NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Eastern Branch of the Norwich Diocesan Association was held at Great Yarmouth on September 5th. Ringing started at 3.30 p.m. After tea, which was served at Johnson's Rooms, Northgate Street, a business meeting was held. The election of several members was ratified and a meeting was arranged for the last Saturday in November at Halvergate.

The Rev. R. Aubrey Aitken, Vicar of Yarmouth, presided, supported by Mr. A. L. Coleman (general secretary of the association), Mr. J. Harwood (branch secretary) and Mr. W. Lee (branch chairman). Twenty-four members attended the tea and meeting and others were present for ringing. The members were from Norwich, Great Yarmouth, Wymondham, Wroxham, Redenhall, Halvergate, Reedham and Acle. The methods rung were Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Caters and Cinques, Kent Treble Bob Major, Royal and Maximus, London, Cambridge, Superlative and Double Norwich Major.

SURREY ASSOCIATION.

A highly delightful meeting of the Southern District of the Surrey Association was held at Burstow on Saturday. About 30 ringers attended, with visitors from Capel, Beddington and Worth. The bells, raised at 3 o'clock, were kept going, with an interval for service and tea, until 9 p.m. All the standard methods for six bells were rung and some good practice put in for the less advanced members.

The Rector (the Rev. A. Hackblock) conducted the service and gave a brief address on 'Home Life,' the need of harmony and toleration therein and how very necessary it was that this kind of feeling should be found in the tower. The lesson was read by Alderman Newell.

An excellent tea was provided in the Church Room by the kindness of the Rector, who gave a very cordial welcome to the members and threw open his beautiful garden to the visitors, which was much appreciated.

INCALCULABLE SERVICE.

The passing of the Rev. A. H. F. Boughey, president of Cambridge University Guild, has taken from our midst one who has done, in a quiet, unobtrusive manner, incalculable service to the Exercise. Except during the three years that he occupied the distinguished position of president of the Central Council, to which he succeeded after the death of Sir Arthur Heywood, Mr. Boughey was seldom a conspicuous figure in the Exercise, but his influence has spread to almost every corner of it. His work was mostly done in the seclusion of his own rooms at Trinity College, Cambridge, where year after year he interested young undergraduates in the art of ringing, instructed and encouraged them in their practice. Afterwards these young men went out to become leaders in the Exercise and to hold responsible office in many of the principal ringing organisations.

Cambridge University Guild, of which he was the president from its first year, owed its very existence at times to his steadfast and persistent work, for the conditions of University life make the maintenance of the Guild no easy matter. There is, however, no organisation which has indirectly contributed so much to the advance and benefit of the Exercise and the promotion of the art. The extensive influence of the Guild is shown by the fact that it has provided three of the four presidents of the Central Council, all three librarians, and the presidents, masters or secretaries of a dozen or more associations. Many who subsequently have joined the ranks of the clergy graduated in ringing through the Guild, while others, going out from Cambridge to other spheres of life, have been among the keenest promoters of the art. All of these have come under the influence of the Rev. A. H. F. Boughey, and many of them he taught, guided and inspired.

Of Mr. Boughey's scholarly attainments, his many-sided interests in the life of the University it is not for us here to speak, but many ringers, apart from members of the University Guild who held him in affectionate regard, have enjoyed contact with his sunny personality and genial nature. He triumphed over physical infirmity. He could capture friendship with his smile. Age had laid him aside from recent participation in the pursuit he loved so well, but it failed to dim his interest. He has passed from us, full of years, but his great contribution to ringing will go down through the generations. His opportunities were, perhaps, unique, but in face of many disappointments, one less enthusiastic and determined than he might have been tempted at times to give up in despair. He has been the centre round which the University Guild has revolved for more than fifty years, and much of its success has come from his efforts. It will not be easy to find a successor to fill the gap who can bring to bear his practical attainments as a ringer or his gifts in inspiring interest in the art. FOR BEGINNERS.

MORE TRIPLES.

While the Bob Minor ringers are making up their minds to depart from the rut into which they have got, and are studying the other ways of ringing the same method, that is by reversing or doubling it, as we described last week, let us turn to something fresh for the ringers of Grandsire Triples. Not that we have not already given in this column sufficient material for those, who desire to launch out, to ring something fresh. In May and June, for instance, we explained Oxford Bob, St. Clement's and Court Bob Triples, and those articles are still available.

All these methods have another bell in the hunt with the treble and, being pure Triples methods, have place-making only in 3rd's or 5th's.

For instance, Oxford Bob, in addition to the 3rd's place which makes the Grandsire method, has 5th's place made twice in each lead, one immediately before the treble leads and the other immediately after the bell in the hunt has led. These two places are joined by a single dodge in 4-5.

Now this method can be rung in a double form, and the name is Double Oxford Bob. In addition to the places made in the single version when the treble is in front, similar places, in relation to the back, are made when the treble is behind.

Thus, after the treble has laid its whole pull behind 5th's is made (3rd's place from the back corresponding with 3rd's from the front). Further, immediately before the treble lays its whole pull behind, and immediately after the bell in the hunt has laid its whole pull behind, 3rd's place is made (5th's places from the back, corresponding with the 5th's places from the front).

A method very similar in construction is Hereward Bob. It is the same as Double Oxford, but with the omission of the 5th's place made after the treble has laid its whole pull behind.

You will probably find it easier to go from Oxford Bob, if you have learnt it, to Hereward, than to Double Oxford, because in this latter the place-making when the treble is behind compels dodging in 3-4 and 1-2, as well as in 4-5 and 6-7 when the treble is in front. We will, therefore, leave Double Oxford for the moment to those ringers who would care to make a study of it for themselves, the real purpose of introducing it here being for constructive illustration.

Let us turn to Hereward. A table of the method constructed from passing the treble may be set out in the following order:—

Pass treble

1-2	make 3rd's and lead.
4-5	three-pull dodge in 6-7 (up), lie a whole pull, make 3rd's.
3-4	make 5th's, dodge 5-4 (down), dodge 2-1 (down) and 1-2 (up).
2-3	dodge 4-5 (up), make 5th's and 3rd's.
5-6	three pull dodge in 7-6 (down), dodge 2-1 (down).

You will probably see the method better if you will write out the full course of five leads and make a diagram by drawing a line from top to bottom through the path of one of the working bells.

A bob in Hereward is made as in Grandsire, by the bell in the hunt double dodging in 5-4 (down), while the bell that passes the treble in 2-3 makes 3rd's and goes into the hunt. The bell making 3rd's, after passing treble in 1-2, and the two bells dodging behind are unaffected. The bell that passes the treble in 3-4 double dodges in 4-5 up before making 5th's and 3rd's and passing the treble in 5-6.

A touch of 168 can be got by calling Middle, Before, Right (or at the 1st, 3rd and 4th leads of the course) three times. A longer touch of 378 is produced by calling M. B. R. R., three times.

MUFFLED BELLS.

A quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung at the Church of SS. Mary and Margaret, Castle Bromwich, on Tuesday, August 25th, muffled as a token of respect for the Dowager Countess of Bradford, who passed away on August 22nd, and was interred at Weston-on-the-Lizard earlier in the day: J. R. Greaves (first quarter-peal) 1, W. H. Cox 2, J. L. Stokes 3, J. Wilkinson 4, W. H. Rhodes (conductor) 5, C. Bolton 6. The band are all Sunday service ringers.

BELLS OF ST. MICHAEL'S, GLOUCESTER

CURFEW RUNG FOR NEARLY A THOUSAND YEARS.

In the tower of a Gloucester church, from which for nearly 1,000 years the curfew has been sounded and many important historical events have been proclaimed, the bells rang out joyously once more after a long silence on Sunday, September 20th.

The harmonious sounds signalled an event in the history of St. Michael's Church—the rededication, following their restoration, of the fine peal of ten bells in the embattled tower by the Archdeacon of Gloucester (Ven. A. J. Hodson). Some of the bells are over 250 years old, and most of them bear inscriptions indicative of the loyal sentiments of the citizens and of local patriotism.

For a long time it was realised that the bells needed attention, and recently the advice of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, was obtained, following which it was decided to undertake their restoration. The ten bells, the tenor of which weighs a ton, were thoroughly overhauled and the upper tier of the framework was entirely rebuilt, thus materially reducing the strain that was formerly imposed upon the ancient tower when the full peal was being swung.

The bells are of varying ages. The two oldest, Nos. 5 and 6, were cast in 1667. Next come Nos. 1, 7 and 9, cast by the famous Gloucester bellfounder, Abel Rudhall, in 1703 and 1705. No. 8 is another Rudhall product, cast in 1770. Then come the more modern bells—the tenor, 1872; Nos. 3 and 4, the Jubilee bells of 1887; and No. 2, the gift of Mayor Estcourt of Gloucester in 1898. On No. 1 is inscribed, 'Prosperity to the City of Gloucester.' No. 7 says, 'God save Queen Ann.' No. 8 wishes 'Prosperity to Gloucester and all our benefactors.'

Many parishioners and others interested attended the rededication service, which was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. E. C. Prichard). Following the singing of the hymn, 'Thy hand, O God, has guided,' prayers and the chanting of the psalm, 'O praise the Lord of Heaven,' the Archdeacon, accompanied by the Rector, curate and choir, proceeded to the belfry, where the first named, laying his hands upon one of the bell ropes, rededicated the bells to the glory of God. Prayers for the ringers and others followed, after which a short 'peal' was rung on the bells.

An address was given by the Archdeacon, who observed that Gloucester and Gloucestershire people above all others ought, in his view, to love bells and bellringing, because the city at one time supplied most of the bells which hung in the steeples of the churches in England. Most of them were familiar with the names of Purdew and Rudhall, whose bells were famed throughout the country and whose bell foundries were in the city. He believed there were something like 4,000 and 5,000 Rudhall bells hanging in different steeples in England, while it was the steeples and bells dotted all over the countryside of that county which surely gave rise to the old saying, 'As sure as God's in Gloucestershire.'

AN UNSPOILT ART.

Bellringing, proceeded the Archdeacon, was a great art as well as a great mystery. 'Indeed, it is one of the few natural arts of the countryside which still survive to-day,' he observed. 'The old country games, sports, drama, music and dancing have gone. Sentimentalists and antiquarians, I know, try to revive them and call them folk dancing and folk music—whatever that may mean—but bellringing is an art which has been handed on unaltered and unspoilt by generations of bellringers.'

Change ringing on bells was, of course, quite peculiar to the English people, for in foreign countries they were content to ring their bells by mechanical means, carillons and the like. They rejoiced to-day to think how the interest in bellringing was reviving. At St. Michael's they had one of the best peals in Gloucestershire, and the bells sent out their message for all to hear from the very heart of the city.

He had learnt from the Rector that there were originally six bells in the peal which certainly went back to the time of Edward the Confessor, but had since been recast. Three others were added as private gifts, and the tenth bell was formerly the fire bell at the old Tolsey. The bells had been rung to mark many important historical events, and the church records showed that they were sounded to mark the marriage of Philip of Spain and Queen Mary in 1554, the defeat of the Armada in 1588, the restoration of the Monarchy at the time of Charles II. in 1660, and, curiously enough, they were also rung at the Proclamation, only seven years before, of Cromwell as Protector. Another interesting fact was that the curfew had been rung from the church tower for nearly 1,000 years.

'We may learn a lot of history from the bells up and down the country,' concluded the Archdeacon, 'but it is their message I want you to think about. They call you to worship; they ring out the good news of the Gospels at the great festivals; they ring for the wedded and carry a message to the sick, while the passing bell bids us pray for the dying, at the same time assuring us of the life beyond the grave. Yes, above all the noise of the world—and it is noisy in these days—we want to keep the music of our bells.'

The service concluded with the hymn, 'When morning gilds the skies,' and the Blessing, pronounced by the Rector.

A big gathering of ringers attended the service and took part in ringing for the remainder of the afternoon; those present including the Rev. E. Banks James (who with his family were formerly identified with Gloucester), Messrs. S. Romans (Master of the

BIRMINGHAM'S OLDEST RINGER DEAD.

TAUGHT BY WILLIAM CHATTELL SIXTY YEARS AGO.

We regret to record the death of the oldest ringer in Birmingham. After a long illness, Mr. Robert James Hunt passed away at his home in Lea Bank Road, Edgbaston, on September 18th, at the age of 84 years.

Bob Hunt, as he was always familiarly called, was taught to ring 60 years ago at St. Philip's Church, now the Cathedral, by the late William Chattell. After Chattell's death he succeeded to the leadership of the company. He was an excellent ringer and conductor and had rung many peals in the four standard methods both on tower and handbells.

He rang a pair of bells to the then longest length of Stedman Caters in hand, 8,888, rung at Aston, conducted by Bernard Witchell. He was also in the first performance on handbells of Carter's odd-bob peal of Stedman Triples. Previously in 1880 he rang in a peal of 8,720 of Major double-handed.

A REMINISCENCE.

Mr. Tom Miller, another of Birmingham's veterans, who knew Bob Hunt all his ringing life, tells us an amusing incident of their early ringing days together. In 1878 the then Chief Constable of Birmingham married a daughter of Canon Balby, of St. Philip's Church. The bells were rung for the occasion, and, of course, it was 'a paid job.'

'I was one of the ringers,' says Mr. Miller, 'and we went for Holt's ten-part peal. After over an hour's ringing there was a stop. The same thing happened again, but we started once more and rang the peal in 3 hours and 16 minutes.'

'Afterwards we went to the usual meeting house, and in came John Banister. Jim Hinton, who was also in the ringing, asked Banister what he thought of the hard-earned peal. The reply from Banister was that there had been no peal rung, to which Hinton made a rough reply.'

'The matter dropped for a quarter of an hour or so, and then Hinton brought it up again, so Banister asked, "Who called the peal?" 'Bob Hunt answered, "I did." Then Banister told him that he called the bell in the seventh part of the peal only three instead of four times, before. So, after all, there was no peal got.'

The funeral service took place at the Edgbaston Old Church. Canon Blofeld conducted the service, and there was a representative gathering, including many employees, the deceased having been in business as an ironfounder (R. J. Hunt and Son, Ltd., ironfounders, Lifford Foundry). The St. Martin's Guild was represented by Messrs. E. T. Allaway, G. E. Fearn, Tom Miller, H. Withers and A. Walker. At the end of the service a course of Triples was rung in the church on handbells, and the cortege then proceeded to Perry Barr Crematorium.

DEATH OF MR. E. COTTON.

On Monday evening, September 21st, a half-muffled quarter-peal of Stedman Triples was rung as a mark of esteem and respect for the late Mr. Ernest Cotton, who for many years held the position of Ringing Master at Market Harborough Parish Church. The following members took part: C. A. Manning (conductor) 1, L. E. Rudd 2, W. Wallington 3, W. Hector 4, J. Chester 5, R. March 6, F. Wallington 7, W. Kilsby 8.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A quarterly meeting of the Swindon Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association was held at Stratton St. Margaret on Saturday, September 26th, with a rather poor attendance. The bells were kept going afternoon and evening with a break for tea and the usual business meeting, at which five new members were elected.

The places of the next three meetings were provisionally fixed as Rodbourne Cheney, Lydiard Millicent and Christ Church, Swindon.

Good practice was obtained in the standard methods.

Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, R. Daniels (Cheltenham), J. Austin (Gloucester), W. P. Pullin (Upton-on-Severn), J. Jagger (Birmingham), F. Price (Lyne Regis), who was a ringer in Gloucester when the trebles were added in 1898, and a large number of members in Gloucester and the surrounding districts.

The ringing chamber is, owing to the circumstances of the tower, on the ground floor, and the draft of rope is exceedingly long. All those who were privileged to try the bells, however, were entirely satisfied with the 'go' of the peal and the results of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston's work.

When St. Michael's bells were augmented to eight, the brothers H. Law James and E. Banks James, whose father was Rector, formed a band of young ringers, and St. Michael's Juniors (Gloucester) was founded on September 6th, 1867. Their first peal at St. Michael's was Grandsire Triples on September 15th, 1883, conducted by S. E. Romans. The society made great progress, especially after the advent of Mr. J. Austin, who came from Burton, and among their performances were the first peals of Superlative, Cambridge and London in the county, and the first peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Caters and Gloucester Surprise Major ever rung. The London and Gloucester Surprise were rung in St. Michael's tower.

DEATH OF A WOKINGHAM RINGER.

The funeral took place at All Saints' Church, Wokingham, on August 29th, of Mr. George Green, one of the local ringers. He had been a ringer at All Saints' for many years. The Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow took the service, which was preceded by touches with the bells fully muffled (tenor open at backstroke). A 504 Grandsire Triples was rung in the evening, with the bells half-muffled.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.NEWBURY BRANCH.

A meeting of the Newbury Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild was held at Kintbury on September 18th, when 25 members attended from Bucklebury, Brightwalton, Beedon, Compton, Chieveley, East Halsey, Newbury, Peasmore, Thatcham and Kintbury, and one visitor from Bramley. The service was conducted by the Vicar of Kintbury (the Rev. H. L. G. Alison), who gave an inspiring address. Miss Moorby was at the organ.

Tea was served in the Coronation Hall by Mrs. Barnett, 25 sitting down to an excellent meal. The Rev. W. Kingsley Kefford (chairman of the branch) presided at the business meeting.

The annual meeting was fixed for Newbury on Saturday, November 21st.

The Rev. H. L. G. Alison and Mrs. W. Grimshaw were elected honorary members of the Guild.

Votes of thanks were accorded with applause to the Rev. H. L. G. Alison for his address and welcome; to Miss Moorby for playing the organ, and to Mrs. Barnett for providing the tea, on the motion of the chairman.

The tower was again visited. The methods rung were Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob Minor.

A DISTRICT SECRETARY'S THREAT.ROD IN PICKLE FOR GUILDFORD MEMBERS.

The meeting of the Guildford District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild at Ockham afforded ample proof that a meeting at a five-bell tower can, when enterprise is the driving force, be made a very interesting and enjoyable event.

The Parish Church at Ockham, where hangs a light peal of five recently restored and rehung on ball bearings, was awarded its first district meeting on Saturday.

Unfortunately, the district members chose the very curious method of stopping away as a means of marking their interest in this 'red letter day.' Only six were present and only one tower (Holy Trinity) was really represented, as the other district members consisted of the Master, an unattached life member and the district secretary.

The situation was, however, saved and the proceedings very much enlivened by the attendance of youth and beauty, age and experience from Cobham, Hillingdon, Uxbridge and Aldershot.

The Rector (the Rev. W. Lorimer W. Kitching) conducted the usual service, and, after tea in the Parish Room, the Master presided at the business meeting.

One new member was elected, and it was decided to rearrange the date of the next district meeting, as the one originally fixed, namely, November 14th, clashed with the annual dinner of the Ancient Society of College Youths.

In the tower the well-known stock methods of Grandsire and Stedman were placed on the shelf, and among other efforts the party explored the mysteries of St. Simon's and New Doubles, Stedman's Slow Course, Bob Singles for the two local men present (who rang it from boards and did not recognise the method by name or the path of their bells by the time-honoured expressions), Treble Bob Singles, in which every course end was as false as the plain course itself; Stedman Singles, which has rather too many blows behind ever to find its way into even the most enlightened methods committee's collection of methods, and one very special arrangement believed to have been composed by Edna specially for the meeting and rejoicing in the name of Bedford Treble Bob Surprise Doubles.

The composer is confident that after careful research the full extent of this musical masterpiece will be produced and the practical ringing should not prove difficult to a band sufficiently expert to switch them over if rounds look like coming up in the middle.

The district secretary promises that on the presentation of his annual report he will give the district members the treat of listening to a further reference to this district meeting, and although by that time the sun will have gone down upon his wrath several times, there are not likely to be many bouquets handed out to them in respect of it.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Mr. James Bennett, who recently succeeded in ringing a peal on every date in the year, has now completed the counties of England, having rung a peal in every one, his last being Cornwall, which he visited with other ringing friends last week.

Messrs. Gillett and Johnston have been selected, in international competition, to supply a large clock and bells, with an hour bell weighing 5½ tons, for the University at Giza, near Cairo, to the order of the Egyptian Government.

The ring of five at Walgrave Church, Northants, is to be rehung in a new frame with new fittings by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

His many friends will regret to learn of a serious accident to Mr. G. Popnell, of Bedwellty, Mon. While returning home across the mountain after dark, he fell and broke a leg. It was fortunate there were others with him, or he might have been on the mountain all night. He was conveyed to a farm, where a doctor set the broken limb, and he was then taken to Tredegar Cottage Hospital, which was reached about 4 a.m. We are glad to say Mr. Popnell is progressing satisfactorily and his friends will wish him a complete and speedy recovery.

A hand met 'short' for Maximus at St. Saviour's Cathedral, Southwark, on Saturday, and had to fall back on Stedman Caters.

One frequently hears of an exchange of hats after a visit to a belfry, but at a recent Lincolnshire meeting there was an exchange of coats, which was not discovered by the 'culprit' until he was in the train on his way to Grimsby, where he was staying. He made the discovery when feeling in the pockets for his tobacco! Horror of horrors! His tobacco was not there. Neither was his wallet and money!

He dared not tell his wife, who was with him—strange that woman's eyes did not detect the strange coat—but the cat was out of the bag when he 'borrowed' a pipeful of tobacco from his host and the lady wanted to know whether he had smoked an ounce of tobacco since morning!

Three ringers missed the service ringing next day. One had no coat, one travelled from Grimsby to Bigby to restore the 'stolen' article (whose owner had been identified); the owner travelled from Bigby to Grimsby to do likewise with the garment that had been left in exchange. What a Ladd!

Mr. William H. Fussell was 75 on September 16th, and on Saturday week took part in a peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major at Haddenham, Bucks, in celebration of the event. One of the 'old brigade,' Mr. Fussell is more active than a lot of men many years his junior and he keeps steadily piling up his peals—for his health's sake. He will tell you that a peal or two a week at his age is as good as a 'daily dozen' of physical jerks to the younger generation. His 'holidays' this year have included the tour in the North and one in Cornwall last week. More power to your elbow, Bill!

The story of the successful Irish Tour is held over until next week, and we regret we have had again to postpone the appearance of Mr. G. Baker's letter on false rows in Minor methods.

TWO WONDERFUL JOBS.

BELL FOUNDERS' SUCCESSFUL WORK.

A few months ago the Lichfield Cathedral ringers were invited by the Vicar of St. Chad's, Lichfield (the Rev. Cousmaker) to ring and report on the 'go' of the four bells which had recently been rehanging in the very old frame in that tower. The ringers, who previous to the rehanging had thought it almost impossible to rehang the bells in such an ancient frame, had to report that the 'go' left nothing to be desired, and, after examining the rehanging, they declared the job little short of wonderful.

It had been found impossible to raise sufficient money to have a new frame installed, and the bells had been unringable for some time, until it was finally decided to entrust the rehanging in the old frame to Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of the Whitechapel Foundry, and hope for the best as to sufficient funds being raised.

The result was so satisfactory that the Rev. Bigott, Vicar of Longdon, a village some three miles from Lichfield, where the peal of five bells was in a worse condition than St. Chad's, and where the church suffered in a like manner from lack of funds, was persuaded by Mr. F. Cope, captain of the Cathedral ringers, to entrust the job of rehanging to the same firm, and also to 'hope for the best' with regard to the money being raised.

The result was an invitation on September 10th to Messrs. F. Cope, A. Bowler, sen. and jun., W. Cope and F. Sedgwick, of the Cathedral band, to the reopening ceremony at Longdon, which was performed by the Ven. Archdeacon Hodgson, of Lichfield.

After the ringing and inspection of the bells, the ringers declared that again a wonderful job had been made of the rehanging, and the 'go' left nothing to be desired.

The Vicar invited the ringers to partake of refreshments, and at the gathering in The Swan the ringers were thanked by the Vicar for their assistance. He stated he was pleased to announce that the money for the restoration had all been raised.

The ringers then invited a few youngsters to visit Lichfield, and arrangements were made to instal a band of ringers and teach them the art of change ringing.

THE LATE REV. A. H. F. BOUGHEY.

FIFTY-SEVEN YEARS PRESIDENT OF CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY GUILD.

As briefly recorded in our last issue, the Rev. A. H. F. Boughey, president of Cambridge University Guild, died at his home in Cambridge on Tuesday, September 22nd, at the advanced age of 87 years. By his death the Exercise has lost one of its most valued members, for his services to the art are incalculable. Many of the leading figures in the past and present generation owe the first inception of their enthusiasm for ringing to the spirit which he fostered and the instruction which he gave.

Anchitel Harry Fletcher Boughey, born on August 14th, 1849, was the third son of Lt.-Col. G. F. F. Boughey, of the 59th Regiment, who died 81 years ago. He went up in 1868 to Trinity College, Cambridge, from the once famous Kensington School, where he was the favourite pupil of two successive headmasters, W. Haig Brown and Joseph Mayor. He came out as ninth wrangler and ninth classic in 1872. A Fellowship of Trinity followed in 1874, and soon after the posts of lecturer in classics and in theology, the latter of which he retained till 1903. He was ordained in 1877 to the curacy of St. Michael's, Cambridge, under his friend and contemporary, A. J. Mason, whom he succeeded as Vicar from 1878 to 1884. He was Junior Dean of Trinity from 1884 to 1886, Tutor (in succession to J. Prior) from 1886 to 1896, and Senior Dean from 1897 to 1908. The College then presented him to the living of Great St. Mary's with St. Michael's, and there he remained till 1913. He was Rural Dean of Cambridge for four years, and examining chaplain to Dr. Handley Moule, Bishop of Durham, from 1904 till the Bishop's death.

In 1883 he married Miss K. A. Lovell; she died in 1935. Their elder son, C. L. F. Boughey, headmaster of Sherborne School from 1927 to 1933, died in 1934, and their younger son, a lieutenant in the Rifle Brigade, was lost at sea by enemy action in October, 1918. There are two daughters, Mrs. A. P. Scott and Mrs. R. M. P. Druce.

HIS WORK FOR CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY GUILD.

Mr. Boughey was a great antiquarian and an expert herald and genealogist, but readers of this journal know him best for his association with ringing; and by the members of the Cambridge University Guild he was held in deep affection. He became the first president of the Guild; his rooms on the ground floor of the Great Court of Trinity College became the members' meeting place, and there scores of undergraduates were taught change ringing.

Cambridge University Guild was formed out of the society, founded in 1879 by W. C. Pearson (now Vicar of Henley, Suffolk), known as the Clare Society. This was established on February 4th, but on February 10th its title was changed to the University Guild, and on May 31st Mr. Boughey was elected president, an office he held until his death, a period of 57 years.

For years Mr. Boughey encouraged the art among the young men who went up to the university, and, despite frequent setbacks from the constant change of residents, he continued to 'turn out' ringers who, in after years, have succeeded to many of the leading positions in the Exercise.

He set an example in handbell ringing and many notable performances have been rung by Mr. Boughey's pupils. Progress at first was slow, but on April 28th, 1890, Mr. Boughey, with the brothers E. B. and H. L. James and C. F. Wedemeyer, rang the first peal for the Guild, a peal of Bob Triples on handbells, conducted by H. Law James. It was Mr. Boughey's first peal. Less than a year later, however, with C. A. Clements on the tenors, Mr. Boughey and the brothers James scored the 'first ever' of Double Norwich on handbells. As the years progressed Mr. Boughey, of course, took part in many other performances both in and outside the University Guild, but he was more at home on handbells than church bells, for a physical infirmity made tower bell ringing a somewhat exacting ordeal for him. He was never prouder of a performance than he was of a peal of Stedman Cinques, which he rang on the bells of his own church, when Rector of Great St. Mary's, and in which his curate, the Rev. H. S. T. Richardson, also took part—the first occasion on which rector and curate had ever rung a peal of Cinques together in their own church.

For three years he was president of the Central Council, from 1918 to 1921, following upon the death of Sir Arthur Heywood.

When the jubilee of the Cambridge University Guild was celebrated in 1929, the members presented Mr. Boughey with a handsome silver rose bowl in token of their appreciation and regard. Advancing years and ill-health had prevented Mr. Boughey from taking an active part in ringing for a considerable period, but his interest in the art and particularly in the Guild never waned to the last.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon, the first part of the service being held in Trinity College Chapel. The officiating clergy were the Rev. Dr. H. F. Stewart, the Rev. B. Dennis-Jones and the Rev. P. F. Boughey (nephew). The Master of Trinity (Sir Joseph Thomson) read the lesson.

The University and the organisations connected with were represented by a distinguished company, including the Vice-Chancellor (Mr. G. H. A. Wilson, Master of Clare College), Mr. E. H. Lewis (president).

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

REVISED RULES ADOPTED.

The annual festival of Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association was held in Newcastle on Saturday. The festival service, with an address by the Rev. R. T. Hesilton, of St. Paul's, Newcastle, was held in the Cathedral, and concluded with a short service at the Ringers' War Memorial, during which five of the ringers rang a short 'touch' on handbells to the memory of their fallen comrades. There was a large attendance and the service was a very impressive one.

After an excellent dinner at the Crown Hotel, the annual meeting was held, Councillor Arthur Payne, of Gateshead, the president, being in the chair.

A very satisfactory report of the year's work was submitted by the hon. secretary, Mr. G. S. Taylor, of Sunderland, and the accounts, presented by Mr. J. W. Parker, of Sunderland, showed a very satisfactory balance of £75 3s. 1d. in hand.

The rules of the association had been carefully revised by a sub-committee, and these, with one or two alterations, were unanimously adopted.

The certificates for the greatest number of points gained for Sunday service ringing were awarded to St. Paul's, Whitley Bay, and St. Ignatius', Sunderland, and the certificates for six-bell towers to Holy Trinity, Darlington, and St. Cuthbert's, Binsfieldside.

Association meetings are to be held next year at Chester-le-Street, Hexham and Wylam; the annual meeting to be held at Durham.

Councillor Arthur Payne was re-elected president, the vice-president for the Northern District being Mr. Murray Oubridge, of Newcastle; the Southern District, Mr. S. Bryant, of Shildon; the Eastern District, Mr. R. L. Patterson, of Sunderland; the Western District, Mr. F. Sheraton, of Chester-le-Street; and the Wednesday Guild, Mr. J. E. Scott, of North Shields.

Mr. Roland Park, of Darlington, was elected secretary, and Mr. W. N. Park, also of Darlington, treasurer. The editorial secretary, Mr. C. L. Routledge, of Newcastle, and the auditor, Mr. J. F. Bird, of Newcastle, were also re-elected.

It was decided, as an experiment, to hold a meeting on a Bank Holiday, and this will probably be held on August Bank Holiday, at Sunderland.

The number of peals rung during the year was 23, 14 of which were rung by Mr. F. Bennett's touring band on their recent eight days' visit to the North—a very remarkable performance.

A vote of thanks to the Rules Revision Committee for their valuable services brought a very successful meeting to a close.

AFTER NEARLY 200 YEARS.

At Stanford-in-the-Vale, Berkshire, on Saturday, September 19th, 720 Cambridge Surprise Minor: Miss M. R. Cross 1, H. A. Edwards 2, R. G. Cross 3, F. F. Taylor (conductor) 4, the Rev. C. E. Wigg 5, A. P. Cannon 6. This is believed to be the first 720 of Minor on the bells, cast by Henry Bagley, 1738. The tenor is about 18 cwt. and the bells are a 'rough old lot.'

WORSLEY RINGERS' OUTING.

On Saturday, August 8th, the ringers of Worsley Parish Church, with their wives and friends, 30 in all, set out to tour the Wirral by motor coach. A delightful run in equally delightful weather took them via Warrington and Chester along the Dee to West Kirby. Here a halt was made, while the ringers visited the Parish Church, where the bells were set going to Stedman Triples and Bob Major. Others of the party visited the sea front. The journey was then continued to Hoylake, where an excellent tea was served. Afterwards some played bowls and others visited the seashore with the children. The return was made via the Birkenhead Road and the notable Mersey tunnel. After getting safely through and well on the way home, a halt was made while the party attended to the wants of the inner man, then off again until we had practically dropped all the party. It was getting near midnight when another enjoyable outing had come to a close.

dent) represented the Central Council, and, as senior steward, the Ancient Society of College Youths; the Rev. A. G. Blyth, Dean of Selwyn and vice-president of the Guild, the Rev. B. F. Sheppard and Mr. W. H. J. Hooton represented the Cambridge University Guild; the Rev. R. Copeman the Ely Diocesan Association; and Mr. T. R. Dennis Cambridge Youths.

Parry's anthem, 'Crossing the Bar' (Tennyson), was sung by the choir, and the hymn was 'O God, our help.' Then as the funeral procession left the college precincts for Trumpington, where the interment took place, 'Nunc Dimittis' was sung at the Great Gate.

Members of the University Guild, with members of the Cambridge Youths, afterwards rang the bells at Great St. Mary's fully muffled, ceasing in the impressive Cambridge way, by stopping one bell at a time, beginning with the treble, until the ringing ceases with the solemn tolling of the tenor. In the evening half-muffled ringing took place by Cambridge ringers.

WALTHAMSTOW RINGER'S 80th BIRTHDAY

SEVENTY YEARS' CONNECTION WITH THE BELFRY.

The name of Maynard is well known in Walthamstow, especially amongst Walthamstow ringers, and it was not surprising that the ringers at the Parish Church desired to honour the 80th birthday of Robert J. Maynard, which occurred on the 23rd September. The Saturday after this day was selected for a peal, and ten members of the St. Mary's Society, including 'Old Bob' himself, met for a peal of Stedman Caters. If Bob had felt as young as he did only four or five years ago, he would have mounted the tenor box to 'bang the drum,' at which particular job he had few equals, and none to excel him, as the late William Pyc often testified. As it was, however, he was content to ring the fifth, and he rang it well. Indeed, one of the band, a ringer with over 900 peals to his credit, said to him afterwards, 'Well done, Bob. If I live to be 80 I hope I shall ring as well as you did today.' But we anticipate.

Before starting, there were one or two preliminaries. Fred Maynard, the local captain, suggested that the peal should be rung for the Middlesex Association, as a compliment to Mr. C. T. Coles, the hon. secretary, who was a valued member of the band. This was agreed to, and Henry J. Maynard and Fred Taylor were there.

upon provisionally elected members of that association. 'Young Bob' was the conductor, and in a few minutes under 3½ hours a good peal of Stedman Caters was rung. The veteran received the congratulations of the band, some of whom afterwards drank his health. We presume the others had appointments at home which could not wait, but Bob had their good wishes just the same. Fred Taylor, the baby of the band (aged 38!) rang his first peal, and no doubt went home quickly to spread the good news.

Robert Maynard, who was born on September 23rd, 1856, started to ring at St. Mary's Church when in his tenth year. He has thus been connected with ringing in Walthamstow for almost 71 years! He became a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths in 1877; of the Essex Association at its foundation; and was a member of the Middlesex Association even before the present County Association was formed. He rang his first peal in 1880, which was conducted by his brother, Thomas Maynard, and although he has not kept a complete record of his peals, he estimates that he has rung about 200, nearly all of them at St. Mary's and St. Saviour's, Walthamstow.

On his birthday he was the recipient of many messages of congratulation, including letters from Mr. W. T. Cockerill, on behalf of the Ancient Society; Messrs. C. F. Winney, C. S. Burden, A. A. Hughes and W. D. Smith, the latter three of whom have at some time or other been members of the St. Mary's Society. Indeed, we strongly suspect that some of Bill Smith's happiest ringing days were when, with the late Fred Rumens, Bill Manning, George Grimwade, etc., he rang many a 500 Stedman Caters for morning services. Well, here's to Old Bob, and may he be spared to ring many more peals!

NEW RING OF SIX FOR HANTS.

TREBLE ADDED TO LONGPARISH BELLS.

The bells of St. Nicholas' Church, Longparish, Hants, were opened on Thursday, September 3rd, by the Bishop of Winchester after being relunged and a new treble added.

During the service a few rounds were rung by a band arranged by the Rev. F. H. S. Marle and Mr. F. J. Knapp, of the Andover Branch of the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild.

An address was given by the Bishop, who stressed the point that bells were a national as well as a spiritual emblem of Great Britain, and no other country had bells that were rung in quite the same way as in this country.

During the service a collection was made on behalf of the bell fund, as a small amount is still needed to pay off the bill, but great credit is due to the Rector (the Rev. T. Marsden) and parishioners, who have raised the whole of the money necessary for the purpose.

After the service 360 of Bob Minor was rung by J. Marlow 1, H. Wooding 2, E. Austin 3, W. Hunt 4, F. J. Knapp (conductor) 5, J. Chesterman 6. Other touches were rung by numerous ringers from the surrounding district, including the local band, who hope to make great strides in the near future.

The work of retuning the old bells and casting the treble bell was carried out by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, who have provided Longparish with a very good 'six.'

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

PRESENTATION TO MR. NOLAN GOLDEN.

A large gathering of members representing all four branches of the Norwich Diocesan Association met at Salle on Saturday, September 19th, when ringers from Aylsham, Buxton, Fakenham, Gressenhall, Halvergate, Norwich, North Walsham, Reedham, Reepham, Saxlingham, Wiveton, Wroxham, Wymondham and Yarmouth rang short touches on the bells during the afternoon and evening. Welcome visitors were Mr. and Mrs. George H. Cross, of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, London, and Miss Kitty Willers, of Trumpington, Cambs.

A short service was conducted by the Rector, Canon W. L. E. Parsons.

A business meeting followed tea at the White Horse, with the Rev. H. W. Benson in the chair, supported by Mr. N. Golden (honorary branch secretary), Mr. A. L. Coleman (general secretary and treasurer), Messrs. G. Bailey, H. F. Carter, W. Clover, W. C. Duffield and G. Mayers, members of the committee, and representatives from the towers aforesaid.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Wroxham on December 12th.

The belfry election of Charles W. Cooke, of Newton, Cambs, was ratified.

Then followed what was described by the chairman as 'most serious business.' It concerned Mr. Nolan Golden, who was recently married to Miss Iris Daly, of Checkendon, Oxon. Apparently, said the Chairman, Mr. Golden had led a wild life till 1924, when he decided to become a ringer, but he had behaved well since, having taken part in about 300 peals for the association, and having been honorary secretary of the South Norfolk Branch since 1929, and of both the North and South Norfolk Branches since 1934. There were many other things, continued the Chairman, on the dossier with which Mr. Coleman had provided him, but he would not prejudice Mr. Golden's modesty by reading them out. Indeed, the only thing they were concerned with was his marriage. Accordingly the members had subscribed for two armchairs and an album, bound in red leather and containing the names of 168 subscribers, prefaced by an illuminated address as follows:—

'From the Norwich Diocesan Association of Ringers to Mr. Nolan Golden, on the occasion of his marriage, August 5th, 1936. This album contains the names of members subscribing to the cost of the two armchairs presented with the subscribers' best wishes for his future happiness, as a mark of appreciation of his services to change ringing in the diocese.'

Mr. Golden, in reply, thanked the members for their tokens of goodwill. He was grateful for their generous appreciation of his association with ringing in the diocese and for the expression of good wishes he had received from them on his marriage.

Mr. William L. Duffield, chairman of the South Norfolk Branch, spoke of the excellent work Mr. Golden had done for the branch, and conveyed the best wishes of the branch to Mr. and Mrs. Golden for their future happiness.

Mr. John G. W. Harwood, hon. secretary of the East Norfolk Branch, expressed his appreciation of the help Mr. Golden had given to young ringers in his branch, and stressed Mr. Golden's willingness to do anything for change ringing.

Mr. A. L. Coleman, general secretary and treasurer, welcomed Mrs. Golden to the gathering. Mr. Coleman added that he was indebted to Mr. Golden for very great help, not only in the routine work of organising and conducting the business of the association, but also for bringing about a revival of interest in change ringing in the diocese.

A vote of thanks to the Rev. H. W. Benson, Vicar of Buxton, for conducting the meeting, brought the business to a close.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Northern Division was held at Gestingthorpe on Saturday week, when 24 ringers were present and spent a most enjoyable afternoon and evening. The following 11 towers were represented: Halstead, Earls Colne, Bocking, Gestingthorpe, Pebmarsh, Great Bardfield, Sible Hedingham, Wickham St. Paul's, Sudbury, Colne Engaine and Great Tey. Owing to the absence of the Vicar (the Rev. H. M. Greening), there was no service at the church, but the bells were kept going from 3 p.m. until nearly 9 o'clock with the exception of a break for tea. This was prepared at the Lion Inn by the landlord, Mr. F. Jealous, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was passed for the excellent way it was served.

The District Secretary (Mr. F. Ridgwell) apologised for the absence of the District Master, who was engaged elsewhere, and Mr. O. Snowden was invited to take the chair.

The next meeting, which would be the annual gathering for the district, was arranged to be held at Braintree on November 14th.

The Secretary said he had received a letter from their old friend, Mr. W. Keeble, who had lately been indisposed; he was pleased to say he was much better and looking forward to meeting them again.—The secretary was asked to convey the best wishes from that meeting to Mr. Keeble.

The following methods were rung during the day: Stedman Doubles, Bob Minor, Double Court, Oxford, Kent and Woodbine Treble Bob, Cambridge and London Surprise Minor.

INVERARY BELLS RUNG.

PAISLEY RINGERS TRY HIGHLAND PEAL.

For some time past there has been a peal of ten bells hung in the new tower at Inverary Church, Scotland, on the estate of the Duke of Argyll, but they have not yet been consecrated. The ringers of St. James' Church, Paisley, recently paid a visit to Inverary with the object of inspecting the tower and bells. They enjoyed a fine coach ride by lakeside and mountain.

The Duke of Argyll, who happened to be at home, heard of the visit and came to greet the ringers. He expressed a wish to have the bells rung for evening service. The ropes were, therefore, adjusted, the front eight bells raised, and 120 Grandsire Doubles rung, with 6-7-8 covering, by P. R. Forrester 1, J. Porteous 2, A. Sunter 3, A. E. Wrecks (conductor) 4, A. J. Rodger 5, J. Colville 6, A. Forrester 7, J. McGregor 8. The tenor (41½ cwt.) was afterwards pulled up to enable the Duke to hear it.

The Duke thanked the ringers for what they had done and said how pleased he was to have heard the bells rung. He stated, however, that the bells would not be dedicated until all the necessary work was completed, and that about £1,500 was still required for that purpose.

The ringers then bade adieu and thanked him for the privilege of ringing the bells, instead of having them chimed.

The return journey was then undertaken and home reached without incident, except a stoppage on the summit of 'Rest and be Thankful,' where several of the party got out to admire the valley from the top. As one of the party remarked: It is awful, yet it is grand.

THE 32 SURPRISE METHOD PEAL.

AMENDMENT OF PUBLISHED FIGURES.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—In 'The Ringing World,' August 2nd, 1935, you published the figures of the peal of Surprise Minor in 32 methods, rung at Lamberhurst on March 2nd, 1935. I have just had it pointed out to me that the figures of the second 720 are false as printed there.

Either a misprint has occurred or I made a mistake in sending the figures to you. The course beginning 64235 should read:—

— 64235 Wearmouth
35426 Lightfoot
26543 Wearmouth
43652 Lightfoot
— 26435 Netherseale

I ought to have checked the figures as soon as they appeared, and I must apologise to any who may have used the figures as printed. Lamberhurst.

A. RELFE.

WELCOME AND FAREWELL.

On Sunday evening, September 6th, prior to service at St. George's Church, Mossley, Lancs, a quarter-peal of Kent Treble Bob Major (1,280 changes) was rung as a welcome to the Vicar, the Rev. J. F. Pickles 7, J. Clayton 8.

At the Parish Church, Watford, Herts, on Sunday, September 13th, for evening service, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung as a farewell to the Vicar (the Rev. H. Earnshaw Smith, M.A.), who has been appointed to the living of All Souls', Langham Place, London. The ringers were R. Carr 1, A. W. Dix 2, F. Bullock 3, S. H. Hoare 4, W. Norris 5, E. G. Cashmore 6, R. G. Bell (conductor) 7, F. H. Crook 8.

ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD SOCIETY.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT CODSALL.

A most representative quarterly meeting of the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford was held at Codsall on Saturday, September 19th, when more than 80 members and friends assembled from Bilston, Bradley, Brewood, Cannock, Coseley, Darlaston, Rushall, Stafford, Tettenhall, Walsall, Wednesbury, West Bromwich, Willenhall, Wolverhampton, Wombourne and a good muster of the local band. Welcome visitors arrived from Coventry (representing the Warwickshire Guild), Horsehay (Shropshire Association) and Stoke (North Staffordshire Association). The bells, a new and handy ring of eight, were set going at 3 o'clock and continued till 4.45, when shortened evensong was taken by the Rev. C. H. Barker, L.Th., clerical secretary and treasurer of the society, and an inspiring address delivered by the Vicar, the Rev. M. Spinney. Prior to his address, the Vicar gave the members a warm welcome, and added that he hoped they would come again. A move was then made to the Parish Hall, where a sumptuous tea was much enjoyed. The ringing during the afternoon and evening consisted of a variety of methods to suit all comers.

This was the first time the society had paid a visit to this picturesque village, situated about five miles from Wolverhampton—hence the large number in attendance.

The old six bells have been recast and two trebles added (the latter being the gift of the Misses Moreton, in memory of their father, who had been a ringer at Codsall for 50 years), the whole being hung in a new iron frame, with all the latest fittings. The conditions for ringing, too, have been greatly improved. A new band has been formed, and progress in the art of change ringing has already made its appearance, under the leadership of Mr. A. G. Richards.

The next meeting is provisionally arranged to take place at Tipton on January 23rd.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Northern Division was held at Lindfield on Saturday, September 26th, 35 members being present from Arundel, Balcombe, Burgess Hill, Brighton (St. Peter's and the Good Shepherd), Crawley, Cuckfield, East Grinstead, Hurstpierpoint, Lower Beeding, Shoreham, Slaughterham, Turners Hill, West Grinstead, Warnham and the local band.

Ringing commenced at 3 p.m., and a service at 4.30 was conducted by the Rev. Canon Wilson, late Vicar of Cuckfield. Tea and meeting at the Bent Hotel followed, the business being of the usual routine nature. The tea was provided by the generosity of Mr. G. W. Huddart, secretary of the local band. The usual votes of thanks were accorded.

Ringing continued until 8 p.m., when the bells were lowered, methods ranging from Grandsire to Bristol Surprise.

THE BELLS OF VICTORIA CATHEDRAL.

ANOTHER VISIT OF VANCOUVER RINGERS.

Vancouver ringers paid another visit to Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria, on Sunday, September 6th. The party consisted of Messrs. G. W. Foster, A. B. Lomas, W. Sampson, T. Greenaway and A. C. Limpus. They were met in the tower by Messrs. R. J. Carrier, A. Trotman and E. W. Izard. Several touches of Grandsire were rung for both morning and evening services and afterwards a 504.

Writing to us of this visit, Mr. Limpus says: These bells are surely the finest which ever came to this Continent. It is certainly a pleasure to ring on them and travel that 85 miles over the water and return to do so. Now that the ropes have about done their stretching, they are much easier to handle. We find the bells cannot be rushed and sound much better rung somewhat wide, about the pace of those at Westminster Abbey, which I heard through the radio at the late King's funeral.

Our visit ended at Mr. Izard's residence with handbells and refreshments bringing a most enjoyable day to a close. Mrs. Izard informed us the bells were clearly heard at their house, which is five miles distant from the Cathedral.

What a pity, he adds, there are so few ringers in Victoria, but we are in hopes that those that are there, after a little more practice, will soon be able to come to Vancouver for a return visit. All of them, with the exception of Messrs. Carrier and Trotman, have not touched a rope for some 20 years or more. Mr. A. C. Melhuish, who is now staying two weeks in Vancouver, did very well on the 5th in our tower (the Cathedral of the Holy Rosary) last Wednesday, when we rang a 336 Grandsire Triples. He was not a little proud of the fact, it being his first touch for 31 years. We shall be able to give him some good practice whilst he is here.

AN EXCURSION IN SOMERSET AND DEVON.

LYME REGIS RINGERS' OUTING.

The Lyme Regis ringers explored a portion of Somerset and Devon for their annual outing on Saturday, September 5th. Starting at 7.30 a.m., the road was taken over Hembury Port to Cullompton and thence to Wiveliscombe, which was the first halt for ringing. Something in the nature of a cloudburst on the Cullompton road was an early disappointment, but it could not submerge the high spirits of the party, and for the rest of the day nothing but intermittent showers were experienced, allowing the glorious scenery of Exmoor and the Exe Valley to be thoroughly enjoyed.

At Wiveliscombe they were met by the Vicar, and a very nice 'eight,' with a 20 cwt. tenor, were soon set going to Triples. This proved to be the right place for a cup of tea and a bun. A 'proper' cup which would make three of any Lyme production and Chelsea buns which stayed coiled to the last! Thus fortified, the party rolled along to Dunster. Here a meet of the staghounds was in progress, its attraction being rather lost by not having the surroundings of the picturesque old street. For the first time in history, it was said, the meet had been transferred to the show enclosure adjoining the polo ground. Mr. Tudball piloted the ringers to the belfry and joined in some good ringing of Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Bob Major. A short ride afterwards brought them to Minehead in time for luncheon. Those who know Minehead will appreciate that the climb to the church immediately after lunch is a test of any ringer's enthusiasm. As a consequence the time table for the day suffered considerably. The first arrivals in the tower contented themselves with a course of Cambridge on the front six; later the back four were raised, Grandsire and Stedman Triples were rung and a few rounds on the ten to give the two juniors their first pull on ten bells. Mr. Thorne had everything ready here, and the visitors rejoiced in the well-furnished ringing chamber and the beautiful ringing order of the bells.

From here the run to Tiverton was leisurely, for Cutcombe hill had to be climbed, and a very winding road prohibited any speeding. After a splendid Devonshire tea, the fine toned eight (tenor 25 cwt.) at St. Peter's was heard to advantage in Grandsire and Stedman Triples. Bramford Speke, the last tower of the day, was reached about 7 p.m. Here the Rev. E. V. Cox had hoped to meet the tourists in his own tower, but a change of plans kept him away, and he was represented by Mr. Rowe. The light six (tenor 5½ cwt.) were soon rattling along in Stedman and Plain Bob, finishing up with a course of London, which, however, was a little foggy in the last half-lead. But the bells, being strangers to London, will probably like it better next time. One hour was left for shopping (at Woolworths, of course) in Exeter, and home was reached safely about 10.20 p.m.

The thanks of the party are conveyed to all the incumbents who so readily gave permission for ringing, also to those ringers who assisted with the arrangements at the various towers and gave, in every instance, such a warm welcome.

A COALBROOKDALE CELEBRATION

MR. E. WEATHERBY'S CONNECTION WITH SHROPSHIRE.

As recorded in the peal columns last week, a peal of Grandsire Caters at Coalbrookdale was rung in honour of and to celebrate Mr. Ernest Weatherby's 65th birthday. Those who read with interest the dedication and opening of the new peal of eight bells for Victoria Cathedral, British Columbia, on Sunday, July 12th, will know that Mr. Weatherby travelled 2,000 miles to take part in the celebration. Born at Market Drayton under the shadow of the church, he soon became attached to the local ringers. The ringing chamber there resembles the Old Curiosity Shop, mainly due to Mr. Ernest Weatherby and his brother William. Ernest was one of the pioneers of the old Salop Guild, established on June 8th, 1883. The first meeting was held at Lilleshall. The Guild was reconstructed in 1889, when a special meeting was held in St. Mary's belfry, Shrewsbury. Mr. Weatherby and the Market Drayton ringers were present at that meeting, and were the first to receive instruction from Mr. Gibson, of Whitechurch, who was appointed instructor of the Guild.

During the whole period Mr. Weatherby was connected with the Market Drayton ringers and the county he was most energetic and popular. One of his outstanding undertakings was to organise the peal of Grandsire Triples, rung at High Exall, Shropshire, and conducted by William Shoot on October 22nd, 1910. Mr. Weatherby left nothing to chance. Owing to a long rope draught with a ground floor pull, he paid several visits previous to the peal and fixed a rope guide. No peal had been rung at High Exall since the year 1812, when the famous Samuel Lawrence, of Shifnal, and his band rang two peals there.

It is interesting to note that old Shropshire ringing records state that a peal of Bob Minor, 720 changes, was rung on Atcham bells, Shropshire, on May 23rd, 1787. Three of Mr. Weatherby's relatives rang in this 720, which was considered a very good performance for those days. Arrangements are being made for six county ringers to visit Atcham on May 23rd, 1937, the 150th anniversary, to ring another 720 of Bob Minor, providing the bells are ringable. Mr. Weatherby has already made arrangements to give the band a ham and egg tea after the 720.

At Coalbrookdale on Saturday last he had ordered a hot supper of roast chicken, apple tart, etc., for the birthday band, and Mr. Hugh D. Gold, a very old friend of his, as a guest. The supper and social hour took place at the Coalbrookdale ringers' 'den,' well known to visiting ringers as the W.E.F. headquarters. Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bailey catered for the party in their usual wholehearted way. After supper the handbells were brought into action. Engraved on one of these is 'Music is medicine to the mind. E.W., 1936.' This and several other chromatic bells were a gift from Mr. Weatherby to the writer. The old Shropshire toast, 'All friends round the Wrekin,' was very loyally honoured, together with 'Health and prosperity to Mr. Weatherby.' A few arguments between the 5-6 and 7-8 handbell experts helped to pass a pleasant evening, and 'Time, gentlemen, please,' brought a very happy event to a close, with the usual explanation about the key to the most music in Grandsire Triples, over the prolonged handshake and 'good night.'

Mr. Weatherby, who, after leaving Market Drayton, resided in Guildford, has now been, for some years, in Los Angeles, California.

PREPARING FOR THE CORONATION.

The coronation of King Edward VIII. next year will provide a great opportunity for the use of the church bells of the land to play a part in the national rejoicing which will surround the occasion. Speaking at the annual dinner of the Surrey Association on Saturday, the President of the Central Council made this the subject of a double appeal to ringers. He urged them to seize the opportunity to get back into towers where peal ringing is at present banned for various reasons, and stressed the importance of paying special attention to the performance of good ringing. In these two things the president should be warmly backed up by all the ringing associations. His words of advice will be read in the ranks of every ringing organisation, but ought not to be left at that. Mr. Lewis speaks not merely in a private capacity, but with the authority of the holder of the principal office in the Exercise, and particularly on matters relating to ringing for national occasions his utterances have special weight. There is ample time between now and next May for ringing to be thoroughly organised for the Coronation, and it should be the duty of the various organisations to see that plans are properly laid. Unless there is a local band in active occupation of a tower, there should be no hesitation on the part of associations to make every effort to get the bells rung. Steps of this kind would probably lead in many instances to a reopening of a ring of bells.

It is, however, equally important, if this end is to be secured that such ringing as is done, shall be of a quality above reproach. Most of the objections to ringing arise from too noisy bells or bad striking. There are various means by which the former can be obviated—and should be obviated not only for the Coronation but for all time—but the latter rests upon the ringers themselves. Indifferent strikers have all the winter before them in which to improve their capabilities, while bands can make themselves more efficient as a 'team.' There is more need for team cohesion in ringing than, perhaps, in any other pursuit, and only assiduous practice will make a band as perfect in their ringing as human failings will allow. There is special reason, therefore, why activities in the belfry this winter should be conducted towards a definite end, and it is an incentive which should help to raise the quality of ringing generally. Good ringing is demanded at all times, but when our towns and villages are to be drenched with the sound of bells ringers should ensure that their performance is of the highest standard possible. There may be some who think that on an occasion of national rejoicing the more the bells are clashed and banged about the better, but nothing could be farther from the truth. Some good 'firing' may be appropriate, but it should be concerted 'firing' and not done individually, promiscuously and involuntarily, in the middle—or any other part—of what should be a well-struck touch. We hope that all Mr. Lewis had to say on this subject at Croydon will be carefully thought over and acted upon in every department of the Exercise.

FOR BEGINNERS.

GETTING THE TENORMAN INSIDE.

In trying to make a forward move this winter among all the members in the tower, there is one who must not be forgotten, although we are afraid he has, in the past, often been 'given up as a bad job.' We mean the ringer whose limitations have confined his efforts to ringing the tenor behind. A good tenorman is a valuable possession, for nothing makes for poor striking more than a tenor ringer who cannot keep a beat. But it does not follow that even a good tenorman should never ring any other bell or acquire the skill to ring changes.

Sometimes his failure to get away from the tenor is due to an obstinate belief in his own incapacity to learn change ringing. He says he cannot learn, and because he believes it, he won't try. Eventually his colleagues give up their efforts of persuasion, and the tenorman remains content with his job of 'blowing the drum.'

Where there are such cases, may we suggest another attempt to get the tenorman to take up change ringing by explaining to him that in 'covering' he has already learnt something about it? Unless he is purely a blind machine, he has learnt that he has to pull over different bells as they come up behind. If he 'covers' to Grandsire he has observed, if he has any eyes at all, that he rings a whole pull after first one bell and then another, and, unconsciously perhaps, he has learned to look for the bell he has next to follow. Then he has doubtless noticed that at intervals—when the dodges are made—he has only half-pulls alternately over two bells.

This knowledge should stand him in good stead in learning to ring one of the other bells. In striking over the bells as they come up behind, he is taking them in coursing order, exactly as if he were ringing one of the working bells, the difference being that he has two blows, instead of only one, over each.

If this is explained by the aid of figures on paper, many ringers will see how similar in ropesight change ringing is to covering in a method like Grandsire.

But assuming that at first the problem is not clear, the others in the band might go a step further to help their colleague up the ladder by ringing, say a plain course by whole pulls. Then their pupil will be doing exactly what he has done in covering. He will take each bell in the same coursing order and strike a whole pull over each, exactly as he had done when ringing behind, except that he has to pull down, or hold up a little, as he moves. A beginning could be made with Original, which would not involve place-making or dodging, and when the learner has grasped the idea there should not be much difficulty in instructing him how to do the same thing in half-pulls.

Ringing by whole pulls may not be orthodox in these days, but any device that will enable a ringer to grasp what has to be done in change ringing is justified. And whole pull ringing may also provide a bit of fun for the rest of the band just by way of a change.

THE BELLS OF BUCKFAST ABBEY.

As will be seen in the advertisement columns, there is to be a joint meeting of the Mid-Devon and South-West Branches of the Devon Guild at Buckfast Abbey on Saturday, October 17th. Those visitors intending to be present and are able to do so should be at the Abbey to take part in the ringing from 1 to 2 o'clock in order to avoid any confusion later in the afternoon. Buckfastleigh Parish Church bells are also available for the use of visitors, but visiting hands should make their own arrangements if they desire to ring elsewhere.

PENDLEBURY RINGER'S LONG SERVICE.

At Christ Church, Pendlebury, on Saturday, Sept. 19th, a half-peal of Grandsire Triples (2,520 changes) was rung in 1 hour 26 minutes by F. Sharples 1, T. Lingard (conductor) 2, F. Green 3, A. Wallwork 4, C. Seddon 5, N. Tompkins 6, A. Lomas 7, F. Jones (St. Peter's, Swinton) 8. The ringing was to commemorate the 79th birthday of the conductor, who has been a bellringer for 63 years.

Refreshments were afterwards provided and the ringers extended their good wishes to Mr. Lingard. They expressed the hope that he would live to see and ring for many similar occasions. This was the longest touch ever rung by F. Sharples, F. Green, N. Tompkins, A. Lomas and F. Jones.

RECTOR'S FIRST RING FOR 25 YEARS.

A very enjoyable monthly practice meeting was held at Beauchampton by members of the North Bucks Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild on Saturday, September 26th. The ringers were met at the church by the new Rector, the Rev. Marmaduke Warner, who was keenly interested in the ringing and surprised the local band by standing in for a few rounds. He remarked afterwards that it was 25 years since he last had a ring. During the evening a visit was made by the Rev. C. E. Wigg, Deputy Master of the Guild. About 20 ringers were present from Beauchampton, Buckingham, Cosgrove, Little Horwood, New Bradwell, Stony Stratford and Wicken. The next monthly practice was arranged to take place at Maids Morton on October 31st.

DEATH OF MR. HENRY S. ELLIS.

MEMBER OF FAMOUS BAND.

One of London's oldest ringers passed away on September 26th in the person of Mr. Henry S. Ellis, who was 78 years of age. He was a prominent member of the Ancient Society of College Youths and a past Master of the London County Association.

A native of Brighton, Mr. Ellis first became interested in ringing while working on the restoration of part of St. John's Parish Church, Croydon, where it is now intended to instal a ring of twelve bells. The opportunity to learn, however, did not come until a little later, when at the end of 1883 a band was formed at St. Stephen's, Westminster. Under the instruction of Mr. J. M. Hayes, this young company made rapid progress, and their first peal, Grandsire Triples, was scored in September, 1884.

The older readers of this journal will recollect to what prominence the St. Stephen's band rose. They became the most accomplished and enterprising company in London. They included Bob Newton, John Oxborough, John Golding, Charles Brice, Sam Andrews, Henry Ellis and his brother Arthur. Harry Pasmore, too, learnt his ringing with them. What they accomplished may be gathered from the outstanding performances in which Henry Ellis took part in the year 1901: The first non-conducted peal of London Surprise and non-conducted Cambridge. Three Surprise peals in one day with three different conductors—London at Old Windsor, Superlative at Wraybury, Cambridge at Staines.

Mr. Ellis took part in 1904 in the peal of Maximus at St. Paul's Cathedral, when Bob Newton rang the tenor single-handed, and in the peal of Superlative on the back eight at Southwark Cathedral. He rang in peals of Westminster and St. Stephen's Surprise—at a time when peals in new Surprise methods were something to talk about.

Altogether he rang over 200 peals. Apart from the two 'silent' Surprise peals, Mr. Ellis called only one, Holt's Original. He was elected Master of the London County Association in 1912, when he had been a member for 25 years. He had been a member of St. Margaret's, Westminster, band for a great many years and had rung there for more than 500 weddings. He also used to ring at Westminster Abbey, and rang there for the Coronation of King George V. and on the last occasion the old six were rung—Armistice Day, 1918.

The St. Margaret's band hoped to ring a muffled peal in memory of their old colleague, but in the absence of the Rector, permission could not be obtained.

At St. Stephen's, Rochester Row, however, 720 Boh Minor was rung with the bells half-muffled as a last token of respect on Wednesday, September 30th, by H. Kemp 1, P. Carter 2, C. Meyer 3, R. Kemp, jun. 4, T. Wyatt 5, A. D. Barker (conductor) 6, R. Kemp, sen. 8. Minor was rung after meeting short for Grandsire Triples.

Mr. Ellis' brother Arthur died last October.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT ASHBY.

The ancient and historic village of Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Leicestershire, was the place chosen for the second quarterly meeting of the Midland Counties Association on Saturday, September 26th. The old church, so picturesquely situated, was patronised by many visiting ringers, and the bells—very awkward to handle comfortably owing to long draft of rope, and not too good going—were rung to many methods with varying degrees of 'striking'.

The committee met in the Parish Room at 3.45 p.m. and carried through their usual routine and other business. On the recommendation of local committees, two old-standing members were placed on the hon. life members' list, viz., Mr. James S. Hutchby, of Loughborough, and Mr. Alfred Cullin, of Austey. At the tea which followed, between 40 and 50 members and friends sat down. It was pleasing to note a number of ringers' wives present—evidently to make sure that their spouses got home early!

The general meeting followed tea, and the president (Mr. F. Denison Taylor) was supported by the Vicar (the Rev. H. Hanford), the curate (the Rev. — Dunn), churchwarden (Col. J. German, D.S.O.), Mr. Riley, late headmaster of Appleby Grammar School, the hon. treasurer (Mr. W. E. White) and hon. secretary (Mr. Ernest Morris).

The president gave a brief review of the past quarter's work, the peals rung, etc., and said it was a delight to have the clergy, churchwarden and other distinguished friends present with them. Each of those mentioned very happily and suitably replied.

New members proposed since the last meeting, viz., six life, three ringing and three honorary, were duly elected.

Mr. J. H. Swinfield stressed the need of better support of 'The Ringing World,' and the President stated that it would be indeed a calamity if they lost their only ringing paper, and urged all present to do all they could to increase sales.

The Rev. Dunn said it would be a good idea if all theological colleges were approached and asked to take copies. This might do much to inspire 'future' clergy!

Heavy votes of thanks to the local committee for the arrangements made brought the meeting to a close.

Before leaving, the company were entertained to courses of Stedman and Grandsire Triples and Boh Major by A. Ballard, J. Pagett, E. Morris and C. Harrison. Further tower-bell ringing was indulged in until 8 p.m., when a most successful meeting terminated.

WORCESTERSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL DINNER.

Seventy-four members and visitors attended the fifth annual dinner of the Worcestershire and Districts Association, held at the Saracen's Head Hotel, Tything, Worcester, on Saturday, September 26th—a record number since the first dinner was held in the jubilee year of the association. The chair was taken by the Rev. G. W. Webb (clerical vice-president), and among those present were the Rev. W. Buchanan Dunlop (Rector of All Saints'), Messrs. J. R. Newman and R. G. Knowles (lay vice-presidents), W. Short (Master), J. D. Johnson (general hon. secretary), W. H. Johnson (treasurer), E. E. Barber and S. T. Holt (auditors), G. Camm and J. W. Heath (Branch Ringing Masters), W. B. Cartwright, J. E. Newman and G. E. Large (branch secretaries), W. Ranford (Central Committee), C. Woodberry (C.O. representative), etc. Visitors included Messrs. F. E. Haynes (Ringing Master), T. H. Reeves (hon. secretary), A. Walker, E. T. Allaway and G. E. Fearn, all of St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham; J. Austin (Gloucester), L. W. G. Morris (Leeds), George Lewis and Mrs. Lewis, of Sheffield. Apologies were received from the Lord Bishop of the Diocese (patron), the Dean of Worcester (president), the Rev. J. F. Hastings (clerical secretary) and Mr. James Hemming (Central Committee).

Mr. F. E. Haynes proposed the toast of 'Church and State.' He declared that bellringers are proud of their connection with the Church, and, as loyal citizens, are associated with both Church and State. Among other things, Mr. Haynes, in an original and provocative speech, said, in reference to a recent Lambeth Conference, he thought the Church might attend more to its own business, which was spiritual, and leave politics to statesmen.

The Rev. W. Buchanan Dunlop, replying to the toast, said the ground had been rather cut away from under his feet by Mr. Haynes' unexpectedly critical speech, and felt himself at a loss to answer the challenge immediately. He wondered what would happen if the toast 'Church and State' were proposed in Germany or Russia to-day. Bellringing was intimately connected with the State, as was shown at the Jubilee and death of King George, and would be demonstrated at the Coronation next year.

Continuing, he said that the Church and the State could do without bells, but they would feel the loss keenly. He thought of bellringers as having a great part to play in raising men's thoughts to higher things, and the highest things are spiritual. He felt sure their high mission brought the Church and State closer together.

RINGERS' STATUS IMPROVED.

The next toast was 'The Worcestershire Association,' proposed by Mr. T. H. Reeves, who remarked that the status of ringers had improved and that some 53 years ago the first rule of the association was 'To promote belfry reform.' To-day that rule came last in the three major rules, and the words, 'where it is needed,' had been inserted. Mr. Reeves recalled some of the names of those who had helped to make the association what it is to-day: Sam Spittle, W. Rock Small, John Smith, W. Micklewright, and of our own day William Short, or, as most of them called him, 'Bill' Short. Then again there was Mr. J. R. Newman, who had served faithfully for 30 years as general hon. secretary, and Mr. James Hemming, who had been Southern Branch secretary for 25 years. These men had worked hard for ringing in general and for the advancement of the Church. He was glad to say that the present secretary, Mr. J. D. Johnson, was carrying on with the good work and expressed the hope that all members would give him their loyal support and co-operation.

Continuing, Mr. Reeves said he was distressed to read recently in 'The Ringing World' a letter from a clergyman regarding false peals, and he felt sure that no one there that night would agree with what the clergyman had written, however great the disappointment might be of having rung a false peal. 'Every composition ought to be definitely proved correct before being rung,' declared Mr. Reeves, adding he knew it was a difficult matter, but thought it could be overcome. He suggested that a man composing a peal might find two other competent composers to testify to the truth of the figures.

'PAROCHIAL MIND' DEPRECATED.

Mr. J. D. Johnson (hon. secretary), in reply, said he was glad of a suggestion for a complete change of speakers this year, though he himself had still to get up and speak. He had been told that, as general secretary, it was his duty to do so and that tradition demanded it, but he would have preferred not to have done so. Mr. Johnson welcomed the presence of so many ladies. There had, he said, been much ill-advised correspondence in 'The Ringing World' about ladies in the belfry, but his opinion was that ladies had done much to refine belfries.

He went on to say that when the association was formed over 50 years ago one of its chief objects was to give local bands a diocesan outlook, and he deprecated the attitude of hands who still have the 'parochial mind.' Mr. Johnson then mentioned the Australian tour, bell restorations in many parts of the Empire and the new peal of bells recently installed in British Columbia, and said that any departure from the wider outlook was a retrogression to more than 50 years ago.

The Worcestershire Association had no illustrious name, continued Mr. Johnson, like Henry Johnson of the St. Martin's Guild, but they had men who spent most of their lives in teaching beginners methods from Grandsire Doubles upwards.

The toast, 'Kindred Associations,' was proposed by the Chairman, who said it was a great pleasure to him to hear such good speeches as had been made. He particularly liked the first speech and would very much have liked to have had a talk with Mr. Haynes to prove, among other things, that the State originated from the Church.

The Rev. G. W. Webb said they heard nowadays much about complexes, the commonest one being fear, but at gatherings like that all complexes disappeared and they got perfect harmony. It was refreshing to meet together and exchange ideas, for thought was always good for them. He said it must be a source of gratification to everyone present to see such a splendid muster, and he hoped to see them all again next year.

The Chairman ended in a humorous vein, causing merriment by saying he had some years ago rung the tenor behind to a quarter-peal in 20 minutes!

A HAPPY ATMOSPHERE.

Mr. A. Walker, who replied, said that evidently the bells did not need rehanging at the church where the chairman had rung his quarter-peal in 20 minutes, and suggested that he (the chairman) had made a mistake in the time. Whereupon the chairman, amidst laughter, admitted his mistake, his memory being at fault, and declared the quarter-peal had taken double the time he had first stated.

Continuing, Mr. Walker said it was a happy atmosphere there that night, and hoped next year to see an even larger number. He urged young ringers to support the meetings and the dinner, for it was at such places that those who thought they knew it all found out how little they really did know. On behalf of the St. Martin's Guild he extended a hearty invitation to all for the Henry Johnson Dinner next February at Birmingham.

A programme of music and songs, with the inevitable handbells, was given between the toasts. A good course of Grandsire Caters was rung by G. E. Fearn 1-2, George Lewis 3-4, F. E. Haynes 5-6, L. W. G. Morris 7-8, A. Walker 9-10. Songs were given by Messrs. W. C. Dowding, G. J. Hemming and E. C. Barber. Miss C. Heath gave a pianoforte solo, and later partnered Mr. J. Buntin in piano and accordion duets, which earned prolonged applause.

Tunes on handbells by Messrs. J. D. Johnson and G. J. Hemming with Mr. A. Walker at the piano also added to the enjoyment, while the Misses Amy and Florence Johnson, in a short duologue, had sly digs at certain members of the association, causing much fun and not a little blushing.

A very happy and memorable evening closed with community singing. Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem.

The arrangements of the programme and the dinner itself left nothing to be desired, and in the capable hands of the committee concerned one may safely say that the Worcestershire annual dinner has become an institution.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

NEW PRESIDENT ELECTED.

The annual meeting of the Lancashire Association was held at Kendal on September 26th, and, considering how far north the town is situated, an attendance of about 50 was very fair. Ambleside bells were also at the service of the members, but Bowness bells are not available on a Saturday. Service was held in the Parish Church, conducted by the Rev. Canon Lee Nicholl (Vicar), assisted by the Rev. A. Scott (Bolton). Tea was served in the Schools to representatives of 22 towers from seven branches.

The business meeting followed, the chair being taken in the unavoidable absence of the vice-president (Mr. H. Davenport) by Canon Nicholl. The committee's report was presented, as were also the balance sheet and auditors' report.

The Chairman afterwards announced that the Rev. A. Scott was the only nominee for president, and invited him to take the chair, which he did. He thanked the members for the honour.

Mr. W. H. Shuker was re-elected for two years as secretary. Five nominations were received for the vacancy on the Central Council, and in a ballot vote Mr. L. J. Williams, of Church, was elected.

The chairman and Mr. T. B. Worsley gave an account of the progress of the Canon Elsee Memorial.

Bolton was chosen for next year's annual meeting, with the name of the church left to the committee to decide.

Votes of thanks were accorded to the Vicar, the organist and local ringers for making everyone comfortable and happy.

Ringings ceased about 9 p.m., as early trains had to be caught by long distance members, some of whom could not get home before midnight even then.

VICAR'S SILVER JUBILEE.

The peal of Stedman Triples at All Saints' Church, Pontefract, on Monday, September 28th, recorded in this issue, was rung to mark the Rev. A. G. Shipley's silver jubilee as the Vicar of All Saints' Church.

The Vicar is held in high esteem in the town, and on Sunday, September 27th, the Deputy Mayor (owing to the illness of the Mayor) and members of the Corporation, parishioners and friends in large numbers attended divine service on Sunday morning.

During Mr. Shipley's 25 years of ministry in Pontefract he has always shown great interest in his bells, which he claims are one of the finest peals of eight in Yorkshire.

He has always been most willing to place the bells at the disposal of members of the association and visiting companies, and 44 peals have been rung on them during his incumbency.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Messrs. Gillett and Johnston have received the order to recast the tenor and restore the bells at Halberton Church, Devon.

A congregation of over 300 attended the dedication of the restored bells at the village of Thorncombe by the Bishop of Salisbury. The work, which included the recasting of the tenor and the tuning of the other four bells, was carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

The five bells at Paulerbury, Northants, rehung in a new frame by Messrs. Taylor and Co., were rededicated on Sunday week by the Bishop of Peterborough. A chapel in the south aisle was dedicated at the same service.

Mr. Albert W. Coles, Master of the Middlesex Association, is at present in hospital, where he has undergone a minor operation. We are glad to be able to say that he is going on well and hopes to be out in a few days.

The footnote to the report of the peal at Aston Abbots in our last issue was inaccurate. The first peal on these bells, which were augmented from five to six, Mr. H. B. Whitney, of Linslade, writes, was rung on Saturday, October 4th, 1930, and was conducted by Arthur E. Sharman, of Dunstable. The Oxford Diocesan Guild have rung a peal there in recent years.

As Walthamstow is not available for the quarterly meeting of the Royal Cumberland Youths in October, it has been arranged to visit Romford instead on the 24th. Particulars will appear in our advertisement column next week.

In the peal of Bob Major at Coddensham on September 28th, the ringer of the 5th was Arthur R. Woodard, not Claude as reported.

Many ringers are anxious to see the skill of the talented Oxhey handbell band, who have made history by ringing peals of Spliced Surprise Major. They will have an opportunity at Hillingdon on Saturday, when they will demonstrate their skill during the social in connection with the joint meeting of the Middlesex Association, Ladies' Guild and Oxford Guild.

At the baptism of the Wimborne Branch secretary's baby, Eunid Esme, at St. John's Church, Parkstone, on Sunday week, the Rev. F. L. Edwards, hon. secretary of the Salisbury Guild, was a godfather. As he was prevented from attending, a Double Norwich ringer from Poole kindly acted as his proxy.

In our article on the tour in the North, reference was made to the bells of All Saints' Church, Gosforth. The original eight bells were cast and installed by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. in 1901, and the same firm added the two trebles to make a peal of ten in 1920.

We regret that pressure on our space again makes it necessary to hold over the publication of several reports.

MORE PEALS WITHDRAWN.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the 32 Surprise methods peal referred to in your last issue, I wish to withdraw the three peals called by me at Fordingham, Market Deeping and Alford, as I used the extent referred to by Mr. Relfe in last week's issue exactly as it appeared in 'The Ringing World' of August 2nd, 1935. However, previously I called a true one for these particular six methods, but as the one in 'The Ringing World' seemed less complicated, I used it for the 32-method peals, so that anyone who has rung with me with these methods included before May 23rd, 1936, may rest assured that they are true.

H. M. DAY.

LEEDS AND DISTRICT SOCIETY.

PRESIDENT'S 'STRIKING' REQUEST.

The September meeting of the Leeds and District Society was held at Rothwell on September 26th. Owing to a wedding and a funeral, ringing was delayed until 3.50 p.m., but afterwards went in full swing in a variety of methods until 5 p.m., when tea was served in the Church Institute, over 30 members and friends, including the Vicar (the Rev. H. S. Branscombe) sitting down.

The president (Mr. W. H. Senior) occupied the chair at the business meeting, and members were present from Armley, Batley, Burley, Drighlington, Elland, Guiseley, Headingley (St. Chad's), Idle, Leeds Parish Church, Sharow, Sherburn, Shipley and the local company.

One new member, Mr. George Ward, of Rothwell, was elected.

After discussion it was agreed to hold a ringers' Communion service in place of the usual service at the annual nomination meeting in March, which will be held at Christ Church, Armley.

The President appealed to the members to attempt to obtain a better standard of striking at the monthly meetings, and reminded members that the public were unwilling listeners, and it was up to them to make the ringing fit to hear.

The usual vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar, churchwardens, local company and ladies on the motion of Mr. W. H. Senior, seconded by Mr. L. Drake.—Mr. T. W. Strangeway and Mr. H. Homer replied.

The next meeting is due to be held at Bradford Cathedral on October 31st, 1936.

The business meeting was then declared closed, when the handbells were successfully rung, while others returned to the tower for further ringing, which continued until 9 p.m.

SURREY ASSOCIATION'S DINNER.

CROYDON TO HAVE TWELVE BELLS. Opportunities of the Coronation.

Ringers and their friends, numbering nearly a hundred, gathered in Croydon on Saturday for the second annual dinner of the Surrey Association. Many of the visitors took part in ringing on the ten bells of St. Peter's Church during the afternoon before assembling round the festive board at the Greyhound Hotel, under the genial chairmanship of the Rev. J. C. Kinnear, curate at Croydon Parish Church. In the course of the proceedings 'the cat was let out of the bag' that the restoration of the bells at Croydon Parish Church is to include the installation of a new ring of twelve. The announcement did not come altogether as a surprise, but it was received, none the less, with gratification.

Among those present at the dinner were Mr. E. H. Lewis (president of the Central Council), Mr. C. F. Johnston (Croydon), Mr. and Mrs. A. Shelton (Reigate), Mr. C. H. Kippin (hon. secretary of the association) and Mrs. Kippin, Mr. E. G. Talbot (assistant hon. secretary), Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Housden (Tunbridge Wells), Mr. G. W. Steere (hon. treasurer, Royal Cumberland Youths), Mr. W. Claydon (hon. secretary, Southern District), Mr. D. Cooper (Ringing Master) and Mr. F. G. Woodiss (hon. secretary, North-Western District), Mr. J. S. Goldsmith (hon. secretary, Guildford Diocesan Guild), Mr. T. G. Bannister (Hampstead), Mrs. W. Melville (Guildford), and a representative gathering of ringers from Croydon, Ashted, Banstead, Beddington, Benhilton, Beckenham, Carshalton, Ewell, Kingston, Leatherhead, Mitcham, Redhill, Reigate, Wimbledon, etc.

After dinner, the loyal toast was honoured and Mr. Maurice Northover proposed 'The Church.' He expressed the indebtedness of ringers to the clergy for their assistance. Ringers, he said, knew that in some parishes it was difficult for the clergy to grant permission for peals, on account of the populous areas in which the churches stood, but the majority of the clergy did grant facilities as far as they were able and the ringers appreciated it. Ringers, he added, would be glad to see more of the clergy in the belfry, just as there were cases where the clergy would like to see more of the ringers in the church, although he did not think there was much to complain of in the church-going of ringers in these days.

CLERGY 'TOE THE LINE.'

The Chairman, who responded to the toast, referred to the fact that the 'Church' did not consist of the clergy alone; it was made up, he said, of all kinds of important people, including the dear old ladies of both sexes (laughter), who tried very often to rule the clergy with a rod of iron (laughter). Then there were the vergers. They had a delightful couple at St. John's Church, and he would assure them the clergy had to 'toe the line.' There were certain things which 'were not done' and other things which 'were done.' They had a delightful institution at the Parish Church of morning tea at 11 o'clock in the stokehole (laughter), but all the clergy were not invited. Before they were they had to pass a kind of test (laughter). Then there were the bellringers. In the belfry he was very far from being an important person as he tremblingly seized the rope of the treble and did his level best to get through a plain course. They knew the horrible feeling one had when one made a mistake. He was strong enough in the ordinary way, but there were times when he hardly had strength to pull; it seemed as if the bell weighed tons instead of a few hundredweight (laughter). Yes, he was a very unimportant individual at such times (laughter).

CROYDON BELLS MISSED.

Passing on to refer to the work which is being undertaken at Croydon Parish Church, the Chairman said for some time the bells had been dumb and everybody was asking when they were going to be rung again. 'It feels lonely, strangely lonely,' he said. 'Year after year we have had half an hour of bellringing on Sunday mornings and Sunday evenings, and the Tuesday night ringing. We miss them tremendously; young and old miss that wonderful call of the bells. My brother bellringers—I may call you that, although I am but a duffer at it—you don't know what a tremendous value there is in this call of the bells to the people. We at the Parish Church of Croydon,' he continued, 'value the work of the ringers, and I only hope that the happy relationship between the clergy and ringers at our church may be the same between clergy and ringers throughout the land' (applause).

They were looking forward, continued the speaker, to having their twelve bells soon (applause). He hoped, and he thought Mr. Johnston was going to see, that they had the best peal of twelve in the South of England, and, indeed, in the whole country. They had a band, or pretty nearly a band, that would be able to ring them, and they would welcome visitors to their belfry on Sundays and practice nights. They wanted ringers to feel that Croydon bells and belfry were free to them. They wanted them to bring their knowledge and gifts to help the men in their own tower. It was not always easy to get twelve men together, but none of them wanted to see those top four bells dumb too much. So there would be a warm welcome for visitors (applause).

OVERLAPPING DIFFICULTIES.

Mr. Lewis proposed 'The Surrey Association,' and referred to the overlapping of ringing organisations which exists in and around Surrey. As a member of the Kent County Association, he was asked to meet representatives of the Surrey Association on this subject some time ago. Surrey wanted to get the whole of the diocese of Southwark, which went into a little bit of Kent. As a member of the Kent Association he had to say that his association wanted to stick to the county of Kent. He did not know what had happened finally about the Surrey territory. There were difficulties in this question of territory, but he did not think they were serious as long as the officials of the different associations worked together in a friendly spirit. The reason he mentioned this was that at the present time practically every association in the country was affiliated to the Central Council, and, therefore, instead of having entirely independent associations, they were more or less branches of one great body of change ringers. If the various associations would bear that in mind and, when there was any difficulty of overlapping, meet in a friendly spirit with the intention of not being too parochial, but doing what was best for the ringing Exercise as a whole, he was certain there would be no difficulties and he could foresee in a few years' time, if they wished to get diocesan status, that they would be able to do so, and possibly as far as Kent was concerned they would not be so 'pig-headed' as they were a year or two ago (laughter).

CORONATION RINGING.

To-morrow morning, continued Mr. Lewis, we shall have another hour in bed. It has something to do with ringing, for it means that to-morrow night and on succeeding evenings it will be dark an hour earlier, and it should be much easier to get ringers, in country places at any rate, into the tower for practice. There is a very special reason why we should make an effort this winter to make our practices as successful as possible and practise as diligently as possible, for next year should be one of the greatest ringing years we have ever had. At the Jubilee of King George there was a wonderful response by ringers to the general feeling of the public in the desire to express their love and veneration for our late King. Again, when we lost King George, the ringers, in a wonderful manner all through the country, expressed the deep feelings of the public on that occasion. Next year we are looking forward to the Coronation of our new King and there will be another great opportunity of ringers expressing the feelings of the public. I trust they will do it in no less manner, indeed in a greater manner, than at the Jubilee. In that connection I want to make a suggestion. I do not know whether in your district you suffer from having towers closed for peal ringing. I think very likely you do. One can understand towers being closed for peal ringing. Sometimes it happens because ringers themselves act a little unwisely; or it may be that the bells are too noisy outside the tower and want modification, although that is a matter that can be fairly easily put right. But next year there will be a great chance for getting into towers where bellringing has been stopped, because it would be very difficult for anybody to object to the bells being rung on Coronation Day. All ringers should make a special effort to see that the bells are rung on that occasion at those towers where it has been difficult in the past either to ring at all or to get permission for peal ringing. I do not say they should necessarily try to ring a peal in every tower—you must look at each case on its merits—but it is the opportunity for getting back some of the ringing that has been lost. But having got in for that day, you must keep in, and, if you want to keep in, you must be very careful that ringing on Coronation Day is of the very best quality you can possibly get. I should like to take the opportunity of expressing the hope that ringers will not make it the occasion for practice, but that they will make it the occasion for performance, and that they only perform what they can perform well. In other words, they should not try and ring a method they do not really know on the chance of getting a peal, but be content to ring a method they know and can strike, and thus make certain the quality of the ringing on that day is the very best possible (hear, hear). If you want to keep the towers you get and do away with complaints, concluded Mr. Lewis, be sure of two things: Be sure that the sound outside is not unduly loud: take a little trouble to block up the windows, which does not cost very much. The other and even more important thing is to try and keep up a standard of perfectly accurate striking and rhythm (applause).

SURREY'S UPS AND DOWNS.

Mr. C. F. Johnston, who replied to the toast, said the Surrey Association was among those elect societies that held an annual dinner, and they were glad to have the support of the leading lights of other associations who were good enough to come there. They would all endorse what Mr. Lewis had said about the efforts that should be made to secure proper ringing on Coronation Day and to get those towers once more into their grip that had slipped out in recent times. In the Surrey Association they had had their ups and downs. As one of the very old members of the association, he could tell them stories of 30 years ago, of the days of Dr. Carpenter and Edgar Bennett and Bill Smith, and other people famous for composing, conducting and ringing, and rising stars like Charlie Jackson, who rose in the firmament. Ringing was at a high state in Surrey then, but afterwards it fell away. But since the war, things had looked up again, and he made bold to say ringing had never been on a higher plane in Surrey than it was to-day. They had a lot of keen young enthusiasts who were ringing methods which would have made the hair of the old fellows of a generation ago stand on end (laughter). Continuing, Mr. Johnston said that owing to diocesan geography the territory of the Surrey Association had been invaded, but it had been an invasion by friendly neighbours, and, he thought, it had been all (Continued on next page.)

SURREY ASSOCIATION'S DINNER. RETIREMENT OF MASTER AND TREASURER.

to the good. It had, perhaps, given an added impetus to ringing and greater skill in the art in the county. Mr. Johnston recalled that long before the Surrey Association was formed, change ringing was practised in the county, and mentioned peals rung in 1846 and 1857 at Camberwell by the Surrey Youths, and in 1734 at Croydon by the Croydon Youths, in which the tenor at St. John's Church was rung by two men. They thought they were a very respectable lot at Croydon Parish Church, said Mr. Johnston, for they had three curates who were ringers there, and they had been told that if there was a ring of twelve there, as they believed there might be in the near future, then the ringers deserved it (applause). A local paper that week had spoken of the casting of six of the bells for the ring and had referred to the 'pouring of the fiery metal into the cauldron to the weight of 40 tons.' As these bells represented about one-third of the weight of the peal, it meant that there would be about 120 tons of swinging metal in the tower, with approximately a 30 ton ringing tenor (laughter). If that actually happened, he knew they would all wish with him that the famous Mr. Jimmy George would be well enough by that time to ring the tenor on the opening day (laughter). As he did not wish, however, to raise unnecessary fears in the minds of the ecclesiastical authorities, he had better say that he thought the local Press had 'slipped up' and mixed tons with hundredweights (laughter).

In conclusion, Mr. Johnston referred with regret to the pending resignation of the Master owing to ill-health, and of the treasurer (Mr. C. Dean). They wished Mr. Burt a speedy recovery. Mr. Dean had served almost a lifetime in the Surrey Association as assistant secretary, secretary, treasurer and representative on the Central Council. They extended to him their warmest wishes and hoped he would not disappear entirely from their Surrey belfries (applause).

The Rev. G. Hart proposed 'The Visitors,' to which Mr. E. W. Housden responded. The latter said they did not think of themselves as visitors, but as part of the whole body of churchworkers. Perhaps one day, instead of so many different associations, they would have one national association, working for one common cause—service ringing for the Church. They should remember that the bells belong to the Church; they were there for the special purpose of Sunday service ringing, which was sometimes a little lost sight of and peal ringing was put first. It should be their first object to see that the bells were rung properly for service on Sunday mornings and evenings.

Mr. A. Shelton submitted 'The Ringing World' in felicitous terms and wished the journal long life and prosperity.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith replied and took the opportunity, as hon. secretary of the Guildford Diocesan Guild, of referring to the harmony existing in the district where the two associations overlapped. This was due to the kindness and courtesy of the officials of the Surrey Association, which the members of the Guildford Guild endeavoured to reciprocate. They both realised that there was no need for clashing interests, but that both were working for the same ends (applause).

The programme included a course of Grandsire Caters on handbells, Leslie Cowham in 'Sense and Nonsense,' with Nora Rule at the piano, a demonstration of conjuring by Kenneth Mills, and community singing with Mr. Harold N. Pitstow at the piano. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

NORTH NOTTS ASSOCIATION.

JUDGES' COMMENTS ON CUP COMPETITORS' RINGING.

On Saturday, September 26th, members of the North Notts Association met at Gamston for the ninth annual cup competition. The prospect of being possessors of the Crawford Silver Cup for a year induced four teams to compete, viz.: Barnby-in-the-Willows (who entered for the first time), Shireoaks, veterans of the contests, and Ordsall, two teams, known generally as 'A' and 'B' respectively. There was a good company of other ringers as well as the competitors when the first team went up to ring at 3.15. The draw for positions had resulted as follows: (1) Ordsall 'B,' (2) Shireoaks, (3) Barnby, (4) Ordsall 'A'; but as the first team were not ready, owing to their being a man short, they gave place to Shireoaks, who got a good standard and seemed to have won the cup before the others had rung, except for a lapse when the tenor rope came off the wheel. Barnby, with open leads, came next, followed by the two Ordsall bands, and as it was now 5 o'clock, tea was taken and the meeting held.

The Rev. S. M. S. Salt, the Rector of Gamston, took the chair, and gave the association a very warm welcome. He read the result of the competition, which was: Shireoaks, 192 faults; Barnby, 252 faults; Ordsall 'A,' 186 faults; Ordsall 'B,' 288 faults, penalties 10 for not setting bells after practice piece, and 30 for not being ready to ring in their turn, 328 faults.

The cup was thereupon presented to the captain of Ordsall 'A' team, Mr. J. Hurst, by Mrs. Rowsell (whose brother-in-law gave the trophy in memory of his father).

The judges, Mr. J. Flint and Mr. J. Moss, who had kindly come over from Bolsover, reported on the ringing. It had, they said, been fairly good on the whole, but a lot of faults had been incurred by bad leading. They suggested that new bands should learn to ring open leads.

After the meeting the ringers returned to the tower and the bells pealed out for three more hours to methods ranging from Bob Minor to Cambridge and London Surprise. Thus ended 'a perfect day.'

THE REV. A. H. F. BOUGHEY.

AN APPRECIATION.

The president of the Central Council (Mr. E. H. Lewis) was one of those who, while in residence at Cambridge, came under the influence of the late Rev. A. H. F. Boughey's tuition in ringing. Mr. Lewis has written for 'The Ringing World' the following appreciation of Mr. Boughey's services to ringing and to the Cambridge University Guild:—

'Apart from his own achievements as a ringer, Mr. Boughey's great work for the Exercise was the teaching of the rudiments of change ringing to generation after generation of undergraduates.

'As president of the Cambridge University Guild from the middle of 1879, a few months after the Guild was founded, he carried on this good work as long as his health allowed. It was not an easy thing to do. Undergraduates come into residence normally for three years. The terms are short and in the summer term it is difficult to find time for ringing. So that it is hard for undergraduates who have no previous knowledge of ringing to get very far before they take their degrees and "go down."

'Each October the president, with unfailing patience and unfailing good humour, started to teach a fresh batch of beginners, knowing that only a small proportion would get very far, at least while they were at Cambridge. The work among those who did not progress very far was probably not wasted. A number of them were subsequently ordained, and they at least knew something of our art, and would be sympathetic with the ringers of the bells of which they might subsequently have charge.

'As a teacher Mr. Boughey was excellent. On tower bells he was most particular about the proper handling of the rope. His constant advice to the recruit, "down, right to left; down, open fingers," will not be forgotten by his pupils. If there are members of the Guild who have not "an agreeable pull," you may be sure that they learnt to handle or mishandle a bell before "coming into residence." There was never much chance of really good striking in the tower, with practices on the "Seage" and with too many beginners ringing together; but Mr. Boughey laid the foundations in such a way that members could become good strikers when they got the chance.

'It was easier to get on quickly with handbells. A good handbell ringer himself, Mr. Boughey was always ready to start again at the very beginning, first single-handed, then double-handed, with each new batch of members.

'It was largely due to his untiring patience that the Cambridge Guild made and kept its tradition for handbell ringing. In addition to the regular practices, he used to ask the more advanced members to come to his rooms on Sunday evenings, when new methods were tried, or longer lengths attempted. He was always ready to take a pair for a peal if he could fit it in with his many engagements, and if necessary to use his office as Senior Dean to give "permission for music" in prohibited hours.

'The Cambridge Guild has been doubly fortunate in having as president one who was so excellent a teacher and one who was continuously resident in Cambridge. He will be greatly missed, and it is sad no longer to be able to think of "B, Great Court" as headquarters.'

HALIFAX AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

CONTEST AT BRIGHOUSE.

The quarterly meeting and six-bell prize contest of the Halifax and District Association was held at Brighouse on October 3rd. Five teams entered the contest, to ring 600 changes, with a plain course for practice. The draw for the order of ringing resulted as follows: No. 1, Liversedge; No. 2, New Mill; No. 3, Friezeland; No. 4, Holmfirth; No. 5, Meltham. New Mill rang Woodbine Treble Bob, Liversedge rang Cambridge Surprise, and the others rang Oxford Treble Bob.

Tea was served in the Church Institute, to which about 60 sat down. After ringing had ceased, the meeting was held in the Parochial Hall. The curate of Brighouse apologised for the absence of the Vicar and asked to be excused himself, as he had to attend a service, but he left a good substitute in the Vicar's warden, Mr. Mortimer.

After the business had been disposed of, the judge (Mr. W. Idle) gave his decision as follows: Liversedge, 141 faults, 5 penalty, total 146; New Mill, rang out; Friezeland, 55 faults; Holmfirth, 58 faults; Meltham, 50 faults.

Meltham were, therefore, declared winners. Mr. Mortimer presented the cup to Mr. Whiteley, the Meltham conductor, and a chromium-plated ash tray and stand to each of the Meltham ringers.

Mr. Mortimer, in presenting a prize to the president of the association, who is a prominent Meltham ringer, said he was delighted to hand it to him, as, besides occupying the chair, he also filled it.

Mr. Whiteley, in reply, said it gave him great pleasure to receive the cup. He sympathised with the other teams who had been so near and yet so far. Members of the Halifax Association are asked to note that their annual subscription also covers a free guessing competition on the weight of the president. Result of competition in 'Billy's Weekly Liar' on June 31st, 1937.

Further ringing on the bells brought an enjoyable day to an end.

STORY OF A SUCCESSFUL TRIP.

As will have been gathered from the peal columns of 'The Ringing World,' the tour which took place in Ireland met with a considerable measure of success. This success was not confined to ringing; socially the tour had happy results: as a sight-seeing expedition it certainly was very enjoyable; and its effect on ringing in the parts of Ireland visited will, we feel sure, be of good value.

During the evening of Friday, September 11th, eight members of the party met at Euston to catch the Irish Mail to Holyhead, and to enjoy a pleasant journey across to Dublin. All went well until Holyhead was reached. It was then found that rough weather was ahead, and it turned out to be too rough for more than one member of the party. Over what actually happened it is best to draw a veil, but vows were made that even a free trip would not tempt one at least to go to Australia. It was with great relief that the boat was left behind, and the train at Kingstown boarded for the short rail journey to Dublin. At their hotel the tourists found that, with one exception, the party was complete, and by 11.30 a.m. the first peal of the tour was commenced. This was at Christ Church Cathedral, and in just over 3½ hours a good peal of Stedman Caters had been rung. There are twelve bells in this tower, eight by Rudhall and four by Murphy. Two of the bells are semi-tones. The whole peal was rung by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston in 1931, and the peal rung was the first on them since that date. The composition, by Gabriel Lindoff, was a new one, and has now been rung twice, called by a Dublin man at Walthamstow, and by a Walthamstow man at Dublin!

ENNISKILLEN CATHEDRAL,
where the first peal of Cambridge Royal in Ireland was rung.

At the invitation of Mr. Robert S. Murphy, Mr. W. H. Wilson and other members of the St. Patrick's Cathedral Society, the whole party visited a certain place during the evening, and met old (and new) friends. A very pleasant hour or two was spent reviving memories and retelling all the latest ringing gossip, as well as drinking the health of the hosts.

Next morning Jim Bennett, the last of the band to arrive, turned up in time for breakfast. The first item on the day's programme was service ringing at St. Patrick's Cathedral. Here Dr. J. C. Cherry, son of the late Lord Chief Justice Cherry, welcomed the tourists. Stedman and Grandsire Cinquies, and a few rounds on the minor twelve, just to hear how they sounded, completed the morning's ringing, but a further visit was paid to this tower for ringing early in the afternoon, when the party was welcomed by Dean D. F. R. Wilson.

In the interval between these two visits to the Cathedral, a little sightseeing, under the conductorship of Bob Murphy, T. McMorran and others, ended in a surprise, and a very pleasant surprise, too. Something that is advertised as being good for you, served where? You are wrong, guess again!

Bray was visited as soon as the afternoon's ringing at the Cathedral was over. The first item was tea, but J. H. S. couldn't wait. He managed to get his, and finish it off, before the others had started. The ringers at Bray Church kindly gave up their ringing to the tourists, who much enjoyed some Bristol and Cambridge Surprise. The bells, tenor 28 cwt., are by Messrs. Taylor and Co. (1880), and are a magnificent peal. The tenor was rung in 1929.

On Monday, September 14th, the long trek began, the first objective being Enniskillen, 116 miles away. J. H. S. was off early; he did not intend to miss the train. On arrival at the station it was found that the compartments reserved for the party were at the wrong end of the train, and consequently a change had to be made en route. We suspect J. H. S. of reserving these compartments; most railwaymen manage to mess up matters connected with railways. If you do not believe this, think of Grantham!

After a stop at Newtown-Butler for Customs, and many other stops for no apparent reasons, Enniskillen was reached at 12.30. Here the Rev. H. MacManaway, Dean of Clogher, met the tourists with a small fleet of cars. After an excellent lunch at the invitation of the Dean, 'quick work' was made for the belfry—to find J. H. S. already there, measuring the tenor. There are ten bells at Enniskillen Cathedral. It is stated that two bells were made from the metal of cannons captured at the battle of the Boyne, 1690, which bells were named 'William' and 'Mary.' These two bells were recast at Whitechapel in 1856 to make the 6th of a ring of eight, and only last year Messrs. Taylor recast three of this peal, and added two to make a very fine peal of ten, with a tenor of 22 cwt. The present eighth, the successor of the original bells 'William' and 'Mary,' is now named 'William and Mary.'

A change ringing band has been started at the Cathedral, and from Gabriel Lindoff we gather that progress is being made. Needless to say, the first peal on the bells made a great impression, and we hope many resolutions were made to repeat the performance with a local band.

After the peal, a photo of the party was taken, and tea was served in the Deanery. At the end of another enjoyable meal, Mr. C. T. Coles thanked the Dean and Mrs. MacManaway for their hospitality.

'FURTHEST WEST.'

The Dean, in reply, gave the English ringers a very hearty welcome to Ireland. The Editor of the 'Fermanagh Times' was present, and has given an excellent report of the proceedings in his paper, copies of which have since been received by the band. During the progress of the peal, Mr. Nelson, captain of the local ringers, very kindly took those members of the party not ringing for a motor trip along the shores of Lough Erne, through some very fine country, which was greatly enjoyed. It was only right that Gabriel should have the honour of calling the first peal on the Enniskillen bells, and it is sincerely hoped that he will soon have the pleasure of calling another with local ringers. It may be of interest to note that the peal was the first of Cambridge Royal rung in Ireland, and the 'furthest west' of Surprise.

A journey of 60 miles to Londonderry took just over two hours in the train. Much interest was taken in the countryside, many peat bogs were passed, and somebody actually saw some real white rabbits! Londonderry was reached at 9 p.m., the day's mileage being 176.

The Cathedral Church of St. Columb, Londonderry, contains a very fine peal of ten bells, with a tenor of 32 cwt. There are also three extra bells, in semi-tones below the second, fourth and sixth respectively. Most of the bells were cast or recast at various times from 1614 to 1865, and in 1929 the whole of the then existing bells were recast, and four, including the present tenor, were added by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

One of the best peals of the tour was rung on these bells on Tuesday, September 15th, it being a peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal, conducted by Bob Pye. It was the first peal of Royal on the bells and the first Surprise peal in County Derry. At the conclusion of the peal the Dean, the Rev. R. G. S. King, visited the belfry to welcome and congratulate the band, and photos were taken by Mr. Kennedy, captain of the local company, and Leslie Morris.

Coleraine was the next objective, involving a train journey of 34 miles. Here there is a peal of eight by Taylor and Co., tenor a little more than 20 cwt. The first peal of Surprise Major in County Derry, in this case Superlative, was called by Ernest C. S. Turner, the youngest member of the party. Those not ringing paid a hurried visit to Portrush and Giant's Causeway, finding the hour's daylight at the latter place quite insufficient in which to explore its beauties, but at the same time thoroughly enjoying the visit to such a wonderful spot. Coleraine was again reached in time to hear the last two leads of a good peal, and to meet Mr. Bishop, representing the local ringers.

FIRST PEAL OF BRISTOL IN ANTRIM.

Ballymena, 28 miles away, was reached quite early on Wednesday, September 16th. Mr. Patterson welcomed the tourists in the tower, on behalf of the Rector and local ringers. The first peal of London Surprise on these bells was rung in just over three hours. The bells, with a tenor weighing nearly 18 cwt., are all by Mears and Stainbank, 1895. Another photo was taken, after which the party enjoyed a good lunch at the expense of the local ringers. It was regretted that the claims of business made it impossible for any of them to attend to receive the thanks of the tourists in person, but those thanks, given at this stage through the medium of 'The Ringing World,' are none the less sincere.

Train to Belfast, 31 miles, and a further journey of 10 miles, brought the party to Carrickfergus, where they were met by Capt. Roper, A.O.C. The Rector, Canon J. C. R. Rutherford, welcomed the ringers in the belfry. Here the first peal of Bristol in County Antrim was conducted by Leslie Wightman, on a very fine toned peal by Gillett and Johnston, which do not hang in the tall steeple, but in a small tower specially erected for them. The members of the party not ringing enjoyed a conducted tour of Carrickfergus Castle and Church during the ringing of the peal.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I was pleased to see Mr. G. Williams' letter in your issue of September 11th, and I hoped that someone else would have replied to corroborate my statements.

As no one else seems inclined to do so, I shall be obliged if you will find space for a few true Minor sections and also for some that are false, in the hope that they may be educative to those who are anxious to learn, and corrective to the gentleman who made false statements, but never had the grace to withdraw them when he was proved to be wrong—a failing the said gentleman is much addicted to.

There are only three sections in Minor to be considered, because the last half of the lead must be the reverse of the first half if the method is to be true.

Following are three plain sections of Treble Bob Minor principle:—

Treble in 1-2	Treble in 3-4	Treble in 5-6
123456 Even	241635 Odd	462513 Even
214365 Odd	426153 Even	645231 Odd
123456 Even	241635 Odd	462513 Even
214365 Odd	426153 Even	645231 Odd

It is obvious that all the above sections are false, the rows 1 and 3 repeating, also rows 2 and 4.

In any true Treble Bob Minor method, therefore, the rows in the sections must never follow one another in the order of Even, Odd, Even, Odd, or vice versa, Odd, Even, Odd, Even, otherwise the sections are false in themselves.

Here follow true and false sections:—

TRUE	FALSE
Treble in 1-2	Treble in 1-2
123456 Even	123456 Even
214365 Odd	214365 Odd
124635 Odd	124365 Even
216453 Even	213456 Odd
Treble in 3-4	Treble in 3-4
241635 Odd	241635 Odd
426153 Even	426153 Even
421635 Even	421653 Odd
246153 Odd	246135 Even
Treble in 5-6	Treble in 5-6
462513 Even	462513 Even
645231 Odd	645231 Odd
562431 Even	462531 Odd

From the foregoing it will be seen that four places in two rows must never occur in the sections themselves, but it is quite safe to use them at the Cross Sections as illustrated by me in these columns on August 14th. It should be understood that every section must contain two Even and two Odd rows, and, if the method is to be true, they must come in either of the following orders:—

- (1) Even, Odd, Odd, Even.
- (2) Even, Even, Odd, Odd.
- (3) Odd, Even, Even, Odd.
- (4) Odd, Odd, Even, Even.

Provided this is done and the method is symmetrical, there is no fear of falseness in Minor or Royal methods.

Following are the middle sections of 'Ventnor' Alliance, one of the five Alliance methods that had to be cancelled immediately after the second edition of 'Doubles and Minor Methods' was published in 1931, because of its falseness:—

Goodfellow, Hon. Sec., Seaford, Slough Road, Iver Heath, Bucks.

In Ventnor Alliance, as in methods Nos. 1 and 2 that were published on August 14th, there are never more than two places in a pair of rows, and the method is symmetrical, but seeing that there are six even rows and only two odd rows with the treble in 5-6, instead of four of each, the method is so false that the plain leads repeat against one another.

By adding an Extreme when the treble is behind to Ventnor Alliance, the repetitions come in the first lead instead of 3rd and 4th leads, as they also do in No. 2 Delight method published on August 14th.

If the Extreme is omitted in No. 2 Delight, the repetitions then appear in the 3rd and 4th leads.

The spokesman of the Methods Committee evidently has a very defective memory. Possibly this letter will jog it up for him.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The memorial dinner to Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and past officers of the Yorkshire Association ranks as one of the most important social gatherings of the year among ringers. Unlike any of the other similar commemorations, it is a 'movable feast' in that it is held successively in York, Leeds and Sheffield. By this means many more members of the great association are given an opportunity at intervals of joining in the gathering than would be able to do so if the proceedings always took place in the same centre. Last Saturday's gathering in the ancient city of York was once more proof of the attraction which these festivities hold for ringers, not only of Yorkshire but from many distant parts of the country. It is, indeed, a 'gathering of the clans,' and, apart from the opportunity provided to honour the memory of the men of a past generation who were leaders of the Exercise in their day, they provide the occasion for an exhibition of that real spirit of fraternity of which, as ringers, we are wont to boast.

The Yorkshire Association has been in existence for sixty years. It was one of the first of the territorial associations, and throughout the whole of its career has been in the forefront of the ringing organisations of the country. It was placed there by its founder, Jasper Whitfield Snowdon, and kept there largely by the inspiration and guidance of the succeeding presidents. It is not a little remarkable that in its sixty years the association should have had only three presidents. Jasper Snowdon, cut off comparatively early in life, filled the office for ten years. His brother, William Snowdon, occupied the office for over twenty-five years, and Canon Marshall, the present holder, has now reached his silver jubilee as head of the organisation. That the association has been fortunate in its choice of presidents goes without saying. All have brought their special attributes to the direction of its affairs, and though they have differed in their special gifts, the efficiency of the association has been the end for which all have so successfully striven. The fortunes of the Yorkshire Association have been safe in the hands of its successive presidents, who have enjoyed the confidence of the members.

Within its area the association has a number of minor organisations, but the feeling between them and the parent association is such that friction seldom occurs. In the districts of Sheffield, Leeds, Barnsley and Halifax, local societies—local, that is, compared with the great size of the county itself—supplement the work which the Yorkshire Association is doing. part the members of these smaller societies are members of the Yorkshire Association also, and their allegiance to the larger organisation does not suffer from their interest in the activities of the smaller. Only in north Yorkshire has the association failed to infiltrate to the fullest extent. There the Cleveland Association takes an independent stand, for it is a long cry from the industrial and thickly populated centres of the South to this more scattered area, fringing the river Tees. Some day, perhaps, the ringers in that part of the county of broad acres will find that their interests tend to the direction of linking up with the rest of the county, and so completing the structure which Jasper Snowdon visualised when he founded the Yorkshire Association over sixty years ago.

FOR BEGINNERS.

USE YOUR EARS.

There is every reason why bands everywhere should give their best attention to 'striking' during the coming winter's practices. For instance, the Coronation is coming, but, of course, it is important to bear in mind that good striking should be made the essential of all ringing. Everything else should be sacrificed to it; change ringing should be subordinated to it. It is one of the greatest mistakes to attempt change ringing until you can strike well in rounds, although it is a fact that in the anxiety to push young ringers on, beginners are frequently made to ring changes before they are really competent in the handling of their bell or are able to strike properly in rounds.

We hope that increased attention will be paid to striking. It matters at all times, but most in service ringing and in those long spells of ringing, like peals, when the public have to listen to the sound of the bells for, perhaps, hours on end. To strike your bell entirely by ropesight—that is by measuring by the eye the distance which has to be allowed in the pull between one bell and another—would be easy if the distance were the same between all bells, and all bells were in themselves so truly hung that they clapper evenly.

But bells are of different sizes and therefore some turn, and consequently strike, quicker than others. You must allow for this and leave a wider interval in your pull over a big bell than over a little one, so that the space between the actual sounds of the bells will remain the same. Moreover, many bells are slightly and others considerably defective in their 'clapping.' Through the clapper not hanging at dead centre when the bell is down, it may strike too soon or too late when it is rung. In the first case it is said to be 'quick' and in the second 'slow.'

Obviously, if you are ringing a bell that is 'quick,' you must, if you would strike it exactly the right space behind the bell you are striking over, hold up just that extra fraction of a second which will keep the compass set by the other bells. On the other hand, if the bell is slow, it must be pulled in just a little sooner than a normal bell would be. Unless this is done you get a 'jazzy' effect which entirely spoils the ringing from the listener's point of view. What is needed is perfect beat and rhythm.

What we have told you, however, is only how to perform a kind of mechanical operation, once you have discovered that the striking of your bell is defective. What is more important is to be able to make the discovery and to tell whether your bell is being placed in its right position among the rest to a 'hair's-breadth,' as it were.

The best equipment a ringer can have is a pair of sharp ears. He will never strike well unless he trains himself to pick out his own bell from the rest, and to distinguish the least discrepancy in his striking. At first a beginner may find it very difficult, if not impossible, to tell from among the sounds overhead which note is that of the bell he is ringing. His attention is fully taken up with the handling of his rope.

Soon, however, that part of the process should begin to become mechanical, and he should be able to devote some of his attention to listening for his own bell. Listen for it first in rounds. Count the notes from treble downward every time, with emphasis on the place where your own should appear. Gradually the bell, in a normal tower, will seem to emphasise itself. Afterwards you will hear it, whatever its position may be among the rest. But this picking out of your own bell will not necessarily become easy at the start. Never mind, go on trying; the great thing is to persevere and not to give up because at first it seems impossible. Once you make up your mind that you will never be able to pick out your bell, you may as well resign yourself to the fact that you will never make a good ringer. Use your ears as well as your eyes, and go on using them.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

PEAL RINGING VERSUS MEETINGS.

The annual meeting of the Tonbridge District of the Kent County Association was held at Tonbridge on Saturday, October 10th, when 70 per cent. of the affiliated towers in the district were represented as well as some from outside the district. The total number of members present was 69, and the following towers represented: Benenden, Brasted, Chiddingstone, Edenbridge, Hawkhurst, Horsmonden, Leigh, East Peckham, Penshurst, Sevenoaks, Shipbourne, Tonbridge, Tunbridge Wells, Cranbrook, Sturry, Milton-next-Gravesend, Croydon (St. John's), Beddington and Northfleet. Ringing took place in the afternoon and evening in the standard methods, the striking being very good for mixed bands.

The usual service was held, conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Canon F. Childs, late of St. Helens, Lancashire. Tea was partaken of at the Carlton Cafe and was followed by the business meeting. Among those present were the Rev. F. L. Schreiber (Vicar of Shipbourne), the Rev. E. L. M. Allen (Vicar of Edenbridge), Mr. F. M. Mitchell (the general secretary), Mr. P. White, Mr. C. H. Kippih, Mr. D. Cooper, and 'Uncle' Bill Lambert, who is believed to be the oldest ringer in the district. He has been ringing for about 70 years. The Vicar, the Rev. F. Childs, presided.

In his report, the District Secretary remarked upon the satisfactory position of the district. Sixty-five per cent. of the ringing towers were in union, and provided the association with 181 practising members. Although, he said, the association had no wish or power to dictate to its members, he would like to record the deplorable fact that on two occasions peals had been attempted on meeting days by members. In one instance the peal was rung outside the county, ringers going from the tower where the meeting was held and from a nearby tower, and in the other case the peal attempt could be heard from the belfry of the church at which the meeting was being held. It did not seem fair, the secretary continued, in view of the work entailed in arranging meetings, for ringers to do this sort of thing.

The report, with the balance sheet, was adopted. Mr. A. Richardson was re-elected secretary, and Messrs. E. Everest and A. J. Battin were elected as district representatives. Mr. G. Edwards, who has been a representative for a great many years, intimated that he would not stand again for re-election.

It was decided that the meetings for next year should be held as follows: Sevenoaks in February, Hawkhurst in May, Leigh in July, and the annual meeting at Tonbridge in October.

The revision of the association's rules came up for discussion, and with one or two minor exceptions the members recommended that the amended rules as submitted by the committee be adopted.

On the motion of Mr. F. W. Housden, seconded by the district secretary, the district recommended that all members should receive, free of charge, a report and balance sheet each year. It was pointed out that at the present time members had to pay 6d. for an entire report of peals, performances, etc., in order to be able to obtain the report and balance sheet.

The usual votes of thanks concluded the business meeting.

ASHFORD DISTRICT SUPPORTS NEW RULES.

The Ashford District once again held its annual meeting at Ashford on Saturday, October 3rd, when upwards of 60 members attended from 18 towers in all parts of the county. Service was conducted by the Vicar, who gave a short address of welcome, reminding the ringers of their privilege and responsibility. Mr. Paul Steinitz presided at the organ.

Ton was served in the Fellowship Room and provided by the association. The Vicar and organist both expressed regret at being unable to join the company at tea, but both had to take part in a service following that of the ringers.

The business meeting, which proved to be rather lengthy, was presided over by Mr. F. M. Mitchell, the general secretary. Two new members were elected and a previous election ratified.

The hon. secretary (Mr. F. Conley) having announced that he would be unable to continue in office, Messrs. P. Page and W. Oldfield were nominated and Mr. P. Page was elected. It is hoped that the members will give him all the support possible.

For the purpose of providing two district representatives on the Central Committee, Messrs. P. Pierce, E. S. Ruck, W. Oldfield, C. Tribe and F. Wanstall were nominated, and as a result of the ballot Mr. E. S. Ruck and Mr. P. Wanstall were elected.

Mr. C. W. Everett was chosen to act as Ringing Master in place of Mr. Page, it being unanimously decided that the district cannot do without one.

After a good deal of discussion the meeting instructed the secretary and representatives to support the adoption of the rules as amended by the Central Committee in November last. It also asked them to invite the committee to hold the annual meeting at Ashford on Easter Monday next.

A collection for the Association Benevolent Fund amounted to 19s. 6d.

Votes of thanks were passed to the hon. secretary, the retiring representatives, Mr. F. M. Mitchell, the Vicar, the organist and all who had helped in any way to make such an enjoyable meeting.

The bells of Bowdon, Cheshire, will be 'on the air' on Sunday at 7.55 p.m. from the North Regional Station.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD.

NORTHERN BRANCH AND BELL RESTORATION GRANTS.

The half-yearly meeting of the Northern Branch was held at Heckington on Saturday, October 3rd. The weather was ideal for the occasion and was very probably the reason for such a good assembly of members.

The village possesses a large and magnificent church in which hangs a fine toned ring of eight bells, on which touches in various methods were rung during the afternoon and evening. The six bells at Hale Magna were also available. Amongst the towers represented were Anwick, Bigby, Blankney, Branston, Gainsborough, Grantham, Lea, Lincoln, Metherringham, Nocton, Sleaford and Ulceby, in addition to the local company. Mr. R. Richardson, Master of the Guild, and Mr. F. W. Stokes, hon. secretary, were present, together with Mrs. Richardson, Miss E. Richardson and Mr. G. Ladd, hon. secretary of the Elloe Deaneries Branch, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Bramwell, Cleethorpes. Members of the Guild were also present from Boston, Spalding and Treeton, Yorks.

Service was held in the Parish Church, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. A. L. Richards), who gave the members a very hearty welcome to Heckington. The organist accompanied the musical part of the service. Subsequently 54 members and friends sat down to an excellent tea at the Temperance Hall.

The business meeting followed, at which the Ven. Archdeacon H. T. Parry (Northern Branch president) presided.

Metherringham was selected for the 1937 half-yearly meeting, the date fixed being October 2nd.

The special item on the agenda was an application for a grant towards the rehanging of the bells at Haxey Parish Church. The President informed the members that, at a meeting held at Brigg in 1934, a resolution was passed respecting this matter. This was: 'That a definite reserve fund of £50 be fixed, and when near the margin of that sum no grants be made, and when above, cases should be dealt with on their merits.' He stated the treasurer had told him the funds of the branch at that moment were below the fixed sum, consequently it was not necessary to proceed any further with the matter. At the same time, he requested the secretary to make a note of it in the minutes.

Mr. Richardson suggested that the branch should form a belfry repair fund on similar lines to the one in connection with the Elloe Deaneries Branch and the one in connection with the Grimsby District of the Northern Branch, both of which had proved very successful.

Archdeacon Parry proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells and conducting the service, the organist, the caterers and all who had helped to make the meeting such a success.

A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the business, after which further ringing took place during the remainder of the evening.

RINGERS WHO 'FADE AWAY.'

ARCHDEACON'S ADDRESS AT SURREY MEETING.

The Ven. Archdeacon W. R. Crichton stood in the chancel of Rammore Church, Surrey, on September 26th, amongst a small gathering of Surrey ringers, and had some interesting things to say about bells and bellringers. He had been in India for 18 years, and, he said, always liked to hear the sound of the old English bells coming to him over the air; they created a tremendous stirring of the heart strings, together with a longing for the homeland and all it represented. They would then be faded out, and he would feel once more like a stranger in a strange land. He would remember a church in Ireland which had a good peal of bells, and where the ringers came regularly to ring, but somehow they too, like the bells on the wireless, acquired a habit of 'fading away' immediately before a service started. He hoped the ringers of Surrey were not like that. (He was afterwards told that they were much better, but that a complete redemption from this habit would take time.)

In speaking about the story of the bells in the Old Testament, which he referred to as 'The Parable of the Belfry,' he said that they were merely a part of the whole fabric, and but one of the many attributes of the Christian life. The ringers were workers together with God and were the inheritors of a sacred trust which must be preserved and handed on unimpaired. They were learners in a splendid school of discipline—he could tell from the ringing he had heard that afternoon that there must have been much patient practice and the studying of rules. There was no room in the belfry for the ringer who did not pay attention and would not learn. Just as one bad tempered person could spoil the harmony of the home, so the rhythm of the bells could be destroyed by the bad striker or the man who does not try.

The Archdeacon concluded his address by welcoming the Surrey Association to Rammore and inviting them to come again.

Eighteen members sat down to tea, representing Croydon, Beddington, Epsom (Christ Church), Banstead, Leatherhead and Dorking, whilst during the afternoon and evening visitors arrived from Capel, Sunbury, Reckenham and Reigate.

After a short business meeting members returned to the tower, where the bells were kept going till nine o'clock. The methods rung ranged from Grandsire Triples to London Surprise.

Votes of thanks were passed to Archdeacon Crichton for the use of the bells and for conducting the service: to the organist, Mr. A. Redhead; and to Mr. A. Dobinson for making arrangements for the meeting.

INAUGURATION OF UFFORD BELLS. COMPLETION OF RESTORATION SCHEME.

Ufford Church was filled with a large congregation (all the additional chairs being used) when the ceremony of inauguration was performed by the Lord Bishop of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich. The first lesson was read by the Rev. Hargrave Thomas, Rector of Needham Market, the second by the Rev. R. B. Dand, Rector of Woodbridge.

After this, the churchwardens with their staves came to the chancel doors and led the procession of cross, choir, clergy, Rector and Bishop (preceded by his chaplain, the Rev. H. A. Fleetwood, Rector of Cresting and a ringer) with his staff, to the west end. There, the ringers being inside the tower, the donors each took a rope affixed to the bell they were giving, and standing in the nave, just inside the tower door, handed the rope to the Bishop.

The rope of the first bell was thus handed by Mr. G. E. Fisher, that of the second by Mr. F. L. Fisher, the third by Mr. E. Denison Taylor, the fourth by Mrs. Drake, representing her son, the late Mr. Francis Drake, while one rope, attached to the four old bells, was handed by the other churchwarden, Mr. G. Lankester, with a request that he would inaugurate the ring. This the Bishop did in the prescribed form, and then handed all the ropes together to the Rector, thus putting them into his care. As the procession returned to the chancel, 20 rounds were rung, this being the first time any of the bells had been rung or heard, and great was the joy and pleasure of those who heard them.

The Bishop began his sermon by thanking all those who had, by their gifts, enabled the people of Ufford to have the beautiful ring of bells which they had just heard, and of which they might well be proud. He went on to say that while there were some people to whom church bells appeared to have a melancholy sound, yet they were only a small minority. To most people the sound of bells was especially one of joy, and reminded them of the words, 'All Thy works praise Thee, O Lord.' This was a lesson which needed to be learned to-day, when so many people were complaining. Instead of complaining we should be finding causes for praising God, and this the sound of the bells helped us to do.

The Rector announced that he had that morning got Messrs. Taylors' receipt in full settlement, and there was still some £5 in hand. This and the collection that day (this came to £5 10s.) would go towards paying off £21 for work which had been done locally.

Among the large number of clergy present were the Revs. H. Gray (Bredfield), Canon Round-Turner (Bealings), W. M. Lummis (Kestgrave), F. W. Moyle (Saxmundham), A. R. Shaw (Hinderclay), A. G. G. Thurlow (Wokingham), A. E. Milne (Felixstowe), S. E. Celler (Wickham) and G. R. D. Bennet (Woodbridge).

After the service the bells were rung by ringers from all parts of Suffolk and from Essex. Over 150 of the congregation were given tea with the Bishop, by Mrs. Drake, in St. Mary's Hall.

All present considered the bells were the most satisfactory ring in the diocese, both in the workmanship and in the sound. This is well reduced in the church and ringing chamber, while outside it is well blended and softened to those nearby, and carries much better to a distance.

As was recorded in our issue of August 21st, Ufford bells were blessed and named. The four front bells have been recast. The sixth and tenor are pre-Reformation bells, the former by William Dawe, of London (1270-1385), and the latter, weighing 13 cwt. 1 qr. 8 lb., by Brasyer, of Norwich (1400-1510). The 5th is a bell by John Darbie, of Ipswich, in 1686, and the 7th by T. Osborn, of Downham, in 1799. The old 4th, also cast by Brasyer, of Norwich, probably about 1480, when the church was finally altered to what it now is. This bell, badly 'skirted' at some time, and too thin for its note, stands on the floor of the church. The key of the whole ring is nearly F sharp. The founders reported that the 6th and 7th were, when they received them, nearly in tune with the tenor, the 5th being a little flat. The others were, therefore, put in tune with the 5th, which has not been tuned.

WINCHESTER AND PORTSMOUTH DIOCESAN GUILD.

SEVENTY MEMBERS MEET AT KINGSCLERE.

A quarterly meeting of the Basingstoke District of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild was held at Kingsclere on Saturday, September 26th. Ringing commenced at 2.30 p.m. on the fine old six bells at St. Mary's Church. A short service was held, the Vicar giving an address that was very much appreciated.

About 70 members sat down in the Schoolroom to a very fine tea, provided by local ladies and ringers. A short business meeting was also held. The chairman of the branch (the Rev. G. H. Jeudwine) presided, and thanks were expressed by him to the local company for the welcome given to everyone.

Visitors were present from Hereford, London, Highclere, Reading, Donnington, Compton and Newbury.

After the meeting the company visited the tower and many made a tour of inspection of this very fine old village, with its many objects of interest.

Ringling continued until eight o'clock, when the local foreman, Mr. North, called 'Time,' thus bringing a very enjoyable visit to a close. Methods rung during the afternoon and evening varied from rounds to London Surprise.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

There is more than passing interest in 'the first peal of Cinques on the bells' rung at Saffron Walden, Essex, last week. It is more than 20 years since the bells were increased to twelve, and it is gratifying to know that, after so long a lapse of time, a peal has at last been rung on them.

Kingsdon Church bells, Somerset, are being rehung with new fittings in a new frame by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

Mr. James Arrowsmith, who, when he retired from ringing ten years ago, had spent 50 years as a member of the band at the Parish Church, Middleton, Lancs., has died at an advanced age. He was a life member of the Lancashire Association, for which he rang 20 peals. On Wednesday week a muffled peal was rung in his memory.

An attempt for a peal of Stedman Caters was made on the glorious bells at Beverley Minster on Saturday by visitors who were in Yorkshire for the Snowdon Dinner. Unfortunately, after two and a half hours' excellent ringing, the bells were brought round owing to the indisposition of one of the band.

It was a great disappointment to everyone, especially to the Birmingham contingent, who eight years ago rang over three hours at the tower and had to stop for a somewhat similar reason.

Some of the band last Saturday were classified by critics as among the 'old men and cripples.' One had his 'eye in a sling' and a bandaged leg; another had lost all his teeth and walked with a limp. Others were not too good after years of wear and tear, but, fortunately, it did not affect their ringing ability. It was one of the strong men of the party whom misfortune overtook.

Here is another toothless story well worth telling. A well-known Midlands ringer was recently spending his holiday at Bournemouth. Bathing one day in a rather turbulent sea, he opened his mouth to laugh at an incident, which we will not describe here, when an extra big wave investigated the interior of an unexpected cavity.

When the sea receded it carried with it the gentleman's false teeth! He never saw them again. We understand they are now being used by a large sized whiting which has been seen off Bournemouth pier. In future the ringer proposes to keep his mouth shut when bathing.

And talking of the sea, those ringers who made the recent passage to Ireland, and escaped the uncomfortable experience of mal de mer, should ponder upon the words of the Poet Laureate, quoted by 'Punch' last week, when they gloat over the tribulations of their fellow-voyagers:—

'I've a theory that only intelligent people get seasick. I believe there are nerves in their brains that cause it.'

Yes, we admit we have not forgotten the voyage to Australia and back, which we made without falling victim to seasickness ourselves.

We are sorry to state that Mr. John Flint, the well-known ringer of Bolsover, Derbyshire, is in the Murphy Ward of the Royal Hospital, Chesterfield, suffering from severe injuries, received while engaged in shot firing in a coal mine. His many friends will wish him a speedy recovery.

Among the large number of men who have lately come to Barrow-in-Furness from Ireland and Scotland and parts of England there may be ringers. There is a handy peal of eight at St. James' Church at the top of Hartington Street, the only peal in the town. The local ringers will be glad to extend a welcome to anyone who cares to give them a look up. Service ringing at the usual times.

Can any reader inform us where handbell music can be obtained? The ringer of the 2nd in the peal of Treble Bob at Kenwyn on September 23rd was C. Edward Lankester, not Edwin as published.

To clear up a mystery which some may feel about two conflicting statements, we have it upon the most reliable authority that Mr. John W. Jones, of Newport, rang his 450th peal at Bridgend on September 30th.

We regret that we are still compelled to hold over several reports, owing to pressure on our space.

NORTHERN BRANCH SECRETARY RETIRES.

The Northern Branch of the Worcestershire and Districts Association held their September meeting at Brierley Hill, when between 70 and 80 members attended. There was a short service in church, with an address by the Rector (the Rev. J. H. Herbert), after which tea was partaken of in the schools, followed by the usual business meeting under the chairmanship of the Rector.

The election of the branch officers took place. Mr. Thomas Hemming was re-elected Ringing Master and Mr. John Bass the Central Committee representative.

With regard to the secretaryship, Mr. W. B. Cartwright intimated that owing to professional reasons he could not stand for re-election, and Mr. John S. Mason, of Oldbury, was elected in his place.

A vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Cartwright for his past services.

Several new members were elected, among them being the Rector and Mr. Thomas Lowther, sen., one of the churchwardens.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Wollaston on the usual Saturday in January.

The tea was provided by the local ringers, and a vote of thanks was passed, thanking them for their hospitality, and to the Rector for allowing the meeting to be held at Brierley Hill.

YORKSHIRE COMMEMORATION DINNER.

RINGERS GATHER IN YORK CITY.

Archdeacon and the Preservation of Bells.

It was the turn of York this year to provide the setting for the annual commemoration dinner organised by the Yorkshire Association in memory of Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and other past officers. York is a delightful city, dominated by the towering pile of its Minster, with an ever inspiring interest. With the added attraction of its wonderful peal of twelve bells, with a three ton tenor, it is no wonder that York proves a great attraction to ringers on the occasion of this triennial visit. About 120 were present at the dinner on Saturday at the Windmill Hotel, under the genial chairmanship of Canon C. C. Marshall, of Headingley, President of the association. He was supported by the Ven. Archdeacon of York, the Rev. Canon Solloway (Selby), Mr. C. T. Coles (hon. secretary, Middlesex Association), Mr. J. S. Goldsmith (hon. secretary, Guildford Diocesan Guild), Mr. and

CANON C. C. MARSHALL, Twenty-Five Years President of the Yorkshire Association.

Mrs. P. J. Johnson (Leeds), the Rev. H. Gilgrist (York), Mr. R. Richardson (Master of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild) and Mrs. Richardson, Mr. Frank E. Haynes (Ringing Master, St. Martin's Guild), Mr. and Mrs. A. Walker and Mr. G. F. Swann (Birmingham), Mr. W. Ayre (Hertfordshire Association), Mr. W. H. Shuker (hon. secretary, Lancashire Association) and Mrs. Shuker, Mr. F. E. Dawe (London), Mr. J. F. Smallwood (Bath), Mr. and Mrs. C. Harrison (Loughborough), Mr. A. Sharman (hon. secretary, Bedfordshire Association), the Rev. R. J. Wood and the Rev. P. Thorman (Leeds), Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Park, Mr. G. W. Park and Mr. N. Park (Darlington), Mr. W. H. Barber (Newcastle), Mr. E. A. Barnett (Crayford), and members of the Yorkshire Association from Arksey, Bradford, Ecclesfield, Handsworth, Leeds, Pontefract, Pudsey, Ripon, Rotherham, Selby, Sheffield, Sherburn-in-Elmet, Wortley, York, etc.

The excellent arrangements for the event were made by a local committee, of which Mr. T. F. Earnshaw was president and Mr. G. Horner hon. secretary.

After dinner the loyal toast was honoured and the president gave the company a message from Mrs. William Snowdon and Miss Snowdon, who had written to him once more to convey to the members of the Yorkshire Association their kind wishes and thoughts and the hope that the company would have a pleasant evening. Canon Marshall added that he was sure they would all wish him to thank Mrs. and Miss Snowdon for their message and to reciprocate their good wishes (applause).

REBIRTH OF CHURCH LIFE.

Mr. P. J. Johnson proposed the toast of 'Church and State.' In the course of a characteristic speech covering wide ground, Mr. Johnson said nowhere in England would they find exemplified, more than in the district in which they were assembled, the great power and the great work of the Church in days gone by. In the mighty Minster, in Selby and the other abbeys and churches in Holderness, they saw what he thought was the inspiration of much of the art which they had in this country to-day. In the past the churches were the centres of art—music, painting, architecture were all connected with religious life—and education and learning. The problems before the Church to-day were of a different character. In providing for the spiritual requirements of immense new centres of population the Church was faced with great liability and anxiety, but he thought the task before it might lead to the rebirth of church life and work (hear, hear). They must all play their part in supporting the Church in the colossal efforts which were being made to cope with the new and changed circumstances.

Mr. Johnson referred to the recent loss which had been sustained by the death of the Rev. A. H. F. Boughey and the valuable service which he rendered to change ringing. Countless undergraduates had come under his instruction in change ringing, and he (the speaker) regarded it as a happy augury for the future of the art that some of the theological colleges—Cuddesdon and Salisbury among them—were taking up this subject of ringing.

BELLS OF REDUNDANT CHURCHES.

Proceeding, he referred to the migration of congregations from the cities and big towns to the country, and he wondered what would happen to the bells of the churches which were becoming redundant. He pleaded with those who were responsible in these matters, where there were bells in old churches that were no longer needed, that provision should be made for them to be installed in the new churches, thus saving these peals and giving an incentive in the new districts for the taking up of change ringing. Another matter in which he hoped they would have the support of the clergy was in fulfilling their duties at the coming Coronation. He hoped that that great national event would lead to the making of an exception with regard to York Minster bells and that for that occasion the authorities would allow a peal to be rung there (hear, hear). Such a thing would give great gratification to the whole Exercise and to everyone except a few disgruntled people in York (hear, hear).

In dealing with 'The State,' Mr. Johnson touched upon the anxieties in the international outlook and expressed the hope that in this country democratic government would ever remain strong and secure. Sooner or later any other form of government must lead to disaster.

Archdeacon England, who replied to the toast, spoke in appreciative terms of the mover's speech, which, he said, had thrilled him by the obvious admiration and sincere love for the Church which it displayed. The Archdeacon enlarged upon the magnificent gifts which the Church had given and preserved to the nation. He mentioned the fact that in York Minster they had more 13th century stained glass than was to be found in any cathedral in Europe. They also possessed the only manuscript in existence of an Anglo-Saxon copy of the Gospels. In this connection he told the story of an American millionaire who, having heard of this MS., wanted to buy it for a hundred thousand pounds. When the Dean replied that there was 'nothing doing,' there came a cable, 'Double my offer' (laughter). When he (the Archdeacon) told this story to a party of tourist Americans to whom he was showing the treasure, a lady among them rasped out, 'I guess you have said quite enough.'

FACING THE NEW SITUATION.

Continuing, the Archdeacon said the position which the Church was facing to-day through the growing new centres of population had never been experienced before. In the diocese of York alone there were four or five entirely new centres of the size of large towns which had sprung up. Whatever these new centres might become socially, he feared they could never have the priceless things which the older places had inherited from our forefathers, in the way of churches, but in the parishes which came under his jurisdiction as Archdeacon their policy was, 'Don't build a bad church' (hear, hear). If you cannot build a good church at first, build a part of the church, but make it part of a worthy church (applause). Until they could do that, he said, it was better to be content with a hall. With regard to the bells in churches which were no longer needed, the Archdeacon said they were carefully watching this. There was a case in York of a church which contained a peal of bells which was to be pulled down. They had had many requests for a bell from this peal, but they intended that the peal should be given in its entirety to some church which was prepared to build a tower fit to receive it (applause). At present the bells were in the custody of the Dean and Chapter of York, and it was possible that they would be sent to a church in a new district at Middlesbrough.

The Archdeacon added that the authorities in the diocese carefully watched bell restorations to see that no one but experts were allowed to touch the bells and to see also that all pre-Reformation bells were preserved. He referred to Mr. Johnson's suggestion that a peal at York Minster should be permitted for the Coronation, and said he hoped it might be possible to arrange this (applause). As he was the one responsible for this department, he would probably be the one to bear the brunt of the complaints, but he would be able to say, 'I am sorry, but we don't crown a King every day' (applause). He would be very happy if it were found possible to arrange for a peal to be rung.

The Archdeacon referred to the fact that the late Mr. Boughey was 'going strong' when he (the speaker) was an undergraduate at Cambridge, and that the first time in his life that he saw bells rung was at Great St. Mary's, Cambridge, where he went one practice night with a member of Cambridge University Guild. When the ringing finished he asked if he might try to pull the rope before he went home, but was told that if he did he might go to a long home (laughter). The Archdeacon concluded by referring to the great antiquity of the relationship between Church and State in this country, and added that when he saw the tragic and terrible happenings going on around them in other parts of the world he was more than satisfied, despite all our faults and shortcomings, to be a citizen of this land in which he lived (applause).

The President, in introducing Mr. C. T. Coles, referred to his faithful and loyal service to the Church and change ringing. The fact that he had carried on for 25 years the work of hon. general secretary of the Middlesex County Association, entitled him to the highest honour they could give him.

PAST WORTHIES.

Mr. Coles, who was received with applause, proposed the toast to 'The memory of the late Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and Past Officers of the Association.' As one who, until a few years ago, did all his ringing in the South, Mr. Coles said, it was not to be expected that he should have run across those famous Yorkshire ringers of the past, but the reputation of these men spread to other parts of the land, and ringers in the South honoured them almost as much as they were honoured in their own county. They quite appreciated the reasons why Yorkshire ringers sought to do them honour in the way they did. They all, he said, felt at times that they wished to honour the memory of ringers who had gone from them and to whom had fallen the task of building up their associations. Those men had difficulties to face which did not confront the ringers of to-day. They had to lay the foundations, the ringers of to-day had only to carry on the work. They benefited by the work which was put in in those early days.

MEN HELD IN HIGH ESTEEM.

Referring to the late Rev. A. H. F. Boughey, Mr. Coles said that he visited the Middlesex Association at their annual meeting in London in 1914, and in a sermon he said, 'A change ringer is always seeking something higher in his art.' That, added Mr. Coles, summed up what the pioneers of the early days tried to do and what ringers to-day were trying to do, but the latter found it easier because of the work the pioneers put in. Proceeding Mr. Coles said the work which Jasper Snowdon did for the art had its effect on ringing throughout the country. He was a comparatively young man when he died, but during his short life as a ringer he did sufficient work to do credit to a man who lived to be a century. His opportunities as a ringer were not as great as a ringer got to-day, but all he did, he did well. He was a great teacher and his style of teaching had gone on from that day to this. He was a great writer on ringing matters, and the books he left behind were still the text books that ringers were proud to have. Jasper Snowdon was the founder of the Yorkshire Association and its president for ten years. To him, more than to any man, they owed the fact that Yorkshire had one of the strongest and best associations in the country. He was followed by his brother, William Snowdon, who was president of the association for 26 years, and did a great deal of work in revising and reprinting the books. Another who played a great part in the early work of the association was William Horner Howard, of York, who must have been held in high esteem, for he was affectionately known as 'Uncle.' George Bolland was another whose memory they honoured. He was a man who desired to break with tradition, and although he did it in a way they might not care to tolerate in these days, he led the way to greater advances on different lines. Mr. Bolland and his band went on to ring 14 and 21 Minor methods in a peal, and they commended him for trying to get away from the stereotyped style. Although he did it in a way they would not approve to-day, he was the forerunner of 'spliced' peals; for what he did incited other people to find a way of linking up the methods in true 720's. Mr. Coles went on to refer to the work of Charles Henry Hattersley as a composer, to Charles Jackson, of Hull, an excellent conductor, of whom William Pye always spoke in the highest terms, to James Lockwood, of Leeds, and last of all to Mr. James Cotterell, for 27 years the treasurer of the association, who was greatly respected and loved by all who knew him (hear, hear).

It was true, continued Mr. Coles, that the Exercise was making great strides, but much of it was due to the splendid foundations laid by the pioneers of the past, although they did not live to see the full fruits of their labours from which the ringers of to-day were profiting. There was one thing, however, in which the men of past days could equal the ringers of to-day, and that was in their striking. Judging from some of the broadcasts of the last few months, striking in many places was such as these past leaders of ringing would hardly have tolerated. The broadcast which came from Pudsey a short time ago was something to be proud of, but some of the broadcasts they had had were very poor. 'It is up to us,' concluded Mr. Coles, 'not only to carry on the work of the worthies of the past and to benefit from what they have done, but also to make every effort to keep up the standard of striking in the manner they would wish.'

After the toast had been honoured, a course of Stedman Cinques was rung on handbells by Messrs. Haynes (Birmingham), Johnson (Leeds), Swann (Birmingham), Smallwood (Bath), Walker (Birmingham) and Barber (Newcastle).

AN ENQUIRY FROM AUSTRALIA.

Mr. T. W. Earnshaw proposed 'The Visitors and Kindred Ringing Societies.' He welcomed the visitors as a citizen of York and a member of the Yorkshire Association. They were pleased to see so many clergy present, even though it might be at the expense of shorter sermons the next morning (laughter). The clergy were always welcomed by ringers, both at their social gatherings and in the belfry, and would be more pleased if they saw them oftener in the belfry. They had representatives present that evening of associations from Scotland down to Kent, said Mr. Earnshaw, and they greatly appreciated their presence. They wished the kindred societies prosperity in all their undertakings. Mr. Earnshaw enumerated the many societies represented, and said such gatherings as that gave an opportunity to ringers to meet and cement old friendships and to create new ones. Referring to the presence of four members of the party who visited Australia two years ago, Mr. Earnshaw quoted from a letter from an ex-churchwarden of the church where the English ringers rang while at Adelaide, in which he referred to a Roman Catholic priest who was anxious to have the names of bellfounders sent to him, as he was hoping to build a church and was keen on getting a peal of bells. That, said the writer, was due to the visit of the English ringers to Australia two years ago (applause).

Mr. F. E. Haynes first replied, and thanked the Yorkshire Association for all they had done for the enjoyment of the visitors. He congratulated the association on having a body of clergy who not only came there and enlivened the proceedings with witty speeches, but who really sympathised with the bellringers and took an interest in bells.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith also replied.

Mr. F. E. Dawe, who said he had been a member of the Yorkshire Association for over 55 years and rang many peals with their past worthies, proposed the toast of 'Continued Prosperity of the Yorkshire Association.' Its formation, said Mr. Dawe, followed that of the Devonshire Guild. He knew the founder of the association and some of his happiest days had been spent in Yorkshire. He was very pleased, he said, to hear it suggested that an attempt should be made for a peal on the Minster bells. He started there with a very good band for a peal of Grandsire Cinques nearly 53 years ago and rang nearly half-way, but Tom Hattersley had to give up. Although that attempt was made so many years ago, he could assure them that he was not yet 'used up,' and he hoped his friends would think seriously of him when the opportunity occurred.

Continuing, Mr. Dawe said he possessed many letters which he had received from Jasper Snowdon and other leading men in Yorkshire. They were well worth preserving, and he hoped to hand them over to the Yorkshire Association for that purpose (applause). He hoped the association would always prosper. He referred to the youngsters' peal, which he organised, and to the perfect ringing which they had on that occasion. The peal was called by a boy from Sheffield, and the youngster belonging to Grayford, who rang the tenor, was also with them that night (applause). Continuing, Mr. Dawe said Jasper Snowdon was a personal friend of his, as was also his brother William. He also valued the honour and privilege of knowing their third president, Canon Marshall, who had filled the office for 25 years. He hoped Canon Marshall would long be spared to preside over them, looking as hale, as hearty and as happy as he did at that moment (applause).

PRESIDENT'S SILVER JUBILEE.

Canon Solloway, in felicitous and humorous terms, proposed 'The Chairman.' He congratulated him upon celebrating his silver jubilee as president of the association. He hoped he would be spared many years to continue the splendid work he was doing for change ringing in Yorkshire (applause). His name was a household word in Leeds, and everywhere among people who loved bells he was beloved and appreciated (applause).

Canon Marshall, whose health was drunk with musical honours, said that, as he came year after year to that dinner, he felt very unworthy to have been called to follow in the steps of the great worthies who had made the name of the Yorkshire Association and who did so much to build up its foundations. He could in no sense pretend to be a ringer of the calibre of those who had gone before, but there was one thing in which he could vie with them. He believed he had the same love for the Yorkshire Association and the same desire to build on the foundations which they laid and to try to hand on the work which had been entrusted to him in the state of efficiency and comradeship in which he came to it.

The pleasing musical programme was sustained by a double quartette, led by Mr. E. Godley, who, with Mr. Fred Holmes, also contributed songs. Mr. Holmes' topical song, which introduced lines about many of the people present, caused great amusement. 'Auld Lang Syne' and the National Anthem brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

NEW GUILD IN NORTH YORKSHIRE.

TEESIDE RINGERS' ACTIVITY.

For some time now a section of the Cleveland and North Yorkshire Association has been doing good work in the Teeside area by holding monthly practice meetings. These gatherings have been at Ormesby, Guisbrough, Skelton and Saltburn in rotation, and attendances of 15 to 20 ringers have been quite usual, members being present from the towers mentioned and other towers in the vicinity.

The last meeting, held on October 3rd, was a particularly useful one, ringers gathering from Saltburn, Guisbrough, Ormesby, Darlington and Middlesbrough at the eight-bell tower at Skelton. The local ringers were there in full force. The ringing was of a high standard throughout, varying from plain courses up to 1,000's in all the standard methods up to Double Norwich. No small mead of praise is due to the young band in turning in the 24 cwt. tenor to the eight-bell methods. The next meeting is fixed for Saturday, November 7th, at Guisbrough, and a hearty invitation is extended to all ringers.

A scheme is on foot to make the informal gatherings into the Teeside Guild of the Cleveland and North Yorkshire Association, and it is more than probable that the other sections of the association will follow the good example set them by their Teeside brethren, and band together for local practices, thus doing much good to the art in their district.

BARRON BELL TRUST'S GIFT.BELLS RESTORED AT ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

Restored by the Barron Bell Trust, the bells of St. Peter's Church, Ashton-under-Lyne, were dedicated on Sunday, October 4th, by the Archdeacon of Manchester (Ven. A. Selwyn Bean). The work included tuning and rehanging in a new frame and was carried out by Messrs. Taylor and Co. The service was attended by the Mayor (Councillor Mrs. Heginbottom), the Mayoress (Mrs. George Heginbottom), the aldermen and councillors of the borough. There was a crowded congregation and the Vicar (the Rev. L. A. Owen) led the service, which opened with the hymn, 'Onward, Christian Soldiers.' The Rector of Aston and Rural Dean read the lesson, from Rev. i., 10-18.

The inscriptions on the first seven bells, set to music, were sung as a processional as the Archdeacon, clergy, churchwardens and others proceeded to the west entrance, where the Vicar greeted the bell-ringers, the representative of the Emma Barron Bell Trust and of the bellfounders, with the words, 'May the Lord preserve your going out and your coming in, and strengthen you to perform the service to which He has called you, now and for evermore.' He then requested the Archdeacon to dedicate the bells and frame 'to the glory and praise of God, in this first year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord King Edward.'

After the formal prayers and dedication, the keeper of the tower tolled one of the bells seven times. A tablet recording the fact that the bells were rehanging in new framework at the cost of the Barron Bell Trust was then dedicated, and the hymn, 'Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven,' having been sung, the bells were rung by the local band: Mrs. Wolstencroft 1, Mrs. T. G. Hawkins (nee Miss Ida Wolstencroft) 2, Miss E. Grimshaw 3, R. Wimpenny 4, J. Clayton 5, T. G. Hawkins 6, W. W. Wolstencroft 7, F. Robinson 8.

The Archdeacon's inspiring address was based on 'The Angelus,' picturing God, Work and Love. A goodly number of ringers from the surrounding towns took the limited opportunity of having a pull before returning to do duty at their own respective churches. The first touch on the bells was rung by Alfred Barnes 1, W. Fernley 2, J. A. Milner 3, W. W. Wolstencroft 4, J. Fernley 5, Kenneth Lewis 6, T. G. Hawkins 7, J. P. Pidler 8. The work of rehanging has been carried out in a manner which leaves nothing to be desired. The tone, after tuning, is such that a veteran of 85 years said, whilst he was ringing, that the bells sounded like a great organ and made him feel he could live another 100 years.

SHOCKS TO THE TOWER.

The Church of St. Peter, Ashton-under-Lyne, is one of the churches provided by Act of Parliament in 1821 in the reign of King George as a thankoffering of the nation. It is built in Gothic style, with perpendicular tower, the height of which is 128ft. to the topmost stone. It has several times been struck by lightning, causing damage to various parts, but the greatest shock it received was during the terrific explosion which took place during the war on June 13th, 1917, when 52 persons were killed and almost every window in the town was shattered and the roofs lifted off the houses in the vicinity, including the church itself.

It is during recent times that much of the unseen damage has revealed itself, entailing an expenditure on the fabric of nearly £2,000, of which £1,000 has been spent on the tower itself. There still remains (if the wishes of the parishioners and others are to be met), another £400 to complete the tower by placing mullions or louvres in the openings above the bells, which have been brought down 15ft.

The inscriptions on the bells are as follow:—

- Treble:—
'My gentle note shall lead the cheerful sound,
Peace to this parish, may goodwill abound!'
- 2nd:—
'Our voices tell when joy or grief betide,
Mourn with the mourner, welcome home the bride.'
- 3rd:—
'May all in truth and harmony rejoice,
To honour Church and King, with heart and voice.'
- 4th:—
'Prosperity attend old England's shore,
Let Ashton flourish, now, and evermore.'
- 5th:—
'With loving voice I call to church and prayer,
And bid the living for the grave prepare.'
- 6th:—
'For mercies undeserved this peal is raised,
So may Thy name, O God, through Christ be praised.'
- 7th:—
'Grateful for all and every blessing here,
We look on high in faith, and without fear.
The goodness of our God we do proclaim,
Let priest and people praise His Holy Name.'
- Tenor:—
'This peal of eight bells (tenor 20 cwt.) was given to St. Peter's Church, Ashton, 1871, by George Heginbottom, Esq., J.P., Mayor of the borough in the years 1853, 1854 and 1855, to the honour and glory of God.'

THORNCOMBE'S ANCIENT BELLS RESTORED.DORSET PARISH COLLECTS 144,000 HALFPENNIES.

The rededication of Thorncombe's church bells, after complete restoration, was performed by the Bishop of Salisbury (Dr. Neville Lovett) on Thursday evening, September 17th. This was the first bell dedication ceremony by the Bishop since his consecration as Bishop of the Diocese.

The service marked the culmination of 18 months' labours by the Vicar (the Rev. A. B. Hardy) and his parishioners. The whole of the money has been raised, and 144,000 halfpennies—the original halfpenny fund appeal by the Vicar—formed the greater part of the amount which had to be raised for the restoration. To raise the whole of the money in so short time is a remarkable achievement for such a sparsely populated parish as Thorncombe.

The bells form one of the heaviest rings of five in the country. No. 1 bell was faulty, but owing to its age—1637—it has been welded in the hope that it may last many years without having recourse to recasting it. There were a number of holes in the crown of this bell, and they have been filled by the welding process. The tenor bell, which dates back to 1772, and which now weighs 20 cwt., has been recast, after having been cracked for more than 30 years.

A new frame has been built on the latest modern principles and consists of massive iron castings supported by heavy steel girders, which span the tower and not only ensure easy manipulation of the bells by the ringers, but assist in bonding the walls of the tower together.

The new fittings include cast iron headstocks and ball bearings, which have been supplied in place of the old plain bearings, and many other improvements have been introduced into the belfry.

A congregation of well over 300 filled the church, and many were unable to obtain accommodation.

The robed clergy who took part in the impressive service included the Rural Dean (Canon Jacob, of Monkton Wyld), Canon Lee, of Whitechurch Canoncorum, the Revs. L. Richardson (Wanbrook), E. W. Coles (Broadwindsor), F. D. Richardson (Wimsham), B. H. Warner (All Saints', Axminster), J. H. Timberlake (Marshwood), A. J. Shields (formerly of Beltiscombe), H. Marks (Hawkechurch), C. Carew Cox (Lyme Regis) and E. R. Davies.

During the course of his address the Bishop said: 'This is an occasion for joy and thanksgiving, for your bells have been altogether silent for about 18 months, and it is something like 25 years and more since they were heard at full strength, ringing out over the parish. Now you have got them back with you again, fully equipped to serve their purpose in connection with your service to Almighty God and human souls. I was most interested to hear how eagerly and gleefully you have raised the necessary money by your halfpenny fund.'

In the house of God, he said, the bells are the speech of God. 'I always pray for the ringers of the diocese each week as they are helping the bells to speak to the people about God. I find, too, people often look uncomfortable when they hear the bells and they are going elsewhere than church. The most beautiful peal of bells and the most perfectly restored set is not going to do any good at all unless the people who answer the summons of the bells are in tune with the mind of Jesus Christ.'

After the service the bells rang out merrily, and the following ringers took part in the first 120 of Grand sire Doubles: J. E. Philbrick (Lyme Regis) 1, L. Glyde (Beamminster) 2, T. Gunning (Beamminster) 3, Rev. C. Carew Cox (chairman of the West Dorset Branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild, conductor) 4, E. T. Paul Field (Buckland Newton, the Ringing Master of the Dorchester Branch) 5, Mr. C. H. Lathey, the secretary of the West Dorset Branch of the Guild, and Mr. Cyril Johnston, of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, also took part in the subsequent ringing.

Altogether over 60 ringers were present, the towers represented being, in addition to those already mentioned, Chardstock, Wanbrook, Whitechurch and Bradpole.

The whole of the bell work and reinstatement of the clock striking gear has been carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, who have many other contracts in hand at the moment in the West of England.

The blending of the old bells, which have been carefully tuned, with the perfectly toned recast tenor, and the excellent 'go' of this heavy five were greatly appreciated by the visiting ringers.

On Thursday, September 17th, a short train journey to Holywood found a rather light peal by Taylors, 1891, at the Church of SS. Philip and James. It cannot be said, however, that the bells are Taylor's best. Here the first peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major in Ireland was rung, conducted by Frank Bennett, and two members of the band earned stars.

Another eight miles and Bangor was reached, where Leslie Morris called the first peal of Superlative on the bells at St. Congall's Church. These bells are by Taylors, 1899, and hang in two tiers. The tenor weighs 21 cwt., and the go of the bells is not good. Mr. S. Miller, leader of the local band, very kindly got over the picture postcard difficulty by supplying enough for all to have one.

On the way back to Belfast, Mr. W. Pratt, hon. secretary, Northern Branch of the Irish Association, and Mrs. Pratt joined the tourists and returned with them to their hotel for supper and a quiet social evening.

Friday, September 18th, was a black (and almost black) day. It rained nearly all day and the interesting ten miles' road journey to Hillsborough was spoiled. St. Malachi's Church was built in 1663 by Col. the Rt. Hon. Arthur Hill, M.P. for Down, Antrim and Armagh. It was entirely restored by his great-grandson, the first Marquis of Downshire, Secretary of State for the Colonies, in 1774. The Marquis also provided a peal of eight bells (by Rudhall) and a very fine organ, built by Snetzler. The great drawback to peal ringing is the position of the tenor rope, which hangs in the centre of the tower, with the other bells in a circle around it. Further, the 'go' of the bells is not at all good. An attempt for Cambridge, with Bill Brown calling, and Rupert, of Surfleet, on the tenor, came to grief after nearly two hours' ringing. This was the first failure of the week.

Whilst the ringing was in progress the other members of the party were conducted over the interesting church by the Rector, the Rev. F. Matchett, and a visit was also paid to an old fort close by. J. H. S. concluded his morning coffee parties on this particular day, and it was at last realised why he never wished to ring in the morning's peal. Oh, these bachelors!

Drogheda was the next objective. A two hours' train journey from Belfast, with a stop at Dundalk for Customs examination of luggage, and the party alighted. A reverend gentleman on the platform singled out Gabriel, whispered a few hurried words, and everybody was ordered back into the train. It was afterwards found that there could be no ringing at Drogheda owing to the death of the Archbishop the previous day.

BACK IN DUBLIN

Dublin was reached at 5.30, some hours earlier than was expected, and to save the situation a handbell peal of Bob Major was rung, Rupert making another on the list of successful conductors during the week. Ernest Turner was the 'official umpire,' whilst Bob Pye, although he appeared to be asleep, sat up and took notice when Rupert was about to call a single at half-way. Is Bob ever asleep whilst bells are ringing?

Saturday, September 19th. No resting and no coffee party as a twelve-bell peal had to be rung. J. H. S. offered his apologies to the ladies, and mounted the tenor box in St. Patrick's helfry. These lovely bells sounded glorious when rung to Stedman Cinques, and a good peal was completed in about 34 hours. It was Ernest Turner's first twelve-bell peal, and he rang like an old hand. There are 14 bells, all by Taylor, in this tower, and two peals of twelve, three of ten, and four of eight, are obtainable.

Lunch had to be hurried, as there was another peal to be rung. With one or two members of the party crying 'enough,' it seemed a little doubtful about the band, but eight good men and true rushed off to St. George's Church for the last peal of the tour, and Jim Bennett had the satisfaction of adding his name to the list of conductors. Thus out of the twelve peals attempted only one was lost, whilst nine members of the party had the satisfaction of calling a peal during the week's ringing. This surely must be a record.

This peal ended the 'business' of the tour; indeed, there was little time left for anything else. Leslie Morris, who, by the way, bagged the highest score of the week, decided at the last minute to stay in Dublin until the next day, whilst Rupert and his good lady, who were travelling by the Liverpool boat, had nearly four hours to spare. The rest of the party, however, had very little time to say 'Au revoir,' and to thank Gabriel for the excellent arrangements he had made. The official vote of thanks had to be made from the window of a carriage on the boat train at Westland Row, but it was quite clear that Gabriel's efforts had been rewarded by the successes attained. J. H. S. made his small parting gifts to the ladies, even though he was travelling with two of them to London.

The trip across the channel was, happily, quite a pleasant one, with no casualties. Seats were, luckily, reserved at Holyhead, as there was standing room only in the London portion of the train by the time the Customs officials had passed the luggage. London was reached early on Sunday morning; the two James went off to Cornwall for another week's ringing; and the rest of the party made their way to their respective destinations to get breakfast and sleep!

The tour was a great experience, well worth doing, and it is to be hoped that a good deal of missionary work was accomplished. Certainly if the enthusiasm shown by Irish ringers over the visit does not wane, then much good will have been done.

PEAL STANDARDS.

There are peals, and peals. They are rung at an average of forty or more a week, and some are good, some bad and some indifferent. Where the line should be drawn between those worthy of being put on record, and those that are not, it is difficult to say; nor is it possible to set any definite standard of what should be recognised as a peal, in regard to the actual striking. It has long since become established practice that only a true peal shall be recognised; anything false is at once taboo. The question has often been raised as to how far allowance can be made for trips which, in a peal of Triples for instance, must inevitably cause a repetition of changes. The first essential of a 'peal' is that the composition shall be true; the second that there shall be no 'shift' or 'change course' between any two bells in the ringing; but to what extent trips may be allowed before a peal is invalidated there is no recognised standard, and, indeed, opinions differ widely.

Strictly, every peal should be rung without any mistake that would put the bells out of order; but very few reach that level. A certain amount of latitude is inevitable, but there are some peals recorded and accepted which have been of more than doubtful merit. Very occasionally they are called into question and one such instance occurs this week. A correspondent has written to us expressing surprise at the publication of a peal, the report of which appeared in our last issue. Had he felt able to allow his name to be attached to his communication his letter would have been printed, but where a performance is definitely challenged it is only fair to the band responsible for the performance that it should be backed by the name of the challenger. He refers to trips in which the bells clashed for minutes together, and says that on each of these occasions the conductor should have called 'stand.' Without going into further details of this particular instance, we think ringers generally will agree that where there are really bad 'crashes,' the bells should stop, especially if they cannot quickly be sorted out; and this in the interests of the public, who are enforced listeners, as well as of maintaining the standard of ringing. It is no credit to the band and no satisfaction to the individual to record a peal in which things have gone so hopelessly wrong that there are minutes of clashing and banging. More than one well-known conductor in the past has been credited with saying to his band, when the bells have got into a hopeless muddle, 'Fire 'em and then do as I tell you.' If that is true, it may indicate that the person concerned was a clever conductor, but it also shows that he was unscrupulous. We have great admiration for the man who can disentangle the bells when they get into a muddle, but he should put a limit to the extent to which he should go and still call it a 'peal.' Every conductor will probably have his own ideas as to what that limit should be, but there is more credit due to him when he has the courage to stop, than in going from muddle to muddle and calling it a peal.

CHANGING THE HUNT BELL IN GRANDSIRE.

Having given Doubles ringers time, we hope, to assimilate what we said in our issue of September 18th and to practise Original, which is the basis of all Doubles methods, let us turn to a further variety of ways in which Grandsire may be rung, as a line of advance for Doubles men.

In its original form Grandsire has, of course, the treble as the hunt bell, but it will probably have been observed from what was said about Original that any one of the five bells may be the hunt bell: in other words, in Original any bell may become the 'observation' bell for calling a 120, and as the observation bell in Original is equivalent to the treble in Grandsire, if you practise Original with different observation bells you can very soon adapt yourselves to ringing Grandsire with different hunt bells. To ring several six-scores on end, with a change of the hunt bell in each 120, will be found good fun, as well as useful practice.

If you studied No. 2 of the illustrations given in our previous article, you will have observed how the bells started, namely, not 21354, but 21435, followed by 24153, and so on. Now if you ring Grandsire with any other hunt bell but the treble, that is the way you must start.

42513

That is a course of Original. If you want to turn it into Grandsire with either the 2, 3, 4 or 5 as hunt bell, you make 3rd's place after the bell, which you select for the hunt bell, has led. For instance, if 2 is the hunt bell, then 3rd's place is made in the first lead by the treble; if 4 is the hunt bell, 3rd's place is made by 2; if 5 is the hunt bell, the place is made by 4; and if 3 is the hunt bell, then the place is made by 5 and a course of Original becomes a lead of Grandsire.

The 3rd's, of course, must be made at the corresponding position in every lead, and the bells by an additional 3rd's before the hunt bell leads (just as is done in Grandsire in its original form, when treble is the hunt bell). All the ten usual callings can be used, so that by changing the hunt bell the 120 can be produced in 50 different ways. Thus you can ring a peal without ringing the six-score of changes in exactly the same order twice. It is worth doing.

In calling it, of course, the conductor must say which bell is the hunt bell each time he changes it, otherwise the ringers will not know when 3rd's place has to be made and when the dodges come, unless they have an agreed plan beforehand, such as 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, in succession.

One point that has to be borne in mind is that every time the treble is the selected bell, 3rd's place has to be made immediately. If this is forgotten it will 'upset the applears.'

As readers who have conducted Grandsire Doubles will know, when the treble is the hunt bell, the 'observation' bell, or the 'half hunt' bell as it is sometimes called, because it follows the same regular work throughout, can be either the 3rd or the 5th; the former if the calling begins at the first lead, the latter when it begins at the second lead.

When you use the 2nd as the hunt bell, the 1 or 5 can be used as 'half hunt' bell; when the 3rd is used, the half hunt is either 2 or 5; with the 4th, either 3 or 2; and with the 5th, either 1 or 4.

This way of ringing Grandsire is not new. Fabian Stedman told us all about it in his first book, published 1668. Yet how many ringers have ever tried it? Well, it offers something fresh for Doubles ringers, and, despite its age, can be practised in many five and six bell towers as something 'new.'

NORTH STAFFS ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the North Staffs and District Association was held at Stone on Saturday, October 10th. Thirty-seven members were present from Burslem, Burton-on-Trent, Draycott, Cheadle, Kingsley, Kidsgrove, Longton, Lullington, Norton, Newcastle, Overseale, Stoke-on-Trent, Uttoxeter, Cuthbert and the local company.

The Rev. T. D. Rhodes (curate) conducted the service, whilst the Rev. H. Lee (Rector) was at the organ.

Tea followed in the Schoolroom, which was kindly given by the Stone ringers. A very warm welcome was extended to all present by the Rector, and the usual votes of thanks were accorded to the Rector and to the ringers.

Two new members were elected, viz., C. Morley, of Newcastle, and E. Cope, of Stone.

During the afternoon and evening a good variety of methods was rung, and everyone remarked how well the bells 'go.' They wish to congratulate Messrs. Taylor and Co. on the fine work they have done.

HANDBELL RINGERS THRILL LARGE AUDIENCE.

WATFORD BAND RING SPICED SURPRISE AT SOCIAL.

For some years now the Oxford Diocesan Guild and the Middlesex County Association have met at Hillingdon in October. The Ladies' Guild joined in this year and last. With a social in the evening, there has always been a good attendance. Last Saturday week all records were broken when some 90 ringers and friends gathered there. It was a fine day, there were two rings of bells available and finally, and undoubtedly the biggest attraction, the handbell band were due to be present and ring.

The ringing at the two towers was like the proverbial curate's egg, but some Cambridge Royal at St. John's after tea could not have been bettered. The two Ringing Masters in charge had a busy time, but with such a large attendance it would be remarkable if everyone was pleased.

A bright and enjoyable service was conducted by the Vicar of Hillingdon (the Rev. A. M. Bashford). The lesson was read by Mr. J. A. Trollope, vice-president of the Middlesex Association, and one of the local ringers played the organ. When the party assembled for tea, hurried arrangements had to be made to extend the accommodation, etc. Perhaps the caterers can be forgiven, as there were notifications from 35, attendance estimated at 60 and actually 80 sat down!

After tea Mr. Trollope welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Middlesex Association, and Mrs. Fletcher, for the Ladies' Guild, and Mr. A. D. Barker, for the Oxford Diocesan Guild, replied. Hearty thanks were accorded to the local folk for the arrangements made, especially the Vicar and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Goodfellow.

Shortly after 7.30, the party reassembled in St. John's Hall to enjoy a pleasant social evening. Games and dancing were interspersed with various items. The big attraction of the evening was, of course, the famous handbell band from Watford. Amid the keenest interest, these talented ringers sat in the middle of the hall and kept the audience enthralled for over a quarter of an hour with a touch of Spiced Surprise Major in the four 'usual' methods. Apart from the skill in ringing the methods, the ringing was superb and well merited the applause which greeted the successful conclusion of the touch. H. Hodgetts rang 1-2, C. W. Woolley 3-4, H. G. Cashmore 5-6 and F. W. Brinklow 7-8.

Mr. Trollope thanked the band for coming to Hillingdon and congratulated them on their performance. Full of modesty, Mr. Hodgetts replied, explaining how easy it was! He praised the audience for their attention, for, as the Vicar said later, to 'hear' the silence whilst the ringing was in progress impressed him as a non-ringer nearly as much as the ringing!

One other item worthy of mention was another handbell band, who excelled in a different direction. Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Barker and Mr. W. L. Gutteridge delighted the audience with a selection of tunes on their bells, and finally had their listeners singing with them.

Refreshments were served during the evening under the supervision of Mrs. Goodfellow, who had a busy day catering for such a large party.

Ringers were present from many Middlesex, Bucks and Berks towers, as well as visitors from Bushey, Watford, Edmonton, Willesden, Westminster and Aldershot.

STAVELEY'S IMPROVED BELLS.

DERBYSHIRE AND YORKSHIRE RINGERS VISIT.

An invitation was extended to ringers at neighbouring churches to visit Staveley for the purpose of trying the bells, now that they have been put in good repair, the work having included rehanging on ball bearings. Ringing, which commenced at 3 p.m., continued until 5 o'clock, when the company, including the Rector (the Rev. H. H. Dibben), Fr. Douglas and McKittrick (churchwarden), adjourned to the Church Hall for tea, kindly provided by the Rector and served by Mrs. F. E. Parsons and her helpers. The visitors, numbering about 35, were from Chesterfield, Bolsover, Sheffield (Cathedral and R.C.), Rotherham, Treton, North Wingfield, Old Whittington, Eckington, Clowne, Darley Dale, Ecclesfield and Dore, and a representative from the firm of John Taylor and Co., who had undertaken the work of restoration.

After tea the Rector welcomed the visitors and mentioned the new scheme for installing the Westminster chimes to the Parish Church clock, which brought forth a spontaneous collection for the fund.

Messrs. H. Taylor (Darley Dale), A. Knights, W. Allwood (Chesterfield), C. Harrison (Loughborough) and G. Lewis (Ecclesfield) then delighted the company by their skill in change ringing on handbells. Ringing was then again indulged in on the church bells until after 8 o'clock. The striking throughout the day was unusually good for a gathering of this description, and all the visitors expressed their appreciation of the great improvement made to the bells and the pleasure it was to ring them.

A quarter-peal of Bob Major (1,264 changes) was rung for evening service on the occasion of the harvest festival on Sunday, October 4th: D. Parsons (aged 16 years, longest length) 1, L. G. Palmer 2, F. E. Parsons 3, S. Smedley 4, H. Stow 5, W. T. Palmer 6, J. Knott 7, A. E. Parsons (conductor) 8. The ringers of 3rd, tenor and treble are father, son and grandson respectively. It is believed to be the first time three generations of the same family have rung a quarter-peal on these bells. All the band are Sunday service ringers.

DEATH OF MR. WILLIAM RICHARDSON.FORMER SURFLEET AND PINCHBECK RINGER.

On Monday, October 12th, the death occurred of Mr. William Richardson, of Glen Side, Pinchbeck, Lincs, and brother of Mr. Rupert Richardson, Master of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild. The deceased was born at Goodrich, Herefordshire, in 1885, from there he came with his family to Lincolnshire, and eventually to Surfleet, where he learnt to ring during the incumbency of the late Rev. H. Law James.

For some years he was a very active member of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild, taking part in upwards of 70 peals, including the first peal of Surfleet Treble Bob Caters ever rung, the first peal of Cambridge Surprise Major in the county and the first peal in 16 spliced Minor methods ever rung. Just before the war he married and went to live at Pinchbeck, where for a time he was a member of St. Mary's band. Later ill-health compelled him to give up peal ringing. For some years he continued to ring for service, but eventually had to give that up also. He was always punctual for service ringing, a keen peal ringer and a fine striker, especially when ringing the tenor behind.

For the past three or four years he had been a helpless invalid, and, although not confined to bed, had been unable to do work of any kind. He had, however, an active brain up to the end and was able, with the help of his two sons, to carry on his business of bulb growing and farming. Although barred in later years from taking an active part in ringing, he was always a keen critic of any ringing he heard, and did not hesitate to tell the band just what he thought of the striking.

He took such an interest in ringing that only about ten days before his death he had his son drive him over to the half-yearly meeting of the Northern Branch, at Heckington, so that he could listen for a few minutes to the bells he loved so well. The following Thursday he was taken worse, but recovered sufficiently to pay another visit to his old home at Surfleet on Sunday. The recovery, however, did not last long, and he passed peacefully away on the Monday evening.

The funeral took place on Friday, October 16th. The first part of the service was held at St. Mary's Church, Pinchbeck, and was conducted by the Rev. E. C. Gee, president of the Elloe Deaneries Branch of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild. The deceased's favourite hymn, 'Through all the changing scenes of life,' was sung, and the cortege left the church to the strains of the Dead March in 'Saul.' The interment took place at the Pinchbeck Cemetery.

The bells of St. Mary's Church, Pinchbeck, were rung muffled in the evening.

CONGRATULATIONS TO B.B.C.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I wonder how many of our Exercise were 'listening in' on Sunday night at 7.55 p.m. and heard the B.B.C. do that which they have been at great pains in the past to explain 'could not be done.' The preliminary announcement was brief and concise, a matter of a few seconds, and was delivered before the ringing was switched on.

I enclose copy of my latest letter to them, and would suggest that, as soon as they revert to the old style of 'superimposed announcements,' they should be bombarded through the post, with the broadcast from Immanuel Church, Streatham, on October 18th, quoted as a precedent.

T. GROOMBRIDGE.

Crayford.

Mr. Groombridge's letter to the British Broadcasting Corporation was as follows:—

Having had occasion in the past to protest very strongly against your method of announcing church services 'over the head' of the ringing which occasionally precedes these services, may I have the pleasure of being among the first to congratulate you on your action last evening in making your announcement in a manner which must have given satisfaction to untold numbers of listening ringers up and down the country.

At 7.55 prompt your announcer very briefly and concisely announced 'The Regional Programme—A service from Immanuel Church, Streatham, with the name of the preacher, etc.,' and then the bells were brought in and the whole touch could be heard without the irritating break in the middle which has been the cause of my previous protests.

I might add that I had the company of two ringers last evening, who both desire to support this appreciation.

FUNERAL OF MR. H. S. ELLIS.

The funeral of the late Mr. Henry S. Ellis took place at Brompton Cemetery on October 1st. The first part of the service was held at the Church of SS. Stephen and Mary, Rochester Row, Westminster, the Rev. A. J. Meek (curate) officiating in the absence of the Vicar (the Rev. Shipley S. Smith). Four College Youths attended at the cemetery, including two past Masters, but owing to the service at the cemetery being put forward a quarter of an hour, only six bells could be rung over the open grave. This was done in slow time and was much appreciated. About 20 floral wreaths were laid on the grave. Mr. Ellis was the oldest sidesman at St. Stephen's and always attended his Parish Church.

The ring of eight at Lurgan Parish Church, Ireland, are being rehung with new fittings in a new frame by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

The annual supper and social of the South and West District of the Middlesex Association will be held at Heston on January 16th, 1937.

The Royal Cumberland Youths are proposing to hold a dinner in London. The event is to take place on March 13th at the Bedford Head Hotel, and will, of course, be open to all ringers and their friends. Mr. J. E. Bailey, of 75, Kent Road, Dartford, Kent, is secretary of the Dinner Committee.

Correspondents who have written to know where handbell music can be obtained are informed that a catalogue of pieces arranged and published by the late William Gordon can still be obtained on application to William Gordon, 37, Norwood Road, Great Moor, Stockport.

Bishop Hamilton-Baynes (Rector of Birmingham Cathedral Church) and his wardens are issuing an appeal for £1,000 for the recasting and rehanging of the Cathedral bells.

A facetious member of the Exercise wants to know if it was because William Morris (Lord Nuffield) has just given a million pounds to Oxford that his namesake 'Ernest' chose to call a peal last Saturday of all Oxford Minor (Double, Treble and Single) at Belton, Rutland?

Mr. Malcolm Melville, hon. secretary of the Warwickshire Guild, is among the successful candidates for the degree of B.Sc. at Birmingham University.

Four ringers visited Blackpool the other day, and after ringing in two of the towers, visiting the amusements, etc., decided to go on to the North Pier. The first was about to go through the turnstile when one of the others exclaimed that he could hear some bells ringing. Immediately all four took to their heels and dashed off in the direction of the sound, much to the astonishment of the pier attendant. Eager to add another tower to their lists, they eventually traced the sound to the Town Hall, but by the time they reached it the bells had stopped. A paper seller was asked if the ringing came from the tower above, and his reply was, 'Yes, mate, it's a gramophone as plays 'em every quarter of an hour.'

THE CORONATION.

EDWARD PEAL BANDS SUGGESTED.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—There could not be a more fitting and appropriate method for ringers to celebrate the Coronation of His Majesty the King—the eighth Edward of England—than by one or more peal bands of eight Edwards each.

As one of those who is obviously precluded from taking part in this particular form of celebration, I make the suggestion to those who were more kindly treated by their godfathers and godmothers.

If there are no difficulties of an insuperable nature in the way, the perfect place to ring an Edwards' peal would be in the Abbey tower at some time on May 12th after the ceremony.—Yours faithfully,

A. J. CORRIGAN.

AN OLD SUSSEX RINGER.

MR. G. A. KING IN RETIREMENT IN CANADA.

Old Sussex ringers who remember George A. King, a member of the St. Peter's, Brighton, company for over 20 years, among them the days when these ringers were pioneers of Surprise practice, will be interested and pleased to hear of his well-being.

Mr. King left England in 1908 for Canada, and after four years spent on a ranch at Castlegar, went to Nelson, so that his wife, who was ill, might be near a doctor. For 23 years he was an employe of the News Publishing Co., Ltd., and now, at the age of 74 years, he has sought well-earned retirement. On his departure he was the recipient of the good wishes of the whole staff, together with an address, and 'a pouch well filled with silver dollars,' the parting gift of employes in all departments.

Mr. and Mrs. King have been wedded for 47 years. They have a son in Idaho, four granddaughters and two great-grandsons. His old friends in England will wish Mr. King many years of health to enjoy his leisure. He was one of the first members of the Sussex County Association and his first peal was the first by the association. It was rung on January 26th, 1885, at Cuckfield, the formation of the association having taken place only two days earlier. There is only one other survivor of that peal, and that is Mr. Charles Tyler, who is still an active member of the Henfield band.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY GUILD.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I regret that I was entirely wrong, when writing of the late Rev. A. H. F. Boughey, in giving the impression that B. Great Court, Trinity College, would no longer be the headquarters of the Cambridge University Guild. Through the kindness of Dr. H. F. Stewart, the property of the Guild is still kept there and meetings held. I tender my apologies to those concerned.

EAST BUCKLAND BELLS REHUNG. SCHOOLBOYS FORM RINGERS' GUILD.

On Thursday morning, October 15th, the bells of East Buckland Church, North Devon, recently restored by Messrs. Taylor and Co., Loughborough, were rededicated by the Bishop of Crediton.

The four heavier bells (tenor $7\frac{1}{2}$ cwt.) were cast by E. and W. Evans, of Chepstow, in 1718, two trebles being added by Mears and Stainbank in 1906 in an auxiliary frame above the other four. The timber frame had become rotten and insecure, and it was decided this year to rehang the bells in a metal frame on one level, and at the same time to retune and quarter-turn them.

Members of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers rang a few rounds during the service, and short touches of Grandsire Doubles and Bob Minor after the morning service and again before evensong, at which the Rev. E. V. Cox, president of the Guild, preached. Members of the band were the Rev. E. V. Cox (Brampford Speke), the Rev. A. Rhys-James (Bow), the Rev. W. H. Smale, F. C. Smale (Petrockstowe), W. H. R. Smale (Okehampton), A. W. Searle (Exeter), H. J. Rowe (Brampford Speke). It was the first time change ringing had been heard in the tower, and few present had ever heard anything but call-changes before.

In the course of the day the local ringers and several neighbouring bands tried the bells, and all were delighted with the 'go' of the peal. To those who remembered the bells before, it was obvious that the tone had been much improved.

The boys of West Buckland School attend the church, and have formed a guild of ringers among themselves, with a membership at present of twelve. None of them had learned to ring before Easter of this year, and, being more than twelve miles from the nearest change ringing tower, there is no one to instruct them. But a copy of 'Troyte' and much enthusiasm, aided by generous help from the Rev. E. V. Cox, have gone far, and they hope within a few weeks to be doing at least Bob Doubles for Sunday service. They are nothing if not ambitious, and already have plans for a 5,000 in honour of the Coronation.

The boys have an enthusiastic leader in their chaplain, the Rev. J. H. B. Andrews, who is curate at East Buckland Church.

The bell restoration fund was started about a year ago and was organised by the Rev. H. A. Wadman (Rector) and the Rev. J. H. B. Andrews. The total cost of the work, £252 6s., has been realised through social events and grants made by the Pcoffees' Committee (£100) and the governing body of West Buckland School (25 guineas).

PETERBOROUGH DIOCESAN GUILD. WELLINGBOROUGH BRANCH.

After a lapse of four years the Wellingborough Branch of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild held a meeting at Stanwick on October 10th, by kind permission of the Rector, the Rev. W. F. M. Hamerton. The visit coincided with the harvest festival.

The Guild service was held during the afternoon, conducted by the Rector, who heartily welcomed the branch and gave a short address. He said how much the clergy appreciated the work of the ringers as churchworkers. He wished there would be more young men take up the work of the church in its various branches. He found that it was always the 'faithful few' who were left, and could be relied on to do the work. The musical part of the service was led by Mr. Clark at the organ. He is a ringer.

A substantial tea was provided in the Church Hall by Mr. W. R. Lovell, the local foreman, and about 30 were present, including members of the Thrapston, Kettering and Peterborough branches, and Mr. Stote, of Coventry. In the absence of the branch president (the Rev. A. G. Bagshaw), the chair at the business meeting was taken by the Rector.

Subject to permission, Higham Ferrers was chosen for the annual branch meeting next January.

The Chairman, in well-chosen words, appealed to the ringers to back up the secretary in his work for the Guild, and made reference to the valuable work done by Mr. P. Barber whilst he was with them as branch secretary.—Mr. A. Bigby thanked the Rector. He also appealed to those present to get in full practice again this winter, especially in view of the forthcoming Coronation ceremonies, when they would be expected to play their part.

Mr. W. Perkins, Branch Ringing Master, asked that more would take 'The Ringing World.'

The light musical peal of five bells was kept going during the afternoon and evening, chiefly to Stedman and Grandsire Doubles.

BELLS BEAT SPEAKERS.

Blind marchers from Lancashire and Cheshire arrived in Macclesfield on Tuesday of last week, and were holding a meeting in the Market Place when the bells at the Parish Church started ringing. The speakers were unable to make themselves heard.

Twice they moved to a fresh 'pitch,' the second, a quarter of a mile away, before they could hold their meeting. The Chairman said there was no ill-feeling against the Vicar of Macclesfield, whose kindness in allowing them the use of the mission hall for headquarters was much appreciated.

The ringing was a peal of Grandsire Cluques, which was successfully accomplished.

LIVELY KENT ASSOCIATION MEETING.

CHANGE IN LEWISHAM DISTRICT OFFICIALS.

The annual meeting of the Lewisham District of the Kent County Association was held at the Church of the Annunciation, Chislehurst, on Saturday, October 10th, when some 60 members attended, representing the following towers: Beckenham, Bromley Common, St. Nicholas', Chislehurst, Crayford, Dartford, Deptford, St. John's, Deptford, Eltham, Erith, Lee, Lewisham and Woolwich. Ringing in all the standard methods took place in the afternoon and evening.

During the afternoon Mr. E. H. Lewis, president of the Central Council, addressed the company in a few apt words, before asking Mrs. Serle to unveil a peal tablet recording the first peal on the bells. This peal was rung primarily as a token of appreciation for the completion of the tower and installation of the bells during the Rev. Canon S. E. B. Serle's incumbency, secondarily the date as nearly as possible coincided with his birthday.

Mrs. Serle then unveiled the tablet, which was admired as an excellent example of its kind.

Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., thanked Mrs. Serle for her kindness in attending to perform the ceremony.

Canon and Mrs. Serle each expressed their gratitude and interest in bells and ringing, and a pleasant little ceremony was completed by a well-struck course of Superlative Surprise, prior to the usual service, which was conducted by the Vicar, who gave a very interesting address.

A collection for the Association Benevolent Fund realised £1 2s. 8d. At the conclusion of the service a course of Grandsire Caters was rung on handbells at the chancel steps by Messrs. H. E. Audsley, E. H. Lewis, G. H. Cross, T. Groombridge, jun., and H. Hovard.

Tea was served in the Parish Hall, and was followed by the business meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were prevented by other engagements from attending the meeting, and Mr. W. J. Rawlings (Beckenham) was elected chairman.

After the minutes of the last annual meeting had been confirmed, Mr. E. Barnett moved that the minutes of the last (July) quarterly meeting should also be read, as it was undesirable that minutes should be held over for a whole year before being confirmed. If both minutes were read on this occasion, in future there would be only one set unread, instead of two as at present. This was agreed to and the minutes of the Eynsford meeting were then read and signed.

Six ringers (the young band at Chelsfield) were elected members of the association, the Rector of Chelsfield was enrolled as an hon. member, and the election of two members previous to peals was ratified.

The District Secretary presented a report of the year's work, the balance sheet, etc., and these were adopted.

St. Margaret's, Lee, was chosen as place of next meeting, with St. Nicholas', Deptford, as alternative.

The next business was the election of officers, and at times the meeting became very lively. The chairman's job on this occasion was certainly no sinecure. A. G. Hill was re-elected District Secretary, and Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., was appointed Ringing Master for another year; but the selection of two representatives on the Management Committee demanded a ballot, the first for a considerable period. Five nominations were made: E. A. Barnett (Crayford), W. Smith (Beckenham), A. Purdom (Bromley Common), J. Wheadon (Dartford) and F. J. Cullum (Erith). The two last named were elected.

The usual votes of thanks terminated the meeting, and further ringing in the tower followed.

It would be as well, perhaps, to remind visitors that on these occasions the business meeting is of paramount importance, any ringing after the meeting being an added inducement for their attendance, but 'the meeting is the thing.'

BELL RESTORATION AT BRIDESTOWE, DEVON.

£300 EFFORT BY ALL DENOMINATIONS.

Through the united efforts of all and sundry, the bells of St. Bride's Church, Bridestowe, Devon, are once again in first-class ringing order, and on Thursday, October 1st, they were reopened in true Devonshire style. The restoration was made possible by the generous support of all denominations, about £300 being raised.

Prior to the rededication service in church there was a public luncheon in the Church Institute, presided over by Lord Carrington. During the course of a speech, his Lordship made mention of the interest and assistance given by Nonconformist friends. To this a suitable reply was given by the Rev. A. F. Harris, Methodist minister.

As is usual on these occasions, the church was closed when the Bishop of Crediton (the Rt. Rev. W. F. Suttees) arrived to carry out the rededication, a service which made a deep and lasting impression on all who attended.

Immediately after the service tea was provided in the Church Hall and was followed by a social 'evening,' which concluded in the early hours of the next day.

The bells are a ring of six cast by J. and W. Taylor in 1828, and have a tenor weighing approximately 13 cwt. They have been re-equipped with all new fittings and hung in a new framework. The whole of the work has been carried out by John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, who were represented at the rededication service by Mr. J. P. Fidler.

RESTORATION OF PAULERSPURY BELLS.

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE VILLAGE TACKLING BIG TASKS.

The bells of Paulerspury Parish Church, which have been rehung in a new iron and steel frame, have been dedicated, together with a chapel in the south aisle, by the Bishop of Peterborough. The five bells have been so arranged that a sixth can now be added at a minimum of expense.

There was a large congregation at the service, which was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. E. Kenworthy-Browne). Immediately after the ceremony of dedication the bells were rung for a short time by W. Rogers (Northampton) 1, B. Smart 2, H. Ridgeway (Deanshanger) 4, E. C. Lambert (Cosgrove) 5, J. Foster 6. The dedication of the chapel afterwards took place.

The Bishop, in the course of his address, said he was sure that when the bells were silent they all missed their cheerful noise. Now they were vocal again, they realised that the parish had regained something of its own character, and the precious past had been restored to them. But what they must not forget was that whilst the bells were a great possession they were a terrible reminder of great responsibilities as members of the Church of God.

The side chapel, too, seemed to bring gifts a little nearer to the ordinary man and woman of the congregation, and was a more homely place than the big sanctuary and the great high altar.

The tower still remained to be restored, and was going to be a big work, and there was also the roof of the north chapel to be repaired, but let them be not afraid of what lay before them. They had conquered the late obstacles and they would conquer the new ones. The Bishop emphasised the value of prayer, and the value of the fabric if rightly used. If they treated the church as a museum or an exhibit it was of no value.

The offertory was for the restoration of the tower and the repair of the roof of the north chapel.

The bell restoration at Paulerspury was carried out by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co.

AN OLD DERBYSHIRE RINGER.

DEATH OF MR. THOMAS STIMPSON, OF RIPLEY.

We regret to record the death, on Sunday, October 4th, of Mr. Thomas Stimpson, of Swanwick, Derbyshire, in his 65th year. Treasurer of the East Derbyshire and Notts Association for 16 years, he was also a member of the Midland Counties Association and the talented Ripley band. He was a popular and prominent figure in the Exercise, and sincere sympathy will be extended to the widow and family left in bereavement.

The interment took place on Wednesday, October 7th, the simple, impressive ceremony being conducted by the Vicar of Swanwick (the Rev. W. B. G. Matthews). There were many beautiful floral tributes, and, in addition to the family mourners, there were present Mr. W. Dobbs (president), Mr. W. Allin (vice-president), Mr. T. Clarke (Master), Mr. J. W. England (hon. secretary), Mr. H. G. Fretwell (a former secretary) and over 20 members of the association, who preceded the cortege to the church. The bearers were Messrs. G. Rawson, A. Brown, T. Clarke and J. W. England, and the muffled bells played their solemn and impressive part.

Mr. Stimpson commenced his ringing activities nearly 50 years ago at Toversal, Notts, and until 1903, when a new ring of five was installed at Swanwick, he was one of the old Grandsire 'figure ringers.' He then commenced change ringing in earnest, and rang his first peal, of Bob Minor, at Clay Cross in October, 1905, conducted by Mr. William Butler, followed by Grandsire Triples and Caters at Duffield. His last peal was rung at Mansfield on October 15th, 1927. In 1928 a serious accident at work prevented further peal ringing, although he was most faithful in his attendance at practice, Sunday service and association meetings. Sound and practical rather than brilliant, ever ready to assist others, with a genial manner which has hidden for months the presence of a malignant growth, he was a splendid example to young ringers, and while his loss is mourned, others who may succeed him will have benefited by his zeal and faithful attention to the art which he loved.

As a tribute to his memory, a muffled touch was rung at Ripley on Wednesday, October 7th, and the half-muffled bells of several towers sounded throughout the district on the following Sunday morning.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Eastern Division of the Sussex County Association was held at Hailsham on Saturday, October 3rd, when members attended from Mayfield, Hastings (All Saints'), Brighton (St. Nicholas'), Heathfield, Brede, Waldron, Eastbourne (St. Mary's, St. Saviour's and Christ Church), Chiddingly and Uckfield, together with members of the local band. The Vicar (the Rev. Macklin C. Chapman) conducted the service and gave a most interesting address.

In the unavoidable absence of the Vicar, Mr. W. D. Smith presided at the tea and business meeting which followed.

The secretary, Mr. A. C. Pankhurst, proposed that Brede tower should become affiliated to the association, and 14 new members were elected.

Mr. A. R. Miles proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells, and the members then returned to the tower and the bells were kept going until 9 o'clock.

A LINCOLNSHIRE RESTORATION.

DONINGTON BELLS IN A NEW FRAME.

The reopening of the bells at Donington, Lincolnshire, took place on Friday, October 2nd. The service, which was combined with the harvest festival, was conducted by the Vicar of Boston 'Stump' (the Rev. A. M. Cook), assisted by the Vicar of Donington, the Rev. G. A. Elson, and was attended by a large congregation.

The bells were rung for an hour before and after the service, a number of ringers from neighbouring towers taking part. Among those present were Mr. G. Ladd (Pinchbeck), hon. secretary of the Elloe Deaneries Branch of the Lincoln Guild, Mr. H. Woods (captain of the local band) and the Donington ringers.

The bells are a ring of six with a tenor in F weighing 14½ cwt. They have been tuned and entirely rehung by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston with modern fittings in a new heavy cast iron frame on steel girders.

The tone and the go of the bells leave nothing to be desired, and Messrs. Gillett and Johnston are to be congratulated on yet another fine sample of their handiwork.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION

MEETING AT BETHNAL GREEN.

For the first time during its existence, the Middlesex Association and London Diocesan Guild held a meeting at the Church of St. Matthew, Bethnal Green, London, on Saturday, October 3rd. From quite an early hour in the afternoon the small belfry, the walls of which are adorned with peal boards containing the names of many famous ringers of the past, was filled with those anxious to have their first pull on these famous bells.

At the usual short service the Rector, the Rev. S. L. Sarel, welcomed the association, and thanked the members for their assistance to his ringers. It was a grief to him, he said, that the bells were for a time silent, after such a long period of regular ringing, and he was grateful to those members of the association who had already helped his new band to attain enough skill to enable them to ring the bells for Sunday services.

The Rector said he was sorry that he would have to go off immediately after the service, but he was due at St. Paul's Cathedral at 5.30. He, however, hoped to return in time to meet the members before the meeting was over.

After tea, the usual business meeting was held. The chairman (Mr. G. W. Fletcher) called attention to the deaths of two members, the Rev. A. H. F. Boughey and Mr. H. S. Ellis. Speaking of the former, Mr. E. M. Atkins referred to his own early days as a ringer, when up at Cambridge. It was no doubt due to Mr. Boughey that he, and many others, were ringers to-day. He spoke of the enormous amount of work that Mr. Boughey had done for the Exercise, and added that he would like to thank the Editor of 'The Ringing World' for the admirable article he had written in that week's paper. As a member of the Cambridge University Guild, he was glad to do this.

Mr. C. T. Coles added a few words, saying that Mr. Boughey had been a member of this association since 1905, and an hon. vice-president since 1914, in which year he preached at their annual meeting. He had spent many hours with members of this association ringing handbell peals, and was a great friend and admirer of their late Master, William Pye.

The death of Mr. Henry S. Ellis, of Westminster, was referred to by Mr. Coles and Mr. W. H. Hewett. He had been a member of the association since 1923.

As a mark of respect to the deceased members, all present stood in silence for a few moments.

After three provisional elections had been confirmed, the Rector of St. Matthew's, Bethnal Green, was elected an honorary member, and seven members of his band were admitted as ringing members of the association. The hon. secretary referred to the help which had been given them, and added that he hoped they would soon become as efficient as any ringer present.

Other business included a vote of condolence with the Ringing Master (Mr. A. W. Coles) on his illness and good wishes for his speedy recovery; a vote of congratulation to Mr. R. J. Maynard, of Walthamstow, on attaining his 80th birthday; and the thanks of the members to the Ringing Master and those members of the Clerkenwell and St. Giles-in-the-Fields bands who had given valuable help at Bethnal Green.

St. James', Clerkenwell, was chosen for the next meeting on October 31st, and it was decided to make a special effort to practice Cambridge Court Bob Major at this meeting. Will members please note. It is hoped that at least one new method will be practised at each meeting, without ignoring the usual methods.

Votes of thanks were moved from the chair to the Rev. S. L. Sarel, the ladies who had prepared tea, and to Mr. Fryer and the local ringers. These were carried unanimously and Mr. Fryer replied.

Handbell ringing occupied the minds of several of the party; and tower bells were made use of, under the guidance of Mr. Tom Lock, until nearly nine o'clock, when ringing finished with a very fine touch of Spliced Surprise Major.

Will all concerned please note that practice will be resumed at St. Matthew's, Bethnal Green, on Tuesday, October 27th, at 7.30 p.m.

MR. T. SILVESTER RETURNS TO THE TOWER AFTER 33 YEARS.

'Old ringers never die, they only fade away.' Thomas Silvester, of Sheffield, faded out of ringing when he went to Canada 33 years ago. He is residing in Edmonton, Alberta, and last month visited Vancouver. The call of the belfry was too great to be resisted, and on Sunday evening, September 20th, he was welcomed by the ringers at the Cathedral of the Holy Rosary, and, despite his 73 years and the long period since he had touched a rope, started off a quarter-peal of Grandsire on the tenor. Unfortunately, the touch was lost very near the end.

CATHEDRAL CHURCH OF THE HOLY ROSARY, VANCOUVER.

Previously the last ringing which Mr. Silvester did was at Sheffield Parish Church (now the Cathedral) on May 19th, 1903, when he rang the tenor to a peal of Kent Treble Bob Maximus in 4 hours 12 minutes. It is interesting to recall the names of the band: J. Holman 1, J. H. Bower 2, W. Lomas 3, F. Burgar 4, J. Mulligan 5, T. Hattersley 6, W. Burgar 7, A. Brearley 8, E. Woodward 9, S. Seed 10, G. Holmes 11, T. Silvester 12. The peal was conducted by W. Lomas; the quarter-peal attempt in Vancouver was conducted by A. B. Lomas.

On Wednesday, September 16th, for practice, 336 Plain Bob: J. Greenaway 1, Fred Hird 2, George Roberts 3, Arthur King 4, W. Sampson 5, A. B. Lomas 6; after which was rung 720 in the same method: A. C. Limpus 1, Arthur King 2, F. Hird 3, George Roberts 4, W. Sampson 5, A. B. Lomas 6, with the tenor covering rung by J. Greenaway.

SCOTTISH ASSOCIATION

The Scottish Association returned to Alloa, after an absence of three years, for its intermediate meeting. A summer-like day welcomed ringers from all the Scottish towers to Alloa. Owing to the smallness of the ringing room at St. John's Church, those members not ringing took a walk through the Earl of Mar's estate (on which St. John's is built) and gathered chestnuts. There was ringing in the afternoon in the standard methods, under the direction of Mr. W. C. S. Heathcote, who deputised for the Master, Mr. W. H. Pickett. Mr. Pickett was unable to be present owing to pressure of business.

A short service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. W. S. Wilson), and then a move was made to the Townhead for tea. For the first time no handbells were heard in the tearoom, as nobody had brought them. More ringing at the tower rounded off a successful day.

OLD SOMERSET BELLS RESTORED.

A FINE PEAL AT WEDMORE.

The peal of eight bells of St. Mary's Church, Wedmore, Somerset, have recently been restored. The 4th and 6th bells were recast and the old bells retuned. They have been rehung in entirely new fittings, with cast iron headstocks and ball bearings throughout. New clappers have been provided and the bells quarter turned. All the cannons have been left intact. The 7th and tenor have balanced clappers. The old oak frame has been retained and mounted on a new steel girder foundation encased in concrete. The 'go' of the bells is excellent from all points of view.

The peal is a very musical one, and the retuning has improved the old bells enormously, all the hum notes now being in tune. A new sound-deadening ceiling has been provided.

The restored peal were rededicated by the Bishop of Bath and Wells on October 5th and the old church was well filled.

The opening rounds were rung by the local ringers before the service, and afterwards touches of Grandsire Triples, Stedman and Bob Major were rung by the visitors.

The restoration work was carried out by Mears and Stainbank, who have given the utmost satisfaction to all concerned.

The weights of the bells are as follows, after tuning and removal of old crown staples: Treble, 8 cwt. 4 lb.; 2nd, 8 cwt. 1 qr. 9 lb.; 3rd, 10 cwt. 4 lb.; 4th, 10 cwt. 3 qr. 16 lb.; 5th, 12 cwt. 1 qr. 15 lb.; 6th, 17 cwt. 2 qr. 25 lb.; 7th, 21 cwt. 2 qr. 16 lb.; tenor, 30 cwt. 5 lb. Note C.

The first peal on the bells was rung on October 10th and recorded in our last issue.

PARISHIONERS SEE NEW BELLS CAST.

NEW RING OF EIGHT FOR SUSSEX.

A party of about 40 parishioners of Balcombe, Sussex, visited Messrs. Gillett and Johnston's foundry at Croydon to witness the casting of two new trebles for their Parish Church. Amongst the company were the Rev. D. L. Secretan, the Rector, Mrs. Secretan, Miss Monica Secretan, Messrs. J. L. Partridge (treasurer), Raymond Clark (hon. secretary) and members of the Parochial Church Council, together with the members of the Ringers' Guild, Messrs. A. E. Gasson, A. C. Gasson, C. Holman, A. E. Laker and E. T. Exeter.

The visitors were conducted round the works by Mr. Cyril Johnston, who explained the various processes in the bell erecting shops and foundry, and in the clock making departments. Many peals of interest from all parts of the country were on view until the hour arrived for the casting of Balcombe's new bells—assisted by a threepenny bit from the Rector and the captain of the belfry.

Tea wound up the proceedings, and the Rector took the opportunity of thanking Mr. Johnston and the foundry staff for the able demonstrations of the factory and for the kindness and hospitality which the visitors had received during an afternoon that would live long in the memory of them all.

Balcombe Church has, until recently, possessed an indifferent ring of six, which is being recast, with the exception of one ancient bell. The two trebles to complete the octave are being placed in the tower in memory of the late King George V. and in honour of Queen Mary.

BRAINTREE RINGER'S MARRIAGE.

The wedding took place on Saturday, September 26th, between Miss W. Marshall and Mr. A. Wiffen. Mr. Wiffen has been a prominent member of the St. Michael's Guild of Ringers, Braintree, for a number of years, and as a mark of appreciation from his fellow-ringers and friends he was presented on Sunday, October 4th, with a 14-day striking clock.

The presentation was made by Mr. H. Hammond, and the bridegroom received the congratulations and good wishes of all present.

To celebrate the occasion the local company rang a touch of 768 London Surprise Major for morning service.

BURTON LATIMER RINGER'S BIRTHDAY.

At Burton Latimer, on Thursday, October 15th, to celebrate the 70th birthday of Mr. J. Saddington, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) was rung by P. Ashby 1, B. J. Saddington 2, M. Hobbs 3, F. Lewin (first in the method) 4, H. Turner 5, J. Saddington 6, G. Lines (conductor) 7, R. Twelvetree 8. At the conclusion of the ringing the band wished Mr. Saddington 'many happy returns,' and Mr. G. Lines, on behalf of the ringers, presented him with a pipe and tobacco.—Mr. Saddington suitably returned thanks.

LONDON RECTOR'S BIRTHDAY.

On Monday, September 28th, at St. Clement Danes' Church, London, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Caters (1,295 changes): Miss D. Bryant 1, C. F. Winney 2, H. R. Pasmore 3, R. W. Green 4, H. Pasmore 5, W. Roughton 6, E. J. Morris 7, H. Langdon 8, W. Williams 9, G. W. Debenham (conductor) 10. Rung specially on the occasion of the birthday of the Rector, the Rev. W. Pennington-Bickford, M.A.

On the following Saturday, a peal of Stedman Caters was also rung at St. Clement's.

ST. MARTIN'S GUILD, BIRMINGHAM.MASTER WELCOMED AFTER HIS ILLNESS.

A very successful quarterly meeting of St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, was held at King's Norton, and was attended by upwards of 50 members and friends. The weather was ideal, and whilst some rang the bells, others enjoyed the view of the surrounding country and listened to the music of the excellent peal of ten.

The Guild's form of service was conducted by the Vicar, Canon T. S. Dunn, who also gave an interesting address, in the course of which he urged those present not to neglect their duty to attend some of the services to which they called others.

An excellent tea, served by the local ringers' wives, was thoroughly enjoyed at the Saracen's Head, a famous 14th century half-timbered hostelry, which has been completely restored and given to the Parish Church to be used as the Church House.

The business meeting followed, the Master, Mr. Alderman J. S. Pritchett, being in the chair. The hon. secretary, Mr. T. H. Reeves, welcomed the chairman, this being the first meeting he had attended since his illness, and expressed the hope that his health would continue good. Apologies were announced from Mr. Vice-President James George and Mr. D. T. Matkin, both prevented from attending through illness.

The Chairman referred to the death of two members since the last meeting: Mr. B. G. Leedham, of Sutton Coldfield, and Mr. R. J. Hunt, the latter being Birmingham's oldest ringer. He died at the age of 84. Both had rendered valuable services in the interests of change ringing, and he (the chairman) asked all to stand for a moment as a last tribute of respect.

The secretary reported the gift of a volume, 'The Cathedrals, Abbeys and Churches of England and Wales,' from Mr. John Jagger, for inclusion in the Guild's library. This was duly accepted and Mr. Jagger thanked for his kindness.

It was unanimously agreed that 'the Henry Johnson Commemorative Dinner be held as usual in 1937.'

The following new members were elected: Mr. Hubert J. Field, of Erdington; Mr. Edward W. Blake, King's Norton; Mr. Alfred Williams, King's Heath; Mr. Malcolm Taylor, Edgbaston and Tasmania; and Mr. Percival W. Cave, of Derby.

The next meeting is the annual, and it was decided to hold this at headquarters on the first Saturday in January. The bi-quarterly meeting will be held at St. Chad's, Birmingham, on November 14th.

It was announced that at last it had been definitely decided to recast the bells of the Cathedral Church of St. Philip and that they were to be ready in time for the Coronation.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar, Canon T. S. Dunn, for the use of the bells and for his interesting address in church, also to the ladies who had so kindly arranged and served tea, was proposed by the Ringing Master, Mr. F. E. Haynes.

Further ringing took place until 9 p.m., and everyone agreed that it had been an enjoyable meeting.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.CANTERBURY DISTRICT'S ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Canterbury District of the Kent County Association was held at Canterbury on Saturday, October 17th. Over 70 members attended, representing 20 towers and all parts of the county. The bells of St. Stephen's, St. Alphege's and St. Dunstan's were kept ringing from 3 p.m. and during the evening, the Cathedral bells also being available after tea.

Service was held in St. Stephen's Church, conducted by the Rector (the Rev. A. R. Barnes).

Tea was served in the Church Room. Amongst those present were the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore, the Rev. C. A. Manley (Vicar of Littlebourne), with the Rector and Mr. F. M. Mitchell (the general secretary).

The business meeting followed, with the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore in the chair. The secretary's report and balance sheet were adopted.

Mr. B. J. Luck was re-elected as secretary, and Messrs. F. G. Brett (Canterbury) and H. Whitehead (Dover) were elected as district representatives. Mr. H. Smith (Wickhambreau), who had been a representative for the past ten years, intimated that he wished to resign. He was heartily thanked for his past services to the district, and a proposal that it should be recorded in the minutes was carried unanimously.

Mr. F. G. Brett was elected to the office of Ringing Master, a position he has held since its inception in 1929.

The meetings for next year were decided upon as follows: Spring, Boughton; Summer, Ash; with the next by-meeting at Herne Street.

Four new practising members were elected, and the Rector was made an hon. member, amid much applause.

Votes of thanks were passed to the incumbents of the churches where the bells had been available during the day, to the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore for taking the chair, and Mr. W. E. Pitman for presiding at the organ at the service.

Notice was given at the meeting that the Ladies' Guild would be holding a meeting in Canterbury on November 7th, and it is hoped that the members of the district will help to give the ladies a pleasant afternoon and evening in the ancient Cathedral city.

INTERESTING BELLS AT CAUNTON.PEAL OF THREE HUNG FOR RINGING.

On Thursday evening, October 1st, the Lord Bishop of Southwell rededicated a peal of three bells at Caunton Church, Nottinghamshire.

These bells are quite interesting. The oldest, No. 2, was cast in 1611. No. 3, the tenor, weighs just under 8 cwt., is dated 1641 and was of unusually good tone. The inscription is one that was fairly common in the 17th century: 'All men that heare my mournful sound—Repent before you lye in ground.' No. 1 was cast in 1658, and is inscribed, 'God save His Church.'

The musical pitch of the tenor is A flat, and the bells have been carefully tuned in the major key and can be swung, if necessary, by one ringer by manipulation of three ropes, one in each hand and one rope with his foot.

The old wooden frame and gear of the bells were in a derelict condition and have all been replaced by modern gear in a metal frame, so arranged that the bells can be increased in number at a later date with a minimum of alteration and expense.

The whole of the bell work, including some incidental clock work, has been ably carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon.

It is interesting to note that Major John Hole, who attended the service with his mother, Mrs. S. H. F. Hole, of Caunton Manor, is a direct descendant of a Hole who was Vicar of Caunton in 1567, the family having been continuously in Caunton since 1510. Major Hole and some of the local young men were initiated into the art of ringing during the evening.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A very successful meeting of the Western District was held at Winton on Saturday last. Ringers were present from Newcastle Cathedral, Whickham, Blaydon, Gateshead, Chester-le-Street, Benfieldside and the local tower. The bells were kept going during the afternoon and evening to a variety of Minor methods, and some good ringing resulted.

For the final touch 720 Plain Bob Minor was rung as a birthday compliment to Mr. William C. Bennett, who is the captain of the local tower: R. F. Telford 1, J. Thompson 2, T. W. Dodd 3, D. Arkless 4, W. C. Bennett 5, R. H. Hewitt (conductor) 6.

TWO HUNDRED PEALS AT 17.E. A. BARNETT'S ACHIEVEMENT.

Young 'Teddy' Barnett, of Crayford, third of a line of well-known ringers, has more than once made history by his youthful performances. A hundred peals before he was 16; now two hundred peals before he was 18! It's rather staggering.

He has just celebrated his 18th birthday, but his second century of peals was completed a month before that. And look at the list!

AMBITION.

Life without ambition is a deadly dull affair, but it is strange how many ringers have little desire to get out of their own little groove. They are content to ring for the services at their own church—that is, of course, to be accounted a merit—but beyond that ringing does not interest them. From their stage to that of the real enthusiast is a far cry, but what those with an indifferent outlook upon ringing miss is the increasing interest in a fascinating art and the broader spirit of fraternity that exists between those who mix freely with their brethren from other belfries. Those who will visit other towers than their own; who will attend meetings of their association; who will be ready to make some progress in their ringing, all gain in varying degrees in the pleasure and intellectual profit which they get from their activities. Ambition in ringing is as desirable as in any other walk of life, and if pursued it brings its own reward.

It was not without a sense of gratification at ambition rewarded that a band of ringers accomplished a peal at Melbourne, Derbyshire, on Saturday. It was, in a sense, a crowning achievement to events of two years ago and a performance which may, perhaps, never be put up again. Melbourne, the little town among the folds of the Derbyshire hills, is the parent in name of the great city of Australia which, with over a million people, is capital of the State of Victoria. This historic link between the two has been cemented from time to time in a variety of ways, and not least in the course of the present year by the generosity of a Melbourne, Australia, citizen who defrayed the cost of rehangng the bells in the fine old parish church of the English town. This restoration made possible the fulfilment of a desire by the ringers who visited Australia in 1934 and rang peals in the Cathedral at Melbourne to ring a peal also in the English mother town. It was ambition that impelled it; it was ambition that achieved it, for it is no mean thing that eight ringers should travel between them 2,750 miles for just one peal.

They had travelled to the other side of the world together and made ringing history. They made ringing history of a sort on Saturday, for it is remarkable that eight men should ring peals in two Melbournes which are twelve thousand miles apart. We know quite well that such opportunities are unique—have been given up to the present, in fact, only to this favoured few, but while, in its particular direction, this 'double' must be the limit of ambition, there are many other spheres in ringing in which much could be done to add to their own achievements by those whose opportunities are far more restricted. The moral of last Saturday's success is that there is always scope for the ringer with ambition, and it begins when he goes out to mix with the ringers of other towers or makes up his mind that he will ring another method.

RESTORATION IN NORFOLK.

DEDICATION OF SAHAM TONEY'S BELLS.

On Sunday, October 18th, the bells of St. George's Church, Saham Toney, were dedicated by the Lord Bishop of Norwich. The bells have been hung in a new frame with new fittings on a concrete floor, and because of the floor having been 'set' for only three months, the bells were chimed, though it is hoped to have them rung on New Year's Eve.

In spite of the bells being chimed, however, a number of ringers attended the service, and some for the first time tried their hands at chiming. Mr. A. L. Coleman, general secretary and treasurer of the Norwich Diocesan Association, was supported by Mr. N. Golden (secretary of the North and South Norfolk Branches), Messrs. R. W. Cooke, S. Flint and C. S. Tuthill (West Norfolk Branch), Mr. G. Bailey (North Norfolk Branch), Messrs. E. G. Bennett and A. G. Harrison (South Norfolk Branch) and ringers from Fakenham, Caston, Shropham, Rockland All Saints, Winfarthing and Shelfanger.

The ringers, with their wives and friends, were entertained to tea following the service. Later ten of the party rang touches for evening song on the six bells at Watton.

RIPLEY, DERBYSHIRE.—At All Saints' Church, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples from Carter's Odd Bob peal: H. George, sen. 1, A. A. Watts (first 'inside') 2, K. G. Sheldon 3, J. J. Turner 4, F. F. Hill 5, *W. Beresford 6, A. Hutcheson (conductor) 7, *G. H. Taylor 8. * First quarter-peal. Rung for harvest festival.

FOR BEGINNERS.

A STEP FOR MINOR RINGERS.

In the article in our issue of September 25th, in which we tried to interest ringers of Plain Bob in other varieties of Minor, we explained that this method could be rung both in reverse and double.

There are other methods which can be rung in the same way; that is to say in their construction they can be varied in the same manner as the Plain method. Bob Minor has 2nd's place when the treble leads, Reverse Bob has 5th's place when the treble lies its whole pull behind; Double Bob has both the 2nd's place when the treble leads and 5th's when it lies behind.

There is a series of methods in which places are made 'each side of the treble,' or 'across the treble' as it is sometimes called; that is, when the treble hunts up a bell makes 4th's and then 3rd's (a whole pull in each place) as the treble passes up through 3-4, and another bell makes 3rd's and then 4th's (a whole pull in each place) as the treble hunts down through 4-3.

Perhaps you will see it better if we set it out in skeleton form:—

.	.	1	x	x	.	1
.	.	.	x	1	.	.	.	1	x	.
.	.	.	.	x	.	1	.	1	.	x

The figure 1, of course, represents the treble, the x the bell making the places, and the dots the other bells. The bell that makes the places is going in the same direction as the treble, but stops and recrosses the treble, after which it continues in the same direction as the treble has gone (unless some variation is introduced into the method to prevent it). Actually, these 'places across the treble' change the coursing order of that bell and the treble exactly as 2nd's place in Bob Minor turns it about.

Now, just as there are three methods constructed with plain hunting pure and simple, with the variation of 2nd's, or 5th's, or both, so there are three methods obtained from this simple place making 'across the treble'—one with 2nd's place made when the treble leads (in addition, of course, to the other places), one with 5th's place made when the treble lies behind, and the other with both 2nd's and 5th's. In addition there is a method in the group, making four in all, without either 2nd's or 5th's.

The effect of these places is to cause the other bells to dodge. The 'places across the treble' cause the bells both in 1-2 and 5-6 to dodge, and, as in Plain Bob, the 2nd's and 5th's also cause a dodge in the other pairs of places.

The contiguity of these places is such that the 'places across the treble' plus 2nd's cause the two bells behind to dodge from the time the treble goes away until it gets back again. Similarly the 'places across the treble' plus 5th's cause the two bells in front to dodge from the time the treble goes away until it gets back again. Second's plus 5th's causes this lead-long dodging to be carried on both in front and at the back.

Now what we would like those of our readers, who are interested in investigations of this sort, to do is to endeavour to construct them on their own account.

First write out (1) a lead of the method in which only 'places across the treble' are made, that is 4th's and 3rd's as the treble hunts up and 3rd's and 4th's as the treble hunts down. Then write out (2) a lead of the same method with 2nd's place introduced when the treble leads, causing the bells in 3-4 and 5-6 to dodge. Next write out (3) a lead of the method with 5th's place when the treble is behind, and last (4) the method with both 5th's and 2nd's.

In order that you may check your work, we will say that the first lead heads of these methods are (1) 156342, (2) and (3) 164523, and (4) 142635.

When you have done this construct a diagram, that is a line drawn on the track of one bell from beginning to end of the full course. If you don't want to write out all the leads in full for this purpose you can do it by tracing the course of one bell through a lead and then continuing the diagram by taking up the work from the beginning of the bell into whose place the line falls at the first lead head. Thus if you start with the 2nd in method (1), this bell gets to 6th's place at the lead head; you therefore carry on with the work of the 6th for the next lead, which will leave your line in 3rd's at the next lead head; then go back and pick up the work of the 3rd, and so on. Constructing your own diagrams is the quickest way of learning the work of a method, and, in doing it, do not forget to mark the places where the treble passes across the path of the other bell.

DEATH OF AN AMERSHAM RINGER.FORTY YEARS MEMBER OF ST. MARY'S COMPANY.

The death took place at Amersham on October 15th of Mr. Alfred Elburn, aged 57 years. Deceased, who came from a ringing family, was for over 40 years a member of the band at St. Mary's, Amersham. He will be much missed by the local band, as he was a most regular attendant, until a serious operation in December of last year curtailed his ringing activities. He was also a member of the local fire brigade, for which he held a long service medal.

The funeral, which was attended by the fire brigade and his fellow-ringers, took place at Amersham on October 17th. At the graveside a course of Grandsire Triples was rung by E. C. Ayres, L. R. Betts, W. E. Redrup and A. D. Barker, hon. secretary of the East Berks and South Bucks Branch, Oxford Diocesan Guild. After the burial the bells he loved so well were rung half-muffled to his favourite method, London Surprise Minor. The 'whole pull and stand' was then rung. On Tuesday, October 20th, an attempt for a half-muffled peal unfortunately came to grief after two hours and eight minutes' good ringing through a 'shift.'

Deceased leaves a widow and one daughter, to whom deepest sympathy is extended.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—This question came to me when I visited St. Mary's Church, Wimbledon, on Wednesday, September 30th, on the occasion of a joint meeting of the Ladies' Guild and Surrey Association. This was an official meeting of ladies, and there seemed to be some difference of opinion, for some were ringing with hats and coats on, while others had them removed.

To most ringers to see a man ringing with his coat on appears to be completely out of order, and to me a lady appears to be equally out of order ringing with a hat and coat on. Some may hold the view that a lady must always wear a hat in church, but I think there is a danger in the belfry, especially where the room is congested. The ringing of church bells is a service of praise quite different to other services held in church. For instance, a ringer would never think of appearing at any other services with his coat off, although he removes it before ringing. That, to me, is an indication that ladies should remove their hats and coats before they actually take part in the ringing of church bells, and especially at Guild meetings.

DEVONSHIRE GUILD.JOINT MEETING AT BUCKFAST ABBEY.

A quarterly meeting of the Mid-Devon Branch of the Devon Guild was held at Buckfast Abbey on Saturday, October 17th. The meeting was held jointly with the South-West Branch, and there was an excellent attendance of ringers and friends from Plymouth, Plympton, Colleton, Paignton, Newton Abbot, Cockington, Buckfastleigh, Ide, Christow, Exeter, Brampford Speke, Sidmouth, Bath, etc.

The glorious peal of bells was kept going to a variety of methods during the afternoon, including a well-struck course of Grandsire Cinques. The great Bourdon bell also created a good deal of interest.

About 64 sat down to tea in two relays at the Abbey Cafe, and the Mid-Devon Branch subsequently held their business meeting, presided over by the Rev. W. R. D. Mills (chairman).

A letter was read from the general secretary regarding collections at meetings for the Bell Restoration Fund. The president of the Guild (the Rev. E. V. Cox) explained the object, and it was recommended that collections be taken at the services. A collection at the conclusion of the meeting amounted to 6s. 5d.

A certificate was presented by the president to Mr. L. Wensley, of Cockington band.

The place and date of the annual meeting were next discussed, and it was resolved to hold this at Ipplepen on Saturday, February 13th, 1937, subject to the necessary permission being obtained.

The election of Mr. H. C. Collyer, of Newton Abbot, as an unattached performing member prior to starting for a peal was confirmed.

In accordance with the recommendation of the General Committee, Mr. C. R. Walker was elected auditor of the branch, and Mr. A. L. Bennett was elected Ringing Master.

It was unanimously resolved on the recommendation of the chairman that the secretary write the Lord Abbot of Buckfast expressing the great appreciation of the visitors in allowing the meeting to be held at the Abbey. Hearty votes of thanks were also accorded the ladies who carried out the tea arrangements, to the Vicar of Buckfastleigh for the use of his bells, and to the secretary of the branch for making all the arrangements.

The Chairman announced that one of his ringers, who was a member of the branch, had met with an accident resulting in the loss of two fingers, and the members present expressed their regret.

A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman for presiding concluded the meeting. Some of the visitors returned to the tower for further ringing, whilst others visited Buckfastleigh tower to ring. The meeting was much enjoyed by all.

Ringings at the Abbey now takes place from the floor on which the bells themselves formerly stood.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The bells at Harthill Church are to be recast into a peal of eight, and rehung with new fittings in a new frame, by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

Vernon Taylor, the brilliant young conductor of the Lincolnshire band who recently rang 61 methods in a peal of Minor, met with a rather serious accident in the belfry at Frampton about a fortnight ago. The rope of the tenor got under his foot and he was pitched on to his head, sustaining concussion. He is, happily, making good progress towards recovery.

The peal of Treble Bob Major at North Wingfield on October 17th was rung for the Yorkshire Association and the Sheffield District Society.

The first peal of Grandsire Cinques in Cheshire was rung on handbells on February 14th, 1935, at Stockport. This information is supplied by Mr. A. F. Bailey, of Stockport, who adds: 'Congratulations to the Macclesfield band on ringing the first in the county on tower bells.'

Mr. W. Poston has conducted a peal in every eight-bell tower in Herefordshire. He completed them on Saturday, when he called a peal at Lugwardine.

From one young ringer to another, Ernest W. Pye, son of the late Mr. William Pye, writes: I should like to congratulate E. A. Barnett on his 200 peals.

Mr. Jesse Puplett, whose address is now High Street, Stewkley, Bucks, informs us that the six bells of Stewkley Parish Church are to be retuned, etc., and two trebles added, to complete the octave. This is to be carried out through the generosity of Mr. Bliss, a former resident of the parish.

PEAL STANDARDS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—It is quite possible that I shall be credited with being the correspondent who was mentioned in your leader of last week, referring to peals that should not be reported as such. May I plead with that gentleman to send his name and yourself to publish the letter, even if the conductor of the peal in question does have his weekly appearance in the peal columns?

This happens in all classes of peals from Surprise to Doubles, although I was informed some time back in 'The Ringing World' that it was not possible to ring a second-class peal of Surprise. Rot! We all have ears and so have the general public. A bit of scouring would do a world of good.

GEORGE GILBERT.

'A FINE OLD ENGLISH GENTLEMAN.'

On Tuesday, October 20th, passed away a notable stalwart of the Oxford Diocesan Guild in the person of Mr. John Monk, of Witney. He will be missed in the town itself as a genial, kindly man, while as to ringing, he had done more 'spade work' than will ever be realised except by ringers of 30 (or more) years' standing.

John Monk had rung more than 150 peals, Stedman and Grandsire Triples mostly. He called many peals of Grandsire in the Witney district and was for many years secretary and treasurer of the Witney and Woodstock Branch of the Guild. Whatever he did he did well, and after a peal or a meeting no member could feel dull when once John started to tell the little tales of his experiences of a long life. A born wit, he would keep a company roaring with laughter. Albeit, John was a Christian gentleman.

The interment took place on Thursday, October 22nd, but owing to the very short notice very few ringers were present. Messrs. George Hollisfield, sen. and jun., W. Evetts and Frank Smith, of the Royal Cumberlands (who was one of John's pupils more than 40 years ago), with the writer, attended the service held in the fine old Parish Church, and the committal service in the cemetery. Looking down on the name plate, 'John Monk, aged 76,' made one feel that a real old friend had gone. In the words of an old song, 'He was a fine old English gentleman, one of the olden time.' May he rest in peace.

The bells were rung muffled in the afternoon and evening by the local ringers. The sympathy of many ringers will go out to the widow, John's wife for 53 years, and his three sons.

PETERBOROUGH DIOCESAN GUILD.

The quarterly meeting of the Towcester Branch of Peterborough Diocesan Guild, held at Cosgrove on Saturday, proved a success. In addition to members of the branch, visitors from North Bucks and Central Bucks Branches of the Oxford Guild were present.

Cosgrove, a small village about two miles from Stony Stratford and the Watling Street, has just had a new treble added to the bells to make a ring of six, and in the opinion of ringers present they are a nice peal, thanks to the work of Messrs. Taylor and Co.

Ringings commenced about 2.30 p.m., and service was conducted later by the Rev. E. V. Feun (hon. secretary), who preached a practical sermon.

Afterwards at tea the ringers were joined by the Rector (the Rev. H. N. C. Hewson) and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Winterbottom, of Cosgrove Hall. The hon. secretary thanked the Rector for the use of the bells, etc.

Handbell ringing and more tower-bell ringing concluded the meeting.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA—MELBOURNE, ENGLAND.

REUNION OF 'A GREAT ADVENTURE' PARTY.

Another Ringing Link Between Mother Country and Commonwealth.

On Saturday a memorable 'double' was completed by English ringers who, two years ago, toured Australia. On October 24th, 1934, two days after they had landed in Melbourne, they rang their first peal in the Commonwealth—a peal of Bob Royal at St. Paul's Cathedral.

On October 24th, 1936, exactly two years afterwards, eight of this band rang a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major at Melbourne, Derbyshire, and thus forged another link between the parent town and the daughter city on the other side of the world.

The CENTRAL TOWER of Melbourne Parish Church, Derbyshire, from the north.

When Melbourne, Australia, was founded a hundred years ago, it took its name from the then Prime Minister of England, Lord Melbourne, who was born at Melbourne Hall, Derbyshire, and whose title came from his native village.

Since their return to England, the tourists have had a growing desire to complete their association with Australia by linking up the two Melbournes in a ringing sense, and this was made possible by the rehanging of the Derbyshire bells early this year at the expense of Councillor Nettlefold, of Melbourne, Australia. Nothing seemed to be lacking to bind closer together the bells of the two Melbournes.

The Vicar of the Derbyshire parish (the Rev. Lt.-Col. John Morris, D.S.O.) not only gave his ready acquiescence to the project, he welcomed the opportunity of giving it effect, and in this he was enthusiastically supported by his churchwardens and ringers. Everything that could facilitate the peal attempt was offered and done, and our columns record the success that was achieved.

But this is getting a bit ahead of the story. When it was found possible to visit Melbourne, the hospitality of Glyn Garth, Surfleet, once more exhibited itself, and Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Richardson invited the whole party to make their home the headquarters for the week-end. Thus on Friday afternoon they began to foregather at this delectable spot for ringers. Bill Linter, having travelled by train from Fareham, Hants, was the first to arrive. Joe Hardcastle and Ralph Maude rolled up on wheels from Bradford, Yorks, an hour or two later. About half-past seven a contingent from the south, Bill Fussell from Slough, George Martin from Maidenhead and their chauffeur from Pyrford came on the scene, only to find much perturbation at the absence of Charles Sharples and his better half from Blackpool, who were due some time before.

A LOST COUPLE.

It is extraordinary what vagaries are played by the railway companies upon people travelling to Lincolnshire. Several times the Surfleet 'bus' went to Spalding to meet likely trains—reminiscent of an occasion a little more than a year ago—but in vain.

The Vicar of Surfleet and Mrs. Clark came to Glyn Garth to add to the heartiness of the welcome. It is unnecessary to dwell on the warmth of the greetings between the members of the much-travelled party and the great pleasure it was to meet again. But what had happened to the Sharples? The party supped amid speculations, and at half-past nine Rupert made one more almost despairing journey to Spalding. And there they were waiting at the station! They had gone to the wrong terminus in Manchester—it will be remembered they nearly missed the 'Barrabool' at Fremantle—and been brought to Lincolnshire by a route that took them nearly all round England, if one may judge by the time occupied. Railway travelling, however, is not the only thing that gets upset when Lincolnshire is the objective. Visitors to Surfleet on a former occasion will recollect the mystery of a telegram that arrived one Saturday afternoon, some hours after its dispatch. Last Friday a telegram, sent from Manchester, which would have elucidated the whole situation, failed to arrive at all, and, as far as we know, is still somewhere on the 'wires.'

However, with the party complete, spirits rose high, and the only source of regret was the absence of the Rev. E. Bankes James, who was unable to travel on account of the effects of a heavy cold.

An early start—at least it was early for some of the party—was necessary next morning for the 70 miles' drive to Melbourne. The run to Melton Mowbray was the story of the hare and the tortoise over again. The 'hazes,' there were two of them, stopped for petrol, the tortoise, oblivious of the 'pull up,' dashed by at quite 25 miles an hour, the driver clinging to his steering wheel like grim death and his passengers, with their hair on end, clinging wildly to their seats. The tortoise won the race to Melton by a short head and thereafter was content to bring up the rear of the procession.

At Melbourne the Vicar was waiting, with representatives of the local ringers, to welcome the visitors, and the three cars disgorged the eleven travellers—Mrs. Sharples, Ralph Maude and Enid Richardson making up the party with the eight ringers. To add to their pleasure they also found waiting to greet them a lady, now of Derby, who was present at Bishopcote, Melbourne, when the tourists were entertained there by the Archbishop of Melbourne the day after their arrival.

MELBOURNE'S MAGNIFICENT CHURCH.

It will be of interest to say something about St. Michael's Church, an early Norman building reputed to be one of the finest examples of its type of architecture in the country. It was not inaptly described by Mr. Fussell, who knows what he is talking about in these matters, as Durham Cathedral in miniature.

The church was built about the year 1090, and before alterations, carried out probably in the 16th century, had three apsidal ends at the east end, with a room over the chancel. The nave is of five bays, with stilted arches, ornamented with a zig-zag and plain roll moulding. There is a Norman clerestory on the north side and an Early English one on the south, with a passage over all the nave arches, and continued round the central tower on the same level, which led to the room over the chancel.

The interior of the tower is a fine example of Norman arcading in three tiers. Above that the upper part of the tower is probably 17th century work. A curious feature of the church is that it is entirely unenclosed, none of the original churchyard being in existence as a churchyard. The Vicarage, a large stone building, with an unexpectedly fine prospect from the rear, stands in the south-east corner of the space surrounding the church.

The bells are by Taylor and Co. Six of them were cast in 1882 to replace four which dated back to the 16th century. The trebles were added as a jubilee memorial in 1887. Early this year the bells badly needed rehanging. An appeal for funds brought in a certain amount, and then, by a happy thought, Melbourne, Australia, was invited to contribute. 'The Sun' newspaper sent the first £25, but, on hearing of the appeal, Councillor Nettlefold, of Melbourne, asked to be allowed to bear the whole cost. 'The Sun' newspaper's donation was diverted by the givers to charity, and the excellent work done by Messrs. Taylor and Co. was thus paid for by a citizen of Melbourne, Australia. The bells were put on ball bearings and go like the proverbial tops. But there is just a snag for those unused to ringing there. The bells are rung from the floor of the chancel and there is 56ft. of rope up to the wheels and only guides in the upper part of the tower. Unless a perfectly straight and long pull is applied, the sallies have a tendency to wander into the centre of the chancel or come down behind the ringer's back. At Melbourne one has to think of the actual ringing as well as of the method. The fronts of the choir stalls have to be removed before ringing can begin, and the seats are folded back to give leg room.

Well, after a few preliminaries, including a flashlight photograph of the ringers at their ropes, the many onlookers in the church took their departure, the door was locked and the peal was rung in 3 hours 19 minutes.

Poor Joe had a rotten time. Two or three days before, he had had an argument with the business end of a carpenter's chisel—and got the worst of it. He had a badly cut finger, which, despite surgical bandaging, split open again while he was ringing, but with true Yorkshire doggedness he 'stuck it out' in spite of the pain and the difficulty of handling his rope under such conditions. More than one of the peals which this band have rung together have produced a 'hero,' and the laurels fell on Joe on this occasion. It was, of course, only fitting that the peal should be rung for the St. Paul's Cathedral Society, Melbourne, of which, at a memorable gathering on the evening of their arrival in the Australian city, the ringers had been made life members.

Although not specially arranged in honour of the event, the ringers desire to record the peal as a birthday compliment to Miss Frey Shimmie on her 'coming of age.' Miss Shimmie took part in the peal of Grandsire Cinques at Melbourne on Armistice Day, 1934, and is the only Australian lady who has rung a peal.

As soon as the door was opened there was a flood of listeners, who came in to offer their congratulations, but none were more welcome than the Rev. R. Sherwood, now Vicar of Bleasley, Notts, and Mrs. Sherwood. In the days when the tourists visited Australia, the Rev. R. Sherwood was Precentor of St. Paul's Cathedral. He was the 'liaison officer' between the church authorities and the ringers, and to him and Mr. Arthur Savage, hon. secretary of the society, the visitors were specially indebted.

A LUNCH PARTY.

After the peal, the Vicar very kindly entertained the visitors to lunch, to which a party of over 30 sat down at the Melbourne Hotel, the company including, in addition to the tourists, the Rev. R. and Mrs. Sherwood, the churchwardens of Melbourne (Messrs. T. Pearce and G. Denzil Robinson), the local ringers, and Mr. A. H. Ward, of Derby.

The Vicar, who presided, extended a hearty welcome to the guests and spoke of the historic interest of their visit to Australia. He was delighted at their success that day and hoped they would be able at some future time to visit Melbourne, Derbyshire, again.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, on behalf of the guests, thanked the Vicar both for the readiness with which he acceded to the request for the peal attempt to be made and for his hospitality, which they all greatly appreciated. It had been their ambition since their return from Australia to complete the unique 'double' by ringing a peal in Melbourne, Derbyshire, and they were all delighted that it had been successful. They were greatly pleased to meet the local ringers, and he congratulated them on having had their bells put into such excellent order. He hoped they would go on and progress in the art of ringing so that one day they might be able to visit Melbourne, Australia, and ring a peal there. (A Voice: 'Some hopes,' and laughter.) Mr. Goldsmith referred to the presence of the Rev. R. Sherwood and said how greatly delighted they were to meet him again under such happy circumstances. In Australia Mr. Sherwood did a great deal to smooth the way for their ringing at the Cathedral, and he would probably remember the peal two years ago that very day, when the Gas Company tried to get him to stop the bells, because, they said, they could not carry on their business. Some of the rooms in the company's huge offices were right opposite the louveres of the belfry, and he (Mr. Goldsmith) believed if they could have done so they would have liked at that moment to set Mr. Sherwood on the top of one of their gasometers and blow him up (laughter). He was blown up on the telephone, however, and they were glad to see him still alive and well and able to join them that day as the Vicar of an English country parish (applause).

Mr. W. H. Fussell seconded the vote of thanks to the Vicar and the local ringers and referred to the wonderful ties between the two Melbournes, held together in no small measure by the Church in the two countries. That day, he thought, the ringers by their activities had added another link.

The Rev. R. Sherwood added his thanks to the Vicar for permitting Mrs. Sherwood and him to join the happy gathering. He said he felt they did not do enough in Australia for the English ringers, who brought far more than they received in return.

Both churchwardens endorsed the welcome extended by the Vicar, and Mr. Whitehead, a ringer and former churchwarden, expressed delight at the visit and said how much he had enjoyed listening to the peal, which was the first rung there for a great number of years.

GREETINGS TO AUSTRALIAN RINGERS.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION'S NEW PRESIDENT.

TO-MORROW'S GATHERING IN LIVERPOOL.

The new president of the Lancashire Association (the Rev. Arthur Scott) will take the chair at the association's fifth annual dinner, which is to be held at the Bear's Paw Restaurant, Liverpool, on Saturday.

The Rev. Arthur Scott, who was elected a month ago, succeeds the late Canon Elsee, who filled the office for 45 years. Mr. Scott, who is 'Lecturer of Bolton' and senior curate of Bolton Parish Church, is the only son of Mrs. Scott, of Batley House, Newport, Brough, East Yorkshire, and of the late Mr. Arthur Scott. A Yorkshireman by birth, being born in Hull in 1907, Mr. Scott has Lancashire blood in his veins through his grandmother, the late Mrs. Margaret Scott, a daughter of William Lawton, of Holcroft Hall, Culcheth, near Warrington.

Rev. Arthur Scott, M.A.

In 1926 he entered Queen's College, Cambridge, obtaining a third class in Part I. of the Historical Tripos in 1928, proceeding to his B.A. in the following year, and his M.A. in 1933.

In 1929 Mr. Scott entered Ridley Hall, Cambridge. He was ordained deacon by the Bishop of Manchester in Manchester Cathedral in 1930, and priest the following year.

From 1930 to 1934 he was curate of Christ Church, Harpurhey, a large urban parish in the North of Manchester, under the Rev. H. S. Wilkinson, now Rector of Chester-le-Street. In 1934 the Vicar of Bolton invited Mr. Scott to join the staff of Bolton Parish Church, and six months later he was appointed 'Lecturer of Bolton.'

It was at Bolton that Mr. Scott first became a ringer. Although a beginner in the art of change ringing, Mr. Scott is very keen and means to master it, hoping to ring his first peal in the near future.

Mr. Scott is also keenly interested in Toc H, and was appointed Padre of Bolton Branch in 1934, and of the Bolton District in 1936.

To-morrow's programme in Liverpool will include a visit to the tower of the new Cathedral at 2 p.m. and a civic reception at the Town Hall at 3.30. At this function tea will be served by the kindness of the Lord Mayor, and the Police band will be present to render a programme of music.

The speakers at the dinner will include the Lord Bishop of Liverpool and the president of the Central Council, as well, of course, as the new president of the association.

FROM MELBOURNE TO MELBOURNE

greetings to ringers Melbourne, Australia. Peal successful for Cathedral Society on bells restored by Councillor Nettlefold.—Sherwood.

A course of Grandsire Caters on handbells and some tunes by Bill and George brought this part of the happy proceedings to a close.

The visitors afterwards, through the kindness of Mr. T. Pearce, the agent for the estate, who acted as guide, made a hurried inspection of the famous gardens of Melbourne Hall. The hall itself stands but a few yards from the east end of the church and was at one time a palace of the Bishops of Carlisle, to whom the church and all its belongings were given when that See was founded. It was later the seat of Sir John Coke, a Secretary of State to Charles I., and afterwards became the home of the Lamb family, of which Lord Melbourne was a member. Lord Palmerston, another Prime Minister, also lived there.

As dusk was falling the visitors piled into their cars, and Rupert led them successfully through the narrow and tortuous roads to Loughborough, and thence to Grantham, where he decided to allow the other two to make their own way home, while he went ahead to prepare for the coming of the rest of the party—although we rather think it was Mrs. Richardson who did the actual preparation. The two remaining cars separated, but after a time when the 'tortoise' was due home, and overdue, and had not arrived, there was talk of a search party going out to scour the countryside for the missing ones. The search was not a protracted one. The car was found safely parked in the forecourt of the Crown at Surfleet, and the occupants comfortably engaged in the bar parlour.

At dinner that night 'Australian friends' were toasted, and the health of the host and hostess was drunk with gusto.

Next morning four of the party, including Mr. Fussell, who had rung in the Rev. H. Law James' first peal, rang a course of Grandsire Triples on handbells round the grave of the late Vicar of Surfleet. This tribute paid, ringing for service gave the visitors, new to the Lincolnshire village, the opportunity to hear Surfleet's little ring of twelve bells.

With the afternoon came the first departures, but some of the party extended their visit until Monday before returning to distant corners of England.

It was a 'great reunion,' the success of which was in large measure due to the great hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson.

WARWICKSHIRE GUILD.ARCHDEACON OF COVENTRY APPOINTED PRESIDENT.

The quarterly meeting of the Warwickshire Guild at Bedworth on Saturday, October 17th, was very successful in every way. The ringing was somewhat curtailed, as, owing to the funeral of a prominent local resident, the bells were not rung until after tea. However, the handbells were made good use of until the time for the service. This was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. H. Brodie-Good) and his curate (the Rev. C. Stammers) in the side chapel of the church, and a short but interesting address was given by the Rector.

After tea, to which about 40 members and their friends sat down in the Church School, the company adjourned to another room for the business meeting. The Rev. C. Stammers was in the chair, and members attended from Stratford-on-Avon, Stoke, Nuneaton, Rugby, Chilvers Coton, Allesley, Bulkington, Erdington and the local band. Several visitors were also welcomed, including Mr. J. Hunt, of Manchester.

Meeting places were arranged as follows: Allesley on November 21st, and Nuneaton on January 16th. The December meeting was cancelled owing to the proximity of Christmas.

The committee's action in appointing the Archdeacon of Coventry to be the president of the Guild in succession to the Rev. J. A. B. Davies was approved by the committee, on the proposition of Mr. L. J. Hinde.

Four new members were elected, namely, W. Leeson, J. Jukes, S. Bragg and W. Vann. The election of the Rev. C. E. Wigg, of High Wycombe, Mr. A. P. Cannon, of Brockley, London, and Mr. A. S. Richards, of West Wickham, Kent, prior to a peal at Hear Cross, Staffs, was ratified.

The Ringing Master announced that an invitation had been extended to ringers to attend the rededication of the bells at Leamington Hastings on November 1st.

A vote of thanks to the Rector for the use of the bells and for his address, to the chairman for conducting the meeting, and to the ladies who had kindly prepared tea, was proposed by Mr. J. H. White.

Muffled ringing on the tower bells followed the meeting.

REOPENING OF LINDLEY BELLS.RESTORATION OF A YORKSHIRE RING.

On Saturday last the Lord Bishop of Wakefield rededicated the ring of eight bells at St. Stephen's Church, Lindley, on the outskirts of Huddersfield, after rehanging by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough.

For some time past these bells had been in indifferent condition, having done service since 1874, when they were presented to the church by Thomas Varley, of Egerton House.

The peal, which has a tenor bell of approximately one ton, has now been retuned, quarter-turned and cleaned, and equipped with entirely new fittings in a new metal frame, the work being carried out in the traditional 'Taylor' manner, and, of course, leaving nothing to be desired.

A large congregation was present, including visiting ringers from Friezland, New Mill, Armley, Headingley, Ashton-under-Lyne, London, etc., and the bells were made good use of after the service and during the evening.

It was fitting that the generous donor of the bells, who died only a few months after making his gift, was not forgotten last Saturday, and a wreath, made in the shape of a bell, was placed upon his grave, which is close to the church.

FUNDS RAISED BY RINGERS.

It is pleasing to put on record the unflagging and determined efforts of the Lindley ringers to get the bells into ringing order again. It may give other ringers, who are in the same position, the necessary hope and fighting spirit to get their own bells restored, for it is a good example of perseverance and grit. The bells had got to such a condition that it was agreed that no more ringing could be done until they were made safe again.

The ringers held a meeting and decided to raise the necessary funds by holding whist drives and distributing collecting envelopes throughout the district. At last they had sufficient money in hand to undertake the work and they are now able to handle their own bells once more. Hard work, perseverance and enthusiasm have been their motto.

They are naturally very proud of what has been accomplished, and gladly say that they have 'the finest peal in Yorkshire, bar none.'

WEDDING BELLS.

At St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Holloway, on Sunday, September 27th, for morning service, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples: R. Charge 1, Miss E. Dixon (first quarter-peal 'inside') 2, R. Newman 3, H. Franks 4, G. Charge 5, A. Turner (conductor) 6, F. Akers 7, H. Brown (first quarter-peal) 8. Rung in honour of the wedding of Miss V. M. Cay to Mr. Alfred Johnson, which took place at SS. Peter and Paul's Church.

SURREY BELLS IMPROVED.RESTORATION IN A TWO-TIER FRAME.

On Sunday, October 25th, the Rt. Rev. C. H. Golding-Bird rededicated the eight bells of Yorktown Church, Camberley, Surrey, after they had been rehanged and retuned by John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. The bells were rung in a few rounds during the service by the local ringers, also after the service in rounds and call changes. While the congregation were leaving the church, touches of Grandsire, Plain Bob and Stedman were afterwards rung by the visitors, which, considering the mixed nature of the band, were good, especially the Stedman.

The bells are hung in two tiers. The lower tier is in an H frame and the upper in a side frame, each mounted on steel girders running north, south, east and west, thus bracing the tower. Each bell pit is also cross braced. All fittings are new throughout. The 'go' of the bells is perfect, and they all handle exceptionally well considering the very long draught.

The bells themselves have been very much improved by tuning and are now a very musical peal. The whole lay-out has been carefully thought out and carried through on thorough engineering lines.

DEATH OF A LEIGHTON BUZZARD STALWART.A PIONEER OF CHANGE RINGING.

By the passing on the morning of October 20th of George Bonfield, Leighton Buzzard lost one of its pioneers of change ringing.

Commencing his ringing career at St. Barnabas', Linslade, in 1886, he transferred in the following year to All Saints', Leighton Buzzard, where he was a member of that band for 36 years. He conducted the first two peals of Grandsire Triples by the local band in 1903 and 1910, and in May, 1904, he called the first touch of Grandsire Triples at St. Barnabas', Linslade, when the bells were augmented from six to eight.

During the Great War he ably deputised for Mr. J. Nicholls, the foreman of All Saints' belfry, and instructed a band of lady ringers to carry on whilst most of the men were absent.

In 1922, it became apparent that his failing health would cause him to give up ringing, and to the regret of all he handled a bell for the last time on Christmas Day of that year. He also retired from the L.M.S. Railway, in whose service he had been on the foot-plate for so long.

During his years of retirement he never ceased to take interest in local ringing, and he frequently criticised the efforts of the younger ringers in the town.

His death was quite sudden and unexpected, following an operation in Aylesbury Hospital. He lived, however, to see the completion of the schemes of rehanging the two local peals of bells in 1935.

The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon at St. Mary's Cemetery, Old Linslade, and during the evening a half-muffled quarter-peal of Stedman Triples, rung as a mark of respect, was brought home on the back 'eight' of All Saints' Church: Miss D. Lidbitter (first quarter-peal in the method) 1, P. Vickers 2, F. Dedman 3, W. Botsford 4, F. Plummer 5, E. Bilson 6, J. E. Arnold (conductor) 7, W. Jeffs 8. Ringers of 2, 3, 6 and tenor belong to St. Barnabas' belfry, Linslade.

ASHOVER CHURCH BELLS.A RESTORATION APPEAL.

A public meeting was held in the Parish Room, Ashover, Derbyshire, on Wednesday, October 14th, presided over by the Rector, the Rev. J. B. Nodder, M.A., to consider a report received from Messrs. John Taylor and Co., bell founders, Loughborough, on the condition of Ashover church bells.

It is now 34 years since two additional bells were added and the rest of the peal thoroughly overhauled, and in consequence of local reports to the Rector that some attention to them was necessary, the bell founders were invited to make an examination, as a result of which it is revealed that wear and tear has made necessary certain work which would involve an immediate cost of approximately £50. In addition the bell founders pointed out that practically the whole of the bearings are showing wear to such an extent as will render it necessary for these also to receive attention and renewal within a comparative short period. In view of this they strongly advised that the bearings should be renewed at the same time and thereby avoid the double expense of providing the necessary tools, tackle and appliances for carrying out the work of complete restoration.

At the meeting it was decided to accept Messrs. Taylor's estimate of approximately £140 for the complete work of restoring the peal to a first-class condition, including the placing of the bells on ball bearings, and to endeavour to raise the necessary money by public subscription.

It was considered that anyone who had visited the old-world village of Ashover, and was interested in its delightful old church and beautiful peal of bells, which have a tenor of about 18 cwt., might like to subscribe to this worthy project which is immediately being taken in hand. Any subscriptions thereto would be gratefully acknowledged by Mr. A. W. H. Bowler, Eastwood View, Ashover, near Chesterfield, who has been appointed treasurer of the fund.

HERTS ASSOCIATION 'FAMILY PARTY.'

At a meeting held at Abbots Langley, a peal tablet was unveiled recording the first peal rung on the bells by an entirely local band.

Owing to the large number of ringers who did not attend, the meeting resolved itself into a family party, having tea in the beautiful dining room of the old vicarage. The afternoon and evening were spent in a very social way, ringing in various methods (Surprise and otherwise), and an excellent tea given by Mrs. Geddes.

The peal board was unveiled by Miss Glenister, who rang in the peal. It is a great pity that greater support was not given to the meeting in this charming church.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Western Division of the Sussex Association was held at Lyminster on Saturday, October 17th, when 23 members were present from Arundel, Angmering, Billingshurst, Haeco, Warnham, Tarring and the local band. Ringing during the afternoon was followed by a service, conducted by the Vicar (Rev. S. P. Duval, D.D.).

Tea was served at the Vicarage and was followed by the usual business meeting.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar for the use of the bells and to the ladies who served the tea.

The Vicar, in replying, said he was pleased to see so many young ringers present, and that ringers would always be welcome in Lyminster.

PORTISHEAD LADY RINGER'S WEDDING.

A wedding took place at Portishead Parish Church on Saturday, September 26th, when Miss Gwendolin J. B. Staddon, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Staddon, of Portishead, was married to Mr. Leonard A. Simmons, third son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Simmons, of Bedminster, Bristol. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. S. Briggs (Rector of Wraxall), assisted by the Rev. Preb. H. W. Jukes (Rector of Portishead).

The Portishead band of ringers, of whom the bride has been a member for several years, rang before and after the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, was charmingly attired in a gown of ivory satin and lace, with a veil and headdress of orange blossom. She carried a bouquet of white heather and Harrissi lilies. She was attended by a quartette of bridesmaids, who included the Misses V. and K. Simmons (bridegroom's sisters), Miss B. Staddon (bride's sister) and Miss A. Brown (aunt of the bride). The two latter are ringers.

After the ceremony a reception was held, at which some 50 guests were present, among whom were Mr. A. N. Staddon and Mr. R. Staddon (brothers of the bride), who carried out the duties of groomsmen and who are both members of the Portishead band of ringers, and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brown (uncle and aunt of the bride), who belong to the SS. Philip and Jacob's Guild of Ringers, Bristol. Among the many presents were a magnificent oak chiming clock, suitably inscribed, from the Portishead bellringers, a tea service from Preb. H. W. Jukes and Mrs. Jukes, and an Italian rug from members of the Brotherhood, where the bride assisted in the orchestra.

A DEVONSHIRE EXCURSION.VISIT TO LITTLE KNOWN TOWERS.

We cannot bring the sunshine to others without enjoying it ourselves. Thus we thought, when heavy rain pelted around our 'chara' as we journeyed, away on the borders of Devon and Somerset, in the hunting preserves of the Dulverton pack, where in a bygone generation 'Passou' Jack Russell used to hunt.

The genial secretary of St. David's, Exeter, band (Mr. Gardner) was our guiding light, and all that the members of a party of 20 ringers, wives and friends had to do was to enjoy what sunshine there happened to be about. A case of bottles occupied a small corner near the driver's seat. Mr. Gardner made certain of no 'dryness' in the bus.

We left St. David's at 8.30 and our host led us—literally so, as he occupied the front seat—along the Exe Valley, through Tiverton to Washfield. The little grey tower frowned over a bit of landscape of inviting beauty, a churchyard of wondrous tidiness and a little grey church of Perpendicular style, containing a fine screen and a good Norman font. In a very unobtrusive corner of the 'god's acre' lie the mortal remains of 'Prinny,' Dr. Dangar, of St. Luke's. Readily the six tuneful bells responded to Grandsire Doubles.

Journeying onward o'er hill and dale, through trackways old and winding, wherein our bus brushed bracken on each side, and even brought us safely through a ford, we came by dint of determination on the part of our driver to East Anstey. On our way we passed the Gibbet Moor, on which the last gibbeting of a man in Devon is said to have occurred. At East Anstey we found in the Perpendicular church, perched on a hill, a very musical peal of six bells. The Vicar welcomed us, and though he argued that the tenor, contrary to our better judgment, was about 14 cwt., he produced evidence which proved that it was but 7½ cwt.

Molland, our next stopping place, is only a few miles from East Anstey as the crow flies, but the meandering journey took our driver fully half an hour, sometimes very hazardous driving. The ancient edifice, however, was worth his pains. It is a relic of the centuries worth gold to our great church, and if only the tall box pews, more common a couple of centuries ago, are preserved to future generations, it is worth while. Molland has a fine peal of five bells, with tenor near 18 cwt., and were they an eight what a glorious volume of melody would float across the valley below! The tenor was a handful to turn in in Doubles, and our 'Ringing Master' Richardson found the fourth a bit troublesome. The Vicar, who welcomed us, is evidently a votary in the footsteps of Parson Jack Russell.

High Bray was reached by a drive through the Bray Valley, with its towering coppices and woodlands, which reminded us of Lynton. The church stands on a hill, and many a time did our driver reverse to get round the bends and land us safe and true outside the churchyard gates. The sextoness seemed quite displeased that the party would not ascend the grey square tower to view the pastoral scene. We saw the Bray Vale beneath. High Bray bells responded well to our efforts, and our Doubles must have charmed the ears of the little maids who cleaned their Sunday boots beside the cottage door. But friend Searle was much concerned with his rope, and the huge knot he tied dangled precariously near his 'spectacles' at backstroke. Or was it at Charles when we attempted our Doubles on the five? However the locals contented themselves with such 'prodigious' ropes in length and size puzzled Mr. Ridler (of Thorverton).

We found Charles after a rambling route and many inquiries by our forbearing driver. It is away up somewhere, with South Moulton somewhere north or south, and it stands on a hill and overlooks a wonderful valley. The five bells go well and are very musical in what appeared to be a minor, with tenor about 8 cwt. And by the southern porch he rested and heard the Doubles on his village bells. How truly Gray's Elegy paints village life! Yes, the old sexton sat on a tombstone and heard half-pull ringing, perhaps for the first time in his life. Our driver questioned if ever the people of Charles had seen 'the pictures.'

I heard remarks of 'more civilised roads,' 'back to civilisation,' as we approached Filleigh. And we saw flannelled cricketers on the Castle Hill (Earl Portesque's) grounds as we passed on to the church, where we found a musical ring of six.

Tea at Barnstaple and the run of 40 miles along the Taw valley brought us to St. David's at 8.45. Mr. Ridler safely in the 9.30 for Thorverton, and 'Good night,' ended a very joyous day.

Thank you, St. David's band; thank you, Mr. Gardner! F. C. S.

MAINTAINING THE PERSONNEL.

We are hearing constantly of towers which, having had successful bands in recent years, are now finding a difficulty in keeping a company together and getting the bells rung. By 'successful' we mean bands who have, for a considerable period, never failed in the regularity of their service ringing; who, whatever else they have done, have fully manned their bells on Sundays. Now, however, there is a falling away, and the bells are partly silent at the very times when they are expected to sound at their best. The trouble is not confined to any one district, the same story comes to us from various parts of the country, and when it comes, it comes more in sorrow than in anger. We record an instance this week, at Drayton, where the late Rev. F. E. Robinson was Vicar. Here the inhabitants have so much missed their bells that they have petitioned the Vicar to have them rung again.

Summing up the evidence which these cases have produced, there are two main causes—old hands dying off and none to replace them; younger ringers lured away by other attractions or demands upon their time. In almost every case it is the older men who, with undiminished loyalty, are doing their best to keep the bells going in face of many discouragements. Despite this disconcerting state of affairs, however, we imagine that it is no new phase. For hundreds of years the people of England have been told that the country is 'going to the dogs.' But it hasn't gone yet—in the sense that the phrase is here used. Pessimists who hear of the falling off of interest in the belfry may tell us that ringing is going to the dogs, too, but it is a long way from that. This is no new failing. Always there has been an ebb and flow in individual towers, and those who have been able to maintain a full company over a long period of years have indeed been fortunate. In the mass, the number of ringers is well-maintained, although it must not be forgotten that the number of church bells in the country is rapidly increasing. Nevertheless, it is regrettable that bands long noted for their regular and devoted service are gradually breaking up from some cause or other, and the bells becoming more and more silent in these places.

When a band begins to fall to pieces because, while having apparently ample personnel, the members just absent themselves from their duties, and put other claims first, there is every reason for sympathy with the remaining ringers, who are 'let down' through no fault of their own. Slackers in the belfry are difficult to deal with, if an appeal to their loyalty has no effect. Their loss means a definite set-back for a time, but often they are men whose interest in the belfry has been the ringing alone. When that fails there is nothing to hold them. This type can only be held by constant new interest, and if they are to be 'caught' before they finally slip away, the rest of the band must show a new spirit of enterprise and build up a progressive programme. Once the slackers have gone, there is nothing for it but to begin again, and in making a new beginning it is safer to use as material those who are Churchmen first and are prepared to become ringers afterwards.

Maker to St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey, Imperial Institute, Canterbury, Edinburgh, St. Albans, Lincoln, Durham, Peterborough, Melbourne (Australia), Rochester, Dublin, St. Patrick's, Manchester, Durban and Worcester Cathedrals, etc., etc.

Where the losses are due to the attrition of years or removals, there is nothing left but to begin once more at the bottom and build up. As everyone knows, this takes time and patience. Actually it ought to be guarded against at all times. No tower should be without one or two beginners. Only a small proportion remain permanently attached to the art, and it needs this small proportion to cover the gaps as they occur. In the tower where you find no learners, you may soon find no ringing.

ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS.

SERVICE TO BE HELD AT ST. OLAVE'S, HART STREET.

A quarterly meeting of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths was held at Romford on Saturday, October 24th, and was fairly well attended. Touches were rung in various methods during the afternoon, and a service was held, conducted by the Vicar, who, in his address, gave the ringers a hearty welcome and spoke of the necessity of pulling together.

Tea was partaken of at the new dance hall close to the church, to which about 25 sat down, and afterwards ringing for 7 o'clock service took place. At the business meeting, held in the belfry, the proposed dinner of the society was discussed, and it was decided to hold it on March 13th. A letter was read by the Master (Mr. G. Cross) from the Vicar and Church Council of Shoreditch inviting the members to a ringers' service on Sunday, November 8th, at 11 a.m., and another from the Rector of St. Olave's, Hart Street, suggesting a service for ringers on Sunday, December 13th, to be held in the evening. Notice of this service appears in the advertisement columns.

Two new members were elected, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. E. J. Butler, proposed by the Master and seconded by Mr. A. Pye, for all the trouble he had taken to arrange the meeting at such short notice. Votes of thanks to the Vicar and organist for their kindness in making the service a success were also passed. Ringing in various methods afterwards continued till 9 p.m.

UNION TRIPLES. ITS ORIGIN AND HISTORY.

By J. A. TROLLOPE.

Union Triples is an off-shoot of Grandsire and this is how it came about. In 1718, John Garthon, of Norwich, after 'long study and practice,' composed the first tune peal as Grandsire Triples. But he did not take the plain course as the unit and try and extend it to a five-thousand by means of bobs, as a modern composer would have done. What he did was to take the six-score he knew as Grandsire Doubles and apply that to seven bells, using the system of hunts which was then the recognised plan of composing extents, and had come down from the Plain Changes.

Stedman had thoroughly explained this system, and Garthon probably had the 'Tintinnologia' and certainly the 'Campanologia.' He found that in Doubles a bob is called at every lead end except when the half-hunt (the fifth) is Before. On seven bells that gave him a three-lead course in which the half-hunt (the sixth) dodges in 6-7 down and 4-5 up, and produces a five-course block in which the quarter-hunt (the seventh) completes its revolution. Neither on five nor on seven bells does the half-hunt go into the hunt, but the conditions for composition by hunts are fulfilled as they are not fulfilled in the plain course. So far all was plain sailing; but now he had to fix the path of the quarter hunt (the fifth). He must not interfere with the bobs when the half-hunt is dodging in 4-5 or 6-7, and he must not call a bob when that bell is before, for that would at once make the peal false. So he introduced a fresh sort of bob, which he called a Hic, in which fifth's place is made when the treble is leading at handstroke. With nine of these Hics, used exactly as the bobs are used in the Standard 720 of Plain Bob Minor, he joined together six of the five-course blocks producing a quarter peal. But the quarter hunt only fell into half its full number of positions, and so a complementary quarter peal was necessary in which the quarter hunt fell into the missing positions; and these two quarter peals, with the two corresponding ones with the changes out-of-course, gave him the extent of the rows. To link the four quarter-peals together he used a Q Set consisting of two Hics and two doubles made alternately at the ends of the quarter peals.

The peal has three sorts of calls, and after some years it was superseded and became obsolete. Men who knew nothing about it began to despise it as false and worthless, and even in modern times after it has been rediscovered and printed, it is usually looked upon as a crude and immature production. But it is anything but crude. It is a very fine composition, worthy to be ranked with Holt's ten-part and Thurstans' Stedman Triples; and it did more than any peal except Annable's Bob Major to influence and develop early composition. It has three sorts of calls if we look at it as a peal of Grandsire Triples, in which the plain course is the unit; but that is not how Garthon and the early ringers looked at it. He had to extend Grandsire Doubles, using hunts (originally Grandsire Doubles was a particular six-score, not a method with plain course and bobs and singles), and according to his promise, the regular succession of two bobbed leads and one plain on seven bells could not be altered. They were the method, and his plain course was really the block of 210 rows. The Hic was his bob, and the two Doubles were the minimum number required to change the nature of the rows. W. D. Croft, in his notebook, gives what is evidently a copy of a manuscript by Garthon and there it is stated that, 'we never call anything but the extreams (i.e. the Hics) in this peal.'

In less than three weeks after the performance at Norwich, the Union Scholars rang the peal at St. Dunstan's-in-the-East. The ringer of the seventh was Robert Baldwin, who apparently was the conductor. He tried to simplify Garthon's composition by reducing the number of different calls used, and as he could not get rid of the Hics or the Grandsire bobs, he got rid of the Grandsire plain leads. What he did in effect was to treat the B block as the plain course and the Hic as the bob, though in practice the names were reversed, the Hic being considered as the plain lead. At the time, and until quite recently, men did not understand the distinction between a plain lead and a bobbed lead. Annable more than once says, 'you can have it which way you please.' In Union Triples the bob making bells are the bells in 3-4-5 at the handstroke of the treble at the so-called plain lead.

By means of one Grandsire bob and two Hics, Baldwin obtained a three-lead course, which fixed the path of the half-hunt, and a block of five courses (210 changes), which fixed the path of the quarter-hunt. This block he extended to a peal by using the same composition as in Garthon's peal.

Following their custom, the Union Scholars called the new peal after their own name, and, though so far as we know, they did not ring it (at least not the full five-thousand), the method had a considerable amount of popularity in London during the first half of the 18th century. Annable called the first recorded peal on February 17th, 1728, at St. Lawrence Jewry for the College Youths, but as it was only claimed as the first in that tower, it is probable that others had been already rung, which are now forgotten.

The method was also rung to some extent as nine bells, and the Cumberlands scored the first peal of Caters (6,410) on December 26th, 1786, at Shoreditch. Baldwin used the same Double as Garthon had used, but ringers preferred one made at back-stroke in 2-3, when the treble is leading full, after the manner of the common Grandsire single; and using this, some unknown man produced a very simple and regular 5,040 of Triples which is given in the 'Clavis.'

After a while the method fell into disuse, but it was revived to some extent in the closing years of the 19th century, mainly through the influence of men like C. D. P. Davies, A. B. Carpenter, W. H. Thompson and J. J. Parker. The interest these men took in the method was due to its composition, not on account of any particular merits in actual ringing.

During the controversies which followed the appointment of the Methods Committee in 1899, it was condemned as unsymmetrical, and is little rung at present.

A good deal of heat was generated during the controversy over Union Triples, especially between such doughty protagonists as C. D. P. Davies and H. L. James, and, as usual, the truth was not wholly on one side or the other. The method is unsymmetrical only in its so-called plain course; the real plain course (the B block) is perfectly symmetrical, and so does not offend against the rule. But it consists of only three leads, and there is another rule which says that a method must have as many leads in its plain course as there are working bells. Is this a sound and necessary rule? Certainly it is for Minor and Major, but I am not sure if it is for Triples and Royal. My opinion in this matter has developed during the years, as you can see by comparing the Methods Report, which I wrote in

ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the South-Eastern Division of the Essex Association was held at Danbury on Saturday, October 24th, 42 members and friends attending from 13 towers, viz., Great Baddow, Boreham, Broomfield, Chelmsford, Ford End, Danbury, Goldhanger, Maldon, Springfield, Writtle, Little Waltham, Sudbury and Colchester.

The association's form of service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. F. S. Hopkirk), who gave a very interesting address. The lesson was read by the Master (Dr. P. T. Spencer-Phillips), and the singing accompanied by the organist, Mr. Beckett.

Tea was partaken of in the Village Hall, served by friends of the local ringers, the Rector presiding.

At the business meeting, presided over by the Master, it was decided to hold the annual meeting, which will be at Great Baddow, on Saturday, November 28th.

A vote of thanks to the Rector for allowing the use of the bells and for taking the service, to the ladies for preparing and serving the tea, and to the organist, was proposed by the Master and carried with applause.

The Rector, in reply, welcomed the ringers to Danbury, and hoped they would soon come again.

Handbell ringing followed and further ringing at the tower, and the bells being lowered at 9 p.m. brought another enjoyable and successful meeting to a close.

1903, with the preface to the 'Collection of Triples Methods,' which I wrote in 1935. But that is not the real plain course.

On the whole I think that Union Triples does comply with necessary rules. The proof of the pudding is in the eating. Is Union Triples a method which has proved itself worthy in actual practice? Mr. Goldsmith, who has rung it, says it has, and I, who have never struck a blow of it, cannot gainsay him. But I should hardly think it is in the same class as Oxford Bob and Double Court, and on the whole I think we did well to leave it out of the 'Collection of Triples Methods.'

Messrs. Mears and Stainbank are to recast the peal of eight at Glodwick, Oldham.

Mr. Albert Smithers, a ringer at Dunsfold, Surrey, since 1892, when the three old bells were recast and three new ones added, died last week. He had been a member of the choir for many years. He was a member of the Guildford Diocesan Guild, and formerly of the old Winchester Diocesan Guild before the splitting up of the diocese.

Mr. F. E. Pitman is in Edward Surgical Ward, Farnborough Hospital, Kent, where he has been operated on for appendicitis. He is making excellent progress and hopes to be able to handle a rope again before Christmas. This is the first time he has missed Sunday service ringing since he started ringing nine years ago at Southampton.

The bells at Ilchester Church, Somerset, are to be restored and rehanging in a new frame by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

The dedication of the bells at Halberton, Devon, is to take place on November 21st, instead of the 14th as at first announced.

The marriage took place in London last week of Mr. James E. Davis and Miss E. E. Hardcastle, who are making their home at 118, Sarsfield Road, Balham. Mr. Davis has, for more than 40 years, been prominent in London ringing circles, and Miss Hardcastle is a well-known member of the Ladies' Guild. Their many friends will extend to them cordial congratulations and good wishes.

SHOULD LADIES RING WITH HATS AND COATS ON?

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I cannot see how a lady can ring comfortably with a coat on any more than a man can. There is no law against a female removing her coat in church, but there is against removing her hat.

St. Paul's words in I. Cor., xi., 5, 'But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered dishonoureth her head,' has been extended to mean, she must in no wise enter a place of worship with uncovered head, whether praying or prophesying or not, or whether a service is proceeding or not, or whether ringing or not, as a belfry is considered part of the church.

The difficulty with the ladies is, their fashions in hats are always changing. Sometimes a wide-brimmed hat or a Marina which is fatal to good ringing, or one of those charming little helmet hats of a few years ago, which were ideal for ringing, and very becoming withal.

If ringing ladies would adopt a special ringing hat, something like those brimless helmet hats, or a beret, the problem would be solved at once. They need not be worn out of doors, but folded up and carried in a handbag.

A specially designed ringing hat for use by the Ladies' Guild would be on a par with the old school tie.

A HAGBOURNE COMMEMORATION.

The bellringers' annual service at Hagbourne, Berks, was held on Sunday, on the ninth anniversary of the dedication of the bell frame. After the service a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples (Thurstans'): F. H. Abbott 1, H. K. White 2, W. V. Webb 3, H. Bishop 4, J. Sawyer 5, R. G. Rice 6, A. H. Webb (conductor) 7, E. Sawyer 8.

Hagbourne has a fine peal of bells, and the local newspaper, which publishes the following verses, says it has been authoritatively stated that the bells of Hagbourne are the second finest peal in England.

When good Queen Bess was on the throne these bells of ours were cast,
By unknown founders, working in a day that's long since past.
They graved them with the maker's name and many an ancient rune,
But the hand of God was with them when they chipped them for the tune.

He knew that through the ages, in the spot where they were hung,
Their voice would be His messenger whenever they were rung,
And if at times the pulpit should appear to lose its power,
For ever pure and true would be the message from the tower.

The villages that lie around, they boast about their peal,
And never for a moment own the jealousy they feel,
But they listen—how they listen—when the distant music swells,
And old and young together say, 'There go the Hagbourne bells.'

Yes, the Hagbourne bells are ringing, there's a wonder in their song,
For other things have altered as the ages pass along,
But who can doubt the future, and who can be afraid?
For the Hagbourne bells are ringing as the day when they were made.

LIVERPOOL CATHEDRAL TOWER.

PROVIDING FOR WORLD'S HEAVIEST

Cirder Foundation Like Railway Bridges.

BY E. H. LEWIS.

A number of members of the Lancashire Association and their friends, who had come to Liverpool for the annual dinner on Saturday, availed themselves of the opportunity to see the progress that has been made with the central tower of Liverpool Cathedral.

The party was met by the clerk of the works and were first taken through the drawing office. Here a sectional model was displayed, showing the arrangement for hanging the bells. Then they climbed 179 feet to the floor of the ringing room. On the way up and on arrival one was impressed with the immensity of the building. The tower is 75 feet square inside. In such a tower it would be possible to hang on one level twenty-five rings of eight bells each with a 14 cwt. tenor, or sixteen rings of ten bells each with a 25 cwt. tenor! The weight of the tenor of the ringing peal is to be four tons and a 10 ton bourdon bell is to be allowed for. So very special arrangements have to be made to support the 16 tons of swinging bells of the peal with so large a span.

The crown of the vault is about 170 feet from the floor, about the same height as that of Boston Stump. Clear of the vault by a few feet are the bottom edges of the huge girders that are to carry the load of bells. These four girders are trussed steel structures, placed in pairs diagonally across the tower. The ends rest on other shorter girders which cross the angles of the tower. They look like two full size railway bridges, each with twenty feet clear track-way, about 85 feet in span and twenty feet deep, interlacing where they cross. Like railway bridges the ends are mounted on rollers to allow for expansion. The twenty foot square at the intersection of the two bridges will ultimately be the ringing room.

Over the girders will be a floor and ten feet higher another floor, supported from the girders by reinforced concrete pillars. On this second floor will be the 'bell-frame,' which is not a frame in the ordinary sense of the word, but a series of wedge-shaped concrete pedestals arranged in a circle. These pedestals will each carry two bearings and all the bells are to swing in radial planes—that is, towards and away from the centre of the tower. All the wheels are to be roped on the inside of the wheels so that the ropes will fall in a perfect circle in the ringing room.

At present the tower walls are a few feet above the tops of the girders, and ultimately they are to reach a height of over 300 feet.

The general impression gained was that everything connected with the bells had been very carefully worked out, that they should not be more difficult to ring than St. Paul's, and that, like St. Paul's, it will not be a tower for beginners.

Some of the party expressed regret that the lift was not yet installed, but they were all very grateful to Mr. Claude Davis for making the visit possible, and to the clerk of the works for his kindness in meeting them.

SILENT DRAYTON BELLS.

PARISHIONERS PETITION FOR THEM TO BE RUNG.

The bells of Drayton Parish Church, Berks, associated so intimately with the late Rev. F. E. Robinson, who was Vicar there for many years, have been silent for some time past, owing to lack of ringers. They were heard again last Saturday, when visiting ringers rang a peal of Stedman Triples, but of service ringing there is now none.

In the past, appeals for ringers have been made, but with little result. Fifteen parishioners have now petitioned the Vicar (the Rev. B. J. Littlewood) to arrange to have the bells rung, but the problem is one for which the Vicar is at present unable to find a solution. In their memorial the parishioners say:

'We, the undersigned parishioners and worshippers at Drayton Church, are anxious to know if you will arrange to have the bells rung and chimed as in the past. We think it lamentable that such a beautiful peal of bells, hung for the use of the parish, should be silent.' Those signing the memorial state that the following are generally admitted facts: First, that the bells of Drayton Church used to be rung and chimed regularly for every church service. Second, the bells are a beautiful peal, known far and wide among campanologists for their full tone and easy handling. Third, these same bells are now mostly silent; 'it is lamentable, and more than lamentable, a standing witness to the want of energy and enthusiasm of possible young bellringers in the parish, a sad reflection upon the spirit and the motives of the present day, when compared with the past.'

The memorialists go on to point out that both in 1932 and 1933 appeals were made in the Parish Magazine for volunteers, but that there was a very feeble, half-hearted response, though experienced instructors were found who would have been more than willing to teach. They also made reference to the late Rev. F. E. Robinson, some time Vicar of Drayton, who was the first man to ring in over one thousand peals, and whose example did much to popularise ringing and introduce change ringing in out-of-the-way places.

The Rev. B. J. Littlewood wrote in July in the magazine: 'It is a sad reflection to know that the Drayton Church bells, which were once the pride and joy of its expert bellringing Vicar, no longer make an appeal to the possible church bellringers of Drayton of the present day. Sunday after Sunday of late the belfry has been silent, save for the momentary chiming of one bell, announcing the hour of divine service. Eight beautiful and far-famed bells hang in the church tower waiting to be rung. It is almost impossible to believe that an equal number of persons from the younger generation in Drayton cannot yet be found who are willing to come forward and learn the art of bellringing.' He extended an invitation to those who are included to do so. The position still stands the same to-day.

LEEDS AND DISTRICT SOCIETY.

ARMLEY RINGER'S LONG SERVICE.

The October meeting was held at Bradford Cathedral on Saturday, and was very well attended. Members were present from Armley, Batley, Burley, Calverley, Drighlington, Felkirk, Guiseley, Edinburgh, Holbeck, Headingley (St. Chad's and St. Michael's), Howarth, Idle, Lindley, Low Moor, Pudsey, Rothwell, Ripon, Rotherham, Selby, Sheffield, Sherburn, Shipley and the local company. There were visitors from Brighouse, and Mr. R. Deal, of London, was also present. An Edinburgh member, Mr. J. Marshall, came from Chesterfield, where he is at present working.

The bells were rung up at 3 p.m. and ringing continued until 7.30 p.m., when the business meeting was held, with the president in the chair.

On the motion of Mr. R. H. Vigor, seconded by Mr. W. Barton, four new members were elected, viz., Messrs. S. F. Palmer (Sheffield), G. Armitage (Pudsey), S. Longbottom (Queensbury) and H. Edwards (Low Moor).

The usual vote of thanks was accorded, proposed by Mr. W. H. Senior, seconded by Mr. R. H. Vigor.

The President then spoke of the record of service of Mr. Joseph Thackray, of Christ Church, Armley. When the church was built Mr. Thackray was one of the first children to be baptised in the new church, and during November, 1936, Mr. Thackray completes 50 years of ringing at this church.

It was resolved that the secretary should send the society's congratulations to Mr. Thackray.

The next meeting is due to be held at St. Chad's, Headingley, on November 28th. The Ladies' Guild (Northern Section) asked that this should be made a joint meeting, and no objection was voiced to this arrangement.

THANKSGIVING DAY RINGING IN VANCOUVER.

BACK TO THE BELFRY AT 73.

On Canada's Thanksgiving Day, October 12th, the bells of the Cathedral Church of the Holy Rosary (R.C.) were rung to a number of touches of Grandsire Triples, including a quarter-peal, from Parker's Twelve-part: A. C. Limpus 1, Arthur King 2, Reginald Pitman 3, W. Sampson 4, Matthew G. Bennett 5, A. B. Lomas (conductor) 6, J. Watts 7, Tom Greenaway 8. Mr. J. Watts, who is now 73 years of age, has just joined the band after an absence from ringing of some 25 years. In shorter touches Mr. Bond, now over 74, handled the tenor well.

BELL TONES.

LECTURE BY SIR WILLIAM BRAGG.

At a conversazione held at the Institute of the Royal Society of Great Britain last Friday evening, Sir William Bragg gave another of his popular lectures on 'Sound.' He took bells and their tones as his specific subject, and illustrated it in a simple and most interesting way by the use of various modern scientific apparatus. The leading exhibits, however, were two bells of about 5 cwt. each, which had been kindly lent by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank and Messrs. Taylor and Co. respectively.

The lecturer briefly described the tones which he produced from tuning forks, gongs, Chladni's plates, etc. Turning to the bells, he then elicited and amplified, through the microphone, their chief tones, viz., the hum-note, fundamental, nominal, third ('tierce') and fifth ('quint'). In describing these he spoke of the extraordinary blend of sounds (often very complex) which unite to form that familiar bell tone which reaches our ears. As an instance of the difficulty of the subject he said that it seemed there are certain tones heard by the ear which have yet to be located on the bell, if indeed they exist there at all.

Sir William then explained on the piano and by musical staves on a blackboard the two accepted methods of tuning—the 'Simpson,' with its minor third exemplified in the two bells they had there that evening, and the pre-Simpson, with its major third but flattened seventh, illustrated by a gramophone record of the great bell at Cologne. He remarked, in striking this seventh, that it was impossible to get the proper value from a piano of such tones.

In conclusion, a brief reference to the method of tuning a bell was made, illustrated by a model apparatus, and the audience also heard records of a 'ring' of eight bells and of the famous Lavenham tenor.

The distinguished company present listened with close attention and pleasure to the well-known lecturer, who was heartily applauded at the end. Sir William Bragg, in acknowledging the vote of thanks, said that they were all much indebted to the bellfounders and others who had helped to make the lecture a success.

Among those who were present were Mr. E. Denison Taylor, Mr. A. A. Hughes and Mr. E. Alex. Young.

ENTHUSIASTIC YOUNGSTERS AT CLERKENWELL MEETING.

A meeting of the North and East District of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild, held at St. James', Clerkenwell, on Saturday last, proved an attraction, despite the wet weather. Punctually at three o'clock the bells were raised, and until tea time were kept going to many methods. It was regretted that the indisposition of the Vicar prevented the advertised service being held.

An excellent tea, prepared by Miss G. Bailey and other local ringers, was much enjoyed, after which the usual business meeting took place. Two new members were elected, and St. Giles-in-the-Fields chosen for the next meeting on December 5th.

As regards the special method to be practised, it was suggested by Mr. Goodship that Cambridge Court Bob he given another trial, it being held that one practice was insufficient to get a thorough grasp of any method. After a discussion, it was agreed that Cambridge Court Bob should be the special method for the next meeting.

Mr. Goodship welcomed the Master of the association, Mr. A. W. Coles, who was present for the first time after his illness.—Mr. Coles, who was received with applause, said that he felt much better, and trusted that the cure would be permanent enough for him to earn for himself a few blisters!

Mr. T. J. Lock explained the absence of the vice-president, who had a long-standing peal engagement at his home tower, where he was entertaining visitors. This was accepted by the members present.

The hon. secretary was asked to convey the sympathies of the meeting to Mr. Henry Folkard, of Ealing, who is seriously ill.

The chairman, Mr. A. W. Coles, proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar, the Rev. C. J. Parker, for the use of the bells; also to Mr. E. W. Sawbridge (churchwarden) and Mr. R. W. Rixon; and to Miss Bailor and friends for preparing such an excellent tea. This was carried with applause.

The bells were afterwards kept going—the new method, Cambridge Court Bob, being much in demand—until after 8 o'clock. Upwards of 40 members and friends took part in the ringing during the afternoon and evening a feature of the meeting being the large number of enthusiastic youngsters present.

NEW ALRESFORD'S NEW BELL

On Sunday, October 25th, New Alresford bells, which have been rehung in a new iron frame by Messrs. Taylor and Co., Loughborough, the treble having been recast, were reopened. The treble was rededicated by the Rector, the Rev. A. J. Robertson, at the close of the morning service. A few rounds were rung by the local band after the dedication, and call changes at the close of the service.

On Sunday, November 15th, a special thanksgiving service will be held at 11 a.m., when the Bishop of Winchester will preach. The bells will be available from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 5.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m.

FARNHAM DISTRICT AT YORKTOWN.

A pleasant gathering of the Farnham District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild was held at Yorktown, Camberley, on Saturday, when, despite a drizzling day, a fair number of members were present to try the newly-restored bells. On the previous Sunday the ring of eight, tuned and rehung by Messrs. Taylor and Co., had been dedicated, and those who attended the meeting found a much improved peal which went entirely to their liking.

The very bright service, which was attended by choirmen and boys, who led the singing, was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. F. W. T. Waithman), who, in his address, spoke of the lessons of All Saints' Day.

The Vicar presided over tea in the Parish Room and was supported by Mrs. Waithman, the Guild treasurer (Mr. J. Corbett), the hon. general secretary (Mr. J. S. Goldsmith), the District Ringing Master (Mr. R. Hasted), the district hon. secretary (Mr. C. W. Denyer), and members from Aldershot, Bagshot, Farnham, Leatherhead, Seale and Yorktown.

At the meeting which followed three new members of the Bagshot band were elected to the Guild (Messrs. Welton, Briant and Wigmore), and a vote of thanks was accorded to the organist and choir, who were guests of the Guild at tea, on the motion of the district hon. secretary.

Mr. P. Eldridge proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar and the local band and congratulated the church on the completion of the bell restoration scheme.

The Vicar, in reply, said he was very pleased to hear the opinions which had been expressed by ringers of the improvement effected in the bells and the success of the restoration. He had been impressed by the number of people, and particularly sick people, who were unable to come to church, who had expressed their pleasure at hearing the bells once again. The bells had been much missed during their enforced silence. The sum of £383 had been expended on the scheme and they had raised £303 12s. 8d. They hoped to clear off the remaining £79 7s. 4d. by the end of the year (applause). He understood that the steeplekeener would now be almost out of a job, as far as looking after the bells was concerned (laughter). He (the Vicar) said to the bellhanger, 'I suppose the bells will want greasing sometimes' and the bellhanger replied, 'Yes, about once every ten years' (laughter). The Vicar added, amid renewed laughter, that he asked the bellhanger to send him a postcard as a reminder when the time came round for the greasing to be done.

A 'retiring' collection for the bell restoration fund, amounting to 14s. was taken.

RECTOR'S VIEW OF RINGERS' DUTY.

'ACT OF WORSHIP' TO RING BELLS FOR SERVICE.

The Southern Division of the Sussex County Association held a quarterly meeting at Uckfield. About 24 members and visitors were present.

The Rector (Canon J. C. le P. Hatten) gave an interesting and unusual address on the subject of the ringers' duty to the church, in the course of which he thanked the ringers for their services. He stressed the great amount of time they were required to give up if they rang twice on a Sunday and also attended the church service. He made clear that although ringers were always most welcome to stay to the service after ringing, having done their duty in the belfry, no one could take exception to their leaving the church afterwards. In his opinion, it is just as great an act of worship to ring the bells as to attend the service, and it is unreasonable to expect ringers to give up such a great deal of time as attendance at two ringings and two services would entail.

The Rector also presided at the business meeting, which followed tea. J. Bently, R. West and G. Stoner, of Burgess Hill, were elected ringing members, and the Rector an honorary member.

A vote of thanks for the use of the bells and for the address was heartily endorsed by the members present.

Methods rung ranged from Grandsire to Cambridge Surprise, several ringers scoring their first success in a new method.

VANISHED BELLS TO BE REPLACED.

One hundred and twenty years ago the old church in Taynton, Oxfordshire, had a ring of six bells. Then two mysteriously disappeared after being sent to a firm to be recast and have never been replaced. However, the Parochial Church Council are now obliged to put in a new bell frame, and, if enough money is subscribed (£260), they will replace the missing pair.

Half the necessary funds have already been contributed and further contributions should be sent to the Rev. G. R. Parkinson (Vicar of Great and Little Barrington with Taynton).

LITTLE MUNDEN, HERTS.—On Sunday, November 1st, for service, a quarter-peal of Minor (790 New London Pleasure, 360 Woodbine and 180 Oxford Bob): W. Williams 1. R. Williams 2. A. Woolston 3. A. Phillips 4. W. F. Lawrence 5. S. Carter (conductor) 6. Rung as a farewell to R. Williams, a very promising young ringer, who, much to the regret of all, is leaving the village.

SURREY VILLAGE BELL SCHEME

RINGER'S GENEROUS GIFT TO FUND.

The bells of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Chiddingfold, one of the most picturesque of Surrey villages, have been recast and slightly increased in weight. The old ring of eight, cast by no fewer than seven different founders, between circa 1480 and 1894, were, as may be imagined, a very 'mixed' lot, and as the frame, built originally in the seventeenth century for five bells and subsequently added to, first for the addition of a sixth bell and then for two further trebles, had become decrepit and showed signs of having been attacked by the death-watch beetle, opportunity has been taken to make a 'clean sweep' and instal new bells in a new frame.

The work has been carried out in a highly satisfactory manner by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and Chiddingfold can now boast of a very tuneful ring, which should prove a joy to ringers and villagers alike. The old 5th bell was cast by Roger Landon at Wokingham, about the year 1480, and bears the inscription, 'Sancta Trinitas. Ora Pro Nobis,' together with the 'R.L.' founder's shield and the 'Lion's Head' foundry stamp. On account of its antiquity and antiquarian interest, this bell has been preserved and is hung 'dead' to be used as a minute bell. It is replaced in the peal by a new bell, cast 'To the glorious memory of the reign of King George V., 1910-

THE CHURCH OF ST. MARY THE VIRGIN, CHIDDINGFOLD.

1936.' The other seven bells have been recast and by additional metal the peal has been raised from a total weight of 46 cwt. to 50½ cwt., the tenor being now 12 cwt. 2 qr. 26 lb. in F sharp, against the 10 cwt. 3 qr. in G of the former bell. The new bells are tuned on the five-tone harmonic principle and are hung in cast iron framework, on a double foundation of steel girders, which span the tower in both directions and thus help to tie the walls together. The whole of the girder work has been cased in concrete and looks an extremely massive job. All the latest improvements have been embodied in the fittings, which include cast iron headstocks, ball bearings and ball bearing pulleys.

IN MEMORY OF ZEEBRUGGE HERO.

A large portion of the cost of the restoration has been borne by Mr. E. O. C. Halahan, himself a ringer and a member of an old Chiddingfold family. Two of the new bells have been inscribed in memory of his parents, the late Capt. Henry Crosby Halahan, D.S.O., R.N., and Mrs. Halahan. Capt. Halahan was killed in action at Zeebrugge Mole in the valiant St. George's Day episode of 1918. One of the other bells has been given by Mrs. Tate, of Chiddingfold, in memory of her husband, the late Mr. A. H. Tate.

The villagers of Chiddingfold filled their church almost to overflowing on the occasion of the dedication of the new bells on Wednesday evening of last week. Mr. J. Gray and Mr. H. C. Nash, D.S.M., represented the Zeebrugge 1918 Association. The service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. C. H. R. Baldwin), the lesson was read by Capt. Crispin, R.N., and the ceremony was performed by Bishop Golding-Bird (Assistant Bishop of the Diocese of Guildford). With the Rector and churchwardens the Bishop proceeded to the tower at the west end, where Mr. A. A. Hughes (representing the founders) presented the rope attached to the pre-Reformation bell to Mr. R. J. B. Osborn (Rector's warden), who, in turn, handed it to the Bishop, requesting him to rededicate the restored peal of bells. The customary prayers followed, and the Bishop then delivered the rope to the Rector, committing the bells to him as a sacred trust. The Rector then chimed the bell, and, as the procession returned to the chancel, the peal rang out in rounds, rung by the local band, Mr. Oliver Halahan taking part.

The Bishop, in his address, spoke of the importance of worship, prayer and praise. The primary call of the bells, he said, was 'Come, come, come!' and England would never be a really happy country until it found its way back to the altar.

After the service the opening touch on the bells was rung by Chiddingfold, Haslemere, Godalming and Guildford members of the Diocesan Guild, and afterwards touches were rung by many visiting ringers.

A GENEROUS GIFT.

At a largely attended social gathering the Rector said the churchwardens had asked him to express the gratitude of the whole parish to those who by subscriptions had helped to the realisation of their peal of bells. Where all had given so freely he would mention no names except that of Mr. Oliver Halahan (applause). He had given most generously and on such a scale that it must have involved considerable sacrifice. It was to his initiative and generosity that they owed the achievement of their ambition in regard to the bells. They would remember him and his gallant father and devoted mother in memory of whom he had made the gift. The Rector thanked Mr. Hughes for the craftsmanship and skill of his firm, and thanked Major Hesse, of Haslemere, the Master of the Guildford Diocesan Guild, for his advice and guidance. He thought Major Hesse would agree that the diocese of Guildford had another peal of bells of which it might well be proud (applause). They were glad to know that someone from their own parish (Mr. Carter) had been associated with the work in the concreting of the girders.

The Rector announced that the Bells Fund now stood at £525 17s. 6d., of which £10 16s. 8d. was the collection in church that evening. The collection included £1 5s. 9d. given by the children of the day schools. The churchwardens had asked him to stress the point that the money for the bells had been collected without anything in the way of an appeal, beyond a general appeal in the magazine. There had been no begging.

Mr. Osborn, on behalf of Chiddingfold churchpeople, presented Bishop Golding-Bird with a crook and a walking stick, both ash, grown and made in Chiddingfold. He thanked the Assistant Bishop for his visit.

Speeches were also made by the Rural Dean (the Rev. E. J. Seymour, of Hambledon) and Bishop Golding-Bird, who thanked the people of Chiddingfold for their gifts.

The ringers took their share in the proceedings by ringing a course of Grandsire Caters on handbells.

The first peal was rung at West Wycombe on September 5th, 1936.

FOR BEGINNERS.

THE VALUE OF RINGING BY DIAGRAM.

The Minor methods which we suggested you should figure out for yourselves last week were: (1) The method with 'places across the treble' only, Double Court; (2) the same method with, in addition, 2nd's place when the treble leads, Hereward Bob; (3) the method with 'places across the treble' plus 5th's when the treble lies a whole pull behind, London Bob; and (4) this method, with 2nd's place added, when the treble leads, Double Oxford Bob.

If you drew the diagrams and marked the places where the treble crosses the working bell, you can write out your own tables if you wish to learn the method by the rule of 'passing the treble,' but there should not be any real need. The diagram is the best way of learning a method.

In ringing any 'treble-dominated' method, the position of the treble is a guide of infinite value. Even the experts, who can ring a peal in a Surprise method, without having seen a row of figures of it and need only the diagram, rely quite a lot on where they pass or dodge with the treble. The treble is a finger post all the time.

To begin with, of course, you may not see where the treble is until you actually come to strike over it, but careful observation will in time enable you to see exactly what its position is, even if it is at the other end of the bells. Thus there are many ringers who, if they are not sure where next to dodge in, say Grandsire or Bob Major, just keep an eye on the treble to see when it leads.

The point we want to emphasise is that whether you ring your methods by memorising separately each piece of work after you pass the treble, or whether you carry in your mind the whole outline of the work as shown in the diagram, the places where you pass the treble should be thoroughly learned.

There is this difference between the two methods of memorising a method. If you ring solely by 'passing the treble,' you may not be quite sure where you will next meet it until you actually come upon it, then if you are not quite certain of your own position you may get hopelessly lost. If you ring by diagram, with the position of the treble definitely marked, you will at least know where to expect it. If you all ring by passing the treble and the treble gets out, you all get out; if you ring by diagram and the treble goes wrong, you can probably put him right.

Ringings by diagram has this further advantage. You have the whole course in your mind's eye, and, as it were, can look far enough ahead down your path to see exactly where you are going before you come to the actual work. If you rely entirely upon a descriptive table (if we may so call it), in which you have to wait until you meet the treble before you know what next to do, your vision is very largely restricted.

Try, therefore, to learn your new methods by diagram. You will find in all of them that one half is the reverse of the other—which substantially reduces your task—while in some cases it resolves into four similar quarters turned about, either upside down, or back to front.

Take Double Oxford as an example. You will find that you have a three-pull dodge on the front before leading. Then, after making 2nd's, you have a three-pull dodge after leading. One is the reverse of the other. The same thing happens at the back before and after the whole pulls behind, with 5th's place sandwiched in between.

The work in 3-4 consists of a dodge, places across the treble and a dodge. The places coming down are the reverse of those going up.

Thus, with very little effort, you can grasp the details of the work in the course, and all you have to do is to commit their sequence to memory. You have a help in knowing where to look for the treble by the fact that if you meet the treble before a certain piece of work in one half of the course, you will meet it in the corresponding place after the reversed version of the work in the other half of the course. If you meet it, going one way, in the centre of a piece of work, as you do in the place-making in Double Oxford, you will meet it in the centre of the reverse piece of work going the opposite direction.

Study your diagrams, therefore, and ring your methods by their aid. When you have drawn your 'graph,' mark on it the place where each bell starts. Learn this as well and you will find it a great aid to something more advanced later on. 'Tables' do not lend themselves anything like as well to this knowledge as do diagrams.

A NEW PEAL OF BRISTOL SURPRISE.

A COMPOSITION FROM NEW ZEALAND.

The following interesting peal of Bristol Surprise Major was rung on Saturday for the first time, at Hyde, Cheshire, conducted by John Worth. It is by Mr. J. S. Wilde, of Dunedin, New Zealand, an old Cheshire ringer, and contains the 6th its extent at home at twelve course ends, and in 5th's place for the other seven course ends.

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AS TOWERKEEPER.

MUFFLED BELLS FOR ANSTEY RINGER.

After a long and painful illness, patiently borne, the death took place on October 25th, at 38, Bradgate Road, Anstey, Leicestershire, of Mr. Alfred Cufflin. For about 33 years Mr. Cufflin was the highly respected towerkeeper at St. Mary's Church, Anstey, a position which his father held for many years before him. During that time deceased taught many youngsters how to ring a bell, and he always did his utmost to make visiting ringers welcome.

Only six weeks previously the bells Mr. Cufflin loved so well had been reopened after the 6th, 7th and tenor had been recast and a few minor repairs carried out to the others of the ring.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, October 28th. The first part of the service was held in St. Mary's Church and was partly choral. The interment took place in the Anstey Cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tributes, including one from his fellow-ringers and one from the Parochial Church Council. Messrs. R. F. Elkington and F. Jordan represented the ringers at the funeral. Deceased's two ringing daughters, Mrs. Mary L. Disney and Miss Eileen H. Cufflin, and his son-in-law, Mr. Alban Disney, were amongst the chief mourners.

In the evening, as a last token of respect, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples was rung at St. Mary's Church, with the bells half-muffled, by the following members of the Midland Counties Association, six of whom are members of the local band: S. H. Harrison 1, A. Disney 2, R. S. W. Smith 3, E. H. Hutton 4, I. J. Wade 5, R. F. Elkington (conductor) 6, R. Barrow 7, F. Jordan 8. Also 240 Stedman Doubles with 4-6-8 covering, with Miss I. Simpson and Messrs. C. W. Hopkinson and S. Sleath taking part.

AMBITION.

To the Editor.

Sir,—All ringers of the right-thinking type will agree with the first paragraph of your leader of the 30th ult. But how many with ambition in this present age are really appreciated? There is one big bugbear to ambition: Immediately a ringer shows any signs of it, he is up against another class of ringer (generally men who have held the limelight in the past), who are afraid that his ambition is going to outwit them in various degrees and positions in the fraternity. This class of ringer should be the last to complain of depleted hands; instead, he is usually the first. Often one hears the old cry, 'We can't get ringers.' It would be truer to say, 'We can't keep ringers.' Experience has convinced me that the man with only a lukewarm interest is the one most appreciated. Scathing, but true. In and around Northampton there are over a score of such ringers. In addition to others who have had ambition but have 'packed up' in disgust. At the same time, there are towers with eight or more bells where it is no uncommon thing to hear three chimed for Sunday services, and, when rung, more often than not only to Doubles. It is a deplorable state of affairs, but one which, after all, cannot be wondered at. Ambition we all know is essential for success, but when it cannot be taken in the right spirit it is no use complaining of the present sad state of affairs in many belfries, where in time one can foresee there being neither ringing nor ringers.

Northampton.

P. AMOS.

SATISFACTION OF AMBITION ATTAINED.

Mr. James George, who has not yet recovered from his serious illness, but whose interest in everything relating to ringing is unimpaired, writes to congratulate us upon what he describes as 'an excellent leading article' in our last issue. 'Too many young ringers,' he says, 'are only satisfied to stay in their own towers. The attainment of ambition of the proper kind is a great satisfaction to any ringer.'

His many friends will be glad when Mr. George has sufficiently recovered to be in the belfry again, so that he may achieve further ambitions.

BROMSGROVE, WORCS.—On Sunday, October 18th, for evening service, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples: A. J. Martin 1, A. O. Lewis 2, H. F. Martin (conductor) 3, R. Lewis 4, F. B. Martin 5, S. J. Jones 6, F. Crump 7, H. Norbury 8. The first quarter-peal of Stedman rung for Sunday service by an entirely local band at this church.

OBJECTIONS AND REMEDIES.

Last week we recorded a case where parishioners had petitioned a vicar to have the church bells rung again, after a period during which, owing to the lack of ringers, only one bell has been chimed for services. This week comes news of an opposite kind—a memorial signed by a considerable number of people in Taunton—to have ringing, both at St. Mary's and St. James' Churches, considerably restricted. Both these churches are in the thickly populated portions of the town. We also refer in this issue to the silence of a celebrated peal of bells in London, a silence broken only on very rare occasions. Until Sunday evening these bells had not been rung for service for years.

It is always gratifying to know, as in the case of Drayton, that the parishioners miss the bells when they are not rung, and that they have sufficient interest in them to seek to get ringing restored. At the same time it is of no use to be blind to the fact that the situation in populous districts is different and difficult. At Taunton, apparently, the chief objection is to early morning ringing and peals; at St. Bride's the objection is to ringing at any time. When ringers pursue their art all the world about them can hear, and for that reason when bells are situated in thickly populated districts ringers in their own interests should exercise their craft in moderation, just as they expect the public to show toleration. We do not suggest for a moment that the ringing done in the two towers in Taunton is not done in the strictest moderation, but we do know that no toleration is shown towards ringing at St. Bride's.

While agreeing that the public must have consideration and that ringers would damage their own interests in ignoring substantial and reasonable objection to the sound of the bells, we hold that the church authorities could do a vast amount to placate the public and maintain the use of their bells if they would adopt the simple expedients that are so constantly advocated by those who really know what they are talking about. The brick-ing up of louvres, or the use of sound resisting material in the windows of the bell chamber, has been proved to have all the results desirable. To point to one of many instances that could be quoted: Bradford Cathedral, which stands right over the General Post Office. It was impossible to conduct business in this latter building when the bells were ringing and ringing would have had to stop if nothing had been done to moderate the sound. The louvres, however, have been effectually blocked, the sound finds its way out through the roof; the bells can be heard perfectly in the ringing chamber; from outside there is never a complaint.

We have often been staggered to find, when new bells have been put up or expensive restorations carried out, that while hundreds of pounds have been spent on the bell work, for the sake of a little extra money the bells have been left to become an almost immediate source of annoyance to surrounding residents. It should, we contend, always be part of a bell restoration scheme to provide for the moderation of the sound, outside as well as inside the tower. Moreover, in every populous area where the bells are over noisy, it should be the business of the ringers to urge upon the church authorities the need for carrying out a scheme of their own volition, instead of waiting for pressure outside, which in these days of growing feeling against noise of all kinds, will assuredly come sooner or later.

ENJOYABLE MEETING AT COTGRAVE.

LADIES AND SHERWOOD YOUTHS JOIN HANDS.

A very pleasant meeting of the Ladies' Guild (Northern Branch) and the Sherwood Youths was held at Cotgrave on Saturday week, when ringers were present from Beeston, Breaston, Colston-Bassett, East Kirkby, Farndon, Long Eaton, Mansfield, Newark and Nottingham (St. Mary's).

The ringing, which commenced about 3 o'clock, was continued until shortly after 8 o'clock, save for an adjournment for a short service in the church, conducted by the Rector, and tea, kindly arranged by Mrs. Walter White.

Ample justice having been done at the table to the good things provided, a course or two on the handbells was rung before a return to the tower.

During the meeting methods ranging from Grandsire Doubles to Cambridge Surprise Minor were rung, also an attempt for Cotgrave Alliance, but owing to this being sprung on some of the ringers at very short notice, it was not an unqualified success—but better luck next time.

This may be said to have been a very successful meeting, expressions of pleasure and enjoyment and hopes to come again being heard on all sides.

RINGING FOR 62 YEARS.

At Pirbright, Surrey, on Nov. 1st, 720 Grandsire Doubles was rung in honour of the 79th birthday of Mr. D. Cheeseman, who has been a ringer at this church for 62 years and verger about 45 years: Hazell Thompson (first 720) 1, F. Martin 2, J. Avenal 3, J. Thompson 4, F. Cherryman (conductor) 5, W. Thompson 6.

Recently the band lost Mr. G. H. Rose, who died on September 15th. He had been a ringer at Pirbright for nearly 50 years, and 720 Bob Doubles was rung with bells half-muffled in his memory: Phyllis Sayers 1, J. Avenal 2, F. Martin 3, J. Thompson 4, F. Cherryman 5, W. Thompson 6.

For the diamond wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John Faggetter, old and respected inhabitants of the village, the same band rang, on August 23rd, 720 Grandsire Doubles. This was Miss Sayers' first 720.

FOR BEGINNERS.

A SEVEN-METHOD PEAL OF MINOR.

In recent articles we have referred to methods which internally are similar in construction, but are varied by the addition or omission of 2nd's place when the treble leads and 5th's place when the treble lies its whole pull behind, and we have shown, we hope, the value of the diagram as a means to learning the methods.

Now, in the methods of this type diagrams can be utilised in an interesting way. Mr. J. T. Dyke, hon. secretary of the Bath and Wells Association, who was the author of the Central Council's handbook of 'Hints to Instructors and Beginners,' explains how he gets four methods from one diagram. It is based on the linking up of the half-leads by the 5th's and/or 2nd's places. Mr. Dyke worked out a course of Cambridge Minor on squared paper, filling up with black each square into which the bell would fall throughout the course. He then cut it into half-leads. These half-leads can be joined together in four ways, thus producing, in addition to Cambridge, Norfolk, Ipswich and Primrose at a few seconds' notice.

These are four Surprise methods, but the same thing can be done with plain methods, and if you like to make out a diagram of Double Court in this way, you can cut it into ten pieces by dividing it between the blows of the treble in front and behind, and by rearranging them produce a diagram of either of the other three methods at will.

While on this subject of similar methods of Minor there are two others, simple variants of those already given, which you might like to study, as, with them and the other four based on Double Court, and a 720 of Plain Bob, you have seven 720's for a peal in seven different methods.

Lytham Bob and Thelwall Bob are very like London Bob and Double Oxford. Everything is the same except in the dodging on the front. In London Bob and Double Oxford two bells meet in 1-2 when the treble goes away and dodge continuously until the treble returns.

In Lytham and Thelwall these bells lie still over each other in turn in the middle of the lead. At first sight it looks rather a tricky piece of work, but in reality it isn't if you examine the work of the two bells in combination.

The bell that takes the treble off, leads, has one blow in 2nd's (part of a dodge), leads another whole pull, then has a whole pull in 2nd's, and one blow at lead (also part of a dodge), then it passes the treble and goes away to its dodging and place-making in 3-4.

The bell coming on to the front from 3-4 does the work in the reverse order. It has one blow at lead (part of a dodge), makes 2nd's and leads a whole pull, then one blow in 2nd's (part of a dodge) and leads another whole pull, as the treble comes to lead again.

Let us put down a lead of Double Oxford and Thelwall so that you may examine the difference. We will separate the two front bells to make it clearer, and the two back bells so that you can also see better the place-making across the treble in 3-4.

Double Oxford	Thelwall
24 13 56	24 13 56
42 31 65	42 31 65
42 63 51	24 63 51
24 36 51	42 36 51
42 63 15	42 63 15
24 61 35	24 61 35
42 16 53	42 16 53
14 62 53	14 62 53
14 26 35	14 26 35

The lines across indicate the half leads.

These figures show what little difference there is between the two methods, and it should be simple when you have learnt Double Oxford to go straight to Thelwall.

Lytham is Thelwall without the 2nd's place when the treble leads and has the same relation to it that London Bob has to Double Oxford. The second 'lead head' of the course, that is the row under the bottom line, will be 164523, and as 6th's place is thus made when the treble leads, the bob has to be made on the three back bells instead of the three front ones.

Whatever the method of Minor, the bob is made in 4th's. If the method has 2nd's place, one bell runs Out and the other In, as in Bob Minor. But if, when the treble leads, 6th's place is made instead of 2nd's, then at a bob the bells behind have another dodge together instead of separating. The work which they then take up varies, of course, with the method.

The calling of these two classes of methods should not give the conductor difficulty, for just as he can get a 720 in methods with 2nd's place by calling the 6th Wrong, Right, Wrong, twice repeated, and doubling it by singles called at the last plain Right in each half, so, in methods with 6th's place when the treble leads, 720's can be obtained by calling the 6th In, Out In, and a single at the last plain Out in each half.

Now, what about practising for that peal in seven methods?

EVENTFUL DAY AT LIVERPOOL.

Liverpool extended a hearty welcome to the members of the Lancashire Association and their friends when they assembled in that city for the fifth annual dinner on Saturday, October 31st.

Early in the afternoon many members of the party visited the Liverpool Cathedral in order to see the progress that has been made with the central tower. An account of this visit by Mr. E. H. Lewis appeared in last week's issue of 'The Ringing World.'

Later the members of the association and their friends were the guests of the Lord Mayor of Liverpool in the Town Hall. In the unavoidable absence of the Lord Mayor of Liverpool, the guests were received by the Deputy Lord Mayor (Alderman F. T. Richardson) and Mrs. Richardson, supported by the president of the association (the Rev. A. Scott). After tea a short address of welcome was given by Alderman Richardson. The president and the Rector of Liverpool replied. Alderman Richardson conducted the party through the building, pointing out the objects of interest. The music was supplied by the Liverpool City Police Band.

About 180 were present at the dinner in the Bear's Paw Restaurant. The president of the association presided. Apologies for absence were received from the Bishop of Liverpool (owing to indisposition), the Bishop of Manchester, the Rev. Canon G. C. Marshall (president of the Yorkshire Association), the Editor of 'The Ringing World,' and Mr. W. S. Mann, the only surviving founder of the association.

After the toast to the King, Mr. E. H. Lewis, president of the Central Council, proposed 'Prosperity to the Lancashire Association.' Mr. Lewis referred to broadcast ringing and said that many did not appear to know when ringing was fit for broadcasting, because they did not seem to be able to hear good striking. In order to achieve better striking, Mr. Lewis urged more practice on handbells. After attaining perfect striking on handbells it would be much easier to obtain good striking in the tower, and Mr. Lewis urged ringers not to be satisfied until their ringing in the tower was as good as the best handbell ringing they had heard.

Mr. George R. Newton, responding, unfolded the story of the association and of great achievements in the past. He referred to the fact that bells were now silent in towers that had been famous for good ringing and deeply regretted that such a thing had come to pass. Mr. Newton went on to say that the strength of an association should be judged by its standard of peal ringing, and they did not seem to get the same class of peals as they did 30 or 40 years ago. He assumed that it was due to the loss of many of the best men.

LIVERPOOL RECTOR'S SUGGESTION.

The toast of 'The Guests' was proposed by the hon. treasurer of the association, Mr. Claude I. Davies, and the Rector of Liverpool (the Rev. David Railton) responded. Mr. Railton said that he did not think that people fully appreciated bellringing until they went to places where they could not hear them, and he thought a sure way of making bellringing appreciated by the general public would be to stop all ringing for a period of some months. He would never forget his feelings on hearing the bells of Folkestone Parish Church on his arrival from France after the war. Mr. Railton went on to suggest the extended use of bells to occasions other than Sunday services. The coming Coronation would afford an opportunity of seeing how the people of the country valued bells; they would be ringing out over the world and symbolising what could not be expressed in words, the meaning of our constitution and hopes for the future.

The President, in replying to 'The Health of the Chairman,' proposed by Mr. F. R. Williams, president of the National Guild of Police Ringers, thanked the association for the honour that they had conferred upon him by electing him president in the place of the late Canon Elsee. He realised that no light task awaited him in succeeding a man respected and beloved by all and one who had been president of the association for over 45 years. Mr. Scott referred to the speeches of Mr. Lewis and Mr. Newton, and said that it was the duty of the present members of the association to achieve the same standards, if not better ones, as those mentioned by Mr. Newton. That meant each individual member of the association becoming as efficient as possible, including the president. After expressing the thanks of the company to those responsible for the success of the evening, Mr. Scott ended his remarks by saying that the president was at the service of the association.

Messrs. Crompton and Blundell, of the Liverpool Cathedral choir, and Mr. T. Christie entertained with songs and duets, Mr. C. Sharples by handbell tapping, and Mr. and Miss Booth with handbell ringing.

The arrangements of the dinner were admirably made by Mr. Claude I. Davies.

WEDDED 61 YEARS.

At St. Thomas' Church, Dudley, Worcestershire, on Sunday, November 8th, a quarter-peal of Grandshire Caters (1,259 changes), composed by Mr. J. George: T. Whorton (first quarter-peal) 1. H. Goodman 2. J. Goodman (conductor) 3. W. Goodman 4. J. S. Mason 5. N. G. Leech 6. W. Green 7. H. Sheppard 8. R. Goodman 9. G. Guest 10. This was rung to celebrate the 61st anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. Goodman, parents of the ringers of 2nd, 3rd and 4th. The ringer of the 9th is a grandson.

LORD MAYOR'S GRAMOPHONE BELLS.MANCHESTER'S SUBSTITUTE AT THIS YEAR'S CIVIC CEREMONY.

The new Lord Mayor of Manchester took office to the accompaniment of gramophone bells. The bells at Manchester Town Hall are now at Loughborough Foundry, where they are being recast and formed into a ring of twelve. The bells have long played a part in the civic celebrations on November 9th, and in order that tradition might be maintained, a gramophone record of the bells of St. George's, Stockport, were amplified from the Town Hall tower. Grandsire Caters and 'firing' had been recorded, and by the use of two records and two turntables the bells could be reproduced continuously for as long as desired.

ALDENHAM'S FIRST LOCAL PEAL.LORD ALDENHAM PRESENTS PEAL BOARD.

On the eve of All Saints, a peal tablet was dedicated at Aldenham, Herts, by the Vicar, recording the first peal rung on the bells by an entirely local band. After prayers and a psalm, the tablet was unveiled and a touch of Triples rung by the band who took part in the peal.

The tablet is of polished oak lettered in black, a simple, dignified record.

With the Vicar and churchwardens (Messrs. A. P. Coote and H. P. Harland), the ringers and one or two guests enjoyed an excellent tea at the Village Club.

Mr. Inwood, on behalf of the society, thanked the Vicar and wardens for their kindly interest, and the conductor for his services in enabling them to ring the peal.

Mr. C. H. Horton replied, and the Vicar, in well-chosen words, gave an account of the bells and expressed his appreciation to the band who ring for Sunday services. He encouraged them to advance to higher methods.

The tablet was presented by Lord Aldenham and the company entertained by the wardens.

This beautiful church is chiefly of the Perpendicular period, with some Early English and decorated work, roof carved and painted. It dates from 1480. The font, an oak chest and some brasses date from about 1250: there are also several interesting tombs. The bells were cast originally in 1683. The tenor (15 cwt.) was cast by Chandler in that year; the 7th, 6th, 5th and 4th old bells were recast in 1885. The three smallest (undated) were cast by Mears between 1780-1850 and a sanctus by William Whitman. The tower was erected about the 13th century.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD.NORTHERN BRANCH AT SCUNTHORPE.

A very pleasant meeting of the Northern Branch of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild was held at the new Charter Town of Scunthorpe on October 31st. Owing to weddings, the bells were not available until 3.15, after which hour, however, the fine peal of eight were made good use of during the afternoon and evening. Members attended from Bigby, Grimaby, Ulceby, Burton-on-Stather, Barton-on-Humber and the local tower. The Guild Ringing Master (Mr. R. Richardson) and Mrs. Richardson were present, also ringing friends from Treeton and Lea.

The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Charles Steele, who gave an excellent address. Mr. Ramsey presided at the organ. Thirty-two afterwards sat down to tea. The president (Archdeacon Parry) presided over the business meeting, supported by the Vicar and Guild Master. It was decided, providing it can be arranged, to hold the district committee meeting at Waltham on Saturday, January 9th.

The District Ringing Master (Mr. J. Bray) said that he should like to see representatives from all the towers in the district at the committee meeting.

The President expressed pleasure at the presence of the Guild Master and Mrs. Richardson, seeing that they had such a long distance to travel.—The Master, in reply, said he made an effort to attend as many meetings in the Guild as possible.

Votes of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells and for conducting the service, to the organist and those who had made the arrangements, were passed, and a similar vote to the president for presiding brought a very happy meeting to a close.

The President mentioned that the meeting was unique in that four members of the Central Council were present.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Central Branch of the Ely Diocesan Association was held at Willingham, Cambs, on Saturday, November 7th. Ringing was very good and ranged from Plain Bob to London Surprise. Members were present from Cambridge (Great St. Mary's and St. Bene't's), Chatteris, Haddenham, Wilburton, Over and the local company. As a service had been arranged for 6.30, the Rector (the Rev. Canon A. C. Hair) consented to omit the 4.30 service, the Guild service taking the place of evensong. Canon Hair gave an interesting address, basing his remarks on the one word 'Unity.'

Further ringing took place afterwards until about 8.30.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The ring of eight bells at St. Cuthbert's Church, Darlington, are to be recast and rehung in a new frame, with new fittings, by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

Within a fortnight three rings of eight have been dedicated in the Diocese of Guildford. First the restored and retuned peal at Yorktown, next the recast peal of eight at Chiddingfold, and, last Friday, the octave at Shalford recast from the old six.

No fewer than 97 visitors have signed the visitors' book during the past twelve months in the tower of St. Andrew's, Holborn. It shows the popularity of this church in the centre of London, where a very loyal band regularly carry out Sunday service ringing.

The death of Mr. Albert Henry Terry, aged 64, a signalman, who was due to retire next March, took place at Shilton, Coventry, on November 1st. He was a chorister and bellringer at Shilton Parish Church.

Mr. Taylor, of Alleale, has suffered a severe blow in the death of a son, who was tragically killed in a motor-cycling accident near his home.

Three much travelled ringers were present at the opening of Leamington Hastings bells on November 1st, namely, J. H. Shepherd, A. P. Cannon and W. A. Stote, with 2,854, 552 and 592 towers respectively to their credit.

Shalford, Surrey, where a new ring of eight bells was dedicated last Friday, is one of the few places where the ancient village stocks can still be seen outside the churchyard gate.

The 'Grand Old Man' of Ipswich, Bob Brundle, has recently completed his 85th year. Last Saturday he celebrated the event by ringing the 5th at St. Mary-le-Tower to a peal of Stedman Cinques. It is a wonderful performance for a man of that age, and ringers throughout the Exercise will join in congratulating him.

On Sunday, November 22nd, at 6.30 p.m., a peal tablet will be unveiled and dedicated at Milnrow, Lancs, by the Rural Dean (the Rev. S. Hutchinson). This tablet is to perpetuate the memory of the late Mr. John Fitton, who was a ringer at Milnrow for 64 years. He was present at the reconstitution meeting of the Lancashire Association.

Mr. Arthur E. Sharman, hon. secretary of the Bedfordshire Association, has been elected to the Town Council of Dunstable.

The Rev. F. L. Edwards, secretary of the Salisbury Guild, will be away from home until December 10th. Guild correspondence should be addressed to the assistant secretary, Mr. F. Green, 53, Avon Road, Devizes.

RINGING AS AN ACT OF WORSHIP.

To the Editor.

Sir,—The report of Canon J. O. le P. Hatten's address at the Uckfield meeting gives rise to certain reflections. Do let us clear our thinking of humbug; however sincerely we, as ringers, strive to live up to the pattern of Christ, our thoughts while we are ringing are centred round the method and the striking, the co-ordination of mind and muscle in an agreeable pursuit. Even though our art is consecrated to the worship of God, is it true to say that it is, in itself, a sufficient act of worship?

True worship has God as the Central Figure, and organ, choir and ringing are meant but to prepare and direct our minds thither, all working together as part of a pattern. To divorce ringing from the pattern and call it as great an act of worship as the service itself does not seem to me to be aiming very high.

May I presume to suggest a better way to Canon Hatten and to other clergy: give us laymen a service which is thrillingly alive with the spirit of Jesus Christ, where we may see the vision of the transformation that Glorious Manhood can make in us, and we shall stay to such a service because we want to, and not from any sense of mere duty.

'BURTON' SURPRISE MAJOR.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The second and third sections of this method in your issue to-day are very much mixed up, but as the other six sections are 'Brighton' Surprise there is no doubt that this is the method intended.

'Brighton' Surprise was first published in 'Bell News' about September, 1899, and the first peal, with a fourth's place Bob, was rung many years ago, conducted by Mr. F. Bennett.

Similar information has also been supplied by Mr. A. G. Driver, of Belvedere, and Mr. S. H. Hoare. The latter points out that the first peal was rung on October 29th, 1913, at St. John's, Waterloo Road, London.

ST. BRIDE'S, FLEET STREET. SCENE OF BENJAMIN ANNABLE'S TRIUMPHS.

Famous Bells that are now Seldom Rung.

Many Cumberland Youths and several Cumberland Ladies assembled at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, London, on Sunday evening, when they had the now rare opportunity of ringing these famous bells for service. The bells had not been rung on Sunday for a long period.

They were rung last year for the Silver Jubilee and on Lord Mayor's Day. This year they were open on the occasion of the Central Council meeting and were rung for Lord Mayor's Day on Monday, as well as on the previous evening. Next year's programme, it is said, will comprise ringing for the Coronation celebrations and Lord Mayor's Day. In the intervals the ropes are removed from the wheels and stored—a necessary precaution to prevent rapid deterioration.

The pity of it! A notable peal of twelve bells unring for the purpose for which they are intended—the services of the church. The excuse is that they are in the heart of London's newspaper land. But the heart of London's newspaper land does not throb on Sunday mornings. Even if it has begun to beat again by the evening—well there may be some newspaper men who would not be any the worse

PETITION AGAINST BELLS.

TAUNTON RESIDENTS' PROTEST.

There is an agitation in Taunton for restricting the ringing of the bells at the Churches of St. Mary and St. James. A petition, containing 240 signatures of people living or working in the neighbourhood of the churches, has been sent to the Vicar, churchwardens and Church Council.

Special attention is drawn to occasions when the bells are rung as early as 6 a.m., or 7 a.m., and to the 'prolonged bouts of ringing for three or four hours, with hardly a break,' and the petitioners ask that this should be discontinued.

The Rev. W. H. Heaton-Renshaw, Vicar of St. Mary's, writing in the current issue of the Parish Magazine, points out that the petitioners include occupiers of offices, such as those in Hammet Street, who are not normally at work during the times which are the subject of complaints.

Others who have signed the appeal, however, are nearby residents.

'Bells have been rung at both churches for many centuries, long before any of the present houses, shops or offices were built, so it is no new matter,' the Vicar observed.

'It deserves attention, however, and it will be considered at the Church Council when next they meet.'

HISTORIC PEALS

for a reminder of the things for which the Church stands. And the bells are the only sounds of this kind that are likely to reach them.

St. Bride's tower is one of the most beautiful of Wren's steeples, and it has the distinction of being the first London tower to contain a peal of twelve bells. In 1710 Abraham Rudhall, of Gloucester, cast a peal of ten for St. Bride's, with a tenor of 28 cwt., and on January 11th, 1717, what is supposed to have been the first peal of Grandsire Caters ever rung was accomplished on these bells by the Society of London Scholars.

In 1719 Rudhall added two trebles to make a ring of twelve, and an old tablet records the following performance:—

On Tuesday, the 10th January, 1724, the SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS rung completely a peal of 5,060 GRANDSIRE CINQUES, being ye first that ever was done. Ye Persons that performed the Same were as follows, viz.: Wm. Woodruff 1, Benj. Annable 2, Edward Chadwell 3, John Ward 4, Jno. Pearson 5, Robt. Catlin 6, Robt. Carter 7, Wm. Thompson 8, Wm. Jackson 9, Peter Merrygarts 10, Matth. East 11, Thos. Rowland 12. Abraham Goodwin, Aaron Jex, Churchwardens.

On November 22nd, 1725, the College Youths rang at St. Bride's what is believed to be the first peal of Bob Royal, composed and conducted by Benjamin Annable, and on February 26th, 1726, they rang the first peal of Bob Maximus. The ringers were William Woodruff, Robert Catlin, Edward Chadwell, John Ward, John Hardman, Francis Geary (who afterwards became an Admiral), John Dearmore, Samuel Jeacock, William Laughton, Peter Merrygarts, William Thompson, Benjamin Annable. It is recorded that 'all the persons who rung in this peal left the church in their own carriages.' Fleet Street, in those days, it is said, used to be thronged with carriages full of gentry who had come to hear the music of the bells. But times have changed; apparently no one wants to hear them now.

Benjamin Annable, who died on February 1st, 1756, was buried at St. Bride's, and the following panegyric appeared in the newspaper account of his death and burial:—

'A few nights ago was buried under the tower of St. Bride's Mr. Benjamin Annabel, the best ringer that was ever known in the world. Till his time ringing was only called an Art, but from the Strength of his great Genius, he married it to the Mathematics and 'tis now a Science. This man of Figures and Ringing was like a Newton in Philosophy, a Rastell in Physic, a Hardwick in Wisdom and Law, a Handel in Music, a Shakespear in Writing, a Garrick in Acting. O rare Ben.'

Other early peals on the bells in addition to those mentioned were 5,104 Grandsire Cinques by the Union Scholars in 1751, and 5,232 Treble Bob Maximus by the College Youths in 1777.

The 5th and 6th bells were recast by Samuel Knight in 1736, but the rest are still the bells cast by Rudhall 226 years ago.

HOBART CATHEDRAL'S NEW TOWER AND BELLS ELABORATE CEREMONY FOR DEDICATION.

Many Archbishops and Bishops to Attend.

Great interest was created in Hobart, Tasmania, when the bells for St. David's Cathedral arrived by the s.s. 'Port Alma.' They are 13 in number, with a tenor of 15 cwt., and eight will be hung for ringing. The erection of the bells, to the specifications and drawings of the founders, Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, is being carried out by Messrs. Johnston and Wells, Engineers.

A Hobart paper, referring to the arrival of the bells, said, 'Passers-by paused to view closely the four great bells which, of the total of thirteen, had been newly moved from the wharveside to the tower foot. The bell coming in for closest scrutiny was that around which, beneath the house sign of its Loughborough founders, ran the inscription, 'Each clime or step from earth to Heaven till ye reach the great white throne.'

'CLIPPING THE CATHEDRAL.'

Elaborate preparations are being made for the dedication of the tower and bells on Sunday, December 6th. The service is to be attended by the Archbishops of Melbourne and Sydney, Bishop Stephen, and the Bishops of St. Arnaud, Bendigo, Newcastle, Gippsland, Goulburn and Riverina, as well, of course, as the Bishop of Tasmania (Dr. Hay).

The visit of all these ecclesiastical dignitaries will be made the occasion of great church gatherings. Every day from Saturday, December 5th, when the proceedings begin with a Conversazione in the City Hall, to Thursday, December 10th, has its special events.

The service for the dedication of the bells takes place at 3.30 on Sunday afternoon, December 6th, when the preacher will be the Archbishop of Sydney, and the tower and bells will be blessed by the Bishop of Tasmania during the picturesque ceremony of 'Clipping the Cathedral.'

In this ceremony the choir, followed by members of the congregation, will go in procession through the cloisters round the building, and will join hands, thus encircling the Cathedral Church. A second procession of leading lay officials of Tasmania will follow, headed by His Excellency the Governor and the Lord Mayor, followed by the visiting Bishops' wives and their hostesses. A third procession will consist of diocesan lay officials, members of the Synod, the Diocesan Council, the Church Trustees, headed by the Cathedral Board and the Church Advocate. A fourth procession will comprise the visiting Archbishops and Bishops and their chaplains, and the last procession will consist of the clergy of the Diocese of Tasmania, headed by the Bishop and the Dean and Chapter.

After the blessing of the tower and bells, the bells will be rung by the St. David's ringers and the ringers of Holy Trinity Church.

The St. David's ringers consist of the Dean's servers, 16 in number, and they have been receiving every help in learning from the Holy Trinity Association.

HOLY TRINITY ASSOCIATION.

The ringers at Holy Trinity continue their activities. They have been strengthened by Mr. S. Smith, a former Suffolk ringer, and are now ringing Grandsire Doubles.

At their recent annual meeting, when the Rev. M. J. May, precentor of the Cathedral, presided, a healthy state of affairs was revealed. The funds have a balance of £4 2s. 11d. The officers were re-elected, except that Mr. S. Smith takes the place of Mr. S. Taylor as Deputy Ringing Master, the other officials being: Patron, the Lord Bishop of Tasmania; president, Ven. Archdeacon Blackwood; Ringing Master, Mr. J. W. Quarmby; hon. treasurer, Mr. S. Taylor; hon. secretary, Mr. A. R. Wilson.

The bells of Holy Trinity Church will be 100 years old in 1946, and the meeting formed a committee to report on the bell frame, which shows signs of needing attention. The committee consists of Messrs. B. McElwae, A. Taylor, J. Newell and A. R. Wilson.

Holy Trinity Church has lost a valued member by the death on Sunday, September 13th, of Mrs. Rupert Taylor, mother of Mr. S. Taylor, and Mr. Malcolm Taylor, who is at present in this country. Feeling reference was made in the sermons, and as a mark of respect the church bells remained silent that day until after evening service, when they were rung muffled. Sunday School was abandoned and a children's service held instead.

A BAD GOING TENOR

At Broughton, Northants, on Saturday, November 7th, an attempt was made to ring a peal of Doubles at the Church of St. Andrew as a compliment to the new Vicar (the Rev. Esmonde T. Lang), who was inducted the previous day. After ringing a well-struck quarter a late call put a premature end to the peal.

Owing to the bad going of the tenor bell another attempt was deferred to a later date. The ringers were: Cecil Sargent (Broughton) 1, George Brown (Pitcheley) 2, Sidney Rowney (Broughton) 3, Sidney Munton, conductor (Pitcheley) 4, Fred Randall (Broughton) 5.

BELLS OF LEAMINGTON HASTINGS.

IN USE AGAIN AFTER QUARTER OF CENTURY.

Not for 26 years, with the exception of the day the Armistice was signed, have the church bells been rung at Leamington Hastings, owing to their unfit condition. A fund was started some years ago for the restoration work, but as interest in the subject fluctuated a great deal, very little was done until the present Vicar (the Rev. G. E. Wigram) was inducted in 1928. He revived the lost interest, and by private house whist drives and social events the fund grew slowly till at last, by a bequest from Canon Cartwright, followed by a gift from the children of the late Canon and Mrs. Sitwell, the moneys aggregated to the amount required.

A tablet is erected in the belfry, which bears the words: 'These bells were rebung in 1936 at a cost of £350 by the parishioners, assisted by a bequest from the late Canon Theodore John Cartwright in memory of his marriage in this church, and a gift from the children of Canon Degge Wilmot Sitwell and his wife, Rosamond Shuttleworth, in memory of their happy family life.'

Treble.—8 cwt. 1 qr. 7 lb. C. and G. Mears, Founders, London, 1851.

Second.—9 cwt. 3 qr. 21 lb. C. and G. Mears, Founders, London, 1851.

Third.—11 cwt. 0 qr. 22 lb. Founder's Mark (Hugh Watts, Leicester). I.H.S. Nazarens Rex Indeorvm. (Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews.) Fili Dei Miserere Mei. 1620. (Son of God, pity me.)

Fourth.—12 cwt. 0 qr. 9 lb. Founder's Mark (Hugh Watts, Leicester). Cvm Sono Si Non Vis Venire Nunquam Ad Preces Cypres Ire. 1631. (If you won't come at the sound of the bell, you will never be willing to come to prayers.)

Tenor.—15 cwt. 3 qr. 21 lb. Founder's Mark (Hugh Watts, Leicester). God save the Kinge. 1615.

Sanctus.—0 cwt. 2 qr. 2 lb. Abraham Dracy. 1677.

The restoration work was carried out by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough.

The bells were rededicated on All Saints' Day, which was the patronal festival of the church. The Rev. E. S. Powell (Vicar of Staverton) performed the ceremony and with the following words gave them into the care of the Vicar and the churchwardens: 'Receive these bells that have been solemnly set apart from all profane and unhallowed uses as a sacred trust committed unto thee, and take care that they be ever and only used in God's service and for His glory.'

Subsequently a plain course of Grandsire Doubles was rung by members of the Warwickshire Guild: C. H. Webb (Rugby) 1, J. B. Fenton (Rugby) 2, M. O. C. Melville (general secretary) 3, J. H. W. White (Ringing Master) 4, W. A. Stote (Coventry) 5.

In the course of his sermon, the Rev. E. S. Powell said: 'Let me take this opportunity of congratulating you as a parish and a congregation on the rehanging of your church bells. It is a great work which has at last been safely and satisfactorily accomplished.'

In conclusion, the preacher said: 'Once more you have your bells set high in their steeple—well, truly and safely hanging. You will be looking forward, longingly and hopefully, to hearing these bells regularly ringing. You have not spent all that money in order that one should only be rung or that five should be tolled or chimed, but so that they should give forth their full voice, which they can only do when rung in the manner they are intended.'

'Bellringing requires a great deal of application and perseverance on the part of those who practise it. You will have to get learners, but you must not expect them to be able to ring so well in a few weeks as those you have heard ringing just now. In Leamington Hastings you are only a small community, but I ask you, now you have done this first part of the work, that you will really do something more than one generally hears bellringing described—a call to worship—but believe that the ringing in itself is an act of praise to God and an act of worship. I would ask as many of you as possible to be practical and persevering ringers.'

Immediately after the service, 120 Grandsire Doubles was rung by the same five ringers, and then, in turn, other ringers from Rugby, Warwick, Banbury, London, Clifton, Nuneaton, Swindon, Brinklow, Dunchurch, Monks Kirby, Chilvers Coton and Staverton tried the ropes.

The ringers were entertained to tea after the service by the Vicar and Mrs. Wigram and Major and Mrs. Anson.

Several learners have already volunteered to become ringers, and arrangements have been made for their instruction.

ST. ANDREW'S, HOLBORN, GUILD.

The 13th annual meeting of St. Andrew's, Holborn, Guild was held on Saturday, October 31st. Tea, served in the Court House, was kindly provided by the Rector and Mrs. Bedford, and, needless to say, very much enjoyed by the members present.

The Rector opened the business meeting by thanking the ringers for their services as Sunday service ringers, also for their gift of bread for the harvest festival.

The cash statement was adopted and the officers elected as follows: Ringing Master, Mr. U. W. Wildney; hon. secretary, Mr. J. S. Hawkins; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. J. Norton. After the business meeting, music, song and handbell ringing followed.

NEW OCTAVE IN GUILDFORD DIOCESE.

SHALFORD'S SIX BELLS RECAST INTO EIGHT.

The dedication of a new ring of bells at the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Shalford, near Guildford, has given the Guildford Diocesan Guild area another ring of eight. The tower previously contained a peal of six, but when their restoration became necessary, it was decided to recast them into a lighter ring of eight. The scheme was promoted during the incumbency of the Rev. David Railton, now Rector of Liverpool, and to him is due very largely its success.

A large congregation attended the dedication service on Friday evening, the ceremony being performed by the Bishop of Guildford. The Vicar (the Rev. M. Tobias) conducted the service and the lesson was read by the Rev. D. Railton. The Bishop went to the ringing-chamber for the act of dedication and was accompanied by the Vicar, the Rev. D. Railton, the Bishop's chaplain and the churchwardens. The waiting congregation learned of the completion of the ceremony by the sound of the bells, rung in rounds by the local ringers.

BISHOP AND MINISTRY OF CHURCH BELLS.

In his address the Bishop said the ministry of church bells had always seemed to him a very interesting subject. The words which told about it from Tennyson's 'In Memoriam' were well known. The bells held together all the memories of a man's life, following him with strength, quiet and inward peace. The very familiarity of the sound of the bells of their old home, their village, their town, had preached them something of that strength and quietness of spirit that came from things that were familiar.

Was all that just sentiment? He had two answers. The first was that it was local patriotism—the love of one's own place in which certain familiar sounds such as the sound of the church bells of the old home struck a note that was better than they first thought.

'You people of Shalford,' said the Bishop, 'are proud that the bells should ring out again. That is local patriotism; the love of one's own place. It is a feeder to the patriotisms that are greater—the love of country and the love of mankind.'

In the world to-day, he said, the trouble was that many people had the fault that they had no root in any place which really belonged to them.

The best citizens were those who knew that true citizenship was not belonging to a country which had no boundaries, but the country which was beyond those present confines of time and space. Every time the bells sounded from tower or steeple something was being led to the heart and mind of men about that different citizenship. The great note which should be struck in this age was the confident sound of Christian faith. These bells as they rang out would make that a note of confidence and hope about the position of our church in that age.

After the service touches were rung on the new bells, which have been cast by Messrs. Taylor and Co.

BELLS' INTERESTING HISTORY.

Shalford bells have a long history. The Inventory of Edward VI.'s reign indicates that the church then contained five bells, whose weights were said to be 14 cwt., 13 cwt., 12 cwt., 10 cwt. and 8 cwt., with 'a lettill bell callid a sawnce bell conteynnyng bte extynacion xxv lb. weight.'

These bells were recast in 1613 by Richard Eldridge, of the Wokingham Foundry. They bore this appeal in rhyme:—

1. Lord, plead my cause against my foes,
2. Confound their force and might,
3. Fight on my part against my foes,
4. That seek with me to fight.

The tenor, apparently recast later, was inscribed, 'Gloria Deo in Excelsis, 1636. R. E. and J.W.'

In 1789 John Warner, of London, recast the bells into six with a new set of inscriptions:—

1. Thy glory, Lord, we will resound,
2. To all the listening nations round,
3. And with our tongues,
4. Our voices raise,
5. To Thee, O God,
6. In songs of praise.

The tenor was recast by John Warner and Sons in 1866.

Once more the bells have new inscriptions. The following appear on the new eight:—

- Treble.—Sing we merrily unto God our strength.
- 2.—Let Thy saints sing with joyfulness.
- 3.—Sing ye praises with understanding.
- 4.—O praise the Lord with me; and let us magnify His name together.
- 5.—He hath put a new song in my mouth.
- 6.—O let my mouth be filled with Thy praise.
- 7.—O come let us sing unto the Lord.

Tenor.—The tongue of the dumb shall sing. This bell and five others were recast in 1936 to make this peal of eight bells. The parish gave this bell in commemoration of the Silver Jubilee of H.M. King George V. in 1935.

The new tenor is 13 cwt. 2 qr. 8 lb., the necessary new bell metal having been added to make up for loss in melting. In place of the old timber frame, which has been scrapped, is a new massive cast-iron framework on steel foundation girders. Modern fittings have, of course, been installed throughout, and everyone who heard them was delighted with the tone of the bells.

AMBITION.

To the Editor.

Sir,—The experience of Mr. P. Amos must be unique. In no Exercise is merit more openly recognised than in change ringing. My limited experience teaches me that most of the best ringers are always ready to help 'lame dogs over stiles' by whispering into the ears when their footsteps falter. I cannot agree with the term jealousy being applied to ringers whose names often appear in the pages of 'The Ringing World.'

Until 1895 I was a 'stony' ringer. In 1930 I happened to stray into an eight-bell tower and timidly essayed to 'drum' the tenor. Becoming interested, I learnt to ring the treble in Grandsire, Minor and Major, then inside, followed by Kent and Stedman Triples. This particular band had no practices whatever all the time, and I learnt these methods under the guidance of old hands at Guild meetings mainly. It is not true that the remarks of Mr. Amos are universally correct. Pencil and paper helped, but the bugbear of rope-sight had to be got over by practice. Courses in Kent (inside) came as a first shot, and I trust Double Norwich will be similarly successful when attempted.

Opportunity will arise when Mr. Amos will be enabled to prove his ability and recognition, but in the meantime let him master Cambridge, Superlative, London, etc., on paper. The Pyes, Bennetts, Shepherds, Harts and Co. will most certainly give help and opportunity, even for peals when his reputation is established.

AN OLD RINGER.

[Our correspondent, whose modesty impels him to withhold his name from publication, is 63 years of age and did no change ringing until five years or so ago.]

A MOTTO FOR RINGERS.

Dear Sir,—Your article on 'Ambition,' followed by that on 'Maintaining the personnel,' will give ringers something to think about. Ringers who are content to ring for services at their own church may be in a groove, but surely not a bad groove. Apparently the ringers of Drayton are not content to ring for services at their own church.

Mr. George wisely refers to ambition of the proper kind. Now just what is the proper kind? In my opinion it should be the ambition of every ringer who does not belong to a regular service ringing band to join one and use his art for the service for which it is intended. Of course, I know some cannot, but there should not be so many ringers who are unattached and yet have ringable peals in their own parish. The men who do the service ringing not only give service, but are responsible for the church keeping the bells in order, without which there would be no chance for 'stunt' peals.

Secondly, I think it should be the ambition of ringers to ring music, that is to strike well and understand what rhythm is. We have heard of ringers who are responsible for putting a single note in the right place in a simple major scale who do not know the sound of the bell which they are ringing. The only explanation I can think of is they have been so engrossed in learning new methods since they learned to pull the rope that they have had no time to listen to the result of their studies. The motto of every ringer should be:—

Service before self.
Music before method.

RINGERS 'DISCOVER' WINFARTHING.

What the Rector of the parish described as a 'difficult place to find' was 'discovered' by a number of ringers on Saturday last, when members from the North, South and West Branches of the Norwich Diocesan Association, together with visitors from Newmarket, spent a pleasant afternoon and evening at Winfarthing.

A number of methods from Doubles to London Surprise were rung on the six bells. The Rev. C. H. Barber, Rector of Winfarthing, conducted a short service.

Following a hearty tea at The Fighting Cocks, during which the members did ample justice to the delightful spread of home-made cakes and pastries, a short business meeting took place. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Saxlingham Nethergate on January 23rd.

The Chairman thanked the Rev. C. H. Barber for his address and for the use of the bells, and in reply the Rector expressed his pleasure at having the association's meeting for the first time at Winfarthing. So many people had failed to find the village that he was glad to see so many present, from so far afield as Dersingham, Fakenham and Newmarket. Continuing, the Rector amused the company with his stories of a certain wedding and a certain Sunday School, and said he would be glad to hear similar yarns with regard to bell-ringing.

The Branch Secretary expressed his thanks for the support he had received from all the members, and referred to the members and friends who had set out from Dersingham, Fakenham, Newmarket, Norwich and Wymondham and had helped to make the meeting such a success.

RINGING IN THE WEST COUNTRY. EFFORTS OF NEW CORNISH BAND.

A few weeks ago, an account of the dedication of Mullion bells was published in 'The Ringing World.' These bells had been silent for many years, owing to structural defects which rendered them unsafe, consequently their restoration has caused great excitement and enthusiasm in the village.

Since the dedication, ringing has been going on apace, and the interest and enthusiasm the ringers is as marked as ever.

Unfortunately, the patience of the villagers with the unavoidable crashes of the ambitious novices is wearing rather thin, but it is hoped that they will bear with them a little longer, as really they are a very promising band, and Mullion will soon be as proud of its ringers as it is of its bells.

There are 17 ringers in all, six of whom are absolute beginners. All six show great promise, and one of them rang very successfully in rounds a fortnight after he started to learn.

The more advanced have been ringing for a few months, and can ring call changes on four bells fairly skilfully, and though the striking is not always as accurate as it might be, it is rapidly improving. All are very keen to master the intricate art of change ringing, some so much so that they want to plunge right into it, not realising that little headway can be made until they have gained proper bell control. Sad to tell, these very enthusiasts are sometimes responsible for the inaccurate striking in call changes.

Sunday service ringing is carried out regularly and efficiently, and possibly at no very distant date the rounds and call changes of to-day will be superseded by touches of Grandsire Doubles and Bob Minor, that is if the band continue to progress as rapidly as they are doing at present. They are, we understand, receiving 'postal tuition' in change ringing from a friend in a distant county. Good luck to them!

CHERTSEY DISTRICT OFFICERS NOMINATED.

A meeting of the Chertsey District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild was held at Esher on Saturday. The attendance was not large—there were less than 20 ringers present—but the opportunity was turned to good use, in the practice of six-bell methods.

The usual service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. F. A. Hone), and an address was given by the curate (the Rev. W. A. Hopher), who also presided at the organ.

At the business meeting, presided over by the Guild Treasurer (Mr. J. Corbett), the following were nominated for district officers: Ringing Master, Mr. W. Simmons (Mr. H. J. Chaffey retiring); hon. secretary, Mr. F. E. Hawthorne. There were three nominations for two ringing members on the Executive Committee and three for the one vacancy among the honorary members on the committee.

The Rev. W. A. Hopher was elected an hon. member and the Rev. C. Price (Hersham) a ringing member.

It was decided that the district should endeavour to organise ringing for the Coronation in the towers which at present have no ringers and help in those bellries with depleted bands. It was announced that practice night at Hersham had been changed to Wednesday.

Thanks were accorded to the Vicar and curate and to Mr. Bristow, the local captain, for the arrangements made.

Rounds, Grandsire and Stedman Doubles and a variety of Minor methods up to Cambridge Surprise were rung. It was gratifying that on this occasion ringers from the district towers were present in larger numbers than usual.

AN 'EDWARD' CORONATION PEAL.

THE SUGGESTED RINGING AT THE ABBEY.

Mr. Edward A. Knight, of Stanwick, Northants, writes supporting the suggestion that a band of eight Edwards should ring a peal on Coronation Day. 'Nothing,' he says, 'could be more fitting than for eight Edwards to ring after the ceremony, on May 12th, of the Coronation of His Majesty the King—Edward the Eighth. I am interested and hope to see a team of Edwards ringing at the ancient Abbey tower.'

The proposal is, of course, an interesting one, and one which, if it could be carried out, would be very appropriate to the occasion, but we ask those who support the idea, and especially the Edwards, not to build their hopes too high of attempting a peal at the Abbey. There are very considerable restrictions there, not only as to the ringing, but also as to who may ring, and on such an occasion as the Coronation the authorities will be doubly particular. Knowing something of the difficulties that would have to be surmounted, we can hardly believe that permission would be granted for a band of 'outsiders' to go there for a peal on Coronation Day. We think the Edwards would do better to concentrate upon getting a band for a peal at some other London church.—EDITOR, 'Ringing World.'

VICAR FOR 50 YEARS.

As a compliment to the Vicar of Stratford-upon-Avon (Canon Melville) on the 50th anniversary of his induction, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung on Saturday, September 19th: 1. H. Print 1. H. Brookes 2. H. Price 3. F. Lyne 4. F. Kinchin 5. C. R. Steed 6. V. B. Hunt (conductor) 7. H. G. Preedy 8. First attempt for a quarter-peal by ringers of treble and 4.

AN ANCIENT SUFFOLK SOCIETY.

HALESWORTH RINGERS' RULES FRAMED IN 1539.

The fact that the rules of the Halesworth (Suffolk) ringers go back to 1539 was mentioned at their annual dinner and meeting, held in the Church Rooms on October 27th. The chair was taken by the president (the Rev. H. C. Newbery, M.A., R.D.), supported by the churchwardens (Admiral E. F. Bruen, C.B., J.P., and Mr. C. J. Goodwin), Mr. T. Wilson (Porthcawl), Messrs. Clifford Goodwin, A. J. Orford and E. Bastin (hon. members), Messrs. G. Pearl and F. Aldred (sidesmen), Mr. Fred C. Lambert (hon. secretary) and Mr. A. H. Took (hon. treasurer).

The only toast was that of 'His Majesty the King.'

The chairman welcomed those present as guests of the Parochial Church Fund, to whom it was a pleasure to provide the means.

In his report the hon. secretary referred to the Jubilee and, later, the lamented death of King George V., which were chiefly responsible for the omission of last year's function. They had, however, carried on steadily, and had maintained ringing for every Sunday service until now. Regret was recorded at the loss of two vice-presidents—Capt. H. C. Rush by death, and Miss Rose Stanford by removal to South Africa. The bells, rehung in 1930 by Mr. A. Bowell, of Ipswich, were going as well as ever. Incidentally, Mr. Lambert said, they had with them that evening the first and last subscribers to the estimated cost (£300) for such repair—Messrs. E. Bastin and W. Kemp. Messrs. Pearce, Jolly and Kemp, though each over 70 years of age, were still regular ringers, and Mr. Tom Wilson, whose father, the Rev. T. Linton Wilson, had just passed away, was a member of the company 30 years ago.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of £1 13s. on the right side, a matter for thanks and congratulation.

All the officials were re-elected, and the president handed to Mr. Gordon Wright his diploma as a full member, while Messrs. A. Foster, J. Thurlow and S. Ekins were registered as probationers.

The Chairman expressed high appreciation of the 'freemasonry' among ringers, and trusted the present happy all-round feeling would long continue.

Admiral Bruen, a vice-president, gave a highly interesting and stirring address on 'What I saw at the Battle of Jutland.' He regarded Admiral Jellicoe as a born commander and strategist, and Admiral Beatty as a leader of tremendous personality.

Remarking that the primary rules of the Halesworth band of ringers were framed in 1539, revised in 1770, and been in present form since 1896, Mr. F. C. Lambert proceeded to give the history of individual bells and towers in the neighbourhood in his inimitable and instructive style.

Songs, etc., were contributed by Messrs. Goodwin, Lambert, Orford, Took, Ekins and the Rector. Touches on the handbells were given by Messrs. Lambert, Took, Wilson, G. Gowing, H. Jillings, J. Gibson, A. Foster and J. Thurlow.

THE FALSE PEAL OF TREBLE BOB.

To the Editor.

Sir,—The peal of Kent Treble Bob Major rung at St. George's, Gravesend, on June 12th, 1920, conducted by the late Mr. W. H. Judd and published in the Kent County Association Report on page 76 (1921), was F. Robinson's composition of 5,184 reduced to 5,024, and, as such has been proved false, this peal therefore will be withdrawn from the association's peal list, with apologies to the band.

F. M. MITCHELL, Hon. Secretary.

RINGING AS A SOCIAL FACTOR.

The representative nature of the assembly of ringers in London on Saturday for the 299th anniversary dinner of the Ancient Society of College Youths is typified in the announcement that no fewer than twenty-four of the societies affiliated to the Central Council were represented. And these representatives of the Exercise came from at least twenty-two counties to do honour to the venerable society which now enters upon its three hundredth year. Ancient organisations, like ancient buildings, frequently fall into decay, but with the approach of its tercentenary the Ancient Society seems to have renewed its youth, and it will go forward into this memorable year with the good wishes of every member of the ringing fraternity.

In Saturday evening's proceedings there was one speech which stood out among a number of good speeches. It came from one of the newest ringers in all that big assembly of experienced men, and it created a marked impression, both by its matter and the manner of its delivery. It had a touch of humour and the hall mark of sincerity. The Rev. G. A. Ellison, son of the Rector of London's famous church, St. Michael's, Cornhill, and curate at Sherborne, made the main theme of his reply to a toast an appeal to ringers to interest boys and young men in the art of ringing on two grounds, because they were losing the art of amusing themselves, and for the sake of the discipline which change ringing provides. Mr. Ellison admitted only a very short experience of parish life, but there is no doubt he has quickly put his finger upon one of the things which makes for restlessness among the present generation. Many people in these days do not know how to provide their own amusement; they prefer others to entertain them and, in being entertained, they lack the controlling force which the discipline of study and team work gives.

In filling up gaps in the belfry ringers are apt to look upon it chiefly as an effort to maintain the practice of change ringing, but here is another angle from which they can approach the task. The mental and physical discipline involved in change ringing is fully realised by those who take the art seriously, and Mr. Ellison's speech should provide an additional encouragement for those upon whom devolves the task of maintaining the personnel of the belfry. There is to-day need for young ringers to keep the art alive; and ringing can supply one of the needs of youth—it can teach self-discipline and provide a means of restoring to some extent the decaying art of self-amusement. Ringing can thus become a valuable social factor.

BIRMINGHAM CATHEDRAL BELLS.

RESTORATION FUND GUARANTEED.

The appeal of the Provost and churchwardens of St. Philip's Cathedral Church, Birmingham, for funds for the repair of the bells in time for the Coronation has been assured of success. In a letter to the Press last week the Provost and wardens announce the promise of Sir Charles Hyde to make up the balance of subscriptions to the £2,000 needed, and they express the hope that the work may be completed before the Coronation.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

LIVERPOOL BRANCH.

A very successful meeting of the Liverpool Branch was held at Woolton on Saturday, November 14th. It was a real pleasure to visit this beautiful church in a charming suburb of the city of Liverpool. The bells of Woolton are equally beautiful, well in keeping with the church, and the going is very good. A representative gathering kept the bells going most of the afternoon and evening to many methods. The Rector of Woolton conducted the service in the church and the Vicar of Gateacre gave the address. The other clergy present were the president of the association (the Rev. A. Scott) and the Rev. J. A. Briggs, of Fazakerley.

The business meeting followed tea, with the Rector of Woolton presiding. The Rector extended a welcome on behalf of the branch to the president on the occasion of his first visit to the branch after his appointment. A hearty welcome was extended to the Rev. J. A. Briggs, a member of the association, who has recently joined the staff of the parish of Fazakerley in Liverpool.

The sincere thanks of the branch were extended to Mr. Claude Davies for his hours of labour in making such a success of the annual dinner of the association.

Two new members were admitted.

The President expressed the thanks of the company to the Rector of Woolton for the use of the bells and for his welcome, and to all responsible for a happy and successful meeting.

LADIES' GUILD AT CANTERBURY.

NEXT YEAR'S JUBILEE DINNER.

The only factor against an enjoyable meeting of the Central District of the Ladies' Guild at Canterbury was the weather, although even that did not stop a goodly number attending from far and wide. London sent strong support, and from the other extreme came two from Hastings.

St. Stephen's was the centre of the meeting, but some of the braver souls, under the guidance of Mr. B. Luck, visited the two six-bell towers which were also open, St. Dunstan's and St. Alphage.

A service was held at St. Stephen's, conducted by the Rector (the Rev. Barnes). Being a service for ladies, the local ladies' choir and lady organist assisted him in this function. The Guild's new service forms were used.

Tea followed in the Parish Rooms, and was much appreciated. The party of 40 was joined by the Rector.

A message of goodwill and best wishes for an enjoyable meeting was delivered from Canon F. J. O. Helmore, who was sorry that he was unable to be present.

A short business meeting was then held, Mrs. Deal presiding.

Five practising members were elected, i.e., Miss D. Colegate (Sevenoaks, Kent), Miss N. Scopes (Enfield), Miss H. Snowden (Halestead, Essex), Mrs. G. Trendall (Peabmarsh, Essex) and Miss H. Oakshott (Hayes, Kent). One honorary member, Mrs. Shorter, of Walton-on-Thames, was also elected.

It was proposed to hold the next meeting at Broxbourne, Herts, on Saturday, January 2nd.

Mrs. Fletcher announced that the jubilee anniversary dinner of the Guild would be held on Saturday, October 23rd, 1937, also that the new badges were selling very well.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector of St. Stephen's and the other incumbents for the use of the bells at the various churches, to the organist and choir (not forgetting the organ blower), and to the ladies who provided tea. A very hearty vote of thanks was also passed to Mr. B. Luck for all the trouble he had taken in his endeavour to make the meeting a success—including his visit to the railway station.

After the meeting great haste was made to the Cathedral, as the bells were available for only a limited time. Ringing there included rounds, Stedman Cinques, Stedman Caters and Grandsire Triples on the back eight, but about 8 p.m. a rope broke and so 'goodbye' was said to any further operations.

BISHOP'S VISIT.

On Sunday, November 15th, before morning service, on the occasion of the first visit to St. Andrew's Church, Cobham, of the Lord Bishop of Guildford, 720 of Kent Treble Bob Minor: A. Holden 1, W. Faulkner 2, J. Mills 3, W. Holden 4, G. Shotton 5, W. James (conductor) 6.

FOR BEGINNERS.

BACK TO STEDMAN DOUBLES.

What's wrong with Stedman Doubles that it finds very little place in peals? Stedman Triples is a popular method. Of the peals of Triples rung in the first nine months of this year, nearly 40 per cent. were Stedman. Of the peals of Doubles in the same period, only just over 11 per cent. included Stedman, while nearly 60 per cent. consisted of Grandsire only. That does not seem right to us, for it cannot all be due to the fact that many beginners start their peal ringing career with Grandsire Doubles. There must be some other reason. Is it that five-bell method ringers 'funk' it because it has no 'treble' as a guide?

One thing appears certain, that five-bell method ringers ought to give more attention to it. Stedman Doubles is worth ringing, especially as a variant from the plain methods, and should be studied by all those whose opportunities of ringing on higher numbers is limited. For it has this advantage, that when the opportunity comes to ring on a higher number of bells, there should be as little difficulty in ringing Stedman Triples as in going from Grandsire Doubles to Triples—assuming, of course, that Stedman on five bells has been properly mastered. We would like to encourage the ringing of Stedman by beginners.

It is not really a difficult method to learn, even though it has no treble to guide you. The most important thing is to memorise thoroughly the 'Slow' work.

As you know, the extent of changes on three bells is six and Stedman is constructed in groups consisting of six changes. The three bells in front ring these six changes, the others dodge. When the six changes have been completed one of the three bells moves away, and another takes its place.

The 'sixes' are formed in two ways, one being the reverse of the other, but for practical purposes all that the beginner need remember is that they are alternately 'slow' and 'quick.' The 'slow' six is a six into which a fresh bell enters the slow work, which detains it in front for five sixes; a 'quick' six is a six produced by a bell (called the 'quick' bell) running straight in to lead and out again, it being thus in front for that one six only.

The 'slow' work consists of two 'whole turns' (distinguished as 'first' and 'last'), in between which are two 'half turns' (distinguished also as 'first' and 'last'). A whole turn consists of a whole pull at lead, one blow in 2nd's place followed by another whole pull at lead. With only one blow in between them it follows that the whole pulls must be made in opposite ways; that is, if one is handstroke and backstroke, the other must be backstroke and handstroke, and vice versa.

A half turn consists of one blow at lead only—made in the same change as the whole-turn bell strikes one blow in 2nd's. Before, between and after each of these pieces of work 3rd's place is made, and the work occurs in this order, after leaving the dodging in 5-4 (down).

3rd's, first half turn.
3rd's, last half turn,
3rd's, last whole turn,
3rd's, (before dodging 4-5 up).

In the first whole turn lead at back and hand, make a blow in 2nd's, then lead at hand and back.

In the first half turn lead one blow at handstroke.

In the last half turn lead one blow at backstroke.

In the last whole turn lead at hand and back, make a blow in 2nd's and lead at back and hand.

These five sixes show the complete slow work by the 4th:—

	23145	34251	34512	41325	41253
Handstroke	32415	43521	43152	14235	14523
Backstroke	234	453	341	124	415
Handstroke	243	543	314	214	451
Backstroke	423	534	134	241	541
Handstroke	432	354	143	421	514
Backstroke	34251	34512	41325	41253	15432

The way in which a 'quick' bell comes in and out can be observed by examining the work of the 5th in the second column and of the 2nd in the fourth column. These are 'quick' sixes; the others are 'slow' sixes. Notice how, in a quick six, each bell leads a whole pull at hand and back, while a 'slow' six begins and ends with a half pull, causing the two intervening bells to lead at back and hand.

As each bell leaves the front it goes to 4-5, where it has a double dodge up, then it lies a whole pull behind and has a double dodge down. After that it goes into the work in front in 'the opposite way to which it came out.' In other words, if it was a slow bell last time, it returns as a quick bell; if it was quick last time it goes in slow next.

The full extent of 120 is produced by two singles, the first made in either of the first ten sixes and the second by the same two bells 60 changes later. The bell that is already behind, after lying its whole pull, strikes one blow in 4th's, has another whole pull behind

BELLS AND THE PUBLIC.

THE TAUNTON PROTEST.

The towers of St. Mary's and St. James', Taunton, concerning the ringing at which a protest has been made to the church authorities, are situated about 200 yards apart. We are informed that the agitation against the bells was initiated by a retired military officer who came to reside between the two towers about three years ago.

The St. James' band attempt a peal once in three months, and if the ringing exceeds two hours it is treated as if it were a peal, so far as attempts are concerned, and the three months is allowed to elapse before another attempt is made. The early ringing is done on the King's birthday and St. James' Day, when the bells start at 6.15 a.m. and ring for half an hour. The time is fixed to enable the men to get to their employment at 7 o'clock without 'losing time.'

SOME PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Not knowing anything of the circumstances at Taunton in regard to the objections to ringing, one wonders if the many practices that are held are not often greater causes of annoyance than peals or service ringing. Especially may this be the case with Guild or combined practices.

Quite recently I have had pleasure and appreciation expressed to me on the occasions of ringing for a wedding and for a peal; and questions and obvious displeasure about the ringing at a subsequent combined practice.

The unavoidable bad striking, the constant stopping and starting, the clashing of the bells preceding a ragged finish as the bells are set, is, to my mind, far more likely to cause annoyance and give ground for objections than any well-struck peal. A brass band does not hold its practices in the High Street, and, if we are to make progress in our art and bring young ringers on, we must devise some means of making our practices, especially the long ones, less of a nuisance to those who are enforced listeners.

I venture to make some practical suggestions:—

- (1) Keep learners to lashed bells until they can ring rounds or call changes perfectly.
- (2) Make more use of handbells for learning new methods.
- (3) For Guild and combined practices avoid as far as possible towers in a thickly populated area.
- (4) Try and introduce a means of semi-silencing the bells as at present in use at a certain tower in London.

W. J. PAICE.

A SUGGESTED 'ARRANGEMENT.'

Sir,—As one who commenced ringing at St. Mary's Church, Taunton, 40 years ago, I am naturally interested in reading in this week's 'Ringing World' the 'Taunton Residents' Protest' for restricting ringing on the bells at St. Mary's and St. James' Churches.

These two towers are practically within a stone's throw of one another, and the petition to restrict the ringing, in my opinion, is not altogether unreasonable, especially on the part of those residents in the vicinity of the two churches:

St. Mary's, 12 bells, tenor 30 cwt. in C.

St. James', 8 bells, tenor 20 cwt. in E flat (or E).

However good the striking, the disconcerting musical effect when these two peals of bells are ringing together can easily be illustrated by two handbell bands ringing at the same time Cinques or Maximus (tenor key C) and Triples or Major (with an E or E flat tenor). Even rounds is sufficient.

Here I would respectfully suggest that some arrangement be made by the two church authorities, in conjunction with the Ringing Master of each tower, whereby the bells, especially for Sunday service, would be rung alternately. Say St. James' in the morning and St. Mary's for the evening service, or vice versa. This I feel sure would avoid a great deal of annoyance.

Regarding peal ringing, the best arrangements where complaints are concerned is to fit silencers to the clappers, as is successfully done elsewhere in thickly populated districts, or brick up the louvers, etc., as you suggest in your leading article in this week's 'Ringing World.'

My Taunton friends will know I offer these suggestions in good faith and in these modern times they are worthy of consideration.

strikes another blow in 4th's and then has yet another whole pull behind, following which it dodges in 5-4 (down).

The bell that comes up has one blow in 5th's, a whole pull in 4th's and another blow in 5th's. It then returns to the work in front. As a result of the single both bells go in the same way that they came out.

One other thing, if you are new to Stedman. It is this: The ordinary start of the method is not with the beginning of a 'six.' It begins like Grandsire, and a new six starts with the third change.

THE SUGGESTED 'EDWARD' CORONATION PEAL.To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I be allowed to encroach upon your space in order to express my point of view concerning the suggested Edward peal at Westminster Abbey on Coronation Day next year.

Now, sir, since you approve of the proposal, I was dismayed to find you throwing cold water on it, and consider the attitude you adopted in last week's 'Ringing World' to be very regrettable and hardly worthy of your paper.

Apparently you have formed your opinion because of your 'knowing something of the difficulties which would have to be surmounted.' But I contend that even this knowledge is no excuse for letting the matter drop.

Now I assume that opposition to the suggestion will have only two sources, that of the regular Abbey ringers, and that of the authorities or the powers that be. And I am convinced that if the first of these is overcome, the other will automatically fall into line. Maybe this will not be so simple as it sounds, but 'difficulties are made to be overcome,' and I am as yet unconvinced that those which stand in the way of the proposal are insurmountable.

If, then, this reasoning is correct, the thing to do is to win over the opposition which may (I don't say that it will) come from the regular ringers.

I can imagine and sympathise with their perhaps jealous feelings in handing over the bells to a team of Edwards on such an important occasion. But if there is a general approval of the suggestion throughout the Exercise, and this, I think, can only be ascertained through the medium of 'The Ringing World,' then surely not even the jealous regard the regular ringers might have for their position will stand in the way of the peal being attempted.

In conclusion, may I be so bold as to suggest that a compromise could be effected by the Abbey ringers 'ringing them out' immediately after the service for, say, half an hour, and then to let the Edwards carry on?

NEW BAND'S PROGRESS.

At Holy Trinity Church, Old Hill, Staffs, before morning service, on Remembrance Sunday, November 8th, 720 Grandsire Minor was rung with bells half-muffled and tenor covering: Ben Grice 1, George Fletcher 3, Percy Hindmarsh 4, Walter E. Fendall 5, Harry Wood 6, Gerald Swallow (conductor) 7, Eric Fletcher 8. This is a new band of young ringers recently formed. The ringers of treble and third have only been ringing a few months. It was the first 720 and first attempt for all except ringers of 5th and 7th.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.DEVIZES BRANCH MEETING.

The Devizes Branch held a very enjoyable meeting at Holy Trinity Church, Bradford-on-Avon, on November 7th. Representatives attended from Bratton, Bishop's Cannings, Bradford, Devizes (St. John's and St. Mary's), Rowde, Southbroom, N. Bradley, Melksham, Trowbridge, Westbury and Warminster, and visitors were welcomed from Bath, Blagdon, Batheaston and Swindon.

The Vicar (the Rev. Canon Clarke) conducted the Guild office, Mr. Bowyer officiating as organist. Tea was served at the 17th century cafe, The Three Gables.

At the short meeting which followed, with Mr. E. F. White presiding, sympathetic reference was made to the loss Mr. W. Baxter, of Trowbridge tower, had sustained by the death of his son, and the secretary was asked to send a letter to him expressing the sympathy of the members.

Mr. E. Parker, now residing at Holt, was elected a ringing member of the Guild.

Holy Trinity tower, Bradford, put forward an application for a course of instruction in Stedman Triples, and it was decided to forward this to the hon. general secretary of the Guild.

Votes of thanks were expressed to those who had helped in the success of the meeting.

During the evening Christ Church bells were available, and ringing continued at both towers until 8.30.

Methods rung included Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob and Double Norwich and Cambridge Surprise Major.

The next meeting of the branch is due at Warminster on December 5th.

'BURTON' SURPRISE.To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—As you have already been informed that the method rung at West Wycombe on September 5th was Brighton, and not Burton, it only remains for me formally to rectify my report, which should read: Brighton Surprise Major, first in the method for the Guild and by all the band.

H. WINGROVE.

Dear Sir,—I offer Mr. Baker an apology for unwittingly infringing on his method 'Brighton Surprise,' and to the band whom I misled into calling it Burton.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Members of the Hertford County Association and any other ringers who care to pay a visit to Hitchin to-morrow have the opportunity of ringing on a lovely eight. A meeting of the association is to be held there and particulars will be found in our notice columns.

The restoration of the bells at Eckington Church, near Sheffield, is to be carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

Mr. Arthur Knights, of Chesterfield, seems to have an inexhaustible supply of 'new' peals of Treble Bob Major. One, heard for the first time, was rung on Saturday at Longwood, Yorks, but it was composed in March, 1882. Nearly 55 years between being composed and rung!

Among the associations and guilds represented at the College Youths' dinner on Saturday, in addition to the members of the society itself and of the Royal Cumberland Youths and the London County Association, were resident members of the following: Bath and Wells, Ely, Essex, Gloucester and Bristol, Guildford, Hertfordshire, Kent, Lancashire, Llandaff and Monmouth, Middlesex, Midland Counties, North Staffs, Oxford, Peterborough, Salisbury, Scottish, Suffolk, Surrey, Sussex, Warwickshire, Worcestershire and Yorkshire.

A peal of Stedman Caters at All Saints', Poplar, was lost in the last course on Saturday through the clock weights crashing.

The popular hon. treasurer of the College Youths is well known for the large size in pipes which he favours. On Saturday he mounted one so big that he was mistaken for the official saxophone player of the society. No one offered him 'a pipeful o' baccy'—it would have been too expensive.

A peal by Bank officers was to have been attempted at St. Giles-in-the-Fields, London, on Saturday, but as one of the company, coming from a distance, missed his train, they were short of staff. Happily they were able to enlist the services of a Civil Servant on the spot, and the Middlesex Association gained another peal of Superlative and three new members. The rest of the company feel indebted to E. A. Barnett for standing in at a moment's notice.

The ringers who visited Australia two years ago will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Murray, wife of Mr. James Murray, of Melbourne. She died after only a short illness. Mr. Murray conducted the first peal in Australia, rung at St. Philip's Church, Sydney, in 1890, and nearly 45 years later took part in the peal of Grandsire Cinques at St. Paul's Cathedral, Melbourne.

Truly local! Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Chandler rang together in a peal of Grandsire Doubles at Lyonsall Parish Church, Herefordshire, on October 30th. At this church they were baptised, confirmed, married, learned to handle a bell and rang their first peal.

Mr. George Popnell has now left Tredegar Hospital, where he was detained for some weeks after an accident while crossing a mountain. He is still 'on crutches,' but his many friends will be glad to learn that he is making good progress.

George Williams, Master of the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild, has won distinction. He is nearly 80 and on Saturday rang his first peal of Grandsire Cinques! W. H. Symonds, a member of the Hereford Cathedral band, took part in a peal of Stedman Triples on Saturday—his first peal of Stedman, at the age of 72 years. At the age of 68, Joseph Swain, of South Normanton, has rung his first peal. Boys will be boys!

The ringer of the 7th in the peal at Basingstoke, recorded in our last issue, was John Chesterman, not Chester as printed.

The ringing at Stratford-on-Avon, recorded last week as for the 50th anniversary of the Vicar's 'induction,' was for the jubilee of his 'ordination.' Canon Melville was appointed Vicar in 1908.

INFORMATION WANTED.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The authorities at Bowden are considering bricking up the louvres. At present the sills are about 3ft. below the smallest bells when raised. Can any reader with similar experience offer suggestions, particularly as to the height necessary? Roughly the louvres are 8ft. wide and 12ft. high, space from frame to roof of tower about 24ft.

A YORKSHIRE VETERAN.

FIRST YORKSHIRE RINGER TO SCORE 400 PEALS.

The peal of Oxford Treble Bob Major at Queensbury, Yorks, on Saturday, rung for the marriage of Mr. Harry Wilde, a member of the local company, and Miss Marjory A. Newsome, was also notable for the fact that it enabled Mr. Joseph Broadley, of Bradford ('Joe' to his conferees), to achieve a long cherished ambition of his very eventful ringing career, to be the first Yorkshire ringer to ring 400 peals. These are made up of 398 for the Yorkshire Association, one for the Lancashire Association and one for the Shropshire Association.

In spite of his advancing years, Joe rang his bell like a young man and was heartily congratulated by the band on his performance. Although he does not compare with some other stalwarts of the Exercise as regards the number of peals, his total represents a long period of hard toil, and many are the ringers who have been encouraged by his very cheerful word of advice.

In conversation with him after the peal, he said he has never failed to be a subscriber to the weekly ringing paper since one was first published some 55 years ago. Long may he be spared to enjoy the rest he so well deserves.

ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

Twenty-Four Guilds and Associations Represented.

Members of the Ancient Society of College Youths and ringing friends from many parts of the country gathered in London in large numbers on Saturday for the 299th anniversary dinner of the society. Ringing took place at several city churches during the afternoon, and, following the custom of recent years, a service was held at the Church of St. Michael, College Hill. It was at a church (destroyed in the Great Fire) which stood near this site that the first College Youths used to practise.

The church was filled, and the service, which was delayed a quarter of an hour, had to be somewhat curtailed. The Rector (Canon Douglas) officiated, and the address was given by the Rev. E. G. Turner, Vicar of St. Giles', Cripplegate. He spoke from the words,

MR. E. P. DUFFIELD,
The Retiring Master, Who Presided.

'I will awake the dawn,' Psalm cviii., 2 (R.V.). He said he had asked Canon Coleridge if he would give him some suggestions for the address, and the Canon had given him two cautions. The first was, 'If you don't know anything about bellringing, don't say anything about it,' and the other was, 'Mind you are short.' The speaker went on to speak of the effect of bells at the Armistice and on other public occasions. On the eighth bell at Cripplegate Church, he said, was the inscription, 'Peace and good neighbourhood.' That was a message which they needed more than ever to give the world to-day. They needed to practise them in their own lives and they were the things that men and nations needed.

At the close of the service, in which the hymns, 'O God, our help' and 'All people that on earth do dwell,' were heartily sung, a course of Stedman Triples was rung on handbells in the chancel by J. Thomas, E. H. Lewis, T. Groombridge, jun., and W. A. Cave.

THE DINNER.

Afterwards a company numbering nearly 250 dined together in the Queen's Room of the London Tavern, with an overflow in the ante-room. It was one of the largest gatherings of the long series.

The chair was taken by the Master (Mr. E. P. Duffield), who was supported by Canon G. F. Coleridge (Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild), the Rev. Dr. Perkins (Westminster Abbey), the Rev. R. French,

M.C. (Rector of Stepney), Mr. E. H. Lewis (president of the Central Council and Master-Elect of the College Youths), Major J. H. B. Hesse (Master of the Guildford Diocesan Guild), the Rev. E. G. Turner (Vicar of Cripplegate), the Rev. H. J. Fynes-Clinton (Rector of St. Magnus'), the Rev. E. C. Bedford (Rector of St. Andrew's, Holborn), Capt. H. J. Cann (Brookwood), Canon Douglas (St. Michael's, College Hill), the Rev. G. A. Ellison (Sherborne), the Rev. J. Wall (Cornhill), the Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow (Wokingham), the Rev. F. L. Edwards (hon. secretary, Salisbury Diocesan Guild), Mr. W. A. Cave (Bristol), Mr. J. W. Jones (hon. secretary, Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association), Mr. W. E. Troke, Mr. H. Tanner (Dean's verger, St. Paul's Cathedral), etc.

Mr. E. A. Young was in the vice-chair, and among those also present were the Rev. W. Pennington Bickford (Rector of St. Clement Danes), Mr. W. T. Cockerill (hon. secretary of the society), Mr. A. A. Hughes (hon. treasurer), Mr. L. Porter (Junior Steward), Mr. C. F. Winney and Mr. H. R. Newton (Trustees). Other old members who attended were Mr. F. E. Dawe, Mr. W. D. Smith and Mr. J. C. Mitchell, each with a membership of over half a century.

The visitors from outside the London area included Messrs. A. Thompson (hon. secretary, North Staffs Association), E. Guise (hon. secretary, Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association), C. H. Kippin (hon. secretary, Surrey Association), J. T. Dyke (hon. secretary, Bath and Wells Diocesan Association), J. Corbett (hon. treasurer, Guildford Diocesan Guild), R. T. Hibbert (secretary, Oxford Diocesan Guild), W. H. Shaker (hon. secretary, Lancashire Association), S. Palmer (hon. treasurer, Yorkshire Association), W. H. J. Hooton (hon. librarian, Central Council), S. Armstrong (hon. secretary, Sussex Association), F. Mitchell (hon. secretary, Kent County Association), J. A. Trollope (vice-president, Middlesex Association), Dr. E. L. Taylor (Sevenoaks), Mr. A. J. Wright (Reading), and others from Wrington, Bristol, Reigate, Crayford, Dartford, Chislehurst, Woodford, Guildford, Croydon, Beddington, Brasted, Kettering, Mells, Yeovil, Wilbersey, Poole, Broxbourne, Manchester, Bolton, Ipswich, Reading (St. Laurence's and St. Mary's), Bushey, Enfield, Great Bentley, Hitchin, Cambridge, Eye, Windsor, Thame, Newcastle (Staffs), Sheffield, Derry, Loughborough, Swindon, Caversham, Banstead, St. Albans, Leatherhead, Heston, Wootton Bassett, etc. The London towers, represented by large contingents, included St. Paul's Cathedral, St. Andrew's, Holborn, Southwark Cathedral, St. Lawrence Jewry, Ealing, Walthamstow, Barking, Lewisham, etc.

During dinner the Master 'took wine' with the senior past Master (Mr. F. E. Dawe), and with three generations of College Youths, Messrs. T. Groombridge, T. Groombridge, jun., and P. Groombridge (father, son and grandson), who were present. After the repast the loyal toast was drunk and the National Anthem sung.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE TRICENTENARY.

The Master proposed the toast of 'The Church,' and remarked succinctly, 'No Church, no Ancient Society.' When twelve months ago they assembled on a similar occasion, he said, they had fresh in their minds the part they, as ringers, had played in celebrating the Royal Jubilee. Within about two months of their gathering they were playing a totally opposite part; they had to perform the sad office of associating themselves with the passing of a beloved monarch. Just as they rose to the occasion in 1935, so they did in 1936, and they were looking forward to playing their part again in 1937 (hear, hear). Another thing which would be exercising their minds, and especially the minds of their officers, during the coming year would be the fit ways and means of celebrating a great event in the life of that Ancient Society. It might interest them to know that already a committee of four had been appointed, whose job it was to consider the manner in which the tercentenary should be celebrated and to make such recommendations as they might think necessary. They would thus see that they were not allowing Time to defeat them in making such preparations as would be adequate to the occasion. They had not forgotten the invitation that was thrown out to them—it was virtually an invitation—two years ago by the Archdeacon of London (to hold a service in St. Paul's Cathedral).

Proceeding, the Master apologised for what he described as 'an unfortunate happening' that afternoon, when, owing to the failure to keep an undertaking by the custodians of the society's property, the regalia and the mace were not available for use at the service, and the service itself was delayed for the service books. This created a good many little difficulties, and he apologised to the Rector of St. Michael's that this not only caused delay in the commencement of the service, but also threw it out of gear. He assured him, however, that it was no fault of the society.

What is the Church? asked the Master, turning more particularly to the toast. He was prepared to recognise that when they proposed that toast they thought of the body ecclesiastic, and they were very pleased to see that body so well represented there by so many influential members of the Church (applause). He could not, however, resist the urge to regard it from a wider viewpoint. One way in which he looked upon the Church was as the guardian of religion. What was religion? He would say religion was a belief in a Higher Authority, which Authority must guide their every course of action and relationship, whether political, social or moral, whether national or international, so that they came back very nearly to the point where they brought in, as was customary on many such occasions, 'Church and State.' He suggested that if they had a Church which had no 'truck' with the State there was something wrong with the Church, and yet whilst the Church must bring its influence to bear on the affairs of the State—if it did not he thought it was sadly failing—the Church must not be responsible to the State for the conduct of its affairs, and he hoped the day would never come when the State would be allowed to have a voice in guiding the conscience of the Church (applause). They saw to-day totalitarian States where the Church was not its own master; its conscience was controlled by the State; its aims, its allegiances, were subordinated to the ambitions not of a democracy, but of a caucus. A Church such as that was a sham and a mockery; indeed, it was worse than no Church at all, because a Church that did not stand firm on questions of principle would be decidedly harmful. While it gave the impression that it was loyal to its allegiances and principles it was in reality merely the mouthpiece of a kind of propaganda department of the State. He was sure they all hoped that such a state of things would never come to this country of ours (applause). Indeed, they hoped that the time would soon come when these nations would be brought to realise the madness of the policy into which they had allowed themselves to be driven.

In coupling with the toast the name of Canon Perkins, the Master said he was much in their minds on account of his connection with the great Abbey of Westminster. He had not got a peal of twelve bells there, which they thought a church of the importance of Westminster Abbey should have. Perhaps as time went on Canon Perkins would remedy that little defect (laughter and applause).

'UPLIFT' OF THE BELLS.

Canon Perkins said as he went about the country—and his life took him up and down the country a good deal—one of his happiest experiences was to see the way in which the old historical Church of our land was appreciated. Coming from the Abbey—he had heard of other buildings called Abbeys, but he only knew 'The Abbey' (laughter and applause)—he supposed they would expect him to tell them of the plans and projects for the Coronation. He couldn't. Not being the Dean—he had not had proper justice done to him (laughter)—he had to preserve the character, more or less, of an oyster, but he could assure them when May 12th came, although they had not got the twelve bells which the Master hinted they desired, their poor little ring of eight bells would succeed in doing ample justice to the Coronation of King Edward VIII. (applause).

Proceeding, Canon Perkins expressed gratitude to those present for all they were doing for the cause of religion and the spiritual uplift of the country by their work upon the bells. He was brought up as a child at St. Paul's, Redford, he said, and in his boyish way used to take an interest in the eight bells there. As the years had gone on, he had come to realise the wonderful spiritual message the church bells of old England had. Last April it was his privilege to take part in a most memorable service at the ancient foundry in Whitechapel, when eight bells, the replica of the bells of the Abbey, which he loved so dearly, were sent out 6,000 miles away to Victoria in British Columbia. He had been behind the business from the first, for he was closely connected with the Canadian Church, and he assured them that the message of those bells in Victoria Cathedral had been something they had no idea of here in England. Of course, there had been accounts in the Press, and they had probably read the very good account which appeared in 'The Ringing World,' but he had had more information than that. People out there had heard those bells who had heard nothing like it for 40 or 50 years, and had walked up and down the street in Victoria literally crying with joy. Those bells which Mears and Stainbank had turned out so splendidly were going to be a very great spiritual uplift to that community (applause). He thanked Messrs. Mears and Stainbank and he thanked all of them who were engaged in the work as ringers. He hoped they would continue for many a long year up and down the country in this Ringing Isle to deliver the message of the bells—that wondrous message of uplift to the whole community (applause).

ADVICE TO YOUNG RINGERS.

Canon Coleridge, who was received with cheers, in proposing the toast of 'The Ancient Society of College Youths,' thanked the members for their extremely warm greeting. What struck him more than anything else in the present day, he said, was the tremendous advance there had been in the art of change ringing, in the methods which were rung and in the comparatively new system of ringing spliced methods. He did not forget an occasion, more than 50 years ago, when he met certain College Youths after a practice at Southwark. Most of them were eating tripe and onions (laughter). He met several notable men, and one of them was Murray Hayes. He asked Hayes to tell him what he considered was a ringer at the top of the tree. Hayes replied that it was the ringer who could ring that highest and best of all methods, Stedman Cinques, and ring it properly. 'No man could wish to go any further than that,' Hayes said. He (Canon Coleridge) did not know what Hayes would say if he could have been there that night. Things had changed and they had men who could do most wonderful things, as they were to see a little later in the handbell ringing. Why was that? Because those who so excelled in ringing difficult methods had a right grounding and a right foundation. He wished every young ringer would read and study those most admirable articles for beginners, which had been appearing every week for some months past, in 'The Ringing World.' If they would only apply themselves and put their whole heart into it, he was certain they would see an immense advance in the practice of the art (hear, hear). It was a most thankless task teaching youngsters, especially in the country, continued Canon Coleridge. He recently received a letter from a brother clergyman, who was working very hard indeed in instructing six-bell ringers round about him. In writing, he said, 'You live in a totally different ringing world to what I do. You associate yourself with men who can ring all sorts of methods, such as Cambridge Royal, and who actually talk about course-ends, and so on. That is your world.' 'It isn't, a bit, as a matter of fact,' commented Canon Coleridge, amid laughter. 'My world,' the writer added, 'is totally different. All I can do is to get them to see that there is a certain method called Grandsire Doubles and they think there is nothing to go for further than that. When they have rung 120 of Doubles they think they are at the top of the tree, and it is a very difficult job to teach them even that.'

Canon Coleridge recalled an incident which recently happened in a country village which he well knows and where Samuel Taylor Coleridge, philosopher and poet, once lived. To the church on the previous Sunday week came an old man, between 75 and 80 years of age, from the next village in order to ring. They put him to ring the tenor. He was rather blind and couldn't read the figures and soon got at sea. One of the ringers called out, 'Here, Bill, you be after me.' 'No I bain't,' he said, 'no I bain't. I knows where I ought to be, but I bain't there' (laughter). There is something good in confessing a fault like that, said Canon Coleridge. It was difficult in the country, but if they could get ringers to read that book by Mr. Dyke, which the Central Council published, and also that wonderful set of articles in 'The Ringing World,' they would get better ringing in every place in England. He hoped the day would come when those articles would appear in book form.

Referring to the demolition of the Church House, Westminster, and particularly to the pulling down of the great hall of the building, to make way for new premises, Canon Coleridge said he never thought that that house would come down so soon. It was less than 50 years ago that they, as young curates, were asked for contributions to build the hall in memory of the Jubilee of Queen Victoria. It took many shillings out of their pockets to do it and he never thought a memorial of that kind would disappear so quickly. The whole face of London was changing, and perhaps it was fortunate that the College Youths had not got a Company Hall, otherwise the hand of the destroyer might be upon it. Next year they were keeping their three hundredth anniversary, and those responsible for the arrangements would have a tremendous work to do in getting a place which would accommodate all who would like to come. They would want a bigger church than St. Michael's and a bigger hall to dine in. He wished the Master, the stewards, the secretary and everybody else responsible, success in their efforts, and he wished the society prosperity and every individual member every happiness and blessing. He coupled with the toast the name of Mr. Cockerill, who was, he said, ever young, and not like an ancient building likely to fall down (laughter and applause).

Mr. Cockerill's health was drunk with musical honours. Following this came the 'exhibition piece' of the evening. The talented handbell band from Bushey rang a touch in five Surprise methods—London, Superlative, Bristol, Ealing and Cambridge. The large audience listened spellbound. After a short false start, the touch was rung in perfect style without a semblance of a trip; indeed, without a noticeable mis-blow. The rhythm was perfect and the pace fast. Timed over one half-minute, the ringing was at the rate of 40 changes a minute. The method changed at every lead, bobs were sprinkled about the touch, but from method to method the bells went as cleanly as if they had been consecutive leads of Bob Major. It was a wonderful exhibition, given, be it remembered, under strained conditions in the presence of a critical audience. Loud cheers greeted the successful conclusion of the touch, which had been rung in the tenseness of an almost breathless hush. The ringers were Henry Hodgetts 1-2, Christopher W. Woolley 3-4, Harold G. Cashmore (conductor) 5-6, Frederick W. Brinklow 7-8.

THE PAST YEAR.

Mr. Cockerill was cordially received on rising to reply to the toast of the society. He said letters of apology for absence had been received from the Very Rev. Dr. Matthews, the Revs. Canons Haldane, Sheppard, Alexander and Mozley, the Archdeacon of London, the Rectors of St. Mary-le-Bow and St. Michael's, Cornhill, Mr. Albert Walker (Birmingham) and Alderman J. S. Pritchett, Master of St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, who was 82 and whose health would not allow him to be with them that night. Alderman Pritchett was probably their senior member. They had, continued Mr. Cockerill, to remember 14 members who had passed away since their last annual dinner.

While the company stood in silence, Mr. Cockerill read the following names: Arthur G. Ellis, John Avis, Edward E. Richards, the Rev. Charles A. Clements, the Rev. B. E. Tyrwhitt-Drake, William Davis, the Rev. Canon H. J. Elsee, John W. Rowbotham, Thomas Benney, John Howes, Charles J. Choct, the Rev. A. H. F. Boughey, Henry S. Ellis and Alfred Tarbun, sen.

Continuing, the Hon. Secretary said that during the year 32 new members had been elected and 75 meetings for practice had been held. Seventeen peals had been rung as follows: On tower bells, Stedman Triples 2, Caters 4, Cinques 4, Kent Treble Bob Major 1, Bob Royal 1, Spliced Yorkshire and Cambridge Royal 1, London Surprise Major 1, Spliced London, Bristol, Cambridge and Superlative Major 1, Cambridge Surprise Maximus 1. The spliced peals were conducted by Mr. Wilfred Williams. On handbells there had been one peal of Spliced London, Bristol, Cambridge and Superlative, rung by the highly talented band who were with them that night (applause). Mr. Cockerill concluded by asking the members to join with him in wishing Canon Coleridge 'many happy returns' of his birthday, which he had celebrated on the previous Tuesday (applause).

Mr. W. Roughton, in proposing 'The Visitors,' suggested that the title of the toast should be either 'Our Guests' or 'Our Friends.' 'A man,' he quoted, 'should keep his friendships in constant repair.' They had friends with them who came to them constantly, and that was one of the nights on which they hoped to repair those friendships; they also hoped to make new friends. Mr. Roughton had a happy word to say about each of the clerical guests who was present, and he added that the visitors that night had seen the College Youths as they were and they had heard the most perfect handbell ringing in the world. He hoped it would result in their taking a good deal more interest in the ringing at their various churches than they had ever done before. It had been a joy to him and he was sure it had been a joy to every ringer. There were no men in the world who had ever been able to do it except these four, and they were all members of the Ancient Society (applause). Those visitors who would like to know more about the society he asked to look at the ancient records which were displayed in the ante-room. They contained the history of the society and were very worth while looking at.

CHANGE RINGING AND CHARACTER.

The Rev. G. A. Ellison, son of the Rector of Cornhill, replied to the toast. Many people, he said, would be surprised that a great society like that, containing so many experts in the art of change ringing, should entertain and ask to speak to them such a very raw beginner in the art as he was. But he must say, for his own part, he was not surprised, because their action was only typical of the kindness and thought which he had received from all bellringers since he started taking an interest in the art just a year ago. Heaven alone knew, he had given ringers enough provocation during the last year (laughter). But despite all his thickheadedness and foolishness he had received nothing but kindness from his fellow-ringers, and he would like to think his presence there that night was symbolic of the fellowship of the bells which united the most experienced with the most inexperienced in one family (hear, hear). He brought to them, continued the speaker, greetings, first from his fellow-ringers at Sherborne, who would be glad to extend the hand of hospitality to them in the tower of Sherborne Abbey, and from his father, the Rector of St. Michael's, Cornhill, who regretted very much that he was unable to be present. He (the speaker) personally regretted it, because there were not many things he could do better than his father, but if his father had been there, he (the speaker) would have been able to remind him that, whereas when he was a curate at St. Mary Abbot's he attained only to the heights of call changes, he could struggle through a plain course of Grand sire Triples (laughter and applause).

Continuing, Mr. Ellison said he hoped they would not think him impertinent if he made an appeal to them to do as much as they could to interest boys and young men in the art of change ringing (hear, hear). 'I have had a very small experience of parish life,' proceeded the speaker, 'but of one thing I am certain, that one of the great dangers to character to-day is that people are losing the art of amusing themselves (hear, hear). If they have a leisure hour they want to see what is being done for them, on the wireless or in the cinema. I believe that the discipline of change ringing, the thoroughness which it inculcates in the people who practise it, and the team spirit which pervades the whole of the art, are things which are necessary to character and are necessary to all our young people to-day (hear, hear, and applause). I believe, whenever you can persuade a young man to learn this great art, which I, for one year, have been practising with the greatest joy in the world, you will be doing a very great service to the youth of the country, as well as preserving this great native art for the future' (applause).

In proposing 'Kindred Societies,' the Vice-Chairman said he did so by virtue of the fact that he was the immediate Past Master of the Society. He liked to think that these toasts had come down to them from the early days of the society and that, as he stood there as vice-chairman, many of his predecessors had also stood there and voiced the same sentiments. Immediately in front of them they had their tercentenary, and, looking back down the centuries, they must be thankful to those who had steered the society through the shoals and rocks with such skilful hands. He liked to think that their founder, Lord Brevelon, sitting, perhaps, somewhere near where they were assembled, had said to his friend, Sir Clifford Clifton, 'Now, Cliff, we must have a feast, we must get out a programme. I will propose a toast to His Majesty, Charles I., and the State and Church, and I think you, Cliff, should toast the ringing brethren.' He did not suppose they would call them 'kindred societies' in those days, but he was sure they would always remember their ringing friends, despite those little difficulties which all societies must have. But difficulties were the salt of a society, said Mr. Young, so long as they were met by opposite forces and a sense of brotherhood. Thus they met that night and sent out their greetings to kindred societies. It would be difficult to say how many societies were represented there that evening, but they felt with them in the aspirations and struggles and joined in wishing them the best of luck, joy and success (applause). There were very few societies older than their own, but they thought that night of all the little village societies and of those great guilds and associations which were linked together under the Parliament of Ringers, the Central Council. They were fortunate that in their Senior Steward and Master-Elect, Mr. Lewis, they had the President of the Council (applause). It was a great honour to them to have him as a member and an officer of their society (applause).

OTHER PEBBLES ON THE BEACH.

Mr. Lewis, in acknowledging the toast, said that in that day's issue of 'The Times,' at the bottom of the ecclesiastical news, it was announced that 'the Ancient Society of College Youths, the association of bellringers, will hold a service at St. Michael's, when handbells will be rung.' No doubt some members of the society believed everything they saw in print, and, if so, they now knew that the Ancient Society was the association of bellringers. At the same time, by their kindness in honouring that toast, the society did realise that there were a few other pebbles on the beach (laughter), that there were one or two other societies up and down the country, and on behalf of those societies he thanked them for having honoured the toast. He could not say he actually represented every ringing society or association in the country, but he did represent nearly the whole of the larger associations. The number was somewhere about 50, affiliated to the Central Council, and he understood that 24 of them were represented in that room (applause). He noticed that there were representatives from the far ends of the country. From the west they had a representative who could teach them how to handle a rope, even with one hand when the needs of nature demanded it (laughter), and there was someone there from Wales. They had also got a representative of the Scottish Association, who, as far as he knew, was the only change ringer who, to use a good old Scottish term, was a 'residenter' in the county of Argyll. He thanked the College Youths for the welcome they extended to kindred societies year by year, and he would like to thank them particularly this year for the wonderful example of handbell ringing they had given them. He thought it ought to be a lesson to the country members. A fortnight ago, speaking at Liverpool, he pleaded for a much greater use of handbells, because he believed it was fairly easy for a band to attain a moderate degree of striking on handbells, and, having got that, to have something to aim at in the tower. He hoped the country members would go home with that marvellous rhythm in their ears. Apart from the intricacy of the methods, the rhythm was about as perfect as it could be (applause). He hoped it would encourage others to do something like it and apply rhythm to the tower bells (applause).

Mr. L. Porter submitted 'The Press,' which, he said, had everything in its power to 'make us or break us.' He appealed to the national and local Press, in dealing with things relating to ringing, to be guided by the technique which they could obtain from ringers so that their reports of ringers' achievements might be accurate. With regard to their own ringing paper, they were all agreed, he said, that such a journal was necessary in the interests and progress of the art. He appealed to the Editor to give them what they wanted, and he was certain that ringers would not only subscribe to the paper, but do all they could to encourage others to do the same. He appealed to ringers, whatever their views, to give the ringing paper that support which had been asked for times out of number.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, in replying, spoke of the excellent 'press' which ringing was now receiving generally. Referring to the proposer's appeal to the Editor of 'The Ringing World' to give ringers what they wanted, he said he was always ready to do that if ringers themselves really knew what they wanted. The trouble, so far as he was concerned, was that nearly everybody who wrote to him on the subject wanted something different (laughter), and the Editor could only use his discretion and give the readers that which he believed would interest the greatest number (hear, hear).

The proceedings ended with Auld Lang Syne sung with linked hands. The musical programme included two songs by Mr. Reginald Johnson, 'Ol' Man River' and 'I travel the road,' and handbell solos by Mrs. Hughes, rendered in her inimitable style. Her first item was 'Serenade,' a very delightful piece, written specially for her handbells by Mr. F. G. Haskins, organist of Chingford Parish Church, and publicly performed for the first time. Mrs. Hughes followed this with 'If I might come to you' (W. H. Squire), and, as an encore, played the ever popular 'Land of hope and glory.' Afterwards Mrs. Hughes was presented with a bouquet by the Master, who spoke of the appreciation they had of what Mrs. Hughes did for their entertainment year after year. Mrs. Hughes graciously acknowledged the gift. The accompanist was Miss Olive Peake.

The election of officers for the tercentenary year takes place next Tuesday.

CLIFTON BELLS REOPENED AFTER LONG SILENCE.

The eight bells of Clifton Parish Church have been restored. They were rededicated by the Ven. W. Welchman (Archdeacon of Bristol) in the presence of a large congregation.

During the service, immediately after the rededication ceremony, the bells were heard again, after a silence of eight years, rounds and 'Queen's' being rung by the local band. The bells were rung again after the service for about half an hour, the opening touch being three courses of Stedman Triples by the following members of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association: P. G. Leaker 1, E. Guise 2, J. Thomas 3, P. C. Williams 4, J. A. Burford 5, H. W. Knight 6, S. H. Wood 7, H. S. Gregory 8.

Refreshments were served in the Parish Hall afterwards, and tributes paid to Mr. H. S. Gregory for his work in connection with the restoration scheme and the formation of a young band to ring the bells, also to Messrs. Menzies and Stainbank (who were represented by Mr. A. A. Hughes) and Mr. J. Thomas for the excellent way in which the work had been carried out.

The existing oak frame has been strengthened, the tenor (weighing 13 cwt.) recast, and the whole peal retuned and rehung on ball bearings. The 'go' of the bells leaves nothing to be desired and everyone is most pleased with their improved tone.

A local band of communicant members of the congregation has been formed under the captaincy of Mr. H. S. Gregory, with Mr. Stephen H. Wood as instructor.

The bells have been rung regularly for the Sunday services since the reopening, and a start has now been made with change ringing. It is almost 21 years since the bells were last rung for the Sunday morning service.

TWO GUILDS AT BINSTED

A joint quarterly meeting of the Alton and Petersfield District of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild and Ladies' Guild (Southern District) was held at Binsted on Saturday, November 7th, when, in spite of a very stormy day and an awkward locality to reach, 22 members were present, representing Aldershot, Blackmoor, Binsted, Petersfield, Seale, Soberton, Worplesdon and two unattached. The bells were rung throughout the afternoon and later in the evening, the ringing ranging from rounds to Cambridge Surprise Minor.

The Guild's service was held in church, at which the Vicar of Binsted (the Rev. F. A. W. Wilkinson) officiated, and gave an interesting and somewhat amusing address. Tea was provided in the Parish Institute, where the party was very cordially welcomed by Mrs. L. Ogilvy, of Binsted Wyck.

After tea the business meeting of the two districts took place. In the absence of the Alton and Petersfield District's chairman (the Rev. F. G. Eyres) owing to illness, the Vicar of Binsted kindly took the chair.

The hon. secretary (Mr. C. E. Bassett) expressed his regret at the unavoidable absence of Miss H. F. Mills (ladies' secretary), also due to illness.

The next meeting of the Southern District (Ladies' Guild) was fixed for Shalford.

Mr. W. G. Lawrence (Froyle), Mr. E. Smith and Mr. J. Perris (Petersfield) were elected ringing members, and Mr. R. G. Cross (Long Sutton) an unattached member of the Winchester Guild.

The usual votes of thanks were accorded and ringing was then resumed.

DATE TOUCHES OF MINOR.

Little Bob Minor is useful for obtaining lengths of Minor, which are divisible by eight, but not by twelve. Thus a 720 of Plain Bob can be reduced to 496 by ringing one lead of Little Bob in place of the three middle leads of Plain Bob in eight out of the twelve courses:

The date touch was rung on Martinmas Day, at St. Martin's Church, Brasted, Kent, and consisted of 496 Plain and Little Bob spliced, 720 St. Clement's Bob and 720 Oxford Bob: G. W. Davey 1, Miss D. Colegate 2, A. Barker 3, C. W. Towner 4, P. W. Budgen 5, E. H. Lewis (conductor) 6.

THE LENGTH OF A PEAL.

We print elsewhere a letter, on the subject of peals, which may give thoughtful ringers food for reflection. It contains the suggestion that, in view of the fact that the time is fast approaching when, as our correspondent puts it, the whole question of limitations upon peals must receive drastic attention, steps might be taken to lower the recognised standard for the length of a 'peal.' That the question of peal ringing should receive the serious consideration of the Exercise, and that there are, also, occasions when shorter bouts of ringing than three hours would meet the professed purpose of the performance, we fully agree, but there are weighty arguments against reducing the accepted length of a 'peal.'

In the sense that it is laid down that a peal shall consist of not less than 5,000 changes, our correspondent is correct when he says that it is a purely arbitrary standard, but there are mathematical and historical grounds for this definition. In the early days of change ringing a 'peal' was the extent of the changes on any given number of bells. It was a six-score on five, a 720 on six, and a five thousand and forty on seven. Old peal boards can still be found in which a 10,080 of Major is described as a 'quarter-peal.' But for practical purposes, ever since peal ringing, as we know it to-day, began in the early eighteenth century with peals of Triples, five thousand and forty has been the basis of recognition, with due allowance for the requirements of methods rung on eight or more bells.

To lower this standard would, we think, be a retrograde step. Peals are, in these days, 'cheap' enough compared with the tax which they put upon the performers in years gone by. To permit about three-fifths of such achievements to rank for merit as a 'peal' would strike at the very root of the value of the performance. When it is said that on the score of proficiency in a method 1,260 changes can be as searching a test as the whole peal, we do not agree. The last hour of the peal is, in our opinion, the supreme test of the ringers' physical and mental powers, when they have to resist fatigue both of body and mind. That last hour of concentration is the all-important factor in successful peal ringing—to cut it out would rob the performance of more than half its merit.

But while we differ with our correspondent on what the standard of a peal should continue to be, we do agree that ringers have got to give more consideration to the public than has been sometimes done in the past. Peals on 'noisy' bells in congested districts should be avoided, except on very special occasions, but many a tower could be saved from eventual silence by the remedies which have been suggested. We consider it the ringers' duty, in their own as well as the public's interest, to get Church authorities to do what is needed to moderate the sound of the bells in the vicinity of the tower. The operation can always be carried out in such a way that the volume of sound can be regulated to suit the occasion. This, coupled with reasonable consideration for the public, and the maintenance of a good standard of striking—the quality of striking makes a vast difference to the effect on the public ear—would, we are convinced, go a long way to remove or prevent objection, but in the interests of the art itself we are sure it would be a mistake, even if another peal were never rung, to reduce the standard which was set up in the beginnings of change ringing and has been maintained down the centuries.

FOR BEGINNERS.

ARTICLES APPRECIATED.

It is very gratifying to us to know that the articles for Beginners, which have been appearing every week for about 18 months, are not only appreciated by many of those for whom they are specially written, but that they meet with the approval of members of the Exercise who have long since passed beyond the 'beginner' stage. The fact that it has been suggested that the 'lessons' should be reprinted in book form is an indication of their usefulness.

Although written primarily for beginners, in varying stages—one could not write continuously for those who are only learning to handle a rope, or trying to acquire ropesight—it was our intention to provide material also for those who give instruction, and we are pleased, therefore, to learn from numerous sources that these more or less simple lessons are often proving valuable to those who are teaching others.

From the appreciation which has been expressed we feel that the articles are on the right lines, and we hope they will continue to be of real use. A long series of articles on the plan of taking the beginner in steps 'from rounds to London Surprise' could not, we believe, be published in a weekly paper with the same advantage. All beginners cannot progress at the same speed, and many could not keep pace with such a series. In addition, the claims of the five and six-bell ringers, as well as those who practise on eight, have to be considered, and each category must have its turn while others are digesting what has already appeared. Moreover, there are new ringers constantly coming along, and we must return from time to time to give them a helping hand.

A LITTLE STEP TO LITTLE BOB.

For some few weeks past we have been endeavouring to show ringers a way of getting a new interest, by explaining how easy it is, by means of a little study and patience, to try something fresh with hopes of success. Our examination of Minor methods has shown how they are often interlocked in their construction, and thus the task of mastering them is to some extent eased.

The same thing applies to Major methods. They run very much in groups. One such group is the Plain Bob method, in which, in addition to Bob Major, with 2nd's place made when the treble leads, there is Reverse Bob, produced by 7th's place when the treble lies its whole pull behind, causing the dodging at that stage instead of at the lead end. There is also Double Bob, with both 7th's place and the accompanying dodging when the treble is behind and 2nd's and the accompanying dodging when the treble leads.

It is not necessary for us to go into detail about the ringing of these two methods—a study of the full explanation of Reverse and Double Bob Minor, which appeared in our issue of September 25th, should be sufficient.

We would, however, like to turn attention to another variant of Plain Bob, which readers may like to try. Some ringers look at it rather askance, but it is a change and it can be made to produce good music. Moreover, in a fashion, it is good preparation for a step to Treble Bob.

We refer to Little Bob. This is a method in which the treble has a plain hunt, but it goes up only to 4th's place, where it makes a whole pull, and then returns to lead. That is why some people do not like it—the treble never gets above 4th's place.

It can be rung as Minor, if you like, but, of course, as the treble is never in 5-6 the extent of changes on six bells is not possible by this method. In Major, however, there is full scope for a peal and the method is perfectly easy to ring.

As readers who have reached the stage of Plain Bob on a working bell well know, the 2nd's place made at a plain lead, or the 4th's place made at a bob, causes the bells above those places to dodge.

Precisely the same thing happens in Little Bob. When the treble leads, 2nd's place is made by the bell which came down in front of the treble, and the bells in 3-4, 5-6 and 7-8 dodge. When the treble makes 4th's, the bells in 5-6 and 7-8 dodge.

The result is that a bell, once it is above 4th's, dodges in every dodging place, 5-6, 7-8 (up), 8-7, 6-5 (down) consecutively. In addition it dodges 4-3 (down) and 3-4 (up) if the treble is below it. In other words, you dodge in every dodging place as you come to it unless you are actually in 3-4 with the treble; that is unless you cross the treble in 3-4 or 4-3.

Construct a course for yourself, draw your diagram and see how symmetrical it is. The course is, perforce, only half the length of a course of Plain Bob.

The bobs are made as in the parent method: 4th's instead of 2nd's, with the bell, that led in front of the treble, running out and making its first dodge in 5-6; and the bell that would have stopped for a dodge in 4-3 (down) running in to take the treble off the lead.

The lead-ends are the same as Plain Bob, but do not occur in the same order, and the conductor has to be wary of the fact that the calls at Wrong and Middle come at consecutive leads—indeed, they have only the dodge in 8-7 (down) between them, while the Home occurs four leads further on: after he has been down to the front again. If he needs a mental check, Home occurs at the second lead after he has made 2nd's; Wrong and Middle after he has been to the front without making 2nd's. Any true touch of Bob Major will fit the method, but, of course, it will be only half the length.

'CRAFTSMANSHIP' SUBORDINATED TO THE 'ENGINEER.'

WORCESTERSHIRE VICAR'S PLAINT.

The annual meeting of the Western Branch of the Worcestershire and Districts Association took place at Powick last Saturday and was well attended, considering the day was cold and foggy. Powick, a small village lying on the Malvern road some three miles south-west of Worcester, was the scene, we are told, of the first shot fired in the Civil War which began in 1642, and known as the first Battle of Worcester.

The church is ancient and possesses a 'Bob Major' tower containing six bells, tenor 23½ cwt. in E flat, originally by A. Rudhall, 1705, but four of them have since been recast, the tenor in 1833, others in 1910. The tone of the whole peal is mellow and full of dignity, the handling of them no easy matter unless one allows the arms to go well above the shoulders and uses the straight-all-the-way-down pull.

Ringling began at 3 o'clock and continued until 4.15, when a short service with address was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. F. C. Champion, who is an honorary member of the association. In his address the Vicar, commenting upon the ever recurring topic of ringers not going to church, said that he would never try to compel anyone to go against their wish. As regards his own ringers he left the matter to conscience, and remarked that it was not so much church-going as the way we lived our daily lives that mattered most. Change ringing was a beautiful art, but he himself was often dismayed at the ignorance of some ringers in failing to regard it as such. He then referred to the craftsmanship of the old bellfounders which to-day had been subordinated to the engineer, a gain to ringers as far as the 'go' of the bells was concerned, but to be regretted inasmuch as the craftsman had been dispensed with.

The Vicar's address certainly surprised some of the members with its knowledge of bells and the understanding of ringers, a fact that was commented upon later in the vote of thanks.

A 'ringers' tea' was very kindly provided in the Village Hall by Mr. Geoffrey Lewis, a member of the Cathedral band, who resides at Powick, after which the business meeting was held. All the officers were re-elected, namely, Messrs. C. Camm (Ringing Master), G. E. Large (secretary and treasurer), W. Rufford (representative of the Central Committee). The quarterly peal was left in the hands of Mr. G. J. Lewis, and it was decided to make either Wychbold or Leigh the place of the first meeting for 1937.

The secretary then reported an increase of about 20 members over last year, the total membership being a record for the branch since its formation. He thanked all tower secretaries and others who had helped to make this possible, and urged on them the necessity for retaining at practices and meetings the new faces they had with them that afternoon. He also asked for revised and accurate lists of members' names for the purpose of the next annual report.

The large hall, with its wide, open fireplace, provided a Dickensian setting for the meeting, and members were loth to leave it for the murky fog which hung outside. Eventually, however, a few stalwarts led the way for further ringing, which included Cambridge and London Surprise. Finally the company, thoroughly warmed by now, dispersed once again into the gloom, this time homeward bound.

A QUESTION FOR THE METHODS COMMITTEE.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—As a ringer of over 52 years' standing and one who rang his first peal over 50 years ago, I think I ought to have the right of putting questions to the Methods Committee and to expect a courteous answer.

Most certainly I have the right to try and impart knowledge to the Exercise, which I know to be true, in spite of the fact that this knowledge is opposed to the beliefs of the Methods Committee.

I propose, therefore, to ask the Methods Committee if they can give the Exercise a mathematical proof, apart from the course-ends of the peals, whether or no the following peals are one and the same.

The peals here given are for 8th's place methods, but they can also be converted into 2nd's place methods. No. 1 peal is applicable to the H class of plain methods; No. 2 peal to the J class.

As five-part peals they would be applicable to many Treble Bob or Surprise methods, provided the methods have clean proof scales.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD MEETING 'FAILS' IN ITS OBJECT.

The little village of Shere is always an attractive spot for a ringing meeting, and it drew about 30 ringers to the Guildford Diocesan Guild's gathering on Saturday. Indeed, those who visited it had the opportunity of seeing it under picturesque conditions in the evening. Standing in the centre of the village, where a giant oak rises sentinel at the junction of three roads, the scene was one that may be dreamed about, but seldom seen. A crescent moon shining from a starlit indigo sky, the ancient half-timbered gabled buildings, with the warm glow of lamps shining from numerous cottage windows, the shingled spire of the old church standing out in silhouette, with the bells ringing merrily over the quiet village, and the Tillingbourne stream bubbling beneath the little old-world bridge, provided an enchanting setting, which needed to be seen to be fully realised. Shere has the reputation of being one of the prettiest villages in Surrey, and it can be as charming under the moonlight as it is picturesque under the midday sun.

The visiting ringers received a warm welcome from the Rector (the Rev. Sir Paget Bowman) when he addressed them at the service; they would have been more pleased could they have been welcomed also by the local ringers, not one of whom appeared until late in the evening, when 'Old Tommy' Streeter, esteemed by all who know him, made a belated appearance. Old Tom thinks he has nearly passed the active stage, but he was induced to take part in a short touch of Grandsire Triples.

The other methods rung during the afternoon reached out to Cambridge Major, but chief attention was given to those who were anxious to improve their acquaintance with more modest things.

Ringers were present from Guildford (Cathedral and S. Nicolas'), Cranleigh, Ewhurst, Godalming, Haslemere, Pirbright, Woking, Worplesdon, West Clandon and Bagshot, and visitors from Reigate, Sevenoaks and Uckfield. The attendance included all the district officers and the Master, hon. treasurer and hon. secretary of the Guild.

At the business meeting of the Guildford District, after tea at the White Horse Hotel, the Master presided and a vote of condolence and sympathy was passed with the family of the late Mrs. G. E. Walker, of Woking, widow of the late Admiral Walker (who was formerly hon. treasurer), and a life hon. member of the Guild.

One new ringing member was elected, and Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Shelton, of Reigate, were elected non-resident life members.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector and organist, but the hon. district secretary reminded the members that, although they had a good attendance, the meeting, having been arranged with a view to interesting the local ringers, had failed in its object, as not one of them was present.

But that is the way of some of the ringing fraternity.

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

COMMITTEE'S PROPOSALS.

The Shropshire Association held a successful meeting at Condover on November 7th, when over 30 members attended. The very pleasant peal of eight was going at an early hour, the long draught and a couple of newish ropes giving the visitors a good deal to think about for a time. However, some creditable striking in standard methods was heard, and some good practice put in before the service.

The Vicar is a practising member of the association, and showed his interest by conducting a very enjoyable service, also by taking the chair at the business meeting which followed tea in the Parish Hall.

The annual meeting was provisionally fixed for January 16th, other business being the election of Mr. G. F. D. Pratt to the committee. The committee asked for authority to send out to all towers connected with the association asking for 1936 subscriptions. The names only of members who have paid the annual subscription will be included in the register.

The committee also proposed to get in touch with the authorities at the three Shrewsbury churches where the bells are not rung with a view to putting ropes, etc., in order as far as possible.

Further ringing was enjoyed in the evening, and several enthusiasts found it necessary to hurry off for trains and buses at 9 p.m.

MARRIAGE OF MISS M. I. HECTOR AT TROWBRIDGE.

The wedding took place at Trowbridge Parish Church of Miss Marjorie Ina Hector, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Hector, of the White Swan, Church Street. The bridegroom was Battery Quartermaster-Sergeant George Humphries, of Newport Pagnell, Bucks. The Rector (the Rev. S. J. Nisbet Wallace) officiated and the service was choral. The bridegroom and best man were in Royal Artillery uniform.

Mr. Sam Hector has had a long connection with ringing in Trowbridge, and is one of Wiltshire's best known ringers. In honour of the wedding the bells rang out merrily after the service. Among the presents received by the bride and bridegroom was a silver rose bowl from the Parish Church ringers.

Messrs. Mears and Stainbank are to cast the two trebles for Chester Cathedral, increasing the peal there to ten bells.

The death occurred at Woking on Wednesday week of Mrs. Gertrude Elizabeth Walker, widow of the late Admiral T. P. Walker. Admiral Walker was hon. treasurer of Guildford Diocesan Guild from its foundation until his death, and Mrs. Walker was a life honorary member. For the funeral on Saturday the bells at Woking Parish Church were rung half-muffled.

In the peal columns is recorded 'Shropshire Bill's' 200th peal. Billy and his local team were quite happy as the bells settled down to what has been referred to in 'The Ringing World' as handbell rhythm.

William is the third Shropshire ringer to reach 200 peals. James E. Groves tops the list, and E. V. Rodenhurst is nearing the 300 mark. Mr. William Froud, formerly a ringer at Maidstone, has passed away at the advanced age of 90 years.

The meeting of the Stockport Branch of the Chester Diocesan Guild at Denton, announced for last Saturday, is to take place to-morrow.

The accounts of the Bristol United Guilds have just been issued. The principal activities during the year have been the new issue of the Directory and the annual dinner. The dinner account showed a profit of 1s. 2d. and the directory account a deficit of 13s. 4d., but, after allowing for the differences, the general account has a balance in hand of £15 14s. 4d., an increase of £2 8s. 4d. on the year, thanks to the proceeds of a dance. The next annual dinner will take place on January 16th.

The King's visit to Llanfrecfa during his tour of the distressed area in South Wales last week was celebrated by the ringing of a peal of Bob Minor at the Parish Church in the evening, following an hour and a half's ringing in the morning of the visit. His Majesty, while in Llanfrecfa, visited the Unemployed Boy Scouts' Centre.

THE ARTICLES FOR BEGINNERS.

SUGGESTED PUBLICATION IN BOOK FORM.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I strongly support the suggestion which I see that Canon Coleridge made at the College Youths' dinner—that the excellent series of articles 'For Beginners' may in due course be collected into book form? There are, of course, several existing books which are doing great service, but the articles in your paper are second to none for clearness and thoroughness.

But now that they have been running for more than a year they have naturally reached something rather beyond the strict 'beginner' stage, whereas ringing societies are constantly having to deal with complete newcomers to the art; and many of these newcomers too, alas! will probably not start reading 'The Ringing World' until they feel that they do at least know a little about ringing. So if the articles are sooner or later gathered into a book, I am sure that the result will be of great value—particularly to societies such as the University Society here, where practically the whole time is spent on teaching beginners.

MORE FALSE PEALS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Mr. C. Roberts (London) points out to me that Compositions No. 1,787 and 1,801, both Stedman Caters, by H. Dains and W. A. J. Knight respectively, are both false and tenders his sympathies to both bands. I add my regrets and beg to draw attention to both peals being omitted from the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association records. E. GUISE, Hon. Secretary.

Sir,—Mr. C. W. Roberts points out that a peal of Stedman Caters (No. 1,801) that I called at Bristol last year is false. I would apologise to the association and to the band that I did not give more than a cursory inspection to the figures. J. T. DYKE.

Peal No. 1,787 was rung at Swindon.

'STRAIGHT FROM THE BELFRY.'

After the College Youths' dinner, 'Peter Simple' had the following in his column in 'The Morning Post,' headed 'Straight from the Belfry.' It needs no comment:—

'At the 299th anniversary dinner of the Ancient Society of College Youths, says a recent news item, the assembly heard four College Youths ring for the first time in public a "spliced surprise major" in five methods. "Splicing the surprised major" is a term well known to campanologists; and the five "methods" or ingredients are the same as those used in all exercises of a similar character. Among the older generation of ringers, a round of triple-spliced swelpme bob majors is the usual signal for the party to break up; whence the phrase "ringing the bell."

'The five "methods" according to the best authorities are sack, stingo, toddy, punch, and that product of modern campanology, the plain cator and it.'

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

ELECTION OF MASTER FOR TERCENTENARY YEAR.

Mr. E. H. Lewis Installed.

On Tuesday evening the members of the Ancient Society of College Youths elected their Master for the Tercentenary year, and Mr. E. H. Lewis (president of the Central Council) was installed for a period which should prove of unparalleled interest in the society's history.

The meeting at which the election took place was held at the Coffee Pot, in Warwick Lane, almost under the shadow of St. Paul's Cathedral, which has been the headquarters of the society for many years past.

The business began when the retiring Master (Mr. E. P. Duffield) took the chair and the ceremonial candles standing on the table in front of the mace had been duly lighted. The silver candlesticks are a pair, presented by the late Dr. Arthur Nicholls, of Boston, U.S.A., actually used by the Duke of Wellington throughout his Peninsular campaign.

MR. EDWIN H. LEWIS.
Elected Master of the College Youths for the Tercentenary Year.

The preliminary business, which was expeditiously got through, included the reading of a letter from the Rev. Fynes-Clinton, Rector of St. Magnus', containing the suggestion that when the society organised its Coronation ringing, arrangements should be made for bells in the City to be rung throughout the week without the overlapping of ringing at neighbouring towers. One tower should be used each day in a different quarter of the City and the arrangements published in the Coronation programme in the City Press.

Three new members were elected and there was the unique incident of a grandfather proposing his own grandson, when Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., submitted the name of Mr. F. T. Groombridge.

The financial statement for the year having been disposed of, Mr. F. E. Dawe (the oldest surviving Past Master) was voted to the chair while the election of officers took place.

THE OFFICERS.

Mr. Dawe expressed appreciation of the compliment paid him. He recalled the fact that he was elected Master for the first time 49 years ago, and occupied the honourable position on five occasions. He was pleased to meet again that night friends he used to meet 50, 55 and 58 years ago. He was particularly pleased to see present Mr. Challis Winney, for they were elected members the same night 58 years ago. They learnt to ring together; in fact, in their ringing careers they had grown up side by side. Mr. Dawe went on to pay a tribute to the retiring Master, who was to be succeeded by another able gentleman. Both the outgoing and the incoming Masters were men for whom the Ringing Exercise had the highest possible respect. For the important year which was before them they could not have a more suitable Master than the president of the Central Council (applause).

Mr. A. A. Hughes then proposed and Mr. T. Groombridge seconded that Mr. Edwin H. Lewis be elected Master of the society for the ensuing year, and the motion was carried amid applause.

Mr. W. T. Cockerill's re-election as hon. secretary was carried by acclamation. Mr. T. Groombridge, in making the proposition, said no one would ever know the amount of work put in by Mr. Cockerill, who had been secretary longer than he (Mr. Groombridge) had been a member.

Mr. J. C. Mitchell, who seconded, said he had for years marvelled at the way Mr. Cockerill had carried on the job so efficiently.

Mr. A. A. Hughes was re-elected treasurer. Mr. L. B. Porter was elected senior steward and Mr. J. Waugh junior steward. Messrs. C. F. Winney and H. R. Newton were re-elected trustees.

AUSPICIOUS YEAR BEFORE THE SOCIETY.

Mr. Lewis then took the chair amid applause, and Mr. Duffield invested him with the badge of office—the new regalia provided by past officers of the society to commemorate the Tercentenary. Mr. Duffield said he invested Mr. Lewis with the badge in the firm belief that the society, during his term of office, would attain a prominence and a position of strength such as in the whole of its 300 years of history it had never attained before. He assured Mr. Lewis of the support of the members of the society and wished him every success in his year of office.

The new Master said he felt it was a great honour to have been elected to the office in this particularly auspicious year that was now starting. He thought Sir Arthur Heywood would have been rather glad to know that the president of the Council which he founded had been elected Master of that society, for when he first broached the idea of a Central Council there were remarks from one or two old members of the College Youths not quite complimentary to his ideas (laughter). But he went through with it in spite of that, and he (Mr. Lewis) was very glad to feel to-day that the College Youths were as keen supporters of the Council as any of the other societies.

Continuing, he said he intended to do all he could during the coming year to support the society in every possible way. He expressed thanks to the retiring Master for all he had done for the society during his two years of office. Despite the fact that he had 50 miles to travel to his home after their meetings, Mr. Duffield had been most assiduous in his attendance (applause).

Mr. Duffield thanked the members for their indulgence during his Mastership, and the stewards and officers for their support. His two years of office had been very happy ones, and in vacating the chair it was a great pleasure to know it was to be filled by one than whom they could find none more acceptable to the Exercise (applause).

A vote of thanks to the officers of the past year was acknowledged by Mr. L. B. Porter, and at Mr. E. A. Young's suggestion it was resolved that on ceremonial occasions the medallion badge of office, until recently worn by the Master, should in future be worn by the Immediate Past Master.

LIMITED ACCOMMODATION FOR TERCENTENARY DINNER.

The Hon. Treasurer, on behalf of the committee who have the arrangements of the Tercentenary celebrations under consideration, said that owing to the dinner coming so near to the date of the Lord Mayor's banquet, they had been informed that the use of the Guildhall for the society's function was out of the question. Only two public rooms in the City were capable of seating the number of people they would be likely to get at the dinner, and he asked the members to decide that night to which place they would go, the Abercorn Rooms or the Cannon Street Hotel.

After details had been discussed, the Cannon Street Hotel, which can seat 400 to 420, was decided upon.

This will preclude the presence of ladies, and a suggestion was made that they might be provided for in another hall in the same building.

Mr. Young suggested that perhaps some kind of celebration, in which the ladies could take part, might be arranged in the summer.

Mr. Hughes stated that now that they had decided that the company would be limited to 420, an early announcement would have to be made in 'The Ringing World' that applications for tickets must be in in good time.

The business concluded, the members, at the call of the hon. secretary, drank the health of the new Master and wished him a successful year of office.

Then the candles were extinguished and slowly the company broke up.

SEVENTEENTH CENTURY MASTERS.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT EARLY LEADERS OF THE SOCIETY.

The election of a Master for the Tercentenary year of the Ancient Society of College Youths gives added interest to the history of the early days of the society and what is known of its first Masters.

A volume of intense interest on the history of the College Youths, its early members and its outstanding performances, has been written by Mr. J. Armiger Trollope, and it is hoped that this may be published during the forthcoming year. It would be a fitting accompaniment to what should be a noteworthy year for the society. By Mr. Trollope's kindness we are able to publish, from his work, the following particulars of some of the early Masters of the society.

The society, as is known, was established on November 5th, 1637, and the first Master was William, Lord Brereton, the head of an old Cheshire family, whose members had done good service to the State, in the Army, the Church and the Law.

He had married, says Mr. Trollope, the daughter of George Goring, afterwards Earl of Norwich, at the time one of the most powerful men in the country, and the influence of his father-in-law and his own social standing brought him into close contact with the Royal Court and the highest persons in the country. He was now 26 years old and, we may suppose, had already practised bellringing both in London and at his country home in Cheshire.

The year 1637 is famous for other things than the founding of the Society of College Youths; it was the first year of the revolutionary movement which led to the temporary ruin of Church and Crown, and five years later the Civil War broke out. The College Youths, naturally, were Royalists to a man, and the older members joined the King's standard or went down to their country homes to help his cause.

A ROYALIST.

Lord Brereton gathered arms, raised forces and garrisoned his house. On the other side was his namesake and distant cousin, Sir William Brereton, who held Nantwich for Parliament, and for some time the opposing forces contended for the control of Cheshire. The issue was decided in 1644, when Sir Thomas Fairfax marched out of Yorkshire, joined Sir William Brereton and routed the Royalists. Lord Brereton escaped from the battle, but was afterwards captured, and his enemies refused to exchange him on the ground that he had put to death in cold blood several of the Parliamentary side.

What truth there was in this charge cannot now be said, but after a year he was set at liberty and returned to his own home and took no further part in the war. His troubles, however, were not by any means over; he had to pay heavily for his 'delinquency' and the Puritans of his parish were continually sending complaints about him up to London.

In the year 1660 came the Restoration and the change in Church and State which it brought with it greatly affected ringing in general and the fortunes of the College Youths in particular. The art received a great stimulus and all those men who had suffered so much for their loyalty to the royal cause looked for compensation and reward. Lord Brereton petitioned the King for a grant to himself and his son of the office of Custos Brevium in the Court of Common Pleas.

Whether his request was granted does not appear, but on May 31st, 1661, a warrant was issued to pay him £500 as the King's free gift. He was made Lord Lieutenant of Cheshire in conjunction with Edward Stanley, Earl of Derby, who was also Lord Lieutenant of Lancashire and Lord of the Isle of Man. This division of the office was unusual and was done because, while Brereton represented the cavalier gentry of the county, Derby's territorial and personal influence in the district was so great that he could not be passed over. The arrangement did not work well. There was a good deal of ill-feeling between the Breretons and the Stanleys. Derby resented the appointment of a colleague and ignored him; and Brereton was irritated and sulked. The government of the county was neglected and several sharp letters were sent down from Whitehall. Some of the county gentlemen suggested that both Lords Lieutenant should be dismissed and another man appointed, but this was not done. A hint seems to have been given to Derby to confine himself to his other counties, and after that Brereton was energetic in the administration of Cheshire.

NO MEMORIAL TO FIRST MASTER.

He died in April, 1664, and was buried at the church at Brereton, where there is at present no memorial to him. His losses in the Civil War and the heavy fines he had to pay had ruined him.

Lord Brereton's title was an Irish one and gave him no seat in the House of Lords, but in the latter part of his life he was a Member of Parliament for Cheshire. His son sold the Cheshire estates, and after the next generation the family and the title became extinct.

Clifford Clifton, the second Master (1638), was four years younger than Brereton. He was the second son of Gervase Clifton, a wealthy Nottinghamshire landowner, and derived his Christian name from his maternal grandfather, George Clifford, Earl of Cumberland. As the eldest of the family he was intended to make his fortune in what we should now call the Civil Service. His father was a strong Royalist and we may suppose that the son was active on the same side. When the royal cause was finally lost and the King's head had fallen on the scaffold, Clifton's career as a courtier and civil servant came to an end; so he entered himself as a student at Gray's Inn, intending to seek his fortune as a lawyer, and that no doubt renewed his association with the College Youths.

About Edward Flower (1639) Mr. Trollope says he seems to have been in much the same position as Clifton, and in after years he was one of the King's Messengers.

Two brothers, Henry and Robert Mackworth, the sons of Sir Henry Mackworth, of Empringham, in Rutlandshire, were Masters in 1642 and 1643. Robert, who was admitted to the Inner Temple in 1640, died in 1717 at the good old age of 97. He appears to have kept up his connection with the society throughout his life, and his son Thomas was steward in 1693.

Capt. John Harrison, who followed the Mackworths in the chair (1644), was a different sort of person. Soldier, courtier, envoy, administrator, author and divine, he played many parts during an adventurous life spent in three continents. He was a man past middle life when he joined the society.

Among the other early members were Thomas Joyce, the Master in 1641, who was the son of a Dorset gentleman; John Hackett, Rector of St. Andrew's, Holborn; two other clergymen, John Milner and John Lightfoot; and John Houghton, Master in 1646, a writer of learned books and dealer in coffee, chocolate and other luxuries 'against the Ship Tavern in Bartholomew Lane.' All these were Cambridge graduates, except Joyce, who was at Exeter College, Oxford, and almost from the beginning there was a close connection between the Cambridge University ringers and the College Youths.

Sir Henry Tuise was successively Alderman, Sheriff and Lord Mayor of London, and in the year that he held the last office (1684) he was elected Master of the society.

John Tending, an Essex country gentleman, was not only a good ringer, but also a first-class composer. He produced some five-bell peals which are very ingenious and elaborate in construction. That he was highly thought of by the society is shown by the fact that he was elected Master (1659), only two years after joining the society and without having previously held the office of Steward.

Sir John Everard (1662) was a member of another important Essex family, whose official duties took him to Westminster, where he made the acquaintance of the College Youths and became one of the leading men of the society.

Among the men who have left their mark upon the art of ringing and who in their day served as Master of the society were Fabian Stedman (1682) and Benjamin Annable (1746), but the earliest composer who is known to have occupied the chief official position in the society, the man who probably converted 'cross peals' into half-pull changes, was Robert Roan (1652). He first produced the six-score of Grandsire Doubles, and from it 'Grandsire Bob,' the 720 of Bob Minor with the old standard calling.

John Patrick, who joined the College Youths in 1679, was Steward in 1684 and Master in 1692, was one of the men who carried on Stedman's work as a composer. He lived at Ship Court in the Old Bailey and was an inventor and maker of barometers and thermometers and had a great reputation among navigators and scientific men of the time. Fourteen or fifteen of his Minor methods and half a dozen Triples methods are printed in the 'Campanologia' of 1702.

THE MASTERS OF THE LAST 100 YEARS.

The books of the College Youths give the names of the Masters from the foundation until 1755, when, unfortunately, the custom of recording the appointment in the Name Book fell into abeyance and there is consequently no record of those who occupied the Master's chair until 1822.

The list of the Masters in the last 100 years contains the names of most of the famous members of the society of the century. We take these from the College Youths' own record:—

BELLS AND THE PUBLIC.SHOULD THE LENGTH OF PEALS BE REDUCED?To the Editor.*

Dear Sir,—Your judicious remarks on the above subject should serve as a reminder to the Exercise that the time is fast approaching when the whole question of limitations upon peals must receive drastic attention. It is becoming increasingly apparent that in these days the public will not endure uncomplainingly the number of peals and peal attempts that in other days were imposed upon their ears.

So far nobody has revived the old question of limiting the number of changes that constitute a peal. Perhaps we have at last become so impressed with the idea that five thousand changes must necessarily go to a peal that the idea of a shorter standard has not occurred to us. Yet the present standard is a purely arbitrary one, and it is quite within our power, as an Exercise, and acting through our own elected body—the Central Council—to stipulate that a lesser number shall be recorded as a peal; at any rate, upon ordinary occasions.

On the score of proficiency in a method, 1,260 changes, which is the standard for admission imposed by the Ancient Society of College Youths, can be as searching a test as the whole peal. While none of us would have the temerity to propose so low a figure as this for a recorded peal, there is no valid reason why we should not accept something round about 3,000 changes. For the sake of Minor bands the figure might be 2,880 or 3,600; that is, either four or five 720's.

Once we made the break with tradition in our minds on this matter we could, I think, see much to commend the shorter peal on other grounds than the mere abatement of noise. It has always seemed ludicrous to me that whether the occasion is the crowning of a monarch or the christening of the tenor's latest-horn, the Exercise has precisely the same celebration to make; unless, of course, the Master of the tower has a due sense of proportion, and accords to the infant the perfectly sufficient tribute of a quarter-peal. With the longer peal, the 5,000, kept in reserve, and not cheapened by promiscuous resort, it could be used with effect as a really royal peal when national occasions justified it.

All the parts of Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob and Treble Bob Major and Cambridge Surprise Major—to name only some of the methods about which the same could be said—that are worth ringing could easily be compressed into 3,000. It is the extension of these to peal length that demands the inclusion of unmusical courses, or in some methods the employment of unmusical long courses instead of far better short courses. Indeed, the whole field of composition would be altered out of our present knowledge if we adopted a 3,000 standard. Needless to say, the improvement of the music for outside ears must go a long way towards abatement of opposition to the bells.

There is finally a very important practical consideration. Short peals, of the length I have indicated, would take about two hours to ring on the average eight or ten. This shortening of the time would permit the peal to be fitted into the interval between afternoon and evening service on Sunday, when the occasion was of sufficient importance to justify the effort, and so have the happy effect of transferring many peal attempts, not merely to the most suitable occasion for them, but also to the time when they would probably arouse least opposition. It would always be possible to justify two hours' ringing on Sunday evening much more satisfactorily than three hours or more on a Saturday. Likewise it would remove from peal ringing the present reproach that it is utterly dissociated from the true function of the bells: service ringing.

None of us who are keen ringers will contemplate very happily any such self-denying ordinance as I have suggested. But as you, sir, have so cogently and rightly warned us, something of the kind must be the lesser of two evils, for it is quite certain that if we do nothing ourselves, something much more drastic will be done, without our compliance perhaps, but also without our power to oppose it. Already many towers are closed for peal ringing altogether; we shall be very short-sighted indeed if we persist in disregarding the portents until there are no towers left to us.

A. J. CORRIGAN.

North Stoneham, Hants.

VETERAN SUFFOLK RINGER'S DEATH.MR. LIONEL HAMMOND, OF CHEDISTON.

The death has taken place at Chediston, Suffolk, of Mr. Lionel Hammond, who had reached the advanced age of 81 years. He had been a member of the Halesworth Society for 34 years, and, despite his age, was a regular attendant for Sunday service ringing, frequently walking to and from Halesworth three times on a Sunday. In this and other ways he was a faithful servant of the Church. He had taken part in 24 peals for the Norwich Diocesan Association.

The funeral took place at Chediston on November 12th, the Rev. D. Twigg (Vicar) officiating. The hymn, 'For ever with the Lord,' and the 90th Psalm were sung and appropriate music played on the organ. At the graveside the handbells were rung by Messrs. F. C. Lambert, A. H. Took, W. Kemp and J. O'Neill. In the evening there was half-muffled ringing on the bells of Chediston Church by Messrs. A. Peck, F. Cady, G. Carter, R. Gardiner, A. Rogers, G. Andrews and J. Thurlow.

NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.SECRETARY'S INTERESTING REPORT.

A meeting of the North Staffordshire Association was held at Burslem on Saturday, November 7th. Thirty-four members were present from Burslem, Bucknall, Biddulph, Cheadle, Brown Edge, Draycott, Kidsgrove, Kingsley, Lawton, Longton, Norton, Newcastle, Stone, Tunstall and Uttoxeter. Service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. E. W. Hadwers).

After tea in the Schoolroom, the usual votes of thanks were accorded to the Rector and ringers for the use of the bells and the splendid welcome they extended to all present.

The company then stood in silence for a minute in memory of Mr. W. J. Woodward, who was an honorary member of the association.

The annual committee meeting took place immediately after tea. Mr. Thomas Hurd presided, supported by Mr. Andrew Thompson (hon. secretary) and Mr. Kenneth Thacker (assistant hon. secretary). Thirteen towers were represented.

The secretary, in his report, said that during the past year 12 meetings had been held. There had been an average attendance of 41 per meeting, which was an increase of six. He was also very pleased to note that four members had attended all the meetings; they were Messrs. T. Hurd, R. G. Lewis, J. E. Wheeldon and A. Thompson. One hundred and three of the members had attended at least one meeting during the year. Forty new members had been elected, consisting of two honorary, one non-resident and 37 ringing members.

CLEANER BELFRIDS.

The secretary added that he was pleased to state that the affiliated towers of North Staffordshire were kept much cleaner, and he considered them as well kept or better than those in most parts of the country.

During the year he had visited most of the towers in the district, apart from association meetings. They included Audley, Swynnerton, Silverdale, Keele, Madeley, Cheadle, Barlaston, Stone, Kidsgrove, Hanley, Stoke-on-Trent, Burslem, Alton and Rocester. One of the disappointing things was the number of peals rung for the association, which numbered only seven (two of Major, one of Triples and four of Minor). Most of all he deplored that there was not a muffled peal rung in memory of the late King George V., and only one quarter-peal was rung, which was one of Grandsire Triples at Newcastle-under-Lyme. He took the opportunity of asking all present to try to make an effort to ring a peal for the Coronation of King Edward VIII. The association had 20 affiliated towers and six unaffiliated with ringable peals. The association was represented at the Central Council meeting, held in London in June, this being only the second time it had been represented at a meeting of that body. He emphasised the appeal on behalf of the Central Council that ringers would think more about 'The Ringing World' and try to give more support to that valuable paper. Fight meeting reports have appeared in 'The Ringing World' since March.

The statement of accounts was read and accepted on the motion of Mr. J. E. Wheeldon, seconded by Mr. J. Stanaway. Among the major items of expenditure was the sum of £6 12s. 7d. paid in half rail fares to members attending meetings, and a grant of £3 3s. to Stone towards the rehanging of the bells.

The auditor's report stated that there was a gain on the year of £2 17s. 0d., which made a total balance of £18 7s. 6d., consisting of £10 4s. in the Post Office and £8 3s. 6d. in secretary's hands.

The Rev. F. D. Gardner (Rector of Bucknall) was elected clerical secretary, Mr. Andrew Thompson hon. secretary and Mr. Kenneth Thacker assistant hon. secretary. The following were also elected: Chairman of committee, Mr. Thomas Hurd; Ringing Masters, for eight-bell towers Mr. R. G. Lewis, for six-bell towers Mr. J. E. Wheeldon; Central Council representative, Mr. Kenneth Thacker; auditor, Mr. W. Wheeldon.

CHANGES IN RULES.

A new rule was brought forward for confirmation: 'That no other tower shall be officially opened on arranged meeting dates except as deemed necessary by the committee.'

It was also decided to delete Rule 14, which reads: 'The committee shall appoint instructors where necessary to those towers desiring instruction in a method of change ringing, the charge per visit being 1s. per hour from the time of leaving home until the bell-ringers close, with travelling expenses, half the total cost being paid by the tower to which the visit is paid, and half by the association.' This was brought forward by Mr. A. Thompson with the idea of helping bands who need instruction and cannot afford to pay for it.

A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. W. Wheeldon, seconded by Mr. G. H. Hall, to the chairman for his faithful work during the year. A vote of thanks to the hon. secretary and assistant secretary for their valuable work was proposed by Mr. J. E. Wheeldon, seconded by Mr. R. G. Lewis, and cordially carried.

REMARKABLE RECORD

The 'North Dorset Church Magazine' records what it rightly describes as a 'memorable meeting' at Marshull Church on October 16th. Six men gathered together, who, 40 years ago on that date, had begun what has turned out to be 40 years of united service as bellringers in this church. This is a remarkable if not a unique record of unbroken fellowship of the belfry.

COLLEGE YOUTHS' TERCENTENARY.

The coming year should create a new and conspicuous interest in the Ancient Society of College Youths. In celebrating its tercentenary it will reach an auspicious point in its long history, and it has begun the year with happy augury by the election as Master of the President of the Central Council. We are not quite sure that the College Youths themselves fully realised the significance of the occasion, or they would surely have been present in larger numbers to inaugurate this very interesting period. Members have a sense of the prestige and importance of the society, but they missed a great opportunity last week to emphasise this to those 'other pebbles on the beach' to which reference was made at the annual dinner.

The Exercise will look with eagerness to the College Youths to do something which will mark the year as a memorable one. Great occasions demand suitable gestures. We are quite sure that there will be disappointment that the tercentenary banquet will not be open to ladies—even to lady ringers. One reason is that within the borders of the City of London there is no available room which would accommodate all that might be expected to attend, if ladies were permitted to be present. It will, of course, be a memorable gathering if over four hundred male ringers assemble round the festive board, but it would be, we think, the more memorable and certainly a very happy gesture if, for this one occasion, tradition had been thrust aside and it were made possible for a mixed gathering to be held. That it is out of the question, as things stand, will be regretted by at least many provincial members of the society. The year, doubtless, will not be allowed to pass unmarked by anything except the usual dinner in November, and in any other festivities that are arranged the claims of the ladies to share with the men will, we imagine, have sympathetic consideration.

In addition to festivities, however, there ought to be some permanent commemoration of the occasion, and it seems to us there is an obvious and suitable method open to the members. Lord Brereton, the prime mover in the establishment of the society three hundred years ago, was buried in the church at his family seat in Cheshire. No memorial to him exists. What better could the College Youths do to commemorate their Tercentenary and at long last to recognise their debt to their founder than to erect a modest memorial to their first Master near to his last resting place? We commend this suggestion to the members of the society as one which would add distinction to what all ringers hope will be a memorable year.

CAMBRIDGE COURT.

In the Central Council's Collection of Plain Major Methods, there is material enough for any eight-bell band to satisfy all their ambition in plain Major ringing, and yet how seldom it is that ringers attempt any of these many interesting methods. Apart from forming easy steps to progress, they are, in themselves, worth ringing, while some of them are enough to tax the ability of average ringers.

It seems, however, that ringers have got into a certain path from which they do not care to depart in their efforts to go from the simple to the complex. The steps seem to be Bob Major, Double Norwich, Treble Bob, Superlative or Cambridge.

Now, that is all very well for those able to take long strides, and it is probably necessary at present for those who try to get practice elsewhere than in their own tower, because these methods seem to be the staple 'food' of ringers. We are certain, however, that many a ringer has got into a state of stagnation, just because he has been confronted by the rather long steps and has found them very difficult or impossible to take in his stride.

The Central Council's Collection can be a great aid to overcoming this difficulty, and we suggest that bands who are desirous of getting on should turn their attention to some of the methods published in the book, which will take them along in easy stages and help them to grasp the process as they go.

When we dealt with progressive steps in Minor, we endeavoured to take our beginners from the Plain Bob method to the Court methods, in which places made 'across the treble' are introduced, instead of or in addition to places in 2nd's and 5th's when the treble leads or is behind.

This principle is applied also to Major methods, but, there being more bells, there are more positions where these places can be made. In Minor they can only be made in 3-4; but in Major they can also be made in 5-6. The method, to be symmetrical, must have places to correspond in each half of the lead, that is to say if there are places across the treble in 3-4 when this bell is hunting up, there must be places in 3-4 when it is hunting down. Similarly places made with the treble crossing 5-6 up involves places when the treble crosses 6-5 down.

Double Court was the simple example in Minor. Let us put it beside a Major method.

24 13 56	24 13 56 78
42 31 65	42 31 65 87
24 36 15	24 36 15 78
42 63 51	42 63 51 87
46 25 31	68 47 51 23
46 51 23	68 71 45 23
64 15 32	86 17 54 32
61 45 23	81 67 45 23
15 63 42	17 85 63 42

It will be seen on examination that except for the pair of bells in 7-8 in the Major the first six rows in the Minor and Major are identical and we have separated the pairs so that this may be the easier seen. The four middle rows in the Major, of course, have no counterpart in the Minor, but the six following rows, if 4.5.6.7.8 in the Major, are substituted for 2.3.4.5.6 respectively in the Minor, will again be observed to be identical.

The eight-bell method is Cambridge Court. Like Double Court it is all single dodging on the front, except when the treble intervenes, and again like Double Court there is no dodging in 3-4. Also when treble turns you from front or behind 'places across the treble' are made in 3-4. The method differs from Double Court in that it is all double dodging behind, except when the treble intervenes.

Remains the work in 5-6. In the figures given above, it will be seen that a bell (the 5th in this lead) having previously passed the treble in 2-3, dodges in 5-6, makes 5th's, 3rd's and 5th's, and then dodges down in 6-5. That is really the only unusual piece of work in the method. There are only two other dodges in 5-6; one after you have turned the treble from behind and double dodged in 8-7 (down) and the other immediately after passing the treble in 4-5.

Cambridge Court is already being taken up in a few places; we suggest that those who want to depart from Plain Bob (Single, Reverse or Double) should study and ring it.

First draw your diagram, marking carefully where the treble crosses the line of the working bell. With this before you and a study of the construction of the figures we have given, Cambridge Court ought to be an interesting departure from the humdrum of Bob Major.

BELLS AND THE PUBLIC.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I have read with much interest your comments on the above topic, also the splendid letter written by Mr. A. J. Corrigan. You give us an excellent suggestion this week when you say, 'The operation can always be carried out in such a way that the volume of sound can be regulated to suit the occasion,' which is perfectly correct and very practical.

I feel sure that the above suggests the lines upon which measures should be taken in dealing with the matter. To spend some hundreds of pounds on restoring a peal of bells and then brick up the louvres so that the sound comes through the roof, etc., is hardly worth doing. I think that in some areas peals should very seldom, if ever, be attempted. I have been in certain houses near towers when bells have been ringing and have been astonished at the volume of sound, and can quite imagine what the effect would be in city offices and business places.

I feel certain that the public generally favour church bells, and only a small minority are dead against them, but there are many who object to long spells of ringing for, to them, no apparent reason. Saxlingham Thorpe, Norwich.

VICAR'S METHOD OF DEALING WITH COMPLAINTS.

AN ANSWER TO 'GRUMBLERS.'

The North-Western District of the Surrey Association held their last meeting of the year at All Saints', Benhlton, Sutton, on Saturday, when 29 members attended, representing the local band, Banstead, Beddington, Chelsea, Croydon (St. John's and St. Peter's), Epsom (Christ Church), Ewell, Merton and Leatherhead.

Ringling commenced at 3 p.m. and continued until 5 o'clock, when those present attended a short choral evensong conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. S. J. Clements, who also gave the address. Taking his text from Romans, xii., 13, 'Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep,' he said that the bells of our churches were the chief means of giving expression to this command, and it was for this reason the service rendered by the bellringers was so much appreciated by the great majority of the people of our land. He illustrated this by recalling the muffled peals which were rung on the occasion of the death of King George V., and also by the rejoicing, so well expressed by the bells, at the Christmas season. Then there was the forthcoming coronation of our present King, when the bellringers would again be called upon to express the national sentiment. He added, however, that he was well aware of the fact that there were in almost every parish people who complained about the sound of the bells and would like them silenced. With such people he always adopted the attitude that the bells were there first: that they were welcomed by the majority of the parishioners, who liked to hear their message of sympathy or rejoicing, as the case might be, and for that reason they could not be silenced. He invariably pointed out to these 'grumblers' that it would be as well if, before taking up residence in a parish, they had a look round to see if there was anything, such as a church with a peal of bells, a school, or a factory, in the vicinity likely to interfere with their peace of mind, and arrange for the situation of their house accordingly. 'So do not take too much notice of these disagreeable people, my brothers,' said the Vicar. 'So long as your ringing is done to the glory of God and in the service of your fellow-men, go on doing it, sure in the knowledge that your efforts are appreciated.'

Tea followed at the Angel Hotel, and after tea a short business meeting was held, presided over by the District Ringing Master, Mr. Daniel Cooper. The following were nominated as district officers for 1937: Ringing Master, Mr. D. Cooper; treasurer, Mr. H. V. Young and Mr. H. W. Simmons; secretary, Mr. F. G. Woodiss; auditor, Mr. R. A. Simmons; committee, Messrs. T. Bannister, Cyril Smith, H. W. Simmons, H. V. Young, W. E. Hewett, C. Parks and C. H. Kippin.

It was the wish of the meeting that Mr. C. Parks would accept nomination as district treasurer, but Mr. Parks explained that for business reasons it would be impossible for him to undertake the duties of either treasurer or auditor, and that he would have to resign his position as auditor at the annual district meeting. He was, however, willing to serve on the committee, and his nomination was duly made.

The District Committee were requested, at their next meeting, to go into the question of ringing for the Coronation with a view to preparing a scheme to ensure the ringing of the bells at all towers in the district, in so far as this was practicable.

The Chairman explained the arrangements which had been made for the opening of the new peal of 12 bells at Croydon Parish Church by the Archbishop of Canterbury on December 12th, and requested tower secretaries to let him have their numbers of those who intended to be present, as soon as possible, in any case not later than December 7th, so that final arrangements for accommodation could be made.

A hearty vote of thanks was proposed to the Vicar of Benhlton and to all who had contributed to the success of the meeting. The names of Mr. F. Randall and Mr. Cyril Smith were specially mentioned in connection with this vote of thanks, which was carried with acclamation.

The members returned to the tower, where ringing continued until 9 o'clock. A very good meeting then terminated.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.TOWERS TRANSFERRED TO NEWBURY DISTRICT.

Fourteen towers in the branch were represented at the annual meeting of the Newbury Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild at Newbury on November 21st. The attendance, including visitors, numbered 80.

A short service was conducted by the Rector, Canon W. L. Cooper, and an excellent address was given by the Rev. R. Howes, Vicar of Beenham.

After tea in St. Nicholas' Parish Room, the Rev. W. Kingsley Kefford presided at the business meeting, supported by Canon G. F. Coleridge, Vicar of Crowthorne (Master of the Guild), the Rev. C. E. Wigg, of High Wycombe (Deputy Master), Mr. R. T. Hibbert (general secretary), Mr. A. D. Barker (general treasurer) and Mr. H. W. Curtis (hon. secretary and treasurer of the Newbury Branch).

Mr. H. W. Curtis presented his reports for the past year. The balance sheet showed that the receipts amounted to £37 15s. 9d., of which £16 0s. 6d. were subscriptions, and the expenditure £18 17s. 2d., leaving a balance in hand of £20 18s. 7d. Five meetings had been held with an average attendance of 40, and their chairman had attended every meeting. The branch had 18 honorary members, 154 ringing members, and nine life subscribers. Mr. Curtis concluded by thanking the chairman for his help, and the clergy and foremen of towers for making the meetings so successful.

An application was received from Aldermaston and Beenham to transfer from the Bradfield Deanery Branch to Newbury, and this was granted. This makes the number of towers in the Newbury Branch twenty.

Five new members were also elected, Messrs. F. Turner, W. G. Baldwin and B. Curtis, of Newbury, and Messrs. A. Parfitt and W. Turvey, of Compton.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Chairman, the Rev. W. Kingsley Kefford; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. H. W. Curtis; general committee, Messrs. S. Quinton, F. J. Owen, T. Curtis and A. Smith.

Satisfactory reports were read from the following towers: Bucklebury, Beeton, Brightwalton, Compton, Chieveley, Hungerford, East Ilsley, Farnborough, Newbury, Peasemore, Great Shefford, Shawcum-Donnington and Thatcham.

The February meeting of the branch was fixed for Brightwalton, and the spring meeting for Aldermaston.

Visitors were present from Abingdon, Reading, Twyford, Swindon, Willesden and Wallingford, and the methods rung were Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Grandsire, Stedman and Double Norwich Caters, Bristol Surprise Major and Cambridge Surprise Royal.

LEEDS SOCIETY ENTERTAIN LADIES' GUILD.

On Saturday the Leeds and District Society held a joint meeting with the Northern Section of the Ladies' Guild at St. Chad's Church, Headingley.

Handbells were rung prior to the raising of the bells at 2.45 p.m., and tower ringing was almost continuous until the service at 4.30 p.m. By the generosity of the ladies' president (Miss Bowling), a splendid tea was enjoyed by 35 ringers. A vote of thanks was accorded to Miss Bowling on the proposition of Mr. H. Lofthouse, seconded by Mrs. E. D. Kelly.

The business meetings were held in separate rooms. We are not privileged to know the deliberations of the ladies except that two new members were elected. These were Miss Hawley, of Sherburn, and Miss Stitson, of Drighlington.

At the Leeds Society's meeting the president was chairman, and members were present from Armley, Batley, Burley, Bradford Cathedral, Calverley, Drighlington, Headingley (St. Michael's), Holbeck, Leeds Parish Church, Ripon, Rothwell, Selby, Sherburn, Shipley, Sutton and the local company.

One new member, Mr. J. A. Scholefield, of St. Chad's, was elected.

The President proposed that best thanks be accorded to the Vicar, churchwardens and the local company for the use of the bells and other arrangements.—This was seconded by Mr. W. Jackson, and Mr. F. Hutchinson replied.

The next meeting is in January, 1937, and at present the date is uncertain. Members are asked to look for the notice in the columns of 'The Ringing World.'

Members afterwards returned to the tower, where Stedman Triples, Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob Major, Double Norwich Major, Superlative and Cambridge Surprise Major were rung.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.CENTRAL BRANCH AT WILBURTON.

A good practice meeting was held at Wilburton on Saturday, November 28th. Members were present from Cambridge (the Rev. R. Copeman), Chatteris, Dersingham, Norfolk, Haddenham, Over, Sutton, Willingham, Great Staughton, Hartford and the local company. The methods ranged from Stedman Doubles to London Surprise Minor.

The Guild service was held, and afterwards tea was taken in the Royal Oak, 18 sitting down.

It was decided, if permission be granted, to hold the next meeting at Ely (St. Mary's) on January 9th.

A most enjoyable afternoon and evening was spent, the bells being lowered about 8.45 p.m.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The dedication of the new tower and bells at St. David's Cathedral, Hobart, Tasmania, is to take place on Sunday afternoon. As already reported in our columns, the ceremony is to be attended by ten Archbishops and Bishops, and the service promises to be an impressive and memorable one. There are 13 bells, including a ringing peal of eight with tenor of about 15 cwt. They were cast by Messrs. Taylor and Co. They will be the first complete new peal of bells in the Commonwealth since 1892.

Three or four privileged people last Saturday saw and handled the only three copies known to exist of the first edition of 'Tintinnalogia'—the first book on the art of change ringing—published in 1668. It was printed for Fabian Stedman.

Two of the copies, one perfect and the other slightly defective, are in possession of the Rev. W. O. Pearson, of Henley, Ipswich. The third is now owned by the president of the Central Council, and the three precious volumes were brought together in Henley Vicarage for comparison—probably the first time for centuries that three such books have been seen together. Mr. Pearson's other treasures in the shape of rare ringing books, the finest collection in existence, were also inspected with intense interest.

An extract from the 'Diss Express' of December 1st, 1876, recalls the first peal of Kent Treble Bob on the bells of Diss rung four days earlier. This peal was the first rung by William Ireland, who is still amongst us. He was one of the founders of the Norwich Diocesan Association. The paragraph of 60 years ago says: 'The ringing was marked with great precision and was heartily enjoyed by lovers of the art.'

Mr. James George was 83 last Friday. Although he is still far from well, he follows the doings of all his friends with keenest interest, and is looking forward to joining in their activities again in the not too distant future.

Mr. Frank Bennett, of Brighton, has joined the small company of ringers who have rung a peal in every county in England. He completed this achievement by ringing two peals in Lincolnshire last week.

Mr. Albert E. Edwards on Saturday rang his 150th peal as conductor. He called the same composition of Bob Major that he did in his first peal as conductor 39 years ago, and rang it at the same church, St. Mary the Virgin, Speldhurst. These 150 peals have been rung in 52 different towers in Kent, Surrey and Sussex.

Members of the Tower Grabbers' Union may note this: A well-known Cambridgeshire ringer rang at Over on Sunday and Monday, Saffron Walden on Tuesday, Longstanton on Wednesday, Cambridge R.C. on Thursday, St. Ives on Friday, Wilburton on Saturday, Hemingford Abbots on Sunday morning, St. Neots in the afternoon, and Over in the evening, during the past week.

Boxing Day will be the 35th anniversary of the record peal of 11,111 Stedman Cinques, rung at St. Martin's Church, Birmingham, and a peal in celebration is being arranged. The band will include as many as possible of the original company.

Few young ringers have scored a peal at so early an age as Vivian Williams, of Redruth, Cornwall, who last Saturday rang the treble to a peal of Grandsire Doubles at Perranzabuloe. He is not yet 11 years of age. Two of the late Mr. James Washbrook's sons, J. W. Washbrook, jun., and W. R. Washbrook, both took part in peals while only ten years of age. J. W., junior, rang a peal of Stedman Triples when he was eleven and called a peal of Grandsire soon after he was twelve.

To avoid clashing with the Middlesex Association's meeting at St. Giles-in-the-Fields, London, on Saturday, the meeting of the Northern District of the London County Association in the City (which was advertised last week) has been postponed until December 18th.

Mr. Arthur A. Saxby, of Margate, writes that he tuned in on Sunday to the only wireless station which announced 'The Bells,' and had the satisfaction of hearing one bell tolled about 20 times and that was cracked!

The service was from the North Regional and was relayed from the Moravian Church, Fairfield, Manchester.

COLLEGE YOUTHS' 300th ANNIVERSARY.

MORE ACCOMMODATION DESIRABLE.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I am sorry, and so are many other ringers, to hear that the numbers for the 300th anniversary dinner next year are to be limited, owing to the fact that there is no room available which will hold more than 420 persons.

It seems a pity that people should be 'turned away' for this reason only, because I feel sure that about 700 persons would be present if guests could be invited.

Unless there is any special reason, would it be possible to stretch a point and hold the dinner outside the actual City where there is sufficient room to hold all that would like to come?

Before anything definite is decided, I would suggest that a post-card vote of all members be taken so that the wishes of all could be obtained.

IPSWICH RECORDS. PEALS WHICH HAVE MADE RINGING HISTORY.

Central Council President Unveils Board.

A very interesting event took place in the ringing chamber at the Church of St. Mary le Tower, Ipswich, on Saturday, when a board of eight panels recording eight peals in eight different methods was unveiled by the President of the Central Council and dedicated by the Vicar in the presence of a large company of ringers.

ST. MARY-LE-TOWER CHURCH, IPSWICH.

The performances, which are now permanently recorded in the tower, are of exceptional interest. They are all peals of Maximus, but not only were they the first on bells in the eight methods, but in the case of six of them they were the first peals of Maximus ever rung in the methods.

For two generations at least St. Mary-le-Tower has possessed a band of enterprising ringers who have made a great deal of twelve-bell ringing history, and the performances of the past ten years or so, recorded on this new peal board, are evidence of the progressive spirit of the present band.

The board occupies the west side of the ringing room and is lettered in black, with red initials, on a cream ground. The records are not strictly in chronological order, the six 'first ever' being in the centre, with Forward Maximus and Duffield Maximus, the first on the bells, on either side.

The other six peals were Superlative Surprise, New Cambridge Surprise, Yorkshire Surprise, Pudsey Surprise, Little Albion Treble Bob and Rochester Surprise Maximus. A footnote also records the fact that the first peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus was rung in the tower in 1908.

The spacious ringing chamber was well filled for the ceremony of unveiling, among those present, in addition to the Rector, Mr. E. H. Lewis and Mrs. Lewis, being Mr. G. W. Fletcher (hon. secretary of the Central Council), the Rev. H. Drake (hon. secretary of the Suffolk Guild), Mr. E. P. Duffield (late Master of the College Youths and Essex Association) and Mr. J. S. Goldsmith. There were many present old in the service of St. Mary-le-Tower, but senior to them all was Mr. Robert Brundle, still active at the age of 85, and capable of taking his place not only in the service ringing, but in a peal. His name appears in seven of the peals recorded on the new board, and he forms a living link with a distant past in Ipswich ringing history. He has been a member of the St. Mary-le-Tower Society for 60 years and rang his first peal there in 1877.

Mr. C. J. Sedgley opened the formal proceedings by explaining the object of the gathering. It might be asked, he said, why have this fuss at the unveiling of a peal board? The reason was they were very proud of the peals recorded on the board, and particularly of six of them, which were the first ever rung in the respective methods. Only one of the methods had ever been practised elsewhere. The board was, therefore, unique, and that must be their apology, if any were needed, for that gathering.

Mr. Lewis then unveiled the board, and the Vicar dedicated it 'as a record of faithful work well done and an inspiration to those who come after.'

A FINE SERIES OF PERFORMANCES.

Mr. Sedgley then proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Lewis for his kindness in coming to perform the ceremony, and to the Vicar for his interest in the doings of the society. There was never an impediment placed in their way with regard to ringing, said Mr. Sedgley, and they always were treated most kindly by the Vicar.

Mr. Lewis, in expressing pleasure at being able to perform a small part in the proceedings, said he thought that a ceremony of that sort in connection with a peal board was very nice to have. It seemed to him that it showed quite definitely that change ringing had now been recognised by the Church as part of the service to the Church by the ringers. As they knew, change ringing, as an art, was in its origin entirely secular. At the time when it started, owing to Puritan influence in the Church, the proper ringing of the bells for service was entirely banned. It was only because people were fond of the bells that ringing was kept up for secular purposes. During the last 50 years there had been, as they knew, a great change in helfry matters, and change ringing was now looked upon as part of the service of the Church.

Mr. Lewis went on to refer to the fine series of twelve-bell performances recorded on the board. He had for a long time, he said, hoped that ringers on a higher number than six bells would take a leaf out of the six-bell ringers' book and get to such a state of proficiency in ringing that they could competently ring a method without previously practising it, by studying a diagram. That was done in some six-bell towers where 104 methods were rung in a year—two for the services each Sunday. To a more limited degree this was being done by a few eight-bell bands, a famous example being at Helmingham. Apparently in Ipswich they had got nearly to that ideal on twelve bells, and were such masters of their ringing that they could ring a method properly without practice merely by studying a diagram. That peal board represented the finest thing that had been done on twelve bells, and it had been done by a single band attached to one tower.

The Vicar thanked the society for their loyal and devoted work put in in that belfry. They were all very proud of the ringers whose fame had spread beyond the tower and county right through the bell-ringing world. The people of Ipswich knew how high the ringers stood in their craft. Bellringers as a whole were men and women extraordinarily devoted to their craft, and it was a very valuable piece of church work.

AN OUTSTANDING BAND OF RINGERS.

Mr. G. E. Symonds, hon. secretary of the society, welcomed the visitors. Visitors, he said, were always welcome to their tower and to ring there whenever possible. Some of the visitors had come a long distance to be with them on that occasion. He was pleased to say that Mr. Robinson, who constructed the board, and Mr. Cunningham, who wrote it, were also present to see their work unveiled. He was also very pleased that Mr. Brundle was with them. His name appeared in seven of the peals.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith acknowledged the welcome extended to the visitors. He referred to the work done for the St. Mary-le-Tower Society in the past by men like James Motts, William Catchpole and others, and said the wonderful performances by the talented band of St. Mary-le-Tower, which they now saw recorded, were put up by men who reaped the advantage of the excellent foundations laid by men of a past generation.

Mr. E. P. Duffield also replied, and, in emphasising the point made by the previous speaker, said the society would probably not have reached its present standard had it not been for the ground work

TWENTY-EIGHT MEMBERS ELECTED. CANTERBURY DISTRICT'S BIG INFLEX.

An enjoyable by-meeting of the Canterbury District of the Kent County Association was held at Herne on Saturday. Ringing on the six bells commenced at 3 o'clock. The association's form of service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. G. Daubney), assisted by the curate (the Rev. Barker), who gave the address.

In the Church Room afterwards upwards of 40 sat down to an excellent tea, provided by Messrs. Hadlow, of the Herne band.

At the short business meeting which followed, the Rev. Barker in the chair, 28 new members were elected, Faversham rejoining the association with nine members, ten being elected from Walmer, six from St. Dunstan's, Canterbury, a new tower, and three from the local tower. It was also stated that the Rev. P. A. L. Clarke, Vicar of Faversham, had rejoined as an honorary member.

Votes of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells and for conducting the service, and to the Rev. Barker for his address, were passed. In reply, the Vicar said they were always pleased to have the association at Herne. He hoped they would come again in the near future.—The Rev. Barker also replied. He hoped to become an honorary member in the near future.—Mr. W. E. Pitman was thanked for his services at the organ, and Mr. C. Hadlow and his brother, Mr. F. Hadlow, were heartily thanked for so generously entertaining the members to a most excellent tea.

A return was made to the tower, and further ringing was enjoyed until 8.30, many methods being practised, from rounds for the beginners to London for the more advanced.

LADIES' GUILD.

FIRST MEETING IN NORFOLK.

A most successful meeting of the Ladies' Guild was held at Norwich on Saturday, November 21st. Ringing commenced at St. Peter Mancroft, where various methods were rung with the help of the gentlemen present, and also rounds by 12 members of the Guild. St. Giles' and St. Michael-at-Coslany were also visited and a variety of methods rung.

A short service was held at St. Peter Mancroft, conducted by the curate. Tea followed at the Curat House, at which 42 members and friends were present.

The president of the Guild (Miss Evelyn Steel) thanked the various incumbents for the use of their bells and also the gentlemen for their interest and help. This was the first Guild meeting to be held in Norfolk, and it had proved a great success.

Four new members were elected.

In addition to the local ladies, members were present from Barnhurst, Bedford, Blankney, Burton-on-Stather, Enfield, Ipswich and Surfleet.

put by those two men and others of their day and generation. They, perhaps, in their turn would have made similar acknowledgment to the men who went before them. Ipswich had long had an outstanding band of ringers. They all knew of other companies who had attained a high standard of proficiency and to whom the Exercise had looked up, but some of those bands did not to-day exist. They had just faded out. In Ipswich, however, they had been more fortunate and at any rate for more than half a century they had had an expert band of ringers. Facilities for practice had never been lacking and the periodical ringing of peals had resulted in a high standard being maintained. The public, too, seemed to accept ringing as part of their lives. Whereas in some places there were complaints about ringing, even when it was done in moderation, it was extraordinary that in Ipswich a complaint was almost unknown. He suggested it was because ringing had become part of the life of the town. He assured the Ipswich ringers that the visitors were delighted to be with them on that most auspicious occasion.

This concluded the ceremony, and the assembly examined the new board with much interest.

Ringling took place both before and after the ceremony, touches of Cinques and courses of Royal and Maximus being rung. Among the latter was Little Albion Treble Bob and Cambridge Surprise. The bells are extremely pleasant to ring on, and for a 'mixed' peal are of fine tone and even quality. The oldest bell is the seventh, cast by Miles Graye in 1607. Some years ago it was found to be cracked in the crown and was welded with success. The eleventh is another bell by Miles Graye, cast in 1610. John Darbie cast the sixth, eighth and tenth in 1671; Christopher Hodson the fourth in 1688; Taylors the third and second in 1844 and 1845 respectively. Warner and Sons cast the treble and tenor and recast the fourth and ninth when the bells were increased to twelve in 1866. Previous to 1844 there were only eight bells, of which the present eleventh was the tenor. Two trebles were added in 1845.

On Sunday a course of Rochester Surprise Royal was rung for morning service and a course of Cambridge Surprise Maximus for evening service, besides other short touches of Superlative and Kent Surprise.

Postcard size photos of the board containing the eight peals can be obtained at 6d. each, post free, from Mr. G. E. Symonds, 28, Chevallier Street, Ipswich.

SHOULD THE LENGTH OF PEALS BE REDUCED ?

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the letter in your last issue on the above subject from Mr. Corrigan, I, for one, should like to congratulate him on his pluck in bringing this important question forward. I fully agree with what he says, as for some years I have had the same thing on my mind, but I have never even dared to dip my pen in ink to write such a letter to 'The Ringing World.'

There are one or two things I would like to add to his letter. Take a young band who are just emerging from their raw material stage, just stepping on the first rung of the ladder, desirous of making an attempt for a peal, but in great doubt as to whether they could endure the first strain of a 5,040, taking perhaps say 3 hours and 15 minutes, on a fairly heavy peal of bells. I think, if the standard could be altered on the lines that Mr. Corrigan has put forward in his letter, which would reduce the time by, say, one hour, it would be a great inspiration to young bands wishing to make their first attempt; at the same time, there would still be the next step left to go for a 5,040.

Another question arises. Where a great number of our churches years ago stood by themselves, to-day they are being hemmed in on all sides by new houses and thickly populated districts. It is places like these that we, as ringers, have got to take into consideration and go with the times. Cutting down the number of changes and time might be a way of stopping the grumbling or in some cases going without a peal at all.

I also think there is another advantage that would be derived from this cutting down and that is on our twelve-bell peals, which generally take nearly four hours, and in some cases quite that time, especially where the bells go none too well. In such cases the men at the heavy end would benefit by this change.

Of course, bringing in a rule altering the length to suit such requirements would not make the least difference to ringing 5,040's where the facilities are favourable. Points for such short peals also could be adjusted according to methods rung. I think there is much more could be said, but I am afraid I have already taken up too much space. I should, however, like to see this question thoroughly discussed at district meetings of all associations.

FALSE PEALS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—It is satisfactory to see that the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association will omit from its records the two peals mentioned in last week's issue. May I ask why the same thing was not done in regard to peal No. 1,133 Grandsire Cinques, rung at Painswick on March 28th, 1921, an objection to which was sent (in accordance with instructions in the annual report) to the Master and acknowledged by him? Its falseness was mentioned in 'The Ringing World' in the issue for January 30th, 1931.

H. DAINS' FALSE PEAL OF STEDMAN CATERS.

Dear Sir,—I regret to say that the 5,043 Stedman Caters, by H. Dains, which the Gloucester and Bristol Association have withdrawn from their records as a false composition, was published on page 216 of 'The Ringing World,' dated October 16th, 1914.

Will conductors please mark these figures 'false' in order to prevent this composition being rung again.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

NOVEMBER GATHERING AT SEALE.

The last district meeting of the year for members of the Farnham District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild was held on Saturday in the village of Seale. During the afternoon there was a small gathering, but after service several latecomers arrived to help towards the success of the meeting. Doubles and Minor were practised before service, which was conducted by Canon R. S. Arrowsmith, Rector of Seale. Mr. P. Shrimpton was at the organ, and the singing was led by the choir.

Tea was served in the Jubilee Room by Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. J. Carter, and a company of 25 enjoyed an excellent meal.

The Rector was chairman for the short business meeting which followed.

The retiring district officers were renominated for 1937, with the addition of Mr. T. Denyer, of Aldershot, as assistant secretary.

An apology for absence was received from the District Ringing Master, Mr. R. Hasted, of Farnham, on account of illness.

Votes of thanks were accorded Canon Arrowsmith, the organist and the choir, and the caterers.

Ringling continued in the evening, a variety of methods being rung. Towers represented were Aldershot, Ash, Seale, Bagshot, Bentley, Clandon, Haslemere and one unattached member.

HITCHIN.—At St. Mary's Church on Armistice Day, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: W. E. Symonds, aged 13 (first quarter-peal) 1, Rev. R. F. R. Routh 2, A. E. Symonds 3, T. R. Scott 4, C. V. Hare 5, H. Else 6, L. Fidler (conductor) 7, E. Winters 8.

THREE GENERATIONS OF COLLEGE YOUTHS.

A FAMILY OF KENT RINGERS.

Mr. T. Groombridge, jun., of Crayford; Mr. F. T. Groombridge; and Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., of Chislehurst. Proposed by his grandfather, Mr. F. T. Groombridge was elected a member of the College Youths last week. Thus the family have three generations in membership with the society.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

NORTH SHIELDS BELLS TO BE RETUNED AND REHUNG.

What may have been lacking in the quantity of ringers was more than compensated by the quality of ringing during the afternoon and evening at the meeting of the Northern District of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association at North Shields on Saturday, November 14th. In fact, not one method was repeated throughout the day. The methods rung were Plain Bob, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, Grandsire, Stedman, Double Oxford Bob, Forward, Little Bob on eight bells, and Stedman and Kent on ten bells.

Following ten in Carrick's Cafe, there was a business meeting, with Canon Milner, Vicar of North Shields, and Mr. Owbridge, vice-president, in attendance.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Benwell on January 16th, and Councillor Payne's resolution to practise a new method at each meeting was adopted. For the Benwell meeting Double Oxford Bob Minor was the method decided upon. The suggestion to hold a summer meeting at Bamburgh was referred to the next meeting.

Mr. J. Clifton proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells, and Canon Milner, responding, expressed the hope that North Shields bells would be rehung and returned in time for next year's Coronation.

Members attended from Benwell, Fenham, Gosforth, Gateshead, South Shields, Whitley Bay and the local tower.

FOG UPSETS MANCHESTER RINGING.

The collections on the last Sunday in October in the Diocese of Manchester are given to the Diocesan Fund at a special service in the Cathedral. This year the service was held on November 23rd and attended by many representatives from various parishes, while others sent apologies for non-attendance owing to the fog. The ringers would not face the fog either, but sufficient to ring the ten bells turned up from the Cathedral, Town Hall, Ashton Parish Church, Prestwich, Reddish, Didsbury and unattached members. Stedman Triples and Grandsire Caters were rung. The ringing was first arranged by the late president two years ago. When the weather is kind as many as 12 to 15 towers are represented, but this year fog upset everything.

VETERAN LINSLADE RINGER'S DEATH. LIFETIME OF SERVICE TO THE CHURCH.

By the death of Mr. William Vickers on November 18th, St. Barnabas' Church, Linslade, Bucks, has lost an old and valued servant. Only last August he completed half a century as verger, but his connection with the church had lasted for much longer than that. It can truly be said that he gave most of his lifetime of 84 years to the service of the church.

Never a change ringer, he was always ready to help the local band when short-handed by ringing the tenor behind to a touch. His son, Mr. Fred Vickers, has been foreman in St. Barnabas' tower for several years.

Mr. William Vickers had served under five priests at the church, and the esteem in which he was held was exemplified by the large congregation which assembled at the funeral on Monday, November 23rd.

In the evening, as a token of respect, a half-muffled quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,344 changes) was rung by Miss R. Prudent 1, F. Dedman 2, F. Vickers 3, H. B. Whitney 4, F. Plummer 5, W. Jeffs 6, J. E. Arnold (conductor) 7, E. Belson 8.

MEETING ARRANGEMENTS OF STOCKPORT BRANCH.

The last meeting of the year of the Stockport Branch was held at Denton on Saturday, when in spite of the fog some 40 members and friends were present. The bells were in use soon after 3 p.m. and a variety of methods rung. Service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. H. Leighton), who gave a very interesting address. The presence of several members of the choir was greatly appreciated.

After the service a short period was spent in examining the church, which has several interesting features. The ringers then made their way into what is left of the schools (the greater part of them was raised to the ground earlier in the year by a disastrous fire) to partake of tea. The usual business meeting followed, and in his opening remarks the Rector, who was chairman, referred to the presence of Mr. J. Harrison, who was celebrating his 84th birthday that day. They extended to him all the very best of good wishes.

Earlier in the afternoon Mr. Harrison took part in a touch of 108 Bob Minor, ringing the treble exceedingly well.

Reference was made to the passing of Mr. R. Ashmore, of Buxton, and Mr. Ashworth, of Bowdon, and the members stood for a few moments in silence as a tribute to their memory.

The meeting dates for 1937 were discussed and the following were arranged, subject to the approval of the authorities concerned: Annual meeting at St. Peter's, Ashton-under-Lyne, on January 30th; April 10th at Reddish; July 3rd, Poynton, or Knutsford if Poynton is not available; September 25th, Marple; November 27th, Staley St. Paul's.

It was then proposed that a note of congratulation be sent to Mr. E. H. Lewis on his appointment to the Mastership of the College Youths.

The meeting concluded with votes of thanks to the Rector for his services, the local ringers, the ladies who prepared the tea, the organist and the choir, and to anyone who had in any way helped to make the meeting so enjoyable.

A return was then made to the tower, where ringing took place until about 8.30 p.m., when all dispersed to make their way home as best they could through the all-enveloping fog.

CREWE BRANCH WELCOMED AT SANDBACH.

A very enjoyable meeting of the Crewe Branch took place at Sandbach on Saturday, November 21st, and, in spite of very foggy weather, was very well attended, 27 members being present representing nine towers. Ringing ranged from rounds to Stedman Triples.

The ringers were afterwards entertained to tea by the Ven. Archdeacon J. H. Armitstead, Rector of Sandbach, who after tea made a delightful speech, in which he welcomed the ringers to Sandbach, and expressed the wish that his tower should always be included in the yearly list of meeting places.

The secretary of the branch (Mr. R. D. Langford) proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Ven. Archdeacon for the splendid tea and also for the use of the bells. He also made reference to the absence of the leader of the Sandbach ringers, Mr. Charles Mason, who has been ill for some considerable time, and is at present in the Oswestry Orthopaedic Hospital undergoing treatment. It is hoped he will make good progress and soon be home and amongst the ringers once more.

Mr. A. Crawley proposed that the secretary send a letter to Mr. Mason, expressing to him the best wishes of the Crewe Branch for his speedy recovery.

Afterwards the ringers adjourned to the heltry, and several touches, ranging from Grandsire Triples to Cambridge Major, were much enjoyed under the guidance of the Ringing Master, Mr. G. Biddulph, of Lawton.

SUDBURY, SUFFOLK.—On November 1st, for evening service, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples: *W. Scott 1, S. Gridler 2, H. Herbert 3, W. Lee 4, L. Johnson 5, *A. Pith 6, D. Elliott (conductor) 7, T. Chimery 8. * First quarter-peal of Triples.

HALBERTON BELLS REHUNG.A HEAVIER TENOR.

On Saturday, November 21st, the peal of six bells at Halberton Parish Church, Devon, was dedicated by the Bishop of Crediton. The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. D. S. Evans), and the other clergy present included the Revs. H. G. Chalk (Uffculme), R. Carter, R.D. (Witleigh), L. G. Ketchley, R.D. (Hemyock), L. G. Chamberlain, M.C. (Bickleigh), W. Andrews (Willand) and R. F. Bastow (Chawleigh). Every seat in the church was filled. The lessons were read by the Revs. H. G. Chalk and L. G. Ketchley, the latter also acting as Bishop's chaplain.

The Bishop was conducted to the base of the belfry, at the west side of the church, by the churchwardens, Mr. J. W. Clarke and Mr. T. A. Chave, and, after the service of blessing, the bells were chimed by Mr. W. Vinnicombe, a member of the local band.

In an address on 'the mission of the bells,' the Bishop pointed out that bells were used in times of joy and sorrow, but he emphasised the fact that they were primarily a call to worship.

After the service the bells were kept ringing until nearly 9.30 p.m., the ringers taking part being from Halberton, Chawleigh, Lapford, Talaton, Friendship, Rackenford, Cruwys Morchard, Hemyock, Ashbrittle, Burlescombe, Plymtree, Kentisbeare, Cadeleigh, Down St. Mary, Monkton, Bickleigh, Gullompton, Calverleigh, Bampton, Uffculme, Sampford Peverell and Uplowman. There were also representatives from St. Thomas', Exeter, and Dunsford.

The large attendance of representatives from other towers was a source of great satisfaction to Mr. C. Smith, the enthusiastic captain of the Halberton ringers.

The bells have been rehung with ball bearings, and the tenor recast and increased in weight to 17 cwt. 3 qr. 6 lb. by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon. The peal is now in first-class order, reflecting the greatest credit on the bellfounders.

BELL LECTURE

Mr. Albert Walker, of Birmingham, gave a lantern lecture on 'Bells and Belfries' to the Shirley Fellowship at the Church Hall, Shirley, on Saturday evening, to an appreciative audience. Messrs. F. E. Haynes, P. Price, M. J. Morris, G. F. Swann and G. E. Fearn assisted with handbell illustrations. Afterwards Mrs. Walker was presented with two beautiful bouquets of chrysanthemums.

A CENTENARY CELEBRATION

On Saturday, at the Church of St. Helen, Berrick Salome, Exon, to commemorate the centenary of the first recorded touch on the six bells (120 Doubles, rung on November 28th, 1836, and recorded on a tablet in the tower), 720 Bob Minor was rung by: C. E. Wigg 1, J. W. Wilkins 2, R. Blaby 3, W. G. Collett 4, M. R. Cross (conductor) 5, O. G. Barnard 6.

NEW LIGHT ON 'TINTINNALOGIA.'

The article which we publish elsewhere from the pen of Mr. J. Armiger Trollope, on the subject of the first of all ringing books, 'Tintinnalogia,' will be a source of surprise to many of our readers even if it does not come as something of a shock. Hitherto it has been generally assumed that this famous work, the earliest text-book on the art of ringing, was written by Fabian Stedman, for whom it was printed in 1668 'by W. G.' Mr. Trollope has discovered very substantial evidence that Stedman was not the author of the book, but that it was written by one Richard Duckworth, an Oxford man, who became incumbent of Hartest in Suffolk at the time Stedman was active in the not distant town of Cambridge.

The principal evidence is found in a seventeenth century volume dealing with Oxford men, 'Athenæ Oxonienses,' in which Duckworth is mentioned as having written 'Tintinnalogia,' and, what is more, the book is described very much in the terms of its original title page. There is further evidence in the diary of Thomas Hearne, an Oxford worthy to whom we owe quite a considerable amount of our knowledge of ringing in Oxford two centuries ago. These two assertions in themselves throw substantial doubt upon the assumption that Stedman was the writer of 'Tintinnalogia,' and with that doubt in mind, other things about the volume take on a greater importance. For instance, there is little question that Stedman wrote 'Campanalogia,' published in 1677, but, as Mr. Trollope points out, there is a marked difference in the literary style of the two volumes. The difference is such that they may well have been written by different people. Then, too, the books have different titles, and in 'Tintinnalogia' there is a preface, not over Stedman's name, but over a nom-de-plume, and the reason for this nom-de-plume has more than once been a matter of speculation. May not this discovery by Mr. Trollope provide the explanation?

The facts which Mr. Trollope has brought to light do not seriously affect Stedman's place in early ringing history; it robs him of one of our cherished notions concerning his activities in promoting the art, but he is still the man to whom we owe publication of the book. And, after all, it is as well to get an accurate knowledge of these things. The Exercise owes a very considerable debt to Mr. Trollope for the painstaking research which he is making into history for the benefit of this and future generations. The care with which he carries out his investigations have been revealed in many articles which he has published in our columns, and the Exercise will have further evidence

A DATE TOUCH.

At St. Dunstan's Church, Mayfield, Sussex, on November 27th, a date touch of Bob Major (1,936 changes): A. R. Miles 1, Wilfred Booth 2, George Dann 3, A. Lewry (conductor) 4, C. Steele 5, F. Hammond 6, C. Brasier 7, W. A. Kitchenside 8.

FOR BEGINNERS.

GRANDSIRE DOUBLES IN ANOTHER WAY.

We frequently read, in the reports of peals of Grandsire Doubles, of 'ten different callings' being used. When that appears we all know what it means, but actually, while the 'six-score' is arranged in ten different ways, there are only two callings. One is a 120 with two bobs and a single, alternating with plain leads, and repeated, the second half being called exactly as the first. This calling can be applied by beginning with either of the calls or a plain lead:—

	a.	b.	c.	d.	e.	f.
Lead No. 1.	P.	B.	P.	B.	P.	S.
2.	B.	P.	B.	P.	S.	P.
3.	P.	B.	P.	S.	P.	B.
4.	B.	P.	S.	P.	B.	P.
5.	P.	S.	P.	B.	P.	B.
6.	S.	P.	B.	P.	B.	P.

P. stands for a Plain Lead, B. for a Bob Lead, S. for a Single Lead. Read downward, each of these is half a six-score, and the 120 can only be completed by calling the second half exactly like the first. To the young conductor these may appear to be six different callings; in reality they are one and the same, begun at six different starting points. In the calling where a plain lead comes first the 5th is the observation bell; in those with a call at the first lead the 3rd is the observation bell.

The second composition of Grandsire Doubles is in three parts, instead of two, and has a single at alternate leads, with a bob between them and a plain lead at the other of the four lead ends. This calling, too, can be begun at any point in the cycle, and the 120 is completed by two repetitions of the same calling as used in the first part:—

	g.	h.	i.	j.
Lead No. 1.	P.	S.	B.	S.
2.	S.	B.	S.	P.
3.	B.	S.	P.	S.
4.	S.	P.	S.	B.

From the ringer's point of view, the limit of variety is monotonous; and there is very little more in it for the conductor. If he wants to call the two compositions in all their transpositions the sole tax on his memory lies in recollecting which 120's he has called.

It is this kind of monotony which makes the continual ringing of Grandsire Doubles a deadly dull affair. Anything which will add even a little variety must be welcome, and that is why one or two conductors depart from the orthodox and call what one may term conglomerate compositions. Some of these run to 240 changes, in the course of which each change occurs twice.

We hear little, however, of another form of ringing six-scores of Grandsire which can give the ringers as well as the conductor some small amount of change. There is an alternative single in Grandsire—one which, we believe, is looked upon as theoretically correct, but seldom practised, because the common form has come down to us through the ages.

The ordinary Grandsire single affects the path of all the four working bells; the alternative single, made at the back instead of the front, actually diverts only two bells, and only one does anything different to a plain or bob lead. This is how it looks in figures compared with the ordinary single, which is regarded in the best circles as very inelegant:—

Ordinary.	Alternative.

It will be seen that in the second form a bell, passing treble in 2-3, makes 3rd's and goes into the hunt as at a bob. The bell, passing treble in 1-2, is unaffected and makes 3rd's. The bell passing the treble in 3-4 lies behind and has a single dodge in 5-4 (down), exactly as in a plain lead. The only one which makes a new departure is the bell coming out of the hunt. This, after lying its whole pull behind, has a whole pull in 4th's place (back and hand) and then a single dodge in 4-5 (up).

A different kind of calling is also available, and it has six transpositions. It has three bobs, occurring at alternate leads, a single and two plain leads in each half. If a bob is called at the first lead, the 3rd is the observation bell; if no bob is called at the first lead the 5th is the observation bell.

Lead No. 1.	B.	P.	B.	P.	B.	S.
2.	P.	B.	P.	B.	S.	B.
3.	B.	P.	B.	S.	B.	P.
4.	P.	B.	S.	B.	P.	B.
5.	B.	S.	B.	P.	B.	P.
6.	S.	B.	P.	B.	P.	B.

Each has to be repeated to complete the 120.

THE RECTOR AND THE GRAVE DIGGER. A LESSON FOR RINGERS.

A meeting of the Southern District of the Surrey Association was held on Saturday, November 28th, at Horley. Although only 18 sat down to tea, more ringers turned up afterwards and good practice was put in for the 'lesser fry' before tea. The 'greater fry' had their turn afterwards. All the standard methods were rung. If Horley trebles proved somewhat 'flighty' to handle, this was more than compensated for by some delightful reminiscences by that dear old Horley character, Mr. George Illman, who delighted the company so much that some of them could not eat their tea for laughing.

Members attended from Redhill, Reigate, Burstow, Lingfield, Merstham, the local band, and visitors from Crawley, Balcombe, Worth (Sussex) and Egerton (Kent).

The Rev. W. C. Reeder gave us a very warm welcome to Horley, and in an unusual and interesting address stressed the importance of paying (not necessarily in money) for what they had the privilege of doing (such as bell ringing). In one place at which he was incumbent, he said, no one could be found who would dig the graves, owing to some superstition. Once after a terrific effort he did get a man to dig a grave, and the man did what a good many more people do, put up the price. In consequence the people who were burying their relative complained about the charge. He (the Rector) replied, 'Would you be willing to dig the grave?' They said, 'Certainly not, we are too respectable.' He then told them, if they were too respectable to dig a grave, they must pay the man his price for digging it for them. They must pay for their respectability. Ringers, added the Rector, should learn from this and not be 'too respectable' to come and practise and help to train younger people in the art.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

NORTHERN DIVISION ANNUAL MEETING.

Sixteen towers were represented at the annual meeting of the Northern Division of the Essex Association at Braintree on Saturday, November 28th. The ringers came from Chelmsford, Braintree, Greenstead Green, Earls Colne, Great Fey, Kelvedon, Sible Hedingham, Witham, Great Bardfield, Halstead, Dunmow, Great Bentley, Maldon, Bocking, Feering and Black Notley.

A service was held in the Parish Church, the address being given by the Vicar (the Rev. R. S. Eddleston), who gave the ringers a warm welcome. The lesson was read by the district secretary (Mr. F. Ridgwell).

The collection for the Bell Restoration Fund was 13s. 10d.

Forty-three sat down to tea at the Co-operative Hall, including the general secretary (Mr. L. J. Clark), Mr. Daw (Vicar's warden) and Mr. Crozier (church clerk). At the business meeting which followed, the district secretary read a short report of the work in the division during the year. This showed that eight ringing members had been elected and 24 peals had been rung on tower bells. It was gratifying to note that eight members had rung their first peal in the method, five of whom rang their first peal of London Surprise Major. Five meetings had been held with an average attendance of 36.

Mr. A. Saunders was re-elected District Master. The district secretary (Mr. F. Ridgwell) was also unanimously re-elected. In reply, Mr. Ridgwell thanked all those who had attended the meetings during the year and especially the correspondent of each company who helped so much by collecting subscriptions for him. Last, but not least, Mr. L. W. Wiffen, who had done so much by helping others in the art of change ringing. 'I can say,' added Mr. Ridgwell, 'without fear of contradiction, that at the present time, as far as peals are concerned, Mr. Wiffen is the backbone of the Northern Division' (applause).

Mr. H. Hammond also thanked the brothers Wiffen for their great help and influence in change ringing.

Nine new members were elected, and it was agreed to hold the next meeting at Sible Hedingham in February.

The general secretary apologised for the absence of the Master (Dr. Spencer Phillips), who was attending a meeting at Leytonstone.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Vicar for the use of the bells and his address, also to the organist for his services.

Mr. Daw apologised for the Vicar's absence and on his behalf gave the ringers a great welcome and said how much he appreciated their services as ringers.

Bocking bells were also available during the evening, which greatly added to the pleasure of the meeting, and various methods up to London Surprise Major were rung.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

A large gathering of ringers is expected at Croydon on Saturday, when the new ring of twelve bells at the Parish Church of St. John the Baptist is to be dedicated by the Archbishop of Canterbury at 3 p.m. The bells, which replace an old eight, have been cast by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, and the tenor is about 36 cwt.

Visiting ringers, who sent in their names by last Monday, are being entertained to tea by the Bishop of Croydon and the churchwardens. It should be noted that tea will be served in the Welcome Hall, Scarsbrook Road, instead of in the Old Palace Banqueting Hall. After the evening ringing there is to be a 'social' at the Drill Hall, Union Road—opposite Messrs. Gillett and Johnston's foundry.

The contract to recast and rehang in a new frame the ring of ten at Birmingham Cathedral has been placed with Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

An unusual performance at Honiton Glast, Devon, is recorded in our peal columns. A peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung with 1-2-8 covering. We do not remember having heard of a peal being rung like this before, but it is, of course, just as legitimate a performance as with 4-6-8 or 6-7-8 used as covering bells. Only one of the band had previously rung a peal.

The name of the ringer of the tenor in the peal of Stedman Triples at Earls Barton on November 19th was H. Pettit, not Petter as printed.

Mr. F. E. Pitman, of Bromley, is now convalescent after his recent operation. Last Sunday he was very warmly welcomed by his colleagues of SS. Peter and Paul's Church on his return to service ringing.

Mr. C. Savage, who rang his first quarter-peal of Stedman Triples last week at Eastbourne, is a nephew of Mr. A. A. Savage, hon. secretary of the St. Paul's Cathedral Society, Melbourne, Australia.

Will the gentleman who accidentally took away someone else's property during the meeting at Tring on Saturday please return the same immediately to Mr. W. Ayre, Old School House, Leverstock Green, Hemel Hempstead.

The names of the two new members elected by the Ladies' Guild at their meeting at Headingley St. Chad's were Mrs. Bradley and Miss Hawley, of Sherburn, and not Miss Stitson and Miss Hawley as reported.

THE RIGHT TO QUESTION THE METHODS COMMITTEE.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Perhaps Mr. George Baker ought to have the right to put questions to the Methods Committee and to expect an answer, but in actual fact he has not.

The Methods Committee are appointed by the Central Council to consider and report on matters referred to them by the Council, and the Council alone has the right to which Mr. Baker thinks he is entitled.

If Mr. Baker desires 'a courteous answer' to a question he should ask the Council to deal with it, or, alternatively and with your permission, ask in your columns for an answer from anybody able to give it.

Incidentally, I don't think the Methods Committee—as a committee—are entitled to give the Exercise 'mathematical proofs' of anything, except through a report to the Council.

WARKTON TOWER LEADER'S DEATH.

RESULT OF A CYCLE ACCIDENT.

It is with great regret that we record the death of Mr. Horace Patrick, who died at his home rather suddenly on November 27th at the age of 56. He had been tower leader at Warkton Church for a number of years, and was people's warden. He was a member of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild and formerly of the old Central Northants Association.

Although Mr. Patrick only rang Grandsire, he was a good striker and took part in several peals with the local company. About a year ago he underwent a serious operation at Middlesex Hospital, but recovered and was able to return to his employment. About a month ago, however, he was involved in a collision with another cyclist, and, although the results at the time did not appear to be serious, on Sunday, November 22nd, as he was leaving home to ring for service, he collapsed and remained unconscious until he died, death being due to delayed hæmorrhage caused through the accident.

The bells of Warkton Church were rung fully muffled on the following Sunday. A large number of sympathisers assembled at the funeral at St. Edmund's, Warkton, conducted by the Rector, the Rev. J. H. B. Hamond. As the cortege approached the church the bells were clung. The local ringers were represented by Messrs. B. P. Morris, A. Toseland, H. O. Mutton and Mr. E. Reid from Weekley tower.

During the evening half-muffled touches were rung, concluding with 'the whole pull and stand' 56 times by Messrs. B. P. Morris, H. T. Eastbrook, Miss D. J. Moir, L. Toseland and A. Toseland. Others taking part were Messrs. R. W. Lawrence and E. Reid. Among the floral tributes was a wreath from the local company. Mr. Patrick leaves a widow and a brother to mourn their loss and to them much sympathy is extended.

THE 'TINTINNALOGIA.'

DOUBTS ON STEDMAN'S AUTHORSHIP.

By J. A. TROLLOPE.

The 'Tintinnalogia' is the oldest and, in many ways, one of the best books on change ringing. It is always thought to have been the work of Fabian Stedman, but in the 'Athenæ Oxonienses,' written by Anthony à Wood, towards the end of the seventeenth century, there is a short account of a certain Richard Duckworth which ends with the statement that 'he hath written Tintinnalogia or the Art of Ringing, etc., London, 1671. Instructions for hanging of Bells with all Things belonging thereunto.'

Wood was a contemporary of Stedman and Duckworth, and is the recognised authority on the Oxford men of the time. In his young days he had been a ringer, and all through his life he was keenly interested in bells and ringing. With increasing years he became rather morose in temper, and pretended to be very deaf, but, said a man who knew him, he could hear well enough when bells were ringing and could often be seen walking about listening to them, 'which he mightily delighted in.'

Thomas Hearne, the Oxford Diarist, who has left us certain records of ringing in his day, belonged to the next generation. His biographer says that he was 'passionately fond of bellringing, although I do not find that he practised it himself.' Hearne repeated the statement that Duckworth had written the 'Tintinnalogia,' and evidently took some trouble to find out about him. He says in his diary, under the date January 27th, 1726, that he talked with a Mr. Whiteside who had known Duckworth, and that the latter was a very great ringer and had very great skill in it.

It seemed to me, therefore, worth a little trouble to see if anything could be found out about Richard Duckworth. He was born some time about 1630, in Lancashire, according to Whiteside, or in Leicestershire according to Wood. He was an undergraduate at New Hall Inn in 1647, and was one of those who made submission to the visitors appointed by the Long Parliament during the changes following the execution of King Charles I., and by them was made a Fellow of Brasenose College.

According to 'Alumni Oxonienses' he matriculated at University College in 1648, but men in those days frequently changed their colleges. He graduated B.A. in 1651, and proceeded M.A. in 1653. He took orders and was Rector of Hartest-with-Boxted, Suffolk, in 1660; of Tolland in Somerset in 1671; and of Steeple Aston in 1679.

Hearne says that 'he made the latter place much better than it had been by recovering and settling many tithes that were refused, in order to which he went to law with the Parishioners and overthrew them, after which he left the place and became Vice-Principal of Alban Hall under old Dr. Bouchier, but what he did there I know not. This is certain that he had been a schoolmaster also at Steple Aston, and was severe to his scholars, some of which were boys of good birth.'

The only other information about him that I have been able to trace is that he was one of the half-dozen clergymen in Oxfordshire who consented to read James II.'s 'Declaration of Indulgence,' which led to the famous trial of the seven bishops; that when the Prince of Orange (afterwards William III.) came to Oxford and visited the colleges, he was the man who 'speecht it' at St. Alban's Hall; and that one night someone left a baby in the quadrangle at Brasenose, 'and the child cried and Mr. Duckworth went to the buttery to fetch a candle to see for it.' He lived to a great age.

We know from the title page of the 'Tintinnalogia' that it was printed in 1668 by W. G. for Fabian Stedman; and we know that on February 8th in the previous year it had been entered at Stationers' Hall by Fabyan Stedman; we know, too, that in 1668 he was writing to the ringers at Leicester to introduce the book. That means that he owned the copyright and was responsible for the publication, but it does not mean that he was the author.

The 'Campanalogia' of 1702, which was written by Doleman and one of his companions, is said on the title page to have been printed for George Sawbridge. But what connection there was between Stedman and Duckworth I have not been able to trace. The first was a Cambridge man, the other an Oxford man, and I do not find Duckworth's name among the members of either the Scholars of Cheapside or the College Youths, to both of which societies Stedman belonged. But when the book was published Duckworth was Rector of Hartest in Suffolk, which is no great way from Cambridge. He may often have visited the town and, being a keen ringer, would quite naturally go to the belfry and may have entrusted Stedman with the task of seeing the book through the Press.

We must remember, too, that there is no tradition of the Exercise to help us in the matter. There is a tradition, and I think a sound one, that Stedman wrote the 'Campanalogia' of 1677, and that suggests a comparison between the two books. Now, I have always thought, and have said more than once, that there is a great difference between them. As a text-book the later work is far in advance of the earlier; there is almost as much difference as there is between the 'Campanalogia' of 1702 and the 'Clavis' of 1788. But I have always felt that the 'Tintinnalogia' is much the better written book; indeed, in that respect, it stands in advance of any book on ringing which has appeared until modern times, and I am not sure that I should make even that reservation.

The author, whoever he was, was a scholarly man who could read Latin and could write excellent English, clear and straightforward, always using the right word and never a word too many. If anyone doubts this let him compare the 'Tintinnalogia' with the paraphrase of it which appears in White's 'Rich Cabinet.'

It is very noticeable, too, that the method of explaining ringing in the 'Campanalogia' is quite different from that in the 'Tintinnalogia.' I use to think that Stedman deliberately altered his style because his subject matter had grown so much, and I am far from saying that the later book is not excellently well written. It certainly is.

It will be noticed that Wood gives the date of the 'Tintinnalogia' as 1671. That refers to the second edition, of which no copy is now known to be extant. Fifty years ago Ellacombe possessed one, which was given him by Lady Tite, but what has become of it no one seems to know. The loss is not so great as it might have been since, except for the title page, it was an exact reprint of the first edition. Of that there seem now to be three copies, all of them in good hands. BROADCASTING OF BELLS FOR CHURCH SERVICES.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Like Mr. Arthur A. Saxby, I tuned in to the North Regional station on a recent Sunday and heard one cracked bell tolled about 20 times. This was, however, much more pleasant to hear than the so-called ringing from the same station on the previous Sunday, much of which kind of ringing would bring the Exercise into grave disrepute.

C. T. COLES.

THE VILLAGE HANDICAP.

A MENACE TO THE FUTURE OF RINGING.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I heartily endorse Canon Coleridge's remarks made at the dinner for the Ancient Society of College Youths, when he spoke of a 'right grounding and right foundation' ('The Ringing World,' November 20th).

May I say how much I appreciate those remarks? I live in a district in which change ringing is comparatively dead. We started in my village as a keen, unorganised band of 'chimers,' chiming regularly for services every Sunday. Then one day I discovered that chiming was not the only use for bells—that they could be 'rung up.' I, therefore, agitated at the following church annual vestry for someone to teach us bell management.

The sexton, a ringer of many years' experience, reluctantly undertook to do this. Quite soon we could manage our bells with some degree of confidence and took to ringing rounds and 'set changes.'

By this time we had been ringing, including the chiming period, for two years, so we organised ourselves and set about the task of 'tackling' change ringing.

Then, quite by chance, an old copy of Jasper Snowdon's 'Rope-sight' came into our hands. My friend and I read it with avidity, and, surprised that the subject could be so clearly expounded and logically taught, determined that the method there outlined should be our method.

The sexton now very seldom attended our practices, as he was too busy with other tasks, so that, at his suggestion, my friend and I, as captain and secretary respectively, kept things going. We introduced Snowdon's method of teaching for a band of beginners and slowly began to make progress.

Then, about the middle of the season, the sexton came back. Imagine our surprise when he openly ridiculed our method, said bells were no use, handbells would get us nowhere; the only way to learn was on the big bells. Resultant from this, confusion reigned in the minds of the more backward members, and we were forced to return to rounds and set changes again.

At the beginning of this season I tried again to introduce Snowdon's teaching, an open breach with the sexton resulting. As this was a very unsatisfactory state of affairs for a church institution, and I refused to work on anything but a 'right foundation and a right grounding,' I resigned and with two others left the team.

I now attend another tower every Sunday, go to all the local association meetings and keep up my theory work, by which means I am able to keep myself in practice. By 'getting about' a lot I find that although our tower was a particularly bad case, the same thing is happening elsewhere, especially in village towers. The backward, 'pull-you-through' and confusing methods of a few old ringers is driving and keeping young men away from ringing.

Surely it is about time that local associations, indeed the ringing fraternity in general, looked seriously on this menace to the future of ringing, especially, as I say, in the villages, where often it is hard to get any ringers at all.

I write this article in due respect to the older ringers, many of whom are very worthy and helpful.

Too often a new band is brought along on a rotten, out-of-date foundation, with the result that otherwise promising ringers become bad strikers and the good name of ringing suffers in consequence.

Sir, I invite the opinion of 'The Ringing World' on this problem, and give my sincere opinion that in many cases the beginner is not backward but that the older men are confusing him, and that where such is the case the older men would best serve the cause of ringing by either leaving the beginner alone or 'getting out.'

the Exercise good service when in 1895 he published a reprint of this.

I feel a certain amount of regret, which others will share, for anything which may seem to rob Fabian Stedman of any of his laurels, but we are beginning to realise that the art of change ringing was not, as some suppose, the creation of one man, and that there were many talented persons 'who laid the foundations of the art.'

QUAINT INSCRIPTIONS ON NEW ALRESFORD BELLS.

A HAMPSHIRE PEAL RESTORED.

The recently-restored ring of eight at New Alresford, Hants, was fully utilised on Saturday, November 28th, at a well-attended and successful district meeting of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild. From 2 to 7.30 p.m., except during service and the tea interval, the assembled members, upwards of 40 in number, kept the bells going in methods from Grandsire Doubles to Cambridge Surprise Major, while for the benefit of some learners in the gathering there were also a few 'touches of rounds.'

The towers represented were North Stoneham, Fareham, Bishop's Sutton, Old and New Alresford, Winchester, Titchborne, Twyford, Bramley, Altan, Upham, Wonston, Swanmore, King's Worthy, Sober-ton and Wickham.

At the Guild service the Rector (the Rev. Canon Robinson) gave a brief address of welcome to the Guild members, and, after referring to the part that the diocese had taken in helping to clear the debt on the bells before they were opened, he dwelt on the necessity for that teamwork in all things, of which change ringing provided so conspicuous an example.

Tea was served at the Bell Hotel, by invitation of the bellfounders, and it was presided over by the district chairman, the Rev. N. C. Woods, supported by the Rector and his churchwarden, and by the Ven. Archdeacon of Winchester, who, in a felicitous speech by the chairman, was introduced to the gathering 'not as a dignitary of the Church, but as a friend of the Guild.'

The bells of Old Alresford (6) and Bishop's Sutton (5) were also available for ringing after tea, and were kept going by members of the Guild.

A FINE TUNING JOB.

The work at New Alresford included the recasting of the treble, the retuning of the remainder, and rehanging the eight in a new iron frame with new fittings throughout. It was carried out by Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. The tuning especially is admirable, while the stanchness of the frame makes the going as delightful to the practised hand as the tone is to the ear. The effect of the ring in action has been skilfully enhanced by some cunning adjustments of the louvres, which greatly reduce the sound of the bells in the close vicinity.

A thanksgiving service was held on Sunday, October 25th, on the completion of the work. The Bishop of Winchester preached an appropriate sermon, and an appeal was made for the last £10 required to clear the debt on the bells and repairs to the tower which had been necessary.

It was announced later that the collection and late donations had resulted in the amount required being raised—a total of about £538. This is a remarkable effort for so small a place as New Alresford to carry through in a little under two years.

Representatives of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild from five different towers were present, and touches of Grandsire Triples were rung before and after service.

The bells were originally six in number, recast and augmented to eight in 1811 by Mears, of Whitechapel. They were rehung and quarter-turned in 1897 by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank.

The inscriptions on the bells are interesting:—

Treble:—
In sweetest sounds let each its note reveal,
Mine shall be first to lead the dulcet peal.

Second:—
The public raised us with a liberal hand,
We come with harmony to cheer the land.

Third:—
When female virtue weds with manly worth,
We catch the rapture and we spread it forth.

Fourth:—
Does battle rage, do sanguine hosts contend,
We hail the victor, if he's Britain's friend.

Fifth:—
May he who England's matchless sceptre sways,
Her sacred honour guard, her glory raise.

Sixth:—
May Britons still their ancient freedom boast,
And flattering commerce bless their happy coast.

Seventh:—
(No inscription.)

Tenor:—
May all who I shall summon to the grave,
The blessing of a well spent life receive.
William Keene, James Redman, Churchwardens.
T. Mears, of London, fecit 1811.

RINGER AND CHORISTER FOR 50 YEARS.

At Zeals, Wilts, on Monday, November 30th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung half-muffled as a tribute of respect to George Parsons, who passed away on the previous Thursday. Mr. Parsons was a ringer and chorister for 50 years.

The quarter-peal was rung by T. Penny 1, F. Ball 2, E. Coward (conductor) 3, C. Bunce 4, L. Perrett 5, C. Deverill 6.

LINCOLNSHIRE RINGERS' NEW RECORD.

SEVENTY MINOR METHODS IN A PEAL.

Undaunted by the fact that their friendly rivals in Cheshire had raised the Minor record by seven methods over their previous best, the young Lincolnshire band have regained the laurels by a peal in 70 methods rung in their own tower at Algarth last Saturday.

We have given up being amazed at these extraordinary performances. Prior to Saturday the Cheshire band had rung a peal in 68 Treble Bob methods; the Lincolnshire band has beaten that by two. Their peal included an entirely new extent in eight Alliance methods, and a Little method, none of which had been rung in a peal before. This was the first 720 of the peal, which also included Plain, Treble Bob, Delight and Surprise methods.

The first spliced peal of Minor was conducted by the late Rev. H. Law James in 14 methods in 1911. This form of ringing, however, was not seriously taken up until after the war, for at first it was regarded somewhat as a freak, but the rapid advance made in the last two years can be seen from the following:—

A band of Scottish ringers had a piece of real hard luck on Saturday. Members of the St. Mary's Cathedral, Glasgow, company visited St. John's, Alloa, to attempt a peal of Stedman Triples, and, after ringing into the 18th part of Heywood's Transposition in 2 hours 25 minutes, the electric wires fused and left the ringing room in complete darkness.

The ringing was praiseworthy and would have been the first peal of Stedman by all except the conductor, and the first of Stedman in Scotland by a local service ringing band: R. O. Street 1, H. Sargent 2, R. J. G. Thom 3, N. Leiper 4, T. Winderam 5, E. A. Stafford 6, W. H. Pickett (conductor) 7, S. Lewis 8.

SUDDEN DEATH OF BENHILTON'S VICAR.

INCUMBENT WHO ALWAYS 'BACKED UP' HIS RINGERS.

The ringers and parishioners of All Saints', Benilton, Sutton, have suffered a great loss by the death of the Vicar, the Rev. S. J. Clements, who died suddenly in church on Sunday morning. He was reading the lesson when he collapsed.

It was only a week ago last Saturday that he conducted the service at All Saints' on the occasion of the Surrey Association's meeting there, and part of his encouraging address was reported in 'The Ringing World' last Friday. He had spoken of his frank methods of dealing with those who complained about the ringing of church bells and concluded: 'So do not take too much notice of these disagreeable people, my brothers. As long as your ringing is done to the glory of God and in the service of your fellow-men, go on doing it, sure in the knowledge that your efforts are appreciated.'

The late Vicar was very appreciative of all the local ringers did. He never attempted to interfere with them, but always backed them up. Before evensong on Sunday a half-muffled quarter-peal of Grandshire Triples was rung by R. Foreman 1, G. Rayner 2, F. Randall 3, H. Good 4, G. Chiverton 5, E. Eaticnap 6, W. Cyril Smith (conductor) 7, C. Vallis (first quarter-peal) 8.

PROPOSED ATTEMPT FOR TWENTY-FIVE 720's.

On Boxing Day, December 26th, members of the Yorkshire Association hope to attempt a record peal of Treble Bob Minor of 18,000 changes (twenty-five 720's in 25 different methods) at Felkirk, near Barnsley, commencing at 8.30 a.m.

The existing record has stood since 1816, when twenty-one 720's (15,120 changes) were rung in a peal at Wath, Yorkshire.

LEICESTER DISTRICT MEETING AT SWITHLAND.

The Leicester District's last meeting of the year was held at Swithland on Saturday, November 21st. The bells, a ring of six, were set going at 2.45 to rounds, Grandshire, Plain Bob and other methods. The Rector, the Ven. Archdeacon McKay, conducted the association service and gave the ringers a hearty welcome to Swithland. He delivered a most interesting address.

Tea was served in the hall, a company of about 20 sitting down. The chairman, Mr. J. Harris, welcomed the presence of the Rector.

After tea the chairman spoke of the loss the Anstey ringers had just sustained by the death of Mr. Alfred Cufflin. Mr. Cufflin had been towerkeeper at St. Mary's Church for about 33 years.

The chairman spoke of him as the link between the old five bells with the old band of ringers and the new peal of eight with the present young band of ringers.

The company then stood in silence for a few moments as a tribute of respect to his memory.

The chairman thanked the Rector for his interesting address, and the ladies for preparing tea. Tunes on the handbells were given by H. Hammersley, John Hill (aged 12) and S. Harrison, and Grandshire Doubles by E. H. Bagworth, H. Hammersley and S. Harrison.

The company then adjourned to the tower, where further ringing took place, a very enjoyable meeting having been spent.

DISTRICT MEETING DISCUSSES 'THE RINGING WORLD.'

With a desire further to promote the sale of 'The Ringing World' among its members, the South and West District of the Middlesex Association issued a 'questionnaire' to the affiliated towers, and on Saturday, when the forms were returned, the Editor of the paper was invited to attend a meeting held at Brentford and address the gathering, which numbered nearly 40, from Baling (St. Mary's and Christ Church), Denham, Sumbury, Hillingdon, Harrow, Heston, Isleworth, Feltham, Ruislip and Uxbridge, with visitors from Fulmer and Portsmouth.

The subject was introduced by Mr. W. H. Coles (Ringing Master). From the returns it appeared that out of 82 members in the district, 25 subscribed regularly and only six others were prepared to take it if the price was reduced to 2d. per week.

Several members expressed opinions at the meeting. Those who had grumbles mostly complained of the price and the fact that the reports of their quarter-peals were not published.

Mr. Goldsmith reviewed at some length the whole position of publishing a paper in the interests of ringers. In dealing with the financial side he pointed out the limited scope for revenue, except through sales, the difficulties and objections there were in subsidies or in charging for the insertion of peals; and he asked, if the price of the paper were reduced, who would undertake the financial risk which would have to be faced? It was obvious, if the returns made to the association were a criterion, that the number of new subscribers would be quite inadequate to make up the loss. With regard to the grievance of the non-publication of quarter-peals, he pointed out that, as a rule, these were of purely local interest.

THE EDITOR'S TASK.

The Editor's task, Mr. Goldsmith proceeded, was to decide which of the material which came to hand in any week was of the widest general interest. If preference were given to quarter-peals, these would soon increase to such a degree that nearly everything else would have to be sacrificed, and if there were some who now thought there was not enough interest in the paper to make it worth their while to buy, many more would take that view if they found records of minor performances predominating. It was not from any desire to exclude quarter-peals that they often did not appear, but from pure force of circumstances, which compelled a choice of this or that to be excluded. He asked those who complained of the non-appearance of their quarter-peals to remember that while as many as possible were published, other material of a wider interest would have to be excluded if all that were sent in were inserted.

Mr. J. A. Trollope (vice-president of the association), who presided, mentioned that during his close association with the paper in the absence of the Editor, he saw a number of these complaints. They were not based on the general ground of why were quarter-peals not always published, but 'why was not my quarter-peal printed?' He proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Goldsmith for his attendance and his address.

At the outset of the meeting a vote of sympathy was passed to Mr. W. H. Hellier, the hon. treasurer of the association, on the death of his wife.

A vote of congratulation to Mr. E. H. Lewis on being elected Master of the College Youths for the tercentenary year of the society was passed on the motion of the chairman, who pointed out that it was the first time a president of the Central Council had been Master of the society.

SUGGESTED OMISSION OF SERVICES AT MEETINGS.

For some reason or other, unexplained at the time, the service, which was to have been held before tea, did not take place, the church not being open and the Vicar not putting in an appearance.

Referring to this in the course of the meeting, Mr. H. C. Chandler, a former district hon. secretary, suggested that the district should consider whether it would not be better to omit the service from their ordinary meetings and hold one only on the occasion of the annual meeting. While the clergy were always ready to hold a service on request, he believed that many did so at inconvenience and would be glad to be relieved of it. Mr. Chandler also pointed out that in the days when services were not held, the attendance at meetings was much larger.

Mr. Ellingham supported this view, but the Chairman said he could not accept any motion on such an important matter without notice.

It was understood that the matter would be brought up at the annual meeting in February.

The usual votes of thanks were passed, and the ringing, which had taken place in the afternoon at Isleworth and Brentford, was resumed at the latter tower. Various methods of Minor were rung, as well as Stedman and Grandsire Doubles. St. Lawrence's tower contains six bells, which, for the past 40 years, have been waiting for the addition of two trebles. The frame is already there for the extra bells.

DISTRICT CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE CENTRAL FUND.

The last meeting of the year in the North and East District of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild was held on Saturday last at St. Giles-in-the-Fields, always a popular tower, and during the afternoon and evening attracted some 50 or more members and friends. Under the guidance of Mr. T. J. Lock, District Master, touches in many methods, including Cambridge Court Bob, the special

MANY UNPAID SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Over the annual report of the committee of the Lancashire Association, just issued, is the shadow of the loss of the president, Canon H. J. Elsee, who passed away on Good Friday, after occupying the office for nearly 46 years.

The total membership of the association is 1,530, made up of 85 hon. life members, 11 hon. members, 313 non-resident ringing members, and 1,121 ringing members. The strength of the branches is as follows, the figures in parentheses showing the number of new members elected during the year: Manchester 150 (16), Liverpool 129 (6), Rochdale 126 (2), Blackburn 123 (4), Bolton 120 (9), Farness 97 (9), Rossendale 94 (5), Preston 92 (2), Wigan 88 (15), Fylde 45 (2), Lancaster 44 (7), with 13 'abroad.'

The report records that 43 were crossed off for arrears, and death caused the loss of 18 members.

The treasurer's statement showed a gain on the year's working of £1 Os. 11½d. Although this is considered satisfactory, there are still a large number of members who are not paying their subscriptions. The report appeals to all members to be loyal to this side of the association's work, as during the coming year a very considerable expense would be incurred in reprinting the 'Rules and Diagrams.'

From August 1st, 1935, to July 31st, 1936, 93 peals were rung, including no less than 27 with bells muffled for various causes. Two 'official' peals were rung, one to celebrate Mr. W. H. Shaker's 25 years' service as general secretary, and the other a muffled peal to the memory of the late president. Perhaps the most noteworthy peal of the year, says the report, was that of Grandsire Caters at Wigan Parish Church in May. All the ringers were members of the Wigan Branch and the peal marked a definite advance in that part of the county. Pleasure is also recorded at the progress made at Worsley since the installation of the new peal of bells. Peals of Grandsire Triples and Grandsire Caters have been rung by the local company, and peals of Kent Treble Bob Royal and Stedman Caters by mixed bands.

ALL-CONDUCTED AND NON-CONDUCTED.

At St. Martin's Church, Chelsfield, Kent, on Saturday, November 28th, after meeting short for an attempt for a peal of Minor, a touch of 1,560 changes (13 six-scores) Grandsire Doubles was rung: A. S. Richards 1, G. V. Murphy 2, D. Sharp 3, E. A. Barnett 4, P. Corby 5.

The conducting was shared by all the ringers, each calling a six-score in turn. The first, seventh and thirteenth six-scores were rung non-conducted. All ten different callings were used.

MUFFLED BELLS.

On Wednesday, November 4th, at the Parish Church, Seale, Surrey, a quarter-peal of Bob Minor (1,260 changes): C. Newman 1, E. Gardner 2, H. Jeffreys 3, J. Carter 4, W. Denyer 5, C. Denyer (conductor) 6. Rung with half-muffled clappers as a tribute to the late Capt. Sir Edward Wingfield Verner, Bart., of David's Vere, Seale, who was interred in Seale Churchyard the same afternoon.

method chosen for this meeting, and several 'touches of rounds' for some beginners present, kept the meeting going from three to five o'clock. It was regretted that, owing to the Rector being engaged elsewhere, the usual service had to be missed.

Tea was served at the Express Dairy, High Street, with Mr. G. W. Fletcher, vice-president, presiding. At the subsequent business meeting six new members were elected, whilst it was announced that the annual meeting of the district had been arranged for January 30th at St. Andrew's, Kilburn. The special method chosen for the next meeting was St. Clement's Bob Triples, but members were advised not to forget Cambridge Court Bob.

The Chairman intimated that at the annual meeting of the district it was possible that proposals would be brought forward in respect of the financial relations of the districts with the Central Fund, with a view to expanding the latter, and he hoped members would think over the matter between now and the date of that meeting.

The Hon. Secretary said that he had had a proposal sent to him by the hon. secretary of the South and West District, providing that resident members of 65 years of age, after a continuous membership of ten years, should be excused further subscriptions. Whilst sympathising with such a proposal, he said that unless something was done, the Central Fund would lose by this, probably more than it could afford, and it would be as well if this was considered in relation to the proposal put forward by the chairman.

The hon. secretary welcomed the several young ringers present, from Bethnal Green, Kingsbury and elsewhere, and urged them to attend regularly and take every opportunity that offered for practice. Only by this means could they become efficient ringers.

The Chairman proposed a vote of thanks to the Rector (the Rev. A. H. Lloyd) for the use of the bells; to Mr. R. E. G. Geare for arranging the meeting; and to the anonymous gentleman who had paid quite a substantial proportion of the cost of the tea.—This was carried unanimously, and the business meeting terminated.

More ringing, both on tower bells and on handbells, brought a pleasant meeting to a close.

FUNERAL OF SUFFOLK RINGER. FORMER DISTRICT SECRETARY.

The funeral took place at Stowmarket on December 1st of Mr. E. E. Diaper, one of the oldest members of the Stowmarket company of ringers. His association with this band dated back for upwards of 35 years.

For several years he was hon. secretary of the Stowmarket District of the old Norwich and Ipswich Association, and did much to further the art of change ringing in the district.

Mr. Diaper had rung several peals, including 33 for the Norwich and Ipswich Association.

Among those present at the funeral service, conducted by the Rev. Tucker Harvey, were Mr. E. F. Poppy, of Stoke Ash, and Mr. W. Tydeman, captain of the local band. In the evening a half-muffled peal was rung as recorded elsewhere.

A YORKSHIRE EXAMPLE.

There is a small mining village near Leeds, where the ringers provide an excellent example of what can be done in a tower when keenness for the art and the right atmosphere are present. Rothwell, as a village, is no more favoured than most other communities, but it has long possessed an efficient company of ringers, and the present band are maintaining the traditions of a past generation. They ring peals occasionally, and in Surprise methods at that, but their greatest contribution is the regularity of their service ringing and the enterprise that is shown in their practices. Last Saturday the Yorkshire Association held a meeting at Rothwell, and occasion was taken to congratulate the band upon the excellent work which they are carrying on.

Two things are tending to the successful progress. One is the keenness of the leader, whose enthusiasm is infectious among his company. Campanologically they do not stand still. As we took the opportunity of pointing out quite recently in this column, stagnation is a cause in many a tower of the depletion of the band, and even the cause of the eventual break-up of the company in some cases. Progress is necessary to maintain interest, and in Rothwell it has had the excellent result, not only of keeping up the strength of the band, but of attracting visitors to the practices. We are fully aware that the rate of progress must depend upon the material available, but there is always some small step forward that the least accomplished can make. Those who have studied our articles for beginners have seen, even if they did not already know, that progress can be made in the easiest of stages—steps which after a bit may develop into strides. There can be no doubt that in those towers where there is a determination to get on, interest is maintained at its highest level, and no lash is needed to keep the ringers 'up to the mark.'

Thus it is at Rothwell; but there, also, there is another source of strength to the unity and purpose of the company. As Sunday School teachers, sidesmen, choristers or servers, all the ringers have an interest in the work of the Church itself, outside ringing, and the result is an atmosphere of service which rises above the mere fascination of the art. Attachment to the Church enhances the pride of service in the belfry. We have always maintained that the best way to fill the ranks of ringers is from within the Church. There is more likely to be success when the ringer is drawn from the Church to the belfry than when he becomes a ringer first, and an effort has to be made to make him a churchman afterwards. The reason is obvious. The churchman is already alive to the importance of church work, and, if ringing adds to his interest, he also attaches the right sense of duty to his service in the belfry, a sense which the 'outsider' often does not appreciate when he first comes into the tower. Rothwell is fortunate in the company which for years has kept its bells ringing, and is an example which, if more widely copied, would quickly reduce the number of towers wherein the bells are undermanned, as is unfortunately the case in many parishes.

FOR BEGINNERS.

SOMETHING NEW IN DOUBLES—OR ISN'T IT?

For those Doubles ringers who are anxious to get away from ringing nothing but Grandsire on the very hackneyed lines of the ten old six-scores, we have from time to time suggested a means of extending the scope of their practice. It is true that five-bell ringing, if it is to be in true Doubles, is extremely limited in scope. But you can get variety in the way in which you ring even Grandsire. You can ring Reverse Grandsire and Double Grandsire and New Grandsire. You can also ring the method by substituting some other bell for the treble. We wonder how many bands have taken the trouble to explore these varieties?

Of methods with a plain hunt other than Grandsire, and still produced by pure Doubles there are comparatively few. Reading is the only one given in the Central Council's 'Collection.' The rest that are printed have the blemish of at least one 'single' in each lead—as New Bob, where second's and fifth's are made when the treble leads and only two bells, those in 3-4, change.

There are, however, other Doubles methods, with a plain hunt, which can be obtained, but which, so far as we have seen, have never been published and probably never rung. They are pure Doubles, and the complete extent can be obtained with bobs and only two singles.

Beginners should learn that extents of pure Doubles cannot be produced without the use of at least two singles. The reason is that all the while 'Doubles' are made, the rows remain of the same nature; that is, they are all 'in-course,' or 'even' as they are sometimes called; and the 'out-of-course' or 'odd' rows cannot by any means be produced.

An 'in-course' or 'even' row is one produced by the regular changing of an even number of pairs of bells, as 21435 from 12345, or 15432 from 14523. It needs the change of an odd number of pairs to put the bells 'out of course,' and that substitution of an odd pair for an even number of pairs is called a 'single.' Once you have produced 'out of course' changes in Doubles you cannot get back to 'in-course' changes without the use of another single.

Extents of New Bob and similar methods are got by calling bobs only, but the singles are there nevertheless. The solitary changing of the bells in 3-4 when the treble leads or in 2-3 if a bob is called is actually a 'single,' and so in New Bob you switch from 'in-course' to 'out-of-course' (or from 'even' to 'odd,' if you prefer that term) and back again alternately with every lead.

So with every method of pure Doubles you must use at least two singles to produce an extent, and you can, as in Grandsire, use more than two, but it must be an even number. There are, as you know, six singles in the three-part 120's.

Now, for the benefit of those who would like something really fresh in the Doubles line (although we shall not be surprised if someone turns round and tells us that the method is as old as the hills), here is something to study:—

42513
24531
42351
24315
42135	42135	42135
41253	41253	41253
14235	14523	14253
12453	15432	12435

This method, like Grandsire, runs three leads to the plain course, and, like Grandsire, it has one other bell beside the treble that does something different to the other bells. That bell in the plain course is the 2nd, which leads, double dodges on the front (1-2 up), makes 3rd's and goes back again.

The bell that passes the treble in 1-2, goes out behind, comes back and makes 3rd's; then

Passes the treble in 3-4, dodges in 4-5 (up), makes 3rd's;

Passes the treble in 4-5, dodges in 5-4 (down), and double dodges in 2-1 (down).

At a bob, called, as in Grandsire, when the treble is in 3rd's place on the way down, the bell that has been doing the 'slow' work (the 2nd in the plain course) instead of making 3rd's runs straight out, lies a whole pull behind, makes 3rd's and then passes the treble in 4-5.

The bell that would have dodged in 5-4 (down) omits the dodge, runs straight to lead and does the 'slow' work.

The bell that passed the treble in 3-4, instead of dodging 4-5 (up), lies a whole pull behind and goes straight down to the double dodge in front. The bell passing treble in 1-2 is not affected.

An examination of the figures will show you how the single is made. It retains the bell in the 'slow.'

The calling of any 120 of Grandsire can be applied to this method, of which there are three variants. It will make an interesting little exercise in method 'reversing' if our readers will try to find them for themselves.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

ROTHWELL BAND'S SERVICES TO THE CHURCH.

In spite of the very inclement weather on Saturday, the Western Division of the Yorkshire Association held a most successful meeting at Rothwell, when upwards of 50 members attended from a wide area. The day was exceedingly cold and sleet fell continuously throughout the afternoon and evening, but those stalwarts who had made the journey were able to spend an enjoyable time in the belfry and the cosy Church Institute.

The bells were raised in peal about 3 o'clock and were kept moving in a great variety of methods from Plain Bob to Cambridge and Superlative until they were finally lowered about 9 p.m.

A delightful tea was served in the Institute, to which about 40 members sat down. This was followed by the business meeting, presided over by the vice-president, Mr. P. J. Johnson, supported by the Rev. H. S. Branscombe, Vicar of Rothwell.

The chairman was in a reminiscent mood when proposing a vote of thanks to the Vicar and wardens for granting the use of the bells. He spoke of his early experiences at Rothwell when transport facilities were not as convenient as those of the present day. He also referred to the great traditions in ringing which the Rothwell company had made, and said how pleased he was to see the present band carrying on with the work and making such excellent progress. They had a local band ringing Surprise methods, and this was a feat which, unfortunately, was not very common. He was also very pleased indeed to see the churchwardens present, and felt sure that if this could be seen in other parishes, better results would be seen in ringing.

This was supported by Mr. Sherwood.

In replying, the Rev. H. S. Branscombe spoke of his early days in the ministry when he also commenced to ring. Unfortunately he had to give up ringing through illness, but he had a great interest in it and was pleased to know that his own company were making such good progress.

Mr. Wormald, in replying for the wardens, said how pleased he was to be at the meeting and to take part in welcoming the Yorkshire Association to Rothwell. He himself had been connected with the church since boyhood, and he could, therefore, say how proud they were of their ringers. Not only were they ringers, but every member of the band took an active part in the work of the church apart from ringing. Some were Sunday School teachers, others choristers, sidesmen or servers, so that they all had the work of their church much at heart and it was always a source of pride to him as a warden of the church.

Mr. W. Barton, in voicing the thanks of the association to the local company for the splendid arrangements and to the ladies for the work which they had carried out in supplying and serving the tea, spoke of the social side of these meetings. There was a great deal of work entailed in organising and preparing a tea, and the social atmosphere which it created was so necessary in making these meetings a success.—This was supported by Mr. W. H. Senior.

Mr. P. Massam, the local secretary, in replying, said it was a pleasure to have the association at Rothwell, but hoped it would not be so long before they would come again. It was just ten years since the last meeting was held there, and he hoped they would come again soon.

Miss Mary Stinson, of Drighlington, was elected a member of the association.

After the meeting some of the members adjourned to the reading room where handbell ringing was in progress; others found enjoyment in the billiard room, whilst the remainder sought out the belfry for further ringing.

Members were present from the following towers: Armley, Batley, Burley, Bradford Cathedral, Birstall, Drighlington, Elland, Headingley (St. Chad's and St. Michael's), Idle, Huddersfield, Leeds Parish Church, Pudsey, Shipley and the local company, and visitors from Rotherham. It is pleasing to note that the weather could not damp the enthusiasm of the lady members from Drighlington and Shipley, who always manage to support the district meetings.

The annual divisional meeting is due to be held on March 13th, when it is hoped that arrangements can be made to take this to Longwood, near Huddersfield.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

FIRST MEETING AT HALVERGATE.

A meeting of the Eastern Branch of Norwich Diocesan Association was held at Halvergate on Saturday, November 28th, and was well attended, 32 members being present. A short service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. J. H. Ward). Tea was served at the Church Room.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells and also to Mr. De Ville, the caterer.

This is the first time the association has held a meeting at Halvergate, and it was appreciated by the local band, who are a very keen and promising set of young ringers. The methods rung during the afternoon were Cambridge, London, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, St. Clement's, Double Court and Plain Bob Minor, Stedman and Grandfire Doubles.

Ringers were present from Norwich, Yarmouth, Wymoutham, Gorleston, Reedham, Norton and Ade.

LLANDAFF AND MONMOUTH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

THE LATE MR. EVAN DAVIES' WORK AT CAERLEON.

The last quarterly meeting of the year was held at the old Roman city of Caerleon, near Newport, Mon., on Saturday, December 12th. The attendance was not up to the usual standard owing probably to the inclement weather experienced during the morning. Representatives attended from Aberavon, Cardiff, Llanfrechfa, Llanishen, Llangynydd, Newport, Penarth, Merthyr and Aberdare. The bells, a light ring of eight by Warner, were started soon after 3 o'clock. Later, service took place in the old Parish Church, famous for its beautiful stained glass windows. The Vicar (the Rev. H. O. Williams) officiated.

Tea, kindly provided by the Vicar and churchwardens, was served in the Gymnasium Hall of the Endowed Schools. At the business meeting the Vicar occupied the chair. The hon. secretary read communications received from the Master of the association regretting his inability to attend, and from Mr. Claud Davies, of Liverpool, wishing the association a successful meeting and regretting his inability to be present. Augmentations and proposed restorations were reported on, which proved that the county of Monmouth will possess one new complete octave and one augmented octave next year. It is also hoped there will be one augmented octave in Glamorgan.

Congratulations were given to the Aberdare band for ringing their first local peal on their rehung bells.

It was agreed that the selection of places for the quarterly meetings be left until the annual meeting, to be held on Easter Monday.

The hon. secretary gave at some length the history of Caerleon bells. He remembered, he said, Mr. Evan Davies coming to Caerleon as schoolmaster in 1881. Mr. Davies' interest was in the bells. There were then five bells or remnants of bells, more or less cracked, one in an ash heap and one a box of old metal. In October of that year these remnants were sent to Warner and Sons, of London. Two months later on December 15th six new bells were dedicated and opened. Although Mr. Davies was not then a change ringer, by the end of the next month, January, 1882, he had taught a band to handle the bells, and Bob Singles were rung for service. Progress continued during 1882-3. At the annual meeting held in December, 1884, a suggestion to complete the octave was made. Estimates were obtained during 1885, and on July 28th, 1886, the two new trebles arrived, were hoisted and hung personally by Mr. Davies.

On March 13th, 1887, the first quarter-peal, Grandsire Triples, was rung by the local men, conducted by Mr. Davies. Other methods were practised, and on January 12th, 1889 (48 years ago within a month), the first peal on the bells was rung, conducted by Evan Davies. It was the first peal on the bells and first peal by all. Of the band that took part in that peal there are three survivors—the writer of these notes, who is still an active ringer, and two others who are not now ringing. In the same year peals of Plain Bob and Treble Bob Major were rung.

Four years later, mainly through the efforts of Mr. Davies, the Llandaff Diocesan Association was formed at a meeting held at Llandaff, and Mr. Davies was elected the first Master.

It was most fitting that the meeting was held at Caerleon, which was really the home of change ringing in those parts, and ringers owed a debt of gratitude to the late Mr. Evan Davies, whose son was doing such useful work for the Lancashire Association in Liverpool.

The question of a printed form of service was discussed, and it was decided to deal with it at the annual meeting.

New members were elected, including four Caerleon ringers. The best thanks were accorded the Vicar, churchwardens and ladies for their kindness and hospitality. Ringing was afterwards again indulged in.

MIDDLESEX ASSOCIATION TREASURER'S BEREAVEMENTDEATH OF MRS. W. H. HOLLIER.

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Annie Amelia Hollier, wife of Mr. W. H. Hollier, of 29, Duke Road, Chiswick. Mrs. Hollier, who was 59 years of age, was known to many ringers. Mr. Hollier is treasurer of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild, of which he was one time a joint secretary, and represents the association on the Central Council. Until this year Mrs. Hollier always accompanied her husband to the Council meetings.

In May last she underwent a serious operation in the Royal Masonic Hospital, Ravenscourt Park, of which she was a life governor. When only partially convalescent she was called upon to nurse her husband in a most serious illness, the strain of which proved very heavy, and again illness overtook her, this time proving fatal.

The funeral took place at the Chiswick New Cemetery on Monday of last week, the last rites being conducted by the Rev. E. J. Fellowes-Brown, M.A. Mr. Hollier was not well enough to attend.

The principal mourners were the only daughter (Grace), Mrs. Beattie, Mr. and Mrs. P. Holloway, Mr. H. Davis, Mr. Reginald Cattermole, Mr. and Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Jones, W.Bro. Harry Smith, P.A., G.D.C. (representing Chelt Chapter), W.Bro. E. G. Taylor, P.P.G.Sw.Bro. (representing Vitruvian 87 and Column 5284 Lodges), Mr. J. Hunnisett (representing Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild) and Mrs. Hunnisett.

Among the many floral tributes were wreaths from Vitruvian Lodge, Chelt Chapter; Middlesex County Association of Bellringers; and Mr. and Mrs. Hunnisett.

The sympathy of his many friends in the Exercise will go out to Mr. Hollier and his daughter in their bereavement.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A well-attended meeting of the Wisbech Branch was held at Wisbech on Saturday, December 12th, when the splendid peal of ten were available to members and friends. Among the methods rung were Kent Treble Bob Royal, Grandsire Caters, Double Norwich and Cambridge Surprise Major. The usual service was held, the Vicar (the Rev. H. K. Stallard) giving a short address.

For tea the members were the guests of the Vicar and Mrs. Stallard, and the Vicar presided at the business meeting.

Five new members were elected, viz., one honorary, three performing, and one non-resident life member.

The annual meeting of the branch is to be held in January at Hilgay.

CHRISTMAS ISSUE.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

As Christmas falls on Friday next, 'The Ringing World' will be published on Thursday. Correspondents are reminded, therefore, that all communications, including notices, must be received at the Editorial Office, Lower Pyrford Road, Woking, by Monday.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, Ltd., Croydon, have been entrusted with the contract for the restoration of the bells at St. Peter's Church, Thetford, Norfolk.

Mr. W. A. J. Knight, of Milverton, writes to extend his apologies to the band that rang his peal of Stedman Caters, which has proved to be false.

The peal at Romford, rung on December 1st and recorded in our last issue, was Mr. J. E. Davis' 1,100th.

A birthday peal was rung at Bucklebury last Saturday for Mr. William Wigmore, who is 81, and has been a ringer at this Berkshire tower for 63 years.

The three generations of the Groombridge family, who, as recorded last week, are members of the Ancient Society of College Youths, all hold the certificate of the society signed by Mr. W. T. Cockerill as hon. secretary. This must be a record, and is a sharp reminder of the long period of years during which Mr. Cockerill has so unostentatiously discharged the secretarial duties.

There is nothing like accuracy in everything pertaining to ringing. We have often heard arguments in the belfry as to the time occupied in ringing a peal, when the so-called 'timekeepers' differ to the extent of a minute or two in their observations. They were much more precise at Yarnon on Saturday, when the timing of a peal was reduced to seconds—3 hours 13 minutes 10 seconds.

The peal at Woolwich recorded last week was H. McCabe's first peal, F. Johnson's first peal 'inside' and H. Mackintosh's first peal of Triples. As printed in our report, the indication marks were attached to the wrong names.

Peals are recorded in this issue in no fewer than six different Surprise methods—and Bristol and Yorkshire are not among them. It is indeed a 'sign of the times' when the 17 eight-bell peals reported are divided among 11 methods.

KING GEORGE VI.'S ACCESSION.

BELLS CELEBRATE THE PROCLAMATION.

The change in the monarchy so unexpectedly brought about last week has been marked by ringing in many places for the new King's accession.

We record in this issue a few peals rung for the event, but in numerous churches the bells were rung on Saturday, and in some provincial towns on Monday when the proclamation was officially read.

The Coronation of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth is to take place on the date previously fixed for that of the former King, and ringers will be able to go on with their arrangements for the event. There will be nothing lacking in the bells' expression of the nation's rejoicing on that great occasion.

CANCELLED MEETINGS.

The meeting of the Manchester Branch of the Lancashire Association arranged for to-morrow (Saturday) at St. Thomas', Pendleton, has been cancelled.

The Hertfordshire Association's meeting advertised for to-morrow at Hemel Hempstead is unavoidably postponed until after Christmas.

Owing to a telephonic misunderstanding we last week announced the cancellation of the meeting of the Lancashire Association at Whittle-le-Woods, instead of the meeting at Burton-in-Westmorland. We desire to express our regret to all concerned for any inconvenience caused.

QUESTIONS TO THE METHODS COMMITTEE.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I don't know why Mr. W. G. Wilson butts in, unless his letter is inspired from other sources.

Mr. Trollope in the past, as spokesman of the Methods Committee, has answered questions, not very willingly perhaps, nor very courteously, but, nevertheless, he has done so.

Why, then, may not the Exercise have an answer to the question put to the Methods Committee in your issue of November 27th?

An answer will oblige.

NEW PEAL OF TWELVE AT CROYDON PARISH CHURCH.

A FINE RING FROM THE TOWN'S BELL FOUNDRY.

Great Gathering of Ringers for Dedication.

The Parish Church of St. John-the-Baptist, Croydon, is now in possession of a fine peal of twelve bells, with a tenor of 36 cwt., cast by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, who have made the town of Croydon famous, not only throughout England but in many distant parts of the world, by the products of their foundry. The new peal was dedicated on Saturday in the presence of a large congregation, among which were nearly three hundred ringers.

It was a great disappointment that the Archbishop of Canterbury, who had promised to perform the ceremony, was unable to do so owing to national events, which required his presence in the House of Lords at the very hour fixed for the dedication. The duty was discharged by the Bishop of Croydon (the Rt. Rev. Edward S. Woods), who is also Vicar, and the occasion proved a memorable one.

In 1610 a new saint's bell was given by Francis Tirrel, citizen and grocer of London. It was recast in 1757, but was destroyed in the fire of 1867.

The restoration of King Charles II. gave a great impetus to many pursuits, including the new art of change ringing, and during the next half-century the bells were augmented to the full octave, whilst in 1730 the Society of Croydon Ringers was formed.

In 1733 a complete ring of eight bells was installed by Thomas Lester, of Whitechapel, and in 1816 they were rehung in a new frame. The tenor bell of Thomas Lester's ring cracked in 1836, was recast at Whitechapel, and, while being hauled up into the tower, the tackle broke and the bell fell down, doing great damage to the tower and smashing itself to pieces. It was taken back and again recast, and this time safely installed in the tower, its weight being 22 cwt. 3 qr. 7 lb.

These bells remained until the disastrous night in January, 1867, when, melted by the intense heat, all the bells except the tenor 'ran down in a glowing stream.' The tenor again fell and was smashed to pieces. Some very fine casts of the Last Supper of our Lord were made from the metal of these bells, and one is to be seen in the tower of the church. They were rung for the last time on December

THE BELL FRAME AND BELLS IN THE FOUNDRY.

Croydon has for many centuries been closely associated with the Archbishops of Canterbury, and it remains to this day an isolated part of that diocese. Within the church lie buried six Archbishops, who died between 1583 and 1757; while between the years 1534 and 1909 nine Bishops have been consecrated in the church. A church stood on the site in Saxon times, but a devastating fire in 1867 destroyed a building that was begun in the time of Archbishop Courtney (1381-96) and completed in that of Archbishop Chicheley (1414-43). Only the tower, south porch and outer walls remained after the conflagration, and the present church was rebuilt by Sir Gilbert Scott and consecrated in 1870.

The earliest notice of a bell in the tower is in a register dated 1403, in which it is recorded that 'One John de Aldermaston, who was buried in ye church, left by his will xx sheep for the purchase of a Saint's bell.'

EARLY BELLS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

On May 20th, 1538, there was buried in the church a certain Sir Andrew Corvehill, a secular priest, his burial being one of the first to be recorded in the registers. His two brothers were Sir William Corvehill, a priest of Much Wenlock in Shropshire, and John, a monk of the same place. Sir William died in 1546, and the burial register at Wenlock proclaims his skill as a 'good bellfounder and maker of the frames for bells.' It is quite possible that Croydon Parish Church owes its first peal of bells to this priestly bellfounder.

In 1547, during the reign of Edward VI., an inventory of church goods records that 'There ar fyve belles in ye Stepel and a Saunce (Saint's) Bell.'

31st, 1866, by four members of the Croydon Society and four of the Beddington Society. It is strange to record that the society held its annual dinner on the night of the fire in January, 1867, and so the ringers were among the crowd who sorrowfully watched the church and bells destroyed.

A new peal of eight with a 30 cwt. tenor in E was installed in 1869 by Messrs. Taylor at the restoration, under the direction of the late Lord Grimthorpe, and was rung for the last time on Sunday, July 5th, 1936.

A MASSIVE FRAME.

The frame and gear were a source of trouble for many years. They are now replaced entirely with new work throughout, as a result of a munificent gift from the late Lady Edridge, widow of the late Sir Frederick Edridge, whose devoted service and able administration of church affairs as Vicar's warden extended over a period of 30 years.

The new frame is a massive construction of iron castings, fixed to a reinforced concrete grillage which bonds the walls together and is designed to strengthen the tower materially.

The new fittings include cast-iron headstocks, ball bearings, clappers of an improved design, and special facilities for lubrication and maintenance by the steeplekeeper.

The eight 'Grimthorpe' bells, in the light of present-day knowledge, were of incorrect design and unsatisfactory in tone, owing to the falsity of harmonics. They have been recast, and increased in weight, through the generosity of individual donors and subscribers.

In view of the association of Archbishop Whitgift and succeeding Archbishops of Canterbury with Croydon for centuries down to the present day, the cost of recasting No. 6 of the former peal (now No. 10) has been subscribed by a large number of well wishers connected with the Whitgift Foundation and Schools. The 'Whitgift Bell' Fund was organised by Miss Brodie, the daughter of the late Robert Brodie, who was the first headmaster of Whitgift School; and the bell which was used from time immemorial as the 'tolling bell' and 'call bell' will continue to perform those duties.

Four additional bells, the new trebles, are gifts to complete a ring of twelve.

The casting of the tenor bell, the gift of Mr. T. R. Edridge, nephew of the late Lady Edridge, was witnessed on October 21st, 1936, by the Mayor of Croydon, the Bishop and churchwardens, Mr. H. G. Williams, M.P. for South Croydon, and a party of 200 parishioners.

The tower clock, erected by Gillett and Johnston in 1869, has been reorganised to chime true Westminster quarters on Nos. 3, 4, 5 and 8. Sundry alterations to the movement and transmission gear have been carried out to simplify the connections and to improve the appearance of the ringing chamber.

A new belfry floor has been erected to ensure easy access for the steeplekeeper for maintenance and regular inspection.

The belfry louvred windows have been partially blocked with panels of a specially selected material to prevent the sound from beating down on the immediate neighbourhood, and the effect outside is certainly one that will eliminate all cause for reasonable complaint.

In the course of procedure required for the granting of a Faculty the proposed scheme of restoration and additions was reviewed by sundry authorities, and valuable assistance in this direction was rendered by Mr. T. F. W. Grant (diocesan architect), by Mr. E. H. Lewis (president of the Central Council of Bellringers), and by Major J. H. B. Hosse.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S MESSAGE.

The great church was filled to capacity for the dedication ceremony, the congregation including representatives of the civic as well as the religious life of the town. A procession was formed in the Parish Church Schools and entered the church through the west door. The hymn, 'Unchanging God,' was sung as it passed up the aisle in the following order: Cross bearer, choristers and gentlemen of the choir, the master bell founder, the visiting clergy, the macebearer, the Mayor of Croydon, the Town Clerk, the vergers, the staff of the Parish Church, the Deputy Rural Dean, the churchwardens and the Bishop and Vicar of Croydon.

After appropriate prayers, Psalm 150 was sung, during which a small procession made its way to the western tower, where the Bishop performed the act of dedication and the bells were rung in some excellent rounds by the local ringers. The sound came rather vaguely down into the church so that except near the tower they were but faintly heard, but outside the tones were full and satisfying, and the immediate comment was that they were a fine peal. When the bells had ceased, the Bishop of Croydon addressed the congregation from the pulpit.

The Bishop of Croydon, in his address, said his first word must necessarily be one of the deepest regret, on the part of everyone, at the enforced absence of the Archbishop, for the reason which they all completely and entirely understood. The Archbishop must be in his place in the House of Lords at that very moment to swear allegiance to their new King and in order that he might be able to offer personally the first prayers in Parliament for the new King and Queen. The Archbishop sent a message that morning, in which he said, 'Pray express to your people my most real regret. The disappointment is as great to me as it can be to them. I must be content to send my Benediction to the bells and to the people, whose joys and sorrows they will celebrate and whom they will summon to that remembrance of God which, in these strained and anxious days, stands forth as the supreme need of the nation.'

The Bishop went on to express thankfulness that throughout the crisis through which we had just passed, the nation and Empire had preserved a steady, calm dignity; and the hope, deeply charged with prayer, that all that had happened might be overruled by God's providence for the true welfare of the realm and Empire. Before the service closed he would ask them to join with him in heartfelt prayer, both on behalf of him who had thought it his duty to renounce the Throne and the King and Queen, who had taken on the tremendous burden of Sovereignty. The Bishop added that the first 'peal' on their splendid new bells would coincide almost exactly with the proclamation in London of the new King.

Proceeding, he said he thought he could justly describe that as an historic occasion. They had with them the Mayor and members of the Corporation, who never failed to be with them on great occasions in the life of their own community and in the national life. He also extended a special welcome to the visiting ringers, some 300 of them, who had come from all parts of the country, and represented, he understood, 60 different churches in 15 different dioceses. They were specially honoured in having with them the president of the Central Council of Church Bellringers (Mr. E. H. Lewis), and he deeply regretted that the past president, Canon Colebridge, was prevented from being with them by duties in his own parish. He was glad that they had present that day the donors of the bells and many others who in one way or another had helped to provide the very necessary finances, without which that great peal would not have been possible.

The Bishop went on to refer to the long history of the Parish Church, which was founded as early as the ninth century. They had a record of Vicars from the year 1289, and he stood which covered 657 years of the continuity of Church and State.

There that day as the 52nd Vicar of the list This was a reminder, if one were needed, of State.

The Bishop went on to outline the history of the bells in connection with the Church. The new peal, which he had just dedicated on behalf of the Archbishop, was due to the generosity of many donors, friends and lovers of Croydon and its Parish Church. The old frame had been replaced by new work throughout, and there were four new trebles, given to complete the ring of twelve, the only peal of this number—with the exception of the ring at Southwark Cathedral—in the county of Surrey. The cost of the work had been £1,867 10s., of which £74 still had to be raised. It showed the measure of the generosity, loyalty and enthusiasm of those who wanted Croydon to have a peal second to none. He hoped the gifts that day would substantially reduce the balance outstanding.

TO THE ENDS OF THE EARTH.

Proceeding, the Bishop said it was interesting to recall that by means of the magic of wireless the sound of the bells went out literally to the ends of the earth. They were proud of the fact that their steeple was the only one in all the land from which the bells of a Parish Church had been broadcast regularly month by month. The Bishop went on to speak of the message of the bells which, in days when God was often ignored and forgotten, were a voice calling men everywhere to repent and change their lives, to turn aside from the ways of selfishness and seek God's way. The church bells were a sharp reminder that this remembrance of God ought to be far more than merely a fleeting thought, a vague aspiration or a kind of sentiment. The bells called them to nothing less than to express this remembrance by the actual coming together of God's people to spend time in

THE LORD BISHOP OF CROYDON, who dedicated the bells on behalf of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

BISHOP'S THANKS TO BELL FOUNDERS

God's House for worship, prayer and praise. Nothing could take the place of that. Unless those who belonged to Christian society would take the trouble to come together and observe, at least once a week, an hour in the spiritual oasis, then the whole life of their State would become more secular and the Church would lose some of the source of its power. Let the splendid bells of Croydon's old Parish Church summon the whole community to a fresh dedication of corporate life to God; let bells call them individually to a new loyalty and a new dedication to God's service and be a reminder that the spirit of God was at work in the world to-day.

After the hymn, 'Pleasant are Thy Courts above,' had been sung, special prayer was offered for the King, and following the Blessing came the recessional hymn, 'Rejoice to-day with one accord.'

As soon as this had ended, the new bells were heard in changes for the first time, the following band ringing three courses of Stedman Cinques: W. H. Hewitt (St. Margaret's, Westminster) 1, H. J. Skeet (Croydon) 2, J. S. Goldsmith (Woking) 3, T. W. Taffender (Kingston) 4, R. Davis (Croydon) 5, H. N. Pitsoy (Banshead) 6, G. Hoad (Reigate) 7, E. H. Lewis (Brasted) 8, C. H. Kippin (Beddington) 9, A. W. Clark (Croydon) 10, D. Cooper (Croydon, conductor) 11, H. V. Young (Leatherhead) 12.

Nearly 300 ringers and other guests were entertained to tea by the Bishop and churchwardens in the Welcome Hall, where Mr. E. H. Lewis, on behalf of those present, congratulated Croydon on its peal of bells. He had not heard them outside the tower, he said, but he had heard them inside and was thoroughly satisfied. There was a beautiful circle of ropes and the bells were nice to ring. He hoped there would be some really good twelve-bell ringing on them and that Croydon would soon be following Ipswich. He would like to say to those who were present that there were other methods for twelve bells besides Stedman Cinques and Cambridge Maximus. Mr. Lewis went on to thank the Bishop and churchwardens for their generosity in asking them all to take part in the ceremony, and, secondly, for their splendid hospitality.

BISHOP THANKS MR. JOHNSTON.

The Bishop of Croydon said they were delighted to see so many ringers present on what he had already described as an historic occasion. He would like to take that opportunity of thanking Mr. Johnston and all the members of his staff for the truly magnificent work they had put into this new peal of bells (applause). He was particularly delighted to see the church clock going once more. It had been a serious deprivation to have the clock stationary and he was pleased they were once more moving with the times. Encouraged by this magnificent peal of bells they would continue to go ahead. Not only had Mr. Johnston's firm splendidly carried out the work, added the Bishop, but Mr. Johnston himself had been instrumental in raising a large part of the money which had provided Croydon with a peal of bells second to none in the country (applause). He concluded by bidding the visitors welcome and hoping the ringers would enjoy their few hours in Croydon.

Ringers then returned to the tower, where under the able direction of Mr. Dan Cooper, the tower master, everyone who desired to do so enjoyed a pull on the bells. They were admitted in batches to the ringing chamber, and many rang on twelve for the first time. There were frequent 'touches' of rounds for those who hesitated to try their hand at changes, but many short touches of Cinques were rung, as well as a half-course of Cambridge Maximus.

The ringing chamber had been renovated in the course of the restoration, and now, brightly illuminated and with freshly decorated walls, is a pleasant apartment in which to ring.

The bells handle splendidly, the circle is perfect and in the ringing chamber the sound has been nicely modulated. Everyone, therefore, was able to enjoy their first experience of this latest ring of twelve bells.

Messrs. Gillett and Johnston have provided their town with a peal of bells worthy of their great reputation, and the completion of the scheme crowns the desires and efforts of the head of the firm, Mr. Cyril Johnston, whose ambition it has been for 30 years to see in the Parish Church a ring of bells made in the town and equal to any comparable peal in the country.

While ringing was in progress, the foot of the tower proved a convenient meeting place for ringers, of whom there was a constant stream coming and going throughout the evening.

When ringing ceased most of the visitors made their way to the Drill Hall in Union Street, where a 'social' had been planned. This was quite informal, but entertaining items were provided. The programme began with community singing; then there was a demonstration of Mr. J. S. Goldsmith's 'ringing machine,' on which, to the diversion of the audience, touches of Grandsire, Stedman and Treble Bob were rung, while in introducing the machine Mr. Goldsmith gave the audience some new light on bells and bellringing. An excellent conjuring and ventriloquial entertainment followed, and change ringing on handbells was also included in the programme.

The authoress of the now famous novel, 'The Nine Tailors' (Miss Dorothy Sayers), was among those present, and, having been introduced to the audience by Mr. Johnston, spoke to them of the interest in change ringing which inspired the theme of her book. She admitted that in mastering the subject she had filled several exercise books by writing out figures.

Mr. Johnston thanked those who had contributed to the programme, and a happy evening came to an end shortly before 11 o'clock, after a memorable day.

AUTHORESS OF 'THE NINE TAILORS.'

MISS DOROTHY SAYERS SEES RINGING AT CLOSE QUARTERS.

In expressing pleasure at her visit to Croydon, Miss Dorothy Sayers has written to Mr. C. F. Johnston: I was immensely grateful for the opportunity of hearing your beautiful peal, and watching the ringers and the bells at close quarters. It was also most delightful to meet all those prominent members of the ringing world, and I must say again how very much I felt honoured by the extraordinarily kind appreciation they all expressed of 'The Nine Tailors.'

Referring to the 'ringing machine' demonstrated at the social, Miss Sayers said: It was most fascinating to watch in actual movement the thing I had tried so hard to understand on paper, particularly the Kent Treble Bob which occupies so large a place in my story. I got quite excited recognising the movements of the Slow Hunt bell, and seeing No. 3 actually stand to make her fourth's place at the Bob!

GREETING FROM YORKSHIRE.

On the same day that Croydon bells were dedicated, a similar ceremony took place at Bradshaw, Yorkshire, where five bells, also cast at the Croydon Foundry, were opened by the Bishop of Wakefield. The following telegram from the Rev. E. B. Brayford, Vicar of Bradshaw, was read to the assembled gathering of ringers at Croydon: 'New ring of five at Bradshaw, Yorks, sends greeting to new ring of 12 at Croydon.—Brayford, Vicar.'

A HERTFORDSHIRE RESTORATION.

WOOD HEADSTOCKS AND TEAK FRAME FOR RUSHDEN BELLS.

The bells at Rushden Church, Herts, were rededicated by the Ven. the Archdeacon of St. Albans on November 27th. The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. V. Rossborough), assisted by the Rev. C. C. Wood (Rector of Hinxworth and Rural Dean), and, in spite of the foggy evening, the church was filled to overflowing.

In the course of his address the Archdeacon congratulated the parishioners on the success of their efforts to secure the restoration of their bells. These form a ring of five, with a tenor weighing nearly 6½ cwt., which have been rehung with new fittings, including wood headstocks, in a new teak frame, the whole of the work having been successfully carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, under the supervision of the architect, Mr. William Weir.

The 'opening peal' was rung by the Wallington band of ringers, and other towers represented were Sandon, Cottred, Ardley, Walkern, Broughing and Baldock. All the ringers were very pleased with the 'go' of the restored bells.

A MIXED HUNDRED.

Mr. Francis Kirk rang his one hundredth peal on Saturday. His list is more than usually interesting from the great variety of methods he has rung. The number of peals conducted is in parentheses.

On tower bells.—Doubles: Stedman, 1. Minor: 1 method, 4 (1); 2 methods, 2 (1); 3 methods, 4 (2); 4 methods, 2 (2); 6 methods, 1; 7 methods, 3 (1); Spliced Oxford and Kent, 1 (1). Triples: Stedman, 4; Grandsire, 2.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

LEATHERHEAD DISTRICT OFFICERS RENOMINATED.

The Leatherhead District's last meeting of the year was held at Ewell on December 5th. Ringing commenced soon after 3 o'clock and continued until 5 p.m., when the Vicar (the Rev. C. G. Holland) conducted the Guild's form of service, the address, given by the Rev. G. Milsom Jukes, of West Ewell Church, dealing with the messages of different bells, from the common door bell upwards.

After the service a move was made to the Mary Wallis Hall for tea, to which 24 members and friends, including the two clergy, sat down. The Vicar welcomed the Guild's visit to Ewell and said he hoped to see them there again soon.

The hall proved to be a cosy place for tea and meeting on such a cold day. It was named after a poor servant, who, from her small wage of about £8 a year, saved nearly enough to cover the cost of building it, in order to have an alternative place of worship from the Parish Church.

After tea the clergy had to leave to attend to other duties, and so, on the Ringing Master's proposition, Mr. J. Corbett, the Guild's hon. treasurer, was voted to the chair for the business meeting, which was short.

The chief business was the nomination of district officers for next year. The Ringing Master (Mr. A. Harman) said he wished the meeting would find a new Ringing Master, as business prevented him from carrying out his duties as fully as he would like to, but as no one seemed to jump at the job, he was again renominated, as were also the district secretary (Mr. A. H. Smith), auditor and members on the Executive Committee of the Guild, with Mr. W. J. Whiting's name added to the latter.

The Hon. Secretary also mentioned the Executive Committee's decision that the contents of the Benevolent Fund boxes should be handed to each district secretary at the district's annual meeting, so that the treasurer should have the whole sum for inclusion in his yearly balance sheet. The meeting closed with the usual votes of thanks to those who had helped make a successful and pleasant meeting.

Ringing was again resumed until nearly 9 o'clock in Triples and Major methods to suit all capabilities, the bells being finally lowered in peal.

THE YEAR'S WORK IN SOUTH-EASTERN DIVISION.

The annual meeting of the South-Eastern Division of the Essex Association was held at Great Baddow on November 28th, 24 members attending from Great Baddow, Boreham, Broomfield, Chelmsford, Danbury, Ford End, Maldon, Springfield, Little Waltham and Writtle, also a visitor from Sudbury.

Ringing took place during the afternoon and the association's form of service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. R. H. Holmes). A very interesting and instructive address was given by Mr. Hussey, of Chelmsford. The organist (Mr. Wheeler) accompanied the singing. The collection for the Association Bell Restoration Fund amounted to 7s. 9½d.

A very enjoyable tea was served in the Vicarage Room by the lady ringers of the local band and their friends, the Vicar presiding.

The business meeting followed, and in the absence of the Master, Dr. P. T. Spencer-Phillips, who was attending a meeting in another division, the Vicar presided.

The hon. secretary (Mr. H. W. Shadrack) reported that since the last annual meeting the division has lost by death Canon Macdonald, an honorary member, and Mr. A. Tarbun, a life member of Widdford. As a mark of respect the members stood for a few moments in silence.

During the year five meetings had been held with an average attendance of 41 (against 33 for 1935), representing 16 out of the 20 towers in union with the association. There had also been visitors from 12 towers outside the division. Fourteen new ringing members had been elected.

Eleven peals had been rung, viz., 1 Maximus, 5 Major, 1 Triples and 4 Minor, the conductors being P. Groen (4), H. Mansfield (3), H. Devenish (2), G. Green and G. R. Pye (1 each). Ten members had rung their first peal, seven their first in the method; one had conducted his first peal, one had conducted a peal of his own composition. Great Waltham bells were being restored. In conclusion Mr. Shadrack thanked the Master, the hon. general secretary, the tower masters and secretaries for the willing help they had always rendered and all those who had helped to make the meetings enjoyable and successful.

Mr. H. Mansfield, of Maldon, was elected Master of the division, and Mr. H. W. Shadrack re-elected hon. secretary.

A vote of thanks to the past District Master and the hon. secretary was proposed by Mr. Mansfield, and Mr. S. Taylor proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar, Mr. Hussey, the organist, and the ladies for preparing and serving the tea.—The Vicar and Mr. Hussey replied.

Handbell ringing followed and a return made to the tower. The bells of Chelmsford Cathedral were available during the evening and several members went there to have a pull.

DUDLEY AND DISTRICT GUILD.

A WELCOME TO WEDNESBURY.

The quarterly meeting of the Dudley and District Guild was held on Saturday, December 5th, at St. Bartholomew's Church, Wednesbury, Staffs. The bells, a ring of ten, were placed at the disposal of the members and the usual service was held. Despite the inclemency of the weather, a fair number of members was present. The Guild's form of service was conducted by the Rev. Prebendary H. W. Jones (Vicar), who also gave a very interesting address. He gave the members a hearty welcome to his church and parish and said how pleased he was to meet them. He could see by those present what a real interest in bellringing there was in the district.

At the close of the service an adjournment was made to the Church House, where a substantial tea was in readiness.

The Vicar occupied the chair at the business meeting, at which several new members were elected, including three of the Wednesbury band. The Vicar of Wednesbury kindly allowed his name to be added as a vice-president. Mr. A. E. Reed, of Willenhall, was ratified as a member, having been previously elected in St. Thomas' belfry, Dudley.

It was proposed to hold the next meeting, which is the annual meeting, at Dudley. It was also resolved that the quarterly peal be attempted at Wednesbury, subject to the permission of the Vicar and local band, which, needless to say, was kindly granted.

Mr. Harry Boswell made an earnest appeal to members to support 'The Ringing World' in the coming year and help to increase the circulation of the paper.

Mr. W. C. Rhodes proposed that the best thanks of the meeting be given to the Vicar of Wednesbury for granting us permission to hold the meeting at his church, for conducting the service, for his able and interesting address and for the use of the tower and bells and for presiding at the business meeting; also to the organist; to the ladies for their kindness in preparing and serving the tea; and to Mr. A. J. Hubble for his services in making the arrangements for tea and meeting, which were greatly appreciated by all present.—The Vicar returned thanks for all concerned and closed the meeting with prayer.

Several members again returned to the belfry and kept the bells merrily going in various methods until nearly 9 o'clock.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

NORTH BUCKS BRANCH ACTIVITIES.

A very well-attended quarterly meeting of the North Bucks Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild was held at Stony Stratford on Saturday, December 5th, members attending from Bletchley, Beechampton, Bredwell, Buckingham, Drayton Parslow, Emberton, Fenny Stratford, Newport Pagnell, Weston Underwood and the local tower.

Service was conducted by the Vicar of Stony Stratford (the Rev. E. A. Steer), the Guild form being used.

At the tea the branch were welcomed as the guests of the Rev. E. A. and Miss Steer, whose kindness was very much appreciated. After tea, as no special business was to be transacted, a brief outline of the working of the branch and its activities was given by the secretary. The monthly meetings that had been arranged at various places in the branch were thought to be doing good and were very well attended.

The chairman, the Rev. H. A. Byard, of Newport Pagnell, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Rev. E. A. and Miss Steer for their hospitality and for making the arrangements for the meeting. This having been suitably responded to, further ringing took place in various methods to suit all who wanted to ring.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday last the annual meeting of the Taunton Deanery Branch was held at St. Mary's, Taunton. Ringing commenced at 3.30, and an hour later service was held, at which the Vicar (the Rev. W. H. Heaton-Renshaw) addressed the gathering. Tea followed in the Corfield Hall, and was much enjoyed. The president of the branch took the chair at the meeting, and the annual report and balance sheet were adopted. Three new members were elected.

Then followed the election of president and other officials. None of them desired to be re-elected, but the meeting thought otherwise, when they were all reinstalled in office: Rev. F. L. Grosvenor, president; Mr. P. Merson, hon. secretary; Mr. J. Hunt, Ringing Master.

The hon. secretary was also elected as representative on the Diocesan Committee.

The meeting was a great success. Forty-five sat down to tea, and with a few latecomers over 40 took part in ringing on the fine peal of 12 bells. Rounds, Grandsire Triples and Caters, Stedman Triples, Caters and Cinques and Treble Bob Royal were included.

BISHOPS FIRST VISIT.

On Sunday, December 13th, for the Confirmation service, at Lyme Regis, Dorset, a quarter-peal (1,264 changes) of Bob Major: Rev. C. C. Cox (conductor) 1. F. Hiscock (first quarter of Major away from the treble) 2. J. E. Philbrick 3. H. G. Keeley 4. C. W. H. Powell 5. G. Whitmore 6. F. E. Blackmore 7. F. Price 8. Rung as a compliment to the Bishop of Salisbury on his first visit to the parish. Also in honour of the accession of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth.

SCHOOL GUILD'S QUARTER-PEAL.RAPID PROGRESS OF WEST BUCKLAND BOYS.

At East Buckland, Devon, on Thursday, December 3rd, on the occasion of the enthronement of the Rt. Rev. C. E. Curzon, M.A., as Bishop of Exeter, a quarter-peal of Bob Doubles by the West Buckland School Guild: Rev. J. H. B. Andrews (conductor) 1, C. S. Gread 2, H. L. Morgan 3, P. R. Dale 4, D. Turner 5, E. V. Westcott 6. First quarter-peal on the bells, recently restored by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. First quarter-peal by any of the band and first attempt.

This modest report is of greater interest than is revealed by the announcement of the success attained. In anticipation of the restoration of the bells of East Buckland, which were rededicated on October 15th, the boys of West Buckland School, who attend East Buckland Church, where their chaplain, the Rev. J. H. B. Andrews, is assistant priest, formed a Guild of ringers. None of them had learned to handle a bell before this summer, and they have only been practising change ringing since October. But, as may be gathered, under the encouraging leadership of their chaplain, they are greatly enthusiastic and all ring regularly for Sunday services, in alternation with the local band.

The tenor at East Buckland is 7½ cwt. The four back bells were cast in 1718 by E. and W. Evans, of Chepstow. Two trebles were added in 1906 in an auxiliary frame above the other four. This year the old wooden frame having become insecure, it was decided to rehang the bells in a metal frame on one level, and at the same time to retune and quarter-turn them.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.GLOUCESTER BRANCH OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

The annual meeting of the Gloucester Branch was held at Barnwood on Saturday, December 5th, and was well attended. There were visitors from London, Coventry, Hinton-on-the-Green, Minchinhampton, Ruardean, Westbury, Newent and Cheltenham. The Guild service was conducted by the Rector, assisted by the Rev. Chapman. The Rev. W. C. Prichard, Rector of St. Michael's, was also present. After service the Rector invited the members to tea at the Parish Reading Room, 38 sitting down.

At the business meeting, with the Rector presiding, the following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: Mr. S. E. Romans (chairman), Mr. W. H. Harris (branch hon. secretary), and Mr. T. Baldwin (representative on Management Committee).

The Rector was heartily thanked for his kind hospitality on the proposition of Mr. S. Romans, seconded by ex-Sgt. Williams, and the Rector suitably responded.

Handbells were then brought into use by the two oldest veterans, namely, Mr. J. Austin and ex-Sgt. Williams. Members then returned to the tower, and touches of Plain Bob and Treble Bob Major and Grandsire and Stedman Triples were rung.

BELL LECTURE TO MUSICIANS.DEMONSTRATION AT BOURNEMOUTH.

A lecture on the 'Ringing of Bells, English Style,' was given by Mr. F. Frankland Rigby, deputy captain of St. Peter's band of ringers, Bournemouth, to the Incorporated Society of Musicians at the Hotel Metropole, Bournemouth, on Saturday afternoon, November 28th.

The chair was taken by Mr. J. D. Chandler, Mus.Bac., F.R.C.O., F.R.S.A., who introduced Mr. Rigby to the meeting.

Mr. Rigby began by pointing out the difference between the Continental style of sounding bells and the English style of ringing them. A model of a bell hung for ringing was exhibited and explained, after which Mr. Rigby showed the number of changes possible on the different numbers of bells.

He was ably assisted in his demonstration by some well-struck changes on handbells by Mr. F. W. Townsend's youthful party of handbell ringers from St. James', Poole. Courses of Grandsire Doubles and Triples were rung, also Bob Minor and Major, with a touch of Triples to demonstrate the calling of bobs and singles.

Mr. Rigby revealed to the very interested gathering that John Bunyan appeared to be the most picturesque figure in the history of change ringing, and read a passage by him after he had given up the practice of the Exercise.

The lecture was brought to a close by an excellent course of Grandsire Caters on handbells, which brought prolonged applause from the listeners.

The Chairman thanked Mr. Rigby for his talk, Mr. Davis for constructing the model and Mr. Townsend's party for the handbell change ringing.

After tea a party was conducted over St. Peter's tower by Mr. A. V. Davis, captain of the St. Peter's band.

BELL LECTURE.

A lecture on bells and bellringing was given on Wednesday week to the Halesworth Congregational Church Guild by Mr. F. C. Lambert, leader of the local ringers. He incorporated in it some interesting local history of Suffolk bells, and illustrated it with handbell ringing, in which he was joined by Messrs. A. H. Took, W. Kemp and W. J. W. Wright.

LADIES' GUILD DIFFICULTIES.

The extracts which we give to-day from the annual report of the Ladies' Guild reveal some of the difficulties under which the ladies' organisation has to carry on its work. There are approximately three hundred active members, in addition to some 65 non-ringing honorary members and they are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the country. It is only the loyalty of the members and the enthusiasm of the officers that can keep the Guild intact, for it is practically impossible for all to keep in real touch with the organisation. And yet, with all the limitations upon it and the discouragements, which must be many, the ladies contrive to make their Guild an active force in the Exercise.

What would a 'mere man' do as district secretary in face of some of the obstacles! Fancy having to run a 'district' like the Northern District, which extends from Nuneaton in Warwickshire to Leeds in Yorkshire, and from Ashton-under-Lyne in Lancashire to Nottingham? Or a district like the Southern District in which the members are as far apart as Hastings and Truro, from east to west, and as Oxford and Portsmouth from north to south? Can one wonder that there is a difficulty in getting in subscriptions, or that meetings are necessarily small in numbers? The Northampton District is the smallest, but members have to travel thirty to fifty miles in turn to attend meetings. In the Lincolnshire District, the secretary and vice-president (who is really the district chairman) live 80 miles apart, and yet interest is maintained. It needs unbounded enthusiasm on the part of the responsible officials to achieve results, but the general secretary (Mrs. E. K. Fletcher) is able to report 'increase in membership and renewed interest.'

In the coming year the Guild will celebrate its Silver Jubilee, and everyone will hope that record success may be attained. Despite the scoffers, who think the Guild redundant, in view of the facilities that are offered by the territorial and diocesan associations, most ringers will, we think, admit that the existence of the Guild gives the ladies a suitable status in the Exercise. We know there are still some ringers who think the belfry should be the exclusive preserve of the male sex, but the march of time has brought women into practically every walk of life which a generation ago was thought to be the strict domain of men, and it is admitted that the arts and professions have gained thereby. The upward trend in belfry reform has been helped by the presence of ladies in the towers, and those who used to sneer at the capabilities of women at the end of the rope have to admit that there are to-day many clever women among the ringers of this country, and that, in the mass, they are as competent as men in the mass. It is only in their physical limitations that they fail compared with the 'sterner sex,' but this is not their fault, and even in this they are no worse than many men, for we doubt if three parts of the latter are any real good at the heavy end of a ring of bells. There is a definite value in having ladies in the Exercise and the Ladies' Guild fills a useful place in the scheme of things. We can only hope that their difficulties of organisation may in course of time be overcome, and that their Silver Jubilee will bring a substantial acquisition of strength.

FOR BEGINNERS.

REFERENCE INDEX TO OUR 1936 ARTICLES.

The articles which have appeared under this heading have been, as we have already pointed out, intended as a help to those who are called upon to give instruction, as well as to learners themselves. Purposely they have followed no set plan, for the reason that all 'beginners' are not in the same stage. Indeed, we are all 'beginners' of some kind or other, and that is why sometimes the articles are a little more advanced than those which absolute beginners can, perhaps, understand.

Now that we have got to the final week of the year it may be as well if we catalogue in some degree the articles which have appeared in 1936. It will, we hope, facilitate future reference by those who may have need of them as hints in teaching future pupils. The subjects are, so far as possible, grouped.

CONDUCTING FROM A 'NON-OBSERVATION' BELL.

Here is a letter from Australia with reference to what we wrote about conducting from a non-observation bell:—

Dear Sir,—In your issue of August 28th, this subject is discussed in your usual clear manner, and to me it seems the concluding words in paragraph 1 are particularly apt and sum up the position. You then discuss calling the bells 'Before' and 'In the Hunt' in Grandsire Triples.

In the case of compositions in one part, such as Holt's Original, or other notable 'peals,' 'lengths,' etc., the plan, I venture to think, is admirable. But if, in the case of touches or peals in 4-5-6-7-8-10-12 parts, all the bells falling into 3rd's place are to be noted throughout, would this not, in effect and in a broad sense, reduce all compositions of whatever length to one part? I quote a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples as an example to illustrate my meaning:—

527634—4

Repeat nine times, with S. at half-way and at the end. (If a Holt single be preferred, the 2nd is retained at the part-end throughout.)

On the face of it, the calling is for the 2nd 'Out,' 'Before,' 'In' in the first half, and the 3rd likewise in the second. (No need to discuss the alternative when Holt's single is used.) But if the young conductor is to adopt the bells Before, the position is by no means so clear or so simple. He must memorise the bells, thus: (1) 5.2.7; (2) 6.2.4; (3) 3.2.5; (4) 7.2.6; (5) 4.2.2(S.); and in the second half substitute 3 for 2.

Actually this was the first quarter-peal I called, and, though but a lad at the time, I found no difficulty in doing so from the 4th, and even after 30 odd years I would prefer this plan to 'taking' all the bells 'Before.'

The subject, as all ringers will admit, is a 'big' one. In a given case, five notable men will probably conduct the same touch or peal on five different plans, and by the fact that each would be successful shows that each plan is correct.

For a number of years I have thought the subject was worthy of a 'text book,' but finally concluded that if such a book were issued by one individual alone, it would probably be adversely received by the ringing brethren.

But, Mr. Editor, from the point of view of the young and ambitious ringer, I still am of opinion such a book would be welcomed in the British Isles, and, maybe, command a ready sale. I particularly refer to the ringer of two or three standard methods, who has no one available to whom he can look for help in the initial stages of calling.

If, therefore, the Central Council could be induced to discuss this matter and endeavour to find men who would undertake such a work it would make a notable addition to the publications already issued. I commend it for your consideration and leave to others the question of methods and numbers of bells.

ERNEST F. BEHAN.

Carlton, Melbourne, Australia.

We do not think we have suggested that all peals and touches of Grandsire should be called by the bells 'Before,' because it is perfectly true, as our correspondent points out, that to do so would sometimes be a more laborious task than calling by other means. We illustrated our article by explaining how easily Holt's ten-part can be called by the bells Before, but in the following issue we also showed how, in peals of a different type—Parker's twelve-part was the illustration—other 'observations,' such as calling a bell In and Out of the hunt and into other positions, can be used just as easily. Perhaps, however, Mr. Behan had not received that issue of 'The Ringing World' when he wrote his letter.

OTHER DOUBLES METHODS.

For the benefit of those who tried to find the three variants of the Doubles method which we published last week, but did not succeed, here are the figures:—

12345	12345	12345
21354	21354	21354
23145	23145	23145
32415	32415	32415
23451	23451	34251
32541	32541	43521
23514	35214	34512
32154	53124	43152
31245	51342	41325
13425	15324	14352
14352	13542	13425

'The Mad Hatter' writes as follows: 'Your Doubles method is Reading Doubles, No. 12 in the Central Council's Collection, but with the Plain lead as bob, and the Bob lead as the method. Given thus, the method is asymmetrical, while as Reading Doubles it is symmetrical.'

Of course, we knew this, but as a 'method' it is different to the others, and it produces an additional lead in the plain course. The variations, again, are all different, just as there are often four methods of Minor with the same framework, but differing, as we have pointed out previously, by the addition or omission of 2nd's and 5th's places over and under the treble respectively.

FATHERS AND SONS.

At St. Catherine's Church, Gorseinon, South Wales, on Sunday, October 18th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples: J. Williams 1, Latimer Williams (first quarter-peal 'inside') 2, Reg. Dobbins 3, J. Hanson 4, A. W. Dobbins 5, W. Dobbins 6, Haydn Dobbins (conductor) 7, C. Pettit 8. In this quarter-peal three fathers and three sons took part. Specially rung as a wedding compliment to the curate, the Rev. J. W. Jones.

NEW PEAL AT BRADSHAW, YORKS. RING OF FIVE DEDICATED.

The gift of Mr. Eli Fielding, an old and esteemed resident of the village, a new peal of five bells was dedicated at the Church of St. John, Bradshaw, Halifax, Yorkshire, on Saturday, December 12th. The ceremony was performed by the Lord Bishop of Wakefield (Dr. Seaton).

The church, which is situated on the edge of the famous Ogden Moors, was well filled for the ceremony. Directly the bells had been handed over to the care of the Vicar, a few rounds were rung by the ringers of Queensbury, who have undertaken the responsibility of instructing a young band at Bradshaw.

The Bishop in his address expressed gratitude to the donor of the bells for his gift, thanks to the Queensbury ringers for their services, and words of advice and encouragement to the youths who had come forward to be instructed in the art of change ringing.

After the service bells were rung to Bob, Grandsire and Stedman Doubles.

The bells are another fine example of the work of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of the Croydon Foundry, who were represented by Mr. S. R. Roper. The tone and go of the bells is all that could be desired, and a great asset to Sunday worship in this village has been added by the installation of the peal. The weight of the tenor is 8 cwt, 0 qr. 12 lb.

THE PROVOST OF GUILDFORD.

DEATH OF A VICE-PRESIDENT OF GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

The diocese of Guildford has lost a prominent and much-loved figure in the person of the Provost, the Very Rev. Ernest Cecil Kirwan, and with his passing the Guildford Diocesan Guild of Ringers has lost a vice-president who had endeared himself to all the members.

The Provost had been in indifferent health for nearly two years, and for some weeks past had been in a nursing home. He was 69 years of age.

Educated at Bath College and Keble College, Oxford, his theological training was received at Cuddesdon College, and he was ordained deacon in 1891, and priest the following year.

After two years in a curacy at Bracknell, Berks, he was appointed in 1893 to a curacy in Guildford, and except for six years as Vicar of Camberley and Yorktown the rest of his active life was spent in Guildford in the service of the Church and town. He was inducted as Rector of Holy Trinity and St. Mary's in 1907, and when Holy Trinity became the Cathedral of the new diocese, Canon Kirwan became the first Provost. He never spared himself in the multifarious duties which fell to his lot, and his devotion to his work led to the breakdown in his health.

From the inauguration of the Guildford Diocesan Guild he made its progress a matter of keen personal interest, for his own ringers had always a warm place in his heart, and he extended this interest to the new Guild when it was formed. He regularly attended the annual meetings and dinners, sometimes presiding, and he also, whenever possible, was present at the meetings of the committee, of which he was an ex-officio member. In the Guild, as in the town and diocese, his loss will be deeply felt.

At the funeral on Saturday afternoon, attended in the Cathedral by a large and representative gathering of churchmen, the Guildford Diocesan Guild was represented by the Master (Major J. H. B. Hesse), the hon. treasurer (Mr. J. Corbett) and past and present members of the Cathedral Society. After the service a half-muffled peal was rung.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

ASHFORD DISTRICT MEMBERSHIP AND FINANCES.

The Ashford District of the Kent County Association met at Wye on Saturday, December 12th, in conjunction with the monthly meeting of the Romney Marsh and District Guild. Although the weather was none too favourable, about thirty were present, representing ten different towers. No service was held, but the Vicar, Rev. D. W. Metcalfe, joined the company at tea at the King's Head Hotel.

At the business meeting which followed tea, the Vicar presided. In presenting the report and balance sheet for the year, the Hon. Secretary (Mr. F. Conley) stated that there had been a net increase in practising members of thirteen, making a total of 153. The district had only two hon. members, yet in spite of this the receipts were higher than last year, amounting, with the collection for the benevolent fund, to £16 2s. 6d. The expenses had also been somewhat higher, so that the amount paid to the central fund was rather less than last year. The meetings of the district had been well attended throughout the year, the lowest attendance being thirty.—Both the report and balance sheet were adopted.

The Secretary then gave a report of the Central Committee meeting at Maidstone, and was thanked for doing so.

For the Romney Marsh Guild, Appledore was again chosen for the annual meeting to be held on January 16th, when the same enter-

WEATHER AFFECTS ATTENDANCE AT EASTERN MEETING.

The quarterly meeting of the Eastern District of the Yorkshire Association was held at Pontefract on Saturday, December 12th, and was rather poorly attended, owing, no doubt, to the bad weather. About 20 ringers were present from Bodsworth, Campsall, Goole, Hemingbrough, Pontefract (St. Giles' and All Saints'), Rotherham, Selby Abbey and Sherburn-in-Elmet. All Saints' Church bells (8) were rung during the afternoon and evening, and St. Giles' (10) were available during the evening. Good use was made of both, the following methods being rung: Grandsire and Stedman Triples, and Plain Bob, Treble Bob and Double Norwich Major.

Evensong in All Saints' Church was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. A. G. Shipley), and the preacher was the Vicar of St. Giles', Pontefract (Rev. C. C. T. Naters).

Tea was partaken of at the Co-operative Cafe, and the business meeting was held in St. Giles' belfry, the Vicar presiding.

Three new non-resident members were elected—Messrs. Martin Walker and Tom Hall, of Uleby, Lincolnshire, and George Dobbs, of Killingholme, Lincolnshire.

The Secretary explained that Pontefract was substituted for Goole for the meeting as Goole is at present without a Vicar. Mr. Hill, of Goole, extended a provisional invitation to the district for the annual district meeting to be held in March. This, of course, is subject to the approval of the new Vicar on his arrival in Goole in the new year.

Mr. Cryer proposed, and Mr. Vigor seconded, a vote of thanks to the Vicar of the two churches for the use of the bells, and this was responded to by the Vicar of St. Giles'. He extended a hearty welcome to the members to Pontefract.

Mr. Hill proposed, and Mr. Bradley seconded, a vote of thanks to the organist of All Saints' Church and the local companies. This was responded to by Mr. Walters.

It is hoped to arrange a special practice meeting at Howden early in January, notice of which will be given in 'The Ringing World' in due course.

SWANSEA AND BRECON GUILD.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Southern District of the Swansea and Brecon Guild was held at Neath. About 40 ringers attended, including visitors from Aberdare, Bridgend and Newton Porthcawl. The bells, a peal of six rehung this year by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., and going well, were rung from 3 p.m. Service was conducted by Rev. Canon R. W. Jones, B.A. (Rector), assisted by Rev. E. V. Dodd (curate). Mrs. Richards presided at the organ, and the choir, some of whom are ringers, was in attendance.

A very interesting address was given by the Rector on the Parish Church and bells of St. Thomas. Three of the bells date back to about 1700. There is also a bell (no date) on the floor of the church which had been brought from Chili with four others and given to Ostermouth, St. David's, Swansea, Hafod and Clyne.

Tea, partaken of in the Church Hall, was very generously given by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Thomas. About 40 sat down and did full justice to all the good things provided. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded by acclamation to the donors.

At the business meeting, with the Rector in the chair, a vote of condolence was passed with the relatives of the late Mr. D. Williams, of Sketty.

Mr. E. Stitch was re-elected hon. district secretary, and Mr. D. L. Rees elected auditor.

Morrison was chosen for the March meeting.

Two new members were elected, and the chairman kindly became an hon. member.

It was reported that a peal of Kent Treble Bob Minor had been rung at Llanelly as a quarterly peal for the Guild, and it was hoped to be able to ring one in each quarter.

Votes of thanks were given to the chairman and to all others who had helped to make the meeting such a success.

The methods rung during the afternoon and evening were Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob and Cambridge Surprise Minor. A course of London Surprise Minor came to grief six changes from home.

timers will assist with the social part of the meeting as on the last occasion. It is hoped that as many members as possible will attend.

One peal has been rung for the Guild since the last meeting, a notable one in some ways, being the first local peal at Aldington for fifty years.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells and for his attendance at the meeting.

In a brief reply he said how pleased he was to welcome the ringers to Wye, and hoped to have the pleasure of doing so many more times.

After a short touch on handbells, the company returned to the tower and made good use of the bells until 8 p.m., when an enjoyable meeting closed.

NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION.MEMBERS ENTERTAINED BY PRESIDENT.

The annual meeting of the North Staffordshire Association was held at Stoke-on-Trent on Saturday, December 12th, when 63 members and friends were present from Burslem, Brown Edge, Bucknall, Cheadle, Crewe, Disley, Draycott, Kids Grove, Kingsley, Longton, Lawton, Leek, Marple, Macclesfield, Norbury, Norton, Newcastle, Stockton Heath, Stoke, Stone, Tunstall, Uttoxeter, Warrington and Wistaston.

A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. S. Churton, of Stoke, seconded by Mr. G. H. Hall, of Brown Edge, to the Rector of Stoke (Rev. P. Harthill), who kindly provided the tea.

The Rector gave a very hearty invitation to all present, and expressed his wish to be with them next year.

He was supported by Rev. K. G. Symcox, curate. The Rector, who is president of the association, was in the chair, and was supported by Mr. Andrew Thompson, hon. secretary, Mr. Kenneth Thacker, assistant hon. secretary, Rev. K. G. Symcox and Mr. Sidney Churton.

After the minutes of the last annual meeting and of the annual committee meeting had been approved, Mr. J. E. Wheeldon commented on the secretary's report, which appeared in our issue of November 27th, and stated it was the finest report he had had the opportunity of listening to.

Mr. R. D. Langford, hon. secretary of the Chester Diocesan Guild (Crewe Branch) thanked the Rector and ringers for the welcome extended to visitors when they attended any of the meetings of the association. This was supported by Mr. C. K. Lewis (Stockport, Bowden and Mottram joint secretary of the Chester Diocesan Guild).

RINGERS' DINNER.

The annual dinner of the St. Aidan's Guild and guests (Blackhill Branch of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association) took place on Friday, December 11th, in the Church Recreation Hall. A gathering of about 28 sat down to an excellent meal, presided over by the Vicar (the Rev. Jenkin Jones). The toast of 'The King' was honoured. A toast to 'The founder of the bells (Mrs. Lee),' was proposed by Mr. Baley, and Mr. F. W. Marshall submitted 'The St. Aidan's Guild,' both of which were suitably replied to.

A social was afterwards held, the proceedings including a small whist drive. Songs were sung by Messrs. Johnstone, Tyson, Lynn, and the Rev. W. Chapman (curate). The arrangements were successfully made by the Ringing Master (Mr. Macfeggan), and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

We extend to all our readers the heartiest wishes for 'A Merry Christmas.' The prayer for 'Peace on earth; goodwill to men' has seldom been more necessary than to-day.

Bellringing will be included in the television programme to be broadcast on Christmas afternoon. Four members of the College Youths will ring Stedman Triples on handbells: Messrs. E. H. Lewis, H. Langdon, W. Roughton and A. B. Peck. This will be the first occasion that ringing will be 'seen on the air.'

Mr. Tom Hibbert, the popular secretary of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, has spent his long ringing life endeavouring to raise the standard and quality of peal ringing. On Saturday week (as recorded in our last issue) he conducted a peal of Bob Major at Bucklebury. It was rung for the 81st birthday of the Bucklebury veteran, Mr. Wm. Wigmore, who has been a ringer at the tower for 63 years.

Recording this event, Reading's only daily paper, the 'Evening Gazette,' informed the public that the ringers 'rang a peal of Plain Bob Major, firing 5,040 changes in three hours 12 minutes from the belfry.' The emphasis is ours.

As one of Tom's friends said to him the next day, 'Well, old man, your standard of ringing has sadly deteriorated, according to the local paper.' But then, Tom himself once said on a public occasion, that all newspaper men are akin to Ananias, or something to that effect. The reporter of the 'Evening Gazette' seems to have done his best to prove it.

The many friends of Mr. Ben Jarman, of Harpenden, Herts, will be sorry to hear that he is in the London hospital and has undergone a serious operation. It is hoped he will make a speedy recovery.

The name of the ringer of the second in the half-muffled peal of Kent Treble Bob Major at Benilton, on Thursday, December 10th, should read Arthur A. Hadley, not William, as published.

AUSTRALIAN SCHOOLGIRLS LEARNING TO RING.

MISS JOAN KYNASTON'S EFFORTS AT FRENESHAM, N.S.W.

Among the letters which have brought us greetings is one from Miss Joan H. Kynaston, of Frensham, Mittagong, New South Wales, where she is teaching as a member of a school staff. She took with her from England all the keenness of an enthusiastic ringer, and is endeavouring to interest some of the senior girls of her school in the art.

The Rev. C. C. Cox obtained a set of handbells, which were sent out last December.

Since their arrival, says Miss Kynaston, I have shown a number of people how to use them. It was very difficult at first, as I was the only member of Frensham who knew anything of change ringing. I am proud to say that I now have a team of senior girls who can ring Doubles of Bob and Grandsire, Plain Bob Minor, and have attempted Grandsire Triples and Stedman. Their enthusiasm knows no bounds, and I very much hope they will continue as ringers when they leave school, especially if they are able to visit England.

The ringers at St. Mark's, Darling Point, have been extraordinarily kind and good to me. They gave me the warmest welcome on my first visit, and each time since then. In August Mr. Kearns very kindly arranged for some of his ringers to meet us at the church, and they taught the five girls I took from Frensham how to handle big bells.

We have twice rung a plain course at the school service, and the parents have shown great interest in the bells. In due course I hope that members of the school may help to build up a tradition of change ringing in the State.

RECOLLECTIONS OF HARTEST.

BELLS CAST WHEN RICHARD DUCKWORTH WAS RECTOR.

Sir,—The article by Mr. Trollope about the 'Tintinnalogia' and Richard Duckworth is interesting. It may be of further interest to our readers to know that while Duckworth was Rector of Hartest-cum-Boxted a new peal of bells was erected at the Parish Church, Hartest. They were all cast by John Darbie. The treble, 2nd, 3rd and 4th were inscribed, 'John Darbie made me, 1661.'

The tenor, about 11 cwt., 'John Darbie made me, 1661. William Coppinge, Richard Murrell, Churchwardens.'

These bells are in size and tone like a peal of six with the fifth left out. Although they were rehung in 1880 in a new oak frame, it is no easy task to ring them. That they have been rung through the ages there is little doubt. On one occasion, about 100 years ago, one of the ringers, after ringing a short time, dropped down dead in the tower.

The old ringers, whom I knew when a boy, had an old set of handbells with wooden handles and no springs. The clappers consisted of a short piece of iron with an eye turned on one end, and on the other end was a ball of wood about the size of a marble, according to the size of the bells. The bells were rough and not polished, but just as they came out of the mould. They were not very musical. What has become of them I am unable to say. The old ringers whom I knew were illiterate. They used to ring 120's of Grandsire, and they all had their own bells to ring, which makes me think they did not ring by rule. However, they were always pleased to see a visiting ringer. I believe the bells are seldom rung now.

PEALS OF TWELVE BELLS.

RAPID INCREASE IN NUMBER.

The new peal of bells at Croydon Parish Church, the opening of which we chronicled last week, brings the total number of ringing peals of twelve to 55, all but two of which are in England. Since the war there has been an amazing growth in the number of rings of twelve, which 25 years ago totalled only thirty-four—thirty-two of them in England.

THE TOWER OF ST. JOHN-THE-BAPTIST'S CHURCH, CROYDON.

York Minster was the first tower in which a peal of twelve was installed, but York has not had this number continuously. A long period intervened when there was only a peal of ten. The Gloucestershire tower of Cirencester has had a ring of twelve for the longest consecutive period, but St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, London, runs it close, for two trebles were added to the then existing ten by Rudhall in 1719.

In Shipway's day, that is, 120 years ago, there were thirteen rings of twelve in existence. These were in the following towers: St. Bride's; Christ Church, Spitalfields; St. Giles', Cripplegate; St. Leonard's, Shoreditch; St. Martin's-in-the-Fields; St. Michael's, Cornhill, and St. Saviour's, Southwark, London; Birmingham, Cambridge, Cirencester, Liverpool, Norwich and Shrewsbury.

Of these, Spitalfields afterwards disappeared in a fire which destroyed the tower and bells. St. Peter's, St. Albans, is another tower which once had a peal of twelve. These were subsequently reduced to the original ten.

It is not uninteresting to note that in Shipway's list of churches with peals of ten bells (1816) eighteen are now among the twelve-bell towers. They were St. Mary-le-Bow, London; Ashton-under-Lyne, Aston, Canterbury, Exeter, Halifax, Ipswich, Leeds, Leicester (St. Margaret's), Oxford, Painswick, Reading, Sheffield, Shrewsbury, Wakefield, Worcester, Yarmouth and York.

The following is the present list of rings of twelve, in addition to which there will soon be ringing peals of the same number at Manchester Town Hall and Leicester Cathedral.

WILLIAM, LORD BRERETON. FIRST MASTER OF THE COLLEGE YOUTHS.

By J. ARMIGER TROLLOPE.

In the following article Mr. J. Armiger Trollope writes of the first Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths, William, Lord Brereton. In our issue of November 27th we gave a brief outline of the career of Lord Brereton, a great Royalist as well as a ringer, to whom, in large measure, the society owes its origin.

In this three hundredth year of the existence of the Society of College Youths a good many of the members will no doubt be glad to hear something about the man who was the first Master and principal founder, especially as we are told in the books that nothing is known of him.

The Breretons were a very old family, which had been settled in Cheshire from before the reign of Henry I. The eldest stock lived at Brereton, a village a few miles from Crewe, and there were branches in other parts of Cheshire, in Ireland, and in Norfolk. Many members of the family served the State in the Army, the Court, the Church, and the Law.

From very early times it was the custom to call the eldest son William and the second son John; and as this was so in the junior branches of the family as well as in the elder, there were a great many William Breretons, several of whom had the honour of knighthood conferred on them, and many Johns. In the reign of Henry VIII., Sir William Brereton was second in command to Sir William Skeffington, the Lord Deputy of Ireland and was afterwards Lord Justice. His son, Captain (afterwards Sir) John and Andrew were active in the Irish wars, and other members of the family are mentioned in the State papers of the time.

LORD BRERETON'S ANCESTRY.

Another Sir William Brereton held an office in the royal household. He was involved in the disgrace of Anne Boleyn, was charged with having committed adultery with that unfortunate queen, and was beheaded for treason on May 17th, 1534. Another Sir William, son of Captain John and grandson and heir of the Lord Justice, was Sheriff of Cheshire. He died in 1559 and was succeeded by his son, a boy of nine years old, who was baptised at Brereton, February 6th, 1550. This William served in the Low Countries and was knighted at Flushing by Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, the English Commander-in-Chief. About 1586 he built the hall at Brereton, a building of stone and brick, which is usually considered one of the finest examples of Elizabethan architecture extant. The tale is told, but on very doubtful authority, that the great queen laid the foundation stone and afterwards visited the completed house.

On May 11th, 1624, Sir William was created Baron Brereton of Leighlin in the peerage of Ireland, and in 1630 he died, aged 80 years. He had four sons, William, born 1579, who was entered a student of Lincoln's Inn in 1586; Robert, born 1584; William, born 1586, and John, afterwards Sir John, born 1591. As all of these predeceased the old lord, the title and estates fell on his death to his grandson, John's son William, who was born on February 28th, 1611, and baptised on March 8th at Gawsorth.

Of his boyhood and early manhood nothing is known. I have not been able to trace his name among the alumni of Oxford or Cambridge, or as a student at one of the Inns of Court, though the names of several of his family appear. In after years he applied for a legal post which seems to show that, like most young men of his class, he did have some training in the law. His student days were over and he was 26 years old when he and his friends founded the Society of College Youths. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir George Goring, afterwards Earl of Norwich, who held a position of great importance at the royal court and managed to secure a very large income by getting hold of monopolies. Through the influence of his father and his own social position, Brereton was brought into close contact with the king and all the leading men of the time.

SHORT RINGING CAREER.

His active connection with the College Youths did not last many years, for clouds were gathering on the political horizon, and in 1642 the Civil War broke out. Brereton threw himself warmly into the cause of the King, went down to his own county, gathered arms, raised forces, and garrisoned his house. On the other side was his distant cousin and namesake, Sir William Brereton, of Handforth, 'a gentleman of competent fortune in that county and Knight for the Shire in Parliament, but most notorious for a known aversion to the government of the Church.'

Sir William came down from London with a troop of horse and dragoons, inflicted a sharp defeat on the Royalists, and fortified Nantwich. Chester City, through the influence of the Cathedral, was for the King; his adherents made it their headquarters; and from the two camps the opposing forces strove for the control of the county. The issue was decided in 1644, when Thomas Fairfax, the best general the Parliament had (save only Oliver Cromwell) marched from Yorkshire, joined Sir William Brereton and routed the King's army at Nantwich, after which the Royalist cause never revived again in Cheshire.

Lord Brereton fought at Nantwich and after the defeat escaped southward, but he was surrounded and taken prisoner with his son and wife at Biddulph Hall in Staffordshire. He petitioned the Parliament to be exchanged, but his request was refused, and he was told that he must first give satisfaction for killing several of the Parliamentary side in cold blood at Nantwich. A year later, however, he was exchanged for Sir John Harcourt, and after that he retired to his own house and took no further active part in the war.

ESTATE SEQUESTERED.

But his troubles were by no means over. The Parliament had fought the war partly on the ground of the illegal raising of money by the King; and now faced by the necessity of providing the sinews of the war they themselves adopted much the same plan. A Committee for the Advance of Money was appointed, who assessed the value of the estates of country gentlemen and then levied a rate accordingly. Brereton was assessed at £2,500; appealed against it, had it altered, and finally settled the demand by paying £240.

When the Parliament finally triumphed the estates of those gentlemen who had been guilty of 'delinquency' (i.e., of bearing arms for the King or supporting his cause) were sequestered and among the list of those seized in Cheshire appears Lord Brereton's. The delinquents were allowed to redeem their estates by paying a fine, variously fixed from one-third to one-tenth of the value. Lord Brereton was assessed at £4,605 5s. 10d.

and ordered to pay one-sixth. He paid half of what was demanded, appealed for a reduction of the balance, and finally received his discharge at Goldsmith's Hall on May 6th, 1648. The estate was said to be worth £1,400 a year. His brother John, who as a boy of sixteen had ridden out to serve the King, was also punished by sequestration, and Lord Brereton compounded for the claims on him by paying £150. Thomas Sidway, the estate bailiff, had to pay £120.

Mr. Robinson, the Vicar of Brereton, was ejected for delinquency, and in his place Lord Brereton appointed a John Holm, whose doings and opinion were not to the likings of the Puritans of the district. He refused to keep the fasts and thanksgiving days appointed by Parliament or to subscribe to the Covenant. He would not do it, he said, for ten times the value of the living. Some fanatic complained of all this to the Parliament and laid the blame on Lord Brereton. 'This sads,' he wrote, 'the heart of the honest part in the parish.' The Puritans of Churchhulm and Middlewich also complained that Lord Brereton had hindered their ministers and prayed that they might be paid out of his estates.

In 1660 came the Restoration of the Monarchy and Lord Brereton, like many another country gentleman, looked for restitution and compensation for all the losses he had borne. He petitioned the King for a grant to himself and his son after him of the office of Custos Brevium in the Court of Common Pleas. Whether his request was granted does not appear, but on May 31st, 1661, a warrant was issued to pay Lord Brereton £500 as the King's free gift.

TRIALS OF OFFICE.

He was made Lord Lieutenant of Cheshire in conjunction with Edward Stanley, Earl of Derby, who was also Lord Lieutenant of Lancashire and Lord of the Isle of Man. This division of the office was unusual, and was done in this case because while Brereton represented the Cavalier gentry of the county, Derby's territorial and family influence in the district was so great that he could not be passed by. The arrangement was not satisfactory. There was a great deal of ill feeling between the Breretons and the Stanleys. The latter were suspected of being lukewarm in the royal cause; and 'ten loyal subjects,' headed by Lord Brereton, sent a petition to the King against Thomas Stanley of Alderley, who wished to obtain the honour of a baronet. They protest that their action was not malicious and point out that Stanley had made some persons 'take bonds never to acknowledge a king' and (this, no doubt, was a sore point) his son Peter had bought part of the Marquess of Winchester's estate from the Commissioners of Delinquents' Lands.

Derby ignored Brereton and tried to govern the county as if he did not exist, and this offended and irritated Brereton. There was confusion and complaints sent up to Whitehall. Secretary Nicholas wrote to Derby that 'the King hears the militia is in no good position because the earl will not consult with Lord Brereton about the appointment of deputy lieutenants. All diligence must be used in settling the matter.'

In reply, Derby excused himself by blaming Brereton for not signing the Commissions, and brought down upon himself a sharp rebuke. 'His Majesty is much dissatisfied and begs him to use expedition and let his next letter report his diligence. The reason why Lord Brereton refused to sign the deputations was that the Commissions and instructions had not been sent to him nor his advice taken about Cheshire which the King expects to be done as he is joined in the Commission.'

Matters did not much improve and later on Richard Leigh writes to the Secretary at Whitehall that, having two Lords Lieutenant, he finds it hard to please both. Lord Derby now seeks to oblige all he can and Lord Brereton is so wedded to his own humour that nothing else can please. Some of the country gentlemen sent a request that both Brereton and Derby should be dismissed and Lord Gerard appointed Lord Lieutenant; but this was not done. A hint seems to have been given to Derby to devote himself to his other lieutenancy of Lancashire and his lordship of Man and to leave Cheshire to Brereton.

PETITIONS TO WHITEHALL.

There was a good deal of dissatisfaction in the county and Brereton reported that he was keeping a strict watch. Several of the suspects he arrested and imprisoned in Chester Castle, for the Habeas Corpus Act was not yet passed. One man, John Griffiths, was especially obnoxious to him. He had been a captain in the Parliamentary Army and a dependant of the Stanleys. Lord Derby made him Collector of Excise in the county, although disqualified under the Act of Indemnity from holding Government employment. Him, Lord Brereton clapped into prison together with other persons connected with the government of Chester under the old regime, and naturally they and their friends did their best to make trouble for him.

Petitions were sent to Whitehall that Griffiths might be released so he could attend to the King's business, but Brereton countered them by saying that Griffiths was a seditious person, who tried to prejudice the King and Council against those who opposed his wicked attempts, as most of the gentry in the county would testify. It was not the Excise business that troubled him, for he had offered never to act again if he might have his liberty. He tried to escape from the castle, and, therefore, the writer suspected him of greater matter than had yet been found out.

Brereton complains that he serves the King in a place where he can please no party. One, Zachary Croftin, had left preaching, turned cheese factor and rode up and down the county sowing sedition. After he was arrested he boasted that he had written one bishop silent who could not speak, and another dumb who could not write.

LORD BRERETON'S DEATH.

Part of Lord Brereton's duties was to enforce the laws against Nonconformists. He reports that he took some persons at a Presbyterian Conventicle, but let them go, this being their first fault, on promise not to do the same again and on paying the soldiers who secured them; but others taken at an Anabaptist meeting were sent to gaol, obstinately refusing to give bonds or take the oaths, but saying they must obey the spirits.

Having got all these people into prison and the expected trouble having been averted, the Lord Lieutenant was at a loss to know what to do with them. He therefore applied to London for instructions and an Order in Council was issued directing him to release them all on good security and after they had taken the oaths of allegiance and supremacy. Only Griffiths and another were to be kept and his lordship was to gain proofs against Griffiths.

A month later, February 20th, 1664, in reply to some Government communication, George Brereton wrote that his father was laid up with an excessive cold, but would attend to the King's business so soon as he could come abroad; but he never did come abroad again. His illness worsened and in April, 1664, he died and was buried on the 21st at Brereton. There is no memorial at present to him in the church.

During the last three years of his life he was member of Parliament for Cheshire, but he took no active part in the proceedings and indeed his other duties must have prevented any long stay at Westminster. Two months later Lord Derby showed his relief at getting rid of his troublesome colleague by writing to Secretary Bennet and thanking him for obtaining for him the lieutenancy of Chester without a companion.

TITLE BECOMES EXTINCT.

There was a John Brereton who joined the College Youths in 1657 and was Master in 1660. I should like to think he was Lord Brereton's younger brother, the boy Cavalier of 1642, only he is said by Ormerod, in his monumental 'History of Chester,' to have died in 1656, but I have found some mistake in Ormerod's account of the Breretons and this may be one. John Brereton graduated B.A. at Oxford in 1646 and M.A. in 1649.

Lord Brereton was succeeded by his son William, an amiable and accomplished man, who was one of the founders of the Royal Society. He was educated at Breda at the expense of his grandfather, the Earl of Norwich, and was a poet, algebraist, and musician. Owing to the losses and expenses sustained by his father in the Civil War he was compelled to dispose of the Cheshire estates, and when he died administration was granted to his creditors. He was buried at St. Martin-in-the-Fields. His son John died in 1718 and was succeeded by his brother Francis, who died childless in 1722, when the peerage became extinct.

George Brereton, Lord Brereton's younger son, was at Oxford. He was created Master of Arts by virtue of the King's letter. Anthony Wood says: 'He never suffered anything for the King's cause, yet because he was a lord's son, got a fellowship of All Souls' College, where speaking evilly of Sheldon, Archbishop of Canterbury, and Ralph Snow they found means to eject him thence.' George Brereton afterwards took orders and was a Prebendary of Lincoln.

The above account is based largely on State papers and is taken from a 'History of London Ringing in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries,' now in course of preparation.

THE LADIES' GUILD.

ANNUAL REPORT REVEALS DIFFICULTIES OF ORGANISATION.

The annual report of the Ladies' Guild has just been issued to members. While it reveals general progress, the difficulties attending its organisation are manifested in comments by the district secretaries. The scattered distribution of the ladies makes it difficult to keep the members in touch with the activities of the Guild.

The active members number 297, and the non-ringing life members 65. They are distributed as follows:—

District.	Active.	Honorary.
Central	85	18
Lincoln	25	14
Northampton	37	9
Northern	33	3
Southern	57	9
Western	53	7
Unattached	7	5

The report of the general hon. secretary (Mrs. E. K. Fletcher) states: During the twelve months since the issue of the last report there has undoubtedly been a noticeable increase in the membership and renewed interest in most districts. The time has come to consider the advisability of altering the districts to enable the country to be more adequately covered, and a committee was formed at the annual meeting at Bath to go into the matter.

The year 1937 marks the 25th anniversary of the Guild's formation, and it is hoped to hold a dinner in London to celebrate the event. The date has been provisionally fixed for October 23rd, and it is hoped that as many members as possible will attend.

The district secretaries deserve a hearty vote of thanks for their work during the year, and the best way to show this is by supporting the meetings which they arrange.

DISTRICT SECRETARIES' COMMENTS.

Here are some pertinent extracts from the reports of the district secretaries:—

Central District: On the whole the meetings were very well attended, except the December meeting. Three honorary members and nine ringing members were elected at the meetings, but eleven members have lapsed since the last report was printed.

Lincolnshire District: The balance for the year is not as good as previously, a few members having withdrawn. Those of our branch who really are interested attend every meeting possible, but others are very lax. They pay their subscriptions and there their interest ends. If only members would realise that attendance at meetings is necessary for the welfare of the branch and very much appreciated by the officials, I am sure more would attend. In our district, the vice-president and secretary live 80 miles apart, so that if it were not for the use of cars it would be impossible to carry on, as the railway is hopeless. We find that joint meetings with branches of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild are a great help to all concerned.

Northamptonshire District: Although our district covers a small area compared with other districts of the Guild, it is not proportionately simple or convenient for the arrangement of meetings accessible to the majority of members. Distances of 30 or 50 miles are usual for all of us in turn, therefore an average attendance of about 10 members cannot be considered unsatisfactory. I would appeal, however, to each member to do her utmost to come whenever the Guild visits her neighbourhood; it is when those who could come do not do so that the Guild suffers and is less able to carry out its objects. To keep our membership up to 35 in number we must judiciously encourage all the beginners that we come across, so that they are not lost during the dangerous stage that comes between the novelty of the learner and the accomplishment of the change ringer. The continued support of all the 'old members' is the greatest help. For us all, shall we put our minds to better striking? Following on improvement in our own towers there might be great results on the valuable occasions when we meet.

Northern District: I am pleased to state that the meetings held at Manchester and Ossett were a credit to the district, and I would like to thank members for their support in attending these meetings. At the Manchester meeting a change of secretary is recorded, Miss Cawthorne resigning after six years' service to the district, this making the third change in secretaries since the formation of the district. The accounts of the district are very satisfactory, the subscription receipts being above average and practically up to date.

Southern District: The Southern District has held meetings at Aldershot, Leatherhead, Reading and Ash. The attendance (with the exception of Leatherhead when there was thick fog) has been good, and the secretary wishes to thank her keen supporters who have made the meetings a success. Ten new members have been elected and four have dropped out. The secretary appreciates prompt payment of subscriptions, and thanks those who are always to time.

Western District: The district has made fairly satisfactory progress during the past year. There has been only one new member, and several of the older ones appear to have dropped out. Also subscriptions have not come in as well as usual. On the other hand there seems to be greater interest in the meetings, and the attendance has greatly improved, though this might be still better if some members would really make an effort to be present when the meeting is within reasonable distance.

SIX DORSET RINGERS' FINE RECORD

FORTY YEARS OF BELFRY COMRADESHIP.

When 24-year-old Tom Foote went to the little Dorset village of Marnhull as a young man life seemed to be dull among the village lads. There were no motor-cycles, no films, very few dances, because that was 40 years ago.

So he got other five bachelors together, and in November, 1896, started a bellringing team at the Parish Church. The six men, all now grey-haired, still wend their way up the belfry steps to the tower, and in completing 40 years' unbroken service as a team they have created a wonderful record.

They estimate that they have rung for 10,000 hours.

And one of them, Alfred Drew, who is 75, has probably rung for many hours longer than that, for he has been sexton of Marnhull Church for most of his life.

FORTY YEARS TOGETHER.

The ringers of Marnhull, Dorset, who have rung together at the Parish Church for 40 years. Mr. T. Foote (the captain) is seen, congratulating Mr. Alfred Drew (aged 75), the oldest member.

The ages of these six fine old countrymen total 406 years. Mr. Tom Foote, the captain of the team, is 64, Henry Haskett is 73, Mark Denn 72, Walter Drew 62, and John Crew 60.

Mr. Foote started on his bellringing career when he was 17, at Donhead St. Mary in Wiltshire.

'It is extremely difficult to persuade young men to go into the tower nowadays,' Mr. Foote told an interviewer. 'They think too much about town life, the pictures, dancing and going off to the seaside on Sundays. Yet bellringing is as fine and healthy an exercise as you can find. Look how it has kept this team fit for 40 years.'

Once in the days of a former Rector this Marnhull team resigned, and the reason provides a funny story. Henry Haskett was a maltster, and maltsters had to work every day of the week. Henry was often busy at the kiln on Sundays, but he managed to take his 'rope' in the tower all the same.

ROUND BLOCKS AND TRANSPOSITIONS IN PEAL COMPOSITIONS.

BY GEORGE BAKER.

Some credit for this latest discovery of mine is due to Mr. A. G. Driver, of Belvedere, Kent, because it was a doubt expressed by him about the relationship of Middleton's peal of Cambridge Surprise and a similar peal that led me early in November to test these two peals to try and find out whether Round Blocks and Transpositions existed in peal compositions as well as in Methods, Principles and Systems.

They do exist, and the three symmetrically arranged peal compositions which follow together with their Round Blocks and Transpositions prove the fact indisputably.

No. 1 for 2nd's place Methods.

W. M. H.	23456	2nd part.	Round Blocks.	Transpositions.
—	26435	x 45623	= 46325	52643
—	43265	x 62453	= 54263	46532
—	52436	x 34625	= 54632	35264
—	42635	x 64523	= 42635	23456

Composed November 3rd, 1936, by George Baker.

No. 2 for 8th's place Methods.

O. F. I.	23456	2nd part.	Round Blocks.	Transpositions.
—	63254	x 45362	= 65324	65324
—	25346	x 36524	= 46325	34562
—	35264	x 56342	= 35264	23456

N.B.—No. 2 peal is No. 1 peal converted from 2nd's place methods to 8th's place methods. The Round Blocks are the same in both peals; where they appear to differ, the proving value of either shows they are one and the same Round Block.

No. 3 for 8th's place methods.

F. I. O.	23456	2nd part.	Round Blocks.	Transpositions.
—	35426	x 56234	= 36524	36524
—	23564	x 35642	= 34562	65243
—	32465	x 53246	= 62345	36524
—	63254	x 45362	= 65324	42635
—	35264	x 56342	= 35264	23456

No. 3 peal was the first of the two peals published in 'The Ringing World' on November 27th last. Three of the Round Blocks are foreign to the first two peals, so it is not the same composition.

The three peals here given have regular part-ends, and all are symmetrical in their Bob formations, consequently 'Rounds' turns up as the last row of transpositions, as it does in Methods, Principles and Systems that are symmetrically constructed.

Where the first part of a peal contains more than five courses, or where the part-ends of a peal are irregular, or where the Bob formations are asymmetrical, as in the following peals, 'Rounds' will not turn up as last row of Transpositions.

Middleton's peal of Cambridge.

M. W. H.	23456
—	43652	x 25463	= 65243	65243
—	56234	x 64352	= 36524	53462

—	52364	x 63542	= 54263	26354
—	35264	x 56342	= 35264	65243

A similar peal: Wrong before Middle:

W. M. H.	23456
—	52436	x 26534	= 36524	36524
—	45623	x 32465	= 65243	42356
—	36524	x 54263	= 46532	36524
—	53624	x 25463	= 52643	23456
—	65324	x 42563	= 65324	65324

N.B.—Three of the Round Blocks of Middleton's differ from the similar peal, so they are not the same compositions.

But one Sunday Henry was very busy at his work—and he was hungry. So when he dashed into the bell tower he started to munch a biscuit. Alas! he was caught by the Rector, who said, 'I won't have bellringers taking refreshment in the tower. If they can't wait till the ringing is over I would rather they did not come at all.'

So the bellringers in sympathy with hard-worked Henry Haskett resigned in a bunch.

But the Rector soon discovered his folly, and before the next Sunday he had repented, and the six ringers were in their places.

And they will be in their places on New Year's Eve to ring the old year out and the new year in.

SUFFOLK GUILD'S APPRECIATION OF UFFORD BELLS. BEST GOING RING IN THE DIOCESE.

A meeting of the Suffolk Guild was held at Ufford, the bells newly rehung, with four new bells, being a great attraction. Fifty-two sat down to tea, provided by Mrs. Drake. Mr. J. P. Fidler represented the founders, and Mr. Ernest Bilney, the churchwarden of Woodbridge, was elected to the chair.

Mr. Charles Mee was also present, and much satisfaction was expressed at the first-rate work he had put in in repairing the tower and making it fit for the new bells, and in altering the position of the clock. The fine tower at last now looks as it should, instead of one window being blocked out by a badly painted clock face.

Much appreciation was also shown for the more comfortable arrangements of the tower, now the best appointed, and containing the best going ring of bells in the diocese.

A collection was made, amounting to 28s. Thus the Guild has now raised more than the £10 required to fit the frame for some trebles to be added later.

A vote of thanks was passed to Messrs. Taylor and Co. for sending such a good ring of bells to the diocese.

The Guild met at Framlingham on December 12th, and ringers were present from Ufford, Little Glemham, Hacheston, Framdsen, Diss and Debenham. They came from all quarters by bus, motor or cycle, and they first met at the Parish Church of St. Michael. The ringing included Bob Major, Grandsire and other methods.

After wards the party of 17 sat down to tea at Simpson's restaurant, and a business meeting followed, at which Mr. G. Berry presided.

The Rev. H. Drake, hon. secretary, presented a report, which showed the Guild had had a successful year.

It was decided that the next meeting should take place in February at Stowmarket.

A vote of thanks was passed to Canon H. C. O. Lanchester (the Rector) for the use of the bells, and two new members were elected.

Handbells were brought into use on the second visit to the tower, after which further ringing took place on the tower bells. Later a visit was made to Dennington.

YOU CAN HELP.

In nearly every belfry there are ringers who do not buy 'The Ringing World.' We ask those of our readers who realise the importance to the Exercise of a ringers' paper to give us their help in increasing the circulation.

Get your friends to start the New Year by becoming regular subscribers to this journal. It will increase their own interest in ringing. Give them this form and ask them to fill it up and hand it to their newsagent.
