MR. JOHN DAY, OF BIRMINGHAM.

[Vide Portrait.]

THE subject of our present illustration, MR. JOHN DAY, was born at Birmingham on November 6th, 1825, and is one of a remaining few who connect by personal recollection the present race of ringers with a justly celebrated one now passed away.

His father and father's elder brother Samuel were to some extent ringers, and in the last century, a relative of his grandfather—one Benjamin Taylor—is known to have taken part in a peal of 10,080 Bob Major, rung it is believed at Halesowen, Worcestershire.

A great part of his earlier childhood was spent at the home of his paternal grandfather, where his uncle Thomas—the celebrated Treble Bob composer—was in the habit of tapping changes (at which he was an expert) on a peal of handbells mounted in a frame, and so great was the appreciative delight of the child, that his uncle taught him even in these early days to tap a few simple tunes.

In 1837 Mr. DAY was at school in the pretty village of Solihull, Warwickshire, where there is a ring of eight, and on May 24th in that year, the birthday of Her Majesty—then Princess Victoria—there was ringing nearly all day, and our hero spent most of his holiday in the belfry, and from that event dates his ardent desire to know more of the Art, which led to the success he achieved in after life.

At that time however all appeals to his uncle for advice and assistance in the matter were evaded, and in the Birmingham belfries—as elsewhere—there was then no encouragement for lads.

So matters went on till 1844, when by the merest accident an acquaintance was formed with “the baker,”—the late W. CHATTELL—who agreed to give instruction on the understanding that assistance was given in return in the chiming for services at St. Philip's church, where he was then tower-keeper—and a good one too.

The band of youths then under instruction was the first CHATTELL ever took in hand, and of that band there only now remain besides Mr. DAY—Messrs. PERKS and HAYWOOD.

It need scarcely be said that CHATTELL and THOMAS DAY were great friends, and perhaps this fact told in favour of the nephew, but he always acknowledges that from CHATTELL he learned nearly all he knows from the mastery of a single bell to the art of conducting a peal.

Any of our readers who knew CHATTELL (and there must be some), would understand what a rough time of it our tyro had, and what hard knocks he had to put up with, but he persevered so much that on December 4th, 1844, he rang his first peal, 5126 Stedman Caters, and in the February following, 6000 Treble Bob Royal, in which T. DAY took part, both at St. Philip's.

Peals were not then scored so rapidly as in the present day, nor was there at that time any ringing paper to stimulate the healthy rivalry which now exists, besides which there was then a lack of the unity and good feeling which ought always to characterise ringers, so that another peal was not obtained until 1847, when by the kindness of his old and esteemed friend, Mr. JOHNSON, his first peal of Stedman Triples was rung at St. John's Deritend, and in July 1849 he called his first peal of Grandsire Triples at Aston. About this time frequent journeys were made with CHATTELL to assist the West Bromwich Society, with Mr. S. MARSH, in several of the peals rung on the ten bells at Christ Church, and later on in the only two peals ever rung on the twelve bells in that tower.

From various causes the relations between the ringers of Birmingham were at that time of a character not at all likely to promote the progress of the art. There were two companies in the town, neither of which could ring a ten-bell peal without the assistance of the other. As a fact the St. Philip's company never did ring such a peal without assistance. This unsatisfactory state continued till about the year 1860, when Mr. DAY in conjunction with Mr. HENRY JOHNSON and a few others, reorganised the St. Martin's Youths.

Although the bells at St. Martin's were then in a very bad state, two peals of Stedman Cinques were rung, one in 1863—muffled peal for that much-respected gentleman and excellent ringer, Mr. J. Hopkins—being the last under the old conditions.

This leads to what may perhaps be considered the most useful part of Mr. DAY's ringing career, a slight sketch of which may serve as an encouraging example.

Towards the close of the year 1868, while ringing for a church parade service of the First Battalion of the Warwickshire Rifle Volunteers, the clapper of the 5th bell came out, and unfortunately broke the bell. This was always considered the best in the peal—next to the tenor—and its fracture was looked upon as a calamity. This disaster was followed in a few weeks, at the next public ringing, by the gudgeons of the 11th giving way, when the bell fell into its pit mouth upwards. Then ensued a crisis in the history of the bells, and of the Society of St. Martin's Youths.

The bells were not missed much from a ringing point, as there were still the ten at Aston to fall back on, but St. Martin's was the ringing centre, and it was determined to continue the weekly meetings in the belfry for the purpose of keeping the Society together, and of being ready to take advantage of anything that might occur in regard to the bells. By and bye enquiries were made as to what was to be done to set them going again, and Mr. DAY wrote an article to each of the Birmingham papers, describing the state of the frame and fittings, and shewing that tinkering would be useless and throwing money away. This led to a meeting held in St. Martin's Mission Room, at which he attended on behalf of the ringers, and after explaining to the company present what was in his opinion necessary to be done, a restoration committee was formed—on which he was elected—and it was determined, if sufficient money could be raised, to re-cast the 4th and 5th, and to have an entirely new frame, and new fittings, except wheels, which were new in 1858. Eight bells were to be on the lower frame, and four on an upper frame, which was to be entirely independent of the lower.

Here a brief account of this celebrated peal for some forty-five years previously will throw some light on these resolutions, and be generally interesting to the reader.

When the bells were first hung in 1758 as a peal of ten, eight bells were on a level, and two were hoisted; and afterwards when augmented to twelve the additional bells were of course also hoisted. Old ringers of Mr. DAY's early years always spoke of the bells as then going well, but it would appear that after ringing the historical peals in the year 1820 a craze set in to have the bells rehung. In recent years there had been two openings of rings of ten—at Aston and Dudley—and C. Oliver, sen., who had done the work, as foreman to Messrs. Mears, in an excellent manner, asserted that he could hang all twelve bells at St. Martin's on a level, and effect other great improvements. This dictum found an only too willing ear with some having influence, who were almost ready for anything, providing they could have an opening like their neighbours. Hence it was contrived that the bells were rehung in 1825, when Oliver found that scheme as he might, he could only find room for ten on the level, and even then by having the timbers more scanty than the weight of metal warranted.

However this might shew the skill of the workman in contrivance, it was very bad for the go of the bells, which was never good for long together, in fact, so far as memory serves, there was always something the matter. From 1825 to 1844 only two peals were rung on the twelve, and then they were in such a bad state that a sum of between £40 and £50, raised by the society of ringers and their friends, was expended in another so-called rehanging. C. Oliver, jun., did this work, but was hardly clear away from the town when the 11th failed. It was then rehung by one of the ringers—T. Hobday—who rang it through the 7000 Stedman Cinques in 1848. Three other peals were then rung, and then came another collapse.

In 1854 the spire was rebuilt, when things became so intolerably bad that the bells were seldom heard. In the spring of 1858, Her Majesty the Queen was induced to visit Birmingham, to open the Park at Aston. Here at last was the long-looked for opportunity. On an appeal to the public, funds poured in so fast that an entirely new peal might probably have been had for the asking. The representative of a celebrated firm being questioned as to the state of the frame, stated that it would be impossible to make a better one, and was unfortunately able to persuade the churchwardens that only a little tinkering was necessary, and so this—literally golden—opportunity was lost.

(OF BIRMINGHAM)

SUPPLEMENT TO "THE BELL NEWS."

The work was such a fluke this time, that on the day of Her Majesty's visit the bells were only rung with the greatest difficulty.

Great dissatisfaction was of course felt, and after much unpleasantness a new frame was made for the small bells, but was so constructed that the timber had to be cut away to the utmost they could allow, and even then, as the second and fourth bells could not swing clear, they were chipped away at the skirt, and their tone spoiled—the fourth being utterly ruined.

Now to resume the history of Mr. DAY's connection with these bells after their failure in 1868. A subscription, to which the society of ringers paid the first contribution, was opened, and money came in freely. Three firms tendered for the work, viz., Messrs. Taylor, Warner, and a local firm—Blews and Son, and although the ringers were anxious that one of the first two should be employed, yet, after what might be called some in and out running, the local firm was selected. MR. DAY was appointed to superintend the work on behalf of the Committee, and with the assistance of his friend MR. JOHNSON, expended a lot of painstaking care in what ultimately proved a very onerous and thankless office.

MR. A. CRESSER, who had had some experience under the late Mr. H. Boswell, being then foreman for Messrs. Blews, started on the work in the autumn of 1869, and on Christmas Eve in that year the bells were rung for the first time on their third new frame. The opening was not very satisfactory, but alterations were made from time to time, and at Easter in the following year the bells were thought to be pealable. Such pleasant idea was of very short duration, for a period of very dry weather with Easterly winds set in, when the eleventh (always a weak place), began its tricks, and one by one the bells went off their going, so that in a month's time they were unringable.

This was very disheartening, but hope was never lost; the weekly meetings were continued in the belfry, the bells were occasionally raised and rung in rounds, and handbell practice indulged in, until in 1872-3 it was decided to finish the restoration of the church, which had been in abeyance for several years. The bells were now stopped altogether until early in 1875, when the church being nearly completed, Messrs. DAY and JOHNSON waited on Messrs. Blews, and stated what the firm, in their consideration, ought to do. They were met by Messrs. Blews in a very liberal spirit; the work was thoroughly overhauled, and the tenor entirely rehung, with the result of a remarkable improvement in the "go" of the bells. This celebrated ring still continues in good ringing order, and since 1875 there have been about twenty peals rung upon them, whereas previously in the period from 1825 to 1868 only nine peals were rung on the twelve bells.

Starting with the biography of a ringer and introducing the history of a celebrated ring of bells might under some circumstances be considered an unpardonable digression, but in this case our readers cannot fail to observe the intimate connection between the two, and the interesting facts here related will, we are sure, be appreciated as fraught with interest and example.

In 1877, through an unpleasant misunderstanding, MR. DAY severed his connection with the St. Martin's Youths, of which society he had been president since 1860, although he never lost touch with his old friends. Later on, in 1887, he joined the Holt Society of Aston, and as a member of that Society became instrumental in forming the Guild which has taken the name of St. Martin's, and embraces in one body the St. Martin's Youths and the members of the Holt Society of Aston.

Besides holding office in the St. Martin's Guild, MR. DAY is also a member of the Midland Counties' Association.

MR. DAY has no absolute record of the number of peals in which he has taken part, but with the assistance of his friend MR. J. PERKS, a total of sixty-three (which is probably not far short of the actual number), can be made up as follows:

Grandsire Triples	Rang 8	Conducted 1
" Caters	" 6	" 1
" Cinques	" 1	"
Treble Bob Major	" 8	" 4
" " Royal	" 10	" 7
" " Maximus	" 1	"
Stedman Triples	" 5	"

Stedman Caters	Rang 20	Conducted 8
" Cinques	" 2	"
Plain Bob Major	" 2	"
Total	63	21

Though very fond of conducting, MR. DAY could never satisfy himself at it, and readily gave way on seeing the splendid aptitude and ability of his friend PERKS, who is now so worthily succeeded by Mr. H. BASTABLE.

ENGLISH BELFRIES AND CHANGE-RINGING.

The following is taken from The Guardian of last week. Our readers will hail this contribution to the question by the worthy Hon. Secretary of the Essex Association:

"In the February number of the English Illustrated Magazine appears an article on 'Bells and Belfries,' written by the Rev. H. R. Haweis, and beautifully illustrated with views of some of the great Belgian towers. 'Bells and Belfries in Belgium' would have been a more strictly accurate heading, for, though the writer gives us many interesting scraps of bell-lore and some decidedly original reflections upon bell-music in general, his main purpose is to advocate the introduction into England of Belgium 'carillons' and 'carillonneurs,' to displace what he contemptuously designates as 'the present purgatorial system of change-ringing.' I have nothing to say against carillons, though I can imagine that the 'bell-broken silence' of night at Mechlin, which enraptured him, might seem, to less musical enthusiasts desirous of a good night's rest, almost 'purgatorial' while not even he, I presume, would deny that you cannot get the full tone and harmony from bells unless they are struck properly while in motion by their own clappers, as when we ring them, instead of being merely tapped by hammers on the outside, as when chimed by clock machinery or by the carillonneur seated at a keyboard. Carillon music, especially in Belgium, is beautiful in its way, and might no doubt be better known in England than it is. But before we follow Mr. Haweis's advice to get rid of our ringers, with their ropes and wheels, and substitute the carillonneur, with his keyboard and chimes, let our present 'purgatorial system' say a word in its defence. Audi alteram partem, M. le Carillonneur!

In the first place, ringing, as distinguished from chiming, church bells is distinctively English, and enjoys an almost prescriptive right as the national custom. To be rung, a bell is swung gradually backwards and forwards, rising higher and higher each time until it 'sets' mouth uppermost, being prevented from swinging over by the 'stay,' or piece of wood projecting from the wooden stock to which the bell is fastened. Then at each pull of the rope the bell swings completely round, rising again each time to its upright position, and swinging back in the reverse direction at the next pull, the clapper striking its side each time that it rises, and bringing out the full sound of the bell. In 'chiming' the bell hangs mouth downwards, and is moved gently backwards and forwards so as just to allow the clapper to touch it; or sometimes the clapper alone is pulled while the bell remains stationary—a process which saves trouble, but is very likely to crack the bell. The 'chiming apparatus' now frequently used in church towers consists of small hammers which strike the bells on the outside, being connected either with the machinery of a clock or with a keyboard or strings worked by hand, and is thus akin in principle, to, though less elaborate than, the Belgian carillons described by Mr. Haweis. A chiming apparatus can be worked by one man; and in ordinary chiming one man can manage two or three bells. But in ringing one man is required for each bell, and the amount of skill and practice required is much greater than for either method of chiming, either of which is soon acquired, and then becomes almost mechanical. True, the Belgian carillonneur, seated at his keyboard, and performing upon fifty or sixty bells of all sizes, has almost as much scope for skilled execution as an organist upon his organ. But in ninety-nine out of a hundred English belfries the practical question is how to make the best use of a ring of five, six, eight, or ten large bells, hung in the usual way for ringing; how best to use these for the services of God, in Whose house they hang, as well as for the delight of men.

"Now chiming, whether by hand or machinery, confessedly fails to bring out all the sound of which bells are capable, and which they are intended to give forth. If bells are never properly rung from the time they first hang in a tower till they perish in its ruins, we may well say, with the 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table,' lamenting over the 'Silent Sisters'—

"Alas for those who never sing,
But die with all their music in them!"

"Even Mr. Haweis's Belgian bell—grandiloquently described as 'a vast cauldron of potential sound,' in which 'seem to sleep all wails of pain and all shouts of joy'—was evidently intended to be rung, not merely tapped with hammers from the outside; for (as the illustration shows) it is furnished with 'cannons' by which it can be attached to a stock, and with a clapper that can strike it properly inside upon the 'sound-bow.' And, vaguely eloquent as is his description of its potentialities of sound in his study, for his ears alone, it would, I venture to think, fulfil its purpose better as one of a peal in some windy tower, flinging out their melodies far and wide as they swing in bewildering yet orderly changes, obedient to the steady heads and skilful hands of a band of good ringers below. One great charm indeed of bell music (I call it so, pace Mr. Haweis) as we hear it in England is its far-reaching power. Borne upon the air across a wide stretch of fields or waters, there is something soothing and homelike in the sound of bells, a sound which has caught the ear and struck the fancy of many an English poet. The boom of a single great bell from a cathedral tower across an expanse of land and water is admirably reflected in the perfection of Milton's verse:—

"Oft on a plot of rising ground
I hear the far-off curfew sound
Over some wide-watered shore,
Swinging slow with sullen roar."

"And the writer of a well-known hymn finds no better simile for the voice of the Saviour calling weary souls, than that it sounds—

"Far, far away, like bells at evening pealing."

"If we look to poetic feeling and impressions, it would not be hard to show that our English bell music excites them quite as much and as truly as any Belgian carillon. Mr. Haweis says dogmatically, 'Music it is not.' But a well-struck touch on a good peal of well-tuned bells is music: and any work on ringing will disprove the reckless assertion that 'your true bell-ringer does not care twopence for the sound or the tune.' The language which in his advocacy of carillons Mr. Haweis thinks fit to use about change-ringing reminds one of the old story of the solicitor's instructions to counsel for a shaky defence, 'No case; abuse plaintiff's attorney.' I do not wish to see our ringers superseded, though I have no objection to see them supplemented, by carillonners: but I will not support my contention by abuse of what I do not understand.

I have said that ringing a peal of bells requires more hands than chiming. In some cases this is a practical drawback, e.g., in small parishes where there is a chronic difficulty in getting enough ringers; and it often leads to the adoption of a chiming apparatus, not by preference, but as a pis aller, a better alternative than never hearing the bells at all or being restricted to what I have seen somewhere aptly styled 'the one bell nuisance.' But where ringers, or the material of which ringers can be made, are available, it is from every point of view worth the while of the clergy to use every effort to get together a band of ringers and encourage change-ringing. It provides a certain number of young or middle-aged men with an interest in something connected with the church, and with an occupation or amusement which demands head-work as well as physical exertion, and for which they soon find (in itself a useful lesson) that sobriety and clearness of head are absolutely necessary, in which, moreover, there is always something more to learn, and some motive for improvement. Mr. Haweis says scornfully, 'The affair is simple; it requires a little arithmetic and a strong arm—no fine musical ear, and certainly no love of music.' It can be done, I admit, by persons who are not musical; but (experto crede) the lack of a musical ear is a decided drawback, and I doubt if any one becomes a first-rate ringer without it. And 'the affair is simple' so far as this, that the actual rules of any method of change-ringing are few and easily remembered, and that no great effort of memory and no arithmetic (except being able to count) is required to apply them in practice. Nor if change-ringing could be summed up (as Mr. Haweis seems to think) in the precept, 'Take three bells, and begin 1 2 3, 1 3 2, 2 1 3, 2 3 1, 3 2 1, 3 1 2,' would either its theory or practice take much learning. 'This,' he says, 'is much simpler than writing a tune, and you can go on for ever.' How much further, I would ask, can you go with the changes on three bells, or, as mathematicians would say, with permutations of three things taken all together? It is true, again, that the six changes of which three bells are capable form part of the basis of the best and most musical method known to change-ringers—that of 'the ingenious Fabian Stedman,' as Mr. Haweis sarcastically calls him. But that method cannot properly be rung on less than seven bells; and in this form it is not quite so simple, as may be seen from the following diagram of the first thirty changes in a 'plain course' of Stedman Triples:—

"A peal in this method of 5040 changes, in no two of which are the bells in precisely the same order, can be rung in about three hours, during the whole of which time every ringer must have his eye upon the maze of moving ropes, picking out at each change those which pull next to him or which he has to follow, keeping his own bell the while under perfect control, and endeavouring to strike at precisely the right interval, while eye and ear and brain are strung to close attention. This can be done, and is done, by men of little mental culture, by means of patience, perseverance, and concentration—qualities which change-ringing certainly stimulates, and which are worth stimulating. Nor is much physical strength required, except to ring a heavy bell. Boys of thirteen or fourteen and old men of seventy-five are change-ringers, and even take part in peals; and it is no slight recommendation of the exercise that it can be continued up to an age when men have long become unfit for most forms of athletic exertion. Nor is it necessary (though of course it is an advantage) to begin young. I never touched a bell-rope myself till I was past forty; and though I feel I began too late to make a first-rate ringer, I have learnt enough to serve my purpose of keeping up the ringing in my own parish by taking part in it myself, and to provide me with healthy exercise in which I can take real pleasure now that I can no longer hold my own with the young at boating or lawn tennis or other athletic sports. I believe that the mental concentration and moderate physical exertion required by ringing are an excellent combination for promoting the mens sana in corpore sano that fits us all for our work.

"I think, too, that all, whether clergy or laity, who try to promote change-ringing, particularly in country belfries, will feel the truth of the old adage, 'If you want a thing done, do it yourself.' Country ringers need careful and patient handling. They are casual and unpunctual, easily put out, like children and imperfectly educated people generally, and with but little self-control; and if left to themselves, with no superior to take the lead, they may quarrel about the merest trifles, and a band that has been got together by the work of months or years will break up suddenly. Nor can they, however decent and well-disposed, always make a stand by themselves against bad language and bad manners, and the old abuses that in days gone by turned many a belfry into a pot-house. The presence of the clergy, their example and association, is the most powerful factor in 'belfryreform,' and the surest means of maintaining that order and harmony which are necessary if change-ringing is to flourish. And the parishioners generally might show more interest in the belfry and its doings. The bells, after all, belong to them, and are held in trust for them by the incumbent and churchwardens for the time being. It is their interest that the bells should be well, and not badly, rung; their ears which suffer from the monotony of 'rounds' and call-changes or the same hymn-tune tapped out by the chiming apparatus; their duty to encourage all efforts to use the bells in the best possible manner for the service of God and of man.

But what is 'the best possible manner' of using the bells? That is the real question at issue. Mr. Haweis says, 'Turn them into carillons, on which your organist can play Beethoven or Mozart, and your ears will no longer be vexed by 'purgatorial' systems of change-ringing.' I say, Use the bells that you have in the way in which they were meant to be used, the way in which they can be used to the best musical effect, and for the best good of those who ring them. And before you condemn change-ringing upon the ipse dixit of a transcendental philosopher, learn something about it. I do not condemn carillons, or any form of chiming apparatus. They are good in their way, and may well be used to supplement ringers; but substitutes for good change-ringing they are not, and never can be. The revival of interest in bells and belfries (which Mr. Haweis dates from the appearance of a book entitled Music and Morals, but which may have arisen independently) has already done much to improve our belfries and bells, and the status and morale of ringers, and done it, I submit, through and by the help of change-ringing. 'Deans and Chapters,' says Mr. Haweis, 'have applied to me about their bells from all parts of England.' It is good news that cathedral bodies, not always the first to bestir themselves, are waking up to their responsibilities and opportunities in connection with cathedral belfries. But I trust that they do not listen too readily to Mr. Haweis's siren tongue. A cathedral might well possess a carillon in one tower and a peal of bells in another. But having the latter, it were best to begin by using them to the best effect in the most skilful manner, and by making the cathedral a diocesan centre of good Church bell-ringing, as well as of Church music and Church life generally. In every cathedral there must be at least one Canon or Minor Canon with sufficient leisure from cathedral duties to bestow the personal interest and attention that is necessary; the funds, which are often such a difficulty for parochial belfries, ought certainly to be forthcoming; and in a cathedral city, and about the cathedral precincts, there can be no lack of men who would become proficient ringers, if only they were properly encouraged and properly recognised. If cathedral bodies lead the way, the reform of English belfries, hand in hand with the revival of English change-ringing, may make yet more rapid strides, not possibly to the satisfaction of Mr. Haweis, but to that of sensible people who think it better to develop and improve our English bells and English modes of ringing before we try to naturalise a possibly inferior imitation of the bells and belfries of Belgium.

IN connexion with the peal rung at this place a supper was held, through the kindness of the Rev. S. Staffurth, at the house of Mr. A. O. Barber, at which the ringers and their wives and a few friends enjoyed themselves, after which toast and song and games till the hour of twelve, when the National Anthem was sung, and the meeting separated, wishing many happy returns of the day to Mr. A. O. Barber.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Sweet are the remembrances of a well-spent life."

The compilation of that elaborate list of the late Henry Johnson's peals will, I do not doubt, have been a real labour of love to our friend Mr. Bastable. Neither do I doubt that the fruits of his labours will ere this have been perused with pleasure and been rewarded with (if unspoken) much commendation. It is valuable, if only as a record of our departed veteran's peal-ringing history, but there is also much in it of interest to us. The lion's share of Mr. Johnson's performances are shewn unmistakably by this return to have taken place in the tower on which he rung his first peal. This is only natural, but it is singularly appropriate that his last peal should also have been rung on the same bells. He thus ended where he begun, and now rests beneath the shadow of that tower in which it may be literally said he commenced and finished. The "thread of the narrative," therefore, is unbroken, and whatever may be the shape of the national memorial, Mr. Bastable's contribution to the pages of "THE BELL NEWS" must rank as a great tribute to the memory of him whom the Exercise will ever delight to honour.

Mr. Cocks comes down rather heavily on the only too palpable evidence of ignorance on the part of that self-elected censor of the Exercise. Although in one or two instances I must confess I felt his "exposure" to appear just a little bit strained, yet, if such were needed, he has thoroughly succeeded in his purpose. Nothing further is necessary to demonstrate the incapacity of Parson Haweis for the post to which he has exalted himself. Therefore, I think, we may safely leave him severely alone for the present. Should he indulge further in his vagaries, I fancy he will do so with a pretty fair realization of the warm reception which he will receive. If we have not yet actually attained that position which we desire, we are at any rate so situated that we have no need to stand nonsense from anyone. Should Parson Haweis have seen the pages of "THE BELL NEWS" during the past few weeks, I imagine he will himself have come to that conclusion, and this fact will of itself tend to make him hesitate before he again risks the castigation of a body now so powerful as ours. Here let us leave him.

My correspondent, whose letter I quoted from the other week, writes again. He says (which I am glad to learn) that he is satisfied with my remarks upon the whole, although he evidently has not relished my reproducing his former epistle "as it was wrote," because he "was no hand at letter writing himself." Well, as he seems to be agreeable thus, we will let that pass; I did not act in any unfriendly spirit; my object was more to let him tell his tale in his own fashion, and also to let my readers see what sort of communications I am in the habit of receiving. But what appears to have been the raison de etre of my friend's writing again is evidently the letter from "W. P." to which I referred last week. My correspondent does not attempt to conceal his satisfaction at what he styles my "first-rate remarks" about it, and hope I will "stamp on a man like him who wants to cut out such ringers as himself, who can't ring 1260's, because haven't bells to do it with." I am, I confess, rather dubious about engaging in this "stamping on" process; discretion is, as we all know, oftentimes the better part of valour; but this thing I will promise him, that I will never quietly see the zealous endeavours of our brethren ignored, treated with contempt, or ridiculed—however humble or modest those endeavours may be—particularly when I know that they who so strive are bravely and honestly trying to do their best under adverse circumstances. Set your mind at ease, my friend, "W. P." evidently wrote either without fully considering the question, or else without experience to guide him; and probably will not venture again to rush into print with such impracticable notions.

Mr. Henry Hopkins has certainly "let loose the dogs of war" by his letter on the peal of Grandsire Triples at Ealing. Not having heard the peal myself, or even met any one since who listened to it, I will not presume to express an opinion as to its merits, truth, or otherwise; but I cannot help remarking (which thought struck me on reading the letter), that it would have been much more advisable on his part if he had refrained from so strongly commenting on a performance with no better grounds than mere hearsay evidence. The result is that he has got pretty considerably sat upon, and no wonder. If Mr. Ilsley had valid grounds of objection to the peal being scored, why did he not himself raise the question, instead of hanging back, as he evidently has done, and leaving it to someone else to fire the first shot manufactured by him? I will yield to no man in my contention for the truth of peals recorded, but if any objection is taken to such, I say let it be done by someone who actually has heard the performance, and thus can speak with some amount of authority; but certainly, had I taken part in the peal in question, should object to strictures being passed by anybody who had no more grounds than what was said in conversation with someone else. It is bad policy, my friend Hopkins, and if you are wise you will in future "let your own ears be your own judge," and if any one you come across has aught to say on a performance—doubtful or otherwise—let him fight his own battle. But if Mr. Hopkins has faithfully reproduced the opinions of Mr. Ilsley, and the latter does not, after what has transpired, come out in defence of his champion, I wouldn't give much for his pluck, or even sense of honour.

I observe that the coming Easter Week is not to be without its attempted long peal. I should have been surprised if it had. Last Saturday week, our friends of Bromsgrove rang 5394 of Grandsire Caters, by way of practice for the 16,336 which they propose having a try for. I wish them good luck with all my heart; and shall be happy to congratulate them on the event of its coming off.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1890.

With this Number is commenced Volume IX. of "THE BELL NEWS." Taking into calculation the fifteen monthly numbers which preceded the present series it may safely be said that we are approaching the end of the first decade of our existence. And during that time what changes has our journal experienced, and what vicissitudes has it surmounted? The Editor is the only one remaining of those few adventurous spirits who had the temerity to establish a journal which should be solely for the Ringing Exercise. The rest have either been removed by death, or other potent circumstances.

The nine years' history of our journal is one which those who are intimately acquainted with its progress look upon with no small degree of pleasure. They claim that amid good and evil report "THE BELL NEWS" has more than fulfilled its mission; that it has been the means of promoting the Art to a very great extent; that many bells have been erected, and many persons joined our ranks through its influence. These are good reasons for its existence certainly, and we may add, for its enlarged support also.

We commence this volume under the most happy auspices. There is more work than ever before us. The Central Council of Ringers will no doubt be of value to "THE BELL NEWS," as well as to the ringing community. And on entering upon a new volume, we cannot refrain from expressing a hope that this movement will meet with more success than its distinguished author imagines.

It will be not out of place on this occasion to record our appreciation of the value of the labors of those many kind friends of this paper who have always endeavoured to enhance its fortunes by enlisting new supporters. We hope they will continue to employ every means in their power towards the same object. A greatly increased circulation is what we ardently desire.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE ATTEMPT FOR LONG PEAL AT ST. MICHAEL'S, CORNHILL.

SIR,—I cannot let the accusations against the band that took part in this unfortunate attempt pass without a word. Your correspondent does not inform the Exercise that when we were five courses from home, he gasped "How much more, Mr. Pettit?" the reply was "Four courses;" we had five to ring with home course. Your correspondent does not state that he rang the roth and ought to have made the bob and failed to do so, hence the break down, and when we stopped he almost fell off the box. Yet he did his utmost to save the peal, everybody was wrong bar one, that one being himself. A few words did take place with five or six, which parted all right. The attack on our esteemed conductor who rang without a mistake is unjustifiable. The accusations against the rest of the band are a fabrication of falsehoods, 152, Beresford Street, Walworth.

EDWIN GIBBS.

SIR,—I really cannot see what good can come from a discussion of the above question in the columns of "THE BELL NEWS." I think the space used might be put to a better purpose. However, Mr. Newman wrote a letter last week in which he states that he hears I have tried to settle the blame on his shoulders for losing the above peal; I will say at once that I do not blame anyone, because I believe that the whole of the band were most anxious to ring the peal, or we should not have rung so long as we did, and I think it a bit of hard luck for us all that we did not complete our task. Still, I think if this question of how we got out must be talked about, or if it is necessary to write about it, the truth should be told. This I am sure Mr. Newman has not done, and that must be my excuse for asking you to permit me to state how the peal came to grief. The first trip took place with the two bells dodging in 4-5, this is admitted by the ringers of those bells—it occurred at a most unfortunate time, being just when the roth and the 11th were called to make the bobs to bring the bells round. Mr. Newman, who was ringing the roth, did not appear for the moment to realize that he had to make the first bob, and more than one called out—"Make it, roth." Then followed an argument with the roth and 11th about the dodging; these mistakes occurring almost at the same time seemed to drive us all of a heap, and although we had a struggle we could not get out of the muddle. Mr. Newman knows this is my version of the affair, for I told him so one night when we were going home together a few weeks ago. There is another mistake in Mr. Newman's letter I will mention: he says "the 2nd wanted to go slow instead of quick." Now the fact is Mr. Springall, who was ringing the 2nd, said to me "I am a quick bell;" I answered: "Yes." With regard to the charge he makes against me of not leaving the slow work properly, that I deny, and look upon it as a bit of retaliation on his part.

JAMES PETTIT.

THE HEREFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Monday, March 17th, an adjourned committee meeting of this Guild was held in the College Hall, Hereford, when the report for 1889 was presented by the honorary secretary. There were present:—The Revs. Canon Musgrave (Chairman), G. M. Custance, Colwall (Hon. Sec.), Hon. W. P. S. Stanhope (Holme Lacy), and A. C. Lee (Lugwardine); and Messrs. T. Phillips (Foy), J. Davis (Cathedral), and J. Davis (All Saints, Hereford), the head ringers of those towers, and Mr. W. H. Hebb (Ross) honorary treasurer.

It was proposed and carried, that Mr. J. G. Buchanan (Clun), and Mr. Wall (Ross) be elected representatives of the Guild on the National Central Council of Change Ringers.

A resolution was passed asking the Bishop of the Diocese to kindly impress upon the clergy the importance of paying greater attention to their respective bells, belfries, and ringers.

About £5 or £6 was generously made up by the members present towards the deficiency of over £20 in the financial statement of accounts. It was resolved to increase the probationary subscriptions to 2s. 6d. in the future, and the hon. membership to 10s. a year. This was adopted after much discussion, and the want of more support in many parishes was commented upon.

The annual festival this year, it was hoped, would be held in Hereford Cathedral.

It was thought advisable to form the diocese into districts, one of which would be a Shropshire division, with its local officers.

Extra subscriptions and donations were duly acknowledged from Lady Henry Somerset, Mrs. T. Evans, Lord Boyne, Mr. W. Henry Barneby, and others, towards paying off the Guild's debt.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN BRANCH.—The usual ringing meeting of this branch was held at the parish church, Prescott. About twenty ringers were present from Liverpool, St. Helen's, Huyton, Walton, and Southport, including the local company. The Rev. H. Mitchell (vicar), presided, and the curate, the Rev. — Jackson, was also present.

The rev. chairman addressed the meeting, briefly giving the Association a hearty welcome to his tower, and stating the very great pleasure it gave him to preside. It was the first of the kind he had attended, as there was no peal of bells at his previous incumbency. He asked the Secretary for a copy of the rules, and said if he found them satisfactory, he should ask the captain of his ringers to propose him either as Life Member or Honorary one at the next meeting.

It was proposed by R. Hill and seconded by J. Aspinwall, that the best thanks of this meeting be given to the vicar for presiding, and for the use of the bells, which was carried with acclamation.

The bells were kept going during the afternoon and evening till 8.30, the methods rung being Bob Major, Bob Triples, and Grandsire Triples. A 720 of Bob Minor was rung at Huyton on the return journey home.

WHO IS THE YOUNGEST RINGER?

"J. B." asks the following:—

"I should feel obliged if you or any of your readers would kindly inform me through the medium of 'THE BELL NEWS' who is the youngest known change-ringer on tower bells. We have a member of our society who at the age of eleven years rung a 6-score of Doubles, and a few weeks of his twelfth birthday, viz., on January 5th, 1890, succeeded in ringing a 720 of Grandsire Minor, which performance he repeated on the 2nd inst."

BRADFORD PARISH CHURCH.—In future all communications to this company should be addressed to MR. B. F. LAMB, 161, Caledonia Street, Bradford.

THE LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN GUILD.

ON Saturday, March 15th, a meeting of the above Guild was held at Ormskirk, at which over forty ringers were present from the following places, viz., Aughton, Crossens, Croston, Hindley, Sefton, Southport, etc., also the Rev. J. E. Woodrow (vicar of Ormskirk), the Rev. W. T. Bulpit (vicar of Crossens), and Mr. W. L. Hutton (churchwarden of Christ Church, Aughton), were present at the meeting which was held in the vestry of the parish church, at which the vicar of Ormskirk presided.

The Chairman having read over the rules, which were agreed to, heartily welcomed the ringers, and regretted that he had to leave them early, and would gladly become an honorary member of the Guild.

The Rev. W. T. Bulpit then took the chair, and said he was very glad to see a short time ago some valuable and interesting articles in the Ormskirk Advertiser on the art of bell-ringing, and he hoped that the journal would still take notice of the doings of their Guild and give all the bell news it could. What they wanted was that the clergy should take more interest in ringing and the ringers, for it would tend, as they met man and man together, to create a better and more kindly feeling of sympathy one with the other; he hoped therefore they would be able to get a goodly number of honorary members of their Guild. They wanted also the churchwardens to join them as well as the clergy, and so be interested in their work.

Mr. Hutton rose to make a few remarks to those present. As the chairman had said he had taken a great interest in church work for a great number of years, and particularly in the welfare of those associated with church work, such as choirs, bell-ringers, and so on. It was with pleasure he received an invitation to attend their meeting eighteen months ago from Mr. Martin, of Sefton, who took a very great interest in the art of ringing, for he looked upon the ringers attached to the church in the same light as the choir, their part of the work was equally as important, and he hoped they did all for the glory of God. There was no doubt the aim of their Guild was the reformation of their belfries, and they wanted it when they read of the state of their belfries of one hundred and fifty years ago and even later than that. He thanked them for electing him as Life Member of the Guild, and he promised to do all he could, through the press or otherwise, to help forward the objects of the Guild. He had a letter from Mr. Martin stating that had he been able to attend on that occasion, he intended to bring forward a subject which there was no doubt was of very great importance, and that was the formation of a provident society which would tend to unite more closely the various bands of ringers in the diocese, and would be of incalculable benefit to all concerned.

The Chairman quite agreed with the suggestion, and said it would no doubt meet with the consideration it deserved, and said he never thought he should have been drawn in to love the art of ringing so much. That it was an art was evident, for eye, ear, hand, and brain had to go together, thus educating the man and showing what talents and ability he possessed. The following members were elected on the committee, viz., Messrs. J. Prescott, G. Prescott, N. Spencer, J. W. Rimmer, J. Ashcroft, R. Holmes; also one Life Member, two Honorary Members, and twenty-one Performing Members were elected as members of the Guild, after which a hearty vote of thanks to the vicar of Ormskirk for presiding and for the use of the vestry and bells, and to the rector of Aughton for the use of Christ Church bells brought a very pleasant and successful meeting to a close.

During the course of the afternoon and evening several excellent and well-struck touches of Grandsire Triples, Bob Major and Kent Treble Bob Major was rung on the bells of Ormskirk parish church and Christ Church, Aughton, the excellent go of the bells at both places giving great satisfaction to all the ringers present.

ALLENSMORE, HEREFORDSHIRE.

The bells of Allensmore are about to be rehung and the broken tenor recast by Messrs. J. Barwell & Sons, of Birmingham. Mrs. Patshall, a resident of the parish, has generously undertaken to pay for the work (about £150). The peal is one of six bells, by Rudhalls of Gloucester, 1722, and for many years have been silent.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH, MOSSLEY.

SPECIAL SERMONS FOR BELLRINGERS.—On Sunday, March 16th, at the above parish church, the offertories were on behalf of the bellringers' fund. The preacher at the morning service was the Rev. J. Hind Farmer, curate of Millbrook. At the evening service the pulpit was occupied by the vicar, the Rev. A. Hall, M.A., who prefaced his sermon by remarking that he desired to remind the congregation that the offertories that day were to be handed over to the bellringers. It was customary to pay an annual sum of £2 for each bell, which would £16 for their church, and as the ordinary funds of the church were not available for such an object, he hoped the amount required would be made up that evening. The people of Mossley had long desired to have bells, and they thought it was only right that they should have the opportunity of showing their appreciation of the services of the ringers who gave them the music they had so much desired. The anthem was "O praise God in his holiness." The solos "Praise him on the cymbals," and "Praise him in the sound of the trumpet," were ably rendered by Miss Holden and Mr. Robert Wright. The collections amounted to the sum of £12 12s.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATIONS.

On Saturday, March 15th, Messrs. J. J. Brierley, J. Radcliffe, and J. Wood (Saddleworth), with Messrs. J. Holden, and Dicken, from Mossley, at the invitation of Mr. James Sellars, "Bull's Head" inn, journeyed to Glossop, and rang a peal with Messrs. Pye, Sellars, and Maloney, of Glossop, to commemorate the birthdays of Messrs. Pye, Sellars, and Holden. It was intended to have been a week sooner, but circumstances over-which the party had no control prevented them meeting a week sooner. After the peal, the ringers, with other ringers and friends were treated by Mr. Sellars to a first-class supper, which all greatly enjoyed. A very pleasant evening was spent, the health of Messrs. Sellars, Pye, and Holden being heartily drunk, and many a suggestion thrown out about making the meeting an annual one, one noted ringer going so far as to wish the gentlemen might have two birthdays in one year. "Success to the various Associations," to ringing generally, to "THE BELL NEWS," "Absent Friends," and thanks to Mr. Sellars for his hospitality, to the vicar, churchwardens and ringers, brought to a close one of the pleasantest amongst the many pleasant meetings of ringers.

NEW BELL CATALOGUE.—Messrs. Llewellyns and James, Bellfounders, of Bristol, have just issued their Illustrated Bell Catalogue (No. 4) of Church, Mission, and other bells. The work is quarto size, and exceedingly well got up, being printed in red and black, and illustrated with bells in various positions. The Catalogue contains "Rules for arranging Rings of Bells" of any number and weight; method of hanging bells in tower; specimen of turret bells; chiming apparatus, etc. etc., to which are added a list of places where Messrs. Llewellyns and James have erected bells, and a numerous array of testimonials they have received from those employing them.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

ARRIVAL, DEDICATION, AND OPENING OF A NEW PEAL OF BELLS AT ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL, MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.

As an event such as the above does not occur every day, I send you a fuller account, which may interest brother-strings at home. You have already been made acquainted of the magnificent gift of Mr. Thomas Dwyer Edwardes of the above peal of thirteen, tenor 31½ cwt., by Mears and Stainbank, of Whitechapel, London, and I need scarcely say their arrival was anxiously looked forward to by the ringers in Melbourne. They reached here safe and sound, and Mr. W. Cain, the chairman of the Building Committee, lost no time in getting them into the tower, which, although not completed, is built high enough for the frames to rest on, and a temporary wooden structure has been run up until such times as sufficient funds are available for the completion of the original structure, to which end every endeavour is being put forward.

Great curiosity was evinced to hear the tones of this magnificent peal, and upon our late respected Governor, Sir Henry B. Loch expressing a desire to have the pleasure of first sending forth the sound, every exertion was brought to bear to have them ringable by the day of his departure from Victoria for the Cape, viz., on Friday, November 15th, 1889, on which day they were all in their places, and ready to send forth their joyous tones for the first time.

A special service of dedication was conducted by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop, in the unfinished part of the cathedral, and which was largely attended; after which his Lordship conducted Sir Henry B. Loch to the belfry, where the ringers were assembled awaiting the ceremony. After introducing Sir Henry to the ringers, his Lordship formally handed him over to them, and he was requested to remove his coat and take the tenor rope, which he did with great alacrity. The tenor was then pulled off, and Sir Henry rang her for twelve pulls, and showed great aptitude in handling the bell, in fact he evinced a desire to continue. After he had performed his allotted duty, and on stepping down from the box he was loudly applauded for his accomplishment. The ringers then took the ropes and rang rounds, Tittums, and Whittingtons, and considering we had no opportunity of practising, handled them very fair, the striking being regular throughout. After the first round or two, his Lordship gave expression to his feelings of gratitude to his ringers for the pleasure afforded him and others in hearing the tones pealing forth, and Sir Henry expressed the pleasure it gave him to have the honour of opening this splendid peal, and would ever be remembered by him as one of the events of his long and pleasant sojourn in sunny Victoria.

Miss Loch, who was in attendance, was then presented with a handsome floral bell by the daughter of our Master, Mr. John Guest, in remembrance of the occasion, which was suitably acknowledged.

Permission being granted for an afternoon's ringing we gladly availed ourselves of the opportunity of more thoroughly testing the bells. One and all are pleased with them generally, and all admit the tones are very musical, but there appears something sharp in the two trebles in ringing the twelve. Possibly our auricular organs have not thoroughly got accustomed to the number of bells, and another matter which would greatly militate against them being heard to full advantage is the fact of the present temporary covering being so low and thus preventing the sounds from getting away clearly, and also the fact that the bells are really below the level of the roof of the nave of the cathedral, which matter is having the serious consideration of the building committee to endeavour to raise the bells some twenty feet, a result heartily desired by all interested. Allowing collectively for all these matters, we shall be pardoned for reserving our opinions and thus only briefly eulogising their merits. The back eight and ten are really a fine ring, and my brother-ringers will have no cause now to entertain any thoughts of jealousy against the possessions of ringers in other parts of the Colonies. The "go" of them is generally good, but the intense heat of this summer, 100 in the shade, for days together, has subjected the frames and timbers to a most severe test, and numerous screwings up resulting. Our practices have been limited so far, but every opportunity has been taken; we have had several 504's on the back and front eights with good results in striking. Our regular practices commence this month, so I shall be able to furnish you with more details later on. We rang a course of Grandsire Caters on the back ten for the first time on February 8th, which small performance I note, as perhaps it is the first out of Great Britain. C. Crang, 3; T. Wilkinson, 2; J. Heather, 3; T. B. Hall, 4; J. Beechey, 3; A. Baines, 6; J. Murray, 7; J. Guest, 8; H. Adams, 9; W. Pearson, 10.

I must here mention the tenor bell bears the inscription:—"Gloria in Excelsis Deo, Donator John Dyer Edwardes," and it is scarcely needful to record with what feelings of appreciation and gratitude the ringers in the colonies entertain toward that gentleman for his noble gift, and I doubt if the care and attention devoted by St. Paul's Cathedral authorities to the hanging of the bells and the general fitting up of the belfry has been equalled in any tower at home, for they have truly recognised the importance of this magnificent accession to the properties of the Cathedral, and with such encouragement it will be the ringers' own faults if they do not do such justice to the bells that they deserve. The dedication of the bells at St. Paul's being so hurried and the time for ringing so limited, it was deemed nothing but right that the ringers should hold a Festival to celebrate such an important event as the opening of so fine a peal of bells merited. It was finally decided to hold the same on New Year's Day, 1890, invitations being sent to all known ringers and societies in the colonies, in response to which we had representatives from Tasmania, Ballarat, Geelong; but I am sorry to say Sydney, New South Wales, was conspicuous by their absence, a result we hardly anticipated after such a pleasant week spent amongst our Sydney brethren at Christmas, 1888. The Tasmanian band from Hobart comprised the following members: Messrs. E. J. Rogers (Master), T. Milsom, R. D. Tregear, H. L. D'Emsden, and A. F. Johnson, who spent a week in Melbourne, and to their credit did a full share of ringing during their stay, and although the extent of their capabilities as change-ringers was a plain course of Grandsire Doubles, their observations of our ringing drew from them the remark that stimulations on their part would not be wanting to make Victoria look to her laurels—and they having a peal of eight at Holy Trinity, Hobart, there is no law to prevent them surpassing the deeds of Victorian ringers. I shall be heartily sorry if they have the misfortune to require the length of time, and meet with the same disappointments as their brother-strings have in this colony.

Our old friend, Mr. Kilburn, with eight members from Ballarat, were as usual to the fore, and did full justice to the opportunities afforded them of ringing on a peal which they admitted was superior to their far-famed peal at Ballarat.

Mr. J. Nolan and his band from St. Patrick's Cathedral (R.C.), Melbourne, also took part in the festival.

To give you brief details of the day's performance: The old year was rung out and the new year in at midnight; and our opening festival day ushered in with a merry peal, the appearance of early morn denoted hot weather, and hot it was truly—a little under 100 in the shade all day. Ringing commenced at 9.0 a.m., and was kept up by the different bands until 6.0 p.m., with two intervals for refreshments at 11.0 and 3 o'clock, provided and laid out in the club of Works Pattern Room, fitted up for the occasion. The numerical strength of ringers present was between fifty and sixty, and all entered into the spirit of the day's work with great zest, despite the opposing element of heat they experienced, and we found our arrangements in the above-mentioned pattern room met with no little attention and silent approbation.

Large numbers of visitors attended throughout the day, thus rather crowding the belfry, so no attempts were made for a long touch; a 504 and 360 by the Victorian society on the back eight represents the change-ringing for the day. At 6.0 p.m., the bells being lowered, we all adjourned till 7.30 p.m. (the interval in most cases being spent under the shower bath), when at the Vienna Cafe, Collins Street, we met for dinner, the Bishop of Melbourne presiding. There were present the Revs. C. T. Perks, A. C. Kellaway, Tracy Chapman, the Hon. G. Coppin, M.L.C., A. L. Tucker, Esq., M.L.A., W. Cain, Esq., H. Henty, Esq., and J. Freeman, Esq., besides ringers numbering over seventy. The repast having received full justice, the toasts followed. "The Queen" having been duly honoured, the Hon.

Geo. Coppin proposed "The Bishop and Clergy." He said it might seem strange that he should propose the toast, but the pulpit and the stage often worked in the same direction—the direction that tended to the mental elevation of the people. He was the first to bring bellringing into notice in this colony, as fifty years ago he had trained a number of Lancashire youths to play on the handbells, and after they had travelled with considerable success in America, they came to this colony. He always took great interest in bell ringing, and they could command his support.

His Lordship in responding, acknowledged the justice of the proposer's remarks, and commented upon the difficulties encountered by his Clergy in attaining the desired effect, not so much in Melbourne, but in the country districts where parishes were so scattered. In reference to the subject chiefly before him to-night, he said there was no doubt that from the earliest times the clergy of the Church of England had been heartily interested in bells and bellringing, and perhaps more particularly in bellringers. During the last thirty or forty years bellringers had been recognised far more generally and far more generously as being part of the machinery of every well-ordered church than they were in times gone by. They all of them recognised the fact that the belfry was a part of the church, that bellringers were officials of the church, and that upon their character, sobriety, temper, and good conduct depended in a measure the reputation of the church to which they belonged. No one who was present at the dedication of the noble peal of bells in St. Paul's a few weeks ago, and listened to the prayers that were offered, could fail to see how bells mingled themselves with all the greatest and most important events of life from the cradle to the grave, and therefore it was with the greatest pleasure that he accepted the post they were good enough to offer him of president of the Victorian Society of Bellringers. How delightful the associations of bells were. They called up old associations which very often would otherwise have been forgotten long ago, and raised aspirations for all that was good, true and right. Our poets had always celebrated bells. Some of the most beautiful things that poets had ever written had been written about bells. He would like before he sat down to allude to the very pleasing fact that they had representatives that night, not only of Victorian bellringers, but of Ballarat and Tasmania; and he only wished they had more representatives from New South Wales and the other colonies. Such gatherings as that tended in a measure to bring about what, as patriotic citizens, they desired to witness—Australian federation. Everything that tended to gather together representatives of all departments of honest life and work and thought in the colonies, tended to prepare a way for that happy consummation which was so devoutly to be wished. He was persuaded that the noble art of bellringing would receive a great impetus from that gathering. They rejoiced at the success attending the peal at St. James's Cathedral, and he was sure the St. James's people were glad to see another peal connected with St. Paul's. All really enthusiastic bellringers would rejoice to have peals multiplied. At present they could count on one hand the number of peals in Victoria; but what had been done at St. Paul's would tend to make all citizens feel that bellringing was a most noble and interesting calling. He hoped the result would be a great increase in the membership of the Victorian association, and that in Melbourne would be founded a school of bellringers.

Mr. A. L. Tucker, M.L.A., proposed "The Donor of the Bells, Mr. Thomas Dyer Edwardes." He said he understood the donor of the bells was a native of Victoria, and he (Mr. Tucker) was glad to take the responsibility of having recommended the Government to remit the duties on a gift so graciously sent to the people of Victoria.

Mr. Henty responded, and expressed his regret that the donor was not present to hear the very hearty manner in which the toast had been honoured, and see the interest and appreciation with which his gift had met with by the ringers throughout the Colonies and all interested. Appertaining to bells and bellringing he was most eloquent, and his overflowing wit kept the company in convulsions.

In response to the "Building Committee," Mr. W. Cain, in the course of his remarks, expressed an opinion that the bells would be heard to far greater advantage if they could be raised some few feet higher, and that the committee had it under consideration to ascertain if the matter was feasible.

"The Visitors," "The Victorian Society," and several toasts followed, and during the intervals selections on the handbells were rendered by the Anglo-Australian Handbell Ringers as follows: "Chiming Bells," "Vesper Hymn," "Banks and Braes," and by the Victorian Society of Bellringers, as follows: "Ring the Joy Bells," "Ash Grove," "Schottische Antiqui," "God Save the Queen," which ended a most enjoyable evening, whilst hopes were freely expressed that many more such unions were in store for all.

In reference to the long coveted peal of 5040, I am sorry to again inform you we have met with disappointment, and our various attempts proving unsuccessful, the following details will show our endeavours have been energetic.

Taking advantage of the presence in Melbourne of some of our best ringers, we started for Holt's peal at St. James' Cathedral on the evening of October 15th as follows: C. Crang, 1; W. Shenton, 2; J. Heather, 3; J. Beechey, 4; J. Guest (conductor), 5; J. Murray, 6; H. Adams, 7. W. Pearson, 8; but only rang 1500 changes, the cause of failure being over anxiety of one member in calling the conductor's attention that he had missed a bob, which was not the fact, so being a little mixed, he called "stand." The next essay was in the afternoon of October 19th, and everything went on splendidly for half an hour, when somebody gained access to the church and commenced enlivening matters by accompanying with the organ, a matter of much annoyance until you become used to the blending of tones. All went well however until within about 200 changes from home, when two or three members becoming extremely anxious got slightly mixed, and in the melee caused the 3rd and 4th to change course, but being so near home we let them run on and rung the length out in 2 hrs. and 58 mins., the bells coming home 4-3 instead of 3-4. The striking was excellent all through, but the tenor went very bad the last hour, and W. Pearson, although a strong young fellow, could not set her when we stopped. I need not say the disappointment was great. On opening the door to admit friends, congratulations commenced, but Mr. Guest said "No, we have tried hard for it, but we will have it honest when we get it." This so far is the best attempt made, and the ringers stood as follows: C. Crang, 1; W. Shenton, 2; J. Heather, 3; J. B. Hall, 4; J. Guest, 5; J. Murray, 6; H. Adams, 7; W. Pearson, 8.

Our next pull was on November 2nd with the same band, but without success; the bad go of the tenor eventually breaking us down. We rang as far as the 9th part, when the tenor man could hold out no longer; we had been ringing to him for a long time, but finally had to "stand" after ringing 2 hrs. and 20 mins. Nothing daunted we essayed the task once more on November 4th, with S. Wilkinson, a Midland Counties' man, at the tenor, but could only get to the half-way house, when Sam was beat, so the bells were brought home after some of the best striking heard here, the pace being 29 per minute. A bit of pleasing banter was indulged on an account of an Englishman not being able to go so far as the Colonial did in his two attempts. Next morning, being Melbourne Cup Day, and a public holiday, we determined to make another desperate effort, and joined forces, the tenor being rung through the first three 504's by Wilkinson, then Pearson took it and matters were looking rosy, past the half-way house again but not far, when I am afraid our conductor was thinking of the horse he had backed for the Cup, anyway he missed a bob, so we had to stop and console ourselves with hopes for better success on the next occasion, which has not yet taken place owing to the extreme heat.

We have since had to obtain professional assistance to make them ringable, new brasses and gudgeons being found necessary. 'Tis fortunate we have the peal at St. Paul's, and I really shall be ashamed to send further doings here to your valuable columns unless we have accomplished the peal, for brother-ringers at home will get tired of receiving so many apologies and excuses, and dub us Colonials a bit thick in the cranium. However we will see what future events will disclose, hoping for the best.

I remain, yours faithfully,

JNO. BEECHEY, Hon. Sec., Victorian Society, Melbourne.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Sufficient is the Day for the Hattersley thereof."

Our friend Mr. C. H. Hattersley having lost his turn in the gallery, through not getting his "physog" taken in time, we have been favoured with a capital portrait of the amiable successor of the late Mr. Henry Johnson in St. Martin's Guild. But although (as all who know Mr. Day personally will admit) the portrait is an excellent one, equally so is the very interesting biography which accompanies it on the first page of the new volume. There was no need for the apology made for including in this the history of St. Martin's bells, for really the biography would have been manifestly incomplete without it, besides being thus a justly-merited acknowledgment of the labours and anxieties experienced by him and his co-worker Henry Johnson in connection with that celebrated ring. It is some time since I last met Mr. Day, but I hope it won't be long before I have the pleasure of being once again in his enjoyable company. Meanwhile, let me congratulate him on his hearty appearance in the "assembly of notabilities," and wish him many years of health during which to occupy the honourable post vacated by his old and revered coadjutor through the hand of death.

When last week I suggested the course of now leaving Parson Haweis severely alone with his nostrums and his tantrums, I had not read Mr. Papillon's excellent article in the Guardian. Had the esteemed Hon. Secretary of the Essex Association taken that advice before he penned the letter, no one would have been more sorry than myself: for it is truly an able vindication both of our art and the position to which we as ringers are entitled in the church. I am also pleased even more particularly that Mr. Papillon should have chosen the Guardian for his letter. That "bishops' paper" is undoubtedly the most influential organ in connection with the Church, and its pages are perused by all whose support and encouragement we most desire. Thus its appearance there is especially welcome. However much we may appreciate the good wishes of friends not connected with the Church, there can be no mistake about it that we require most the support of those within her, and particularly of those in authority. Mr. Papillon has therefore adopted the wisest course under the circumstances by bringing our case directly under the notice of those whose co-operation we desire, in our work of improving the science and reforming our belfries. Much in his letter, of course, is to us very elementary, but we have to deal with those to whom our art and work is a positive mystery, therefore they have to be dealt with accordingly. This Mr. Papillon has done, and his letter is all the more forcible through (what I may be allowed to term) its plain-spoken simplicity.

An instance in this connection, I cannot help narrating. Last Sunday evening, as I and my band were in the belfry for our Sunday evening service peal, in walked one of the sidesmen, who asked very diffidently if he might be allowed to see us ring. He sat, and appeared very interested, watching us as I called the touch. At the conclusion he thanked us for what he called the treat; and I could not help thinking afterwards that this little circumstance was an illustration of (in a great measure) the reason why we and our work are not more appreciated and supported. There is still existing the notion that the belfry belongs to ringers; that others are intruders. If we could only break down this notion of exclusiveness and make our Church officials, as well as members of the congregation, feel at home in our belfries, we should accomplish much towards the object we have at heart, and have no need to trouble ourselves about anything which might be written or said against us by such self-appointed censors as the incumbent of St. James, Marylebone.

As each year's issue of "THE BELL NEWS" comes to a end, our Editor is apt to wax retrospective, and even pathetic. And to tell the truth, I do not wonder at it. He occupies a position which is in many respects unique. Among the originators of our weekly organ he stands alone; thus when on each last Saturday in March, as it arrives, he, calling to mind the features of those who were his coadjutors and helpers in the beginning of his struggle to establish a ringers' paper, mentally looks around only to find them all gone—it is quite enough even to unnerve a man for the moment. "THE BELL NEWS" and its originator have had during the last decade, doubtless, a fair share of ups and downs—but considerably more of the latter, I fear. Nevertheless the paper is still in the land of the living, and will certainly remain there, and more than that, has improved wonderfully in appearance, and shews unmistakable tokens of good management. All this is very good, but something more than that is needed. If the Editor finds energy and ability, those for whom the paper is published should certainly find adequate support. I have mentioned this matter a few times previously, so do not intend dwelling upon it now, contenting myself with pressing strongly upon our friends a careful perusal of the editorial of last Saturday, and expressing a hope the words he there uses will not have been written in vain.

The list of peals last Saturday, although (as is becoming usual during Lent) short, is of a very interesting character. Every one of them has got a footnote attached. The Frieston men have rung in honour of forty-eighth birthday of one of their number the first peal rung by an entire local band in the East Lincolnshire Association. The Waldron men have scored a maiden peal, one also, we are told, the first on the bells, and likewise by the local band for more than half a century, the third-ringer in which (to his credit be it said) is but sixteen years of age. Well done, George! After a lapse of over seventy years the bells of Croston parish church have swung to the tune of a "fiver" by the Liverpool Diocesan Guild, friend Sholicar (who conducted) being the only one of the company who was not a "colt." Eight College Youths rang the first peal of Union Triples on the bells of Widford; the energetic Juniors of St. Michael's, Gloucester (whose average age is twenty-one years), have scored the first College Youths' peal in their city. Our Birmingham friends have rung their first peal of Kent Treble Bob Maximus on St. Martin's bells, forty-two years after the previous one; and Benjamin Wickens covered a peal of Triples at Walton-on-Thames without having had any previous practice with change-ringers. All these together read like a general news column, so varied is the information. Or rather, they remind one of the old lady who, after reading a dictionary for two or three hours, put down the book, saying the stories in it were very nice and interesting, but—very short.

Mr. S. Greenwood is training the young band at Streatham, and hopes soon to have them ringing Minor methods. So do I; and if any words of mine could be of avail, the tutor's efforts would soon be rewarded. If those who learn could only realise the self-denial of those who teach, the work of the latter would be much more appreciated than what it too often is.

Next Saturday I (and I suppose all of us) look forward to seeing a report of the meeting at the "Inns of Court" Hotel. Our Editor promises us as full and faithful one as it is possible to give, even if he has to enlarge the paper. So if I don't appear as usual, you will know that I have once again been crowded out with more important matter.

Correspondence.

Reserving the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

UNION TRIPLES.

SIR.—Mr. Carter, in your issue of to-day, gives us a most excellent peal of Union Triples. He says that it contains the fewest bobs (106) and only two singles. If by "singles" he means common Grandsire peals (or Holt's ten-part singles, which he could here use with equal advantage), I venture to think with even better effects) his words, so far as I am concerned, will stand. But if by "singles" he means any singles whatsoever, I shall I hope pardon me in referring him to "THE BELL NEWS" of November 24th, 1885. Here he will find two peals, and an intimation that many more such might have been given, with 105 bobs and two singles. These peals too are in five equal parts, excepting only the introduction between the singles at the commencement of the P block, which is the reverse of the plain course. Unfortunately the singles must be made at the reverse, but this will be found to be always necessary for the introduction of the course in question. It is these singles of mine which I suppose have frightened performers, and thus, so far as I know, none of my peals of Union Triples have ever been rung, conductors preferring apparently to learn a long one-part composition. Mine are all exceedingly simple, I see that Mr. Carter rings all the bells "before." I rejoice that the attention which this simple, musical, and interesting method so richly deserves is at last being given to it, and that too by men of such talent as Mr. Carter, well known to possess, and of such as Mr. James proved to be his most excellent peal in Church Bells of March 7th. "One of these days" I hope to write a little tractate on Union Triples. Before I close I will with your leave, Mr. Editor, turn for a moment in another direction. In the last report of the Oxford Diocesan Guild I see that peal No. 220 is described as a variation by me of Holt's ten-part. The peals on p 77 of Grandsire were, I admit, my arrangements. Beside these I do not think that I have published any variation of Holt's ten-part. Will the conductor, Mr. Washbrook, kindly give a reference to the figures?
C. D. P. DAVIES.
Bungwer, March 29th.

A DISCLAIMER.

SIR.—It has been pointed out to me that the peal of Double Norwich Major published a fortnight ago in this paper was composed by Mr. J. R. Pritchard, and appeared at page 287 of vol. vii. It cannot therefore be described as the composition of—Yours faithfully,
ARTHUR B. CARPENTER.

THE EALING PEAL.

SIR.—In answer to Mr. Parker's letter respecting this peal, I beg to inform that gentleman that I am far from anxious to lay any charge at his or anyone else's door. What I asked for was an explanation, which I consider he has given; and I am perfectly satisfied from his remarks that the peal was a very indifferent one. I also wish to correct an error Mr. Ilsley informs me I made in stating that the peal was outrageously bad; he says he did not make use of this word. What he did say was that it was "scandalously bad." With regard to the other letters I am quite content to leave them to Mr. Ilsley, who I have no doubt, interest Mr. Basden a great deal more than his name. In conclusion, I would give him a bit of good advice, and that is—whenever he has occasion to write to this paper again, to confine himself to the truth, and endeavour to be more respectful in his remarks. I shall trouble you no further, Mr. Editor, on this subject.
HENRY A. HOPKINS.

SIR.—Illness prevented my writing earlier a few lines with reference to the remarks of Mr. Hopkins on this subject. I must say his comments have surprised me, and I might say they pained me also. They surprised me to think that Mr. Hopkins should make public the remarks of another without first ascertaining the truth of them; and they pained me to think that a band of ringers cannot meet together ringing a peal without having abuse and insult of the very worst kind heaped upon them without any justification for it. I cannot myself give them credit for the striking, although at times the bells rolled along in grand style, while at others it was choppy and irregular. As regards the difference of time Mr. Ilsley speaks of, that is, thirty rounds per minute in one part, and twenty-two in the other, that is simply ridiculous, as my own opinion is that the bells could not be rung at so slow a cadence as 22 to the minute. And now I might mention just for Mr. Ilsley's information (as he appears to take his stand on the ground that at the time per minute the bells were rung the peal could not have been completed) that thirty rounds per minute would produce a peal of 5040 changes in 2 hrs. 48 mins., while twenty-eight per minute would take 3 hrs. I merely mention this for Mr. Ilsley's guidance, as he contends that to ring a peal of 5040 changes in 3 hrs., you must ring thirty changes per minute, so that if my calculations are correct, as I believe they are, he is a long way out. Speaking of the go of the bells, they do not go as I should wish them, but they go much better than they did when the last peal was rung in 1879, and I have no doubt that the difference in the time of the two peals is in that way to be accounted for; and I shall be much surprised when my Cumberland friends come to Ealing to ring, which they have permission to do when they can make arrangements, if they do not ring a peal in less time, than the one about which there is this unhappy controversy, as I am quite certain the bells can be rung at thirty rounds to the minute, without driving them in any way. With regard to the 2nd being in the hunt for the last quarter of an hour, that I don't know anything about, not being competent to judge that part of the peal; whether Mr. Ilsley is or not, is best known to himself.

H. G. PARSONS,
Steeple Keeper, St. Mary's, Ealing.

SIR.—Will you kindly allow me to say a few words respecting this said peal and Mr. Hopkins letter? I wish it to be understood that I did not run after Mr. Hopkins to get him to write about this peal. I with other ringing friends, accidentally met with him at Kensington, when he said "you have had a peal at Ealing," I said, "Yes, me and Mr. —" went and heard the whole of it," and I said "it was very rough," and so it was, and I told him my opinion of it, which I think I have a right to express, and with the exception of a few words is correct. I did not use the word outrageous, which I think Mr. Hopkins will admit. Now sir, myself and one or two others were within fifty yards of the church the whole time, I timed the striking right through, it was 28 the first half hour, after that, 24, 23, and 26, and the last hour not more than 23, and finished at 22; and then, the way the bells came round I cannot understand. The bells go very badly, and with rough ringing, the peal to be got in 2 hrs. 55 mins! Now sir, in conclusion, I do not think Mr. Hopkins would have had anything to say in the matter, had he not heard the opinions of others that heard the peal as well as myself. I have no jealous feeling about the peal whatever, it is only my opinion which I maintain. Now, sir, as regards Mr. Basden's letter, I take that for what it is worth, he says "that I am not qualified sufficient to know whether 7th is in the hunt or the 2nd." I admit that I am not an expert ringer like himself, I have not had the practice that he has.
G. ILSLEY.

[We have been compelled to curtail Mr. Ilsley's letter, because he refers to matters totally irrelevant to the question at issue; and we prefer not to have this discussion widened.—Ed.]

A CORRECTION.

SIR.—There are two slight inaccuracies in your memoir of Mr. John Day, published last week, which it would be as well to point out. 1842, not 1844, should be given as the year in which Mr. Day first made the acquaintance of Mr. Chattell. This mistake, if uncorrected, would lead one to suppose that Mr. Day rung his first peal of Stedman Caters almost as soon as he began learning. The number of peals rung on St. Martin's bells since the last re-hanging is nearer thirty than twenty as stated.

W. H. GODDEN, Hon. Sec. of St. Martin's Guild.

THE ATTEMPT FOR A LONG PEAL AT ST. MICHAEL'S, CORNHILL.

SIR.—In your last issue appeared two letters from Messrs. Pettit and Gibbs. Anyone can see these two letters were both concocted at one time, and their version about the mistake when "Bob" was called I have not heard of before. When this bob was called the 11th was not high enough to dodge with me, and I told him to "come up," someone at the same time shouted "10th make it." Gibbs was in a dazed condition, and began shouting to me. Here the 4th and 6th men tried to keep him quiet and in his place, but failed to do so. Mr. G. should call his memory back to the state of health he was in about the time of this attempt. I am sure the band ought not to have started with him in it; how he rung the bell so long is to me a marvellous thing. The bell I rang went so bad after ringing five hours that many ringers would have stopped, but being anxious, I stuck to her for another 2½ hours, and then another mistake occurred; and I have now been accused of spiking the peal! Ringers who have rung this bell for 5000 can endorse my statement as to how she goes. Mr. Pettit of course won't acknowledge being wrong in this affair, as he was in the squabble himself. He has, in addition to saying I spiked the peal, said I should not have been asked to be in it, only they wanted me to ring the 10th. He further says he does not blame any one, but an old friend of his was recently illustrating the collapse of this peal at a tavern in the neighbourhood of Clare Market only on Saturday last, loudly accusing me as the author of the disaster.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 5, 1890.

THE correspondence appearing in this paper during the past few weeks is of a most contentious description. The adjective in fact is hardly forcible enough, for in the heat of discussion the feelings of some of the belligerents are such that their expressions become more forcible than elegant, more pointed than polite. Some will perhaps be of opinion that too much freedom is allowed the disputants to air their grievances, and though this opinion is only reasonable, yet there are such a variety of circumstances to be weighed with each other, the conclusion that we do not greatly err in this direction is arrived at.

A peal recently rung at Ealing, a western suburb of the Metropolis, is just now a cause of some bitterness. The feeling created is to be sadly deplored. It is a great pity the animadversions upon this performance did not proceed in the first instance directly from one who by experience was able to judge, and not from hearsay evidence. The very elementary knowledge of the art possessed by the first complainant should have led our friend MR. HOPKINS to hesitate before he acted upon such information—which has proved so untrustworthy. That is all we need say upon this subject beyond expressing an hope that in future the genuineness or otherwise of a peal will be debated in a proper manner, and only by those who are competent to adjudicate upon such questions.

Review.

[BY SCRUTATOR.]

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.—("The Bell News" Office, Walthamstow).—This report states that the past year "has been a good all-round year for the Guild, and steady progress the order of the day." Coming to details of the work done, it notes: (1) That four new towers have joined, one rejoined, while two have withdrawn, and one failed to remit its subscriptions; (2) That for the first time its numbers have reached four figures, "comprising 165 honorary and 850 ringing members, making a total of 1016, and constituting our Guild the largest, it is believed, of all the Diocesan or County Associations;" (3) "That though there are no long peals in this year's performances, the record is a good one, yielding seventy-seven peals to the Guild's credit, and bringing its name third on Mr. Attree's annual analysis;" (4) "That the Master has paid seven visits of inspection and advice in various parts of the Diocese, and has been present at four openings of bells; also that instruction has been given by the principal instructor to twelve towers;" (5) "That the Guild's festival at Newbury, on July 22nd, was well-attended, and marked by the presence of the lately-appointed Bishop-Suffragan of Reading, one of our Vice-Presidents, who addressed the ringers from the pulpit in his usual vigorous and earnest language." So far, then, the energetic Hon. Sec. has well borne out his opening statement that the year has been a good all-round one with the Guild. The balance-sheet (which he pithily remarks, speaks for itself) shews that they commenced the year with £16 os. 8d. in hand. Since then £34 1s. od. in subscriptions; £19 12s. od. from local branches; and £18 2s. od. from members for dinner tickets, bring up the total to £87 15s. 8d. On the other side, £20 14s. 10d. have been paid for instruction; £16 8s. 4d. for "general expenses" including £11 4s. 1d. to the printer (which I suppose represents cost of annual reports) £1 18s. 8½d. has gone in postages, etc., and £19 15s. od., as the cost of dinner. This leaves a balance to carry forward of £28 18s. 9½d., or a gain on the year's working of £12 18s. 1½d. If we leave out of reckoning the £18 2s. od. received for dinner tickets (which really appears to me out of place, or at any rate serves no purpose but to swell the total), we may sum it up that during the year covered by the report, the Guild's income was £53 13s. od.; and its expenses, £40 14s. 10½d. Of this latter sum, after deducting the payment for instruction (an item which I always rejoice to see in a balance-sheet) just £20 are left. Of this £11 4s. 1d. goes to the printer in one lump—I presume for reports—thus short of £9 remains for working expenses. Out of this £2 8s. 9½d. are paid for entering peals, £1 5s. od. for rent of Newbury Town Hall for the festival, and £2 7s. 6d. to "J. Akerman" (rather ambiguous that, by the way). I give these items in detail chiefly to shew which way the money has gone with the Oxford Guild. There is in it no such items as "railway fares to members;" "members' dinner and tea tickets;" "cost of conveyance of members to so-and-so;" nor even that rather less objectionable one of "travelling expenses of committee-men," which we see so often in these balance-sheets. Every item (except the aforesaid dinner tickets) has a hard business-like look about it. As I remarked in my last Review with reference to the Yorkshire Association, there is no squandering of money paid in subscriptions in the ways above-mentioned. No wonder, then, that their funds in hand are found to be increasing. The £20 14s. 10d. paid for instruction, also denotes that while they have been busy with their peal-ringing, they have by no means neglected that very necessary portion of their duties which they owe to their probationers. Altogether, to my mind, this balance-sheet is one of the most pleasant features of a very satisfactory report. Coming back to the Hon. Secretary's statement of work done, I should certainly have liked his report better had he taken the trouble to give the amount of progress made both in regard to numerical strength and the work done in peal-ringing, and the even more substantial if less brilliant efforts in the way of instruction to bands. To get this we should have to refer to, and draw our comparisons from, previous reports; but I do think his annual statement would have been more complete and satisfactory had he given the relative totals if only of this and the previous year together, so that a comparison might have been readily drawn, and the real amount of progress seen at a glance. I have been constrained to mention this point in connection with other previous reports which I have had under consideration; and looking at it from an outsider's point of view, it seems an omission which should not be allowed to occur. Another discrepancy (if I may properly call it such) also appears in his statement. According to the Rules of the Guild, three classes of membership are recognised, namely, honorary, change-ringing, and probationary; but in his return of their numerical strength, he only notes two—honorary and ringing. Evidently he has absorbed the probationary class in the ringing, which, makes them appear to a not too careful observer to have 850 change-ringing members. Would it not have been much preferable had he given the totals of the three classes according to rule? A rough glance over the list of members shews them to have close upon 200 of these probationers, which is an item of rather too extensive character to have been so ignored. I do not mention this with any notion of detracting from the credit claimed for the Guild of having the largest total of members among the diocesan and county associations, but with the object of seeing these things put fair and straight. In their own behalf, too, it would be considerably better to draw the lines as laid down in the rules. For instance, suppose next year there was no large influx of new members; suppose even that there was a decrease; if it could be shewn that the list of probationers had grown much less to the corresponding increase of fully qualified members in the change-ringing class, that would afford no small ground for satisfaction. It would shew that scientific progress at the least was making effective headway, which could not be done by the present mode of totalling up the numbers. Leaving this point, however, I would remark that the rules of the Guild are a model of terseness and practical utility. There appears in them nothing superfluous or irrelevant, and upon the whole cover the ground of the Guild's operations. But the great feature of them is that they are practical and workable, which unfortunately cannot be said of all that I have come across. It is all very well to draw up an elaborate set of rules with the idea of making them read well, and look up to the mark as a literary production, but the main object which should be aimed at in formulating rules is to make them effective for their purpose, and neither so straight-laced as to make them unworkable on the one hand, nor so loose on the other as to make their object questionable, and open out loopholes for evasion. Neither of these charges can be brought against the rules of the Oxford Guild; although I must remark, in passing, that they do not appear to make any difference in the status of probationary and change-ringing members, which seems rather strange. But leaving this, I come to the last part of the Report, which gives particulars of each peal scored during the year. Its record of seventy-seven peals comprises: Grandsire Triples, 26; Stedman Triples, 26; Oxford Bob Triples, 1; Duffield Major, 1; Bob Major, 1; Double Norwich Court Bob Major, 6; Superlative Surprise Major, 3; Grandsire Caters, 5; Stedman Caters, 3; Treble Bob Royal, 1; and one of Grandsire Doubles. If the Hon. Sec. totals up the figures on page 32 he will find a serious discrepancy; but as that is evidently either a clerical or a printer's error, we will let it pass. Of this return the official report says "It is satisfactory to find that forty-one members have rung their first peal, and that several fresh conductors have come to the front, although Mr. Washbrook still takes the lion's share in this department." The latter clause of this sentence is incontrovertible, for out of the seventy-seven peals, I find the "Principal Instructor" has taken part in no less than seventy-one; and conducted fifty-nine of them. That latter total, by the way, does not leave much room for the "several fresh conductors" who are said to "have come to the front." Notwithstanding these small matters, the list is a remarkably good one. Although Grandsire and Stedman comprise by far the greater portion, still other methods are fairly well represented, and the Guild deserves credit for the same. Taking the Report altogether, it is one of which officers and members alike may be very well pleased. There is nothing of an electrical nature about it, but steady progress seems to glisten on every page—which is much better. The report itself, I might add, is neatly got up; type good and clear; the arrangement of the pages also leaves little to be desired; so that I can with pleasure congratulate the Oxford Guild on this latest addition to their Annual Reports. "From title-page to imprint," both in its contents and the manner of its printing, it is fully worthy to be the chronicler of the doings of a Guild which has attained such a high and proud position in our land.

WANTED the whole of the Nos. of "THE BELL NEWS," of Vol. I. II. III. and IV. in CLEAN CONDITION for binding.—Apply, stating lowest price, to H. Mason, Park Street, Old Hill, Staffordshire.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.—THE LEEDS AND DISTRICTS AMALGAMATED SOCIETY.

The usual monthly ringing meeting was held at the church of St. Peter's, Bramley. Members were present from Armley, Burley, Bramley, Headingley, Holbeck, Leeds, and Pudsey. The bells were kept going the whole of the afternoon and evening in various Treble Bob Minor methods, amongst which was a 720 Kent Treble Bob Minor in 27 mins. H. W. Needham (Leeds), 1; Hy. Moss (Holbeck), 2; J. Woodhead, 3; A. Naylor (Headingley), 4; F. Woodhead (Holbeck), 5; D. Yorke (Holbeck), 6. Conducted by H. W. Needham. Also 720 Oxford Treble Bob Minor in 26½ mins. H. W. Needham (Leeds), 1; Hy. Moss (Holbeck), 2; Rd. Thomas (Burley), 3; A. Naylor (Headingley), 4; J. Woodhead (Holbeck), 5; D. Yorke (Holbeck), 6. Conducted by R. Thomas. First 720 as conductor. Tenor 13 cwt. The ringers wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" to thank the Vicar for the use of the bells on this occasion.

DEATH OF A GOOD MAN.

The late Mr. Burnham of Wellingborough, was buried on Tuesday in the presence of a vast throng of mourners and followers. The public funeral given was a proof of the universal esteem in which the deceased gentleman was held. It was Wellingborough embodied in a procession, and a noble procession it really was. The service was conducted by the Ven. Archdeacon Lightfoot, who was assisted by the Rev. L. T. Jones, Vicar of All Saints.

Mr. Burnham came of a family long resident in Wellingborough, and spent all his life in the town. He was a staunch Churchman, and a hearty supporter of anything to improve or encourage choirs or ringers. He was Churchwarden in the year 1884, when the peal of bells in the parish church was increased to eight, and gave one of the two new trebles. Mr. Burnham caught cold at his wife's funeral on the 8th March, took to his bed, and died on Saturday, March 22nd. The second bell (his gift), was "tolled" each day at 1 o'clock, instead of rung as usual, from his death until the funeral and the "Sermon Bell" (tenor) was also "tolled" instead of rung, on Sunday last, morning, afternoon and evening. The bells were rung deeply muffled as the funeral procession passed through the streets, also in the evening from 8 to 9 o'clock. "The whole town mourns, and will mourn his loss."

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE G. H. BURNHAM, ESQ.

Our hearts are very sad, dear one, for thee;
For the great loss a genuine grief assails
A thousand breasts, and general woe prevails.
A man, a friend, a gentleman was he Whose like again we never more may see.
At thought of the event the visage pales,
Words cannot give the record, language fails
To tell its great, its full immensity.
Doubly bereft, the sympathy of all
Is with the sorrowing, grief-stricken sons.
Whom death hath robbed of their beloved ones;
On them the heaviest blows of suffering fall.
These griefs are hard to bear, but 'tis not given
For us to see the purposes of Heaven.

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF RINGERS. MEETING OF THE PROVISIONAL COMMITTEE.

At the "Inns of Court" Hotel, on Tuesday last, the Provisional Committee elected to form the constitution of the proposed Central Council of Ringers, met at 1 o'clock. The delegates, a list of whom had been published in this paper previously, nearly all attended—the Rev. J. R. KEBLE, the Rev. F. J. HELMORE, and Mr. H. A. HEYWOOD being, so far as we could ascertain, the only absentees. The first to put in an appearance were Mr. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD and Mr. J. W. TAYLOR, who, amid a shower of snow and hail drove up to the hotel, and almost simultaneously Mr. B. T. COPLEY and Mr. C. H. HATTERSLEY appeared upon the scene. Mr. LONGDEN was the next solitary arrival, and then others appeared in rapid succession. After a very short delay, the spacious and well-appointed chamber set apart for the deliberations of the committee was reached, and when a few greetings had been exchanged and the usual compliments spoken, Mr. HEYWOOD suggested that they should at once proceed to business by electing a chairman. Thereupon the Rev. H. EARLE BULWER proposed that Mr. HEYWOOD should act as president, a proposition that reasonably found favour with the assembly. However, no doubt with the view of shewing his esteem for the squire of Bennington, Mr. ROGERS, speaking of Mr. L. PROCTOR as "our senior member," suggested that he should fill the post. At once Mr. HEYWOOD disclaimed the least inclination to lead in any particular, but it was felt by the committee that he was the only possible president of the meeting; and Mr. PROCTOR at once declined the honour upon the ground that there were many others present who were more competent to fill the chair than he was. Mr. BULWER then put the proposal to the meeting that Mr. HEYWOOD should preside, and this was, as may be expected, carried with acclamation.

This initial procedure over, the committee sat down to work in earnest, and first of all the chairman, in a lucid but concise speech, which is given in full below, explained the position of affairs. The resolutions, amendments, suggestions, and so forth are narrated with completeness hereafter, and therefore there is no necessity to allude to them in these prefatory observations. The manner in which the business was got through was very satisfactory. There was very little indeed shown of that anxiety to say something—no matter how absurd or irrelevant—which is a prevailing characteristic of some who attend Association meetings. The president was just the man to put his foot upon irrelevancy in any shape—and combined effectually in himself the stavior in modo with the fortiter in re. Many members of the committee had evidently thought out the proposals contained in the scheme, and proved by their various remarks that they were deeply interested in perfecting, as far as possible, those statutes which were to form the constitution of the "Central Council." Notably in this wise were the Revs. H. E. BULWER, T. L. PAPILLON, A. D. HILL, C. D. P. DAVIES, W. W. C. BAKER and H. J. ELSEE, while among the lay delegates, the observations of Mr. E. F. STRANGE, Mr. COPLEY, Mr. ROGERS, Mr. STORY, Mr. ATTREE, and a few others were listened to with respect. A fear was entertained by a portion of those present that the business would hardly be concluded at one sitting, but when the most important questions had been settled the remainder were rapidly disposed of, in fact upon the latter part of the scheme no discussion was had. The meeting, which occupied about three hours, was brought to a conclusion by a vote of thanks to the president, proposed by the Rev. F. E. ROBINSON.

With his usual generous hospitality, the president had invited the delegates to dinner when the business had been got through, and this was held immediately afterwards. This sumptuous repast, as seems to be most usual in all similar affairs connected with the ringing Exercise, had ample justice meted out to it. There were one or two matters to settle which were not disposed of at the business meeting—such as the hour and the day for the next meeting,—Mr. HATTERSLEY proposing that the meeting be held on Easter Tuesday next, at one o'clock, facetiously adding: "and the dinner at half-past four o'clock," the latter part of the resolution being received with some merriment. Just before the company rose the Rev. H. E. BULWER proposed in fitting terms "The Health of Mr. HEYWOOD," dwelling upon his kind hospitality shown by his invitation to dinner. This proposition was just the thing wanted to enable the company to give effect to their feelings, which they heartily did by the aid of what is known as "musical honours," and Mr. HEYWOOD replied in suitable terms. The assembly soon after broke up, and the delegates went away, not without the sincere conviction that a great era for the Exercise had that day been inaugurated, and that a rapid improvement in the ringing world would be the result of the valuable labours of Mr. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

THE MEETING.

Mr. A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD was unanimously elected to the chair, upon the proposition of the Rev. H. EARLE BULWER.

The CHAIRMAN explained that the object of the meeting was to formulate a constitution for the proposed society. The scheme was originally initiated at a meeting that was held in Birmingham, in honor of Mr. Johnson's 80th birthday, when a resolution was passed that a Central Council, or some such body, was a very desirable body to have to represent the interests of change-ringers. But at the meeting there was no properly constituted authority to carry out the wishes of the meeting, and as chairman, he had taken upon himself to do what he could to put it into a practical form. As they knew, the form that his endeavours took was first of all to draw up a draft scheme, which he sent round to a certain number of friends, that they might advise him upon it, and the present draft scheme was the result of their labours. It would have been a very hopeless thing for them to have met and have had nothing to work upon, but now they could work upon this skeleton form: it might be altered as much as they liked, though it had been very carefully drawn up, and he had had the assistance of some twenty-five gentlemen in this matter. There were certain things in it which he himself did not like, so they must not suppose that all things in it were according to his wishes. His wishes were but those of an individual, and before they entered upon the discussion he wished it to be understood that he did not guarantee to support the whole of the propositions that were put forward in that scheme. The simplest plan upon which they could proceed was to formulate some scheme of procedure for the Central Council of Ringers; when they had done that the object of the meeting would have been accomplished, and they would simply have to settle as to the preliminary meeting and advise the secretary how he should call the first meeting of the Council at Easter next. The simplest plan would be for some gentleman to move the reception of the draft scheme as a matter of form, and after it had been seconded it would then be before the meeting, and could be taken clause by clause together with any amendments that might be suggested.

Rev. T. L. PAPILLON moved that the scheme as propounded be received.

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER seconded, and the motion was carried.

The CHAIRMAN suggested that the consideration of the title of the Council should be deferred for a short while until they had decided upon the objects of the Council. The objects as set out in the draft were: To provide a body representative of the united interests of the various societies of Church Bell Ringers that shall:—

1. "Use its best endeavours to guard the rights and generally promote the welfare of the Exercise."
2. "Encourage and assist the development of the Art, both in its scientific and practical branches."
3. "Arbitrate—so far as may be deemed advisable—in such matters of dispute or perplexity as shall be submitted to its judgment."

The CHAIRMAN: Has any gentleman any amendment to move upon these three points, or perhaps it is more a matter for suggestion as regards its objects; it is not exactly a rule.

Mr. STRANGE asked if it were competent for the meeting to suggest that the Council should collect reliable statistics on the subject of ringing, or information as to the dates of bells; anything in fact which might be of definite antiquarian interest.

The CHAIRMAN: Would not that be included, don't you think, in the second heading "to encourage and assist the development of the Art, both in its scientific and practical branches."?

Mr. STRANGE: It may be held to be so.

Rev. F. E. ROBINSON: Would not the word "historical" cover that?

The CHAIRMAN: Of course it is a question whether these three heads include all that the Council is likely to be called upon to do.

Mr. STRANGE said that if a motion was necessary he would move that the word "historical" be added to clause ii., so as to make it read "encourage and assist the development of the Art both in its scientific, mathematical, and historical branches."

Rev. F. E. ROBINSON seconded, and the amendment was adopted.

The CHAIRMAN: Is there any further amendment on these three points?

The Rev. A. D. HILL remarked that there was another point he should like to see brought forward in these three main objects. They had got very carefully worded there the entirely secular side of church bell ringing, but he would like to see brought out in some manner or other, the subordinate position of church bells with reference to their use as instruments of the Church. He did not think they should lose sight of that side of their calling as Church bellringers, and he would like to see something of the sort introduced in the first heading, which would place definitely before them that not only had they interests to guard from enemies; the welfare of an exercise which was not only scientific, but practical, to promote; but that also they as Church bellringers had a position to maintain as workers in the Church. He firmly believed that ringers had that very deeply at heart, and he thought it was an interest they should introduce into their "objects."

The CHAIRMAN: Won't you move some amendment, for it will be difficult for us to act upon your mere suggestion?

Rev. A. D. HILL: It is not easy to do so; I thought someone would be able to help us out with an amendment.

Mr. COPLEY: Would it meet the object to say "both in its scientific aspect and as a branch of Church work?" I move that it be added to the first of the objects "and maintain the position as a branch of Church work."

Rev. A. D. HILL seconded.

Mr. STORY thought they ought to remember that they might have to deal with ringing matters not altogether connected with the Church; he thought the first clause covered all suggestions. The object of the Council would be to promote the welfare of the Exercise.

Mr. ROGERS agreed that the objects of the Association were simple and definite, and he thought they required neither addition nor alteration. As to the observations that had been made regarding Church work they were all aware that they were workers of the Church; they could not get outside it, their bells were fixed there, and they could not ring elsewhere.

Rev. C. D. P. DAVIES reminded the meeting that there were such things as bells in places other than churches, though they were few. Out of every 1000 bells 999 were in churches, so that the ringers were intimately associated with the Church. Therefore he thought that Mr. Hill's proposition was worthy of acceptance. They ought not to disconnect bellringing with the Church, for it had always been held to be part and parcel of Church work.

The CHAIRMAN then put Mr. Copley's amendment, which was adopted. He then asked if anything arose upon the third point; and said that if no amendment was moved on it he would put it for adoption.

Mr. HAMMOND asked if the Council would take into consideration matters connected with ringers which were not submitted to it; whether it would decide any dispute which was not referred to it for settlement.

The CHAIRMAN said that he could not possibly decide what the Council would do, seeing that he was only chairman of that meeting. But he should think they would not.

Mr. COPLEY: According to this rule they cannot. It says distinctly they shall only take cognisance of such matters as shall be submitted to them.

The third point in the objects was then adopted, and the CHAIRMAN proceeded to invite discussion on Rule i which was "That the Council be known as the Central Council of Church Bell Ringers." He said the fixing of the title was rather an important point, and he had at least a dozen different suggestions made as to that.

Mr. ROGERS said a little question arose in his mind as to this title, and that was on the word "Central." Where was the centre to be fixed? He noticed that the scheme suggested that once a year a meeting should be held in London.

The CHAIRMAN: We have yet to consider that.

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER thought they were rather misunderstanding the meaning of the word "central." It was not meant to be local at all.

The CHAIRMAN explained that the word had been adopted because it was such a very common word. Their was a Central Council of the Diocesan Conference, simply because it was the centre to which all the various representatives went.

Mr. ROGERS: I beg your pardon.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER: Would "general" be a better word?

Mr. HATTERSLEY: How would it be to leave "central" out altogether and call it The Council of Church Bell Ringers?

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER moved that Rule i be accepted as printed.

The CHAIRMAN: We are still open to have amendments upon it.

Rev. C. D. P. DAVIES remarked that this title opened up the large question of excluding round ringers.

The CHAIRMAN again suggested that it would be advisable to postpone the consideration of the title until they knew a little more about the aims and objects of the proposed Council, and had finished discussion on other matters.

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER: Are we to exclude ringers who are not church bell ringers from the name of the Council or not?

The CHAIRMAN: You mean to say shall we include the Poland Street Handbell Ringers and their friends?

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER: Mr. Davies mentioned that there was not one ringer in a thousand not a church bellringer.

Rev. C. D. P. DAVIES: I meant those who rang at Quex Park.

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER: There are Roman Catholic bells and so on. Do we include them, or shall we make some special point?

Rev. W. W. C. BAKER thought that would be a matter for the Diocesan Associations, and pointed out that most of the ringers would belong to some local society which would be represented on the Council.

The CHAIRMAN said they would pass on and leave the title till the last. He then asked for discussion on section 1, rule ii., which was as follows:—

"That the Council consist (1) of representative members from all recognised societies, associations and guilds of church bellringers (hereinafter referred to under the general term of 'societies') numbering not less than 50 members. The representation to be in the following proportion: For a society the number of whose members exceeds 50 but does not exceed 150, one representative; exceeds 150 and not 300, two representatives; 300 and upwards, three representatives; three to be the limit allowed to any one society."

Mr. ATTREE said that he would like to move that for every 150 members over the 300, a society should have one extra representative; that he would also like to insert the word "active" before "members" as in many cases probably that honorary members would not be counted in the total, and he took it that it was intended that only active bell ringers should have representation on the Council.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER remarked that this describing the members was rather a curious question. Many associations had life members who lived out of the district but who were ringing members though they seldom rung in towers belonging to the Association. If the term "ringing" or "active" were inserted, it would exclude honorary members who were not ringing members at all, but who still paid their annual subscriptions. That alteration would hardly be fair, and for that reason he could not support the addition of either the word "active" or "ringing."

The Rev. A. D. HILL thought that as honorary members were very often good supporters of bell ringing they should be represented as much as others. He thought that each guild or association would probably see that they got as many honorary members as was possible, but on the whole honorary members would form only a small proportion of the ringing members throughout the whole of the guilds and associations of which he knew anything. He did not think they need trouble themselves the least bit in the world to exclude the honorary members, who were a very important part of each association, and who ought to be distinctly represented on the Central Council. As to the other part of the amendment, he thought the plan of giving a representative for each 150 members would be the simplest way, and if it happened to be a large society he did not see why they should not have four representatives.

Mr. ATTREE: I should be willing if the society was active.

The CHAIRMAN thought they would be setting for themselves a considerable difficulty if they were to attempt in any way to determine for themselves the number of practical ringers there were in any Association. They would get into difficulty if they tried to say what class of members should be returned on the Council. He thought they had better not seek to know.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER suggested that to give an additional representative for every 150 members over 300 would give a preponderating representation to some societies in certain events which would have a tendency to swamp the smaller ones. He thought three representatives enough to represent any Association.

Rev. C. D. P. DAVIES said that he agreed to a great extent with what Mr. Bulwer had said, but he thought that three was a very small number; he would rather have four or five.

Mr. COPLEY asked how the London societies would reckon up their members, supposing Mr. Attree's amendment to be carried. Would they include the country members that had their names on their books? If so, their London friends would have to have a Council of their own.

The CHAIRMAN: As I read the proposed addition, they would be perfectly entitled to do so.

Rev. H. A. COCKEY pointed out that if Societies were to have representatives for every 150 members, such societies as the College Youths and the Cumberland Youths could swamp any meeting. He thought three quite enough.

The CHAIRMAN: At one time there was a considerable discussion as to whether 100 was not too high a number. In the returns that were made to me, several gentlemen asked that it should be lowered to fifty. I think it is a point on which I should like to invite discussion, because fifty would include a great number of societies that are not represented here to-day. There are a large number of small country societies who if 50 were to be the minimum, would be able to return representatives. I put it as a point worthy of consideration whether it would not be advisable to lower it to fifty.

Mr. TAYLOR: Some of the country societies, where the honorary members might count up to 50, and be able to return members to the Central Council, but being mostly members also of larger societies they would thus get two votes.

The CHAIRMAN: Yes, that would be so.

Rev. W. W. C. BAKER thought there should be some rule excluding the counting of non-resident members, and he mentioned that at the meeting (Bedfordshire Association), the other day they elected two or three gentlemen who did not reside in the district. They happened to be present, and said they would become members of the Association, and were elected. Their interest in the Association was very little, and in this way it was easy to run up the numbers of those who, after all, belonged to other associations and were represented elsewhere.

The CHAIRMAN: Can you suggest any way in which we can check this in the reports presented to us?

Rev. W. W. C. BAKER: We must trust to the honesty of societies not to return them.

The CHAIRMAN: Would it be well that we should state definitely whether members are to be members and nothing else, or active members. Now, there is some feeling that honorary members should be counted, and upon this turns the point we are discussing.

Rev. W. W. C. BAKER thought that honorary resident members should be represented, but the outside life members ought to be excluded from the Council. For instance, he was a life member of the Norwich Association, but he knew nothing of it, and did not see why he should be counted in the representation.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER: I hope you will repent, sir.

Mr. ATTREE: I should like to see all counted in.

The CHAIRMAN: Will any gentleman move any amendment to qualify the members?

Mr. WASHBROOK: I should like to move that it be made to read "interested" members, there were several members of all societies not much interested in them.

Mr. STRANGE suggested that the members should be taken from the last printed report which should have been submitted to the Central Council, and he used the word "members" in its widest sense. A copy of the Society's report should be submitted to the Council previous to the election, counting all the members—life members, honorary members and active members.

Mr. ATTREE said that he would accept that as an amendment in place of his, and would second it.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER pointed out that there would be no Council to send the report to.

Mr. STRANGE submitted that so far as the scheme before them was concerned it would be quite competent for the Council to appoint a committee to look after the elections, and that committee would continue to sit and to act until the new Council took its seat, and it would be competent for it to act on any question of representation that might come before it.

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER thought it better to include everybody unless they decreed that the number of members should only be counted as those present at the annual meeting, and that he admitted was out of the question. He urged that the rule should remain as it was, using simply the word "members" and leaving it to the Associations interested to deal uprightly and honorably with the Council.

Mr. Strange's amendment was then put to the vote, and lost.

The CHAIRMAN: Now gentlemen, we have arrived at this: we trust to the honesty of those who make the returns; all members will be counted in the representation. Now let us settle what will be the minimum representation, 50 is the motion.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER moved that 50 be changed to 100.

Mr. ROGERS thought that would come rather hard on some societies which, like the St. Martin's Guild, barely came up to 100. He asked if the Guild mentioned had 100 members.

The CHAIRMAN replied that it had, but he considered the question a pertinent one, as they had only just come up to that number by some half-dozen.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER: This will be an incentive to them to increase their numbers.

Rev. A. D. HILL hoped that 50 would be maintained as the minimum number, for they ought to be only too glad to welcome representatives from any struggling band. There might be some societies which just for one year might be below 100, and they would then be shut out from representation.

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER thought 50 was a very small number, and could not imagine a society of not more than 50 members if honorary members were to be included. The probability was that those really interested in ringing belonged to some other and larger society, and therefore in that way they would be represented at the Central Council. They did not want the larger societies swamped by a greater number of small societies whose members were already represented. If 100 seemed to be too large he would suggest 75 as a substitute.

The CHAIRMAN: We had better first get rid of this amendment, and propose yours after.

Mr. MACKMAN said that he would support the minimum of fifty, for he represented a small guild which did not quite number 100.

Mr. LUCAS also spoke in favour of the minimum being 50.

Rev. H. A. COCKEY said that to make the minimum 100 would keep out many societies which deserved to be represented; 50 was rather a low limit, and he was inclined to agree with Mr. Carpenter that they had better split the difference and make it 75.

After some further discussion it was agreed to accept the minimum of 75 by seventeen votes to twelve.

The CHAIRMAN remarked that until quite lately he had no idea how many members some of the large Associations had. It had been a question whether some of them ought not to have had one more representative. He asked how many members there were in the Yorkshire Association.

Mr. COPLEY replied and said he thought there was close upon 700.

Mr. ATTREE then moved his amendment that "All Societies having more than 300 members should have an extra representative for every 150 members over that number."

The CHAIRMAN pointed out that it would mean an almost unlimited representation for the large Societies.

This amendment was not carried.

The Rev. T. L. PAPILLON said that if it were felt that there was insufficient representation for the large societies it might be agreed that four should be the outside limit instead of three. It was not a point on which he felt very strongly, but he would move it if anyone would second it.

The Rev. C. D. P. DAVIES: I should like to second it very much.

This amendment was then put and carried.

The Rev. C. D. P. DAVIES: What I wished to suggest with regard to the College Youths was that only those should be counted who had met twelve times in the year, or whatever was the number required by the rules.

Mr. STRANGE asked how far that could be extended to other societies. The rules of the societies were so different, and it would not do to make a rule for one special society, or even for two or three. There were other societies which had rules of individual membership, which could be treated in a similar manner. It would certainly be advisable to limit the voting power of those societies whose members did nothing but pay an entrance fee.

The CHAIRMAN thought they could not interfere with the way in which societies chose their members. They could not interfere with that, without trespassing on their rights. He did not see that they could interfere, they had no locus standi.

Mr. ATTREE: Now that the maximum is fixed at four, I don't see that the question need be further pursued.

The CHAIRMAN: It is a question of what society he should vote for, but we cannot interfere with that. The next part of this rule is:—

- (2) Of honorary members, not exceeding twelve in number, elected by the Council. No representative member to be eligible as an Honorary Member. The voting powers of honorary members to be equal with those of representative members, except that they shall not be capable of undertaking or deputing proxy votes.

NOTE.—The object of adding honorary members to the Council is in order to obtain the support of gentlemen who have not been returned as representative members, but whose assistance the Council may desire.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER advocated the omission of the last clause until they came to deal with rule xiii., which made provision for proxy voting. They could not pass that part of the rule until they had settled the question of whether there should be proxy voting or not. When they came to that part he should move the omission of proxy voting altogether, for reasons which he would give.

The CHAIRMAN thought they had better take the rule as it stood, and deal with proxy voting later on; then if proxy voting were abolished they would have to cut out the last line.

Mr. J. W. TAYLOR, jun., moved that the honorary members on the Council be in the proportion of one to five representative members.

Rev. W. W. C. BAKER seconded. This was lost.

Mr. STRANGE moved, as a further amendment, that the number of honorary members be fixed at six; he did not think at any time the Council would require more than six of them. It was difficult at all to see how they could require the services of such gentlemen at all, for he thought that from such a large body of ringers as there were in the kingdom, they could get knowledge sufficient to decide any question that might come under their notice. As this was to be a representative body they ought to be jealous of the unrepresentative element.

Mr. GROVE seconded this amendment, but it was lost by a majority of two. The voting being 10 for, and 12 against.

Mr. COPLEY asked how it was in the original draft these honorary members were called "Aldermen," whilst now they were simply termed honorary members.

The CHAIRMAN said some of the clergymen had objected to being called aldermen, and so the term had been dropped.

The proposed rule was then adopted with that alteration.

Rule III. was as follows:—

- III.—That, except in the event of a vacancy, in which case the new member shall be elected only for the unexpired period of the three years, the election of representative members shall take place triennially, not later than January; but that, until notification of the election of a new member be received by the hon. secretary, the name of the former representative shall remain upon the register of members of the Council.

Mr. ATTREE suggested that, instead of January it should be Midsummer, which should be the latest time for the election of representatives; the annual meetings of nearly all their large associations took place either on Easter Monday or Whitsun Monday, and the representatives would have to be elected at a committee meeting, or at a district meeting, whereas this would be obviated if the returns could be withheld until Midsummer.

The CHAIRMAN said that would be about the last month when the notices could be given in for their Easter meeting. The elections might be made at any time between Easter and January.

Rev. A. D. HILL thought it would convey the meaning better if they said "not later than the end of the year."

Mr. ATTREE: That will suit my purpose.

It was finally agreed to substitute the words "before the end of the year," for "not later than January."

Rev. A. D. HILL then moved as an additional amendment to omit all that followed the words "but that until notification, &c." maintaining that they did not seem to gain anything by retaining them, because unless the hon. sec. had been informed that a member had retired his name must remain.

The CHAIRMAN said that after the triennial election all members would cease to be and in case a fresh election had not taken place they would have no members at all. This was to guard against an association being unrepresented in case it could not bring its election on in time.

Rev. A. D. HILL: We cannot go over the triennial.

The CHAIRMAN: Yes, he is supposed to stand on.

Rev. A. D. HILL did not understand that it was proposed to retain a member after the triennial election, and he did not think it ought to be so.

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER intimated that he would second the Rev. A. D. Hill's amendment. It seemed to him that if a society valued its representation in the Council it would take care that the election should take place in time.

Rev. T. L. PAPILLON: At the end of the triennial period for which the Council is elected, everybody's seat becomes vacant as a matter of course. I understand that by this rule, under certain circumstances, a name should stand for another period of three years, but I don't think that would be a desirable thing.

Rev. A. D. HILL's amendment was then put, and carried unanimously.

Rule iv. was next considered. It provides—

- "That the Honorary Members shall, as far as convenient, be chosen by the Council at their first Annual Meeting after the Triennial Election; but that, in the event of vacancies, others may be chosen at either of the following Annual Meetings.

Also that each Honorary Member shall retire after the third Annual Meeting from and exclusive of the Meeting at which he was elected, but be eligible for re-election; but that any Honorary Member who, during his term of office, may be elected a Representative Member shall, ipso facto, vacate his Honorary Membership."

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER moved to omit the first sentence in order to insert the whole of Rule viii., remarking that having now settled the constitution of the Council they could now proceed to settle its government.

The CHAIRMAN: I think you will find the division in the rules is that up to rule vii. is rather what is external, and that what is internal follows.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER: There is another difficulty about the members being appointed for three years exclusive of the meeting at which they were elected.

Rev. A. D. HILL replied that it was the only way to preserve the continuity of the office. They would only overlap in those cases where they had been elected later than the first meeting.

The CHAIRMAN said that honorary members would always have a year longer than the ordinary members. The object was to make them overlap so that the whole thing should not cease at one moment.

Mr. ATTREE pointed out that there was no rule fixing what was to be a quorum of members. If they did not fix what was to constitute a quorum, the honorary members might meet without any representative members being present.

The CHAIRMAN said that should be borne in mind.

Rev. H. A. COCKEY did not think it would be a very serious evil to be without honorary members for three months. The honorary members might terminate their office at the end of the year and none others be elected until the Easter meeting.

The CHAIRMAN: Then you would have the first triennial meeting without any honorary members at all?

Rev. H. A. COCKEY: Yes, that is my meaning.

Mr. COPLEY did not see how they could get over this overlapping.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER: Would it be as well to omit the words "as far as convenient"?

The CHAIRMAN: The object of these words is to shew that they need not fill up all the vacancies at once.

Rule iv. was then adopted.

Rule v. which was as follows, was adopted without alteration or discussion, except that Mr. Attree remarked that he did not think 2s. 6d. would go far towards paying the expenses of the Council.

V.—That all societies returning representative members to the Council be required to contribute annually in January, 2s. 6d. on behalf of each representative member returned, to meet the expenses of conducting the business of the Council, and that no representative member shall be entitled to vote at an annual meeting of the Council until the subscription of the society which he represents be paid.

NOTE.—It is hoped that all societies will also defray the travelling expenses of their respective representative members.

Rule vi. which was next taken was to this effect:—

VI.—That no member of the Council shall be under any obligation to contribute towards the expenses, but that, in the event of a deficiency in the funds, the hon. secretary be empowered to receive voluntary contributions from such members as are willing to afford assistance.

Mr. STRANGE thought this rule was altogether unnecessary; he did not think the fact of their making a rule of the kind would relieve members of the Council for any legal liability which they might incur.

The CHAIRMAN said the object of the rule was to instruct outsiders.

Rev. T. L. PAPILLON suggested that it was more a matter for a note than for a rule.

Rev. A. D. HILL: Will these notes remain appended to the rules.

The CHAIRMAN: Yes.

Rev. A. D. HILL: Then I agree with Mr. Papillon that this rule should be relegated to the position of a note.

Rev. T. L. PAPILLON moved that rule vi. be appended as a note to rule v.

Rev. A. D. HILL seconded, but after some further discussion it was decided to omit the rule altogether.

Rule vii. as proposed was—

That the Council meet once annually, about Easter, in London or other centre, as agreed upon at the previous meeting; but that the meeting following the triennial election be always in London. Also, that if the amount of business shall appear to the president and secretary to require it, the meeting may be extended to additional sittings on the same or the following day; but that notice of such extension be previously given on the agenda paper. The president to have power, in case of emergency, to call special meetings of the Council.

To this Mr. COPLEY moved as an amendment to omit the words "but that the meeting following the triennial election be always in London," for he did not see why they should bind the Council to meet in any particular place.

Mr. LONGDEN seconded, but the amendment was not carried.

Rev. H. J. ELSEE said that he represented one of the great northern associations, and with them it was a great expense to have to send their representatives to London. The expense of coming from Lancashire, or from Cumberland, or from Yorkshire, was greater than it was to come from Sussex, or from any of the home counties, and on that account and in many other ways it would be good for the Council to move about. They might produce good results in some other great centres such as in Birmingham, Manchester, or Leeds, by having representative gatherings of ringers from time to time.

The CHAIRMAN pointed out that the restriction was only as to one year in three; the two other meetings could be held anywhere.

Rev. H. J. ELSEE said he would move to omit the words "in London," because as the rule stood it gave a preference to London. He would have the triennial meeting held in London, because that was very central, and because the excursions that run up to London from all parts at Easter would render it easier and cheaper to get to London than to any other place. At other times preference ought not to be given to London over any other place.

The CHAIRMAN said the voting and the previous amendment had decided this question.

Rev. H. J. ELSEE: I shall move to omit the words "in London," as they occur first.

Rev. C. D. P. DAVIES seconded, and finally it was agreed to amend the rule by making the first sentence read "That the Council meet once annually, about Easter in some convenient centre." It was further agreed, on the motion of Mr. BULWER, seconded by Mr. PHILLOT, to substitute for the second paragraph the following: "Any meeting may be extended to additional sittings on the same or the following day on a motion for the adjournment being put and carried." On the suggestion of Mr. STRANGE, supported by the Rev. T. L. PAPILLON, the meeting consented to add to paragraph 3 of this rule a sentence empowering the President to call a special meeting of the Council at any time on the receipt of a requisition signed by twelve representative members.

Rule viii. was as under:—

VIII.—That at the annual meeting next after each triennial election, a president and hon. secretary be chosen to serve for three years. The hon. secretary to act also as treasurer. Either representative or honorary members to be eligible for these offices. Also that, in the event of the president or hon. secretary vacating office before the expiration of the three years, the ensuing meeting shall elect a member to fill the vacancy during the remainder of the period. The retiring president and hon. secretary to be eligible for re-election at the expiration of their term of office. The president to retire from the chair immediately his successor is elected; the hon. secretary to continue in office till the business of the meeting is concluded. All nominations for these offices to be sent to the hon. secretary, signed by two members of the Council, not less than two months previous to the meeting, so that the names may appear on the agenda paper. The next business after the election of a president and hon. secretary to be the election of honorary members.

Rev. H. J. ELSEE: Supposing the president and secretary are not returned at the first meeting of the Council, who is to act as president and secretary for that meeting?

The CHAIRMAN: Whether the secretary is a representative or not, he would go there ex officio, and retire at the end of the meeting.

Mr. STRANGE surmised that the results of the elections of the representatives would be in the hands of the representatives themselves sufficiently early for them to know whom they might nominate.

The CHAIRMAN thought there was sufficient time; the object of having two months was, that one month would be barely sufficient to allow the secretary to make the necessary announcements in the ringing papers.

Finally it was decided to alter the rule by substituting the term "one month" for "two months" in the matter of the nominations to the Council.

Rule ix. was agreed to without alteration. It was:—

"That the Council have power to appoint Associations for any purpose for which it may appear desirable; and also if the state of the funds permits to allow the necessary expenses of the Council meetings."

Mr. ATTREE: If the Council does not bear the expense who will?

X.—That any subject proposed for discussion should be notified to the hon. sec. in writing, signed by two members of the Council, not less than one month previous to the meeting, for insertion among the agenda. But that shall be competent, on a vote of a majority of the meeting, for the Council to discuss a subject not upon the agenda paper, providing such subject does not affect the rules or constitution of the Council.

XI.—That at all meetings the president shall take the chair, and that in the event of his absence the members present shall elect a chairman for that meeting. The chairman to have the casting vote.

Rev. A. D. HILL proposed that it be added to rule xi.:

"That one-third of the whole members of the Council form a quorum."

Mr. ATTREE seconded and it was carried. Mr. Attree then moved to strike out the words "That at all meetings," and substitute for them the words "at meetings of the Council."

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER seconded this, and this also was carried.

Rule xii., which next came up for discussion, was:—

"That all resolutions having reference to matters outside the private business of the Council shall be carried by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the meeting, and that, in such cases, the names of the voters shall be entered in the minute book under the respective headings of 'Ayes' and 'Noes.'"

The CHAIRMAN said that this was one of the most important rules; a great many suggestions were made, and not one seemed to cover the ground. The meaning of it was that, resolutions which had to do only with the internal management of the Council should be decided by a simple majority, but in matters which the Council might have to decide as affecting the whole body of bellringers, such for instance, as the legitimacy of seven bell peals, then a question of that sort must only be decided by an absolute majority of the whole Council, in order that the ringing world outside might know it was not carried by a bare majority. This rule referred only to matters of outside significance.

Mr. DAWE thought they might have a difficulty in getting so large a majority on any question.

Mr. STRANGE said the decision of the Council in important matters must be by a great majority, or else it would lose its importance.

Rev. A. D. HILL supported the proposals of the rule.

Mr. DAWE and the Rev. E. W. CARPENTER argued for a simple majority.

The CHAIRMAN said that if the Council wished to gain the respect of those outside, and was to maintain that respect, it would best do that if it were able to impress its dictums with a two-thirds majority. This Central Council would be a most valuable watch committee in the interests of ringers, but it must not be supposed that every step which they took would be submitted to them from the outside, and he hoped that they would initiate things for themselves, if not they would be a poor watch committee.

The rule was subsequently adopted.

Rule xiii. read to this effect:—

"That each member, whether representative or honorary, shall have one vote, except that, in the case of a society returning more than one representative member, any one of such representative members may act as proxy for the other or others on producing a written authority, signed by the member or members, for whom he claims to vote; but that no member shall act as proxy for an absent representative of any society of which he is not himself a representative member."

An amendment by Mr. LUCAS, making provision for a poll of the members was not seconded, and then the Rev. H. EARLE BULWER moved to omit all provision of voting by proxy, and to add at the end of rule xii. "each member, whether representative or honorary, to have but one vote." He said that his object in moving this was because, in his opinion, the proxy vote was altogether foreign to an assembly of representatives. He thought the system would be likely to introduce a great deal of what was objectionable in the proceedings of the Council, because it would have a tendency to induce men to stay away from the meetings of the Council, instead of giving their attendance and hearing the arguments for and against the questions submitted to the Council.

Rev. A. D. HILL said that he quite agreed with what the last speaker had said. He would cut out the whole of that rule but the first line.

The CHAIRMAN: That practically means cutting out rule 13, and adding to rule 12, that each member, whether representative or honorary, shall have but one vote.

Mr. STRANGE: Without giving any instructions as to the manner in which he should exercise the vote.

The CHAIRMAN: I don't think anything can be clearer.

Mr. ATTREE said this question of proxy was rather an important one. Proxy voting would save a lot of money and do no harm at all.

Mr. COPLEY thought it would be but fair to allow proxy voting in the interests of those associations which had to send their representatives a long distance, and which had little funds from which to pay their expenses. The Yorkshire Association would send four representatives, and if they were not allowed to vote by proxy would have to pay the expenses of four men, whereas it would otherwise save the expenses of three of them, by sending one up with the collective opinions of the four representatives.

The CHAIRMAN said that the object of the proxy voting was to meet a difficulty. It was said that the larger associations would not have proportionate representatives as compared with associations that returned one member because they would most probably be unable to send all their members up, and in that case the small associations would have sent representatives.

Mr. ATTREE: Cannot it be put that associations whose headquarters were a certain distance from the place of meeting might vote by proxy?

The amendment was finally adopted.

The two remaining rules were adopted without any dispute. They were as subjoined:—

XIV.—That full notice of the date, arrangements and agenda, for each meeting shall be advertised in the ringing papers fourteen days, approximately, previous to such meeting; but that it be not incumbent on the hon. secretary to send private notice to each member. Also that the names of the Members present and the business transacted at each meeting be entered in the minute book and reported to the ringing papers.

XV.—That alterations in the rules of the Council shall be made only at the annual meetings, and that every notice of a proposed alteration shall be sent to the secretary, signed by two members of the Council, not less than two months before the meeting. The secretary to take care that such notices be duly advertised among the other agenda.

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER thought they ought to have a rule as to the presentation of a statement of accounts; as one had not been provided, he moved that there be a rule that "at each annual meeting, the secretary shall present a statement of accounts of the previous year, which shall be examined and passed by the meeting."

This suggestion was accepted, and the new rule was added to those already adopted.

The question of title again came up for discussion,

Mr. ROGERS moved that the title be "The National Council of Church Bell Ringers."

Mr. NEWSON seconded, but this was not carried.

Mr. THORNTON proposed that it be "The Council of Church Bell Ringers."

Mr. HATTERSLEY seconded, but this motion also was lost.

Mr. MACKMAN suggested that it should be "The Council of Church and other Bell Ringers."

Mr. DAWE asked if they wanted the title "Church Bell Ringers" at all, as in all probability at some time or other they would go into handbell ringing.

Rev. E. W. CARPENTER thought they would find all the other ringers included in the Association.

It was then agreed by a very large majority to accept the title "The Central Council of Church Bell Ringers."

This was all the business.

THE DINNER.

The dinner, to which the representatives had been invited by Mr. Heywood, was served immediately upon the close of the business meeting. The repast was of a recherche character. The following was the menu:—

Roast Sirloins of Beef.
Boiled Legs of Mutton.
Broccoli Greens.	Cauliflowers.
Trimnings and Potatoes.
Roast Fowls and York Ham.
Peas Francaise.	Fried Potatoes.
Cabinet Pudding.	Apricot Sauce.
	Rum Jellies.
	D'Artois Pastry.
	Stewed Pears.

At its conclusion Mr. Heywood said he would propose one toast—"Church and Queen." This having been drunk, a discussion as to the most suitable time for holding the next meeting took place. Eventually it was agreed that Easter Tuesday, 1891, at one o'clock, should be the day and hour of next meeting.

Rev. A. DU BOULAY HILL moved, and Mr. J. W. TAYLOR seconded, and it was carried unanimously "That Mr. Heywood act as Hon. Secretary of the Council till the next meeting."

Rev. H. EARLE BULWER then proposed in graceful terms "The Health of Mr. Heywood," which was drunk with musical honours, and

Mr. HEYWOOD, in responding, hoped the questions they had discussed during that day would be so settled as to be of immense benefit to the Exercise.

The company then broke up.

FRIENDLY MEETING.

On Easter Monday, April 8th, a friendly meeting of ringers met together at Drihtlington, and rung several touches of Treble Bob Major during the day on the bells of the parish church. THE OLD EAST DERBYSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting and first Annual Dinner of this Association was held at the "White Hart" inn, Eckington, on Easter Monday. Ringers were present from Chesterfield, Eckington, Staveley, Sheffield, Norton, North Wingfield, and Killamarsh; also the Revs. H. E. Ferry and J. B. Drabble, the latter of whom presided.

After an excellent dinner had been partaken of, the Chairman in suitable terms proposed the toast of "Church and Queen." Mr. Geo. Marsden, the President of the Association, proposed the toast of "The Bishops and Clergy."

The Rev. H. E. Ferry in responding said he was very pleased to be present at the meeting. He had always taken an interest in the ringing of church bells, and regarded it as a branch of Church work, and urged upon the ringers present to do likewise, and he wished the Association every success, to gain which it must be based upon sound religious principles. He was also very glad to say that a great change for the better had taken place in the characters of the ringers and their conduct in the belfry. There was only one thing left in the old style wanting to be repaired, whilst we have rules for our choirs and choir-masters, if our bell-ringing is to be a success, it, like the other branches of Church work, must be carried on in the love and fear of God, and he was glad to see that one of the objects of this Association and by no means its smallest was to promote this feeling amongst its members. He disapproved of the choirman who simply sang at church for the gratification of hearing his own voice, and so with the change-ringing; there is no better exercise, but the ringer who goes to church simply for his own selfish gratification, and to pass away half-an-hour, and then go away without attending Divine Worship, is unworthy of his vocation, and whilst he did not presume to suggest that each member attend Divine Worship at least once on a Sunday, and that this be made a rule of the Association, yet they might all regard it as an unwritten law to do so. He was sure they all wanted the Association to be a success, and, to attain that end, the ringing of the church bells must be regarded by them as a religious duty, and not after ringing other people to church, they themselves to go away without attending the service. He had great pleasure in proposing the toast of the day, "Success to the Old East Derbyshire Association of Change-ringers."

Mr. Madin, a Staveley ringer, replied to the toast, and was glad to see that the clergy were now taking a great deal more interest in church bell ringing than formerly, and thanked Mr. Ferry on behalf of the association for the kind remarks and good wishes.

Mr. E. James, the secretary, proposed "the health of the visitors, Mr. A. Brearly and Mr. D. Brearly."

Mr. D. Brearly responded on behalf of himself and brother, and thanked the members for the kind welcome they had received.

A vote of thanks was accorded the chairman, and afterwards songs were sung, and peals were rung on the handbells.

The following gentlemen were elected honorary members of the association. The Revs. E. B. Estcourt, H. E. Molineaux, J. B. Drabble, E. Martin, J. Coleman and J. Waugh; J. S. Booth, Esq., H. Atcliffe, Esq., F. A. Turner, Esq., J. Dudley, Esq. and E. Craven, Esq., also twelve ringing members were elected.

After the meeting it was arranged to attempt a 5040 at Killamarsh in three weeks time, the company who are also members of the Yorkshire Association will include Hancock, Price and James of Eckington, Madin of Staveley, David Brearly and Arthur Brearly, of Sheffield.

ST. MARY'S, ASHFORD, KENT.

On Wednesday, March 19th, 1890, a meeting was held in the vestry of the parish church, to draw up rules and elect officers for a society recently started in connection with the above church, the old society being dissolved. The vicar of the parish (Rev. P. F. Tindall), was elected president; Mr. J. M. Cooper, conductor, and the Rev. J. Palmiter, North Street, secretary. It is hoped that the new beginners who have joined will strive to master change-ringing, and thus establish a permanent society, as the bells are in fairly good order, and Ashford would make a good centre for ringers to meet.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 12, 1890.

THE Central Council of Ringers is now become an established fact. From the exhaustive report of the proceedings of the Committee on Tuesday last, which we give in this week's number, our readers will be able to obtain a complete knowledge of the position which this movement has now reached.

Though among the assembled representatives there were slight differences with regard to matters of detail, and procedure, yet it may safely be said that the meeting was upon the whole unanimous. It is satisfactory to find that no one present questioned the propriety of the Council's formation, or hesitated to adhere to the opinion that some amount of good would accrue from its existence. The great bogey of "interference with 'rights and privileges,'" which many who advocated the formation of the Central Council have had held before them, was conspicuous by its absence. Not one, even among the metropolitan members, appeared solicitous of knowing whether the Council would ever undertake an inquiry into the mode under which London parochial ringers receive their well-earned fees, or the system of election which has been in vogue among them ever since the good old days.

The Central Council will we apprehend only be desirous of adjudicating upon questions which may affect the general body of ringers, and not matters which have but a local concern. Whoever thinks to air their crotchets in the Council Chamber for the purpose of securing the influence of the council in deciding upon their whims and hobbies, will if we mistake not, be greatly deceived.

THE complaint of one of the band who attempted the long peal of Stedman Cinques nearly three years ago is rather late in the day. There seems to be something in the mind of the complainant which he has not yet exposed to view; some occult condition or reason for his complaint rather than that which appears on the surface. Everyone recollects the failure of this peal, and there were very few that did not extend their sympathy to their performers. It seems a great pity that this matter should be reopened on the exact manner it has been. It is rumoured that the Society of College Youths intend to call the offender to account, that society appearing to consider that no question of this kind should be made public, but dealt with by themselves in solemn (or otherwise) conclave. The pains and penalties of expulsion have been visited on the heads of erring brethren ere now. We hope this Society will pause in the present instance before they take such a step. If they want to see the present offending individual posing as a martyr to his convictions expulsion will certainly do it.

THE lengthy report of the proceedings of the Central Council which we publish has compelled us to add four pages to our usual quantity of intelligence, and thus has slightly raised the cost of publication of this number. From the same cause a variety of other matter is postponed till a more favourable opportunity presents itself, which we hope will be next week.

One of the wits of the Royal Cumberlands—and this distinguished society has more than one of them—asks us to insert the following:—

As most ringers are aware, the 27th of March is a red-letter day, with the Royal Cumberland Youths, as on that day "in 1784," the celebrated peal of 12,000 of Oxford Treble Bob Royal, was rung by ten men of this society on the bells of St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, which by many proficient lovers of the Exercise stands pre-eminent to this day, "taking into consideration the weight of the bells," as a feat of endurance. It has been usual by the members of this society to commemorate the event on each recurring anniversary "when suitable," and this year was no exception to the rule, as on the corresponding day, and on the veritable bells, an attempt was made to record a performance, but unfortunately with a barren result, possessing several good bands of competent ringers. A previous arrangement had been made for a peal on the far-famed bells of the Old Bailey, St. Sepulchre's, by an efficient band, on March 29th, which had more favorable termination. Ample scope had been made for possible obstruction, and at the time selected twelve good men and true assembled at the trysting place, the genial steeple-keeper had made every preparation, and Dan quickly took his lions up to his den, and finding them all tame, with a few finishing touches to his handiwork, took his Dan'l down stairs, remarking good-luck, I Lovett. The ten men left soon placed themselves in their respective positions, and evidently look'd dangerous. The two Jac's strew'd themselves on the treble and fourth. The second was took in hand with a good Will, and was never more than three minutes in the Hunt. Mrs. Partington's son rang the third in a High-key and efficient manner, the artful Card on the fifth evidently meant scoring his first peal of Caters; Jemmy Hannington on the sixth, manipulated it grandly; Ben Foskett took his Weskett off for the seventh; the eighth bell was rung like a Church; T. Redman rang the ninth Hugh-ly, and stuck to his Colour throughout. "Who will ring the tenor" said the conductor previous to their starting—for as Abraham has rung her, I'll ring her till I-sick (as Jacob is not here) and Benjamin larf'd, while He-saw'd away. Hov(en) her along, Roll-ing it behind like a Brick, and mentioning that if 'twas not so was Yeast-e and with a slight Sponge he could have Dusted her along another Batch. Three hours and twenty-six minutes from the conductor called Gee-up, till the completion, and without a hitch. What are they ringing, enquired a connoisseur outside? "Concentrated essence of Grandfather's Gaiters," said a Joker to him, and if the rev. Haweis was in London and outside, he would Haw-ays come, as he is a lover of Bell-jam. After the performance the men adjourned to their meeting house for the usual refresher, and greetings, interspersed with some music on the handbells. One toast was drank: "The pious memory of the men who rang the 12,000." The members then dispersing to their respective domiciles, satisfied "That the Cumberland's that day had done their duty" (for 'twas a glorious Victory). JACK R. S.

I, said Edward
I'll Ring her like a Bard,
I am the Chap-Man.

There has died recently, in America, Mr. J. F. Smith, a once popular novelist, whose best known works — "Minnigrey," "The Will and the Way," and "Woman and Her Master"—afforded much delight to the grandmothers of the rising generation. Mr. Smith had reached the advanced age of 86. In conjunction with the late Mr. Howitt, he had written Cassell's "History of England," and he was also at one time a regular contributor to the leading newspapers of his day. "Minnigrey," which first appeared in the London Journal some forty years ago, is said to have raised the circulation of that periodical to close upon three hundred thousand a week.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.—The address of Mr. Thomas Card of Finchley, will after this week be North Field, Speldhurst, Tunbridge Wells.

THE BELLS OF CARLISLE CATHEDRAL.

We are asked to publish the following article, which has been taken from an old magazine. It was written by a Cumberland clergyman, who is a regular reader of this paper. Perhaps it will interest our readers:—

The late Archbishop of Canterbury, when Dean of Carlisle, appealing for funds to complete the restoration of the cathedral, said:—

The inhabitants of Carlisle will hardly wish to see their cathedral restored without having the bells put in thorough repair, which are said never to have been rung as a peal since 1745. This improvement could, I understand, be effected for a few hundred pounds.

The desired few hundred pounds, however, were not forthcoming, and the bells, as far as peal-ringing is concerned, still hang as mute as in the days of Dean Tait.

But, if no longer by their music, still by their inscriptions, as well as by the traditions and associations of the belfry, how many a tale they tell!

Fiction itself has told no more romantic tale than that which Dean Tait's reference to 1745 recalls; in which year, on November 17th, Charles Edward Stuart, seated on a white charger and preceded by a hundred pipers, made his triumphal entry into Carlisle. Tradition says that the peal of the cathedral bells on that occasion was the last they ever rang. The story, universally believed, and always told to visitors to the cathedral, is that they were forthwith sentenced to silence for a hundred years; since the expiration of which period they have not been rung for fear, it is alleged, of injury to the tower.

One would think they must have been rung when the city was recaptured by the Duke of Cumberland. But, whether rung then or not, they then ran a risk of being doomed to endless silence. Prebendary Wilson, writing on January 10th, 1745-6, to Dr. Waugh, chancellor of the diocese, who was then in London, said:—"A demand made by Major Belfour, in the Duke's name, of the bells of our cathedral, as a perquisite to the train of artillery, was a surprise to the members of the Chapter here, and very ill-relished by them. Mr. Birket, Mr. Head, and myself waited on the Duke to desire his protection. . . . The answer given us was that the Duke would not interfere in it: that if it was a perquisite we could not say nothing against it. The Chapter here would be glad to have your sentiments in this affair." (Mounsey's Carlisle in 1745, p. 173.) The chancellor's "sentiments in this affair" were on this wise: "I am fully persuaded that no law of this land, nor any military law, will justify Mr. Belfour's demand. . . . I dined this day with an old Lieut.-Gen. of great reputation (and others of great consideration in that way) who was quite out of patience at the mention of it." (ib. p. 180.) Under the influence of these "sentiments" the demand collapsed. Mr. Wilson, replying to the chancellor, said: "Mr. Belfour has left the town without pressing the matter further. . . . Scandalous, unprecedented, and illegal demand!" (ib. p. 181.) Discussion on this matter, if instituted in Notes and Queries, would probably elicit plenty of precedent for demand so astonishing to prebendaries, chancellor, and "old Lieut.-Gen. of great reputation." It is likely enough that church bells of many a captured town have been melted down as "perquisite to artillery train." The Duke seems to have thought it a matter of course. A London society of ringers at that time known as the "London Scholars," had they been aware of His Royal Highness's views on this subject, would have thought twice before "greeting the victorious Duke of Cumberland with a welcome home-peal on his return from the Scottish campaign." (Bell News, vol. ii. p. 66.) Worse still, they "were allowed to call themselves the Royal Cumberland Youths, a medal long in their possession being struck as a trophy of the circumstance." (ib.) Cumberland Youths, of all names, so called after the would-be destroyer of Carlisle Cathedral bells!

But how is the tradition of the bells never having been rung since 1745 to be reconciled with another tradition of one of them having been "cracked while ringing during the rejoicing for peace after the battle of Waterloo?" (R. W. Billings on Carlisle Cathedral, A.D. 1838, p. 44.) Well, as there have been no wheels to the bells within living memory, and may have been none in 1815—perhaps none since 1745—it may be suggested that the ringing for peace after Waterloo was affected by an exceptional arrangement of cords tied to clappers, very likely to crack one of the bells. The cracked bell, "removed to the back of the altar" (ib.), where it remained for many years, was recast, as shown by the inscription on the present fourth bell, at the Whitechapel foundry, by Messrs. Mears in 1845, and has now nearly reached the fortieth year of its renewed existence without ever having been once rung. Whether it has ever been sounded by a cord tied to its clapper is not known. It is now subject to no such indignity, its sole raison d'être at present being to supply the note A in the tune "St. David," played by the chimes at noon and 4 P.M. Its date, exactly coinciding with the termination of the century for which the bells are traditionally believed to have been condemned to silence, looks as if the Dean and Chapter had intended to humour the tradition by having the ring in full swing again on the expiration of the hundredth year after the '45. Indeed an old ringer has told the captain of the Stephen's (Carlisle) ringers that he well remembers taking part in practising a peal at Cockermouth, with a view to handling a rope in the expected ringing of the cathedral bells at the end of the hundred years. Perhaps, at the last moment, from fear of injuring the tower, the Dean and Chapter refrained from introducing wheels into the belfry.

The bells now in the tower are a heterogeneous company, from five different foundries, and of six different dates, but on that account historically the more interesting.

The second bell, which may be presumed to occupy the place of a cracked predecessor, of which no record or tradition has been preserved, has in Roman capitals, except where the founder's name and residence occur in script, with a flower as intervening stop, this inscription:—

GEORGE . FLEMING . DD . DECANVS | E. Sellar
GLORIA IN ALTISSIMIS DEO 1728. | Ebor.

Edward Sellar II., successor in 1724 to his Father Edward Sellar I., and sheriff of York in 1731, cast a good many bells for Yorkshire from 1724 to 1764 (Bell News, vol. ii. p. 1838). Sir George Fleming, Bart., son of Sir Daniel Fleming, Kt., of Rydal Hall, Westmoreland, born in 1667, was appointed Archdeacon of Carlisle in 1707, and Dean in 1727, retaining both offices until he became Bishop of Carlisle in 1734; he died in 1747. He had not long been dean, then, before the defect in the belfry was remedied. But he was not the donor of the new bell, an order for which, dated July 18, 1728, as I am informed by the present archdeacon, appears in the cathedral books.

Billings has recorded a remarkable inscription which he copied from the old fourth bell whilst it stood at the back of the altar:—"This Ringe was made six tuneable Bells at the charge of the Lord Howard and other Gentree of the Countie and Citie and Officers of the Garrison by the advice of Mager Jeremiah Tolhurst Governor of the Garrison. 1658."

Why was work of this kind advised, executed, and paid for, by laymen, with no sort of reference to ecclesiastical authorities? The answer is not far to seek. Bishop or dean in 1658 there was none, and for several years had been none. "The bishop's castle at Rose had been burnt, and the deanery let for manufacturing purposes. The cathedral had been ruthlessly mauled; about two-thirds of the nave destroyed, and the materials used to repair the castle." (R. S. Ferguson's M.P.'s of Cumberland, p. 2.) It has even been alleged against the garrison officers that "they were soe moved wth zeale and somwt^e else against magnificent Churches that they even designed to pull down the whole Cathedral and to have no Church but only St. Cuthbert's but ye Kinges hapie Restauration putt an end to these and such like Sacrilegious Intencons." (Dr. Todd's MS. History of Carlisle.) But there must be some mistake here. It would be strange indeed if the officers designed to pull down the whole cathedral at the very time when they were sharing the expense of providing it with "tuneable bells"; which work, moreover, was being done by the advice of the governor of the garrison. If ever the rest of the cathedral was in danger of sharing the fate of the nave it must have been the surrender of the city to Cromwell in 1648, and not the Restoration in 1660, which "putt an end to such like sacrilegious intencons."

UNION TRIPLES.

In answer to the Rev. C. D. P. Davies' letter in last week's issue, before I attempted to compose peals on the above, I was in a fault to know how the calls were made, and the information I got was that they were made the same as in Grandsire, as the method was taken from it. I do not care to compose peals, only those that are strictly to the method. The peal in question contains 106 bobs and two common singles. I was aware of the peals in "THE BELL NEWS" of October 24th, 1885, containing but 105 bobs and two singles (rather reverse doubles) which is not Union or Grandsire, as they are made when the treble is behind, but it will be found that the shortest number with common bobs and two doubles is 105 in all. If we are allowed to manufacture calls (with which I do not agree) to suit our composing, a peal can be got with seventy-two calls only. I send for publication a two-part peal on a three-lead plan, with only two singles made thus— $\begin{smallmatrix} 1 & 7 & 3 & 2 & 5 & 4 & 6 \\ 1 & 3 & 7 & 2 & 5 & 6 & 4 \end{smallmatrix}$ as I found that it cannot be got with two common singles, unless they are made at a plain lead, and that, I consider, is away from the method. The reason I sent the two-part peal is because it is a very good composition, and the nearest to be got with only two singles on that plan. In writing this letter I am obliged to express my ideas, and I hope it will be read with the same friendly spirit as it is given.

JOHN CARTER.

172, New John St. West, Birmingham.

SUTTERTON, LINCOLNSHIRE.

ON Monday, April 7th, the ringers of the parish church, Spalding, visited Sutterton by the kind invitation of the vicar, the Rev. A. C. Rowley, where they were met by G. Ladds (Pinchbeck), and E. Mason (Boston). Sutterton contains a beautiful peal of eight bells, which wants rehanging badly. Several times a nice sum of money has been spent upon them, the work being done by local men, and yet everything is in decay, and in a very bad state, and before long a floor and new frame will have to be put in.

Although the bells were found to be in such a bad state it was decided to attempt a peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing 1 hr. 54 mins., it came to grief. E. Jarvis, 1; R. Mackman, jun., 2; E. Mason, 3; J. W. Jarvis, 4; G. Ladds, 5; R. Mackman, (conductor), 6; J. Brown, 7; J. T. Ladds, 8. After a knife and fork tea, which was provided at the vicarage, the tower was again visited and a touch rung with J. S. Wrights, 3; E. Mason, 4; R. Jarvis, 5; the rest as before. At 7 o'clock the company drove back to Spalding, having spent a very pleasant day.

THE HERTFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.—A full report of the annual meeting of the above association will appear in our next issue.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

A new Pamphlet, by Dr. GEO. H. Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS. By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

THE HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

The Annual meeting of this Association was held at Hertford, on Easter Monday, when the towers of both All Saints' and St. Andrew's churches were visited, and touches of Superlative Surprise Major, Double Norwich, Stedman Triples, and various methods were rung throughout the day. About a quarter to one o'clock a short service was held at St. Andrew's church, and an appropriate address was given by the Rev. Canon Wigram, who is himself an ardent and enthusiastic ringer. At half-past one about forty of the members, accompanied by a few visitors, sat down to an excellent dinner at the Working Men's Club, provided by Mr. Starr, of the Coffee Tavern. The usual business meeting was held immediately afterwards, the chair being occupied by the President of the Association, Mr. Leonard Proctor, of Bennington, and amongst those present were the Rev. Canon Wigram, Hertford; Mr. E. P. Debenham, St. Albans, Hon. Sec. of the Association; Messrs. J. Staples, Secretary to the Hertford College Youths; E. Oram, churchwarden of St. Andrew's; S. Knight, J. Grey, F. George, Hertford; J. Kitchener, L. Chapman, W. Smith, H. Smith, Bennington; G. W. Cartmel, E. R. Mitchell, R. M. Pratt, R. Fowler, S. E. Mitchell, W. T. Waller, H. Brewer, W. H. L. Buckingham, St. Albans; J. Phillips, J. Craft, Baldock; J. Hare, Hitchin; J. Shepherd, H. G. Rowe, Hatfield; J. Mitchell, London; G. B. Lucas, Tottenham; N. J. Pitstow, Saffron Walden; H. Holifield, Bayford, etc. Letters of apology for non-attendance were read from the Rev. T. Lingley, Vicar of All Saints, Hertford; the Rev. J. C. M. Mansel-Pleydell, rector of Bengoe; and the Rev. Kenneth F. Gibbs, Vicar of Aldenham.

The preliminary election of the Rev. W. S. Willett, the Rev. A. D. Hill, and Mr. N. J. Pitstow was confirmed; and Messrs. W. T. Waller, E. Chapman, and S. E. Mitchell, of St. Albans, and Mr. Myhill, of Romford, were elected ringing members of the Association.

The Hon. Secretary then read his annual report, which stated that it was with much gratification that he was again able to report a steady increase in the membership of the Association, there being 101 ringing members (of whom eighty-three were resident, and eighteen non-resident) and three other non-residents whose provisional election would be brought up for confirmation. He should, however, like to see the list of honorary members increased, as for a county like Hertford it was small to a degree, but he was happy to state that they had gained the support of Mr. Henry Hucks Gibbs, of Aldenham House, as a life member, and of Canon Davys, of Wheathampstead, as an annual one. The success of the Association, and consequently the pleasure and advantage derived from it, depended in a great measure upon the exertions of the existing societies to extend and strengthen it, and he therefore appealed to them all to try and increase the number of honorary members. The subscription for ringing members was necessarily a small one, so that to carry on the work of the Association the assistance of honorary members was requisite, and if their number could be increased greater advantages would be offered to the ringing members. The report then went on to refer to the last annual meeting held at St. Albans, and to the three district meetings held since at Hitchin and Hatfield (two). As regards the progress of change-ringing in the county, twenty-two peals had been rung, sixteen on tower bells and six on handbells. Of the tower peals four had been rung at St. Peter's, St. Albans; three each at the cathedral and at St. Andrew's, Hertford; two at Hatfield; and one each at All Saints, Hertford, Bennington, Braughing, and Waltham Abbey. These various peals were described. Summarising the peals, Mr. Cartmel had conducted five, Mr. Washbrook and the Secretary four each, Mr. Buckingham three, Mr. Baker two, and the Rev. F. E. Robinson and Messrs. Rowe, J. C. Mitchell, and A. Shepherd one each; while of the ringing members, forty-eight rang in one peal or more during the year. The Secretary had hoped to be able to report that some new towers had been gained for the Association, but before the next report was laid before them he had every reason to believe that they would have at least four more. The Bennington band still held their own at the head of the Hertfordshire ringing companies, but at the same time the two Societies at St. Albans, the Hertford College Youths, and the Baldock Guild all deserved a word of praise and encouragement. The Bishop Stortford and Sawbridgeworth bands had also done some good performances, and he should be glad to see more of the names of their members in the books of the Association than at present. It was satisfactory to note that at Graveley a decided attempt had been made to introduce change-ringing, and great praise was due to the churchwarden, Mr. J. Wright, for taking the matter in hand. From Bushey, Oxhey, and Sandridge he had heard good news, and before long he looked for better still from those quarters. Passing on to individual performances, it was mentioned that Mr. Cartmel having conducted Holt's Original off 7-8, had completed his conductorship of that peal from each even pair of handbells—a performance hitherto unknown in the annals of change-ringing. In conclusion, it was stated that during the past year the existing rings of six at Bushey and Aldenham had been increased to eight; two trebles had been added to Graveley church, and at Sandridge the 2nd bell had been recast, and four others added, thus making a ring of six at both places.

The financial statement showed a balance in hand of £3 8s. 6d. Canon Wigram proposed the adoption of the report.

Mr. J. Staples seconded, and the motion was carried unanimously.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, Mr. Leonard Proctor being re-elected president, and Mr. E. P. Debenham hon. secretary; while Mr. G. W. Cartmel was appointed assistant secretary. Mr. R. A. Fowler was re-elected hon. auditor.

On the motion of Canon Wigram, Baldock was selected as the next place of meeting; a proposal by Mr. Buckingham in favour of Sawbridgeworth not being seconded, owing to the difficulty of getting there.

The Hon. Secretary, alluding to the late Bishop's resignation, said he thought it would be a graceful thing if they were to pass a vote of sympathy with him on his retirement; and on the motion of Canon Wigram, seconded by the President, the following resolution was unanimously passed: "That this Association expresses its deep sympathy with the late Bishop of the Diocese on the failure of his strength, which necessitates his retirement from the See, and records its earnest hope that he may be long spared to his family."

On the motion of the Hon. Secretary, a vote of congratulation was passed to Mr. Percival Heywood, of Duffield, on the formation of the Central Council (that being for a long time past a favorite scheme of his), coupled with the hope that it might prove of great benefit.

A vote of thanks was also passed to the clergy and churchwardens of All Saints' and St. Andrew's churches for placing their towers at the disposal of the Association, and also to Canon Wigram for conducting the service.

Canon Wigram and Mr. Oram acknowledged the compliment, and the latter having expressed his willingness to become an honorary member of the Association, he was forthwith elected.

A vote of thanks to the President, proposed by Mr. J. Staples, concluded the proceedings. The ringers afterwards returned to the respective towers and renewed the ringing.

THE JOHNSON MEMORIAL COMMITTEE.

The first meeting of the above was held on Saturday last, the 12th instant, at the "Tamworth Arms," Moor Street, Birmingham, when there were present A. Percival Heywood, Esq., and Messrs. John Day, H. Bastable, S. Reeves, H. Johnson, T. Rus-sam, and W. H. Godden.

Mr. Heywood having been unanimously elected chairman of the Committee, the following resolutions were adopted:—

1.—That a suitable monument be erected at the grave of the late Mr. Henry Johnson.

2.—That subscriptions for this object be invited from members of the ringing Exercise, and that such subscriptions be limited in amount to not exceeding 2s. 6d. each from members of the St. Martin's Guild, and 1s. each from all others.

3.—That Mr. John Day be Treasurer.

4.—That the subscription list be closed at the end of June.

Subscriptions, which may be sent in postage stamps, will be received and acknowledged by the undersigned, and the Committee recommend as far as possible that each company send a collective amount.

WORCESTERSHIRE AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting of this Association was held in the Chapter House, Worcester Cathedral, on Easter Monday, April 7th, the Rev. Canon Claughton, M.A., presiding. The rev. gentleman, in opening the proceedings gave the members a hearty welcome to the "Faithful City," and remarked that he felt highly gratified to preside at such a large meeting of ringers in the mother church of the diocese. He was sure their interest in the business of the meeting must be very great, owing to the fact that they had given up other pleasures on a general holiday to attend to matters connected with the Association. He hoped the business would be gone through with good spirit, and that the members would all have safe and pleasant journeys home.

The minutes of the last Annual Meeting having been read and confirmed, the Annual Report and Balance-Sheet were adopted. The address made mention of in the report did not take place owing to the absence from home of the Rev. Canon Creighton, LL.D., who promised to deliver the same, or get another of the Cathedral clergy to do so. Several new members were elected.

On the motion of Mr. Spittle, seconded by Mr. Wilkes, the Rev. Dr. Gott, Dean of Worcester, was re-elected President of the Association for the current year, as were also the Revs. Canon Cattley, M.A., and W. R. Carr, M.A., vice-presidents.

Proposed by Mr. J. Smith, seconded by Mr. L. Longney, "That Messrs. J. Naylor and H. B. Kingsford be re-elected Lay Vice-Presidents."

Proposed by the Rev. Canon Claughton, seconded by Mr. W. Micklewright, "That Mr. S. Spittle be re-elected Master."

Proposed by the Rev. H. Kingsford, seconded by Mr. H. Martin, "That Mr. J. Smith be re-elected Hon. Secretary."

Proposed by Mr. C. Barrett, seconded by Mr. H. Harris, "That Mr. Jas. Lewis (Wollaston), be elected Hon. Treasurer."

Proposed by Mr. W. Page, seconded by Mr. L. Longney, "That the Clerical members of the Management Committee be re-elected with the name of the Rev. H. Kingsford in the place of the Rev. Canon Claughton, resigned, with one representative from each company in union."

Several new rules were proposed and adopted, and several of the present rules amended.

A vote of thanks to the rev. chairman brought the meeting to a close. The towers of the various churches in the city were open for ringing during the day. The members afterwards adjourned to "The Pack Horse" (Mr. J. Perks), where the Association handbells were brought into use.

ST. THOMAS'S CHURCH, SALISBURY.

On Monday last, April 14th, a muffled peal was rung on the bells of the above church, as a last mark of respect to Mr. W. Lanham, who died on the 10th inst., aged 66 years, and was buried on Monday. Deceased was one of the oldest members of the city company of ringers, and had been associated with St. Thomas's belfry for nearly half a century. During the afternoon the age of the deceased was rung, whole pull and stand, and in the evening 504 Grandsire Triples by the following: C. A. Clements, 1; W. M. Lush, 2; W. Greenleaf, 3; W. Prince, 4; R. Gollop, 5; J. R. Jerram, 6; W. W. Gifford (conductor), 7; C. Gaisford, 8. Ringers from all three city towers took part in the ringing during the day. The bells of St. Paul's, Fisherton, were also rung muffled in the afternoon.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION.

A quarterly meeting was held at Streatham on Easter Monday, April 7th, by the kind permission of the rector. A capital tea was provided in the school-room by Mr. Daniels, to which over fifty members and friends sat down. After the tea the usual business was got through, with the Rev. G. M. Drought in the chair. Sixteen new members were elected, and it was decided to hold the Annual Meeting at Croydon. The bells of the parish church of the Immanuel were going in various methods during the afternoon and evening.

ARTHUR B. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

ALDENHAM, HERTS.

On the invitation of the vicar, the Rev. Kenneth F. Gibbs, eight members of the St. Peter's Society of St. Albans, visited Aldenham on Saturday, April 12th, for the purpose of attempting a peal on the ring of eight there. On arriving at the church they were met by the vicar, Mr. Bennett, the sexton and steeple keeper, and Mr. Child, the leader of the local company, who who accompanied them to the belfry to see that everything was right. The bells were raised and soon afterwards put in motion to the tune of Taylor's bob-and-single peal of Grandsire Triples. All seemed to go along splendidly for some time, but at length a trip occurred which resulted in the bells coming round at the half-peal end which was 1 hr. and 22 mins. from the start. Time would not allow of a second attempt being made, so with reluctance the bells were lowered. By the kindness of the vicar a substantial tea was provided in the parish room which received all the attention it deserved, and the handbells were afterwards brought out and courses of Grandsire Cinques, Bob Royal, Grandsire Caters, Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples, interspersed with a few tunes, caused the remainder of the evening to be passed away pleasantly. Before taking their departure, Mr. Debenham thanked Mr. Gibbs for his kindness and hospitality to the society. Mention must be made of the excellent go of the bells, which left nothing to be desired, and does credit to Messrs. Warner who rehung the peal, and to Mr. Bennett for his care and attention to the bells.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Easter Monday, April 7th, the Dewsbury Society journeyed down to Goole, leaving Dewsbury at 12.37 p.m. arriving at Goole 2.15., where they were met by some of the Goole ringers, who gave them a hearty welcome, and escorted them to the tower, where a new peal of eight bells had been recently hung, cast by Messrs. Taylor of Loughborough. After raising the bells in peal, they started to ring a half-peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, 2528 changes, which was accomplished in 1 hour and 40 minutes, weight of tenor 16 cwt. The ringers were J. Garforth, 1; J. H. Dixon, 2; I. Idle, 3; H. Robinson, 4; N. Hepworth, 5; G. H. Hardy (conductor), 6; J. Buckley, 7; G. Taylor, 8. After leaving the tower the ringers adjourned to the Schoolroom, where a knife and fork tea had been provided for them, to which ample justice was done. The Vicar, the Rev. Mr. Carr being at the head of the table during the tea, the Dewsbury ringers congratulated the vicar and the local ringers on having such a splendid peal of bells, which are a credit, both to the town and to the founders: the go of the bells was excellent, and they are hung in a very good circle, in fact everything is of the best. The visitors finally left Goole at 8.30., each one delighted with his afternoon's outing. They take this opportunity to thank the vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells, and their kind hospitality, and to the local ringers for the way in which they strove to make their visit as enjoyable as possible.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

ROCHDALE BRANCH.—A meeting of the above branch was held at St. Mary's church, Balderstone, on Saturday, April 12th. Members were present from Rochdale, Heywood, Bury, Oldham, Healey, Newchurch, and Milnrow. Touches of Grandsire Triples and Bob Minor were rung, and a meeting was held in the schoolroom, presided over by Mr. John Millett, owing to the vicar having been called away. St. Mary's parish church, Oldham, was chosen for the next meeting on Saturday, May 10th. The meeting closed with the usual vote of thanks.

THE BELLS OF CARLISLE CATHEDRAL.

Mr. W. Nanson, writing to the Carlisle Journal (March 26, 1883), on "Civic Archæology," says:—"An immense amount of destruction was perpetrated at and after the siege of 1645. . . . But by 1649 order and good government had been restored, and the citizens seem to have bethought themselves of replacing what had been destroyed." From much interesting matter unearthed by Mr. Nanson I select, as bearing upon the subject of this paper, the following order of the Court Leet jury on October 22, 1840:—

That (according to an ancient order) the Alderman of this City shall attend the Maïor upon every Lord's day to the Church in their gowns and likewise to attend the Maïor in the Markett place at or before the Sermon bell to the Church sub pena vjs viijd toties quoties and the Common Counselemen to attend likewise sub pena iijds ivd toties quoties.

The institution of "sermon bell" has long been obsolete at Carlisle, and the only tradition of it elsewhere in the diocese is that recorded by Bishop Nicholson concerning one of the bells of Ravenstonedale, which place he visited in 1703:—"This Bell used to rung in ye conclusion of ye Nicene Creed; to call in ye Dissenters to Sermon." (Bp. Nicholson's Visitation, p. 42.) The respect ordered in 1649 by the Court Leet jury to be paid to "sermon bell" at Carlisle was but characteristic of much that was to follow. The Corporation accounts, at an early period of the Commonwealth, show a mayor engaged with belfry reform and on the best of terms with the man who was destined a few years later to remodel the cathedral ring.

Oct. 27.—	Payed for wine wch was Bestowed on Maïor Tolhurst . . .	00 06 04
Nov. 11.—	Payed for the belles wheeles and their repaireing as also for the gaites of the Churchyard making and repaireing . . .	05 17 10
Dec. 16.—	Pde for wine and Biskets when Mr. Maïor and the Brethren wh the Capitalls did goe for to visit Maïor Tolhurst at the Castle . . .	00 18 06
Mar. 6.—	Given to the ringers upon Thanksgiving Day . . .	00 05 00

The situation may be taken in at a glance. Cathedral belfry, what with war, siege, Scotch army, and general confusion, fallen into sad disorder: no peal rung since pulling down of nave in 1646. New governor of garrison arrives at the castle; surname Tolhurst; christian name variously given, "Jeremy" by Jefferson (History of Carlisle, p. 119.) "Jerome" or "Jeremiah" by Ferguson (Cumberland M.P.s., p. 444), "Jeremiah" on bell afore-mentioned; enthusiastic advocate of change-ringing movement now spreading far and wide. "Sermon bell well enough it its way, Mr. Mayor," we may fancy him saying to newly-elected mayor, meeting him near the cathedral on Sunday after election day; "but the whole ring should be set going again." The mayor, Sir Wilfred Lawson, Kt. (Whelan's Cumberland, p. 135) high-sheriff the same year (ib. p. 69), quite agreeable, forthwith gives orders for "wine" to be "bestowed on Maïor Tolhurst," and for new "belles wheeles," not forgetting "gaites of churchyard." Good understanding, thus auspiciously begun, between the military and civil authorities, is placed on still firmer basis a month later over "wine and Biskets" at the castle. Bells now in full swing again, apparently five in number, as per item 5s. (one apiece) "to the ringers upon Thanksgiving Day." No mistake as to what going on in belfry up above.

What going on in cathedral down below not so clear. One fact emerges from the general obscurity; "man in leather breeches" at some time during Sir Wilfred's mayoralty, year but not day or month recorded, preaching in the "abbey" to "pastor of the Baptists with most of his hearers." (George Fox's Journal 6th ed., vol. i. p. 226), on which occasion, perhaps owing to the suddenness of his appearance, he meets with no opposition. On "first day following," when he preaches again in the cathedral, which he now calls the "steep-house," he is attacked by "rude people of the city with sticks and staves," but is protected by some "friendly people," especially "soldiers" to whom he had preached with acceptance at the castle, where a drum had been beat to call them to hear him. Great commotion in the cathedral. The "governor," name not given, but must be Tolhurst, sends down "a file or two of musketeers into the steeple-house to appease the tumult," also to see what the soldiers are about. Worse tumult in the street on Fox leaving the cathedral; "city in uproar." The governor himself at last comes down and orders off some of the soldiers to prison, "for standing by me and for me," Fox says, "against the people." Wrong there, George, for once in your life. The governor would have served soldiers the same had they been on the other side. He must leave the imprisoning of civilians to the magistrates. Sir Wilfred will see to that. Sir Wilfred does see to it; goes straight to what seems to him the root of the matter, and puts Fox himself in prison. "There I lay," says Fox, "till the assizes came: and then all the talk was that I was to be hanged. The high sheriff, whose name was Wilfrey Lawson stirred them much to take away my life: and said he would guard me to my execution himself." (ib. i. 228). Fox complains much of the conduct of the magistrates. Two magistrates, however, not of Carlisle, Gervase Benson, probably an ancestor of the present Archbishop of Canterbury, and Anthony Pearson, both of Westmoreland, try to befriend him. They jointly, when refused permission to visit him in prison, write a letter to "Carlisle magistrates, priests, and people," concerning his imprisonment. Pearson, baffled by the magistrates, applies to the governor of the castle; not expressly said to have done so, but clearly did. "The governor and Anthony Pearson came down into the dungeon to see the place where I was kept, and understand what usage I had. They found the place so bad and the savour so ill that they cried shame on the magistrates for suffering the gaoler to do such things." (Fox's Journal, i. p. 236.) He was not long in Carlisle gaol. "The Lord's power," he says, "came over the justices, and they were made to set me at liberty." It is pleasing to think that one of the persons instrumental in procuring his release may have been our campanistic major, Jeremy Tolhurst.

In 1657 Sir Wilfred Lawson, who had remained high sheriff since 1653, was again mayor, and the corporation accounts show that he did not find the bells in a satisfactory condition; apparently not more than three of them in use. It is evident that a more complete reform of the belfry than had been attempted in 1653 was now seen to be necessary, and "by the advice of Mager Jeremiah Tolhurst" was undertaken, probably involving a recasting of three of the bells into four, so as to increase the ring from five to six. Sir Wilfred, we may presume, interested on behalf of this undertaking "the Lord Howard and other Gentree of the Citie and Countie," whilst the sympathy and support of "the Officers of the Garisson," with the probable exception of a lieutenant who had been "convinced" by George Fox (Journal, i. 228), were secured by the major. The work not having been done at the expense of the corporation we get no information about it from the municipal books. But the bells to some extent tell their own story. The tenor (No. 6), has this inscription in clumsy Roman capitals:—

I WARNE YOU HOW YOUR TIME DOTH PASS AWAY
SERVE GOD THERFOR WHIL LIFE DOTH LAST AND SAY
GLORIE IN AXCELSIS DEO
JOHN AND WILLIAM LANGSHAW WORKMEN.

The treble (No. 1) has round its shoulder an ornamental band of conventional foliage, and on its waist the Langshaw initials with date—

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH GUILD OF AMATEUR CHANGE-RINGERS, GLOUCESTER.

The Second Social Gathering of the above Guild took place on Thursday, March 10th, in the girls' schoolroom, the patron, the Rev. A. R. D. Flamsteed, presiding. After tea at 6.30, the evening was spent in harmony. The vicar gave an address to the Guild. Miss Stubbs presided at the piano. The members of the Guild rung various tunes and changes on the handbells, and also contributed part songs, duets, solos, etc., to the enjoyment of all present. Supper was provided at 10 o'clock. The thanks of the meeting were given to the caterers—Mrs. Howell and Mrs. Youdell.

The election of officers of the Guild for 1890 took place at a previous meeting specially held for that purpose.

W. D. BALDON, Hon. Sec.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

The Quarterly Meeting in connection with the above society was held at Stafford on Easter Monday, April 7th, the following towers being represented: All Saints and Christ Church, West Bromwich, Wolverhampton, Wombourn, Willenhall, Tamworth, and some friends from Coalbrookdale. Ringing commenced with a 504 of Grandsire Triples, after which 503 Grandsire Caters was rung. A short service was held at 5 p.m., and a very kindly welcome was given to the society by the curate of St. Mary's, Stafford, after which a committee meeting was held in the vestry, when a letter was read from the Rev. J. R. Keble, stating that he would be unable to attend the Central Council meeting on the next day, when it was agreed that S. Reeves should take his place and attend. Three new members were elected, and it was also decided to hold the next meeting at Lichfield. Another 504 of Grandsire Triples, conducted by Mr. R. Cartwright, of Wombourn, brought the proceedings to a close, as it was time to get to the station for the return journey.

RE-OPENING OF THE ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE PARISH CHURCH BELLS.

On Easter Monday, April 7th, the ringers of the above town were early astir, as it was proposed to put the finishing stroke to the great work which has been carried out during the last six years, viz., pulling down the old tower which had become unsafe; building a new one; augmenting the beautiful peal of ten to twelve, decorating the church, and other restoration which in the aggregate have cost £11,000 or £12,000. The new bells and fittings were presented by Mr. Samuel Moss, who had been a singer at the church for fifty years; and the ringers and their friends. The church was re-opened on October 24th, 1889, and the bells rung for the first time, but this did not satisfy the Ashton ringers, and they decided to have a proper ringers' opening, and send out their invitations broadcast, which was responded to in a magnificent manner on the above date by upwards of 200 ringers being present from Birmingham, Leeds, Bradford, Huddersfield, Mirfield, Eccles, Sheffield, Manchester, Oldham, Liverpool, Stockport, Hyde, Stalybridge, Swinton, Mosaley, Saddleworth, Lindley, Middleton, etc., including such well-known faces as Messrs. Reynolds, Godden, Binns, Haigh, T. Hattersley, Lomas, Hammond, Stanbridge, and the Rev. H. J. Elsee.

The bells were started by the Ashton company at 9 a.m. with a touch of Grandsire Cinques, after which different bands kept both the parish and St. Peter's bells going to the tune of 'Treble Bob, Plain Bob, Grandsire, and a little Stedman, on all the numbers of bells for the rest of the day.

At two p.m. dinner was served by host Willan at the "Blue Bell" hotel, Scotland Street, at which the rector, the Rev. Canon Eagar, presided, supported by the Rev. H. J. Elsee and a few prominent members of the Ashton society. The Chairman prefaced the dinner by a few remarks, in which he gave a very cordial welcome to all who had visited them, and was pleased to see that his ringers were so highly appreciated as to receive such a response to their invitation that day. He was proud to have such a band of ringers in connection with his church; they had shown that they possessed both stamina and skill by ringing in the neighbouring parish of Mottram on May 18th, 1883, the unprecedented long peal of 16,608 changes without resting, a feat which he believed had never yet been equalled by any eight men. After exhorting the ringers to also remember their duties as churchmen and to take their place among the officers of that church, he concluded by asking God's blessing on the dinner.

The Rev. H. J. Elsee in moving a vote of thanks to the rector, church authorities, and ringers for their kind invitation that day, said he had often heard of the Ashton ringers long before he came in contact with any of them, and he must say that they fully bore out everything he had heard of their prowess. Seeing what they had done in the long peal at Mottram, he did not doubt but that with the increased facilities they now possessed in the newly augmented peal, they would still keep their name in front as worthy followers of the ringing science.

The motion was seconded by Mr. W. H. Godden, who said he had never before met with such unbounded hospitality as had that day been shown by their Ashton friends.

It was then carried by acclamation, and in responding, Mr. J. Hopwood, the Hon. Sec., said he was very glad to see so many of them, and he hoped they would all go away highly satisfied with their day's enjoyment, and that would be sufficient recompense to him and his fellow-members for any trouble it had been to them. Full justice was done to the excellent repast which was served up in the host's well-known style, there having to be three sittings down to accommodate all.

The proceedings were brought to a close about 9 p.m. with a short touch of Treble Twelve in, and one of Grandsire Cinques, by a mixed band from Ashton, Sheffield, Hyde, and Liverpool, and thus ended a red letter day in the history of the Ashton society, and will be long remembered by all who took part in it. Great pleasure was expressed at the excellent splice and "go" of the bells, for which great credit is due to Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, who were entrusted with the work.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, APRIL 19, 1890.

This week is published in another part of this paper, the Official Minutes of the Provisional Committee of the Central Council. By this authorised document our readers are made acquainted with the actual position of affairs in relation to this movement, and can thus form a pretty correct idea of the nature of the scheme. It is most desirable, we may say necessary, that every member of the Exercise should become au fait with the Rules and objects of the Council, which are now for the first time made public, so that when they are called upon to send a representative to the next Council they may fully understand the nature of the business he will be called upon to transact, and the character and routine of the laws which will regulate his mission.

Twelve months may seem ample time to determine upon the choice of representatives, but it should be borne in mind that should any important matter arise, or, as the rule puts it, "in case of emergency," the Secretary is empowered to call a special meeting of the Council. Therefore it is essential, we think, that no great length of time should elapse before some selection is thought of. Early action of this sort will prevent hurried elections, which, in some instances was recently the case.

ST. MARY-LE-BOW, CHEAPSIDE.—A noteworthy event occurred on Easter Monday at this church, so widely celebrated in the English-speaking world, viz., the ringing of a full peal upon the historic "Bow Bells" by a band of the Ancient Society of College Youths. Twenty-six years have elapsed since a similar feat was accomplished in the same tower, a peal of Grandsire Caters having been rung on December 19th, 1863, by ten members of the same society. At that time there were but ten bells in the steeple, although the "cage," or "frame," constructed by the Whitechapel Foundry in 1738, was originally arranged for twelve bells. Not until St. Paul's Cathedral had been invested with its grand ring of twelve were the authorities of Bow moved to complete the early design, and the Whitechapel foundry, at the beginning of 1881, were instructed to complete the work which they had commenced a century and a-half before. The two new treble bells were finished and in place by the September of 1881, and were opened with the usual ceremonial. It at once became an object of ambition with the College Youths to ring a full peal on the twelve bells, but the bell-frame proved to be in such a shaky and rickety condition that it became a work of much labour to ring the bells for about twenty-five minutes, the time usually occupied when ringing for Church or State functions. Such was the state of things that in 1866 a report upon the frame was called for, and three of the most experienced workmen and the manager of the Whitechapel foundry, after an exhaustive examination, came to the conclusion that the frame required to be replaced, but the funds not being then in hand to defray the cost, some temporary repairs were effected at a cost of about 60*l.* The ringers then, in the face of all difficulties, succeeding in completing their remarkable feat of endurance and skill, and this too, at the first attempt. It is certain that a peal will never more be rung at Bow with the existing frame, so that it becomes a question in comparatively a short time whether the most renowned and beautiful peal of bells in the world, in the centre of the City, shall become for ever silent for the want of the 300*l.* or 400*l.* to re-establish them.—City Press.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Tuesday, April 8th, six members of the St. Mary's company, Chepstow, paid a friendly visit to Magor, near Chepstow, where they were met by the local company, and then to the church of St. Mary, which contains a pretty ring of six bells, tenor about 10 cwt. and in good going order, where they rang some 6-scores of Grandsire and Bob Doubles, and also some short touches of Bob Minor. After partaking of refreshments with some of the local company, a ride on "shank's pony" of two or three miles across the fields brought them to the church of St. Thomas, Redwick, where they found a ring of five bells cast by William Evans, of Chepstow, and bears the date of 1763, tenor about 16 cwt. and are in good going order. Then the village blacksmith was hunted up for the key of the church, which is one of his own make, being about a foot in length. After which they rang some 6-scores of Grandsire and Bob Doubles, supposed to be the first ever rang on the bells. After refreshing the inner man with some of the local company, the return journey was then made to Magor, and after some more 6-scores and Minor, the bells were lowered in peal. The following were the company: C. Davies, J. Prickett, W. Freestone, T. Collinson, G. Watkins, and J. Morley, the conducting being between J. Morley, G. Watkins, T. Collinson, and W. Freestone. The above are all members of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association.

The ringers wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" to thank the Rev. Pitt Eykyn for his kindness in allowing them the use of the bells.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

BLACKBURN BRANCH.—On Saturday, April 12th, a meeting of the above branch was held at Clitheroe. The following places were represented: Blackburn, Church, Clitheroe, Slaidburn, Waddington, and Whalley. The meeting was held at the "White Lion" hotel, and presided over by Mr. J. Walker, of Blackburn. Ten new members were made, including one honorary member, Bishop Cramer Roberts, D.D., vicar of Blackburn. Several 720's of Bob Minor, and touches of Grandsire Triples were rung during the afternoon and evening. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Hoddleston, near Darwen, on Saturday, May 10th. Votes of thanks to the Vicar, Wardens, Chairman, host and hostess, brought a very successful meeting to a close.

PORTISHEAD, SOMERSETSHIRE.

A large clock and chimes have been erected this Easter at the above parish church by John Smith and Sons, Midland Clock Works, Derby. It shows the time on three skeleton dials each 5ft. 6in. across, fixed in the upper part of the tower. The Cambridge quarter chimes are played upon four bells, and the hours are struck upon the largest bell. The clock is fitted with all modern improvements, to ensure perfect accuracy of time-keeping. It has a double three-legged gravity escapement, and a very heavy pendulum which is compensated so that changes in the temperature will not affect the time-keeping. There is also an apparatus to continue the action of the clock during the time of winding, and a small dial on the frame by which all the various sets of hands may be regulated and set to time simultaneously. All the wheels throughout the clock and dial works have machine-cut teeth, so as to be perfectly accurate. The main frame of the clock is of one solid iron casting, planed smooth, and all the wheels, levers, and other working parts arranged upon it in such a manner that any separate part may be removed without interfering with the remainder. This is a great advantage in large turret clocks. Steel wire ropes of the best quality are used to carry the weights, which work in one corner of the tower. The addition of this clock to the church will be of very great use to the town where they have been short of a standard timekeeper. Messrs. Smith and Sons have recently fixed similar clocks at East Teignmouth Church, Thorncombe Church, and others in the West of England.

TYLDESLEY (Lancashire).—On Sunday evening, March 30th, at St. George's church, 720 Bob Minor in 23 mins. J. Aldred (conductor), 1; J. Eckersley, 2; J. Potter, 3; R. Aldred, 4; G. Heaton, 5; C. Oakes, 6. J. Potter hails from Walkden; the others are local ringers.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The Eighth Annual Meeting of this Association was held at Derby, on Easter Monday, April 7th, when all the towers were open from 10 a.m. At the general meeting which was held at the Coffee House, Midland Road, eighty representatives from Burton-on-Trent, Derby, Duffield, Leicester, Long Eaton, Loughborough, Melbourne, Nottingham, Nuneaton, Ripley, and Sandiacre were present. The President, A. Percival Heywood, Esq., occupied the chair, and one honorary member and ten ringing members were unanimously elected.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and duly passed, and the President gave an account of the Society's progress during the past quarter, which was well received; and he also stated that it was with great pleasure he had learned how well the monthly ringing meetings in each district (suggested by the honorary secretary at the last quarterly meeting held at Leicester) had been attended, and thanked the hon. sec. for the interest he took in the Society. As far as Duffield was concerned, he further stated they had come to the conclusion that it would be best for them to arrange a peal on their bells as nearly as possible every month, and if any members of the Association were desirous of ringing a peal at Duffield, and would write him, they would do all in their power to make up a band in any method they practised.

This met with general approval, and will no doubt help on the progress of the Association. It was also decided that the local secretaries in each district should advertise every meeting once in "THE BELL NEWS," and that this would be the only notice issued in future. The treasurer's accounts were duly passed, and a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded the retiring officers for their services during the past year.

The election of officers for 1890-91 was next proceeded with, and as no nominations had been sent in Mr. Jaggar proposed, and Mr. Cooper seconded, the re-election of A. Percival Heywood, Esq., President, Mr. Wm. Wakley, Hon. Treasurer, and Mr. Joseph Griffin, Honorary Secretary, which was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. Cooper rose and said that he thought the time had come when they should acknowledge the services rendered by their Honorary Secretary during the past seven years, and eventually proposed that £5 5s. be given out of the funds of the Association.

This was seconded by Mr. E. Denison Taylor, and passed unanimously.

Ashby was selected for the next quarterly meeting, and now that the Midland Railway Company run a late train to Leicester, the officers look forward to a good attendance of members.

THE DEVONSHIRE GUILD.

On Monday, April 7th, several of the St. Sidwell's band were by the kind invitation of Colonel Troyte, entertained at his residence, Huntsham Court, for the day, so as to partake in some ringing with his band. A touch of 1022 Grandsire Triples was well struck during the morning. — Norrish, 1; — Paine, 2; E. Shepherd, 3; Col. Troyte, 4; F. Shepherd (conductor), 5; S. Binfield, 6; W. Stocker, 7; F. Davey, 8. After luncheon a start was made for a peal, but after ringing nearly 2000 changes one of the men was taken ill and "stand" was called. Some practice with other branches brought a pleasant day's ringing to a close. The visitors wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" to thank Colonel Troyte for his kind hospitality and the use of his handbells, on which the members of both bands rang Triples and Caters.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The members of the Bedfordshire Association held their Annual Meeting at Bedford, on Easter Monday, mustering in strong force. During the day they visited the belfries of St. Paul's and St. Mary's, at the former church ringing touches of Grandsire Minor, Grandsire Major, and Grandsire Triples, and at St. Mary's several 720s in Minor methods. In the afternoon they assembled at St. Paul's schoolroom, where an excellent meat tea was provided by the sisters of the Ely Deaconesses Home. The Rev. Lambert Woodard occupied the chair, and Mr. T. G. E. Elger (the Hon. Treasurer) the vice-chair. Among those present were Canon Newbolt (Principal of Ely Theological College), Rev. A. C. Downer, Rev. J. Copner, Rev. J. M. Challis (Sandy) Messrs. T. Bull (Hon. Auditor), F. A. Blaydes, E. Ransom, Rev. W. W. C. Baker, and C. Herbert (Hon. Secs.), and many others.

After tea the usual business was transacted.

The Rev. W. W. C. Baker read the report, as follows:—

"The Committee have the honour of presenting the eighth annual report. They have still to regret that the operations of the Association are confined to so few centres, and must express disappointment that their offers of assistance have met with such small response. More than a year ago, a copy of the report and the following circular was sent to the incumbent of every parish in the county possessing a ring of five bells and upwards: 'Milton Bryant Rectory, Woburn, March 23, 1889. Dear Sir,—May I draw your attention to the enclosed report of the Bedfordshire Association of Change-ringers for last year, and particularly to the proposals on pp. 9 and 10 for paying half the expenses of an instructor for twelve lessons, and for lending copies of works on change-ringing to bands commencing to learn the art? We should be glad to assist you as far as possible if you desire to form a branch of the Association in your parish, and venture to hope that in any case you will become an honorary member in the interests of belfry reform and the spread of scientific change-ringing.—I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully, W. W. C. Baker, Hon. Sec. Beds. Association of Change-ringers.' The Secretary has, however, received no reply or request for help from any parish. In view of these facts the committee feel that the charge of apathy brought against them some short time back in the public press is hardly warranted, and that the fault, if any, rests rather with the parochial authorities. The Association cannot force themselves upon any parish, but can only make known their objects, as they have done, and wait for invitations to give assistance and counsel. The record of achievements in the past year is very scanty. This is owing to the loss of members in some bands by removal, and during the past winter illness has in many places prevented much work being accomplished. The establishment of a small library of books for loan among beginners has been much appreciated. Books have been applied for by the Sharnbrook, Turvey, Biddenham, and Woburn branches. The Midsummer meeting was held at Turvey on June 22nd, when members attended from Bedford, Woburn, Aspley Guise, Sharnbrook, and Emberton, and some good ringing in various methods was accomplished. The members of the Association are much indebted to the Rev. G. F. W. Munby for the hearty welcome accorded to them and his kind hospitality on the occasion. At Michaelmas the meeting was held at Woburn. There were not so many members present as could have been wished. The Christmas meeting was intended to have been held at Arlesey, but owing to the notice of the meeting not appearing in due course, it unfortunately fell through. The Committee hail with satisfaction the establishment of a Central Council of Church Bellringers, and invite the Association to confirm their action in nominating a representative to serve on the Provisional Committee."

Mr. Blaydes, in moving the adoption of the report, said it seemed to him a great pity that the appeal which had been made by the energetic Secretary of the Association to the clergy throughout the Archdeaconry had met with absolutely no response. If the clergy considered the great use of the Society, how it afforded not only amusement to many men in the winter, but even something more—intellectual training for the mind, physical training for the body, as well as companionship and other things—some of them at least he thought would have responded to the appeal. If they had lived like him in the backwoods of New Zealand, where the only bells to be heard from year's end to year's end were the cow or sheep bells, they would learn to value the sweet-toned voices of the Church bells. When entering the beautiful harbour of Sydney by steamer it was a great treat to him, after being so long deprived of the sound of them, to hear a peal of church bells, for it brought back to him remembrances of his childhood's days and of his father's parish in Northampton. He ventured to express the hope that the next appeal their Secretary made would meet with better response. It was a great pity that there should be beautiful bells in many cases absolutely going to decay for want of careful attention and proper management and treatment. Bells were not put up without a great deal of cost, and were not hung in order that they might remain dumb and silent. They well knew how easily bells would deteriorate and get spoilt for want of a little attention. When he went to live at Tilsworth he found the bells were absolutely unringable; the cage was all to pieces, one bell was cracked, and the ropes were rotten. He got up a subscription and put the bells into order, and now they were a source not only of amusement but of healthful recreation to the young men, and were much appreciated. He remembered that when he was a lad in Northants, it was the practice of all the principal farmers in the parish to take a turn in ringing changes on the peal of five bells; it was a very high steeple, and the bells had a long pull, and as none of them had stays the ringers had to hold the ropes with their feet when they wished to rest their hands, so that it was a rather laborious task. Bedford people were pleased to welcome the members of the Association to the town, and to hear their skill applied to the beautiful bells of St. Paul's. He wished their visits to Bedford were more frequent, and that their visits to other places were more appreciated. He was sure if people only thought and studied the subject well they would see the advisability and necessity of supporting an Association which did so much good in reviving an art which to a certain extent had fallen into disquietude. The terms of the Association were so reasonable that no one could offer the expense as an excuse for not accepting the services of an instructor to show the young men how properly to use the ropes and ring the bells.

The Vice-chairman said that as one of the oldest members of the Society he was very pleased to second the adoption of the report, and he was proud of the position of the Society. He believed it was started about the time of his mayoralty, and no one at that time ever thought it would attain its present dimensions. The Association had done a great deal for belfry reformation in the county, and he hoped it was destined to do a good deal more. But to his mind there was something which was quite as pressing as belfry reform, and that was bell reform. He did not altogether agree with Canon Haweis' strictures on change-ringing, but he did agree with a great deal of what he said about the bells. He thought that since change-ringing had been practised in this country, for the last 200 years at least, the bells had not improved. As a nation the English were not sufficiently proud of a good bell, and perhaps Canon Haweis might be right when he said they did not know a good or a bad bell when they heard one. In a recent paper, Canon Haweis scouted the idea of the English nation, whatever their pretence might be, of being musical; they were not really musical or they would not stand some of the bells in the country. He, Mr. Elger, thought that in Bedford and the neighbourhood they suffered very much from bad bells. Their Association could do nothing but in connection with other similar societies throughout the country, for they thought a little more about the bells—he was going to say a little less about ringing, but he thought if they considered as much about the quality of the bells as the peal a great improvement would result. In ringing literature one was struck with the absence of remarks about the quality of the bells. If they turned to that subject a little and were more exacting of the bellfounders, they might in time have more musical bells, and in the course of a century or so perhaps they would attain to that elysium Canon Haweis referred to, when there would be in every town a carillon of sixteen or eighteen bells, similar to those at Antwerp and other towns in the Low Country. In this neighbourhood, he thought, as he had said before, they had, especially in small churches, some very bad bells. When he was going to church the other morning—he would not mention its name, and he had never been to it before—as he was walking along he heard a noise something like a man cutting a brick, and found it was a church bell. He did not think English people ought to stand that sort of thing. They should take as much pride in the bells as they did in everything else about the church. If they could not afford to buy a bell that was musical and worth hearing they should not have one at all. It seemed that bells were specified for by the architect at so much per pound, and no one cared a straw about their tone. If the Society did a little in the way of improving the quality of the bells he thought they would be benefitting the community at large.

The report was then adopted.

The Vice-Chairman then read the balance-sheet. He said he was glad to report that their funds were still in a satisfactory condition. They spent a little more last year than in the previous year, but still they have a balance to the good. The previous balance was £19 12s. 10d., and they had received from honorary members £2 17s. 6d., from performing members £2 4s. 6d., a donation from the Rev. H. Wood of 10s., and one year's interest in the Bedford Savings Bank—6s. 9d. At the end of the year they had a balance to the credit of the society of £19 3s. 11½.

Some discussion ensued as to various details connected with the Society's working, and ultimately the report and balance-sheet was adopted.

Mr. C. Herbert, of Woburn, resigned his position as one of the Hon. Secs., and in reference to this,

Mr. E. Ransom said they all felt that Mr. Herbert was practically the founder of the Association; his name was inseparable from the society, and he must retain dignified office in connection with it as long as he lived. They should not only remember his name, but keep it prominent in connection with the vice-presidents or some other position in the society.

On the proposition of Mr. King, seconded by Mr. Allen, Mr. Herbert was unanimously elected a vice-president, and in expressing his thanks, he promised never to lessen his interest in the society.

The following rules, notice of which had been given by Mr. Clarke, were agreed to—(1) That a local secretary shall be elected for each district (by the ringers of that district), and shall collect the subscriptions of members and pay them over to the Hon. Sec., to be handed over to the Hon. Treasurer in due form; to keep account of all 720's and upwards of 1000 changes during the time he holds that position, to be reported in the annual report. (2) Any member whose subscription is more than a month in arrear shall receive notice to that effect, and unless the subscription be paid within the next three months he will be deprived of the privileges of the Association. (3) Distinguished ringers outside of Bedfordshire may become honorary performing members on payment of 2s. 6d. Their names will then be retained on the books without any further payment during the time they continue to reside out of the district, but they shall not be eligible for election to any official position, or to vote at the election of officers, or to receive any notices or annual reports issued by the Association during such time. (4) That all peals of 5000 and upwards rung by members only be entered in the peal-book, all expenses of such to be paid for out of the Association funds. The peal-book to be at each annual meeting open to members for inspection. (5) That the Secretary holds the sum of £2 of the Association funds for working expenses during the year.

It was also resolved to allow ladies to become honorary associates if duly qualified, it being understood that they would not be allowed access to the belfry for practice on the handbells.

The Rev. W. W. C. Baker proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar of St. Paul's for the use of the schoolroom, and also to Sister Fanny and the sisters of the Home for the excellent way in which they had provided for the Association last year and this. Last year they were in haste and that duty was omitted. He thought the present arrangement was far preferable to the old way.

The Vicar, in response, said it gave him great pleasure to meet so many working-men at those delightful annual gatherings, and he hoped they would continue to make use of the room. The attendance at those teas was quite as large as it used to be at the hotels, and he was sure the present arrangement was preferable. He was sorry that at St. Paul's they had not an additional bell. At the gathering last year he mentioned that he expected they would have two more bells, but very little had yet been done to procure them. He hoped some of the ardent supporters of bell-ringing would have set a subscription list on foot, for the churchwardens and himself were so continually begging that people got quite tired of their appeals. He hoped before the next annual meeting of the Association some of the ringers who so frequently rung at the church would get up a subscription list for providing the church with two new bells, and then they would have what they wanted—the finest peal in the town. They heard a great deal of belfry reform, but the reform he would like to see effected most was that the ringers who by their ringing invited others to the service, should themselves attend the service. The ringers gave such a cordial invitation to the church that they were really the hosts, and for them to be absent from the service was an anomaly. He was sure the churchwardens would reserve them seats if they were asked, for bell-ringers were ministers of the church, and had as much right to be provided with seats as the choir.

Mr. Bull promised to take care that front seats were reserved.

The Rev. A. C. Downer observed that in his old parish in Yorkshire the ringers had a special pew which they looked after very carefully.

The company then adjourned to St. Paul's church, where a sermon was preached by the Rev. J. R. Vincent, B.A., Chaplain to Ely Theological College, on "The Privileges and Responsibilities of the Ringer." The rev. gentleman took for his text Psalm cl., 5—"Praise the Lord upon the well-tuned cymbals: praise the Lord upon the loud cymbals." By special desire we give this excellent discourse:—

Certainly, my brothers, such gatherings as this of yours to-day in Bedford have advantages which we can ill afford to overlook. (1) And I suppose the first advantage of such meetings which occurs to us is this—that they are occasions for deepening and strengthening that unity and brotherly feeling which I am thankful to say, as a rule, exists among ringers. It is surely encouraging and cheering for us ringers, coming as we do from so many different parts, and meeting perhaps at the most only once a year, to look our brother-ringers in the face—to grasp the hand of fellowship and to stand together in the well-struck touch. And we go back to our various parishes braced and cheered for our work, feeling that though our lot may be cast in a remote village, we are not alone—we belong to large bands of men who like us, have one end in view, viz., the exercise of those powers of mind and body, which God has given us to their fullest extent, that by continual perseverance we may bring to perfection in ourselves and others the art of change-ringing. (2) Nor is that all. Such gatherings are (we may say) most important, because they are a point of vantage at which we may take our stand, and gain some sort of estimate of the progress which has been attained in Belfry Reform, and of the advance which has been made in the great science which we have so much at heart. Such a meeting as that of to-day would have been impossible not so many years ago—but now as year by year fresh faces are seen at our festival and new belfries are represented by their ringers, we are able to gauge (are we not?) the rising tide, and we thank God and take courage, arming ourselves with fresh resolves, bracing ourselves up for fresh endeavours. Yes! you will agree with me when I say that such gatherings of ringers like the present are most certainly times of thanksgiving, as we learn of the progress made in Belfry Reform and the art which we love. And if it be so let us see that while we mingle our thanksgivings for these so great benefits with our thanksgivings for the inestimable benefit of which we are reminded and which are assured to us by this great Easter Festival. Let us see, I say, that our thanksgivings are real, giving with no grudging heart. (3) But there is yet another advantage in these meetings of bell-ringers which I venture to think is more important than either of which I have spoken. I mean that at a time like the present we can learn, and we can learn it so well nowhere else—a lesson which to us bell-ringers is all important. Have you ever, brethren, ever really understood what it means to be a ringer, that is that it means something beyond a pleasant occupation which will help us to pass the time, and will bring us into pleasant company. Have you ever faced not only the privileges but also the responsibilities which are yours as ringers? Have you in a word learnt the spirit in which we have to handle those ropes which have been put into our hands by the great Head of the Church—Christ Himself. Well we have I trust learnt something of this lesson, we are not altogether unmindful of our privileges and responsibilities, but it is a lesson which we all feel has to be re-learned again and again; for it is so easy to go on with our touches Sunday after Sunday, week after week, and to forget that by our bells we speak to our fellow-men, that those bells are given as a sacred trust, it is for the good of others, and above all it is for God's praise and glory that we ring them. Ah yes! it is easy (we all know) to forget all this. So shall we not this afternoon try to re-learn once more this old lesson, so that we may go back to our parishes determined to rise to the full dignity of our position as ringers, to exercise to its full our sacred trust, to seek to produce peals in the most elaborate methods possible, but for God's glory. (a) And first let us just remind ourselves what these bells are, of which we are the trustees. They are not (let us be quite clear of this) they are not mere playthings given just to amuse us; nor are they even to be considered as being on a level with any musical instrument which may have been put into our hands upon which to play. No! they are more than that. In the first place they have a history all their own. Whether we choose to trace their descent from the silver trumpets of the Jewish Priests or the bells on the High Priest's robe, or whether we prefer to ascribe their origin to the rough Semantron or plank struck by hand with a hammer, at all events beginning with their introduction by Paulinus, Bishop of Nola in Campagna about the year 400. Step by step we can trace out their history; not forgetting that as early as the reign of King Egbert we have directions given to the clergy to sound their bells at the proper hours. And so we mark the gradual improvements, which as years go on are to be found both in the bells and in the ringing of them. We can note too the history of bell-founding, as it is shewn us by the rise and decline of the fame of the various well known founders. And we can see how the great art of change-ringing was slowly developed as method after method was produced, and composer after composer left behind him his peals. And then too, each bell has a kind of history of its own, which, probably is traced in its inscription. All then, I say, ought to feel no ordinary interest in the bells we ring. (b) But further: if bells have an interest from their history, still more should they fill us with interest from the associations which have ever gathered round the sound of Church bells. The sound of the bells! What various memories, what different feelings do they call up in those who hear them. And they have national associations connected with them (so to speak) as well as individual. Mr. North has said so truly—"The sound of the Church bells of England has been continuously heard in the historic and everyday life of the nation. It is the voice of the nation speaking through the Sanctuary." For the Church bells, whether in the busy city, or quiet country town, or the still more quiet little village, have been associated with almost every event, both of private and public interest. Those bells have sounded forth the glad news of the nation's victories, as well as the joy of a family at a birth or baptism. They have rung out their joyful peal as the bride has been led to the altar, they have wailed out their muffled peal as she was laid in her grave. We might spend much time speaking of the uses of the bells—the Curfew, the Mote or Common Bell, the Vestry Bell, the Apprentice Bell, the Storm Bell, the Fire Bell, the Harvest Bell, the Gleaning Bell, and many others. All shewing how closely the use of the Church Bell is woven into the life of the nation. Yes, surely the associations connected with the sound of our bells and the various uses to which they have been put, ought to make us realize, more than perhaps we do, our position of trust as ringers. (c) But we rise a step higher still. It is when we think of the more strictly religious use of our bells, when we look upon them as the instruments of God's Praise, as the means of shewing forth His glory, that we are able to understand the greatness of our responsibility as ringers, and to attain to the full dignity of our privileges. Just stop for a moment to think of what this means, e.g. it is ours (as ringers), to sound the call to prayer and worship, a work which I maintain is very little, if at all less sacred and less important than that of those who sing in the Sanctuary. I trust it never happens that in any bells rung by your association there can be traced a tone of irony running through them, because the ringers seem to say thro' that Sunday touch "do as we say, not as we do." You must come to Church, there is no need for us to do so. I hope indeed, it is not so in the case of any tower represented here to-day, and thank God, things are so altered now; now it is the rule and not the exception for the ringers to be seen joining in the worship to which they have summoned others. But it is not simply by telling our neighbours that the Service is about to commence that we shew forth God's Praise. Our bells are Preachers for God. Have you ever thought of your bells as preaching? You will recall no doubt the inscription which runs round Great Paul "Voe mihi, si non Evangelii savoro;" "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." And indeed unless our bells are preachers for God, we had better take them down from our Church Towers; if they are only to minister to the pleasure of the ringers and those that hear them, then God's House is not the place for them! But the bells are preachers, whether we mean them to be or not. It is not difficult to think of cases of their preaching effectually to the hearts of men: perhaps before now they have preached to our hearts lessons for which, even now, we are grateful. You will remember for instance, how the bells of Rouen Cathedral, as they were ringing for service, brought their message to William the Conqueror, as he lay a-dying in the Convent hard by, as in the last great struggle, he stretches out his hands in prayer and passes quietly away. Again and again we may be quite certain that those bells of ours as they ring for service (even though it be a single bell), preach to those who hear them and are not able to come to the Sanctuary. For they are ringing out to a sin-laden and weary world the great lesson which Easter once more is bringing home to us; "Seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God." "I was so sorry sir, a farmer once said, tho' not a churchman, to his vicar, I was so sorry when you gave up your daily prayers in your church, for when I was out in the fields, I knew what was going on, and the bell made me lift up my heart to God, and long after Holy Things." You may perhaps have seen an engraving of that celebrated picture of the great French painter, Millet, called "the Angelus." It is one of the greatest pictures of modern days, and only the other day was sold for a fabulous sum. The picture is wonderfully simple, and yet surpassingly beautiful—there are only two figures—a man and woman, who have just paused in their work, and are bending their heads in prayer, the man with his hat in his hands, for they catch the "Angelus" bell ringing from yonder Church, which you will remember, is rung even now abroad, three times a day, bidding the faithful to lift up their hearts to God in gratitude for the love of the Incarnation. It is certainly to be regretted that this custom of ringing the Angelus is lost to us now. We have lost too the use of the Sanctus bell, which is rung to tell to those outside that the most solemn parts of the Service are being gone through in the Church. But we could surely make up in some degree for the loss of the Angelus and Sanctus bells, by letting the bells as they ring for service speak to us of God. And would it be out of place for me to suggest that those chimes of yours, which hour by hour, and quarter by quarter, sound out over Bedford, might if you liked, speak to you like the Angelus, of the wondrous love of the Incarnation. And our bells preach too, at other occasions. They are an expression of the Church's sympathy, as for instance, they preach their message of joy when they ring for the Church's great Festivals, or they preach their message of sorrow and contrition for the past, and fresh effort for the future, as the muffled peal or Death-knell is rung on Good Friday, or the "Devil's knell" (as it is called) is rung for instance in Yorkshire on Christmas Eve. And those bells also are an expression of private sympathy as they burst forth in their wedding peal, or where the tenor tells its news of death. And it would be well, surely, if what we call the passing bell were really so, and was actually rung as the soul is gathering itself up for the last great struggle, and needs so sorely the prayers of the faithful. "The bells ought to be rung" says one writing 600 years ago, "when anyone is dying, that the people hearing this may pray for him." In this and many other ways our bells preach, they shew forth God's praise. Yes! bells like all else which is beautiful, preach and tell of God's praise, for all that is beautiful is a reflection of God, of Him who is "altogether lovely," whether it be strains of music of man's devising, or those delicate sounds of nature "which" (it has been so beautifully said) "one might fancy come from tiny bells worn on the garment of silence to make us aware of her invisible presence"—all are praising the Lord; but oh my brothers, it may be that man, in the midst of it all, though he be the most gifted musician or most accomplished ringer, is out of harmony with it all. Yes! the sound of our bells, though they strike on the ear so beautifully as their sound is borne here and there on the wind in ever varying crescendo or diminuendo, as it mingles with the glad sounds of nature, never pierces Heaven or reaches the ear of God as coming from us who rang so beautifully, just because there was no praise in our hearts. Oh to be in harmony with beautiful sounds we must have that heart beauty which God wants to see in us. Let this then be the great lesson for us to-day. "Praise the Lord upon the well tuned cymbals." Praise the Lord because we ring with a heart overflowing with gratitude for all His mercies: Praise the Lord because we have learnt from experience that it is more blessed to give than to receive, and most blessed to give to Him who has given us our all. But we just remind ourselves as we close that this means (1) an entire absence of self-seeking. We ring our very best not for our own glory, not that we may see our name in next week's "BELL NEWS," or because we are anxious that our own particular Society or Association should stand high in the record of performances, but for God's glory. (2) It means too a perfect unanimity because we all are working with one great aim, and bitterness and malice would spoil it all. "If thou bring thy gift to the altar and then rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." Yes, for the best struck peal is only offered in vain to God, our gift is all spoilt, if the heart has its root of bitterness. Oh! for more, still more of that unity among ringers, for less of that bickering, that sarcasm, those smart, replies, even though they be kept for newspapers. (3) And just lastly need I remind you that there can be no true praise unless the life of the ringer is also in harmony, there must be none of that jangling, none of that being out of tune, no cracked bells in our lives. People must never be able to say of any of us "Ah yes! he rings at church on Sundays, but you should see him in the week at home, you should hear him at his work"? You have perhaps heard of what is called the "poor sinners' bell" at Milan. It is said that some 500 years ago, when all was ready for casting the bell, a lad was left in charge with strict orders not to touch the catch which kept the metal in the cauldron. But the boy took no warning, and in his curiosity meddled with the apparatus. The metal began to leap into the mould; the bell founder rushed in, and thinking his great work ruined, in a burst of passion killed the boy on the spot. The man, in his sorrow for what he had done, gave himself up, and was sentenced to death. And as he was being led forth to die, the bell which after all had been found to be perfect, and exquisitely fashioned, gave forth its melodious notes, inviting all to pray for the poor founder. My brothers, when it is our turn to be carried to our grave, how will those bells (which perchance we have so often rung) be speaking of us; will they tell of a soul going forth with trembling to its last and awful account, or rather will they tell of a soul entering into Paradise, and which through the grave and gate of death will pass to its joyful resurrection to praise Him for ever, where they rest not day and night saying Holy, Holy, Holy.

WALDRON, SUSSEX.

On Saturday evening, April 5th, the members of the local band and several friends, at the kind invitation of Mr. Eade, of the "Star" inn, met at his house and sat down to an excellent supper. Mr. Eade, although knowing a little of ringing, does not go in for it himself, but nevertheless has done his best to encourage the local band, who did not start on Grandsire Triples until the beginning of last winter, and meeting regularly for practice were rewarded by ringing their first quarter-peal on Christmas Day. Encouraged by this they redoubled their efforts, and a start was made for a peal on February 22nd, but it came to grief after ringing 3000 changes. Nothing daunted however, another attempt was made a fortnight later but without success. It was determined to get it if possible before Easter. Another start was made on March 15th, and after 3 hrs. and 1 mins. good ringing it was safely brought round. On leaving the belfry the ringers were warmly congratulated, it being the first peal on the bells for upwards of fifty years. A local band probably then rang it, but they left no record, so it is not known for certain when the last peal was rung and the art had died out until lately taken up by the present band.

Mr. Eade, who had promised the ringers a supper on their ringing the first peal, fulfilled his promise on the above date, and a very pleasant evening was spent concluding by the ringing on the handbells of "For he's a jolly good fellow" and "God save the Queen."

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION,

LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN BRANCH.—The usual monthly meeting, was held at Garston, on Saturday, April 19th, when about thirty ringers were present from Liverpool, Prescott, Walton, Woolton, Grassendale and Southport, including the local company. The Rev. Dr. Oliver presided, and in a very able speech gave the Association a very hearty welcome. He addressed the ringers at some length, on the importance of their office as ringers, and the position they held as churchworkers. He said, he frequently made visits to the tower on Sunday mornings and opened with prayer, and if others of the clergy would do likewise, where there were peals of bells, it would tend very much to encourage their ringers to attend service and make them more united. There were seven performing and two life members enrolled, the Vicars of Garston and Prescott. The bells were kept ringing during the afternoon and evening in Bob Major, Grandsire Triples, and Canterbury Pleasure Minor. It was proposed by W. Davies, and seconded W. G. Mann, that the best thanks be given to the vicar for the use of bells and schools, which was carried with great acclamation. The Vicar briefly responded, thanking them, saying that now as he had become a life member, he should be glad to welcome the Association at any future time. Mr. Gough, the steeple-keeper, was complimented upon having everything in such nice order in the tower. The next meeting was fixed to be held at Childwall (six-bell tower) on Saturday, May 19th.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

ROCHESTER DISTRICT.—A meeting was held at Sittingbourne on Saturday, April 19th, and was well attended by twenty-seven members from Bobbing, Boughton, Canterbury, Crayford, Gillingham, Harrietsham, Herne Hill, and Sittingbourne. A committee meeting was held in the vestry of St. Michael's church at 3 p.m., when it was decided to invite Mr. E. E. Richards, of Woolwich, to undertake the duties of Secretary for the district in the place of Mr. Martin, who was obliged to resign the office. Some conversation took place with reference to the suburban part of the county, and it was considered advisable to form a centre in that District. Seventeen new members were elected, several of whom had been proposed according to Rule 15. After the committee meeting two probationers were examined and passed for full membership. In the morning some members attempted a peal of Grandsire Triples at Borden, but were unsuccessful after ringing about 1½ hrs. During the afternoon and evening the bells at Sittingbourne were kept going in Stedman Triples and Kent and Oxford Treble Bob Major. Altogether a most enjoyable day was spent, and although not a large meeting, it proved one of the pleasantest the members present remembered.

A United Meeting of the members of the Tonbridge district of the above Association was held at the church of St. Laurence, Seal, on Easter Tuesday, April 8th. Representatives were present from Speldhurst and Sevenoaks. Several touches of Bob Doubles were rung, all called different, Grandsire Doubles and touches of Grandsire Minor. The ringers were kindly entertained by H. Wilkinson, Esq., for which a unanimous vote of thanks were passed.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, April 19th, the Tamworth company had their annual outing to Elford church, where there is a pretty peal of six, tenor 7 cwt. Here they were joined by Messrs. H. Gallimore, F. Sedgwick, and W. Fearneyhough, of the Lichfield Cathedral society. Ringing was commenced at four o'clock, and 720 of Grandsire Minor was rung in 24 mins. A. Everitt, 1; F. Sedgwick, 2; R. P. Brindley, 3; C. Chapman, 4; J. Timms, 5; W. Fearneyhough, 5. Afterwards they journeyed to the "Crown" inn, where refreshments were provided, and after doing justice they returned to the belfry and several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles was rung by J. Pratt, F. Sedgwick, W. Tomlinson, C. Chapman, J. Timms, and H. J. Gallimore. The ringing being over they journeyed back, and the Tamworth handbell ringers played several selections on the handbells, finishing up with change-ringing by the Tamworth and Lichfield men. Several good songs and recitations were given afterwards which brought the evening to a delightful close, all returning home pleased with their outing. They wish through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS" to thank the Rev. A. S. M. Chester for kindly allowing them the use of the bells.

ST. WERBURGH'S, BRISTOL.

On Friday, April 11th, the ringers of the above church and a few friends sat down to their annual dinner at the Mission Hall, Mina Road, provided by the rector, the Rev. H. Denning. After justice had been done to the good things provided, the chair was taken by the Rev. H. Denning, supported by the churchwardens, Mr. Coffee and Mr. Stroud, the vice-chair by the Rev. F. Hodson, curate. The Chairman gave the toast, "Church and Queen," which was responded to by the company singing the National Anthem. He then gave a short address on bells, &c., which was listened to great attention. New rules were then read up to form a local company of change-ringers, the rector promising to be the president. The remainder of the evening was spent in a very social manner, and several tunes were played by the St. Werburgh's handbell ringers in a very creditable style. A vote of thanks to the rector for his very kind entertainment brought the evening to a close. At a recent vestry meeting one of the ringers stated that the sound of the bells was very bad in the ringing-chamber, and asked if anything could be done to prevent it. Mr. Jackson, ex-churchwarden, said he loved to hear the dear old bells of St. Werburgh, and he would give the £10 required for the improvement, which was received with many thanks.

THE BELLS OF CARLISLE CATHEDRAL.

The same initials are known to have been on the old fourth bell, which was therefore, like the tenor and treble, the work of the Langshaws, who probably also cast the predecessor of the present No. 2. The date on the treble, 1659, in a ring "made six tuneable bells" in 1658, looks odd, but may perhaps be accounted for by supposing the Langshaws, when casting the bell (No. 4) on which they placed the historical inscription, to have antedated the completion of the ring, the treble yet remaining to be cast, and not cast till the following year. Their description on the tenor as "workmen" implies that they were not regular bell founders. Permanently resident in Carlisle, as is shown by frequent occurrence in the Chamberlain's accounts of William Langshaw's name in connection with plumber's work for the corporation, they were able to take their time. The work was certainly done in a leisurely manner, beginning with the tenor in 1657, and not completed until 1659. It was just in time for great events:—"Kinges hapie Restauration" in 1660! General election in 1661! Major Tolhurst a candidate for Carlisle! On which side? Not known. Mr. Ferguson (Cumberland M.P.s, p. 20), says:—"Tolhurst, as to whose politics we have little clue." No matter; victory all along the line for belfry reformers! Tolhurst in for Carlisle! Lord Howard and Sir Wilfred in for Cumberland! Light on the Major's politics has been sought from those of his son-in-law, John Senhouse, of Netherall (Whelan, 327). Plenty of clue to politics of John Senhouse, captain during the civil war in Charles I.'s army, hero of romantic story:—"Serving in the army when his elder brother died. . . . His parents, naturally anxious, sent a young man, the son of a tenant at Ellenborough, who had been his playmate, to bring him home. The messenger arrived on the eve of the battle of Marston Moor, with result that, instead of bringing back his young master, the latter induced him to remain and share the danger with him." (Cumberland and Westmorland Archaeological Transactions, vol. vi. p. 135.) At Naseby "left for dead on the field," but found "still breathing" by his young friend, who "carried him away on his back," so that "he lived to continue the race." Quite worthy to be son-in-law to our gallant major, but not necessarily affording any clue to his politics, the major having served in the Parliamentary army, yet proud, we may be sure, of his brave cavalier son-in-law, being a hearty admirer of courage. Writing, for instance, on July 22, 1664, from the Custom House at Newcastle, to Pepys, an old acquaintance of his in Cromwellian days, he recommends "for command of some freggott Captaine William Tickell who in the last dutch war comanded a fire shipp and therein acquitted himselfe lyke a stoute galland man. . . . If the navie bee but well furnished with such comandars as hee his the dutch or any other enemy will not bee able to deal with them." (MS. in Record office.) Here with considerable respect we take our leave of Major Jeremiah Tolhurst, whom to have rescued, together with his brother officers, from the imputation cast upon them by Dr. Todd, is a source of satisfaction to the present writer. The worst thing that can be alleged against the major is that, when ordering the recasting of three ancient bells, he omitted to hand down to posterity a record of their inscriptions. But great allowance is to be made for him: he lived in pre-Ellacombe days.

The ring, as already noticed, when first taken in hand by Major Tolhurst, seems to have consisted of five bells; two of which still remain. One of them, the present No. 3, has, in tall plain Gothic capitals, with floriated initial cross, but without intervening stops, this inscription:—

+ IESVS BE OVR SPEED

WILL ORBEL LM 1608.

The founders, Lees and Wright, are said to have been of Carlisle (Lukis on Church Bells, p. 16); but no local knowledge of their foundry has yet come to hand. William Orbell, according to Jefferson (p. 29), was head-master of Carlisle Grammar School from 1610 to 1612: but his designation on this bell in 1608 as "L.M.," which must mean "Ludi Magister," (Cic. De N. D., i. 26), points to an earlier connection with the school, perhaps as usher, teaching reading, writing, and arithmetic, which in ancient Rome was the special function of the "ludi magister," who taught boys in the first stage of their education, from which they passed through subsequent stages under the "grammaticus" and "rhetor." But how came Mr. Orbell, whether as head-master or usher of the school, to be giving a bell to the cathedral? It is not necessary to suppose that he did give the bell. It appears from the corporation accounts that he was the chapter clerk; and as such he doubtless in the name of his employers gave the order for the bell. That the initiatory suggestion as to the need of an additional bell came from the dean and chapter is unlikely, for the reason that, as shown by Mr. R. S. Ferguson in his lecture on "Carlisle 300 years ago" (Carlisle Patriot, Feb. 23, 1883), they were then non-resident. Mr. Orbell, therefore, as prime mover in the business, conceived that his was the name which had most right to be handed down to posterity on the bell. But why did he move at all in this business? Well, he found four bells in the tower: and to add a new treble to a ring of four, especially in the early years of the 17th century, was an excellent work. Dr. Raven, in his book on Cambridgeshire Church Bells (p. 77), says. "We may mark the rise of change-ringing in Cambridgeshire by the improvements in the Benet peal from 1605 to 1615, by the making of Great St. Mary's from four into five in 1611, and by the addition or re-casting of the two trebles in the Stetchworth peal in 1608," &c. Assuming Mr. Orbell to have been a pioneer in the change-ringing movement, then in its infancy, we can sympathise with his feelings if, having placed his name on the new treble, he exclaimed, "Exegi monumentum ære," if not "perennius," at least not less durable. Yet it may be doubted whether at that time he was partial to quoting Horace. He had, for a schoolmaster, an unfortunate name, and must have been painfully conscious of his inevitable nickname of "Plagosus Orbilus" (Hor., Ep. II., i. 70). No wonder he soon disappears from the roll of masters of the Grammar School. Henceforth, emancipated from the duties of an uncongenial office, he was able to devote more time and attention to the belfry. Proud indeed must he have felt when he heard the bells ring out on the following occasion:—

The King's most excellent majesty was here at Carlisle the 4th daye of August 1617 when the Maiore of the city Mr. Adam Robinson with Thomas Carleton recorder and the brethren presentyd hym firste with a speech then wyth a cup of golde valued at 30*l*. and a purse of sylke with 100 iacobuses or pieces of the same. . . . The next daye he did keep a feast royall went to the Church in state with hys nobles being a saint daye where preached before hym Robert Snowden Bishop of Carlisle and the Maiore that daye goinge before hym to and from the Church att the court gate kyssed his hands att their departure. (Old Guild Book, quoted by Jefferson, p. 46.)

"A REGRETTABLE CIRCUMSTANCE."

SIR,—A, to me, very regrettable circumstance was brought to light at a recent business meeting of one of the larger Metropolitan Ringing Societies; it was stated by the steeple-keeper of one of the churches at which the recognised ringing is performed by the society in question, that a band of members of another metropolitan society, desirous of ringing a peal at the church, had asked, and obtained permission to do so, immediately from the clerical authorities. Now sir, it is the usual rule of courtesy that the application should be, in the first place, made through the recognised belfry official, the steeple-keeper, and it is lamentable that any personal pique, if existing, should be allowed to break through such a wholesome point of etiquette. It is to be feared, however, that this is not the first case of sort that has occurred within the same area, and as such incidents tend to anything but "friendly rivalry," it may be permitted to hope that the aggressors, I cannot find a milder word, from whatever point of the compass they may hail, may after some little inward communings, see their error, and amend their ways. "Courtesy sweetens friendship."

GEORGE F. ATTREE.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A District Meeting was held at Rayleigh on Saturday, April 19th, but was only attended by about fourteen members, including the local ringers; Writtle, Galleywood, and Maldon being the only other places represented. The tower of the parish church (six bells), was open for ringing during the afternoon, and touches in Grandsire, Plain Bob, and Treble Bob methods were rung. Tea was served at the "Half Moon" inn at 5 p.m., the vicar, the Rev. R. C. M. Rouse, presiding. At the business meeting which followed, the following were elected members of the Association: Honorary—Rev. R. C. M. Rouse, vicar of Rayleigh; Probationers—F. Boocy, W. Bingham, E. Brewer, and A. Smith (Rayleigh); E. Thorpe, W. Thorpe, J. Plumb, W. Plumb, C. Phillips, W. Phillips, and J. Thredgold (Leigh). The following provisional elections were confirmed: Messrs. H. Brewer, J. W. Brewer, D. Gibbons, and H. G. Rowe, at St. Albans; Thos. King, at Lavenham; R. E. Pearson, St. Mary's, Walthamstow; C. J. Davidson, J. Davidson, E. Edridge, and G. J. Smith.

The Hon. Sec. announced that under the scheme for the Central Council of Church Bell-Ringers as formulated by the Provisional Committee, the Essex Association was entitled to four representatives on the Council, the election of whom would take place at the Annual Meeting on Whit Monday. The proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the vicar, who in reply expressed his desire to promote and encourage the interests of ringing in Rayleigh itself and in the neighbourhood. Rayleigh is a good centre for a district of Essex that has hitherto been very inaccessible, but is now opened up by the new G.E.R. branch to Billericay, Wickford, Southend, and Maldon. In this district there are no eight-bell towers, but many with six and five bells, in most of which change-ringing is at present unknown. The election of seven probationers from one of these towers (Leigh), is a good omen for further progress in the district. In Rayleigh itself a great impetus was given to change-ringing a few years back by the Rev. H. A. Cockey, then curate of the parish, and the bells were rehung two years ago under the auspices of the present vicar. They are a nice peal, tenor about 15 or 16 cwt. (though reputed heavier), and the belfry is conveniently arranged, except that the ropes hang in the reverse way—from left to right. The "go" of the bells, too, is not all that could be wished, one or two requiring a great deal of pulling, which will increase the difficulties of learners.

RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Easter Monday, the Bradford parish church company had their annual outing, Ashton being the place of their destination. On arriving in Salford they were met at the station by Messrs. Eachus, Chapman, and Parkinson, of Manchester, Mr. Barrett, of Eccles, and Mr. Ridyard, of Worsley, who kindly escorted them through the townhall and other places of interest, prior to their departure for Ashton, where they joined in the festivities. They desire to express their hearty thanks to their Manchester friends for the kindly manner in which they were received during their brief stay in that city.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

My DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS. By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

MR. CHARLES JACKSON, OF HULL.

[Vide Portrait.]

MR. CHARLES JACKSON was born at Hull on November 25th, 1849, and he has consequently just attained his fortieth year. He did not turn his attention to ringing until Easter, 1868, when, having joined the Rifle Volunteers, he was requested by five members of the corps (who were forming a change-ringing society at St. Mary's, Hull, a peal of six) to fall in with them. At this time change-ringing was almost dormant in Hull, the old company under the Rev. Wm. Knight having been broken up many years before (there being at this time only three peals of eight in the East Riding of Yorkshire), and this little band certainly worked under great difficulties, not having any books whatever upon the science.

MR. JACKSON's first impression on this occasion was that he would never be able to handle a tower bell, but he was fascinated with the "crossing and lapping" upon the handbells. Indeed he made such poor progress at first that his companions talked seriously of "getting someone else in Charlie's place." By steady perseverance however he was able to pilot his bell through his first 720 of Bob Minor, which he conducted on December 23rd in the same year (1868).

In 1872 the Holy Trinity Society was formed, and MR. JACKSON succeeded in conducting Holt's ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples at Holy Trinity Church, Hull, on Easter Monday, 1873, being the first peal on the bells.

In June 1873 he paid a visit to London, and had the pleasure of ringing along with the late Mr. H. W. Haley, Rd. Hopkins, James Pettit and Matthew A. Wood, his second peal (Holt's Original) which was conducted by Mr. Haley, who kindly forwarded the peal to MR. JACKSON, and he succeeded in conducting it at Holy Trinity Church on December 16th in the same year, being the first time of its performance in the East Riding. On May 11th, 1874, Holt's ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples was conducted by MR. JACKSON at Beverley Minster, being the first peal on the bells.

After this performance MR. JACKSON turned his attention to the Treble Bob method, and paid several visits to Leeds for this purpose, which resulted in a company of four from Leeds, and four from Hull meeting at Selby Abbey Church on November 28th, 1874, and ringing 5088 Kent Treble Bob, being the first peal of Treble Bob which he conducted.

Soon after this the Yorkshire Association of change-ringers was formed, and MR. JACKSON was elected a Vice-President, but owing to the headquarters being at Leeds, he was, through pressure of business, compelled to resign after a service of seven years. He has since formed one of the Committee of the Association. The first peal rung by the Association was Holt's six-part peal of Grandsire Triples at Holy Trinity Church, conducted by MR. JACKSON. Since that time he has taken part in eighty Association peals.

In 1883-4 the Hull branch succeeded in ringing sixteen peals, and the following first performances of Grandsire Triples have been accomplished: J. F. Penning's, 1 one-part, two five-parts; J. T. Hollis 1 one-part, 1 five-part; Rev. C. D. P. Davies' 1 five-part, 1 six-part, 5 ten-part; J. J. Parker, one four-part, one six-part. Mr. Thompson's three-part peal was being conducted for the first time by Mr. J. W. Washbrook and Mr. Jackson on the same day, the former completing two hours earlier.

In 1886 MR. JACKSON and the company turned their attention to the Stedman method, and met on fifteen different occasions for a peal, but through various causes it came to grief. Once after ringing 4000 changes the 7th clapper flew out, and at another time a rope broke after ringing 2½ hours, but however, on the 16th an attempt for J. J. B. Lates' variation of Thurstans' peal was brought to a successful issue.

In 1883 the Holy Trinity Society presented MR. JACKSON with a handsome gold pendant in the shape of a bell, as a mark of their esteem.

Up to the present MR. JACKSON has rung ninety-three peals, of which he has conducted seventy and composed twenty-one. These have been rung in the following methods:

Kent Treble Bob Major.
Yorkshire Court Major.
Stedman Caters.
Grandsire Major.
Bob Major.
Stedman Triples.
Grandsire Triples.

He is a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, the Yorkshire Association, the North Lincolnshire Association, and the Holy Trinity Society, Hull.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of this Association was held on April 26th, at Rochdale. The bells of the parish church and those of St. Albans were very kindly placed at the disposal of the members. Ringing commenced early in the afternoon, and continued at intervals until shortly after 9.0 p.m. The methods rung were Grandsire Triples, Bob Major, Treble Bob, and Stedman Triples. Members attended from Manchester, Bolton, Ashton, Southport, Church, Oldham, Ramsbottom, Rawtenstall, Bacup, Bury, Heywood, Flixton, Eccles, and the Rochdale district. The business meeting was held at 6.0 p.m. in St. Alban's school, the Vicar, Rev. W. Cooper, M.A., presiding, supported by the Rev. H. J. Elsee, M.A., the Secretaries, and the members of the Committee.

The Chairman said he had pleasure in again welcoming the members to Rochdale. He should at any future time be willing to allow the Association the use of the bells and schools. He had little experience in ringing matters, but was pleased to find that men studied the science of ringing, which enabled them to appreciate more fully the art. He briefly exhorted them to remember that the work in which they were engaged was a good work, and endeavour to attend the services in their respective churches.

The Rev. H. J. Elsee, M.A., vice-president, addressed the members on the recently formed Central Council of Ringers. He explained in detail the most important rules, and expressed his belief that the Council would prove most useful to the ringing community. He wished to refer to the split that had taken place in the Liverpool Branch. He was sorry it had occurred; they had endeavoured to prevent it, but had not succeeded. He was pleased that one important company had re-considered their decision and now remained with them. He could not see any cause for another Association in the county.

Mr. Hill (Southport), assured the meeting of the loyalty of the majority of the ringers in the Liverpool diocese. He should always be willing to promote the interest of the Association.

Mr. Redford said he was pleased the opportunity had arrived that he could inform the members of the position of the Liverpool Branch. The dissension was not so large as was generally supposed. The total number of members who had seceded was thirty-eight: out of that number eleven had previously paid the current year's subscriptions. The number of members in the branch was ninety-two per the last report issued on October 12th, 1889. The number therefore remaining was fifty-four. Since that period twenty-eight new members had been elected in the Liverpool diocese, making a total of eighty-two members in the branch up to date. He was doubtful about five members from whom he had no information, and had given their body the benefit. These figures spoke for themselves, and he had every confidence that they would meet with further success under the able management of Mr. Hill and his colleagues in and around Liverpool.

Mr. R. Hill proposed and Mr. Barratt seconded a vote of thanks to the Rev. Canon Maclure, Rev. W. Cooper, and the churchwardens for the use of the bells. A similar compliment to the chairman closed the proceedings.

UNION TRIPLES.

SIR,—Absence from home has prevented my returning an earlier answer to Mr. Carter's letter in your issue of the 12th inst. I am delighted to "argify" with so good-humoured and pleasant an antagonist. Mr. Carter says he prefers to compose only such peals as contain the proper calls of the method. Well and good. But what is a single in Union Triples? What authority has Mr. Carter or anyone else for saying that it is the same as a common Grandsire single? In other branches of art it is usual to appeal either to ancient authority or to scientific theory in support of such a position. Therefore let Mr. Carter produce some composition of an old master (such as Holt or Anable (with his singles in it)). Clavis and Shipway know them not. Coming to theory, what do we find? Here Grandsire is no guide to us at all, for there a bob is made by an extra place, i.e., an additional third's place, two rows previous to the regular one. In Union Triples a bob is made (as in Plain Bob, Double Norwich, etc.), by making one place in lieu of another, i.e., thirds instead of fifths. Now the rule in such cases is that the single shall be a compound of the plain lead and the bob. Hence I contend that if we are to put the bells out of course in Union Triples it should be done thus:—

5 1 7 2 6 3 4
1 7 5 6 2 3 4

Such a call as this, and only such a one as this, is, I maintain, "strictly to the method;" and if Mr. Carter prefers to compose only peals that are strictly to the method, this is the single for him. His next sentence or two, though short, contain several points which call for an answer. He says or implies that (1) My singles are "reverse doubles." (2) These are neither Union nor Grandsire, being made when the treble is behind. (3) The fewest calls with common bobs and two doubles are 105 in all. (4) I manufacture calls. (5) If he were to do likewise he could get a peal with only seventy-two calls. (1) That they are reverse I admit (but more of this anon); but that they are doubles I deny. They are true singles, i.e., single changes instead of triple changes. Mr. Carter's are the "doubles." (2) The answer to the objection that they are made when the treble is behind will be given presently as intimated in answer to (1). He says they are neither Union nor Grandsire. I really cannot see what Grandsire has to do with it. Mr. Carter in the fifth line of his letter says that Union is taken from Grandsire. The two doubtless have many points in common, nor may we doubt that Grandsire gave the idea of Union. But so did Plain Bob give the idea of the many plain Major methods, and yet I believe that Mr. Carter is quite reconciled to leaving the bob in Double Norwich to be made in sixth's, while that in its prototype Plain Bob is made in fourth's. Therefore Grandsire is no sort of criterion for Union. (3) This may pass, but Mr. Carter should have been careful to specify that the "doubles" (whatever he means by that term) must incorporate a bob, as otherwise there must be 107 calls as in my five-part peals, in which the singles are plain singles. (4) Presently. (5) I cannot find the two-part peal on the three-lead plan with singles—

but I suppose will appear in due course. I must say that I feel inclined to chaff Mr. Carter very heartily for preaching us a sermon against invention of calls, and then straightway perpetuating the very thing himself. But his observation anent a possible peal with seventy-two calls is clean beside the mark. A sine qua non of the whole subject is I take it, that whatever calls (other than ordinary bobs) are used, there shall never be more than two such calls in the peal. If Mr. Carter differs from me in this—but I scarcely think he will—we must agree to differ, for I cannot move from this position. It is on this account that I do not care so very much even for my own five-part peals of Grandsire Triples, though the late Mr. Snowdon was kind enough to speak well of them. As being specimens, and the only possible ones, of a form of peal which without them would have no existence they may however stand. Nor do I care for Shipway's five-part. And at peals which have more than two kinds of calls I absolutely refuse to look. But I am digressing. If Mr. Carter will publish a peal containing only common bobs and one other kind of call, this last call not occurring more than twice, the whole having less than 105 calls, I will welcome it. These are the lines on which I have worked, and any argument on other premisses is inadmissible. (4) My reason for deferring this is because it is the central point of the whole contention, and because I can in answering this objection most conveniently answer in conjunction with it the objection to the call being at the reverse (see above under No. 1) instead of at the treble's lead. Now if all manufacturing of calls is to be condemned offhand, away with Holt and Shipway and all their glorious compositions. Mr. Carter may be prepared for this sacrifice, but I, for one, am not, and I know that the great bulk of the Exercise will bear me out. Take Holt's singles. What do they accomplish? Mainly two things. They keep the bells "in course." This is no small advantage, both in composition and actual ringing. Without this the great beauty and advantage of reversed calling would be lost, and many other things too. But this is a small point compared with the next, which is that Holt's singles were invented with the express purpose of passing from the plain course to the reverse course. The enormous advantage of this is seen in the endless variety of peals that these singles can produce. Coined as they were for this express purpose no purpose is saved by ever altering their form. They should never be used except for the production of the rows 2 3 5 4 7 6 and 2 3 4 5 6 7. If it is desired, for instance to bring forward the first single in Holt's Original, it can be easily done as follows:—

s 2 3 5 4 7 6 1

then call as from the commencement in the Original, the last single bringing the bells home. So invaluable are these singles that I maintain that they have justified, and more than justified their claim to be considered the singles of Grandsire Triples; and with them in my possession I should be very glad to bid a final adieu to the other concern, which is at best a wretched and needless importation from Doubles, where of course it is quite in its right place. To carry it forward into Union Triples is really adding insult to injury. Well, now for my singles. My sole desire was to follow the lead of the great Holt. I therefore sought for a single which should transpose me from the plain to the reverse course and vice versa. For this purpose my singles were planned, and they were planned for years before my peals were composed—before I even knew whether I could compose any peals of Union Triples at all. I did not thus, as possibly Mr. Carter may suppose, first compose two half-peals and then cast about for some call to jump them together. I hope Mr. Carter did not do this with his calls. The singles were built on a definite plan and for a definite purpose, in the hope that I might do for Union Triples at least part of the work that Holt did for Grandsire. I know my singles are at the reverse; more than that—I regret it. If Mr. Carter will shew us how to pass from the plain to the reverse course at the treble's lead, he shall have the full glory, and I will accept his invention with joy and gratitude. I must apologise to you, Mr. Editor, for taking up so much of your space, but I have been anxious to lay my views on singles before the Exercise, and I am thankful to my good friend Mr. Carter for having given me the opportunity.

CHARLES D. P. DAVIES.

"A REGRETTABLE CIRCUMSTANCE."

SIR,—In reply to your correspondent "An Outsider," let me put the question thus: A. and B. are rival ringing societies, each having a handy ring of twelve bells, C and D, and while A is granted frequent visits to the ring D, B is almost denied access to ring C. What does an outsider advise under such circumstances? B to close the tower D or make direct application to the authorities of tower C. It seems the sweetening effect of courtesy mentioned is one-sided. AN INSIDER.

A PROTEST.

SIR,—In your issue of the 5th inst. I observed the following paragraph: "J. Sholicar—The matter is not worth troubling about. There is very little credit attached to five-part compositions of this number." Now, Sir, readers of "THE BELL NEWS" would naturally infer that the above name is the correspondent who elicited from you the reply thereafter. Such is not the case, for whoever your correspondent may have been, or what the nature of his questions, I have not the slightest knowledge; but this I know, that in my opinion whoever he may be, if he is ashamed to use his own name he is both a coward and a disgrace to the Exercise. Next time he wishes to appear as a correspondent it would be more manly and less deceitful if he would attach his own name with his correspondence, and not use the signature of

J. SHOLICAR.

A SUGGESTION.

SIR,—Now that you have adopted a very wise plan with regard to notices and compositions, may I suggest that the usefulness of the page is completed by a space being set apart under the heading "EXCHANGES?" I am of opinion such space will soon be utilised by many readers of this paper. A small fee of course to be made.

BARTER.

LANLIVERY CHURCH RESTORATION.

The belfry and tower of this church, which is situated about two miles from Lostwithiel, have recently undergone a thorough restoration, three new bells having been also added, thus increasing the number to eight. Mr. W. Pease, of Castle, has generously given the second and treble bells, and the third has been subscribed for by parish landowners and others, the subscribers including H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Lord Robartes, the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, Colonel Fortescue, Mr. L. H. Courtney, M.P., and Mr. Jonathan Rashleigh. A new oak frame has been erected with beams and floor beneath, and all the old bells have been re-quartered as well as hung with modern fittings. The first and second bells are suitably inscribed, the donor's name being a part of the inscription. The treble bell weighs 4 cwt. 3 qrs. 4 lbs., the second 5 cwt. 1 qr. 3 lb., and the third 5 cwt. 1 qr. 10 lb. The tenor, which bears the date 1629, is 43½ inches in diameter, its weight being 16 cwt., whilst the seventh is a grand-toned casting by Rudhall, is dated 1822, and weighs about 10½ cwt. The tower walls and floors have been redressed, repaired, and carefully pointed, and a new wood block floor has been laid in the belfry. The total cost of the work is about £245, towards which sum subscriptions amounting to over £200 have already been received. The work has been carried out in a satisfactory manner by Mr. Harry Stokes, Church Bell Hanger, of Woodbury, Exeter, and three new bells have been supplied by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of the Whitechapel Foundry, London. The masonry has been executed by Mr. Joseph Bassett, of Lostwithiel, and the carpenter's work by Mr. W. Rouse, of Lanlivery.

The reopening ceremony took place on the following Monday, when the Lanhydrock ringers rang the first touch, followed by touches by ringers from Lanlivery, Lostwithiel, St. Winnow, and St. Veep. A dedication service, held in the church in the afternoon, was crowded, a large number of people being unable to obtain admission. The prayers and lessons were read by the Rev. J. K. Rashleigh (Luxulyan), and the Rev. F. Kendall (rector), and an appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. W. A. Fenwick, of Bodmin. Amongst the other clergy present were the Revs. G. Pole-Carew, H. G. Hilton (Lostwithiel), J. R. Hartill (St. Winnow), and J. Peniston (St. Blazey). A public tea afterwards took place in a marquee in the schoolyard, and was well patronised. It was hoped that the proceeds of Monday's effort would clear the church from debt.

THE BIRMINGHAM AND DISTRICT AMALGAMATED SOCIETY.

THE Third Quarterly Meeting of this Society was held at Rowley Regis, Staffordshire, on Saturday, April 19th, and there was a good muster of members present from Birmingham, West Bromwich, Old Hill, Tipton, and Rowley. A kindly welcome was given to the Society by the Curate of the parish church, who also presided over the meeting and spoke in complimentary terms as regards the progress of the Society and the good that it was doing in the district in furthering the art of change-ringing and belfry reform. He said he was pleased to see that six of the ringers of the parish church were going to be enrolled as members of the Society that day, and also three from Tipton. It was arranged that the annual meeting should be held in July at Birmingham. After making nine new members, a vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close. A few touches of Bob Major, Grandsire, Stedman Triples and Grandsire Triples were afterwards rung on the church bells.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

DISTRICT MEETING AT CHICHESTER.—At the cathedral city of Sussex, the second district meeting of this association, for the present year, was held on Easter Monday. About forty ringers from the following branches were present during the day: Angmering, Arundel, Brighton (S. Peter's and S. Nicholas), Chichester, Eastbourne (Christ Church), Goring, Heene, Henfield, Midhurst, Ringmer, Steyning and Warnham. A business meeting followed the luncheon at the "Anchor" hotel, the dean of Chichester occupying the chair, and being supported by the Rev. R. F. Tompkins, Rev. C. D. P. Davies, and Rev. Cother. Fifteen new active members were elected, including an additional branch at Chichester. It was then resolved that an annual report, consisting of the secretaries' statement and balance sheet be sent to all members of the association free, and that the full report be printed and distributed to those members desiring a copy at a charge of 3d., and that one free copy be sent to each branch of the association. Four other motions were brought forward by Mr. Selby and discussed, but eventually postponed for further consideration at the Annual general meeting, which will take place at Brighton, on Whit Monday. Votes of thanks to the Dean and Chapter for the use of the bells, and to the very Rev. the Dean, for kindly presiding at the luncheon and the meeting, concluded the business.

BRAMFIELD, SUFFOLK.

ON Thursday, April 17th, the peal of five bells at this church were re-opened after being rehung. The bells, which have been rehung in an excellent manner, leaving nothing to be desired in the "go" of them, are a musical peal, tenor 12 cwt. The three largest are fifteenth century bells; the first and second bear the date of 1621. The opening touch, consisting of six 6-scores of Grandsire and Old Doubles, was rung by N. Danford, 1; F. Lambert, 2; R. Spalding, 3; G. Day, 4; J. Larter (conductor), 5. Ringers were present from Bramfield, Halesworth, Eye, Wenhamston, Westhall, Peasenhall, Stradbroke, and Heveningham. A dinner was provided for the ringers at the "Queen's Head" inn, and there was a choral service at the church in the evening, when an excellent sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Raven, President of the Norwich Diocesan Association.

THE GILES MANSFIELD MEMORIAL.

On Monday, April 21st, the day following the Anniversary of his death, the memorial stone to the late Giles Mansfield, so kindly subscribed for by his brother-ringers, was erected over his grave in the Stroud cemetery. It is a handsome headstone, with a large bell carved in a panel, and stands out in relief about a inch-and-a-half, with the following inscription: "12132 changes in 7 hours and 44 minutes. 1817. Painswick." Underneath is well and deeply lettered the following inscription: "In affectionate remembrance of Giles Mansfield, who for 80 years was a much-respected and valuable member of the Stroud and Painswick societies of ringers. This stone was erected to perpetuate his memory by the members of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association of Change-ringers. He departed this life April 20th, 1889, aged 96 years, beloved by all."

The working of the stone has been carefully and well done by Mr. F. K. Howell, of Thornbury, also a ringer.

During the afternoon touches of Grandsire Triples (round at hand and backstroke) were rung on the Stroud bells, in which the Rev. H. A. Cockey (Master of the Association), Mr. Sevier (Gloucester), Mr. F. K. Howell, the members of the Stroud society, and Mr. J. Wager (Painswick), took part. The day was exceedingly wet, or more would have been present. In the evening a short touch was rung on the Painswick bells, in which Mr. F. Howell took part; and at Mr. Hale's residence 350 of Grandsire Triples on handbells was rung by Fanny Hale, W. Hale, Mrs. W. Hale, and F. K. Howell.

Our correspondent adds: "Here we tender our heartfelt thanks to one and all for their kindness in perpetuating so just a memory."

THE BELLS OF CARLISLE CATHEDRAL.

The 5th of August, we must note, though dedicated to "St. Oswald, king and martyr," was no "saint day" likely to be observed by James I.; but it was a day more likely to be observed by him than any saint's day, being the anniversary of the Gowrie Conspiracy, "a day formerly kept in England as a holiday to commemorate the escape of James I., when ruling over Scotland alone, from death at the hands of the Earl of Gowrie and his brother, Alexander Ruthven, in the year 1600." (North's Lincolnshire Bells, p. 226.) Mr. North quotes instances where the bells were regularly rung on that day. But a far more famous ringing day in England has been the 5th of November. No wonder Adam Robinson, after walking before King James in 1617, felt in duty bound to give the following order, the first of its kind in the Corporation books:—

1617, Nov. 5.—To the Ringers at Mr. Maior command ijs vjd.

which, by the way, only sixpence apiece, was but half the sum received by subsequent ringers during the Commonwealth. Next year Mr. Orbell pays a visit to London, and is thus welcomed home by the Mayor on his return:—

1618.—Item ye 27 of October in a present of Sacke and Sewgar bestowed at Mr. Orbell's house on his cominge from London ijs vid.

A man who could undertake a journey to London was somebody in those days, and Orbellius, no longer "plagiosus" to unruly boys, but recipient of honour from civic authorities, could now, as he quaffed his "sacke," quote Horace with unalloyed satisfaction:—

Non cuius homini contingit adire Corinthum.

He was back just in time for the peal on "ye gunpowder day," as the 5th of November is called in the entry for 1618 relating to the ringing of the bells, and was doubtless present at a select dinner on that day:—

1618.—Item for ye allowance of a dinner upon ye v of Noveber being ye gunpowder treason day as a thankfulne for ye delivery of his Matie and estate of ye whole Realme xxs.

He appears for the last time in the Corporation books under the following circumstances:—

1624.—Item upon the next day being Tuesday after dinner in weodowe Slee plour 2 quarts of Sacke one quart of wtt one quart of Claritt Mr. Maior Mr. henrie baines Mr. Adam Robinson Mr. Orbell and othe gentlemen being then present oo—03—00.

Henry Baines had been mayor in 1662. Amongst the "gentlemen present," then, on this festive occasion, doubtless reviving over their "sacke" and "claritt" the memory of those halcyon days when Adam Robinson walked proudly before King James, no one but "Mr. Orbell" is thought worthy of being named alongside of "Mr. Maior" and two ex-mayors. Why was he never mayor himself? The explanation is perhaps to be found in the list of the rectors of Bowness on Solway, amongst whom occurs "William Orbell, instituted 1617." Wm. Orbell L.M., if identical with Rector Orbell, who died in 1629, was happily spared the pain of living to see the evil days which were soon to fall on the cathedral belfry. Some of the gentlemen present in 1624 "in weodowe Slee plour" may have lived to see those days. If so, let us hope they survived them to rejoice in the same parlour over the completion of Major Tolhurst's "tuneable ring."

The bells to which the new treble was added in 1608 were a veteran company. Leland, speaking of William De Strickland, bishop of Carlisle from 1400 to 1419, from whose register, which is now missing, he doubtless got his information, says (Collectanea vol. i., p. 472):—"Hic fecit mag. campanile in cathedral ecclesia a mediatate ad summum, una cum quatuor magnis campanis in eodem." Again we recognise them in "fowre gret belles" reported by Edward VI.'s commissioners as belonging to the cathedral in 1552 (MS. in Record Office). Thus they survived Henry VIII.'s spoiliations of cathedral goods. They ran greater risk from the more systematic confiscation of church goods in the reign of his son, whose commissioners were ordered in 1553 to allow only one "gret bell" to remain in each church (Seventh Report of Deputy Keeper of Public Records, p. 319.) The Commission of 1553, in the matter of bells, was not strictly, if at all, executed in Cumberland. To this day several of the Cumberland churches retain the identical bells reported by the Royal Commissioners as belonging to them in 1552 the most noteworthy instance being Greystoke, the only church in the county besides the cathedral which had "fowre gret belles" in 1552; which same four it still retains. Mr. North thinks that in many places "the bells were too popular to allow of their being removed with impunity." (Rutland Church Bells, p. 27.) Especially would this be the case in Cumberland, where the bells, in addition to their ecclesiastical uses, were in constant requisition as "fray bells" as when in 1596 the bold Buccleugh rescued Kinmont Willie from Carlisle Castle, and

Scarce had won the Stanesshaw bank

When a' the Carlisle bells were rung

Sir Walter Scott, in his Tales of a Grandfather (cap. xxx.), describing this exploit, says: "The bells of the castle rang out; these of the cathedral and Moot Hall answered them." No stress is to be laid on use of plural number by Border ballad and Sir Walter Scott as argument for believing that the cathedral had more than one bell in 1596. But, in a city which had to bear the brunt of Border warfare, we may be sure that any attempt on the part of Edward VI.'s commissioners to remove three or even one of the cathedral bells would have resulted in such "disquiet of the multitude" as they were enjoined in their instructions to be careful not to provoke. It would on occasions of "soden fray" have seriously detracted from the noise to be produced by "a' the Carlisle bells" if the cathedral did not retain all its "quatuor magnas campanas." We have shown reasons for believing that for a century and more after 1553 it did retain them.

One of them it retains to this day, the present fifth bell, which is undated, but easily recognized by its long waist and mediæval inscription as the patriarch of the belfry. It has round its shoulder, in stately Gothic floriated capitals, each an inch and a quarter high, with plain initial cross, and three roundlets as intervening stop, this inscription:

+ IHC + IN : VOCE : SUM : MUNDA : MARIA : SONANDO : SECUNDA.

From which it appears that in the Strickland ring it occupied the second place, i.e. next to the treble. Whether by "voce" to understand the voice of the bell, or to take "in voce sum" as equivalent to "voco," I am not sufficiently acquainted with monastic Latin to decide. The reader can choose which he prefers of the two following translations of the hexameter, or make for himself a better than either:

I {named chaste Maria} sing
{Mary pure of accent}

Second in the chiming ring.

In either case the fact remains that the bell's name is Mary; which name she received at her consecration. The meaningless letter C in the sacred monogram may be thus accounted for. Leaving this question in the obscurity in which for ages it has rested, we pass on to notice that immediately above the sacred monogram on Bishop Strickland's bell are four fleur-de-lis; and below, with initial cross and intervening roundlets, are two Gothic capitals, viz. + I : B. These letters, which are doubtless the founder's initials, may perhaps eventually lead to his identification; on which point all that can be said at present is that the cross and roundlets are the same as those engraved as Figures 3 and 5 in Dr. Raven's Cambridgeshire Church Bells (p. 13), and founded by him on a bell at Toft, Cambridgeshire, which he believes to be of kindred origin to some other ancient bells on which appears "a royal head, generally thought to be that of Edward III., the place of which on the Toft bell is taken by three roundlets in a vertical line." This royal head, which remained in use for many years after Edward III.'s death, was unlikely to appear on bells ordered by Bishop Strickland, whose predecessor, Thomas Merck, Shakespeare's Bishop of Carlisle (Richard II., Act. iv. sc. i.), had been deposed for maintaining in Parliament that Henry IV. had no right to the throne. Strickland took a different line, and "was among the prelates who subscribed the Act of Succession and assurance of the crown to the sons of King Henry." (Hutchinson's Cumberland, ii. 625). He had good reason then to prefer the three roundlets to the head of the king whose injunctions as to the succession he helped to set aside. His bell is by far the most elegant in the present ring, and indeed in all Cumberland.

And now to return to the point from which we started. At Reading, during Church Congress week in 1882, there was held a conference of "ringers from all parts of the country," many of whom availed themselves of permission freely granted to practise their favourite art in the church towers of that town. Imagine the amazement of ringers from whatever part of the country, during Church Congress week last October at Carlisle, if they waited on the dean to ask permission for a peal in Bishop Strickland's tower, and heard of total lack of wheels to the cathedral bells! But the ringing of the bells would endanger the tower? Perhaps it would do nothing of the kind. The way in which bells have been the cause of injury to towers is thus explained by Mr. Ellacombe:—"In order to keep the cage steady, wedge after wedge would be driven between the timbers and the walls of the tower; and hence the irreparable damage done to many a beautiful building." (Belfries and Ringers, p. 34.) Carlisle can furnish a case in point. St. Stephen's Church was built in 1865, at the expense of Miss (now Baroness) Burdett Coutts, who also gave it a ring of eight bells, the cage of which has been made "steady" after the manner described above, and already there is a crack in the tower. It is not only easy to avoid this mistake in Carlisle Cathedral; it is difficult to make it, owing to the size of the belfry. Dean Tait, who wrote as if he had taken professional advice, evidently anticipated no danger to the tower from the ringing of the bells. It might be well if this matter were again taken into consideration; and, if it should appear after full inquiry that no danger is to be apprehended, there is doubtless public spirit enough in the present generation of "Gentree of the Countie and Citie" to emulate the good work done by their forefathers in the days of the Commonwealth. Nor should they be content with a ring of six, there being ample room in the belfry for a dozen or more; there should be at least eight. The completion of the octave would not greatly increase the expense of the "thorough repair" desired by Dean Tait, provided the addition were made at the treble end of the ring, in which case the present treble in D, which weighs about 5½ cwt., might be recast as F, whilst two new bells, of about 5½ and 6½ cwt., would be required for E and D.

I assume that the condition of the bells—which the chimes show to be all sound, and all except the treble (which is too flat) in tune—is such that none of them need to be recast. Possibly an expert might—I do not know he would—suggest the recasting of them all. But to such a proposal the local antiquarian society, and a good many other persons, would no doubt strongly object, even preferring to allow them to remain as they are than to relegate "Maria" to the furnace. Let us hope that whoever may be called in as professional adviser in this matter may prove equal to dwelling together in unity with archæologists, and refrain from suggesting anything likely to impair the historical interest of bells associated with honoured names of William de Strickland, Orbell L.M., Jeremy Tolhurst, and Fleming D.D., Decanus.

H. WHITEHEAD.

THE RAWMARSH SOCIETY, YORKSHIRE.

On Easter Monday morning, April 7th, an interesting ceremony took place in the belfry of Rawmarsh church, on the occasion of the unveiling of a painted tablet erected by the members of the Rawmarsh Society to commemorate the peals that had been rung consisting of over five thousand changes, during the last ten years. The Rev. Sir William Ross Mahon, Bart. (rector), had kindly consented to unveil the tablet. Amongst those present were the Rev. J. R. Ashworth (curate), Mr. F. Phillips (churchwarden), Mr. W. Coates (Rotherham), and the following ringers: Messrs. T. Whitworth, S. Whitworth, J. Farmery, J. Ensor, J. Hawkins, V. Hawkins, T. Wild, R. Whitworth, J. Schofield, H. Bonce, W. Hawkin, S. Walker, and W. Whitworth."

The Rev. Sir Wm. Ross Mahon, Bart., in performing the ceremony, said he was glad to have the pleasure of meeting the ringers on that auspicious occasion. No one could hear the bells of Rawmarsh church, particularly on a fine summer evening, without deriving pleasure therefrom. The peals were not only thus agreeable, but were also very useful in summoning people to the services at the church. He did not know with whom the idea of erecting the tablet originated, but the ringers appeared to have carried out the scheme by themselves. He congratulated them on the success that had attended their efforts. Although he was not a bellringer, and consequently did not understand the changes and other things, he considered the tablet was a very suitable one. The work had been prettily and creditably executed. In conclusion, Sir William referred to the fact that Mr. Knapton had generously given them two additional bells. He thought his kindness ought to be recognised.

Mr. W. Coates, of Rotherham, said it was the ambition of every ringer to have his name recorded in the belfry in which he performed, and the tablet which Sir William had unveiled was to record the peals that were rung consisting of over five thousand changes, so that those who followed in the years to come could see what their predecessors had accomplished. He (Mr. Coates) had visited many church towers in Yorkshire and adjoining counties, but he confessed that the tablet which had just been unveiled was the most handsome he had seen, and he congratulated the Rawmarsh ringers on having succeeded in adding such an adornment to their belfry. There were not many church towers in England in which were not erected tablets recording the peals that had been rung.

On the proposition of Mr. Coates, seconded by Mr. Joseph Farmery, a vote of thanks was accorded to Sir William, and a similar compliment was passed to the Rev. J. R. Ashworth and Mr. Phillips.

The tablet records six peals, and is the work of Mr. Thomas White, jun., of Rawmarsh.

On the conclusion of the ceremony, the bells rang out merrily a touch of Grandsire Triples, after which 1600 of Bob Major was rung. The ringers and friends then adjourned to the "Earl Grey" inn, where a substantial dinner was done ample justice to. The tower was again visited in the afternoon, when touches of Grandsire, Bob Major, Stedman, and Treble Bob Major were rung. After the ringing, a social gathering was held, presided over by Mr. Joseph Farmery, with Mr. B. T. Copley, Secretary of the Yorkshire Association, in the vice-chair. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts, songs, tunes on the handbells, etc. were given, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

THE LEEDS AND DISTRICT AMALGAMATED SOCIETY.

The usual monthly ringing meeting of the above society was held at the Leeds parish church, on Saturday, April 26th. Representatives were present from Armley, Bramley, Burley, Drighlington, Headingley, Holbeck, Leeds, Pudsey, and Rothwell. The adjourned general meeting was held at the "Old Royal Oak," at 5.0 p.m. The president, Mr. Tom Lockwood, occupied the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and duly passed, the hon. sec. read a report of the doings of the society for the past year, which shewed that ringing meetings had been held every month, and had been fairly well attended, and that three peals had been accomplished by the members: one of seven methods, on six bells, and two of Kent Treble Bob Major. The balance-sheet, which shewed a good balance on the right side, having been passed, the members proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year. On the motion of Mr. R. Binns, seconded by Mr. J. Brown, Mr. J. Whitaker was elected president. Mr. J. Brown proposed, and Mr. D. Yorke seconded, the election of Mr. H. Moss, as vice-president, which was carried. Mr. T. Lockwood proposed, and Mr. F. Woodhead seconded, the re-election of Mr. W. Craven, hon. treasurer, and Mr. H. W. Needham, hon. secretary, which was carried unanimously. A hearty vote of thanks to the retiring officers for their services during the past year brought the meeting to a close.

WINGFIELD (Suffolk).—On Wednesday, April 16th, at the parish church, two 360s of Oxford Treble Bob. Charles Hines, 1; Frank Barkway (conductor), 2; J. Filby, 3; George Brown, 4; Herbert Hines, 5; Robert Huggins, 6. Messrs. H. and C. Hines and Barkway hail from Brockdish, the rest are local men. Tenor 14 cwt.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

SATURDAY, MAY 3, 1890

THE recent metropolitan squabble anent the unfortunate failure in Stedman Cinques has ended in a fiasco. The person, who, in spite of all caution to keep out of print, rushed headlong into an unenviable notoriety, has had to eat the leek, and make an abject apology to those whom he attacked. There was not the least propriety or shred of wisdom shewn in venturing upon this subject after so long a time had elapsed. It is to be hoped that the discomfiture of the individual who initiated the correspondence will be a lesson to those who possess more lungs than politeness, and who do not hesitate to speak in disrespectful language concerning those who in the past, as well as the present, possess attainments of a decidedly superior order to themselves.

Obituary.

JAMES LAYLAND.

On Wednesday, April 9th, at his residence, Jackson's Row, Wigan Lane, after a very painful illness. The deceased was for upwards of twenty-four years a ringer at Wigan parish church, where he was esteemed and respected by all who knew him. The deceased was in his fiftieth year, and leaves a widow and several children to mourn his loss. On Thursday night the ringers met together and rang a date touch, consisting of 1890 changes, Grandsire Triples, with the bells muffled, as a last tribute of respect to their late brother ringer. The ringers stood as follows: Thomas Halliwell (conductor), 1; Samuel C. C. Turner, 2; Edward Bentham, 3; George Turner, 4; John E. Gummeison, 5; Samuel Hall, 6; Robert Fisher and Alexander Shaw, 7; Jonathan F. Hall and John Barker, 8. Time 1 hr. 10½ mins. Tenor 28 cwt. in C. The above touch was composed by James Aspinwall of Liverpool.

EDWIN ROGERS.

On Wednesday, April 16th, the above-named gentleman died at Mossy Hill, Maidenhead, in his fifty-sixth year, and was interred on Monday afternoon, April 21st, at St. Luke's church. The interment was witnessed by several of deceased's oldest ringing friends. Mr. Rogers was born at Hughenden, Bucks., in 1834, where he first learned to pull a bell. Deceased was very fond of bell ringing, as an instance—on one occasion he rang call changes for three hours at Cookham. He was for many years connected with the Boyne Hill company, with whom he rang several peals of Grandsire Triples, ringing his first peal on St. Luke's day, October 18th, 1882, at All Saints' church, Boyne Hill, Maidenhead. When the Farnham Royal company commenced change ringing in 1878, Mr. Rogers used to ride up on his bicycle every Saturday night to ring with them, and thus rendered great assistance, and on the occasion of his ringing his first 120 of Doubles, called differently to what he had been used, he was as pleased as if he had rung a 5040; he also rang in their first 720 of Minor. It may be said Mr. Rogers and Mr. Smith were the fathers of change-ringing in East Berks and South Bucks., and with the co-operation of Mr. J. J. Parker, the East Berks. and South Bucks. society was started, which afterwards emerged into the Oxford Guild, deceased acting as treasurer of the branch up to the time of his death. He was never tired of going over the same ground again and again for the benefit of a young ringer, and one of his best bits of advice was that they should never forget that other young ringers would require to be taught with the same amount of patience. Cancer in the back, which necessitated an operation, last year, was the cause of his death. In the evening, after the funeral, as many of deceased's oldest friends as could be got together, attempted to ring a peal of Grandsire Triples, with the bells muffled, as a last tribute of respect, at All Saints' church, which came to grief after 1 hr. 45 mins. good ringing, through a wrong call being made. J. C. Truss, 1; F. Dentry, 2; J. J. Parker (conductor), 3; G. Stanbrook, 4; A. E. Hoskins, 5; R. Flaxman, 6; E. Willis, 7; E. Keeley, 8. Another attempt was made on Saturday, April 26th, with the Rev. F. E. Robinson and Mr. Washbrook, when the latter gentleman made a similar mistake with Holt's ten-part, after ringing 2 hrs. 15 mins. The bells were half-muffled on this occasion. Mr. Rogers was a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths and the Oxford Diocesan Guild, and was much respected.

NOTE TO THE STEYNING PEAL.—In bringing this peal to a successful issue, the conductor scored his fiftieth peal for the association. It is the first peal on the bells since their augmentation to eight and dedication on January 8th, 1890, and was rung on the seventh occasion of meeting for the purpose. It is also the first peal in the method by all the band except the conductor, and his first peal in the method as conductor.

A CORRECTION.

In the peal of Stedman Triples rung by the St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, at Bishop Ryders, in last issue, the fifth name should read George W. Baldwin.

There once was a parson of fame,
Who had reverend in front of his name;
He sneered at bell ringers,
But they gave him such stingers,
I doubt if he'll do it again! E. JENKINS.

VISIT OF BAGSHOT RINGERS TO EWHURST AND CRANLEIGH.

On Easter Monday, April 7th, the Bagshot company started by brake at 6.20 a.m., and after a ride of twelve miles reached Guilford at 8 a.m., where they were joined by Mr. S. Brooker, of Leatherhead, and Mr. Stapleton, of Bagshot, which brought the company up to ten. Starting again, they crossed Merrow Downs and Albury, where a halt was made to have a look at the "silent pool" on the Duke of Northumberland's estate. Starting again, Ewhurst was reached, after about twenty-five miles drive, about 11, where they were received by the Ewhurst company, and Mr. Fred Francis (of the Bagshot company). The usual greeting over, they made their way to the church, where a 120 of Grandsire Doubles was rung. A start was then made for a 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor, which came to grief after ringing to the eighth bob, through the 4th rope slipping the wheel. W. Stevens, 1; T. Gould, 2; F. Francis, 3; O. Harding, 4; H. Stapleton, 5; E. Spooner (conductor), 6. Another start was made, with the same result, so they retired to dinner, which was done full justice to, and to which about twenty-eight sat down. Dinner over, the party again made their way to the church, where they attempted another 720 of Kent Treble Bob, this time successful. W. Stevens, 1; T. Gould, 2; H. Stapleton, 3; W. Haynes (Ewhurst), 4; S. Brooker, 5; E. Spooner (conductor), 6. An attempt was then made for a 720 of Grandsire Minor, in which Messrs. Henson, Knight, and G. Farnfield, jun., took part. After tea, which was provided at the institute by the rector, the Rev. Canon Sapte, they again visited the church, where a 720 of Bob Minor was rung by a mixed band. E. Spooner, 1; F. Francis (Ewhurst), 2; H. Stapleton, 3; T. Gould, 4; W. Streeter, 5; G. Farnfield (conductor; aged 70), 6.

W. Streeter and G. Farnfield belong to Cranleigh. After lowering the bells in peal, the party adjourned to the White Hart, where the remainder of the evening was spent in singing, etc. Mounting their brake at 10.20 p.m., and driving through Shalford, Guildford was reached as the clock struck 11.30, and Bagshot was reached at 1.20 on Tuesday morning, all having enjoyed their outing. The company wish to thank (through the medium of "THE BELL NEWS") all those who helped to make them comfortable, also the respective vicars for the use of the bells.

TAUNTON, SOMERSET.

The vicar of St. James', the Rev. G. Kingdon, has decided on forming a guild of change-ringers for his parish church, in the place of a team of Churchyard Bob men, who left at Easter. The bells are a beautiful peal of six, but are not in very good going order, as was experienced on Saturday evening last, when the first three 6-scores ever rung on the bells was accomplished by T. Doble (conductor), 1; T. W. Radford, 2; G. Summerhayes, 3; J. Burge, 4; J. Maddock, 5; J. Cridland, 6. The same band also rang three more 6-scores, for Divine Service on Sunday morning, in the presence of the vicar and some of the young men who are commencing this week to learn the art, assisted by some members of the St. Mary's Guild.

OLDBURY (Staffordshire).—On Monday, April 21st, at Christ Church, a date touch of Grandsire Triples (1890 changes), in 1 hr. 5 mins. J. W. Sayer, 1; T. Horton, 2; J. Hall (conductor), 3; B. Lowe, 4; C. Price, 5; R. Hall, 6; S. Reeves, 7; W. Gould, 8.

THE NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Annual Meeting of this Association was held at Lincoln, in the Odd Fellows' Hall, on Saturday, April 26th. Before the commencement of business the members and friends, to the number of about 100, sat down to a bountiful knife and fork tea provided by Mr. Hatton, of the Arcade Coffee Palace. The room was appropriately decorated with the mottoes, "Ring out the false, ring in the true," "We'll do our best to call God's folk to prayer and praise, to tell their rest, etc." The Lord Bishop of Lincoln, Patron of the Association, honoured the members with his presence, and during the repast delivered an address.

His Lordship, who was very cordially greeted, said he could assure them that it was a real pleasure to him to meet them again. It was a very hopeful thing when they saw so many men giving themselves to a work of that sort—the ringing of church bells. It was a good sign, a high pleasure; it showed a lifting up in a person's mind and heart and aim in life. If they were to go back a bit they would remember that for the first 400 years of Christianity there was no bell-ringing at all. Then when something of the kind did begin it was just a little rapping or hammering on a sort of gong, but no bells, and the first record they had of bell-ringing in England was quite 200 years after that, namely, in the middle of the seventh century, at Whitby. Why were there no church bells ringing in the first 400 years of the Church? Simply because in those early days to be a Christian was nearly as much as one's life was worth. People had not accepted Christianity as, thank God, they had now, and therefore when they heard bells ringing they had great reason for thankfulness. It meant that the country at large was itself Christian, and it ought to mean to them a repetition of the angels' song at Christmas, "Peace on earth and goodwill towards men." They should be thankful that they could ring their bells, and that there in England at least they could ring them because their fellow-countrymen were Christian, and willing to allow them to ring bells in the House of God. As they had got on in the world in that way, and were not afraid of their lives, as it were, so, he was thankful to say, they had got such a Society as theirs, which meant a step up even beyond that. They knew quite well that the churches were very dull some years ago, that they were divided and cut up into those boxes, those pews and doors, which wanted a very elastic mind to suggest a notion of brotherly love and unity, and were not what they would expect if people were to be brothers together, and worship one Father in Heaven. Thank God, churches had been restored, and it was a delight to him in going up and down the diocese to see the work of restoration still going on. People wanted the churches in every separate village to be more like what they should be if they were to be, as they were intended, a House of God. Then when the churches got restored, people began to say "We must take care of the choir," and not have them, as often they were, in the gallery tuning their instruments, and that not altogether as carefully as might be. Let anyone now go into the churches and see how nice the choir looked. They had on their surplices and cassocks, and they looked as though they were doing what one would expect them to be doing, making a contribution towards the praise of God. Then while that was going on, people just thought of the belfry. They said "Ah, the belfry; well, you cannot do much with that; the singers if you please, but you are going too far if you expect the ringers to do likewise." Nobody was so ambitious as to fancy they could get hold of the ringers, but now, thank God, what had they come to? They had come to the plain consideration of the fact that the belfry was just as much a part of the church as any other part. That was what they had come to, and he thanked them (the ringers) for getting so far. When they had got to feel that the belfry was part of the church it followed that those who did the work in the belfry were Church helpers and Church workers, just as much in their way as the choir who were singing in the chancel or the parson who was speaking in the pulpit. That was how they had been drawing on, and were now all working together and taking their part in different places in the church, in working for God's glory. If they called to mind some of the old mottoes that were to be found on the bells, it showed just the same line of thought. One motto he knew in this diocese was "In the Name of God," and another simply the one word "Jesus." It meant at once "holiness," that it was a religious thing they were going to do. Sometimes there were verses and mottoes on the bells with different meanings, and there was one in this diocese which seemed to be addressed to the people at large, "Be not over busy." He thought that was a very good motto to ring out, for he fancied that in the present day there was so much pressure, hurry and rush that people had hardly time to think where they were going while they were running. "Be not over busy." "Get time to think," "Be still, and know that I am God," was what they wanted rung out to them again and again in this hurrying and busy age. There was another motto which was addressed to the Bishop and clergy, "Send persons true in life and word," and that again was a good motto to ring out. They did want to have Bishops and parsons who were true in life and word, so as to lead them on in the right direction. His belief was that if they continued as they were going they would soon be ahead of the Bishops—he would not say anything about the parsons. There was a capacity and power, a determination and strength in them, as in the Lincolnshire and English people at large, that when they once got hold of a thing they would not leave it off until they had accomplished their object. He would like to see the day when they got hold of religion; he did not believe that when they got hold of the bell-rope they would leave it off until they had made it sound. Again, they might often see on the bells the single letter "S,"—the word "Sanctus," which meant holy. It went to show that they were not starting a new kind of idea, but were getting off the rust, and clearing away that which had been growing over, and hiding the real meaning, which they might have seen if they had only eyes to see it. They were getting back to see that the belfry was really a part of the church, that the bells really had to do a religious work in the parishes for God, and therefore it was a work that was worthy of the noblest feelings and the highest ambition of of any real Churchman who wanted to do his part towards bringing the people back again to God. That was a strong reason why bell-ringing was a sound and a real thing. It was to bring them there, nearer and back again to God, and the nearer they got to God the nearer they got to one another. It was a wise and a true thing to have a Society for bell-ringers. One great good of a Society with rules was that it kept a man in his weaker moments up to the better ideas and the highest wishes he had in his best moments. If he belonged to a club, in his right moments he said "Well, I must keep the rules, and must pay this money in at a certain time." In a weak moment he might say "It's a fine day, I should very much like to go for a ride or a drive," but his wife said "Oh, but remember next Monday is club night." The wife just did the very thing that a wife should do; she reminded her husband of those rules of his club, and represented not her own will dominating over his, but his own will and his own judgment when in his best mood when he said "I will belong to this club, because I think it is a good thing for me." Everyone had his weaker moments, and unless there were rules to observe one was apt to keep at a lower level than otherwise. It was therefore a wise and a good thing for people to join together and have a Society which had rules in it in order that they should not let slip those higher ideas. With regard to such a rule as "No bad language," a man did his work in a right way, and he went back from it as a man should do, with a secret inward satisfaction that he had had self-respect, and had been doing what he could to promote the honour of God. He (the Bishop) solemnly and sincerely thanked them for the work they were doing; because he believed that as Church of England bell-ringers they were doing precisely the same work which he as their Bishop was trying to do, and as their good friend on his left (Canon Warner), and the rest of the clergy were trying to do. It was pleasant to think that while in the first 400 years of Christianity there were no bells rung, there were at the present time, as he found from a book at which he was looking the other day, no less than 2000 bells in Lincolnshire. It was a good sign to have those bells all about, and ringing "Peace on earth and goodwill towards men." Their work, he repeated, was a good one, and would bear thinking about, and the more they thought about it the more they would find satisfaction in it. If they themselves were thoughtful as to what the bells were really saying he believed they were winning souls to God. There was something wonderfully touching and unlike any other sound that he knew of in the church bell. He was very fond of music, and delighted in the singing of the choir, but the choir did not do exactly what the ringers did when in the belfry. Besides only those in the church could hear the singing of the choir. In his parables the Saviour was constantly thinking of the wandering sheep, of those who were away, and he (the Bishop) believed that many a young man and many a young woman who were hovering on the brink of ruin had been stopped in their course and brought back to a better life by hearing the sound of the church bells. And many persons in the sick room and in the cottage, who from sickness or old age were unable to go to church, could on Sunday evenings in the summer open the window and listen to the sound; and who could tell the beauty of the thoughts which would pass over the old Christian's mind when he heard the bells and remembered the time when he had been at church with his family sitting around him? Who could tell the million of beautiful things which passed through his mind, too high indeed for man's tongue to utter? They (the ringers) taught the hearts and minds of the people where the clergy could not get at them. They were doing a really religious work; they were sending out the truth and calling the people back to God. Besides wishing to bring the people back to God, they should have an inward delight in ringing the bells; they should have an enjoyment in the sound, and then they would have a double reason for doing it. They would do it because they felt it was right, and they would do it because they liked it. He (the Bishop) begged their pardon for speaking so long, but he was in earnest. He believed they had a great and a good work in their bell-ringing, a work of bringing the people back again to God, and, as he said before, the nearer they got to God the nearer they got to one another.

On the motion of the Rev. Canon Warner, Vicar of Gainsborough, seconded by Mr. R. Woolley, of Lincoln, a hearty and enthusiastic vote of thanks was passed to the Bishop for his address.

The business of the meeting was then commenced, there being present, S. F. Hood, Esq., of Nettleham Hall (in the chair), supported by Canon Warner and Mr. F. F. Linley, of Gainsborough, and ringing members from Lincoln, Hull, Gainsborough, Market Rasen, Grimsby, Sleaford, Louth, Scothern, Washingborough, Stow Relford, Newark, Metheringham, Caythorpe, etc.

The Chairman announced that letters had been received from the President (the Very Rev. the Dean of Lincoln), and other honorary members, regretting their inability to be present.

The minutes of the last annual meeting having been read and confirmed, the Secretary (Mr. J. W. Watson, Lincoln), submitted the report and balance-sheet for the past year, which showed the Association to be in a very flourishing state; it numbered 172 members, and concluded the year with a substantial balance in hand.

The officers for the past year were all re-elected to serve during the ensuing year, viz.: President, the Very Rev. the Dean of Lincoln; vice-presidents, Rev. Canon J. P. Young, Grimsby, Rev. Canon Andrews, Claxby, S. F. Hood, Esq.,

Nettleham Hall, Mr. F. F. Linley, Gainsborough; Treasurer, Mr. H. Gadd, Market Rasen; Secretary, Mr. J. W. Watson, Lincoln; auditors, Messrs. Linley and Parkin.

On the motion of Mr. Linley, seconded by Mr. Watson, a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Norman E. Snow, Sleaford, for representing this Association at the inaugural meeting of the Central Council of Ringers held in London, on April 8, 1890.

It was decided, on the proposition of Mr. Linley, seconded by Mr. W. A. Hodson (Lincoln), that this meeting shall elect its representatives to serve on the Central Council. Messrs. F. F. Linley and N. E. Snow were then elected as such representatives.

The Rev. T. Dudding, of Washingborough, was unanimously accepted as an hon. member of the Association. Twenty-nine ringing members were enrolled and nine probationers were passed as efficient. Market Rasen, Grimsby, and Sleaford were proposed as places at which to hold the next quarterly meeting, and it was decided in favour of Market Rasen, July 5 being the date fixed.

Mr. Gibbons (Market Rasen) proposed that an honorarium be granted to the Secretary, in acknowledgment of the efficient way in which he had discharged his duties. This was seconded by Hackney (Market Rasen), and unanimously carried.

The Secretary suitably thanked the meeting for their appreciation of his services.

Some discussion ensued respecting the procuring of an emblem as a certificate of membership, but it was decided that no steps be taken in the matter for the present. Votes of thanks were accorded to the Dean, and the vicars and churchwardens for the use of the bells; the honorary members for their kind interest and support; to the Lincoln Reception Committee for the day's arrangements; and to the chairman for presiding.

During the afternoon and evening touches were rung by the visitors on the bells of the Cathedral, and St. Peter-at-Arches, St. Peter-at-Gowts, and St. Botolph's churches.

SLEAFORD, LINCOLNSHIRE.

The customary Easter vestry has recently been held in this town, under the presidency of the vicar, "and," says a local print, "with the exception of Dr. Giles's attack upon the bell-ringers, was of a most successful and harmonious character." We give below a full report of the somewhat interesting discussion which followed the attack of Dr. Giles. Probably our readers will be of opinion that the worthy doctor, whose opposition to bells may arise from a humane regard for his patients in esse or in posse, conspicuously failed in his object of silencing the bells. The local paper referred to heads the report of the discussion thus:—

ARE THE CHURCH BELLS TO BE ABOLISHED?

Mr. Giles remarked that he should like to ask whether anything could be done towards relieving, what was to those residing in the immediate neighbourhood of the church, a great nuisance. He alluded to the constant ringing of the church bells, which had been going on since the church was restored and the bells re-hung. He understood at first that it was done in order that the bell-ringers might get into practice, and he hoped that by this time that object had been attained. He thought that the ringing ought to be dispensed with to a great degree, if not altogether. He did not know with whom the matter rested, whether it was the vicar or churchwardens.

Mr. Kirk pointed out that the matter rested entirely in the hands of the vicar.

Mr. Hervey felt sorry to disagree with Mr. Giles, as living at a distance, the oftener he heard the bells the more he liked them, for when at the old place, with the wind in the west, they sounded very nice. When the tower was being re-built he expressed a hope that the bells might be hung higher, in order to prevent any annoyance to the residents in the Market-place, but to those who lived at a distance, the bells had a peculiar charm.

Mr. Kirk explained that when the bells were re-hung, the louvres of the belfry windows were left entirely open. But since then, in order to meet the complaints made by residents in the immediate neighbourhood as to the sound, some of the windows had been boarded up.

Mr. Giles asked if the bell-ringers had not mufflers for the bells.

The Chairman replied that they had, but the objection to muffling the bells was that it took so long a time.

Mr. Kirk observed that in all other countries the bells were hung in the open without any louvres at all.

Mr. Nickolls observed that after all the money that had been spent on these bells, and the compliments they had received from outsiders as to their beautiful tone, he hoped that their own town was not going to object to them. People in the immediate neighbourhood might be affected by the noise, but as individuals we could not expect to have everything that we liked. He should like some things that he had not got, but being unable to obtain them, had to put up with the loss of them. He thought they ought to compliment someone upon the manner in which these bells had been restored to their present state of perfection, and felt that they were a credit to their town.

Mr. Kirk: We like to hear them at a proper distance, and we all like them rung for church service, and on occasions of rejoicing. But what the people who live in the immediate neighbourhood of the church object to is the frequent practices.

Mr. Hervey held that the practices could not be termed frequent, as they were only held once a week.

Mr. Kirk rejoined that when anyone was ill, one practice a week was quite sufficient. Mr. Giles had spoken about the mufflers, and he (Mr. Kirk) would make a practical suggestion. Supposing they found a boy to muffle the bells for practice, would the vicar permit it to be done.

Mr. Hervey: What is the good of having the bells if they are muffled?

Mr. Kirk rejoined that Mr. Giles objected to the ringing for practice, and wished to spare the ears of the people in the neighbourhood by having them muffled.

Mr. Hervey rejoined that he should be very sorry indeed to have the bells muffled, as it was one of the greatest pleasures he had to hear the ringing. He did not say this because he did not live in the immediate neighbourhood, for he had lived ten years in the Market-place, and never once complained about the ringing of the bells. In addition to this, he might point out that the ringing was now much better than it used to be.

Mr. W. Maxey explained that if they had the bells muffled for practice it would greatly interfere with the efficiency of the ringers.

The Chairman stated that the mufflers were given him as a present from Exeter, and were used when the ringers were learning.

Mr. Nickolls remarked that seeing the position they were in, he hoped that Mr. Giles would withdraw his motion, as the ringing was so good and almost everyone appreciated the bells.

Mr. Hervey thought that Mr. Giles might as well urge that they should stop ringing the bells on a Sunday. If no one objected to it on the Sunday, they could not on the Monday.

The Chairman remarked that there seemed to be a great diversity of opinion in that matter, and he was therefore still more sorry to have to acknowledge that the responsibility rested with him. He should very grieved to take any steps that would interfere with the efficiency of the band of bell-ringers, and almost feared that if they made the practices less regular the ringers would not care to take that interest they did at the present. He, however, felt quite sure that after the observations made by Mr. Giles and one or two others, the ringers would reduce the time of practice to the smallest possible limits, which he hoped would meet Mr. Giles' objection.

Mr. Hervey thought that the ringers should not be made to feel that they were a cause of annoyance. He was not a ringer himself, but his brother had told him that one of the most delightful occupations he had was in ringing church bells. He thought it would be a great pity if the ringers were led to suppose that they were causing a great nuisance.

Mr. Nickolls: Hear, hear; that's good.

Mr. Hervey remarked that if it were a mere matter of expense he should be very glad to contribute towards the closing of the lower openings in the tower, so as to send the sound of the bells into the top part. If they could throw the echo to the top part of the tower, all possible nuisance would be done away with.

Dr. Bissill remarked that after the bells had been rehung, Messrs. Taylor said that the sound would be materially modified if the louvres were blocked up with solid masonry.

Mr. Kirk rejoined that that was simply absurd. Messrs. Taylor spoke from the fact that the old church of Loughborough had been bricked up. The north and west windows at Sleaford were boarded and felted.

Mr. Hervey thought that if the tower was open on one side, it would do away with the effect.

Mr. Kirk replied that as the control was entirely in the Vicar's hands, they could do nothing.

The Chairman observed that he had always found the bell-ringers most considerate in being perfectly willing to give up their ringing in case of illness.

Mr. Harrison thought that the bell ringing was a great nuisance.

Mr. Nickolls remarked that he was very disappointed to hear these expressions of opinion about the ringing. He had always been under the impression that one of the beauties of the church was the ringing of the bells.

Mr. Morris: So it is.

Mr. Nickolls considered that the remarks that had been made that evening were a reflection not only upon the bell-ringers, but also upon the gentlemen who had been kind enough to supply the means to have them restored to the present perfection. He therefore hoped that Mr. Giles would retract all he had said on the subject.

Mr. Hervey held that if the sound could be remedied in any way it ought to be done. He thought it advisable to look into the matter to see if any alteration could be made.

Mr. Nickolls remarked that without a moment's hesitation he took upon himself to say that he considered it perfectly ridiculous for Dr. Giles to talk about the bells being an annoyance, as it was one of the greatest pleasures they had to listen to them. They had gone to an enormous expense to have these bells re-hung, and were now told that they were not to ring them.

The Chairman felt assured that the churchwardens would do what they could to minimise the sound.

Dr. Bissill intimated that he did not wish to stop the bells, as he was old-fashioned and liked them, but suggested that the louvres should be blocked up.

Mr. Kirk promised, as one of the churchwardens, to do what he could to minimise the noise.

Dr. Bissill remarked that if Mr. Nickolls lived in his house during the bell practice, he would wish himself at Willoughby. After further discussion, it was resolved to leave the matter in the hands of the vicar and churchwardens, to see what could be done towards blocking up the remaining louvres of the tower.

The Chairman concluded by congratulating the meeting upon leaving the churchwardens with their hands full and their pockets empty.

This absurd opposition seems peculiarly ill-timed. A great deal of money has been willingly contributed towards the restoration and rehanging of the bells, a promising young company is in existence to ring them scientifically, the members of which have always consulted the wishes of the parishioners, and refrained from practice (for six months in one instance) whenever illness has arisen near the church. This attempt to hinder their work is therefore to be condemned. We counsel them to pursue the even tenour of their way and not allow the freaks of any number of Gileses to deter them from their onward course. They have the Vicar and Wardens with them, and these authorities will no doubt have carried into effect any acoustical remedies that may be considered necessary to remove any real or fancied inconvenience.

LEGAL.—In the Times of May 3rd, appears the name of Norman E. Snow, among the list of successful candidates at the Solicitors' examination held in April. Mr. Snow is on the Central Council of Ringers for a division of Lincolnshire.

LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Saturday, April 26th, the first annual meeting of this Guild was held at Southport, when upwards of seventy ringers attended from the various towers, viz.: Aughton, Crossens, Croston, Halsall, Hindley, Ormskirk, Sefton, Southport, Wigan, etc.

Ringin commenced on the bells at Christ Church at 1.45 p.m. and was kept up by various mixed companies till 3.30 p.m., when service was held, the Rev. G. F. Williams reading the prayers, and the Rev. F. W. Bulpit the lessons for the day. The Ven. Archdeacon Clarke (in the unavoidable absence through indisposition of Canon Fergie) gave a short address, which was listened to with rapt attention. Special hymns were sung during the service. The offertory was devoted to the benevolent fund for the ringers belonging to the Guild.

At 5.0 p.m. the company sat down to a capital knife and fork tea, which was served in splendid style by Alderman Fisher. Grace having been said, the ringers attacked the good things provided, course after course, till rounds came up in good style. The Rev. W. T. Bulpit then moved a hearty vote of thanks to Alderman Unwin, J.P., for his liberality in entertaining the ringers to tea, which was carried with acclamation.

At 6.0 p.m. the meeting was held in the infant school, at which the Rev. C. M. Clarke was voted to the chair, who expressed the pleasure it gave him at meeting the ringers of the diocese, and trusted that the Guild would receive the encouragement it merited from those for whose benefit it was established. He then called upon the Corresponding Secretary (Rev. W. T. Bulpit) for the report, and that gentleman in replying said that as the Guild had only been in existence a short time, it was gratifying to know that it could boast of over eighty members, which spoke well for its working. But at the same time they must not expect an elaborate report, as this was their first annual meeting, still he was pleased to say they had a small surplus in hand.

On the motion of Mr. J. Martin (Sefton), seconded by Mr. J. Ashcroft (Croston), it was resolved that the following become officers of the Guild: patron: the Lord Bishop of Liverpool; president: Ven. Archdeacon Clarke; vice-presidents (clergy): Revs. Canon Bridgeman, Canon Blundell, W. Spooner, W. Madden, O. Masters, E. Horley, C. M. Clarke, G. F. Williams, C. F. Holt, J. E. Woodrowe, W. T. Bulpit, C. M. Markham; (laity) W. L. Hutton, J. Morton, T. Gilbert, J. Hatch, J. J. Cockshott, Alderman Fisher, Alderman Unwin, Dr. Barron, and Mr. Aspinall (recorder of Liverpool).

It was proposed by Mr. J. W. Rimmer, seconded by Mr. W. Bentham, and carried with acclamation, that the Rev. W. T. Bulpit be Corresponding Secretary to the Guild.

It was proposed by Mr. J. Eastham, seconded by Mr. J. Hale, and agreed to, that the following members form the committee: Messrs. J. Prescott, G. Prescott, J. Ashcroft, N. Spencer, J. W. Rimmer, and R. Holmes; and that Mr. D. E. Rimmer be appointed Treasurer and Mr. W. Bentham Ringing Secretary. It was also decided that the members of the Guild present from the Wigan branch choose their own committee-man.

It was proposed by Mr. W. Bentham, and seconded by Mr. J. Sholicar, and carried, that Mr. Martin be appointed Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund; and it was also agreed, on the motion of Mr. Spencer, seconded by Mr. Ashcroft, that Mr. J. Eastham and Mr. Sholicar be appointed Auditors to the Guild.

Mr. Hutton remarked that what he had said before at Ormskirk he repeated there—that he thought the authorities in the Church, whether clergy or churchwardens, did not take the same interest in the belfry and the ringers as they did in the choir, or any other organisation connected with the Church. He thought it was the duty of the vicar, curate, and churchwardens not only to look up to the ringers, but to encourage them in their work. The society under whose auspices they were met was formed not only to reform the belfry, but the ringers themselves. They were all prone to degenerate if there was an absence of those means which tended to raise them in the social scale, and therefore a Guild such as theirs, the object of which was improvement, must commend itself to everybody.

The Rev. W. T. Bulpit, in speaking of the work of the ringer, said nothing could give greater pleasure on a sabbath morning than a pleasant peal of bells; no one could say they were a nuisance. The nuisance was that one bell which never varied the cling-clang over and over again. He hoped that before long they would be able to reform one or two steeples in the diocese, and get the one original bell changed into a peal. That was one of the objects of the Guild, which they must ever keep before them. Contrary to many people, he believed that bell-ringing was not an art acquired without considerable ability. Apart from its being a grand piece of exercise, the performer needed good reasoning and calculating powers before he could take rank as a first-rate ringer. Change-ringing was essentially connected with the English Church, and he did not know that it was successfully practised anywhere else. They certainly did not get it on the continent, but he was pleased to read it was attaining to some degree of perfection in Australia. He was of opinion that the ringer should have his official standing in the church, just as much as the singers had theirs. The objects of the Guild was to make change-ringing highly esteemed through England, and he asked all the members to co-operate in extending its usefulness.

The Rev. G. F. Williams suggested as a motto for the Guild Tennyson's line, "Ring out the false; ring in the true." He felt with Mr. Hutton that bell-ringers were a very important part of Church organisation, and that they deserved every consideration and encouragement from the clergy and all interested in Church work. He did not know that there was anything more beautiful than to hear a peal of bells nicely rung from some country tower on a Sunday morning, and he knew of nothing more likely to win people to the House of God than the sound of such bells. He was sure a band of bell-ringers was one of the strongest and most loyal supporters a Church could have, and he wished the Guild every success.

A large number of honorary and performing members were elected, and after a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman for presiding, and to the ven. Archdeacon for the use of the bells and schoolroom, a highly successful meeting was brought to a close.

During the afternoon and evening several excellent and well-struck touches of Grandsire Triples, Bob Major, and Kent Treble Bob were rung. The local company are to be thanked for their kindness and courtesy in having all in readiness, and giving each ringer a hearty welcome.

Obituary.THOMAS DAVIS.

All ringers who knew the late Mr. T. Davis, of Prestbury, near Cheltenham, will hear with sorrow of his death, after a very short but severe illness. He was interred at Prestbury on Saturday, May 3rd. A very beautiful wreath in the form of a bell was sent by his brother-ringers in the neighbourhood, and muffled peals were rung both at Prestbury and Cheltenham. Mr. Davis's loss will be keenly felt by all who were acquainted with him, and a good man, a good ringer, and a true friend has passed away, comparatively a young man, and one whose place can never be filled.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Welcome as the flowers in May."

Our Editor informs me that he has at length disposed of a great deal of the Eastertide avalanche of copy which annually rolls in upon him through his letter box, accompanying this piece of information with a gentle reminder that it is now time I again took up my pen. Further than this, he says he has been the recipient of many enquiries as to the cause of my silence during the past few weeks; several of the letters being couched in terms of warm approval of my past efforts to use my weapon fair and straight for the good of the Exercise. To those brethren who have thus written, I express my deep obligations. It is very satisfactory to learn that one's humble endeavours for good are appreciated. We all of us have read the fable of the old man and his ass, and must agree with its moral—the utter impossibility of pleasing everybody by our actions. However good our intentions may be—however sincere and honest our motives—the world outside the sanctum of our own heart is but too prone to misconstrue those actions, and form a wrong estimate of the motives which impel them. Thus words of commendation and approval come as helps on the way, they shine like stars in the firmament on a dark night, and make the outlook all the more pleasant. I thus recommence my weekly chat with more confidence, believing that as time rolls we shall not only understand each other better, but also exhibit a wider application of that spirit which freely gives and takes, crediting one another with the best intentions, and avoiding everything which may seem to partake of a jealous or unfraternal character.

* * * * *

Another pleasant feature of my resumption of duty is the opportunity afforded me of expressing my gratification at the latest addition to the "gallery." There can be no doubt about it that the great Yorkshire Association is peculiarly blessed in the inclusion within its ranks of so many genuine, indefatigable and otherwise excellent scions of the Exercise. Scarcely a town or district in that county seems to be lacking its prime moving spirit. In whatever direction we look we find some "leader among his fellows" whose hearty and even enthusiastic spirit keeps the ball rolling and helps to maintain that esprit du corps which is so characteristic of this Association. The old seaport town of Hull is no exception to this rule; it is fortunate in the possession of its "Charlie" Jackson, who I fondly hope will for a long, long time to come be blessed with health and strength to continue his labours for the benefit of that science to which he has so ably devoted himself, and also that he may ever be rewarded by the esteem of the brethren, particularly in his own native town.

It is a matter of satisfaction to read that the Gloucester and Bristol Association has so fittingly commemorated the memory of its departed veteran, Giles Mansfield. Although the ceremony in Stroud Cemetery on the 21st ult. was, through inclement weather, not so numerously attended as might have been desired, yet the mere fact of the existence of that headstone over the place where the old man of 96 rests peacefully is creditable to the Association which placed it there. Four-score years of active life as a ringer is no light record; nay, rather, on the other hand, it may be regarded as unique. But more than this, "good old Giles" through all that long time was a practical exposition of the secret of making friends; thus the framers of his epitaph were enabled to record the "affectionate remembrance" of one who for eighty years was a much-respected and valuable member of the Stroud and Painswick Societies; that he departed this life "beloved by all." Is not this record one worth striving for? If we were all imbued with a laudable ambition to leave a good name behind us, and nothing but pleasant remembrances of our actions on the part of those who remain after us, should we not soon see an end of all strife and bickerings—and in their place a hearty desire to "spend and be spent" for the common good? My friends, when we are tempted to do anything which is calculated to mar the happiness of others—to cause a break in the continuity of fraternal relationships—or to give pain to anyone, let us remember old Giles Mansfield, who for four-score years as a ringer lived respected, and at the last went to his well-earned rest, "beloved by all."

* * * * *

And while speaking of a memorial, I cannot resist expressing the hope that our friends of the St. Martin's Guild are finding funds coming in for the Johnson monument fully equal to their wishes and anticipations. The outside limit of individual subscription is small enough in all certainty; there can be no cause of complaint on that score, unless indeed it be from those who would prefer giving a larger donation. To tell the truth, I was rather surprised at this limit; but trust the step thus taken will prove to be sufficient for the purpose. Surely our Birmingham friends do not intend contenting themselves with a simple headstone wherewith to record the Exercise's appreciation of the services of a chieftain like Henry Johnson. The memento, to my mind, should rather be a monument, one worthy the memory of him to whom it is erected, and creditable to those who thus honour his worth. I say this with all reserve, and without desiring for one moment to offer any criticism on the mode in which the St. Martin's Guild propose to perpetuate Mr. Johnson's memory; but—even if this should cause any slight delay or alteration of their plans—for goodness sake do not let us have anything of the "cheap and nasty" sort. Let the memorial be one worthy of him and equally worthy of ourselves, then we shall all of us be satisfied.

Just a word with our friend Mr. C. Tyler on the accomplishment of his fiftieth Sussex Association peal, which came off on the 29th ult. I am very pleased in being able to congratulate him on the event; and shall be even more so if I read that it has been properly honoured by those for and among whom he has done his best.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.—HULL BRANCH.

On Wednesday, April 2nd, at a meeting held by the members of the Yorkshire Association in Hull, it was decided to form themselves into a branch of the above Association. Rules having been submitted to the meeting and accepted for the proper working of the branch, it was decided that practices should be held once a month at Holy Trinity and St. James's churches, and that an attempt be made for a peal on the first Monday in each month, commencing May 5th.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing twelve months: J. Dixey, president; J. W. Stickney, secretary; and C. Jackson, treasurer.

Any ringers visiting the town will be heartily welcomed. If intending visitors will communicate with the secretary, Mr. J. W. Stickney, 60½, Campbell-street, Kessle Road, Hull, arrangements for them to have a pull will be made.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 10, 1890.

WHILE the Oxford University Society of Change-Ringers appears to be hastening towards total extinction, that of the sister University is making headway. Both of them are numerically weak, but the Cambridge Society is just now exhibiting a vivacity which may seem a palliation for its want of numbers. The efforts of the Messrs. JAMES to give a fillip to the art upon the banks of the Cam have resulted in the execution of a peal in hand, and we hope that this is but a preface to other if not greater performances. We think the Oxford Society is now represented by only three members; the prowess of the Cambridge brethren in the art will it is to be hoped lead those gentlemen to think whether they cannot rescusitate their Society, and by and bye enter into an energetic competition which shall redound to the credit of both of them.

Owing to inattention on the part of a compositor, many impressions of our last week's issue appeared with two pages transposed. To those who take pains in having the yearly volumes bound, this circumstance may prove embarrassing. With this number, therefore, we have issued a separate sheet of four pages to take the place of those printed out of order last week. If our readers will cut their last week's copies, remove the pages that are defective, and insert the sheet issued this week, the matter will be remedied. We apologise for the occurrence, but we have taken the best means for its rectification.

RE-OPENING AT AYLSHAM, NORFOLK.

The re-opening, after repairs, of the peal of ten at Aylsham, Norfolk, took place on Wednesday, April 23rd. The day was quite a gala day for the parishioners, as from an early hour in the morning, and at intervals throughout the afternoon and evening, good touches of Treble Bob Royal and Grandsire Caters were rung by the different companies.

At 1 o'clock a dinner was provided in honor of the occasion at the "Black Boys" hotel, which was well attended by the parishioners and ringers from Norwich, Yarmouth, Eye, Diss, and Kenninghall, together with many members of the local companies. The chair was taken by C. R. Dewhirst, one of the churchwardens, who was supported by the Vicar (Rev. J. G. Hoare), Rev. H. Earle Bulwer, Rev. Dr. Raven, Rev. J. H. Hastings, Rev. R. W. Pitt, Mr. R. J. W. Purdy, Mr. F. Little, Mr. H. G. Wright, etc.

The toast—"The Queen and Royal Family" was given by the Chairman, and heartily responded to.

Mr. Purdy proposed "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese," who he said had always taken great interest in the belfries of their parishes.

The Vicar in responding expressed the hope that the clergy and laity might for ever pull together, and ring out a peal to the glory of God by working hand in hand. He felt this undertaking was principally due to the laymen who first started the work and carried it through. He proposed "The Norwich Diocesan Association of Change-Ringers," coupling with the toast the names of the president (Dr. Raven) and Hon. Secretary (Rev. H. Earle Bulwer).

The Rev. Dr. Raven expressed the cordiality which he felt towards the Association, and was well pleased with the grand work which had been done in making the new frame, and the rehang of the bells in such a satisfactory manner.

The Rev. H. Earle Bulwer expressed his appreciation of the work that had been done. He was glad to inform them that the Norwich Diocesan was recovering much of its lost ground, and was now ready to march with re-organised forces in the path of progress, and in jealous prosecution of the objects for which it was first instituted.

Mr. H. G. Wright proposed "The Health of the Chairman and that of his fellow-churchwarden, Mr. F. Little." He spoke in warm terms of the assistance rendered by the former gentleman towards the renovation of the church tower, the church clock, and the organ, and said they had both pluckily come forward to tackle the great work which had just been completed.

The Chairman in responding remarked how pleasantly he had been received as a beggar for funds on behalf of the committee.

Mr. F. Little having also replied, proposed "The Visiting Company of Ringers," coupling with the toast the names of Captain Moore, F. Knights, Rev. J. H. Hastings, and C. Clements. These having briefly responded the company adjourned.

A service was held in the church at 3.30, at which the Rev. Dr. Raven officiated, a large congregation attending who were greatly edified by the sermon. A collection at the close of the service was made towards the restoration fund, which amounted to £32 os. 5d.

THE CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

MACCLESFIELD BRANCH.—The eighth quarterly meeting of this branch was held at Gawsworth, on Saturday last, May 3rd, when twenty-three members attended from Macclesfield, Bollington, Poynton, Gawsworth, and Wilmslow. During the afternoon and evening touches of Plain Bob and Grandsire Minor were rung on the beautiful peal of six, tenor 11 cwt. 1 qr. 17 lbs. in G. These bells have all been recast (excepting the old fourth) by the firm of Mears and Stainbank, and are now in perfect harmony and go very well—a credit to the firm. They have been put in a new frame with pits left for two trebles. The old tenor was badly cracked, and the treble too sharp. At five o'clock all adjourned to an excellent tea, after which the business meeting was held, the chair being taken by Mr. Walter Henshall, of Gawsworth, who gave all a hearty welcome, and said that any ringer would be made welcome at any time.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and Alderly was selected as the next place of meeting on October 11th. Great regret was expressed at the absence of Mr. Matthews, who was conductor of the old church ringers at Macclesfield, but has had to give up ringing owing to ill health. Mr. Matthews is a little better now, but is not able to do anything at all. The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the chairman, and the Rector for the use of the bells. The tower was again visited, and touches of Plain Bob and Grandsire were rung, and altogether a pleasant meeting was brought to a close.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

MAIDSTONE DISTRICT.—The Annual Meeting of the members of this district took place on Thursday, April 24th, at Town Malling. Besides the home ringers other members of the Association came in from Maidstone, Linton, and Seal Chart. The Hon. Sec. of the Association also attended. Touches of Kent Treble Bob, Bob Major, Grandsire Triples, and Bob Triples. The day seemed a little doubtful, and perhaps this may account for the very small attendance. However the bells were kept pretty busy, as may be seen from the above changes, owing to the energy of the ringers present. It is to be hoped that next year the meeting will be much larger. No new names were proposed.

"HONOUR TO WHOM HONOUR."

SIR,—In last week's issue there is an account of a date touch rang at Bootle, with the name of Mr. W. Short as being the composer of 210 of Grandsire Minor. Now sir, this 210 is none other than part of 216 taken from Troyte, with the first ten changes omitted, and four added; and how on earth Mr. Short can lay claim to being the composer is beyond the comprehension of yours, C. E. WILSON.

THE NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A Quarterly Meeting was held at Pulham, on Tuesday, May 6th, which was well attended by ringers from various parishes in Norfolk and Suffolk, forty-seven sitting down to dinner at the "King's Head," Pulham St. Mary, at 1.30, under the presidency of the Hon. Secretary, who was supported by the Rev. W. H. Cleaver, Rector of Pulham St. Mary, Captain Moore, District Secretary, Rev. H. J. Coleman, Rev. W. Chas. Eppstein, and Cyril C. Tuck, Esq. A vote of thanks having been passed to the Rectors of the two parishes for the use of the bells, the Hon. Secretary made a brief report on the present position of the Association. He stated that the Association after a somewhat critical period was in a fair way now to recover its former prosperity and strength, that the tower ringers in union with it were increasing steadily in numbers, that the scheme for the re-organisation of the Society had taken effect, and that districts had been formed and local secretaries appointed, who were now at work in the following centres: Aylsham, Beccles, Eye, East Harling, Hingham, Redenhall, Saxmundham, Stowmarket, Woodbridge, Great Yarmouth; and these would probably be added to before the end of the year. He then gave notice, on behalf of the Committee, that a Revised Draft of the rules would be submitted to the members for adoption at the next annual meeting. This draft would comprise such alterations and additions to the rules as the experience of thirteen years had shewn to be necessary; printed copies would be circulated before the annual meeting for the information of members on the points in which alteration was proposed. Eight honorary members, thirty-one performing, and five probationers, were admitted, and after a vote of thanks had been passed to the Secretary, the members dispersed to the various towers which were open in the neighbourhood, at some of which some very good ringing was done during the day; besides which the Pulhams, Tibenham, Starston, Alburgh and Redenhall were visited. The train arrangements unfortunately prevented many being present who would otherwise have been there, and compelled several to leave early.

THE ST. PETER'S GUILD, WOLVERHAMPTON.

On Saturday last, May 3rd, this Guild held its monthly meeting at Sedgley, when members attended from Tettenhall, Penn, Coseley, Tipton, Wombourn, Bilston, and Wolverhampton. Several touches of Grandsire Triples and Major were successfully brought round, and twelve new members elected. It was proposed to hold the next meeting at Tipton, on Saturday, June 7th.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

ROSSENDALE BRANCH.—On Saturday, May 3rd, a meeting of this branch was held at St. James's church, Waterfoot. Ringing commenced at 2.30, and the bells were kept well going till six o'clock in Bob Minor and College methods. At six o'clock a meeting was held in the schoolroom, which was of a business character. It was resolved that the next meeting be held at St. Thomas's, Helmshore, on Saturday, June 7th. There were twenty members present from Bacup (Christ Church), and St. Saviour's Waterfoot, Newchurch, Rawtenstall, Helmshore, and Ramsbottom. After the meeting touches of Bob Minor, College Single, and Kent Treble Bob Minor were rung until nine o'clock, when the company dispersed, after having spent a very enjoyable evening.

My DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. UNION TRIPLES.

By J. J. PARKER, Farnham Royal, Bucks.

At the beginning of last year I thought that I would put to further use the knowledge I had gained in my investigation of Grandsire Triples. I first thought I would confine my attention to Oxford Bob Triples, but finally came to the conclusion that it would not be much more trouble to investigate two or three methods together; I therefore decided to include Union and Court Bob. I propose giving a few peals in each method, with a few remarks touching upon the peculiarities of each. There is a kind of relationship existing between these three methods which I shall endeavour to explain later on.

For ten-part peals with 120 calls, there are 165 problems for each method, each giving ten different callings, which will either give a peal or ten 504s. For six-part peals with the observation bell always called into 7th place for Union, and 3rds for Oxford and Court, there are 250 problems for each method, each giving eighteen different callings, which will produce a peal with 114 or 120 calls. In six-part peals having the observation bell always called into either of the places just mentioned, six shunting bobs would be included, therefore such peals must contain 114 calls. Most of the six-part peals in each method will admit of being called without these shunting bobs, or they may contain eighteen shunting bobs, making 126 calls. The shunting positions are those when one of the observation bells is in 3rd's place, and the other two in 6-7.

As Union seems to require different treatment to either of the other methods, I give that method first. In "THE BELL NEWS" for October 24, 1885, appeared the result of some investigations in this method by the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, and it seems that Mr. Davies discovered the difficulty about the singles, which seems to be the greatest drawback to the method. The reverse bob plan applies to this method in such a form which must have thrown Holt completely off the scent, seeing that he only gave us one peal, which is not on the reverse bob plan, the same as his two peals of Grandsire. It seems to me to be the correct thing that all ten-part peals—in methods having a bell in the hunt—should be built upon the five leads of the plain course and its reverse course. I give these two courses in Union to show the difficulty about the singles.

245673	254376

If we attempt to use these leads for the two part-ends, it can be seen that we cannot have—by calling a single at the halfway—265437, instead of 234567, and Mr. Davies must pardon me for saying that I think the making of the singles while the treble is behind most objectionable. Even the singles Holt used—as they partake of a plain lead—are bad enough on account of the bells lying still in 2-3, and it is to be regretted that the method will not admit more conveniently to bob-singles of some kind, so as to be able to avoid the three blows in 5th place. I will next explain what effect this reverse bob plan has upon the observation bell, or bells in this method. In ten-part or six-part peals it will be seen that if the observation bell is called into 3rds place a certain number of times in the first half, she is called into 6th just as many times in the second half, or vice versa; to call her into 7th place counts the same as 3rds in Oxford or Court. All this works such havoc upon the three observation bells in six-part peals, that we appear to lose all control of the 6-7s.

I will now proceed to give a few peals, which I shall consider the ne plus ultra of the method.

TEN-PART PEALS.

From the ten callings mentioned above, there are eight ten-part peals, six of these will admit of plain-lead singles with the 2nd as observation, as I shall only give the bob-leads of two of these peals, I give below the ten callings:—

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
5	3	4	2	3	3	2	4	4	4
1	1	2	5	1	1	3	1	1	2
5	4	5	1	4	4	3	5	4	5
2	2	4	2	1	2	2	2	1	1
5	1	3	2	5	1	5	5	5	5
5	5	1	4	5	5	2	3	1	1
3	4	5	5	1	5	5	1	5	4
1	5	3	3	3	2	2	5	3	2
4	5	1	5	5	5	5	4	5	5
1	1	5	1	5	5	1	3	1	1
3	4	2	5	2	2	5	2	5	5

For the second half of each peal, start from 265437, commence with a bob at one and reverse the remainder of the calling, then transpose for the singles. In peals 1, 2, 5, 6, 7 and 8, the 2nd is never called into 7th's place; in 3 and 4 she is called into 7th's place three times in each part. It is not possible to have the 2nd always called into 7th's place without having three-lead bits, which means twenty-two singles, however, the calling may then be alike in each part.

9 and 10 gives ten 504's. I give below transpositions of 1 and 2 as these two peals have what I may call Grandsire part-ends.

By dispensing with the reverse bob plan and using two common Grandsire singles in each part, and Holt's bob-single for the half-way and home, a variety of ten-part and six-part peals are to be had with each part called alike. The following ten-part peal is a specimen.

SIX-PART PEALS.

There are a variety of plans for composing six-part peals, and on taking the singles into consideration, the plan, with the observation bell always called into 7th place, seems as good as any other. From the eighteen different callings—which I shall not give in this case—there are three peals of special interest given below, arranged with plain lead singles. I also give one peal with bob singles.

First Single. Second Single.

The singles for 1, 2, and 3 are the same as for those in ten-parts. In peals 1 and 2 it will be seen that the observation bell (the 2nd) falls into 7th place three times in succession in each part. With this exception these two peals are in twelve parts. On comparing the second half with the first in these two peals, the fact of the observation bell falling (in the reverse order) into 6th place instead of 3rds, and vice versa, looks confusing, and it would seem that the best peals are those in which the observation bell is not allowed to fall into these places at a bob, see peal 3, which is a very simple peal. The idea of having the 2nd always called into 7th place as in the first three peals seems rather absurd, for this reason I give peal 4 with the 7th always called home, also to shew the kind of thing we must submit to in having bob-singles and 5-6-7 fixed. The method seems to demand that 4-5-7 should be the observation bells.

The following peals have two Grandsire singles in each part and Holt's bob-singles for the half-way and home; each part is called alike, and we get the 6-7's turning up in decent order.

FIVE PART PEALS.

Not being able to use shunting bobs as in Grandsire, these methods, it seems, are not suited to five-part peals unless we have two kinds of singles in each part; but a host of peals are to be had on the plan of Hollis's peal of Grandsire. Two such peals are given below.

The singles being omitted in all the other parts, the 2nd will only remain in the hunt five leads (in and out at five). OPENING OF A NEW RING OF EIGHT BELLS AT EAST MOULSEY, SURREY.

THURSDAY, the 1st of May, was quite a lively day at the parish of East Moulsey, on the occasion of the opening of the new ring of eight bells, recently hung in the tower of St. Mary's parish church by Mears and Stainbank. The Cambridge chimes have also been added. Originally there were but three bells in the tower, which were no doubt thought sufficient for all requirements, but the ambition and munificence of the inhabitants has at last carried them a little farther, with the result that a ring of eight, tenor 10 cwt. in G sharp, has been erected in the tower.

Divine Service in the parish church of St. Mary began at 11.0 a.m., the shortened form of Morning Prayer being used. At the end of the third collect the hymn, "When morning gilds the skies," was sung, during which the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Guildford ascended the pulpit, and gave a very excellent and appropriate address, which was listened to with marked attention by the large congregation assembled. The day being the Feast of the Apostles SS. Philip and James, hymn 411 was sung after the right rev. prelate's address, when the actual dedication service commenced, followed by the singing of the Old Hundredth psalm.

A very interesting ceremony now took place: the Bishop, proceeding together with the clergy and choir to the tower, took hold of the tenor rope and pulled off the bell, while little Miss Robertson pulled off the treble, the two actions being instantaneously photographed by Mr. Robertson.

Eight members of the Surrey Association then rang a 504 of Grandsire Triples as a opening touch, standing in the following order: S. Greenwood, 1; J. Strutt (conductor), 2; G. Woodiss, 3; G. A. Fish, 4; T. Mills, 5; J. Wright, 6; G. Gray, 7; J. Chandler, 8. This touch was listened to by the large congregation and by a large concourse of people in the churchyard, who were evidently delighted at the sweet tone of the bells.

After luncheon, an attempt for Holt's ten-part peal was made, but a change-course occurring after 1 hr. 20 mins., brought it to grief. The bells were however kept going at intervals until nearly 9.0 p.m., upwards of 6000 changes being rung. The rest of the evening was spent in company with friends from Hampton in handbell ringing, Grandsire Triples and Caters, combined with a variety of tunes, giving a pleasing finish to the day.

The new treble was subscribed for by the Sunday School children, and the tenor given by Mr. Serjeant Spinks formerly a resident of Moulsey. The go of the bells, together with their tone, reflect the greatest credit upon the founders, and it is hoped that the young local band who are starting to learn change-ringing under the tuition of Mr. Gray, will soon get on, so that the full sweetness of them may be heard continually by the parishioners.

ST. EDMUND'S SOCIETY, EXETER.

The annual meeting of this society was held on Monday, May 5th, Mr. T. Townsend in the chair, there being also present Messrs. Herbert, Pitt, Goss, Marsh, Swift, Searle, Richardson, and Crane.

The Secretary and Treasurer's reports were read and adopted, the treasurer's showing a balance in hand. The Rector (Rev. W. W. Secretan) was re-elected president, with Mr. Sydney Herbert as vice, in conjunction with the Rev. H. M. McGrath. Mr. E. Pitt was elected secretary in the place of Mr. Marsh, who informed the meeting that he had so much to do in other channels that he had not the time to do justice to the position. Mr. H. Swift was re-elected treasurer.

Mr. Herbert said he was sorry there had been so little ringing done during the past twelve months, but it was no fault of the members, as the church had been closed for the past six months for repairs, part of the ceiling having fallen away, but he hoped there would be more to report by the next annual meeting. With a vote of thanks to the officers for their services and to the chairman the meeting terminated.

SITTINGBOURNE (Kent).—On Sunday, May 4th, for Divine Service at the parish church, 720 Kent Treble Bob. J. Mann, 1; E. Price, 2; A. Harris (conductor), 3; J. Bottle, 4; C. Willshire, 5; S. Shelling, 6. A. Harris hails from Gilling; the rest belong to the local company.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

A District Meeting of this Guild was held at Alton on May 6th. A correspondent, who calls himself "One of the Guildford band," sends the following not very satisfactory account of the proceedings:—

"The meeting was called for 3.0 p.m., and upon reaching the spot, found some thirty or forty ringers present, and was pleased to see amongst them some old familiar faces. We had some touches of Grandsire Triples, and then I thought to myself—'Now for some Stedman.' You can judge of my dismay when the secretary said, 'Now gentlemen, the Committee meeting, please,' and one after another they trooped out of the belfry. Those left were principally six-bell ringers, with a very laudable desire to learn Triples, but as you are well aware, with a number of ringers, some of whom never rang on eight bells before, the plain course gets rather mangled, and on heavy bells rather tiring as well, and we finally adjourned to view the town. The Committee meeting lasted till nearly 5 o'clock, and then we had a few attempts at Stedman, and one plain course of Bob Major. It was then time for tea (which by the way is not free like other Associations), then—why the last train south left, and good-bye to any more ringing, the whole afternoon having been, as one of the Woking ringers aptly expressed it, entirely cut to waste. I don't think that I shall attend another district meeting in a hurry, as from my point of view the inducements are hardly strong enough."

Obituary.

REV. J. B. SEAMAN.

Many of the oldest members of the Essex Association will regret the death of its founder, which occurred on Wednesday, May 7th, at Bournemouth, after two or three months' illness. Though never an accomplished change-ringer, Mr. Seaman took a warm interest in ringing; and in May, 1879, while curate-in-charge at Writtle, he convened a meeting of about a dozen ringers from Chelmsford and the neighbourhood, at which it was resolved to form an Association for the county, having for its object "the promotion of change-ringing and order and reverence in belfries." Mr. Seaman was appointed Secretary of the newly-formed Association, a post which he retained until March, 1883, when, on the eve of his departure for Manitoba, a peal of handbells was presented to him by its members at a special meeting convened for the purpose of taking leave of the Secretary. At the next annual meeting he was appointed a life member of the Association, and after his return to England in 1885 continued to show a lively interest in its welfare, attending its meetings when able to do so. For its origin, and for its growth and well-being during the early years of its existence, the Essex Association is largely indebted to Mr. Seaman. Its rules remain much in the same form as drawn up by him; its accounts are kept, and its business transacted on the lines which he laid down. Few men, indeed, who were not change-ringers, have done more for change-ringing. It required no slight energy and devotion to the cause to start and keep going, in a rural district with few ringing traditions, such an Association as ours. The Essex Association can now take care of itself; but like other grown-up children, it owes a debt of gratitude to the care that watched over its earliest years. Mr. Seaman's funeral took place on Monday last, at Greenstead, near Colchester, of which parish his father was rector for many years; and in the evening of that day a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung at Writtle church, with the bells half-muffled, in respect for his memory.

T. L. PAPILLON.

JOHN WATKINSON.

On Saturday, May 3rd, the above died at Conisboro, in his 89th year. Deceased was for many years a ringer, having taken part in a 5040 on December 19th, 1863, at St. Mary's, church, Tickhill. He was conveyed by hearse on Tuesday, May 6th, to the above place, and on arriving there the remains were borne to the grave by the local ringers. Afterwards a 720 of Violet was rung with the bells muffled, as a last tribute of respect, in 25 mins. A. Wright, 1; F. Jenkinson, 2; G. Hackford, 3; T. Manifold, 4; C. Ainley, 5; J. S. Jenkinson (conductor), 6. Tenor 19½ cwt.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

NOTES BY THE WAV.

"The Church of our land is the poor man's Church
From his birth to his funeral day;
She takes him up in her surplined arms,
And singeth his burial lay."

The North Lincolnshire Association is a fortunate body—one to be envied even—seeing that it has for its patron such a great and good bishop as Dr. King. While we have to congratulate those who were privileged to hear the Bishop's address at their meeting in the city of Lincoln on the 26th ult., we have also to thank them—and "THE BELL NEWS"—for the opportunity afforded last Saturday of reading his excellent remarks. That speech is deserving of being reprinted and distributed not merely in the diocese of Lincoln, but throughout the length and breadth of the land wherever the sound of bells is heard. Unfortunately, I am afraid it is impossible for it to receive its deserts in this way, the funds of our associations being none too extensive for working purposes only, without extraneous calls upon them of this sort.

* * * * *

I wonder what would have been the effect upon those who attended the vestry meeting at Sleaford when Dr. Giles made his attack upon the bells and ringers, had Bishop King's address been circulated amongst them previously. Dr. Giles and the select few who supported him would, I rather fancy, have had a sorry time of it. As it is, the Sleaford ringers may be said to have come out the best of it, and I don't doubt for one moment that the selfish opposition of Dr. Giles to their work will but result in an accession to their popularity among the townsfolk. They have evidently many strong supporters, and I was peculiarly glad to read Mr. Nickolls' commendatory remarks on the quality of their performances. It is advisable, of course, in all places, and under all circumstances, for us to minimise as far as possible all causes of complaint; thus a frequent and systematic use of tied clappers for recruits in the elementary stages will be found serviceable in this direction. But I will not presume to offer any advice to our Sleaford friends with reference to the somewhat difficult position in which they are placed, further than this—to spare no efforts to keep up the quality of their performances. By judicious practice, with clappers both tied and loose, as circumstances may warrant, they will effectually neutralize all such attacks upon them as the one by Dr. Giles. I wish them heartily all success in their future endeavours.

* * * * *

Mr. Norman E. Snow, who has gained for himself the esteem of his Lincolnshire brethren, has, I am pleased to note, been successful at a critical juncture (to him) in the profession to which he now belongs. I heartily congratulate him on gaining the reward of his perseverance and ability. At the same time I hope Mr. Snow will not follow the example of some I could name, who in their years of professional novitiate were ardent change-ringers; but who, no sooner had they got over the "knotty points" in their career—stepped out of their 'prentice shoes (so to speak) and put on the boots of the journeyman—than they began to be found conspicuous by their absence in the towers where previously they had been the first and most regular attenders. But I give our learned friend Mr. Snow credit for better things than that, and believe the Lincolnshire men will be benefitted by his cordial assistance for many years to come.

* * * * *

The St. James' society celebrated Mr. Snow's departure from the metropolis with Holt's Original at All Saints, Fulham—that was a kindly token of goodwill to brighten his path homewards. Richard Theobald, of Stanstead, has taken part in a peal on his nineteenth birthday. The Worsley society have scored their third peal of Double Norwich. A mixed band from Maidstone, Sittingbourne, and Gillingham has pulled off the first peal of Kent Treble Bob by the resident members of their Association; and eight Cumberlands brought round a 5024 of Double Norwich on the birthday of Mr. Hannington, who "called the bobs." All these are interesting characteristics of peals which will every one be remembered probably for many years by some at least who took part in them. But, after all, where is there one of them "like unto" the peal of Oxford Treble Bob at Redenhall last Friday week, of which we are informed—"the age of the second ringer is seventy-eight years?" Bravo! William Sheldrake; you're a brick! How few are there—or have there been—of whom it could be recorded that they "joined the circle" for a peal in their seventy-eighth year? Probably Mr. Sheldrake is blessed with a stronger frame than men have as a rule when they attain that long age; but he has displayed not only strength of body by this peal, but strength of will also. Very few would have tackled a peal at that time of life. In fact, I know men a score years or more younger than friend Sheldrake who long ago resigned themselves to the notion that their peal-ringing days are over. Poor old men! Think of William's seventy-eight years, and—blush!

* * * * *

If the fates be as propitious as a certain well-known brother-string desires, the bells in the Isle of Man will be swinging merrily to the tune of sundry peals, with members of the College Youths, both of London and the provinces, hold of the ropes' ends during the coming Whitsuntide. You needn't take my word for gospel, but I believe I am not far wrong in saying that the intention is to leave Liverpool by first steamer on Whit-Saturday, the 24th, returning the following Tuesday. I hope this expedition will prove more successful than one projected in a similar direction some few months ago. Given fine weather, the outing should be a thoroughly enjoyable one, if a short sea trip each way; a most lively and picturesque island to go to, where the charge for apartments "with or without board" is by no means unreasonable; good handy rings at your service; and (last but not least) the entertaining company of the Master—are sufficient elements on which to base a pleasant holiday. So all you who can make it convenient to get away this Whitsuntide from the smoky towns and the cares of business, book your seats for the Isle of Man.

FREE LANCE.

HECKFIELD, HANTS.

The ancient ring of five bells at this parish church, tenor about 16 cwt., has just been thoroughly restored by Messrs. Blackbourn and Greenleaf, of Salisbury. The frame has been strengthened and new gudgeons and bearings added. The work has been carried out in a very satisfactory manner, the go of the bells leaving nothing to be desired. The same firm of bellhangers are now engaged in rehanging the peal of six and extending the frame for two new trebles in the tower of St. Giles, Reading, which when completed will no doubt be a grand peal of eight; tenor about 16 cwt.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1890.

OUR readers will be interested in the brief account which will be found on another page respecting the introduction of that amazing invention—the Phonograph—into a London steeple on a recent practice-night. We shall not be surprised to hear that those ringers of an inventive turn of mind like our friend JOHN CARTER, will now set their brains to work to see what can be done with such an instrument. Evidently the time is fast approaching when the detection of unworthy performances will be made easier than ever, because when the Phonograph is absolutely perfect its adoption will of course be general throughout the steeples of the country. We may therefore expect to hear of societies who are anxious of "beating the record" insisting on the use, by their rivals, of the Phonograph, which, attended while at work by a strong guard of antiquated steeple-keepers, shall only be allowed to divulge its secrets to a profound committee of judges. Then will be discovered the actual offenders who upset peals by their want of diligence; the slipshod bob-caller, whose failing is to call "the wrong" instead of "the middle;" and those who in the coming-round course insist upon going slow instead of quick. All these transgressions will be brought into light, and therefore we shall hail the use of such an agency if it is only to convince—if possible—obstinate people who are always right, and prevent a war of words which generally leads to no genuine solution.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE JOHNSON MEMORIAL.

SIR,—As Chairman of the Johnson Memorial Committee I must deprecate the want of taste shewn by your correspondent of last week in warning the St. Martin's Guild against erecting a Memorial of "the cheap and nasty sort."

So discourteous an expression, now widely circulated, cannot but cause pain to the late Mr. Johnson's family no less than fall as an undeserved slight upon the competency of the Committee.

In view of the frequent calls that are made upon the liberality of the Exercise, the majority of whose members are ill able to indulge their generosity, the Committee were specially anxious, by limiting the amount of individual subscriptions, to allow the numerous admirers of the great composer to testify their appreciation of him and his work without unduly taxing their resources.

The family of the late Mr. Henry Johnson, as also his friends, would esteem more highly a memorial which should be raised by the small contributions of the many rather than by larger sums from a few; nor do they think that in order to be suitable a memorial need of necessity be costly. I may add, however, that if the Exercise were so minded, a shilling subscription might provide a memorial second to none.

UNION TRIPLES.

SIR,—In answer to the valuable letter in your issue of May 3rd by the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, I cannot let it pass without saying a few more words on the subject. Mr. Davies says "what is a single?" also "what authority has Mr. Carter or anyone else for saying that it is the same as a common Grandsire single?" And further Mr. Davies says "therefore let Mr. Carter produce some composition of an old master (such as Holt or Annable, with his singles in it), Clavis and Shipway know them not." I have not got the Clavis, but I don't think that Mr. Davies has taken the trouble to look at "Shipway" before writing, but if he will take the trouble to look he will find in part 2, pp. 107 and 108, the following: "The bobs and singles in this system are made in the same manner as in the Grandsire system, viz., the two thirds places with double dodging above thirds, the fifths place being then omitted," etc. Also, "In respect of the courses of the bells, i.e., being in and out, this system is in each peal of either method similar to the Grandsire system; consequently the coming round at hand is effected in the same way as in that," etc. And also in part 3, p. 93, Mr. Davies will also find a peal composed with common Grandsire Singles, only they are made at a plain lead instead of at a bob lead. By this Mr. Davies will see where I got my authority from; and as regards the suggestion of the single

* 7 5 6 2 3 4

I believe they are Sottanstell's; and I do not agree with them, because it is away from the method, as Shipway tells us by the above. But the two-part peal of mine contains the same single. Either through the printer's mistake or mine, the figures should be

1 3 7 2 5 6 4

If the calls were made as stated it would bring the peal false. This peal, and several others with proper singles has been sent for publication about three months ago, but I expect it is for the want of space that they have not yet appeared. As regards me publishing the two-part peal, it is because it is impossible to get a peal on the three-lead plan, with two common singles. As regards Mr. Davies calling his proper singles and mine doubles, I quite agree with him, because they are, but I refer him to "Shipway," part 2, p. 2. "It was then discovered, that in some methods, another alteration was requisite, in order to obtain the utmost possible extent of changes. This consists in turning the course of the bells (or, as it is termed, putting them out of course), which alteration on five and six bells causes a single change, and is denoted by the term single. As this alteration, however, on seven and eight bells causes double changes, some have denoted it in this case by the term double. But if this distinction was adopted it would become necessary on nine and ten bells to use the term 'triple.' It is therefore thought better to adhere to the term single to mark the alteration on any number of bells, and as it is the method generally used, it will be followed throughout this work when any two or three bells lay still to turn the course. The single of Holt's is an exception, which shall be particularly noticed;" and from this I consider I am quite right in calling them singles. Mr. Davies speaks about the use of Holt's single, and adding the same to Holt's one-part peal, which I consider would spoil it, as being the first peal composed by Holt, it points out that those he used for that peal are the proper calls for the method. Afterwards Holt tried to get a peal in equal parts, but found that he was unable to obtain one with common Grandsire singles, so he had to invent one the same that is in the ten-part peal. I consider that the only use for Holt's singles is to arrange peals in six and ten parts, or to add the three or five leads in such peals as will be found in Snowdon's book on Grandsire Triples, pp. 95, 98, 103, and 105. Turning to common singles, excellent peals have been got in one, three, and five parts. What can be got by them in short touches, i.e., getting the bells round at hand (in odd numbers of changes) or backstroke, getting the twenty-four 6-7's either way, also all the 5-6-7's at handstroke or backstroke, which cannot be done with Holt's singles; and speaking of composing two half peals and then wandering about for some call to jump them together. This is the true use of Holt's singles, for if we compose two half peals, and find a suitable place to shunt them, and transpose from where the single is, you get Holt's single, as in his ten-part peal. Mr. Davies also speaks about not caring for Shipway's five-part peal, which I consider the finest peal away from the method, as it contains single changes and single place-making throughout. Speaking of a bob in this method, as Mr. Davies says, is made (as in Plain Bob, Double Norwich, etc.) by making one place in lieu of another, I think this is no criterion at all, because one is an odd-bell method and the other an even. Take Grandsire and Stedman for instance, as they are the two standard methods on odd numbers of bells; a bob in these is not made in one place in lieu of another. I hope, Mr. Editor, I have not trespassed too much on your valuable space, as after this I shall leave it entirely in the hands of the Exercise, and hope it will be brought on at the next meeting of the Central Council, as I do not think we ought to have more than two calls in any method, one to make a bob and the other to make a single; and then composers and ringers would know what to do, both in composing and ringing.

SOCIETY OF COPLEY SCHOLARS.

The Annual Meeting of this society was held at the Unity Rooms, Bradford, on Friday, May 9th, the fortieth birthday of the captain, Mr. B. T. Copley, who presided. Mr. Joe Hardcastle (Hon. Sec.) read the annual report, which was favourably received and adopted. Nominations for the various offices were then handed in, and the following unanimously elected: Captain—Mr. B. T. Copley; Vice-Captain—Mr. J. Cotterell; Hon. Sec.—Mr. Joe Hardcastle; Treasurer—Mr. George Titterton; Branch representatives: Mr. Harry Raistrick (parish church); Mr. Wm. Gill (St. James' Bolton); Mr. Alfred Riley (Saltaire); and Mr. G. A. O. Nettleton (Shipley). Several matters and propositions with reference to the future working of the society were discussed at some length, and a very useful and practical meeting was brought to a close with the passing of hearty votes of thanks to officers for past services, and to the chairman for presiding.

CHIRBURY, SHROPSHIRE.

The Vicar of Chirbury, the Rev. J. Burd, and his ringers, have joined the Hereford Diocesan Guild. The tower of Chirbury was placed in union early in the present year. A fortnight ago the Guild Instructor visited the parish, and gave the ringers their first series of lessons in change-ringing. They have a set of eight handbells for preliminary practice, and a set of books on change-ringing are to be provided. The tower bells are an excellent ring of six, tenor 13 cwt., by Mears and Stainbank, but they need rehanging very badly. The ringers of Chirbury form a really promising company, and should do well if they work together.

THE PHONOGRAPH AND CHANGE-RINGING.

At the Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, London, on Friday, the 18th April (being the fortnightly practice of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths), by special permission of the vicar, Mr. J. H. Fesset, London representative of the Edison Phonograph company, attended with the phonograph for the purpose of taking-off the touches rung upon the bells during the evening's practice.

The first performance was a touch of Stedman Cinques, then by request a few rounds and firing, opening into the Queen's, then more firing and opening into rounds, concluding with three leads of Treble Twelve. Most of the ringing was truthfully taken off by this marvellous machine, as was also some chiming executed by Mr. Mansfield (steeplekeeper) previous to the meeting of the ringers. On the completion of the ringing, those present filed up to the clock room, and there, by the courtesy of the gentleman previously mentioned, they had the pleasure of listening to the phonograph reproducing the changes of the Stedman Cinques, Treble Twelve, etc., which had been rung on the bells previously. This was highly appreciated indeed by the audience, as it appeared quite marvellous to hear this little machine whisper such familiar sounds.

It should be added that the phonograph has to be readjusted every three or four minutes, and therefore its reproductions are only of that duration, and not continuous throughout a touch; but it could be arranged to take off the course-ends of a peal by practice and skilful management.

MR. J. J. PARKER, OF FARNHAM ROYAL, BUCKS.

The ringing career of the gentleman whose portrait appears this week is an example of how a knowledge of the theory of scientific ringing may be gained while practice in the art cannot be had only under circumstances of some difficulty. The village of Farnham is no less than three miles from one of those centres of civilization—a railway booking office, and up till very lately a greater distance from the refining influences which the tones of a ring of eight (or more) bells always imparts to an enthusiastic ringer. In the neighbourhood certainly there were several rings of five and six bells, mostly in very bad order, and situated so widely apart that to reach them in comfort necessitated some considerable amount of pedestrian training. A five or six-mile walk after the labours of the day, and the same distance back again, reaching home about midnight, for the sake of Grandsire or Old Doubles, betrays a callous contempt for the length of the journey, but shows plainly that those who regularly perform such feats are of a calibre sufficient to successfully oppose every obstacle to progress. And of obstacles which are too well known to enthusiastic ringers, Mr. Parker has triumphed over many.

He was born in the year 1853. He settled in the village of Farnham Royal soon after his arrival at manhood, and being attached to music and singing, joined the church choir, with which he is still associated. In 1887 the church tower was rebuilt, and the bells were rehung, and he was then solicited by the Rector (Rev. S. F. Marshall) to form, in conjunction with Mr. Batten (the village schoolmaster), a new band of ringers. For twelve months this society rang rounds and call-changes with perfect gusto, the latter "method" with feelings, no doubt, of great satisfaction to themselves. Perhaps they would have gone until now in the same style only that Mr. Parker (who had composed a 720 of Grandsire Minor before he could manage a bell), became intimate with Messrs. Rogers and Smith, ringers at the neighbouring town of Maidenhead, who urged him to drop the "rounds and rounds and ups and downs," and go in for something better. He agreed with the counsel of those gentlemen, and in due course suggested to the Farnham society that they should go in for "half-pull." Then ensued a scene of the bull-and-china-shop description; the opposition of the old parish clerk resulting in a general dissolution of the society, which was however soon re-established under better conditions, and in 1880 he called (and composed) his first 720 of Grandsire Minor, and the two years following he rang similar performances by the score in Grandsire, Bob, and other methods.

As a peal-ringer, the subject of this memoir does not rank high. He has only rang ten peals, nine of Grandsire and one of Oxford Bob Triples, the latter and one of the former being also composed by him. He rang his first peal at St. Mary's, Walthamstow, which was conducted by the Editor of this paper.

It is his researches into various methods, more than anything else, perhaps, which entitles him to notice. The result of his labours in this direction, from his own pen, has from time to time appeared in these columns, and though his diction in these literary efforts may not have been in strict accordance with the canons of syntax, they have, or a part of them at least, been recognised by no less an authority than Mr. Percival Heywood. This will not be considered the proper place to do more than thus briefly refer to them.

As a ringer Mr. Parker is very painstaking; as an organiser and leader of a young band, very successful. With his inseparable friend, John Basden, he is anxiously awaiting the time when two trebles shall be added to the ring at Farnham Royal; an addition that ought to be effected without much trouble, and without delay. When this desirable augmentation is carried out, we may expect to read of some worthy honest peals being rang there.

Mr. Parker is the local postmaster of Farnham Royal. He has a brother a ringer, also a son; and a daughter who "helps to do the proving when any is to be done; and another little fellow, six years old, who likes to do a bit of figuring." He is a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, the Oxford Diocesan Guild, and other bodies.

ALL SAINTS' (FULHAM) ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of this Association on Thursday, May 15th, the Vicar (as president), on behalf of the members, presented to Mr. Norman E. Snow a handsome oak inkstand, as a slight tribute of their respect, on the occasion of his leaving the metropolis. In the centre of the stand is fixed a silver bell-shaped plate, on which the following inscription is beautifully engraved:

"Presented to Norman E. Snow by the members of the All Saints, Fulham, Church Bell Ringers' Association, 1890."

The Vicar said it gave him great pleasure to present such a handsome and useful present to a member of a society of which he was the head. He congratulated Mr. Snow in being so fortunate as to win the esteem and respect of the members in so short a time as he had done.

Mr. Snow, in reply, assured the company that he should ever highly prize such a beautiful present, and the sight of it would often remind him of the kind manner in which he had always been received by the members of the Fulham society.

A touch of 504 Grandsire Caters was then rung for Divine Service, conducted by Mr. Snow.

After the ringing for Divine Service on the following Sunday evening, Mr. Snow informed the members of the company that he must wish them good-bye, but before doing so he should like to give them something in the shape of a present, which would remind them of the many pleasant hours they had spent in company together. To the great delight of the members, he then presented the company with a peal-book, with thanks for the kindness he had always received from them. He thought they would do well to set to work and ring a sufficient number of peals to record one on each leaf of the book. They need not fear ringing too many peals, as the book contained 200 leaves.

Mr. J. W. Driver thanked Mr. Snow on behalf of the members, and said he thought the society would be very proud of their present. The book was quite a history in itself; the tower of All Saints' church, Fulham, had contained a peal of ten bells for over 160 years, but had never had such a thing as a peal-book before. He hoped that when Mr. Snow visited London on any future occasion he would not forget to pay a visit to the Fulham society; he would then see if they had done justice to the beautiful peal-book, for which he, on behalf of the members, most heartily thanked him.

The proceedings then terminated. The peal-book, which is of the very best workmanship, was supplied by Mr. B. Keeble, of Romford.

HIGHAM FERRERS CHURCH, NORTANTS.

The Vicar and Churchwardens appeal for help towards the repair of the bells of this old parish church. It is proposed to put thoroughly in repair the present six bells and to add two new ones. The bells are now in such a condition that they cannot be rung. The whole of the framework requires renewing, and one bell to be recast, hence for the proper carrying out of this work a sum of over £400 is needed. This appeal is made for a parish which has more than others helped itself in the past. Within the last ten years over £1,500 has been expended upon a new organ, a new reredos, the repair of the pinnacle of the tower, and improvements in the church and churchyard, and all this has mainly been carried out by funds raised in the parish itself.

LEEDS PARISH CHURCH.—It is intended to start for a peal of Kent Treble Bob Royal at this church on Whit-Monday, May 6th, at 10.0 a.m.

EASTRY, KENT.

This pleasant village is situated about two and a quarter miles from Sandwich, in one of the prettiest parts of East Kent. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is a large and handsome structure, having been restored about twenty years ago. It contains many tablets and objects of interest. The square tower is 70 feet in height, and there are traces of Norman work in the lower part, but the greater portion is Early English. It is one of the largest towers in East Kent, being nearly 20 feet square inside. There are only five bells, tenor about 19 cwt.; the oldest appears to be the treble, which was cast by Robert Mot in 1584. They are in very fair order, and with the addition of a treble would make a good peal of six.

On Saturday, May 10th, some members of the Deal branch of the Kent County Association visited the place and rang several 6-scores of Bob Doubles. The following took part in the ringing: S. Mockett (conductor), H. Denne, H. Castle, L. Silver, S. Parker, G. Spinner, W. Moat, W. Ongley, H. Harvey, and G. Denne. After the ringing the party adjourned to the "Bull" inn, where they spent a pleasant hour, returning home pleased with their outing, and their humble endeavours to introduce half-pull ringing in a place where hitherto it had been unknown.

WORCESTERSHIRE AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

On Thursday evening, May 15th, the members of St. Thomas's society, Stourbridge, were invited to supper at the residence of Mr. A. Orford, in honour of his twenty-first birthday, where they, with a few friends sat down to an excellent supper provided for them, and to which ample justice was done and much enjoyed by all. After the cloth was drawn, Mr. C. Barrett called upon Mr. G. H. Pagett to make a small presentation in the shape of a gold scarf pin from the members of the above band, at the same time congratulating Mr. Orford on his majority, and expressing the esteem in which he was held in by the band. Mr. Orford then made an able response, thanking the members for their kind present and wishes. Harmony then reigned supreme, when several songs were rendered by the members present. Also a course of Grandsire Triples by A. Orford, 1-2; G. H. Pagett, 3-4; W. F. Hartshorne, 5-6; H. Harris, 7-8. Also several tunes on the handbells, and a very merry and sociable evening was spent by all present. A vote of thanks passed to Mr. and Mrs. Orford, sen., and Mr. Orford, jun., for their kindness, brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, May 17th, the Holy Trinity Church company, Barking Road, Essex, had their first outing to Laindon Hill Church, Essex, where there is a pretty peal of six, tenor 16 cwt. Several 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles were rung. J. Waits, 1; W. Smith, 2; W. H. Dallimore, 3; R. Lowe, 4; A. White (conductor), 5; C. Dean, 6. Meeting one short for Minor a 720 of Grandsire Doubles was rung in 28 mins. J. Waits, 1; W. Smith, 2; R. Lowe, 3; W. H. Dallimore, 4; R. White, 5; C. Dean, 6. Afterwards some call-changes with some of the local band brought the ringing to a close.

The ringing being over, the company indulged themselves with tea, then a move had to be made to catch the train. The company returned home well pleased with their outing. They wish through the medium of this paper to thank the Rev. A. Poole for kindly allowing them the use of the bells. Mr. C. Dean belongs to the Barking company, and joined them at Laindon.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

MANCHESTER BRANCH.—The usual monthly meeting was held at St. James' church, Rusholme, on Saturday, May 10th, when a fair number of members assembled. The meeting took place at 7 p.m. in the schools, the Rev. H. J. Elsee presiding. Great regret was expressed that Mr. Eachus, Branch Secretary, felt himself compelled to resign the office owing to his numerous engagements. It was decided to defer the appointment of his successor until the next meeting on June 14th. Seven new members were elected.

THE UNITED COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

A change-ringing contest on handbells for members only, took place at the house of Mr. W. Middleton, the "Black Bull's Head," Mottram, on Saturday, May 17th, when the following prizes were awarded, given by the members of the Mottram branch of the Association and their friends, viz., for the best two courses of Grandsire Triples and Grandsire Major.

Second prize	1	5	0
Third prize	0	15	0
Fourth prize	0	10	0

And for the best course of Kent Treble Bob Major:

Second prize	0	15	0

For the first contest, Triples and Major, six companies entered, and the prizes were awarded as follows:

Hyde	45 faults	First prize.
Ashton	67 faults	Second prize.
Saddleworth	69 faults	Third prize.
Glossop	87 faults	Fourth prize.
Mossley	90 faults
Whitfield	94 faults

For the second contest two entered, Hyde and Ashton, the following being the result:

Ashton	53 faults	First prize.
Hyde	58 faults	Second prize.

The judges were Messrs. Collins and Coldwell, of Huddersfield, the decision giving satisfaction to every one. Afterwards a goodly number of members sat down to dinner, the president, Mr. Holden, presiding. Votes of thanks to the Mottram committee for arranging and carrying out the contest were passed. Mottram was selected as the place for the Association to hold their eight-bell competition on the tower bells, but not being able to get the consent of the vicar to allow the use of the bells, the committee had arranged for the handbell contest instead, and merited great praise for the able, successful, and equitable manner they had carried it out. Thanks to the judges, host, hostess, and the president, brought to a close a very unanimous meeting. The president announced that the next six-bell competition would be held at Christ Church, Friezeland, Greenfield, Saddleworth, and that he was led to believe very good prizes would be given.

NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.—RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, May 17th, seven members from the St. Peter-at-Arches tower, Lincoln, visited Nocton, Metheringham, and Blankney. Leaving Lincoln at 2.33, the pretty little village church of Nocton was soon reached, and after permission had been granted by the vicar, the bells were soon in motion. An attempt was made for 720 of Bob Minor. J. Harris, 1; J. B. Fenton, 2; H. Maidens, 3; C. Wells (conductor), 4; C. Clifton, 5; G. Chester, 6; but after ringing over 700 changes it came to grief. As time would not admit for another attempt, the company wended their way to Metheringham, where, after full justice had been done to a substantial tea kindly provided by the Rev. W. J. S. Rawson, several 6-scores of Old Doubles, Bob Doubles, and Grandsire Doubles were rung. Journeying on to Blankney the merry peal of five were soon swinging, although the "go" is bad, and several 6-scores were again brought round. Returning to Metheringham the company brought to a conclusion, with a course of Bob Triples on the handbells, a most enjoyable outing which will long be remembered by the St. Peter-at-Arches company, Lincoln.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

LATE NOTICE.—The Annual General Meeting will be held at Maidstone on Monday, June 23rd. Full particulars shortly. Members having any business to bring forward, should send notice to me without delay.

EDWARD W. CARPENTER, Hon. Sec.

Bobbing Vicarage, Sittingbourne.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN BRANCH.—The usual monthly ringing meeting was held at Childwall, near Liverpool, on Saturday last, when about twenty-six ringers attended from Grassendale, Garston, Halewood, Woolton, and Southport. The bells were rung at intervals from 4 till 9 o'clock. Methods rung: Violet Treble Bob, Grandsire, and Plain Bob Minor.

In the absence of the Vicar (Canon Warr), who at present is away from home, Mr. Robert Williams, of Liverpool, was unanimously voted to the chair, who in a brief speech recommended all ringers in the district to join the Association, showing the advantages to be derived by so doing. He also spoke of the satisfaction they all felt at the way the branch was prospering now under new management.

The Secretary (Mr. Hill) then made a few remarks, and read the report from "THE BELL NEWS" of the quarterly meeting at Rochdale on April 26th, which from the facts stated there by Mr. Redford (the Secretary), showed that the branch had suffered very little up to date, by the scission of a few towers in the diocese.

One performing member was enrolled. It was resolved that the best thanks of the meeting be given to the Vicar and Churchwardens for the use of the bells. It was also proposed and carried that the next meeting be held at Halewood (eight-bell tower) on June 14th, thus accepting the invitation of the Vicar there; and a cordial vote of thanks was also passed to Mr. Robert Williams for his conduct in the chair. That gentleman having briefly responded, the meeting closed.

THE SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS.

At the usual practice night at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields on Friday, May 2nd, the bells were rung half-muffled in memory of the late Stephen Hayhurst, who died during last month after a protracted illness. Mr. Hayhurst may be best remembered at St. Andrew's, Holborn, where several years ago he was a regular attendant with the brothers Hopkins.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE BELLS OF CARLISLE CATHEDRAL.

SIR,—In your issue of May 3rd the writer of the article on the above speaks in a certain passage of the "letter C in the sacred monogram" (I H C) as being "meaningless," or only to be accounted for as referring in some way to the consecration of the bell. Will you allow me to suggest to him that the "meaningless letter" is one form of the Greek S (sigma), and that I H C is identical with I H S, and that these three letters are the first three letters of the Holy Name in the Greek form. I gather from the inscription on the bell that the word "Maria" is exactly opposite the I H C, as there are fourteen letters on each side of the word. If that is the case the inscription In voce sum munda Sonando Secunda is surely independent both of the I H C and the Maria, and is simple enough to translate (by the way I do not see how it can possibly be scanned as a "hexameter," as your correspondent calls it). Possibly "Maria" is the name of the bell, but may it not be simply the pious association of that name with the Holy Name of JESUS? The position of the two words opposite one another seems to suggest this.

A SUSSEX CHANGE-RINGER.

THE WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

SIR,—In reference to the remarks of your correspondent with regard to the district meeting at Alton, on May 6th, I beg to state that though not much time was available for ringing, very important business was transacted at the committee meeting, which was very fully attended. Arrangements were made for the election of representatives on the Central Council, for the annual festival in July, for alterations in the staff of officers for next year, and two new bands and several honorary members were elected. With regard to your correspondent's tea, half the price of it was paid by the Guild.

H. A. SPYERS, Hon. Sec.

UNION TRIPLES.

SIR,—Great press of work prevents my returning an answer to Mr. Carter at present. And possibly it may be three or four weeks before I can do so. I will therefore ask him to excuse me for a little while.

CHARLES D. F. DAVIES.

NOTES BY THE WAV.

"Honi soit qui mal y pense."

Mr. Papillon's latest contribution to the obituary notices will, I fancy, have come as a surprise to many. But the graceful tribute which he thus pays to the memory of the late Mr. Seaman will be no less appreciated on that account—rather more so. In the early stages of that work of reformation in our belfries and organisation in our ranks, we were singularly blessed with the hearty co-operation of so many "good men and true," so much so indeed that when we look back and review our experiences of the past score years we may well wonder how it was that we have been so fortunate in this respect. But—"Carnovale's passing away!"—one after another they whose work in connection with our "upward movement" of the last twenty years will never be fully estimated, are leaving us to take their eternal rest. In Mr. Seaman's case, it may be said that he has in a large degree been permitted to see the fruits of his labours for the Essex Association, for the little bantling which he watched so anxiously and tended so carefully ten or eleven years ago, has grown strong and able to take care of itself, yet, as Mr. Papillon observes, it owes to its late founder a debt of gratitude, and I do not doubt that Mr. Seaman's name and memory will long find a warm place in the hearts of the men of Essex.

* * * * *

Mr. Seaman was no ringer, and therefore we can well understand his being no ardent supporter of our paper. What a contrast in this respect could be made between him and his successor in the Secretaryship of the great south-eastern Association. Talking of this reminds me of a report I have heard, and that is, that the circulation of our paper is increasing. If that is so, I shall be pleased. I intend, in the next three months, obtaining three new permanent subscribers, one each month. If there are any of my readers who will make a similar attempt, I shall be glad if they will communicate with me. The result of our combined labours shall be made public through my notes, which may lead to good. I hope to hear, before the end of this month, from no less than fifty desirous of co-operating with me in this matter.

* * * * *

That member of the Guildford band who writes in such a complaining strain about the Alton meeting must surely have had a choleric attack, or else eaten something which disagreed with him, when he put together that paragraph. He first complains of being disappointed of "some Stedman," through the holding of a committee meeting; probably he innocently imagined that the sole object of this was—or ought to have been—the gratification of his desire to have that aforesaid "some Stedman," but the wicked Secretary upsets this by taking some of the men away for a committee meeting, as if common Association business was to be compared to the importance of having "some Stedman." Shocking! His next grievance is that those left in the tower were principally six-bell ringers; and therefore their abilities in the matter of Triples being of such an inferior order to his high-mightiness of Guildford, that worthy takes himself away and goes to view the town. The aforesaid stupid committee meeting (which somehow appears to have been the cause of all this trouble) being over by five o'clock, they then have sundry attempts at "some Stedman," and a course of Bob Major, after which they adjourn for tea. One might naturally have imagined that this usually pleasant function would have smoothed our friend's ruffled temper, and helped to drown the memory of his disappointed ambition in the direction of "some Stedman." But no! Here another atrocity crops up. This tea, he says, was "not free, like other Associations," and so he actually had to pay for what he got. No wonder if his cup of indignation brimmed over as he paid for the cup of tea which the Association ought to have provided out of its funds in return for the great honour of his company. Unfortunately for his last complaint, this tea, had it been free, would not have been "like other Associations." These free feasts out of Association funds are the exception, and not the rule—and so they should be. A man who has the interests of ringing and his Association really at heart will not require the inducement of a cheap feed to draw him to a meeting. And if he wants proof of what I say, let him examine the weekly notices of meetings, where as a general rule he will find nearly five out of every six actually containing the price of dinner and tea tickets. Then as a climax to this series of disasters, no sooner was tea over (which, don't forget, was paid for) than the evil genius which directs the railway company, sent off the last train south, thus effectually frustrating any further attempts at "some Stedman." Thus the afternoon was "entirely cut to waste." They met so early as three o'clock (p.m., mind); they had touches of Grandsire Triples; a try with the six-bell ringers; an excursion to view the town; a committee meeting; then "some Stedman" and Bob Major: finishing off with a tea (which you may require to be reminded was paid for). All this was cutting an afternoon "entirely to waste." I am really and excruciatingly sorry for our Guildford friend in his troubles. But so long as he keeps to his resolution, he probably won't have a repetition of his Alton disappointments. No, my dear friend, don't go to such meetings where they treat you so badly, and where from your own unselfish point of view "the inducements are hardly strong enough" (I was going to suggest that this perhaps arose from the tea being weak—though paid for—but I won't). If I was you I would for the future boycott these poor affairs where a committee meeting is considered of more importance than "some Stedman," and where they make you pay for your own teas. Instead of cutting my afternoons to waste in this way, I would get seven other men, meet in the belfry at three o'clock (a.m.), where we could have "some Stedman" all the livelong day; and if to this was added a free dinner or tea at the rectory, then the measure of our happiness would be complete. But no more Alton meetings. Oh no! that is to say, unless they were to put me on the committee—perhaps that might make a difference.

* * * * *

After this, who would not be an Association Secretary? Instead of troubling himself about getting business affairs settled at meetings, all he has got to do is to ensure the presence of plenty of accomplished ringers, keep the bells going by those who flatter themselves they can ring; leave out of the reckoning those poor benighted six-bell ringers who are so presumptuous as to want to ring Triples: and above all, see that the bright stars among them have an opportunity of indulging in "some Stedman;" give them a free tea; then his work is complete.

* * * * *

What struck me as the most singular item in last week's paper was the letter from the chairman of the Johnson Memorial Committee, animadverting on some previous remarks of mine. Its two first sentences are to me a puzzler—and that's a fact. While I don't pretend to be endowed with any extraordinary talents in the way of perspicuity, I do claim for myself fair ordinary powers of comprehension. But where the "want of taste" and "discourtesy of expression" appear in my note of a fortnight ago comes in, I am really at a loss to imagine. My language was studiously guarded, and anything of the least objectionable or even critical character the very farthest from my thoughts. What indeed was the tenour of my remarks? Why simply that I hoped subscriptions were coming in fully equal to expectations; that the shilling limit was small enough in all certainty to enable every one to subscribe; that I was rather surprised at the committee fixing so low a limit, but that the step thus taken could be complained at only by those who wished to subscribe a larger amount; that I hoped the St. Martin's Guild would not be content with anything less than a monument which should be alike worthy of him whom we desire to honour, and creditable to ourselves. And in expressing myself thus—the sentiments of which I have heard spoken many times of late—I am accused of being wanting in taste, discourteous in expression, causing pain to the late Mr. Johnson's family, and undeservedly slighting the competency of the Committee!

* * * * *

With the remainder of this letter in question I agree in the main, as no doubt will all of us who have had subscription lists to deal with. But it was the very fact of those frequent calls upon the slender purses of our friends which—based upon personal experiences—caused me some misgivings as to the ultimate result of this limit of subscriptions. Some could and would gladly shew their respect to Mr. Johnson by a much larger sum than the modest shilling; and their so doing would not, I am convinced, detract at all from the universal character of the memorial. "If the Exercise were so minded, a shilling subscription might provide a memorial second to none." So concludes the letter, and the statement is correct enough. But there is that to take into account. And who does not appreciate its significance? However, for the immediate present (as I have rather overstepped my usual limits in the matter of space) I leave the subject with an expression of my warmest wishes for the success of the Committee's efforts, and a reiteration of my hope that the memorial may be "one worthy of him and equally worthy of ourselves," only in which case "we shall all of us be satisfied."

RINGERS' SUPPER AT SUTTON ST. NICHOLAS, HEREFORDSHIRE.

On Tuesday evening, May 13th, by kind invitation of the rector, the Rev. A. D. F. Saunders, and Mrs. Saunders, the parish ringers and churchwardens partook of an excellent repast at the rectory, to which the Rev. R. Taylor, of Moreton, the Rev. J. Norton, of Preston Gwynne, and the Guild Instructor, were invited. In the earlier part of the evening several touches of Grandsire Doubles were rang upon the tower bells by Messrs. W. Whiting (captain), H. Williams, J. Aldridge, A. Aldridge, T. Philpotts, W. Bethell (conductor), and J. Harris. Messrs. D. Hughes and J. Preece took part in the ringing also—the age of the latter reaching nearly three-score years and ten. The two eldest sons of the rector, aged fourteen and nine and a half years respectively, shewed their ability in the handling of a bell on set—the junior of the two probably being the youngest ringer extant. After supper a pleasant hour was spent, Mr. Taylor giving an anecdote or two, and Mr. Fussell a few details of the Guild's work and objects. Mr. Francis Barnett and H. J. Barrett, Esq., are the present churchwardens, and Mr. N. F. Moore, ex-warden. It is an interesting fact that Mr. Saunders is one of the last male descendants of the Rudhall family, who, a century and a half ago were such eminent bell-founders.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

VISIT OF THE HATFIELD COLLEGE YOUTHS TO ALDENHAM, HERTS.

On Thursday, May 15th, ten members of the Hatfield College Youths journeyed to Aldenham, near Watford. After a pleasant drive of about eleven miles they reached the parish church and were kindly received by the vicar, the Rev. Kenneth F. Gibbs, who had granted them permission to ring the bells. Having ascended the tower and raised the bells, they rang a course of Grandsire Triples by way of a "feeler." The vicar then said prayers, and at 2.30 p.m. eight pairs of willing hands started for Taylor's bob-and-single peal of Grandsire Triples. All went well for an hour, when it was noticed that the seventh man's rope was slipping at the end. However by a little skilful management he got his rope unfolded, and with a coil or two round his left hand, he stuck manfully to his bell until at 5.21 p.m. the welcome words "that's all" marked the close of the first peal accomplished at Aldenham. The party then adjourned to the vicarage to partake of a capital tea provided for them by the vicar, and afterwards attended Divine Service at the church. At the close of the service the ringers again entered the tower, and before lowering the bells rang 350 Grandsire Triples, J. Kentish, sen., conducting. After inspecting the pretty churchyard, the party returned to the vicarage and rang a few tunes and changes upon the handbells.

Mr. W. J. Richardson on behalf of the company thanked the Rev. Kenneth F. Gibbs for his kindness, and the visit ended. The party then wended their way to the "Chequers" for their conveyance. Here the landlord produced a set of twelve handbells which afforded great amusement. They were green with age, and of a most unusual size, somewhere about size 34. The ringers played a few tunes on them to the great delight of the villagers, and then started for home. Hatfield was reached about 10.5 p.m., and thus ended to the satisfaction of all, a most enjoyable outing.

The following composed the party: Messrs. J. Kentish, A. Shepherd, W. J. Richardson, H. G. Rowe, J. Hollingsworth, J. Shepherd, G. Smith, H. Shepherd, J. Stratton, J. Kentish, jun., and R. Canham.

KENDAL PARISH CHURCH BELLS.

This fine peal of bells having been for some time in bad ringing order, the Vicar and Churchwardens decided to have them rehung upon the roller-bearing principle, as fixed by Messrs. Shaw, Son, and Co., bellfounders and church bell-hangers, of Bradford. Previous to the fixing of the new bearings, the tenor (25½ cwt., date 1632) was raised by two men and then pushed off and allowed to settle of its own accord, when it took five minutes to come to a standstill. After the new bearings were fixed, this experiment was repeated, one man raising the bell, when it took thirteen minutes to come to a standstill. Other bells were tried with favorable results. The new bearings have a great advantage over the old system of hanging, as the physical part of bell-ringing will be so much lightened as to make change-ringing much more pleasurable than has been the case before. On Friday evening last the bells were tried by the ringers, who acknowledged that the go was all that could be wished for, and did great credit to the firm of Messrs. Shaw for the great advance these bearings have made in the art of church bell hanging. On Wednesday the bells were reopened by a touch of 1652 Grandsire Triples, in 1 hr. 4 mins., by the following: W. Atkinson, 1; W. Tyson, 2; R. Everson, 3; J. Baxter, 4; A. M. Low, 5; W. Graham, 6; J. Braithwaite (conductor), 7; J. Salmon, 8.—Kendal Mercury.

THE BRIGHTON ST. NICHOLAS SOCIETY.

The members of this society paid a visit on Saturday afternoon to Lindfield. Several touches were brought round on the fine peal of bells at the church of St. John the Baptist, among them being two 500s recorded in another column. A meat tea was provided at the "Bent Hotel," to which the members did full justice. The thanks of the members are due to Mr. G. F. Scott, the local secretary, for getting permission for them to ring. The band returned to Brighton at a late hour, only grieved to think that these afternoon trips could not be indulged in oftener than they are.

SATURDAY, MAY 24, 1890.

SEVERAL of the most prominent Ringing Associations hold on Monday next their important meeting of the year, and if the weather keeps good, such meetings probably will be well attended. The Essex Association invariably holds its Annual Meeting at Chelmsford, and this usually attracts a very large company. Some very important proposals are to be submitted to the members of this Association at the meeting, and it is hoped that in their discussion some temperate behaviour may be shown by one or two individuals who seemed unable on a previous occasion to comport themselves in a rational manner. Elections to the Central Council will take place we believe, at this meeting, and whoever may be elected as representatives we are of opinion that unless Mr. NATHAN PITSTOW is among the number, many of the most influential members will feel some disappointment. Of course the election of the Hon. Secretary will be carried with acclamation. The invitations to the members of Guilds and Associations to attend Divine Service on Monday, announced in the various notices, will it is trusted, be accepted in a larger measure than heretofore, so that the clergy who are present may have no regrets under this head. It should never be forgotten that though the day may be one for enjoyment, yet there are duties incumbent upon every member attending which they should strive to fulfil.

THE LATE MR. JAMES WRIGLEY.

On Saturday afternoon last the remains of Mr. Jas. Wrigley, of Lee Street, Uppermill, choirmaster of the Saddleworth parish church, were conveyed to their last resting-place in the parish churchyard. The funeral was attended by a large number of relatives and friends. The coffin, which was of polished oak with brass mountings, and covered with wreaths, was borne by deceased's brother-ringers and Oddfellows of the Friendship lodge, of which lodge he was a Past Grand Master, and a Past Provincial Grand Master of the District. The mournful procession was headed by the Vicar (Rev. Hugh Doig), the curate, the Churchwardens, the members of the Church Council, and the members of the church choir. Before the reading of the burial service, the choir sang the hymn, "Thy will be done," to the tune "Magdala," a favorite tune of the deceased. On leaving the church the organist played the "Dead March" in an effective manner. After the performance of the last sad rites, the handbells were rung over the grave by the deceased's comrades.

Mr. Wrigley had been in delicate health for some time, and may be said to have been the victim of pulmonary consumption. By order of his medical adviser he paid a visit to Southport some weeks ago, but it did not seem to have any beneficial effects, and he succumbed to the foe on the 7th inst. He had for some years been the choirmaster at the parish church, as before intimated, and was much respected for his urbanity of disposition by all with whom he came in contact, as was testified by the number of spectators at the graveside and along the route from the village to the church.

Mr. Wrigley commenced to ring about the year 1874, his first performance of note being in the year 1879, when he assisted the Saddleworth (then junior) company to ring a peal of seven Minor Treble Bob methods. Since then he has taken part in the following peals: Treble Bob Minor, 2; Kent Treble Bob Major, 14; Oxford Treble Bob Major, 2; Violet Treble Bob Major, 1; Albion Treble Bob Major, 1. These have been rung at the following churches: St. Chad's Saddleworth, 14; Holy Trinity, Stalybridge, 3; St. Michael's, Mottram, 1; St. Mark's, Glodwick, Oldham, 1; St. George's Mossley, 1. He has assisted in winning the following prizes on six bells: 1st at Chapel-en-le-Frith, 2nd at Burtage (Buxton), 3rd at Hayfield (Derbyshire); on eight bells: 1st at Glossop, 2nd at Leesfield (near Oldham), 4th at Almondbury (Yorkshire), besides several first and second prizes on the handbells, of which no record has been kept. Much sympathy is expressed on all hands for his widow and family in their bereavement. Deceased was in his 39th year. At the Sunday evening service in the Lees Street Schoolroom, the "Dead March" was again played as a token of respect.

MUCH COWARNE, HEREFORDSHIRE.

The church tower contains a well-going peal of six, tenor about 10 cwt. There are a few local ringers. On Sunday, April 13th, a company of Hereford men visited the parish and rang several 6-scores of Doubles, conducted by J. Davis, permission being kindly given by the vicar. Tea was very kindly provided by Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain near the church.

The same afternoon a company of Withington ringers visited the same tower and also rang several 6-scores, conducted by C. Jenkins, the two bands alternately having a spell at the ropes until satisfied. All the visitors were members of the Hereford Diocesan Guild.

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.—ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting of the Essex Association was held, as usual, at Chelmsford on Whit-Monday, and was well attended by ringers from all parts of the county, with a contingent of non-resident members from London, St. Albans, Bishop's Stortford, Sudbury, and other places. Divine Service was held at St. Mary's Church at 11.30 a.m., the Ven. Archdeacon Johnson (Rector), Rev. C. C. Naters (Curate), Rev. T. L. Papillon (Hon. Sec. E.A.C.R.) being the officiating clergy: an excellent practical address being given by the Rev. R. Hay-Hill, Vicar of Wethersfield. The service, however, was but poorly attended, and most of those who were present arrived late; which is neither encouraging to those who take pains to arrange the day's proceedings, nor creditable to those for whom the service is provided. The business meeting was held at 12.30 in an upper room of the Schools adjoining the Churchyard; unpunctuality in arrival being again a noticeable feature. The Rev. R. Hay-Hill occupied the chair. After the minutes of the last meeting at Rayleigh had been read and signed, the Hon. Secretary read his report for the past year. The continued prosperity of the Association was shown, he observed, by further increase in the number of ringing members (now nearly reaching 500), and by an improvement in its financial condition; it having been found possible to replace some of the money withdrawn from the Reserve Fund to meet the deficiency of previous years, and yet leave a balance in hand, though a good many subscriptions were still in arrear. The number of Honorary members had slightly fallen; and it was noted with regret that so few comparatively of the clergy and resident gentry take interest in the work of the Association. In belfry improvement, the report noted the rehanging and augmentation of the bells at St. Osyth and Tillingham, and the prospect of something being done to the fine ring of eight at Dedham, "the tenor and 7th of which cannot be rung at all, and the other six only with labour and discomfort"; the fact that a young band at Chelmsford have begun to learn change-ringing; and that the district of South Essex, of which Rayleigh is a centre, has now been rendered more accessible, and has supplied several probationer members to the Association.

The resignation of the Bishopric of St. Albans by the President of the Association, Bishop Claughton, and the loss by death of the Revds. Dr. Hatch and J. B. Seaman, were alluded to; and the report closed with a mention of complaints made by some clerical correspondents, that their ringers, after ringing the bells for service, were in the habit of going away without attending the church at all. This, the Hon. Sec. explained, was mentioned not because he had either the wish or the right to dictate to members of the Association how they should observe Sunday, but because he felt that nothing was so likely to alienate the sympathies of the clergy, and churchpeople generally, from ringers and ringing. The clergy had a right to expect that those who ring for Divine Service should, as a rule, set the example of attendance thereat; and where this is not the case, it is not only clergy who are scandalised. The report was then adopted.

The Officers for the past year were re-elected and the "Peal Committee" re-appointed. The following were then elected to represent the Association on the Central Council of Church Bell-Ringers: The Rev. T. L. Papillon, Vicar of Writtle; Messrs. F. G. Newman, Walthamstow; N. J. Pitstow, Saffron Walden; and W. G. Richards, Witham; the last named being proposed as a representative of Six-bell ringers. The following new members were then elected: Honorary—the Revds. J. Burgoyne, Finchingfield, and W. J. Pressey, Foxearth. Ringling Members:—Messrs. W. Biggin and G. Sarel, Sheffield; H. Brackett and W. Howell, Sudbury; C. S. Burden, Bermondsey;

C. Carter, S. Evans, G. Green, H. R. Tuck, and W. Lee, Foxearth; C. Clark, Stisted; F. Davey, Halstead; H. Emery and T. Ruffell, Stebbing; W. Everard, Deptford; H. Freeman, W. Hardy, and W. Landon, Barking; F. J. Howchin, G. Howchin, F. H. Knights, and A. G. Warnes, Norwich; J. Lea, Brentwood; J. Monday, London; W. Prior, W. Rickett and A. Tucker, Bishops Stortford.

Probationers admitted to be Ringing Members—C. Baker, J. Baker, and H. Burgess, Brentwood; A. Pitstow, Saffron Walden; D. Elliott, Junr., Coggeshall. Probationers: Messrs. C. Perkins, J. Rust, A. Rust, T. Rust, A. Wickes, and T. Wickes; Wethersfield: Rev. A. Durrant, Miss E. Nockolds, Miss M. Nockolds, Miss D. Pelly, Miss G. Pelly and Mrs. Williams, Saffron Walden. [These ladies, it was stated, have learnt to ring the tower bells under the superintendence of Mr. F. Pitstow]. The following provisional elections were confirmed: Messrs. A. W. Barkus and J. W. Driver, Fulham; W. Boby, C. Fisk, C. Jarvis, W. Moore, H. Parker, and W. Snell, of Lavenham, Suffolk.

The Secretary having made a statement of which he had given notice, the name of Mr. A. B. Goody, late of the West Ham Company, was erased from the books of the Association.

At 1.45 p.m. the meeting adjourned to the room below for dinner, at which about 110 sat down, the Hon. Sec. presiding, supported by the Rev. R. Hay-Hill. At the close of the repast, after one or two small matters of business had been disposed of, the Chairman asked the meeting to pass the following resolutions with reference to the resignation of the Bishop of St. Albans, and the death of the Rev. J. B. Seaman.

"The members of the Essex Association of Change-Ringers desire to tender to their President, the Right Rev. Bishop Claughton, late Lord Bishop of St. Albans, an expression of their esteem for his work and character, their regret for the failing health that has caused his retirement, and their hope that he may be spared to enjoy a period of well-earned repose."

"The members of the Essex Association of Change-Ringers desire to record their regret for the death of the Rev. J. B. Seaman, its founder and first Hon. Secretary; and their grateful sense of his services to the cause of change-ringing in Essex; and at the same time to express their sincere condolence with Mrs. Seaman under her bereavement."

Both resolutions were accepted unanimously.

The health of the preacher and the Hon. Sec. was then proposed, and a vote of thanks passed to the Archdeacon of Essex, for the use of the church and Schoolrooms, and to the incumbents of the other towers open to members on the day of meeting. The company then dispersed, some for ringing, others for quiet enjoyment of a fine afternoon. It had been intended to start for a peal of Grandsire Caters on the evening of Saturday, the 24th instant; but this idea, as well as that of Stedman Caters on the evening of Whit-Monday, (for which a good band, including Messrs. J. M. Hayes, Newton, Buckingham, and other well-known ringers, was ready) was frustrated by an evening service at 8 p.m. It is, indeed, owing to the many services in the church itself and classes or other meetings in the schools hard by, very difficult to get the use of Chelmsford tower for peal-ringing in the evening—the only time when, as a rule, bands can be got together. A peal of Treble Bob Major at Writtle, on Saturday evening, was stopped by the conductor after an hour's ringing, and one of Grandsire Triples at Galleywood came to an untimely end through the breaking of a rope; the only peal scored in connection with this gathering being one of Stedman Triples at Widford, in which one of the local company scored his first peal in that method.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

THE BELL AS A SIGN.

The following article, which is taken from a recent number of the Telegraph, a valued correspondent thinks will be read with interest by many of our readers:—

"To the treasures of the Guildhall Museum there have just been added, it is stated, though the initiative of the Library Committee, three very interesting specimens of old public-house signs. These historic mementoes of bygone conviviality are in stone, and appear, from the style of their workmanship, to have been carved within a few years of the Great Fire—a period when English glyptics of the decorative kind may be said to have been in a very flourishing condition. Just before the Restoration the traditions of Tudor Architecture, with its wealth of mouldings and abundance of elaborate tracery, had not died out; while after the Civil Wars the art of sculpture in wood and stone received a magnificent impetus, due to the genius of Grinling Gibbons. We learn that the first sign which is to be added to the curious collection of memorabilia at Guildhall belonged to the Bell Tavern in Knightrider street; the second, termed the Pill, was discovered in Messrs. Sutton's warehouse, behind Bow Church; and the third ensign, representing a female head, was found in the course of some recent excavations in Paternoster-row. All these three relics are said to be in a splendid state of preservation; but it must be confessed that the name attached to one of the signs is slightly provocative of perplexity, and that some direct evidence requisite to associate the image of the female head dug up in "the Row" with the cognisance of a public-house. In the matter of the Bell it is all plain sailing; for it is one of the commonest signs in England, and was certainly in use in the fourteenth century. Does not Chaucer recall that "the gentil hostellerie that highte the Tabard" was "faste bi the Belle"? In all probability bells were set up to denote houses of public entertainment on account of the national fondness for bell-ringing, and the thirst consequently engendered in the lusty "youths" who, time out of mind, have been so passionately addicted to ringing triple bob-majors, and refreshing themselves with legs of mutton and trimmings and strong ale afterwards. England has been called "the ringing island," and Handel declared the bell to be our national instrument of music; and, although modern legislation has suppressed the dustman's bell and that of the town crier, and even looks with coldness on the humble tintinnabulum of the muffin-vendor, there is still an amazing quantity of ecclesiastical campanology audible, and few people presume to protest against the dreadful din of those church-bells the clangour of which on Sundays almost drives sick and nervous people mad.

Of bells, in combination with other objects, the name is legion on the sign-posts of the past; but the bells which have a distinct reference to church ringing are, perhaps the most numerous. Thus, as a peal of bells generally consists of eight, there were frequently signs of the Eight Bells; the number sometimes rose to ten and sank to five; then at Norwich and elsewhere there were the Eight Ringers; the Old Ring of Bells was to be found at Birmingham and Wolverhampton, and the Three Swans and Peal in Staffordshire; while the Nelson and Peal, in Warwickshire, is unmistakably suggestive of the triumphs of the Nile and Trafalgar. As to the Bell alone, the oldest tavern of that name in Middlesex is said to have stood in King street, Westminster. Another very old Bell was that in Warwick lane, Newgate street, and at the Bell in the Poultry lived, in the time of Queen Anne, a noted bookseller named Nathaniel Crouch, who was the first to condense voluminous and erudite works into a small and popular form. To the landlord of an inn called the Bell, three miles from Wellingborough, belongs the merit of having found a rhyme for the name of the village where his hostel was situated, for his sign is the portrait of a female, with the distich beneath "Queen Edith, Lady once of Finedon, Where at the Bell good fare is dined on"; but this rural bard was surpassed in epigram, at least, by John Good, who kept the Bell at Oxford, and told his customers, in a quatrain, that his name, likewise his ale, was good, and that all who knew John Good could tell that like his sign it bore the bell. There was a Golden Bell in St. Bride's lane, Fleet street, next door to the shop of Lydia Barcroft, famous at the close of the seventeenth century as a female hairdresser, but not so renowned as the five women barbers who lived in Drury lane, whose adventures, as sung by Tom Killigrew in a ribald ballad, never failed to make King Charles II. laugh in the Merry Monarch's rare moments of moodiness. The noblest tavern by this sign was the Black Bell upon Fish street hill, which had once been the town house of Edward the Black Prince, and the ruins of which were swept away after the Great Fire to make room for the Monument. The occurrence of the bell in combination with other emblems, most of which have no particular meaning, but simply arise from the old custom of quartering signs, has too many examples to be recapitulated here; but we may glance at the Bell and Anchor, the Bell and Horns, the Bell and Parson, and a few even more ludicrous assemblages, in which the bell is conjoined with a black horse, a candlestick, a cuckoo, a lion, a rabbit, a mackerel, a thorn, and a cat. After all, Charles Dickens's Black Boy and Stomach-ache was not really so absurd a conjunction as its name would seem to imply, if the philosophy of sign-quartering be well borne in mind. The landlord of the Black Boy might have married the widow of a respectable apothecary, who had adopted the appropriate sign of the "stomach-ache," and, following the "Chinese metaphysics" principle, he might have combined his information as regarded the terminology of a new sign. The rarely met with but still extant country inn sign of the Bell and Parson is more easily comprehensible, although to complete its clerical allusiveness it should also comprise a book and a candle. Perhaps, however, the bell of bells from a problematical point of view is the well known Bell Savage, now celebrated as the headquarters of a large bookselling firm by Ludgate Hill. Few signs have been so often and so erroneously explained as this one. Stow says that it derived its name from one Isabella Savage, who had given the house to the Company of Cutlers. In the "Spectator" it is alleged that the tavern was called after a French comedy of "La Belle Sauvage"; while later authorities held that the inn was once the property of Lady Arabella Savage, familiarly called "Bell," whose name was represented in a rebus by a wild man and a bell; and thus it was habitually painted on the panels of the stage coaches that used to ply to and from Ludgate in the days before railways. The indefatigable Mr. Jacob Larwood, in his "History of Signboards," has, however, set the "Belle Sauvage" question at rest by unearthing a Latin State paper of the reign of Henry VI., in which all true Christian people are warned that the Crown has confirmed to one widow Frenssh all the tenement or inn, with its appurtenances, called "Savage's Inn," otherwise called the "Bell on the Hoop," in the parish of St. Bride, Fleet street. The Bell Sauvage, consequently, only presents another instance of arbitrary sign-quartering. There had been a messuage, or tenement, owned by and called after one Savage; the house was converted into an inn by the sign of the Bell and Hoop; and in process of time the hoop dropped out of the amalgamated title, while the Bell and the Savage remained to be fancifully modernised as the Belle Sauvage, a designation still retained by Messrs. Cassell's firm.

So much for the Bell, and the Corporation of London may be congratulated on having acquired the stone effigy by that name from the old tavern in Knightrider-street. It should not, however, be concealed that much antiquarian doubt must, until full explanation be proffered, surround the second sign termed the Pill, discovered in the warehouse behind Bow Church. What pill, and whose, and why? At the first blush we might seem to discern in the sign of the Pill an obvious proclamation of the business carried on by an apothecary, but no such name is to be found in Larwood's exhaustive index of ancient or modern signs, although the Pestle, and the Pestle and Mortar, are often met with. It may perhaps in time be shown by some future editor of the "History of Signboards," which was originally published in 1868, that the Pill should more properly be called the Ball. The old silk mercers always hung out a golden ball as their sign, and such it continued to be until the end of the last century, when it fell to the portion of the Berlin wool warehouses. The early mercers had adopted as their sign this oriferous globe, which was simply the hesa, or orb, of Constantine the Great, because in the Middle Ages all silk was brought from the East, and especially from the Imperial Greek factories at Constantinople. The ball, nevertheless, was not monopolised by the silkmercers. The quacks and fortune-tellers of the eighteenth century hung out multitudes of balls, red, blue, black, white, and green. The Two Golden Balls were the sign of a ball and concert room in Bow-street, Covent-garden; and at the Golden Ball, in George II.'s time, Mr. Osborn, the book-seller, printed one of the earliest London directories. The Three Blue Balls, which in their gilded aspect, subsequently became the exclusive sign of the pawnbrokers, were in olden times often used for taverns, while our "uncle" did not disdain to do business at the signs of the Blackamoor's Head and the Black Dog and Still. Touching finally the female head excavated in Paternoster-row, criticism should be wary lest it should too hastily assume the graven image to be a tavern sign of the seventeenth century. It may turn out to be a relic of the Roman domination in Britain, as antique, perhaps, as the wondrous, little nude stone urchin who, with his eternal grin, continues to be the highest landmark in the City of London.

UPTON ST. LEONARD'S CHURCH BELLS, GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

This fine old peal of bells have been for the last few years very badly out of order, as the ringer could scarcely ever make an attempt to ring but what something would happen to the bells, either a gudgeon would break or the ropes run out of the wheels, and the ringers found it quite useless to attempt ringing peals on them, owing to the continual complaints made to the churchwardens. It was decided to have the bells overhauled by some competent firm, and Mr. G. H. Phillott, of Cheltenham, made a thorough examination of the bells and frame, and also of the bearings, gudgeons, and wheels, and found it was necessary that everything should be renewed except the frame. Since that the bells have all been rehung and quartered, excepting the tenor, which had been quartered some years previously, the treble and second not requiring to be quartered, as they were only new in 1872. But they are rehung on the same principle as the others. This work has been carried out by the firm of Messrs. Barwell, of Birmingham, to whom every credit is due for the way in which they have executed the work, and it is really a pleasure to ring a peal upon the bells now. It was also found necessary to recast the sixth bell which was done at the foundry of Messrs. Barwell, and this bell gives every satisfaction to the parishioners and also to the ringers. On Saturday, May 24th, being the Queen's birthday, the bells were tried by ringing a peal of Grandsire Triples on them, which was got through in less time than it was ever known to have been done before, which will be shown in the peal column.

GEORGE F. ATTREE.

THE FIRST PEAL IN THE COLONIES.

It is with great satisfaction that we record, in this week's number, the performance of a peal of Grandsire Triples by our brethren at the other end of the world. On the bells of the church of St. Philip, Sydney, Australia, the first peal ever rung in the English colonies—and the second one outside the British Islands—was achieved on Wednesday, the 9th of April last. The formal record, which will be found in its proper place, speaks for itself. In forwarding to us the account of the peal, the Hon. Sec. of the Victorian Society of Change-Ringers, Melbourne, writes:—

"DEAR MR. EDITOR,—On behalf of my brother-ringers who took part in the performance, I have great pleasure in informing you that the long-coveted desire to ring a true and complete peal of 5040 changes has at last been realised, and Holt's ten-part has been rung by several members of our society, with two Sydney ringers, on Wednesday, April 9th, 1890, during our tour to Sydney. I will forward you a detailed account by later mail, in which I shall give you matter of great interest to all ringers; but owing to press of business I have only had time to send you a brief notice of the peal, and thank you in anticipation for its insertion.—With kind regards, yours faithfully, JOHN BEECHEY."

The ringing of this peal was celebrated in true British fashion, and the Sydney Morning Herald publishes the following festive proceedings in connection therewith:—

"The members of the Victorian Society of Bellringers now in Sydney on a ringing tour, and who recently accomplished the task of ringing Holt's celebrated ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples in three hours fifteen minutes, also recorded two peals of Grandsire Minor at St. Mark's, Darling Point—one conducted by Mr. Harry Adams—and the other by Mr. Jno. Beechey—on Tuesday last. On Thursday the band and their friends were entertained by the St. Philip's society, when a trip up the Parramatta river on the steamer Midget, from Miller's point to the Northern Railway bridge, past Ryde, back again, and then Lane Cove for three or four miles, was made. A course was subsequently shaped for Watson's Bay, where at Strange's hotel a substantial dinner awaited the attention of the guests. About thirty sat down, and the toast of 'The Queen' being duly honoured, Mr. John Dennis, as chairman, proposed 'The Health of the Victorian Society of Bellringers,' coupled with the name of Mr. Murray, the conductor of the peal. In the course of his remarks he said that Victoria could not be allowed the honour of all the spoil, for St. Philip's had the fame of containing the bells on which the first peal rang out of England had been accomplished. Messrs. Murray and Beechey having suitably responded,

Mr. Morton gave the toast of 'The land we live in,' eulogising the freedom we enjoyed under its laws. Speaking of bells, he said that scientific change-ringing was not a source of pleasure to all, but he was sure its opponents were in the minority, and that all who had the good of their adopted land at heart would even put up with a little inconvenience to hear those chimes rung, recalling to many times and scenes of long ago.

Mr. Whitton proposed 'Success to Bellringing,' and hoped that further successes would follow the one recently achieved.

Mr. W. Albinson, in responding, expressed a hope that Sydney ringers would put forth all their energies, and that the next peal might be rung by New South Wales men.

Mr. H. Adams, in feeling terms, then gave 'The Health of the St. Philip's society,' coupling with the toast the name of the conductor, Mr. John Dennis, and said that this visit would ever be remembered by himself and brother-ringers, not only as a red-letter day in the annals of colonial ringing, but on account also of the hearty welcome which had been extended to them, and the generous manner in which they had been entertained.

Mr. Dennis, in responding on behalf of the St. Philip's society, said that with reference to peal-ringing he was somewhat doubtful as to whether they would be able to follow in the footsteps of the recent success achieved by the visiting team, for they were heavily handicapped by being situated in a neighbourhood of private dwellings, and this caused numerous applications to have the bells silenced.

The toast of 'Visiting Ringers' having been proposed by Mr. Beechey, was suitably acknowledged by Messrs. B. Joyner and J. Horton.

The toasts were interspersed with both vocal and instrumental selections, which were admirably rendered."

It is necessary here to inform our Antipodean friends and all others whom it may concern that the first peal rang outside the British Islands was rung (by Englishmen) at Philadelphia, U.S. The late Mr. Haley (of London) was many years ago at the head of a company of handbell musicians who were making a tour of the States. In the course of this tour, he met with one or two persons whom he had known as ringers in England, and upon reaching Philadelphia, where was a ring of eight bells in good order and hung for ringing, the great novelty of a peal in such a place became apparent. Forming a band from among his handbell musicians, aided by the one or two English ringers already referred to, he called "Holt's ten-part peal" in the above-mentioned city. This performance caused at the time no small excitement among the Philadelphians; the thoroughfares in the neighbourhood of the church being literally crowded with people who listened with interest to the peal; while every coign of vantage was sought for to view the ringers as they left the church, their appearance being greeted with round after round of vociferous cheering.

This fact does not rob our Australian friends of the honour of ringing the first peal in the British Colonies.

GRANTHAM, LINCOLNSHIRE.—RINGERS' OUTING.

On Tuesday, May 27th, ten members of the Grantham Change Ringing Society paid a visit to Sleaford to ring on the fine-toned peal of eight at the Parish Church (St. Denys). There were also present Messrs. James Harris and W. Weaver of Lincoln. The bells were raised in peal about 11 a.m., and several well-struck touches were rung during the morning conducted by W. Cawton and N. E. Snow. A move was then made for dinner, which was served in excellent style at the "White Bull" Inn, by Host Watson. After dinner ringing was kept up until about 6.30, when the remainder of the evening was enlivened with songs, and tunes on some fine-toned handbells which the Grantham men had brought with them. The visitors then proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar and Churchwardens for the use of the bells, and at 10 p.m. made a move for the train which was to convey them home, being well pleased with their day's outing and with the 'go' and tone of the bells. The names of the Grantham Ringers present were Messrs. J. Challands, H. Lounds, E. Weaver, H. Parker, W. Cawton, T. W. White, J. Whiley, T. Whiley, F. Bools, R. Mowbray.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.—HULL BRANCH.

On Friday, May 9th, eight members of the above Association attempted Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples at St. James's church, with the bells muffled, as a tribute of respect to the late Mrs. Loryman, widow of a late honorary member of the Association, but it came to grief after ringing 2 hrs. 25 mins. C. Jackson (conductor), 1; J. W. Stickney, 2; T. Stockdale, 3; W. T. Verity, 4; R. Chaffer, 5; D. Brown, 6; J. Dixey, 7; J. Dale, 8. Also on Friday, May 16th, an attempt was made at St. James's church, with the bells half-muffled, as a tribute of respect to the late Mrs. Brownrigg, wife of G. M. Brownrigg, and sister of J. W. Stickney, member of the St. James' company, for a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, but came to grief after ringing 2 hrs. 30 mins. J. Highfield, 1; C. Jackson, 2; T. Stockdale, 3; W. T. Verity, 4; R. Chaffer, 5; D. Brown, 6; F. Drabble, 7; J. Dixey (conductor), 8.

J. W. Stickney wishes to state that he has removed to No. 1, Studley Terrace, Campbell Street, Hessle Road, not Kessle Road, as appeared in the issue of May 10th.

NOTES BY THE WAV.

"Here's to the olive branches."

I am puzzled just now whether to compliment our friend Mr. J. J. Parker most on his portrait, the sketch on page 101, his work as a ringer and investigator of methods, or his good fortune as mentioned in the last paragraph. If a reflection upon the facts indicated by all these circumstances be anything to go by, the genial postmaster of Farnham Royal should be a happy mortal. Few of us are able to boast of a daughter able to "do the proving when any is to be done;" and to indulge in the prospect of the time when our six-year-old, who "likes to do a bit of figuring," will be taking his place along with father, uncle, and brother, in the belfry circle. Should my journeyings ever take me to the neighbourhood of Farnham Royal, I would most certainly not miss the welcome opportunity of paying a visit to the happy family at the Post Office; but until that time we must be content with the photo. I trust, however, that his fondest aspirations for the future of his two boys—the ringer de facto as well as the one in embryo—and his fair daughter (who helps with the proving) may all be realised, and that soon we shall be reading of that much needed augmentation of the Farnham Royal ring.

At length the "New Cumberlands" have scored their first peal. "When the ice is broken you are able to get water," is an old saying, which I hope will apply in this case. While I would not breathe one discouraging word to our friends in the north I must say that hitherto we have heard so little from them there that their district has been a veritable terra incognita to the Exercise at large. Those acquainted with these northern counties are aware of the many difficulties—both geographical and otherwise—which militate against both peal ringing and organisation, but when the barrier has once been broken down, as in the case of this Carlisle peal, a little perseverance will often accomplish wonders. Let us then soon have more news from the north.

Coming a little further south, I see that the Armley (Yorks) band has also pulled off its first peal—seven treble Bob Minor methods—in which Joseph Thackray, a youth of 18 summers, rang the second. A first 5040 in seven methods is very creditable to both teachers and taught; it shows also considerable progress in the science of the young members, and thus bodes well for the future.

And so the Clun men are still labouring under the difficulty and its attendant disappointment of being unable to practice on their tower bells: their endeavours to make progress being confined to handbells, and an occasional visit to the neighboring parish of Clunbury. If my memory serves me rightly, I referred to this benighted place some time ago in reference to the same matter. It does seem strange to me that a persevering band like that at Clun should be so little appreciated by the parishioners that they are unable to get their bells made ringable. Why, the Clun folks ought rather to be proud of such men, and put every encouragement in their way. I could name places where money spent in keeping the bells and fittings in a good state of repair is always given freely and without stint, but where the difficulty is to get them rung at all; and where the existence of a determined band like that of Clun would be hailed with the greatest satisfaction. I trust, however, that the Hereford Guild will soon be able to make its existence and influence felt in Clun by getting the parishioners to take such steps as will enable their ringers to pursue their avocation, and send out the sound of the bells in their own tower at home.

I was sorry to read that Mr. Eachus has been compelled to resign his position as secretary of the Manchester Branch of the Lancashire Association. We can none of us afford to lose the valuable services and help of good men amongst us, at the best of times; but still more, I fear, will any loss in this direction be felt by our Lancashire friends at this juncture.

The Deal band, it gives me pleasure to note, have been combining business with pleasure, by visiting the little village of Eastry, and while enjoying themselves in its pleasant surroundings, used "their humble endeavours to introduce half-pull ringing in a place where hitherto it had been unknown." Twelve months ago I pressed upon our friends the great amount of good which it was possible to accomplish in this way. Now and then we read of individual efforts in this direction, but unfortunately they are "too few and far between" to shew any results. That little selfishness which is so inherent in human nature, causes our friends, in selecting places for outings, to lean towards those where they know a good band is in existence, and that consequently there will be a probability of plenty of ringing. They do not relish the thought of spending even a portion of the time at disposal trying to get a local band out of the rut of rounds and Call Changes, by giving them a drilling in half-pull work. But if they would, like the Deal men, visit these homes of Stoney, Churchyard Bob, et id genus omne, and let the inhabitants hear some proper, well-struck scientific ringing, there can be no doubt that such a course would result in dissatisfaction at the aforesaid Stoney, etc., and the performers thereof sooner or later find it to their advantage to make a change in the right direction.

An effort to establish an Association for the County of Somerset is, I understand, about to be made. I need hardly assure the promoters of my very warmest wishes for their success. Framers of associations will have, happily, plenty of material to work upon afforded them by the organisations at present in existence, information based upon experience, which was impossible to be obtained twelve or fifteen years ago, may now be had for the asking; our Somersetshire friends are therefore more fortunate than some have been in this respect. I shall look with considerable interest next week for a report of the meeting which I am told is to be held on Saturday, May 31st, at Highbridge. If good wishes are any helps to success they have mine in abundance.

FREE LANCE.

LUGWARDINE, HEREFORDSHIRE.

The Withington ringers visited the above tower on Saturday, May 24th, and by kind permission of the Vicar rang several 6-scores of Doubles for practice. The tenor bell of their own peal now requires two men to keep it going, and very little practice is therefore done at home. H. Mason, 1; W. Davis, 2; F. Matthews, jun., 3; F. Matthews, 4; C. Jenkins (conductor), 5; A. Bowers, 6. Several of the local ringers came to the tower and rang one or two 6-scores, including Messrs. R. Turner and J. Jones. Tenor 16 cwt. All the above are members of the Hereford Diocesan Guild, and the towers are in union.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, MAY 31, 1890.

Now that the Provisional Secretary has issued his notice for the election of Representatives to the Central Council, the last formality, preliminary to the elections themselves, has been observed; and the Council may almost be regarded as already a fait accompli. Some Associations have already elected their Representatives; and many persons are no doubt beginning to speculate on what they will do when they have assembled. It is, perhaps, unwise to expect too much at once from a young and untried body. But an indication of the scope the labours of the Council may possibly take, and the points in which its existence will be for the advantage of the Exercise at large, will be of interest, and may be useful.

To begin with, it will be a great advantage to have a bond of union, such as the Council will supply, between the various separated Associations and Guilds now scattered everywhere over the country. If it is advisable to unite the isolated bands of ringers in a certain district into one Society, it is surely advisable to extend and complete the organisation by providing the separate Societies with a visible channel of intercommunication, and linking them to a common centre. Through their Representatives the Societies will meet together, for mutual counsel and guidance, for the interchange of views on matters of perplexity, for imbibing new ideas for the advancement of their work, and extending their influence in the districts which they serve. The mere existence of the Council will be a benefit in this way, even if it does nothing else. But the expectation may be confidently indulged that the Council will actively do something more than this. There are several disputed points on which the Exercise has long been patiently waiting for an authoritative decision. To mention a few only: There is the much-debated question of the admissibility of seven-bell peals; What is a legitimate "single" in those methods in which more than one form is frequently used?; How should performances be treated, which have been achieved in ignorance of the fact that the peals were false?; What standard should be applied to performances to decide whether they have been truly and accurately accomplished, or not? It may be taken for granted that the Council will promptly deal with all such questions, when they are submitted to its judgment.

But it will also have power to initiate work of a kind, which none but such a body could presume to undertake; and it is to be hoped that the assembled Representatives will not hesitate to cut out for themselves some task of this kind, which can be first discussed, and then referred to a Committee for elaboration during the interval which will elapse between the meetings. A model code of Association and Belfry Rules; Hints for the due preservation and care of bells, frames, and fittings, for the information of Church authorities; the revision of technical terms, and reform of the current language of Campanology; the notation of Triple methods—are all projects which present opportunities for really useful and needful work; for the inception of which the Council need not wait for any instigation or suggestion from outside.

We would direct special attention to the second of these projects, as one presenting no great difficulties, and, therefore, fitted for early treatment. No one needs to be told how grievously the bells and their appurtenances in many of our Church Towers have suffered, and are still suffering, from the ignorant neglect and apathy of those who should be most zealous for their preservation. The officials of an Association cannot well interfere in this matter unless invited to do so; but the advice of a central authoritative body, unfettered by local considerations, because independent of local influence or prejudice, would be listened to with respect. The Council, it is true, could not publish its recommendations broadcast; because it would not be in possession of the funds necessary to enable it to do so. But it could issue them to the different Associations, with whom it would be left to print and circulate the document under the authority of the Council and in its name.

In any case, whatever the Council may find to do, let us hope that it will not shrink from assuming and exerting that authority which can alone impart real life and vigour to its proceedings; that it will preserve an attitude of dignity and calmness, unmoved by prejudice or clamour; and win the respect of all by the good order and harmony of its deliberations, and the reasonableness of its acts.

We would call attention to the publication in another column of the first list of subscribers to the "JOHNSON Memorial." It is hoped readers of this paper will not allow this movement to escape their memory, but will co-operate as far as they can, without delay, with the Committee who have the matter in hand. It will be a good thing if secretaries and leaders of companies will bring the matter before their members at the earliest meeting they may have. We impress early action upon those who intend to help on the movement, because there seems to be an idea prevalent that ringers are apt to procrastinate in such matters, and eventually overlook them if they are not continually brought before them.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS. — Grand-sire: We think the book is out of print. — Enquirer: The question is hardly within our province.

Correspondence.

While allowing the utmost freedom for the expression of opinion, it must never be considered that we are in any way bound to statements made by correspondents.

To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

SIR,—There is no need for me to refer to any of the insults heaped upon me by "Free Lance;" I can safely trust myself with those who know me. But he should certainly have made sure of his facts. The meeting at Alton was not a Committee Meeting—it was called for ringing. I have never laid claim to be an "accomplished ringer." There is only one Stedman band in the Diocese—some 40 miles from here—too far for practice, but there are plenty of 8-bell towers where 6-bell men are always welcome, and if I am not to get any benefit from a District Meeting what is the use of going? Could not a time have been fixed two or three hours earlier, and thus defeat the "evil genius of railways"? May I add that I have the highest appreciation of the services rendered to the Guild by our Hon. Sec., that I only wrote with a desire to see the Guild take a higher position in the ringing world, and that I sincerely apologise if any of my remarks are offensive to him.

JOHN J. JONES ("One of the Guildford ringers").

WHY RINGERS AND RINGING ARE NOT ALWAYS APPRECIATED.

SIR,—The regrettably small attendance of members of the Essex Association at the service which opened the proceedings at our Annual Meeting, and the reference that I made in my Report to complaints that had reached me from certain of the clergy, induces me to send you the following extract from the letter of a Yorkshire clergyman much interested in ringing. It is very significant as to some of the obstacles which bar progress and reform:—

"Here my hopes as regards ringing are at zero. The ringers were paid, and certain of them were clever enough to see that, by keeping the belfry to themselves and a few boys whom they professed to teach, the individual pay became higher. It was to get rid of this sort of thing that I adopted a machine. . . . I am very much in sympathy with you in wishing to make change-ringing a means of interesting people in the church. . . . From all sides in this neighbourhood I hear that the ringers hardly ever are seen in church; and it is said that at ———, in the Parish Church, where they have a paid lot, as soon as the bells have been rung down before Evening Prayer on Sundays, they retire in a body to an adjacent pot-house. . . . If I am here three years hence, I think I shall try a start under new auspices. Meanwhile—the machine."

If, Sir, the experience of this gentleman is at all common, who can wonder that the clergy as a body take but little interest in ringers and ringing, and that many of them (as I know) are inclined to prefer a chiming apparatus that makes them independent of men who give them so much trouble? It looks as if, after all, the chief obstacles to the progress of change-ringing were not the ignorance or indifference of clergy, churchwardens, and the general public, but—ringers themselves.

T. L. PAPILLON.

Writtle, Chelmsford.

INFORMATION WANTED.

SIR.—I should be obliged if any of your kind readers could impart any or all of the following information: the histories and use and progress of all the old ringing Societies, metropolitan and provincial. There is, I believe, a very peculiar history attaching to the St. Stephen's Society of Bristol, and there are people to be found who have an opinion that the ringers of that Society are a wealthy Corporation, or rather would be if they had their due. If it were possible to complete a reliable history of this and other old Societies, setting forth what rights and privileges once belonged to them, with the causes of such rights being lost, I think it would have a good circulation, and recoup the cost of printing. I shall be very pleased to see an answer to this enquiry from any of your numerous readers.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF PEALS OF STEDMAN TRIPLES.

I.

INTRODUCTION.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

From the first days of my acquaintance with the rudiments of composition I have always regarded peals of Stedman Triples with a curiosity tempered by awe. Looking back upon the execrable multibob peals of early times one cannot but admire the assiduous perseverance of the next generation of composers whose persistent efforts culminated in Thurstans' magnificent masterpiece. Some forty years have now elapsed since the close of the labours of the eminent Birmingham band to whom the method is so largely indebted for its development, and the hard won knowledge of years of enquiry has died out a forgotten art. Not a vestige of a hint remains to us, beyond what is afforded by their compositions, of the principles upon which the successful results of these early masters of the method were founded. Near upon half a century of apathy has cast around Stedman Triples a shroud of impenetrable mystery almost romantic in its completeness.

Content, while there were yet unfathomed possibilities in other and less appalling methods, to wonder and wait for light, I came to the conclusion about eighteen months ago that this alone among campanological problems remained an uncracked nut to the present generation. The comparatively simple analysis of composition in all the Standard methods on eight or more bells was, thanks to the perseverance of numerous composers, a fait accompli. The musical capabilities of each system had been utilized to the utmost, and no radical novelty was left to be unfolded. In all the plain Triple methods, moreover, the Grandsire investigations of the Rev. Charles Davies and Mr. W. H. Thompson had set vague surmise at rest by laying down fundamental laws of such true mathematical proportion as to be applicable not only to Grandsire but also to the sister systems.

To the study of Stedman Triples I therefore betook myself, with anything, however, but a hopeful heart. My first step was to enlist the co-operation of the two scientists whose abilities were specially likely to enable them to throw light on the subject, the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer and Mr. W. H. Thompson. With the latter gentleman I had some time previously carried on a voluminous correspondence thereon, and although this had ended without any practical result I knew that little was required to rouse his energy afresh. As regarded Mr. Bulwer, who indeed had already begun an attack on the method, I felt that his analytical powers added to unlimited perseverance in composition, as evidenced more particularly in his exposition of New Cumberland Surprise and in his "extent" peals in the Duffield method, would be of invaluable assistance.

As a result of our combined labours, I was enabled in six months' time to produce the first ten-part peal ever composed with legitimate calls alone. A few days later I obtained three, four, and six-part peals, the first of these being a division up to that time—May 1889—unknown in the method. Mr. Bulwer, who had been devoting himself rather to a thorough analysis of principle than to an immediate search after new compositions, began, within a week or so after my first peal, to produce others, of which the pick have appeared in these pages. It is not, however, with an array of compositions that these papers are intended to deal, but with the principles underlying the construction of the various types of peals, both ancient and modern. These principles, unearthed by the united efforts of Mr. Bulwer, Mr. Thompson, and myself, I will now endeavour to place before the Exercise. A general acquaintance with the rudiments of composition on the part of the readers of these papers will be pre-supposed, as it is impossible to treat so complicated a subject in an elementary manner. My object is not so much to afford instruction to the general reader as to place on record, for the benefit of present and future composers, analyses of the various modes in which the method has been treated, so that there may be no recurrence in the future of the necessity that those who wish to study it must set to work from the very basement.

It is at the outset necessary to give some idea of the lines which this demonstration will follow. In the first place let it be clearly understood that everything that will be advanced has reference exclusively to complete peals of 5040 changes, and in no way to touches of less extent. Next I may point out that the peals of Stedman Triples hitherto composed may be divided into three classes, to the definitions of which particular attention is necessary.

CLASS A.—Multibob peals, comprising all compositions containing nine or more calls in each course.

CLASS B.—Bob-and-single peals, comprising all compositions having two or more common singles in each course, except such as come under Class A.

CLASS C.—Twin-bob peals, comprising all compositions in which the bobs occur throughout in pairs.

As regards peals of Class A, even their composers did not claim for them any further merit than that they rendered possible the performance of a complete peal of Stedman Triples. The degradation of using specially manufactured and multitudinous calls was freely admitted, and doubtless acted as an incentive to the unwearying course of study which culminated, in the year 1846, in the production of Thurstans' "Original," the first peal obtained by the use of legitimate bobs and singles only.

Holding, as I do, very strong views as to the absurdity of classing as legitimate peals compositions which are not in strict conformity with the method, I decidedly maintain that none of those obtained up to the time of Thurstans' "Original" are bona fide peals of Stedman Triples in the proper acceptance of the term. In order, however, that the various modes of composition may be fully traced, it will be necessary to go briefly into the construction of the peals in Classes A and B, not one of which is obtained by the use of legitimate calls alone. Class C will be treated (of in detail, as the principles underlying the formation of peals of this class are peculiar to the method, and of immense interest owing to the rigidity of the conditions and the success of the results.

THE RAUNDS, WELLINGBOROUGH, AND DISTRICT SOCIETY.

The tenth annual meeting of this Society was held at Denford on Monday, May 26th, and the weather being beautifully fine bands of ringers from Raunds, Wellingborough, Higham Ferrers, Rushden, Denford, and Kettering were early in the village, and the bells rang merrily all the morning. At one o'clock Divine Service was held in the parish church, the clergy present being the Rev. H. Bryan (Raunds, Hon. Sec.); the Rev. J. Dun (Higham Ferrers); the Rev. A. S. Lindsay (Kettering); and the Rev. F. Hird (Rushden). An appropriate sermon was preached on the occasion by the Rev. James Dun, M.A., Vicar of Higham Ferrers. At the close of the service there was an offertory in aid of the funds of the Society. An excellent dinner was provided in the National School, to which about sixty ringing and honorary members sat down, the Rev. J. P. Goodman, of Keystone, the Treasurer, also arriving in time for dinner. Business proceedings commenced immediately after dinner. In the absence of the President (the Ven. Archdeacon Lightfoot), the Rev. Hugh Bryan, Hon. Sec., presided.

The Chairman said he regretted having to apologise for the absence of the Archdeacon, Canon Lindsay, Mr. W. J. Henry (Wellingborough), and other hon. members, as well as the Vicar of Denford (the Rev. O. Leadbitter), who, however, put the Vicarage grounds and his boats for rowing up the river at their disposal. After according thanks to the Rev. J. Dun for his excellent sermon, and welcoming the Rev. F. Hird and the Rev. A. S. Lindsay, he proceeded to give a financial statement of the accounts of the society for the past year, showing the receipts, including balance from last year, to have been £25 11s. 3½d., and the expenditure £12 16s. 2d., leaving a balance of £12 15s. 1½d., which, with interest to be added, made it £13 3s. 9d. in hand. Several new members were then admitted, and on the motion of Mr. F. Gilbert, seconded by Mr. H. Stubbs, Higham Ferrers was fixed as the next place of meeting, if the bells there were in order, and if not to go to Earls Barton. With reference to holding the meeting at Higham Ferrers, the vicar, the Rev. J. Dun, remarked that it must be conditional of course, for although they had decided to repair the old and get two new bells, it was one thing to ask for money to do that, and quite another thing to get it, or he should be pleased for them to come to Higham Ferrers.

The Hon. Secretary (the Rev. Hugh Bryan), and the Treasurer (the Rev. J. P. Goodman), were then re-elected.

Mr. Dennes said the Association was the means of doing a great deal of good, both as a body and individually, and he suggested, and afterwards moved, that a complimentary sum be voted to Higham Ferrers, Raunds, and Kettering, to help them in belfry improvements. He did not expect them to give much, but a little, say half a guinea, would encourage them, and have a good moral effect.

The Rev. J. P. Goodman opposed this, as he thought it would open a door they would scarcely know when to close. He would rather give a subscription than begin tapping the funds, as he thought that would not be for the benefit of the Association.

Mr. Dennes' proposition was, however, supported by the Rev. A. S. Lindsay and the Rev. F. Hird, and eventually carried by a majority of one.

A question was here raised as to whether any money could be voted to any object without a two-thirds majority.

The Rev. J. P. Goodman thought notice should be given of any motion of that kind.

A long discussion followed, and it was ultimately decided, as no notice of any motion had been required in the past, the resolution should stand. It was further resolved that the complimentary grant be half-a-guinea each to Higham Ferrers and Kettering.

The question of holding quarterly meetings was brought forward by Mr. Wilson, and a suggestion of Mr. H. Stubbs for appointing delegates for the transaction of the business was discussed at some length, as well as the question of giving notices of motion.

At length, on the motion of the Rev. A. S. Lindsay, seconded by Mr. Craddock, it was resolved to hold a business meeting for the purpose of discussing the above questions.

On the motion of Mr. F. Gilbert, it was also resolved that a committee be formed of one from each belfry in the district to prepare the matters to be laid before the meetings, each local society to nominate its own representative.

On the motion of Mr. Dennes a vote of thanks was accorded to Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, for the kindness shewn to the ringers on the occasion of their visit to the foundry, and the Secretary (the Rev. H. Bryan), was requested to convey it to Messrs. Taylor and Co. There being no vice-chairman of the society, the Rev. A. S. Lindsay was unanimously elected to that office. Regret was expressed at the loss by death of Mr. G. H. Burnham. Besides honorary members there were stated to be fifty-two ringing members, and six new ones just admitted. A vote of thanks to the Chairman terminated the proceedings. Ringing was then resumed, and continued till dusk. The bells of St. Mary's, Ringstead, were also open to the ringers during the day.

Birth.

ON Thursday, May 29th, at Oldland Vicarage, Gloucestershire, the wife of the REV. HERBERT A. COCKEY, Master of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, of a Son.

THE ALLHALLOWS SOCIETY, TOTTENHAM.

The Annual Excursion of the above took place on Whit-Monday, May 26th. Leaving Tottenham about 8 a.m., they arrived at Aldenham, a charming little village in Herts, at 10.30., and were soon on the way to the belfry of St. John's church. After raising and trying the bells, a peal of eight, tenor 15 cwt., and in capital going order, a start was made for a peal of Plain Bob Triples which came to grief in 24 mins. Another start was made, and this time with success; the peal being rung in the good time of 2 hrs. 45 mins. This is only the second peal on the bells, an account of which appeared in the peal column.

After dinner, to which twelve sat down, and which was served up in excellent style by host Jones, who is one of the local ringers, the whole company indulged in a most enjoyable ramble through the surrounding country, returning to the church about five o'clock. Upon visiting the belfry again some of the local ringers put in an appearance, and several touches of Plain Bob and Grandsire were rung.

The Vicar then kindly invited them to partake of an excellent meat tea, and after doing justice to the good things provided, the belfry was again visited, when some first-class touches of Stedman, Union, and Oxford Bob Triples were rung. Those who took part in the ringing were Messrs. Adams, Barnett, English, Grove, Lucas, Davidson, Martin, Waghorn, sen., Waghorn, jun., Gibson, Button, and C. H. Martin of Hendon.

The time for leaving having arrived, a move was made towards home which was reached somewhere about midnight, all having spent a most enjoyable and pleasant day. The above society wish through the medium of this paper to thank the vicar of Aldenham for the very kind and cordial welcome given them, and hope that they may soon have the pleasure of ringing another peal on his bells.

THE ST. MICHAEL'S SOCIETY, MELBOURNE, DERBYSHIRE.

ON Saturday, May 31st, six members of the above society paid a visit to Lockington. Starting at 1 p.m. they arrived at Castle Donington about 2 p.m. where they were joined by Mr. H. C. Woodward, of Derby. On their arrival at Lockington the bells were soon set going, and a 720 of Bob Minor was rung in 27 mins. H. Hollingworth, 1; J. Vickers, 2; J. R. Wood, 3; J. Warren, 4; H. C. Woodward (conductor), 5; G. C. Tunncliff, 6. Afterwards a 720 Grandsire Minor in 27 mins. J. W. Warren, 1; H. Hollingworth, 2; G. C. Tunncliff, 3; J. R. Wood, 4; T. Hollingworth, 5; H. C. Woodward (conductor), 6. And a 360 Canterbury Pleasure Minor. J. R. Wood, 1; J. W. Warren, 2; H. Hollingworth, 3; H. C. Woodward, 4; J. Vickers, 5; G. C. Tunncliff (conductor), 6. And a plain course of Oxford Treble Bob and several 6-scores of Stedman Doubles. The "go" of the bells was excellent; the arrangements leaving nothing to be desired. Through the kindness of N. C. Curzon, Esq., the ringers were afterwards entertained at the Hall, and they wish to thank that gentleman very sincerely for his kindness; also to the Rev. R. L. Story for so kindly placing the bells at their disposal. After lunch a course of Grandsire Caters was rung in the hall yard. G. C. Tunncliff, 1-2; J. W. Warren, 3-4; H. Hollingworth, 5-6; H. C. Woodward, 7-8; J. R. Wood, 9-10. Journeying back a halt was made at Castle Donington, where, after a convivial glass with Donington friends and a few courses of Triples, a move was made for home, arriving about 10 p.m., all the band having enjoyed their afternoon's outing.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

ON Saturday, May 31st, the Guiseley branch of the above Association went by excursion train to Hull, and in the evening were met by the Hull members at St. James's church and rang two courses of Treble Bob Major. O. Frankland (Guiseley), 1; T. Stockdale (Hull), 2; J. Dixey (Hull), 3; D. E. Rhodes (Guiseley), 4; C. Jackson (Hull), 5; J. Yeadon (Guiseley), 6; J. Baldwin (Guiseley), 7; S. Baldwin (Guiseley, conductor), 8. They wish to return their hearty thanks to the Hull branch for so kindly meeting them, and to the rector and churchwardens for the use of the bells.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Whit-Saturday, a band of ringers from St. Luke's, Heywood, in company with two from Rossendale, (who had arrived at Heywood the previous evening and been under their kind hospitality during the night,) left that town on a trip, to Barmouth, Wales. It was decided to leave the train at Llangollen, —about forty miles from Balmoral—and attempt a peal of Union Triples, the bells having been secured beforehand. The train left Heywood at four o'clock, the route lying through Manchester and Warrington to Chester, which place was reached after a run unbroken by stoppages, by 5.50. A stop of five minutes was taken advantage of for refreshments, and then the little pulley was again put on. The handbells were brought into use and a few courses of Triples were rung till the train once more pulled up at Wrexham. There is a grand peal of bells here, and a wonderful tower, but no long stop being made we had to pass by without seeing the architecture of it. Shortly after leaving this place a dark object left a hedge and flew past the carriage, which evoked the remark "There's crows in Wales," and indeed there were, and also "Flay Crows." Ruabon was next reached; this is a very picturesque place, but we had to pass through and Llangollen was reached at 7.0 prompt. On leaving the station we were assailed by a host of enquiries, the first of which being "Good morning!" "Have you used Pears' Soap?" After finding the leader (Mr. Davies) of the local company and arranging to meet at 9.30 for a peal of Union, we retired to the Temperance Hotel, and the inner man was satisfied. Having an hour-and-a-half before starting, we climbed a high mountain to the left, and enjoyed the beautiful scenery below; returning by some rocky decline we arrived at the Church of St. Collen at 9.30. Here we were joined by Master A. R. James, who we must say is a surprisingly clever ringer for his size and age. A start was made for a peal of Union Triples but after about forty-five minutes' good ringing a stand was called owing to a course coming wrong. Not being sure what was the cause, a start was made for Holt's 6-part Grandsire Triples, which was brought to a successful issue as per another page. The Temperance Hotel was again visited, and bobs were more rapidly called and made over the courses than under ordinary circumstances. The afternoon was spent in a ramble down the valley to the "vale de crucis" Abbey, and the return being over a high eminence. Before returning the tower was again visited and a few touches of Stedman were rung, assisted by the local company. The return journey was made, leaving Llangollen at 8.10 p.m., and arriving back by 1 a.m., all very well pleased with our outing, and especially with the reception by the ringers of Llangollen.

We wish through this paper to heartily thank the vicar, wardens, and ringers for their kindness.

LEEDS AND DISTRICT AMALGAMATED SOCIETY.

The usual monthly ringing meeting of this Society was held at Rothwell, on Saturday, May 31st. Ringers attended from Leeds, Holbeck, Headingley, Bramley, Wakefield and Rothwell, and touches of Kent and Oxford Treble Bob Major, along with a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor, were rung upon the bells. Opportunity was also given to the younger members to try their skill with the assistance of the more advanced practitioners. The meeting, which was thoroughly successful, was very much enjoyed by the members present.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The monthly meeting of the Burton District was held at the parish church, Burton, on Friday evening, May 30th, when touches of Grandsire, Stedman and Plain Bob were rung.

READING, BERKS.

On Thursday, May 28th, at the tower of St. Giles' a 720 of Bob Minor was rung by the following persons. H. Dibler, 1; F. Sweetzer, 2; A. H. Evans, 3; H. Simmonds, 4; J. Hands, 5; A. F. Reeves (conductor), 6. The above was rung to test the going of the six bells which had just been rehung by Messrs. Blackburn and Greenleaf of Salisbury. It is satisfactory to learn from the above members that the go of the bells is all that can be desired.

PRIZE-RINGING SHOW AT MILVERTON, SOMERSET.

We take the following report from the West Somerset Free Press. Our readers will no doubt be highly amused thereat, and long to become acquainted with those gentlemen of such rarely-endowed talents, viz. "the judges." When the county of Somerset has an Association of its own, we may perhaps hear that the Church bells there are not being polluted by such contemptible prize ringing (?) tournaments, but that something worthy of the name may receive the support of those rev. gentlemen (among others) and churchwardens who identified themselves with this miserable exhibition of bell-hauling.

"On Saturday last (the Queen's birthday), there was a large gathering of ringers from far and near (even Cornwall being represented) to take part in a prize-ringing contest on the bells of Milverton Church, permission having been kindly granted by the vicar and churchwardens. There is a feeling in many quarters the reverse of favourable to prize-ringing, but on the other hand, there are arguments in favour of its retention. Without expressing an opinion either one way or the other, we may say that the contest on Saturday was conducted in a very orderly manner. The towers represented were Alphington, Stogumber, West Worlington, Trull, Langford Budville, Bishop's Lydeard, Wellington, High Bickington, Holcombe, Rogus, Taunton (St. James's), Norton Fitzwarren, Ide, Exminster, and Hemyock, seven men being allowed to compete in each set. There were two distinct competitions advertised to take place, the first being for rising and lowering in peal and ringing in rounds, and the second for the best 120 of Grandsire Doubles. All the teams of ringers from the towers above-mentioned entered for the first competition, but only Norton Fitzwarren entered for the second, which consequently fell through. Previous to the competition, five minutes were allowed each band for practice. There was little or no fault to find with the 'go' of the bells, the general opinion being that the faults, if any, during the ringing, would originate at the rope's end. Competent judges were closeted in secret within easy hearing of the bells. The competition commenced at about 11 a.m., and was not concluded until about 4 p.m. There was some excellent as well as some very bad ringing heard during the day, and some of the rising and lowering in peal could not be beaten anywhere, the striking being, in two or three instances in particular, 'as regular as clockwork.' What marred several good peals was a neglect on the part of some of the ringers (at the heavy end more especially) to hold their bells well in hand when chiming round after lowering in peal, sixteen faults being booked against every false stroke made by a bell after 'stand' had been called. It was not unusual to hear the tenor or the fifth bell each speak once and sometimes twice after the order had been given to 'stand.' At the close of the competition the Norton guild of ringers rang several 120's of Grandsire Doubles, and it was quite a relief to hear a little change-ringing after nothing but rounds since eleven in the morning. The ringers, numbering about 120 in all, dined together, half at the White Hart and half at the Globe. At the former place the vicar (the Rev. C. De Salis) presided, supported by Mr. J. D. Astley, whilst the Rev. W. H. Fowle, vicar of Langford Budville, and formerly vicar of Milverton, presided at the Globe, supported by Mr. A. R. Payne. The Rev. C. De Salis, after proposing the health of 'The Queen,' which was honoured in the usual way, congratulated the ringers on the success of the day's ringing, and, in their name thanked the officials (the timekeepers and judges), for so satisfactorily carrying out the responsible and by no means light duties they had undertaken. The result of the competition was announced by the vicar as follows:—first prize, £4, Wellington, with 112 faults; second prize, £3, High Bickington, 120 faults; third prize, £2, Alphington, 125 faults; fourth prize, £1, Langford Budville, 160 faults. The position of the remainder of the competitors were as follows: West Worlington, 172 faults (this was one of the best peals rung, but was marred at the finish in the manner above-mentioned); Ide, 193 faults; Bishops Lydeard, 212 faults; Stogumber, 226 faults; Trull, 274 faults; Hemyock, 289 faults; Holcombe, Rogus, 295 faults; Exminster, 326 faults; Norton Fitzwarren, 362 faults; Taunton (St. James's), 642 faults."

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION. WHIT-MONDAY MEETING.

Monday, May 26th, being Whit-Monday, the above Association held a general meeting at South Shields. There was a good muster, the following branches being represented: Bishop Auckland, Jarrow (Christ Church and St. Peter's), North Shields, Marske-by-the-Sea, Bishop Wearmouth, Winlaton, South Shields, Chester-le-Street, Durham, Newcastle, Middlesbrough, Whitley, Ripon, Sharow, Northallerton, and Boroughbridge. At eight o'clock in the morning eight of the members met at Christ Church, North Shields, and started for a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major on the back eight, which was successfully brought round in 3 hrs. 6 mins., particulars of which appeared in the peal column of last week's issue.

During the morning touches of Major and Triples, together with a 720 of Bob Minor were rung at both North and South Shields. The Committee met at the Royal Hotel, Ocean Road, at 1 p.m., after which dinner was held at the same place, to which seventy-two sat down and brought up the course-ends in splendid style. The Rev. Canon Bailey asked a blessing for the good things provided.

Dinner being over, the chairman (R. S. Story, Esq., President), proposed the health of "The Queen," which was duly honoured. The toast of "The Bishops and Clergy of the Dioceses" was next given, to which the Rev. Canon Bailey responded, and also spoke a little on the early use of bells for Divine Service. A course of Grandsire Caters was next rung on the handbells by Messrs. Lees (vice-president), R. S. Story (president), C. L. Routledge, W. Story, and E. Wallis. The bells, which are a new set of fifteen in the key of B flat, size 16, recently purchased from the well-known firm of Messrs. Shaw, Son, and Co., of Bradford, gave great satisfaction.

The following new members were elected: Mr. R. Morrison and Mr. G. W. Dix, of North Shields; M. Smith, Esq., and the Rev. E. D. Scott, of Sunderland; Messrs. J. Holmes and W. Thompson, of Northallerton; J. Metcalf, of Ripon; Messrs. W. Frazer and J. Barber, of Whitley; and F. A. Underwood, of Newcastle, late of Loughborough.

A vote of thanks to the Rev. Canon Bailey and the Rev. Canon Bruton for the use of the bells of their respective churches, to which the Rev. Canon Bailey responded and said that the Association would always be welcomed to the use of his bells at South Shields, brought the meeting to a close.

On Wednesday, May 28th, six members of the above Association met Mr. Dawe, of London, and Mr. Shepherd, of Swindon, at Durham, for the purpose of attempting a peal of Grandsire Triples on the Cathedral bells. The bells were set going shortly after 5 p.m. to the tune of Holt's ten-part peal, but unfortunately just before reaching the single two bells were found to have changed course, which necessitated the setting up of the bells. — Shepherd (Swindon), 1; L. Newton (Durham), 2; C. L. Routledge (Newcastle), 3; F. E. Dawe (London, conductor), 4; F. Lees (Newcastle), 5; C. J. Butterworth (Durham), 6; F. Harrison (Jarrow), 7; W. Story (Newcastle), 8. There have been several attempts for peals at this Cathedral, which still remains one of the places at which a peal of 5000 and upwards has yet to be recorded.

ALLENSMORE, HEREFORDSHIRE.

An interesting event occurred in the quiet parish of Allensmore, on Monday, May 26th, which caused many of the older parishioners to remember days of "long ago," namely, the opening of the parish church bells, which for the past twenty years have not been rung, owing to the tenor of the peal being cracked, and the dilapidated state of the bell-frame and fittings. On the east wall of the tower, in the bell loft, is a small brass tablet, at once revealing the generosity as well as the modest reticence of the donor. It is as follows: "To the glory of God. The whole of this peal was thoroughly restored and the tenor bell recast, by the munificence of Anne Elizabeth Pateshall, of Allensmore Court, A.D., 1890. J. E. Grasett, Vicar; James Barwell, founder, Birmingham." The re-cast tenor proves to be a good one. The frame and fittings are entirely new, and the floor supporting the same has been re-constructed.

Ringings commenced early in the morning by a company of Eaton Bishop ringers, including Messrs. C. Burrough, J. Williams,

W. Dawe, Baughan, Jones, H. Mason (conductor), and others, anxious to obtain the honour of the first peal." They kept the bells going till four o'clock. Luncheon was kindly provided by the Rev. J. E. Grasett. About four in the afternoon a company of ringers from Withington and Lugwardine arrived, having decided to take the chance of having a pull. Permission was given them by the Vicar, and a good repast provided at the vicarage at seven o'clock. This band raised and fell the bells in peal, and rang six 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles, in 35 mins. H. Mason, W. Davis, J. Jones, A. Breed, C. Jenkins (conductor), and A. Bowers. The bells had not long been silent when a company of Hereford men came by special invitation to the belfry. This band also raised and fell the bells in peal and rang several 6-scores, conducted by J. Davis, in which the following took part: H. Gaines, J. Davis (All Saints), J. Jones (St. Peter's), T. Hobby, J. Chamberlain, J. Belcher, T. Phillips. During the day about thirty-eight ringers visited the belfry, representing ten different towers, the majority being members of the Hereford Diocesan Guild. Satisfaction was generally expressed at the manner in which the restoration had been completed. Under the leadership of Mr. Taylor, a local band of ringers is being formed, who will no doubt join the Guild and make good progress in the art of ringing. The instructor of the Guild was also present, and took part in some of the ringings.

NORTH NOTTS. ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of this Association was held at Worksop on Whit-Monday. It was well attended by ringers from the following places: Worksop, Retford, Everton, Shireoaks, Anston, Blyth, Mansfield, Newark, Gainsborough, and Liversedge. Ringing began on the Priory bells at 10.30, and was continued until 8.30. The methods rung were Kent Treble Bob Major, Grandsire Triples, and Kent, Oxford, and Violet Minor. At 12 o'clock a special service was held in the Priory church, at which the Rev. H. T. Slodden (Vicar) preached a very appropriate sermon, taking as his text part of the 10th verse of the 84th psalm: "It is better to be a doorkeeper in the house of God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness." At 4 o'clock an excellent tea was provided at the schools, to which about forty members sat down. The General Meeting was held after tea. The presiding officers were re-appointed, and twelve new ringing members were elected. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Blyth on September 12th.

On Tuesday, seven members of the Association had a ringing tour, visiting the belfries in Sherwood Forest. They drove from Worksop to Clumber and then to Thoresby. At Perlethorpe, by the kind permission of the Countess Manvers, a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor was rung by R. Smith, 1; S. Harwood, 2; D. Russon, 3; F. Fowler, 4; S. Smith, 5; R. Beeston (conductor), 6. Tenor 7½ cwt. The party then went on to Edwinstowe, where by permission of the Vicar, a 720 of Kent and 120 of Violet were rung by R. Smith, 1; E. Russon, 2; D. Russon (conductor), 3; F. Fowler, 4; S. Smith, 5; R. Beeston, 6. And a 720 of Oxford by the same, except that S. Harwood stood in the place of D. Russon. These are the first true 720s on the bells at Edwinstowe since they were hung in September last.

BENTLEY, HAMPSHIRE.

The six bells of this church, tenor 14 cwt., have all been re-hung with complete new fittings, and they have also been quarter-turned. The work has been satisfactorily carried out by Mr. Harry Stokes, Church Bell Hanger, of Woodbury, near Exeter. They were re-opened after being silent for several years on May 14th, by six clergymen, members of the Winchester Diocesan Guild, who were all highly pleased with the "go" of them.

BRADFORD ABBAS PARISH CHURCH, DORSET.

The fine peal of six bells in the tower of this church have just been rehung with new fittings throughout, and the frame strengthened, by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, and at a short trial peal rang last week they gave great satisfaction. The formal re-opening has been fixed for Monday evening next, June 9th, at 7.30.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"England expects that every man will do his duty."

And so the patience and perseverance of our friends of the Victorian Society, Melbourne, has at last been rewarded with their first peal in the Colonies. Thus also has Holt's venerable "ten-part" for a second time figured in a most illustrious and historic connection. The great satisfaction expressed by our Editor in publishing an account of this peal will, I feel sure, be fully shared by all who read it. For weeks back I have been looking out for some news of this sort, and now that it is come, the intelligence seems to be all the more acceptable after long watching. In the band, I notice, both College Youths and Royal Cumberlands, as well as a provincial society, are represented. Five out of the nine who took part in it scored their first peal, while Mr. James Murray thus succeeded in his first attempt at peal-conducting. Altogether, then, the peal will rank as a memorable one of Anno Domini 1890, and I congratulate the ringers of it accordingly.

Speaking of peals, Whit-week has evidently been a busy time this year with some members of the Salisbury Guild. A 5088 of Treble Bob and Holt's ten-part on Monday; Washbrook's four-part peal of Stedman Triples at St. Martin's, and Holt's Original on handbells on Tuesday; and Thurstans' (reversed) peal of Stedman Triples by way of finish on Wednesday, are surely enough to satisfy even the most insatiable of peal-ringers for the time being. Of the five peals, the most remarkable is that on handbells, reported to have been rung in a minute less than two hours. If there is no "printer's error" in recording the time, of a truth then the statement at foot of its being "the quickest peal ever rung" may be taken without fear of contradiction. I am not going to dispute the accuracy of the "one hour and fifty-nine minutes;" probably if I did some one or other would be accusing me of heaping insults upon them; but I really cannot help thinking that ringing—even on handbells—to the tune of over forty-two changes per minute through a 5040 of Triples, seems almost incredible. I wonder if ever an attempt will be made to beat this record.

Mr. Papillon, I see, has been touching that "sore spot" of ringers' habitual non-attendance at services in his report to the Essex Association. Since the establishment of our Associations, hardly any subject has been so much the theme of speeches, discourses, and sermons at the meetings than this one. And still the complaint exists. That "nothing is so likely to alienate the sympathies of the clergy and churchpeople generally from ringers and ringing" as this persistent neglect to attend service after belfry duties are over, will hardly be gainsaid. Neither can it be disputed that "the clergy have a right to expect that those who ring for Divine Service should, as a rule, set the example of attendance thereat." At the same time, while—let it be distinctly understood—I would not advance one word in condonation of this or any other neglect of duty on the part of my brother-strings; I venture to ask—Do our clergy as a rule set about in the right way to remove this cause of complaint? It is all very well for them to speak on platforms and in pulpits, telling ringers what they ought to do; but would not their efforts be rewarded with considerably more success if they made it a point of duty themselves to pay frequent visits to their belfries on the Sunday, and there talk with the ringers? Two blacks, it is well known, do not make one white, and while this fact is no exoneration for negligent ringers, yet should not those who preach duty set an example of the performance of it themselves. In how comparatively few instances do we find a Vicar recognising the belfry as a part of his church—like his Sunday Schools for instance—and visiting it as he would even a cottage in his parish? "A house-going parson makes a church-going people" is an old and truthful saying. This applies no less to belfries and ringers, and I am quite convinced from my own personal experience, that the oftener a parson is seen among his ringers in the belfry, the more will they be seen with him in church.

"Oh, but," it has been said many times by clergymen when approached on this subject, "you see, the belfry steps are old and worn, the staircase narrow and dirty; one's hands and clothes get so soiled in going up and down." Then, I say, enlist the co-operation of your Wardens, get the steps repaired and the staircase kept clean, so that you can go up with comfort; you will then in a double measure have shewn your interest in your ringers' temporal and spiritual welfare; which actions will speak louder and have infinitely more force than any expositions of duty (however eloquent) from a platform, when that is the only place where the speaker goes to meet the ringers.

The case of the Yorkshire clergyman mentioned in Mr. Papillon's letter does not advance anything in solution of this difficulty. Neither do his correspondent's observations, to my mind, redound much to his credit. His complaint against his ringers appears to be that they made the most of their pay, and "it was to get rid of this sort of thing that I adopted a machine," he says. But he does not tell us of any efforts made by himself in the way of bringing about a better state of things among his ringers. No; instead of that, he adopted the more expedite mode of clearing out the ringers and "adopting a machine." Then, although he is said to be "much interested in ringing," and avows himself to be "very much in sympathy with you in wishing to make change-ringing a means of interesting people in the church," yet he has decided on keeping this machine going for three years, at the end of which time, he adds, "if I am here, I think I shall try a start under new auspices." Meanwhile—for the next three years—the machine! The whole tone of this extract furnished by Mr. Papillon, indeed, makes me suspect that the experiences of this Yorkshire clergyman are but another illustration of that only too frequent story of peremptory action by the parson, followed by obstinacy on the part of the ringers; where considerate measures in the first instance might have led to a satisfactory state of things at the finish.

Ringers are charged with many acts of omission and commission; but in common fairness let the indictment be served upon all other offenders alike. But let not any of my Essex readers imagine I am offering the least excuse for staying away from a service which like the service at Chelmsford, is specially provided for their benefit.

Mr. Attree's return last Saturday again shews the position of the peal-ringing record to be 100 behind the corresponding period of last year. What can be the cause of this tremendous drop?

FREE LANCE.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1890.

WE direct the especial attention of our readers to two statements in our last issue: one in our report of the Annual Meeting of the Essex Association, that "the opening service was but poorly attended, and most of those present arrived late;" the other in the letter of a Yorkshire clergyman quoted by a correspondent—"From all sides in this neighbourhood I hear that the ringers hardly ever are seen in church." These statements point to what in our opinion is a dangerous "rock ahead" to the cause of change-ringing, viz., the tendency of too many ringers to regard only the secular side of ringing, and to repudiate any obligation either to the Church which gives them the means of exercising their art, or to the clergy whose support and co-operation they profess to desire. It is little short of scandalous that at the Annual Meeting of a great County Association, when every pains have been taken by its officers and by the local clergy to arrange a service for ringers, not more than half of those who assemble directly afterwards at the meeting or dinner should be seen in church; and it is a grievous scandal that at any parish church the ringers should, as soon as they have rung for service, go off elsewhere, perhaps in the very face of the assembling congregation. The Secretary of the Essex Association puts his finger upon this as one great reason why the clergy as a body do not take more interest in ringing; and we believe that he is right. What we now wish to do is to impress upon ringers how serious is the obstacle which they thus, by their own act, place in the way of their own cause.

The past ten or fifteen years have, as is well known, seen a great revival in the art of change-ringing; and attempts more or less successful have been made to raise it from the position which it formerly occupied among low-class sporting amusements. This revival has been mainly in connection with the Church, and its chief movers have been clergymen. It is by their efforts that the manners and customs of belfries have been reformed, and something done to remind ringers that both belfry and bells belong to a consecrated building and should be used with reverence and decency; and that ringers themselves are, in a certain sense, Church-workers, as much, e.g., as choirmen. Not only the social status, but the morale, of ringing has been raised by connecting it more closely with the Church and with the clergy; and anything that weakens that connection must damage its prestige. Expediency, if no higher or better motive, ought to make ringers careful in this matter. The parochial clergy have, in nine cases out of ten, absolute control over the church bells. They can exclude anyone from the belfry; they can prevent even the churchwardens from causing the bells to be rung. And it is certain that they will not long tolerate in ringers, any more than they would in choirmen, such open disregard of the Church and its services as seems to be complained of. The more zealous in fact they are to promote the interests of change-ringing, the more particular are they likely to be on these points: and ringers would do well to remember that conduct such as we are now alluding to not only keeps away those who have hitherto stood aloof from change-ringing, but discourages its best friends, men whose support the Exercise can ill spare, men without whose help it should never have made the progress that has been made.

We speak plainly, because we believe that the case requires plain speaking. Not only clergy, but influential lay friends of ringing have been heard to say that they feel inclined to "cut the whole concern"; so dissatisfied have they been with the behaviour of some of those with whom they are brought into contact. The real friends of ringing should look to this. No doubt there are in many places men who cannot reconcile themselves to the new state of things, and go on in the old way; men of low tastes, who only care for low pleasures, and have no esprit de corps for the cause; men who prefer the old times when ringers did as they pleased, before parsons and gentlefolk interfered with new-fangled notions of propriety. All we say is that the real friends and well-wishers of change-ringing must choose between the old and the new; and that unless they make a right choice, and purge out the old leaven even more than has yet been done, they will shipwreck the cause.

WHY RINGERS AND RINGING ARE NOT APPRECIATED.

SIR,—In your last issue the Rev. T. L. Papillon brought before your readers this important question, which is one I am sorry to admit is too true. I intended some time ago to broach the same question in your columns, but I am glad that a worthier pen than mine has taken it up, and one with more experience. At the last annual meeting of the Hertfordshire Association, the same regrettable circumstance occurred, namely, only a few going to the service, others coming in late. I ask, is this doing common justice or showing proper respect to the clergyman who conducts the service? Are all the pains he takes to prepare his sermon (which is entirely different to the ordinary course of discourses), to be preached only to a mere handful of men? Is it encouraging to any man after hard study to find his energies are simply wasted? In reading the report of the Essex Annual Meeting, I found the words "The service, however, was but poorly attended, and most of those who were present arrived late." And a little further on I read that about 110 sat down to dinner; no mention of late attendance. I consider that the Whit Monday proceedings have cast a stigma on the Association, and I appeal to ringers of that body to remove it at once (when the first opportunity occurs) and show to the public that they are Church workers in its truest sense of the word. The same complaint reaches me from Brighton, and I have no doubt that the energetic secretary of the Sussex Association will have something to say on the subject. Ringers must remember that they are subservient to the Clergy, and that without their sympathy and aid change-ringing would soon go to the dogs, for the fact must not be lost sight of that while they are in charge of their livings the bells are under their control. So in this selfish light alone it is incumbent on all ringers to support their Clergy. I must now conclude, thanking you Mr. Editor, in anticipation of your inserting these few lines.

St. Albans.

G. W. CARTMEL.

A CAUTION.

SIR,—In your last week's issue of "THE BELL NEWS" there is a report of a peal rung at the Church of St. Helen, Cliffe, Kent, and in the foot-note it is stated to be the second peal rung upon the bells. I beg to say this is not so; it is quite true as stated that a peal of Grandsire Triples was rung there in the year 1866, it is also quite true that the first peal was rung upon those bells on the 26th of December 1862, and that peal was Stedman Triples. This may prevent another error with regard to first peals, as our Kentish friends might think of going to the same church for the first peal of Stedman, Forest Gate, E.

TREASURES OF THE DEEP.—Few folk have have any notion of the patience that is demanded of all scientific men who go in for the work of thorough investigation. This is especially the case in deep-sea explorations, for the difficulty is enormous of finding out how many living creatures are contained in a given quantity of sea water. It needs about sixty-four hours of close work to ascertain the result of a take from the Baltic, for example, while an ocean take, being much richer in animal life, requires almost twice as long.—From "Little Folks" Magazine for June.

Obituary.

RICHARD M. PRATT.

It is with the deepest sorrow and regret that we have to record the demise of Richard M. Pratt, of St. Albans, at the early age of twenty-five years. Although deceased had been suffering from ill-health for the past twelve months, his death came very suddenly. On Wednesday, the 21st of May, deceased was seized with a fit of coughing, during which a blood-vessel gave way, but in a day or two he rallied and was able to get down stairs. So greatly did he improve in health that a journey to Oxford, on a visit to his sister, was in contemplation. But it was not to be, for on the following Tuesday morning, before daybreak, God called him into His eternal rest, the members of his family just reaching his bed-side before he expired. The deceased was by trade a printer, and for the past two years had been in business on his own account; and during that short space had gathered together a good connection; but too much hard work, and the catching of a violent cold during the performance of the same, proved too much for his constitution. The funeral took place on Saturday, 31st May, in St. Peter's Churchyard, and was numerously attended. Between forty and fifty Oddfellows preceded the coffin to the church, the local Volunteers marching behind the mourners; members of the Cathedral and St. Peter's Societies also following. On the body being taken into Church, the organist played very effectively "O rest in the Lord," and as a concluding voluntary, the "Dead March" in Saul. The Ven. Archdeacon Lawrence, Rector of St. Albans Abbey, performed the burial rites, and the Rev. Brother G. H. P. Glossop read the Oddfellows' Service. In his decease the local lodges of Oddfellows lose an indefatigable brother, whose best services were ever directed towards the furtherance of the cause. He had passed the degrees in the "Loyal Lord Bacon" Lodge, and had taken a very prominent part in the formation of the "Loyal Alban" Lodge, of which he was the first N.G. He was also a Lance-Corporal in the St. Albans corps of Volunteers, which he joined in 1880. He had also gained a reputation as a change-ringer, being at the time of his death a member of the St. Albans Cathedral Society, (the members of whom greatly deplore his loss), the Herts and Essex Associations and the College Youths. His change-ringing career commenced with the St. Peter's Society, which he subsequently left and joined the Cathedral Society. His list of peals was not heavy, but this is accounted for by health not permitting him; however, he had rung two handbell peals from 7-8 (Grandsire Triples), a Stedman Triples peal on the tower bells, and several other peals. As a steady ringer and a good striker, his help will be greatly missed by the young band at the Cathedral. The grave was literally one mass of flowers, wreaths being sent from the St. Peter's and Cathedral ringing Societies, the Oddfellows, Volunteers, and many other friends. The St. Peter's ringers rang at the conclusion of the service a half-muffled 1330 of Grandsire Triples, and the Cathedral bells were similarly rung for two hours during the evening, for the first hour by the old Abbey ringing society, (a call-change company which existed previous to the present change-ringing company, to which deceased belonged,) and afterwards by the Cathedral Society, the whole pull and stand finishing the melancholy task ringers perform over their departed brethren.

SAFFRON WALDEN, ESSEX.

The band of lady ringers at this town, who are under the tuition of Mr. F. Pitstow, rang upon the tower bells rounds and call-changes in honor of Her Majesty's birthday. We imagine it is the first time in history that a peal of Church bells has been rung by a band of the fair sex.

CORRECTIONS.—The peal rung at Great Marlow, on Monday, May the 12th, was by eight members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, and it should have been announced that it was a Guild peal. The ringer of the 8th in the peal of Caters rung at Worcester, on Whit Monday, was "Reuben Hall," not "John Hall," as announced.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF PEALS OF STEDMAN TRIPLES.

MULTIBOB PEALS.

BY A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

Following the lines laid down in the introductory paper I will now proceed with an explanation of the construction of peals that come under Class A which I have defined to be: Multibob peals, comprising compositions containing nine or more calls in each course. Mr. J. W. Snowdon published in these columns in the years 1884-5 a most valuable collection of peals illustrative of the advance of composition in the method from the earliest times. This collection contains specimens of every class of peal obtained previous to the productions of Mr. Bulwer, Mr. Parker, Mr. Washbrook and myself, and although Mr. Bulwer and I have examined others of the old peals, we have not come across any varying in such important particulars as to make it necessary to refer to them. Mr. Snowdon's list will, therefore, be taken as the basis upon which the various classes will be examined. In it there are three peals of the multibob class, namely, Edwards' and Cooper's on page 459, and Tebbs' on page 471, of vol. III. (December 27, 1884, and January 3, 1885). Before, however, I attempt to analyse these compositions individually it will be desirable to state broadly the lines upon which they are founded. The reason for the adoption of the multibob plan in these earlier peals is not far to seek. As a preliminary to entering upon composition in any Triple method it is necessary to tabulate the whole of the courses which a peal contains in such form as that they shall be true with one another. In the Grandsire method the 360 leads may be divided into 72 independent plain courses (technically termed P blocks), or into 120 bob courses consisting of continuous bob leads (termed B blocks). In the first case the P blocks may be united by means of bobs, in the second case the B blocks may be united by means of plain leads. It is evident, however, that the greater length of the P block, together with the fact that its tabulation is initially free from bobs, would at once decide the composer to prefer it. But we shall find that, whereas in other Triple methods there is no difficulty in forming a table containing the whole of the P blocks true with one another, in Stedman this is impossible. We are met at the outset by the greatest of all obstacles: The 840 sixes are not divisible into 60 true P blocks. Mr. W. H. Thompson's able proof of the truth of this statement will be given in due course; for the present let the assertion suffice.

Now although it is unlikely that the early composers had fathomed the full extent of the difficulty, it is abundantly clear that they did not see their way to surmount it, and in consequence were forced to abandon the idea of composing from P blocks, owing to their overwhelming liability to repeat with one another, and to take up B blocks instead. They thus had the manifest advantage of dealing with courses in each of which the same pair of bells were behind throughout, and between which, therefore, repetition was easily avoided. It will be necessary to examine more closely the composition of these B blocks.

There are 42 pairs of bells that can come together behind, for each of the 7 bells can come behind with each of the remaining 6. This calculation includes the reverse position of any pair, as 6, 7 and 7, 6; and it should be noted that no B block with 6, 7 behind can repeat with another with 7, 6 behind so long as no single is used. If then there are 42 pairs to come behind it is evident that, as there are 84 B blocks, each pair must be behind in two blocks. That this is so is further apparent from the following:

with say 6, 7 behind, there will be 60 even (in-course) rows which can be worked by the remaining 5 bells; but as in the 10 sixes which constitute a B block only 30 even rows occur, clearly two B blocks are required to exhaust the extent behind of each pair. The following are the two B blocks with 6, 7 behind:—

2 3 1 4 5 6 7		3 2 1 5 4 6 7
3 4 2 5 1	—	2 5 3 4 1	—
3 4 5 1 2	—	2 5 4 1 3	—
4 1 3 2 5	—	5 1 2 3 4	—
4 1 2 5 3	—	5 1 3 4 2	—
1 5 4 3 2	—	1 4 5 2 3	—
1 5 3 2 4	—	1 4 2 3 5	—
5 2 1 4 3	—	4 3 1 5 2	—
5 2 4 3 1	—	4 3 5 2 1	—
2 3 5 1 4	—	3 2 4 1 5	—
2 3 1 4 5 6 7	—	3 2 1 5 4 6 7	—

(See note at the end of this paper).

In regard to these two B blocks it may be mentioned that no other B block than that produced from 3215467 will give the whole of the 6, 7s that are absent from the 2314567 B block, and therefore any B block other than 3215467 will repeat with B block 2314567. It has been stated in some ringing works that, if 6, 7 be called behind in this method with continuous bobs, the bells will come round unless they are out of course. The absurdity of this idea is apparent when we consider that, if the bells are in the order of the 3215467 B block, no amount of continuous bobs can produce rounds, seeing that rounds does not exist as a row in that block at all.

The early composers having tabulated the 84 B blocks in a true form, a definite foundation was laid upon which to proceed in the construction of a peal. The omission of a bob in any B block would at once change the pair of bells behind and thus enter a fresh B block. The substitution of a single for a bob would also enter a fresh B block, for it has been already shewn that a B block with 6, 7 behind is totally separate from one with 7, 6 behind. A single in a 6, 7 B block would cause a 7, 6 B block to be rung backwards with the handstrokes coming at back and vice versa. Thus by the use of omits and singles or specially manufactured calls the 84 B blocks were connected to one another, the composer keeping in view throughout the simplification afforded by exhausting as far as possible each B block before shunting from it into another, that is, avoiding all unnecessary omits.

I must now define the distinction between "regular" and "irregular" sixes, a point requiring particular attention.

Having taken into consideration a specific set of either P blocks or B blocks, a "regular" six-end is one that occurs in such P or B blocks, while the remaining two even (in course) rows of any six would be denominated "irregular" as six-ends. For instance, in the first six of the plain course, 2314567 is the regular six-end; 1234567 and 3124567 would, if either of them were brought up as six-ends, be termed "irregular" six-ends. It is evident that to proceed from any irregular six-end is to go astray from the specific P or B blocks which we have elected to use. On the other hand isolated irregular sixes—that is, sixes having an irregular six-end—are a necessity in every peal. They are usually introduced in one of two ways; if the foundation of the peal is upon B blocks, then by two consecutive plain sixes of which the first brings up the irregular six and the second leads back into a regular six of some other B block; if the foundation is upon P blocks, then by two consecutive bobs of which the first brings up the irregular six and the second leads back into a regular six of some other P block. A single may also be used to effect a shunt. It is most important to grasp the meaning of the distinction between regular and irregular sixes, and the fact that the 840 six-ends are not unalterable rows as are the lead-ends of such a method as Grandsire. The broad principle of composition in Stedman Triples may be defined to be the taking of 840 specifically related six-ends, either in P blocks or B blocks, and the working in of as many as possible of these, such remainder as will not come up in their regular form being sandwiched as irregular sixes between regular ones.

I will now bring the outline of the procedure of the early composers into connection with individual peals. Let us first examine Tebbs' peal which by reason of the whole composition being even (in course), is the simplest of the three already referred to. The 60 course-ends of this peal are regular six-ends from 60 of the 84 B blocks. These 60 B blocks contain the extent in 6, 7 of all the pairs that can be had by the use of the six bells 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7; that is, all the B blocks possible without the use of the treble. The remaining 24 B blocks will thus be those in which the treble is in 6, 7 with the six other bells in turn, two B blocks in sixths and two in sevenths with each of them. It will not be necessary to present more than one course of this peal, as every course in it is called alike 'so far as bobs are concerned; the deviations required to unite the sets of three courses in which the peal runs being obtained by the use of 22 Holt's singles. We are in no way concerned to enquire into the arrangement of such special calls but only into the manner in which the 84 B blocks are worked in; for these papers are written with the object of explaining the principles of the various modes of composition, and not with the view of analysing the illegitimate calls formerly made use of.

The following is the first course of Tebbs' peal, omitting for the sake of simplicity the Holt's single:—

2	3 4 2 6 1 7 5
3	3 4 6 7 2 5 1
4	4 7 3 2 6 5 1	—
5	4 7 2 5 3 1 6
6	7 5 4 3 2 1 6	—
7	7 5 3 1 4 6 2	—
8	5 1 7 4 3 6 2	—
9	5 1 4 3 7 6 2	—
10	1 3 5 7 4 6 2	—
11	1 3 7 4 5 6 2	—
12	3 4 1 5 7 6 2	—
13	3 4 5 7 1 6 2	—
14	4 7 3 1 5 6 2	—
1	4 7 1 5 3 6 2	—
2	7 5 4 6 1 2 3
3	7 5 6 2 4 3 1

We must first notice that sixes 7 to the following 1, inclusive, are nine consecutive members of one of the 60 B blocks the last rows of which form the course-ends of the peal. The second six-end of every course is shunted, by an omit, from the previous B block into a new one. This six-end is the tenth and complementary six-end of one of the other 59 B blocks. That is to say, if we prick from the seventh six of each of the 60 courses to the second six of the following course inclusive, we shall have complete the whole of the 60 B blocks in which the treble does not appear in 6, 7. These isolated second sixes are, however, irregular; for the course-end 5417623, of which B block 7546123 is the complementary six-end, if bobbed so as to complete its last six, will produce as the regular six-end 4756123 and not 7546123. A shunt is now necessary because 7546123 is the complementary six-end of the B block to which it belongs, the remaining nine being already bespoken for the nine last sixes of the course ending 5417623. For the benefit of those to whom the term is not familiar, I may say that the word "complementary" or "complement" is used to designate any omitted part which is requisite to complete a whole.

Having now shewn how the 60 B blocks in which the treble is away from 6-7 are completely absorbed, it remains to investigate the treatment of the other 24 B blocks. Parts of these are brought in at the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth sixes of each course. As the treble is the observation bell in this peal and does the same work in each course it will be seen, on inspecting the course given, that there will come in each course two sixes with the treble in seventh's place and two with this bell in sixth's place. There are 12 B blocks with the treble in each of these places, therefore, as there are 10 sixes in every B block, the 60 courses will just absorb the 24 remaining B blocks. The fifth and sixth sixes of each course are regular pairs from the 12 B blocks with the treble in sixth's place. The third and fourth sixes are however most peculiarly arranged. They can neither of them be properly termed "regular." The third sixes are distinctly irregular, and, if the fourth sixes are pricked therefrom as belonging to them, there are no set of B blocks to be found that will produce them in regular form. If however we take the fourth six-ends, which are slow, and prick from them as if they were quick, we shall get the set of 12 B blocks in such form that every fourth (slow) six of the peal appears as a regular quick six in a B block. We have in these third and fourth sixes an excellent example of the way in which the six-ends can be twisted about in an apparently unmethodical manner, and yet with a defined basis of procedure discernible on careful introspection.

I think I have now said enough to give the key to the construction of this peal, nor will it be necessary to spend any great amount of time on the remaining two compositions of this class, Edwards' and Cooper's. Edwards' peal is a fairly regular production from which no doubt Tebbs took his ideas. Nine of the ten sixes of a B block are introduced between the first and ninth sixes, inclusive, of each course, and in two out of every five courses the B block is completed by a bob at the tenth six; in the remaining three courses the complementary tenth six of the B block is brought up by a single at 10. The observation bell, the 6th, does precisely the same work in each course as the treble in Tebbs' peal; and the other 24 B blocks, 12 with the 6th in seventh's place and 12 with this bell in sixth's place, are brought up much as in that composition, with the exception that a single is used instead of a plain when the 6th is behind. It is also worthy of notice that the course-ends do not form part of the 60 primary B blocks but belong to the 12 in which the 6th is at home.

Cooper's peal differs considerably from the two other compositions in that it has the 7th as an undisturbed observation bell throughout, whereas in Tebbs and Edwards' the observation bell makes a bob in each course, thus cutting out two sixes of its work, which are restored by two bobs when this bell is behind. It had been the intention of Mr. Bulwer to analyse Cooper's peal; owing, however, to the number of singles it was difficult to check any misprints that might exist in the production as it appeared in "THE BELL NEWS." With a view of correcting any mistakes, we borrowed from the late Mr. Henry Johnson the original MS. of the peal. But the six or eight half-sheets of note paper on which the composition had been written proved to be so worn and faded as to make a reliable comparison almost impossible, especially as the pricking was by six-ends only without any bob or single marks. Mr. Bulwer, after taking some pains to master the motif of the peal, came to the conclusion that the composer had elaborated a course-end plan and forced the calling into agreement with it, for so casually are the singles distributed that their position can only be accounted for by the "hand-to-mouth" theory. The composition, however, is most clearly founded upon a tabulated set of B blocks, with perpetual and unmethodical shunts from one to another.

In concluding the investigation of multibob peals, I may remark that composers taking up the analysis of peals of Stedman Triples, of whatever class, will find it well worth their while to transpose to the 7th any composition which they may wish to examine that has not already this bell as the observation, before commencing operations, thus obtaining a common basis upon which accurate comparison may be readily followed up.

NOTE:—In order to avoid any misapprehension with regard to the division of the 840 sixes into 84 B blocks it may be well to point out that the only B blocks of which the pricking is absolutely fixed are the two already given in full which have 6-7 behind. That these are so fixed is simply due to the fact that it is the custom to take 2314567 as the six-end of a quick six. Any pair of the remaining 41 pairs of B blocks may be tabulated in any one of six forms that the composer pleases. Each pair of B blocks with the same pair of bells behind in the same order requires, as has already been shewn, that its two blocks shall have, in order to be true, a fixed relation to one another; but every one of the 42 pairs is entirely independent in its relation to any other pair so far as truth is concerned. Therefore the 42 pairs of B blocks may be so pricked as to have such relation to one another as may best suit the composer.

Supposing we were not tied to 2314567 as a quick six-end, the pair of B blocks with 6-7 behind might be pricked in any one of the six following ways. These will serve to illustrate the treatment that may be adopted in regard to the other 41 pairs.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-------------------|
| 1. 2 3 1 4 5 6 7, 3 2 1 5 4 6 7 | } Quick six-ends. |
| 2. or 1 2 3 4 5 6 7, 2 1 3 5 4 6 7 | |
| 3. or 3 1 2 5 4 6 7, 1 3 2 5 4 6 7 | |
| 4. or 2 3 1 4 5 6 7, 2 1 3 5 4 6 7 | |
| 6. or 3 1 2 4 5 6 7, 3 2 1 5 4 6 7 | |

If from these six pairs of six-ends the B blocks are pricked in full, each pair will be found to give a different result. Care must be taken in the case of the last three pairs, which are slow six-ends, to start by pricking a quick six-end. It should be noticed that to obtain the second B block from the first of a pair the transposing scale is, in the case of a quick six-end, 21354, which gives a quick six-end in the other block; in the case of a slow six-end, 13254, which gives a slow six-end in the other block. A curious relationship may be noticed between the two blocks forming any pair, namely, that the pairs of bells in 4-5 reading downwards in the one follow in inverted order reading upwards in the other. See the pair of B blocks given in full above.

INSTRUCTION.

Although the experts warn us against royal roads to ringing, I am not altogether satisfied with their advice. It seems to me that what is so easy to do should not be so hard to learn, and that the rope-sight method of instruction puts too much upon beginners, unless they are clever above the average. And hence come delays and disappointments, unless the instructor gives more time to his pupils than can usually be afforded in country places. A dozen lessons or even two dozen lessons will not suffice unless there is plenty of practice besides, and therefore we want an automatic system which an instructor, visiting once a fortnight or once a month, may leave to the foreman ringer to work in his absence. The system, which I have in view, is, I suppose, substantially the same as that with which Jasper Snowdon came in contact, when he was a boy, ten years before he took up ringing in earnest. I quote from page three of the Memoir in his "Grandsire." "He was shown how to write out Oxford and how to learn a lead off by heart . . . In this way he committed to memory and rang with ease the whole plain course; but this done he was no wiser, so his teachers with great solemnity informed him that if he could not see it then, he never would. He therefore thought it best to abandon his attempt to become a change-ringer." When Snowdon returned to the belfry at Ilkley, the old ringers had disappeared, and their art had perished with them. Otherwise he might have had something to say besides condemnation of a system which they, at any rate, thought so simple as to require no explanation. Whatever may have been his reasons for not pursuing the subject further, I may observe that old ringers will not always take the trouble to teach young aspirants, and that these must have known very well that ringing the plain course by rote would not help a young ringer to deal with bobs and singles by rule. There are, in fact, two ways of learning to ring, one is, to study the principle and ring by rule from the first. The other, and easier way to my mind, is to begin by committing the changes to memory and to learn the working of the bells in practice. I know it is said that if young ringers learn their work by heart they will never get any further, and the objection is so far true that, if they have no instruction, they are likely to stop there. In the same way many who begin with the rope-sight method never succeed at all. But in neither case does the fault lie with the system. As a matter of fact we know that change-ringing may be learnt in various ways, and that those who use the grammars of ringing often hammer away at one six-score until they blunder into a proper knowledge of the art.

During the last three months I have taken in hand and watched the education of some young ringers with results which amply justify the view for which I contend. I have also tried upon them an experiment which may perhaps interest the readers of "THE BELL NEWS," as it lies, I believe, rather off the beaten track. I will describe how we proceeded from the beginning. We have six bells, and we had to teach four young men to ring Grandsire Doubles on the inside bells. When they began with me they could ring rounds on the tower bells, and the Plain Course on the handbells. They were to meet twice a week for practice, an hour each time, once with the ropes and once with the handbells, or with pencil and paper. At first they had very little idea of handling the ropes, and it was not until the fourth week that they could ring the Plain Hunt round and round. Afterwards they got on more rapidly. In three more lessons they accomplished the Plain Course, half Grandsire, and the six-score. They worked all this time from slips of paper shewing the order of the bells which they followed, and I pointed out to them that there was not much to learn by heart if they observed the way in which the order was constantly repeating itself. So far there were no difficulties, and, though they did not pay so much attention to the course of their bells as they should have done, their striking was not bad. Leaving them now to improve themselves by practice on the ropes, I put away the handbells and tried to teach them that the duty of a bell, which they had been learning by heart, depends upon a principle. In methods in which the treble hunts, at each treble-lead one or two bells go from the bottom to the top of the roster, and if you bear this in mind and also notice when you pass the treble, you may pilot a bell through a peal on paper as easily as you would ring it in the tower at rope-sight. A little practice is required before you can do this readily and without mistakes, but the thing is simple in itself, and I should think that a young conductor might find it very useful to rehearse touches in Bob Minor or Triples in this way. To return to my pupils. Although they could prick changes their ideas about dodging, place-making, etc., were very unsound. They did not know these things in the ready and accurate way that old ringers knew them, and so my lectures were taken up chiefly with teaching what every ringer has to learn. After four lessons, two could ring Grandsire Doubles on paper according to my system, another was good for the observation-bell only, and the fourth was nowhere, and thought he could see it better on the ropes. I thought I had gone on long enough on this tack, so next lesson I resumed the handbells, and was glad to find that they now made no difficulty about easy touches with bobs and singles. When we met for practice on the tower bells they were able to do the same thing; and they now require only a little polish—perhaps I should say a good deal of polish—to put them on a level with their predecessors.

I would add a few words with respect to the experiment of teaching to ring by observing the order in which the bells course. It is only carrying a step further Snowdon's advice as to the importance of "weeding out" the bells you have passed, but on the whole it seems to be too scholastic an exercise for those who are not used to work of this kind. If my next pupils were school boys in the seventh standard I would certainly teach them this system. They would learn it in two or three lessons, and it would come in useful for many purposes. But in this case I think that we might have got over the same ground more rapidly with the handbells in the ordinary way. It is never worth while for a teacher to put beginners at a stiff fence, and that is mainly the reason why I prefer giving a set peal, and if necessary another set peal, to training the young idea according to the admirable instructions of Snowdon, Troyte, and Wigram.

C. PEARSON.

CHEADLE, STAFFORDSHIRE.

On Wednesday evening, June 4th, the bells of St. Giles Catholic church, which have just been rehung by Mr. W. Greenleaf (Messrs. Blackburn and Greenleaf, of Salisbury), were re-opened by the company of ringers attached to the church. The bells, a splendid peal of six by Mears and Stainbank, London, were sadly in need of repair, having been hung by a local joiner in 1846, since which time they had not in any way been repaired. Owing to the peculiar position of the bells (all not being on the same level), it has added greatly to the difficulty of accomplishing the work. During the evening the ringers rang some call-changes, etc. The "go" of the bells leaves nothing to be desired, and reflects great credit on the above-named firm of bell-hangers.

FORMATION OF A DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION FOR SOMERSET.

On Saturday, 31st May, a meeting promoted by the Bath and Keynsham United Deaneries Association was held at Highbridge, to consider a suggestion that an effort be made to extend the Association beyond the limits of the Rural Deanery to that of a diocesan organisation similar to that which exists in other dioceses. The meeting was convened by circular signed by the Rev. Prebendary E. Eardley-Wilmot, rector of Walcot, the Rev. W. Stokes Shaw, and Mr. Rupert Lewis, of Bath, the president, clerical secretary and lay secretary respectively of the Bath Association, and was intended to be held in the reading-room of the Young Men's Friendly Society, but for want of increased accommodation an adjournment was made to the neighbouring school-room. Those in attendance included the Rev. Preb. E. Eardley-Wilmot, the Revs. W. Stokes Shaw (Twerton-on-Avon), W. Westmacott and C. Henry Wilton (Highbridge), J. Alexander Jacob (St. Saviour's, Bath), Charles De Salis (Milverton), Henry P. Denison (East Brent), William H. Askwith (Taunton), J. U. Todd, (Minehead), H. W. Tomkins (Old Cleeve), J. F. C. Gardner (Radstock), Thomas C. Bush (Queen Camel) and A. Coope (Wells), and the following representatives of the laity:—Messrs. Rupert Lewis (Bath), T. Doble and T. Radford (Taunton), J. Rowe and W. G. Sellick (Hunts-pill), James Coram and F. Iley (Highbridge), Wm. Vincent (Queen Camel) F. G. Beesley, (Bath), F. Willis (Norton Fitz-warren) Arthur E. Mills (Wells), and others.

The Rev. E. W. Eardley-Wilmot (who was voted to the chair on the proposition of the Rev. W. Westmacott) said they were very much obliged to them for coming together in response to their invitation, and perhaps the circular they ventured to send out two or three months ago had put them in possession of the objects they had in view. For the last eight years there had been an Association in their deanery, and a wish had been expressed that it should be followed up in different parts of the diocese. They had thought it might be advantageous and helpful to the cause of ringing all over the diocese if they had a Diocesan Association. There were at the present moment nine such Associations, and about nineteen county Associations, but there was nothing at all of the kind in Somerset, except the one deanery Association at Bath. They had it on each side of them—Salisbury and Devonshire, but not in their own county. It would be their business to-day, if it was approved of, to set the thing that day upon a diocesan footing, and for that purpose it would be well to resolve, first of all, that a Diocesan Association be established. Then he would submit to them a draft of rules, so that they might be able to discuss and adopt or amend them, and he presumed they would also like to appoint certain officers. Then they might also like to arrange for an opening festival. He might say that he had been in communication with the Bishop, who regretted not being able to attend there that day, and wished them every success. The Bishop also intimated that he should be pleased to accept the office of president. The Dean of Wells had also written expressing approval of the object and his willingness to help them, but he was unable by illness to come amongst them. He had received a similar letter from the Archdeacon of Bath, and from several clergymen in various parts of the diocese. He should now like to hear an expression of opinion regarding the proposal, and how far it was likely to be carried out.

Mr. Doble (Taunton) said most of the ringers in that part of the county were much interested in this matter, and of opinion that it would be a very good thing to start a Diocesan Association as soon as possible, so as to place them on the same footing in this respect as in other dioceses.

The Rev. W. Herningham (Old Cleeve) formally proposed that a Diocesan Change-Ringing Association be formed, to be called "The Bath and Wells Diocesan Association of Change-Ringers," and this was seconded and unanimously agreed to.

The Chairman, in reply to an enquiry as to the more precise objects of the Association, remarked that in connection with the Bath Deanery Association the main purposes were set forth as follows: 1.—To recognise the true position of ringers as church-workers. 2.—To cultivate the art of change-ringing, and to promote belfry reform. 3.—To promote order and good feeling among the ringers. He further explained that one of the chief objects of the Association being the greater reverence for God's House and worship, it was provided that any member misconducting himself might be dismissed and his certificate withdrawn at the discretion of the committee, and it aimed at carrying into practice the following principles, namely, that the belfry was part of the Church and was consecrated to the service of Almighty God; that the bells were instruments of sacred music, and that, therefore, the office of a ringer was a holy office, and should ever be performed in a reverent manner.

The Rev. C. De Salis (Milverton) enquired how the promotion of change-ringing was encouraged.

The Chairman replied that it was encouraged by permission from the affiliated belfries to engage the services of an instructor, and by holding either monthly or quarterly meetings in the different centres, and annual festivals.

The Rev. C. De Salis asked whether that did not tend to foster a spirit of rivalry.

The Chairman: A certain amount of emulation, certainly.

Mr. Lewis remarked that at Bath there were no change-ringers at all when the Deanery Association was formed there, but now change-ringing was the rule there.

The Chairman said the experience was just the same in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol.

The Rev. J. A. Jacob (Bath), said he should also like to bear his testimony to the great value the Association had been in his deanery, and he was glad that change-ringing was likely to be encouraged and extended throughout the diocese.

The Chairman then invited the consideration of the meeting to a draft of rules prepared by the Secretary, and having read and submitted these to the meeting one by one, they were adopted with some slight modifications.

It was resolved that the association should consist of honorary and performing members; that any person not subscribing less than five shillings annually should be an honorary member, and that each performing member, resident in the diocese, should contribute annually the sum of one shilling to the funds of the Association.

A proposition was made that no one should be admitted as a performing member until he had satisfied the committee of his capability of taking the treble or tenor of a ring of bells in 120 changes.

Mr. Beesley (Bath), proposed as an amendment, and Mr. Doble (Taunton) seconded, that the qualification of a performing member be his capability of taking the treble only instead of treble or tenor; but on a division eight only voted for the amendment, and nine for the original proposition, the latter being therefore adopted.

In addition to the rules embodied in the draft prepared by the secretary, the following was proposed and agreed to:—"No band of ringers shall be admitted to the association until their belfry has been inspected by a person or persons appointed for the purpose by a committee, and reported to be in a satisfactory condition, including orderly and reverent behaviour on the part of the ringers."

Mr. Beesley said he should not like to see any band of ringers affiliated with the association either to take part in any prize competition, or even challenge one another.

Mr. Doble remarked that one thing they wanted to cultivate was belfry reformation, and he did not think that prize-ringing tended to raise either the position of the belfry or the ringers. He proposed the adoption of a similar rule as was in force in connection with the Devonshire Guild as follows:—"That no member shall take part in any ringing match for prizes, and that no such match be allowed in any tower which is affiliated with the Association."

The proposition having been seconded,

The Rev. C. De Salis said he should like to know what was the objection to prize-ringing, as he was rather interested in that question.

Mr. Beesley observed that sometimes after a prize-ringing match the competitors had a drunken spree.

The Chairman remarked that the question could be best answered probably by the ringers themselves, but one thing that readily suggested itself was that it was turning of instruments of sacred worship into articles of merchandise.

The Rev. C. De Salis said he regarded such competitions in the same light as choral festivals. On Saturday, May 31st, he had a prize-ringing match in his parish (Milverton), and 120 men came there. Fifteen sets entered, and the whole affair passed off very satisfactorily. As far as he knew everything was very orderly in the belfry, and he saw no evil results whatever. He thought such competitions encouraged good ringing in towers generally.

A Voice: What kind of ringing?

The Rev. C. De Salis: Round ringing. We invited change-ringing, but only one set entered for it.

Mr. Doble observed that at Milverton the best prize (one of £4) was offered for the best round ringing, and he contended there was no art attached to that. He thought the money expended in connection with these prize-ringing competitions could often be better spent on the bells and belfries.

The Rev. C. De Salis: We should have offered a bigger prize for change-ringing, but knew there were very few change-ringers in our neighbourhood.

The Rev. J. Todd (Minehead) said he thought there was very little prize-ringing in this diocese. He had been there for the last sixteen years, and had only heard of two such matches during that time. In the diocese of Exeter they prevailed at one time, but Mr. Troyte saw the evil of it, and it was put a stop to.

Mr. H. W. Tomkins said he was present at Milverton last week, but he had never heard of a prize-ringing match in that diocese before. He had heard it hinted, however, that there was to be another at Bradford before the year was out.

Mr. Doble's motion having been agreed to,

The Chairman suggested that the Executive Committee of the Bath and Keynsham Deaneries Association may undertake certain preliminary work in connection with the formation of the Diocesan Association, as they could not well appoint officers, etc., until they knew who were going to join.

On the motion of the Rev. W. Stokes Shaw, it was unanimously resolved that Mr. Rupert Lewis be appointed secretary and treasurer, Mr. Shaw remarking that the success of the Bath and Keynsham Association was due almost entirely to Mr. Lewis's untiring efforts.

After some discussion, it was also resolved that the opening festival of the association should take place at Taunton on Saturday, July 5th.

Some of the members present afterwards adjourned to the belfry of the church, and rang the first 6-score by the new association, it also being the first on the bells. T. Doble (conductor), 1; G. Temple, 2; J. S. Flower, 3; J. Fussell, 4; T. Radford, 5. They afterwards journeyed to Burnham and rang a 6-score of Grandsire Doubles. J. S. Flower (conductor), 1; W. Simmonds, 2; J. Fussell, 3; T. Radford, 4; F. G. Beesley, 5; T. Doble, 6. And three 6-scores of Grandsire Doubles. J. S. Flower, 1; W. Simmonds, 2; G. Temple, 3; T. Radford, 4; T. Doble (conductor), 5; F. G. Beesley, 6.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Keep cool."

Scientific change-ringing must—if that "show" at Milverton on the 24th ult. be anything to go by—be at a fearful discount in Somerset. Out of "a large gathering of ringers from far and near (even Cornwall being represented)" we are told that only one band could be got to compete for the best 6-score of Grandsire Doubles, but fifteen bands entered for the "rising and lowering in peal and ringing in rounds." If anything were wanting to disgust intelligent men and good scientific ringers with church bell competitions, one or two exhibitions like this one at Milverton will be ample for the purpose. Apart from the religious aspect of this question (in which, supporters of these prize-rings have not "a leg to stand upon") but looking at it just for the present simply from a scientific point of view, does it not tend to make one both disheartened and disgusted to think that in this year of grace, 1890, there can be found a parish in England where ten pounds can be obtained to give in prizes for such a puerile performance as pulling the bells up, ringing a few rounds, and then lowering them again? And more than this, even, that two clergymen can be found supporting this miserable business, and presiding afterwards at the public-house dinner tables?

But what is to be thought of those who could listen to this stuff from eleven till four o'clock—five hours of raising, falling, and round-ringing? Besides 120 "ringers" wasting a whole precious day, and the spending of thirty or forty pounds, which could have been put to so much better use. Let us pass on.

* * * * *

Bro. A. Garrott writes to the Odd Fellows' Magazine of this month, and after referring to the 5040 rung by eight members of a St. Albans lodge a short time ago, asks, "Could it be possible for me to meet with five P.P.G.M.s of the Manchester Unity within an easy distance of London to ring on a light six a 5040 in seven Treble Bob methods, viz.: Superlative and Cambridge Surprise, Violet, Duke of York, Oxford, and Kent? If so, I should like to arrange for the same at some future date." Unfortunately for myself, not having as yet held the high position of Prov. G.M. in my own district, I could not help him by joining his proposed band, but I wish him success in his effort to get the peal nevertheless, and it is with this object that I reproduce his letter. Mr. Garrott's address, I would add, is "1, Model Cottages, Denmark Road, Wimbledon, Surrey;" so my brother Oddfellows, who are fortunately able to tack those four initials to your name, and possess a laudable ambition to take part in a "notable," write to him at once and make up his band.

* * * * *

Our Editor comments strongly on the subject of ringers' non-attendance at church—and rightly too. A friend, writing to me on the subject, while expressing his general concurrence with my remarks of last Saturday, points out that because parsons do not visit the belfries as they ought, this of itself is no excuse for ringers who do know, or ought to know, their duty in this respect, without waiting for the parson or anyone else to keep reminding them of it, or asking them a sort of personal favour to come into church. Quite right, my friend; as you will probably remember, I took particular pains to prevent myself from being misunderstood on that score when I ventured to place before our clergy what might in common fairness be considered their duty in the matter. Our Editor in his leader gets at the core of the whole thing when he points to the "dangerous rock ahead" to the cause of change-ringing, viz., the tendency of too many ringers to regard only the secular side of ringing, and to repudiate any obligation either to the Church which gives them the means of exercising this art, or to the clergy whose support and co-operation they profess to desire. Here is the crucial point. If ringers generally can only be thoroughly imbued with the rightful principle in connection with their work, that they are not practitioners and exponents of a pleasurable though scientific pastime, but that their work has a peculiarly religious significance, their own sense of consistency and duty will do more than anything else to clear away this "dangerous rock ahead." I have faith in my brethren, and thus with confidence wish God speed to the day when this reproach shall no longer be possible to be uttered against us.

* * * * *

Before I close, just a word with some of our lady friends. I should be ungallant indeed if I did not mention the ringing at Saffron Walden on last Queen's birthday. Even if this performance did consist only of the modest rounds and call-changes, it is, doubtless the first of its kind, and may be the precursor of others as noteworthy as this one is unique.

SATURDAY, JUNE 14, 1890.

"NEAR upon half a century of apathy has cast around Stedman Triples a shroud of impenetrable mystery almost romantic as its completeness." So says Mr. HEYWOOD, and this statement is one more evidence of that happy knack which he possesses in such a large degree of putting a great amount of matter-of-fact into a short sentence. Much as has been needed, and has been also accomplished, in the way of elucidating other methods, in hardly one of them has there existed such a "shroud of impenetrable mystery" as has been the case with regard to Stedman Triples. It is a fortunate occurrence for the Exercise, then, that the President of the Midland Counties' Association has at length found time to set about cracking this remaining and hitherto uncracked nut among the campanological problems of the present generation. That in conjunction with other eminent men he will prove successful is a foregone conclusion—so much the better for the Exercise at large.

HORSHAM PARISH CHURCH, SUSSEX.

The fine peal of eight bells at the above church have recently been rehung with all new fittings throughout, the frame strengthened, and some of the bells quarter-turned.

The order was entrusted to Messrs. Gillett and Johnston of Croydon, who have carried out the entire work in a most satisfactory manner. At a recent trial the working was pronounced to be all that could be desired.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

Youngman, who, after a long and painful illness, died on the 26th ult., at the early age of thirty-one years, at his father's residence, Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk. Although the deceased was only appointed to the living in December 1888, and had charge of the parish but a few months previous to his marriage, shortly after returning from his honeymoon, he took cold, which brought on his painful and fatal sickness. During his short labours in the parish, he had won the hearts of all his parishioners, and especially the ringers, as he would frequently visit the tower on practice-nights, and occasionally on Sundays previous to the service, and was becoming an apt learner. The above ringers deeply sympathise with his widow and parents in the loss they have sustained.

RIVER AND SEA TRIPS.—Those of our readers who are fond of travelling by water should take advantage of the fine weather which we are now enjoying, and avail themselves of the facilities which are offered to the public by the Victoria Steamboat Company, of which Mr. Edgar Shand is the able and popular manager. There are daily excursions from London Bridge to Kew, Hampton Court, Richmond, and Kingston, at very moderate fares; while the down-river arrangements include trips to Rosherville, Gravesend, Southend and Sheerness, the favourite Glen Rosa extending her journey by a run round the Mouse, or Girdler Lightship. There is also a new steamer, named the Clacton Belle (stated to be the finest steamboat ever on the Thames), which leaves Old Swan Pier every morning at 9.30 for Clacton-on-Sea. Full particulars may be obtained at any of the piers.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

The Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association of Change Ringers held a gathering at Cirencester, which town they have not visited for some ten years past, on Whit-Monday, and the meeting proved highly successful and enjoyable. The members and friends attended divine service at the parish church at eleven o'clock. After the singing of the Litany, which was intoned by the Rev. E. H. Townsend, the vicar, the Ven. Archdeacon Hayward, who is a vice-president of the Association, delivered an earnest address on the subject of natural gifts, which, he said, in every case must be hallowed and sanctified by the Holy Spirit, and used as to the Lord and not as unto man. He saw by their rules that in the matters of detail connected with the belfry they were actuated by this thought, consciously or unconsciously. First of all they were told in the very forefront of their report that the belfry was part of the church, and was consecrated to the service of Almighty God. He went on to express the wish that every ringer was a communicant, and fit to be a communicant; and concluded by trusting that God might bless them all that day and make the gifts of Whit-Sunday to be more real and abiding among them.

The ringers then ascended the belfry, where the Archdeacon gave them a hearty welcome, and he having read the short office for belfry use, the whole peal of twelve bells was soon enlivening the town.

At one o'clock an excellent dinner was partaken of at the Fleece Hotel, provided by Mr. and Mrs. Save, when the Archdeacon presided, and was supported by the Rev. H. A. Cockey, Oldland Vicarage, Bristol (Master of the Association); Rev. Pitt Eykyn, Magor Vicarage, Newport Mon. (Hon. Secretary); Rev. R. P. Davies (Hatherop), Rev. H. T. Cropper (Sapperton), Revs. S. Cooper, E. H. Townsend, and R. C. S. Jones (Cirencester), and Mr. C. E. D. Boutflower (Bristol). The vice-chair was occupied by Mr. F. Nicholson (Cheltenham), local secretary. The following towers were represented: Gloucester and St. Michael's Juniors, Gloucester; All Saints, Bisley; Christ Church, Chalford; St. James, Cranham; St. Lawrence, Stroud; St. Mark's, Cheltenham; St. John Baptist and Holy Trinity, Cirencester; Coln St. Aldwyns; St. Nicholas, Hatherop; Bristol; St. Ann, Oldland; &c. On the cloth being removed,

The chairman proposed the toast of "Church and Queen," which was heartily honored, and then proposed the toast of "Success to the Association," remarking that he felt totally unfit to do justice to it. He had seen very little of the Association as yet, and they might say perhaps that that was his fault; but he thought he might plead in justification that it was rather his misfortune than his fault. When he was educated he never was taught the value of the bell-ringing art. He regretted it deeply, because he thought at a belfry one might have lost many good friends, and also the opportunity of being of some good and some influence during the time he had been in holy orders; but if repentance showed itself in making amends, they might take it for granted that in the future he would try and do more for that Association and for bell-ringing generally than ever he had done in the past. What he should like to see was a good strong company of ringers at Cirencester belonging to that Association, so that next year they should be able to claim one whole page of the report. Nothing short of that would satisfy him, and if others thought that Cirencester then would occupy an undue proportion of the report, all he could say was that they must try and "cap" them and take two pages if they could. He could not conceive that any association was more entitled to their support or to his individual support. The rules exactly corresponded to what had been in his mind for years. They seemed to him calculated to promote reverence and discipline and order, which were the great things they wanted in their belfries. He proposed the toast of "Success to the Association," coupled with the name of their Master, the Rev. H. A. Cockey, whom he took that opportunity of thanking for what he did and for the earnest words he spoke on the occasion of the dedication of the bells at Holy Trinity Church, Watermore. The toast was drunk with much enthusiasm and musical honours.

The Rev. H. Cockey said he was comparatively a stranger amongst them, but though the greater part of his life had been passed in other counties, yet he was proud to say he was a Gloucestershire man by birth. It was a good many years now since he first took to ringing. He began when he was about 13, and he had seen 20 years of it now, and the more he saw the more he was convinced that an association such as that to which they all belonged was doing a great work throughout England. He had seen even in that county within the last ten years men smoking, with their hats on, lounging about, spitting all over the place, making the belfry, which was part of the house of God, more like some low, vulgar pothouse. But wherever they found change ringers, there came a marvellous difference. He did not think they would go into any belfry now in the country where there were real thorough-going change ringers, and find either drinking or smoking going on there, and very few where they would find a man with his hat on—though there were belfries in which he should not like to stay very long without having his hat on. He was glad to say that the effect of that change in the manners of ringers had had a great effect on the clergy, who together with the churchwardens were now manifesting an interest in the belfries and the ringers which was lacking in past years. In conclusion, he urged them to look upon themselves as Church workers, and out of respect to the Church they must try and conduct themselves as honorable members of such a body. They must try and remember to behave themselves in the belfry with the same reverence as they should in any other part of the church, and to set an example to the rest of their parishioners by not only calling them to church, but by taking part in the service. He was very pleased to see such a grand muster there that day. It was one of the largest musters that he had yet had the pleasure of attending, and he hoped the Association might flourish and prosper in the future.

The Rev. Pitt Eykyn, in proposing the health of the Chairman and their thanks to him for their hearty welcome, said with regard to some of the remarks that had fallen from their worthy Master, he should just like to ask if there was any Gloucester man from the cathedral who could tell them something presently. Their first Master, Mr. Drinkwater, who was now gone to his rest, once told them at one of their meetings, with regard to the dreadful state in which some belfries were to be found at the present moment, that the only shelter that the Gloucester Cathedral ringers had was the steeple of St. John the Baptist church—(laughter, and a voice: "They have'n't got that")—and the cold was enough to shave you. (Laughter, and "Quite right.") Since those days there was a new Dean at the Cathedral, and they might hope and trust that something had been done by this time for the comfort of the poor ringers. (Voices: "Nothing at all.") Then he hoped those words might be put into the paper, and that someone would send a copy to the Very Rev. the Dean of Gloucester.

The Archdeacon's health having been drunk, with three cheers, the rev. gentleman replied. He always inquired as to the state of and examined the belfry when he visited the parishes in the Archdeaconry. There was some parishes where there ought to be a good peal of bells, but for want of funds they were not able to put them into proper order, and he suggested that if that Association was able to do something for their poverty-stricken parishes, he thought it would grow in numbers, and very great good would be done in those parishes where things were standing still for want of funds.

The health of the local secretary was heartily honoured, and Mr. Nicholson suitably responded.

The members then resolved themselves into a business meeting, when fifty-six new members were declared duly elected. These included the new Watermore band, with the Rev. W. P. Acworth as an honorary member. The date of the Bristol meeting was left to be fixed by the officers with Mr. Boutflower (local secretary), and the vicar of St. Mary, Redcliffe.

After some further remarks by the Rev. H. A. Cockey with reference to the recent meeting of the Central Council in London, to which he was appointed a delegate, a committee meeting was held, and the general body of ringers left, some to ascend neighbouring towers, some to amuse themselves with handbells, and others to witness the sports in the park. Owing to the attraction of these last, which constitute one of the best athletic meetings in the west of England, no great amount of ringing was gone through. A 720 Kent Treble Bob Minor on the Watermore bells, the first 720 on this fine ring, was brought round in 28 mins., tenor 20 cwt. Also some touches of Grand-sire Triples were rung at the parish church on the back eight.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday, June 7th, this Association held a general meeting at Skipton. From early morning members and friends began to arrive from various parts of the county, who, favoured with beautiful weather, had a most enjoyable outing. The fine ring of eight at the parish church was well made use of, touches of Minor Triples and Major in various methods following one another in quick succession, while many of the visitors took advantage of the opportunity afforded them of rambling through the castle grounds, the woods adjoining, and about the quaint old country town. At four o'clock the official Committee met in the schoolroom, when several new members were elected and other business transacted. An hour later, a most excellent meat tea was placed on the tables of one of the large schoolrooms of which over 200 partook, the large number attending necessitating two "sittings down," among the company present being the rector and other clergy of Skipton, the comfort and requirements of the visitors being very efficiently attended to by numerous ladies of the congregation, including the Sunday School Teachers. This pleasant function over, an adjournment was made to the adjoining room, where the business meeting was held, Mr. W. Snowdon presiding. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the president asked for invitations for the October meeting, with a rather amusing result. It transpired that both Sheffield and Hull branches had previously made known their intentions of inviting the association for this annual meeting, but in that fraternal spirit which has always characterised both branches, each had retired in favour of the other. Mr. Chaffer, who attended as the representative of the Hull branch, explained the circumstance of the case, so far as they were concerned, saying that after they had decided to invite the association, learning that their Sheffield friends were animated with a similar desire, they called a meeting for the previous Thursday, when they decided to postpone their invite in favour of Sheffield. The Hon. Sec. then read a letter from Mr. C. H. Hattersley, on behalf of the Sheffield members, offering an invitation to their town, with the stipulation that Hull should have precedence.

Mr. Chaffer thereupon moved that the selection for the place of the next meeting should be left in the hands of the Committee, which course he thought would enable the Hull and Sheffield branches to confer with each other. After some desultory conversation this motion was agreed to.

Mr. George Bolland moved, and Mr. W. Abbishaw seconded, a vote of thanks to the rector and wardens of Skipton for the use of the bells and school, and their generous provision for the requirements of the visitors. This was carried with acclamation, to which the Rev. T. S. Forsyth replied on behalf of the rector, who had been unable to stay.

Mr. H. W. Needham proposed a vote of thanks to the Skipton branch for their labours in connection with the meeting, and to the ladies who had so kindly and well attended to the tea.

Mr. George Titterton seconded, and it was carried with applause.

Mr. Birtwistle (churchwarden), replying, expressed the great pleasure it had given them in welcoming the Association to Skipton, and wished them every success.

Mr. T. Stead next gave notice of a motion for the October meeting, to the effect that the Committee be instructed to draw up some plan for providing an annual competition in change-ringing—some suitable form of trophy being obtained for the purpose. The President called attention to the Johnson Memorial, and after some other business of a minor character, the meeting concluded.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

MR. CHARLES HENRY HATTERSLEY, OF SHEFFIELD.

[Vide Portrait.]

The portrait which accompanies this number is the first of the re-issue series which has been announced. Mr. HATTERSLEY'S likeness appeared some years ago in the old woodcut fashion, but it was not—to say the least—a successful portrait. The present one is we believe, as truthful a likeness as it is possible to obtain. This however, by way of preface.

Accompanying the portrait referred to was a memoir of this gentleman, with a record of his achievements, but since then he has scored a somewhat interesting list of performances, which from a scientific and practical point of view will compare favourably with those of his compeers.

Those productions—his sixty course-end [peals of Stedman Caters, with others in the same method, in which only four bells remain their full extent behind the 9th, and peals of Stedman Cinques on similar lines, where three bells work their extent in the last thirty-six courses are, to speak moderately, points gained in this favorite and popular method. Mr. HATTERSLEY has also produced some good peals of Treble Bob, amongst which we may truthfully affirm that his fourteen-course peal of Major, in which the 5th and 6th are their extent in 5-6, is one of the very best peals of its kind yet submitted to the Exercise. He has also produced peals of Superlative Surprise Major with the 4th and 5th their extent in 6th place. All these are, to say the least, good examples of originality. Taking into consideration the confined nature of their construction, it will be easily understood by those who are practically acquainted with the theory of composition, that peals of this class are not obtained without the exercise of considerable ingenuity and labour. In other methods he has also produced a varied selection; but he holds to the opinion that compared with other methods a real good peal of Treble Bob Major reflects the greatest lustre upon its composer, from the difficulties attendant upon its production. No doubt those two metropolitan luminaries, Henry Dains and York Green, will (with many others) concur in this opinion.

The ringing performances in which Mr. HATTERSLEY has been engaged are also of an interesting character. The long peal of Stedman Cinques rang at Birmingham, in which he took part, has been mentioned in a previous number of this paper. Since then he rang in the silent peal of Stedman Triples at Burton-on-Trent. He also rang in the 13,054 of Stedman Caters at Cheltenham, occupying 8 hrs. 16 mins., and in the 15,227 of Grandsire Caters, rung at the same place, occupying 9 hrs. 43 mins. The correctness of these peals were vouched for by competent judges; but the additional information, viz.: that the 13,054 of Stedman Caters was, for uniformity of good striking, an unbeatable performance, has also been given.

At the commencement of last year Mr. HATTERSLEY was one of the invited guests of J. W. Taylor, Esq., of Loughborough, when that gentleman got together several well-known ringers for a week's ringing in the Midland Counties. It is not necessary here to repeat in detail the list of events scored on that occasion, further than to say that nine peals of 5000 and upwards were rung in five days, Mr. HATTERSLEY taking part in the whole of them. An account of this remarkable week's ringing appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" of February 23rd, 1889.

Mr. HATTERSLEY did not join the Yorkshire Association till the fourth year of its history, but we find him in time to call the first peal of Stedman Triples, and to compose and call the first peals of Caters and Cinques upon the same much-admired principle, and also the first peals of Double Norwich ever rang by that Association. He was chosen, in company with Mr. B. T. Copley, by the members, as a representative on the Central Council recently held in London: and altogether takes a deep interest in the welfare of the Association. Through his instrumentality, Yorkshire scored two peals in one day at the Isle of Man, in July, 1888, which were the first peals of the method, viz., Stedman and Treble Bob Major, ever rang on that island. His views on prize-ringing contests were always strong, but at the same time he does not unduly influence those who are opposed to him on this subject; but right or wrong it has his support. In him we find a sound ringer; attentive to good striking, and for the time being most resolute and exacting. He is regarded by those who are capable of judging as being a safe bob-caller, and as record will shew, he is at home on any bell in the tower when called upon to perform this important branch of the science. Altogether he has rung 162 peals in the methods of Stedman, Treble Bob, Plain Bob, Grandsire, Superlative Surprise, Duffield, Cambridge Surprise, and Double Norwich. Out of this number he has composed and conducted close upon 100.

Mr. HATTERSLEY'S connection with the Birmingham ringers is of the most friendly character; and it is supposed that he has rung more peals in that town than anyone else who is not an actual resident.

We may conclude this notice by quoting the last paragraph of a former memoir of CHARLES HENRY HATTERSLEY: "Those who know him well, give warm testimony to his social and companionable nature, though prone to irritation should the careless ringing of one in a band neutralise the efforts of the rest to have good striking. No one appreciates ringing better than he, when fairly performed. The distances he has at various times travelled in pursuit of the art is sufficient evidence of his willingness to oblige in any shape or form when called upon; and we may bring our sketch of this distinguished ringer to a close by expressing a wish that there were many more equal to him in ability—and private worth."

DEDICATION OF A BELL AT FARNHAM, SURREY.

The seventh bell having been cracked some years and the chimes being silent, the parishioners wishing to hear the chimes again, G. Trimmer, Esq., generously came forward and agreed to have the seventh bell recast at his own expense, if the parishioners would repair the chimes. Messrs. Mears and Stainbank were commissioned to do the recasting, which has given great satisfaction, and on Thursday, the 5th inst., at 12.15, the bell being suspended a few feet from the floor under the tower, the service commenced; the hymn No. 303, "When morning gilds the skies," being sung as a processional, the choir leading the way down the Chancel. Following the choir came the Rev. W. Westacott (curate,) Rev. Canon Hoste (rector,) Messrs. Wells and Algwin (churchwardens,) with their wands of office, the Rev. R. G. Nevill (Bishop's Chaplain,) bearing the pastoral staff, and the Lord Bishop of Winchester. The Bishop standing in front of the west door, the clergy and choir being around, read the opening sentences and collects, and after the hymn commencing "Lift it gently to the steeple" was sung, his Lordship pronounced the blessing. "All people that on earth do dwell" was then sang as a recessional, and this closed the service. The ringers then rang a few rounds on the front six bells.

During the day a large number of parishioners inspected the bell and were well pleased with its fine tone and appearance; its weight is 16 cwt. in F.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

SUPPLEMENT TO "THE BELL NEWS"

THE CONSTRUCTION OF PEALS OF STEDMAN TRIPLES.

III.

BOB-AND-SINGLE PEALS.

By the REV. H. EARLE BULWER.

It was not likely that the composers of sixty years ago would remain content with a system of composition which had the effect of degrading Stedman Triples to the position of Doubles with two extra bells dodging behind for the best part of 60 changes, extending in some cases to even a greater number. We know from Shipway how unsatisfactory and objectionable such compositions as the multibob peals, already considered, were felt to be; and that persistent efforts were continually being made, therefore, to break up the heavy blocks of consecutive bobs, and, by eliminating a large proportion of them, to produce peals with fewer calls, while at the same time restoring the impaired features of the Triple method. These efforts at length resulted in the production of the B class, or bob and single compositions, having two or more singles in each course, but distinguished from class A by having less than nine calls therein altogether. In pursuance of the plan sketched by Mr. Heywood in a previous paper, I will now proceed to examine these productions.

The examples of this class of peal given by the late Mr. Snowdon in his collection are four in number, viz.: (1) A peal by Thomas Day, marking a great advance in the art of composition, which was rung by the St. Martin's Youths in 1830 at Birmingham. (2) A peal by J. P. Powell, of uncertain date. Both these peals will be found in "THE BELL NEWS" of January 1885, vol. iii., page 471. (3) A somewhat irregular peal by Shipway on page 483 of the same vol. (4) A peal on a peculiar plan by Thos. Thurstans, on page 495. There are other compositions of the same class, one of which, attributed to Lates, I have also analysed, but being an objectionable production, it is unnecessary to refer to it further here, than to say that it found sufficient favour in its time to be performed by the Norwich Scholars at St. Giles' church in that city.

With the exception of Thurstans' these peals all exhibit the same principle of construction, and the same foundation plan. Although subjected to a great deal of disruption, and even of reversal in some instances, the six-ends of a true series of B blocks are clearly traceable in these compositions; and there can be no doubt that they were produced by the aid of these B blocks, built up as the work proceeded. But, apart from this, the compositions afford abundant evidence of the previous adoption of a definite plan, ingeniously conceived, carefully thought out, and rigidly adhered to. The leading idea in this plan is a five-course block, shunted in such a manner as to be capable of being itself repeated four times. Now a shunting block of five courses four times repeated would produce a total of 25 courses, or 5 courses short of the half-peal. To fill this gap, it would be necessary to introduce another block of five courses, either in the lump, or by a single course introduced into each of the previous five-course blocks. This latter device is the one adopted; and it is effected (in the case of the first two peals) by means of a special call, termed, justly enough, by Mr. Snowdon, a Holt's Single. Each part now consists of six courses instead of five, and an additional Holt's Single being introduced towards the end of the half-peal, the 5040 changes are completed.

In order fully to understand the working of the plan, it is necessary to remember that, of the seven bells, one is a "fixed observation," which comes home at every course-end, and is undisturbed by any of the calls: the other six are "working" bells, each of which acts in turn as a fixed "part" bell, coming, not indeed "home," but into the same position at each course-end of the foundation five; while one of the number acts as the fixed "part" bell, for the interpolated courses. The work of this latter bell is therefore regular and constant throughout the parts, falling, as it does, into the same position at each course-end next before the interpolated course. During the progress of the five foundation courses this bell is a "worker," each of the remaining five acting as "part" bell in turn; for the interpolated course only it takes the place of the "part" bell, all the other five being in these courses "workers." In this manner it becomes possible to have a part of six courses in length without risk of falseness if the calls are properly arranged and distributed. The exchange of "part" bells is effected, in Day's peal by the peculiar action in 4-5 of the Holt's Single, which serves the double purpose of changing the "part" bell and interpolating the extra course. In Powell's peal the "part" bells are changed in 6-7, which could be as readily effected by a common single; but the Holt's Single is adopted in order to avoid turning the course, and so deranging the truth of the peal. The half-way Holt's Single is placed so as to alter, by pairs, the relative position of four of the "workers" without affecting the interpolated "part" bell, and thus makes a repetition of the whole feasible.

Having now made clear, as I hope, the general plan of these compositions, I may be allowed briefly to comment upon them in detail.

1.—Day's peal is not only the finest example of its class, but by far the finest peal of all those which preceded Thurstans' Original; all these being open, with it, to the same objection, namely, that they were produced by the aid of special calls alien to the method. The feature that distinguishes Day's peal is this; that it was, and is still, the only peal of Stedman Triples ever produced with no more than two consecutive calls in its whole extent. So valuable is this feature that, if a peal could be produced, similar to this one of Day's, on the same plan, but without special calls, it would undoubtedly take the highest rank among all the Stedman compositions of these or former times. As evidence of the regularity which marks the construction of this peal, it is worthy of note that the five course-ends, having the same bells in 6-7, are the "regular" quick six-ends of the B block formed upon any one of them; similarly, the previous six-ends, which have the same bells inverted in 6-7, are the "regular" slow six-ends of the B block formed upon any one of them.

2.—In Powell's peal I have not succeeded in finding any such instances of regularity; but there is a curious fact in connection with this peal which is worthy of attention. If we call a course by six consecutive bobs at 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and repeat it twice, we obtain a 3-course block. Twenty of such blocks, pricked from selected rows, differing from one another, would give material sufficient in quantity, if not in quality, for a peal. Powell's peal is divided into odd (out of course) and even (in course) sixes in the proportion of 9 of the former to 5 of the latter. Now, if we invert the 9 odd sixes, by taking them out of singles, we shall find represented in the peal, either regularly or irregularly, all the sixes of the twenty 3-course blocks. It is not to be supposed that Powell was aware of this, or that he based his peal on anything other than a genuine B block of ten bobbed sixes; but the coincidence is noticeable as shewing that a B block in its simplest form is not the only one on which a composition might be successfully based, if it were worth while to follow these ancient lines.

3.—Shipway's peal appears to be the result of an endeavour on his part to do away with all but two of the Holt's singles contained in Powell's peal. He managed this by removing bobs from some courses and adding them to others. In each part he thus produced two courses differently called from the others, the difference being sufficient to effect a double change of "part" bell in each part. In the second half of the peal bobs are omitted from two courses, instead of being added, as in the first half; but with a similar result. It is worth notice that we have here the first instance of the application of the artifice of "extras" and "omits," so important in later peals. Twenty Holt's singles are thus eliminated; but, with this exception, the composition is not of great interest, being only a variation of Powell's.

4.—If we call a course in such a manner that it will admit of a four-fold repetition, we obtain a 5-course block; if each of these courses is extended to the length of three by a judicious distribution of bobs and singles, delaying the work of 6 and 7, so as still to preserve a course-end capable of being four times repeated, we shall, by so repeating it, obtain the length of a quarter-peal. If, further, the quarter-peal ends are shunted by a special call, disturbing the relative positions of four bells, the whole may be three times repeated to complete the peal. This was the scheme conceived and followed out by Thurstans in the bob-and-single peal which bears his name. The singles employed in each long course are divisible into those which delay the observation bells, and those which disturb the relative positions of the "workers." There is no undisturbed observation; but 6 and 7 are brought home at each course-end, and 5 at each part, or quarter-peal end. A few sixes before the part-end is reached, a peculiar kind of special call is introduced at a point where 5, 6, 7 are in "the slow," and are, therefore, unaffected by it; its effect, is, however, to alter entirely the relative positions of 1, 2, 3, 4, giving the following as the part-ends: 1432, 3241, 4123, 2314; 5, 6, 7 being "at home." Shifting the position of four bells in this way causes the quarter-peal ends to be alternately odd and even; and would, at the same time, assist an experienced composer considerably to a correct distribution of the singles. The peal is an ingenious one, certainly; but would perhaps, hardly commend itself to the critic on the score of beauty.

If I were not unwilling to anticipate a future explanation, I might indicate a probable law governing the distribution of calls in these peals; but I will not touch upon this point at present; though I may possibly refer to it hereafter.

We may now take our leave of the B class peals. Though they are now quite obsolete, it would have been wrong to pass them by without recognition, as steps, on the part of those who composed them, in the path of progress, which has been so successfully pursued by later explorers.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—ROCHDALE DISTRICT.

A meeting of the above branch was held at Middleton parish church on Saturday, June 14th. The bells, six in number, were set in motion early in the afternoon, when a muffled touch was rung as a token of respect for the late Dean of Manchester. The muffles being removed, several good 720's of Bob Minor were rung by mixed bands. The visitors were interested in the old brasses and other things of interest to the antiquarian; also an old flag took at the battle of Flodden, and the sword and spurs belonging to a member of the Ashhetone family who led the Lancashire and Cheshire archers in that battle, came in for inspection. At 5 p.m. the ringers and friends sat down to a splendid meat kindly tea provided by the rector and his lady, Mrs. J. E. Cleworth, who with other ladies assisted at the tea. After tea an adjournment was at once made to an upper classroom. The rector took the chair, and was supported by his curate, the Rev. W. D. Heelas, and the churchwardens, H. Heywood, Esq., the first Mayor of Middleton, Mr. Dean, and other persons connected with the church.

The rector on rising gave the visitors present a hearty welcome to Middleton, and made quite an enthusiastic speech as regards his old church and ringing; and he should like to see two more bells added to their peal to complete the octave.

Mr. H. Heywood said this sort of thing was something new in Middleton, and augured well for ringers associating together; and he mentioned the case of an old lady sending for him a few years ago, and she said she wished to give two bells to complete the octave, and he was delighted with the project, but through a misunderstanding the offer was withdrawn. The late rector said they could have a treble and tenor added without recasting any of the others, and could not be made to see his mistake, and so the good thing was lost, and the two trebles would have got over the difficulty. He also caused much laughter by telling how the ringers excused themselves from church owing to the bad go of the bells; so they got them rehung, and still that did not bring a better attendance. In conclusion he paid a very high compliment to the work of the Association.

Mr. Dean also spoke, saying that it had given him great pleasure to be present at such a meeting as that.

The Rev. W. D. Heelas next spoke, and said he was only a learner in the art, but he should like to be able some day to ring a peal of Grandsire Triples. He should also like to see the bells increased to eight.

The Secretary at the request of the rector said a few words regarding the bells, which he would like to see increased by the addition of two trebles, as then the ringers would no doubt be seen attending church better, owing to eight bells being easier to ring than six.

The rector (the Rev. J. E. Cleworth), the Rev. W. D. Heelas, and eleven ringers were then made members of the Association, the two rev. gentlemen being made Life Members. The next place of meeting is Bury parish church, on Saturday, July 12th.

Mr. G. Hoyle moved a vote of thanks to the rector and his lady for their kindness in providing them with such a good tea, also for presiding, and for the bells, and made some humorous remarks regarding clergymen never being seen in the belfries year in and year out, and he hoped they would get two new trebles to make eight, and hoped both the rector and curate would go up and learn to ring, and then he thought the ringers would follow their example.

Mr. W. R. Barrett seconded, and it was carried unanimously. In reply the rector said he had got some good advice, and he hoped to see it carried out. Ringers were present from Middleton, Radcliffe, Milnrow, Rochdale, Heywood, Bury, Healey, and also a London ringer, Mr. E. J. Comb, of Christ Church, Spitalfields, who was delighted to hear such good ringing, and personally thanked the rector for his kindness.

Two courses of Grandsire Triples were afterwards rung in the churchyard before a large crowd of people, the bells being pitched in the same key as the tower bells with the two trebles added, the people being delighted with it. It may here be added that in the time of prize-ringing the Middleton company has sent six sets of change-ringers to a competition, and have brought the first, second, and third prizes back with them.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—MANCHESTER BRANCH.

The monthly meeting was held on Saturday, June 14th, at Christ Church, Withington. A good number of members were present from Manchester, Bolton, Ashton, Eccles, Swinton, Worsley, and Didsbury. The methods rung were Treble Bob, Bob Major, Stedman Triples, and Grandsire Triples. The business meeting was held in the evening, the Rev. H. J. Elsee, B.A., presiding. Swinton was chosen for the next meeting. The appointment of branch secretary (caused by the retirement of Mr. Eachus) being the next business, it was unanimously decided to appoint Mr. W. Brown, of St. John's, Manchester. The chairman proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Eachus for his past services, he paid a high tribute to him for the excellent qualities he had shown, and the energy he had put forth to further the work of the Association. Mr. G. Longden seconded, at the same time expressing a hope that the members would give the new branch secretary their hearty support. Mr. Redford in supporting the motion said he could endorse all Mr. Elsee had said, the success of the branch was, no doubt, due to the efforts of Mr. Eachus. The motion having passed, Mr. Eachus responded and assured the meeting that he should always endeavour to do his utmost for the welfare of the Association. The usual vote of thanks closed the proceedings.

THE SOCIETY OF TRINITY YOUTHS.

[ESTABLISHED 1782.]

The 108th Anniversary of this Society was celebrated at Lewisham, on Saturday, June 7th, under the most favourable conditions both as to weather and attendance, members from Greenwich, Woolwich, Erith, Crayford, Lewisham, Lee, Deptford, Bromley, Chislehurst, and St. Albans, being present.

During the afternoon several touches of Grandsire, Bob Major, Treble Bob and Stedman were brought round at St. John's, Deptford, and Lewisham. At six o'clock the members and friends to the number of forty sat down to an excellent and substantial tea, which had been arranged under the kind direction of the Hon. Mrs. Legge, in St. Mary's National Schools, everyone expressing himself highly pleased at the elegant appearance of the tables, and the liberal provision of good things. Canon Legge looked in and had a cup with the company.

The special service in St. Mary's church was attended by all but two, the officiating clergy being the Revs. Canon Legge, C. J. Palmer, and J. W. Green (Woolwich). A shortened form of Evening Prayer was used, the hymns "O God, our help in ages past," and "Now thank we all our God," and responses being heartily rendered by the congregation. Canon Legge delivered from the chancel screen a most impressive address, exhorting his listeners to holiness of life, and pointing out their true position as church workers. The rev. gentleman's observations were listened to attentively throughout, and at the conclusion great pleasure was expressed at so admirable a discourse.

The business meeting was held in the parochial vestry immediately after the service, the retiring Master (Mr. Wm. Bedwell) presiding. Preliminary business having been dispatched, the Hon. Sec. (Mr. F. W. Thornton) read his annual report, which was as follows:—

In presenting my Annual Report, I have to observe, that although we have passed through a very uneventful, and perhaps I may add unfortunate year, the Society, in spite of all drawbacks and hindrances, is not only in a healthy and flourishing condition, but has considerably increased its numerical strength. By an uneventful year I mean one during which nothing of any note has been attempted or achieved, and an unfortunate year owing to mishaps connected with various rings of bells, which have prevented the regular practices so essential to the progress of learners. Having gone into details so fully at the Annual Dinner in February last, this report must of necessity be somewhat brief; but the few following statistics may be of interest. The total number of members as made up to the last annual meeting was 66; 32 have since been elected, bringing the total to 98—a very gratifying feature. Ten peals have been accomplished during the past twelve months, viz.: 8 of Grandsire, 1 of Canterbury Pleasure, and one of Union Triples. Five have been rung at Erith, two at Crayford, and one each at Lee, Bromley, and St. John's, Deptford. Two have been conducted by E. E. Richards, one of which he composed, two each by Messrs. Barnett, Cullum, and Bedwell, and one each by Messrs. French and Thornton. It will thus be seen that a break has at length been made in the long run of Grandsire peals rung by members of this Society. The credit of this belongs to the members resident at Erith and Crayford, who, under the leadership of Messrs. Barnett and Cullum, succeeded in ringing a peal of Canterbury Pleasure Triples, at Crayford, on June 2nd, and a peal of Union Triples, at Erith, on the 4th. I feel sure everyone present will join me in congratulating these gentlemen upon their clever performances. I trust that in the coming year other peal-ringing members of the Society will not be so content to follow the beaten track, but will devote a little time and study to the acquisition of a knowledge of additional methods. The Society has been very unfortunate during the past six months, through the closing of the towers of Greenwich, Lewisham, and Lee, for repairs of bell-fittings, etc. Owing to these and other drawbacks the opportunities for instruction have not been so ample as could be desired, but handbell practice has in several instances been substituted for church bell practice, and several members have been enabled to obtain their "first peals." At Woolwich, Stedman and Treble Bob are invariably practised, and at St. John's, Deptford (associated for many years past with "set changes," a marked improvement has taken place, half-pull ringing having almost if not entirely supplanted the "old English" formerly so popular there. Solid progress has also been made at Lewisham, but the well-known difficulties which the leading spirits here have had to contend with, have very seriously retarded that progress to which we all looked forward. If those who have "put their hands to the plough" here do not grow faint and disheartened, another year may shew a very different result; at any rate, to have taught four novices to ring the treble in Grandsire is not a bad record, all things being taken into consideration. If those members who are masters of the art will only do their best to assist beginners, and beginners themselves will also display more energy, gratifying results are certain to be achieved, and in a short time this Society will be able to take its place with the best of our great change-ringing Associations. I desire to impress upon my brother members the advisability of taking advantage of the facilities afforded for practice at the various towers in the district, more especially at Woolwich, which has of late been unaccountably neglected. The cordial thanks of the Society are due to the clergy of the district for the kind support they have continually accorded. I cannot close this report without acknowledging with feelings of deep gratitude the kindness and courtesy with which I have been treated by every member of this Society, during the two years I have held the post of honorary secretary. I beg also to thank my brother-officers (with whom I have always worked harmoniously), and a few other friends, for the valuable assistance and advice they have on several occasions rendered me, and need scarcely add that I shall be very happy to give my successor every assistance in my power.

The reading of the report was greeted with applause, and after a few remarks from Mr. W. Jeffries, respecting the improvement at St. John's, Deptford, it was agreed that it should be received and entered on the minutes.

The next business was to elect a Master for the ensuing year, and Canon Legge having been voted to the chair, a motion to the effect that the election should be by ballot was unanimously agreed to. Messrs. Bedwell and Thornton were thereupon nominated, and the ballot taken, the result being—for Mr. Bedwell, 9; for Mr. Thornton, 20. Mr. Thornton was then, amid applause, declared duly elected, and briefly returned thanks. The newly-elected Master was also chosen to represent the Society on the Central Council. Several names were submitted for the post of Hon. Sec., but afterwards withdrawn, the choice of the meeting ultimately falling upon Mr. E. E. Richards, who promised, with the able assistance of the late Secretary, to do his best for the Society's interest. The Rev. C. J. Palmer and Mr. Francis Palmer were also elected Treasurer and Steward respectively. Several new members having been elected, including Messrs. Mitchell and Battle, of St. Albans, and other business disposed of, the meeting terminated with hearty votes of thanks to Canon and Mrs. Legge, and other friends, who had assisted in the day's proceedings, and to the retiring officers, these compliments being appropriately acknowledged by the recipients. A few short touches were rung upon St. Mary's bells, and a most enjoyable day brought to a close.

RE-OPENING OF THE BELLS AT BERGH APTON, NORFOLK.

On Wednesday, June 11th (St. Barnabas' Day) the ring of six bells in the church tower of Bergh Apton, near Norwich, were re-opened after having been completely refitted, and rehung in the existing oak frame, the result of a subscription raised by the exertions of the Rector, the Rev. W. F. Thursby. The bells are all of them over 200 years old, and were cast at the Norwich Foundry, the tenor being an interesting 15th century bell by Brazier, and bears his shield with three bells. The inscription on it is as follows: X Petrus ad Eterne Ducat Nos Pascua Vite ("May Peter lead us to the pastures of Eternal Life.") The inscriptions on the other bells are: 1.—"Edward Tooke made me, 1678;" 2.—"E. T., 1674, Edward Tooke;" 3.—"John Brend made me, 1656;" 4.—"Edward Took made me, 1677;" 5.—"Anno Domini 1628, W. B." (William Brend). For the re-opening the home company of ringers were assisted by some friends from the neighbouring parishes, and with Mr. Day, sen., and Mr. Philip Sadler, of Norwich, kept the bells going merrily for the greater part of the day. They were joined in the afternoon by the Hon. Sec. of the Norwich Diocesan Association, with whom a 720 of Kent Treble Bob was achieved. At 8 o'clock in the evening the church was well-filled by a congregation of the parishioners and others from the neighbourhood, when a hearty service was held, several surpliced clergy joining the procession, the preacher on the occasion being the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer, Hon. Sec. of the Diocesan Association. Between the prayers and the sermon a plain course of Bob Minor was rung on the bells. The work of restoration has been thoroughly well done, and the "go" of the bells leaves nothing to be desired.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"It's a long lane that has no turning."

The news from Somerset last Saturday is certainly of a more creditable and pleasant character than what we were treated with the week before, thanks to the officers of the Bath and Keynsham United Deaneries Association. So there are good grounds for hope from that quarter. After what I remarked a fortnight ago with reference to this meeting at Highbridge, I need not repeat my wishes for the success of this new venture; but I certainly do compliment the promoters of it on having thus at least saved the reputation of their county from the odium which must have been thrown upon it by the proceedings at Milverton.

As to the precise mode in which the Somerset men intend to construct and carry on their Association, I do not intend to be critical, seeing that every district has its own peculiarities and exceptional circumstances which have to be met and dealt with in some peculiar and exceptional manner best known to those who have them to deal with. But I am pleased to read that they have adopted a ringing qualification for membership, which, although of a low standard, is quite as high as that in force in some other established associations. Then the "heavy fatherly" principle which is embodied in the resolution to admit no band of ringers until their belfry has been inspected by some one duly appointed, and reported to be in a satisfactory condition, "including orderly and reverent behaviour on the part of the ringers," is interesting—to say the least of it. Their adoption of the Devonshire Guild rule in antagonism to ringing matches for prizes naturally supplied more ground for contention, but after the Milverton affair, no one can be surprised at their desire to keep the county organisation's hands clear of such objectionable episodes. Altogether, I think the Somerset men have made a good start in the right direction; and the least that I can add in reference to it is the hope that their opening festival at Taunton, on July 5th, will be every bit as successful as the most enthusiastic among them may wish for.

Taking this meeting in conjunction with that of the Yorkshire Association at Skipton, one can hardly help observing the hard death with which the system of prize-ringing seems determined to die. The first instance is one practically of suicide, but in the latter case, I see, an attempt is being made to revive it under the protection of a large and powerful Association, one also which we have all been accustomed to consider as a sample to go by. That the good sense of our Yorkshire brethren will not allow them to be drawn into adopting the principle of prize-ringing by any such subterfuge as a trophy I feel quite convinced. They were the pioneers in that great work of organisation and reformation which has characterised and benefitted the Exercise so much during the last dozen years; they have set an example which has been right gladly followed up and down the country since 1875, to the almost inconceivable benefit of both ringers and ringing; most grateful acknowledgments of the benefits thus rendered by them to the Exercise have been neither few nor stinted. At the present time their Association is looked to as a pattern for imitation; its actions and resolves, I have no hesitation in saying, receive more attention than any of its contemporaries; its officers are, I believe, applied to more than any other for information and advice on matters pertaining to Association work, and the promotion of projects for the benefit of the Exercise. Will it then, at this juncture, after fifteen years of honourable and beneficent work for the good of the Exercise, stultify itself by going back a quarter of a century, and officially adopting a pernicious principle which owed its origin to the scandalously low state of morality which existed in the Church a generation ago, which during its existence has brought about so much rancour, enmity, and disgrace to both Church and ringers, and which is at the present time contrary to the more refined and intelligent spirit of our day? I can't think it.

Even giving this system of prize-ringing every good point which its supporters claim for it, seeing the strongly opposing opinions which exist amongst us on the matter, and taking it on this low ground alone, I think the Yorkshire—or any other—Association would be foolish in the extreme to give to it any official sanction. It is upon individual members of the Exercise that excellence in the art depends, and not upon their county organisations which exist for the promotion of general principles and not personal proficiency.

But I will not tarry further with this subject at present; perhaps it may be dealt with in the correspondence columns by other and more able hands. Should such be the case, let us for once—as I have said beforetime—have the question thoroughly thrashed out, instead of allowing it to keep popping up here and there, like in a Jack-in-the-box, first in one connection then in another, neither convincing nor being convinced, but always bringing out a "bone of contention," occupying time which might otherwise be better and more profitably spent.

I have no desire to damp the ardour of any aspirant to a place in the ranks of our composers, but I can't help asking Mr. T. Millington, of Clay Cross, why he did not take the trouble of examining the two 720s of Bob Minor which appear under his name on Saturday last. By this ordinary precaution he would have saved the waste of so much space in our paper, as well as his own pocket.

There were ringers present from Wolverhampton, Tettenhall, Willenhall, Wombourn, Dudley, Penn, Tipton, and Birmingham (St. Martin's). Several touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Forward Major, Plain Bob Major, and Kent Treble Bob Major were rung. After the ringing a meeting was held to discuss business, at which eight new members were enrolled. The Society now numbers fifty-eight members. A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar, the Rev. A. A. Cory, churchwardens, and Mr. William Rock Small (captain of the Tipton band) for the use of the tower bells.

LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Saturday, May 31st, the monthly meeting of the Guild was held at St. Peter's church, Hindley. Prescott was voted to the chair, and called on the ringing Secretary to read the minutes of the last meeting. Having done so and the minutes confirmed, the chairman addressed the ringers present and explained to them the objects of the benevolent fund in connection with the Guild, and several items of interest was discussed by the ringers present. Four Honorary members were elected, and after a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the schools and bells, and chairman for presiding, the meeting was brought to a close.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1890.

With the letters from the Rev. T. L. PAPILLON and Mr. JERRAM, the correspondence upon the non-attendance of ringers at the services of the Church is ended, at any rate for a while. It is hoped no occasion will arise which will necessitate the subject being again brought forward. Whatever opinion may be held upon the habitual attendance of ringers at church, it is certainly wise that when services are arranged specially for their benefit they should attend them. This is putting it as a mere matter of expediency only, but it ought to take much higher ground. To prate about being Church workers and then refrain from attending her services is nothing but cant and priggishness of a very low type indeed. Let us be honest and above board in the matter, either say we will or will not comply with the requirement insisted upon. But in the latter case, our position, indeed our actual existence is doomed.

WORCESTERSHIRE AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

A Quarterly Meeting of this Association was held in St. Mary's Chantry, Kidderminster, on Saturday, June 14th, Mr. S. Spittle (Master), presiding. The usual business of the Association was transacted, the report by Mr. R. E. Grove, the representative at the Central Council was received with satisfaction, and it was decided that representatives be appointed to serve on the Council at the next meeting which will be held at Stoke Prior, Bromsgrove. Votes of thanks to the Rev. S. Phillips for the use of the Chantry tower and bells, and to the Master for presiding, brought the meeting to a close.

The tower bells were rang during the afternoon and evening, mixed companies ringing touches of Stedman, Kent Treble Bob and Plain Bob Major, and Grandsire Triples. And some courses of Grandsire Triples upon the handbells in the chantry.

ST. MARTIN'S GUILD, BIRMINGHAM.

On Tuesday, June 17th, being the practice night of the above Guild at St. Martin's church, touches of Stedman Cinques were rung with the bells half-muffled, as a tribute of respect to the memory of the late Mr. Charles Vincent, of Coventry, who was interred on that day. Mr. Vincent, who was a warm supporter of change-ringing, had been a member of the Guild for some time past, and had also took an active part in trying to get the Coventry bells hung for scientific change-ringing, an event which all ringers wish success, especially those who have rung upon them.

WHY RINGERS AND RINGING ARE NOT APPRECIATED.

SIR,—I fully concur with the Rev. T. L. Papillon and Mr. Cartmel in their remarks as to the scanty attendance of members at Divine Service at Association meetings, and I have sometimes thought that it is hardly necessary, under present circumstances, to hold a service at all on these occasions. I am afraid that ringers generally, although undoubtedly a much more intellectual and respectable class of men than in years gone by, cannot yet, as a body, be upheld as model churchmen; although I am thankful to say there are many exceptions.

As your readers are well aware from former letters of mine which have appeared in your columns, while wishing that every ringer were a churchman and a communicant, I have never been one for making this rule a sine qua non in a ringer's case; and I have several times pointed out the great difference between the ringer's office and that of a choirman or chorister boy, or any one who has actually to take part in the performance of Divine Service. But my object in writing this is to shew that there are other reasons, besides those above alluded to, why ringers are not appreciated. In the first place in years gone by ringers have been very conservative in matters connected with the science of change-ringing, and even now they do not as a rule seek to enlighten the public much about it. Consequently the public know little or nothing of the art, and care less. Then again: (and now I am afraid I shall draw a host of anathemas upon me from change-ringers on all sides). I am afraid that frequent peal-ringing is making change-ringing generally unpopular. The public would admire a well-struck touch in some musical method and lasting for half an hour or so, but a peal to any one not acquainted with the mysteries of change-ringing becomes a monotonous nuisance before it is out. Peals nowadays, instead of being performances to be achieved about two or three times in one generation, are becoming almost as frequent as practices in some towers. It seems to be the great ambition of most ringers at the present time to get as many peals as possible in such and such space of time; and many ringers would scarcely care to go out to ring at all unless there was a chance of a peal. This, I venture to think, is one reason why the general public do not appreciate ringers or their art. I greatly question whether any ordinary concourse of people would care to listen to some of the best selections of music played by the best performers for three consecutive hours, and much less would the uninitiated care to listen to a peal which, however intricate the method, must of necessity have a certain degree of monotony about it to an ordinary listener.

J. R. JERRAM.

NON-ATTENDANCE OF RINGERS AT CHURCH.

SIR,—I am glad to find from the remarks of "FREE LANCE" in your last issue, and from letters addressed to myself, that others are observant of danger ahead in the non-attendance of ringers at church. It is, as I have good reason to know, of the chief stumbling-blocks to the clergy; and not to the clergy only. At the last Easter vestry meeting at a certain ringing centre, attention was called to the inferiority of the chiming apparatus as compared with ringing or chiming. The reply by a layman present was that "they did not want a lot of heathen ringers," and that anything was better than seeing a lot of men come trooping out of church as other people were coming in. The reason assigned for the erection of a chiming apparatus at the church in question is "habitual non-attendance on the part of many of the ringers"; and unless ringers mend their ways, the same cause will produce the same effect elsewhere. In my own belfry I am thus far fortunate in having ringers who are all more or less regular church-goers; and I trust it may long be so. But if ever it should not be so, though as a ringer I should wish to keep our band together, as a clergyman I could not sanction such a scandal as habitual going away in the face of the assembling congregation; and I would rather fall back upon simple chiming by one or two men. Only a few days ago I was pleading with a parish clergyman in this county for more encouragement to the ringers and ringing in his parish. "But they hardly ever come to church," he said; and I felt that there was no answer. There is no answer; and if our ringers keep away from the church, they will sooner or later shut themselves out from the belfry.

REPLY TO MR. HAYES.

SIR,—I am obliged to Mr. S. Hayes for correcting the error in the report of the peal of Union Triples rung at Cliffe, Kent, on Whit-Monday, where it was stated to be the second peal rung on the bells; but we were informed it was so by a member of the local company, who either did not know of, or had forgotten about the peal of Stedman rung in 1862.

FALSE COMPOSITIONS.

SIR,—The following compositions published in "THE BELL NEWS" on the dates given below are false. A 720 Canterbury Pleasure Minor (eight bobs and six singles), by the Rev. C. W. Bassano, on August 10th, 1889; 720 Canterbury Pleasure Minor (twenty-two bobs and thirty-eight singles), by Mr. Isaac Cavill, on September 7th, 1889; and two 720's of Plain Bob Minor, each containing nine bobs and six singles, by Mr. T. Millington, on June 14th, 1890. C. E. WILSON.

12, York Street, Walton, Liverpool, June 18th.

SIR,—For the information of Mr. T. Millington, allow me to state that his two 720's of Bob Minor in last week's "BELL NEWS" are false, as would be any other variation of them.

THE SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.—ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

The Sixth Annual General Meeting of this Association was held at Brighton on Whit-Monday, and attracted a large number of ringers from all parts of the county. Proceedings commenced at St. Peter's (the parish church) at 9.30, and these bells, as also those at St. Nicholas' were kept going during the day to the tune of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Double Norwich Court Bob, Kent Treble Bob, and Superlative Surprise Major. At 12 o'clock the Vicar of Brighton kindly conducted a special service, and gave a short but practical address to the members. At 1.30 a cold luncheon was provided at the Odd Fellows' Hall, the president being the Rev. Prebendary Hannah (Vicar of Brighton), who also occupied the chair at the business meeting which followed. The business consisted of the re-election of the whole of the officers and committee, with the exception that Mr. A. A. Fuller was elected an auditor, vice Mr. G. Thwaites, resigned. The Rev. — Lewis (Vicar of Horley), Mr. Churchwarden Andrews, of Ditchling, and Mr. Churchwarden Webber, of Horley, were elected as honorary members, and fourteen additional active members were also elected.

The Rev. R. F. Tompkins moved, and Mr. J. Reilly seconded, that the report and balance sheet be received, entered on the minutes, and adopted.

On the motion of Mr. Selby, seconded by the Rev. R. F. Tompkins, it was unanimously decided, after representatives of all the branches present had expressed their views upon the subject "That for the future all active members shall pay an annual subscription of 2s." Mr. Selby's second motion was withdrawn in favour of the following resolution, proposed by Mr. G. Thwaites: "That for the general purposes of the Association the county of Sussex be divided into three districts." After some discussion this was carried, and a sub-committee consisting of the following gentlemen was elected to consider the details and report to a future meeting: Rev. C. D. P. Davies, G. Thwaites, T. Hart, T. M. Smith, W. Selby, H. H. Chandler, and the Hon. Secretary. The Hon. Sec. then proposed the following resolutions: (a) "That at all future meetings of the Association the allowance for dinner and tea be discontinued." (b) "That the amount to be expended on instruction to any branch shall not exceed £2, exclusive of railway fares." (c) "That for the future the charge for framed peal cards be three shillings each." (d) "That next year's report be charged to active members at sixpence per copy." The three first were carried and the last withdrawn. Eight names were then proposed as delegates to serve on the Central Council, and on the votes being taken the four duly elected were G. F. Attree, 38 votes; Rev. C. D. P. Davies, 26; H. H. Chandler, 22; C. Tyler, 21. Arundel was selected for the next eight-bell tower West Sussex district meeting. Votes of thanks were accorded to the officers for the past year, and to the Vicars of Brighton and St. Nicholas for the use of the bells, and to the Vicar of Brighton for acting as president and providing the special service.

RINGERS' VISIT TO BUSHEY, HERTS.

On Saturday, June 7th, eight members of the St. Peter's Society, St. Albans, paid a visit to Bushey, for a pull on the bells of the parish church. Arriving at 4 o'clock in the afternoon a turn on the handbells with some of the local ringers was the first part of the programme, after which the ropes engrossed their attention for some time. After the ringing was over, the company was joined by Mr. Rowe, who is now stationed at Aldenham, and a touch of Caters and Royal on the handbells was indulged in. By this time it was 7 o'clock, at which hour the local ringers and visitors were expected to supper at the Manor House, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harford. On arriving at the house a cordial welcome was given to all, and the guests took their seats at the table without delay, Mr. Harford presiding, and the rector, the Rev. T. H. Kynaston, occupying the vice-chair.

After the good things of this life had been heartily enjoyed, the host invited those present to look at his "camel bell," which was passed round the table. This was a veritable curiosity, as it really consisted of three separate bells so constructed that while the innermost one had a diminutive clapper of its own, that bell itself acted as a clapper to the next, and that one in its turn to the large outer one; and Mr. Harford explained that in crossing deserts a bell of that description was slung round the neck of the leading camel by means of a chain, and then with the movement of the animal the bell sounded so that it could be heard at a considerable distance.

After the rector had in kindly terms proposed the healths of Mr. and Mrs. Harford and the St. Albans ringers, an adjournment was made to another room where they were joined by the members of the household, who greatly appreciated the handbell ringing which was done. At 9 o'clock time was called to catch the last train down, and after expressing their thanks for the kindness shown towards them, the visitors took their leave.

It is right to add that the Bushey ringers have been practising change-ringing for some weeks past, and have mastered the plain course of Grandsire Doubles on the ropes; and there is every reason to hope that with the assistance of some of their neighbours a "home" for change-ringing may be found in that quarter. The "go" of the bells is very good, but the fifth strikes false both ways, and if this could be remedied it would be a source of comfort to the ringer of that bell for the time being.

SPELDHURST, KENT.

ON Saturday, June 7th, twelve members of the Ancient Society of College Youths paid a visit, in response to the kind invitation of Miss McAlpine Lenny, to the above-named picturesque village, some three miles from Tunbridge Wells. The party left Cannon Street station at 10.32, and reached Tunbridge Wells at about 11.50 a.m., where a waggonette was in attendance to convey the blithe youths to their destination. The route lay partly through the town and then across what is known as Rusbhall Common, one of the chief attractions of the place wherein are the rocks, notably the "toad," etc. After a pleasant drive of about thirty-five minutes, the rectory at Speldhurst was reached, where a most cordial greeting awaited the aforesaid young gentlemen. After the usual salutations, the party, which consisted of Messrs. Haworth, Wood, Jameson, Pettit, Horrex, Dorrington, Smith, Elvish, Springall, Newton, Mash, and G. J. Smith, were invited to partake of a slight refreshment in the shape of a lunch, previous to attempting anything on the tower bells. This prelude over, and led by the kind hostess, tracks were made to the belfry, and two courses of Stedman Triples were accomplished as an introduction to the performance which appeared in last week's peal column. The "go" of the bells leaves nothing to be desired, and reflects great credit upon those who are entrusted with their care. The peal is a very pleasing one, and for their weight, 12½ cwt., tell a wonderful tale. The two trebles were added by the White-chapel firm, and are a splendid splice. After the long touch of Stedman (5040), the local ringers rang some Grandsire Triples and Plain Bob eight. This being over, a ramble with the rector in the rectory grounds was next indulged in, the luxuriant weather adding much to the charming scenery around. Dinner was served at 6.0 p.m., the Youths and natives making one harmonious whole, and whose carnivorous appetites were carefully regarded by Miss Lenny and her sister, Mrs. Mackinnon, wife of the rector. Following this was a course of Grandsire Caters, some Grandsire Triples, and a plain course of Stedman Triples, all double-handed, by the visitors on the lawn, and last but not least, as a finale, a variation of the National Anthem, for the interpretation of which do not "ask a policeman" or those who took part in it, as their ambition for notoriety in connexion with it is below zero three degrees, and they do not perform elsewhere. The time having arrived for the return journey, after a few well-chosen words of thanks from Mr. Haworth on behalf of the visitors for the kindness they had met with, to which Miss Lenny suitably responded, the youngsters re-mounted their chariot, and amidst vociferous cheering which made the welkin ring, they departed, and after a very hilly drive by another route, Tunbridge Wells station was reached, and in due course Cannon Street at 10.28 p.m., one and all being pleased and well satisfied with their splendid reception and day's outing. FOR SALE, a set of 15 Handbells (Warner's) in case, scarcely used. T. E. KENNEDY, Kimberley Road, Harrow.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

In last week's report of the meeting of this Association, the following notice of motion, given by Mr. W. Snowdon, president, was accidentally omitted (by the reporter, not by the printer) :

"That as the Yorkshire Association of change-ringers has—and that to a great extent by the uniform and consistent official conduct of its officers and committee—brought itself to be looked on as a model, the committee be asked under no circumstances to encourage anything that would tend to alienate the clergy or their wardens from the Association, or do anything that would stop the kindly welcomes which on all times it is in the habit of receiving."

The terms of Mr. Stead's motion are as follows :

"That it be an instruction to the committee of the Yorkshire Association of Change-ringers to form some plan by which Prizes can be given for the best given quantity of changes, say 1000, at the annual meeting of the Association, its object being to encourage true change-ringing."

Both the foregoing motions will come up for consideration at the annual meeting in October.

A special meeting of the committee was held at head quarters on Saturday last, June 14th, eleven out of the sixteen members attending. One honorary and four ringing members were elected, after which a cordial invitation from Hull was accepted, and it was decided, on the motion of Mr. Charles Jackson, to hold the annual meeting there on October 11th, the annual service to be held in Holy Trinity church. The president then stated that the Snowdon memorial fund had at length been balanced up, there remaining a small balance in hand. It was therefore resolved, on the motion of Mr. C. Jackson, seconded by Mr. J. H. Hardcastle, that a tablet recording Mr. Jasper Snowdon's last peal be placed in the belfry of St. Lawrence's, Pudsey (where it was rung), and the remaining balance (£1) be sent to the Johnson memorial fund. Several other matters of a practical nature were also discussed, among them being a suggestion to increase the number of trustees for the Leeds corporation stock to three, in order to avoid the recurrence of such inconvenience as had been caused recently by the late Mr. Robert Tuke's death. This suggestion was unanimously adopted, and Mr. Charles Jackson appointed as third trustee, along with Mr. W. Whitaker and Mr. C. Hattersley.

THE NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.—DISTRICT MEETING AT KELSEA.

The first meeting of the Saxmundham District since the recent re-organisation of the Association was held at the above place on Saturday, June 14th, every tower in the district being represented. The bells were rung at intervals from 5.30 till 9 o'clock, the methods being Grandsire Triples, Bob Major, and Oxford Treble Bob Major. The business meeting was held at 6.30. It was decided to hold meetings quarterly, the next to be at Leiston on Saturday, September 6th. The Rev. B. W. Raven, M.A., rector of Leiston, and Frank Garrett, Esq., J.P., of Aldringham House, and Leiston Works, has kindly accepted an invitation to become Honorary Members, and will be proposed at the ensuing meeting at Stowmarket on July 8th. The ringers desire to thank the Rev. G. Irving Davies for his kindness in granting the use of the bells, and also for the use of the reading-room in which the meeting was held.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF PEALS OF STEDMAN TRIPLES.

IV.

THE EARLY TWIN-BOB PEALS.

BY A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

We now come to Class C comprising all compositions in which the bobs occur throughout in pairs. In this class are included the great majority of the peals obtained in the method, and indeed, strictly speaking, all the bona fide peals; for not one of the compositions ranged under Classes A and B is formed by means of legitimate bobs and singles alone. For this reason but little space has been devoted in these papers to the analysis of such peals, as it is only in Class C that we are brought face to face with the proper mode of composition in this method. The first known twin-bob peal was composed by William Hudson, of Sheffield, in 1832 (see "THE BELL NEWS," p. 483, Vol. III.) and although there are in addition to bobs 22 calls of an irregular nature, yet the immense value of the peal as a basis for future procedure gives to it an interest far transcending that of any previous composition. It was, so far as we know, the first successful attempt to obtain 60 approximately true P blocks; and so beautifully adapted for the purpose are the relationships between these 60 courses, and so impossible does it appear to obtain any other effective set, that upon these 60 courses every subsequent twin-bob peal has been and probably always will be constructed. No matter what variation reversal or transposition is attempted by starting in different ways or in different parts, by change of observation bell or the use of singles, the 60 course-ends of a twin-bob peal having a fixed observation bell will always bear precisely the same relation to one another as do the course-ends of this most instructive composition.

How Hudson first obtained this set of course-ends can only be a matter of conjecture, but as he evidently set out with the necessary rule of confining the twin-bobs to places that left the observation bell undisturbed, a large proportion of the course-ends would after a little tentative pricking be sure to come up. He may have completed the 60 by a close observation of the relationship of those already obtained, or he may have worked simply as the calls led him, and without a prepared set of course-ends at all; a plan rendered the more feasible by the extreme simplicity of the calling he adopted, the bobs being at 3, 4, 5, 6 in every course. It is, however, a matter of little moment as to how these invaluable P blocks were obtained, but very desirable to observe that Hudson's rule for the position of the bobs has been as rigidly adhered to as his course-ends, and that, while calls are made in any of the positions of the observation bell commonly known as 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 12, 13, under no circumstances whatever is the work of this bell, in any twin-bob peal disturbed by a bob.

The next great move towards the achievement of a peal containing common bobs and singles only, seems to have been made by Lates in 1841 when he produced the composition given on page 495, Vol. III. of "THE BELL NEWS." The calling consisted of the following quarter-peal:

3, 4, 5, 6	} Four times repeated.
5, 6, 7, 8

Four of these quarter-peals were then connected by a special kind of single. The interest here lies in the calling of the quarter-peal, which contains practically the foundation of Thurstans' later and celebrated composition. A variety of peals were obtained about this time on the twin-bob plan, and a vast amount of ingenuity was displayed in uniting the disjointed portions by two or more special calls. In 1846, however, Thurstans, incited by the rivalry of Lates and urged to "keep at it" by his friend and prover, the late Mr. Henry Johnson, at last produced his masterpiece, the first bona fide peal of Stedman Triples. Of this success no word was breathed until Mr. Johnson, who had conducted the peal, emerged at its conclusion from the belfry door of St. Martin's, when the amazed voice of Lates who was outside addressed him with the words: "Why, Harry, that came round with a common single."

The legitimate single having been thus proved adequate for the construction of a peal, all compositions containing irregular calls at once fell into disuse, and every subsequent peal was obtained in strict accordance with the method.

I have briefly traced the progress of the twin-bob system up to the date of Thurstans' "Original," and we may now discard any further consideration of previous peals of this class, for their construction depends upon the same principle as that of the "Original," except as regards the special calls of which the use and effect may be easily deciphered by those who care to do so. We will now enter upon the real purpose of these articles, namely, the explanation of the rediscovered principles of twin-bob composition, to the mastery of which the large accession of modern peals is due, and the Original, together with some of the leading peals, will be analysed in illustration of these principles. This explanation I intend to give just as I worked it out, together with my tables for constructing peals in regular parts and a demonstration of the mode in which these tables are formed. I propose to leave it to Mr. Bulwer to detail the more scientific procedure employed by him in his researches, and as his enquiry has extended into a deeper analysis of the subject than my own, it will be desirable that the latter should be first proceeded with.

Since we shall find it convenient to start with the assumption that it is impossible to obtain 60 true P blocks, Mr. W. H. Thompson's proof of the truth of this statement will form the subject of the next paper.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

ON Saturday, June 21st, eight members of the above society paid a visit to Salisbury. A start was made from Waterloo at 7 a.m., and Salisbury was reached by 9.15. The ride was a most enjoyable one; the fields looking fresh and green, and many people being busy with the hay. After refreshing the inner man, a move was made to St. Martin's church, where a peal of Double Norwich was in progress. This was listened to with great pleasure, and a few minutes after its completion the bells were again set going to the tune of Stedman Triples with the Ancients at the end of the ropes. This was also successfully brought round, and will be found reported in its proper place. A move was then made to the headquarters of the Salisbury Guild, where through the generosity of Mr. Gifford, a most substantial repast of beef, mutton, etc., was awaiting them, the course-ends coming up in splendid style under the conductorship of Messrs. Washbrook and Greenleaf. Afterwards a visit was paid to the Cathedral and other places of interest, one or two getting as far as Old Sarum. Touches on the handbells and tales of old times brought a very pleasant day to a close, and by 9 p.m. good-byes had been said and the train was on its way to London, which was reached in safety shortly before midnight. The Ancients wish through the medium of this paper to express their sincere thanks to Messrs. Gifford, Greenleaf, and the other members of the Salisbury Guild for their kindness in placing the bells at their disposal, and also for providing such an excellent dinner, which being quite unexpected was all the more appreciated; also to host Coran for the excellent way in which it was served.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

RE-OPENING OF THE RING OF SIX AT MATHERNE, NEAR CHEPSTOW, MON.

On Wednesday, June 18th, the ring of six in this most interesting of ancient parish churches in Monmouthshire, dedicated to St. Tewdric, the Saxon martyr, was formerly re-opened with a dedicatory service at 3.30 p.m. when the ropes were ably handled by the band of St. Cadoc's, Caerleon, under the leadership of F. E. Ward, Esq.

The tower, one of the finest in the county, originally possessed a ring of five, as the afternoon preacher, the Rev. Pitt Eykyn, Vicar of Magor and Redwick, and Hon. Sec. to the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, informed his congregation in what was afterwards described as an original and quite-out-of-the-common discourse, on the subject and history of Church Bells.

These five were recast into six, in 1765, at the neighbouring foundry of William Evans, of Chepstow, who had a few years before placed the present mellow-toned ring of eight in St. Mary's Church, Chepstow, A.D. 1735.

For 125 years St. Tewdric's bells had done duty, but as the preacher pointed out, wheels, stocks, gudgeons, frame-work, and even bells themselves wear out in course of time, and require renewing.

He knew of several churches which had been beautifully restored in every respect but the belfry, which was not unfrequently still left to the owls, birds and bats. That had not been the case at Matherne, and with attention and care the bells would now stand another 100 years again. It may be mentioned that Messrs. Taylor's men, who had done their work admirably, found one of the main supporting beams rotted off within a few inches.

The Caerleon men and the Matherne ringers then sat down to a knife and fork tea, after which the Vicar, the Rev. Watkin Davies, said a few words thanking the Caerleon men for their services, and stating his obligations to the Rev. Pitt Eykyn, for having put him on the right track in the matter of the restoration of the bells, etc.

The rev. gentleman having replied in a humorous speech, and Mr. Ward having thanked the Vicar for his hospitable entertainment, the party again proceeded to the belfry to ring for the second evensong, at which an excellent sermon on "Church revival" was preached by the Rev. John Griffiths, Rector of Bedwas-Cum-Rudry, Glamorgan.

South Monmouthshire is making headway at last in belfry improvements, and we find restored and augmented rings now at Chepstow, 8; Abergavenny, 8; Caldicot, 8; Tredunnock, 6; Matherne, 6; Caerleon, 8; Magor, 6; Llanfrechfa, 6; Redwick, 5; Trevechin, 6; whilst the pretty little ring of six at Llanvihangel-Llantarnam, is also being overhauled. The old parish church at Newport St. Woollos only possesses six, in bad going order. A ring of eight there is much needed from a ringer's point of view, as Newport is the leading town of the district, and railway communication is easy from all parts, so that it might form the centre for a Diocesan Association meeting some day, as many Monmouthshire ringers devoutly hope may be the case. The unrestored rings of the neighbourhood which go more or less badly and still require restoration and augmenting, are Newport, St. Woollos, 6; Penhow, St. John Baptist, 5; Llanwern, St. Mary, 5; Shirenewton, St. Thomas à Becket, 5; Nash, St. Mary, 5; Rogiet, St. Mary, by the Severn tunnel junction, possesses cages for three bells, the two largest of which have disappeared, the solitary one left is dated 1700. Llanvihangel-juxta-Rogiet hard by, now closed and disused, has a grand pre-Reformation bell with the name of the church, St. Michael, in beautiful floreated letters round its waist; this church is shortly to be restored. Bishton St. Cadwalladir, between Magor and Llanwern stations, has a fine tower, but only one cracked bell, dated 1663, which it is painful to listen to; this church has recently been restored. Undy St. Mary, by Magor, has a pre-Reformation bell also cracked, and with a note infinitely worse than a frying-pan. St. Bride's, Netherwent, also adjoining Magor, has two pre-Reformation bells bearing the inscriptions "Ave Maria gracia plena," one like a pot and the other like a pan. Portskewett St. Mary, has one small bell dated 1699. Caerwent St. Stephen, has a fine embattled tower which once contained three bells, but a fire melted all three, and the present single bell was cast by Warner out of the molten fragments in 1861. Llanmarten St. Martin, by Magor, also has a fine tower with a solitary bell cast by Jefferies and Price in 1854. Local tradition asserts that here once hung a ring of six, which were taken down and carried by wagons to Magor Pill for shipment to Bristol, but that a storm arising the barge sank at the mouth of the Pill, and there the bells are at the present moment. Llanvaches St. Dubritius, had a broken bell in its curious saddle-back tower dated 1622, but the clang was too much for the nerves of a former Vicar who had it recast instanter 1868. Itton St. Deiniol, by Chepstow, has a stumpy tower with a solitary bell dated 1702, and upon it runs the inscription "God bles (sic) Queen Ann." St. Arvan's, also by Chepstow, boasts a remarkable pepper-box tower with a mustard-pot lid, under which hangs a solitary little bell dated 1751. Newchurch, (a very old edifice) also has a good solid tower with but one bell dated 1716. Whitson All Saints, has a low tower with one good bell 37 inches in diameter dated 1758, and a little Sanctus bell inscribed "Obedite" 1758. Goldcliffe St. Mary Magdalene, has one dated 1732, and a priest's bell also.

There are many scores of other little parish churches dotted about hill and dale, with just one bell in the western turret, and inaccessible without the aid of a ladder, and in Monmouthshire the antiquarian campanologist may find much to interest him, both in the belfries and in the architectural features of many of the old churches and castles with which the locality abounds.

THE RINGERS OF ROSS.

This improving and flourishing branch of the Hereford Diocesan Guild held their annual outing on Friday, June 13th. On this occasion one of the most picturesque and lovely trips to be devised was arranged and carried out, the journey to Chepstow and Monmouth, along the banks of the far-famed winding Wye, a most beautiful river of which Ross is the gate, being accomplished by break and four horses. The following is a list of those present: W. Hebb (Hon. Treasurer of the Guild), W. H. Fussell (Instructor to the Guild), by invitation; Messrs. J. G. Wall (conductor), H. Bussell and E. Turner, hon. members of the Ross parish church society; Messrs. H. and A. Bird, T. and R. Clark, H. Price, J. W. Canadine, J. King, and T. Atkins; also visitor friends—Messrs. Harris, Hodges, and Farmer.

At 7.30 a.m. the start was commenced at the Royal Hotel, via Wilton Castle, Goodrich Castle, and Whitchurch to Monmouth. The 9 o'clock chimes were playing on the tower bells as the company drove up in Agincourt Square. Permission having previously been obtained from the vicar, the Rev. Wentworth Watson, the bells were at once raised in peal. After a course each of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, the following achieved their first touch, 504 Stedman Triples in 19 mins., the conductor excepted. W. H. Fussell (conductor), H. Price, E. Turner, J. G. Wall, H. Bussell, J. Clark, A. Bird, R. Clark. Tenor 20 cwt. in E flat. Bob Major followed, three courses (336) being rang by Messrs. Price, Atkins, Turner, Wall, Clarke, Bussell, Bird, and Fussell. This was finished with a musical well-struck touch of Grandsire Triples (546), in which Messrs. Price, Fussell, Atkins, Wall (conductor), *H. Jones, *T. M. Preece, Bird, and Clark took part. The bells were lowered in peal at 10.40. Those marked * are local men, the latter kindly getting the bells in readiness for use.

Resuming the journey to Tintern, where the mellow ruins of a grand old abbey stands, via Monmouth Bridge, Redbrook, Bigsweat, amongst scenery of the most diversified and extraordinary description, till the foot of the Wyndcliffe was reached, where a rough and ready roadside luncheon of well-made sandwiches and bottled ale was ravenously consumed. During a mile or so of the road the members exerted themselves in a travelling game of rounders peculiar to them. Starting again at 1.30, Chepstow was reached at 2.30 p.m. On the way a most remarkable echo was listened to from the bugle of Mr. King, who utilized his instrument during the day. Mr. Morley, the leader of the Chepstow ringers, having the bells in readiness, and the Rev. G. J. Hensley kindly allowing the use of the bells, they were soon put into changes. A touch attempted, ceased at the word "stand" from the conductor, two bells having shifted. A course of Kent Treble Bob Minor on the back six was rang, a necessary feat to allow the statement that the four standard methods were indulged in on the same day. Also a 546 Grandsire Triples.

The bells were raised and lowered in peal, thus concluding the tower bell-ringing for that day. Minor Band.—Messrs. Bussell, Wall, Turner, Clark, Bird, and Fussell: Triples Band.—Messrs. Canadine, Bird, Atkins, Wall (conductor), Bussell, Clark, Fussell, and R. Clark. Tenor 21 cwt. in E flat.

Dinner was served at 5 o'clock at the George Hotel, and caused a slight disappointment owing to the incapability of a newly-installed host. However justice was done as far as the exigencies of the case allowed, when toasts of "The Queen," by Mr. Hebb, and "The Clergy" had been duly honoured, a song given by Mr. Clark, preparations were made for the return journey which commenced at 7 o'clock.

Along the route each way several double-handed courses of Grandsire Triples were rung, and a few popular airs upon a large peal of handbells by an impromptu quartette, Messrs. H. and A. Bird, Clark, and Fussell. Several hands at cards went round amongst another quartette, who seated themselves at the safer end of the brake. Monmouth was again entered at ten, and while some exhausted the contents of the luncheon baskets, others indulged in hot coffee and smokes at the "Angel" hotel for an hour while the four horses rested.

Leaving Monmouth at 11 o'clock, the completion of the drive was accomplished by a competent driver considering the nature of the roads, and the starting point regained at 12.30 without further item of importance. The latter portion of the journey was enlivened with occasional songs, one by the oldest ringer in the company:

"As soon as you can make it set
Said Humphrey Bird the ringer."

The comicalities of Messrs. Harris and Atkins were very engrossing, a certain black bag creating special attraction. Notwithstanding a dull morning, the sun shone out after the first touch, almost impressing the belief that bells really Disperse ye storms and lightnings.

Although upon the whole the excursion did not improve upon a former one to Ledbury and Malvern, all well enjoyed themselves, and made the most of their time and ability, and got home happy, friendly, and sound.

Letters of thanks were subsequently sent to the clergy, and by the medium of this journal to those who assisted in the promotion of the day's pleasure. W. H. F.

THE BELLS OF ST. MICHAEL'S, COVENTRY.

This famed peal of ten remain on the floor at the west end of the church, but exertions are now being made to provide a suitable belfry for them. The following extract from a Coventry paper (five years old) is sent by a correspondent who was one of the band who rung in the last touch upon the bells before they were removed.

"The day being the last occasion on which the bells would be heard in full peal, the ringers assembled in the belfry to ring a farewell peal before they are removed. The bells were rung before and after the morning and evening services, and during the day a number of citizens and visitors inspected them probably for the last time in their present position. Soon after eight (at the conclusion of the evening service) the last peal was commenced, and was apparently regretfully listened to by many citizens who lingered in the vicinity, and who were not sparing in their remarks in disapproval of the course about to be adopted in removing the bells from the tower. When the large congregation which had attended the evening service had left the precincts of the church, the bells were set; and in a few minutes a start was made to fall them. The ringers who took part in this final event were stationed as follows:—Treble, C. Horsfall (captain); 2nd, S. Elliott; 3rd, C. Vincent; 4th, A. R. Judd; 5th, A. Bray; 6th, C. Lenton, junr.; 7th, J. George; 8th, T. Srawley; 9th, C. Lenton, sen.; tenor, W. Gilbert. The "fall" was an excellent one, and as the beautiful music of the bells died away those who had remained to listen silently dispersed; and the ringers descended the steps, sorrowfully bidding farewell to the place which in all probability will know them no more."

THE CHURCH BELLS OF DENFORD (NORTHANTS).

The six bells of the Church of Holy Trinity, Denford, are understood to be the lightest in the County. The treble only measures 21 inches across the mouth, and is just about the size, weight, and tone of the "Tmg Tang" or Priest's bell at Well-ingham. This bell would be much more pleasant to ring if the slider were re-adjusted so as to allow it to fall a little farther over the balance when "set" at "hand stroke." It is a great mistake to have so light a bell uneven in its pull as this proved to be quite recently. The bells as a whole go well, and the frame and fittings are in fair order. Belfry, Church, and Churchyard are also clean, tidy, and well kept. The Vicar and Churchwardens of Denford evidently take a pride in their beautiful little Church and its surroundings. Below are the inscriptions of the entire peal of bells:—

1. THOMAS NORRIS CAST ME 1629.
2. ROBERT MOT MADE ME 1581.
3. MATTHEW BAGLEY MADE ME 1680.
4. HENRY BAGLEY OF CHALCOMB MADE ME 1680.
5. BRYAN SVTTON AND RICHARD BVRGES CHVRCH WARDENS 1680.
6. SR. EDWARD READE BARRONKNIGHT 1680.

These bells sound exceedingly sweet as one wanders up the river side. Robert Mot, who cast the second bell over three hundred years ago, was a celebrated London Founder of that day, in fact the originator of the Whitechapel Bell Foundry, now in the hands of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. Mr. North states that this is the only bell in Northamptonshire from Mot's Foundry.

RINGERS' OUTING.

ON Saturday, June 14th, the ringers of St. Mary's church, Bucknall, paid a visit to Uttoxeter. Starting from Bucknall in a conveyance, they drove through the lovely country between the two places, passing through Caverswall, Draycott, Tean, Checkley, and other places, arriving at Uttoxeter after a splendid drive of seventeen miles about 5.30. After partaking of some slight refreshment a move was made to the church, the bells raised, and an attempt was made for 720 Bob Minor on the front six, with 7-8 covering, but failed owing to the bells going so bad. The party then made for the "Old Star" inn, where tea had been provided by Mr. A. Lovatt (an old native of Bucknall), free of expense. Tea being over, a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Lovatt for his kindness. Going back to the tower, a few more call-changes were rung, and after another attempt for a 720, which failed after ringing about half-way, the bells were lowered in peal, and the rest of the evening spent in the company of the Uttoxeter ringers. About 11 p.m. a start was made for home, which was safely reached after a most enjoyable ride, during which a nightingale was heard a few miles from Uttoxeter, this being a rare occurrence in Staffordshire. The ringers take this opportunity to thank the vicar of Uttoxeter for his kindness in allowing them the use of the bells.

RANMOOR, SHEFFIELD, YORKS.

ON Thursday, June 12th, at noon at St. John's church, Ranmoor, the nuptials of Miss Alice Smith, of Sandygate, Sheffield, only child of the late Mr. William Smith, to Walter Bethune Blew-Jones, of London, was solemnized. At 11.45 the ringers met to ring the happy couple to church. The late Mr. Smith was the donor of the bells, which are a beautiful peal of eight, tenor 14 cwt. Before the wedding two touches a 503 and 209 were rung. C. Sawyer, 1; J. Mulligan (conductor), 2; W. Goodwin, 3; J. Dixon, 4; W. Bugar, 5; W. Mellor, 6; W. Plant, 7; R. Collier, 8. After the ceremony they again assembled and rang two touches, a 657 and 294. J. Dixon (conductor), 1; J. Mulligan, 2; W. Goodwin, 3; F. Allen, 4; W. Bugar, 5; S. Hind, 6; W. Plant, 7; W. Mellor, 8. And a 1500. C. Sawyer, 1; J. Mulligan (conductor), 2; J. Dixon, 3; F. Allen, 4; W. Bugar, 5; W. Mellor, 6; W. Plant, 7; R. Collier, 8. The bells having lately been rehung by Messrs. Shaw and Son, of Bradford, and the four back bells, fitted with their patent ball bearings, went admirably.

A WEEK'S RINGING IN WILTS AND SOMERSET.

A ringing tour in these parts has for some time been in contemplation, and an attempt, which proved abortive, was made to arrange one about a twelvemonth since. This year Mr. Blackburn (of Salisbury) took the matter in hand, and proved himself a very capable and judicious organiser of such affairs. Three Oxonians accepted invitations, and with three from Salisbury formed the nucleus of the bands throughout the week. The first place visited was Chippenham parish church, leave for a peal on the handy ring at St. Paul's not being obtainable. Here the 7th man should be on a pivot, as the rope falls in the centre of the tower, and the 4th man requires eyes like a bird's, as the rope comes inside a direct line between the 3rd and 5th. Thus, though only Grandsire was essayed, a great many half-turns (of the neck) had to be made. However, Holt's Original (reversed) was in due time disposed of, the tenor man's hands being so punished as to cause him trouble all the week. After refreshment train was taken to Calne, which possesses a ring of eight with a tenor of about 26 cwt. Hard work being expected here, an extra hand was retained in the tower, and that step proved a wise one, for before Stedman Triples had been under weigh half an hour, No. 7 showed signs of distress, and the services of the spare man were called in. He however, more speedily than his predecessor, had to succumb, and it was not until the Herculean Oxford conductor, having quitted the 6th rope, placed himself on the 7th box, that it seemed at all likely that a peal would be rung. This however was accomplished, although hardly any of the bells could be described as being easily (thoroughly) pealable. On leaving the tower the handbells were produced, and a well-struck course of Caters performed in the market-place, to the delight of the natives, who flocked together in large numbers. What would have been the result had the hat been sent round we cannot say, as this part of the ceremony was omitted, and the ringers retired to their several quarters (one roosting in the "Peach-tree") to discuss supper and more handbell ringing.

The sun shone out pleasantly on the morning of the 17th, when at eight o'clock sharp a break was ready at the churchyard corner to convey the band to their next place of business, viz.: Bishops Cannings. This is a village three miles from Devizes, possessing a very interesting church, chiefly in the Early English style, which has been well restored lately, the pulpit, by Hems, of Exeter, being specially good. Here the Vicar, the Rev. C. W. Hony (by the way one of the earliest contributors to this paper), being himself a ringer, welcomed the visitors in the most cordial manner, entertaining them all twice at his table. Stedman Triples were again essayed, and again brought to a successful finish, all the bells going fairly well. Encouraged by the success of the morning, and stimulated by the Vicar's excellent luncheon, the band returned to the belfry at 3.0 p.m. for a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major. Such a well-known method was of course tapped off with ease, and a peal seemed to be a certainty, when alas! at two hours from the start, the tenor rope suddenly parted just below the sally, and as if ashamed of itself, disappeared into the loft above the belfry, the bell ringing itself down with provoking regularity. Then tea, talk, a walk to Devizes, and a short journey by train to Trowbridge, where the night of the 17th was spent. The vicarage being full, a kindly layman of mountaineering fame, R. Rodway, Esq., accommodated some of the band.

In due time on the 18th business was begun, and the tall slender spire vibrating to the lively tones of Bob Major, a peal of which was brought round. A door in the belfry opened on the lead roof of the church, and being visible from the street, many of the passers-by lingered awhile to watch the efforts of the stalwart tenor-man. It should be mentioned that here also the circle of ropes is irregular, the tenor-rope falling between those of the 3rd and 4th bells. The Vicar, the Rev. H. Trotter, kindly gave luncheon to some of the party. Then followed one of the many pleasant journeys of the week: the scenery on the Great Western line from Trowbridge to Bath on the bank of the Avon being charming. From Bath bus was taken to Twerton, which has a beautiful church, recently rebuilt, the old tower alone being left, containing a handy ring of eight, with tenor about 12 cwt. The Vicar, Rev. W. Stokes Shaw, always receives ringers in the kindest possible manner, on this occasion he provided supper for all the band, and took one of them in for the night. Double Norwich was the method used here, a peal of which was completed without difficulty. A set of sally-guides would make this a perfect place for ringing, the draught being rather long for such light bells.

All the men were on the qui vive early on the 29th to catch the 7.15 train from Bath to Masbury or Maesbury, on the Somerset and Dorset line. Here a break and pair were in readiness to convey them to Glastonbury, via Wells, a delightful drive of 11 miles, enlivened by touches on the handbells, and by attempts, more or less futile, to wind a long coach-horn. Good views of the glorious shrine at Wells were obtained at various points in the road, and length Glastonbury was reached. Some delay occurred here in repairing the ropes, which were found to be in a shaky condition, but eventually at St. John's church a start was made for a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, the fine tenor from the Loughborough foundry turning in splendidly. Success once more was attained, and then after a hasty repast the ringers returned to Wells to essay a peal of Double Norwich at St. Cuthbert's, which has a remarkably fine tenor by Bilbie, about 27 cwt. This proved to be a much harder task than was expected, owing to the sluggish going of some of the smaller bells, and to make matters worse, a change-course rendered a fresh start and the repetition of some five courses necessary. The finish was therefore hardly earned, and came late at night.

It was intended to take the 6.0 a.m. train for Frome on the 20th, but at that hour one of the band only saw from his bed the departure of the train, the others being still sound asleep. At 9.40 however, all mustered at the G.W.R. Station, and (with the exception of the Bristol men, who returned home) proceeded to Frome-Selwood. After admiring the beautiful church, and the arcade by which it is approached, sculptured with subjects, life-size, from the last events of Our Saviour's life, the Oxonians and Salisburians, reinforced by the Master of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, and tenor-man from Wells, started for a peal of Stedman. And here the Master of the Oxford Guild had the pleasure of completing his three hundredth peal, supported by his brother of Gloucester on the left, and the worthy curate of Caversham on the right. Salisbury was the next point, but owing to a mal-arrangement of trains, and an awkward delay of 1½ hours at Westbury, it was not reached till 8.15 p.m., too late to start for another peal.

The order to meet at 8.30 a.m. on the 21st had been given, and soon after that hour, when all the "wise" men had at length assembled, Double Norwich was trolling forth merrily in the morning air. The latter part of this peal received special attention both within and without the tower, a detachment of College Youths having come down from town for a ring, and the result was some good tapping and a clean and brilliant finish. At this point nine peals (the Leicestershire record) had been completed. "Shall we beat the record?" Of course the answer was unanimously "Yes." Accordingly at 1.0 p.m. sharp, the old ten-part was launched at St. Edmund's—a fine ring, with tenor about 30 cwt. All went well until some way past the first single, when owing to over-anxiety about the tenor-man, who seemed to be unequal to his task, a bob was missed, and "stand" was at once called. Thus the tower-peals of the week—one of Grandsire Triples, three of Stedman Triples, three of Double Norwich, one of Kent Treble Bob, and one of Bob Major, did not beat the record in number. However, the indefatigable Oxford conductor was not yet satisfied, but must needs put a finish to the week by tapping off the Original on handbells. A list of the peals and bands will be found among the peal records. The ringers desire to thank very specially the various clergy and others for the use of the bells, and the great kindness everywhere shown them, and to express their satisfaction with the excellent arrangements made by Mr. Blackburn. OLDBURY, NEAR BIRMINGHAM.

A large clock with chimes has just been erected in the parish church tower, which is fitted with all modern improvements so as to keep time with great accuracy. The dial is illuminated, and automatic apparatus is attached to turn the gas on and off. John Smith and Sons, Midland Clock Works, Derby, have carried out the work.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

O' wad some power the gitties gie us,
To see oursels as ithers see us!

When I saw the announcement last Saturday week that, "if ready," Mr. C. H. Hattersley's portrait would be issued with the succeeding number, I wondered if it would actually come off this time; if "brother Harry" had really found time at last to pay a visit to the photographer; or if, through him playing truant a second time, it would be another case of "swopping" (as they say in Yorkshire). So, no doubt, like a great number of brother-strings, I was glad when I found that the artistic "touch" had come off all right, and that the semblance of his features was at last in my possession. Only two observations on this last portrait I intend to make just now: first, that it is an excellent likeness; and second, that the men of Sheffield ought to be proud in having two such "good men and true" amongst them as brothers Tom and Harry, who have each so well earned the distinction of a place in the "gallery."

* * * * *

I am likewise happy in being able to compliment the energetic captain of the Warnham band on his rooth peal. I will not say that I hope my humble congratulations will be shared in by Mr. Short's own band, and Sussex men generally, for I know his efforts for the benefit of his brethren at home, in the way of helping them on the road to proficiency, are very highly esteemed, and thus this "century" peal will be as gratifying to them as it will have been to himself.

* * * * *

Nor while on the subject of peals, would I omit to notice the one of Double Norwich rung at Hughenden on the 14th inst. That our friend Washbrook has accomplished the feat of getting the local company through this peal after six practices is as creditable to himself as to those who thus scored their first in this method, thanks to his excellent instruction.

* * * * *

"If those members who are masters of the art will only do their best to assist beginners, and beginners themselves will also display more energy, gratifying results are certain to be achieved." So says Mr. Thornton in his annual report at the 108th anniversary of the Society of Trinity Youths. You are quite right, my friend; although this observation was addressed to your own Society only, it applies equally the whole Exercise over. Beginners amongst us often—and, I am sorry to say, too often with good reason—complain that those who consider themselves "masters of the art" do not do their best, or in fact anything at all, to assist them; while on the other hand, these aforesaid "masters" allege that the beginners do not give them sufficient encouragement in the shape of energy, on their part, to warrant them spending time and patience in training them. But as we all know, when a man wants an excuse for neglecting to do something which is required of him, such is not difficult to find, and thus when challenged with negligence in the matter of training recruits, the seniors in the Exercise are only too prone to shelter themselves under the plea that their labours are not appreciated as they ought to be.

* * * * *

There are, it must be admitted, only too good grounds for this excuse. In very many cases beginners have only themselves to thank that they do not receive as much assistance from those "masters of the art" as they might do. How often is it the case that after a whole winter season spent in helping on recruits, no sooner does summer weather come upon us than those on whom the seniors have been expending their time and energies, turn their backs upon the tower in favour of cricketing, bicycling, rowing, or rambling along the country lanes, on practice nights, leaving those who have turned up for their duties to kick their heels against the gravestones, waiting in vain for them to put in an appearance? Then how disheartening it is to find, after weeks and months of anxious training, those upon whom this labour has been bestowed, suddenly developing a penchant for some other hobby, and when remonstrated with, to be coolly told that they haven't time to bother with ringing? I have experienced all this myself, and thus can speak feelingly (to use an old expression) on the subject. But, after all, these untoward circumstances shall I call them?—ought not to stop our efforts for the welfare and continuance of change-ringing. If we do meet with disappointments in this work—if some upon whom we have devoted our energies in training in the science so that they may follow our footsteps and keep the art alive, should so grievously disappoint us by "throwing up the drumsticks" just at the time when they might prove of service and credit to their tutors, surely there is a bright side for us to reflect upon and console ourselves with. Surely there will be some of these beginners who by dint of perseverance and attention to our teaching will so progress as to reward our labours by the sight of their proficiency, surely we shall in the course of time have the pleasure of seeing some—unlike the deserters—who have plodded bravely through the elementary stages acquitting themselves manfully and doing credit both to themselves and their teachers. And then will not this be a satisfactory reward for our labours? It is an old saying—and from personal experience I am inclined to think a true one—that if you get one good ringer out of half-a-dozen beginners you do well; so if in your reckonings up, my senior friends, you find you can lay claim to this proportion, don't trouble yourselves about the five "duffers," but look at the one who has proved a credit to your teaching, and give him another "lift on the way."

* * * * *

The Sussex Association, I am glad to observe, has been moving in the right direction at its annual meeting last Whitsun Monday, by its resolution abolishing future expenditure in allowances for dinners and teas at their meetings. With that piece of commendable retrenchment, combined with the double annual subscription, should place their finances on a very satisfactory footing. Their example, moreover, is well worthy of imitation.

ST. PETER'S AMALGAMATED SOCIETY, SHEFFIELD.

ON Whit-Tuesday the members of the above society had their outing to Grimsby. Leaving Sheffield early in the morning they arrived in Grimsby about 8.30. After refreshing the inner man they proceeded to St. James's parish church, where they were met by Mr. D. Seamer. Ascending the tower (which was rather difficult for some members of the party), they rang several touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples. They then adjourned to St. Andrew's church where touches of Grandsire Triples and Kent Treble Bob Major were rung. Coming out of the belfry they were met by Mr. Charles Jackson, from Hull, who wished to have "some Stedman." Having been obliged after several attempts, they adjourned to Cleethorpes, there to spend the remainder of the day. The party arrived home early, evidently pleased with their outing. They desire to thank the vicars of St. James's and St. Andrew's for the use of the bells; to C. F. Allison, Esq., churchwarden and conductor at St. Andrew's; and to Mr. D. Seamer, of St. James's, for their kindness in having everything in readiness.

SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1890.

THE piece de resistance of this week is the ringing in Wilts and Somerset, by the Rev. F. E. ROBINSON and friends. We should like to have more to say upon this did space allow. One thing we cannot help noticing, and that is the hospitable and kindly manner in which the visitors have been received wherever they went. This fact alone is another proof that Change-Ringing is becoming more popular day by day.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—BLACKBURN BRANCH.

On Saturday, June 21st, a meeting of the above branch was held at Hoghton, when members were present from Blackburn, Church, Hoghton, Oswaldtwistle, and Walton-le-Dale. A substantial tea was provided at the "Boar's Head" hotel, and after doing ample justice to the same, the ringers retired to the belfry where the meeting was subsequently held, presided over by Mr. J. Walker, of Blackburn. It was decided to hold the next meeting at St. Mark's, Preston, on Saturday, July 5th. Votes of thanks to the vicar, wardens, ringers and chairman brought the business to a close, after which touches of Triples, Minor, etc., were rung.

WHY RINGERS AND RINGING ARE NOT APPRECIATED.

SIR,—As a church official and also as a ringer, I wish to thank the Rev. T. L. Papillon and Mr. J. R. Jerram for their letters in your last issue. I can fully endorse their remarks and hope that ringers generally will take the practical well-meant advice to heart, and endeavour to "mend their ways" with regard to attendance at church, and likewise with respect to introducing a little more music into their ringing, and a trifle more consideration for the clergy and the public into their arrangements generally. "GRANDSIRE BOB."

STEDMAN TRIPLES.

SIR,—Our friend the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer has not, it seems, hit upon the true scheme which was conceived by Thurstans for the bob-and-single peal, and the remarks upon this particular peal in your last issue seems to suggest that Thurstans built the thing upon four five-course blocks. Now when I examined the peal at the beginning of last year, it at once occurred to me that Thurstans had built the thing upon the four B blocks with 6-7 behind. If we arrange the four B blocks in such a manner so as to get twenty part-ends with 6-7's, and then arrange the remaining eighty B blocks strictly in accordance with the twenty part-ends, we shall then have before us 840 true six-ends, and shall be in a position to lengthen the twenty parts—which at first only contain two sixes each—to three courses, by a judicious selection of sixes from the other eighty B blocks. The plan is very simple, seeing that what will stand good for one part, will stand good for the twenty; and I cannot conceive that it was by any other that Thurstans obtained the peal. J. J. PARKER.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION AND PRIZE-RINGING.

SIR,—Having read the excellent remarks of "Free Lance" on prize-ringing, I cannot, as an old officer of the above Association refrain from expressing my views on this vexed question, which some ten or twelve years ago gave our committee much trouble; but thanks to the unanimous feeling which always prevailed amongst its officers, it made no progress. I cannot but think the proposer of the motion has omitted to weigh well both sides of the question before bringing it forward at the Skipton meeting. The Yorkshire Association was founded for the benefit of all its members, and not for a few; not for prize-ringing, but for prize-ringers that might learn to "ring out the false and ring in the true;" for mutual intercourse and brotherly feelings, and so raise the moral character and bring out man's better qualities; not for prize-ringing, which so often led to contention, strife, jealousy, and the breaking up of many a good Sunday company. Let the members compare the benefits brought about by our Associations. First—better facilities for learning the art; Second—more sympathy and help from the clergy and churchwardens; Third—bells and belfries much improved; Fourth—pleasant meetings held three times a year, which are always well attended and a source of great enjoyment to those present; Fifth—an annual report, full of interesting information; Sixth—two ringing papers published weekly; and last, but not least, a portrait gallery; all of which were unknown when prize-ringing was at its height. THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN BRANCH.

The usual monthly meeting of this branch took place at Halewood on Saturday, June 21st, when about thirty ringers were present from Liverpool, Garston, Woolton, Grassendale, and Southport, including the local company. The Rev. C. J. Robinson, rector, presided at the meeting in the schoolroom at 6 p.m., and gave a very eloquent address to the ringers on the importance of their office as ringers, as church workers, etc. He also spoke at some length on the Association, he himself being a Life Member, and was very anxious that all his ringers should become members, who eventually were elected, nine in number.

The Secretary (Mr. Hill), then briefly addressed the meeting, expressing his pleasure at having such a nice comfortable meeting, and that the branch was progressing so well.

A vote of thanks to the rector was proposed by Mr. Gough, and seconded by Mr. Aspinwall, for the use of the bells and school, and for presiding, which was carried with applause.

The rector briefly responded, expressing his thanks for the compliment, and was pleased the meeting had been held there that day in such nice weather. He then invited all to a good old English repast, which was very much enjoyed by all present.

Ringling was commenced about 4 o'clock, and kept up at intervals till 9.30 p.m. The following methods were rung: Grandsire Triples, Stedman Triples, and Bob Major.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION OF SIX-BELL RINGERS.

The Annual Meeting of this Association was held at Eccleston on Saturday, June 7th. It was well attended by ringers from the following places: Eccleston, St. Andrew's, Leyland, St. James, Leyland, Chorley, Blackrod, and Standish. The methods rung were London Single Bob, College Single Bob, and Plain Bob Minor. At 6 o'clock an excellent tea was provided at the "Brown Cow" inn, to which about thirty-five members sat down. The General Meeting was held after tea, for the purpose of receiving the Treasurer's accounts, and the election of officers. It was decided to hold the next quarterly meeting at Penwortham in September. Votes of thanks to the officers for their past services, to Mr. James Banister, of Leyland, for presiding, and to the rector for the use of the bells, brought the meeting to a close.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.—ROSSENDALE BRANCH.

The monthly meeting was held on Saturday, June 14th, at St. Thomas's church, Helmshore. There were members present from Bacup (St. Saviour's and Christ Church), Ramsbottom, Rawtenstall, Helmshore, Newchurch, Waterfoot, and London, who rang touches of Grandsire Triples and Bob Minor during the afternoon. It was resolved to hold the next meeting at Bacup on Saturday, July 5th. After the usual vote of thanks the meeting came to a close, and the splendid ring of eight were set going till towards nine o'clock, when all separated.

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. THE CONSTRUCTION OF PEALS OF STEDMAN TRIPLES.

V.

A PROOF OF THE NON-EXISTENCE OF 60 TRUE P BLOCKS.

By W. H. THOMPSON.

1.—A 5040 of Stedman Triples contains 840 sixes. These 840 sixes cannot be marshalled into 60 true P blocks (plain courses), for the following considerations will shew that 20 P blocks are the most that can be had true with one another.

2.—Taking the six-ends of the plain course :—

 3 4 2 6 1 7 5
 3 4 6 7 2 5 1
 4 7 3 5 6 1 2
 4 7 5 1 3 2 6
 7 1 4 2 5 6 3
 7 1 2 6 4 3 5
 1 6 7 3 2 5 4
 1 6 3 5 7 4 2
 6 5 1 4 3 2 7
 6 5 4 2 1 7 3
 5 2 6 7 4 3 1
 5 2 7 3 6 1 4
 2 3 5 1 7 4 6
 2 3 1 4 5 6 7

The leading bells at the quick six-ends of the plain course are in the cyclical order 3471652. Such an order is denominated a "leader-circle." Every P block has its own proper leader-circle.

3.—The four bells behind at any six-end taken in their six-end order are denominated the "characteristic" of that six; e.g., 4567 is the characteristic of the last six of the plain course.

4.—Every six has its own proper characteristic.

5.—In the leader-circle 3471652 of the plain course, 7165 forms a sequence, and 7165, permuted into 6175—the permutation, provided it is always made in the same manner, does not affect the argument—appears as the characteristic of a slow six of the p. c. Similarly, the remaining six sequences of four each, 1652, 6523, 5234, 2347, 3471, 4716, which are contained in the leader-circle 3471652, appear permuted as the characteristics of the remaining six slow sixes of the p. c.

6.—Therefore the characteristics of the slow sixes of any P block form sequences in the leader-circle of that P block. Consequently :—

(a) No two leader-circles can shew the same sequence of four bells, for the corresponding P blocks would repeat at a slow six.

7.—Again, in the leader-circle 3471652 of the p. c., 47065—two-pairs-separated-by-one-bell—permuted into 4567, appears as the characteristic of a quick six of the p. c. Similarly the remaining six "two-pairs-separated-by-one-bell," 7152, 1623, 6534, 5247, 2371, 3416, appear permuted as the characteristics of the remaining six quick sixes of the p. c.

(b) No two leader-circles can shew the same "two-pairs-separated-by-one-bell," for the corresponding P blocks would repeat at a quick six.

9.—Again, with the leader-circle 3471652 of the p. c. the leader-circle 3465271 cannot co-exist, for in the former 6175 is the characteristic of a slow six and in the latter of a quick six. Consequently :—

(c) Two leader-circles cannot co-exist if a "two-pairs-separated-by-one-bell" in either be related to a sequence of four bells in the other as 34012 to 1234, for the corresponding P blocks would repeat, a quick six in the one with a slow six in the other.

10.—Now if the 840 sixes can be formed into 60 true P blocks there must be 60 leader-circles, no two of which infringe anyone of the three conditions (a), (b), and (c).

11.—The number of different cyclical orders of seven bells is 720, of which only half are odd (out of course) and only these 360 are available as possible leader-circles. Note that the leader-circles of even courses are themselves odd rows.

12.—The necessity of compliance with condition (a) will reduce 360 to an available 120; for, of the three possible leader-circles containing the same sequence of four, two will be false.

13.—Similarly, the necessity of compliance with condition (b) will reduce 120 to an available 40.

14.—Lastly the necessity of compliance with condition (c) will reduce 40 to an available 20, there being in this case one false to each true leader-circle instead of, as in cases (a) and (b), two false to each true leader-circle.

15.—Therefore 20 is the greatest number obtainable of true leader-circles, and consequently of true P blocks; and therefore the 60 courses of Stedman Triples are not resolvable into 60 true P blocks.

NOTE BY A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.—If, from the 60 P blocks upon which Hudson's peal is founded, the ten are taken which have any one bell in 6ths place and also the ten that have the same bell in 2nds place at course-ends, these 20 P blocks will be found true with one another. Further reference will be made to this hereafter.

Special attention should be bestowed on the ingenious plan hit upon by Mr. Thompson of using the order of the leading bells at the quick six-ends of a course as the exponent of comparison with other courses. To any who have tried to tabulate the vast number of courses that will repeat with any given course, the beautifully simple proof comprised in the three tests a, b, and c, detailed above, will come as a welcome revelation.

THE OLD EAST DERBYSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting of the above Association was held at Killamarsh on Saturday, June 28th, when ringers from the following places were present: Chesterfield, Norton, Wingfield, Anston, Eckington, and Ecclesfield. Many bands were prevented from attending, owing to a severe thunderstorm which passed over the district about mid-day. The water-pipes in Killamarsh were torn up in one street, and several shop and cottage windows were smashed to atoms. When the storm had passed over, the local company raised the bells in peal, which were kept going by mixed bands until meeting time for business. Mr. J. Shaw, of Ecclesfield, took part in several touches.

The meeting was held in the vestry, the President, Mr. G. Marsden, in the chair. The minutes having been confirmed and five new members elected, it was resolved to hold the next meeting at Norton on Saturday, September 27th. Nothing of any importance being brought before the meeting, and time being limited, a vote of thanks to the chairman soon set the ringers at liberty for another pull on the ropes, which was kept going until train time.

Our correspondent adds: "I will not take the valuable space of 'THE BELL NEWS' up with a column of names and touches which generally occur at such meetings, because I think if less room was taken up in names, the Exercise would get more important news in place."

A PROPERTY SALE.

On Thursday next, July 14th, will be offered for sale by public auction, at "The Royal" hotel, Ross, the property comprising the whole of the estates of Lord Ashburton. One of the residences is known as "Rudhall" (two miles from Ross), once the seat of the Rudhall family. The Gloucester bellfounders were an offshoot of this same family, and curiously enough, cast the whole of the bells in the neighbouring church tower.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

The annual gathering of this Association took place on Monday, June 23rd, at Maidstone. Members attended from Canterbury, Leeds, Maidstone, Ashford, Aylesford, Boughton, Crayford, Elham, Gillingham, Gravesend, Harrietsham, Hernhill, Mallings, Mersham, Rolvenden, Sevenoaks, Sittingbourne, Speldhurst, Staplehurst, Tenterden, Tonbridge, Tunbridge Wells, Woolwich, Wrotham, Ash, Bobbing, Deal, Elmsted, Horsmonden, Kennington, Rochester, Seal, Seal Chart, Swanscombe, Willesborough, Barming, Brabourne, and Frindsbury.

The members attended Divine Service at All Saints' church, which commenced at noon. Prayers were said by the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore, Precentor of Canterbury Cathedral. The first lesson was read by the Rev. E. W. Carpenter, Vicar of Bobbing and Hon. Sec. of the Association; and the second lesson by the Rev. T. S. Curteis, rector of Sevenoaks. An appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. E. F. Dyke, R.D., Vicar of Maidstone, who took for his text part of verse 16 of John ii.—"My Father's house." Selected hymns were sung during the service.

A luncheon followed at 1.30 in All Saints' schools, at which about members were present. The Vicar of Maidstone was in the chair, supported by the Rev. R. B. Knatchbull-Hugessen, Rector of East Grinstead, Sussex (formerly Vicar of Mersham, and founder and first hon. sec. of the Association), Rev. H. R. Merewether (East Peckham), Rev. H. S. F. Marriott (Horsmonden), Rev. F. J. O. Helmore (Canterbury), Rev. E. W. Carpenter (Bobbing, Hon. Secretary of the Association), Rev. T. S. Curteis (Sevenoaks), Rev. A. L. Brine (West Mallings), Rev. J. Parmiter (Ashford), Rev. W. Spear and the Rev. F. S. Cartwright (Maidstone), Rev. J. R. Vincent (Ely), Colonel Knatchbull, Dr. F. Grayling (Sittingbourne), Dr. A. B. Carpenter (Croydon, Hon. Secretary of the Surrey Association), etc. The tables were prettily ornamented with foliage and flowers.

The toast of "The Queen" having been submitted and loyally observed, the Chairman apologised for the absence of the Archdeacon of Maidstone, who had promised to attend, but who had telegraphed to say that he had been unfortunately detained. The Dean of Canterbury was also prevented from being present, and their Maidstone member, Mr. Cornwallis, was also to have been there, but he found that he had an important meeting in London that afternoon, and so he was obliged to be away. He had also received a letter from Mr. H. Knatchbull-Hugessen, M.P., who said: "I wish I could come on the 23rd, but there is not the slightest chance of my getting away. I hope you will have a pleasant afternoon." He (the chairman) thought they would no doubt have a more pleasant afternoon where they were than Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen would. Dr. Plomley, one of the churchwardens of Maidstone, was another absentee who was prevented from attending, and the Chairman said he had to inform them that about sixty letters in all had been received from different gentlemen, which he thought they would take as read. He then called upon the Hon. Secretary to read the annual report.

The Rev. E. W. Carpenter, who was received with loud applause, then presented the report for 1889, which he read as follows:—

"The year 1889 has been an eventful one for the association. In the first place it has had a severe loss in the retirement of the first honorary secretary, the Rev. R. B. Knatchbull-Hugessen, who has worked with untiring energy on behalf of the association since its formation in 1880. Perhaps few of the present members, who now reap the benefit of his work, realize the amount of labour entailed upon the honorary secretary at that time in getting into shape the necessary material upon which to work. The following entry appears in the minutes of the meeting held at Canterbury in the chapter house, on May 18th, 1880: '2. The rules of the association were then read by the Rev. R. B. Knatchbull-Hugessen, and it was proposed by Col. Knight, of Milgate, seconded by Mr. James Harrison, of Folkestone, and carried, that the rules be adopted.' The fact that the rules, as got into shape by the hon. secretary were adopted without amendment, speaks volumes for the way in which he had performed his work. It needs no words from the present secretary to call to mind to members of the association the untiring energy, geniality, and zeal for the best interests of the association which characterized Mr. Hugessen's ten years of office, and the present secretary feels that he has undertaken a task of the greatest difficulty in taking up the work so ably begun. Another important event in the past year has been the remodelling of the constitution of the association, by which the county has been divided into five districts, with centres at Ashford, Canterbury, Maidstone, Rochester, and Tonbridge; a local committee and secretary appointed for each district; and a central committee, consisting of the secretaries and representatives of the districts, the secretary, and treasurer, and not less than five persons elected from the honorary members. This committee is much better able to get through its work in a business-like manner, than the former large and unwieldy meetings. It remains to be seen how far the new constitution will meet the needs of the ringing community in the county; very much, of course, will depend upon the energy and tact of the district secretaries, but the individual members of the association must remember that, without their active co-operation, the work of the secretaries is a very difficult one in extending the branches of the association. There is room for a great increase of enthusiasm on the part of a great many members and bands, and the honorary secretary feels sure that if the members generally took a higher view of their duties and privileges as church officers, the standard of ringing would be much raised, and there would be an increase of brotherly feeling and fellowship between the members; and the miserable disputes and disagreements which are not unknown amongst ringers would soon become things of the past. Let them remember, when they have the ropes in their hands, that they are 'about their Father's business,' and 'in their Father's house,' and they will not be content with anything less than their best. The association now numbers 362 full members, 113 probationers, and 142 honorary members, making a total of 617, which gives the association four representatives on the central council; and there are 49 parishes in union. These numbers appear to indicate a slight decrease from last year, but as the subscriptions show an increase of £23, the names omitted in the present list will appear not to have been of very great value financially. The association has lost the following members by death during the past year—H. Pearce, of Maidstone, died March 27th, 1889, aged 26 years; R. J. Cossom, of Aylesford, died September 13th, 1889, aged 50 years; J. Croucher, of Folkestone, accidentally killed on the railway, October 14th, 1889, aged 43 years; and W. Sloman, of Leeds, died April 25th, 1890, aged 53 years. We also have to lament the death of the Bishop of Dover, one of our vice-presidents, who was present at the first meeting at Canterbury, and moved the first resolution on that occasion. Seven district meetings were held during the year 1889, at which the average attendance was 35. The annual general meeting was held at Canterbury, at which about 200 members were present. An address was given by the Archdeacon of Maidstone, and the Dean of Canterbury presided at the dinner." Thirteen peals were rung by the association in 1889, in the following methods, viz:—Grandsire Caters 1, Kent Treble Bob Major 2, Bob Major 2, Stedman Triples 1, Grandsire Triples 6, Seven 720's of Bob Minor 1, of which F. G. Newman conducted 5. A. E. Nunn, 3, Rev. F. J. O. Helmore, H. G. Fairbrass, F. Still, jun., G. Lindoff, and J. H. Cheeseman, 1 each. The association is to be congratulated on having at length achieved peals of Treble Bob Major, Stedman Triples, and Grandsire Caters. There has been a great advance in the number of peals rung this year. Up to the time of this meeting 27 peals have been reported, conducted by 20 different conductors, in the following methods, viz:—Grandsire Caters 2, Kent Treble Bob Major 2, Grandsire Major 1, Bob Major 1, Stedman Triples 1, Union Triples 3, Canterbury Pleasure Triples 1, Grandsire Triples 12, Bob Triples 1, in three Minor methods 1, in two Minor methods 2; of these, Grandsire Major, Union Triples, and Canterbury Pleasure Triples are first peals by the association. The expenses of the year had been heavy, but the receipts very nearly met them, leaving a deficit of 15s. 2d. only upon the year. The increased expenditure was accounted for by the large number of meetings, and the expenses of printing, postage, etc., in connection with the new constitution, and last year's report. The expenses of the year amounted to £103 12s. 10d., and, with the exception of the 15s. 2d. deficit referred to, these were met by the receipts. The reserve balance in the bank, less the deficit, was £94 os. 4d.

The Honorary Secretary suggested among other things that a small charge be made for a copy of the book of rules supplied to members. He also thought the expenses might be curtailed by sending one copy to a band instead of supplying each individual member with a copy, and resumed his seat amidst cheers. The Rev. F. J. O. Helmore proposed the adoption of the report, and the Rev. T. S. Curteis seconded, the proposition being carried.

amidst applause, while a verbal alteration to one of the rules, suggested by the honorary secretary, likewise received the assent of the meeting.

Colonel Knatchbull submitted the toast of "The Archbishop and Clergy of the Diocese," coupling with it the name of the Vicar, to whom he said they were much indebted for the way in which he had received them that day.

The Chairman, in responding, said the Archbishop was asked to come and preach to them that day. He (the Vicar) knew how glad they would have been to have heard him, but his important duties detained him in London. He trusted that as they moved about from place to place he (the chairman) should have the pleasure of welcoming them at Maidstone again; and if only the Archbishop or some other big preacher would come and address them no one would be more glad than the vicar of Maidstone.

The remainder of the annual business meeting was then transacted. Dr. Grayling moved the re-election of the vice-presidents. This was seconded by the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore, and carried.

Mr. Helmore then proposed the re-election of Mr. George Furley as treasurer. The Rev. R. B. Knatchbull-Hugessen seconded, and this was agreed to.

The Rev. T. S. Curteis moved the re-election of the Hon. Secretary, Mr. Carpenter. A better general secretary he said they could not possibly have, and he most heartily proposed his re-election.

The Rev. A. Brine seconded the proposition, which was put to the meeting by the chairman, and carried amidst deafening cheers.

The Rev. E. W. Carpenter, who said he felt somewhat overwhelmed by their kind reception, briefly acknowledged his election.

The committee having been re-appointed, the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore moved a proposition to the effect that the expenses of the representatives on the Central Council be defrayed by the Association. He thought that every opportunity should be afforded the representatives of attending the meetings of the Central Council, which bore the same relation towards change-ringing as the M.C.C. did towards cricket.

The Rev. A. L. Brine seconded the proposition, which was carried.

The representatives appointed by the association are the Revs. E. W. Carpenter and T. S. Curteis, and Messrs. Richards (Woolwich), and Nunn (Tenterden).

The Rev. H. R. Merewether, in a humorous speech, submitted the toast of "The Churchwardens, the organist, and the choir of All Saints," which was cordially drunk.

Mr. Haigh (Gillingham) threw out the suggestion that the association should provide a better certificate than that now possessed by them. He put this in the form of a proposition, adding that it might be referred to the committee for consideration.

This was seconded, and agreed to.

The Chairman observed that they now came to the most important business of the afternoon, and called on Mr. Helmore.

The Rev. F. J. O. Helmore, who was well received, said a very pleasing task had fallen to his lot, and that was to present the Rev. R. B. Knatchbull-Hugessen with a testimonial that had been subscribed for by the members of the Association. [He here handed to Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen a handsomely bound album, full of beautiful photographs of those churches in the county containing peals of bells, which had been connected with the Association during the period of Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen's secretaryship. The album also contained an illuminated inscription.] He said it did not fall to the lot of every one to institute such a society as the Kent County Association, nor would the formation of such an association be a successful matter in a good many hands; but in Mr. Hugessen's hands it had met with marked success. He had succeeded in overcoming the tremendous obstacles, of which those who knew anything about ringing were aware, in the way of change-ringing, which existed through ignorance. They presented Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen with that album as a slight token of their personal esteem and respect, and more especially as a mark of gratitude for the energetic and loving work he took upon himself in the formation and sustentation of that association. He hoped that he would be pleased with the album, and that in looking at it from time to time he would be pleasantly reminded of the work he had done for the association.

The Rev. R. B. Knatchbull-Hugessen, who was cordially greeted, in acknowledging the presentation remarked upon the wonderful progress that had been made in bell-ringing since the time that he had helped to found that association. It was just ten years ago that the association met at Maidstone, and it was ten years ago last Whitsuntide since it was founded at Canterbury. When the association was first started it was stated that it would not last long or be successful, but he thought that that opinion had now been falsified. He had left them, and had gone to another county, and they knew it was said that a rolling stone gathers no moss; but now that he had left he learnt that he had done several things of which he had not heard hitherto. He must congratulate them upon the great success in the association that he saw. He thought that he did quite right to leave them when he did. It might be that he had borne the burden and heat of the toil in establishing the association, but now that they had been pulled up the hill, as it were, and had reached level ground, they wanted to go faster. It required one class of horse to pull up a hill, but a different animal was required to get over level ground; and now that they had been pulled up the hill, and had reached level ground, in Mr. Carpenter they would find that they had a fast trotter. He was struck to see the great strides that they had made in change-ringing; yet there was one thing which was more important still, and that was the cordial understanding and the brotherly feeling that had grown between all members of the association, especially between the clergy and the ringers. There was a time when this used not to be, and he had known clergymen to give up livings when they heard that there was a peal of bells in their churches, because ringers were said to be a funny sort of people to deal with. But now a fraternal, kindly feeling had grown up between the clergy and the ringers, and he was glad if he had been the smallest means of bringing that about. He congratulated the members upon their financial condition. Both financially and socially the association was progressing, and he was very happy to have been the means of starting it. He was pleased to see old faces, and new faces also, as it showed that they had a large accession to their numbers, and he was glad to say that in their present secretary they had a man who was able to lead them to greater success than they had as yet achieved.

The toast of "The Press" was drunk, and the proceedings then terminated.

The company afterwards dispersed, and some of the ringers visited a few of the belfries in the neighbourhood of Maidstone in the course of the day. Merry peals were rung on the bells at All Saints' church during the afternoon.

RE-OPENING OF BEDINGHAM CHURCH BELLS, NORFOLK.

The five bells of this church, tenor 11 cwt., have been quarter-turned and rehung with all new fittings on the latest improvements for change-ringing, and the frame-work has been strengthened with new oak, bolts, etc. The work has been carried out by Messrs. Henry Howell and Son, Church Bell Hangers, Ipswich, Suffolk. They were re-opened after several years' silence on Sunday, June 8th, 1890, by a mixed band. The bells were pulled off at 5.30 a.m. by J. Bentley, 1; B. Becket, 2; H. Howell, 3; B. Burgess, 4; A. Howell, 5. Also some well-struck touches of Grandsire and Plain Doubles were rung. Mr. Baker, from Ditchingham, and several ringers from the neighbouring parishes attended during the day, and touches of Antelope and Gog Magog, etc., were rung. Everyone was highly pleased with the "go" of the bells, which reflect great credit on the above firm. The following are the inscriptions on the bells: Treble—"John Taylor of Loughborough, 1342"; Second—"Tms Cooper, rector, W.S. churchwardens, John Goldsmith Fecit 1710"; Third—"Pack and Chapman of London, Fecit 1778"; Fourth—"Anno Domini 1573"; Tenor—only the alphabet. It is supposed to be the work of R. Simpson, who had a foundry at Aish Priors, near Taunton.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

OPENING OF A NEW PEAL AT TANFIELD, DURHAM.

On Saturday, June 21st, this Association took part in the opening of the new peal of six bells at St. Margaret's, Tanfield, county Durham, and, although this village is three miles distant from a railway station, the opening was in every respect most successful, owing, to a great extent, to the fact that it was conducted by the Vicar and those in authority, on the lines that every bona fide ringer likes, that is, all the ringers of the neighbourhood were invited to take part in the ceremony, and it was not confined, as unfortunately is so often the case, to a single band of ringers. About nineteen ringers attended, beside the local band, being made up of the President of the Association, Mr. R. S. Story; one of the Vice-presidents, Mr. Clark, of Ripon; Mr. L. Newton, of Durham, Hon. Sec.; Mr. Reed, North Shields; two from Bishopwearmouth; four from Winlaton; three from Jarrow; two from Newcastle; and four from Durham. The bells were raised by the visitors about 5 p.m., after they had been entertained to a cold collation at the adjacent inn; and at 5.30 the service was held. The Vicar, the Rev. T. H. Archdall, had prepared and had had nicely printed, a special service, which had received the approval of the Bishop of Durham, and after the shortened evening service, and during a processional hymn, Bishop Sandford, coadjutor-Bishop of Durham, clergy, and choir proceeded to the tower, standing under the belfry floor. A course of Plain Bob Minor was then rung, after which the service of dedication was proceeded with. Bishop Sandford preached a most appropriate and interesting sermon to a large and appreciative congregation, the text being Exodus xxviii., verses 33-35. A pleasing reference was made by the Bishop to the fact that the peal was free from debt, and it may be stated that the bulk of the cost of the bells was generously subscribed by Mr. T. D. Eden, of Beamish Park, the rest being raised by public subscription. It is also interesting to learn that since the present Vicar, the Rev. T. H. Archdall, has been in the parish, he has been instrumental in raising some £3500 for the restoration and improvement of the church, the last addition of a peal of bells being highly appreciated by the inhabitants of the neighbourhood. During the offertory the bells were rung, and after the Benediction the first 720 was rung—Kent Treble Bob Minor—in 26½ mins., by the following: T. Clark, 1; W. Reed, 2; W. Story, 3; R. S. Story, 4; C. L. Routledge, 5; F. Harrison (conductor), 6. A 720 of Bob Minor followed, being rung by G. Atkinson, 1; R. C. Hudson, 2; G. T. Ross, 3; J. E. Avery, 4; Z. Scott, 5; T. S. Gofton (conductor), 6. Rung in 27 mins. Also 720 Oxford Treble Bob Minor. C. Bradford, 1; W. G. Newton, 2; R. S. Story, 3; J. E. Avery, 4; L. Newton, 5; F. Harrison (conductor), 6.

The bells are an exceedingly pretty peal of six by Messrs. Warner, and gave the ringers present every satisfaction both as regards music, correctness of tune, and going. The tenor bell, which weighs 13 cwt., bears the inscription "Hora Fugit Ora. T. H. Archdall, M.A., Vicar; N. Clark, W. J. Hancock, Churchwardens, 1890." Seven of the ringers stayed overnight to ring on Sunday, and were joined by another from Jarrow on Sunday morning. For early Communion 720 Woodbine Treble Bob was rung. A. English, 1; T. Clark (first 720 in the method), 2; T. S. Gofton (first 720 in the method), 3; R. S. Story, 4; W. Story, 5; F. Harrison (conductor), 6. Morning service was attended by all the visitors, after which they rang a 720 of Oxford Bob as the congregation parted. T. Clark, 1; Z. Scott, 2; R. S. Story, 3; W. Story, 4; W. Henderson, 5; F. Harrison (conductor), 6. Thanks to the arrangements of the Vicar, and the kind invitation of T. D. Eden, Esq., a most enjoyable afternoon was spent in the gardens and woods of Beamish Park, the party being entertained to tea by Mr. Eden. After ringing for evening service the ringers left for their train to Newcastle, having spent a most enjoyable time in Tanfield. Their thanks are hereby tendered to the genial Vicar, the local ringers, and all the friends who contributed towards making their visit such a success. Owing to the pleasant situation of the church the bells can be heard throughout several of the beautiful valleys in the neighbourhood, and the local ringers, who have already got so far as to be able to ring rounds, intend to join the Association, Mr. F. Harrison, of Jarrow, having kindly undertaken their instruction in change-ringing.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES' ASSOCIATION.

The First Quarterly Meeting of the year was held at Ashby-de-la-Zouch on Saturday, June 28th. A Committee Meeting was held in the parish church vestry at 5.30 p.m. Tea and General Meeting at the "Queen's" hotel at six o'clock, about forty members and friends being present, including the Rev. Jno. Denton, vicar of Ashby; Mr. Charles Matthews, churchwarden; and representatives from Ashby, Burton, Duffield, Long Eaton, Melbourne, Nottingham, and Sandiacre. One honorary and two ringing members were unanimously elected.

The President in his usual address stated that only seven peals had been rung since the Annual Meeting on Easter-Monday, but made special reference to the peal of Stedman Triples rung at Loughborough, the peal of Stedman Triples rung at Lincoln Cathedral by the St. Paul's society, Burton, and the peal of Cambridge Surprise rung at Duffield, which was the first peal in the method by all except the conductor, and concluded by stating that the Association with twenty-two peals for the year stood fourth amongst the societies of the kingdom. It was also unanimously agreed to elect the representatives to the Central Council at the next quarterly meeting; nominations to be sent in writing to the Hon. Sec. on or before August 31st next, signed by two members of the Association.

The President proposed a very hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar of Ashby for the use of the bells that day, and his presence at the meeting, which was carried with acclamation.

The Vicar in reply stated how pleased he always was to meet the Association, and how greatly he was indebted to the local members for the very able manner in which they carried out their duties at the parish church, and in conclusion proposed a very hearty vote of thanks to the society and President for once more visiting Ashby-de-la-Zouch.

Nottingham was unanimously chosen for the next Quarterly Meeting, which will take place about the first Saturday in October.

The Hon. Sec. wishes to draw the attention of members to the election of representatives to the Central Council, and to inform them that the names of the members nominated will be published in "THE BELL NEWS" on Saturday, September 6th.

RE-OPENING OF MATHERN (MON.) BELLS.

ON Wednesday, June 18th, the ring of six bells at Mathern, near Chepstow, were re-opened after having been completely refitted and rehung in a new oak frame by Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. For the re-opening service the Caerleon society rang 6-scores of Grandsire, Plain Bob, and Stedman Doubles, and courses of Grandsire, Kent, and Plain Bob Minor. The preacher on the occasion was the Rev. Pitt Eykyn, vicar of Magor, a reference to whose sermon appeared in last week's number. For the evening service the society rang 720 Kent Treble Bob Minor. The work of restoration has been thoroughly well done, and the "go" of the bells leaves nothing to be desired.

LEEDS AND DISTRICT AMALGAMATED SOCIETY.

The usual monthly ringing meeting of the above society was held at Burley (six bells) on Saturday, June 28th. Representatives were present from Leeds, Holbeck, Huddersfield, Armley, Pudsey, Huddersfield, and Burley, and some very good ringing was performed in Violet, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, and Plain Bob. The bells were kept going till 9.30 in the evening. A unanimous vote of thanks to the vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells, and to the Burley company for their arrangements, brought a very successful and enjoyable meeting to a close.

A NOTED ANCESTOR.

It will be remembered that during the week's ringing in the West of England by the Rev. F. Robinson and others, a full report of which appeared in our last number, that gentleman scored his 300th peal. This was at Frome, Somersetshire. In that peal the Rev. H. A. Cockey rang the 6th, and it is worthy of remark that that very bell was cast by his (Mr. Cockey's) grandfather's grandfather, "Wm. Cockey, Bellfounder 1746." The foundry was in Frome. The two trebles were also cast by him.

NOTES OUT OF THE WAY.

"The Pen is mightier than the Sword."

My distinguished friend whose contributions appear weekly in this journal, to the great edification of many of us, is indisposed somewhat, and unable to pen his notes in time for this number. Though every reader of "THE BELL NEWS" will deeply regret that "Free Lance" will be invisible this week, I have the modesty to think that I, his substitute for the nonce, will afford my readers equal pleasure and satisfaction. I am not given to boasting as a rule, but I believe that after this week Mr. Editor will think it worth while to engage my constant services. I hope this introduction of myself, and also what follows, will completely show my retiring and shy disposition.

* * * * *

Now to business. I shall not servilely imitate the style of any of those distinguished men who write now and then for our paper. I prefer my own style, which I am certain is the very best. I am always original, if not fresh. I am certain of this also, as I am of everything else I say or do. When I make a statement I stick to it, and no amount of argument or persuasion will ever make me retract any position I have taken up. In fact I am always right. If engaged in a peal, which comes to grief (the condition to which most attempts at peals I am engaged in arrives sooner or later) I am the only one who has not made any error. The conductor, aided by other members of the company, always attempts to fix the blame on me, telling me with most astounding vehemence that I always miss making thirds, or the dodge in 4-5 up or 8-9 down, but it has not the least effect on me. I do not condescend in such cases to reason the matter, or suffer to be convinced. Certainly not. I know I am right, and all the rest are wrong. There are other ringers no doubt who under similar circumstances act the same as I do; and who also think themselves quite right in doing so.

* * * * *

I adopt the only proper position while ringing a bell. I place one foot eighteen inches in advance of the other, and make a graceful bend with the whole of my body when pulling the back-stroke. I know that the members of my company call this motion by a very uncomplimentary term, but what care I for that? The best of ringers make a graceful bend, and therefore take me as their copy. Truly imitation in this, as in other things, is the sincerest form of flattery. Sometimes I put my two sets of fingers in the loop at the end of the rope, and pull the back-stroke that way. This does not meet with general approval, one of my fellow-ringers having forgot himself so far as to refuse to ring with me unless, as he said, I held the rope properly. This man, it should be understood, owes me a grudge because on one occasion when we were ringing—he at the 4th and I at the 5th—my rope nearly got round his neck. That ringer never rings near me now if he can help it.

* * * * *

It will hardly be wondered that I am a most active and expert composer. As it is however a fact that true genius is always modest, I shall refrain from enlarging upon this portion of my abilities. I have composed several peals, corrected and revised the compositions of various well-known authors, among whom may be mentioned Holt, Annable, Reeves, Shipway, and several of the moderns, but as yet my own compositions are unknown to fame. Jealousy is evidently the cause of this. I only know that I have repeatedly sent figures of my peals to the censor of the composition column, accompanied with the usual fee of One Shilling for proving, but they have been returned to me with the word "false" marked in red ink across them. Other peals have been returned with a very brief note to the effect that they have been already published as the composition of so-and-so. But I have a lurking suspicion in my breast that these are merely canards to stop me in my onward career. If I once get engaged on the literary staff I shall find out my jealous opponent.

* * * * *

After reading the above it will hardly be doubted that of bob-callers I am among the best. But in this case also I suffer from the green-eyed monster. Members of a band in an unsuccessful attempt at a peal when I have been calling, have been imprudent enough to question my knowledge of the composition. It is a fact that owing to my great objection to publicity of any kind my name has not yet appeared as conductor. Nevertheless my efforts in this way are very great triumphs indeed. Bands who are struggling to get their first peal, needing the services of one who knows his business, apply to me. I only stipulate that the day arranged for the peal shall be kept a secret, and that my expenses be paid.

* * * * *

Readers of this paper have not yet seen my features among the galaxy of talent which forms the ringers' portrait gallery. I have in vain sent my portrait, with history of my life detailed up to date, to the chief of the literary staff, who does not vouchsafe me the slightest sign as to when it will appear. I have offered to pay the cost of producing the portraits, but no effect has followed this offer. I am convinced that the omission of my portrait will be fatal to the completeness of the gallery, and I shall therefore take steps to produce it in another way. I am strongly of opinion that the Exercise, after reading this week's paper, will be most anxious not only to know the name of the distinguished writer who is "Free Lance's" locum tenens, but to become acquainted with his facial lineaments. My friends, you shall have your desires gratified at whatever cost.

* * * * *

I should be very much disturbed in my mind if I thought that anyone had the least idea, after reading the foregoing paragraphs, that modesty is not an inherent part of my nature. Of course in what I have said I could have blown my own trumpet loudly had I desired to do, but I believe in the old adage that "self-praise is no recommendation." If I had not constantly had this saying before me I am afraid I should have "bragged myself up" to a degree which would be most repulsive to readers of "THE BELL NEWS." Therefore the self-denial I have practised in writing these "notes" must be commendable on my part, and perfectly understood by those ringers who estimate their own merits and capabilities as I do mine. And I have in my mind's eye several, in fact many, who so regard their own powers.

* * * * *

I will conclude these wise remarks in joining with my readers in the hope that our mutual friend "Free Lance" may quickly recover from his indisposition. Should he desire a respite for another week, I shall feel proud to fill his place once again. It may be that in my next "notes" I shall have got rid of my rusticity. This first entrance into print may give me a little assurance, a commodity which I certainly do not at present possess. Next time I may be able to say something about myself.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1890

A peal of bells has lately been opened by members of the Durham and Newcastle Association at a place named Tanfield, in the County of Durham, of which full particulars will be found on another page. What we wish here is to accentuate the observations of the President of the above Association—who furnishes the report—with reference to "the lines" on which this opening was arranged. Mr. STORY intimates that it was conducted by those in authority in the manner which is approved of by bona fide ringers, that plan being a general invitation to the whole of the ringers in the neighbourhood to take part in the ceremony, and not to confine it to one single band of ringers. Such an excellent arrangement is not new with those in authority in our northern association, for it is in our recollection that the late Hon. Secretary—Mr. G. J. CLARKSON—was very severe upon any hole-and-corner measures when an "opening" was on the tapis.

It would be well if those in authority in other Associations and Societies were to imitate the example set by our brethren of Durham. Matters of this description are not so infrequent as is supposed; but there are certain people who claim to have a freehold in such transactions, to the total exclusion of all others. If however the example above referred to is repeated in other quarters we shall certainly see the abolition of those secret conclaves which are prevalent whenever an opening is on dit, and the discomfiture thereby of all who only continue their bare connection with ringing on account of these and other perquisites.

MR. ATTREE'S usual analysis will appear next week. It is already in type, but crowded out at the last moment. A Portrait will be issued with the next number—Mr. W. J. SEVIER, of Gloucester. We again call attention to the Johnson Memorial Fund. It is incumbent upon every reader of this journal to assist this movement all they can. We hope to see the metropolitan section of the Exercise to the fore in the next list. The members of the Committee who represent the metropolitan societies are we hope alive to the fact that their duties are of a useful, and not merely of an ornamental character.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

The Annual Meeting in connection with the above society was held on Saturday, June 21st, at Lichfield, and members attended from Burton, Darlaston, Handsworth, Harborne, Lichfield, Perry Barr, Tamworth, Tipton, Walsall, West Bromwich, Wolverhampton, and Willenhall. Ringing commenced on the cathedral bells shortly after two o'clock with a touch of Grandsire Triples. A committee meeting was held in the belfry, when some new members were elected. A discussion also arose as to the cause that the members of the society could not obtain permission to ring a peal on the cathedral bells, when ringers outside the society had done so; but as no committee-man for Lichfield was present, a satisfactory answer was not obtained. A short service was held in the Lady Chapel of the cathedral, which was well attended by the members present, and an excellent address delivered by the Rev. Canon Mortimer, of Lichfield. Tea was served at the Coffee House, and full justice done to the good things provided. The Treasurer, the Rev. C. H. Joberns, read the balance-sheet, which showed a balance on the right side.

The Treasurer and Secretaries were re-elected. The Rev. Canon Mortimer was elected an honorary member of the society, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to him for his kindness in addressing the members at the service. As the time was getting on, and the return train leaves Lichfield rather early, the meeting dispersed to the towers of the cathedral and St. Mary's church, where ringing was the order of the evening for the little time that was left.

THE CHEPSTOW RINGERS AT REDWICK.

SIR,—In "THE BELL NEWS" of April 19th appeared an interesting report of the the Chepstow Ringers' visit to Magor and Redwick, where they rung some 6-scores, which was supposed to be the first ever rung at the last named church. Well, a good many years ago, an old ringer told me that when he was a young man, being a member of the Llandenny band (a village on the G. W. R. situate between Usk and Raglan) they had a two days' outing in the South Eastern part of Monmouthshire; they visited Magor, Redwick, Portskewett, and Penhow. I do not remember any other places, but they rung a large number of 6-scores, many of them with extremes in. Very probably it is sixty years ago or perhaps longer than that, so our Chepstow friends cannot claim the laurels for ringing the first 6-scores on Redwick bells. And to show how conservative some of the old ringers were, my old informant told me that when he rung his first 6-score the conductor (an old farmer) asked him who taught him the method? On the answer being given, the old conductor said in a very angry tone that "he would not have taught his own son."

P.S.—The six bells at Llandenny are not a peal, as the treble is an octave above the tenor, the 2nd is about right for treble. If the treble was taken to foundry and recast with additional metal so as to make a good 2nd, then it would be a fair little peal of six.

AN OMISSION.

SIR,—I find that I omitted to mention the marked kindness shewn by the Rev. A. Coode, of Wells, to the members of the Salisbury Association, on the occasion of their recent visit to Wells. The rev. gentleman kindly entertained them at supper, lodged one or two of them for the night, and accompanied them to the station in the morning.

Will you kindly express our regret that these facts were omitted in last week's account, and our best thanks to one of our many kind entertainers, and oblige, yours truly,
Drayton Vicarage, Berks.

F. E. ROBINSON.

THURSTANS' BOB-AND-SINGLE PEAL.

SIR,—Mr. Parker does not seem to appreciate the difference between a "ground plan" and an "elevation." That the composers of these early peals made use of B blocks as guides in the construction of their compositions no one, I suppose, will care to deny; and in the first part of my paper I assume that they were so used. But B blocks would not at the outset furnish a composer with a definite plan on which to construct. This would be thought out previously. My object was to give a clear account of this plan, and to represent the sort of argument that Thurstans would have used in proposing it to himself. To assume that Thurstans started from a true series of B blocks and threw his peal together from them off-hand, without having formed any previous plan, is to assume too much. He could hardly have caught the inspiration for the peculiar plan he adopted from the contemplation of B blocks; guide him in construction they would, and did, no doubt; but that would be a subsequent process. The elaboration of the plan must have preceded it, and the foundation of the plan is unquestionably a five-course block.

FALSE COMPOSITIONS.

Mr. Martin, of Hendon, writes:—"Kindly say this week that the peal published by me in your last issue is false. I am sorry to have troubled you with it, but it was an error on my part."

The peal of Canterbury Pleasure Major by E. Barnett, of Crayford, published in last week's number, is false.

It is requested that those who send compositions for proving and wish for a reply through the post, will allow a stamped addressed envelope to accompany their communications.

THE HERTFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.—DISTRICT MEETING AT BALDOCK.

A District Meeting of this Association was held at Baldock on Saturday, June 21st, at which were present L. Proctor (President), Messrs. E. P. Debenham (Hon. Sec.), G. W. Cartmel (Assistant Hon. Sec.), Robert Jackson, Richard Jackson, T. Webb, W. Bidnell, sen., W. Bidnell, jun., J. Cawdell, G. Gentle, J. Craft, A. Thurgood, E. Bray, J. Phillips (Baldock), J. Gray (Graveley), J. C. Mitchell (St. Albans), N. Warner, J. Warner, John Kitchener, Josh. Kitchener, C. Shambrook, W. Smith, L. Chapman, S. Page (Benington), and J. Hare (Hitchin). During the afternoon and evening touches of Superlative Surprise, Double Norwich, Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples were rung upon the bells of St. Mary's church. At 5.30 p.m. an adjournment was made to the "George and Dragon" hotel where an excellent tea was provided for the members at which Mr. Proctor presided, supported by the Rector, the Rev. W. J. Skilton. After tea a business meeting was held, and the minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the provisional election of F. G. Newman, of Walthamstow, as a ringing member was confirmed. The following were duly elected ringing members: Messrs. Pettit and Dawe (London); J. Gray (Graveley); J. E. Randall, R. Hammond, R. Weatherley, and C. H. Biggs (St. Albans); A. J. Bate, W. Oakley, H. Hurst, and E. E. Huntley (Bushey). The Rev. T. H. Kynaston, rector of Bushey was also elected an hon. member. The Hon. Sec. reported the result of the meeting of the Provisional Committee for the formation of the Central Council, and Mr. Proctor was chosen to represent the Association on the Central Council. On the proposal of the Hon. Sec., seconded by the President, a vote of sympathy was accorded to the parents and family of the late Mr. R. M. Pratt, of St. Albans, in the loss they had sustained. On the proposition of the president, the next District Meeting was decided to be held at St. Albans. A vote of thanks was accorded to the rector for the use of the bells on this occasion, which was suitably acknowledged. After the transaction of other routine business, the members made their way to the tower for another pull. It is satisfactory to note that at the meeting the first move was made towards getting the bands of Graveley and Bushey in union with the Association, and if this can be followed at the next meeting by the joining of the remainder of the ringers at those churches, a decided step will have been made by the Association.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, DARLINGTON.

ON Saturday afternoon, June 28th, the members of the above church with a friend from St. Cuthbert's church, had a trip by brake to Bolton-on-Swale. A very pleasant afternoon was spent, the ride out being thoroughly enjoyed. The following touches were brought home: A 720 Oxford Treble Bob. F. Teasdale, H. Taylor, 2; W. Pallon, 3; R. Moncaster, 4; J. Little, 5; J. H. Whitfield (conductor), 6. Also a 720 College Single, F. Teasdale, 1; H. Taylor, 2; R. Moncaster, 3; J. Whitfield, 4; J. Little, 5; J. H. Whitfield (conductor), 6. *From St. Cuthbert's society and first 720 in the method.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

MR. W. J. SEVIER, OF GLOUCESTER.

MR. SEVIER was born in Gloucester on December 2nd, 1864, and is therefore in his twenty-sixth year. He commenced his ringing career when quite young, his first introductions to the ringing-chamber being at Hasfield and Staunton, near Gloucester, but the latter place—a five-bell tower—was where his first change-ringing was done; and here in conjunction with his friend, Mr. F. E. Hart, he frequently visited, and with the help of three of the local band they rang the twenty-four changes so many times that on one holiday time when at this business, the main arch of the tower cracked to a considerable extent, thus putting an end to their ringing at that place. His next attempt at ringing was at the church of St. Mary de Lode, in the city of Gloucester, a six-bell tower, where with the help of some of the old ringers of that place, he soon rang his first 6-score. At that time his abilities in composing were far beyond his ringing, for he was so advanced as to have composed a peal of Bob Major before he rang his first 6-score. As a conductor and heavy bell ringer he is well in with most of his brother-strings; at home at either end. He has visited most of the large towns in England, and has rang at nearly 150 churches and accomplished peals in thirty-seven of them. For some time he resided in Manchester and soon became a member of that society, and his performances done there in so short a time was well-known. During his stay at the Lancashire city he was regarded as a successful ringer. His last performances there were a peal of Treble Bob Major at Manchester, rang in the afternoon of December 27th, followed by a peal of Royal in the evening, both peals being conducted by Mr. James Moulton, of Chester. There was only about an hour's interval between the two peals. On January 3rd, at St. Mary's church, Eccles, he took part in Mr. Harrison's 10,176 of Treble Eight, and the next day at St. Peter's, Ashton-under-Lyne, followed a 5184 in the same method, both conducted by Mr. Samuel Wood. These performances completed our friend's work in that part of England, as he left the neighbourhood soon after to take the office of Instructor to the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association. In that position he did good work in the district of Thornbury, and with the assistance of Mr. James Hinton, of Bristol, accomplished Holt's ten-part peal with a few weeks' practice with the local band. He was also mainly instrumental in having the tower restored at that place, which was done at a cost of £1000, the four pinnacles being replaced by new ones. Thornbury church, with its noble peal of bells, tenor 25 cwt., is one of the finest of the kind in England, the structure being similar to Gloucester Cathedral.

MR. SEVIER is an important member of the St. Michael's Juniors society of Gloucester, and has been so since its formation, in fact it is chiefly through him that this society has come to so successful an issue. The visitors to the "fair city" always find him obliging, and it is not his fault if they do not score a peal, in which he is invariably ready to take part, putting himself to any inconvenience by ringing the worst going bell in the tower if necessary. He is a composer in various methods, but seldom publishes his peals, preferring to keep them in store for his own band. He is a safe conductor when calling, the peal being rarely lost through his fault. Our friend is a member of the Lancashire and Midland Counties' Associations, Worcestershire and Adjoining Districts, Birmingham Amalgamated, the Ancient Society of College Youths, St. Martin's Guild, Gloucester and Bristol Association, and the Painswick Youths, the latter place being a favourite spot of his, he having conducted the first peal there for nearly thirty years. On this occasion the 7th bell of the back eight had previously been pronounced unringable, yet he rang her and called the peal. His performance of ringing a 23 cwt. tenor through seven 720's in the month of June at the parish church of Charlton Kings, near Cheltenham, will not be soon forgot by those that took part in it. He has rang sixty-five peals in the following methods: Treble Bob Royal, Grandsire and Stedman Caters, Treble Bob Major, Plain Bob Major, Grandsire Major, Canterbury Major, Grandsire Triples, and Plain Bob Triples, and has conducted twenty peals in all, independent of 720's in fifteen different methods.

We may close this memoir by saying that MR. SEVIER bids fair to hold a very high position upon the roll of Gloucestershire ringers.

THE LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN GUILD.

ON Saturday, June 28th, a highly and successful meeting of the above Guild was held at Sefton, when upwards of forty members attended from the following places, viz., Aughton, Crosby, Crossens, Halsall, Hindley, Ormskirk, Southport, and Upholland. At 3 p.m. the bells were opened for ringing, and several touches of Grandsire and Bob Minor were successfully brought round. At 4 p.m. service was held in the church, and was well attended by the ringers and several members of the congregation. The prayers were read by the Rev. A. W. Clamptett, and appropriate hymns were sung, after which a spirited address was delivered to the ringers by the Rev. W. T. Bulpit, which was listened to with rapt attention. The ringers and several members of the congregation then sat down to an excellent meat tea in the school-room, course after course coming up in good style; and justice being done to the inner man the ringers adjourned for a short time for the tables to be cleared, which being done they again assembled for the meeting. Mr. J. Martin being voted to the chair, called upon the secretary to read the minutes of the last meeting, which were read and confirmed. The chairman then addressed the ringers and gave them a hearty welcome to Sefton. He was well pleased to see so good an attendance, and would do all he could to help the Guild in every possible way.

The Rev. W. T. Bulpit said he was glad to say that they were steadily increasing in numbers, and was pleased that the vicar of Upholland and the ringers from there had joined as members of the Guild, and that there had that day joined 2 life members, 3 honorary members, and 12 performing members. A great many would join when the Guild was more thoroughly known, and it spoke well for the manner in which the Guild was being worked, all the officials in connection with the Guild doing their work in a thorough earnest and steady manner.

Several items of interest were discussed, one of them being the establishment of a mutual friendly society in connection with the Guild, and it was proposed and seconded that the matter be brought forward for discussion in each belfry, and to report at the next meeting. After a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman for presiding and also for the use of the bells and school-room, and for providing so excellent a tea, a most successful and harmonious meeting was brought to a close.

BOW, DEVON.

The bells of this church (five in number) which have been silent for a long time, have lately been rehung with all new fittings complete, and the frame repaired and strengthened. The work has been satisfactory carried out by Mr. Harry Stokes, church bell hanger, of Woodbury, near Exeter. Mr. Stokes has also very lately fixed the Ellacombe chiming apparatus to the bells of St. Mary at Arches church, Exeter, Eye church, Herefordshire, and Beetham church, Westmoreland.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

SUPPLEMENT TO "THE BELL NEWS"

PRESENTATION TO A RINGER.

On Thursday evening, July 3rd, the half-yearly meeting of the Bradford Parish Church Company was characterised by a very pleasing incident. After the ordinary business had been transacted, Mr. J. H. Hardcastle, chairman, claimed the indulgence of those present for a few minutes, while he briefly reviewed the past history of ringing at Bradford. This he did in an interesting manner, referring to those who had occupied the tower from the arrival of the present peal in 1846, up to the present. Out of the ringers of the former period only two or three, he said, were now living; and of those who immediately followed in the work of ringing only one had stuck to his post and remained amongst them. That one was Abraham Moulson. He then gracefully alluded to the loyal manner in which Mr. Moulson had always attended to his duties, assuring him that if he had lost his old comrades and brother strings, he could have the satisfaction of knowing that those who had followed, and with whom he now rung, were not in the slightest degree behind their predecessors in the respect which they bore towards him. As evidence of this, they had procured a little token which he might wear, and thus be constantly reminded of the esteem in which he was held by them. He then called upon Mr. James Angus, who handed to Mr. Moulson a massive silver albert, with silver bell appendage bearing the inscription "Presented to Mr. A. Moulson by the Bradford Parish Church Ringers, July 3rd, 1890." In doing so Mr. Angus expressed the earnest hope that Mr. Moulson might be spared for a very long time to come to wear that little token of regard, and to feel in his declining years that he was so highly respected by those with whom he had been connected in ringing. Mr. Moulson, in accepting the gift, which had come to him as a great surprise, he having had no inkling of it previously, thanked the members for their present which he said he should value and treasure as long as he lived. The company separated at an early hour.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF PEALS OF STEDMAN TRIPLES.

VI.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

THE PRINCIPLES OF TWIN-BOB COMPOSITION.

As it is now proved that 60 true P blocks of Stedman Triples are unattainable we return to the nearest approach to a true set that has been discovered, namely the P blocks of Hudson's peal, which, as I have already stated, form the foundation of every subsequent composition. The almost miraculous way in which these P blocks fit in with the twin-bob treatment will unfold itself as we proceed. Suffice it to say here that, throughout the length and breadth of the science of campanology, there is nothing to approach the exquisitely balanced inter-relation that exists between these 60 P blocks and the twin-bob treatment of the method.

When I first commenced to enquire into Stedman Triples I was under the impression that Hudson's 60 course-ends, if pricked each to a full course, would produce 60 true P blocks. A letter came to me about that time from the Rev. Charles Davies in which he remarked that in his opinion any 60 P blocks would be found to contain repetitions in the sixes in which the observation bell was in the front. I very shortly discovered that he was correct, for, on completing the tabulation of the 60 P blocks, I found that the 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 12th sixes of each block repeated with sixes in other blocks. It was then that I wrote to Mr. Thompson asking him to endeavour to ascertain whether 60 true P blocks were possible. In reply I received an answer in the negative, together with the able and conclusive argument detailed in No. V. of these papers.

Seeing then that 60 true P blocks were not to be had, I determined to set to work upon Hudson's P blocks and discover the exact nature of the repetitions they contain, as also the mode in which, when the blocks are formed into a peal, these repetitions are avoided. It seemed to me that, supposing a more serviceable set of P blocks to be obtainable, it was useless to try for them until I had mastered the defects of the existing set. At the same time I was inclined to think that, from the number of peals formed from them, this set must either be the only one possible, or possess some peculiarly valuable features which were not apparent upon the surface. I need hardly say that while the former of these suppositions is in all probability correct, the latter most undoubtedly is so, and to an extent that would hardly be credited by any who have not gone thoroughly into the subject. We shall see presently how perfectly Hudson's 60 P blocks are adapted for their purpose.

The annexed table A contains the 60 quick six-ends, having the 7th at home, or course-ends, of these P blocks. The arrangement is that of the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer, and is adopted to facilitate the connection with my own of the results of his enquiry into the subject which will appear later. In order to a clear understanding at the outset I may state that throughout the remainder of these papers the 7th will be assumed to be the observation bell, undisturbed by bobs. It will be further assumed that whatever is true of the 7th as an observation bell is equally applicable to any other bell by means of transposition, except in regard to musical qualities. This latter point however may be entirely neglected in demonstrating the mode of construction. What I want to be clearly understood is that, as all the bells in Stedman Triples, so long as they are undisturbed by calls, do the same work, it is immaterial to the truth of what will be advanced which bell is selected as the observation; and, all the tables being arranged for course-ends with the 7th at home, no other tables formed with other bells in the place of the 7th are capable of producing any results unobtainable with the 7th as the observation.

20	4 2 6 3 1 5	40	6 2 4 5 1 3	60	5 3 6 4 2 1

It will be observed that in the above table each of the six bells is 10 times in 6ths place. I may add that the inter-relation between the course-ends forming each of these sets of 10 is the same in every set, although, by reason of rounds not coming as a course-end and the above table being arranged in a regularly descending order, this may not upon a cursory examination appear to be the case. The six sets of 10 are likewise all inter-related in a regular manner. From these considerations it is evident that the working extents and capabilities of the six bells are equal.

It is hardly necessary to say that the proof of Stedman Triples consists in comparing the bells in 4, 5, 6, 7 at the six ends, the order of the three bells in front being neglected. If in any two even (in course) sixes the same four bells come behind in the same order, a repetition will occur. The designation "even" will not again be deemed necessary until we come to the consideration of singles, for we have at present nothing to do with other than even six-ends. When two sixes are spoken of as repeating it is to be understood that the bells in 4, 5, 6, 7, denominated by Mr. Thompson the "characteristics" (see paper V), of the sixes, are alike. We may conveniently adopt, after Mr. Thompson, the letter K to represent the lengthy word "characteristic." Thus the K of the last six of the plain course is 4567.

After this explanatory digression let us return to Hudson's P blocks. On pricking these in full from the course-ends on table A we shall find that, with the already mentioned exception of sixes 3, 5, 7, and 12, the whole of these P blocks are true. The importance of this fact is apparent when it is remembered that from six 13 of one block to six 2 of the next, inclusive, there is no way of avoiding repetition, as the only bobbable sixes are 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 12, 13. From this it is clear that no set of P blocks containing repetitions in the first two and last two sixes could avail. Thus any peal of which the course-ends are those in table A will be true providing that it is possible to ensure truth in sixes 3 to 12, inclusive, of each course. The bracket at the side of the following plain course indicates the part of each block with which alone we need now concern ourselves.

	3 4 6 7 2 5 1
3	4 7 3 5 6 1 2
4	4 7 5 1 3 2 6
5	7 1 4 2 5 6 3
6	7 1 2 6 4 3 5
7	1 6 7 3 2 5 4
8	1 6 3 5 7 4 2
	6 5 1 4 3 2 7
	6 5 4 2 1 7 3
	5 2 6 7 4 3 1
12	5 2 7 3 6 1 4
	2 3 1 4 5 6 7

On comparing the Ks of sixes 3, 5, 7, and 12 in each of the 60 blocks it will be found that every K3 also appears once elsewhere as K7, and every K7, consequently, as K3. Similarly every K5 appears once elsewhere as K12, and every K12, consequently, as K5. For example, 5612, which is K3 of the plain course, is also K7 of some other P block, and 2563, which is K5 of the plain course, is also K12 of some other P block. Thus, as the total number of Ks 3, 4, 5, 12 in the 60 blocks is 240, there are 120 Ks that occur in duplicate. It is therefore evident that there are 120 Ks that do not occur at all. Now comes a curious fact. If every one of the 240 sixes 3, 4, 5, and 12 is bobbed, the 120 missing Ks, each occurring twice, are introduced in place of the other 120 Ks that each occurred twice. The problem is how to get rid of the 120 duplicate plain Ks and introduce in their place one of each of the 120 bob Ks. The solution is simple. If, instead of bobbing all the 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 12th sixes, we bob only half of them, taking care to bob one of each pair of sixes that have the same K, we shall eliminate all the duplicates and introduce each one of the 120 missing Ks. To express the procedure more specifically, K3 of the plain course, 5612, occurs as K7 in block 30, table A; if we bob both sixes we shall get 2651 as K3 in the plain course and as K7 in block 30. If however we bob six 3 of the plain course, getting 2651 as its K3, and leave plain six 7 of block 30, getting 5612 as its K7, we shall have got rid of the duplicate K, introducing instead one of the missing Ks. An equally effective result will be attained by leaving six 3 plain in the plain course, and bobbing six 7 in block 30. Exactly the same treatment is requisite for sixes 5 and 12.

We are now able to formulate a definite law as to the treatment of the whole 240 sixes 3, 5, 7 and 12. Bobbing a 3 entails plaining a 7, and vice versa. The whole number of 3s and 7s together is 120. The 60 3s may be bobbed, which entails plaining the 60 7s; or the 60 7s may be bobbed, which entails plaining the 60 3s; or any proportion of 3s and 7s may be bobbed so long as, of the 120 3s and 7s together, 60 are bobbed and 60 plain. Precisely the same must be the treatment of the 120 5s and 12s. The law for bobbing is, therefore as follows: In any peal exactly half, collectively, of the 3s and 7s must be bobbed, and also exactly half, collectively, of the 5s and 12s; entailing a total of 120 bobs. Unless this law be unswervingly adhered to the whole of the 840 Ks which a peal must contain cannot be introduced.

Having succeeded in discovering a means of eliminating from the P blocks the duplicate sixes and of introducing the missing ones, it is now necessary to enquire how, when a missing six has been introduced by bobbing say a 3rd six, the thread of the P blocks can be recovered, for it is essential that we should adhere consistently to the P block arrangement, except where this leads to repetition, which can only occur at sixes 3, 5, 7, and 12. It is clearly necessary that six 4, following the bobbed 3, should be one appearing in that position in a P block, otherwise the length of the course will be altered. If six 4 is bobbed as well as six 3 we shall find that what is required is accomplished, and that the bobbed 4 is a 4th six in some one of the P blocks. The same is true of sixes 5, 7, and 12. If any of these be bobbed, a second bob at the following six will bring a six that will be found in the correctly corresponding position in some other P block. If, after bobbing any 3rd, 5th, 7th, or 12th six we plain instead of bobbing the next six, we are landed in difficulties which will be shewn presently to be nearly insurmountable.

We are now in a position to enunciate a second law, namely that, whenever any of sixes 3, 5, 7, and 12 are bobbed, the next six must also be bobbed. As bobs can only be called, without disturbing the 7th, at 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 12, 13, and as, if 3 be bobbed so must 4, if 5 be bobbed so must 6, if 7 be bobbed so must 8, if 12 be bobbed so must 13, therefore none but twin bobs can possibly be introduced. Thus the above law may be stated in the more general terms that all bobs must be called in pairs.

The difficulty of proceeding with a plain six next after a bobbed 3rd, 5th, 7th, or 12th six may be easily shewn. Taking these sixes in the plain course, if they are bobbed and pricked forward one plain six we get:—

2.	3 4 6 7 2 5 1	4.	4 7 5 1 3 2 6
3.	4 7 3 2 6 5 1 -	5.	7 1 4 3 5 2 6 -
4.	4 7 2 5 3 1 6	6.	7 1 3 2 4 6 5
6.	7 1 2 6 4 3 5	11.	5 2 6 7 4 3 1
7.	1 6 7 4 2 3 5 -	12.	5 2 7 4 6 3 1 -
8.	1 6 4 3 7 5 2	13.	2 4 5 3 7 1 6

On examining the plain sixes following the bobbed ones we shall find that in no case are they sixes that appear as regular sixes in the P blocks, and that, therefore, by using them we should at once lose the thread of the P block arrangement. To take them in detail: 4725316, the plain six after the bobbed 3, is one of the 120 missing sixes. So also is 7132465, the plain six after the bobbed 5. A little consideration will shew that, if we thus use more than one of the missing sixes at a time, we shall not have the requisite number to replace the 120 duplicates which require elimination from the P blocks according to the law already stated. Further, we are also cutting out the regular 4th and 6th sixes of this P block, which sixes would in consequence require to be brought up in some irregular way. Then as to 1643752, the plain six after the bobbed 7; this is an irregular form of the 8th six of block No. 57 in table A. The regular form of this six as it appears in its block is 4163752. We are landed in this case at the correct six of the course, but, the three front bells being in a different order, the six is irregular, and I have already pointed out in paper No. II. that to proceed from an irregular six-end is to lose the thread of the blocks upon which the composition is being formed. Precisely the same is true of 2453716, the plain six after the bobbed 12. It is an irregular form of the 13th six of block No. 8, where it appears as 4523716.

We thus see that, if a bobbed 3rd, 5th, 7th or 12th six is not followed by another bob at the next six, serious complications arise that at once upset the regular absorption of the P blocks. I am not prepared to assert that a new mode of composition might not be evolved if the above difficulties attaching to isolated bobs could be surmounted, but the marvellously successful way in which the twin-bob system steers clear of the many shoals that surround composition in this intricate method offers attractions which only the boldest will decline for the doubtful possibilities of a plan that seems fraught with innumerable risks.

At the present, however, we are engaged in tracing the mode of construction of existing twin-bob peals, and, combining the two laws already enunciated, we arrive at the following fundamental principle as one to which every twin-bob peal, formed upon Hudson's P blocks, must conform: Exactly half, collectively, of the 3rd and 7th sixes must be double-bobbed, and also exactly half, collectively, of the 5th and 12th sixes, entailing precisely 240 bobs in every composition. The next consideration will be the bearing of this law upon the connection into a peal of the 60 P blocks.

THE ST. LAWRENCE'S SOCIETY, READING.

Recently our friend "Free Lance" gave us an old quotation—"The longest lane has a turning." We may on this occasion make use of a similar expression—"The longest day has an ending," in reference to a report of the annual trip of the above Society, which took place on Saturday, June 21st, a day which favours this country with the greatest duration of sunshine. Generally the St. Lawrence's Society uphold their festival on the 18th of the month, the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo—in fact ever since their first trip in 1880. However, owing to an extra change in their programme, usually lengthy, a more convenient day was selected. The places visited afforded much enjoyment to the visitors in various ways, places well known to older members of the Exercise, and abounding as they are with historical records of early change-ringing, highly interesting to the younger strings of the present day. The day's proceedings began at Reading, and the 6.32 a.m. train down the line conveyed eleven members of the Society to Stroud, Gloucestershire, arriving at 8.50. Here they were met at the station by Mr. W. King and other local ringers, and joined by W. H. Fussell, from Ross. Stroud Cemetery was visited, and the tombstone erected over the grave of Giles Mansfield inspected, photos of which (6d. each) may be obtained of F. K. Howell, Thornbury. Interesting matter for readers may be found in Snowdon's "Grandsire," pp. 142-148. It is surmised that Messrs. King and Fussell were the last change-ringers who visited this old veteran previous to his decease. After preliminary attention was given to the inner man, particular attention was given to the interior of the tower. Ringing commenced at 10 and ceased at 11.30 a.m. The following touches were rung: 575 Grandsire Caters. C. Foxall, 1; A. E. Reeves, 2; W. Johnson, 3; J. Potter, 4; W. Holloway, 5; W. R. Pocock, 6; E. Bishop, 7; W. J. Williams (conductor), 8; W. Newell, 9; W. Goseltine, 10. And 540 Bob Royal. W. Holloway, 1; W. Johnson, 2; W. J. Williams, 3; J. Potter, 4; A. E. Reeves, 5; W. R. Pocock, 6; E. Bishop, 7; W. Goseltine, 8; W. Newell, 9; W. H. Fussell (conductor), 10. The touch of Royal was so much enjoyed that it was again rung. Three courses of Grandsire Caters was conducted by W. Newell, in which Mr. King and two more Stroud men rang.

Painswick was reached at one o'clock, the striking of the Cambridge quarters being the bell notes first heard here. The "Falcon" Hotel was made the headquarters during our stop at Painswick. Dinner, at 1.30, was well served.

The mystification of a multitude of ropes is not easily overcome by an average eight-bell ringer, and when—after a "coarse" course of Grandsire Cinques was accomplished as a feeler—three fairly struck courses of the same was brought round (by a band, three youths of which heard twelve bells for the first time) it shews promise for their future ability. There was only just the twelve men, so no one agreed to differ as to "standing out," or standing in, and very probably the past associations of the tower raised the "bell-ringing blood" of the youthful members whose names are given prominence by a star attached. *W. Holloway, 1; *C. Foxall, 2; *W. Johnson, 3; *J. Potter, 4; W. H. Fussell, 5; *A. E. Reeves, 6; *G. Talbot, 7; *W. R. Pocock, 8; E. Bishop, 9; *W. J. Williams, 10; W. Newell, 11; *W. Goseltine, 12. At 5 o'clock tea was ready and served by a bachelor, who objected to give the married men any other than "husbands' tea." The Rector and his curate kindly called in to have a chat. Six o'clock found the conveyance again ready, and "go on" was the word. On the way to Gloucester Station a call of forty minutes was made at Upton St. Leonard's, the newly-installed Vicar coming to the tower to greet the visitors. One band was formed with Mr. H. Gardiner and a local man, who raised the bells and rang a touch of Grandsire, followed by a well-struck 504 of Stedman Triples, and the bells lowered in peal by Messrs. W. H. Fussell, C. Foxall, W. Johnson, W. Pocock, A. E. Reeves, W. Newell, W. Williams, and W. Goseltine.

Gloucester (G.W.R.) was reached at 7.30; the return journey to Reading began at 8.5, and terminated satisfactory to all. Notwithstanding the success of the arrangements of the pioneer, Mr. Newell, and the thorough enjoyment of the day's pleasure, there was several causes for both regret and congratulation. The former, to hear that jealousy should so far prevail in these days of ringing reformation as to cause any person to put sand and grit into the bearings of the newly-hung tenor at Painswick; that the "longest day" should, jovially speaking, be so short, and that good brotherhood should so soon be severed. The latter, to learn that the authorities of St. Mary's, Painswick were so prompt in redressing the evil, although put to much extra expense. To find the bells and belfry much improved at Upton St. Leonards after rehanging, the favourable weather till evening, the forethought of the driver in preparing for a storm, and last, but not by any means least, the hearty co-operation of the clergy and ringers in assisting to secure our welfare.

THE ESSEX ASSOCIATION.—BRAINTREE BRANCH.

ON Saturday, June 28th, six members of the above branch had their annual outing. Arrangements were made to start from the "Old Bull" inn, Braintree, at 7 o'clock sharp, and everything being in readiness the word "go" was given, Mr. F. Rudkin handling the ribbons in his masterly style. The morning being fine a pleasant ride of five miles brought them to Great Saling, where they had some refreshments. Another start was made, and what with scanning the beauty of a country scenery and some tough tales told by the veteran of the company, the time passed pleasantly. Arriving at Great Bardfield, a good lunch having been got through, a move was made for the tower where arrangements had been made for a date touch on the nice ring of six. A start was made and successfully brought round in the following methods: 30 Grandsire Doubles, 60 Bob Minor, 360 Oxford Treble Bob, 720 Woodbine Treble Bob, and 720 Kent Treble Bob in 1 hr. 12 mins. T. Watson, 1; W. Hammond, 2; F. Calthorpe, 3; F. Bumpstead, 4; F. Rudkin (conductor), 5; A. Huckson, 6. Tenor 14 cwt. After lowering the bells and inspecting them and a good look round the nice little church, a move was made back to headquarters, but being delayed by a tremendous shower they made the best use of the handbells in ringing touches of Grandsire Triples and Major. The storm clearing away a move was made for another pleasant drive of 2½ miles, which brought them to Finchingfield. Here Mr. E. Claydon, of Stebbing, joined them, and all felt ready for a good dinner, but being so soon after Great Bardfield fair, there was no meat to be had, Mr. F. Rudkin, coming to the rescue as he always do in any difficulty, set out and captured some splendid salmon, which all very enjoyed. At Finchingfield there are a nice ring of eight bells, but the "go" of them are not satisfactory. Being shorthanded for Major they had to be contented with Minor on the back six, and a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob was rung in which Mr. E. Claydon took part. An adjournment was then made to the "Green Man" where they spent a pleasant hour in handbell ringing with Messrs. Hynds and Barker from Stebbing. Another downpour of rain again delayed their arrangements, but nothing daunted all made their way for Wethersfield, where they rang another 720 of Oxford Treble Bob. E. Hynds, 1; F. Calthorpe, 2; T. Barker, 3; F. Bumpstead, 4; F. Rudkin (conductor), 5; E. Claydon, 6. As time was now getting late, they all adjourned to the hotel, where after more handbell ringing and a parting glass round, a move was made for Braintree again, and by the skilful coaching of Mr. Rudkin they arrived home about 11 o'clock, thus adding another pleasant outing to their record. They take this opportunity of thanking every one who contributed to their pleasure on this occasion.

RE-OPENING AT ST. MARY'S, EWELL, SURREY.

ON Friday, June 20th, being Accession Day, the bells of the above-named church were re-opened after being augmented to a peal of eight. Formerly there were a peal of six in a very dilapidated condition, and the two tenors very badly cracked. Two new trebles are now added, the 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th are quarter-turned, and the two tenors recast. They are now hung in a new oak frame with new fittings complete. The work of restoration has been carried out by Mears and Stainbank, of Whitechapel. The dedication service commenced at 3 p.m., at which the Rev. Canon Stapylton, M.A., Vicar of Old Maldon, Surrey, preached a very interesting and impressive sermon from Numbers x., verses 1-3. At the conclusion of the service the bells were opened by members of the Surrey Association with a short touch of Union Triples.

NOTES FOR GENERAL CIRCULATION.

"To be or not to be, that is the question."

I have received a note—from Mr. Editor's factotum, I suppose—that I may send another contribution this week, but this unanimous permission is accompanied by the caution that I am not to be disappointed should what I send be rejected. This, it will be allowed, slightly damped my ardour, especially when I was building and hoping on a permanent engagement. The time will come, however, and I can wait. Meanwhile I will do my best as a super., when called upon.

It is an immense satisfaction to be able to feel that my entrance into what is called the "republic of letters" has been such a signal success. This is shown by the amount of correspondence which since last Saturday has been sent to "JOSHUA," c/o. Editor of this paper. Some of my correspondents, however, have not shown in their communications much evidence of good breeding; and their language is not of that refined order which I am accustomed to. These people are under the impression that my remarks were intended to apply to themselves; in other words, that the cap (or caps) fitted—and if their wrath is any criterion, fitted admirably. Letters of this kind I have received from various counties, and actually from those whose names I have never seen in print anywhere; people of no standing, I should think, in the Exercise, or in anything else. Truly the vanity of some people is astonishing.

One of my readers makes merry at my expense. He asks: "Why is Mr. 'JOSHUA' like a peacock?" And he answers his own sapient question thus—"Because his tail (tale) is full of eyes (I's)." I cannot compliment this gentleman upon his great wit. Of course he means to infer that my notes of last week were inordinately studded with the personal pronoun "I." I have taken the trouble to count them and found that "I" only appears about sixty times. Whatever would the man have?

Last Saturday evening I was engaged in a peal of Caters. Let it be understood that the place of meeting was at a ten-bell tower. The man who looks after the bells was an hour-and-a-half late, and that prevented the peal being attempted. We went up for all that, but as some of the band had gone away in disgust, we rang a date touch of Caters without the treble and tenor. This touch contained the extent of Whittington and his Cat, all the twenty-four 1, 2, 3's the right way, with several the wrong way, and others no way at all, with four course-ends home. It is the first time a touch of Caters was ever rung upon this number of bells having the aforementioned properties. The ringers of the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th hail from anywhere; the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th from nowhere; the remainder belong to themselves. A tablet is to be erected if possible to record this performance. I had the honour of calling this touch, but not intending to part with the figures of such a unique composition, it is useless for anyone to ask for it.

The striking was extraordinary. By that I mean it was neither good, bad, or indifferent, and "extraordinary" is the only safe term I can apply to it. The man at the 6th suffered, unfortunately for him (and the others) from a slight deafness, which no doubt was the cause of his always leading before the tenor, and when in the hunt persisting in reversing the order of things by running to lead before the treble; while to vary matters the treble man occasionally made thirds, and it was with great difficulty he could be prevented from going back to lead. Another member of the band continually wanted, as he said, to make his last whole turn in front, while another seemed to have a propensity for imagining he was a treble-bob bell up. These idiosyncracies of the party created some very interesting positions of the bells, which no one but a clever conductor could have got round. I ought to say that the band, through the medium of this paper, express their thanks to the parishioners near the church for allowing them to continue without molestation, and their forbearance in refraining from injecting missiles into the ringing-chamber.

The present is the period for ringers' outings. Upon such occasions we are always told that the "inner man" received—I suppose—more than his ordinary amount of consideration. The company on which I reflect honor in belonging to, will have their outing next week, and I hope the members thereof will pay some slight attention to the "outer man" before starting. We shall have a brake and four horses to convey us to our destination. One of the band suggested the employment of a bugler—but I vetoed this as decidedly low. I shall endeavour to propitiate the powers that be by distributing leaflets about "THE BELL NEWS" in all the villages where we go. On the leaflets I shall have a line in large letters thus: "JOSHUA appears again!" I apprehend the circulation of the paper will be materially affected thereby.

My readers must understand that my remarks of this week are curtailed according to instructions. I erred last week in writing too much. I almost begin to think that I have superseded our friend "Free Lance," and can picture him inscribing "Ichabod" over his own portals. At any rate I hope he is better, and will in his retirement sometimes read with pleasure, if not with profit, the effusions of his successor. Whether that may be so or not, of course I cannot yet tell. I have felt a little more confidence in myself this week, as I thought I should, but no one can say that anything I have written partakes of levity or frivolity. I shall deal with topics of a more public nature next week.

THE NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A quarterly meeting was held at Stowmarket on Tuesday, 8th July, at which comparatively few members were present, many causes unfortunately interfering to curtail the attendance. Some four-and-twenty, however, representing the various places in Norfolk and Suffolk, sat down to dinner at the "Fox" hotel, under the presidency of the Rev. W. V. Kinching, Rector of Finborough and rural dean, who was supported by Captain A. P. Moore, the Rev. W. C. Eppstein (District Secretary), C. C. Tuck, Esq., and the Hon. Secretary (Rev. H. Earle Bulwer). The Secretaries of Beccles, Saxmundham, and Woodbridge Districts were also present. The Hon. Secretary, in replying to the toast of "Success to the Association," which was humorously given by the Chairman, was able to assure those present of the continued progress of the society, as a proof of which he said they had 58 members to elect that day. He also drew attention to the Johnson memorial, expressing his willingness to receive and forward any contributions that might be offered. It was also announced that the representatives on the Central Council would be elected at the approaching annual meeting at Norwich in September. Twenty-one honorary members, twenty-nine performing, and eight probationers were then elected, and with a vote of thanks to the Chairman, moved by the Hon. Sec., the members dispersed, several proceeding by road to Stonham Aspal (where there is a somewhat noisy ring of ten which might be said to go well if it were not for the overpowering noise they make), and East Stonham, where there is a nicely-restored church, with a lovely carved chestnut roof, and some very interesting bench ends, a ring of five bells, one of which is pulled by a rope ornamented with the largest tuft, we were informed, ever yet beheld by mortal eyes. But for the thin attendance, the meeting would have been a very successful one, in spite of the uncertain weather.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

WE publish in this number a letter from a member of the Yorkshire Association who is an ardent admirer of prize-ringing, and would like that Association to give it its countenance.

The subject is one the discussion of which will, we are afraid, lead to very little practical good, nor will it bring the day of its general adoption one whit nearer. It is a topic upon which the best of friends differ greatly, and it is feared that in some cases a lasting estrangement is often the result of such a conflict of opinion. The standpoint we have taken upon the question is well known. We are willing to believe, and in fact do believe, that prize-ringing encourages the growth of good striking. The opponents to such competitions do not in the abstract deny this. A letter handed to us for perusal about thirty years ago by the late MR. ELLACOMBE, from a well-known London ringer, had the following sentence: "I believe that were prize-ringing more general it would greatly to the promotion of the art, but raising and ceasing and rounds can hardly be called ringing." To traverse this successfully would be difficult. That much may be granted.

But where the essence of the matter lies is in the fact that instruments of the Church, such as bells—many of them devoted solely to the services of the Church by an holy ordinance—are not fit things to be used for contests of any description, especially where a prize is awarded to successful competitors. It would be just as reasonable to promote a Church organ contest as a Church bell contest. In an edifice such as the tower of Quex Park, which possesses no sacred character, a prize-ringing contest would not be out of place. There are, among those who defend prize-ringing, persons who contest this view, and say that the use of Church bells for a prize-ringing contest is right and proper. If a plebiscite could be taken upon this subject among those interested, those who live in such a belief would be in a miserable minority.

We have allowed that prize-ringing "tends to the promotion of the art of change-ringing." But it should not be forgotten that the object for which bells have been placed in our churches is not change-ringing merely. We can only hold our connection with the bells by acquiescing in that important fact. The tendency in the present day is to connect ringers with the Church more closer than ever, and a recognition of them as Church workers. The adoption of prize-ringing, though it may make them better ringers, would inevitably destroy that position in Church management they wish to occupy.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION AND THE RINGING TOURNAMENT.

SIR,—As I was the proposer of the resolution of which "Free Lance" and Mr. Whittaker have something to say, I thought perhaps your readers would wish to know what I have got to say on the subject. I see "Free Lance" mentions the great work the association has done in organisation, etc., and the great benefit to the Exercise, I do not deny that it has not done some good in organisation, but its benefits so far as good ringing is concerned are nil. The standard of ringing is certainly of a lower order than fifteen or twenty years ago. I have no desire to undo any work the association has done, but to supplement it, and my proposition if thoroughly carried out will improve the striking 50 per cent. and for the information of "Free Lance" and Mr. Whittaker I brought it before the association at the express wish of a lot of the members. Who is "Free Lance"? I question whether he or Mr. Whittaker ever attended a prize-ringing; then how can they know anything about one? The last contest that I attended was Rawmarsh, and I believe the majority of those who took part in it were members of the association, and I believe the judges—or one of them—was a member of the committee of the association, and all who were there thoroughly enjoyed the meeting, and the ringing was far superior to any association meeting, and I believe the decision gave great satisfaction. There is an old saying: "Give a dog a bad name, etc." so I think "Free Lance" has been trying to do it. I can only speak for the last twenty-five years, and my friends, who are legion, were then, and are now, as moral as any part of the community, and prize-ringing has made them more charitable to each other than any other part of the people who are supposed to belong to the Church; how they love to meet each other to-day, and what a contrast to the Skipton meeting! from the President (who acted more like the Czar of Russia), downwards the whole meeting was higgling, and I think bad ruling on the part of the chairman and uncharitable to the late secretary, and to crown the whole a letter of bad taste to The Yorkshire Post by the president. Surely the members will be able to manage the affairs of the association without calling in the aid of the clergy, from the Bishop downwards. I gave a plan of my ringing tournament to the committee, and will send it to "THE BELL NEWS" if you will kindly publish it, and I think it will alter their views on the proposition.

Obituary.

JOSEPH FIELD, OF OXFORD.

All ringers who have ever met this distinguished ringer will receive this announcement of his decease with much sorrow. For some time past Mr. Field has suffered from failing health, which has prevented him from taking part in performances of any length. On Saturday, June 28th, while proceeding from the market to the college in which he was engaged in business as storekeeper, etc., he was suddenly taken ill, complaining of sickness, and before a doctor could be fetched he died in the arms of a friend who was with him. Mr. Field was very much respected by a large circle of friends, and as a ringer he was a very talented and critical performer. It will be remembered that he conducted the first peal of Stedman, both Triples and Caters, ever rang by local bands in Oxford, and which was entirely owing to his great ability and perseverance. He had rang upwards of 100 peals, and among them are some good performances, such as Superlative Surprise and Cambridge Surprise, and handbell peals double-handed. He was a good instructor, and in his career had made many good bands of ringers. He was one of the few men ringers generally look up to it, he being a good conductor and a most excellent striker. He will be much missed by friends who visit Oxford from time to time, as he was most hospitable and genial, and well informed each virtue being extended to all visitors, but now it is all taken from us, a good friend and good ringer. May he rest in peace.

"PAINLESS AND PERFECT DENTISTRY."

Her Majesty's Surgeon-Dentist says:—

MY DEAR DOCTOR,—Allow me to express my thanks for the skill and attention displayed in the construction of my Artificial Teeth, which render my mastication and articulation excellent. I am glad to hear that you have obtained Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to protect what I consider the perfection of Painless Dentistry. In recognition of your valuable services you are at liberty to use my name.

S. G. HUTCHINS. By appointment Surgeon-Dentist to Her Majesty the Queen.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—LABORATORY OF EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

This is to certify:—That I have analysed the Prize Medal Teeth submitted to me, and find them to be composed only of minerals of extreme purity. I have also examined and tested your patented painless system of adjustment, it is quite perfect, and is the most successful application of scientific laws for securing actual wear and comfort yet introduced. Both physically and anatomically, they are a beautiful resemblance to the natural teeth.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

At the conclusion of the last article the impracticability of following a bobbed 3rd, 5th, 7th, or 12th six with a plain six was demonstrated, and the law of double-bobbing therefrom deduced. In order to shew exhaustively the inapplicability of isolated bobs a further point may be mentioned, although it is only necessary on the score of completeness. An enquirer might possibly ask why the 4th, 6th, 8th, or 13th sixes should not be bobbed without a bob at the previous six. There will be no need to give in this case a detailed reply, for those who care to pursue the subject may easily prick the requisite six-ends; but I may broadly state what would result. A bob at the 4th or 6th six, following a plain six, is impracticable because it produces an irregular form of regular 5th and 12th sixes in the first case, and of regular 3rd and 7th sixes in the second; thus absorbing sixes that are peremptorily required elsewhere. A bob at the 8th or 13th six, following a plain six, is also impracticable because it brings up another 8th or 13th six in an irregular form, and consequently upsets the necessary adhesion to the table of P blocks. The only further possible treatment other than has already been considered would consist in double-bobbing the 4th or 6th sixes. The former proceeding produces as the 5th six a regular 6th six, the latter as the 7th six an irregular 4th six; thus in both cases introducing sixes which are required elsewhere. I must, in concluding this part of the investigation, again disclaim any intention to prove that no other than the twin-bob treatment is possible; my object has simply been to shew that, while strict adhesion to the twin bob laws already enunciated enables the 840 sixes to be truly tabulated, the slightest divergence at once lands the composer in apparently hopeless difficulties.

In the course of the last article I endeavoured to explain the manner in which Hudson's P blocks can be cleared of repeating sixes so as to absorb the sixes which are missing, and be thus rendered serviceable for the construction of peals. Some curiosity may be felt as to the relationship existing among the 120 missing sixes, and also as to the connection between the family to which they belong and Hudson's 60 P blocks. Mr. Thompson will probably have something of interest to advance upon these points before the conclusion of our papers. For the present I will pass on to the more practical question as to how the general law of double-bobbing exactly half, collectively, of the 3rd and 7th sixes, and also of the 5th and 12th sixes, is to be followed up.

In the treatment of Grandsire Triples for the purposes of a peal Mr. Davies and Mr. Thompson have shewn (see Snowdon's "Grandsire" p.p. 185, 198) that the 360 lead-ends of the 72 P blocks are divisible into 72 "q" sets, of which the peculiarity consists in the fact that if any one member of the set be bobbed so must the remaining four. Every method must of necessity follow a law similar in principle though varying in detail.

A simple illustration of a "q" set may be taken from the Plain Bob method. There are three even course-ends with 5, 6 at home, viz: 23456, 42356, and 34256. It is well known to composers that if any one of such a set of course-ends is bobbed, the other two must likewise be bobbed: if one is plained the other two must likewise be plained. Unless all three are bobbed or all three plained they cannot be had true. In this case the interlocking or "q" set consists of three members, in Grandsire of five; it is now necessary to enquire how many members interlock in a Stedman Triples "q" set. Until this has been settled it is useless to attempt to compose a peal, for we shall, on pricking the very first bobable six, be ignorant of what other sixes are compromised by our treatment of this one.

We have seen that double-bobbing respectively a 3rd, 5th, 7th, or 12th six entails double-plaining respectively a 7th, 12th, 3rd, or 5th six, and vice versa. So far, therefore, a "q" set consists of at least four sixes; it remains to shew that it consists of more. A definite example will best serve to throw light on the matter.

Let us now take the 3rd six of the plain course and tabulate all the obligations that will be entailed if (a) the six be plained and (b) the six be bobbed. Such a table will be the "q" set comprising the complete extent of interlocking, not only of the above six, but also of every other six which appears in the table.

TABLE B.

EXAMPLE OF A "q" SET.

(a)		(b)
1. P 3.	4 7 3 5 6 1 2	1. B 3.	4 7 3 2 6 5 1 -
1. P 4.	4 7 5 1 3 2 6	60. B 4.	4 7 2 6 3 5 1 -
30. B 7.	3 4 7 2 6 5 1 -	30. P 7.	3 4 7 5 6 1 2
21. B 8.	3 4 2 6 7 5 1 -	30. P 8.	3 4 5 1 7 2 6
60. P 3.	4 7 3 2 1 6 5	60. B 3.	4 7 3 5 1 2 6 -
60. P 4.	4 7 2 6 3 5 1	1. B 4.	4 7 5 1 3 2 6 -
21. B 7.	3 4 7 5 1 2 6 -	21. P 7.	3 4 7 2 1 6 5
30. B 8.	3 4 5 1 7 2 6 -	21. P 8.	3 4 2 6 7 5 1

At the head of column (a) stands 1, P3, that is, the plained 3rd six of the plain course, block 1 in table A (for this table see article No. VI). At the head of column (b) stands 1, B3. This is the six obtained by bobbing the 3rd six of block 1. If we elect to plain the 3rd six of block 1, we must fulfil the obligations of column (a); if we elect to bob this six, we must fulfil the obligations of column (b).

Plaining a 3rd six entails bobbing a certain 7th six, and vice versa. We shall find that 30, B7, in the third row of column (a), is the 7th six wanted. Conversely we get as the third row of column (b) 30, P7, the plained 7th six of block 30, which is the six forced to be plain if we start by bobbing the 3rd six of block 1. Thus the first and third rows of the table are accounted for. As double bobs only are admissible, these rows, where bobbed, must be followed by a bobbed six; where plained, by a plained six. If the second and fourth rows in both columns of the table be examined, these will be found to be the sixes properly following the first and third rows. It is therefore clear that, according as we elect to use column (a) or (b), the four first rows are inevitably forced upon us. These are the four sixes which it has already been stated that a "q" set must among others contain.

Now as to the rest: we have seen that plaining a 3rd six entails bobbing a 7th six, and vice versa. By this means in addition to introducing a missing six, we avoid what is called cross repetition; that is, repetition between two sixes in dissimilar positions in their respective courses. Besides cross repetition we shall find there is direct repetition to be guarded against; that is, repetition between two sixes in similar positions in their respective courses.

Plaining any bobable six also entails plaining some other six; for, supposing we elect to follow column (a) and therefore employ 1, P3, and 1, P4, if now we double-bob the 3rd six of block 60 we get the 5th and 6th rows in column (b), of which the latter, 1, B4, repeats with 1, P4 in column (a). Therefore we must plain the 3rd six of block 60, and we thus obtain the 5th and 6th rows of column (a). By this process direct repetition between the 3rd and 4th sixes of blocks 1 and 60 is mutually avoided. Further, bobbing any six also entails bobbing some other six; for, still following column (a) and thus employing 30, B7, and 21, B8, if now we plain the 7th six of block 21 we get the 7th and 8th rows in column (b) of which latter 21, P8 repeats with 21, B8 in column (a). Therefore we must double-bob the 7th six of block 21, and we thus obtain the 7th and 8th rows of column (a). By this process direct repetition between the 7th and 8th sixes of blocks 30 and 21 is mutually avoided. Precisely the converse process takes place if we elect to follow column (b). The whole of the eight rows in a column are now seen to be obligatory if any one of them is adopted. Nevertheless there is a further consideration. We fixed in column (a) 60, P3, to satisfy the requirements of 1, P3; but plaining a 3rd six entails bobbing a 7th six, to avoid cross repetition. We must, therefore, find and bob the required 7th six which, if plained, would repeat with 60, P3. This six is 21, B7; but 21, B7 is already present in column (a) as one of the pair of sixes that have to be bobbed to avoid direct repetition with 21, B8. Thus table B contains the whole of the obligations attaching to every one of the eight sixes of which each column is composed. To avoid misconception I may point out that there is a slight inconsistency, which I do not see how to avoid, in the denomination of the bob rows in this table. Taking the 1st and 2nd rows in column (b), 1, B3 implies that this is the 3rd six of block 1 bobbed, and therefore not really in block 1 at all, being indeed a missing six. The second row 60, B4, implies that this is actually the 4th six of block 60, and the same whether it comes up at a bob or a plain. This explanation is applicable to the rest of the bobbed pairs in the table, and will, I hope, be sufficient to obviate any confusion.

I am conscious of not having succeeded as well as I could wish in a lucid explanation of the nature of a "q" set, for, although so beautifully balanced in its component parts, the inter-relation of its members is by no means easy of demonstration. I believe, however, that a careful study of table B will ensure a comprehension of the interlocking sixes more certainly than any written explanation, I will, therefore, merely sum up briefly the main points of the preceding investigation, and take stock of the position now reached.

The 840 sixes of which a peal consists are divisible into two lots. The one consists of the six sixes in each course that are immutable, viz: sixes 1, 2, 9, 10, 11, and 14. These are well denominated by Mr. Bulwer the "close" sixes, numbering altogether 360. The other lot consists of the eight sixes in each course that are bobable, viz: sixes 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 12, and 13. These Mr. Bulwer terms the "open" sixes, numbering altogether 480. The 480 open sixes are further divisible into 60 "q" sets, each containing four bobbed and four plained sixes. Of these 60 "q" sets 30 will consist of 3rd, 4th, 7th, and 8th sixes conjointly, and 30 of 5th, 6th, 12th, and 13th sixes conjointly. The relations between the members of each of the latter 30 being exactly similar to those existing between the former 30, and the "q" sets being constructed exactly as that given on table B. Each of the 60 "q" sets is self contained, and the treatment of one in no way affects any other. Every such set can be tabulated in two forms, as on table B, and one or other of these forms must in each case be selected for use; the difference being simply that every bobbed six in the one is a plained six in the other, and vice versa. It will be shewn shortly how these apparently complicated "q" sets can be simplified and abbreviated for practical use.

FINCHINGFIELD, ESSEX.

On Thursday, June 26th, the Glemsford company with Mr. J. Nevard, of Great Bentley, Essex, Mr. Charles Sillitoe, of Sudbury, Messrs. Gowan and Papworth, of Stanstead, and D. Gridley of Clare, paid a visit to Finchingfield, and by the kind permission of the vicar, rung upon the bells of that church as follows: a peal of Bob Major was attempted in the morning, but after ringing 2400 changes is one hour and twenty-five minutes, the conductor finding that the peal could not be successfully brought to an end, through some of the bells going heavily, caused the bells to be jumped into rounds. S. Slater, 1; C. Sillitoe (conductor), 2; C. Honeybell, 3; C. Adams, 4; F. Wells, 5; O. Garwood, 6; Z. Slater, 7; W. J. Nevard, 8. After this, the other ringers present wishing to have a pull, the following was rung: two courses of Bob Major by S. Slater, 1; D. Gridley, 2; A. Papworth, 3; C. Honeybell, 4; R. Gowers, 5; C. Sillitoe, 6; Z. Slater, 7; O. Garwood, 8. And a touch of Kent Treble Bob Major by W. J. Nevard, 1; Z. Slater, 2; C. Honeybell, 3; C. Adams, 4; F. Wells, 5; C. Sillitoe, 6; O. Garwood, 7; S. Slater, 8.

These bells, which are a very musical and pretty ring of eight, have a very good and strong frame and tower, and with a little expense with the bell-hanger could be made to go like tops, so that a peal would be a pleasure. The tenor is said by the inhabitants to weigh 17 cwt., but upon inspection the visitors should think that she is 19 or 20 cwt., as she is 47½ inches in diameter. The company wish to thank the Finchingfield ringers for their kindness in getting the bells ready, also the vicar for permission, and to Mr. Wells, the kind landlord of the "Red Lion," for his kindness towards them. Dinner being over they were soon on the road to the next village, Wethersfield, two miles distant, and calling at the vicarage for permission to ring, which, the kind and genial vicar being at home, at once granted them. The bells are a nice little ring of six, tenor about 11 cwt. The following touches were rung: 240 Kent Treble Bob. C.

Sillitoe, 1; C. Adams, 2; W. J. Nevard, 3; S. Slater, 4; Z. Slater, 5; O. Garwood (conductor), 6. A touch of Oxford Treble Bob; and to finish up the following rang a 360 of Bob Minor: Z. Slater, 1; C. Honeybell, 2; A. Papworth, 3; D. Gridley, 4; F. Wells, 5; R. Gowers (conductor), 6. At the conclusion, the vicar, the Rev. R. Hay Hill, gave the whole company an invitation to the vicarage to partake of wine and cake, and also presented each ringer with a neatly printed card on "The Rules of Daily Life," which was received by one and all with great pleasure. The company all wish to thank the rev. gentleman for his kindness and generosity.

The party then took a drive of about twelve miles to the village of Stoke-by-Clare, where there is a nice ring of six, made by Osborn, in 1786, tenor about 14 cwt., when the following touches were rung: 240 Bob Minor. C. Sillitoe (conductor), 1; C. Honeybell, 2; C. Adams, 3; F. Wells, 4; H. Burling (Clare), 5; W. J. Nevard, 6. Also 360 Bob Minor by C. Honeybell, 1; D. Gridley, 2; S. Slater (conductor), 3; A. Papworth, 4; R. Gowers, 5; O. Garwood, 6. They then journeyed home, each and all having enjoyed a very pleasant day.

HOLY TRINITY, BATLEY CARR, YORKS.

On Sunday, July 6th, the stationed ringers of the above church, along with Messrs. Riley, Coates, Armitage, and Oldfield, paid a visit to the village of Felkirk, near Barnsley.

Arriving there at 9.0 a.m., the party were introduced to the Vicar, through whose kindness they were permitted to ring for services during the day. At 12.30 the company sat down to a substantial dinner, provided by Mr. Thomas Lovell, of "The Fox" inn. In the afternoon a course of Grandsire Triples and Grandsire Major was rung on handbells at the Vicarage by Messrs. Blackburn, Stead, Idle, and Simon. On the tower bells 12-scores of Violet, Royston Delight, Arnold's Victory, etc., were rung for morning and afternoon services, conducted by W. H. Stead, and in the evening a 720 of Arnold's Victory was rung. Jno. H. Scott, 1; W. H. Stead, 2; Geo. H. Simon (conductor), 3; Jno. Blackburn, 4; W. Idle, 5; S. Mitchell, 6.

On leaving the village, the Vicar expressed his regret at not being able to raise a company of his own, he having used a deal of exertion to do so, and he hoped the company would pay him another visit, he having been well pleased with their ringing.

The company take this opportunity of thanking the vicar for the use of the bells, and also Mr. Thos. Lovell for the excellent dinner he provided for them.

A VISIT TO BEAKESBOURNE, KENT.

An interesting incident in the annals of change-ringing occurred on July 13th. A party of ringers, comprising A. Tanton, Jas. Andrews, Chas. Laker, J. Prebble, and Rd. Andrews, of Lyminge; F. Finn of Brabourne, and W. Bush of Elham, went to the village of Beakesbourne, near Canterbury. Here there is a nice little ring of six bells, which was opened a few weeks since by the Cathedral band. The visitors were successful on the present occasion in getting three 720s of Bob Minor in the afternoon before service, and then by request of several of the parishioners, to whom change-ringing is a novelty, set the bells going again after service, when two more 720s were accomplished. The Vicar (Rev. H. J. Wardell, M.A.) then very kindly invited the party to tea at the vicarage, an offer which was very thankfully accepted. The visit altogether was very pleasing and successful, and the ringers desire hereby to cordially thank the good folk of Beakesbourne for the manner in which they welcomed them, and in particular the Rev. the Vicar, for his kindness in letting them ring the bells, and for his very welcome hospitality.

A CHANCE FOR ALL.—100 cash prizes, ranging from £5 to a 1s; given to those who send correct number of words in 119th psalm. Entrance fee 6d. Competition closes August 20th, 1890. Full list of winners published.—Address: F. WILLIAMS & Co., Church Park, Oystermouth, Glamorganshire.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.
FESTIVAL IN TAUNTON.

THE first festival of the recently formed Diocesan Association of change-ringers was held on Saturday, July 12th, at Taunton. About seventy ringers visited the town, a considerable number of whom came from Bath, the following places of worship in that city being represented:—The Abbey, Bathford, Batheaston, Twerton-on-Avon, St. Saviour's, St. James's, Christ Church, and St. Andrew's. Other churches which sent ringers included Taunton, St. Mary Magdalene and St. James's (Minehead), Dunster, Highbridge, Wells, and Old Cleeve. Among the clergy who visited the town were the Revs. Prebendary Eardley-Wilmot, vicar of St. Andrew's, Bath; Stoke Shaw (Twerton-on-Avon); De Salis (Milverton); J. Utten Todd (Dunster); F. E. Murphy (St. Andrew's, Bath); and C. Griffiths. Mr. C. E. D. Boutflower, local secretary of the Gloucester and Bristol Association, and Mr. R. Lewis (secretary), of Bath, were also present. Proceedings commenced with a service at St. Mary Magdalene, when the Rev. Prebendary Eardley-Wilmot was the preacher, the Rev. W. H. Askwith assisting in the carrying out of the service. The rev. gentleman took for his text I. Cor. xii, 4-6; "Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are differences of administration, but the same Lord; and there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all." He said:—

They saw that God worked in many ways, but the power was the same. In His mercy and grace He used different channels to effect His purpose, but all led up to the accomplishment of His glory and honour. There was one source from which all spiritual utterance sprang, but a variety of endowments, distributed among various individuals. There was a variety of ways in which God might be glorified, but it was the same God who was the Source and Giver of all things. If they endeavoured to limit the working of God's Spirit to any one means of grace, if they limited it to preaching, or speaking, or teaching, or healing, if they denied the inspiration of the Spirit in any of God's gifts, which tended to the culture, refinement, and spiritual education of man, they would be acting contrary to the Spirit of God. There were diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. Let them apply that general principle for a moment to the object which had called them together to the House of God. They were met together to inaugurate the Diocesan Association of Change-Ringers. The objects of the Association had been defined as the promotion of belfry reform, and the promotion of change-ringing. The principles upon which the Association was based were these: That the belfry was not separate from the House of God, but was a part of the church, and that therefore it was sacred to the service of ALMIGHTY God, and that the bells, just as much as the organ which led the service of song in the sanctuary, were instruments of sacred music. Further, that the office of a ringer was, as resulting from the above, a holy office, and that therefore it should be performed in a reverent manner. Just for a moment he would take those two parts of the proposition and dwell upon them. Bells were instruments of sacred music, and to prove that he called to witness the bells themselves. Most of those present in the church were familiar with the inscriptions which the piety, charity and love of our forefathers had carved round many of the bells. He did not say that every bell had an inscription on it, dedicating it to the service of God, but many had. He would take a few instances from their own diocese. One was 'Honour the Lord with thy substance;' another, 'To the glory of God;' a third, 'Praise Him upon the loud cymbals.' A bell, which bore date 1616, had engraved on it the following: 'Give thanks to God;' another, still older, viz.: 1604, 'Draw near to God.' Upon a bell dated 1736 was inscribed 'Ring to the praise and glory of God;' another was 'I to the Church the living call, and to the grave do summon all.' Their forefathers then, in placing those bells in the church, recognised that they were doing so for a holy purpose, and sought to give God the glory. The use of the bells was manifest, and they entered into every phase of national, life, social or domestic. They were used distinctly for the service of God. That being so, the ringing should be done in a reverent manner. Even the Church ringer had a distinct part in God's ministry. In the service of God's house there were diversities of ministrations, and the very least person who was occupied in that way was engaged in a sacred office. 'I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than dwell in the tents of the wicked.' The ringers set forth a very real and living voice. Were they not therefore, preachers in their degree, for the service of God? If they were, what was needed on their behalf? He would mention four things briefly—knowledge, diligence, love, and power. He was not going to apply those qualities to ringing itself, though they applied to it. He would refer to the more spiritual side of the matter. They needed knowledge. He would that every one who called others to the House of God had in his own heart the true knowledge of the Word of God, a true knowledge of the privilege and blessing to which God had called them. He would to God that every ringer had diligence to make his calling and election sure. True love to God and to men was also needed. They also required more of that power which was the power of the Holy Spirit of God to lead them to be witnesses for CHRIST in their own lives, and in their parish. The ringers were preachers, let them then practice what they preached, and not be absent from their place in church. When they rang in the bright hours of the Sabbath morning to call people to the solemn feast of the early Communion, let them be present. He rejoiced that the opening of their diocesan association was celebrated by a service in the church, and that the majority of those who had come for the festival were present. He rejoiced that they met first in the House of God, so that the work might be begun, continued and ended in Him for His praise, His honour, and His glory.

A luncheon followed at one o'clock at which about seventy members were present. The vicar of Taunton was in the chair, supported by the Revs. Prebendary E. A. Eardley-Wilmot, W. Stokes Shaw, W. Westmacott (Highbridge), J. Utten Todd (Minehead), —, Troyte, H. J. Poole (Stowell), C. Griffiths (Bath), J. Hewett (North Fitzwarren), and F. E. Murphy (Bath).

The Chairman said that some of those present would remember the meeting at Highbridge so few weeks since when the Association was inaugurated and this meeting decided upon. The time had been very short for Mr. Lewis to collect the necessary information to bring before them, but it was felt that the opening festival should be held without delay. He would, therefore, call upon Mr. Lewis to read the minutes of the preliminary meeting, and tell them what had transpired since the meeting at Highbridge.

The minutes having been read and confirmed, the secretary reported that a good number of bands of ringers had expressed their desire to join the Association, of which the Bishop had consented to become the president. Among the honorary members that had already been obtained were Dean Plumptre, the Archdeacon of Bath, the Archdeacon of Wells, Mr. E. R. Wodehouse, M.P., M. H. G. Moysey, J.P., Mr. T. E. Rogers (the chancellor of the diocese), Prebendary Salmon, Prebendary E. A. Eardley-Wilmot, Prebendary Herringham, Rev. Canon Buckle, Mr. W. Ludlow (Dunster), Canon Church, and Prebendary Ainslie.

The next business was the election of a Master for the ensuing year, and the Rev. Prebendary E. A. Eardley-Wilmot proposed that the Rev. C. W. H. Griffith should be elected to fill the office. This was seconded and carried unanimously.

The Rev. W. Stokes Shaw then proposed in warm terms that Mr. Rupert Lewis be elected as hon. secretary and treasurer.

This was seconded by Mr. J. S. Flower, and carried unanimously.

The Rev. E. A. Eardley-Wilmot proposed that the following gentlemen be added to the list of vice-presidents:—Canon Church, Canon Buckle, Prebendary Ainslie, Prebendary Eardley-Wilmot, Rev. W. Stokes, the Chancellor of the Diocese, and Mr. E. R. Wodehouse.

This was seconded by Mr. H. Wyburn and carried.

A discussion then ensued as to providing a certificate of membership but the matter was finally left for the General Committee to deal with.

It was resolved by Mr. C. E. D. Boutflower, and seconded by Mr. H. W. Brown, that the first quarterly meeting be held in September, at Wraxall, which was carried.

The meeting then terminated with cordial votes of thanks to the Rev. H. W. Askwith for presiding, to the Rev. Prebendary Eardley-Wilmot, and Mr. Rupert Lewis. The ringing during the day included touches of Caters, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Grandsire and Bob Doubles. A quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was also rung in 44½ mins.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Monday, July 7th, the members of the St. Peter's Society, St. Albans, had their annual holiday. London was reached shortly before 9 in the morning, and they proceeded to Messrs. Warner's, where they were kindly received by Mr. Dunn, who showed them over the foundry. They then made their way to London Bridge to catch the steamer Arran to Southend, and after a pleasant trip their destination was reached at 2 o'clock. The pier, which is a mile and-a-quarter in length, had then to be traversed, and by the time dry land was reached all were ready to do their best to get outside a good dinner, running the three courses. A walk round the town having been taken, they went to Shoeburyness by train, and here a pleasant couple of hours was spent in a ramble on the beach and looking at the guns used in connection with Her Majesty's School of Gunnery, and the results of experiments with shot and shell upon armour plates of various thicknesses. The handbells were brought out and in the midst of these weapons of warfare were to be heard the sounds of Grandsire Triples. Returning to Southend tea was partaken of, and soon afterwards they were in the train on the journey homewards. What with the handbells and songs the time passed without being irksome. Moorgate Street Station was reached about half-past ten and an hour having to elapse before their train started, enquiry was made for a waiting room, but they were informed that such a commodity did not exist in that palatial building, except one for ladies only, from which the sterner sex were rigorously excluded. After a parley with the ticket collector they were permitted to take refuge on one of the platforms of the Metropolitan, and tunes and changes on the handbells were rung to the surprise of the officials and passengers. With the exception of a passing shower the weather held fine until the evening, so that all things combined to render the day an enjoyable one.

THE ST. MARTIN'S GUILD, BIRMINGHAM.

ON Saturday, June 28th, the members of this Guild held the first of their series of monthly Saturday half-holiday gatherings.

Hatton, near Warwick, was the rendezvous selected, the members being always sure of a hearty welcome here from the vicar—the Rev. H. C. Courtney, who as a member of the Guild takes a lively interest in its welfare.

A short journey by rail, and a picturesque walk by canal side and country lane brought them to the church, where the clerk—Mr. Bayliss—was in attendance to explain that everything was in readiness for a pull.

Having raised the bells, the church and its surroundings were inspected and came in for general admiration, everything from porch to tower roof being in admirable order and preservation.

At this juncture the vicar arrived direct from a forty-one mile journey by cycle, and after mutual greetings a 720 Bob Minor was attempted and brought round, the tenor being handled by the vicar.

A 720 of Grandsire Minor followed, when hints were given that the inner man required attention, and an adjournment was made for a truly welcome tea.

After tea and a quiet stroll back to the church, Mr. Hardy, the tower-keeper of St. Mary's, Warwick, presided at a touch of Bob Minor, and then followed a touch of Kent Treble Bob Minor. By this time the local ringers, who at this particular season of the agricultural year are always exceptionally busy, put in an appearance to welcome their visitors and assist in further ringing.

In good time for the return train the visiting party were accompanied to the station by a party of the Hatton ringers, and with mutual wishes for another happy meeting, and a hearty "God speed" were soon on their road home to the smoky city.

THE NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting was held at Market Rasen, on Saturday, July 5th. Early in the morning the inhabitants became aware that something unusual was taking place, for the light ring of eight were soon set in motion by the Hull, Grimsby, and local ringers, and a well-struck 720 of Bob Minor was brought round, with 7-8 covering. Upon the arrival of the Lincoln and Sleaford contingent, an attempt was made for a peal of Grandsire Triples, conducted by N. E. Snow, but after ringing nearly half-way a sudden stop occurred on account of the 6th rope giving way, no doubt owing to the "steady and strong" pull of our old and respected friend C. Jackson. As time would not permit another attempt, the company had to be content with short touches. In the afternoon the picturesque village of Claxby, with the beautiful Wold scenery, which was seen in all its splendour, was visited. The worthy rector (Canon Andrews) with his usual liberality had made all necessary arrangements, and several 6-scores of Bob and Grandsire Doubles were rung, together with several touches on the handbells, which sounded to their advantage on the Rectory lawn, while refreshments were handed round. A contingent not satisfied with the "walk round" the rectory gardens, determined to mount the hill, and by the smiling faces upon their return, it was assumed that the splendid view which is to be seen from the summit of the hill fully repaid them for their journey. Time being on the wing, the company were compelled to take their seats in the waggonettes and return to Market Rasen. At 5 o'clock an adjournment was made to the "Aston Arms," where the company sat down to a sumptuous meat tea. The chair was taken by the Rev. Canon Andrews, supported by the Rev. Canon Warner, of Gainsborough, the Rev. W. W. Cooper, of West Rasen, and the Rev. S. T. Briscoe, of Lynwode; and amongst the company were noticed F. F. Linley, Esq., vice-president, N. E. Snow, Esq., Dr. Barton, and several others too numerous to mention. Full justice being done to the tea, the usual business meeting was held at which it was decided that preliminary steps be taken towards the engraving of a certificate of membership, and a sum of money was set aside for that purpose. After the usual votes of thanks to the chairman for presiding, the local ringers for the day's arrangements (especially Mr. Hackney), and the Incumbents for the use of the bells, the meeting terminated. The tower was again visited, and several touches of Bob and Grandsire Major and Grandsire Triples were brought round.

THE BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Quarterly Meeting was held at Arlesey on Saturday, July 5th. There was only a small attendance of members, as Arlesey is somewhat difficult of access from many of the change-ringing centres of the county, and the rural members were also occupied with haymaking. The branches represented were Bedford, Biddenham, Clapham, Biggleswade, and Milton Bryant. The chief contingent arrived about three o'clock, and were welcomed at the church by the rector, the Rev. R. C. Folliott Scott, and the Hon. Sec., the Rev. W. W. C. Baker.

The bells are a light ring of six by Warner, and go fairly well, though they appeared to need a little screwing up. A start was at once made, and a 720 of Double Court Bob, conducted by Mr. C. W. Clarke, was successfully brought round. This was followed by 720 of Bob Minor conducted by Mr. C. R. Howard, whom all present were delighted to meet again on his return home for a short time from Australia.

Ringling had now to cease for a short time for a funeral, but the interval was filled up by accepting the hospitable invitation of the rector to tea at the rectory.

After tea a business meeting was held, when the Rev. W. W. C. Baker was unanimously elected to represent the Association on the Central Council. It was resolved to hold the next meeting at Leighton Buzzard if leave be granted, and failing that at Aspley Guise and Hasborne Crawley. A hearty vote of thanks to the rector for the use of the bells and his kind hospitality was also carried by acclamation.

Ringling was resumed, but owing to the breaking of the rope of one bell, and another slipping wheel, nothing much was accomplished. The party separated at seven o'clock to return home, having enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon.

Some of those present would be glad to know what ringling was done on these bells when they were opened some years ago by a company of the College Youths. If any of those who took part in it would send an account of what was rung, either to this paper, or to the Rev. W. W. C. Baker, Milton Bryant Rectory, Woburn, they would confer a great obligation.

RINGERS' OUTING.

The St. Luke's society of Liverpool had their annual outing on Saturday, July 12th, Llangollen being the place selected. Leaving via Birkenhead soon after eight o'clock, a pleasant journey of about two hours brought them to this pretty Welsh town, and after making a few arrangements for dinner, etc., a move was made to the belfry, which was found to be a very nice comfortable place, and everything in readiness for ringling. A start was soon made for a peal, but after nearly an hour's ringling a slip occurred which caused a change-course, and "stand" was called. It was then decided to make another start in the afternoon, and after some slight refreshment and a walk through the town, the whole company, determined to see as much of the beautiful scenery as possible, resolved to climb the famous hill to Crow Castle; this proved a much harder task than ringling to some of the party, the hillside being wet and slippery. When the top was reached the handbells were brought into use, and a course each of Bob Royal and Grandsire Caters was rung by W. Davies, 1-2; R. S. Mann, 3-4; W. James, 5-6; J. Aspinwall, 7-8; J. Martin, 9-10. After a walk round the ruins the descent was commenced, and this was rather the worst part of the journey, one or two coming down quicker than they expected. On arriving in the town again, dinner was partaken of, and the belfry again visited, when another start for the peal was made, which proved successful, as will be seen by the peal column. An adjournment for tea was then made, and afterwards a pleasant hour or two was spent with the local ringers, who rang some Stedman Triples, and who afterwards saw the visitors to the station. Owing to a funeral taking place near the church, the bells were rung half-muffled throughout the day, except the last touch by the local company. The visitors wish to heartily thank the Vicar for the use of this easy-going and musical ring of bells, and also Mr. Davies, the steeple-keeper, for his kind attention, and having all prepared for them. Rain fell throughout the day, but in spite of this a most enjoyable outing was brought to a close by a pleasant journey home, enlivened by songs, etc., the company breaking up after reaching the landing-stage just before midnight.

NOTES—VALEDICTORY.

"Farewell, a long farewell, to all my greatness."

I have heard that "some men are born great; some achieve greatness; and some have greatness thrust upon them." I reckon myself among the last-named. I have had greatness thrust upon me in being asked to write for this journal, but directly my natural diffidence for such a task has, after a tremendous struggle, been overcome, I am informed that I must take a back seat, or, in the words of Mr. Editor's factotum—whom I consider has not treated me with that consideration my transcendental abilities demand—"You may send another contribution for approval, but I have to inform you that our usual contributor, 'Free Lance,' is quite recovered, and returns to his duties the following week." So that my hopes of a permanent position on the literary staff are not for the present realized.

* * * * *

Nevertheless I am amply consoled. Dr. Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, Dean Swift, and many other men as great as myself were not appreciated at first. However I feel assured the time will come when readers of this paper will be glad to ponder over my effusions. I think another distinguished man, who was laughed at on his first appearance, said something similar to this, and the prophecy in his case was amply verified, for he became Prime Minister of England. What the pinnacle of greatness will be to which I shall ascend of course I cannot yet say, but depend upon it, my dear readers, you shall hear of it.

* * * * *

In these my valedictory remarks, I shall only dwell upon one or two little matters. First let me thank those brothers of the string who have written to me in such kind appreciative terms. The suggestions some of them have made I shall not forget, though they are impossible to carry out. I must also apologise for not more clearly answering many of the queries addressed to me, because they were of too complicated and obscure a nature for any authority under the sun to decide authoritatively. I can't help having a suspicion that some of these questions were inspired by persons having a vein of facetiousness running in them. Thus the enquiries as to whether the German Diet is good to eat; or "What sort of a man is the cove of Cork," or "what kind of wood is the North Pole made of" may be all very well at a party, but not such as should be asked by readers of "THE BELL NEWS" from a literary contributor trying to make a name for himself.

* * * * *

One of my correspondents congratulates me upon my touch of Caters, but points out in very strong language that I never stated what method was rung. This man wants to know too much; and I have a rooted objection to inquisitive people. I have an idea that this person wishes to find out whether I rung the observation-bell or not. We know the class of individual who always tries to rob the bob-caller of his laurels by saying that he rung the observation-bell. He is, unfortunately for our peace, too prevalent among us. This kind of person it is who always sows dissension among us. He crawls about like his prototype—the serpent—and hisses poison into the ears of others. He makes the apples or shots of discord for other people to fire them off. He is a contemptible sort of person, this belfry sneak, and has done more harm to ringing than all other evil influences put together.

Another correspondent, one whose representations I may not disregard, sends me the report of a peal rang some time ago but never recorded. He thinks it will just fit my notes. Well I give it below (mind Mr. Composer, and set it up as written). For obvious reasons I am told the name of the place is omitted.

BALD-HEADED PEAL.

On the First day of April 18—,

AT THE CHURCH OF ST. MUDSTAN,

A PEAL OF GRANDSIRE TRIPLES, 5040 CHANGES;

HOLT'S TEN-PART.

JOHN KETCH* Treble.	LOWES MOORE 5.
CITRON PEEL† 2.	JNO. MCARONY 6.
SHORE DITCH, ESQ. .. 3.	MERRY VALE 7.
GUY FAWKES* 4.	†TITUS OATES Tenor.

Conducted by JNO. MCARONY, who marked off every lead as it was rung.

All the above band were bald-headed. Some difficulty was experienced in getting a company together having this peculiarity, which was surmounted by those marked * having their heads shaved off (i.e. their hair) previous to starting for the peal. †First peal inside. ‡First peal outside. Great credit is due to the ringers of the above, as the weather being very warm at the time, the flies were very troublesome.

* * * * *

I give this report as requested, but I think the writer is wanting in seriousness. In fact I can hardly believe such a peal was ever performed. There is a fictitious ring about it; the names of the ringers are quite new to me, though I scan the peal reports very closely.

* * * * *

I have heard that there are ringers to be found who don't buy "THE BELL NEWS." I really can't believe it. Should however such benighted persons exist, let me tell them they have missed a treat in not having this and the two previous numbers, containing my "notes." In order that these people shall have copies for preservation to hand down as heirlooms to their executors, administrators and assigns for ever, I will undertake to supply all of them with free copies, on receipt of their address. Each application to be successful should be accompanied by four penny stamps, or a cheque or postal order of equal value.

* * * * *

My dear readers, I have done. For the present at all events. Your friend and mine—"Free Lance"—takes up his pen next week. You and I will be glad to see he is again able to do so. If I have given offence to any one in what I have written, I hope they will receive my humble apologies: on the other hand, if my notes have caused one moment's lightness or merriment I shall be glad. In either cause I should like to hear from any "brethren of the string." Perhaps I may yet get an appointment on the staff of our paper if my friends will make representations to that effect to the "proper quarter," and the farewell may not be such a long farewell after all. JOSHUA.

HITCHIN, HERTS.

The following has been taken from the St. Mary's Magazine for July, 1890: "Mr. W. Allen has withdrawn his name from the Society of Hitchin Bell Ringers, whose leader he has been for several years. Mr. Hare had been elected to succeed him as leader. Mr. Allen's name twice stands conspicuously in gilt letters on the board in the belfry, chronicling the feats which have been performed on our peal of bells, and we hope that as a member of the College Youths he will not permanently surrender the science which he has done a great deal in past years to encourage in our town."

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1890.

THE letter from Swansea, which may be found among the correspondence, comprises an appeal which could with propriety emanate from other parts of the British Islands. "Come over and help us" is a request which we believe could be heard from many quarters where the thirst for information concerning the art is existent. There is more than one county in England and in the principality and sister countries, many, where "help" in the manner alluded to is wanting. Who ever hears of a peal in the counties of Rutland or Huntingdon—we had almost asked who has ever heard of a peal being rung in either. Perhaps there are others laboring under a similar reproach who have neglected the opportunities which an introduction of the art at some period gave them. It is not such as these that we would refer to now. We wish to draw particular notice to those places which like the county of Glamorgan have never been favoured with a "beat-up" by recruiting parties. We hope this hint will be taken when the opening-up of fresh territory is being considered.

*First peal of Stedman. This peal was rung in honour of the marriage of Mr. Henry M. Stanley and Miss Dorothy Tennant, which took place the same day at Westminster Abbey. The above church being situated in the parish of the Abbey, was founded by the Baroness Burdett Coutts, a very great friend of Mr. Stanley. To the Editor of "THE BELL NEWS AND RINGERS' RECORD."

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION AND PRIZE-RINGING.

SIR,—Thanks to our versatile and amusing friend "Joshua," I had not intended troubling you with any remarks for another week, but I feel I ought not to permit Mr. Stead's letter to go unchallenged. After asking "Who is Free Lance?" (a query, by the way, not only superfluous, but savouring of impertinence, in the way it is put), he assumes that I, having never attended one of these prize-rings, can therefore know nothing about them. Now, when a man in controversy commences guessing, he is usually finding himself running short of argument, and as usually guesses totally wide of the mark, thus achieving nothing but the feat of making an exhibition of himself. So in this case. I have not only been present at prize-rings, but also most probably know much more about them than Mr. Stead imagines. But let that pass. The standard of ringing, he asserts, is "certainly of a lower order than fifteen or twenty years ago." If this be true, what is the cause of it? Why, the absence of prize-rings, maintains Mr. Stead. Then what have he and his prize-ringing friends (who he says are legion) been about all this time to allow ringing to so degenerate? Does it mean that they would only make an effort to keep up this quality when there was the prospect of a money prize before their eyes? Does it mean that their zeal for ringing is and has been measured by the number of these matches, and the amount of money to be got out of them? Then I say that he and his friends ought to hide their diminished heads in very shame at the charge which he thus inferentially makes against them. But I don't believe his statement. Ringing, both in quantity and quality, is unquestionably superior throughout the country to-day to what it was twenty years ago; the proofs of which are in abundance. After all, that is not the real question at issue. It is not the pros and cons of prize-ringing that are concerned, but the question whether the Yorkshire Association shall officially adopt the principle and make itself practically a prize-ringing organisation. That is the crux of the whole thing. And therefore I say—first, seeing that this Association—like others—has plenty of work before it in accomplishing the object for which it was established, namely the bringing together of ringers for mutual intercourse, and raising the status of the Exercise "both in its scientific aspect and as a branch of Church work;" second, that the difference of opinion existing amongst the members should deter the Association as a general body from taking up either one side or the other; third, that it would be manifestly unfair to use any funds for the purpose of promoting such a principle which are subscribed to alike by those supporting and opposing it; and fourth, that as there is the only too probable risk of alienating the clergy from it by the adoption of this plan of prize-ringing. The Yorkshire Association would be taking a fatal step did it adopt Mr. Stead's motion. I am fully convinced that were it to be so misguided as to declare in favour of that principle, its downward course might be dated from the taking of such action. But Mr. Stead appears to have a very small opinion of our clergy. He thinks the Association can get on all right enough without them. Let me ask him where our Associations would be—where in fact would ringing at all be—without the aid, or at least the countenance of our clergy? It is all nonsense thinking of ignoring our parsons; they are—and rightly too—masters of the situation, and as such have to be considered. And there can be no mistake about it that the clergy of the present day as a rule are strongly opposed to the system of prize-ringing. If Mr. Stead wants proof of it, let him ask his own Vicar, or the clergy of neighbouring parishes, if they would allow ringing-matches on their bells. Probably their replies will bring him to his senses more effectually than any words of mine. I have only one more observation to make, and that is—if excellence in ringing cannot be obtained without perverting our bells and belfries by these ringing matches; if our brethren will not—or cannot—perfect themselves in the way of good striking, without the inducement of a prize; then I say we are unworthy of the position we claim to hold in the Church. Such, I am convinced, is not the case; and thus I regard the whole tenour of Mr. Stead's assertion in favour of his contentions as little better than a slander on the whole Exercise. FREE LANCE.

THE NEWNHAM PEAL.

SIR,—The peal of Bob Triples rung at Newnham and published last Saturday, belongs to the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association and St. Michael's Juniors, Gloucester. H. L. JAMES.

"COME OVER AND HELP US."

SIR,—Would you kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper, of which I am a constant reader and have been for several years. I was much pleased to see one of my own townsmen figure so nicely in "THE BELL NEWS," I mean W. J. Sevier, of Gloucester. Its many years ago since I left that City, but as I was brought up close to a belfry I was desirous of learning the art myself as soon as an opportunity came in my way, but I am sorry to tell you that although I have been for the last twelve years practising in an eight-bell tower, I have never struck more than the first 30 of Grandsire Triples. Now all this is owing to the bad management of the bell-ringers in Wales, and I think if some of those English teams were to pay us a visit and show the public what bell-ringing really is, I think we should soon make great strides for the better. I noticed that the Oxford men have done something towards that in Somersetshire, and I do hope some party will do so with us before long; there are several peals of bells round about this district, and there has never been a peal scored on them yet, in fact they have never been raised in peal, so the thing would be all quite new for thousands to listen to. It's no wonder we are having those confounded pipes stuck up in the new towers that are being built, I mean tubular bells, we have just opened one lot and I hear they are going to place another lot in another tower not far distant from this part; but not knowing—as I have told hundreds—what proper church-bell music is like when a proper struck peal is rung on them, you can't wonder at their giving way to any substitute that might be brought before them. I should think that our Caerleon friends could run down as there are often trips from Newport to Swansea. Had it not been for the kindness of H. Gardiner, of Gloucester, I don't suppose we should ever have struck 30 changes hand and back, as it's nothing else but Churchyard Bob, go where you will. I will now leave it entirely in the hands of those that read our valuable paper. Hoping you will pardon me for taking this opportunity of expressing my views on this subject. HENRY WEST.

AN ALLEGATION.

SIR,—In your issue of the 12th July, I see a peal of Plain Bob Triples rung at Chepstow, conducted by W. H. Fussell. Now, Sir, I beg to state that at the time mentioned, 3 hrs. 11 mins., the bells were not in course, much less come home. I will now ask a question: "Should Hubbard's 10-part peal be called W. H. M., as was the case in the 8th part, where the bells still contained until jumped round, viz: 324765?" When the bells were jumped round I went in the tower and told Mr. Fussell that I should be ashamed to publish a peal of that sort, and I hope that some of our ringing friends will take this matter up, to try and prevent false peals being published. C. SMITH.

Chepstow, (late of Loughborough).

WORCESTERSHIRE AND ADJOINING DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.—FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT.—From this publication of thirty-two pages, just to hand, I find that the Association at the end of its last financial year numbered 27 honorary and 180 performing members, representing an increase of 9 in the former class and 18 in the latter. In the address signed by the Master and Hon. Sec., a very encouraging account is given of work done during the twelve months. First, it says, "A comparison of the reports which have been issued will shew the success that has attended all concerned in the development of the object which it was formed to attain. One great feature of the work done is that there is now a decent appearance of the belfries; and a more uniform and becoming behaviour on the part of the ringers in them. The bells, in many cases, have received such attention as were greatly needed, putting them in such a state that ringing them has become a positive pleasure instead of a dangerous pastime." Again, "Another feature is, a more regular attention to the practice of change-ringing; nearly all companies in connection with the Association now ring scientifically, and we trust each individual member will soon be able to do so. The effect of this is shewn by the steady increase in the number of peals recorded in the peal-book; and in a more marked degree by the different and more intricate methods in which they have been rung." Thirty-six peals, I might here observe, have been rung during the past year, against 19 of the previous year, the methods rung being Plain Bob, Grandsire, Canterbury Pleasure, Union, and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob Major, Grandsire Caters, in addition to many Minor methods. The address goes on to say that "The popularity of the Association among the clergy and laity is shewn by the fact that during the past year twelve honorary and fifty-seven performing members have been enrolled"; following this piece of information with an earnest hope that "A corresponding amount of good will be produced, not only in an increased number of members attending the different meetings, where a free exchange of opinion may take place, and where we may become better acquainted with each other, but also in the quantity and quality of the ringing done in the different towers; by punctual observance of duty, frequent attendance at the services of the Church, and a becoming behaviour at all times; then they doubt not "the day is not far distant when bell-ringers will hold a recognised place among the church workers in our different parishes." These last quoted sentences are applicable not to the Worcestershire Association merely, but all round; and I reproduce them in full in the confident anticipation that they will take effect in other quarters, besides the one for whom this report is issued. Turning to that important and always interesting portion of such reports, namely, the balance-sheet, I find their receipts from subscriptions to be—from honorary members, £8 10s.; and from performing members, £13 14s. 6d.; a total of £22 4s. 6d. Against this their expenditure has been £16 13s. 9d. The heaviest item of expense (£3 18s. 2d.) is put down to Secretary's travelling, postage, stationery, etc., while the five meetings held have collectively cost £3 16s. 6d.—no great amount, certainly. This Association is evidently worked on economical lines, the result of which is that they finished the past year with a balance of £12 2s. 2d. to the good, against a similar balance of £6 11s. 5d. at its commencement. Altogether the members have good cause for satisfaction at this their latest report. It denotes that they are moving on in organisation, in the science, in the matter of friendly meetings, as well as of increased support and encouragement from both clergy and laity, and—not the least of it by any means—an increasingly favourable balance-sheet. These circumstances combined should, while yielding immediate gratification, impel the members to still further exertions for the good of their Association, whose doings will compare favourably with those of its contemporaries.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.—ANNUAL REPORT.—That account of the Annual Meeting of this Association which appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" the other week, containing as it did a verbatim copy of the official record of proceedings for the year, renders my reviewing of this report easy on the one hand, but slightly more difficult on the other. Easier because the work of the Association has been thus already placed before readers of the paper; but more difficult through the task thus involved of considering its work and position without reiterating facts and statements which have already appeared in these pages. However, a comparison between the last and two previous years will be the most effective mode of shewing the amount of progress which has attended this Association's efforts, and the position in which it stands to-day as against three years ago. The Report for 1887 stated that "The steady increase in the number of practising members has continued during the past year, and from about 400, the total has risen to 480. There are now 52 parishes in union, and there have been two withdrawals. Had all the bands who joined in 1880 kept with us, there would now be 63 altogether. The roll of hon. members has been reduced by deaths or withdrawals from 167 to 152, and unless some improvement takes place in this respect, it augurs ill for the future of this Society. Whether in a financial or general point of view, success can only be hoped for from the co-operation of different classes. The help and kindly interest of even one or two hon. members would have saved many a band from collapse, which has failed only because left entirely to itself." This was a discouraging state of affairs, in all certainty. The receipts that year were £74 8s. od., and the expenses £79 9s. 10d., leaving a deficit of £5 1s. 10d. In 1888 was experienced "about the usual amount of additions to the number of practising members, and of withdrawals of bands, which owing partly to the want of support from hon. members in the several parishes, partly to their own want of energy, have collapsed, leaving in a few instances a residuum of one or two ringers who still adhere to the Association as unattached members. The Association numbers now about 500 practising and 156 hon. members, and there are 53 parishes in union." This year the income (£68 13s. 6d.) exceeded the expenditure by £12 1s. 6d., making their reserve fund now £94 15s. 6d. Coming to the year just past, we find that the Association now numbers 362 full members, 113 probationers, and 142 honorary, making a total of 617, which is a decrease on the previous year. The receipts, however, have increased to £102 17s. 8d., but so also has the expenditure, which is 15s. 2d. in excess of even that large sum. In my perusal of these annual reports, I must confess a weakness for examining their balance-sheets. In the case of the Worcestershire Association, I noticed the evident economic form of management, but in this instance almost the reverse seems to be the prevalent practice. Here is an Association with 475 ringing members, whose expenditure for the year exceeds £100. These members subscribe 2s. per year each, while the average cost per man is more than double that amount. What is the cause of this? We must look to the items of expenditure for the answer. And, doing so, what do we find? Why, that the item "expenses of meetings" alone accounts for considerably more than half of the whole total. In 1887, out of £79 9s. 10d., no less than £45 5s. 4d. is down for this; next year £44 8s. 6d. is taken out of £68 13s. 6d., and last year the item has risen to £62 6s. 6d., out of the £103 12s. 10d. expended. The officers of this Association should, of course, know their own business best, but to say the least of it, this seems to be a most outrageously high price to pay for attendance at meetings. But leaving this, I cannot help remarking that there appears plenty of scope for improvements in various ways in the Kent Association. Fortunately, in the Vicar of Bobbing it possesses a Hon. Sec. who would be a credit to any Association in the country. Many of its other officers, also, are well known for their heartiness in the cause. If the members, therefore, would but take the words of the Secretary's report well to heart, and act upon them, there is no earthly reason why this desired improvement should not be effected—and soon. They would thus themselves reap the benefit, while their zealous officers would be encouraged in their efforts for the common good. One characteristic of both these reports is very manifest, and which I cannot omit mentioning, namely, the excellence of their "get up," which is a credit to the printing department of "THE BELL NEWS." And when I compare the present reports with those of the previous year, why there is literally no comparison to be drawn in this respect between those of 1889 and their immediate predecessors. And not in the style of printing only, but in the general arrangement of pages also, is this improvement so striking. Thus, however much members may be satisfied with the contents of their last reports, they have exceedingly great cause to be gratified at the vastly superior manner in which these aforesaid contents are now placed before them.

A CORRECTION.

Dr. Carpenter writes:—"Please be kind enough to note the peal of Oxford Bob Triples, rung by the Surrey Association on Wednesday, July 2nd, was rung at Carshalton, not at Ashted."

THE BRIGHTON ST. NICHOLAS SOCIETY.

This Society had their annual outing on Saturday, July 5th, at Hailsham, under very depressing circumstances, the day being wet with a cold north wind blowing, but on arriving at their destination, the "Crown," hearts were cheered by luncheon being in readiness for them. They then went to the church of St. Mary, where there is a light peal of eight, tenor 10 cwt. 13 lbs. Originally there were only 5 bells, 4, 5, 7, 8, are dated 1663, the 6th being recast in 1768; 1, 2, and 3, were added in 1889 by Mears and Stainbank. Several touches of Grandsire Triples were rung, and a quarter-peal attempted but came to grief about half-way. At two o'clock host Butcher had a capital dinner in readiness, to which the party did full justice, the secretary presiding, Mr. Morris taking the vice-chair. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts having been given and drank, the secretary then expressed his sorrow for the absence of their late master, Mr. J. Searle, who has left Brighton, but was to have joined them at the festive board on this occasion. He was sorry to say that Mr. Searle was seriously ill with an attack of pleurisy; standing last evening by his bedside, he had desired him to say to them that he hoped they would have a happy day. The members at once sent a message from the dinner-table direct, expressing their deep sympathy with him in his sickness. A cricket match was spoken of between the Hailsham and Brighton ringers but was abandoned owing to the weather. The party amused themselves as best they could, and at six o'clock sat down to tea, returning to the tower for an hour's ringing, leaving at 8.45 and getting back to Brighton at 10 p.m. The thanks of the society are due to the vicar, the Rev. F. C. Harvey, also to Mr. Weller and his brother-ringers for their kindness.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

LIVERPOOL DIOCESAN BRANCH.—The usual monthly ringing meeting was held at the parish church, on Saturday, July 5th. There was only a moderate attendance as some of the ringers in the district were busy in the hay fields. Ringers attended from Liverpool, Garston, Grassendale and Southport. The vicar (the Rev. R. B. Stewart) presided, and was supported by one of his wardens, Major Derryhouse. After the minutes of the last meeting were read and passed, the Vicar addressed the meeting, expressing his great pleasure to find that there was such an excellent association in connection with the Church, being very glad they had paid a visit to his church, and no doubt was doing a good service throughout the country. Major Derryhouse then addressed the meeting, and endorsed the vicar's remarks in a neat and forcible speech. The vicar and his warden, Major Derryhouse, were then elected life members, also four performing members; the elections of all being carried with applause. The next meeting was fixed to be held at St. John's Church, Tue Brook, near Liverpool, on the first Saturday in August. It was proposed that the best thanks of the meeting be given to the vicar and wardens for the use of bells and school-room for meeting, also to the vicar for presiding, and steeple-keeper for having all in connection with the tower in such nice order. Carried with applause. The Vicar and his Warden each briefly responded, which brought a nice meeting to a close. Methods rung on the bells during the evening: Grandsire, Plain Bob, and Treble Bob Minor.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

Such readers of these pages as have had patience to follow so far the analysis of this complicated method will be glad to emerge from the chrysalis state of the enquiry into practical manipulation of the deductions that have been arrived at. We have now reached a point at which these results may conveniently be collected and abbreviated into a more serviceable form than was permissible in the elementary stages of the explanation. Having traced to the best of my ability the secret of the affinity of the twin-bob for Hudson's P blocks, of which the "q" set is the real key, I will proceed to shew how the key may be applied.

To this end it will first be necessary to get rid of the incumbrance arising from treating the twin-bob as a two-fold shunt. The principles upon which the twin-bob works being once thoroughly understood, this double call may most advantageously be treated as one, both in its notation and in its effects. We have seen that the first bob of every twin introduces one of the 120 missing sixes, and at the same time avoids a repeating six. The necessity of working in strict accordance with the requirements of the "q" sets guarantees that, if the calls are arranged to bring up the whole of the true sixes of the 60 P blocks, not only will the 120 repeating sixes be ejected, but also the 120 missing ones be introduced instead without any further attention on the part of the composer. It has been, I hope, made clear that the first bob of a pair invariably shunts out of the P blocks to a missing six, while the second bob as invariably shunts back into them, landing at the proper six of a different block to the one left. In twin-bob composition only two things require to be known; first, where twin-bobs may permissibly occur; second, into what P block the course is landed on the completion of the twin-bob. In the first case it is simply necessary to pay due attention to "q" set requirements; in the second to consult the table of P blocks in order to make sure that no true six of any P block is used twice over. The missing and repeating sixes may be trusted to look after themselves. To put it more simply, the twin-bob in this method may be regarded as like one bob in other methods, a clean shunt from one block to another. From this it is evident, not only that the twin-bob may be treated as a unit call, but also that the tabulation of a "q" set may be abbreviated to the extent of one half. For if the intermediate sixes (those between the two bobs of a pair are so denominated) may be neglected in pricking, all information respecting them that is afforded by "q" sets is superfluous. Any hesitation in accepting the truth of this assertion can be removed by a careful study of the "q" set in all its bearings. To come now to the point; in this method we have been taught to express the twin-bob as two separate calls, as for instance 3-4. In Grandsire Triples and similar methods, on the contrary, two consecutive bobs do not each receive their proper titles. We do not say "call the 7th before and wrong," but "before with a double." If, in twin-bob peals of Stedman Triples, the same practice were adopted of only naming the first call of a double, the addition of the word "double" would be unnecessary, seeing that every bob in a peal is known to be double. All that is requisite is to adopt a special notation in twin-bob compositions for the four calling positions, so that no confusion may arise between these and peals containing isolated bobs. Simply to use the figures 3, 5, 7, and 12 might mislead, because peals exist in which such calls are not always double. I prefer to adopt the initial letters of the words indicating the calling positions, as is done in even-bell ringing. Figures are so constantly required in campanology for various purposes, that it is well to lessen the occasion for their use as far as possible. The four calling positions are:

H.—Half turns.

L.—Last whole turn with a double.

Q.—in and out Quick.

Prefixed to each is the initial letter best qualified to express the particular position, and I shall henceforth use these abbreviations; consequently 3-4 will be expressed by S; 5-6 by H; 7-8 by L; 12-13 by Q. In my own investigations I made use of arbitrary letters for this purpose, but it seemed better, in publishing the results, to substitute representative initials which would convey definite meaning to composers and conductors.

Since the abbreviated "q" sets are pricked by course-ends only, it will be necessary, before this simplification can be explained, to shew how six-end pricking may be put altogether on one side until we come to the consideration of singles. In the majority of methods it is unnecessary in composition to prick any but the bobable leads. This is the case in Stedman Triples. In the appendix to my pamphlet on the "Duffield" method I pointed out the advantage of making the course-end the standard of reference in all pricking and proving. This treatment will now be applied to the method in hand.

The sixes we have to take note of are those at the completion of the twin call viz.: 4, 6, 8, and 13, for it is there that a new block is entered on. As, however, sixes 3, 5, 7, and 12 are now dismissed from consideration, and as the twin-bob is to be expressed as one call, we may indicate sixes 4, 6, 8, and 13 by the selected letters S, H, L, Q respectively. Further, we may indicate these sixes individually in any particular P block by prefixing the proper letter to the course-end of that P block; thus S231456 represents the 4th six of block 1. Yet another abbreviation at once suggests itself, not for general use, but as serviceable during these investigations. Table A (see article VI) contains the course-ends of the 60 P blocks, numbered progressively from 1 to 60. S231456 may be more briefly expressed as S1. The row S1, H1, L1, Q1, will consequently represent the whole of block 1; for, as it is only possible to shunt out of any course at the four points S, H, L, and Q, the figure 1 following each of these letters assures us that the course remains in block 1 throughout, and informs us, therefore, that we have here the whole of block 1. Similarly the row S12, H12, L12, Q12, indicates that at H the course has shunted to block 12, and again at L to block 16, in which it remains till the end of the course, and consequently till the next S at least, for there is no shunting place between Q in one course and S in the next. This, in the ordinary mode of notation would be expressed as 641235—5, 6, 7, 8. By heading four columns with the letters S, H, L, Q respectively, and writing the courses under them, any composition may be quickly proved. The following example will elucidate the procedure.

S.	H.	L.	Q.	S.	H.	L.	Q.	2	3	1	4	5	6	3	4	5	6	7	8	12	13
7	41	41	52	x	x	x		4	3	2	5	6	1	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--
52	9	5	5	x	x			1	5	2	4	3	6	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--
49	49	47	47	x	x			1	4	6	5	3	2	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--
9	52	52	41	x	x	x		4	5	1	3	6	2	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--
41		1	1	x	x			2	3	1	4	5	6	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--

The column on the left gives the number in table A of each P block into which the courses are successively shunted. As Q is the last position in a course where a shunt can take place, the figure under Q is the course-end. If the same figure were to appear twice under the same letter it would denote that a part of a course came twice over, causing repetition. If the figure 41 is noticed it will be seen that the whole of this course is utilised, for in the second course we have it from H to Q, in the fifth from Q to S, and in the last from S to H. The calling is given in the next column to the right, crosses being used to represent the twin-bobs, a neat idea of Mr. Bulwer's as the cross consists of two strokes. The experienced composer will not, however, require this column, as the position of the twin-bobs is indicated clearly enough in the first column, by the change of figure. On the right is given, for the purpose of comparison, the ordinary notation of the same touch. The full advantage of the new notation will not be appreciated until we come to the pricking of peals that are in several similar parts; but I must point out that as there will be three other tables given, besides table A, for peals in five, three, and two parts, in each of which tables the P blocks will of necessity be differently numbered, care must be taken to refer each composition to its proper table.

The mode of obtaining the correct figures representing each consecutive shunt will be explained bye-and-bye. It is by no means necessary to use the ordinary transposing scales for this

S—5 2 6 4 1 3	} Table C.
H—2 1 3 4 6 5
L—5 4 3 2 1 6
Q—1 4 6 2 5 3

These give the transposition effected from 123456 by a twin-bob at S, H, L, or Q. For instance, to prick the figures in the first course of the above touch, there being a twin-bob at S, we transpose from 231456 by the S scale, 526413. This gives 536421, which is block 60 in table A. We therefore place 60 under S. As there is no call in this course at H, we still continue in the same block and enter 60 under H also. There being a twin bob at L we now transpose 536421 by the L scale, obtaining 246351. This is block 53, and we enter this figure under L, and likewise under Q as there is no call at that position; 53 is thus the course-end. I merely mention this way of discovering and setting down the P block numbers, as it may be of service in making clear the much shorter plan which will be presently set forth.

Having now explained the manner in which I propose to prick and exhibit the compositions to be examined, it is requisite to return to the subject of "q" sets and to shew how these are to be quickly obtained in a simpler form than that of table B (see article No. VII).

ST. NICOLAS SOCIETY, GREAT YARMOUTH. ANNUAL OUTING.

Our company took advantage of a Church excursion from Yarmouth to Oxford on Thursday, July 3rd, to have its annual outing to that famous place of learning and ringing. Starting at 6 a.m. the long journey passed pleasantly and quickly, only four stoppages being made in the 165 miles. We reached Oxford at 10.45, and were pleased to find those two famous ringers, C. Hounslow and J. W. Washbrook, on the platform to welcome us. The day turned out gloriously fine, and the beautiful city looked its best. A couple of hours was spent in seeing some of the colleges, St. John's, Keble, New College, and the University Museum. We had to be contented with looking at and admiring the graceful proportions of Magdalen tower, where the famous peal of ten hang, as the colleges rules about ringing could not be relaxed. At one o'clock we sought rest and refreshment at the Queen's Restaurant, and adjourned at 1.45 to Christ Church. Great "Tom" was duly inspected, hanging in solitary dignity in the tower over the gateway, and we went and saw Wolsey's magnificent staircase and hall. Thanks to the kindness of Dean Liddell we had leave to ring on the sonorous peal of ten in the Wolsey tower, and we brought home a very fair 500 of Grandsire Caters with Mr. Washbrook handling the tenor. After inspecting the Cathedral, we wandered away down the Christ Church meadows to the banks of the Isis, returning by Corpus Christi and Oriel Colleges into the High Street to see the magnificent reredos in All Souls' College Chapel, the University Church, and University and Brasenose Colleges. About 4.30 we went to Merton to ring on the grand peal of eight that hang in the College tower, for which leave had been granted us by the Warden. Two touches of Triples were rung here, Mr. Hounslow and Mr. Washbrook again helping us. A stroll in Merton gardens and some refreshment in Grove Street followed, and then we had to think of getting back to the station, having enjoyed ourselves thoroughly, and being pretty well tired out. Our best thanks are due to those who gave us permission to ring, and also to Mr. Hounslow and Mr. Washbrook for their kind welcome and the trouble they took to shew us round. It will long before we forget Oxford, with its magnificent buildings, its stately towers, its peaceful repose.

J. F. H.

WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

Wednesday, July 9th, will be marked as an epoch in the history of the town of Wellington, inasmuch as two most important events occurred on that date, namely, the formal opening, after restoration, of the parish bells with the addition of two new ones, and the presentation, by Sir T. C. Meyrick, Bart., of chimes to the town. It is not many months ago since Mr. J. W.

Littlewood, churchwarden, issued an appeal to the public for subscriptions to defray the cost of re-hanging the six bells already in the belfry, and adding thereto two new ones in order to make the peal complete, and that appeal was met in so generous and ready a manner as to justify the work being proceeded with at once. Seeing the ready response which was given to Mr. Littlewood's appeal, Sir Thomas and Lady Meyrick kindly came forward and determined to make matters complete by the presentation of Cambridge or Westminster chimes, and the whole forms a fitting commemoration of the centenary of the building of All Saints' Church. To much praise cannot be accorded to Mr. Littlewood for the really energetic and zealous manner in which he conducted the entire business, and indeed it is doubtful whether any great undertaking in Wellington has previously been carried out with such celerity and ability as this now under notice. It is true that he was ably assisted by a small committee of gentlemen, consisting of Sir Thomas Meyrick, Bart., Mr. Bowring, and Mr. Sharman, but the idea and the carrying out of the work mainly depended upon Mr. Littlewood, and he has succeeded in a manner which is surprising. The work consisted of the removal of the whole of the old fittings in connection with the old peal of six bells (five of which bear date 1713 and one 1758), and replaced by new of a modern and improved kind. The old bells have also been quarter-turned and re-hung, and have been augmented by the addition of two new trebles. A new oak frame resting upon massive oak beams has been placed above the old bell-frame for the purpose of carrying the two new bells. Two of the old bells were sent to the foundry at Loughborough to be tuned; also, better arrangements have been made for the proper sounding of the peal when rung, and a set of guides for the bell-ropes has been provided in the ringing chamber, and the chamber itself has been painted and whitewashed. The bell-chamber floor, which carries the whole weight of the bells and frame, was found on examination to be in a dangerous condition, and it has been greatly strengthened by the addition of two rolled iron girders. The whole of the work was very satisfactorily carried out by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., Loughborough. The Cambridge quarter chimes have been fixed to the clock in connection with the restoration of the peal of bells, and, as already stated, are the handsome gift of Sir T. C. Meyrick, Bart. Sir Thomas was a member of the bells committee, and has taken great interest in the work throughout. A new part has been added to the existing clock by which it is worked, and the chimes are rung by hammers striking on the bells in the chambers above. The bells rang out on Wednesday morning a merry peal of Grandsire Triples, 5040 changes, the men at the ropes being members of the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford, conducted by Mr. Samuel Reeves, of West-bromwich. They, together with the local bell ringers, afterwards dined at the Lion Inn, Park Street, where Mr. and Mrs. Birks provided a first-class spread; indeed the greatest praise is due to Mrs. Birks for the really hospitable manner in which she entertained her guests. A dedicatory service was held in the afternoon, conducted by the Bishop of Shrewsbury, who delivered a sermon suitable to the occasion, basing his remarks on Numbers v. 1, 2, 3. He referred to the fact the public had contributed most readily and liberally to the bells, and also to the energy which Mr. Littlewood had shown in the collection of subscriptions. At the conclusion of the service the belfry immediately became crowded with those anxious to witness the opening of the chimes. Sir Thomas Meyrick said it afforded him very great pleasure to present the chimes to the vicar and town of Wellington. The Rev. H. J. Alcock respectfully accepted the gift on the part of the parish, and said that he should always leave the ringing of the bells to the churchwardens. Lady Meyrick then cut the string and the half-hour was chimed. The Rev. Thomas Owen (Christ Church) proposed a vote of thanks to Lady Meyrick for being present that day, and Lady Meyrick in reply, said that she should be very pleased to come to Wellington and do what she could for the town at any time. The Rev. H. J. Alcock proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Littlewood for the exertions he had made, and he also referred to what Mr. Clarke (the parish clerk) had given. Mr. Littlewood briefly replied, and the interesting proceedings terminated.

After the service, the ringers gave another peal, and subsequently adjourned to the Red Lion Inn, where they partook of a substantial repast, under the presidency of Mr. J. Rowley (captain of the Wellington ringers). The usual loyal toasts having been duly honoured, Mr. M. W. Groucott said that the gentleman who had been chiefly instrumental in bringing about the successful consummation of the project was Mr. J. W. Littlewood—a gentleman who was well known to and esteemed by them all, and he (the speaker) must say that a more unassuming man, considering the position he occupied, did not live in Wellington. Mr. Littlewood was deserving of the best thanks and lasting gratitude of every person who lived within the sound of the bells of Wellington, and he (the speaker) only wished there were more gentlemen of the same kind in the town, for he was not one of those who went about a thing in an effusive, blatant manner, proclaiming their public spirit and their generous intentions from the housetops, and then suddenly dropping a scheme which would be for the benefit of the town. On the other hand, he took the matter up in a quiet, business-like manner, and succeeded in obtaining the co-operation of Sir Thomas Meyrick, who had made them the handsome present of the chimes which Lady Meyrick had set going that day. He believed this was the first public gift which Sir Thomas had made to the town, and he hoped it was an earnest of still better things to come. After some further remarks, Mr. Groucott concluded by asking all present to join heartily in drinking the health of Sir Thomas Meyrick and Mr. Littlewood. The toast was most enthusiastically received. Mr. H. Steventon (one of the Wellington ringers) proposed the health of Mr. Taylor, of Loughborough, who had carried out his work so satisfactorily, and who had come over specially that day to see that everything in connection with the bells was done in a proper manner. The toast was drunk with musical honours, and Mr. E. D. Taylor suitably responded, saying he was much gratified in knowing that their work was appreciated. The health of Mr. Reeves, leader of the Westbromwich ringers, having been given and responded to, the company separated.

LYTHAM, LANCAASHIRE.

The fine peal of six bells at St. John's church, Lytham, have been undergoing repairs and rehangings with patent roller bearings, instead of ordinary brasses. By means of these roller bearings, the heaviest bells are made to swing as light and easy as very small bells under the old system of hanging. Thus the physical part of bell-ringing will be so lightened as to make scientific change-ringing more pleasurable and easy of accomplishment than has ever been the case before. By its means, also, gentlemen constitutionally incapable of over-exertion, or who through their occupations are unaccustomed to such, will be able to ring the largest and heaviest bells with ease. The enchanting art of change-ringing will thus become practicable to such under circumstances which have never before existed. The work has been carried out to satisfaction by Messrs. Shaw, Son, and Co., Bellfounders, Bradford. The "go" of the bells was pronounced by the ringers to be excellent, and they invited all ringing friends to come and have a pull, and also to inspect these bearings, which are being fixed in all parts of the country. The bells were re-opened on Thursday noon last with a muffled peal, in memory of the late Mr. Andrew Whiteside, churchwarden, and the donor of one of the bells. In the evening several touches were rung.—Local Paper.

A VISIT TO ARELEY, WORCESTERSHIRE.

ON Saturday, July 19th, a mixed company from St. Andrew's, Netherton, and St. Thomas, Dudley, visited the above place for the purpose of having a ring upon the bells of the parish church. Arrangements having been made beforehand to go through the grounds (which for the time being are closed to visitors owing to damage being done to the shrubs, etc.), we made our way to the head-gardener—who by the way is a ringer—this individual acting as guide for us through the beautiful and well-kept though not very extensive gardens. After traversing the conservatories, the flower and fruit gardens, to the satisfaction and delight of all, a move was made for the church, which adjoins the grounds. Ascending the tower, which is a very spacious one, (and pleased to say clean and well-kept, with carpeted floor), and contains a nice peal of well-going bells, six in number, we at once set them swinging. "Stand" having been called, we opened a door to admit some light and which led us on to the roof the church, where a splendid landscape view of the country was obtainable. On re-entering the tower a 6-score of Grandsire Minor was rung, after which a 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor was rung in 29 mins. E. Hampton, 1; J. Prestidge, 2; J. Townsend, 3; S. Spittle, 4; W. Micklewright, 5; J. Smith (conductor), 6. Also 360 Plain Bob in 14 mins. F. Hill, 1; E. Hampton, 2; J. Smith, 3; S. Spittle, 4; J. Prestidge, 5; W. Micklewright (conductor), 6. The next move was to a cottage where tea was freely partaken of and much enjoyed. Crossing the river Severn we made our way to the station and wended our way home by the 8 p.m. excursion train, and arrived home quite safe after spending a very pleasant and enjoyable half-holiday.

We cannot close without thanking Mr. Bint, the gardener, for his kindness, and for having everything in readiness for ringing, and we hope and trust that our visit will result in good for the benefit of the local band, and for the Association to which we belong.

JOHN SMITH.

THE SOCIETY OF COPLEY SCHOLARS.

On Saturday afternoon, July 19th, a special ringing meeting was held at St. James', Bolton, when between twenty and thirty members attended. The object of this meeting was to try a somewhat novel experiment. Three separate companies had been previously arranged, the first of which rang 784 Bob Triples, conducted by James Cotterell; the second rang 800 Bob Major, conducted by B. T. Copley; and the third 800 Kent Treble Bob Major, conducted by Joe Hardcastle. During the ringing of these touches, Messrs. J. H. Hardcastle and James Angus sat as judges in the yard of Crow Nest Farm, on the hill top near the church, where they criticised the performance of each individual ringer, and made written reports of the striking. Previous to commencing, they were furnished with the calling of each touch, but had no knowledge whatever as to how the men were placed who rung in them, so that their decisions might be perfectly unbiased. Each touch was brought round without a hitch of any kind, and at the finish, after thanking Mr. Thomas Illingworth (ex-churchwarden) most heartily for the kindly manner in which he had provided for the convenience of the judges, the members adjourned to the Cliff Wood hotel.

The Captain of the society (Mr. B. T. Copley) who presided, briefly alluded to the object of their meeting that day, expressing his gratification at the entire success which had attended their experiments, and called upon the judges for their report.

Mr. J. H. Hardcastle then produced the sheets, the reading of their observations written thereon being listened to with a considerable amount of interest. Each individual ringer's performance was commented upon, failings pointed out, and words of praise given where deserved. The ringing throughout he said, had been of a highly creditable character, considerably better than what the judges had anticipated.

In replying to a hearty vote of thanks to the judges for their services, and the toast of their health, Mr. Hardcastle also said that their duties that day had given both himself and his colleague considerable pleasure. Although they had pointed defects in perhaps strong language, he hoped no offence would be taken thereat, but that the advice they had tendered would be accepted by those to whom they applied, and be acted upon. By this means considerable good would accrue from meetings such as they had held that afternoon. He strongly recommended the holding of frequent meetings of this kind, and assured them that it would always be a pleasure to him at any future time to act in a similar capacity.

Mr. James Angus also replied in a similar strain. Their work had been a little onerous, but they had endeavoured to fulfil their duties faithfully, and had been amply rewarded in the really capital ringing which they had had the pleasure of listening to. Before separating, touches of Triples, Major, and Caters, as well as a "popular air," were rung on the handbells, to the great delight of a number of friends to whom this class of music was a novelty. It should be added, that during the afternoon (the weather being everything that could be desired) the members, not engaged in the belfry, held an impromptu athletic festival in the fields near the church, where some sensational running, tough wrestling, and awfully high jumping was witnessed.

THE BELLS OF ST. MICHAEL, COVENTRY.

With reference to a paragraph which appeared in "THE BELL NEWS" a short time ago, respecting these famous bells, I have much pleasure in informing your readers that there is every probability that in the course of two years' time their sweet old voices will be heard ringing again, over hill and dale, in full peal. These old monitors of time for the last five years have been "lying down in the mouth," and tongue-tied, on the floor of this great and noble church. All have been silent except the sweet little treble, which during that time has done duty for the other nine (while the church and steeple have been restored) in a little campanile erected on the north side of the fabric, being "tanged" for the services. This bell, which weighs 6 cwt. 3 qrs., has upon it in addition to a Latin legend the following inscription:

Although I am both light and small,
I will be heard above you all.

It having been decided by a firm of eminent architects that it would not be advisable that the bells should be again hung in the ancient steeple for ringing, an effort is now being made to erect a new and suitable tower for them contiguous to the church. A "bell fever" has raged in Coventry during the last three years, and feeling has run very high, whether they should go back into the ancient tower, or be hung in a new one. The restoration committee have been pretty equally divided on the subject, but since it has been decided that they can only be placed in the old tower to be chimed, and the beauties of the interior of the tower have been brought out by its complete restoration, a great change in the opinion of the citizens has, it is believed, taken place. To prove this a most extraordinary undertaking, and what perhaps was never done in any city before, is now being carried out by a committee of about 150 citizens, who have voluntarily undertaken a canvass of the whole city, to prove whether the inhabitants wish the bells to be rung in changes and in full peal according to their forefathers' method, or whether they will be satisfied with the continental fashion of simply chiming them. This is being done at the request, or at least according to the expressed wish of the largest donor to the restoration fund, who in addition to £10,000 for that object, has offered half the cost of the new campanile, which cannot be less than £10,000 or £12,000. Of course all admit that where the tower of a church is suitable both in design and construction, that is the proper place for the bells to be hung, and rung in, but for those purposes and many more, this lovely and noble old fourteenth century steeple is not suitable, and as it is most desirable that this grand old peal of ten should not be prostituted to be merely chimed and "tanged," hence arises the desire for a new tower, in which feeling I am sure the Editor of this paper and his readers will sympathise. There are people in even this old city who would do away with bells altogether, and would melt them down; there are others who would sooner lose the grandeur of their music from being rung in full peal, than they would endanger the beauty of the matchless group of "the three tall spires." But neither of these things need be. For although as has been pointed out, a second tower at the west end might prove but an abortive twin—as it could not possibly be placed, with any kind of uniformity, to the nave of the church, unless the present tower was moved further south, and that it would be a mistake to erect any building on the north side, where the view of the body of the church is the best, being an unbroken line of 300 feet—still, if placed at the east, or what would be better, the north-west, it would be a success.

The great difficulty of grouping any new tower with the ancient steeples arises partly from the fact of them standing so near together, thus the difficulty of balancing the whole becomes greater, so as to make a perfect picture. A singular and noteworthy circumstance is that in the Middle Ages the churches of St. Michael and The Holy Trinity, and the large and magnificent cathedral of St. Mary, all stood in one churchyard, so near together that a stone could be thrown to each, and that from these fabrics five steeples were successively grouped. The fine old tenor bell, which weighs 32 cwt. 9 lbs., was cracked in 1804, and was recast by John Bryant, of Hertford. She bears the following inscription:—

I am, and have been called the common bell,
To ring when fire breaks out to tell,

A finer bell of its weight there is not, perhaps, in the kingdom,

but it has been severely punished by being so long used as the clock bell, but the great donor to the church has promised to present to the parish, when the bells are rehung, a new clock bell, to weigh about $3\frac{1}{2}$ tons. It only requires the erection of this campanile to complete the restoration of this stately church, the largest parish church in the kingdom, which in all probability is destined to become the Cathedral Church for the county of Warwick; and on the reparation of which, during the last half-century, has been spent almost exclusively by the citizens of Coventry, at least £70,000., and when the present works are completed by the building of this bell-tower, would not be far short of a sum sufficient to endow the proposed new see in the county.

Since writing the above, I am informed the bell canvass has been completed, resulting in an overwhelming majority of the citizens in favour of the erection of a campanile, so that the bells can be restored back to the people, to be rung as heretofore.

It is hoped, therefore, that this scheme, which has the support of the good Bishop of the diocese, the able and energetic Vicar of St. Michael's (Rev. Dr. Mills), and all the wardens, will soon be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. And that in the time mentioned, two years, your columns will contain an account of the opening peal of the restored and famous bells of the church of St. Michael, Coventry.

A CAMPANOLOGIST.

THE LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

ROCHDALE BRANCH.—The monthly meeting of the above was held at Bury on Saturday, July 12th, when ringers from the following places attended: Rochdale, Heywood, Bury, and Whitefield, and several touches of Grandsire and Plain Bob were rung. The ringers then adjourned to the school where the meeting was held at 5.30 p.m. Here the absence of the rector and his warden was much commented upon, they having previously promised to attend. The ringers had looked forward to this meeting as affording an opportunity of expressing their opinions as to the bad go of the bells to the rector. It is with the greatest difficulty that these bells can be rung at all, and then for not more than about three or four hundred changes. It was resolved that the next meeting be held at East Crompton on Saturday, August 9th. The meeting afterwards closed with the usual votes of thanks.

ROSSEDALE BRANCH.—On Saturday, July 12th, at St. Mary's church, Rawtenstall, in honour of the marriage of H. M. Stanley, Esq., to Miss Dorothy Tennant, at Westminster Abbey, London, the following started for a peal of Grandsire Triples, but after ringing 2000 changes the conductor called "stand" owing to a false change coming up. J. Harrison, 1; J. B. Taylor (conductor), 2; W. Haworth, 3; E. Whittaker, 4; E. Nuttall, 5; J. Smith, 6; J. Ramsbottom, 7; J. Kershaw, 8. J. B. Taylor hails from Waterfoot; Harrison and Kershaw from Newchurch. The last-named gentleman was elected a member of the Association previous to starting for the peal. They had hoped to have in the above peal the assistance of Mr. J. Gratrix, of the Manchester Cathedral society, but through circumstances over which he had no control, he was prevented from taking part in it, which was very much to be regretted. He however arrived at Rawtenstall about 8.0 p.m., and expressed a desire to do honour to that distinguished explorer, H. M. Stanley, Esq. An adjournment was then made to the belfry where a well-struck 504 of Grandsire Triples was rung. J. Rollerson, 1; G. Rollerson, 2; Jas. Gratrix, 3; E. Whittaker, 4; E. Nuttall (conductor), 5; J. Smith, 6; J. Ramsbottom, 7; W. Jamieson, 8. On the following Sunday evening for Divine Service, a start was made for a date touch of Grandsire Triples (1890 changes), but after ringing 620 changes the conductor was compelled to call "stand" owing to an accident to the tenor rope. As they were however not to be denied, it was decided to ring a 1008 of Grandsire Triples, which was brought home in 37 mins. J. Rollerson, 1; G. Rollerson, 2; J. Gratrix, 3; E. Whittaker, 4; E. Nuttall (conductor), 5; J. Smith, 6; J. Ramsbottom, 7; W. Jamieson, 8. Tenor 14½ cwt. in F. They wish through the medium of this paper to thank Mr. Gratrix for his advice which will have their best attention, and they are pleased to know that this his first visit is not to be the last.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"When Johnny comes marching home again, hurrah!"

Who is there amongst us, I wonder, who has not at one time or other left his home for a while to sojourn in some health-giving resort, to recruit himself, and then returned invigorated, to find his old friends just the same as ever, and to be met at every turn with kindly enquiries and good wishes for his entire recovery? That is exactly my case just now; and thus I feel while recommencing my weekly chat that I am once more at home with my friends. Of course, we do not agree with each other in everything—that is only natural; but I do believe that we are all of us imbued with one common feeling of wishfulness for the general good of the Exercise, and thus, however we may differ in details, our motif is the same. So much the better for us all.

* * * * *

I should be ungrateful indeed if, after my brief absence from the scene, I did not take the first opportunity of tendering my warmest thanks to our highly-amusing and modest (to a fault!) friend "Joshua," who so magnanimously came to my rescue when I was "out of sorts," and who has fulfilled the duties of my locum tenens in so diverting a fashion. But, at the same time, when he so generously proffered his services, little did I imagine that we should find in him such a "gem of the very first water." What surprises me most is that his evidently irrepressible genius has not long before this made its mark in the pages of "THE BELL NEWS." What mental sufferings he must have undergone—to be sure—in finding himself so "many times and oft" thwarted in his efforts to make a name for himself! But it was ever thus with talented individuals. At the same time, I flatter myself that my recent enforced absence from my usual place, was a blessing in disguise, inasmuch as it has been the means of giving us all (through "Joshua") every requisite for some real good merriment. I don't doubt for one moment that his notes will have highly diverted us all—in one way or other; and it is most certainly to be hoped that it will not be long before we meet him again, and have a hearty laugh at his drolleries.

* * * * *

One or two more remarks before I part company with our friend "Joshua" this week, and those I would make—not to him, but—to those who have been amused with his Notes. In the first place, don't imagine "Joshua" to be as black as he appears to paint himself. I am quite certain he does not while ringing "place one foot eighteen inches before the other;" neither does his style of handling the rope tend to make one imagine that he is attempting to strangle his near neighbours in the circle. Still less would he go in for calling a date touch of Caters on eight bells. So you must take his description, as well as his statements, cum grano salis, then probably you will understand and appreciate him better. I rather begin to suspect that he has had some one in his "mind's eye" during the last three weeks, whose vagaries he has been describing; but of course, this is only suspicion.

Then one word in the shape of a query to Joshua himself. Can he reckon up the relationship between himself and the original bearer of that time-honoured name Joshua, who—we are told—was the son of Nun? That will find him employment for his leisure hours, and if he runs short of paper in working out the reply, I will send him a ream or two, just by way of acknowledgment for the brilliant services he has rendered to us.

As is usually the case, about this time of the year, little is being done amongst us but pleasant outings. And when we consider the atmospheric circumstances under which we live in England, there can be no wonder that with the tardy advent of fine weather, the fields and the sea coasts are patronised more by brother-strings, while for the time being the belfries begin to feel stuffy, and so the bells hang silent through the week. One need only look at last week's pages to learn what sort of weather is about. The Glemsford company went to Finchingfield, calling also at Wethersfield and Stoke-by-Clair; Batley Carr men visited Felkirk; a party of ringers from Lyminge, Bra-bourne and Elham had a "trot out" to Beakesbourne—where, by the way they trotted out some scientific ringing, which greatly interested some of the parishioners; the St. Peter's Society, St. Albans, had a day in "the city;" St. Martin's Guild went for a half holiday to Hatton, near Warwick; St. Luke's (Liverpool) Society let the good people of Llangollen have a sample of their proficiency; and the Brighton (St. Nicholas) men journeyed to Hailsham. In reading all these reports, in which we are told of the hearty welcomes received by the visitors; of the pleasant drives, by land and water, visits to the towers with just a short touch to hear what the bells are like, then creature comforts well attended to; finishing up with right merry journeys homeward; why, it makes one feel impatient to get away from business and its cares to some quiet spot where he can expand his lungs with the sweet fresh air blowing over newly-mown fields, or the "deep blue sea." Any how, let us take our business cares as well as our holiday pleasures, just as they come, and be thankful; thus the one will be less irksome, while we shall all the more enjoy the other when it comes round.

Of course, peal-ringing and business meetings have not been neglected altogether amid this round of pleasure parties. Among the latter I was pleased to read of the success which attended the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association's festival at Taunton last Saturday week. This youngest of our Associations has now got fairly launched. What is to be its future? It has set sail with good officers, will its crew (pardon the metaphor) manfully second those officers' efforts for the success of the ship that its voyage may be a prosperous and happy one to all concerned.

* * * * *

How different is the story contained in this report of the work performed at Taunton to that furnished us in the appeal for help which comes from Swansea! True, as the Editor remarks, this appeal might also with propriety emanate from other parts of the British Islands. So much more is that to be regretted. Possibly it may not be too late even now, to persuade some of our friends to think of this urgent matter when making arrangements for outings this summer. They might thus readily select localities for their journeyings which would, while giving them pleasurable excursions, also afford them opportunities of doing much good, by encouraging and helping on brother-strings in places where they are struggling under great difficulties. Then when they journeyed homewards, as well as in the future, they would have the satisfaction of feeling that while enjoying themselves for a brief space, they had been doing good by the way, and in all probability been sowing seeds which will spring up and bear good fruit in the time to come.

The Bell News & Ringers' Record.

SATURDAY, JULY 26, 1890.

It is at last decided that the famous peal of ten bells belonging to the Church of St. Michael, Coventry, are to have a local habitation worthy of them. This is chiefly owing to the magnificence of one of Coventry's most worthy sons, Mr. GEORGE WOODCOCK, whose vast liberality towards the restoration of St. Michael's noble fabric is worthy of imitation. The contribution on another page will plainly set forth the condition of affairs in connection with the bells, and we cannot help congratulating the worthy citizens of Coventry that upon this bell matter wise counsels have prevailed.

The peal in question has often been said to be the best ten in existence. The ten at Rotherham church is considered on a par with them, also those of Stepney. No doubt there are many peals of similar quality to be found, but the fact remains that St. Michael's ten are not yet superseded in point of tune and tone. Knowing this, it is with feelings of the most uncommon satisfaction that we publish the remarks of our correspondent. A noble ring of bells, one of the best in the world, awaiting the fiat which should send them to the furnace, or that which should restore them to their legitimate purpose, seems a mournful condition of things. But that has been turned into joy: the bells of the church are to be re-instated with eclat, and will loudly proclaim their molten voices as heretofore.

With respect to the Campanile which is intended for the bells, those in authority will doubtless have many plans and designs submitted for approval. Whatever design may be selected, a well-lighted apartment for the ringing-chamber should be a sine qua non. The ringers' apartment in the present steeple did not err in having a excess of daylight. Many architects of the present day think nothing of the conditions under which a ringer fulfils his duties, which often are performed in a room which has just enough light for a coal-shed. Our Coventry friends must see that such an iniquity as an imperfectly-lighted ringing-chamber is not thrust upon them.

THE HOLIDAYS.—Among the numerous and varied excursions which are now provided for the London public, there is none more deservedly popular than the daily trip to Clacton-on-Sea by the new and handsome paddle steamer, the Clacton Belle, a vessel which has been built especially for this journey. Leaving London Bridge at 9.30 a.m., the steamer calls at all piers en route to Gravesend, from which point a most rapid and enjoyable run is made past Southend and the Mouse and Nore lightships, Clacton being reached at about 2.0 p.m. Here an hour-and-a-half is allowed on shore, giving ample time for a sea bath on a nice sandy beach or a stroll on the breezy cliffs. Leaving Clacton at 3.30 the boat arrives at London Bridge at about 8 o'clock, thus accomplishing the journey of 140 miles in about eight hours. The Clacton Belle is undoubtedly the fastest and most commodious passenger steamer on the Thames; her saloon is handsomely upholstered and delightfully cool; and the caterer has adopted popular prices for the refreshments, which are of the best quality. There is a capital band on board.

UNION TRIPLES.

SIR,—At last I have a moment in which to commence an answer to Mr. Carter's letter in your issue of May 17th, though quite possibly I may have to put my pen aside more than once before completing it. Mr. Carter in answer to my assertion that Clavis and Shipway do not recognise the common Grandsire Single as being the right one to use in the case of Union Triples, quotes the following sentence from "Shipway" (old Ed., pt. 2, pp. 107-8; reprint, p. 147): "The bobs and singles in this system are made in the same manner as in the Grandsire system, viz.: the two third's places with double dodging above third's, the fifth place being then omitted, etc." I fully admit the accuracy of this quotation, but I note in it one thing which seems to have escaped Mr. Carter, viz.: that while distinct mention is made of "two third's places," not a word is said of "double thirds." The phrase "bobs and singles," with which the paragraph opens, seems indeed to me to have been written in more or less of a mechanical manner. It is just the expression that would be likely to drop from one who had looked at the method, and, finding that the bobs were the same as those in Grandsire, hastily concluded that the singles followed the same rule. But he gives no description of the singles. Indeed, so far is he from bearing out the argument which Mr. Carter would draw from his words that when in the third part we come to the peals (reprint, p. 146) we find him giving a totally different single, that is to say a plain lead single. This Mr. Carter cheerfully describes as a "common Grandsire single, only it is made at a plain lead instead of at a bob"! "Very much 'only,' say I." Mr. Carter is probably older than I am, and has most probably rung more Grandsire than I have, but if a concern which occurs at a plain lead is to be called a "common Grandsire single," then all I have to say is that Mr. Carter must write us a new dictionary of the Grandsire method. Mr. Carter charges me by implication with playing fast and loose with Union for having employed a call of which he does not approve, but in order to justify the introduction by himself of a most needless and unscientific call he has apparently not the slightest scruple in playing ducks and drakes with the oldest and most firmly established method in the whole science. I mean, of course, Grandsire Triples. His next quotation from Shipway as to coming round at hand seems to me irrelevant, as the question of coming round at hand is independent of that of the singles, provided always of course that such singles be used as will turn the course of the bells. Mr. Carter says that the singles I propound in my letter are Sottanstell's. That of course may be so: but when he goes on to say that he does not approve of them as being away from the method your readers will not need to be reminded that this begs the whole question, and is therefore worthless. I am perfectly willing to admit the principle enunciated in Mr. Carter's next quotation from Shipway part 2 p. 2, viz., that the name "single" be given to any call suspending the change of one pair of bells. My remarks on that point were simply prompted by Mr. Carter saying that my singles were not "true singles," or something of that sort. So long as we are agreed as to the exact application of the term "single," I do not in the least object to my calls being known by some other name. All for which I contend is that they are not a whit more of an innovation on the method than Mr. Carter's calls, and that until Mr. Carter can compose as many peals with only two of his calls in each of them, as my calls are capable of producing, his calls are not merely wanting on the score of symmetry and consanguinity to the method, but are utterly deficient in utility. Mr. Carter must not forget that I am arguing simply with a view to the composition of peals. I quite agree with him that it is serviceable occasionally to obtain particular music in touches or to bring the bells round at hand by turning the course of the bells, but I insist that this can be done with quite as much facility by the employment of a good call as by Mr. Carter's, which I account a bad one. With regard to my argument that the single in Union ought to be constructed on the same principle as those in Plain Bob and Double Norwich, Mr. Carter observes that Major methods are no criterion for Triples. I do not admit this, but let it pass. But I will ask him to consider the rule in Stedman Triples. This method is perfectly normal as regards the point in consideration, viz., that a single is a compound of Plain and Bob. Grandsire cannot be thus arranged—it would if it could; but Union can, and therefore I submit that there is no choice. On this point Mr. Carter has fallen into a glaring mistake, for in his last line but seven he distinctly states that bobs in Stedman are not made in one place in lieu of another, whereas of course everyone knows that they are so made. In conclusion there is against Mr. Carter's singles one other crucial objection which I have not yet mentioned. They introduce confusion by transplanting us into another lead at a different place from that at which such migration is effected at a bob. The natural place to break off the leads in Union is between the treble's blow in 2nd's and lead on the way down; and if they are to be broken off also between the two leading blows of the treble, then we shall have some leads consisting of fourteen, others of fifteen rows. Mr. Carter will perhaps say that this objection lies against my singles, which break off the lead in the middle. But as my singles were never contemplated for use more than twice in a peal, and always for the same individual rows, there can be no danger of confusion or mistake. To sum up—my contention is this:—

1.—If my singles are "away from the method" so are those of Mr. Carter.

2.—Never more than two of my singles are wanted in a peal; Mr. Carter's are wanted by the handful.

3.—Mine must be in the form into which I have cast them. I much wish they could be improved; but the form of Mr. Carter's is needless, and therefore a gratuitous blot on the method.

4.—For Mr. Carter's purpose there is a call in full accord with the method, but this Mr. Carter appears to reject.

Next time I meet Mr. Carter I shall hope to have a good talk with him about all this, and it will be a great pleasure to me to meet such a friendly opponent.

CHARLES D. P. DAVIES.

MR. FUSSELL'S REPLY.

SIR,—Will you please allow me to occupy a little space in your valuable paper to answer Mr. C. Smith's letter of last week. Permit me to take up the matter of "false peal ringing," and to say that I have been and still continue to be an advocate of improvement in this particular respect. The composition I called will be found on p. 56, "Hubbard's Campanologia," and before starting I vowed to call "stand" on either of the following defects arising—a wrong call, a change-course, or bad ringing. The first two parts were unsettled in the striking, but words of advice remedied defects, and Mr. Smith will admit (considering the team), that generally the peal was of fair average striking, even if rather slow. Parts No. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, were well struck and the part-ends all correct. About thirty minutes from the finish we were very unexpectedly alarmed by the intrusion of the clock winder and two boys, who were not at all anxious to leave at our request, although there was a general yell "go out." I conclude that this was the cause of a bad finish being made to an otherwise good peal, as the younger hands never recovered their self-possession. Any conductor can well understand how this would effect a team with six "maiden hands" in it, anxious to score their "first peal," and at last "near it, awful near it." With reference to my vow I had two doubts, each in the 10th part; one, as to whether 5-3 had shifted which caused me to call "single, no bob," at the "third home," however the remaining four calls set both doubts at rest, and a badly-struck single completed the peal. The jumping round was caused by the 6th man not turning to the 7th behind, before going to his dodge in 5-6 down, and the 4th man looking just the reverse way after his last lead, I freely forgive both, the former because that was his only serious error, and the latter because the bells run round left handed and he was very unwell, and had been so for some days. From what I remember of Mr. Smith's excited entrance to the tower after the peal, and his many remarks, I conclude he was disappointed at not having called the first peal for the local team—he has tried. The calls he quotes could not have been made, or the 8th part end would not have turned up correctly. The figures showing how the bells were jumped round reveals the fact, that the very two he says were in position are the only two at fault, and those he says that were out, are the exact bells which were quite correct. Fortunately it was not a Guild or Diocesan peal where the honour of the association or the booking of the peal would be concerned, or I may have felt greater wrath at the accusation. The Chestow ringers and Mr. Gardiner, whom I have not seen since that peal was rung, will no doubt be able to truthfully attest my remarks. In conclusion, I would refer my friend to the tenth commandment, and add that it is easier to condemn than to praise, especially where any jealousy exists. The bells, the men, and the composition, are all in readiness for Mr. Smith's use—all the ill I wish him is—may he never ring a worse peal, and should he ever act as a steeple-keeper again may he keep a better charge of tower door.

THE PHONOGRAPH AND THE WEDDING BELLS.—A new and very charming use of the phonograph was thought of in connection with the Stanley marriage. Colonel Gouraud presented to Mr. Stanley a phonograph as a wedding present. There are only four phonographs in England. Three were in Westminster Abbey during the wedding service. One was placed in the tower, to record the full sound of the wedding bells. The second phonograph was placed by the organ, to note the music and the Wedding March. The third was placed in the choir, and gave the hymn as sung by the voices. These records will be given by Colonel Gouraud to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley, so that at any time hereafter, the wedding bells, the organ and the voices will sound as on the 12th July, 1890.

This is the first occasion on which the phonograph has been used to record wedding bells and the music of a marriage service.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, July 12th, the ringers of the parish church, Oldham, held their annual pic-nic, the place selected being Glossop. They left Oldham by the 1.35 train, and their place of destination was reached about 2.50. Mr. J. Maloney, one of the local band, met the visitors, and directed them to the church, where they rung some touches of Grandsire Triples. Tea was then partaken of at the "Bull's Head," at which hostel the company were detained through the inclemency of the weather, the rain coming down steadily for about two hours. Whitfield was then visited, and several touches of Grandsire Triples rung. About 8.45 the visitors were joined by a number of friends from Glossop, who remained with them until the hour for departure. The return journey was commenced about 9.45, Oldham being reached about 11.30, all having thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Through the medium of this paper, the company wish to thank the Vicars and Wardens of Glossop and Whitfield for the use of the bells.

ST MARY'S, BATHWICK, BATH.

The year 1888 saw this parish without an attached band of ringers who were members of the church, and were thereby interested in its welfare. But this state of things has now been altered, owing to the appointment, towards the latter part of the year, of the Rev. C. W. H. Griffith as curate. He fortunately turned out to be a ringer in its fullest and best sense, and recognising the need of better service in this respect, he at once set about to remedy it. The rev. gentleman is well known to many of the readers of this paper, and should their curiosity have been aroused at any time as to what had become of him owing to his non-appearance in the peal list, the following information may interest them. To return. He got together six young men, all regular worshippers at St. Mary's, and at once started them in the rudiments of change-ringing, always keeping before them their position as ringers in the Church. After nearly two years, thanks to his able guidance, the band has been able to score a 720 of Grandsire Minor at their first attempt on the 17th inst., and repeated it again on the following Tuesday. Whatever has been done in the matter of bell-ringing is due simply and solely to his abilities as conductor and teacher. When Mr. Griffith took his youthful company in hand, not one of them knew anything about change-ringing, one or two not even having touched a bell before. During the whole time the band has been together there has not been the slightest sign of discord, simply because there was a head to look up to who had the interests of the band at heart, and also because there was a ready response on the part of those taught. Is not this worth more than merely scoring peals? As an acknowledgment of his abilities he has recently been appointed Master of the newly-formed Association for the county.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

IX.

By A. PERCIVAL HEYWOOD.

The "q" set given in table B, article No. VII., exhibited the eight interlocking sixes of which every such set consists. As it has been shewn that there is no need to pay any further attention to the "intermediate" sixes (those between the two calls of a twin-bob), the 2nd, 4th, 6th, and 8th rows of the table alone remain. Seeing, however, that it is proposed to put six-ends on one side, and to work entirely by course-ends in the manner explained in the last paper, the "q" sets must also be expressed conformably to this plan. In their six-end form, moreover, the "q" sets are troublesome to find, as also to use when obtained. The following abbreviated table gives the "q" set, shewn on table B, in the form of course-ends.

TABLE D.

AN ABBREVIATED "q" SET.

S. 1	3-4 in block	2 3 1 4 5 6
S. 60	3-4 "	5 3 6 4 2 1
L. 30	7-8 "	6 5 3 2 1 4
L. 21	7-8 "	1 2 3 5 6 4

On the right of the table is presented a translation of the symbols that appear on the left. As every P block contains one S and one L position, and as the "q" set includes two of each, the sixty SL will be comprised in thirty "q" sets. Also the sixty HQ (5-6 and 12-13) will be comprised in thirty more "q" sets.

In using these "q" sets it is necessary to remember that the bobbing and plaining must be as in table B. This may be simply stated as follows: In any one "q" set like positions must be treated alike, and unlike positions must be treated in a contrary manner. Thus, in table D, S₁ and S₆₀ must be treated alike, and also L₃₀ and L₂₁; but the two latter must be treated in a contrary manner to the two former, that is, if S₁ and S₆₀ be plained, then L₃₀ and L₂₁ must be bobbed, or vice versa. The same holds good with regard to sets of H and Q. To apply this in practise, if we plain S in block 1, then S in block 60 must also come up plained and L in blocks 30 and 21 must come up bobbed; if we bob S in block 1, then S in block 60 must also come up bobbed and L in blocks 30 and 21 must come up plained.

There is now no necessity for tabulating, as in table B, the two forms of a "q" set, for in table D, by appending bob-marks to S S or L L respectively, we have both forms of the set, since the distinction between them is not that they consist of different rows but that the rows which are the result of bobs in, the one are the result of plains in the other, and vice versa.

I will now give the necessary scales for obtaining "q" sets on the model of table D. The transpositions must be made from the desired course-end as those in the table are from 123456.

TABLE E.

FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF "q" SETS.

Referring to Direct Repetition	S from S	5 2 6 4 1 3
	H " H	2 1 3 4 6 5
	L " L	5 4 3 2 1 6
	Q " Q	1 4 6 2 5 3
Referring to Cross Repetition	L " S	6 5 2 1 3 4
	Q " H	4 1 6 2 3 5
	S " L	4 3 5 6 2 1
	H " Q	2 4 5 1 6 3

The above table is of great importance, since by it are obtained the "q" sets upon which the successful manipulation of the method entirely depends, and particular attention should be paid to the following explanation of its application.

The first half of the table is for the purpose of finding, from any given block, the block in which direct repetition (that is repetition at the same position) may occur; the second half for finding the block in which cross repetition (that is, repetition at a different position) may occur. As it is desirable that the use of the table should be made perfectly clear, I will give an example of obtaining a "q" set for each of the four positions. The process is alike in each case, except that different scales must be employed.

Let us find the "q" sets for each of the four positions. S, H, L, and Q in block 231456. Taking them in order we will commence with the "q" set which includes S₂₃₁₄₅₆. To obtain the S interlocking with it, we must transpose by the "S from S" scale 526413, which gives S₅₃₆₄₂₁. We now want the L that cross-interlocks with S₂₃₁₄₅₆. To obtain this we must transpose S₂₃₁₄₅₆ by the "L from S" scale 652134, which gives L₆₅₃₂₁₄. Next we require the L interlocking with L₆₅₃₂₁₄. This is got by transposing L₆₅₃₂₁₄ by the "L from L" scale 543216, which gives L₁₂₃₅₆₄. It was pointed out in the last article that the cross-interlocking of S₅₃₆₄₂₁ and L₁₂₃₅₆₄, which otherwise would demand attention, is included among the four obtained members of the set, since these two rows cross-interlock with one another. For, if we transpose S₅₃₆₄₂₁ by the "L from S" scale, we get L₁₂₃₅₆₄; or, if we transpose L₁₂₃₅₆₄ by the "S from L" scale, we get S₅₃₆₄₂₁; thus proving that all obligations are satisfied by the four rows, S₂₃₁₄₅₆, S₅₃₆₄₂₁, L₆₅₃₂₁₄, L₁₂₃₅₆₄, which form the "q" set given in table D.

The order of transposition I have followed is that which appears the most convenient, but this is a matter of indifference so far as the result is concerned. Another of the several ways would be to obtain, as above, the second S from the first, and then one L from each S. The transpositions required to find the remaining three "q" sets for block 231456 are given below.

H 2 3 1 4 5 6	H from H	H 3 2 1 4 6 5
H 2 3 1 4 5 6	Q " H	Q 4 2 6 3 1 5
Q 4 2 6 3 1 5	Q " Q	Q 4 3 5 2 1 6
L 2 3 1 4 5 6	L " L	L 5 4 1 3 2 6
L 2 3 1 4 5 6	S " L	S 4 1 5 6 3 2
S 4 1 5 6 3 2	S " S	S 3 1 2 6 4 5
Q 2 3 1 4 5 6	Q " Q	Q 2 4 6 3 5 1
Q 2 3 1 4 5 6	H " Q	H 3 4 5 2 6 1
H 3 4 5 2 6 1	H " H	H 4 3 5 2 1 6

To each of the above sets of three rows the row from which the first transposition of the set was made must be added. The four "q" sets of block 2 3 1 4 5 6 will consequently appear thus:—

H 2 3 1 4 5 6	H 2 3 1 4 5 6	L 2 3 1 4 5 6	Q 2 3 1 4 5 6
H 5 3 6 4 2 1	H 3 2 1 4 6 5	L 5 4 1 3 2 6	Q 2 4 6 3 5 1
Q 6 5 3 2 1 4	Q 4 2 6 3 1 5	S 4 1 5 6 3 2	H 3 4 5 2 6 1
L 1 2 3 5 6 4	Q 4 3 5 2 1 6	S 3 1 2 6 4 5	H 4 3 5 2 1 6

To put these into the form of table D it is simply necessary to substitute for the course-ends the figures opposite each in table A. These figures, as already explained, will vary according to the table we are using. In all cases the "q" sets must be obtained in terms of the course-ends as above, after which figures may be substituted for them. It is of course apparent, supposing it was intended to set to work to obtain the "q" sets of all four positions in all the 60 blocks, that only one-fourth of the total number of positions would require to be dealt with, for the "q" set found for one position in a block includes three other positions in three other blocks.

CORRECTIONS:—In Table A, article No. VI, the second course-end in the right-hand column should be numbered 42 not 41.

In the example of figuring a touch, given in article No. VIII, the figure 7 has been dropped out of the last line where it should have come between 41 and 1.

WOOTTON BASSETT, WILTS.

The good people of Wootton Bassett have been very busy of late. The bells have been rehung, and augmented by the addition of three new ones, two of the old ring of five having been recast, and a new Sanctus bell provided in place of the old one, which was cracked. A handsome west window has been filled with beautiful stained glass, and the quaint old town hall, which stands upon pillars in the middle of the broad street, has been thoroughly restored, and furnished with a valuable and interesting library.

The day selected for the celebration of the satisfactory completion of all three works was Thursday, July 17th, a day which will not be forgotten in a hurry by the inhabitants of the place or by their visitors, not only on account of the grand festivities which took place thereon, but also on account of the unprecedented downpour of rain which, commencing at about 2.30, fell with ever-increasing volume, till at the time of the departure of the last train it was lashing down in torrents, and drew forth the following sage remark from a rustic who reached the station dripping from head to foot: "This baint rain, this be July come-down."

The day's proceedings commenced with the dedication service at the church. The choir and clergy robed in a house opposite the church, and entered chanting as a processional the thirty-first Psalm. The Archdeacon of Wilts, the Vicar and Churchwardens, followed by the clergy, then proceeded to the west window, which was dedicated by the Archdeacon. The procession then moved to the chancel, and the Archdeacon, standing at the chancel arch, said the usual office for the dedication of church bells. This portion of the service was concluded by the singing of the Old Hundredth, and then the bells rung out in peal for the first time. A few rounds and a plain course of Grandsire Triples were nicely struck by the following members of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association; J. Hinton, 1; E. Bishop, 2; C. Gordon, 3; C. E. D. Boutflower, 4; G. I. Daltry, 5; G. H. Colston, 6; J. Gould, 7; F. Price, 8. Then followed matins, with an address by the Archdeacon. Amongst the clergy present were the Ven. Archdeacon of Wilts, the Revs. H. K. Anketell (Vicar), Canon Millar, F. W. Wellburn, A. C. Saunders, E. Goddard, H. A. Cockey (Master of the above-named Association), C. W. H. Griffith (Master of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association), J. A. Lloyd, G. King, J. T. Wordsworth, etc.

After service a touch of Grandsire Triples was rung by the same band, with one exception, the Rev. C. W. H. Griffith on the 5th.

Luncheon was served at 2.15 at the "Royal Oak" hotel, the chair being taken by Sir Henry Meux, Bart. Lady Meux afterwards opened the town hall library, but as the writer of these lines "cut" both the speechifying which followed lunch and the ceremony at the town hall, further information must be sought elsewhere.

At 3.15 the bells were set rolling to the tune of Holt's six-part, but the thought of the grand doings outside the steeple was evidently too much for the conductor, for after cleverly cutting out a whole lead near the end of the second part, he discovered that he had by so doing shifted the 2nd and 4th, and called the bells round after just an hour's ringing.

Subsequently touches of 895 Bob Major and 252 of Stedman Triples were rung. The bells were then lowered, and an adjournment made to the tent in the Vicarage grounds, where tea and handbell ringing passed the time till the homeward journey commenced. Between Chippenham and Bathampton a touch of 503 Grandsire Triples were rung by G. Daltry, 1-2; J. Hinton (conductor), 3-4; F. Price, 5-6; Rev. H. A. Cockey, 7-8. At Bath the Abbey steeple was stormed, and a touch of 413 Grandsire Caters brought round with the assistance of three local men. The 9th bell which has just been rehung (!) goes so badly that the raising thereof nearly killed the Master, and the ringing thereof through a touch of 413 nearly did for Mr. "Jim" Hinton.

In the work of rehangng at Wootton Bassett some splendid timber has been put into the new frame, which is well finished, but some of the bells went very stiffly on the opening day, and had the peal been completed the ringers of the 3rd, 7th and tenor would have had a toughish job. The work of recasting the two old bells and casting the three new ones (1, 2, 3) has been done by Messrs. Warner and Sons, and an excellent splice has been made.

The band who started for the peal were F. Price, 1; G. Colston, 2; C. Gordon, 3; G. Daltry, 4; J. Gould, 5; E. Bishop, 6; Rev. H. A. Cockey, 7; J. Hinton, 8; all from Bristol except Mr. Bishop of Swindon. Tenor about 16 cwt.

THE ALL SAINTS' SOCIETY, FULHAM.

The annual outing of this society took place on Saturday, June 19th, when a very enjoyable day was spent, the place selected being St. Albans. The company comprised the following: Messrs. F. Kelley, E. Adams, J. Driver, J. Nicholls, jun., H. Kenten, A. S. Ougk, S. How, W. Samson, A. Hubbard, and C. E. Kelley. Several touches on the handbells were rung during the journey, and on reaching St. Albans, St. Peter's church was first visited, where Mr. Waller, the steeplekeeper, had everything in readiness. While a touch of Grandsire Triples was in progress, three of the visitors called at the office of the Herts. Advertiser to see Mr. Battle, who after explaining the processes of printing and folding, accompanied them to St. Peter's, where a start was made for a quarter-peal of Grandsire Caters, which came to grief in three quarters of an hour. Touches of Stedman Caters and Bob Major were then rung, after which the party adjourned to "The Peahen" hotel, where ample justice was done to the liberal dinner presided over by the much-respected president of the society, Rev. H. Fisher, M.A., Vicar of Fulham.

After dinner a start was made for the Abbey, over which Mr. Battle was waiting to conduct the visitors. The plan of the Abbey is that of a cross, and the nave is the longest in the country. The shrine of St. Alban (Britain's first martyr—A.D. 303) was duly visited. Several passages and sundry flights of stone steps brought them to the ringing-chamber, and a short touch of Grandsire Triples was at once rung, in which the Rev. F. H. Fisher assisted. With the assistance of members of the local band part of the visiting company rang touches of Grandsire Triples and Caters, and Stedman Triples and Bob Major, while the other portion ascended to the summit of the tower, and viewed from thence the neighbouring places of interest. At 4.45 the company returned to the town, where a substantial tea had been provided, and which was highly appreciated, a special feature of this welcome refecton being an abundant supply of the celebrated water-cress ("creases" in cockney patois) for which the locality is famed.

After tea St. Peter's church was again visited, and several touches were rung in company with some of the local ringers, while others were shown round the city by Mr. Cartmel, who very kindly pointed out such places of interest as the old curfew tower (erected in the time of William the Conqueror) the basement of which is now adapted to the purposes of an harness-maker's establishment; the grammar-school, which was formerly the gaol; St. Michael's church, which contains the remains of Francis Bacon (Baron Verulam and Viscount St. Albans); Christ Church and schools; and part of the old city wall, built by the Romans, and which originally encircled the city.

Crossing the river Ver, from which the fortification of Verulamium received its name, the party arrived at the station, passing en route the extensive Verum woods. Here farewells were exchanged, and the company soon found themselves on the way home, which was reached soon after 11.0., thus terminating an excursion the success of which was largely contributed to by the worthy president of the Fulham Society, who instituted the annual excursion, and whose connection with the society is unhappily so soon to be severed by reason of his preferment to the benefice of Debden, near Saffron Walden, Essex.

This report would scarcely be complete without reference being made to the kindness and attention shown to the visitors by Messrs. Battle, Cartmel, Debenham, and Waller.

TIPTON, STAFFORSHIRE.

On Saturday, July 12th, the Tipton band with other ringing friends from various places in the neighbourhood met in the above tower for the purpose of unveiling a peal tablet to commemorate the first peal of Bob Triples rung upon the bells, and the first peal also by the band in that method; upon the same tablet is recorded Thurstans' peal of Stedman Triples, the first peal in that method by six of the band, and the second peal of Stedman on the bells, which were made into a peal of eight in 1849, tenor 12 cwt. 25 lbs. There were also present the Rev. A. A. Long, M.A., Vicar, and Mrs. Long, Rev. C. J. Johnston, curate; Mr. Rowland Hill and Mr. Samuel Smith, churchwardens; and Mrs. Smith, Miss Badkin, district visitor; Mr. V. Hughes and Mr. John Waring, hon. members of the Stafford Society, and ringing friends from Old Hill, Tettenhall, Walsall, All Saints and Christ Church, Westbromwich, and others. A touch of Bob Triples was rung, after which the tower keeper, Mr. W. R. Small, said a few words, stating the object for which they had met together that night, and asked the Vicar (who is also an hon. member of the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford) to kindly uncover the peal tablet. The Vicar said how pleased he was to be with them that evening, and also to know that they had a good band of ringers who could perform such excellent peals as they saw recorded in the belfry, and was sure they would continue to have such a band while they had a captain like Mr. Small. He was also much pleased at the condition of the belfry and the way in which the bells were kept in order. The Vicar then uncovered the tablet and read out the peals and names inscribed thereon. Afterwards a touch of Stedman Triples was rung, and then the tower keeper, on behalf of the band thanked those present for attending. Before leaving the churchwardens kindly promised a new set of ropes for the bells, and more ringing was done in the Grandsire method. An adjournment was then made to the Court House, where the rest of the evening was spent in handbell ringing.

RINGERS' OUTING.

On Tuesday, July 8th, the St. Peter's Society, Croydon, had their annual outing, Brighton being the place selected. Leaving Croydon shortly before seven o'clock, the party reached Brighton after a pleasant journey, the Railway Company having put on a saloon carriage for them. After some refreshments a move was made for St. Peter's Church, permission having first been obtained. After ascending the tower and raising the bells, a touch of Grandsire was attempted; this was found rather difficult at first owing to the length of rope, and the bells being so light, the ringers being used to much heavier metal. After a little practice however, one or two touches of Grandsire, and a touch of Bob Major were successfully brought round. The bells were then lowered, and the party dispersed to the different places of interest, until the time of departure. They desire to thank the Vicar for the use of the bells, and also Mr. G. F. Attree, and the Brighton ringers for their courtesies.

PETERSFIELD, HANTS.

On Monday, July 14th, the Midhurst Branch of the Sussex Association, taking advantage of a late train from Midhurst to Petersfield, visited St. Peter's Church at the above place, and in company with the local ringers, spent a very pleasant two hours. On reaching the belfry they were met by several of the local band, and after the bells were raised, rang a 720 of Plain Bob Minor with 7-8 behind. C. Soane, 1; T. E. Ellis, 2; W. H. George, 3; W. Selby, 4; C. Tribe, 5; Jas. Lee, 6; W. Butler, 7; W. Downs, 8. Also a 360 of Trent Treble Bob Minor, standing as above, except A. B. Bennett, 1; and W. Wilkinson, 7. Both the above were conducted by W. H. George. Messrs. Wilkinson, Butler, and Downs, are of the local band. After lowering the bells in peal the company adjourned to have a friendly glass and chat with the local band, and they have promised to pay a return visit shortly.

A CHANCE FOR ALL.—100 cash prizes, ranging from £5 to a 1s.; given to those who send correct number of words in 119th psalm. Entrance fee 6d. Competition closes August 20th, 1890. Full list of winners published.—Address: F. WILLIAMS & Co., Church Park, Oystermouth, Glamorganshire.

LEEDS, YORKSHIRE.

On Tuesday, July 22nd, the members of the Leeds parish church company were invited by their esteemed vicar (Dr. Talbot) and Mrs. Talbot to take supper at the vicarage. There were also present the Rev. Wynn Healey, Precentor at the parish church, Mr. W. Snowden, president of the Yorkshire Association, and Mrs. Snowden, and one or two other friends of the family. After partaking of an excellent supper the handbells were brought into requisition, and the ringers performed a few tunes much to the delight of those present. A double course of Grandsire Triples was also rung, and a lapping course of Bob Major was rung, in order to show how the bells work in change-ringing, in which the genial entertainers took much interest. The Rev. Precentor contributed a very pathetic recitation entitled "Over the hill from the poor-house," supplementing it with two humorous ones, to the evident amusement of his auditors. Mr. Tom Lockwood having thanked the vicar and Mrs. Talbot for their kind hospitality, the ringers retired, having spent a very pleasant evening.

Obituary.

MR. GEORGE GRAY HAM.

It is with deep regret that I have to announce the death of the above-named gentleman, which took place in Richmond Hospital on Sunday morning, July 13th, from blood-poisoning, after a few days' illness. The deceased who was thirty-eight years of age, was a member of All Saints, Kingston-on-Thames, and was elected steeple-keeper, but only held the position five months since the late William Phillips. The interment took place at Ham churchyard on Thursday afternoon, July 17th, at five o'clock, the Rev. T. G. P. Hough, the vicar, being the officiating clergyman. The coffin was crowded with wreaths, one being made by Mr. C. Slade for the ringers. Several ringers from Kingston, Molesey, and Hampton were present, and a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on the handbells by J. Parslow, 1-2; J. Strutt, 3-4; J. Wright, 5-6; G. Woodiss, 7-8. This was rung under very adverse circumstances, there being a general downpour of rain the whole time; the church being a mile distant, and having to walk, the mourners were wet to the skin. This was followed by a heavy thunderstorm, and it was with great difficulty that the ringers got back to church, which they did with the assistance of cabs, and rang the usual muffled peal at All Saints as a tribute of respect to one so much liked. He was a member of the Royal Cumberlands, and was one of the first to join in the formation of the Surrey Association, and seldom missed attending any meetings since. He had rung several peals of Grandsire Triples and one of Caters, and had the management of opening the bells at Molesey a few months ago, and since that time had been instructor to the band, and his last peal was the first on the bells which he was very anxious to get. He had arranged to go for a peal of Stedman Triples on the 19th, inst., but was buried two days before, and a muffled peal was rung by the band he had instructed. I am sorry to say that having suffered from a bad leg through being struck with a cricket ball some years ago, he was unable to join any benefit society.

J. STRUTT.

W. W. ROPER, ESQ.

It is with deep regret that we have to record the death of the above-named gentleman, manufacturer, of Lavenham, Suffolk. The deceased gentleman who was in his seventy-first year, expired on Saturday morning, July 12th. Mr. Roper was a great man of business, employing some 300 hands in the mat and matting factory and horse-hair seating. He was not a ringer, but always gave had a great encouragement to the ringers, of which he employed seven of the company. He was also an excellent musician. He leaves four sons to mourn their irreparable loss and to fight their battle of life alone, and it is hoped they will be successful in their business, and be a benefit to themselves and to the parish at large. The deceased was interred on Wednesday, July 16th, the funeral being witnessed by several of deceased's old friends and a large number of parishioners. In the evening deeply muffled touches of Grandsire Triples were rung as a last tribute of respect for the deceased. The first was a 756. C. Fish, 1; H. Parker, 2; H. Smith, 3; A. Symonds, 4; C. Jarvis, 5; W. Snell, 6; T. King, 7; W. Moore, 8. Also a 630. W. Boby, 1; H. Parker, 2; T. King, 3; H. Smith, 4; C. Jarvis, 5; W. Snell, 6; A. Symonds, 7; W. Moore, 8. Conducted by T. King.

THE UNEMPLOYED IN EAST LONDON.—At a time when much thought is being given to this matter, a practical suggestion may be of service. Last year more than £300,000 worth of foreign matches were purchased by inconsiderate consumers in this country, to the great injury of our own working people, so true is it that "evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart." If all consumers would purchase Bryant and May's matches, that firm would be enabled to pay £1000 a week more in wages.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

Lead, Kindly Light, amid th' encircling gloom, Lead Thou me on.

Right well-pleased was I last Saturday to read that warmly-expressed tribute of praise to the Rev. C. W. H. Griffith, for the good work done by him at St. Mary's, Bathwick. For nearly two years he has been educating a band at his church, and any one who has had experience of a similar nature will readily realise what that means. But those so fortunately situated as to belong to experienced bands where good ringing in the shape of service and practice touches and peals is the most unvarying rule, and recruits an "unknown quantity" will be unable to do so. As I have many times had the pleasure of congratulating young ones on their maiden peals and other praiseworthy accomplishments, I am in an especial manner gratified in thus being able to re-echo those highly-complimentary terms of our correspondent towards one who has so amply deserved them by his work as a teacher. At the same time, though, I am afraid, these modest though hearty compliments will appear insignificant compared with the satisfaction Mr. Griffith must have felt when he saw some return for his self-denying labours in the 720 rung by his pupils on the 17th last. None but those who have experienced the anxieties, the hard work, and the oft-repeated disappointments which seem naturally attendant upon the work of training young bands can fully estimate the feelings of a tutor when his pupils have scored their first peal. I wish Mr. Griffith the enjoyment of these feelings with all my heart, and trust soon to see his band advancing in the science, and proving themselves worthy pupils of the first Master of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association.

* * * * *

One sentence in the paragraph to which I have been alluding, likewise pleases me peculiarly. It tells us that "during the whole time the band has been together there has not been the slightest sign of discord, simply because there was a head to look up to who had the interests of the band at heart, and also because there was a ready response on the part of those taught." We often see reference made to what platform orators are fond of designating the democratic spirit of the age; we many times also hear complaints in one direction or other, about "one-man government" in belfries; but whatever may be the theoretical advantages of democratic principles, or the supposed evils of autocracy, there is no mistake about it that those bands get along with the least friction and the greatest amicability where there is one recognised leader and chief whose zeal for the good of those whom he leads engenders in those who follow his guidance a feeling of respect, and confidence in his efforts that such are meant solely for their good. In every good ship there is a captain whose business it is to command, and who is at the same time responsible for the vessels' proper management. Under him are subordinate officers of various degrees who have each their peculiar duties, and so in turn have the men who form the crew. Thus in a properly constituted society there will be one head and guiding spirit, who will be assisted by other officers, all working together for the general good of its members. And when those members give a loyal support to their officers, not carping over trifles, or grumbling because everything does not suit their particular fancies, the progress of that society will be smooth, pleasant, and prosperous.

I must plead guilty to holding rather strong feelings on this matter; but at the same time, I maintain that I do so with very good reasons, Our very loyalty to the throne of our country rests in a great measure upon the principle of having a duly recognised head in natural affairs. In like manner, therefore, the principle applies to our more personal concerns. I have it is quite true, the pleasure of acquaintance with bands which possess no practical organisation whatever, which jog along year after year in the same old style, in homely good friendship, all mates and no captain. Of some of these it may be said—like as is reported of the Bathwick company—that no sign of discord ever appears amongst them; but in others I have only too often found jealousies and discord existing which have come into existence, and grown more acute through the fact that there has been no head—no chief—amongst them whose word would have quickly dispelled any symptoms of a discordant nature by his timely interposition. And, even in the former cases, where the work of ringing has gone along unruffled amid this absence of properly constituted authority, I have almost invariably found prevalent a longing to have some recognised head—some one to take the management to whom all look—and not in vain—for advice and control.

* * * * *

Quite true, every man is not naturally fitted for the position of leader among his fellows. We shall most of us, no doubt, in our peregrinations, have come across bands where one of the number is in an undefinable sort of way treated with more respect than the rest, whose word carries with it more weight than that of any other; this may arise from his genial good fellowship, which causes him to be a general favourite, or it may be on account of his superior abilities in the science. Here one might naturally conclude, is a first-rate man to be leader of the band. But unfortunately, it often happens that this individual who while on a footing of perfect equality with his comrades gains their respect, no sooner is he elected to a position of authority than in some way or other he "loses his head;" complaints begin to be made, grumbling and growling are heard where before was naught but the cheerful word and homely joke; And why? because he has not the ability to direct others; and thus is an example of the proverbial "round men in square holes."

* * * * *

If only we had more parsons like Mr. Griffith—and laymen also—of whom it might be said that in them their local bands possessed "a head to look up to, and friends who had the interests of the band at heart," the benefit to the Exercise would be great. But still greater would be that benefit accruing if it could also be said there was in every band "a ready response" to follow leaders on the part of the members. Leaders are useless and powerless if in their efforts for good they are not met with that "ready response" from those whom they are endeavoured to guide aright. The connection therefore, to be effective, must be mutual. At the same time, I am fully convinced that were our clergy and influential laity, instead of contenting themselves with attending an occasional Association meeting and there drumming into the ears of the assembled members the oft-repeated story of their duties, to make an effort in a practical sort of way to become with their bands "a head to look up to," they would find such a "willing response" on the part of the ringers as would make this self-imposed duty a great pleasure to them. Their actions would "speak louder than words," and result in great benefit both to the Church and the ringers thereof.

* * * * *

Returning for a moment to Mr. Griffith and his band, I am sure that others besides the members of the new Bath and Wells Diocesan Association will be glad to learn of the future progress of their worthy master and his young band at home.

One more observation, and I have done for this week. That is in reference to a modest paragraph recording the ringing of a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor at Bradfield (Yorks.) in which both Churchwardens took part. This event fits in most aptly with what I have been remarking upon. It shews also that in one at least of the numerous Yorkshire parishes the Churchwardens are joining heartily with their ringers in belfry work. We have, happily, amongst us many such important Church officials who regularly take their places in the circle, but it is not so often that we find both thus occupied. I heartily congratulate Mr. Bramall on his first 720, which performance is all the more creditable to him seeing the short time he has been in accomplishing it; and hope to hear of further accomplishments by both him and his worthy colleague in the immediate future.

FREE LANCE.

THE SAFFRON WALDEN SOCIETY.

On Tuesday, the 27th June last, the 267th Anniversary of this society was celebrated according to ancient custom. Ringing commenced at 9.0 a.m. by the local band, Stedman Triples being the chosen method. Afterwards visitors arrived from Stanstead, Cambridge, Sawbridgeworth, and other places, and the bells were kept in motion to the tune of Stedman until the service at 11 a.m.

The memorial sermon was preached by the senior curate, the Rev. Arthur Durrant, in the absence of the Vicar, who took for his text 1 Cor. xiv. 7: "Even things without life giving sound, whether pipe or harp, except they give a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped?" The preacher said:—

The Corinthians had become lax and careless about their way of conducting Divine Service. One of the greatest causes of this disorder was that two or three spoke or preached or prayed at the same time, and one spoke in one language and one in another, and each tried to shout the other down. We could easily imagine the disorder that was thus caused, a disorder that is only surpassed by the newest and noisiest of the sectarians. To correct this state of things St. Paul wrote these words; even the instruments pipe or harp must be used properly and with some sense and reason and order, and then and then only are they of use. To-day he had his subject given beforehand and must naturally be about church bells. First then consider the voice of the bells. Bells are used in the church and must be used properly, with some sense and reason, they must have what we may call their proper function or duty, then only will they be of use. It is a disputed point when bells were first used in churches. They were probably first used at the time of the conversion of the Roman Empire, perhaps during the lifetime of the first Christian Emperor Constantine. The great central halls which were attached to nearly all the public buildings at Rome were called Basilicas. These Basilicas were in plan very much like our ordinary churches, and after the conversion were given over to the Christians for places of worship. At Rome were the baths of Diocletian. These baths had a grand Basilica, and attached to the Basilica was a turret for a bell; the bell no doubt being used to tell the people the hour when the baths were open. This church and the turret are existing at Rome to this day. In England we are told that there were rings of three in most of the village towers of Norfolk during the time of the Saxons. Rings of eight and more bells are not very ancient. The first difficulty was the casting of three or more bells in musical sequence, an art that was not brought to perfection for many a year. After this was done change-ringing became possible, and many methods were practised, but most of these were very imperfect. It was not till the time of Stedman that the methods were perfected by that great master of the Exercise. Since his day change-ringing has progressed in this country, but never has it made such strides as it has of late years. The text speaks about a distinction in the sound of instruments. To some change-ringing appears a great mystery, something without method or plan, but to ringers and lovers of ringing, each method as it rings out is known as well as a common tune to ordinary people. A ringer knows the sound of each method as well as a musician knows the composition of a chord of music. Now the men who can master these intricate methods, who have the strength of body and application of mind to ring a peal in one of these intricate methods, these men are more than ringers, they are endowed with gifts and talents not given to every one, the good musical ear, the quick eye, the quick reason, the skilful hand; yes, all this is given to a ringer. And the ringers should thank God, many do give back these gifts to the glory and honour of God when they make the old church bells rung out on the Lord's day. Now suffer me as one who has the welfare of bellringing much at heart, to say a few words about the use, the duty, and function of church bells. First and foremost the voice of the bells should be heard on the Lord's Day. One great use of the bells is to call, summon and urge people to church. If you have ever knelt in prayer by a sick bed at the time of Church Service and then just heard the sweet bell music steal gently into that sick room and into the poor sufferer's ear and heart, you would thank God for the help of the bells. It makes Sunday seem like Sunday to the poor sufferer as he hears the well-known sound, and the sick room becomes what Ezekiel calls "a little sanctuary." The bells ringing out on the Sunday are voices of warning. The Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, a great bell historian and ringer, has told the following story an old collier told him of the story of his conversion. He said he was in the habit of never going to God's House, and one Sunday morning he was out in the fields and lolling on a gate, and he heard the bells, and he thought the people are now going into their church, they will hear God's word and pray and sing their hymns of praise; and what am I doing—nothing—worse than nothing. The bells came as a warning; he made a resolution to turn over a new leaf, and from that time when he listened to the bells his conversion begun. Then again, a muffled peal, the passing bell, tell of some one who has passed away for ever from the sound of the bells. This solemn sound, the most solemn sound perhaps that ever falls on the ears of the parish, reminds us that we too shall pass away. Others will take our place, others will handle the ropes that we have handled, and we shall join in the great procession that is forming in the valley of the shadow of death. May we look forward without terror or dreadful fear to that hour when we shall see the "towers" of Jerusalem which is above. The voice of the bells tells of joy when they ring out a peal after the marriage service. Then the bells are a witness to the joy of happy hearts and homes. And again the voice of the bells tell of a national victory and national thanksgiving, and it may be of a nation's humiliation. But I want us to understand that bells used rightly and for the purpose for which they are rung have no uncertain sound, but they have a use, a function, a duty that can be performed in no other way. For ourselves let me end thus. Let all our words and works be guided by an old bell inscription; "Omnia Fiant Ad Gloriam Dei: Let all things be done to the glory of God."

After Divine Service the ringers repaired to the belfry, and some musical touches of Treble Bob Major, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, and Double Norwich Court Bob Major were rung. At 2.0 p.m. the company dined at the "King's Arms" inn, where a capital repast was served, the Rev. A. Durrant presiding. Ringing was afterwards kept up until 7.30, when most of the visitors had to leave, all of whom seemed well pleased with their day's enjoyment.
