"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

To Geo. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE ST. SIDWELL'S SOCIETY, EXETER.

On Saturday, March 10th, a social gathering of the above Society was held at "The Poltimore Inn," for the purpose of presenting Mr. W. Mundy with a handsome framed photograph group of the members, he being about to leave this city for Birmingham.

Mr. FERRIS SHEPHERD occupied the chair, and on making the presentation on behalf of the members, alluded to the kind and genial disposition of Mr. Mundy, and the great loss the Society would sustain by his departure. This, he said, was the second member of no mean ability who had received their tuition at St. Sidwell's, and gone to Birmingham. What was their loss was Birmingham's gain. At the cutlers' town they had certainly a lot more scope for their ringing abilities, and so perhaps on the whole it was best, so as it could be a benefit to the Exercise. They could ill afford the loss of such men from the West of England, where good change-ringers were scarce; they must however make the best of such matters, and wish the recipient every success.

Mr. W. MUNDY, on receiving the present, said that he was very sorry to leave them all, but it was a matter of business, and so it could not be avoided. With regard to the present, he must say that he should be very proud of it and value it very much, and he hoped that he should have the pleasure of ringing a good many more peals with them. Although he was going from among them he should never forget the pleasant time he had spent with the St. Sidwell's Society. He thanked them all for their kindness, and hoped that he should be spared to come down and see and ring with them again. He should endeavour to do his best with regard to ringing in Birmingham if he could get in with a Society. He hoped that the St. Sidwell's Society would prosper and go ahead, which he had no doubt they would if they stuck together.

Mr. T. J. LAKE then made a few remarks. In speaking of the Society he said that it could boast of sending to other towers men who need not to be afraid to stand in with any band in the Exercise as regards striking their bells. Although Mr. Mundy was going from them no doubt he would do justice to the Society in which he first learnt to ring.

Mr. J. MOSS then proposed the health of Mr. W. Mundy. In doing so he observed that while Mr. Mundy had been among them he had gained the respect of all connected with it. He was he knew speaking the sentiments of all when he said that he was very sorry that he was going to leave them, but he knew that though distant he would never be forgotten, and as a change-ringer no doubt he would make a good headway in the town he was about to go. In conclusion he wished Mr. Mundy a most successful career in Birmingham, and also good health to enjoy it.

The toast was drunk with musical honours, the company standing and singing "Auld Lang Syne." The rest of the evening was spent in singing, etc., Mr. E. Shepherd presiding at the piano, and a very present evening was spent. Before the above took place the following rang the first half of Holt's ten-part peal of Grandsire (Triples (2520 changes), at St. Sidwell's church, in 1 hr. 30 mins. F. Davey, 1; E. Shepherd, 2; A. Shepherd, 3; S. Binfield, 4; W. Munday, 5; J. Moss, 6; F. Shepherd (conductor), 7; B. Mundy, 8.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Tuesday, March 13th, the Ryde (I.W.) Band visited Newport, where they were met by the Newport band, and rang the plain course and a few short touches of Grandsire Triples. S. Salisbury, 1; O. Combes, 2; H. Jennings, 3; W. Jennings, 4; G. Derrick (conductor), 5; J. Norris, 6; A. Carley, H. Hatcher, W. Baker, 7; A. Ward, 8. Also three 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles on the back six. *W. Jennings, 1; *O. Combes, 2; *H. Jennings, 3; W. Baker, 4; *G. Derrick (conductor), 5; *A. Ward, 6. *First attempt at Doubles. After a slight refreshment the handbells were brought into use, and the plain course and some touches of Grandsire Triples were rung. R. Ward, 1-2; W. Ward, 3-4; G. Derrick (conductor), 5-6; H. Jennings, 7-8. The Newport band very cleverly played some favourite ballads on their splendid peal of twenty-seven bells. The ringers beg to thank Mr. Moody, foreman of the Newport band for having everything in readiness.

STRATTON, STRAWLESS, NORFOLK.—RESTORATION OF THE BELLS.

The fine ring of six bells in St. Margaret's church in this parish had for a long time been in a most unsatisfactory condition, as they were neither tunable nor ringable. Some months ago, Miss Helen Matchett, daughter of the rector, made an appeal for funds to put the bells into a fitting and proper condition. Too much credit cannot be given to this young lady for the energy she has displayed. All lovers of bells and all practical ringers, as well as the parishioners, must tender her their hearty thanks. Thursday, March 15th, was the day appointed for the opening ceremony. At 11 a.m. a short and simple service was conducted in the church by the rector (the Rev. H. H. Matchett, M.A., R.N.). Special Psalms and Collects were used, and the well-known hymn,

"Now at length our bells are mounted,
To their holy place on high,

was very heartily sung by the choir and the ringers and the congregation present. Immediately after service ringing commenced. A well-struck 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor was rung by the following band. F. Day (Eye), 1; G. Day (Eye), 2; Rev. N. Bolingbroke (Secretary of the Norwich Association), 3; G. Moy (Aylsham), 4; P. Sadler (St. Peter Mancroft), 5; Captain A. P. Moore (Redenhall), 6. The Aylsham band next took the ropes and did some excellent ringing, as also the St. Peter Mancroft, Norwich, band at a later hour. The ringing was continued by the local men and others from Coltishall, Hevingham, Marsham, and Worstead. The work of restoring the bells has been carried out by Messrs. G. and F. Day, of Eye, Suffolk. The old frame has been strengthened, and the bells have been re-hung with new stocks, wheels, and all other gear. The bells have been fitted with reversible crown staples, so that at any time the clappers may be made to strike upon a fresh point. They have also been tuned, so now give forth a sound musically correct. A chiming apparatus on the Ella-combe system has been constructed, and is the gift of the rector and his family in memory of Queen Victoria's Jubilee. The visitors were hospitably entertained during the day at the rectory. The handbell ringing and tune-playing of Mr. Knights and his company added to the life of the gathering. In the evening the local ringers and other friends were invited to supper at the parish schoolroom.

THE CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

A Committee Meeting of this Guild was held on Saturday last, March 17th, in the Chapter House of the Cathedral, with the Archdeacon of Chester in the chair. The following local branches were reported: 1, Wirral with 11 churches and 69 ringing members, 14 probationers, and 5 honorary members; 2, Macclesfield with 7 churches and 30 ringing members, 2 probationers, and 4 honorary members; 3, Grappenhall with 4 churches and 27 ringing members, 4 honorary members; 4, Run-corn with 1 church and 7 ringing members.

A certificate of membership, and also a notice of union, and a form of prayer for the belfries, were agreed upon. The Annual Meeting was fixed for Bank Holiday, August 6th, at Chester. The Committee hope that before that time all the belfries in the Diocese will have joined the Guild.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting will be held at Wimbledon, by the kind permission of the Rev. Canon Haygarth, on Easter Monday, April 2nd. The tower will be open for ringing from 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The tea at 6 p.m. at the Welcome Coffee Tavern, will be free to all those ringing members whose subscriptions are paid, and who send notice to the Manager by Thursday, March 29th (at the latest) of their intention to be present. All others will be charged 1s. 6d. a head. The business meeting will follow the tea.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

ON Friday evening, March 16th, a supper took place at the St. Paul's Meeting-House, "The Goose and Gridiron," St. Paul's Churchyard, to celebrate the non-conducted peals (Holt's Original, and Holt's ten-part), rang on handbells by Messrs. Mitchell, Buckingham, Winny, and McLaughlin, and also the peal of Stedman Triples likewise rang on handbells, and conducted by Challis F. Winny. Eighteen sat down to supper, namely, Messrs. Winny, Haworth, Rowbotham, J. M. Hayes, H. R. Newton, Dawe, Horrex, G. Mash, McLaughlin, Judd, and R. T. Woodley (Hon. Sec.), and Messrs. W. H. L. Buckingham, Mitchell, Cartmel, and Debenham (St. Albans), and Messrs. W. Baron, J. Barry, and G. Wild, of the Royal Cumberland Youths. Amongst others invited but could not attend were Messrs. M. A. Wood, Cooter, French, Gibbs, and Gover, and T. Waller, H. Lewis, N. N. Hills, and W. Battle (St. Albans). The room was tastefully arranged, the tables being lighted with fairy lamps, and Mr. Making had successfully attended to the foraging department.

Mr. WOODLEY having taken the chair, and Mr. W. BARON the vice-chair, supper was successfully negotiated in four courses. After the cloth was removed,

The CHAIRMAN gave the toast which always stands first at any festive assembly, namely, "The Queen and Royal Family."

The next toast was "The Ancient Society of College Youths, and the London and Provincial Associations."

Mr. G. MASH replied on behalf of his own Society, and Mr. BARON for the remainder. The latter alluded to the non-conducted peals, stated that he considered it an honour to be umpire to them, and also the Stedman Triples, and wound up by adding that he hoped it would not be long before he was asked to be umpire at an attempt for a silent peal of Stedman.

The next toast was that of "The Non-Conducted peal band," (Messrs. Winny, Mitchell, Buckingham, and McLaughlin), was well received, the Chairman praising the patience and perseverance shown by them, and which ultimately led to success, and enabled them to accomplish their performances.

Mr. WINNY and Mr. BUCKINGHAM having replied, the toast of "The Ringing Periodicals" was given, coupled with the name of Mr. J. R. Haworth, and to which he suitably replied. It having leaked out that the 16th was Mr. Dawe's birthday, the Chairman at once asked the company to drink Mr. Dawe's health, which was accordingly done.

Mr. DAWE replied in an exceedingly humorous manner. Just as Great Paul's brother had struck the last blow of the midnight hour, and which ushered in the festival of St. Patrick, and likewise Mr. Winny's birthday, Mr. Making proposed amid applause the health of Mr. Winny. Musical honours, and a reply from Mr. Winny brought Mr. Baron to the front, who proposed the toast to the Chairman, which Mr. Dawe seconded. This was carried in the usual way. After the Chairman's reply, "Auld Lang Syne" terminated the proceedings.

During the evening a non-conducted touch of Stedman Triples was rung by Messrs. Mitchell, 1-2; C. F. Winny, 3-4; W. H. L. Buckingham, 5-6; G. McLaughlin, 7-8. Also a course of Grandsire Caters. J. Mitchell, 1-2; C. F. Winny, 3-4; G. Cartmel, 5-6; W. H. L. Buckingham, 7-8; E. P. Debenham, 9-10. Amongst those who added to the harmony with songs were Messrs. Newton, Wild, Judd, Woodley, Rowbotham, Haworth, Barry, and Baron.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A District Meeting will be held at Romford, on Saturday, April 7th. The belfry of St. Edward's church (eight bells), which has lately been restored and the bells rehung, will be at the disposal of members of the Association during the day. A meat tea (price 6d. to members who give notice to the Secretary before Tuesday, April 3) will be supplied in the National School-room at 5 p.m., and the usual business meeting will be held afterwards. Return tickets at reduced fares will be issued by the Great Eastern Railway to members who inform the Secretary before April 3 from what station they intend to travel, and exhibit at the booking office their receipt for the current year's subscription.

T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

Writtle Vicarage, Chelmsford.

RE-OPENING OF THE PARISH CHURCH BELLS, LEEDS, YORKS.

ON Easter Monday, April 2nd, the above bells, which have been undergoing a thorough repair by Messrs. T. Mallaby and Sons, Masham, Yorks., will be re-opened by the Leeds company attempting the late J. Tebbs' celebrated peal of Grandsire Caters (5579 changes), containing the sixty course-ends, commencing at 6 o'clock a.m. After the peal the tower and handbells will be at the disposal of visitors during the day. The Leeds company will be glad to see as many brother ringers as can make it convenient to attend, and will also do their best to make up companies.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The Sixth Annual Meeting of this Association will be held at Derby, on Easter Monday, April 2nd, 1888, and the usual towers (except St. Luke's) will be open for ringing between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Committee meeting in St. Andrew's parish room, at 3 p.m. Tea in the School-room at 4 p.m., tickets 1s. each. General meeting and election of officers immediately after tea, to which all ringers and friends are earnestly invited.

The Easter handbell competition will take place after the general meeting.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting of the above Association will take place on Easter Monday, April 2nd, at Worcester. As no definite arrangements have yet been made, full particulars will appear next week.

J. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE.—The Annual Meeting will be held at Devizes, on Wednesday, May 30th next. Full particulars will be published shortly before that date. A supplementary meeting will be held at or near Dinton, in August next.

J. R. JERRAM, Secretary.

A CO-OPERATIVE FESTIVAL.—The National Co-operative Flower Show, which created so much interest at South Kensington last year, will assume much larger proportions this year, and will be held at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, August 18th. The Prize Schedule shows that upwards of £320 have been subscribed in prizes as against £60 last year, and every kind of Vegetable, Fruit, Flower, and Honey in season, is included in the 200 different classes. If the entries are at all in proportion to what they were at the last show it will be one of the largest collections of bona fide cottagers' productions ever held. There is also to be an exhibition of home industries which should be very instructive, and an exhibition of produce from co-operative workshops both English and foreign. Cheap excursions will be arranged in connection with almost every Co-operative Society in the kingdom, so that their members—there are now upwards of a million—will be able to attend the first holiday festival for Co-operators which has been held. The Secretary of the Show, Mr. W. Broomhall, of 1, Norfolk Street, Strand, will send particulars to all interested enquirers.

NOTICE.—The long peal of Grandsire Caters at Appleton will not be attempted on Easter Monday, but on some future day which will be duly announced.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH, MOSSLEY, LANCASHIRE.

The dedication of the new bells will take place on Saturday, March 31st. On Easter Sunday morning, a company of ringers from St. Chad's, Saddleworth, will attempt a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, and on Easter Monday, April 2nd, the bells will be at liberty all day, when the Committee will welcome all ringers who can make it convenient to attend. A free dinner will be provided at two o'clock for all those ringers who give notice of their intention to be present on or before Wednesday, March 28th, to John Holden, 48 Stamford Road, Mossley, near Manchester.

The new bells arrived on Monday, March 12th, and as they were conveyed up to the church on a lorry about noon, as the mill people were just at liberty, they were scrutinised by many of the residents. We append the weights and names of the donors, as indicated on the bells:—

	cwt.	qrs.	lbs.	Donors.
Treble.—	4	3	5	Young men of Sunday School.
Second.—	5	0	3	Mr. Hugh Kershaw.
Third.—	5	2	22	Rev. A. Hall.
Fourth.—	6	0	9	Mr. Hugh Kershaw.
Fifth.—	7	1	8	Miss Mary Wrigley.
Sixth.—	7	3	25	The Mayor, Mr. John Mayall.
Seventh.—	9	1	4	Mr. John Knott.
Tenor.—	13	2	14	Councillor Beswick.

Weight of tenor clapper, 29½ lbs., and of treble do., 21½ lbs. The total cost of bells and fixing is about £560; Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of Whitechapel, London, are the founders, and the hanging has been proceeded with during the week. The dedicatory service is to be held on Easter Eve, on which day the first formal peal will be rung, Mr. John Holden, of Mossley, an important member of the Bells Committee, and president of the United Counties' Association, is getting together a band of ringers for the purpose. It is understood that the order for the new organ will shortly be placed in hand, if such is not already the case.

STOULTON, WORCESTERSHIRE.

Midway from Worcester and Pershore stands the village of Stoulton, with its little parish church and its Norman tower containing five bells. The first four were cast by Rudhall a century ago, the fifth having recently been added by Warner and Sons. On Thursday, March 8th, by the invitation of the Rev. K. Kingsford, four of the Worcester company, assisted by Mr. P. Brown (formerly churchwarden at St. Helen's, Worcester, and an honorary member of the Diocesan Association), rang on the bells several 6-scores of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, conducted by S. Cotton and H. B. Kingsford. After lowering the bells, a move was made to the rectory, where the worthy rector had provided a good repast, which was much appreciated. After the inner man had been supplied, the handbells were brought into requisition, and several good touches of Grandsire Triples, Grandsire Minor and Plain Bob Minor were rung by H. B. Kingsford, S. Cotton, T. Gwynn, W. Pudge, T. Brown, F. Owen, etc. The Captain (Mr. T. Brown), warning the company of midnight, a start was made for the faithful city, which was reached safely, all having thoroughly enjoyed their outing. The Worcester company wish through the medium of this paper to thank the Rev. K. Kingsford for his hospitality.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Annual General Meeting of this Association will be held at Bedford, on Easter Monday next. Change-ringing at St. Paul's and St. Mary's churches during the day. A dinner will be provided at the "Clarence Hotel," at 1.30, to be followed by the transaction of the usual business. At 5.30 p.m. a short special service will take place at St. Paul's church. Members and friends desirous of dining with the Society are requested to send in their names without delay to WANTED, immediately, a Churchman, as BELL-INSTRUCTOR to the Hereford Diocesan Guild of Church Bell Ringers.—Apply to the Rev. G. M. CUSTANCE, Secretary, Colwall Rectory, Malvern.

RE-OPENING OF BARNWOOD BELLS, GLOUCESTER-SHIRE.

These bells have lately been rehung in iron carriages and the frame strengthened by the addition of some extra struts, perpendicular bolts, angle plates, &c. The work was entrusted to Mr. W. Morris, bell-hanger, of Painswick, in this county, by the direction of Mr. W. Waller, architect, who resides in the parish and takes a great interest in bell-ringing and also the chief donor towards the alterations. These bells were temporarily opened on Christmas eve, and have been rung at intervals ever since to give them a fair trial, but it was found necessary that some further additional alterations must be done by the proposal of the local band, such as fixing some extra guides for the ropes in the ringing-chamber, for it was a long distance between the floors, which made it rather difficult to ring, especially to strangers, on account of the ropes jumping about. Mr. Waller adhered to the proposal, and engaged Mr. D. Gough, of Gloucester, to fix the guides, which he accomplished in a workmanlike manner. The work being now all done satisfactory, the bells can be rung with pleasure. The final opening took place on Tuesday evening, March 6th, by the local band. A 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor was rung with nine bobs, in 27½ mins., and several short touches in different methods, as follows: 72 each of Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, 60 each of Canterbury Pleasure and Plain Bob, and 48 of Grandsire Minor. S. E. Romans, 1; J. Yeates, 2; D. J. Aston, 3; R. J. Wilkins, 4; H. Mitchell, 5; A. A. Waite (conductor), 6. Also on Sunday morning, March 18th, prior to Divine Service, a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor, in 27 mins. (nine bobs), the ringers standing as above.

GREAT LEGHS, ESSEX.

After a long period of dilapidation the peal of five at the parish church of Great Leghs were reopened by the Braintree branch of the Essex Association, on Monday, March 12th, 1888. Eighteen 6-scores were rung during the afternoon by the following: T. Watson, F. Bumstead, F. Rudkin, S. Hammond (conductor), H. E. Hammond, H. and A. Bowell. The ringers were afterwards entertained to tea by the Rev. Dr. Guy. After tea a selection of tunes were played upon the handbells, also touches of Doubles, Minor, Grandsire Triples and Bob Major, double-handed. The bells are a fine maiden peal by Miles Gray, dated 1634, tenor about 12 cwt. They have been thoroughly restored by Mr. H. Bowell, of Ipswich, and the go of the bells is all that can be desired. A young band has been formed here, and it is hoped before long will practice change-ringing.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

There will be a meeting on Easter Monday, at Ely. The tower of St. Mary's will be open to ringers. Dinner and business meeting 2 p.m., charge 2s. As this meeting is most important, the committee earnestly hope for a large attendance. Members and friends intending to be present should signify their intentions without delay to the Hon. Sec. The usual concession has been applied for to the G. E. R.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"And the years roll on."

Six years of journalistic life. In a nation's history that would be a small matter, but with the individual it may be a period of considerable moment. Particularly so is it in the case of "THE BELL NEWS," and the reminiscences in which you, Mr. Editor, indulge in your leading article of Saturday last, will no doubt "strike a chord" in the hearts of many of your readers. I well remember how that in my earliest days of bell-ringing, it often used to appear to me an anomalous and none the less strange circumstance that reports of peals and other achievements of our brethren should have no place but in a journal devoted to what was termed "sport," much of which was of a very questionable character. I many a time experienced a feeling of shame when I saw these reports mixed up with paragraphs about pugilistic encounters, pigeon-shooting matches, dog races, rat-pit worryings, cock-fightings, and such like. When such was the case, there could be no wonder that respectable citizens held aloof from an art which appeared in close conjunction with such disreputable "pastimes." Thanks to "THE BELL NEWS," the past six years have seen an end to all this; one great blot upon the Exercise has been removed, and we are in the proud position of having an organ of our own; one, which, notwithstanding any slight shortcomings that might have been manifested (which indeed are inseparable from any journalistic enterprise), we have every reason to be more than satisfied with, if that were possible.

I do not write this, Mr. Editor, through any intention to flatter you; but "facts are facts," as the saying goes, and I cannot express my own feelings in the matter otherwise. However, let us hope that the new volume just commencing will, while recording still greater improvement in ringing matters, also be able to report a much more generous support being accorded to this now recognised mouth-piece of the Exercise, which has done such good service to us in the past.

Your proposal with reference to a comprehensive Register of Ringers cannot fail to meet with approval. The advantages of having such a register must be manifest, and as a commencement I would suggest that the secretaries of all our County Associations and Guilds should furnish you with a copy of their annual reports and lists of members. That would be an easy matter for them to do, and by this means you would be able to obtain the names and addresses of a very considerable number of our brethren.

I was glad to see that our old friend, Mr. Henry Johnson's 79th birthday was honoured in proper fashion. When next year he reaches his "four-score," may he be able to see the event celebrated in a right royal manner, and to take part in the festivities thereof.

It is to be regretted that the peal of Stedman Cinques did not "come off," particularly when they had got so well on towards the finish, at the same time, however, it may be some—though scant—consolation to them to know that they were not alone in thus "coming to grief," for I find in last week's issue altogether no less than six such unpleasant events reported. At Loughborough, a mistake occurred after close upon three hours' ringing; at Dudley, a peal of Grandsire Caters, after two hours and a quarter, was stopped by reason of the bad "go" of the tenor; at Liscard, on the same day, a peal of Bob Major collapsed after nearly all of it had been completed; at Cuckfield, a peal of Triples came to an untimely end after over an hour-and-a-half's ringing; while at Crawley, an attempt for a peal of Union Triples got no further than 1200 changes in 43 minutes. So it will be seen that our friends in their unsuccessful Birmingham peal, failed among a rather numerous company.

Speaking of unsuccessful attempts also reminds me of a communication which I have received from a brother-string in Yorkshire, to the effect that a "silent" peal of Kent Treble Bob Major was attempted last Saturday on the bells of a parish church in the centre of the "heavy woollen district" of that county. The communiqué goes on to say that this attempt was successful until the end of the twelfth course was reached, when "a storm arose," and the sudden stoppage of the bells told the hearers outside that this praiseworthy performance had "come to grief." That result was doubtless disappointing no less to the ringers than to those friends who were outside; but at the same time I consider the performance a creditable one, seeing that they were but three courses from the finish when the "crash" came, and that, too, on the first attempt. Yorkshiremen are certainly not noted for "giving in" because of failure, so I expect before long we shall see the report of this peal having once more been commenced, and this time successfully accomplished.

The Silver Wedding of the Prince and Princess of Wales was celebrated amid very mournful surroundings, and no doubt our friends have been in considerable doubt as to what was the most correct thing to do under the circumstances. But as no official postponement of the celebration was announced, I think they did the best thing by each company acting as they thought fit in the matter. The result has been that both the wedding and the death of "Kaiser Wilhelm" have been respected in a manner creditable to the Exercise.

Mr. Attree's analysis for the first two months of the year, of course, does not furnish any reliable ground for making comparisons, but there is one item in the return which appears to me to deserve notice. I refer to the number of peals (eighteen), rung under the head of "Independent Societies." That causes me to infer that our County Associations have not yet by far succeeded in gathering within their ranks all our brethren who are practical change-ringers. Will not this fact induce our friends to put forth further efforts, so that all who have the true interests of ringing at heart may be induced to come in and help on the work of organization? There is no doubt much of the "old leaven" still existing among us, but as a well-known statesman once said, "time is fighting for us, the tide is with us;" and there can be no doubt that with energy and perseverance on our part, we may eventually, if not in the very near future, see the "independent society" a very scarce thing.

FREE LANCE.

STAMBOURNE, ESSEX.

A large clock has just been fixed in Stambourne church, Essex, by the celebrated firm of John Smith and Sons, of the Midland Clock Works, Derby. It strikes the hours upon a large bell, shews the time upon a four feet dial, and is fitted with all the most recent improvements. The same makers have also just erected a large clock at Sydney Park, Gloucestershire, for Charles Bathurst, Esq.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1888.

THE proposal of a Ringers' Directory which was made in our last number has approved itself to a great many of our readers, who have sent in the information for that purpose. The suggestions made in connection with this matter will receive due attention, and if the favourite idea, that of publication, can be carried out with any prospect of success it will be commenced. There has been a great amount of correspondence received this week with reference to our paper, as frequently happens on the commencement of a new volume; and we thank our friends for their kindly wishes and suggestions, though some of the latter we find impossible to carry out. We shall however consider the propriety of slightly raising the price of publication, a step which has been pressed upon us many times from influential quarters. This will be better than putting what will be thought a tax upon the admission of peals or touches which have been rung, though the treatment of the composition page is still under discussion. What is intended in this direction will however be notified in a week or two, and if any of our readers take exception to the proposal of a very small increase in the price of publication, we shall be willing to listen to their objections.

[While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—In a recent issue appears a date touch of Minor, rung at St. John's church, Darlington, on the evening of March the 6th, recorded as the first date touch rung by the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association this year. I beg to refer the author of that paragraph to a date touch of Stedman Triples, published in your esteemed paper on January 21st last, and rung on the 16th previous to that date at Sharow, near Ripon, by members of the above Association, consequently the former date touch rang at St. John's church will be the latter, and the last mentioned become the first. T. C.

REPLY TO MR. BROWN.

SIR,—In reply to W. Brown's bogie letter, had he published my letter to him in full respecting the 2520 of Court Bob Triples rung at Spalding, I should not have troubled you again with this tirade. I don't wish to split hairs with W. Brown. In the first place he calls it "Mackman's half-peal." If he will refer to "THE BELL NEWS" of January 28th he will find no half peal mentioned. If he thinks it means something more than 2520, then we will conclude he is a veritable G. O. M. W. Brown has made his second suppose. I proved his first suppose to be wrong, viz.: the first and second half jumbled together by the figures I sent him, that he don't choose to acknowledge. As for his second suppose, whether it be my own invention or not, I am quite ready to stand by anything I have rung and published. As for W. Brown's ordinary bob and single crotchet, perhaps he is not aware that there is a peal of Grandsire Triples that don't come round with bobs and singles, which has been rung and published in "THE BELL NEWS" several times. My empty excuse for not answering W. Brown's first letters I don't pretend to notice any letters of that kind, while the writer hides behind initials, as an innocent party is often accused. Now I know its only W. Brown. B.—Bedford, Beds., as he addresses himself. I will give him an invitation if he gives me twenty-four hours' notice, to come and ring a peal with us in the method of any of my inventions I have published. He shall be satisfied. R. MACKMAN.

Halmer Cottage, Spalding.

A WITHDRAWAL.

SIR,—I wish to thank Mr. Heywood for pointing out the Stedman Triples; I did not notice that I was treading so close on our old friend, so I withdraw all claim thereto. Now, Sir, as to the composition page we seem in a fix; some have got no taste and some no proof; I suppose that is it. I have been careless enough to be among the latter on one or two occasions, but I can promise that I resign the non-proof gang. It is not want of ability that causes these mistakes always, but simply this: A man puts aside a peal to prove, and picks it up at some other time in a hurry, and thinks it proved and sends it for publication, perhaps among others; but the former there is no excuse for at all. Now who would think of ringing a peal of Major with the 2nd tingling behind the tenor at backstroke, if they could possibly help it? We have had the pleasure of trying the experiments of musical properties, and find that peals of Major where the 2nd or 3rd bells dodge with the tenor on the wrong are not near so good as the 4th, 5th, and 6th alone. It is very easy to sit down and compose an haphazard peal as one would call it, but it is another thing to work out a plan for a certain number and certain properties. I feel convinced that composers of the latter type could be counted on one hand almost; but on the other hand how is a young composer to get on if he is not allowed to make a mistake and be corrected? That is exactly what makes him scientific and careful in the matter; he keeps saying "I have a lot to learn yet," and consequently by degrees makes a good man. Is there one of our best composers who have never made a mistake, or who could not be criticised in his productions? No, certainly not, we have all our failings, one's ability is better than another's perhaps, but that ability is often spoilt for want of generosity or even politeness to our fellow-beings. Many a good man has been spoilt through want of mutual sensibility for another, one perhaps not being able to offer any remunerative return. Public criticism gives all this, providing a man can humble himself to it, but when some people are once sat on they are cowed, and perhaps for ever; while others use a fresh spirit and make good men; and except for the chance of a free passage for their productions, they too, might for ever remain in obscurity. J. W. WASHBROOK.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.—By Charles Pearson, M.A. Price Threepence, by post Fourpence.—WILLIAM POLLARD AND Co., Printers, Exeter.

Obituary.

CHARLES BOXALL.

WITH deep regret we have to announce the death of the above-named gentleman, at the age of 67, which took place at his residence, Arundel Lodge, Howard Road, Dorking, on Monday, February 23rd, after a short illness. The mortal remains were interred on the following Saturday in the Dorking Cemetery, amid universal sorrow and sympathy, a large number of deceased's friends following the sad cortege, amongst whom were about thirty ringers from Dorking, Leatherhead, Ashstead, Reigate, Betchworth, Buckland, etc. Deceased was a member of the College Youths, the Winchester Diocesan Guild, and had been a member of the local company for over fifty years, he having rang his first peal at the age of seventeen; he was also captain and treasurer of the local society. Deeply muffled touches of Grand-sire and Union were rang before and after the funeral service, and in the evening an attempt was made for a peal, which unfortunately came to grief after ringing 1 hr. 50 mins. Muffled touches were also rung on the Monday evening following.

THE EAST DERBYSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A formal meeting was held in the Church Schoolroom, Clay Cross, early in October, 1887, which was adjourned till October 27th, when the following belfries were represented: Ashover (five bells); Old Brampton (five bells); Crich (five bells); Clay Cross (six bells); North Wingfield (six bells); South Normanton and Morton (five bells). The Rev. —. Shipton (of Brampton), was elected to the chair, when the following gentlemen were unanimously elected as officers. President—Rev. Canon Massey, South Normanton; Vice-President—Rev. J. B. Nodder, Ashover; Hon. Treasurer—Rev. Jos. Oldham, Clay Cross; Hon. Secretary—Mr. J. Green, Clay Cross. The objects of the Association are similar to those adopted by the Midland Counties' Association. The first Annual Meeting will be held at Clay Cross on Easter Monday, when a sermon will be preached in St. Bartholomew's church by the President. The bells will be open at 10 a.m., when all ringing friends will receive a hearty welcome.

THE ST. STEPHEN'S SOCIETY, WESTMINSTER.

On Saturday, March 18th, a very handsome board was unveiled in the tower of the church of St. Stephen's, Rochester Row, by the Vicar (Rev. W. M. Sinclair), in commemoration of the first peal rung by the above Society. After a few appropriate words of encouragement to the members, the same band rang a peal of Grandsire Triples (see peal column) in honour of the occasion.

NOTICE.—Good Friday occurring next week, this paper will be published a day earlier than usual. Peals intended for publication must come to hand not later than Wednesday morning; everything else on Tuesday morning.

A dog belonging to a change-ringer used to accompany his master to the belfry of St. Martin's church in Leicester, and upon the commencement of a touch he would lay himself quietly down, nor attempt to stir, till the bells came round, which intimated the finishing of the peal, and which he always noticed. He would then get up, shake himself, and prepare to be off from an amusement for which he had considerable less relish than his master. Tradition states that the late George Stockham, so many years steeple-keeper at St. Clement Danes, possessed a quadruped of the same species, who was accustomed to bark when "that's all" was uttered by the bob-caller.

THE PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.—An interesting extract from the thirty-ninth Annual Report of this company will be found in our advertisement pages. It substantiates the assertion that the "Prudential" is doing good in both the "Ordinary and "Industrial" branches of its operations. When it is known that over seven million and a half policies of this company are in force, there can be no question at all as to the position and status of the "Prudential" among assurance societies.

The chapel erected by Mrs. Fraser at the cathedral in memory of her late husband, the Bishop of Manchester, has been completed by the erection of what the Manchester Guardian describes as an exceedingly beautiful screen, with folding doors. The cornice, which is of an elaborately carved vine pattern, is surmounted by a carved cresting. Between the muntins and above the doors, and on each side of the doors, is a variety of exquisite tracery, with battlemented pinnacles. The tracery of the panels below the lock rails is similar in treatment, but worked on the solid of the panels. The lock rails and the door head are also elaborately carved; while the principal stiles of the screen consist of very finely carved buttresses, with pinnacle terminations.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

BRIDGNORTH.

Dear is the hallow'd morn to me
When village bells awake to day;
And by their sacred minstrelsy,
Call me from earthly cares away.

Half-way on the main road between Wellington and Kidderminster, on the banks of the river Severn, which here divides it into two portions called the High and the Low Town, is situated the ancient historical old borough of Bridgnorth, in the county of Shropshire, particulars whereof I promised in a previous issue of this paper to place before its readers.

Bridgnorth derived its chief importance from its situation on the river, and was a thriving inland port. Previous to 1862 the commercial traffic was principally carried on by means of barges and boats plying up and down the stream, the navigation giving employment to a great number of the labouring classes, but rendered dangerous owing to the rocky beds in the river, requiring some experience on the part of the bargee, especially in flood time. In February 1862, the Great Western Railway Company opened the line connecting Shrewsbury, Droitwich, Wellington, and Worcester, known as the Severn Valley Railway, from the fact of its running almost side by side with the river for a distance of over thirty miles. The traveller cannot avoid being impressed with the unusual scenery it affords. In many places this river is extremely tortuous, but at Bridgnorth presents a very serviceable and straight reach. Frequent serious floods have occurred here—in 1869 the gasworks, established in 1838, were flooded, and the whole town put in darkness for three nights, rendering candles and other lights in great demand; another happened in 1852, and a third in 1879 washed away the floating public baths from its moorings, having only been built a year—so that it was damaged considerably by being dashed against the bridge. The bridge, a handsome stone structure, was erected in 1823, in lieu of an old but inadequate one built by the Saxons, several improvements being made thereto in 1824 and 1852. In the latter year, the tolls, which had been in force since 1796, were abolished, and in 1868 the bridge clock was illuminated.

Standing on the centre of the bridge, and facing the source of the river on the right hand side, a commanding eminence, appropriately termed the high rock, rises to a height of several hundred feet, and on the other side of the river, and almost opposite rises the tower of St. Leonard's church, loftily surmounting clusters and tiers of houses—curious old red brick and tile buildings, which render the place so picturesque.

In the Low Town a large spinning and dying establishment exists. The cemetery, which was consecrated by the Bishop of Hereford on July 25th, 1855, is a little way out, and prettily arranged on the slopes of the neighbouring hills, which seem to terminate with the High Rock, its precipitous edge suddenly rising from the borders of the river. Both towns are supplied with water forced by powerful pumping machinery up to a tremendous reservoir on the ridge of the hills, ninety feet above the battlements of St. Leonard's tower. The Upper Town is on the western bank of the river, crowding on the sides and summit of a red sandstone rock, which rises to a height of nearly 200 feet above the river level. The appearance of this part of the town is remarkably picturesque, and the view is very fine, especially from that part where the remains of the castle stand, where a terrace has been laid out overlooking the Low Town, the river, and a widely spreading country. This walk extends 622 yards, in a circular form, similar to the north and east Terraces of Windsor Castle, but at a greater height, and was greatly admired by King Charles I., who was at Bridgnorth three times during the civil wars, and preferred it to all towers in the kingdom. Visitors universally consider it highly interesting, and are charmed by the beautiful scenery it opens to view. The impression made upon me on the occasion of my first visit to this walk, now five years ago, will ever be remembered with delight. Under the brow of the hills are many rude dwellings cut out of the sandstone rock, with several caves over which the inhabitants have small gardens—that give the whole a romantic appearance. The road from the Low Town to the High Town winds round the rock, but the nearer approaches for foot passengers are by several flights of steps—one of which, called the Stoneway Steps, formed of pebbles, cased in an iron framework, consists of 179 steps. These were re-constructed with blue paving bricks in 1877. The town comprises the two parishes of St. Magdalene and St. Leonard's, the population in 1840 nearing 6000. It is twenty miles from Shrewsbury, 139 from London, and thirteen from Wolverhampton, the latter journey I walked in April 1883 much to my enjoyment. The principal trade is an extensive establishment for the manufactory of carpets, rugs, matting, worsted spinning, etc. My friend, Mr. John Overton, kindly shewed me over the factory of Messrs. Southwell and Sons, and explained the various weaving machinery, which in their almost lifelike action are truly marvellous.

The Town Hall is an antique structure, built in 1652, the upper part being half timbered, supported on pillars and arches of bricks. A large room is appropriated to the magisterial and business purposes of the town, that underneath by the market people.

The church of St. Leonard, an ancient and venerable building, rebuilt in 1448, was nearly destroyed during the Civil War, but repaired soon after the Restoration. The old tower was built in 1477. On the 31st March, 1646, a great battle was fought near St. Leonard's churchyard, the Royalists being routed, and their leader Colonel Billingsley killed. The Royalists then took refuge in the Castle, after setting fire to the houses in the High Street. The church is built of red sandstone, in the Gothic style of architecture. The interior consists of nave, side aisles, and chancel. The latter underwent complete reparation, and later on, in 1863, the north and south aisles were rebuilt. The south compartment was separated from the body of the church by three arches. The church is well seated, and has a powerful, fine-toned organ, opened on the 27th November, 1867. The roof is supported by a framework of oak, each beam of which is ornamented by a figure of an Apostle. The east window was restored and beautified in memory of the late Thomas Whitmore, Esq., who by will gave the rectorial tithes due to him as lay proprietor, to the minister of this church, and also to that of St. Mary Magdalene. On the south side is a stained glass memorial window, "restored in 1847 in memory of Mr. Boulton, formerly of the Grammar School, by a priest of the English Church, as a poor offering of thankfulness to Almighty God for many means of grace and good instruction vouchsafed both in this Church and in the adjoining Grammar School."

The tower was rebuilt in 1871, and is a massive square structure, very well arranged, and possessing a good clock. The belfry and ringing room is reached by an easy staircase of stone at the angle. The ropes fall in good circle, bells go moderately well, and the draught is convenient. The ringing room is clean, well kept, and well lighted, and is provided with the Ellacombe patent chiming apparatus, with which I played several Lenten hymns upon the bells during Lent on Sundays. The bells were originally a peal of six. Messrs. Warner and Sons, of the Crescent Foundry, were called in and entrusted to carry out the casting, and a new treble and tenor was added by them to make the octave, the old treble of the six being recast, and the whole hung and properly arranged in a solid oak frame. The following are the inscriptions:

On the treble and tenor:—"Cast by John Warner and Sons, London, 1874."

3rd.—"Recast by John Warner and Sons, London, 1874."

2nd.—"LÆTA : CHORUM : PERAGIT : ME : TINTINNANTE : CORONA."

6th.—"LAUS : DOMINO : TERRAE : PAX : ALBAE : GRACIA : GENTI."

7th.—"QVARTA : FVI : NVNC : SEXTA : SONO : MODVLATO : TONABO."

Diameter of tenor 48½ inches, weight about 22 cwt.

All the old bells are bolted to their stocks, as the cannons are entirely broken off.

"THOS : ROBERTS : OF : SALOP : CAST : THESE : SIX : 1681."

Between the tower wall and the bell-frame is a 3-foot foot-way round the bells. The following wording is the copy of a tablet fixed in the tower, and the peal mentioned as having been rang by a Birmingham company, was the only one rang in Bridge-north until 1887, when a peal was achieved by a friendly band on January 15th, 1887. The first was conducted by John Bannister, the second by J. W. Washbrook.

"S. Leonard's Bells.

"A peal of Grandsire Triples was rung at the opening of these Bells, on the 7th day of March, 1874, by eight ringers of the St. Martin's Society, Birmingham.

The stated ringers mentioned on this board are the local men, who are not members of the St. Martin's company. It is well worth one's while to climb on to the tower roof, to obtain the splendid view afforded thereby, the High Rock, the Brown Clee hills, and the famous Wrekin, being conspicuous landmarks.

This church had near it a college for the habitation of two chantry priests appointed to pray for the rest of the soul of Thomas à Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury. It was destroyed with most part of the High Town and church, at the time the parliamentary forces took possession of Bridgnorth. The living is a perpetual curacy, held by the present incumbent since Easter, 1883, when the writer had the pleasure of hearing him deliver his introductory sermon.

In close proximity also, is a handsome old half-timbered house bearing the date of its erection, 1580, in which was born in 1729 Bishop Percy, the publisher of "Reliques of Ancient English Poetry," in 1764, a very striking example of the architecture of that day, as it has undergone very little alteration during the three centuries it has been in existence.

The church dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene is an handsome edifice in the Grecian style of architecture, built in the year 1792 of white freestone, at a cost of over £6000. The interior is spacious and handsome, and has a good organ. The altar is of oak, richly carved. The church in ancient records is styled, "Liberia regia Capella," that is, a free chapel of the Kings made exempt from episcopal jurisdiction by King John, who visited this town personally on his way to Worcester. It was made parochial in the reign of Edward III.

Formerly on the site of this church was a fine collegiate Chapel founded by William the Conqueror, which had a dean and five prebends. It was taken down through the panic caused by the fall of St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, and replaced by the present edifice, which has a graceful tower of Grecian features, surmounted by a cupola, and possessing a clock with four dials, and a good peal of six bells which are not in very good going order, the inscriptions on which are given herewith:—

 Tenor (diameter 37½ inches, key Bb, weight about 9 cwt.)—"Benjamin Pagett : Francis Benbow : Churchwardens. A Θ R. 1764."

The ringing room is a snug little place, 12 ft. 6 ins. square. Originally each ringer had his name on a small board fixed on the wall opposite the bell-rope he handled—only one is left and he still rings the same bell.

THOMAS HIGGINS,
No. 4. Ringer. 1863.

The lines here given appear on a seedy-looking tablet in the belfry of doubtful age, and affords some amusement to ringers of the present generation:—

"If that to ring you do come here,
 You must ring well with hand and ear,
 And if a bell you overthrow,
 Fourpence you pay before you go.

And if you ring with spur or hat,
 Sixpence is due to pay for that.
 And if you here swear or curse,
 Twelve pence is due, pull out your purse.
 Pay the sexton what is his fee,
 For he that swears shall not go free.

Similar lines to the foregoing I found in a neighbouring church during one of my rambles,—but the two concluding were:—

"Pay the sexton what you forfeit,
 Or else, kind sir, your coat pays for it."

It was advisable, therefore, in the earliest days of the art, to ring with your "coat on" for fear of the penalty.

Near by the church of St. Mary are the ruins of a castle fortified by Robert de Belesme, the third Norman Earl of Shrewsbury. The erection was on the site of a former structure, but a portion of the square tower now standing, 17 degrees out of the perpendicular, is the only relic of this baronial fortress left. A romantic act of loyalty is related of Herbert de St. Clare, who with King Henry II., was besieging the castle of Bridgenorth, and seeing one of the enemy taking aim at his sovereign, stepped before him and received the arrow in his own breast, and thereby his death wound. In the civil wars the castle was garrisoned for the king, who marched here from Shrewsbury to meet the parliamentary army. The gates and town walls were thrown down by the enemy, the corporation afterwards rebuilding the north gate, which still stands.

The Free Grammar School, facing St. Leonard's churchyard, was founded more than 300 years ago by the bailiffs and burgesses, for the purpose of affording free of expense to "all comers," instruction in literature and good learning until they should be capable to be sent to the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge." The earliest mention of the almshouses is in a document dated Sep. 2nd, in the 6th year of the reign of King Charles I. These with the Grammar School has been constantly enriched by suitable bequests. Numerous wealthy charities exist, one I will cite—Edward Careswell, by will dated Feb. 3rd, 1689, left upwards of 1000 acres of land chargeable with the maintenance of eighteen scholars in the college of Christ Church, Oxford.

In 1756, Francis Moore, founder of "Old Moore's Almanack," was born in Bridgenorth, and in 1788 the first printing press in this town was established.

Historically Bridgenorth is a place of great antiquity originally called Brugia or Bruges, and derived its name from the bridge here built over the Severn. The first memorable transaction of this town we find was in King Alfred's day A.D. 894, when the Danes being driven from Norfolk were forced to leave their ships and spend the winter at Brug-upon-Severn, on the borders of Wales, where they built a strong fort. It subsequently underwent the common vicissitudes of the country, being harassed both by Danes and Saxons till Roger de Montgomery having obtained a grant of the Earldom of Salop built a new castle here. His eldest son, Robert de Belesme in Henry the First's reign declared for Curthose and fortified his castle against the king. After a siege of three weeks it was surrendered, and with the rest of his possessions annexed to the crown. The fee of the keeper of this castle in Elizabeth's time was £9 2s. 6d. The castle not having been a sufficient defence to the crown, without walls about it, an aid was granted for walling the town in the 11th year of Henry III., for two years, and another aid for the same purpose was granted six years later. The first charter of which any knowledge exists is the 16th of King John, which grants to Burgesses of Bruges and their heirs certain liberties and free customs and freedom from toll throughout the kingdom, excepting the London liberties. Henry III. in his 10th year of reign granted a fair to be held on St. Luke's day, which subsequently became remarkable for the sale of hops, cheese, and walnuts.

The old corporation consisted of two bailiffs, a recorder and his deputy, 24 aldermen, 48 common councilmen, 2 chamberlains, 2 bridge masters, town clerk, sergeants at mace, and other officers. The bailiffs were chosen every year in a most remarkable manner. After 14 men had been sworn they were locked up and neither permitted to eat or drink until a selection had been made, a regulation which had sometimes occasioned long fasting. At the election in 1793, the jury fasted no less than 74 hours.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Let us take time by the forelock."

Three rings restored and another new ring to be opened is surely good news for one week. If only the improvement in the actual work of change-ringing keeps pace with the improved state of the bells, there will be every reason to be gratified at these continued signs of progress.

* * * * *

Two peals reported last week are deserving of special notice. The first peal of Duffield Royal is now an accomplished fact, and those who took part in it—particularly the talented composer and conductor—are to be congratulated not merely for the peal itself as a peal, but because in my own mind I am convinced that this method—although as yet very tardily adopted by the Exercise—will be the Standard Method of the future, and consequently this performance will become historic.

* * * * *

The other peal to which I have the pleasure of referring, is one of Grandsire Triples rung at Painswick. We are told that this is the first peal rung by an entire Painswick band for 26 years. That is of itself a sufficiently pleasant and characteristic feature to make it notable. But we are also informed that the whole of the band have been taught by one who was himself self-taught. All credit is thus due to Mr. Hale for the great amount of patience and perseverance which he must have manifested in his uphill work of training himself and his band amid such difficulties. I myself have been in the similar position of having to rely upon books in my work of teaching myself and my band, and can therefore estimate from personal experience the immense amount of time and labour which he must have bestowed upon his "young ones." The Society of Painswick Youths will be sadly lacking in their duty if they do not perpetuate this peal by a tablet in their belfry, and thus in some slight degree acknowledge the long and painstaking work of their instructor.

* * * * *

The Exercise will, I feel sure, welcome the appearance of the late Jasper Snowdon's last work on Grandsire, which is advertised in this week's issue. The last work of any popular author derives additional importance from that fact alone, and although I have not as yet had the opportunity of carefully perusing the volume, I am convinced that it will be a work of great practical utility. The portrait and memoir, together with the appendix by the Rev. C. D. P. Davies (himself no mean authority on the method) will no doubt make the book specially valuable; we may therefore safely conclude that Mr. Snowdon's last contribution to our ringing literature will be of no less importance than the valuable ones from the same pen which preceded it.

* * * * *

From the announcements which appear this week, it would seem as if the Exercise intended to have a very general "field day" on Easter Monday next. Here is an opportunity which I most sincerely hope our friends will not allow to escape them of advancing the work which we all should have at heart. While we are thus enjoying ourselves on this great festival of the Church, let us all resolve to combine business with pleasure, and do our best to embrace the opportunity afforded by helping on in every way the work of organising our forces, of improving our status, and of furthering the true interests of change-ringing in whatever way we may find practicable; remembering the injunction—"Whatsoever thou doest, do it with all thy might."

The announcement that the proposed long peal of Grandsire Caters at Appleton, on Easter Monday is postponed, will doubtless be noticed with regretful feelings; but whatever may be the reason for this step, it is to be hoped that when the attempt is made, it will be rewarded with a successful issue.

* * * * *

I notice the venerable "Holt's Original" peal of Grandsire Triples has been rung at Warnham, Sussex, in two hours and thirty-seven minutes. That means over thirty-two changes per minute. I wonder if the ringers of this peal had a notion that they were engaged in a race against time; for that speed seems to me more compatible with racing each other than good ringing.

ST. JAMES'S CHURCH, GRIMSBY.

ON Easter Monday, the tower of the above church will be open for ringing from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., when all ringers will be welcome. Also the unveiling of the peal-board to commemorate the first peal rung on the bells by the Hull branch of the Yorkshire Association on Saturday, February 27th, 1887.

THE OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE BOAT-RACE.

A correspondent of the Guardian says that public interest in the boat-race is gradually declining year by year. Certainly the crowds on Saturday last were not quite so thick as before, except at the start and the finish, but the miserable weather goes some way to account for sensible folks staying at home. Many ladies were present, but they did not attract the attention which no doubt they deserved, because their dresses were generally adapted to the sombreness of the atmosphere about them. The spirited advertisement which was carried on last year in the shape of seven large steamers occupied by wearers of the Waterbury watch was not repeated; but a feeble imitation was attempted by vendors of a patent medicine. But it was not stated whether the persons on board had been dosed before starting. Not many famous or familiar faces were to be observed at the race; none of the Bishops and Judges, who owe part at least of their success in life to the moral pluck and physical strength which are tested, if they are not developed, by rowing in the boat race. The Cambridge stroke started at 42 to the minute, the Oxford at 40; but before they passed the London Boat House both had slowed down—one to 36, the other to 38. The time became slower, in spite of the attempted spurts attempted by the Oxford crew, and after Cambridge had secured a substantial lead of three lengths, they settled down to the comparatively leisurely time of 34 to the minute, and the latter easily won by seven lengths.

Review.

"GRANDSIRE," THE METHOD, ITS PEALS, AND HISTORY.

By the late Jasper Whitfield Snowdon, with Portrait and Memoir, edited by his brother, William Snowdon, together with an Appendix by the Rev. C. D. P. Davies.

Once more the familiar name and the touch of the master hand, the renewal, as it were, of past friendships in present intercourse with the latest thoughts of the most powerful ally the ringers of England ever owned. The name of JASPER WHITFIELD SNOWDON must ever remain prominent to the farthest future of change-ringing, yet with a freshness impossible in the well worn leaves of his former works comes this new child of the unceasingly active brain, addressing old friends with an almost personal greeting, and recalling vividly and to the life the ready and pertinent words of advice of former days.

In no whit does the posthumous work of which the title is inscribed above fall short of the high standard of its predecessors. Although interrupted in completion by the Author's untimely decease, his scheme, already fully sketched out both in private papers in the possession of Mr. William Snowdon, and in letters to his close friend, the Rev. Charles Davies, has, by the united efforts of these gentlemen, been brought to a successful issue. "Grandsire" is now placed before the Exercise, like all the Author's previous publications, at a price so moderate as to make it evident that those responsible for its launch expect no remuneration for their large outlay of time and trouble; to quote words from the preface, the volume is "a work of love in memory of, and as a tribute of regard to one who has gone." As such it will be received by the ringing world with grateful appreciation, a feeling that will rise to admiration when the full value of the book is thoroughly realised.

To review within the space of a newspaper article in other than a cursory manner two hundred pages teeming with scientific and historic detail is a manifest impossibility. We can but touch briefly upon the general arrangement and more salient points of the work, leaving it to our readers to inform themselves more fully by a perusal of the volume itself.

In the Preface a clear outline is given by the Editor, Mr. Wm. Snowdon, of the Author's views and intentions. "His change-ringing series," we are told, "was to include the best and most popular methods practised. His plan was to have followed this work on Grandsire with one on Stedman, and completed the set with the Surprise methods." As to the particular volume under notice, a letter from the Author to Mr. Davies, out of which a long quotation is given, sets forth in minute detail the arrangement of the subject. The original intentions have been faithfully carried out by the Editor. Wisely, however, he has concluded to add an Appendix containing the valuable researches of Mr. Thompson and Mr. Davies as to the whole peal of Grandsire Triples; thus the work is brought fully up to date.

The first twenty pages are devoted to an interesting memoir of the Author. There is little here to comment on. The life is that of an active English gentleman, full of the reforming power which so surely shews itself in all who live under a sense of their duty to their neighbours. Narrated with perfect simplicity, the tricks and pleasantries of the boy are followed by the amusements and relaxations of the man. No attempt is made to select incidents illustrative of the strong points of his character to the exclusion of others less individual. The result is on the face of it a fair record of an honourable, unselfish, and exceptionally active life, in which, among many interests, the improvement of the art of change-ringing seems to have held a foremost place.

It will be unnecessary to bestow more than a passing glance on the first three chapters. They contain an elaborate and accurate explanation of every point in connection with the practical ringing of Grandsire Doubles, Minor, and Triples, with ample touches and directions for calling them. The whole of this part is upon the same lines as the Author's well known "Rope-sight," and is of course intended only for comparative beginners. In the fourth and six following chapters we reach the interesting part of the volume, and find the most perfect list of peals of Grandsire Triples yet published, carefully divided according to the number of parts in which each is composed, and accompanied by most valuable notes, both historical and analytical. When we say that between forty and fifty peals are presented, few of which are devoid of special interest, our readers will understand the comprehensive nature of the collection. We have for the first time in book form the composition of Garthorn and Vicar, and of our more modern composers, Messrs. Davies, Penning, Hollis, &c., and the convenience for comparison and reference, of this section of the volume, cannot be over-estimated. Of the peals, perhaps the most valuable to conductors are the first five-part touches of 4830 by Mr. Davies, with the complementary leads added by Mr. Penning, because, in these, common bobs and singles are alone employed, and the calling is withal easy to acquire. Previously, a conductor wishing to call a peal containing only the two strictly legitimate calls, was, in his choice, confined to Holt's laboriously mastered one-part composition (afterwards supplemented by Mr. Penning's able productions on the same plan) and the perhaps unnecessarily discredited Bob and Single peals, of which latter the music is, except at the singles, from the frequency of the double dodging undeniably excellent.

Of peals with more than two kinds of call the Author is justly critical (see p 72), and it is matter for regret that the simple peals Mr. Hollis should come under this denomination, as well as some less important peals by other composers. As an interesting specimen may lastly be noticed Mr. Thompson's three-part peal with the three missing leads added by means of a Holt's plain and a Holt's bob single. In our opinion Mr. Davies' way of presenting this composition viz.: with one single at the third lead and the other at the finish would have been still more convenient if he had placed both single at the commencement. In support of this course we refer our readers to the Author's own words on page 96, where he says: "when two extra calls only are used, let them be got over as soon as possible and not left to the end when everyone is more likely to be nervous, and the least hitch may therefore endanger the accomplishment of the peal."

Space compels us to pass on to what, to many, will prove the most attractive part of the work, as it certainly is that in which the Author's peculiar talents are most fully evidenced; we refer to the "History of Grandsire." A most valuable and important addition is made, in this section, to the existing literature upon the subject. Not only are the earliest performances in the method clearly set forth, but by a most ingenious but strictly logical piecing together of a vast number of isolated scraps of information, unearthed from the most various sources, the Author places before us what without doubt are the actual compositions rung on the several occasions, thus proving past contradiction which of these achievements are to be handed down to posterity as worthy of acceptance.

In addition to the history of Triples, that of performances on all the higher number of bells, both odd and even, is given, and the most celebrated peals and the longest lengths are carefully set forth and commented on. In fine, this part of the book bears witness of an even greater amount of trouble and research that was bestowed upon the justly celebrated "History of Treble Bob."

We now come to the Appendix which, as already remarked, is from the pen of the Rev. Charles Davies. Sound and practical directions are here given to conductors and composers together with an important exposition of the varying and reversing of peals. The sentence: "all touches and peals may be looked upon as being of a circular form" contains a truth which Mr. Davies does well to force home. A diagram is given showing that, "viewed logically and mathematically, a composition has neither beginning nor end." Were the truth of these words more generally understood, we should see less piracy of the productions of eminent composers by feeble members of the craft. We may, however, suggest that it would have been more correct to insert, after the words "all touches and peals," that come round naturally; for the definition does not apply either in this or any other method to compositions that come round at hand, or in other irregular ways.

The concluding portion of the volume will scarcely be read or understood except by those who have dipped deeply into the composition of peals of Triples. That complete peals on this number of bells present difficulties entirely absent from compositions on higher numbers is only too well known. No composer previous to Mr. Davies possessed the necessary knowledge of the science of ringing, combined with analytical and mathematical powers sufficient to embolden him to attack the problem of discovering the arithmetical laws upon which the extent of changes on seven bells depends. That such laws existed was certain. So far as five-part, or more properly ten-part peals are concerned, Mr. Davies may be said to have completely investigated the question, and to these his attention has been chiefly confined. This enquiry naturally throws much light upon the subject generally, so much so that, taken together with Mr. W. H. Thompson's invaluable demonstrations, the way is well paved for future investigators who may turn their attention to the laws of one-part peals. Upon this branch Mr. J. F. Penning could doubtless give important information, which in the hands of competent mathematicians might bear good fruit.

Mr. Davies' tables and explanations, though intricate, are by no means so difficult to follow as might appear the case at first sight, and the results obtained therefrom may be accepted as strictly correct, borne out as they are by those of other composers. The exhaustive treatment of the three-lead peal principle, in which all possible radical variations are given in a compact table, is also worth attention; as is too the concluding review of Mr. Thompson's famous pamphlet, "A Note on Grandsire Triples," in which the impossibility of obtaining the whole peal by means of common bobs only is clearly proved. Without attempting to follow the successive steps of this closely reasoned demonstration, we may point out to those of our readers who have been denied a mathematical education, and to whom therefore the comprehension of the proof will be impossible, the broad principle upon which it is founded, a principle not only underlying this particular method, but so long as the course of the changes is not turned, every method on all numbers of bells in all questions of "extents."

Every "extent" must consist of complete courses only, no lead of a course can be omitted. As we must start with the plain course any "extent" must contain the whole of this course. We may add courses to this initial course as we please, but we shall find that it is impossible, try as we may, to bring our touch or peal round if we add an uneven number of complete courses to the initial one. Any even number of courses may be added, but never an odd number. This admits of clear proof. Consequently any touch or peal of complete courses must consist of an odd number of such courses, that is, of the one initial course and the even number of courses added. Now as any "extent" clearly consists of an even number of courses, it is also clear there must always be one odd course that can never be got in. Upon this principle depends Mr. Heywood's lately published proof of the reasons for the impossibility of "the twelve courses." Mr. Thompson, we understand, is now engaged in shewing the bearing of the principle upon the 59 courses obtainable out of "the 60." It is immaterial in its application to Grandsire Triples whether the word "course" refers to five plain leads or to three leads with a bob at each. Thus, in Holt's original, it is a course of three bob leads that is omitted, in Mr. Hollis' peals it is a course of five plain leads. A further deduction, doubtless true but not yet proved, may be drawn from Mr. Thompson's investigations, namely that "extents" are always possible by bobs only, in methods in which either the bob or the plain-lead end, or both, turn the course of the changes, as for instance in Bob Triples; also, as a consequence, in in-course methods by the use of singles.

We dilate somewhat fully on these points in the hope that those composers who peruse "Grandsire" may be led to study what is advanced in the Appendix with special care, in order that, having mastered what is already known, they may attempt themselves to work out some of the remaining problems. The Appendix as a whole may be pronounced by no means the least important part of the treatise, and in selecting Mr. Davies to prepare it, the Editor chose the only composer possessing the requisite knowledge for the task.

It may be thought from our very favourable comment that we are not disposed to criticise too narrowly Mr. Snowdon's last work, or the way in which his wishes have been carried out. The fact is that we fail entirely to find any defects worth notice. Opinions may differ as to the desirability of this or that treatment of certain parts of the subject, or as to the insertion or exclusion of this or that item. Into this we are not disposed to enter. The volume as it now appears is accurate, interesting, and valuable, and must at once take its place as one of the standard books on the science. Let us also hope that, although the Author has, alas, not lived to prepare the remaining works which it had been his intention to issue, Mr. William Snowdon may see his way to confer an additional benefit upon the Exercise by reprinting, with such notes as may be requisite, the excellent papers upon Stedman and the Surprise peals which formerly appeared in our columns under his brother's name, and thus complete the intended series of that eminent writer.

Correspondence.

[While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

AN ERROR.

SIR,—I see in your last issue that on Thursday, March 8th, by the invitation of the Rev. H. Kingsford, four of the Worcester Company, assisted by Mr. Brown (formerly churchwarden of St. Helen's), paid a visit to Stoulton parish church, and rang several 6-scores, &c., on the bells. Now, sir, what I wish to state is that your correspondent is in error, as Mr. Brown is not an honorary member of the Diocesan Association, as he states in his report.

INDEPENDENT SOCIETY PEALS.

SIR,—"Free Lance" having called attention to the fact that eighteen peals have been rung by non-Association bands during January and February, it may be interesting, if not useful, to publish a list of the counties in which they have taken place: Lancashire, 6; Staffordshire, 2; Gloucestershire, 2; also Devonshire, Northamptonshire, Middlesex, Cheshire, Suffolk, Yorkshire, Huntingdonshire, and Warwickshire one each.

NO CLAIM.

SIR,—By omitting to look through "Rope-Sight" when I composed the peal of Bob Triples, and published in last week's issue, I find on page 91 the same peal by T. Morris, therefore I withdraw all claim.

SURPRISE MINOR METHODS.

SIR,—"Free Lance" having commented on the seven Surprise methods which appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" of the 10th instant, I should much like to hear what that critic has to say about the two methods (?) known as "Violet" and "New London Pleasure."

RINGING IN LENT.

SIR,—There may be various opinions as to the propriety, or impropriety of ringing during Lent, but I should say that there are few churchmen who would think it consistent to ring during Passion week. Nevertheless, on Monday evening last (the Monday before Easter), during the evening service in Salisbury Cathedral, while our good Dean was earnestly trying to impress upon us the solemn teaching of the season of Passiontide, the bells of St. Paul's, Fisherton, were distinctly audible "pealing forth merrily," as local newspapers are fond of expressing it. I have no sympathy with those who would silence bells during the whole of Lent, but I do think ringers might deny themselves a little pleasure for one week only during the whole year.

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—I should feel obliged to any of your readers if they could inform me whether it is possible to produce a long touch of Grandsire Triples with a call at every lead with ordinary bobs and singles.

The longest touch I have been able to produce with consecutive calls is 252, which is as annexed:—

The great and only drawback which I can see in preventing long touches of Grandsire being called at consecutive leads is that three pairs of figures seem to be connected with each other, that if one is called in front or in any particular place, the other will necessarily be in another certain place. The three pairs of figures thus connected are 5, 7, 6, 4, and 2, 3, and if for an example we take the 5th and 7th we see that if the 5th is called in front the 7th is likewise called there too, and vice versa, and the same applies to the two other pair of figures. The following Quarter-peal is to my mind the nearest that can be produced (with the use of Grandsire Bobs and Singles) to consecutive calls. It contains 58 singles and 22 bobs, making altogether 80 calls, therefore leaving only ten plain leads.

I shall be glad to hear of any quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples, containing as many calls, or if there are any containing more calls than 80, as I have been unable myself to find there are any containing these qualities. I should also like to know if it is possible to produce a peal on the above plan which would of course give 320 calls out of a possible 360, as I have not seen a peal containing more than 240 calls.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MARCH 31, 1888.

THE daily press, and in fact every other kind of journal which is supposed to cater for the benefit of general news-mongers, have recently devoted a no inconsiderable part of their columns to a succinct account of that disgusting and brutal exhibition known to the "sporting" dilettanti as "the fight for the championship." The heroes—save the word—of these pugilistic encounters, appear by all accounts to have regarded themselves as a species of public benefactors, while those who, having more money than sense, are the chief supporters and patrons of such exhibitions, consider themselves in some degree as the saviours of society in general. We have nothing to do with either principals or seconds, or with those who, neglecting matters of import to which it is their duty to attend, fight with eagerness to possess a correct knowledge of the time and place of combat, ignoring the connection they may for the nonce secure with what may safely be termed the scum of mankind. It is with our contemporaries of the press that we fall foul of, in that they pander to a depraved taste instead of endeavouring to correct it. The same journals would dismiss from their observation a clever bell-ringing performance with a short paragraph. Some will no doubt argue that this is owing to ignorance of the art. Perhaps we could not expect a writer on any of the daily papers to do any "gush" upon the recent long peal at Appleton. But, let it be understood, not for the reason that he knew nothing about it. If one having the control of the columns of such an organ was an enthusiastic ringer he would be prevented from singing the praises of his favorite exercise by the objection that the subject was of no public interest. But if he was a believer in pugilism, or anything else, no matter how low and vulgar, that was held to be popular, unlimited blanche carte would be allowed him, and he would dilate upon such matters to the top of his bent.

We do not want to enjoy the notoriety of the pugilistic arena, or anything approaching it. Ringing, as becomes its associations and surroundings, must ever be held select, if not strictly religious. Yet it seems deplorable that we may talk of our doings in the art without obtaining one eager listener, or one desirous of engaging in its practice, while if some athletic occupation, needing not the exercise of one's brains perhaps, is mentioned, the interest displayed is astonishing. This is not gratifying of course, but we must be content to put up with it. There may perhaps be means adapted to make the beauties of ringing more generally known and understood, which would in time render it more popular than at present. We should be more than satisfied if churchfolk paid it a greater attention. At one time the Oxford University Society seemed to be an augury for ringing extension. Is it waiting for the sister university to do something?

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

UPTON-ST.-LEONARDS (Gloucestershire).—On Saturday, March 10th, eight members of the local band attempted to ring Mr. Hubbard's ten-part peal of Bob Triples (to celebrate the silver wedding day of the Prince and Princess of Wales), but after ringing nearly 1500 changes, in 48 mins., it came to grief through the sudden breakage of the fourth rope, which was a great annoyance to all. J. Middlecote, 1; J. Yeates, 2; H. Mitchell, 3; R. J. Wilkins, 4; D. J. Aston, 5; S. E. Romans, 6; A. A. Waite (conductor), 7; T. White, 8. It is rather remarkable for the third man took part in ringing a peal on the day the above named were married. Also on Saturday, March 17th, a 1008 of Bob Major, in 42 mins. W. J. Sevier, 1; J. Yeates, 2; H. Mitchell, 3; R. J. Wilkins, 4; D. J. Aston, 5; S. E. Romans, 6; A. A. Waite, 7; H. G. Gardener (conductor), 8. And a 224 of Kent Treble Bob Major. H. G. Gardener, 1; J. Yeates, 2; H. THE SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS.

On Saturday, March 24th, eight members of the above society met at St. Mary's church, Old Battersea, and rang a long peal of Grandsire Triples, 1740 changes, in 56 mins. H. A. Hopkins (conductor), 1; W. Partington, 2; C. E. Malim, 3; A. G. Thomas, 4; H. S. Thomas, 5; W. Baron, 6; H. L. Partington, 7; G. Wilde, 8. This was rang to commemorate the anniversary of Mr. Baron calling Holt's Original for the first time in that tower on Saturday, March 24th, 1871. After ringing the above, Mr. H. S. Thomas kindly invited the band to dinner with him, to which ample justice was done. The cloth having been removed a very pleasant evening was spent, which all present enjoyed. Before departing, Mr. Malim thanked Mr. Thomas, on behalf of the company, for the kind way in which he had received them, and hoped he should be able to invite them to dinner with him when his birthday came. Mr. H. S. Thomas, in replying, said that he was pleased to hear that all had enjoyed themselves, and hoped it would not be the last time he should meet them on such an occasion, but be able to meet them for many years to come. The company then departed having spent a most enjoyable evening.

WALTHAM ABBEY, ESSEX.

The above society of change-ringers beg to announce that it is their intention to hold a ringing day at the above place on Easter Monday, when they will be pleased to welcome as many visitors as may be disposed to attend. A dinner will be provided at the "Green Dragon" inn at two o'clock, tickets 2s. 6d. each. Those visitors who intend dining with the society, will oblige by forwarding their names not later than Saturday, March 24th, to the Secretary, W. C. DYMCK.

"Green Dragon" Inn, Waltham Abbey, Essex.

ALDBOURNE, WILTS.

Two old tradesmen and respected inhabitants of this village have recently been removed, after long illness—Mr. James Barrett, boot and shoe maker, and Mr. James Smith, willow manufacturer. Both took part in the two peals of 5040 Grandsire Triples in March, 1837. They were both interred on Thursday, March 22nd, and after the funeral the ringers paid a tribute of respect by ringing a half-muffled touch, consisting of the usual whole pull and stand, on the bells of the parish church.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A District Meeting will be held at Romford, on Saturday, April 7th. The belfry of St. Edward's church (eight bells), which has lately been restored and the bells rehung, will be at the disposal of members of the Association during the day. A meat tea (price 6d. to members who give notice to the Secretary before Tuesday, April 3) will be supplied in the National School-room at 5 p.m., and the usual business meeting will be held afterwards. Return tickets at reduced fares will be issued by the Great Eastern Railway to members who inform the Secretary before April 3 from what station they intend to travel, and exhibit at the booking office their receipt for the current year's subscription.

T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

Writtle Vicarage, Chelmsford.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

THE REPORT for the past year is now ready for distribution, containing times of practice at churches in union; performances; balance sheet; and list of members. It is issued at the reduced price of twopence to members whose subscriptions have been paid, and it is hoped that as many members as possible will take copies, so that the whole edition may be utilised. Members requiring copies will please send word to

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

NOTICE.—The silent peal which was attempted at Dewsbury on March 17th, will be attempted again on Saturday, April 7th.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

The next Annual Meeting of the above Association will be held on Easter Monday, April 2nd, in the Chapter House Worcester Cathedral, at 2.30 p.m. The Rev. T. R. Claughton, M.A., canon of Worcester, has kindly consented to preside. The towers of All Saints, St. Helen's, St. Swithin's, St. Martin's, St. John's, and arrangements are being made for the cathedral bells (if possible) to be opened for ringing. All members who have not received notice, to take this as one, and to note that all contributions are due, and should be paid at this meeting, so that all names can appear in the annual report. Business; To read notice convening meeting; to read minutes of last meeting; confirming (or otherwise) of same; to propose new members; to consider a resolution passed at a previous meeting; election of president, vice-presidents, lay vice-presidents, Master Secretary, Treasurer, and other miscellaneous business.

J. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The Sixth Annual Meeting of this Association will be held at Derby, on Easter Monday, April 2nd, 1888, and the usual towers (except St. Luke's) will be open for ringing between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Committee meeting in St. Andrew's parish room, at 3 p.m. Tea in the School-room at 4 p.m., tickets 1s. each. General meeting and election of officers immediately after tea, to which all ringers and friends are earnestly invited.

The Easter handbell competition will take place after the general meeting.

JOSEPH GRIFFIN, Hon. Sec.

5 St. Paul's Street East, Burton-on-Trent.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE.—The Annual Meeting will be held at Devizes, on Wednesday, May 30th next. Full particulars will be published shortly before that date. A supplementary meeting will be held at or near Dinton, in August next.

J. R. JERRAM, Secretary.

NOTICE.—The long peal of Grandsire Caters, 13,265 changes will be attempted at Appleton, Berks, on Wednesday, April 11th, by ten members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild and the Appleton society, at 6 a.m.

ST. STEPHEN'S, BRISTOL.—The Ancient Society of St. Stephen's Ringers have decided to immediately open the west door of this church, and their architect, Mr. W. Paul, will commence the necessary work at once. The door, although not completed because when carried out fully it will be in keeping with the fabric as restored, will be in a condition to be used on Easter Sunday. The tiling, under the superintendence of the society's architect, will shortly be commenced.

It is generally said of the French that they are not a sporting nation, but an incident which occurred in a churchyard near Paris the other day would seem to shew that the notion is not entirely well founded. A funeral was taking place, when a hare suddenly made its appearance on the scene, and at once the beadle and the mourners started in wild pursuit. After an exciting chase, the beadle managed to knock the animal over by hurling his baton of office at it, and the hare was secured. It is sad to learn that the beadle's sporting tastes got him into trouble, for the local magistrate fined him thirty francs for killing game with prohibited arms.

Diss (Norfolk).—Handbell Ringing.—On Sunday, March 11th, at the house of Mr. J. Souter, a date touch of 1888 Oxford Treble Bob Major in 1 hr. 9 mins. E. Hayward, 1-2; E. Broom, 3-4; J. Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment; it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.—DISTRICT MEETING AT STEYNING.

The second District Meeting of this Association for the present year was held on Easter Monday at this ancient town, and was attended by nearly forty members from branches connected with the parish churches of Angmering, Arundel, Brighton, Chailley, Goring, Steyning, and Warnham. Ringing was commenced about 9 o'clock with a 720 of Woodbine, and was continued with 720s in different Minor methods throughout the day. At 12 o'clock, through the kindness of the Vicar, the Rev. A. Pridgeon, a special service was held in the parish church (St. Andrew), a fine building of the Norman period. The service was followed by an impressive address by the Vicar. Luncheon was served at the "Norfolk Arms," and at the conclusion thereof a business meeting was held and presided over by the Rev. Pridgeon, he being supported by the Rev. R. F. Tompkins, Treasurer, Rev. C. W. A. Napier, Rural Dean, Rev. R. Hay Pitt (Farham). The minutes of a district meeting held at Buxted, on the 4th of February, were read and confirmed, and the following honorary members were then proposed: Rev. T. Dunlop (Vicar of Henfield), Rev. R. Fisher (Vicar of Arundel), Rev. C. B. Walters (Curate of Lymminster), Col. Ingram (Steyning), and Dr. Robinson (churchwarden of Midhurst). A new branch was elected, consisting of ten ringers connected with Seaford parish church, while additional members to existing branches and independent members brought the total at this election to twenty-two active members. A motion was then proposed and carried, "That in future the district meetings of the Association be held alternately at eight-bell and six-bell towers, and that the present number of meetings be doubled." It was then decided that as meetings are held alternately in the eastern and western division of the county, that instead of each meeting choosing the place for holding the next meeting (which is in the other division of the county), it should select the place for holding the next meeting in its own division. In accordance with this, Angmering was selected as the place for holding the next six-bell tower meeting in West Sussex. It was then decided to hold the annual general meeting at Brighton on Whit-Monday. Votes of thanks to the Rev. A. Pridgeon for arranging the service and presiding at the luncheon and meeting concluded the business.

The large square tower of Steyning church, which is shortly to undergo thorough repair, at present possesses a ring of six bells, dated 1724, with a tenor of 12 cwt. It is the intention of the authorities as soon as possible to augment the present six by two trebles. This addition will give the energetic local band an opportunity of practising the fifteen methods in Major, instead of Minor, as at present rung by them. The ringing chamber, which is square, lofty, and well lighted, has during the past few weeks undergone thorough restoration, the walls being matchboarded, stained and varnished, as are also the seats, table, etc. The walls are ornamented with three white marble peal tablets in black and gilt frames, and twenty-two smaller tablets in oak frames, recording 5040s, twenty-four of the above twenty-five peals being rung by the Steyning branch within twelve months of their accomplishing their first peal in seven different methods. It should also be mentioned that the whole of the labour in fitting up the belfry in its present condition was voluntarily supplied by the ringers. The following is a record of the ringing by various mixed bands during the day: A 720 of Woodbine Treble Bob. G. Gatland, 1; C. Chambers, 2; C. Tyler, 3; J. Searle, 4; J. Woolgar, 5; G. Smart (conductor), 6. A 720 Kent Treble Bob. A. A. Fuller, 1; G. F. Attree, 2; J. Searle, 3; J. Reilly, 4; F. Morris, 5; C. Tyler (conductor), 6. A 720 of Plain Bob. J. Smart, 1; H. Evans, 2; C. Chambers, 3; J. Woolgar, 4; W. Pelling, 5; T. Parsons (conductor), 6. A 720 of Oxford Treble Bob. T. Stedman, 1; G. F. Attree, 2; T. Andrews, 3; W. Short, 4; S. Brooker, 5; J. Searle (conductor), 6. A 360 Kent Treble Bob. J. Smart, 1; T. Searle, 2; G. Gatland (conductor), 3; G. Thwaites, 4; F. Morris, 5; E. Brackley, 6. A 240 of Canterbury Pleasure. C. Hills, 1; W. Short, 2; T. Searle, 3; C. THE ST. PETER MANCROFT (NORWICH) SOCIETY AT KING'S LYNN.

Easter Bank Holiday will be a day long to be remembered by all true lovers of ringing in and around the ancient borough of King's Lynn. At an early hour in the morning the Lynn ringers raised their bells, and everything being in order, they went to the railway station to meet their visitors, who arrived by the 10 a.m. train. The Norwich company was accompanied by Captain Moore, of the Redenhall band, the Rev. H. E. Bulwer, the Rev. N. Bolingbroke (Hon. Sec. of the Norwich Diocesan Association) and others from Diss and elsewhere, in all about sixteen. They proceeded to the tower of St. Margaret's church, and having taken their posts at the different bells, rang a well-struck course of Kent Treble Bob Royal. After morning service the tenor-men changed places and a peal of Kent Treble Bob Royal was commenced, but after about ten minutes came to grief, owing to the 5th and 6th changing course. After three or four more attempts they were obliged to give up all hopes of getting the peal that day.

At four o'clock at the kind invitation of the ex-Mayor (W. Burkitt, Esq.), the ringers proceeded to the Crown Hotel, where an excellent luncheon awaited them, provided by host Heckford. The party numbered about thirty. The Mayor (G. S. Woodwark, Esq.), occupied the chair, and on his right were seated the ex-Mayor (the donor of the feast), and Captain Moore; on the left, Dr. Seccombe, and the Rev. H. E. Bulwer. The vice-chair was filled by Mr. C. Ayre; on his right the captain of the Lynn company, Mr. G. Holland; and on the left the captain of the Norwich company, Mr. F. Knights. After doing ample justice to the good things provided for them, the Mayor proposed the healths of "The Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the Royal Family." The Norwich company having rung the National Anthem in full harmony on their sweet-toned handbells, the Mayor next proposed "The health of Mr. Burkitt," who responded, and in the course of his remarks said that he had known several of the Lynn company for more than thirty years, including the late Mr. Agger and Mr. Hammerton, men of great fame in the art of ringing, and he sincerely hoped that the young company would try to follow in their footsteps. He was pleased with the way in which they were progressing in the art. He then proposed the healths of Captain Moore and Dr. Seccombe, who responded, the former saying that he was glad to hear that they had augmented the ring to ten, and although unsuccessful in their attempts that day, he hoped that on the next visit they would be more fortunate.

Dr. SECOCOMBE said that the Lynn people ought to be proud of their noble ring of bells, and very thankful to Mr. and Mrs. Burkitt for their jubilee gift of two trebles which completed the ring. He hoped that he might live long enough to ring 5040 changes on them before he died.

After some more handbell ringing, Mr. AYRE proposed "The Health of the Mayor," who suitably replied.

An adjournment was then made to St. Margaret's tower where several courses of Grandsire Caters, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob Royal, and Stedman Caters were rung, the tone of the two new trebles being pronounced good. Visits were made to St. Nicholas' chapel, and touches of Treble Bob were rung by the Norwich and Diss men, assisted by some of the Lynn company, the go of the bells being much appreciated. Altogether a most enjoyable day was spent by the Lynn ringers and their visitors.

THE SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Easter Monday, the local members of the above Guild rang a peal of Bob Major, and a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples at St. Martin's, and 2030 of Grandsire Triples at St. Thomas's church, of which accounts appear among the peals and touches. The members dined together in company with Mr. A. H. Handcock after the peal, and spent a pleasant evening.

EARLSHEATON, YORKSHIRE.—HANDBELL CHANGE-RINGING CONTEST.

The above contest took place at the house of Mr. John Tolson, Park Hotel, on Saturday, March 31st, when the following prizes were awarded for the best two courses of Grand-sire Triples and Grandsire Major, viz., first prize, £2 10s.; second prize, £1 5s.; third prize, 15s. The following bands took part: Almondbury sen., Almondbury jun., Almondbury Youths, Liversedge sen., Liversedge jun., Batley Carr, and Huddersfield. Almondbury sen. won the first prize, Liversedge jun. second, and Liversedge sen. third. Also a bottle of rum was won by Mr. L. Illingworth, of Liversedge jun., for the best 5-6 in this contest, given by Mr. A. Goodall. An extra prize was won by Liversedge jun. for the best six-score of Oxford Treble Bob on six bells. Praise is due to Messrs. A. Goodall, W. Byram, J. Ruddlesden, and G. Taylor, for their able management during the evening. The judges were Mr. John Garforth, Mr. J. H. Dixon, and Mr. C. A. Fox, of Dewsbury.

BOLLINGTON, CHESHIRE.

On Friday, March 30th, the members of the St. Mary's parish church society, Stockport (after ringing for morning service) went by train to Bollington, near Macclesfield, and rang for afternoon service, a 600 of Stedman Triples. E. Leonard, 1; J. Booth, 2; H. Meakin, 3; S. Meakin, 4; J. Meakin, 5; L. Meakin (conductor), 6; T. Marshall, 7; W. Sharples, 8. Also after service, a number of touches of Grandsire Triples, with the assistance of a few of the Bollington band, under the conductorship of Messrs. L. Meakin and T. Marshall.

SOCIETIES' CLAIMS.

SIR,—Will you kindly make it known that as every ringer in the 10,080 of Double Norwich, and the 12,041 of Stedman Caters, lately rung at Appleton, were College Youths, both peals belong to the College Youths, as well as the Oxford Diocesan Guild.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me to correct the foot-note to the record of the peal (Holt's Original), rung at Warnham, on Sunday, March 18th, and published in your issue of March 24th, stating that "this is the first one-part peal of Grandsire Triples by the Sussex Association." The same peal was rung at Brighton a few years ago, and conducted by Mr. Searle, but probably that was before the above-named Association was formed. At any rate the peal was rung upon handbells by four members of the Association at St. Albans, in April, 1887.

A REPLY TO "FREE LANCE."

SIR,—In reply to "Free Lance" on the venerable Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples being rung at Warnham, in 2 hrs. 37 mins. as conductor of the peal, I wish to state that it was rung as the late Mr. J. Holt composed it, and well-struck throughout. I think our critical friend "Free Lance" has shewn a little partiality as I see no reason why Holt's original peal of Grandsire Triples should not be rung in as quick time as Thompson's three-part (which was rung a short time since on a slightly heavier tenor than Warnham, in two hours and thirty-seven minutes), or that one was at a racing pace more than the other.

RINGERS' OUTING.

The Easter operations of the Whitstone band of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers, though not on so extensive a scale as some of the doings of the Exercise on Easter Monday, were nevertheless sufficiently interesting to those engaged in them. The programme comprised an hour's ringing on the newly-hung bells of St. David's, Exeter, followed by a fashionable breakfast at the Coffee Tavern, a short trip by rail to Whimble, more ringing there, and after returning to Exeter a pilgrimage to the familiar shrine of St. Thomas-the-Martyr. All the contemplated manoeuvres were executed punctually with one exception. On arriving at St. David's about 11 a.m., the band found the church occupied by wedding parties. Fortunately connubialists at Exeter have not yet discovered that they can be lawfully married after 12 o'clock. A council of war was held, and it was determined to breakfast at once, leaving the temple of Hymen in quiet possession of the enemy until he should be compelled to withdraw of his own accord through a mistaken sense of duty. Accordingly, firing commenced soon after noon, and we can only hope that the vanquished were consoled by hearing several well-struck 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles rung in their honour without having to pay the customary fee. There are six bells at St. David's, all by T. Mears, 1817, tenor 9 cwt. They are a pretty peal for change-ringing, and they go as well as possible, though the belfry is cramped, and it says much for the zeal of the ringers that they propose to find room for two more ropes and a heavier tenor. At Whimble there is a very broad tower, of low altitude, conspicuous from the South Western Railway, which contains four ancient and interesting bells, and two new trebles by Llewellyns and James, recently added. The bells go admirably, and the ringing chamber, on the ground floor and open to the church, is spacious and airy, and altogether the sort of place one would choose for a long peal of 12,000 changes. The six bells of St. Thomas's were cast by the Penningtons, of Cornwall, in 1789. The tenor is said to weigh 14 cwt., and from their tone, and the size of the wheels one would suppose them to be heavier than the bells at Whimble, though the diameters given by Ellacombe do not support that view. The Whitstone band consisted of the following members: S. Preston, 1; H. Baxter, 2; W. Preston, 3; W. Serecombe, 4; G. Baxter, 5; M. Skinner, 6. They were accompanied during the day by Mr. C. Pearson, honorary member of the band, who occasionally took a rope. The local ringers were for the most part making holiday elsewhere, but the Whitstone band are grateful for the civility of those who met them, and to the clergy for permission to ring.

THE ST. MARY'S SOCIETY, BLACKHILL, DURHAM.

On Easter Monday, April 2nd, the members of this Society paid a visit to Christ Church, Tynemouth, being kindly invited by W. Reed, Esq., some time ago, breaking the journey at Newcastle to see a few old friends. A message awaited them at the station to visit St. John's, at ten a.m., where they found Mr. F. Lees and Mr. E. Wallis all in readiness for a pull, and the following touches were brought round: a 504 of Grandsire Triples. *J. Moore, jun., 1; *J. McPhillips, 2; *J. Moore, 3; *B. King, 4; T. Denton, 5; E. Wallis (conductor), 6; A. Nichols, 7; F. Lees, 8. And 672 of Grandsire Triples. J. McPhillips, 1; F. Lees, 2; J. Moore, 3; T. Denton, 4; S. Power, 5; E. Wallis (conductor), 6; A. Nichols, 7; *R. Moore, 8. *First attempt on eight bells. After parting with old friends, go was called for the house of Mr. E. Wallis, where a plentiful supply of sandwiches and coffee was in readiness and at the kind invitation of Mrs. Wallis were soon brought to grief. A move was then made to North Shields by the two p.m. train, where they found Mr. W. Reed and Mr. Wignell awaiting them. Arriving at the church they found the bells up and ready for action and were not long in having a few gos, and a 504 of Grandsire Triples were brought round. J. Moore, jun., 1; *J. T. Dobson, 2; Joel Hern, 3; R. Wignell, 4; J. Moore, 5; E. Wallis (conductor), 6; A. Nichols, 7; *C. McElrue, 8. *First touch on eight bells. The society wish to thank Mr. Reed, Mr. F. Lees, and all who in any way contributed towards their enjoyment, through the medium of this paper, thus concluding an enjoyable holiday trip.

THE ORMSKIRK SOCIETY.

ON Easter Monday, April 2nd, eight members of the above Society paid a visit to Hoghton, and the Rev. J. Shortt having given permission to ring, a start was made for Holt's ten-part peal, when after ringing 4522 changes, the go of the tenor was so bad that the tenor ringer (being so exhausted in attempting to keep her going the whole of the peal) had to set her, and the remainder of the peal was rung without a tenor in 2 hrs. 44 mins. After a chat with the worthy vicar a start was made for Blackburn. Here again permission was given to ring, so a start was made for another peal which was accomplished in 2 hrs. 50 mins., after which the inner man began to speak about being neglected, no one having partaken of anything to eat since 6 a.m., so at the invitation of Mr. John Walker they gladly consented to accompany him to his home, where they found Mrs. Walker had a first-class repast awaiting them, and to which it need scarcely be said ample justice was done. Dinner over, and being greatly refreshed, the handbells were brought into requisition, when Messrs. Walker, Taylor, Ellis and G. Prescott rang several courses, after which a visit was paid to the various places of interest until time to start for home, which was reached shortly after 10 p.m., thus bringing to a close a hard but very pleasant day. The ringers would like to take this opportunity of thanking all their friends who assisted to make the day so enjoyable.

THE SOUTHPORT SOCIETY.

ON Easter Monday, April 2nd, the Christ Church society, Southport, had a very pleasant outing to Hoghton and Blackburn. On arriving at Hoghton they found a company in possession of the tower ringing Grandsire, so they walked with the vicar to his house and rang a few tunes and a plain course of Grandsire and Bob Major on the handbells, Mr. and Mrs. Shortt expressing themselves highly pleased with the ringing. By this time the bells had ceased, so they moved towards the tower, where they set to in earnest and rang a date touch of Bob Major (see another column). After refreshing the inner man at the "free" house of a fellow-ringer, they caught the train to Blackburn, and rang a 336 of Bob Major on the parish church bells. L. Tyldesley, 1; Joseph Rimmer, 2; James Rimmer, 3; Walter Hewitt, 4; James Rimmer, 5; Richard Hill, 6; William Baldwin, 7; A. Lawrance Porter (conductor), 8. The ringers were quite astonished to find it was almost train time, therefore they had to hasten to the station, and only caught the iron horse, when after numerous sundry shakings and joltings it steamed into Southport about 8 o'clock in the evening. The ringers wish to thank the Vicar of Hoghton for the use of the bells.

THE ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A Meeting was held at Ely, on Easter Monday. Members from Cambridge, Soham, Bury St. Edmund's, and Mildenhall attended; and the tower of St. Mary's was, by kind permission of the Vicar and churchwardens, open to the ringers. The go of this fine peal was all that could be desired, and some good touches were rung. The members dined together at the "Crown and Anchor," under the presidency of the vicar and his curate, several of the principal parishioners joining them; the churchwardens were unavoidably prevented from attending. After a hearty meal a business meeting was held, when the hon. sec., the Rev. K. H. Smith, made a statement, and urged all ringers to join a society which aimed at the amelioration and amalgamation of all interested in the art. M. Potter, Esq., M.A., tendered his resignation as treasurer, and a vote of thanks was accorded him for past services, and Mr. Sayer, of Ely, was appointed in his place. Several new members were elected, and Wisbeach was selected as the next place of meeting on the August Bank Holiday.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.—
By Charles Pearson, M.A. Price Threepence, by post Fourpence.—WILLIAM POLLARD AND CO., Printers, Exeter.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Be circumspect."

Mr. Jerram last week calls attention to a point which—although the question has been raised beforetime—deserves the serious consideration of the Exercise, namely, the ringing during Lent, and particularly during Passion week. I very much fear that our brethren as a body do not as yet adequately realise their position in the Church; that they are too prone to forget that the bells they ring are the "outward voice" of the Church, proclaiming in turn its seasons of sorrow and rejoicing. In our enthusiasm we are apt to forget that the bells are not placed in the towers merely for our personal gratification, but that they are instruments in connection with the services of the Church, which should be used in accordance with the varying seasons as they come round. Our bells should proclaim equally the solemnity of the Lenten time just as faithfully and "with no uncertain sound" as they should on the morn of the great festivals ring out their merry peals announcing and welcoming the days of joy and thanksgiving.

With increased intelligence in our ranks, and a more correct appreciation of our true position, I have no doubt that such righteous complaints as that of Mr. Jerram will be rendered unnecessary, and that the varying seasons of the Church will be proclaimed aloud from her towers in a manner both appropriate and intelligible.

My friend Mr. Hollis would like to know my opinion about "Violet" and "New London Pleasure." The observations which I made anent the "Surprise peals" are equally applicable—though perhaps in another way—to these two. I most certainly do not think that they are deserving of the names of two distinct methods. The mere fact of the plain lead of the one being the bob lead of the other, and vice versa, does not appear to me sufficient to warrant the dignity of two separate names. The distinction, indeed, would seem in reality more a matter concerning a conductor than anything else.

But these two are not by far the only ones to which Mr. Hollis might have referred—for instance, "Woodbine" and "Oxford Delight," also "College Single" and "Court Bob."

It will perhaps be remembered that I called attention to the matter of collecting and revising these Minor methods a few weeks ago; and one great cause of my doing so was the very point to which I am now alluding. We do not possess a collection of six-bell methods worth the name, and as a natural result (as I showed previously), the same methods are being rung in different places under various names. A person works out a plan of getting a 720 in some different way to what he has hitherto seen; he then dubs it "Court" this, or "Surprise" something else: and fondly imagines that he has benefitted the Exercise by introducing something new; thus the number of these so-called "methods" increases, and the result is chaos.

The question then of course arises—what can be done in this matter to bring about an improved state of things? For my own part I do not see any better mode than the one I previously suggested, viz., the production of a thoroughly comprehensive collection of Minor methods, one competently and carefully revised, and these duplicate and "shady" methods eliminated.

There is plenty of material for a work of this sort; a considerable amount of good will result from it; and (by no means the most insignificant consideration) there will I feel sure be a sufficient good "market" for the book to ensure its success from a financial point of view.

I was pleased to see the information supplied by Mr. Attree with reference to the non-Association peals, to which I called attention, and hope he will in future add that item to his analysis. But what are our Lancashire friends doing that they furnish one-third of the total of these peals by "Independent Societies." They have in their county, I believe, two Associations, which is not the case in any other, and yet their number of peals by outsiders is so much in excess of any other. There may of course, and probably are, reasons for this which I know not of; but it certainly does appear on the face of it that our friends of the County Palatine who are aiming at possessing an efficient organisation, have plenty of work before them.

And now, Mr. Editor, just a word with you. I don't altogether "fall in" with your sweeping condemnation of our general daily press in regard to its treatment of our favourite art. Time was, as most of us will know, when the individuals who made it their study and science to batter their opponents' physiognomies out of all recognisable shape were regarded as gentlemen compared with the class of beings who then occupied our belfries. But you will not venture to argue that such is the same now. And if the daily press does give undue prominence to such exploits of a doubtful respectability, is it not because they have got all classes of people to cater for? We can never expect change-ringing to become what is generally termed "popular," because like any other scientific pursuit, its intricacies are so numerous, and the difficulty of understanding it so great, that it is impossible for it ever to obtain that hold on the public mind which these out-door "sports," with their attendant excitement, have secured.

At the same time, I do not think we have much cause to grumble at our treatment by the public press. I believe that every year finds the columns of the "fourth estate of the realm" more open to us, and our art more understood and favourably considered by those whose control it. I could name several newspapers in my own neighbourhood which but a very few years ago would not insert even the report of a peal rung, which will now not only give us good reports of our ringing performances, but will also favourably comment upon them. I believe that the daily and weekly press of the country, taking it altogether, is ever ready to commend a work of improvement, and as the reformation which has been going on in the Exercise of late years becomes more and more manifest, there can be no doubt that we shall find the press ready and willing to help us.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 7, 1888.

EASTER has again come round, and with it appears a revival of peal-ringing. During the Lenten season which is just over, many thought it the correct thing to abstain from ringing altogether, and await the coming of the great Christian festival; to commence with greater zest on that morning which commemorates the event which manifested the triumph of the Redeemer over death and the tomb. Others have kept merely to the routine of weekly or fortnightly practice, while some have seemed to totally ignore the lessons which the Church enjoins upon all within her fold. It would not be wise to comment upon these varieties of action. The ordained ministers of the Church are beyond doubt the best arbiters of what should not be, and vice versa, and where some of them may be of opinion that the season of Lent does not require so strict an interdict as putting the bells to silence during the whole period, of course ringers have no right to question their conclusions.

But it is with the season of Easter that we now have to do. Whatever the effect of conscientious scruples existing within the forty days of Lent as to ringing, no such doubts trouble us now. This was fully established in the early morn of Sunday last, when the bells from hundreds of steeples of Christian churches over the whole universe published the fact that a great festival had arrived, a festival as important as any in the Church's year. And though there may be instances where in announcing this, the ringers themselves may unfortunately have not yet become inspired with the spirit which should animate them in proclaiming the Resurrection, yet it is satisfactory to know that such instances are becoming scarcer year by year.

The Monday of Easter week has always been regarded by ringers as an excellent day to meet for peals with brethren of other neighbourhoods than their own. At a time when facilities for travelling were so few, the ringers of a bygone age were apt to look forward to Easter-Monday for the only "outing" they could secure during the year. And we think the day still maintains its favorite position among the Exercise. The notices inserted lately in our columns by the secretaries of the various associations bear out this; and a great many ringing meetings have also taken place, and visits have been made by ringers which have not been announced beforehand. Let us hope all these reunions have been profitable to those partaking in them.

At Eastertide it is usual to elect those important officers, the Churchwardens. With many of these gentlemen ringers are brought frequently into contact during their term of office. Now and then we hear of them being disagreeable and acting in a manner repugnant to the cherished ideas of ringers. But we think this the exception, not the rule. There is a very old axiom to the effect that it is wise to maintain a good relationship with the incumbent, while ignoring the opposition or unfriendly attitude which may be exhibited by the warden, on the principle that the interference of the latter will be of a fleeting character. This seems at first sight the surest game to play, though it savours of cunningness. By all means respect the wishes and inclinations of the incumbent in every particular, but there is no reason why endeavours should not be made to conciliate the wardens. And a short touch or two, welcoming them on their accession to office, will in most cases, be an act to promote a mutual understanding between them and the ringers. Among the clergy and churchwardens greater efforts should also be made for recruits to our ranks. When either of them can be prevailed upon to become real useful working members, what a power is gained to the art, for such an example becomes contagious. Next Easter we hope to be able to hear that many more of the clergy and churchwardens are good ringers.

WREXHAM (North Wales).—On Monday, April 2nd, at St. Giles' church, an attempt was made to ring a 10,008 of Grandsire Caters, which unfortunately came to grief after ringing 2 hrs. and 38 mins. through the breaking of the 8th rope. C. Price, 1; J. Moulton (conductor), 2; R. Jones, 3; J. Williams, 4; G. E. Turner, 5; E. Rowlands, 6; J. Rodgers, 7; T. Newell, 8; J. Eachus, 9; J. Kendrick, 10. Tenor 28 cwt. in D. Messrs. Eachus, Rogers, and Turner hail from Manchester; Price from Eccleston; Moulton from Chester; the rest belong to Wrexham. The peal is the composition of Mr. Henry Johnson of Birmingham.

Obituary.

We have to chronicle with deep regret the death (at the early age of 38) of the Rev. Augustin Starey, Vicar of Charing, Kent. His face was a well-known one at Tottenham, Middlesex, where prior to the year 1883, he was the senior curate at the parish church. It was during his curacy there, and very much through his exertions, that the two trebles were added to the old peal of six, to complete the octave, in the year 1881. He rang in the first peal upon the bells on the 24th June, 1882, the peal being Holt's ten-part.

When appointed to the Vicarage of Charing, he at once set to work to improve the ringing, taking great pains to teach his ringers change-ringing, and in his last illness would attend practice and ring, even when it caused great pain to do so. He had a good head for mathematics, and a good ear for time and tune, and it was perhaps these qualifications which induced him to take up bell-ringing, the study of which he pursued with great enthusiasm.

Upon receipt of the news of his death at Tottenham on Sunday, March 25th, the bells were half-muffled for the evening service, and a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples rung by the following members of the All Hallows society. T. Hughes, 1; J. Waghorn, 2; T. Grove, 3; J. Waghorn, jun., 4; G. B. Lucas, 5; W. Pye-English, 6; H. Barnett (conductor), 7; G. Richards, 8. The funeral took place at Tottenham on Wednesday, March 28th. Before proceeding to the cemetery, a short service was held in the parish church. The "Dead March" from Saul was played as the mournful procession entered the sacred edifice, the "Dies Irae" being subsequently sung by the choir of All Hallows. After the ante-service was concluded, a procession was formed to the cemetery in the following order: Rev. Prebendary Wilson, M.A. (vicar), officiating; Rev. A. F. King, M.A., and Rev. W. R. H. Arundel, M.A. (curates); Rev. W. Almack, M.A., and Rev. E. Hobson, M.A.; Mr. J. Langran, Mus. Bac., and the choristers; Rev. W. Starey, M.A., Mrs. A. Starey, the Misses Starey, Mr. Starey, and numerous friends and relatives of the deceased. The cemetery having been reached, the burial service was concluded, and the hymn, "Jesus lives! no longer now," was sung. The coffin was of polished oak, and bore the inscription:

"Augustin Starey, priest.
God be merciful to me a sinner."

The grave is situate as near as possible under the shadow of the church tower where he had loved to ring. After the funeral, the members of the All Hallows (Tottenham) society of ringers, met and rung the usual whole-pull and stand as a last token of respect for one to whom they are so much indebted for the position which they now hold.

THE TROUBLES OF AN AUNT.—When the late Dr. Norman Macleod paid one of his visits to Balmoral in 1863, he was taken into the confidence, in a rather old-fashioned way, of the Princess Beatrice. Her Royal Highness was then a little lady of six summers, and found it very hard to get the proper degree of respect and obedience from her nephew and niece. "What do you think?" she complained. "I am an aunt, Dr. Macleod, yet my nephew William (of Prussia) won't do what I bid him! Both he and Elizabeth refused to shut the door. Is that not naughty?"—From "Little Folks" Magazine for April.

Church News.

The Archbishop of Canterbury will receive the Bishops attending the Lambeth Conference at his cathedral on the 30th of June, and will deliver an address of welcome.

On Easter Day a handsome silver-gilt cross, presented by the Queen in commemoration of her Jubilee, was placed on the altar at St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

The Record understands that there was probably a considerable excess of expenditure over the income of the Church Pastoral Aid Society for the financial year which ended on Saturday.

At the Easter vestry at Denmead, Hants, on the names being put of two Churchmen and regular communicants, whom the vicar stated that he should be happy to approve of if elected as churchwardens for the ensuing year, the votes of several cottagers were objected to as not being ratepayers. The vicar ruled that in a new ecclesiastical parish all householders whether paying rates directly or indirectly, had a right to vote, and he stated that he should accept all such votes. His ruling was protested against by the minority.

At the Easter vestry at Wakefield, the vicar (Canon Straton), said the parish church had been restored at a cost of £30,000, and made a glory to that part of Yorkshire, and when they handed it over to the cathedral authorities it would be perfectly free from debt. The Bishop had taken as a temporary residence for two years a house in South-parade, but because he was coming to live at Wakefield they must not think that he would be Bishop of Wakefield only, and they must not expect him to take part in every petty ceremony in the town, or they would drive him away from among them.

The London Diocesan Conference will hold its second session in the Hall of King's College, on Tuesday and Wednesday next. The agenda include the following resolutions. "That, while prosecuting her mission among the poor, the Church should not be unmindful of her duty to the richer classes." "That Churchmen should carefully consider the attitude which the Church ought to assume towards the Socialistic tendencies of the present day." "That, in the opinion of this conference, the operation of the law of divorce has been, and is, very injurious to national morality." "That the laxity of the observance of the Sunday amongst the higher classes has an injurious influence on the religion of the community."

The Guardian says that the Bishop of London has taken an extraordinary step with regard to his diocesan conference, and one not likely to revive the somewhat failing vitality of that body. The Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe sought, we understand, to bring forward the following resolution: "That this conference, recognising the fact that in the metropolitan cathedral members of all schools of thought in the Church of England are accustomed to meet for worship, deploring the introduction there of a reredos the ornamentation of which is calculated to arouse (and has aroused) difference of opinion, and to hurt the consciences of many Churchmen." The Bishop has exercised his veto and has refused to allow the subject to be discussed.

The Bishop of London has contributed to his Diocesan Magazine a useful statement with respect to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. His lordship says:—"The commissioners now hold £900,000 a year in trust for a great number of different parishes, etc., and have £100,000 a year still free from which to make grants. The conclusion to which the commissioners have been driven is this; that henceforth they must only grant lump sums, and not annuities, except so far as the annuities shall be the future dividends derived from the investment of these lump sums. The £100,000 which they have to give away at the end of this year will at the utmost provide £2,750 a year (taking interest at 2½ per cent.); whereas in 1880, they granted £27,000 a year, charging it on their whole property."

The London Diocesan Magazine says that the prayers of the Church are earnestly asked that the Holy Ghost may direct those with whom the appointment lies in their choice of the "man after God's own heart" to succeed Bishop Walsham How. One of the chief aims of the Bishop of Bedford has been to increase the supply of clergy and Church workers for East London, and through the East London Church Fund eighty-two additional clergy and eighty-three additional lay workers, male and female, have been added to the staff of the Church. But some returns as to the supply of clergy, recently laid before the Evangelistic Committee of this fund, show that upon the usual calculation which allows one clergyman for every 2,000 souls, for the deaneries of Hackney, Spitalfields, and Stepney, and the parish of Tottenham, at least 100 more parish priests are required at once. The work of the East London Church Fund seems to be scarcely more than begun.

DEDICATION OF A NEW RING OF BELLS AT THE PARISH CHURCH, MOSSLEY, LANCASHIRE.

A new peal of eight bells has just been hung in the tower of the above-named church. Last September a committee was appointed to arrange for the furnishing and providing a peal of bells and an organ. An appeal was made for funds, with the result that the eight bells required were given by the following donors: Treble, young men of St. George's Sunday School; 2nd, Mr. Hugh Kershaw, with his daughter's name inscribed on the bell, "Emma Kershaw"; 3rd, Rev. Anthony Hall, Vicar; 4th, Mr. Hugh Kershaw, inscribed with his son's name, "Master Hugh Kershaw"; 5th, Miss Mary Wrigley, Hey; 6th, Councillor John Mayall, J.P., Mayor; 7th, Mr. John Knott; 8th, Councillor Andrew Beswick, J.P. The names of the donors are inscribed upon the bells, except those given by Mr. Hugh Kershaw, on which are inscribed the names of his two children as above. The weight of the tenor is 12 cwt. 2 qrs. 14 lbs., note F sharp. The cost of the fittings, hangings, etc., has been met by subscriptions. The bells have been cast and hung by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of the Whitechapel Foundry, London, and are a very fine and sweet-toned peal. Saturday, March 31st, was appointed for the dedicatory service. At 6 p.m. a short service was conducted in the church by the Vicar, special psalms and collects being used, and the Rev. Canon Davenport Kelly, M.A., Rector of St. Matthew's, Manchester, preached a most appropriate sermon. During the offertory the well-known hymn, "Now at length our bells are mounted," was very heartily sung by the choir, ringers, and congregation present. Immediately after the Benediction the bells pealed forth for the first time, rung by eight members of the Saddleworth Society, who have undertaken to ring them for twelve months. The real opening peal was rung by the same company on Easter Sunday morning, a report of which will be found in the peal column. The services on Sunday were all well attended. The preachers were: morning, the Vicar; afternoon, the Rev. T. Butterworth, M.A., Vicar of Hurst; evening, the Rev. Canon Eagar, M.A., Rector, and Rural Dean of Ashton-under-Lyne. The offertories amounted to the handsome sum of £50. On Easter Monday, ringers attended from Huddersfield, Dewsbury, Almondbury, Ashton-under-Lyne, Hyde, Stalybridge, St. Paul's Staley, Mottram, Glossop, Hayfield, Worsley, Preston, Stockport, Lindley, Liverpool, Northwich, Leesfield, Glodwick, Oldham, Moorside, Earlsheaton, Kirkburton, Armitage Bridge, Birstal, Holmfirth, Friezeland, and Saddleworth, and rung touches all day in various Major and Minor methods.

At 2 p.m. a dinner was provided at the "Bull's Head" Inn at which 166 ringers sat down. Great satisfaction was expressed by them all at the sweetness of tone and the ease with which the bells could be rung. The total cost of the bells and fittings is about £550.

At the Easter vestry meeting held the same day a vote of thanks was moved by John Kershaw, Esq., J.P., and seconded by Councillor Mills, churchwarden, to Mr. John Holden, for services rendered during the hanging of the bells, and superintending the arrangements for the opening, and ringing of the bells during the day, and carried unanimously, to which Mr. Holden replied in suitable terms. Great praise is due to Mr. Greenleaf, from Messrs. Mears and Stainbank's, who has carried out the work in such a creditable, efficient, and praiseworthy manner.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

On Easter Monday, April 2nd, this Association held its first Quarterly Meeting of the year at Wimbledon, by the kind permission of the Rev. Canon Haygarth. Tea was served at the "Welcome" Coffee Tavern at 6 p.m., and some thirty members enjoyed a hearty meal. The new certificates of membership having been distributed to those who were present (either personally or by proxy) the chair was taken by Mr. Russell, and the usual business was proceeded with. The Secretary reported that there were fifteen peals to be entered in the book, and a resolution that they be so entered was passed. Five new members were elected. It was resolved that the next district meeting be held at Epsom, and the annual meeting at Bletchingley.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

UNVEILING OF A PEAL WINDOW AT SHAROW, RIPON.

It was decided last year by the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association that all peals rung by members as Jubilee peals, should be inserted in the peal book with a special illumination and the royal coat of arms, and as Mr. T. Clark is a vice-president of the Association, he determined to do his best to secure this honour for his own band. It is to be regretted that only two such peals were rung by this Association, one of which was conducted by Mr. Clark at Sharow, on December 9th, 1887, being a 5024 Kent Treble Bob Major, and rung by the local band. It will be remembered that on the occasion of the Ripon millenary, a peal was rung, which Mr. Clark has recorded on stained glass and placed against one of the cathedral belfry windows. This new method of recording peals proved so satisfactory and pleasing, that he determined to have one of the belfry windows at Sharow filled in with stained glass to record this Jubilee peal. He was supported by the Vicar and gentry of the village in the matter of funds, and the work was entrusted to Messrs. Wailes and Strang, of Newcastle, a very old established and well-known firm of glass stainers, who in the present instance fully sustained their reputation. The window is about five feet by two feet, and the design is exceedingly pretty. An angel appears standing holding a scroll, with the particulars of the peal and the names of the ringers, vicar, and churchwardens. Immediately above the angel is a bell, and the border is filled in with crowns commemorating the Jubilee year. The colours are most harmonious, and the effect in the belfry is most pleasant. On Easter Tuesday, the ringers assembled at one o'clock, and rang several touches until two o'clock, by which time the Vicar (the Rev. H. D. Cust Nunn), Captain Cameron (churchwarden), and several ladies and gentlemen had arrived in the belfry. The Vicar addressed this congregation by stating that anything brought into the church for purposes of decoration should be received and dedicated in a suitable way, and he therefore proposed to read two prayers which he had purposely composed. After this he made several eulogistic remarks with regard to the amount of work done by Mr. Clark for the good of the ringers, both as to their comfort in the belfry, and their advancement in the science. He also referred to the example set by him to the ringers, by his regular attendance at service after calling others to worship. He then called upon the Rev. S. H. Powell, one of the oldest and most influential supporters of the church, to unveil the window.

Mr. POWELL then removed the curtain, and the window was at once greatly admired by all present. He then endorsed the Vicar's statements with regard to the respect and esteem in which Mr. Clark was held by all his neighbours, and congratulated him on the cleanliness and orderly condition of the belfry, which he had not visited for many years.

Mr. CLARK returned thanks for the good opinions which had been expressed, and hoped to continue his exertions in the interests of the belfry for many years to come.

After the company had left the belfry, and during the vestry meeting which followed, a touch of about 400 Stedman Triples was brought round at hand. J. Flower, 1; J. Baines, 2; A. Pratt, 3; R. S. Story (Newcastle), 4; A. Ingleby (conductor), 5; T. Metcalfe, 6; J. Robart, 7; J. Flower, 8. After this a peal of Stedman Triples was attempted, but was unfortunately lost after ringing about three-quarters of an hour. A. Pratt, 1; T. Metcalfe, 2; A. H. Clark, 3; R. S. Story, 4; A. Ingleby, 5; W. Pick, 6; T. Clark (conductor), 7; J. Flower, 8. Tenor 13 cwt. Further touches of Stedman and Grandsire completed the ringing, when the bells were lowered in peal in first-class style, and the company adjourned to Mr. Clark's house, where his good lady and her sister entertained them with a most substantial and abundant tea. The evening was spent in handbell ringing, bringing to a close one of the happiest days the ringers of Sharow have ever spent, and their best thanks are due to Mr. and Mrs. Clark for their kindness and hospitality on this occasion.

A REQUEST.—The Hon. Sec. of the Worcester and adjoining Districts Association requests that the Secretary or leader of each company will forward to him the names and addresses of each member, also time and nights of practice as early as possible.

WOMBOURN JUBILEE MEMORIAL CLOCK.

A clock which has been placed in the tower of Wombourne (Staffs.) parish church as a permanent memorial of the Queen's Jubilee, was on Easter Monday afternoon formally dedicated and set in motion by the Earl of Dartmouth (Lord-Lieutenant of the County). The ceremonial threw the usual quiet village into quite a flutter of excitement, and attracted from all round the country side the presence of a large number of people, who, having secured seats within the handsome church, watched with interest the initiation of the proceedings and joined in the special service that followed. The cost incurred in purchasing and placing the clock in the tower has been about £120. The public subscriptions contributed amounted in the aggregate to over £100, and whatever balance remained would, it was hoped, be wiped off by the collection made at the dedicatory service. The clock, which was supplied and fixed by Messrs. John Smith and Sons, of the Midland Clock Works, Derby, has Cambridge chimes, and strikes the hour upon the tenor bell. There are two dials, each six feet in diameter, with cast iron framework and a background of copper-coloured hue, the hands, figures, and minutes being gilded. The Earl of Dartmouth (who was accompanied by Lady Georgina Legge), upon his arrival at the church, was received at the porch by the vicar, (the Rev. W. J. Heale), the churchwardens (Messrs. Henry Hill and C. A. Izon), the members of the Jubilee Committee, and others. The vicar read an address, and his lordship, attended by the vicar and others, passed into the church, where at the conclusion of the processional hymn, "Jerusalem on High," the vicar, standing beneath the tower, pronounced a special prayer of benediction, after which Lord Dartmouth by pulling a cord set in motion the clock, which struck the hour of four. The remainder of the special service was afterwards proceeded with. After the service a meat tea was held in the schoolroom, and in the evening a miscellaneous entertainment was given, Wombourne being quite en fête upon the auspicious occasion, the inhabitants all being highly pleased with so splendid a work of mechanism as their new parish clock, the makers coming in for no small praise.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A District Meeting will be held at Crayford, on Monday, April 16th. It is intended to visit also Dartford and Erith churches. Committee meeting near Crayford church, at 2 p.m., to settle the day of annual meeting and other business. Please communicate with the Secretary, REV. R. K. HUGESSEN.
Wrinsted Court, Lenham.

THE BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting will be held at Harborne, on Saturday, April 21st. By kind permission, the tower will be open for ringing at 4 o'clock, meeting to take place afterwards, when all members and friends are invited to attend.

J. CARTER.

Obituary.

WILLIAM AMOS.

With deep regret we have to announce that the above-named gentleman expired early on Monday morning, April 2nd, at his own residence near the church, Lavenham, at the age of 63. His mortal remains were interred in their last resting place on the following Friday, in the churchyard of SS. Peter and Paul, amid universal sorrow and sympathy, so highly was he respected and esteemed. His large-hearted sympathy endeared him both to young and old, and his connection with the office of church clerk has extended twenty years. Though not a ringer he was a cheerful companion and of a very agreeable and most jocund disposition. Those who knew him cannot help recalling the many pleasant hours enjoyed in his company. Such a loss by his death in the parish cannot easily be replaced. On the following evening the local company (with the exception of Messrs. Symonds and Snell from Preston), paid their last tribute of respect to their deceased friend, by ringing deeply muffled touches of Bob Major.

* * A number of touches and other matters are left over till next week.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Magnus est veritas et prevalebit."

As I anticipated last week, Easter Monday has been characterised this year by a very considerable amount of change-ringing. This is very satisfactory, but what is even more so, is the varied character of the performances. From the 10,176 of Kent Treble Bob at Coddendam to the modest half-peal of Minor by the young band at a place which shall be nameless, all our brethren seem to have been animated with the same determination to do something on that ancient holiday.

The list of peals and touches reported is moreover of a very interesting nature, and although I might be possibly laying myself open to the charge of making invidious distinctions, I cannot help noticing some of the performances as being of rather more than ordinary interest.

Take first the peal of Stedman Caters at the venerable cathedral of Canterbury by the College Youths, the first in the method on these bells. I have no doubt that not the least enjoyable part in connection with this peal was the excellent banquet at which we are told they were entertained by the Dean at the conclusion of the ringing.

The Warnham men were evidently in good earnest when they started "into changes" by 4.30 on Easter Day morning. I have I admit, some doubts as to the appropriateness of peal ringing on Sundays, but on an occasion like this, I can imagine no more "royal" and praiseworthy way in which to usher in the Great Festival in which we commemorate the words "He is risen," then to ring as the Warnham men did, a peal previous to the first celebration of that Sacrament which He instituted, after the solemn Lenten season has ended. I would like to shake hands with the Warnham men for this, but as that is physically impossible, I hope they will take the will for the deed.

Allow me also to compliment the Coddendam band on their successful accomplishment of a 10,176 of Kent Treble Bob. According to present appearances, this year bids fair to be characterised for its "long lengths."

There was certainly no lack of ringers at Duffield on Easter Tuesday, as surely a peal of Superlative Surprise Major followed by a peal of Duffield Royal would be quite sufficient work for one day. I imagine some of our friends of the Midland Counties' Association will have had a pretty brisk time of it this Easter; with their Annual Meeting on Monday, two peals on Tuesday, and another on Wednesday.

Speaking of Duffield tempts me to add that if any of our friends have an inclination this summer to see a real good old English village, they ought to pay a visit to this place. Reposing in a beautiful valley, the stream winding its way along, near which, a short distance from the dwellings, in the midst of "God's Acre," stands the venerable parish church; while on the hill side near at hand, is seen the home of the popular squire. It is just such a place as painters love to depict on canvas, and poets to describe in flowing verse. Its name is now a "household word" amongst us, and I do not doubt that during the coming months its visitors will be both numerous and frequent.

What is the object of our Loughton friends in telling us that their peal of Grandsire Triples is the quickest on the bells? Do they imagine that some extra credit is due to them from this fact? I have several times noticed a tendency on the part of peal ringers to parade the quickness of their ringing. That is to my mind a mistaken notion. Speed is all very well and requisite in racing matches, but in ringing I consider the statement that a peal was "well struck throughout" infinitely more to the credit of the ringers than the boast of its beating record in the matter of time.

I am reminded by the foregoing, of Mr. George Williams' rejoinder with respect to my remarks on his Warnham peal. It is no justification to them that another company has galloped through a similar peal at the same quick rate. To use an old adage—"Two blacks don't make one white," and because I did not happen to criticise the former peal in question, Mr. Williams has a notion that I am guilty of partiality. Let me assure him that he is altogether mistaken—never more so, in fact in all his life: and without further comment I would with all good feeling commend to his notice the preceding paragraph.

Our friends who met at Wrexham on Easter Monday, are to commiserated on the failure of their bold attempt at a 10,008 of Grandsire Caters. And all through the breaking of a rope. Vexing, wasn't it?

"There is no rose without a thorn" is a homely saying, the truth of which is demonstrated this week. Amid the reports of our jubilant peals this Eastertide, it is sad to read of the demise of one of our enthusiastic brethren in the art, the Rev. Augustin Starey. Our friends of Charing and Tottenham will no doubt feel most acutely his loss: but their bereavement will be shared by the Exercise generally, for we can ill afford to lose a single guiding spirit. As Christian men, however, we may have faith that our Master will raise up others to fill the gaps caused by the removal of those who have done good service in the past, and gone to their reward. If the Rev. A. Starey was not given length of years, I do not doubt that while here he faithfully did what he could, and will leave behind him among those who knew him personally "the remembrance of the just man made perfect." May we all in like manner, when our time of departure arrives, leave behind us pleasant memories among those who remain here with whom we have been associated.

There is one more point to which I would allude, namely, the ringing of the bells half-muffled for the Good Friday services, which I see has been done at some places: This plan seems to me most appropriate. Does it not appear anomalous that on the most solemn day of the Church's year, when we commemorate the propitiatory death of Our Saviour, that our bells should be rung in the same manner as they are on the following Sunday morning when we celebrate His rising from the dead, and thus completing His great work of redemption? In many places we ring our bells half-muffled during the last hours of each expiring year; we ring our bells muffled at the death of a friend; should we not then as Churchmen consider it even more incumbent on us to do likewise on the day when we commemorate the death of our Lord and Saviour? Think of this.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting of the above Association was held in the Chapter House, Worcester Cathedral, on Easter Monday. The Rev. T. L. Claughton, M.A., Canon of Worcester (in the absence of the Dean) presided. There were also present the Revs. Canon Cattley and W. R. Carr, Vice-Presidents, C. Chaytor and W. C. Gibbs, Messrs. H. B. Kingsford, W. H. Fussell (Hereford Guild), S. Spittle (Master), J. Smith (Hon. Sec.), and a large number of members from Arley, Aston, Bromsgrove, Brierley Hill, Coseley, Croome, Dudley, Hagley, Hanbury, Hanley Castle, Kidderminster, Leigh, Netherton, Stoke, Stourbridge, Tipton, Worcester, Westbromwich, etc.

The CHAIRMAN, on behalf of the Dean and Chapter, welcomed the members of the Association to Worcester, and remarked that they at the mother church of the diocese should always be pleased to receive them with open arms. Speaking of the clergy he thought that a great many who were not members of the Association took a great interest in the bells and their ringers. Referring to Canon Catley, he would like to call him the father of bell-ringers (if he might be allowed), owing to the interest he had taken in the work for such a great number of years. He then proceeded to speak of the healthiness, as well as the usefulness of the science of change-ringing, and trusted the efforts of the Association would result in the spread of the art to every tower in the diocese.

A letter was read from the President (Dr. Gott), Dean of Worcester, apologising for his absence. The minutes of the last annual meeting being read and confirmed, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. Gott; Vice-Presidents, the Revs. Canon Cattley and W. R. Carr; Lay Vice-Presidents, Messrs. J. Naylor (Dudley), H. B. Kingsford (Stoulton); Master, S. Spittle (Dudley); Hon. Sec., J. Smith (Netherton); Hon. Treasurer, E. Crump (Bromsgrove). Several alterations were made in the rules. The Secretary proposed a new rule (which was carried) be added: "Whereby each company in union shall appoint a local Secretary, who shall forward all communications in reference to the Association to the Hon. Sec., and make all arrangements for meetings held at his centre." He also suggested that each company have a code of rules for their own guidance, and that quarterly meetings be held for the transaction of any business, conducive to the welfare of their Society, having as their President the vicar or rector, vice-presidents, curates and churchwardens, for the time being.

The third annual report was read, which, after some discussion, was unanimously adopted.

On the motion of the Rev. W. C. Gibbs (Hagley), seconded by Mr. J. Prestidge (Netherton), it was unanimously resolved that the President be requested on some future occasion, convenient to himself, to give an address upon the subject "The deepening of the religious life of the members of this Association." The thanks of the meeting were given to Canon Claughton for presiding; to the Dean and Chapter for the use of the Chapter House; to the officers for their past services. Each of the towers in the city, including the Cathedral, were open (by kind permission) during the day, and ringing was freely indulged in.

EASTER MONDAY AT WALTHAM ABBEY.

On Easter Monday the local Society held a ringing day here, there being a good muster of ringers from the following places: London, West Ham, Tottenham, Walthamstow, Edmonton, Hertford and Ware. During the day touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, Treble Bob and Bob Major were rung. The proceedings were opened by eight members of the local society ringing a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples, in 45 mins. W. C. Dymock, 1; J. Barker, 2; T. Pallett, 3; G. Thurgood, 4; D. Tarling, 5; W. A. Alps (conductor), 6; T. Colverd, 7; R. Holgate, 8. At two o'clock, twenty-one of the party sat down to a good dinner at the head-quarters of the society, the Green Dragon Inn, Rev. F. B. Johnston, vicar, presiding, after which ringing again became the order of the day. Dinner over, and the usual toasts having been honoured,

The CHAIRMAN, in proposing "Success to the Waltham Abbey Society," said that he was glad to learn that the society was in a good position, and he trusted it would continue so, coupling with the toast the name of Mr. Dymock (hon. sec.).

Mr. Dymock having returned thanks for the hearty way in which the toast had been received, said he had much pleasure in stating that the society was in every way prosperous. They numbered now twelve members who could ring half-pull, and there were signs of progress which bade fair for the Society to be still more prosperous.

The CHAIRMAN, in proposing the toast of "Our Visitors," said it gave him much pleasure to meet them together with the local society, and he should at any time be pleased to welcome them on any future occasion as he had done that day. He had much pleasure in coupling with the toast the name of the vice-chairman, Mr. A. Hubbard, of the All Hallows' (Tottenham) society.

Mr. HUBBARD thanked the Vicar for the very kind and welcome manner in which the visitors had been welcomed. He pointed out how different it was now as compared with what it was 25 years ago. The presence of our clergy at the dinner table did a very great deal to assist the various Associations in bringing about belfry reform, and they as ringers owed much to those gentlemen for their valuable assistance.

Mr. ALPS, having made reference to the fact that there were a few young men (non-ringers) who were anxious to learn, said that he was confident that the pulse of unity was now beating within every individual member of the society, for which in a great measure their thanks were due to the Chairman.

Votes of thanks were passed to the Vicar and Mr. Hubbard for presiding, and having been replied to, the party repaired to the tower. The ringers expressed themselves deeply gratified in seeing the new clock, and also with the general appearance and good order of the belfry.

It is only fair to add that Mr. Parnell, the gentleman who gave the new clock with illuminated dials to the parish, some time ago provided mats, matting, and curtains, in order to make the ringing chamber as comfortable as possible for the ringers, and some of the visitors expressed their wishes that other parishes had gentlemen to make such handsome gifts as the clock and the furnishing of their belfry in the like manner.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The Sixth Annual Meeting of this Association was held at Derby, on Easter Monday, April 2nd, 1888, and the towers of All Saints, St. Alkmund's, St. Andrew's, and St. Werburgh's, were open for ringing from 10 a.m. A committee meeting was held in St. Andrew's parish room at 3 p.m. Tea and subsequent general meeting in the Schools at 4 p.m., the President, A. Percival Heywood, Esq., in the chair. Between seventy and eighty members and friends were present from Duffield, Burton, Nottingham, Long Eaton, Loughborough, Leicester, Melbourne, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and Derby. Two honorary and eight ringing members were unanimously elected.

The President stated that during the first quarter of the year eleven peals had been rung by the Association, and with the exception of Treble Bob Major (in which two peals had been scored), one peal each in the following methods, viz.: Grandsire Triples, Stedman Triples, Bob Major, Double Oxford, New Cumberland Surprise, Superlative Surprise, Cambridge Surprise (Burton Variation), Stedman Caters, and Duffield Royal. That was an achievement of which the Association might be proud, and he hoped that at least one peal would be rung in every method practised by the Association during the present year, which would not only keep up the reputation of the Society, but excel any previous record. The officers' report and treasurer's accounts having been passed, the following officers were unanimously re-elected, viz.: President, A. Percival Heywood, Esq.; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. William Wakley; Hon. Secretary, Mr. Joseph Griffin. A hearty vote of thanks to the vicars and churchwardens for the use of the bells and to the chairman for presiding, brought a very successful meeting to a close. The handbell competition, the prizes of which were given by the President, took place after the meeting, which was also a great success.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.

DISTRICT MEETING OF THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING of the above Association was held at Romford on Saturday, April 7th, when there was a good muster of members from several towers in the upper portion of the county. The whole of the renovations of the belfry is now completed, and the improvements made since the last visit of the Association gave general satisfaction to those present, and the tower will now stand upon an equal footing with any other in the county. Ringing commenced at two p.m., and during the afternoon and evening numerous short touches of Bob Major, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, Stedman and Grandsire Triples, were rung by various mixed bands. A capital meat tea was provided in the Boys' Schoolroom at 5 p.m., Canon Hitchcock presiding, supported by the Rev. T. L. Papillon, Hon. Sec., about forty-five members being present. After tea the following were elected: Messrs. Copsey, Mighill, Pegrum, Roughton, and Liddall (Romford); Aldridge (Brentwood); Emery (Writtle); Lucas (East Ham); Dallimore (Plaistow); Norris and Spring-hall (Sawbridgeworth); and G. Pye (Little Heath). The following provisional elections were also confirmed: A. Hulls, E. Hulls, R. M. Pratt, and A. Newton.

THE HON. SEC. read a letter from Canon Wigram relating to the question of extending the Association so as to combine the Herts and Essex Association into a Diocesan Association, and after a brief discussion, the suggestion of the Hon. Sec., that the question should be considered at the Annual Meeting was agreed to. The Hon. Sec. said that upon the last visit of the Association, certain suggestions were made respecting the need of improvements in the tower, including the re-hanging of the bells, with the result that to-day the Association found that the suggestions made had been acted upon, and there was now a great improvement in the tower. He therefore considered that the thanks of the Association were due to the Vicar and Churchwardens for the ready manner in which they had come forward and carried out their wishes, and would move that the Association would record its best thanks to the Vicar and authorities for having carried out the improvements in the belfry.

THE CHAIRMAN in acknowledging the same, expressed the pleasure it afforded him to meet the Association, and trusted that it would not be long before another visit was paid to Romford. He was pleased to find that the improvements gave satisfaction to the members of the Association present. It was the visit of the Association that brought the need of some improvement under his notice, for he himself was unconscious of the matter, but after the last visit of the Association, he found the belfry described as a "slaughter-house," and upon making inquiries, he found there was something in it, so as they were doing other things in the church, it was decided to carry out the improvements in the tower, and thus they had been able to set things in order.

THE HON. SEC. reported that he had during the afternoon paid a visit to Hornchurch with some members of the Association, and the band met with a hospitable reception, for the Vicar, who provided tea in the schoolroom, was desirous of as many remaining as could. Upon visiting the tower, the bells were found to be a grand ring of six, but stood sadly in need of overhauling. It was to be hoped that the authorities would as a result of the visit of the band, as representing the Association, take the matter in hand.

OPENING OF BELLS AT NEWTON ABBOTT, DEVON.

The St. Sidwell's branch of the Devonshire Guild visited Newton Abbott on Easter Monday, at the special request of the jubilee committee of that town, to try the bells of St. Leonard's, they having been augmented from six to eight by the addition of two new trebles. The old six, tenor about 9 cwt. in G sharp, are a splendid little ring from the Whitechapel Foundry, in 1772, but unfortunately the new bells do not correspond with them in the least. The go of them is perfect, but only the back six are heard in the belfry, and very faintly outside, giving any person the impression that a bad struck six are being rung. No doubt this will be rectified. There is also an odd bell hung only for the carillon. This carillon has been placed in the tower, and the bells augmented and rehung, as a memorial of the Queen's Jubilee, the whole of which has been carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Co., of Croydon. The band who were accompanied by ringing friends from Exeter, partook of lunch at the Ship Hotel, after which a move was made to the tower, and a 504 of Grandsire Triples was rung. The ringing-room was then cleared and an attempt was made for a peal, but a false part-end turning up at the third 500, the conductor brought the bells round. The ringing sounded very unpleasant, owing to not hearing two of the bells, and as it was no pleasure to ring the eight, some well struck Stedman and Grandsire Doubles were rung on the back six. At 5 p.m. between twenty and thirty sat down to dinner, including Mr. Batchelor, of Plymouth, who up to this time found himself "out of the hunt" at Torquay, but was soon in again, the "course-ends rolling up splendidly," and although they had several change-courses, it was eventually brought to a close by Mr. Pope, Hon. Sec. to the jubilee committee, thanking the band for coming there that day, and in return Mr. Ferris Shepherd, on behalf of his brother-ringers, thanked the committee for their hearty reception. The following took part in the ringing during the day: Messrs. Stocker, Davey, Mundy, Binfield, Bastin, Rudge, Caryle, Moss, Lake, Kelly, Hodge, Carter, E. and F. Shepherd, and Messrs. Batchelor and Richards, of Plymouth.

THE CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Sunday, April 1st, eight members of the above Guild rang at the parish church, Daresbury, a 720 of Bob Minor, for each of the services during the day, viz.: at 8 a.m., 10.30 a.m., 3 p.m., and one at the close of the last service. Another 720 in the same method was rung early on Easter Monday morning, in honour of the coming of age of Mr. Gilbert Greenall, only son of Sir Gilbert Greenall, Bart., M.P., of Walton Hall, Cheshire. The following ringers took part in the above: T. Houghton, sen., P. Hamblett, T. Houghton, jun., P. Johnson, E. de Prez, A. de Prez, and D. Melbourne.

A business meeting of the Grappenhall branch of the above Guild was held on Saturday, April 7th, in the Grappenhall schoolroom, after which six members of the Daresbury Society rang 720 Bob Minor, in about 26 mins. A. de Prez, 1; D. Melbourne, 2; P. Johnson, 3; P. Hamblett, 4; E. de Prez, 5; T. Houghton, jun. (conductor), 6. These bells, the tenor of which is said to be about 13 cwt., go fairly well, but are very false, consequently, good striking for a strange band is almost out of the question.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD AT CHRISTCHURCH, HANTS.

ON Easter Monday, April 2nd, by the kind invitation of the Vicar, the Rev. T. H. Bush, eight members of the above Guild journeyed to Christchurch, Hants, to attempt the first peal on the fine-toned peal of eight bells at the Priory Church. The church is itself a noble structure, and was four hundred years in building. It is now being gradually restored at about £1000 a year. The restoration has been in progress about sixteen years, and will take at present rate fifty years more. The bells are a grand peal, in the key of D, tenor about 30 cwt. Some of the heavy bells were cast by the Monks, and are five or six hundred years old, if not more. They were rehung by Messrs. Taylor and Sons, of Loughborough, in 1885-6, to whom all praise is due for the excellent mechanism in the hanging of the heavy bells, which "go like tops." The bells being up in readiness on the arrival of the band a short touch of Stedman Triples was rung by way of trying the ropes, etc. A start was made for Thurs-tans' peal of Stedman Triples, but failing in this method, after some refreshment another start was made, and after three hours and four minutes had succeeded in ringing Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples. The ringers were heartily congratulated on their success by the local band, as the striking had been good throughout. No time had now to be lost, having only fifteen minutes to catch the train. The band wish to thank the Vicar for his kindness, and hope next time to be successful in a peal of Stedman.

BRADFORD PARISH CHURCH.—A peal of Grandsire Caters (the first on these bells) will be attempted by the local company, on Saturday, April 21st, commencing at 3.30.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 14, 1888.

THE phrase which defines a ringing-chamber as a "slaughter-house" may be safely regarded as one more pointed than elegant; more forcible than polite. Yet we had the temerity to use it three years ago after paying a visit to the town of Romford, in Essex, at a meeting of the county Association. The place indeed belied itself, so to speak, for the fabric of the church, with its somewhat stately dimensions and prominent position in the centre of the main thoroughfare of the town, appeared to create the feeling that with such an apparently well-ordered exterior every crevice and nook of the interior would have been considered. The bell-arrangements, however, were found upon examination to be as bad as possible, in fact though our experience has during the past thirty years led us into some queer places, we never recollect anything much worse than Romford was, not even among the neglected steeples of the metropolis, where bells and their fittings are to be found in every stage of decay. The peals rung at Romford previous to the improvement and restoration just accomplished have therefore always engendered a kind of scepticism with regard to their accomplishment, especially when it was known that some of the bands scoring these performances comprised ringers whom a bob-caller would hesitate to invite if something out of the ordinary was to be obtained.

Happily this state of affairs is ended. The bell-chamber of Romford is no longer a "slaughter-house," for we are told the bells "go like tops." And not only so, but the usual adjuncts of the apartment have all been satisfactorily adjusted, and the ringers of the little Essex market town have a ring of bells and steeple "second to none in the county." This is of course as it should be, and we congratulate them in particular and the Essex Association in general, upon such an wholesome change. We are not desirous of taking one grain of credit from the Association when we claim to have a share in the honour of the restoration. Many complaints to the church authorities had we known been made by members of that Association respecting the sad state of the belfry at Romford, but is it too much to say that these complaints were entirely disregarded till this journal made the matter public property? We think not. The worthy Vicar of Romford has confessed more than once that the journalistic strictures upon his belfry caused him to make inquiries, when he discovered there was "something in them." And our criticisms, no less than the representations of the local ringers or the county Association, have effected such a grand improvement.

We do not expect to be repaid even by bare thanks for doing what is right, and what is held to be our duty. The outcome of our exertions, however, in this Romford matter, is another proof that "THE BELL NEWS" is a power which must sometimes be taken into calculation. The influence in this direction which this paper thus possesses is sufficient to merit the countenance and support of ringers and all those who wish to see bells and belfries restored.

LEEDS PARISH CHURCH.

The bells of this church, after having undergone a thorough restoration by Messrs T. Mallaby and Sons, of Masham, were formally re-opened on Easter Monday. It was originally intended to have commenced the day's proceedings with a peal of Grand-sire Caters, but owing to Early Celebration it was found impracticable. A numerous company of ringers attended during the day, including friends from Birmingham, Newcastle, Bradford, Birstall, Ripon, &c., and the "go" of the bells appeared to give general satisfaction.

THE DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A new peal of six bells by Messrs. Taylor will probably be opened on or about Wednesday, April 25th, to which the members of this Association are invited. Further particulars will be given next week.
 G. J. CLARKSON, Hon. Sec.

NOTE TO THE PEALS AT BURTON-ON-TRENT AND QUORNDON.—In connection with the visit to Burton of Mr. H. D. Betteridge, the St. Paul's society arranged for five peals to be attempted during the four days, Tuesday to Friday in Easter week, a sixth fixture (Duffield Royal), being added to the list by the kindness of A. P. Heywood, Esq. Of these, five were successfully accomplished in as many methods, viz.: Stedman Triples, Double Norwich Court, Superlative Surprise, Cambridge Surprise, and Duffield Royal. The sixth attempt was to have been one of Stedman Caters at Loughborough, but at the last moment it was found impossible to ring there, owing to illness near the church. The enjoyment of the ringers was greatly enhanced by the extreme kindness and hospitality extended to them by Mr. Heywood at Duffield, and by the Messrs. Taylor at Loughborough, and their thanks are also due to the authorities at Tamworth for so readily granting the use of the bells there, and for having everything in such capital order for ringing.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Thwaites, the longest touch of Grandsire Triples with a call every lead, is 336. In Mr. Thwaites' two-part touch he has omitted three leads in each part, for the three pairs of bells in question will come to the front eight times each, and with five plain leads, a five-part touch (1680 changes) can be got, which can be cut down to a quarter-peal containing eighty-five calls. Now it must not be thought that by starting from 342567 and 423567, that two more such touches can be got containing the whole 360 leads in the three touches, because one part is required in two touches, making seventy-two false rows altogether but they can be divided so that the thing becomes true, and then there is the three parts that has been left out, which will require at least five more plain leads, making twenty in all. Now, I believe that with twenty-five or thirty plain leads the peal can be obtained in five parts, and fifty for a ten-part, and thirty for a six-part. I shall be pleased to give Mr. Thwaites any information on the subject if he will send his address.

DOUBTFUL AUTHORSHIP.

SIR,—Seeing in "THE BELL NEWS" of last week a peal of Treble Bob Maximus by Daniel Prentice, of Ipswich, said to contain the 5th and 6th in 6th's place throughout, and is the first produced with these qualities, now, Sir, if Mr. Prentice will look at "THE BELL NEWS" for Saturday, July 31st, 1886, he will find the peal there composed by me.

Repeated.

Four times repeated.

By omitting one call in the touch of 24 leads and repeating four times, 1680 or one-third of a peal will be produced. I have a peal on this plan containing 345 calls, two of which, however, are not ordinary bobs or singles.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—Allow me to thank the member of the Sussex County Association for pointing out the peal of Grandsire Triples—Holt's Original rang on handbells at St. Albans, in April, 1887. I missed its being a Sussex Association peal in not noticing the footnote below; therefore I wish to add that the footnote to the peal of Grandsire Triples rang at Warnham, on March 18th, should read: The first time Holt's Original has been rung on church bells by the Sussex Association. It is also the second one-part peal of Triples rung on church bells by that Society, the first being Dr. A. B. Carpenter's peal of Union Triples, rang by the Crawley branch at Crawley, on Saturday, May 22nd, 1886, and conducted by

GEORGE WILLIAMS.

STAFFORDSHIRE RINGING MATTERS.

SIR,—May I ask some of the members of our prosperous and energetic neighbouring Association for the Archdeaconry of Stafford, whether some arrangement could or not be made whereby the Association for the northern and southern divisions of our shire might amalgamate, and form a well organised county Association, and one able to hold its own among similar institutions? We in North Staffordshire of the Stoke Association, ought to be rather ashamed of our peal record, as compared with that of our southern neighbours, who are exhibiting commendable activity. Also as successful meetings having been held by us for a many months, and our respected honorary secretary being very quiet just now, some of the more energetic members are beginning to fear that our Association is in a fair way for accomplishing a peaceful and quiet decease. This latter would be a deplorable and much to be regretted event, and lest it should occur we ought at once to cast off our lethargy, and make another good start ourselves, or merge ourselves into the Midland Counties' Association, or another prosperous Society. I invite correspondence through your columns on the above subject, and in the meantime subscribe myself

"BIG TOM."

TUBULAR BELLS.—A set of tubular bells has just been erected at Kirton church, Lincolnshire. We are not yet in a position to explain the character of this invention, though several enquiries have been made concerning it. When however the opportunity arrives we will do so.

KETTERING.—THE PARISH CHURCH BELLS.

By kind permission of the Rev. Canon Lindsay, a party of ringers from Wellingborough rang several six-scores of Grand-sire Doubles, with 4 6 8 and 7 4 8 covering, on the bells of the parish church, on Easter Monday. The Raunds, Wellingborough and District Association meeting was arranged for Kettering on that day, but from some cause or other had to be postponed. Kettering bells are now in a very bad state, which is scarcely to be wondered at, seeing that they have not been rehung for about 170 years. Anything in the shape of a peal on them would be an impossibility. However, thanks to the attention given to them by the local ringers, the visitors got on quite as well as could be expected, and much enjoyed their pull in this noted eight-bell tower.

Kettering was one of the first towns in Northamptonshire to obtain a full ring of eight. As far back as the year 1714, the five old bells were taken down and cast into eight. The bell-frame (now becoming unsafe) was doubtless put in at that time. Several of the bells have been recast since that date. The third bell came to grief in 1860, when it was cracked by being thrown out of its bearings by a would-be ringer. It was recast by Messrs. Taylor and Co., but according to general opinion, it is much inferior in tone to the old bell; in fact, it is too sharp and shrill, and does not harmonize with the other bells. This "black sheep" should be again recast when the peal is restored. The late Mr. W. Henson, of Finedon (who knew these bells well), used to say that the old third bell was exceedingly musical, and bore the following inscription: "Richard Sanders of Bromsgrove made us all." It is to be hoped that the old reputation of the town for ringers and ringing may be revived. Several peal tablets in the belfry testify to what has been done in the past. It is gratifying to know that Mr. Taylor, of Loughborough, has been called in to report on the state of the bells and belfry, and advises a complete restoration on an improved plan, with iron frames on the modern principle. At present, what with decayed frames, rotten headstocks, warped wheels, and thick coarse local-made ropes, it would puzzle even a "College Youth" to stand to his bell for a three hours' peal in Kettering belfry. Much credit is due to the local ringers for sticking to their work so well, for they are even now training new hands, despite such discouraging circumstances. It is to be hoped the authorities will also do their share, and put belfry, bells, and fittings, into good order. Below are the inscriptions on the bells, and diameter of mouth of each, as given by Mr. North in "Church Bells of Northamptonshire."

Treble.—"Peace and good neighbourhood, 1714. R.S." [Arms of the See of Peterborough.] Diameter 30 inches.

Second.—"At the sound of my voice lett the people reioyce. R.S. 1714." Diameter 31 inches.

Fourth.—"Bryan Hvll Gent 1714 T. Eayre Horo." Diameter 35 inches.

Fifth.—"Non Vox Sed Votvm Non Mvsica Cordvla Sed Cor 1630." Diameter 38 inches. Incised on bell: 1761.

Sixth.—"Thomas Eayre of Kettering Founder Anno Domini 1732. Omnia Fiant Ad Gloriam Dei." Diameter 40½ inches. Five coins on the bell.

Seventh.—"IHS. Nazarenus Rex Ivdeorum Miserere Mei Gloria Patri Filio Et Spiritui Sancto Tho. Eayre Fecit Anno Dom 1722." Diameter 45 inches.

Tenor.—"This bell recast by voluntary subscriptions, 1832. Willm. Cook and John Robinson, C Wardens. Glory be to God on high. W. and J. Taylor, Founders, Oxford and Bideford Devon." Diameter 52 inches.

THE PEAL OF STEDMAN CINQUES ON HANDBELLS.

As it is not an everyday occurrence to see touches or peals in the above method rung double-handed on handbells, it may be interesting to some of the readers of "THE BELL NEWS," especially those who are fond of change-ringing upon handbells, retained in hand, to know of the progress of this peal from the first practice. It was at the anniversary dinner of Mr. Johnson, sen., on February 28th, that the members who took part in the peal decided to meet to practice for a peal of Stedman Cinques. The following week found the six members of the Holt Society at their meeting-house, the "Ring of Bells," Aston, having a good try to ring three courses on the back bells, but without success, getting within a few sixes from home. The next meeting was at the house of Mr. T. Russam, on Thursday, March 8th, and was more successful, four courses being attempted, but still without bringing the bells home; another attempt however the same evening resulted in bringing round the first touch of 790. The next meeting was arranged for March 11th, when they surpassed themselves by completing 1047 in fair style considering the short time since they started. The following Thursday found them at it again, when they rang the same 1047, which was well struck. A few days later they attempted a longer touch, which was well rung, and brought round in 1 hr. 1 min., namely, 1575 changes. Having been so fortunate, they decided to start for the peal on the following Thursday at the house of Mr. H. Johnson, 63 Vicarage Road, Aston, when to the surprise of some of them on arriving there they found that A. P. Heywood, Esq. had made a purpose journey from home to listen to them, remarking that he could not resist the temptation, because it was only about twice in a century that any one had the chance to listen to touches on peals of Stedman Cinques rung upon handbells. A start was made at 7:30 p.m. for the peal, and when in the third course the ringing not being satisfactory, they stopped and made another start, this time with more success, for they sailed on course after course till they began to think their efforts would be crowned with success, but it was not to be so, for after ringing so far as thirty-two courses out of thirty-eight, or 4214 changes in 2 hrs. 43 mins., the whole thing came to grief when least expected. They were much disappointed after ringing so near to the finish, but were pleased to learn that Mr. Heywood stayed in the next room long enough to hear twenty-three courses before leaving to catch the train home, and expressed himself highly pleased with what he heard. The next attempt was unavoidably postponed till Saturday, March 31st, when a meeting was arranged at the house of Mr. H. Johnson, jun., 102 Queen's Road, Aston. A start was made at 6.45., when they managed to ring 2200 in 1 hr. 10 mins. Nothing daunted they made another start at 8.5., which also resulted in failure after ringing 1400 changes in 58 mins., so that they had to console themselves with the fact that they had a couple of good practices. Wednesday evening was selected for the next meeting at the house of Mr. H. Johnson, jun., when "go" was called so late as 8.15., and very little else was said except the calls from the conductor, till the well come words—"this is all"—brought a well-struck peal to a successful termination in 3 hrs. 12 mins. As this is only the third peal of Stedman Cinques on record in hand, it may be of interest to know the performers who took part in the previous ones. The first was rung by the St. James Society, on February 10th, 1854, by H. W. Haley, 1-2; J. Cox, 3-4; G. E. Ferris, 5-6; M. A. Wood, 7-8; W. Cooter, 9-10; J. Dwight, 11-12. Time, 3 hrs. 28 mins.; number of changes, 5014. The second was by the College Youths on January 2nd, 1858. H. W. Haley, 1-2; W. Cooter, 3-4; M. A. Wood, 5-6; G. E. Ferris, 7-8; W. Green, 9-10; J. Dwight, 11-12. Time 3 hrs. 25 mins.; number of changes 5016. Both peals were composed and conducted by H. W. Haley. It may be worthy of notice that three of the Holt Society who took part in the Cinques, also took part in the first peal rung in Birmingham or the Midland Counties (viz.: Grand sire Triples) on July 30th, 1873—namely, Messrs. Bastable, Kent and Johnson.

A MUFFLED PEAL AT A WEDDING.—One of the principal inhabitants of a village in the West of England was recently married to a lady residing in the next county. He had given orders that the church bells should be rung to welcome his bride and himself on their return home two days after the ceremony, and the ringers assembled in the belfry at the appointed hour; but just as they were about to begin, a messenger arrived in haste to stop the peal, because the bride, being an austere person of High Church principles, objected to the ringing of bells during Lent, although, apparently, she had no objection to going through the ceremony of marriage during that solemn season. The ringers, disgusted at being brought to the church for nothing, and keenly appreciating the fact there would now be no gratuity, proceeded to ring a muffled peal, which they thought would be in precise accordance with the wishes of the pious bride.—Kent Messenger.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Sixth Annual Dinner and General Business Meeting of the Association took place at the Clarence Hotel, Bedford, on Easter Monday, and was attended by a much larger number of members than usual, more than fifty being present to partake of the sumptuous repast provided by Host Sadler. The Mayor presided, and the vice-chair was occupied by Mr. T. G. E. Elger, among those present being Ald. Hurst, Canon Brereton, Mr. T. Bull, Rev. L. Woodard, Rev. A. C. Downer, Rev. J. Copner, Rev. W. W. C. Baker (Milton Bryant), Rev. E. T. Bird, Councillor Ransom, Mr. C. R. Howard, jun. (Biddenham), Mr. F. A. Chasty, Mr. J. W. Taylor (Loughborough), Mr. W. Chibnall (Apsley Guise), Mr. I. Hills, Mr. J. N. Frossell, Mr. Cullip, Mr. C. W. Clarke (Bedford), Mr. J. Hare (Hitchin), Mr. W. Biggs (Bromham), Mr. W. H. L. Buckingham and Mr. G. W. Cartmel (St. Albans), Mr. Freeman, Mr. Mynard, Mr. C. Booth, Mr. T. Wright (Emberton), Messrs. A. Morrison, W. Turney, W. Starr, F. Tompkins, M. Matthews, E. Keech, A. Tyers and W. Smith, of Woburn, Mr. J. Dickens (Sharnbrook), and Mr. C. Herbert (Woburn), Hon. Secretary.

The Rev. W. W. C. Baker was enthusiastically received on entering the room.

The tables having been cleared, business was proceeded with, letters of regret for non-attendance being read from Archdeacon Bathurst, Rev. E. W. Bowling (Houghton Conquest), Rev. W. S. Baker (Eversholt), and Rev. E. J. Hillier (Cardington).

The Treasurer (Mr. Elger) submitted his statement of accounts for the past year. The balance from the previous year had been £17 6s. 2d.; the subscriptions of hon. members were £2 15s., and of performing members £4 16s.; the total income being £25 3s. 10d. The expenditure had been £7 4s. 9d., and this left a balance in hand of £17 19s. 1d. Mr. Elger thought the members would consider this very satisfactory. They had spent rather more money than last year, but still they were in a very enviable financial position, having a larger balance than societies of that kind generally had. Although they had got some money they must not spend it recklessly, but utilise it in future in the best manner they could for the good of the Association.

Rev. J. COPNER proposed the adoption of the report and the financial statement being glad to know they were so extremely favourable; and credit was due to Mr. Elger for having managed the treasurership so ably, and to Mr. Herbert for what he had done for the Association from the first. Everything proved that the Association was promising well, and he hoped it would be taken up more warmly in the town of Bedford. He was glad to see Mr. Downer and Mr. Woodard present, and also the old familiar face of Canon Brereton, which showed they took an interest in the Association. Mr. Willan (Vicar of Holy Trinity) was unable to come. He was Vicar of the Mayor's parish, but his church had only one miserable bell, and he thought the Mayor might touch him up so that they would get a peal of bells for Trinity church. In his own parish of Elstow they were going on in a progressive way, and he hoped the church tower would soon be restored and an addition made to the bells. They had now a peal of five bells, but they hoped to have eight before long. They meant to have one more at least, and then they would be able to ring a few more changes than they could at present. He hoped he should soon be able to invite some members of the Association to Elstow to ring them some good peals.

Rev. A. C. DOWNER seconded the adoption of the report. Although he was not privileged to have a peal of bells, yet he was not unacquainted with bell-ringing, his former church at Ilkley having a peal of eight bells, which was rung very ably for two hours every Sunday. The ringers were all voluntary, and received some instruction from the late Jasper Snowden, and he thought the Committee could not do better than obtain some of his works. At St. Cuthbert's there was only one bell, the central tower not being strong enough to bear much weight, but he hoped some day to see a peal there, and nothing would give him greater pleasure than to see a tablet in the belfry recording the ringing of so many peals and changes by members of the Association.

The Mayor made a few remarks on the subject of bell-ringing, tracing its introduction back to the early ages. He suggested that the clergy should look forward to increasing the number of bells in their churches, and that they should sometimes point out to their congregations the use of bells and encourage them to ring them. He had only found out the meaning of Bob Major that day, and he trusted that some day they would be able to ring peals of Bob Major at every church in Bedford. There was a real art in bell-ringing, and he trusted the Association would develop that art, they having his sympathy and best wishes for their future success.

All the officers were re-elected. Mr. C. Herbert, who has been Hon. Sec. from the establishment of the Association in 1882, owing to other onerous duties and the failing health of all the members of his household, begged to be excused from again taking the office of secretary, notwithstanding he would never lose his interest in the work. It was, however, the desire of the members that he should continue the Secretaryship, upon which Mr. Herbert asked that some assistance be given him, whereupon the Rev. W. W. C. Baker, who expressed his willingness to serve, was chosen co-secretary.

Mr. HERBERT stated that this appointment was highly satisfactory, Mr. Baker commanding the love and respect of every individual member of the Association. Mr. Baker was a gentleman with whom any one could work well—he had in fact rendered a willing part already.

The Rev. W. W. C. BAKER, in accepting the post, took the opportunity of personally thanking the members for the present given to him on the occasion of his marriage a short time since.

About twenty new members were elected, some coming from St. Albans and Hitchin. The Mayor was elected an hon. member and was added to the committee. The district meetings were fixed for the last Saturdays in June, September, and December—the first meeting to be held at Woburn. It was resolved that £1 be expended in the purchase of two or three standard works on the art of ringing for circulation among the members, and the Rev. W. W. C. Baker and Messrs. W. Clarke and I. Hills were appointed a Committee to examine and purchase suitable books.

A vote of thanks to the Mayor—proposed by Alderman Hurst who related several anecdotes in connection with bell-ringing, seconded by Mr. ELGER—closed the proceedings.

At repeated intervals during the day, touches were rung upon the bells of St. Paul's church, as well as on those of St. Mary's church. At 5 o'clock a special service with address was held at St. Paul's church and was well attended. The church was exquisitely decorated, and the service particularly bright and hearty.

ST. EDMUND'S SOCIETY, EXETER.

ON Easter Monday, nine members of the above society started from Exeter by the nine o'clock train to visit Torquay, having previously obtained permission from the rector of Babbacombe church to ring.

On their arrival at Newton station they accidentally met Mr. Batchelor, of Plymouth, who upon being invited, accompanied them to Torquay. Arriving there, the morning was spent in sight-seeing, several places of interest being visited, including Daddy Hole Plain, from which part a splendid sea-view was obtained with the aid of a pair of marine glasses. After this they made their way to Babbacombe beach, and inspected "The Glen," the scene of a recent murder. Having looked over the interior of the house, a move was made for the tower, where they found everything in readiness, but were informed the bells had not been rung for fourteen months, but in spite of this the bells go very well, and some good ringing was done, including 1050 Grandsire Triples. T. Townsend, 1; S. Herbert, 2; H. Swift, 3; E. Pitt (conductor), 4; W. Marsh, 5; W. Richardson, 6; F. Batchelor, 7; S. Meadows, 8. After which some short touches in which Messrs. Goss and Webber took part. The party was sorry they were not able to ring at Marychurch, but they were prevented from doing so on account of illness near the church. Torquay was left behind soon after seven o'clock, everyone being pleased with their day's enjoyment.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.—By Charles Pearson, M.A. Price Threepence, (by post Fourpence).—WILLIAM POLLARD AND CO., Printers, Exeter.

VISIT OF THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD TO WELLS, SOMERSET.

A few weeks ago an account appeared in our journal of the dedication service at St Cuthbert's, Wells, of three new bells. The peal was originally six; of which the 5th was badly cracked, the 4th and tenor (28 cwt. in Db) grand bells by Bilbie, of Chewstoke, cast about 1780, and the treble and 3rd early 17th century bells, elaborately ornamented, but without any founder's name on them. On the treble is the curious inscription—

"When I was made then people freely gave."

Owing to the energy of the Wells Amateur Ringing Society, and the liberality of various citizens, three new bells have been supplied by Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, i.e. two new trebles, the gift of the ringers, and the old 5th recast into the new 7th. The old frame was quite decayed, and has been replaced by a sound and massive substructure of oak, the bells themselves being hung in iron frames. The whole of the work has, we believe, cost about £600.

Everything was completed before Easter Day, when the local company opened the peal at six o'clock a.m., and rang at intervals during the day.

On Easter Monday, eight members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild travelled down from Oxford at the invitation of the Wells society, arriving from Yatton about 2.15 p.m.. The long journey had been enlivened by touches on the handbells, including a non-conducted 504 of Grandsire Triples. The party was met at the station by the Rev. J. Beresford, vicar of St. Cuthbert's, J. N. Knight, E. W. L. Collins, master and secretary of the Wells Society respectively, and others. After lunching and listening to the new peal ringing a welcome to them, they proceeded to the tower, considered by most the finest of the famous Somerset towers. The bells and new frame were examined, and two courses of Stedman Triples rung with about thirty spectators in the ringing-room, nearly all of whom were totally ignorant of the science, though we hope that state of things is not going to last much longer at Wells. At 3.40 a start was made in earnest, and Thurstans' peal of Stedman Triples successfully brought round at 6.40 (see last week's "BELL NEWS.")

The next move was to the "Mitre Hotel," where the visitors were invited by the Wells society to their annual dinner. The chair was taken at 7.15 by the Rev. J. Beresford, president, supported by the Very Rev. Dr. Plumptre, Dean of Wells Cathedral, Canon Church, Rev. Prebendary Gibson, Rev. F. E. Robinson, Mr. Holloway, Rev. A. Coode, etc., the company numbering about 70, all told.

After an excellent repast the cloth was removed; and the loyal and patriotic toasts duly honoured, Canon Church proposed "The Wells Society." The Rev. J. Beresford and Mr. Knight responded, and Mr. Collins gave a short resumé of the work connected with the restoration of St. Cuthbert's bells, now successfully accomplished.

The Dean of Wells in an eloquent humorous speech, then proposed "The Visitors from Oxford." He said he liked the word "Guild" for a society of ringers: it had an honest English ring about it, and pointed to the religious side of a ringer's life. He expressed himself greatly surprised at the large number of ringers in the Oxford Guild (nearly a thousand), and was sure that such a society of church-workers must do an immense amount of good, and hoped that soon a Guild would be formed for their own diocese of Bath and Wells. He said that he himself had been prevented from taking up the science by reading in an article that "much patient labour for many years was necessary for its attainment," and he thought that at his period of life he could not spare time for such a stupendous task. He heartily welcomed the Oxford men to Wells.

The Rev. F. E. ROBINSON responded, and gave a short account of his Guild and its work. He laid great stress upon the fact that ringers were churchworkers in the truest sense; they ought to try to do their work in the best possible manner, since it was work for God. Change-ringing was a science which refined, disciplined and educated those who practised it, and, as he looked round on that goodly assembly of young ringers, he hoped the day was not far distant when they would one and all have mastered the intricacies of that art he loved so well. Above all let them remember that the bells were sacred instruments to be used to God's glory. He thanked the Wells Society most heartily on behalf of himself and his brother-Guildsmen for the kind way in which they had been welcomed and entertained.

Five of the Oxford men then rang a course of Grandsire Caters on their handbells. Songs and other toasts followed, a course of Grandsire Cinques was rung, and Mr. Hounslow whistled a polka, with variations, in his well-known masterly style, which fairly brought down the house. Soon after the company separated after a most enjoyable and instructive evening.

On Tuesday morning the Oxford men met at 7.0 a.m. at the south-western tower of the Cathedral, in order to try and ring a touch on the heaviest peal of eight in England. It ordinarily takes eleven men to ring this peal in rounds; the tenor weighs 57½ cwt., and goes shockingly, and all the framework is weak and out of order. A well-known conductor proceeded to gather together the three "tail-ropes" of the mighty tenor, and pull he off, when, to the amusement of all present he was unable to set he again, and confessed himself beaten for once. However, with three men at her, a fairly respectable 504 of Grandsire Triples was rung by J. F. Hastings, 1; J. Field, 2; T. Short, 3; C. Hounslow, 4; J. Payne, 5; Rev. F. E. Robinson, 6; J. W. Washbrook (conductor), 7; W. Finch, J. N. Knight, and Rev. A. Coode, 8. This was followed by a good course of Stedman after which all seemed satisfied, and the bells were lowered. This is the first successful change-ringing on the bells, which at a grand octave in B natural, and only want a thorough overhauling to be pealable. After breakfast and a ramble round the Bishop's Palace (where "the whistler" nearly dropped his "brown paper Gladstone bag" into the moat) the party started for Glastonbury, 10 minutes by rail, where, on the musical peal of eight at St. John's—another grand Somersetshire tower—the rang Brook's Variation of Stedman Triples, in 2 hrs. 53 min. (see last week's "BELL NEWS.") They then rambled about the historic town of Glastonbury, which was originally an island, and said to be the first spot in this country to receive Christianity. The Romanists have endeavoured to fix upon St. Peter the planting of the Gospel here, and as St. Paul is said by some of the early fathers to have preached "to the utmost bounds of the west," there are some of the old divines who have attributed to him that good work; Simon Zelotes, one of the twelve apostles, and Aristobulus, brother of St. Barnabas, whom St. Paul speaks in his epistle to the Romans, have also both been mentioned as having undertaken the conversion of the Britons, yet the most current opinion is in favour of Joseph of Arimathea, who after the dispersion of the converted Jews at Jerusalem, is said to have accompanied Philip the Apostle in France, and by him to have been sent into Britain with other companions to form the Church of Christ. On their arrival they proceeded to the west, where, in the isle of Avalon (sometimes called "Inis wittrim," now Glastonbury) in Somersetshire King Arviragus gave them a piece of land. There, according to Bishop Godwin, Sir Henry Spelman, and Archbishop Ushe, Joseph of Arimathea with his companions in A.D. 61, built the first Christian Church, a small edifice, made of wooden rods interwoven or wattled. In or near this primitive church tradition informs us that Joseph of Arimathea, its founder, was buried, and the following is said to be his epitaph:—

AD BRITONES VENI, POST QUAM CHRISTUM SEPETIV
DOCUI—REQUIEVI.

"I came to the Britons after I buried Christ—
I taught—I entered into my rest."

St. Joseph's chapel is still shewn, a handsome Norman structure supposed to cover the exact site of the "vetusta ecclesia" ancient church. It is now in ruins.

The 4 o'clock train from Glastonbury saw the visitors start on their return journey, after a most pleasant visit to Somersetshire, and one which we sincerely hope may bear good fruit, as a result in the science finding its way into these lovely Somersetshire towers. They wish to thank most sincerely, for the hospitality and kindness, the clergymen at whose churches they rang, the Dean of Wells for his kindness in giving them the opportunity of ringing the cathedral bells, Mr. Knight, the Rev. A. Coode, Mr. Collins, and all the Wells ringers, and Mr. Knight and the ringers of Glastonbury.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING of this society was held at Crayford on Monday, April 16th, and was attended by members from Woolwich, Gravesend, Swanscombe, and other places. At the Committee Meeting several new members were enrolled. The Annual General Meeting was fixed to be held at Ashford in June. The Secretary desires to take this opportunity of impressing on those who wish the peals they have rung to be entered in the Association Book, that it is necessary they should be sent to him for that purpose, together with the fee of threepence per ringer. He cannot take the reports of peals from the newspapers; they must be vouched for by some responsible person, and it is probable that a rule will soon be made, excluding entirely peals not sent within a reasonable time of their performance. At present, very few peals are sent for entry, compared with the number that are rung, and if this continues, the peal book will be a very unsatisfactory record.

THE DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION AT WHICKHAM, DURHAM.

On Monday, April 16th, six members from Newcastle visited the above picturesque village and rang two 720's of Bob Minor. R. J. Robson, 1; H. Ferguson, 2; F. Lees, 3; C. L. Routledge, 4; W. G. Routledge, 5; W. Story (conductor), 6. Second 720 with twenty-six singles. W. Story, 4; C. L. Routledge (conductor), 6. Tenor 9½ cwt. in Bb. These are the first 720's on the bells which have recently been increased from three to six. The ringers were most kindly received by A. D. Carr, Esq., churchwarden, and also kindly refreshed by him after ringing. A pleasant hour was spent in handbell-ringing, &c., and after offering hearty thanks to the worthy churchwarden for his genial welcome, the party walked home, relieving the monotony of the way by singing popular airs, &c., in chorus, and arriving home about 11.30 p.m., thoroughly satisfied with the evening's outing.

THE ST. PETER'S SOCIETY, LEEDS, YORKS.

The members of this society and a few friends accepted the invitation of Mr. M. Brown to dinner on Friday evening, April 13th, to commemorate the re-opening of the Leeds parish church bells. After dinner the usual loyal toasts were duly honoured.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Tom Lockwood), proposed "The Health of the Vicar and Churchwardens," and in doing so alluded to the good feeling that existed between them and the ringers, and also took the opportunity of expressing the thanks of the ringers for the kind manner in which they have responded to the requirements of the belfry in so generously getting the bells repaired, supplying a new set of ropes, and having the belfry thoroughly cleaned and comfortably fitted up.

Mr. H. W. NEEDHAM proposed "The Success of the Yorkshire Association," which was suitably responded to by Mr. W. Snowdon, who said he was always pleased to be amongst Leeds ringers, whom he regarded as old friends, and also alluding to the close intimacy that always existed between them and his brother, the late Jasper W. Snowdon.

Mr. R. BINNS gave the toast of "The Visitors," and Mr. J. WHITAKER replied.

Mr. Tom Lockwood proposed "The Health of the Host and Hostess," which was received with musical honours.

Mr. Brown responded on behalf of himself and Mrs. Brown, and expressed the pleasure it gave him to entertain them.

The musical portion of the evening was made up of songs by several members, and tunes and courses on the handbells.

On Sunday week, at St. Mary's, Summerstown, Tooting, in place of the evening sermon, the Vicar requested Mr. Griffith, F.C.O., of Chislehurst, to read a paper (with musical illustrations by choir and congregation), on "Reform in Church Music." The Lecturer, in surplice and cassock, delivered his address from the reading-desk.

On Friday the Liverpool Cathedral Committee decided to abandon the project, the promised subscriptions not being sufficient to justify proceeding further with it.

THE LONG PEAL OF GRANDSIRE CATERS AT APPLETON.

As was seen by "THE BELL NEWS" of Saturday last, the above peal was successfully rung as announced in "THE BELL NEWS." "Go" was called at precisely 7.45, and "that's all" at 3.50, thus 8 hrs. 5 mins. was occupied in ringing the peal. The striking was simply perfection from beginning to end, and not a word except "bob" spoken for hours at a stretch. This peal, which is the longest of any sort on ten bells, eclipses the long 12,000 rung at Painswick in which Mr. Giles Mansfield took part; this is the third longest peal accomplished by the Appleton Society during the last three months, viz., 10,080 of Double Norwich on January 28th; 12,041 of Stedman Caters on March 5th, and 13,265 of Grandsire Caters on April 11th. And we sincerely hope some energetic band will carry these methods to a still higher number, and strike them as well as the peals rang by the Appleton Society.

STAFFORDSHIRE RINGING MATTERS.

SIR,—I noticed in your valuable paper last week some correspondence under the above heading. If those in the proper position with the Stoke Association will communicate with the Secretaries of the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford, stating what it is that is required, every attention will be given to the matter.

REV. J. R. KEBLE, Hon. Secs,
SAMUEL REEVES,

DEVONPORT, DEVONSHIRE.

A Meeting was held at Devonport Dockyard Belfry on Wednesday, April 4th, for the purpose of forming a society in connection with the Devonshire Guild. The secretary of the Guild (the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote), and Mr. W. Banister, met the band at 7.30 p.m. Several touches of Grandsire Triples were then rung by E. Cross, 1; Hon. Rev. J. S. Northcote, 2; W. Marsh, 3; A. Richards, 4; W. Smith, 5; W. Pyne, 6; J. Steed, 7; W. Cordy, 8. Messrs. P. Manning and W. Allsford also took part in the ringing, Mr. Banister standing out and conducting. An adjournment was then made to the Public Hall, and the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote being voted to the chair. Mr. Marsh stated that the object of the meeting was to form themselves into a society (with rules, etc.), for the practice and furtherance of scientific change-ringing, and also to connect themselves to the Devonshire Guild.

The CHAIRMAN in a very encouraging address said it would give him a great deal of pleasure to have a dockyard band in connection with the Guild. Referring to the opposition to change-ringing in these parts, he urged them still to persevere, and that after getting in the thin end of the wedge, it wanted to be driven home, and if it should split while driving, take it out and put in another one. He then pointed out how the work of the Guild might be advanced in outlying parishes, and if they wanted an example, let them all work as Mr. Banister had done in his day. He begged them not to stop at Grandsire, but to go on to Stedman and other methods. As it was now getting late it was proposed and carried that the business part of the meeting be adjourned to Saturday, April 7th. Mr. Banister's handbell ringers then performed in a masterly manner several selections on their splendid set of bells. A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought a pleasant evening to a close.

At the adjourned meeting on Saturday, April 7th, (Mr. Banister in the chair), rules for working of the society were drawn up and finally agreed to. Mr. Banister wished them every success, and kindly consented to be their President. He also placed the unlimited use of his magnificent handbells at their disposal. The society will meet to practice Grandsire Triples every Saturday at the Dockyard at 6 p.m., and will be pleased to receive a visit from any brother-string.

ST. SIDWELL'S SOCIETY, EXETER.

THE THIRTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING of the above Society was held in the belfry of St. Sidwell's church on Tuesday, April 10th, the rector, the Rev. S. W. E. Bird, presiding, and there were also present the Rev. — Branscombe, Messrs. F. Davey, J. Lake, W. Stocker, J. Shepherd, E. Shepherd, J. Moss, E. Carter, S. Binfield, J. Bastin, B. Mundy. The usual election of officers, etc., having been gone through, the Secretary (Mr. B. Mundy), presented the report of the doings of the society for the past year, which showed that the society was still in a flourishing condition. The year just closed has been the most successful during the society's existence, although only three peals of 5040 changes of Grandsire Triples have been rung. It has not been for the lack of attempting more, the members having been very unfortunate. There has been several attempts for a peal of Stedman, which have been unsuccessful. There has been two quarter-peals rung in this method, and a touch of 1512, nineteen quarter-peals and touches over 1000 in Grandsire Triples. Four members of this society have succeeded in ringing their first peal during the year, and hope that before another year is closed, that it will still be more successful.

Mr. FERRIS SHEPHERD then presented the rector with a handsome framed and mounted photograph of the members of the society, as a mark of respect from all the members, he having taken a very deep interest in the welfare of the society.

The rev. gentleman on receiving it heartily thanked the members for their kindness in giving him so handsome a present. It was quite a surprise to him, and he was sure that he should always look upon it with a very great deal of pride, and if it was in his power to do any good for the society, he should be most happy to do it. He also thanked them on behalf of his wife, who had also the society and the bells at heart, and hoped that they would be spared for many years to "Ring out the false, ring in the true."

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 21, 1888.

A MEETING has recently been held at Devonport of a character which it would be better if more frequently repeated. The Secretary of the County Guild, in conjunction with Mr. WILLIAM BANISTER, has ventured to lead an attack upon a part of the county where "opposition to change-ringing" was rife. The Hon. and Rev. J. S. NORTHCOTE addressed the local band, a body hitherto it appears devoid of any organisation—and urged them to affiliate themselves to the Devonshire Guild. The result is that at an adjourned meeting satisfactory and gratifying measures having these objects in view were agreed to, and the Devonport branch of the County Guild is now an accomplished fact.

It has not publicly transpired what actual reasons existed which led the two gentlemen above-named to make a crusade against the opponents of change-ringing, but they may very well be imagined. To such a veteran in the art as our old and esteemed friend Mr. BANISTER, it must have long been disappointing that a good society did not flourish in Devonport, a society which would have reflected the triumphs which the Woolwich company scored many years ago. May they go on and prosper, and in the words of Mr. NORTHCOTE, "all work as Mr. BANISTER has worked in his day."

In this visit to Devonport by the ruling spirit of the Devonshire Guild a splendid illustration is afforded of the good work that may be effected by one in his position with a little trouble. We commend the example to other Secretaries of ringing Guilds and Associations. Working up and enquiring into those benighted districts where change-ringing is unknown or tabooed forms the best part of those legitimate objects which associations and guilds should ever have in view. When such visits are accompanied by the ringing of a peal, or short touches, all the better no doubt, especially when such performances are a great novelty to the inhabitants, as was the case at Wells recently, from which city we also hope to hear of good effect from the proceedings of the Master of the Oxford Guild and his companions.

We would remind our readers that the proposed Ringers' Directory is far from complete in consequence of the non-receipt of a great deal of the required information. There is very little trouble and very little expense indeed in affixing one's name to a post-card and despatching it to the office of this paper. The reason for the many non-responses to our invitation do not, we believe, arise from pecuniary considerations, but solely from neglect. The value of a list of ringers' names and addresses is made apparent to us every week, within the past few days no less than eight applications having been made for the whereabouts of our friends, which information we were only able to supply after much trouble.

FESTIVAL OF THE SONS OF THE CLERGY.

INSTITUTED A.D. 1655.

THE TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FOURTH ANNIVERSARY will be celebrated, with a full Choral Service, under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral, on Wednesday, May 2nd. The choir will consist of 300 voices, and will be accompanied by the organ and a full orchestra. The overture will be Sir Arthur Sullivan's "In Memoriam." The Anthem will consist of a selection from Haydn's "Creation." The Old Hundredth Psalm will be sung before the sermon, which will be preached by the Rev. John G. Richardson, M.A., Vicar of St. Mary's, Nottingham. The service will conclude with Handel's "Hallelujah" Chorus. The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, the Archbishops and Bishops, the Stewards, etc., will attend the service. The north and south doors will be opened at a quarter before three o'clock, exclusively for persons with tickets.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, LISCARD, CHESHIRE.

Saturday, April 14th, being the birthday of the esteemed vicar, the Rev. J. H. D. Cochrane, it was thought to be a fitting opportunity to ring a peal. Accordingly the band of ringers who opened the peal last December crossed the briny ocean from Liverpool, and arrived safely at the tower at 4.30 p.m. Shortly after their arrival, the vicar entered the tower, and wished them success in their attempt. At 4.45 "go" was called for a peal of Bob Major, and after 3 hrs. and 2 mins. good ringing, the welcome words "that is all" was called at 7.47 (see peal column). On the completion of the peal, the Vicar again entered the tower and heartily congratulated the ringers on their success, they in their turn wishing him "many happy returns of the day." An adjournment was then made to the mission room where they found a substantial repast laid out, about twenty ringers sitting down to it, Mr. Leather presiding, and to which each man did ample justice. After grace was said, the remainder of the time was spent in pleasant conversation until the time came for their departure, the genial clerk of the church, Mr. Roberts, accompanying them to the boat.

Considering Mr. Cochrane is not a ringer himself, it is very gratifying to find he takes such a personal interest in ringing matters, anything pertaining to the ringers comfort being thoughtfully considered by him, and upon each of their visits he has met them in the belfry before and after the ringing. They wish also through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" to tender their thanks to Mr. Roberts, the clerk, for having everything in readiness for them, nothing being left undone for their comfort.

VISIT TO BERGHOLT, SUFFOLK.

ON Wednesday, April 11th, a company of ringers from Great Bentley, Great Bromley, Heigham, and Ipswich, paid a visit to East Bergholt. It will be remembered that this noble ring of five bells hang in a square cage on the ground at the back of the church. The visitors after tapping some Grandsire Doubles on them, and ejecting the cords off the clappers, the bells were raised, and six of the local company started into rounds, and a few changes were made, which was done well, as they have to handle them by the stock, but the worst part is the noise. The bells were then given up to the visitors to try their skill. H. Bowell (Ipswich), 1; J. Starling (Great Bromley), 2; W. Smith (Heigham), 3; J. Smith (Heigham), 4; W. Nevard (Great Bentley), 6. Tenor 26 cwt. The above also rang a touch of Grandsire Triples, three courses of Bob Major, and 720 Bob Minor, on the handbells. W. Nevard, 1-2; W. Smith, 3-4; J. Smith, 5-6. Also some courses of Grandsire Triples with A. Bowell and C. Ablitt.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT RINGING MEETING was held at Bingley on Saturday, April 14th, when members and friends attended from Bradford, Bolton, Shipley, Saltaire, Keighley, Rothwell, etc. The local company commenced the proceedings by attempting a date touch of Oxford Treble Bob Major, which was unfortunately lost after ringing an hour. The bells of the parish church were then, by the kind permission of the Vicar and Churchwardens, placed at the disposal of the visitors, and touches of Minor and Major were rung during the afternoon and evening.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

NOTICE is hereby given that the next Quarterly Meeting will be held at St. Alban's church, Rochdale, on Saturday, May 5th. There will be a short service in the church at 5 p.m., at which members and friends are asked to attend. The business meeting will be held in St. Alban's schoolroom, Drake Street, immediately after service, and over which the vicar, the Rev. W. Cooper, M.A., has kindly consented to preside. The bells (8), tenor 17 cwt., will be at the disposal of members from 2.30 p.m., up to the commencement of the service, and again at the close of the meeting. Members on arrival to meet in the schoolroom, where companies can be formed for ringing. The committee will be very pleased to see as many as possible at both the service and the meeting.

JOEL REDFORD, } Hon. Secs.
A. E. WREAKS, }

ST. NICHOLAS, GREAT YARMOUTH.

The ringers of this ancient cathedral-like edifice was never more honoured than when on Thursday, April 5th, the much esteemed vicar (the Rev. W. Donne, M.A.), invited them to meet in the belfry Mr. James F. Hastings, of Wells, Somersetshire, who had expressed a direct wish to have a touch on the fine peal of ten, tenor 30 cwt. It may be remembered that Mr. Hastings is well up in the art of ringing, having on the two days previous taken part in two 5000's of Stedman Triples at Wells and Glastonbury respectively. During the day of his visit touches of Grandsire Triples were rung. J. F. Bray, 1; M. Long (conductor), 2; A. Webber, 3; J. F. Hastings, 4; W. Secrett, 5; D. Hayward, 6; W. Fletcher, 7; T. Tooley, 8. Also a touch of Grandsire Caters. M. Long (conductor), 1; R. Christian, 2; W. Blyth, 3; A. Webber, 4; J. F. Hastings, 5; D. Hayward, 6; W. Secrett, 7; T. Tooley, 8; W. Fletcher, 9; G. Crowe, 10. The vicar of Yarmouth treated the company in a most generous spirit, with which they were all well pleased. It understood that Mr. Hastings is coming to reside at Yarmouth in a couple of months' time.

RE-OPENING OF CHALGROVE BELLS, OXON.

ON Thursday, April 12th, these bells having been refitted, were re-opened and re-dedicated. A new oak frame had been erected, the treble recast, and all the bells rehung. At 4 p.m. the Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild arrived with six of his brethren, and having raised the bells in peal, rang a 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor on them. Rev. F. E. Robinson, 1; H. D. Betteridge, Esq., 2; F. Field, 3; C. Trinder, 4; H. Baker, 5; J. W. Washbrook (conductor), 6. Tea was then provided at the Vicarage, after which Evensong was held at 7.15 p.m., at which the sermon was preached by the Master. A 360 of Double Court was rung before the service, and a 720 of Grandsire Minor afterwards.

Obituary.

THOMAS GREENWOOD.

We regret to have to record the death of the above-named ringer, who died at Marham, Norfolk, on Tuesday, April 10th, in his seventy-fourth year. Deceased was a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, and the Norwich Diocesan Association. In July, 1884, he took part and conducted a peal of 10,080 Oxford Treble Bob Major at Marham, and assisted in ringing fourteen other peals of 5000 and upwards, comprising the following methods: Bob Royal, Treble Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples, and Double Norwich Court Bob. He has rang in thirty different towers in London, and seventy-five in the country, where he was known and respected as a first-class ringer for many years. He was interred at Marham, his native place, on Saturday, April 14th, being carried to the grave by the Aylsham and Marham ringers, who directly after the funeral rang muffled touches of Bob Minor at Marham, and in the evening rang about 1000 of Bob Major at Aylsham.

GEORGE MORGAN.

It is also our painful duty to announce the death of the above-named ringer, who died at his residence, Hill-grove Hill, Bristol, on Sunday, April 8th, aged thirty-three years. He was a member of the St. Stephen's society, and was an officer of that society. His business had prevented him from being among them much of late, but he was ever ready to oblige when he could, and his sudden death has called forth expressions of deep sorrow from all who knew him. Various lengths of Grandsire and Treble Bob, Triples and Major, was rung during the week with the bells muffled, at the churches of St. Nicholas, St. Stephen, St. Mary Redcliff, St. Philip, and St. Matthew. Friday being the day of the funeral, the usual whole pull and stand was rung, and afterwards several ringers followed his remains to the cemetery.

The consecration of Canon Pulleine as Suffragan-Bishop of Penrith is fixed for St. Philip and James Day, May 1st.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Nothing succeeds like success."

It is a truthful saying that a ringer's life bristles with disappointments. On opening "THE BELL NEWS," I felt most acutely my last experiences in that direction when reading the report of the dedication of a new peal at Mossley, inasmuch as in arranging for my Easter holiday I did not decide to travel into Lancashire and have the pleasure of joining in the festivities at that place. The report shews many commendable features in connection with the opening of this new peal; features which I hope to see reproduced many times in the future. In the first place the manner in which the new peal was obtained; each bell being presented separately, from his worship the Mayor of borough to the young men of the Sunday School; then the solemn dedicatory service on the Saturday evening; on the following morning the joyful welcoming of the Church's great festival in commemoration of the risen Saviour. Then on the Monday the hearty greeting given to all brother-strings to come and try their hand on the new peal, an invitation which was evidently accepted in the manner in which it was given. I do not doubt that all connected with this event will have very pleasant recollections thereof, and I would like to say more, but space forbids.

The Sharow band, and particularly its "guiding spirit," Mr. Thomas Clark, is to be congratulated on the possession of the peal window in their belfry, and which was unveiled on Easter Tuesday. The idea of perpetuating peals by means of stained glass instead of wall tablets, is—if rather novel—yet a very pleasing one; and although the impracticability of carrying out this plan to any great extent is obvious, I think the example of our Ripon and Sharow friends might be followed in many instances with highly satisfactory results.

Your many reports of Association meetings should be—and I have no doubt will be—read with much interest. They tell their own story of continued success and still greater improvement in connection with our art and work. They demonstrate forcibly the fact that the Exercise is growing week by week more alive to its duties. They denote the existence of that esprit de corps which is so essential to the efficient working of any society, and which is becoming more and more manifest as years go on. They shew also that the desire for more perfect organisation and a closer bond of union is steadily growing stronger amongst us. What will be the ultimate result of all this no one can doubt.

The President of the Midland Counties' Association had good grounds for his congratulatory remarks to the members at their Annual Meeting on their peal record for the last quarter. Eleven peals comprising no less than ten different methods is a "total" of a very creditable nature.

The Exercise will, I have no doubt, be much pleased to know that our friends of the Oxford Guild have been successful with their long peal of Grandsire Caters. They have thus given to the ringing world two very formidable records to break. Who is going to do it?

As I ventured to anticipate a fortnight ago, our Yorkshire friends have again "tackled," and this time successfully, the silent peal of Kent Treble Bob Major. From the report, it would appear that the peal was a thoroughly good one in every respect, thus I have no doubt that all—ringers, umpires, and listeners—would be alike gratified at the performance.

This peal, I observe, will come under the head of "Independent Societies," although a sort of half-and-half, and it brings to my mind the paucity of Association peals which have been reported from Yorkshire of late. What are our friends in the premier county doing just now? Have they temporarily retired from peal ringing, or are they more busily engaged in the work of organisation, and training their young ones? I cannot believe that there is any flagging of zeal amongst them. There must be some reason for this sudden dropping off in the number of their ringing performances. Come, Yorkshiremen, "Line up!" Let us see your names if we cannot see your faces.

I notice with pleasure that the Burton men still keep green the memory of the late Rev. J. H. Fish, and have fitly commemorated the anniversary of his death with a half-muffled peal. They have not thus not only paid a tribute to the memory of their late chief, but have also shown a good example to their neighbouring county, who suffered a similar bereavement.

It was rather amusing to read the account of bells being rung muffled at a wedding in Kent. Were I on a jury trying these ringers for the "offence," I should certainly go in for returning that celebrated verdict of "Served her right." If the bride's austere notions prevented her from allowing the bells to be rung during the season of Lent, they should in all consistency have detained her from having the ceremony performed at all during that period.

There is a cry from Staffordshire for more unity—more organisation. Will that appeal be made in vain? Men of the Midlands, amid all the good work which is going on around you, will you allow one failing place to exist in your midst? I say, rouse yourselves; remember the old maxim "bear and forbear;" do not allow any personal pique or jealousy to mislead you, but by the exercise of brotherly love unite yourselves, and thus help on the march of progress.

In my opening remarks I mentioned the disappointments so irreparable to the life of a ringer. To those of our friends who in experiencing these unpleasant features feel sometimes inclined to give up the work, I would commend a careful reading of the history of Stedman Cinques on handbells which we are favoured with in last week's issue. Each recurring failure seemed to make the men more enthusiastic, and their perseverance was rewarded by a successful issue on Wednesday last. Here is a practical exposition of the historic story of Bruce and the spider, and an exemplification of the truth of the old proverb in our school books, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try, try again."

In your grand total of twenty-three peals recorded last week, a considerable number of them present very interesting features. I am reluctantly unable to refer to them all as I should wish, through the fear of trespassing too much on your valuable space: but I cannot help congratulating the Lancashire and Cheshire men on the accomplishment of their first peal of Treble Bob on handbells, and the St. Peter's society of St. Albans on their peal of Grandsire Caters (also on handbells), rung on their conductor's twenty-first birthday.

As I had occasion, Mr. Editor, recently, to call into question some of your remarks, on the other hand I cannot close my notes this week without a word of congratulation to you on the excellent appearance of last Saturday's paper. There was valuable and interesting news in abundance, and I most sincerely trust that the information contained therein will be carefully perused, and no less carefully studied by our brethren throughout the country.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE ST. EDMUND'S SOCIETY, EXETER.

The First Annual Meeting of the members of the above Society was held on Thursday evening, April 19th, in the St. Edmund's Schoolroom, Exeter, under the presidency of Mr. W. C. Marsh. There were also present Messrs. E. Short (churchwarden), Sydney Herbert, H. Swift, W. G. Goss, Tidball, W. H. Webber, W. Richardson, T. Townsend, H. Roberts, S. Meadows, E. Pitt, Coombes, A. Searle, and F. Twiggs.

The Assistant Secretary, Mr. HERBERT, read the annual report, from which it appeared that the number of members had reached the total of thirty-five, which it was hoped to still further increase. The work done since the Society's existence had been of a very satisfactory character, and far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the officers. The Society was only formed about nine months since, and since then up to the present time numerous touches of over 1000 changes had been rung, including three quarter-peals of Grandsire Triples. Two of the latter were composed and conducted by Mr. E. Pitt, while the other was composed by Mr. Gardiner, of Gloucester, and conducted by Mr. Marsh. The members also rang the first date touch of 1888 changes in the city, which was the composition of the conductor, Mr. E. Pitt. To crown the whole work the Society, after having only been formed about seven months was able to record the first peal of 5040 changes of Grandsire Triples ever rung on the bells, the time occupied being two hours fifty-four minutes. The members who rang the peal were complimented by several outsiders on their capital performance, and tribute was paid by brother campanologists in the north of England, who happened to be on a visit to the ever faithful City, to the excellent and skilful manner in which the bells were rung. The peal was conducted by Mr. E. Pitt. The Assistant Secretary went on to state that he was happy to be able to report that the Society was making steady progress with the more noble and beautiful method of Stedman Triples, having already been able to master the plain course. Reference was also made to the several places visited by the Society for ringing purposes, and the report concluded by stating that two entertainments had been given by the Orpheus Minstrels, to whom the Society's warmest thanks were due for their kind and gratuitous services. The two entertainments were of a successful character, and, with the exception of a few shillings, the requisite money was raised wherewith to provide the Society with a new peal of handbells. The report was unanimously adopted.

Mr. H. SWIFT read the Treasurer's statement, showing that after meeting all expenses there was a balance left in hand of £1 3s. 4d. The report was considered highly satisfactory, and adopted.

Mr. W. C. Marsh, Mr. Herbert, and Mr. Swift were elected as Hon. Secretary, Assistant Secretary, and Hon. Treasurer respectively, and were awarded a hearty and unanimous vote of thanks for their services in the past. Mr. E. Pitt, the conductor, was also heartily thanked for his services, and tribute was paid to the ability, tact, and care which he ever displayed in the belfry. According to the rules the amount of subscription is 5s. per annum per member.

The CHAIRMAN said that it had been found that the expenses of the Society could be defrayed if a much smaller subscription than had hitherto been paid, namely, 2s. 6d. per member (the 5s. having previously been reduced to that amount) was contributed.

After some discussion it was unanimously resolved to reduce the amount of yearly subscription to 1s. per member. It was also resolved to purchase a peal of fourteen handbells, the few shillings required over and above the £5 derived from the proceeds of the two entertainments to be taken from the balance in the hands of the Hon. Treasurer. Attention having been called to two or three matters connected with the belfry,

Mr. E. SHORT, churchwarden, said that he should be most happy to see that anything required was provided, and that necessary repairs should be executed. He also stated that it was intended to place a set of chimes in the tower shortly. A hearty vote of thanks having been awarded to the Chairman, the meeting terminated.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.—By Charles Pearson, M.A. Price Threepence, by post Fourpence.—WILLIAM POLLARD AND CO., Printers, Exeter.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

The Quarterly Meeting in connection with the above society was held on Saturday, April 14th, at Bloxwich, when the following places were represented: West Bromwich, Wednesbury, Walsall, Willenhall, Wolverhampton, Darlaston, Wombourn, Perry Barr, Lichfield, and Tipton. Ringing commenced shortly after three o'clock, with a touch of Grandsire Triples, and was kept up during the afternoon and evening with touches in the Grandsire, Stedman, and Treble Bob methods. At five o'clock a short service was held in the parish church, conducted by the vicar, the Rev. J. Barrow, who in some well-chosen remarks very kindly welcomed the society to Bloxwich, and gave the members some good instruction with regard to their duties to the Church as bellringers, after which a Coms mittee Meeting was held in the vestry, when eight new members were elected, and it was also arranged to hold the Annual Meeting at Lichfield on Saturday, June 30th. At six o'clock the ringers adjourned to the schoolroom, where they found an excellent tea in readiness, to which upwards of thirty members and friends sat down, when ample justice was done to the good things provided.

A vote of thanks to the Vicar was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, for his address in the afternoon, who in responding, said that although he could not at present boast of having a scientific change-ringing band, he had no doubt before long he should have a band both fit and willing to become members of the society. A vote of thanks to the ladies for their kindness in presiding at the tables brought the meeting to a close.

HAGLEY, WORCESTERSHIRE.—RINGERS' SUPPER.

ON Saturday, April 14th, at the parish church, 720 Grandsire Minor in 26 mins. F. Wright, 1; T. Barber, 2; T. Lees, 3; W. Short, 4; J. Barber, 5; H. Martin (conductor), 6. The ringing being over, an adjournment was made to the "Bird in Hand" Inn, where a capital supper was in readiness, and after justice had been done to the good things provided, and the cloth drawn, Mr. H. Martin was called to the chair, and Mr. T. Barber to the vice-chair, they being the two oldest ringers present.

The CHAIRMAN said that they all knew that the supper that evening was to commemorate their first 720 by some of their own band, and he hoped that now they had accomplished their first 720 of Minor, they would not be long before they succeeded in a peal of Triples, as he knew of others who would render them all the assistance they could in the noble art. They had a beautiful peal of bells, and in good going order, and he was sure their rector was fond of ringing, and would like them to make good ringers.

Singing then commenced, which was accompanied by a violin. Votes of thanks were past to the Host and Hostess for the excellent way in which the supper was got up, also to the Chairman and Vice-Chairman, which brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

OTLEY PARISH CHURCH BELLS.

After having been rung for over 108 years, this fine peal of eight bells came to grief while ringing for service on Sunday, April 15th, on account of the sixth bell cracking right up to the waist. Upon examination it was found that the clapper had almost worn a hole through the bell. The remainder of the bells were then looked over, and found to be much worn, so the churchwardens decided to have the cracked bell recast, and the whole of the peal quarter-turned and rehung, with all new fittings, and Messrs. Shaw, Son, and Co., bell founders, Bradford, have now the work in hand. The new bell will weigh about 12 cwt.

NEWBURN-ON-TYNE.

The opening of this new peal of six, tenor 16 cwt., by Messrs. Taylor, has been postponed. As soon as the date is fixed, probably the second week in May, notice will be sent to those societies of ringers within distance.

G. J. CLARKSON,

Stockton-on-Tees.

INTERESTING ASSEMBLY AT SOWERBY, YORKS. JUBILEE OF THE PARISH CLERK, WILLIAM SOTTANSTALL.

Recently, through the generosity of the Vicar of St. Peter's, Sowerby, the Rev. A. L. W. Bean, and the two churchwardens, Mr. John Rawson, of Brockwell, and Mr. W. A. Nicholl, tea was served at the "King's Head" inn, Sowerby, to about thirty-three guests, in honour of Mr. William Sottanstill, the veteran clerk of Sowerby church, who has just served in that office for half a century. After tea the Rev. A. L. W. Bean took the chair. There were also present the Rev. A. H. S. Bean, Vicar of Maltby; the Rev. J. Eales, the recently appointed curate of Sowerby; Mr. W. A. Nicholl, Mr. Booth Sharp, A.C.O., and the ringers of Liversedge Parish church, as well as those of Sowerby, with Mr. William Sottanstill. The proceedings, after tea, were commenced by the Liversedge ringers giving a selection of music on the handbells, which proved a capital change-ringing performance.

The CHAIRMAN, in the course of an interesting address, said the year 1887 was the year of Jubilee of our beloved Queen, but they had met that day to do honour to their esteemed friend, Mr. W. Sottanstill, clerk to St. Peter's church, Sowerby, whose jubilee they wished to celebrate. Mr. Sottanstill had been connected with St. Peter's for thirty years before he received the appointment of parish clerk, so that he was an authority on matters connected with the history of the Church for a long period. As scholar, teacher, singer, ringer, and parish clerk his connection with the church extended over eighty years; in fact, the interests of his long life were bound up with the church which he loved. The chairman also referred to the fact that Mr. Sottanstill received the appointment as parish clerk from the Rev. W. H. Bull, a former incumbent at Sowerby, who was still living. Though 91 years of age, Mr. Bull told him that he was able to take a walk of three miles every day, and to spend some time in digging his garden. He hoped their old friend would be spared to them for some time yet, and that when he had finished his course here, he might attain to a better life hereafter. He had great pleasure in being deputed to give a copy of "The Elements of Campanologia," a work on bell-ringing composed by their old friend Mr. Sottanstill many years ago, to each of the Sowerby ringers. The work would be found of great use to them, and he might tell them that it had cost the author the leisure hours of forty years, and he had thus set them all an example of industry and patience. He hoped the work would be preserved, not only as an authority on bell-ringing, but as a memento of their old friend, Mr. Sottanstill.

The Rev. A. H. S. BEAN also spoke of the pleasure it gave him in being deputed by their old friend to present the original manuscript of "The Elements of Campanologia" to Mr. John Rawson, of Brockwell, who he was sorry was unable to be present. The work was a marvel of industry and patience.

Mr. JAMES SMITH, on behalf of the Sowerby church ringers, of whom he was leader, presented to the Rev. A. H. S. Bean, on the occasion of his leaving Sowerby, a photographic picture, having the Sowerby handbells shown in the centre, near the base, above which was a portrait of Mr. Sottanstill, the other members of the society of ringers, with their tutor, Mr. James Smith, being placed in suitable positions, the whole being enclosed in a gilt frame, which had the following inscription:—"Presented to the Rev. A. H. S. Bean, M.A., by the St. Peter's Society of Change-Ringers, Sowerby." The portraits had been taken by Mr. Heap, of Sowerby. In making the presentation, Mr. Smith alluded to the kindnesses they had received at the hands of Mr. Bean, the interest he had manifested in their work especially in regard to handbell ringing. They all wished him success in his new sphere.

The Rev. A. H. S. BEAN, in the course of his reply, said the picture would remind him of the sweet Sowerby bells, and, with another picture he had previously received, would tell him of the kind hearts he had left at Sowerby.

Mr. J. NAYLOR said he rose to propose the health of the hero of the evening, of a man who had attained four score and seven years, whose eye was still undimmed, and his natural force unabated. Mr. Sottanstill was 27 years of age at the death of George III; he lived through all the events of the reigns of George IV. and William IV. and has been spared even to celebrate the jubilee of Her Majesty Queen Victoria. He was five years old when the battle of Trafalgar was fought and won by Nelson, and he appeared to have taken Nelson's famous motto for his guide through life: "England expects every man to do his duty." At the battle of Waterloo he was 15 years of age, and he could well remember the defeat of Napoleon on that famous battle-field. He could remember Sowerby when it was without both canals and railways, when pack-horses came up the valley, and the time when a man's wife rode on the pillion behind him when they visited their friends at a distance. Their old friend had now been clerk for fifty years, and they were met to celebrate his jubilee. Of most of them he could say he had been present at their christening, and if they had not all got wives, it was not his fault, for he had been ready to take his part. He had been connected with the church and schools for the past eighty years as scholar, teacher, singer, ringer, and parish clerk. Mr. Sottanstill remembered when the Wesleyans established the first Sunday school in 1805, and the formation—one or two years afterwards—of another Sunday school by the vicar of Sowerby, the Rev. J. Ogden, the scholars of which were taught in the pews of the church till the erection of a school in Back-lane in 1817, the new and more commodious premises opposite the church being erected in 1859. Mr. Sottanstill, after remaining some time a scholar, became a teacher in the school, and he occupied that position for 46 years. During that time at least 600 scholars must have come under his tuition. He occupied a place in the choir from 1815 to 1834, and from 1820 to 1834 he was also a ringer. The climax of his fame was reached by the publication of his work on campanology, by which he popularised the art of bell-ringing, and made Sowerby famous in the annals of that pleasing art. The chief lessons to be drawn from a life like that of Mr. Sottanstill was that diligent perseverance and an unostentatious pursuit of duty brought their own reward. It was with great pleasure he proposed they should drink to the health and happiness of the venerable old man.

The company responded with great heartiness.

The Liversedge Ringers having given another pleasing performance on the handbells,

The Rev. J. EALES replied on behalf of Mr. Sottanstill, thanking the vicar, churchwardens, and his friends for the kindness shown to him in his old age. The following are some particulars of his life, written by himself. He (William Sottanstill) was born at Sowerby on the 9th of July, 1800. His father, John Sottanstill, was a ringer at St. Peter's, Sowerby, soon after the present bells were hung in 1781, and continued a ringer till 1827. He lived to a good old age, and passed away on the 29th of November, 1859, when he was 87 years of age. He (William) commenced to ring in 1820, and five years later he turned his attention to the composition of bell music. He composed two volumes, the first being for two, three, four, five, and six bells, and the second for seven and eight bells. He was forty years in completing the first. His attention was first directed to ringing when a young man by hearing the sound of St. Peter's Church bells, one Sunday morning, when he was powerfully impressed by their sweet tones, and he resolved he would learn to be a ringer. He got several other young men to join him, and they got on very well. Their first attempt at a peal of Bob Major took place on the 14th of September, 1823, and they afterwards attempted a peal of 5,000 changes. After ringing for over three hours, they were obliged to call "stand," on account of a mistake by the conductor. The peal of 5,024 changes of Treble Bob Major (being No. 1, p. 393, in his work on Change Ringing, published in 1867) was rung at Elland Church, in February, 1828, in two hours and fifty-nine minutes, and that was the first peal he conducted. The second peal (p. 470 of the same work), consisting of 5,664 changes of Treble Bob Major, was rung at St. Peter's, Sowerby, for the first time on the 5th of November, 1832, in three hours and twelve minutes. The band of ringers were:—Nicholas Hitchen, 1; William Whiteley, 2; William Sottanstill (conductor), 3; Eli Hellawell, 4; James Nicholl, 5; Abraham Nicholl, 6; John Nicholl, 7; Thomas Nicholl, 8. Tenor 15 cwt. There had been many changes in the art of ringing since he first commenced. Reference had been made to the first Sunday school, in Sowerby, started by the Wesleyans. He was a scholar at that school, and when teaching was over the scholars were marched in order to St. Peter's to service. The Rev. Joseph Ogden was incumbent at that time, and he resolved to establish a Sunday school. He appointed John Barraclough and his wife, of Sowerby Town, to teach boys and girls; he also appointed Samuel Mitchell, of Sowerby-street; John Broadbent, of Triangle; and Gilbert Walsh, of Mill Bank, as teachers, and they taught at their own homes, the children being afterwards marched to service in church. The last-named teacher was the nephew of the Rev. J. Walsh, who was minister at St. Peter's in 1750. Gilbert's father entered the army, and on his death Gilbert was placed under the care of his uncle, the Rev. J. Walsh. Gilbert Walsh had his boys at Thorp, when the hall was building, but the boys did so much mischief that he was obliged to take them away. They were then taught in the pews of the church till the owners complained that the pews had been cut with knives. The boys were then removed to the old school, and the girls were taught in the prayer-house at the almshouses till 1817, when a school was erected on the south-east side of the church. The present school was built in 1859. He well remembered the day (March 22nd, 1837) when he was appointed parish clerk by the Rev. W. H. Bull, and what the latter said to him. He had done duty under three ministers, viz., the Rev. W. H. Bull, the Rev. Richard England Brook, and the Rev. A. L. W. Bean, and twenty curates (applause).

MR. ROBERT CLARK proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for their having supplied the means for the entertainment of those present. This was seconded by Mr. B. Horsfall and carried, and the Chairman responded. The Liversedge ringers gave another touch on the handbells.

At the request of Mr. Sottanstill, the Rev. A. H. S. BEAN thanked the Liversedge ringers for their splendid services on the bells that day.

MR. LUKE ILLINGWORTH replied in an effective speech, in which he said he and his father had known Mr. Sottanstill for over 60 years. He was glad to have the opportunity of taking part in the ringing of his jubilee peal.

The Sowerby ringers followed with another touch on the handbells.

MR. R. HANLEY, in a very humorous speech, referred to his introduction to Mr. Sottanstill eight years ago, and to his intercourse with him since. He greatly prized his friendship.

It may be added that Mr. Sottanstill, who was present during the whole of the proceedings, appeared to be in good health, and to greatly enjoy the honour done him.

During the afternoon, two touches composed by Mr. Sottanstill, were rung on the Sowerby church bells in honour of the event. The first, by the Sowerby Society, consisted of 1887 changes of Grandsire Triples, in 1 hr. 10 mins. W. Sutcliffe (conductor), 1; Thomas Berry, 2; R. Normanton, 3; J. Smith, 4; H. Wolfenden, 5; D. Howarth, 6; J. W. Barrett, 7; W. Oates, 8. The second touch, by the Liversedge Society, consisted of 1887 changes of Treble Bob Major, in 1 hr. 9 mins. J. W. Lang, 1; J. Knott, 2; L. Illingworth (conductor), 3; S. Goodall, 4; H. Brook, 5; M. Ramsden, 6; A. Briggs, 7; W. Collins, 8. The performances were exceedingly creditable to the ringers and to the composer in whose honour they were given.—Local Paper.

THE BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting will be held at Harborne, on Saturday, April 21st. By kind permission, the tower will be open for ringing at 4 o'clock, meeting to take place afterwards, when all members and friends are invited to attend.

Obituary.

SAMUEL ALLEN.

We regret to have to record the death of the above-named ringer, who died at Dronfield, near Sheffield, on Monday, April 16th, in his 75th year. The deceased rang his first peal—5040 on six bells—at Dronfield, on Whit-Monday, June 5th, 1842. The funeral took place on Wednesday, April 18th. Ringers were present from Sheffield, Staveley, Norton, Penistone, Ecclesfield, and Eckington. Muffled peals were rang on the bells after the funeral.

SIR PRYCE JONES ON BELLS.

ON Friday evening, April 6th, a musical evening was given in the Public Rooms, Newtown, presided over by Sir Pryce Jones.

The Chairman, in opening, said the programme was a rather long one, and no doubt would prove most interesting. It was no part of his programme, however, to enter on anything like a speech, but perhaps there were many present who would naturally enquire what the proceeds arising from that concert would be given to. To those enquiring minds he would say that it was for the purpose of starting a nucleus for the formation of bell ringers' club, and to enable the society to purchase handbells if the funds would admit. It was an instance of how local history repeated itself. He well remembered whilst a boy being one of many on the corners of the street listening to the practices on the bells of Newtown parish church. There was, at that time, a keen competition between Newtown bell-ringers and their neighbouring bell ringers; and their most dangerous rivals belonged to the parish of Bettws. There were numbers besides himself who could remember the competitions in their old parish church, which was now partly decaying. Bells were and had been from time immemorial associated with almost every important event connected with a person's life. They announced the arrival of the son and heir, and with peals of joy they rang out their congratulations when he attained his majority, or when he married. They tolled his parting knell, and last of all, they rung the muffled peal o'er his grave. If he was successful in his enterprises socially, commercially, or politically, the bells announced the fact. The bells had been useful even in calling attention to disasters such as fires, and there were those who would remember the fire at the factory near at hand, when the alarm was given by the church bells. The parish bells of Newtown were not only perfect in their musical tone, but there were none sweeter than theirs. He was satisfied that he was speaking the sentiments of not only members of the Church, but of those who consistently attended other places of worship, that they, like all Englishmen would regret and mourn the day when those historical bells and the belfries which contained them should cease to exist and never again be heard. Who was there, Nonconformist or Churchman, who would not think it strange if they did not hear on Christmas Eve or New Year's morn the bells of their parish church? The funds that they required were not great, and surely the little money that was required would not be denied. He would be glad to start the list if it were necessary that subscriptions should be started for it. As he saw many people before him who had on several occasions interested themselves in the events of his life, and he and his family had to thank them for their kindness and support, they would forgive him for mentioning that on April 6th, 1859, now twenty-nine years ago, he was married in the Newtown parish church. It was a coincidence, but it was a remarkable one, as he had nothing to do with fixing that date for their entertainment. On that day the bells rang merrily, and he could remember the people gathered round the church gates, and his carriage window was accidentally smashed to pieces, and people said "What ill luck." He confessed that it had not been ill luck either on his or his wife's part, and that proved the exception of those sayings. He trusted that the programme would afford them pleasure that evening.

A capital programme of music was then gone through. The accompanists were Mr. J. Macrone and Mr. A. Williams. The proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

BREDENBURY, HEREFORDSHIRE.—RINGERS' OUTING.

On Monday, April 9th, by the kind invitation of Mr. W. H. Barneby, the Suckley band visited the parish church and rung a six-score of Grandsire Doubles. The ringers wish to thank Mr. Barneby for the kind manner in which he provided for them, and to acknowledge the courtesy which they met from the Bredenbury ringers.

STOKE-ON-TRENT ARCHIDIACONAL ASSOCIATION.

THE SOCIETY OF TRINITY YOUTHS, GREENWICH, KENT.

In 1782 a society, yecept the Trinity Youths, was formed at Deptford, Kent, with headquarters at St. Nicholas church, for the purpose of furthering the art of change-ringing. For some years the society flourished, and according to the peal-book, several creditable performances were duly accomplished under its auspices, including a 10,080 of Bob Major at St. Mary's, Lewisham, and numerous peals in the more intricate methods at Greenwich, Woolwich, Lewisham, and Deptford. Tablets recording these are still to be seen in the respective towers. Unfortunately by death of members, lack of support, and other causes, the society gradually decreased, until two only could lay claim to membership. A short time ago, however, it was suggested that if the society of Trinity Youths could be resuscitated, it would not only be a boon to the ringers of this district, but would tend greatly to advance the Exercise and save young beginners numerous journeys to London in search of practice. This suggestion met with very cordial support, and arrangements were thereupon made for a meeting at St. Alphege, Greenwich, on Tuesday, April 17th, to discuss and if possible to bring the matter to a successful issue. 'There was a goodly array of ringers, "Stoney Bob" and Stedman being alike represented, and during the evening several touches of Grandsire, from Doubles to Caters, with a sprinkling of Bob Major, were brought round.

Ringings being concluded, Mr. W. Weatherstone introduced Mr. Richard Smith, aged 79, one of the remaining members of the old society, and stated that his colleague, Mr. James Dyer, aged 85, was unable to be present through illness. He however, had appointed Mr. Weatherstone to act as his proxy in conjunction with Mr. Smith for the election of new members. This was therefore at once proceeded with, the following names being eventually submitted and accepted, making with the two old members a total of fifteen. Messrs. J. Dyer, R. Smith, W. Weatherstone, H. A. Cockey, A. G. Freeman, F. W. Thornton, E. E. Richards, J. Laws, W. Bedwell, J. Crowder, W. G. Davis, J. Lamb, W. Foreman, S. Gibbs, and W. Everard. The next business was to elect officers, the following selections being unanimously made: Master, Mr. William Weatherstone; Secretary, Mr. Frederick W. Thornton; Treasurer, Rev. H. A. Cockey; Senior Steward, Mr. J. J. Lamb; Junior Steward, Mr. W. Bedwell. The officers-elect having expressed their thanks, it was decided to make St. Alphege, Greenwich, the society's headquarters, meeting each Tuesday at 7.30 p.m., until further notice. The framing of rules, etc., was postponed for some future occasion. There are several good rings in this district, viz., Greenwich (ten bells), Deptford (St. John's and St. Nicholas), Lewisham, Lee, and Woolwich, eight bells each. With the exception of the latter place, but little half-pull ringing has been done, although several peals have been rung by the St. James' and other London Societies.

The Secretary will be glad to receive the names of any ringers in the neighbourhood willing to join, who may be unable to attend the next meeting. It is earnestly hoped that members of kindred societies will co-operate, and thus endeavour to make the Society of Trinity Youths a complete success.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A bye Meeting of this Association will be held at Westbury-on-Severn (six bells), on Tuesday, May 1st, 1888. Short service at 11.30, in the parish church; dinner at the "Red Lion" at one o'clock. 1s. 6d. allowed to members who have given notice to Rev. Pitt Eykyn, Magor Vicarage, Monmouth, not later than Thursday, April 26th. Trains: Gloucester, 9.20; Grange Court, 9.35; Bristol, 7.55; Chepstow, 10.3; Newnham, 10.43. Return: Grange Court, 7.26; Gloucester, 7.45; Newnham, 6.35; Chepstow, 7.10; Bristol, 9.12.

ROCHDALE AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The above Association will hold a quarterly meeting at Walsden parish church, on Saturday, May 5th, at 5 o'clock, in the schoolroom. The bells will be at the disposal of members and friends at two. Subscriptions are now due.

LAVENHAM, SUFFOLK.

On Monday evening, April 16th, the local company met for practice on the bells of SS. Peter and Paul. A start was made for a touch of Bob Major, but after ringing fifteen minutes a loud report was heard upon the floor underneath the bells. This caused the ringers to set their bells, and upon entering the bell-chamber found the clapper of the 7th bell broken off within twelve inches of the crown staple. A short touch of Bob Minor on the front six brought the evening's practice to a close. But by Saturday evening the clapper was again repaired and restored to its proper place, and an attempt was made to ring 1680, the first part of Holt's three-part peal of Bob Major, which was brought round in 1 hr. 12 mins. W. Hollocks, 1; C. Fisk, 2; A. Hollocks, 3; Jno. Moore, 4; H. Smith, 5; W. Snell, 6; A. Symonds (conductor), 7; W. Moore, 8. Tenor 24 cwt. in F. This is the longest touch in any method by the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th men. Messrs. W. and A. Hollocks, Moore and Snell hail from Preston; the rest are local men.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

NOTICE is hereby given that the next Quarterly Meeting will be held at St. Alban's church, Rochdale, on Saturday, May 5th. There will be a short service in the church at 5 p.m., at which members and friends are asked to attend. The business meeting will be held in St. Alban's schoolroom, Drake Street, immediately after service, and over which the vicar, the Rev. W. Cooper, M.A., has kindly consented to preside. The bells (8), tenor 17 cwt., will be at the disposal of members from 2.30 p.m., up to the commencement of the service, and again at the close of the meeting. Members on arrival to meet in the schoolroom, where companies can be formed for ringing. The committee will be very pleased to see as many as possible at both the service and the meeting.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.--ROSSENDALE BRANCH.

On Saturday last, April 21st, a meeting of the above branch took place at the parish church, Newchurch. During the afternoon and evening several 500s of Grandsire Triples, touches of Plain Bob and College Single. A meeting was held in the schoolroom, presided over by Mr. Nutter, of Ramsbottom, and it was decided to hold the next ringing meeting at Christ Church, Bacup. During the meeting eight new members were proposed from the belfry of St. Saviour's, Bacup, the branch now numbering upwards of fifty members. Votes of thanks were accorded to the rector and churchwardens for the use of the bells and school, and to the chairman for presiding, which brought the meeting to a close, thirty members having been present and taken part in the ringing.

THE NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Lincoln, on Saturday, April 28th. Tea will be provided at 5 o'clock at the Guild Court (foot of the Steep Hill) at 1/3 each, members free; after which the business meeting will be held. Members and visitors intending to be present at tea are requested to communicate with me not later than Wednesday, April 25th. J. W. WATSON.

FOY, HEREFORDSHIRE.

The ringers of this parish have lately been presented with a new set of muffles for the use of the church bells, and a set of handbells, twenty in number, by their Vicar, the Rev. T. C. Wilton.

THE CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

The first quarterly meeting of the Macclesfield branch of the above Association was held at Bollington, on Saturday, April 14th, when members attended from Macclesfield, Bollington, Prestbury and Gawsorth. Thirteen fresh members were elected, bringing the total up to forty-four. After the meeting touches of Grandsire and Stedman were rung on the tower bells,

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—I should like to follow up my remarks of February 4th on Grandsire Triples with another plan, "A six-part peal containing the 6th and 7th always called before." After arranging a table of lead-ends with the 6th and 7th called before, it can be seen at a glance that the thing will not come in two three-part touches, and that sixty more calls must be used, making 180 in all, which admits of 120 problems. In two cases the thing comes in two three-part touches and eighteen three-lead bits. These three-lead bits can be inserted with thirty-six Grandsire singles, and the getting into the second half can be done with a Grandsire ten-part or six-part single, but as there is no call at a 6-7 in either of these cases, the neatest arrangement is with six-part singles. I enclose a peal on this plan, which contains several interesting features, but taking the number of calls—so many of which are singles—into consideration, I am afraid the whole thing is objectionable. The next plan on the list is the twenty-four 6-7's. This plan gives a better excuse for the using of singles. In the first place it costs 120 bobs to extract the twelve out-of-course 6-7's, which means twelve three-lead bits, and then twenty-four Grandsire singles must be substituted for bobs to insert them, and the thing appears in six two-part touches, or twelve parts alike. Now the first thing that occurred to me was to see if the thing would come in three parts without increasing the singles with 135 calls. The nearest approach is three long parts and three short ones out of fifteen problems. After trying for a six-part or three-part with 150 calls with no better result, although there are 120 problems, I returned to the 135 calls where I have a kind of six-part which I enclose. I have not given an arrangement with 5-6-7's for part-ends, because it would contain twelve more singles; the plan is capable of many interesting variations, including a kind of twelve part I have with 130 calls. I think it is curious that the following peal should contain all 2-3's, 3-5's, and 5-2's in the first three parts, and all 3-2's, 2-5's and 5-3's in the last three parts.

THE PEAL OF STEDMAN TRIPLES AT DRAYTON, BERKS.

SIR,—In your issue of the 21st inst., I observe a peal of Stedman Triples rung by the members of the Oxford Guild at the above place in 2 hrs. 27 mins. The members of the Oxford Guild have done some wonderful things of late, but this surpasses all their previous accomplishments. Surely they must have made a mistake in the time, or one of their watches took a fit to stop for a quarter of an hour, or perhaps they got into a scramble and opened into some convenient change to bring the bells round and thus cut out five or six courses.

TREBLE BOB MAJOR COMPOSITIONS.

SIR,—It has been the aim of some of our friends of late years to try and keep the 2nd bell away from dodging with the tenor at the wrong, and peals of 5000 changes and upwards have been composed upon the plan, and thus the desired object is obtained. The object of this letter may or may not be known, but the fact is that several old peals are capable of variation in such a way as to develop the much desired quality. Here is an illustration from an old peal of mine, first rung in the year 1880 at the Chapel-of-Ease, Islington, London. In the variation the 2nd bell is never in 6th's place at a course-end.

AN OMISSION.

SIR,—I omitted to state in the report of the peal of Grandsire Caters, on handbells, at St. Albans, on the 10th inst., that Mr. David Gibbons, of the St. Peter's Society kindly acted as umpire, and also that Mr. Henry Lewis heard a good part of the peal.

J. C. MITCHELL.

QUICKLY RUNG PEALS.

SIR,—In your issue of April 21st, I find a notice of a peal of Stedman Triples rung at Drayton in 2 hrs. 27 mins., being supposed the quickest on record. It probably is in the method, but a peal of Grandsire Triples was rung on the front eight at Christ Church in this town on October 25th, 1852, in 2 hrs. 23 mins., tenor 8 cwt. 3 qrs. 14 lbs. I may also remark that other quick peals have been rung in this parish and district, notably the following at All Saints in this parish on April 8th, 1884; Treble Bob Triples, in 2 hrs. 45 mins.; September 15th, 1847, 5024 Treble Bob Major, in 2 hrs. 48 mins., tenor 15 cwt.; Tipton, February 2nd, 1852, 5056 Treble Bob Major, in 2 hrs. 45 mins., tenor 12 cwt.; November 21st, 1849, at Christ Church, 5075 Grandsire Caters in 2 hrs. 57 mins.; May 10th, 1852, 5082 Grandsire Cinques in 3 hrs. 14 mins., tenor 24 cwt.; and 5003 Grandsire Caters in 2 hrs. 54 mins., at Wednesbury, tenor 24 cwt. These I think will be found to be some of the quickest ever rung. I may say the whole of these bells are hung in towers of limited size, and therefore are short in the stroke, which may account for their being able to be taken along so quickly.

NARROW ESCAPE OF BELL RINGERS.—At Halstead, Essex, on Sunday morning, April 22nd, when the bells were chiming for service, a weight of the new clock and chimes, weighing 6½ cwt., erected in the tower of the parish church to commemorate the jubilee, fell, crashing through the belfry floor into the church, and smashing a seat. One ringer, named Chaplin, had a narrow escape, the weight almost grazing him, while another, named Gladwell, was struck on the head with a piece of loose metal. Sacks of sawdust are placed underneath the weights to break a possible fall, but the course of this weight was diverted by striking against a beam. There was no one in the church at the time of the occurrence.

This peal was attempted on Thursday to be rung in honour of the memory of Lord Beaconsfield, but after ringing upwards of 300 changes a shift occurred, and stop was called. It is the first rung in the method by four members of the St. Mary-le-Tower society and Norwich Diocesan Association, and was rung upon the Rev. A. H. Hayes' splendid-toned peal of eight bells kindly lent to R. Brundle.

Church News.

The afternoon lecture at St. Philip's, Regent-street, next Sunday, will be delivered by Dr. Taylor, Master of St. John's, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, on the Didache.

The Bishop of Sydney intends to sail on Monday by the Oceana and hopes to arrive in England about June 15th. Letters may be addressed to him at 25, Delahay Street, S.W.

Archdeacon Hessey is still too unwell to hold his usual visitation of the clergy this year, but the churchwardens will be cited to appear and be admitted in the vestry of St. Paul's, Covent Garden, on May 7th.

At a meeting of the Fellows of Sion College yesterday, it was resolved on the motion of the Rev. J. L. Fish, seconded by the Rev. T. Darling, that a petition against the Deceased Wife's Sister Bill should be presented to the House of Lords.

In the case of Hakes v. Bell Cox, in which Mr. Bell Cox is appealing, a petition was presented to the House of Lords on Monday by Lord Penzance, asking to be made a party-respondent, the agent for Mr. Hakes consenting. The petition was referred to the Appeal Committee.

A window has been placed in the parish church of St. Martin-in-the-fields as a memorial of the Rev. W. G. Humphry, the late vicar. The subject is the Resurrection. In the lower compartment the three Maries are at the tomb, and the angel is pointing upwards and saying, "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" Two cherubs above bear the words, "Victor Mortis." In the upper window is a figure of our Lord.

The Rev. William Bouverie Pusey, only surviving brother of Dr Pusey, has died at St. Leonard's, aged seventy-seven. Mr. Pusey, who was the youngest son of the Hon. Philip Bouverie (who assumed the surname of Pusey), only surviving son of the first Viscount Folkestone, graduated from Oriel in 1831. He was ordained in 1832, and for some five-and-thirty years held the family living of Langley, near Maidstone.

The death took place on Tuesday, April 17th, of the Rev. Henry Morris, rector of Withcall, near Louth, in his fifty-eighth year. Mr. Morris was presented to the living in 1869 by the Lord Chancellor, having previously been incumbent of Holy Trinity church, Reading. For the last two months he had been laid up with an incurable disease, and his death was, therefore, not entirely unexpected. During the nineteen years of his pastorate a grand work has been done in the parish of Withcall. A beautiful church has been built, new schools have been built, and everything now is in the most perfect order, and it is not too much to say that the rector's death will cause a loss that will be most deeply felt by all, and by none more than the poor, who were his constant care.

On Sunday morning, the Rev. Evan Rowlands, a clergyman, who had gone to Carlisle on Thursday, died under sad circumstances. He took longings in Castle street, the landlady asking a shilling for a bed. He begged her to make it ninnence, and as he appeared ill and seemed to have seen better days, she consented. He was out on Friday and on Saturday, seeking subscriptions for a book he had written, Gems for Appointed Feasts. On Saturday, he became very ill, and he died during the night. His diaries showed that he had been all over the east coast. He was to have been buried on Monday at the expense of the parish, but Canon Richmond, who was with him for some time on the night of his death, undertook the burial at his own expense.

On Tuesday, April 17th, the funeral took place of the Rev. Robert Blayney Wright, Fellow of Worcester College, and for the last thirty-seven years rector of Frinstead, Kent. He was son of the Rev. E. Wright, who held the living of Piteford, Northamptonshire, for thirty-six years. The parishes of Frinstead and Milsted were formerly united, and there had been no resident clergyman in the former until 1867, when the late Lord Kingsdown bought the advowson and presented to it his nephew, Mr. Wright. The transformation effected in the place and people has been most remarkable, and is cause for much gratitude. More than twenty of the neighbouring clergy testified their esteem by attending the funeral in their surplices, the officiating clergy being the Rev. Musgrave Hilton, and the Rev. J. W. Nutt, Rural Dean. The church was crowded with friends and parishioners of the deceased, and the coffin was covered with exquisite wreaths and flowers, was followed by his two brothers and two sisters, and other relatives.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.—ERECTION OF A PEAL-BOARD AT STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

ON Tuesday, April 3rd, the members of the Stockton society met together to celebrate the erection in the ringing-chamber of the parish church of a peal-board, to commemorate two peals of 5040 changes, each in seven methods of Surprise Minor, one rung on May 24th, 1887, and the other as a Jubilee peal on November 9th, of the same year. The board is the work of a local artist, and was placed for a time in the principal entrance to the church, in order that it might be seen by the parishioners, many of whom warmly expressed their admiration of it. The upper part is adorned with the Royal Arms, the lettering being in gilt on a soft green back ground. After ringing 720 York Surprise, the company adjourned to the "Royal Oak," where they partook of supper. After the removal of the cloth, the loyal toasts were duly honoured. These were afterwards followed by a series of toasts, which brought out the eloquence of each of the company in turns. The proceedings were enlivened by songs and touches upon the handbells, which included a course of Treble Bob Major by four of the company. The strictures recently passed upon these methods by "Free Lance" were referred to as emanating from a quarter incompetent to judge upon what constitutes a legitimate distinction between one method and another, an opinion which has since been endorsed by another society in the south.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

Notice is hereby given that the annual general meeting of this Association will be held at Brighton, on Whit-Monday, May 21st, 1888. Details of arrangements will be published in next issue.

Brighton.

GEO. F. ATTREE.

BOLTON, LANCASHIRE.

ON Saturday, April 21st, the parish church ringers, with their wives, assembled together at the "Golden Lion," Churchgate, and partook of a knife and fork tea, supplied by the hostess, Mrs. Hamer, the occasion being promoted by the painful necessity of one of their brother ringers, John Newburn, leaving them to go to America. After the inner man was justly attended to, and the cloth removed, a very enjoyable evening was spent in songs and handbell ringing by the ringers. A song entitled "Bells in the Tower," was rendered by Mr. Peter Nuttall, and Mr. R. Hart very pathetically gave "Night Duty in the Street." Afterwards a course of Grandsire Triples was rung, after which Mr. John Whitehead sung "Where is my boy to night," also a tune on the handbells, viz., "Soldiers' joy horn-pipe," which was encored again and again, and they replied with "Washing Day," a merry little air. Mr. John Newburn then sang "The boat that first brought me over," after which the meeting was brought to a close by thanking him very heartily for his past services, and many many well wishes in his new home. Afterwards the meeting was closed by a vote of thanks being given to the Chairman (Mr. James May), and the vice-chairman (Mr. W. Gorton), and also to Mrs. Hamer, the Hostess, and by request a short touch of Grandsire Triples was given. J. Whitehead, 1-2; W. Holden, 3-4; J. Higson, 5-6; J. Newburn, 7-8.

THE IRISH EXHIBITION IN LONDON.—In addition to the already remarkable list of persons prominent in politics, religion, law, literature, and society, who have given their active support to this peaceful effort to benefit the sister kingdom, are the following:—The Earl of Leitrim, who has joined the Executive Council, the Earl of Aberdeen, the Lord Mayor of Dublin, the Earl of Dufferin, the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and Sir Algernon Borthwick, Bart., M.P. Many of the Corporations in Ireland, including Dublin, Belfast, and Waterford, have officially taken up the subject, and have strongly urged upon the trading community in their respective districts, their conviction that Irish industries are likely to be substantially benefitted by a comprehensive display in London of what Ireland's markets and manufactories can produce. A most significant fact tending to show that one of the primary objects of the promoters is likely to be fully realised, occurred at the Mansion House in Dublin, at a meeting over which the Lord Mayor (Mr. Sexton), presided.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"The bells, the bells of motherland,
Of England green and old,
That out from fane and ivied tower
A thousand years have tolled;
How glorious must their music be
As breaks the hallowed day,
And calleth with a seraph's voice

ARTHUR CLEVELAND COX.

In your last Saturday's reports of meetings, two points are raised which to my mind are deserving of the very greatest consideration of the Exercise; and I feel I shall not be using your valuable space to little purpose, if I refer to them at some length this week. These points, moreover, will not fail to have additional importance attached to them by reason of their having been raised by two high dignitaries in Church and State. Placed in conjunction with each other, they bring to the front most forcibly the duties of our clergy and ringers with respect to the work in which we are engaged, and to the Church to which we belong.

* * * * *

His Worship the Mayor of Bedford (who I was exceedingly pleased to see presided at the Annual Meeting of that County Association), suggested that the clergy "should sometimes point out to their congregations the use of bells, and encourage them to ring them." This suggestion is a veritable multum in parvo; and the more I look at it, the more I am impressed with its value, if properly acted upon. In the round of our Church's year—in addition to the set Fasts and Festivals—we have special sermons and addresses with reference to our choirs, our Sunday and week-day schools, our Missions, our poor, and our various parochial organisations; why, then, should we not have annually an address devoted to that branch of Church work in which we are most intimately engaged, in all churches which are the fortunate possessors of a ring of bells and an intelligent body of men able and willing to use them? Dearth of knowledge naturally begets lack of sympathy, and where there exists an indifference on the part of the parishioners towards the efforts of the ringers, may it not in almost every instance be truthfully attributed to the fact of their ignorance in ringing matters? Then what plan could possibly be conceived more calculated to remedy this state of things than the suggestion made by the Mayor of Bedford? If once a year the vicar of the parish explained to his people the use of the bells and the work of the ringers, there can be no doubt whatever that by this action would arise a closer bond of union between clergy, ringers, and parishioners, which would tend to the mutual benefit of all, and our Church would be the gainer thereby.

* * * * *

Here is work for our County Associations to take up. Every week almost almost discloses new channels for good in which they may move. If the time should be deemed premature for the adoption of a general "Ringers' Sunday" throughout the country, at any rate it is within the bounds of practicability for them to induce our clergy to set apart at least one service during the year for this special purpose. Even if difficulties stood in the way (as they naturally will do), and its general adoption was very tardy, we should remember the old saying that "Rome was not built in a day," so neither may the desire of our hearts meet with a speedy fulfilment. But at the same time, we may keep plodding on, ever having in view the object to be obtained, and if we do this, success is (humanly speaking) certain.

* * * * *

Although we may find in sadly too many instances a grievous indifference on the part of our clergy to the work of the ringer; yet, on the other hand when we look around and see how that we number in our ranks so many energetic parish priests who are enthusiastic change-ringers, and see also how many more we have who, though not practical ringers themselves, are no less earnest in promoting and encouraging the work, we surely ought to take heart and be much encouraged for the future.

* * * * *

As my foregoing remarks respecting the duties of the clergy have been called forth by the words of a layman in high position in the State, my next point—that of the duties of ringers towards the Church—is raised through a remark made by a high dignitary of the Church—the Dean of Wells. He was, he said, "greatly surprised at the large number of ringers in the Oxford Guild (nearly a thousand), and was sure that such a society of Church workers must do an immense amount of good." He is food for reflection. Apart from the strictly religious aspect of the question (which I leave for better hands than mine to deal with), I would address myself as a layman to my brother laymen on our duties and responsibilities as loyal sons of our mother Church in one particular direction—that of Church defence. While we are busily engaged in the pursuit of our loved art, we should never allow our pleasure to cause us to forget those duties which we owe to her, or lose sight of those responsibilities. We see our Church surrounded by enemies—from the Romanists on the one hand, through the labyrinth of "isms" which exist amongst us, to the secularist and infidel on the other. We see organisations existing and men banded together for the express purpose of effecting her destruction; enemies are numerous and as unscrupulous as they are active; they are "always at the gate." This, it may be said, has been the case for centuries back. True; but that fact in itself proves the necessity of constant watchfulness and zeal on the part of her sons. Every year gives evidence that her enemies are striving to strengthen their position, and devising new modes of attack; consequently, if her defenders are not at least equally diligent in repairing the breaches and strengthening the fortification, they will be culpably negligent in their duty. Then, to bring the matter home. We should specially remember always that we are Churchmen first, and ringers after. We possess, as ringers, numerically strong and powerful organisations throughout the country; it would indeed be difficult to mention any other specific body of men in connection with the Church which can equal ours in numbers and intelligence. It is therefore quite within our power to do that "immense amount of good" which Dr. Plumptre speaks about. Shall it ever be said of us that "we have been weighed in the balances and found wanting?" Surely, never. While the enemies of the Church are active, let us be active too. Let every County Association and Guild be in very deed a body of Church defenders; let every company of ringers be a branch of such a body; and let every individual ringer consider himself a member. Then when the day of election arrives we shall by our influence, our work, and our votes, so make our power felt at the polling booths, that we shall effectually and shew the enemies of our Church that they have a new compact, and powerful organisation to deal with, and that when they next venture to attack, thirty thousand English ringers "will know the reason why."

"Confound their politics, Frustrate their knavish tricks,"

* * * * *

I had not intended to have referred to essentially ringing matters this week; but I cannot close without noticing two circumstances of a very satisfactory character which you report in your last issue.

* * * * *

The first is the augmentation of the ring at St. Cuthbert's Wells, which we are told has been accomplished through the energy of the Wells Amateur Ringing Society, who have themselves given the two new trebles. This society is to be heartily congratulated on the possession of a ring of eight, and is no less deserving of praise for the very generous manner in which they have carried out their work.

* * * * *

The other circumstance to which I have pleasure in alluding is the fact that at last, Double Norwich has found its way into Yorkshire, a peal having been successfully accomplished at Sheffield, on Saturday, the 14th inst. Let us hope that this method (to which the late Jasper Snowdon devoted a whole volume) has not become so exhausted in its travels that it will be allowed to rest there for a prolonged period, but that we shall see it again figuring in the list of peals performed by the County Association.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.—READING BRANCH.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Reading branch was held on Monday, April 23rd, at the "Wheatsheaf" Hotel. An excellent supper was provided, to which about thirty members sat down. Grace after meat having been said by the Rev. A. E. Molineux, Vicar of Caversham,

Mr. NEWELL, jun., gave a pleasing selection on the piano.

THE CHAIRMAN (Mr. J. Martin Routh) in giving the toast of "The Queen and the rest of the Royal Family," was perfectly certain that there was no body of men more loyal than the Reading Branch of the Guild. In proposing the "Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces," he regretted that Army men were, as a rule, not distinguished ringers. The same, however, could not be said for the Navy, which numbered many skilled in the art, a band of seamen for handbell playing being frequently found on board ship; as for the volunteers, they could be good soldiers as well as good ringers.

"Captain" JOHNSON, in reply, was very pleased to see so many volunteers present. He himself had served fifteen years, and he was perfectly certain that should occasion arise, he and his comrades in arms would never "be backward in coming forward." A melodious glee followed, by Messrs. Egby, Newell, and Paice—"To all you ladies now on land, we men-of-war indite," composed by Lord Dorset in 1664.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read, the election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with, the retiring members being unanimously re-elected, viz.: Mr. Routh, chairman of branch; Rev. G. F. Coleridge, Hon. Sec. and Treasurer, as well as representative on the General Committee. A selection on the handbells by the members of the Caversham belfry followed—"Spanish Chant"—which was received with loud applause.

Mr. EGBY, in proposing "The Guild," more especially the Reading Branch, observed that owing to other engagements, he was obliged to take a back seat among ringers. He referred in grateful terms to the vast efforts for improving ringing in the neighbourhood generally made by his friend Mr. Newell, and then commented on the "attitude of benevolent neutrality" taken by the clergy in the town; they had long been in a chrysalis state, he thought it was quite time they emerged into the butterfly stage; they ought to do far more for the Guild than was their habit.

Mr. ROUTH, in reply, stated that great difficulties had to be contended with in Reading; if we went back fifteen years we should find that astounding strides had been made; a few years since there was a great impetus in ringing in the town, but since then there had been a great deal of indolence and apathy. He wanted to see new methods learnt and peals rung. Let the Reading men copy the example of their forefathers, who, when the College Youths came down in 1730 and rang a peal of Bob Major at St. Mary's, at once started to double its length, and no doubt would have done so, had not a rope broken after 8000 changes, "every man," as the tablet states, "being in perfect strength."

The Rev. G. F. COLERIDGE made a statement as to the condition of the Reading branch. Ten members had left the branch during the past year, but for the most part not being practical ringers their loss would not be greatly felt, and had been more than counterbalanced by the accession of several young hands of great promise. The balance sheet was also satisfactory, showing a balance of about £7 in hand, including two guineas deposited with the rector of St. Mary's for the purchase of handbells for Caversham and St. Mary's belfries.

Mr. EGBY followed with the song "The Speaker's Eye."

Mr. THOMAS, who had come down for the occasion from Birmingham, then proposed "The Church." He stated that ringers were always pleased to welcome the clergy, more especially if they happened to be ringers, as so many were becoming. After Mr. Johnson had rendered the "Village Blacksmith,"

The Rev. A. E. MOLINEUX, Vicar of Caversham, responded to the toast. The fact of his being alone there that evening proved that the Reading clergy did not take much interest in ringing matters. There were, however, two sides to the question. The clergy used many times to have complaints to make of the ringers who often came into the belfry, but rarely or never into the church; times, however, had improved, and now there was a far better understanding between the two bodies than formerly. He thought every clergyman would have to become a ringer if only he was set upon with such determination as he had been when he first came to Caversham. Mr. Newman, as soon as ever he arrived upon the scene, took the bull by the horns, and gave him no peace till he had entered the belfry and had learnt to ring a single bell. Doubtless he would, by this time, have become a skilful ringer, had not his colleague Mr. Coleridge appeared, and took affairs into his own hands; this was the only ground he had for regretting his arrival. He hoped next year to hear a far better account of the clergy. "The Blue Bells of Scotland" having been given on the handbells,

The CHAIRMAN rose to propose "The health of Mr. Newell, the Nestor, the father of change-ringing in Reading." While Mr. Newell was preparing to make a reply to a toast which was wholly unexpected, Mr. Coleridge gave an amusing recitation in the Devonshire dialect, "Thic ole Rifle Corpse."

Mr. NEWELL, who was received with great enthusiasm, said how glad he was to see so many present. Ringing in Reading was prospering, slowly indeed, but surely. He thought it the duty of every ringer in the diocese to belong to the Guild, and instanced the enormous good such annual meetings as at Abingdon and Wycombe did for the cause, ringers were enabled to meet one another and what was more know one another. Soon he hoped there would scarcely be a village where change-ringing was unknown. Reading ought to set a better example to all the towers in the county. St. Mary's tower, which appears on the guild certificate, was a disgrace, that, the chief tower was in the lowest place as regarded real ringing. The rector and churchwardens ought to be present and hear what was said of it.

Glees and songs occupied the remainder of the evening, among the more noteworthy being Mr. Liddiard's, "The Anchor's weighed;" the glee, "The Red Cross Knight," by Messrs. Newell, Egby, and Paice; "Paddle your own Canoe," by Mr. Newell, jun. (though one person at least maintained it was an ancient French song "Pas d'elle yeux Rhone qua nous.") Mr. Egby, "The Dutch clock;" Mr. Newell, "Rouse, brothers, rouse;" "The Convivial Man," by Mr. Sweetzer; "The War Song of the Druids," by the glee party; while on the handbells were given "Caller Herrin," and the "March of the Men of Harlech," where the tenors apparently had a good field-day. A vote of thanks to the Chairman by Mr. Newman brought to a close one of the most social and pleasant evenings ever spent in Reading.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held on Whit-Monday, May 21st, at Chelmsford. Divine Service at 12.30 in St. Mary's church, with an address by the Rev. F. E. Robinson, Vicar of Drayton, Berks, and Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. Dinner at 1.30 p.m. in the Charity School (tickets, price 1s. each to members of the Association), and business meeting immediately after dinner. The following towers will be open during the day: Chelmsford, 10 bells (except from 10 to 11 a.m. during a parochial service); Great Baddow, Galleyswood and Writtle, 8 bells; Springfield and Widford, 6 bells. Arrangements are being made to start for peals at Chelmsford at 6 a.m., and at Writtle after 6 p.m. Members who desire to avail themselves of reduced railway fares on the day of meeting, and to be present at the dinner, should notify the same to the Secretary on or before Wednesday, May 16th. A special meeting of the Committee will be held at 10.30 a.m. in the Charity School to consider what resolution shall be submitted to the Annual Meeting respecting a suggestion that the Association should be enlarged to include the present diocese of St. Albans—i.e., Essex and Hertfordshire. If any members of the Association who care to do so will attend this meeting, and express their opinion upon the matter, it will materially assist the committee, and perhaps lessen the necessity for long discussion at the subsequent meeting.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.—By Charles Pearson, M.A. Price Threepence, by post Fourpence.—WILLIAM POLLARD AND CO., Printers, Exeter.

ORMSKIRK PARISH CHURCH, LANCASHIRE.

On Saturday, April 28th, seven ringers from Liverpool visited the above ancient church for the purpose of ringing a peal of Stedman Triples. On arriving everything, including the tenor man, was found in readiness, and accordingly a start was made. After two or three false starts, the final "go" was called at 6.20 p.m., and at 9.21 the welcome words "that is all" announced to the ringers that the first peal of Stedman Triples ever rang on the bells was at last accomplished. A brief summary of the history of these bells may be of interest to our readers, and the following is taken from an old local print.

Change-ringing in Ormskirk seems to have quite a history of its own, which may be interesting to recall. The record stretches back over a hundred years, for we find that in 1777 a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung, and thirty years later in 1807 a half-peal in the same method, the latter by ringers four of whom bore the name of Balshaw. The first complete peal we find a record of was in 1813 when a 5040 Grandsire Triples was rung, conducted by R. Gregory. These ringers styled themselves the "College Youths" of Ormskirk.

From 1813 history is silent as regards change-ringing, and from then until 1874 we seem to have been indebted to ringers from Croston and Liverpool. In the latter year however we have a society of ringers who styled themselves the "Juvenile Youths," who in conjunction with the Liverpool ringers rang several peals of Grandsire Triples (the writer taking part in two of them). These "Juvenile Youths," either from advancing years or advancing ideas, or some other cause resigned in 1883, and the present band was formed, who in 1886 rang a peal (the first since 1813) entirely composed of Ormskirk ringers. This was a peal of Grandsire Triples, composed and conducted by Mr. James Sherrin, and was rang as a birthday peal for Mr. John Prescott, their Superintendent. Though the tenor bell is dated 1497, the old inscription and date is a reproduction, verbatim et literatim, for another date on the waist shows that it was recast in 1576 (temp Elizabeth) having probably been severely damaged in the destruction of Burscough Priory at the dissolution. Between the words of the inscription and below them on a neat border are the following armorial badges: branched red and white roses (the Tudor badge), the red dragon (of Wales), the Portcullis (the badge of the House of Lancaster), and the Shamrock (Ireland). The remainder of this peal was cast by Rudhall, of Gloucester, in 1714 and 1774, and the bells bear the following inscriptions:—

Second—"Peace and good neighbourhood, 1774."

Third—"William Grice, Parish Clerk A (device, a bell) R, 1714."

Fourth—"Henry Helsby, A (device, a bell) R, 1714."

Sixth—"Benj. Fletcher, Thos. Moorcroft, Thos. Aspinwall, churchwardens, 1714."

Seventh—"Thomas Rudhall, Gloucester, 1774."

Tenor—"I. S. de Barmig et eux me fecerent in honore trinitatis R.B., 1497."

The origin of the inscription on the tenor still remains a puzzle to antiquarians, the most probable solution (yet given) being that the donor of the bell was a James Scarisbrick, who had a wife Elizabeth, and held lands in Burscough and Bretherton. They are proved to have been living from 1494 to 1501. The R.B. standing for the prior of Burscough, the inscription might be translated thus: "James Scarisbrick, of Burscough, Esquire, and Elizabeth his wife, made me in honour of the Trinity, 1497. Robert Burscough." It is rather a singular coincidence that with the exception of the peal in 1813 and another in 1875, and the peal of Bob Major rang on these bells in December last, the name of Prescott appears in each peal rung. And also the ringer of the treble in the Stedman peal on Saturday last is a great grandson of the Thomas Aspinwall, churchwarden, inscribed on the sixth bell. The church at present is undergoing extensive renovation, though due regard is taken to the original designs. A singular feature is the church possesses a tower and spire erected side by side, the spire containing one bell (a ting-tang), and the tower the peal of eight. There is ample room for another peal of eight in the tower, and it is to be hoped before the final completion of the restoration the authorities will endeavour to add four more bells, and thus make the best going peal of twelve in England.

On the completion of the peal the ringers, with the local company adjourned to the "Ship" inn, and partook of refreshments kindly provided by the hostess, Mrs. Mercer. As the time was rather short, a touch of Grandsire Triples and another of Grandsire Caters, along with a humorous song by the celebrated Welshman (Mr. Davies) brought a pleasant evening to a close, the local ringers accompanying them to the train. The visitors desire to thank (through the medium of this paper) the vicar, the Rev. J. E. Woodrow, for the use of the bells, and for his courtesy shewn to them on each of their visits, and to the above-mentioned Mr. John Prescott, the genial superintendent of the ringers for having everything in order for their comfort.

CHARLTON KINGS, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

At the time of the Jubilee commemorations last year, a number of schemes were promulgated in this parish, with a view to perpetuate the memorable event in the country's history, and amongst others it was decided that in addition to a new clock (which has already been erected by the well-known firm at Derby—Messrs. J. Smith and Sons), if sufficient funds could be raised, the ring of six bells, which had got into a very dilapidated and unsafe condition, should be rehung, and if possible augmented to eight. Owing however to other calls upon the liberality of the parishioners, in the shape of a new parsonage house, and a new club house for the working men's society, it was found impossible to raise the full amount required to do the whole of the bell scheme. The only alternative was to do what they could with the means at their disposal, and this the Committee have done to the best of their ability by commissioning Mr. James Barwell, of Birmingham, to entirely rehang the old peal of six with new fittings, etc., together with a new frame, the latter to be constructed so as to admit of two bells being added at a later date should sufficient funds be forthcoming. The first part of the scheme has been carried out to the letter, and it is gratifying to know that the work is in every way satisfactory, and does great credit to the firm and to those who were entrusted with the carrying out of the plans. Some difficulty was encountered owing to the lowness of the ceiling of the ringing-chamber, and the placing of the new clock in position before the bells were touched, but this has been satisfactorily overcome, and nothing now remains but to add the two bells to complete the octave.

On Wednesday, April 25th, it was decided to reopen the bells, and being St. Mark's Day (the patron saint of the church), made it the more appropriate. No ceremony was observed on the occasion other than the usual festival services which are held in the church, and the bells were set going in the afternoon by the ringers of the parish and friends from Cheltenham and Prestbury. It would be superfluous to say that the improvement upon the old state of affairs gave universal satisfaction. Changes in various methods were indulged in until eight o'clock in the evening, when the ringers and a number of friends—upwards of twenty in all—assembled at the "London Inn" to indulge in a goodly repast, which had been provided by host Dyer. The chair was taken by Mr. F. E. Ward, of Cheltenham, Master of the Diocesan Guild, and the vice-chair by Mr. Walter James, leader of the local band.

The cloth having been removed, the usual loyal and complimentary toasts were drunk, and the remainder of the evening passed all too quickly, with a constant flow of vocal and campanalogical harmony.

Amongst those present were Messrs. Phillott, Ward, and Hodges (Cheltenham), T. Davis, D. Davis, and T. Compton (Prestbury), and Buffery, and the members of the local band. It is only due to Mr. James to say that the completion of the bells even at this date is mainly owing to his efforts, and we hope that they will be still further rewarded by having the additional two bells at no very distant date.

STOKE-ON-TRENT ARCHIDIACONAL ASSOCIATION.

There will be a committee meeting held on Saturday, May 5th, in the church room, Stoke, to elect a clerical Treasurer.
E. GLOVER, Hon. Sec.

THE EAST LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of the above society was held at Hogsthorpe on Saturday, April 21st. Ringers attended from Boston, Skirbeck, Freiston, Friskney, Sibsey, and West Keal. The company drove from Burgh-in-the-Marsh, and made a call at Addlethorpe church, which contains a fine peal of six bells, but not in good repair. A 360 of Bob Minor was rung by A. Barber, 1; Rev. H. J. Cheales, 2; F. Smith, 3; J. Mawer, 4; J. M. Rylatt, 5; H. Daulton (conductor), 6. They then journeyed to Hogsthorpe, and having raised the bells, a 720 of Bob Minor (eighteen bobs and two singles) was rung in 28 mins. A. Barber, 1; J. M. Rylatt, 2; F. Smith, 3; J. Mawer, 4; H. Daulton, 5; E. Mason (conductor), 6. At 12.30 a special service was held, the address being given by the Rev. Canon Bond, Rector of Anderby, who in his remarks referred especially to the belfry as part of the House of God, and impressed upon those that rung the bells to remember that they were in a court of God's house. As in the days of old, our blessed Lord cleansed the courts of the temple, so he was sure an Association like this was trying to cleanse and reform the belfries. At 2 p.m., dinner was provided at the Saracen Hotel by Mr. C. Griffith, in a very creditable manner. Rev. H. J. Cheales, president of the society, presided, and was supported by the Rev. Canon Bond, rector of Anderby, Rev. A. Soden, vicar of Hogsthorpe, Rev. J. White, rector of Addlethorpe, and twenty-four ringers and friends.

After dinner, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. MASON, and confirmed.

The PRESIDENT proposed a vote of thanks to Canon Bond for his kindness in coming and giving them such an instructive address, and also to the Rev. A. Soden for the use of the bells. He said that although Hogsthorpe was rather an out-of-the-way place to get to, they could not have had a better reception than they had that day. Referring to the Society and the rules it put forth he hoped it was doing a good work in the district. With regard to the ringing they had had a very uphill work, but he was glad that some of the companies were making such good progress. He hoped that Hogsthorpe, after their visit that day, would start in earnest for a peal on their beautiful six bells.

The Rev. A. SODEN, in replying, gave the Society a hearty welcome to Hogsthorpe, and said that he and his company should be glad to become members.

Canon BOND also thanked them for having asked him to come among them that day. He said he had not a peal of bells to ask them to go and ring, but he was very glad to become an honorary member of their Association.

Mr. BRADSHAW, churchwarden, also replied on behalf of the ringers, and hoped they would soon be able to ring a peal.

A 600 of Bob Minor was then rung by E. Mason, Rev. H. J. Cheales, J. A. Hand, G. F. Smith, H. Daulton, J. M. Rylatt. As time would not permit a longer stay, the company drove back to Burgh, well pleased with their visit.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

Notice is hereby given that the Annual General Meeting of this Association will be held at Brighton, on Whit-Monday, May 22nd. The programme, which will be published next week, will include a special service at the parish church, cold luncheon and business meeting. The three towers, St. Peter's, St. Nicholas and St. Paul's, each eight bells, will be open for ringing during the day. Notice of motion should be sent at least three days prior to the above date.

GEO. F. ATTREE, Hon. Sec.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The next District Meeting will be held at Epsom, by the kind permission of the Vicar, on Whit-Monday, May 21st. The tower will be open for ringing from 3 till 9 p.m. The Secretary will be happy to furnish copies of the certificate of membership to all those members whose subscriptions for the current year are paid, and who have not yet had their certificates.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

The date of the peal of Bob Major, rung at Leiston, Suffolk, which appeared in our last issue, should be Saturday, April 21st, 1888.

AN AFTERNOON BY THE THAMES.

Close to the south bank of this beautiful river stands the pretty church of Purley, with its embattled tower, about three miles from the busy town of Reading. This woody spot was on Saturday afternoon the meeting place of several members of the St. Lawrence's society, Reading, and others from Purley and Whitchurch. Permission having previously been obtained of the vicar, the ring of six were soon up in peal and a 240 of Grandsire was rung by, B. White, 1; W. Lawrence, 2; W. Holloway, 3; G. Talbot, 4; W. Williams (conductor), 5; C. Chapman, 6. This was the first touch on the bells, which are not in good tune, the fifth has been recast 1787, the others date back 1649, and are encircled with, PRAYES YE LORD. Now a short stroll through the Park brought us to the river side, which crossed, we found ourselves in the little churchyard of Mapledurham, in less than five minutes, near by the grand old mansion of Blounts. Here the Vicar came to the church and exchanged some kindly words of greeting—soon the bells were pealing to the tune of Grandsire, in which A. West, of Purley, took part. The back five are of splendid tone, but the treble probably belongs to some other peal in another part of the country, being at least a tone sharp. In the church are some fine tombs, a curious font, and an old fire-engine bearing the date 1643, a curious specimen of the days gone by. An enjoyable stroll along the road past the Elizabethan Mansion of "Hardwick" with its back ground of trees and hills, and the pretty village of Whitchurch (Oxon) was reached, here a course of "refreshment Minor" was gone through, afterwards a touch of Grandsire Triples on handbells, with a tenor No. 27 in E, part of a peal of 62. Attention was now turned to the contents of the steeple of the pretty church of St. Mary, and several touches of Bob and Grandsire Minor were rung, with some Doubles to finish. The awkward position of the ropes prevent really successful Minor ringing, as the tenor is most inconveniently placed, but these bells go well, having lately been well overhauled, the greatest drawback being rather noisy in the ringing chamber.

L.

SUTTON-ON-THE-HILL, DERBYSHIRE.

ON Saturday, April 28th, the following members of the Midland Counties' Association (Burton branch), viz., J. Austin, L. Bullock, E. I. Stone, W. H. Stone, W. Burton, W. Orme, W. Smith, G. Robinson, and J. Jaggar, paid a visit to the above place, a picturesque little village, with a fine parish church, standing in a commanding position on a hill some distance away. The bells, which have lately been augmented from three to six, by Messrs. Taylor and Sons, are a pretty little peal, tenor about 12 cwt. in G. After raising them in peal, several 120's of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles were rung, followed by a 720 Bob Minor in 27½ mins. W. Orme, 1; J. Jaggar, 2; W. J. Smith, 3; L. Bullock, 4; E. I. Stone, 5; J. Austin (conductor), 6. An adjournment was then made to the Vicarage, where a good substantial spread was placed at the disposal of the visitors, through the kindness of the Vicar, the Rev. R. G. Buckston, to which it is needless to add, ample justice was done. After tea the handbells were brought out, and touches of Grandsire Triples and Stedman Triples were brought round by W. J. Smith, 1-2; J. Jaggar (conductor), 3-4; L. Bullock, 5-6; J. Austin, 7-8. Another move was made towards the tower, and after a few more 120's of Stedman Doubles and a course of Grandsire Minor, the ringing was brought to a close by a good fall. The visitors wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS," to tender their hearty thanks to the Vicar, for his most kindly welcome on their first visit to Sutton.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

A District Meeting will be held at Leatherhead, on Tuesday, May 15th. The belfry will be open for ringing from 11 to 1, from 3 to 5, and from 7 to 9. Lunch at 1 o'clock; tea at 5.30; Committee meeting at 2, to arrange time and place of annual festival and other business. All ringers are invited to take part in the ringing. Members requiring orders for reduced fares must send notice to the Secretary, stating the station from which they intend to start, before Wednesday, May 9.

NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

THE FOURTH GENERAL ANNUAL MEETING of the officers and members of this Association took place at the headquarters—the city of Lincoln—on Saturday, April 28th, under very favourable auspices. Members from Gainsborough, Market Rasen, Louth, Caistor, Scothern, Hull, and the four Lincoln societies were present, the company being augmented by members of the Yorkshire, South Lincolnshire, Midland Counties', and other kindred Associations. Through the kindness of the Cathedral authorities, and the clergy and churchwardens of the city churches, four peals of bells were placed at the disposal of the Association for the day, and it is needless to add that this privilege was taken full advantage of and appreciated by the members.

Shortly before twelve o'clock eight of the members, viz., Messrs. Stiles, Woodthorpe, Doughty, Rose, Vickers (conductor), and W. Stewart, of the Cathedral company, C. Wells, of St. Peter-at-Arches, and W. Lunn, of Market Rasen, met at the Cathedral tower for the purpose of attempting a peal of Bob Triples, and all went merrily for two hours and twelve minutes, when a "change-course" occurred, bringing with it collapse. By three o'clock the visitors began to arrive from all sides, and soon made their presence known at the various towers.

The annual tea was arranged to take place in the Guild Court at the foot of the Steep Hill at five o'clock, by which time between fifty sat down to a substantial spread provided by Mr. Hatton. While assembled at tea, the company were honoured with the presence of the Lord Bishop of the Diocese (Dr. King), whose arrival, as also that of the Rev. Precentor Venables, was the signal for an outburst of applause. When the repast had been discussed to general satisfaction, his Lordship addressed the company.

In opening his remarks, the rev. prelate said this was just one of those kind of things which they should have, because in such gatherings as this they had the pleasure of hope and the pleasure of happiness, which was a pleasure that left no regret afterwards. Out of the thousands that had come into the Lincoln fair he was afraid there would be some, there would be one at least, who would go away and look back to the day with feelings of regret instead of happiness. Those present made pleasure by meeting in this sort of way, they enjoyed it at the time, and they enjoyed it when they came to look back upon the day. So it was a pleasure to him to come amongst them, because he knew what they were—they were those who rang the bells in their old church towers. He firmly believed there was more power to come out of the old churches than they had yet got out. Those old church towers had been a wonderful power when the clergy had been asleep; the old towers had been a witness and a sermon to many in days gone by, and they had done a great deal of good in this country. But far better was it when the clergy were wide awake, when the church doors were open, and the services were as they should be. First let the church be as it should be, and all things in harmony; and let those who rang the bells ring them in such a way as if it was indeed for human beings, for immortal beings, who had come there drawn by the love of God and one another, there to worship God in common. That was what the Church ought to be, and thus when the clergy, choir, and the ringers, and everybody about the church were in harmony, when everyone was doing his work, the Church effected the most good. This Association was doing a good work, and were helping to lift the Church up; the members knew and felt that the belfry was not a place in which they could smoke, drink beer, or use bad language; but the ringers themselves used the same language in the belfry as was used in every part of the church. That was a great difference from what things used to be, and it was the same all down the line. Nothing had done so much harm to the Church as careless clergymen, careless bishops, not doing what they ought to do, and thereby doing much harm. When any member of the Church did harm, it did harm all round, and when they saw the Bishops, clergy, ringers and singers all engaged with their hearts in the work, it was a help all round. It was a peculiar power the ringers had; the ringing of the bells was a peculiarly touching thing; he had often thought of it, not merely as a charm of music, but there was something wonderfully fascinating in it; somehow or other there was something about bell-ringing that was so English, so homely. It led them to think of their own village bells, and as they thought about it, there seemed to be something about it that was not of this world. The bells were raised above the ground—poised up there between the earth and heaven, there was a sort of heavenward feeling about the sound of the bells, and when the ringers were there with their coats off, they were probably unconsciously touching many a heart and drawing the tear from many an eye that no sermon could get at. People wandering about in the evenings in the lanes, or the man of business in his cart, heard the sound of the bells, and the bell-ringers thereby drew a tear from the eye, or moved the heart heavenward where the clergyman could not get at it. He personally thanked them for their work. Who could tell but the Great One, who knew the value of everybody's work, who could tell what England owed to the bell-ringers who rang the Jubilee peals: and in so doing kindled feelings of devotion and loyalty to our Most Gracious Sovereign and her family. The bell-ringers of the Jubilee peals did good work in moving people's hearts to maintain England as God would have her be. He wished to remind them that their real power depended on there being true harmony, when there was harmony between the ringers, the bells and the church, that harmony and happiness was so much increased when they saw the men who pulled the ropes were also trying by God's help to get heavenwards themselves. When this true harmony existed, it did make such a difference. God was not mocked, and they might depend on it God knew the value of every man's work, and a good and sincere man contributed happiness to himself, and imparted a sweetness and tenderness to the bells he rang by his character. When there was the harmony all round, it did do a wonderful deal of good, and when the life was in harmony with the heavenly sounding bells, it did make their work so much more beautiful. As he believed when they rang the Jubilee peals they were doing God's work, so he believed they were doing God's work when from the church towers they sent forth those heavenward drawing sounds which led people to think of where their future home was to be. He trusted God would bless the ringers in their own hearts, in their meeting and associating together in this way, and that He would multiply their influences for good.

The Rev. Precentor Venables, a warm friend of the Association, moved a vote of thanks to his Lordship for his kindness in sparing the members a few of his precious golden moments to come amongst them and encourage them in their work, which he himself heartily sympathised with.

The business portion of the meeting followed. The report for the past year was of a very pleasing character. It shewed an increase of thirty-one members (ten honorary and twenty-one ringing members), and a balance in hand of over £12. The venerable Bishop kindly accepted the invitation of the Association to become his patron. The Very Rev. the Dean of Lincoln was unanimously re-elected president; the three vice-presidents (S. F. Hood, Esq., for the Lincoln centre; the Rev. S. W. Andrews, for Market Rasen centre; and F. F. Linley, Esq., for Gainsborough centre) were re-elected, as also were the Hon. Treasurer (Mr. H. Gadd) and the Hon. Secretary (Mr. W. Lunn) both of Market Rasen. Two new honorary members (the Rev. Canon Overton, of Epworth, and the Rev. E. Milner Barry, of Scothern), were enrolled, one probationer passed into the efficient rank, and three new efficient and nine probationary members were elected. It was agreed to hold the July quarterly meeting at Great Grimsby. The help of the Lincoln reception committee, the services of the chairman (F. F. Linley, Esq.), and the kindness of the clergy in granting the use of their church bells, were acknowledged with votes of thanks.

During the evening the members visited the various towers in the city and rang short touches in a variety of methods. Thus ended what was undoubtedly one of the most successful meetings held by the Association.

NEWBURN-ON-TYNE.

The date fixed for the inauguration of this new peal of six, is Wednesday, May 16th. Dedication service, 7.30 p.m. Change-ringers who wish to attend the opening are requested to send in their names not later than Saturday, May 12th, to the Vicar, the Rev. S. Bucknell, in order that dinner may be provided for them.

G. J. CLARKSON.

Correspondence.

[While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

COALBROOKDALE CHURCH.

SIR,—An article in your issue of March 17, referring to Coalbrookdale church, has been brought to my notice within the last few days. Should any band of ringers have been interested by the account, and would wish to attempt a peal on the bells, I shall be glad to make arrangements for them to do so. I should think some band from the Midland Counties might like to pay us a visit at Whitsuntide, and give a little stimulus to the art.

THE VICAR.

ANSWER TO MR. MUSKETT.

SIR,—I see Mr. Musket does not think it possible to ring a peal at Drayton, Berks, in 2 hrs. 27 mins. If he will favour us with a visit we will show him that the performance was bona fide by ringing a still quicker one, on the same bells; and we shall be pleased to see him at a rope, and he will find that there is not time to set his bell and have a walk round, as it is in Stedman Cinques, at 19 per minute, or so, but he must follow our rule, which is: "If he makes a mistake in the slow he will be fined 2s. 6d." So keep your weather eye open, Sir.

J. W. WASHBROOK.

SIR,—The peal of Treble Bob Major, 5088, published by Mr. Samuel Marsh, in "THE BELL NEWS" for April 21st, is Mr. Daniel Wood's peal turned, which he will find in the 1845 edition of Hubbard's work, and most modern works as well, and the peal published by Mr. Marsh, on page 87 of Mr. Snowdon's Work (on which page will be found D. Woods' peal) the 8064 is false. I do not know whether it has been notified before or not, but it is as well that it should be known, as the qualities of the peal might tempt some one to ring it. The peal published by Mr. J. W. Washbrook, 13,265 of Grandsire Caters, should be 13,247, if he has given the peal right.

SAMUEL WOOD.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—In last week's issue there is the account of a peal of Treble Bob Major, rung at Foxearth, Essex, with a footnote to say that it is the first time of its being rung. I wish to inform Mr. Sillitoe that the same peal was rung at Eccles, Lancashire, on Monday, December 2nd, 1884, and published in "THE BELL NEWS" the Saturday following.

A. ED. WREAKS.

SIR,—With reference to [the] touches rung at Nuneaton, Warwickshire, published in your last issue, I wish to say I am the person who rang the 1st and 6th, and not M. George, as there is no such person.

JAMES GEORGE.

THE PEAL OF GRANDSIRE CATERS AT WESTBROMWICH.

SIR,—I saw in "THE BELL NEWS" of the 28th a report of a peal of Grandsire Caters, rung on the 21st inst., at Westbromwich. If that is a fair sample of their ringing they had better not ring many peals, or at any rate not send them for publication, as it is not worth while to dirty the pages of "THE BELL NEWS" with such rubbish, and call it "ringing."

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

AN ENQUIRY.

SIR,—What has become of our Hull ringers? Surely they have not left this "mortal coil," if they have we should be pleased to hear of their resurrection. There was a time when we could be entertained to a merry peal, just to cheer our drooping spirits. But this is a thing of the past. If this should meet the eye of any of our Hull friends, I trust it will be the means of the bell ropes once more being put into operation, and I can assure our Hull ringers that many will welcome once again a series of peals from the old church tower.

Hornsea, April 30th, 1888.

DE LA POER.

PROPOSED NEW BISHOPRICS FOR ESSEX AND SUFFOLK.—The House of Laymen discussed on Tuesday the report of a Committee appointed to consider the question of increasing the Episcopate. The Committee reported that such an increase was desirable, and recommended that as far as possible county boundaries should be adopted as the basis of the boundaries of Dioceses. In the Eastern Counties they recommended the formation of two new Sees—one at Bury St. Edmunds for the county of Suffolk, and the other at Chelmsford for the county of Essex. After a long discussion, the further consideration of the matter was adjourned.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

G. F. ATTREE, Hon. Sec.

A meeting in aid of the Bishop of London's Fund was held on Monday at Willis's rooms, but was not very largely attended. Bishop Temple, who presided, said there was every reason why they should appeal to the public more earnestly than ever on behalf of the fund, for the increase of the population of London continued with a growing rather than a diminishing ratio. The difficulty of providing the newcomers with the means of grace was thus greater than ever, and there was no prospect that the pressure upon the fund would be lessened for a long time to come. Unfortunately, there had been a very serious falling off in the resources at the command of the Church.

CANON TRISTRAM.

It must be very disappointing for Canon Tristram, after having represented the archdeaconry of Durham in York Convocation for many years, and having received a majority of votes at the last election, to be deprived of his position of Proctor on the ground that he has no benefice, but a canonry only. But the principle is insisted upon by the Archbishop of York that a Proctor must be beneficed within the archdeaconry which he represents; and this requirement the Queen's Bench has at length decided that it has no jurisdiction to set aside. Whether the Archbishop was right in requiring this qualification for a Proctor, and whether he had authority to decide the point at all are questions left to be determined in some way by the Convocation itself. In such matters at least the Queen's Bench will not interfere. Lord Coleridge's judgement certainly does not detract from the dignity of the Convocations. The Queen's Bench, he says, refuses to "interfere in the internal affairs of an ancient body, as old as Parliament and as independent." In thus dwelling on the ancient rights, and above all the "absolute independence" of the Convocations, the court is laying down broad principles, which in the dim, if not distant future may have a very important effect.—Guardian.

A REAL GHOST STORY.—The inhabitants of a sea-side parish in East Kent, not a hundred miles from Reculver, have recently had a ghostly experience, which caused no small sensation. There was not long since a change of vicar, and the new incumbent being zealous for Lenten observances, arranged such a programme of services during Holy Week that the church bell was scarcely silent from morning till night. People began to say that the bell would get so used to tolling that it would soon ring of itself. One night when, after service was over, the sexton had locked up the church, he and the vicar were on their way home. Suddenly they were startled by hearing the church bell tolling again. At first they could scarcely believe their ears, but the bell went on tolling in a somewhat irregular way. Then the Vicar decided that some person must have been left in the church and was giving the alarm in order to get released. The sexton was instructed to return and set the belated bell-ringer free. The night being dark, and his nerves being a little unstrung, the sexton secured the services of the constable, and thus reinforced, returned to the church. A light was procured, the door opened, and a search made for the ringer. There was no ringer! The belfry rope moved to and fro, the bell in the turret kept tolling, but not a soul—or at least not a body—was to be seen. The sexton and the constable feeling the situation grow gruesome, and cold shivers creeping down the small of their backs, beat a hasty retreat to the outside of the church. By this time people, aroused by the continual tolling of the bell, began to assemble, wondering what it all meant, and ere long quite a crowd of the inhabitants were eagerly discussing the mystery—the sexton and the policeman having both solemnly declared the ghostly character of the alarm. The Vicar and churchwardens also appeared on the scene, and people began to suggest that the exorcising powers of the reverend gentleman should be called into requisition. At times the ringing would cease for a few minutes and then re-commence with spasmodic energy, as if the ghosts of a dozen sextons were struggling at the bell rope. An hour passed by. Another search was made in the church by a few bold and adventurous parishioners, but still there was no ringer to be seen. Another hour passed, and another. The excited people returned to their homes to discuss the extraordinary event; the sexton went away in despair, and only a couple of policemen were left in charge of the church and the ghost. At last midnight sounded, and then with a burst of extra-wild ringing the bell ceased to toll. In the early morning light the secret was revealed. Some wicked wag, who had probably availed himself of workmen's ladders, which had during the day been in use against the church, had gained access to the bell turret and had fastened to the clapper a long cord, which was carried to an obscure corner of an adjoining field, from which place of concealment the oracle was worked.

Obituary.

WILLIAM HULME.

Another link in the chain which binds the present with the past generation of ringers, has been shortened by the death of the above-named gentlemen, who was taken to the majority on Wednesday, April 18th, in the 73rd year of his age. His end was calm and peaceful in the extreme; and to use his own expressions a short time before his death, he passed away

"Fearing, Nothing; Hoping, Trusting All."

He had been connected with the old church, Macclesfield, for sixty years in various capacities, over fifty of which he had been a ringer, being elected and received his first quarter's pay at Midsummer, 1837, the date of Her Majesty's accession to the Throne. Always spare and delicate, his health failed him some five years ago, when he was superannuated by his brother-ringers. The last occasion when he rang in peal was at the Queen's Jubilee, at which time his own Jubilee as a ringer was celebrated. He was appointed apparitor in 1860, and two years later deputy clerk, succeeding to the office of clerk about 1866, and sexton in 1870, both of which he held at the time of his death. His decease causes the first break in the band which rang the first peal of 5040 ever rang in the Potteries, which took place at Longton old church, on March 31st, 1864. He conducted his first peal in 1841, and his last (which he composed), of over 6000 changes, in 1877. His greatest delight was to talk about ringing and ringers of his day, and always made enquiries about those who were left of his acquaintance in other towns. His retiring habits and extreme modesty almost amounted in him to a fault, yet to know him was to love him. Patient and persevering in all things, truthful and upright in all his dealings, strictly faithful in the discharge of his various duties, it may truly apply to him to quote our immortal bard, that,

"The purest treasure mortal times afford
Is spotless reputation."

The funeral took place at the Macclesfield cemetery on Monday, April 23rd. At the request of the Vicar (the Rev. Canon Turner), the first portion of the service took place in the old church. The body borne by four of the youngest ringers, supported as pall bearers by four of the oldest ringers, was met at the west porch by the Rev. Canon, the wardens, and the choir. The service, which was choral, was very impressive, and was devoutly followed by a large congregation. At the cemetery there was a numerous assemblage, the vicar again officiating. After the service a course on the handbells was rung as a last token of respect by his brother-ringers. The bells were muffled and rung each evening, and prior to the interment and afterwards, a 750 Stedman Triples with the bells half-muffled. M.

REV. JOSEPH DEANS,

VICAR OF MELBOURNE, DERBYSHIRE.

We regret to announce the death of the above gentleman which sad event took place very suddenly, on Friday, April 20th, at the advanced age of 84 years. Mr. Deans was ordained deacon in 1827, by Bishop Kaye, and took priests' orders in 1829. He was preferred to the vicarage of Melbourne in 1831, which benefice he held till his death. The deceased gentleman, though not a practical ringer, took a very great interest in bell-ringing. It was chiefly through his instrumentality that a Society of Ringers was formed in Melbourne, of which Society he was the honoured president. He always maintained that it was his dearest wish to see a peal of eight bells in the tower of Melbourne church, which wish he lived to see accomplished, he himself entering heartily into the project for increasing the peal of six to eight, in 1887. On Sunday, April 29th, a peal of Grand-sire Triples was rung to his memory. The remains were interred on Thursday, April 26th, the ceremony commencing with a short service in church. The oak coffin, which was borne on a bier by the ringers, was surmounted by a large brass cross, bearing the inscription, "Joseph Deans, Priest, born December 5th, 1803, died April 20th, 1888, R.I.P." On Saturday, April 28th, a half-muffled peal was rung as a last token of respect. The vacant living is in the gift of the Bishop of Southwell.

F. A. P. KNIPE, M.D.

The above gentleman and ringer died on Saturday, April 21st, in Australia, where he had been practising for the last twelve months or so. Mr. Knipe was a first-class eight-bell ringer. Although we have not his list of peals to hand, he had rung several in different Standard Methods. At one time he practised with his brother, at Melbourne, Derbyshire, and was well known and highly respected by the Melbourne ringers, and also the ringers of the Metropolis, with whom he always liked to have a friendly "pull" while amongst them.

MR. W. H. TUCKER.

It is with feelings of deep regret we have to announce the death of Mr. W. H. Tucker, of Bishops Stortford, who died at his residence on Friday, April 20th, after a short illness of only two days duration. Mr. Tucker was in his 58th year and had held the position of cemetery superintendent from its opening in 1885, he was also sexton for the parish church of St. Michael. For upwards of 250 years the Tucker family have been connected with this town, and for generations they have filled the post of sexton for the parish church. Mr. Tucker was a member of the Bishops Stortford society of change-ringers for about 40 years, during which time he had rung several peals. His genial face will be much missed in the ringing-chamber, for he was one that could always be found there on practice evenings, doing his utmost to help forward a young beginner in the art, of which he was so fond. The respect in which he was held, was shown at his funeral, which took place in the cemetery, on Tuesday, April 24th, in the presence of about 300 of his friends, ringers, and foresters, of which latter community he was a member and trustee. During the evening, several touches of Grandsire Triples were rung, with the bells deeply muffled, by T. Newman, W. Ricketts, G. Brand, C. Martin, G. Martin, F. W. Chapman, H. Champness, J. Samford, and F. Roast, assisted by friends from Stanstead, Essex.

CALNE, WILTS.

On Tuesday evening, May 1st, eight members of the local company were present at the annual meeting of the Church of England Temperance Society, and rang several melodies on handbells, in capital style, and were loudly applauded, and which afforded a pleasant change in the programme, which consisted of songs, &c. The ringers have all been trained by Mr. W. Seager (an old ringer), who takes a great interest in it.

FEATS OF EATING.—Tournaments of gluttons were not uncommon up to fifty or sixty years ago. Twenty pounds of cherries are said to have been eaten at one sitting by a competitor at one of these encounters. She was a young girl, and gained the day; but she did not long survive her victory. At Portsmouth a soldier of the Dutch Artillery tried for a trifling wager to eat a pound and a half of beef while standing on his head. He had disposed of a considerable portion, when all at once his comrades observed him making strange faces, and on turning him up he gasped and died. At Fareham, a small town a few miles from Portsmouth, a labourer ate for a wager a bullock's head, weighing ten pounds, with a gallon of potatoes, half a gallon of turnips, and the whole of the soup of the boiling. But perhaps the greatest achievement in these uncleanly competitions was that of a certain Jerry Eke, a Norfolk man, whose powers at harvest suppers were the boast and wonder and envy of the villages round. At a farmers' market dinner a wager was laid for five pounds that he would eat a calf at a sitting. "The calf"—let us hope only a baby calf—was killed. The bones were cut out, the flesh was cut up into minute particles, and apportioned into seventeen enormous pasties, whose outer crust was a thin film of batter made lovely and tempting to every sense, but carefully kept from any ingredients that could cloy the palates. Jerry was called in, he having agreed to the wager with evident delight, and was told that he might fall to. He did so, and steadily gorged. He had made no difficulty of the first nine pasties, but when a tenth was brought in he seemed to flag. To the horror of his backers he sighed and looked perplexed. It was but for a moment, he only desired to expostulate. 'I say, Mas'r, I ain't got nothing to say agin them boys—I loik 'em amazin'; but I'm a-thinkin' et's abaywt time as I should begin upon that ther calf.—From "Casell's Saturday Journal" for May.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"I love you, bells of motherland,
With all this soul of mine,
And bless the Lord that I am sprung
Of good old English line;
And like a son, I sing the lay
That England's glory tells,
For she is lovely to the Lord,
And you—ye Christian bells."

ARTHUR CLEVELAND COX.

A few weeks ago I made enquiry respecting the celebrated Yorkshire ringer and composer, Mr. William Sottanstill, and as my enquiry elicited no response from our friends in that quarter, I was exceedingly glad to read the account of his "Jubilee Celebration" on Saturday last. It was very pleasant reading, not only on account of the interesting story it gave of the veteran's life, but also from the gratifying evidence it afforded that his Yorkshire friends in general and the clergy, wardens, and parishioners of Sowerby in particular had combined to so fittingly celebrate the event. Had publicity been given to it through "THE BELL NEWS" previously, I have no doubt that a still larger number of his admirers would have travelled long distances in order to be present at Sowerby on that day. As it is, we who were thus unfortunately and unavoidably absent must content ourselves with the pleasure of reading the account of the proceedings which you give. We can, however, most heartily join in the wish expressed by the worthy Vicar of Sowerby, that "their old friend would be spared to them for some time yet, and that when he had finished his course here, he might attain to a better life hereafter."

The story of Mr. Sottanstill's life and work is well worth the careful consideration of us all, and particularly of those amongst us whom we are apt to style "the rising generation." It has been a life of constant and unremitting work in connection with the Church which had brought him up from childhood, and towards which in his writings is ever breathed a spirit of sacred love and veneration, which shows him to be a faithful son "not in name only, but in very deed." For over four-score years the events of his life have been bound up with the Church which he loves. From a scholar in the Sunday School he became a teacher, and so continued for forty-six years; for twenty years he was a member of the choir; for half a century he has faithfully performed the duties of parish clerk; and sixty-six years ago the sound of his sweet church bells caused him to enter upon the work of ringing, to which work he has devoted such marked perseverance and ability as to merit the title bestowed upon him by the late Jasper Snowdon, of "prince among Yorkshire ringers." And amid all these manifold duties, we are told that for forty years he devoted his leisure hours to the compilation of a volume which must ever rank as one of the most important possessions of the Exercise. His "Elements of Campanologia" has been for many years my most-valued ringing work, and I can well imagine the immense amount of time, patience, and indomitable perseverance of which it has been the outcome.

Here is a life story worth writing in letters of gold. Here is a worthy example to follow of a long life spent in the performance of faithful unflagging work. We shall not all of us be given Mr. Sottanstill's long length of years: but if we cannot imitate him in this respect, we may at any rate endeavour during the brief space of time allotted to us, to emulate his zeal, patience, perseverance, and industry, and to leave the Exercise better than we found it.

I notice that the 9th of July next will be Mr. Sottanstill's

88th birthday, and do not doubt that the mere mention of this fact will be sufficient to cause that anniversary to be heartily observed by his many friends, particularly in his native county, by jubilant peals.

Mr. Muskett writes very hotly about the quick peal of Stedman Triples at Drayton. Although no doubt sharing his astonishment at the time stated, I cannot agree with his remarks, insinuating as they do such a breach of good faith on the part of the ringers of the peal, more especially so when I look at the names of some of those who took part in it. I have several times had occasion to refer to the surprisingly quick time in which peals are reported to have been rung, but I should be extremely loth to imagine that any such deceit had been practised as that mentioned by Mr. Muskett. No doubt his letter will be replied to from the proper quarter.

At the same time I cannot help noticing the great difference in the time of this peal with one of Double Norwich rung on the same bells on April 21st; the first one being at the rate of 344 changes per minute, and the latter 284, or six changes per minute slower than the first-named. There is certainly a considerable "variation" between the two in that respect.

And now, my friends of Stockton, just a word with you. While I am always glad to see my remarks criticised, and am no less willing to admit the fact if proved to be in the wrong, I certainly do think the concluding sentence of your report uncourteous, to say the least of it. Were I vindictive, I could easily repay that sentence with considerable interest; but I hope vindictiveness forms no trait in my character. If my remarks anent your so-called "Surprise peals" were unfair, or in any way controvertible, why did you not tackle them in the same columns in which they appeared, instead of contenting yourselves with "blackballing" me to your hearts' content in your own private conclave? If met in a proper controversial manner, I am fully prepared to maintain my ground. As it is, however, for the present, I will content myself by asking you in common fairness to substantiate the two statements you make; first, that my strictures emanate "from a quarter incompetent to judge upon what constitutes a legitimate distinction between one method and another," and second, that "another society in the south" has endorsed your opinion. I await your answer.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

NOTICE is hereby given that the next Quarterly Meeting will be held at St. Alban's church, Rochdale, on Saturday, May 5th. There will be a short service in the church at 5 p.m., at which members and friends are asked to attend. The business meeting will be held in St. Alban's schoolroom, Drake Street, immediately after service, and over which the vicar, the Rev. W. Cooper, M.A., has kindly consented to preside. The bells (8), tenor 17 cwt., will be at the disposal of members from 2.30 p.m. up to the commencement of the service, and again at the close of the meeting. Members on arrival to meet in the schoolroom, where companies can be formed for ringing. The committee will be very pleased to see as many as possible at both the service and the meeting.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the above Association was held on Tuesday, May 1st, at Westbury-on-Severn. Among the company who attended was the Hon. Secretary (the Rev. Pitt Eykyn, vicar of Magor), Mr. F. E. Ward, Master of the Association, Mr. C. E. Boutflower, Secretary for the Bristol Deanery, Mr. J. E. Hern, Secretary for the North and South Forest Deaneries, and about thirty other ringers from various parishes in the county. Ringing commenced early, and some capital touches were rung upon the six bells which comprise the peal in the parish church tower. The morning was not favourable for a large gathering; it was cold, and rain fell heavily. There was a short service, attended principally by the ringers.

The Vicar (the Rev. Canon Jones), addressing those present, said he should address but very few words to them, based upon the words contained in the 4th verse of the first chapter of the Epistle to St. James, but he hoped they would be words of hearty welcome to the Association, to their parish, and more especially to the house of prayer. He (the speaker), had been associated with that institution ever since its foundation. He was glad to see them there, as it was a visit just on the eve of the termination of a very long incumbency and connection he had with the parish of Westbury. He wished them God speed in their undertaking, which he knew must be a labour of love, and if it was properly carried out it would tend to the glory of God. He believed the character of the village, the character of any country place in fact, depended very much upon the character and decorum which the ringers observed in the belfry. It was because he knew how steadily they conducted, that he had the pleasure in so cordially inviting them, but he would remind them that they had undertaken a serious responsibility, which, if it was honourably discharged, would win for them the admiration and respect of those around them. Wherever they went, it was essential that, besides the benefits which the friends derived from the art which they practised, there should go with them that example of good and steady life which would influence those with whom they were brought into association. He was glad to know that matters in that direction had very much improved within his own recollection. He had a lively recollection of the times, and it was not many years ago when the church belfries were in a state of disorder, revelry, and drink, and where matters were carried on in a manner which was highly improper. He was speaking not from what he had heard, but what actually had come under his own personal observation. A change had however come over them, and the ringers were beginning to recognise that they were really officers of the Church, and by the practice of their art were sending messages through the air to the villagers. Speaking more particularly to his own ringers, he said he was well aware they had met with almost every form of difficulty, but they had steadily maintained their position, and had surmounted them. The art of bell-ringing could not be taught or learned in a day, and those who had got a mastery over it could only do so by constant and persevering application and attention to the practice. It was encouraging that they submitted so willingly to the firm discipline that was observed. He hoped it would have an influence for good upon their worldly life, and that it would make them good men. Remember they were servants of God, and by their efforts were contributing to His glory.

Other touches were then rung in a creditable manner, after which, at 1.30., a dinner was served at the "Red Lion" Hotel, by host Nicholls. The vicar presided, Mr. Ward occupying the vice-chair. In addition to the general company, there was also present the Revs. H. H. Hardy (rector of Mitcheldean), G. B. Thorpe (curate), Mr. Marcus Letcher (Cinderford), and Mr. J. Ricketts (churchwarden of the parish).

The CHAIRMAN, on rising, said he had pleasure in submitting to them that good old-fashioned toast of "Church and Queen," which having been given,

The CHAIRMAN next proposed "Success to the Society." In other words, he said they were asked to drink the health of their noble selves. He welcomed them to Westbury right heartily. Not only did they bring out the glory of the church bell music, but he thought the ringers themselves, by their influence, set a good example wherever they went. He trusted at least that their visit to Westbury would not result in the least possible harm, but that it would stimulate them to higher things. He was very proud the Association had decided to visit Westbury, and, on behalf of the churchwardens and church officers generally, he welcomed them right heartily.

Mr. WARD, who was called upon to respond, said he felt it was an honour to him to be in the proud position of Master of the Association. He looked upon theirs as a very important work, one which he was afraid in past days had been very much neglected. He was glad, however, to observe the evidence which existed that there was an improvement both in the ringers and ringing of to-day, as compared with the past generations. He meant that the ringers were now very generally attending the services in the church as well as the belfry. He wished to see them all regular attendants at the Lord's Supper. They had made a new start, and were gradually becoming to regard themselves as church officers. They felt there was work for them to do. With regard to the progress of their society, he felt there was some ground for congratulation of late, and especially during the last two years. They seemed to have made a jump during 1887. There was a great increase in the number of peals rung. In 1886-7 no less than twenty-two peals of some significance had been rung, while they had to go back nine years further to get a record of thirteen peals altogether. Another especially gratifying feature was the fact that a large number of young men had joined them. It was a very necessary element of their success that there should be a constant supply of new blood. Let every credit at the same time be given to the older members, for without their help how could the young men acquire the art. The Oxford Guild, he pointed out, had succeeded in recording three "record" peals in the present year already. He regretted they had not been so successful, but it was not because they had not striven for it. An example had been set which they would do well to imitate. He thought it was always well to have something in their mind's eye to strive after. In change-ringing the more they learned of the art the more interesting the study of it seemed to become. There were a great many intricacies in the various changes which was a very pleasant occupation for them to work out upon paper. He had spent, probably, more hours in that direction than he had in the belfry, albeit he never missed an opportunity to practice with the ropes whenever it offered. He found that to work out the changes on paper was a very great help to him in the actual work. It was very essential in ringing that there should be a good common-sense feeling between those who took part in it. There ought not to be any antipathies existing between one and another, because any single man could mar the whole peal. When they were ringing it was impossible, in the very nature of their work, to observe anything in the nature of ceremony, and in that circumstance it was highly important that there should be a common understanding. If that was so, and they all knew their work well a false stroke by any one of them need not have too serious a result. It was a very pleasant feature of that meeting that they were received with so hearty a welcome as the vicar had extended to them. There was a fair prospect now of the Society becoming strong. As they increased in numbers so would they, like a snowball, gather strength and importance as time went along. Of course it was not so easy when young blood was first introduced. Men did not always see a given point in the same light the one as the other. Some had not the faculty of picking up a theory so easily and readily as others. Let them in such cases extend to their brothers all the kindness, patience and consideration that they needed, and be sympathetic towards them.

The Hon. Secretary proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens, who he said, had given them such a very warm-hearted welcome to their parish that day. It was pleasant, after the drive from Newnham in the cold rain and blustering wind, to be greeted with the words in which Canon Jones addressed him when he arrived at Westbury. He was sure that toast would be received with enthusiasm.

The CHAIRMAN, in acknowledgement, said there had always been a warm attachment between him and the church officers during his long sojourn at Westbury, which was soon to be brought to an end. A great deal of personal kindness had always been extended towards him. He was glad that one wish he had was that day gratified. He had long anticipated the pleasure it would give him when the Association paid a visit to Westbury. In that connection, he added that the bells had lately been thoroughly repaired by the daughters of an old parishioner, who in his day worked very hard in the parish for a long time.

Mr. HERN (Newnham) said there was one other toast which must not be overlooked. The least they could do was to thank the worthy secretary for so faithfully discharging his onerous duties. He was sure the hon. secretaryship was a work of care and responsibility, which had and would go on increasing in volume.

The HON. SECRETARY, in reply, said he was not deserving of the flattering words used toward him by the gentleman who submitted the toast of his health to the meeting. He congratulated them upon having a very good Master. He had received great assistance from him, and he had very kindly undertaken many duties which really appertained to the work of the Secretary. That being so he wished to acknowledge it, as he had no desire to sail under false colours.

The company then gave a performance upon the handbells, and after a short time spent pleasantly enough in this manner, they broke up and returned to the belfry, where change-ringing was continued during the remainder of the evening.

In the ringing during the day, the Westbury men played an important part, and rang some well-struck Grandsire Doubles and Minor. The principal touch by the visitors was a 720 Bob Minor. J. H. Brown (Huntley), 1; F. E. Ward (Cheltenham), 2; J. E. Hern (Newnham), 3; R. J. Wilkins (Gloucester, conductor), 4; H. Mitchell (Barnwood), 5; W. Sevier (Gloucester), 6. The above also rang a 720 Kent Treble Bob Minor, the first on the bells, Mr. T. Brown, of Quedgeley, standing in place of J. H. Brown, conducted by W. Sevier. Some Stedman Doubles were also rung, in which C. E. D. Boufflower, of Bristol, took part.

PAINSWICK, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

On Saturday evening, May 5th, being the seventy-first anniversary of the long peal of 12,312 Grandsire Caters rung in this tower, four members of the local band, assisted by four ringers from Gloucester, met to attempt the Rev. C. D. P. Davies's ten-part part peal of Grandsire Triples, to celebrate the occasion. "Go" was called at twenty minutes past six, and all went well till 9.25, forty changes from rounds, when the fifth man suddenly turned faint and could not finish, so the bells were set. It was a disappointment, as it would have beat all records of Triples on these bells, but it was best to take it in the same light as Mr. William Estcourt did after ringing about five hours in Stedman Caters, when one man dropped. He said "Never mind, it was a good long practice." The local band sincerely trust that seeing the bells go so well, Mr. Washbrook will favour them on a suitable occasion to himself, with a visit, and try and beat the long peal, or as he says "eclipse it," on the same weight of metal, not on those 14½ cwt. candlesticks. The music will repay him, and he will be heartily welcomed. The following were the ringers: A. Trigg, 1; W. Sevier (conductor), 2; F. E. Hart, 3; W. Hale, 4; —. Brunson (St. Michael's, Gloucester), 5; R. Barratt, 6; G. Smith, 7; T. Wright, 8. Tenor 28 cwt. H.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A GENERAL MEETING will be held on Whit-Monday, May 21st, at Stockton and Middlesbrough, when the bells of Stockton (six, tenor 11 cwt.), and St. Hilda's, Middlesbrough (eight, tenor 12 cwt.), will be at the disposal of the ringers. A dinner will be provided at two o'clock, at the "Half Moon," Stockton, at 1s. per head to members, 2s. 6d. to non-members. Members requiring dinner should send in their names not later than Monday, May 14th. The Committee will meet at the hotel at one o'clock.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

By kind permission of the Vicar and Wardens, arrangements are being made for holding the next General Meeting at Pontefract on Saturday, June 2nd.

BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting in connection with the above Association, was held at Harborne, on Saturday, April 21st. At the parish church during the afternoon several touches of Grandsire Triples were rung upon the tower bells and upon the handbells, after which the meeting was held in the schoolroom, presided over by Mr. C. Carmell, vice-president, when the following places were represented: Birmingham, Selly Oak, and Moseley. Mr. Parker was elected Secretary in the place of Mr. J. Wright, the late Secretary, who has gone to America. There were eight members proposed during the evening. Votes of thanks were accorded to the rector and churchwardens for the use of the bells and school, and to the tower-keeper for having all things in readiness. It was decided to hold the next Quarterly Meeting at Bromsgrove.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of the above was held at St. Alban's, Rochdale, on Saturday last, May 5th. Service was held in the church at 5 p.m. The full choir attended and sang an appropriate anthem, the Vicar, the Rev. W. Cooper, M.A., preaching an excellent sermon. The meeting was held in the school shortly after 6, at which the vicar presided, seven new members being elected, including the vicar. It was decided to form a branch of the Association in the Rochdale district. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the vicar, churchwardens and choir, for the services they so willingly rendered. Ringers were present from Heywood, Bury, Bacup, Ramsbottom, Bolton, Moorside, Rawtenstall, and Ashton-under-Lyne. Touches of Stedman, Treble Bob, Grandsire Triples, and Plain Bob, were rung during the evening.

ROCHDALE AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of the above Association was held on Saturday, May 5th, at St. Peter's church, Walsden. The bells were set going about 3, by a mixed band. Several other touches were got through. Mr. Thomas Bamford, age 84, of Rochdale, rang in one. The meeting was held in the School at 5, about forty members being present.

The Chairman read a letter from the Vicar of St. Peter's, who should have been in the chair, but was prevented at the last moment. After the meeting the tower was again visited by mixed bands during the evening. Some of the members took the handbells to the "Cross Keys," and touches of Triples and Royal were rung, Mr. Bamford taking 5-6 in three or four touches. A very pleasant day was brought to a close at 8.30. The ringers wish, through the medium of this paper, to thank the Vicar and churchwarden for the use of bells and schools.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The next District Meeting will be held at Epsom, by the kind permission of the Vicar, on Whit-Monday, May 21st. The tower will be open for ringing from 3 till 9 p.m. The Secretary will be happy to furnish copies of the certificate of membership to all those members whose subscriptions for the current year are paid, and who have not yet had their certificates.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

A correspondent writes:—The bells are deaf and dumb now at the village of Tong. Taking our usual afternoon walk around Tong last Sunday we were surprised to hear the bells muffled, and when opposite the Village School we met some young men and enquired how it was the bells were muffled? One young man said "the ringers had got the sack, and it was the last Sunday they had to ring, so they were ringing the 'Dumb March' in Saul." On going a little further on we met two young women, and we heard one say to the other—"I should not be surprised if the Emperor is dead, makes the bells be muffled." On arriving at the church we met the dumb ringers, and a person was asking them if there was someone dead? One of the ringers said, "Aye, the bells are dead, and hung up." The saying at Pudsey is "that when they hear Tong bells it is a sign of rain." They can now venture to leave their macintoshes and nellys at home, for it is possible the bells will not be heard any more till the third Sunday after Easter next year.—Latest news midnight.—"All ringers are requested to keep away from Tong during the lock-out."

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held on Whit-Monday, May 21st, at Chelmsford. Divine Service at 12.30 in St. Mary's church, with an address by the Rev. F. E. Robinson, Vicar of Drayton, Berks, and Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. Dinner at 1.30 p.m. in the Charity School (tickets, price 1s. each to members of the Association), and business meeting immediately after dinner. The following towers will be open during the day: Chelmsford, 10 bells (except from 10 to 11 a.m. during a parochial service); Great Baddow, Galleywood and Writtle, 8 bells; Springfield and Widford, 6 bells. Arrangements are being made to start for peals at Chelmsford at 6 a.m., and at Writtle after 6 p.m. Members who desire to avail themselves of reduced railway fares on the day of meeting, and to be present at the dinner, should notify the same to the Secretary on or before Wednesday, May 16th. A special meeting of the Committee will be held at 10.30 a.m. in the Charity School to consider what resolution shall be submitted to the Annual Meeting respecting a suggestion that the Association should be enlarged to include the present diocese of St. Albans—i.e., Essex and Hertfordshire. If any members of the Association who care to do so will attend this meeting, and express their opinion upon the matter, it will materially assist the committee, and perhaps lessen the necessity for long discussion at the subsequent meeting.

SEAFORD, SUSSEX.

A serious accident occurred at the parish church of Seaford just before eight o'clock on Sunday morning to Mr. George Simmons, the vergier and sexton. Having opened the church and made his preparations, he proceeded to toll the bell for service, which is done from the floor, a rope being attached to the proper bell-rope in the ringing-loft. On the previous Saturday evening the bells had been rung and were left up. It has always been the custom that after ringing the seventh bell (at least) should be lowered and the rope from below attached for tolling, but on this particular Saturday evening this wise arrangement was apparently disregarded. Mr. Simmons accordingly went to the ringing-chamber and fastened the rope, but did not observe that the bell he was about to attempt to toll was raised. On coming down he placed his foot in a loop at the end of the tolling rope as usual, but scarcely had he done so when the bell came off, and he being unprepared, was lifted up by the rope for some distance and then precipitated to the floor, falling on his back with considerable force. He was in this manner carried up and down three times before he could become disentangled from the rope. Medical aid was at once obtained, but it was found that no bones were broken, though the spine was injured, and the sufferer, for whom much sympathy is shown, lies in a very precarious condition.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

A District Meeting will be held at Leatherhead, on Tuesday, May 15th. The belfry will be open for ringing from 11 to 1, from 3 to 5, and from 7 to 9. Lunch at 1 o'clock; tea at 5.30; Committee meeting at 2, to arrange time and place of annual festival and other business. All ringers are invited to take part in the ringing. Members requiring orders for reduced fares must send notice to the Secretary, stating the station from which they intend to start.

Purbrook, Cosham.

H. A. SPYERS, Hon. Sec.

SOUTHNEWTON, WILTS.

On Saturday, May 5th, these bells were opened by several members of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild, the peal having been augmented from four to six. During the afternoon a date touch was rung, also a 720 Bob Minor, and several 120's of Stedman Doubles. The company were kindly entertained by the vicar (the Rev. J. H. Penruddocke), and they rang several touches on handbells at the vicarage. The two new trebles are by Messrs. Warner and Sons. An account of the ringing will be found in another column.

Correspondence.

[While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

"FREE LANCE" AND THE STOCKTON SOCIETY.

SIR,—The remarks of "Free Lance" addressed to the Stockton society appear to convey a veiled intimation that our reputation has had a narrow escape of being crushed out of existence under his giant foot, for having dared to form a correct estimate of his strictures upon certain Surprise methods which were published in the Clavis and accepted by the Exercise before the nativity of himself or his grandfather. "Free Lance" expresses a wish to be met in a proper controversial manner and awaits our answer to certain questions. On behalf of the Stockton society, I shall be prepared to accommodate him in both respects, subject to the proviso that he drops his nom de plume and states his case and his questions over his own name. My appreciation of nom de plume controversialists is not of a kind to induce me to enter the lists for their encouragement or gratification. G. J. CLARKSON.

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—Through the medium of your columns, I wish to thank Mr. Parker and Mr. Penning for the answers which they have given to my query. I should like to state that the day previous to receiving "THE BELL NEWS" containing their answers, I became aware of the possibility of the quarter-peal with 85 calls, and which I append.

THE PEAL OF BOB TRIPLES AT ROWLEY REGIS.

SIR,—On reading your issue of May 5th the report of a peal of Bob Triples rung at Rowley Regis, composed and conducted by John Carter, I was reminded of two peals in that method that have been published in your columns, by Mr. Carter, to which I think he can hardly lay claim. The first of these, published in vol. iv., p. 415, is a variation of Holt's six-part, while the second—also a six-part, published in vol. v., p. 147—is T. Morris's peal with another bell as observation. These peals have now been before your readers for some considerable time, and as they were not challenged at the time it may appear somewhat out of place for me to allude to them now, but in doing so I trust it will be understood that I do not wish to impute to Mr. Carter any impure motive, my only aim being that honour may be rendered to whom honour is due.

YORKSHIREMAN.

THE PEAL OF GRANDSIRE CATERS AT WESTBROMWICH.

SIR,—If your correspondent will be kind enough to state what he means by "rubbish" with regard to the above peal, and will attach his name to it, I have no doubt he will get a reply, but if he is one who goes prying about to see what fault can be found with others' ringing, and never rings himself, except when there is something for the pocket afterwards, I would rather have nothing to do with him.

S. REEVES.

A CO-OPERATIVE FESTIVAL.—The National Co-operative Flower Show which created so much interest at South Kensington last year, will assume much larger proportions this year, and will be held at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, August 18th. The prize schedule shows that upwards of £320 have been subscribed in prizes as against £60 last year, and every kind of vegetable, fruit, flower and honey in season, is included in the 200 different classes. If the entries are at all in proportion to what they were at the last show it will be one of the largest collections of bona fide cottagers' productions ever held. There is also to be an exhibition of home industries which should be very instructive, and an exhibition of produce from co-operative workshops both English and foreign. Cheap excursions will be arranged in connection with almost every Co-operative society in the kingdom, so that their members—there are now upwards of a million—will be able to attend the first holiday festival for Co-operators which has been held.

SADDLEWORTH RINGERS AT GLODWICK, OLDHAM, AND MOSSLEY.

ON Saturday afternoon last, May 5th, the Saddleworth Society divided themselves into two companies, one journeying to St. Mark's, Glodwick, Oldham, and the other to St. George's, Mossley. Each attempted and successfully brought round a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, consisting of 5088 changes each, both peals being composed by Mr. John Thorp, of Ashton-under-Lyne, but different compositions. After the ringing both companies met at the "Bull's Head," Mossley, and sat down to an excellent supper, given by the host, Mr. Rhodes, to the ringers and a few friends. Amongst the guests there was Mr. John Knott, the donor of the seventh bell, Messrs. John Taylor, John Moss, Robert Moss, W. Kaye, Jas. Lawton, Ed. W. Platt, John Buckley, T. J. Wild and others. After the removal of the cloth, Mr. James Lawton was voted to the chair, and submitted the toast of "the Queen and members of the Royal Family;" the company, all standing, singing the National Anthem. The ringers rung a course of Grandsire Triples on the handbells. The next toast was the "Vicar and parishioners," coupling with it the name of Mr. Knott, who suitably responded, after which Mr. James Wrigley sung "The shake of the hand."

The health of Mr. John Taylor was next proposed in a very neat speech by Mr. James Wrigley, who is choir-master of Saddleworth church, and spoke of Mr. Taylor's long services at Mossley church as choir-master and sexton. Mr. Taylor has recently resigned the office of choir-master, on account of advancing years, but still retains the office of sexton, and is in his 73rd year.

Mr. Taylor replied in a very humorous and instructive speech, giving a resume of his many years' services and difficulties he had had to contend with, interspersed by many an amusing and pleasant incident, after which the following ringers rung a course of Grandsire Caters: James Wrigley, 1-2; F. Brierley, 3-4; John Holden, 5-6; Joseph Wood, 7-8; John T. Holden, 9-10.

Mr. Kaye proposed what he considered the toast of the evening, "Health and success to the Saddleworth ringers," to which Mr. John Buckley replied, and said he was pleased the Saddleworth companies had both been so successful in their peals that afternoon. He was particularly delighted that he had been successful in ringing the tenor at Mossley, and that his sire, Mr. Jos. L. Buckley, had rung the fifth along with him. It was the first peal they had rung together, but he hoped it would not be the last. He thanked Mr. Kaye and the gentlemen present for the kind way in which the toast had been proposed and received.

Mr. J. Turner and Mr. J. Holden also suitably replied.

Mr. T. B. Dicken was in good voice, and rendered "The Holy Friar" in good style. Mr. Wrigley again delighted the company with "The Sunny Side," "Scotch Laddie," "Jenny Jones," and a course of Major and Triples by the ringers, concluding by a hearty vote of thanks to the host and hostess, and chairman, and thus ended one of the ever-to-be-remembered pleasant evenings which are frequently spent together when ringers, friends, and bells are in tune and harmony with one another.

ST. MARY'S-WITHOUT-THE-WALLS, CHESTER.

ON Tuesday, May 1st, a mixed band from Wrexham and Chester, succeeded in ringing Mr. C. Price's peal of 5056 Kent Treble Bob Major in 3 hrs. 12 mins. The peal was rung at the first attempt, and has very musical qualities, containing all the 8-6-7's and all the 8-6's, with the sixth extent in all positions; it being also the second peal ever rung in the city of Chester in the method. The first peal was rung in the tower of St. John's church in 1820, and on an old tablet recording four peals is the one referred to. It runs thus:

"February 4th, 1820. The Society again ascended the tower and rung a complete Peal of Treble Bob Major, 5120 changes, in 2 hrs. 59 mins. E. Edwards, 1; T. Haswell, 2; C. Haswell, 3; G. Sinclair, 4; W. Doyle, 5; J. Carter, 6; R. Hutchinson, 7; J. Andrews (conductor), 8. The peal is the first ever rung in the county. John Edwards and James Fitzgerald, Churchwardens."

On Saturday, May 5th, eight members of St. Mary's company rung for practice, 1008 Plain Bob Major, in 38 mins. R. Mills, 1; F. Fletcher, 2; H. Gipson, 3; G. Caldwell, 4; J. Heald, 5; J. Morgan, 6; W. Thomas, 7; T. J. Bethell (conductor), 8. Tenor 20 cwt. in E flat,

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

ON Friday, May 4th, the society of ringers connected with St. Oswald's, Durham, having arranged for a little outing, they met on that historical mound, one mile east of Durham, where, on October 17th, 1346, was fought the battle of Neville's Cross, from which place a pleasant walk of three miles brought them to the picturesque little village of Brancepeth. An halt was made there to inspect the Castle, which is a noble structure, being one of the oldest castellated buildings in the county, having been erected, it is said, by the Bulmer family, and by the marriage of Emma Bulmer to Geoffrey de Neville, it passed into the family of the Nevilles. In 1560 it was vested in the Crown, and sold by Charles I. in 1629, to Ralph Cole, subsequently passing by purchase into the Russell (Viscount Boyne) family, by one of whom, nearly a century ago, the greater part to the place was pulled down, and the present building erected at a cost, it is said, of over £250,000. The church, which stands in the castle grounds, is well worth a visit. It dates from the 13th century, and has many interesting portions, the chief (to the company present) being the belfry. The bells being raised, a well-struck 720 of Bob Minor was rung by the following: W. Prince, 1; W. H. Craggs, 2; J. E. Avery, 3; C. Bradford, 4; C. J. Butterworth, 5; L. Newton (conductor), 6. While ringing the above some of the local ringers turned up and then a mixed band, assisted by W. G. Newton, of Durham, rung a few Grandsire Doubles. After an interval the following band rang another 720 Plain Bob Minor: W. H. Prince, 1; Hy. Craggs, 2; C. Bradford, 3; J. E. Avery, 4; L. Newton, 5; C. J. Butterworth (conductor), 6. After the bells were ceased the local ringers brought out their handbells, and a few touches of Minor were rung on them. After leaving the church a pleasant stroll through the park was indulged in, where the visitors bid adieu to the local ringers. A stretch of about a mile through the park brought them out on the Durham road again, and after a few changes had been rung at the "Brancepeth Castle" Hotel, the journey home was again started, and after another hour's walk they all branched off for their homes, each expressing the pleasure the little outing had afforded them.

EAST BRIDGFORD CHURCH, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE. A JUBILEE CLOCK.

The village of East Bridgford brought the jubilee celebrations to a fitting conclusion on May the 3rd, by the inauguration of a new clock, which has been placed in the tower of the parish church. The village was again en fete to celebrate the completion of the work. In the afternoon a special band of ringers and friends from Nottingham rang several 120s of Grandsire and Plain Bob Doubles on the tower bells before and after the dedication service. The church was crowded, and the service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. A. A. Barker), and his curate (the Rev. J. A. Penny). A special sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Wright, of Coningsby.

An interesting feature of the new clock is the introduction of the Cambridge chimes. The church contains an excellent peal of bells, which have been utilised for the purpose. It is a pleasing addition to the ordinary striking of the hour, that the quarters and the hour will now be marked by Handel's tuneful melody.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

Notice is hereby given that the Annual General Meeting of this Association will be held at Brighton, on Whit-Monday, May 21st. The programme, which will be published next week, will include a special service at the parish church, cold luncheon and business meeting. The three towers, St. Peter's, St. Nicholas and St. Paul's, each eight bells, will be open for ringing during the day. Notice of motion should be sent at least three days prior to the above date.

GEO. F. ATTREE, Hon. Sec.

NOTICE.—It is intended by eight members of the Ancient Society of College Youths and the Norwich Diocesan Association to attempt to ring W. Harrison's 13,440 of Double Norwich Court Bob Major, at Harwich, on Whit-Monday, to start about nine o'clock.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 12, 1888.

An important sign of the times with regard to Church affairs is the formation of what are termed Church Councils, i.e. bodies selected from the congregation to assist by their advice, in connection with the clergy and churchwardens, upon questions relating to Church management and finance. If the deliberations of these bodies only lead to small benefits in such matters as management and the like, their existence has the grand effect of interesting in Church government those who would otherwise take things as they are and be content on the one hand; or on the other express their non-approval of procedure in a manner which is frequently embarrassing to those responsible for the proper carrying out of the Church's ordinances.

Upon these Church Councils ringers should certainly find a place. Great stress has recently been laid upon the vast importance of ringers performing to the full their duties as Church officers, and interesting themselves in Church management, and upon such councils the presence of ringers in deed, seems particularly appropriate. It may be objected that ringers in general are not of that calibre which the clergy would desire to assist them by their advice and suggestion. We join issue at once with such an hypothesis. Ringers out of number could be named who would immediately secure the confidence of those who selected them for the purpose, and by their talents gain the esteem of their fellows at the Council board.

We commend this idea to the notice of the clergy. Instances have been known where a difficulty to find a "proper" man for warden has arisen, when if the local society of ringers had been thought of, an eligible Church officer for the post would have been found. And in the formation of Church Councils, the clergy would do well for themselves and the future of the Church, if they take care to accept the assistance where possible of one or two of their ringers. They will find, and the Church in years to come will find also, that in the co-operation of the ringers in ecclesiastical matters they will have a veritable "tower of strength," an additional bulwark of no mean order against the coming enemy.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Devizes on Wednesday, May 30th. Divine Service, with sermon by the Rev. Dr. Burges, at St. John's, at 11 a.m. (collection for the Guild). Meeting for election of officers and other business immediately after service. Dinner at 1 p.m. at "The Bear" Hotel, price two shillings each to ringing members holding tickets, 2s. 3d. to others. The towers of St. John and St. Mary, Devizes, Bishops Cannings, and Potterne, will be open for ringing during the afternoon. Names of those intending to be present must be sent to the Secretary not later than Whit-Monday, May 21st, otherwise the allowance of three shillings per head for travelling expenses will not be granted. Church News.

Canon Knox-Little preached at the Chapel Royal, Savoy, on Thursday afternoon, at four o'clock, for the Church Penitentiary Association.

A splendid brass eagle lectern has been presented to Duston Church by a lady whose name has not been mentioned.

A tablet has been placed in the central porch of St. Nicholas', Warwick, containing the names of the rectors and vicars of the parish since the year 1274.

It is proposed to place in Tewkesbury Abbey Church a marble medallion of Mrs. Craik, the author of John Halifax, the scene of which is laid in that town.

By the kind permission of the Duke of Westminster, the annual meeting of the Curates' Augmentation Fund will be held at Grosvenor House on June 6th. Lord Cranbrook will preside.

On Saturday, May 5th, the Bishop of Salisbury presided at a meeting of the Barnes Memorial Committee, which was held at the County Museum, Dorchester, for the purpose of conferring with the parishioners as to the place of the statue. At a recent meeting the parishioners refused to allow its erection in the St. Peter's churchyard as being a desecration of the ground. The Bishop expressed himself in favour of the churchyard site, but the parishioners unanimously decided not to reopen the question. It is expected the statue will now be placed in the principal street in front of the museum.

Another application made to the London Consistory Court was that of the vestry of St. John's, Isle of Dogs, for a faculty authorising the carrying out of certain alterations, including the raising of the floor of the church, the enlargement of the chancel, the erection of gates separating the nave from the chancel, and the erection of a reredos of oak or marble. Chancellor Tristram granted an order for the carrying out of all the proposed alterations other than the reredos. The question as to the design of the reredos is to be further considered.

An oak reredos, representing the Crucifixion and the patron saints of Great Britain and Ireland designed by Mr. T. L. Moore, has been placed in St. Andrew's church, Dunmore, N.B. The nucleus of the cost was provided from the surplus of the fund raised for the erection of the memorial window to the late Countess Dowager of Dunmore, who built and endowed the church, and the balance was provided by Mr. Claud Hamilton, Dunmore Park. A beautiful altar cloth and hangings have been given by the Hon. Mrs. Claud Hamilton. The altar frontal was worked by Miss Edith Wauchope, Airth Castle, and designed by Mr. Temple L. Moore.

On Sunday, May 5th, Bishop Walsham How preached his farewell sermon at St. Andrew Undershaft, Leadenhall-street, of which he had been rector nine years, and on the following day he went to Wakefield. There was a crowded congregation at St. Andrew's to listen to the right rev. prelate's last sermon to his old parishioners, the text of which was Rev. iii. 21. At the conclusion of his discourse, the Bishop bade his parishioners farewell, observing that, if, owing to the larger work which had been assigned to him in East London, he had been less among them than he could have wished, he knew they had not been lost sight of, because his fellow-worker had been with them.

On Wednesday, April 2nd, a new oak eagle lectern was dedicated at the parish church, Stoke-upon-Trent. The Rural Dean (the Rev. Herbert C. Turner), at the commencement of the service, said it was his privilege on behalf of the clergy, formerly or at the present time in the deanery of Stoke-upon-Trent, to present it in commemoration of the consecration to the suffragan see of Shrewsbury of Sir Lovelace Tomlinson Stamer, rector of the parish, and for thirty years Rural Dean. The Bishop then dedicated the lectern according to the Form prescribed in the service for consecration of churches. Subsequently, at a meeting in the adjoining church room, the Rural Dean, on behalf of the clergy, requested the Bishop of Shrewsbury to accept a small volume containing the various diocesan offices, to be used by the Bishop in the discharge of his Episcopal duties.

On Tuesday, May 1st, the foundation stone of the new chancel of St. John's, Perry Barr, was laid by the Hon. Mrs. Calthorpe, wife of the squire of the parish. The service was at 3 p.m., and was held partly in the church, partly on the site of the chancel. The Bishop of Shrewsbury officiated, and preached a powerful sermon on church restoration, taking for his text 1 Chron. xvi. 29. The church was built in 1831-3, and is a specimen of the miserable Gothic of that period, having no chancel, high pews with doors, and a west gallery for organ, choir, and school-children. It is proposed also to reseal the church with open oak sittings, and build organ chambers and vestries, and eventually, when funds are forthcoming, to add two transepts, and take down the gallery. The entire cost will be about £2,400, towards which £1,300 has been subscribed. Holy Communion was celebrated at 8 a.m., and an evensong service was held in the Mission Church of the parish, when the sermon was preached by the Rev. T. Keble, vicar of Bisley, father of the vicar of the parish.

On Wednesday, May 2nd, a meeting of friends of the Universities' Mission to East and Central Africa, was held at the Holborn Town Hall, to welcome Bishop Smythies, who had been summoned home from Zanzibar to attend the Lambeth Conference. The Bishop, who was consecrated in December, 1883, and who left England for Africa in January, 1884, had it was stated, walked between five and six thousand miles in visiting the different stations of the Mission on the coast and in the interior. He will return to Africa in October next. In the course of the evening, Canon Scott Holland heartily congratulated the Mission and all those interested in the work in Africa, that Bishop Smythies had been preserved, and had come home in excellent health, spoke of the importance and progress of missionary work in East and Central Africa, and pointed out the means by which a true and just idea of the importance of missionary work abroad might be obtained, and of the great good to humanity which had been achieved by it. Bishop Smythies, who was received with prolonged applause, gave an interesting account of the condition of the mission work on the East Coast and on Lake Nyassa in the interior, described the three journeys which he had made on foot from the coast to the lake, when visiting the various stations, and spoke in very hopeful terms of the future. One great aim which they had in view and hoped to carry to success, was the planting of teachers among the large and important people of Magwangwara, who exercised great influence over an immense tract of country in the interior and on surrounding tribes, and whose chief had expressed the wish that missionaries might be stationed on his territory. If this scheme could be carried out, and there was hope that it would be, the effect would be immense, and the results for good very great. It was early days for him yet to speak of the converts made to Christianity by the Mission; but one potent result had been gained—namely, that the Church was now recognised by many of the tribes as a natural peace-maker, and the missionaries had often been called upon by opposing chiefs to make peace between them. Referring to the death of Bishop Parker, who, he said, like Bishop Hannington, had died a martyr to the work, he trusted that this great loss would only arouse others to follow in his path and continue his work. The right rev. prelate then acknowledged the cordial and valuable aid he had received from the Scotch Presbyterian Mission in Africa, and concluded by thanking the company for the welcome they had given him.

On Saturday the Duke of Westminster presided at a meeting which was held at his grace's town mansion in furtherance of the Church House scheme. In opening the proceedings the noble Duke said the want of a Church House had been felt for many years, and it was thought that the revival in Church matters was so considerable that it was fitting to take advantage of the Queen's Jubilee to take steps for the immediate prosecution of that great work. The Church of England was without a central office or place of meeting either for Convocation, or its numerous committees, or the many Church institutions. There was nothing, in fact, in the way of facilities for central organisation and the great Church body. It was curious to observe that Nonconformists should have set an example in this matter. The Independents and Congregationalists had been able to raise no less than £100,000, with which the Memorial Hall in Farringdon-street was built, and he understood that they contemplated further additions to that building to a very considerable amount. The Wesleyans had also got headquarters in Bishopsgate, and had in contemplation large buildings convenient for their purposes on the Thames Embankment. A site for the proposed Church House had been secured on the south side of Dean's-yard, Westminster. It was a large and valuable one, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners promised it to them on easy terms. He hoped that those who had been holding back from the movement pending a site being obtained would now come forward in support of the scheme. The funds already subscribed amounted to about £50,000. In the first instance they would only take up so much of the site as they immediately required, and it was not intended that they should build all at once because their funds would not allow them to do so, but they would build bit by bit as they came in. It was not too much, however, to look to a future not far off for a handsome building, a worthy memorial of the Jubilee of the Queen, and worthy of the great Church of England.

NOTICE OF LONG PEAL.—A band of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association hope to attempt a long peal of Stedman [Caters] at St. Mary's, Cheltenham, on Whit-Monday next, at 11.30.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Let the Church be as it should be, and all things in harmony. Let those who ring the bells ring them in such a way as if it was indeed for human beings, for immortal beings, who have come there drawn by the love of God and one another, there to worship God in common."
THE BISHOP OF LINCOLN.

I most heartily commend the speech of the reverend Bishop of Lincoln which you report last week, and from which I extract the above, to the notice of our brethren in the art. That speech is characterised—not by any "flower of rhetoric," nor by any grandiloquent style, nor by any attempt at effect; but it is evidently (if I may so term it), a spontaneous outpouring of the spirit, by one of the spiritual fathers of the Church, and it will I feel sure, lose no weight by reason of its plain outspokenness. We want more of this plain speaking, and the North Lincolnshire Association is to be congratulated on being the cause of our being benefitted by the reverend prelate's valuable—if homely—words.

* * * * *

It is, happily, seldom that you have to record so many losses to the Exercise by death in one week as you had last Saturday. This circumstance, however, should cause us to constantly keep in mind the fact that year by year we are losing old familiar faces; that year by year our good and true helpers are called one by one to their rest. That should make us all the more earnest in our endeavours to raise up others that the work may go on. We shall all of us in our Master's good time have to "join the great majority," and we should therefore see to it that we leave some one able to take our places when we are gone.

* * * * *

I cannot help giving a word of praise to the young Parkers of Harborne, on their 120 of Grandsire Doubles on handbells. A peal of Doubles is doubtless not much to look at on paper, but when we see that one of the three was only eight years old, and the conductor but twelve, it will at once appear a very creditable performance on the part of the lads. Let us hope that as they grow older, they will become more proficient in the science, and be an ornament to their profession.

My remarks last week respecting Mr. W. Sottanstill have resulted in my being furnished by a friend in Yorkshire with a story which seems to me so strange that I am constrained to give you the benefit of it. I might add parenthetically that did I not consider my information to have come from a trustworthy source, I would not thus publish it. This story is to the effect that Mr. Sottanstill's literary labours were not confined to his "Elements of Campanalogia," Part 2, but that he also spent a very considerable time in the compilation of two other books which were intended to form parts 1 and 3 of the series. Part 1 was confined to six-bell methods, and Part 3 to Caters, Royal, Cinques, and Maximus. The cost of publishing these two volumes was guaranteed by a well-known baronet, who is now dead, and for some reason or other Mr. Sottanstill was induced to entrust his mss. to a firm of bell-founders in the Midlands (whose advertisements we very seldom see or hear of), and they undertook to see them through the press. So far all appears straight, but here comes the inexplicable portion of the story. This firm not only failed to fulfil their engagement, but have treated with silent contempt repeated applications for the return of the copy. Though this circumstance, the Exercise is deprived of two collections which—judging from the published part 2—must have been of great value. A good comprehensive collection of six-bell methods we certainly do want very much, and there can be no doubt as to the great usefulness of the collection on the higher number. But what puzzles me in the matter is—of course if I have understood it right—what can be the motive of the holders of these manuscripts in thus preventing their publication? Apart also from their usefulness, looking only at the immense amount of time which must have been spent in them by Mr. Sottanstill, it seems to me actually cruel to that gentleman personally to find such a considerable portion of his life's labours thrown to the winds. I do not think I need do more at present than thus mention this matter, and hope that those of Mr. Sottanstill's friends who are more intimate with it will explain more fully, if necessary, or correct me if I have not properly stated the case. At any rate, I think some effort should be made to get these manuscripts transferred to print, if they are still in existence.

THE PEAL OF GRANDSIRE TRIPLES AT BURTON-ON-TRENT.

As it seems a customary thing to publish a few particulars when a "first peal on handbells" is rung, I thought a few remarks would not be out of place on this occasion. Last September, J. Austin, W. J. Smith, L. Bullock, and J. Jagger, decided to learn change-ringing, two in hand. We met for practice once every week till the middle of December, but from other engagements did not meet again until the middle of February, when we started practising for the handbell competition, which is held at Derby on Easter Monday. The week before Easter, we decided that if we were successful in winning any prizes, the money should go towards buying a new set of handbells. Well, we were successful, as we won altogether £3 10s., and through the kindness of Mr. J. W. Taylor (who let us have the peal of twelve that were used for the competition at half price), we, for the first time got a peal of handbells to call our own. When at Derby, we heard that the Derby men were trying to score a peal on handbells, so we said we would try to be first, and set to work in real earnest. The first attempt was made April 17th, ringing about 900; the second attempt was made on April 21st, ringing 1442. The next try was on April 25th, coming to grief after ringing 3290 changes, in 1 hr. 49 mins. The fourth attempt, May 3rd, rang about 2450, or close on half-way. Not to be denied we met again on Saturday, May 5th, when "go" was called exactly at 3.25, and part after part went rolling by to the good, but when in the tenth part a slight hitch occurred, which was soon rectified, and the single called, the bells came round at two and a-half mins. past six, thus being two hours thirty-seven-and-a-half minutes in ringing the peal. The ringers wish to thank, through "THE BELL NEWS," those gentlemen who so kindly came forward to act as umpires on each occasion.

WARSLOW, STAFFORDSHIRE.

A large new clock has just been erected in the parish church here, by John Smith and Sons, Midland Clock Works, Derby. It strikes the hours, shews time upon three dials each four feet across, and is fitted with all the latest improvements so as to keep perfectly accurate time. The old clock and bells were burnt in the tower a short time ago. The same firm have also just completed a large striking clock with two 6ft. 6in. dials, upon the factory tower of Messrs. Clark, Street, near Glastonbury.

NEWBURN-ON-TYNE.

The date fixed for the inauguration of this new peal of six, is Wednesday, May 16th. Dedication service, 7.30 p.m. Change-ringers who wish to attend the opening are requested to send in their names not later than Saturday, May 12th, to the Vicar, the Rev. S. Bucknell, in order that dinner may be provided for them.

RE-OPENING OF BELLS AT MONK SOHAM, SUFFOLK.

EVENTS of importance are not of frequent occurrence in the little village of Monk Soham, and it is not surprising, therefore, that considerable interest was evinced there in the re-opening of the ring of five bells in the parish church of St. Peter on Friday, the 11th instant. The bells, like most things of this world, have been affected by years of constant use, and for some time their urgent need of repair has been apparent, and it has been one of the great wishes of the present rector, the Ven. R. H. Groome, until recently Archdeacon of Suffolk, to see them restored. It is mainly through the munificence and untiring exertions of his family that the funds required for the work have been raised. The rector's family have for very many years been intimately connected with the neighbourhood. His father held the benefices of Earl Soham and Monk Soham combined, and was a well-known man in agricultural matters in connection with the county, being one of the foremost members of the Suffolk Association at the time of its formation. He left the living of Earl Soham to his eldest son, who has since died, and that of Monk Soham to his son Robert, who has held it for forty-three years, and has gained a reputation which many may envy. As Archdeacon of Suffolk he earned wide-spread popularity by his unassuming manners and genuine desire to forward every good work in connection with the Church. The clergy still speak of him with affectionate regard as "the Archdeacon," and he has endeared himself to all his parishioners.

The bells are old and interesting. The key is E flat, and the weight of the tenor is 14 cwt. The restoration they have undergone is complete. A new stout English oak frame has been fixed, and the bells have all been turned on new stocks, and fitted with new cast-iron bed-plates and carriages. The frame, which is diagonally braced, is planed and varnished, and the stocks and ironwork have all been painted with three coats in oil. Everything is now in first-class condition, and the bells are now in working order for some time to come.

The restoration of the bells was completed some time ago, but wishing that all the villagers might able to be present at the opening ceremony, the rector put it off until the long-desired warm weather arrived. The day appointed was as lovely a spring day as could be wished for, and the majority of the parishioners appeared to be holiday-making in honour of the event. In the morning a short service was held in the church, and afterwards the opening touch was rung by Rev. N. Bolingbroke (Hon. Sec. of the Norwich Diocesan Association), 1; G. Day (Eye), 2; E. Collins (Worlingworth), 3; F. Day (Eye), 4; D. Collins (Worlingworth), 5. At 1.30 about forty sat down to a substantial luncheon in a marquee at the back of the "White Elm" inn, the venerable rector presiding, supported on the right by the Rev. N. Bolingbroke, and on the left by the Rev. Dr. Raven. After luncheon the chairman welcomed the friends from a distance as well as the neighbours, and said although he had never been a ringer himself he had always taken a great interest in bells, and was glad to see bell-ringing taking a higher position in the future, for it was part of the services of the church and ringers should always look upon it as such. He proposed "The health of Mr. Day," who though he took the work of restoration as a tradesman, had carried it out with the interest of a friend.

Mr. DAY having responded,

The Rev. Dr. RAVEN proposed "The Health of the Chairman," which was enthusiastically drunk.

The CHAIRMAN, in returning thanks, said it had been one of the wishes of his heart that the bells should be restored, and he was glad that he had been spared to see the work carried out. He proposed "The health of the Rev. N. Bolingbroke."

This toast having been drunk and responded to, the company adjourned.

For the afternoon service at 3.30, the church was crowded, many coming from considerable distances to be present. All the principal inhabitants of the neighbourhood were present, as well as the majority of the villagers, and a large number of clergy occupied seats in the body of the church. These included—the Rev. Nathaniel Bolingbroke, vicar of St. Etheldreda, Norwich, and Secretary of the Norwich Diocesan Association; the Rev. F. French, Worlingworth; the Rev. R. G. Gorton, Baddingham; the Rev. C. A. Sinclair, Monewden;

the Rev. H. S. Marriott, Wilby; the Rev. W. T. Pratt, Bedford; the Rev. Holmes Pilkington, Framlingham; the Rev. E. H. Frere, Horham; the Rev. W. W. Tyler, Tannington; the Rev. W. J. Benson, Ashfield; the Rev. S. B. Reynolds, Thorndon; the Rev. R. Abbay, Earl Soham; the Rev. — Muriell, Aspall; the Rev. T. S. Shaw, Beddingfield, &c. Every arrangement for the convenience of the public was made by the churchwardens (Mr. J. E. Hammond and Mr. A. Wright), the former of whom has held that important position for 32 years. The Rector conducted the greater part of the service. As is natural in a man nearly 70 years of age, he is getting very feeble now, and the failure of his eyesight, which caused him to resign his position as Archdeacon, is a great trouble to him, but as a natural and impressive reader of prayers, he is still without a superior in the county. The Rev. Dr. Raven, vicar of Fressingfield, read the first lesson, the Rev. Canon Tate, Vicar of Stradbroke, reading the second, and the Rev. H. L. Todd, rector of Occold, assisting in the services. Miss Groome usually presides at the organ, but upon this occasion her place was taken by Mr. Todd, a son of the Rector of Occold. The Rev. Dr. Raven, taking for his text, 1st Cor. xiv. 7, "And even things without life giving sound, whether pipe or harp, except they give a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped," preached an interesting sermon, in the course of which he traced the history of bells from the earliest times. Hymns were sung and the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis were chanted during the service, and after it was over the bells were rung merrily for a considerable time.

THE ROYAL DOCKYARD SOCIETY, DEVONPORT.

On Wednesday, May 9th, eight members of this Society paid a visit to St. Budeaux, a little village three or four miles from Devonport, where there is a pretty peal of bells, recently rehung and made into six by the addition of two new trebles. The band, who journeyed there on shanks' ponies, agreed to meet at the tower at 8 p.m. Just before that time a few of the band was outside the village taking a lesson in natural history, and were agreeably surprised to hear the bells raised in peal by the local company. Making haste to gain the tower, and finding all had arrived, they rung eight 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles, the striking being excellent throughout. A good effect was produced in the minds of the local society, these gentlemen taking very kindly towards change-ringing. After a friendly glass and a few songs with the local band, the party had a capital walk home. Harmony was the order of the day, Mr. Pyne, the foreman ringer, playing the banjo all the way. Arriving home just after 11, all agreed that a very pleasant evening had been spent. On Saturday, April 28th, for practice, at the Dockyard Chapel, this band rang two touches of Grandsire Triples, consisting of 420 and 350 changes. The ringers who took part in the above and stood interchangeably, were: W. Pyne, J. Steed, G. Broderick, E. Cross, W. Condy, W. H. Marsh (conductor), A. Richards, E. Hendy, P. Manning.

ST. OLAVE'S, SOUTHWARK, LONDON.

In the reign of Edward VI. in the inventory of church goods then made, we find at St. Olave's this entry: "Item fyve greate belles hanginge in the steeple." Between this and 1719 the peal was augmented to six. In 1719 these six bells were recast and made eight (probably by Abraham Rudhall) and so continued until the year 1843. On the 19th of August in that year a dreadful fire occurred, which totally destroyed the church and bells. The church was rebuilt in the following year in the most gorgeous and magnificent style, and was opened on Nov. 19th, 1844. Unfortunately it was not considered necessary to replace the peal of eight bells, but their place was supplied by hanging three new bells and an old sanctus bell, which had been saved from the fire. Each of the new bells is inscribed "C. & G. Mears, founders, London, 1844." The largest weighs about 18 cwt. The old sanctus bell is inscribed, "Mr. Nicholas Flower, Churchwarden, 1719."

J. R. JERRAM.

"CAMPANOLOGOMANIA."

This formidable word (?) has recently been used by a correspondent of a paper published in a suburb of the metropolis, on "the other side of the water." The writer signs himself at the end of his grammatical epistle "Musicus." Our readers will be able by the following extracts to form an opinion of the poetical fire which Mr. "Musicus" possesses. He begins in this way:—

I dare say that you will, with your customary diligence in search of items of news, chronicle the fact that some company or other of "College Youths" on Friday last ascended the tower of St. Peter's church and rang in so many hours and so many minutes some bell-ringer's—I beg pardon; I suppose to be strictly correct I must say some eminent campanologist's—arrangement of Triple Bob Majors or Grandsire Triples or some other jargon of that kind. You will doubtless, I dare say, record the interesting fact that the illustrious men who rang the peal were so-and-so, and that the peal was conducted by so and so.

And more to the same effect. Then he appears anxious to let the readers of the paper imagine that he "knows something" about what he presumes to write upon. With naive simplicity he goes on:—

I have no sympathy with this change-ringing. I think of the two I would prefer the Scotch bagpipes, though it is said the devil himself invented them. I believe I am not singular in the notion that change-ringing is a great mistake. What would be said of any musician if he sat down to a piano and played the changes on eight notes as these bells are rung in a Triple Bob Major? There is no music in this mechanical variation of figures. If the ringers would ring for about half-an-hour all the musical combinations they can think of, there would be no objection, and we might even go so far as to contribute to the funds when the hat is passed round; but to ask for money to support the present nuisance is simply adding insult to injury. Let us look at the figures of a few changes and see what a dreadful jumble it is. There are eight bells, and I believe they begin the peal in arithmetical sequence thus, 12345678. When this is rung they have a change, and I suppose they ring 21345678. Then the peal goes on something in this fashion—

23456781	Or perhaps it may	75643218
34567812	be that they	65432187
45678123	begin at the end	54321876
56781234	and make their	43218765
67812345	way to the	32187654
78123456	front, thus—	21876543
81234567		18765432

Possibly I may be all in the wrong, and I may be told that I know nothing about Grandsire Triples or Bob Majors. I have no wish to know more than I know now, for I know that the bells are a nuisance when they only serve to bring out the perspiration of the men who indulge in this kind of exercise. I will make another guess, however, if only to show the dreadful absurdity of the changes when changing only adds to the dreadful jumble of noise. Perhaps the changes are arranged thus:—

13254768		86427531
27612681	probably by	42753186
51838455	some such	27531864
44343123	interesting	75318642
72567377	combination	53186427
68785812	as this:	31864275

If so, what greater nuisance can be conceived than having to endure three hours and forty minutes of such monotonous "variety." Now if these misguided "youths" would learn to play pretty tunes on the bells, what nice people we should call them! But doubtless they think if they played out of time or out of tune we should be able to detect them, whereas in these so-called Bob Majors no one can tell, and no one cares, whether they ring precisely correct or not, since it makes no difference to the general clang.

Clever man, this Mr. "Musicus." We almost regret we have not the honour of his acquaintance. What do the "misguided youths" think of themselves after this stricture upon them? Will they feel abashed, and in future ashamed to walk only through back slums when they again visit the church tower, to escape the grimaces of the inhabitants? Perhaps Mr. "Musicus" would like to be a witness of their discomfiture in this manner.

We would recommend him to put in an appearance at the belfry one evening to see the marked effect this letter has upon these "misguided youths." He would gain that sort of experience which is said to make foolish people wiser than before. In the next extract "Musicus" attempts to be funny. He says:—

I am told these bells were given to the church by an estimable old printer named Wright. I think in this matter he was very wrong. He lives somewhere away out of the world on Duppas hill, where he cannot hear the bells himself. If he lived where I do, and could not get away from the noise, I am sure he would have been the first to regret his gift. If he had given us something else worth the money, we should have blessed him. He might have bought us many other things of use, a new parson-age, for instance; but I am afraid our gratitude for the bells is very much modified when Triple Bob Majors shew how mad these ringers are, and how mad they try to make us. Do, Mr. Editor, sympathise with the dwellers in this unhappy bell-ridden parish by inserting this letter.

This bell-ridden parish has, we believe, one peal of eight and one of six. We leave our friend "Musicus" now. The Editor of the paper containing this effusion appears to be careful in stating in bolder type than usual that "it should be distinctly understood that he does not necessarily identify himself with any of his correspondents' opinions," and also adds in a manner which we can well understand that "this letter was crowded out last week." He will no doubt consult the tastes and wishes of his readers by "crowding out" Musicus altogether in the future, unless he writes upon some subject which he understands.

THE ANNIVERSARY AT BRAUGHING, HERTS.

THE ANNUAL RINGING FESTIVAL was observed here on Friday, May 11th, the usual day, May 10th, being Holy Thursday. The tenth of May has been for 108 years the Annual Festival in commemoration of the long peal, 12,240 of Bob Major, rung here in 1779, and a good day's ringing is always looked forward to, as it is generally agreed among ringers that the Braughing bells are the finest peal of eight in the county, tenor 19 cwt. in F sharp. L. Proctor, Esq., having arrived with his band from Benington, they were joined by the Rev. F. E. Robinson (Drayton, Berks), Mr. H. Baker (Hertford), and Messrs. Haworth and Chapman (London), Mr. Rochester (Sawbridgeworth), and many others.

Ringings commenced about eleven o'clock with a 504 Stedman Triples, followed by 672 Cambridge Surprise, 448 Superlative, 336 Double Norwich, and several other touches, in all amounting to nearly 3000 changes. The dinner as usual took place at the "Bell Inn," at two o'clock, at which the Rev. P. G. Ward presided, the vice-chair being occupied by the Rev. F. E. Robinson. In the evening the local brass band played several selections from popular airs, under the conductorship of Mr. James Budd, huntsman of the Puckeridge (Herts) hounds, and altogether it was a most successful meeting.

THE HEREFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.—BRIDGNORTH BRANCH.

ON Saturday afternoon, May 12th, eight members of the above Guild visited the secluded and pretty little church of St. Gregory, Morville, a scattered village three miles and a half from Bridgnorth. The church stands in a few fields and meadow lands, spreading out almost level from the base of some neighbouring hills, and in close proximity to Morville Hall, the residence of the Warren family. It consists of nave, north and south aisles, chancel, south porch, and a square battlemented western tower, the lower compartment of which is used both as a vestry and ringing room, and is well fitted. The bells are a peal of six, tenor about 11 cwt., and not in the best of going conditions: the ropes new. However, a series of six-scores of Grandsire Doubles was rung by permission of the Vicar, the Rev. H. J. Ward, with the attendance of the sexton, Mr. J. Wall. Influence was brought to bear with the hope that Morville belfry would come into union with the Guild, but owing to the distance apart the local men reside, it seems improbable at present. Many items of interest are connected with this building—a set of four oak panels with carved figures are fixed over the nave arches—there is an oaken studded chest, and a circular Norman font grotesquely carved. Amongst various records of charities and bequests fixed over the tower door, is one carved on stone, reading thus:—

"Thomas Burt: Citizen and Pewter of London: gave in his life time, five pounds, and at his decease six pounds a yeare: for ever the one half towards the maintenance of a preacher: and the other half to the poore of this parish of Morville, 1627."

Since the writer was there in 1883, the high-back pewing has been removed, and the church seated throughout in English oak, with carved tracery ends, the floor re-constructed, and a new organ chamber built, and the whole was opened formally at an impressive service on the occasion of the Harvest Festival, October 7th, 1886. The seating was executed by Messrs. Smith Brothers, of Broseley, the chamber by Messrs. Bate and Co., of Bridgnorth.

Over a south door in the chancel appears this date and initial: "W A. I 1683."

In the churchyard is erected a headstone to the grave of John Charlton, 1843, as the verse appended is rather unusual—it is here given.

"Of this world's pleasures I have had my share,
And few are the sorrows I was doomed to bear.
How oft have I enjoyed the noble chase of hounds and foxes
Striving for the race;
But hark! the knell of death calls me away,
So sportsmen all farewell, I must obey."

After an hour's rest at the Acton Arms, the visitors returned to Bridgnorth, the walk being enlivened by several military evolutions and formations, the party being mostly volunteers, namely, J. E. Hall, V. Coates, W. Criddeford, T. H. Overton, J. Overton (conductor), W. Rickhuss, W. H. Fussell, and J. Jones.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

Notice is hereby given that the Annual General Meeting of this Association will be held at Brighton, on Whit-Monday, May 21st. The programme, will include a special service at the parish church, cold luncheon and business meeting. The three towers, St. Peter's, St. Nicholas and St. Paul's, each eight bells, will be open for ringing during the day.

GEO. F. ATTREE, Hon. Sec.

ENTERTAINMENT.—At Lammas Hall, Bridge Road West, Old Battersea, Surrey, on Monday, May 28, 1888, a miscellaneous Entertainment will take place. To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—I see in "THE BELL NEWS" of May 12th, a peal of Bob Major, said to be the composition of Mr. C. W. Clarke, of Bedford. Now I should like to refer him to a back number of "THE BELL NEWS" of October 22nd, 1887, where he will find a peal of Albion Treble Bob by me, where he uses the same calling in his first half peal, and the same in the last half with the exception of which he omits the wrong in the 4th course and calls a wrong at the 5th and then adds an extra bob at home, so making the peal 5040. I have this week forwarded a peal of Bob Major, to the paper, where I use the same calling as I do in the Albion Treble Bob. Hoping Mr. C. W. Clarke will excuse me pointing this out to him.

Cemetery Lodge, Bishops Stortford.

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—Having discovered an interesting kind of four-part peal, with eighty-eight bobs and two ten-part singles, I was comparing it with Mr. Penning's—the last given in Grandsire with ninety bobs and two ten-part singles, when I discovered that the singles are not a pair. This peal, and the fact of the foundation appearing to contain ninety-two bobs is contrary to the laws for the whole peal of Grandsire Triples. Now as the peal must contain 7 5 2 6 3 4 and 2 5 7 3 6 4, it can be seen that the hand-stroke of the singles are false. I am rather surprised that this should have escaped the keenness of our late friend Mr. Snowdon, also Mr. Davies; it is unfortunate too, especially as the peal has been rung, but perhaps I am mistaken. I sincerely hope so.

Farnham Royal, Slough.

J. J. PARKER.

SEASONABLE ADVICE.

SIR,—In the course of my business I have to visit many churches, and it has struck me that latterly the very dangerous practice becoming common of leaving bells "on set" from one ringing time to another, presumably to save the trouble of raising. Many accidents have occurred from this cause, and another serious one is recorded by you last week. It is to be hoped that warning will be taken, and bells always dropped after ringing, especially when the ropes are in unlocked rooms.

F.S.

THE DOOM OF THE CANAANITES.—If any 'race were ever shut out from hope, reprobate in the sternest sense of that dread world, it was the race of Canaan. In the very act of promising that God should be the God of Shem, and admitting Japheth to share his blessedness, and while passing over with solemn, yet not desperate, silence the remaining progeny of Ham, God's inspired servant hurled at Canaan this tremendous doom. And it came home. No idolatries were so immoral as theirs, nor so cruel. Their land was smitten by Joshua with the sword of God, and the taint of sin had penetrated so far into their system that not even their little children should be preserved alive. All must perish. The Canaanites are branded in Scripture as the very types of the abandoned and God-forsaken. If any human family was ever beyond hope, certainly it was this family.—From "The Quiver" for May.

THE JEWS' WAILING-PLACE.—Before quitting the walls of the temple we must refer to one spot familiar to every one. This spot is the Jews' Wailing-place, under the western wall of the Haram, their only heritage in their own city. It is a little narrow court, close by the miserable hovels of the Moghrebins, or Moslems, from the north-west of Africa. But in this court rises the celebrated wall, fifty-two yards long and fifty-six in height of massive stones—one being sixteen feet and one thirteen in length—all that is left to the Jews of their marvellous Temple. It is one of the most affecting sights in that city of strange memories to see the "ancient people" standing there, psalter in hand, wailing out words which have a singular significance in that place. The place is sacred with the tears of many generations, for even so far back as the time of Jerome we find him making an affecting allusion to the mourners who, in his day, paid the Roman soldiers for allowing them to go and weep over the ruins of their Temple. And many a time since then have those old walls echoed back this passionate cry: "Zion is a wilderness, Jerusalem a desolation. Our holy and our beautiful house where our fathers praised Thee is burned up with fire, and all our pleasant things are laid waste! O God, the heathen are come into Thine inheritance, Thy Holy Temple have they defiled; they have laid Jerusalem on heaps, How long, Lord? Wilt Thou be angry for ever?"—From "Cities of the World" for May.

BEWDLEY, WORCESTERSHIRE.

"Whene'er the sweet church bell,
Peals over hill and dale,
May Jesus Christ be praised."

One of the prettiest hollows along the hilly banks of the river Severn is Bewdley; while asking you to reproduce in "THE BELL NEWS" many interesting paragraphs from an able history of the town by Burton—I must inform you that our best thanks are due to the Rev. Philip A. Pughe, for the loan thereof. The work is of considerable value, and was produced for charitable purpose by the author—who was a resident of Bewdley—after considerable trouble and research, and dedicated to the Lord of the Manor, W. N. Marcy, Esq., in the year 1883.

"The earliest mention of the modern Bewdley occurs under its old Saxon name of Wribbenhall—a name still retained by the adjacent village on the eastern side of the Severn. In the time of William the Conqueror both formed part of the great manor of Kidderminster. We read in Domesday Book (1085):—'King William holds in demesne Chideminstre, with sixteen berewicks, or hamlets; Wenvertun, Trinpelei, Worcote, Frenesse (Franche), and another Frenesse, Bristitune, Harburgelei (Haberley), Fastochesfelde, Gurbahale, Ribeford, and another Ribeford, Sudtone, Aldmtone, Metune (Mitton), Tuelesberge, Sudwale. In these lands together with the manor are twenty hides (about 240 acres), the manor waste.' The name Gurbahale here mentioned is no doubt the Norman way of spelling Wribbenhall, for having no letter w, the Normans expressed the sound by 'Gu' e.g., Gulielmus for Willelmus, Gualterus for Walterus, Guarrena for Warrena. By substituting W for 'Gu' we get Wrbehale; and we find it thus written in the annals of the Church of Worcester:—'In the year 1215 Hugh de Mortimer did fealty for Wrbehale in the Chapter-house at Worcester of twenty shillings a year, which his predecessors had granted to the said church to be received by the hands of certain persons; who, because they would not render their rent, being ejected, both for a valuable consideration and by force, he himself took the said land, and was to render the rent.' The Registry of the Priory of St. Mary of Worcester (1240), informs us how Wribbenhall first came into the possession of the Church, and reads thus:—'Concerning Wrubenhale. A certain man, Thurstin by name, gave us Wrubenhale, Ralph de Mortimer senior conceding and confirming, as his charter beareth witness. In after times Roger de Mortimer took it for a fief. Whence he swore fealty to the Prior and Convent, and gave a relief [payment to the lord by a feudal tenant on entering his fief], and bound his heirs, as his charter witnesseth, to do fealty to the Prior and Convent, and to give a relief according to circumstances, and to pay every year at the feast of St. Martin twenty hillings.'

"The charter of Thurstin or Turstin here mentioned would seem to be still in existence, and is thus described in Archæologia, vol. xxxi., app., page 475:—'18 April, 1844, Evelyn Philip Shirley, Esq., M.P. for Monaghan Co., exhibited a charter of the 12th cent. [? 11th] from the muniments of the Lechmere family. It is a grant of land in Wribbenhall made by Turstinus to the monks of a monastery not specified. The peculiarities of this charter consist, first in its being signed with a cross by each of the persons who made and confirmed the grant; and secondly in the seal being suspended by a thin label, not as usual from the foot of it. It is believed that this is the only instance hitherto known of such a singular mode of attaching the seal being practised in England; although something similar exists in the collection of charters in the Hotel de Soubise at Paris.'

"This same Turstin, who figures here as a benefactor to the monks of Worcester, was also Lord of Ribbesford; but, as will be seen later on, his character is there drawn by the monks in very different colours.

"In the year 1148, Simon, Bishop of Worcester, in a very solemn manner confirmed to the Prior and monks of Worcester all their lands and possessions, among which is named Wribenhale. The manor belonged to the office of Cellarer in the Monastery, and was allotted with other places for the particular purpose of buying wood.

"Here the owners of the manor, the persons who held it of them, and the amount of rent paid, are precisely the same as those given in 1215; but the name of the place has been changed from Wrbehale to Beaulieu, or 'beautiful place.' It was seldom that Norman place-names ousted those of Saxon origin; but the loveliness of the scenery well justified the change in this instance.

"The earliest mention of the town under its present name appears to be in the Close Roll of Edward I (1304), when Margaret, wife of Edmund de Mortimer, is said to have had assigned to her for her better support certain lands in Beaulieu. Bewdley was probably a residence—at least an occasional residence—of the Mortimers about this time; for on a mutilated stone coffin lid discovered during the recent restoration of Ribbesford church, is a shield bearing their arms:—Barry of six or and az., an inescutcheon arg.; on a chief gold, gyroned of the same, two pallets of the same. On the sides are the words, 'Je vous pri' and 'Bon Henri.' Norman-French monumental inscriptions were in general use only for a short time—1290 to 1320; and it is to this period that we should assign the origin of the name Beaulieu or Bewdley. As examples of the similar etymology, we find that Beaulieu in Monmouthshire became Bewley, and Roilieu near Oxford became Rewley. In all the Inquisitiones post Mortem of the 14th century it is styled Beaulieu or Bealeu. In the charter of Edward IV., 1472, the name is spelt Beadeley, showing that the change into its modern form was nearly completed. Leland (1506-1552), who visited the town about 1539, says, 'I gather that Beaudley is but a very new town, and that of old tyme there was but some poore hamlett, and that upon the building of a bridge there upon Severne, and resort of people unto it, and commodity of the pleasant site, men began to inhabit there; and because that the plott of it semed fayre to the lookers on, it took a French name Beaudley quasi bellus locus. I asked a merchant there of the antientnesse of the towne, and he answered mee that it was but a new towne, adding that they had liberties granted by King Edward.'

"Camden (1551-1623) gives the same derivation. 'Bewdley,' says he, 'takes its name from its most pleasant situation—'

'Delicium rerum Bellus Locus undique floret
Fronde coronatus Virianæ tempora sylvæ.'

Which Bishop Gibson translates thus—

'Fair seated Bewdley, a delightful town,
Which Wyre's tall oaks with shady branches crown.'

"Dr. Stukely in a letter dated from Bewdley, September 17th, 1712, says, 'Were I to choose a country residence for health and pleasure, it would be undoubtedly on the west side of the island, not far from this river (Severn), and where it is most distant from the sea.' (Itin. i., page 71).

"We have seen that in the time of the Conqueror, Bewdley (or Wribbenhall), was given by Turstin, a vassal of Ralph de Mortimer, to the Priory of Worcester. In 1215 the tenant of the monastery was ejected, but allowed compensation; and then the Mortimers themselves resumed possession, subject to a yearly rental of twenty shillings. After 1388, no mention of Bewdley is made in connection with the monastery, and the manor descended through the Mortimers to our own Queen Victoria.

"Roger Mortimer (III.), created Earl of March married Joan, daughter and heiress of Sir Peter de Geneville, and by this marriage the whole inheritance of Geneville and half the lands of Lacy came to the Mortimers. This was the notorious Roger Mortimer, the murderer of Edward II.; he was executed in 1330, and his estates were forfeited. Roger Mortimer (IV.), his grandson, regained the patrimony and the Earldom of March. In 6 Edward III., this Roger gave to John Chamberlain, grandfather of John de la More, custody of all his cattle in his manors of Clebury and Beaulieu, and also in the Chace of Wyre. Dying in Burgundy in 1360, he was succeeded by Edmund Mortimer (III.), Earl of March and Ulster, through whose marriage with Philippa, daughter of Lionel, Duke of Clarence, their descendants ultimately succeeded to the Crown." W. H. F.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX-BELL RINGERS.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of this Association will be held at St. Andrew's, Leyland, on Whit-Saturday, May 26th. The bells will be open for ringing from one o'clock. At 5 o'clock there will be a tea provided at the "Eagle and Child" inn, close to the church, the general meeting to take place shortly after in the Grammar School.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 19, 1888.

MONDAY in next week will be an important day for ringers. Not only are there several extraordinary things to be attempted in the way of peal-ringing, but there will be held, by various influential bodies, meetings for the despatch of business, which in many cases it is most desirable to transact without delay. These business meetings would seem to be growing in importance year by year, therefore the punctual attendance of all ringers, at any rate those who interest themselves in the work of their Guild or Association, cannot be too strongly urged. It would be well in fact if more would think it their duty to attend; if less of that indifference or callousness were exhibited in the business concerns of the bodies above mentioned by many of their members. This want of interest has too often led to the complete wreck of formations which would have proved to the Exercise valuable aids to its progress and extension. The efforts of the various honorary secretaries to interest their members in the management of affairs are most commendable, and they involve no small amount of trouble, and take up a quantity of valuable time. There are the circulars to prepare for announcing the meetings; the delivery of them over a wide area, care being exercised that such announcements shall be made public through our columns; the selection of a proper place for the meeting; and negotiations with the railway authorities for cheap fares. All these matters are faithfully carried out as well as they can be, and a recognition of such labours ought to be shown by a good attendance.

KEIGHLEY, YORKSHIRE.

On Saturday, May 12th, eight members of the Yorkshire Association attempted a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major (5088) at the Keighley parish church, but unfortunately after ringing 1 hr. and 45 mins. one of the company (Mr. Hardcastle) found himself unable to go on longer, owing to the bad running of the bell. The ringers were: J. Angus, 1; H. Raistrick, 2; J. Broadley, 3; T. Pollitt, 4; Wm. Smith, 5; J. H. Hardcastle (conductor), 6; Midgley Moore, 7; W. Gill, 8. Afterwards the ringers were kindly entertained to tea by Mr. John Normington churchwarden, at his house, where courses were rung on handbells, and a pleasant evening spent by all. The visitors wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" to thank Mr. Normington for his generous hospitality, which was much appreciated.

Church News.

The Bishop of St. Davids has left Abergwili Palace for London, where his address until the beginning of August will be 33 Onslow Square, S.W.

The announcement that the Hon. and Rev. E. V. R. Powys had been appointed rector of Warrington, is premature, as the offer made to him by Lord Lilford has been declined.

The Bishop of Adelaide will not preach at St. Paul's on the afternoon of Trinity Sunday, but will be preaching in Bradford and the neighbourhood on that day.

The Rev. F. J. Jayne, vicar of Leeds, will preach the sermon at the consecration in York Minster of Canon Pulleine as Bishop of Penrith on Tuesday. This will be the first consecration of a Bishop-Suffragan in the Northern Province.

In answer to the appeal made by Canon Carter, the Rev. F. T. Wethered has been rendered quite secure from all pecuniary loss in defending the action brought against him last December, in the Queen's Bench, in connection with the law of marriage.

The congregation of All Saints', Margaret-street, have recently taken over the St. Stephen's Mission Hall, White Lion-street, Clerkenwell, and have opened a subscription for the purpose of placing a large church upon the site. Captain Penton M.P., has promised £500 towards the work.

Selwyn College, Cambridge, will be used part of August and September for a course of residence and instruction for licensed readers. The Principal will be Canon Whitaker, Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Wakefield. Mr. E. A. Ford, 2, Eldon-road, Hampstead, is Hon. Secretary and Treasurer to the London Diocesan Readers' Training Committee.

The anonymous donor of £15,000 towards the new parish at Portsea, has written to the vicar, Canon Jacob, offering £5000 more on condition that a similar sum be raised by ordinary subscriptions or special gifts. In all probability the new edifice will be completed and ready for consecration by June in next year, the total cost being £42,000.

The Bishop of London has appointed the following to the chaplaincy of the church at Grindelwald:—For the month of June, the Rev. Roland Bayne, M.A., senior curate of St. Alphege, Greenwich; July, the Rev. Arthur T. W. Shadwell, M.A., rector of Little Ilford, Essex; August, the Rev. Charles Evans, M.A. rector of Solihull, Birmingham, Hon. Canon of Worcester; September, the Rev. G. W. Lowe, M.A., Lecturer of Boston, Lincoln.

A successful twelve days' Mission has been held at Polesworth, Warwickshire, a populous but scattered mining district. The Missioners were for St. Edith's, the Rev. F. S. Thornton, vicar of St. Sepulchre's, Northampton, and for St. Leonard's, Dordon, the Rev. A. J. Nutter, rector of Wootton. The features of the Mission was the daily evening Mission service conducted by Mr. Thornton, where increasingly large congregations gathered to listen to his exhortations. At the concluding celebration, the idea of the unity of the parish was preserved, and the people from Dordon came down to the mother church for the last service. The communicants from Dordon, headed by the Missioner and Church Army Captain, arrived singing hymns.

On Wednesday, May 9th, the Archbishop of Canterbury re-opened the church of St. Michael and All Angels, Marden. His Grace celebrated at eight and eleven, and an overflowing congregation assisted at the re-dedication service. The village choir, surpliced, led the procession from the new vestry erected at the south side of the tower by Mr. F. S. W. Cornwallis, of Linton Park. Between forty and fifty clergymen followed, and at last came the Bishop of Dover, and the Archbishop preceded by his chaplain bearing the crosier, the vicar's youngest son, Master W. Carr, acting as train-bearer. The processional hymn, "When the Architect Almighty," was sung with great steadiness. Tallis's Matins and Litany were also excellently rendered, the Rev. E. D. Cree saying the priest's part, and the Archbishop the special prayers. His Grace preached from Eph. iv. 8-12, and in the course of his sermon gave some very interesting particulars of the history of the Church and parish. After service a luncheon was served in an adjacent tent, at which Mr. Cornwallis presided, and after the usual toasts, the Archbishop congratulated the parishioners on the picturesque interior of their church. The unsightly galleries and pews have been replaced by open seats; and among the special gifts were an oak pulpit carved by the donor, Miss Deedes, the daughter of a former vicar, and a brass lectern designed and executed by Miss Evelyn Carr, daughter of the present incumbent. Both pulpit and lectern are excellent specimens of ladies' handiwork in an unusual department.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Devizes on Wednesday, May 30th. Divine Service, with sermon by the Rev. Dr. Burges, at St. John's, at 11 a.m. (collection for the Guild). Meeting for election of officers and other business immediately after service. Dinner at 1 p.m. at "The Bear" Hotel, price two shillings each to ringing members holding tickets, 2s. 3d. to others. The towers of St. John and St. Mary, Devizes, Bishops Cannings, and Potterne, will be open for ringing during the afternoon. Names of those intending to be present must be sent to the Secretary not later than Whit-Monday, May 21st, otherwise the allowance of three shillings per head for travelling expenses will not be granted.

J. R. JERRAM, Hon. Sec.

By kind permission of the Vicar and Wardens, arrangements are being made for holding the next General Meeting at Pontefract on Saturday, June 2nd.

THE BRISTOL BISHOPRIC.

In soliciting funds towards the Bristol See, the Ven. Archdeacon Norris says in the Guardian :—

"Our Bristol Bishopric Committee solicit help towards raising the £4000 still required, before Midsummer, to meet the condition on which the anonymous offer of £10,000 depends; £4000 may seem a small sum for a city of a quarter of a million to find. But our difficulty in obtaining it well illustrates what you said last Wednesday in your article upon the Church year-book, that the fact of its having taken ten years to raise by voluntary subscription alone the half million of capital for six new bishoprics proves 'that some more expeditious method must in the near future be resorted to, unless, indeed, the Church deliberately declines to reap the fields that are already whitening unto harvest.' Anyone standing on Brandon hill, and looking over the ever-increasing suburbs of Bristol lying map-like below him, must rejoice that in 1884 the Legislature restored to Bristol the independent Bishopric of which she had been deprived so unrighteously in 1836. But the restoration cannot take effect until an endowment of some £70,000 is forthcoming. And in the last four years we have been learning how slow is the process of raising a large fund for such a purpose by unaided voluntary effort.

"The first £10,000 was promised in a few days by ten donors of £1000 each. The second £10,000 was volunteered with hardly less alacrity in sums varying from £50 to £500 in a few months. Ere much way had been made in raising the third £10,000, bad times fell upon our trade, and there was much discouragement. Thanks to the anonymous offer of £10,000 above alluded to, to be given on completion of £30,000, we have got as far as £26,000. But for the remaining £4000 we find it necessary to go further afield, and we hope we shall not plead in vain. As Bristol is the only one left incomplete of the seven additional Bishoprics sanctioned by the Legislature, we hope and trust that help may be forthcoming from some of those large-hearted Churchmen and Churchwomen who have perceived—what the popular mind is slow to perceive—how essential is the extension of the Episcopate for the vastly increased administration of our Lord's kingdom in this densely peopled land. Some gifts have already reached us from various parts of England; more will come (we are assured) when it is known that every contribution before June 24 will help us to secure this additional £10,000."

NOTICE OF PEAL.—On Whit-Monday, May 21st, a band from Birmingham will attempt a peal of Stedman Cinques at Painswick, Gloucestershire, under the conductorship of Mr. H. Bastable.

NOTICE.—Eight members of the Norwich Diocesan Association will attempt to ring T. Day's 16,608 of Oxford Treble Bob Major at Leiston on Whit-Tuesday.

FOR SALE.—A beautiful-toned set of Handbells, 24, in G.; nearly new; warranted perfect. Price £10. Company broken up cause of sale.—Apply to J. STRUTT, Richmond Road, Kingston-on-Thames.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held on Whit-Monday, May 21st, at Chelmsford. Divine Service at 12.30 in St. Mary's church, with an address by the Rev. F. E. Robinson, Vicar of Drayton, Berks, and Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. Dinner at 1.30 p.m. in the Charity School (tickets, price 1s. each to members of the Association), and business meeting immediately after dinner. The following towers will be open during the day: Chelmsford, 10 bells (except from 10 to 11 a.m. during a parochial service); Great Baddow, Galleywood and Writtle, 8 bells; Springfield and Widford, 6 bells. Arrangements are being made to start for peals at Chelmsford at 6 a.m., and at Writtle after 6 o'clock p.m. A special meeting of the Committee will be held at 10.30 a.m. in the Charity School to consider what resolution shall be submitted to the Annual Meeting respecting a suggestion that the Association should be enlarged to include the present diocese of St. Albans—i.e., Essex and Hertfordshire. If any members of the Association who care to do so will attend this meeting, and express their opinion upon the matter, it will materially assist the committee, and perhaps lessen the necessity for long discussion at the subsequent meeting.

The Great Eastern Railway announce an additional train to London, on Whit-Monday evening, leaving Chelmsford at 10.8 p.m., and calling at Brentwood and Stratford. This train may make the difference to some members of being able to stay for a peal.

T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

STOKE-ON-TRENT ARCHIDIACONAL ASSOCIATION.

At a General Meeting of the above society held in the church room at Stoke, the Rev. W. T. Smith, vicar of St. John's, Longton, was elected Clerical Secretary and Treasurer. It was decided to hold another General Meeting at the same place on June 9th, at 4.30 p.m. The Secretary was asked to endeavour meanwhile to get in the subscriptions now due, the future of the Society to be determined by the result of his appeal.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A GENERAL MEETING will be held on Whit-Monday, May 21st, at Stockton and Middlesbrough, when the bells of Stockton (six, tenor 11 cwt.), and St. Hilda's, Middlesbrough (eight, tenor 12 cwt.), will be at the disposal of the ringers. A dinner will be provided at two o'clock, at the "Half Moon," Stockton, at 1s. per head to members, 2s. 6d. to non-members.

G. J. CLARKSON, Hon. Sec.

THE HORNSEY GUILD.

Notice is hereby given that the ringing at the parish church will be as follows: May 24th and every alternate Thursday, commencing at eight o'clock in the evening, and the second Sunday in each month, commencing at 10 o'clock in the morning, and 6 o'clock and 7.30 in the evening. Visitors are invited to attend.

GEO. GRIFFIN, Master of the Guild.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The next District Meeting will be held at Epsom, by the kind permission of the Vicar, on Whit-Monday, May 21st. The tower will be open for ringing from 3 till 9 p.m. The Secretary will be happy to furnish copies of the certificate of membership to all those members whose subscriptions for the current year are paid, and who have not yet had their certificates.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

NOTICE.—It is intended by eight members of the Ancient Society of College Youths and the Norwich Diocesan Association to attempt to ring W. Harrison's 13,440 of Double Norwich Court Bob Major, at Harwich, on Whit-Monday, to start about nine o'clock.

NOTICE OF LONG PEAL.—A band of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association hope to attempt a long peal of Stedman Caters at St. Mary's, Cheltenham, on Whit-Monday next, at 11.30.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

If there's a hole in ane o' yer coats,
I reed ye tent it;
A Chiel's amang ye takkin' notes—
I' faith, he'll prent it!

Anno Domini, 1888, is progressing favourably towards becoming regarded as "the year of long peals." In addition to the already "unbeaten records" which I have previously commented upon, we have last week a 10,176 of Treble Bob Major, and besides are informed that the coming Whitsuntide is to be marked by two more attempts in this direction; a "long peal" of Stedman Caters by members of the Gloucester and Bristol Association, and a 13,340 of Double Norwich Court by the Norwich Diocesan Association, on Whit-Monday. This looks lively, and if all these attempts are successful (as we shall hope they will be) these three "long lengths" will be no inconsiderable feature in Mr. Attree's returns for this month.

Your record of sixteen peals (in addition to several attempts came to grief) last week, denote that the peal-ringing season shows no sign of being on the wane as yet. The advent of hot summer weather (should we, indeed, be blessed with such), will no doubt cause the usual temporary cessation of these performances. Then when we have consequently more time at our disposal, would it not be well for us to turn our attention to the more business-like aspect of our work, and see how we can improve our status, our organisation, and the well-being of the Exercise generally? There is yet much work for us to do in this direction. Our county Associations do not comprise as fully as they ought to do our brethren in the Exercise; let us embrace the opportunity and endeavour to get them enlisted in the ranks of progress. Too many of our members, also, do not fully realise and act up to their true position as ringers and officials of the Church. While we have time through the lull in peal-ringing work, let us strive to convince them of their duties and responsibilities. Thus we shall find work enough during the summer months, and when cold weather comes again, and we commence once more our efforts to improve ourselves in the science, we shall have the proud satisfaction of knowing that we have at least not wasted our time.

There are many other points in connection with the Exercise which are ripe for discussion and bringing to maturity. Let us then set to work, and if we are unable to communicate our ideas to each other viva voce, we can at any rate ventilate them through the columns of "THE BELL NEWS," and by that means come to a more perfect understanding with each other. There is everything to be gained and nothing to be lost through a friendly and candid interchange of ideas; I therefore shall be glad to see a good hearty discussion on the many points in connection with our work, on which there is such a divergence of opinion.

One of these points to which I allude is very fittingly brought to the front in your leading article last Saturday—that of Church Councils. There is no doubt whatever that the establishment of these councils as local governing bodies in the church is becoming more numerous, and will in time be almost universal. They are in accordance with the spirit of the age, and as such, will be found to have time working in their favour. It therefore becomes our duty as ringers to see that we maintain our legitimate position on these councils; we shall be lacking in our duty if we do not see that we are properly represented, our voice clearly heard, and our influence felt, on these bodies. It is quite within our power to do this; if we fail, the fault, I do not hesitate to say, will be in a very great measure to be laid at our own doors.

I know of many churches where ringers have been elected as churchwardens and sidesmen, but while I know of several instances in which our brethren have filled those offices with great credit to themselves and exceeding good to the Church, I do not remember one single case where discredit has been brought upon the Church or the Exercise through the failure or inability of a ringer to faithfully and worthily perform the duties of these offices.

At a church with which I am very intimately connected, they have in operation a plan which will I feel sure commend itself, and which has hitherto worked with the best results. The Church Council of the parish is composed of the Vicar, two churchwardens, and eight sidesmen. Everyone of these has his own specific duties to perform. While the Vicar attends to his strictly ministerial work, and the wardens to their administrative duties, each of the eight sidesmen has a branch of church work placed under his particular and personal supervision. One has the choir, another the ringers, another the Sunday schools, and so on. So that by this means every branch has its own distinct representative on the Council; every person and portion in connection with Church work is kept constantly in touch with each other; and thus it will not be wondered at when I say that the Church affairs of the parish are managed year by year in a manner not only amicable but satisfactory to all concerned. This is as it should be.

Our Burton friends have supplied us with a very interesting history of their first peal of Grandsire Triples on handbells. Their perseverance fully deserved the reward of success, and no doubt the peal of handbells which they have obtained through their unselfish exertions will serve in the future not merely to be a source of pleasure to those who thus gained them by their persistent endeavours, but will also be a means of spurring others on to follow their worthy example.

It is not often that we see one local Society dividing itself into two companies and ringing two peals on the same day, as was the case with our Saddleworth friends on Saturday, the 5th instant. The pages of "THE BELL NEWS" frequently afford abundant evidence of the energy of our brethren in that old town on the edge of Yorkshire and Lancashire, so that this last exploit is quite in accordance with their previous good reputation.

I could not help being amused on reading Mr. Clarkson's letter. That estimable gentleman (who appears by the way to be possessed of a remarkably vivid imagination) has evidently been trying to write something "smart," but, unfortunately for him, his manifest hot temper has totally spoiled the attempt. I was fully prepared to have argued the question fair and straight with our friends in the north, but as their representative treats the case in such a hot-headed and unreasonable fashion, I shall for the present leave it. On some future date, when the calls upon my time are less numerous than at present, it is my intention to refer to the subject of Minor methods generally (which subject has occupied my attention for many years), when I trust the question will be fairly and reasonably discussed by any who may disagree with me, or otherwise, in any opinions which I may enunciate.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.

THE ANNUAL DINNER of the Victorian society of ringers took place on Monday evening, April 2nd, at the Law Courts Hotel, William-street. About twenty-five members of the society were present, amongst them being several representatives of provincial branches. One of the chief objects of this society, which was established about four years ago, is to teach the art of bell-ringing. Most of its members learned the art in the old country, but there are not a few Australian natives in its ranks. It was intended to ring a peal with the bells of St. James's the day previous, but the arrangement was frustrated by the breaking of one of the main ropes. At the dinner the chair was taken by Mr. J. Freeman, and the vice-chair by Captain Bracken, of Ballarat. It was a harmonious, cheerful gathering. Several of the speakers expressed sanguine hopes that a peal of twelve bells would be obtained for the new Anglican cathedral in Melbourne, and intimated that the society proposed to assist in accomplishing that object.

ST. GEORGE, SOUTHWARK.

This church possesses a peal of eight bells, tenor 16 cwt., all cast by Abraham Rudhall, of Gloucester, in 1718, and inscribed "A.R., 1718." In addition the second has "Peace and good neighbourhood," the third, "Prosperity to all our benefactors," the fourth, "God preserve the Church," the fifth, "Prosperity to this place," the sixth, "Mr. William Bridger, Churchwarden," the seventh, "Abr: Rudhall, of Glovcester, Bellfounder," and the tenor, "The living I to church do call, and to the grave do summon all." There is also a call-bell, inscribed "The Revd. J. Cooksey, Rector, Wm. Hill, Ch: Warden, April 1738. Richard Phelps, T. Lester, fecit. My Voice at Proper Times I'll Raise, and Sound to my Subscriber's Praise." There are tablets in the belfry recording the following peals:—

"Westminster Youths, 5040 Grandsire Triples, in 3 hours, September 8th, 1805." "College Youths, 5040 Stedman Triples, in 2 hours 52 mins., February 5th, 1859." "On Saturday, June 29th, 1861, the Southwark Youths rang a muffled peal in memory of the late Mr. James Braidwood, Superintendent of the London Fire Brigade. Though it is now more than five-and-twenty years ago, most of us will remember the great fire in Tooley Street, on June 22nd, 1861, where Mr. Braidwood lost his life through the unexpected falling of a wall. Although it has no connection with the bells, it may be of interest to notice that in the 16th century two individuals left by will, the one £5 per annum, and the other £10 8s. per annum to the poor of this parish. The magnitude (?) of their beneficence is thus recorded on three tablets in the church:—

(1).—"Here under lyeth buried James Savadge, that late was the yeoman of the mule saddles unto our good Queen's grace. Two wyves he hath marryed while God did lend him lyfe. The first was called Elizabeth, Ann was his latter wyfe. Of whom fyve children he begat, two Sonnes and Daughters three. Who with hym and hys former wyfe, from hence decessed bee. He did depart this mortal lyfe, the eight and twentie daye of March last past wee hope to God with him to rest for aye." He died in 1588.

On tablet 2 is "Behold James Savadge graciously hath done a godly dede.

Five pounds a year for evermore, by Will he hath bequeathed, Which must out of the Angel Rents quarterly be received, By the Churchwardens of this church whom he hath put in trust, As fathers in the poors behalfe, to be upright and Just.

Which men I doubt not but our God, who sees all things shall find,

True in dispensing of the same, according to his mind, Ye poor thank Christ for Savadge still, extol God's name with praise,

That he to follow his good art in time may others raise."

On tablet No. 3 is—

"Lo! Master William Evance, he whose body lyeth here, Bequeathed hath by his Will for ever by the year, Ten pounds eight shillings to the Poore, which is a blessed paye, And must be given them in bread on every Sabbath daye, On halfe to Okedern's poore, his native soile so dear, The other moyety to the poore of this our parish here.

See now all ye that love the Poore how God did guide his wayes, Ten score and eight are served with bread, in two and fifty days, More than many would have done to have yielded any share, Praise God, ye poore, who gave to him so provident a care."

Wm. Evance died July 29th, 1590. Whether the "poore" still receive their "blessed paye" or not, I cannot say. Perhaps the Charity Commissioners have stepped in and diverted the course of this charity.

J. R. JERRAM.

CHILDE OKEFORD, DORSET.

A new peal of six bells has been cast and hung in the tower by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, in place of the old peal of three. They were dedicated on Friday, the 11th inst., by the Bishop of Salisbury, and were rung for the first time on that day by the Rev. R. S. K. Blucke and his company of Fontmell Magna. The new bells are inscribed with the names of Rev. J. G. Brymer, Rector, and Messrs. Bower and Rossiter, Churchwardens, 1888, also "To the glory of God." The cost was £530 with cost of the old bells added. This included new frame and fittings, and main bearing beams.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.
OPENING OF A NEW PEAL AT NEWBURN-ON-TYNE, NORTHUMBERLAND.

On Wednesday, May 16th, by the invitation of the Vicar (the Rev. J. Bucknell), and churchwardens of St. Michael and All Angels, the above new peal of six were successfully opened by the above Association. In the afternoon a 720 of Kent Treble Bob was rung by the following: S. Nott, 1; W. G. Routledge, 2; W. Reed, 3; F. Barron, 4; R. Wignell, 5; R. S. Story (conductor), 6. At 5 o'clock the members were entertained to dinner at the Newburn Steel Works by the kind invitation of Mr. Spencer, the donor of the bells, and at 7.30 a special service was held, which was well attended, an eloquent sermon being preached by the Ven. Hans Hamilton, Archdeacon of Northumberland. Previous to the service a 720 of Bob Minor was rung by the following: J. Laidler, 1; W. C. Bennett, 2; F. Lees, 3; G. Atkinson, 4; Z. Scott, 5; W. Story (conductor), 6. And after the service a 360 of Oxford Bob. S. Nott, 1; W. C. Bennett, 2; G. Atkinson, 3; C. L. Routledge, 4; F. Lees, 5; W. Story (conductor), 6. The bells are a fine peal, by Messrs. Taylor, tenor 16 cwt., and we hope soon a branch of the above Association may be formed. The members of the Association received a most hearty welcome from all connected with the church, for which they beg to return sincere thanks.

THE RECORD PEAL OF STEDMAN CATERS AT CHELTENHAM.

It may not be without interest to the Exercise to know that the first attempt to beat the record in Stedman was made at Cheltenham, on Whit-Monday in last year, with a peal of 12,345 changes. This unfortunately came to grief after some five-and-a-quarter hours' ringing, 8500 changes having been done. The next essay was on Boxing Day, and on that occasion some 5000 or 6000 only was rung. Since that date the Oxford Guild succeeded in ringing a peal of 12,041, on March 5th in this year, generously keeping the number below the Cheltenham peal to allow of the latter being rung to supersede theirs. It was, however decided to extend this peal into another thousand, and Mr. Henry Johnson kindly composed one of 13,054, which, as will be seen in the proper place, was rung on Monday last, at Cheltenham, at the first attempt, it being also the first peal of Caters the conductor has called. The striking throughout was good, and was listened to (besides those mentioned) by many brother ringers from the Midlands.

CRADLEY, WORCESTERSHIRE.

On Whit-Monday, May 21st, eight members of the Cradley company had their annual excursion, Malvern Link being the place selected this year. Before starting they assembled at their own church, and rang a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles (1260 changes), in 45 mins. After several delays, owing to the pressure on the railway traffic, they arrived at their destination rather late. After refreshing themselves, they proceeded up the hills, and were agreeably surprised to hear the bells of the Priory Church being raised in peal. Proceeding to the church they easily gained admission to the tower, and found the local band assembled, by whom they were heartily received. Several touches of Grandsire Triples were rung, including a 504, by the following: G. Dukes, 1; F. Jelf, 2; H. Woodhall, 3; C. Daniel, 4; E. Sprague, 5; R. G. Knowles, 6; C. Beasley, 7; J. A. Meredith, 8. Afterwards they adjourned to the "Beauchamp Arms," and partook of a friendly glass together, where all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. After a ramble about the town they gained the station, arriving home at 11 p.m.

THE ST. PETER'S SOCIETY, TIVERTON, DEVON.

On Wednesday, May 16th, in honour of the christening of the infant daughter of the Rev. T. U. Cross, an attempt was made for Holt's ten-part peal, but the sixth part-end coming up false, brought it to grief, in 1 hr. 51 mins. John Grater, jun., 1; R. Grater, jun. (conductor), 2; W. Grater, 3; E. Munday, 4; Jas. Grater, 5; John Grater, 6. James Babbage, 7; S. Hoare, 8. Several shorter touches were also rung.

BEWDLEY, WORCESTERSHIRE.

"In 1425 Richard Duke of York inherited the manor, and under his beneficent rule Bewdley made great progress. In 1441 he granted the office of Chief Ranger of his forest of Were (Wyre) in the county of Salop to Leonard Hastings. In 1446 he obtained a licence for a market every week upon the Wednesday at his manor of Beaudley, and for a fair yearly upon the festival of St. Agatha the Virgin (Feb. 5th). Thus in 1446 Bewdley rose from the condition of a village to the dignity of a market town, and in past times the holding of fairs and markets was regarded as a most valuable privilege. The want of a bridge over the Severn seems to have been then immediately felt, and next year (March 20th, 1447), we find the Bishop of Worcester (John Carpenter), in his castle of Hartilbury granting forty days' indulgence to all contributing to the building of the bridge lately founded (noviter fundati), between the ville of Wrebenall in his diocese, and stretching across the Severn to the ville of Bewdley in the diocese of Hereford.

"Tradition relates that the original town of Bewdley was situated on the Wyre Hill at some little distance from the Severn; and an ancient inn—formerly the "Shoulder of Mutton," now the "Old Town Hall,"—had, until recent times, a projecting story with pillars, under which was a covered market. Edward I. granted to Henry de Ribbesford a market on every Wednesday, and a fair on St. Margaret's Day, and this may have been the site on which it was held. It is now quite disused for this purpose, but the houses near it are very old, and the high road went past it till 1753. Such a splendid position on a fine river, and near a forest abounding in oaks, was not overlooked by the inhabitants of Bewdley, and they make use of their opportunities by applying themselves to boat building and navigation.

"In 1412 (13 Henry IV.), in a Parliament held at Westminster, the citizens of Bristowe (Bristol) and Gloucester prayed that they might pass Bewdley without hindrance. 'Certain persons of Bewdley having great boats called troves, had confederated themselves together for their singular profit, and would let no one pass through the said parts with their goods and chattels, except they would hire the said boats for the carriage of the said goods; and that on the eve of St. Michael last past, lying in wait near Bewdley with great force and arms, they had seized upon a great drag or flote going to Glos'ter (such as complainants had used to make in their parts to carry timber and fuel), and made the masters of it cut in pieces the said flote in the said river, or otherwise they would cut off their heads. They therefore pray free passage, &c.' The men of Bewdley do not appear here in a very favourable light; but they seem to have been anxious to protect their own interests, and the place must have been already of some importance.

"Under the Tudors the prosperity of Bewdley was in full tide. Henry VII. enlarged Ticknell House and made it into a Palace for Arthur, Prince of Wales, who there resided and held his Court. There, too, he was married to Catherine of Arragon. Henry VIII. granted three charters to the town, and sent his daughters the Princesses Mary and Elizabeth to reside in it. The many distinguished persons who were constantly coming to the town, attended by large retinues, would give increased employment to the inhabitants.

"Manufactures of various kinds were started in the time of the Tudors, and flourished. The chief of these were cap-making, which at one time afforded employment to probably 1000 people in Bewdley. In the Ribbesford Registers the term 'capper' appears as the trade in a large proportion of the entries. Fuller (Worthies, p. 49), says that this occupation set no less than fifteen callings to work. Machinery was forbidden, and the trade was protected by law. In 22 Edward IV., a penalty of forty shillings was inflicted upon any one setting up a fulling-mill. A mill would thicken and full more caps in a day than fourscore men, and it was considered inconvenient to turn so many labouring men to idleness. In 3 Henry VIII, it was enacted that no caps or hats ready wrought should be brought from beyond the seas. In 13 Elizabeth, caps were to be worn by all persons (some of Worship and Quality excepted), on Sabbath and Holy Days, under penalty of ten groats. This was repealed in 39 Elizabeth. By an Act of Common Council of London in 1665 all caps were to be brought to Blackwell Hall except Monmouth and Bewdley caps. The French Protestant Refugees brought into England the use of hats, and the new fashion caused the decline of the Bewdley manufactures. In the time of Charles II., Mr. Yarrington says, 'Cap-making in Bewdley is grown so low, that great part of the ancient cap-makers in that town are wholly decayed, and the rest at this present day are in a very low condition.' One of the most eminent cappers of Bewdley was Walter Palmer, who lived in High Street, in the house now belonging to Mr. Marcy. His daughter Sarah was married at Ribbesford, August 23rd, 1688, to Israel Wilkes, grandfather of the notorious John Wilkes, member for Middlesex, and editor of the North Briton. Another daughter married Dr. Jas. Douglas, Physician to Queen Caroline; and his son George married Anne Johnson in 1687, and was grandfather of Mrs. Skey, wife of Jonathan Skey. 'Walter Palmer, Bewdley, capper, 1656,' and 'Thomas Farloe, capper in Bewdley, 1670,' issued tokens which passed current in the town for halfpence. The trade appears to have afterwards revived, and to have lingered on till the beginning of the present century. The Worcestershire Guide for 1797 enumerates amongst the callings exercised here 'Dutch and sailors caps, which are much prized for their excellent napping.' Cap-making is now a thing of the past.

"In the time of Elizabeth there were twelve tan-yards in Bewdley, and tanners have been among its greatest benefactors. The neighbouring forests supply abundance of oak bark, and there is no apparent reason why this industry should have fallen off.

"In 1697 Mr. Christopher Bancks, of Wigan, started a pewter and brass foundry. This proved very successful, and was carried on by successive members of the family until about . . . years ago, when Messrs. William Stokes and John Smith became the proprietors. It still maintains a high reputation for the excellence of its brass work. It is said to be one of the oldest manufactories in England.

"Among the callings exercised in the time of Elizabeth and James I., as we learn from the Registers, were sherman, carver, glover, trowman, parchment-maker, bargemaker, wire-maker, bowyer, fletcher (maker of arrows), cutler, cooper, walker (fuller), farrier, haberdasher, tailor, collier, joiner, dyer, vintner, carpenter, cardmaker, butcher, baker, mason, fishmonger, glass carrier, staymaker, bedder, clothmaker, saddler, lathmaker, capper, tanner, shoemaker, brickmaker, weaver, fisher, aqua vitæ man, and a salt peter man.

"Weavers of sacking and bombazine used to reside on the Wyre Hill. The making of combs, drinking cups, and other articles of horn, has been carried on for more than a century, and now remains as the chief special manufacture of the town.

"The market has dwindled by degrees, and instead of thirty-two butchers holding stalls in the shambles, there are now only two. Formerly the barley market, shambles, and butter cross formed a long range of timber buildings, filling up the middle of Load Street. They were taken down in 1783.

"We have seen that as early as 1412 the men of Bewdley had become bold watermen, and owned large barges or trows. Latterly a great part of the carrying trade both by land and river came into their hands, and they had the best boats and best crews on the river. Merchants from Bristol, then the first seaport in the kingdom, established depots for their goods in Bewdley and Wribbenall. Large storehouses were built, and the wares were conveyed by long trains of pack-horses to the inland towns, and returned bringing Manchester, Sheffield, and other goods to be shipped down the Severn to the seaports and West of England. Many old houses here have extensive buildings in the rear almost disused. 'The number of malt houses,' says Nicholls, 'in several parts of the town points out another very extensive object of trade, the chief markets for which were some parts of Shropshire, towards Tenbury and Ludlow; but in later times a turnpike road having been made through those towns to Worcester, the demands from Bewdley were much lessened.' Had the Worcestershire and Staffordshire Canal joined the Severn here, as it was once intended it should, Bewdley would no doubt have become a place of great trade. But unfortunately the inhabitants petitioned against the canal, and thus inflicted a blow on their town from which it has never recovered. In 1797 seventeen regular 'trows' went weekly to and from Bristol and Bewdley, and twenty-eight to and from Bristol and Stourport. Thus the larger portion of the carrying trade and commerce was intercepted by the rising little town at the mouth of the Stour.

"Before 1801 the population can only be calculated roughly. The number of baptisms from January 1864, to January 1871, was 534, and the population 3021. The number corresponding to this for the seven years ending January 1602, was 434, and the proportional population would be 2450. At Kidderminster the baptisms for the seven years ending 1602 amounted to 392, which would betoken a population of 2200. Below is a table of population of Bewdley as given by the census returns:—

1811	3454
1821	3725
1831	3908
1851	3327

The rateable value of the borough is £8155 12s. 6d. Number of municipal electors, 501; parliamentary ditto, 1276. Death rate 15 per thousand."

THE CHAPEL.

"Leland relates that a privilege of sanctuary was formerly given to Bewdley; and this statement is confirmed by the preamble to a bill of forfeiture against Thomas Crofte passed in the Parliament of 7 Henry VII (1491). It sets forth that the said Thomas Crofte had 'commited a detestable murder within the Marches of Wales, and thereupon is fledde, and hath taken the sanctuary of Beadeley.

"The town of Bewdley was extra-parochial, until by a private Act of Parliament made in the reign of Henry VI., it was put within the parish of Ribbesford. Later still by statute 34 and 35 Henry VIII., c. 26—'An Act for certain ordinances in the King's Majesty's dominion and principalltie of Wales'—it was enacted that Bewdley should form part of Worcestershire, and be within the Hundred of Dodingtre.

"As a sanctuary town it would afford a refuge to those escaping from justice, and tradition relates that it was these fugitives who first built the chapel in the town, that they might receive the consolations of religion without going beyond their bounds.

There is also a tradition that the oldest chapel in the town was situated at the foot of the bridge nearly opposite the 'Saracen's Head.' Dr. Prattinton says that a small building in Ross's S.E. view of the bridge was reported to have been the chapel, though in his time it was used as a hearse-house. Mr. Hayley had heard when a boy, that this building was the oldest in the town; and in the Court Rolls of 1748 this locality was called St. Anne's corner. Small chapels were often built near bridges, but Leland's account shows plainly that in his time the chief chapel was situated on its present site at the top of Load Street. 'In the towne,' he says, 'is but a chapel of Ease, and that is of timber, in the heart of the towne.' The chapel of old was dedicated to St. Andrew, and it contained three chantries, each provided with its own chaplain. The chantry of St. Mary was on the south side of the chancel, and of the same length with it. Its gross annual value in 1545 was £8 3s. 4d. On the north side of the chancel were the two other chantries; one of St. Anne, valued at £9 5s. 4d., founded by John Washbourn, and the other of Holy Trinity, valued at £9 3s. 6d. In a conveyance of the manor of Dowles in 1544 one part is called 'Trinity Ground, now or late in the occupation of William Weston, Warden of the Gylde of Holly Trinity in the churche of Bewdeley.' In 1553 the incumbents of two of the chantries, viz., William Weston and Humphrey Mallet, were living, and received pensions of £6 each from Queen Mary.

Between the two chantries on the north side of the chancel, went up a flight of steps from the street into the chancel. A Mrs. Holl told Dr. Prattinton in 1808 that there were houses under the chancel. This explains the curious entry in the accounts for 1596 for expenses incurred in mending the 'hole out of the chancell in Mersour Tavn.'"

The chapel was probably built about the time of Henry VI. It was a plain timber structure, and houses were built close up to it nearly all round. Perhaps this accounts for the fact that though it was standing till 1745, no known illustration of it has come down to us.

In the tower, which requires renovation internally, is a peal of bells, hung on the same level. The treble, seventh, and tenor have no cannons, and are bolted through the crown to the stock. The frame and fittings are generally in fairly good condition, and a little expense would enable the bells to be rung much easier, the frame being heavy, and constructed of solid oak."

THE ROYAL CUMBERLAND SOCIETY.

THE LATE F. A. KNIPE.

On Tuesday evening, the 19th instant, at the usual fortnightly practice of the above society at the church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, the bells were rung half-muffled, the usual whole pull and stand being performed with due solemnity, as a mark of respect to the memory of the late F. A. Knipe, Esq., M.D., whose death took place in Australia on the 21st ultimo.

The deceased gentleman was for several years a highly-respected member of the above-named society, and took an active and lively interest in its doings during a stay in London while qualifying for his profession. He took part in several performances with the company, the most noticeable being an 8000 of Grandsire Caters in 1877, two peals of Treble Bob Major in 1878, and one of Treble Bob Royal the following year. He also rang several peals with the Waterloo Society, and if we mistake not, his last performance in the metropolis was a peal of Stedman Cinques with the St. James's society. In all he rang about twenty peals.

Mr. Knipe belonged to an old Worcester family, who fifty years ago were well known in the "faithful city." His uncle, the late Dr. Knipe, was for some time Churchwarden of St. Helen's, in that city, and dwelt at the rectory-house beneath the shadow of the tower. It is related that he played a conspicuous part in preventing the removal of the bells therein (a notable ring of eight) when their peremptory sale had been decided upon by a majority of hostile parishioners! Arrangements for their removal had, it is said, been made while Dr. Knipe was from home, and but for his unexpected return they would have gone, several, if not all of them, having been taken down and placed in the churchyard ready for that purpose. By his prompt and generous action, exemplified in a manner essentially English, the bells were saved to the church, where they now remain.

The memory of the deceased gentleman will for a long time be held in respect by the above-named society.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Devizes on Wednesday, May 30th. Divine Service, with sermon by the Rev. Dr. Burges, at St. John's, at 11 a.m. (collection for the Guild). Meeting for election of officers and other business immediately after service. Dinner at 1 p.m. at "The Bear" Hotel, price two shillings each to ringing members holding tickets, 2s. 3d. to others. The towers of St. John and St. Mary, Devizes, Bishops Cannings, and Potterne, will be open for ringing during the afternoon. Names of those intending to be present must be sent to the Secretary not later than Whit-Monday, May 21st, otherwise the allowance of three shillings per head for travelling expenses will not be granted.

The next District Meeting for Dorsetshire will be held at Bridport on Thursday, June 7th. Dinner will be served at the "Greyhound" Hotel at 1 p.m., at 2s. 6d. per head, which amount will be considerably reduced by local subscriptions. Several newly restored belfries will be open to the ringers. For all particulars apply to the Rev. Montagu Hankey, Maiden Newton, Dorset.
J. R. JERRAM, Hon. Sec.

PRESTBURY, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

A friendly meeting of ringers took place here on Whit Tuesday, where there is a pretty little ring of eight, tenor 14 cwt. A peal was arranged for, but as one well-known individual was unavoidably late, time could not be spared for a peal, so they had to content themselves with 504 Stedman Triples, which was most satisfactorily accomplished mainly through the exertions of Mr. Hattersley, who in his well-known and able manner called the bobs from beginning to end. The following gentlemen composed the band. G. H. Phillott (Cheltenham), 1; H. Karn (Cheltenham), 2; C. H. Hattersley (Sheffield), 3; J. Buffery (Birmingham), 4; J. E. Hern (Newnham), 5; W. T. Pates (Cheltenham), 6; A. Brearley (Sheffield), 7; C. Fluck (Birmingham), 8.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE DISTRICT MEETING at Leatherhead was fairly well attended, ringers being present from Croydon, Epsom, Capel, Weybridge, Guildford, Farnham, Dorking, Basingstoke, Bournemouth, and Fareham. At the Committee Meeting at 2 p.m., between fifty and sixty new members were elected, including three new bands—Brading, Hambledon, and Shalford. It was decided to hold the Annual Festival this year at Leatherhead on Thursday, July 19th. During the day the following touches were brought round. A 395 Grandsire Caters. G. H. Barnett, 1; H. White, 2; G. Russell, 3; F. W. J. Rees, Esq., 4; J. Hawkins, 5; T. Miles, 6; F. Wickens, 7; E. Hull, 8; S. Brooker (conductor), 9; J. Lisney, 10. And 305 Grandsire Caters. H. Brown, 1; H. Wood, 2; J. Hawkins, 3; G. Russell, 4; H. Newnham, 5; H. White, 6; W. Marks (conductor), 7; E. Hull, 8; T. Miles, 9; J. Lisney, 10. Also 518 Grandsire Triples. A. Grist, 1; S. Brooker (conductor), 2; G. Russell, 3; F. W. Rees, Esq., 4; D. Jordan, 5; F. Wickens, 6; H. White, 7; J. Lisney, 8. And 349 Grandsire Triples. E. Dodd, 1; W. Marks (conductor), 2; H. Garforth, 3; J. Hawkins, 4; D. Jordan, 5; F. Wickens, 6; G. H. Barnett, 7; J. Lisney, 8. Also 350 Grandsire Triples. H. White, 1; G. Russell, 2; H. Garforth, 3; F. W. J. Rees, Esq., 4; Rev. H. A. Spyers (conductor), 5; D. Jordan, 6; G. H. Barnett, 7; J. Lisney, 8.

RINGMER, SUSSEX.

An interesting presentation took place on Thursday, May 17th, at the residence of the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, where all the ringers met together and partook of tea. After tea the Rev. C. D. P. Davies presented Mr. G. C. Hammond, the late captain and secretary to the band of ringers, and who is now leaving the village, with a copy of the handsome book "Shipway's Art of Ringing," on behalf of the ringers, who had subscribed together towards purchasing it. The Rev. C. D. P. Davies also presented him with the late Mr. Snowdon's latest book, "Grandsire." Mr. Hammond has taken great interest in the belfry, and by the pains he has taken the ringers have improved wonderfully during the last few months. The testimonial was presented to him to show how great his labours had been appreciated, and the regret existing at his departure. Mr. G. C. Hammond very suitably responded. After the presentation, two or three courses of Grandsire and Union Triples were rung on the handbells, double-handed. A. E. Paris, 1-2; G. C. Hammond, 3-4; Rev. C. D. P. Davies, 5-6; H. Jones, 7-8. Also a few touches of Stedman Triples.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting of this Association will be held in St. John-the-Baptist Schoolroom, Bromsgrove, at 5 o'clock, on Saturday, June 2nd, 1888. The Rev. A. E. Seymour, Vicar, will preside. The annual report, balance-sheet, etc. will be ready for distribution, when the Hon. Sec. hopes to see a representative from each company to receive copies of same.

N.B.—Those members who have not yet paid their contributions should do so without delay. JOHN SMITH, Hon. Sec.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1888.

THE events of last Monday, though not so great as the preparations would indicate, were nevertheless very far from being unimportant. As the readers of this journal are aware, several attempts were to have been made for extraordinary lengths, but only one of them proved successful—that of the Gloucester and Bristol Association at Cheltenham, where was performed a peal of Stedman Caters, comprising 13,054 changes, with a tenor of 23 cwt. This performance eclipses the peal recently obtained by the Oxford Guild—surpasses it in fact, in the number of changes rung, the time occupied, and the weight of metal. It must certainly be looked upon as a most extraordinary achievement, and we heartily congratulate the members of the band, more especially the conductor, upon its successful accomplishment.

Cheltenham has never until recent years shone particularly as a change-ringing town. The talent of the county was long seated at Painswick and Stroud, especially the former place, in the days when the ESTCOURT family flourished. Everybody has, or ought to have heard of the beauty of the town of Cheltenham, with its walks, spas, and hotels, its noble High Street, and its once celebrated Vicar, Dr. CLOSE. Now it has gained an additional celebrity, one that will commend itself to a portion of the community which is, we are glad to say, increasing daily. The old parish church of St. Mary, Cheltenham, will henceforward be looked upon with feelings akin to reverence by ringers, many of whom will not fail to undertake a journey to see the edifice in the steeple of which such a grand performance as 13,000 of Stedman Caters has been rung. And a visit to such a place as Cheltenham is always enjoyable.

JOHN W. TAYLOR 5.	A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD .. Tenor.

Composed by J. REEVES, and Conducted by A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

This peal is to replace a similar one rung by the same band on December 3rd, 1887, of which the composition was lately discovered to be false. The present performance must, therefore, not be included in any analysis of the achievements for 1888. Ringers who have the M. C. A. report for 1887 are requested to write the word "false" across the calling of the peal on page 56.

And the same evening on handbells, several courses of Grandsire and Union Triples. A. E. Paris, 1-2; G. C. Hammond, 3-4; Rev. C. D. Davies, 5-6; H. Jones, 7-8. Also on Wednesday, May 9th, after an unsuccessful attempt for a peal of Grandsire Triples, the last two 504's of one of the Rev. C. D. P. Davies's peals, 1106 changes. A. Slarks, 1; G. C. Hammond (conductor), 2; C. Painter, 3; H. Jones, 4; A. E. Paris, 5; G. Washer, 6; Rev. C. D. P. Davies, 7; T. Miller, 8.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

BURTON-ON-TRENT (Staffordshire).—Handbell Ringing.—On Tuesday, May 15th, at the house of Mr. Austin, a 504 of Grandsire Triples, 504 Stedman Triples, and a plain course of Duffield Major. W. J. Smith, 1-2; J. Jagger (conductor), 3-4; L. Bullock, 5-6; J. Austin, 7-8. Also a plain course of Stedman Triples. W. J. Smith, 1-2; J. Jagger, 3-4; L. Bullock, 5-6; Miss G. Lawrence, 7-8. And a plain course of Grandsire Caters, Miss Lawrence ringing 1-2.

LONG EATON (Derbyshire).—On Monday evening, May 14th, eight members of the above Association attempted a peal of 5024 Kent Treble Bob Major, but it unfortunately came to grief by the breaking of the 2nd rope, after ringing 3168 changes, in 1 hr. 48 mins. T. Cope, 1; R. Hickton, 2; G. Bradley, 3; S. Clarke, 4; J. Ward, 5; W. Gilson, 6; J. C. Dicken, 7; J. Barrow (conductor), 8. Tenor 11 cwt. in G.

LICHFIELD.—On Whit-Monday, at St. Mary's church, the local company assisted by A. Taberer, of Derby, rang 504 Grandsire Triples. And on the same day at St. Michael's church, 720 Grandsire Minor in 28 mins. F. Sedgwick, 1; A. Taberer, 2; F. J. Cope (conductor), 3; H. Meacham, 4; W. Fearneyhough, 5; A. E. Greenwood, 6. A GIGANTIC CUTTLE-FISH.—On April 26th, 1875, a very large calamary was met with on the north-west of Boffin Island, Connemara. The crew of a "curragh" (a boat made like a "coracle," with wooden ribs covered with tarred canvas) observed to seaward a large floating mass surrounded by gulls. They pulled out to it, believing it to be a wreck, but to their astonishment found that it was an enormous cuttlefish, lying perfectly still, as if basking on the surface of the water. Paddling up with caution, they lopped off one of its arms. The animal immediately set out to sea, rushing through the water at a tremendous pace. The men gave chase, and, after a hard pull in their frail canvas craft, came up with it, five miles out in the open Atlantic, and severed another of its arms and the head. These portions, labelled Architeuthis dux, can now be seen in the Dublin Museum. The shorter arms measured each eight feet in length and fifteen inches round the base. The tentacular arms are said to have been thirty feet long.—From "Casell's Natural History" for May.

EASTERN COUNTIES' GUILD.

The fourth annual meeting of the above named guild was held at Walpole St. Peter on Whit Monday, and the day being exceedingly fine, attracted ringers from Lynn, Spalding, Terrington, Pinchbeck, Tyd St. Giles and Lutton, Redenhall and Ely. The day's proceedings commenced with a half peal of Treble Bob Minor, and a 720 of Bob Minor (eighteen bobs and two singles), in 30 mins. J. W. Sedgely, 1; W. Day, 2; H. Hill (conductor), 3; J. Green, 4; W. G. Cross, 5; F. Easton, 6. Divine Service was held at 12.15 in St. Peter's church, the prayers being read by the Rev. H. Whalley, curate; and the sermon preached by the Rev. P. S. Bagge, rector, from Exodus xxvii., part of 33 v.: "And thou shalt make bells of gold." The sermon, a very impressive one, was listened to with marked attention throughout by the ringers, who sat in the chancel.

The rev. gentleman in the course of his remarks gave the "origin" of the bell in this ringing isle. He took them back to the 7th century, and told them that bells were applied to church purposes to call the faithful to prayer. Ingulphus, he said, mentioned that Turketulus, abbot of Croyland, now called Crowland, gave a great bell to the church of that abbey, which he named Guthlac, and afterwards six others. This was about the 9th century, and there was not such a ring of bells in all England. Passing on from the "origin" to the "use" of the bell, he said there were first the marriage bells or joy bells, rejoicing over marriages and other festivals, rejoicing for the recovery of illustrious persons from sickness to health; and secondly, the passing bell, or death bell as it was called, telling us that some soul had gone to rest in paradise, and also bidding us to prepare for the Great High Priest with His golden bells. The "Old Hundredth" having been sung, the ringers adjourned to the "Plough" inn, Walpole St. Andrew, where an excellent dinner awaited them.

The Rev. P. S. BAGGE occupied the chair, and there were also present the Rev. G. Woodgate, rector of Tyd St. Giles, Rev. R. F. Corey, vicar of St. John's, Rev. J. H. Spokes, vicar of Lutton, Revs. W. Merrin and H. Whalley, curates of Walpole St. Peter's, and the guild secretary the Rev. J. H. Coates, of Spalding, Capt. Moore (Redenhall), R. Mackman (Spalding), G. Holland (Lynn), J. Pilgrim (Ely) and others, in all about 50.

After dinner the usual loyal toasts were drunk and speeches made. Then followed the business meeting, at which Dr. Secombe proposed an alteration in the last clause of rule 10, but finding no seconder, it fell through. The following officers were elected for the year 1888-9. Patron, the Lord Bishop of Lincoln; President, Rev. Canon Moore, vicar of Spalding; Vice-presidents, Mr. Ex-Sheriff Clarke, Dr. Secombe, Rev. J. H. Spokes, and Mr. H. Watkinson; Treasurer, Mr. T. H. Nicholls, Spalding; Secretary, Rev. J. M. Coates; Committee, Rev. P. S. Bagge; Messrs. J. W. Swain, R. Mackman, W. Cunningham, and the captain of each company in the guild. The report and balance sheet were read by the secretary, from which it appeared that there was a balance in hand, after paying the necessary expenses, of £18 1s. 5d., and also that the number of members were increasing. Several new members were enrolled.

DR. SECCOMBE, then proposed the health of Capt. Moore, a veteran ringer, which was well received.

CAPT. MOORE, in responding, gave some usual hints on perseverance to the young members, more especially as to the attempts at peal ringing. He also stated that he had taken part in ringing over fifty peals of 5040 changes in various methods since he first learned the art at Walpole.

A hearty vote of thanks to the rectors of Walpole St. Peter and Walpole St. Andrew for the use of the bells, and to the indefatigable secretary for the very able manner in which he arranges these gatherings, terminated the business. Visits were again made to the towers, and Grandsire, Bob Doubles, Oxford Treble Bob and College Singles were rung. The Lynn and Terrington men rang on the handbells some well-struck touches of Bob Major and Oxford Treble Bob Major during the afternoon, whilst others were shewn over the gardens of the rectory and greenhouses, &c.

MR. H. THEW, organist of St. Nicholas', Lynn, played a selection of music on the organ, which was much appreciated. After inspecting the towers of both churches and other interesting features in them, the ringers returned to their homes, having spent a thoroughly enjoyable day.

Church News.

The Bishop of North Queensland has arrived in England. His address is Bank House, Monmouth-road, Bayswater.

The Bishop of Japan (Dr. E. Bickersteth) has arrived. His address during this summer will be the Palace, Exeter.

The report that Bishop Bromby had accepted the rectory of Edmond, is incorrect.

Mr. James Brooks has been appointed hon. architect to the Canterbury Diocesan Board of Education.

The Bishop of Grahamstown is taking work for the Bishop of Truro from May 21st to June 5th. His Lordship's address during that period will be Lis Escop, Truro.

On Holy Thursday, the Bishop of Newcastle reconsecrated the parish church of St. Oswald-in-Lee, which had been almost rebuilt upon its ancient historic site. The Sermon was preached by Archdeacon Hamilton.

Archdeacon Iles having been prevented by illness from holding his usual visitation his place has been taken by the Bishop of the diocese, the Dean of Lichfield, and the Bishop of Shewsbury, who have delivered addresses.

The Bishop of Southwell is suffering from an attack of pleurisy the result of a severe cold caught during his Visitations in Derbyshire. The Bishop of Nottingham has kindly undertaken to hold his Trinity ordination for him at St. Mary's, Nottingham, and Canon Were will act as his commissary for ordinary business for the present.

The great Feast of Pentecost was devoutly observed in most of the London churches, though it is perhaps the festival which suffers most from absentees. At Manchester Monday was kept as usual by a procession of Church Sunday-schools from Albert-square to the cathedral, the number of children taking part in it being nearly 22,000.

On Whitsunday the Bishop of Japan held a confirmation at All Saints', Belvedere, Kent, for the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Bishop, who had only reached England two days before, was the guest of his brother, the Rev. Samuel Bickersteth, vicar of the parish. On Saturday evening at a large "At Home," held in the Public Hall, he gave an interesting account of the latest phases of the Mission in Japan, and on Sunday preached morning and evening to crowded congregations, besides confirming in the afternoon seventy-two candidates. In the course of his addresses he showed that the Japanese were everywhere prepared to receive and welcome missionaries.

As a memorial of the late Dean Edwards, Mrs. Symes is erecting at Bangor a church and parsonage and endowing the living, to which the Rev. Lewis Jones, at one time vice-principal of Carnarvon Training College, has been preferred. The total cost will be not much short of £20,000. Mrs. Symes has also placed a stained window in Bangor Cathedral as a memorial of the late Dean, and has presented a reredos in memory of her only brother, Colonel Holt, of Gorphwysfa.

On Wednesday, May 15th, the Bishop of Rochester opened a Mission church, dedicated to St. Anselm, in the parish of St. Mary, Princes-road, Lambeth. The building consists of two stories, and the upper is to be used exclusively as a church. It will accommodate about 300 worshippers. The lower story makes an excellent Sunday-school room, and is well adapted for Mission purposes generally. The Bishop gave an earnest address, and basing his remarks on the Epistle for the week encouraged all to make the most of the gift intrusted to them. A church raised by the hard work of so poor a parish gave evidence of the progress of religion in south London.

On Saturday, May 19th, the Corporation of the Sons of Clergy held a court at its house in Bloomsbury Place, the Earl of Powis, vice president, in the chair, and made a further distribution of the fund raised at the instance of the Archbishop of Canterbury for the relief of the present distress among the glebe and tithe owning clergy. Among the eighty applications as many as twenty-six dioceses represented, Peterborough and St. David's heading the list with eight each. Seventeen out of the eighty came from the principality. Twenty-one of the applications were for a renewal of the help given last year, at least a twelvemonth having passed since the former grant, in accordance with the rules laid down by the governors for the administration of the fund. The grants amounted to £2833, making a total since March of £5613. The vacancies upon the list of clergyman's widows and daughters receiving annual pensions from the ordinary funds of the corporation were filled up by the election of eighteen widows and twenty daughters, and grants were made to the unsuccessful candidates and for the education of clergyman's children, amounting to £1660. Owing to the want of funds, the governors were unable to grant more than £10 a year to the newly elected pensioners, instead of £20 as in former years.

At the Consistory Court of Canterbury on Wednesday, May 16th, a petition was heard for a faculty with respect to a gallery in Sandgate church. The Earl of Chichester and Mr. Reginald Cust, as trustees for the Countess of Chichester, claimed to be entitled to the exclusive right of entry and use of a gallery with a private entrance. In 1854 the chapel at Sandgate was, by an order in Council, formed into a consolidated chapelry, with a district assigned to it, the freehold of the western gallery belonging to Sir John Bligh, the Countess's father. The church was rebuilt, and it seemed that an exchange was made of the northern gallery for the western gallery. The petition was opposed by the Rev. Matthew Woodward, vicar of Folkestone, who had been one of the trustees in respect of the church, and who pointed out that the portion of the church which was sought to be set apart comprised seventy-two seats. There was no endowment, and the incumbent had to depend on the pew rents. He contended that there was no power to reserve the right of entry to the gallery, and submitted that it would be an encroachment on the rights of the incumbent, who was entitled to have the key. He trusted the Court would refuse to grant the faculty reserving a portion of the Church for one particular family. Counsel for the applicants, in reply, contended that the trustees had a perfect right to exchange the galleries, it being the duties of trustees to do their best for the trust estate. At the conclusion of the argument, Dr. Tristram reserved judgment.

On Tuesday, May 15th, at a Society for the Propagation of the Gospel meeting held at Southsea, the chairman (Archdeacon Sumner), drew attention to the fact, that the archdeaconry (which comprised Hampshire, less the isle of Wight), last year contributed more to the general funds of the society than any diocese in England except London and Oxford. An argument frequently urged in too frequent neglect of Missions was that all the money was wanted for local objects. They knew that a great deal of this was so, but his experience was that parishes supporting missionary societies with liberality, gave freely to other objects connected with the church. Missionary contributions might indeed be taken as the thermometer of a Church's work, and he trusted that this would be practically recognised in the diocese. Among the speakers was Colonel Twyman, Assistant Adjutant-General, who made some remarks upon the questions raised by Canon Isaac Taylor. He said that so far as India and Ceylon were concerned, many military officers said that Christianity was a failure because they were under the impression that missionaries and missionary societies only existed that those who went to India might be supplied with good servants, and so many servants were a failure. The reason that Mahomedan made better servants was that both among Hindoos and Mahomedans total abstinence was an article of faith. They came to the conclusion that the Englishman's religion was a very easy one, for they saw that he did not bother about how much time he set apart for worship, but ate and drank what he liked, and they decided that that religion would suit them. Then they threw up all the requirements of their own faith, and took all the bad points of the English. Then perhaps a missionary was seen at a health resort, and the conclusion was arrived at that he was having an easy time, but the fact of his having worked hard among the natives at some out station for the previous ten months, was not taken into consideration. The Madras Mail had recently published some statistics which showed that among the Hindoos, average of crime was one in 47.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Let us take heart, and go forward."

The last great festival of the Church's year is now over, and by the time these lines reach your readers, the Exercise will know the result of the several attempts to accomplish long peals, of which notice was given last Saturday. "'Tis not in mortals to command success" is a well-known saying, and therefore should failure have fallen to the lot of some of our friends who were thus desirous of distinguishing themselves, let them remember that "such is life," and be all the more eager to try again.

* * * * *

The 13,440 of Bob Major that was announced to be attempted at Kelsale on Whit Monday, has, we are told, been postponed on account of services. This is not the first time by far that postponements have been made for this reason. Why don't our friends take more care in making their ringing arrangements? The services of the Church are, as a rule, regular the year through; and this leaving them out of the reckoning looks suspiciously in favour of the idea that those who err in this direction are seldom seen in any other part of the Church but the belfry.

* * * * *

I must confess, Mr. Editor, that I was surprised to see last Saturday that you had given a great portion of a page of your valuable space to the reproduction of such arrant nonsense as that perpetuated by the individual who calls himself "Musicus." The farrago is too absurd even to be amusing, and the only relieving feature about it is the evidence it affords of the depths of absurdity to which some people will sink in attempting to write about or criticise something of which they are woefully ignorant. But when, like "Musicus," they also attempt to be funny, they make their case pitiable in the extreme. They become, in fact, objects "more of pity than anger."

* * * * *

"F.S." writes in condemnation of the plan adopted in some places of leaving bells "set" from one ringing time to another. That habit is one for which I have never been able to assign a good reason. Is it done (as he suggests), through motives of laziness? If so, then to my mind any accident arising therefrom should be laid to the door of those who have thus been the actual cause. On the other hand, if there be valid reasons in favour of this plan, I for one should be very glad to know them.

* * * * *

News "from beyond the seas" is ever welcome; the more so, of course, when it is good news. The report of the annual dinner in Australia, is very pleasant reading, if only from the intelligence it gives us that change-ringing is in a fair way of getting well established in that far distant colony. Those of us who have never left our native shore, will, I doubt not, be unable to fully conceive the feelings which will be aroused in an Englishman's breast on hearing the sound of a peal of bells in his far-away home. There is without question, nothing more thoroughly English, or more calculated to remind our countrymen of home than the sound of bells. Let us therefore wish our brethren of Melbourne every possible success in their endeavours to promote change-ringing, and by that means, if even in a small way, of helping to cement the tie which binds the Colonies to the old country.

By this time I suppose Mr. John Newbon, of Bolton, will be well on his way to the "Great Republic." Thus another of our good men is for a time lost to us; and he will have I fear, few opportunities of exercising his talent as a change-ringer. It has often appeared strange to me that bells and ringing should never yet have obtained good hold in America. I do not think it is from lack of funds; neither can it be want of ringers, seeing the large number of our brethren who have "crossed the duck pond." What, then, can be the reason? FREE LANCE.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING was held at Chelmsford on Monday, May 21st, when about 130 members were present. In addition to the peals rang as shown in the peal column, various touches in the usual standard methods were rung in the different towers. An appropriate address was given by the Rev. F. E. Robinson at the service. The usual dinner was held, and at the meeting the Hon. Secretary read a very satisfactory report. The Committee recommended that it was undesirable to extend into a Diocesan Association, and the meeting adopted the same. Out of five peals attempted by members of the Association on Monday and Tuesday, only one was successful. At Writtle, a peal of Grandsire Triples was lost on Monday morning after 2 hrs. by the 3rd rope slipping wheel (an old fault which it had been hoped was cured); and in the evening a peal of Stedman Triples was allowed to come to an end half-way because the tenor-man could not keep the bell going at the quick pace (1 hr. 22 mins. for the half-peal). The band was a good one, and the striking excellent. On Tuesday morning a peal of Stedman Caters was started for at Chelmsford by the Revs. F. E. Robinson and H. A. Cockey, Messrs. Washbrook, Newson, N. J. and F. Pitstow, Jacob, Buckingham, and Cartmel, with W. Lincoln at the tenor. All went admirably for two hours, when there appeared in the belfry a person announcing himself as Churchwarden, and remarking that his permission ought to have been asked. After some parley, during which the ringing went on as well as ever, Mr. Robinson at last gave the order to "stand," and what promised to be a beautifully-rung peal came to an untimely end. The sexton had duly locked the door, but was obliged to give up the key to a church official: a warning to ringers in future that, when they have obtained the clergyman's permission to ring, they should lock themselves in to keep out those whose consent is not necessary. A move was then made to Galleywood, where misfortune No. 4 occurred in the breaking of the tenor rope. It is a somewhat novel experience to the Rev. F. E. Robinson and Mr. Washbrook to lose three peals in two days, and all members of the Association will deeply regret that such ill-luck should befall them on their first visit to Essex.

A fuller report of the annual meeting of this Association will be given next week.

THE FIRST PEAL AT ST. THOMAS', SALISBURY.

ON Whit-Monday a local company achieved the first peal ever rang on this heavy peal of eight. For many years the bells had been well nigh unringable until they were rehung about a year ago by Mr. T. Blackburn. After rehanging, the bells went well, but a great difficulty had to be overcome in getting a peal on them, as the tower is situated in the very centre of the town, and great complaints are made if the bells are rung for any length of time together, or on any other than the usual ringing days. The company however took advantage of the Bank Holiday, when most of the places of business are closed, and having obtained permission of the Vicar and Churchwardens, they started for the peal about half-past twelve, which was successfully brought round shortly before four. (See peal column).

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—ROSSENDALE BRANCH.

The next ringing meeting of the above branch will take place on Saturday, June 2nd, at Christ Church, Bacup. Bells ready at two o'clock; meeting in the schoolroom at 6.30.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

The Ninth Annual Meeting of the above Association, which took place on Whit-Monday, at Chelmsford, has added another to the list of successful gatherings of ringers in the county. In addition to the two peals recorded last week, and the other performances also referred to, touches of Grandsire and Stedman Caters, Treble Bob Royal and Treble Bob Major were rung in the morning and afternoon at Chelmsford by what might be termed the cream of the company present, but as early as 5 o'clock the Chelmsford tower, so far as regards the leading members of the Association, was all but deserted, and it was with some difficulty that bands could be got together to do any creditable performances. It is however worthy of note that a 672 of Bob Major, by a band chiefly consisting of six-bell ringers, only failed coming home by three leads, otherwise it would have proved one of the most creditable performances in the tower for the day. It may also not be out of place to state that a course of Grandsire Caters was rung by a band not one of whom had ever had the opportunity of previously attempting such. Each of the surrounding towers, Galleywood (8), Great Baddow (8), Writtle (8), Widford (6), and Springfield (6), all situate within about a three-mile circle, were visited during the day by various bands, and numerous touches rung. An attempt at a peal upon handbells had been arranged but fell through. In the afternoon a 504 of Stedman Triples (non-conducted) was rung by Messrs. Mitchell, Washbrook, Buckingham and Cartmel.

A committee meeting was announced to be held in the morning for the purpose of a preliminary consideration of the Diocesan question again brought before the Association through a letter to the Hon. Sec. received just previously to the recent district meeting held at Romford. The Rev. T. L. Papillon, Hon. Sec., was supported by the Rev. J. B. Seaman and Rev. H. A. Cockey, and there were also present Messrs. A. J. Perkins and B. Keeble, Romford; F. Pitstow, Saffron Walden; Mansfield, Maldon; Hubbard, Tottenham; and two or three other members. The Hon. Sec. read the following letter from Canon Wigram, dated April 5th:—

"I see that the Essex Association meets on Saturday. Allow me to request that you will take into consideration the desirability of extending its area and make it a St. Albans Diocesan Association. The causes which have lead to the break-down of the Herts. County Association are easily stated. From every point of view a Diocesan Association is better than a county one. The Oxford Guild may serve as a model, and one which embraces more counties than one. I can assure you that every facility will be given by us for the amalgamation, while already two of the Herts branches, viz.: St. Albans and Bishop Stortford, belong to you."

The Hon. Sec. also read a letter from the Secretary to the St. Albans cathedral Society, in which an opinion was expressed that in view of the probable change in the Diocese, the proposed extension of the Association was undesirable.

The Rev. J. B. SEAMAN considered a Diocesan Association better than a county Association, provided there were no difficulties in the way.

Mr. F. PITSTOW considered more good might be effected in the county by the Association remaining as it was than by extending it into a Diocesan Association, especially as there were still so many more towers open to a visit, and in which some good might be the result.

The Rev. H. A. COCKEY did not see how Herts and Essex could be satisfactorily worked as one Association, they were so separated. If the Association was merged into a Diocesan Association no doubt there would be a desire to hold the annual meeting every alternate year at St. Albans, and he did not consider it desirable in the interest of the Association that the Annual Meeting at Chelmsford should be given up.

Mr. HUBBARD asked if the letter from Canon Wigram came as a desire from the Herts Association, or if it was only the Canon's own view of the matter. If the application from the Association he, Mr. Hubbard, considered it should be taken in a liberal spirit, but if it was only the Canon's application he did not see how the Association could well deal with it. The Association undoubtedly now had sufficient towers open to it, and if it merged itself into a Diocesan Association it would make one of the strongest Associations in the kingdom. This, however, he did not think should be done, unless the application came officially.

The Hon. Sec. having remarked that no doubt Canon Wigram wrote as the mouthpiece of the Association,

Mr. B. KEEBLE said he was in possession of an 1885 report of the Herts Association, at which time there were ninety-five ringing members and two hon. members. So far as he had been able to ascertain no report had been issued since, and there were now twenty-five ringing members and five hon. members. Canon Wigram's resignation was announced in "THE BELL NEWS," but he had not heard of a meeting of the Herts Association for the last twelve months; under those circumstances he did not consider the application was official.

Mr. PERKINS pointed out that by the rules of the Association ringers in Herts could become members of the Association.

The Rev. H. A. COCKEY having pointed out that if the amalgamation was carried out and a change afterwards made in the Diocese, the expense that the Association would be put to would to some extent be useless, moved that the amalgamation, owing to the evident difficulty of working Hertfordshire, is undesirable, but calling the attention of ringers in that county, that under rule v. they can join the Essex Association as non-resident members, which was unanimously agreed to.

The usual service in St. Mary's church was held at 12.30. The usual shortened form of plain evensong was again adopted, and the address was given by the Rev. F. E. Robinson, Vicar of Drayton, Berks., and Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. The rev. gentleman selected his text from 1 St. Peter, 4 c., 10th and 11th verses. "As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God. If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth; that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen." He said:—

He intended to urge two points; first that as bellringers they had received a distinct gift from God; secondly, that having received the gift how they were to make use of it. Every bellringer has received a gift—a good gift—which comes from God. Some had a gift which enabled them to watch the coursing order of the bells and observe how the bells came up at the course-ends. There could be no doubt but that this was one of those good gifts that came from above. It was a gift which as bellringers they should give back to God by learning to thank Him for His good gifts, and live to the glory of God. It was a gift which if exercised would develop their mental capacities. When we considered that our bodies are wonderfully made, the extension and development of such mental capacities showed that there was a direct gift from God, by which they were enabled to do that which others find it difficult to do. The Apostle told them that in everything God should be glorified. The gift should be given back to God, from whom it was received, by the solemn consecration and dedication to Him from Whom all good things do come. Speaking as one who had had thirty years' experience in the belfry, he did not find that this had generally been the case. Ringers had not thought fit to give back to God that good gift which it had pleased Him to bestow upon them. He would emphatically urge them to carry on their ringing in a devoted spirit, in a blessed spirit, and to the glory of God. If they did this they would agree with him that the happiest moments that were spent in the belfry were those when the sound of the bells go forth, and they roll up in harmony. Is it not right that God should be thanked for such a gift? He would urge them to seek to devote their ringing to the dedication of God, and above all to remember that even if it was possible—it was not so easy now as when he first commenced—to pass off a false peal as a true one, to remember that such would not be true in the face of God. This had been done, for on looking over his own record he knew there were several—not those conducted by himself, that were not true—this was a practice, and should be condemned. If they carried on their ringing in a right spirit they would strive to help their clergyman; if they wished to lead a consistent life they would be communicants. They should not regard their assistance to the clergyman of a parish as of no or little importance to him, for there was no greater sympathy than to know that those who worked with him are worthy of the position they hold. The belfry, he believed, was a place in which a man might find a means of showing and learning a great deal of brotherly love. They should be courteous and kind one to another. They should have patience with the young ones, and endeavour to advance them in the art, remembering that the day will come when their places will have to be taken up by those who are following them. Unless they taught the young they would never keep bands together. They should therefore make it a point of teaching the young, and in doing so show them the way with patience, otherwise sooner or later they would find themselves left in the lurch. This gift which they had received, they should remember that they were stewards of it, and that they had received it from One who one day would call them to account of how they had made use of it. It might be that some would be inclined to ask him how it was that he gave up so much of his time. If his conscience asked him with whom he had left those few sheep in the wilderness, he trusted he should be able to give a good account. He believed that God had given him a special gift, and it was his duty to strive to develop it by ringing the best methods and the longest peals that are to be rung. In developing such mental powers, which it was his honour and privilege, he trusted he was doing a work which God had sent him into this world to do. Urging them to strive to help one another, the rev. gentleman concluded a practical and appropriate address by showing that the ringer who did this would advance himself in the art, and the result of a life led in such a spirit in patient continuance, in well doing, would be that God will give His reward and find suitable employment in the life to come in which such mental powers can still be developed.

The dinner, to which 130 sat down, was well served up, and the business meeting followed immediately afterwards. Archdeacon Johnson was supported by L. Proctor, Esq., Revs. J. B. Seaman, H. A. Cockey, D. N. Yonge, F. E. Robinson, and T. L. Papillon, Hon. Sec.

Having congratulated the meeting upon the large number present, and the presence of Squire Proctor, and the Rev. F. E. Robinson, the Hon. Secretary read the following report:—

The year just ended has been a prosperous one for the Association. Our members have again increased by from sixty to seventy ringing members. The total number on the books being 398, of whom ninety are non-resident members. Four new Essex companies—Great Baddow, Farnham, Foxearth, and Sandon, have been added to our list, while one, that of Newport, has withdrawn. Among the addition to our non-resident members are the company of All Hallows, Tottenham, near neighbours of Essex, on the Middlesex side, and strong contingents from Glemsford and Long Melford, just over the Suffolk border—an accession of experienced ringers whose names have quickly found their way into the peal-book. This book is of itself satisfactory evidence of progress. Last year eleven peals were rung, four of them upon handbells, and only three of the remaining seven in the county. This year the number of peals entered is thirty-one, nine of which are handbell peals by non-resident members; of the remaining twenty-two peals upon tower bells, thirteen have been rung in Essex towers, and to a considerable extent by Essex men. In noticing this, I do not undervalue the performances of our non-resident members, but I hold that we ought not to depend on them to fill our peal-book. I am glad therefore to see in the book the name of young Essex bands, such as Loughton and Harwich, and one of older standing, though new to us—the band of Foxearth. There has been a considerable variety in the peals rang, Grandsire Triples of course is most common, but we may notice the peal of Treble Bob Royal rung at Chelmsford on August 2nd, the long peal of 10,000 Treble Bob Major recently rung at Foxearth, the first peal of the Association of Oxford Treble Bob Major at Galleywood, the first of Union Triples at St. Mary's, Walthamstow, the first of Oxford Bob Triples at Southgate, Middlesex, and the first of Grandsire Major at Enfield. In my report of last year, I expressed a hope that before the next Annual Meeting the peal-book would contain the names of some who at the Annual Meeting of 1886 had not advanced beyond Grandsire Doubles. That hope was unexpectedly fulfilled on the very same evening, and has been further realised during the year. We may I think, congratulate ourselves not only upon the continued excellence of our leading members, but upon what is certainly as important—the progress of our beginners in the Art. In belfry improvements, we have to record the rehanging of the eight bells at Romford, by Messrs. Warner and Son, and of the ring of five at Great Leghs, by Mr. Bowell, of Ipswich; the opening of a new ring of six at Holy Trinity, Barking Road, and the dedication of the new ring of eight at Brentwood. These latter, however, will not be rung until after the end of this year. The bells at Writtle have been overhauled, and the tenor rehung by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and the Chelmsford belfry has since the last Annual Meeting been fitted with new ropes. The scheme for adding five bells to the one which at present hangs in Moulsham church tower, seems to be in abeyance for the time. Our meetings have been pretty well attended during the year; 116 being present at the Annual Meeting on Whit Monday, 1887, while the District Meetings at Walthamstow, Colchester, and Romford, were attended by 47, 38, and 45 members respectively. Such meetings are valuable both as a means of keeping alive and spreading the cause of change-ringing, and as pleasant gatherings of men who have a common interest, and I hope those members who take the trouble to attend them, feel that it is worth while to do so, and will do their best to persuade others to come. We are, I think, fortunate in having as our centre and place of Annual Meeting a town so convenient of access, and so good a ringing centre as Chelmsford with a peal of ten bells in the town itself, and three peals of eight, and two of six, within easy distance. Our finances are sadly complicated by the difficulty of the getting in of subscriptions. The total receipts for the year inclusive of a balance in hand of 9s. 6d., and £3 1s. 6d. for arrears due from the previous year, and £1 9s. paid for certificates, has been £31 1s., while the expenses amount to £33 7s. 4d. But the unpaid subscriptions amount to £7 17s. 6d. (twenty-one honorary and forty-seven ringing members), and if a fair proportion of these are recovered, the year's income is sufficient for its expenses. The increase of these upon last year is due to two causes, viz., the large increase in the number of peals rung, and the larger attendance at the Annual Meeting and District Meetings. This year for instance we pay £6 16s. for booking peals, as compared with £2 in 1886-7, and £11 19s. toward dinner and tea expenses, as compared with £8 6s. Increasing numbers also involve more expenditure on postage and stationery, and with regard to this I would remind all members of the Association, that by punctual and regular payment of their subscriptions, they may materially reduce not only the trouble but the amount which the Secretary is obliged to spend on postage. I do not wish to reduce the amount spent on entering peals, nor do I think it desirable to lessen the inducement offered to members to attend the regular meetings of the Association, by part payment of their dinner or tea expenses. Nor again should I like to see payments towards instructions discontinued, for there is no expenditure which falls more legitimately within the objects of the Association. The annual income of the Association, if carefully managed, is sufficient for these purposes, all of which fall within the scope of its proper work, viz., the encouragement of change-ringing. While on the subject of our finances, I may indicate as points worthy of consideration: first, whether those who not being residents in the county of Essex desire the privilege of membership, might not be required to pay some entrance fee in addition to the ordinary subscription; secondly, whether in the future if so many peals have to be entered in our book, a part of the cost of entry might not be borne by the bands who ring them.

The first of these questions, that our non-resident members' subscriptions is before us to day. The second may perhaps wait till we see it the present year's record of peals is maintained. I propose this year to entrust the printing of the Annual Report to the office of "THE BELL NEWS." The publishers of that paper deserve all the support that individual ringers and ringing societies can give them, and it would be a distinct calamity if for want of such support it were found difficult to carry on the paper. Both as an Association and as individuals, I think that it has a claim upon us for its services to the cause of change-ringing. I have only in conclusion to thank the members of the Association for the confidence they have hitherto reposed in me, and for the courtesy which they have always shown me. The pressure of many engagements makes it difficult for me to give all the time that I could wish to the service of the Association, and I should be glad to find someone to take my place in a year or two. Our increasing numbers bring a considerable increase of correspondence and general business, and though the present Assistant Secretary can relieve me of much trouble in posting notices and circulars, I cannot well transfer to him the work of getting in subscriptions, arranging meetings, and conducting correspondence in different parts of the county. This could only be managed by District Secretaries, and if our Association goes on increasing, some organization of the kind will become necessary. The county might be divided into two or three branch districts, each with its district secretary, who should be responsible for collecting subscriptions, arranging meetings, and other details within his own district. I commend this idea to your consideration between this and the next Annual Meeting.

The Rev. J. B. SEAMAN moved the adoption of the report. In the course of his observations the rev. gentleman said "he was sorry to find that all interest was given to 'the new paper' as he styled 'THE BELL NEWS,' which he did not take himself and seldom saw it. It was only a ringers' paper." His remarks were received with some interruption and laughter.

The Rev. H. A. COCKEY seconded the adoption of the report, and said he had some recollection of the trouble it was to get in subscriptions, having sometimes to send four or five times for a shilling. He could not help thinking that if they had the interest of the Association at heart, but what after the appeal that had been made they would take care to forward their subscriptions without any cause for trouble. The report was adopted.

The Rev. H. T. W. EYRE and W. B. BLOOD, Esq. having ceased to be members of the Association, the Rev. H. E. HULTON and Rev. D. N. YONGE were added to the Committee, Leonard PROCTOR was elected a vice-president, and the following members were elected: Honorary, Rev. A. N. COLLEY; Ringing, Rev. F. E. ROBINSON, J. W. WASHBROOK; J. MILES, STEPNEY; E.

Gibbs, London; H. Sabar, T. W. Tarling, W. J. Pleasance, Sawbridgeworth; A. H. Gardom, J. King, J. Marks, Wanstead; G. Rushden, Witham; H. Richell, H. Allen, G. Green, Great Baddow; R. T. Kent, St. Albans; A. Fuller, A. Knowles, J. Balls, W. Millbank, W. Hazell, Little Bentley; A. Viall, Boreham; Probationers, A. Gamgee, H. Brand, C. Waters, F. Waters, Elmdon.

Mr. ROLFE (Springfield) moved a resolution to rescind the payment of fees to instructors. Not finding a seconder the resolution fell to the ground.

The Hon. Sec. moved an alteration in rule 13, and explained that he did so in order to cover the question of a peal being rung upon seven bells. The proposal was agreed to.

The Hon. Sec. next read the resolution adopted at the meeting in the morning respecting the Diocesan question, and the same was unanimously immediately adopted.

The Hon. Sec. having proposed a vote of thanks to the preacher for the day, Mr. Goodry, in seconding, read some amusing lines written by himself upon the recent long peals by the Oxford Guild.

The Rev. F. E. ROBINSON in responding, said it gave him pleasure to respond to the vote which had been accorded him. He was pleased to have met so many members of the Association and to have had the opportunity of addressing them in church. He was also pleased to have been elected a member of the Association, which made about eighteen that he belonged to, but although coming so low in the list he regarded the honour as if it stood higher. Mr. Seaman had referred to him with respect to Church Bells, and he could speak of the work it had done. He could remember the time when it was a matter of surprise to all respectable people for anyone to have anything to do with so low a set of men as the ringers of a parish church. But the time had changed, and he thanked God that those now taking an interest in ringing were not now looked upon as a low set of fellows. He agreed with Mr. Seaman that Church Bells had done much for ringers, and he would go so far as to mention the name of the late Mr. Ellacombe, whose name would always be held with great respect, and who first undertook the management of that portion of Church Bells devoted to ringing matters. He did a great deal for ringers, and so lifted them up. For his own part he could not help thinking but that Church Bells had been very much improved by the publication of "THE BELL NEWS." He did not say that they even now had the space which they ought to have in Church Bells. He should be sorry to see either journal fail through want of support, and considered much good might be derived by ringers from the other pages of Church Bells. He trusted to see the day when both would be improved, for they were both open to improvement, and he trusted that has individuals and as members of the Association they would do their best to support both papers.

The usual vote of thanks to the Hon. Sec., the chairman, and the authorities of the surrounding towers, closed the meeting.

Reference to the extraordinary proceedings at Chelmsford upon the following day has already appeared, proceedings which undoubtedly prevented the record of another peal in connection with the meeting. It will however be seen that success attended an attempt at Romford on Thursday evening, which may be recognised as the close of the annual meeting for the present year.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting of this Association will be held in St. John-the-Baptist Schoolroom, Bromsgrove, at 5 o'clock to-day, Saturday, June 2nd, 1888. The Rev. A. E. Seymour, Vicar, will preside. The annual report, balance-sheet, etc. will be ready for distribution, when the Hon. Sec. hopes to see a representative from each company to receive copies of same.

N.B.—Those members who have not yet paid their contributions should do so without delay. JOHN SMITH, Hon. Sec.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

By kind permission of the Vicar and Wardens, arrangements are being made for holding the next General Meeting at Pontefract to-day, Saturday, June 2nd.

BEWDLEY, WORCESTERSHIRE.—Concluded.

The clock, with four dials, is built in a separate room, and bears the date, etc., of its manufacture.

"H. Weight, Fecit, Malmesbury, 1851."

At one o'clock, at noon, and eight in the evening, the curfew bell is still regularly rung. Previous to 1780 there existed a peal of bells, but all were recast, and chimes added after re-erection in the tower, which is sixteen by seventeen feet square inside. The ringing-room is a very convenient apartment, and the ringers, a highly respectable body of men, several being members of the choir, all belong to the Hereford Diocesan Guild, and are now receiving instruction in the Art, the tower being in unity with the Guild, chiefly through the interest and influence of the Vicar, who is an honorary member. At a future date he hopes to make the ringing-room a little more comfortable, and replace the present unsuitable windows.

No record of any peal rang here is to be found, excepting one of Grandsire Triples, reported in these columns last year, which was achieved by a band from Kidderminster, conducted by H. J. Tucker. Some of the old ringers in the town remember, a party coming and ringing for over three hours in the Grandsire method, about the year 1820. Who they were, and if the performance was a true one, cannot be ascertained.

In 1837 the edifice was repaired at an expense of £1000, and 600 free sittings were added. It was renovated in 1871, and again improved in 1879, when a stained glass window was put in the chancel in memory of the Rev. John Fortescue, the late Vicar. In 1852 a district was assigned to this chapel, which thus became a parish church, but the endowment still consisted only of the £8 granted by Queen Mary, and of about £17 left by Richard Vickriss in 1661. The Incumbent was dependent almost entirely upon the precarious income from pew rents. In 1880, however, Mrs. Fortescue purchased Lower Park House for £2000, and presented it to the Church for a Vicarage. This generosity was met by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners with a grant of £50 per annum. In August, 1882, Mr. Fortescue left by will a further sum of about £1500 to be invested for the benefit of this Church.

Richard Clare, who had a tanyard by Doglane Brook, by will dated May 10th, left 10s. yearly for a sermon to be preached annually in the chapel on the first Sunday in the year 'to remember people of their mortality.'

NEW PEAL OF BELLS AT CORBRIDGE PARISH CHURCH.

A new peal of six bells, recently placed in the tower of Corbridge parish church, was inaugurated on Tuesday, May 22nd. The project of obtaining the new peal arose from the local memorial of her Majesty's Jubilee. Amongst other objects, it was decided to recast the three old bells, but Mr. F. M. Laing, of Farnley Grange, offered to provide a new bell, and this example was followed by Mr. T. Sheldon, of Summerville, and his sister, Miss Sheldon, and at a meeting of inhabitants of Corbridge, held in January last, it was determined to complete the peal of six bells. The weight of the peal is 31 cwt., the tenor weighing about 7 cwt. The bell presented by Mr. Laing bears the inscription: "This bell was presented to the parish of Corbridge by F. M. Laing, Esq., of Farnley Grange, in commemoration of the Jubilee of the reign of Queen Victoria, June, 1887." On the bell presented by Mr. and Miss Sheldon is a similar notification, and on the third bell is inscribed: "Three old bells in this tower were replaced by this peal, the cost of which was defrayed by present and former parishioners to commemorate the Jubilee of the reign of Queen Victoria, June, 1887." The cost of the whole peal is estimated at £281.

At the service held in the afternoon there were present the Bishop of Newcastle, Canon Barker, Hexham; Canon Dwaris, Bywell; Canon Cruddas, Warden; the Rev. T. Faulkner, St. John Lee; the Rev. H. Slater, Riding Mill; the Rev. C. E. Blackett-Ord, Ovingham; the Rev. W. Sisson, Slaley; the Rev. T. Talbot, Newcastle; the Rev. A. Hemsted, Stagshaw; the Vicar of Corbridge (the Rev. F. Richardson), and the Rev. Mr. Richardson, curate of Corbridge.

The Bishop, who preached, took for his text the words "None shall appear before me empty." (Exodus, chapter 34, and part of the 20th verse.)

After referring to the great law of self-sacrifice as exemplified in the life and death of Christ, he said they had come together that day to thank and praise their God and to dedicate to His services and to His use, and to His people's use that new peal of bells. They were asking Almighty God to accept something at their hands, and He who had through all the long pages of history contained in the Bible ever graciously accepted the gifts which men had humbly and earnestly offered Him, would accept it at their hands. What did those bells mean? In the first place they were the outcome of gratitude and thanksgiving to Almighty God for the long years of prosperity during the reign of their present gracious Sovereign. They were the outcome then, of hearts that had looked beyond themselves and their own time and their own parish, and who had striven to glorify Almighty God by doing something for His house, and something which should do good to others in times to come, when they themselves should be gathered to their rest. Once more the text seemed to sound in their ears, "None shall appear before me empty;" and as the year of thanksgiving was closing their thanks took a concrete form, and now the peal of bells was added to the church. What would the bells do? Remember how for long years the grey old walls and tower of that church had preached their silent lesson; how those old stones, many of them of very great antiquity, had seen generation after generation come up and be gathered to its rest; how the voices of happy children had been heard around that old tower and around part at least of the church, and how those children had grown up and seen their own children, and perhaps their children's children, playing where once they played, and their bright and happy voices echoing where once their own voices echoed. Now, thank God for it, there should in that peal of bells be an articulate voice uttered from that church tower. Those bells would utter their message from Almighty God far and wide. There had been times when there were seen through all the country side the sudden red signs telling of the approach of a hostile foe, and times when the bell had rung out in startling, wild, sharp tones of the coming of a foe or the outbreak of a fire; but now these new bells would tell, in quieter tones it might be, but still with steady and sweet persistency, once more something at least of the notes of the Gospel story. They would tell, as they rang out day by day and week by week, of the presence of that all-pervading foe, and would bid them to gather once more in the house of God. They would remind all of the steady, persistent onslaught of one who for all those long past generations had been hunting men's souls, and who, ever since the time when he was cast out of heaven, had been striving to drag others down to his own dark level. At least let those church bells witness for them that there was one who, if they turned from the service of the house of God, would walk with them wherever they went, and who would laugh, and smile, and be pleased if they turned their backs upon the public duty of the worship of Almighty God. But it would do far more than that, for consider the message and blessing which was offered from God. It was when they were in some far country where no church bell struck their ears on Sundays, that they understood better the sweet meaning of that summons. He had stood beside men in the backwoods of America, and had heard them say they would give almost anything to hear once more the sound of the old church bells which they had thought so little of when day by day and week by week they had sounded in their ears. Remember how those bells would speak to the careless. Perhaps at first striking deaf ears, and then finding an echo through the ears into the heart. Such blessed sounds coming upon some hard heart at a time of unaccustomed softness had been known ere now to awake old memories in the heart. Days of bygone innocence had come up before the mind. Times when with father or mother he or she went to public worship on Sunday, and had thus by the sound of the church bells been directed to the house where they had long been strangers. But not there did the message cease, for every weekday there might be those blessed sounds for the occasional services, as they were called; and though they might be owing to their business or occupation unable then to enter the church, still the bells would tell their tale, and with the swift motion of thought they would enter into the spirit of the service, though in bodily presence they were far distant. Surely those bells would further God's work in the parish and in the countryside, for wherever their tongues should sound they would serve to "ring out the false, ring in the true." Let the bells say to them whenever they heard them the words of the old text from Exodus, "None shall appear before me empty." The providing of the bells was another step towards a perfect service, but much lay help was still required in the parish. In conclusion, he said might God so bless the work of the clergy and laity in the parish, and might He so fill the hearts of those to whom he spoke that they may be enabled now to put into practice more perfectly that great law of self-sacrifice which was written in the life of their Master. Might they be so helped by God the Holy Ghost that they might live and work for God, that when the time came when they should be called up to Him they might not appear before God empty.

A tea meeting was afterwards held in the Town Hall, where a very large company assembled. The tables were presided over by Mrs. Reed, Aydon House; Miss Richardson, the Vicarage; Mrs. Richley, Dilston Villa; Mrs. Laing, Farnley Grange; Mrs. Miller, Laurel House; Mrs. Ridley, Mrs. Deuchar, Mrs. Cousins the Misses Irving, Piper Close; and Misses Wilson, Greenwell, Reed, Sheldon, and Lowes. At the after meeting the Vicar presided, and a number of addresses were given. After the church service, and at intervals during the afternoon, the St. Stephen's (Newcastle) Guild rang merry peals on the new bells.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

ON Whit-Monday, a mixed company of ringers belonging to the above Association, with some of their wives from Dudley, Tipton, and Netherton, including Mr. W. Micklewright, from Stafford, journeyed by brake to Stourport. Starting from Dudley soon after 8 a.m., on a lovely May morning, a splendid drive was enjoyed by all. Arriving at a wayside inn midway between Stourbridge and Kidderminster, a halt was made, and forming ourselves into a gipsy party, partook of a good breakfast. After an hour's stay, another start was made, the lovely scenery along the route being greatly admired, Stourport being reached about 11.30 a.m., after a most beautiful and pleasant ride. Seeing to our good steed, we again refreshed the inner man, and proceeded on foot over Stourport bridge (for which we had to pay toll), along the main road, where nature appeared to us to have put on her most beautiful foliage, to the picturesque village of Areley Kings. The tower of this Church contains a peal of six bells, the first five by Mears of London, the tenor being added by Blews and Sons, Birmingham, but it is not in harmony with the rest. The local band had made two attempts for a 720 in the morning, but failed. Some of our party having arrived, a 360 of Plain Bob was rung. The company now being complete, a 720 of Kent Treble Bob was brought round, this being the first in any method ever rang upon the bells. Several other attempts were made with some of the local ringers in, but came to grief. Courses of Grandsire Doubles, Triples, and Caters, were rang upon the handbells in the churchyard, which commands a good view of the surrounding country. The Rector, who takes an interest in his ringers, supplied us at our own wish with some good coffee, which was very much enjoyed.

The rev. gentleman having joined the company, a vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. J. Smith (Netherton), thanking him most heartily for the use of the tower and bells, and also for his genial kindness. This was seconded by Mr. W. R. Small (Tipton), who in a few appropriate remarks spoke of the good work being done by the various Guilds and Associations, and impressed upon those present who were not members, to become such, and so help to carry out the objects we had in view. The rev. gentleman in responding, said he was most happy to meet us, and we were quite welcome to what we had received from him. He was pleased to find his own ringers were progressing, and thanked us for our visit amongst them, hoping to see us again. A request being made by him to hear the handbells, a course of Grandsire Caters was rung in front of the rectory by W. Pardoe, 1-2; J. Smith, 3-4; W. Micklewright, sen., 5-6; W. Micklewright, jun., 7-8; W. R. Small, 9-10; for which the rector and his good lady thanked us very kindly. After showing the party over his grounds, which were very nicely decorated with various kinds of beautiful flowers, and poultry of different breeds, including a splendid peacock, who to our interest, was almost as knowing as a human being when spoken to, and quite took us by surprise. Having thanked the local ringers (some of them members of the Association), for having the bells in readiness, we retraced our footsteps towards Stourport. A short stay here while our conveyance was being put in readiness, a move was made for the village of Hartlebury, the residence of the Rev Dr. Phillpott, Lord Bishop of Worcester. Here again we refreshed ourselves with what was left of our little store, much to our enjoyment. Having been granted permission to ring, we were informed by the local ringers that the bells were in bad ringing condition, that they had been at work at them for several hours that morning, to make them if possible go a little better, and for which we were greatly indebted to them, and thanked them for their trouble. Ascending the tower we proceeded to raise the bells, when we very soon found that the local company were perfectly right in the go of the bells. Not to be daunted, a start was made for a 720 of Plain Bob, which was accomplished not before each ringer had had quite as much or even more than he bargained for. This is the first 720 of Bob Minor rung on the bells for a number of years, a 720 of Grandsire Minor being rang upon them by Worcester men three or four years ago. It is to be greatly deplored that a peal of six bells in such a place as this should be allowed to remain in such a state as not to be ringable, without making slaves of those who wish to ring them. Would that we could prevail upon the proper authorities here (and at other places), to join us in our ringing enterprise, and so make our Church towers fit to be a part of the sacred edifice, and our bells in easy going order. Everything being in readiness, another start was made, this time on our homeward journey. Arriving at Kidderminster, the Coffee House was visited for a little more refreshment. Moving on again till we reached the wayside inn (where we had breakfast), a stay for another hour was made, where we were entertained by a mimic, who in various somersaults and gambols, quite rivetted our attention for the time being. Although this was very pleasing to us all as a little pastime, we had to leave it behind, as time was getting on, and we should soon be due at our various destinations, which we all reached safely, without a hitch of any kind at an early hour, each one expressing themselves highly pleased, and feeling better after such a pleasant day's outing. An account of the ringing will be found on another page. J. SMITH.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX-BELL RINGERS.

The tenth annual meeting of the above Association was held at St. Andrew's, Leyland, on Whit-Saturday, and the day being exceedingly fine, attracted ringers from Preston, St. Andrews, Leyland, St. James, Leyland, Chorley, Standish, Blackrod, and Eccleston. During the afternoon and evening several 720's of Bob Minor were rung. At five o'clock over forty sat down to a knife and fork tea provided at "The Eagle and Child" Inn. After tea the members adjourned to the Grammar School, where the usual meeting was held, the president (Mr. William Bowling) in the chair, to receive the accounts of the Treasurer and Secretary, and to elect officers for the ensuing year. A vote of thanks to the Chairman for presiding, and to the rector for the use of the bells, brought the meeting to a close.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1888.

At the annual meeting of the Essex Association, held at Chelmsford on Whit-Monday, the Vicar of Writtle, who it will be remembered is the Hon. Secretary of the Association, spoke in very kindly terms of the claims of this paper to the support of all ringers. The reverend gentleman said of course what he really thought, and his remarks, we are told, were received with no small amount of favour by the meeting. We greatly regret, however, that the Rev. J. B. SEAMAN thought fit to traverse, in a manner, the kindly advocacy of Mr. PAPILLON, and to contrast "THE BELL NEWS" with Church Bells. We shall not repeat in this place the observations of Mr. SEAMAN. It will effect neither harm or good to our contemporary or ourselves. But we should like to point out the bad taste, to say the least, of any one attacking this journal when upon their own confession they never read it, and therefore must be ignorant of the nature of its contents. All that Mr. SEAMAN said of our contemporary we heartily subscribe to, and more. We have more knowledge of that journal than Mr. SEAMAN, and a greater and longer acquaintance with its past and present ringing Editor than he has. But we claim that our journal has done good also in the promotion and extension of good ringing; effects which would not only astonish Mr. SEAMAN but many of our kind supporters. Whether he may believe this to be the case or otherwise we know not; we are willing to abide by the verdict of the ringing community.

Mr. SEAMAN can hardly know of the wear and anxiety which has to be borne in establishing a newspaper, no matter of how small proportions. And when through no small amount of toil and sacrifice these initial troubles have been surmounted, and the reward is looked for, it is annoying to hear of such observations being made as he has thought fit to make. Had he previously seen what effect his words would have upon his audience, he would no doubt have left out that part of his speech which is a direct attack upon us. The rev. gentleman is of course no ringer; that goes without saying. But we can name other clergymen, non-ringers, who give us their warm support and encouragement, clergymen who from time to time take the trouble to compliment us upon the moral tone of "THE BELL NEWS." A letter of this description from a Kentish Vicar lies before us as we write. "THE BELL NEWS" will not suffer from this attack. It is the first the paper has experienced; and we are thankful to those friends who at the meeting taught our antagonist that he was quite alone in his strictures.

Correspondence.

[While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—Your correspondent, Mr. Parker, of Slough, is quite right as regards the peal of Grandsire Triples by Mr. Penning, given on page 106 of Snowdon's Work. At the first lead is the single, whose handstroke and backstroke are thus:—

1 5 7 6 2 4 3

but at the 141st lead, being a plain lead, come the changes:

1 5 7 6 2 4 3

similarly the 26th lead is the single:

1 5 2 3 7 4 6

the handstroke of which is repeated at the 235th lead. And while these two occur each twice, the changes 1572634 and 1527364 are not to be found in the peal. The calling given is adapted to the use of Holt's plain lead singles, but bob singles are inadmissible, the reason being, as Mr. Parker points out, that they are not a pair.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER.

SIR,—My thanks are due to Mr. Parker for drawing attention to the peal given in Mr. Snowdon's "Grandsire," with ninety bobs and two singles. I also apologise to the Editors of that excellent work, and especially to Mr. Charles Jackson and his company who have rung it. The peal as composed is true; but in making a variation of it, I inadvertently substituted a Holt's bob-single for a plain lead single, with the unfortunate result of producing two false changes. In enclose the peal in another form, which I trust you will favour me by inserting; I would take this opportunity of strongly recommending "Grandsire" to all who are interested in the method, as it is certain that in no other work can so complete information be obtained; and I very much regret, through carelessness, to have marred a page of it by a false peal.

JNO. F. PENNING.

SIR,—Mr. Parker's letter makes me dizzy. The late Mr. Snowdon had inserted in his ms. the peal on page 106. It would therefore have appeared in print even supposing that its falseness had been demonstrated. Knowing that the ancients were not always to be trusted for accuracy, I examined some of the old touches, with the result that one (see page 56), turned out to be false. But in such names as those of Penning, Pitstow, etc., Mr. William Snowdon and I put implicit confidence—not to mention the fact that this peal had been rung at Hull in 1884.

CHARLES D. P. DAVIES.

SIR,—Referring to the above letter, Mr. Davies | courteously forwarded it to me for perusal, and I ought to have sent it to your columns last week, but it failed to reach me until too late, owing to my being busy interviewing a few of the hill tops of our beautiful Yorkshire. I fear nothing more can be said. Mr. Penning has evidently tripped in the higher lands of composition; and it has taken us four years to find it out. The peal was first published in "THE BELL NEWS," on April 12th, 1884. The thanks of the Exercise are certainly due to Mr. Parker for the attention he is giving to Grandsire composition. In conversation with Mr. Tom Lockwood in the Leeds parish church tower on Sunday—the bells being only chimed for a few minutes on account of illness in the vicinity—he pointed out to me that the awkwardness of the Grandsire calls had driven his father (Mr. James Lockwood), to introduce special singles of his own into his peals (given on pages 87 and 97 of Grandsire), and he also expressed his opinion that these latter singles would make the peal in question run true. I mention this, not as favouring the manufacture of singles, but as a point which may interest composers who are sure to turn their eyes to Mr. Penning's peal. Mr. Penning has also a patent single, of which perhaps he will have something to say. W. SNOWDON.

Old Bank Chambers, Leeds, May 29th.

P.S.—Since writing the above, Mr. Herbert W. Needham, a member of the Yorkshire Association, and of the Leeds parish church company, points out that Mr. Penning's peal on page 104 of Grandsire, is also false at the singles, which will be seen on examination of the hand and back strokes of the twelfth lead after the second single, where the 7th enters the hunt.

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—In your issue of the 19th of May, there appears a 5504 of Bob Major, by Mr. H. J. Tucker, which is so good a copy of a 5056 with the same qualities (by myself) and which was published in your columns the 31st of March last, that I may be excused for drawing attention to the resemblance. On comparing the 5504 with the 5056, it will be seen there is very little difference indeed, the difference occurring in the second course where our friend introduces a bob w (which certainly does not improve the musical qualities) and by running on H course, thus lengthens the 5056 by a course in each of the four parts, and in the fifth course he picks up the fourth course-end of the 5056, and then the two peals run exactly similar to the end of the part. As he uses exactly the same calling to part the tenors, and to bring them together again, and moreover does not improve in any way on the original peal, I think he will agree with me that the resemblance hides the difference, and that he has been forestalled in peals having the qualities claimed. JOHN R. PRITCHARD.

THE ST. JAMES'S SOCIETY, LONDON.

SIR,—I am requested to give notice that the peal of Grandsire Major, rung at Christ Church, Southgate, on March 1st, 1888, was not a St. James's peal, as one of the performers is not a member of this Society. J. BARRY, Hon. Sec.

THE PEAL OF DOUBLE NORWICH COURT BOB MAJOR AT HARWICH

SIR,—I observe that the above peal, rung on Whit-Monday, by the St. Mary-le-Tower society, is credited to the Essex Association. I am sorry to be obliged to repudiate such a peal, the ringers in which have all at one time been non-resident members of this Association. But the names of three of them were removed from our list last January, notice having been duly given both privately and in "THE BELL NEWS" last autumn, that members from whom two years' subscription was then due would, unless they communicated with me before December 31st, be considered to have withdrawn from membership. One of the three has since been proposed for re-election, but unless this is also the case with the others, we cannot claim the peal in question for the Essex Association. If any members of the Association have any corrections or alterations to suggest for the forthcoming Report, may I ask them to communicate with me at once.

Writtle Vicarage, Chelmsford.

T. L. PAPILLON, Hon. Sec.

A TENOR'S OBJECTION.

SIR,—You can't think how sorry I was to hear our young ringers talking last Sunday about the report in your last issue that I was a bad-going bell, and I felt sure I should have gone quite off into hysterics, if I had not discovered that they did not agree with the report, and most of them had a kindly pull, and said they could manage three hours and a half with me without any bother. Perhaps Whit-Monday sports at Harwich made our good friends from St. Mary-le-Tower less energetic than usual, and I fancy I heard tears of distress falling from a near neighbour in the tower, whose ringer was hardly up to his usual good work. However I hope they may be more successful next time, and then I think they will agree with the remarks made in the tower last Sunday, viz., that I was a decent going bell, and fit to subscribe myself.

THE TENOR BELL OF ST. NICHOLAS, HARWICH.

P.S.—I heard many remarks made on Sunday, that visitors would be welcome to come and disprove the report, and I hope they will.

Obituary.

WILLIAM HINTON.

On Monday afternoon last, May 28th, the Cirencester company met at the tower of the parish church at 2.30 to pay the last tribute of respect to their departed chief, Mr. W. Hinton, builder, who expired on Wednesday morning, May 23rd, at his residence, Chester Street, Cirencester, after a very brief illness. Although for some months past his breath was very bad, he would sit at the bottom of the tower and listen to the bells, being too stout to climb the stairs. He retained his faculties up till within the last three days of his death. Punctually at 2.30 the company rang 840 changes, with the bells deeply muffled, the tenor being open on one side to represent the tolling bell. While he was being conveyed to the cemetery, a distance of a mile and half from the church, and after an interval of fifteen minutes half the buffs were taken off. During the return journey another 840 of Grandsire Triples was rung by the following: J. Ponlin, 1; J. Earl, 2; W. Moorman, 3; G. Mason, 4; H. Treeth, 5; H. Hughes, 6; G. Davis, 7; H. Cluttbuck (conductor), 8.

RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Whit-Tuesday, May 22nd, the St. Michael's society, Melbourne, Derbyshire, decided to pay a visit to Coleorton and Ashby, for the purpose of ringing a peal at each place. Permission having been obtained from the respective Vicars, a start was made about 9.30., Coleorton church being reached about 11 o'clock. Owing to a pin being broken, however, a slight delay occurred until about 11.30., when the bells were raised, and a start made for Holt's ten-part peal, which was successfully brought round in 3 hrs. 6 mins. (see peal page). The "go" of the bells was everything that could be desired, and they are a remarkably sweet sounding peal, though very little change-ringing is done on them, only when visited by strange bands, which is a great pity. Arriving at Ashby about four, arrangements were at once made for refreshments, after which a move was made to the parish church, with the intention of ringing the first peal of Major on the bells, which by the kindness of some of the Ashby ringers had been raised previously. It was very soon found however, that a peal of Major on them was impossible, owing to the heavy "go" of the sixth, seventh, and eighth bells, which was a great disappointment. The days' ringing was consequently finished up with a few short touches of Bob Major, Oxford Bob Triples, and Grandsire Triples, in which some of the Ashby men took part. The Melbourne ringers wish to thank the Vicars of Coleorton and Ashby through the medium of this paper for their kindness in granting the use of the bells, and also the Ashby ringers and the steeple-keeper at Coleorton, for getting everything in readiness.

DEDICATION OF TREVETHIN CHURCH BELLS, SOUTH WALES.

A special sermon in connection with the new peal of bells, was preached at the above church on Whit Sunday morning, by the Rev. J. Jones, vicar of Bassaleg. There was a large congregation present. The preacher, whose text was selected from Acts ii, verse 2, "A sound from heaven," referred to the festival of the day, being the birthday of the Church. The mode of the spirits manifestation was such as to arouse the attention and strike home into the souls of those present. After alluding to the power of sound over the emotions of the human heart, and to the use of bells in religious ceremonies from remote antiquity, he concluded with an earnest exhortation that his hearers would seek the Lord in all appointed ways. Considerable interest was manifested in the opening of the new peal of bells on Whit Monday, when the Upton St. Leonards (Gloucestershire) company rung Holt's Original, an account of which appeared last week. It was Mr. R. Brunston's (who is organist of St. Mary-de-Crypt, Gloucester), first peal of Triples, and he was heartily congratulated by all. The "go" of the bells is splendid, and they are in excellent tune.

HANDBELL CONTEST AT LIVERSEDEGE.

The Liversedge Royal Albert Prize Handbell Ringers promoted a series of contests on Whit-Monday, at their Meeting House, the "New Inn," Littleton, and they were a source of considerable attraction to ringers in the neighbourhood and others residing some distance away. There were three events of eight, ten, and five bells respectively, and in all twenty-three companies competed, which was considered a very satisfactory entry. The aggregate prize money amounted to £8. The premier ringing was in the eight-bell contest, the competition being keen, and the judges having some difficulty in deciding how to make their awards. In the ten-bell event, companies Nos. 1 and 2 rang fairly well. No. 3 was not so fortunate, and No. 4 went out altogether. Of the nine entries in the six-bell contest only 3 sets rang with any merit, the rest of the work being very indifferent. The judges were Mr. Jas. Lodge, of Hull, and Mr. Wm. Goodall, of Liversedge, and their decision gave entire satisfaction to all the competitors. They awarded the prizes as follows: eight bells: first, £2 10s., Dewsbury; second, £2, Almondbury, senr.; third, £1, Almondbury, jun.; fourth, 10s., Birstall Old; ten bells: first, 15s., Birstall Old; second, 10s., Dewsbury; six bells: first, 15s., Birstall Old; second, 10s., Dewsbury. There was a large attendance.

RAUNDS, WELLINGBOROUGH, AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATIONS.

By kind permission of the Rev. Canon Lindsay, the eighth annual meeting of the above society took place at the parish church of Kettering, on Whit Monday. This is the first time it has been fixed for a Bank Holiday, but the large attendance of ringers and general success of the proceedings, proved the wisdom of such an arrangement. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, Kettering, is a large building in several styles of architecture, from Early Decorated to late Perpendicular. Its principal feature is the extremely handsome and lofty tower and spire, dating from about the year 1450. The bells (a peal of eight, tenor 26 cwt.), were fully described in "THE BELL NEWS" a few weeks since. It is intended before long to restore the Church at a cost of over £7000, with an additional expenditure of £700 for re-hanging the bells and making various improvements to the belfry. In the ringing-room, just above the west entrance, are several tablets recording peals of Grand-sire Triples rung in the years 1729, 1731, and 1840. Judging by the quick time in which the earlier peals were rung, it is most probable that the old tenor (recast in 1832), was considerably less in weight than the present fine bell. Bands from Kettering, Wellingborough, Raunds, Rushden, Ringstead, and Higham Ferrers, handled the ropes by turns during the morning and evening.

At one o'clock a public service was held in the parish church, and was well attended by ringers and others. The lessons were read by the Rev. Hugh Bryan, of Raunds, and the Rev. W. M. Croome, vicar of Islip, preached an appropriate sermon on the duties and responsibilities of church bell ringers, pointing out the motives which ought to influence them, and the sacredness of their office.

A dinner was provided by Messrs. Reesby and Palmer, in the Iron Room, Workhouse Lane, to which about fifty sat down, the clergy present being the Rev. Canon Lindsay, Rev. J. P. Goodman (Keystone), Rev. W. M. Croome, Rev. G. M. Edmunds (Stoke Doyle), Rev. W. O. Leadbitter (Denford), Rev. A. S. Lindsay, Rev. H. Bryan. Immediately after dinner, the business meeting was held, the Rev. Hugh Bryan, Hon. Secretary of the society, presiding. After reading the minutes of the last annual meeting, the chairman referred to the loss the society had sustained in the death of Mr. W. H. Henson, who for many years rung both in Kettering and Finedon belfries, and also of Mr. J. Thompson, of Higham Ferrers, and Mr. A. Groom, of Ringstead, whose death occurred a short time since through an accident at Islip Furnaces. He was glad to announce the Rev. A. S. Lindsay had become an honorary member of the society, and Mr. Bryan went on to state he had been informed that some of their ringers were not churchmen, nor had they ever been baptised. Although he did not care where a man was baptised, so long as he was baptised, yet he thought every ringer should be an admitted churchman, before being allowed to regularly ring a bell. The society now numbered twelve honorary members, and forty-eight ringing members.

The Rev. J. P. Goodman, treasurer of the society, stated that their financial position was very good, as he had about £18 in hand. A new code of rules, which had been put off from several annual meetings, was next considered.

It was unanimously carried that, seeing the Higham Ferrers' bells were in an unserviceable condition, the next annual meeting be held at Wellingborough, on Whit-Monday, 1889.

An excellent tea was provided for all the ringers in the rectory grounds by Mrs. Lindsay, and the rest of the evening was spent in performances on the handbells, and other amusements.

OAK APPLE DAY AT WELLINGBOROUGH, NORTHANTS.

THE 29th of May has almost lost its meaning at the present day. A few sprigs of oak, and here and there a weazened oak apple, was all. How different in our boyhood's days half a century ago. Then the first cry heard in the morning was "Show your oak," and woe to the schoolboy whose loyalty or memory was at fault; he was pinched in tender parts, his head punched, his hat knocked over his eyes, he was kicked from pillar to post, subjected to the greatest indignities, and sent home roaring. The carter had a bit in his hat, the miller stuck a sprig in the head gear of each of his bravely-stepping team, the ploughman a shred in his smock frock, the tradesman sported it in his button-hole, school boys, as a matter of course, bedizened themselves with it, and all who did not in some way "show their oak" were not reckoned up to much. One pretty custom in connection with the day was that of sporting gilded oak apples, which, taking gold leaf easily, were displayed on all hands. You saw them in vases, in house windows, worn as button-holes, or carried as bouquets, and when newly done, they presented a lively appearance. There was a general hacking and hewing of the brave old oak on the evening of the 28th, to furnish boughs for the several hostelrys, and there was also a large handsome branch fastened over the west doorway of the parish church. Much beer flowed in the pursuit of this occupation, and sometimes bad blood was engendered in consequence of owners of trees objecting to have them cut and maimed: but they were always got by hook or by crook, and most of the inn-keepers used to have one over their doorways. Then there was such bell ringing! Lookers on would gather in the poky little chamber that then did duty as a belfry; watching six brave ringers, stalwart and strong, as they stood on the belfry floor, each with his foot in a leather thong, pulling, hauling, perspiring, and calling for "bob" and "sally," "firing" the bells, and turning them upside down and inside out in honour of the day, and quaffing deep draughts at "Dicky Beetle's" long before the days of Belfry Reform. Oh! the salvos that made the old steeple reel, the changes that were rung, the dodges, the touches, the knowing nods, the brace buttons that were shed, the seams that were rent asunder, the sweat that was poured out as a libation, are they not engraved on my memory indelibly. Not only on Restoration Day our countrymen showed their oak; it has been displayed ere now in many a tough battle on the sea; the wooden walls of old England have many a time and oft won the victory against fearful odds. By showing our oak we are masters of the sea; whether our huge top-heavy iron pots of the present day will continue, it is another question; the furniture of our grand old mansions was of native oak, our ancestors dined at oak tables; our grandsires laid by their linen in oak chests big enough for coffins, indeed, they occasionally did duty for that ominous adjunct of mortality, the story of the mistletoe bough to wit; they worshipped in oak, dispersed lustice "with brow severe" in oaken chairs, and went to bed and snored on oak four-posters. There seems to be an affinity twixt oak and the British character. "The Brave Old Oak," sung in stentorian unison in an atmosphere of tobacco smoke, in an ancient hostelry with a sanded oak floor, rafters black with age, and beams bulky enough for the Royal George, is a triumph that can only be achieved in this highly-favoured land. I am afraid we had rather hazy ideas as to the 29th: there was something said about Charlie coming to his own again, Charlie over the water, Charlie this and Charlie t'other; about an arrow being shot into an oak tree, and an owl flying blinking out in the sunshine. England, they said, had got a King again, it was no longer a sin to laugh, broad grins were in fashion. Sermons were limited to two hours' duration, the play houses were legally opened, wigs were at a premium, low bodices and curls were to the fore, jewellery flashed and sparkled on the brow of beauty; the gift of good looks was no longer deemed a device of Satan; pamphlets, pasquinades, and lampoons were sown broadcast; duels were fought in the streets of the Metropolis, and citizens spitted at the shortest notice; fiery zealots went about seeking whom they might devour, paying opponents all those delicate attentions peculiar to unreason and rampart rascality; Westminster Abbey is ransacked, the graves are opened, the dead disturbed, their bones are scattered, the pillory is erected, the gallows built, the gibbet raised, the restoration complete. "God save the King."

THE HERTFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A Meeting of the members will be held at Hatfield, Herts, on Saturday, June 16th. The tower will be open for ringing from 3 p.m. At 5 o'clock a business meeting will be held at the Coffee Tavern, to elect an Honorary Secretary and transact general business.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Let us be happy together."

Whitsuntide has come and gone, and we once more settle down to our every-day life and work. It is to be hoped that (as in my own case) the remembrance of our last brief holiday will be of a pleasant nature, and that—in whatever way we have enjoyed the welcome break in our labour—we may all of us have cause to reflect that we have made the most of the short space of time at our disposal for rest and recreation.

* * * * *

As you well remark, Mr. Editor, the ringing events of the season, "though not so great as the preparations would indicate, were nevertheless very far from being unimportant." The fifteen peals recorded from Saturday to Tuesday, if possessing few special characteristics, shew at least that our friends have been busily engaged in their favourite art during the holidays. The number of "first peals" reported, also, denotes that our younger brethren have been equally to the front with their elders in their great ringing performances.

* * * * *

Of the peals recorded, without doubt, the 13,054 of Stedman Caters at Cheltenham is the principal item; not merely on account of its being the longest length rung, but also by reason of its being the only successful peal out of the several previously announced attempts. I was pleased to see the name of our genial friend, Mr. C. H. Hattersley, among the list of performers; and if the respected Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild can yet claim the front place among our change-ringing clergymen for the longest lengths, the Revs. C. D. P. Davies and G. F. Coleridge can at least shake hands with him and say that they have beaten his record in one of them at any rate; and no one, I imagine, will be more happy to congratulate them than Mr. Robinson himself.

* * * * *

It is to be hoped that this friendly rivalry in ringing will never be allowed to flag, as there can be no doubt that such a spirit will prove of an inestimable benefit to the Exercise, not merely in the practical part of it, but also in the good feeling which it cannot fail to engender and maintain in all matters—social or otherwise—in connection with our art. Nothing succeeds so effectively in breaking up societies and Associations as jealousy and envy; while on the other hand there is scarcely anything conceivable which so well tends to the advancement of any science, art, object, or body of men engaged in any particular pursuit as a real honest friendly rivalry; each one striving to emulate the good qualities of others, and endeavouring to excel in them—not from motives of vanity and self aggrandisement, but for the simple purpose of benefitting the cause in which they are engaged. When that spirit is abroad success follows as a natural sequence.

* * * * *

The first visit of the Rev. F. E. Robinson and Mr. J. W. Washbrook to Essex was certainly an unfortunate one from a ringing point of view. Three attempts at peals in two days, and all of them failures, must have been (to say the least of it) discouraging, and particularly so when none of them was through any fault of the ringers themselves. In spite of the most diligent care and supervision, ropes will persist in slipping wheel and breaking—these are events with which most of us are only too familiar; but when a peal is brought to an untimely end through the interruption of an official, whose chief characteristics seem to be vanity and a mistaken notion of his authority, it is more than ordinary disappointing. When that individual made his complaint that his most gracious permission had not been obtained, I only wonder that Mr. Robinson, knowing, as he must do, the law on the matter, did not peremptorily order the intruder to either stop his unwarrantable interference or leave the belfry. It is certainly to Mr. Robinson's credit, not only as a clergyman but as a gentleman, that he did not act in such a summary manner. Had that over officious warden conducted himself in like manner in many belfries which I am acquainted with, I very much fear he would not have been treated so courteously as he appears to have been in this instance.

* * * * *

That circumstance brings to my mind a point in which I think our brethren ought to be well posted, namely, the relative positions and authority of Vicars and Wardens, so far as they concern the working of ringing. There is a little book published entitled "The Law of Churchwardens and Sidesmen," a perusal of which will shew most conclusively that the Vicar of the parish is the legal authority in the matter of how and when the bells shall be rung. If he requires the bells ringing, or gives his consent to the same, the wardens and sidesmen have virtually no power to interfere. He is de facto "master of the situation." Even should the wardens give their consent to the ringing, he can if he chooses veto their action. The law seems clear enough on that point. If, therefore, a band of ringers had obtained the permission of the Vicar to use the bells, and a warden was presumptuous enough to attempt to prevent it, because his consent had not been asked and given, were I one of the band, I should most certainly also "stand upon my dignity," tell him that he had no authority in the matter whatever, and "go on the even tenour of my way" as if the interruption had not occurred.

* * * * *

Of course, I hardly need say, it will be preferable always if possible to avoid such a cause of friction, but at the same time if ringers go about their business in a proper constitutional manner, they cannot be blamed if they resent any interference on the part of persons who have no legal status in the matter.

* * * * *

I was pleased to see the name of the Rev. C. S. Rowland among the ringers of a peal of Grandsire Triples at Rochdale. Our friends in the northern counties somehow do not seem to have gathered so many clergymen into their ranks as is the case in the south. Why this should be so, I confess I am at a loss to understand. During my visits to Yorkshire and Lancashire I have almost invariably found our brethren in those great counties thoroughly in earnest about their work; less demonstrative, perhaps, than some, but nevertheless, "their heart is in the right place" (as the saying goes), and I can never forget the many hearty greetings and welcomings which I have received there simply because I was a brother-string. The only reason I can conceive for this lack of active change-ringing clergymen amongst them is that owing to the very populous centres in which most of the clergy labour in these counties, they are unable to spare the time necessary for making themselves proficient in the art.

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS,

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

On Saturday last, June 2nd, the quaint old town of Pontefract was more than usually animated. The causes of this were: first, the fact of its being market day, and second, the visit of the Yorkshire Association to that place, with its accompanying unusual sound of merry peals on the bells of the two churches throughout the afternoon. Over 100 members attended from Armley, Birstall, Bolton, Bradford, Doncaster, Huddersfield, Keighley, Ripon, Rothwell, Sheffield, Shipley, Tong, Wakefield, York, and other places. Considerable interest had also been evinced by the churchpeople of Pontefract with regard to this first meeting of the Association in their town, and the Vicar took occasion in his monthly pastoral letter to address them as follows:—

"My dear parishioners: On Saturday next, June 2nd, the bells in our church tower will give forth an unwonted succession of sounds which you can scarcely fail to hear. Many of you will ask, what does it all mean? You will probably be told, and the announcement will be perfectly correct, that Her Majesty's birthday is being kept officially on that day. But that is not the explanation of the ringing which will then greet your ears and the ears of the market folk. No: but the explanation is, that the Yorkshire Association of change-ringers have selected our good old town for their next place of meeting. It is more than possible that the coincidence of Her Majesty's birthday with the day of meeting may keep some of the ringers at work in their own belfries, and thus take away from the number who would otherwise visit us. As it is, a company of from 120 to 150 are expected to handle the ropes—not all at once, of course—preparatory to enjoying a meat tea in the Infants' Schoolroom, Northgate. When ample justice has been done to the viands—that, I believe, is the correct way of describing what is done at the table on such occasions—one of the Association meetings will be held. Do you know much—I confess to knowing very little—about such things as Grandsire Triples, Grandsire Major, Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob Major, Yorkshire Court, and such like technical phrases? When I read that the late Edward Webster's longest length was 6720 of Oxford Treble Bob Major, at Pudsey, my breath is fairly taken away. I have a dim sort of notion—but I daresay I am all wrong—that the aforementioned worthy once pulled that number of times at a particular bell-rope, in a particular peal, without either pulling the bell down, or his own arm out of its socket. In the days of my youth I did once try to be enrolled among some clergy bell-ringers, but I draw a veil over my performances. There is every reason to suppose that Europe is the birthplace of modern bells, they seem not to have existed as musical instruments until the middle ages. The bells mentioned in the Bible were noisy accoutrements not capable of being arranged so as to produce the consecutive sounds of a musical scale. We read in the book of Exodus, xxviii., 33-35, that bells of gold were attached to the bottom of the High Priest's robe, in order that he might be heard when he came into, or went out of the Holy Place. The bells were set alternately with pomegranates; their tinkle served to notify to the people some solemn point or process in the ceremonial. We also gather from Zechariah xiv., 20, that bells were hung upon the bridles, or around the necks, of war-horses. The Greeks used to say of a horse not trained to war, that it had never heard the sound of bells. There is no doubt that horses do like a jingling sound; and when Zechariah says that 'in that day there shall be upon the bells (margin bridles) of the horses, Holiness unto the Lord,' he wants us to understand that, in the days he describes, the spirit of religion shall mingle itself with all pursuits and occupations. That is a very instructive little sermon which you and I may profitably preach to ourselves. An Italian Bishop, called Paulinus, is said to have been the first who used bells in the Christian churches to call the people to prayer, for which purpose it had been customary until then to use wooden mallets. The care bestowed upon their form and construction, particularly in Holland and Belgium, led to the casting of those rich and mellow-toned instruments whose sounds ever stir deep emotions in us, whether of joy or sorrow.

There is in souls a sympathy with sounds,
And, as the mind is pitched, the ear is pleased,
With melting airs or martial, grave or gay.

There are but few persons who do not agree with Thomas Moore, when he says:—

Those evening bells, those evening bells,
How many a tale their music tells
Of youth, and home, and that sweet time,
When last I heard their soothing chime.

"Such poems, for example, as the 'Bells of Shandon,' Longfellow's 'Belfry of Bruges,' Edgar Allan Poe's 'Bells,' are, I may say in passing, well worth reading and thinking over, in case you may wish to pursue the subject. We should be badly off without bells, as we have once or twice found out, when they were not in use. No doubt some people who live near to them sometimes wish them further away; but they must kindly make a sacrifice of their own feelings for the sake of the gratification which the sound of those bells does unquestionably give to those whose home is not close to the church tower. Bells were very generally adopted in this country as soon as parish churches were erected, and they give rise to that remarkable part of ecclesiastical architecture, the bell-tower, it being thought necessary to elevate them in order that their sound might reach to a greater distance. Early in the tenth century, the Abbot of Croyland gave the church of that Abbey a great bell, to which six more bells were added by his successor. We, in this country, have learnt to make use of bells in a way even now imperfectly understood on the Continent, namely, that of hanging them on the axis of a wheel, and ringing them by a swing. That swinging, so as to turn the mouth of the bell heavenwards, is very suggestive. It warns us against being 'of the earth, earthy;' and cries, 'Sursum corda,' 'Lift up your hearts.' But my clapper is getting talkative, so I must let my bell run down. Believe me, yours very sincerely,

The Vicarage, June 1st., 1888.

JAS. J. CHRISTIE."

It should be mentioned that a large contingent of members of Leeds and Hull were prevented from attending, the former by reason of the funeral of the late Mr. T. West, and the latter owing to their having arranged to fittingly celebrate Her Majesty's birthday.

At 3.30 a Committee Meeting was held in the Schoolroom, at which nearly all the officers were present, when twenty-nine new ringing members were elected, and other business transacted. At 4.30, between eighty and ninety sat down in the National School and partook of a very substantial meat tea, to which ample justice was done by the visitors. The room was very prettily decorated with banners, etc., and the tables presented a most charming appearance, being loaded with (in addition to the generous supply of substantial viands) a profuse display of plants, laburnums and other sweet-smelling flowers being also in abundance. The tables were presided over by Mrs. Christie, Mrs. Tomlinson, Miss Christie, Mrs. Ryder, and Mrs. Broadhead, assisted by many other ladies.

Towards the close of the tea, the Rev. J. S. Barry B.A., favoured the company present with a most efficient rendering of Edgar Allan Poe's celebrated poem, "The Bells," which was much appreciated, and was greeted with the enthusiastic applause which it so well merited. The reciter shewed that he was possessed of a fine voice, and evidently had trained himself well in the use of it.

Tea being disposed of, the general business meeting followed, the number present being augmented by the arrival of several other members and friends. Mr. W. Snowdon presided, being supported by the Rev. J. J. Christie, M.A., Vicar of Pontefract; the Rev. W. M. Tomlinson, M.A., Vicar of All Saints; the Rev. J. S. Barry, B.A., Curate of the parish church; Mr. Broadhead, Warden of the parish church; Mr. Keighley, Warden of All Saints; and other gentlemen.

The PRESIDENT commenced by reading the minutes of the previous meeting, which were unanimously passed and signed.

A course of Grandsire Caters on handbells was then rung by W. H. Howard, 1-2; C. H. Hattersley, 3-4; Mr. Thompson, 5-6; Thos. Hattersley, 7-8; W. Pearson, 9-10.

Mr. W. H. Howard proposed that the October meeting be held at York, adding that the Very Rev. the Dean had promised to make all arrangements for the annual service to be held in the Minster, and to preach the sermon. This motion was seconded by Mr. Thompson, and carried amid loud applause.

The Rev. W. H. Sandford and Mr. Albert Fearnley were then elected auditors.

The President moved, and Mr. W. Stainthorpe seconded, a resolution to the effect that any clergyman who was a honorary member, and had a ring of five or more bells at his church, should have a copy of the annual report sent to him each year free of cost. This was carried unanimously.

The President then briefly referred to the death of the late Mr. T. West, of Leeds, who had been for many years a talented and enthusiastic ringer, and also a member of the Association since its commencement. Mr. West had, through illness and other causes, left a widow and a large family totally unprovided for; it was therefore, he said, much to the credit of his brother ringers of Leeds parish church, that they had undertaken the whole cost of his interment, including the purchase of a grave. He hoped also that the fund which they intended to raise for the benefit of the widow and orphans (of which Mr. H. W. Needham, 49, Green Mount Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds, has been appointed treasurer) would be largely supported.

Mr. Thos. Hattersley moved a cordial vote of thanks to the Vicar and Wardens of the parish church for the use of the bells and the schools. This was seconded by his brother, Mr. C. H. Hattersley, who in doing so said he had noticed with much pleasure how that of late years the clergy were coming more and more amongst the ringers. It was, he thought, a good sign, and shewed not only that their art was becoming more understood and appreciated, but also that the clergy, wardens, and ringers were getting more in accord and concord one with another. That was one of the most pleasing signs of the times, and he hoped that this satisfactory state of things would long continue and improve. This motion having been carried enthusiastically.

The Rev. J. J. Christie, in responding, said he was very glad to have that opportunity of speaking a few words not only to his own ringers but also to the ringers of the great county of Yorkshire, and of assuring them of his hearty goodwill. He was also indebted to them for having given him the text for his monthly letter to his parishioners, which he remarked was singularly his 111th—three ones. After referring to the great bells on the Continent, and the sweet-toned chimes of Belgium, he went on to say that taking bells generally, and change-ringing particularly, he considered there could be no doubt that we in England more than held our own. Making some humorous remarks respecting bells and belles, which were productive of much merriment, he alluded to the address which he had issued to his parishioners with reference to that meeting, and said that all of them to whom he had spoken personally on the matter had entered into the affair most heartily. His experiences in ringing had been of a very minor character; although he did once join a society dignified by the high-sounding name of the Clergy Society of Campanologists, he confessed he never made much progress, and his last efforts in bellringing were on the 27th June, 1878, when he rung his induction bell at the parish church of Pontefract. He promised humorously that should he ever have to perform the same operation again, he would invite all the members of the Yorkshire Association to see him do it. He hoped, however, that all the visitors would return to their homes well pleased, and that the following morning would see them in their places in church, shewing that they did not call others to do that which they themselves neglected; that Vicars, Wardens, and ringers would always act in harmony with each other, and so lead a good life here that they might be prepared to lead a blessed life hereafter.

Mr. W. Whitaker proposed, and Mr. W. Stainthorpe seconded, a cordial vote of thanks to the Vicar and Wardens of All Saints for the use of the bells, which was carried very heartily.

The Rev. W. M. Tomlinson, M.A., replying to the vote, said he was exceedingly glad to see that the ringers of the present day were of so much better stamp than those of years back. They used to be, as he thought, a very "shady lot," but now they were more of a "sunshiny" character. While he could speak well of his own ringers, he was very glad to be able to say the same of the present class of ringers throughout the land, and he concluded his remarks with a very cordial expression of good feeling towards the ringers and their work both in its scientific aspect and in its object of calling the people to the House of God.

Mr. B. T. Copley proposed, and Mr. J. Broadley seconded, a cordial vote of thanks to the ringers of Pontefract for their excellent arrangements, to the ladies who had so well looked after the tea, and to the Rev. J. S. Barry, for his talented recital. This was carried with loud cheers.

The Rev. J. J. Christie and Mr. Churchwarden Ryder were then elected honorary members, and a vote of thanks to Mr. Snowdon for presiding brought the proceedings to a close.

During the afternoon the bells of the parish church (8), and All Saints (6) were kept going by the visitors, and in spite of the wet weather, the meeting was a most successful and pleasant one throughout.

The annual meeting of the Association will be held at York, on Saturday, October 6th. There will be special service in the Minster in the afternoon, at which the Very Rev. the Dean of York will preach: particulars of which will be announced in due course.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.—ANNUAL MEETING AT BRIGHTON.

The fourth annual meeting of the above Association was held at Brighton on Whit-Monday. The various delegates and members arrived at an early hour, and the proceedings opened with ringing at the churches of St. Peter and St. Nicholas.

A special short service was held at St. Peter's church at noon when the vicar of Brighton (the Rev. Prebendary J. J. Hannah) gave an address to the members, basing his remarks upon the 1st verse of Psalm cxx., "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the House of the Lord." In the course of an able address, the preacher observed that bell-ringing was in itself a means to an end. They did not ring simply for the purpose of perfecting themselves in a beautiful art, but with the object of inviting people to go into the House of God. Bell-ringing was doubtless a healthy form of exercise, but they must not forget their work was active service for God. A collection was made on behalf of the funds of the Association, and the service then concluded.

It was proposed that the Vicar should unveil five marble peal tablets in the belfry of St. Peter's Church at the conclusion of this service, but the ceremony was postponed, and some further ringing filled up the interval before luncheon. The luncheon was served in the Central Schools, Church-street, at 1.30 p.m., and the Rev. Canon Sutton (Rype) presided. About 100 members sat down to an excellent repast served by Mr. Mutton, of King's-road.

At the conclusion of the meal the annual meeting was held, when the Vicar of Brighton presided, and was supported by the Hon. Secretary (Mr. George F. Attree), Canon Sutton, the Rev. J. Puttick, M.A. (Vicar of Alfriston), the Rev. R. Hay-Hill (Rector of Parham), the Rev. R. F. Tompkins (Arundel), the Rev. T. A. Turner (Wartling Vicarage, Pevensey, late President of the Lancashire Association), and other gentlemen.

The Hon. SECRETARY having read the minutes of the last meeting, the President of the Association (the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Chichester) was unanimously re-elected to that office, after which the Vice-Presidents were also re-elected.

The following gentlemen were also re-elected to serve as a Committee: The Very Rev. the Dean of Battle, the Rev. C. H. Borrer, M.A., the Rev. Prebendary J. J. Hannah, the Rev. J. B. Orme, M.A., the Rev. Divie Robertson, M.A., to act with one delegate for each band of ringers connected with the Association.

The Hon. SECRETARY said that during the year there was nothing that had been necessary to refer to the Committee. He explained that the Committee had their work lessened by the holding of frequent district meeting.

The Rev. R. F. TOMPKINS, of Arundel, was re-elected Hon. Treasurer, and suitably acknowledged the honour conferred upon him.

In proposing the re-election of Mr. G. F. Attree as Hon. Secretary, the CHAIRMAN said he did not think the Society would have become what it had had it not been for the services of that gentleman. The resolution was agreed to.

The HON. SECRETARY, in returning thanks for his re-election, referred to the increase in the work of the Secretary, and the calls made upon his time by his own business. With the assistance, however, of Mr. J. E. Worsell, of Brighton, whom he had pleasure in proposing as Assistant Hon. Secretary, he trusted to satisfactorily discharge his duties.

The resolution having been seconded, Mr. WORSSELL briefly returned thanks.

The Rev. C. Bond (Vicar of St. Nicholas, Brighton) and Mr. Masters (churchwarden at Lindfield) were unanimously elected honorary members of the Association. Twenty-five active members were also proposed and elected.

The annual report was then taken as read. This stated the instructors of the Association had during the year been doing useful work in several parishes by imparting the knowledge of scientific ringing, and encouraging young hands to persevere and overcome the many obstacles they are sure to encounter. The Committee were sorry to report that at the present time some of the finest peals of bells in the county were seldom heard to advantage, as change-ringing was not practised by the local bands. They trusted that as the Association became better known the six eight-bell towers, and the 21 six-bell towers at present unaffiliated might be induced to join the Association. A glance at the pages set apart for the record of peals and touches shewed that much practice and time had been spent, with a result of which any Association might be proud. Seventy peals containing 5040 or more changes had been rung, a total which had never before been recorded by any single Association. Peals in several methods, including Kent Treble Bob Major, Plain Bob Major, Canterbury Pleasure Triples, and Stedman Triples had during the year been scored for the first time by members of the Association, in addition to the 70 peals, seven half-peals, three date touches, 43 quarter-peals, 12 other touches, containing upwards of 1000 changes, and no less than 308 peals of Minor (exclusive of those forming 5040's) had been rung. During the year much had again been done to improve the condition of bells and belfries throughout the county, but there were still too many parish churches where decay and neglect prevented the bells, provided in years gone by, being put to their proper use.

The statement of accounts was then submitted, shewing a deficiency of £14 14s. 8d.

The HON. SECRETARY explained that during the year heavy expenses had been incurred, and mentioned that that was the first year they had had a deficiency. He thought, however, that with careful management they could get the balance on the right side.

The Rev. R. F. TOMPKINS (Hon. Treasurer) said they need not be under any great dismay over such a small debt. He congratulated the Association upon having established itself in the remotest corners of West Sussex, but there were many vacant places in East Sussex, which they should try to get affiliated with them.

The Rev. R. HAY-HILL pointed out the items charged for conveying teams from one church to another, and suggested that members walk to places instead of riding at the expense of Association.

The balance-sheet having been adopted, the Rev. R. HAY-HILL proposed a resolution to the effect that members should not ride to other churches except at their own expense.

The Rev. R. F. TOMPKINS hoped the meeting would not hastily decide upon that motion.

After a brief discussion the proposition was agreed to.

It was then decided that the next eight-bell tower district meeting for West Sussex should be held at Heene, Worthing, and the next six-bell tower district meeting for East Sussex at Alfriston.

The Vicar of Brighton next presented to the Secretary of the Steyning band of ringers (Mr. F. Morris, jun.) the challenge bell given by the Association, and which, having won, they are to retain for one year.

The HON. SECRETARY said some time ago the Association decided to obtain a challenge bell. He was instructed to obtain one, and having seen Messrs. Warner and Son whilst in London, they not only made the bell before them, but also nicely fitted it into a case. After receiving it he had a letter followed from Messrs. Warner asking the Association to accept the bell as a present from that firm. He therefore, thought they should pass a resolution to Messrs. Warner, and he should like to propose the following resolution: "That the members of the Sussex County Association of Ringers, assembled at their fourth annual meeting, hereby express their appreciation of the handsome present of Messrs. Warner and Son in the form of a challenge bell, and the Hon. Secretary be requested to forward the best thanks of the members to Messrs. Warner."

The resolution was cordially agreed to.

Mr. F. MORRIS acknowledged the receipt of the present in suitable terms.

The HON. SECRETARY then explained that it was desirable that a committee should be appointed to draw up rules relating to the future mode of scoring for the challenge bell.

A Sub-Committee was then appointed to consider this matter, and after a vote of thanks had been accorded to the Vicar of Brighton for presiding and taking such an interest in the Association, the meeting concluded.

About six o'clock a number of the members sat down to tea at the Central Schools, Mr. G. F. Attree presiding over the gathering. Following this some further ringing was indulged in by the visitors, and the day's proceedings were brought to a conclusion.

At the luncheon delegates were present representing nearly all the branches of the Association.

The following ringing took place during the day at the parish church, a 640 of Kent Treble Bob Major. A. A. Fuller, 1; J. Newnham, 2; F. Harding, 3; J. Cheeseman, 4; W. Wadey, 5; E. Moses, 6; S. Brooker, 7; F. Wickens, 8. Also a 504 of Stedman Triples. E. Moses, 1; J. Whiting, 2; F. Smith, 3; J. Jay, sen., 4; H. Swain, 5; G. F. Attree, 6; S. Brooker (conductor), 7; L. Killick, 8. Also a 504 of Grandsire Triples. C. Hills, 1; J. Reilly, 2; J. Jay, sen., 3; Rev. R. F. Tompkins, 4; G. Thwaites, 5; H. Cornwall, 6; C. Blackman (conductor), 7; F. Finch, 8. Also a 360 of Plain Bob Minor. E. Parsons, 1; C. Clear, 2; J. Cheeseman, 3; J. Barnett, 4; F. Finch, 5; C. Hills (conductor), 6. Also at St. Nicholas church, a 504 of Grandsire Triples. C. Holman, 1; H. P. Bennett, 2; E. Willoughby, 3; C. Tyler (conductor), 4; E. Brackley, 5; T. Lewis, 6; C. Blackman, 7; W. Palmer, 8. And a 504 of Grandsire Triples, which was duly reported. Also some short touches of Stedman Triples and Treble Bob Major in which Messrs. Hewett, Whiting, Dawes, Jordan, Moses, Brooker, Lewis, Brackley, Stedman, Searle and Tyler took part.

ANNUAL TRIP OF THE WITTON RINGERS.

The annual trip of the above took place on Whit-Monday, Macclesfield being fixed upon as the place to be visited this year. I may mention here that last year's trip should have taken us to this ancient town, but owing to some hitch in the arrangements, the idea had to be abandoned for the time, though not forgotten, as will be seen from this year's programme, although it caused a little disappointment to both the Macclesfield ringers and Witton, especially the latter, and this year we determined to break down every obstacle, and to carry out our former arrangement.

The time fixed for the start being 8.30 a.m., shortly after this time Mr. Chambers' splendid waggonette was at the starting place with a fine pair of horses in the traces, who seemed to be eager to begin the journey, which was to furnish as fine a day's outing as could be desired by the most fastidious man living. At 8.40 we dashed away from the starting place in fine style, and bowled along the Manchester road, reaching Knutsford in about thirty minutes from the start. A short halt was made at the "Brown Cow," where refreshments were partaken of by most of the party. After a stay of five minutes, the journey was recommenced, when Knutsford was soon left far in the rear, and we found ourselves in one of the most beautiful parts of Cheshire, bounding along a delightful country road shaded with some of the finest beech to be found in the county, and beyond there could sometimes be seen beautiful stretches of meadow land, verdant with fine crops of every description, which must I am sure gladden the heart of the country rustic to witness the beauties of his own handiwork. After passing these, another halt was made at Chelford. After leaving this place the country become more undulating, and was intersected with small streams and beautiful woodlands gaily bedecked with every variety of colour, and the air was rich with the perfume of many flowers, the woods were actually of flowers, and merry with the songs of the birds. But I must quit all descriptions now, for suddenly our destination is viewed in the distance, and shortly after we run into Macclesfield in fine style after a journey lasting two hours and a half. We drew up in the square in front of the Church, where we were met by some of the Macclesfield ringers. After refreshments, which were quickly provided by these gentlemen, we were kindly conducted through the Church, and had, through the kindness of Mr. Matthews and the vergers, all the points connected with this ancient pile, which dates back from the twelfth century, pointed out to us. It will be inferred from this that such a place must have an history of its own, one of the most important parts being the Savage Chapel, containing some well preserved monuments of this great historic family, dating from 1500. Much more might be said about this ancient edifice if space would allow it, but many of its grand points have been destroyed by so called modern improvements. It is now time to say a word about the object of our visit, and I cannot do better than begin by thanking on behalf of myself and fellow ringers, all those who so kindly received us, and for the gentlemanly manner in which we were entertained by them, and by expressing a hope that this will not be the last day we shall have the pleasure of spending together.

There was no great things expected in the shape of ringing by any of us, but after refreshments we adjourned to the tower, which contains a ring of ten bells in good running order. After raising the bells, a break was made, when orders were sent from the Mayor that we should stop the bells for fifteen minutes, which was accordingly done. After this another break was made, but after ringing for about fifteen minutes the third bell rope broke. After undergoing repairs another attempt followed, and this time some of the home men mixed with us, but unfortunately after about 300 changes had been rung the rope gave way again, when a new end had to be spliced to it, after which 720 of Plain Bob Minor was rung, and several other short touches followed, but there was no attempts to accomplish anything great. Thus ended the day from a ringing point of view, and after again partaking of the good things provided for us in such a bountiful way, each one followed the bent of his own fancy, and many and various were the results as will be seen from the following description.

After leaving the church, the town came in for its share of attention, and we were shown the most interesting parts, and Mr. Matthews kindly took us over to his house and kindly explained the mysteries of silk weaving, so extensively carried on in this part of Cheshire. This gentleman is well-known to most ringers as the manufacturer of the bellringers' handkerchief, which we saw in course of manufacture. When we again adjourned to the "Black Horse," some courses of Grandsire Triples, Bob Major, and Caters, were indulged in by the Macclesfield ringers, and at eight o'clock a move was made for our waggnette, and after a jolly ride in the cool of the evening of two hours and a half, we reached home, everyone having thoroughly enjoyed himself, some of them so much so that they admitted they were as happy as kings.

And I may say, in conclusion, the only disappointment I experienced was because I did not hear a few courses of Stedman on the bells, but not being holiday time here, it was found impossible to get a full band together, so the thing was unavoidable, I but hope to have the pleasure when the visit is returned.

JOHN HOUGHTON.

A CORRECTION.—The weight of the tenor at St. Mary's, Cheltenham, is 22 cwt. 2 qrs. 16 lbs.

TIPTON, STAFFORDSHIRE.

On Tuesday, May 15th, 1888, at the parish church of St. Martin, a meeting was held in the belfry to unveil a peal tablet of two peals rung on the bells by members of the Tipton band. This tablet is the first ever erected in the tower. The first peal of bells were hung in the tower in 1798, being a peal of six, cast by the Whitechapel firm. One of them being broken by careless ringing, the back four were taken out and replaced by six new ones in 1848 by the same firm, leaving in the tower at the present time a beautiful peal of eight, tenor 12 cwt. 25 lbs. The first peal of Major rung on them was 5056 changes of Kent Treble Bob, in 2 hrs. and 45 mins., on February 22nd, 1852, composed and conducted by Mr. S. Marsh, of West Bromwich. There was also two peals of Grandsire Triples rung on them about the year 1856. Their was no ringing of any importance afterwards till November, 1884, when a peal of Grandsire Triples was rung, conducted by J. Fullwood, and another peal of Grandsire Major, in April, 1885. The bells, etc. being in very bad going order they were thoroughly overhauled and fitted with new brasses and gudgeons. Mr. W. R. Small was appointed steeple-keeper, and change-ringing was begun in earnest by a band who take great delight in it. 43,000 changes have been rung and brought round by the company this year in the four standard methods, viz.: Grandsire, Plain Bob, Treble Bob, and Stedman, including three peals of Grandsire Triples. At the opening of the meeting a touch of Plain Bob Major was rung by the following: H. Miles, 1; S. Spittle, 2; A. Hill, 3; E. Goodreds, 4; W. Micklewright, 5; J. Smith, 6; G. Hughes (conductor), 7; J. Goodman, 8. Afterwards the band stood in the same order as they did in the first peal, and rang a short touch of Grandsire Triples, when the Rev. A. A. Cory, Vicar, uncovered the tablet and read out the inscription painted thereon, also giving some practical advice to the ringers present on their duties as church workers, and spoke of the difference in ringing of the present day and the ringing of days gone by, which, he said, was in a great measure due to the Associations formed for the improvement of ringers and ringing. Another touch of Grandsire Triples was rung in the same order as the second peal in the tablet, with one exception, the vacancy being filled by Mr. E. Cashmore.

Mr. W. R. Small proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for his presence among them that evening to uncover the peal tablet, and for his advice and good wishes to them, and Mr. Samuel Spittle, Master of the Worcester and adjoining Districts Association, seconded.

Mr. John Warring, on behalf of the congregation, thanked the ringers for the beautiful music which they sent forth from the church tower. There were also present the Rev. H. N. Eales, Curate, Mr. Samuel Reeves, Secretary of the Archdeaconry of Stafford Association, Mr. John Smith, Secretary of the Worcester and adjoining Districts Association, and others. To close the evening's ringing a touch of Stedman Triples was attempted, but was brought to a close by the breaking of the 7th rope. W. R. Small, 1; Adam, H. Hill, 2; S. Jesson, 3; S. Reeves (conductor), 4; W. Micklewright, 5; S. Spittle, 6; G. Hughes, 7; J. Goodman, 8.

ALL SAINTS', WEST BROMWICH.

On Tuesday evening, May 29th, the members of the All Saints' society were entertained at supper by the Rev. M. M. Connor (Vicar), to commemorate the ringing of the peal which was published in "THE BELL NEWS" of May 26th. "Go" was called by the Vicar, and the fifteen members soon settled down to a steady attack on the good things provided, and got through the "courses" in a very creditable and satisfactory manner.

The cloth having been removed, the Vicar, in a few words, congratulated the ringers on the success of their getting the peal they had been striving after for some months past, and hoped it would be the means of encouraging them to still further achievements.

Mr. E. CASHMORE proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for his kindness, which was seconded by Mr. W. COOPER, and carried unanimously.

A pleasant evening was spent with cards, bagatelle, drafts, and other games.

THE NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.—ANNUAL OUTING OF THE LEISTON COMPANY.

ON Whiti-Monday the above company had their annual outing under most enjoyable circumstances. It was intended to make the rendezvous at Debenham, but on account of the illness of one of the inhabitants, they could not obtain the bells, so they decided to go to Redenhall, in Norfolk. Arrangements having been made with Mr. F. Garrod, of Leiston, for their conveyance by his brake and pair, they made a start at five o'clock and made their first halt at Heveningham, a distance of twelve miles, about seven o'clock, where they rang some Grandsire and Bob Doubles upon the tower bells. About 8 a.m. they made a start for Fressingfield, a distance of five miles further, and getting the keys, they rang a capital touch of 518 Grandsire Triples, being the first part of Holt's peal. W. Button, 1; F. Lambert, 2; F. Wilson, 3; H. Button, 4; G. Morling, 5; A. Lincoln, 6; R. Stannard (conductor), 7; J. Flegg, 8. Also 288 of Oxford Treble Bob Major, with J. Motts, of Ipswich. They then went to the Club Room, and rang upon the splendid peal of handbells a course of Grandsire Caters. F. Lambert, 1-2; A. Lincoln, 3-4; J. Motts, 5-6; R. Stannard, 7-8; F. Wilson, 9-10. About 11 a.m. they made a start once more, and crossing the river that divides Suffolk from Norfolk, they reached their destination five miles further—Redenhall—about twelve o'clock, where they were met by Mr. E. Smith, of the Redenhall society, and some touches of Grandsire Triples, Oxford Treble Bob, and Bob Major were rung, and then going to the "Yew Treee," they rang another course of Caters with Mr. E. Smith in the place of J. Motts. About three o'clock they started for Halesworth on their homeward journey, and there again a 336 of Grandsire with Queens and Tittums, and then harnessing once more, they reached home about 11 p.m., with the knowledge that they had spent one of the most enjoyable days which could fall to their lot, and they also wish to thank all those who helped to make their outing so pleasant and enjoyable a one to all.

ST. TUDY, CORNWALL.

A service was held in the parish church of St. Tudy, recently, on the occasion of the re-dedication of the fine peal of five bells. The service included appropriate hymns and special prayers, and an excellent address to the ringers by the Rev. Mr. Boles, Vicar of St. Breward. Great interest was manifested by the parishioners in the event, as they have been deprived of the pleasure of hearing the familiar tones of the bells for a considerable time, it having been considered unsafe to ring them owing to the shaky condition of the old framework and fittings, which were left untouched when the church itself was restored some fourteen years since. When, however, it became apparent that the safety of the tower was endangered by continuing to ring the bells, the Rector, the Rev. G. Bridgewater, set energetically to work to procure the necessary funds to put the belfry in order, himself leading off with liberality, with the result that the landholders of the parish responded to his appeal generally, and the amount required was soon raised. The work has been carried out in a most substantial manner by Mr. Harry Stokes, of Woodbury, near Exeter. Every detail has been attended to and a chiming apparatus has been supplied. The inscription on the bell which was badly cracked and has been recast, is "Recast, Easter, 1888, in memory of Edward Auriol Magor, of Lamellen, by May Caroline, his wife." The tower has also been repaired and strengthened, and the frame has been made to take a 6th bell.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

The Annual General Meeting is fixed to be held at Ashford, on Monday, June 18th. Committee meeting at 11; Service at 12, when the sermon will be preached by the Rev. F. E. Robinson, Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. Dinner at 1. All who mean to attend, and wish for dinner tickets, should communicate with the Secretary, not later than June 12th. And if reduced fares are desired, full particulars as to trains, stations, and numbers must be given, or no application can be made. The allowance to members is 1s. besides the dinner.

HALF-A-DAY'S BELL-PULLING.

On Saturday, June 2nd, a mixed band of ringers drafted from Rochdale, Heywood, Bury and Manchester, had previously determined to attempt two peals during the afternoon at Holy Trinity and the parish church, Bolton. On the day in question the 1.35 p.m. train from Rochdale to Bolton contained among its passengers Messrs. Hoyle, Birtwistle and Wreaks, who is at present working in Rochdale, and at Heywood picked up Messrs. Harrison, Millett and Scholey, and at Bury Mr. E. Bishop. On arrival at Bolton Station at 2.20 p.m., all got out and were met by Mr. Hamer, one of the local ringers, who greeted the visitors most cordially. Steps were turned for Holy Trinity church, where the first peal was to be attempted, and here was found Mr. G. Turner, from Manchester, who had arrived only a few minutes before the others. The bells being up, a start was soon made for a peal of Treble Bob Major at 2.45 p.m., and all went on well till 5.36, when the joyful sound of "this is all," proclaimed that peal number one had been accomplished. Steps were then turned towards a Coffee Tavern in Bradshawgate, where a comfortable tea was enjoyed. This "half-way single" duly got over, the visitors then moved towards the parish church, where a peal of Bob Major was to be attempted. At 7.7 p.m. "go" was called a second time, and success again favoured the visitors, for at 10.5 the bells were in rounds again. No time was to be lost, however, to catch the last train to Rochdale, viz.: 10.25 p.m., the visitors thus occupying eight hours and five minutes to enter Bolton and ring two different peals at two separate churches, and leaving again. The above ringers wish to thank the local companies most heartily for their kindness in meeting them and having the bells and ropes in such good order.

ST. MARY'S SOCIETY, MONMOUTH.

On Thursday, May 24th, was the day fixed for the opening of the grand new Jubilee Hall which is the gift of J. A. Rolls, Esq., of "The Hendre," near Monmouth, which he has built at a cost of about £8000. The carnival commenced on Wednesday night at 9.30 p.m., with a grand torchlight procession, with nearly 400 torches, no one being allowed to have a torch that was not in fancy costume, which having paraded the town, finished up at the new hall between eleven and twelve. On Thursday the bells were rang at intervals, but being short of a conductor nothing worthy of booking was done, but after ringing touches of 168, 336, and 504, a start was made for a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing about 21 mins., it came to grief through a single being called too late. T. Jones, 1; W. Honeyfield, Esq., 2; J. Ward, 3; J. Brown, 4; A. Bird, 5; T. M. Preece, 6; T. H. Jones (conductor), 7; H. Brown, 8. After which, there being some visitors in the belfry, some ringing commonly called "stone, or churchyard bob," was done, so as to oblige all, being the first of the sort that Mr. A. Bird (who hails from Ross), had ever rung. After which some more touches of Triples, which some of the visitors seemed to think was something grand to what they did at home.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday, June 2nd, a Quarterly Meeting of this Association was held in St. John-the-Baptist Schoolroom, Bromsgrove. The Vicar, the Rev. A. E. Seymour, M.A., presided. The usual business of the Association was transacted, in which several new members were added, including the Rev. Albany Wrey, who has just taken a curacy at Bromsgrove, and who is a ringer and a master of Stedman. The local company at this place are pretty well versed in various methods, and now with the assistance of the above-named rev. gentleman, we hope soon to see them figure in this intricate method. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the chairman for presiding, and the meeting terminated.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 1888.

WHEN the account of the Annual Meeting of the Yorkshire Association—to be found in this issue—is perused by our readers, some satisfaction will be felt at the pastoral letter which has been sent out to his parishioners by the Vicar of Pontefract. At this ancient town, the Association had determined to hold its meeting, and the Vicar not only acceded to the request for permission to ring at his church, but wisely took steps to give the inhabitants prior information of what was going to be done. His letter will therefore be read with interest, and its somewhat quaint tone will enhance the pleasure of a perusal. The rev. gentleman confesses to know very little about the technical phrases of the Exercise, and naively asks his parishioners if they know much about them! This is not the first time we have heard of a Vicar of a parish, whose church possessed a ring of bells, admitting that he knew nothing whatever of ringing. Such confessions however, generally appear to be made in a desponding kind of way, as if the want of such knowledge was felt and deplored, and that its acquisition would be a relief. We invariably reply to such admissions in the following manner: that the apparent difficulties are easily surmounted; the desired knowledge may be readily attained; the requisite dexterity can soon be acquired; and the technicalities of the science become unfolded to all who will join our ranks. Let this be our answer to the worthy Vicar, and not only to him, but to his coadjutors in the ministry in the good town of Pontefract.

This meeting of the Yorkshire Association was evidently arranged not only for the benefit of the Association in particular, but for the benefit of the art of ringing in general. We are not acquainted with the modus operandi of the committee, or whether they actually strive for the purpose, but their presence in any neighbourhood seems to stir up the inhabitants, who appear to become all at once interested in our branch of the Church's work. We do not say that this is an exclusive attribute of the Yorkshire Association, but they seem to have the happy knack of arousing the public to co-operate with them. This has been the case with the meeting in question. First of all the Vicar sends round to his parishioners a printed notice of the meeting; then we find the other clergy of the town taking part in the proceedings; and a number of ladies, relatives of the clergy, graciously presiding at the tea-table, and attending to the requirements of their ringing guests. Such a commingling is indeed very encouraging, and ringers need not lose heart when they receive such kindly attentions, though they may be met with a rebuff at other times.

Ringers are apt to speak—and they speak correctly—of the total absence of hauteur, or "stand-offishness" among those clergymen who are well-known ringers. We should imagine that the Vicar of Pontefract is a gentleman of the same stamp, and therefore we should rejoice to hear that he had gone in training for the accomplishment of a peal in one of those methods of which he yet knows so little about. At any rate we hope to hear of him again. We want his clapper to be again talkative and his bell not to run down.

A continued pressure on our space again prevents in the current number the appearance of several reports, touches, correspondence, and other matters. Our readers will no doubt exercise a little patience under any disappointment they may experience in consequence. All will appear in due course, and in the order which the exigencies of each case demand. We have this week, with other correspondence, an explanatory letter from our friend Mr. PENNING; this will appear next week. Some correspondents still neglect to enclose their names and addresses with their communications. This is desired so that the writers may be appealed to in case any of their statements may be impugned. An omission in this particular consigns what is forwarded to our waste-paper basket. As inefficient postage is also getting much more frequent than pleasant, we hope our friends will try to avoid this inconvenience. We shall be glad to hear of any efforts being made to extend the circulation of this journal.

BEACONSFIELD AND WOOBURN, BUCKS.

On Whit-Monday a band of the Oxford Diocesan Guild journeyed to Beaconsfield for the purpose of attempting a peal of Grandsire Triples on the excellent ring of bells in the parish church (permission having been readily granted by the worthy Vicar), which was duly accomplished. On leaving the tower, the band was heartily congratulated by Mr. Thomas Perryman, brother to the ringer of the tenor, who not only invited them to partake of refreshment at his residence, but drove the band to Wooburn to complete the second part of the programme, that being to inspect a peal tablet presented and written by Mr. Williams (churchwarden), recording a peal of Grandsire Triples rung at this church on Saturday, February 6th, 1886, this being the second peal on the bells, the first which was rung over forty-six years ago, and conducted by the late Thomas Tolladay.

Here they received a hearty welcome from the Rev. A. Woodin, and placing the bells at our disposal, several touches of Grandsire Triples were rung, after which an adjournment to the inn opposite, where an excellent tea was provided by the Vicar, to which ample justice was done. A touch on the handbells, and twenty minutes walk to the station, concluded a most enjoyable Bank Holiday.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—ROSSENDALE BRANCH.

A Ringing Meeting of the above branch took place at Christ Church Bacup, on Saturday, June 2nd, when about twenty-five members from Bacup, Waterfoot, Newchurch and Bolton took part in the ringing during the afternoon and evening. Touches in Plain Bob and College Single, and a 720 of Plain Bob, and 720 of Oxford Single were rung. A meeting was held in the Schoolroom at 6.30, presided over by the Rev. J. Mc Cubbin, Vicar, who kindly consented to become an honorary member of the Association.

THE HERTFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A Meeting of the members will be held at Hatfield, Herts, on Saturday, June 16th. The tower will be open for ringing from 3 p.m. At 5 o'clock a business meeting will be held at the Coffee Tavern, to elect an Honorary Secretary and transact general business. E. P. DEBENHAM, Hon. Sec. pro tem.
St. Albans, Herts.

THE SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.—ANNUAL MEETING AT DEVIZES.

The members of this Guild held their Annual Meeting in the town of Devizes on Wednesday last. A company formed of the Salisbury (St. Martin's) and Trowbridge bands, went to ring at Bishops Cannings, and the Longbridge Deverell company rang at St. Mary's several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles, as also did the Salisbury St. Edmund's company. Other bands were in attendance from the following parishes; Marlborough St. Mary, Marlborough St. Peter, North Bradley, Warminster, Great Bedwyn, Evershot, Seend, Ogbourne St. Andrew, Maiden Bradley, Mildenhall, Wishford, and Ebbesborne Wake. All the former officers were re-elected, viz.: the Rev. A. D. Hill, Master; Mr. W. Pickney, Treasurer; Mr. J. R. Jerram, General Secretary; the Revs. C. W. Hony and M. Hankey, District Secretaries; Mr. A. H. Handcock, Auditor; and the Revs. C. N. Wyld and E. G. Wyld, and Messrs. W. W. Gifford, C. A. Clements, and H. A. Garrett, Committee. The Rev. Dr. Bourne (sub-dean) was elected a vice-president. A discussion arose as to the advisability of attempting long peals on general meeting days, and it was decided not to do so in future, but it was proposed that funds permitting, the committee might occasionally pay the expenses of a band to any place in the diocese in order to attempt a peal. Some discussion also took place as to the introduction of life ringing members into the Guild, but the question was deferred until another meeting.

The annual dinner was held at the "Bear" hotel, the host catering in a very satisfactory style for about 100 guests. The chair was taken by the President of the Guild, the Earl Nelson, and among those present were the Master of the Guild (Rev. A. D. Hill, Downton), Revs. Dr. Burges and J. G. Locke (Devizes), Rev. C. W. Hony (Bishops Cannings), Rev. A. B. Thynne (Seend), and Mr. J. R. Jerram (Salisbury).

After dinner the President gave the toast of "Church and Queen," which was loyally received.

"The Health of Dr. Burges," with thanks for the use of his churches and his sermon was heartily drunk, and

Dr. BURGES, in reply, expressed the pleasure which it had given him to see them at church. Their position of ringers was a very important one in the House of God and in connection with the service of the sanctuary. In the more primitive ages the art of bell-ringing held a much more exalted status than it did in succeeding years; and it appeared that now again the old feeling was resuming its proper position in reference to the service of the sanctuary. This was as it should be. In conclusion he bade them all a hearty welcome to the town and churches.

The PRESIDENT proposed the toast of the day, "Success to the Salisbury Diocesan Bell Ringers' Guild." In doing so he enlarged upon the advantages conferred by the Guild, in promoting good fellowship, increasing the standard of efficiency of ringing, and assisting in the renovation of belfries and peals of bells. Although they had lost a few honorary subscribers, that was more than counterbalanced by the fact that more regular ringers had joined. He noticed in the report that there was a good list of belfry improvements carried out in 1887.

The MASTER of the Guild responded, and remarked upon the large proportion of young members who were joining. There was evidence that the Guild had begun to tell in the parishes, and to stir up a desire and a love for better things, and a better use of church bells. He hoped the Guild would long live and flourish.

The PRESIDENT submitted "The Hon. Secretaries—Rev. C. W. Hony and Mr. J. R. Jerram."

Mr. JERRAM, in reply, alluded to the achievements in change-ringing which last year had witnessed. He also appealed to the members to strive in their several districts to secure the support of honorary members to the Guild.

The Rev. C. W. HONY proposed "The President," and dwelt upon the practical interest his lordship took in the work of the Guild. The toast was drunk with great cordiality.

The PRESIDENT having replied, the post-prandial proceedings closed. The company then dispersed to the various belfries.

Obituary.

THOMAS WEST.

We regret to have to announce the death on May 31st, at the age of 41, after a very brief illness, of Mr. Thomas West, of the Leeds parish church company. Mr. West, who was a native of York, belonged to a ringing family. His first peal, which was one of Kent Treble Bob Major, was conducted by his father at St. Martin's-le-Grand, Coney Street, York, in which peal two of his brothers also took part, so that his family composed one half the band. He joined the Yorkshire Association at its commencement, with members of which he has rung fifty-one peals, comprising Kent and Oxford Treble Bob Major, Royal and Maximus, Grandsire Triples, Bob Major, and Stedman Caters. Before the formation of the Association he is reported to have rung other peals to the number of some ten or fifteen, of which unfortunately there is no record. He gave some little attention to the composition of Bob Major, a peal of his being published in the late Mr. Snowdon's "Rope-Sight," third edition. Mr. West, who rang for the children's service at the Leeds parish church on Whit-Monday, and was then apparently in good health, leaves a widow and nine children, who are consequently now in very straightened circumstances. As a practical expression of sympathy the parish church company and their friends undertook the entire expense of the funeral, and also bore him to his last resting place. The interment took place on Saturday, June 2nd, at New Wortley Cemetery, Leeds, and the Vicar of Leeds, the Rev. Canon Jayne, in order to show his sympathy with his ringers, took the service, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Houghton, the curate in charge of the district parish. A course of Grandsire Triples was rung on the handbells at the grave side, by the parish church company, and the bells of the parish church were rung muffled for service on the following day. On Monday evening, eight members of the parish church company met at Holbeck to ring a date touch of 1888 changes of Bob Major, composed by the deceased, but owing to the falling of a ladder, placed on the frame for the purpose of ascending the spire, amongst the bells, it was abruptly brought to a close before the first course had been rung. H. Lockwood, 1; H. Hubbard, 2; H. W. Needham, 3; W. Walker, 4; J. Hutchinson, 5; T. Lockwood (conductor), 6; R. Binns, 7; G. Fothergill, 8.

JAMES RUMSEY.

We regret to have record the death of the above gentleman, who died after a brief illness on Wednesday, May 30th, in the 28th year of his age, at his residence, Copleston Road, Denmark Park. His loss is keenly felt by the ringers of St. Sepulchre's, where he had been associated from an early age, and was ringing on the 24th (Queen's Birthday). He was a member of the Royal Cumberland Youths, and also the St. James' Society, and had rung five peals of Grandsire Triples, and two of Caters, and took part in the last unsuccessful attempt. He was greatly respected by all who knew him. The funeral took place on Saturday, June 2nd, at Ilford Cemetery, he being interred in the family grave. There were several friends, among whom were Mr. Hart, sexton of St. Sepulchre's, Messrs. W. D. Matthews, Clarkson, Wheeler, Church, Davies, Holmes, Moore, Milner, and Lovett. A great many were absent on account of the Queen's birthday celebrations in London, in consequence of which the funeral peal was postponed till Monday, June 4th, when the usual whole pull and stand was rung by the following: D. Lovett, 1; W. Milner, 2; A. Vincent, 3; C. Holmes, 4; G. Watkins, 5; T. H. Chapman, 6; C. Clarkson, 7; W. D. Matthews, 8; J. Wheeler, 9; A. Matthews, 10. After which, the first 500 of Holt's ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples. F. Bate (conductor), 1; H. Davies, 2; W. Chew, 3; J. Nelms, 4; W. D. Matthews, 5; J. Barry, 6; A. E. Church, 7; J. Wheeler, 8. And a touch of Caters, in which Messrs. French and Alford, sen., and others who came to pay their last respects to the deceased, took part.

DEDICATION AND OPENING OF TREVETHIN BELLS, MONMOUTHSHIRE.

In addition to what has already appeared in connection with this opening, we are asked to insert the following:—

A special service in connection with the dedication of these bells was held on Whit-Sunday morning, at which a sermon was preached by the Rev. J. Jones, Vicar of Bassaleg. There was a large congregation present. The text was taken from Acts ii. 2, "A sound from heaven." The preacher referred to the festival of that day, being the birthday of the Church, as it was the anniversary of Pentecost, when the apostles received the great gift of the Holy Ghost, whose presence had been manifested in the Church for nearly nineteen centuries. The mode of the Spirit's manifestation was such as to arouse the attention and strike awe into the souls present. Alluding to the power of sound over the emotions of the human heart, and to the use of bells in religious ceremonies from remote antiquity, the preacher said they were introduced into this country by Benedict, Abbot of Wearmouth. He pointed out the many associations connected with the sound of church bells, associations which he hoped might be the means of leading the thoughts of men to higher and nobler aims, concluding his discourse with an earnest exhortation to his hearers to seek the Lord in all appointed ways.

On Whit-Monday, the day fixed for the final opening, the members of the Upton St. Leonard's branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association left Gloucester by the 5.15 a.m. express, arriving at Pontypool Road station at 7.35 a.m. They then proceeded to the "Crown" hotel, and partook of an excellent breakfast. Courses of Grandsire Major and Triples having been rung upon handbells, a start was made for Trevethin church, about a mile distant, the road thereto being through some picturesque woodland scenery, which was much enjoyed. The destination was reached about ten o'clock, the visitors being met by the Vicar and several of the parishioners. A survey of the church having been effected, the tower was entered, and the bells and their appurtenances were found everything to be desired. Descending to the ringing-chamber—the appointments of which are most complete, the company raised the bells in peal, and immediately afterwards, as a trial touch, rang 504 of Grandsire Triples. This being over, the Vicar and others came into the ringing-chamber, anxious to hear the opinion of the ringers how the bells "went." A very satisfactory account having been given of their condition, and the visitors having retired, a start was made for Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples, which was accomplished in 2 hrs. 52 mins., a record of which performance can be found in the number of this journal for the week ending May 26th last. Crowds of people from Pontypool, Pontnewynydd, Abersychan, and other places were present to listen to the peal, who congratulated the ringers upon their success. A course of Caters was rung upon handbells in the churchyard much to the gratification of those assembled therein.

Returning to the "Crown" hotel, the company sat down to an excellent dinner, Mr. Plumley taking the chair, and Mr. Phillips the vice-chair. The cloth being removed, and the usual loyal toasts having been duly honoured,

The CHAIRMAN said he should be glad of some information concerning the art of change-ringing. He should like to know the best means of training a young band of ringers, for he was particularly fond of any kind of music. He would like to learn the art himself, but as he had so many irons in the fire he must refrain from attempting it. He was very glad they had succeeded in ringing the peal, and he wished them every success.

Mr. H. GARDENER thanked the chairman for his good wishes. Now that they had a good peal of bells he hoped they would soon be possessed of a good band of ringers able to ring a peal.

The VICE-CHAIRMAN said he was particularly fond of bells. At one time he used to ring a little himself, at Monmouth, and he should now take up the practice of the art, and use every effort in getting young men to join, for it would be a great pity now they had a peal of bells to allow them to remain silent.

A course of Grandsire Caters was then rung on the handbells, after which a move was again made to the belfry, a very large concourse of people awaiting the arrival of the ringers. Several touches in various methods were then rung, and the bells were afterwards lowered. A visit was then made to the vicarage, where a few courses on the handbells were rung, a performance which the vicar and his friends very much admired. He then thanked the ringers for the share they had taken in the day's proceedings, and wished them success in all their future efforts, hoping they would be spared to pay him another visit.

The company, after a short but enjoyable conversation with the local celebrities, repaired to the railway station to embark for home. Having a short time to wait for the arrival of the train, the handbells were again brought out and a course or two rung on the platform, much to the admiration of the officials and passengers. The ride home brought to a close a most enjoyable day; and the ringers desire, through the medium of this journal, to thank all their Pontypool and Trevethin friends for the kind way in which they were treated.

GLOUCESTER.

On Whit-Sunday, May 20th, for morning service, at St. Michael's church, by the local ringers, assisted by Mr. John Holden, of Saddleworth, 588 Grandsire Triples. John Holden, 1; George Brunson, 2; Richard Brunson, 3; Geo. Wanklin, 4; Frank Hart, 5; Joseph Clarke, 6; B. Etheridge (conductor), 7; H. Eakets, 8. Tenor 21 cwt. Also a short touch of Grandsire Triples, at the Cathedral. And on Thursday evening, May 24th, permission having been obtained, Mr. Holden, who was in Gloucester during the week representing his district at the Oddfellows A.M.C., met the local ringers with the intention of ringing a peal, and previous to commencing was proposed and elected a member of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association. The company commenced to raise the bells in peal; when about half-way up the ringers were startled by something very heavy falling upon the floor, immediately over them. The bells were dropped as soon as possible, and on one of the company going up to see what was amiss, he found that the second bell clapper had fallen out. Everyone regretted the accident, however, they did the best they could under the circumstances, viz.: rung a 720 of Bob Minor, in 24 mins. George Wanklin, 1; John Holden, 2; George Brunson, 3; Richard Brunson, 4; William Brunson, 5; Ben. Etheridge (conductor), 6. Afterwards the ringers adjourned to their meeting house, where a very pleasant evening was spent in ringing tunes and courses of Grandsire Caters, Grandsire Major and Triples, in which Mr. Holden rung a pair. The ringers beg to thank the authorities at the various churches in Gloucester for kindly granting them permission to ring, and Mr. Holden tenders his sincere thanks to the local company for the courtesy and kindness they extended to him during his visit to the ancient city of Gloucester.

DEDICATION OF BELLS AT STOKEINTEIGNHEAD, DEVON.

The bells of this parish church have lately been augmented from four to five by having an odd bell that was in the tower and forming one of the four, recast into two new trebles, and the three old bells tuned to harmonise one with another. A dedication service was held on Thursday, May 17th, at which the Hon. and Rev. J. S. Northcote (Hon. Sec. of the Devonshire Guild), preached the sermon, and a band from the St. Sidwell's branch of the county Guild was entrusted with the opening. The bells were found to go well to Grandsire Doubles and does Mr. Stokes, of Woodbury, great credit for the manner in which he has carried out the work of rehanging. Twelve months ago the belfry was in a very dilapidated state, with old half wheels for ringing, but now, through the efforts of the Rector, the Rev. E. Stephenson, and the parishioners, the parish has a very fair, well going peal of bells. The following took part in the ringing: Rev. J. S. Northcote, Ferris Shepherd, E. Shepherd, J. Moss, F. Davey, C. Curtis, and W. Stocker. Dinner was laid in the parish room, at which the local ringers sat down with the visitors.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.—By Charles Pearson, M.A. Price Threepence, by post Fourpence.—WILLIAM POLLARD AND CO. Printers, Exeter.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"There is room for all."

Your report of the Essex Meeting was very interesting; and, as usual, the words of the Rev. F. Robinson from the pulpit deserving of careful attention. It is to be regretted that the difficulties in the way seemed too many for the members to accept Canon Wigram's proposal. As this matter of the Herts County Association seems to be a weak spot in our constitution, is it not possible for the Canon to get together a few friends, interested in the matter, talk this matter over, and if a Diocesan Association is geographically or in any other way impracticable, may they not devise some mode of carrying on the work of organisation into Hertfordshire, better than by the motion of the Rev. H. A. Cockey, which virtually leaves matters in statu quo?

* * * *

"Only a ringers' paper!" Such is the description given of "THE BELL NEWS," by one who confesses that he does not take the paper, and indeed very seldom sees it. What could have been that reverend gentleman's object in thus attacking the recognised scientific organ of the Exercise? Did he think that by so doing he was rendering some service to your contemporary? "Only a ringers' paper!" Did the speaker use those words sarcastically, disparagingly, or how? In any way, they are offensive not only to the proprietors of "THE BELL NEWS," but to our ringing fraternity also. We ourselves are only ringers, but nevertheless are proud of the fact; we are consequently quite satisfied to know that the journal which we look for with interest at the end of every week is "only a ringers' paper." But I need not tarry on this unwelcome subject; the words of the respected vicars of Writtle and Drayton leave nothing necessary to be added; so we may well commend them to the meditation of the Rev. Mr. Seaman, then we need not envy his subsequent reflections.

* * * *

Mr. Parker has properly dropped a thunderbolt amongst us, regarding our much rung Grandsire Triples. There mere fact of a peal having been produced by such a well-known composer as Mr. Penning, to have been rung and conducted by one so well versed in the method as Mr. Charles Jackson, and finally to have been accepted by such an authority as the late Mr. Jasper W. Snowdon, and inserted in his last work, would have been taken by all of us as ample proof of its truth. But when after the lapse of four years we are confronted with the stubborn but incontestible fact of its being false, it is truly, as the Rev. C. D. P. Davies remarks, enough to make one dizzy. "Out of evil cometh good" is a well-known maxim, and doubtless it will prove correct in this case by causing composers and conductors to look more carefully into the compositions which they may produce or be about to conduct.

* * * *

The explanation and ample apology of Mr. Penning relative to this matter is very creditable to that gentleman; and though like all mortals, he has made a mistake, I feel sure that, after his acknowledgment and correction of the blunder, his reputation as an authority in the method will not suffer through this unfortunate slip.

* * * *

I feel tempted to ask, although I might appear to be "piling it on," Does not this correspondence shew in a most emphatic manner the usefulness—nay, the great necessity—to us, of "THE BELL NEWS," even if it is "only a ringer's paper?"

We are favoured once more with Mr. Attree's periodical and ever-welcome analysis of peals. His last return comprises four of the principal peal-ringing months of the year, thus it will be interesting to note the results so far as they go. The College Youths are as yet to the front with the unusually large number of thirty-six to their credit, while the Sussex men are but half-a-dozen behind, and the Midland Counties' Association through its fifteen peals in April, follows with a total of only four less than their southern brethren. But what is the great Yorkshire Association about that it has gone down to the eighth on the list, with its small total of eleven? The last but one with double-figures! Come, Yorkshiremen, pull yourselves together; we are not accustomed to see you cut such a sorry figure as this. If you don't, where will you be when Mr. Attree gives us his final reckoning up for the year?

* * * *

I am pleased to see that our analyst has decided to act upon my suggestion as to peals by Independent Societies. My motive in making it was not for mere curiosity or to get more complete statistics; it was more with the aim of shewing the relative positions of our various county organisations and the general body of ringers in their respective districts. There can be no doubt that the returns of peal-ringing do give us a fair indication in this direction. Lancashire is, as usual considerably to the front in the matter of these peals by Independent Societies, having no less than fifteen out of a total of thirty-seven, a good long way towards one half of the whole. I frankly admit that my knowledge of ringing affairs in that county is very slight—unfortunately much more so than I would like it to be—but I look on the broad fact that while the Lancashire Association has scored eighteen peals, the Independent Societies have rung fifteen, and the Liverpool Youths another four: so that it seems to me that this County Association has not yet succeeded by far in getting the great body of efficient change-ringers amongst them into their ranks. Perhaps time, patience, and perseverance will remedy this state of things. Let us hope so.

CHRIST CHURCH, SOUTHWARK.

The original church was consecrated on December 17th, 1651, the tower being added in 1694. The present church was erected in 1738, and is of brick with stone dressings. It has a square tower surmounted by an open octagonal turret. There is some stained glass in several of the windows; one representing the arms of the see of Winchester impaling those of Morley, and another the arms of the Marshalls. The organ was presented by William Boyse, a navy surgeon, in 1789, who also gave the interest of £500 as an organist's salary. The pulpit and prayer desk are of stained oak, the former being surmounted by a sounding board, supported by two Corinthian columns. The tower contains a peal of eight bells, tenor 18 cwt. The first four bells are inscribed "I. B. Fecit 1700;" the fifth and sixth "James Bartlet me fecit 1700," the word "fecit" being turned upside down. The seventh has "Robert Catlin fecit 1741," and the tenor "John Warner and Son, founders, London, 1796. Gilbert Handasyde and James Webber, Churchwardens." There is also a call-bell, inscribed "Robert Catlin fecit 1742."

THE DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

On Monday, the members of this Association assembled in Stockton for the purpose of holding their festival. Representatives were present from Bishop Auckland, Bishop Wearmouth, Durham, Newcastle, Ripon, Jarrow, North Shields, Consett, Darlington, Middlesbrough, and Stockton. One party invaded the parish church, where they found a peal of six bells, on which they in the course of the morning rang a 726 of Merchants' Return and a 720 of Kent Treble Bob. Another party went down to Middlesbrough, where at the parish church of St. Hilda (eight bells, tenor 22 cwt.) touches of Grandsire Triples and Kent Treble Bob were rung. At 1 o'clock, the committee met together, when the principal business transacted was to decide to hold meetings in various places in the dioceses during the ensuing summer. Afterwards the members, to the number of sixty, sat down to dinner at the "Half-Moon" inn, Church-row. The chair was occupied by Rev. H. Martin, Vicar of Stockton, who was supported by the Rev. E. Boddington and Mr. Hudson and Mr. Scott (from Bishopwearmouth), Mr. G. J. Clarkson (hon. sec.), Mr. G. B. Leng, Mr. R. H. Leighton, etc. The vice-chair was filled by Mr. R. S. Story, of Newcastle, the president of the Association. After the repast,

The CHAIRMAN proposed "Church and Queen," which was heartily honoured.

The VICE-CHAIRMAN proposed "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese." He stated that the Association had great pleasure in visiting Stockton, and congratulated the Vicar on having such an efficient band of ringers attached to his church.

THE CHAIRMAN, in responding, said it was a great pleasure to him to take part in that gathering. He had from his boyhood been much interested in bells, having had the good fortune to live in a place where was a good peal, and whilst he remembered the sound of those bells, and the pleasant associations they brought up, he thought he might congratulate them all on the day in which they lived, for the cords of sympathy which bound Church people together were now drawn more closely than they used to be. In former times there was practically no sympathy between bellringers and the clergy, although bellringers played a very important part in Church organisation. Now happily this was changed. Bellringing had a very nice influence. When people left the place in which they had resided for some time they missed the sound of their own bells, which had so sweetly called them to church; and in our own distant colonies the ringing of the bells recalled to the colonist the church in which he had worshipped in the old country, and the many beautiful and holy thoughts in connection with the services. In the old days it was not unusual for ringers, after summoning the people to church, to be absent themselves. He could well remember when matches for money were rung on the bells. But the bellringers of to-day were regular attendants at the services. This was the result, as he had said, of the close bond of sympathy which now existed between the clergy and bellringers. The clergy looked upon the bellringers as they looked upon their choirs, district visitors, and Sunday-school teachers—as men who gave some of their time to the services of the church. He was glad to see so many present, and to give them an hearty welcome. It would have been a pleasure to him if Stockton could have given them the use of a better peal. Mr. Clarkson, he knew, was never tired of dwelling on the good quality and sweetness of the Stockton peal, but he appeared determined to let churchpeople have no rest till he got the number increased to twelve. It was in contemplation to extensively alter the parish church, and he trusted that when this scheme had been accomplished they would be able to get an enlarged peal. He hoped that when the Association favoured Stockton with another visit, he would not only have a beautiful church to show them, but a peal of twelve bells on which to illustrate their art. The Vicar then left to fulfil another engagement, and Mr. G. B. Leng (churchwarden) was asked to take his place.

The Rev. E. BODDINGTON proposed the health of the president of the Association (Mr. R. S. Story). He said he had had the pleasure of attending one of their meetings at Sunderland. There were two qualifications which were necessary in the president of an association like this—an enthusiasm for its objects, and a practical knowledge of the art. In these respects Mr. Story was an ideal president. No man could take a keener interest in the Association than he did, and no one knew better how to appreciate the beauty of a good peal.

MR. STORY briefly responded.

Mr. LEE (Newcastle) proposed the health of the honorary secretary (Mr. Clarkson), who had not only done all he could to advance the interests of the Association, but who had rescued the Stockton peal from obscurity. He could remember how twenty-five years ago he ventured into the church tower at Stockton, and found it full of cobwebs and dirt. The bell-ropes were as thick as eables, and the places where the tufts ought to be were marked with chalk. All this had been changed, mainly by the influence of Mr. Clarkson, to whom the town of Stockton owed a debt of gratitude.

Mr. CLARKSON, in acknowledging the compliment, said the bells had been made tunable and the belfry improved without the slightest expense to the churchwardens. The next improvement which they desired was an augmentation of the peal. He advocated ten bells, but the Vicar said that the peal should number twelve, well, he would not quarrel with him on that score. He hoped the scheme for improving the parish church would be carried out, and he was sure, that having regard to the excellent feeling which existed between the Vicar and the ringers, the scheme for an improved peal would not be forgotten.

The health of Mr. Churchwarden having been honoured, the meeting broke up.

A painful shadow was cast over this otherwise successful meeting by the news which reached the Middlesbrough belfry at the conclusion of the ringing, of the death of Charles Wilkinson, a promising member of that young and progressive company. His memory was duly honoured by a muffled peal rung on the following Wednesday, a report of which has already appeared in this paper.

WEST TARRING, SUSSEX.

ON Saturday evening, June 9th, a numerous gathering of ringers assembled at this ancient village, a meeting being convened by the local band, as a parting compliment to Mr. H. Miles, a member, who is about to leave the village for America. The church tower, a spacious building of the Norman period, contains a musical peal of six bells, tenor 9 cwt. They were put in motion at five o'clock, and continued in swing till six, when the visitors, (who hailed from the neighbouring towers of Angmering, Goring, and Heene, numbering about twenty with the local company), then sat down to supper at the "George Inn," host Richardson being soon convinced that bell ropes were not the only things his guests could handle. This part of the business being over, a move was again made to the church tower, when the visitors indulged themselves in the art of campanology for an hour, the rest of the evening being spent in harmony.

Mr. BUSHBY, in a neat speech, proposed "The Health of Mr. Miles," alluding to the loss the band had sustained. The toast was heartily drunk amid cheers and good wishes for his future career.

Mr. MILES, in responding, said the doings of this evening would long rest in his memory, and if he were spared to reach his destination at Buffalo, he hoped he might find such jolly fellows as he had met at the gathering that night. He thanked the company for their attendance, especially the visitors, who had come from a distance. Some excellent songs were sung, and the Goring brass band played some lively airs which greatly contributed to the harmony of the evening. After singing the National Anthem, the company separated.

THE HERTFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A Meeting of the members will be held at Hatfield, to-day, Saturday, June 16th. The tower will be open for ringing from 3 p.m. At 5 o'clock a business meeting will be held at the Coffee Tavern, to elect an Honorary Secretary and transact general business. E. P. DEBENHAM, Hon. Sec. pro. tem.

ST. PETER MANCROFT, NORWICH.

To those who study the early history of change-ringing, I should say that there is hardly any place in England of greater historical interest than Norwich, and among the thirty-seven churches of which that city boasts, St. Peter Mancroft certainly stands first from a ringers point of view, both from the fact of its possessing a grand ring of twelve, and also because some of the earliest performances in change-ringing of any note were achieved there on the old peal which hung in that tower previous to 1775. It was here, as I shall presently notice more fully, that the first true peal of Triples, composed by John Garthorn, was said to have been rung, and it was also in this tower that the first true peal of Stedman Triples was achieved. The ringers of Norwich in the last century certainly ranked among the chief campanologists in England, and from the expressions we find on some of the old tablets in the belfry, they were evidently well aware of that fact. We continually read that on such a date such a company rang that "intricate and ingenious peal" of so and so, and that although "it had been the study of many acute ringers for many years, it had never been rung to the truth till that time." We are also frequently reminded that "there were no two changes alike, or a bell out of course," and that "the bold and regular striking would cause the peal to be considered superior to anything ever rung in England before," and so forth. Though these expressions sound somewhat self-laudatory to our ears, no doubt they were common enough at the time, and certainly St. Peter Mancroft with the sister churches of St. Giles, St. Andrew's, and St. Michael Coslany, are entitled to a high position in the annals of campanologist fame.

The original peal at St. Peter Mancroft, existing as early as the fourteenth century, consisted of five bells which were thus inscribed in black letters.

- (1.) "Nos Thome meritis mereamur gaudia lucis."
- (2.) "Petrus ad eterne ducat nos pascua vite."
- (3.) "AVE MARIA GRATIA PLENA DOMINUS TECUM" (in lombardic).
- (4.) "Sum Rosa Pulsata Mundi Maria Vocata."
- (5.) (Re-cast) "Ego sum campana Gulielmi Ellys baronis de exchequer que fracta refecta est 1618" (William Ellis was baron of the exchequer to Henry VIII. in 1535).

The tenor was 53 inches in diameter. In 1602 a treble was added, making a peal of six. This bell was simply inscribed "Anno Domini 1602." She was cast by William Brend, of Norwich, and in the accounts for 1602-3 we find "Item paid unto Willm. Brand, Bellfounder, the xxj of Aprill, 1603, for the making of a new bell now hanging in a frame in the steeple as appeareth by his bill - xvij li."

In 1675-6 two more trebles were added to make eight. They were thus inscribed:—(1.) "Edmund Tooke Ao Dni 1675; (2.) "E. T. made me Ao Dni 1676." Mr. L'Estrange, in his "Church Bells of Norfolk" gives copies of the following entries with regard to these bells. "1672-3. Received upon the Reparation Rate and for the two new bells, £93 8s. 6d.—Recd. of Sr. John Hobart as a gift towards the 2 new bells, £3 os. 3d.—Recd. of Mr. John Melchior as a gift towards the bells, 10s. od." Among the payments he gives the following items:—

"Payd Edward Tooke for the Mettall of two new bells weighing 9c. 2qr. 25lb., at 12d. p.li is £54 9s. od.

Payd Edward Tooke for 4 brasses for the bells and mending the brasses for the ould second, £1 13s. 4d.

Thomas Doo was also paid £39 for chimes and quarters.

The treble of the eight measured 32 inches in diameter. The next few entries are as follows:—

"10 April, 1671. 'Tis then ordered that out of the fine that shall arise by a new lease to be made of the houses in St. Lawrence, Mr. Edward Tooke shall have some pt. of the moneys due to him from the parish, pd to Mr. Tooke by Mr. Warren and Mr. Oliver in p't £10 os. od. xxjo Die April, 1679. Then ordered and agreed that out of the fine to the parish upon a new Lease of St. Laurence houses The churchwardens shall pay to Mr. Tooke the residue of his money xxli.ij. 4d. 1679. Paide Mr. Richard Johnson, Merchant, Executor to Mr. Tooke, beinge by order of the parish, and was money for Repayer of the bells, £20 os. od."

Notwithstanding that St. Margaret, Westminster claims to have had the first true peal of Grandsire Triples rung there on Sunday, July 7th, 1751, it is said that the first true peal of Triples was rung on these bells in 1715, which is thus commemorated on a tablet:—

"May 2nd, 1715. Here was rung by the ringers call'd Norwich Scholars, that most Icomparable Peal called Gransir Bob Triples, it being the 3d whole peal that they have rung, but the first whole peal that ever was rung to the truth by any ringers whatever. It has been Studied by the most acute Ringers in England (but to no effect), ever since Triple changes were first rung, but now at last it's found out to the truth by John Garthorn, one of the said Society, and rung by him and the rest of the Society in 3 hours 18 minutes, which is about 1550 changes in an hour, the whole peal being 5040 changes, and not one bell misplac'd or out of course. The names of which ringers are underwritten against their Respective Bells as they rung; John Garthorn, 1; Isaac Pearce, 2; John Briggs, 3; James Brooke, 4; David Sannervill, 5; Tho. Gardiner, 6; William Dixon, 7; Robert Woodcock, 8."

This peal was probably Bob Triples or something of the kind. Next is recorded the following performance:—

"On the 26th of August, 1718, was rung that Harmonious Peal called Grandsire Triples which have been ye Study of ye most Ingenious men of this age who delight in ye art of Variat-ion; but all their Projections have proved errors, until it was undertook by John Garthorn, who with long Study and Practice, have perfectly discovered those Intricate methods which were hidden from the eyes of all the Ringers in England; the extent of this peal being 5040 changes, have often been rung with changes alike, but the first time that ever was rung true, was in three hours and a half, without any changes alike or a Bell out of Course, by these men whose names are underwritten against their Bells as they were rung.

James Brooke	Treble.	Henry Hyward ...	Fifth.
John Briggs	Second.	Wm. Callow ...	Sixth.
William Palmer... ..	Third.	Tho. Melchoir ...	Seventh.
Robert Crane	Fourth.	Tho. Barret ...	Tenor.

I shall next give a copy of a tablet, published by the late Mr. Jasper W. Snowdon, some years ago. This tablet records the ringing of the first peal of Stedman Triples in 1731. It runs as follows:—

"On the 25th October, 1731, here was rung that Misterious Peal called Stedman Tripples: the discovery therrof has been the Study of several Ingenious Ringers in England, though to no effect, until this intricate Peal, which differs from all other Methods of tripples, as being every bell a like course, was perfectly discovered by (Name erased) who first compleated the Peal of Perfect Stedman Tripples with only two Doubles, and no alteration; the extent being 5040 changes, was compleately rung by us in 3 hours and 40 minutes, on which occasion Willm. Scott, in his remarks upon the ringing this Peal, did Elegantly sing, viz:—

As for the sweet and Pleasant Treble she.

By Melchior well was rung that Bell, [and called the bobs so free;

Blofield the 2nd; Palmer third did ring;

Ather rung 4; and was not Loath, but made her for to Sing;

Gardener the 5th did sway; Footer the 6th did play;

The 7th round Cris; Booty bound, and made her to obey;

The tenor fine and neat, brave Porter so compleat

Did ring her out and turned about that Cymbal loud and great."

This concludes the history of these bells as a peal of eight; I shall next notice them as a peal of ten.

A board in the belfry informs us that "In 1736 this ring was made a peal of ten by an addition of two bells subscrib'd for by Gentlemen in ye Parish." These two new bells weighed respectively 5 cwt. 3 qrs. 35 lbs., and 6 cwt. 0 qrs. 23 lbs. Who cast them I have not been able to discover, but probably it was Thomas Newman, a Norwich bellfounder, who flourished about that date. As soon as the peal was augmented to ten, the ringers set to work to get a peal of Caters, and in the following year they accomplished it as is recorded on a tablet thus:—

"On March the 8th, 1737, was rung a peal of Grandsire Caters, which for excellency of its ringing, Harmonious changes, and ye number of them, was certainly superior to anything of its kind ever done in the World: and to Remove all doubt of the truth of the performance several ingenious Ringers were abroad the whole time with proper rules to prove ye certainty of ye same. Thus was this great peal perfectly compleated, to the entire satisfaction, surprise, and amazement of thousands of hearers, in the space of 8 hours 15 minutes. The number of changes were 12,600, rung by 9 men belonging to the steeple. The tenor singly by a young ringer 8000, then a second rang her to the end of the peal. The persons names and the bells they rung are as follows:—

Tho. Melchior	... Treble.	Wm. Porter 6.
Wm. Pettingall 2.	Tho. Blofield 7.
John Gardiner 3.	Edwd. Crane 8.
Tho. Barrett 4.	Chrisr. Booty 9.
Robert Crane 5.	James Jerom
		Robt. Liddamon	Tenor.

The last name in my copy is given as "Liddamon," but I have reason to believe that this is a misprint for "Fiddamon."

We now come to the history of the present peal of twelve bells. Mr. L'Estrange gives the following copy of a minute in the vestry book relating thereto:—

"January 31st, 1775. At a vestry held this day, pursuant to notice given on Sunday last for the meeting of the Parishioners, it appeared from the subscription book kept by the Churchwardens that the sum of Five hundred and thirty Pounds and upwards, has been already subscribed towards the expence of purchasing a compleat peal of twelve bells for this parish, the whole amount of which, the Tenor to be Thirty eight Hundred weight (and in the key of C Natural) will be according to Messrs. Chapman and Pack's Calculation, including Mr. Samuel Turner, the Bellhanger's Charges, and all other expenses Seven Hundred Pounds, exclusive of the old materials.

"It is therefore agreed, and directed by the Parishioners now present, that the Church Wardens do immediately give an order to Messrs. Pack and Chapman accordingly; they the said Pack and Chapman, together with Samuel Turner the Bellhanger, first entering into a Bond with the Church Wardens, to fulfil their engagements in a workmanlike manner."

In the same year we find in the accounts 'Paid freight of 7 old bells to London, 3 ton 16 cwt. at 10s. per ton—£1 18s. od.' Of the remaining three bells, two were sold to the church of St. Mary, Bungay, and what became of the other I don't know.

In the spring of 1775, the new bells arrived, and the following is a copy of the bill of expenses:—

"Weight of ye peal, 183 2. 24. at £6 per cwt.	1102	5	8½
12 Clappers, 3 3 6 at 9d. per lb.	15	19	6.
To Wharfage, Landing, etc. of the old bells	3	0	6.
To do do of the new	4	13	6.
To Samuel Turner for new oak frame, gungeons, hanging the bells, etc. etc. as by agreement	113	0	0.

£1238 19 2½

The above sum was raised without any rate upon the Parishioners. The present peal is thus inscribed:—

Treble.—"To the Common Council, who gave 50 guineas, this bell is inscrib'd. Pack & Chapman, of London, fecit 1775." (Diamr. 30 in., Weight 6c. 3q. 5lb.)

Second.—"St. Peter Mancroft, Richd. Forster, Thos. Cole, Churchwardens, 1775." (Diar. 30 in., Weight 6c. 2q. 15lb.)

Third.—"The Revd. Jno. Peele, The Revd. Thos. Nichols, Ministers." (Diar. 31 in., Weight 6c. 3q. 20lb.)

Fourth.—"Roger Kerrison, Esq., Sheriff and an Alderman of this Ward." (Diar. 33 in., Weight 7c. 3q. 8lb.)

Fifth.—"Charles Weston, Esq., Alderman of this Ward." (Diar. 35 in., Weight 9c. 0q. 5lb.)

Sixth.—"Thos. Starling, Esq., Alderman of this Ward." (Diar. 37 in., Weight 9c. 3c. 19lb.)

Seventh.—"Sr. Thomas Churchman, Kt., Alderman of this Ward." (Diar. 40 in., Weight 11c. 2q. 7lb.)

Eighth.—"John, Lord Hobart, son and heir-apparent of John, Earl of Buck'm." (Diar. 43 in., Weight 14c. 0q. 18lb.)

Ninth.—"Wenham Coke, Esq., Representative for Norfolk, gave 30 guineas." (Diar. 48 in., Weight 19cwt. 1q. 27lb.)

Tenth.—"Sir Edward Astley, Bart., Representative for Norfolk, gave 30 guineas." (Diar. 50 in., Weight 21c. 3q. 6lb.)

Eleventh.—"Sr. Harbord Harbord, Bart., Representative for Norwich and Alderman, gave fifty pounds." (Diar. 55 in., Weight 28c. 2q. 2lb.)

Tenor.—"To King, Queen, and Royal Family this Harmonious Peal of twelve Bells is dedicated. T. Mears, of London, fecit 1814." (Diar. 62 in., Weight 41c. 0q. 4lb.)

Each of the first eleven bells is also inscribed—"Pack and Chapman, of London, fecit 1775." The letters are all the large and small capitals, then in use at the Whitechapel foundry. The original tenor was inscribed "To King, Queen, and ten children, etc."

I shall now proceed to give an account of the opening of this peal, taken from an account written at the time.

"Wednesday, June 21st, 1775, was performed in the Church a grand Te Deum and Jubilate, with the Chorus from the Messiah, and the Coronation Anthem, by a band consisting of about thirty gentlemen, accompanied with the voices of the cathedral choir, to a genteel and numerous audience. After this music the peal of twelve bells was opened by the ringers of the steeple which for sweetness of tone and melody in concert has answered the expectation of the warmest promoters of the subscription and given the highest delight and entertainment to all judges and admirers of ringing and other musical execution. It was at first apprehended that the note of the tenor was not deep enough to cover the peal with dignity, but her majestic and complacence-giving sound soon proclaimed her supremacy, and the execution of the whole has reflected honour on the founders and on the gentlemen who tuned these harmonious and silver-tongued bells."

The ringing room was at this time shifted from the floor below, where the performances already recorded were accomplished, to the next story.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?—The Spalding Free Press says that the Walpole ringers visited Wisbech, on Monday, and rang a half-peal of Oxford Treble Bobs of 200 touches, and a 200-bob minor, on the bells of St. Peter's Church.

A Provincial paper contains the following:—We commend to the clergy at large, and especially those who rate ecclesiastical order above Christian kindness, the example of the Reverend WILLIAM ROGERS, of Bishopsgate, as recorded in his Reminiscences, which we hope to refer to again. There was a bell rung in his church at a quarter to six in the morning. A parishioner asked that it might be stopped, as his wife was dangerously ill. Mr. ROGERS received a note late at night, when there was no time to communicate with the sexton. So he got up very early and went half-dressed to the belfry. Just as the man had grasped the rope and was beginning to ring, I seized him by the arm. He was horrified, and just managed to ejaculate, "Well, you've got me at last." Turning round, and seeing that it was not the person he had been expecting, he said, "Oh, thank God, Mr. Rector, it's only you."

THE LAST OF THE INVINCIBLE ARMADA.—A loud cannonade in the direction of Gravelines announced that the hostile fleets were engaged there, and it became the signal for the fugitives to draw together, but all along the coast the active English commanders were ready to receive them, and Drake, Hawkins, Raleigh, Frobisher, Seymour, and Cumberland, vied in their endeavours to win the highest distinction. Terrible scenes were presented at the different stranded gale-asses. One was boarded off Calais after a desperate engagement, its crew and troops were cut to pieces or pushed overboard, and 50,000 ducats were taken out of her. Another galleon sank under the English fire; a third, the San Matteo, was compelled to surrender; and another, dismantled and in miserable plight, drifted on shore at Flushing, and was seized by the sailors. From "Cassell's Illustrated History of England" for June.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Unity is strength."

Reports of Whitsuntide festivities and ringing performances still continue to roll in. Surely this festal season was never more observed and taken advantage of by our friends than it has this year. If things were to go on in this manner, I should seriously think of advising you, Mr. Editor, to follow the plan adopted by many "weeklies" of publishing an "extra special" summer number.

* * * * *

The report of the three Association meetings which are given last Saturday, afford—as is happily usual in these cases—very pleasant and instructive reading: one notable feature of them being evidence of the fact, remarked upon by Mr. Hattersley at Pontefract, of the increasing interest taken in our work by the clergy. In these three meetings, I find that fourteen clergymen, as well as one highly esteemed member of the House of Peers, took part. That circumstance alone will surely be sufficient to show that our art and work is becoming more and more recognised, appreciated, and supported as time rolls on. Who would have dared to anticipate twenty—nay, even—ten years ago, that we should find this satisfactory and honourable state of things in our midst?

* * * * *

Each of these three meetings also had peculiar and none the less pleasing characteristics of its own, which I cannot refrain from noting. First, the Yorkshire Association which, as you well observe in your leading article, "seems to have the happy knack of arousing the public to co-operate with them," does not seem to have failed in this respect at Pontefract. It certainly does appear from the report that, as you remark "their presence in any neighbourhood seems to stir up the inhabitants who appear to become all at once interested in our branch of the Church's work." I remember well being present at a meeting of this Association some years ago in one of those quaint old English villages which are so numerous in that county, and you may judge of my surprise when on arriving I saw flags and banners waving in abundance from the old Church tower, nearly all the large houses in the vicinity, and hung on cords across the street, while the brass band from a neighbouring village was discoursing lively music. Then the "feed" in the schoolroom was something to be remembered also; from the squire who had ordered his steward to provide a sufficiency of rabbits and beef, and the village butcher who insisted on being allowed to contribute a share of the beef and mutton; the young (and elderly) ladies of the church and school who would make the bread, pastry, and other "incidentals," and preside happily as queens at and about the tables, to the little urchins who proudly assisted in their own small way; everyone seemed to vie with each other in giving a right hearty welcome to the ringers. That was an event which I would not have missed for a very great consideration, and my heart warms towards those good Yorkshire folk when I think of it, as evidencing the fact that there, at any rate, the ringers, although in the belfry "out of sight," are by no means "out of mind."

* * * * *

But I am digressing. The chief characteristics of the Pontefract meeting, to my mind, are the proverbially hearty welcome which our brethren seem to have received, and principally the address—quaint as you may style it—issued by the worthy vicar to his parishioners previous to the day. I do not look at that address—excellent though it be—in a critical sense, as a literary production, or simply because it is an address; I think it most commendable from the fact of its having been distributed to the people before the day of meeting; thus not only informing them of the visit, but also bespeaking their sympathy and support in such a hearty manner beforehand. That is the feature of it which seems to me highly deserving of imitation. I believe that were our clergy generally to follow this good example set by the Vicar of Pontefract, we should find our County meetings becoming more popular, and certainly we should be less liable to hear the apologetic remark—"Had we known you were coming, we would have made preparations for you."

* * * * *

Our friends of the Sussex Association seem to have had a busy day of it in connection with their Annual meeting at Brighton. What with ringing, service, luncheon, annual meeting, tea, and ringing again, I fancy the officers at any rate will not have had much in the way of leisure. The peculiar feature of this meeting was the presentation of the new challenge bell to the Steyning company for their largest total of peals rung during the past year. Whatever may be advanced for or against this mode of competition, one thing at least is incontrovertible, namely, that this prize (which was a "bone of contention" in the recent prize-ringing controversy), has been fairly and worthily won by the present holders of it. They evidently went in with a will to gain it; thus success crowned their efforts, and while giving them—as I feel sure all will give them—praise for their victory, I do earnestly hope that this challenge bell, now that it is a fait accompli, will be of good service in future years in advancing the science of change-ringing among their members. Other County Associations might I think copy their example in this respect with advantage.

* * * * *

One other matter in connection with this meeting I was glad to see—the re-election of their energetic Hon. Secretary, and the accompanying words of praise to that gentleman with which it was passed. I have no wish to flatter Mr. Attree, but there can be no doubt of it that such men as him are of incalculable benefit to the Associations which are the fortunate possessors of such enthusiastic, hard-working, and talented chief officers. There need be no fear of the work of change-ringing, or of its equally important adjunct—that of organisation—flagging, when such as he are at the helm. May we ever be blessed with such, I say; and when they are, in the "natural course of things" removed from us to a better life, may it ever be the case that others equally zealous will be found to take their places and carry on the good work.

* * * * *

If our friends of the Salisbury Association cannot lay claim to having accomplished great things at their annual gathering, they can at least indulge in the proud boast of having had a "real live lord" presiding over them. The name of Lord Nelson is a proud and historic one among Englishmen; it is therefore exceedingly gratifying to find the descendant of the great naval warrior joining with us, helping and encouraging us in our work. The present Earl is too well known among Churchmen for his earnest philanthropic and generous labours for the good of the Church and our people generally, for me to have to say one word in his praise; there is however one sentiment to which I would give utterance, and in which, I believe, I shall be joined by the whole of the Exercise, that of congratulating most heartily our Salisbury friends in having such a "noble scion" amongst them, one who will no doubt be "a pillar of strength" to them in their labours for our common good.

* * * * *

There is one point in connection with these oft-recurring reports of Annual Meetings which I have been many times tempted to bring forward, namely the need of some closer bond of unity between the various associations. Each one carries on its work in its own way, according to its own peculiar notions and circumstances; that is, of course, unavoidable. While I should personally be strongly opposed to any attempt to interfere with this arrangement, or to draw any hard and fast line with the object of attaining uniformity, I certainly do think that we might with much advantage seek to know the various modus operandi in vogue in other places than our own. Without doubt, there will be points in nearly all of them which might be adopted by others with good results. It was evidently this consideration which influenced in a great degree our friends who some time ago endeavoured—though unsuccessfully—to form a National Association. But if that attempt did not meet with the success which it deserved, and if it should be deemed premature to hope for the establishment of such an Association, there are at any rate many modes by which we might attain a more perfect unity, and at least gain a better insight into our various plans for carrying on the work in which we are engaged. But time with me just now is pressing, and I am reluctantly compelled to defer the consideration of this important matter to some other time. I trust however that by then mentioning it, I shall succeed in drawing the attention of our friends to it, so that the subject may be well thought over, and eventually good results ensue.

FREE LANCE.

BERRINGTON, HEREFORDSHIRE.

The Jubilee clock, which has been subscribed for in memory of the Queen's Jubilee, was solemnly dedicated on Wednesday, May 23rd. The service, which was fully choral, commenced at 11.45. The service was intoned by the Rector, the Rev. Dr. Lindsay. The processional hymn was No. 395, "O word of God above." The lessons were read by the Rev. A. Thursby Pelham. During the singing of the hymn No. 165, after the Third Collect, the clergy and choir, followed by the committee, proceeded to the tower, where the dedication service was said by the Rector. After a special collect and the Invocation the clock was started. The bells rang for a few moments, during which the clergy and choir returned to the chancel. A most earnest and impressive sermon was preached by the Rev. Frederick Burd, M.A., Vicar of Neen Savage. The recessional hymn was 218. The singing was hearty and bright. The church was very prettily decorated by some ladies for the occasion.

THE JUBILEE CLOCK TOWER, GRAVESEND.

The large clock was formally started on June 4th, by the Mayor, in the presence of a large concourse of people, at 12 o'clock. The clock is from the works of John Smith and Sons, Derby, who have carried out the designs of Lord Grimthorpe. There are four dials each five feet six across, the hours are struck upon an eleven cwt. bell; and arrangements are made that quarter chimes may be added. It has a gravity escapement, with a compensated pendulum of 3 cwt., and is expected to go with very great accuracy. As the tower is in a central position the clock will be a great boon to the inhabitants.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Monday, June 11th, the ringers and parishioners of Sefton, near Liverpool, to the number of about sixty, by the kind invitation of the churchwardens, held their annual excursion, and the quaint and historic city of Chester was the place selected. Starting from Sefton at 8.30 a.m. in two well-appointed conveyances, they were soon speeding their way towards Liverpool arriving in Chester after a four hours' ride, at 12.30, just in time for dinner, to which ample justice was done. The company were met by Messrs. Bethell and Caldwell, two local ringers, who conducted them to the church of St. Mary-without-the-Walls, and there rang a few touches of Grandsire and Plain Bob on the new peal of eight, which was much enjoyed by all. The following took part in the ringing: H. Rothwell, 1; J. Roughley, 2; J. Smith, 3; R. Rothwell, 4; T. Meadows, 5; W. Meadows, 6; G. Caldwell, 7; T. J. Bethell, 8. While the ringing was going on the remainder of the party were conducted around the church by the Rector, the Rev. H. Grantham, who very courteously showed the party all the points of interest. From there the party adjourned to the cathedral, where they were shown around by the verger. Time being up the party had to take their seats for home. The homeward journey commenced at 5 o'clock, after having spent an enjoyable day. The greatest thanks of the party should be accorded to Mr. Martin and his brother warden for the interest they had taken in making the excursion so enjoyable.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF THE MAYOR AND MAYORESS OF SHREWSBURY.

On Tuesday, June 5th, the inhabitants of Shrewsbury were somewhat at a loss to account for the hearty manner in which the ringers at St. Julian's church were pursuing their vocation. In fact it is stated on good authority, that the Mayor (Alderman Crump), who lives hard by the church, sent to inquire the occasion of so much joyful music, and was somewhat astonished to find that it was in honour of the golden anniversary of his own wedding. The vicar of the parish (the Rev. T. Auden), had instructed the ringers to usher in the day in this appropriate manner, and gradually the news spread through the town.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

NOTICE OF A VISIT TO THE ISLE OF MAN.

It is the intention of a few friends from Liverpool, Birmingham, and Sheffield, to pay a visit to the above place, with the object of attempting two 5000's at the new church at Peel, where there is a new ring of eight. The party will leave Liverpool on Saturday, June 30th, and return on July 9th. Any ringing friends who happen to be on the island during the time will be cordially received. C. H. HATTERSLEY.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

THE correspondence page of this journal in the current number possesses a somewhat extraordinary feature in containing a letter from one of the gentler sex, the wife of a ringer. In sending this letter for publication our lady correspondent fulfils the very necessary conditions imposed upon all who wish to appear in print, viz., that of forwarding her correct name and address. And not only does she do this but also very courteously imparts to us whose better half she is, probably being of opinion that her claim to speak would not be recognised unless it was satisfactorily established that she is what she states herself to be—"a ringer's wife." There will be various conjectures by our readers as to who this ringer is, whose partner in connubial bliss has had the temerity to write to a newspaper in condemnation of the absorption of time by her liege lord in ringing pursuits, and we shall no doubt be privately asked, in the usual way of many of our correspondents who desire to be behind the scenes equally with ourselves, "if there is any objection" to disclose the name of the ringer who has such a spirited lady for a wife. We need hardly say that all appeals to this end will be resisted, as usual, to the utmost. We could hardly be so ungallant as to betray a lady who has reposed so much confidence in us, and who particularly wishes her individuality to be for the present unknown.

There possibly may be some reason for the complaint of our correspondent, prone as the opposite sex may be to the slightest forms of exaggeration. "What is worth doing at all is worth doing well," we are told; and therefore, when the pursuit of our art is followed with unceasing interest we cannot help commending the industry and perseverance of those who do so. But there is a kind of zeal which is misplaced somewhat; an energy which is so ill-directed as in many instances to become positively offensive. We could point to several instances of the latter. A man following ringing or any other pursuit who has the subject day and night without ceasing on his tongue to the exclusion of everything else, who is haunted by terrible dreams regarding it, and who will, to the terror of the household, start up in the dead of night to see whether he has sufficiently mastered the calling of his next peal, may be voted as something worse than a bore to society, and as no gain to the art. There is a medium in all things no less than there is a time for all things. To become a good ringer and an eminent member of a ringing company it is not necessary to forego the least of one's family duties, or to lose one iota of the rights of citizenship. Ringing must be attended to, of course, and some amount of trouble must be bestowed upon its practice if any amount of excellence is desired, but the grand end may be attained without neglecting any of the duties appertaining to whatever station in life to which it has pleased God to call us.

THE LIVERSEDGE HANDBELL CONTEST.

SIR,—I'm looking over the result of the above contest, which appeared in your issue of June 2nd, I noticed something which appears to me to want explaining somewhat. In the ten-bell contest it says No. 1 and 2 rang fairly well, but No. 3 was not so fortunate, while No. 4 went out. That is all right. But how is it that No. 3 (which was Birstall Old) managed to get first prize, while No. 2 (Dewsbury), only get the second prize, and No. 1 got nothing.

ONE OF THE COMPETITORS.

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—In your issue of June 2nd Mr. J. R. Pritchard accuses me of taking a copy of a variation from a peal of Bob Major, 5056 of his. As he says I use the same calling except by adding a bob at the wrong in the second course, and that in the fifth course I pick up the fourth course-end, so making the 5056 to run to 5504. Now if Mr. J. R. P. will be kind enough to look at a back number of "BELL NEWS," August 27th, 1887, he will find a peal of Bob Major, 5376 changes, by me, where the same calling is used, with the exception of which the tenor is called in in the one, and middle in the other, and that the 5504 was composed by me on March 27th, 1888, and handed to my friend, Mr. York Green, on April 2nd.

HENRY J. TUCKER.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

SIR,—In your report of the Annual Meeting of the Essex Association in last week's issue, the Hon. Sec. read a letter from Canon Wigram, in which he states that "The causes which have lead to the breakdown of the Herts. County Association are easily stated." Will the Rev. Canon be good enough to state those reasons for the information of

A HERTFORDSHIRE RINGER?

ST. CROSS, HOLYWELL, OXFORD.

SIR,—About two years ago it was proposed to augment this peal to eight. At that time I contributed a small sum to that object at the request of a relation of mine (a university man, but not a change-ringer). Since then I have heard nothing more about the matter, beyond that, more than a year ago, I was informed by a well-known ringer in Oxford, that nearly, if not quite enough, had been collected to defray the cost of all that was required. Will some of our Oxford friends tell us whether the work is still in projection, or whether any difficulties have cropped up in carrying it out?

J. R. JERRAM.

THE LATE MR. T. WEST.

SIR,—Referring to the death of Mr. T. West, of our parish church company, many ringers will be sorry to learn that he leaves a widow and nine children, the youngest of whom is some two years old. This sad fact has opened up a desire to give some little assistance to the widow, and several subscriptions have already been received and promised—the bulk of them entirely unsolicited. Amongst these names are the following: the Vicar of Leeds, the Rev. Canon Jayne, the churchwardens, Mr. W. Snowdon, President of the Yorkshire Association, Mr. W. Whitaker, Hon. Sec. of the Yorkshire Association, Mr. E. Snowden, Bradford, the parish church company, etc., etc. Feeling sure that many friends of the deceased may wish to stretch out a helping hand, acting on behalf of the Parish Church Company I shall be glad to receive any sums, however small, and acknowledge them, with you permission, Mr. Editor, in your columns. It is hoped to have a full list published later on.

HERBERT W. NEEDHAM.

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR,—I am indebted to Mr. Needham for pointing out repeats changes in peal No. 4 in "Grandsire." So far as I am aware this has not been rung, which is fortunate for me, as I escape well-merited wrath of performers. This occurs through the singles being inserted in the wrong place. I have arranged it differently as below, and if I am not trespassing too much on your time and space (through my own fault) I will thank you to give it. My endeavour has always been to obtain a peal without singles, and having got as far as I could I suppose I was careless about the odd leads that could not be introduced with bobs. Still, these peals Nos. 4 and 6 are true in my M.S., but, as stated last week, in varying about I misplaced the singles and the falseness occurs only at those places and does not in the least detract from the composition. In the same way, I consider that the five-part touches by the Rev. Mr. Davies are as valuable as compositions without the singles that produce peals as with them. The way in which this gentleman puts "but in such names, etc.," is a severe lesson to me. After spending years in getting 357 leads I hurriedly insert the remaining three. I hope shortly, with your permission, to have something to say about the patent single, mentioned by Mr. Snowden, and other matters.

JNO. F. PENNING.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—The peal of Grandsire Triples on page 104 of "Grandsire" appears to have the singles in the wrong place, as the three leads therein are to be found in the body of the peal, while there are three other leads missing altogether. Of course Mr. Penning knows were to put the singles so as to make the peal correct, so it is needless to say anything about that.

J. W. WASHBROOK.

A LADY'S PROTEST.

SIR,—I think you are seldom troubled with letters from ringers' wives, but I hope that nevertheless you will insert this in "THE BELL NEWS." I am not going to speak against ringing itself, but against the extreme selfishness to which most ringers are a slave. Everything, everybody, wife, home and children are in every way neglected for this pastime. As a rule ringers cannot find one evening in the week on which to go for a walk with their wives, or stay at home for a little chat, but if cause be, every evening may be devoted to bells. I am sure you will agree with me that if they studied home ties a little more there would be less wrangling than there is in most ringer's homes, and many wives would feel less neglected and much happier. In most cases bells are first in ringer's minds, and to this I am sure many wives will sadly agree. I can call to mind an instance in which a man has reduced his wife to a state of destitution, because he would rather lose his work than miss a day's ringing, and I daresay this is not a solitary case. If this letter pricks the conscience of any ringer, I hope it may not prick in vain, and that for the future they will remember that their wives and families would like a little of their company sometimes; and I feel certain that if they would only bestow it on them they would be amply rewarded by seeing their wives wear less wearied countenances and their children growing up to love them more. Also a wife will feel encouraged to keep her home bright and cheerful, if she knows that her husband will spend a little spare time in it. I hope you will bear in mind that I am not speaking against ringing, but on the contrary I rather admire this scientific pastime, but I speak against it holding the first place in nearly every ringer's heart.

A. RINGERS' WIFE.

ONLY A RINGERS' PAPER.

SIR,—As regards the attack on your valuable paper, I was glad to see our friend, "Free Lance" call a short touch on the subject. I expected to see a touch from some of our other friends, but as I did not I thought I should like to say a word or two. I should like to have said a few words at the time, but had no opportunity then. I don't say a word against Church Bells, but I feel confident that "THE BELL NEWS" has done more than anything else to raise the standard of ringers and change-ringing to the pitch it now is. I am sure no one can have better advice than is to be found in your leading articles, when you have space for them. I know that you take interest in the young beginner, who has rung his first 6-score, as well as those at the top of the tree. I should like to see every clergyman where there is a peal of bells take it in and read it, then I feel sure much more good would be done. I hope that you may live many years to carry on the work, and I wish every success to "THE BELL NEWS."

Widford, Essex.

J. DAINS

THE LONG PEAL OF STEDMAN CATERS.

I hope Mr. JOHNSON will not think it an impertinence on my part when I say that I cannot sufficiently admire the ingenuity which he has brought to bear upon the production of the peal of 13,054 Stedman Caters, published in Bell News of June 2nd. [I presume that the first call at 5 should be a single.] Not only does he give the 120 course ends, but the whole of the interior changes are rung, with the exception of four sixes. Anyone who has tried his hand at composition with bobs at 4 and 5 intermingled will know what a puzzle it is to avoid repetition, not to mention the difficulty of gathering in (so to speak) all the sixes and leaving none out in the cold. The difficulties have been practically overcome by Mr. Johnson, for five sixes are lost at the commencement of the peal, owing to the treble not being yet in her proper position.

In order to add to the peal these missing sixes I would beg (with much diffidence) to offer to Mr. Johnson the following suggestions:—

Instead of starting in the ordinary way, begin with these four changes:—

2 1 3 5 4 7 6 9 8
3 2 1 5 4
3 1 2 4 5 6 7 8 9

1 3 4 2 6 5 7 9 8 &c.

There is no rule against starting straight off from rounds in Stedman; surely, then, it may be permissible to begin with 4 changes instead of the usual two. The extra two changes have the same effect upon 1 2 3 as the bob at 6 in the first course, and therefore the latter may be omitted and bobs at 1 and 16 with S. 5 brings up the first course end 3 1 2 6 5 4.

Of course, this necessitates a different coming round, as we must begin with a bob at 1. The following is, I am afraid, rather clumsy, as it contains two singles; but I have no doubt that if he thinks this suggestion worth consideration, Mr. Johnson will soon produce a more respectable one than this, viz.:—bobs 1, 2, 3, S. 8, 10, S. 11, 16. This arrangement would make the peal run to 13,056 changes.

THE HOLT SOCIETY, ASTON-JUXTA-BIRMINGHAM.

The next Quarterly Meeting of this society will be held on Thursday evening, June 28th, at the "Ring of Bells," when the presence of all the members is earnestly requested for the consideration of important business,

W. H. GODDEN, Sec.

THE ST. MARY'S SOCIETY, KIDDERMINSTER.

ON Whit Tuesday, eight members of the above society paid a visit to Bridgnorth, that celebrated old place on the banks of the river Severn, so ably described by W. H. F. in "THE BELL NEWS" a short time since. While journeying along, handbell ringing was indulged in, and 360 of Grandsire was rung. J. Bennett, sen., 1; G. Salter, 2; T. Salter (conductor), 3; J. Bennett, 4; H. Williams, 5-6. Arriving at Alveley, a little village midway between Kidderminster and Bridgnorth, a halt was made for refreshments, and with the kind permission of the Vicar, a 720 of Bob Minor was brought round in 24 mins., supposed to be the first 720 in any method upon the bells. J. Bennett, 1; G. Salter, 2; T. Salter, 3; J. Bennett, 4; H. Adams, 5; H. Williams (conductor), 6. And 360 of Grandsire. W. Smith, 1; G. Salter, 2; T. Salter (conductor), 3; J. Bennett, 4; T. Bennett, 5; H. Williams, 6. After a few tunes and changes on the handbells to amuse the company (it being a club walk that day), we resumed our journey, listening to a well-struck touch of gravedigger's delight by the local company. The bells are a musical peal of six, with a tenor of about 12½ cwt., and go like tops; they have a long draught, the ringing chamber being on the ground floor, the vestry serving that purpose. On our way we passed the little church of Quath, where there is a peal of six, but we could not stay to have a pull. On our arrival at Bridgnorth we were met by Mr. W. H. Fussell, Mr. J. Overton, and Mr. J. Rowley, the latter belonging to Sheffield. An attempt was to have been made for a peal, but owing to a misunderstanding it did not come off, so some short touches of Stedman, Plain Bob, and 672 of Grandsire Triples were rung. J. Bennett, 1; J. Rowley, 2; G. Salter, 3; J. Overton, 4; J. Bennett, 5; H. Adams, 6; H. Williams (conductor), 7; W. Smith, 8. And a 504. J. Bennett, 1; W. H. Fussell, 2; J. Bennett, 3; T. Salter, 4; J. Rowley, 5; H. Adams, 6; H. Williams (conductor), 7; W. Smith, 8. After lowering the bells, an adjournment was made for tea, which, with a stroll round the town, brought the day's enjoyment to a close, it being time to start for home, which was safely reached about eleven o'clock. The visitors take this opportunity of thanking the respective vicars for the use of the bells. H. W.

MR. WILLIAM SOTTANSTALL.

A friend of Mr. Sottanstell's sends us the following:—

Mr. SOTTANSTALL wishes me to present to you the second part (and the only one bound) of the "Elements of Campanalogia" with his photo, taken on the 87th anniversary of his birthday, also a outline of his life. You will see that COLONEL AKROYD of Halifax gave half the cost of publishing Sottanstell's works, but I think the printer failed, so that all the parts never got printed. The first part is in manuscript, and consists of a variety of Peals on from 2 to 6 bells in various methods; on 5 bells there are 16 different methods; on 6 bells there are a variety of different methods; single and double and a great variety of peals on various methods, in 25 classes of 9 bobs, 12 bobs and 15 bobs each.

The above part contains 432 pages of manuscript, the second part I enclose as aforesaid for you, Mr. Editor, the third part is in manuscript, and contains over 200 pages of a variety of methods on 9, 11, and 12 bells, also a supplement to the third part which contains many long peals of Treble Bob Major.

I, ROBERT HANLEY, now give you an outline of his life from his own lips:—

"Mr. Editor, I send you an outline of my life which I hope may be a stimulus to future generations of Change Ringers. I was born at Sowerby near Halifax, Yorkshire (where now I live), on the 9th July, 1800, and have lived in the same village all my life, my father was a Hand Loom Weaver and also a Bell Ringer, he lived to be eighty-seven years old. There were not many schools when I was a boy, so I had no education—only what I got in Sunday School and what I have taught myself—I had to start work as Bobbing Winder at the age of seven years, at the age of fourteen I was put to learn Damask Weaving, which I followed till steam power and machinery took all the trade from the hand looms, then I started to sell cloth, &c., but for the last eighteen or twenty years I have given up all trade, only I still continue as Parish Clerk to St. Peter's, Sowerby, and from the age of 25 I have composed Bell Music. I have worked 16 hours for a day's work and then spent 4 hours composing Bell Music; many a score of times, in fact for forty years, I travelled hundreds of miles to gather information on Bell Music.

"Sir, I have given you an outline of my life, but there are many details that I cannot trouble you with, only one, to show what difficulties I had to contend with: my first wife died and left me with ten children, one only a month old, and now I have only two daughters living out of the ten, but at present I have a good wife and kind granddaughter who looks after our house, I have many kind friends so that I do not want, especially my landlord, JOHN RAWSON, Esq., to whom I gave the manuscript of the second part. I hope sir I have not encroached too much upon your time, only I thought if you liked to make use of the outline of my life in the Bell News and Record, it might encourage some to go forward in the exercise, for a good peal well-rung is sweet to the ear of yours humbly,
Sowerby, Yorkshire.

ST. MARY'S, GRASSENDALE, CHESHIRE.

The members of this society with the assistance of Messrs. A. Jones and J. Allen, met on Monday evening, June 11th, and rang a touch of 1086 changes, being 326 of Kent Treble Bob, and 720 of Bob Minor, as a tribute of respect to the late Walter Turner, of Chapel Place, Garston, who died after a long illness on Tuesday, May 22nd, leaving a young widow and one child to mourn his loss. He was interred on Saturday, May 26th, at St. Michael's church, and was followed by a large circle of sympathising friends, and a small detachment of volunteers belonging to the 6th L.A.V. The ringers stood as follows: J. Turner, 1; J. Alexander, 2; C. Newton, 3; J. Allen, 4; T. Morris, 5; A. Jones (conductor), 6. The number of changes rung indicate the number of weeks deceased had lived.

THE ST. LAWRENCE'S SOCIETY, READING.—ANNUAL EXCURSION.

On Saturday, June 16th, this society had their Annual Outing, the district chosen this year being in the counties of Bucks and Middlesex. Leaving Reading at 7 o'clock in the morning by train, they arrived at Slough by 7.45, where a brake was in waiting to take them on to Uxbridge which was reached by 9 o'clock. After a short touch at St. Margaret's on a peal of six (which were not in very grand condition), they walked on to St. Andrew's, Hillingdon, where they were met by the Vicar, the Rev. C. T. Mayo, who conducted them to the belfry; here was quite a different state of things, everything being in perfect order. A 504 of Grandsire Triples was brought round in twenty mins., conducted by W. J. Williams. Strolling back to "The Chequers," Uxbridge, the company refreshed the inner man, and then continued their journey on to Ruislip by brake, where they arrived by 12 o'clock. Here Mr. Manning of Pinner joined the party, Mr. A. C. Fussell, an honorary member of the Society, having previously swelled the ranks at Slough. Having raised the bells, a 518 of Grandsire Triples was accomplished in 19 mins., conducted by A. E. Reeves. The ringers now pushed on to Pinner, and rung a touch on the fine peal of eight, conducted by the captain, Mr. W. Newell. The company after lowering the bells adjourned for dinner. At 3 o'clock, everything being in readiness, a start was made for Harrow-on-Hill, but ringing was not the order of the day here, as permission had not been previously granted, yet the travellers were amply repaid for their visit by the magnificent view of the surrounding country which can be obtained from the Churchyard on the top of the hill. The remaining spare time was spent in witnessing a grand Cricket Match between Harrow and the M.C.C. Leaving this delightful spot at 4.30, the homeward journey was commenced, passing again through Pinner, and on through Batchworth and Harefield to Denham, which was reached by 6.10. Here the Vicar, the Rev. R. H. Lathbury, was waiting to receive his visitors, and having welcomed them, gave a short history on the noble peal of eight (tenor 24 cwt.) A short touch was then indulged in, the vicar ringing the tenor. At 6.50 the campanologists were again on the road, and arrived quite safely at Slough by 7.45, where a touch was rung on the light peal of eight, after which they walked to the "Royal Hotel" and sat down to a sumptuous repast, to which justice was done, as might be expected, considering the long drive with a bracing air. As the clock pointed to 8.50, the train came into the station, and soon St. Lawrence's Ringers were steaming towards Reading, which was reached by 9.35. Thus ended the Sixth Annual Ringing tour of St. Lawrence's Society of Change Ringers, each member thoroughly enjoying his day's outing. Thanks are due to Mr. A. C. Fussell of Slough, and Mr. W. H. Manning of Pinner, for the assistance they rendered the Secretary in arranging the tour.

WELLINGBOROUGH, NORTHANTS.

After practice on Monday evening, June 11th, the parish church ringers adjourned to that ancient Inn, "Ye Golden Lion," and partook of an excellent supper, in celebration of the 21st birthday of one of the young ringers (Mr. F. Underwood). The table was very neatly spread, and was ornamented by a little model bell, an exact representation of a church bell with all its fittings. Fourteen ringers sat down to the capital spread provided by host Savage. After the removal of the cloth, the toasts of "The Queen," "Vicar and Churchwarden," "Steeple-keeper" (Mr. Turnell), "Deputy-conductor" (Mr. Ette), "Belfry-sidesman and Chairman" (Mr. Dennes), "the two old ringers," and "Host and Hostess," were duly honoured. Songs from Messrs. Craddock, Ette, Turnell, Randall, and Underwood, and tunes and changes on a musical peal of handbells (kindly lent by Mr. W. Wood) passed the time away most pleasantly.

The parish church bells were rung deeply-muffled on Monday evening from 7 to 8.30, in Triples, Doubles, and Queen's changes, as a token of respect to the memory of the late Emperor of Germany, husband of our Princess Royal. The tenor was rung by itself previous to the raising of the other bells.

FOR SALE.—A beautiful-toned set of Handbells, 24, in G.; nearly new; warranted perfect. Price £10. Company broken up cause of sale.—Apply to J. STRUTT Richmond Road, Kingston-on-Thames.

MEETING OF THE HERTFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION AT HATFIELD, HERTS.

In response to the intimation of the above Meeting given in "THE BELL NEWS" for the last few weeks, some 22 ringers assembled at Hatfield on Saturday last, comprising representatives from Hertford, St. Alban's, Hatfield, Hitchin, and other places. The tower was opened for ringing shortly after 3 o'clock, when the bells were soon put in motion. Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples were rung until 5 o'clock, at which hour an adjournment was made to the Coffee Tavern for tea, and justice having been done to an excellent repast, attention was turned to business. The Rev. Canon Wigram presided, and was supported by the following ringers:—Messrs. Herbert Baker, M. Ellsmore, and J. Gray, Hertford; Messrs. Henry Lewis, E. P. Debenham, R. A. Fowler, G. W. Cartmel, W. H. L. Buckingham, J. C. Mitchell, D. Gibbons, H. Brewer, and J. W. Brewer, St. Alban's; Messrs. W. J. Richardson, J. Kentish, H. Rowe, and A. Shepherd, Hatfield; Mr. W. Allen, Hitchin; Mr. P. Springham, Sawbridgeworth; Messrs. H. A. Barnett, and G. B. Lucas, Tottenham; and Mr. E. J. Comb, London. The rev. chairman after referring to the object of the meeting, and announcing that there was then a balance in hand of £4 2s., called upon Mr. Debenham, who asked those present to signify whether they would support the Association, and his request met with a response from all present in favour of belonging to it. The Rev. Canon Wigram then proposed and Mr. Baker seconded, that Leonard Proctor, Esq. be requested to act as president of the Association, which was carried unanimously. On the proposition of Mr. Lewis, seconded by Mr. Baker, Mr. E. P. Debenham was elected Hon. Secretary, and Mr. R. A. Fowler was subsequently selected to fill the duties of Auditor. It was decided that in future three District Meetings be held during the year on Saturdays, Baldock being selected as the place of the next meeting, in the month of October, and the Annual Meeting was fixed for Easter Monday, and after the present year, the subscriptions will be payable on the day of the Annual Meeting instead of 1st January; and the President, Secretary, and Auditor were authorised to draw up and submit to the next meeting a revised set of rules. After the business meeting, most of the members returned to the tower and rang touches of Bob Major and Grandsire and Stedman Triples until 8.30 p.m. Some of the St. Alban's contingent afterwards met at the house of Mr. Kentish, where the handbells were brought into requisition, and rang some courses of Bob and Grandsire Royal and Grandsire Caters. It must not be forgotten to mention the excellent "go" of the Church bells, and that thanks are due to Mr. Gray for examining them previously to see that everything was satisfactory.

THE HOLT SOCIETY, ASTON-JUXTA-BIRMINGHAM.

On Saturday, June 16th, eight members of the above Society met at the residence of W. A. Baldwin, Gravelly Hill, for the purpose of opening a new peal of twelve handbells. The proceedings commenced with a touch of 367 Stedman Caters. H. Bastable (conductor), 1-2; T. Russam, 3-4; W. Kent, 5-6; B. Witchell, 7-8; J. Buffery, 9-10. After a short interval followed the performance par excellence of the evening, viz.: 517 Stedman Cinques. T. Russam, 1-2; W. Kent, 3-4; T. Miller, 5-6; H. Bastable (conductor), 7-8; B. Witchell, 9-10; H. Johnson, jun., 11-12. This is the same band which rang a short time ago the only peal of Stedman Cinques on handbells out of London, and the third ever accomplished in that intricate method. The bells were then set going to the merry tunes of "Harvest Home," and the "Blue Bells of Scotland," by T. Miller, H. Bastable, and T. Russam. After supper, for the purpose of better illustrating to the ladies present the changing order of the bells, a course of Grandsire Caters was "lapped," which evoked much praise, and quite converted the "dear souls" from the idea that there is nothing whatever in scientific change-ringing. A touch of 380 Grandsire Triples then followed. T. Russam, 1-2; B. Witchell, 3-4; W. Kent (conductor), 5-6; W. A. Baldwin, 7-8. Succeeded by a plain course of Bob Royal. T. Russam, 1-2; W. Kent, 3-4; T. Miller, 5-6; B. Witchell, 7-8; H. Bastable, 9-10. It was intended to have rung all four standard methods and also a touch of Duffield, but time not permitting the evening's enjoyment was brought to a close with the pretty tune of "Call'er Herrin," by the same performers previously mentioned.

A VISIT TO ST. PETER'S, BOURNEMOUTH.

(BY A PARISHIONER).

Generally speaking, belfries are not remarkable as being comfortable and convenient places. I have a very lively recollection of experiencing what I considered at the time some hair-breadth escapes in groping my way up the steep and dark stone staircases of some country belfries. But what an outsider might find a difficult task in gaining access to a belfry, a practised ringer would regard as a mere trifle, the explanation of course being found in the old adage that "use is second nature." There are, however, belfries and belfries. I remember some which I would not visit a second time unless I desired to find an easy method of terminating my existence. One instance especially occurs to my mind at the present time. A sequestered village on the coast in East Anglia was en fete on the occasion of the peal of bells at the parish church having been re-cast and re-hung, and nothing would satisfy the worthy ringers but that I should accompany them up the steep flight of steps to the belfry, and "there see the bells for yourself," as the leader put it. The tower of the church was one of the finest in the surrounding country, and was a prominent object for the mariner for many a mile. The marine and landscape views obtained from this vantage ground had been loudly praised by those who had taken the pains to ascend the tower, and these facts being again put before me by my cicerone, I yielded to his invitation, and expressed my willingness to follow him. Once begin the ascent in a strange church tower, where daylight or any other illumination is a thing out of the question, and there is practically no possibility of relinquishing the task. Your knees ache violently before you have completed half the number of steps, and to add to the difficulty in this case the steps were much worn by the "indignities of time," and the footfalls of bell ringers of many generations. In vain did I grope for a hand-rail, but my guide merely gave a good-natured chuckle when I asked him why the builders did not supply such a convenience and means of safety for amateurs like myself. His only remark was that it was not necessary! It was a warm July day, and I need hardly add that by the time we reached the last stair I was fairly fatigued. The views, &c., of the sea and the surrounding country were certainly interesting, and some might have thought them worth the task of climbing the tower. The belfry, itself, however, was an apartment remarkable for its ventilation. Herein belfries in many churches differ from the churches themselves. There is an unusually large supply of fresh air, and in this particular instance the glazier and plasterer must have agreed to give the ringers as much benefit of the fresh air as possible. Although it was a warm day I soon discovered the apartment to be too draughty for one who was unduly heated, not with wine, but with the exertion in scampering up those stairs. The general appearance of the belfry was worse than the most dilapidated garret, and it has often occurred to me why the ringers themselves do not make some attempt at ornamenting an apartment in which they pass, on the whole, a good many hours in a week. However, I felt in no humour to interrogate my guide on this point, as the ringers had just commenced their work and, of course, all conversation ceased. But this is not the only belfry to my knowledge which is so cheerless in its interior, and I suppose the explanation is chiefly to be found in the fact that, as a rule, the bell ringers have not the time or money to embellish or improve their belfries, although one would think that a proper representation to the churchwardens would have a good effect.

Turning from the belfries to the ringers, I do not think it would be claiming too much for the bell-ringer to-day to say that he is an important functionary, and one whose services, perhaps, are scarcely sufficiently appreciated by the general public. It matters not hardly wherever one may go, whether on business or holiday bent, he is almost sure to hear some indication of the bell-ringers in the neighbourhood. The numerous pleasure seekers paddling in all sorts of craft along Old Father Thames on a summer's evening, ply their oars to the cadence of the bells from the old parish churches which are situate, in many instances, along the banks of the river. The inhabitant of the busy city is also treated to the "music of the bells," and scarcely a day passes, but that the resident of more fashionable parts of the metropolis "hear the mellow wedding bells." Judging from the spirit and heartiness with which the bell-ringers I have known perform what appears to a casual observer a tedious and monotonous task, they are evidently very much interested in their work. To stand in a belfry for an hour and half or more, as the ringers do on special occasions, must require considerable patience. Moreover, bell-ringing is not a mere mechanical performance. It is an art, and efficient campanologists must of necessity have some knowledge of time, or their efforts on the brazen bells at their control would not be tolerated for ever so short a time. With reference to belfries and bell-ringers it may be interesting to give some particulars of a recent visit to St. Peter's belfry, Bournemouth.

The handsome church of St. Peter, as most inhabitants of the town are aware, possesses a fine peal of eight bells. These were cast by Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, and first rung on Ascension Day, 1871. The cost of six of the bells was subscribed for by the inhabitants as a testimony to Mr. Bennett's (the late vicar's) zeal and energy.

Being a comparatively modern church, the ascent to the belfry does not involve such a hazardous task for an unpractised climber as some of the staircases in the old edifices I have referred to. There is plenty of light, and, providing you have an elastic step and do not mind a little exertion, a visit to St. Peter's belfry is, compared with similar feats elsewhere, an easy matter. But what I wish to refer to in connection with this belfry is the creditable work of ornamentation which has recently been carried out by the members of the St. Peter's Society. About two years ago Mr. S. Merritt, a practised ringer, who has assisted his brother-ringers at St. Peter's for a number of years, suggested that the bare walls and ceiling of the belfry should be decorated. Hitherto there was nothing to hide the rough bare bricks, and the ceiling consisted of the roughly-sawn timbers, which supported the lead floor beneath the bell-chamber. To their credit be it said, several of the ringers not only devote their services to the belfry on Sunday, but are useful members of the choir, and these agreed with their brother-ringers that something out to be done to improve the appearance of the belfry, especially considering the amount of decoration that had been expended upon every other portion of the interior of the church. Thereupon Mr. Merritt prepared a design for decorating the belfry, and this having been submitted to and approved by Vicar and churchwardens, the work was at once commenced by Mr. Merritt, who has been assisted by the other ringers, who have succeeded in performing a highly creditable piece of work during their spare hours. As an indication that their efforts have met with the approval of the Vicar and churchwardens, these gentlemen have further added to the comfort and general appearance of the belfry by providing the ringers with a new set of bell ropes with scarlet ends to correspond with the decorations of the walls, and eight small mats for the ends of the ropes to fall on to. The decoration and improvements of the belfry are deserving of more than a passing notice, and some particulars with reference to the character of the embellishment may not be out of place. The ceiling is divided into one centre and eight other diagonal panels supported by cross girders, eight inches by six inches, which are supported by twelve stone corbels. The decoration of the walls below consists of a twelve inch frieze running round the four sides. It is of early English design, foliage springing from a dog tooth ornament. Beneath this is a space of two feet six inches, left to record events in connection with the belfry, such as peal boards, etc. Then comes a six-inch string course of Saxon ornament, much in use before the Conquest, and re-introduced by Henry I., and another course of Norman ornament, supported by a rope pattern. Between these two, Psalm cxxiv., and part of Psalm cl. have been written, the verses running round the walls and over the eight arches of the windows. Beneath this is a blank space of four feet six inches, left, it has been suggested, for portraits of those who have officiated in St. Peter's church. Beneath this, and about breast high from the floor, is a two feet six inch arcading of Norman character, supported by seventy-five columns with moulded caps, connected by fret-work in imitation of a brass screen. Between this and the floor is a three-feet stained and varnished match-boarded dado, with moulded capping. The floor itself has been covered with a very neat linoleum, provided by the vicar and churchwardens. Mr. Alfred Grist, the deputy captain of the ringers, executed the text round the walls, but the credit for the remainder of the work is due to Mr. Merritt, who, in addition to his services in the execution of the work, provided the various colours. Although not quite completed the belfry presents a very attractive appearance, and so far as interior ornamentation is concerned it is probably second to none in the county.

The St. Peter's ringers have not allowed this work of decoration to occupy their time and attention at the expense of their practice on the bells, for on last Whit-Sunday morning they rang their first quarter-peal of 1260 changes for Divine Service.

IRCHESTER (NORTHANTS).

During the recent restoration of the Church of St. Katherine, Irchester, a great step toward belfry reform was taken by the opening out of the west arch. There are now signs of a ringing loft here. The bells have, doubtless, always been rung from the pavement, as now. The "long pull" and the fact that they are hung the wrong way round, and have the old-fashioned large wheels, &c., is somewhat puzzling to strangers. They are a musical peal of five, the tenor weighing about 22 cwt. For its weight, the tenor is of remarkably fine tone, and well worthy to act as "cover" to a peal of six or even eight, which it is to be hoped it may do at some future time. Below are the inscriptions on the Bells, and the diameter at the mouth of each:—

Treble. "Nathaniel T. Goosey and James Mather, Churchwardens, W. Taylor, Oxford Fecit Ano Dni MDCCCXLVJ." Diameter 36 in.

Second. "Ihs Nazarene Rex Judæorum Fili Dei Miserere Mei Gloria Deo Soli Anno Dom. 1729." Diameter 38½ in.

Third. "A B C D E F G H I K L M N O" Diameter 41 in.

Fourth. "A B C D E F G H I K L M N O P Q R S T U X" Diameter 43 in.

Tenor. "Thomas Angrave & Timothy Jackson, Churchwardens, Edwd. Arnold Leicester Fecit 1792." Diameter 50 in. There is the impression of a "Coventry Halfpenny" on this bell.

The little Sanctus Bell (weighing about 1 cwt.) which was cracked some 40 years ago, was recast in the year 1882, and replaced in its old position in the South Spire Light. It is inscribed—"E. W. Sandys-Reed, Vicar. G. T. Bayes, R. W. Arkwright, Churchwardens. J. Taylor, Loughborough." It will be noticed that the third and fourth bells are not dated, but the sign of the bell-founder (Watts of Leicester) on the shoulder of each signifies that they were cast in the early part of the 17th Century. They are what is termed "Alphabet Bells." For want of a regular inscription, a certain portion of the Alphabet is run round the shoulder. The fourth bell has evidently seen much service, it is chipped (tuned) both at its lip and inside the sound bow, and has scarcely any vibration. Bell-frame and fittings are all exceedingly old, but owing to the care and attention bestowed on them by Mr. Percival, the Steeple-keeper, the bells go very well indeed. The little oaken door leading to the clock-room is the work of the Vicar, the Rev. H. H. Slater, and is made from some old oak timber from the Church. The clock-room is now in good order, the windows having been glazed, and the floor repaired. Owing to the opening of the west arch, it was found necessary to remove the clock to the north side of the tower. This under the management of Mr. J. Austin, of Knuston, and Mr. Percival, the clock-man, was satisfactorily carried out. New weights, new brass wheels to the dial, locking plate for the quarters, and an improved escapement being at same time added. The clock is dated 1840, and was made by John and Edward Corby, of Grendon. Close to the clock is the machine for working the "Quarter Chimes," which strike on all five bells in "rounds" or "set changes," according to taste. They were made and fixed by the present steeple-keeper, Mr. W. Percival, in the year 1869, the cost (£25) being raised by subscription. The quarters sound clear and regular. They are a source of pleasure to the villagers, and a credit to the ingenious farm labourer who erected them.

In the clock-room hangs the Royal Arms, dated C. R., 1667, lately removed from the west end of the church; also an ancient clock face, discovered beneath the plaster of the west arch. It is arranged for a clock with one hand only, and no doubt, judging from the position where it was found, it was formerly fixed in the church, facing East. A bill, dated 1700, for repairs to the ancient clock was recently found in the Church chest. Just above the clock is a peal tablet (removed from the belfry below), recording the ringing of 5160 changes. It reads as follows: "Change-ringing in this steeple. Forty-three peals, amounting to 5160 changes, were rung on five bells, March 1st, 1852, in three hours and twenty-eight minutes. Joseph Bayes, treble; Ephraim Hallabourne, second; Charles Sparks, third; Thomas Sparks, fourth; Thomas Craddock, tenor, peal conductor, Thomas George, umpire." Joseph Bayes still chimes the treble bell. Craddock, the present tenor man, is a son of the conductor of the above peal.

Irchester ringers keep up their reputation for clear, well-struck ringing and chiming. It is to be hoped that the improved condition of the belfry may encourage them to persevere in their efforts to master the science of change-ringing, and also help to bring about the addition of at least one more bell to the peal. A nice musical set of handbells would be very serviceable to the ringers here.

NOTICE OF A VISIT TO THE ISLE OF MAN.

It is the intention of a few friends from Liverpool, Birmingham, and Sheffield, to pay a visit to the above place, with the object of attempting two 5000's at the new church at Peel, where there is a new ring of eight. The party will leave Liverpool on Saturday, June 30th, and return on July 9th. Any ringing friends who happen to be on the island during the time will be cordially received. C. H. HATTERSLEY.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE ANNUAL FESTIVAL of the above Guild will be held on Monday, July 16th, at Witney. Dinner tickets may be had on application by members to the Secretary, ensuring railway tickets at reduced fares on G.W.R. These dinner tickets are free for change-ringing, one shilling per head for probationary, and two shillings per head for hon. members.

A NEW PEAL BOARD.—A tablet has been executed by Mr. Jerram, in black and gold, to commemorate the peal of Grandsire Triples rung at St. Thomas', Salisbury, on Whit-Monday last, being the first peal on the bells. The peal is recorded as in "THE BELL NEWS" of May 26th, and below are names of "Rev. H. G. Rogers, M.A., Vicar; G. Bartlett, W. J. Snook, Churchwardens; H. J. Silverthorn, Sexton; J. Short, Captain." The tablet is being exhibited in a shop window in the town during this week, and is to be erected on Saturday. The expense of execution has been kindly defrayed by the Churchwardens.

ST. JOHN'S, BRADFORD (Yorks).—On Monday evening, June 11th, a 720 of Bob Minor (nine bobs and six singles, from Shipway), in 26 mins. Joe Hardcastle, jun., 1; James Cotterell, 2; G. Titterton, 3; B. T. Copley (conductor), 4; S. Palfaman, 5; J. W. Cundall, 6. This was rung to celebrate the admission of Messrs. Cotterell and Cundall into the Yorkshire Association, and the formation at St. John's of a branch of that Association, being the first 720 rung there by all members for several years back.

RINGERS' OUTING.

The Whitstone band of the Devonshire Guild had their annual outing on Saturday, the 16th of June. In Devon there are 165 peals of six bells, and the country at this time of year is as beautiful as any in the world, so it is their own fault if a party of six-bell ringers cannot make a pleasant excursion. Certainly there was nothing to complain of in the programme for this occasion. The route lay over hills and dales, beloved by artists, and the weather, which had been unpropitious to cricketers and haymakers, cleared up in the nick of time. The party consisted of seven regular ringers, two honorary members and an old friend. About 9 o'clock the start was made from the Exe Bridge in a pair-horse brake, and the first halt was made at Dunsford. The next was at Bridford, and then Christow and Ashton. The Christow bells are famous, and it was agreed that they were the best peal of the lot. They were cast in 1785 by the Penningtons of Cornwall, and there is a tradition that they came here, through mistake or knavery, instead of the similar peal which went at the same time to Dunsford. However this may be, there is not much to choose between the two, except that the Christow bells have been rehung lately, and go rather better than the Dunsford peal. The tenors weigh about 14 cwt. At Ashton there is a lighter peal from the same foundry and at Bridford a new peal of six by Warner, with the exception of one old bell. All four peals are in good ringing order, and at each place an hour or so was devoted to the Exercise with much satisfaction to the performers, and we may hope to the critics also. At Dunsford a slight accident occurred, fortunately without serious consequences. By an oversight the ringer of the tenor had not been informed of the rickety condition of the stay of his bell, and accordingly, when "stop" was called, he was surprised to see the sally taking an unusual course, and on the spur of the moment stuck to it with more valour than discretion. After leaving Ashton our road was over Haldon Hill, and through Ide, where we were bound to stop and ring if we had time, but it was now past seven o'clock, and hunger suggested that another day would be more suitable. Soon afterwards we had arrived at the point from which we started in the morning, and were glad to find an excellent cold collation spread for us in the club room of the "Seven Stars," to which, one need hardly say, ample justice was done. There was a piano in the room, and when the cloth had been removed, Mr. Ferris Shepherd struck the keys as deftly as he handles the ropes, and sung to us into the bargain. After God Save the Queen the Chairman proposed the four Rs, viz.: Reading—the next two are easier to say than to write—and Ringing, without which last no education is complete. Mr. Cheesework, who has taught many generations of the youth of Dunsford and Whitstone, replied for the school-room, and Mr. Shepherd for instruction in the belfry. In the course of some judicious remarks he urged his former pupils to ring not only their best, but their very best, whenever they went out into a round-ringing district, as they might be sure that every blow they struck would be keenly criticised.

There is no use in disguising the fact that west-country round-ringers know their work, and do it as well as it can be done, and it is only human nature if they attribute our errors of youth or inexperience to the system which we commend to their notice. The Christian Missionary sometimes finds that the virtues of the heathen give him more trouble than their vices, and the young change-ringer who preaches a new gospel to these hoary sinners of an old dispensation has a similar experience. Never mind! If we cannot teach them much at present, we can learn something from them, and when we have been at it as many years as they have we shall ring as well in our style as they do in theirs.

After the sermon the party adjourned to a rifle gallery, which mine host, sensible of England's danger, has established for the benefit of volunteers, and let us hope, for his own profit. The shooting was not of a high average, but it would have been a shame if a band of ringers had been unable to ring the bell, and this was done by the last shot. So ended a very successful holiday.

RINGERS' PICNIC.

On Saturday, June 16th, the ringers of Eccles parish church had their annual outing, Westhaughton being the place chosen for the occasion. At two o'clock a waggonette and three horses drove up to the meeting-house, the Oddfellows Arms, where the party were in readiness, and a few minutes saw them on their way through Worsley, Walkden, and on through Checherbent, a beautiful drive, and though the morning was rather threatening, the afternoon was beautiful and fine, which made the drive a very pleasant one, and the handbells were used pretty freely on the road, tunes and changes being gone through which also added to the enjoyment of the party. A stop was made at Walkden, where both men and horses had a refresher, another start, and Westhaughton was reached by 4.30, when the ringers of that village met them with a hearty "How do you do," and put up at the Red Lion Hotel, and after a little ringers' chat, the tower was ascended where a nice ring of eight (tenor 13-cwt. 3.qrs.) was in readiness, and with the assistance of Mr. Joseph Prescott, conductor of St. Peter's, Hindley, touches of Grandsire Triples were rang by Messrs. Walton, Eaton, Barratt Yates (conductor), Grimshaw, Rogers, Prescott, and Ashcroft. Afterwards ringing was kept up by different bands until 6.30, when they retired to the Red Lion Hotel, where dinner was provided by Westhaughton Ringers, when upwards of twenty sat down to the good things provided. After this course was gone through the cloth was removed, and Mr. Rogers of Eccles occupied the chair, and proposed the health of the local ringers and the Queen and Royal family; Mr. G. Grundy sang in fine style "The Anchor's Weighed"; Messrs. Rogers and others rendered songs, courses of Grandsire Triples and Major, also tunes were rung on hand bells. The shades of evening coming on and a twelve mile drive having to be accomplished, the usual shake of hands was given, all expressing themselves pleased with their outing. The Eccles Company wishes to thank (through the "BELL NEWS") the Westhaughton ringers for their kindness and for the use of the bells.

CHANGE-RINGING AT BATH.

On Tuesday, May 22nd, Messrs. W. W. Thorne (London), J. Hinton (Bristol), F. Howell (Thornbury), — Bonds (Stapleton), Wotton and Smith (Tiverton), paid a visit to Bath, and after an inspection of the Abbey, with the assistance of the Messrs. Seers, rang a touch of Grandsire Caters, after which a move was made for St. Andrew's church, where Holt's ten-part peal was attempted under the conductorship of Mr. W. W. Thorne, but owing to the breaking of the sixth rope, it came to grief. The rope being spliced, a quarter-peal was rang in 49 mins. J. Smith, 1; J. Bond, 2; A. Bond, 3; H. Wotton, 4; F. Howell, 5; J. Wotton, 6; W. W. Thorne (conductor), 7; J. Hinton, 8. The ropes were in a very bad condition, three having been spliced before starting. The ringers wish to thank the Canon and Vicar for giving them permission to ring.

ST. PETER MANCROFT, NORWICH.

(Concluded).

The first performance of any note on the new bells is recorded in the peal book of the Cumberland Society, and a copy was published by the late Mr. Snowdon some years ago which runs thus :—

"St. Peter's Mancroft, Norwich.—Mon. March 16th, 1778. The Society rang a peal of 6240 changes of Treble Bob Maximus in 5 hrs. and 22 mins., being the greatest performance ever done by any society. Thos. Barton, 1; Jno. Peak, 2; Jno. Havers, 3; Wm. Warner, 4; Jno. Read, 5; Chris. Lindsay, 5; Jno. Dixon, 7; Jas. Watling, 8; Simon Watling, 9; Jno. Dye, 10; Jas. Vines, 11; Jno. Frowse and Jas. Frowse, 12. Composed and conducted by Mr. Thos. Barton."

Scarce forty years after the rejoicings at the opening of the new peal of twelve, we find the following paragraph in the Norwich Mercury of July 16th, 1814, which speaks for itself.

"On Wednesday evening, when the bells were ceasing, the noble tenor of St. Peter's was broken. Of course it is difficult to assign a reason for the sudden injury of the bell after so many years. We know not how far the misfortune, and a real one it is to the lovers of campanology, can be repaired, so nice an operation is the casting of bells. We take this opportunity to mention a curious fact connected with this subject. Everybody almost has perceived that the ringing at St. Peter's produces a sensation of melancholy, which is accounted for by the tuning of the peal. Mr. Garland, the late organist, under whose direction they were finished, gave them the temperament of E flat as it stands on a fixed instrument, which is known to impart a peculiar degree of melancholy to whatever is set in that key."

Whatever the worthy editor of the Norwich Mercury meant I can't say; since the bells are in the key of C, I don't see how there could be an E flat among them. This noble bell was recast the same year by Thomas Mears, and I am happy to say that she lost none of her original grandeur.

Shortly after this event, the following performance, recorded on a tablet, was achieved.

"Monday, January 20th, 1817, were rung in this steeple 5016 of that most ingenious and intricate peal, Norwich Court Bob Maximus, in 4 hrs. and 2 mins., without the miss of a bell, or the repetition of a single change. This peal very much resembles Norwich Court Royal on ten; there being short dodging on the bells before and behind, and tenth's place at a bob. The ingenuity of its composition, and the bold and regular striking, reflect great credit on the company, and are allowed by judges to be a performance which, if ever equalled, can never be surpassed. It is the first peal ever accomplished in England in that intricate method on twelve bells; was conducted by Mr. Robert Chesnutt, and rung by the following persons :—

Robert Chesnutt Treble.	George Hames 7.
Peckover Hill 2.	John Trowse 8.
John Giddens 3.	Joseph Lubbock 9.
Charles Gittings 4.	Thomas Hurry 10.
Samuel Havers 5.	Nathaniel Beales 11.
Charles Kelf 6.	Samuel Thurston Tenor.
	Matthew Smith }

The above tablet is given by the late Mr. Snowdon in his book on Double Norwich Court Bob.

Another tablet records a peal of Stedman Cinques, thus :—

"On Thursday, January 18th, 1844, was rung in this steeple, that most intricate and ingenious peal called Stedman Cinques, in 5 hrs. and 17 mins., consisting of 7126 changes, without the misplacing of a bell or the repetition of a single change. The bold and regular striking attracted the notice of the public, and is allowed to exceed any other performance ever attempted in England upon twelve bells. The peal was conducted by James Truman, and rung by the undermentioned persons. The minister and churchwardens, with a portion of the inhabitants, have contributed to the erection of this tablet, the remainder being subscribed for by the company of ringers.

Thomas Hurry Treble.	William Freeman 7.
Robert Burrell 2.	George Watering 8.
Elijah Mason 3.	James Truman 9.
Charles Middleton 4.	Joshua Hurry 10.
William Gaul 5.	Henry Hubbard 11.
John Greenwood 6.	George Smith Tenor.
	Robert Palgrave }

Having now traced the history of these bells from the fourteenth century up to the present time, I shall conclude by giving one or two copies of entries relating to ancient usages. In the sixteenth century Peter Reade gave his houses in St. Laurence's parish (before mentioned), "for the ringing of the Bow Bell called the 4 clock and 8 clock bell."

Among the duties of the sexton we find :—

"Item he shall ringe courffye bell every night for the space of halfe an oure at the least from crouchemes and Lames at IX of the clock and all the yeare after at eayght of the clock"

PRESENTATION AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

ON Monday evening, May 28th, a few of St. John's ringers met together in their belfry and rang a farewell 720 of Bob Minor with Mr. R. J. Robson, who has been one of their number for many years, and is now leaving for London. R. J. Robson, 1; W. G. Routledge, 2; H. Fergusson, 3; W. Story, 4; C. L. Routledge (conductor), 5. After this an adjournment was made to the "Theatre Buffet," where he was presented by Mr. W. G. Routledge on behalf of those present, with a beautiful meerschaum pipe, on the case of which was inscribed on silver : "Presented to Mr. R. J. Robson by a few change-ringing friends on his leaving Newcastle, May 28th, 1888."

Also with this was given a handsome Wedgewood tobacco jar.

Mr. Robson having suitably responded, the rest of the evening was most pleasantly spent in speech making, and "cracking the merry jokelet."

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting for the election of officers and other business will be held at Bletchingley by the kind permission of the Rector, on Monday, July 2nd. The towers at Bletchingley (eight bells), and Nutfield (six bells) will be open for ringing during the afternoon and evening.

Tea will be served at the "Red Lion" at 6 p.m. All those who intend to be present, must please send word to Mr. Bashford at the "Red Lion," Bletchingley, Red Hill, not later than Thursday, June 28th in order that provision may be made for them.

SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1888.

THE greatest event that has occurred since the last issue of this paper is the untimely decease of the Emperor FREDERICK WILLIAM of Germany. We say untimely because, though we should not demur to the will of the CREATOR in this or in any other matter, the promise of a beneficent and peaceful reign by the now deceased prince inspired the great hopes that by his action and instrumentality the general peace would be preserved. And untimely too, to the people not only of his own nation and empire, but to the whole of the Teutonic race. The people of Great Britain, even those who are so apt to prophesy the speedy collapse of monarchical institutions, deplore the death of FRITZ of Prussia as untimely. To Englishmen the late Emperor was a prince among princes. In their estimation he towered considerably above other royal or semi-royal dignitaries of the German Empire, and this not merely because of his high rank among them, but from a knowledge of his frank, noble, and manly character. And on the other hand, his sentiments towards this country were known to be of the same kind; our constitution and laws—deficient in many respects as they may be—received his warm admiration, and it is hardly saying too much that could he have been spared he would have endeavoured to lighten the burdens of his people by relieving them as far as practicable of that detestable military yoke which is unfortunately the bane of continental nations, and have given his country a liberal form of government to which it is yet a stranger.

When such a prominent man as the monarch of a large empire departs away under such tragic circumstances as did the late Kaiser, it is not out of place to refer to it in this paper. His patience and long suffering under a terrible disease, his placid resignation to his fate, and other well-known characteristics too well-known to recapitulate, mark him as a nineteenth century hero. Such is the opinion of a leading British statesman; such appears to be the opinion of many of our readers who are in their own peculiar way paying a respect to his memory.

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES.

SIR.—I should like to make one or two remarks concerning the accompanying peal of Grandsire Triples. In my investigation, something suggested the possibility of peals being made to contain only ninety calls. After condensing the subject by means of composing suitable tables, from which I was enabled to extract a variety of peals with ninety calls, the following are specimens of what the plan will produce. I have given the bob leads in the same order as they were extracted from the table. Hitherto, 140 has been the least number of calls we have had in a peal containing only two Grandsire singles, but here we have the calls reduced down to ninety, the least possible number. With the exception of the first two leads in the one part in each peal the 6th and 7th are never called before.

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—I am obliged to Mr. Tucker for his letter which appeared last week and trust he will pardon my saying that it does not prove his case. He refers me to "THE BELL NEWS" for August 27th, 1887, where I find a peal of Bob Major 5376 on the old plan, with 7th and tenor together all through, and explains that the 5504 is the same peal with the calls made in different places. Such may be the case, but the indisputable fact remains that my 5056, with 7th away from tenor, appeared in print before his peal, and the almost exact repetition of course-ends with the same calling was the only cause I had for writing as I did. As he has given dates, I may be excused for doing likewise. I composed the 5056 on the 2nd of February this year, and sent it to you Sir, for publication on the 27th of the same month, and it appeared in your paper on the 31st of March, or four days after he says he composed the peal. If the above dates do not establish the fact that the 5056 is the first published on the plan I do not know what will. Mr. Tucker may if he likes keep the peal, I do not want it, but I will certainly not give way to him to call it original.

JOHN R. PTITCHARD.

MORE LADY CORRESPONDENTS.

SIR,—Your lady correspondent's letter in "THE BELL NEWS" for June 16th, seems to me to be an extreme exaggeration. As to her statement "that everything, everybody, wife, home and children are in every way neglected for this pastime," is certainly a long way from the truth in the case of the many ringers that I am acquainted with, every evening not being devoted to bells. One practice night, or in some cases two per week is usual with most ringers and when it is arranged to try for a peal it is usually attempted on one of those nights. I do not find "or hear of ringers" in the houses that I visit, the wrangling your correspondent speaks of, and where there are children growing up, I find not a wife with a "wearied countenance," but a smiling one, watching her husband teaching the young ones how to use handbells, thereby combining instruction for them, and amusement for himself at home. I also find that where the ringers' home is always bright and cheerful, whether he is out ringing or not, he will not "if cause be" devote every evening to bells.

MRS. SPRIGG.

SIR,—I was pleased to see that a lady had taken upon herself to wake the ringers up from their selfishness. If they would take heed of the advice given them in the last issue, and think a little more of those around them they would be amply rewarded, and could take much more pleasure in their ringing if they were to study the good old proverb of King Solomon, "a time for everything." It is not only the married ladies feel it, but the single too, for if they wish to take a walk they must either wait till they come down from the tower, or go by themselves, which is not very pleasant if you do not like going out alone. I would not discourage a ringer or run the ringing down, for I am a lover of it, and perhaps if they were not in the tower they might be in a publichouse or some other bad place, which of course would be much worse. I wish them all as great a success as they can have, but they will never find an end if they keep on till doomsday. I hope they will take the hints thus given and try to improve, as I am sure there are scores who suffer, for in this case there is mother and daughter.

A RINGER'S DAUGHTER.

INFORMATION WANTED.

SIR,—Can you or any of your readers give me any idea when "ringing lofts" or floors above the belfry pavement were first introduced. Is it supposed that they were in use before the Reformation? Personally I think they were not, but I should like to have a few opinions on the subject.

GRANDSIRE BOB.

THE LONG PEAL AT CHELTENHAM.

SIR,—In looking over the figures of the 13,054 of Stedman Caters, I find the printer has omitted the s at 5 in the first course; it should be thus—I 55 6 16.

W. T. PATES.

A CORRECTION.

SIR,—In the report of the handbell peal, in your issue of Saturday last, you omitted to state that it was by the Ashton-under-Lyne society, and also that it was the first handbell peal rung entirely by members of the society.

JOHN HOPWOOD, Hon. Sec.

THE LIVERSEDGE HANDBELL CONTEST.

SIR,—In looking over the correspondence, in your last issue, I find there is one who signs his name as a competitor, and wants it explained about No. 1 and 2 ringing fairly well; No. 3 not so fortunate, and obtaining the first prize. If the competitor heard the decision given out, and I think if he did he would notice there was no observation made; No. 3 company ought to have been put "was more fortunate, instead of not so fortunate," and James Lodge, from Heckmondwike, not Hull. And the second prize in the eight bell contest, should be £1 10/- instead of £2; these errors were made by the reporter of our local paper.

THE SOCIETY OF CHANGE AND TUNE RINGERS, LIVERSEDGE.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Like bells at evening pealing."

I was pleased to read the report of the festival of the Durham and Newcastle Association at Stockton last Monday week, including as it did, the very encouraging and none the less interesting remarks of the worthy vicar, and the well-earned tribute of praise rendered to their energetic Hon. Secretary, Mr. Clarkson. That gentleman evidently deserves the thanks of his Association were it only for the good services he has rendered in accomplishing such a reformation at Stockton. Let us hope that the ring of six there will soon be augmented; whether the alteration be ten or twelve, their voices will be a lasting and sweet-sounding tribute to him who was the means of their augmentation.

* * * * *

One cannot read this report without experiencing a feeling of gratification at the very cordial feeling which is manifested between the clergy, wardens, and ringers. This "sign of the times," although constantly showing itself, yet loses none of its effect through its frequent repetition. "May its shadow never grow less."

* * * * *

I say, Mrs. "Ringer's Wife," you are coming it too strong—hot and strong—in fact. If you go on at this racket, we shall be compelled to commence locking up our "BELL NEWS" out of sheer self-preservation. I have already had a very eloquent discourse from my better half on the subject. She thinks Mrs. "Ringer's Wife" has just bit the right nail on the head, and expresses a strong desire to shake hands with her. Well, after all, there is no doubt a considerable amount of truth and force in her remarks. If a man has a "hobby" or a favourite pastime of any sort, he surely can find sufficient time to indulge in it without letting it interfere with his duties as a citizen and the head of a household. A man who lets his "hobby" run away with him to such an extent as to cause him to grievously err in this respect, most certainly does deserve pulling up now and then, to bring him to a sense of his duties. I must plead guilty myself to having left my good wife all alone till late of an evening, many—very many—times, while I have been enjoying myself in the belfry, but a man who will so far forget himself as to neglect his daily avocation and so injuriously affect his home affairs, is to be most emphatically censured. Should any of our friends have been guilty of this, I hope her letter will take effect, so that they will err in like manner no more. Let us at any rate act with reason in all things.

* * * * *

The appeal on behalf of the widow and family of the late Mr. Thomas West, of Leeds, will I feel sure commend itself to the sympathies of our brethren. Although not being personally acquainted with the case, I do think the mere fact of our brother having left a widow and nine children practically destitute, will of itself be sufficient to cause those of our friends, who are able, to do some little towards the fund which is being raised to alleviate their poverty and mitigate their loss. I cannot help adding a word of praise to the members of the company to which Mr. West belonged, for having so generously defrayed the costs incidental on their late brother being laid reverently and religiously in his last earthly resting-place.

* * * * *

The particulars respecting the career of our veteran friend, Mr. William Sottanstell, which are given us through Mr. Robert Hanley, will, I do not doubt, be very interesting to all who have read them. But, although he has thus complied with my request expressed some weeks ago for further information in this direction, there is one point to which I referred that he has not, I am sorry to say, cleared up, namely, the matter of the missing manuscripts of volumes 1 and 3. He certainly does tell us that he thinks the printer failed, so that all the parts never got printed; but that is scarcely sufficient to account for the disappearance of the mss. Cannot Mr. Hanley procure us more information on this point, so that some effort may be made in order that this valuable portion of Mr. Sottanstell's labours may be published for the benefit of the Exercise. It is surely worth trying for; and I will promise Mr. Hanley all my humble assistance in this behalf, if that will be any inducement to him or any of Mr. Sottanstell's many friends to persevere in this matter. I am convinced that it would be a very great mistake to let this thing drop just where it is.

* * * * *

From the announcement given by Mr. Hattersley, I rather imagine ringing matters will be pretty lively at the Isle of Man during the first week of next month. I wish our friends of those three great ringing centres every enjoyment of their holiday, and success with their peal. Could I make it convenient, they would have me amongst them.

THE SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD AT BRIDPORT.

On June 7, there was the district meeting and luncheon of the Salisbury Guild of the county of Dorset. So far, the St. Mary's Honorary Guild, the President of which is the Rector and whose Secretary and Treasurer is Mr. W. B. Northover, has not formed part of the Diocesan Guild, but on this occasion affiliation with the Diocesan Guild took place for the guilds of Bridport and Beaminster. There was service at St. Mary's Church in the Morning, when the prayers were read by the Rev. J. S. P. Fagan, and the sermon was preached by the Rector, the Rev. E. J. L. B. Henslowe. Later on there was a cold luncheon served in a satisfactory manner by Miss Hussey, at the Greyhound Hotel. The Mayor (Mr. A. W. H. Dammers) presided; and among the company were also: The Rev. M. Hankey (rector of Maiden Newton, and district secretary), the Rev. E. J. L. B. Henslowe (rector of Bridport), the Rev. S. S. Keddie (Allington), the Rev. J. S. P. Fagan (Bridport), the Rev. Mr. Carter (Cattistock), Mr. W. B. Northover (secretary of the Bridport Guild), M. J. B. Dunn (secretary of Beaminster), Mr. W. Williams (secretary of Cattistock), Mr. W. Bishop (secretary of Maiden Newton), Mr. W. Hayes (Canford Magna), Mr. T. Compton (Broadwinton), Mr. C. G. Nantes, Mr. J. A. Collins, Mr. T. B. Baker, Mr. E. Smith, Mr. Albert Stone, Mr. T. Matthews, and others.

The Mayor asked the company to drink "Long life to the Queen."

The Rev. M. Hankey, responding to the toast of "The Diocesan Guild," expressing his satisfaction at being able to affiliate two such important towns as Beaminster and Bridport, which meant sixteen members from Bridport and eight from Beaminster.

During the afternoon visits were paid. Broadwinton Guild went to Symondsburry and Chideock; Cattistock and Maiden Newton to Beaminster; Canford Magna to Maiden Newton and East Fordington; and Bridport to Maiden Newton and Cattistock. At the Bridport Parish Church touches were rung during the day by the guilds of Maiden Newton, Cattistock, and Beaminster.

RINGERS' OUTING, AND DEDICATION OF BELLS, AT MARYBOROUGH, QUEENSLAND, AUSTRALIA.

Five o'clock on Friday evening, March 23rd, 1888, found two of our trans-Pacific brethren, Messrs. Dennis and Morton, on board the steamer "Fitzroy," a small but comfortable boat, bound for Maryborough, a distance of 690 miles.

"This journey was made," says our antipodean correspondent, "at the invitation of E. T. Aldridge, Esq., of 'Baddow House,' who invited eight members of the St. Philip's company of Sydney to visit Maryborough and open the new bells, he bearing all the cost, which consisted of saloon returns and first-class hotel accommodation for each member. Only six, however, could avail themselves of the opportunity, as Mr. Whetton, our sub-conductor, was through pressure of business prevented from accompanying us, and another member, Mr. John Dennis, had on Easter left the colony for a trip to the old country. This was a matter for regret, as they were two of our best men. It may be mentioned that we advised respecting both the tower and bells throughout, which doubtless led to us receiving the invitation.

"After being bid 'bon voyage' by the ringers and friends who assembled on the wharf, the steamer was soon on her way down our picturesque harbour, and within three-quarters-of-an-hour we were outside the heads, in rough water. Our trip down was all that could be wished, the weather being delightfully fine, and the sea calm till after we left Brisbane. There was not much of interest to view after we left Sydney, save a beach said to be forty miles long, which we plainly saw, being within sight of the coast during the whole of the journey. The porpoises, of which we saw several one day, were very interesting. They seemed to travel in couples, and would keep up with the steamer for two or three miles, only being about ten yards of the boat, when suddenly they would put on as it were a spurt, and dart across our bow and disappear. Brisbane was reached at five o'clock on Sunday afternoon, and as soon as the boat was made fast, the runners from the hotels, smart lads dressed in very neat and becoming liveries, soon sought patronage for their respective establishments. Being through passengers we remained on board, and soon learned that we would have to wait two days in Brisbane. This we did not like, but there could not be anything done to remedy it. After tea we went to All Saints' church, having been recommended to do so by a fellow-passenger who belonged to Brisbane, he informing us that we would hear better singing there than in Sydney. We took him at his word and went. We found the church, which is not a very pretentious looking place, 'crowded to excess.' The service would be considered 'High Church.' The intonations were all unaccompanied, as was also the anthem, 'Daughters of Jerusalem.' The tenor solo from the Messiah, 'Behold and see if there be any sorrow,' was exceptionally well rendered by a member of the choir during the offertory. We had to confess that the service deserved all that had been said in its favour. The seats in this church are all 'free and unappropriated,' and we could not help noticing the large proportion of young men that were present. We also had the pleasure of hearing the only ring of bells in Queensland; they are at the Church of England pro-Cathedral, dedicated to St. John, a musical ring of eight by Warner and Son, and are chimed by one man who does it very nicely. The bells have not been rung for several years, as they are only in a wooden structure, very strong-looking, and about eighty feet high, the sides are all open, save the top, or original bell-chamber, which is covered in with louvres on each side. The bells have been long since removed from the top and brought down to the next floor, they are quite exposed to the weather, the remnants of what were at one time bell-ropes being still attached to some of the wheels. We also noticed a 'chiming cylinder,' not now in use. Let us hope this state of things will soon be remedied.

"On Monday morning we visited the Botanical Gardens, which are rather nice, and situated on the banks of the river. There we saw some of our dark countrymen, who for their own amusement were throwing the 'boomerang.' This is a somewhat peculiar weapon about eighteen inches long and two inches wide, very thin and slightly concave, and is made out of very hard wood. It may be thrown for about 200 yards, skimming about two feet above the surface of the ground, when it gradually rises in the air and drops close to the feet of the thrower. This depends much on his skill, and also the make of the weapon. The public buildings are very good, as are also many of the business places. There is only two business streets, of which Queen Street is the principal, and these are very narrow. We visited the Museum, Acclimatization Gardens, and other places of interest, including pine-apple farms, where we saw acres of this most delicious fruit under cultivation.

"Tuesday afternoon at 4.30, we left Brisbane for Maryborough, and after a long journey down the Brisbane river, we reached Moreton Bay. This is an immense expanse of water, and you have a difficulty to believe that you are not on the ocean. After a few hours of rough water, daylight finds us in the Mary river, and 11 a.m. at our destination. Mr. Aldridge, who was waiting on the wharf, came on board, and we were soon exchanging friendly greetings, and on our way to the Melbourne Hotel. It may be mentioned that our object in preceding the remainder of our band, was to supervise the hanging of the bells, which the local men did not feel competent to undertake, not having had any previous experience, so there was not any time to be lost, as the bells were to be opened on Easter Sunday. We went to the tower directly, and found Mr. Braddock, foreman of the firm of Messrs. John Walker and Co., with a good staff of workmen in readiness to proceed according to our instructions. They in the meantime had constructed and erected a massive hardwood bell-cage, as per plans, etc., from Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. The bells were also placed in their respective compartments, and there remained until we arrived on the scene. Therefore we had to advise as to the position for the bearings, wheels, etc., and all that was necessary from that stage up to the completion. It seemed impossible to be ready in three days and a half, but with five or six willing men, and a little overtime, everything was ready by Saturday night. Messrs. Cartwright, Rostron, Burchell, and Payton, the remainder of our band who left Sydney on the Tuesday, and were due at Maryborough on Saturday morning, did not arrive until Sunday at one o'clock, being detained at Brisbane owing to Good Friday, which is closely observed by the Seamen's Union when vessels are in port. This altered our arrangements, as we hoped to have had a dumb practice together, for the purpose of getting the spring out of the ropes, and also getting their proper adjustment. The Dedication was also to have taken place on Easter Eve, as the opening peal was (by request), to be 'In Memoriam,' which would have been quite in keeping with Holy Saturday, but the boat being detained, caused a very significant alteration in our programme, and prevented us from having an Easter dawn ring as was intended, besides leaving us in much doubt as to when she might arrive. One o'clock came, and the 'Burmah' with our men on board, touched the wharf. We were in readiness to meet them, and after much shaking of hands and a hearty greeting, together with expressions of disappointment at the delay, we were soon on our way to the Hotel, one of the company in the meantime drawing our attention to the fact that it was the first of April. After dinner, 2.30 found us in the belfry ready for the opening, of which a summary of the following appeared in one of our local newspapers.

"St. Paul's Church, Maryborough.—The dedication of a ring of nine bells, the munificent gift of Mr. Edgar Thomas Aldridge, of Baddow House, one of the earliest settlers in Maryborough, took place on Easter Sunday, April 1st, 1888, at 2.30 in the afternoon, in the presence of the churchwardens and many prominent members of the Church, Mr. Aldridge's family being represented by Mr. Henry Aldridge and Mr. F. Bryant, Mayor of Maryborough.

"The service took place in the tower (which is detached from the church) and was of a somewhat private character, owing to the space being limited. The beautiful office for the dedication of church bells was said by the Rev. R. R. Eva, A.K.C.L., Rural Dean and Rector of Maryborough, who, having ascended the tower, and standing on the east side over the bells, began with the Lord's prayer and responses: after which the 150th psalm was said, followed by responses, prayers and benediction.

"The bells being thus set apart for the sanctuary of the Lord, six members of St. Philip's Belfry Society, Sydney, who were invited by Mr. Aldridge to open the bells, rang half-muffled, on the heavy six, a solemn memorial funeral peal, as a token of respect to the late Mrs. Maria Aldridge, in whose memory the tower and bells are erected, the ringers standing in as follows: William Saul Morton (conductor), 3; Walter A. Rostron, 4; Robert Dennis, 5; William Burchell, 6; Henry B. Cartwright, 7; and William Payton, 8.

"The ringing consisted of the twenty-four singles with the seventh behind, and the tenor as minute bell, the changes were called, and the striking was not good, owing no doubt to the new ropes, which were very springy; after children's service, Bob Doubles were rung for about an hour on the light six, and chiming from 6.30 to 7.30 for evening service, which consisted of rounds, queens, tittums, and whittingtons on the eight, interspersed with about fifty hymn tunes, arranged for six, eight and nine bells, taken from the various standard hymnals.

"The chiming of tunes (which is the ringers specialty) seems to be very much appreciated by the large concourse of people who assembled in the immediate vicinity of the tower, and thronged the church, as they listened to tune after tune which was chimed with very much precision notwithstanding the disadvantage of the new ropes and bell-gear, the chimers standing in as follows. R. Dennis, 1-2; W. A. Rostron, 3-4; H. Cartwright, 5-6; W. S. Morton (conductor), 7-8.

"Easter Monday was observed for the first time in Maryborough, with an early morning peal on the light six. Chiming for eleven o'clock service, and ringing at intervals throughout the day on six and eight, when Messrs. Surcombe, Barke, Binstead and Howe, local members, some of whom had not handled a bell-rope for twenty years, stood in the rounds, and after a little practice, soon proved that they had not quite forgotten what they had learned in England, the ringing Isle.

"The bells are amusical ring of eight, with an additional half-tone bell, and were cast by Messrs. Mears & Stainbank, of London, they are the only ring of bells in Queensland which may be rung, and the only ring of nine bells in any of the Australian Colonies. They were recommended by the conductor of St. Philip's Belfry Society, Sydney, as offering much more scope for tune-playing purposes than any other ring of eight, and for ringing they afford the ringers the advantage of a light ring of five and six bells, in addition to the heavy ring of five, six and eight. A consideration which should not be underrated in a warm climate. The bells are perfectly in tune and are of a clear and mellow tone.

"The following inscription is cast on each bell; 'Mears and Stainbank, Founders, London.' 'To the glory of God, and in memory of Mrs. Maria Aldridge, 1886.' And on a large marble slab which is inserted in the wall on the outside of the tower, is engraved the following:

"This tower with peal of nine bells, was erected by the bereaved husband and children, to the honour and glory of God, and in memory of Mrs. Maria Aldridge, late of Baddow House, Maryborough, a communicant of St. Paul's church. She was one of the earliest wives and mothers resident in this town; a conscientious Christian woman who through life was a peace-maker, ever forgiving and doing good, and helping all who were in trouble, distress, or affliction. Died March 17th, 1886, aged sixty-five years, nearly thirty-seven of which were spent in Maryborough."

"The tower which is a very massive brick building, with cement facings, and surmounted with a battlemented top, is, as a belfry, all that can be wished, being both commodious, well ventilated, well lighted, and well appointed. The bells, which are hung in a massive hard wood frame, go with such ease, that it is quite a pleasure to ring them. The bell-chamber is eighteen feet square, and the frame is clear of the walls all round. The ringing-chamber is sixteen feet square, and about fifteen feet high: the ropes fall in an exceptionally good circle, the treble being the only rope which required to be led away, and that very slightly. Water is laid on to the ringing-chamber, and gas to each floor. The tower, which is eighty feet high, consists of the ground floor, ringing-chamber, and bell-chamber, and notwithstanding the adverse criticisms indulged in by some of the townsfolk respecting its stability, etc., there is not the slightest cause for alarm, as the tower has been well tested by the ringers, who during their stay manipulated on the bells in every way in which they will be likely to be used. Credit is due to Mr. Buchanan, the architect of the tower, and to Messrs. John Walker and Co., for the very satisfactory way in which the bells have been hung. It may also be mentioned that Mr. Aldridge has in addition to the above given a site, on which he has built a memorial church, dedicated to St. Thomas. This church was built in a place where it was much needed. During the ringers' stay, which lasted four days, they chimed about 100 hymn tunes, in addition to a lengthy programme of ringing, and as a finale chimed 'Home, Sweet Home,' which kindled in the minds of not a few, fond remembrances of loved ones, and the many happy Associations which entwine about the 'Old Home.' We understand that Mr. Payton, one of the ringers from Sydney, will remain behind for a few weeks to instruct intending members in both ringing and chiming. We regret, Mr. Editor, that we cannot state that a peal of Duffield, the latest new method, or even of Plain Bob, was rung on this occasion, which would have been the first peal rung in the colonies, but as ringing proper may be considered a thing of the dim future as concerning New South Wales, we had to content ourselves by ringing from figures. Our opening pull not being a very successful one, we repeated it the night before we left. This we did on the heavy six, with the tenor behind, and on the light in the same manner as on the Sunday. I am of the opinion that when the seventh is rung behind and the tenor left out, the music thus produced has the peculiarity of being in a minor strain, and is consequently in keeping with the occasion. The handbells supplied by Mears and Co. we found to be particularly sweet; on these we rang tunes and the plain course of Plain Bob Major, the bells being 'passed.' During our stay we visited Baddow House, which is pleasantly situated on the banks of the river Mary. This is the finest house and grounds in Maryborough. We were also to have had a four-in-hand drive, but the weather which was rather wet, prevented it. Maryborough is said to be the largest municipality in the world, there being no less than ninety-eight miles of streets, of which one is five miles long. The houses are very much scattered, and the place very flat. Ringing should flourish in this place, as there seems to be no other attraction. We broke the dullness by occasional concerts, when Messrs. Payton, Burchell, Cartwright, and Morton, gave songs, the last named also acting as accompanist. The trip was to us very pleasant indeed, and not the least did the treatment we received at the hotel contribute in this direction, the proprietor, Mr. Blue, being most attentive. Our thanks are especially due to Mr. Aldridge, sen. and jun., for the very generous treatment we received from them, and also to the Rev. Mr. Eva, for his hospitality, and the many townsfolk who we became acquainted with during our stay. We left for Sydney on Thursday at noon, with the good wishes of those just mentioned, who saw us off. On our journey home we had a rough time of it, and in crossing the 'bar,' everything movable had to be lashed down. We all experienced the unpleasant stomachic sensation which landmen feel when they go to the sea in ships and transact business in the great waters. There was not much to relate respecting our return journey, save occasional concerts which took place when not feeling too unwell. Sydney was reached at 7 on [Sunday] morning, after travelling a distance of 1380 miles. We were well laden with pine-apples and bananas received from Mr. Aldridge, and will no doubt long have fond remembrances of place and people.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting for the election of officers and other business will be held at Bletchingley by the kind permission of the Rector, on Monday, July 2nd. The towers at Bletchingley (eight bells), and Nutfield (six bells) will be open for ringing during the afternoon and evening.

Tea will be served at the "Red Lion" at 6 p.m. All those who intend to be present, must please send word to Mr. Bashford at the "Red Lion," Bletchingley, Red Hill, not later than Thursday, June 28th in order that provision may be made for them.

All members who forward their names as above will have tea free others 1s. 6d. a head. The business meeting will follow the tea.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

FOR SALE.—A beautiful-toned set of Handbells, 24, in G.; nearly new; warranted perfect. Price £10. Company broken up cause of sale.—Apply to J. STAVRTT, Richmond Road, Kingston-on-Thames.

SAFFRON WALDEN, ESSEX.

A very pleasant anniversary was held here on Wednesday, June 27th, the home company being favoured with the presence of many friends, representing London, Cambridge, Waltham Abbey, Stanstead, and Littlebury. Touches were rung in the Grandsire, Stedman, Treble Bob, and Double Norwich Court methods. Among the visitors were several veteran ringers, viz., Mr. Thomas Powell, the only survivor of the band who rung the first double-handed peal of Stedman Triples; Messrs. George Rochester, John Holliday, and A. H. Gardom.

Service was held in the parish church at 11.30., and an instructive and interesting sermon, appropriate to the occasion was preached by the Vicar, the Rev. Mr. Stevens. Dinner by Host Rose at the "King's Arms," was very satisfactorily arranged. The health of the visitors was rapturously received, the proposer remarking that amongst those who had honoured the company with their presence were gentlemen who were not ringers, showing that ringing was admired by others than those versed in the art, and coupled with the toast the name of the Rev. Mr. Morgan, of Sawbridgeworth, who acknowledged the pleasure he experienced in being present on such an occasion.

The Sawbridgeworth handbell company also rendered excellent selections on their musical bells, and taken altogether this anniversary must be regarded as one of the most pleasant for some years past.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING of this society was held at Ashford, on Monday, June 18th, and attended by members from about thirty different parishes. Twenty-two new members were admitted at the Committee Meeting, and a resolution was passed that peals not sent in for entry within a month of their performance should not be entitled to be entered in the Association peal-book. The next district meetings were fixed to be held at Tenterden in August, and at Addington in October. Service at the parish church was held at twelve o'clock, the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore, precentor of Canterbury Cathedral, intoning the prayers; the sermon, addressed chiefly to the ringers, was preached with his usual force and directness, by the Rev. F. G. Robinson, master of the Oxon Diocesan Guild. 161 members and other guests sat down to dinner at the "Saracen's Head," under the presidency of W. P. Pomfret, Esq., M.P.—the usual business of re-appointing officers and committee were afterwards proceeded with, and the toasts of the Ashford band, coupled with the name of the vicar, of the churchwardens and the choir, and of the preacher were duly honoured. The Rev. F. E. Robinson in returning thanks for his health, observed that he hoped to be able to congratulate the Kent Association in the future, on a greater number of performances. The Ashford bells were kept merrily going during the day, and some of the neighbouring churches, such as Wye and Charing, &c., were visited. Altogether, a very enjoyable day was spent.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

THE ANNUAL MEETING will be held at Lichfield on Saturday, June 30th. Members are particularly requested to attend, and to bring or send subscriptions, together with any arrears. 2.30 p.m.—Assemble at the Cathedral for ringing. 5 p.m.—Special Service. 6 p.m.—Tea at Coffee House. 6.30 p.m.—General Meeting. Captains of bands should send the numbers liking to be present, together with the names of new members, to Perry Barr Vicarage.

RINGERS' PICNIC.

On Monday, June 18th, the ringers of Harley parish church met at the church and rung 336 Grandsire Triples before starting for their outing, conducted by T. Sparks, and then the brake was waiting at the "Six Bells" for the band. Leaving at 8.15, for Charlwood, to take up the remainder of the company, and after taking a little refreshment at Mr. Wickens, our worthy conductor, a start was again made for Leatherhead, which was reached at noon, and after a little chat, the tower was ascended and 534 Grandsire Triples, conducted by F. Wickens, and 588 conducted by S. Brooker. The ringers then returned to the "Bull Inn," and twenty-two sat down to the good things provided, W. Edwards in the chair. After this course was gone through the hand bells was brought into use, and a course of Treble Bob Major. A start was again made for Ashstead Church, a fine peal of eight, but time would not permit to start for a peal, so several touches of Grandsire Triples were rung, conducted by F. Wickens. Mr. Page, the steeple keeper taking part in them. After lowering the bells an adjournment was made for tea, and this brought the day's outing to a close, it being to start for home, which was safely reached about 11.30. The visitors take this opportunity of thanking the respective vicars for the use of the bells, and the gentlemen of Harley for giving the ringers this day's outing, they having thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Marriage.

"Be temperate in all things."

Bright, sunshiny, hot summer weather still seems reluctant to take up its annual stay with us, but if anything were needed to shew that the "wayz-goose" is once more upon us, we have evidence of that fact in the decreasing number of peals which now appear, and the increasing number of reports of ringers' outings, which we have the pleasure of reading. Whatever is worth doing is equally deserving of being done well; and whether we are in the belfry assisting to ring a touch or peal, or are off to the sea side, the pretty rural districts, or the fashionable spa, in search of new scenery, fresh air and enjoyment, there is nothing like entering into the affair heartily and making the best of it. Rest and relaxation are as necessary to us as food, and when availed of properly cannot fail to render us all more vigorous, and better able to resume our various duties.

* * * * *

The Saffron Walden Society, I notice, intend their anniversary on Wednesday next. If the date given of that Society's foundation (1623), be correct, I should imagine Mr. Penning will be able to lay claim to the secretaryship of about the oldest society in the country. A ringers' society which can boast of an existence of 265 years, must surely be unique; it is even more "ancient" than our College Youths.

* * * * *

I welcome most heartily the appearance of our esteemed friend Mr. Heywood's book on "Duffield." I have been tempted to think sometimes that the real reason why this very musical method has not been more rung is that our friends have not been able to thoroughly understand it. Now, however, that we have it in book form, written in Mr. Heywood's well-known lucid manner, that detriment to its adoption no longer exists. The more our friends examine this method, the more anxious they will be to master and ring it; of that I am convinced. What Stedman has been in the past, Duffield will be in the future: of that also I am convinced. While hailing the appearance of this work, and warmly recommending it to the Exercise, I confess I shall be greatly surprised if I do not see reported many attempts at touches, if not peals, in this method, before many weeks are over.

* * * * *

Respecting my remarks anent the lost manuscripts of Mr. W. Sottanstill, I have been asked the following questions, which (as I do not think myself competent to answer them), I append, in the hope that some of the readers of "THE BELL NEWS" may be able to satisfy the curiosity of my questioner.

1st.—Is the firm of Blews and Co., Bellfounders, still in existence?

2nd.—Was it that firm which several years ago, took charge of these mss., undertaking to see them through the press and properly published?

3rd.—Is it true that repeated applications have been made to that firm for the restoration of these mss., or some information as to their whereabouts, but without avail, the letters sent having been unanswered?

I give these queries verb. et lit. as I received them, and shall be equally glad with my correspondent to get that information which he seeks.

Next to earnest endeavours to gain proficiency in our art, and the faithful performance of all duties as ringers of the Church, it surely must be a most praiseworthy desire on the part of a society to adorn and beautify their own especial portion of the House of God, making it not only comfortable, but in keeping with the other parts of that sacred edifice. That object seems to have been very creditably accomplished by the ringers of St. Peter's, Bournemouth. What a contrast does the description given of that belfry afford with many—far too many—belfries which we all of us are in the habit of visiting more or less frequently? We have, it is true, got rid in a great measure of the dirt and cobwebs which had accumulated for generations; we have made our belfries decent, generally speaking; but how seldom have we done more than simply clear the filth from the stones, the bricks, and the timber, leaving them gaunt, bare, and comfortless? All praise is therefore due to the Bournemouth men for setting us so good an example in this respect; and where (as is evidently the case in this instance), zeal to beautifying the belfry is accompanied by zeal in performing all the duties devolving upon them, and attaining proficiency in the art, we may be sure that such a society will be a credit and ornament to the Exercise.

The correspondence columns of last week are, as usual, of a very interesting character. Now that our "big guns" of Grand-sire have got fairly on the war path, it is to be hoped that they will not cease firing until their ammunition is exhausted. The correspondence on this subject is very instructive, and—partly through the pleasing fact of its being conducted in such a thoroughly friendly spirit—interesting also. Good cannot fail to come out of it.

Mrs. "Ringer's Wife" has not been long unanswered by one of her own sex; although I did not expect seeing a rejoinder from some one of the "other persuasion." Mrs. Sprigg might be a sprig from a stout ash plant, she hits so hard; and I do consider that she is the "top scorer," so far. But whatever may be laid to the charge of married ringers on the ground of neglecting their wives and homes, my experience of the young unmarried members of our craft, I must say, does not coincide with the complaint of "A Ringer's Daughter." I have generally found it the case that when a young ringer has been "smitten," and started on that ancient and universal practice known among us by the old English name of "courting," the rule is that ringing becomes a secondary affair for the time being,—that should "courting night" and ringing night happen simultaneously, belfry duties are neglected for the purpose of "walking the girl out," and the band in the steeple experiences the disappointment of once more meeting with a man short. On the other hand, I have generally found that when a young man is really anxious to perfect himself in the art, he somehow contrives to have his evenings so arranged that one pleasure does not interfere with the other; he simply doubles his enjoyment so to speak; so that in these cases at any rate, the complaints of "A Ringer's Daughter" on this score are more fanciful than real. If her "young man" is so enthusiastic in the art as to keep her patiently waiting outside until he has finished his work in the belfry (as she complains), let me as an old and well-married man give her a piece of advice; do not selfishly attempt to dissuade him from his favourite pastime, but like a good little woman rather encourage him in it and endeavour to arrange your pleasant ante-marital strolls so that they do not clash one with the other. Thus he will doubtless love you all the more, seeing that you are unwilling to put any stumbling block in the way of him enjoying himself in a manner which may at least prevent him, as you yourself sensibly puts it, from drifting into something worse.

It is an old saying, one "as true as the hills," that there is a time and place for everything. So it is with our work of bell-ringing. Thus, if the principle of this adage be properly acted upon, there need be no such complaints as that of "A Ringer's Wife." But there is also another ancient law which should not be lost sight of, not only in ringing affairs, but in our daily life: "Bear and forbear;" the due observance of which will prevent many hours of unpleasantness and make our lives much sweeter. There can be no doubt of one thing, that our most successful men in ringing are as a rule those who have been blessed with helpmates who have encouraged them in the work and endeavoured to make things pleasant, both in home affairs and ringing arrangements. Just one more word, and I have done for the present on this point. I would tell "A Ringer's Daughter" that one of the most pleasant features of my ringing work is the interest which my good wife takes in it. About the first question which greets me on arriving home from ringing is—"Have you had a good ring?" or "Have you got through your peal?" If I have had success, I am heartily congratulated; if the reverse has been the case, I am comforted with some encouraging remark as—"Well, never mind; you will do better next time." Now, Mrs. "Ringer's Wife," or Miss "Ringer's Daughter," will you dare to assert that I do not love my wife and home all the more because of my ringing? Take this little matter home to yourselves; if your husbands and sweethearts are in good earnest with their ringing, they will never fail in their duties if you deal with them in a right sensible fashion.

FREE LANCE.

THE LONG PEAL AT CHELTENHAM.

On Tuesday the 21st inst., the board recording the 13,054 of Stedman Caters was duly opened in the belfry of St. Mary's Parish Church. The proceedings were opened by a touch of 1,151 of Grandsire Caters, by the following: J. Belcher, (conductor), treble; *G. H. Phillott, Esq., 2; G. Wanklin, (Gloucester), 3; *H. Karn, 4; *F. E. Ward, Esq., 5; J. R. Hooper, 6; *F. Musty, 7; *W. T. Pates, 8; G. Acocks, 9; *A. W. Humphries, 10. (*Took part in the long peal.) At its conclusion, Mr. Belcher the leader of the local band, in a few appropriate words, set forth the object for which they had met, and finished by removing the covering which had till then hid the board from sight—amidst a jubilant outburst of enthusiasm. The master of the association (Mr. F. E. Ward), briefly acknowledged the great honor it was to the society to be able to record so memorable a performance in such a suitable way, and concluded by calling for three hearty cheers for the conductor (Mr. W. T. Pates), who had so ably led them through the peal. This was responded to in a truly English manner, and Mr. Pates having replied, the proceeding terminated.

The board, which is some 4-ft. in length, by 2½-ft. in breadth, is surmounted by the arms of the diocese in colors, and the title of the association, and contains the simple record of the performance, with the names of those who acted as referees, in gilt on a black ground; it has a handsome raised frame of gilt, relieved by red lines and black edges, and altogether presents an imposing appearance. A photograph of the board has been taken, and cabinet copies (if required) may be obtained of the master, (Mr. F. E. Ward, 438, High Street, Cheltenham), at a charge of 1s. each.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A DISTRICT MEETING will be held at Woburn, Beds., on Saturday, June 30th. The bells (eight), will be at the service of the ringers attending, at any time during the afternoon and evening of that day. CHARLES HERBERT, Hon. Sec.
Woburn, June 12th, 1888.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION AT SADDLEWORTH, YORKSHIRE.

On Saturday, June 16th, the local ringers met and entertained their oldest ringer to a knife and fork tea at the "Church Inn." Previous to the tea six of the company met and rung a 720 each New London Pleasure, Oxford and Violet, in 1 hr. 15 mins. J. J. Brierley, 1; Jos. Radcliffe (conductor), 2; F. Brierley, 3; Edgar Buckley, 4; Joseph Wood, 5; James Radcliffe, 6. Mr. Ralph Broadbent, who had attained his 80th birthday, was listening to the ringing, and expressed himself highly-pleased with it. He has been a ringer at Saddleworth church about sixty years. He has not been able to ring lately on account of the grip going out of one of his hands. Still he is an hand-loom weaver, and follows his employment every day, and has never yet required the aid of glasses. This is very remarkable, as his employment requires good eyesight, he being a weaver of very fine woollen flannels. He has worked for one family for the last forty years. At six o'clock about thirty ringers sat down to tea, Mr. Broadbent and his wife being the guests of the evening. After tea the following company rang a date touch of 1888 changes, in 1 hr. 9 mins.: J. J. Brierley, 1; John Holden (conductor), 2; J. Turner, 3; James H. Shaw, 4; Joseph L. Buckley, 5; Moses Bradbury, 6; Thos. B. Dicken, 7; Edward Wood, 8. The rest of the evening was spent in a social manner, under the presidency of Mr. B. B. Bradshaw, who proposed the health of Mr. and Mrs. Broadbent, which was heartily drunk and responded to by Mr. Broadbent on behalf of himself and his good lady in a very efficient manner, and many were the congratulations they received, and frequent and fervent wishes for their future welfare, and happy returns of his birthday. Songs, courses, and tunes upon the handbells followed one another in rapid succession, until the host warned the company that time was up, the last performances being votes of thanks to the host and hostess and chairman. Mr. Broadbent has brought up a large family, who have now all left him, most of them married, and he and his wife reside alone and carry on their home as usual, and they are the oldest couple in the district who are known to be living together, following their employment and maintaining themselves by their daily labour without any assistance. In his younger days he was a good athlete, and was known to be the swiftest runner in the parish. When a service ringer he was always punctual and at his place in the tower every Sunday. He has resided in the house which he still occupies nearly the whole of his life, which is quite close to the grave-yard and near the church and bells he loves so well, and though he is not now able to handle the rope, he is always a very attentive and critical listener. "He never had changed or wished to change his place."

NOTICE TO CHANGE-RINGERS.

Arrangements are being made to commence a tour for ringing purposes, on Tuesday, July 10th finishing on Saturday, 14th, by a company, who hope to visit the following places with a view of attempting peals: Evesham, Tewkesbury, Cheltenham, Gloucester and Ross. The Rev. F. E. Robinson, with several Oxford ringers, including Mr. J. W. Washbrook, will join the company, should any other efficient change-ringer wish to be one of the party for one day or more please communicate to the undersigned at once. Applicant should be well up in "Standard Methods," and members of some recognised society. Further particulars will be found in the next issue of "THE BELL NEWS." Should the proposed tour be abandoned, notice will then be given, in any case silence must be accepted as "No."

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

A REJOINDER.

SIR,—In reply to "A Ringer's Wife" and "A Ringer's Daughter" allow me to state that women are a great hindrance to change-ringing, and worse even than that. I frequently see men leave the tower, after ringing on Sundays, and go home, instead of into church, simply because through bad management, their wives want them at home. And as for the young ladies, I think the selfishness is all on their side, as ringers seldom devote more than one or two evenings a week to ringing, and those should not be evenings on which to arrange a walk, as there is a time for everything, and I think it quite unnecessary for a young lady to be waiting for her beau outside the tower on practice-nights. Many a time have I known, when starting for a peal and failing after an hour or so, we might have commenced again but for the fact that one of the band had to meet his sweetheart at a certain hour. And I have known a steeple-keeper close a tower half-an-hour before the usual time because his wife wanted him at home earlier. It is needless to trespass further upon your space, but pages could be filled with proofs that most women are against ringing, and jealous of the Exercise wherein they cannot appear conspicuous. My experience of ringers is that they attend as much or more to domestic affairs as they do to ringing.

JAMES'S CHURCH.

LAVENHAM, SUFFOLK.

On Thursday, June 21st, the 77th anniversary of the augmentation of the two new trebles of the beautiful church of SS. Peter and Paul was held. Ringing commenced early in the morning, and was kept up at intervals during the day by visitors from Sudbury, Long Melford, Preston, Monks Eleigh, Bury and Framlingham. At half-past one o'clock the ringers and choristers sat down to an excellent hot dinner, supplied by Host Wells, of the "Cock Inn." The expenses of the dinner were defrayed by the Rev. E. Symonds, the esteemed curate, who left the parish on Monday, June 18th, after 5½ years faithful service. The longest day was his wedding day.

Mr. R. W. Roper, who is chosen in the place of Mr. Symonds as Treasurer and Secretary of the Lavenham Society, took the chair, the vice-chair being occupied by Mr. Corbetta, organist. The Chairman was supported by Mr. Varley, M.D., Mr. Bocock and others. After ample justice had been done to the dinner, and the cloth removed, Mr. Roper proposed the Health of the Queen and Royal Family, which was duly honoured. He also proposed the toast of the day, viz.: the Health of the Rev. E. Symonds. He said it did not need any words from him to say in what esteem Mr. Symonds was held by all the parishioners, but he truly hoped the loss Lavenham had sustained by his removal, would be the gain to the parish he would soon work in. He, the chairman, wished success to the local company, and to every lover of the art.

Mr. CORBETTA rose to propose the Health of the Chairman, which was drunk with loud applause. He also spoke in high terms of Mr. Symonds. They all knew he was a most agreeable gentleman, a great favourite, and most kind-hearted. He also considered he was a real Christian and a servant of God, and as he was a servant of God he was bound to treat all his fellow creatures with the greatest consideration, and he was very careful he did not, to use a common phrase, tread on anybody's toes, and was one who never said an unkind word to anyone, or did anything likely to produce illfeelings in others. He, Mr. Corbetta, also remarked that Mr. Symonds was quite an enthusiast in campanology, and characterised the Lavenham belfry as one of the best conducted in the kingdom. It was his great delight to be amongst the ringers, and was never tired of practising with them.

The toast was musically honoured, one more cheer being given for Mrs. Symonds.

Mr. F. TURNER then rose to propose the health of the vice-chairman, and the local company and visitors, which was duly honoured. He said it afforded him great pleasure to be present and to propose the health of the visitors. He also spoke in high terms of the well-struck peal of Grandshire Triples, which thrilled him with pleasure and happiness as he listened to the peal rung at Lavenham, on March 3rd, 1888.

At the same time five of the St. Peter's Society arrived with a grand peal tablet, recording the same in black and gold, and was erected in the tower the same evening, a well-struck touch of 504 Grandshire Triples being rung on the occasion.

The company wish to thank the Rev. E. Symonds for his kindness towards them, and they wish him long life and prosperity. Mr. A. Symonds wishes to tender him his sincere thanks for presenting him with the Shipway Reprint, Hubbard's Elements of Campanology, Osborne's ms., and Snowdon's Standard Methods.

ST. PETER'S, WOKING, SURREY.

Some of the readers of "THE BELL NEWS" may care to read an account of the rehanging of a ring of bells in this old parish church, and of the revival of change-ringing in a belfry where the art had, probably for many years, been unknown.

Till the end of last year, in fact, change-ringing was an impossibility in the belfry, as the bells had been so long neglected that it required two men to ring both the tenor and the fifth, and the metal bearings of the tenor were completely worn away so that the bell actually rested, on one side at least, on the bare wood. The beams were also in places so rotten that the bells could not be safely rung, and nothing more than chiming was done for two or three years. However, last year, at the expense of two of the oldest inhabitants, the bells were rehung, and the tenor, which was badly cracked, was re-cast by Messrs. Warner and Sons. The history of the bells can be learned partly from the inscriptions, partly from the churchwardens' accounts for the year 1684, which are still preserved in the parish chest. The paper on which they are written is brown with age, and the writing is rendered difficult to decipher, not merely by the difference in spelling, but by the great difference in the form of the letters from those now usually made. It appears that five of the bells, as they hung till last year, were cast or re-cast in 1684; but number 4 was cast, or more probably re-cast, in 1766. The founder, whose name or initials appears on five of the old bells, was William Eldridge, of Chertsey. The tenor was very badly cracked; in fact it is almost to be wondered that it did not break in pieces, as a crack more than two feet long extended across the crown of the bell from shoulder to shoulder.

The following is a copy of the old inscription on the bells:—

 2.) William Eldridge made mee 1864, R.B., I.F.
 3.)
 4.) I.F., 1766.
 5.) William Eldridge made mee 1684, R.B., I.F., Churchwardens.
 6.) W. E., 1864: John Merest, Vicar; Richard Bird, John Freeland, Churchwardens.

The new inscription on the Tenor, re-cast in 1887, consists of a repetition of the old inscription, set out above, with the following addition:—

"John Warner & Sons, recast me, 1887.
 Frederick J. Oliphant, Vicar.
 Francis Wilson } Churchwardens.
 Walter C. Ryde }

"O my God, let thine ears be attent unto the prayer that is made in this place."

The following is an exact copy of the accounts for 1864:—

these accounts, deserves both praise and blame. If, as is most probable, the old timbers used in 1684, were still in the tower in 1887, we are bound to say that the builder chose the wood well; for except where the rain had driven in the beams were as sound and strong as ever. But in many places, corners had been rounded off, and great pieces cut away, apparently to leave room for a way out on to the roof of the tower, or perhaps to allow the fourth bell to be taken down in order to be recast in 1766. Moreover, the bells were hung one above another in such a manner that, in order to allow of their being swung, great holes in the walls of the tower had to be scooped out, to the depth of nearly two feet. These holes are now filled up, and we can only say that the Churchwardens of 1684 who "paid unto Henery Burt for beating the hoal in the Steepel 2s. 6d." and "paid unto William Chouney for helping of him, 1s.," laid out their money badly.

The men of 1684 seem to have been very thirsty people, for beside the numerous entries "for drink," "gin," and "beare," we find a mysterious entry of money "laid out," which probably means "refreshments" accompanying nearly every transaction. We find 5s. paid "on the 29th of May for beare for the ringers," and "the King's Crownasion day" was celebrated in like manner. The King in question was of course Charles II., and May 29th was his birthday, and also the anniversary of his entry into London in 1660, after the death of Oliver Cromwell. The entry of 7s. "laid out upon Chobham ringers" is explained by the fact that the treble bell in Chobham church, not many miles away was also cast in 1684, and bears the initials W.E., so that William Eldridge seems to have cast bells in the same year for both Woking and Chobham. If so, nothing is more likely than that the ringers of each village should visit the other's belfry.

So much for the past; for the present, we may say that Messrs. Warner and Sons' work has been very successful. The bells are now all hung on one level; the tenor of 21 cwt. can be rung by one man more easily than formerly by two, and, for occasions when a sufficient number of ringers cannot be present, a chiming apparatus has been erected. Lastly, a few words as to the ringers. In 1887, when the bells were being rehung, from circumstances which it is unnecessary to enlarge upon, nearly all the old ringers declined to continue in their office. The bells were rung for the first time after being rehung on Christmas Eve, 1887, and when in the first week of 1888, the nine newly-appointed ringers met for the first time in the belfry to practise with the clappers tied, the prospect was not so hopeful. Four at least had not handled a bell; one man understood call changes, only one the mysteries of half-pull; the rest had not skill enough to ring rounds. Practice however went on steadily, and by Sunday, June 24th, with the assistance of two ringers from Betchworth, several six-scores of Grandsire Doubles were rung in the afternoon by F. Arnold, 1; Frank Arnold, 2; C. B. Ryde, 3; F. C. Ryde, 4; R. Arnold, 5; A. Saunders, 6. And for evening service 120 of Grandsire Doubles. Fred. Arnold, 1; W. C. Ryde, 2; C. B. Ryde, 3; F. Arnold, 4; R. Arnold, 5; A. Saunders, 6. Also by F. Arnold, 1; W. C. Ryde, 2; C. B. Ryde, 2; F. C. Ryde, 4; R. Arnold, 5; A. Saunders, 6. Of the last band all except the fifth were Woking ringers, and of those all except the treble had not rung 120 changes before that day, and three had learnt to ring since the New Year. The Woking ringers are indebted to the Betchworth ringers, Messrs. F. and R. Arnold, for their assistance, which could not have been given at a more opportune moment. As far as can be learned, even this small feat of ringing 120 changes has not been attempted in the Woking belfry within the memory of man.

Among the long peals recorded in "THE BELL NEWS," short touches like these appear insignificant. This record however is not meant to show how much has been done, but how much has been aimed at. It is at any rate something to make a beginning, and the Woking ringers have the satisfaction of knowing that they will leave matters in the belfry better than they found them. Good bells, in good order, want good ringers and good ringing. The ringers must go on as they have begun, but must remember that they are only beginning. If they do not want the bells to get into the old bad state again, they must remember that good order in the ringing chamber is the best means to ensure good order overhead.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

To Geo. H. JONES, Esq., D.D.S.

By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

RESTORATION OF BELLS AT SWEFFLING CHURCH, SUFFOLK.

The restoration of Sweffling Church is being steadily proceeded with, and as long as the present energetic Rector, the Rev. Richard Peek, is spared to preside over the parish, the good work will be carried on until the last remaining eyesore, the old gallery which disfigures the west end, is demolished, and the whole interior brought into accordance with modern taste. It is not yet six years since Mr. Peek became incumbent, but during that time he has effected an immense improvement in the little house of God placed under his care. He found it in a dilapidated state, and at once set to work, with a result that a new roof was made, the old "horse-box" pews were replaced with more comfortable and convenient modern benches, a new American organ (presented by the widow of the late Rector) was substituted for the old harmonium, and several other improvements were effected, the church being reopened on September 13th, 1883, when the sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Bulstrode, of St. Mary Stoke, Ipswich. Since that time several additions have been made to the fittings. The Rector has in his wife an invaluable helpmate, who takes up many departments of parish work which he of necessity cannot deal with. She presides over the parish working party, and in consequence of the labours of ladies forming it, a new lectern has been fixed, gifts of various kinds have been made, and they are gradually going on towards a complete renovation and restoration.

Nearly three years ago Mr. Peek's attention was drawn to the deplorable state of the bells, and with indefatigable zeal he promptly took up his new project, and £60 was raised by means of a bazaar held about two years ago. At that time the peal consisted of five bells. The tenor bore the following inscription: "Thomas Gardener, of Benhall, fecit, 1716." The fourth was made by the same man and bore a similar inscription, the third was cast by T. Mears and Son, London, 1831, and this firm also made the second, which bears no date, and the first was made by Thomas Gardener. Messrs. Day and Son were instructed to do the necessary work, and were at the same time entrusted with a further and more interesting commission. This was the founding of a new treble bell, to be hung with the peal as a permanent memorial of the Jubilee year of the Queen's reign. This, though only recently hung, was cast within the Jubilee year. It bears the following inscription:—"Cast by John Warner and Sons, London, 1887. Jubilee Bell. Rev. R. Peek, M.A., Rector. Hung by G. Day and Son, Eye." The bells have been hung upon a new English oak frame on the best and most modern principles with new stocks, wheels, &c. They have been turned upon the new stocks, so that the clappers strike in an opposite direction to that in which they previously worked, and the worn side of the bells are thus relieved. New clappers have also been supplied with reversible crown staples passing direct to the crown of the bells and screwing on the top of the stocks. They have been supplied to new cast iron bell carriages with gudgeons of Lowmoor iron, and turned in the stock. The frame is differently made from the old ones formerly in use, being strengthened by diagonal braces, and the bells counteracting one another in their swing, thus lessening the strain on the frame and the oscillation of the whole structure.

The re-opening ceremony took place on June 21st, that being the anniversary of Jubilee Day. After the chill weather experienced within the last few days it was hardly expected that the day would be so bright and warm as was that memorable week last year, but the morning was a pleasant surprise, the sky being clear and the sun shining down with unexpected power, causing many to think of the time twelve months ago when they were enjoying a right royal feed in honour of the Jubilee. There is a decided freemasonry among ringers, any event of this kind being seized as an opportunity for a general gathering of all interested in the pastime within a reasonable distance of the church. This was the case on Thursday, when not only was there present the genial hon. secretary and treasurer of the Norwich Diocesan Association (the Rev. N. Bolingbroke), but also contingents of ringers from Framlingham, Eye, Saxmundham, Aldeburgh, Rendham, Kelsale, Benhall, Weybread, and Earl Soham. The Weybread representative was Capt. A. P. Moore, a veteran of 46 years' experience in bell ringing, and amongst the others were some of equal, if not longer standing. Ringing, to outsiders, appears to be a species of craze, and voluntaries of the craft lose no opportunity of exercising their skill. The newly re-hung peal—which is a very musical one with the tenor in the key of A—was in active use during the morning, but ringers are but mortal, and at 1.30 p.m. most of them were to be found round the tempting-looking luncheon-table at the White Horse Inn. There the churchwarden of the parish (Mr. Richbell) occupied the chair, Mr. George Day being the vice. Just as the meal was concluded, the rector, accompanied by the Rev. N. Bolingbroke and Captain Moore, arrived, and was at once placed in the chair, Mr. Richbell moving down to the vice, where he was supported by the Rev. N. Bolingbroke.

Having furnished the guests with cigars, The Rector apologised for his ignorance regarding bell-ringing, saying it was not until he had begun to take an interest in parochial work at Sweffling that he discovered that there was any difference between ringing and chiming, but when he received a report three years ago from some of the ringers that the church bells were in a most dilapidated and miserable state, he at once set to work to get contributions for what they had now brought to a successful issue. They first obtained about £40 from a bazaar: that sum had been raised by small subscriptions to £60, which had been safely deposited at Messrs. Gurney's Bank at Saxmundham, and he hoped more would be added to it by their services that day. He hoped he should not be considered as having very bad taste, but he must confess that up to the present his sympathies were with chiming rather than with ringing, because he found that in the majority of cases ringing was done on week days, whereas chiming was done on Sunday. They must not forget that the object of having bells in bells in God's House was to call God's people to His worship, and as he had found that chiming was one on Sundays they would forgive him for his sympathy with chiming.

Mr. FRANK COOPER (Aldeburgh) said the art of ringing was far higher than that of chiming, and he was sure the Rector had men about him who would ring the people to church.

The CHAIRMAN proposed "The Health of the Queen," briefly touching upon the lamented death of the Emperor of Germany. The toast was then drunk and the National Anthem sung.

The company then adjourned to the church, and the bells were rung again. Hard by the churchyard is the rectory, which is one of the most charming country residence to be found anywhere in Suffolk. The interior of the church had been decorated with great taste with bouquets of flowers. The surpliced clergy present were the Rector, the Rev. N. Bolingbroke (vicar of St. Etheldreda with St. Peter's, Southgate, Norwich), the Rev. J. H. Pilkington (Framlingham), the Rev. A. Washington (Saxmundham), the Rev. — Hooper (Little Glemham), the Rev. B. G. Moffatt (Snape), the Rev. C. A. Sinclair (Monewden), the Rev. G. I. Davies (Kelsale). The first part of the service was intoned by the Rev. G. H. Pilkington, the first lesson was read by the Rector, and the second by the Rev. A. Washington, and the Rev. G. I. Davies concluded the prayers. The choir very creditably intoned the responses, chanted the special Psalms 29 and 150, and the "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis," and sung the four special hymns provided, Miss Wright presiding at the organ. The Rev. N. Bolingbroke took for his text Joshua iv., 6, "What mean ye by these stones?" He said:—

The event to which the text referred shewed that God had sanctioned the setting up of material things and dedicating them as memorials of His great might and goodness. As the church in which they stood was a memorial of the piety of their forefathers and of their belief in the religion which they professed, so the bells should be to them what the stones set up by Jordan were to the chosen people—solemn memorials of great truths and great events, and bringing a distinct message, should have their distinct uses. If not, they would be mere senseless pieces of furniture, mere expensive toys, and the ringers would justly deserve the rebuke often given them—that they only care for the bells so long as they amused them and gratified their vanity by long performances of change-ringing. Their old bells had been solemnly and reverently replaced, and they asked God that day to accept them as His, and cause them to fulfil their mission. What a happy and blessed thing it would be if all men regarded the signal given by the bells, and went to God's house, acknowledged Him, sang His high praises, heard His Holy Word, prayed to Him, and returned to the world refreshed, strengthened, and more prepared for the battle of life. Many other missions bells had to perform, and in all they said "Let all the people of the earth know the hand of the Lord that it is mighty. Therefore fear the Lord your God for ever." The bell they especially dedicated that day was a memorial of a great historical event—the Jubilee of Her Majesty Queen Victoria—and as long as it lasted it would tell generation after generation that God has been gracious to this nation in that He has preserved to us a good Queen for fifty years, during which benefits had been showered on all classes. How different was the state of affairs now from what it was that day twelve months. Then all was brightness and joy, and among that sovereigns and princes and grandees who came to pay honour to our Queen, the most prominent figure was that of her noble son-in-law, then Crown Prince of Germany. Now he was no more. Three short days ago he was laid in his last resting-place—an Emperor who never reigned—and our Royal family was in sorrow and mourning. Let that Jubilee bell remind them to be as good and manly and true as the Emperor was, and to use his own words, "to learn to suffer and not complain." If that was the case, these bells would not have been hung in vain. The reverend gentleman concluded with an appeal for assistance to the bell fund.

The Rector pronounced the Benediction.

After the service the bells were rung in various methods, and those enthusiasts who could not get a place in the belfry adjourned to the "White Horse" and performed upon hand-bells.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, 30th June, the ringers of St. John's Church, Deptford, held their Annual Excursion, Brighton being the place selected. Starting from New Cross at 8.35, Brighton was reached at 10.20.

After partaking of some refreshments, a start was made for St. Nicholas' Church, where they were met by Mr. Boniface, Hon. Sec. of the St. Nicholas Society, and conducted to the tower, and there rang a few touches, arranging for a quarter-peal in the afternoon. A move was then made for St. Peter's Church, where arrangements had been made for an hour's ringing, a Flower Show being held in the church grounds, close by. Here they were met by Mr. G. F. Attree, Hon. Sec. of the Sussex Association, and Mr. J. Jay, steeple keeper, and conducted to the tower. After enjoying an hour's ringing on the peal of eight, tenor 10½ cwt, the ringers sat down to dinner at the "White Eagle" after which various amusements were indulged in, some visiting the aquarium, others having a trip on the water. Four o'clock being the time arranged for another pull at St. Nicholas Church, here they were met by Messrs. Boniface, W. Palmer, and J. Searle, and a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes) was brought round in forty-five minutes, the ringers standing as follows:—J. Rose, 1; W. Palmer, 2; H. Boniface, 3; J. Searle, 4; W. Weatherstone, (conductor) 5; J. Laws, 6; W. Bedwell, 7; W. Jeffries, 8.

The homeward journey commenced at 7.20 p.m., New Cross being reached at 8.50, all having spent a most enjoyable day.

The ringers wish through "THE BELL NEWS" to thank their Brighton friends for having arranged the ringing at St. Nicholas' and St. Peter's, which added greatly to the enjoyment of all.

ST. MARY-LE-TOWER SOCIETY, IPSWICH.

On Saturday evening, June 23rd, the following members accepted the kind invitation of the Rev. J. B. Seaman, to visit him at Parkside, the residence of the Vicar, the Rev. Canon Turnock, (whose place the rev. gentleman is filling during the Vicar's absence from Ipswich), for the purpose of ringing upon the splendid peal of handbells presented to him upon his resigning the Hon. Secretaryship of the Essex Association. After partaking of the excellent repast provided in the dining-room, they adjourned to the hall, and rang courses of Grandsire Cinques and Plain Bob Maximus, three leads of Kent Treble Maximus, and one course of Grandsire Triples; Cinques—W. Motts, 1-2; P. Hawes, 3-4; J. Motts, 5-6; A. Durrant, 7-8; W. L. Catchpole, 9-10; W. P. Garrett, 11-12. Plain Bob. first four as before: W. P. Garrett, 9-10; S. Tillett, 11-12. Grandsire Triples—S. Tillett, 1-2; J. Motts, 3-4; W. P. Garrett, 5-6; W. L. Catchpole, 7-8. Upon parting, the Rev. J. B. Seaman hoped that the repairs to the tower would be finished soon enough for him to hear the twelve before he left Ipswich, as they have not been rung for the last six weeks.

A REQUEST.—"Dodger" writes: "Can any of your readers give a list of the various 'record' peals which have been rung from time to time, with dates, and as far as possible, other particulars?"

RINGING IN LIVERSEDGE.—IN THE PARISH CHURCH BELFRY.

In connection with the bells which ring out so sweetly from the belfry of the Liversedge parish church, there is much that is interesting, and the idea struck me the other day, whilst in company with a Liversedge gentleman, that a short article on local campanology would not be out of place. There are many people in Liversedge who are either ardent followers of the art, or are interested in it; and it was with a desire to write something for their special benefit, and place on record facts which are not generally known, that actuated me to pay a visit to the belfry the other day when a peal was being rung. After ascending with some little difficulty the spiral and shadowy staircase which leads to the belfry, I found myself in the company of the ringers, and was afterwards shown the way up to the bells. The sensation which one experiences on being ushered into a belfry for the first time is somewhat peculiar. A semi-dark room, in which a number of bells, mouth upwards, are fixed in various positions, occupying so much of the area of the floor that there is scarcely room for one to stand, is a sight to be remembered; but the effect is considerably heightened when those bells begin tumbling about in apparent confusion, and discoursing music which though extremely loud is peculiarly sweet. It was to me a unique experience, and I was astonished to see a sparrow fly into the place whilst the noise was at its height, and after fluttering over the bells take refuge in the roof. I have heard of a deaf and dumb man being taken into the belfry and being so startled with the effect that he could not be persuaded to remain in the place.

The bells are eight in number, and their total weight is 63cwts. and 3 lbs. the tenor weighing 15 cwts. They are celebrated for their rich musical tone, and the Vicar, to whom I am indebted for some of these particulars, tells me that not a few bell founders have examined them and endeavoured to make a peal of the same weight which should be equal in tone, but their attempts have not been altogether successful. The bells were made of brass ordnance taken at Genoa by British heroes—Lord Exmouth and Lord W. Bentinck—and probably owe their tone to a peculiar alloy which is eminently suitable for the purpose, but the constitution of which is unknown. It was at a meeting of the principal inhabitants of the township held December 30th, 1813, that the proposal to put a clock and a peal of bells in the church steeple was first mooted; and according to a circular issued by the late Reverend Hammond Robertson, in February of the following year, the proposal was very favourably received, "it being the unanimous and strongly expressed opinion of the meeting that the very favourable turn which it had pleased Almighty God to give to national affairs called for gratitude from every heart, and for some united public expression of feeling by acts of public munificence." A subscription list for a clock and a peal of bells was opened, and £685 os. 6d. was raised for bells, out of which the peal was purchased and hung. The bells were ordered on the 29th September, 1814, the contract being entrusted to Mr. Dobson, of Downham Market, Norfolk. The first peal was rung on the 12th July, 1815, if I am rightly informed, the church being opened the year following. The bells bear the following inscriptions;—(1) Fear God and honour the King; (2) Let us sing praises unto the Lord most high; (3) This peal of bells was erected by subscription; (4) William Dobson, founder, Norfolk, 1815; (5) Regnat Deus 1815, William Dobson, Downham, Norfolk. fecit; (6) My song shall be always of the loving kindness of the Lord; (7) These eight bells were cast in 1814 and 1815 with brass ordnance taken at Genoa; (8) Dejectus Tyrannus, Europa liberata, Pax jam annos xx optata, conventa, Laus Deo, 1814—The tyrant cast down, Europe delivered, peace desired for now twenty years agreed upon. Praise to God.

And now for a word about the ringers. They are necessarily men possessed of physical endurance, strong in the arm, and steady in the head. The art of bell-ringing is one which is only acquired by patience and perseverance. It is no easy matter to stand for five or six hours—as the company have done more than once—and ring a peal of several thousand changes. The strain upon the men, both physically and mentally, must be trying in the extreme; and the man must have given his whole mind to the work who will perseveringly practice for nine or twelve months in order to master one peal, and then endure the hardships which its performance necessitates. On one occasion when the men were ringing for nearly six hours at a stretch, without being able to leave their ropes, they were sustained by means of figs soaked in rum, which were administered to them at intervals by a man appointed for the purpose. Some of the feats which been performed upon the bells are recorded in the belfry, and with these and others which have been supplied to me I will conclude this portion of my article. The records of extraordinary change-ringing which are tabulated in the belfry date back to 1837. From that date to 1843, the company of ringers comprised James Firth (conductor), treble; George Greaves, second; Obadiah Lang, third; Frederick Goodall, fourth; Richard Firth, fifth; William Firth, sixth; John Firth, seventh; John Barker, tenor; and within the period of six years they rung the following peals:—

"May 24th, 1837, 6048 changes of Albion Surprise Major, in 3 hours and 26 minutes; April 16th, 1838, 5600 changes of Cumberland Exercise, in 3 hours and 13 minutes; January 1st, 1841, 10,208 changes of Kent Treble Bob Major, in 5 hours and 46 minutes; May 25th, 1841, 6720 changes of six different peals, in 3 hours and 53 minutes, viz.: London Treble Bob, Cumberland Exercise, Albion Surprise Major, Oxford Treble Bob, New Treble Bob, and Bob Major; November 5th 1842, 5040 changes of Treble Bob Trebles, in 2 hours and 48 minutes; May 29th, 1843, 5056 changes of Kent Treble Bob Major, in 2 hours and 55 minutes, composed by James Firth."

Another tablet which is placed in the belfry records the fact that

"On Saturday, October 3rd, 1863, the following company rung on the peal of bells at this church a complete peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, consisting of 5184 changes, in 3 hours and 8 minutes, without the bobs being called—the greatest feat in the art of conducting ever performed by any party of ringers upon eight bells—and was witnessed by Mr. William Sottanstill, of Sowerby, who composed the peal, and Mr. William Preston, of Earlsheaton:—J. G. Holroyd, Halifax, treble; G. Clay, Huddersfield, second; O. Lang, Liversedge, third; W. Goodall, Liversedge, fourth; J. Illingworth, Liversedge, fifth; J. Lodge, Heckmondwike, sixth; J. Collins, Huddersfield, seventh; T. Haigh, Huddersfield, tenor."

A third tablet records the following:—

"On Saturday, October 26th, 1867, the following company (all of Liversedge) rung on these bells a true peal of Cumberland Exercise, consisting of 6240 changes in 3 hours and 42 minutes:—O. Lang, treble; W. Firth, second; T. Lang, third; S. Goodall, fourth; J. W. Lang, fifth; J. Goodall, sixth; J. Illingworth, seventh; W. Goodall, tenor; conducted by W. Goodall. On Monday, April 10th, 1871, the following company rang on these bells a true peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, consisting of 10,272 changes in 5 hours and 58 minutes (the longest peal ever rung on the bells):—J. Whitworth, treble; J. Knott, second; J. W. Lang, third; T. North, fourth; C. W. Clegg (Huddersfield), fifth; M. Ramsden, sixth; J. Illingworth, seventh; W. Collins, tenor; conducted by J. Illingworth. On Saturday, November 15th, 1873, the following company rang on these bells a true peal of Kent Treble Major, consisting of 8,544 changes, in 5 hours:—J. Stead (Huddersfield), treble; J. Knott (Liversedge), second; J. W. Lang (Liversedge), third; G. Clay (Huddersfield), fourth; C. W. Clegg (Huddersfield), fifth; M. Ramsden (Liversedge), sixth; J. Illingworth (Liversedge), seventh; W. Collins (Liversedge), tenor; conducted by J. Illingworth. The above three peals were composed by W. Sottanstill, of Sowerby."

In addition to the above, the following peals are worthy of record:—

"On Saturday, December 31st, 1887, a peal of Cumberland Exercise Major (jubilee peal), consisting of 6,720 changes, was rung in 4 hours and 3 minutes by the following:—J. W. Lang, treble; J. Knott, second; A. Briggs, third; S. Goodall, fourth; H. Brooke, fifth; M. Ramsden, sixth; L. Illingworth, seventh; W. Collins, tenor. This was composed by Mr. Sottanstill, and was the third peal of Cumberland that had been rung by Liversedge men. On Sunday, November 5th, 1847, a peal of 5040 changes of Grandsire trebles (Holt's original) was rung in 2 hours and 57 minutes by James Firth, treble; George Greaves, senior, 2nd; Obadiah Lang, 3rd; Frederick Goodall, 4th; John Illingworth, 5th; Martin Barber, 6th; John Barker, 7th; John Firth, tenor; James Firth, conductor.—On December 21st, 1852, a peal of 5024 changes of London Treble Bob was rung by J. Firth, treble; J. Hartley, 2nd; O. Lang, 3rd; W. Goodall, 4th; S. Blackburn, 5th; M. Barber, 6th; J. Illingworth, 7th; J. Barker, tenor; James Firth, conductor. The Rose of England peal, consisting of 5024 changes, was rung on January 12th, 1857 (the first attempt) in 2 hours and 58 minutes, and "Prince Albert," 5120 changes, was rung on April 15th, 1859, in 2 hours and 56 minutes, by a company who had rung twelve different methods previously. Last Saturday, "Violet

Major," consisting of 5,056 changes, was rung in 3 hours and 6 minutes, by the following:—John W. Lang, treble; James Knott, second; Arthur Briggs, third; Sydney Goodall, fourth; Henry Brooke, fifth; M. Ramsden, sixth; Luke Illingworth, seventh; William Collins, tenor. The peal was composed by Mr. William Sottanstill, and conducted by Mr. Luke Illingworth, and had not been rung at Liversedge previously."

The Liversedge Albert Prize Handbell Ringers, who organised themselves in 1876, have so far had a prosperous career. Commencing with 25 bells they have now 147, which are all the property of the society, and have cost close upon £100. In change-ringing contests the men have taken twenty first prizes, three seconds, and seven thirds; and in tune ringing contests six firsts, three seconds, and one third.—From the Cleckheaton Guardian.

HEREFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

A very pleasant evening was arranged by the ringers of Bridgnorth, on Saturday, June 16th, as a farewell to the instructor of the Guild, who left for Ross on the 18th. The two peals of bells in the town, St. Mary's and St. Leonard's were ringing at intervals from 6.30 to 7.30, and an adjournment at 8 o'clock was made to the Old Castle, where the remainder of the evening was spent in harmony. Some tunes and changes on handbells was rung, and a few suitable songs well sung. The following is a list of the members present, including some of the older hands since resigned: H. Fowles, J. Crockford, H. Jones, E. Higgs, J. Overton, T. Overton, W. Deague, J. Trevor, R. Roberts, A. Farr, H. Drake, T. Evans, E. Hall, V. Coates, W. Criddeford, J. Jones, and W. Rickhuss.

THE WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

A ringing meeting of this Association will take place at Chaddesley Corbett, near Kidderminster, on Saturday, July 14th, to which all members and friends are invited. The tower will be open at any time during the day for ringing. A meat tea will be provided at one shilling per head at the Swan Hotel, for those only who forward their names on or before Tuesday, July 10th, to JOHN SMITH, Hon. Sec.
37 Simms Lane, Netherton, near Dudley.

NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of the above Association will be held at Grimsby, on Saturday, July 7th, when members of kindred Associations and friends interested in change-ringing are invited to be present. A meat tea will be provided at 1s. 3d. each commencing immediately after the meeting. The churchwardens have kindly granted the use of the bells at St. James' and St. Andrew's (both beautiful peals of eight). All communications to be addressed to J. HACKNEY, 4, Mill Street, Market Rasen. Hon. Sec. pro tem.

ST. NICHOLAS SOCIETY, BRIGHTON.

The members of the above will have their Annual Outing on Saturday, July 7th, at Bletchingley, Surrey, three miles from Redhill Station. Any ringing friends will be heartily welcomed. Those desirous of dining with the members can do so by sending to the undersigned not later than the Tuesday previous. Dinner tickets three shillings each.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.—Mr. J. M. Hayes has removed from No. 66, to No. 27, Hanover Street, Pimlico. Correspondents please note this change.

RINGERS' PICNIC.

On Thursday, June 28th, being Coronation Day, the ringers of St. Mary's Church, Twyford, Hants, had their annual outing at the expense and kind invitation of the Rev. C. Buston, of Deane, who, though not in the place, still takes a lively interest in the welfare of his late respected father's parishioners. The weather was beautifully fine to start with, but very showery the rest of the day. The start was made by the 8.32 from Shawford to Christchurch, when all ascended the tower to the spacious belfry of the fine old Priory Church. The bells are a fine-toned peal of eight, in the key of D, tenor 32 cwt. Some of the heavy bells were cast by the monks, and are five or six hundred years old. They were re-hung by Messrs. Taylor and Sons, of Loughborough in 1886, and they go splendidly. After raising the bells, several 120's of Grandsire Doubles (each called differently) were rung in fairly good style, with the back bells covering. C. Hawkins, 1; Rev. C. Buston, 2; G. Brown, jun. 3; W. West, 4; F. Hewlett, 5; W. Neville, 6; G. Brown, sen. 7; C. Burfit, 8. After ringing for some time and then being photographed, it was proposed to thoroughly overlook the church, which amply repaid the time taken.

The church is a noble structure, and contains a magnificent ancient sculptured altar-piece, representing the root and branch of Jesse. There are many curious and interesting tombs and monumental effigies in different part of the building, one especially to Viscountess Fitzharris, representing that lady instructing her infant sons in the Scriptures. In the choir are the stalls and seats of the priory establishment, these are ornamented with carvings of a most grotesque description, which are very interesting. To overlook the grand old church itself is quite worth a visit to Christchurch, with the splendid view which can be had of the neighbouring district from the top of the tower.

The rest of the band, T. Carter, W. Carter, H. W. Hewlett, and G. Smith, preferred making a further investigation of the church and its attractions while the other ringers again indulged in Doubles and a short touch of Minor, till, finding there was barely time to catch the train, all being so loth to leave such splendid bells, a rush was made for the station, and fortunately caught the 1.43 for Brockenhurst. Arriving there, the ringers then started in a brake for Knightwood, where the hampers were unpacked and every one did full justice to the good things provided, under one of the largest oak trees in the New Forest, which on being measured, was found to be 23 feet in circumference. A quiet stroll was then taken before starting again, through some of the prettiest parts of the forest, by Mark Ash, Boldrewood, Stoney Cross, Rufus's Stone, and Minstead, where another halt was made, this time to boil the kettle and have tea, then starting for Lyndhurst Road, to catch the last train up. In spite of the weather all arrived home safely and very well pleased with the days outing, being one proof of many of the R. C. Buston's kind liberality.

The visitors respectfully wish to thank the Vicar for the use of the bells, and also for allowing them to view the church free of charge.

THE ROTHERHAM RINGERS AT DUFFIELD.

On Tuesday, June 26th, the Rotherham ringers, with Mr. Charles Henry Hattersley, of Sheffield, had their annual outing, the place selected being Duffield, Derbyshire. The party en route met with the Chesterfield company. On arriving at their destination the visitors were very kindly shown over the grounds of A. Percival Heywood, Esq., and after viewing the various points of interest connected with that gentleman's estate, they betook themselves to the "Bridge Inn," and there met by appointment Mr. Harry C. Woodward, of Derby. A substantial dinner having been satisfactorily disposed of, a move was made for the belfry of All Saints' church, when 1047 of Stedman Caters was rung, conducted by C. H. Hattersley; and 1000 of Kent Treble Bob Royal, conducted by W. Coates. While the ringing was going on other friends of the company were enjoying themselves by boating on the river, where the sound of the bells was very effective and pleasing. Handbell ringing, sociable conversation, and a vote of thanks to Mr. Heywood brought a very enjoyable day to a close.

FOR SALE.—A beautiful-toned set of Handbells, 24, in G.; nearly new; warranted perfect. Price £10. Company broken up cause of sale.—Apply to J. STRUTT, Richmond Road, Kingston-on-Thames.

THE SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

The Sixth Annual Meeting of this Society was held at Lichfield on Saturday, June 30th. About seventy members attended, and the following bands were represented: Harborne, Lichfield Cathedral, Lichfield St. Mary, Lichfield St. Michael, Pelsall, Perry Barr, Tamworth, Tipton, Walsall, West Bromwich All Saints, West Bromwich Christ Church. The Cathedral, St. Mary's, and St. Michael's steeples were open during the afternoon, and various touches of Grandsire Caters, and Stedman and Grandsire Triples were rung. A special service was held at 5.0 p.m. in the Lady Chapel of the Cathedral, at which the prayers were read by the Rev. J. R. Keble, and a stirring address was given to the members by the Rev. E. E. Harding, Vice-Principal of the Theological College, who took for his text the motto of the Society (Colossians iii. 23.). Tea was served in the coffee house at 6.0 p.m., and in the absence of the President (Archdeacon Iles) the Rev. J. R. Keble took the chair. After tea the usual business meeting was held; the Rev. C. H. Jobbens, Vicar of Christ Church, West Bromwich, was re-elected Hon. Treasurer. The Rev. J. R. Keble, Vicar of Perry Barr, and Mr. S. Reeves of West Bromwich were re-elected Hon. Secretaries. Thirteen new members were elected, and it was decided to hold the next meeting at Burton-on-Trent on Saturday, October 6th. A resolution of sympathy with the President of the society, Archdeacon Iles, who is seriously ill, was passed and signed by the committee on behalf of the above society.

The Rev. J. R. Keble is preparing the Annual Report, and would be glad to receive corrections, etc., during the next fortnight. All arrears of subscriptions should be sent without delay, as those members who are more than one year in arrear will be struck off the list.

OUTING OF PLYMOUTH RINGERS.

On Thursday, the 28th of June, being Coronation-day, the ringers of St. Andrew's and Charles churches had a most successful outing to Crediton and Exeter.

It was originally intended to visit Exeter to have a touch at the Cathedral, but receiving a telegram on the Wednesday that owing to the funeral of Archdeacon Saunders no ringing could take place, it was decided to visit Crediton instead. The following gentlemen formed the party: Messrs. W. Peard, J. Peard, R. Searle, Taylor, Widdicombe, Ellis, Minhinnick, Farthing, Screech, and Batchelor. Crediton was reached at 11 o'clock. The bells, a heavy ring of eight (tenor 32 cwt.), go badly, so some 6-scores of Doubles, with 6, 7, 8 covering, and some call-changes were rung. An adjournment was then made to the "Ring of Bells" inn, where a very good dinner was done justice to. During dinner a telegram from Mr. Shepherd of Exeter was handed in to say that St. Sidwell's bells could be rung in the afternoon; accordingly a start was made forthwith for Exeter, where the visitors were, as usual, most kindly received, and where some touches of Grandsire Triples and call-changes were rung. A very pleasant time was spent at Exeter, and the only drawback was that a visit to the Cathedral belfry was impracticable, and that there was no time to communicate with the St. Edmund's society.

The Plymouth band of the Devonshire Guild has lately lost some of its members, three having joined the band which was formed some years since by Mr. W. Banister at the Devonport dockyard chapel, and which has lately been reorganised; and a very promising young ringer having gone to London. There are now only five members of the Guild left, but when the cooler weather begins, a fresh start will be made.

At present nothing is done at Plymouth beyond an occasional touch of Doubles in the tower and Triples on handbells. Mr. Ellis has procured a splendid set of handbells from Mr. Welch, of Southwark, which he kindly places at the disposal of the ringers.

CORRECTIONS.—In the peal of Treble Bob Major rung at Foxearth on May 31st, by eight members of the Essex Association, Messrs. Maxim and Mingay rung the 5th and 6th respectively, and not the ringers as stated. In the peal of Cambridge Surprise Major rung at St. Ann's, Brookfield, on Tuesday last, Benjamin "Foskett" rang the second, not "Fosdike."

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1888.

THE letter sent for publication in this number by Mr. WILLIAM COOTER teaches a very powerful and salutary lesson. After the lapse of more than thirty years, the Exercise is informed by a most reliable authority that what has been understood to be the first peal of Stedman Triples ever rung in hand is practically no peal at all by reason of a change-course. To readers of this journal, especially those who remember the "keen rivalry" which existed between one or two metropolitan bands, and their eagerness to secure the coveted honour for themselves, this intelligence will be amazing. Others who like ourselves knew long ago the facts will, while agreeing with Mr. COOTER in challenging a statement made regarding it deplore the necessity at this juncture for letting the cat out of the bag. It may reasonably have been thought that the exposure could have been postponed, now that such an interval has elapsed, till all the parties concerned had "shuffled off this mortal coil." True, there is one only left of the band, and that is our valued friend Mr. THOMAS POWELL, of Waltham Abbey, who will in all probability be somewhat slow in believing the assertions of his old comrade in the science. That this disclosure will be a painful one to him we cannot doubt.

This is another of those awkward cases where a performance has been pronounced as true and accepted as such when more than one of those immediately concerned knew to the contrary. The case is plainly put by Mr. COOTER in his letter: how he at the time objected to the peal being accepted as true, but was ruled out of court. It seems surprising that the bubble did not burst before this, and it would have done but for the reticence of our correspondent, who shuns publicity in almost any shape.

What is the lesson to be learnt by this episode? This is not the only circumstance of the kind by far, and not only do we allude to the past, but to the present. Is it possible to open the pages of "THE BELL NEWS" and say that records therein are positively all that they purport to be. There is unfortunately truth and falsehood in peal ringing as in other matters. It is greatly to be feared that bob-callers are yet to be found who will not stick at trifles to score a peal under circumstances not always worthy of imitation. But when the facts of "cooked" performances come to light, the characters of these persons suffer, as they should do. Better by far shelve any performance for ever than parade it as worthy of record when it is unworthy. The ultimate denouement ensuing upon performance of a false peal is a thing to be avoided, and can be prevented by the practice of a little courage and self-denial. Courage in having to forego the honour of scoring a peal, and denying such an honour when it is spurious and illegitimate.

THE PROPOSED PROSECUTION OF THE BISHOP OF LINCOLN.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has, through his secretary, forwarded the following letter to the solicitors acting for the Church Association:—

"The Sanctuary, Westminster, June 26th, 1888.

"Sir,—I am directed by his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury to inform you that he has given his best attention to the petition which you presented to him on June 2nd—viz., that he would cite the Lord Bishop of Lincoln to answer before him on certain specified charges. You informed his Grace that the law under which you desired him to act was 'the old law,' of the operation of which you quoted as an instance the case 'Lucy v. Bishop Watson.' He has, therefore, given his best attention in his power to this case. It appears to be the one and only precedent of this procedure, the case of the Bishop of Clogher not having been contested, and another named by Burnet being obscure. Considering the fact that in the course of about 300 years since the Reformation there is no other precedent, and considering the political and other exceptional circumstances under which this particular case was decided, his Grace has failed to satisfy himself that the coercive jurisdiction which you desire him to exercise admits of substantial application to the case presented in your petition. The Archbishop, therefore, finds himself unable to exercise such jurisdiction in this matter without some instruction being produced from a competent court to the effect that the jurisdiction referred to is thus applicable."

On Sunday the Bishop of Lincoln was preaching a dedication festival sermon at St. Peter-at-Gowts, Lincoln, which is, it may be remembered, the scene of some of the allegations in the lately threatened proceedings against the Bishop. On arriving at the church his lordship was by the vicar (the Rev. J. Weston Townoe), churchwardens, and sidesmen, who expressed their deep regret and great annoyance that the name of the church and parish should have been used by the Church Association to trouble the Bishop. Dr. King replied, thanking them for their sympathy and affection, and bidding those connected with the church persevere in the same peaceful and thankful spirit which had enabled them to overcome so many difficulties and to build their beautiful church. The Bishop was attended by Canon Scott Holland and the Rev. C. Gore, the former of whom preached at the evening service. The ritual at St. Peter-at-Gowts is of the simplest description, the congregation is a most united one, and the greatest indignation is felt at the un-called for interference of the Church Association.

Last week we gave the names of thirty-two members of the Chapter and Rural Deans of the Diocese of Lincoln who subscribed the protest against the prosecution of their Bishop. The document has also received the following additional signatures:—The Rev. E. T. Leeke, Chancellor of Lincoln; Canon Albert S. Wilde, rector of Louth; Canon Frederic Pretymann, rector of Great Carlton; the Rev. T. Field, rector of Bigby, and the Rev. G. Hogarth, vicar of Barton-on-the-Humber, making a total of thirty-three out of the thirty-eight Rural Deans in the Diocese; besides the Dean, the Archdeacon, the Chancellor, and three residentiary Canons.—Guardian.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.—By Charles Pearson, M.A. Price Threepence, by post Fourpence.—WILLIAM POLLARD AND CO. Printers, Exeter.

Correspondence.

[While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE FIRST PEAL OF STEDMAN TRIPLES ON HANDBELLS.

SIR,—In your valuable journal of Saturday last under the heading "Saffron Walden, Essex," the following lines appear: "Among the visitors were several veteran ringers, viz., Mr. Thomas Powell, the only survivor of the band who rung the first double-handed peal of Stedman Triples." During the latter part of 1853, the rivalry was very keen between the two London senior societies respecting the first peal of Stedman Triples upon handbells. After several attempts by both parties, the Cumberlands rang on December 19th, 1853, 2 hrs. 40 mins. At the termination I publicly stated in the room (Mr. M. A. Wood was with me), that Cox shifted his bells for nearly a course, and put them right just before the part-end came up; consequently many changes were struck twice and others not at all. I was pooh-poohed, and the touch was paraded as a true peal. Some years afterwards the late Mr. Haley acknowledged in the presence of Messrs. M. A. Wood, Dorrington, myself and many others, that Mr. Cox sequestered 1-2, and that I was correct in condemning what I saw; he also added that the first true peal was rung on January 20th, 1854, every blow of which he heard, and which was called, Sir, by your obedient servant,

WILLIAM COOTER.

THE LADIES ON THE WAR-PATH.

SIR,—The correspondence of the ladies in your columns has both amused and instructed me. With regard to Mrs. "Ringer's Wife," it seems to point out, in the first place, that she leads her husband such an interesting life when he is at home, that he is glad to be elsewhere, and I think the remedy lies in her own hands. In the second place, I very much doubt that there is any belfry where practice is kept up every night in the week, for bell ringing with all its fascinations, and they are many, would hardly engage so much attention as all that, although belfries nowadays, as a rule, are so comfortable that it is quite pleasant to be there, as a lady friend remarked a short time ago, when visiting a belfry not very far from us, "Well I did not think it was as nice as this." Now for Miss "Ringer's Daughter." This young lady, whom I suppose is well on in her "teens," appears to possess a small modicum of jealousy, which, I am sorry to say, is often the case with young ladies at her time of life, and would be more interested in belle-ringing at a very not far distant date; well! well! the remedy here again lies with herself. Why not follow the example of our noted confreres or rather con-soeurs Miss Cruwys Sharland, of Devon, and the Misses Brine, of Kent, about whose doings we used often to read. If she be of a bashful and retiring disposition (which I very much doubt), and not like to act alone in the matter, she might get some lady friends together and beg of her adorer to instruct them in the mysteries of "bob" and "single," (the latter term they might possibly object to), on the handbells, for I suppose that lassie's heads are sufficiently clear at times to receive mild instruction, and, with their muscular arms and a light calisthenical dress, they might manage to ring upon the larger bells. PAX VOBISCUM.

Carshalton, July 2nd, 1888.

THE PEAL OF OXFORD TREBLE BOB AT BOLTON, YORKSHIRE.

SIR,—In your issue of June 16th, there is a peal reported at the above place. Well, Sir, I have no objection to a peal being inserted when it has been rung, but I have good reason to believe that after ringing over three hours they left the tower with the idea that such was not the case, and it was not till a day or two after that this wonderful discovery was made, that it had come all right at the fifteenth course-end. I have had some talk with one or two who took part in the ringing, and they say it was a queer finish. I think that the least that they could have done would have been to meet and try the peal again before reporting it in your valuable paper.

A RINGER.

THE SAFFRON WALDEN SOCIETY.

SIR,—In reference to "Free Lance's" "if" last week as to the antiquity of this society, I have to state that by the will of a Mr. Thomas Turner, certain property was devoted among other purposes for a memorial sermon and for the bells to be rung on the anniversary of his death. The will is dated June 10th, 1623; his death occurred a few days later—June 27th—and the churchwarden's accounts show an unbroken list of these payments. Tradition says that Mr. Turner being benighted, had lost his way, and discovered his whereabouts by hearing the bells rung. Allow me to compliment "Free Lance" on the use of his weapon, which though straight and sharp, is devoid of poison. I would suggest, if it could be so arranged, that his remarks should be concurrent with the account of events. JNO. F. PENNING.

Church News.

The announcement of the appointment of Canon Chapman to the vicarage of St. Paul's Cray, is incorrect.

The Rev. Henry Bircham, vicar of Gilderstone, Leeds, has withdrawn his acceptance of the vicarage of St. James's, Nottingham, to which living he was recently nominated by the Lord Chancellor.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has fixed St. James's Day at St. Paul's (the 26th inst.) for the consecration of the Suffragans of Bedford and Leicester.

The Derbyshire Archidiaconal Choral Association held its annual festival at Southwell this year for the first time. The choir mustered about five hundred strong.

In consequence of the sessions of the Lambeth Conference of Bishops, the library was closed to the public on Tuesday, July 3rd, and will not be opened till Friday, July 6th. It will be again closed from Monday, the 23rd, till Friday, the 27th.

On Thursday, June 28th, the Bishop of Exeter laid the memorial stone of a new Mission Hall for St. George's, Stonehouse, which is designed to accommodate about 300 persons. It is expected to cost £900.

The members and Sunday-school teachers in connection with the Congregational chapel in the parish of Short Heath, Wolverhampton, having expressed to the vicar, the Rev. G. W. Johnson, a desire to come over to the Church, on Sunday the chapel was reopened as a Mission room in connection with the parish church.

On St. Peter's Day was opened the new organ at St. Peter's Eastbourne, the chapel-of-ease to the church of St. Saviour's, an address being given by Archdeacon Sutton, who acted for the first time in his public capacity as Archdeacon of Lewes. The new instrument, which has two manuals, is by Conacher, of Huddersfield, and its good qualities were shown in a recital after the service by Dr. Sangster, the organist of St. Saviour's.

The Bishop of Exeter has appointed the Rev. Ernest Grey Sandford, vicar of Cornwood, Ivybridge division, to the archdeaconry of Exeter and the residentiary stall, vacant by the death of Archdeacon Sanders. Mr. Sandford, whose name was one of those submitted by the Bishop of London for the suffraganate of Marlborough, and who preached the sermon at the consecration of Archdeacon Earle, graduated from Christ Church (First Class Moderations, 1860) in 1863. He was ordained the next year, and was curate of Alvechurch till 1874, and vicar of Landkey till 1885, when he was presented to Cornwood and to a prebend in the Cathedral.

Kelvedon Hatch parish church, having undergone thorough restoration, was reopened on St. Peter's Day. There has been a new oak steeple, new roof, and a large vestry erected on the south side of the chancel, as well as many alterations in the interior, including a handsome dossal with gold cross. The work was carried out under Mr. Newman, architect. There was a large congregation at three o'clock, when the choir was surpliced for the first time. The sermon was preached by the Bishop of Colchester. At 8 p.m. there was a second evensong, when the church was crowded. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Alban Wylde, from Psalm cxxii, 1. The offertories amounted to £19 13s. 4d., which, added to donations from numerous friends of the rector, will leave but a small debt remaining.

At the annual luncheon of the congregation of St. Alban's, Holborn, an address, signed by 930 persons, was presented to the Rev. A. H. Stanton, who had completed a quarter of a century's service at that church. It was accompanied with a cheque for £530. In acknowledging the gift Mr. Stanton is reported by the Church Times to have said that, although the laity had treated him most generously and most kindly, his ecclesiastical superiors, generally speaking, had treated him most ungenerously and unkindly. After mentioning the Bishop of St. Albans when Bishop of Rochester; the late Bishop of Llandaff, the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, and the late Bishop of London, he went on to say if one thing more than another had caused the iron to enter into his soul it was Lord Addington's withdrawal of £200 a year from the curates' fund of St. Alban's. This fund had been kept up for twenty years, and after twenty years of work in that parish, Mr. Hubbard withdrew that provision, and that he had felt a very great stigma upon his ministry. When Bishop Temple came from Exeter to London, he thought that the Bishop, being a justice-loving and liberal-minded man, would do something for him, and, foolishly enough, he had made up his mind to write and lay the circumstances of the case before the Bishop.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting was held at Bletchingley on Monday, July 2nd, and was attended by about twenty-five members from London, Beddington, Bletchingley, Croydon, Guildford, Nutfield, and Reigate. There was some practice in Grandsire and Stedman Triples; but at about half-past five the association had the misfortune of making the acquaintance of one of the church-wardens under the following circumstances. We were ringing a few rounds before starting for Treble Bob when a gentleman in a great state of excitement rushed in (the ringing is performed on the floor of the church close by the west door) and with some violence of expression, which would be regrettable anywhere, but still more so in church, ordered that the ringing should cease and that we should all leave the building; adding that if we did not go he would pitch us out, an expression which of course greatly alarmed us, seeing that there were not more than a dozen or so of us present at the time. During the course of a somewhat excited address we gathered the following facts—1st. That the living was vacant. 2nd. That this gentleman was the Sequestrator, and that nothing at all could, would or should be done in the church without his permission. 3rd. That there had been a funeral in the church in the early part of the afternoon and another somewhere else in the district. Having pointed out that if he had come to us quietly and told us No. 3, and that it was the wish of the inhabitants that the ringing should cease, we should have gone at once without a word. We quietly left the church and Mr. Sequestrator, the latter staying behind we presume to cool down. It was now time for the tea at the "Red Lion" to which all went eagerly, knowing what nice teas they are there.

The subsequent business meeting, at which the Rev. F. W. Pelly, curate in charge, kindly presided, was of a most unanimous character, so the business was quickly disposed of. The officers and committee were re-elected for the ensuing year, and three new names were added to the latter. Eight new members were elected. Eight peals were reported and ordered to be entered into the book. It was resolved to apply for leave to hold the next District Meeting at Croydon and the Quarterly Meeting at Beddington.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A District Meeting of the above was held at Woburn, on Saturday afternoon last (June 30th). Members attended from Aspley Guise, Bedford, Biddenham, Bromham, and elsewhere. Numerous touches of Major and Triples were rung. It was arranged to hold the next District meeting at Houghton Conquest, on the 29th September, being the last Saturday in that month.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—ROSSENDALE BRANCH.

The next Ringing Meeting of the above branch will take place on Saturday, July 14th, at St. James's church, Waterfoot. Bells ready at 2 o'clock; Meeting in the school at 6.30.

J. T. STOTT, District Secretary.

Newchurch.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The First Quarterly Meeting of the year will be held at Loughborough, on Saturday, July 7th. The towers of All Saints', Loughborough, and St. Bartholomew's, Quorndon, will be open for ringing from 2 p.m. JOSEPH GRIFFIN, Hon. Sec.
5, St. Paul's Street East, Burton-on-Trent.

The south aisle of the parish church of St. Margaret, Lee, Kent, has been converted into a chapel, and an east window placed in it to the memory of George Barnes Williams, by his widow; the window by Messrs. Clayton and Bell. Mr. Brooks, who recently enlarged and altered the church, is the architect.

WANTED by a change-ringer, age 20 years, a situation as Shopman or Book-keeper in Corn and Milling Trade preferred, have had 6 years experience in above Trades with present employer. NOTES BY THE WAY.

Among the numerous accounts which we are enabled to read from time to time of the doings of our brethren in various parts, few will excel in interest the report which you give last Saturday of the opening of a new ring at Maryborough, Queensland. It must be exceedingly gratifying to us all at home to see how our friends and relatives who have taken up their abode in the distant colonies still endeavour to maintain the customs of the old mother country. But still more pleasing to us ringers will be those indications that our countrymen when they have left their native shores and settled down in their far-away homes manifest such a yearning to hear "the bells of motherland" sounding as of yore amongst them. No doubt most of us will have read the story of the settler in the Antipodes who received the present of a lark from his old home in England; how that when its arrival became known, men came for miles around to hear it sing, because its voice reminded them of their native place. So with the bells. What Englishman across the sea is there who could hear their sound without being animated with feelings of love and yearning towards that "little spot on the ocean" the land of his birth—"the isle of bell-ringing?" We who have never travelled beyond the limits of our own island will be unable to fully realise the feelings thus aroused by the sound of bells, but we may to some extent understand the enthusiasm created when a new ring is opened amidst those who for years have not been privileged to hear their time-honoured and pleasant sound. We may thus read without any great surprise of the long distances travelled by both ringers and listeners to hear that sound which is so characteristic of our land the whole world over. The men who first rung the bells of Maryborough, we are told, travelled no less than 1380 miles for that purpose, and it will at once appear no small matter to us who are accustomed to look upon a journey of a score miles or so for a ring as an item of some consequence.

Although our friends then (as the report regretfully states) were not able to accomplish a peal in any of the Standard Methods, and although their ringing performances might be considered insignificant to us at home who are accustomed to greater achievements, yet it is quite evident that everyone was pleased and gratified at what was accomplished—humble though it might be. It appeared sufficient for them for the time that they were enabled once more to hear the sweet and loved sound of the bells.

Such an event as this will doubtless be to all concerned a prominent feature of a lifetime. Let us all, therefore, while congratulating the good people of Maryborough on their latest acquisition, sincerely hope that Mr. Payton will be successful in his endeavours to introduce change-ringing in this place, so that not only this, but generations to come may have the pleasure of hearing these bells rung pleasantly and scientifically week after week, so that by this means, while their enforced absence from their mother country will be made less irksome, they will ever, on hearing the welcome sound, be animated with feelings of loyalty and devotion to the old country. Thus will the bond of union between us at home and our brothers away continue to be firmly cemented, and the bells will proclaim "with no uncertain sound" that though many miles of land and water separate us, we are nevertheless one people, one in sympathy, one in love, one in heart and mind with each other. Long may it be so.

I have dwelt, it may be thought, somewhat lengthily on this subject; but (no doubt like many more of my brethren) having near and dear relatives and friends settled in these distant places, I cannot help feeling warm upon this point, and I do not think I shall be exaggerating one bit if I venture to say that the sympathies of the whole of the Exercise at home will go with these endeavours to establish ringing—and particularly change-ringing—in the distant parts of the Great British Empire, that Empire on which the sun never sets; also that our brethren in those places may be assured of the fact that we shall ever welcome with delight any news from them in respect to their work of ringing.

"MARRIAGE.—June 26th, etc., etc., George Henry Phillott, to Ethel Maud Treon-Roper." May they be happy!

Mr. Ryde's account of the re-opening of the bells of St. Peter's, Woking, will, I do not doubt, have proved both interesting and amusing. There is, however, one portion of it—the last paragraph—which I would commend most specially to the consideration of our friends. That paragraph deserves to be posted up in every belfry; and while heartily congratulating the Woking band on the success of their efforts hitherto, I would add my humble word of encouragement to them to persevere, and let their subsequent achievements fully bear up the praiseworthy character of their beginning.

Another ringing excursion is announced. If an array of pleasant places to be visited, good rings at disposal, and talented men in the company, be anything to judge from, this surely should prove a most successful and in every way satisfactory outing to all who are fortunate enough in being able to avail themselves of it.

The Saddleworth men are once more to the front; not this time ringing two peals in one afternoon, but in doing honour to the birthday of their oldest brother. Mr. Broadbent's eighty years of life, sixty of which had seen him in his place in the belfry, is surely worthy of honourable recognition, and I was truly pleased to see that the event was honoured in a right hearty fashion.

While complimenting the ringers of Saddleworth, and particularly the central figure in this matter—Mr. Broadbent—I cannot help noting that on Monday next (I believe) another Yorkshire veteran, Mr. Sottanstill, will have reached his 88th year. May I not, on behalf of the Exercise, assure both these venerable gentlemen of our very best wishes to them on the accomplishment of their long term of years, and express the hope that they may yet have the pleasure of hearing their loved bells many—very many—times, as they have done of yore.

THE VISIT TO THE ISLE OF MAN.

As announced previously in this journal, a visit was made to the Isle of Man on Saturday, June 30th. On that day the following ringing friends met at Liverpool: Messrs. C. H. Hattersley, Joseph Mulligan, John Mulligan, Arthur Brearley, and David Brearley, of Sheffield; Arthur Thomas, of Birmingham; and John R. Pritchard, Henry Coley, and William Davies, of Liverpool. The party embarked on board the steamer Ben-my-Chree for Douglas at 1.0 p.m., arriving there at 6.0 p.m., when they immediately proceeded by train to Peel, and where on arrival they were joined by Mr. W. Rock Small, of Tipton. On Sunday morning, the company met at St. German's church, and rang for Divine Service touches of Stedman Triples and Treble Bob Major, and for evening service a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples, followed by another touch of Kent Treble Bob Major. Then the whole company attended Divine Service.

Monday morning found eight of the band in the tower, and an attempt was made for Thurstans' peal of Stedman Triples, but after ringing about one-half they were interrupted by one of the parishioners, armed with a note from the Vicar, asking them to stop ringing, on account of serious illness in the neighbourhood of the church. Later on in the day it was arranged to pay a visit to Douglas, and by the kind permission of the Vicar there, the Rev. —. Savage, various touches were rung on the peal of six at St. Thomas's church, in which Mr. R. Hill, of Southport, took part.

On Tuesday morning the same band met at Peel church, for the purpose of again attempting the peal of Stedman Triples. All went on well till within about 20 changes of the finish, when alas! a rope slipped, and it unfortunately came to grief. The remainder of the day was spent in boating, and in visiting the various places of interest in the neighbourhood.

Undaunted by their previous failures, Wednesday morning again found the ringers at their post in the ringing-chamber. This time the programme was changed, and a change of luck happily accompanied it. A peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, 5184 changes, was attempted, and successfully accomplished, being the first peal ever rung on the island. On leaving the tower the ringers were pleased to find Mr. W. Whitaker, of Leeds, who congratulated them on their performance, of which he had heard the greater part. An adjournment was then made for dinner, during which it was arranged to again attempt the peal of Stedman Triples in the afternoon, and this fortunately proved successful. By special request of the Vicar the bells were again rung for Divine Service, touches of Bob Major and Grandsire Triples being performed.

Later on the whole party met together, and on the motion of Mr. C. H. Hattersley, seconded by Mr. Small, a hearty vote of thanks to the Rev. G. Williams, Vicar of Peel, for so kindly placing his bells at the disposal of the visitors, was unanimously agreed to. This vote of thanks brought the proceedings to a close so far as the ringing was concerned.

On Thursday morning, the party visited Tynwald Hill, to witness the ancient custom of reading the laws of the island, which are read, both in the Manx and English tongue, on the 5th of July in each year. This ceremony over, the town of Douglas was again visited.

On Friday morning, the picturesque Dhoon Glen—the prettiest spot in the island, perhaps—was explored, calling on the return journey to view the most wonderful and world-famed Laxey Wheel. Arriving at Douglas, it was suggested that a photograph of the group be taken, which would be an excellent memento of the visit to the Isle of Man, so much enjoyed by all. This suggestion was at once acted on.

On Saturday morning the party embarked at Douglas on board the Mona's Isle (Mr. Whitaker, who remains behind for a time, accompanying them to the vessel and wishing them bon voyage) and arrived at Liverpool about 1 o'clock, where they dispersed to their various homes, refreshed and invigorated by such an enjoyable outing.

The bells at Peel church are a very pretty ring of eight by Warner and Sons, and their "go" is everything to be desired.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

ON Saturday last, July 7th, the "scruffe" of the above society held their yearly dinner at "The Crooked Billet," Walthamstow. About twenty-five members sat down to the excellent repast, the service and quality of which reflected the greatest credit on the host, Mr. G. Hopkins, who spared no effort which would conduce to the pleasure and happiness of each guest. A pleasing incident of the gathering was the re-appearance of Mr. Pettit after his recent painful illness, and his speedy restoration to robust health was the hearty wish of all present.

In the course of the evening, Mr. COOTER proposed the toast of "The Press," with pointed and forcible allusions to this paper and our contemporary. He emphasised the importance of all ringers doing their very utmost to support all literature relating to the Exercise, adding, that had there been the same facilities years ago which now existed for the interchange of sentiment and opinion between ringers, matters of a controversial nature would have been brought out into the light of day, sifted and examined there and then, thereby avoiding all future ill-feeling and unpleasantness.

Mr. MONDAY briefly seconded.

Other toasts were drank, and the remaining hours were spent in innocent conviviality, and the company separated at a very seasonable hour.

ALL SAINTS' (SHEFFIELD) RINGERS AND CHOIR.

ON Monday, July 9th, the All Saints' society, of Sheffield, had their annual trip, in company with the choir and a few members of the congregation. Southport being the place chosen, a start was made at 7.0 a.m., the trysting-place being reached at 10.30, but to find the climate cold and wet, which damped the ardour—as well as the apparel—of the excursionists. Not to be discouraged, however, by atmospheric influences, six of the visitors bravely sallied forth, regardless of the weather, and determined to have a look at the church and the bells, if possible. After a variety of dodging both up and down, the party managed to find out the residence of one of the ringers. They "doubled" up to the house accordingly, but found the ringer not "at home." While holding a conversation with this absent ringer's good lady, a member of the local company passed by. He was of course instantly waylaid, and he imparted the welcome information that Mr. Small of Tipton, and Mr. Thomas of Birmingham, were staying in Southport. Having found Mr. Thomas an arrangement was made to meet at two o'clock for a touch or peal, as it may be determined on. At that hour Mr. Small also appeared, and the bells having been raised, a course of Stedman Triples was rung by W. Gardiner, 1; W. R. Small, 2; A. Thomas, 3; J. Rowley, 4; F. Rippon, 5; J. Rew, 6; W. Smithson, 7; J. Lloyd, 8. Afterwards a 1008 of Grandsire Triples, conducted by A. Thomas. The Sheffield visitors wish through the medium of this paper to thank Mr. Thomas and Mr. Small, and their Southport friends, for kindly arranging matters for them.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE ANNUAL FESTIVAL of the above Guild will be held on Monday, July 16th, at Witney. Dinner tickets may be had on application by members to the Secretary, ensuring railway tickets at reduced fares on G.W.R. These dinner tickets are free for change-ringing, one shilling per head for probationary, and two shillings per head for hon. members.

Bearwood Rectory, Wokingham. DOLBEN PAUL, Hon. Sec.

ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH, FRAMLINGHAM, SUFFOLK.

(From the Framlingham and Saxted Leaflet.)

THE precise time of the foundation of Framlingham parish church "is not easily discovered" (as Robert Hawes says in his old history of Framlingham) "but by the arms of the Mowbrays cut on stone near the foundation, and about the middle of the steeple, it is a plain demonstration that this, if not the church too, was erected by them, and very probably both; for the one seems not more modern as to the order of its work than the other. And admitting that both of them were built by the Mowbrays, when Dukes of Norfolk and patrons of the Church, it must be in that interval of time from 1398 to 1475, for no longer were they possessors of that title and patronage." It would seem as if the present building stood upon the site of an older building, for while the nave thus dates from the beginning of the fifteenth century, and the chancel from the middle of the sixteenth, the chancel arch shows work of the twelfth or thirteenth century, and thus probably contains all that is left of the original chancel. This was pulled down by Thomas Howard, third Duke of Norfolk, and the stonework rebuilt by him towards the latter end of the reign of Henry VIII., and the whole was finished by Edward VI., in 1549, and covered with lead; the king at the same time repairing the whole church also. The great width of the chancel is a remarkable feature of the church, and it seems not improbable to have been the intention of the rebuilder that the two chancel aisles should be used as chantries, or burial chapels for his family. The south porch is comparatively modern and seems to have been rebuilt or at least considerably renovated about the year 1771.

In former times there were only two postures used in divine service, viz., kneeling and standing, for the people stood even to hear sermons, and it was only the aged and infirm who were allowed to make use of the stone seats by the walls and pillars of the Church. Consequently there were no sittings, benches or pews, originally in the Church. And the time when seats were first adopted in the Church appears to have been about the years 1512-1520. These seats were open benches and were at first perhaps only used during the sermon. The ends of these benches were beautifully carved, and the Church thus fitted must have presented a very striking appearance. However, gradually people got more and more lax in their behaviour, and those who were able began to have their seats shut in by doors and to raise the sides and back until there began to appear those hideous arrangements, the high pews and square pews. These, by one of those waves of popular fancy which can hardly be accounted for, came into general use the earlier part of the 18th century, and in conformity with the general fashion the Church of Framlingham was re-seated probably between the years 1710-1720. The beautiful carved work was pulled down and barbarously cut up to be used as joists for the flooring of the new pews: and not only so, but the stonework of the arches and pillars was treated with equal disrespect and was cut away and destroyed to fit in the new arrangements. The new pews naturally led to that most objectionable custom of allotting them to families, who looked upon them as their own and resented any intrusion as an insult. Irreverence and carelessness were also fostered by the height of the pews, which hid the occupants from the rest of the congregation. And so it has come to pass that in too many cases it would seem as if the professing Christians of England considered that there was but one posture to be used in divine worship, i.e., sitting!

Last year, when the manner of celebrating the Queen's Jubilee was discussed, one of the projects brought forward was the re-hanging of the bells. This plan, which would have formed such an excellent memorial of so notable a year, did not meet with an overwhelming amount of success, and though many were found willing to subscribe to the bell fund, yet the total promises did not justify the churchwardens in giving orders for the work to be done. It is to be hoped that they will soon be able to set forward the work, that we may once again hear our fine ring of bells as as they ought to sound.

The Bells were formerly five in number, and it was at some period prior to 1657 that the "Bell rope meadow" was added to the Glebe land of the Rectory in order to provide ropes when necessary for the said five bells. In the year 1657 a sixth bell was bought (as is noted in the Churchwardens' accounts for that year) "partly by way of free contribution by ye Townsmen, &c., partly by some Timber sold of ye Town grounds." Five ropes for these bells were still provided by the Rector, but the other rope was found by the Parishioners. In the year 1717 a subscription was made amounting to about £65 with which two new bells were bought, thus raising the number of the ring to eight. This has been said to be the oldest ring of eight bells in the county of Suffolk, though from late researches it appears that the ring of eight at Horham is a little earlier.

Treble.—John Stephens, of Norwich, made me, 1718.

Second.—John Stephens fecit, 1718. Prosperity to all my benefactors.

Third.—John Stephens made me, 1720.

Fourth.—Gabriel Noc Pange Suave Hoc in Coclave.

Fifth.—Virginis Ægregie Vocor Campna Marie.

Sixth.—Omnis Sonus Laudet Dominom. Anno Domini, 1583.

Seventh.—W. I. B. Anno Domini, 1622.

Tenor.—Per me Fideles Convocantur ad Preces. J.S., 1718.

Thomas Mulliner. Moses Bury. C.W. Tenor 18 cwt. in F.

WELLINGBOROUGH, NORTHANTS.

The restoration of the west doorway of the parish church has been completed in the most satisfactory manner. The door has been enriched with new ironwork hinges of very good design, worthy of one of the best periods of Gothic architecture, and the stonework of the deeply recessed doorway carefully restored, and, where necessary, replaced with new material. The parish is to be congratulated on this good work, and the anonymous donor to be warmly thanked for his liberality in doing it. The churchwardens have fixed a handsome brass tablet to the chime case. It reads thus:—"William Woolston, of Westlands, in this town, a Member of the Society of Friends, Presented these Chimes to the Parish of Wellingborough, to commemorate the Jubilee of Queen Victoria. Her free people rejoice in her long, happy, and prosperous reign. 21st June, 1887."

THE IRISH EXHIBITION, OLYMPIA.

The exclusion of all political questions from the scheme of the Irish Exhibition was one of the first and wisest principles determined by the Executive Council. It has thus been made possible, while politicians are opposing one another on Irish questions, for the wives and daughters of the chiefs of all parties to meet in happy union to buy and sell Irish products for the benefit of Irish peasants and Irish Technical Schools. The Marchioness of Salisbury and Countess Spencer, the Marchioness of Londonderry and Countess of Aberdeen, Mrs. Gladstone and Miss Balfour, Countess of Bective and Lady Harcourt, are not only actively assisting in the organization of the Fancy Fair, which is to be held in the old Market Place, at the Exhibition, but they will preside and sell at the shops each day of the Fair. Lady Arthur Hill and the Marchioness of Downshire will sell music and books by Irish composers and writers. The Duchess of Manchester and Lady George Hamilton will sell flowers and shamrock from Vinegar Hill. Lady Hayter will display photographs of famous Irish men and women. The Countess of Leitrim and Lady Lewisham have the fancy stall. Countess Tolstoi and the Countess of Kilmorey will have some of the choicest glass, cutlery, perfumery, &c. Irish work will be sold by Marchioness of Waterford, Lady Charles Beresford, Marchioness of Headfort, Lady Castletown, and Mrs. Pierce Mahony, the latter of whom will dispose of one of her husband's celebrated Kerry cows, while Mrs. Arthur Kennard will invite offers for some choice little Irish pigs. The Fancy Fair will open on Tuesday the 17th inst., at 3 o'clock, and remain open the three following days. As there will be additional attractions in the Exhibition itself it will be a good opportunity for paying a visit to Olympia.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.—Mr. Samuel Wood has removed to 166 Margaret Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

GREAT WALTHAM, ESSEX.

On Friday, July 6th, a party from Writtle and Widford made an expedition to Great Waltham, a village five miles from Chelmsford, where there is a fine heavy ring of eight bells, tenor 28 cwt., of various dates from 1581 to 1796; but no change-ringing is, or has for many years been practised. There is, however, a band of call-change ringers, and the bells are in fairly good order: the chief drawback being the belfry itself, which is awkward of access, with a bad sight from some of the ropes. Ringing began with a 504 of Grandsire Triples. R. C. Burrell (Chelmsford), 1; J. Dains (Widford), 2; A. Edwards (Writtle), 3; F. Radley (Writtle), 4; A. Tarbun (Widford), 5; Rev. T. L. Papillon (Writtle), 6; W. Lincoln (Writtle, conductor), 7; W. G. Dickins, Esq. (Writtle), 8. After this, Messrs. S. and H. E. Hammond, and T. Watson, from Braintree, with Mr. Livermore, from Waterford Cathedral (who is paying a visit to his old county), appeared in the belfry, and some touches of Bob Major and Grandsire Triples were attempted unsuccessfully. The party from Writtle and Widford were afterwards entertained at supper by the Vicar, the Rev. H. E. Hulton, to whom their best thanks are due for his hospitality, as also to the local ringers for having everything in readiness.

NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The General Quarterly Meeting of the above was held at Grimsby on Saturday, July 7th. During the afternoon the bells of St. James' were kept ringing by several of the members, conducted by Mr. D. Seamer. Tea was provided in the Bull Ring Coffee Hall at 5 o'clock, after which the meeting was held under the presidency of the Rev. Canon Young, of Grimsby. Mr. J. W. Watson, 15 Knight Street, Lincoln, was elected as Honorary Secretary. The next meeting is to be held at Market Rasen with Claxby, in October, when the question will be discussed whether it would not be advisable to have fewer business meetings and more ringing meetings during the year. Several probationary members were enrolled as efficient; and three new probationers were elected. Mr. H. Gadd proposed a vote of thanks to the Rev. Canon Young, and the Rev. — Spawforth, for granting the use of the bells on that day. Mr. Charles Jackson, of Hull, seconded, and the Rev. Canon Young in an appropriate speech, responded. The Rev. A. N. Clay also made a few telling remarks. After the meeting an adjournment was made to the belfries, and a few short touches were rung.

BRISLINGTON, SOMERSET.

On Sunday afternoon, July 8th, several members of the Bristol St. Stephen's Amateur Society, visited the above place, where they were kindly entertained to tea at the Vicarage, after which a move was made to the tower, where several six-scores of Grandsire and Plain Bob Doubles were rang for Service. J. Hinton (conductor), 1; C. Burden, 2; G. Colston, 3; F. Elles, 4; T. Phillips, 5; W. Colston, 6. After service, a 720 of Grandsire Minor in 25 mins. C. Burden, 1; S. Phillips, 2; G. Colston, 3; F. Elles, 4; C. Tomkins, 5; J. Hinton (conductor), 6. The ringers wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" to thank the Vicar for his kind entertainment and the use of the bells; also the steeplekeeper for having things in readiness for them.

HOW TO LEARN CHANGE-RINGING WITHOUT AN INSTRUCTOR.—By Charles Pearson, M.A. Price Threepence, by post Fourpence.—WILLIAM POLLARD AND CO. Printers, Exeter.

ST. NICHOLAS' SOCIETY, BRIGHTON.

The above society had their Annual Outing on Saturday, July 7th, at Bletchingley. Leaving Brighton at 7.35., they arrived at Redhill in due course, three miles from their destination. In passing through Nutfield, the party were met by Mr. Burkin, sen., who informed them that the vicar, the Rev. W. Bristow, had given instructions for every attention to be shown them, the bells being at their service during the day. In the belfry two peal boards were noticed, one dated March 18th, 1815, recording a peal of Double Bob Minor, the first on the bells; and a peal of Oxford Treble Bob Minor, rang in 1836. After ringing a few touches, and a 720 of Bob Minor, an account of which will be found on another page, Bletchingley was reached, where a hearty reception was given them by Mr. Bashford on behalf of the Bletchingley ringers. Permission had previously been given for the use of the bells, but was very reluctantly withdrawn owing to an occurrence that took place the previous Monday, as recorded in the last issue of "THE BELL NEWS." At half-past one the party sat down to a substantial dinner at the "Red Lion," to which full justice was done. The usual loyal toasts having been given and drank, the Bletchingley handbells were brought into requisition, and enlivened the proceedings. A start was then made for Godstone, two miles on, Mr. Bashford going forward and obtaining leave to ring from the Vicar, the Rev. — Hoare, which was readily given. Here a nice little peal of six and in good going order was found. Time being limited, a short touch of Grandsire and Plain Bob, and a ramble down where the water lilies grow, and then tracks were made for headquarters, where a very nice tea was waiting. Song and sentiment afterwards prevailed until the starting time came and leave had to be taken, the party getting home to Brighton at eleven o'clock. The thanks of the society are due to the Rev. F. W. Pelley, of Bletchingley, to the Rev. W. Bristow, of Nutfield, the Rev. — Hoare, of Godstone, and to the Bletchingley and Nutfield ringers, who done all they could to render the day pleasant to every one.

ANNIVERSARY AT SUDBURY, SUFFOLK.

On Friday, June 29th, the 14th anniversary of the augmentation of the peal at St. Peter's church to eight, by the addition of two new trebles, was held as usual. Ringing commenced at 6.30 a.m. at St. Peter's church, the bells being fired and a touch of Bob Major rung. After this a touch of Grandsire Triples, at All Saints. The bells of St. Gregory's were also rung during the day, the three towers being open for ringing, touches of Treble Bob, Plain Bob, Grandsire and Stedman Triples being rung. The dinner took place at one o'clock, at the "Oak Inn," where a first class repast was well served up by Host Good. The Rev. T. L. Green, Rector of SS. Gregory and Peter, occupied the chair, the vice-chair being filled by Dr. W. J. Mason, there being also present the Rev. C. J. Stowe, Vicar of All Saints, W. B. Ranson, Esq., Mr. W. L. Lewis, Mr. N. Aprile, churchwarden of All Saints. After dinner various toasts were proposed and healths drank, when tower ringing again became the order of the day, the finishing touch being a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1260 changes), for the evening service at St. Peter's, by the following: N. W. Taylor, 1; M. Silvester, 2; W. Bacon, 3; W. Cross, 4; W. Howell, 5; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 6; W. J. Nevard (Great Bentley), 7; J. Campin, 8. The rest of the evening was spent in handbell ringing, the company breaking up at eleven o'clock.

THE HEREFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

The First Annual Festival will be held at Ross on Monday, July 23rd. Morning Service at the parish church at 11 a.m., when the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Canon Musgrave, of Hereford Cathedral. The offertory will be devoted to the funds of the Guild. Dinner at the "George" Hotel at one o'clock, tickets two shillings each; business meeting immediately after. All members and friends who are interested in the Guild, are invited to attend. The Great Western Railway Company will convey ringers to Ross and back at a fare and a quarter, provided that the party is not less than ten. Ringing will take place during the afternoon at Ross (eight bells), Foy (six bells), and Weston (six bells).

THE FIRST PEAL OF STEDMAN TRIPLES RUNG IN HAND.

SIR,—In your valuable paper of Saturday last, a letter appeared from Mr. Cooter, stating that the first peal of Stedman Triples rung in hand by Messrs. Cox, Powell, Haley, and Britten, of the Cumberland society, was no peal, and the College Youths rang the first peal a month later. I am surprised at Mr. Cooter making such a statement, when he well knew that it was pronounced in the presence of nineteen members of the Cumberlands and College Youths' societies to be an excellent peal, and was published in Bell's Life and several other papers, of which I have a copy, the Cumberlands celebrating the event by a supper, when most of the society were present, nothing ever being mentioned about the peal not being true until after the death of Messrs. Britten, Cox, and Haley. Now thirty-four years have passed away, and all the senior members, so that none are now left to contradict that statement. Now Mr. Haley was well-known throughout all England as one of the cleverest and best in the science of ringing, also one of the most straightforward men in peal-ringing, as is well-known. Is it in reason that he would go on ringing, when he knew there was a change-course? He would have stopped the ringing at once, as many ringers in London can testify. Now why did not Mr. Cooter contradict it in the papers at that time. In our Editor's remarks of last Saturday's number, he truly says that bob-callers are to be found who will not stick at trifles.

THOMAS POWELL.

SIR,—In your leader last week you say "It may reasonably have been thought that the exposure could have been postponed, now that such an interval has elapsed, till all the parties concerned had shuffled off this mortal coil." When Church Bells gave a list of handbell peals, I sent a letter couched in similar terms to mine of last week; no notice was taken, all the party were then alive. Had "THE BELL NEWS" been published at the time, its astute and impartial Editor would have allowed me to thoroughly thresh out the matter at once.

WILLIAM COOTER.

THE PEAL OF OXFORD AT BOLTON.

SIR,—With regard to the letter of "A Ringer" on this subject, had he honourably signed his name instead of hiding himself behind a very common nom de plume, I would have given such explanation as would prove quite satisfactory to all; but until he puts his hints, doubts, and queries above his own name in a fair legitimate manner, I shall decline to deal with them.

F. LONDON.

USING THE PROPERTY OF OTHERS.

SIR,—The peal published by Mr. Hardy, 5184 changes of Kent Treble Bob Major, was first published by me in "THE BELL NEWS" for January 2nd, 1886, and first rung at Holy Trinity church, Stalybridge, on Tuesday, August 25th, 1885, so that I still claim the peal.

SAMUEL WOOD.

A DISCLAIMER.

SIR,—The 5040 of Doubles rung at Minsterworth on June 26th, does not belong to our Association, as the performers were not members. F. E. WARD, Master of the Gloucester and Bristol Association.

PEALS WITHOUT A COVER.

SIR,—Some time ago there appeared in your valued paper a great controversy concerning a certain peal of Triples rung without a tenor covering, and many good arguments were given supporting both sides. But I notice in the issue of "THE BELL NEWS" for June 30th, that a peal of Grandsire Triples was rung at Tue Brook, near Liverpool, in which, as the account gives it, the tenor man being tired out after ringing two hours, set his bell, and having rested for half an hour, took on again, and rang on till the end. Now Sir, that peal was published, and no notice whatever was taken of it the following week; but yet I cannot help thinking that the peal rung by seven men without the tenor throughout was a much more praiseworthy and creditable performance than the so-called peal at Tue Brook. In fact I myself cannot quite see how the latter can be called a peal at all. I should have called your attention to this matter last week, had I not thought someone with more experience in these things would have taken it up.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 14, 1888.

THE art of Change-Ringing has again been carried to a somewhat remote portion of the British Islands. In another column will be found an account of two peals being rung in one day at the parish church of Peel, Isle of Man. These performances are of course highly gratifying to the company who achieved them, and their perseverance over the difficulties and drawbacks they had to meet is certainly very commendable. Whoever organised this invasion of the island above-named, deserves some credit for the originality of the idea, if he supposed that the ringing of a peal would lead to the establishment and practice of the science in the island. It would have been more satisfactory, however, could we have read that the Vicar had enquired of the visitors what change-ringing was, so that some hope would have been engendered that a body of Manxmen was about to be formed into a society of ringers under the direction of a qualified instructor.

This should be in fact the aim of all ringers who visit fresh fields and pastures new; to endeavour to leave behind them a longing for the knowledge they themselves possess. This feeling is generally easily aroused if only proper means are taken for the purpose. There may be cases where to work up an interest in the art requires some exertion and a little gentlemanly assurance. But what a gain is it to the Exercise. We expect our friend MR. HATTERSLEY and his companions will feel gratified if in a year or two hence they hear of a peal being performed in the Isle of Man by natives, and that gratification will be considerably enhanced if they hear that their visit gave the impetus to the formation of a society of Manxmen.

Dr. Stainer, the well-known late organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, and Mr. G. B. Bruce, received the honour of knighthood at the hands of Her Majesty on Tuesday afternoon.

The Rev. R. W. Mann Statham has been licensed by the Bishop of London to the curacy of the parish church of Hillingdon, near Uxbridge.

SOME CURIOUS CHURCH DOORS.—Old church doors were sometimes nearly covered with ramifications of ornamental ironwork, spreading from the hinges in marvellously equable yet indefinable designs. Sometimes their stout oak planks were studded with large nail-heads or bolts; and their locks and handles were always masterpieces of the smith's skill. But, as we have said, the Ely doorway is void, but the Monkwearmouth doorway is also doorless. The south doorway of Steetley Church is very ancient. Around the semicircular doorhead is a series of large, long sharp-pointed bird-beaks, pointing downwards towards the door; and round these beaks there are rows of zig-zag ornament. The columniated jambs are also carved with intertwined ornaments and animals of dim antiquity. The idea of arranging beaks or tongues to form an enrichment seems to have found favour in the old mason's eyes. In Kilkhampton Church there is a semicircular doorhead, very rich in zig-zag mouldings, that has a bead-like row of foxy heads following the curve with their tongues lying upon the moulding below them; and in Morwinstow church there is a variety of the same idea made by a mixture of animal and human heads all ranged round a curved moulding, with their tongues or chins lying upon it—pitifully quaint. Less striking than these, but still belonging to the early Norman period, is a doorway in Bucklebury church, and another in Thatcham church, with bead-work, and a twisted variety of zig-zag ornament marking the one, and spiral enrichment of the columns distinguishing the other.—From "The Quiver" for July.

PRESENTATION OF A PEAL BOOK AT ST. ALBANS.

At the invitation of the Rev. H. N. Dudding, Vicar of St. Peter's church, St. Albans, the members of the St. Peter's Society attended at the vicarage on the evening of Wednesday, July 4th, when he kindly presented them with a handsome peal book. The reverend gentleman, in the course of an excellent address referred to the ancient character of church bells, and identified them as being analogous in the present day to the silver trumpets mentioned in the Old Testament, and pointed out the similarity of their uses in many respects. The book, which contains spaces for one hundred peals, bears upon the title page the following inscription: "Presented to the St. Peter's Society of Change-Ringers, St. Albans, by the undersigned, as a memento of the accomplishment on the 17th March, 1888, of the Society's first peal. H. N. Dudding, President, St. Peter's Vicarage, St. Albans, June, 1888." "Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." The book was supplied by Mr. B. Keeble, of Romford, and in it are entered the three peals already achieved by the Society, viz.: the peal of Grandsire Triples on the 17th of March, above referred to, and the peals of Grandsire Caters, rung on handbells, on the 23rd of that month and the 10th of April. The ringers before separating partook of refreshments at the Vicarage, and brought the handbells into requisition. Previous to the presentation the members met in the tower and rang a 560 of Grandsire Triples and some Grandsire Caters on the church bells.

MARRIAGE OF THE REV. R. COPEMAN.

Henley Church, Suffolk, was the scene of an exceedingly pretty wedding on Wednesday morning, July 4th, when the Rev. R. Copeman, curate of Fordingbridge, Hants, late of St. George's, Leicester, and Miss A. M. A. Pearson, elder daughter of the Rev. H. Pearson, Vicar of the parish, were married. The parishioners erected arches of evergreens over the entrance to the vicarage grounds, and above the churchyard gate, expressing their good will towards and sympathy with the bride and bridegroom in appropriate mottoes. The interior of the church was prettily decorated, the children who form the choir and others brought flowers to scatter on the bride's pathway, and a large congregation of friends and well-wishers assembled to witness the ceremony. The nuptial party walked over from the Vicarage, the first to enter the church being the bridegroom, attended by his best man, Mr. A. Copeman. The bridesmaids who waited for the bride in the porch were Miss I. E. Pearson, Miss Copeman, and Miss Hare. Punctually at the time appointed (11.30) the bride entered the church, leaning on her father's arm, who also gave her away. As the procession walked up the aisle the choir sang "The voice that breathed o'er Eden," and the marriage service was then read by the Rev. William C. Pearson, brother of the bride. At the close of the service the bells rang forth merrily, and flowers and rice were freely showered upon the happy couple as they returned by the carpeted pathway to the Vicarage. Lunch followed at one o'clock, and in the afternoon a large garden party was given by the Rev. H. and Mrs. Pearson. About three o'clock the Rev. R. and Mrs. Copeman left for Lincoln, en route for the north, amidst showers of rice and white satin slippers. Many handsome presents were received from sympathising friends, of which one that gave especial pleasure was a very handsome marble clock and pair of bronze candlesticks, subscribed for by the parishioners of Henley, in which the men, women, and children of every class joined. Miss Pearson felt this act of kindness very deeply, and it will ever be a substantial token to her of the good wishes and kindly feelings of many who have known her, and whom she has known from early childhood.

We feel quite sure that Mr. Copeman's Leicester friends, and all other brother-strings with whom he has had many a pull, will unite in hearty congratulations and best wishes for his happiness in the new "chapter of life" which he has now commenced.

ERRATUM.—In the notice of Mr. G. H. Phillott's marriage, we are sorry that an error should have occurred. The lady's name should have been "Ethel Maud Trevor-Roper," not "Treon-Roper."

TREVETHIN BELLS.

The following letter has been sent to the Editor of the Trevethin Free Press :—

"SIR,—Being an old bellringer, I was very pleased to find that a peal was obtained for Trevethin Church, and, since they have been erected, I have been anxious to see them, and have a pull, to see how they work. After making enquiries I found that the "practice" was on Wednesday last, and if I went up I should be welcomed. Consequently, I went up there and found my way into the belfry, where I found the ringers resting in a circle. I told them that I was an old ringer and wished to see how the bells worked. One man, who seemed to be the master, got up and told me I was to leave. I replied that I had made an effort to go there in order to see the bells work, and should not like to be disappointed, as I was interested in them and was an old bellringer from my boyhood; and that I was a subscriber. He said that that did not matter, and pointing to the way out, told me I was to go. Then I said that, as an old parishioner, I felt very reluctant to go out before seeing them at work, and for the third time he pointed me to the way out and said I must go. I, as politely as I could, bowed to his order and went out. But I felt much hurt, I can assure you. For over half a century I have been in the habit of visiting occasionally all the belfries in the district, in order to try my hand and keep up the practice, and I never have been refused the privilege anywhere before, but always I have been welcomed. Why this master-ringer should act so differently I am at a loss to know; but I thought at the time that he must be one of the "knowing" ones, and as such he wished to conceal his knowledge. But before I was many yards from the church on my way home, I found that he could not conceal his ignorance, for the bells rang out the fact that they could not even ring the changes.

"Now I should like to know to whom these bells belong, and who is the proper person to apply to for admission to the belfry; and whether they may be seen, touched, or handled by any one like myself or not, and how near one like myself may be allowed to approach them without trespassing? Having made an effort out of my small income to subscribe my mite towards the funds, I thought they would be the property of the parish. I may be wrong; but will you or any of your readers inform me on the matter? Hoping you will allow me space to these few lines in your valuable paper."

"I beg to remain, yours truly,
Gwent Street, Pontypool. "JOHN EVANS."

ST. GEORGE'S, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

Friday evening, July 6th, was the occasion of a very interesting ceremony in connection with the newly formed Guild of Amateur Ringers; being the opening of a new peal of fifteen handbells supplied by Mr. G. Welch.

The proceedings were commenced by a little ringing on the tower bells, after which an adjournment was made to the school close by, where a knife and fork repast was in waiting, the caterer being Mr. H. T. Howell, captain of the Guild. After a few rounds, and Grandsire Triples and Doubles by Messrs. G. Daltry, F. Price, F. K. Howell, and H. T. Howell, stand was called, and getting into position, go was the word for a course of knife and fork. A few minutes later the company had the pleasure of welcoming Messrs. J. Hinton and C. Gordon. After justice had been done to the things provided, a few short addresses from the Vicar, patrons of the Guild, President, Secretary, and the captain of the Thornbury ringers, Mr. F. K. Howell, the handbells were once more brought into play, when some capitally struck Caters, Triples, and Minor were brought round by Messrs. J. Hinton, Daltry, Price, Gordon, and F. K. Howell. And lively tunes with the bells four in hand, called forth the repeated approbation of the company, being interspersed with songs from the amateurs and visitors, brought a most pleasant and enjoyable evening to a close with the National Anthem, and the hope that the visitors would favour the Guild, if spared, with another visit at a future anniversary.

The Bletchingley Society beg to announce that their usual practice will be discontinued until further notice.

Obituary.

OUR readers will recollect the account which appeared in this paper of the opening of a new ring of bells at Maryborough, Australia, the donor of which, with the tower, was E. F. Aldridge, Esq., of that town. It is with deep regret that we record the decease of this gentleman, who died somewhat suddenly on Friday, May 18th, at his late residence, Baddow House. He was over seventy years of age, and for his age a very active man. The bells were rung muffled at intervals on Saturday, the day of the funeral, and also for both services on the following Sunday. His whole heart and soul was much enwrapt in the tower and bells, which he only lived to enjoy for the short space of seven weeks. And very singular to say, that the ship "Eastminster," a fine vessel, after calling at Maryborough and landing the bells, put out to sea, and was never since heard of. The weather at the time was very rough, and as portions of wreckage believed to belong to her were found near Maryborough, it is supposed that she foundered.

THE CHURCH HOUSE.—On Saturday, the Archbishop of Canterbury presided over a meeting of the general committee of the Church House, held in the National Society's offices, Sanctuary, Westminster. The report of the executive committee to June 20th stated that a site had been chosen on the south side of Dean's-yard, the right of purchase of the freehold of which had been secured for the sum of £26,500, and the entire liabilities present and prospective in connexion with the acquisition of the site would reach a total of £42,431. The Archbishop of Canterbury said that in receiving the report, the committee hoped the good ship of the Church House would be launched a fortnight hence, and that it would be all that they had expected—a perpetually growing institution of perpetually increasing usefulness. On the motion of the Bishop of London, the report was adopted.

NEW ALTAR FRONTAL AT ST. PAUL'S.—In the design of this work (which forms the subject of an illustration in last week's Builder), the central subject is a representation of Christ surrounded by adoring angels. On either side are illustrations of events in the life of Paul. One of these shows the martyrdom of Stephen, rays of glory falling around the prostrate form of the saint, while Saul of Tarsus is seen standing as a witness to his death. In the other space is shown St. Paul in fetters before King Agrippa and his sister Bernice. Between these subjects are single figures under arched canopies, representing the four archangels. The whole of the work, which is eleven feet in length, has been executed at the East Grinstead School of Embroidery, 32 Queen-square, W.C., and has taken nearly three years to complete. It has been presented by Miss Noyes to St. Paul's Cathedral, and was designed by Mr. J. Medland, of Messrs. Medland and Powell.

DEAN SPENCE AT ST. PANCRAS.—During the ten years Dean Spence passed at St. Pancras, he accomplished some of the most important work of his life. Most indefatigably and energetically he laboured to perfect his parochial organisation. His Sunday Schools there were probably the largest in England; in addition to which, there were well attended and highly efficient day schools and mission services, and Bible Classes.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"The British Lion is a noble scion,
But beware how you tread on his tail."

Some members of the Surrey Association, I see, have been experiencing one of those unpleasant contretemps with over-officiousness of which we have had a few examples lately. Talk about the vagaries of our parish clerks of old, they are beginning to sink into insignificance before the doings of some of our modern worthies—sequestrators and such like! I am not naturally a man prone to strife, but I certainly should have been glad to read that the dozen ringers in the belfry who were thus insulted had—of course, tenderly and carefully—hoisted this fiery-tempered worthy into a safe place in the bell-chamber, and there fastened him up until they had finished their touch of Treble Bob. His experiences there would no doubt have been novel, and perhaps not over pleasant, but he would at any rate have had opportunity for reflection and time to cool down while he watched the bells tumbling about.

What do the ringers of St. Mary's, Twyford, mean by thanking the Vicar of Christchurch for "allowing them to view the Church free of charge?" Thanking that reverend gentleman for permitting them to use the bells on an extraordinary occasion I can understand; but the idea of thanking him in print for letting them inspect the sacred building without payment, is to me both singular and disagreeable.

I am obliged to Mr. Penning for his interesting bit of information respecting the Ancient Saffron Walden Society, in reply to my query, and no less so for his compliment to myself. His concluding suggestion, unfortunately, I am unable to carry out; in the words of the pantomime song—"I would if I could, but I can't."

Allow me to compliment Miss Margaret Bushnell on her ringing a 120 of Bob Doubles on handbells. It is not, comparatively speaking, a great performance in itself, but bodes well for future achievements in the science. What strikes me most, however, in this, is its apt commentary on the remarks recently made by certain of the gentler sex on ringers and ringing matters. There is evidently no fear of her complaining on that score, for while others of her sex have been grumbling she has been diligently studying and practising the art.

That reminds me of the epistle of your "peaceful" correspondent who refers to the names of three ladies well-known in the Exercise. With regard to the first one, while fully sensible of the great loss she sustained but recently, and being very diffident in making remark thereto, I cannot refrain from expressing my regret that we have seen so little of Miss Cruwys Sharland's name lately, and the hope that we shall see her soon again figuring among the list of performances and compositions.

It was "hard lines" on the men of Capel, to lose their bravely-attempted 10,080 after over four hours' ringing, particularly when the most difficult of the fourteen methods had been dealt with, and everything seemed favourable to a successful finish. Well, try again, better luck next time.

Speaking of this week's peals and attempts, one cannot help noticing the difference in point of quality between the last men tioned performance and the peal composed of forty-two 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles rung at Minsterworth. The ringers of this latter must have found the thing very monotonous before they finished. Although I would not for one moment detract from the credit due to them, yet I should like to point out to them the advisability of aiming at better things now that they have assisted their tenor man through his first peal. My friends, why content yourselves with figuring at the lower parts of the ladder with performances of Doubles when you have a ring of six at your disposal? Let us ere long see your names once more in connection with the ringing of good Minor methods, then we shall be able to reflect with pleasure on the fact that the march of improvement has commenced in yet another place.

No doubt the letter from Mr. Cooter will give rise to a considerable amount of comment. Whether that gentleman be right or wrong, I fear he will have some difficulty in taking away the reputation of the Cumberlands' performance, after its over thirty years' acceptance by the Exercise as the first peal. The late Mr. Hubbard does not appear to have had any doubts upon the matter, for he reports both peals in his "Elements of Campanalogia," giving premier honour to the one, the truth of which is now disputed. Anyhow, Mr. Cooter has made his statement clear enough, there is no ambiguity or uncertainty about his meaning; and we shall therefore wait with interest to see the other side of the question.

Before I conclude this week, I would just refer to the interesting cutting which you give us with reference to the bells and ringing matters at Liversedge, Yorks. The Exercise seems to be in a very healthy state in that place, for according to this account, their bells are for sweetness and tone everything to be desired, while the ringers are a talented and successful body of men, whose work is fully appreciated and applauded by the inhabitants of the town. All this is very pleasant reading, and I would congratulate the Liversedge men on their abilities and success, as indicated by their peal boards, and the number of prizes they have won by their handbell ringing: in fact, I feel a very strong desire to pay them a visit and hear their melodious bells, which were cast from the cannons of our country's enemies in times past. By the way, in this account, I find no mention of the Yorkshire Association. Does the Liversedge company belong to that once numerous but now rapidly decreasing body known by the name of "Independent Societies?" I can hardly think that a band like them which has shewn such proficiency in ringing will be behind hand in the great work of organisation. Perhaps this is but an omission of the reporters.

CHURCH BELLS AND CHANGE-RINGING.

The following article appeared in last week's Guardian:—

"Some two years ago I was allowed to advocate, in the columns of the Guardian, the cause of change-ringing and belfry reform, and to urge, from the little experience which I then possessed, how desirable it is that the clergy and other influential persons should, wherever there is a peal of bells, do their utmost to organise, and if possible take part in, scientific change-ringing. The difficulties both of learning the art oneself, and of keeping others up to it, are no doubt considerable, particularly in country parishes, where among the labouring classes there is very little perseverance in overcoming difficulties, and where grown men are much like children, soon getting tired of a new thing, and having very dim conceptions of regularity and method. But the effort is well worth making; and I am quite certain that no clergyman who throws himself into the work will repent of having done so. When the preliminary difficulties have been mastered, he will have provided himself with a fascinating recreation, and an admirable exercise for both mind and body; and he will have been brought into more intimate and friendly relations with some of his male parishioners than would have been possible in his strictly ministerial capacity. He will very likely have the satisfaction of seeing that the belfry, instead of being a lounge for the idle and shady characters of the parish, and in more or less affinity to the public-house, is treated with proper respect as part of the House of God—a place where men remove their hats as they enter, and behave properly and decorously; while the ringers are no longer the worst characters in the place, but respectable Churchmen, perhaps members also of the choir and communicants. This reform of belfries and their morale is no doubt going on everywhere, with or without the active aid of the clergy; and it has been, and is being, very largely stimulated by the many diocesan or county associations for the promotion of change-ringing. But it goes on quicker where the clergyman himself is constantly in the belfry. His mere presence acts as a preventive of bad language and quarrelling, and unconsciously raises the tone of his brother-ringers. The old-fashioned sort, who were accustomed to beer and pipes in the belfry itself, and to whom it would never occur that they ought to go to church after ringing for service, drop off when the parson is always there: and their places are taken by younger men and better Churchmen. An active young curate who likes physical exercise—or for the matter of that a middle-aged rector or vicar (I never touched a bell rope myself till I was forty-three)—will find it well worth his while, if there is a good peal of bells in his church, to learn to handle a bell, and then to master together with his ringers the intricacies of change-ringing. Should any one who reads these lines be moved to do this, I trust that he may in a year or two have the satisfaction which I myself had last Easter Day, after ringing the bells at 7 a.m., of administering the Holy Communion to six out of the seven men who had stood with me at the ropes.

"Many persons are deterred from attempted change-ringing by exaggerated notions of its difficulty; many more from lack of a little perseverance. At a recent visit of the Oxford Diocesan Guild to the city of Wells, the Dean, in proposing their health, said (I quote from "THE BELL NEWS" of April 21st), that he himself had been prevented from taking up the science by reading in an article that 'much patient labour for many years was necessary for its attainment,' and he thought that at his period of life he could not spare time for such a stupendous task. Perhaps it was only as a touch of graceful (and perhaps ironical) compliment to his guests that so exalted a dignitary implied a desire on his own part to know more of their art; but, be that as it may, the statement which he quoted was a great exaggeration. Given average intelligence, a real desire to learn, and opportunities for regular practice with competent ringers, I believe that any one may in a year or two become a fairly proficient change-ringer in at least one or two methods, capable taking a part with others in ordinary practice, and even of standing in for a 'peal.' Long continued practice, no doubt, is necessary for attaining the highest excellence in this, as in any other art. But even as regards this point, I have in my mind some young men in another cathedral city, who have not been ringers for more than three or four years, yet are already masters of the art. And if we remember how many comparatively uneducated men become proficient ringers, it is clear that the intellectual difficulty cannot be very formidable. The difficulties which really bar the way are of quite another kind—want of interest, want of perseverance, want of power to concentrate the attention. In change-ringing the mind as well as the eyes and ears must be given entirely to the work. A single lapse of attention, a word spoken by some looker-on, a diversion of the eye from the rising and falling ropes, or of the mind to some other object, may confuse a ringer and bring a peal to grief. 'Audi, vide, tace' (Keep eyes and ears open, and hold your tongue) is (as Mr. Troyte says) the ringer's motto.

"The requisites for change-ringing are—(1) complete control over the bell; (2) 'rope-sight'—i.e., the knack of seeing which rope is pulled next to your own, either before or after; (3) remembering and applying a few simple rules. How simple these rules are, may be illustrated from the accompanying table of the first twenty changes in a plain course of 'Grandsire Triples':—

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	'Rounds.'
2	1	3	5	4	7	6	1st change.
2	3	1	4	5	6	7
3	2	4	1	6	5	7
3	4	2	6	1	7	5
4	3	6	2	7	1	5
4	6	3	7	2	5	1
6	4	7	3	5	2	1
6	7	4	5	3	1	2
7	6	5	4	1	3	2
7	5	6	1	4	2	3	10th change.
5	7	1	6	2	4	3
5	1	7	2	6	3	4
1	5	2	7	3	6	4
1	2	5	3	7	4	6	15th change.
2	1	5	7	3	6	4
2	5	1	3	7	4	6
5	2	3	1	4	7	6
5	2	4	1	6	7
3	5	4	2	6	1	7
3	4	5	6	2	7	1	20th change.

"Each bell, it will be seen, works gradually from the first place or 'lead' to the last place or 'behind,' and back again, each changing only one place at a time, with the bell that pulled next to it, either before or after, in the previous change. Each ringer must therefore remember—first, which way he is going, 'up behind' or 'down to the lead'; secondly, in what place he is: He must at the same time have a 'sight' at least of two ropes, that after which he pulls and that which pulls immediately after him; and the better he is able to see all the ropes at once the better ringer will he be. This faculty of 'rope-sight' is acquired by practice alone. The rules may be learnt from books; their application is a matter of practice.

"In the above diagram it will be seen that up to the 14th change every bell works straight backwards and forwards ('up' and 'down'). In the 15th change, however, the bell which was in the third place (No. 5) strikes a second blow there, thus making it impossible for No. 3, which was in the fourth place coming 'down,' to get any further in that direction. This causes No. 3 to take a step back, changing places not with No. 5 but with No. 7, which also takes a step back out of its course; the same happening with the bells in the last two places (Nos. 4 and 6). In ringing language the bells in 4-5 and in 6-7 'dodge' while the bell in third's place 'makes thirds;' this being the bell which the treble (No. 1) has 'taken off (i.e., succeeded in) the lead.' The rule, then, of this method is—'when the treble leaves the lead, the bell that she has taken from the lead makes thirds, and the bells behind dodge.' The treble herself, however, never dodges. Her course is unvarying—in technical language, a 'plain hunt'; and thus she is a guide to the other bells, who know, by the places in which they meet her on her way down to lead, where they ought to dodge. Thus in the 10th and 11th changes the 6th bell going up behind meets or crosses the treble in the third and fourth places, 'in 3, 4,' and the ringer of the 6th knows by this that he will have to dodge 'in 6, 7 up.'—i.e., before he has struck his two blows behind; while the ringer of the fourth, who has met the treble (changes 9, 10) in the fourth and fifth places ('in 4, 5'), knows that he must dodge '6, 7 down'—i.e., after his two blows behind; and these two bells accordingly, in the 15th change, dodge with each other, and then continue their respective courses. In this method, therefore, each ringer must observe where he passes the treble, so that he may know when and where to 'dodge'; and he must also remember which bell he 'turns from behind' (i.e., succeeds in the last place); that being his 'course-bell,' which he follows down to lead. He will also, when 'bobs' and 'singles' vary the order of certain bells, have to remember the 'course-method,' or order in which the dodging in different places comes round.

"I have repeated these details, at the risk of being wearisome in order to show how little strain upon the memory is put by change-ringing in an easy method. The powers of attention and observation must be on full stretch to apply the rules in practice; but the rules themselves are few and easy to remember. People often ask, 'How can you possibly remember so many figures?' or 'Do you have to learn the changes by heart?' and I believe that many are deterred by the fear that some abnormal effort of memory is required. No such thing. Concentration and perseverance are infinitely more important than memory; and an exercise which stimulates these faculties, while giving healthful play to body and mind, is a recreation not to be despised. Nor are youth and strength indispensable. The ringing even of a heavy bell is as much a matter of 'knack' as of strength, and septuagenarian ringers are by no means unknown. In a long peal of 'Grandsire Caters,' rung a short time ago, which lasted for eight hours, one of the ringers was a clergyman on the wrong side of fifty, and men much older than this have taken part in ordinary peals of three hours' duration. With the possible exception of golf, there is no form of physical exercise which can be pursued so nearly to the verge of old age, and this, to men in middle life who do not like the thought of giving up active exercise, is no slight recommendation.

"Much has been done of late years to promote and encourage change-ringing by the formation of county or diocesan 'associations' or 'guilds,' holding regular meetings at various centres, and inviting the ringers of scattered towns and villages by a sense of esprit de corps and zeal for a common cause. A 'peal-book,' in which peals of 5,000 changes and upwards rung by members of the society are entered, with the names of the performers, serves as a record of what is being done, and an incentive to young bands who hope to get their names into it: and a social meat-tea or dinner on the occasion of the regular meetings promotes the desire for good fellowship among ringers which in former days was mainly gratified at the public-house. These ringing associations or guilds (the name is immaterial) deserve the encouragement of all Churchmen. Many of them are officered and managed by clergymen; all of them, so far as I know, put forward as a leading raison d'être the connection of the belfry with the church, and the cultivation of reverence and good morale among ringers. The yearly subscription is generally low (in the association with which I am connected it is 1s. for a ringing member, 5s. for an honorary member); and I am sure that it is well worth the while of the clergy and churchwardens of parishes where there are bells, to become honorary members themselves, and encourage their ringers to qualify as ringing members of the association which exists in the neighbourhood. There is no more loyal set of Churchmen at the present moment, take them all round, than the ringing fraternity; and the tone of its chief organ, the Bell News, is evidence of this. This paper, published weekly at Walthamstow, in Essex, price 1d., is a modest-looking print of about the size and shape of Punch, entirely devoted to ringing intelligence, such as reports of peals and shorter 'touches,' accounts of ringing festivals, &c.; and among the ringing fraternity it seems to have superseded Church Bells, which only devotes a column or two, or at the outside two pages, to their special subject. Church Bells, however, has formerly done good service to the cause; the late Mr. Ellacombe having at one time made much use of its columns to revive interest in the subject upon which he was an acknowledged authority. Time was when the only published notices of ringing performances were to be found in sporting papers, alongside of "Knur and Spell," (whatever that may be) and other low-class amusements. And the mere fact that change-ringing now finds no place in Bell's Life or the Sporting Life, but has (besides its own organ) access to the columns of Church papers, is significant of its altered character and position.

"I am often asked the question, What are the best rules for a company of ringers? and I always feel disposed to reply, 'As few as possible, so long as the ordinary rules of good behaviour and courtesy are observed in the belfry.' Where ringers receive a fixed annual payment it is possible to enforce regularity in attendance by a system of fines. But where they are volunteers it is impossible to enforce regularity and punctuality. Men of the class from which ringers are mainly taken are generally very 'casual' in this matter. They turn up or not, as the fancy seizes them, and I have known men who left home with the intention of coming up to the belfry diverted by a chance meeting with some friend. The moral duty of keeping an appointment, lest by not doing so you should inconvenience others, hardly strikes them at all; and a man who knows that seven others are waiting for him and cannot ring unless he comes will not be deterred by that consideration from going off somewhere else if it suits him. Nor does it occur to him, as a rule, to let you know if he cannot come, after having promised to do so. He simply does not turn up, and leaves you to find out why. Those who have to do with ringers must be prepared for a good many such trials of their patience. But kindness and judicious persuasion may do much to secure what no amount of scolding or the most elaborate rules can effect. No rules, in fact, are of much use unless they can be enforced—i.e., unless you are prepared to exclude a man from the belfry for non-compliance with them; and I believe that the personal influence of a clergyman who takes part in the ringing will do more to secure regularity and good behaviour than all the rules that ever were invented. I doubt the wisdom even of a rule that all the ringers shall attend divine service afterwards. Of course it is desirable that they should do so, but how are you to make them? You can say that, 'as a rule, it is expected that they will attend,' &c., and you can encourage among them the idea that they ought, as good Churchmen, to do so; but further than this you cannot go with much effect. If they respect you and value your good opinion of them they will respect your wishes in this as in other matters. You may lead where it would be hard to drive them.

"Another question often asked is, How can we get any help towards learning? This is no doubt a difficulty, even at the outset; for if the first lessons in handling a bell be given by some old hand who has never been a change-ringer, the young hands may acquire habits that must afterwards be corrected if they are ever to make good ringers—such, e.g., as letting the 'sally' or 'tuffing' slip through the hand before grasping it for the hand-stroke, or letting the slack end of the rope run through the hand when the bell has been pulled off at hand, and is coming round to to the 'backstroke.' Good advice on this and other matters will be found in some of the ringing Manuals—e.g., Troyte's Change-Ringing, or Snowdon's Rope-Sight (both published by Wells Gardner, 2, Paternoster Buildings), the first of which introduces the learner to the 'Grandsire' method, the second to that of 'Plain Bob.' It is possible for a company of learners, if the clergyman or some one of education leads them, to master the first steps of change-ringing with no other help than that of such books. But progress will be quicker, and the risk of the men giving it up in despair proportionately less, if some personal instruction can be secured; and most of the county or diocesan associations make it their business to recommend, and in some cases to assist in remunerating, properly qualified teachers. Such men are not always easy to find, for comparatively few good ringers in the humbler walks of life have either patience enough or power of communicating their knowledge. When I and my company were learning we got some good ringers from a neighbouring parish to come over to our practices, but found them all absolutely useless as far as teaching went. This, however, like most of the other difficulties in the way of change-ringing, can be surmounted, if there is the will to do it. I cannot too strongly repeat my conviction that the intellectual difficulties (and particularly the effort of memory supposed to be necessary) are very much exaggerated. Patience and perseverance in the earlier stages, and the power of concentrating one's attention and minding one's own business when ringing with others are the qualities that make most for success in this, as perhaps in others of the occupations and amusements of life. And to those of my brother clergy who have good bells under their care, but take no interest in change-ringing because they cannot see that it is of any service to the Church, I would respectfully submit that to make the best use possible of the church bells, and to interest young men in making persevering efforts to attain skill in their use, can do no harm, and must at any rate be better than allowing the old ideas about ringing and ringers to continue. I have been in a good many belfries where change ringing is practised; but the only one in which I have recently found men wearing their hats, as though it were no part of the church, is one in which the ringers call themselves members of a 'guild,' but set their faces against change-ringing. As a rule, where change-ringing is encouraged belfry reform follows.—T. L. P.

"SIR—I see in the Guardian of the 11th inst. another forcible appeal from 'T.L.P.' on the subject of church bells, in which he urges the clergy to take up change-ringing themselves and to form bands for the practice of the art. It is to be hoped that his valuable suggestions may bear fruit in parishes where change-ringing is as yet unknown or unappreciated. In the meantime I should like to be allowed to direct attention to the case of parishes that possess competent bands of change-ringers. By comparative indifference to the interests of their ringers the clergy, with few exceptions, are seriously hindering the progress of that belfry reform which was so successfully initiated by the Rev. H. T. Ellacombe. In his footsteps here and there an individual incumbent is earnestly following, and here and there a churchwarden or other influential layman. But the great strides—and they are great—that have been made in the art by which alone the beauty of our church bells can be fully manifested, the art of change-ringing, are mainly due to the energy of the ringers themselves, who, as a rule, receive but a half-hearted support from the parson. I do not speak without experience, for I have been a ringer for five-and-twenty years, and during that time, either as a churchwarden or otherwise, in constant personal contact with ringers. As president of a leading ringing association it has fallen to my lot to become acquainted with the position of matters in many belfries, and to take part in peal-ringing pretty well all over the country. Let me say, then, that change-ringers are for the most part well-educated, intelligent men, chiefly from the artisan class, and keenly interested in the scientific details of their art; but—and I state it with the deepest regret—the large majority have a very lukewarm interest in the Church. The reason is not far to seek. It is the rarest thing to see a clergyman in a belfry. The ringers are not habituated to connect their office with the service of the Church. It is strange that they grow to concentrate their regard upon the bells entirely, to the exclusion of the ultimate object for which they and the bells are there?

"If the clergy, where there are bands of change-ringers, would bestow upon these the same personal interest and supervision which they usually accord to the choir, a valuable addition to the ranks of Church helpers would result. It is not to be expected that the generality of incumbents can take up so complicated a science as change-ringing, nor is it necessary. All that is required is a knowledge of the broad principles of the art, so that they may be able to appreciate a good performance and criticise a bad one. This can soon be acquired by attending in the belfry on practice nights and drawing the leaders into conversation. I would further insist that it is impossible to expect a strong Church feeling among change-ringers unless the clergy are constantly among them in the belfry. The men should be encouraged to do their best ringing for the Sunday services, and especially on the chief festivals, and their achievements when good should be applauded. An annual tea to, and a general moral supervision of the ringers do not fulfil the requirement of 'personal interest.' A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD."

"Duffield, Derby, July 13, 1888.

Following this is a letter which will merit the indignation of our readers, viz.:—

"SIR.—I have sent off this week's copy of the Guardian, forgetting again to read T. L. P.'s second disastrous paper as regards the fabrics of our towers. But noticing as an antiquary the mischief done by the 'gentleman-like pastime' of change-ringing—scarcely one hundred years old—to fine towers all over England—facit indignatio versum—I send in my protest, the one resource of the disregarded observer. Look at the number of towers everywhere which, where change-ringing has been encouraged or paid for, have had to be rebuilt. Go to Norwich and see the mischief that the perpetual vibration of thirteen bells has done to the once fine tower of St. Peter's, Mancroft, now transmogrified by a bibulous architect's pastrycook's Gothic; or go to Ipswich, where that munificent layman, the late Mr. Bacon, only some eighteen years ago, regardless of expense, built from the ground an elaborate tower with buttresses and huge gurgoyles and lofty spire at St. Mary-le-Tower (Canon Turnock's church), a steeple which it was fondly hoped would last all time, or last at least till the church became a cathedral for Suffolk; and what see you now? Why the clanging of the bells has not only compelled the vicar to vacate his vicarage in the churchyard for a more distant residence, but their vibration has caused the buttresses for several yards to crack and imperil the entire structure.

"I believe many of 'L. T. P.'s' obiter dicta to be as ill-adapted for the uprearing of the spiritual fabric of the church as his praise of the novel sport of change-ringing is disastrous to the material. Liberavi animam!—Your deeply moved Protestant reader,

W. H. SEWELL."

ST. JAMES SOCIETY, BRISTOL.—ANNUAL OUTING AND PRESENTATION.

ON Monday, June 25th, the members of the above society had their annual outing, the places selected being Frome and Longleat. The foreman (Mr. Henry Porch), made the necessary arrangements. The party, which numbered nineteen, journeyed to Frome by the train leaving Bristol at 10.25 a.m., and was accompanied by the Revs. E. H. Rogers and W. E. Blathwayte, Mr. G. W. Swinerd (Lay Reader), and a few friends. Upon arrival at Frome they proceeded at once to the fine old parish church, and spent a short time in inspecting the beautiful carving, sculpture, and unique medallions.

Lunch having been partaken of at the Crown Hotel, the brakes were the next item on the programme, and a very pleasant drive to Shearwater was much enjoyed. After wandering around the lake for some time, a move was made for Heavensgate, where a magnificent view of the surrounding scenery was obtained through the open spaces in the trees. A gentle walk through the park brought them to Longleat House, the seat of the Marquis of Bath. The party were then conducted through the various lovely apartments, which were much admired by all. Returning to the brakes, Frome was reached at six o'clock. Dinner was then capitally served by Host Bown at the abovementioned hotel, after which there was only time to catch the last train for Bristol, which was reached at nine o'clock.

Mr. G. W. Swinerd, who is an honorary member of the above Society, and who has been Lay Reader in the parish for six years, has, owing to ill-health, in his family, been compelled to leave this neighbourhood, and has taken charge of a mission at St. Michael's, Sittingbourne, Kent. So on Wednesday evening, June 27th, in the St. James Barton Schoolroom, a social gathering of the men and women's Bible Classes was held for the purpose of doing honour to one that was highly esteemed and much beloved, and to show in various ways their expression of sympathy at his departure from them. He was presented with a purse of gold from the members of both classes. The ringers through their foreman presented him with their photo framed in oak, and an illuminated address, also a book entitled "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," by Mr. Henry Drummond. The address, which is the work of Mr. Arthur Howell, is as follows:

"TO MR. G. W. SWINERD, FROM ST. JAMES' COMPANY OF CHANGE-RINGERS.—We the undersigned being desirous of expressing our deep feeling and sympathy, beg to tender this as a slight token of our esteem, for the unwavering interest which you have taken in our work, and by which we have been able to accomplish much that would have been impossible without your aid. We deeply regret the circumstances that have compelled you to retire from amongst us, and we trust that it may please Providence to pour out its blessings upon you, that in your new sphere of labour you may continue to advocate the cause of purity and righteousness. Henry Porch, Walter Hill, Francis T. Jewell, William H. Short, Frederick J. Porch, James G. Pearse, Walter W. Porch, Arthur H. Howell, Herbert H. Tucker, George W. Pymm, William R. Paddock, Alfred E. Pearse, Frank Gooding, Robert G. Collins."

THE LEGEND OF BOSHAM BELL.

Many of our readers who have visited "Glorious Goodwood," and lingered in its beautiful neighbourhood after the excitement of the busy race-week, if they like the supernatural, may have been rewarded (which is not always the case in legends) by finding what follows to be true with reference to the old superstition of "Bosham Bell."

Bosham, far from busy scenes and dissipations of a town life, lies in quiet seclusion on the Sussex coast in the neighbourhood of Chichester, and still boasts of an ancient church dedicated to the Holy Trinity; but the bell we are celebrating sounded harmoniously at an early period of the Saxon sway, when Bosham had a monastery and church dedicated to St. Nicholas, and when, in those good old times, the fisherman's patron saint was regarded with the reverence and devotion so much wanting in these latter and more degenerate days.

On one unhappy day for Bosham, some Danish pirates landed near the little town, who, being worshippers of Thor and Odin, had never heard of St. Nicholas, and had little reverence for the sanctity of his monastery; they pillaged the hamlet, they robbed the Church, they broke into the monastery, scattering the affrighted monks far and near, and, worse than all, they carried off the pride and glory of the whole country—the great tenor bell!

Some of the miserable monks betook themselves to their prayers, flinging themselves on the ground and imploring the aid of St. Nicholas, and, wonderful to relate, the seven remaining bells of their own accord rang out their best backward peal; but hard it was to them, harder even than the hearts of their enemies, to succeed without their lamented tenor, whose muffled voice was heard amidst the cries of the monks, the sobs of the women, and the lamentations of the fishermen as the pirates bore it off to their vessel.

A favourable breeze having sprung up, the ill-omened ship proceeded about a mile down the harbour undisturbed, while another and another melancholy peal sounded from the shore. Still the monks prayed on, and loud were the cries to St. Nicholas, when behold the pirate-ship stops suddenly, the crew feel an unusual constraint, and suspicion springs up amongst them; soon quarrels and threats are heard, and the ship appears to be influenced by some supernatural agency, for she refuses to answer to the helm, and the sails flag lazily against the masts in spite of the rising storm. The clouds look dark as night, and the affrighted heathens call in their agony upon Thor and Odin. All was in vain. The storm burst upon them with furious violence, and the vessel appeared likely to become a total wreck. Amidst the terror and confusion that prevailed, the voice of a little child, who had crept on board unobserved, was heard praying that the bell might be restored to the safe keeping of the monastery from which it had been so ruthlessly torn. The sailors looked at one another with terror on their countenances, and the captain, yielding to the general fear, ordered the vessel to put back; when suddenly another peal sounded over the water, and, strange to relate, the great tenor bell, which had been carefully secured on deck, sank at once through the boards out of sight of the terrified crew; they ran below, but it descended deeper and deeper through the timbers into the sea, the hole through which it passed closing of itself and not suffering a drop of water to enter into the ship. Down sank the bell into what is now called the Great Bell Hole, and there it remains to this day perfectly whole and sound, a constant memorial that St. Nicholas, although he doubtless for some good reason thought fit to take the bell from the keeping of his servants, yet suffered it not to rest in the hands of unbelievers. The lost tenor still chimes with her sister bells, and any one standing at the brink of the Bell Hole can still hear plainly and distinctly the whole octave peal.

For fear our readers should not believe this legend, and be unable to visit the Bell Hole and judge for themselves, we give the following reason why the lost tenor still remains faithful, and chimes in with her sister bells.

It is a fact well known in modern times, that if the third and fifth notes are struck at the same time on any instrument producing full tones, besides the natural sounds, the faint echo of the octave is heard also. It so happens that the woods of Itchenor, on the opposite side of the harbour, are so disposed by the natural sweep of the ground as to throw back a perfect echo to the Bell Hole, and consequently whenever the true tone of the third crosses the echoed sound of the fifth, the octave or last bell sounds also, and of course is heard at the Bell Hole and nowhere else. Hence the legend of Bosham Bell. As an instance how marvellously all the works of the Almighty are in perfect unison, we will mention a similar phenomenon with which those who are acquainted even slightly with the laws of colour are probably aware.

The human eye always attempts to supply the complement of colour. Thus, if the eye rests for any time on any one colour, say green—which is composed of blue and yellow—on shutting the eyes a faint repetition of the object will be seen in red, which is the third of the primary colours and complementary to the other two.

The laws of acoustics are hitherto but little known, but it would seem that a similar effect is produced, two notes of the major triad when struck calling forth a faint impression on the ear on other notes being supplied. It is a curious fact, and one which quite upholds this law, that on striking any chord on the pianoforte, all the strings of the same chord throughout the instrument which are in unison with the notes struck, are in vibration, while the other notes are not agitated. This can be ocularly demonstrated by placing on these strings little saddles of paper, which will be seen to vibrate violently, while when placed on other strings which are foreign to the chord, they rest undisturbed.

We hope our readers will forgive this digression, and will visit the sunny Sussex coast, and hear for themselves the far-famed Bell of Bosham.—From Once A Week, Dec. 31, 1864.

THE ST. EDMUNDS SOCIETY, EXETER.

A General Meeting of the above Society was held in the belfry on Monday night, July 16th. In the absence of the rector, Mr. W. H. Webber was voted to the chair. There was also present, Messrs. S. Herbert, Swift, Pitt, Coombes, Hutchings, Crane, Allen, Marsh, Richardson, Goss, Townsend, and Roberts. The following were elected members: Messrs. Webb, Pymm, Back, Goad, Green, Balsom, Shapley, and Bright. The Assistant Secretary (Mr. Herbert) said he was pleased to say that the Society contained over 40 members, and he hoped those just elected would persevere in the art and do their utmost to make good ringers. The Annual Outing was fixed to take place on Monday, July 30th, the route chosen being to Moreton, Chagford, and Drudsteington. Some further business connected with the Society being transacted, the meeting terminated with a hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman.

In the issue of the 21st of April this year was published a peal in this method, containing the whole of the changes with the 4th, 5th, and 6th in 5-6, without the 2nd or 3rd ever being in 6ths place at a course-end, by my friend, N. J. Pitstow, and which peal is based on the old plan. The peal here given contains exactly the same qualities, excepting only that it is obtained in a less number of bobs, and is based on the plan first used in this method by our mutual friend, Mr. C. H. Hattersley. By omitting the home bobs bracketed, the peal is reduced to one of 5152 changes, the least possible number without the use of calls before.

THIS week there appears, in another part of this journal, a reprint of an article which has recently appeared in the Guardian, on "Church Bells and Ringing." We hope we shall not be guilty of a breach of confidence in stating that the writer is the courteous and respected Honorary Secretary of the Essex Association—the Rev. T. L. PAPILLON. Our readers will hail with delight the powerful advocacy of the science which this article exhibits, and more especially that it has found a place in the columns of the leading Church newspaper. We have no hesitation in declaring that its publication will lead to an immense amount of benefit to the Exercise. It will inevitably cause the thinking portion of the clergy to examine as far as they can what there is in the science to merit the eulogiums which the author of the article has passed upon it, and thus the spirit of enquiry will be abroad, and curiosity will be aroused to learn more and more concerning it. Already demands have arrived at our office for copies of "THE BELL NEWS," and it is very likely our publisher will be favoured in the same way.

This week also in the Guardian is a letter on the same subject from Mr. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD, and which will be found reprinted at the end of Mr. PAPILLON's article in this number. This letter seconds in a degree the sentiments expressed in the article, and coming from such a prominent and influential Churchman as Mr. HEYWOOD, the comments of the above-named reverend gentleman thus become greatly strengthened, and their value enhanced.

There is yet another letter, from a Mr. "W. H. SEWELL," who writes as "an antiquarian." This gentleman makes some very extraordinary statements, and readers of this journal will be apt to look upon them as decidedly misleading, and frequently the reverse of fact. To a casual observer, Mr. SEWELL's letter would convey the notion that he labored under an excess of bile, or some other infirmity having an effect upon his temper, when he penned it. We would inform the "antiquarian" Mr. SEWELL, that the "gentleman-like pastime" he sneers at is more than 100 years old, to begin with. "Look at the number," says he, "of towers everywhere which, where change-ringing has been encouraged or paid for, have had to be re-built." He does not tell us where these towers are, and we say he would have a difficulty in finding them. That there are towers in existence which change-ringing would soon bring to the ground, we do not deny, but that is owing to their architecture or defective building, or to the fads of some antiquarian who has unfortunately had the power to insist upon erections of a gingerbread character. Mr. SEWELL seems to know something of Norwich; we would ask him is he the "antiquary" responsible for the building of Thorpe steeple, near that city, which has been likened to a four-legged stool with a top on it, and where a new peal of bells therein has never yet been, and never can be rung owing to the faults in architectural construction. "Go to Norwich," says he, "where there is a perpetual vibration of thirteen bells; and the once fine tower of St. Peter is now transmogrified by a bibulous architect's pastrycook's Gothic. These "pe prave 'ords." But there never was in St. Peter's, Norwich, a perpetual vibration of thirteen bells, Mr. SEWELL notwithstanding. And even an antiquary with all his narrowness, can scarcely attribute the bibulousness of the architect, or the Gothic of the pastry-cook, to change-ringing. Then again with regard to the "elaborate" tower of Ipswich. We do not lay claim to the vast erudition—or conceit—of an antiquary, but we fail to see the elaborateness of the steeple in question. People, we suppose non-antiquarians, have been heard to say that the tower at Ipswich is hardly high enough for the spire, but such people have no right to form an opinion on the subject, perhaps. Probably the architect of this steeple did not take into account the matter of bells; certainly he thought nothing of ringers, or he would have let a little more light than he has done into the ringing-chamber. But it may be held from an antiquarian point of view that the right thing is to have very little light, very little room, very little ventilation, and very little convenience of any kind in the apartment occupied by ringers.

The belief of our learned antiquary, expressed in the last paragraph of his letter, is very little short of a gratuitous insult to the whole Exercise. But here we take leave of him.

IRTHLINGBOROUGH CHURCH TOWER, NORTHANTS.

In connection with the above the Bishop of Peterborough writes:—

"I heartily commend the appeal for the restoration of Irthlingborough Church Tower to the support of Churchmen not only within but outside the Diocese of Peterborough. The ecclesiastical and archaeological interest attaching to it give it a claim upon all who are interested in the preservation of our ancient monuments. The loss of it would be a Diocesan and even an Anglican misfortune. I trust that the effort now being made for its restoration may ere long be crowned with success."

BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The next Quarterly Meeting will be held on Saturday, July 21st, at Bromsgrove, Worcestershire. The tower will be open for ringing at four o'clock, meeting to take place afterwards, when all members and friends are earnestly invited to attend.

This is the first peal in the method on the bells, and it is worthy of notice that Mr. Fosdike, the respected master of the Woodbridge Society, is in his 72nd year, and had long desired to ring a peal in this method ere he departed this life. The ringers one and all congratulate themselves upon having the pleasure to accomplish it with him. Credit is due to Mr. W. Ward for the manner in which he rang throughout the peal at his first attempt. Mr. John Fosdike has kindly promised to present the company with a tablet to record the peal. The brothers Motts, R. H. Brundle, W. P. Garrett, and F. Tillett, belong to Ipswich.

Correspondence.

[While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.]

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE PEAL OF OXFORD AT BOLTON.

SIR,—In answer to Mr. London respecting the peal rung at Bolton, I may say that his reply is a very tame one, and far from giving satisfaction. He appears to think far more of seeing his name in "THE BELL NEWS" than in giving plain answers to plain questions. I would beg to remind him that everyone has not a high sounding name as Mr. London is fortunate to possess, and when he talks about hiding behind a nom de plume, that our great authors have taken that course. And who does not read with pleasure (especially we who live in the district in which the parts are laid), the works of that gifted authoress who wrote under the nom de plume of "Currer Bell." Well, Sir, he states that had such a course been taken as giving a name, he would have given an explanation that would have been satisfactory to all. That is a statement which would have to be proved before being accepted, seeing that he has not convinced those who took part in the peal yet that it came round all right. When we go further and look at the names of those who took part in the peal, we find there is one who took part and conducted a 6000 on six bells, being twenty-five twelve-scores in different methods, which stands A1 yet, and since then he was one of a company who rung in the silent peal at Dewsbury a short time since, and for which they were complimented by "Free Lance."

We may fairly suppose that he has a good knowledge of what a peal is. I may say that he is very reticent at speaking about it, so that any one would think it had a very shady appearance. Again, I happened to hear one who took part in the peal read the letter of "A Ringer," and when he came to that part where it is stated that the ringers left the tower under the impression that it had been rung, he said most emphatically, "hear, hear;" so that it is plain that he has not succeeded in convincing his own company that the peal was finished. And I would also tell Mr. London that he who wrote under the name of "A Ringer," is known as a ringer, and not a drummer, as some are, who delight in seeing their names in print. A RINGER.

REPLY TO "JUVENIS."

SIR,—If "Juvenis" will give his correct name and address the same publicity as his criticisms, I may think it worth while to reply to them—until then I will refrain from doing so.

Liverpool.

JOHN R. PRITCHARD.

THE FIRST PEAL OF STEDMAN TRIPLES RUNG IN HAND.

SIR,—Kindly permit my final. Mr. Powell is surprised at my statement when the peal was pronounced excellent by both Societies, etc. I attack the truth of the performance; the incidents at an attempt made in St. Martin's Lane previously, caused me to watch one person narrowly, with the result previously stated. The Editor of Bell's Life would not spare room for a controversy only interesting to a small number of readers. A parry with "Free Lance," now. The late Mr. Hubbard could only publish what was sent to him; he had no opportunities of testing the accuracy of any performance in London. I opine the work was finished in a hurry, or the peals of Stedman Caters, 5086, page 178, and two peals, pages 180 and 181, would not have been inserted, the three being false. Mr. Editor, I am now in the "sere and yellow leaf"; ere entering the bourne from whence no traveller returns, I can reflect that no person associated with me in peals I was calling could ever say that I kept on when the bells got wrong, and wrong they will get sometimes. WILLIAM COOTER.

SIR,—As my name is mentioned in Mr. Cooter's letter to you of June 7th, re the first peal of Stedman Triples on handbells, permit me to say that not only myself, but at least a dozen others heard the late Mr. Haley make the confession that the peal was false. I may add that when our late friend John Cox heard what Mr. Haley had said, he (John Cox) did not attempt to deny it, but only remarked "Did he though, ah!"

[This controversy, if only for the sake of would-be disputants, must here cease. We are firmly of opinion that an overwhelming amount of evidence exists in favour of Mr. Cooter's assertions.—Ed.]

REPLY TO "FREE LANCE."

SIR,—With regard to "Free Lance's" query in your last issue, namely, "Why did certain ringers thank the vicar of Christchurch for permitting them to view the church free of charge?" which in his sarcastic manner he describes us being both "singular and disagreeable." I utterly fail to see where the disagreeable part of it comes in, but as the question is asked, and for the edification of "Free Lance," the following explanation is given. While some of the party were in the belfry ringing, the Vicar (who was that minute going to catch the train), informed one of the men waiting below that as the reverend gentleman who brought the ringers there was an old friend of his, he had prepared a spread for the whole party, but the kind offer was not accepted, as everything had been provided beforehand, and there was no time to spare. Also that a small fee of sixpence is expected of each one that visits the church, (which, I believe is devoted to the restoration fund), he not only privileged all to view the sacred building, but appointed a man specially to point out everything of interest without payment or gratuity of any kind. Consequently the ringers not being there to thank him personally, they wished to do so through the medium of this paper. Perhaps now "Free Lance" will understand what "free of charge" means, and I hope will not in the future attempt to appear so sharp with his criticising remarks. TWYFORD.

A WHISTLING PEOPLE.—"Oh, whistle and I'll come to you, my lad," is a song that the natives of Gomera, one of the Canary Isles, would appreciate if they could understand English, for it seems that they converse with one another by means of whistling. Boys will be pleased to know that the whistling is done by the fingers or the lips, and that it is possible to make out a message even a mile off. Each syllable of a word has its own peculiar sound—the vowels e, i, and y, being whistled more loudly than a, o, u. What is curious is that the natives of the other six islets do not use this kind of "speech."—From "Little Folks" Magazine for July.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, July 14th, the ringers of All Souls, Halifax, had their annual outing, the place selected being York, leaving Halifax at 6.23 a.m. York was reached at 8.35 a.m., where they were met at the Station by two veteran ringers of the Cathedral Society: Messrs. Howard and West. An adjournment was quickly made to Coney Street Cafe, where an excellent breakfast was waiting, to which full justice was done. After which the party, accompanied by Mr. West, were shown round the City walls and principal places of interest; arriving at the Castle at 10.30 a.m. were met by the Chaplain, the Rev. Mr. Baldwin, who kindly showed them over the grounds and Clifford's Tower. Leaving the Castle direction was made for the Cathedral where the ringers and friends had a short look at the interior; after which the Blind School was visited. An adjournment was again made to Coney Street for dinner. After dinner the party were met by six of the Cathedral Ringers, who ascended the Tower which contains a splendid peal of 12, where a pleasant hours' ringing was indulged in. The river was then visited and the party indulged in boating, &c. After tea, Mr. Howard—determined the party should have a pleasant day—got permission from Rev. H. L. Clark to have a touch on the sweet toned peal of eight, of St. Martin's-le-Grand, Coney Street. Time being short, the party made for the station, being accompanied by the York ringers; after a friendly shake of hands the train steamed out, Halifax being reached shortly before midnight; all thoroughly enjoyed their day's outing. The ringers wish through "THE BELL NEWS" to thank the Dean for kindly granting them use of the bells. They also take this opportunity to thank Mr. Howard and his brother strings for their company, which greatly added joy to their day's out.

PRESENTATION AT CAERLEON, MONMOUTHSHIRE.

On Wednesday evening, July 11th, the Members of St. Cadoc's Society rang a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples as a farewell touch with Mr. W. Rees, who has been a member of the Society for several years, and is now leaving for Coventry. * R. Le Viscount, 1; † F. A. Weston, 2; H. Shearn, 3; E. Davies, 4; L. Stafford, 5; W. Rees, 6; F. Green (conductor), 7; * H. Evans, 8; time, 45 minutes. After which he was presented by the Vice-President, Mr. Thomas Parry, Churchwarden, with a purse of money subscribed by the Society, conveying therewith the hearty wishes of all present for his future happiness and prosperity. Mr. Rees thanked the company for their kindness and congratulations, and the bells were lowered in peal.

WHITCHURCH, OXON.

ON Tuesday, July 10th, on the occasion of the visit of about 400 members of the Girls' Friendly Society accompanied by a band, who attended a special short service at the parish church, having been previously entertained by Mrs. Foster, of Coombe Park—360 of Grandsire Doubles before service, each six-score called differently. W. Pocock, 1; C. Pocock, 2; W. Lawrence, 3; E. Bushnell, 4; A. C. West (conductor), 5; H. Bushnell, 6. Another 360 was rung as the congregation left the church, conducted as before.

WORCESTER AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

ON Saturday, July 14th, a ringing meeting of the above Association was held at Chaddesley Corbett, near Kidderminster, which was well attended by members from Areley Kings, Bromsgrove, Brierley Hill, Chaddesley, Coseley, Clent, Dudley, Kidderminster, Netherton, Stourbridge, and Tipton. Ringing was freely indulged in by the members from various places, and some good touches of Grandsire Triples were rung, after which some Kent Treble Bob Major, and Plain Bob Minor were gone through. An excellent tea was provided at the Swan Hotel, to which a goodly number did full justice. Some courses of Grandsire Caters, Triples, etc., were rang upon the handbells, and a very pleasant evening was spent by all.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Monday, the 19th inst., the Croydon Ringers and friends, to the number of 30, held their annual outing at Hastings. A start was made from Croydon at 7 a.m., and Hastings was reached at 9. After taking some refreshment the steeplekeeper was called into the hunt, to get permission to ring at St. Clement's.

The hunt proved to be anything but a plain one, and after much dodging, the vicar was found and gave his consent. Arriving at the church, an ascent was made to the top of the tower, from which a fine view of the sea was obtained. Several touches of Grandsire Triples were rung, amongst others, a 560 by the following:—H. E. Haley (Conductor), 1; H. Dudley, 2; W. J. Chambers, 3; S. Fisk, 4; W. States, 5; A. Bruce, 6; T. Verrall, 7; W. Hill, 8. After ringing about 2 hours the bells were lowered, and the Fish Market Pier, and other places of interest in the town were visited, a very pleasant day being brought to a close at 7 o'clock, p.m.; Croydon being reached about 9.30.

The late Mr. R. H. Rump has bequeathed a sum of over £2,000 to the parish church of Wells-near-the-Sea, Norfolk. This old church was struck by lightning and almost burned to the ground on August 3rd, 1879. The will directs that the money shall be expended in the providing and fixing a peal of eight bells, a new organ, new oak benches, etc.

THE PUBLIC RECORDS.—Many of the precious documents at the Record Office—situated in Fetter Lane, London—after lying for centuries in damp vaults, and suffering from the depredations from rats and mice, are now so blackened and torn that to the uninitiated they seem quite illegible. The difficulty of reading them is greatly increased by the quaint lettering and the abbreviated old French and dog-Latin in which they are written. It was not till the year 1733 that the English language was finally adopted in State and legal documents. Considering the extraordinary neglect to which the public records were subjected by our ancestors, it is wonderful that so many important ancient documents as are in the safe keeping of the Records Office are handed down to us in a useful state of preservation. The number and variety of these records are so enormous that it is impossible to take more than a cursory glance at them. No doubt the celebrated Doomesday Book comes first in order of interest. As is well-known, the Doomesday Book is a register of a survey of lands in England made during the reign of William I. The book consists of two volumes and it is said that the survey was completed in five months. The reports of the surveyors was condensed and copied into the Doomesday Book which is beautifully written, and is in splendid preservation.—From CASSELL'S SATURDAY JOURNAL.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday, July 7th, a successful meeting of the above Association was held at Loughborough, at which some forty ringers hailing from Bruton-on-Trent, Derby, Duffield, Leicester, Long Eaton, Nottingham and Beeston attended during the day, the only regret being that the esteemed President of the Association (A. Percival Heywood, Esq.), and the indefatigable Hon. Secretary (Mr. Joseph Griffin), were both unavoidably absent. A very hearty welcome was given to Mr. Henry Dains of London, for it was felt to be an honour that such a distinguished composer should favour the Association with his presence. The bells were kept going with but little intermission, except during the tea and business meeting, until nearly 10 o'clock, and touches were brought round in most of the Standard Methods, including "Duffield" Major and Royal; Treble Bob Royal; Grandsire Triples and Caters; Stedman Caters and Double Norwich Court Bob Major. At the tea, which took place at the "Mundy Arms" Hotel, the chair was occupied by the Rector of All Saints, Loughborough (Rev. Thos. Pitts), and a Vice-President of the Association. Eleven new ringing members were unanimously elected, including nine of the newly formed band at Beeston, whose names were received with pleasure by all present, and great hopes were expressed that it would not be long before a peal was reported from Beeston. Nottingham was then selected as the next place of meeting, presuming that the St. Mary's bells were available for the Association. The Chairman in replying to a vote of thanks which was cordially passed to the Rector and Churchwardens for so kindly granting the use of the bells, expressed the pleasure it was for him to meet the members of the Association, whom he should always be pleased to assist to the best of his ability, and to give permission to ring upon all suitable occasions.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday, July 7, the Swanscombe band of the above association, paid a long promised visit to Eynsford and Shoreham. Starting from the Parish Church about three p.m., they arrived in Eynsford about four, where they rung a few 120s of Grandsire Doubles with the local company, after which, they proceeded to Shoreham by train, and after raising the bells, rung a 7.20 of Kent Treble Bob. A. Cornford, 1st; W. Martin, 2nd; G. Hayes, 3rd; J. Broom, 4th; G. Martin, 5th; W. Harper, (conductor), 6. They then came back to Eynsford, when after partaking of tea, they attempted a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob, which unfortunately was lost when three leads from home, the bells were then lowered and the rest of the evening spent in singing and handbell playing. It is hoped that this visit will stir up the Eynsford band (most of whom can ring Grandsire and Plain Bob Doubles, and are all members of the Kent County Association) to try to ring Minor. The ringers wish through the "THE BELL NEWS," to thank the vicars of Eynsford and Shoreham for granting permission to ring, and also to the ringers for having everything in readiness for them.

THE HEREFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

The First Annual Festival will be held at Ross on Monday, July 23rd. Morning Service at the parish church at 11 a.m., when the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Canon Musgrave, of Hereford Cathedral. The offertory will be devoted to the funds of the Guild. Dinner at the "George" Hotel at one o'clock, tickets two shillings each; business meeting immediately after. All members and friends who are interested in the Guild, are invited to attend. The Great Western Railway Company will convey ringers to Ross and back at a fare and a quarter, provided that the party is not less than ten. Ringing will take place during the afternoon at Ross (eight bells), Foy (six bells), and Weston (six bells).

Colwall Rectory, Malvern.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"I toll the funeral knell,
I ring the festal day,
I mark the fleeting hours,
And chime the Church to pray."

A few weeks ago, I suggested that, as the annual "close season" for peal ringing was once more commencing, we might profitably turn our attention to various other matters in connection with the Exercise, thereby utilising with good results the time that is at our disposal. In response to this I have had the pleasure of receiving an interesting letter from a gentleman who holds a responsible position in one of the greatest and most active of our County Associations, on a subject which he thinks "has hitherto totally escaped the minds of the clergy as well as ringers." This subject is—Prayers in the belfry. My friend (who, for convenience sake, I will call Mr. X.) states his case so ably and intelligently that, after very careful perusal of his letter, I feel I cannot do better, in the first instance, than quote his own observations. He says—"I think there are very few belfries in England from which a prayer ever ascends to the Throne of Grace; and I venture to here suggest that were a clergyman of a church to visit the belfry of his church (say once on a Sunday) and there with the ringers assembled to offer up a prayer, his mission would not be in vain, as I maintain that it would serve to remind the—alas! too often careless—ringers of the sacredness of the place in which they are met; and furthermore it would perhaps induce them to stay and take part in the services of the church in which they are officers, instead of, as now, all leaving the church tower as soon as ringing has ceased." We are often, at our meetings, told of the duties which the ringer owes to the church, and the responsibilities of his position as an officer, but we seldom hear mention made of the duties which the parson owes to his ringers. I am glad, therefore, that Mr. X. has had the courage to call attention to this piece of remissness on the part of the clergy. It is an old and truthful saying that "a house-going parson makes a church-going people;" it may with equal truth and force be also said that—"a belfry-visiting parson will make church-going ringers." Many of our faithful parish priests think naught of walking long distances to the outskirts of their parishes, in all sorts of weather, to take part in little cottage meetings for prayer and praise; which meetings are, I doubt not, looked forward to by the participants with pleasurable feelings. Is it then unreasonable to ask that the clergyman of the parish should—as Mr. X. proposes—pay a visit to his ringers once a week in their own portion of the church, and by that means not only be carrying on his work of directing "all sorts and conditions of men" heavenward, but also be shewing to his ringers that he is desirous of encouraging them in their work. His weekly presence in the belfry would also have another good effect: that of animating his band with feelings of devotion both to their art and church. Would not this latter point gained be of itself a good return for the short time which this act of duty on the part of the clergyman would entail?

But I must not linger too long on this. Mr. X. remarks—"I myself have taken a part in the services of our church as a chorister previous to entering the campanological world, and before we entered the church proper, a short service was held in the vestry in which we all took part, and which was conducted by the vicar. Now I maintain that we as ringers play quite as prominent a part in the church as the choirmen. This being so, why should not some such service be held with the ringers in the belfry? Why should not prayer and praise ascend from the tower of the church as well as the chancel?" These are pertinent queries, which so fully cover the subject that there is really nothing left necessary for me to add. While fully agreeing with Mr. X., I think I may now confidently leave this question with the Exercise, for consideration; and therefore reserve any further remarks until I learn the opinions of our brethren on the matter.

As might have been confidently anticipated, the visit of our friends from Sheffield, Liverpool, and Birmingham, to the Isle of Man has been a successful one from a ringing point of view, in spite of unavoidable failures and other "drawbacks." While endorsing your remarks, Mr. Editor, on this visit, I do think that good results will follow, especially if all our brethren who visit that place would make it a point, while on the little island, of interesting themselves in the ringing matters there, and of giving what assistance they can in fostering and encouraging any efforts in the way of change-ringing. They will be able to find many ways of doing this both with the clergy and the ringers there; and if they will but do this we may safely hope to read before long of the Exercise gaining a firm footing, and of peals having been accomplished by the natives of that interesting little spot.

Mr. Attree's monthly analysis comes rather later than usual this time; no doubt the holiday season will have had something to do with it. But whenever it does come, it is very welcome, from more than a mere statistical point of view. I do not propose offering any remarks upon it now, but would rather leave such till later on in the year. At the same time, however, I would earnestly commend it to the consideration of the Exercise, feeling sure that while it will be gratifying to those who are at "the top of the tree," it will encourage those who are lower down the list to make an effort in an upward direction.

Well done, ye men of Capel! Undeterred by previous failure, you have again handled the ropes, and this time with success. This is just what I like to see: men whom reverses only cause to make them more ardent to surmount difficulties and bring their efforts to a successful issue. Their peal is all the more creditable from the fact of its being composed of such musical and intricate methods. They evidently desired quality as well as quantity, and thus their achievement will be all the more pleasing to them and satisfactory to us.

I cannot help noticing the letter of "Juvenis" on the Tue Brook peal, as I had some thoughts of referring to it myself at the time. But I scarcely agree with him in his conclusions, still less do I coincide with him in his analogy between that peal and the one which caused so much wrangling in connection with the St. James' Society, as the circumstances were so much different. A peal of Triples is, as we all know, on seven bells, the tenor is introduced, like the big drum in a brass band, to give effect; but it is not in any way essential so far as the composition of the peal is concerned. If the peal is rung, cover or no cover, I maintain that the seven men who thus ring it are properly entitled to count it as having been properly accomplished. Of course, I admit that the tenor man could not fairly count it as one to his credit when he did not perform his duties to the full, and in the case of the Tue Brook peal, the foot note appended to the report seemed to show that he and the company with which he rung had no intention of doing anything of the kind. All this seemed to me so fair and straightforward that there was no need for further comment. To my mind, the seven men who rung the composition are without doubt entitled to claim the peal, and so long as the tenor ringer (who through no fault of his own did not cover the whole of the changes) does not profess to count it in his favour, I do not see what reasonable ground of complaint there can be in the case.

Before concluding, I feel constrained to remark upon the sorrowful news received from Maryborough, in connection with the ring so recently opened there. But seven weeks after the opening of these bells, which event was accompanied by such interesting and hopeful features, the generous donor has been suddenly called to his rest. And not only that, but the vessel which conveyed them, after leaving the place, has been no more heard of, it being supposed that she has foundered. Their muffled tones on the 19th of May would therefore resound with double significance. Mr. Aldridge had certainly passed his "three score and ten," and while his decease, sad though it might be if only from its very suddenness, is deplorable, it is earnestly to be hoped that the fears with regard to the good ship and its crew will prove to have been unfounded, and that we may hear afterwards of its arrival at some port in safety.
