As the outcome of a resolution passed at the London meeting of the Central Council in 1927, a broadcast 'talk' on bells and ringing, under the title of 'The English Art of Bellringing,' was given from the London station, through 2LO and 5XX, on Wednesday of last week. The path to the microphone is beset with many difficulties, as the Council's Committee (Messrs. W. T. Cockerill, A. A. Hughes, J. D. Matthews, T. H. Taffender and E. A. Young) found out, but eventually the B.B.C. were prevailed upon to include the subject in their programme, the talk itself being left in the hands of the Rev. F. L. Edwards, a member of the Council and hon. secretary of the Salisbury Guild. With a time limit of fifteen minutes, Mr. Edwards' greatest problem was to compress into so short a period an intelligible explanation of the art of ringing, together with the necessary illustrations. That he succeeded to a remarkable degree, all those who are ringers and who heard the 'talk' will fully agree. Speaking to an audience who knew nothing whatever of the subject, Mr. Edwards had perforce to treat the matter in a very elementary style, but he was happy both in his address and in his illustrations.

The announcer made a very pleasant little introductory speech, and then, by way of creating an 'atmosphere,' the handbells were heard in a brief 'flourish.'

Mr. Edwards wasted no time in preliminaries, but having briefly indicated that the object of the talk was to enable those who heard bells rung in changes to understand something of what was being done by the ringers in the belfry, and so to listen with greater interest and enjoyment, he plunged straightway into an explanation of what was meant by 'ringing'—as distinguished from 'chiming'—and the mechanism by which a bell is rung. He went on to refer to the fact that from a remote period bells had been rung in set 'changes,' which were illustrated by 'rounds,' 'queens' and 'tittums' on the handbells, and then showed how this developed into the art of change ringing by which the order of the bells is changed at each pull of the ropes. He referred to some of the quaint names which methods have, and the difference between Major and Triples. The first eight changes of Grandsire Triples served to illustrate the latter, and then Mr. Edwards explained how the number of possible changes grew as the number of bells employed increased. His only historical reference was to the Leeds peal of 40,320 Bob Major in 1761, and then he came to the rules underlying the making of changes, and explained the terms 'hunting,' 'dodging,' and 'place making.' Handbell examples helped the listener more readily to grasp the application of the descriptions given, and Mr. Edwards added a reference to Fabian Stedman and the Stedman method. In conclusion he remarked that as change ringing was essentially an English custom, one would like English people generally to take a pride in the advancement of this truly national art. In case any of those listening to the talk felt inclined to visit a belfry and see change ringing actually being done, they would, he added, be assured of receiving a warm welcome on a practice night.

The 'talk' concluded with a course of Stedman Triples on the handbells, for the completion of which the officials extended the allotted time, for they found this demonstration particularly interesting, and at the conclusion exclaimed 'Marvellous!'

The handbells were rung by Messrs. E. A. Young, C. F. Winney, F. E. Dawe, T. H. Taffender and T. W. Taffender.

Asked as to his 'feelings' in facing the microphone, Mr. Edwards said:—

'There is nothing to try one's nerves much in facing the microphone. It was a most interesting experience. My own case may have been under exceptionally favourable conditions. In the first place I had watched the same thing done by others on previous occasions, so that the surroundings were familiar. Then the five ringers present constituted a visible and sympathetic audience, besides an old schoolfriend of mine, who often broadcasts himself.

'Naturally, the hardest part of my task was to fit what I had to say with the illustrations, all into 15 minutes. That took a lot of doing, but proved to be very accurately calculated. I had reckoned on the course of Stedman being 'faded out' after a few sixes, but the director of our rehearsal found it so musical, that he requested the announcer to give us a little extra time for the performance and let us complete it.

'At the rehearsal I was told that I had only one thing to bear in mind, and that was not to deafen the audience. I had to subdue my natural speaking voice considerably. When I got downstairs from the studio, a banker at Pinchley was inquiring for me on the telephone. He said that he had spent a most enjoyable quarter of an hour, and would like to hear more of the same kind. (I had met him the day before and told him about the broadcast.)

'I find that several groups of parishioners listened in here (Kington Magna) by means of the few wireless sets available, and all heard very clearly. The practical question is how many of the general public, apart from personal acquaintances, heard and were really interested?

'Before the rehearsal I tested the handbells through the ear-phones in the studio, and was quite astonished at the wonderfully

ANOTHER PEAL OF TEN FOR LEICESTER.

Leicester is to have another ring of ten bells. That fine peal of eight at the Church of St. John-the-Divine (with a tenor of 21 cwt.), universally regarded as one of the finest octaves in the country, is to be augmented by two trebles, and the frame reconstructed to hold them all on one level. The whole is the generous gift of Mr. and Mrs. William Willson, of Leicester. Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, are entrusted with the order, and when completed the bells will be a glorious ring of ten.

Mr. Willson is one of the best-known figures in ringing circles in the Midlands, and has been connected with the tower at St. John-the-Divine's Church ever since the peal was originally installed in 1901.

Leicester already possesses a fine peal of twelve by Messrs. Taylor and Co., at St. Margaret's Church, a ring of ten at the Cathedral, and rings of eight at St. Saviour's, St. Mark's and St. Mary's, but the two last-named are unringable.

THE POLICE GUILD.

A meeting of police ringers will be held at Leicester on Saturday, December 1st. The proposed programme is as follows: Visit Messrs. Taylor's Foundry, Loughborough, during the morning, with ringing at the Foundry Campanile. Ringing at Leicester from 2 p.m., various towers will be available. Tea at 5 p.m., followed by a social evening to conclude about 9 p.m. Week-end tickets are now available to return Saturday evening by any train. Will any police officers who are interested and will attend please notify P.C. H. J. Poole, 326, Narborough Road, Leicester, stating whether they will require tea?

LANCASHIRE AND CHESHIRE BRANCHES MEET.

The picturesque garden village of Port Sunlight, Cheshire, was the venue of a joint meeting of the Liverpool Branch of the Lancashire Association and the Wirral Branch of the Chester Diocesan Guild on Saturday—a meeting that was successful in every way. A beautiful day, a good peal of bells, an excellent tea, and an opportunity of renewing old acquaintanceships and making new ones—what more could one desire? A large number of members of both societies were present, and the bells were kept going, with but a short interval for tea, in a variety of methods.

After tea, which was kindly provided by Lord Leverhulme, Mr. W. M. Seale (secretary of the Church Committee) presided at the business meeting, and after apologising for the absence of the minister (who was in Scotland) said how pleased he was to be at that meeting. It was the first of its kind he had attended, and he hoped it would not be the last. He was very pleased to see so many young members present, especially the young ladies, and said he considered bellringing was a valuable training in many ways, mentally and physically, and he hoped they would continue to give of their best in a true spirit of service.

After the business of the Lancashire Association had been disposed of, the Secretary of the Wirral Branch proposed a vote of thanks to Lord Leverhulme for providing the tea, and to the church authorities for allowing the use of the bells.—This was seconded by the Liverpool Branch secretary, and unanimously carried.

The company then returned to the tower, and some good touches in various methods were brought round, all present, no matter what their capabilities—learner or expert—being accommodated.

These combined meetings cannot but be productive of good, bringing the members of both Guilds into closer touch with each other and assisting to advance in every way the art in which we are all so interested.

clear and musical effect. Several correspondents have commented on the same thing. One friend in the musical profession asked whether I was playing on a dulcitone!

The handbells, a light set in C by Mears and Stainbank, were kindly lent by the Rector of St. Clement Dances, Strand.

AN APPRECIATION.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I through your columns express my appreciation of the very interesting and instructive demonstration on 'The English Art of Bellringing', broadcast on the 19th inst. Great credit is due to the Central Council for arranging this long-looked-for item on campanology, also to the Rev. F. L. Edwards, whose explicit lecture, I sincerely hope, travelled to many thousands of 'listeners.' The course of Stedman was delightful, and must have given food for thought to countless numbers.

It is to my mind most essential that the 'outside public' should have some idea of what is going on in the tower, both the bells and the work engaging the minds of the ringers. Let me also add how much I enjoy a well-struck touch that we occasionally hear on a Sunday evening. What could be nicer to the ear, or a finer advertisement to gain recruits? May we have the pleasure of a few more of these happy moments.—Yours delightedly,

C. W. PIPE.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD. SUCCESSFUL JOINT DISTRICT MEETING.

The experiment of a joint district meeting was tried by the Guildford Diocesan Guild on Saturday, when members of the Guildford and Leatherhead Districts gathered at Shere, which many people claim to be the prettiest village in Surrey. Lying unspoiled, astride the little Tillingbourne river, the place certainly has many claims to this distinction, for not only is it situated in beautiful surroundings, but has about it an old-world charm which impresses all its visitors—its lime-tree avenue, its quaint gabled cottages, its picturesque church on the bank of the stream, and its ancient White Horse inn, all help to make it one of the most delightful spots in the county.

The church has a central tower and ring of eight bells—nothing, perhaps, to brag about in quality, but a useful peal and a commodious ringing chamber. The back six were cast by Richard Phelps in 1712, and the two trebles were added between thirty and forty years ago. But even in the time of Edward VI. Shere had five bells, 'the heste bie estimacion xvij e, the next xiiij e, and so after the rate.' According to the churchwardens' accounts the bells were new cast in 1590, but the bell founder did his work so ill that a suit was instituted against him, in which they expended £4 2s. What the result of the law case was we do not know.

Over forty ringers, including several ladies, assembled for the meeting from Banstead, Capel, Chertsey, Cranleigh, Dorking, Guildford (Cathedral and S. Nicolas'), Haslemere, Leatherhead, Ottershaw, Shere, West Clandon and Woking, and excellent use was made of the bells. In the absence of the Rector (the Rev. Sir Paget Bowman) the Rev. H. C. G. Aldridge officiated at the service, and gave a very practical address. He also presided at the tea which followed at the White Horse. He was supported by the Master of the Guild (Major J. H. B. Hesse), Admiral T. P. Walker, D.S.O. (hon. treasurer) and Mrs. Walker, Messrs. W. Harrison (chairman of the Executive Committee), J. S. Goldsmith (general hon. secretary), C. Hazelden (Ringing Master, Guildford District), A. Harman (Ringing Master, Leatherhead District), N. V. Harding (Guildford District secretary), W. Melville (Guildford District assistant secretary), F. G. Woodiss (Leatherhead District secretary), H. J. Chaffey (Chertsey District secretary), etc.

By arrangement there was no business transacted, but on the call of the Master a vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector (who had sent an expression of great regret that he was unable to be present), to the Rev. H. C. G. Aldridge, and to the organist.

Many of the ringers returned to the tower, and others went to the adjoining village of Albury, which, like its neighbour, is on the ancient 'Pilgrim's Way.' The Parish Church, a red brick building, lies upon the hillside overlooking the village, and was opened in 1841. In the previous church had been five bells, cast by William Eldridge, in 1695. These were removed to the new tower, the fifth being recast, and a new treble added by Thomas Mears. The bells (kindly placed at the Guild's disposal by Canon F. N. Skene) are woefully out of tune, and the fittings much dilapidated. Movable stays are attached to the headstocks and move from side to side as the bells turn, coming to rest against a fixed pin in the side of the bell cage. It is really a case of having the 'slider' on the headstock, and the stay affixed to the frame. It is hoped that something may be done to get these bells put into proper order. Those who visited the church rang Minor and Doubles.

The joint meeting of the districts was a very successful venture, and will doubtless lead to the arrangement of similar gatherings on district borders.

The members present were extremely interested in a group photograph which Mr. R. Whittington brought for inspection. It was a picture taken at a meeting of the Guildford District of the Winchester Guild held at Shere in the year 1905, and contains over 80 faces. Some have gone to the 'great beyond,' others are scattered to distant parts of the world, but it was interesting to note how many there were who are still taking their part in ringing in the district, though 'Time' is steadily making his mark upon them. Staid and gray to-day are many who at the time of this picture were in their 'lean and callow youth'; others, then in the prime of early manhood, now begin to wear the imprint of veterans. A few were present on Saturday, and the spirit and the will to do is still to be found in them; indeed, to their initiative largely has been due the founding of the new Guild, which is endeavouring to encourage in the diocese a renewed vigour and interest in belfry work.

AN AFTERNOON AT WORMINGFORD.

A gathering of friends was held at Wormingford Parish Church on Saturday, September 22nd, when an enjoyable afternoon was spent by visitors from Ardleigh, Bures, Little Horsham, West Bergholt (Essex) and Lavenham (Suffolk). The parishioners were afforded much pleasure by the ringing, as the bells at this church are very little rung. The touches included 720 Kent Treble Bob: W. Gusterson 1, E. Leggett 2, A. Ives 3, S. Davey 4, H. Bacon 5, A. Symonds (conductor) 6; also 720 Oxford Treble Bob: S. H. Symonds (conductor) 1, A. Symonds 2, C. Bower 3, W. Gusterson 4, E. Leggett 5, and W. Chalk 6; and 240 changes of Double Court. The visitors' thanks are due to the Vicar, also to Mr. E. Leggett (Wormingford) for arranging this pleasant gathering.

DOUBLE SURPRISE MINOR METHODS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I venture to think that anyone who read Mr. J. E. Wheeldon's letter in your issue of June 29th last would regret to find in the new Collection, when published, any less than the full number of regular methods possible in this class.

Mr. J. W. Parker, in a letter which appeared on June 22nd, stated that there are only five Double methods capable of producing a true extent, having regular lead-ends, and without any bell striking more than twice consecutively in one place. I beg to differ. I find the number of methods conforming to the three conditions set out above to be not five only but nine.

I suggest that the Exercise be informed in your columns which are the five methods it is proposed to insert in the 'Collection,' so that the remainder may be forwarded without delay.—Yours faithfully,

A. G. DRIVER.

60, Coleman Road,
Belvedere, Kent.

[In 'The Ringing World' of September 7th the names of the five methods added to the Surprise list were: 42, Biddulph; 43, Cheddleton; 44, Hanley; 45, Horton; 46, Milton.—Ed. 'R.W.']

RECOGNITION OF PEAL REFUSED.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The committee of the South-West Branch of the Devon Guild of Ringers direct me to inform you that the peal of Bob Major rung at Emmanuel Church, Plymouth (Compton Gifford) on August 4th, 1928, composed and conducted by C. R. Lilley, will not be recognised by the Guild as the conductor refuses to publish the composition.—Yours faithfully,

E. W. MARSH,
Hon. Secretary.

Catchpole and James Motts in the ringing chamber of St. Mary-le-Tower Church. Any further subscriptions will be thankfully received by either C. J. Sedgley, 14, Suffolk Road, Ipswich, or G. E. CLEVELAND & NORTH YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT RICHMOND.

Richmond was the venue of the autumn meeting of the Cleveland and North Yorkshire Association on Saturday, September 15th, and a most enjoyable half-day was spent. The eight bells were merrily in peal before 3 o'clock, and ringing continued until 8 p.m., with only a break for tea. The ringing was truly excellent for mixed hands, and the touches rung of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob and Double Norwich Major were all well struck. It is worthy of note that every touch attempted was successful.

Some 25 members sat down to tea, and the ringers were honoured with the company of both churchwardens, who, in the unavoidable absence of the Rector, gave the visitors a very hearty welcome. The ringers were sorry that their old friend, Mr. Morton, of the Richmond band, was called away from home, and could not be with them.

A short meeting took place after tea, and the thanks of the association were tendered to the church authorities for the use of the bells.

It was decided to revive the pre-Lent meeting of the association, and it was resolved that this meeting should be held on a Saturday at Northallerton.

A notice of motion that the annual subscription of ringing members be raised to 2s., and that such members be presented with an annual report was fully discussed, and met with the approval of the meeting.

There is no doubt that this was one of the most successful and happy autumn meetings which the association has held. It is hoped that more such meetings may be held, and members confidently look forward to a successful half-day at Northallerton.

Ringers attended from Darlington (St. John's and Holy Trinity), Shildon, Thirsk, Middlesbrough, and the local company.

DATE TOUCH.

At Holy Trinity Church, Kendal, Westmorland, on Saturday, September 22nd, a date touch of Grandsire Triples (1,928 changes) was rung in 1 hr. 15 mins.: R. Dennison 1, E. Jennings (conductor) 2, W. Nevinston 3, T. H. Newton 4, W. Atkinson 5, W. Robinson 6, L. J. Heap 7, W. Salmon 8.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.MEETING AT RIPON.

A general meeting of the Yorkshire Association was held at Ripon on Saturday, September 15th, when the fine ring of ten at the Cathedral and the ring of eight at Sharow were placed at the disposal of the members. The weather being gloriously fine, a gathering assembled from a very wide area.

RIPON CATHEDRAL.

The day's proceedings commenced with a meeting of the general committee, which was held in the Cathedral Hall, which had been placed at the disposal of the association by the courtesy of the Dean of Ripon. Tea was served to some 70 members in the neighbouring Granville Hotel. This was followed by the general meeting in the Cathedral Hall. The president occupied the chair, and was supported by the principal officers of the association.

Miss Phillips Marjorie Leach and Messrs. Wain, Reece and William Duncan, of Reepham, were elected as members.

Apologies for absence were received from Messrs. J. Lawson, J. Broadley, J. H. Blakiston and G. Halksworth.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Dean of Ripon for his courtesy in granting the use of the Cathedral bells was proposed by the president, and, being seconded, was carried with acclamation.

A vote of thanks to the local ringers was proposed by Mr. P. J. Johnson (general secretary), seconded by Mr. W. Barton.

At this moment the Dean entered the meeting, and in a short but delightful speech extended a most cordial greeting to the association, and expressed his good wishes. He trusted that a further visit to Ripon would be paid in the near future.—Mr. Tingle replied on behalf of the local ringers.

More ringing and train time brought to a close a most pleasant and delightful meeting.

AN OUTING WITH A PURPOSE.

The ringers of St. Ann's, Stamford Hill, had a very successful outing to Burnham-on-Crouch, Essex, on Saturday, September 15th, and a thoroughly enjoyable day was spent in company with the ringers of St. Mary's, Burnham. Arriving at Burnham in the morning, the party were met at the station by the old captain of St. Ann's, Mr. T. C. Ringrose, who has gone to Burnham to live in retirement, and who has thrown in his lot with the local band. Some very good ringing was done on a good-going peal of six bells. The visitors were of great assistance to the local band, as they are young in the art of method ringing, but eager to get on. Two 720's of Plain Bob were brought round, one in which three of the local band took part and ringing their first 720. The first 720 was rung in 28 mins. by T. C. Ringrose 1, E. G. Hibble 2, T. G. Deal 3, H. Blee 4, C. Ross 5, F. E. Ringrose (conductor) 6; the second 720 by Mr. Stebbings, sen. (first 720) 1, T. G. Deal 2, Mr. Stebbings, jun. (first 720) 3, F. E. Ringrose 4, C. Ross (conductor) 5, E. Rouse (first 720) 6.

After some sightseeing, the party enjoyed further ringing, and then adjourned to the residence of Mr. T. C. Ringrose, where a very substantial meal was provided and greatly appreciated. Handbell ringing was then indulged in on the lawn, but all too soon it was time to return to the station en route for home. Thus ended a very perfect day.

WOODCHURCH, CHESHIRE.—On Sunday, September 23rd, 720 of Plain Bob Minor at the Parish Church: R. Bennett 1, J. Johnson 2, W. Bennett 3, G. Philips 4, H. Martin 5, H. Philips (conductor) 6. Rung for the harvest festival.

BIRTHDAY RINGING.

At St. Mary's Church, Putney, on Wednesday evening, September 12th, previous to the usual practice, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples by A. Williams 1, J. Herbert 2, T. Bolton 3, W. W. Bailey 4, W. H. Ball 5, Robt. Bullen 6, W. T. Elson (composer and conductor) 7, G. F. Edwards 8. Rung in celebration of Mr. Thomas Bolton's 67th birthday, the band wishing him 'many happy returns.' A move was subsequently made to a 'place, etc.,' where the toast of the genial master was suitably honoured.

ASHTON MEN AT SHEFFIELD.

Members and friends of the Ashton-under-Lyne Parish Church had an outing to Sheffield on Saturday, September 1st. Arriving at 3.30 p.m. on a glorious day, the party visited All Saints' Church, Pitsmoor, where a new peal of eight bells has been installed. At five o'clock they journeyed to the Cathedral. Here several touches of Treble Bob and Stedman were rung until seven o'clock, after which tea was partaken of. After tea, a social evening was spent, and several touches on the handbells were rung. Many thanks are due to the Sheffield company for the enthusiastic reception given to the visitors.

BISHOP'S LAST PUBLIC APPEARANCE.

On Saturday, September 16th, a quarter-peal of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung at St. Bartholomew's Church, Marsden, Yorks, on the occasion of the visit of the Bishop of Wakefield to consecrate a new burial ground and dedicate a new lych gate. This was probably the last public appearance of the Bishop (Dr. Eden) prior to his retirement: L. Byram 1, S. Whitehead 2, G. Scawthorn 3, G. Wright 4, H. Shaw 5, C. Hoyle 6, A. Carter 7, H. Hoyle (conductor) 8. All the above are Sunday service ringers at St. Bartholomew's Church, Marsden.

A VISIT TO BRIGHTON.

On Saturday, September 8th, the ringers of St. Nicolas', North Stoneham, together with the Rector, Rev. T. Salmon, had their annual outing, when they journeyed to Brighton by car. They arrived at St. Peter's Church at 11.45, and were met by Mr. K. Hart. Cambridge Surprise Major, Grandsire and Stedman Triples on the back eight were rung. In the afternoon they visited St. Nicholas' Church, where Mr. F. Bennett had all in readiness. Two courses of Double Norwich and a course of Grandsire Caters were tapped off on this handy ring of ten. Accompanied by Mr. Bennett, the party then went on to the Church of the Good Shepherd, Dyke Road, where several of the local band welcomed them, and on this new peal Cambridge and Grandsire Triples were brought round. The visitors proceeded to Shoreham where they had tea, and afterwards were met at the tower by several local ringers, touches of London, Double Norwich and Grandsire being rung. After refreshments at a hostelry kept by a well-known ringer, the journey home was made. Thanks are due to the various incumbents for the use of their bells, and also to the many ringing friends who met the party and made them so welcome. The company were sorry not to have with them Messrs. G. Pullinger and D. C. Williams, both of whom were indisposed.

THE 18 1/2 TON RINGING BELL,
the Bourdon of the Carillon of 64 Bells, about to be installed at RIVERSIDE CHURCH, New York, U.S.A.

CHURCH BELLS A LUXURY?

There are still some strange notions existing with regard to church bells. The Lincoln Diocesan Board of Finance have recently declared church bells to be a luxury and on that ground, therefore, have refused a grant towards the restoration of the bells at Navenby. Such a declaration seems to us to form a bad precedent, because there are other articles in the furnishings of a church which could, with equal justification, be brought into the same category and assistance denied to their renovation for the same reason. It may well be that the Diocesan Board prefers to devote its funds to other purposes, but it is the reason for and not the actual refusal of the grant which we desire to question. First of all we hold that church bells are not primarily a luxury. It is laid down in the Book of Common Prayer that a bell shall be tolled at a convenient time before the beginning of morning and evening prayer; therefore a bell maintained in proper repair is a necessity demanded by the laws of the Church. A ring of bells, in our view, derive the same importance when substituted for a single bell; and their proper maintenance is a duty which devolves upon the church authorities. Whether or not any Diocesan Finance Board will help a bell restoration fund is a matter within their own discretion, but they cannot justifiably say that bells are luxuries. If they do so they must equally dub the church organ a luxury, and with more justification, because, as far as we know, the organ finds no mention in the directions for the conduct of worship. Yet we wonder if the Lincoln Diocesan Finance Board would refuse to assist a fund for the restoration of an organ purely on the ground that it was a 'luxury'?

But let us, for the moment, assume that bells are luxuries; is that any reason why a Diocesan Board of Finance should refuse to assist a bell restoration fund? If it were asked merely to assist in the installation of a new peal or even in the augmentation of an existing peal, the refusal could, perhaps, be understood if it is assumed that it is a luxury, but the question of the restoration of a ring of bells is another matter. The Church authorities are liable for the maintenance of all property in their care, and those who have in the past accepted and who still from time to time accept the custody of a new peal of bells, do so with the knowledge that they and their successors will be held responsible for the upkeep of this part of the church's equipment, just as much as they are for the maintenance of the organ, or the surplices of the choir. They cannot shelve their responsibility on the ground that bells are a 'luxury,' and, as Diocesan Finance Boards are established (inter alia) to assist by grants or payments of money, the equipment, maintenance and repair of churches, it seems strange that the excuse of 'luxury' should have been put forward in the diocese of Lincoln, when a request of this kind was made. In this instance, however, the Board's action has had what was probably an unlooked for sequel, for the Parochial Church Council of Navenby, faced with an extension of their burying ground and still requiring £150 to complete the restoration of the bells, have declined for the present to make any further collections on behalf of the diocesan fund!

THE INVASION OF HAMPSHIRE.

JOTTINGS OF THE WEEK.

In pursuance of a promise to visit Hants, made in West Wales a year ago by the 'faithful couple,' and in response to the invitation of Mr. G. Williams, of Southampton, sixteen ringers assembled to tackle sixteen towers during the third week of September, and a brief report of what proved to be an excellent tour in delightful 'record weather,' amidst attractive surroundings on sea and land, may afford additional interest to the peal list which appears on another page of 'The Ringing World.'

At Winchester Cathedral the genial Mr. Wilfred Andrews received the party, and Mr. W. E. Taylor, of Maidenhead, on a cycling trip, helped to raise the bells in preparation for the peal. 'All present' was punctually reported to the Ringing Master. There is a certain amount of reluctance to grant permission for peal attempts on the part of Cathedral authorities, so in this case the team considered themselves highly privileged. The 9th bell was 'sulky,' as usual, and Mr. George Fletcher (like Mr. F. S. Bayley a year or so ago) had an unenviable task, and as much as he could do to 'coax' the bell to a finish. That sterling conductor, Mr. G. R. Pye, again proved his worth. Like our English coinage, he is practically the 'Georgius Rex' of the belfry, and does not need any 'hall mark.' He rings true. After half an hour's ringing the tenor thought fit to dispense with the services of Mr. Jenkins, by slipping his rope, but a mighty effort at 'hand' caused the ringer to be lifted off his feet at 'back' and dropped from the high box on to the belfry floor. The ringer was spun round like a marionette on the end of the rope and lifted back on the box again—a wonderful recovery for a ringer standing five feet nothing, and weighing eight stones minus his shoes, with a 30 cwt. bell.

Four o'clock tea at Holloway's Restaurant was a go-as-you-please affair. It resembled in numbers a meeting of some association branch, and included Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hughes, of Rhyl, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fletcher, of Enfield, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Goldsmith, of Woking, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jones, of Newport, Mr. and Mrs. G. Williams, of Southampton, Mr. G. Lindoff and his son, of Dublin, Mr. J. H. Shepherd and his old push bike. With a silver wedding day and a birthday in the wind, the tea cups rattled merrily, and the babble of tongues gave vent to ancient memories of church bell and tower, and the boys that handle them. The editor of the 'Cardiff Express' once described a company of ringers visiting that city as the National Band—it would be a more appropriate title on this occasion with Ireland, North and South Wales, and England's ringing men gathered together, and it only needed one of our Edinburgh friends present to create a band of Great Britons. As it was, there were eleven members of the Irish Association present, and an 'eight' who had rung a peal in the four quarters of Britain—all awaiting the advent of a Scottish Association of change ringers.

Arrangements for bed and board at Swaythling—central for the area to be covered—had been made by Mr. G. Williams, two hotels and a private boarding house being commandeered, whilst Mr. H. Barton, of Ventnor, did his full share of work in providing similar comfort on the Isle of Wight for the 'courting couples' who went over there for a few days.

Referring to the peals achieved, all went well for the first four days—the 'old bag' was ready to burst with them—and then came a defect in the mental 'pulley block,' and both slides and stay came to rest all too soon. It was a case of what the bell said to the headstock—'blockhead.'

A TRIPLE EVENT.

There were three peal attempts planned for Wednesday—Southampton, Dibden and Wimborne, the latter permit given at the last minute, with the courteous request for 'Cambridge Royal' or nothing. At the first-named tower, with a man to spare, so sadly needed at Wimborne, our 'Johnny W.' was as Faithfull as ever, kindly giving way to the visitors. At Dibden the Vicar and his wife again gave hospitality to the peal band at the Vicarage—a most enjoyable lunch. At Wimborne Minster, nine 'Cambridge' men met at 3.30 p.m. and were 'sent down.' What matters the beautiful architecture or how glorious the Dorset scenery going to and from the town, if the bells are silent? It was a great disappointment to the 'Faithful Couple' that neither the hermit from the Bristol Cave nor the 'courting couple' from the Island could be present.

The humble peal of Bob Major, rung on the Island on Thursday, was the only redeeming feature of a disastrous day for the 'Overans,' a term given to people living outside the I.O.W. At Soberton, an attempt for London Surprise Major lasted 2 hrs. 20 mins., one hour being spent on repairing ropes, etc., beforehand, and another afterwards at the inn, doing justice to a feed of boiled Hampshire hog and greens, which convinced the Dublin visitor that all the best bacon was not bred on the other side of the Irish Channel. While on this subject of dinner, it may be noted that quite a number of readers of 'The Ringing World' are eager to know if a certain Cornish 'leg of mutton' is wandering about the hillsides of Truro?

At Curdridge, a fine eight by Taylor's, tenor 30 cwt., a peal of Cambridge Surprise Major was lost after 1 hr. 40 mins. This is a noisy ringing room that quite deafens one after a half hour's ringing.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

CHERTSEY DISTRICT'S SUCCESSFUL MEETING.

A meeting of the Chertsey District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild was held on Saturday at Weybridge, and proved a great success, between thirty and forty members and friends putting in an appearance during the day from Guildford (Cathedral and S. Nicolas'), Chertsey, Esher, Hersham, Old Woking, Ockham, Otter-shaw, Otlands Park, Leatherhead, Dorking, Walton-on-Thames and Thames Ditton, while a welcome visitor was Mr. R. Waddington, of Egerton, Kent.

The Rector (the Rev. Ernest Tritton) very kindly provided tea, which was served in the Rectory drawing-room. A company of 28 sat down, although only eleven had sent in their names to the secretary. Anticipating a greater gathering than this, however, he had suggested to the Rector that there might be 15 or 20 present, but even this number was considerably exceeded. It is not an easy matter to expand at a moment's notice to meet demands of this kind, especially in a private house, but the Rector rose to the occasion. Extra tables and chairs were brought in from other parts of the house, and everyone was provided with a sumptuous meal.

The Guild's service followed in the Parish Church, the Rector officiating. In addition to the ringers there were a number of parishioners present, some of whom commented that the service was a most beautiful one. The Guild would be only too happy if more parishioners would, on these occasions, attend and take part in the services. As a rule they see little of the work of the ringers and know nothing of what the associations are doing.

The Rector in his address welcomed the Guild to Weybridge. It was the first visit the new Guild had paid to the parish, and he hoped they would come again. The bells, he added, reminded people who did not attend a place of worship of higher things, and although the ringers, perhaps, did not know it, they often brought to the minds of others thoughts of God and His Church. The address was a most interesting, helpful and uplifting one, which enabled those present to realise the high calling in which they as ringers, are engaged.

The business meeting was held after the service, the Rector kindly placing his study at the disposal of the members for the purpose. Admiral T. P. Walker, D.S.O. (hon. treasurer of the Guild) presided, and in view of the proposal which is to be discussed at the annual meeting of adopting a badge for the Guild, handed round a small badge for inspection.

The hon. secretary (Mr. H. J. Chaffey) notified the members that the next district meeting would be held at Egham on November 3rd, and would be a joint gathering with the Middlesex Association. There was also to be a combined practice at Horsell on October 20th, and he hoped the members would attend both these events in large numbers.

The Chairman, on behalf of the ringers, heartily thanked the Rector for his splendid hospitality and for the use of the bells and the Rectory. He remarked that he thought the Rector must have been in the Army or the Navy to have been able to provide at any emergency.—The Rector briefly replied.

The bells were kept going during the afternoon and evening in Grandfire and Stedman Triples, Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob, Double Norwich Major and Superlative Surprise, and at the close were splendidly lowered in peal, someone remarking that this was the best bit of ringing during the day. The meeting was one of the most successful held in the district.

ing, and renders correction of faults futile. In the present effort even the Warrington 'whisper' failed, and thus the band came to 'stand still,' not knowing if their 'black' day had been saved by the 'Wights.'

The longest journey from headquarters was made on Friday, rail and motor-cars collecting the clans for Alton in the morning and Privett in the afternoon, where two good performances were brought safely home. The former, a new octave by Gillett and Johnston, tuned on the Simpson system, is a good one and beautifully clattered. The latter octave by Mears and Stainbank of forty years or so ago, well tuned on the old principle, is a masterpiece from the Whitechapel Bell Foundry, resembling another ring by the same firm installed at Llanstephan, tenor 12½ cwt. It would be quite worth the while of a committee of musical experts to visit both places and pass judgment on their respective merits.

Fifteen ringers gathered at Privett, those not ringing enjoying the efforts of their brothers above by strolling around and basking in the sunshine. Several were soon sleeping on the bosom of Mother Earth with the 'sleepless' that lie around beneath them.

Bishopstoke was the fixture for Saturday morning, but as there was illness here, Stoneham was put on in its place by mutual agreement, and a peal in quick time finished by 12.30. Then haste to a farewell dinner at the Masons' Arms before breaking up the Hampshire 'stay.' With such a strong muster of hands it is something to record that everyone had a 'pull,' even if some members did less 'pulling' than they expected, but everyone joined in a vote of thanks to Mr. George Pullinger, the hon. secretary of the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild, for the work put in for their happy week.

'MYSTERIOUS HAPPENINGS' IN A BERKSHIRE BELFRY (WITH A MORAL.)

At a tower not far from Maidenhead a peal of Minor was attempted on Saturday last, September 29th, as it was the eve of the harvest festival. All went well until the third 720, when a terrific 'thud-thud' was heard overhead (not unlike the French 75). The tenor lost his speech, and the 'bob caller' (late R.E.) cried 'Stand.' He also 'stood,' but away went his rope up through the ceiling (owing to the clapper, on leaving the bell, smashing the slider to pieces).

Four of the band sat down in the ringing chamber whilst the other two went aloft to gather the fragments and patch them together for the following day's service ringing. Imagine the surprise of those above and below when the treble suddenly decided to ring itself (no one having touched the bell or rope).

Those below said: 'Fools, to push a bell off with no one on the rope,' and those above said: 'Idiot, to pull a bell off with us up here.' All were wrong in their accusations, as it was found that the stay was badly fractured, and the weight of the bell in leaning back in the 'set' position had snapped the stay and freed the bell.

Anyway, the lady of the party was put on her train for London minus a peal, while the remainder of the band went in search of the village blacksmith (who was not at home) to knock out a new bolt. The steeplekeeper very appropriately played, 'Now the day is over' on the chimes as they departed.

If the 'Spooks' had decided to 'Cook 'em' for harvest festival service ringing they were much mistaken, for at 7 a.m. on Sunday, Mr. Taylor, of Maidenhead, got on his bicycle, rode to Boyne Hill tower, picked up a spare slider and proceeded with it to Cookham. At about the same hour Mr. John T. Fowler had aroused the village blacksmith from his slumbers to hammer out a new bolt, whilst J.T.F. employed himself in making a new stay for the treble (to replace the broken waggnette shaft that had previously done duty), and the bells did ring out their message of thanksgiving for morning service.

Although this has been treated in 'lighter vein,' it might easily have had a more serious ending and proved fatal, so to crawlers amongst and under bells, when they are up, see that there are no fractured stays or sliders.

The participants in the above venture were: J. T. Fowler (Cookham) 1, W. E. Taylor (Boyne Hill) (first 720 of Oxford Treble Bob) 2, Miss B. M. Mills (London) 3, W. Henley (Farnham Royal) 4, A. Martin (Boyne Hill) (first 720 of Oxford Treble Bob) 5, G. Gilbert 6.

THE MINOR METHOD NAMES.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Will you, through the medium of 'The Ringing World,' please inform all whom it may concern that on the Manchester to Chester rail or road route you pass through Altrincham and Bowdon (Bogedone). Bogedon is the old, historic name of Bowdon in the Stockport and Bowdon Branch of the Chester Diocesan Guild. Perhaps we shall now hear less sarcasm from the gentleman whom we should have thought more versed in his geography and history. I think it equal, if not better, than Quantock.

With regard to the floral names, I did not know it was possible to alter an historic fact. The altered names given to the Minor methods create worse confusion, and, furthermore, they have no more to do with a mathematical science than the names previously given, which was the original plea put forward in a leading article of 'The Ringing World.'

NO ALTERNATIVE NAMES.

Dear Sir,—I would like to ask the committee of the above two questions: (1) If floral names are not suitable, why 'Primrose' Surprise, especially as this method (Surprise No. 38) already has a name? (2) Also, if a method is given a name, why append an alternative one?

Don't make another muddle, but clear up the job now, once and for all time! Give each method a name, with no alternative, and then we shall know where we are.—Yours,

S. H. SYMONDS.

[We think we can enlighten our correspondent on both these matters. (1) The change of names in the 'floral' group was made only among those titles which had been bestowed in quite recent years. No attempt was made to alter any of the ancient names of methods, and 'Primrose' is one of these. It appeared in some of the early editions of 'Campanalogia Improved,' the first edition of which, we believe, was published in 1702. (2) It is not proposed to give in the new 'Collection' alternative names to any of the methods; those names which appeared in parentheses in the list in our issue of September 7th are names which have been alternatively used in the past. When the reprint of the 'Collection' appears they will be given in an appendix for reference.—Ed. 'R.W.']

An article appealing for 'Simplification,' by the Rev. H. Drake, is unavoidably held over until next week.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The order has been placed with Messrs. Mears and Stainbank to add two trebles to the heavy ring of six at Old Woking Church, Surrey. This has been made possible by the energy of the local band, of whom Admiral T. P. Walker, D.S.O., hon. treasurer of the Guildford Diocesan Guild, is one.

Messrs. Taylor and Co. are now engaged upon rehangings the eleventh bell at St. Paul's Cathedral in an iron headstock. The jubilee of the opening of the bells will take place on November 1st.

An attempt is to be made at Wolverhampton to-morrow for a peal of Stedman Cinques, which, if successful, will be Mr. James George's one thousandth peal! His many friends throughout the country will join in good wishes to the youthful veteran for the accomplishment of this great ambition. When he has achieved it, Mr. George will be only the eighth ringer to reach a four-figure total.

One hundred and forty years ago to-morrow the first peal of Stedman Cinques was rung. It was performed at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields on October 6th, 1788, by the College Youths, and in order that the length should not be superseded in a hurry they made it 6,204 changes, which occupied 4 hrs. 47 mins. It was nearly 30 years before a longer peal of Stedman Cinques was rung.

The first 'clerical' ten-bell peal was rung at St. Mary's, Warwick, on October 11th, 1910. The method was Stedman Caters.

Henry Hubbard, who was a composer and writer of the middle of the nineteenth century, died on October 9th, 1881. He was born in the year 1807.

Mr. J. Faulkner, of Southill, Beds, who died suddenly on September 17th at the age of 66 years, rang his first and only peal on January 28th last. He was for many years a ringer at Southill, and a muffled peal was rung there to his memory on Saturday.

Some ringers' enthusiasm knows no bounds. On Sunday week Mr. J. Fleuty, of Earls Colne, Essex, walked to Colne Engaine, rang for morning service and sang in the choir. In the afternoon he walked to Great Tey for the reopening of the bells, sang in the choir and rang in the opening and other touches, then walked back to Earls Colne and rang for evening service there. Altogether he covered nine miles.

Her many friends will be pleased to learn that Miss H. F. Mills, hon. secretary of the Southern District of the Ladies' Guild, who is still in the Londonderry Hospital, suffering from the effects of the accident she met with on August 7th, is making good progress. She wishes to express her thanks to those who have written to her, and also for all kind enquiries.

RINGING IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Ringings in Durban, Natal, has of late been reduced to Minor owing to lack of ringers. In August, however, Rev. Canon Ridout, of Johannesburg, made a welcome holiday stay in the city, and the company, with his help, were able to ring Triples. They made the most of his stay, and were just getting into peal shape when he had to leave.

If Canon Ridout wants a change-ringing practice he has to travel about 400 miles to get it!

EAST BERGHOLT BELLS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Your Beccles correspondent wishes to know how the bells at East Bergholt are rung. I once saw a local ringer turn one over with the clapper tied. The operation consisted of pushing the bell off by the rim, and as the bell turned over, in catching hold of the wooden stock at the back of the bell, and so keeping it going by pushing it along in this way, the ringer standing in a pit at the side of the bell.

I believe these bells are rung regularly by the local ringers, and I feel sure that if your correspondent were to get in touch with the Rector of East Bergholt, who is interested in campanology, he would be able to learn all he wishes to know in connection with these bells.

—Yours faithfully,

E. G. ELLINGER.

THE PEAL AT COMPTON GIFFORD.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—In reply to the letter of E. W. Marsh, re 'Recognition of peal refused,' I, as one of the members of the band, wish to state why the composition was refused. Firstly, do the South-West Committee think they have recorded the peal rung at Stonehouse, March 16th, 1927, correctly? Secondly, it would be of interest to ringers if the secretary (Mr. E. W. Marsh) would state through 'The Ringing World' upon what rule in the Guild Report they have based their attitude. In conclusion, I cannot see how it can have been a Devon Guild peal, as two of the band were not elected members until after the peal, and the majority of the band had gone.—Yours faithfully,

JAMES E. LILLEY.

[For the benefit of our readers we would point out that the peal of March 16th, 1927, was published in 'The Ringing World' as composed and conducted by O. R. Lilley, while in the Devon Guild Report it is recorded as composed by J. E. Burton (C.C. Collection, No. 116).—Ed. 'R.W.']

MIDLAND COUNTIES ASSOCIATION.SUGGESTED NEW DISTRICT IN DERBYSHIRE.

The quarterly meeting of the Midland Counties Association was held on Saturday, September 29th, at Mansfield, and, although the weather was wet and miserable, quite a good muster was present from Bolsover, Burton, Chesterfield, Cotgrave, Derby, Duffield, Leicester, Nottingham, Southwell and other places too numerous to mention. Good use was made of the eight bells of the Parish Church, touches and courses of the standard and Surprise methods being more or less successfully brought round.

The committee met at 4 p.m. in the Parish Room, and in the absence of Alderman R. B. Chambers, J.P., the chair was taken by Mr. J. Griffin, of Burton (vice-president). There were present also the hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Wallace, hon. secretary, Mr. E. Morris, and eleven members of the committee. The usual routine work was done, and an appeal was made for a donation from the Bell Repair Fund for West Hallam, where the present six are being augmented to eight. Alderman Chambers has promised a private donation, and suggested that the M.C.A. should do likewise.—It was decided to grant three guineas.

A suggestion of the Derby District to form another branch in the Bakewell area was discussed, and it was decided to ask the Rev. W. Peter Wright, of Eyam, for his opinion and suggestions as to the area and centre of such district. He has been doing much good work by holding meetings in the various towers of this rather isolated area.

Tea was provided at 5 p.m., at which over thirty members sat down, and once again it is to be regretted that quite a number failed to notify their intention of being present.

The general meeting immediately followed, and the members were pleased to have the Vicar and Rural Dean of Mansfield (the Rev. Canon Spencer Elliott) with them, and subsequently to make him an hon. member.

New members elected since the previous meeting were duly confirmed, viz., 3 honorary, 2 life and 20 ordinary. The suggested grant from Bell Repair Fund for West Hallam was ratified, and the question of alteration of the title of the M.C.A. left over for proper notice to be given prior to the next quarterly meeting.

Mr. Wallace proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar of Mansfield for the use of bells, and his presence, also the local committee for splendid arrangements made.—This was seconded by Mr. White and carried with acclamation.—The Vicar suitably replied.

Then adjourning to the tower once more, the ringers terminated a most successful and enjoyable meeting.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.GREAT MEETING AT BLACKPOOL.

This year's annual meeting of the Lancashire Association was held at Blackpool, when most of the towers in the Fylde district were kindly placed at the disposal of the members. The many attractions of this famous seaside resort make an appeal to everyone, and as a result the ringers were not allowed to come alone. The bells were at liberty from 10.30 a.m., by which time many had already arrived. Service was held at 4 p.m., when the preacher was the Rev. Canon Little, Vicar of Blackpool, who gave a very helpful address.

The usual press photo followed, and then to tea at 5 p.m., a company of 214 having tea together.

The business meeting followed, over which Canon Elsee presided.

The president gave the committee's report for the previous year, and each member had a copy of the balance sheet.

After questions had been answered on both, they were passed.

As there was only one nomination for each post vacant, the retiring officers were re-elected for two years, and thanked for their past services. These were Canon Elsee, president, Mr. W. H. Shaker, general secretary and Mr. H. W. Jackson, hon. treasurer.

The turn for the next year's meeting is the Blackburn Branch, and a member of the branch invited the association to Blackburn Cathedral, which was accepted and carried unanimously.

Votes of thanks were passed to the preacher for arranging the service, to the organist and choir boys, and to the clergy in the district for the use of their respective bells.

The total number of members of the association is 1,554, 1,131 of which are regular ringers in the county, the rest being composed of hon. and non-resident members. The balance sheet showed a balance on the year's working of £3 17s. 11d., the receipts having been £73 1s. 6d., and the expenses £69 3s. 7d.

DEVON GUILD.

A successful meeting of the South-West District was held at Buckland Monachorum, on Saturday, when ringers attended from St. Andrew's and Emmanuel (Plymouth), Plympton St. Mary and St. Maurice, Kelly and Bradstone. Apologies were received from the Bishop of Plymouth, the Lady Midmay, Revs. H. C. Champion, E. Davies, C. B. Yonge and Major and Mrs. Jerram.

Rev. C. Street gave an inspiring address at the service, and at the subsequent tea and meeting he was heartily thanked.

Votes of thanks were also passed to the ladies for preparations for tea and to the organist for his services.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting at Plympton on Saturday, January 5th next.

THE SNOWDON DINNER.SUCCESSFUL GATHERING AT LEEDS.

The annual commemoration of Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and past officers of the Yorkshire Association was held at Leeds this year, on Saturday, September 22nd. Visitors arriving at the railway stations were welcomed by the strains of the band of the Coldstream Guards, which caused them to think that unusual honour was being done to the annual gathering of change ringers, but this thought was soon dispelled when it was learned that it was the 'Civic Week' for the city. The various rings of bells were used by ringers from many distant towns, prominent among the visitors being the Rev. Canon H. J. Elsee, president of the Lancashire Association, Mr. J. W. Rowbotham, of the Ancient Society of College Youths, Messrs. J. F. Smallwood, St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, S. Roper, Surrey Association, A. H. Ward, Midland Counties Association, etc.

The dinner was held in the splendid Victoria Room of the Victoria Hotel, Briggate, where the proceedings went with the usual swing. Largely owing to the industrial depression, the gathering was smaller than in former years, between eighty and one hundred sitting down to dinner. The chair was occupied by the president of the association (Rev. C. C. Marshall), who was supported by the Lord Bishop of Knaresborough, Rev. Canon Elsee, Councillor R. H. Blackburn, and the principal officers of the association.

After the loyal toast had been duly honoured, a quartette, consisting of Messrs. Slater, Scott, Shepherd and W. Batley, opened the musical part of the proceedings with the glee, 'Here's life and health.' In proposing the toast of 'The Church and State,' Councillor R. H. Blackburn paid a witty and eloquent tribute to the debt that the State owed the Church, in the building up of the national character, and trusted that an early and amicable way would be found out of the difficulties by which the Church was at present confronted.

The Lord Bishop of Knaresborough responded to the toast, expressing his pleasure at being able to be present, and wishing the association every success in the work it had undertaken.

The toast of the evening was proposed by the president of the Lancashire Association (Rev. Canon H. J. Elsee). The speaker stated that though he never had the pleasure of meeting the first president of the Yorkshire Association, he had met his brother, the late William Snowdon, on many occasions. He paid high tribute to the great advance in change ringing that had been wrought by the labours of the two brothers, by the publication of the famous books on change ringing, and by their efforts which resulted in the formation of the Yorkshire Association, and the great uplift that had been achieved in the status of the ringers of this country.

The toast was silently honoured.

'The Continued Prosperity of the Yorkshire Association' was proposed by Mr. P. J. Johnson, following which Mr. S. F. Palmer proposed 'Kindred Ringing Societies.' In his remarks, Mr. Palmer announced that apologies for absence had been received from Mr. W. Story (Newcastle), Mr. J. S. Goldsmith (Woking), Mr. A. Walker (Birmingham), and Mr. G. Halksworth. Representatives were present from the Ancient Society of College Youths, the Midland Counties Association, the Lancashire Association, St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, and the Surrey Association. He coupled with the toast the names of two old and honoured friends in the persons of Messrs. J. W. Rowbotham, of the Ancient Society of College Youths, and J. F. Smallwood, of St. Martin's Guild. Both of these visitors had an enthusiastic reception on rising to respond, and thanked the gathering for the kind sentiments expressed in the toast.

This report would not be complete if it failed to compliment the quartette, who were responsible for the musical part of the programme, for the polished rendering of the various items which they contributed.

Some of the visitors stayed the night in Leeds, while others had to rush for trains, but all were firmly resolved that the next dinner, to be held in Sheffield, should have their presence if at all possible.

GREAT TEY BELLS REOPENED.

The reopening of the bells at Great Tey took place on Sunday, September 23rd. The special service was conducted by the Vicar, and the local company of ringers rang the opening changes.

After service over 60 members from 21 different companies took part in touches in most of the standard methods, those present including Mr. C. H. Howard, Master of the Essex Association, Mr. W. J. Nevard, District Master, and Mr. R. W. Stannard, district secretary, who carried out the arrangements for the meeting.

Messrs. Gillett and Johnston are to be congratulated for the efficient way in which the work has been carried out. The treble and tenor have been recast, and the whole peal relying on ball bearings.

Mr. C. F. Johnston, who was present at the reopening, was accorded a special vote of thanks.

LONG PEAL LOST.

The long peal that was attempted at Silverdale, Staffs, on Saturday, was lost after ringing 4 hrs. and 10 mins. The following members took part in it: H. Smith 1, C. S. Ryles 2, H. Carnwell 3, T. Hurd 4, F. H. Crawley 5, R. G. Lewis 6, A. W. Hall 7, C. H. Page (conductor) 8.

ANOTHER 'TAYLOR' RING OF EIGHT FOR CORNWALL

The square tower, strongly built of Cornish granite, of Phillack Parish Church has hitherto contained only three small bells. By the generous gift of Captain Edwin Jenkins, however, the tower will soon be the home of a fine new peal of eight bells, altogether in keeping with the dignity of the tower, and the rich music of the bells will sound forth on Christmas Day across the waters of Hayle Poole by which Phillack so picturesquely nestles.

The new peal is being cast by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., Loughborough, and will be in the key of F sharp, tenor 14-15 cwt.

TRAGIC DEATH OF DARTFORD RINGER. KILLED IN A LORRY ACCIDENT.

The fatal accident to a motor lorry driver at Towcester on Tuesday, September 25th, and reported in the daily press, has robbed the Holy Trinity Band, Dartford, of one of their most able and respected members in the person of Mr. Edmund G. Bates.

The fatality was caused through a collision. Mr. Bates was driving the lorry from Towcester to London when a second lorry towing a disabled lorry approached from the direction of Birmingham. The disabled lorry swayed and struck the vehicle driven by Bates, and he and his mate were thrown on to the pavement. The disabled lorry then ran on a few yards and overturned, goods being strewn all over the road.

Deceased was 40 years of age, and leaves a widow and three children, one aged four years, and twins five months old.

The funeral took place on Saturday, September 29th, at Watling Street Cemetery, the service being held at St. Alban's Church, Dartford. The mourners were Mr. W. Bates (father), Messrs. G. H. J., J. W., A., and J. Bates (brothers), Mr. Dapton (brother-in-law), Mr. Pankhurst (uncle), Messrs. H. Pankhurst, J. Howden and J. Hall (cousins). Local ringers were represented by Mr. E. Barnett, jun. (Crayford), Messrs. Norton, H. Rayner, R. Rayner and T. Groombridge, jun., of deceased's own tower, while a representative body of his former colleagues, drivers of the Maidstone bus service, and a representative of his last employer, Mr. W. G. Halkney, of Dartford, were in attendance at the graveside.

Some idea of his popularity may be gleaned from the magnificent display of wreaths, 45 in number, from all quarters.

Unfortunately last honours to the deceased as a ringer could not be arranged. Owing to the short time available it was impossible to get a band for handbells at the graveside, while a wedding at the Parish Church ruled out muffled ringing at the time of the funeral.

The bells were, however, rung muffled on Thursday, when the sad news of his death came to hand, and a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples was rung on Sunday morning last before morning service by: F. J. Beer 1, J. H. Cheesman (conductor) 2, E. Brown 3, H. Howard 4, H. Rayner 5, H. Simmons 6, H. E. Audsley 7, R. Jenkins 8.

Starting his ringing career in 1906 at Farmingham under the tuition of Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., 'Ted' Bates was never a prolific peal scorer. As far as can be ascertained at the moment he rang about thirty peals from Bob Minor to Double Norwich Major. It was not, however, from lack of enthusiasm, but owing to the uncertain hours of his employment, resulting in often having to back out of a peal at the last minute.

Joining the Holy Trinity band, Dartford, in 1918, he proved himself a valuable asset to the company, being good for anything up to Cambridge Surprise, a first-class striker, and equally enthusiastic about Grandsire Doubles for a beginner, unselfish to a degree as regards peals, always the same unflinching personality, except when bad striking crept in. His loss was felt when work and domestic troubles claimed him temporarily, and now that the last great call has come the sympathy of all his friends goes out to those to whom his presence meant most.

BLACK CAT CHANGES THE 'LUCK'

ST. MARY-LE-TOWER SOCIETY AMONG ESSEX STEEPLES.

A most enjoyable and successful outing took place on Saturday, September 22nd, when the St. Mary-le-Tower Society, Ipswich, augmented by a few friends to the total of 26, started at 6.30 a.m. by charabanc en route for Earls Colne, where a hearty breakfast, supplied by mine host at the White Lion, put the company in good fettle for ringing. The following towers were visited before dinner: Earls Colne (eight bells, tenor 14 cwt.), Halstead (eight bells, tenor 16 cwt.), Sible Hedingham (eight bells, tenor 18 cwt.), Finchingfield (eight bells, tenor 18 cwt.), Thaxted (eight bells, tenor 16 cwt.). The last-named church has a spire erected in 1421, 181 feet high. King Edward IV. completed the building of the chancel, and the north porch bears his coat of arms and devices.

Upon nearing Braintree, a black cat ran across the road. 'Now we shall have some luck,' said the company's wag, but he omitted to state what kind of luck, for during dinner the news came that illness near the church prevented ringing; at Dunmow there was a funeral; and Coggeshall was minus a rope. As is well known, misfortunes never come singly, but the esprit de corps was not one jot abated, and good ringing at Feering and Kelvedon ended the round. The crowning touch of the day was splendidly struck Oxford Treble Bob Major at Feering, conducted by Mr. Fred Tillet.

The society wish to thank all the incumbents, steeplekeepers and others for their co-operation in making the outing the great success it was.

DOUBLE SURPRISE MINOR METHODS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Referring to Mr. A. G. Driver's letter in your last issue, what I said was a statement of fact. There are only five methods fulfilling the conditions laid down, so that Mr. Driver must have 'discovered' something which is non-existent.—Yours sincerely,

JOSEPH W. PARKER.

KINGTON MAGNA'S OLDEST RINGER.

CHORISTER AND INSTRUMENTALIST.

The parish of Kington Magna has suffered a severe loss by the death of Mr. F. Hannam, its oldest ringer. When the present Rector (Rev. F. Ll. Edwards), in his college days, received his first lesson in change ringing, Mr. Hannam had taken part in it, and it was Mr. Edwards' sad experience to have to hurry back after his recent broadcast lecture for the burial of his colleague of the belfry.

For upwards of twenty years Mr. Hannam had been a regular ringer at the village church, and almost every Sunday found him in his place both morning and evening.

Besides taking his part in the belfry, Fred Hannam was possessed of an exceptionally fine bass voice, which he used with great effect in the church choir, and was an expert player on more than one musical instrument. A 'Trombone solo by Mr. Hannam' was a popular feature of many a village entertainment, occasionally varied by his vocal rendering of 'The Farmer's Boy.' At times he would keep his instrument beside him in church and play an occasional verse of a hymn, while he and the Rector often played the congregation out with an improvised 'concerto' on the trombone and organ.

An incident of one Christmastide remains vividly in the present writer's memory. After singing in several verses of 'While shepherds watched' to a traditional carol tune, Fred with a sudden inspiration picked up his trombone, and at the words 'All glory be to God on high,' the loud trumpet tones rang out through the church with dramatic effect.

On the first Sunday in September Mr. Hannam did his full day's work in the belfry and choir. The next day he was stricken with paralysis, and on his 66th birthday he passed away.

The bells were rung muffled for evening service, for it was Sunday, and the flag lowered to half-mast.

Borne to his grave by past and present ringers, he was laid to rest in a spot just in front of the belfry door and facing direct towards his place in the chancel. The burial service was chorally rendered, the Nunc Dimittis was sung at the graveside, and muffled peals were rung at the close of the last sad rite.

DEATH OF MR. S. POOLE, LEICESTER.

It is with deepest regret we have to announce the death of Mr. S. Poole, of Leicester, which occurred on September 18th at the age of 65 years. He was for many years a respected member of the old band of ringers at St. Mary's, Lutterworth, and, although never a great peal ringer, had scored two peals of Grandsire Triples.

On leaving Lutterworth he joined the staff at St. Mary's Church, Leicester, until that tower was condemned and the bells unsafe to ring. He joined on occasions the outings of St. Martin's Cathedral Society, but of late years did not do much actual ringing.

He was the father of Mr. Harold J. Poole, whose records are well known in the ringing world, and who is now a member of the Leicester Police Force.

OVER 50 YEARS A RINGER.

At Stoney Stanton, Leicestershire, on Sunday, September 30th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) was rung in 38 mins.: T. Atkins 1, C. H. Briggs 2, Rev. R. P. Farrow 3, C. Brown 4, L. E. Towers 5, R. F. Elkington 6, A. Ballard, jun. (first quarter-peal as conductor in this method) 7, T. W. Barwell 8. Rung as a compliment on his 78th birthday to Mr. Harry Briggs, for over 50 years a ringer at this church.

BELLS THRO' THE AGES

THE FOUNDERS' CRAFT AND RINGERS' ART

By

J. R. NICHOLS

There never has been such activity among English bell founders as at the present time. Many restorations of 'rings' are in hand at home, and both here and abroad—particularly in Canada and the United States—the carillon is receiving considerable attention.

There have already been many excellent works on bells published, but many of these are out of print, and others are not readily available. The publication of this work is therefore opportune, and it is hoped that the campanologist will find something of interest, and that the general public will care to investigate the development of this fascinating art. The very considerable interest is readily indicated by the recent visit to Croydon of some 2,400 bellringers from all parts of the country to hear the biggest bell ever cast in Britain. It is believed that there are over 40,000 church bellringers in England alone.

THE BIG PEAL-RINGERS.

In modern ringing history there have been few names more prominently before the Exercise than that of Mr. James George, whose achievement last Saturday, in completing his one thousand peals, made really a memorable event. The number of ringers who can possibly attain to such a record is obviously extremely limited, and when a man reaches this prodigious total it is a matter which calls for more than passing notice. Time was, and that not so very long ago, when the mere suggestion that a man could ring a thousand peals in his lifetime would have been laughed at as the imagining of a visionary; but it has come to pass, like many other seemingly impossible things. A generation or so ago the ringer who could claim to have rung a hundred peals was looked up to as someone quite out of the ordinary, while a man with two hundred and fifty to his credit inspired awe among those around him. To-day two hundred and fifty peals is a mere bagatelle; even five hundred counts as but a moderate total, comparatively. Times have vastly changed in ringing as in everything else. Half a century ago a peal was an event in a man's ringing career; something to be talked about for years; something which often satisfied ambition for a long period. To-day a peal is but an incident and relatively counts for little in a lifetime of ringing activity. Nevertheless, everyone recognises that a four figure total is really a wonderful performance, and those who have struggled for their single hundreds can best gauge the merit of it.

There are many who will doubtless ask, 'What is the good of it all, in the end?' As well may we ask what is the good of individual effort to excel in any recreation? If it encourages innocent ambition; if it gives a man enthusiasm in a healthful occupation; if it develops his physical and mental qualities, then surely it is worth something. But the men who have rung a thousand peals have every one of them laid the Exercise under a debt. Their activities have inspired others with a keenness which has developed, not always along peal ringing lines, but for the general advance of the Exercise; they have all been men who have been doing a great deal for others; assisting the 'lame dog,' encouraging the youngster, and, above all, 'doing their bit' as service ringers. It is the men who are the keenest peal ringers who are, as a rule, the most attentive to their duties in service ringing; who give up more time than most people know, to helping others; and whose successes in the belfry are an example and a pattern to others. The successful peal ringers are by no means selfish men; they are always first to lend a hand where necessary; and if a man is in

LEYTONSTONE BELLS RE-OPENED.

About fifty ringers and friends attended the official reopening of the peal of six bells at St. John-the-Baptist's, Leytonstone, on Saturday, September 29th. The bells have been quarter turned, new headstocks have been fitted, and they have been rehung in the old frame. The work has been satisfactorily carried out by Messrs. A. Bowell and Son, of Ipswich, and the firm has fully upheld its reputation. The bells were rededicated at the morning service on Sunday, September 23rd, by the Rev. Canon W. T. Brown, M.A., Rural Dean and Vicar of St. John's, and a short touch was rung after service by the local company.

Visitors began to arrive on Saturday at 3.30, and the bells were kept going to courses and short touches in various methods until five o'clock, when tea was generously provided by the Vicar and churchwardens in the Parish Hall, and all who sat down apparently did justice to the fare provided. The Vicar presided, supported by the churchwardens (Messrs. J. H. Clarke and John Wish), the hon. diocesan reader (Mr. H. Heather, J.P.), and Mr. W. Miller (Master of the Leytonstone company).

After tea the Canon welcomed the visitors to Leytonstone, and said how pleased he was to hear the bells again. He congratulated Messrs. Bowell upon their work, and said he was very satisfied with the improved tone of the bells. In lighter vein, he said that bells were not always appreciated, and told of a certain parishioner who, when hurrying to catch his train with his mouth half full of breakfast, strongly objected to being informed that 'Now the day is over.'

Mr. H. Heather, J.P., amused the company with some funny stories, two of which he insisted came straight from his Court. This may be, but they were funny. His 'Watchman's Story' of the 'minding the 'ole in the road' was very much appreciated.

Mr. W. Miller, the Master, offered the visitors a hearty welcome to Leytonstone on behalf of his band. He mentioned that he had been connected with the tower for some thirty-five years, and that this was the first occasion within his memory that a ringers' meeting had taken place there. The tower, being situated in the main road (a fairly busy shopping centre), did not lend itself to much Saturday ringing, but he hoped that in the near future something might be arranged. He thanked the Vicar and churchwardens for the splendid tea, Mr. Heather for his entertainment, and the following ladies who so kindly helped with the arrangements: Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Wish, Miss Dawson, Misses Harwood, Keep, and Miller. He regretted that Mr. Bowell and his sons had been compelled to leave before the tea.—The Vicar and Mr. Clarke briefly responded, and a course of Grand-sire Caters upon handbells followed, by: J. Moule, G. Faulkner, J. Thomas, E. C. S. Turner, and E. D. Smith.

Canon Brown then called upon Mr. Heather to unveil the brass tablet in the porch of the church, which records the fact that the work has been done by Messrs. Bowell, and acknowledges the generosity of Miss Emma Barron, the founder of the Barron Bell Trust, in defraying the cost.

The bells were kept going from 6.30 until 8 o'clock in a variety of methods ranging from Plain Bob to Spliced Surprise in four methods.

The new peal of eight at Leyton was available in the afternoon, and the peals of six at Wanstead and Woodford in the evening. Several of the visitors took the opportunity of ringing at these towers, and Miss Elsie Chapman is to be congratulated upon adding four towers to her already extensive 'bag.' The first extent upon the rehung bells at Leytonstone was rung for evening service on Sunday, September 30th, being 720 of Spliced Cambridge, Ipswich, Norfolk, and Primrose Surprise.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

A successful meeting of the Winchester District was held at Brown Candover on Saturday, September 29th, when a good company of ringers, ladies and friends, was present. It was impossible to do any ringing at Brown Candover tower as the bell framework was in want of repair. The Rev. Gough conducted the service and gave a splendid address.

After tea, which was prepared in the Church Hall, a business meeting followed. The Rev. Gough was voted to the chair, and expressed his regret that the belfry was in such an unsafe condition. He hoped that funds would be raised to restore it in the near future. Mr. G. Williams (Master of the Guild) proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar, also to those who helped with the most enjoyable tea.

The rest of the evening was spent at Old Alresford tower, where there is a very nice peal of six. Various touches, including Kent Treble Bob and Bob Minor, were rung. Afterwards a visit was paid to Micheldever tower.

LLANDAFF AND MONMOUTH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION: YOUNG MEN MUSTER WELL.

A meeting of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association was held at Llangibby on Saturday last, a good number putting in an appearance from both Glamorganshire and Monmouthshire. A feature of the gathering was the number of young men who attended.

The bells, originally a ring of six by Rudhall, augmented to eight a few years ago by Taylor, with a tenor of 15 cwt., were much admired by those who had not previously paid Llangibby a visit. They were raised in the afternoon and kept going until 4.30, when service was held in the church, the Rector (the Rev. A. Lancaster Osman) officiating and giving an interesting address.

Following the service, an excellent tea, generously provided by the Rector, was served at the White Hart Hotel. At the subsequent business meeting, over which the Rector presided, various routine matters were dealt with, such as instructors' reports, reports on augmentations and restorations, and the election of new members.

The hon. secretary read a leaflet which he had received in reference to the book just published, 'Bells through the ages,' and it was unanimously resolved that a copy be purchased by the association.

The best thanks were accorded the Rector for his exceptional kindness and hospitality, and, in replying, he said it had been a very great privilege and pleasure to him to do what he could for the association.

The bells were afterwards kept going until late in the evening in Grand-sire and Stedman Triples, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, and Double Norwich Major. The weather was delightfully fine, and the meeting one of the very best.

PETERBOROUGH DIOCESAN GUILD: GREAT MEETING AT NORTHAMPTON.

A special general meeting of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild was held at Northampton on Saturday, September 29th, and proved to be very successful. A service, at which the Guild's form was used, was held in St. Edmund's Church. The special preacher was the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, who gave a very interesting and instructive sermon.

After service, tea was held in St. Giles' Buildings, an excellent spread being arranged by Mr. F. Wilford and the Northampton Branch committee, assisted by lady helpers. Ninety-five sat down, those present including Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, Rev. R. C. Thurstfield (president, Kettering Branch), Rev. G. E. Petter (president, Gillsborough Branch), Rev. W. Fearis (president, Daventry Branch), Mr. F. Wilford (Master), Mr. W. T. Wilson (treasurer), Mr. R. G. Black (general secretary), Messrs. F. Barber, J. Nickerson, T. Tebbutt, H. Baxter and W. C. Moore (branch secretaries), Mr. R. T. Elthbert (general secretary of Oxford Guild), Miss Stella Davis (Bucklebury), Mr. A. King (Luton), Rev. C. J. Watkins, Rev. A. M. Johnson, Miss Thurstfield (secretary of Northants Branch of Ladies' Guild), Messrs. H. and W. Sear, and friends from Bletchley.

Rev. R. C. Thurstfield moved a vote of thanks to the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn for his address, to the respective clergy for the use of their bells, and conducting the service, to the ladies who assisted with tea, and all who had in any way helped to make the meeting a success.—This was seconded by Mr. F. Barber and carried.

The Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn and Rev. C. J. Watkins suitably replied.—The bells available were St. Giles' (ten), St. Edmund's, St. Peter's, and the Church of the Holy Sepulchre (eights), many visitors having a ring at all four churches.

St. Peter's bells, which were cast in 1734 by Abraham Rudhall, have recently been tuned and rehung in modern fittings, and go splendidly.

In the face of all we hear to-day of the scarcity of young ringers, it was encouraging to see so many keen young ringers at this meeting, some having their first ring on eight or ten or a touch in a fresh method.

Various methods were rung up to London Surprise Major, Grand-sire and Stedman Caters, an attempt for Cambridge Royal failing in the last lead.

PETERBOROUGH BRANCH.

A meeting of the Peterborough Branch was held at Whittlesea on Saturday, October 6th, about twenty-four members attending from Northampton, Kettering, Peterborough (St. Mary's and St. John's), Wisbech, Somersham and the local band. The Guild form of service was conducted by the Vicar, and after tea a short business meeting was held.—Wisbech was chosen for the next meeting on December 1st.—Four new members were elected.—The bells were kept going during the afternoon and evening to Grand-sire and Stedman Triples, Double Norwich, Kent Treble Bob Major, and Bob Major.

GREAT EASTON BELLS RESTORED.

The dedication and opening of the new ring of six at Great Easton, Essex, took place on Sunday, October 7th, the ceremony being performed by the Lord Bishop of Chelmsford, in the presence of a crowded congregation. Immediately after the dedication, rounds were rung by the newly-formed local band.

For many years it had been unsafe to ring the old five bells owing to the bad state of the tower, but now this has been restored, and with the addition of a new treble and tenor Great Easton has a fine peal of six. The old tenor, which was cracked, has not been recast, but now occupies a place of honour in the ringing room. The other four bells were retuned and quarter turned, and the whole ring hung in a new frame. The tower was a timber structure on brick walls. The timber work has now been removed and the tower completed in brick in Tudor design. The new frame girders take a bearing on the old brickwork, which is about 18 inches thick. The tone and 'go' of the bells, which are hung on ball bearings, leave nothing to be desired, and everyone was pleased with the very able way that Messrs. Taylor and Co. have carried out their work.

During the afternoon many ringers arrived from various parts of Essex, including Messrs. E. J. Butler, W. Keeble, A. Saunders, W. Arnold and W. J. Nevard. At four o'clock all present were invited to an excellent tea provided by the Rector (the Rev. P. E. T. Widdington) and the parishioners. The Rector said what a great day it had been for all at Great Easton, also how pleased he was to welcome so many ringers.—Mr. A. Saunders (District Master of the Northern Division) suitably replied on behalf of the Essex Association. During the day methods ranging from Bob Minor to London were rung, Mr. J. P. Fidler, of Messrs. Taylors, who was present, taking a rope in several touches. One 720 of Cambridge Surprise Minor was rung by: P. Almond 1, W. J. Nevard 2, E. J. Butler 3, W. Keeble (conductor) 4, J. P. Fidler 5, A. Saunders 6. This was the 144th tower in which W. J. Nevard has rung in the county of Essex.

THE PEAL AT IRTHLINGBOROUGH:

Great credit is due to F. Palmer who rang the treble in the peal of Cambridge Surprise Major at Irthlingborough on Saturday. He is 17½ years of age, and only started ringing last year, his longest touch having previously been 672.

As well as ringing the treble to London and Bristol, this promising lad rings inside in Superlative, Double Norwich and Stedman.

He is the youngest son of the late Mr. F. Palmer, of Irthlingborough, who lived at Harlow Common for a number of years, and, strange to say, he died 18 years ago the very day his son rang his first peal.

THE PEAL AT COMPTON GIFFORD.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Mr. J. E. Lilley has been good enough to give an additional reason why the peal at Compton Gifford on August 4th, 1928, should not be recognised by the Devon Guild. Perhaps he will be willing to state who was responsible for sending you a falsely worded report originally.

As regards his other point, the regulation to which he appears to object has been in force since May 12th, 1913. If he cares to enquire from his father he will learn that it is a condition demanded by most of the larger associations before recognising a peal. Its importance is evidenced by the facts relating to the peal of Bob Major at Stonehouse, to which Mr. Lilley refers. Your readers will remember that in the 5,056 of J. E. Burton a single occurs halfway and end. In the peal at Stonehouse the composition was change for change the same, except that the singles were transferred to the first course-ends in each half-peal.—Yours faithfully,

T. LAVER,
Gen. Secretary, Devon Guild.

COMMITTEE'S UNANIMOUS VOTE.

Dear Sir,—Mr. J. E. Lilley writes in his letter that as one of the band that took part in the peal he wishes to state why the composition of the peal was refused, but he fails to make any explanation, and proceeds to ask questions.

In reply to his questions: (1) The peal rung at Stonehouse on March 16th, 1927, was reported correctly in the Guild Report, and the conductor of that peal knows it. (2) The rule of the General Committee of the Devon Guild is well known to Mr. C. R. Lilley, as he has been informed by letter on more than one occasion. The necessity for such a regulation is obvious from my reply to his first question. (3) If the election of the two non-resident members was not in order, why did Mr. C. R. Lilley send the peal to you for publication under the auspices of the Devonshire Guild?

Mr. C. R. Lilley was written to asking for the figures of the composition, and also whether the two non-resident members were elected members of the Guild. He was requested by letter for an answer on three subsequent occasions, but as no reply was received, and the figures of the composition had not been published in 'The Ringing World,' the committee of the South-West Branch by a unanimous vote instructed me to write to 'The Ringing World' refusing to recognise the peal.—Yours faithfully,

E. W. MARSH,
Hon. Secretary,
South-West District Branch, Devon Guild.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Messrs. Taylor and Co. are now engaged in erecting the new bells at Worcester Cathedral, and it is expected that the reopening will take place shortly.

December 8th has been tentatively fixed for the opening of the new peal of twelve which Messrs. Mears and Stainbank are placing in St. Martin's Church, Birmingham.

A peal board is to be placed in St. Nicholas' Church, Liverpool, recording the first peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus in the North of England. The arrangements for the unveiling ceremony are now being made.

Holt's ten-part was rung for the first time on October 12th, 1754, at Shoreditch Church.

A peal of 10,272 Kent Treble Bob Major was rung at Debenham on October 16th, 1880.

The old peal of six at Highclere, Hants, have been rehung in a new iron frame, with modern fittings, and two trebles added to complete the octave, by Messrs. Taylor and Co. They were dedicated by the Bishop of Winchester last Saturday.

The 'Old Brigade' were well to the fore on Saturday last at Leicester. In the band who rang the Stedman Caters no less than seven are over 60 years of age. It is to be hoped that the 'annual merchant' will get another chance. He did more than justify his inclusion in the band. Will the selection committee please note?

With reference to the footnote to the report of the peal at St. Mary's, Bury St. Edmunds, in our last issue, to the effect that it was over 20 years since the last peal was rung on these bells, Mr. C. Woodstock, of Ipswich, writes that a peal of Grandsire Triples was rung there on June 15th, 1912, conducted by Mr. S. H. Synmonds, who also writes pointing out this fact.

Mr. J. P. Fidler, of Messrs. Taylor and Co., achieved something of a record last week-end, when he represented the firm at no fewer than three bell dedications within 24 hours, one in Hampshire and two in Essex.

'BELLS THROUGH THE AGES.'

Mr. J. R. Nichols' new book, 'Bells through the ages,' has received many commendatory press notices, but in the very quarter where we should have expected some recognition of the bellringer's work, viz., in the 'Church Times,' we find a review which misdirects the public attention to that side of ringing activity which, so far as the bells themselves are concerned, matters least. There can, of course, be no objection to saying that quite a large number of men enjoy change ringing and give their Saturday afternoons to it. That is perfectly true; but the reviewer totally ignores the fact that the motive behind ringing in these days is the service, voluntarily rendered, to the church on Sundays by thousands of men and women. Bells are used primarily as a call to worship, and it is to this end that the ringers of this country have entered the craft.

After this, it is not surprising to read that 'the village chime can move us as, let us say, the "tubular bells" of the Imperial Institute certainly cannot' (the Imperial Institute has one of the heaviest rings of ten in the country), or that 'citizens of the United States have developed in late years a keen taste for bellringing.' We are glad to learn, however, that this writer agrees that Mr. Nichols has presented the public with a 'readable' book. All our readers who are able—either individually or collectively—to purchase a copy and peruse it will find it is this and more. Its information is authoritative, and the book covers a far wider field than anything given us before in one volume on the subject of bells.

In the correspondence columns of the 'Church Times' in the following issue, 'E.D.A.R.' has a timely letter 'on behalf of those men and—particularly since the war—women who give their services in ringing the bells of our churches.' He refers to the lack of consideration often shown to the ringers by the clergy, and quotes from a recent leading article which appeared on the subject in 'The Ringing World.'

Ringers should apply to the publishers for a prospectus of the book.

DEATH OF MR. ROBERT WHITING.

A FOUNDATION MEMBER OF THE NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

The members of the Norfolk Guild, and of the Redenhall District in particular, have suffered a loss by the death of Mr. Robert Whiting, at Pulham St. Mary, who passed away on September 27th at the age of 78 years.

The funeral took place on October 1st, and four local ringers were the bearers. Five other parish ringers were also present, and Messrs. G. Archer, E. Poppy, E. Richards, and John Souter also attended.

Deceased was born in the ecclesiastical parish of Redenhall, where three of his ancestors had been peal ringers (the first in 1782), and there rang his first peal (Double Norwich) in 1876. He was an original member of the Norwich Diocesan Association, and took part in its first peal, Superlative, rung at Redenhall, on November 6th, 1877. In all he had rung 89 peals. He was a good ringer, and his sayings and doings will be remembered by many.

A half-muffled peal was rung in the evening at Pulham Market.

ONE THOUSAND PEALS

MR. JAMES GEORGE'S GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

Mr. James George achieved on Saturday a distinction which has, up to now, been gained by few men. At Wolverhampton he rang his one-thousandth peal, and thus clinched his right to a place of fame in the ringing Exercise for all time. Not that his previous performances had not entitled him to such recognition, but to complete a thousand peals is to reach a dizzy eminence to which few indeed can even hope to attain. The achievement is the more remarkable when his years are taken into consideration, although age does not seem to count with Mr. George, and he will probably tell you, on the 27th of next month, that he is 'seventy-five years young.'

It has taken Mr. George nearly forty years to reach this epoch-making point in his ringing career, but, after all, that is fairly good going. Just think for a moment what a thousand peals means. It means on an average a successful peal attempt almost once a fortnight—for forty years! Most people would imagine they had done tolerably well if they had averaged a peal a fortnight for one year, but Mr. George has kept it up for a couple of score of years. Through his early ringing history, indeed, he kept his pace with remarkable consistency, except for one burst between 1906 and 1908. But since 1921 he has accelerated his speed, and in these last seven years has rung exactly three hundred peals. Some people may be inclined to say that 'the older he gets the worse he gets.' We would prefer to put it that years only bring added enthusiasm.

WHO COMPLETED HIS ONE-THOUSANDTH PEAL ON

What the members of the Exercise have most admired in Mr. George's ringing career has been the manner in which he has 'taken on' all bells alike, and there is, we venture to say, nothing hung in a bell frame that a man could ring to a peal that Mr. George would not tackle with a light heart and tackle successfully. Whatever the bell, little or big, he takes it in his stride, so to speak, and only asks for more worlds to conquer. Some of his performances in this respect we will refer to later on.

Mr. George was born at Pinner, Middlesex, on November 27th, 1853, and he took to peal ringing comparatively late in the day. What he would have accomplished had he started young, goodness only knows. It was not, however, until the year 1888, when he was 35 years of age that he rang his first peal. This was for the St. James' Society at St. George's Church, Camberwell, and Mr. Frank Davey, of Exeter, is the only other survivor of that company. The peal was Holt's Original, and was conducted by that well-known old London ringer, Dick French. The ringers were: Henry W. Flower 1, Richard French 2, William Jones 3, Frank Davey 4, William Weatherstone 5, Joseph Barry 6, William H. George 7, James George 8. W. H. George was, of course, Mr. James George's brother, and Joseph Barry was his cousin, while it is interesting to note that his father, James George, sen., sat in the belfry throughout the peal.

SOME BIG JOBS.

In those days Mr. George lived at Coventry, but later he removed to Rugby, with which place his name was intimately associated in the minds of all ringers for many years, until, in fact, he retired from the service of the old London and North Western Railway Company in 1914, and settled down in Birmingham. So extensive, however, have been his travels in pursuit of his favourite hobby that no city can now lay exclusive claim to him, and he is familiarly known to-day as 'James George, of England.' It is probable that no other ringer has travelled as many miles for ringing as Mr. George has done. He minds not how many days or nights he spends in the railway train as long as the ultimate reward is a peal. His activities north, west, east and south have only been bounded by the Atlantic Ocean, the North Sea, and the English Channel. He has rung peals in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, in which countries he belongs to almost every ringing association. He has sought out the smallest bells and rung them to peals, as, for instance, the treble at Lye, in Worcestershire, which weighs 60lb., and which he rang to Stedman Triples; and the treble at Loughborough Bell Foundry, weighing 80lb., which he has rung to a peal of Kent Treble Bob Royal. Bells like these are a job for Ringers (with a capital R), but it is at the other end of the scale where the spectacular feats are performed, and it is at the heavy and that Mr. George is in his element. The heavier the bell the more he revels in it. Bow tenor (53 cwt.) to Cinques and Maximus; Southwark (50 cwt.) once to Cinques, and twice to Maximus; Norwich old tenor (43 cwt.) to Royal and Maximus; Cornhill (41 cwt.) to Cinques; Sheffield (40 cwt.) to Caters, Cinques and Maximus; Shrewsbury (40 cwt.); Waltham Abbey (39½ cwt.); Birmingham (36 cwt.); and Cripplegate (36 cwt.) to Cinques, are a few of them. Then there have been the somewhat smaller fry, such as Chester tenor (33½ cwt.) to Major; Wolverhampton (33 cwt.) to Cinques; Ipswich (32 cwt.) to Maximus; and lots of others. It is not always on the tenor, however, that all the work is to be found. Sometimes the man on the eleventh has an equally big share, and Mr. George has 'done his bit' in this department. He has rung Southwark 11th five times, Bow 11th three times, Cripplegate twice, Birmingham twice, Ipswich twice, and the 11th once each at Norwich, Dublin, Cornhill, Worcester, Waltham Abbey, Chelmsford, Newcastle, Winchester and Liverpool. Then he has rung the ninth in ten-bell peals at St. Sepulchre's, London, Stepney, Loughborough, Nottingham and Wells; and the seventh in eight-bell peals at Sherborne Minster, Croydon Parish Church, Lymm, and St. Luke's, Derby, at all of which churches the tenor weighs more than 30 cwt. Quite a respectable record for one man, most people will agree. The places to which reference has been made are also a reminder that Mr. George has rung peals in 29 different twelve-bell towers, and in this respect he leads the field. Mr. George has rung nine peals exceeding the conventional five thousand, and the greatest of these was the record peal of 12,240 Kent Treble Bob Maximus at Ashton-under-Lyne in 8 hrs. 39 mins. on April 17th, 1911, to which peal he rang the tenor.

In a thousand peals there have, of course, been many of special interest and many for special occasions. It is impossible to refer to all these, but on May 2nd, 1914, Mr. George took part in a veterans' peal of Caters at Aston. The ages of the company aggregated 653 years 10 months, and the youngest of the party was Mr. John Carter, then just 60. Mr. George was next youngest at 60 years 5 months, and the oldest was Mr. Samuel Spittall, who was 77 years 4 months. Mr. George is the only survivor of that company.

The way in which Mr. George's peals at first crept up and latterly have leapt up, since that first peal of his on February 16th, 1888, may be seen from the following: 100th peal, November 20th, 1894; 200th, December 31st, 1899; 300th, January 13th, 1906; 400th, September 22nd, 1908; 500th, October 19th, 1912; 600th, August 18th, 1917; 700th, October 8th, 1921; 800th, August 9th, 1924; 900th, July 3rd, 1925; 1,000th, October 6th, 1928.

The honour of having rung one thousand peals, Mr. George shares with the late Rev. F. E. Robinson, Mr. W. Pye, the late Mr. E. Pye, the late Mr. I. G. Shade, Mr. G. Williams, Mr. F. Bennett and Mr. G. R. Pye; but he shares another distinction with one other ringer only (Mr. W. Pye) in having rung a peal on every date in the year.

THE ONE THOUSANDTH.

With regard to the peal itself, Mr. George's only regret was that he could not include in it all the friends whom he would have liked to take part. But there were only twelve ropes, and those who did stand in felt honoured. There were a number of ringers present at the start to wish Mr. George 'the best of luck,' and Ald. J. S. Pritchett, Presiding Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild, under whose auspices the peal was rung, specially made the journey from Birmingham and climbed the 70 odd steps to the belfry to extend official and personal wishes for the success of the attempt. There is little to be said about the peal. The ringing was good from beginning to end, and the only 'thrill' the ringers got was when the treble man sneezed twice. With the band which Mr. George had round him it was, perhaps, only to be expected that the peal should be rung at the first attempt, for the twelve men have, in the aggregate, taken part in over 6,000 peals, while they have between them rung 966 peals of Stedman Cinques! Had there been a failure, therefore, it could hardly have been attributed to inexperience.

The man of the moment was himself on the tenor box, and, needless to say, he acquitted himself in a manner which befitted the occasion. Wolverhampton tenor is not everybody's job; it has got a nasty knack of 'playing up' the ringer in the last hour of a peal, and far younger men than Mr. George have found it their master, but 'He, of England,' handled it in true Georgian style, and at the end received the hearty congratulations of the band. Downstairs a large number of ringers and many ladies waited to add their felicitations, and a cheer was raised as the hero of the hour emerged from the belfry door.

As will be seen from the report of the peal, the band included two ringers who had already passed the one thousand mark, viz., Mr. William Pye, whose 1,596th peal this was, and Mr. G. R. Pye, who brought his total up to 1,106. Mr. William Pye and Mr. George have rung nearly 250 peals together, and the former has called 155 of them.

Among those who assembled to hear the start were a band who went on to St. Luke's Church, Blakenhall, and rang a peal of Stedman Triples, afterwards returning in time to hear the finish of the Cinques. That is a thing that is not often possible. This peal of Triples and a peal of Caters at Liverpool were rung in Mr. George's honour.

RINGERS ENTERTAINED.

Afterwards, at the Molineux Hotel, Mr. George kindly entertained the band and a large number of friends to a meat tea. Ringers, many of them with their wives, were present from London, Wolverhampton, Birmingham, King's Norton, Derby, Coventry, Little Wenlock, Erdington, Willenhall, Coalbrookdale, Coseley, Bloxwich, Stourbridge, Hagley, Kidderminster, Tipton, Brewood, Woking, etc. Later, the proceedings developed into a homely gathering, over which Mr. Harry Mason, of Hagley, presided, and several complimentary speeches were made. The Chairman spoke of an association with Mr. George of more than 40 years. During that period, he said, they had spent many happy times together, but he looked upon that day's proceedings as the consummation of all he had enjoyed in Mr. George's fellowship. There were very few men who had a ringing record equal to that of Mr. George, and Mr. George had a great deal to be thankful for that he had been given health and strength to accomplish so much. On behalf of all present he thanked Mr. George for his hospitality, and tendered congratulations to him, both upon having been spared to do so much and upon the performance which he had been able to complete.

Mr. Albert Walker, the conductor of the peal, Mr. C. T. Coles, Mr. J. S. Goldsmith (who could claim to have rung a peal with Mr. George before any other of that day's band), Mr. A. A. Hughes and Mr. Herbert Knight all added a tribute to Mr. George's achievement. The last-named mentioned as a coincidence that Mr. George rang the tenor at Wolverhampton to the one thousandth peal rung by the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford.

On behalf of the ladies, Mrs. Hughes presented Mr. George with a large box of chocolates.

SOLE SURVIVOR.

Mr. George gracefully acknowledged the gift, and replied to the complimentary speeches. He referred to some of the peals in which he had rung in the past, including one at Aston in 1908 by a band all over 55, and another in 1914, in which the ringers were all over 60. He was, he said, the only survivor of those two companies. He thanked Mr. Knight for all he had done in making the arrangements for his one thousandth peal, Mr. Walker for conducting it, and the band who had assisted him to ring it.

He handed his photograph to Mr. Walker, and this was autographed by all the band, as was also another copy which Mr. George was asked to retain.

Mr. George's health was drunk with musical honours, and a very pleasant evening was completed with handbell ringing.

In the absence of the bells at St. Martin's, the members of the peal band were conveyed by cars to Warwick to ring for service on Sunday. They inspected with great interest, under the guidance of Mr. Adams, leader of the local ringers, the fine old church of St. Mary, that crowns the hill around which Warwick clusters. The Norman crypt, the glorious Beauchamp chapel, with its tombs of many of the Earls of Warwick, the war shrine, and the other features for which this church is noted, were all admired, and then the ringers mounted the lofty tower, where they enjoyed ringing on the very fine peal of ten bells, thanks to the kindness of Mr. Adams and the local men. Afterwards, a pleasant hour was spent in a charming old-world garden nearby, where they were the guests of a lady who loves the sound of the bells and who was charmed with the handbell ringing that was done.

In the evening King's Norton, with its Taylor ten, was visited, and here the happy and successful proceedings of the week-end were brought to a close.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

FAILURE OF A TONBRIDGE DISTRICT MEETING.

The autumn meeting of the Tonbridge District was held at Cowden on Saturday, September 29th, but as far as the attendance of the members of the district was concerned was a complete failure. It is remarkable, writes a correspondent, that those members who are always so anxious that meetings should be held at six-bell towers should, when these meetings are arranged, be conspicuous by their absence. One would think that if they were so interested in the six-bell towers they would at least show it in a practical way by attending the meetings. As it was, less than a dozen members, including the district secretary, and the two representatives on the Central Committee attended, and had it not been for members outside the county from East Grinstead, Limpsfield Chart, and Godstone, the meeting would have been a complete fiasco.

Service was conducted by the Rector (Rev. J. W. Harold Brown), and his wife presided at the organ, the lesson being read by the district secretary (Mr. W. Latter). The Rector gave an excellent address.

Ten was partaken of at the Crown Inn, and was followed by the business meeting, the Rector presiding.

One new non-resident life member was elected, and it was decided to hold the next by-meeting at Tonbridge on Saturday, October 20th.

The Rector, in replying to votes of thanks for the use of the bells, for conducting the service, etc., and to Mrs. Brown for presiding at the organ, expressed the great pleasure it had given both of them to meet the members. He said it was the first time that a meeting had been held at Cowden, but he hoped it would not be the last. It is quite probable that the local band will be reorganised and will rejoin the association in the new year.

MIDDLESEX ASSOCIATION'S LOSS.SUDDEN DEATH OF SOUTH-WEST DISTRICT MASTER.

We deeply regret to announce the death of Mr. Robert Holloway, of Acton, one of the best-known ringers of West Middlesex. On Wednesday, October 3rd, the deceased gentleman, apparently in the best of health, attended a meeting connected with church affairs. He left the Rectory in the best of spirits, and on his return home went upstairs to see his young son. He was taken suddenly ill, and before he could be removed to hospital was dead.

The funeral service was held at St. Mary's, the Parish Church of Acton, on Saturday. It was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. Percival Gough, was choral, and was attended by a large number of people.

Mr. Holloway had for many years identified himself with church life at St. Mary's, Acton. He held at times many of the offices connected with the parochial organisation, and especially had interested himself in the social life of the parish, of which he was the leader and chief organiser.

Some years before the war, when ringing matters at Acton were at a very low ebb, a new band was started under the tuition of Mr. J. R. Mackman. Mr. Holloway was made captain, and under his leadership the bells have been rung continually for Sunday services ever since. For some years he was Master of the South and West District of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild, and he represented that association on the Central Council. Although his tastes did not run very much towards peal ringing, he scored a good many peals in the standard methods.

The sad news of his death came to Mr. Hollier, the association secretary, on Friday. He at once set about getting a band to represent the association, and as soon as possible after the funeral service a peal of Bob Major was rung with the bells half-muffled.

Two of the ringers were from Acton, three from Christ Church, Ealing, and two from St. Mary's, Ealing, the secretary and the treasurer representing the officers of the association. Mr. Goodfellow, of Hillingdon, and other Acton ringers, also took part in a short touch before the peal.

Both in church life in Acton and in ringing matters in Acton and West Middlesex generally, Mr. Holloway leaves a gap which will be hard to fill.

 RINGING CONTEST AT CROFTON.*LIVERSEDGE WIN CLOSE COMPETITION.

The Halifax and District Association held their quarterly meeting and a six-bell contest at All Saints' Church, Crofton, near Wakefield, on September 29th. Eight teams had entered for the contest, for which 600 changes, any method, had to be rung. The draw was as follows: 1 Meltham (No. 2), 2 Shelley, 3 Holmforth, 4 Sandal, 5 Liversedge, 6 Meltham (No. 1), 7 Batley, 8 Thornhill. Batley rang Kent Treble Bob, all the rest Oxford Treble Bob. Batley and Thornhill were drawn 1st and 2nd respectively, but owing to their members not having turned up to time they had to ring 7th and 8th, and each had a penalty of 30 faults put on.

An excellent tea was provided in the schoolroom, to which about one hundred sat down. Ringing ceased about 8.30, and the meeting followed.

Mr. Rayner (Sandal) proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar (Rev. Brownrigg) and churchwardens, also to the ladies for providing the tea. He said that the ringers always received every encouragement from the Vicar, when they wanted the use of the bells, which were in very good condition.—Mr. Waterhouse (Meltham) seconded.

The Vicar, in reply, said he was pleased to welcome the Halifax and District Association to Crofton, and hoped that their own ringers would soon be entering the contests.

Mr. E. Stead also spoke in acknowledgment of the vote, and said that he thought that the meeting could not close without sending thanks to the new Sharlston Colliery Company for the kindness they had shown in allowing the judges the use of Crofton Hall.

The judges, Mr. J. Broadley (Bradford) and Mr. W. Idle (Earlsheaton) then gave their decision as follows: No. 1, rung out; No. 2, 117 faults; No. 3, 186 faults, 20 penalty, total 206; No. 4, 125 faults; No. 5, 94 faults; No. 6, 206 faults, 10 penalty, total 216; No. 7, 129 faults, 30 penalty, total 159; No. 8 rung out. No. 5, Liversedge, were therefore declared winners of the cup.

Mr. Brownrigg congratulated the conductor of Liversedge, Mr. Hodgson, on their ringing, and remarked how close the contest had been.

It may be stated that the average age of the winning team was 21 years.

A vote of thanks to judges and chairman closed a very enjoyable meeting.

WHITTLE-LE-WOODS, LANCS.—At the Church of St. John, on September 25th, 1,008 Bob Major in 41 mins.: T. Barker 1, J. Charnock 2, H. Nelson 3, Adam Blogg 4, E. Lawson 5, A. Hartley 6, F. G. Bradley 7, Alfred Blogg (longest length of Bob Major as conductor) 8. Longest length for ringers of treble and 2nd.

ANOTHER RING OF EIGHT FOR ESSEX.GREAT BARDFIELD BELLS OPENED.

The dedication of two trebles presented to the Church of the Holy Trinity, Great Bardfield, by Miss Chapman, in commemoration of her voluntary services as organist for forty years, was a long-looked-for event in the parish, and attracted a crowded congregation at 3 p.m. on Sunday last. The service commenced with the hymn, 'All people that on earth do dwell,' sung in procession by the choir headed by the cross bearer. The Lord Bishop of Chelmsford was present, robed in cope and mitre, the Rev. H. Jordan, Vicar of Finchingfield, acting as his chaplain. The service was taken by the Rev. K. E. Cartwright, Vicar. After the dedication, the bells were rung in rounds, and an excellent sermon was delivered by the Bishop. Unfortunately, Miss Chapman was indisposed, and could not attend the service.

Immediately after the service a well-struck touch of three courses of Double Norwich Court Bob was rung: E. Townsend 1, Miss E. Pettitt 2, H. E. Hammond 3, Chas. H. Howard (conductor) 4, H. C. Reason 5, A. Wiffen 6, J. Jennings 7, L. W. Wiffen 8.

The old ring of six have been rehung in the old framework, and all the bells are fitted with ball bearings. The 'go' is perfection. The hangers and founders, Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., who cast the treble to the old ring of five in 1887, have added to their laurels in carrying out this work of completing the octave. The timber for the additional framework has been provided locally by Miss Chapman's brother.

Two members who rang in the first touch on the eight bells, Messrs. H. E. Hammond and C. H. Howard, were present in 1887, when the treble to the old ring of five was dedicated, and rang in the first 720 on the bells.

The bells were rung for evensong by the local company. On Saturday, October 13th, the bells are to be formally opened, as advertised in the notice columns.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.PLEASANT MEETING AT ALREWAS.

Delightful weather, in an old-time village, with timbered houses and thatched roofs, a bright and handy ring of eight bells to play with, and a parson of especial friendliness, how could it be other-wise than pleasant? Such were the conditions at Alrewas, when the above society held its autumn meeting on a recent Saturday.

A short service was conducted by the Rev. E. Burford (Vicar), who also delivered an admirable address. Tea was served at Reville's Restaurant to a company of nearly 50, the Vicar presiding.

It was agreed to subscribe the sum of one guinea each to Pattingham and Lapley restoration schemes, the John Briant Memorial appeal to be held over until the next meeting.

A vote of thanks to the Rev. E. Burford (who, by the way, expressed a wish to become an honorary member) for his address, use of the bells, etc., and to the lady organist for her services, was carried with acclamation.

It was resolved to send an expression of sympathy to the Rev. C. H. Barker, clerical secretary and treasurer, who was unable to attend the meeting owing to illness.

The next meeting is fixed to take place at Penn (or Wombourn) in January, as the new ring of twelve at Walsall—the place that was originally arranged—will not be ready at that date.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A successful meeting of the Ely Association was held at Ickleton on Saturday last, when ringers were present from Barley, Cambridge, Long Stanton, Melbourn, Sawston, Trumpington and the local band. The Vicar (the Rev. P. H. Cooke) gave an interesting address, adding that he was pleased to say ringers were now being looked upon as churchworkers.

The business meeting was held after tea, at the Duke of Wellington, the Vicar being in the chair. One life member and five resident members were elected.

The Secretary stated that it was now fifteen months since a visit was paid to the Fen Country, and, on the proposition of Mr. E. G. Hibbins, seconded by Mr. T. R. Dennis, Fordham was chosen as the place of next meeting.

Methods rung during the day included Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob, Cambridge Surprise and Double Norwich.

SUFFOLK GUILD.

A bye-meeting of the Suffolk Guild (Lavenham District) was held at Preston on Saturday, September 29th. Owing to the unsettled state of the weather and to a ringer's wedding in the district, the gathering was a small one. During the afternoon only Plain Bob, Grandsire and Stedman Doubles were rung. The Rev. J. B. Hall (Rector) gave the ringers a welcome in the tower. Tea was provided at the Rectory by the Rev. J. B. and Mrs. Hall. Handbell ringing followed, also Bob Minor and Kent Treble Bob Minor on the tower bells.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Rector and Mrs. Hall for their hospitality and for the use of the bells.

It was proposed to hold the next meeting at Acton.

CANON G. F. COLERIDGE.

The president of the Central Council sailed in the s.s. 'Alaundra' for Tenerife on Saturday, to recuperate after his recent severe operations. Several Liverpool ringers visited him just before he left to wish him a pleasant voyage and a speedy and complete restoration to health.

A peal was commenced at St. Nicholas' Church, Liverpool, about the time Canon Coleridge sailed down the Mersey.

CLASSIFICATION OF MINOR METHODS

The preparation of the new edition of the Minor Methods Collection is involving a great deal of work, and, even now, at the eleventh hour, many suggestions are being made to the committee in the hope of effecting improvements in various directions. We hope it is not too late for something to be done in regard to the classification of the plain methods. We referred to this subject a few weeks ago, and suggested that a revision or a more ample explanation of this classification was desirable. Further examination shows that it would be better if it were entirely eliminated. In the Treble Bob and Surprise sections there are well defined lines upon which the methods are divided, the place-making (or the absence of it) at the cross sections determining the class into which the method falls. Plain methods cannot be dealt with on the same footing. Although in the first edition of the publication an effort was made to separate them into three categories, this grouping was never very convincing. There were what were called Bob methods, Imperial methods and Court methods, but neither was strictly defined. The Bob methods had, perhaps, the most precise definition of the three, but a young ringer coming to a study of the conditions would wonder what connection a 'Grandsire Bob place' has to do with, for instance, fifth's place when the treble is behind. Then we are not told exactly what 'Imperial places,' which are the governing factor of the Imperial methods, really are. The places in Kent Treble Bob are quoted as an example, but a casual example is not a definition.

And, finally, Court methods are stated to be methods 'having Court places, i.e., places other than those in (1) and (2)' (the places in the Bob and Imperial groups)—which is no definition at all. Now, when we find that the methods shown in the Court section have similar places (except for the second's or fifth's) to the Bob methods; that the Imperial section contains methods that have 'Grandsire Bob places,' and that some of the Bob methods are precisely the same as the Imperial with dodging on the front instead of place making, it will be seen that this arbitrary division of the plain methods into groups is largely futile. Those who set up this classification twenty years or so ago did more than was necessary. Plain methods are plain methods, and it needs something very much more decisive in the way of conditions, and 'definitions' which are much more 'definite' before ringers are asked to look upon the thirty possible plain Minor methods as belonging to different groups. In the collection of Plain Major methods there are no such subdivisions, and we hope the committee will dispense with them in the new edition of the Minor methods. They are unwanted and unnecessary.

DEDICATION OF CRICH BELLS.

DERBYSHIRE VILLAGE'S ENCHANTING PEAL.

Saturday last was indeed a 'red letter' day in the history of the old Derbyshire village of Crich, when the population was more than doubled by the influx of visitors to attend the dedication of the peal of eight bells.

It would be difficult to visualise a more ideal place in which to place a peal of bells than Crich Church, for it stands on the top of a hill 'neath the shadow of the famous war memorial stand, known to thousands who have visited the Peak District.

The dedication ceremony was performed by the Lord Bishop of Derby assisted by the Vicar of Crich (the Rev. R. O. Wilson), many other clergy also being present from neighbouring parishes. The quaint old village was the 'Mecca' of nearly a hundred ringers, such old stalwarts of the Exercise turning up as Messrs. John Flint, Tom Bettison, John Holman, Alf. Wright, Jos. Lord, James Paget, S. Dawson, Jesse Moss, H. Robins, Ed. Gobey, John Brothwell, James Hutchby and 'Jack' Tarlton, and many others from within a radius of fifty miles, including Messrs. John Oldham, Colin Harrison, John Fidler, David Collins and several other employees of Messrs. Taylor and Co., who have carried out the scheme of restoration.

The original proposal was to recast the old peal of six bells, with the exception of the treble, which was added in 1910 by the Loughborough Foundry. The old five bells dated back to 1616, and were of exceedingly poor tonal quality, but even then some of the parishioners were loath to part with them, and efforts were made, through the medium of the local press, to retain them from an archaeological point of view. The correspondence on this matter brought an article from a North Wingfield reader, who suggested that not only should the bells be recast and made worthy of the church, but that they should be augmented to a peal of eight. This letter caught the eye of Mrs. F. E. S. May, of Chesterfield, who, with a relative, spontaneously offered to defray the cost of the proposed two new treble bells. The scheme, which few believed would ever mature, is now an accomplished fact, and even those who objected to the recasting of the old bells must surely realise what a glorious peal they have in place of the old 'pots.'

The peal is tuned on Taylor's 'true harmonic' system, with an even balance of tone from treble to tenor, and the effect, as one stands and listens to them in the valley below, is truly enchanting.

The opening touch was rung by Messrs. W. Piggin, S. Greenhalgh, G. Ashman, W. E. Drake, A. Allwood, H. Allwood, F. Roberts and E. Ashman, after which ringing was arranged by bands in order that everyone present could have a chance of a pull.

Tea was arranged in the village schools, two sittings being necessary.

The Vicar spoke in eulogistic terms of the way in which subscriptions, both large and small, had been raised, Mrs. May being specially thanked for her generosity. He also referred to the fine way in which Messrs. Taylor and Co. had carried out their work, and the splendid spirit in which they had met them over various matters. —Mr. Oldham responded on behalf of Mrs. May, who was too modest to reply herself, and on behalf of the Loughborough firm.

That the 'go' of the bells is all that can be desired, may be judged from the fact that practically all the touches attempted were brought round, the touches ranging from the standard methods to Superlative Surprise. As the evening drew on, ringers made their way to the Black Swan Hotel, where a convivial hour was spent with handbells and friendly talk among old friends, who had come specially to hear the transformed effect which they knew could be expected from the 'treatment' the old bells would receive from the famous firm of Messrs. Taylor and Co. at Loughborough.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A successful meeting of the South-Eastern District was held at Rettendon on October 13th, when about thirty ringers were present, including three ladies. The bells were set going at 2.30. The Rector (the Rev. Norman) conducted service and gave an excellent address, which everybody appreciated. Dr. Spencer Phillips read the lesson. After the service the ringers, with the Rector and organist, assembled at the Parish Hall for the tea, the ladies of the parish having put on a nice spread. At the meeting which followed, Mr. Geo. Green (District Master) presided.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Great Baddow on November 17th. This will be the annual district meeting for the South-Eastern District. —Dr. Spencer Phillips proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Rector for his excellent address, and hoped that meeting would set the ringers going, as they had been somewhat at a standstill since the death of Mr. Jay, the Master. Dr. Phillips also thanked the organist for his services, and the ladies for providing such a nice tea. —The Rector, in responding, said he was very pleased to meet the association there, and felt sure the meeting would set his ringers off again.

A few touches 'double handed' on the handbells were rung, which the ladies appreciated very much. Then, again adjourning to the tower, touches of Cambridge, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob Minor, Grandsire and Double Court were rung. Ringers were present from Great Baddow, Chelmsford, Bromfield, Springfield, Galleywood, Maldon, Goldhanger, Prittlewell and Writtle.

A FATAL WALK.

SAD DEATH OF VETERAN KENT RINGER.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Joseph Edwards, of Westwell Leacon, who died last week at the age of 73 years. On Sunday evening, October 7th, he attended the harvest festival and the dedication of the new treble bell at Hothfield Church. After the service he stayed to ring for a while on the peal of six bells, and missed the bus home. Rather than wait for the next, he and his grandson started to walk. They had only proceeded a few hundred yards when a motor-cycle ran into the deceased from the rear. He was knocked down, and died a few hours later from a fractured skull.

Ringers from Hothfield and Charing attended the funeral on Friday last, and during the evening Charing bells were rung fully muffled with the tenor half open. On Sunday, October 14th, the bells at Hothfield and Charing were rung fully muffled for morning and evening services.

Joseph Edwards shared his ringing activities between Hothfield and Charing for about 50 years. So far as is known he rang only two full peals, both being Grandsire Doubles, rung at Charing. He will be greatly missed by all in the district.

GREAT BARDFIELD BELLS.

A RINGERS' OPENING.

About eighty ringers and friends, representing sixteen Essex parishes, were present at the formal opening of Great Bardfield bells on Saturday. The report of the dedication appeared in our last issue. Visitors began to arrive about three o'clock, and the bells were kept going in various methods until 4.30, when a short service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. K. E. Cartwright). Afterwards, all were entertained to an excellent tea provided by Miss Chapman (who gave the two new bells) in the Village Hall.

After the tea, Mr. C. H. Howard, Master of the Essex Association, thanked Miss Chapman for her kindness, and gave a short history of Bardfield bells. He referred to the dedication of the new treble added to the five in 1887, at which he was present.

The Vicar, on behalf of Miss Chapman, said how pleased he was to welcome so many ringers to Bardfield, and hoped that now they had a peal of eight to offer them they would often have the pleasure of welcoming visiting ringers.

Afterwards courses of Grandsire Triples and Caters were rung on the handbells, and several songs sung, thus making a very pleasant social evening. Some of the ringers then found their way back to the tower, and kept the bells going until nine o'clock in methods ranging from Bob Major to London Surprise. This concluded a most enjoyable afternoon and evening for all present.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

The North and East District members of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild met at Tottenham on Saturday last, and some excellent practice in many methods was obtained. Upwards of 30 ringers put in an appearance, and all had opportunities of ringing whatever methods they most fancied, from humble Grandsire Triples up to London and Bristol Surprise. It was a pleasure to see two veterans, Messrs. J. Wagnorn and H. Barnett, once again ringing together, as they had so often done in this same tower upwards of 30 years ago.

An inspection of the ancient building now used as a Vicarage was much enjoyed, a beautifully decorated ceiling, over 300 years old, being greatly admired.

A short service was held at five o'clock, conducted by the Vicar (Rev. Denton Jones).

After a very enjoyable tea, the usual business meeting took place, and two new members were elected. A vote of condolence with the widow and family of the late Robert Holloway, of Acton, was passed, coupled with an expression of sympathy with the South and West District of the association at the loss of so efficient an officer.

It was decided to send a letter of congratulation to Canon Coleridge on his recovery from his recent serious illness following upon an operation.

A vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells, and to Mr. H. W. H. Strickland and the local ringers for the excellent arrangements made, was proposed by the vice-president (Mr. W. Pickworth) and carried unanimously.

Another visit was paid to the tower and ringing indulged in until nearly nine o'clock, whilst a few members paid a visit to Hornsey.

CARDIFF'S LADY PEAL RINGER.

Miss Dolly Richards, a Cardiff lady, rang her first peal on Thursday, October 4th, as recorded in another column. She is the first lady to ring a peal of Caters for the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Guild, of which she was proposed a member before starting. She was congratulated by all the band upon the way she rang throughout the peal.

The ringer of the 2nd, Mr. Frederick Harrington, scored his first peal on ten bells 'inside,' and he, too, was congratulated upon the splendid way in which he rang, as he had the misfortune a few years ago to lose his right arm.

NEW BELLS AT HIGHCLERE, ~~=====~~ HANTS. NEW TREBLES ADDED TO MAKE AN OCTAVE.

Hampshire has gained another octave by the augmentation which has been carried out at Highclere. The original peal of six bells was cast by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., in the year 1871. These bells have now been retuned and rehung in a new steel frame, and two new trebles have been presented by the Vicar and his wife, Rev. G. and Mrs. Dunlop. The result is a beautiful octave with a tenor of 10½ cwt., of which the people of Highclere may be justly proud.

The bells were reopened and the new trebles dedicated by the Bishop of Winchester on Saturday, October 6th, in the presence of a congregation that filled the church, and included a large number of clergy.

Members of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild were present in force, and included Mr. G. Williams (Master), Mr. J. P. Fidler (representing the founders), Mr. F. W. Rogers, Mr. F. S. Bayley, Mr. Curtis, Miss N. Williams (Bath), and ringers from Bramley, Beedon, Bishopstoke, Fareham, Highclere, King's Somborne, Newbury, North Stoneham, Oakley, Portsmouth, St. Mary Bourne, Stockbridge, Woolton Hill and Winchester.

The whole of the work has been carried out by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. in their usual excellent style, and gave every satisfaction. On Mr. Fidler's recommendation, a double floor has been fitted below the bells, and this adds greatly to the comfort in the ringing chamber.

By the generosity of Rev. G. and Mrs. Dunlop, a splendid tea was enjoyed in the schoolroom, at which there were two christening cakes (one each for the new bells), bearing the following words in icing: (1) 'A very hearty welcome to Hampshire belringers, October 6th, 1928, from Highclere'; (2) 'Ring in the love of truth and right, ring in the common love of good.' These cakes were cut by Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Pullinger respectively.

Touces in various methods up to Cambridge and Superlative Surprise Major were rung following the dedication and during the evening. The bells at Woolton Hill were also available, and a party made good use of them.

MUFFLED BELLS.

At Bagland, Glam., after service on Sunday, September 30th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles (1,320 changes) was rung half-muffled as a last mark of respect to the late Mr. W. H. Furse, who was one of the old band of ringers at this tower: B. John 1, Miss L. Thomas 2, A. J. Pitman (conductor) 3, A. Thomas 4, E. Stutch 5, A. E. Pitman 6.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD. DEVIZES BRANCH.

The quarterly meeting of the above branch was held at the Parish Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Melksham, on Saturday, October 6th. Ringing commenced about 2.30 p.m., those present being welcomed by the churchwarden, Mr. E. D. Aust.

The Guild service was held in the Lady Chapel, in consequence of preparations being made for the harvest festival in the other parts of the church, the Vicar, the Rev. B. Aston, M.A., D.S.O., officiating.

Tea, followed by a short business meeting, took place in the Parish Room.

The Chairman, Mr. C. D. Hegginkbotham, congratulated the members of the branch, Mr. S. J. Hector and others, who had been on a tour, and had succeeded in ringing peals in the advanced methods. He also congratulated Mr. W. C. West, of Melksham, on his first peal of Double Norwich, and the Holt ringers on their first quarter-peal by a local band, after a course of instruction by Mr. C. J. Andrews, of Trowbridge. The Chairman also referred to the death of Mr. W. C. Mead, of Potterne, a member of the Guild, and those present stood in silence as a token of respect.

The members also heard with regret that Mr. S. Hillier, the respected Ringing Master, had met with an accident and injured his shoulder. All wished him a speedy recovery.

It was decided to hold an evening meeting at Keevil, if permission could be obtained, on October 20th. Warminster was selected for the November meeting, and Bradford-on-Avon (Holy Trinity) for December.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar and organist, and this concluded the business.

Ringers were present from Devizes (St. John's and St. Mary's), Trowbridge, Melksham, Holt, Rowde, Warminster, Bratton and Stratton.

Touces of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Double Norwich and Bob Major, also Grandsire Doubles, Plain Bob and Cambridge Minor were rung during the afternoon and evening.

'MOULTING' TENORS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—According to the 1910 Annual Report of the Stoke Archidiaconal Association, Keele tenor was then 10 cwt., so that she, too, like the Mancetter tenor, must have 'moulted,' but before instead of after 'Samiwell' called to ring her.—Your truly,

A. ALLMAN.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Messrs. Gillett and Johnston had in hand at the end of September no fewer than 54 bell contracts, representing 560 bells weighing approximately 200 tons. They included ten ringing peals of eight, nine of six, three of five, and one of three, nine carillons and six ebimes, and 16 miscellaneous contracts!

Mr. James George has received so many letters of congratulation upon his one thousandth peal that he finds it impossible to reply to them individually. He, however, desires to thank sincerely all those who have sent him such kindly messages.

There was one noteworthy peal of which mention was omitted in the review of Mr. George's career in our last issue, and that was the peal of 11,008 Double Norwich Major at Eriih on February 26th, 1927, in 6 hrs. 36 mins., in which he rang the fourth.

The ringers of St. John-the-Baptist Church, Eltham, have presented a set of carvers to Mr. F. J. Hurrell as a wedding gift.

The bells at All Saints' Parish Church, Loughborough, are now in going order again, having been overhauled by Messrs. Taylor and Co. They have been silent since the occasion when a pinnacle of the tower was blown down by a gale. The restoration to the fabric, carried out as a result of this, has cost the church £2,500.

On this day in the year 1766, a peal of 6,000 Treble Bob Royal was rung at Shoreditch by the College Youths. It was one of the first incidents in the long rivalry for the Treble Bob Royal record between the two old London societies which ended in the 12,000 at the same church in 1784.

A true peal of Oxford Treble Bob Major, consisting of 8,448 changes, being the most ever accomplished without parting the tenors, was rung at St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington, on October 21st, 1790. It is believed that this was a peal by John Reeves, which was rung in the Kent Variation, as recorded by Shipway, at Whitechapel about three years before.

The Oldham Society rang a peal of 15,120 Bob Major in 8 hrs. 46 mins. on October 24th, 1807. If the company, after this great effort, thought they had set up a new record, they would have been grievously disappointed if they learned that the same length had been rung 80 years before at West Ham, and a still longer peal (15,360) at Aston in 1793. But perhaps they never knew. There was no 'Ringing World' in those days.

The first peal of Stedman Triples was rung at St. Peter Mancroft, Norwich, on October 25th, 1731, and there was a great dispute between this and a rival Norwich company as to whether or not the peal had been properly rung.

A Wellwisher, having disposed of his volumes of 'Church Bells,' has very kindly forwarded half the proceeds (£1 15s.) for the benefit of 'Ireneus Pistor,' and this sum has been sent to Mr. A. T. Baker, who gratefully acknowledges the gift.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S GOLDEN WEDDING.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—On Monday, November 12th, the present Archbishop of Canterbury will celebrate his golden wedding. Such an event is probably without parallel in the history of this country. As is well known, only one or two of his predecessors from Augustine downwards have held the primatial office so long as Dr. Davidson, and all those before the Reformation would naturally have been unmarried.

May I suggest that ringers throughout the country, and especially in the southern province, should celebrate the occasion by ringing touches or peals on that day in his honour? By the part that he took at Croydon in March, the Archbishop has associated himself very closely with the Exercise, and it will be a graceful compliment on the part of ringers to pay him such a tribute at the close of his long and eventful tenure of office.—Yours faithfully,

F. LL. EDWARDS.

DIOCESAN GRANTS—A CONTRAST.

By a curious coincidence the Salisbury Diocesan Gazette just issued contains—in contrast with the Lincoln decision—the following paragraph under the heading, 'Board of Finance': 'It was resolved that the Church Building Committees be informed that the maximum grant towards the cost of works of equipment, such as heating apparatus, bell repairs, etc., might be increased from £5 to £10 in any one case.'

DERSINGHAM BELLS.

AN APPEAL.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I appeal to your readers for help? Our tower has a ring of six bells, which have been inspected by a leading firm of bell hangers and declared unsafe for ringing. I had begun to teach change ringing to a very promising young band. They are keeping together, using handbells, but we are very anxious to raise the £230 necessary to allow the tower bells to be used again. So many towers have bells and no ringers; we have ringers and no bells. Any gifts will be gratefully acknowledged by me, and should be addressed to the Rev. R. L. B. Oliver, Dersingham Vicarage, King's Lynn, Norfolk.—Yours, etc.,

R. L. B. OLIVER.

SIMPLIFICATION.

BY REV. H. DRAKE.

There is a great deal too much mystery made of the scientific part of change ringing, and it was for more simplification that I was asking in what I wrote on classification. 'Samiwell' and your leading article have sensed this, but Mr. Trollope can merely see criticism, and criticism to his mind means only finding fault. Indeed he says the article professes to be a criticism of a report. If he will read it again, he will see that it is not a criticism but a plea for a more scientific classification, and that it does not refer to a report so much as to a list put forward by the authors of the report.

I pointed out some obvious mistakes, and also some that were not clearly wrong, and on this Mr. Trollope comments: 'Now, is not that silly?' The list is published so that people can point out mistakes, if there are any. That is the only reason why the list was published, and more to that effect. I will leave it to your readers to whom the objectionable epithet applies.

I also pointed out two mistakes at Hereford, in the names 'Bogedone' and 'Cunecastre,' and was told that they would be corrected. And it was because of this pledge, to which all the members of the committee gave their tacit assent, that we passed their report, and ordered it to be printed. Yet Mr. Trollope says, 'If Mr. Drake objects to the name, he had his opportunity to alter it at Hereford.' There can be no doubt about this, as I was interrupted by remarks about my attempted pronunciation of the names. Moreover, after the meeting I had a private talk with Mr. Trollope, and to my surprise he said he had no idea what the words meant, but that he would find out who had given these names to methods, and get them to agree to something sensible. If these names have not, as I said at Hereford and in the article you lately published, been invented as a joke, they must be a mistake in copying.

Actually, all this was a mere postscript to the subject of my article. Mr. Trollope seems to be always thinking that I want to attack himself or the other members of the committee personally. Nothing is further from my intention. I have the very greatest respect for their abilities in the advanced stages of the art. But it has been my lot to spend my life teaching beginners, and it is on behalf of beginners that I enter my plea. We do not want the Council to be responsible for publications which will choke off beginners; rather, we want them to ensure that everything they publish will be attractive.

The first thing that attracts the attention of anyone studying a book is a list, such as this published list of names. Unless this is clearly and intelligently arranged he will throw the book down. Some may say, with not too much wisdom, 'So much the better; we only want earnest students.' Well, what is more likely to put off an earnest student than an uneasy feeling that there are probable mistakes? Therefore, to draw attention to anything which would encourage such a suspicion is anything but silly. It is the most necessary piece of prudence.

In short, this list, quite apart from anything that the Central Council could do, has to be, like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. It is probable that it may be a greater source of help, or of hindrance, to the Exercise than anything so far published. That is why some of us are so keen on its being the best possible production, which now it nearly is. All it needs is the translation of two ridiculous words into the English language, and an intelligent and attractive classification, which the members of the committee are the very men to give.

No doubt the advanced members of the Exercise will point out that I am not the only ringer who teaches beginners, and that they also have had ripe experience in this matter. Not only do I not deny this, but I happen to know how good they are at it; indeed, one of the members of this committee taught me when I was a beginner, and no one could have done it better. But it is one thing to teach when the pupil is present, and can ask for explanations, and quite another to write down your teaching on paper, when everything must be so simple that no explanations are needed, for they cannot be asked for.

If a teacher uses an involved term like 'shunt,' when nothing is 'shunned' or 'shunted,' and merely a 'move' is meant, he will probably be able to convey the simple meaning by his accompanying explanation, and his personality will prevent his pupil being worried by the confused metaphor. But when the unexplained word is read by a student, he is not likely to want to read much more of that book.

Similarly, 'hunting backwards' is a complicated idea, the more so when it appears that it is not really 'backwards,' and that the movement does not seem necessarily to be hunting. As far as I can see, the words 'odd motion,' which convey a simple and easily grasped idea, would satisfy all requirements.

The fact that I have to speak in this hesitating manner, although I have read all that has been published on the subject, shows how useless such terms are for their purpose. If we who are able to get a good deal of contemporary help are not able to understand these complicated terms, how can we expect those who come after us to do so? It would not be so difficult, if we used the word 'stunt' for 'shunt,' as it would then be clear that we were using slang (besides conveying as much meaning).

To the Editor.

Sir,—The shortcomings and anomalies of the Methods Committee's catalogue of Minor Methods, as published in your issue of September 7th, have been sufficiently exposed by the Rev. H. Drake's article; he has, however, no more than touched on the question of the awkward and ugly names, which ought to be further considered before the Collection is reprinted.

Mr. Trollope appears to labour under the delusion that names once given must remain for all time, unalterable. But to take the case of one of them, 'Bogedone,' it has just been shown by Mr. Wolstencroft that a change has already occurred in the name of the place itself; it has become Bowdon. Our nomenclature should follow suit. The name could be printed in the new Collection as 'Bowdon,' with the sub-title, 'formerly Bogedone.' The Methods Committee will say they have no authority to do this. But cannot the Standing Committee of the Council step in here, and spare the Exercise a further infiction of the old name 'Bogedone,' the Council itself not having had time to consider such detail has neither pronounced for nor against this name (and others) individually.

Might I plead for a similar treatment of such names as 'Trinity Sunday' (which could be 'Trinity'), 'Francis Genius' (which would be better simply as 'Francis'), 'Duke of Norfolk' ('Norfolk' would be preferable); such emendations should not do violence to the most conservative of feelings on this knotty problem.—Yours very truly,

G. P. BURTON.

Beccleswood, Old Catton, Norwich.

A PLEA FOR BETTER BINDING.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Now that the new book of Minor methods is on the verge of publication, may I respectfully refer to a very important item, viz., the binding of these books. I believe, hitherto, there has only been one kind, namely, 'paper.' Now, considering the enormous amount of handling a method book is subject to, I consider that this kind of binding is very inadequate for its purpose. When a ringer is on his way to either a practice, association meeting, or for a peal attempt, he naturally runs over in his mind certain methods which he thinks or knows will be rung, and sometimes he may get stuck. Then his hand instinctively flies to one of his inside jacket pockets for his method book to polish himself up a bit. I venture to say, if that book with the paper binding has had only a moderate amount of usage, it will emerge from his pocket more like a rag than a book. I know well enough that a lot of ringers learn their methods by writing them out in a pocket book, but there are others who use the figures themselves, which is far better, because by this means you get the actual work in front of you. Nothing is further from my mind than to assume a dictatorial attitude in regard to what sort of a jacket these books should wear, but may I suggest that the C.C. have a certain number of them bound in a good cloth, which would add considerably to the life of them, and I feel sure they would be found acceptable to the Exercise, who would gladly pay the extra cost entailed. The contents of this book, which is invaluable to any ringer who is worth his salt, certainly warrants a fairly decent outer cover.—Yours sincerely,

JOHN E. WHEELDON.

Milton, Staffs.

PEAL CORRECTION.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The handbell peal rung at Lavenham on Friday, October 5th, 1928, is printed in last week's 'Ringing World' showing all four ringers as ringing double-handed. This is wrong. The ringers were as follow: Stedman H. Symonds 1-2, Wilfred Jarvis 3, Arthur Symonds 4-5, Leonard Pryke 6.

Another point in favour of 'Odd Motion' is its quaint sound, which would tickle the imagination. Similar terms are 'wrong' and 'home'; when once one sees what they mean (and this is not difficult) one never forgets it. Moreover, simple ideas conveyed by words like these and by 'move' help to keep one's thoughts to the subject being studied, while the more confused or intricate ideas conveyed by such words as 'shunt' or 'hunting backwards,' tend to break up concentration and hinder serious study.

In everything technical that we write, the simpler we can make our terms the wider will be our appeal, and the more useful and permanent our work.

Note.—Since the above was written, it appears 'from information received' that Bogedon is the old name for Bowdon, Cheshire. The joke which has been played on the Exercise seems then to have come from Cheshire, and the mistake in spelling to be the addition of a puzzling final 'e.' If it is thought that our good old English 'Bowdon' is not suitable (perhaps because the silent 'w' might cause confusion in pronouncing it), or if it is wanted for another method, the following course might be adopted. In addition to omitting the redundant 'e' at the end, the 'go' in the middle could be left out, and an apostrophe substituted. Both forms could, if desired, be printed, one being in parentheses. Probably something similar could be done with Cunecastre, if we can find out its English equivalent.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

TOWERS WHERE A BELL HANGER IS WANTED.

On Saturday, October 6th, members of the Wimborne Branch of the Salisbury Guild representing Poole, Wimborne, Bournemouth, St. Peter's and St. John's, Corfe Mullen, Wyke Regis, Swanage and Ringwood, had the pleasure of ringing on rings of three, four, five, six and eight bells, on the occasion of their monthly meeting.

They met at St. Michael's, Gurrage, where hangs a good ring of six. On reaching the belfry, members thought they had reached the Black Hole of Calcutta, for the place which is used as the ringing chamber boasts of one window about six inches by ten. This is assisted in its vain effort to give enough light by two oil lamps standing on the floor, which in their turn do their best to stifle everyone present. It may be mentioned that the room above, which is really the ringing chamber, is well lighted, but the local men informed the visitors that it made too short a draught, as the sallies then went round the wheels and broke the ropes. However, some good ringing was obtained, the methods being Kent Treble Bob Minor and Grandsire Doubles. The bells go anti-clockwise, and of the tenor—well, the less said the better.

From Gurrage the procession, comprising a four-seater car, a large motor coach, and a motor-cycle, passed through delightful country to Tollard Royal, where hangs a ring of five, but the ringers left them after a short stay, as they came to the conclusion that the bells were far safer hanging than ringing, the frame and fittings being in a very bad condition. A plain course of Doubles was attempted, but never achieved, as the treble absolutely refused to leave the lead. The ropes, of the clock variety, with big, rough sallies, and huge knots in the ends, made things more complicated. The party came away from here very crestfallen, as the bells had scored a victory over them. The attention of the bell hanger is badly needed here.

On arriving at Sixpenny Handley for the next item on the programme, they discovered they had three bells to play with, so they put away their standard methods and were going to pass on, when a friend from Wyke said to the writer, 'Shall we have them up and try them, Billy?' So they started the ball rolling, and a good few members had their first pull on a ring of three bells, the plain hunting course being the method.

The next place was Pentridge, which was found after a while. Here there are four bells in good tune, if they had a tenor behind them to make a ring of five. These also could be improved somewhat if the frame and fittings were seen to. On pulling the tenor, which would take as much as one liked to give it, one had visions of a square wheel by the corners which the rope seemed to be passing over. After ringing one or two courses of Bob Singles, the party went over the downs to Cranborne, where tea and a ring of eight bells were awaiting them. Having done justice to the former, touches in the four standard methods were indulged in on the latter.

In this way about 18 towers have been visited by the Guild during the past year.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

EASTERN DIVISION.

A quarterly meeting of the Eastern Division was held at Rye on Saturday, October 6th, thirty members attending from Battle, Eastbourne (St. Saviour's and St. Mary's), Crawley, Heane, Heathfield, Lewes, St. Leonards, Hastings (All Saints'), together with members of the local band. Ringing commenced at 3 p.m., and good practice was had in different methods during the afternoon and evening. The ringers were heartily welcomed at the service by the Vicar (the Rev. J. Fowler), who gave an excellent address, which was listened to with great interest. Tea was provided at the Railway Hotel, and was presided over by the Vicar, who, owing to a prior engagement, was unfortunately obliged to leave early. Before his departure, however, he was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for the use of the bells and his address at the service.—In responding, he assured the members how pleased he had been to welcome them.

Mr. W. D. Smith occupied the chair at the business meeting which followed, at which the following new members were elected: Mr. Charles Lewis, St. Mary's, Eastbourne, and Mr. Thos. Weaver, of Christ Church, St. Leonards.

A short discussion took place with regard to venue for the next meeting, and it was decided to leave the matter in the hon. secretary's hands.

A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.

NOT A YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION PEAL.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I regret to say that the peal of Minor rung at Sutton-in-Holderness on Thursday, April 12th, 1928, can not be credited to the Yorkshire Association, as, at the time the peal was rung, the conductor, who should have brains enough to know better, but hasn't, was, according to rule, not a member, neither was he proposed for re-election before the peal was rung. Therefore, according to rule, as honest ringers, this peal cannot be a bona-fide Y.C.A. peal, neither can it be unpublished, unringed, or made into a Y.C.A. peal by electing the conductor a member after the bells had ceased.

THE CONDUCTOR.

WHEN THE LIGHT WENT OUT.

On Saturday week the local band of St. Andrew's, Farnham, Surrey, decided to give their new Rector (Canon the Rev. Edwin Maurice Girling, M.A.), who was inducted on the previous Sunday, a welcome to his new home by a peal on the bells at the Parish Church.

At 5.30 p.m. the Rector met the ringers in the belfry and was introduced to them individually. He expressed his pleasure at meeting them, and, after prayers, wished them success in their venture. At 5.45, 'Go, Bob Major,' was called, and everything went merrily until the 10th course, when 'the light grew dim.' However, no notice was taken of this, and the ringing still went on until the 12th course, when 'the light went out,' and the ringing chamber was plunged into semi-darkness. 'Keep going,' said the tenor man, and the ringers kept going, but on reaching the middle of the 13th course the 3rd and 4th men could not be seen by the other ringers, so the conductor missed the bob 'home' and let the bells run round, saying 'This is all.' Two whole pulls in rounds were rung, and 'Stand' was called, and thereupon immediately the light came on again. It was, however, too late to make another start, so enquiries were made as to the reason of the failure of the light, as it was thought some person might have been 'having a game' with the switchboard below, but it was found that the fault was at the power station, and all the users of electric light in the town had had the same experience.

The thirteen courses rung consisted of 1,456 changes, and the ringers were: H. Prior 1, F. Kemp 2, J. Read 3, C. Welis 4, H. Kemp 5, G. Upshall 6, R. Hasted (conductor) 7, T. Upshall 8. Longest length in the method by ringers of 1 and 3.

Another attempt is to be made for the peal by the same band in the near future, when it is hoped better success will attend them.

Canon Girling, before coming to Surrey some years ago, was Vicar of Leiston, made famous in ringing history by the Bailey brothers.

POTTERNE RINGER'S SUDDEN DEATH.

The death has taken place under very sad circumstances of Mr. William C. Mead, of Potterne, Wilts, a member of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild. On Saturday, September 29th, his wife had undergone an operation in Devizes Cottage Hospital, and Mr. Mead had been to see her for a short time in the evening. On the Sunday morning he was on his way to the hospital to see her again, and was taken ill in the street. He received prompt medical attention, and was taken to hospital by his doctor. He revived for a short time, but had a relapse and passed away from heart failure.

Mr. Mead was a familiar figure in the Potterne district, where he was respected by all who knew him. He took an active part in friendly society work, was a member of the Parish Council, and had been chairman of Devizes Liberal Club. He was always cheery and ever ready to do anyone a good turn. He will be much missed, not only in the village, but throughout the district, and sincere sympathy has been extended to Mrs. Mead and her five children.

The funeral took place at Potterne on Thursday, October 4th. A wreath was sent from the Devizes Branch of the Salisbury Guild, and two members from Devizes attended to represent the branch.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the St. Albans District was held at Luton on Saturday, October 6th, about 25 ringers attending. A variety of methods was rung during the afternoon and evening, including Superlative, Cambridge, Bristol and London Surprise. At the business meeting it was decided to hold the next meeting at St. Albans on Saturday, December 1st, at St. Peter's in the afternoon, and the Cathedral in the evening.

A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded for the use of the bells and to those of the local band who assisted with the arrangements of the meeting.

WINCHESTER AND PORTSMOUTH DIOCESAN GUILD.

A very successful quarterly meeting of the Alton District was held at Blackmoor on September 22nd, when about thirty members and friends attended from Blackmoor, Bramshott, Binsted, Selborne, Winchester, North Stonham, Fareham and Portsmouth, with Mr. J. H. Shepherd, of Swindon.

During the afternoon and evening, touches in various methods were rung both at Blackmoor and Selborne churches.

A splendid tea was enjoyed in the Church Room, and the business meeting which followed was presided over by Rev. F. G. Eyres, supported by Rev. B. C. Taylor (district secretary), Mr. G. Williams (Master), Mr. F. W. Rogers and others.

It was decided to hold a quarterly meeting at Ropley, on November 11th, and the annual district meeting at Alton on February 9th, 1929.

The Selborne band applied for an instructor, and Mr. Reed very kindly offered to do what he could, with the Blackmoor ringers to help him.

It was decided to invite Lord Wolmer to become a life member of the Guild.

The meeting closed with the usual votes of thanks.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION. ASHFORD DISTRICT ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Ashford District was held at Ashford on Saturday, October 6th, by kind permission of the Rev. H. W. Blackburne. Ringing commenced at 2.15, and the bells were made good use of during the afternoon. Service was conducted by the Vicar, the lesson being read by the general secretary (Rev. F. J. O. Helmore). The Vicar gave a short address, in the course of which he welcomed the association to Ashford, and said how much he valued the work of the bellringers.

Tea was partaken in the Parish Room, kindly arranged by Miss Parkes and her lady helpers, and was presided over by the Vicar.

At the business meeting, which followed, the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore presided. The Rev. A. S. Cooper was elected an hon. member, and Mr. W. Nicholls a practising member.

The district officers were all re-elected. It was proposed to hold meetings in 1929 as follows: Ruckinge and Warchorne in February, Frittenden in May, Brabourne in June, Hythe for annual meeting in September.

Votes of thanks to the chairman and the organist (Rev. A. S. Cooper) brought the meeting to a close. The methods rung during the day were Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob and Double Norwich Major.

THE MEETING AT COWDEN.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—In last week's 'Ringing World' you published an account of a meeting held at Cowden, Kent, on September 29th. I would like to point out to your correspondent that, had the usual notice been given, no doubt more members of the district would have been there, but ringers cannot be expected to cancel other engagements to attend a meeting when only a week's notice is given.—Yours truly,

A. RELFE.

Lamborhurst.

UNFAIR TO SIX-BELL MEN.

Sir,—I read with interest the account of the Kent County Association's meeting at Cowden, which your correspondent described as a complete failure.

Why, I wonder, was the meeting only allowed one clear week's notice? Other districts allow their members often a month's notice. Why cannot the Tonbridge District do so also? Perhaps they are studying economy.

Moreover, I know there were several men who did not want this meeting to be held at Cowden, and showed themselves up by trying to put it off. This, I think, is very unfair to the six-bell men in this district, as we do not get much attention at the best of times.—Yours truly,

MINORITE.

THE PEAL AT COMPTON GIFFORD.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—In reply to the letters of Mr. T. Laver and Mr. E. W. Marsh, I note the former, in his letter, wishes me to state who sent the peal to you—falsely-worded report, as he styles it. If it had not been for the hard thinking of one of the members of the South-West Committee it would have been a non-association peal. As regards his other point, he says the regulation has been in force since May 12th, 1913. Why, then, is it not published in the Guild Report of Rules? What is the good of having rules if they are omitted, which seems to be the case by his letter? It seems to me they make rules to suit themselves. Why is it the figures are wanted for this peal, when more have been rung earlier in the year and were not asked for?

I note by Mr. E. W. Marsh's remark, that this rule is well known to my father. I may state it is not. It has got to be published in the Guild Rules before anybody can know there is a rule to that effect. As to saying that my father was requested by letter for an answer, if Mr. Marsh thinks for a moment he will know why his letters were not answered. The peal at Stonchouse was quite a different composition to Burton's (116). I myself have compared the two, and the course-ends are quite different. Perhaps Mr. Laver will compare J. R. Pritchard's (115) and Tucker's. If he had anything to say about the composition, why did he not write to my father at the time, instead of splashing pen and ink now, after nearly two years? I might state the peal belongs to my father, and he is claiming it, having rung the composition years ago.—Yours faithfully,

JAMES E. LILLEY.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL ASSOCIATION.

The Chippenham Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Association held a quarterly meeting at St. Paul's, Chippenham, on Saturday. The meeting was fairly well attended, ringers coming from Bath, Burnham-on-Sea, Devizes, Melksham, and Swindon, with a good number from St. Andrew's and St. Paul's, Chippenham. Some very useful touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob, Superlative, Double Norwich Court Bob Major, and a plain course of Cambridge Surprise Major, were rung.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—With reference to my letter which appeared in your column recently, I beg to withdraw my remarks, having now learned that I was quite mistaken. I would tender my sincere apologies to you and to your readers for having wasted valuable space, and particularly to Mr. J. W. Parker for any annoyance he may have felt through my calling into question a statement made by him.

I would add that it was by the detailed information kindly sent to me by Messrs. C. Severn and J. W. Wheeldon that I was shown my mistake, and that I am sincerely grateful to them both.—Yours faithfully,

LADIES' GUILD, NORTHERN DISTRICT.

A quarterly meeting of the Northern District of the Ladies' Guild was held at Handsworth, Sheffield, on Saturday, Oct. 6th, a good number attending. With the valuable help of the gentlemen present, some very good ringing was enjoyed, methods ranging from Cambridge Surprise to Plain Bob. Tea was served in the Parish Room, after which the business meeting followed, the Vicar's wife (Mrs. Baker) very kindly presiding. Three new members were elected, and it was proposed to hold the next meeting at Worksop early in January, when it is hoped all members will do their utmost to attend.

Votes of thanks were passed to Mrs. Baker for taking the chair at a moment's notice, and also to those responsible for providing such an excellent tea.

Further ringing was indulged in during the evening, and the day closed on a very successful meeting.

Wilkins, several more six-scores of Stedman and Grandsire Doubles were rung. The success of this pleasant outing is due to Mr. F. Edwards, who kindly conveyed the Cirencester ringers in his car.

A REGISTER OF COMPOSITIONS.

Sooner or later the Central Council will have to turn its attention to compiling a register of compositions, the need for which has long been apparent and is constantly being emphasised. Its uses would be many. Not only would it preserve for all time all original peals, but it would ensure for the men who have gone, as well as the composers of to-day and those to come, the recognition of their claims to the work which is rightly theirs. As things stand at present, a composer working perfectly independently and with the most honest intentions is often unable to ascertain whether a peal which he has constructed has been produced before; while another, less scrupulous, can give out figures as his own composition the originality of which it is very difficult to check. A register, such as we have more than once suggested, would also settle definitely disputed claims to authorship, and often save much friction and heartburning. Moreover, questions such as that raised in the present dispute in Devon could be determined by reference to the register, because when once established there is no reason why registration of every composition should not be made compulsory before its claim can be admitted. With a properly devised system of filing it would be possible to check every new claim to an original peal.

We do not underrate the task that would be involved in setting up this register; it would mean an immense labour, but it ought to be tackled, even if the Council had to pay something for doing the work. Up to now, we believe, everything done in the name of the Council has been of a purely honorary nature, and the Council has been fortunate in finding men with the leisure and ability to undertake these tasks. If there are to be found men able and willing voluntarily to compile this register of compositions well and good, but if it can only be done by paid service our view still is that it should be undertaken. The longer it is delayed, the more difficult will be the task and the greater the danger of some of the old compositions being lost and of old composers losing that to which they are justly entitled.

The nucleus of this register already exists in the 'Collection of Peals,' compiled by the Central Council and large sections of which have been published; in the 'Collection of Plain Major Methods,' and in the Treble Bob peals, which is now in the Council's Library in bound typewritten form. The existing arrangement of the compositions is not, however, such as would lend itself to ready search for comparative purposes; and the figures need to be filed on some carefully thought out plan which will facilitate easy reference. When this has been done, conductors throughout the country who have in their possession hitherto unpublished compositions can be asked to send in the figures, and composers can be invited to submit any peals which they claim to be original. When all these have been carefully checked and filed, a really valuable register would be in existence and no one should afterwards be allowed to claim any composition as new until it has stood the test of an examination against this register.

WINCHESTER AND PORTSMOUTH DIOCESAN GUILD.

A quarterly meeting of the Southampton District was held at North Stoneham on Saturday, October 13th. The bells were made good use of during the afternoon and evening, the Guild form of service being conducted by the Rector of Dibden (Rev. G. Triton), who also gave a short address. Mr. D. C. Williams, F.R.C.O., presided at the organ.

Tea and a short business meeting were held at the Parish Hall, the Rector of Dibden being in the chair, supported by the Rector of North Stoneham (Rev. T. Salmon), Rev. T. Jones, curate, and Mr. G. Williams (vice-president), the Rev. Thomas (curate of Romsey).—Miss D. Snell, Miss R. Cecil Williams, and Mr. F. Pitman (St. Mary's, Southampton), were elected members of the Guild.—It was decided to hold a combined practice at Netley on Saturday, November 3rd.

The towers represented were Dibden, Eling, Curdridge, Fareham, Hursley, Portsea, Netley, King's Somborne, Romsey, Shedfield and North Stoneham.

A course of Grandsire Caters was rung on handbells, Mrs. G. Williams taking part as 1-2, and was followed by a course of Stedman Triples.

Thanks were passed to the Rector of North Stoneham for the use of the bells, and the welcome he gave to the members.

Further ringing took place on the tower bells, which included rounds, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob, Double Norwich and London Surprise Major.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

CANTERBURY DISTRICT.

The autumn meeting of the Canterbury District was held at Selling on Saturday last. In spite of the inclement weather twenty members were present from Canterbury, Wingham, Littlebourne, Faversham, Ospringe, Wickham and Boughton. A service was conducted by the Vicar of Selling (the Rev. S. Williams), who later presided over the tea, which was held at the White Lion Inn.

After a delightfully humorous speech, in which he welcomed the ringers to Selling, the Vicar explained that he would be unable to take the chair at the meeting owing to another pressing engagement. He left the meeting amid a round of hearty applause.

Mr. F. Brett was voted to the chair, and it was decided to hold two further bye-meetings, one at Goodnestone (five bells), to be held in November, and the other at Teynham, to be held in January.

Half fares were paid to members who attended this meeting.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.SOUTH AND WEST DISTRICT ACTIVITY.

At the meeting of the South and West District of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild, held at St. Peter's, Staines, by permission of the Rev. W. H. Flecker, D.L. (Vicar), over fifty attended, and a most enjoyable time was spent. Ringing before service as usual, the Vicar conducted the service, after which he and Mrs. Flecker entertained the company to tea in the Church Hall, served by Miss Riggs, one of the local band.

The Vicar, on behalf of himself and his wife, welcomed the association to St. Peter's, this being their first opportunity of meeting such a large gathering of ringers. He hoped they would again have the pleasure of welcoming the association in the near future.—A hearty vote of thanks was accorded them for their kind hospitality, which was greatly appreciated, to the hostess, Mr. Walmsley, and Mr. Parker, and all those who so kindly assisted.

The sum of £1 11s. 6d. was sent to St. Mary's, Staines, Bell Fund as the result of an appeal by the hon. secretary.

It was unanimously agreed to hold a joint meeting with the East Berks and South Bucks Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild at St. John's, Hillingdon, in April, 1929, and at Beaconsfield in the summer.

At Heston on Saturday last, by permission of the Rev. George Craggs, another enjoyable meeting was held. Ringing started shortly after 2 p.m., and methods were rung to suit all comers from rounds to Cambridge Surprise. Here again the company numbered nearly fifty, and everyone had the satisfaction of having a happy time.

The Vicar was voted to the chair for the tea and the business meeting that followed. His election proved a great success. He was supported by Mrs. Craggs, the vice-president (Mr. C. S. Bird), the hon. treasurer (Mr. J. A. Trollope), the hon. secretary (Mr. W. R. Hollier), Messrs. F. Goodfellow, J. R. Mackman, and Tom Beadle. Others present included Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Fardon, Messrs. J. H. Hunnisett, C. Edwards, F. Corke, H. C. Chandler, E. Gladman and other well-known members.

Much sympathy was expressed to Mrs. R. Holloway and family in their sad bereavement, and sympathetic mention was made of the loss sustained by the district by the sudden death of the late Ringing Master.—The company rose and remained for a short time in silence with bowed heads as a tribute of respect.

The hon. secretary, having previously sent a letter of condolence on behalf of the association to the widow and family, his action was confirmed.

Mr. F. Goodfellow was unanimously elected Ringing Master (pro tem.) for the remainder of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Belcher and family, assisted by Mr. A. Fulwell, rendered some fine selections on handbells, and were heartily applauded.

The company was reminded of the joint meeting with the Guildford Diocesan Guild at Egham on Saturday, November 3rd, with ringing at St. Peter's, Staines, in the evening. The secretary expressed the hope of meeting as many as were there that evening, to make it a success.

St. Andrew's, Hillingdon, was selected for the December meeting, probably on the 1st. Mr. Perceval Noston, an old member, who met with an accident in June, received a cordial welcome on again being able to attend a meeting.

The usual vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar and Mrs. Craggs, who remained to the close, and who both responded. They expressed the hope that the association would pay them a visit in the summer, so that they could have tea in the gardens.—The secretary, on behalf of the district, accepted the kind invitation.

Thanks were accorded to the hostess, Mrs. Packman, and assistants, to Mr. C. S. Bird, and especially to Mr. W. Lewis, who so kindly undertook the arrangements of the meeting, to Mr. and Mrs. Belcher and family, and Mr. A. Fulwell, whose presence was greatly appreciated, also to the handbell ringers, who rang several touches of Grandsire Caters and several other methods.

MAIDENHEAD RINGERS' WEDDING.

On Saturday, October 20th, at All Saints' Church, Boyne Hill, a very pretty wedding took place, when Mr. Eric George Hobbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hobbs (and grandson of the late Mr. George Hobbs, a well-known Berkshire farmer), was married to Miss Edith Clara Martin, daughter of Mr. T. Martin (builder), and niece of the well-known ringers, Messrs. Arthur and George Martin. To give the happy couple a good send-off, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples was rung by A. Martin 1, E. Eldridge 2, W. E. Taylor 3, C. Smith 4, J. Eldridge 5, John T. Fowler (first quarter in the method) 6, G. Gilbert (conductor) 7, H. Baldwin 8.

FOUR RINGING BROTHERS.

At Higham-on-the-Hill, Leicestershire, on Wednesday, October 17th, for practice, 720 Bob Minor: R. D. Rowley (first 720) 1, L. Woodburn 2, W. Martin 3, F. H. Rowley 4, H. V. Rowley (first 720 as conductor) 5, A. E. Rowley 6. The ringers of 1st, 4th, 5th and 6th are brothers.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Northern Division of the Essex Association was held at Halstead on October 20th, when about twenty ringers were present, representing eleven parishes. The bells were set going at three o'clock, touches in various methods ranging from Bob Major to Cambridge Surprise being rung. The Vicar (the Rev. T. H. Curling) conducted the service, and gave an excellent address. Mr. C. H. Howard (Master of the Association) read the lesson. Tea was afterwards partaken of in St. Andrew's Hall, and at the meeting which followed, Mr. A. A. Saunders (District Master) presided.

Ten new members, all of Bocking, were elected as probationers, and it was decided to hold the next meeting, which will be the annual district meeting, at Sible Hedingham on November 24th.

Mr. C. H. Howard thanked the Vicar for the use of the bells and his excellent address, and hoped that this meeting would help to create more enthusiasm on the part of the Halstead ringers.—The Vicar suitably replied.

Handbells were then produced, and several touches were rung. During the evening most of the visitors proceeded to Colne Engaine. Here the peal of six, which have just been rehung by Messrs. Bowell, of Ipswich, and have a splendid 'go,' were kept going in various methods until 9 p.m.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

The quarterly meeting of the Northern District was held at Royston on Saturday, September 29th, and was well attended. Members were present from Baldock, Barley, Barkway, Bishop's Stortford, Fulbourn, Letchworth, Melbourn, Offley, Royston and Sawton. The bells were raised about 3.15 p.m. and kept going in most of the standard methods until five o'clock, when a short and interesting service was conducted by the Rev. F. F. Grieg (Vicar of Royston), who showed great interest in the ringers' visit, and took the chair at the business meeting which followed tea.

Votes of thanks were moved to the Vicar for the use of the bells and conducting the service, and to Mr. R. G. King for making preparations in the tower, etc.

An interesting feature of the ringing was the performance of Master Howard, of Barley, aged 10½ years, who succeeded in taking the treble through two courses of Grandsire Triples.

Hitchin was chosen for the next meeting, and all are looking forward to meeting Hitchin's ringing Vicar.

MEMORIAL TO THE REV. C. E. MATTHEWS.

LONDON COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT'S MEETING AT BEDDINGTON.

A successful meeting of the Southern District was held on Saturday, October 13th, at Beddington. It was a typical autumn afternoon, and, there being an abundance of trees in the neighbourhood, the scene around, with the varying tints of the foliage, backed by the mellow red brick of the orphanage and the grey stone and red tiles of the old church, made a very pleasing picture. Ringing commenced at three o'clock, and up to service time the bells were kept going in various methods, including Cambridge Surprise Royal. By five o'clock a good company had assembled, and descended to the church below, where a short service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. E. V. Bond), who gave an address. The hymns were well rendered, and were accompanied on the small organ by Mr. J. Charman, whose family is not unknown in the Warnham neighbourhood.

Tea had been arranged at the Harvest Home, at which 34 members and friends sat down under the District Master (Mr. H. Mance). Business afterwards did not take very long, and was mostly of a routine nature. The notification was made of the death of a respected member (Mr. Robert Holloway, of Acton), the company standing in silent sympathy. The secretary was instructed to write a letter of condolence to the deceased's family.

A letter was also ordered to be written to Mr. James George, congratulating him upon having rung 1,000 peals.

During the meeting a vote of thanks was passed to the Rector for the use of the bells and for conducting the service, to Mr. C. H. Kippin for making all arrangements for the comfort and entertainment of the visitors, also to Mr. J. Charman for his organ accompaniment.

Further ringing was then indulged in, finishing with a course of Yorkshire Surprise, by 'the poshest band ever.' A return was made to the Harvest Home, where the remainder of the evening was given over to harmony and fellowship. Handbells were rung to Stedman Caters, Cambridge Major and Grandsire Cinques by the experts. Mr. C. H. Kippin obliged with selections from the classics on his parlour carillon, and was vociferously applauded by an appreciative audience. Songs were rendered by Mrs. Frank Darby, Messrs. W. Smith and J. Herbert, and pianoforte selections by Mr. J. Charman. Mr. Frank Darby very ably accompanied the vocal items. There comes an end to every 'do,' so home the visitors had to go round the corner to the station, 'some corner,' which took half an hour to get round apparently, but all were satisfied that it had been a great meeting.

NEW BELLS AT HIGHER WALTON.

ANOTHER OCTAVE IN LANCASHIRE.

The Preston Branch of the Lancashire Association has had another welcome addition to its eight-bell towers by the increase to a full octave of the peal of six at All Saints' Church, Higher Walton. The old six were cast in 1872. These have been retuned and rehung, with two new trebles, by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. The new bells have been presented in memory of F. A., A. A., and V. H. Gatty, directors of Bannister Hall Works, Higher Walton.

The bells were dedicated on October 4th by the Lord Bishop of Blackburn, and were formally opened prior to the morning services on October 14th by the local ringers. In the afternoon a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung by ringers from Blackburn, Chorley, Hoghton, and Higher Walton, while ringers from Preston rang them after evening service. Mr. J. P. Fidler, representing the bell founders, was also present during the day.

All present were well pleased with the tone and 'go' of the bells; in fact, the local men could hardly believe that bells could be made to go so easily. The whole of the work has been done in the efficient manner generally associated with the Loughborough firm.

A READER WONDERS!

To the Editor.

Sir,—One wonders what Mr. Drake is driving at in his article, 'Simplification.' He says, 'There is a great deal too much mystery made of the scientific part of change ringing, and it was for more simplification that I was asking, etc.' In the same paragraph he says, '... but a plea for more scientific classification, etc.' Does he wish to add to that mystery of which he says there is too much?

One also wonders if Guilds have the rule that one should be elected a member before ringing a peal for any association. Surely that makes small odds as long as the subscription is paid. How many peal ringers are there who are in arrears with their subscriptions, and really out of an association, who get peals under the heading of their association? Doubtless there are many.

Another point one hears is that if a ringer who is a member of an association for five years moves out of the county or district of the association he becomes by virtue of his having paid five yearly subscriptions a life member of the association, but if, after a period of time, he returns and resides in the county or district of that association he again becomes an ordinary ringing member and pays his subscription again every year. Is that correct?—Yours truly,

GRANVILLE C. BIXBY.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The article, 'Great carillons at Loughborough,' which appeared in our issue dated June 29th, has now been reproduced in brochure form, and Messrs. John Taylor and Co., Loughborough, will be pleased to send a copy, post free, to anyone who will send their name and address to them.

We are very pleased to be able to say Miss H. F. Mills, hon. secretary of the Southern District of the Ladies' Guild, who met with a serious motor accident in Ireland, is now out of hospital and staying with her brother in Londonderry. She is hoping to be able to undertake the journey to her home in London by December. She would like to acknowledge the many letters received, but they have been too numerous, and so wishes to thank all for their letters and kind enquiries.

A quarterly meeting of the Shropshire Association will be held tomorrow at Oswestry. Earlier intimation was not given in our columns because the notice miscarried.

The first peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal was rung at All Saints', Wakefield, on October 26th, 1822. It was rung by nine Wakefield ringers, with Joseph Tebbs, of Leeds, and is recorded as being 'the first peal ever attempted in the above difficult method by any set of men in the kingdom, which will be a standing laurel for the society for ages to come.'

The composer and conductor was William Woodhead, and the figures of the composition are preserved, which makes the record all the more valuable.

Thomas Tolladay conducted a peal of 7,325 Grandsire Cinques at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields on December 26th, 1837.

This was two days before the celebrated composer, Henry Dains, was born at Tibenham, Norfolk.

Henry Hubbard, a leading authority on ringing in his day, rang his first peal on October 28th, 1827. It was a peal of 6,680 Oxford Treble Bob Major, at Alburgh, conducted by Samuel Thurston, of Norwich fame.

The first double-handed handbell peal was rung at Sheffield on October 30th, 1811—a peal of Oxford Treble Bob Major.

Fifty years ago next Thursday, namely, on November 1st, 1878, the noble ring of twelve bells at St. Paul's Cathedral was opened. In our next issue, Mr. F. E. Dawe, who was present and who knew the ringers, will retell the story.

The first peal of Stedman Triples by a local band at Kidderminster was rung on October 30th, 1889. One of the band, Mr. Tom Saller, still rings for the Sunday services.

CHEW MAGNA BELLS AUGMENTED.

TWO TREBLES ADDED TO A SOMERSET RING.

The bells of Chew Magna, Somerset, have been augmented from six to eight, and last Sunday were heard for the first time after a lapse of five years. The old bells, which had a tenor of 23½ cwt., were cast by Bilbie, of Chew Stoke, and the octave has been made possible by the generosity of General Ommamney, patron of the living, whose father was Vicar for 37 years. A restoration of the tower has also been necessary, and about a thousand pounds have been spent altogether, while more is required to complete the scheme. Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of the Whitechapel Foundry, have carried out the contract for the new bells, and have very successfully completed the work.

The dedication took place on Sunday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by the Bishop of Bath and Wells. The Rev. Keer Thompson, R.D., acted as chaplain to the Bishop, and other clergy present were the Rev. C. Browne, Vicar; the Rev. C. Grant Lone, curate assistant; the Rev. H. Treen, of Bishop Sutton and Stowey; and the Rev. F. Tracey. The churchwardens, Mr. J. Thatcher and Mr. H. J. Babb (who has been closely connected with the work) took part in the ceremony, and General and Mrs. Ommamney and other members of the family attended the service.

In the course of his address the Bishop spoke of the value of corporate worship and of the part bells played as remembrancers in individual, church and national life.

The opening touch was rung by Messrs. G. Yeo and P. Yeo (Long Ashton), T. Wyatt (Clapton), H. Knight (Clifton), J. Nesbitt and R. Williams (Portishead), and J. Bishop and H. Windsor (Wrexall). Others present included Mr. J. T. Dyke, secretary of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association; Mr. W. A. Cave and Mr. U. W. Braven (Bristol); and Mr. H. Gregory, Clifton Parish Church. Among the bands represented were Winford, Chew Stoke, Ubley, and Compton Dando.

WAKEFIELD CATHEDRAL RINGERS & THEIR BISHOP.

Coincident with the Bishop of Wakefield performing his last public act at Lupset the bellringers of the Cathedral rang a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes): E. Ward 1, A. Scott 2, W. Penker 3, W. Preston 4, G. Hinsley 5, J. Moorhouse (conductor) 6, F. Cockell 7, W. Hammond 8.

Throughout his 31 years as head of the diocese the Bishop has always been keenly interested in the achievements and accomplishments of church bellringers. The members of the band expressed the wish that the Bishop would speedily recover from his indisposition and lead a most happy and richly-earned retirement.

THE COLLECTION OF MINOR METHODS.

THE METHODS COMMITTEE'S DECISION.

MR. TROLLOPE EXPLAINS WHY NO FURTHER ALTERATIONS WILL BE MADE.

The committee have decided to deal with the Plain Minor methods in the same way as the Plain eight-bell methods are dealt with in the Major Collection. That is to say, they will be given and numbered as one group, the sub-titles 'Bob' and 'Court' being added to the names where appropriate. Imperial as a sub-title has proved to be of no value, and will be dropped. A full explanation of the meaning of these terms will be given.

Mr. Burton wants us to change some of the names. He suggests that we have no power to do so, but might call in the Standing Committee of the Council. I do not think the Standing Committee have anything to do with the matter. They have large and undefined powers to act for the Council in any emergency, but this, surely, is not included. The whole question was before the Council at Hereford, and the Council could have acted for itself if it had thought necessary. We have ample powers to alter these names if we think it needful, but we do not intend to do so. I will explain why.

There are two ways in which these six-bell methods could have been named. We could have begun at the beginning and named the lot according to a general plan. That is what I believe Mr. Burton wants. We had the opportunity when we first issued the book, but we decided not to do so but to adopt the other plan, which was to leave the naming to the six-bell ringers themselves. As a result the great majority were named by the bands which first rang them. There is a lot to be said for both plans. We adopted one for the Minor methods and the other for the Major methods. I am not prepared to maintain that either is absolutely the best, but I do think that on the whole we adopted the best plan for each case. The result was that the names of the Minor methods reflect the opinions and tastes of a great many different people in many different places and of many times. There is much diversity and some inequality. But on the whole the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. Let me insist that these names are not the names of any committee; they are the names given by the Exercise, or, at any rate, by that part of the Exercise which matters—the six-bell ringers. When we asked for and got powers of revision, it was not to alter names in accordance with our ideas, but for editorial purposes. If any name was obviously unsuitable we should not have hesitated to replace it. We did so in the case of 'Immanuel,' which was condemned by the general feeling of the Council, although no formal vote was passed.

'Bogedone' was the name given to the method by the band which rang it. Was there any reason why we should overrule them and give it another? What objection is there to the name? I know of one only. It is not easy to see how to pronounce it from the spelling. That is an objection; but it is shared by other names in the list—Belvoir, for instance, and Alnwick, and even Norwich. Mr. Burton says it is awkward and ugly, but that is, apparently, because he did not know how it is pronounced. I don't blame him, for I was in the same case myself, but it does take away the point of his objection.

But we are told again that I gave a pledge at Hereford that these names should be changed. I can only repeat that I have no recollection of anything of the sort. I have asked my colleagues, and they agree with me that nothing like it was said. The thing ought to be settled easily. There were more than fifty people present, including a reporter. I should be very much interested if anybody can say definitely that he heard me give any pledge about changing these names or even express any opinion about them. I can only suggest that Mr. Drake's memory has played him a trick, and I am confirmed in this by several curious things he says in his article. For instance he says that it was 'because of this pledge that we (presumably the Council) passed the report and ordered it to be printed.' There was no report presented, no report passed and nothing ordered to be printed. Mr. Drake did keep talking about a report, and I imagine he thought, and still thinks, that we are going in some way or other to print the list of names published in this paper a short time ago. I suppose that is why he keeps criticising the way it was arranged, and so on. But, of course, that list was published for a particular reason, and it has served its ends. I need not refer to what Mr. Drake says about the private conversation he had with me, beyond denying emphatically that I ever thought any of the names given by the various six-bell ringers were not 'sensible'; or that I had any intention of asking anyone to change Bogedone or Cuncastre; or that I gave him any sort of pledge. To have done so would not have been fair either to my colleagues, or to the Council, or to myself. I respect Mr. Drake's energy in teaching beginners, but what it has got to do with all this I fail to see. He drags in again my use of the term 'shunt.' That is a technical word which is only used in the more abstruse part of the science of method construction. What on earth has that, or the proper pronunciation of Bogedone or Cuncastre, or a list of names published for the temporary convenience of members of the Central Council, got to do with teaching beginners?

J. ARMIGER TROLLOPE.

THE POSITION OF THE STANDING COMMITTEE.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Apropos of Mr. Burton's letter in your last issue on the subject of names of Minor methods, I should be glad if you would kindly allow me to say a word—not about the names in question, which I leave to others who know more about them, but as to a remark which he makes to the effect that certain points in the question might be remitted to the Standing Committee. It is not—at least it certainly was not when I was hon. sec. of the Central Council—any part of the duty of the Standing Committee to express any official opinion, still less to overhaul or amend in any way the findings of the other committees. Its duties lie in another direction, and are related to the work of the Council as a whole, and not to any of its committees. Personally, I should be sorry to see its status altered, and should extremely regret if it were ever brought into the whirl of controversy. And, certainly, I should strongly dislike its interference in or alteration of any work of another committee on which I had been engaged.

CHARLES D. P. DAVIES.

KENT ASSOCIATION'S SIX-BELL MEETINGS.

TONBRIDGE DISTRICT SECRETARY REPLIES TO CRITICS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—With reference to Mr. Relfe's letter in last week's 'Ringing World,' I should like to state that it was impossible for various reasons to give a longer notice, but if it was sufficient for members outside the county, it ought to have been so for members of the district, if they intended to attend. The report was applicable not only to this meeting but to other six-bell tower meetings that have been held, when longer notice has been given with the same results.

With regard to the letter from your correspondent signed 'Minorite,' although I do not care to reply to correspondents who make statements but have not the courage to sign their name, I feel I must refute those statements. I have never heard a word from anyone against the meeting being held at Cowden. If I had it would not have made any difference. I should have arranged the meeting in accordance with the decision of the members at the annual district meeting held at Sevenoaks last February.

His statement that six-bell members do not get much attention in the district is absolutely false. Six-bell members are as much appreciated as any others, but if they deliberately absent themselves from meetings, whether held at six or eight-bell towers, what more can be done?

I should like to add that I am all in favour of one meeting each year being held at a six-bell tower, although most of those that have been held have been very disappointing in the numbers attending.—Yours faithfully,

W. LATTER,

Hon. District Secretary.

NAVENBY CHURCH BELLS.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN BOARD'S DISCLAIMER.

Wide publicity was recently given through the Press to a statement that the Lincoln Diocesan Board of Finance had refused a grant towards the restoration of Navenby Church bells on the ground that church bells were a 'luxury.' We commented in a leading article upon this attitude, but it now appears that the report circulated in the press, and which originated with 'The Lincolnshire Echo,' was inaccurate, and the following disclaimer has been sent by the Board to 'The Lincolnshire Echo,' under date of October 19th:—

Dear Sir,—On the 19th ultimo, in an article headed 'Are church bells a luxury?' and again in your issue of last night, you commented on a reply supposed to have been given by the Diocesan Board of Finance to an application for a grant from the Navenby Parochial Church Council towards the restoration of the bells of Navenby Church. I have to inform you that no such application has been made to the Diocesan Board of Finance, and, therefore, no such reply referred to has been given. Further, had the Diocesan Board had occasion to answer such an application, the term 'luxury' would certainly not have been used with reference to church bells.

What actually happened was that in 1925 the Diocesan Building Committee replied as follows to an application from Navenby:—

'This committee does not make grants towards repair of bells, but it would consider a grant towards repair of your tower, if the fabric needs it. I enclose a form which should be returned to me by October 20th; it needs signing by your Vicar and also your Rural Dean.'

This letter was misconstrued by the Navenby Council, and the form in question has not been returned to the Committee. The incumbent and the officials of the Council have now expressed their regret that the Diocesan Board should have been accused unjustly in the matter.

As your article has been given wide publicity in the 'Times,' 'Observer,' and other papers, I trust you will kindly publish this disclaimer.—Yours faithfully,

(Signed) A. G. CROLL,

Organising Secretary.

A SUSSEX PIONEER OF CHANGE RINGING.

THE 'STRUGGLES' OF 50 YEARS AGO.

Recently we recorded the death of an old Sussex ringer, Mr. James Searle, who died at Eastbourne, and was buried at Steyning, where over half a century ago he began his ringing career. Mr. Charles Tyler, of Henfield, one of the oldest surviving members of the Sussex County Association, contributes the following notes on the late Mr. Searle's connection with ringing, which was begun at a time when change ringing was little practised in the county:—

James Searle was one of the band of ringers at Steyning, Sussex, who a little over fifty years ago were anxious to bring about a reform in the belfry, and also to get to know something of change ringing.

It was about that time that Mr. George Gatland came to Steyning, from Chailley, where he had learnt a little ringing, and proved to be a great help in the matter of reform. Some of the parishioners also became interested, so much so that Mr. Henry Burstow, of Horsham, was engaged to give as much information and instruction as it was possible for him to give, and it was not long before the company could manage Grandsire Doubles, and also Mr. Burstow's favourite method, Oxford Bob.

Jim Searle's employment as joinery machinist then made it necessary for him to move to Brighton, where he soon got busy at S. Nicholas' Church, and with Mr. John Jay, who had come from Streatham, with a little knowledge of conducting touches of Grandsire Triples, they got things going. The present Dean of Chichester, who was then Vicar of S. Nicholas', to encourage the band to ring the bells for the Sunday morning service, used to make them a present of ten guineas at Christmas.

Jim soon began to want an opportunity to ring a peal, but could not get enough members to see the method of change ringing for this purpose, so he ventured to invite a little help from outside. Several well-known ringers used to visit Brighton. I well remember Messrs. H. Haley, J. Nash, J. Pettit, G. Shade, with his sons Harry and 'Ike' (who always seemed to have got four handbells each about them, and to hear their tune playing was a treat), Murray Hayes, and others.

I was just 'fixed up' in Brighton then, and Jim sort of 'fathered' me a bit, and helped me further into the art. He was very anxious to get me elected a member of S. Nicholas' tower (to become a member you could only be elected at certain meetings, and you were expected to be able to ring the treble to a 500, or a working bell to a plain course). So, with three of the visitors to help, they got me through my first 500 on the treble on February 1st, 1881, but I did not feel very confident about it. I have an idea I should have made a mess of it if Mr. Haley, who rang the 2nd, hadn't prompted me a bit. However, they considered it good enough for me to be elected a member that night.

Jim now turned his attention to a peal attempt, and got in touch with Mr. Shade, and this enabled him and two others to ring their first peal at Hurstpierpoint on July 23rd, 1881, as a Waterloo Society (London) peal. He then set to work to help a few of us to gain this peal-ringing instinct, and on the peal of eight being placed in St. Peter's Church, and a band of ringers formed, several of them used to come to S. Nicholas' for practice, but only Mr. George Aitree, who afterwards founded the Sussex County Association, seemed to be able to see the method of change ringing. I am afraid we used to try Jim's patience sometimes, but he always looked upon our failings in a kindly way, and never seemed to despair. Mr. Jay could call the 'bobs,' and knew Holt's 10-part from A to Z, but did not seem able to give the necessary information to help others to do so, and it seemed to me that it was owing to Jim's efforts that we made the progress we did.

A picked band of College Youths had been engaged for the ringing at the dedication of St. Peter's bells, which included an attempt for a peal, but this came to grief a little over half-way. The same band was expected to make another attempt at a later date, but Mr. Aitree, then being in control of St. Peter's, gave us further encouragement, by deciding that the first peal should be rung by a Brighton band, and after a few failures the S. Nicholas' ringers, with Mr. Aitree, were successful on December 2nd, 1882, and this was the first peal rung in Brighton since 1833.

The next peal attempt took us to Southover, Lewes, which proved a success, after which we looked in where ringers sometimes do after a peal, and our visit there was the means of giving Jim a chance to show that it was possible for a ringer to ring and conduct Holt's Original as his first peal as conductor. The conversation turned to a peal of Grandsire that had been rung at Southover in 1869, and recorded on a peal board as 'Holt's Original.' Mr. John Goldsmith (father of the editor of 'The Ringing World'), who was present, considered it was the 'Original' that had been rung, but Mr. Jay, to put it mildly, got very angry, and said he was sure it was impossible for the conductor of the peal to manage the Original. But Jim would not agree with him, and fixed his mind on making it his first peal to conduct. He had not, however, got the figures of the peal. We knew Mr. Jay had got an old ringing book with the peal in, but he was so angry on the matter he would not allow Jim, or anyone else, to have a look at it, and I understood that Searle eventually got the

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Saturday, October 13th, the Farnham District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild held their fourth meeting at Bentley, which is over the Hampshire border. Although the attendance was poor, this nice ring of six was kept going with very little loss of time from three o'clock until 4.30 p.m., when the Rector (the Rt. Rev. Bishop Chandler) conducted the Guild's service, and welcomed the Guild to Bentley. He expressed the hope that the visit would do some good to his ringers.

Owing to other engagements, the Rector was unable to stay to tea, but was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks for the use of the bells and for conducting the service, on the proposition of the district secretary (Mr. B. Clark).

Owing to the unavoidable absence of the Ringing Master, Mr. T. Upshall presided at the very short business meeting, which did not last more than ten minutes. Afterwards, the ringers returned to the tower, where ringing of a high quality was kept up.

The local band were present, and with a little help some were able to struggle through Grandsire Doubles, and all expressed a desire to take up method ringing in place of 'stony,' and also to join the Guild.

Twenty-four ringers attended from Farnham, Aldershot, S. Nicolas', Guildford, and the local band, and ringing went on until 8.30, when a very successful meeting was brought to a close.

THE PEAL AT COMPTON GIFFORD.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—A prolonged correspondence re the peal at Emmanuel Church (Compton Gifford), Plymouth, on August 4th, is unnecessary. The question raised is that Mr. C. R. Lilley claims that the peal was his composition, but he refuses to give publicity to the figures for the benefit of the Exercise.

We will leave it there and accept the judgment of the Exercise generally as to whether they agree that such an action is considered honourable from one who claims to have rung over 600 peals.—Yours faithfully,

E. W. MARSH.

13, Edith Avenue, Lipson, Plymouth.

AN UNWRITTEN RULE.

Dear Sir,—I know nothing of the origin of the dispute between Mr. C. R. Lilley and the Devon Guild apart from what has appeared in your columns, but I certainly do consider that common courtesy demands that, when conductors are written to on the subject of peal performances by the officials of the association for which the peal was rung, they should reply promptly and truthfully. It is not Tom, Dick, or Harry writing: it is the hon. secretary (or some other official) of the association writing in his official capacity, and we, the ordinary members, should do what we can to lighten their labours, and not make them heavier and more disagreeable.

It is well known to all the older members of the Gloucester and Bristol Association that it was founded upon the same rules and principles as the older Devon Guild of Ringers.

Right from the very start of its existence it has published every composition as rung, or (in a very few cases) given a reference to its source. When the composition is subsequently used it is referred to as 'Composition No. —.' Thus the composition of every peal rung by our association can be definitely traced. Yet (and this is the point I wish to draw my friend Lilley's attention to) there is no rule to the effect that conductors must supply the figures.—Yours, etc.

W. A. CAVE.

peal from old Mr. Shade. Making the 2nd the observation, he succeeded in conducting it on December 4th, 1883, and this was the first peal rung by S. Nicholas' ringers since 1833. But Jim's effort never seemed to convince Mr. Jay that it was the Original that was rung at Southover.

We continued to grind out Grandsire, and Jim thought it was time to try something else, but he could only get a few of the S. Nicholas' band to practise other than this method. Some of the St. Peter's band, however, began to be interested, as a few of us used to help them, and Kent Treble Bob Major and Stedman were taken up. But it was not until October, 1887, that we were successful in scoring a peal of Kent, and this was the first in Brighton. Stedman seemed to give us a good bit of trouble, but Jim said if enough would make an effort and stick to it he would try and master the conducting, and eventually succeeded in getting us through 'Thurstans' on December 24th, 1887, which was the first in the county.

In 1889 he moved to Burgess Hill, and for reasons not necessary to mention now became an independent member of the association, and took part in several peals down to 1895. He ceased to be a member in 1920, and only took part in a few touches after this.

Besides being a member of the Waterloo Society and the Sussex County Association, he was made a member of the Royal Cumberland Youths in 1884. The peals which he rang were as follows: Seven Minor methods, 3; Grandsire Triples, 34, conducted 6; Grandsire Caters, 1; Stedman Triples, 13, conducted 6; Stedman Caters, 2; Bob Major, 1; Double Norwich Major, 6; Kent Treble Bob Major, 7; Superlative Surprise Major, 2; total, 69, conducted 12.

HELMINGHAM BELLS REDEDICATED.

On Sunday, October 14th, the bells of St. Mary's, Helmingham, were rededicated by the Bishop of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich, after being rehung in new bearings, and 7th and tenor quarter turned. A new headstock has been provided for the treble, and a set of new ropes installed. The work has been carried out by Messrs. A. Bowell and Son, of Ipswich.

Before the evening service, the local ringers and all the church workers, at the invitation of the Rev. J. R. Garrett, met the Bishop in the Parish Room at tea. The rededication took place after the second lesson, and as the clergy and churchwardens left the ringing chamber a course of Grandsire Triples was rung by the local band, following which the Bishop preached a most inspiring sermon.

After the service the bells were kept going until nine o'clock. With the help of a few friends, touches of Double Norwich, Stedman, Bob Major, and Grandsire were rung. Everyone present expressed satisfaction at the excellent 'go' of the bells.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.
SOUTHERN DIVISION MEETING.

The quarterly meeting of the Southern Division was held at Penistone on Saturday, October 20th, when members were present from Ecclesfield, Rotherham, Rawmarsh, Arksey, Barnsley, Felkirk, Sheffield Cathedral, Darfield, Wath and Huddersfield. In the course of two hours' ringing in the afternoon the younger generation got a good grounding in different methods. Tea was provided in the schools and much enjoyed. The ringers were joined by the Vicar (Rev. E. B. Carleton), who at the business meeting which followed was voted to the chair. He gave the association a very hearty welcome to Penistone, and hoped that it would not be long before they paid another visit. The Vicar is an honorary member of the association, and was surprised that there was no subscription due from him. He was so pleased with the 'let off' that he paid the whole cost of the tea.

Three new members were elected—Messrs. H. Chant and A. Cole, of Felkirk, and F. Broadbent, of Ecclesfield.—An invitation to hold the next meeting at Rawmarsh was accepted, the date being fixed for December 15th.

It was decided to fill the vacant place on the committee at the annual meeting in March.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for his kind welcome and generosity was carried and acknowledged, and this brought the meeting to a close.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

The quarterly meeting was held at Kirk Ella, near Hull, on Saturday, October 13th, by courtesy of the Rev. Canon Foord, M.A. The ring of six (tenor 19 cwt.) have recently been rehung and fitted with ball bearings by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. Various touches were rung by the visitors, and the 'go' of the bells was pronounced excellent.

A full choral service was held, with a short but instructive address delivered by the Rev. R. P. Paiton, M.A., which was much appreciated.

An excellent repast was afterwards served in the Wheatsheaf Hotel to twenty-two members, representing towers at Beverley, Cottingham, Goole, Hull, Market Weighton, Pontefract, Selby and Sutton.

The business meeting followed, the Rev. R. P. Paiton presiding in the absence of the vice-president, Mr. F. Cryer (Selby), through illness.—Two new members were elected, Messrs. C. Brown and W. R. Tate, of All Saints', Pontefract. It was resolved that the next meeting be held at Thorne in December.

On the motion of Mr. A. Sellars (Beverley) a unanimous vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector for the use of the bells and service, to the Rev. R. P. Paiton for the address and for presiding at the meeting, to the choir for their attendance, and to Mr. A. H. Fox, in his dual capacity as organist and head ringer, for the very competent arrangements.

The absence of the genial Rector, who has been indisposed for some considerable time, was a keen disappointment, and hopes were entertained for his speedy recovery.

DUNSTABLE.—At the Priory Church, on Thursday, Sept. 27th, for festal evensong, a quarter-peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major (1,280 changes) in 48 mins.: *E. Chappell 1, B. Calcott 2, C. Rollings 3, G. W. Harris 4, G. Heley 5, G. H. Sentance 6, A. G. Matthews 7, A. E. Sharman (conductor) 8. * Longest length in any method.—On Sunday, September 30th, for continuation services for matins, touches of Cambridge, Superlative and Stedman; for evensong a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples (1,260 changes) in 47 mins.: A. E. Sharman (conductor) 1, G. Sentance 2, C. Rollings 4, C. E. King 5, G. Heley 6, A. Matthews 7, C. T. King 8.

CROYDON.—At St. Peter's Church, South Croydon, on Saturday, September 22nd, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Caters (1,259 changes) in 52 mins.: W. Gammon 1, D. Wright (conductor) 2, C. H. Kippin 3, R. H. Dove (first quarter of Caters) 4, F. Larby 5, W. Bulpitt 6, A. W. Clark 7, E. Deulham 8, W. Groves 9, D. Cooper 10.

WARWICKSHIRE GUILD.
PROPOSED CHANGE OF NAME.

The 60th quarterly meeting was held at Warwick on Saturday, October 20th. The attendance was small, only 20 members turning up. The ten fine bells of St. Mary's Church were open for ringing, and some good practice was put in. Tea at the Dale Hotel was followed by the general meeting, at which, in the absence of the president, Mr. James George took the chair.

One item in the minutes raised a discussion, viz., the proposal to change the name of the Guild, and Mr. F. W. Perrens proposed that the matter be put on the agenda for the annual meeting.

Bulkington was selected for the December meeting and Chilvers Coton for January.—Five new members were made, these having been proposed at peal attempts previously.

Reference was made to the death of Mr. G. Baker, of Exhall, who passed away suddenly.

Ringing during the day included touches in most of the standard methods, and also an attempt for Cambridge Royal.

The secretary was asked to convey a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells, and a pleasant meeting was brought to an end at train time.

LONDONERS AT LOUGHBOROUGH.

On Sunday, October 14th, eleven ringers connected with St. Botolph's Church, Bishopsgate, took advantage of the cheap half-day excursion to Loughborough, leaving St. Pancras at 11.20 and arriving at Loughborough at 1.40. Motor-cars were awaiting their arrival, and took the party quickly to the Church of All Saints, where the beautiful peal of ten were soon going to Cambridge Royal, an excellent course being rung, followed by a touch of Stedman Caters for the afternoon service. From there, the visitors went on to the foundry, which seemed full of bells of various sizes up to ten tons. Special permission having been granted for a short trial on the light peal of ten, Stedman Caters was the order on this musical little peal. Tea was generously provided by Messrs. Taylor and Co., which, needless to say, the ringers were quite prepared for. After tea, a little handbell ringing took place, and then the party went by bus on to Leicester, where St. Margaret's Church was visited, and, with the assistance of Mr. Dexter, a course of Cambridge Maximus brought round, followed by a touch of Stedman Cinques for the evening service. London was reached again at 10.30 p.m., everyone having had a most enjoyable time. Opportunity is taken of thanking all who helped to make arrangements for the visit, and to Messrs. Taylor and Co. for their kind hospitality.

THE 18½ TON RINGING BELL,
the Bourdon of the Carillon of 64 Bells, about to be installed at RIVERSIDE CHURCH, NEW YORK, U.S.A.

SECRETARIES AND THEIR CRITICS.

Fortunate indeed is the secretary of a ringing organisation who never has cause to grumble. We doubt if such a one is to be found. The task of the secretary and particularly of the district secretary, who has frequent meetings to arrange, is a difficult one, and when, after all his labours, his members fail to support him he has just reason for complaint. A recent disappointing meeting of the Tonbridge District of the Kent Association has led to some outspoken comments; and this week a report from the Ely diocese and another from a district of the Oxford Guild are made the occasion of criticism. Into the merits of either case we do not propose to enter, but we feel justified in taking up generally the cause of officials who are responsible for the organisation of ringers' meetings. In the first place it must be remembered that the meetings are arranged, not for the amusement of the secretary, but for the benefit of the members, and that nothing is more discouraging to an official than to find his efforts more or less wasted. The members themselves fix the meetings; it is up to them to make them a success.

Sometimes, of course, unavoidable circumstances combine to make a small and disappointing attendance, but it is when ringers who should support a meeting put other ringing engagements in the way, or when ringers absent themselves because they imagine the ringing will not be up to their particular standard—and both these things do happen—that secretaries have most reason to feel aggrieved. Only the most important demands in connection with other ringing should keep a ringer away from his district meeting—even peals can be postponed—and it is of the first importance that the ablest ringers should be present to help their less capable brethren. Indeed, it is one of the primary advantages that associations have to offer to beginners in the art, that they can get practical help at district meetings because more advanced ringers will be there and ready to assist them.

In the great majority of cases, of course, district meetings are supported in a most satisfactory way and fully serve the purpose for which they are arranged, but occasionally there occur instances, such as those to which we have referred, which, by contrast, are conspicuously disappointing, and, if a secretary feels that he has been 'let down' by those on whom he imagined he could rely, he would be less than human if he did not 'kick' a bit. It is not always the secretary's fault if the notice is short. He has to deal with other people besides his members in making arrangements, and he is dependent upon the promptitude of church officials in meeting his requests if he is to have his details fixed up in good time. Unfortunately these officials sometimes fail him, and the members seldom know the trouble to which a secretary may have been put in endeavouring to give effect to their wishes. Again, it is not always possible for a secretary to adhere to a given date. Here, too, he is dependent upon local circumstances, and members ought to realise that it is not always the secretary who is to blame. But all ringers do not think about these matters. They, who perhaps have done little or nothing, are ready to grumble if things are not quite to their liking; they must give their officials, who may have done quite a lot, the same privilege. Anyhow, a little plain speaking now and again can do no harm, especially if it is in the right spirit, and in the long run it often does a great deal of good.

Composed by JOHN CARTER. Conducted by FRANK W. PERRENS.

Rung as a birthday compliment to Miss Kathleen Hughes, of Whitechapel, London, and Joseph H. W. White. P. O. Laflin has now rung each pair of handbells to a peal of Stedman Cinques.

LYONSHALL.—On October 5th, a quarter-peal of Doubles, being 480 of Plain Bob and 780 of Grandsire, in 43 mins.: H. C. Woodward 1, W. Evans 2, A. Gooding (conductor) 3, G. W. Barker 4, W. Richards 5, S. Jones 6. Rung for the harvest festival service.

RAINHAM, KENT.—For harvest festival, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples in 49 mins.: T. Dennis (first quarter) 1, W. A. Cooke 2, W. Rayner 3, A. Manketlow 4, W. Seaker 5, W. Walker (conductor) 6, C. Belsey 7, G. Howland 8.

THE ABSENTEES.

A meeting of the Ely Archdeaconry District of the Ely Diocesan Association was held at Fordham on Saturday, October 27th. Members were present from Cambridge, Long Stanton, Mildenhall, Over and Trumpington. The service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. C. B. Prior), who gave a much appreciated address from the 100th Psalm. Miss R. Webb ably presided at the organ.

After tea, the business meeting was held, the Vicar being in the chair.

Trumpington was voted the place of next meeting.

Votes of thanks were accorded the Vicar for his address, for use of bells, and for presiding.—The Vicar suitably replied.

Mr. E. G. Hibbins wrote stating he was unable to get to the meeting on account of a business appointment, but, asks our correspondent, where were the other great men? Surely, these meetings should be to help to make progress, but progress must start somewhere, even if it be Plain Bob. Surprise ringing is good by bands that can ring. Plain Bob for learners is policy. Ely Association members are asked to help when these meetings are arranged.

BUSY RINGERS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—As one of the few of the Tonbridge District who are 'always advocating meetings at six-bell towers,' I would like to express my opinion that our worthy secretary was rather hasty in his pointed remarks. He knows that some of us, at least, attend his meetings whenever possible, but I am sorry to say that that particular Saturday happened to be an impossible day for all of us. But we are only the few; where were the many, as Cowden was unanimously chosen at the annual meeting?

Further, if the object of the meeting was achieved, namely, the inclusion of the local band with the association, where does the failure come in?

In conclusion, we also advocate that the dates of meetings should be fixed (and kept), as some of us are busy ringers, but we can spare a few dates to help a local band if they require it.—Yours truly,

ARTHUR H. SMITH.

FIXED DATES DESIRED.

Sir,—Mr. Latter, in his letter, says that it was impossible to give longer notice of the Cowden meeting, and remarks at the same time 'that if it was sufficient for members outside the county, it ought to have been so for members of the district.' Perhaps those members outside the county had no other arrangements for that day. Surely we could have fixed dates, to be agreed on at the annual meeting. Then we could keep those dates open.

Again, he remarks that he must refute my statement that some did not want the Cowden meeting at all, but does he remember what he himself said at the Branchley meeting? I do, and so do several more. Later, he remarks that he is in favour of one six-bell meeting a year. But why on earth only one? This letter closes my correspondence on the subject, but I will sign myself as before.—Yours truly,

MINORITE.

'WHAT' AND 'WHY'?

Dear Sir,—Mr. Latter says the report was applicable to other six-bell meetings as well as that at Cowden. May I ask him when have those who are interested in six-bell towers been absent from a quarterly meeting before, no matter what number of bells the tower contained?

I will admit the notice was long enough for those who had no other engagements made for that day, but his statement that he is in favour of one meeting each year being held at a six-bell tower does not correspond very well with what he said at Branchley about the Cowden meeting.

His question, 'What more can be done, if the six-bell ringers deliberately absent themselves from meetings?' will be answered if he will answer this one, 'Why do they?'—Yours truly,

A. RELFE.

OXFORD GUILD COMBINED PRACTICES.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the attendance at the monthly combined practices of the East Berks and South Bucks Branch of the Oxford Guild, may I, as a thirty years old member (my certificate is dated February 3rd, 1897), ask the members to give a little more support to them? The last two or three meetings could hardly be termed successful. At the Clewer meeting in September neither of the adjacent towers of Stoke Poges, Slough and Windsor was represented, and on Saturday the Wrensbury meeting comprised two visitors, five of the young local band, and three unattached members. Only Grandsire Doubles and a course of Triples were rung with difficulty. This, I think, is hardly worth the secretary's time and trouble in arranging, and the cost of advising the towers and the notice inserted in 'The Ringing World.'—Yours truly,

G. H. GUTTERIDGE.

WEDDING BELLS.

On Saturday, October 27th, the marriage of Mr. Harold Huntley, of Chiddingstone, Kent, and Miss Payne, of Four Elms, was solemnised at the latter place. Mr. Huntley, being a member of the Chiddingstone band of ringers, the event was celebrated by ringing a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples during the wedding ceremony: A. Longley 1, F. Longley 2, J. Crude 3, C. Aylward 4, A. Aylward 5, G. Edwards (conductor) 6, E. Everest 7, L. Everest 8.

As Four Elms does not possess a peal of bells, the ringing had to be done at Chiddingstone, and if the happy pair were out of sight and sound of the bells, it did not mar the enthusiasm of the ringers, who, as the bells fell into rounds, wished them long life and happiness in their new venture.

TYLDESLEY RINGER MARRIED.

A pretty wedding took place at St. George's Church, Tyldesley, Lancs, on Saturday, October 20th, when Mr. R. Aldred was married to Miss Margaret Millicent Price, of Tyldesley. After the ceremony the usual salute was rung on the bells by his brother-ringers. During the evening a well-struck peal of Grandsire Triples was brought round in three hours.

After the peal a hearty welcome was given to the ringers at the home of the bridegroom, the happy event having also coincided with Mr. H. Aldred's birthday. Handbell ringing, singing and great fun characterised the proceedings, and good wishes were expressed for the future happiness of the bride and bridegroom.

DEATH OF MR. ALFRED OSMAN, OF WIMBORNE.

ONE OF THE 'GREATEST' OF RINGERS.

The band at Wimborne Minster has lost by death a conspicuous figure. Mr. Alfred Osman, the 22-stone tenor ringer, passed away on Sunday, October 21st, after only two days' illness. He was buried on Tuesday of last week. He it was who rang Sherborne Minster tenor to the first peal—it is said by sheer weight.

THE LATE MR. JAMES SEARLE.

MORE EARLY PEALS RECALLED.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I would like to congratulate Mr. C. Tyler, of Henfield, upon his very interesting notes on our old friend, the late Mr. James Searle, who recently passed away.

With your permission I would like to add one or two items in connection with the few peals which he and I rang together in those now distant days during my first four or five years' residence in Brighton. These included Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob Major, Stedman Triples and Caters, Grandsire Triples, Superlative (4), London (Treble) 1, Double Norwich 7, in addition to one of Double Norwich, which, unfortunately, proved afterwards to be false. This would slightly increase his total number given by Mr. Tyler.

It may be of interest to some of your readers that Jim Searle's first peals of Superlative and London were the first peals in these methods rung by the Royal Cumberland Youths, in each of which the late Henry Davis also rang his first peals in those methods. Jim also rang in the first peal of Superlative by the old Winchester Diocesan Guild.

I think our total number of peals together reached 26. This was between October 17th, 1891, and April 20th, 1895. The last date seems to agree with Mr. Tyler as to his dropping out of peal ringing in that year, and, curious to record, this date, April 20th, 1895, was a peal of Stedman Caters on the old ten at St. Nicholas', in which our old friend, the late Isaac George Shade, took part, to whom and to others Mr. Tyler so humbly refers in his notes.

To show the infancy of change ringing at that time, it may be added that the majority of peals we rang together were the 'first in method, etc., on the bells,' including first peal Stedman Triples on the old 'Rudhall' eight at St. Nicholas', Brighton, October 29th, 1891, which was conducted by James Searle.—Yours truly,

GEORGE WILLIAMS.

ESSEX AND SUFFOLK RINGERS MEET AT BURES.

A united and pleasant gathering of Essex and Suffolk ringers took place at St. Mary's Church, Bures, on Saturday. But for the unsettled state of the weather, the gathering would have been much larger. Ringing commenced at 3.30, and good use was made of the fine old peal of six, with tenor about 21 cwt. The methods rung included Plain Bob, Double Court, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, and Cambridge Surprise. Each method rung was of a progressive nature for the various ringers present. Suffolk was represented by Messrs. J. King, Polstead, S. H. Symonds, L. and W. R. J. Poulson, Lavenham, the Essex contingent being Messrs. W. Chalk (West Bergholt), E. Leggett (Wormingford), S. Davey and R. Brinkley (Ardleigh), C. Bower and A. Ives (Bures Hamlet). The conducting was shared by S. H. Symonds and W. R. J. Poulson. Refreshments and handbell tunes brought this happy and instructive gathering to a close.

AN ACROSTIC.

'OUR FRIEND—'A WELLWISHER.'"
8.7.8.7.

Old friends are best, they never stress
Upon their absent kinship;
Real friends are those, who in distress,
Find means of proving friendship.

Real thanks—'A Wellwisher'—to you
Is voiced by each and all ranks;
Each gift, like yours, they help anew:
Noble deeds deserve our thanks.

Deserving, too, a kinder fate:
Alf is ill from shattered nerves.
We still may help him, help is great;
Earnest help he well deserves.

Loving wife, and loving daughter,
Long have borne the stress and strain;
We can aid them, none may falter,
Instant aid will save them pain.

So, in that way, do our duty,
Helping one whose mind we see
Ever values Art and Beauty,
Reveals Truth to you and me.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The recast peal of twelve bells for St. Martin's Parish Church, Birmingham, are to be dedicated on Saturday, December 8th, at 3 p.m., and the event will doubtless draw a large gathering of ringers. On the following day the bells will be broadcast at 8 p.m.

Admiral T. P. Walker, D.S.O., the hon. treasurer of the Guildford Diocesan Guild, who began his ringing career after he left the Navy, is, we regret to say, seriously ill with bronchial pneumonia at his residence, Homeleigh, Woking. The latest report is that there is a slight improvement in his condition, and all the many friends he has made in the new Guild by his geniality, urbanity and enthusiasm will wish him a speedy recovery.

Those who desire to attend the College Youths' dinner on Saturday week are reminded that applications for tickets should be made not later than the 7th inst.

Mr. William Pye, last Saturday, rang his 200th twelve-bell peal. The only other ringer who has reached this number is Mr. Albert Walker, Deputy Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham. Mr. Pye's total includes no less than 40 peals of Surprise Maximus.

The first peal on record in which the band were all of the same Christian name was rung at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields (long before there was a Trafalgar Square) on November 3rd, 1796. Eleven Williams, members of the Royal Cumberland Youths, rang a peal of Grandsire Caters, which was called by William Shipway.

A peal of 6,048 Cambridge Surprise Major was rung at Sheffield on November 5th, 1787, and was claimed to be 'the first peal of this method ever rung in the country.' A peal had previously been rung at St. Giles-in-the-Fields, London, by the College Youths in 1783, and it is probable that the expression 'in the country' did not mean 'in England,' but outside the Metropolis.

The first peal of Superlative Surprise was rung at Huddersfield on November 5th, 1821.

Forty years ago next Thursday the celebrated Burton band rang 6,720 of London Surprise Major. There are still one or two survivors of that company.

CORNISH BELL HANGING 100 YEARS AGO.

The following is from the 'Royal Cornwall Gazette' of January 19th, 1828:—

'The church bells of St. Stephen's, near St. Austell, which have been newly hung by Robert House, jun., were tried by the ringers of St. Austell and Newlyn on Thursday, and several peals were rung in fine style, to the great satisfaction of all present. These bells had been hung three different times in about 35 years, but in so slovenly a manner that the stoutest and best ringers could not produce a steady peal. Mr. House's plan is highly approved of, as the bells can now be rung with ease.'

St. Stephen's now possesses a fine ring of eight, with tenor about 13 cwt., by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co.

DEATH OF MRS. RIDGWAY, LEEK.

AN APPRECIATION.

On Saturday, October 27th, the funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Ridgway, of Leek, Staffs, took place at the Leek Cemetery, prior to which there was a service in St. Edward's Church, where the bells were rung fully muffled, except that the tenor was open on one side. The first part of the service was taken by the Vicar, and the committal service at the cemetery by the Rev. E. Wheeldon, Vicar of Horton, in whose parish the deceased had of late years resided with her daughter, Mrs. D. Poole.

Mrs. Ridgway was the mother of Mr. E. A. Ridgway, the popular and enthusiastic leader of St. Edward's tower, Leek, and whose well-known skill in the art of change ringing is due in no small degree to the interest and encouragement he received from his mother. She was a great benefactress to the Leek ringers during the last fifty years. No matter what she was asked to do for the ringing fraternity she never failed to respond. The new year's supper, after ringing the old year out and the new year in, became quite an institution with her, and whenever the meeting of the North Staffs Association was held at Leek she always provided the tea until her years became too advanced to cope with it. But the new year's supper she kept up until the time of her death at the ripe old age of 83. Many a good ringer has been lost to the Exercise through lack of sympathy in the home circle, but this was where Mrs. Ridgway was a shining light. She always kept an open house for any ringer who happened to call, and the writer has had many happy hours in her company, both at association meetings and on private visits, and so long as there are ladies possessing the same spirit as Mrs. Ridgway, the noble part of change ringing will never become defunct.

TEN BELLS FOR HATFIELD.BISHOP OF EXETER'S GIFT.

Two trebles are to be added to the ring at Hatfield Parish Church, Herts, making them into a peal of ten.

The new bells are being given by the Bishop of Exeter (Lord W. Gascoyne Cecil) in memory of his three sons killed in the war.

On Tuesday, October 26th, in honour of the Marquis of Salisbury's 67th birthday, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes), taken from Holt's Original, was rung at Hatfield: F. Cull 1, H. Austin 2, A. Shepherd 3, J. Shepherd 4, H. Nobbs 5, J. T. Kentish (conductor) 6, L. Shepherd 7, R. Richardson 8.

DEATH OF SURREY ASSOCIATION MASTER.

We much regret to announce the death, which took place suddenly on Saturday at his residence at Mitcham, of Mr. James D. Drewett, J.P., Master of the Surrey Association.

Mr. Drewett, who had reached an advanced age, took a very active interest in the affairs of the Surrey Association, and represented it upon the Central Council.

He was elected Master in 1914, in succession to the late Dr. A. B. Carpenter.

TRURO DIOCESAN GUILD.SUCCESSFUL BRANCH MEETING AT GWENNAP.

A very enthusiastic welcome was extended by the Vicar of Gwennap (the Rev. A. H. Thorold) and the local ringers to those members of the Truro Branch of the Truro Diocesan Guild who attended the meeting on Saturday, October 27th, the eve of the Feast of SS. Simon and Jude. There were approximately 40 ringers present from Truro Cathedral, St. Gluvias, St. Mabe, Redruth, Illogan, and Perranar-worthal. Others who attended were the Rev. C. Daly Atkinson (St. Mabe), Mrs. W. H. Southeard (Truro), and Mrs. Oxland (Illogan).

A short choral service was conducted by the Rev. A. H. Thorold. The Vicar, speaking from the chancel steps, spoke appreciatively of the ringers' services to the church. Touching on the subject of ringers and their attendance at the service for which they rang, it was his opinion, he said, that this was a case where a certain amount of latitude must be given, especially in country parishes, where there was always a great deal of work to be done on Sunday mornings. He thought this was a matter to be trusted entirely to the individual ringer's honour. Mr. Thorold also remarked how sorry he was he had been unable to follow up the mysteries of ringing to which he was introduced by being taught to handle a bell at Basingstoke many years ago by Mr. Henry White.

An excellent tea was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Thorold and the local ringers, and was partaken of in the Sunday School.—On the motion of the Rev. C. Daly Atkinson, seconded by Mr. Oxland (Illogan), a hearty vote of thanks was passed by them for their hospitality.

It was decided that in future only two meetings a year be held, instead of four, as had been the custom during the previous two years, it being the general feeling that decreased attendances had resulted from the frequency of meetings.—This was proposed by Mr. T. Slee (Illogan), and seconded by Mr. Scymour (Redruth).

During the afternoon and evening the ring of six bells was kept going by the various bands, the only method ringing being Grandsire Doubles. However, it was encouraging to hear several 120's by members of the Redruth band, who have lately taken up method ringing under the instruction of Mr. J. Reed, late of Lifton, Devon. They have made excellent progress.

During the evening, whilst some were at the tower, which is detached from the church, and stands about fifteen yards on the north side, others enjoyed themselves in the schoolroom with handbells, cards, etc.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.VISIT TO A DEVON VILLAGE.

Chardstock, a very pretty village in Devonshire, is yet included in the diocese of Salisbury. It has a very pretty church and a musical peal of six bells.

The band being affiliated to the Guild, it was thought only right and proper to pay it a visit, despite it being so far from another centre.

By the help of cars a representative party from Beaminster, Bradpole, Bridport, Chardstock, Hawkechurch, Lyme Regis, Netherbury and Symondsbury met on Saturday last, and were welcomed by the Vicar (Bishop Jocelyn), who is also Archdeacon of Sherborne. Ringing took place from 3 till 5 p.m., when all sat down to tea—a real Devonshire spread—which, needless to say, was most thoroughly enjoyed.

A short business meeting preceded the Guild service, which was conducted by the Archdeacon, the Rev. C. C. Cox reading the lesson.

Ringing was then resumed until a late hour. While one party was at the ropes, two other parties were attentively listening to verbal instruction in change ringing, and then changing about. This was thoroughly appreciated by those who were anxious to have an insight into the mysteries of the art.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.THE DEAN OF ROCHESTER'S WELCOME.

What can only be termed as a highly successful gathering of the Rochester District was held at Rochester on Saturday, on the occasion of the annual district meeting. The meeting had fortunately been arranged for Rochester, and the opportunity was taken by the new Dean (the Very Rev. R. T. Talbot), who had been inducted the previous month, officially to welcome the ringers in that district. True to his promise he climbed to the belfry, and anyone who has visited this Cathedral knows that is no mean task. The Dean was met on his arrival by over fifty ringers in the tower, and he spoke of the pleasure it afforded him to welcome so many ringers to Rochester, and asked God's blessing on their work. He went up among the bells and saw them ringing, and seemed glad to come back away from the din. The bells at the Cathedral were going from three till four o'clock, and it was pleasing to notice the number of young ringers who put in an appearance. On one occasion the ten ringers were learners who had not had a previous opportunity of ringing on ten bells.

Choral evensong was attended at the Cathedral, and was much enjoyed by all, the anthem unaccompanied being perfectly rendered. Dean Talbot gave an inspiring address to the ringers, and on behalf of himself and the Chapter said how pleased they were to welcome the association to Rochester. He said he had been studying how many arts there were connected with the Cathedral, and he found that not the least among them was the art of bellringing. They practised that art in secret, away in the tower, yet their messages were received by thousands, and he urged all to try and become proficient in the art.

Tea was held at the Carlton Cafe, and presided over by the Dean, who was supported by the Vicars of Gillingham, St. Margaret's, Rochester, Frindsbury and Higham, the Rev. Buckingham, a practising member at Gillingham, the district representatives (Messrs. W. Haigh and W. Spice), and the hon. district secretary (Mr. F. M. Mitchell). Altogether 75 sat down to tea, which was served in dainty style. The business meeting followed, presided over by the Dean.

'UNATTACHED' MEMBERS.

The hon. secretary presented the annual report, which showed an increase of one in the number of towers, making the total twenty, while the number of members showed a slight decrease, which he deplored, and urged all to do their best and try and get new members, so as to ensure that the bells at all towers would be rung for the Sunday services. He regretted to see the number who were joining the association as unattached members, and asked them, if any were there, to sink any difference—if such existed—and join with their local or nearest tower, and thus do their part. It was the poor secretary who came in for the punishment for accepting them as 'unattached,' for even secretaries are but human, and not anxious to deprive them of membership. The number of peals rung in the district was twenty, one worthy of special mention being the 'Frederick' peal at Rainham in September, in which their veteran hon. secretary, the Rev. Frederick J. O. Helmore, who, in spite of being over three score and ten years, rang his bell and the method equally as well as the youngest 'Fred.' He thanked them all for the loyal support, and heartily welcomed Dean Talbot to Rochester.

The report and balance sheet were unanimously adopted.

Mr. F. M. Mitchell was unanimously re-elected as hon. district secretary, and, on the proposition of Mr. E. H. Spice, was heartily thanked for his services.

Mr. Mitchell, in responding, said that in his re-election he was embarking on his tenth year of office as their hon. secretary, and assured them that it was a real pleasure to do the work, as he realised how thoroughly his efforts were appreciated, and he was pleased to see how harmoniously they all worked together.

Messrs. W. Haigh (Rochester) and W. Spice (Tunstall) were re-elected as district representatives.

Five towers were nominated for the place of the next meeting, Frindsbury being chosen by an overwhelming vote. The date was fixed for the last Saturday in January.

The Rev. C. E. Webb proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Dean Talbot for being with them. He was sure they were all impressed by his eloquent address to them, and on their behalf he offered best thanks for the use of the bells, also for presiding over their meeting.

The Dean replied in a witty speech, and made humorous reference to his climb up to the belfry. He had been carefully led up the tower, and he hoped that his experience would be an incentive to them to try and lead one another in the right way.

The tower was again visited, and it must be a long time since so many crowded the belfry, but if the bells did not give of their best it was no fault of the bells. The ringing was certainly not up to standard, but a good object was attained in encouraging the young ringers. Sixteen towers in the district were represented, and ringers also attended from the Lewisham and Maidstone Districts, and Luton, Beds.

BRAINTREE.—On Monday, October 22nd, at the Parish Church of St. Michael the Archangel, 1,280 of Cambridge Surprise Major: A. Wiffen 1, Miss E. E. Pettit 2, C. H. Howard 3, H. E. Hammond 4, G. Wiffen 5, B. Redgewell 6, H. C. Reason 7, L. W. Wiffen (conductor) 8.

JUBILEE OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL BELLS.

RETOLD BY F. E. DAWK.

Fifty years ago to-day! Yes, I well remember standing in St. Paul's Churchyard, at the corner of Ludgate Hill, on that Friday afternoon, All Saints' Day, November 1st, 1878. I was then just learning to handle a bell, and it afterwards transpired that Mr. Challis F. Winney must at that moment have been very near me in the crowd. We were then almost unknown to each other, for we were both learning on the light ring of eight at St. John-the-Evangelist's Church, Wilton Road, Pimlico, the dedication of which had taken place a month before, viz., Wednesday, October 2nd, 1878.

But let me start at the beginning. The 16 bells (with their famous 15th century lettering) in the central tower of Worcester Cathedral were put up in 1869, and shortly afterwards—early in the seventies—a project was put forward for a ring of 10 or 12 for St. Paul's Cathedral. The then Sir Edmund Beckett (late E. B. Denison), who afterwards became Lord Grimthorpe, was chosen as chairman of the Bells Committee, and towards the end of 1877 this committee—or, at least, a portion of it which included Dr. John Stainer, the Cathedral organist—met at the King's Head, Winchester Street, Southwark, to confer at the headquarters of the Ancient Society of College Youths with a select few of the most prominent members of that society.

Sir Edmund Beckett was always opposed to rings of twelve, but greatly in favour of ten, as he considered the two trebles a mistake, and openly declared that all peals sounded better without them. He further maintained that the 'lower ten' at Worcester Cathedral (tenor 50 cwt. in D flat) were the grandest ringing peal in England.

It was at this meeting that Canon Cattley, who was present from Worcester Cathedral, asked the question: 'If we give you a ring of twelve, with a tenor bell of three tons, will you guarantee the men to ring them?' This was instantly answered in the affirmative by Messrs. Matthew A. Wood, George A. Muskett (the then secretary), and others, and Sir Edmund, as chairman, caused the order to be given to Messrs. J. W. Taylor and Sons, of Loughborough, for the present ring of twelve, with a three-ton tenor in D flat! Mr. Taylor, sen., told me personally five years afterwards that although the firm let Sir Edmund have his own way with the Burton-on-Trent bells and those at other places, and knowing full well the bells would be much too heavy for that key, he (Mr. Taylor) purposely 'made a mistake' and altered it to B flat! Sir Edmund was very wroth about it, and announced something to the effect that 'the bells were not according to contract, and would be thrown back on the founder's hands!' However, science, reason, and common sense prevailed, and they were accepted. I am indebted to Mr. Taylor, sen., and his late son, Mr. John W. Taylor, for this information, and many other particulars as to cost, etc.

THE COST.

The bells were erected in the north-west tower of the Cathedral during the year 1878, at a cost of a little over £2,300—very cheap, indeed, compared with present-day prices! In addition, there was a large amount spent in preparing the tower to receive the bells. According to a paper called the 'Builder,' this amounted to exactly £1,000. The ringing chamber and additional staircase, together with the flooring in the apartment beneath, probably amounted to another £300 or £400.

Each bell was the gift of a different city company, together with the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who joined in the donation, the tenor bell of 82 cwt. in B flat being given by the Corporation. Each bell bears the name of the master of the company who gave it at the time of vote. The Ellacombe chiming hammers were also installed.

In September of that year one or two short 'touches' of Stedman Cinques were brought round on the bells before the clappers were put in, so as to see if everything was correct, and then one evening in October, without any notification to the outer world, a few 'rounds' were rung after the clappers were fixed, and as a further test the same evening Mr. J. W. Taylor, sen. (that is, the grandfather of the late Mr. Pryce Taylor—I knew him well) turned all the clappers over on the wrong side in order to note the effect! Finally, the bells were officially opened on All Saints' Day, Friday, November 1st, 1878, by a picked band of 13 men of the College Youths, with two 'reserves,' of whom the ringer of the 9th and the 'strapper' for the tenor (S. Reeves) were the last survivors of that band to go over to the great majority, Edwin Horrex (9th man) actually being the last to depart from us some three years ago.

Drawings were made in the ringing chamber and other parts of the Cathedral at the moment of dedication by skilled special artists of the 'Illustrated London News,' the 'Graphic,' and other well-known picture papers, and of these I still have copies in my possession—the striking figure of George Muskett being well in the foreground! Flash lamps had not been invented in those days! Of course, the daily and weekly newspapers were full of such an historic event, but I think the 'Times' and the 'Guardian' gave the best reports. The latter had a graphic account of the scheme, somewhat as follows:—

The November air was cold and chill, yet anyone approaching St. Paul's on All Saints' afternoon would have been struck with the un-wonted stir in the open space around the Cathedral, and on entering the church itself, not only the vast area under the dome, but almost the whole length of the nave, was seen to be closely packed with people. It was evident that the dedication of the bells had interest not only for Londoners, but very many had travelled up from long distances to hear the bells ring out for the first time from the Cathedral of the Metropolis.

In his sermon upon the first verse of the last of the Psalms, the Rev. J. Povah mentioned the influence bells had upon the architecture of churches, the omission for 200 years to realise Wren's design of placing a ring in one of the western towers, and the consequent inability of the Cathedral authorities, even when the news came of Nelson's victory and death at Trafalgar, to give voice to the nation's joy or sorrow except by the tolling of a single great bell. Considering the thousands in sight who could not hear a word of the sermon, it might, perhaps, have been 'taken as read,' but that did not seem to occur to the preacher, though an occasional note from the belfry, where the bells were being pulled up with the clappers lashed, and set at hockstroke ready for the opening peal, might have reminded him. The thought occurred that the bells might have spoken with fine and solemn effect during the service itself had it been so ordered, and the immense congregation might thus have been made participators in their solemn dedication.

But a less ceremonial was decided on. Evensong concluded, the choir, the Cathedral clergy, and the Bishop of London made their way in procession through the dense mass of people to the south-western corner of the building, Dr. Stainer, the organist, leading the way, and Mr. Hodge playing the 'War March of the Priests' in Mendelssohn's music to 'Athalie.' The procession passed through the door and wended their way up what is known as the geometrical staircase, and thence across to the north-west tower, there to be lost to sight or hearing of all but a few privileged persons, who followed the choir and clergy, not, indeed, to the ringing chamber, where the dedication took place, but to an ante-chamber immediately below, and separated from it by a wooden floor, through which the prayers and hymns were audible.

IN THE RINGING CHAMBER.

The Bishop of London, with the Rev. F. H. Fisher (Vicar of Fulham, a well-known ringer) as his chaplain, Dean Church, Bishop Piers Claughton (Archdeacon of London), and eight other Reverend Canons, with organist and choristers threaded their way in surplices up the narrow winding staircase, and, forming a group in the centre of the ringing chamber, took their appointed part in a form of service which had been printed and circulated. This was much in the usual form now used on such occasions.

Many bellringers were present from great distances, and amongst them were Mr. Charles A. W. Troyte, of Huntsham Court, Devon; the Rev. H. A. Ellacombe, of Clyst St. George, Devon; the Rev. Canon Cattley, of Worcester Cathedral; the Rev. Augustus Sutton and Sir Edmund Beckett; also the Rev. H. E. Haweis, LL.D., a great advocate for the continental system of carillons, and notorious for writing letters to papers that admitted of no controversy!

A hymn was then sung, 'When morning gilds the skies.' There is an allusion to 'the sweet church bell' in its second stanza, and its tune, if not actually bell-like, has an exceptionally constant motion of the parts which might bear distant comparison to the rhythm of chimes. The Collect for St. Paul's Day having been read, the Bishop of London gave the usual Blessing to the little kneeling congregation, above which rose the stalwart forms of the ringers leaning on their ropes.

There was a moment's pause, then the Bishop of London gave the word 'Go!' to the circle of ringers; thirteen pairs of strong arms began to pull in concert, and down came a shower of music, bright, soft, and mellow. The bells had spoken. In and around the ringing chamber, to which the few persons invited were now admitted, men's tongues were loosened in delight, as the twelve bells, swinging this way and that, again and again ran down the gamut, not as yet disporting in changes, but trying their voices in a plain round peal. The ringers were thirteen men of the College Youths, two to the tenor bell; stalwart fellows all, many well advanced in years, and visibly possessed of that power of concentrated attention to work in hand, without which a man cannot be a good bellringer, and by means of which alone great or pleasing results can be achieved by a plurality of workers. Each man, stripped to his shirt, stood on a small square platform with his foot in a leathern strap; to the tenor there was a branched rope, and one of its ringers stood on the platform, and the other on the floor of the chamber. Up rushed the ropes through the ceiling for the back-strokes; and down again danced the coloured 'sallies' for the hand-strokes, each rope having a red cushion on the floor for it to fall upon. In a few minutes the head ringer gave a word of command, and the ringing came to a first period. 'Well stopped!' exclaimed Dr. Stainer with delight; but it was a premature congratulation, for the tenor hesitated in the hands of his two ringers, and instead of leaning to rest on his stay, as a good bell should, came swinging round again, and spoke twice alone, breaking the neatness of the first performance, but giving the thousands of listeners an opportunity of hearing his voice clear of competition. He is a rich, sonorous fellow, filling the air with his big B flat, and fit in every way to play the part of a perpetual pedal to the ever-varying melodies of his lighter companions in ringing, or to be 'turned in' for a 'touch' of a more advanced character.

After the first stop a consultation between Dr. Stainer and the chief ringer resulted in fixing the programme of 'changes.' Then followed in the report the usual explanation to the public as to change ringing, which finished by saying that from the great mental application required it is always sure to lead to steady and quiet behaviour, and that one mistake generally brings the whole thing to grief, it being almost impossible for the conductor to put a careless ringer in his place again.

THE FIRST RINGERS.

The ringing went on for over an hour. The air was clear, and the night fine; hundreds stood in St. Paul's Churchyard listening.

The names of the first ringers of St. Paul's, who stood in the following order, were: H. W. Haley, sen., 1. H. C. Haley, jun., 2. W. Cooter 3. J. Pettit 4. G. Mash 5. J. R. Haworth 6. G. Ferris 7. J. Dwight 8. E. Horrex 9. G. A. Musket 10. M. A. Wood 11. J. M. Huxes with S. Reeves 12. G. Dorrington and W. Jones were the reserves. I personally knew and respected every one of these splendid old fellows, and my old friend, C. F. Winney, shares the same pleasure and privilege.

On that occasion a splendid clock, striking the half-hours, and still a valuable asset to the ringing chamber, was given by the Rev. Robert R. Green, the then Dean's verger.

The last touch of that historic evening was about 1,000 changes of Stedman Cinques, and it was during this that an amusing thing happened. An excellent 'spread' had been provided for the ringers, but, tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Ascalon, the choir found their way thither, and fondly imagined that it was for them! When the ringers came down it was 'all gone'—another example of how we used to be 'pushed out' in days gone by.

One interesting fact remains on record, that when the bells were 'fired' on that important occasion, the striking was 'true as a hair,' and not the careless and ragged exhibition to which we are so often treated at various places nowadays. The 'opening' into rounds again was most accurately done, and it was justly admitted by all the critics outside to be of 'the very best'! This shows how easily heavy bells can be handled by good and experienced ringers.

I well recollect the ropes used there during the first twelve months as being very bad, coarse, and unsuitable—certainly some of the worst I have ever seen or handled!

At first the bells were only rung on special occasions, and nearly two years elapsed before the Dean and Chapter entered into an arrangement with the College Youths to have them rung regularly for divine service twice every Sunday, as at present.

I have in my possession a grand piece of music, published in expensive form at the time, with illustration, entitled, 'The Bells of St. Paul's.'

It is also noteworthy that for months after the dedication, the usual mass of correspondence continued to appear in all the newspapers—glutted, in fact—about the 'new bells,' both 'for' and 'against,' mainly by that class of well-to-do 'know nothings' who usually wish to air and ventilate their opinion on matters they do not quite understand. Thank goodness, discussions on 'Simpson tuning' did not exist then. I well remember that at all our subsequent practice nights (once a month) Lord Tom Noddy was sure to be present in some shape or form!

During these 50 years, ten peals have been rung on the bells, viz., six of Stedman Cinques, three of Kent Treble Bob Maximus, and one of Cambridge Surprise Maximus, this last having been called by Mr. Alfred Peck, who rang the tenor single-handed! The first was a 5,014 of Stedman Cinques on December 10th, 1881, conducted by the late Mr. James Pettit, and I have never heard better ringing than in this peal. They have all been recorded by the authorities in the ringing chamber in a manner never observed in the other 950 towers I have visited. The walls are prepared in 'panel' fashion, and the record painted thereon! Mention may also be made of my own ill-fated peal (which for some unknown reason has never been allowed to be completed), where, after 3 hrs. 55 mins., and only the last course to ring, the tenor dropped in amongst the others and caused disaster on April 13th, 1912.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO LEICESTER RINGER.

MR. E. R. WHITEHEAD IN A MOTOR COLLISION.

A well-known Leicester ringer, Mr. Edward R. Whitehead, who belongs to St. Margaret's band, has met with a serious motor-cycle accident, as a result of which he lay unconscious between four and five days in Nuneaton Hospital, but is now, we are pleased to say, progressing as favourably as can be expected.

He was motor-cycling towards Leicester rather late at night, and is believed to have come into collision with a motor-car at the junction of Watling Street and Long Shoot, near Nuneaton.

A Mr. Brandrick, who lives near the cross-roads, heard a crash just as he was retiring to bed about 11.20 p.m. He looked out and saw a stationary car in the Long Shoot. Someone walked into the front of the car's headlights and pulled a form on to the roadside. The figure then cranked up the car and moved off towards Nuneaton. He (Mr. Brandrick) went back into the house and roused his son, who was in bed, put on his shoes and coat, and went to the scene. Just as he got there a Mr. Bell and some friends, who reside nearby, came up. They found the motor-cyclist lying on his correct side of the road with his head on the grass verge, whilst the motor-cycle lay across the white lines in the centre of the road. Someone 'phoned for the police, and the injured man was assisted into Mr. Bell's house, and later he was taken to the Nuneaton Hospital by a passing motorist.

It was a dark, wet night, and up to the present the police, despite diligent inquiries, have been unable to trace the car concerned in the collision.

FARNHAM, SURREY.—On Sunday, October 7th, at St. Andrew's Church, for morning service, on the occasion of the harvest festival, 504 Stedman Triples: C. Wells 1, J. Read 2, F. Kemp 3, S. Meadows 4, H. STAVELEY, DERBYSHIRE.—For evensong, on October 7th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,280 changes) in 46 mins., by the following Sunday service ringers: A. Markwell, jun. (first quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples) 1, L. Palmer (conductor) 2, A. E. Parsons 3, Sam Smedley 4, W. Palmer 5, J. Knott 6, F. Parsons, sen., 7, H. Stow 8. Rung for harvest festival.

WINCHESTER AND PORTSMOUTH DIOCESAN GUILD. PORTSMOUTH DISTRICT.

A quarterly meeting was held at Shedfield on Saturday last, when, despite the unsettled weather, members were present from Bishop's Waltham, Curdridge, Fareham, Gosport, Portsmouth (St. Thomas' and St. Mary's), Shedfield, Swanmore and Wickham, and visitors from King's Somborne, North Stoneham, Highclere and Romsey. By kind permission of the Vicar (Rev. I. J. Best) the peal of six were available during the afternoon and evening, and were made good use of.

At 4.30 a short service was held in the church, at which the Vicar officiated and addressed the members. Tea was partaken of in the Shirrell Hut, and the business meeting followed. As the Vicar had unavoidably to leave at the outset, the Master (Mr. G. Williams) was voted to the chair.

The election of the Vicar as an honorary member was confirmed, and it was decided to hold the annual district meeting at Fareham on Saturday, January 26th, 1929, and that Titchfield be coupled with it.

A vote of thanks was accorded the Vicar for the use of the bells and also addressing the members. The general secretary (Mr. G. Pullinger) appealed to those towers who had not yet contributed to the memorial to the late Rev. C. E. Matthews (a former Vicar of Titchfield and vice-president of the Guild), to do so at the earliest opportunity.

At the close of the meeting the members returned to the tower for further ringing, whilst others went to Wickham to ring on the peal of six there. It is interesting to note that both the Vicar of Shedfield and the Rector of Wickham are ringers, and both took part in the ringing during the day, which included Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Bob and Treble Bob Minor and Cambridge Surprise.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A DIFFICULT QUESTION.

The monthly meeting of the Manchester Branch was held at the Parish Church, Ashton-under-Lyne, on Saturday, October 20th, and was attended by a good number of members and friends. Ringing commenced about four o'clock, and was kept going in various methods till 7.30, when the business meeting of the branch took place, the branch president, Mr. W. Wolstencroft, being in the chair. He gave a hearty welcome to the ringers, and remarked that when a meeting was to be held at any tower the local members ought to be there, so that an early start could be made.

A discussion took place on the best way to keep young ringers interested in the art, so that they will not fall away after a time. Various opinions were expressed, but all agreed that it was a difficult question.

The branch secretary was requested to notify the members of the association that an appeal is being made on behalf of Mr. J. Lowe, of Pendleton, and it is hoped a generous response will result.

The next branch meeting was fixed for Pendleton on November 17th.

Votes of thanks to clergy and local ringers were passed, and this closed the meeting. The twelve bells were then kept going until a later hour.

SURREY ASSOCIATION.

MEETING AT WANDSWORTH.

A successful meeting of the Central District of the Surrey Association was held at Wandsworth on Saturday, October 20th. The early arrivals were fortunate to have a pull on the fine new peal of eight at Holy Trinity, West Hill, which are only available on rare occasions owing to the proximity of the Home for Incurables. Upwards of an hour was spent here, followed by half an hour at the Parish Church of All Saints, where a short service was conducted by the Vicar, who gave an address which was much appreciated by the members. Tea followed at the Church Hall, kindly provided by the Vicar and splendidly served by the ladies attached to the hall.

Mr. J. D. Drewett, the Master of the association, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for his hospitality.

Mr. Amos Clark, the District Master, presided at the business meeting, when five new members were elected. It was resolved to hold the next meeting at St. Giles', Camberwell, and Vassall Road, Brixton, on November 24th, if it can be arranged.

Reference was made to the death of Mr. Louis Attwater, formerly the respected Master at All Saints' tower, who had passed away since the last meeting.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells and for holding the service, and to Mr. Gray, of All Saints', who had made arrangements at both towers, was proposed by E. A. Reeve and carried unanimously. A further visit was made to All Saints' belfry, where touches in most of the standard methods were enjoyed until 8.30.

APPLETON, BERKS.—A quarter-peal of Stedman Caters: A. E. Lock 1, H. Nevell 2, Mrs. A. E. Lock 3, A. Dubber 4, F. Messenger 5, —, Tubbs 6, F. Taylor 7, R. White 8, G. Hollifield, jun. (conductor) 9, F. White 10.

PROGRESS AT TISBURY.

At St. John-the-Baptist's Church, Tisbury, Wilts, on October 28th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles in 43 mins. by: Bert Rock 1, Charles Deau 2, John Lesley 3, Percy Howell 4, Leonard Belsey (conductor) 5, Fred Woods 6. First quarter-peal by ringers of 1st, 3rd, 4th and 6th.

This is the longest length rung by the local band, and speaks well for their keenness. They took up change ringing only last December, and have had practically no outside help.

This quarter-peal was rung previous to the unveiling of the peal board commemorating a peal of Grandsire Doubles rung on May 12th, 1928, the first peal on the bells. The board was unveiled by the Vicar, Rev. G. T. Miller, in the presence of members of the Parochial Church Council and the local band.

MUFFLED BELLS FOR THE BISHOP OF LEWES.

The bells of St. Clement's, the borough church of Hastings, were rung with fully-muffled clappers (tenor half open) on the occasion of the funeral of the Bishop of Lewes on October 20th, by the following: H. Parkin 1, G. Martin 2, B. White 3, J. Plumbridge 4, J. Martin 5, A. Collins 6, R. Griffin 7, G. Stace 8; and again in the evening with half-muffled clappers by: G. Phillips 1, J. Plumbridge 2, R. White 3, G. Stace 4, J. Martin 5, A. Collins 6, R. Griffin 7, G. Martin 8.

The late Bishop was Rector at Holy Trinity (Hastings) for 15 years (1911-1928), and was interred in the family grave at Hollington Church-in-the-Wood, the funeral service having taken place earlier in the day at Holy Trinity.

ORGANIST AND CHURCHWARDEN.

Mr. John Baker Guy, the organist of St. Clement's, Hastings, for 47 years and churchwarden for the last three years, died on October 20th, at the age of 68 years. Although deceased was not a ringer, he was keenly interested in the Bellingers' Guild, and always attended the meetings.

The funeral service was held on Wednesday, October 24th, the body having been brought into the church on the previous evening. A large number attended. The bells were rung with fully-muffled clappers before and after the funeral service as a last token of great respect for deceased by the following: Messrs. W. Bradfield, T. Baker, G. Crosbie-Hill, R. Franklin, R. Griffin, G. Martin, J. Plumbridge, G. Piper and R. White. At the funeral service the hymn, 'Nearer, my God, to Thee,' was sung to Mr. Guy's own musical setting.

Among the wreaths, which numbered about 100, were tributes from the bellringers, choir, and Church Council.

In the evening a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles (1,260 changes) was rung with half-muffled bells in 54 mins. by: H. Parkin 1, R. Wise 2, G. Piper 3, G. Martin 4, T. Baker 5, R. Griffin (first quarter) 6, J. Downing (conductor) 7, J. Plumbridge (first quarter) 8.

Deceased, who was a gifted tenor, was offered a place in the D'Oyley Carte Opera Co., but refused. He also wrote a special 'Jubilee March' for Queen Victoria's Jubilee, and received congratulations from the Queen.

THE 18 1/2 TON RINGING BELL,
the Bourdon of the Carillon of 64 Bells, about to be installed at RIVERSIDE CHURCH, New York, U.S.A.

ON THE WARPATH!

There is just at present in some quarters a recrudescence of agitation against church bells. In Bath, for instance, there seems to have been an outburst against noises in general, and in the Health Committee one alderman said that trams and church bells were the biggest offenders. 'The bells were an abomination and would have to be tackled first.' How strange it is that when the noise and racket of modern life begins to get on people's nerves they turn first in their denunciation to church bells, which they perhaps hear rung for two services on a Sunday and for an hour in the week. They will live through the whole seven days with the grinding of tram cars under their windows; the raucous blare of Klaxon motor horns making day and night hideous, and the din of a hundred and one other street noises for ever in their ears, and yet the first thing to be attacked is nearly always the church bells, which only occasionally make their sounds heard. Perhaps they think that of all the noises which come to their ears this is the easiest to put a stop to; but we doubt if even the worthy Bath alderman will find it any easier to stop church bells than to stop the trams. Incidentally he also wants to stop the Christmas 'waits' which, he says, 'are a rare nuisance.' When a man gets to this stage, his outlook on life seems to have become a bit distorted, and the best cure would probably be a sojourn in the backwoods of Canada.

But these outbursts of open hostility to the ringing of church bells on lawful and reasonable occasions cannot be altogether neglected. At the same meeting of the Bath Health Committee the Medical Officer of Health, who reported that the increased noises during the past few years were becoming intolerable and a menace to health, suggested propaganda and legislation. Those who feel that the noises which modern civilisation have forced upon us are intolerable have open to them both of the suggested courses if they can get sufficient people to listen to them, but it is as well that the Exercise should watch any of these activities carefully, so that, so far as church bells are concerned, the propaganda may be countered, and any legislation that may be attempted may not, directly or indirectly, bring church bells within the restraining clauses. Ringers can always be trusted to exercise reason in the use of bells, but not a few towers are closed to ringing because a handful of complaining parishioners have brought pressure to bear on the incumbent. This is where the chief immediate danger lies—in the influence which may be privately exerted upon clergy who are themselves indifferent to their bells and ringers.

THE LATE MR. JAMES SEARLE

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I would also like to congratulate Messrs. C. Tyler and G. Williams for their interesting remarks on the late Mr. James Searle. I find that the peals I rang with him were Superlative 5, Double Norwich 1, which were, as Mr. Williams says, the first peals of Superlative by the Royal Cumberland Youths and Winchester Diocesan Guild in which the late Henry Dains and Isaac George Shade rang their first peals of Superlative. The Double Norwich was also Mr. Shade's first peal in that method. You, Sir, will realise my feelings on being asked, as a boy, when Surprise ringing was in its childhood (1893), to stand in such peals that were going to make history.

I have also happy recollections of Mr. Searle's kind hospitality in journeying to those peals.—Yours faithfully, Saffron Walden.

F. DENCH.

THE LATE MR. JAMES D. DREWETT.

CLOSE OF AN ACTIVE LIFE.

Amid many manifestations of sympathy and regret the mortal remains of Mr. James Douglas Drewett, Master of the Surrey Association, were laid to rest on Thursday week. As mentioned in our last issue, Mr. Drewett was found dead in his house on the previous Saturday morning, and Mitcham has sustained a great loss, for he had served his native town long and ably in many capacities. People of all classes filled the Parish Church on the occasion of the funeral, and hundreds more gathered in the churchyard to pay their last tribute of respect. Representatives of many public and semi-public bodies were present. Freemasons attended in large numbers, and every seat was filled. The cortege was met at the church door by the clergy and choir, who, as the procession moved up the aisle, sang the opening sentences of the burial service. In addition to Psalm xc., the hymn 'Abide with me' and the anthem 'I heard a voice from heaven' were also sung, and the Vicar, in a brief address, eloquently expressed the sense of loss felt in Mitcham by the death of one who had not spared himself in public service, and in whom everyone had a friend. Chopin's Funeral March was played before the coffin was carried from the church, and then, in the churchyard, the last rites were performed and the body of James Douglas Drewett committed to Mother Earth, the impressive service being followed by a course of Stedman Triples rung on handbells over the open grave by Messrs. H. Langdon, W. T. Cockerill (hon. secretary of the College Youths), C. H. Kippin (hon. secretary of the Surrey Association), and T. Groombridge, sen. Among other ringers present were Messrs. C. Dean (who with Mr. Drewett represented the Surrey Association on the Central Council), W. Joiner, J. Lott, H. Tourle, E. Broadbridge, A. Miller, G. Pidwell and C. H. Reading (Mitcham), D. Wright and Mrs. A. Clark (Croydon), Messrs. W. S. Smith, C. S. Burden, W. Langdon (College Youths), A. Dean (Leatherhead), and J. S. Goldsmith (hon. secretary of the Guildford Diocesan Guild). Before and after the service, the Parish Church bells were rung half muffled, and half-muffled ringing also took place at Beddington.

Mr. James Douglas Drewett was 74 years of age. For some years his health had given cause for his friends' anxiety, although he continued his very many activities to the end; in fact, he had business papers in his hand when he was found dead.

The grandson and son of bygone ringers at Mitcham Parish Church, Mr. Drewett commenced at an early age to ring the bells there, and it was only on rare occasions he would be absent from Sunday ringing. He was one of the earliest members of the Surrey Association, and had been its Ringing Master since the death in 1913 of Dr. Arthur B. Carpenter. He was one of the representatives of the association on the Central Council.

As Master of the Surrey Association, he had a wide conception of his duties, which he took very seriously. The report reaching him of the illness of a member of the association quickly took Mr. Drewett to the bedside to make a personal enquiry and offer sympathy. He was a painstaking ringer, and had rung numerous peals in many methods.

Mr. Drewett had retired from his business as a builder for many years, and had since devoted himself entirely to public affairs. He held His Majesty's Commission of the Peace for the County of Surrey, and was a regular attendant on the Croydon County Bench. He was for a time chairman of the Urban District Council for Mitcham, which was formed in 1915, prior to which he served as a member of the Croydon Rural District Council, while he was twice elected a member of the Surrey County Council for his native place. This latter position brought him the chairmanship of Netherne Hospital Committee, and a seat on the Assessment Committee for North Surrey. Mr. Drewett was also a member of the Surrey Joint Poor Law Committee, the Wandie Valley Joint Insurance and Hospital Boards, president since 1921 of the Singlegate Working Men's Club, and one of the managers of Mitcham School. He had served as an overseer and as churchwarden of Mitcham Parish Council. In all the undertook he was most conscientious, and consequently he was an extremely busy man.

Mr. Drewett had been a widower for a number of years, and leaves behind him three sons and one daughter.

As we have intimated above, Mr. Drewett's efforts were most strenuous on behalf of the general community, but we feel certain that in no sphere of activity will his absence be more felt than among the ringers with whom he associated, and especially those in the local tower which he loved so much.

At St. Bartholomew's, Burstow, as a token of respect to the late Mr. J. D. Drewett, J.P., several touches of Bob Doubles and Grand sire Doubles were rung with bells half muffled on Friday, November 2nd, by A. Bull (instructor), J. Birdfield, W. Slawter, H. Kew, H. Parsons, V. Cousins, P. Warren, J. Bradley and L. Penfold.

OVER, CAMBS.—On Thursday, September 27th, for harvest festival, at St. Mary's Church, 1,224 changes of Cambridge Surprise Minor: Wm. Bavin 1, A. W. T. Ginn 2, Francis G. Gleaves 3, F. C. Ginn 4, A. J. Ginn 5, F. Warrington (conductor) 6. Longest length in any method by treble ringer.

MEETINGS AT KENT SIX-BELL TOWERS.To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—As the members of this district will have the opportunity of discussing this matter at the annual district meeting which will be held at Edenbridge early next year, I do not think any good purpose can be obtained by continuing the discussion in 'The Ringing World,' and I therefore decline to answer the letters which appeared in last week's issue.

I should like to thank you for your excellent leading article, which, I think, admirably sums up the situation. Thanking you for the space you have kindly granted for the subject, yours faithfully,

W. LATTER,

Hon. District Secretary.

11, Dudley Road, Tunbridge Wells.

BENEFICIAL TO EIGHT-BELL RINGERS.

Dear Sir,—I see by your leader and by the way you have used the term as a heading, that my 'busy ringers' was rather misleading, but many of us country ringers are not fortunate to get every Saturday afternoon free; some of us have to work. I myself only get one in two free. But what time we do get, we like to make the most of, so that arrangements are often made for weeks ahead. That is why fixed dates are asked for, and as we are only asking for what is an accomplished and successful thing in some districts, we feel that it might be tried in our own. After all, would it not be better, even for the secretary, to have a fixed date to work on?

Fortunately, there are not many Deans of Gloucester, but, rather, the incumbents are pleased to welcome meetings at their towers and extend a welcome to 'come again.' I know that one was given at the annual meeting, but it was not taken. Was it because it came from a six-bell tower? After all, why should those eight-bell ringers fight shy of a six-bell tower? A little practice on six would be beneficial. Perhaps then they would get something more than Grandsire Doubles for their service ringing.

Finally, one word about the successful practices or meetings. Don't forget the beginners. Give them a fair chance, not put several in a touch together to struggle through as best they can. It is not very encouraging. I am a fairly young ringer myself, so I know, and that is why I have done little or nothing, even though I am apparently grumbling.—Yours truly,

ARTHUR H. SMITH.

HERTS COUNTY ASSOCIATION.EASTERN DISTRICT.

A very enjoyable gathering of the Eastern District was held at Sawbridgeworth on October 27th, not the least of the pleasure derived being from the meeting of some old friends. A service was held, at which the Rev. E. V. Beverley gave the address. The hymns were heartily sung, the organist kindly giving his services. Tea was prepared in the Church Room, and the business meeting followed. The Vicar presided and joined the association as an honorary member. He heartily welcomed the association to his church. Miss G. Russell, of the Sawbridgeworth band, was elected a member, and will, it is hoped, be the means of giving a lead to one or two other ladies who are in the early stages of ringing to join the association and help to bring the Sawbridgeworth band back to its one-time strength.—Mr. W. Prior, of Stansted, was elected a life member.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Vicar for his helpful address, his kind welcome, and for his presence at the tea and meetings, also for adding his name to the honorary members' list.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A very successful meeting of the Liverpool Branch of the Lancashire Association was held at St. Mary's, Grassendale, on Oct. 13th. A splendid tea, kindly provided by the Vicar, was partaken of, and was followed by a short business meeting. The Vicar presided, and in a few well-chosen words welcomed the branch to Grassendale after an absence of two years.

The Branch Secretary submitted a list of monthly meetings for 1929, which was adopted.

Mr. G. R. Newton informed the meeting of an interesting event—the unveiling and dedicating of a peal board recording three peals, Oxford Treble Bob Maximus, Cambridge Surprise Royal, and Cambridge Surprise Maximus, and the restoration of an old peal board recording two peals of Grandsire Caters and one of Grandsire Cinques, the first of which was rung in 1815, and was almost unreadable—to take place on Saturday, November 3rd. A further announcement of this will be found in another column.

It was resolved that Stedman Triples and Spliced Treble Bob Major be the methods for special attention at the next meeting.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for granting facilities for the meeting and for providing tea, to the towerkeeper (Mr. Allen) for having everything in readiness, and to the ladies for assisting at tea, brought a happy meeting to a close.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The golden wedding of the Archbishop of Canterbury and Mrs. Randall Davidson on Monday will, we hope, be marked by the ringing of every peal of bells in the country. It should be at once a celebration and a farewell, for on that day the Archbishop retires from the high office which he has so long and so nobly filled.

The Rev. F. Ll. Edwards, hon. secretary of the Salisbury Guild, who is the preacher to-morrow at the College Youths' annual service, is also preaching on Sunday evening at St. Clement Danes, where at 3.15 p.m. Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' is to be performed, and at 8.30 Brahms' 'Requiem.'

In addition to Messrs. A. Walker and W. Pye, Mr. J. E. Groves, of Birmingham, has also rung over 200 peals on twelve bells.

We are pleased to state that Admiral T. P. Walker, D.S.O. (hon. treasurer of the Guildford Diocesan Guild), who has been seriously ill with bronchial pneumonia, is now making slow but satisfactory progress.

Mr. Harold Walker, who was for some time hon. secretary of the Doncaster and District Society, but who, for the last four months, has been at Boston, has been promoted to the charge of the carriage and wagon department of the L.N.E.R. at Lincoln.

It was observed by many of those present at the annual meeting of the Worshipful Company of Musicians, held at Stationers' Hall, Ludgate Hill, on a recent evening, that while Sir Hugh Allen, Director of the Royal Academy of Music, was proposing the toast of the evening, the soft music of the bells from St. Paul's Cathedral seemed to form a most fitting background. It was a 'touch' of Cambridge Maximus, and when the Master of the company was responding, the middle six could be heard being lowered in peal. Mr. E. A. Young, the hon. secretary of the Central Council, is a Liveryman of the company.

The recent peal of Treble Bob Royal at Leek was not the first in the method for the North Staffs and District Association, as a peal was rung at Stafford on August 16th, 1924, conducted by J. E. Sykes.

A peal of 10,080 New Treble Bob Royal, which was the name by which the Kent Variation was first known, was rung at Huddersfield on November 13th, 1820.

The College Youths rang at Maidstone on November 15th, 1784, a peal of '5,040 Old Oxford Treble Bob Royal.'

A CALL FOR HELP.

APPEAL FOR WIDOW AND FAMILY OF A RINGER.

Ringers are ever ready with their practical sympathy when an appeal is made to them in a worthy cause. We, therefore, commend to the Exercise an appeal which is made for the widow and three young children of Mr. Edmund G. Bates, of Dartford, Kent, who, as recorded in our columns recently, was killed in a motor accident while driving a lorry on the Towcester-London road.

Mr. Bates had been a ringer since 1906, and since 1918 had been a member of the Holy Trinity band, Dartford. Illness and domestic troubles had sadly depleted the family finances, and when the tragic accident robbed the wife and three little children—one aged four and twins aged five months—of the breadwinner, they were left practically penniless. In course of time the widow will receive some assistance from compensation and other sources, but the inevitable legal delays leave her dependent upon the assistance of friends.

The present need for help is pressing. We are confident that the Exercise will respond with corresponding promptness and generosity. Contributions should be sent to Mr. T. Groombridge, jun., 127, Crayford Way, Crayford, Kent, and will be acknowledged in 'The Ringing World.'

WHERE THE TOWER FELL DOWN.

SUFFOLK GUILD MEETING AT ACTON.

A meeting of the Lavenham District was held at Acton on Saturday, when members were present from Polstead, Lavenham, Little Waldingfield, Long Melford, and the local band. The musical peal of five at All Saints' Church were rung during the afternoon to touches of Plain Bob, Grandsire, Stedman and St. Simon's Doubles. Tea was partaken of at the School Cottage, followed by a short business meeting, the Vicar (Rev. Harpur) being in the chair, supported by Mr. Edwards (churchwarden), and Mr. S. H. Symonds (district secretary).—Mr. Edwards was elected an honorary member, Mr. W. Andrews a performing member, and Mr. L. Pryke's previous election was confirmed.

Votes of thanks were accorded to the Vicar for presiding and for the use of the bells, to Mr. Edwards for attending, and to the ladies for the splendid tea.—The Vicar, in responding, mentioned the fact that the old tower fell down as a result of the Colchester earthquake in 1885, and the present tower was built as a thank offering by a former resident of Acton, for the survival of his son in the Tokio earthquake a few years ago.

It was proposed to hold the next meeting at Little Waldingfield on Saturday, November 24th.—The meeting concluded with a course of Bob Major on the secretary's 'pocket' set of handbells.

THE BELLS OF ST. MARTIN'S, BIRMINGHAM.

THE RECAST RING.

The new bells of St. Martin's Parish Church, Birmingham, are to be dedicated on Saturday afternoon, December 8th. The recast ring are now all in being at the Whitechapel Foundry, where on Friday last the two tenors were cast in the presence of a number of interested visitors, chief among whom were the Rector of Birmingham (Canon Guy Rogers) and Mrs. Rogers, and Mr. Albert Walker (Ringing Master of St. Martin's). The old foundry, with more than 350 years of history and experience behind it, has witnessed the casting of thousands upon thousands of bells, so that the scenes on Friday did not disturb the tranquil smoothness with which the business in hand was dealt with. There was the furnace, with two little channels running from it to what appeared to be merely basin-like hollows made in the earth. The moulds of the great bells were not visible—they were buried in the sand and out of sight—but those to whom the operation was a novelty gazed almost entranced at the stream of molten metal which was released at the psychological moment from the furnace to disappear into an aperture and apparently lose itself in mother earth, but in reality to form what everyone hopes will prove one of the grandest tenors of its weight in the world. And then, when the mould had been filled, skilful hands diverted the flow of metal to the other channel, and the 'eleventh' for St. Martin's was cast. The whole process was carried out, under the direction of Mr. A. A. Hughes, the head of the firm, with so little fuss that one hardly realised that one had been witness of an event of more than passing interest.

Press photographers were busy during the proceedings, and after the large bells had been made, Mrs. Rogers and Mr. Walker each cast a small bell from metal from the same furnace, as a memento of the occasion.

The visitors saw the other ten bells of the peal in the foundry. Some of them were tapped round, and octaves struck, and greatly pleased the critics.

St. Martin's, Birmingham, first had a peal of ten bells in the year 1758, and it is indeed remarkable that the peal of twelve, which is to replace the survivors of that original ten, have been cast on the self-same spot—in the very pit—where their predecessors of a hundred and seventy years ago were brought into being.

The new tenor will be heavier than the old one. The 1758 bell was reputed to be 36 cwt., but it turned out to be somewhat less than this. The new bell will, it is expected, be nearly 37 cwt., and in the key of C. The bells will be hung in the old frame, which is to be strengthened, but in modern fittings, including ball bearings, with Messrs. Mears and Stainbank's own device of clapper adjustment, which enables the most exact clappering to be obtained, and, when obtained, permanently secured.

On the new tenor bell will be the inscription:—

To the greater glory of God.

These twelve bells were recast and rehung at a cost of £1,025 by Mears and Stainbank, London, A.D. 1928, the cost being provided by the Bell Rope Croft Fund of the Parish Church, Birmingham. Canon T. Guy Rogers, B.D., M.C., Rector; J. J. Kendall, F. W. Blake, Churchwardens; E. G. Albert Walker, Ringing Master.

The Rev. Richd. Dovey, Rector; Carter Burton and Chrstr. Steadman, Ch. Wardens. Lester and Pack, of London, Fecit, 1758.

Possessed of deep sonorous tone, this Belfry King sits on his Throne, And when the merry bells go round, adds to and mellows ev'ry sound. So in a just and well-poised State, where all degrees possess due weight,

One greater power, one greater tone, is ceded to improve their own.

On the other bells the old inscriptions reappear, with the addition: 'Recast 1928, Mears and Stainbank, London.'

The Bell Rope Croft Fund, from which the recasting of the bells is to be defrayed, is a fund created by a legacy. Two hundred years or so ago a 'croft' of land was left by a testator for the provision of bell ropes for St. Martin's. That land is now part of the City of Birmingham, and its value, of course, has grown beyond the dreams of the generous individual who bequeathed it. The 'Rope Croft' not only now provides new ropes, but is providing new bells, and it has provided and will provide in the future many other things for Birmingham's Parish Church.

When the opening of the bells takes place there will be ringing after the service, and it is hoped that it may be possible to arrange a big social gathering in the evening.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS.

The peal at Harrold, Beds, recorded elsewhere in this issue, was arranged to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the first peal on the bells, which was rung on November 5th, 1898. Mr. C. W. Clarke called the first peal, and again called this one by the special request of the band.

The bells were restored in 1898 by Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, and they are still in as first-class running order as on the day they were opened. During the whole of the time there has been nothing done to the bells or frame except a coat of paint to the latter.

TWO ASSOCIATIONS MEET.

BIG GATHERING OF GUILDFORD AND MIDDLESEX RINGERS.

In the north-west corner of Surrey, the territories of the Guildford Diocesan Guild and the Middlesex County Association are divided only by the River Thames, and last Saturday the two organisations met at a joint gathering at Egham. It was the first venture of the kind for the Guildford Diocesan Guild, and so successful was it that it is hoped that gatherings of this nature may become an established feature in the programme of the Guild. Officially, the meeting was one in which the Chertsey District, which covers Thames-side and neighbouring towers, invited the South and West District of the Middlesex Association to join them; but the gathering resolved itself into something much more than this, for most of the Middlesex Association and Guildford Guild areas were represented, and, to add to the pleasure of the proceedings, there were many present from the neighbouring area of the Oxford Guild. Over sixty were present altogether, and the bells were going early in the afternoon. The local men had everything ready, and their cordial reception of the visitors was enhanced by the wholehearted welcome extended by the Vicar (the Rev. A. C. Tranter). The Guildford Guild's special service was conducted by the Vicar, the hymns used being 'Unchanging God' and 'The sacred bells of England.' Mr. J. A. Dart kindly presided at the organ, and the 'blower' was also enlisted from the congregation.

The Vicar's address from the lectern was one of welcome to the two associations, and of appreciation of the work of the ringers. He raised a smile when he spoke of the complaints he was likely to receive as the result of the ringing that day, but added that as a rule those who complained about bells would grumble at anything. He expected they would even grumble when they got to heaven at the monotony of the colour of the angels' wings.

Tea in the Church Hall was a very happy affair, when eventually accommodation had been found for everyone, for, as usual, there were many more present than had notified their intention of coming. The Vicar presided, and was supported by Messrs. C. T. Coles and W. H. Hollier (joint secretaries of the Middlesex Association), Mr. J. A. Trollope (hon. treasurer of the South and West District), Mr. F. W. Goodfellow (District Ringing Master), Mr. J. S. Goldsmith (hon. secretary of the Guildford Diocesan Guild), Mr. H. J. Chaffey (Chertsey District secretary), and Mr. W. T. Beeson (Chertsey District Ringing Master). Ringers were present from Christ Church and St. Mary's, Ealing, Southgate, Edmonton, St. John's, Hillingdon, St. Clement Danes, London, St. Andrew's, Uxbridge, Brixton, Guildford Cathedral, Chertsey, Bagshot, Walton, Yorktown, Egham, Thames Ditton, Ottershaw, Farnham, Putney, Kingston, Slough, Iwer, Maidenhead, Old Windsor, Cookham, etc.

There was no business transacted, but the meeting expressed its sense of regret at the death of Mr. J. D. Drewett (Master of the Surrey Association) by standing in silence for a few moments.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith expressed regret that the hon. treasurer of the Guild (Admiral T. P. Walker), who, he knew, had been looking forward to that meeting, was unable to be present owing to serious illness, and the meeting passed a resolution of sympathy and of good wishes for his speedy recovery.

Mr. Goldsmith also apologised for the absence of the Master of the Guild (Admiral T. P. Walker), who, he knew, had been looking went on to say how delighted the Guildford Guild was to welcome the members of the Middlesex Association and other visitors among them on that occasion. That meeting was an experiment so far as the Guildford Guild was concerned, but its success led to the hope that there would be many more such. The more they could rub shoulders the better they would be, both as ringers and men, and he hoped that when the Guildford Guild paid the return visit to the Middlesex Association at Sunbury next June the members would attend in equally large numbers.

Mr. W. H. Hollier acknowledged the welcome, and expressed the great pleasure which it gave the Middlesex members to visit their neighbours in this fraternal manner. When the suggestion for the joint meeting was made to him, he at once accepted, and they of the Middlesex Association were looking forward to the return visit next June. In the meantime the Middlesex Association was arranging for a similar fixture with their friends in the Oxford Guild.

Mr. C. T. Coles also acknowledged the reception given to the Middlesex members, and expressed his own pleasure at being present. In the North and East District of the Middlesex Association they had held similar joint meetings with members of the Herts and Essex Associations, and he was convinced that such gatherings did a great deal of good. It promoted friendship among ringers, and did away with that spirit of suspicion which sometimes crept in where associations came in contact with each other. They were not rivals, but all had the same objects in view. Mr. Coles concluded by proposing a vote of thanks to the Vicar for the service and address, for his welcome and for presiding at the tea, and this the Rev. A. C. Tranter acknowledged. Thanks were also accorded to Mr. Dart and Mr. Gilbert for their services at the organ.

Afterwards a little handbell ringing took place, and then the visitors returned to the tower, while others went back over the river to St. Peter's, Staines, where the bells had been placed at their disposal by the kindness of the Vicar, and where Messrs. G. Wainley and W. Parke had everything ready.

EXTENSION, NOMENCLATURE AND NONSENSE.

BY 'MINORMANIA.'

If a body of ringers were asked to vote upon a question of extension, ninety-nine per cent. would say that they preferred to leave the experts to fight their own battles: in fact, this is the line taken by the Central Council when asked for a decision regarding the Superlative Maximus peal. If asked whom they considered to be the experts, they probably would refer to those gentlemen who have been endeavouring to explain exactly what extension means, viz., Messrs. Baker, Law James, and Trollope.

This attitude of the 'man in the belfry' is largely the result of apathetic indifference, but to some degree it is due to the hopeless mixture of essentials and non-essentials in the mass of argument that is placed before him. The fact that he will not unduly disturb himself in an endeavour to understand is hardly a matter for wonder.

Personally, I have assiduously followed what has been written, and have tried to assimilate the best in the hope of deciding for myself who is right, but must admit that I am confused as to the ultimate aim of some writers. It is not easy for an average ringer to follow what is written; or, at least, to understand why it is written. Some of the articles obviously are intended to enlighten the man who does not know, and yet they are couched in terms that enlighten only the man who already knows—to whom the articles are unnecessary!

Mr. G. Baker's writings are frankly not intended to be elementary. Mainly, they consist of figures and statements, in support of certain theories and facts dealing with scientific argument for and against particular things.

The Rev. H. Law James has written a series of short articles, apparently with the intention of leading us to a certain way of thinking; but they seriously are lacking in explanation, and the examples, in some instances, very badly set forth. Before me, as I write, I have one dated December 9th, 1927, on 'Plain Bob.' I am given the six rows on three bells with '4' covering. I am told to 'hunt the tenor down to lead . . . between each section . . . (write it out in full) . . . and that I shall get Reverse Bob Minimus.

Well I don't, that's all! I have tried, but it does not come; I can get Bob Minimus, but not the Reverse. My stupidity, I expect, but there it is. For myself, this article is spoilt by lack of adequate example.

Then, on April 13th, 1928, I read that Cambridge Minor is Double Oxford, Double Court (and what not?), with the bare statement that 'this method is derived from the Plain Hunting Course . . .'; and along comes 'A Plain Ringer,' who, in a similar way and with only a treble hunt, proves that Bob Minor is Treble Bob! Again Mr. James' article is spoilt by lack of explanation.

And to what end has Mr. James striven? To show that Superlative Major may be extended to Maximus in two ways, either of which (apparently) has a perfectly valid 'scientific' claim to be called 'Superlative.' His summary of the articles appears to indicate that the naming of a particular extension depends entirely upon priority, and he resorts to 'Cambridge-with-plain-hunts' to support his argument. No wonder that the 'plain ringer' complains that the 'theorist pulls wool over his eyes.'

Mr. J. A. Trollope has made the best attempt to lead us to a solution of the problem. His articles are a careful and painstaking appeal to the every-day ringer, and, in spite of his dissertation on cycles and other things, he places his finger on the pulse—the 'work' of the method; he emphasises this one essential fact, that all methods can be extended in alternative ways, valid or otherwise. Both Messrs. James and Trollope have been at pains to convince us of this, and (mark this well) that certain ways have no more claim to be called correct than others. Mr. Baker will, I know, strongly disagree with this, but I am not arguing the 'scientific' side. I am aiming at a commonsense, everyday point of view—that of the man in the belfry.

Messrs. James and Trollope have shown us that Grandsire Triples is Bob Minor plus a bell in the hunt. Please note that 'plus.' This is very true, and a most obvious fact. Mr. Baker, by his Round Blocks, proves that Grandsire Triples (Bob Minor plus a bell in the 'hunt') and Bob Triples (Bob Minor plus a bell in the 'work') are not the same method. Again, a very true and obvious fact. But where is all of this leading us? Nowhere! One day we may know enough of the subject to enable us to agree upon a general and definite line of extension from a 'scientific' point of view, but in the meantime we want guidance in the naming of certain 'extensions.' Get that emphasis on the 'naming,' please. And this guidance should come from our governing body—the Central Council.

During the past few years we have followed the nomenclature controversy. Both 'nomenclature' and 'extension' have widely been discussed, but they have been kept severely apart. I want to express the opinion that this is all wrong, and that they are irrevocably bound: that the question of 'extension' is merely a question of 'nomenclature' and that I strongly disagree with the Rev. H. Drake's expressed opinion of 'one method one name,' for a reason which I hope to make clear.

Quite apart from any question of classification, the primary object in naming a method is for the easy recall to mind of its peculiarities. This could be arranged by numbers, but a name is more impressive upon the memory. A man who knows his 'Minor Methods' well may be unable to tell you the name of No. 39 Surprise, but he would very likely be able to quote the number of 'Cambridge.'

So, then, we name a method in order to be able easily to visualise it. And to visualise what? The rows, the false course ends, or the Round Blocks? No! The vast majority are interested solely in the 'work.' 'Go Cambridge' tells us immediately what to do. Then the first bearing of the name should be upon the diagram, and other considerations should come after.

Let us agree that a certain method can be extended in many ways. Believe me, it is quite true. It may become an entirely different method; in fact, it certainly will do so. Bob Minor becomes Bob Major on eight, but the two extra bells have caused it to be no longer the same method. No amount of Round Blocks, Secondary Cycles, Bells-in-the-hunt, etc., can alter the fact that Bob Major is not, and never will be, Bob Minor.

Why, then, do we name this particular Major method 'Plain Bob'? Simply and solely because it is the nearest approach to the Minor work that an eight-bell method will give. Simply because, given ropesight, a Minor man easily can adapt himself to the Major, a Major man to Royal, and so on. Or, if you prefer, because a Maximus man can, by similar rules or diagrams, ring the Royal, Major, and Minor of 'this method.'

I learned Kent Treble Bob Minor in a certain way; later, I found that by slightly modifying my rules I could ring the Major and Royal. Mark that 'slightly,' please. I have found that Cambridge Minor will carry me through the Major and Royal without a deal of trouble, and examination of the diagram (or work) of the Maximus tells me that it is fully entitled to be called 'Cambridge.' In this connection, I certainly believe that, given ropesight, two Cambridge Minor bands could ring the Maximus; but perhaps 'B. Sharp' will be appeased if I modify Mr. James' alleged statement, and say that six Cambridge Maximus men undoubtedly could ring Cambridge Minor.

But nothing will convince me that Lincolnshire Major could, by any stretch of imagination, lay claim to the name of 'Cambridge.' The emphasis is upon the 'name.' Lincolnshire may be, it probably is, a scientific and valid extension of Cambridge Minor of some sort; but thinking of my Cambridge Minor does not help me to ring much of the Lincolnshire Major, except (perhaps) the 5/6 place making.

For this reason, as a man in the belfry, I am content with 'Cambridge' for the name of that Major method with which it is coupled, and I shall remain so until an extension is produced which is nearer to the work of the Minor. 'Round Blocks' tell me that the Minor and Major disagree; Mr. W. Taylor tells me that Lincolnshire has more right to the name of Cambridge! but 'Round Blocks' and Mr. Taylor can go. The work is my guide when deciding between the two methods. Mr. Trollope calls it the 'inherited experience of the Exercise,' and it is the essential factor; point first to the 'work,' and let all other things follow. If Lincolnshire had come 100 years earlier as 'Cambridge,' then, I hope, upon the appearance of our well-tried friend a century later, that the 'Lincolnshire-Cambridge' would have been given another name. And to blazes with history!

It is absurd to bolster theories with continual references to 'historical facts.' If the latter are in direct opposition to present-day common sense the hoary mistakes must go. History has given us false peals and worthless methods, and they have gone. The Methods Committee itself, of which Mr. James is an illustrious member, has given us a Major method named 'Shipway's Court.' Is it as given by Shipway? I think not. In fact, an 'historical fact' has been modernised and has become 'Shipway's Court.' It is an historical fact that Nelson fought and won Trafalgar, but his wooden ships would have had a thin time at Jutland.

Why the Central Council cannot stand firm in the extension question, and say that it will lay down so-and-so, is beyond comprehension. It is quite capable of so doing in spite of a member's depreciatory remarks about the Superlative Maximus resolution. It has so done in the past. It has told us that we may use only Bob Major lead-ends, and has debarred 'irregular' methods; it has classified methods and defused peals. In accepting the 'Collection of Major Methods' it has forced upon us the 'two-hunt' extensions of Major to Caters, which (apparently) have the same names as the Major, in spite of the fact that the 'two-hunt' extension of Bob Major is called Grandsire Caters. And, right or wrong, its decisions generally are accepted.

We grouse about the doings of the Central Council, but this is mainly due to its procrastination, its desire, apparently, to be 'blinded' by science—in other words, to be led by its nose; but in spite of all that we say we are fairly loyal to its rules and decisions.

For better or worse the Central Council must tackle this 'Extension-Nomenclature' question, and it is a pity if the work of the Burton Committee goes for naught. Much good could come from this if only the Council would take the trouble to give it due consideration. To have scrapped it altogether was a wanton act and one well worthy of the Council's brightest efforts. The committee's suggestions could be modified and some of them used, as some sort of general control will have to come. Mr. James has bemoaned the confusion arising from the existing Superlative Royal and Maximus, but it is 'SUCCESSFUL'To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—A week's indisposition has prevented me writing about the list of names, but I must get up enough energy to ask what makes a meeting successful?

Is it such a large attendance that many who come have no chance of getting into the belfry, let alone of ringing? Or is it so small an attendance that everyone who comes has a chance of ringing something he cannot get at home, and where each feels after the meeting that he is a better ringer than he was before? We have had both experiences this year, and it would be difficult to say that one was more 'successful' than the other.

Some would say it depends on the number of towers represented, or the wideness of the area so covered; while others would say it depends on the influence which it has on the local band.

Is it the number of methods rung, or their difficulty? The perfection of the striking, or the help given to beginners? The number of new members roped in, or the addition to the skill and satisfaction of the old members?

More logically, is it the amount of business got through in the shortest time, or is it the carefulness of the discussion and the number of people who have been got to speak on it?

I am not asking these questions because I do not agree with your article: I should like to endorse every word of it. At the present time ringing depends on our societies. A ringer who does not support, as far as he fairly can, first his own company and then his own association, is in the position of a 'scab' or a 'blackleg' to a trades union. Every ringer should keep his own company's practice night sacred to that practice, and every ringing company should try to send as many members as they can to their association meetings, peals and other arrangements being postponed when necessary.

But, when all is said and done, there can be quite as successful results from small meetings as from large ones; and every secretary should feel he has neglected something, if he has not only had a fair number of six and five-bell tower meetings, but also at least one small meeting, in the way of members present, each year.

BRISTOL GUILDS' CAMPAIGN.To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The Bristol United Ringing Guilds are campaigning among ringers who have left off ringing for some reason.

We have in the Bristol Guild's area a total list of over 160 ringers who would be extremely useful if they could be persuaded to return. These have been (or will be) invited to a reunion evening, November 30th, and I should be extremely grateful if association secretaries, who may know of any ringers having left their home towers to work in Bristol or vicinity, would let me know.

We also suggest this scheme of stimulus to other associations and Guilds.—Yours faithfully,

EDGAR GUISE,
Hon. Secretary.

39, Tankard's Close, St. Michael's, Bristol.

no question of isolated cases. The matter must be tackled in its entirety, and this is what the Burton Committee offered to do.

If the Central Council will appoint a committee to decide what factors shall govern the naming of methods, the extension controversy will die. The committee should be representative and well leavened with practical ringers, and I have no hesitation in saying that a decision could be given. I will court ridicule, and, incidentally, commit myself to heresy, in stating that the factors should be as follow:—

First (and foremost), the diagram (or work).

Secondly, the lead-end, coursing order, and matters practical.

Thirdly, false course-ends and composite considerations.

Lastly (very much so), 'scientific' reasons for or against, in some sort of classified order.

My reasons for this classification? I have already said that a name is a matter of convenience. It should, then, appeal first to the majority, and we have (1) dozens of ringers for every conductor, (2) dozens of conductors for every composer, and (3) dozens of composers for every 'scientist.'

And I am going to carry my nonsense to its logical conclusion. Recently, in a tower, a friend suggested that I should try a course of a method I had never seen, and, naturally, I refused. He then thrust a diagram upon me, and said, 'Study those places, observe the five-pull dodging, and then ring Double Norwich.' I shall always think of that method as 'Double Norwich Surprise Major,' but I am compelled to remember that it is named 'Norfolk'!

Congenital young idiot, you say? Yes, I know! (I did not read the 'first ever,' and I have not steered hundreds of colts through their first peals). Yet, in spite of what I have written, I have a deep respect for bearded experience and its 'natural extension'—historical fact. But when the one borders upon senility and the other becomes a barnacled monstrosity, my respect suffocates and dies. Slowly, perhaps, but surely!

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.A REVISED 'RULE BOOK.'

Monday last was the 291st anniversary of the founding of the Ancient Society of College Youths, and, in accordance with custom, the members will celebrate the event with a dinner to-morrow at the London Tavern, Fenchurch Street, when a large muster of Metropolitan and provincial members and friends is expected.

Coincident with this event, a revised edition of the society's 'Rules' makes its appearance, and will assuredly be welcomed by the members, as it would be by others in the Exercise, if it were open to purchase. It is far more than a rule book. Produced in elegant style and in a manner befitting a society with such traditions, it contains admirable reproductions of the society's famous certificate, which was engraved by Bartolozzi, of the chased brass plate on the cover of the original Name Book of the society, and of the elegantly designed 'Invitation card' which was used in the eighteenth century. Only two copies of this card are known to exist, and these are now in the British Museum and the Guildhall Library. Had one lived in those days the invitation card would not easily have been mislaid, for it measured ten inches by eight inches! Another illustration is that of some of the most cherished property of the society, including the silver bell, the cups and the candlesticks which adorn the Master's table at the meetings of the society.

The booklet contains a concise history of the society, which was founded in 1637, its name being derived, according to Dr. Raven, from 'The College of the Holy Ghost and Hospital of God's House,' founded by the famous Dick Whittington in 1424. This college was situated upon the east side of College Hill, Upper Thames Street, in the City of London. The first Master was Lord Brereton, and the second Sir Cliffe Clifton, who were among those who founded the society.

A list of the Masters from 1637 to 1755, and from 1822 down to the present year, is given. Unfortunately, the custom of recording in the Name Book the Master for each year fell into abeyance, and there is consequently no record of those who occupied the office in the interval. The list contains some famous names, including Fabian Stedman, Benjamin Annable, and at least one Lord Mayor of London, Sir Henry Tulse, who was elected to the office in 1684. A list of notable performances is given, and following the actual rules themselves is an inventory of the society's property, which is varied and interesting, and among which the irreplaceable record books are the most cherished.

There should be a great demand for this little publication, and College Youths the world over will, we are sure, be anxious to possess a copy of it. It will be on sale to-morrow at the dinner, when the price at which it will be published will be announced. The work of revision has been admirably carried out by a committee consisting of the Master (Mr. J. S. Hawkins), the hon. secretary (Mr. W. T. Cockerill), the hon. treasurer (Mr. A. A. Hughes), and Messrs. G. N. Price, W. Roughton and E. Alex. Young.

BELL LECTURE AT WINCHESTER COLLEGE

On Sunday evening, October 28th, Mr. Nolan Golden, of North-repps, Norfolk, a student at King Alfred College, Winchester, gave an interesting lecture on 'The history and manufacture of English church bells' to an audience of upwards of forty in the Science Lecture Room. Among those present were a number of the Cathedral ringers, including Mr. Wilfred Andrews, the captain, and several tutors and students of the college.

Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, provided lantern slides, and Mr. Golden wishes, through the medium of this paper, to thank them for their kindness. Mr. E. A. Young also supplied the lecturer with valuable information in an interesting correspondence.

Following a description of the introduction of bells into England, and of the gradual equipment of towers with rings, the lecturer went on to speak of inscriptions on old bells, gave an account of the history of bell tones, and explained in detail the object aimed at in 'Simpson tuning.'

The whole process of founding was next dealt with, and the evolution of a set of bells from the casting stage to the hanging in the tower was explained with the help of the slides.

The lecturer next explained the difference between a 'ring' of bells and a 'carillon,' pictures of several examples of each being shown. Some famous big bells cast by Messrs. Taylor and Co., such as 'Great Peter' of York, 'Great Paul,' and 'Great George' at Bristol University, were also depicted, and the lecturer explained how they were used.

At the end of the talk Mr. Andrews invited any members of the college who were interested to visit the Cathedral on any Sunday afternoon in order to see the twelve bells there actually ringing.

There are four ringers now in residence at the college.

HANDSWORTH, SHEFFIELD.—For evensong, October 7th, a quarter-peal of Bob Major in 15 mins.: Aircraftman Godden (Grantham) 1, J. Taylor 2, Miss E. Hopkin 3, A. Bashford 4, Miss N. Cawthorne 5, J. Garth 6, F. Curdwell 7, F. Watkinson (conductor) 8. Arranged for first quarter-peal for the ringer of the 4th, and for the treble ringer, who was a member of the local company previous to joining the Air Force.

DURHAM & NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION. ANNUAL MEETING AT NEWCASTLE.

The annual meeting of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association, which is held alternatively at the two Cathedral cities, was held in Newcastle on October 27th. After a committee meeting in the vestry the festival service was held in the choir of the Cathedral, the address being given by the Rector of Gateshead, Canon Stephenson, who described his strange experiences in a broadcasting studio, with only the announcer present, but talking to thousands of unseen listeners. He compared this to the ringer in the belfry, with only his fellow-ringers to be seen, but a vast congregation in the streets around having their thoughts thrown back to events in their lives connected with the sound of the bells.

The dinner and annual meeting were held at the Crown Hotel, about sixty members and friends being present, Mr. C. L. Routledge, president, being in the chair. The clergy present were Bishop G. J. Wood (Vicar of Jesmond), Canon Holmes (Tynemouth, curate of the Cathedral). After the loyal toast, Mr. William Story (Newcastle) proposed the health of 'The clergy of the two dioceses,' and made a strong appeal to the members not to neglect their duty as churchmen after they had done their duty in the belfry on Sundays. The Bishop responded in a delightfully humorous speech.

MR. E. E. FERRY, THE NEW PRESIDENT.

The hon. treasurer (Mr. G. S. Taylor, Sunderland) presented the financial statement, which showed a balance on the right side of £14 7s. 2d., which was considered very satisfactory in view of the fact that a full report had been published this year.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. E. E. Ferry, Newcastle), read the 51st annual report, and also referred to his work during the eight years of his secretaryship in building up the association again after the war. He reported that the first certificate for Sunday service ringing (8, 10 and 12-bell towers) had been won by Christ Church, North Shields, and the second by St. Ignatius, Sunderland, Newcastle Cathedral being third. Of the six-bell towers, Hurworth-on-Tees came first, and St. Oswald's, Durham, second. Forty-eight peals had been rung during the year, Mr. E. A. Hern breaking all records of the association by conducting 21 of them.

Mr. J. C. Pollard, president of the Cleveland and North Yorkshire Association, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the officers for their work during the year, and the officers for the coming year were elected as follow: President, Mr. E. E. Ferry; secretary, Mr. G. S. Taylor; treasurer, Mr. J. W. Parker; editorial secretary, Mr. C. L. Routledge; and auditor, Mr. J. F. Bird.

In the course of a general discussion, Mr. C. Todd, Darlington, elicited the fact that owing to the expense the peal book had not been written up for some years, and the new secretary undertook to have this remedied as soon as possible.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

LEWISHAM DISTRICT OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

The annual meeting of the Lewisham District was held at St. Mary's, Woolwich, on Saturday, October 27th, 1928. During the afternoon the bells were made good use of in all the standard methods from Grandfire Triples to London Surprise.

Service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. A. W. Pickering), who gave a very interesting address. Tea, provided by the generosity of St. Mary's ringers, was efficiently served by their wives and friends. Some fifty members partook of the repast, but, despite their best efforts, failed to dispose of all the good things provided, a sufficient indication of the burden under which the tables groaned.

The business meeting followed, the Vicar presiding. The secretary read a report on the work of the past year, and this was adopted.

NORFOLK GUILD. THE PROPOSED REORGANISATION.

A general meeting of the Norfolk Guild was held at King's Lynn on Saturday, October 27th, when, by the kind permission of the Rev. Jacob Blackbourne, C.M.G., M.A., Vicar of King's Lynn, the ring of ten bells at St. Margaret's and the ring of eight bells at St. Nicholas' were placed at the disposal of the members. Letters of apology for non-attendance were received from the president (the Archdeacon of Norwich), the Archdeacon of Lynn, the Rev. J. Blackbourne, and Mr. B. S. Thompson. The Rev. A. N. Garrett (curate of King's Lynn) was voted to the chair, in the absence of the president of the Guild. He was supported by the secretary (Mr. Arthur L. Coleman), the Rev. B. H. Tyrwhitt-Drake, the Rev. R. L. B. Oliver, Messrs. W. J. Eldred, C. S. Tuthill and twenty-four members from the King's Lynn and Fakenham Districts.

The Secretary moved the ratification of the belfry election of Mr. Frederick Dench, prior to peal on August 15th, 1928.—Mr. Coleman also moved, and Mr. J. H. Roper seconded, the election of the Rev. Robert Lewis Baillie Oliver, M.A., Vicar of Dersingham, as honorary ringing member of the Guild.

The Secretary announced the resignation of Mr. George Hawes, district secretary, King's Lynn, and moved that Mr. William J. Eldred be elected district secretary for King's Lynn, and the motion was carried unanimously.

The Secretary then gave a brief outline on the suggested reorganisation of the Guild into divisions coterminous with the three archdeaconries of the diocese of Norwich, in place of the eleven existing districts, and said that in the event of the divisions taking their titles from those of their respective archdeaconries, he thought it would be quite a logical course for the Guild to revert to its old diocesan title, viz., 'The Norwich Diocesan Association.' Mr. Coleman pointed out that there was a movement amongst some of the associations and Guilds bearing territorial titles to adopt diocesan titles where possible, and he thought such a movement to be in the right direction in consideration of the ringing Guilds and associations being so closely bound up with the work of the Church, and being purely diocesan in character, and, fortunately, no longer secular, as they once were. However, he would leave the matter there, and invite the members present to discuss the subject, for which the meeting was especially summoned.

Mr. W. J. Eldred said he thought that the only means of obtaining a real expression of opinion from the members on the matter of reorganisation was by a circular in the form of a questionnaire to all members, the attendances at the general meeting of the Guild being too small to take a vote upon such an important matter.—Mr. Eldred moved, and Mr. W. Curston seconded, that a circular be drawn up in the form of a questionnaire, and be sent to all members resident in Norfolk.—The motion was carried.

Mr. C. S. Tuthill said that he would be strongly against any change in the present title. He thought 'The Norfolk Guild' was the right one.

The Secretary (Mr. Arthur L. Coleman) moved a vote of thanks to the Rev. J. Blackbourne for the use of the bells of St. Margaret's and St. Nicholas' Churches, and for the use of the Chapter Court in St. Nicholas' Church for holding the meeting, and also to the Rev. A. N. Garrett for presiding.—The Rev. R. L. B. Oliver moved a vote of thanks to the secretary (Mr. Arthur L. Coleman), who responded gratefully to the kind remarks made.

The members then adjourned to the belfries of St. Margaret's and St. Nicholas', where some good touches were rung in the standard methods of Triples, Caters, Major and Royal, and so ended a useful and successful meeting.

The election of one member previous to a peal at Beckenham was confirmed.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the re-appointment of the retiring district secretary (Mr. A. G. Hill) and two Central Committee representatives.

St. John's, Lewisham, was chosen as the place for the next quarterly meeting in January.

Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., notified the members that a member of Holy Trinity, Dartford, band of ringers, Mr. E. Bates, had met with a fatal accident while at work, and had left his widow in straitened circumstances, with three children to support. Mr. Bates had been a member of the association for a great number of years.

Mr. W. J. Jeffries moved, Mr. W. Smith seconded, and it was decided, that an application for aid be sent to the association's Benevolent Committee on behalf of Mrs. Bates.—The secretary was instructed to convey the meeting's sympathy to Mrs. Bates.

Mr. F. W. Thornton moved a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells, for conducting the service and for presiding at the meeting, to the ringers for their generous hospitality, to the ladies for attending to the catering, and to the organist (Mr. R. Scates) for his services. The motion was carried with applause, and the Vicar, in responding, invited any member who was able to help his hand on their practice night (Tuesday).—Mr. Scates also responded, as did Mr. Aldridge (leader) and Mr. C. E. Palmer (local secretary) on behalf of the ringers and ladies respectively.

This concluded a successful meeting, and after some handbell ringing the company returned to the tower for further touches.

THE COLLEGE YOUTHS.

Those who had the good fortune to attend the annual dinner of the Ancient Society of College Youths on Saturday were impressed with the growth of popularity of the event and the way in which the social atmosphere of the occasion has been developed. In numbers the gathering was easily a record one, and once again ringers came from distant parts of the country to do honour to the old society and to enjoy the reunion which the opportunity presents. Wrapt in the mists of the past, the College Youths represent the greatest traditions of ringing. They have always worthily upheld the best standards in our art, and even to-day it is the proudest boast of many members of the Exercise that they belong to this ancient society.

Except, however, to a few privileged people who have had time and opportunity to delve into the past, the origin and history of the College Youths have been largely a closed book, and there has been to all outward appearance a kind of studied reticence in regard to its affairs. The Exercise, let alone the general public, has heard but little of its doings and yet it is largely through the College Youths that the art of change ringing has its roots so deeply and securely implanted in the centuries. It is really the parent of all our ringing organisations, and yet we do not hesitate to say that outside a comparatively small circle less is known about it than about any other society in the country. From time to time appeals have been made for a little more of the light of publicity to be let in upon its activities, but up to now little, except the reports of its peals and annual dinner, transpires. And yet there must be many interesting matters discussed and resolutions passed in the meeting room. There was one debate quite recently which, had the particulars been published, would have created a stir, if not a sensation, in the Exercise, so that it cannot be urged that the proceedings are always humdrum and therefore of no interest. Even though the affairs of the society may be held to be no concern of anyone else; the members spread all over the country are, as one speaker put it on Saturday, entitled to know what is going on, and the publication of its proceedings would give them an added interest in their society.

A step towards making more widely known the story of its beginnings and history has been taken by the issue of the booklet, to which we referred last week, and which, we are now informed, is on general sale to members and non-members alike, and there should be a big demand for this brochure which is an interesting addition to ringing literature. Having thus dealt with the past, we hope the members will further develop this policy by giving a greater publicity to contemporary matters. Publicity is the life blood of modern progress, and if the Ancient Society came out of what another speaker described as its 'cloistered seclusion,' it would doubtless become, to an even greater extent than it is at present, a national society.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION. SOUTH-WESTERN DIVISION.

The South-Western Division District annual meeting, held at Leyton on Saturday, November 10th, was in all respects a most successful one. The bells were raised at 3 p.m., and were soon being made use of by the early arrivals, several of whom made a call on their way to the College Youths' dinner. At 4.30 the association service, taken by the Vicar (the Rev. Robert Bren), was attended by those present, one innovation being, instead of the hymn before the address, a splendidly rendered solo, 'Open the gate of the Temple,' by Miss Margery Dawson, A.T.C.L. Service over, trucks were made to the Parish Hall, where a splendid tea, kindly given by the Vicar, was awaiting the members. During the interval, whilst tables were being cleared, the visitors were entertained by Miss Miller and friends with some splendid tune ringing on the handbells, another item which was greatly appreciated.

The business meeting, presided over by the Vicar, supported by Mr. C. H. Howard, Master of the association, and Mr. A. Prior, Master of the district, followed. The Rev. Robert Bren, Vicar of Leyton, was elected an honorary member, together with two new ringing members.

The retiring officers, Messrs. A. Prior, District Master, and E. J. Butler, district hon. secretary, were unanimously re-elected, and it was decided to hold the next meeting early in the new year at Chigwell Row, where the peal of six has recently been augmented to eight.

During the year the district had to lament the loss of four old members by death, viz., Messrs. J. Scholes, M. Pettit, H. T. Scarlett and J. Marks, of the West Ham, Waltham Abbey, Walthamstow St. Saviour's, and Wanstead bands respectively, and the members present stood in silence for two minutes as a token of respect and feeling for their old comrades.

The meeting concluded with a hearty vote of thanks to all those who had contributed to making it so successful, i.e., the Vicar for conducting the service and allowing use of tower, bells and hall, and for kindly providing the tea; the organist for accompanying at the service, Miss Dawson for her solo, Miss Miller and her friends for the handbell ringing, and to Mrs. Bren and ladies for arranging and waiting on the members at tea, also to Mr. Mark Hicks, Vicar's warden, for his words of welcome, and help during the afternoon.

The collection in aid of the association Bell Restoration Fund amounted to £1 2s. 3d.

During the afternoon and evening between 70 and 80 members and friends were present from Braintree, Leytonstone, Woodford, Wanstead, Bentley, Romford, West Ham, Southgate, Leyton, Leigh-on-Sea, Loughton, Swindon, St. Margaret's Westminster, Walthamstow St. Mary's, St. Clement Dances, Egerton (Kent), Buckfastleigh, Great Bentley, and Edmouton, and touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, Kent Treble Bob, Double Norwich, Plain Bob, Cambridge, Superlative, and London Surprise were rung.

DEATH OF MR. ARTHUR HULL.

On Monday, October 29th, Mr. Arthur Hull, a ringer at St. Peter's Church, St. Albans, for a period of over 53 years, passed away suddenly. He took a keen interest in ringing. He took part in several peals, and acted as umpire to handbell peals. He was steeplekeeper for many years until failing health compelled him to resign the position. About three years ago, on medical advice, he discontinued active membership of the St. Peter's Society, but would come into the tower occasionally to lend a hand, the last time being for the harvest festival on Sunday, October 7th, when he rang the treble to Bob Royal and Stedman Caters.

The funeral took place on Friday, November 2nd, the first part of the service being in St. Peter's Church, and the interment at St. Albans cemetery. The officiating minister was the Rev. F. W. B. Bullock (curate), who himself is a probationer in the tower. The organist and choirboys kindly attended at the church and sang the hymns, 'Abide with me' and 'Now the labourer's task is o'er,' the 90th Psalm and the Nunc Dimittis. Several of deceased's brother ringers attended the service, including Mr. G. W. Cartmel (the president and hon. secretary of the Herts Association).

In the evening the last 742 of Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples was rung at St. Peter's, with the bells half-muffled, by members of the St. Peter's Society, with the assistance of Mr. J. Malyon, the conductor of the St. Stephen's Society, who came at short notice to fill the place of a member who was incapacitated from ringing.

A wreath was sent from the members of the society 'in loving remembrance.'

FINCHLEY RINGER'S DEATH.

On Monday, November 12th, there was laid to rest all that was mortal of Ernest H. Tubbs, who died suddenly at the age of 52 years. He was an old and respected Sunday service ringer, having for 30 years been connected with the Parish Church of St. Mary, Finchley, and he was also a member of the Middlesex County Association. Among the wreaths sent was one from the local band.

A 720 of Bob Minor was rung with the bells half-muffled as a last mark of respect by: G. Saunders 1, W. J. Norton 2, C. H. Martin 3, B. Windmill 4, E. Boufield 5, F. Barker 6.

LIVERPOOL RECORDS, 1814-1928.

PEAL BOARDS UNVEILED AT ST. NICHOLAS' CHURCH.

Saturday, November 3rd, 1928, is a date that will live long in the memory of those present at the unique ceremony which was held in the belfry of St. Nicholas' Church, Liverpool. It was the occasion of the unveiling of a pair of boards, each 10ft. high and 3ft. wide, on which six peals rung on the bells are recorded. The boards are painted black, with gold lettering and contain about 3,000 letters. They are a splendid example of the signwriter's art, and were executed by Mr. Ernest Jones (one of the St. Nicholas' ringers), who is to be congratulated on his excellent workmanship. One board records that the opening of the new peal of twelve bells, cast by William Dobson, of Downham, Norfolk, took place on June 4th, 1814, and that on May 29th, 1815, a peal of Grandsire Caters (5,129 changes) was rung by the Liverpool College Youths in 3hr. 29mins.; and one of Grandsire Cinques (5,126 changes) on January 12th, 1821, in 3hrs. 37mins., both being conducted by William Thistlewood. On January 31st, 1831, another peal of Grandsire Caters (5,219 changes) was rung in 3hrs. 26mins. by the Liverpool Society, and conducted by John Heron. The foregoing peals had already been recorded in the tower, but the inscriptions had become indecipherable through age, and, with the full consent of the Rector and churchwardens, it was decided to have them repainted.

The second board records a peal of Oxford Treble Bob Maximus (5,038 changes), rung for the first time in Liverpool on February 12th, 1827, in 4hrs. 3mins.; a peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal (5,040 changes) in 3hrs. 51mins., which was rung with the bells half-muffled during the actual time the funeral of the late Bishop of Liverpool (Dr. Chavasse) was taking place at the Cathedral; and, finally, a peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus (5,280 changes) on May 5th, 1928, this being the first peal in the method in the North of England. Each peal on the second board was conducted by E. Jenkins.

The spacious ringing chamber was packed to its capacity with ringers from many parts of Lancashire and Cheshire, when Canon J. C. H. How (Rector of Liverpool) welcomed Canon H. J. Elsee (president of the Lancashire Association) to St. Nicholas'. He stated that he had no need to introduce Canon Elsee to them, as he was well known to all as an old ringer, but he would ask him to say a few words before the unveiling of the boards.

Canon Elsee said that this occasion took their minds back to the very early history of ringing in Liverpool. In those days the art in Liverpool was not as advanced as it was to-day, and they had to go to Sheffield, Birmingham, and Ashton-under-Lyne in order to get a band of sufficient ability to ring their peals. Nowadays, he was pleased to say there was no need to go outside Liverpool in order to get a band to ring any method. He felt that these early peals were worth commemorating, as in those days bells did not go as easily as now. Tenors, for instance, were not 'tucked up' as they were to-day, and it must have been a feat of endurance as well as of skill to accomplish a peal. They would notice that the eleventh and tenor were always rung double-handed. Forty years ago, when he first became acquainted with Lancashire ringing, it was mostly confined to two or three methods. Grandsire was the most popular, Stedman was just coming into vogue and also a few Treble Bob methods were rung. Since then there had been a remarkable extension in the scope of ringing. There was no doubt that peal ringing in such difficult methods was an indication of the life and strength of the association, but it must be remembered that was not the primary object of the Lancashire Association. He heartily congratulated the band who rang the peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus.

The boards were then unveiled by Canon Elsee, and a flash-light photograph taken, following which a service was held in the church, conducted by the Rev. Canon How, at which an interesting address was given by Archdeacon Howson. Taking as his text Proverbs viii. 4, 'Unto you, O men, I call, and my voice is to the sons of men,' he said he rejoiced with them that day in the commemoration of the peals rung in that tower. It was a contribution to the great effort of historians and antiquarians to ensure that in the rush of modern life the great things of old should not be forgotten. A man whose name was before us very affectionately this year—John Bunyan—was in his 'unregenerate' days a great ringer. The belfry in those days was the 'resort of idle fellows who found pleasure in plucking the strings.' In his new life the ringing of bells became a means of expressing joy, as he wrote in his 'Book of the Holy War.' The bells they handled, said the preacher, were a voice which sounded in three ways. They were part of the life and ministry of the Church. The peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal was rung as a token of deep respect to the late Bishop Chavasse, who was a devoted servant of God, and for 23 years was the head of that diocese. They thanked God for his ministry. In the second place they were a call to worship. The only place where a bell was mentioned in the Prayer Book was in the preface, 'Concerning the service of the church.' Bells used to be rung when there was a sermon during the service, and also at the administration of Holy Communion. Ringers were doing what missionaries did for this country in the days of long ago—they were sending out a message from the Great Father. Then, again, the voice of the bells was a call to service. Bells were rung on great national occasions, thus linking up temporal work with spiritual work.

An adjournment was afterwards made to the Church Institute, where a substantial repast had been prepared, to which about 80 persons sat down, and the merry clatter of knives and forks betokened that the good things provided were being heartily appreciated.

Amongst those present, in addition to those already mentioned, were Messrs. J. A. Bartlett and E. S. Legge (churchwardens), Harry Chapman, W. H. Shuker, W. James, H. W. Wilde, P. Barton, T. Barlow, J. H. Riding and W. Bibby.

Canon Elsee, in proposing a vote of thanks to those who had provided the tea, and those who had waited upon them, said how pleased he was to be with them on that enjoyable and interesting occasion. The last time he was in Liverpool was in August, 1927, when he sailed for South Africa. He had seen some strange bells since then, and was glad to be back in the centre of Lancashire ringing.

Mr. Claude I. Davies (secretary of the Liverpool Branch of the Lancashire Association) seconded, saying it was quite a holiday for him to attend a meeting without having the responsibility of arranging it.

Mr. G. R. Newton, in responding, said that the tea had been provided by the ringers of St. Nicholas', who felt that on such an auspicious occasion they should 'let themselves go,' and he hoped everyone had enjoyed themselves. He had had apologies for absence from Mr. J. Waghorn, sen., Mr. Banks (vice-president), Mr. E. W. Elwell (secretary of the Chester Diocesan Guild), and Mr. E. Jenkins. He would like to say a few words about Mr. Jenkins in praise of his abilities. Soon after he came to that district he was known in Cheshire as the 'lightning conductor,' while someone in Liverpool christened him 'the live wire.' He was a most capable conductor, and his characteristics could be summed up in Kipling's words:—

'He's little, but he's wise;

He's a terror for his size' (laughter and applause).

Some interesting reminiscences of 'the good old days' of ringing in Liverpool were recounted by Mr. F. W. Moore, Mr. W. G. Mann, and Mr. Hargreaves. A couple of touches on the handbells concluded this part of the programme, and the tower was again visited and various methods rung.

So ended a most successful and unique gathering, one in which veterans of the art mingled with some of the youngest learners, and where old friends met and had interesting chats over the days of long ago, and Mr. G. R. Newton, who was responsible for all arrangements, is to be heartily complimented on the success of his efforts to ensure that everyone should enjoy themselves.

WINDSOR.—On Armistice Day, at the Parish Church, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: J. Foreman 1, E. S. T. Farr 2, W. Phipps 3; R. Gale 4, T. Smith 5, J. W. Croft 6, L. Stilwell (conductor) 7, J. H. Cropley 8. —After service, 504 Grandsire Triples, conducted by T. Farr.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

DEVIZES BRANCH MEETINGS.

The monthly meeting of the Devizes Branch was held at the Minster Church of St. Denys, Warminster, on Saturday, November 3rd. The Guild service was held, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. A. R. Bellars, M.A.), the churchwardens, Mr. Shore and Mr. Day, being present. Tea followed at the Magnet Tea Rooms, the Vicar and Mr. Day being among those present.

A short business meeting was held, the chairman, Mr. C. D. Heginbotham, presiding. He drew the attention of those present to the leading article in 'The Ringing World' for that week on the subject of 'Secretaries and their critics,' and said he wished it were possible for it to be printed in leaflet form and distributed to every member of the associations so that they could read, mark, learn and inwardly digest the remarks. He agreed that secretaries had cause to kick sometimes, although, personally, he would not like a kick from the worthy secretary of the Devizes Branch, as he was rather a hefty chap, and it would not be at all comfortable (laughter).

On the motion of the Chairman, a vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells and for conducting the service, to the organist and to those who prepared the tea.—Mr. Day promised to convey the remarks to those concerned.

Ringers, including Miss Williams, of Weston, Bath, were present from Corsley, Bratton, Devizes, St. John's and St. Mary's, All Cannings, Rowde, Melksham, Trowbridge and Warminster.

Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob Major and other methods were rung during the afternoon and evening. Ringing also took place in the afternoon at Sutton Veny, where the peal of six bells had been reopened on the previous evening, after having been tuned and rehung by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon.

The ringers were welcomed by the Rector and Mrs. Chorley. All taking part expressed their pleasure at the satisfactory manner the work had been carried out.

A special evening meeting was held at Keevil on Saturday, October 27th, when, in spite of the wet weather, ringers were present from Keevil, Bratton, Devizes and Warminster.

The Vicar, the Rev. F. Weller, visited the church and welcomed those present to Keevil. He drew attention to the board which had been placed in the ringing chamber recording two peals of Grandsire Doubles, which had been rung by the local men, and said they were very proud of their ringers.

Touches of Grandsire, Stedman and Bob Doubles and Bob Minor were rung.

BELL ROPES. MUFFLES &c.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The meeting of the Canterbury District of the Kent County Association at Goodnestone has been postponed to Saturday, December 1st. The meeting of the Lincoln Guild at Branston to-morrow has also been postponed.

The new bells at Worcester Cathedral are to be dedicated on Sunday, November 25th.

Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. have been entrusted with the rehangings of the peal of eight at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Holloway, London.

Five hundred pounds are required for the restoration of the bells at St. Mary's Church, Booking. The work includes rehangings and re-tuning. An effort is to be made to raise this sum, and it is intended to make an appeal to the people.

The many friends of Mr. G. F. Swann, of Erdington, will learn with pleasure that he has so far recovered from his recent severe burning accident as to be able to ring again.

Mr. 'Dick' Lane, who has hung so many famous bells for Messrs. Taylor and Co., is to be married on Saturday to Miss Cox, of Loughborough. He and his bride will have the good wishes of all ringers.

The peal of six at Ambrosden, Oxford, have been increased to eight, and the tenor recast, and will be dedicated on December 7th. Messrs. Taylor and Co. have carried out the work.

One of the earliest of ringing organisations was the 'Antient Guild of St. Stephen's Ringers,' of Bristol, which was granted a Royal Charter on November 17th, 1620, as a result, it is said, of Queen Elizabeth hearing the bells of that church rung in her honour on her visit to Bristol at some time during her reign.

Our reference to the anniversary of the peal of 6,780 London Surprise Major at Burton-on-Trent, on November 8th, 1888, elicits the fact that three of the band are left, viz., Messrs. J. Austin, E. I. Stone and J. Griffin. The band that rang this peal also rang the first peal of London in London. It was at All Saints', Fulham, on December 8th, 1888.

It was not until 1899 that the first peal of London was rung in the city. This was accomplished by the St. Peter's, Brighton, company.

The first peal of London ever rung was at St. Andrew's, Norwich, on November 17th, 1835.

Eighty years ago to-day the first peal of Real Double Norwich Court Bob Major, that is with bobs made when the treble is behind as well as in front, was rung. It was at Woolwich, where about that time the Banisters were doing much to raise the standard of method ringing.

The reference last week to the fact that the new bells for St. Martin's, Birmingham, were cast on the same spot as the ring in 1758, is a reminder that the first peal of Grandioso Caters on that old ten was rung on November 19th in that same year.

The anniversary of two interesting peals occurs on Tuesday. On November 20th, 1886, the Burton men rang the first 'silent' peal of Stedman Triples, and on the same day in 1909 Holt's Original was rung 'silent' at West Bromwich.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Harry Chapman was presented with a gold bell pendant by his old ringing colleagues at St. Thomas', Pendleton, on his retirement from the position of leader of the band.

Mr. Sydney Morris Abraham, of Bristol, passed peacefully away on Monday last at the age of 57 years. The funeral will take place at Arncliffe Vale (top gate), Bristol, to-morrow (Saturday) at 11.15 a.m.

A DESERVING CASE.

Subscriptions to the fund for the assistance of Mrs. Bates, widow of the late Mr. E. Bates, of the Dartford band, who, with three tiny children to support, has been left in very straitened circumstances, amount to £23s. 6d.

It is hoped that ringers will subscribe liberally to the fund for the family of a 'brother string' bereaved in such tragically sudden circumstances.

Contributions should be sent to Mr. T. Groombridge, jun., 127, Crayford Way, Crayford, Kent, and will be acknowledged in this paper.

CURIOUS ACCIDENT AT MELTON MOWBRAY.

An extraordinary accident occurred at the Parish Church at Melton Mowbray on Sunday week. Whilst the bells were being rung in rounds prior to evening service, the 3rd of the ten suddenly stopped with the rope lower than usual, accompanied by a loud crash and rumble overhead. On investigating the next day, it was discovered that the bell, from a cause that has yet to be determined had jumped out of its bearings and crashed down, wedging itself into the frame below, smashing the wheel and slider and breaking a bolt through the crown of the bell to the headstock, which was moved. The bell itself was fortunately undamaged.

WHO WAS HE ?

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—It is interesting to observe the names which one so frequently finds on the fly leaf of an old book.

I have in my possession 'Campanologia' dated 1705, and it has written in it the name of William Pawsey, Bardfield, Essex, 1855. Can any of your readers throw a light upon who he was?—Yours faithfully,
E. ALEX. YOUNG.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS

A RECORD GATHERING.

All previous records in the long history of the Ancient Society of College Youths were broken on Saturday, when the 291st anniversary gathering was held. Ringers came from all parts of the country, from Lancashire and Yorkshire, Wales and Devon, the Eastern Counties and the South, in numbers never even approached before, and thus demonstrated once again how popular among provincial ringers is this great London gathering. During the afternoon various peals of bells were open for ringing, the chief centre of attraction being Southwark Cathedral; while St. Magnus', London Bridge, and St. Andrew's, Holborn, were also well patronised. A special service was again held at the ancient home of the society, St. Michael's, College Hill, and the seating capacity of the building failed to accommodate all who attended. Canon Bullock Webster (Rector) officiated, and the choir boys led the singing, a feature of which was a new 'bell hymn,' written by Mrs. Louie Pennington-Bickford, wife of the Rector of St. Clement Danes, who arranged the music from a melody by Mr. E. Alex Young, secretary of the Central Council. Bell effects are introduced into the air and accompaniment, and the words were singularly appropriate to the occasion. Here are two of the five verses:—

With heart and voice, in one accord,
We render Praise to Thee, O Lord,
That year by year as Brethren we
In this Thy House may Worship Thee.

For Founders, Leaders, all who bore
The name we bear—in days of yore,
O God! we thank Thee, grant that we
'Together live in Unity.'

This last line is an adaptation of the society's motto, 'Viramus Unanimiter' (Let us live together in unity).

The Rev. F. Ll. Edwards (secretary of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild) was the preacher, and gave an address based upon the text, 'This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it' (Psalm cxviii. 24). He dealt especially with that aspect of ringers' duties which relates to ringing on Sundays for divine service. He said preachers at ringers' meetings seldom overlooked the opportunity of reminding them that those who called others to worship should not fail themselves to take part therein. That was true as far as it went, if they regarded bells simply as a means of reminding the hearers of the hours of divine service, and as a call to worship at such services. But bells had a far wider significance than that. One of the main purposes of a peal of bells, at any rate, was to do honour to the Lord's day—the great Christian festival of rest and worship—and the ringing which they did was not only a call to worship, but also helped to create an atmosphere of worship; indeed, it might not inappropriately be called a part of the worship of the Lord on that sacred day. The preacher went on to remind his hearers that the bell was the only instrument universally used throughout Christendom to tell forth the praise of God. In the Eastern church, where it was expressly forbidden to have music in the services except unaccompanied voices, bells were used to sound forth the praise of God, and very magnificent bells some of them were, too. They were not, of course, rung as were the bells in England, but bells were universal instruments of worship throughout the whole Christian Church. The bells were not only heard by those who took part in the services, they were not only a call to worship and created an atmosphere of worship, but they also tended to unite those who could not attend in the spirit of the service. Theirs, then, was in very truth a high office and a glorious privilege, for through the great cities and over England's pleasant fields the glad sound of the bells was heard on the Lord's day extolling the praises of the God in heaven, proclaiming before God and man the faith of our Church and joyously reminding them all that 'this is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it.'

A REPRESENTATIVE GATHERING.

The dinner took place at the London Tavern, Fenchurch Street, but the large and handsome apartment which had hitherto sufficed to seat the party was no longer sufficient, and a big 'overflow' gathering had to be accommodated in another room. Altogether, 262 sat down, under the chairmanship of the Master (Mr. J. S. Hawkins), who has just concluded a very successful year of office. He was supported by, among others, Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn (Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild), Rev. E. C. Bedford (St. Andrew's, Holborn), Canon G. F. Coleridge (president of the Central Council), Rev. Prob. Ponsonby (Bow, Cheapside), Mr. E. A. Young (hon. secretary of the Central Council), Rev. W. Pennington-Bickford (St. Clement Danes), Mr. H. Carter (churchwarden, St. Mary Abbots', Kensington), Rev. Canon Bullock Webster (St. Michael's, College Hill), Mr. W. P. Routh (Reading), Mr. A. J. Wright (treasurer of the Oxford Guild), Mr. A. Paddon Smith (hon. secretary, St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham), Rev. F. Ll. Edwards, Rev. J. H. Ellison (St. Michael's, Cornhill), Rev. H. Foyne-Clinton (St. Magnus-the-Martyr), Capt. J. H.

R. Freeborn, Rev. N. Hopkins (St. Paul's), Mr. W. Skinner (Dean's verger at St. Paul's), Mr. F. Sergisson (St. Clement's Youths), etc. The vice-chairman was Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., and among those present were Messrs. A. A. Hughes (treasurer), J. Bullock and W. Rushton (stewards), W. T. Cockerill (hon. secretary) and C. F. Winney and W. Prime (trustees of the society), Major J. H. B. Hesse (Master of the Guildford Diocesan Guild), Messrs. A. Walker (Deputy Ringing Master, St. Martin's Guild), J. D. Matthews (Master of the Royal Cumberland Youths), P. J. Johnson (hon. secretary, Yorkshire Association), J. T. Dyke (hon. secretary, Bath and Wells Association), R. T. Hibbert (hon. secretary, Oxford Diocesan Guild), G. Pullinger (hon. secretary, Winchester Diocesan Guild), J. W. Jones (hon. secretary, Llandaff and Monmouth Association), C. Kippen (hon. secretary, Surrey Association), Major H. A. Yorke, Mrs. J. W. Wilkins (Bristol), Messrs. W. A. Cave, G. Gordon, W. Knight and U. Braven (Bristol), T. King and C. Rich (Bath), W. Nevard (Great Bentley), W. Hazell (Edmonton), A. D. Barker (Slough), C. Mee and E. Rivers (Ipswich), F. Smallwood (Derby), J. George, P. Ladlin, H. Withers (Birmingham), J. P. Fidler and C. Harrison (Loughborough), P. Cave (Liverpool), J. Taylor (Penwortham, Lancs), H. Garfath (Croydon), W. Steed (Tunbridge Wells), R. Knowles (Madresfield, Worcestershire), S. Palmer, White, Wilson, and Charlesworth (Sheffield), H. W. Wilde and W. Bibby (Cheshire), E. Barnett, sen., E. Barnett, jun. (Crayford), J. Corbett (Bagshot), C. Dean (Croydon), J. Hoyle (Ashted), M. Northover, G. Road, A. Bashford and A. Chensley (Reigate), F. W. Rogers, T. R. Taylor and E. Harding (Portsmouth), C. W. Pipe, L. Wightman (Norfolk), E. Poppy, E. Lincoln, L. Last and Burgoyne (Suffolk), T. R. Dennis (Cambridge), J. Evans (Hugghenden), A. Cullum and W. Hibbert (Reading), S. H. Green (Tunbridge Wells), H. Bishop (Swindon), W. D. Smith (Eastbourne), E. C. Goldsmith (Clapham), R. Hayes (Haslemere), W. R. Melville (Guildford), and ringers in bands from Barking, Ealing, Walthamstow, Bushey, Rochester and from other towers in London and the border counties of Kent, Surrey, Herts and Essex. In fact, it was one of the most representative gatherings ever assembled upon such an occasion.

At the conclusion of the repast, the Master submitted the loyal toast, and then the tables were cleared, and the two parties of diners united in one room.

The Master proposed 'The Church.'

OLD DAYS RECALLED.

The Rev. J. H. Ellison, who responded, reminded the company that the laity as well as the clergy formed the Church, and that therefore in drinking that toast they were drinking their own healths. He thanked them very warmly indeed for the interest they took in the Church, and said that in the whole of the year there was no event, which those of them there were accustomed to attend, that they looked forward to with greater pleasure than that gathering, and he was not flattering them a bit when he said there was no finer set of men in the whole of England than the men he saw before him that evening (laughter and applause). The link between the ringers and the Church of England was a very ancient one indeed. He had been looking through some old accounts of the churchwardens in his parish, and he found a whole page of interesting things relating to St. Michael's bells. They had been rung in the past for the repose of a Pope's soul; in anticipation of an interesting event in the family history of Queen Mary which never came off (laughter), and for a number of events in Queen Elizabeth's reign. The bells had always taken their part in the history of the Church, although he gathered that what had gone on in the belfries had not always been as nice and as good as it was at the present time. In the old days, for instance, the church tower was the one place that no one would ever think of going into, so that some of the towers became the hiding place for things that were smuggled (laughter). One of the things one was most thankful for was that the ringers themselves, working with the clergy, had been able to make an enormous improvement in the belfries and in what went on there, so that the clergy, whether in town or village, now did their level best to get the boys of the parish to take an interest in it. They pointed to the belfry and told them that there was a great tradition which they ought to carry on. Continuing, Canon Ellison said it seemed to him the art of bell-ringing was an art which the Church of England had made specially its own, and in looking back on the uglier old days they could feel that what happened then was but a corruption of a truly noble thing, and they should be thankful they had come to these better days, when the art of bell-ringing and the way in which it was cultivated by such societies as theirs had risen to a much higher level. He trusted that the relations which now existed between the Church and the bell-ringers would go on, not only through the lives of all of them present but through the lives of many generations yet to come (applause).

THE SOCIETY'S RESPONSIBILITY.

The toast of 'The Ancient Society of College Youths' was proposed by the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn. It had been said that night, and he believed it had been observed before at those gatherings, that they spent a good part of their evening in proposing the toast of their noble selves. They had just drunk to themselves in the toast of 'The Church,' and he was going now to ask them to do so again in proposing to them the toast of that ancient society, which was, together with the Cambridge University Guild, the first ringing society that he joined. Although his name did not appear, they all knew who would have proposed that toast had they been certain he would have been there that night—as he was (applause). There was no one they were more pleased to see, and looking so well after his illness than Canon Coleridge (applause). Proceeding, Mr. Jenkyn said whenever one took part in an annual festival of ringers they usually proposed the toast of their own society and drank it cordially, but there was something quite unique about a society like the College Youths, in the very heart of the Empire. It was a great thing that their various societies throughout the country should be flourishing, both in the towns and in the smaller villages, but it would be a disastrous thing, and they would not be anything like so proud as they were of their art and science, and their bellringing generally, if they did not feel that in London they could get as good ringing as they could get anywhere else. Ringers who went abroad liked to look back and think that at the heart of the Empire they knew there was good ringing going on. Every ringer knew that they could hear twelve bells really well rung if they would take the trouble to go to St. Paul's on a Sunday morning or afternoon, and that if they went to Westminster Abbey they could also be assured they would hear bells well rung by members of that society. It was their responsibility—he did not say that if others were put into those places they could not do as well—but it was their responsibility, and it was important that they should be absolutely efficient, and those who came from the provinces and were gathered there that night drank to the health and prosperity of the society with all their hearts and in all sincerity. The speaker went on to refer to the booklet which has just been issued, giving a brief history of the society as well as its rules and list of notable performances, under the dignified title of 'The Ancient Society of College Youths.' He congratulated the committee responsible for its production on the way in which it had been got up. Things like that, he said, were most valuable to present members of the Exercise, because one of the things which they wanted most to uphold was the dignity of the office of the church bellringer (hear, hear), and it was a very great thing that they should be able to place into the hands of others a book like that. When they talked about College Youths people smiled, but that book would show them that the society had been going for more than twenty-five minutes; that the origin was as interesting as anything they should show in the whole country, and if they would study it they would get to know something about what bellringing and bellringing societies meant. Only recently he had been invited to attend another gathering, which was being held that night, but he had declined because, as he had explained, he was going to attend the dinner of the College Youths. It had come back to him that the gentleman who had invited him had said he was sorry Jenkyn could not come, but he had heard that he was going to London to dine with some boys (laughter). 'I might add,' said the speaker, 'some great lads, too' (laughter and applause). He had, he continued, now bought two copies of the College Youths' book, one of which he was going to keep, the other he was going to lend out, and he was going to lend it first to the gentleman who had invited him to dinner, so that he might see what the Ancient Society really was (applause). He hoped everyone present would buy a copy of the book and read it, because he was convinced that a knowledge of the origin of the society would give them a greater sense of pride, if possible, in being a member of the society than they had before (hear, hear). On the committee entrusted with the drawing up of this very beautiful book there was the name of one whom he would like to mention, and they could not imagine a committee of that kind without his name. He referred to Mr. Cockerill (applause). Besides being a most delightful person to meet on every occasion, Mr. Cockerill had a personality which truly and worthily upheld the real dignity of the Church bellringer (hear, hear). He need not dilate upon how much that society owed to Mr. Cockerill, but they all rejoiced to see him there again looking as he always did. He hoped he would long live to continue in the office of secretary, and that they would have him with them at that annual dinner for many years to come (applause).

The toast was drunk with musical honours, and then a course of Stedman Cinques was rung on handbells by Messrs. J. Thomas (Edmonton), P. J. Johnson (Leeds), A. Walker (Birmingham), J. F. Smallwood (Derby), H. Langdon (London), and W. A. Cave (Bristol).

THE YEAR'S ACTIVITIES.

Mr. Cockerill, in replying to the toast, mentioned that apologies for absence had been received from Rev. the Hon. H. S. Phillimore, Rev. B. F. Simpson, Canon Haldane (Southwark), Prebendary Isaacs (Cripplegate), Rev. H. Pickles, Mr. J. C. Mitchell and Mr. W. H. Judd. During the year, he said, they had made 35 members, but they had to lament the loss by death of William J. Kemp, James Scholes, H. C. Gillingham, W. H. Freeman, R. S. Holloway, W. Bennett (Aldenharn), W. E. Garrard, Louis Atwater, Joseph Rayner, Arthur Webber (Yarmouth), and J. D. Drewett (Mitcham). During the year they had held 76 meetings for practice, and they were generally well attended. The peals rung were as follows: Grandsire Triples 3 (including two on handbells), Stedman Triples 6, Stedman Calers 4, Stedman Cinques 5, Cambridge Surprise Major 1, Spliced Surprise Major 2, Kent Treble Bob Royal 1, Kent Treble Bob Maximus 1, total 23 (21 on tower bells and 2 on handbells). They had been informed of the new book, which was on sale that evening, and the price of which was two shillings. It had entailed a considerable amount of work and research in the British Museum and the Guildhall Library. Mr. Cockerill added that he was sure the members present would join with him in extending their hearty congratulations to Canon Coleridge on his recovery so far, and their gratification that he was able to be with them that evening (applause).

Canon Coleridge, who was on the point of slipping quietly away from the room, was called on for a speech, and thanked the members for their kind expressions on that and many other occasions. He referred to the numerous enquiries that had been made by ringers respecting him while he was in the nursing home, and to the good wishes which he received at Liverpool as he was about to leave for his sea voyage. Just before the boat left, he said, three Liverpool ringers, whom he did not know before, came on board to wish him farewell, and told him he would hear the beginning of a peal at St. Nicholas' Church as he went down the river. He heard the ringing for five or six minutes, and all that he could say was that, if the whole of the peal was as good as the portion he heard, then it was a very fine peal indeed. In conclusion, Canon Coleridge expressed his pleasure that he was able to be present that evening, and that through the prayers of many he was comparatively entirely restored to health. He was not a pound less in weight, and he did not think he was much less in height (loud applause).

DEBT TO CITY INCUMBENTS.

Mr. A. A. Hughes proposed 'The Visitors,' and extended to them all a very hearty welcome. That toast, he said, was more particularly addressed to those among them who were not ringers, and he would like especially to mention those incumbents at whose churches the society was privileged to hold their practice meetings. He desired to take that opportunity of saying how much the society appreciated the assistance which those incumbents rendered to the society in permitting them to use the bells for their practices. The society was founded in 1637 for the purpose of promoting the science and art of change ringing. Some of the incumbents who gave them the use of their church bells had not parochial hands of their own, but at the same time they were doing a wonderful work in helping on this national art of change ringing, because at their practice meetings the Ancient Society of College Youths did a good deal to get young ringers on in change ringing. They were glad to welcome so many visitors that night, and hoped they would still have their support in future years (applause).

BOW BELLS.

Rev. S. Gordon Ponsonby, who replied, said among the ringers he numbered a great many old friends, including that friend of all ringers, the president of the Cambridge University Guild, his dear old friend Mr. Boughey (applause). Referring to the present condition of Bow bells, the speaker said the people of the city had been a little slow in responding to the appeal to put the bells in order, but he had recently had an interview with an important personage, and he thought they would soon be moving further in the matter (applause). They had to do some repairs to the church first, and then they would get on with the bells and he able to welcome the ringers back once more to the tower (applause).

The Vice-Chairman submitted the toast of 'The London and Provincial Ringing Societies,' and gave the many representatives of these organisations a hearty welcome. It was most gratifying to the College Youths to have the support of so many societies, and he could assure them they would always receive a hearty welcome in any of the towers.

Mr. J. D. Matthews replied for the London Societies. He regretted that with all that had been 'rubbed into them' little effect had been produced on the authorities of many of the London churches where the bells sadly needed attention. He was very pleased, however, to say that the relations between the two old societies in London had never been more cordial than they were to-day, and he should not be surprised if in the course of time they became so friendly that there would be an exchange of towers (hear, hear, and laughter). Good-will carried them a long way. It was always a great pleasure to him to attend that annual gathering, and, perhaps, in the future, if the Royal Cumberlands inaugurated a dinner, the College Youths would come and give them their support (applause).

Mr. J. F. Smallwood, who responded for the provincial societies, said St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, which he represented, was a pretty lusty infant, now nearly 200 years old, but they looked up to the College Youths for guidance and inspiration. They had great respect for this ancient society, for in all they had had to do with it they had found that it stood for stability, good striking and good fellowship (applause). That evening they had heard about the new book which had made its appearance, and he was hoping, when he had time to read it through on the morrow, that he would be able to clear up two mysteries that had always puzzled him. One was, why was the College Youths Society founded on November 5th? (laughter). It was a very suspicious date, and he was hoping to

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

WITNEY AND WOODSTOCK BRANCH FLOURISHING.

The autumn meeting of the Witney and Woodstock Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild was held at Southleigh on October 27th. The bad weather affected the attendance, about thirty being present. The service in the historical church was conducted by the Rev. F. R. Marriott, of Wootton, chairman of the branch, and the address was given by the Rev. T. P. Owen, Vicar of Eynsham.

The Rev. T. P. Owen, speaking from the pulpit in which John Wesley preached his first sermon in 1725, said the ringing of bells was part of the music of the church, and, therefore, it had to be done to the glory of God. One of their rules was that they should be in church once every Sunday, and, frankly, it did seem unfair and absurd that anyone should ring bells calling other people to church and then go away themselves when the service started.

At the business meeting, held subsequently, the Rev. F. R. Marriott, presiding, a welcome was extended to the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, the Master of the Guild. Thanks were expressed to the Vicar of Eynsham for his address, and pleasure was expressed at the presence of Mr. John Monk, a ringer of many years' service.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. W. Evetts, jun.), in the course of a brief report on the year's work, said membership was well maintained, but, unfortunately, they had lost an enthusiastic honorary member through death in the person of the late Vicar of Eynsham, while Canon Carroll had left the deanery. The branch was in a flourishing condition, while Cassington had come back to make an extra tower.

On the proposition of Mr. J. Monk, the Rev. F. R. Marriott and Mr. W. Evetts, jun., were respectively re-elected president and hon. secretary, several members speaking of their loyalty to and enthusiasm for the Guild.—Both expressed thanks, and on the proposition of Mr. Evetts, the Vicar of Eynsham was elected hon. member.

The Secretary, calling for a keener interest in ringing, said during the war bellringing naturally went back, and many ringers were lost by death. He appealed to them to use their best endeavours to get young ringers.

Messrs. Spindlove, Boud and Judge were re-elected representatives on the Guild Committee.

The Master of the Guild congratulated the branch upon having such excellent officers, and went on to say that at the last meeting he attended at Aston he spoke of the proposal to award peal diplomas for first peal in any method, but that proposal was turned down by the Central Council. He thought it was a pity, as that was one of the few suggestions made by the young ringers themselves to encourage ringing. The Master also referred to the attention necessary to the Standlake bells.

Mr. A. J. Wright, the general treasurer, expressed thanks for the donation of £5 from the branch towards the restoration fund, and pointed out that one-fourth of the subscriptions of honorary members went to that fund. He congratulated them upon having a balance in hand of £24, and hoped some of it would be spent on visits to various towers, to encourage ringers where there was not too much enthusiasm. Their branch was one of the best in the Guild.

Mr. R. T. Hilbert, the general secretary, also spoke, saying there was no need to get pessimistic about the future of bellringing. All over the country there were signs of a great revival, and it was for them to encourage the young men.

It was decided to hold the spring meeting at Yarnton. The meeting concluded with the election of several new members, thanks to the organist, Mr. Woolford, and a welcome to several lady members was expressed by Mr. J. Monk.

find out what connection there was between Guy Fawkes and the College Youths. The other thing he hoped to clear up was whether 'Gog' and 'Magog' were foundation members of the society (laughter). As a provincial member of the College Youths, he would like to know more about the doings of the society, and the only place in which he could read anything about them was in the London press, where he saw and read all sorts of rubbish put in by people who, perhaps, casually attended a meeting of the society but knew nothing about them. That was not good enough. He thought the provincial members were entitled to know what the parent society was doing. They were interested in the society, and would like to know what was going on (applause).

The remaining toast was that of 'The Press,' proposed by Mr. G. R. Fardon, and replied to by Mr. J. S. Goldsmith.

During the evening Mrs. A. A. Hughes again delighted the company with handbell solos, which she rendered with the utmost skill. She played 'Berceuse de Jocelyn' (Godard) and 'Salut d'Amour' (Elgar), responding to an encore with the ever-popular 'Land of Hope and Glory.' A new and pleasing feature of the programme was Mr. C. H. Kippin's 'Parlour Cavillon,' upon which he performed a number of items, all admirably played. They included 'Londonderry Air,' 'Love's old sweet song,' 'The song of the Valga boatmen,' and 'Absent.' Mr. J. Bullock rendered a song, and Mr. F. Groombridge played the accompaniments. 'Auld Lang Syne' closed one of the most successful evenings of the long series.

Many visiting ringers stayed the night in London, and Sunday being Armistice Day found ample opportunities for ringing, while in the evening a numerous party gathered at 'The Coffee Pot,' and spent a pleasant hour.

REV. C. E. MATTHEWS' MEMORIAL.

BISHOP OF WINCHESTER DEDICATES NEW BELLS.

The new ring of eight bells at Milford-on-Sea, Hants, erected to the memory of the late Rev. C. E. Matthews (the Vicar), who was for many years an officer (Master and afterwards vice-president) of the Winchester Diocesan Guild, were dedicated on October 30th by the Bishop of Winchester.

The first recorded reference to bells in Milford is in 1553, and they have twice been recast since the reign of Edward VI. Three new bells have now been added to complete the octave, the old five having been recast. The result is a very fine ring of eight (tenor 12½ cwt. in G Major). The whole of the work was entrusted to Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, who have carried it out with their usual excellent workmanship, the minutest details necessary for the ringers' comfort in the tower having been taken into account. Each bell can be heard equally in the ringing chamber.

A special form of service was used, the lessons being read by the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn (Master of the Oxford Guild) and Canon Braithwaite (patron of the Guild) respectively, after which the Bishop, accompanied by the Vicar and churchwardens, proceeded to the ringing chamber, when the ropes were handed to the Bishop with the request to dedicate the bells to the glory and praise of God.

Afterwards, the ropes were handed to the Vicar with the following charge: 'Receive these bells that have been solemnly set apart from all profane and unhallowed uses, as a sacred trust committed unto thee as the appointed minister of Christ in this church, and take care that they be ever and only used in God's service and for his glory.'

Whilst the Bishop returned to the chancel the bells were rung in rounds by eight members of the local band.

The Bishop, in his address, spoke of the 'King's Remembrance,' and said the bells might be called 'Remembrancers' of the Eternal. They were a reminder of the larger and greater life, for which this life was but a school of preparation. In conclusion, he urged them to recast their lives that they might ring with a truer tone than before.

Immediately after the service the first touch (Grandsire Triples) was rung on the bells by a representative band.

The opening of these bells was of special interest to ringers, as the two trebles were given by the old Winchester Guild as a memorial to their late vice-president, and a large number attended, those present including Mr. G. Williams (Master), Canon Braithwaite (vice-president), Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn (Oxford Guild), Mr. K. Hart (Sussex Association), Rev. C. Phillips and Mr. S. Hector (Salisbury Guild), Messrs. G. Preston (Christchurch), W. Andrews (Winchester), E. Elliott, C. W. Tucker, etc. Mr. J. P. Fidler represented the founders.

The treble is inscribed, 'Faith,' and the 2nd 'Hope,' and each bears the following in addition: 'Given by the Winchester Diocesan Guild of Change Ringers in memory of their vice-president, Rev. C. E. Matthews. 1928.'

After the dedication service a very large company attended at Milford House Hotel for tea, and afterwards touches in various methods were rung on the new bells.

A ringers' day was arranged for Saturday, November 3rd, to enable ringers who could not attend the dedication to try the bells.

A very large number of members of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild, also of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild, attended, the towers represented being Bournemouth, Brockenhurst, Bishopstoke, Christchurch, Fareham, Highclere, King's Somborne, Lyndhurst, Lymington, Milford, North Stoneham, Portsmouth, Poole, Parkstone, Ringwood, Romsey, Sopley, Southampton, Wimborne, Weymouth, Winchester and Woolton Hill, Mr. J. P. Fidler again representing the founders.

Various methods were rung during the afternoon and evening, the 'go' and tone of the bells giving the ringers every satisfaction.

Tea was served in the Parish Hall, presided over by Rev. H. M. Lerner (Vicar), to which over 70 sat down. The Chairman welcomed the ringers to Milford, and referred to the history which led up to the provision of the new bells.—Mr. G. Williams and Mr. J. P. Fidler suitably replied.

The General Secretary (Mr. G. Pullinger) announced that the sum of £2 was required to complete the £100 promised by the Guild, and appealed for further subscriptions.

The meeting closed with votes of thanks to the chairman and to Mr. G. Preston for making the arrangements for the meeting.

PEALS OF DOUBLES.

It seems necessary to call attention once more to the fact that 5040's of Grandsire Doubles containing 'spliced' 240's on Mr. Morris' plan are not recognised as peals by the Central Council, because each six-score is not true in itself. That these six-scores were ruled out by the resolution passed at Hereford was made perfectly plain. The definition of a peal of Doubles was laid down for the first time and was in the following terms: 'That peals of Doubles consist of at least 42 true and complete 120's rung without interval and without rounds or any other row being included or rung more than once in any 120, . . .'. In Mr. Morris' plan no less than forty changes are repeated in each of the 120's, so that this method of splicing is debarred from peals. There is no reason why this arrangement by Mr. Morris should not be rung for practice if a band desires more variety than can otherwise be obtained, but in a peal the highest standard of truth should be aimed at. Anything but true 720's has long been ruled out of peals of Minor, and there is no reason why the requirements for a peal of Doubles should be less rigid.

There are a few ringers who argue that if you have, as you must, each change on six bells rung seven times in a peal of Minor, it does not matter how you ring them. This is reducing the standard of peal ringing, instead of elevating it, which should be the object of all ringers in these days when peals are so much 'cheaper' than was once the case. If the principle, put forward by the advocates of the system just referred to, were admitted, six and five bell peals could be reduced to an absurdity. It would be possible, for instance, to ring each lead of a six-score of Bob Doubles forty-two times consecutively, before going on to do the same thing with the next lead, and the result could be claimed as a peal. What we need in these days of advanced ringing is certainly not to make peals easier to get.

As a matter of fact, in regard to Grandsire Doubles, there is a way of calling six-scores, by 'ringing the changes' on the 'half-hunt' or 'observation' bell which will give the conductor just as much variety as any of the 'arrangements' which are now practised, and if applied exclusively throughout a peal will probably give him as much to think about as he will require. These provide him with true six-scores and there is no need, therefore, to go to false ones to make up the necessary 5040 changes. It is probable that those who have rung, since the meeting of the Council at Hereford, 5040's of Grandsire Doubles with spliced 240's of Mr. Morris' arrangement have done so in ignorance of the conditions now required for such peals, despite the attention that was drawn to the matter at the time. Such a peal was rung at Broughton Astley for the Armistice anniversary, and because it may have been rung under a misapprehension, we are publishing it in our peal columns—although the Analyses Committee will not be able to take it into account—but in order to support the efforts of the Council to raise the standard required for peals we shall in future treat such records only as 'miscellaneous performances.'

BILLIONS OF TREBLE BOB METHODS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—'Minormania's' article raises several questions which I should like to say something about.

In the first place, I strongly object to be called 'an expert.' I have only examined a few thousand methods, and as there are 32,454,100,224,000 Treble Bob Major methods, I realise that I only know a very little about the matter, and those people who try to produce theories only succeed in exposing their own ignorance.

Secondly, the short articles which I have written were intended to make people think, and so the explanations were purposely meagre. Let me deal with reverse Bob Minimus, as a little more explanation of that may prove the key to the others.

3214	4321	The tenor is,
3124	3412	of course, the bell
1324	3142	in the hunt.
	3124	a
	etc.

I think that this is sufficient for the present, and I will deal with other points in the future.

H. LAW JAMES.

ROUND BLOCKS AND METHOD EXTENSION.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Allow me to congratulate our mutual friend, 'Minormania,' on his article in your recent issue, much of which is perfectly true, and might have been written with equal truth anywhen during the past fifteen years.

Our young friend has shown us that he has some little knowledge of Round Blocks, but in writing of Cambridge Surprise in connection with same he has also shown us that he has very little knowledge concerning the extension of methods.

I am quoting from memory, but I believe it was in August, 1928, when I gave a Single Extension of 'Cambridge' Surprise Minor to Major, Royal and Maximus, in which the Round Block progressions are perfect, i.e., there are never more than two progressions, 3412 and 4321, to infinity.

Our young friend expects to find the same progressions between 'Cambridge' Minor a single method, and 'Cambridge' Major, which is a double method, all but two single places, behind, when the treble is not in that position. He is expecting the impossible. If he chooses to make an irregular method of Cambridge by adding the two single places on all numbers he will then have a double irregular method, and the progressions will be as perfect as in the Single Extension previously mentioned.

I hope 'Minormania' will forgive me for saying that his concluding factors are all wrong.

We will take them in the order that he gives them. 'First factor, the diagram or work.' If 'Minormania,' or anyone who is interested, will write out the first leads of Double Dublin from Minor to Maximus inclusive, he, or they, will find that the first factor won't work, because the diagrams appear to be those of dissimilar methods, and yet Double Dublin is one of the most perfect of existing methods.

'Second factor, the lead-end' (by which he means lead-head) coursing order, and matters practical. The fallacy that a method, to be the same, must have the same lead-head to infinity, has long since been exploded. Double Dublin again comes in as an example to the contrary. Coursing Order is only an arbitrary definition, as instanced by 'Cambridge.' If we make 'Cambridge' into a double method by adding two single places it becomes an irregular and worthless method. Matters practical are surely covered in the diagram and work.

'Third factor, false course-ends and compositive considerations.' These have no bearing, because all Minor methods (Treble Bob or Surprise) must be true, otherwise they will not produce the extent of the changes. Kent Treble Bob is true as a Minor method, Kent Major has several false course-ends; while, on the other hand, Kent Royal, like the Minor, is true.

'Fourth factor, scientific reasons for or against.' True, science admits of no arbitrary definitions. There have been so many arbitrary definitions laid down in connection with change ringing that it is time we left off calling it a science and call it an art only. A fact will always be a fact; a fallacy will always be a fallacy, and no amount of arbitrary definitions can make a fallacy into a fact.

In conclusion, let me add that any method, principle or system of which there is no doubt at all about the Extensions to the higher numbers being correct can be proved to be so by its Round Blocks. They may have more than two progressions, like Single 'Cambridge' Minor, and the method we ring as 'Cambridge' Major, but the progressions will be regular on all numbers, whatever the number of bells, provided the Extension is really correct.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE BAKER.

BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Luton District of the Beds Association was held at Linslade on Saturday, November 17th, when the following methods were rung: Grandsire, Stedman and Erin Triples, Plain Bob, Little Bob, Double Norwich and Kent Treble Bob Major. Tea was partaken of in the schools adjoining the church, after which a short business meeting was held, presided over by Mr. A. King.

Luton was chosen for the next meeting, to be held in December. A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells and the schools, to the local band for making arrangements, and to the ladies who helped to make the tea a success.

LONDON COUNTY ASSOCIATION.A CITY MEETING.

A meeting of the London County Association was held at St. Magnus' Church, London Bridge, on Saturday, November 3rd. The proceedings started at about 3 p.m., half an hour earlier than advertised, with a band of ringers who had been ringing at Southwark Cathedral earlier in the afternoon. Thus started, the attendance grew apace, and some very good ringing in Grandsire, Stedman, and Plain Bob Major was achieved. At 5 p.m., according to the usual custom, a short service was held in the church, followed by tea at a 'Lyons,' arrangements for which had been made earlier in the day.

After tea had been finished, the business meeting was held in the crypt of the church.

Mr. John Crampion, a promising recruit of the St. Mary's, Woodford, band, was elected a member of the Association.

It was decided to give the officers a free hand with the next meeting, to be held on the third Saturday in December, owing to the great difficulty of obtaining a fixed tower for that purpose.

Mr. A. Reeves, of Woodford, was elected to fill the place of auditor, rendered vacant since Mr. Alleway's election to the office of Master.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector for the use of the bells and for the service, also to the verger for cleaning up the tower in readiness for the meeting, and for arranging for the use of the crypt.

After this a return was made to the tower, where some good ringing was done during the evening, Grandsire, Stedman, Plain Bob, Treble Bob and Surprise being practised. The proceedings were wound up by lowering the front six in peal.

About 35 members and friends attended the meeting, which was quite a success, both in regard to the arrangements and the support accorded to it.

GRAPPENHALL BELLS RESTORED.

On Saturday last the bells of Grappenhall, Cheshire, were reopened after being rehung by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough.

Owing, no doubt, to the weather conditions prevailing, the attendance was a poor one, which was to be regretted in view of the arrangements made for the visitors' welfare.

The service was held at 4 p.m., conducted by the Rector (Rev. C. A. Clements, Master of the Chester Diocesan Guild), and a most able address was given by the Vicar of Thelwal. At the close of the service the bells were rung in rounds for a few moments by members of the local company.

A splendid tea was provided in the Parish Room, which was followed by a meeting of the Grappenhall Branch of the Chester Guild, after which the members adjourned to the tower for further ringing.

The bells, a peal of eight, have been retuned and hung on ball bearings. Messrs. Taylor and Co. are to be congratulated on the great improvement made, chiefly with regard to the clapping, which previous to the restoration caused Grappenhall bells to be classed amongst the most 'odd struck' lot in the country.

Considering the difficulties under which the bellhangers had to work, the result clearly demonstrates the reliability of the Loughborough firm.

Mr. John P. Fidler was present in his capacity of official representative, and received congratulations tendered on behalf of his firm.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Western Division was held at Shipley on Saturday, November 10th. The attendance was small, only about twenty members turning up, the following towers being represented: Idle, Bradford, Guiseley, Lindley, Ripon, Birstall, Queensbury, Skipton, Lightcliffe, Drighlington, Headingley, Bramley, and the local company. Tea was served in the Co-operative Cafe, and the business meeting was held in the Church Schools, Mr. J. Cotterell (vice-president) being in the chair.

One new member, K. Brown, of Guiseley, was elected.—There were no invitations for the next meeting to be held in March, and it was decided to leave the arrangements in the hands of the chairman and secretary.

A vote of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells was moved from the chair, and was carried unanimously.—A vote of thanks was also accorded to the local company for the arrangements made.—These were responded to by Mr. T. B. Kendall. The meeting then terminated, and the tower was again visited for further ringing.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

After the peal at Romsey Abbey on Saturday some of the band were very pleased to hear that this fine old ring are shortly to receive the bellhanger's attention.

On November 23rd, 1732, the Society of City Scholars rang a peal of 8,012 Grandsire Caters at St. Giles' Church, Cripplegate. There were three men to the tenor. Only four earlier peals of Grandsire Caters are known to have been rung.

That old London Society, the Eastern Scholars, rang a peal of 15,120 Bob Major in 8 hrs. 40 mins. at West Ham on November 25th, 1737.

In the same tower exactly 170 years ago next Tuesday the Royal Cumberland Youths rang a peal of 5,400 Oxford Treble Bob Royal.

Next Thursday is the anniversary of the death of William Doubleday Crofts, the Nottingham solicitor, who was a famous ringer. He died in the year 1809.

As it is 112 years since a peal of Oxford Treble Bob Maximus was rung on handbells, it is not necessary to state that the peal rung at Ipswich on November 15th is the 'first ever' rung by the band and by the Suffolk Guild. The St. Mary-le-Tower Society spent considerable time in practice before the peal could be accomplished. On two occasions, October 30th and November 8th, attempts failed after nearly two hours' ringing. A curious feature about this method on twelve bells is that 9-10 course each other about the middle of each course.

This peal was rung almost on the anniversary of the previous peal, which was accomplished at Sheffield on November 24th, 1816.

A RUDHALL RELIC FOR GLOUCESTER MUSEUM.

A relic of the old Rudhall foundry at Gloucester has just been presented to the city. At a recent meeting of the City Council the Mayor read a letter he had received from Mr. F. W. Duart-Smith, a former Mayor of the city, offering the last bell cast by Rudhall's Bell Foundry, Gloucester.

Mr. Duart-Smith wrote that he had acquired from the purchaser at the sale of Alderman Johnston-Vaughan's antiques last month that interesting relic of a former important industry of the city. The bell was mounted on an oak stand, modelled in the form of belfry beams, and was a small replica of one of the church bells for which the foundry was celebrated. It was cast in the year 1848, when the foundry finally disappeared. That date it bore, as well as the names of two workmen—Edward Churchill and John Simpson. In 1829 the bell foundry business, which had been carried on by the Rudhall family from the year 1684, was sold to Thomas Mears, of Whitechapel, where the business was still carried on by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, but it was evident that the Gloucester foundry continued to be used until the year 1848.

The Mayor said that the authenticity of the bell had been investigated by the late Mr. H. Y. J. Taylor, whose report in verification was enclosed with the letter. The Mayor expressed the deep gratitude of the Council to Mr. Duart-Smith for the excellent gift. He did not know what they were going to do with it, and perhaps it might be left where it was in the Council Room to be rung to tell members when to leave off.

Dr. Bibby: You will wear it out, Mr. Mayor (laughter).

Subsequently the Mayor explained that it had been decided to hand over the gift to the Museum Committee for preservation and exhibition. He formally moved that their thanks should be given to Mr. Duart-Smith, and that the bell should be handed over to the museum.—This was agreed to by the Council.

THE FIRST PEAL OF 'REAL' DOUBLE NORWICH.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I notice in your 'Belfry Gossip' in the current issue a statement that the first peal of 'Real' Double Norwich was rung eighty years ago to-day (November 16th) at Woolwich.

If this is correct, I have been labouring under a delusion since 1898. On June 11th, 1898, a peal of Real Double Norwich was rung at Irthlingborough, Northants, composed by Arthur Knights and conducted by Anderson Y. Tyler.

On publishing the figures it was pointed out by the Rev. E. Banks James that some of the calls were single.

Mr. James published a peal in which every call was in pairs, and this peal was rung at Irthlingborough, conducted by the late James Houghton, jun., on December 19th, 1898. The band (which included myself) were told it was the first peal in the method ever rung with all calls in pairs, and I believe it was published in 'The Bell News' as such. Perhaps Mr. Banks James can give me the information required.—Yours fraternally,

T. R. HENSHER.

[The peal at Woolwich had only five leads when double bobs were made. It is recorded on a tablet in St. Mary's belfry, Woolwich, as 'a true and complete peal of Real Double Norwich Court Bob Major. . . . It was rung in excellent style, and is the first peal of Real Double Norwich in this method ever rung with two bobs in one lead.'—Ed. 'R.W.']

THE COLLEGE YOUTHS.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

At the meeting of the Ancient Society of College Youths on Tuesday week the following officers were elected for the year:—

Master, Mr. James Bullock; treasurer, Mr. Albert A. Hughes; senior steward, Mr. Charles J. Choctel; junior steward, Mr. Edward Sampson; trustees, Mr. Challis F. Winney and Mr. Walter Prime; secretary, Mr. W. T. Cockerill.

A meeting is to be held at headquarters on December 18th to discuss the alteration of, and addition to, the rules.

AFTER-DINNER QUERIES.

A correspondent, who attended the College Youths' dinner, asks:—
If there was one man who did not enjoy himself?

If the waitresses in the upper room had a good time and why?

Why the members at the end of one table ran short of jelly?

And if it is true a 'heavy end' man is undecided whether to make application for a free pass at the next dinner or to purchase two tickets?

If the wife of a Yorkshire ringer knows that she might have been applying for the insurance money because he nearly lost his head in a Tube?

Why a taxi, chartered to convey a contingent from Fenchurch Street to Whitechapel, deposited them in Warwick Lane?

How the press representative came to lose his escort whilst awaiting a bus?

Did the bosom pal of one of the Brum contingent get him safely home after losing his ticket?

If the faithful few who met at the Southwark Tavern found out where the rest of the party 'dug in.' And if they enjoyed the cold luncheon?

Who was the party that carried his suit case all Sunday and then decided to stay another night? And why?

If there is any truth in the rumour that 'pit head' baths are to be provided at certain city churches?

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

MEETING AT TRUMPINGTON.

A meeting of the Ely Archdeaconry was held at Trumpington on Saturday. The members, writes our correspondent, had read 'The Ringing World' editorial, 'Secretaries and their critics.' Members were present from Cambridge, Bourn, Great Staughton, Hemingford Abbots, Ickleton, Kilburn (Mr. E. M. Atkins), Long Stanton, Melbourn, Over, Stapleford, and the local band. The secretary (Mr. F. Warrington) with several members were met at the tower by Miss K. Willers, and afterwards by the Vicar (the Rev. A. C. Moule). It was not long ere London, York, Beverley, Wells and Cambridge were rung, also some 'rounds' for Messrs. C. N. Austin and M. Ginn, sons of Mr. A. E. Austin, Great Shelford, and Mr. A. J. Ginn, Over. The service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. A. C. Moule). Mr. E. W. Haynes kindly presided at the organ. Tea was served at the Green Man, after which the business meeting was held, the Vicar presiding.

On the proposition of Mr. A. E. Austin, seconded by Mr. J. Ward, Long Stanton was selected for the next meeting on December 8th. (Watch the notice columns, please.)

A great deal of friendly controversy then took place as to what was the best procedure to improve the standard of ringing, and Mr. A. E. Austin proposed that a special method should be advertised. This was supported by Mr. J. Ward. Mr. T. R. Dennis and Mr. H. J. Hazell, of the 'Cambridge Youths,' suggested standard methods, making one special method if necessary. Mr. E. H. Finch and Mr. F. Harper held that the meeting should be for standard methods only. Here the Vicar acted as mediator, and it was agreed to advertise standard methods with Superlative as the main objective.

On the proposition of Mr. T. R. Dennis, supported by Miss V. Shorter, a vote of thanks was accorded the Vicar for the bells, for taking the service, and for presiding.—The Vicar suitably replied, stating it was a pleasure to welcome the association, and hoped they would not be so long before they came again. It was five years since the last visit.—The Secretary thanked the Vicar for his remarks, also Miss Wellers for making the arrangements, and Mr. Haynes for his services as organist. This was supported by the whole company.

WAKE UP, SUFFOLK GUILD!

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I, through your columns, express my disgust at the insufficient number of meetings in the Sudbury and Clare district of the Suffolk Guild. A meeting has not been held since April 14th, when the secretary was instructed to fix the date for the next meeting to be held at Clare, but it has not yet materialised, and, if it does not very quickly do so now, we shall have it clashing with the reopening at Cavendish. One hears so much nowadays of shortage of ringers; here we have one reason—notably, no meetings to encourage youngsters. I know of one company where the Suffolk Guild is an unknown entity. A campaign with bye-meetings would no doubt improve matters and strengthen the Guild. If the secretary is still 'knocking about,' can we hear something from him in this direction?—Yours truly,

SUFFOLKIAN.

LITTLE AND ALLIANCE MINOR METHODS.

SOMETHING NEW IN 'SPLICING.'

BY J. ARMIGER TROLLOPE.

From the nature of its construction, neither an 'Alliance' nor a 'Little' method will give the full extent of the changes, and therefore it seemed that, whatever value they may have on eight bells and more, they were useless for Minor. But a few weeks ago I was staying for a short time at Surfleet, and there I had the good fortune to meet the Rev. E. Banks James. We talked—he, his brother, and I—about many things pertaining to the new book on six-bell methods, and among other things he showed me how to get a true 720 by splicing an 'Alliance' and a 'Little' method. I was immensely taken with the idea. I had thought that the present Minor Collection (with the two or three methods which were omitted by error) contained everything worth ringing on six bells, but here was a fresh plan altogether.

It is a delightfully simple plan, and when you come to think of it most of Mr. Banks James' discoveries are the same. Bristol, for instance, and Little Bob, and the seven 720's of Cambridge Minor. You say to yourself, 'Why, of course; but how is it I did not think of it myself?'

The plan is to take an extent of an Alliance method and an extent of a Little method with bobs only and splice them together with Singles. There are three Little methods—Crayford Little Court, Little Bob, and St. Laurence Little Bob ('Hot Tom'). There are three groups of Alliance methods (of the right sort), one of which group will splice with each of the Little methods. When I got home I worked out the extent of these Alliance methods, and the Methods Committee propose to include them in the forthcoming book. We rang a 720 of one of them at Ealing, and touches of another, and here are the figures:—

DEVON GUILD.

SUCCESSFUL BRANCH MEETING AT CHURSTON FERRERS.

A very successful meeting of the Mid-Devon Branch of the Devon Guild was held at Churston Ferrers on Saturday, ringers being present from Paignton, Torquay, Newton Abbot, Collaton, Brixham, Littlehempston, Buckfastleigh, Plymouth, Exeter, Crediton, Clyst St. George, Exmouth, Loxton, etc., as well as the local ringers.

The bells, recently increased to six by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, were made good use of during the afternoon, following which a service was held, conducted by Rev. F. J. S. Morris, of Brixham. An inspiring address was given by Rev. W. E. Jenner.

The visitors afterwards adjourned to the Brixham Schoolroom for tea, which was followed by the business meeting, the chairman (Mr. F. J. Laxton, Torquay) presiding. For the annual meeting, to take place on Saturday, January 26th, Torquay and Paignton were proposed.—On a vote being taken, Paignton was chosen.

The Chairman proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells and for conducting the service, to the Rev. W. E. Jenner for his address, and to the organist and choir. The Rev. F. J. S. Morris suitably replied, hoping they would soon come again. The chairman welcomed the visitors, the Rev. E. S. Powell, Messrs. E. Shepherd and E. W. Marsh replying.

One honorary member and three associate members from the Churston band were elected.

This concluded the business, and the visitors adjourned to Higher Brixham Parish Church for further ringing. The methods rang during the afternoon and evening were Graudsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob, and Cambridge Surprise Minor.

ESSEX MASTER'S CELEBRATION.A BUSY LIFE.

On November 15th, a peal of Double Norwich Major, reported in our peal columns, was rung at Braintree Parish Church to commemorate the 60th birthday of Mr. C. H. Howard, Master of the Essex Association, which took place on November 5th. It was intended to have rung the peal on Mr. Howard's birthday, but shortly before the start was arranged to be made notice was received of a case of serious illness near the tower, and the projected peal had to be postponed, and November 15th, was the earliest date at which it could be accomplished. On November 5th a peal of Grandsire Triples, in celebration of Mr. Howard's birthday, was attempted at Great Baddow, Mr. Howard's native village, but it came, to grief, unfortunately, after an hour's ringing due to a rope breaking.

On November 9th, Mr. C. H. Howard, in celebration of his sixtieth anniversary, entertained the Braintree ringers to a dinner and social evening at the Nag's Head Hotel. The host presided, and, in addition to the ringers, the Vicar of Braintree and his curate were both present during the evening. The only visitor from outside was Mr. W. Keeble, the well-known ringer from Feering. The health of Mr. Howard, together with the Vicar and curate, were honoured during the evening.

In addition to the position Mr. C. H. Howard holds as Master of the Essex Association—in which office he comes of age next year—he also takes a prominent part in local affairs. For twenty years he has been a member of the Braintree Urban District Council, of which he has four times been elected to the honourable position of chairman, and at the present time he is chairman of four important committees. Mr. Howard has served for eight years as churchwarden at Braintree Parish Church, of which he is now a sidesman, and chairman of the Finance Committee of the Parochial Church Council. For the past fourteen years he has served as hon. secretary to the Braintree Ruri-decanal Conference, is a member of the Diocesan Conference, and of the Diocesan Advisory Board on Churches and Church Treasures. Mr. Howard is also chairman of the directors of the Braintree and Bocking Building Society, and chairman of the directors of the Braintree Mutual Loan Society. In addition, he is a vice-chairman of the directors of the Braintree Market House Company, trustee of the Braintree United Charities, trustee of the Loyal Unanimity Lodge of Oddfellows, Trustee of the Braintree and Bocking Public Gardens, member of the Committee of Management of the Braintree and Bocking Recreation Ground, governor of the County High School at Braintree, a foundation manager of the Braintree Church of England Schools, chairman of the Rating Committee, which at the present time is responsible for the revaluation of Braintree, member of the Braintree Book Society, which is 120 years old, and has a restricted membership of thirty, a member of the Braintree and Bocking Rotary Club, and a regular attendant at the meetings, and keenly interested in the work of St. Mary Lodge 1312 of Freemasons.

With all these multifarious public duties on his hands, it is the position of Master of the Essex Association of Change Ringers which lies nearest to Mr. Howard's heart, and he does not allow any of the many other calls upon his time to interfere with the way in which he discharges his duty to the Essex Association. He is a very regular attendant at the various district meetings of ringers throughout Essex, and is to be found every Sunday in his own tower at Braintree, ringing for morning and evening service, and at the weekly practices he is also a regular attendant.

In addition to all the above it may be said that Mr. Howard has carried on an extensive and successful business as a grocer and provision merchant at Braintree for 27 years.

It will be seen that the Master of the Essex Association is a many-sided man, beside being an expert and enthusiastic ringer, and his worthy record well deserved the birthday peal which his brother ringers at Braintree accorded him. Ringers in Essex and beyond the county will unite in wishing Mr. Howard many happy returns, in the hope that he will continue his good work for the art.

SOUTH-EASTERN ANNUAL DISTRICT MEETING.

The annual meeting of the South-Eastern District was held at Great Baddow on Saturday, November 17th. The bells were set going at 2.30 p.m., and were kept going till 4.30, when the Rev. G. D. Douglas conducted the service, and the Master (Mr. C. H. Howard) read the lesson. While the last hymn was being sung, a collection was made for the Association Restoration Fund, and amounted to 16s. 9d. The members adjourned to the Vicarage Room, where they found a capital spread awaiting them, prepared by the lady members of the church.

At the subsequent business meeting one new member (Mr. E. C. Johnson, of Maldon) was admitted.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Widford at the end of January. Mr. George Green was re-elected District Master, but Mr. R. C. Clark said that his business would not allow him to carry on the duties of hon. secretary, and Mr. H. W. Kirton was therefore elected district secretary in his place.

The Master (Mr. C. H. Howard) thanked the Vicar for his helpful address and for permitting the association to use the bells. He also thanked the organist for accompanying them at the service, and the ladies for putting on a substantial tea. Mr. C. H. Howard also

SILVER WEDDING BELLS.UNIQUE PEAL AT EWELL.

A unique gathering took place at Ewell, Surrey, on Saturday, when eight ringers celebrated their own silver weddings by ringing a 'silver wedding' peal. It was not a little remarkable that within a comparatively small radius of this tower it was possible to find a band all of whom will have this year reached this interesting event in their lives. The peal was arranged by Mr. John Beams, of Ewell, and the company was completed by Mr. and Mrs. Hazelden (Guildford), Messrs. J. Hoyle (Ashted), C. W. R. Grimwood (Tooting), W. H. Pasmore (Merton), J. S. Hawkins (Kensington) and J. S. Goldsmith (Woking). The peal created quite an interest in Ewell, where the occasion of the ringing had been made known by the Vicar. Many were the good wishes expressed for success, and a fine pot of white heather 'for luck' had been placed in the tower. A capital peal of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung, much to everyone's satisfaction, and a numerous party, including all the ringers' wives and some of their children, with other members of the Ewell band and their wives, then sat down to tea together. This was served in the Music Room at the Old Rectory, kindly placed at the disposal of the company by Sir Arthur Glyn, who came himself to preside over the gathering, and was supported by the Vicar of Ewell (Rev. E. C. Usherwood) and Mrs. Usherwood, who very kindly distributed 'wedding favours' in the shape of buttonholes of white heather to the ringers of the peal. A fine wedding cake, complete with miniature bells, the gift of an anonymous donor, occupied a place of honour on the well-laden tables, and was later cut by Mrs. Usherwood.

Afterwards, Sir Arthur Glyn, in a kindly speech, referred to the auspicious occasion which had brought the party together, and, on behalf of the Ewell band, handed to Mr. John Beams a case of silver fish knives and forks, with their good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Beams on the occasion of their silver wedding. Sir Arthur added that he hoped they would all live to meet again to celebrate their golden weddings, and although he did not know much about Treble Bob, which had been rung that day, he thought the most appropriate method they could ring twenty-five years hence was a method which he believed they called Grandsire Triplets (laughter).

Mr. Beams suitably acknowledged the gift, and said how delighted they all were that the peal had been successful.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells for the peal, to Mrs. Usherwood for her kindness in providing the white heather, to Sir Arthur Glyn for giving them the use of the room, and to all three for their welcome presence. He added that he thought the men ought also to thank their wives for having put up with them for so long (laughter), but at the same time the wives ought to be profoundly thankful that they had such fine husbands, who had stood by them all those years and had not left them widows or to marry other men not half so good (laughter).

The Rev. E. C. Usherwood, who replied, said Ewell felt proud to have been selected as the place for that unique peal, and he joined in Sir Arthur Glyn's hopes that they might all be spared for a golden wedding celebration.

During the evening, touches of Grandsire Triples and Caters and Stedman Triples were rung on handbells, Miss Beams played piano and violin solos, and Mr. C. Reed kindly brought a gramophone. The happy party broke up about nine o'clock with thanks to Mr. Beams and the local ringers for the arrangements.

DARKNESS ENDS A WEDDING PEAL.

On Saturday last, at Loughborough Bell Foundry, an attempt was made for a peal of Spliced Treble Bob Major to celebrate the wedding of Mr. Richard Lane and Miss Cox, of Loughborough. The ringers found that the electric light in the campanile was under repair, but it was hoped that it would be made right before darkness set in, and ringing therefore commenced. Unfortunately, however, it proved a longer job than was expected, and when it had grown dark a trip occurred in the ringing which could not be put right, and 'stand' had to be called. Before the ringers could get coats and hats the light came on! It proved, however, only temporary, and while tea was in progress the lights went out again, and the meal was finished by candle light.

The ringers, who expressed their good wishes for the happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Lane, were: E. C. Gobey 1, J. S. Hutchby 2, W. Thornley 3, A. Barrett 4, N. Hemmington 5, L. Chadburn 6, A. E. Adamson 7, G. West 8. It is hoped to ring the peal at a later date.

thanked the officers for the good work they had done during the year.—The Vicar (Rev. G. D. Douglas) responded, and welcomed the Essex Association to Great Baddow.

A collection was made on behalf of Mrs. W. Saddler (widow of a noted Braintree ringer), which amounted to £1 1s. 0d.

The 45 members present were from Great Baddow, Bromfield, Writtle, Springfield, Galleywood, Maldon, Rettendon, Prittwell, Leigh-on-Sea and Braintree.

Handbell ringing followed, and then the ringers adjourned again to the tower, where touches of Grandsire, Stedman, Double Norwich and Kent and Oxford Treble Bob and Bob Major kept the bells going till nine p.m.

RETIREMENT OF MR. HARRY CHAPMAN.

PRESENTATIONS AT MANCHESTER.

A presentation was made on Saturday week to Mr. Harry Chapman, who has just retired from his position as leader of the band of St. Thomas', Pendleton, which he has held since 1890. Some months ago Mr. Chapman, upon his doctor's advice, left Manchester and took up his abode in his native village, Kevston, Huntingdonshire. Having now reached the retiring age limit allowed by the Manchester Corporation electricity department, by whom he has been employed as building department foreman since 1893, Mr. Chapman visited Manchester for his 'official' retirement on November 12th, his 65th birthday. On that occasion the superintendent of the department handed to Mr. Chapman a magnificent gold watch, and, for Mrs. Chapman, a cut-glass and silver biscuit barrel, tokens of the affection in which he is held by the employees, to whom he is known as 'the grand old man.'

Needless to say, the Pendleton ringers were not disposed to let their old leader retire without some token of regard for Mr. Chapman's long service at St. Thomas'. Friday, the practice night, had been selected for the presentation, it being understood that Mr. Chapman would be present. Unfortunately, however, it was such a foggy night that Mr. Chapman, not caring to risk his new-found health in a Manchester fog, after the clear atmosphere of Huntingdonshire, and not having been forewarned, did not appear at the practice. Representatives were present from several towers, including Stretford, West Didsbury, Miles Platting, Middleton, etc., and all left their kindly wishes for Mr. Chapman. A peal attempt had been fixed for Mr. Chapman on the following day, and it was therefore decided to make the presentation after the attempt, which, as it happened, remained an attempt only; in other words, the ringing broke down.

The presentation was made by Mr. Sam Greenhalgh, an almost lifelong ringing comrade of Mr. Chapman, the gift from the company being a ringer's gold badge in the form of a pendant, suitably inscribed: 'St. Thomas', Pendleton, 1890-1928.' Mr. Greenhalgh referred to Mr. Chapman's untiring efforts to raise and instruct a method-ringing band in the early days, and, not least, of the enthusiasm and persistence displayed by his old friend twenty-two years ago, in persuading the authorities to have the bells recast and rehung, a persistence that was crowned with such success that one had to look far for a better ring of eight than St. Thomas'.

Mr. Chapman, in acknowledging the gift, thanked Mr. Greenhalgh for his kind remarks and the company for their token of regard, which he said would remind him, as it dangled from his watch chain, of good old times at Pendleton. Indeed, he should wear it with that object in mind. Continuing, he said it seemed fitting to him that the peal attempt should fail, for he had, he said, a rough start with his ringing when he first came to Pendleton: now he had come to a rough finish, which seemed to him quite in order. Mr. Chapman said that what gave him most pleasure was the progress visible under his successor, Mr. Allen F. Bailey, who was training a young band with such success that service ringing of a high order was a certainty now, and peals in various methods only a matter of a few months. He hoped they would continue as they were doing, and never weary in making and keeping the tower a centre of good ringing in the Manchester district. He had no fears for the future if they stuck together.

After this the company adjourned to a place where ringing is easy (to talk about). A general discussion as to whether extension is really expansion or not, and a chat over old times, brought a memorable evening to a close.

JOSEPH'S 'MENTAL ABERRATION.'

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—One can readily understand the fact that many contributors to your columns choose to remain anonymous for the reason that, should the identity of the various writers be established, the long-suffering readers thereof might suitably reward the efforts mentioned. One such letter appeared in your issue of October 19th, and has reference to a peal of Minor rung at Sutton-on-Hull on April 19th, 1928, being signed 'The Conductor.' The conductor in question is Mr. Joseph E. Sykes, and the circumstances surrounding the letter are such that I feel that further comment is called for. The letter states that the ringers failed to elect Mr. Sykes as a member of the Yorkshire Association previous to starting for the peal, but I have a letter before me from Sutton-on-Hull, where the peal was rung, stating that the Sutton band were under the impression that the would-be conductor was a member of the Yorkshire Association. This mental aberration might be excused, but I find that some time ago Mr. Sykes paid a visit to Whiston, near Rotherham, where the band, after splicing ropes, etc., started for a peal of Bob Major, with a young conductor attempting to call his first peal. The attempt failed, but, some time afterwards, the band ascertained that Mr. Sykes was not a member of the Yorkshire Association, and in the event of the peal attempt having been successful, the disappointment of the conductor can be imagined, as the difficulty of registering it as an association peal can easily be seen. Mr. Sykes, in recent years,

THE FUND FOR MRS. E. BATES.

We give below the first list of subscriptions to the fund for the relief of Mrs. E. Bates and family, of Dartford, who have been left in straitened circumstances by the fatal accident to Mr. E. Bates. The children are of tender years—one aged four, and twins six months old—and consequently she is unable to do anything towards earning her own livelihood. The case is a tragic one for, owing to illness and domestic troubles, the dependants were left almost penniless when the accident cut off their sole means of support.

Subscriptions should be sent to Mr. T. Groombridge, jun., 124, Crayford Way, Crayford, Kent.

In sending a donation to the fund, Mr. W. Willson wrote to Mr. Groombridge as follows, and we heartily endorse what he so well expresses: 'I hope you will not rest until the case has been given the utmost publicity. It is bad enough for a man to be left, but when the breadwinner is taken and the woman alone has to bear the burden of filling the empty space, only those who have known poverty fully realise the ghastly tragedy. There are hundreds of ringers who think nothing of spending anything from ten shillings to a pound on a single meal at a ringers' dinner. The winter is upon us, and these children are fatherless. Shall we eat our Christmas dinner with only a thought of self? I think not. The heart of the Exercise is sound; witness the splendid response to the appeal for a blinded brother ringer. This case is just as sad. There is a tender spot in every heart, and I pray to God that these words of mine may find it. Shall we act the Samaritan, or pass by on the other side? The time for action is NOW. Somewhere in the good old book are two messages pregnant with meaning, and they impress me at this moment. One is, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these, my little ones," and the other, "Is it nothing to YOU?"'

100 PEALS ON THE TENOR.

Mr. Uriah W. Braven, of Bristol, has just completed one hundred peals. The peals have been rung upon tenor behind on various weights up to 52 cwt., and his record is believed to be the first hundred peals rung upon covering bell only. The peals are as follow: Grandsire Triples 3, Grandsire Caters 14, Stedman Triples 18, Stedman Caters 58, Stedman Cinques 3, Erin Caters 4; total 100.

either intentionally or otherwise, has caused great trouble to us here in Yorkshire, by the watch we have had to keep on his performances, to see that he was a qualified member, and though Mr. Cotterell (the Yorks Association treasurer) wrote to Mr. Sykes some weeks ago, with reference to the Sutton peal, no reply has been received to date.

We feel that the time has come when visitors should realise that they are under a compliment to local hands who arrange peals for them, and, having personal knowledge of the welcome that visitors get when visiting Sutton-on-Hull, I feel that a much more handsome apology is due from Mr. Sykes to our Sutton friends than the grudging anonymous contribution previously referred to. I regret the length of this letter, but I must plead the aggravating nature of the cause, and not the undue prolixity of

THE ARCHBISHOP'S GOLDEN WEDDING.

The golden wedding of Archbishop Davidson and Lady Davidson, which coincided with his resignation from the Primacy, called forth universal expression of affection and good will. Bells throughout England were rung in honour of the wedding jubilee, and in farewell to the retiring Archbishop of Canterbury. Many peals were recorded, and in hundreds of towers touches were rung. SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A very successful meeting of the Central Division was held at Hurstpierpoint on Saturday, Nov. 3rd, the attendance numbering 45. Ringing commenced shortly after 2.30, and continued until 4.30, when a special service was held in church conducted by the Rector, the Rev. C. H. Harding, whose excellent address was much appreciated. At this service a collection was taken on behalf of the Benevolent Fund of the association, and amounted to the very useful sum of 10s. 5d. Tea was provided in the Parish Room in a very liberal manner by the Rector. The business meeting followed, the Rector presiding. The following new members were elected: Messrs William Price and Henry Wigley, of Twineham; also Miss S. Thursfield, of Kettering, as a non-resident member.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Rector for the use of the bells, the service and address, and his generous hospitality to those present concluded the meeting.

Ringling was again resumed and continued until close on nine o'clock, and must have totalled something like 4 or 4½ hours' practice, beginners and advanced all having a turn from Doubles to Cambridge, Bristol and London Surprise Major, Miss S. Thursfield taking part in the Cambridge Major in a very capable manner. The following towers were represented: Bolney, Brighton (St. Peter's and St. Nicholas'), Burgess Hill, Coleman's Hatch, Cuckfield, Ditchling, Heane (Worthing), Hurstpierpoint, Keymer, Lindfield and Twineham. It was a pleasure to see one of the association's veterans—Mr. G. Walder, of Bolney—who had made a special point of attending this meeting, and who was justly gratified to have recently assisted in getting three 'colts' through their first 500 in his tower at Bolney.

THE 18½ TON RINGING BELL, the Bourdon of the Carillon of 64 Bells, about to be instal ed at RIVERSIDE CHURCH, NEW YORK, U.S.A.

WORCESTER CATHEDRAL.

Another stage in the steady march of progress in regard to church bells was reached on Sunday, when the new peal at Worcester Cathedral was dedicated. The growing recognition that nothing but the best should find a place in our belfries and particularly in those of our magnificent shrines, the cathedrals, is a matter of great satisfaction to lovers of bells, and, slow though the process seems to be, there can be no doubt that ecclesiastical authorities are becoming alive to the fact that many of the 'good old peals' can no longer hold their place as masterpieces of an ancient art. Science and mechanical progress have put the large majority of old bells completely in the background. The knowledge which is now applied to the production of bells can give us instruments of a perfection which may have been the dream of old bell founders, but which, with one or two exceptions, they never realised. Even the old continental founders, like the Hemons, who held the key to harmonic tuning, did not attain the results which have now become the daily achievement of our principal bell founders. A modern peal of bells is, indeed, a thing far in advance of the productions of even thirty years ago, and Worcester's new possession is something of which the city ought to be extremely proud. The previous bells which filled the tower for nearly sixty years were the product of a theory which Sir Edmund Beckett held on the subject of bell contours. He was groping after a perfection which his designs could never achieve, and although his bells at Worcester had a certain reputation at their birth, they were really a great failure, and it was only the courage and daring of Mr. John Taylor, sen., that saved St. Paul's Cathedral from a similar fate. Perhaps it was not all loss to Worcester, however. Had the peal of 1868 been even moderately good it is possible they would not have again gone into the melting pot, and Worcester in 1928 would not have had what is undoubtedly one of the finest rings of bells in the kingdom.

impressing upon the civic representatives and the leading citizens of Worcester the importance of the occasion in the history of the cathedral and of bringing home to

SUTTON VENY BELLS RESTORED.

After a silence of about eighteen months, the bells of Sutton Veny, Wilts, have been heard again. They were rededicated by the Ven. Archdeacon Carpenter, of Salisbury, at a service conducted by Canon Bernard Everett, son of a former esteemed Rector. The Archdeacon in his address said: 'Bells to me have a wonderful and mysterious effect because they can almost convey to us thoughts too deep for words. In times of joy, where should we be without our bells—whether private, parochial, or national? In times of sorrow, how much can the bells tell us! It is a pleasure to know that to-night those present include members of a family whom you know so well and who have done so much for their church. I hope now these bells have begun to ring again it will add greatly to the joy of those who live here, and that they will ring a message of welcome to the church. Joy is the great feature of a Christian life and the dominating characteristic of the lives of all Christian men.'

After the service numerous touches were rung, the ringers including some from the Minster Church, Warminster. The restoration work has been admirably carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

The concluding feature of the evening's programme was a tea in the schoolroom for the parishioners, who are grateful to the Church Council.

Sutton Veny Church is a very beautiful modern building, erected about sixty years ago at the expense of the Everett family. The bells belonged to the older church, and the following inscriptions on them are copied from the late Rev. W. C. Lukis' book on Church Bells, published in 1857:—

- 1.—'W.C., 1696.'
- 3.—'Noah Wilkins and John Best, Ch.W., W.C. 1741.'
- 4.—'Mr. R. Baily, Rect., IEF LONG R. EXTENG. C.W. 1695.'
- 5.—'Saml. and Stephen Long, Churchwardens. Robert and Jas. Wells, Aldbourne, fecit. 1793.'
- 6.—'Mr. Stephen Long and Mr. John Renall, Ch. Wn. Wm. Cockay cast me 1723.'

NORTHERN DISTRICT ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Northern Division was held at Sible Hedingham on Saturday, November 24th. Despite the very rough weather, twenty members were present, representing the parishes of Rayne, Braintree, Feering, Halstead, Great Yeldham, Earls Colne, Greenstead Green, and members of the local band. Touches in various methods were rung during the afternoon, and the Vicar (the Rev. J. A. Evans) conducted the service, Mr. C. H. Howard (Master of the association) reading the lesson. During the singing of the last hymn a collection amounting to 8s. 7d. was made for the Bell Restoration Fund. After the service, tea was arranged at the White Horse, the Vicar presiding.

At the subsequent business meeting the District Master, Mr. A. A. Saunders took the chair, supported by Mr. C. H. Howard and the district secretary (Mr. W. Arnold).

Both the District Master and secretary were unanimously re-elected for the ensuing year, and it was decided to hold the next meeting at Witham during February.

The secretary gave a short report of the work of the district during the past year, and Mr. Howard thanked the Vicar for his helpful address, also the organist, Mr. Bishop, for his services.

The Vicar, responding, welcomed the association to Hedingham. He greatly admired the work they carried on, and was proud to think that he was an honorary member.

At the close of the meeting a collection was made on behalf of Mrs. Sadler, widow of the late Mr. W. Sadler, of Braintree, the amount realised being £1 3s. 6d. The ringers then adjourned to the tower, where touches of Bob Major, Grandsire, Stedman, Double Norwich, Cambridge and Superlative were rung, this concluding a very successful meeting.

SUFFOLK GUILD.

The final meeting of the Lavenham District for the year was held at Little Walsingham on Saturday, November 24th. During the afternoon and evening several six-scores were rung in the following methods: Plain Bob, Old Bob, St. Simon's, Grandsire and Stedman Doubles. Tea was provided in the Parish Room. At the business meeting which followed, the Rector (the Rev. A. C. Harpur) was voted to the chair, and was supported by Mr. H. O. Punchard, lay reader, and Mr. S. H. Symonds, district secretary. The Rector, who has taken up change ringing, gave the Guild a real welcome to Little Walsingham, and Mr. Punchard was elected an honorary member.

It was decided to start the series of meetings for 1929 in April. The members present wish, through the medium of 'The Ringing world', to ask other secretaries in West Suffolk to call more meetings in the coming year.

On the motion of Mr. W. R. J. Poulson, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector for the use of the bells and for presiding, and, on Mr. F. Mortlock's proposition, a vote of thanks was accorded to the ladies for the excellent tea given.

WELL-KNOWN RINGER'S BEREAVEMENT.

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Sarah Dawe, wife of Mr. Francis E. Dawe, of Allandale, Rosebery Crescent, Woking, who passed away suddenly under distressing circumstances on Tuesday, November 20th, at Gillingham, Kent, whither she went a few days earlier to stay with her sister. Mrs. Dawe reached her 70th birthday on Armistice Day (November 11th).

Mr. and Mrs. Dawe were married thirty-five years ago at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, London, during Mr. Dawe's fifth term of office as Master of the College Youths, and the deceased lady, who personally knew all the 'old school' of London ringers, had always taken a considerable interest in her husband's performances, both in the belfry and on the rifle ranges, he being a skilled 'shot' as well as a prominent ringer. Mrs. Dawe was always proud of her husband's peal ringing achievements, and was delighted to show to visitors the cups and other trophies he had won with the rifle. Mr. and Mrs. Dawe migrated to Surrey about 23 years ago. Many of the older ringers will remember her as a kind hostess, for nothing delighted her better than to entertain whole bands after ringing a peal, and many pleasant hours were spent beneath her and Mr. Dawe's hospitable roof, both in London and the country. Much sympathy will be felt with Mr. Dawe in his overwhelming loss.

The funeral took place on Saturday, the remains being interred in the family grave at Gillingham. The principal mourners were Mr. F. E. Dawe (widower) Mrs. Whittle and Mrs. Pryce (sisters), and there were many beautiful wreaths.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

A meeting of the Guildford District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild was held at Bramley and Womersley on Saturday. No fewer than 37 sat down to tea in the Womersley Memorial Hall, after attending service in the church at Womersley, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. A. L. Brown).

Members from the following towers in the district were present: Cranleigh, Guildford (Cathedral and St. Nicolas'), Haslemere, Shalford, Shere, West Clandon and Worplesdon. There were also visitors from Aldershot, Chertsey, Dorking, Leatherhead, Ottershaw and Seale.

A short business meeting took place after tea.

The members afterwards returned to the two towers, where the methods rung were Grandsire Doubles, Plain Bob, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, and Cambridge and London Surprise.

WEST HALLAM BELLS.HELP WANTED TO MAKE A PEAL OF EIGHT.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—We are hoping to complete a scheme, started in 1922, for increasing our ring of six bells to eight. The work which was carried out in that year cost us £650, and shortage of funds and other difficulties prevented further progress.

At a recent meeting of our Council it was decided to go on with the scheme, subject to certain conditions. These were, on my own proposition, that I should undertake responsibility for raising money to meet the cost of one of the bells if the Council would do the same for the other. My proposal was accepted, and the scheme is now to be completed by Christmas, we hope. Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, have been instructed to carry out the work.

So far I have raised £31 towards my £57 required for the one bell. I am venturing to ask if the readers of 'The Ringing World' could kindly help me in my effort to obtain the balance. If so I should be exceedingly grateful.—Yours faithfully,

A. E. WICKS.

MARSDEN RINGERS' ACHIEVEMENT.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—At various times in your paper there have been letters relating to encouragement of young ringers. May I just tell you of the little encouragement we, who have just rung our first local peal, have received at Marsden, Yorks? It is five years since these bells were put in our church, and for about eighteen months we had two tutors, paid by the Church Council, who came for two hours on one night per week! Since the end of that period we have been left to our own resources. What knowledge we have gained has been from books and constant practice. We are not members of any association, for we have never been approached. Visits by good ringers from other towers on our practice nights can be counted on the fingers of both hands quite easily. Had it not been that we were enthusiastic, ringing in Marsden would have ceased long ago. We are quite a young band. I myself am 33 years of age, and many years older than any of the others. As is stated in the report, this is the first peal for five of the members, the other three, myself among them, having rung one previously in a band got together by 'Uncle Joe' (Mr. Joseph E. Sykes), whose home is in Marsden, although he is seldom here. We only wish he could visit us more often.—Yours faithfully,

H. HOYLE.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

We would once more entreat ringers to be accurate in sending in the reports of peals. We are receiving an increasing number of reports which are deficient in information, thus causing delay in their appearance, while often names are almost indecipherable. If those who send up reports would compare them with the printed details in any issue of 'The Ringing World' they would see at once if all the information to complete the report had been embodied. Care should also be exercised to see that names are plainly spelt.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Nevard, of Great Bentley, Essex, will celebrate their golden wedding on Wednesday next, December 5th.

Mr. James George celebrated his 75th birthday on Tuesday, and has the congratulations of the whole Exercise.

Mr. A. T. Baker ('Irenæus Pistor') has returned to Ilkeston, his native village, to reside among his old friends.

His many friends throughout the country will join in congratulations to Mr. A. J. Hughes, of Rhyl, North Wales, on his appointment to the post of works inspector of the Bradford district of the L.M.S. Railway. He will be stationed at Lowmoor, near Bradford, and takes up his new duties to-day.

Mr. Hughes has been in North Wales since June, 1903, and has been closely associated with ringing at Bangor up to seven years ago, and at Rhyl for the last seven years as captain and conductor.

We will publish the letter of 'A Young Peal Snatcher' if he will forward his name and address.

The Warwickshire 'Birthday Party' was continued on Sunday, when also the ranks of the 'Tom-tits' were swelled by the initiation of seven new members.

The annual meeting of the Royal Cumberland Youths will take place on January 19th, and members are requested to keep this date open.

We have received an inquiry as to the Barron Bell Trust. Can any reader give us information about it, or the address of the trustees?

The Ipswich band have quickly rung another peal of Oxford Treble Bob Maximus 'in hand,' as will be seen from our peal columns. The anniversary of the first peal of Oxford Treble Bob Royal occurs on Monday. It was rung at Sheffield on December 3rd, 1811.

One of the earliest peals of Grandsire Triples was rung at Stroud, where a 5,040 was accomplished on December 4th, 1722, and one of the first peals of Stedman Triples at St. Michael Coslany, Norwich, on December 6th, 1731.

The 'Regal' Cinema, Marble Arch, London, which was to be opened yesterday, has an organ with a stop which operates a complete carillon. The bells were made at the Croydon Bell Foundry.

The peal at Coddendam, on November 10th was in honour of the silver wedding of Mr. T. W. Last and not of Mr. W. C. Rumsey, as stated in the report.

A large gathering is expected at Birmingham on December 8th, when the new ring of twelve at St. Martin's Church is to be dedicated. The bells are already in the tower, and the bell hangers are putting the finishing touches to them.

MRS. BATES APPEAL FUND.

We publish below the second list of subscriptions to the fund which has been organised for the assistance of Mrs. E. Bates, of Dartford, who by the fatal accident to her husband has been left without means and with three tiny children to support.

There must be hundreds of ringers who, while hesitating to send a small amount individually, would gladly give their aid in a belfry collection, and we suggest that 'the hat' should be passed round in every tower in aid of this really worthy fund. That, of course, will not prevent anyone who desires to give a larger amount from doing so, but every little helps, and it is astonishing how these small sums mount up in the aggregate. Belfry collections all over the country next Sunday would do wonders.

Contributions should be sent to Mr. T. Groombridge, jun., 127, Crayford Way, Crayford, Kent, and will be acknowledged in these columns.

WORCESTER CATHEDRAL BELLS.

A NOBLE RING FROM LOUGHBOROUGH FOUNDRY.

Worcester is now in the proud possession of one of the finest rings of bells in the country. The old peal, with its many defects, has gone from the Cathedral, and in its place is a new ring of magnificent tone, the product of Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough.

Prior to the year 1868 Worcester Cathedral had a mixed peal of eight bells, which were hung in its magnificent central tower, but about 60 years ago Canon Richard Cattley, with great enthusiasm, launched a scheme for providing the mother church of the diocese with a ring more worthy of the building. The tenor was 49½ cwt. in C sharp, and a peal of twelve were hung for ringing, with an additional flat fourth for use with the chimes (later a flat 6th and flat 8th were added). Whatever may have been the opinion as to the merits of these bells at the time, they have long been recognised as far below the standard of present-day quality of tone. That was no fault of the founders, who merely had to carry out their instructions, but the fact remained that Worcester Cathedral bells were a disappointment. It was left to Dean Moore Ede, prompted by the Worcestershire Association, to effect a change, and there is no comparison between the new and the old bells.

WORCESTER CATHEDRAL.

from the Severn, showing the massive central bell tower.

It was only in the fitness of things that the Loughborough Foundry, which has always marched with the times, and, indeed, in regard to bell tuning often ahead of them, should be entrusted with the making of the new peal. They have recast all the fifteen bells, the new tenor, of the same weight as the old, being B natural, against the former C sharp—a bell altogether fuller and nobler in tone, whose qualities must be heard to be fully appreciated. All the way up the scale, the other bells are beautifully balanced, and, tuned on the Taylor true-harmonic principle, are, needless to say, perfectly in harmony. That is the great gain which the present age has made over earlier times. Formerly the really good bells were largely the result of 'luck,' and probably not one bell in a thousand, let alone a complete peal of bells, was turned out dead true. Now, thanks to the investigations of Canon Simpson, upon which our modern founders have been able to build and improve, good peals are no longer a mere possibility, but can be made a matter of scientific certainty—the whole of the harmonics can be measured and controlled to a vibration. Worcester are a typical peal of modern Loughborough foundings, and no higher praise can be given them than that.

Although massive in appearance, the tower of the Cathedral is too thin towards the top to carry the strain of a ringing peal, and in consequence the bell frame is supported on wooden stanchions, cross braced and tied, which are carried up from the main walls at about the level of the Cathedral roof. This is an extremely interesting feature of the tower, and it says something for the feat of bell-hanging that whereas, under former conditions, all this timber work had considerable movement when the bells were rung, and actually carried with it the floor of the ringing chamber, Messrs. Taylor have so strengthened and braced the old frame that there is now hardly any perceptible movement when the bells are in motion—further evidence of the advances made in the engineering side of the founders' craft.

In addition to recasting the whole of the fifteen bells, Messrs. Taylor and Co. have tuned the old 4½ ton hour bell to harmonise with the new peal, the note having been deepened from B flat to A. Each of the old bells bore a name, and these names have been reproduced on the new bells together with, on each:—
JOHANNES TAYLOR, LOUGHBOROUGH, FVDT MDCCCLXIX,
and 'Recast 1928.'

W. MOORE EDE, D.D.,
DEAN OF WORCESTER.
JOSEPH SMITH,
CLERK OF THE WORKS OF THE CATHEDRAL.

The dedication of the new bells took place on Sunday, the ceremony being performed in the course of the morning service by the Bishop of Worcester. The occasion was also 'Mayor's Sunday,' when his Worship, with the members of the City Council and other civic dignitaries, a battalion of the Worcestershire Regiment, police, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Church Lads' Brigade, and various city organisations marched in procession to the Cathedral for the service. The dedication of the bells, as a result, was a mere incident in the proceedings. The Bishop, after the second lesson, moved with the clergy to a point beneath the tower, pulled a rope which caused one of the bells to ring, and then recited the dedicatory and another short prayer. The vast congregation stood in their places, and for a few moments there was a dead silence. Then, from overhead, came the sound of the beautiful bells, rung in rounds for a few minutes by the Cathedral ringers. Afterwards, the service proceeded to its appointed end, but so far as the preacher was concerned this event of a lifetime might never have happened. There was no reference to the bells from the beginning to the end of his discourse.

Among those present at the service were Mr. E. Denison Taylor, head of Messrs. John Taylor and Co., and with him from Loughborough were Messrs. J. Oldham and J. P. Fidler. The Worcestershire Association was represented by Mr. J. R. Newman (hon. secretary), Mr. Albert Parsons and a few members, the St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, by the Deputy Ringing Master (Mr. A. Walker) and others, but the fact that there was to be no general ringing doubtless kept many ringers away. After the service a course of Grandsire Cinques and another of Stedman Cinques, in which a few of the visitors were privileged to take part, were rung.

The proof of the pudding is in the eating, and the test of the bells was in the ringing. Despite the unusual method of supporting the bell frame, the bells, in their ball bearings and new fittings, go like the proverbial top, and everyone from treble to tenor can be distinctly heard in the ringing chamber. The job is another triumph for Messrs. Taylor and Co.

WARWICKSHIRE GUILD 'COMES OF AGE.'

THE SUGGESTED DIOCESAN STATUS.

Founded in 1907, the Warwickshire Guild is this year celebrating its twenty-first birthday, and to mark the event a very enjoyable gathering took place on Saturday at Coventry. The proceedings began with ringing at Stoke and Allesley Churches, where many visitors enjoyed a 'pull,' and then a large number concentrated at St. Michael's Cathedral to hear a recital on the new bells by Mr. Harry Withers. Memories of the fine old peal that went through the melting pot were conjured up, but the new bells, as far as could be judged by their sounds when used as a carillon, are a most excellent chimie, which do every credit to the Craydon Foundry. Mr. Withers' programme was an impromptu one, and was limited by the restricted range of the bells, but he played a number of well-known airs in characteristic style.

In the evening nearly a hundred members and friends sat down to 'high tea' at the Craven Arms Hotel, under the chairmanship of the Guild's president (Rev. J. L. White, of Nuneaton), who was supported by the Sub-Dean of Coventry, the Vicar of Fillongley (Rev. H. J. Watters) and the officers of the Guild.

The President afterwards referred to the illness of the Bishop of Coventry, and, at his suggestion, a message of sympathy and of hope for his speedy recovery was sent. The Chairman also referred to the absence, through indisposition, of the Archdeacon of Warwick, a past-president of the Guild. No man, he said, had served the Guild better, and he (the speaker) would like their secretary to send to the Archdeacon an expression of their appreciation of all he had done for the Guild, and their hope that he would soon be fit again. Continuing, the President said they were assembled there as a Guild that was twenty-one years old, and as far as he could gather a healthy and good-looking Guild it was (hear, hear). What they wanted was that the Guild should continue to move along the lines which it had moved during these 21 years, banding together men and women, who could ring, in the service of the Church. He did not quite know how it was he became their president, because he could not even make a bell ring, but he felt it a tremendous honour to succeed Archdeacon Back in that office. They owed a great deal to the older men who had carried on all through the years, and he hoped the younger men would carry on the Guild from strength to strength. He expressed thanks to the Sub-Dean and the Rectors of Stoke and Allesley for allowing them the use of the bells that day. They were delighted to have the presence of the Sub-Dean, the more so because it had been said that he and various officials had done some naughty things about the bells of the Cathedral (laughter).

COVENTRY BELLS.

The Sub-Dean made a happy speech in reply. He said that he felt highly honoured at the invitation to be present that night. He had expected that he would always appear as a culprit when he came into a company of bellringers, from the circumstances to which the chairman had already alluded, but since he had discovered that the gentleman who led the case against the Cathedral authorities, at the hearing in Palace Yard, had become one of the 'ringleaders' in the scheme for having the bells of St. Martin's recast, he felt that he must have been actually converted by what he heard at Coventry (laughter). That had made it easy for him (the Sub-Dean) to appear among ringers (laughter). He was glad the Guild had shown its forgiveness of the past by consenting to have a recital on the carillon that night, and he hoped it had been a joy to those who had listened. Those who had seen the bells would know that they had not for all time destroyed the possibility of their being rung as a ringing peal (hear, hear). He hoped the success of that Guild would be such that in time it would have sufficient surplus funds to build them a campanile in which the bells could hang and in which they would have the joy of ringing a peal on them (laughter). He was glad, he continued, to come among a body of ringers and see their faces. He had always been able to see the faces of the choir, but he felt as if the bellringers were an unseen part of his congregation, and it always seemed to him that there was some secret exit for them (laughter). It was nice to find that ringers looked like ordinary men and women (laughter). The Sub-Dean added that he did agree with ringers that bell music was only heard at its best when the bells were rung. The pealing of the bells was what really gave them the soul of the bells, and they would never have the soul of Coventry bells until they were pealed (hear, hear). Meanwhile, they were trying to get on without the soul, and those who had charge of them were trying to get the best they could out of them. In conclusion, the Sub-Dean expressed the hope that more of the diocesan clergy would show their appreciation of the work done by the ringers by giving the Guild their support, for the ringers, while unseen, were none the less workers for the church than those who occupied the choir stalls or the pulpit (applause). He wished the Guild 'God-speed' and continued growth in membership (applause).

'MANY HAPPY RETURNS.'

Mr. Frank Smallwood (Derby) proposed 'Prosperity to the Warwickshire Guild.' He was glad, he said, to be able to wish the Guild 'many happy returns' on its twenty-first birthday. There were a good many of those connected with the founding of the society who were still in evidence, among them being Mr. Chapman, Mr. James George, and one or two others who were present that night. One face he did miss, that of Mr. Arthur Coleman, who did a very great deal in the founding of the Warwickshire Guild. The centre of gravity, continued Mr. Smallwood, seemed to be shifting. They founded the Guild at Warwick, but the centre of gravity now seemed to be Coventry. He had been casting about in his mind for a reason for this change, and he wondered whether it had anything to do with the tradition about the noble lady who rode about the streets in scanty attire. He thought there was some little evidence in support of this, because there seemed a great preponderance of members with the Christian name of Tom (laughter). But whatever the cause, he thought this shifting of the centre of gravity was a move in the right direction. It was time that they became a diocesan association, and Coventry was the centre of the diocese. He rather sensed that recent remarks portended that change, and he thought it would be a good thing for the Guild. They would certainly then have a right to expect that support from the clergy would be forthcoming; it certainly had not been so in the past (hear, hear). Mr. Smallwood referred in an amusing way to some of the spade work which was done when they were endeavouring to form the Guild. Nuneaton, he said, was the place where he found most opposition to the scheme, and it was a long time before he could convince their old friend, Mr. Chapman, that it was either desirable or necessary. Now the position was entirely changed, and they had Mr. Chapman as Ringing Master (applause); they had had a past secretary from Nuneaton, and their present president was Rector of Nuneaton. Nuneaton, indeed, was one of their strongholds, and there had been more peals rung there than in any other tower (applause). The future of the Guild was in good hands, and he wished it all 'good luck' and prosperity (applause).

Mr. T. W. Chapman (Nuneaton) briefly replied, saying how pleased they were to see so many old and new friends present that evening. With a little more help from the clergy and the younger members, the Guild was assured of a very prosperous future (applause).

Mr. H. Argyle (Nuneaton) proposed 'The Visitors,' whom he welcomed. The very fact that they had so many visitors present that night showed that the Warwickshire Guild was not quite the nonentity that some of them thought they were. Mr. Argyle referred to the friendly relations existing between the Warwickshire Guild and St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, and said with regard to taking a diocesan title, that it would restrict the Guild to towers in its own diocese, whereas now they covered the whole county. It was a matter which would have to be carefully considered, and it would, he believed, come up at the next annual meeting. Mr. Argyle mentioned that among the visitors that night they had representatives of the three leading firms of bell founders, Mr. A. A. Hughes, of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, Capt. Freeborn, from Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, and Mr. J. P. Fidler, from Messrs. Taylor and Co. They had visitors from Birmingham, Leicester, Derby, Loughborough, London, and other places, and he was particularly pleased to see among them Mr. Whitehead, who was recovering from the accident which befel him when returning one night to Leicester from Nuneaton. Mr. Argyle said he would also like to include in the toast the ladies, many of whom they had with them that night.

Mr. Albert Walker (Deputy Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild) first responded, and expressed congratulations and good wishes to the Warwickshire Guild upon its 21st birthday. He hoped they would see many members of the Warwickshire Guild at the opening of St. Martin's bells on December 8th, and added that social gatherings of that kind were of the greatest possible value in making a prosperous association. They cemented fellowship, while the interchange of views broadened their ideas (applause).

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith (Guildford Diocesan Guild) also replied, and added congratulations and good wishes.

Votes of thanks to the artistes, to the president and to the committee who had carried out the arrangements, concluded the proceedings.

The musical programme, for which Mr. Frank Perrins was largely responsible, was a varied and delightful one. Mr. Hessian and his party played handbell selections, Mrs. A. A. Hughes contributed handbell solos, songs were given by Mr. A. Wilkerson, Mr. W. C. Dowding, and Mr. Edwards. Mr. Greenway, who acted as accompanist, directed some 'community singing,' which went with great gusto. Mr. Wilkerson gave a recitation, Mr. Harry Withers tapped Erin Cinques on the piano, and a capital course of Stedman Cinques was rung on handbells by Messrs. F. Pervin, F. Perrins, A. Walker, J. F. Smallwood, J. Thomas and J. George. A happy evening terminated with the National Anthem.

A MUSICAL SIX.

On Sunday a party journeyed by cars to the village of Great Easton, Essex, to ring upon the very musical peal of six recently hung by Messrs. Taylor and Co. Touches of Oxford and Kent and 720 Cambridge Surprise were brought round, the following taking part: Miss E. E. Pettitt, H. E. Hammond, H. C. Reason, A. Wiffen, B. Ridgwell, C. H. Howard and L. W. Wiffen (conductor).

GREAT WITCOMBE CHURCH BELLS RESTORED.

The bells of Great Witcombe Parish Church, Gloucester, which have been rehung on ball bearings in a new steel and iron two-tier frame by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, were opened on Saturday, November 17th, by the members of the Gloucester and Cheltenham Branches of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association. The following are the inscriptions on the bells:—

Treble.—Thomas Rudhall, Gloucester Foundry, 1777.

2nd.—John Taylor and Co., Loughborough, July 5th, 1901.

4th.—F. White and Sons, Bellhangers, Appleton, Berks.

5th.—John Taylor and Co., Loughborough, July 5th, 1901.

Tenor.—I am the Voice of a crier in the House of God: Com and Kip Heli, 1630.

The service in church was fully choral. The Rector (the Rev. G. R. Taylor) officiated, and the Guild service was used. Mr. E. Hicks Beach (churchwarden) read the lesson, and Miss M. Hayward presided at the organ.

After the service the members adjourned to the Village School-room, where tea had been provided. The Vicar presided, supported by Mr. Hicks Beach, Mr. Dove (representing Messrs. Gillett and Johnston), and Mr. F. C. Collins, who rehung the bells.

After tea the Vicar thanked the ringers on behalf of the parishioners and himself, also the secretary of the Gloucester Branch (Mr. W. H. Harris) for bringing so many ringers to assist at the opening. He hoped that they found the bells to their liking.

Mr. C. J. Taylor (Witcombe), replying, said from expressions he had heard from the members they were all pleased with the way Messrs. Gillett and Johnston had done the work.

Mr. Dove, replying on behalf of the firm, said he appreciated the remarks passed by the previous speaker, and when he returned to the foundry he should be able to give his report to the firm that the work had been carried out to everyone's satisfaction.—Mr. F. C. Collins said when he left the foundry to hang a peal of bells anywhere in the country his instructions were, 'Do the work properly, and spare neither time nor trouble.'

Selections on the handbells were given by various members, which were much appreciated, afterwards the tower was again visited. The cost of the work (£230) is being defrayed by public subscription.

A collection on behalf of the fund amongst the ringers realised 30s.

LANCASHIRE RINGERS' DIAMOND WEDDING. PRESENTATION AT ECCLESTON.

A largely attended meeting of the Preston Branch of the Lancashire Association was held at Eccleston on Saturday, November 24th. The meeting had been postponed from its usual summer date to coincide with the diamond wedding of Mr. R. Rigbye, of Eccleston.

Mr. Rigbye is one of the oldest active ringers, if not the oldest in the association. He is over eighty years of age, but is still able to take a rope, as he did to a short touch on the present occasion.

During the day the methods rung ranged from Plain Bob to London Surprise, amongst the ringers present being Canon H. J. Elsee, the president of the association. A splendid tea had been provided by the generosity of the Rector, the Rev. H. Bretherton, who is a life member of the association.

The usual business meeting afterwards took place, Canon Elsee presiding. One new member, John Whittle, of Brownedge, was elected.

The Secretary mentioned the annual social at Higher Walton, and appealed specially to members to write for tickets as early as possible. He also mentioned that he had a stock of new diagrams and certificates with him. Both of these were soon sold out.

Canon Elsee then said there were three reasons why he was pleased to be at that meeting. One was that it gave him an opportunity to meet some members whom he didn't often meet, in an area so wide of Preston. Another reason was that he had been able to hear and also have a pull on the Eccleston bells, and so add to his knowledge of Lancashire bells. The third and chief reason was that he was pleased to be present and to make a presentation on behalf of the members of the Preston Branch to Mr. and Mrs. Rigbye. He had been present at various functions in connection with bell-ringing during the last forty years or more, but never at so rare an event as a ringer's diamond wedding. He heartily congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Rigbye on their diamond wedding, and handed to them a splendid timepiece on behalf of the Preston Branch members. He hoped they would live long to see and appreciate the gift.

The timepiece bears a plate inscribed as follows: 'Presented to Mr. and Mrs. R. Rigbye, by members of the Preston Branch, L.A.C.R., on the occasion of their diamond wedding, November 26th, 1928.'

Mrs. Rigbye said she thanked the members for their present and kind wishes from the bottom of her heart. Mr. Rigbye also added a few words of thanks.

Canon Elsee then proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Rector for so generously providing the tea, to the ladies who had waited on them at the tables, and to the local ringers for having all in readiness.—This was carried in the usual hearty manner, the Rector suitably replying.

A vote of thanks to the chairman for presiding concluded the meeting, after which more ringing was indulged in.

PEALS OF DOUBLES AND MINOR.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—If I may venture to suggest it with due respect, the resolution passed at Hereford was put forward in order to raise the standard of these peals without sufficiently considering the conditions of the problem involved. It will be within your recollection that I protested against it both privately and at the Council meeting. As I hope to show, the resolution, so far from doing anything to raise the standard, has the unintended effect of crabbing any device that will do so.

I have not examined Mr. Morris' arrangement, but I have heard that this consists of taking 120 rows twice over and composing them into a touch of 240. In other words, every row occurs twice over, but 120 different rows are not used up as a separate block before beginning again. If this be so, this is on all fours with Mr. Law James' arrangement for certain methods on the Treble Bob principle (notably London Surprise Minor), which was published in 'The Ringing World' at the end of last July.

I do not know to what you are referring at the close of your leading article, but to the best of my belief no system of altering the half-hunt can be employed (or is, indeed, conceivable) in which all the six-scores are rung 'without any other row being included.'

Further, it is certain that the Minor resolution bars Mr. Bankes James' arrangement for Cambridge, as although 720 different rows are rung consecutively there are only 719 true changes (i.e., change from row to row). The 720's are true, but not complete.

It is evident the matter cannot rest where it is, the more so as it is intended to insert in the new edition of Legitimate Methods arrangements on the plans of Messrs. Bankes and Law James, and also arrangements for Grandshire Doubles with varied half-hunts arrived at by breaking in two some or other of the six-scores.

It is a most praiseworthy effort to raise the standard of five and six-bell peal ringing, and, lest it should be thought that I am merely crabbing attempts made by others, I venture to suggest that the most promising solution would be a resolution at Chelmsford next year repealing last year's resolutions and asking for the formation of a committee of members of the Central Council familiar with the conditions of five and six-bell ringing to bring up a report on the whole matter.

As it stands, the Council is pledged to accept as a peal 42 six-scores of Grandshire Doubles, each called 'Plain, Bob, Plain, Bob, Plain, Single' (repeated 83 times), or seven 720's of Bob Minor, all called tenor 'Wrong, Right, Wrong,' with Single half-way and end, and debar conductors from using the knowledge that has been recently placed at their disposal. Meanwhile it is to be hoped (sic) that those who have rung Cambridge Minor peals on Mr. Bankes James' plan will cancel them, though I confess that I have no intention of doing this myself.—Yours faithfully,

E. S. POWELL.

The Rectory, Clyst St. George, Exeter,
November 23rd, 1928.

WORTH FURTHER CONSIDERATION.

Dear Sir,—We have been talking over the point raised in your leading article of this week, and we think the matter is worth further consideration. It is somewhat difficult to see how we can allow the incomplete 720's in Mr. Bankes James' arrangement of Cambridge and disallow the 240's of Grandshire Doubles.

H. LAW JAMES.

J. ARMIGER TROLLOPE.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A quarterly meeting of the Western Division was held at Shoreham on Saturday, November 17th, but only seventeen attended from the following towers: Chichester, Brighton, Horsham, Heene, Itchingfield, Warnham and Shoreham, and Mr. Alan Pink, of Dorking. The bells were available from three o'clock, and a short service with an address was conducted by the Rev. J. G. F. Glossop, who gave the association a welcome.

Mr. J. T. Rickman (Master) presided at the business meeting, when it was proposed to hold the next meeting at West Tarring. A vote of thanks, proposed by the Master, to the Rev. J. G. F. Glossop, for granting the use of the bells and his address, also to the lady organist, was carried, and Mr. F. Cripps was asked to convey the same to the rev. gentlemen. Although the meeting was poorly attended, the ringing was successful, as everyone had a full share from rounds to London and Bristol Surprise.

A STEEPLEKEEPER'S DEPARTURE.

At St. Stephen's Church, West Ealing, Middlesex, on Sunday, November 18th, for morning service, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples in 41 mins.: H. Belcher 1, E. J. Watson 2, C. Edwards 3, P. B. Clark 4, J. H. Hunnisett 5, H. J. Hunnisett 6, R. Thompson (conductor) 7, E. Harris 8. Rung as a farewell to C. Edwards, who is leaving the district. He has been steeplekeeper from the time the bells were hung for ringing.

NORTH NOTTS ASSOCIATION.

THE BELL RESTORATION AT SOUTH ANSTON.

Inclement weather resulted in only a moderate attendance of members of the North Notts Association at the meeting at South Anston on Saturday week, ringers being present from North Collingham, Cuckney, East Retford, Shireoaks, Sutton-on-Trent, Worksop, Gainsborough, Barnsley, Treeton, and the full company of local ringers. The bells have recently been restored by Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. The tenor has been recast, and two new trebles added to make them into the full octave, the splice being an excellent one. During the afternoon and evening some good touches of Plain Bob, Little Bob, Stedman Triples and Kent Treble Bob Major, and a number of Minor methods were rung to suit the six-bell ringers, as well as a few rounds for the probationers. Tea was served in the schoolroom, presided over by the Vicar (Rev. R. Hodgson), supported by Messrs. Airey and Stenton (churchwardens), Mrs. East (Collingham), the Misses Burchall (Sutton-on-Trent), Mr. C. D. Potter (hon. secretary, Barnsley Association), Mr. H. Morgan (Ringing Master of the Northern District of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild), and the hon. secretary of the association (Mr. H. Haigh), and others.

At the business meeting which followed, the Vicar, in a most interesting speech, intimated what a pleasure it was both to the churchwardens and himself to welcome the association to Anston. He had always liked ringing, and had regretted that he had not learned more of the art when he was younger. He had only succeeded in ringing a plain course of Bob Major and a few Minor methods; nevertheless, he much enjoyed it. They had now got their bells at South Anston in good ringing order, with the tenor recast and the peal made into a full octave. Mr. Fowler had had a great deal to do with this, and he hoped the ringers would find every enjoyment in the new state of things, and the excellent splice that had been made. They had not quite got all the money required to pay the bill, but they were not pessimistic about it being forthcoming, and all their friends and neighbours in the district who had helped so well must be remembered by the Anston people when their own bells required restoration and augmentation. There was one peal in the district that required serious attention, and in recognition of what the late secretary had done for the association the church must be helped, and he hoped the Anston people would lend their assistance.

Mr. H. Haigh then handed over to the Vicar a sum of £5 unannouncedly granted by the association for the Anston ringers' pluck and enterprise in having the bells augmented to eight and put in good order.

Mr. Ernest Beckett, of Anston, was elected a performing member, and Mr. C. D. Potter was elected a non-resident life member.

The next meeting was arranged to be held at Worksop in January or early February, the hon. secretary being given permission to arrange for a date when he could attend, notice to be given through 'The Ringing World.'

A comprehensive vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar of Anston for granting the use of the bells, presiding over the tea and meeting, and for his excellent address; to both churchwardens for their attendance, and to the Anston ladies for providing such an excellent tea.—The Vicar suitably replied, and Messrs. Airey and C. D. Potter also spoke a few words of encouragement to members of the association.—Further ringing was afterwards indulged in until 9 p.m., when the bells were lowered in peal.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S GOLDEN WEDDING.

Several touches of Grandsire Doubles were rung at Bratton, Wilts; a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples (conducted by R. L. Patterson) at St. Ignatius', Sunderland; and at Barthomley, Cheshire, after a touch of 546 Grandsire Triples, the bells were 'fired.'

THE 18½ TON RINGING BELL,
the Bourdon of the Carillon of 64 Bells, about to be installed at RIVERSIDE CHURCH, New York, U.S.A.

PEALS ON FIVE AND SIX BELLS.

The article which we published a fortnight ago on the subject of peals of Doubles and Minor has stirred up a new interest in this matter, and it may be well if certain of the facts were briefly reviewed. Up to the time when the Central Council met last Whitsuntide, no definition had ever been laid down to cover what should constitute a peal on five bells; while the definition which, since the years 1911-1912, had governed the requirements for a peal of Minor, failed to meet a modern advance in Minor ringing which enabled a 720 to end with a row other than rounds, the old rules laying down that peals of Minor should 'consist of at least seven true and complete 720's, the bells striking round only once at the end of each and immediately going into the next.'

Obviously, to bring the rules of the Council up to date some amendment to the conditions for peals of Minor was required, and a definition for peals of Doubles was also necessary. Three months' notice of the new proposals was given. During that time the suggested conditions were brought to the notice of ringers at many meetings throughout the country, and were discussed at the Council meeting. There was ample opportunity for considering their effect on future peals, and it was open to any member of the Council to move any alteration in the wording that he thought fit. But the motion, which was introduced solely to bring the Council's rules into line with modern practice and to maintain the standard which should be required for peal performances, went through unaltered. Now, however, six months afterwards, we are being informed that instead of the new conditions doing anything to raise the standard of peals they have 'the unintended effect of crabbing any device that will do so,' according to Mr. Powell's letter last week, and 'squashing' those in a humble sphere who attempt to introduce variation, according to Mr. Ernest Morris' letter in this issue.

With regard to the latter point, we fail to see that enterprise in ringing is in any way restricted by the conditions adopted by the Council. There is nothing to prevent a conductor calling false six-scores of Doubles as often as he likes, but we venture to think that the Council is right in demanding, where recognition of a peal is claimed, that the six-scores which go to make up the peal shall each be true. Indeed, the whole question, it seems to us, turns on whether these extents of Doubles and Minor shall be true or not. The whole trend of the Council's decisions in the past has been for 'truth' in peals. It was with this end in view that such performances as fourteen 360's rung irrespective of the repetition of changes, was ruled out, and provision made that in spliced methods on any number of bells, the peal should consist of true changes. It would be going back on this old and desirable principle to admit, in peals, six-scores or 720's which do not conform to the requirements laid down for other numbers.

Other points are raised in this discussion to which we will refer later, but lest there are any of our readers who think that the issue is a small one, we should like to stress the view that the matter is of considerable importance to the Exercise, inasmuch as it vitally affects what is to be admitted, in future, as a peal.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Gloucester Branch was held at St. Mary de Lode Church, Gloucester, on Saturday, November 24th, and was well attended. The bells were opened at 3 p.m. and kept going by mixed bands. At 4.30 p.m. service was held in the church, at which the Rev. Wyndham Jones officiated, Miss Workman presiding at the organ. Afterwards, the members adjourned to the schoolroom, where an excellent tea had been provided by Miss Gardener. The business meeting followed, the Rev. Wyndham Jones presiding.

The branch secretary presented his report, which showed that nine meetings had been held during the past year, with a total attendance of 185 members—an average of just over 20 members per meeting. There are now 121 performing members, against 119 last year; and 24 honorary members, the same as last year, including three lady members, also one life member, an increase of two in the total membership. The secretary thanked the various incumbents for the courtesy shown to the members when visiting the towers. The report was considered very satisfactory, and adopted.

The Rev. H. G. Endow, Vicar of Quedgely, was again elected chairman of the branch, Mr. W. H. Harris branch secretary, and Mr. T. Baldwin representative on Management Committee.

Mr. J. Stephens proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar (Rev. W. G. Pritchard) for the use of the bells, to Rev. Wyndham Jones for conducting the service, and for his excellent advice, to Miss Workman for presiding at the organ, and to the ladies.—This was seconded by ex-Sergt. Williams, and carried with applause.

Rev. Wyndham Jones acknowledged the vote, and Mr. G. Jackson replied in the absence of the Vicar. He said he would convey the vote of thanks to the Vicar, and added that it was a pleasure to have the members at St. Mary de Lode.

Tune playing on the handbells by Mr. J. Austin and ex-Sergt. Williams and touches of Triples by other members, including the veteran Mr. B. Etheridge, who is in his 81st year, brought a very pleasant meeting to a close.

MR. JAMES SEARLE'S PEALS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I should like to thank Messrs. C. Tyler, G. Williams and F. Dunch for their kindly references in 'The Ringing World' to my late uncle, Mr. J. Searle. I have found among his papers cuttings from the 'Bell News' of 77 peals, in which his name appears and of them he had conducted 15.

One peal of Stedman Caters was rung at Birmingham on March 1st, 1889, and the company included ringers from Newcastle to Brighton. My uncle often used to listen to the local ringers, but did not feel like doing any ringing himself. He contented himself with looking over his records of peals and reciting their various histories.—Yours truly,

HAROLD D. SEARLE

44, Green Street, Eastbourne.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.MEETING AT POPLAR.

The last meeting of the North and East District of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild for this year was held at All Saints', Poplar, on Saturday last, and an enjoyable afternoon was spent. The proceedings were opened with a touch of Grandsire Triples almost punctually to the advertised time, and Grandsire and Stedman Caters quickly followed. Members of the local band, who are receiving instruction from the association, joined in the ringing, and showed considerable aptitude.

Divine service was held at 4.30, when a very encouraging address was given by the Rector (Rev. C. Mayne), who urged the ringers to give of their best, whether they were novices or experts. Only the best was acceptable to God, and ringers should make sure that they always did their best when ringing to His service.

Tea was served at Messrs. Lyons, and afterwards another visit was paid to the tower. Several touches of Stedman and Grandsire Caters and Cambridge Surprise Royal were rung, the end of the time allocated for ringing coming all too quickly.

The business meeting was held in the belfry. Seven new members were elected, and it was announced that the next meeting would be held at Edmonton on February 2nd, it being the annual meeting of the district.

The action of the hon. secretary in conveying the condolences of the members to the widow and family of the late Mr. E. H. Tubb, of the Finchley band, was endorsed.

A letter from the late president, the Rev. F. R. Bonsey, now Rector of Wrentham, conveying good wishes to all members, was read.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Rector, who paid a visit to the belfry during the afternoon's ringing, for his very cordial welcome to the association, and for the use of the bells; also to Messrs. W. Partiss, A. S. Askew, and the local ringers, for having everything in readiness. The belfry was a picture of neatness, and reflected great credit on those responsible for its appearance. The attendance during the afternoon and evening reached forty members.

CHEW STOKE LEADER'S DEATH.

On November 15th, at Chew Stoke, Somerset, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles, with the bells half-muffled, in 40 mins.: W. Raynon 1, W. Balch (conductor) 2, G. H. Martin (Bedwas, Mon) 3, S. Clark 4, H. Babb 5, H. Clark 6. Also several six-scores of Grandsire Doubles with the bells half-muffled at Chew Magna, 7, 8, 8 covering, as a token of respect to the late Mr. J. Rawlings, who was leader of both towers for a long time. He was buried at Chew Stoke on this date.

A DISS PEAL RECORDED.

On Monday evening, November 26th, a new peal board was unveiled and dedicated in the belfry of St. Mary's Church, Diss, Norfolk, by the Rector of Diss, Rev. R. L. Whytehead, M.A., at 8 p.m. It records a peal of Superlative Surprise Mayor rung at Diss on Monday, July 2nd, 1928, and was given by one of the local ringers who took part in the peal, Mr. Albert G. Harrison, who also made the massive oak frame which surrounds it. The lettering has been most artistically done by Mr. H. Flatman, of Diss.

Ringers from Dickleburgh and North Lopham were present, also the churchwarden, Messrs. A. L. Vaughan, and G. J. Moss, and the parish clerk (Mr. W. H. Harrison).

Immediately after the dedication eight members of the Diss company rang a plain course of Superlative Surprise Major, standing in the same order as in the peal, excepting treble and 2nd, which were rung by A. Leeder and W. Wiskius.

'ON THE WAR PATH.'To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Your editorial of November 9th, under the above, was interesting to me, having just recently had some experience.

A paragraph having appeared in a local journal complaining of the ringing of church bells at Romford, was followed by a correspondent who asserted that the bells had been 'clanging and jangling for four hours,' to which I replied stating that the last time the bells were even rung four hours was over thirty years ago, and that the talented band that rang at Romford for Sunday morning service were a body of churchworkers, but had no week-day practice, and pointed out that only five peals were rung during 1927 without the slightest clanging or jangling, claiming that some bands that rang a peal returned home as happy as the football team that took home the Association Cup. A further letter appeared, in which the unjust assertion of jangling and clanging for four hours was repeated, and I had again to repeat what I had previously written, upon which no further unjust assertions were made.

Unfortunately, there is too much apathy among ringers in such matters, and it is to be regretted such unjust assertions are not more frequently taken up by the Exercise. This is a matter that a national association could handle by a committee, to whom all such assertions could be sent and dealt with at once with good effect.

W. KEEBLE.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

To-morrow is the 45th anniversary of the 'five ones' of Stedman Caters (11,111 changes) rung at Fulham in 7 hrs. 11 mins. by the College Youths. Of that band, Messrs. F. E. Dawe, J. W. Rowbotham, C. F. Winney and W. Prime are still among us.

A peal of 10,224 Treble Bob Maximus was rung at Painswick on December 9th, 1833, and remained a record length in the method until the peal at Ashton-under-Lyne in 1911.

The first peal of St. Paul's Cathedral was rung on December 10th, 1881.

A peal of 'Real Double Caters,' composed and conducted by George Gross, was rung at St. Magnus' Church, London, on December 10th, 1770.

Eighty years ago next Wednesday a record peal of Stedman Cinques was rung at St. Martin's, Birmingham. This was 7,392, composed and conducted by Henry Johnson. More than once St. Martin's has 'captured' the Stedman Cinques record, which is at present held by the College Youths, with the 12,675 rung at South-wark in 1923.

Mr. C. E. Palmer, of Woolwich, referring to our note which stated that the first peal of London Surprise Major in London was rung on December 8th, 1888, at Fulham, reminds us that a peal of London was rung at St. Mary's, Woolwich, by the Woolwich Branch of the College Youths, on October 11th, 1849, conducted by William Banister.

Forty years ago, however, Woolwich was not considered to be part of London.

BIRMINGHAM'S NEW RING OF TWELVE.

TO-MORROW'S OPENING.

Great preparations are being made for the opening of the bells of St. Martin's Church, Birmingham, on Saturday, an event which will be given in the city the due importance which it deserves.

The dedication is to be performed by the Rector, Canon Guy Rogers, at a special service to commence at 3 p.m., and a large gathering of ringers from many parts of the country is expected. The bells will be open for ringing from 4 to 5 p.m., and from 6 to 7 p.m., and afterwards there is to be a 'social' at St. Martin's Hotel.

The bells are also to be the subject of a special 'broadcast' service on Sunday evening at 8 p.m. The bells will be heard over the ether from 8 to 8.10 p.m., and the service itself will include the hymn, 'Ring out wild bells to the wild sky,' and a bell carol.

On Sunday morning a new Holy Table, in memory of the late Dean Willink, of Norwich, formerly Rector of Birmingham, is to be dedicated by the Bishop of Birmingham. Sunday is also Thanksgiving Day, when it is hoped to raise a sum of £200 to balance the revenue account of the church.

Visitors on Saturday will be advised as to where tea can be obtained.

The new ring of twelve have been cast by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of the Whitechapel Foundry, and ringers over a wide area are looking forward with eager anticipation to hearing a grand peal of bells. The tenor is just a little under 36 cwt. in the key of C. The old frame, which was in good condition, has been strengthened and the bells have been hung in all the latest type of fittings, including ball bearings.

It is interesting to note that to carry out this big scheme of restoration it has not been necessary to appeal to the public for funds. The whole cost has been defrayed from the Rope Croft Fund—a fund which originated in the generosity of a parishioner who over two hundred years ago left a plot of land, the rent from which was to go to the provision of bell ropes for the Parish Church. The accretion of value of this piece of land has been such that the annual income is now some hundreds of pounds, and thus funds are available for important improvements to the church.

CONGRATULATIONS TO ARCHBISHOP.

Mr. Cyril F. Johnston, of Croydon, who is abroad on a health tour, sent the following cablegram from Los Angeles to Archbishop Davidson, on the occasion of his golden wedding: 'May I join with ringers of England and Croydon Bell Foundry staff, who met you March 3rd, in sending sincere congratulations your Grace and Mrs. Randall Davidson on your golden wedding day.'

CONSIDERATION FOR PARISHIONERS!

Not one hundred miles from Leicester, writes a correspondent, is a nice ring of six bells, with a contented band of round ringers. No peals are allowed to be rung, the reason given being that the noise of the bells are a nuisance to the residents near the church. A competent band asked permission to ring an Armistice peal, and, knowing the circumstances of the case, were willing to ring the bells fully muffled. A neighbouring Rector, interested in ringing, personally appealed on behalf of the band, but all met with a firm refusal and the statement that the parishioners must be considered.

To-day (St. Andrew's Day) the bells were being rung at 6 a.m., the 'Firing,' or an attempt thereat, being also indulged in. Were the parishioners considered?

PEALS OF DOUBLES AND MINOR. REV. E. BANKES JAMES' ARRANGEMENT.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—You will not doubt remember that some months ago I pointed out to you that the Rev. E. Bankes James' arrangement of Cambridge Minor does not comply with all the Central Council's conditions for a true peal. In the present discussion on peals of Minor and Doubles I notice the matter again crops up.

If I understand aright, in the Rev. E. Bankes James' arrangement the 720's are true provided rounds is considered as the first change of a 720. Naturally, if rounds is the first change it cannot be the last, and, therefore, the peal does not end with rounds, but with 124365 or 132465. This does not comply with the condition laid down by the Central Council on page 15 of its recent publication, 'Rules and Decisions of the Council,' where it distinctly states that, 'On all numbers of bells a true peal shall in all cases start from and end with rounds.'

To put our house in order, we must either alter the last stipulation or decline to recognise the Rev. E. Bankes James' arrangement for Cambridge as a true peal.—Yours faithfully,

FRANK W. PERRENS.

'TRUE AND COMPLETE.'

Sir,—The question of the meaning of the resolution concerning peals of Minor and Doubles passed at Hereford turns upon the question of what we mean by a 720 or a six-score.

It has been the custom of the Exercise to talk about a true 720 or a true peal. Does this mean that we have actually made 720 different changes, or does it mean that the bells have sounded in 720 different orders? The word changes suggests the former, but a little consideration will show that that is impossible. It is commonly said that we can ring six changes on three bells. Let us examine them: 123; change 1 and 2, 213; change 1 and 3, 231; change 2 and 3, 321. We have now made three different changes, and the bells have struck in our different orders, but the bells can strike in two more orders, 312 and 132, and neither of these can be produced unless we repeat the change of 1 and 2, while 3 lies still; and the change of 1 and 3, while 2 lies still. From this it follows that a six on three bells means the six different orders in which the bells strike; moreover, in all the old ringing books we find 720 of Bob Minor having 14 bobs and two singles. The two singles go thus:—

We also get:—

123654 bob and 132654 bob

and

Now this 720 has always been accepted as true, but it is evident that when the treble leads and 4.5 change in 5.6, 6 never changes with 2 or 3. If this 720 is true and complete, then my brother's arrangements of Cambridge Minor are true and complete, Mr. Morris' arrangement of Doubles is true and complete, and the so-called incomplete peal of Grandsire Triples, given on page 143 in Grandsire, is really true and complete, as the two missing rows come at the beginning.

Finally, the definition rules out any such absurdity as ringing each lead of a six-score of Bob Doubles forty-two times consecutively, and then going on to the next lead, for each of the forty-one repeats would be only the plain course of Original Doubles and not a six-score.—Yours truly,

H. LAW JAMES.

[Is not Mr. James confusing Mr. Morris' arrangement with Mr. Pitman's? The latter is true and complete in the way suggested by Mr. James, but the former contains a repetition of 40 changes in each 120.—Ed. 'R.W.']

'GIVE ENCOURAGEMENT WHERE WE CAN.'

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly point out in your next issue that I am not the author of the Spliced 240 of Grandsire Doubles, so strongly commented upon in your recent leader. It is by my friend and namesake, 'Leslie,' and without entering into any merit or otherwise, I simply say it does conform to the method throughout, and is a welcome change from the old ten 120's.

Evidently you fail to realise the great difficulty many of our isolated 5 and 6-bell towers have to keep a hand together, even to ring the 'original' six-score, and who are not like the majority of us better favoured ones, who can, when going for a peal, pick out the best from two or three towers. There are often one or two struggling along continually teaching fresh hands, and never getting a possible chance of advancing, unless going perhaps many miles and to some inconvenience and expense to visit other towers better situated. Therefore, we should welcome any attempt at variation, even if in this humble sphere, and give encouragement where we can—not simply squash them.

I repeat that which appears in our 1927 report, which will equally apply to other associations:—

DEATH OF MR. F. KNIGHTS.

A LINK WITH OLD NORWICH RINGERS.

An outstanding personality in the Exercise, Mr. Frederick Knights, passed away at his residence, Heigham Street, Norwich, on November 27th.

Born at Catfield, Norfolk, December 12th, 1851, he was employed, at the early age of five, in searing crows, being rewarded for this at the rate of 1s. per week. At a still early age he found employment in a bakehouse at Diss, and it was here he learned to ring, the writer having heard him say that he could ring when he was twelve years of age.

In 1866 he came to Norwich, and very soon made the acquaintance of the old company, then practising at St. Peter Mancroft, the late Mr. James Trueman being head man and conductor, and he was asked to take part in the ringing for a visit to Norwich of the Prince of Wales (later Edward VII.) during that year.

He continued practising with the Mancroft company until 1873, when he transferred his activities to what were known as the 'Stags,' the rival company to the Norwich Scholars (Mancroft company).

In 1876, a vacancy having occurred in the Mancroft company by the death of Robert Burrell, and Mr. Knights being the only ringer in Norwich at the time with the necessary qualifications, he was asked to fill the vacancy, which he did.

In 1882, when the late Mr. James Youngs, who had succeeded Mr. James Trueman as head man, became incapacitated, Mr. Knights took over the leadership and continued to fulfil the duties until the old company ceased their connection with St. Peter Mancroft.

Mr. Knights was an original member of the Norwich Diocesan Association, and also a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths. Besides this, he was the last link with the old Norwich company, having known Thos. Hurry, James Trueman and Charles Middleton. But, most of all, Mr. Knights will be remembered for his charming personality. Meeting him for the first time one would instinctively call him a gentleman; as a ringer he was a superb striker at either end, and maintained to the full the Norwich tradition of easy and correct manipulation of a bell.

Perhaps his outstanding performance was the ringing of the tenor to the back eight at Mancroft to Oxford Treble Bob Major, on November 20th, 1890, which he also conducted.

Mr. Knights built up a prosperous business as a baker and confectioner, and brought up a large family, only one of whom is a ringer, the eldest son, Mr. F. H. Knights.

Very musically inclined, Mr. Knights took in hand the teaching and training of the Albert Street handbell ringers, whose services were in great demand during the last twenty years of the last century. Norwich being a city with a reputation for music, the success of these handbell performances was something to be proud of; in fact, the whole of his family are very expert tune ringers.

His peal total was 129 on tower bells, on all numbers from six to twelve, and three handbell peals. He conducted many of these, and it is safe to say that those peals were rung; if the striking was rough, Fred Knights would not stand for it.

His name is not so well known to the present generation, but many will remember him and many will be proud to have known him and to have rung with him, for he was one of those who have helped more than a little to build up the Exercise. Deceased was a widower for many years, and the sympathy of the Exercise will go out to the family in their bereavement.

He was interred in the City of Norwich Cemetery on December 4th. May he rest in peace.

'It would be well if all branches of the M.C.A. actively realised that there are in nearly every county more than three times the number of five and six-bell towers to those of higher numbers, and much good might be done, many members interested and secured, and the art considerably increased if these towers were not isolated so much, but brought into line with their more fortunate confrères of greater numbers.'

Yours sincerely,

ERNEST MORRIS.

THE PEAL AT BROUGHTON ASTLEY.

Dear Sir,—We thank you for publishing our peal rung at Broughton Astley. Its publication, together with the correspondence arising therefrom, has somewhat relieved the shock we experienced from your leading article in the preceding week's issue. Unfortunately, owing to the bad go of the bells, especially of the tenor, peal ringing here is not altogether a Saturday afternoon's holiday. As far as is known, only two previous peals have been rung, one in 1915 and one in 1921, both by well-known ringers, with the inclusion in the former of our captain, Mr. John Braud, who has been a ringer here for 56 years. Several of these ringers have congratulated us on our achievement, and some are prepared to argue on the point raised, but it is not our wish to enter into any controversy on the matter. We are naturally proud of obtaining a local peal, and we shall watch with great interest any further development on the subject.—Yours, etc.,

Broughton Astley.

NAMES AND MEANINGS.

BY REV. H. DRAKE.

The article by 'Minormania' has said just what needs saying. It is all of it excellent. The only sentence I do not understand is that in which he speaks of 'my expressed opinion of "one method, one name."' In the first place, I do not see how it conflicts with his argument; and in the second place it is hardly my opinion more than anyone else's. It underlies all that the Council and its committees have done with regard to methods. For example, why publish a list of names, if one method could have two names, or several methods had to share one name?

What I have pressed is the fact that it is the duty of the Council to express itself definitely on one side or the other on this and similar elementary questions. It does not matter so much which side they take, as that they take one side or the other, so that we can get on, and put an end to these interminable disputes about so elementary a matter as the nomenclature of method extension. Had our resolutions, or other alternative ones, been passed, I should have seen to it that either our committee or some other applied them to the resolution of this and other matters. One thing is certain: it is a piece of work that has got to be done. We have elected the Council to do such work as this, but if it continues to refuse to do their job, it will have to be done in some other way. It is not likely that ringers will continue much longer to be under the thumb of three experts who can only repeat 'non possumus.'

Methods, as they extend, branch out and interlace, like the branches of a tree. They may be difficult to trace, but artists do not for that reason say they cannot draw a tree, though they may occasionally find that for their purpose a conventional form is better than one which is literally exact.

One can answer both Mr. Bixby's and Mr. Trollope's questions together. In teaching a beginner to prick changes, it is quite easy, and may be advisable, to point out to him a 'move,' 'movement,' and 'motion,' in the changes. Such way of teaching is at the same time simple and scientific. It is, however, neither simple nor scientific to call these elementary ideas by the confusing name of 'shunt' in 'the more abstruse part of the science of method construction'—to use Mr. Trollope's words, which are in the best style of obscurantism. In the same way it does not help a learner to be told that a method is named after Bowdon, and is called Bogeytown, and spelt Bogedone. Mr. Trollope tells us that he has learnt how to pronounce this word. He has, therefore, beaten me, as I never could pronounce Anglo-Saxon. But, then, I was always bad at languages. The only thing I remember is that there is no 'e' mute in Anglo-Saxon, so the word must have four syllables. By the way, no one seems to have owned up to the Cuneastre joke, or to have told us how to pronounce it. Will all who ring these methods have to take a preliminary course in Anglo-Saxon from Mr. Trollope? Is this another piece of obscurantism from the high priest of 'the more abstruse part of the science'?

However, it is clear that I must unreservedly withdraw the word 'pledge.' I used the word to show that I was referring to an informal arrangement, and not to a definite resolution; but the word can, of course, mean a solemn promise, in the sense in which Mr. Trollope takes it, and this I did not mean.

Mr. Trollope had said that I had my opportunity at Hereford and did not take it; all I was concerned with was to show that I did take it. His words implied that the Methods Committee considered that they had no power to make further changes. But he now says they still have the power. Well and good. What I want to make clear is that it is not my funeral. The committee must take full responsibility for these follies, and not try to make me or the Council responsible.

I did not mean to imply that he expressed any opinion about these names, much less that he did not think them 'sensible.'

It is very strange that Mr. Trollope not only denies that this list was a report from the Methods Committee, but even denies that the committee presented any report. This is neither in accordance with my memory, nor with the published accounts in your columns.

The word 'report' means to bring back. The Methods Committee were 'sent out' again last year, and this year, among other things, they 'brought back' this list. Therefore, I am absolutely correct in calling it a report, which it is. Even if it were not technically a report (which I do not believe), I should still be justified in calling it one, as it was brought forward when they were asked for their report. To disown it as their report, only means that they are ashamed of it.

Now, although we understood that we were passing the list ready for the printer, Mr. Trollope gives us to understand that it will not be printed. This seems strange. Will there not even be a contents table?

I notice that Mr. Trollope says himself that 'Immanuel' was condemned by the general feeling of the Council, although no formal vote was passed. My point is that the same applies to 'Bogedon' and 'Cuneastre,' only much more forcibly: for several voices were raised then, and since, in support of the one, while no one has ever spoken in support of the other two—nor ever will.

In conclusion, I may point out that the committee have not followed the rule he says they have, of keeping to the names given by (Continued in next column.)

SWANSEA AND BRECON DIOCESAN GUILD.

The annual meeting of the Southern District was held at St. Mary's Church, Swansea, on Saturday, when about 30 members were present from Aheravon, Neath, Cadoxton, Morriston, Llanelly, Gorseinon, Tenby, with the local band, and Mr. G. Popnell from Bedwellty, and Mr. W. Williams from Blackwood, Mon, who were very welcome visitors. The bells (a peal of eight) were rung before the service, which was conducted by the Vicar, Rev. W. T. Havard. Tea followed in the Market Restaurant, kindly provided by the Vicar, and was very much appreciated. At the business meeting the Vicar kindly presided. Officers elected for 1929 were Mr. E. Stith, hon. district secretary, and Mr. G. W. Hollis, auditor.

Morriston was chosen for the place of next meeting. One new member was elected, and the Vicar became an hon. member.

A collection was made for the Bates appeal fund, the amount collected being 15s.

Votes of thanks were accorded to the Vicar for the use of the bells, for conducting the service, for the splendid tea, and for presiding at the meeting; also to the organist for his services at the organ.—The Vicar (who is a true friend of ringers) said how very pleased he was to do his best to make them all happy, and he hoped they would come again soon.

The tower was again visited, when the four standard methods were rung and rounds for the beginners. The bells were lowered in peal about 8.30 p.m., bringing to a close the best meeting ever held in Swansea by the Guild.

SURREY ASSOCIATION.

A quarterly meeting of the Southern District of the Surrey Association was held at Bletchingley on Saturday, the following towers being represented: Godstone, Redhill, Reigate, Merstham, Horley, Buckland, Burstow, Limpsfield Chart, and Mr. H. Wren, Bletchingley, with visitors from Crawley and Croydon. Ringing commenced at three o'clock, and continued until five, when a short service was conducted by the Rev. A. Aitken, Crawshaw, who gave the association a warm welcome. Afterwards the party, numbering 26, sat down to tea, and this was followed by a business meeting, at which the Rev. A. Aitken, Crawshaw, presided.

The company stood for a few moments as a token of respect to the late Master, Mr. J. D. Drowitt, and the secretary was instructed to write a letter of condolence to the relatives.

The usual business was transacted, and it was proposed to hold the next meeting (which is the annual district meeting) at Charlwood.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector for the use of the bells, for his address at the services, and for presiding at the meeting, also to Mr. Bashford, jun., for presiding at the organ. Ringing was afterwards enjoyed up till 8.30 in the standard methods, including Cambridge Minor.

BELFRY ELECTIONS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I note with much interest a letter by a prominent Yorkshire Association official calling attention to Joseph's 'mental aberration.' Has he only just become aware of it? Joseph has been very fond of telling the story of how three Yorkshire ringers went up to a big city and got together some others from round the district for a peal. Before starting they found that no association had a majority among the members present, so went for a friendly peal and got it. After the peal, the gist of the conversation was: 'It's a pity it can't be published as rung for some association or other.' Whereupon one of the Yorkshire men made a suggestion that it be published as a Yorks Association peal, and he would pay all subscriptions. This met with the approval of the four or five present (the rest having gone), and would Mr. So-and-So please tell the others that Mr. — was kindly paying their subscriptions?

This is typical of the way many ringers are elected to membership in lots of places to-day. I myself have rung in two peals with 'Uncle' in which non-association ringers took part, his idea, like mine, being that a non-member in standing in for a peal with a majority of members of an association, automatically becomes a member of same. Why bandy words? 'I propose So-and-So,' and 'I second him.' It's all right at a meeting, because it's in keeping with the dignity of the meeting, but it seems out of place before a peal. 'Don't be silly; we haven't met for just a friendly peal, and so long as the secretary gets his subscription he's just as much a member of the Guild as you or I.' Any way, these are the ideas forced upon him by the experiences of the bands who first rang them. This is the part of the country where Plain Bob was first rung, and here it is always called 'Plain.' I know that in some parts of the country it is called 'Bob,' but to call this one method 'Bob' is not only to break the vital rule to start with, but it makes meaningless the use of the same term as the name of a class. I admit that 'Reverse Plain' is not very elegant, nor logical, but it is far better, from both points of view, than 'Reverse Bob,' which is, when you come to think of it, really ridiculous.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.A SMALL, BUT USEFUL, MEETING.

Cobham, a Surrey village on the banks of the River Mole, was the venue selected for a meeting of the Leatherhead District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild, held on Saturday, but it was rather poorly attended, only about twenty members being present. Although on the main road from London to Portsmouth, and within about twenty miles of the Metropolis, Cobham is not easy to get to from other places in the Leatherhead District, as instance the fact that it took the district secretary over two hours to reach the village from his home, eight miles away as the crow flies. It may have been this inaccessibility that in part led to the sparse attendance, but it did not account for the absence of those who promised to come but did not put in an appearance. A counter-attraction in the shape of a Surrey Association meeting at Croydon may also have been responsible for the absence of some whose homes are nearer to the bell foundry town than to Cobham. But what was lacking in numbers was made up in interest. The four hours during which the bells were utilised enabled some sound practice to be put in, and the eight-bell men had their ringing education improved—which is as it should be when they visit a six-bell tower. 'You don't get half the fun out of eight, ten and twelve-bell ringing, that you do out of six-bell ringing,' said one of them, after his experience. 'Fancy ringing Stedman Cinques all your life, when you can go to a six-bell tower and ring hundreds of methods.' If he was exaggerating a bit, he had, at any rate, grasped the interest which enterprising six-bell ringers can get out of the art. The ringing during the afternoon included Grandsire, Stedman, and St. Simon's Doubles, Bob, Double Bob, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob and Cambridge Surprise Minor. The bells are a musical ring, with tenor of 9 cwt., three being by Taylor and the rest tuned by that firm.

The Rector (the Rev. J. du V. Brunton) conducted the Guild's service, and, led by the choirboys, was fully choral. The Leatherhead District ringers have among them some excellent vocalists, and the singing was therefore equal to that which might have been expected from a much larger congregation.

The Rector gave a homely address, in which he referred to the contribution of skill, patience and time which ringers give to their work, and suggested that their meetings should be made the occasion of the rededication of their services to the Church.

Tea was served in the Parish Hall, the Master of the Guild (Major J. H. B. Hesse) presiding, supported by the district secretary (Mr. E. G. Woodiss), the District Master (Mr. A. Harman), and the general secretary (Mr. J. S. Goldsmith).

The election of six compounding members prior to peals was confirmed, and the District Secretary reported that the district committee had decided to suspend the weekly combined practices during December, but to resume them in the New Year. The committee had also had before them a suggestion for a combined meeting with the Surrey Association in the district early next year, and he (the secretary) had asked their Surrey friends to select the place they would most like to visit for the gathering.

The question of the meetings of the district clashing with those of the Central and Southern Districts of the Surrey Association was discussed, it being pointed out that all three districts were meeting that day. The Guildford Guild has adopted the practice of drawing up and issuing its programme of meetings for the year, to avoid the clashing of meetings in its own districts, and it was resolved, when next year's programme had been decided upon, to send a copy to the Surrey Association district secretaries, so that they may be able, if they are willing to do so, to select dates to avoid clashing.

The Master proposed a vote of thanks to the Rector for the use of the bells and for conducting the service, to the organist and to the choir. This was seconded by the district secretary and carried by acclamation.

A specially cordial vote of thanks was passed to Mr. W. James, the local secretary, for having made all the arrangements at Cobham, and for having, out of his own pocket, paid the choirboys for their attendance.

AN AUGMENTED RING.

On Saturday, the Farnham District held a combined practice at Farnborough to give the local band a good send-off into the practice of Minor, now that they have had their bells augmented from five to six by the addition of a new treble, which was dedicated on Tuesday week. Messrs. Gillett and Johnston have made a very good job of the addition, the splice being perfect, and, by reason of its being hung on ball bearings, the bell practically rings itself. During the afternoon and evening several ringers found it rather unmanageable.

Twenty-five ringers from Aldershot, Farnham, Farnborough, Seale, Guildford (Holy Trinity) and Sandhurst, attended, and ringing commencing about 3.30 p.m., continued, with a break for tea, until nine o'clock.

During the evening the Rector (the Rev. W. A. Challacombe) visited the belfry and said how pleased he was to see so many ringers at Farnborough, and expressed his disappointment at being unable to invite them to tea at the Rectory, but he also invited all the ringers to come again in the summer and bring their wives and friends.

IRISH ASSOCIATION.NORTHERN BRANCH AT HOLYWOOD.

The November quarterly meeting of the Northern Branch of the Irish Association was held on Saturday, the 17th, at Holywood. There was an excellent attendance of members, and Mr. G. Lindoff travelled from Dublin specially for the meeting. The visiting members took full advantage of this pretty peal of eight bells (tenor 13 cwt.), and got through several extents of Doubles.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Canon Manning (Vicar), who also gave a very inspiring address from the text, 'Whatever ye doeth for the Lord, do it with a good heart.'

A very substantial tea had been provided by Mrs. Manning in the Parochial Hall, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to her for the tea, and to the Canon for the use of the bells and conducting the service in the church.

Mr. W. J. McCarthy, one of the churchwardens, was made a 'life member' of the association, and presented with a membership ticket by the president, Mr. W. Young, who complimented Mr. McCarthy on becoming the first life member from Holywood.

Mr. Lindoff, after being introduced to the members by the Vicar, and welcomed to the meeting, gave a most interesting lecture on the art of change ringing on five and six bells, and this brought a very pleasant meeting to a close.

After the meeting the Holywood band rung 600 changes of Hob Minor on the church bells, and for Sunday morning service Mr. Lindoff stood in with the local team, who rang three extents of 'Doubles' and 180 changes of Minor.

This was the fifth quarterly meeting of the Northern Branch, which was inaugurated in October of last year. There were forty members present, including the local band and ringers from St. Thomas', Belfast, and St. Nicholas', Carrickfergus.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.NEWBURY BRANCH.

The annual meeting of the Newbury Branch was held at Shaw on Saturday, November 17th. Service was conducted by the Rector of Shaw (Rev. W. Kingsley Kefford), assisted by the Rector of Newbury (the Rev. L. R. Majendie), an address being given by the Master of the Guild (the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn).

Tea, served in the Parish Hall, was kindly given by the Rector of Shaw, and a company of 48 sat down.

The business meeting followed, over which the Rev. L. R. Majendie presided, supported by the Master, the general secretary (Mr. T. Hibbert), the general treasurer (Mr. A. J. Wright), and the hon. branch secretary and treasurer.

Mr. H. W. Curtis gave a report of meetings held during the year, which had been well attended. Four peals had been rung in the branch year. The balance sheet was also presented, and showed a balance in hand of £13 12s.

The Rev. L. R. Majendie was re-elected chairman, Mr. H. W. Curtis re-elected hon. secretary and treasurer, and Miss S. Davis, Messrs. T. Curtis, S. Quintin, and F. Owen were elected as representatives on the general committee.

Three new ringing members and one hon. members were elected. The Master said he was very pleased to know Newbury bells were going to be rehung. Thatcham bells were also badly in need of repair.—Mr. R. T. Hibbert congratulated the branch on their progress during the year.—Mr. A. J. Wright congratulated Newbury on their large balance in hand.

£5 was voted towards Newbury bells.

Mr. H. W. Curtis moved a vote of thanks to the Rev. W. Kingsley Kefford for welcoming the members and also for entertaining them to tea, to the Rev. L. R. Majendie for presiding, to Miss Love for playing the organ at the service, to the Master for his address, and to the ladies for undertaking the catering.

The next meeting of the branch was fixed for Compton on Saturday, February 16th.

A collection taken up at the close for Newbury bells, and amounted to £1 12s. 6d.

A HALF PEAL.

At Brookfield Church, Gorton, on November 10th, 2,520 Stedman Triples in 1 hr. 30 mins.: T. Jones 1, A. Barnes 2, H. Shuker 3, K. Gaskell 4, C. Ollier 5, J. Fearnhead 6, B. Thorpe (conductor) 7, G. Eaton 8. Longest length of Stedman by the ringers of the 6th and tenor.

This was a peal attempt as a birthday compliment to the ringer of the 5th, but was brought home at half-way owing to the heavy going of the bells, coupled with a late start.

On the proposition of the hon. secretary (Mr. B. Clark) the Rector was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks for his kindness in issuing such a wide invitation, and for the use of the bells.

The methods rung ranged from Grandsire Doubles to Cambridge Surprise Minor, and everybody voted it one of the most successful meetings held in the Farnham District.

This is the first augmentation of a ring of bells in the area of the Guildford Diocesan Guild since its formation.

THE BATES APPEAL FUND.

The third list of donations to the fund which is being raised to assist Mrs. E. Bates, of Dartford, who has been left in straitened circumstances with three small children (one aged four and twins of six months) by the fatal accident to her husband, one of the Dartford ringers, is printed below. The great help which can be given by collections in the belfry or at meetings is emphasised by the sums which have this week been added by this means, and we hope that bands everywhere will assist in this way. As we mentioned last week, there may be many who are willing to give a small contribution but who would yet hesitate to forward it as an individual gift. If it goes 'into the hat' the collective result is of great assistance. It need not prevent anyone from sending a separate donation, but these small contributions are too valuable to be lost.

Contributions to the fund should be sent to Mr. T. Groombridge, jun., 127, Crayford Way, Crayford, Kent, and will be acknowledged in these columns.

EXETER BRANCH SECRETARY RETIRES.

The annual meeting of the Exeter Branch was held at St. Thomas', Exeter, on Saturday, preceded by service in the Parish Church, at which the Vicar (Rev. G. B. Nicholls) gave an address. About 100 sat down to tea in the Buller Hall. The chairman (Rev. E. V. Cox) was supported by the president and Mrs. E. S. Powell.

Rev. E. V. Cox was re-elected chairman, Miss E. Lomas was elected hon. secretary and treasurer in place of Mr. Stokes who resigned with great regret, and Miss G. Davey was elected assistant. Several speakers paid tribute to the work done by the retiring hon. secretary.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Newton St. Cyres on February 9th.

THE 18 1/2 TON RINGING BELL,
the Bourdon of the Carillon of 64 Bells, about to be installed at RIVERSIDE CHURCH, New York, U.S.A.

OUR RINGS OF TWELVE.

We seem, at this moment, to have reached something in the nature of a climax in the attention which is being bestowed upon the rings of twelve bells in this country. Never has there been at one time so much work in hand among the twelve-bell rings as has recently been the case, and, within the space of three weeks, no fewer than four peals—two of them, Worcester and Birmingham, entirely recast, one, Saffron Walden, partly recast; and another, Lincoln, with its augmentation completed—are being opened. In addition the recasting and augmentation of Walsall bells is also in hand. This is truly a remarkable record, but it seems to be only characteristic of the restoration and improvement going on among the bells of our churches. Ringers ought to rejoice at this activity and they do so when they are given the opportunity.

Birmingham welcomed its new ring on Saturday in a spirit worthy of this great centre of ringing, whose traditions go back unbroken for more than a hundred and fifty years. The bells had come back to the grand old steeple of the Parish Church, after having been through the melting pot at the Whitechapel Foundry, where they were first cast, most of them, in 1758. The old bells were once upon a time counted one of the finest rings of twelve in the country, but with the marked advance of the art of the bell founder in the last quarter of a century, they had gradually receded from their foremost position until it was realised that if Birmingham was to retain its erstwhile rank in the bell world, the famous Bull Ring bells would have to go through the furnace. Happily in this instance there were no financial difficulties, such as so often handicap the authorities of a church in a matter of this kind, and the result has been that, in less than two years after the first suggestion that 'something ought to be done about it,' a great recasting scheme has been formulated and put through to a successful conclusion.

There have been few schemes carried out for the renewal of a peal of bells upon which the attention of the whole of the ringing Exercise has been as intensely focussed as upon the recasting of that of St. Martin's. The keenest interest has been displayed wherever the fame of this celebrated tower is known, and the best proof of this was to be found in the large and representative gathering that assembled on Saturday to take part in the reopening proceedings and to pass judgment on the new bells. They heard, undoubtedly, the finest peal that has ever been turned out from the Whitechapel foundry, and on every hand the listeners were loud in their praises of a grand ring of bells, which will do justice alike to the church and to the founders.

THE BATES APPEAL FUND.

We are glad to acknowledge the following further contributions to the fund for Mrs. E. Bates, of Dartford, and her young family. The assistance which is being given by members of the Exercise, and which was quite unexpected by Mrs. Bates, has considerably lessened her load of sorrow and care by easing some of her financial worries during these critical months.

Contributions should be sent to Mr. T. Groombridge, jun., 127, Crayford Way, Crayford, Kent, and will be acknowledged in these columns.

If 'Rufus' will kindly send his address to Mr. Groombridge, he will be pleased to answer his letter.

Mr. W. E. Pitman, of Canterbury, writes: 'Could you kindly allow me, as Christmas is drawing nigh, to presume to add a word for the Mrs. Bates Appeal Fund? If all our 'brother strings' would co-operate, what a handsome sum could be got. There are a very few of us who could not afford "a bob."'

HANDBELLS PRESENTED TO WINCHESTER COLLEGE.

At King Alfred's College, Winchester, on Sunday, December 9th, 12 extents (1,440 changes) of Grandsire Doubles (five callings) in 39 mins. on the handbells (22 in all) presented to the College by Canon Brithwaite, tenor size 16 in B flat: Reg. M. Mallett (Geldston, Norfolk) 1. Robert C. Day (Compton Abbas, Dorset) 2. N. Golden (Northrepps, Norfolk, conductor) 3.4. Jesse Peyman (Fairford, Glos) 5. James W. Collins (Hastings, Sussex) 6. The company has practised only for a fortnight, and it was the longest length by all excepting the conductor. Courses of Bob Minor have also been accomplished.

WINCHESTER AND PORTSMOUTH DIOCESAN GUILD. SUGGESTED COMBINED MEETING WITH OXFORD GUILD.

A very successful meeting of the Andover District was held at Wootton Hill on Saturday week, when good practice was obtained in a variety of methods on the light ring of six.

During the afternoon the bells at East Woodhay were also available, and a party went over there and rang several six-scores of Grandsire, Stedman and Bob Doubles. It is interesting to note that this old ring of five were cast at the Aldbourne (Wilts) foundry in 1728 by John Cox.

At the service, at which the Guild form was used, the Vicar (Rev. B. Utterton) gave a very interesting address from the text, 'Labourers working together for God.'

Tea was served in the Church Hall, and the business meeting followed, the Vicar being voted to the chair. He was supported by Rev. F. C. Sear (district secretary), Mr. G. Williams (Master), Mr. Curtis (Oxford Guild), and ringers from Highclere, King's Somborne, Newbury, North Stoneham, St. Mary Bourne, Winchester, Wootton Hill and Wootton St. Lawrence.

A suggestion was made that combined meetings should be held with the Newbury Branch of the Oxford Guild at some of the border towers, and Mr. Curtis (Newbury District secretary) said that he was very much in favour of the suggestion being adopted, as he felt that it would be for the good of both Guilds. He would bring the matter before his members.

A vote of sympathy was passed to Mr. Rex on the recent death of his mother, the members standing in silence.

The District Secretary announced that the next meeting, which would be the annual meeting, would be at Whitechurch on February 2nd, 1929.

During the evening the new ring of eight at Highclere were also available for ringing, and a good number availed themselves of this privilege.

ALTON DISTRICT.

An enjoyable meeting of the Alton District was held at Ropley on Saturday, November 24th, over 30 members attending from Blackmoor, Binsted, Selborne, Ropley, North Stoneham, King's Somborne and Winchester. The church tower contains a very musical ring of six bells (with a 15½ cwt. tenor), in good going order, recently installed by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston. The ringing chamber is small, and because of this was rather crowded during most of the time. A variety of methods were rung in the afternoon and evening, but most of the time was given over to ringing Bob Doubles for the beginners.

Tea was enjoyed in the Coffee Room, and the business meeting followed, presided over by Rev. F. G. Eyres, who was supported by Rev. B. C. Taylor (district secretary), Mr. G. Williams, Mr. W. Andrews, Mr. A. E. Smith, etc.

The Ropley band joined the Guild, and arrangements were made for them to have a course of instruction.

Mr. W. Read (Blackmoor) reported on the instruction that is being given at Selborne, and satisfaction was expressed at the progress made.

The District Secretary announced that the next meeting would be at Alton on February 9th, and it was hoped that the bells at both St. Laurence's and Chayton Churches would be available.

The meeting closed with the usual votes of thanks.

ISLE OF WIGHT DISTRICT.

A quarterly meeting of this district was held at All Saints' Church, Ryde, on Saturday, Nov. 24th, when ringers from Brading, Carisbrooke, Freshwater, Godshill, Newport, Portsea and Ryde met together and made good use of the bells. The Vicar (the Rev. Canon G. A. Johnstone) conducted the Guild service, and the president, the Rev. H. C. Stokes, delivered a short but interesting address to the members. Tea was afterwards served at the Welby Institute, and at the business meeting, at which the president presided, it was resolved to hold the annual meeting at Carisbrooke on Saturday, February 2nd. It was also agreed to hold combined practice meetings at Whitwell on December 8th, and at Godshill, January 12th (subject to the bells being available), solely for the practice of Double Court, Oxford Treble Bob and Plain Bob Minor.

The district secretary, Mr. B. J. Snow, on behalf of the Island ringers, extended a welcome to the Mainland ringers, and thanked them for attending the meeting on such a stormy day.—Mr. J. Harding responded on behalf of the visitors from Portsea.

A vote of thanks to the Vicar for conducting the service, also to the president for his address and for presiding at the meeting, concluded the business.

Touches were then rung on the handbells, and further ringing on the church bells was indulged in.

GOSCOTE SOCIETY'S PRESIDENT MARRIED.

At the Parish Church, Syston, Leicester, on Tuesday, November 20th, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles in 45 mins., by: S. H. Payne 1, T. H. Payne 2, G. T. H. Walker 3, T. H. Lewin 4, E. F. Payne (conductor) 5, W. Wright 6. This was rung to celebrate the wedding of the Rev. M. B. Bird, of Walton-le-Wolds, president of the Goscote Society of Ringers.

POLICEMEN RINGERS.REPRESENTATIVE GATHERING IN THE MIDLANDS.

On Saturday, December 2nd, a meeting of police ringers from the various forces of England was held at Loughborough and Leicester, when some thirty police officers attended. The party included eight Metropolitan police, seven Manchester City, three Birmingham City, three Northampton, three Surrey Constabulary, three Leicester City, and Sergt. W. Lawrence, Hatfield. Inspector Ridgwell, Saffron Walden, Sergt. Smith, High Wycombe, and P.C. Peter Crook, Bolton, were unable to be present owing to duty. Inspector Bottrill was responsible for the London arrangements, Sergt. Dowding for Birmingham, P.C. F. Page for Manchester, whilst Sergt. H. Jenney and P.C. Harold Poole looked after matters on the spot.

The company met at the Foundry of Messrs. Taylor and Co., Loughborough, at 11 a.m., where Mr. Horace Stubbs conducted them over the premises. Great interest was taken in the carillon, nearing completion, for abroad, and in the peals for Walsall and St. Helens, which were in the foundry. Touches were rung on the foundry ten, some amusement being caused by the antics of the treble men on this light but musical ring. The party then visited All Saints', Loughborough, where Mr. Colin Harrison had the bells ready, and good touches of Grandsire and Stedman Caters were brought round, Mr. William Willson and Mr. Percy Harrison assisting. The quality of this peal is too well known to need comment, and was much appreciated. By this time the whole of the expected party was present, and a move was made to Leicester, where St. Margaret's twelve were soon set going, whilst a selected band visited St. Peter's, Belgrave, to try Cambridge Surprise. A good course was brought round, followed by a touch of Stedman Triples. All again met at St. Margaret's, where a course of Stedman Cinques and touches of Caters were rung. A meat tea was provided at a local cafe, after which St. Martin's ten were set going to Stedman and Grandsire, and a course of Superlative Major by a band of all police officers was brought round.

At the kind invitation of the Leicester City Police Recreation Society the company then proceeded to the Police Recreation Rooms, where excellent arrangements had been made for their entertainment, and refreshment was provided.

Supt. Choyce, Leicester City Police, presided, supported by Insp. Ashburner. Supt. Choyce welcomed the visitors in a few well-chosen words, speaking of his interest in church work as a chorister and churchwarden, and of his interest in music and bells, which he regarded from a musical standpoint.

Insp. Bottrill responded, thanking the Leicester City Police Recreation Society for placing their rooms at the disposal of the party, and for their cordial welcome, Supt. Choyce for so kindly presiding and for his words of welcome, Mr. Josiah Morris, St. Margaret's, and Mr. Fred Dexter, St. Martin's, for the arrangements at those towers, and Messrs. Taylor and Co., Mr. Horace Stubbs, and Mr. Colin Harrison, Loughborough. He pointed out the difficulties of organising a meeting such as this, due to the area involved, and the obstacles sometimes met with in obtaining absence from duty, which could not always be avoided. The meeting not only provided a means of meeting as ringers, but was a step towards fostering good fellowship between the various forces.—Sergt. Jenney replied on behalf of the Leicester City Police Recreation Society, and expressed a hope that this meeting would be the first of a series and would become an annual event.

The programme included selections on handbells by the Leicester handbell ringers, who are very clever, and were much appreciated: songs by Supt. Choyce, Mr. Ernest Morris, and two by an unexpected visitor, which greatly added to the enjoyment of the company. A course of Caters was rung on handbells.

The standard of ringing throughout the day was good, and it is hoped that it will be the means of exciting interest among other police officers as ringers, and will result in the ringing of police peals in the higher methods in the near future.

DEVON GUILD.

The annual meeting of the North-East Branch was held at St. Peter's, Tiverton, on December 8th. About sixty ringers were present, nine out of the ten towers being represented, and visitors coming from Talaton, Exmouth, Exeter, Chipstable, Yeovil, Sowton and Christow. The Rev. E. S. Powell (president of the Guild), and Mr. T. Laver (general secretary) were among those present. The Branch now numbers 99 members and three certificates were awarded during the year.

After tea, business was transacted. The officers were re-elected and the next meeting fixed for Saturday, April 20th, at Bampton (subject to the Vicar's approval).

Mr. Selley (Silverton) proposed that mixed practices for learning methods other than Grandsire should be held.—This suggestion met with good support, and it is hoped next year to have fortnightly practices for ringers anxious to learn Bob Minor, etc.

Heartly thanks were accorded to the Rev. A. E. Chapman (Rector of St. Peter's), to Mr. Dyer (organist), and to Mrs. Knowles, and all her helpers at the tea tables.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The new peal of twelve at Lincoln Cathedral, which have been completed by the addition of four trebles given by the Lincoln Diocesan Guild as a memorial to the members of the Guild who fell in the war, are to be opened to-morrow (Saturday). This is a Taylor twelve.

The four recast trebles at Saffron Walden are also to be dedicated to-morrow. These have come from the Whitechapel Foundry.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Nevard, who celebrated their golden wedding on December 5th, desire to thank all their many friends for their congratulations. These have been so numerous that they find it impossible to reply individually, and hope that all will accept their grateful thanks through 'The Ringing World.'

The new Bishop of Southwell (Dr. Mosley) has promised to be present at the William Doubleday Crofts Commemoration Dinner, to be held at Nottingham on Saturday, January 26th.

The St. Mary-le-Tower Society, Ipswich, have added another performance to their record of Maximus peals by ringing the first peal of New Cambridge Surprise Maximus on Saturday last. An attempt failed on November 24th after ringing two and a half hours. This brings their total of different Maximus methods to nine, made up as follows: Treble, plain hunt 2, Treble Bob 2, Principles 2, Surprise 3.

A peal of Triples has been rung by the Lambert family at Brenchley, Kent. It is a notable performance, especially when it is borne in mind that the ringers are scattered over a wide area, and their opportunities for practice and peal attempts have been very few. Some time ago they rang a 'family' six-bell peal, ~~but the method was not put on eight bells.~~

This performance recalls the peal by the celebrated Leiston family of Baileys, who have scored a peal of Major by eight brothers.

The first peal in South Africa was rung at Woodstock on December 15th, 1904.

Forty years ago next Monday the first peal of Canterbury Pleasure Major was rung at Warnham, where not long afterwards a peal of 13,440 in the same method was accomplished.

The first peal of Stedman Caters at Southwark Cathedral was rung by the Junior College Youths on December 20th, 1836.

Mr. E. R. Whitehead would like to thank all the ringers and friends for the sympathy and good wishes expressed to him after his recent accident. He writes that as he knows less about it than anyone, he thinks that it has been more trouble to all concerned than it need have been. He knows nothing at all about the mishap, and the police are still in ignorance as to who was the cause of it.

AN ANCIENT PEAL RECALLED.

A DREAM THAT CAME TRUE.

'Berrow Worcester Journal' of September 18th, 1828, recorded among the deaths of that week, the following: 'On Friday, in his 85th year, John Bristow, of this city. He was much respected, and well known as a Bell Ringer. We understand that he was the last surviving ringer who was engaged in a memorable peal, rung at All Saints' Church, in this city, November 28th, 1774, which is thus recorded in the "Worcester Journal": "Last Monday was rung at All Saints' Church, in this city, by the Society of All Saints' Youths, a complete peal of 7,326 Grandsire Caters, in 4 hrs. 36 mins., supposed to be one of the most musical peals ever rung of so great a length. A person concerned in this peal, dreamed the preceding night that the Tenor Clapper fell out, as the Bells came round, which really happened, to the great surprise of the company, the person having declared it before they went into the Tower." Bristow was the only person who ever rang the tenor bell of All Saints' singlehanded to a peal.'

LADY RINGER'S DEATH.

It is with sincere regret that we report the death of Miss B. E. Stilwell, which took place at her home, Mooreside, Yateley, Hants, on November 29th. Deceased was a life member of the Winchester Diocesan Guild, and president of the local band for the last seven years.

She commenced her ringing career in 1907, and for over 20 years has been a most regular member of the band.

She was laid to rest on December 1st, within sight of the tower she loved so well, and in the presence of the local band of ringers. After the service the 'whole pull and stand' was rung with the bells muffled, followed by a 504 Grandsire Triples as a tribute from the ringers and also the parish, to which she had so unselfishly given of her best.

A PEAL WITHDRAWN.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I beg to withdraw the 5,003 of Double Norwich Caters, rung at Wednesbury on June 9th last, as I find that, through a careless oversight on my part, the composition is internally false. I tender my apologies to the band, and hope to meet them in the near future to replace it.—Yours truly, Smethwick.

J. PIGOTT.

LARGE GATHERING OF RINGERS WELCOME THE NEW RING.

Birmingham upheld its ringing traditions and great reputation on Saturday, when the dedication of the recast ring of twelve bells at St. Martin's Parish Church was performed by the Rector (Canon T. Guy Rogers). It is over a hundred and fifty years since the famous church in the Bull Ring first had a peal of twelve, and much history has been made beneath that towering spire. Generations of ringers have come and gone, but the service rendered by the bells has been unbroken. There is probably no church in the country with a longer continuous history in ringing than St. Martin's, and throughout the century and a half during which, in some form or another, St. Martin's Guild has existed, the church has had a regular band of ringers, which has always been looked up to by the Exercise for the standard set in that first quality of ringing—good striking. St. Martin's has also been throughout that time a stronghold of change ringing, and while in many other places the art has flourished only to fade away, in the Bull Ring it has been maintained throughout the years at a high level, and never were the traditions in safer or better hands than those of the present band, who are responsible for the service ringing to-day. The bells themselves had a great reputation in the past, but the proud place which they occupied among the principal rings in this country was rapidly undermined with the coming of harmonically tuned bells, and therefore, true to tradition that nothing but the best would suffice, it was resolved that St. Martin's must have a new ring of bells.

As is now well known, the work was entrusted to Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, who, at their Whitechapel Foundry, recast the bells on the very spot where the original ten were cast in the year 1758. Thus this ancient firm have retained their long connection with St. Martin's, and have discharged their responsibilities to the eminent satisfaction of the church authorities and the ringers. The old frame has been again utilised, but the bells have been hung in the most modern type of fittings, which has made the 'go' a delight to all who handle them.

The bells themselves are tuned on the harmonic principle, but the 'Simpsonising' having been carried out with excellent discretion there is no overwhelming hum, which has been found in some cases to destroy, from the ringers' point of view, the pleasure of ringing, and gives the public a confusion of harmonies from which the note of none of the bells emerges with definiteness. The result is that in the ringing chamber every bell can be clearly and distinctly heard, while outside, when the necessary adjustment of the louvring has been effected, the results will be equally pleasing. As a matter of fact, the tower presents certain difficulties in regard to the even regulation of the sound all round the church. The back eight bells are hung well below the eills of the louvres, while the front four are hung in a raised tier on a level with the louvres. The new trebles are wonderfully powerful, and are quite distinctive even when striking among the big bells. They give a character to the peal, which is at once striking and pleasing, and the complete ring is one of which all concerned may well be proud.

THE DEDICATION SERVICE.

A large congregation attended the dedication service, which began with the National Anthem. Special sentences were recited, and the hymn for the City of Birmingham, 'The fathers built this city in ages long ago,' was sung. Prayers and the lesson from Numbers x. 1-11, followed, and during the singing of the hymn, 'Praise the Lord, ye heavens adore Him,' the Rector, accompanied by the curate and the two churchwardens, proceeded to the baptistry, which is at the foot of the tower. Here the Rector, having chimed one of the bells, dedicated them to the glory of God, and offered further prayers, at the conclusion of which the new bells rang out from the lofty steeple in some well-timed rounds. The ringers who had the privilege of thus taking part in the first ringing were Messrs. A. E. Norman, J. F. Smallwood, E. T. Aliaway, T. H. Reeves, J. E. Groves, M. J. Morris, F. Price, J. George, E. Mansell, J. Neal, A. Paddon Smith, and A. Walker, all of whom are associated with St. Martin's Sunday band.

The Rector gave an appropriate address, in the course of which he showed how in the history of church bells, as revealed in the inscriptions upon them, they could trace to some extent the life of the church itself from mediæval times. He also paid a glowing tribute to the services rendered to St. Martin's Church by St. Martin's Guild.

The service ended with the hymn, 'When morning gilds the sky,' during which an offertory was taken on behalf of the Thanksgiving Day Fund.

The band, who opened the bells, then rang a touch of five courses of Stedman Cinques, while the visitors heard the bells from outside the tower. They gathered in knots at various vantage points, and there were many expressions of delight at the excellent work done by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. The public, too, gathered in large numbers in the busy market place to listen to the sound of the new bells. Afterwards, the bells were open to the visitors, scores of whom availed themselves of the opportunity of testing the new peal. Among those who were present were Mr. A. A. Hughes (representing the founders), Mr. J. S. Pritchett (Presiding Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild), Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn (Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild), Messrs. R. T. Hibbert (Reading), H. W. Wilde (Chewter), P. O. Ladin (King's Norton), H. Knight (Wolverhampton), W. T. Elton (Walsall), J. W. Jones (Newport), A. Ward (Derby), W. Northover (Bridport), T. H. Beams (Bradpole), F. E. Dawe (Woking), F. Perrins, F. Perrin and J. H. White (Coventry), T. W. Chapman (Master of the Warwickshire Guild), W. Jeffries (Worcester), W. Short (Glent), W. Lawrence (Little Munden, Heris), J. Austin (Gloucester), C. S. Burden (London), G. Holfield, sen., G. Holfield, jun. (Appleton), W. Whitehead (Leicester), etc. These are a few of the visitors who were attracted by the occasion, but there were many others. Also among the listeners were some of the Birmingham veterans, including Mr. C. Stanbridge, who rang the 9th to the record peal of Grandsire Cinques more than forty years ago, and those other links with the days of Henry Johnson, Mr. Tom Miller and Mr. Tom Russam.

A HAPPY EVENING.

In the evening a social gathering took place at the Guild's headquarters, St. Martin's Hotel, when over 150 were present and spent an exceedingly enjoyable time under the genial chairmanship of the Guild's secretary, Mr. A. Paddon Smith. The impromptu programme was organised by the Ringing Master (Mr. A. Walker), and there was no lack of fun and good fellowship. The musical items included handbell selections by Messrs. H. Williams, P. Ladin and H. Withers, songs by Messrs. W. C. Dowling and H. Withers (who sang a celebrated Midland ringers' song, 'Sweet Job Major'), a course of Stedman Cinques on handbells by Messrs. P. Ladin, G. F. Swann, A. Walker, J. F. Smallwood, A. E. Norman and M. J. Morris, and another in which Messrs. F. W. Perrins, J. E. Groves and J. Thomas took part.

During the evening the chairman took the opportunity of informing the company of the presence among them of the three veterans already referred to, and said they also had with them Messrs. F. E. Dawe and T. Miller, who were probably the only two men living who could claim to have rung with the three old celebrities, Haley, Johnson and Cox; also with them was Mr. James George, who had recently rung his one thousandth peal, and was now well on his way for his two thousandth (laughter and applause).

Mr. Richard Wassell, the organist of the Parish Church, and conductor of the famous Birmingham Police Band, spoke from the musician's point of view in regard to the new bells. He said there was a remarkable difference between the old and the new bells in the accuracy of their pitch. He congratulated the founders upon having solved a most difficult mathematical problem, so that the pitch of the bells was exact. The relative pitch of these bells, he added, was quite remarkable (applause).

ACOUSTIC DIFFICULTIES.

Mr. Albert Walker spoke of the excellent work done by the founder, Mr. A. A. Hughes, and Mr. Macdonald and the men who had been employed on the job. It was, he said, about two years ago that he (the speaker) brought up the question of giving some attention to St. Martin's bells. The matter was taken up by the authorities—the Rector and churchwardens—with vigour. The three chief founders were asked for reports, and it was only fair to them to say that in one respect they were identical. Not only did the bells seriously want seeing to from the ringing point of view, but also from the tonal point of view. The choice of the authorities fell upon Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, who, he was glad to say, had fulfilled all their expectations (hear, hear). From the tonal point of view, and in their balance, which was most important, the bells were absolutely perfect for their weight, and he asked those ringers who were inclined to make comparisons always to take weight into consideration. He felt certain that for their weight, 35 cwt., they had as fine a peal of twelve bells as it was possible to get (applause). The founders had not yet finished. There were adjustments to make in regard to the sound. Inside the ringing room the effect was perfect, and the difficulties of the balance of sound outside would, he was quite sure, quickly be solved. Mr. Walker specially thanked Mr. Radcliffe, who had been chiefly responsible for the hanging, for the enthusiasm which he had put into the job and the speed with which the work in the tower had been done. He thanked the founders for giving them a beautiful peal of bells, and he was satisfied that they had one of the finest peals of twelve at 35 cwt. that it was possible to get (applause).

Mr. Hughes, in reply, said they realised the difficulties of getting an even effect outside the tower, because there were eight bells tucked below the louvres, while the four smaller ones swung right into the louvres. He could assure them, however, that when the necessary adjustments had been made the whole twelve would be heard in perfect balance outside. Mr. Hughes went on to thank Mr. Walker for his remarks about the way in which the work had been carried out. He could say with all sincerity that the work had been a very great pleasure to him. The Rector, the wardens and St. Martin's Guild had made it one of the most pleasurable restoration schemes carried out by his firm within his memory (applause).

During the evening a collection was made for the Bates' Fund, and realised £22 15s. The enjoyable proceedings concluded with the National Anthem.

Many of the visitors stayed overnight in Birmingham, and there was a considerable amount of ringing on Sunday, which was Thanksgiving Day in connection with the Parish Church. In the course of the morning service, when the Archdeacon of Bradford was the preacher, the Bishop of Birmingham dedicated a new Holy Table, given by the parishioners in memory of the late Dean Willink, who was their former Rector.

The bells were rung for an hour before morning service and for an hour and a half before evening service. The latter spell was due to the trials which the R.B.C. required, before a broadcast which was to take place later. Hitherto the microphone for the bells has been placed on a turret at the east end of the church, but the difference in the resonance of the bells was such that eventually the microphone had to be placed ten steps down the staircase of the turret. From that position, as all who heard the broadcast at eight o'clock are aware, the bells 'came over' perfectly.

This broadcast service was in some respects unique, for it was devoted specially to the celebration of the recasting of the bells. Among the hymns was 'Ring, wild bells, to the wild sky,' based upon Tennyson's famous poem, and the bell carol, 'In every town and village the bells do ring.' There was a reading from Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress,' and an address upon bells by the Rector. Mr. Richard Wassell was Master of the Choristers.

The broadcast ringing, which included a full course of Stedman Cinques, was done by: T. H. Reeves 1, P. Ladin 2, A. E. Norman 3, J. George 4, F. W. Perrins 5, J. Neal 6, J. S. Goldsmith 7, J. F. Smallwood 8, E. Mansell 9, G. Yendall 10, A. Paddon Smith 11, A. Walker 12.

The tenor is a bell of 35 cwt. 0 qr. 8 lb. in C, and the total weight of the peal is 156 cwt. Part of the old inscription was transferred to the eleventh, which had no inscription. The old inscription reproduced on the tenor is:—

The Rev. Richd. Davey, Rector. Carter Barton and Chrstr. Stidman, Ch. Wardens. Lester and Pack. of London. Feclt 1758. The new inscription added is:—

To the Greater Glory of God,

these twelve bells were recast and rehung at a cost of £1,025 by Mears and Stainbank, London, A.D. 1928, the cost being provided by the Bell Rope Croft Fund of the Parish Church, Birmingham. Canon T. Guy Rogers, B.D., M.C., Rector. J. J. Kendall and F. W. Blake, Churchwardens. E. G. Albert Walker, Ringing Master.

Possess'd of deep, sonorous tone, this belfry king sits on his throne,
And when the merry bells go round, adds to and mellows ev'ry sound.

So in a just and well-poised state, where all degrees possess due weight.

One greater power, one greater tone is ceded to improve their own.

Messages have come in to the Whitechapel Foundry from many parts of the country congratulating Messrs. Mears and Stainbank upon the bells. Here is one received from Swindon, which is characteristic of them: 'Have just heard new ring of 12 at St. Martin's, Birmingham, broadcast, and must heartily congratulate you upon what I consider a masterpiece in bell founding—musical and perfectly in tune. I think you have created the finest ring of twelve in the country for their weight. Birmingham have something to be proud of, and so have you.'

THE WIRELESS EFFECT.

Dear Sir,—May we, through your columns, express our appreciation of the bells of St. Martin's, Birmingham, which we heard on the wireless last Sunday evening.

They came through beautifully, and the striking was, on the whole, excellent. The bells are of very fine tone, and, unlike York Minster, the 'nasal twang' was absent.

Messrs. Mears and Stainbank are to be congratulated upon their excellent work.—Yours faithfully,

CHAS. H. KIPPEN.

PRESTON BRANCH SOCIAL.

The eighth annual social in connection with the Preston Branch of the Lancashire Association was held at All Saints', Higher Walton, on Saturday, December 8th, when between sixty and seventy ringers and friends were present. The bells were kept going during the afternoon and for about an hour after tea, in various methods.

A short whist drive was then held in the schoolroom, and was followed by dancing, with intervals for singing and reciting. Messrs. J. and A. Knowles delighted those present with various solos and also a duet, while Mr. J. Harkin kept the audience roaring with laughter by his humorous recitations.

Mr. E. R. Martin, on behalf of the visitors, moved that the heartiest thanks be accorded to the Vicar for the use of the bells, to the local ringers for having all in readiness, and to all who had assisted in entertaining them and looking after them at tea. He was rather sorry that the number present was rather below the usual average, but he would like to congratulate them on the splendid tea and entertainment. He thought they had been as good as, if not better than, most of the previous ones.—Mr. J. Taberner replied on behalf of local ringers, and said they were satisfied as long as those present had enjoyed themselves. Mr. Taberner presented the winners of the whist drive with prizes, and the proceedings terminated with the singing of 'Auld Lang Syne.'

DURHAM & NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

MEMORIAL TO A SHILDON RINGER.

On Saturday, December 1st, members of the Southern District of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association held their meeting at Shildon, there being about twenty present, the following towers being represented: Darlington, St. Cuthbert's, St. John's and Holy Trinity, Hurworth, Staindrop and the local tower. Touches of Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples were rung during the afternoon. After tea the unveiling took place of a photograph and peal board to the memory of the late Mr. Edwin J. Titt, of Shildon, who was the first conductor in the tower since its erection. The deceased had been a member of the above association since 1887, and also a member of the Cleveland and North Yorkshire Association.

The Vicar, the Rev. H. B. Watts, paid a splendid tribute to the late Mr. Titt, for his work in the tower and other church work.

Two of the oldest ringing friends of the deceased performed the unveiling ceremony, namely, Mr. T. Wick and Mr. E. Hind, and each spoke of their close association during the last forty years with Mr. Titt.

There was also present Mr. J. W. Shipp, of Staindrop, who well remembers many happy occasions in the belfry with the deceased, extending over a similar period.

The Vicar then performed the service of dedication, closing with the Lord's Prayer, in which all present joined, and brought a very touching ceremony to a close.

This memorial has been erected by the Vicar and members of the local tower, which shows the good feeling which has always existed there.

The ringers afterwards rang other touches on handbells and on the tower bells, with thanks to the Vicar for use of the bells.

AN OXFORDSHIRE OCTAVE.

AMBROSDEN'S AUGMENTED BELLS DEDICATED.

On Friday last the Right Rev. E. D. Shaw, D.D., Archdeacon of Oxford, dedicated the ring of bells which have just been augmented to eight by the addition of two trebles by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, who have also recast the tenor and hung the whole ring in a modern heavy cast-iron side frame, with modern fittings, including ball bearings.

A large congregation assembled, among whom were many ringers, some having come from a considerable distance. Prior to the service the five old bells were rung up singly. The Bishop, clergy, ringers and choir robed in the Vicarage, and entered the church by the south door, and proceeded to the chancel singing the hymn, 'The Sacred Bells of England.'

The special service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. C. C. David Oake, M.A., and the lesson was read by the Rev. H. Last, Rector of Launton, and Rural Dean. Seven other clergy were present.

The prayers ended, the Bishop, clergy, churchwardens and ringers proceeded to the belfry, which is situated on the ground floor at the west end of the church, and the churchwardens, Messrs. W. P. Hadland and A. E. Hepworth presented the rope of the recast tenor bell to the Archdeacon, requesting him to rededicate that bell and the restored bells to the praise and glory of God. After the dedicatory prayers had been offered, the rich, mellow voice of the recast tenor was heard as it was rung up by Messrs. Arthur Turner and George Taylor, who were representing the Ambrosden ringers. The churchwardens then presented the rope of the new treble bell to the Archdeacon, and requested him to dedicate it to the praise and glory of God, and in memory of all those His servants from the parish who fell in the Great War, and, after the dedicatory prayer, this bell was rung up by Mr. Frederick Sharpe, of Launton.

The rope of the new second bell was next presented to the Archdeacon with the request that it should be dedicated to the praise and glory of God, and in memory of William White Kennett, Bishop, formerly Vicar of Ambrosden. This having been done, the bell was rung up by Mr. J. P. Fidler, of Loughborough, representing Messrs. Taylor and Co. After the dedicatory prayer, Bishop Shaw presented the ropes of the bells to the Vicar, and gave the following charge: 'Receive these bells that have been solemnly set apart from all profane and unhallowed uses as a sacred trust committed unto thee as the appointed minister of Christ in this church, and take care that they be ever and only used in God's service and for His glory.'

A beautifully struck course of Stedman Triples was then rung as the Bishop and clergy returned to the chancel by the following: Frederick Sharpe, Launton, Oxfordshire, 1, John P. Fidler, Loughborough, 2, Victor Bennett, Oxford (Master of the Oxford Society), 3, Maurice Smith, Banbury, Oxfordshire, 4, John Oldham, Loughborough, Leicestershire, 5, Edwin Hims, Bicester, Oxfordshire, 6, Rev. Cyril W. O. Jenkyn (Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild), 7, Harry Miles, Shipton-under-Wychwood, 8. The ringers returned to the chancel while the hymn, 'Set them nobly in the steeple,' was being sung.

In his excellent sermon Bishop Shaw explained to the congregation the many uses and customs of bells, past and present, and showed how very largely bells entered into the lives of Christian men and women. He expressed the devout hope that the bells he had just dedicated would further the work of God in the parish. A no mean judge of bells himself, he was very lavish in his praise of the beautiful tone of the recast tenor, and also said that the treble bell was the first bell he had dedicated as a war memorial. He thought that it was most appropriate, and would often serve to remind the parishioners of the great sacrifice which had been made by those whom they loved during the dark days of the Great War. He also mentioned the great work of William White Kennett, who afterwards became Bishop of Peterborough, during whose incumbency the former ring of five bells was recast into six by Richard Keene, of Woodstock. In concluding, the Bishop remarked that although the large sum of £400 had been raised since February last, there still remained a balance of £250, and he hoped that the collection to be taken during the hymn following would considerably lessen the debt.

'The hanging God Who livest' was then sung, and, after the Blessing, the ringers proceeded to the belfry during the singing of the hymn, 'Now thank we all our God,' and immediately the Bishop, clergy and choir had left the church by the south door, a touch of Stedman Triples was rung by the same band, conducted by the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, followed by round ringing by the Ambrosden men, after which the bells were open to all visiting ringers, and ringing was indulged in until 9 p.m.

The 'go' of the bells was proved to be excellent, and it was evident that they were in no wise difficult to handle by the fact that during the first two courses of Stedman Triples the ringers wore cassocks and surplices, and two were wearing robes. Everyone agreed that Messrs. John Taylor and Co. had made a most creditable job of the casting and hanging, and deserved the highest possible praise.

The inscriptions and weights of the bells are as follow:—

Sanctus.—+ PETRVS: DE: VESTON: ME: FECIT.

The Sanctus bell was cast by Peter de Weston of London, 1336-1347. Traditionally the four largest bells hung in the old central tower at Bicester Church some time prior to 1420, and were taken to Ambrosden because they were too heavy for the tower.

They were augmented to five between 1552 and 1697, in which year the whole ring of five bells was recast into a ring of six by Richard Keene, of Woodstock, whose wife came from the parish. In 1703 he recast the tenor, this being the last bell he cast. In 1716 Henry Bagley, of Chacombe, Northants, recast the present fourth, and in 1745 the present fifth was recast by Edward Homins, who had a foundry in Bell Lane, Bicester. In 1845 J. W. Taylor, of Oxford, recast the present seventh, and a few years later the bells were rehung by Alfred White, of Bessieleigh, Appleton, Berks, but the old frame was only repaired. It is interesting to note that Richard Keene in 1697 only repaired the frame, and altered it to take six bells. In 1895 the sixth was recast by J. Taylor and Co., and new, in 1928, the whole ring has been retuned and rehung, the tenor recast, and two trebles added. The canons have been retained on the third, fourth and fifth bells.

RESTORATION OF RUSHMERE BELLS, IPSWICH.

Mr. Alfred Bowell, of Ipswich, has just put into excellent order the ring of six bells at St. Andrew's, Rushmere, Ipswich, by a general overhaul of the fittings, with new gudgeons and bearings.

The bells are a light ring of six. The tenor, which is 8 cwt., was added to the other five in 1885, when the whole peal was hung in a new oak frame. Through constant neglect, however, the bells became unringable, and in 1914, the then Vicar (himself a ringer) made efforts to get them put into order. There was a woeful lack of interest among the parishioners, and the Vicar, therefore, determined to bear the cost himself. Then came the war, the Vicar left the parish, and the scheme fell through. Since that time the village has been brought within the borough of Ipswich and has doubled in population. The new parishioners have shown greater interest than the old, and a restoration of the bells was decided upon. The Parochial Church Council sought the advice of experts, who frightened them by the costly suggestions that were made. Later, however, Mr. Bowell was called in, and he has put the bells into good ringing order, at moderate cost, for many years to come.

There being no regular ringers and only short notice, Mr. Bowell and his men were called upon to ring the opening touch on November 30th, this being the 43rd anniversary of the opening of the six bells in 1885. The foundry staff rang a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob, and, later, ringers from Ipswich and Little Boalings turned up, and Cambridge Surprise and Plain Bob were rung. The visitors expressed their entire satisfaction with the 'go.' Now that the bells are in order it is hoped that assistance may be obtained to instruct a change-ringing band, and that the Suffolk Guild will interest itself in the tower.

MUFFLED BELLS

At the Parish Church, Ickleton, Cambs, on Saturday, December 1st, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) in 45 mins.: 1, Flitton 1, P. Webb (conductor) 2, R. Clements 3, E. Flitton 4, W. Huxley 5, G. Lilley 6, W. Flitton 7, A. Lilley 8. Rung with the bells muffled as a token of respect for Mr. W. F. Beddoes, J.P., who was interred in Ickleton Churchyard. He was a supporter of the ringers for many years. The bells were also rung muffled for morning service on the following Sunday, when 630 Grandsire Triples was brought round.

PEALS OF DOUBLES AND MINOR.

'TRUE, BUT NOT COMPLETE.'

The question of the admissibility of the Rev. E. Bankes James' arrangement of Cambridge Surprise Minor as a peal raises an interesting point. The 720's which comprise the peal are true, but are they complete? The same question is raised in regard to Mr. A. J. PHIMAN's arrangement of Doubles.

The following are the views of Mr. J. A. Trollope, expressed in a letter to the Editor:—

The 720's in the Rev. E. B. James' arrangement of Cambridge are all true, but they are not (save one) complete. Now, it is true that if you count the first 'Rounds' you will have 720 rows all different, followed by another 720 all different, and again by another all different, the third ending with rounds. You may say that since there are 720 rows, no more and no less, and you have them all, why is it not complete? This is my answer: I had been thinking of your recent leader, and I asked the Rev. H. Law James what he considered a complete 720. He replied, after some thought, 'One which is true and which has all its Q sets intact,' or words to that effect. I replied that I was very glad to hear him say that, because it was just what I had been thinking. Now the Q sets of the Rev. E. Bankes James' 720 are not intact. But you may say, 'What of that? There is the fact that the 720 rows are there, and what more do you want? This is nothing else but another of those fads which people called "experts" want us "plain" or "practical" ringers to swallow.'

Well, let me say first of all, and as strongly as I can, that no fact of the theoretic side of ringing is of any real value at all, except so far as it concerns the practical side. The thing that matters is the actual ringing in the tower. But ringing is an art which is founded on and controlled by an exact science, and we can only understand it if we study that science. Now the law of 'Q sets' is one which is proved to be at the very foundation of ringing. Shipway saw it partly; Thompson established it, so far as composition goes: I may claim to have shown it to be the one foundation law on which all changes are based. Now it has been abundantly proved that you cannot have extents unless you keep your Q sets intact. The law works in many apparently different ways, but it is always there.

In the Rev. E. B. James' 720 the Q sets are not intact, and therefore they are not extents. 'Not extents!' you will say, 'where there are 720 true rows and 720 is the full number. That is impossible!' I will ask you to follow me into a little argument.

FIGURES NOT THE METHOD.

First, we must get rid of the idea that a set of figures is a method, or a number of figures is an extent of Minor. Figures are only symbols which represent to our minds something behind them; just as the letters I am writing represent ideas. Figures are a convenient method of expressing what we call a method, or a 720, but they are a limited method of doing so. The temptation is to take them as being the thing itself. But just think how limited is their use in actual ringing. Many ringers (I should say the great majority of ringers) never use figures at all. Some of the more active ringers may do, but their use of them is very limited. If they were asked to stand in a peal of a new method, and were given a lead of it, the first thing they would do would be to make a skeleton course either on paper or mentally. They would then drop the figures altogether and would come into the tower, not with the figures in their head, but with something which they had got from the figures. That something is what we call the 'work,' and which is actually the method. Do the same thing with these 720's. You have the figures, and from them you get the calling. Now go into the tower and ring them, and then answer the question in dispute. If we were ringing Cambridge Minor, and at the hand-stroke of the 30th lead-end 143265 stand was called, and the bells set up, would you say we had rung a complete 720, although every one of the possible rows had been rung? Of course, you would not. You would know that there was something missing. And the reason is that though you have rung 720 rows, you have not rung 720 changes, as the word change was understood in the beginning and always has been understood, and now is understood.

People who call themselves 'plain' ringers or 'practical' ringers, and so forth, tell me that there is no difference between a row and a change. They don't think. If they did they would realise that what concerns us in the tower is not the actual order in which the bells strike, but the work, the hunting, dodging, place making. It is these that make up the method and actually are change ringing. Turn to Fabian Stedman and see how change ringing did begin, and see how he uses figures to express imperfectly the movement of the bells, which is 'ringing.' Consider, too, that you must work out your skeleton course before you can ring, and what is this skeleton course but movement? Ringing is movement! Just notice that nearly every term we use in practical ringing implies movement.

A 720 of Minor, then, is so much movement which produces the maximum number of the order of the bells. The movement is cyclical: that is, it is from a point to a point, and unless you return to the point from which you started it is incomplete. You can see this clearly if you put your 720 down in terms of a skeleton course instead of in terms of figures. The skeleton of the Rev. E. B. James' 720's are not finished, and, therefore, they are incomplete.

MORRIS' ARRANGEMENT OF DOUBLES.

Dear Sir,—As author of the arrangement of Grandsire Doubles you extensively ventilated in your editorial on the 23rd ult., may I trespass upon your space to make a few observations? With all due respect to the Central Council for their efforts to obliterate falsification in composition and arrangement, I take strong objection to your editorial assertion that my arrangement is false. I quite concur that there is a repetition of the changes within each 120, but may I emphatically impress upon your readers that each of the possible 120 changes is only produced twice in each complete 240 or double six-score, rendering the whole arrangement perfectly true. As my friend and namesake, 'Ernest,' points out, it is high time our less fortunate brethren, whose activities are confined to the necessarily limited scope of five-bell performances, were given some consideration; and while you strenuously endeavour to suppress a humble contribution, having this object in view, it is a strikingly conspicuous fact that you astutely refrain from attacking similar arrangements in Minor methods, for six-bell ringers, whose scope for variety is already so extensive that an introduction of this nature is not by any means so greatly called for. It is idle to attempt to explain away the fact that the Central Council continue to recognise this mode of arrangement in Minor methods, solely for the purpose of keeping with the times. If this argument is to be accepted, the Council immediately lay themselves open to the grave charge of being a partial body, and, further, as the ruling of the Council definitely establishes that on all numbers of bells a true peal shall in all cases start from and end with rounds, it is futile to argue that any one of the arrangements in this category (true in itself) can lawfully be suppressed, while others can lawfully be recognised.

I hope that, from the foregoing remarks, it will thus be understood by Grandsire Double ringers that they are perfectly within their rights to ring my arrangement in peals or otherwise, confident of its truth, until the Central Council stringently enforce the rule previously referred to discarding all compositions or arrangements on this plan.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A RINGING MASTER.

A successful meeting of the Ely Archdeaconry was held at Long Stanton on Saturday last, about thirty sitting down to tea, among whom were Rev. R. Copeman, general secretary, Rev. H. B. and Mrs. Woolley, Mr. C. W. Cook, churchwarden, and Miss G. Woolley. The service in the church was conducted by the Vicar, Rev. H. B. Woolley, who gave an excellent address, appreciated by all. The business meeting followed tea, the Vicar being in the chair.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at St. Andrew's, Chester-ton, Cambridge, some time in February.

Arising out of the minutes of the last meeting, a discussion arose re advertising certain methods, and to overcome the difficulty Mr. A. G. Rivers moved that at the next annual meeting a rule should be added to enable the association to elect a Ringing Master.—This was seconded by Mr. T. Chinery and carried.

On the proposition of Mr. A. J. Abrams, the secretary (Mr. F. Warrington) was asked to act as Master until the annual meeting.

Mr. E. G. Hibbins stated he was in favour of advertising a special method for each meeting. This would enable those who attended the meeting to know what to expect and to be prepared. He added that this was not to say that no other method would be rung.—The meeting, however, was in favour of free methods, with a District Ringing Master.

Mr. B. Buttress proposed that a vote of thanks be accorded the Vicar for the use of the bells, for taking the service, and for presiding.—The Vicar replied, saying it gave him much pleasure to welcome the association to Long Stanton.—Votes of thanks were also accorded the ladies, Mrs. Woolley for use of the Vicarage kitchen utensils, Miss G. Woolley for presiding at the organ, and Mrs. Pratt and Mrs. F. Warrington for tea arrangements.

Business over, a return was made to the tower, where Double Norwich, Stedman, Cambridge, Kenn and Grandsire were rung, finishing with the lowering of the back six in peal.

FIRST 720's.

At Tring Parish Church, on Tuesday, November 27th, 720 Bob Minor: F. C. Reeve 1, H. Bishop 2, J. Puppelt 3, H. Bull 4, C. Badrick 5, F. J. Reeve (conductor) 6, N. Brackley 8 (covering). First 720 by the ringers of 2nd, 4th and 5th. First as conductor and first by an entirely local band.

On Saturday, November 24th, some of the West Grinstead and Lower Beeding bands met at Cowfold Parish Church, Sussex, and rang 720's in the following methods: 720 Marple Treble Bob: V. Turrell 1, G. Warnett 2, W. Watts (first 720 in the method) 3, H. Turrell 4, R. Langridge (first 720 in the method) 5, W. Denman (conductor) 6.—Also 720 Norwich Surprise: V. Turrell 1, G. Warnett 2, W. Watts (first 720 in the method) 3, H. Turrell 4, R. Langridge (first 720 in the method) 5, R. Stredwick (conductor) 6. These were the first 720's in the methods on the bells. Touches of London Surprise, Cambridge Surprise, Plain Bob and Grandsire Doubles were also rung, in which V. Gorchor and T. Adams took part.

THE 184 TON RINGING BELL,
the Bourdon of the Carillon of 64 Bells, about to be installed at RIVERSIDE CHURCH, NEW YORK, U.S.A.

COMPLETION OF A GREAT TASK.

Lincoln possesses in its Cathedral one of the most beautiful buildings in this country, and it has now gained one of the most delightful peals of twelve bells in the world, set in a tower which has been specially adapted, so that they may be heard to the fullest advantage. Lincoln is likely to become the classic standard for a belfry. The rearrangement of the 'internal economy' of the tower was rendered possible by the great scheme of restoration which has just been completed. Some few years ago St. Hugh's tower was reported to be unsafe and unable to withstand the stresses set up by its eight bells when rung. How unsafe it was was only fully discovered when the work of strengthening was undertaken. A great disaster was saved by a very narrow margin of time, for it is now revealed that at any moment the tower might have collapsed in ruin and brought with it a large part, if not the whole, of the glorious west front. As it was, there was an occasion in the course of the restoration when the men engaged in removing some of the crumbled stone and corroded iron bars hurriedly threw down their tools and left the building, because a large proportion of the apparently solid walls of the great structure began literally to run out, and the workmen felt convinced that the tower was about to collapse.

With the building in such an advanced state of decay, it is difficult to realise what expenditure of effort and money has been involved in its restoration. The Cathedral authorities have carried out a magnificent work, national in character, in that the building is one of our national treasures. If Remegius, the founder of the first Cathedral at Lincoln, and other great Bishops who built the present fabric, are remembered for the great work they did in rearing one of the most glorious churches in the land, Dean Frye will go down to posterity for the part he has played in saving a magnificent heritage from ruin. It is a fitting conclusion to a great undertaking that Lincoln should now be in possession of a worthy peal of bells which, ringing from the very tower that the hand of time had threatened with destruction, will ever be a reminder of the efforts put forward to preserve for centuries yet to come the historic tower of St. Hugh.

Lincolnshire already possesses the lightest ring of ten bells hung in any church tower. It is at Surfleet, the home of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild's Master, the Rev. H. Law James. These bells have a considerable reputation throughout the country, and doubtless the same influence has been a great factor in carrying to maturity the scheme for providing in the Cathedral what is one of the lightest rings of twelve in England. Two of the bells have been provided by the Guild as a memorial to the members who fell in the Great War, and Saturday's proceedings were therefore of special significance. They marked the completion of the restoration of St. Hugh's tower, the opening of the first ring of twelve bells in Lincolnshire and the consummation of a gift which has added dignity to the Cathedral and will perpetuate the memory of those heroes from among the ringers of the county who went out in defence of their country but did not return.

SOUTHERN DIVISION MEET SHEFFIELD SOCIETY.

A very successful meeting of the Southern Division of the Yorkshire Association and the Sheffield and District Society was held at Rawmarsh on Saturday last, when upwards of 40 members were present from Conisborough, Wortley, Ecclesfield, Felkirk, Sheffield (the Cathedral, St. Marie's, Handsworth, and Ranmoor), Wath, Darfield, Rotherham, Arksey, Norton and Treeton. Ringing was carried on until 4.30, when a short service was conducted by the Rector (Canon Scovell), whose address was very much appreciated.

A splendid tea was provided in the schoolroom by the local company, and was followed by the business meeting, the Rector presiding. The Ringing Master, Mr. G. Halksworth (Doncaster), was unable to be present owing to an accident while at work, and sent an apology. Five new members were elected, viz., Messrs. A. Firth and W. B. Ingle (Rawmarsh), A. Basford (Handsworth), H. Thorpe (Sheffield Cathedral), and H. Rooke (Warsop).

The chairman having expressed his wish to become an honorary member of the association, his election was heartily carried.

An invitation was given by the Ranmoor company to hold the annual meeting of the district in March next at their tower, and this was accepted, the date fixed being March 16th.

A most hearty vote of thanks to the Rector and his curate and churchwardens, the organist, the ladies for their services at tea, and the local company for the excellent arrangements made, was carried, and replied to by the chairman.

The tower was again visited, and touches of Cambridge Surprise Major, Superlative, Double Norwich Major and London Surprise Minor were among the methods rung.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A very successful district meeting was held at St. Albans on Saturday, December 1st, about forty ringers attending. Several London towers were represented, and others came from Luton, Harpenden, Hatfield, Watford, Rickmansworth, Woodford, Dunstable, North Mimms and the local towers. Meeting at St. Peter's, touches of Grandshire and Stedman Caters were rung, also courses of Cambridge Royal, in which several took part for the first time. This was also the first occasion in which a course had been rung in the tower.

In the absence of the Vicar, the service was conducted by the Rev. F. W. B. Bullock, who gave an interesting address.

The party adjourned for tea, followed by business meeting, the chair being occupied by the president (Mr. G. W. Cartmel). It was decided to hold the next meeting at Hatfield on the third Saturday in the new year, providing the work has not been commenced in the tower in connection with the addition of the two new bells.

A vote of thanks was accorded for the use of the bells and to the preacher for his address.

The Cathedral was then visited, and the bells were kept going in various methods, including a course of Yorkshire Surprise. Handbell ringing in the Cathedral tower consisted of Stedman Cinques and Cambridge Surprise Major, and concluded a very pleasant afternoon and evening.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHELTENHAM BRANCH.

The annual meeting of the Cheltenham Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association was held at Lockhampton on Saturday, December 8th. The bells were raised in peal soon after three o'clock, and much useful practice was obtained by the mixed bands. Service was conducted by the Rector (Canon F. W. Sear, M.A.), the lesson being read by Capt. Tyre, R.N. (churchwarden and hon. member). The National Anthem was sung to open the service.

After service, the ringers adjourned to the Village Hall, where a splendid tea was in readiness, kindly provided by Canon Sear, with Mrs. Sear in charge, and the local ringers' wives assisting.

The business meeting followed, with Canon Sear in the chair, supported by Capt. Tyre, Mr. G. A. Nock, and 50 members from the following towers: Charlton Kings, Prestbury, Swindon, Badgeworth, Cheltenham (St. Mark's and St. Mary's), Dumbleton, Winchcombe, Elkstone, and Lockhampton, as well as visitors from Evesham, Minchinhampton and Bourton-on-the-Water. Letters of apology were read from Rev. A. D. Pennington, Rev. C. D. P. Davies, and Sergt. Harding.

The Secretary reported a very successful year and welcomed Canon Sear as a brother ringer. He also reported the loss of two hon. members by death, Sir James T. Agg-Gardiner and Rev. Hill Merryweather, the company standing in silence.—Two new members were elected.

The following officers were re-elected and thanked for their past service: Branch chairman, Rev. A. D. Pennington; branch representative, G. H. Walters; branch hon. secretary, W. Yeond.

At the invitation of the Rector (Rev. H. A. Cooke) Swindon Village was selected for the next meeting in March.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Canon and Mrs. Sear for all they had done to help make the gathering successful, and Canon Sear, replying, said how pleased he was to meet such a gathering of brother ringers. He hoped they would pay him another visit. The tower was again visited, and ringing kept up until 9 p.m.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

FARNHAM DISTRICT'S SUCCESSFUL MEETING.

On Saturday last the Farnham District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild held a meeting at Aldershot, which proved quite the most successful which has taken place in the district. Although only 19 notified the secretary that they would be present, 32 sat down to tea, and after tea the number was increased to 43. Ringing commenced at three o'clock, and at 4.30 the Guild's service was conducted by the Rev. H. Le Fleming, with a member of the Frensham band at the organ, and a local ringer as 'blower.'

After tea, which the Vicar was unable to attend, he came over to the Parish Hall to welcome the Guild to Aldershot.—He was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks, on the proposition of the hon. secretary (Mr. B. Clark) for the use of the bells and for conducting the service.

At the business meeting two new members were elected from Farnham, and a very hearty vote of thanks was passed to the ladies for the splendid way they carried out the catering arrangements.

An appeal for the Bates Fund met with ready response, and the sum of £1 has been forwarded to Mr. T. Groombridge, jun.

The methods rung during the afternoon and evening ranged through Grandshire Doubles, Cambridge Surprise Minor, Grandshire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob Major.

Members attended from Ash, Aldershot, Bagshot, Farnham, Farnborough, Frensham and Seale, while visitors came from West Clendon, Guildford (Cathedral), Maidenhead, and, one who was very welcome, Mr. R. T. Hibbert, of Reading, secretary of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. To make sure everybody had a ring, the bells were kept going until 9.20 p.m.

DUDLEY AND DISTRICT GUILD.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING AT BRIERLEY HILL.

A quarterly meeting of the Dudley and District Guild was held at the Parish Church, Brierley Hill, on Saturday, December 8th, when the beautiful peal of eight bells were placed at the disposal of the members. The Guild's service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. F. A. Smith), who also gave a very interesting address on the ways of calling people to worship in the olden days. The rev. gentleman also said how pleased he was to meet the Guild that day, and he gave the members a most cordial welcome to his parish. He hoped that they would pay another visit in the near future.

At the close of the service an adjournment was made to the schoolroom, where a substantial tea was in readiness, generously provided by the Rector.

The business meeting afterward took place under the chairmanship of the Rector, supported by Mr. Harry Mason (vice-president), Mr. John Goodman, jun. (Ringing Master), and the secretary.

Business of a routine character having been disposed of, it was resolved to hold the annual meeting at Dudley, and to attempt the quarterly peal at Brierley Hill, the necessary arrangements for the latter being left in the hands of the Ringing Master.

At the conclusion of the business, Mr. H. Mason, in a happy little speech, proposed, and Mr. John Price seconded, that the best thanks of this Guild be given to the Rector of Brierley Hill, for his kindness in granting permission to hold this meeting at his church, for conducting the service, also for his very interesting address, for the use of the tower and bells and schoolroom, and for his generosity in providing the tea. Needless to say, the proposition was carried with acclamation. Thanks were also given to the churchwardens for their presence and support, to the assistant priest for the part he took in the service, to the ladies for preparing and serving the tea and looking after the comfort and interest of those present, also to Mr. John Lloyd for the part he played in making the necessary arrangements, and to whom the success and happiness of the meeting was largely due.

The Rector briefly replied on behalf of all concerned, and then closed the meeting with prayer.

After the meeting, members again ascended the tower and kept the bells merrily going in various methods until eight o'clock, when, owing to a service, ringing had to cease, and brought to a close a meeting in which much enthusiasm was displayed.

A BIRTHDAY COMPLIMENT.

On Monday, December 10th, at St. Michael's, Braintree, Essex, as a compliment to Mr. H. E. Hammond on his 63rd birthday, a quarter-peal of Superlative Surprise Major (1,34 changes): W. H. Hammond 1, Miss E. Pettitt 2, H. E. Hammond 3, F. V. Tiplon 4, G. Wiffen 5, H. C. Reason 6, B. Ridgewell 7, L. W. Wiffen (conductor) 8. First quarter-peal in the method by ringers of 2nd and 6th.

Mr. Hammond has been a keen and enthusiastic ringer in Braintree since 1880, and has also been for many years a member of the church choir, and a tenor soloist.

A DATE TOUCH.

At St. Peter's Church, Bramley, Leeds, on Wednesday, December 12th, in 1 hr. 11 mins., 1,928 changes of Oxford Treble Bob Major: W. Waterhouse 1, S. Helliwell 2, Frank Blackith 3, Fred Blackith 4, J. Guy 5, F. Jackson 6, Hy. Blackith 7, J. W. T. Holgate (conductor) 8. Rung as a birthday compliment to Harry Blackith.

DEATH OF AN OLD HEREFORDSHIRE RINGER.

A veteran Herefordshire ringer, in the person of Mr. William Phillips, died at Ross on December 12th, in his 86th year, after only a short illness. He was interred at Brampton Abbots, near Ross, on Saturday last. His funeral was attended by a large number, including several of his fellow-ringers in the Ross district, and in the evening a half-muffled peal was rung on the bells of Ross Parish Church, where he had been a regular ringer for the past eight years. Mr. Phillips had also been a ringer at Foy for considerably over 60 years, and, after he was well over 80 years of age, would ride his bicycle to the outlying towers in the Ross district to attend the quarterly meetings, where his presence was an inspiration to officials and members alike.

He attended the last quarterly meeting at Llangarren in September, and up to a fortnight of his death was in his place in Ross tower.

Of a quiet and unassuming disposition, he was a general favourite with all the district members.

Mr. Phillips was a carpenter by trade, and retired from business on attaining the age of 70 years. So far as is known to the writer, he had only rung two peals, one of Doubles, Stedman, Canterbury Pleasure and Grandsire, and one of Bob Minor, both of these being rung at Foy.

TWELVE-BELL VARIETY.

Few ringers with fifty twelve-bell peals to their credit can have a more varied record than Mr. C. J. Sedgley, of Ipswich. His half-century on twelve includes no fewer than eleven methods:—

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.PRESENTATION TO RETIRING VICAR OF GARSTON.

A very pleasant meeting of the Liverpool Branch of the Lancashire Association was held at Garston on Saturday, December 8th. The bells were going soon after 3 p.m., and quite a good muster of ringers was in attendance. Several members came along later, and at the service about forty were present. After the service all made their way to the Parish Room, where a bountiful tea awaited them, kindly provided by Canon Rowe.

A short meeting followed, at which the Vicar presided. The Branch Secretary reported having received a circular from the editor of the 'Diocesan Calendar,' which stated that he proposed to print a 'Diary of Events' in the next issue of the Calendar, and requested a list of engagements with dates for insertion. This is quite an innovation, as far as this branch is concerned, and the suggestion was heartily welcomed by the meeting.

Mr. Walter Hughes proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Canon Rowe for granting facilities for the meeting, and for providing such a bountiful tea. He pointed out to the members that it would be the last occasion on which he would be present as Vicar of Garston, as he was shortly retiring on medical advice. He took this opportunity of asking the Canon to receive a small token of appreciation from the Garston ringers.

The gift took the form of a silver inkstand in the shape of a bell.

Canon Rowe, amid great applause, responded. He pointed out that longevity seemed to be order of things in Garston. Many of the churchworkers had held office for long periods. The head teachers of the Church Schools until recently had had many years of service. The ringers themselves had a goodly total. He himself had been Vicar of Garston for 23 years, and although this was the last occasion he could officially welcome the branch to Garston, he hoped to be present at many future meetings.

A SUFFOLK RECTOR'S FAREWELL.

On Sunday last, the Rector of Glemsford, Suffolk, who is retiring, preached his farewell sermon, in which he said the ringer was not of parochial importance only, but of national importance.

He has been a great friend to his ringers, who, in turn, have been of great service to their Rector. During the afternoon a half-peal of Minor (2,520 changes) was rung in 1 hr. 35 mins. as a farewell to him. It consisted of 1,080 Plain Bob, 720 each of Oxford and Kent Treble Bob: W. J. Reynolds 1, W. G. Good 2, C. W. Ambrose 3, A. A. Fitch 4, P. L. Johnson 5, T. E. Slater (conductor) 6.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

'A merry Christmas' to all our readers.

Please take note of the fact that next week's issue of 'The Ringing World' will have to go to press before Christmas Day. Therefore, send off by the next post to-day any reports or notices that should be inserted in the issue of December 28th.

And, please, do not grumble if anything that might have been sent in this week, but isn't, gets delayed in publication. Usually, a lot of peals are rung at Christmas, and they take a lot of space; therefore, if reports of things which have already happened are not sent in time for the next issue, we must not be blamed if they have to wait a little longer.

A band of five brothers have rung a peal of Grandsire Doubles at Cossington, Leicestershire. They were Messrs. Sydney, John, Frank, Thomas, and Ernest Payne, of Syston.

The report of a peal rung at St. Peter's, Staines, has been sent without mention of the method or number of changes.

His many friends will delight to learn that after nearly 15 months Mr. A. H. Pulling, of Guildford, has begun to ring again. He is just taking 'light exercise.'

The death has occurred at Churchill of Mr. T. Browning, a ringer for over 40 years, and for some time captain of the local band at the Parish Church. He was laid to rest on December 11th, and afterwards a muffled peal of Doubles was rung.

There appear to be some promising young ringers in the Wirral (Cheshire) district, and ringing in that quarter seems to be taking a new lease of life.

The 'Lambert' peal at Brechley, recorded last week, was not the first eight-bell peal by this family, who had previously rung one at Mitcham, Surrey, but their first peal in the county of Kent.

By a typographical error, the peal of London Surprise Minor at Stapleford, Cambs, on November 22nd, was reported as containing '42 six-scores.' It should, of course, have been 'seven 720's.'

Many notable peals have been rung in the Christmas festival, and among them we would mention the following Boxing Day performances: In 1831, 15,168 Kent Treble Bob Major at Elland, Yorks; in 1885, 8,064 Double Norwich at Leiston, Suffolk; in 1871, 6,048 London Surprise Major at Bennington; in 1894, 9,312 Superlative Surprise at Crawley, Sussex; in 1895, 10,080 Bob Major at Helmingham; in 1901, 11,111 Stedman Cinques at Birmingham, and 10,176 Kent Treble Bob at South Wigston, Leicestershire; in 1910, 9,728 Superlative Surprise at Clent, Worcestershire; and in 1923, 10,440 Cambridge Surprise Royal at Walthamstow.

Long peals rung on December 27th include 17,104 Double Norwich Major at South Wigston in 1904; and 10,176 Double Oxford Bob Major at Brierley Hill in 1909.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Owing to the Christmas holidays, 'The Ringing World' will have to go to press much earlier than usual next week, and correspondents are informed that the latest time for receiving notices is First Post, Monday.

Those who have other communications should send them to-day.

A NOTEWORTHY PEAL AT SAFFRON WALDEN. HISTORIC PERFORMANCE RECALLED.

The opening of the four new treble bells on Saturday at Saffron Walden is a reminder that it was at this tower that the first recorded performance of Holt's Original, in which the conductor rang in the peal, took place. This was on Christmas Day, 1753, and the peal therefore takes its place as an historic event.

John Holt himself called it for the first time at St. Margaret's, Westminster, on July 7th, 1751, but he did it from manuscript.

In 1753, there were rival ringing societies at Saffron Walden, and the following appeared in a newspaper under the heading, 'Saffron Walden, January 2nd, 1754': 'To inform all real Lovers and Professors of the Art of Ringing, that the Society of young ringers of this town, on Tuesday, the 25th of December last, being Christmas Day, did ring the true Peal of Grandsire Triples, composed of 148 Bobs, with two Singles, which they effected in three hours and twenty minutes, and on Tuesday following, being New Year's Day, they completed the same in eight minutes less than before (being the only times the same has been rung there since there has been eight bells) to the no small mortification of their antagonists, who instead of instruction, give them all the obstruction in their power. The ringers which rung the same were: Frederick Sell, Charles Baron (who called the bobs), Richard Whitehead, John Banks, William Barrett, jun., John Bush, jun., John Clark and John Salmon.'

LINCOLN CATHEDRAL'S RING OF TWELVE

LINCOLN GUILD OPEN NEW BELLS.

The opening of the ring of twelve bells at Lincoln Cathedral on Saturday, was something more than a mere celebration of the augmentation of a peal; it was a thanksgiving for a great work of restoration, which has saved from partial ruin the glorious building which crowns the hill above the eastern city. Only those who have actually been engaged in the work of rendering the Cathedral safe know how perilously near a total collapse has been. It is humanly certain, says the 'Lincolnshire Echo,' that had the repair been much longer delayed, one or both of the western towers would have fallen and torn away a great part of the west front with them.

Happily the work was taken in hand just in time. It has been a gigantic task—and it is only one part of the great scheme for the restoration of the Cathedral—but the famous St. Hugh's tower has been saved and rendered safe, it is hoped, for centuries to come. Many years ago the danger to the tower from the weight and oscillation of the bells was realised, and an attempt was made to obviate this by building out corbels about 30ft. up, and from this height carrying up timber piers to bear the weight of the bell frame. In the course of a short time, however, the timbers shrank, rounding country. It is believed the tower will prove the best belfry in the world, and it is described as now having the properties of a 'giant megaphone.'

As is well known, four new bells have been added to the ring, to make a peal of twelve. Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, recast the old eight in 1913, and they have now added the four new bells, the whole comprising a very fine light twelve, the tenor being a bell of only 23 cwt. 3 qr. 13 lb.

It is believed that there have been bells in existence at Lincoln Cathedral since the completion of the first building erected by Remigius in the eleventh century, and for hundreds of years there have been what have been known as Lady Bells as well as St. Hugh's ring. These, like their big brother, 'Great Tom of Lincoln,' were recast from time to time. In 1834 and 1835 the Lady Bells, which occupied the central tower, and 'Great Tom,' which also was cracked, were broken up and the metal used for the new Big Tom and two new quarter bells. About the same time the treble of St. Hugh's old ring was recast, and it was stated that these bells were in so bad an order that they had not been rung for forty years.

In 1913 a great restoration of the bells was undertaken, and Messrs. Taylor and Co. cast for the Cathedral a beautiful ring of eight. The tenors of the old peal, dated respectively 1593 and 1606, were removed to the north-west tower. The remaining six were with the result that the wooden framework rocked with the bells and hammered the masonry like a battering ram, so that the danger became greater than before. A steel bell frame was installed, and the weight of the bells was borne on the masonry from steel girders at a height which, in the then condition of the tower, was not safe. That was the position of affairs when the bells had perforce to be silenced four years ago.

The work which has now been done to the tower consists of the reinforced grouting of the masonry after the method employed in other parts of the Cathedral, and in the construction of great delta bronze reinforced concrete pilasters, anchored to the walls from the height of 84ft. to 101ft. 6in. from ground level, to carry similarly reinforced concrete beams upon which rests the bell frame. The bells themselves have been brought 30ft. lower in the tower, and their weight is carried down by the pilasters another 30ft.

There have been other very notable improvements which render the south-west tower a belfry which is believed to be absolutely unique in its acoustic arrangements. The ceiling and roof of the tower have been removed and replaced by a lantern roof resting on reinforced concrete piers. The lower louvres have been closed, and the sound therefore travels uninterrupted to the top of the tower before escaping. Thus the sound of the bells will be moderated in the near vicinity, but carried in full mellowness far across the surrounding country. Each of these bells commemorates a great Bishop of Lincoln: Alexander the Magnificent, 1123-1148; Christopher Wordsworth, 1868-1885; Robert Sanderson, 1660-1663; Henry Burghersh, 1320-1340; Robert Grosseteste, 1235-1253; St. Hugh of Avalon, 1186-1200; Remigius, 1067-1092.

Of the four new bells, two have been given by the Lincoln Diocesan Guild in memory of those members who gave their lives in the war; the other two are the gift of an anonymous American lady, whose identity is unknown even to the Dean, and form part of a larger gift of $5,000.

The inscriptions on the bells are as follow:—

THE OPENING OF THE BELLS.

The adage 'Everything comes to those who wait' has again proved true, writes a Lincoln correspondent. It is about ten years since the suggestion was made that a fitting tribute to the ringers of the Diocesan Guild who had made the supreme sacrifice in the war should take the form of the addition of four bells to the almost perfect peal of eight (tenor 23 cwt.) put in by the well-known Loughborough firm of John Taylor and Co. in 1912. After strenuous efforts had been made by the four branches of the Diocesan Guild to secure the necessary funds from amongst the almost purely agricultural districts, an unforeseen difficulty presented itself in the announcement that the fabric of the tower was unsafe. As a matter of fact, it is over four years since the tower was closed for ringing. Notwithstanding the stupendous energy of the Dean and his fellow-workers, it is common knowledge that the towers were on the verge of a total collapse. Again, it is well known that, as the work of restoration proceeded, further defects in the structure were found from time to time which delayed the work. Had the matter been in less capable hands it is a question whether the restoration, as far as the bells and the bell tower are concerned, would have been completed.

When renewing an appeal for further funds toward the general restoration, the anticipation of those particularly interested in the bells was aroused as far back as last October, when the Dean announced that the bells would be ringing before Christmas. Only those practically acquainted with the work knew of the difficult task before the Cathedral authorities, and it is only by the combined efforts of the Dean and Chapter, the consulting engineer, the inventive mind of the clerk of the works, and the skill of the workmen employed upon the fabric, that the bells were ready for a formal opening on Saturday last.

The four new bells were dedicated last April, two being given by the ringers of the diocese, and two being the gift of an anonymous American donor through the forethought of the Dean.

The proceedings on Saturday commenced with a special service in the morning chapel, at which the Dean was present, although he had been seriously indisposed during the week, and it was extremely gratifying to the 80 or more ringers present to see him enter the chapel, wrapped up against cold, and leaning on the arm of his son. The Precentor (Ven. E. R. Blackie) conducted the service, at which there were also present the Bishop of Grantham, Sub-Dean Jendwine, Chancellor Sawley and Canon Sensus. The congregation included Canon W. Hicks, Rev. R. Bond, Rev. H. T. Parry, Mr. F. F. Linley (president of the Northern Branch), Rev. H. Law James (Master of the Guild), the Recorder of Lincoln (Mr. J. S. Pritchett), of the St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, and others.

At the commencement of the service the Precentor made reference to the illness of the King, and invited the congregation to join in special prayer for His Majesty's recovery.

The hymn, 'We love the place, O God,' was sung, and an appropriate lesson was read by the Precentor. In his homely address Sub-Dean Jendwine reviewed the stages which had brought all the work connected with the tower and bells to the occasion of the opening of the bells, and reminded the congregation of the occasions, both national and domestic, when bells were rung. He emphasised the message sent out by the ringers as 'Come and worship with us' in addition to 'Come to worship.'

At the conclusion of the service the Sub-Dean presented to Mr. I. Vickors (Master of the Cathedral company) the key to the tower, saying he was glad to be able to hand to him that which he had missed for over four years, and which now gave to himself and the ringers access to the tower, where he hoped they would ring for many years!

At the conclusion of the service the tower was thrown open to the members of the Diocesan Guild and their friends, and the bells were rung during the afternoon and evening under the supervision of the Rev. H. Law James, who endeavoured to arrange for everyone who wished to avail themselves of an opportunity to ring upon twelve bells. Access was also given to the visitors, under the guidance of the Cathedral officials, to inspect the interesting alterations, which, very briefly, are the lowering of the bells by some 30ft., and the hanging of the peal in one tier carried on girders supported by massive bronze pillars with concrete. By a clever and thoughtful idea of the clerk of the works, the large louvres have been raised in and lowered in the lead roof which carries the sound away from the Cathedral precincts. Amongst the visitors in the evening was Mr. J. Oldham, of Messrs. John Taylor and Co. He must have felt very much gratified with the many congratulations from the practical ringers upon the success of the augmentation, the general opinion being that the old ring of eight were splendid, and that the new ring of twelve were just as good.

SUFFOLK GUILD.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I was pleased to read in 'The Ringing World' of the 30th ult. that at a meeting of the above Guild, held at Little Waldingfield, secretaries were to be asked to call more meetings in West Suffolk in the coming year, which suggestion is a good one, and I hope will be acted on, as district meetings are practically unknown in this part of the county. For example I will mention one town—Newmarket (which originally was partly in Cambs and Suffolk, but now all in the latter). Here the ringers formerly belonged to the Ely Diocesan Association, but when the new diocese of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich was formed in 1921 or thereabouts, they naturally joined their own Guild. I think I am not far wrong in saying, however, that a district meeting of the Guild has never been held there, and yet the town has two rings of bells, one of which has been spoken of as the best six in Suffolk, and well worth a visit, when ringers outings are being arranged.

I trust, therefore, that secretaries will take note and see to it that West Suffolk gets a 'look in' sometimes, that help and encouragement may be given to the bands on the borders.—Yours faithfully,

ANOTHER SUFFOLKIAN.

PETERBOROUGH AND ELY ASSOCIATIONS MEET.

THE CONDITION OF WISBECH BELLS.

The above associations held a joint meeting at Wisbech, the capital of the Fens, on Saturday, December 1st. The fine peal of ten bells were kept going throughout the afternoon and evening, and a large number of ringers attended from Peterborough, Cambridge, Wallington, Shouldham, Market Deeping, Elm and other places, and the local band also took part in their first touches in some of the methods rung. The service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. Canon Crookham, C.B.E.), and he was assisted by Rev. T. Drake, Rev. R. Copeman, and the curate (Rev. H. V. Moore). The Rev. T. Drake gave an excellent and interesting address, laying especial stress on the true spirit of ringing, namely, not only for enjoyment, but as a great act of worship to Almighty God and as work done for the Church.

Tea was served at the White Lion Hotel, and the usual business meeting was presided over by the Vicar. In welcoming the ringers, he said that he had heard a great deal about the bad 'go' of the bells, especially of the tenor, and he hoped ere long, when they came again, that the state of affairs would be altered.

The Rev. T. Drake also spoke, and pointed out the great and urgent need of having something done to the bells, and it was unanimously agreed that if the meeting had done no other good, this at least was a step in the right direction.

It was resolved to hold the next meeting at Stamford.

A further move was made to the tower, and, later, several members went to Elm with Mr. R. Crofts, the Ringing Master of this tower, who has done such splendid work in training a young band, and touches of Oxford, Kent and St. Clement's were brought round. Plain Bob was rung for the learners' special benefit, and George Hatton, one of the Wisbech ringers, aged 14, rang his first 120 of Bob Minor. This concluded a most enjoyable and well-spent day.

TAUNTON RINGER'S DEATH.

The ringers of St. James' Church, Taunton, regret to announce the death of Mr. H. Bosley, who passed away on the 8th inst. at the Taunton and Somerset Hospital, after an operation. His death came as a great shock to all his ringing friends, as well as to his near relatives. Having been operated on, he was reported for the five following days as making satisfactory progress. Then, however, a relapse occurred, and he passed away at the age of 85 years. He leaves a widow and three sons to mourn their loss. He was laid to rest at Tolland on the 13th inst., being carried to his last resting-place by four of his brother ringers, Messrs. W. J. Tarr, S. Jarman, E. Priddle and W. G. Gigg. There were many beautiful wreaths from the family and friends, including one in the shape of a bell from the ringers at St. James'.

At Taunton, after the interment, the bells pealed out in their half-muffled language, Grandsire and Stedman Triples being rung by some 15 or 16 ringers.

Mr. Bosley had been a ringer at St. James' for close on thirty years. He learnt to pull a bell as a lad at Tolland, and had kept in touch with bells ever since. He rang about a score of peals. His last was his only peal of Stedman on an inside bell, and of this he was very proud. He did not care a lot about peal ringing.

Deceased was also very active as a bandsman. Having belonged to the West Somerset Imperial Yeomanry band up to their disestablishment, he joined the Territorials. On the outbreak of war he was drafted to India with the Somersets. Meeting with a mishap he was transferred to England, and made numerous ringing friends in Hampshire. After retiring from military service, he joined the Norton Fitzwarren band. He was also very clever with his box of balls.

On Saturday last a peal of Stedman Triples was rung to perpetuate his memory, and he will ever be remembered by all who knew him as one of the most straightforward and the kindest of men.

PEALS OF DOUBLES AND MINOR.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Your sensible leaders on this question have had a curious and unexpected result, for practically no defence has been put forward for the class of peal to which you object. Instead, leading members of the Central Council have united in attacking a composition which has received the approval of the Exercise for years.

This composition up till now has had nothing but praise; it has been, and is, regularly rung. There was a special request at the last Council meeting that nothing should be done to shut it out, so it can reasonably be said to have been approved by the Council.

Yet at this late day three leaders of thought in the Exercise allege that it does not comply with the last definition passed by the Council. It would appear, on the face of it, that if fault is to be found with other peals which they approve, Mr. Bankes James' wonderful composition must be denied to the Exercise.

The flaw they find is that certain changes are not made, and therefore the 720's are not complete.

Mr. Trollope endeavours to clinch the matter this week by again telling the old story of the Q sets. Figures do not matter, he says, forgetting that we prove the figures, not Q sets, by other figures. Of course many know the value of changes theoretically, and that extents cannot be got unless certain laws are observed, but it seems to be forgotten that Mr. Bankes James' peal is not composed of seven separate extents all coming round at the end. It is a peal of seven true and complete 720's, and it begins and ends with rounds. The 720's are complete in the sense intended by the Council, i.e., that the 720 different orders of striking shall be rung before the second is begun, and so with the second 720 before the third is commenced, and so to the end.

No argument whatever can disprove facts, and it is an absolute fact that in ringing Mr. James' peal, 720 different orders of striking are first rung out true and complete, and are thereafter followed by other six 720's, at the end of which the bells come round.—Yours faithfully,
Sunderland. •

OLD RULE LOGICAL BUT TOO NARROW.

Dear Sir,—Everyone, I think, agreed, and still agrees with the intention of the resolution about five and six-bell peals. It is only the wording which is beginning to be found out not quite right. The old rule for a Minor peal was a logical one and easily understood, but it proved too narrow. Mr. Bankes James' arrangement of Cambridge has been accepted by the Exercise and has come to stay. Now, of the seven 720's in that arrangement, six cannot be said to be (each by itself) either true or complete, using these words as they have been used in ringing since the beginning. You have 720 true rows (counting the starting rounds), but you have not 720 true changes, and the bells do not return to the point from which they started. But the arrangement breaks the letter of the old rule, and not the spirit. You must consider the first three 720's as one block of 2,160 changes, each of which is rung three times. Then you have both truth and completeness. Apply the same thing to Pitman's 240 of Grandisle Doubles. There you have 120 true rows at back stroke and 120 true rows at hand stroke. I can hardly see how the Minor can be allowed and the Doubles condemned.—Yours truly,

J. A. TROLLOPE.

[Pitman's arrangement has never been condemned, as far as we know. It has been recognised all along that what applied to the Cambridge arrangement applied also to Pitman's 240's of Doubles.—Ed. 'R.W.']

'TRUE AND COMPLETE.'

Dear Sir,—With the wonderful lucidity of explanations of which he is such a master, Mr. Trollope has made clear to us the difficulty in admitting the new arrangements of 720's. I thought Mr. Powell's explanation was very good, but Mr. Trollope has managed to improve on it.

But there is one link in his chain which is missing. He has proved that these arrangements are not complete, but he has not proved that the Central Council should therefore ban them. It is a fact that in former days a peal had to be both true and complete, but I do not remember the Central Council ever distinguishing in this way between the terms. What has been decided is whether a peal is to be reckoned a true one only. If we were to decide whether it is to be reckoned a complete one also, the matter should be brought up under those terms, and it should be laid down what constitutes 'completeness.' Evidently that has never yet been done, or Mr. Trollope would not have needed to ask Mr. Law James the question he quotes.

If you take two apples sufficiently similar, and cut each down the middle, and place half of one against half of the other in such a way that the edges exactly coincide, you may call such a spliced apple, a true one, or a complete one, according to the way you define either word. I doubt, however, if anyone would be bold enough to call it a 'true and complete' apple. The Central Council have allowed spliced peals to be recorded as true peals, but it is doubtful if they would call them 'true and complete.'

If you can break up methods to make a spliced peal, why not break up Q sets also?

GENEROUS GIFT TO PHILLACK.

Cornwall has gained a new ring of eight bells by a generous gift to Phillack Church. In memory of his wife and younger son, Capt. Edwin Jenkins has defrayed the cost of recasting the three old bells, which were dated 1751, and adding five new ones, the whole peal, supplied by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, being hung in modern fittings. The bells swing in ball bearings on a steel frame, and there is also an Ellecombe chiming apparatus.

The inscription on the tenor bell, which is reproduced on a bronze plate in the tower, reads:—

'1928. The three largest bells in this peal were recast and five new bells are added by Edwin Jenkins in memory of his dear wife, Eliza Jenkins, who died the 4th day of March, 1924, aged 73 years. Also in proud memory of his younger son, Edgar Vernon Jenkins, who laid down his life in the Great War, France, on the 19th April, 1917, aged 34 years. William Anthony Wills, M.A., Rector; Thomas Osborne and Zachary Belling Mudge, churchwardens.'

The inscriptions on the other bells are: No. 7, 'God preserve this parish. We were cast by Abel Rudhall, of Gloucester, 1751.' No. 6, 'Unto the grave I summon all. Prosperity to the Church of England.' No. 5, 'Honour the King.' No. 4, 'Fear God.' No. 3, 'Love the Brotherhood.' No. 2, 'On earth peace among men.' No. 1, 'Glory to God in the highest.'

The new peal was dedicated on Thursday of last week by the Lord Bishop of Truro.

The service was conducted by the Rector, with the assistance of Rev. C. A. Johnson, curate-in-charge of St. Gwithian. Rev. C. L. Bartley, Vicar of Lelant, acted as Bishop's chaplain. Capt. Jenkins was unable to attend, owing to indifferent health, and his son, Mr. E. Jenkins, formally requested the Bishop to dedicate the bells. In addition to dedicating the bells, the Bishop dedicated a new altar in the south chapel.

WHY CORNWALL HAS NO VERY OLD BELLS.

The Bishop said they had no very old bells in Cornwall. In some parts of England there were bells going back 800 to 900 years, but none, he thought, in Cornwall. That brought in a bit of history. It told the story of the times when Cornwall was in a state of rebellion.

The people said they would not have the English Prayer Book, and they armed themselves as best they could and went to oppose the King and the Government, because they thought the English Prayer Book was to be made compulsory for them. They made a short and gallant fight, but, naturally, they were overpowered by the armies, and a stern order came down that all the bells in Cornwall were to be destroyed, as it was the bells which had called the people together to protest against the new Prayer Book.

The reason for the rebellion was that the Government thought that the people had been accustomed to having their services in Latin, and then they wanted them in English. Therefore, it was decided that they should be in English. They forgot, however, that people did not talk English in Cornwall. They talked Cornish. They were accustomed to Latin services, and they were very much attached to them.

It was no gain to them to have an English service instead of Latin, because most of them did not understand it. They thought they had cause for dissatisfaction, and he, the Bishop, thought the cause was in many ways a very real one.

Further, Cornish people did not like the new ways that were being brought in by the new Prayer Book. That was interesting to remember at a time like the present, when again they had been finding the English Prayer Book not quite satisfactory for all modern needs, and had been trying to improve it, enlarge it, and enrich it.

So the old history joined with the history of to-day. The old bells disappeared about 400 years ago, and it had been a great task from one generation to another to restore the bells to the churches.

A public tea was held after the service. The Rector presided, and the Bishop was amongst the guests. The arrangements were made by the churchwardens, with lady helpers. The ringers were entertained to tea by Capt. Jenkins in the Rectory Schoolroom, the choir of the Parish Church acting as hosts and hostesses.

About 80 ringers were present from Truro Cathedral, Camborne, Gulval, Helston, Gwennap, Redruth, Zennor, Toweduck and Lelant. Ringing was kept up from four until nine o'clock.

You, sir, would say that to do so is to lower the standard of ringing. This means that we are allowing something to be done which is easier than it should be. Is it easier to compose a peal with broken Q sets? Let the composers tell us.

As for ringing such a peal, to a ringer who just makes the calls when he is told, it is probably neither easier nor more difficult. To those of us to whom the cyclical movement of the bells means more than anything else in ringing, it would clearly be more difficult.

Strictly speaking, the only 'true and complete' peals on five bells is the 120 rows, neither more nor less, and on six bells the 720. By a convention, these are allowed to be repeated in order to make 5,040. But this is not allowed on more bells. If, when a band had completed a 5,040 of Triples, they were to go on to ring another 5,040, or a part thereof, this would not be recognised as a long peal.

A logical solution would seem to be to allow repeated peals, spliced methods, and broken Q sets in Doubles, and Minor, but to allow none of them on larger numbers. HERBERT DRAKE

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

PRESENTATION TO WIMBORNE BRANCH SECRETARY. RECOGNITION OF 25 YEARS' WORK.

The annual meeting of the Wimborne Branch was held at St. James', Poole, on Saturday last, when the following towers were represented: Wimborne, Corfe Mullen, Lychet Minster, Swanage, Christchurch, Bournemouth (St. Peter's and St. John's), Wyke Regis, Ringwood and members of the local band. The bells, a ring of eight, were available from 2.30, and were kept going during the afternoon to Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Little Bob, Kent Treble Bob and Double Norwich Major. Service, in which the Guild form was used, was conducted by the Rector, who also gave an address. A move was then made to the Church House, where tea awaited the members who were at this point joined by Mr. Martin Stewart, of Ferndown. The business meeting which followed was presided over by the Rector of Corfe Mullen, who is chairman of the branch.

Reference was made to the death of Mr. A. Osman, of Wimborne, and the members stood in silence to mark their regret and their sympathy with the relatives.

The branch hon. secretary (Rev. C. A. Phillips) gave a report of the outstanding features of the past year. Firstly, two bells had been given to make up the octave at St. Giles' by the president of the Guild (the Earl of Shaftesbury), and this was followed by the band joining the Guild. Eight peals had been scored in the branch during the year, six of them being rung by Mr. G. Williams' touring party, while the other two consisted of a peal of Bob Major at Poole and one of Bob Minor at Sturminster Marshall.

It was decided to leave the arrangements for place and date of the quarterly meetings to the secretary, and it was also resolved to hold the first monthly practice at Poole in January, to arrange the practices for the coming year.

Two new members were elected.

Mr. Martin Stewart asked those members who were able to do so to carry their minds back twenty-five years to the time when the Rev. H. Drake was their secretary. On his retiring from office they were faced with having to find someone to fill it, which they did by inducing the Rev. C. A. Phillips to take up the work. Mr. Stewart asked if there was anyone who was present 25 years ago, who thought they were electing a secretary who would still be filling that office and be with them as such a quarter of a century later. Mr. Stewart spoke very feelingly on the Rev. C. A. Phillips' unselfish personality, and expressed the hope that his successor was not yet born. Mr. Stewart asked their hon. secretary to accept a small token of the esteem in which he is held in the branch, and handed to the Rev. C. A. Phillips a beautiful travelling rug and a framed illuminated address, with a list of subscribers.—The Rev. C. A. Phillips, on behalf of himself and his sister, thanked all those who had subscribed in making them this beautiful present. It was, he said, very gratifying to think of all those friends who thought so much of the little bit he did.

Musical honours were accorded the hon. secretary, and brought the meeting to a close.

The bells were afterwards kept going until 9 p.m.

DEVIZES BRANCH.

The monthly meeting of the Devizes Branch was held at the Parish Church of Holy Trinity, Bradford-on-Avon, on Saturday, December 8th. Ringing commenced about 2.30 p.m., and later the Guild service was conducted by Rev. Canon Clarke, Vicar. Tea followed, after which the chairman of the branch (Mr. C. D. Heginbotham) presided over a short business meeting.

The Chairman welcomed the visitors, Mr. Rowe, of Stourton, Wilts (North Dorset Branch), Messrs. S. Wilshire, E. Trueman and T. Davison, from Chippenham.

The Secretary (Mr. F. Green) stated that he had received a letter from the Vicar of Christ Church, the Rev. W. Noel, regretting that the bells of Christ Church were not available on account of serious illness near the church.

Arising out of the minutes, the Chairman reported that he had written to the Vicar of Erlestoke, as requested at the last meeting, respecting the condition of Erlestoke bells, and he had received a very nice letter from him, thanking the branch for calling attention to the matter, and requesting that he could be put in touch with the Branch bellfry inspector to see what was required to be done.

The following new members were elected, membership to commence on January 1st, 1929: Rev. H. J. B. Hallam, Vicar of Erlestoke, hon. member; Messrs. Arthur W. Wheeler, Alfred W. Fox, Frank Miles, Reginald Ball, Leslie J. Batliard, and Arthur Sturgess, all of Erlestoke, ringing members.

Ringers, in addition to those mentioned, were present from St. John's and St. Mary's, Devizes, Rowde, Trowbridge, Melksham, Bruton, Bradford-on-Avon (Holy Trinity and Christ Church), Hilberton and Warminster.

The usual votes of thanks were passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells, to the organist, and to those who prepared the tea.—The Chairman said he regretted that the Vicar could not be present, in consequence of another engagement, as he would like to congratulate him on behalf of the branch on his being made a Canon of Salisbury.

A TYNESIDE PEAL RESTORED.

The light peal of six in the tower of St. Cuthbert's, Blaydon-on-Tyne, after being silent for about seven years, have been quarter-turned, tuned, and rehung in a new steel frame with ball bearings and new fittings throughout, by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, and were rededicated by the Bishop of Durham on Saturday, December 8th.

The bells were originally cast by W. Blews and Sons, of Birmingham, in 1876, the tenor being 6½ cwt., and Messrs. Gillett and Johnston have made a very satisfactory job of them, the 'go' being all that could be desired.

For the dedication service rounds were rung by the local band, and immediately afterwards a 720 Bob Minor by the following: Jas. Cliff (Blaydon) 1, E. E. Ferry (president of the Durham and Newcastle Association) 2, W. J. Davidson (Newcastle Cathedral) 3, W. Bennett (Winlaton) 4, H. B. Taylor (Newburn) 5, F. E. Collins (Croydon Bell Foundry) 6.

Although very short notice was given, a good number of members of the Durham and Newcastle Association turned up to try the bells, and they kept them going until late in the evening in various methods.

Tea was kindly provided by the Rector, Rev. E. V. Simkinson, M.A., and on the proposition of the president of the association a hearty vote of thanks was passed to him for his kindness.—In responding, Mr. Simkinson said they were very glad to hear their bells ring out again, and that the whole of the money required had been subscribed.

The bell founders were represented at the opening by Mr. S. R. Roper and Mr. F. E. Collins.

LINKS WITH A PAST GENERATION.

To the Editor.

Sir,—In your last week's issue, in giving an account of the opening of the St. Martin's bells in Birmingham, mention was made of two veteran ringers, Messrs. Dawe and Miller, as being probably the only two men living who could claim to have rung with Haley and Cox, of London. I also can claim that honour, and so can my brother, Martin Routh. I was one of the band who rang 'Holt's Original' of Grandsire Triples called by Haley, sen., on February 20th, 1873, at St. Stephen's, Rochester Row, London. The band consisted of the following: Haley, Haworth, Hayes, Dorrington, Stockham, myself, Mash and Horrex (tenor). The peal is entered in the College Youths' peal book. I have also rung with Cox, and I feel confident that my brother could mention many peals that he has rung with the veterans of those days.—Yours faithfully,

W. POLE ROUTH.

[It is delightful to know that there are other ringers alive who rang with both Henry Haley and John Cox, but the claim of Messrs. Dawe and Miller is that they rang with Henry Johnson as well.—Ed. 'R.W.']

Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob and Double Norwich Major were rung during the afternoon and evening.

In his book on 'Church Bells,' the late Rev. W. C. Lukis draws attention to old peal boards at Bradford and Trowbridge, and expresses regret that the ringers of his time (1857) did not emulate the ringers of those earlier days, but if it were now possible for him to visit those towers and others in the neighbourhood, he certainly would not have cause to regret that there were no peals rung in these days.

The annual meeting of the branch will be held at Devizes on Saturday, January 5th.

BIG DORSET GATHERING.

The annual meeting of the North Dorset Branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild was held at Blandford on Saturday, December 8th, when there were 95 present from 27 towers.

The service was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. Dr. Greenwood, who also gave an address on the ministry of ringing. The lesson was read by the Rev. F. B. Phillips and the organist kindly played for the service, though he had to hurry away immediately afterwards. The bells were in constant use before and after service, as also were those of Dorweston and Stourfontne.

At the business meeting the Rev. F. L. Edwards (hon. secretary of the Guild) was voted to the chair in the deeply regretted absence of the Master of the Guild, the Rev. R. H. Gundry, through illness.

The accounts showed a slightly increased credit balance.

A presentation was made by one of the oldest ringers, Mr. Edwin Ridout, to the late secretary, the Rev. R. E. P. Gorrington, who had worked up the branch from a very small thing to its present flourishing and enthusiastic state.

The secretary of the Wimborne Branch was present, and visitors from Wimborne, Swanage, Bournemouth, Wyke Regis, Poole, and St. Thomas, Salisbury.—The Rev. F. B. Phillips welcomed the ringers in the name of the Rector.

SIDDINGTON, GLOS.—On Thursday, November 29th, 720 Bob Minor: F. Edwards 1, H. L. Cook (first 720) 2, F. J. Lewis (conductor) 3, H. C. Bond 4, H. S. Parsons 5, W. H. Hayward 6.

AUGMENTED NORTHAMPTONSHIRE RING.

DEDICATION OF NEW TREBLE AT COLD HIGHAM.

There was a record gathering at the quarterly meeting of the Towcester and District Association on Saturday last, when Bishop Lang dedicated the new treble to complete the peal of six at St. Luke's Church, Cold Higham. Among the visitors were the Revs. Canon W. A. Carroll (Wicken), H. S. Binning (Green's Norton), H. W. P. Dansor (Pattishall), C. E. Green (Lichborough), and E. V. Fenn (Lois-Weedon), Messrs. F. Wilford (Master of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild), and R. H. Dove (representing the founders, Messrs. Gillett and Johnston), and seventy ringers from fourteen towers.

The service was fully choral, and the new form of service of the association was used for the first time. During the singing of the second hymn, the choir, headed by the cross bearer, proceeded to the tower, where, after the dedicatory prayer, the bell was raised by the Rector (the Rev. R. Howes, M.A.), and the whole peal was then rung in rounds a few times.

The Bishop, in the course of his address, referred to the history of bellringing in this country, and mentioned particularly some of the oldest bells in Northants.

After the service the visitors were entertained through the generosity of the Rector, while good use was made of the bells till a late hour. Owing to the large number present ringing was also indulged in at the neighbouring Parish Church of Pattishall, where there is a peal of six by the same founders.

There were originally four bells at Cold Higham, and these were recast and augmented to five by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston in 1913, and the whole peal hung with new fittings on an 'H' type frame for six. The new bell is in perfect relationship with the remainder of the peal, while the 'go' of the bells is all that can be desired.

THE BATES APPEAL FUND.

The Christmas spirit will doubtless enter into the giving towards this fund during the next week, and we hope we may see it raised to at least £50.

It is proposed to close the fund at the end of the year, so that those who desire to help this most deserving case should give quickly. The following further subscriptions are acknowledged with thanks:—

LIGHTING THE TOWER.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—We are arranging to light Ufford tower with electricity, but there does not seem any recognised practice in the matter, and the lighting company have had no experience of such jobs. I wonder whether any of your readers who have experienced good and bad arrangements would give us their experiences?

With the help of the advice of the company's electricians we are proposing to light as follows: One light hanging from the centre of the ceiling of the 12ft. square ringing chamber, about 10ft. from the floor, with a single 20 watt bulb with an opal shade. In the clock chamber above, one portable lamp hanging about 7ft. up on one wall. In the bell chamber a portable lamp hanging well above the bell frames. In the winding staircase three lights. The switch for the topmost of these will be by the clock chamber door, and will also switch on the bell chamber light. The other two staircase lights and the clock chamber light will be switched on from the foot of the stairs. Any criticism of this arrangement will be welcomed, especially if made promptly.

HANDBELLS FOR SALE.

Full set of HANDBELLS (178 in number), duplicated. Winners at Manchester and other contests. Also music and stands. First offer of £50 secures them.—Apply Alfred Pickles, Shirley Villas, Cleckheaton, Yorkshire.

HEREFORD.—On Friday, November 2nd, at St. Nicholas' Church, 720 Cambridge Surprise Minor: W. H. Symonds 1, Rev. H. S. T. Richardson (conductor) 2, W. E. Williams 3, G. W. Taysom 4, A. W. Davis 5, C. Edwards 6. First 720 of Surprise Minor rung in the city. First extent in the method by ringers of 1st, 3rd, 4th and 5th.

YOUTHFUL PROGRESS.

Some youthful ringers in North Cheshire have recently been demonstrating their aptitude for the art by scoring their first 720's. At St. Peter's Church, Rock Ferry, on November 15th, 720 of Plain Bob Minor was rung by: Miss G. F. Storer 1, Miss M. Cooke 2, J. Gorst 3, G. R. Edwards 4, F. Banton 5, J. Cooke (conductor) 6. This was the first 720 in any method by the ringer of the treble, who is a Sunday service ringer at St. Andrew's, Lower Bebington.

On Monday, December 3rd, at Christ Church, Port Sunlight, 720 Bob Minor: Stewart Bailey 1, J. Gorst 2, W. J. Battle 3, G. R. Edwards 4, R. G. Edwards 5, J. F. Smith (conductor) 6. First 720 in any method by the ringer of the treble, who is only 12 years of age.

On Monday, December 10th, at the same church, 720 Bob Minor: W. Bailey 1, Miss M. Cooke 2, J. Gorst 3, G. Ronald Edwards 4, W. J. Battle 5, J. Cooke (conductor) 6. First 720 in any method by the ringer of the treble.

In addition to the above, five other juveniles from these two towers have rung their first 720 on the treble during the last few months, whilst four of them have also rung a 720 on an inside bell, and three have scored their first peal.

Truly a record of real progress, which we trust will be sustained in the new year, when we hope to have the pleasure of recording further advances by these promising juveniles. The principal credit for the above performances must be given to Mr. J. Cooke, the ringing instructor of the branch, who has been ably supported by Mr. G. Ronald Edwards (assistant ringing instructor), who have both given much time and patience during the year in helping these young ringers over the first difficult steps of the art of change ringing.

AMBROSDEN BELLS.

On the new bells at Ambrosden, Oxfordshire, on Sunday afternoon, December 16th, the Bicester ringers rang a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes): H. Hatfield 1, W. Scarrott 2, J. Evans 3, B. Cox 4, F. Neale (conductor) 5, A. Clifton 6, E. Hims 7, W. Farmer 8. Everyone agreed that Messrs. Taylor and Co. have made a fine job of them, the tone and 'go' being perfect.

MISCELLANEOUS PERFORMANCES.

CAERPHILLY, GLAM.—On November 14th, at St. Martin's Church, for confirmation service, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) in 50 mins.: T. Love 1, W. Pike 2, W. Heath 3, G. Poppell 4, P. Jones 5, C. Davies 6, H. R. Broughton (conductor) 7, J. Jones 8. First quarter-peal for the ringers of 1st, 6th and tenor.

MERSHAM, KENT.—On Monday evening, November 12th, in honour of the golden wedding of the Archbishop of Canterbury and Mrs. Randall Davidson, 1,056 of Bob Major in 39 mins.: W. T. Earl 1, A. C. Kay 2, P. Page 3, H. C. Castle 4, C. W. Franklin 5, C. W. Everett 6, E. S. Ruck (conductor) 7, T. Tabrett 8.

THE 18 1/2 TON RINGING BELL,
the Bourdon of the Carillon of 64 Bells, about to be installed at RIVERSIDE CHURCH, New York, U.S.A.

AN IMPORTANT SUBJECT.

It is not surprising that the issue raised by our articles on the subject of five and six bell peals should have provoked both interest and discussion. The matter is important to all ringers, especially to those large numbers whose operations are almost entirely confined to ringing Doubles and Minor. It is only natural, in debating a question of this kind that many sides of the subject should be ventilated, and it is well that even at this late day—there were three months in which it might have been done between the publication and the adoption by the Council of the definitions which are now under review—all the phases of the matter should be discussed. In the digressions which have occurred, however, there is risk of the main issue being lost sight of. What the Exercise, through the Central Council, has got to decide is whether in the 'practical conditions required for peals' it is going to ask that the six-scores of Doubles and the 720's of Minor which go to the making up of a 'peal' shall each be true in themselves; that is, that in each the bells shall strike in all the possible orders before beginning the next extent. Mr. J. W. Parker, who is one of our greatest authorities, put the matter clearly and concisely in his letter last week, and the Exercise has to choose between peals in this form and peals in which any number of changes may be repeated (to the exclusion of an equal number of others) in any 120 or 720.

The present discussion originated from our remarks concerning Mr. Leslie Morris' arrangement of Doubles, which, we hold, are excluded from peals by the terms of the resolution passed by the Council. What happens in this 'arrangement' of Doubles is, in effect, that forty changes are rung and repeated, then forty others are rung and repeated, and, lastly, the remaining forty are rung and repeated. That is a totally different thing, if Mr. Morris will permit us to say so, to Mr. Pitman's arrangement, in which the bells strike in 120 different orders before beginning the next six-score, or to the Rev. E. Bankes James' arrangement of Cambridge Surprise Minor, in which the whole 720 different orders are gone through before the next 720 is begun. The Rev. H. Drake, in our last issue, tried to draw an analogy with two consecutive peals of Triples. We are quite sure that no one would hold that a band had rung two true peals of Triples if they rang a 1680 and repeated it, rang a different 1680 and repeated it and then a third different 1680 and repeated it. Yet this is what, in principle, the Exercise is urged to do, when it is asked to recognise Mr. Morris' arrangement of Doubles.

Muffers, Ringing Mats, Matting, Flag Lines, etc., etc.

As to the definitions as they at present stand on the minute book of the Council, it is possibly arguable that they do not strictly cover either Pitman's or James' arrangements, viewed from the scientific construction of them. But the definitions with which the Council dealt at Hereford are set out under the heading of 'Practical ringing,' as distinct from the heading of 'The Science of ringing,' and are not therefore concerned with such matters as Q-sets and any niceties of distinction in the interpretation of the word 'changes.' Practical ringers look upon a 'change' as the order in which the bells strike in a particular row. Whether that view of the word is right or wrong scientifically, the ordinary man in the belfry means the actual order of the bells themselves and not the means of arriving at that order. Therefore, when he speaks of 720 changes on six bells, he means striking the bells in all the permutations possible. It is on the plain facts of practical ringing that this question, now reopened, has got to be settled, and it is for the ringers themselves to say, through their Central organisation, whether they desire that peals of Doubles and Minor shall be true in the various extents which go to make up the whole, or will be satisfied with something that would not be tolerated on higher numbers to meet the whim of any composer who happens upon some freak composition.

[The following is the first portion of a short treatise on Method Proving, a subject thoroughly understood at present by comparatively few. A close study of these articles should help many more ringers to an understanding of this advanced side of the science.]

That it is a little away from the beaten track, is the only excuse I can offer for submitting an article which is likely to appeal to a limited number of readers. In extenuation, it might be noted that it follows what I have already written on the subject in 'A Beginner's Theory,' which was published in this journal during 1927, and it may, perhaps, be of some little use to those, who, in ever-growing numbers, are interested in methods, their construction, extension and proof.

THE ORTHODOX SYSTEM.

I should like first to review the system of proving methods (for peals with 'tenors together') upon which I enlarged in the articles mentioned. It is the shortest system at present practised that I have been able to trace, except that Mr. G. Baker has explained his method of dealing with operation (b). He uses a 'proving value' row for transposition purposes, as explained in his article on 'Reciprocal Proof' of September last, which does away with the collation of the rows. It is quicker and better than the old way, if not quite so apparent, but I wish to concentrate upon this collation for a reason which will appear. The orthodox operations, briefly, are these:—

(a) The rows of the first lead are marked 'even' and 'odd.'

(b) Rows of like nature (both odd, or both even), with the treble in the same place therein, are transposed back to rounds, two false heads resulting from every pair of rows so treated. The sum is a certain number of lead-heads, which are false against the first lead-head of the plain course—rounds. (See 'Proof' of October 28th, 1927.)

(c) These false heads are then examined for coursing bells in plain coursing positions. If there is none in a head it is ignored; if any has this peculiarity, it denotes that a 'tenors-together' false head will appear somewhere within the plain course. (See 'Coursing Order' of December 9th, 1927.)

(d) The lead-head of the plain course, which has the tenors in the positions indicated by the numbers of the 'coursing pair' in the false head, is then transposed by the false head. The result is a 'tenors-together' false head, and it is false against that particular lead (of the plain course) which has the tenors in the indicated places in its head. (See 'Coursing Order' of December 9th, 1927.)

(e) Having produced all of these tenors-together false heads, we proceed to turn them into false course heads (or course 'ends'). This is done by transposing the false head by a particular plain course lead-head (see 'Proving' of November 11th, 1927), and it is based upon the fact that any plain course lead-head can be brought 'round,' or to its course 'end,' if it is transposed by a certain particular one of its fellows.

We are then equipped with a 'proof scale' of our method, for application to peals with the tenors together.

Operations (a) and (c) are absolutely necessary before we can decide if a method has any false course ends, but one is inclined to feel cheated, after having produced at least sixteen false heads from sixteen rows under operation (b), if the method turns out a 'clean proof scale,' such as Bristol, Dublin, and others; or when all of the 'sections' except one are 'clean,' as is so often the case.

It is the purpose of this article to explain how these operations may be shuffled and condensed, with a view to cutting out any unnecessary work, and the abridged system may briefly be summarised thus:—

(A) Mark the rows of the first lead even and odd. This is (a), but reduced to the half lead in certain circumstances.

(B) Collate the rows and search for coursing pairs in plain coursing positions therein, ignoring those rows where they are not. This is (c) in an easier form, because the coursing bells should 'jump to the eye.' And, provided the half-section is symmetrical, only one pair of rows need be dealt with in the whole of that section. If the half-section is asymmetrical, two pairs should be sufficient to prove whether the section has a clean proof scale.

(C) Transpose those rows, which have bells in plain course positions, 'back' to a certain row (to be determined), instead of back to rounds in the orthodox way. This is the necessary part only of (b), cutting out all 'clean' sections, and embodying (e) in the one transposition.

(D) By the resultant rows (from the above) transpose certain plain course lead-heads (to be determined), and the false course ends are the results. This is a revision of (d).

When it is recalled that all regular methods have the same lead-heads in the plain course, we shall realise that standard tables may be applied to B. C. and D.

THE RELATIONSHIP OF ROWS.

Before enlarging upon these operations, I should like to examine the construction of a Treble Bob Major method, with particular reference to the relationship of the rows one to another, and the relationship held, each to the other, by the false heads which result from two rows. Rounds will be the lead-head (row No. 1), and row No. 32 (the hand stroke of the treble's whole pull at lead) will be the lead 'end'—

If we divide a symmetrical method between rows 16-17, reverse the lower half and write them side by side, we shall find, working downwards in the halves, that the pairs changing from row to row (or, alternatively, the places made) are exactly similar. The bells which 'make places' are bracketed in the above example. This causes every row in the lower half to bear, to the lead 'end,' exactly the same relationship that is borne by the corresponding row (in the upper half) to the lead 'head.' In another way, the rows of the halves are identical, except that the bell numbers in the rows of one are replaced by the different numbers which comprise the row that heads the other half, i.e., the '4' (at 14628375) replacing the '2' (at 12345678) causes the '4' to appear in the rows of one half, wherever the '2' appears in corresponding rows of the other. And, naturally, vice versa.

Further, each row of the first half bears, to the lead-end, the same relationship as the corresponding row (of the second half) bears to the lead-head. This means that the lead-end, transposed by any row in the first half, will result in the corresponding row of the second half. And, similarly, but not quite so apparently, vice versa.

The corresponding rows of the halves being similarly related to both lead-head and lead-end, it follows that any two rows within the lead will bear, each to the other, the same relationship as the remaining pair of corresponding rows, whether two be chosen from the same half, or one from each half. In the 'straightforward' example below (rows taken from the same halves) the similarity of transposition is made apparent by the bracketed pair of bells which, change, the remainder in both pairs of rows lying still:—

Row.	First Half.	Row.	Second Half.
5.	2 5 1 7 8 3 6 4	28.	4 8 1 7 5 6 3 2
7.	(5)2 1 7 8 3 6 4	26.	(8)4 1 7 5 6 3 2

The 'cross' examples which follow (rows taken from opposite halves) will be quite clear if the bells, one above another, in the paired rows are observed, e.g., in rows 5-28 we have the '2' above the '4,' the '5' above the '8,' etc., and in rows 7-26 the same bells, still one above another, appear in different positions in the rows:—

Rows.	Rows.
5. 7. 25178364 52178364	5. 7. 25178364 52178364
28. 26. 48175632 84175632	26. 28. 84175632 48175632

Let us now agree upon what is done when we transpose 'back' to the lead-head. (For convenience, I shall use the term transpose 'back' upon occasion when properly it should be 'forward,' but it will save confusion if 'back' is standard to the operation which follows.) We take two rows of like nature, both odd, from the section with the treble in 5/6 in our London Major example, and transpose them both back to the lead-head (rounds):—

Row.	Row.
9. 5.2.7.3.1.4.8.6.	First read in the top row the separate figures of rounds, and in 'rounds order' (1-2-3-4-5-6-7 and 8), and under them, in row 22 and in the same order, we find these figures: 1-8-4-2-7-3-6-5.
22. 7.8.6.4.1.2.5.3.	Now reverse this, by reading rounds in the bottom row, and above the figures we find 1-4-6-3-8-7-5-2. Then (1) 18427365 and (2) 14638752 are the resultant false heads, when this pair of like nature rows have been transposed back to their lead-head (rounds).

Here let me define two terms which, for want of better, I shall use. The 'HIDDEN FACTOR' is the row (be it rounds, another lead-head, or lead-end) to which we transpose 'back' a pair of rows; i.e., the figures we read in row 9 ('rounds' in this particular instance) to produce the false head in row 22 (18427365). Rounds, then, is the 'Hidden Factor' when transposing 'back' rows 9-22, and, oppositely, of course, in rows 22-9. The 'RESULTANT' is the row produced by the application of the 'Hidden Factor.' The Hidden Factor (rounds here) being applied to row 22, has given 14638752 from row 9 as the 'resultant.'

Now observe the relationship existing between the two false heads. Read, in 18427365, the positions occupied therein by rounds. You will find the figures 1-2-3-4-5-6-7 and 8 in these positions: 1-4-6-3-8-7-5 and 2; and 14638752 is the formation of the other false head. Reverse the procedure and we find that, in 14638752, rounds occupy the positions of 18427365. It will be seen that, when related to the common factor of rounds, each false head produces the other. The row resulting from this observation of the positions held by rounds in another row, is what Mr. G. Baker terms the 'PROVING VALUE,' a term which I shall adopt herein. Thus, row 14638752 is the 'proving value' of row 18427365.

Now take the other pair of like nature rows with the treble in fifth's place:—

Rows. On the same lines as the example of rows 9-22, we get (3) 16724385 and (4) 14658237 as the false heads, and, again, the 'proving value' of each results in the other.

Then make a 'cross collation' (rows of opposite natures), but transpose them 'back' to the lead-end by using 1-4-6-2-8-3-7 and 5 as the Hidden Factor, instead of rounds as we did before, and the same four false heads will result:—

11. + 75321486 24. + 84761253

From the first pair we get false heads (4) 14658237 and (2) 14638752, and in the second case (3) 16724385 and (1) 18427365 are the resultants.

We have observed that heads 1-2 and 3-4 are related to each other by the positions held therein by rounds (i.e., by their proving values), but 1-3 and 2-4 also are related, in a similar but more complex way, by the positions held therein by the lead-end.

The foregoing means that all of the false heads relating to the first lead may be obtained from the rows of the first half, and without reference to the lower half of the lead other than to the lead-end row. If the pair of rows in the first half are of opposite natures (one odd and one even), transpose back with the lead-end as the Hidden Factor, as in rows 9-11 above. False heads (4) and (2) will result, and the proving value of these two heads will result in the remainder—(3) and (1).

But if the method is 'unorthodox' (I have copied the term) and produces rows of like nature, with the treble in the same place, in the first half (this is with particular reference to Major methods), the procedure is exactly reversed. The rows are transposed back with the lead-head (rounds) as the Hidden Factor, as we did with rows 9-22, and two of the necessary false heads will result. The remaining two will come from a 'proving value,' but with this difference: This 'proving value' must not be the result of reading the positions occupied by rounds (its usual form), but must come from the positions occupied, in the false heads, by the lead-end. This will not be at all apparent, a double transposition (as it were) being involved, because, in the lead-end row (14628375) the bell numbers, and the positions they occupy therein, do not coincide as they do at rounds. I shall not labour this here, as all of the foregoing is beside the actual point.

I have dealt with this subject rather fully, although it may seem irrelevant, because I wish to emphasise these points: (1) That the eight rows which comprise each section (four in each half with the treble in 1/2, 3/4, 5/8 and 7/8) are very closely related one to another. (2) That this relationship is bound on the one hand by the lead-head, and on the other by the lead-end. (3) That, within limits which will appear and which partly have to do with the symmetry of the half-sections, any one pair of rows is typical of the whole section, once we have taken into account the transposition of the bell numbers from the lead-head to lead-end.

THE ABRIDGED SYSTEM.

OPERATION A.—The rows are marked even and odd, and it will depend entirely upon the reader as to whether he uses the whole or part of the lead. In certain circumstances only the half-lead is necessary, but some may prefer to deal only with rows of like nature, thus avoiding the lead-end transpositions which are necessary when dealing with rows of opposite natures. I shall deal with examples of full lead practice (rows of like nature), the easier way, and shall briefly touch upon the other method at the end.

OPERATION B.—Collate two rows, with the treble in the same place, from each section. (If the whole lead is used the rows must be of like nature, but if the half-lead only is used they may be of like or opposite natures—according to the method.) Then search for 'coursing pairs' of bells in plain coursing positions therein.

In an article on 'Coursing Order' of December 2nd, 1927, I enlarged upon the subject of coursing pairs appearing in fixed positions in the lead-heads of the plain course. Briefly, a summary which is standard to the plain course of all regular methods is thus:—

The 'POSITIONAL PAIRS' given below (i.e., pairs of places within any plain course lead-head) will be occupied, at one or another of the lead-heads of the plain course, by the 'COURSING PAIRS' of bells which are appended. It will be observed that the actual 'positional pairs' of Block Y are also 'coursing pairs' (the right way) in the same block, and (the wrong way) in Block Z. Similarly, the 'positional pairs' of Z are also 'coursing pairs' in Z, where they are the right way, but to be 'coursing pairs' in Y they must be reversed therein.

	Block 'Y'	Block 'Z'
Positional pairs of L.H. 12345678	2/3, 3/5, 5/7, 7/8.	2/4, 4/6, 6, 8.
Coursing pairs to be found therein	23, 35, 57, 78 42, 64, 86	24, 46, 68 32, 58, 75, 87

Then, rows of like nature being transposed back to the lead-head, if any coursing pair is found to be in similar positions to any positional pair in the two rows, we have, therein, bells which will be in 'plain coursing order' in the resultants. They are traced in this way:—

Observe, in row 5, the positional pairs (first 2/3, then 3/5, etc., and finally 6/8), at the same time looking for any coursing pair (belonging to the same block) which may appear, in row 26, immediately under the positional pair being examined. The 2/3 in row 5 have, in row 26, the '86' under them. This, then, is one combination—'86 in 2/3.' The 3/5 have '64' under: another combination, '64 in 3/5.' But 5/7 have 47 under, and 47 are not a coursing pair. Then 7/8 have 75 under, but 75 should be 57 in order to be a coursing pair in the 7/8 Block (Y). The 2/4 have 82, which are not a coursing pair; 4/6 have 23, which are the wrong way for Block Z; and 6/8 have 35, which again are the wrong way for this Block.

Then, from the downward treatment of this pair of rows, we have two combinations of coursing pairs in plain course positions—'86 in 2/3, and 64 in 3/5.' The rows should now be treated in a reverse manner, i.e., positional pairs in row 26, giving coursing pairs in row 5; but when we remember that, in Blocks Y and Z, the positional and coursing pairs are interchangeable, this appears to be unnecessary. Having established that, downwards, the rows give 86 in 2/3, it is obvious that 8/6 below have 23 over; and, reversing both, we get 32 in 6/8 as a combination belonging to Block Z. Incidentally, once we have established that a coursing pair is the right way in a positional pair, and have formed a proper combination, it does not matter in the least how we write the combination itself. We may call it '23 in 6/8,' '32 in 8/6,' '23 in 8/6,' and so on, because our aim is a 'tenors-together' false head. Neither tenors nor positions can be wrong when the tenors are kept 'together,' or in 'plain coursing order'; so that, provided care is taken, in the downward treatment, to see that coursing pairs are 'right' in the positional places, and so long as the combination itself is not reversed, the actual figures of the pairs in the combination may be standardised to read all the same way.

Properly we have 86 in 2/3 and 64 in 3/5 from the downward, and (the reverse of these) 32 in 6/8 and 53 in 4/6 from the upward treatment. I prefer to read them 'all the same way' (using for my standard the positional pairs) by reversing the figures which comprise the pairs where necessary, thus: (1) 68 in 2/3; (2) 46 in 3/5; (3) 23 in 6/8; and (4) 35 in 4/6. It is easier for the later stages, and the tenors cannot be wrong, but this revision must not take place until after the downward combinations are established.

CEFN COED BELLS RESTORED.

The dedication and reopening of the bells at St. John-the-Baptist's Church, Cefn Coed, South Wales, took place on Saturday, December 15th, when the following clergy took part: Ven. H. J. Church Jones (Archdeacon of Brecon), Rev. Lewis Davies, B.A. (Vicar of Cefn Coed), Rev. W. G. Wilkinson, M.A. (diocesan missionary), and Mr. J. Gould, L.L.R., Cefn Coed. The dedication was performed by the Ven. Archdeacon of Brecon, after which ringing on the bells took place for ten minutes by the St. John's Church ringers, assisted by Mr. S. Pannell, Merthyr Parish Church.

The service was then continued, and the sermon was preached by the Archdeacon of Brecon, who took for his text 2 Chron. xxix. 27, and explained to a large congregation the objects of church bells. He said he hoped they would be the means of cheering the inhabitants of the parish of Cefn Coed in the industrial depression under which they were now suffering. The Ven. Archdeacon also spoke of the duty of bellringers as one of self-sacrifice and one of the noblest in church worship.

After the service, several visiting ringers attended. Owing to an unfortunate mistake, the service was advertised in 'The Ringing World' to commence at 3 o'clock, whereas the appointed time was 2.30 p.m., hence the visitors arrived late for the proceedings.

The incumbent (Rev. Lewis Davies) and churchwardens provided an excellent spread at the Church Hall for the visiting local ringers. The tables were in charge of Mrs. Davies and the Misses Davies, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. E. W. J. Read, Mrs. J. Gould, Mrs. J. Jenkins, Miss Mann, Miss Gough, and the caretaker (Mr. Isaac Reed) and Mrs. Reed.

The Ven. Archdeacon afterwards thanked the ladies for the good things provided, and expressed his pleasure that the kind invitation had been extended to him to perform the dedication ceremony. The bells were as nice a set as he had heard.

The Rev. Lewis Davies and Capt. J. F. Thomas, churchwarden, also spoke of the excellent work which had been done. Capt. Freeborn, representing Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, the founders who had returned and rehung the bells, acknowledged the compliments paid to his firm.

After the usual votes of thanks, the ringers returned to the belfry, and Grandsire Doubles, Stedman Doubles, Bob Minor, Kent Treble Bob Minor and Oxford Bob Minor were rung, conducted by Messrs. J. Coles (Merthyr), T. F. Raikham (Llanelli, Breconshire), W. Horsington (Abergavenny), Capt. Freeborn (Credenney), Messrs. J. H. Shepherd (Swindon), and A. Hunt (Cefn Coed).

Ringing continued till late in the evening.

HISTORY TOLD IN BELL INSCRIPTIONS BIRMINGHAM RECTOR'S BROADCAST SERMON.

The address which was given by the Rector of Birmingham (Canon Guy Rogers) at the broadcast service at St. Martin's Parish Church on the occasion of the opening of the new ring of bells, has been widely commented on, and will, we are sure, be read with interest by those of our readers who did not hear it over the ether.

'We are celebrating to-day,' said the Rector, 'the return to the tower of St. Martin's, Birmingham, the twelve bells which have been recast at the famous Whitechapel Foundry. We were very lonely without them, and we welcome them back on behalf of the City of Birmingham after the fiery trial through which they have passed. If any of you have ever seen the recasting of a bell you will agree with me about the fiery trial. The old bell, broken up with hammers into small pieces, goes into a furnace, which reminds you of the story of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, and comes out after many hours as a stream of liquid fire. Then it passes into the mould prepared for it, and after some days, when it has become rigid and cooled down, it comes out like one risen from the dead to a life of renewed usefulness and beauty. There is an inscription on the trable bell at Brixton, in the Isle of Wight, which actually records this fact, and in quaint language preaches a little sermon on it. It runs as follows:—

"In the year 1740, John Lord caused me to be fabricated in Portsmouth and placed in this tower. Sixty years I led the peal, then I was unfortunately broken. In the year 1800 I was cast in the furnace, refounded in London, and returned to my former station. Reader, thou also shalt know a resurrection: may it be unto eternal life."

'You must not think that all inscriptions on bells are as moral as this or contain as good a parable. In mediæval times, it is true, they were usually, in the strict sense of the word, religious. The form the inscription took was generally like this: "Pray for the soul of Robert Brittenham," as at Norwich Cathedral, or "Jesu, in honour of Thee, Sir John Sturmin had me made," as at Long Stratton, Norfolk. But with the Reformation, the history of inscriptions enters on a more varied, more human, and, I am afraid, a much less religious phase. There is, perhaps, more amusement than religious profit to be found, and more knowledge of human nature than knowledge of God, from these inscriptions.

'But for all that many of them are delightfully quaint, and if you have the human touch you will appreciate them. It is quite evident, for example, that beer and bellringing went very closely together, to judge from the inscription at Walsgrave, Warwickshire: "Ring tunably, and you shall have as much beer as is good for you." A certain note of vindictiveness is to be found in the inscription at Fising, Norfolk: "Cursed be all Church Robbers." Evidently, some very unpleasant experience prompted this short communion service.

'The stubborn attachment of the mass of the English people to the middle way of religion, as distinguished from Roman Catholicism and Nonconformity, comes out sometimes in most uncomplimentary, and even libellous, language, as in that inscription at Stanley St. Leonard:—

"Lord, by Thy might,
Keep us from Pope and Hypocrite."

'Horror of the Methodists, who had really saved the religious life of England in the 18th century, finds its way into more than one inscription. They were supposed to be guilty of the terrible sin of enthusiasm. An inscription at Welwyn, Hertfordshire, and at Whittlesey, Cambridgeshire, reads as follows: "Prosperity to the Church of England, and no Encouragement to Enthusiasm." Indeed, if we are to judge by some of the inscriptions on the bells, the Church of England was at a very low ebb. Not only was Methodist enthusiasm condemned, but the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ was shelved in favour of the pagan god, Apollo. Hornsey Church gives the following:—

"The Ringers' Art our graceful notes prolong; Apollo listens and approves the song."

'And to complete the sad story with a touch of humour, we can trace the growing influence of commercial values even on the bells of our Parish Church. Holbeach, Lincolnshire, begins the work in a cheery way with the following:—

"God save the Church,
The Bells in the Steeple,
Likewise all the Subscribing good people."

And Bath gives us the grand climax:—

Thank Lady Hoplon's hundred pound."

'But I must return to our own beloved bells of St. Martin's. I am glad to say that they have escaped such inscriptions as above. Neither the original peal of six, which dates back to 1629, nor the present peal of twelve, first hung in 1758, contains anything more unchristian than the names of churchwardens and quotations from the Psalms.

'The worst episode in their history that I can discover is that on a certain Sunday early in the year 1744, when Charles Wesley was preaching in the Bull Ring (and when the mob was busy throwing dirt and stones at him), the bells of St. Martin's were rung in the hope of drowning his voice. How times have changed, thank God! Now our bells ring at St. Martin's to do honour to Methodist ministers when they come to preach in our church, and on the wall of the south transept there is a memorial tablet to the first president of the Methodist Conference who succeeded John Wesley. It was transferred three years ago from another church, which was being pulled down, and placed here at the unanimous wish of the Methodists of Birmingham. So grows the Christian Spirit of Unity in our midst. 'God bless these bells of ours, which start on a new chapter in their history to-day.

'In ancient days bells were supposed to have many strange and magic properties. They were rung to drive away storms, and pestilences and evil spirits. Bishop Latimer once reminded the people of England that no general ringing of bells could drive the Devil out of England. Sometimes I wish it could.

'But if we can claim no such miraculous powers to-day for our bells, we may associate them very definitely with the presence of God in human life. They ring out their message in a brave attempt to surround all the changes and chances of human life with the peace and harmony, the faith and confidence which comes from realising the presence of God. It is only one part of their function—though a very early one—to invite people to church. No well-instructed bellringer will ever allow that his beloved church bells exist only for that. He is right, though I think sometimes he may make the mistake of thinking that in the fascinating work of ringing Bob Major or Stedman Cinques or those other methods in which he delights, he may exhaust all the possibilities of his bells. That would be wrong.

'To ring the bells as the symbol of the divine accompaniment to human life, to ring them so as to proclaim the love and sympathy of God with all the joys and sorrows of humanity, to ring them so as to let the whole world know that the Presence of God is to be found in the market place equally as in the church, to ring them so as to make men feel in their hearts a song or prayer—that is the highest, the best work of all.'

'THE WIRELESS EFFECT.'

To the Editor.

Sir,—In your issue of the 14th instant there appears a letter under the above heading, signed by Messrs. C. H. Kippen and F. E. Darby. With your permission I should like to ask these gentlemen what is meant exactly by 'nasal twang,' as it is the first time I have seen it used in connection with bells.

In my opinion there can be no true comparison drawn between two peals of bells differing so greatly in weight as York Minster bells and those at St. Martin's, Birmingham. York has a 60 cwt. tenor and other bells in proportion (consequently much greater resonance), and St. Martin's has a 35 cwt. tenor.

York Minster bells have yet to be heard to the best advantage over the 'Wireless,' as the B.B.C. have not yet found the ideal spot for placing the microphone.

Congratulations from the York Minster ringers to the St. Martin's Guild on the splendid success of their new peal.—Yours, etc.,

G. HORNER.

York Minster.

A GRAND PEAL.

Dear Sir,—It is quite obvious that some ringers have ears, and hear, others ears and cannot hear. This is apparent in a good many bellries to-day.

I would strongly advise Mr. Kippen and Mr. Darby to have ear treatment, or, better still, let them hear another wonderful peal by Messrs. Taylor and Co., Lincoln twelve, tenor 23 cwt. 3 qr. 13 lb., the finest peal for their weight in the country, and then go and hear York again.

I am sure they will appreciate the glorious tones of this grand peal without the fear of hearing any 'nasal twang.' Nasty head noises, I should imagine.—Yours faithfully,

IMP.

SUGGESTED WEDNESDAY GUILD.

At the annual meeting of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association at Newcastle in October, it was decided to try the experiment of a Wednesday meeting for those unable to get to the usual Saturday meetings, and the large attendance at Chester-le-Street on Wednesday, December 12th, shows that a real need has been met.

Members were present from Durham and Newcastle Cathedrals, Gosforth, Jesmond, North and South Shields, Houghton-le-Spring and the local tower, and the bells were kept going from 3 to 8 o'clock in Bob Minor, Grandaire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob and Oxford and Kent Treble Bob Major, and Double Norwich, all the touches being brought round.

The president of the association, Mr. E. F. Ferry, presided over an excellent tea at the Lambton Arms, supported by the Rector and the curate of Chester-le-Street, and the vice-presidents of the Northern and Western Districts. After the loyal toast, Mr. J. F. Bird proposed a vote of thanks for the use of the bells, and the Rector (Dr. F. H. Jackson) responded.

It was suggested that a Wednesday Guild of the association should be formed, and the Chairman promised to bring the matter up at the pre-Lent meeting of the association at Blaydon.

FORTY YEARS OF PEAL RINGING.

WORCESTERSHIRE VETERAN'S PERFORMANCES.

Mr. Robert G. Knowles, the well-known Worcestershire ringer, has just celebrated the fortieth anniversary of his first peal. He went to reside at Hanley Castle in 1883, and rang his first peal at the Parish Church of St. Mary on December 8th, 1888. It was Grandsire Doubles, and was the first peal on the bells, and first by all the band. During the succeeding ten years he rang only six peals, and some idea of the difficulties which had to be overcome in those days may be realised from the fact that he had no way of getting to peals of more than six bells except by walking to Worcester, ten miles away, and this was occasionally undertaken.

On returning to his native village of Madresfield, in 1899, better opportunities occurred for ringing, for there was a new peal of eight at Malvern Link and a progressive band. Having also learned to ride a bicycle, he found a better means of travel, though in those days, with a solid tyre, and on a dark night with an oil lamp (in or out), cycling was no joke. Only those who have had the experience of riding such a machine along country lanes and occasionally running into a flock of sheep, or, worse still, of having a cat mixed with the front wheel and frame, can fully appreciate the joys of cycling under such conditions. In the period from 1898 to 1908, Mr. Knowles rang only 19 peals, but though it thus took twenty years to ring twenty-five peals, he made many acquaintances and friendships which will never be forgotten. During the next ten years he made great advancement, though the last four years, being war years, he rang only five peals out of the total of thirty-six for the decade.

In the last ten years he made greater strides, thanks to the better means of travel, etc. Some of his earlier pupils had themselves become conductors, and in their turn were instructing others, many of whom Mr. Knowles has been very pleased to help through their first peal. The number of peals in the last decade was one hundred and forty-eight, making a total of two hundred and nine peals, which have all been rung in Worcestershire and the neighbouring counties.

Mr. Knowles, having a wish to ring a peal on the fortieth anniversary of his first peal, and on the same bells, arrangements were made, but through unforeseen circumstances the attempt had to be abandoned at the end of the second 720.

It is interesting to recall that a peal of Minor was rung on these bells on December 8th, 1913, this being Mr. Knowles' 50th peal, and on the 25th anniversary of his first.

The parish has two churches, each with a peal of six bells. At the same time that ringing was taking place at the Parish Church a junior band attempted a peal in seven methods at St. Gabriel's, but this came to an untimely end in the fifth 720. Afterwards the two bands met at the Swan Hotel, where a tea was provided, and good wishes were extended to Mr. Knowles for many more years of activity. The band at the Parish Church was: J. Bayliss 1, W. Halford 2, E. Gibbs 3, J. R. Newman 4, C. Camm 5, R. G. Knowles (conductor) 6. At St. Gabriel's: W. Halford 1, W. Niblett 2, F. Hawkes 3, S. T. Holt (conductor) 4, W. Lewis 5, C. Tansell 6.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

On this day 1820, Thomas Thurstans conducted the first peal of Stedman Chiques in Birmingham, 6,600, which constituted the record length in the method. At that time St. Martin's Society was in a very flourishing condition, and not only had many excellent composers among its members, but also a number of first-class ringers—as they have had almost without a break for over a hundred and fifty years.

Eighty years ago to-morrow—December 28th, 1848—the College Youths rang the first peal of Double Norwich in the county of Surrey. It was composed and conducted by John Cox, and was rung at Newington.

A peal of 12,000 of Bob Major was rung at Bromsgrove on December 28th, 1788, and on the same date in 1790 a peal of 10,080 in the same method was rung at Leeds.

New Year's Eve is the 40th anniversary of the famous record, 15,041 Stedman Caters, at Appleton, where, as most ringers know, the record was 'recaptured' in 1922 with the still 'longest ever'—21,363.

The Oxford Guild also made another record on the last day of the year, 12,096 Double Norwich Major, at Maidenhead, in 1892.

James Barham, the celebrated old Kent ringer, rang his one hundredth peal on January 1st, 1793. The total ages of the band taking part was 582 years.

The first peal of Kent Treble Bob in Lincolnshire was rung on New Year's Day, 1848.

A peal of Double Oxford Bob Royal was rung for the first time on January 2nd, 1909, at Wednesbury.

A Happy and Prosperous New Year

SUFFOLK GUILD.

To the Editor.

Sir,—'Another Suffolkian,' in his letter in to-day's 'Ringing World' states that there has not been a district meeting of the Guild at Newmarket. I attended one on May 29th, 1926, when a very few came, and ringing was, I believe, confined to St. Mary's. There was another meeting at Mildenhall the previous autumn, when a heavy storm stopped many from coming.—Yours faithfully,

R. COPEMAN.

Cambridge,
December 21st, 1928.

DEATH OF MR. GEORGE PAICE.

With sincere regret we have to record the passing of Mr. George Paice, a member of the Edmonton band; which took place on December 13th.

Deceased, who was in his 64th year, was a well-known member of the Royal Cumberland Youths, the Middlesex, Hertford and Sussex County Associations. A native of East Meon, Hampshire, where he commenced his ringing career, he moved to Crawley, in Sussex, where he soon was ringing Surprise methods under the leadership of Mr. James Parker.

At that time the company were famous for their Surprise peal performances, and included such other well-known men in their day as Fred Rice, John Rice, Fred Dench, William Ward, Bob Jordan and others. Some of this company afterwards migrated to London and Mr. Paice settled in Edmonton, where he joined the All Saints' company, with whom he rang numerous peals in various Surprise Major methods, usually at the heavy end. He was a safe ringer.

His connection with the Edmonton company extended over about 30 years. He was always punctual and regular, and he loved the old bells, the care of which he undertook, together with the office of tower secretary, for many years.

He was laid to rest on Tuesday, December 18th. The first part of the service was at Edmonton Parish Church, after which the ringers followed to Edmonton Cemetery, where, amid many manifestations of sympathy, the interment took place, within sound of the bells he loved so well.

ANOTHER PEAL OF TEN FOR LEICESTER.

DEDICATION OF TWO TREBLES AT ST. JOHN-THE-DIVINE'S CHURCH.

For fifty years the above church had only one bell, although the tower was obviously built for a complete peal. Then, in 1902, the late Mr. S. T. Bunning gave a ring of eight bells with a tenor of 21 cwt. At that time, 'Simpson tuning' was a new thing, and St. John's was a specimen ring on that principle. The fundamentals were not drowned by the harmonics, and it was, and is now, considered a model of scientific tuning.

The eight were put in to commemorate the reign of Queen Victoria and as a memorial to her late Majesty. They were opened on what should have been the Coronation Day of King Edward VII., and the first peal was rung on August 23rd following, being Lates' one-part of Stedman Triples. Many peals have been rung since, and the one desire of the steeplekeeper (Mr. W. Willson) was to make the bells into a ring of ten. He was for many years the late Mr. S. T.

CHURCH OF ST. JOHN-THE-DIVINE, LEICESTER.

Bunning's estate agent and secretary, and in memory of the original donor two trebles have now been added by the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Willson.

The iron frame has been reconstructed, and the ten are on one level. Messrs. Taylor and Co. have made a perfect match to the eight, which also came from the famous Loughborough foundry.

On Sunday, December 16th, the Lord Bishop of Leicester dedicated the new bells at the morning service, after which the ten were rung in Stedman Caters and Treble Ten.

SPLICED SURPRISE MAJOR.
FIVE METHODS RUNG IN A PEAL.

Spliced Surprise Major ringing has been carried a step further by the success of members of the Middlesex County Association in ringing a peal in five methods, the Rev. H. Law James having added Lincolnshire Surprise to London Bristol, Cambridge and Superlative. 5,184. BY REV. H. LAW JAMES.

This peal was rung for the first time at St. Mary's, Willesden, on Tuesday, December 18th, conducted by Mr. William Ewe. It was rung at the first attempt, after two practices, and is the first peal of Major to be rung in five Surprise methods. The thanks of the band are due to the Rev. H. Law James for the infinite trouble taken to arrange the composition.

A LANCASHIRE RINGER'S FLIGHT.

MANCHESTER BRANCH ORGANISING HELP.

The Manchester Branch of the Lancashire Association make an earnest appeal to the members of the Exercise on behalf of Mr. J. Lowe, of Walkden, a member of the Pendleton tower, who has been stricken with paralysis for the past fourteen months, and will not be able to work again. Mr. Lowe is a collier, but owing to shortage of employment and ill-health the savings of past years have disappeared. He has been a member of the Lancashire Association for a number of years, and always keen on the advancement of the art. It is hoped that members of the Exercise will kindly help in trying to relieve a very urgent and deserving case. All contributions will be duly acknowledged, and can be sent to Mr. W. W. Wolstonecroft, 103, Victoria Street, Ashton-under-Lyne, branch president, or to Mr. J. Hall, 22, Silver Street, Miles Platting, Manchester, branch secretary.

ST. MARTIN'S BELLS.

To the Editor.

Sir,—It was with very great pleasure I read of the account of the dedication of St. Martin's bells, which, according to reading, reflect great credit on the Whitechapel firm. I may say it was my intention to be present, but illness prevented. In the report on page 793 I note the chairman took the opportunity of informing the company of the presence among them of Messrs. F. E. Dave (a very old friend of mine) and T. Miller, who were probably the only two men living who could claim to have rung with the three old celebrities, Haley, Johnson and Cox. May I say I have had the pleasure of ringing with the three on more than one occasion, especially John Cox, who during my early career was our conductor in most peals with the Royal Cumberland Youths, of which I have been a member since January, 1871. The last time I had the pleasure of ringing with Mr. Johnson, sen., was soon after the then long peal of Stedman Cinques, 9,238 changes, in 6 hrs. 48 mins., on February 28th, 1881, conducted by Mr. W. Hallsworth, and rung on the 72nd birthday of Mr. H. Johnson, who rang the 6th, and who also composed the peal.

My brother and I were in Birmingham on holiday, and a peal of Stedman Cinques was arranged. We rang nearly halfway, when Mr. Hallsworth had to give up (he was ringing the 11th). It appears the 11th had been going rather indifferently in the latter part of the long peal, hence the sudden stop. The Birmingham ringers gave both my brother and myself a very cordial reception on that occasion. Many of them have now passed over to the other side.—Yours truly,

HENRY A. HOPKINS

The new treble is inscribed:—

'To the glory of God, and in memory of Samuel T. Bunning, the donor of the original peal, these two trebles were given by William and Ada Willson, to complete the ten, December, 1928.'

'Ring in the Christ that is to be.'

On the second bell is: 'Lord, for Thy tender mercies sake.' The new ten will be a valuable asset to the ringers of Leicester.

SAFFRON WALDEN IMPROVED PEAL. DEDICATION OF FOUR NEW TREBLES.

A large number of ringers assembled at Saffron Walden on Saturday week, when the Bishop of Colchester dedicated the four recast trebles of the peal of twelve bells. It will be remembered that the peal was augmented from eight to twelve bells in 1914.

The service, which was choral, was preceded by touches of Double Norwich and Stedman Triples. After the Bishop had dedicated the bells, the local society rang a few rounds, and, at the conclusion of the service, a short touch of Stedman Cinques, after which the bells were kept going until late in the evening. The methods rung included Stedman Cinques, Kent Treble Bob Maximus, Cambridge Royal and the Major Surprise methods.

The visitors were entertained to tea in the Parish Room, when the Vicar, Rev. L. Hughes, D.D., presided, being supported by Mr. C. H. Howard, Master of the Essex Association, Revs. F. T. Fogerty and D. Beard (curates), Messrs. P. L. Allen and H. Potter, churchwardens, T. A. Burrett, secretary, and W. H. Scott, treasurer of the Parochial Church Council, and Mr. A. E. Pitstow, Master of the Saffron Walden Society, with about 60 visitors.

The Vicar, in a short speech, congratulated the ringers on their successful efforts in raising the money for the recasting of the bells, and referred to the loss the society had sustained by the death last June of its Master, Mr. Frederick Pitstow, whose one great aim had been to see these four bells recast.

Mr. C. H. Howard said the peal was now in tune, and he thanked the ringers for their hospitality, which he had always received whenever he had visited Saffron Walden.

Mr. F. J. Pitstow, on behalf of the Saffron Walden ringers, thanked the Vicar for his support to their efforts, and also thanked Miss Gibson, who gave one bell in 1914, and has now defrayed the cost of recasting it.

The contract was placed in the hands of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of the Whitechapel Foundry, who have given great satisfaction to all, the bells being in tune and blending perfectly with the old eight.

The weights of the recast bells are: Treble, 4 cwt. 2 qr. 14 lb.; 2nd, 5 cwt. 0 qr. 16 lb.; 3rd, 5 cwt. 1 qr.; 4th, 5 cwt. 1 qr. 25 lb.

INCIDENTS FROM THEIR HISTORY.

Saffron Walden has a long ringing history. A peal of bells and a company of ringers existed at the church as long ago as 1623, when a bequest was left by a townsman named Thomas Turner for the ringers, and it has been paid annually ever since. Twice in the history of the church there have been two companies of ringers, Seniors and Juniors. The first occasion was at the period when Holt's Original was rung, as we mentioned in a paragraph in our last issue. These performances in 1753 and 1754 seem to have created some trouble, for there is no trace of another peal being rung for nearly 20 years, namely, in 1771. The second occasion was in the last century, in the early part of which there was an excellent company at the tower, for peals of Bob Major, Treble Bob and Double Norwich (1817) were rung, the last named being only the third in the method. Superlative was practised, but a peal was not rung, although a place was left on the board to record it. The first peal of Superlative in Essex was rung by the company of a generation ago.

In the church accounts there are many references to payments in connection with the bells. One of the earliest is under the date 1623-1624: 'Pd. to Wm. Parkin for worke about the Bells, and for grease for the bells xxs. vjd.'

In 1627 £viii was 'paide for casting of the bell' and viiij. iiijd. for xxij pounds of pewter to put into the bell.

In 1629 there were a number of payts to Miles Graye the bell founder, including £xv for casting the 'greate Bell'; xvs. vjd. for 'mettall for the same bell' and xvij. vjd. more to him for casting of brasses. There was also a shilling given to his man for 'fetching the waytes and carrying them back,' and another shilling to Mr. Cole the Attorney for making the covenant between the town and the bell Founder.

Apparently the 'greate bell' was either unsatisfactory or soon cracked, for in 1634 there is another entry: 'Payd to Miles Graye for the casting of our great Bell ye 23rd October, now waying but 27 ct. xx lbs. at 10/- pr ct. £13 11 00. There is ½ ct. and 15 lbs. remaining of mettall, which was left of the old bell'—evidence that the original tenor was a heavier bell.

In 1653 the 5th was recast and the rest rehung by John Hedlon.

There are records of a great many payments to the ringers for ringing on public occasions and to various publicans for 'bread and beere' for the ringers. These occasions included a visit of King Charles to Audliend to hunt, in 1635; the day the Lord Protector was proclaimed in 1658; Gunpowder Treason Day; when Parliament began to sit in 1660; when Charles II. was voted King, and when he was proclaimed; on Coronation Day (1662); for the defeats of the Dutch (1665 and 1666) and the making of peace; for the coming of King William and his crowning; when the rebels in the West were routed; 'on ye good news from Ireland' (the battle of the Boyne) and on many other occasions of public or local importance.

There are entries relating to the recasting of the tenor from 1709 to 1711 and again in 1720. Six of the back eight bells of the present twelve were cast and hung in 1792 and 1793, the 6th and 7th being recasts since that time.

A RINGERS' CHAPEL.

There is at Lincoln Cathedral, where the ring of twelve bells has recently been opened, a Ringers' Chapel. It is situate at the south-west corner of the west front. In it is a list of the members of the company from 1614 to 1725, together with those of recent date whom the Dean and Chapter have thought fit to honour by recording their names. This chapel had its own vestments and music books, and above on the southern pinnacle of the west front appears a statue of St. Hugh.

The Society of Ringers of St. Hugh of Lincoln was founded on October 18th, 1612, 'for the Ringing of St. Hugh's and Our Lady Bells,' and it was also designated 'the Companie of Ringers of our Blessed Virgin Marie of Lincoln.'

Every opportunity was given to the visitors on Saturday week to ring on the bells, and among the touches were a course of Stedman Cinques, 324 Stedman Caters, a course of Cambridge Royal, 288 Cambridge Maximus, brought round by omitting 2nd's place at the 6th lead-end, 120 Grandsire Doubles on the front five, and 60 Grandsire Doubles on 34567.

PEALS OF MINOR AND DOUBLES— WHAT DOES '720 CHANGES' MEAN?

To the Editor.

Sir,—Some weeks ago Mr. Trollope came to see me, and we discussed the Minor and Doubles question, and you kindly published a letter signed by us both concluding with a statement that the question needed further consideration. After his departure I gave the matter further consideration, and you published another letter from me, giving briefly the result of that consideration. Now 'Minor-mania' complains that I do not explain things simply enough, so I intend to meet his view very thoroughly on this question, because it is a very important matter.

Ever since the early days of change ringing, ringers have been accustomed to say that there are '720 changes on six bells.'

What does that mean? Mr. Trollope says that it means that a ringer actually makes 720 different changes when ringing the extent on six bells.

Now the statement looks at first sight as if it might mean that; but it might equally mean that a ringer strikes his bell 120 times in each place, and that the other five bells are in a different position for every one of these. Let us examine these two meanings.

On two bells we can only make one change, and this produces two changes—1-2 and 2-1. Add another bell and call it 3.

between 2 and 1,	231.

This makes six possible positions of the three bells, or, as we call them, six changes. Now add another bell, and call it 4, and we can put it into four positions with each of these six—4312, 3412, 3142, 3124—with 312, and the same with all the others.

Continue, adding 5, and we can put it into five positions in each of the 24, which makes 120, and then add another bell, call it 6, and it can be put in six positions with each of the 120, thus, 612345, 162345, 126345, 123645, 123465, 123456, etc., and that makes 720 different positions in which the six bells can strike, and if we mean that a ringer can strike his bell 120 blows in each of the six positions, and that the other five bells shall never strike in the same order each of these times, the statement that there are 720 changes on six bells is true.

Now consider the other statement, and imagine a ringer ringing the treble through 720 changes. He can change with the 2nd, the 3rd the 4th, the 5th or the 6th; that is to say, he can make five changes and no more. Every other change he makes is a repetition of one or other of these five, and if we mean that a ringer makes 720 different changes in ringing a 720, the statement is undoubtedly false.

The words '720 changes on six bells' either mean that the bells actually strike in 720 different orders, or they are nonsense.

Finally, look at Stedman:—

Is this six true and complete, or is it not?

H. LAW JAMES.

COUNCIL'S DECISIONS SHOULD BE ACCEPTED.

Dear Sir,—Referring to your articles and the correspondence in your columns upon the validity of combined six-scores and 720's upon 5 and 6 bells respectively, there is no rule laid down in the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association rules that refers to qualifications of a peal or a composition.

All peals rung for this association are accepted from the conductors as a fit performance to be inserted in the records. (The compositions have to be given with each peal, and these are proved by the experts of this association.) But to disqualify a peal of Doubles because it is 'Morris' arrangement, or a peal of Minor because it is Rev. E. B. James', is not within the scope of this association. I feel quite sure that all other association rules have no power to prevent these peals either.

Now what can be done to ensure a perfect understanding upon the matter? Other more or less important rulings of the Central Council are just as difficult, and are rendered more difficult by the following—

About 1921 the associations were asked to give the Central Council powers to enforce their rules and decisions, and 75 to 80 per cent. of the associations replied in the negative.

At Hereford the president of the Central Council made it quite clear to all members of that Council that they attended the meetings

BENJAMIN ANNABLE AND THE COLLEGE YOUTHS.

To the Editor.

Sir,—As the proud possessor of one of the newly-published histories of the Ancient Society of College Youths, I have studied it with interest. I should like to point out that there is one statement printed in it which hardly seems to be borne out by facts; or, at any rate, the statement made and the facts recorded elsewhere about Annable are hardly consistent.

The College Youths' history tells us that at St. Sepulchre's Church, Snow Hill, a peal of Plain Bob Triples was achieved by the Society on the 7th January, 1689-90, in 3½ hrs., composed and conducted by Benjamin Annable. Snowdon, in his history of the Grandsire method, tells us that Annable died on February 1st, 1756, and quotes the 'Clavis' as recording that at the time of his death Annable was between 60 and 70 years of age.

It is quite obvious that if Annable was 70 years of age at his death in 1756, he could not possibly have composed and conducted a peal of Bob Triples in 1689.

If he did call the peal in 1689 or 1690, then he must have been nearer 90 years old when he died, but as there would have been contemporaries of his alive when the 'Clavis' was published in 1788, it is hardly likely a mistake of twenty years in Annable's age would have been made.

Again, Annable, as we see from the society's own records, was Master in 1746. It is not impossible, but I imagine it is hardly likely that he would have been appointed to office at the age of 80 or thereabouts.

One is therefore almost driven to the conclusion that Annable did not call the peal in 1689-90, if, indeed, a 'peal,' as we know it today, ever was rung at that distant date. That question is never likely to be definitely cleared up now, but it ought to be possible to establish the age at which Annable died and the question, whether or not he was old enough to have taken part in what is claimed as the first peal ever rung. Will our historians help us?—Yours truly,

COLLEGIAN.

SURPRISE PEAL ATTEMPT AT BOURN, CAMBS.

On Saturday, December 1st, an attempt for a peal of Cambridge Surprise Major was made at Bourn, as a farewell to the Vicar (Rev. J. W. Joyce), who is leaving for Norfolk. After an hour and thirty-five minutes' good ringing, a trip occurred which put an end to what might have been a good peal. The band was: P. G. Gleaves 1, Miss K. Willers 2, Miss C. Fields 3, J. Ward 4, F. Harper 5, T. R. Dennis 6, F. Warrington (conductor) 7, H. Fields 8. The Vicar thanked the band for their good wishes, and hoped they would come again, and it was decided to make an attempt on December 22nd.

of the Central Council to please themselves which way they voted, and were not tied to vote in the way the respective associations had decided.

Is there no way in which we can have a common principle? Surely, ringing, with all its intricacies, necessitates a higher body to control matters which may be of a controversial nature.

The Central Council with its traditions should be the controlling body, but it appears to be hopeless to expect that we shall have definite rulings until the associations accept the Central Council's decisions as their own rules, and so, upon the other hand, should the Central Council be assisted in their deliberations by the associations' representatives voicing the associations' opinions, not the representatives' own opinion. Otherwise, why should the associations defray the expenses of their representatives attending the Central Council meetings?

I am an association official and a member of the Central Council. Can I really serve both under the above existing conditions?—Yours faithfully,

£800,000 CHURCH DESTROYED.HOME OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST CARILLON.

The great church on Riverside, New York, erected largely through the generosity of Mr. John D. Rockefeller, jun., at a cost of about £800,000, was destroyed by fire on Friday night.

This is the church that was to have contained the world's greatest carillon which was made at the Croydon Bell Foundry. It was the largest bells of this instrument, which were the object of so much interest on the occasion of the 'All England' gathering at Croydon last March, the bass bell being 18½ tons.

The carillon was to be composed of the former 55 bells made for the Park Avenue Church, with four larger and five smaller bells, making a total of 64.

The fire was one of the most spectacular ever seen in New York. Fanned by an icy wind, the flames fed upon a forest of timber scaffolding, and spread to the framework of the 400ft. tower. The woodwork, says a New York message, disappeared like matchwood, while a pillar of fire shot hundreds of feet into the air. The water froze as it was pumped on the burning building, and a hundred thousand people watched the vain efforts of the firemen to subdue the blaze. The church was reduced to a mere skeleton of twisted steel.

Apparently the carillon had not yet been installed, and so, presumably, the bells have been saved.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION.A NEW DISTRICT RINGING MASTER.

The annual general meeting of the North-Western Division of the Essex Association was held at Bishop's Stortford on Saturday, December 8th. There was a record attendance of ringers present from the towers at Bishop's Stortford, Saffron Walden, Stansted, Sawbridge, Harlow Town, Harlow Common, Cambridge, Hunsdon, Roydon, Royston, Ickleton, Barley, Melbourne, and Braintree. Touches in various standard methods were rung at St. Michael's Church, and at a special service the Vicar gave an inspiring address. In the evening a tea was held in St. Michael's Parish Hall, the catering being in the able hands of Mr. F. Glasscock. The Vicar presided, and after tea Mr. C. H. Howard (Braintree), the Master of the association, proposed a vote of thanks to him for presiding at the tea, for lending the bells, and for the excellent address he had given them. He said it was the first time the Vicar of the parish had honoured them by taking the chair. The late Vicar, the Rev. Canon H. T. Lane, similarly lent the bells and conducted the service, but owing to his advanced age he had never been able to attend the tea.

Mr. F. J. Pitstow (Saffron Walden), secretary, seconded, and the vote of thanks was unanimously accorded.

The Vicar responded, and thanked the ringers. He said he came to Bishop's Stortford a perfect stranger, but he had received a warm welcome. One of the first things he found was necessary was the rebanging and retuning of the bells. He made an appeal, and the response of the town was grand. The £400 wanted simply came in, and it was extremely encouraging. They had a strong team of ringers, twenty including young members, and next year there would be at least four lady members (applause). He looked upon them as real friends, and he thanked them for their assistance and for the attendance of so many from other places.

The business meeting followed, when the chair was taken by Mr. Howard. The first business was the appointment of a Master for the division. Mr. F. Bird (Bishop's Stortford) proposed the election of Mr. G. Dent (Harlow Common).—This was seconded by Mr. W. T. Prior and carried unanimously.

Mr. Dent, in thanking the members, said he would have preferred to see a younger man in the office, but he would do his best (applause).

The hon. secretary (Mr. Beeston) was thanked for his work during the last four years, and was again re-elected on the proposition of Mr. F. Dench, seconded by Mr. Perrin.

The Rev. W. McCarthy was proposed as an honorary member by Mr. Beeston, seconded by Mr. Wacey, and the following were elected as ringing members on the motion of Mr. F. Bird, seconded by Mr. W. Prior (Stansted), viz.: The Rev. F. W. Lane, Messrs. Marfeet, Ansell, Wacey, and Dalling.

It was decided that the next meeting of the district should be held at Rowdon. This concluded the meeting, and the visitors, including three lady ringers, again repaired to St. Michael's tower and rang touches until 9 p.m.

RUDHALL'S FOUNDRY.To the Editor.

Sir,—Ringers with an antiquarian, historical or archaeological turn of mind will be very sorry to hear that another of the fast vanishing links with the past has lately disappeared in the widening of Oxhode (provincially pronounced 'Oxbody') Lane, in the City of Gloucester. Rudhall's foundry has been pulled down. Many members of the Central Council will remember our visit to the old premises at the time of the Council meeting in Gloucester, and it is a pleasure now to think that we were enabled, through the kindness of Messrs. Badham and Co., then the owners, to view the extremely interesting remains of one of the most notable centres of campanological industry, and the birthplace of many of our finest bells.

COVENTRY BELLS.RINGING HISTORY RECALLED.

Bells and ringers have a sympathetic publicist in 'Spectator,' who weekly writes most interesting and knowledgeable notes in the 'Coventry Standard.' Years ago, 'Spectator' had a personal acquaintance with the practical side of ringing, and his early interest in the cult has brought from his pen numerous articles in praise and support of bells and bellringing.

'Anno domini,' he said in a recent issue, kept him away from the 'coming-of-age' celebration of the Warwickshire Guild at Coventry, but he would have liked to be present to tell the members of the Guild why Coventry came to be called 'the ringing town,' now, alas, now longer possible.

'I should not have gone back,' he wrote, 'hundreds of years—to the time when each of the great churches possessed chimes, so arranged to play that every hour was heralded with the harmony of bells. Nor should I have recalled that peals were rung on every conceivable occasion, day or night, at the coming of Kings and Bishops, and what not.'

'Neither would my talk have included allusions to the time, not quite so remote, when single bells were rung at Holy Trinity and Bablake Churches at five o'clock in the morning; at Bablake at half-past five; at Trinity at six o'clock; and again at Trinity at six, seven, and eight o'clock in the evening—three curfews, as it were, whereas there is now only a very irregular one.'

'I should, in fact, have gone back no further than my own time in the ringing chambers of the City.'

'Let us imagine that it is Monday before 1885, when St. Michael's bells were removed for the great restoration; since then they have never been rung in peal. First there was the six o'clock morning bell at St. Michael's, following the playing of the chimes, and accepted by all the factories and works as the clocking-in bell. "I ring at six, to let men know, When to and from their work to go."

'At nine o'clock in the morning there was a service in St. Michael's, and instead of one bell being tanged in a monotony which would be miserable if it were continued for a minute, there was always a sweet little chime. Two or three ringers would assemble and chime two or three bells each, and the little crosses they did were delightful.'

'I once saw Mr. Horsfall, the keeper of the campanile, and Mr. T. Eburne, chime the back six bells, so that—to avoid technical descriptions—they spoke in this order: 5, 8, 6, 9, 7, 10. This meant that Mr. Horsfall was moving approximately 3½ tons of metal, and Mr. Eburne nearly 2 tons. I helped Mr. Horsfall "drop in" the tenor when it declined to "come to."

'Then at nine o'clock the chimes would play the old "Whimsy Worton" air.'

'The first service at Bablake in those days was at eleven o'clock, and the call to church would be made, almost always, by the full peal, for Jerry Johnson had plenty of helpers. For the first service at Holy Trinity, at half-past eleven, old Dick Jones would scarcely ever be left alone to chime three bells; other ringers would be there, and quite often the chime would be of six.'

'At twelve and three the chimes would play again, and at a quarter-past four the call for Evensong at St. Michael's would begin, when some of Mr. Horsfall's helpers would again be there. At six o'clock, after the chimes were finished, the evening bell would be rung, for the closing down of the factories and works; and at seven the ringers would ascend the tower for the usual practice. The ten bells would be raised in beautiful order, and if there were no meeting in St. Mary's Hall the practice would go on till half-past eight. It would stop at eight if the hall were engaged. At eight o'clock the curfew would be rung from Holy Trinity campanile; at nine, after the chimes had played, the curfew would be rung at St. Michael's, and after that, except for the mechanical processes, the towers would be silent.'

'Coventry was christened the ringing town centuries ago. Down to 1885 it kept up its reputation in the way I have described, and there was no public grumbling, nor adverse criticism, in those days.'

'Because all the bell-doings were regularity itself. Between the times mentioned not a bell note was heard from either of the campaniles except for deaths or funerals; people knew what to expect and when to expect it, and, believe me, they loved the bells.'

'I do not suppose that the people of to-day would be enamoured if there were a recurrence of these things, for this is a noisy age. In any case, there is not likely to be a recurrence; all the circumstances are against it.'

The article went on to speak in high praise of the recital given on the Cathedral chime by Mr. Harry Withers. 'It was as masterly a recital as could be imagined or desired. It was full of sympathy and human expression.' 'Spectator' went on to ask whether Coventry could not have a city carillonneur, and added that the music of the bells 'is so uplifting that we should all be the better for hearing it.'

SPLICED MINOR METHODS.

On handbells at 52, Lammas Park Road, Ealing, on Thursday, December 13th, 720 Spliced Amersham Alliance and Little Bob Minor by the following: J. Arniger Trollope 1-2, Ernest C. S. Turner 3-4, Wilfred G. Wilson (conductor) 5-6.

QUAINT BELFRY RULES. KENDAL'S PAINTED VERSES.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The following rules were agreed to by the Kendal, Westmorland, ringers in 1788, and were painted on the belfry walls in the same year. For fear of losing them by decay on the damp walls they were repainted on canvas in the year 1833, but after a time the canvas also rotted and fell to pieces. To the late Mr. Thomas Jennings is due the credit of having made a careful copy of the lines in 1860. They are as follows:—

ORDERS.

Agreed on By the Society of Ringers, and subscribed to by the Church Wardens of Kendal for the Better regulation and encouragement of the Art of Ringing.

From Easter Sunday until New Mayor's Day,
At Ten the Ringers shall appear always;
11th Afternoon by Halfpast Two again.
This Rule unalter'd ever shall remain.

From New Mayor's Day Still Ten shall be the Hour
For Forenoon Service, as expressed before;
The Afternoon Service from thence must alter'd be Until the Clock commence the Hour of Three;

Whoe'er till Bells are raised is absent hence,
The Forfeit for the fault is just Fourpence;
If he neglect till service it be o'er,
For every peal he forfeit two pence more.

He who the whole day does himself absent,
Without of Two or more he gains consent,
One Shilling Forfeit he must Pay, as fee,
For th' use and service of Society.

On Parish Days the Ringers shall appear
When they the tolling of the Bells do hear;
All absentees for every peal that's past,
In Twopence fine most surely will be cast,

And 'tis agreed that on such Parish Days.
The Seventh Bells warning shall the absent raise Within one quarter of an hour, if not,
No more's allowed, and equal fine's his lot.

Whoe'er presumes a Bell to pull off here
Without consent, or does get drunk or swear,
Sixpence for each offence he sure shall stake,
Ere he his peace with us for it shall make;

Likewise he fourpence Pays besides all that,
Who here appears with either Spurs or hat,
The Youth who the Ringing Art's inclined.
Shall ever with us heartily welcome find,

If he with us the Jolly Boy revere,
Who sometimes soothes and mitigates our cares,
No Miser here with us can claim a part,
Nor be companion in our Noble art,

Which Nurtures Health, of Life the Chiefest Bliss,
With which the world compared a Banble is,
He who to Pay these Forfeits is not Free,
If yearly ringer or a Deputy,
It is resolved the fine from wages due,
Shall be deducted with exactness true,

And Furthermore, if anyone beside,
Refuse by these our orders to abide,
From out the Belfry he shall be expelled,
And as an Alien evermore be held.

The Kendal ringers also had an old jug for beer about the same year, with the following verse written on it:—

If you love me doe not lend me,
Ease me often and keep me Cleenly.
Fill me full or not at all,
If it be strong and not with small.

EDWIN JENNINGS.
