternoon another touch of Bob Major (1008) was rung by Z. Slater, 1; C. Honeybell, 2;

C. Adams, 3; S. Slater, 4; H. Dews, 5; F. Wells, 6; G. Maxim (Cavendish), 7; O. Garwood (conductor), 8. On Wednesday, June 22nd, being the day for the celebration of this glorious jubilee, the day commenced by the ringing of the church bells, when a well-struck touch of Bob Major (with fifteen bobs, from Banister) was rung by the band. Z. Slater, 1; C. Honeybell, 2; C. Adams, 3; S. Slater, 4; H. Dews, 5; F. Wells, 6; J. Bird, 7; O. Garwood (conductor), 8. Then, for the service, a touch of Bob Major (1680) was attempted, but came to grief after ringing 1456. Jno. Slater, 1; C. Honeybell, 2; C. Adams, 3; S. Slater, 4; H. Dews, 5; F. Wells, 6; Z. Slater, 7; A. Garwood (conductor), 8. This was followed by another touch of Kent Treble Bob Major; the bells were then fired fifty times to denote the number of years of Her Majesty's reign.

GLEMSFORD (Suffolk).—The Jubilee of our most gracious Queen was celebrated in this parish on Friday, June, June 24th, Midsummer day. Being the day of the annual fair, the proceedings commenced by the ringing of the church bells at 3.30 a.m., when the following programme was gone through:—First, a 720 of Kent Treble Bob, by Joseph Slater, 1; C. Honeybell, 2; C. Adams, 3; Z. Slater, 4; S. Slater, 5; O. Garwood (conductor), 6. Second, a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob by the same band as before, conducted also by O. Garwood. Third, a 720 of Plain Bob, by Joseph Slater, 1; C. Adams, 2; F. Wells, 3; John Slater, 4; Slater, 5; O. Garwood (conductor), 6. Also, a 360 of Cambridge Surprise, 360 of Plain Bob, 240 and 120 of Kent Treble Bob was also rung during the day. Total, 3240 changes. On the next day two touches were rung at twelve o'clock; 240 of Oxford Treble Bob, and 240 of New London Pleasure. The Jubilee Service was held in the parish church on Sunday afternoon, which was well attended, the large church being well filled. The bells were rung on the occasion.

NORTH NOTTS ASSOCIATION.

The following is the account of ringing done at Shire Oaks during the month of June. On Sunday, June 5th, for Morning Service at the parish church, 360 each of Duke of York and New London Pleasure. D. Taylor, 1; S. Harvey, 2; E. Russon, 3; W. Hargreaves, 4; R. Knowles (conductor), 5; D. Russon, 6. Also for evening service, 360 each of Violet and Kent, and 240 of Oxford, in the same order as above, with the exception of S. Tomlinson at the treble in place of D. Taylor. And on Tuesday, June 7th for practice, 240 each of Kent, Violet, and Duke of York. S. Tomlinson, 1; S. Harvey, 2; E. Russon, 3; W. Hargreaves, 4; R. Knowles (conductor), 5; D. Russon, 6. Tomlinson, 1; S. Harvey, 2; E. Russon, 3; W. Hargreaves, 4; R. Knowles (conductor), 5; D. Russon, 6. And a course each of Oxford, New London Pleasure, Kent and Duke of York, were rung during the day, with firing volleys between. Also on Sunday, June 26th, for Morning Service, 360 Duke of York. S. Tomlinson, 1; S. Harvey, 2; E. Russon, 3; W. Hargreaves (conductor), 4; R. Knowles, 5; D. Russon, 6. And for evening service, 360 each of Violet and Duke of York. S. Tomlinson, 1; S. Harvey, 2; E. Russon, 3; W. Hargreaves (conductor), 4; R. Knowles, 5; D. Russon, 6.

OPENING OF THE NEW CHURCH OF ST. MARY'S-WITH-OUT-THE-WALLS, CHESTER.—SPLENDID GIFT BY THE DUKE OF WESTMINSTER.

HANDBRIDGE was brilliant with flags and decorations on Saturday morning, when the sun shone down with immense fervour upon the proceedings in connection with the opening of the new church of St. Mary's-without-the-Walls. About 11 o'clock the "nobility, gentry, and aristocracy" of Hough Green, Curzon Park, and Handbridge, with others of lesser degree, began to swarm into the church all with their best clothes, new gloves, and top hats on. A thousand delicate perfumes floated on the air, and in short, the whole affair was exceedingly genteel. Indeed it is not every day that a nobleman is either able or willing to practically give to the people an entire parish church (and that church of no ordinary character) with stained window, bells, and steeple, its churchyard, and a Rectory like a country mansion, and enlarged schools besides. The gift must represent in the total something between forty and forty-five thousand pounds, and is splendidly complete. Everybody concerned was not only deeply grateful to the Duke, but also very proud of their new acquisition, which was only natural and proper. The new church will seat 700 worshippers. In addition to the generosity of the Duke of Westminster, for which the parishioners are exceedingly grateful, we have to record the gifts of articles of church use given by various private donors. The rejoicings in connection with the event were general on that side of the water. Flags were hung out of numerous windows, while the fine peal of bells which has been placed in the new tower rang out right merrily and gave proof of their beautiful and sonorous tone. Some other ancient church in the city is said in the old histories to have been a landmark and perhaps a beacon to mariners upon the Dee. That was no doubt the days when the river washed the foot of the Water Tower, and the kings of England despatched their troops to Ireland from this ancient port, on the principle of thrashing the Irish into loving obedience. The height of the tower is no less than 175 feet, which with its already commanding position on the top of the Handbridge rise, will enable it to be seen for many miles round. If ever we possess a navigation again, which is doubtful, the new and lofty tower of St. Mary's without the Walls may serve as a lighthouse for the ocean liners and other flats which shall in future be berthed in the newly projected docks. Failing that, let us hope that the church may prove some sort of moral beacon to both mariners and landmen.

The church is built of the sandstone of the district, the rough-cast walling being of Waverton stone, and the dressings of Runcorn stone. The architect is Mr. F. B. Wade, of 10, Albert Mansions, Victoria Street, London. The style adopted is the early gothic, slightly varied in places. For instance the nave and aisles have early gothic lancet-headed windows with trefoil heads, while the chancel is early geometric a little tracery being introduced characteristic of a later period. The timber work of the roof is open, and the pure and delicate tones of the interior produce throughout a delightful airy effect. The whole of the wrought iron work of the church, contrary to the usual custom, has been designed by the architect himself, and is marked by unusual beauty and clear cut character. The whole of the glass in the church, including the magnificent stained glass, is by Mr. Edward Frampton, of 110, Buckingham Palace Road, London. The east window, the position of which is strikingly and unusually lofty, consists of five lights containing the crucifixion, with the figures of the Virgin and St. John. St. Alban and St. George are shown in complete armour, and a wonderfully rich effect is obtained in ruby glass in the treatment of the Dragon. The Crucifixion is finely drawn. An angel holds a chalice at the foot of the cross, and a circle of cherubs is shown around the head of our Lord. The various figures are placed under canopies of very fine proportions and design. In the three upper central lights are small subjects—the Annunciation, the Nativity, and the Salutation. The chancel window on the south side is filled with stained glass containing a finely-conceived figure of St. Luke. The west rose window contains the figure of our Lord in Majesty with the emblems of the four evangelists and adoring angels—altogether a fine piece of design and colouring. The windows above-mentioned are all of them given by the Duke. The baptistry windows contain the following subjects: The baptism of our Lord, St. Philip baptising the eunuch, and Cardinal Beaufort baptising the infant son of Henry the Fifth in the Tower. These windows are exquisite in colour, design and detail. The transept contains three windows, containing the following subjects: The Pool of Bethesda, and seated figures of Moses and Elijah respectively. The former is especially noticeable for the power of adaptation Mr. Frampton has shown in dealing with a difficult subject. In this connection we may remark that Mr. Frampton has been commissioned by his Grace to design the great west window of St. John's as his jubilee gift to that church.

The following is a list of donors of special gifts: Mr. Robert Frost, clock (three dials); Mr. C. W. Potts, carved oak pulpit; Sir T. G. Frost, £50; Mr. John Gamon, £50; Mr. C. M. and Miss. Machell, £60; Miss Bryars, £20; Mr. and Mrs. Giles R. Griffith, carved oak lectern (in memoriam); Mr. Robert Roberts and family, stained glass window (in memoriam); children of the parish font and baptistry windows; a Friend, £2 2s.; Mrs. Freeman L. Bagnall, three prie-dieus; Mr. Joseph Oakes, £5; the Rector (Rev. H. Grantham, the altar; Miss Stittwell, shields for altar candles; Mr. S. Golder, brass altar desk; Mrs. Golder, litany book; Miss C. F. Smith, book markers (purple); Mr. James Gregg, brass and onyx altar vases; Mrs. and the Misses Revis, alms bags (purple); General Ingall, C.B., £5; Mr. T. Miller, £1; and many other gifts too numerous to mention.

The consecration service was conducted in the usual form, the Lord Bishop of Chester being accompanied by a very large body of clergy. Amongst the congregation were the Duke and Duchess of Westminster, who were welcomed at the church by the Rector, the Rev. H. Grantham, whose little daughter presented the Duchess with a lovely bouquet of stephanotis and other beautiful flowers. The new organ was presided over by Mr. E. S. Giles (the appointed organist) assisted by Mr. Timothy, of Eaton, and the music was efficiently conducted by the picked church choir, assisted by the Eaton Choir. The responses were to Tallis, and the Te Deum to Martin in G; hymns 302, 165, 239, 166, and 379, and hymn after the sermon, 215. The processional hymn, "Come, ye faithful, raise the anthem," and the grand old melodies, "O God, our help in ages past," and "All people that on earth do dwell," were splendidly and solemnly rendered, proving the fine acoustic properties of the new church. After the consecration, the ordinary service was conducted by the Rector, the first lesson being read by the Rev. Canon Upperton, and the second lesson by the Ven. Archdeacon Gore. The Rev. W. T. Giles read the concluding prayers; the Ven. Archdeacon Barber and the Very Rev. the Dean severally read the epistle and gospel.

The Bishop preached a practical sermon from Isaiah lii., 1, and I Chronicles xxix., 14, "Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem; and "Who am I and what is my people that we should be able to offer so willingly after this sort, for all things come of Thee." In the course of his sermon, his Lordship said:—

We are met this morning to dedicate with thanks and prayers a very complete and most beautiful new church. It is very beautiful, everything in it and about it is full of voices, love, and of the careful desire to make it as beautiful as it can be made, a fit offering of deep and devout and intelligent devotion. This is not, indeed, a fitting time for personal congratulation or compliment. What a gift the magnificent heart of the Duke has given as the offering of a king to the service of the King of Kings, and what an encouragement and new spring of hope and blessing such a foundation is to those who have at heart the welfare of church and people, there cannot be a single person here who does not recognise with admiration and gratitude God loves the cheerful giver, and there is an abundant blessing in the gracious heart; the heart that has grace so to give. In such a feeling we accept and dedicate the church. The words of our founder and the words of David—"all things come of Thee, and of Thine own have we given Thee." The hand that gave the means gave also the heart to give. The expression of our thanks to Him to-day contains a prayer for blessing on the giver and his children to all generations of them that love God, whose is the greatness and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty, for ever and ever. Why should a church be made beautiful? What a question! We might answer fairly with another—Why should it not? Or with a still further one—Why should not everything that can be made beautiful, be made so, after the pattern of God's own working, who hath made everything beautiful in His time? Or a still further one—What is beauty, and what the purpose and value of the gift of seeing and reproducing the beautiful?—and so on into the realm of vexed questions and calculations of the line of beauty, and the variations of the curve of taste. I will not presume this morning to enter upon such a disquisition. For us the matter is comparatively simple one. There is such a thing in us all as an idea of beauty. It is not the same in all, or in all ages, or in all minds of the same age, but it develops towards one ideal, and the higher the education the more refined the perception, so much nearer one ideal does the varied taste for beauty converge. It is not to be defined either by lines or colours or expression; it is not to be analysed in fitness or veracity, or utility, although certain lines and colour and expression are incompatible with it and it ought to combine with the kindred elements of the true and the good for all purposes of fitness, and of veracity, and utility. If it is a beauty after the fashion of God's creation it is an idea that should lead and draw those who have eyes to see with up to Him. Like all good gifts it is open to abuse, and woe to him by whom cometh the offence of perverting it to evil that which in its nature is very good. It is of the nature of a creature and liable to be made an idol, as all things are, which being made for man, have become ends in themselves to those who seek them. And such idols, knowledge, and good character and even good conscience itself, may become to those who do not recognise the fact that it is from God all such gifts come, and that they come to us that we may offer them again to Him in love. This truth lies at the basis of all relations between religion and art, whatever and of whatever value that art may be; music, poetry, painting, architecture all alike are under the same law; a natural gift, a refining and educating discipline, and a growing ideal to be perfected by and by, as we believe in the still more exalting consummation of all things when the times of refreshing come and the gifts and disciplines and ideals of this life shall stand, to the realities that shall be reached, in the relation of shadow to substance, fragments and germs, to a perfect and all glorious reality.

At the conclusion of the service the following address was presented to his Grace in the schoolroom.

"To the Most Noble Hugh Lupus Duke of Westminster, K.G.
"May it please your Grace. We, the Rector and parishioners of St. Mary's, Chester, desire to offer to your Grace our congratulations on the happy occasion of the consecration of the new parish church of St. Mary's without the Walls, for which, together with the new rectory and schools, we are indebted to your munificent liberality. The parishioners of St. Mary's will ever regard with gratitude this magnificent memorial of your Grace's zeal and interest in the welfare of the parish and of the city and neighbourhood of Chester. We pray that God's blessing may ever rest upon your Grace's labours for the good of those around you, and that you may be long spared to see the fruit of your work in the increase of Godliness, piety, and charity amongst us. May many years of happiness be in store for you and Her Grace the Duchess, whom we desire most respectfully to include in these our congratulations, good wishes, and prayers. Signed on behalf of the parishioners H., Grantham, rector; Alexr. McGregor, John Gamon, Churchwardens; Henry Faylor James Salmon, sidesmen. June 18th, 1887."

The Duke, in reply, and who spoke while labouring under deep emotion, sincerely thanked the rector and churchwardens and those whom they represented, for their very handsome address, so feelingly written, and said he received it with a thankful heart. He must be excused saying any more further than he hoped and prayed that the work they had begun that day might long continue, and that the church would ever open its gates to a devout congregation. He thanked them sincerely for all they had said and done, and the Lord Bishop most sincerely for the kind words he had used in his sermon.

We should add that the removal and rebuilding of the old cottages to open out the churchyard (which will not be used for interments) and the building by his Grace of a handsome sexton's house at the corner, completes a public improvement of the most valuable and handsome character. —Local Paper.

W. G. CRICKMER.

What large family is there in which there is not one boy who wishes to go to sea? But parents and guardians are often doubtful as to the prospects—at any rate, of the mercantile marine—as a profession. The problem is a difficult one, but an answer to it is given in an article in the July Magazine on "The Merchant Service as a Profession."

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

"CHESHIRE BELLS."

SIR,—I am surprised that a large county like Cheshire, and possessing such numerous and excellent peals of bells, and judging from the reports in your valuable paper from time to time, it would seem that there are some excellent ringers to be found in the county. Take the city of Chester for example, with its Cathedral, possessing a fine heavy peal of eight bells, tenor 32 cwt., and having an excellent band of ringers; also St. Mary's without-the-walls, with its noble peal of eight bells, tenor 20 cwt., given by the Duke of Westminster, which with the church cost upwards of £30,000, and there are numerous other churches in the city of Chester possessing several excellent peals of six bells, tenors of various weights. I am of opinion if these two bands were to unite and form a committee to take the necessary steps to lead to the formation of a change-ringing association, some real practical work might be done, and the art and science of change-ringing would be extended throughout the city and county, and tend to raise a more satisfactory and agreeable esprit de corps than at present exists. By this means many excellent peals of bells would be brought more prominently before the Exercise. Also a word of advice in conclusion. I have always found in various parts of the country where an Association was in existence, that quality and salaries went hand in hand, the higher the standard, the higher the pay, and were recognized as men of skill and intelligence, which is a fact, that demands the careful thought and consideration of all ringers of every grade, both rich and poor. I am of opinion, that were the large ringing Associations to unite and form a friendly society for ringers only, it would meet the cordial approval and hearty support of all ringers throughout the country.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—Seeing a report of the ringing on Jubilee day, June 21st, in last week's "BELL NEWS," would you oblige me by correcting a slight mistake of the writer's, as I see nine names mentioned, but not the name of our respected captain, Mr. J. S. Wright, who was there to ring at 4.30 a.m. with the others of the company, also being connected with the ringing more than forty years at the parish church at Spalding.

ONE OF THE RINGERS.

W. A. CLARKE'S VISIT TO THE WEST OF ENGLAND.

SIR,—In your issue of June 18th, you publish a most interesting account entitled "A Whitsuntide Trip," signed by William A. Clark, Birmingham. As a constant reader of "BELL NEWS," allow me to thank Mr. Clark for the pleasure it afforded me to read the account of his trip, and I hope he will favour us again when he travels perhaps in another direction. Now I would suggest that all lovers of bell music should just take notes in their travels, and send you an account, for I feel sure it would be read with much interest if inserted in your valuable paper from time to time, and afford much pleasure and information to your readers. Such accounts as this makes your paper doubly valuable, because we cannot all travel over the same ground, therefore we should get most interesting accounts of different places and different things. I was so pleased with the information I gleaned, that it induced me to write to you. A LOVER OF CHURCH BELLS.

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—In overlooking back numbers of "THE BELL NEWS," I note in your issue for May 21st this year, the name of Mr. Robert Williams is attached to a 5040 of Treble Bob Royal. This peal was first rang in the year 1784, and first published in the year 1788. In your issue for July 2nd, the name of Mr. J. R. Pritchard is attached to a peal of 5000 Treble Bob Royal. This peal was first published in the year 1816, and first rung in the year 1818. Both compositions are in Shipway, pages 247 and 250, and both are also published in Snowdon's Treatise, page 105. It would be interesting to know how many times these old compositions have been reproduced since originally composed, and it may be interesting to state that about "eighteen variations" can be obtained from each original peal. I am aware that this is an unpalatable statement, but it is none the less true. In your issue of the 25th ult., my name is attached to a peal of Treble Bob Major, which I believe was recently rung at St. Giles-in-the-Fields. This peal was originally composed by my friend Mr. N. J. Pitstow, and first published in the Yorkshire Association's Report for the year ending 1884. My friend has a good and extensive stock of Treble Bob compositions, but I am sure this excellent latter peal would easily be missed, and I am therefore anxious to restore it to the fold of the ninety and nine, where the report of performances in your paper appeared. I told the conductor it was not my peal, but some irresponsible person I presume sent you the bungling report, and so caused the necessity of correction.

JAMES MATHER.

In Memoriam.

WILLIAM FRICKER.

Early on Monday evening, the 27th ult., the above member of the Exercise died after a very brief illness, extending only four days, at the age of fifty-five years. Deceased had previously enjoyed good health, and followed his usual occupation until seized by the fatal malady. Mr. W. Fricker was for many years leader of the Frome local company, but of late years had ceased to take an active part in the affairs of the Society. He was also the recipient of first prizes competed for by companies of ringers at Bruton and Ditchet, Somersetshire, respectively, when prize ringing was in vogue. He possessed a numerous collection of handbells, and displayed talent in tune ringing of which he held a monopoly. He will be greatly missed in his visits to neighbouring village churches, where he endeavoured to push on the course of change-ringing, more especially by the Nunney Society of Amateur change-ringers, of which we find his name frequently published in ringing touches of Grandsire Doubles with. Deceased was interred in Christ Church churchyard on the following Thursday afternoon, surrounded with many sorrowful relatives and friends, who were anxious to pay the last solemn respects to a devoted husband, father and friend. In the evening the ringers connected with the parish church of St. John-the-Baptist, Frome, rang on the fine old bells, half-muffled, as a tribute of respect of the deceased's former connection with them. It might be added that Mr. Fricker in response to an appeal from the pulpit of St. John's church, a few years ago, presented the muffles to the church, which was required on that occasion to ring out the old year with.

STOKE-ON-TRENT ARCHIDIACONAL ASSOCIATION.

There will be a Committee Meeting of the above Association in the Church Room, Stoke, on Saturday, July 16th, at 4.30. All members are invited.

E. GLOVER, Hon. Sec.

BOW BELLS, LONDON.

Many things have been written about these celebrated bells, much perhaps that is old. The following is taken from an old book, and we insert it, because it possesses features which will be interesting to the rising generation:—

"A vast amount of antiquarian pleasantry and amusing research have been expended upon the history and practice of bell-ringing. It was once a favourite pastime with grave and learned men, though there are few of us who care to recollect our forefathers as bell-ringers. Still, Sir Symonds D'Ewes, who was Lord of the Manor of Lavenham, in Suffolk, and one of the most accomplished antiquaries of his time, was fond of bell-ringing, as was Sir Matthew Hale, Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas; as was also the great Lord Burghley, Lord High Treasurer to Queen Elizabeth. Time, however, rings as many changes as bells themselves; our high functionaries no longer seek recreation from their official cares in bell-ringing; and Sir John Jervis and Lord John Russell are not very likely to ascend into the belfry of Bow, to shake off the unusual weight of the Common Pleas, or the weightier cares of Downing Street, by ringing a Christmas peal. We must not be tempted to stray among the poets for their love of bells, else it may be as difficult to stop as the peal itself. Nor do we feel disposed to meddle with the questio vexata—when bells ought to be rung. Certainly, they are sometimes rung on very strange occasions, as when a gentleman, become very unpopular, has been most unjustly defeated in a lawsuit; and when the Beer Shop Bill was passed. We agree with a writer in the "Parish Choir," that there can be no harm in ringing the bells in honour of any important public event, or the arrival of any distinguished personage, or of any other event at which a Christian may lawfully rejoice, whilst to ring them for any party triumph, or for any malicious purpose, is abominable. 'Let me,' says this intelligent correspondent, 'express my regret at that lamentable want of Christian feeling in the public and amongst parochial authorities, of which the prevalent abuses in the ringing of church bells afford an example. The weddings of the rich are graced by their mercenary sounds, whilst those of their poorer brethren are unheeded; and any political triumph or secular anniversary is greeted with merriment, whilst the leading events of the Christian year are passed over, unhonoured.' From this kindly indignation must, however, be excepted Christmas, when, although much of the custom of profuse hospitality has passed away, this is yet universally recognised as a season when every Christian should show his gratitude to the Almighty for the inestimable benefits procured to us by the Nativity of our Blessed Saviour, by an ample display of goodwill towards our fellow-men. And we do not know how this feeling can be better quickened than by a joyous peal of bells, 'the poor man's only music, the mosaic of the air.' Dr. Burney, the great authority on matters musical, has pointed out the innumerable rich and strange melodic passages that flit across one's ear in listening to a good peal of bells, which the writer in the 'Parish Choir' cleverly compares to a musical kaleidoscope. The writer just quoted, 'John Clapper,' remarks that any one who walks from the City of London westward at night (say on Christmas Eve) cannot fail to notice how vastly more soft and silvery are the tones of the City bells than of the more modern ones. The peal named at the head of this paper is a harmonious exemplification of this fact, and its history is of curious celebrity.

"The church of St. Mary-le-Bow, or Bow Church, in the words of old Stow, 'for divers accidents happening there, hath been made more famous than any other parish church of the whole City or suburbs.' It not originally a Roman temple, as was once believed, it was one of the earliest churches built by our Norman conquerors. It has been destroyed by storm and by fire; was at one time garrisoned and besieged, and was afterwards the scene of an assassination. Our present business is however, specially with Bow bells, of which the citizens of London have ever been proud; and it was from their extreme fondness for them in old times, that a genuine Cockney has ever been supposed to be born within the sound of Bow bells. According to Fynes Moryson, 'the Londoners, and all within the sound of Bow bells, are in reproach called Cockneys and eaters of buttered toasts.' Beaumont and Fletcher speak of 'Bow bell suckers,' i.e., as Mr. Dyce properly explains it, 'children born within the sound of Bow bells.' Anthony Clod, a countryman, addressing Gettings, a citizen, in Shirley's 'Contention for Honour and Riches,' says, 'Thou liest, and I am none of thy countryman; I was born out of the sound of your pancake bell,' i.e. the apprentice's Shrove Tuesday bell, when pancakes were in request, as they still are, and the London apprentices held a riotous holiday.—(Cunningham's 'Handbook of London'.)

"In the year 1649 (says Stow), it was ordained by a Common Council that the Bow bells should be nightly rung at nine of the clock. Shortly after, John Donne, mercer, by his testament, dated 1472, gave to the parson and churchwardens, two tenements in Hosier-lane (now Bow-lane), to the maintenance of Bow bell, the same to be rung as aforesaid, and other things to be observed, as by the will appeareth. This bell being usually rung somewhat late, as seemed to the young men, 'prentices, and others in Cheap, they made and set up a rhyme against the clerk as followeth:—

For thy late ringing thy head shall have knockes.

As well as the clerk's reply—

Children of Cheap, hold you all still,
For you shall have the Bow bell rung at your will.

"William Copeland, churchwarden, either gave a new bell for this purpose, or caused the old one to be recast in 1515; Weaver says the former.

"This ringing of Bow bell, observed to the present day, is a vestige of the Norman curfew. It is also observed at Charterhouse, St. George-the-Martyr, in Southwark, and in a few other parishes of the metropolis. At the same time that the order was given, in 1649, for the ringing of Bow bells, lights were to be exhibited in the steeple during the night, to direct the traveller towards London.

"The bells, steeple, and church, all shared the common fate in the Great Fire of 1666. The tower is shown in the view of London, 1543 (in the Sutherland collection in the Bodleian Library, Oxford); it is somewhat lofty, has a central lantern or bell-turret, and a pinnacle at each corner. The church was rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren, and on the steeple being finished in 1679, part of £400 paid by the City to the united parishes for the site of Allhallows Church and churchyard, on which to build the present Honey-lane Market, was appropriated to a set of bells; Dame Dyonis Wilkinson having given £2000 towards erecting and beautifying the steeple. The belfry was prepared for twelve bells, but only eight were placed: these got sadly out of order, and after various repairs it was reported in 1739 that the Great bell was cracked; however the peal was made good at the expense of £290.

"In 1758, a petition was presented to the vestry from several respectable citizens, setting forth that on all public occasions the bells of Bow are particularly employed, that the tenor bell is the completest in Europe, but the other seven are very much inferior, and by no means suitable to the said tenor. 'Your petitioners therefore request that they may be allowed at their own expense, to recast the seven smaller bells, and to add two trebles.' This the parishes permitted, after an examination of the steeple by Dance and Chambers, the two ablest architects of the day, who reported that 'such additional weight, nor any weight that can be put upon the steeple, will have any greater effect than the number of bells now placed there.' Accordingly, the set of ten bells was completed by subscription, and was first rung June 4th, 1762, the anniversary of the birth of King George III.

"In 1820, the steeple was repaired at a great expense, under the able direction of Mr. George Gwilt. The belfry was then surrounded with strong iron braces, both internally, and also in the masonry itself; the ashlar, or external face being cut through to admit the same, and space being left to admit of the expansion of the metal; the weight of these braces is about six tons. At the above time it was said or sung—which was believed to be considerably lower than before the repairs; the fact however is, that from some slight difference in the new work, the spire is four inches higher, the whole height from the bottom of the old Church being 239 ft. 6 in.

They've cut a yard of Bow Church steeple,

"In the year 1822 some fear was expressed that the use of the bells would endanger the steeple, but at a vestry it was decided by a large majority, to ring them for a trial; and as from a subsequent examination of the steeple there did not appear to be any cause for alarm, the amateurs of bell-ringing, and the Cockneys at large, have often since been gratified by the sound of Bow bells. The present set is much heavier, and more powerful in tone than the first peal of bells. It requires two men to ring the largest (the tenor, 53 cwt., key C), in consequence of its not being properly hung about two years since, on account of an accident having befallen it.

"The ringers belong to a society called the 'College Youths,' founded in 1637, by Lord Brereton, Chief Justice Hale, Marquis of Salisbury, Lord Dacre, joined by several of the City Aldermen. The society takes its name from the College of St. Spirit and Mary, founded by Sir Richard Whittington, on College Hill, Upper Thames Street, which was burnt down in the Great Fire. Its church had a peal of six bells, but the present church (St. Michael's), at the same place, has no bells. A book recording the names of the founders and members of "the College Youths," from 1637 to 1724, was lost about that time, and only recovered ten years since. It was found in the possession of a Bristol bookseller, who, having purchased it at a sale of a private library in Gloucestershire, advertised it in the Gentleman's Magazine, when it was purchased by the members for six guineas. Each member subscribes one penny per week for the expenses of keeping up the register, handbells, etc.; the certificate costs 6d.; admission fee, 2s. 6d. All the members (who are competent), can ring if they choose. There are about 200 members in the society, residing in different parts of the country, and fifty in London; they ring principally at St. Saviour's, Southwark (twelve bells), but they formerly rung at St. Martin's for sixty years. They generally ring the peal for pleasure, but, on Christmas Day and other holidays, they are paid two guineas among the eleven. They ring once a month for practice and to gratify the neighbourhood. On Christmas Eve they ring at nine; New Year's Eve from half-past eleven to half-past twelve. At St. Saviour's, on Christmas Eve they ring at twelve. Another society called the "Cumberland Society," rang for a few years at Bow Church. There is a peal called the 'Whittington Peal,' which can only be rung on twelve bells; and the College Youths are anxious to have two bells added to the present number, as the peal is considered incomplete."

JUBILEE STEEPLE-JACK.

The Vicar of St. Paul's church, Bedford, the Rev. Lambert Woodard, lately expressed a wish to see the spire of his church decorated for the Jubilee. Mr. W. Allen, one of the members of the Bedford company, at once volunteered to do it, and having obtained permission of the Vicar, at once proceeded to get ladders, and successfully fixed them to the top of the spire, where he fixed a flagstaff to the weather vane. He then hoisted the Union Jack, and it floated proudly, 160 feet from the ground. This been W. Allen's first attempt at anything of the kind, he was congratulated upon his success by a great many of his brother strings and townsfolk, as they thought that he was not capable of accomplishing the task he had undertaken. He then put flags out of every window in the spire, and covered his ladders, etc., with bunting, the result being a very pretty sight, and much admired by all who saw it. Afterwards the Vicar and churchwardens thought it would be a very good opportunity to have the weather vane, etc., painted and re-gilded. As there was an expressed wish for this to be done, he at once volunteered to do it, and anything that might be necessary. After getting everything in readiness, he again ascended the top to paint it, and being up nearly two hours, he was successful in finishing the job. The decorations were left up for ten days, after which he proceeded to take them down, and safely accomplished it without the slightest mishap, and he wishes to thank the Vicar and churchwardens for allowing him to do it, and several friends for the use of the ladders, etc., also some of his brother ringers for kindly lending him a hand at the pulley by which he hoisted the ladders.

A RINGING WEEK WITH THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

During the past week, Mr. Proctor of Benington, who was staying at Duffield, visited the following towers: Duffield, tenor 17 cwt.; Tamworth, tenor 22 cwt.; St. Paul's, Burton, tenor 26 cwt.; Melbourne, tenor 15 cwt.; Bakewell, tenor 19 cwt.; Youlgreave, tenor 26 cwt.; Ashby, tenor 18 cwt.; Quorndon, tenor 14 cwt.; Loughborough, tenor 24 cwt.; St. Andrew's, Derby, tenor 20 cwt.; St. Luke's, Derby, tenor 32 cwt.; All Saints', Derby, tenor 25 cwt. The above are all rings of eight except the first and the last, which have ten bells. The local ringers were present in force at most of the churches, but the greater part of ringing, with the exception of that at St. Paul's, Burton, at Quorndon, and at Loughborough, was done by the Duffield society, who accompanied Mr. Proctor on five out of the six days of his visit. Touches were brought round in each of the following fifteen methods, with the exception of Cambridge Surprise, of which, owing to the limited time, a course only was rung; Treble Bob Royal (handbells), Stedman and Grandsire Caters, Double Oxford, Double Norwich, Duffield, Treble Bob, Grandsire, and Plain Bob Major, Stedman, Grandsire, and Plain Bob Triples; also by the Burton company—London Surprise, Cambridge Surprise, and Superlative Surprise. In addition to the touch of Treble Bob Royal, there were also rung on handbells during the week, touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, Duffield and Treble Bob Major, and courses of Grandsire Cinques, Stedman and Grandsire Caters, and Grandsire Major. Mr. Proctor himself took part in Stedman, Double Norwich, Treble Bob, Cambridge, and Superlative, astonishing every one by his activity and keen interest in the proceedings. He expressed himself especially delighted with the fine peal at Youlgreave, the grandest ring of eight he asserted he had ever heard. The ten at Duffield also greatly pleased him, from the wonderful clearness and tune of the new trebles. The Saturday was arranged as the annual outing of the Duffield society, who visited on that day, Bakewell and Youlgreave, in company with friends from Burton and Derby, in all a party of over twenty. The weather, though hot, was everything that could be desired throughout the week, and in spite of the somewhat closely packed programme, Mr. Proctor shewed no signs of fatigue, and left for Hertfordshire on Tuesday evening, in the best of health and spirits, carrying with him the good wishes of the Midland Counties' Association.

INSCRIPTIONS UPON THE BELLS AT ST. ALKMUND'S CHURCH, SHREWSBURY.

- Treble*.—"Our life is changeful, view us now complete,
To thee our notes we raise, more gay in eight."
2nd.—"Hear Holy Aulkmund's long forgotten shade, Sedate we rose in six, for thee were made."
3rd.—"These sacred walls, this venerable spire (tower)
Shall give our changes sweetness, raise them higher."
4th.—"And still as sportive fancy counts them o'er, Shall waft them far on Severn's fertile shore."
5th.—"Hail! Patriot George, for whom a nation prays,
That Health and Peace may crown his latter days."
6th.—"In Deaths we mourn, with Hymen we rejoice,
In public good we join the public voice."
7th.—"Now Vespers, and now Matins rites prepare, While Piety gives all her soul to prayer," Tenor.—"Faithful I watch and warn both young and old,
To all, O God, thy grace and light unfold."

This is affirmed to be the sweetest toned bell, and the entire peal the most perfect production in the science of bell-founding in England, and was cast at the bell foundry of the ingenious Mr. John Briant, at Hertford about the year 1805.—MS.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

ON Saturday last, the 9th instant, that section of the above Society who invariably officiate at various London steeples on state and other occasions, dined together, with a few friends, at "The Bell" inn, Walthamstow. It is well-known that the old Anniversary Festival of this ancient Society was held on the fifth of November, but some years ago, for the purpose of enjoying a kind of brief summer outing, the time of the festival was altered. The beauties of the warm season could thus be enjoyed, and old members of the company could meet under the sylvan shades of birch and willow, and live over again their past experiences. May be the fact that summer was the best time to enjoy the most beautiful of the fruits of the earth led many to regard that season as the period when such a festival as an annual dinner should take place. Considering that many of the worthy and most noted "Collegians" are renowned connoisseurs in what is grateful to the palate, the opinion may be hazarded that the fact of the month of July being the period of "duck and green peas" was an important factor in the determination arrived at.

Since however, this change was effected, a new generation—worthy in every respect, let it be said, to do credit to the traditions of the Society—has sprung up, and by them a reversion to the old order of things has been favored, inasmuch that now the society's rules have been revised, the old date for the Anniversary Dinner is again to be adhered to. We do not know that there was any great opposition to the new departure, nor is it to be supposed that it created any excitement or increased action among such a staid, conservative body as the College Youths is well known to be. But the summer anniversary had become such a favorite holiday for the particular section above alluded to, that they determined to have it, notwithstanding. And on the day above-named, the pleasant hostelry above mentioned being the appointed trysting-place, under a cloudless sky, the thermometer being at something like 100° in the shade, "the meet" came off.

About three o'clock the members began to assemble in the grounds attached to "The Bell," and very soon the number arrived either in person or by proxy. There was however one face missing which was hitherto ever present at the Annual dinner of the "Colls."—Mr. James Dwight. It was remarked that his general health was hardly so good as was desired. Messrs. Cooter, Muskett, Haworth, were to the fore, looking as well and young as ever, as also Messrs. Pettit, Jameson, Dorrington, Mash, Horrex, and J. M. Hayes. The dinner was served in a pleasant apartment, erected for such purposes, rendered cool by artificial means, skilfully carried out. In the temporary absence of the Master (Mr. G. McLaughlin), the chair was taken by Mr. Mash, and the vice-chair by Mr. George Muskett. The arrangements for the dinner were most satisfactorily effected, two very good and very full courses being "struck" by the obliging host of "The Bell," Mr. McDaniell.

After the repast, a stroll in the grounds, until the arrival of more friends, filled up a brief interval, when a visit was made to the church of St. Mary, Walthamstow, where a few touches of Stedman and Treble Bob were rung. The atmospheric conditions of the day were not favourable to any exhibition of this kind, and therefore what ringing was done was not of a very first-rate character.

In the evening, agreeably to the dictum of the Chairman, the company met again in the dining room, for that kind of saturnalia which has come to be designated as "the feast of reason and the flow of soul." The Master presided, the company being augmented by members of the Society whose business engagements prevented them from being present earlier in the day. The versatile faculties of our old friend, Mr. W. D. Smith, of Hackney, were called into requisition, and his ventriloquial powers caused, as usual, much merriment. A very pleasant hour was employed, the "veterans" of "The Colls" remaining (not always the case on such occasions) to the end. Of the local ringers, members of the St. Saviour's society only appeared, and of them a fair number were present.

The MASTER gave, as the toast of the evening, "Her Majesty the Queen," which was received in a very hearty manner. During the proceedings,

Mr. PETTIT, in a few apposite remarks, proposed "Success to the BELL NEWS," dwelling upon the value this journal had been to the Exercise at large. This toast was responded to by our representative, who gave "The Ancient Society of College Youths," to which sentiment the name of Mr. G. Muskett, Honorary Secretary of the society, was coupled.

Mr. MUSKETT, in reply, thanked the proposer and also the company for the manner in which they had responded to the toast. He would continue to do his best for the welfare of the society under every conceivable circumstance, and hoped it would go on and prosper more and more. Mr. Muskett's observations were received with great applause and gratification by the company.

A few more toasts and songs, and the company dispersed in order to catch the eleven o'clock train, which after many reciprocal expressions of mutual regard, carried the visitors away to their several destinations, not however until many of them had expressed their opinion that the day's proceedings had been most successful, and that the determination to have an anniversary dinner during the summer season was on no account to be regretted.

WISHFORD MAGNA, WILTS.

ON Friday, July 8th, five members of the Salisbury Guild met at this village for the purpose of opening the peal of five bells, the frame of which has lately been strengthened, and a new fourth put in by Mr. Thomas Blackburn, of Salisbury. Having arrived, they were most kindly pressed by the rector, the Rev. E. Hill, to partake of tea, after which they proceeded to the tower, which was found to be very small, and a very bad circle of ropes, for as enough money was not forthcoming, the bells could not be entirely rehung with a new frame, so the draught of the ropes could not be altered. It was now found almost impossible to do any change-ringing on the bells, although the "go" was everything that could be desired, and great praise is due to Mr. Blackburn for the able manner in which he has performed the work. After ringing a few singles and call changes, standing as follows—J. R. Jerram, 1; C. A. Clements, 2; T. Blackburn, 3; W. W. Gifford, 4; S. Lawrence, 5, the ringers were once more invited by the rector to partake of supper in the rectory, from the open windows of which could be heard the melodious tone of the bells, now rung by the local band, who fairly rung, after breaking sundry ropes, the visitors out of the village. It might be interesting to know that these bells have never before been rung with stays and sliders, the ringers all falling the bells when they wished to stop.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO MR. J. M. ROUTH.

We regret to bear of a serious accident which has happened to this universally-respected gentleman. While taking part in the game of cricket, so we are informed, he was struck in the eye by a cricket-ball, completely destroying the optic. This will be most painful intelligence for all of our readers, particularly those who like ourselves have the honour of Mr. Routh's acquaintance. The heartfelt condolence of his friends will not of course relieve or repair such a serious accident, or they would from their genuineness do so. We hope, perhaps in vain, that the terms in which the disaster has been made known to us has been exaggerated.

This peal has the 5th and 6th each twenty-four courses before the 9th, and the 6th twelve courses behind the 7th.

Two girls, aged eight and four years respectively, daughters of a carpenter named Ross, were drowned at Pitmixon, near Aberdeen, on Wednesday morning. It was supposed that one of the children waded into a clay hole in which there was a large quantity of water, and the other attempted to rescue her. Both were drowned before assistance reached them.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 16, 1887.

THE Jubilee festivities are, it may be supposed, very nearly at an end by this time, and the mode in which they have been on the whole carried out, appears to have given satisfaction all round, ringers perhaps being the sole exception. Grumblings, not a few, or far between, have been heard in various quarters respecting the emolument which was meted out to them upon the day in question. A letter of indignation, taken from a contemporary, which we print in another column, very plainly sets forth the position of matters which obtained in the town of Northampton. The circumstances there, if the writer correctly states them, would be sufficient to raise the ire of any ringer who is proud of his art, and who felt that it was too lightly esteemed. Most of our readers who peruse the letter referred to will sympathize with the remarks therein.

In these questions of ringing for pay, the difficulty is not, as a rule, with the Church authorities, but with other local bodies who hold most erroneous and ignorant notions regarding the general status of ringers and their work. And it appears this was the case at Northampton. No doubt the "gentlemen forming the Committee" imagined that the services of the ringers were to be easily secured for copious draughts of low-priced beer! accompanied with the patronising air usual with such gentry.

The pranks of such people as these ought to teach some ringers a lesson. If it was not known that there are ringers to be found who are always on the look-out for occasions when pay is to be had for ringing, no one would have the audacity to treat ringers any other than as gentlemen. We do not say that the ringers of Northampton are anything but averse to such craving, but it is the residuum who do the harm. We have heard lately of a band of ringers who had to ring at two adjacent churches on the same day, going to another neighbouring church, and calling upon the authorities, offered to ring for half the usual fee, because what they received at the other two churches was not sufficient. They were refused, as they deserved to be. But this is the kind of thing that brings the bona fide ringer and his art into disrespect.

WORKING MEN AND THE CHURCH HOUSE.

The following letter on this subject has appeared in The Guardian:—

SIR,—May I call your readers' attention to some of the many excellent reasons why the scheme for the erection of the Church House should be specially interesting to and supported by Churchmen of the working classes?

During the past fifty years many great changes and improvements have been brought about within the Church of England, and I believe every change and every step towards improvement has been to the advantage of the working classes above all others.

Take, for examples, such improvements as free and unappropriated seats, and services more numerous and at hours to suit all classes (in my own parish our vicar is always willing to turn out at half past four in the morning to give the blessed sacrament to working men before they go to work). Art in its various branches is no longer confined to the mansions of the wealthy, but finds its place also in the churches of the poor. Working men have now a voice and influence in church affairs and find seats in rural dean and diocesan conferences, and in the House of Laymen. Nor can one forget the immense blessing to the working classes which has resulted from the Church's educational work during the past half-century.

That working men are not ungrateful for these privileges is abundantly proved by their activity in extending the same to such as have not yet participated in them—by their work in connection with St. Crispin's, Northampton, St. Paul's, Worcester, and many another parish, and especially by the existence of ten thousand communicants in the Church of England Working Men's Society.

They have not, however, had the opportunity of showing their appreciation by any one general and united act. Such an opportunity is now afforded by the Church House scheme: and surely no memorial and thankoffering for God's blessing on the Church during our present Queen's reign can be complete without the co-operation of the multitudes of humble but loyal Churchmen among the working classes, who have shared in a marked manner the great blessings resulting in the revival of Church life which the Church House is to crown and commemorate. Their contributions may be small even in the aggregate; but their heartily sharing in the movement would extend and increase their enthusiasm for the Church of England as a whole.

Many of your readers must have the opportunities of initiating the movement among the working (Church) men of their parishes: but, to be successful, the work must be taken up and carried through by the men themselves—collections by district visitors, &c., do more harm than good. F. G. BROWNE.

Barnett (conductor), 3; A. Jacob, 4; G. B. Lucas, 5; G. Griffin, 6. Also 120 Stedman Doubles. — Hubbard, 1; G. B. Lucas, 2; H. Barnett, 3; A. Jacob (conductor), 4; G. Griffin, 5; W. Dixon, 6. Tenor 17½ cwt.

KINGSTON (Surrey).—On Sunday, July 10th, for morning service, a touch of 812 Grandsire Triples. Jos. Parslow, 1; Hy. Parslow, 2; G. Gray, 3; J. Wright, 4; Thos. Hart (Eastbourne), 5; Jas. Strutt, 6; J. Smith, 7; C. Slade, 8. Conducted by Jas. Strutt.

LONG EATON (Derbyshire).—On Monday evening, July 11th, at St. Lawrence's church, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes), in 43 mins. T. Wragg, 1; A. Widdowson, 2; G. Bradley, 3; Jno. Ward, 4; W. Gilson, 5; J. Barrow, 6; J. C. Dickens (conductor), 7; T. Cope, Esq., 8. Tenor 11 cwt.

LEYLAND (Lancashire).—On Monday, June 27th, a 720 of Victoria was rung. It was attempted on Jubilee day, but being interrupted it came to grief after ringing about half of it. The above peal was composed by the late William Marsden a native of Leyland, and was first rung on the Queen's Coronation, 1838, by the old parish church ringers, none of whom survive except Mr. William Bowling, and it is nearly half a century since it was rung before. The ringers on the present occasion were as follows: Oliver Worden (conductor), 1; T. Bowling, 2; Jas. Bretherton, 3; Richard Bowling, 4; Thomas Baron, 5; Jas. Banister, 6. Tenor 18½ cwt.

LONDON.—On Sunday morning, July 10th, at St. Matthew's, Bethnal Green, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes), in 43 mins. John Dupen, 1; Matthew A. Wood, 2; Henry Edwards, 3; John Bonney, 4; Joseph West, 5; Walter Prime, 6; Arthur Hayward, 7; James Monday, 8. Composed and conducted by M. A. Wood.

OLD HILL (Staffordshire).—At Holy Trinity church, on Saturday July 9th, 720 Canterbury Pleasure, in 28 mins. W. Foxall, 1; H. Mason, 2; C. W. Bassano, 3; A. E. Parsons, 4; H. Cartwright, 5; A. H. Bassano (conductor), 6. First 720 in the method by all, and at the first attempt.

REIGATE (Surrey).—On Monday evening, July 11th, touches of Grandsire, and 588 of Stedman Triples. G. Croucher, 1; F. Hoad (conductor), 2; F. Linter, 3; T. Fuller, 4; W. Argent, 5; E. Kenward, 6; E. Moses, 7; F. Saunders, 8. This is the longest length by all except E. Moses. T. Fuller is now 70½ years old, and only commenced to ring the method a few months ago, and had never seen a bob in the method till within a month of this date, and we may say that he never failed to ring any method on six or eight bells that he tried to ring. His brother ringers hope he will ring a peal in the above method yet.

SELLEY OAK (Worcestershire).—On Sunday, July 10th, before morning service, a 1008 of Grandsire Triples. E. Boylin, 1; T. Gibbs, 2; J. Nix, 3; A. Thomas, 4; T. Lewis, 5; H. Bradley, 6; E. Bryant, 7; A. Cole, 8. This is the longest touch on the bells, which were opened on the 20th ult. by the local band after being augmented by the Messrs. Warner, of London, from a peal of six. We hope to hear of something more from this quarter at an early date.

TIPTON (Staffordshire).—On Sunday, July 5th, after evening service, being the first sermon of the Rev. A. A. Long, M.A., the new Vicar, the local company rang 350 of Grandsire Triples. E. Goodreds, 1; W. Pardoe, 2; J. Frisby, 3; C. Price, 4; J. Hall, 5; A. Hill, 6; W. R. Small (conductor), 7; H. Mills, 8. Also 504 Grandsire Triples, H. Mills, 1; E. Goodreds, 2; J. Frisby, 3; W. R. Small, 4; C. Price, 5; A. Hill, 6; W. Pardoe (conductor), 7; B. Starkey, 8. On Wednesday, July 6th, for practice, 504 Grandsire Triples. H. Mills, 1; W. R. Small, 2; S. Jesson, 3; W. Pardoe, 4; A. Hill, 5; G. Hughes (conductor), 6; J. Smith, 7; J. Prestidge, 8. Also three courses of Plain Bob Minor. G. S. Jesson, 1; W. R. Small, 2; G. Hughes, 3; W. Pardoe, 4; J. Prestidge, 5; J. Smith (conductor), 6. And a plain course of Bob Minor. S. Jesson, 1; W. R. Small, 2; G. Hughes, 3; A. Hill, 4; J. Prestidge, 5; J. Smith, 6. And several courses of Kent Treble Bob Minor. S. Jesson, 1; J. Prestidge, G. Hughes, 3; W. R. Small, 4; W. Pardoe, 5; J. Smith, 6.

WALTON-ON-THE-HILL (Lancashire).—On Sunday evening, 10th July, at St. Mary's parish, 340 of Oxford Single Bob Minor, 120 of Plain Bob Minor, and 120 of Grandsire Minor. J. Nightingale, 1; C. J. Rodgers, 2; T. R. Somerville, 3; T. Rushton, 4; R. Stockley, 5; C. E. Wilson (conductor), 6. Tenor 9 cwt.

WOOLLASTON (Staffordshire).—On Tuesday, July 9th, 360 of Oxford Treble Bob. G. Hatten, 1; C. W. Bassano, 2; J. Brooks, 3; F. Davis, 4; H. Mason, 5; W. Bird, 6. Also 360 of Kent Treble Bob. G. Hatten, 1; H. Mason, 2; F. Davis, 3; W. Bird, 4; H. Deakin, 5; C. W. Bassano, 6. Also 360 of Plain Bob. H. Mason, 1; C. W. Bassano, 2; W. Bird, 3; F. Davis, 4; J. Brooks, 5; H. Deakin, 6. Also 720 of Grandsire, in 25 mins. G. Hatten, 1; F. Davis, 2; J. Brooks, 3; C. W. Bassano, 4; W. Bird, 5; H. Mason, 6. Tenor 14 cwt. All conducted by C. W. Bassano. Messrs. Hatten, Davis, and Brooks are from Lye. H. Deakin belongs to the local band, the rest from Old Hill.

ST. NICHOLAS SOCIETY, BRIGHTON.

The members of the above society had their annual outing on Saturday, July 9th, the place selected for this years trip being Uckfield. On arrival at their destination luncheon was provided, after which the party dispersed, some to enjoy the beautiful scenery, others to "bat and trap," while one party went to the church, where a quarter-peal was started for, but came grief owing to a change-course within two or three leads of the end. At half past one, a capital dinner was served at the "King's Head" by Hostess Read, giving that lady the greatest credit. After dinner an invitation was sent by Mr. Wilson (one of the churchwardens) for the party to pay him a visit, and were conducted by that gentleman himself through his garden and grounds, and assured the members that it gave him great pleasure on seeing them, and also in listening to the ringing. A pleasant walk of two miles brought them to Buxted, where, through the kindness of the Rector (the Rev. J. P. Gell), they were allowed to ring. Several attempts were made without success, owing in a measure to the extremely hot weather, but a touch of Bob Minor was accomplished. On their way back through the park the party were delighted by several tunes struck on the bells with the chiming apparatus, by the obliging secretary of the Buxted band (Mr. A. H. Wratten). On getting back to head-quarters, tea was in readiness, and after same was over the homeward journey was commenced, arriving at Brighton at nine o'clock, all well satisfied, and only regretting that the day had seemed so short.

THE ST. ALBANS CATHEDRAL SOCIETY.

On Wednesday evening, July 6th, the above Society visited Oxhey near Watford, to have a pull on the new bells which were opened by them on June 18th. Being met upon arrival by Mr. Gibbard (a local ringer), they at once proceeded to the tower close by, and commenced by ringing a 504 of Grandsire Triples, being the first upon the bells. T. Grant, 1; H. Lewis, 2; G. W. Cartmel, 3; W. Battle, 4; G. Gibbard, 5; E. Hulks, 6; N. N. Hills (conductor), 7; H. L. Waddington, 8. This was followed by 336 in the same method, conducted by G. W. Cartmel, and 168 each of Stedman and Bob Triples, 160 of Grandsire Major, and a course of Bob Major. Tenor 8½ cwt. Altogether this is a nice little ring, and when one or two defects have been altered, the Society intend ringing the first peal on the bells, having obtained permission to do so. Messrs. A. Barnes and E. Mitchell also took part in the ringing.

The following, from a local print, appears rather "high falutin" to those in the know:—

MARRIAGE OF A BELLINGER'S DAUGHTER.—It is so long since the bells of Wood Green Parish Church were rung to celebrate a wedding that when, on Tuesday morning last, they announced such an auspicious event, many enquiries were made as to the identity of the happy bride and the happier bridegroom. A great many people also gathered round the church porch and in the street to catch a glimpse of the wedding party as they left the church. It was soon found, however, that the young couple belonged to the humbler walks of life, although unusual interest was manifested in their union. The bride was Miss A. M. Baker, daughter of Mr. J. Baker. The bridegroom was Mr. Samuel Juniper, a railway employee. The fact of the bride's father being one of the parish bellringers accounted for the merry peals which were rung at intervals during the day. Special ringers from London were engaged to assist, and the whole party were generously feasted by Mr. Baker. Handbell ringing was also extensively engaged in, Mr. Baker being himself an adept in the art, and the owner of musical sets of bells. The Rev. E. B. Scott officiated at the ceremony in the church.

WATCHES, SUN-DIALS, AND TIME.—It will be obvious that a sun-dial made for London would be useless for either Paris or Edinburgh. The altitude of the Pole star varies with the latitude, and hence is greater at Edinburgh and less at Paris than at London; and as the style must always point to the Pole star, the angle it makes with the dial-plate must vary with the latitude. Again a little consideration will show that before clocks and watches came into use there would be no such thing as Greenwich time. At the present day, no matter in what part of the British Islands we may happen to be, we regulate our watches by Greenwich time, which can always be ascertained at the nearest railway station. But when dials had to be depended upon different towns would have different time. London time would differ from that of Bristol, Glasgow from Edinburgh. It has been already stated that a place fifteen degrees to the east or west of Greenwich has noon an hour earlier or latter as the case may be; and if fifteen degrees make an hour's difference, one degree will make a difference of four minutes. Thus, it is noon at Greenwich eight minutes before noon at Liverpool, and five-and-twenty minutes before it is noon at Dublin. Of course, people might have agreed then, as now, to accept Greenwich time as the standard; but then where would have been the use of their sun-dials? Probably a uniform standard of time was not so necessary two or three centuries ago as it is now, with our railways and telegraphs and all the complex life of modern civilization. A survival of the old custom of each town having its own local time still exists at Ipswich, where the town clock indicates local time, and is therefore always about four minutes before Greenwich time.—From "Science for All" for July.

NEW RING OF BELLS FOR MALVERN PRIORY CHURCH.

The work of restoring and rehanging the bells in the above church is now completed, and the bells were heard for the first time on Jubilee day, June 21st. Some particulars of the new bells will be of interest. There are three new bells, which, added to five of the former bells, make a peal of eight. The new tenor weighs about 21 cwt., and bears the following inscription from the pen of the Rev. Dr. Gregory Smith:—"In Dei Gloriam, Vox Malvernæ Jubilantis Dilectissimam propter Reginam, MDCCCLXXXVII." Translation: "To the glory of God. The voice of Malvern keeping Jubilee, in honour of our very beloved Queen." The new fifth bell bears this inscription written by the Rev. C. L. Bathurst:—"Jubilat Anglia! Lustra Victoria Peragit Aurea! Sit Deo Gloria! MDCCCLXXXVII." The author gives the translation as follows:—" 'Tis England's Jubilee, Victoria's reign, a golden sum of lustre doth contain, each golden. Glory unto God be given." The new treble bell, the gift of Mr. Edward Archer, bears the following inscription:—"The gift of Edward Archer in the Jubilee year of good Queen Victoria, 1887." The oldest bell in the old ring, supposed by some to have been cast early in the fourteenth century, and by others to be a twelfth century bell, will in future be used for week-day services and for the clock. It bears the following inscription:—"Virginis S Egregiæ S Vocor S Campana S Mariæ," which may be translated thus:—"I am called the bell of the illustrious Virgin Mary." The intention was to have this bell recast, but through the efforts of a local antiquarian. Mr. James Nott, it was fortunately saved from the melting-pot. Mr. Nott collected £35 to effect his object. The whole cost of restoration, including extensive additions and repairs inside the tower, has been about £850, and nearly this sum has been raised. Two of the bells were given by Mrs. H. E. Dixey in memory of her father, the late Mr. J. D. Perrins, and Mr. E. Archer gave the new treble bell. The chimes are being rearranged at considerable expense, and the committee appeal for aid to meet this extra outlay.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting of this Association will be held at Kingston, on Monday, July 25th. Tower open at 3 p.m. Tea at the Leopold Coffee Tavern at 6. Business meeting at 6.30, and ringing again afterwards.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER. Hon. Sec.

THE BISHOP AND THE RUNAWAY HORSE.—One morning as the late Dr. Fraser, Bishop of Manchester, was walking along one of the streets of that city, he suddenly heard a tremendous uproar and shouting. Turning round, he noticed a tradesman's cart come tearing along driverless, the horse having determined to bolt home, while the lad was delivering a parcel. Dr. Fraser, who saw at once the risk of serious, and possibly fatal accident, stepped into the roadway, caused the animal to swerve aside, and then, running by its side for a few paces, seized the rein. This brought the cart to a standstill, and you may be sure the boy was grateful to the fearless and courageous Bishop for so valiantly stopping the runaway horse.—From "Little Folks" Magazine for July.

WIGS.—The periwig, which had been long used in France, was introduced into England soon after the Restoration. The ladies wore their hair curled and frizzed with the nicest art, and they frequently set it off with artificial curls called "heart-breakers." After the Restoration, it was natural for the courtiers to assume an appearance as distinct as possible from the enemies of the Monarchy, and, in opposition to the short hair of the Roundheads, they lengthened the periwig to the waist. It is easy to see that in many cases it was necessary to confine the hair of these wigs. That it was first confined by persons in a military capacity, appears by the names which wigs tied back had. A full wig tied back in one curl is a Major; in two curls a Brigadier; and plaited into a curl below the ribbon was a Ramilie; and thus the physicians and the lawyers became possessed of the Tye. Hogarth, who lived during the time of the wig epidemic, satirised the fashion in a print called "The Five Orders of Periwigs measured Architectonically." But there were certainly more than five orders. We have the parson's wig, the legal wig, the aldermanic wig, the episcopal wig, the composite wig, the bag wig, the wig in folio, the full-bottomed wig, the pigtail wig, the Ramilie, the scratch wig, etc. Fenitut de Eincles says that a wig in folio cost 1,000 French crowns. The full wig of an English gentleman varied in price from thirty to forty guineas. It is therefore not surprising that the swell mob of the wig period tried to possess themselves of such costly articles. Their mode of operations is thus described by Sam Rogers: "A small boy was carried, covered over in a butcher's tray by a tall man, and the wig was twitched off in a moment by the boy. The bewildered owner looked all around for it, when an accomplice impeded his progress under the pretence of assisting him while the tray-bearer made off."—From "Cassell's Family Magazine" for July.

THE VICTORIA TOWER, WESTMINSTER.

The Victoria Tower, with its regal looking, crown-shaped roof, the foundations of which, like all the others on which the new palace is built, are of immense strength, being formed of a solid mass of concrete more than fourteen feet deep, and which descends ten feet below Trinity datum. They were allowed to settle several months before the structure was commenced, on April 2nd, 1842, since which time the pile grew slowly, but surely, at the rate of twenty-three feet per year, till the whole edifice attained a height of 345 feet from base to summit, and presses upon the foundations with a weight little short of 30,000 tons. Compared with this magnificent altitude, all other towers that we know of shrink into insignificance. There are spires enough, undoubtedly, of greater height, but no towers; even that noble one at Mechlin, half spire, half tower, and which perhaps comes nearest to that at Westminster, is but 348 feet to the top of the vane, while to the top of the vane of the Victoria Tower is no less than 420—more than double the height of the Monument, more than sixty feet higher than the top of the cross of St. Paul's, and within a few feet of three times the height of the famous tower of Pisa. All the other proportions of the tower are equally massive and noble. The walls are twelve feet thick up to the base of the first tier of windows, and thence six feet. The storied windows are forty-four feet high by thirty-two wide, and five feet deep. The figures which look so small and infantine in the niches on the sides, are huge as Titans—colossal masses, nearly ten feet high, and weighing many tons. The supporters of the coats of arms of our Kings are large as horses, and massive, as if meant to be supporters to the tower, while even the four light and airy looking pinnacles which crown the whole mass above, with their little gilt tops like points of fire, are in reality themselves as large as good sized temples, and reach actually ninety feet into the air above the parapet of the tower as it now stands. But none can appreciate, or even realise, the lofty grandeur of the pile, with all its rich magnificence of decoration, by merely gazing upon it. Noble as it is in any aspect, the Victoria Tower, like other great triumphs of architecture, must be examined in detail to be felt in all its mute eloquence of form. Only when the visitor has climbed the spiral staircase, which winds with many a hundred weary step up to the very summit, when he has studied the elaborate workmanship and proportions of the exterior from the balconies under the great window, entered the lofty arcades over them, and thence mounted to the roof and pinnacles above all, can he be said to know this building, which has grown up almost unnoticed and unknown, but which is nevertheless destined to give fame and name to England's architecture for centuries to come. The tower is attached to the Palace on the north and east sides only; the south and west fronts being open to the street, the latter forming that magnificent archway which is known as the Royal entrance, and through which only the reigning Sovereign will ever be allowed to enter. The gates to this entrance are already fixed and much admired, though in spite of their exquisite tracery and the wonderful manufacturing skill which they evidence, they are not befitting the grand proportions of the tower itself. They are low in height and almost paltry in appearance, and, contrasted with the massive and solemn effect of this portion of the Palace, they are inadequate to their first duty—that of appearance, and we are sorry to see them placed there. The gateway under which Her Majesty enters is an arch of nearly sixty feet high and twenty-two wide—such an entrance as no other place in the world equals, and this leads directly into the basement of the tower. It is one huge groined arch, nearly seventy feet square at the ground, and sixty-two feet to the top of the groin. On the left is a rich carved screen leading to the Royal gallery; on the right is a grand archway similar to that of the Royal entrance. The latter however is filled in with stone tracery, and is thus transformed to a noble Gothic window, enriched with stained glass. The visitor who wishes to ascend the tower passes at once to the south octagon turret, which he enters through a low iron door. At the first moment all seems wrapt in darkness, but after a while the eye, growing accustomed to the obscurity, discerns the last step of a well staircase of iron, which winds up and up in apparently endless spirals, till the circling balustrade is merged together in the long perspective, terminating at a dim bluish spot no bigger than your hand, which marks the outlet on to the tower roof, nearly 350 feet above you. This tremendous flight of steps, the longest unbroken spiral staircase in the world, is only illuminated by the distant ray we have mentioned, and it is curious to note the solemn effect produced by the receding twilight as it penetrates deeper and deeper down the well till lost in almost total darkness. A dozen weary turns up this stair conduct the visitor by a passage to the first and largest floor in the tower—one which occupies the whole extent of the building over the great archway we have described. It is an apartment fifty-one feet square and seventeen feet six inches high, and this gives the visitor the best notion of the interior construction and of the use to which the tower is put. The tower is constructed from top to bottom of brick, stone, and iron, without any admixture of combustible materials, being thus entirely fireproof from base to summit. It is used as a grand repository for the State papers, records, and muniments of the nation, and for this purpose it is divided into eleven storeys, each of which, with the exception of the basement storey and the first floor immediately over it, contains sixteen fireproof rooms. All these floors are communicated with by means of a most singularly constructed flying spiral staircase of iron, which passes through an octagon aperture in all the floors, with each of which it joins by means of a short landing. The well of this beautiful staircase is about ten feet in diameter, and a similar aperture is made in the groined roof of the Royal archway, by which is kept closed by means of a sliding iron door. When however this is drawn back, a person standing on the ground under the centre of the tower, can see up at a glance, as through a telescope, from the bottom to the top. The roof of the tower is sloping, reaching about sixteen feet above the parapet, and surrounded with a gilt railing six feet high. The four corners are guarded by four stone lions twenty feet high, and from the base of the corners spring four cast-iron flying arched buttresses, which are formed in the centre in a kind of crown about thirty feet above the roof. The upper edge of these buttresses are decorated with a richly gilt wrought iron railing, which makes them when united, still more resemble a coronet, and in keeping with the regal aspect of the tower. Resting on the roof, and passing upwards through the four points of these buttresses which support it, is the flagstaff, a flagstaff in proportion to the rest of the pile, and strong enough to withstand the flaunts of the acre of bunting which flutter from it on gala days. Seen from the outside the great general features we have attempted to describe look bolder and more striking still, and though the ornaments are so numerous, the tracery so multiplied, and the height of the whole mass from the eye so great, there is still no confusion of parts. The mind fixes its massive and just proportions without distraction, and as the eye glances down its sculptured records of our line of kings, with all their bright historical associations connected with the very parliament to which it marks the entrance, the visitor feels that it is more than a mere tower; it is a sculptured monument of our great history as a nation; it is a monarchy in stone.

FASHIONABLE DOGS.—Dogs—small dogs, and especially terriers and spaniels—will hold henceforth an important place in the existence of their mistresses, and these four-footed gentlemen already have their fashions like—I was going to say—those who walk on two feet. Well, in Paris their fashion this season is a travelling cloak of thick cloth either checked or striped, with a belt of leather, and a hood, lined with very bright silk, either red or blue. This is either allowed to fall over the shoulders, or it is raised to cover the ears of the doggie, should the latter be delicate, and it can be fastened back to the body-belt by means of a ring. The waterproof cloaks are of the same shape, but are minus the strap, while the hood is pointed, and when thrown back can be fastened to the dog's collar. They are made in waterproofing in a shade of silver grey or of impermeable silk of the old-fashioned shade of pink, or of tiny checks or light zephyr stripes. These are the outcome of the season, and will create a sensation at the seaside. The collar which Mme. Ledouble has designed to complete these cloaks is a twist of leather in several different tones corresponding with those of the cloak, and closes either with a padlock or a bunch of balls. —From "The Lady's World" for July.

VISIT OF THE ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE SOCIETY TO SHEFFIELD.

On Saturday, the 2nd instant, the ringers of Ashton visited Sheffield, in response to an invitation from the Sheffield Amalgamated Society, who wished to return the compliment paid by the Ashton ringers last summer. On account of the intense heat very little tower ringing was indulged in, for tossing a tenor of 41 cwt. in tropical weather is not calculated to keep one's blood at the lowest temperature. The evening, however, was spent in a far more pleasant manner. Dinner was provided at the rendezvous "The Queen" at six o'clock, when over fifty sat down, and the "changes" made in the following hour were too numerous to record, but every man kept well to his "work," finished his "course," and came "round" to the same conclusion fully satisfied. The after proceedings were commenced at the request of the company by the hero of the Mottram peal, Mr. Samuel Wood, tapping on the piano in a wonderfully clever manner three leads of Treble Twelve, and later in the evening he also tapped a course of Grandsire Royal. Mr. John Lomas, president of the Sheffield Association, took the chair, and on being requested gave a very interesting account of a peal of Kent Treble Bob Royal rung in 1846 and recorded on a curious old jug which is in the possession of Mr. Thomas Hattersley, and which was pretty freely used during the evening. In front of the jug, which is of good size, is the following inscription:—"Ars ignota ab ignorantibus dispicata" and below, "Composed and Conducted by William Booth, 1846." On the right hand side is the following:—"At the parish church, Sheffield, on Monday, March 23rd was rung on the ten bells 5200 true changes of Kent Treble Bob Royal, in 3 hours and 40 minutes, by the following persons:—William Booth, 1; Thomas Whaley, 2; George Hudson, 3; William Earnshaw, 4; John Hutchinson, 5; George Wilson, 6; Thomas Gay, 7; James Walker, 8; Robert Heald, 9; James Taylor, 10. Weight of tenor 41 cwt.

"This Society met on this occasion to honour Mr. William Booth with conducting his farewell peal. He has attained the age of sixty-three years and has assisted in the principal performances with the Sheffield and Rotherham Society." On the other side is the peal.

Mr. C. H. Hattersley proposed "the Health of the Ashton ringers," and said how proud he and his fellow ringers of Sheffield were in having for their guests such a clever band of men, ringers second to none in the country, and he trusted that the friendship which had lasted over 100 years, would, through the younger ringers at that meeting, be handed down to posterity, and that the cordiality so essential to the welfare of mankind, would long continue to exist between the ringers of the two towns.

Mr. Samuel Wood, in responding to the toast on behalf of the Ashton ringers, said: He could not find words to express the feelings of himself and his friends at being able to be with the Sheffield ringers on that occasion, and thereby sustain the mutual friendship and friendly gatherings which had been instituted by their ancestors, and of which he had heard his grandfather speak in terms of the highest praise. The "Health of the Sheffield ringers" was proposed by Mr. James Wood, supported with a few brief remarks from Messrs. John Thorp, Geo. Longden, and Joe Mellowes.

The handbells were brought into requisition at intervals during the evening, and a few tunes were rung by the ringers of both towns, and two selections were also given by Messrs. Geo. Holmes (Sheffield), and Wm. Burgar (Sheffield), in a very masterly manner. The company were also very much pleased at Mr. Frith's (Ashton) rendering of "The Sexton" and other songs. One of the most interesting features of the evening was a course of Grandsire Caters on the handbells, each performer having rung over 100 peals. Their names will be recognised as earnest supporters of campanology. John Thorp (Ashton), 1-2; C. H. Hattersley (Sheffield), 3-4; Samuel Wood (Ashton), 5-6; T. Hattersley (Sheffield), 7-8; Geo. Longden (Ashton), 9-10. As the time for parting came round, due homage was paid to the Queen, whose health had been drunk in a very loyal and hearty manner during the proceedings, with special reference to her jubilee, and with good wishes for her future welfare. It is to be hoped that other ringers will follow the example of the Sheffield and Ashton men, and by visiting neighbouring towns increase the interests of ringers and ringing generally.

THE ST. PAUL'S GUILD, BRIGHTON.

The members of the above Guild held their annual outing on Monday, July 4th, when a visit was paid to Reigate and Bletchingley, in Surrey. The party, consisting of Messrs. A. Bennett (captain), J. Reilly, G. Biggerstaff, J. Salmon, W. Allfrey, P. Allfrey, and C. Griffiths, left Brighton terminus by the fast train leaving at 7.35 a.m., arriving at Red Hill Junction about half-past eight. Without delay the party at once proceeded by road to Reigate, being joined shortly afterwards by four other members of the Guild, Messrs. H. Eves, G. Hills, J. Mockett, and J. E. Worsell. Having arrived at Reigate, the members were met by Mr. Argent, the energetic secretary of the local company, who after the usual morning salutations had been exchanged, conducted them to the tower of St. Mary's, the ancient parish church, when at once the fine old peal of bells, tenor 21 cwt., cast in E flat, were set in motion to the tune of 336 Grandsire Triples, and in order to enable the younger members of the band to have a pull, several 168's were rung, and various other small touches. At eleven o'clock an attempt was made to ring a quarter-peal, but it came to grief after ringing over 300 changes, through the fifth rope slipping the wheel. After taking a walk through the church, and noticing many interesting features which the sacred edifice contains, more notably the many excellent specimens of stained glass to be found here, the party wended their way to Bletchingley, a small village about five miles distant. Having arrived at Redhill, a waggonette was procured at Laker's well-known hostelry, which conveyed the party the remainder of the journey to Bletchingley, where an excellent dinner was provided by host J. Bashford, of "Ye Red Lion Inne," to which ample justice was done. Mr. A. Benwell (captain), presided, while Mr. Meads, of Hayward's Heath (who had accompanied the party), occupied the vice-chair. Following the repast, a short toast list was gone through, and two or three songs rendered by members of the band. Mr. J. Bashford, jun., also partook of dinner with the Brighton ringers. At half-past three the ringers attempted a quarter-peal on the musical ring of bells to be found in the tower of St. Mary's, the parish church, but owing to the excessive heat, and the tenor not going so well as could be desired, it had to be abandoned. After a substantial tea had been partaken of at host Bashford's, various short touches were rung, including one of 500 Grandsire Triples. W. Allfrey, 1; G. Biggerstaff, 2; H. Bennett, 3; J. Bashford, 4; —. Killick, 5; J. Reilly (conductor), 6; H. Boniface, 7; —. Bains, 8. Messrs. Allfrey, Biggerstaff, Bennett, and Reilly, hail from Brighton, and Messrs. Bashford, Killick, Boniface, and Bains, hail from Bletchingley. After a social hour with the local ringers, the members made for Redhill station, arriving at Brighton terminus at 10.45 p.m. Although much ringing was not done, and the quarter-peals were not brought round, much to the ringers' dismay, sufficient for the day was the enjoyment thereof.

STOKE-ON-TRENT ARCHIDIACONAL ASSOCIATION.

There will be a Committee Meeting of the above Association in the Church Room, Stoke, on Saturday, July 16th, at 4.30. All members are invited.
E. GLOVER, Hon. Sec.

The peal of Grandsire Triples (Hollis's Five Part) that was rung at Lindfield, Sussex, by the Brighton Branch of the Sussex County Association, on Wednesday, June 29th, when no conductor was mentioned in the report, was conducted by Charles Tyler, a Southdown ringer.

THE TITHE RENT-CHARGE BILL.

At the meeting of the House of Laymen on Wednesday, July 6th, Mr. J. G. HUBBARD, M.P. (London), moved the following resolution with respect to this measure:—

"That, in the opinion of this House, the Tithe Rent-Charge Bill, as amended by the House of Lords, will operate beneficially, especially in the clauses which provide for the easier recovery of the rent-charge and for its redemption when it is due in small sums."

The right hon. gentleman thought it was a monstrous thing that this Bill was introduced in reply to a most scandalous outbreak in North Wales. The tithe rent-charge, as everybody knew, was a legal payment, and as much due to the titheowner as land-tax or rates to the local authority, and nothing could excuse the way in which occupiers of land in Wales had refused to comply with their obligations to hand over money, for which they had received the full consideration, to those who were the owners of it. He thought it was very lamentable that the Government did not on the first appearance of this outrage, take summary means for the purpose of suppressing it, and not to have permitted it to assume an aspect of immunity. However, it was no doubt for the purpose of remedying this difficulty that this Bill had been brought in, and therefore they owed to that desire to allay the irritation existing the clause which made the rent-charge in the future a liability of the landowner, and also apparently destroyed the process of distraint as a means of recovery. He said apparently destroyed, because it did not actually, for the land rent would have to be collected by distress, so distress could not be altogether avoided. He thought the Bill was worthy of approval in respect of the provision for the constitution of a Court of Appeal, and also for facilitating the commutation of small portions of tithe rent-charge. The Bill was calculated to facilitate the commutations of these small portions of tithe rent-charge whose collection now was very precarious and troublesome. He did not anticipate, however, that a Bill of so comprehensive a character would pass into law without further consideration and amendment.

Mr. G. B. RICHARDSON supported the resolution, but pointed out that he thought the Bill needed amendment in the part which provided that if a landlord received no rent he paid no tithe, and if he received only a part of the rent, he paid only a part of the tithe. He thought the titheowner should be more secured. The Bill as it stood now was so infinitely improved on what it was last session, that he hoped the House would unanimously adopt a resolution approving it.

Mr. C. S. READ (Norwich), proposed the following amendment:—

"To leave out all words after 'beneficially,' in order to insert 'in compelling the landowner himself to pay the tithe rent-charge, but as it fails to remedy the injustice of the corn returns, and the other defects of which the agricultural interest complains, it is not likely to stop the tithe agitation which has already done so much mischief to the Church.'"

Mr. READ thought the tithe rent-charges were a great injustice to farmers, and too high in consideration of the present corn averages. He spoke as a tenant farmer, and the portion of the Act of which the farmers complained was the seven years average. Seven years' average was too long, and it made the farmer pay the greatest tithe when the price of corn was lowest. That had been the result ever since 1836, and he entirely concurred with the right hon. gentleman who moved the resolution, that it was monstrous this Bill should be brought in simply and solely because of the tithe agitation in Wales. The farmers of East Anglia had for years been asking that this tithe question should be settled, and the Act of 1836 repealed, but they had not been regarded. Unless one kicked up a row in these days, and began actually to resist the law and fight the authorities, nobody cared at all for your protest. He contended that the Bill had not improved in its passage through the House of Lords, for it was now a reciprocity all on one side, and that was on the side of the titheowner. The tithepayer was not considered in any respect whatever, and it seemed entirely to ignore the inability of the landowner or the tenant-farmer to pay the tithe in a great number of instances. He maintained that the Bill as it stood was not worthy of being passed; it would not stop the agitation, and, in his opinion, it would be a very unfair Bill to every landowner in the kingdom.

Mr. WILLIAMS (Ban), though differing from the opinions and arguments of Mr. Read, seconded the amendment pro forma.

Earl NELSON remarked that the Bill relieved to a certain extent the tenant-farmer, because it took the payment from the tenant-farmer and put it on the landlord, and the landlord was likely to be much longer on the soil than the tenant-farmer, therefore the seven years' average did not apply.

Mr. Stanley LEIGHTON, M.P. (Lichfield), said that Mr. Read got up to speak as a tenant-farmer, but he really argued for the landowner.

Mr. CARLYON proposed to amend the motion by leaving out the word "easier," and inserting "for the recovery from the landowner of the rent-charge."

Mr. HUBBARD agreed to this proposal, and Mr. Read withdrawing his amendment, the motion was then unanimously adopted by the House.

Mr. Osborne Morgan has sent a long letter to the Times, in which he says:—

"It is true that an attempt has now been made to adjust the burden of the tithe rent-charge to the fall in the value of agricultural produce. But in many parts of Wales that fall has been altogether out of proportion to the reduction in charge. The Welsh landlords as a rule have acknowledged the fact and have reduced the rents by 25 per cent. or more. Is it surprising that when tithe proprietors claim to be pro tanto co-owners of the land, the tenant should ask and expect them to make corresponding reductions? In many parts, not only of Wales, but of England, the tithe is the 'feather which breaks the camel's back.' I am myself in the unhappy position of having a farm on my hands, the profits of which would certainly have been eaten up by that charge if there had been any profits to eat up. It is only just to the Welsh clergy to say that to the best of their ability they have met this claim for reduction fairly and liberally, and when they have done so the tithe has been paid, if not so cheerfully, at least without disturbance. In two instances only have all applications of the kind been steadily refused. Christ Church, one of the richest colleges, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, one of the richest corporations in the world, have in all cases insisted on their 'pound of flesh,' and doubtless at law they are entitled to do it. But the enforcement of such a claim under such circumstances reminds me of a saying of the late Mr. Justice Maule, who, when the plaintiff's counsel asserted that the defendant could rely neither on law nor on equity, quietly observed—'Then there is some chance that he may have justice on his side.'"

"But be this as it may, it would be idle to deny that what most rankles in the mind of the Welsh tithe payer is not the amount but the application of the rent-charge. The Welsh farmer, living as he does in the rural districts where Dissent is strongest, is generally a Nonconformist, and the disestablishment and disendowment of the Church in Wales is, rightly or wrongly, a fundamental article of his faith. If he knew that the tax which he pays was devoted to some really national object and not to the maintenance of a Church which he never enters, he would endeavour to pay it with as little reluctance as he now pays a school board rate. Far be it for me to discuss in a letter like this the vexed question of ecclesiastical endowments. But surely the most bigoted champion of the Church in Wales will admit that when twenty-six out of thirty Welsh members are returned to the House of Commons pledged to the disestablishment of that Church, and when its revenues have to be collected at the point of the bayonet, an opportunity ought to be granted for the full discussion of the question in Parliament? Such an opportunity was obtained when Mr. Dillwyn secured the first place on the second working night of the present session for his motion on the subject. But it was wrested from him by Mr. W. H. Smith and the Conservative and Liberal Unionist majority which supported him on the pretext that the Government could not spare a single day or fraction of a day from the discussion of their procedure rules, all of which, with the exception of the first, have now been definitely abandoned." Mr. Morgan says that he has not heard a single word in commendation of the Bill either from Liberals or Conservatives, and that it is obvious that if it were ten times as popular as it is its chance of passing through the House of Commons this session must be very remote.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—In your issue of Saturday last I notice a peal at Hanbury, which is said to be the first Jubilee peal in Worcestershire. Allow me to say that a Jubilee peal was rung here on the 21st of June, and duly recorded through your valuable paper.

R. EATON.

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—I am very much obliged to Mr. Dains for his letter which appeared in your last issue, and beg to say in reply thereto, that at the time I sent the peals for publication I was not aware of the existence of the previous publication of the same peals, and I now ask you to withdraw my name from the same. I may add that I have and never had any intention of using the property of others (as he implies), and he may rest assured I never shall. It has unfortunately for me been one of those accidental occurrences which may happen to anyone, of dropping upon ground already trodden over. I may also add that the 5000 which appeared in my name in your last issue, is only a variation of the same peal, and is therefore not mine. I trust this explanation will suffice.

JOHN R. PRITCHARD.

SIR,—Mr. Dains in his letter of last week points out the fact that a 5040 of Treble Bob Royal by me which appeared in your issue of May 21st, is the same one by Mr. Reeves, which appears in Shipway's book. This may be so, but not having the Shipway reprint before I had composed it, it is not such a matter of surprise that I may have accidentally dropped on a similar, though to my thinking, a better peal than the Original as it appears in the above work. Of course Mr. Dains says his letter may not be palatable to me, yet I think that if it was not for the unpalatable prospect of Mr. Pitstow claiming the 5024 he refers to, his critical letter would never have appeared.

ROBERT WILLIAMS.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

SIR,—In the autumn of 1884 a beautiful new church was opened at Skelton-in-Cleveland, Yorks. A peal of six bells from the Loughborough Foundry were placed in the fine tower. They are the heaviest in the district, the tenor weighing 22 cwt. Neighbouring rings of bells, such as Middlesbro', Stockton, Darlington, and Guisborough, are all comparatively light. Why don't the Stockton men (who have lately done such good work in their own district) take a run over to Skelton and see what they can do with the metal there. By-the-way, is there any chance of the idea of increasing the Stockton peal to ten being carried out? It needs doing very much, as the present bells in Stockton parish church are scarcely what they should be, seeing they are the only peal in that Tees-side town. I hope soon to hear of some scientific work being done at Skelton.

GRANDSIRE BOB.

QUICK PEALS OF GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—I suppose it will be admitted that there is a limit to the speed in which changes can be rung on church bells. Having studied ringing myself pretty closely for a period of fifty years, I believe that on eight bells, the limit will be about thirty per minute. Now peals have been reported in "THE BELL NEWS" as having been rung much faster, such peals described as Holt's Original (reversed), which peal is reported twice as having been rung on the bells of Holy Trinity Church, Newington, in two hours and forty-three minutes, which feat I cannot accept as correct, as it will occupy only half a minute less time to ring the peal at thirty-one per minute, which rate of speed I believe to be impossible on a peal with the tenor a ton weight. On the 23rd of May last, I had the pleasure of listening to some good ringing at St. Mary's, Woolwich, for an hour and a quarter, and applied the time test and found them going at about thirty per minute, rather under than over that number, so that a complete peal would have required at least two hours forty-eight minutes for completion instead of which I found it reported in "THE BELL NEWS" of May 28th as having been rung in two hours thirty-seven minutes. I have seen but two of the band who rang in the peal, and they are both positive there was no mistake in the time of ringing, so that the peal must have been between three and four hundred changes short, as, if it were possible to ring the bells at thirty-two changes per minute it would require another half minute to accomplish a complete peal of Triples, so I think in future it will be only fair to describe the peals rung as Holt's Original reversed and abridged.

RINGERS AND THE JUBILEE.

The following letter has appeared in the Northampton Daily Chronicle:—

SIR,—In your issue of Saturday I read an account of the financial meeting of the Jubilee Committee. In that report I see that the ringers of St. Giles's send in a claim of £5, and the other ringers of their respective churches a similar claim of £5 5s., for bell-ringing on Jubilee Day. I was much astonished, therefore, to find that these amounts were to be lowered to suit the private opinions of the gentlemen forming the Committee. When you consider the time the ringers were at work (and that no light work either on a hot sultry day), from six in the morning and at intervals until ten at night, and, what is more their enforced absence in consequence from the surrounding festivities of the day, you need scarcely wonder that they would want well paying for their work. I am surprised, if the ringers' charges were thought excessive, that the amount for the Temperance band, £24 12s., was considered so moderate, for not so many bandsmen were employed as ringers, and surely a bell-ringer was quite as great a factor in the merriment of the day as a number of musicians, and his work quite as difficult and much harder labour. The band began their work in the afternoon about two o'clock; the ringers were at their ropes at six in the morning. In the next place, there were more than eight members in attendance at each church, for you must relieve a ringer at various times; so that the amount charged is in reality much too moderate. A man may earn 7s. 6d. per day and leave off his labour at six in the evening, and you can hardly expect him to give up his enjoyment on a day like the Jubilee for the same amount of recompense—at least I for one would not do it. I have seen several representatives of the various ringing societies in the town, and I am informed that they endeavoured before the day to get an understanding as to the money to be paid for ringing, but after several enquiries and communications it appeared as though no one had any responsibility in the matter, but on the eve of the 21st they were told they would all be treated well. Again, why are the All Saints' ringers to be put off with 30s. for the Thursday following, for ringing was continued from 12 noon until 10 p.m., and for that work they are offered the paltry sum of 3s. 9d. each. I hope the ringers of the different towns will stick up for their rights, and show the Committee that though ringers they do not hold themselves quite so cheap as to have prices dictated to them by those who know nothing about ringing, and who probably under-estimate the skill of a campanologist. —Yours very truly.

A JUBILEE RINGER.

TURNER AT FARNLEY HALL.—Turner's abruptness of speech is still remembered at Farnley. A genuine love of art runs through the Fawkes family, and one of the daughters, anxious for his criticism, ventured one day timidly to lay before him a water-colour drawing of her own. His only comment was, "Put it in a jug of water." Her momentary chagrin was great, but on turning the advice over in her mind she became persuaded that in that one pregnant sentence Turner had revealed one of his secrets. He certainly worked in what may be called a "sloppy" manner. Only once did he relax his usual secretiveness, and let Mr. Fawkes see him at work. At breakfast one morning the conversation turned upon war-ships, and Mr. Fawkes, handing a small bit of paper to Turner, said, "Show me the size of a man-of-war on that." The idea tickled Turner. He took his host to his room, and in his presence, and before the end of the morning, produced the highly-finished, marvellous water-colour now hanging in the Saloon at Farnley, called "The 'First Rate' taking in Stores." The same ship is repeated three times at different angles and different distances, with every detail accurate and clear. It was a wonderful feat of memory and of speed, but the method of working was no less remarkable. The paper was soaked, blistered, daubed, rubbed, scratched with the thumb nail (kept hideously long for the purpose), until at length beauty and order broke from chaos.—S. A. Byles, in the "Magazine of Art" for July.

THE SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS. JUBILEE BANQUET.—[Communicated.]

On Saturday evening, June 25th, the above society held a banquet at the Holborn Restaurant in honour of Her Majesty's Jubilee, at which there was a large attendance, most of the principal officers and members of the society being present.

Punctually at 5 p.m., the worthy Master of the society, Mr. H. S. Thomas, took the chair, being supported right and left by the Rev. F. W. Pawson, and Dr. Dulcken, respectively. After the repast, which was thoroughly enjoyed by everybody, the following toast list was duly honoured.

The first toast, that of "The Queen," was given by Dr. Dulcken, who took the opportunity of briefly referring to Her Gracious Majesty's reign of fifty years, and, after comparing the various periods of her reign with those of her predecessors, succeeding in convincing the company of the very great honour that was due to her for the way she had upheld the dignity of the English throne for half a century. The toast, which was received with great applause, was succeeded by "God save the Queen," and by some good ballads by Messrs. Orchard and Serjeant, when "Church and State" was proposed by Mr. E. F. Cole, and responded to by the Rev. F. W. Pawson.

Mr. C. C. DURRANT, who proposed "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces," created much merriment by his pithy remarks in comparing these several distinguished forces to each other, and reminding the company what a high position they severally held in the eyes of the British public.
