FOURPENCE

FROM to-day the price of 'The Ringing World' will be fourpence. The decision to increase the price was taken last Whitsuntide at York. There was no other alternative. An examination of the accounts showed that it was an impracticable proposition to produce a 12-page paper for 3d., but that it would be possible to give our readers 16 pages if the price was increased to 4d.

The Editor also wanted a 16-page paper. While he realises that to ringers peals are news, he has been conscious for many months of the limitations of space. A severe curtailment of reports at times was necessary, and special articles which were such a feature during the editorship of Mr. J. Armiger Trollope, could rarely be entertained. There are other directions in which the extra space could be used with advantage. To fulfil its rightful position there should appear regularly in 'The Ringing World' instructional articles, and an eminent writer has kindly undertaken to write a series of articles—firstly from the beginner's point of view and then 'the improvers.' It is quite possible that he will raise points of controversy. We shall have the space to give our readers' observations.

Correspondence has always been a strong feature of 'The Ringing World.' We hope to include in each issue a page of letters. This must not be interpreted that the Editor will publish each letter submitted or the whole of it. A letter has to be weighed-up and its general or particular interest considered. 'The Ringing World' is not a forum for expressing personal animosity against ringers, living or dead, and we trust that correspondents will bear this in mind. This does not mean that the Editor will exercise his personal censorship on views that do not coincide with his own; he is prepared to give reasonable latitude, and an example of this was to be found in the last issue. On the other hand, the Editor, in his duty, has a loyalty and responsibility. First and foremost is that 'The Ringing World' exists for the advancement of church bell ringing, with particular regard to the English method by the art of change ringing. The legislating body for our art are the proprietors of this journal, and it is the Editor's duty to uphold the Rules and Decisions of the Council.

In the matter of advancement of ringing the fundamental principle is unity. The camaraderie in bell ringing is one of the most pleasing features of ringing to-day, and it is the responsibility of 'The Ringing World' to foster and encourage this family spirit. Bell ringers are drawn from all stations in life; no section has a monopoly, a man or woman is judged by two factors—ability and faithfulness to the art. Regularity of service ringing, loyalty to Church and Guild, are qualities we must cultivate if the Exercise is to advance. Above all, we must extend this understanding of the ringing family to newcomers. It is a great heritage that we must maintain.

To the newcomer ringing is fraught with difficulties. The concentration required and its continuous application when the confidence for correct handling and striking has been acquired naturally cause a heavy wastage among would-be recruits. In consequence, no tower can be content with its present strength; there must always be an inflow of new blood. Our columns exist for the encouragement of these newcomers. Space will be allocated weekly for quarter peals, and we trust that conductors will not hesitate to send in first performances.

So far 'The Ringing World' has had a continuous progress in recent years. There was a gain in 1949 of 500 new readers. The general indication in the newspaper industry is that the public have accepted increases and circulation has not suffered. We hope to give as a compensation for the increase in price better service. This can only be secured by greater co-operation. The Editor is very conscious in the running of this journal of the helpfulness of many of his contributors. It is impossible to write personal letters of thanks to each individually, but it is the work of many that enables this family news letter to reach ringers in this country and the world over.

FOUR PEALS IN A DAY

Very few ringing bands would desire to emulate Mr. Harold J. Poole and his Leicester Guild Band in ringing four peals in a day. It is many years since an attempt of this kind has been successful, in fact, it has only twice been performed before.

The first occasion was at Easter, 1913, when a Kentish band rang four 5,000s of Minor in a day. The ambition to ring four Surprise peals was very much in the minds of Guildford ringers, and on August Bank Holiday, 1911, an attempt was planned at Warnham, Sussex. Unfortunately, it happened to be the hottest day of the year. Bristol and Cambridge were rung, but London was lost half-way through.

The second attempt was arranged by the late Mr. W. H. Fussell on January 7th, 1913. Peals were rung at Egham and Staines. The third peal, at Wraysbury, was lost after 2 hours 5 minutes. The fourth tower was to be Old Windsor, and here the ringers rang touches.

On Easter Monday, 1914, four 'Surprise' peals were rung, viz., Bristol at Egham, London at Chertsey, Cambridge at St. Peter's, Staines, and Superlative at Old Windsor. All the peals were conducted by Mr. Wm. Pye, and the ringers were Messrs. W. J. Nudds, George R. Pye, A. W. Grimes, Isaac G. Shade, Reuben Sanders, J. H. Cheesman, Ernest Pye and William Pye. The peals were rung under the auspices of the Middlesex Association.

'They were all old campaigners,' commented the Editor of 'The Ringing World,' 'and we may quite well imagine, made few "bones" about the task. Indeed, the last peal on a tenor of over a ton was rung in six minutes more than three hours, so that it looks as if it was, after all, quite a holiday job.' Of this band only two, Messrs. W. J. Nudds and Reuben Sanders, are alive to-day.

The time occupied in actually ringing was close upon 12 hours—a prodigious day's work for ordinary mortals, comments 'The Ringing World' of that time. 'But then, as ringers, the men who took part are hardly ordinary mortals. All but one were in the 15,000 of Bristol at Hornchurch two years ago, and that one, with four of the others, was in the famous 18,027 at Loughborough in 1909. Nevertheless, four Surprise peals in four methods in one day is a performance of great merit as a feat of physical and mental endurance.'

Of the Christmas Day ringing which was broadcast by the B.B.C., the 1,259 Grandsire Caters at St. Andrew's, Plymouth, has been the subject of congratulatory messages from a number of readers.

Mr. C. Wallater has 'circled' Willenhall, Stas, tower.

That popular veteran of the Oxford Guild,
Mr. George Martin, has now taken part in the first peal of Minor, Triples and Major on the bells of Cookham Parish Church.

Fifteen-year-old Barry Sydenham, of Great Baddow, Essex, who started change ringing a fortnight previously, rang his first quarter on December 19th.

A broadcast is proposed on the Welsh Programme on January 10th, 8 to 8.15 p.m. Bells likely to be on the air are St. Mary's, Haverfordwest, and St. Peter's, Carmarthen.

St. Mary's Cathedral, Glasgow, broadcast in the General and Overseas Service Newsreel at midnight on December 31st. This was the first time St. Mary's bells have been rung at Hogmanay since prior to 1914.

Mr. Roland Biggs asks us to correct the footnote to the peal at Hughenden, Bucks, on December 3rd. It was by a local band and not the first by a local band. The first local peal was rung in 1891 and there have been several rung since.

The peal at Holy Trinity Cathedral, Guild-ford, recorded in this week's issue, was rung on the 50th anniversary of the first peal by the Holy Trinity Society. It was regretted that health reasons prevented the two surviving members, resident in Guildford, who rang in the first peal, from participating in the anniversary peal. They are Messrs. A. H.
Pulling and H. Hutton. The third surviving member is Mr. C. Wiltshire, who now lives in Canada.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Owing to the state of the pinnacles on Worcester Cathedral tower, the bells will not be available for peals or ringers' outings, but only for service ringing at the discretion of the Dean and Chapter. Two of the pinnacles have been repaired, but work on the other two will not be started until about April or May.

The peal at Alresford, Hants, was made possible by two local ringers—Mr. S. McCutcheon and Mr. Eric Lane—standing in at a moment's notice after the band had met two short for Superlative.

Mr. Harold Walker, of York Minster, has completed the circle of St. John the Evangelist's, Mile Platting, Manchester. All the peals were rung on Monday evenings during the past two years.

Heene, Worthing, bells, which have been silent for nearly three years, were able to be rung for early Communion on Christmas morning, thanks to the efforts of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. All friends of Mr. A. W. Groves, a ringer at this church, will wish him a speedy return to health.

Squadron Sergt.-Major P. H. Toccock, who conducted a peal of Bob Major at Cookham on December 17th, began his ringing career in this tower in 1933. He has been in the Royal Armoured Corps for 14 years and is now well known as a back-ender in the Lancashire Association. He has at last achieved his ambition to ring a peal in his home tower.

When a defendant appeared before the Hull Stipendiary charged with thefts from a shop, he said in a police statement that he had broken the window of a Scale Lane shop with a brick and stolen some pens. Nobody had heard it because the church bells were ringing at the time. His arrest must have been a 'Major Surprise.'

BRANCH CHAIRMAN SEVERELY CRITICISED

Letter to 'The Ringing World' Resented

The letter from Group Capt. T. V. Lister, chairman of the Tewkesbury Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, maintaining that to the small town and village band it would not make the slightest difference if the Central Council was disbanded, 'The Ringing World' ceased publication and very little difference if their local association ceased to operate, has brought forth by return of post a number of protests.

Not Independent Units

Dear Sir,—My initial reaction on reading Group Capt. Lister's letter in your issue of December 30th was to wonder why he even reads 'The Ringing World,' much less endeavours to inculcate its Editor with the doctrine of the utter uselessness of Central Council, large guilds and their official journal. After all, in their own good time, these harmless superstructures will collapse and disappear quite naturally, to be mourned by no one except their eccentric adherents.

My second reaction was to wonder if Group Captain Lister wasn't unconsciously fearful that he might be mistaken, that indeed these organisations do matter vitally, and that their very persistence necessitated protest if only to succour his own convictions. It is this possibility, Mr. Editor, which prompts me to trespass on your space.

A little amateur dissection appears to have been responsible for the current re-examination of ideas, with the whole ringing Exercise the patient. It has not taken long to distinguish its backbone, and surely no one will dispute the view that it is composed of all the many hundreds of bands, up and down the country, in small town and large, in village and in hamlet, collectively and not individually, each a minute part of a very great whole. But the acceptance of this view has a crucial implication, which is that individual bands of ringers are not independent units, however much they are deemed to be so, or however much they may behave so. Theirs is a common tradition, and though they may be isolated geographically, the duties they perform Sunday by Sunday are a constant expression of this tradition; and what they do so faithfully and so well was at some time or other in the vanguard of creative ringing thought. In this sense every ringer is indebted to the great leaders of the Exercise, and though at any one moment of time the vast majority of ringers may be quite oblivious of the new paths being opened up by their contemporaries, yet it is these same paths which in succeeding generations will be explored by the average ringer.

Perhaps it is this conception which is lost sight of in regarding the findings of the anatomical dissection as the complete answer, instead of realising that the patient we have been examining is not dead, but growing and developing in stature. We must, in fact, be physiologists as well as anatomists and observe the behaviour of our ringing Exercise if we are to understand just how it is maintained in such a healthy and vigorous state. It is when this is done that the full implication of our examination is appreciated, and we know without one shadow of doubt that our organisational methods, our guilds and associations, our Central Council, our literature, our weekly paper, are the very mechanism and expression of that life and vigour which ultimately means everything to the ringer wherever he may happen to find himself.

I do hope that Group Captain Lister may think it worth while to apply both physiological and anatomical methods in his studies, for I am certain that this will leave him in no doubt as to what his or any ringer's faith should be.—Yours sincerely,

E. St. JOHN HATCHER.

FRAMPTON SUNDAY SERVICE BAND, who rang a peal of Spliced Surprise Minor in 33 Methods on December 10th for the Lincoln Diocesan Guild. The conductor, Mr. J. R. Young, expresses his thanks to Mr. A. Relfe, of Lamberhurst, Kent, Mr. J. Bray and Mr. G. Feirn, of Scunthorpe, for their help to the band with compositions. Names from left to right: T. Cummins, J. R. Kemp, A. Young, A. E. Flatters, E. Fisher and J. R. Young.

'Completely Refuted'

Dear Sir,—Having read the letter of Group Captain T. V. Lister and compared it with other examples of his writings, I have come to the conclusion that he is trying to achieve the fame (or notoriety) in ringing circles that his ringing ability has failed to do.

He writes of controversial matters (see also last paragraph of leader on Lincoln Jubilee) as though he were a great expert on these matters. I challenge both his authority and experience in all ringing matters, especially with regard to isolated towers.

If the conditions he lists are existent in his own area, then he is entirely unfair to judge the Exercise as a whole by his own yardstick.

I have discussed the subject of this and previous letters of Mr. Lister (pardon, Group Captain!) with many ringers and we are convinced that his whole object seems to deprecate any ringers who have made progress in ringing circles, and, on the whole, he appears to enjoy insulting the Exercise on the slightest excuse.

With regard to isolated towers, I think I can claim to have been in more such towers in various parts of the country than Mr. Lister ever will, and can completely refute his statements with regard to interest in their associations, the Central Council and 'The Ringing World.' After all, where would we be without them?

Remember, all grapes are not sour, in fact those nearer the top of the vine are sweeter and better by being closer to the sun, but one will not reach them by standing and wailing. One has to reach them by one's own efforts with perhaps a little assistance, but it is useless 'flogging a dead horse.'

With every good wish for 1950, Yours sincerely,

WILLIAM A. THEOBALD.

Holloway, London.

KEEP RINGING ALIVE IN DEVON

Dear Sir,—Just a little bit of news for you from a struggling band in North Devon (the home of 'Stoney'), where change ringing isn't heard in many towers.

We have a ring of eight here, tenor 10½ cwt., but unfortunately not an eight-bell band at the present time.

When the late war started we had a very promising eight-bell band, but when the ban on ringing was lifted interest had gone with some of the band. We are now practising Bob Minor and I hope it won't be long before I am able to send you a report of a quarter peal being rung.

Perhaps you are wondering how change ringing got here. In June, 1912, I came here from Taunton, taking charge of the place under the Ilfracombe Gas Co., retiring August last. At that time there was a ring of six bells, bad going, and a stoney band which I could not interest in change ringing.

In 1920 the band was in a bad state. Consequently the then Rector asked me to take charge of affairs and see what I could do. By July, 1922, I got the bells recast into eight, complete with new cage and fittings, by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and a nice band of learners.

In July, 1924, we rang our first peal of Grandsire Doubles, 4.6.8 covering. Exactly when we rang our first quarter peal of Grandsire Triples I can't recall from memory, but by 1939 we had a very sure band for quarter peals of Grandsire Triples.

I could not get them to go for a peal. The only peal of Grandsire Triples rung here was by a mixed band, conducted by the late W. J. Jeffries, of Deptford, in 1927. I rang the sixth.—Yours faithfully,

A. H. HAYWARD.

Combe Martin, Ilfracombe.

A LEICESTER WELCOME

Mr. S. Harrison, steeplekeeper of St. John the Divine's, Leicester, has received the following letter of thanks from the Rev. Gordon Strutt, thanking those who participated in the peal of welcome to him on December 3rd upon his appointment as priest-in-charge of St. John the Divine's.—

'I would like you to convey to those who had any part in the ringing of the welcome peal my deep appreciation of their kind thought and my thanks for the energetic way in which they expressed it. It was a grand gesture. Every good wish, yours sincerely, Gordon Strutt.'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE YEAR AT ISLEWORTH

Dear Sir,—Since the smallest unit of organised ringing and the basis of the structure which builds up through the associations and guilds to the Central Council is the local company, we felt you might care to have details of some of the landmarks which have indicated the progress of the Isleworth company during the year.

For Sunday services the number of true touches exceeding 1,248 changes actually rung at Isleworth has been 26. These quarter peals have consisted of 15 different lengths, i.e., 1,248, 1,259, 1,260, 1,263, 1,272, 1,277, 1,278, 1,280, 1,287, 1,299, 1,344, 1,350, 1,400 and 1,440.

The balance between various methods was as follows: Grandsire Triples 1, Stedman Triples 5, Erin Triples 1, Bob Major 2, Cambridge Surprise Major 3, Kent Treble Bob Major 1, Grandsire Caters 4, Stedman Caters 5, Erin Caters 1, Kent Treble Bob Royal 1, Cambridge Surprise Royal 1, Yorkshire Surprise Royal 1.

Additionally a quarter peal of Kent Treble Bob Maximus was rung for Sunday service at another tower.

In the majority of quarter peals only Isleworth members have taken part, and in no single case have more than three visitors participated. Five peals have been rung at Isleworth in which no more than two visitors have taken part, and among these was a peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal rung entirely by constitutionally elected members of the local company.

For the Mission to London six Isleworthians took part in the first peal for over 35 years on the bells of St. Stephen's, Westminster. Throughout the year initial training of recruits has continued unabated. If this may be considered as some measure of success it is due entirely to co-operation and team work by all concerned and not to one or two individuals. This is reflected in our quarter peals of Stedman and Yorkshire Surprise Royal on the last Sunday we have been able to ring.

You will, after reading the foregoing, realise our feelings at having to stop our activities in the tower until extremely extensive structural renovations have taken place. The tower is now encased in scaffolding and work should start almost immediately. The spaces which form a large nest for bees and the many holes, some reaching up to 3ft. 6in. into the walls of the tower, making ideal homes for the pigeons, will then no longer exist, and the external surfaces will once again be fit to withstand the ravages of the weather for a few more hundred years.—Yours sincerely, H. W. ROGERS.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY'S OLD SIX

Dear Sir,—Some weeks ago the name of J. H. W. White, of Coventry area, was mentioned in the gossip column. Now this week the name of A. W. Brighton. I met Mr. White about a year ago and in conversation he told me he had in his early days rung on the old six bells at Westminster Abbey. I know Mr. Brighton has.

I and six more rang them for the last time on November 11th, 1918—the original Armistice Day. Of that band only G. M. Kilby and myself are alive. This has made me wonder how many ringers are alive now who have rung on the old six of Westminster Abbey.—Yours sincerely, W. H. HEWETT.

119, Coleman Road, S.E.5.

YORKSHIRE SURPRISE AT GAINSBOROUGH

Dear Sir,—I should like to point out to the conductor of the peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major, rung at Gainsborough on December 3rd last and claimed to be the first peal on the bells, that a peal in this method was rung there on December 12th, 1925, conducted by the late Mr. John Flint.—Yours faithfully, Ecclesall, Sheffield 11. F. B. DITCHER.

STEDMAN AND CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

Dear Sir,—With reference to the broadcast of bells during 'Saturday Night Theatre' on November 19th, your correspondent, Mr. P. J. L. Purslow, is mistaken in his assertion that Christopher Columbus, on his triumphant return from the voyage of discovery of 1492, was greeted by a well-struck touch of Grandsire Triples.

I, too, heard the broadcast and the method was clearly Stedman, a fair part of the plain course being used.

As I have previously informed you by letter, I wrote forthwith to the B.B.C. pointing out, amongst other items, that the author, Fabian Stedman, was not born until almost precisely a century and a half later.

I do not believe that a definite record of bells only was used at all, in fact to me the broadcast of the 'celebration din' sounded suspiciously like a repeat recording of the jubilant noise we were privileged to 'listen in' to from Westminster on the occasion of the Royal Wedding when excellent Stedman Triples on bells (the Abbey's, I surmise) could similarly be heard in the background.

So far, however, the B.B.C. has not satisfied my curiosity regarding this matter?—Yours faithfully, T. R. BUTLER.

Orrell Park, Liverpool 9.

P.S.—What a preponderance of Grandsire and chiming we had in 'Christmas Bells' this year, there being one exception only! Are we to take it that the method Stedman is now becoming extinct?—T.R.B.

RECORDING WAS FROM LAVENHAM

Dear Sir,—I, too, heard the bells ringing in Saturday Night Theatre on November 19th. On writing to the B.B.C. I was informed that they were the bells of Lavenham, Suffolk, ringing Stedman Triples and not Grandsire as Mr. P. J. L. Purslow stated.

There was never any change ringing done in Spain during the 1400's or at any other time, and Mr. E. Morris in his book, 'The History and Art of Change Ringing,' bears this out by quoting the following: '... The most discordant and unceasing peals...' There is also an excellent illustration of Spanish bells being rung in this work.—Yours faithfully, Nailsea, Somerset. M. J. HORSEMAN.

ST. MARGARET'S BELLS

Dear Sir,—Like Mr. Bayles, I have been hoping to see a letter from somebody who was taking part in the St. Margaret's peal on October 15th.

He may be assured, however, that the bells he heard were those of St. Margaret's, as the following incident will prove. In January, 1943, the Middlesex Association held a meeting at St. Giles-in-the-Fields, with the bells of St. Margaret's available in the evening. I was at St. Giles', but when ringing finished there returned home. As I reached my house I heard faintly on the radio eight bells. Before I could turn to 'The Radio Times' to see what programme was on, Big Ben struck nine o'clock. I then realised the bells were those of St. Margaret's: I listened hard and recognised them quite definitely. But why only eight?

The following morning a ringer who had been there told me that a rope broke (I think the second) early in the evening, and they carried on on the back eight only.—Yours faithfully, E. J. LEVERSUCH.

Stanmore, Middlesex.

Mr. B. J. Ongley, of Goostrey, Crewe, writes: We at Goostrey also heard part of the peal on the air.

BUCKINGHAM. — On Dec. 24th, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: W. H. Yates (first of Triples away from tenor) 1, F. Townsend 2, H. Jones 3, J. A. Waite 4, F. Vickers 5, E. Nicholls 6, W. Yates (cond.) 7, G. W. Holland 8.

Shipway's Principle

Dear Sir,—The method in last week's 'Ringing World' over the initials A.Y.B. is Shipway's Principle, first published in Shipway's 'Campanalogia' in 1816.

Those who possess the reprint will find the Minor and Major with a different start on page 106.

Fabian Stedman understood the meaning of symmetrical construction, hence the way he gave the Doubles in Stedman.

Shipway did not understand, nor does York-Bramble understand, or they would have given the Minor and Major as below.—Yours faithfully, GEORGE BAKER.

120 YEARS TOO LATE

Dear Sir,—Mr. Yorke-Bramble is at least 120 years too late. 'Steadfast' is Shipway's Principle, published on page 106 of his book; two peals at least of the Major were rung well over 40 years ago.

'This system,' said Shipway, 'being nearly allied to Stedman's principle, it will not require much additional explanation.' Perhaps it is as well that he had never studied 'Grid Analysis' and the like.—Yours faithfully, Crayford, Kent. E. A. BARNETT.

AN OLD BELL

Dear Sir,—I enclose particulars of a bell which has recently been found in our neighbourhood. Do you think Mr. E. Morris or Mr. F. Sharpe or any reader of 'The Ringing World' could tell me if it has been a sanctus bell?—Yours truly, S. FLINT.

Maghull, Liverpool.

Particulars of bell: Weight about $\frac{1}{2}$ cwt.; canons and argent; 5 moulding wires round shoulder; 2 moulding wires above sound bow; 2 moulding wires below sound bow; date, MDLXXXIIII round sound bow.

Above the sound bow on the waist of the bell are four raised castings (cast with the bell) representing the Madonna and Child. On the opposite side a saint holding a staff with flowing pendant on which are the words Agnus Dei and a small animal at the foot on the right-hand side. St. George and the dragon opposite side a crucifix. There is no founder's mark. The bell has a fairly long waist. The clapper staple is cast in the crown of the bell and the clapper hooks on. That says the bell has never been hung for ringing.

CHURCH BELLS OF CORNWALL

Dear Sir,—Could any reader please tell me if a book on the church bells of Cornwall has ever been published, and, if so, where I could obtain a copy?—Yours faithfully, F. STUART WORTH.

Ward D.2, R.N. Hospital, Plymouth.

OBITUARY OF THE WEEK

MR. J. BARRICK.

The death took place of Mr. Joseph Barrick at Barrow-on-Humber, his native village, on December 9th, at the advanced age of 85 years.

Of a kindly and quiet disposition, Joe was one of the original band which first learned change ringing at Holy Trinity Church. A member of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild, he had only rung two peals during his 50 years of ringing, and up to the ban could always be relied upon to take his full share of Sunday service duties.

After the funeral on December 12th, a well-struck quarter peal of Plain Bob Minor was rung half muffled.

MR. WILLIAM COBB.

An outstanding peal ringer of the last century, Mr. William Cobb, died at Dorchester, Oxon, on December 12th, aged 84 years. The funeral was at Dorchester on December 15th.

Mr. Cobb from 1886 and for about 10 years was a regular performer in peals with the Rev. F. E. Robinson and Mr. J. W. Washbrook. His most prominent effort was on August 6th, 1888, when they met at Drayton at 6 a.m., and after losing a peal of Cambridge Surprise before breakfast through a rope slipping wheel, scored three peals that day—5,056 Cambridge Surprise in the morning, 5,088 Superlative Surprise in the afternoon and 5,184 Double Norwich in the evening.

The band consisted of W. Cobb, F. Field, C. Trinder, H. Fruin, T. Short, H. D. Beteridge, Rev. F. E. Robinson and J. W. Washbrook (conductor).

MR. W. J. POWELL.

A well-known bellringing personality in the South Wales area, Mr. William James Powell, of Llanfrefcha, Monmouthshire, has passed away after an illness of more than three years.

Mr. Powell, who had attained the age of 69, had lived in Llanfrefcha all his life, and had been associated with every local institution. He was a tireless worker in connection with any church work, being also a chorister and sidesman at the Parish Church. He was instrumental in the augmentation of Llanfrefcha bells, from six to eight.

He had taken an extreme interest in the training of young ringers, both boys and girls, and had shown great patience and understanding in this respect. Mr. Powell and his young band of ringers were well known at association meetings.

He also served on the Parish Council as well as the Parochial Church Council for many years, and had performed various offices in connection with these Councils. He was a Past Master of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association.

Mr. Powell, who had rung 16 peals, including a peal of Cambridge Surprise Minor, will be sadly missed by all local ringers and by all who had been associated with him.

The funeral took place at his own church, All Saints', Llanfrefcha. The cortege was met at the church by the choir, who led the procession into church. The service, which was choral, was conducted by the Vicar of Llanfrefcha, the Rev. Rhys Morris (Rural Dean), who was assisted by the Rev. Ivor J. Richards (Vicar of Crumlin). Both clergy are members of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association.

Representing the bellringers at the service were Mr. Fred J. Hannington (secretary of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association), Mr. John W. Jones (All Saints', Newport), Mr. George Large (St. Woolos', Newport), Mr. Alsop (Ebbw Vale), Mr. Leslie Bainham (All Saints', Newport), Mr. Charles Greedy, Mr. W. Phillips (both of St. Woolos', Newport), the Rev. Ivor J. Richards (Vicar of Crumlin) and Mr. Robert E. R. Smith (Llanfrefcha).

MR. R. H. SMITH.

The Melton Mowbray district has lost another old ringer and friend by the death at Nottingham General Hospital of Mr. Richard Henry Smith, in his 72nd year. He had lived in the village all his life.

Mr. Smith was a member of the Framland Association for 50 years and of the Leicester Diocesan Guild. A stalwart of Oddfellowship, he was secretary of the 'Queen Adelaide' Lodge from January, 1907, till June, 1949. He was also a member of the Church Council.

For 46 years he was employed as an engine driver by the Staveley Iron Ore Co. and upon his retirement acted as village postman. He rang at Long Clawson.

The funeral took place on Sunday, December 11th, at St. Michael's Church, the Rev. E. W. J. Bennett officiating. The service was very largely attended and the Oddfellows' funeral address was given at the graveside by the Grand Master of the Nottingham District, Bro. W. J. Whitehead. The bells were rung half-muffled.

To his memory on December 23rd a quarter peal of Doubles (480 St. Simon's, 480 Plain Bob and 300 Grandsire) was rung with the bells half-muffled by A. A. Hose 1, A. M. Hose 2, E. Tinsley 3, W. S. Hose (cond.) 4, J. H. Cook 5.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL ASSN.

TEWKESBURY BRANCH.

The annual meeting of the Tewkesbury Branch took place at Ashchurch on December 17th and was attended by some 35 members representing nearly all the towers in the branch.

The Master of the Association (the Rev. N. E. Hope) also attended, as well as friends from Bristol, Clevedon, Coventry, Gloucester, Badsey and Hinton-on-the-Green. The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. P. Harvey, who also gave a very forceful address. An excellent tea was served in the Village Hall and was followed by the business meeting, which was presided over by the Master, Mr. W. Kynaston.

Five new performing members and one honorary member were elected. The retiring officials were re-elected for another year, viz., Group Capt. Lister (chairman), Messrs. E. T. Newbury (hon. secretary) and W. Poulton (representative on Management Committee).

Group Capt. Lister referred to the passing of two branch members, and the members stood in silence for a few moments. Ashton-under-Hill was chosen as the place of the next meeting. Ringing during the afternoon and evening ranged from rounds to Cambridge Surprise.

MR. A. H. BEAMISH'S 100 PEALS

Mr. A. H. Beamish, Master of the Coventry Diocesan Guild, has completed his 100 peals. They have been rung in 25 towers and for five associations. His list is as follows:—

Grand total 100 (21).

AN EXAMPLE FROM KENT

The Canterbury Diocesan Notes, a monthly news letter for clergy and people which has a circulation of 43,000, contains the following explanatory article explaining change ringing organisation to non-ringers. We commend it to other diocesan guilds and associations as useful propaganda.

THEY RING THE BELLS.

Among the various associations connected with church life of to-day, little is perhaps known of those which have for their title The County Association of Change Ringers, or in some cases The Diocesan Guild or Society of Ringers, which take their name from the county or diocese in which they are situate. The Kent County Association of Change Ringers is one of the most progressive, with a membership of over one thousand practising ringers.

The Kent Association, of which the Archbishop of Canterbury is president, was formed in the year 1880 and its objects are:—

- (1) To cultivate and encourage the good old English art of change ringing, and to create a more general interest of it.
- (2) To secure the due recognition of ringers as church officials and the proper care and use of bells and belfries.

Since those early days much has been accomplished. In the past, ringers had been looked upon as a body apart from the Church and rarely visited by the incumbent, but to-day there is close unity between clergy and ringers, and in many parishes the incumbent is both a ringer and member of the association.

A popular ringing member was the late Canon F. J. O. Helmore, Precentor of Canterbury Cathedral, who from the year 1891 to 1929 was general secretary of the Association, and on October 2nd of this year a memorial in the form of a solid oak door leading to the belfry of the Cathedral was dedicated.

Following the resignation of the late Canon Helmore, Mr. Frederick M. Mitchell, of Milton-next-Gravesend, was appointed as hon. secretary and treasurer, and after serving in this capacity for 17 years, resigned as secretary, but still remains as treasurer. Mr. Mitchell has been an official of the Association for the past 37 years and a ringer at Milton-next-Gravesend for 40 years. To mark the occasion a peal of Stedman Triples (5,040 changes) was rung at the Parish Church on Oct. 1st, 1949.

Another honoured member is Mr. Edward S. Ruck, of Willesborough, near Ashford. Although well over 80 years of age, Mr. Ruck is still an active ringer at Willesborough and is the only foundation member of the Association remaining to-day.

Any interested in the work of the Association should communicate with the Hon. Secretary, Mr. G. H. Spice, 35, Woodstock Road, Sittingbourne, Kent. F.S.M.

CHRISTMAS AT CHICHESTER

Handbells were rung by the Chichester Cathedral ringers accompanying the Chichester Amateur Operatic Society when they took their turn singing carols round the Christmas tree which had been erected by the Rotary Club in the Cathedral grounds for their Christmas charitable appeal.

Grandsire Triples were rung to introduce the programme and descants were rung with 'Past Three O'clock' and 'The First Noel.'

A MITCHAM REUNION

There was a reunion at Christ Church, Mitcham, on December 10th, when a peal of Plain Bob Minor was rung as birthday compliments to Mr. H. Allen and Mr. A. Millar. The peal was arranged to enable Messrs. S. Howard, J. Tomsett, H. Allen, S. W. Ball and J. W. Parslow to meet again at the church where they used to ring in their boyhood days. Mr. Allen rang more than half the peal with a single rope, the tail end having come untucked early in the fourth 720.

'The Certain Ringing Clergyman' Replies

Dear Sir,—I feel that Mr. Birmingham has by implication judged me a little harshly. It is surely better for a clergyman interested in ringing matters to serve a parish where there are bells, for by so doing he can make a contribution towards strengthening the relationship between the clergy and ringers. It is well known, and a matter for regret, that some clergy serving churches with fine bells hardly know who ring them.

If I were a ringer of the calibre of the late revered Canon Coleridge one might be tempted to neglect one's parish for the personal enjoyment of ringing. But as a mere tyro I find that the claims of parish life prevent me from making more ringing progress. Are not most ringing clergymen in the same position—trying to serve sincerely, with honesty of purpose, and keeping first things first?

Mr. Birmingham's priest friend who works without a stipend presumably has private means. He is fortunate, but under a wrong impression. For did not the Blessed Apostle say that those who preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel, and is not the labourer worthy of his hire? The income of a clergyman is generally referred to as a stipend, i.e., money given to him to enable him to live, as distinct from a salary, which is a fixed payment for work done. Pedantic though this may be, it contains the right idea, viz., that a clergyman is not paid for his services as such.—Yours faithfully, L. J. BIRCH.

Hanbury Rectory, Bromsgrove.

'THE LORD BE THANKIT'

Dear Sir,—I was much impressed by the article, 'The Lord be thankit,' on the front page of the last issue of 'The Ringing World.' It seems to set forth the spirit which should prevail in all belfries and does exist in the little country church where I ring. We have but five bells and ring only call changes (at least at present), but we ring our 'simple praise' every Sunday.—Yours truly,

LINCOLN'S EARLY RINGERS

Dr. Srawley, of Lincoln, in his recently published book on Lincoln Minster, writes: 'One other interesting corporation connected with the Cathedral establishment is "The Company of Ringers of our Blessed Virgin Mary of Lincoln."

'This arose out of a voluntary association of bellringers in the City of Lincoln, the members of which drew up a set of ordinances in 1612, which was confirmed by the Dean and Chapter in 1614 in Letters Patent, which granted to the ringers access to the south-west tower and the adjoining Ringers' Chapel (the old "altar of the pele"), and placed them under the control of the Clerk of the Fabric and their own Master, providing them also with an annual grant of money.'

This company of ringers is the earliest known society of the kind, and preceded by 15 years the celebrated Society of College Youths. The names of the masters, wardens and other ringers between the years 1614 and 1725 may still be seen painted on the walls of the Ringers' Chapel.

sarily the best ever—probably a long way short of it. But it has helped others and should help you in a supplementary way.

Later on we may be able to find room to answer a question or two of general interest to those like yourselves; but for the present, good progress in your ringing study and practice!—Yours very truly,

CORN. R. STONE.

Mainly for Beginners (1)

(A series of open letters)

Dear Initiates.—There is a time of beginning for everything; so welcome, in this New Year of Grace, 1950, to the great Brotherhood of Ringers; which, though English in origin, and to-day is still confined to English-speaking peoples, is nevertheless world-wide. With its roots deep in tradition, its nature is unique; and its pursuit, as an adjunct of Christian worship, remains a challenge to the atheistic outlook of totalitarianism.

Here is recreation for hand and brain, together with a passport to human fellowship in every Christian land. Here is a fraternity which, once joined, should never be left, for the loss is invariably mutual. Here, too, is indeed a lifelong source of refreshment and delight!

From the physical—even the strongest alive cannot 'ring' a bell without training—to the mental—even the cleverest academician cannot compete with the simple rustic unless he has developed his powers of continued concentration—there is always scope for pleasurable exercise.

And now you are to be one of this great Exercise! Consider well, therefore, the trouble and patience your instructor must bestow upon you to set you on the road to become a good ringer; and, having once set your hand to the rope, turn not away from it. Reward your tutor's care by your own painstaking and persevering effort, and your mutual joy may then be full.

In this first chat together we can do little more than gain some idea of what ringing means and involves and of the stages of progress to be aimed at. And we may say, at once, that no matter how skilled you may become in its art, its science has always to offer something new for study and mastery.

What, then, are the main branches of the art? Broadly they comprise:—

1. Bell control—chiming, ringing, raising, lowering.
2. Striking, or control variation, in actual ringing.
3. Tone-telling and rope-sight.
4. Method appreciation. ('Learning the music'.)
5. Change ringing, or the application of (3) to (4).
6. Rob-calling, the making of 'calls' for simple 'touches'.
7. The study of method analysis.
8. Composition.
9. Conducting, ringing maintenance and peal calling.
10. Design or method building.

The order given here is the logical one for intelligent study and undertaking of the whole, though not all fully competent ringers follow it.

While you need not be a musician to become a good ringer, you must certainly develop the use of your ear, so that you can pick out from amongst the others the note, not only of your own bell, but also that of the one striking next to you. A quick eye is the necessary adjunct to the good ear and checks the 'next move.' But we anticipate!

As and when our Editor may be able to let us forgoth in this column we will discuss these stages, up to the point at which we may consider ourselves 'improvers' in the art. Then we may take up the succeeding stages, perhaps, in an Improvers' Column.

In any event, we shall doubtless derive some interest and perhaps a little help. One thing must remain clear—your instructor is right. Don't argue with him! Ask a question or two by all means, but do as he says even if you think it could be done otherwise. There are 'more ways than one of killing a cat,' just as there are more ways than one of teaching a pupil to become a ringer; and what we have to say here is the best we can tell you from our knowledge and experience; but is not necessary.

Dedication

FAIRFIELD, BUXTON.

In 1923, the six old bells of St. Peter's Church, Fairfield, which, as the inscription on the 12 cwt. tenor goes, 'were provided chiefly by the exertions of Matilda Wainwright and Jane Flint in 1867,' were recast by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., Ltd., and rehung in a new iron frame. At the same time pits were provided for the accommodation of two trebles to complete the ring of eight. After remaining empty for 26 years, these two pits have just been filled in.

The new treble bell has been provided by the ringers, whilst the new second was given by the local group of Boy Scouts in memory of their original group Scoutmaster and founder, Mr. William Smith, who lost his life whilst attempting to rescue a man from drowning in the sea.

The bells were dedicated on Christmas Eve. The Vicar, the Rev. S. Williams, conducted the service, assisted by the curate, the Rev. R. J. Rowbury, whilst the Rural Dean, Canon W. H. Green, performed the actual dedication.

In spite of it being Christmas Eve, there was a large number of ringers present from far and near, amongst whom were Mr. W. H. Elkin and Mr. C. K. Lewis, of the Stockport and Bowden Branch of the Chester Diocesan Guild, Mr. J. Worth and daughter from Macclesfield, Mr. J. A. Milner, Disley, and Mr. J. P. Fidler, representing the founders.

After the service touches of Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob, Cambridge Surprise, Stedman Triples and other standard methods were rung on the bells by the visitors, who all stated that the bells are now a grand ring of eight.

For the information of visiting ringers, the practice night is Monday from 7.30 to 9 p.m.

PEAL RINGING, 1948

OWING to a set of unfortunate circumstances we have not until this week been able to publish the Peal Analysis Table for 1948. The six months' delay arose over the sudden illness of Mr. C. Dean, who, in recent years, with meticulous care, compiled these tables, and would have published it within a few weeks of the Central Council meeting at York. The work passed to Mr. Walter Ayre, and a discrepancy of one peal in the total entailed a great deal of research. While late, we feel that the tables should be published as a guide to the future and indicating the trend of ringing in the British Isles.

The popularity of peal ringing is apparent from the analysis. While 1948 set a new high water mark in the history of peal ringing, the closing year will probably record an advance of 200. It is particularly interesting to examine the trend of events since the war. Peals rung in succeeding years have been 1945, 1,304; 1946, 1,795; 1947, 2,174; and 1948, 2,639. There is no question that the number of ringers who enjoy peal ringing is on the increase and peal ringing to-day is not the exclusive monopoly of confined bands of ringers.

Of the 2,639 peals in 1948 2,365 were on tower bells and 274 rung on handbells. There was no appreciable change in 12 and 10 bell ringing, the comparative figures with 1947 being: Maximus 17 (19), Cinques 43 (32), Royal 98 (76), Caters 82 (106). It is on the lower numbers of bells that the advance is most marked with Major 958 (861), Triples 346 (305) and Minor and Doubles 821 (605). The quality of the Major peals calls for comment. Of the 957 peals 426 were in Surprise methods, against 299 the previous year, and 274 in 1946. This is definite evidence of advance and reveals the degree of mastery of Surprise ringing. The order of popularity of standard Surprise ringing is Cambridge 107 (97), Superlative 63 (46), Yorkshire 62 (49), London 45 (49), Bristol 41 (36). Spliced Surprise Major is attracting more interest. The 25 peals were distributed among 13 guilds and associations, with the crowning achievements the peals by the Lincoln Diocesan Guild in 22 methods at Harmston on November 27th.

Double Norwich Court Bob Major was in great favour with 152 peals, against 132 in 1947 and 115 in last year. No fewer than 35 guilds or associations recorded peals in this method. Kent Treble Bob also showed an advance on the previous year with 103 peals against 88. Naturally, Plain Bob Major is still the most popular method; it would be a bad sign for the Exercise if it was not, as it would be a pointer to a lack of peal ringing recruits. The number of peals was 222 against 185.

Triples had an increase, but it was not so marked as Major. There were 346 peals against 305. Grandsire had 199 peals against 166, but Stedman showed a decline, being 124 against 129. The advance from Stedman to Double Norwich or Surprise methods of certain sections of ringers undoubtedly accounted for the drop. Kent County Association rang 20 peals of Stedman, an indication of the hold of the method in their territory.

Five and six bell towers have more than come into their own with 821 peals against 605. The enthusiasm of the Ely Diocesan Guild should be noted with 62 peals, 31 being in one method of Minor. A Guild is, of course, limited in its activities by the bells available. Achievements of special mention were the peals of Minor in 35 methods by the Chester Diocesan Guild and Doubles in 42 methods by the Oxford Diocesan Guild.

There were 274 peals rung in hand against 221 in 1947. This number falls short of the enthusiasm displayed in 1949 at Bournemouth and in Leicestershire. As far as numbers are concerned, the leading Guilds were Winchester and Portsmouth 27, Leicester Guild and Irish Association with 26 each. It was singular that there was not a peal of Maximus in hand rung during the year, but 10 peals of Stedman Cinques. Generally speaking, the quality of the ringing was not equal to 1947, Hertford County and Leicester and Lincoln have the best performances.

For the past three years there has been no change in the position of the three leading associations, viz., Kent County 156 (last year 136), Lancashire 146 (133) and Leicester 141 (125). The fourth position is still held by Chester 128 (120), followed by Oxford Diocesan 124 (110), Lincoln 113 (112), Yorkshire 111 (99), Ely 105 (47), Norwich 96 (73), Bath and Wells 91 (74). The two rivals—the Ancient Society of College Youths and the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths—rang 20 and 23 peals respectively. The Ancient Society had five peals of Cinques against three by the Cumberlands. As to the Universities, Cambridge had 12 peals to Oxford's 10. London University do not appear in the 1948 list, but otherwise every other Guild or Association which recorded a peal in 1947 appears.

LATE NEWS

The longest length of Spliced Surprise Major, 8,498 changes, was rung at Frodsham, Cheshire, on December 31st.

The year at Leicester closed with three peals on December 31st, Aldenham Surprise Major and Maximus and New Cambridge Surprise Royal. Participating in all three were Messrs.
H. J. Poole, H. B. Bowley, P. J. Stan-forth and M. D. Staniforth.

Apropos the Leicester Guild's four peals in a day, Mr. James George recalls the ringing of three peals of Stedman Cinques in 24 hours at Quex Park on April 22nd-23rd, 1906. The first peal started at 6.30 p.m. and ended at 10.8 p.m.; the second from 7 a.m. to 10.31 a.m., and the third from 2 p.m. to 5.34 p.m. The respective conductors were John H. Cheesman, George R. Pye and W.
Pye. Mr. George thinks he is the only survivor of this record.

Regarding the peal of Minor on 19 methods at Copt Oak on December 9th, Mr. C. K.
Lewis only composed the 720 containing 13 methods.

Mr. Frank Blondell has been seriously ill with lung and heart trouble and has to give up ringing and walking. He is living with a married son at 5, Whitton Manor Road, Isle-worth, Middlesex. Frank, who is 79, is very cheerful and faces the new situation philosophically.

Miss Mary Cornell, who rang the treble to the peal of Major at Hatfield, Herts, on Dec.
27th, is the first lady of the Hatfield band to have the honour to ring a peal on the bells.
It was her first attempt and the conductor,
Mr. S. Carter, congratulated her on her steady-ness and striking. The day before at Tewin she had rung the treble to a peal of Minor.

A ringer from Cheshire named Walter,
Whose car has a horrible falter,

Would better by far
Take a rope with his car,
And lead it along by the halter.

Inspired by the ringer concerned failing to arrive for a peal at Birkenhead. The band are indebted to Lester Gray for standing in at a moment's notice.—F.V.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The visit of the Universities Association to Croydon was a great success. Pressure of space necessitates holding the report over to next week. A snag has developed in regard to the Nottingham week (August 18th and 26th), and Dr. Hatcher would welcome a solution. American visitors have booked in advance most of the accommodation.

Miss Dorothy C. Osborn has 'completed the circle' of Davenham tower, Cheshire.

The peal of Rochester Maximus at Macclesfield was the 150th together by John E. Bibby and Edward Jenkins—28 years' happy comradeship.

Nearly 50 years after his first attempt to call a peal of Stedman Triples, Mr. J. D.
Harris, the oldest member of St. Mary's, Portsea, company, completed the performance there on December 31st. In all, however, he has only made five attempts during this time.

A silver-mounted and inscribed walking stick was presented to Mr. T. Upshall on Christmas morning to commemorate his 50 years as a bellringer at Farnham Parish Church. The Rector
(the Rev. G. N. Selby-Lowndes) made the presentation.

The friends of Mr. D. C. Birkinshaw will rejoice to see his name again in a quarter peal at Kilburn. He has now almost completely recovered from the illness with which he was smitten in August, 1947, and we should like to congratulate him on the event.

Congratulations to Norman G. McCrum on ringing his first handbell peal, a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, and two days later in ringing an 'inside' pair to Kent Treble Bob Maxi-mus. Young Terry Thornber rang the tenors to the Maximus and demonstrated his appreciation of rhythm and his ability to keep a good Maximus beat.

THE STORY OF FOUR PEALS IN ONE DAY

THE LEICESTER GUILD'S ACHIEVEMENT

TO ring four peals in one day is a rare achievement, but on a recent Saturday eight members of the Leicester Diocesan Guild were successful in ringing a peal each of Superlative, London and Bristol Surprise Major and Cambridge Surprise Royal.

Such an occasion was a 'red letter' day, and, apart from the general arrangements, it was thought advisable to put the band under 'starter's orders' the night before. Some of the younger members had other ideas about the Friday evening, but the gaffer was emphatic, 'Early to bed, early to rise, is the way to be fit for major surprise.' Nothing was left to chance and the doubtfuls were placed in lodgings under complete supervision and so all went to bed in good time.

The Saturday morning found us astir very early and the two chariots set off to pick up the remainder of the party. Two of the band from the same lodgings were so intent on the peals that they left behind their mid-morning sandwiches. 'Don't worry,' said the chauffeur, 'you can share mine.' It was not very far on the journey—but too far to turn back—when the driver discovered that the sandwiches to be shared had also been left at home. Undaunted and by no means dismayed, we arrived at the Bell Foundry, Loughborough, ten minutes late on schedule. A hot meal had been booked for lunch and therefore no time could be lost.

Superlative Surprise had been chosen for the first peal and the bells set off into changes at 7.45 a.m. It very soon became obvious that lost time would be made up, for the bells settled down to a fast pace in good ringing. The speed was such that any serious trip would certainly have proved fatal. The bells ran into rounds at 9.52 a.m., and the 2 hours 7 minutes taken to ring the peal was one minute longer than the fastest peal on the bells.

Without delay the two cars were soon speeding off to Thurcaston and it was on this journey that those whose memory had not failed them were able to partake of some sandwiches.

Upon arrival at All Saints' Church, we were very pleased to find that Mr. Bindley, the local steeplekeeper, had prepared for us even to the extent of pulling up the bells. Without delay a start was made for the London Surprise at 10.30 a.m., and the bells ran into rounds after a very good peal at 1.12 p.m. Only one member of the band had mentioned blisters after the first peal, and enquiries revealed that they were no worse after the London.

A DIVERSION.

We journeyed on to Anstey, where the mid-day meal had been arranged. Interest was diverted from ringing by two pictures on the walls at the cafe of two pin-up girls. Indeed, one youthful member of the party nearly became cross-eyed in trying to look at both walls at once. It was at the cafe that some of the missing sandwiches caught up with the party, thanks to the ladies, bless 'em.

After the meal it was a case of 'on with the show' and into St. Mary's belfry at Anstey for Bristol Surprise Major. From the indifferent start which was made it appeared that London Surprise had not properly cleared itself from the minds of some of the band, and at the end of the first course the order, 'Stand—that won't do,' stopped the proceedings. A second start—after some good but straight advice—was made at 2.38 p.m., and the bells came into rounds at 5.5 p.m.

On return to the cafe for tea it was found that both pin-up pictures had been placed on the same wall. Obviously to prevent further eyestrain.

Now for the last lap. Michael D. Staniforth and Terence A. Thornber, two very promising ALFRED BALLARD, Central Council member for the Leicester Guild, who rang over 100 peals last year and has been one of the most enthusiastic members.

SHIRLEY BURTON, the Guild peal secretary and member of the Leicester Cathedral company for over 30 years.

HERRICK B. BOWLEY, Deputy Ringing Master at Leicester Cathedral, an enthusiastic peal ringer, exceeded the 50 mark last year.

ALAN JACQUES, the youth from Woodhouse, who rings regularly at the Leicester Cathedral on Sunday evenings. Had rung three peals when he joined the Cathedral company in January, 1949, and compiled a good record for 18 years of age with a total of 76 last year.

NORMAN G. McCURM, a pupil of R. F. Elington, of Anstey, for whom he deputised in the four peals. At home from Oxford for Christmas, he jumped at the opportunity of the four-in-a-day effort.

HAROLD J. POOLE, president of the Leicester Guild and Ringing Master at the Cathedral. He conducted over a hundred peals last year.

WILLIAM J. ROOT, secretary for the Leicester District of the Leicester Diocesan Guild. Member of the Cathedral company and a recognised back-end.

JOHN R. SMITH, the Norfolk born member of the Cathedral band, with which he learned his change ringing. Was looked upon as the mascot of the company. Scored his first 25 peals without losing one. Rang over 50 peals in 1949.

The band would take this opportunity of expressing thanks to those persons who contributed to making this four-peal-in-a-day possible and to the two boys for standing in the Cambridge at short notice.

'A MENACE'

Dear Sir,—For Heaven's sake protect the public and the ordinary ringer from the menace of a number of peals per day competition.—Yours faithfully, W. A. OSBORN.

CAMBRIDGE EXAMINATION DATES

Dear Sir,—Having commenced another year, ringers will soon be looking forward to the coming summer and more ringing outings.

May I ask all those who are arranging outings, and thinking of including Cambridge in their list of towers to be visited, to please avoid the period May 20th-June 10th, both dates inclusive, owing to university examinations being in progress, making it difficult to arrange ringing.

With best wishes to all ringers for happy outings.—Yours sincerely, Cambridge.

H. L. MARTIN.

Mr. W. H. Male, of St. Mary's, Warwick, at the keyboard of his chime of 10 bells. The apparatus and tower were made by his father, Mr. T. Male. The tower contains an eight-day clock.

On Monday, December 26th, Mr. Male tapped 5,040 Plain Bob Caters, from figures, written out in full, it being his own composition, in 3 hrs. 8 mins. He now taps touches of Grandsire Triples, courses of Stedman Triples and Caters and Plain Bob Major without the aid of figures.

youths of 17 and 16 years respectively, had agreed at rather short notice to stand in the last peal upon the suggestion to make it Cambridge Surprise Royal.

On to Loughborough for the 'grand finale,' and at the Bell Foundry we were met by Colin Harrison, who turned up unexpectedly in case of any last fence casualties. Thanks were duly expressed to him for his kind thoughts and interest. There certainly was no lack of enthusiasm in between peals number three and four, and, as one younger member said at the start, 'If I ring in the first three they'll have to chop my hands off to stop me ringing in number four.'

The light ring of ten went off into changes for Cambridge Surprise Royal at 6.32 p.m., and the bells soon settled down to quick ringing as with the Superlative Surprise Major in the morning. The peal finished at 8.57 p.m., taking 2 hours 25 minutes, and is believed to be the quickest peal of Royal on the bells. All finished up in good form, certainly in good spirits, and so ended another day to make history in the annuals of the Leicester Diocesan Guild.

Those taking part in the four peals were:—

Death of Mr. Harry Withers

FEATS AS AN UMPIRE.

The St. Martin's Guild for the Diocese of Birmingham has suffered another heavy loss in the death of Joseph Henry Withers at the age of 74 on Christmas Day. For many years in the employment of Cadbury Bros., of Bournville, he had charge of the fine carillon in the garden village, and gave frequent recitals there and elsewhere. He was acquainted with M. Josef Denyn, the celebrated Belgian carillonneur, and on several occasions was sent abroad by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston to open carillons and to give recitals upon them. These visits included trips to Canada and Scandinavia.

He was a change ringer of outstanding merit, a meticulous striker and a clever conductor, and he had rung peals in all the well-known methods and on all numbers of bells. Despite his great abilities as a ringer, he was not fond of peal ringing, and in all rang only 99 peals. As Ringing Master and ringing member at Edgbaston Parish Church he always stressed the importance of Sunday service ringing and insisted on a very high standard of excellence in this work.

His two most notable faculties, however, were his remarkably sensitive ear and his great talent for tapping changes on bells, piano, carillon or dulcimer. In 1903 he took down from outside the tower every lead of the 14,112 of London Surprise rung at King's Norton Church on May 11th. On October 4th, 1947, he repeated this feat at Heydour, Lincs, when the Lincoln Diocesan Guild beat the King's Norton performance. This peal lasted for 8 hours and 25 minutes, and (be it noted) Harry Withers was then well over 70 years of age.

In the previous year he attended at Oxford when the Oxford Diocesan Guild rang the record length of Stedman Cinques, and for 8 hours and 48 minutes concentrated on umpiring this great peal. On one other notable occasion he conducted a peal of Superlative at Selly Oak Church from outside the tower, notifying the hobs by an electric push-bell communicating with the ringing chamber.

His gift of tapping changes was a constant delight to all his friends. His favourite instrument was his dulcimer, and upon this he would tap any method from Grandire Doubles to Stedman Cinques, including the Surprise methods, and would invite anyone to conduct for him. The writer remembers with gratitude having the great privilege of calling a touch on the Bournville carillon, the changes being perfectly tapped off on the huge clavier by this most remarkable man. All visitors to the Henry Johnson Commemoration Dinner years ago will recollect the delightful entertainment Harry Withers provided with his dulcimer: even now the strains of 'Killarney' and 'The Huntsman Chorus' are full of wistful memories of past dinners, carefree enjoyment, and Harry Withers.

The funeral service was held at Edgbaston Parish Church, conducted by the curate, the Rev. W. Fuller, and the lesson was read by Mr. W. C. Dowding. The widow and family were present, and the St. Martin's Guild was represented by the Master, Mr. A. Walker: the Ringing Master, Mr. E. C. Shepherd; the secretary, Mr. G. E. Fearn; the librarian, Mr. J. F. Harvey; Alderman A. Paddon Smith, J.P., Messrs. H. H. Fearn, J. Eaton, T. H. Reeves, H. Williams, E. T. Allaway, W. T. Froggatt, A. W. T. Cleaver, R. T. Russell, W. Mumford, A. Timmins, W. Dyer and that grand old veteran, W. H. Barber. The bearers were Messrs. Dowding, Dyer (Croydon), G. E. Fearn, Pitter, Russell and Timmins.

The interment was at Lodge Hill Cemetery, and after the committal a course of Grandire Triples was rung over the open grave by A. Walker 1-2, W. H. Barber 3-4, E. C. Shepherd 5-6, G. E. Fearn 7-8. E. C. S.

Canon G. F. Coleridge

FORMER CENTRAL COUNCIL SECRETARY'S APPRECIATION.

Dear Sir,—A few weeks ago the Exercise learned from your journal that we had sustained, as members of the same, from the highest to the lowest, and from the youngest to the oldest, an irreparable loss. I have read and re-read your leader; it is, indeed, a worthy obituary. It frames our beloved friend, from Wordsworth's opening lines to your own conclusion in likening him unto 'one of the pillars upon which the temple of the Exercise has been built.'

You are good enough, sir, to add that you would welcome letters of appreciation of Canon Coleridge's services, covering various aspects of his activities in 'ringing.' And I would like to add a few words as to his presidency of the Central Council, to which we were both elected upon the same day—Whitsun Tuesday, 1921—thenceforward, he and I conducted the affairs of the Council, he as one of its most distinguished presidents and myself as its hon. secretary and treasurer.

It was during the ensuing nine years when we were so closely thrown together (I under the shelter of his wing, as it were) that I got to know and love the man himself. Of course, his very presence, vocation, voice and manner all won immediate attention and respect; there then followed also as a matter of course not only a feeling of regard and esteem, but one of a full confidence. One instinctively knew that, with such a skipper, our ship would ride out all difficulties. I think it was with such a knowledge that the Council justified itself when in 1921, faced with the unexpected choice of filling its two chief posts on the same day by two fresh men, it elected Canon Coleridge and myself to the double vacancy. The confidence at the moment was well expressed by the late W. T. Cockerill, who said, "Our new president can easily 'fill the chair'!" And, with regard to myself—when the late C. D. P. Davies recalled that, though almost unknown to the Exercise till now, I had carried through with skill and success the recent general memorial service for the fallen (war of 1914-18).

And so it turned out. We leaned upon each other, fulfilling our several parts. He with his great knowledge of public affairs, his urbanity—both so delightfully blended to suit either the man or the occasion; and I, for my part, seeing that he was properly supplied with just that modicum of notes upon which he could extemporise, in his happy and well-known manner. He was never at a loss for the fitting word, nor did I ever know him perturbed but once. That was at Chelmsford in 1929. It was a hot afternoon and produced a hot and acrimonious discussion on the 'Methods' debate. (In the midst of the turmoil the late Rev. Law James threatened to resign the Council.)

Upon one occasion that afternoon, when the president was appealing to the noisy, dissident factions, he was directly challenged upon a certain statement. During the interruption he bent and whispered to me, 'That was not exactly as I had meant to express it.' It was, however, a difficult afternoon with much counting of hands, at narrow margins. In the end we sailed out with a sigh of relief, and he gave me his usual parting gift of thanks. 'Many thanks, my dear fellow, for all you have done.' (He never missed a point.)

The day may have left its mark, for a few months afterwards I heard that he was resigning at the next meeting of the Council. This led me to tell him that I, too, had thought of doing so, as I was off to South Africa for a long holiday. But Canon Coleridge and others pressed me to stay on for another year, because it was inadvisable to relinquish the two offices simultaneously, nor was there a suitable secretary in the offing at the moment. Thus it was, by eventually agreeing to return earlier, I had the pleasure of serving under Mr. E. H. Lewis, the new president, and helping to install my successor—the admirable Mr. G. W. Fletcher. Many happy memories stand out from the years we were together. Particularly our going down to Coventry to save the famous bells. We put up a good fight, but lost them. (Though, as the opposing counsel, Sir Charles Maddocks, upon meeting Canon Coleridge afterwards at a City function, told the latter, that the Chancellor's judgment was against the weight of evidence, and that the Exercise ought not to have lost the day, nor Coventry its famous bells.) Another memory, which I often recall, is when we stood together at the Abbey, holding the large wreath, one given by the Exercise, and which we had to lay upon the grave of their 'Unknown Warrior.' As the solemn service proceeded I could not but be impressed by the deportment and gravity of this giant who stood beside me and, indeed, towered over me despite my being well over the 6ft. mark and the 13 stone.

You have, sir, in your obituary, referred to Canon Coleridge's ever alert intellect and his ready sense of humour. The Council has always been fortunate in its presidents, but never more so than during these nine years. I observed that, whenever we had to meet the particular 'authority' of a place, he always had the just punctilio at command, quietly instructing me beforehand as to the part which I had to play in my minor role. Thus the Dean or a Bishop, my Lord Mayor or any other dignitary received a suitable reception, hearty thanks and decorous adieu. (I would receive them at the door and bow them out at the same.)

Yes, the Rev. Canon G. F. Coleridge has left deep imprints in the 'sands of time.'—I am, your obedient servant,

E. ALEX. YOUNG.

Bromley, Kent.

A PEAL IN IRELAND

A peal is a rare occurrence in some parts of Ireland. Mr. John T. Dunwoody gives his experiences of the peal at Ballyleson on Boxing Day.

When we arrived at the church we found that the belfry door could not be locked and to lock the church would not have been permissible. Two of the local ringers appeared on the scene before the start and stated that they would stay for a while during the peal attempt.

After about three-quarters of an hour, they left and must have locked the church on their way out. Shortly afterwards someone started throwing pebbles at the windows of the belfry and cracked some of the panes. About the half-way mark there arrived in the belfry another local ringer, his wife and two children, who sat down and watched the ringing. (We later discovered that this was the stone thrower as he wanted someone to let him in.)

Two more ringers later appeared and one of them tried to start a conversation with the ringer of the treble, only to be ticked off severely by the conductor. Shortly afterwards the family departed with one of the others leaving the other watching the changing very carefully.

Shortly afterwards our friend who had been ticked off for talking appeared with a plate of cake, only to be greeted by a yell from one of the ringers to 'take it out of here.' Later the other ringer left, leaving us to complete the peal in peace.

It showed how much the peal hand were on their toes that they completed the peal without a hitch. In explanation of the local ringers' interruptions, it is only fair to say that they do not practise change-ringing and did not appreciate what a peal meant. Evidently they thought that we could stop and start as we pleased.

CONFIDENCE

RINGING literature is wide and varied. Many writers have with care and thought tried to explain in the simplest language the principles of bell-control, hunting and learning methods. Others have developed the theory of composition and the more complicated matters of proof, while the students of higher mathematics have recently had placed at their disposal a treatise on ringing reduced to pure mathematics.

It is not the Editor's intention to indulge in an article for the erudite on the higher flights of mental gymnastics but to present certain simple and perplexing things that spoil enjoyment in ringing, not only for beginners but for those who regard their knowledge and at times proficiency in the art as well above the average in ringing.

These thoughts are embraced in one word, 'confidence.' Its lack is the enemy of most beginners and is probably the cause of the loss of more recruits to the Exercise than any other source. The realisation that man is the master of the bell and that he has only to apply an elementary degree of intelligence to control at his will several hundredweights of metal, has to be instilled firmly in the mind of each entrant. Some ringers, although they handle perfectly and their ears are attuned to perfect striking, are perpetually conscious of the mass of metal that constitutes the bells. 'I was only scared of a bell once,' remarked a veteran ringer to the writer on one occasion. 'That was when I looked down and saw the huge tenor of St. Paul's revolving. It made me feel my puny insignificance.'

Bells are not toys; nevertheless there should be nothing terrifying about them. The mechanism of the bell should be perfectly understood by each novice as well as the principles of control that exist should a stay break. The physical control of mind and body is essential in ringing. That is why continual practice and the complete mastery of the bell are vital before any advance can be made in the principles of change ringing. The writer is old-fashioned enough to believe that there is no short cut. It is practice, practice and practice, until bell control becomes a sub-conscious act, and the ability to cut in the proper way is an automatic action. Early errors are rarely satisfactorily eradicated, and these are at the root of much of the bad striking, coupled with the fact that there are ringers who do not listen to their own bells. Some months ago a well-known instructor in an article made this testing of the ears of would-be recruits an essential before admission to the belfry.

Unfortunately 'confidence' is not mastered by bell control. It enters into each succeeding stage of ringing. The problem is closely allied with psychology. Many ringers never advance beyond the stage of mediocrity because they are obsessed by an inferiority complex. They are invariably intelligent people; many, in fact, have their mental faculties highly developed in other directions, but they fail to apply that degree of concentration that they would normally employ in other walks of life to the mastery of change ringing.

Why is it? Ringing, like any other pursuit or hobby if the individual desires to reach the front rank, must be a No. 1 in his attention. It calls for a strong measure of specialisation. A correspondent once wrote to the Editor a personal letter in which he deplored that very few of the outstanding personalities in life were ringers. 'Point to a really great man who is a bellringer,' he challenged. The Editor duly replied; it is well known that there are in our ranks people of many callings, but what we desire to emphasise is that the mastery of ringing requires at the time a 100 per cent. concentration.

Nevertheless, there are many who enjoy their ringing and make it their main recreation who fail because of an inferiority complex. We know of ringers capable of performing satisfactorily on a wide variety of methods in their own towers who seem to 'go to pieces' when in the presence of certain of the masters of our art. It is just the lack of that self-confidence that prevents them demonstrating to that degree they know they are capable of. Some might say it is 'the magnetic eye' or 'the evil eye.' The answer can only rest with the individual and an inner determination not to be disturbed by outside influences. A too vivid imagination is also a big contributory factor. The essence of successful peal ringing is a 'one-track' mind during the performance. This self-discipline is just the margin between success and failure. The securing of that perfect discipline is attainable if heart and mind are in the particular task at hand.

The dedication of Burnham bells last Sunday by the Bishop of Oxford created widespread interest. B.B.C. television cameras were in attendance.

Congratulations to Mr. E. H. Lewis, president of the Central Council, on ringing his 250th peal. The honour of calling the peal was greatly appreciated by Mr. T. E. Sone.

Messrs. S. G. Waters and M. S. Cloke have rung Grandsire from Doubles to Caters in a week as well as three other peals.

Mr. John Clements, of Bromyard, Herefordshire, conducted his father's first peal. How many sons have had a similar privilege?

After ringing on and off for nearly 50 years, Mr. C. W. Beecroft, of Earl Soham, Suffolk, has just rung his first Surprise peal. Congratulations!

Tower 'circles': W. J. Button and F. L. Fisher, Ufford, Suffolk; Garnham A. Blaxcell, Debenham, Suffolk; George W. Pipe, Burgh, Suffolk.

Mr. W. J. Nudds writes informing Mr. James George that he participated in the three peals of Stedman Cinques at Quex Park in 24 hours in 1905. Another correspondent mentions two other survivors: John R. Sharman, Cogenhoe, Northants, and H. P. Harman.

In connection with the Henry Johnson dinner on March 4th, the accommodation at the Imperial Hotel is limited to 180. No bedrooms are available at the 'Imperial.' A room for ringers will be at their disposal on Sunday at the Midland Hotel, New Street, City. Those applying to the 'Midland' for accommodation should mention the purpose of their visit.

Barwell, Leics., ringers held a farewell party on New Year's Eve to the Rev. J. D. Wakeling, their secretary and curate, who has accepted an appointment at Cambridge. They hope that their Cambridge friends will carry on with his training where they were forced to leave off.

BELFRY GOSSIP

More than one ringer has written to the Midland Bank protesting against their January advertisement. Writes one critic to the bank: 'I wonder if you realise that the depicting of bellringers handling the ropes with their coats on is an affront to the ringers of England, who, to a man, always take off their coats and ring in their shirt sleeves.' The bank acknowledged the complaint with a handsome calendar for 1950.

The winners and answers of our Christmas Quiz will appear in our next issue.

St. Mary Magdalene's, Holloway, band rang 35 quarter peals for Sunday services during 1950, in which 42 ringers shared.

Mr. Harry Poyner, of Leicester, has during 1949 completed peals of Grandsire Doubles to Cinques on handbells, all with an 'inside' pair.

Regarding the peal of Double Oxford Bob Major at Warminster (tenor 28 cwt.), Mr. A. Patrick Cannon claims that this is the heaviest tenor rung to a peal in this multi-dodging method.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Baldwin, of Chesterton Lane, Cirencester, on their diamond wedding. They were married at Little Snoring, Norfolk, on December 31st, 1889. Mr. Baldwin, who is 87 years of age, was until recently an active Cirencester ringer.

An interesting 720 of Plain Bob Minor was that by the Moor family at Hethersett, Norfolk, on December 28th. Ringers: Selina Moor 1, Lucy Moor 2, Mrs. Frewen Moor 3; Christopher Moor (cond.) 4, Dr. Frewen Moor 5, John Moor 6.

Appropos the peal of Lincolnshire reported on page 4, we are asked to state that Miss Margaret Fidell had previously rung a peal in the method. It was the seven males in the band who rang the method without any previous practice.

UNIVERSITIES' ASSOCIATION REUNION ANNUAL DINNER AT CROYDON

The winter reunion of the Universities Association of Change Ringers was held at Croydon on January 4th. The programme included a visit to Messrs. Gillett and Johnston's foundry; a service in the Croydon Parish Church, taken by the Rev. A. C. F. Davies, assisted by the Rev. C. Elliot Wigg. The lessons were read by Dr. E. St. J. Hatcher and Mr. E. H. Lewis, and the Archdeacon of Croydon preached. Ringing was at St. John's and St. Peter's, arranged by Mr. Dennis N. Layton, who also planned the peal attempts. The service, dinner and local accommodation were arranged by the Rev. A. C. F. Davies.

The president (Mr. E. H. Lewis) presided at the dinner, held at the Greyhound, when the guest of honour was the Archdeacon of Croydon. Others present were the Revs. C. Elliot Wigg (vice-president), A. G. G. Thurlow, A. C. F. Davies, K. W. H. Felstead and F. L. Edwards, Dr. E. St. John Hatcher (hon. secretary).

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Woolley, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Corby, Mr. and Mrs. A. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. P. Gray, the Misses M. Cross, Betty Spice, H. J. Whettam, A. B. Stockdale, J. A. Southerst, Frances Edgar, Benedicta Whistler, M. Kenneley.

Messrs. A. York-Bramble, E. M. Atkins, H. Michael Howard, R. W. M. Clouston, J. P. Crawley, J. R. Worrall, A. R. Guy, Ivor H. Truman, P. T. Robbins, W. E. Court, P. R. Layton, P. R. Blackman, R. F. B. Speed, S. A. Jarman, C. G. Woodhead, G. Dodds, L. C. I. Watson, W. Leese, M. W. H. Gray, P. C. Wright, F. P. Wright, A. S. Wett, R. Meadows, V. J. Benning, D. N. Layton, F. E. Haynes, G. F. Carter and T. W. White.

The toast of 'The Church' was proposed by Mr. E. H. Lewis and responded to by the Archdeacon of Croydon.

In his reply, the Archdeacon said a school-boy was asked, 'What is the Church?' and gave as his answer, 'The Church is one foundation.' The Association had come to a place closely associated with the Church throughout the centuries. Just at the back of that building was the Old Palace of Croydon, which was the home of the Archbishops of Canterbury for 800 years.

There had been vicars of Croydon since 900 A.D. Croydon was a place that had grown enormously. Until 1827 there was only one church; to-day they had 29 parish churches, 14 railway stations and a population of 249,000.

Mr. H. Michael Howard (Messrs. Gillett and Johnston), who proposed the toast of 'The Association,' also extended a welcome to the company to Croydon, which, he said, was one of the centres of English bell founding.

'We, as bellfounders, in company with our colleagues at Whitechapel and Loughborough, are endeavouring to keep up the great heritage of English bell founding, and we are most happy to show ringers what is being done and how every possible means is being taken to improve and assist the practice and science of change ringing.'

'I feel that ringing is a marvellously democratic pastime that appeals to every section of the community, and the universities should not be behindhand in their representation.' He wished the Association every success.

The Rev. C. Elliot Wigg, Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, who replied, said he could only say the Association was a very happy family—at least it was twice a year when they met, coming from the four quarters of the Kingdom. He suggested that the Association should keep a family album giving details of their members.

GILBERT'S FIRST OF DOUBLES.

In humorous vein, the Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow proposed 'The Exercise.' He said that only last Saturday he rang the treble to his first peal of Doubles (prolonged cheers), so he felt he had the qualification of knowing something the College Youths' dinner they were expecting Canon Coleridge, who was 92, to propose the toast, but unfortunately he had a fall that morning from which he never recovered. But another College Youth came forward, who was only 86, to take his place.

CLERGY RINGERS WANTED.

He would like to emphasise what he said at Lincoln and hoped that among the U.A.C.R. there were some ordinands. To-day the really competent clergymen ringers were very much fewer than in his youth. In each diocese there ought to be one clergyman who knew more about ringing than the ringers and could give the ringers a real lead. About a year ago he was asked to find in his county a parson who could preach a ringers' sermon. He knew of not a single one who could preach an appropriate sermon with the result that he had to do it himself.

He appealed to U.A.C.R. to catch their ordinands before they put on their dog collars. Looking back 30 or 40 years he remembered that those clergy who could strike had learnt to ring before they were ordained.

In wishing the company a happy New Year, Mr. Lewis regretted that he would be unable to join the Association this summer, as he had to work rather hard and a quiet holiday was essential for him. One thing he was determined. He would never become a civil servant, and if the election went the wrong way his trade was liable to be nationalised. In that case he would have very much more time for ringing.

THE BUSINESS MEETING.

The business meeting followed. Dr. Hatcher reported apologies from Mr. A. A. Hughes and Mr. George Cross. Among their members, Lieut.-Comdr. Gordon Cross was now at sea and said he might be with them if they held their week at Hong Kong!

The hon. secretary reported a balance in hand of £14 3s. 5d. and announced that there was a profit of £2 14s. 2d. on the Exeter week.

Reporting on the Association, Dr. Hatcher said the number of members who had joined the society was 285. In 1946, 27 were considered to be inactive and they had lapsed them. He had carried out another census and the number he had had no news of, either direct or indirect, was 63. He proposed that they should cease to be active, which reduced the membership to 192, representing 14 different universities.

The election of the following new members was ratified: Oxford: E. H. Edge, K. M. Grayson, J. G. M. Scott, E. B. Wood, D. Edwards, W. G. Thomas, F. Wright, the Misses M. E. Roe, P. M. Warehorn, R. Buchthal, C. A. Isles, D. J. Borer. Cambridge: M. N. Bland, A. R. Gray, H. M. Howard. Bristol: R. Stokes. London: Miss A. Bowers, Miss Margaret Paton, J. Crawley.

NOTTINGHAM WEEK DIFFICULTIES.

THREE OLD VETERANS of All Saints', Asfordby, who have together given 160 years' service in the belfry of this Leicestershire church. They are, from left to right: Stephen Read (76), 45 years, having previously rung at Easton, Hunts; Evander L. Littlewood (76), 60 years; Ernest Edward Lomas (75), 55 years. They all ring regularly, and rang to herald in 1950.

Standing behind are those who rang a peal of Minor as a birthday compliment to the old ringers—viz.: E. Morris, J. H. Cook, R. Looker, H. T. Bonshor, D. Toon, A. Thompson (not in the peal) and H. Bell (captain).

about the Exercise and not in the category of those who know nothing at all. He only wished he knew enough about the subject to make a speech, but for those who desired to know more he would advise them to buy his book, price 5s. (laughter).

The wonderful thing about ringing was it went on spontaneously, whether the vicars liked it or not. In West Norfolk the Education Committee was paying a ringer a guinea a week to teach ringing, providing that the class was not limited to members of the Church of England. He hoped that ringers would not only increase in numbers, but in certain places in brotherly love. They knew that a spontaneous activity could only continue to exist if that brotherly love between all and sundry went on.

Mr. E. H. Lewis, who replied, said he was a little amused at advice on brotherly love coming from Norwich. They all knew of that story of the early days of the ringers of St. Peter's, Mancroft, when some of them were sent home with 'blood on their noses.'

One of the things about ringing was the great age to which ringers lived. It was now nearly 50 years since he started to ring. At

Nottingham from August 18th to 26th, about 50 hoped to come. Unfortunately, they had not succeeded in finding accommodation. Alternative suggestions were Lincoln and Birmingham.—It was decided to leave the matter in the hands of Dr. Hatcher and the committee.

The Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow announced that if the Association decided to visit Norwich again he would endeavour to find accommodation.

Future activities were discussed. The suggestion of quarterly meetings was rejected. Miss Betty Spice thought the holding of exclusive meetings would be regarded by the Exercise as undemocratic and rather 'snooty.'

Mr. Dennis N. Layton agreed. The experience of London University Association was that joint meetings with territorial associations were most successful.

Another suggestion was the holding of meetings for the reading of scientific papers on ringing matters.

Mr. York-Bramble said the Association was founded with one expressed object, that its members should go down from the universities and spread the knowledge of ringing. The idea of learned discussions on scientific matters was not then in view.

The meeting decided to let the matter lie on the table.

Another suggestion was a register of members with addresses for circulation. This was left to the secretary to consider as to price.

On the Thursday there were peal attempts at Godstone and Christ Church, Epsom

WHITTLE-LE-WOODS ROMANCE

The marriage took place at Whittle-le-Woods Parish Church on December 31st of Ruth, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bradley, and Walter, younger son of Mr. F. and the late Mrs. Mansley, of Walton-le-Dale. The ceremony was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. A. Read), assisted by the Rev. John Ginnever, B.A., a friend of the bride.

The bride and bridegroom are both ringers, and their fellow-ringers saluted the event with a beautifully struck peal of Stedman Triples, which will be recorded elsewhere.

OUTING TO NORTHAMPTONSHIRE

On December 27th, eight ringers from the Bedford district visited a number of towers to the south and east of Northampton. This locality is suitable for a day's ringing outing because within a comparatively short distance of each other there are many rings of bells. This feature enabled these eight ringers in two cars to visit ten churches during the day.

We began well at Yardley Hastings (6) and Easton Maudit (5). We survived the rough heavy ring at Castle Ashby (5) and the long, guideless draught at Whiston (5), where the church is lit by candles, to have some excellent ringing on the light ring of six at Cogenhoe. At Brafield-on-the-Green (5) we were reinforced by some Cambridge Royalists, who had been defeated at Leighton Buzzard that morning. We then found our way to the fives of Little Houghton, Hardingstone and Wootton, ending the day on the six at Piddington.

Eighteen methods were rung, up to Stedman and London Bob Doubles on five and Spliced Surprise on six.

We were warmly received by the local clergy and ringers, the latter delighting to recount to us stories of ringers of a seemingly bygone age. To visit these grey-walled villages, built entirely with local stone, and to talk with the men who ring there, was indeed a pleasure.

Golden Wedding

MR. AND MRS. J. E. R. KEEN

The Ringing Master of the Newcastle Cathedral Guild, Mr. J. E. R. Keen, was a very far-sighted man when he arranged to be married to Miss Margaret Lumsden at St. Silas', Newcastle, on January 2nd, 1900. He was far-sighted because that arrangement caused his golden wedding to fall on a day when his fellow-ringers on Tyneside were on their day's holiday for the New Year.

The arrangements for the celebration were successfully carried through with a peal of Cambridge Surprise Major on the 'Dixon Eight' at Newcastle Cathedral, the band including the president, general secretary and other officials of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association. (Unfortunately, the tenor of the twelve is out of commission and awaiting attentions of the bellhanger, so the light eight only were available. The last part of the preceding sentence would be contested by the Ringing Master, for he would point out that the 'minor ten' were still available!)

A congratulatory telegram was despatched by the peal band just prior to the start of the peal, but later, while partaking of the refreshment generously provided by Mr. Keen, an opportunity for congratulations in person occurred when Joe was able to make a short appearance for the second time, having managed to get down to listen for a while when the peal was in progress. The congratulations were coupled with the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Keen would have many more years together.

'Joe' Keen joined the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association in 1892 and is now one of its oldest members. With over three hundred peals to his credit for this Association he holds the record as its most prolific peal ringer, and, in his younger days especially, was a fine heavy-bell ringer. He was a member of the old paid ringing guild at Newcastle Cathedral, but left prior to its final break-up.

After an interval at St. John's he became a member of the present Newcastle Cathedral Guild, a voluntary band formed by the late C. L. Routledge about 1913. When Mr. Routledge died in 1945, Joe succeeded him as Ringing Master and he has proved a very popular head of the Guild. May he be spared to continue in office for many ears yet.

WRINGTON RINGERS' SUPPER

That hardy annual of the West Country, the Wrington ringers' supper, took place on January 5th, when a company of 21, including the Rector, the Rev. Arthur Talbot, ringing friends from neighbouring towers and the local band, sat down to the really excellent repast one has come to expect at this yearly gathering.

When the inner man had been satisfied, there was handbell ringing, with lapped changes as well as the more orthodox method.

A diversion was created when two of the locals entered wearing firemen's helmets, having been announced as the brass hats; this might not have much significance elsewhere, but the special monthly practices held at Wrington on the first Saturdays are known to the irreverent younger element as the 'brass hats' meetings, and everyone caught the allusion. There was an unfortunate sequel when the wearer of one such ornamental headpiece replaced his helmet, only to find it had been used as a receptacle for the dregs from the glasses!

Instead of concluding with the customary sing-song, the evening closed with a film show of quite professional standards, which all thoroughly enjoyed.

The only speech-making of the evening was the warm thanks of the Rector to Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Knight for arranging the supper.

OBITUARY

MR. HARRY COLLINS.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Harry Collins, the hon. secretary of the St. Michael's Guild, Braintree, Essex, aged 68 years.

Harry Collins started ringing at an early age and in his younger days rang a few peals. Unfortunately, through a difference of opinion he left the Exercise about 30 years ago and did not rejoin the local company until just after the war. Since then he had been a very keen ringer, attending regularly for Sunday service ringing.

The funeral took place on January 8th and was attended by members of the local company. In the evening a quarter peal of Superlative Surprise Major was rung with the bells half-muffled as a farewell tribute.

MR. J. E. FLINT.

The Melton Mowbray district has lost another ringer by the death of Mr. John Edward Flint, of Kirby Bellars, who died on January 8th, aged 71.

A ringer for 50 years, Mr. Flint had lived at Kirby Bellars for 34 years, and had also served the church as churchwarden. Last September he celebrated his golden wedding.

On January 14th, a quarter peal of Grandsire Doubles (half-muffled) was rung at St. Peter's Church to his memory by J. Gilson 1, E. Littlewood 2, J. H. Cook (cond.) 3, H. Bell 4, H. Clayton 5. The same team rang for his golden wedding on September 3rd last.

MR. CHARLES R. FORFITT.

On December 31st, Mr. Charles R. Forfitt, of Bourne-mouth St. Peter's, passed away at the age of 87 years. The many visitors to Bourne-mouth will remember Charlie, who in between the touches used to sit in his favourite place underneath the clock in St. Peter's tower.

Of late years he had helped considerably with the training of young ringers, with whom he was a firm favourite, so that when the doctor firmly said early in 1948, 'No more ringing,' Charlie used to occasionally break the rule to climb the 64 steps to 'come and watch,' as he said. However, if his favourite fifth seemed to be neglected for a touch (sometimes purposely) he would see her through a short touch.

Charlie Forfitt, like his friend, Eli Waters, who died earlier in 1949, served St. Peter's faithfully for nearly 50 years, rarely being late or missing a practice. He had rung many peals in standard methods, but a complete record is not available.

The funeral service was in St. Peter's Church on January 2nd, followed by interment in Wimborne Road Cemetery.

The Rev. J. Coutts, a member of St. Peter's company and assistant priest, officiated, and Andrew Pearmain played the organ. The bells were rung half-muffled before and after the service, whilst A. I. Pearmain 1-2, B. B. Rogers 3-4, A. V. Davis 5-6, J. V. Davis 7-8, rang a course of Grandsire Triples at the graveside after the committal.

MRS. F. J. JOHNSON.

The death occurred on January 4th at Evesham Hospital of Mrs. F. J. Johnson, widow of the late Frederick J. Johnson, of Hinton-on-the-Green. Mrs. Johnson was an honorary member of the Worcestershire and Districts Association and is survived by two sons and six daughters, all of whom are ringers. Her eldest son is the present general secretary of the Worcestershire Association.

The interment took place at Hinton-on-the-Green on January 7th, and the service, conducted by the Rev. F. C. Champion, was attended by a large number of friends and ringers. Members of the local band rang handbells over the grave, and afterwards rang touches half-muffled on the tower bells, assisted by other association members. Later in the day a half-muffled peal of Grandsire Triples was rung.

'DOWN YOUR WAY'

Dear Sir,—I wonder how many of your readers were listening to 'Down Your Way' at approximately 3.20 p.m. on January 8th. I was, and I listened with pleasure to the introduction of Mr. Locke, of the Abingdon ringers, and to his subsequent remarks in connection with the Exercise.

The anticipated moment arrived when Richard Dimpleby asked Mr. Locke if he would like a recording of bells, and Mr. Locke replied asking for Grandire or Stedman Caters.

'It's sure to be St. Margaret's, Westminster' (H.M.V.), was my thought, but instead there followed a few rounds on first five and then six bells. But the crowning moment came when the announcer wound up the programme by telling us that we had, in fact, been listening to Stedman Caters.

Needless to say, I have written to Mr. Dimpleby and I sincerely hope many more of your readers have done the same. I cannot imagine what Mr. Locke's feelings were.—Yours faithfully, BERT SUTTON.

'A CLASSIC BLUNDER'

Dear Sir,—A classic blunder has been perpetrated by the B.B.C. in 'Down Your Way.' Mr. Locke, of Abingdon, asks for Stedman Caters and gets a record of some badly struck rounds on five bells! Ringers have surely sent a card of protest, for it is on such cards that programmes are based. Every time bells are broadcast, drop a line to applaud or correct. Then we shall get more broadcasts and on a higher level. Cards to B.B.C., Park Place, Cardiff.

A DISAPPOINTMENT FOR GLASGOW RINGERS

Dear Sir,—I regret that I informed you (albeit in good faith) that we were to broadcast St. Mary's Cathedral bells on Hogmanay.

Unfortunately, this did not take place as arranged.

I received a telegram from the B.B.C. on Thursday, December 29th, at 6.30 p.m.—when the local Post Offices were closed—saying that the broadcast could not take place 'owing to unforeseen circumstances,' and a letter on the following day with the same bald statement, plus their regrets, but no explanation from them since.

We feel that we have had a raw deal as we had arranged to hold a social evening in the Synod Hall, with a spot of handbells, and to which we had invited the Cathedral clergy and some of our friends. Each one of us had, of course, gone out of our way to make the broadcast known as widely as possible.

I have written to the B.B.C. asking for a full explanation and enclosing an account of expenses incurred.

I expect it will be a long time before we are again asked to broadcast, but here's hoping.—Yours faithfully,

ERNEST A. STAFFORD, Hon. Sec.,
St. Mary's Cathedral (Glasgow) Society.

INVERARAY BELLS

Dear Sir,—The article on the front page of 'The Ringing World' of December 16th, 'The Bells of Scotland,' was of interest to me. Like many more, I have heard Edinburgh Cathedral bells and also St. Cuthbert's.

But in July, 1939, I had the pleasure of seeing the bells of All Saints', Inveraray, through glass doors. It was indeed delightful. In another room there was a chiming apparatus and with some persuasion I was allowed to play.

The caretaker was doubtful and reminded me they were the Duke's bells. This tapping, the simplest of bellringing, seems to impress them more than the fine art of change ringing.

The caretaker told me the Duke was staying at the Farne Islands and would I tell him when I went home that I had tuned his bells.

Later, when back home, I received a letter from him saying the London girls had been to Inveraray, but they did not ring like me (I had tuned the bells). He asked me to put my name in the visitors' book, and said, 'I am not taking your sixpence.' I often wish I had taken more notice. I shall always remember that beautifully kept church.—I am, Yours truly,

JENNIE ARMSTRONG (Miss).

Morpeth.

P.S.—The bells of the Watch Tower, Morpeth, are unringable at present, except for the ringing of the Curfew each night at 8 and the Market bell every Wednesday morning at 11.—J.A.

Dear Sir,—Your correspondents, Mr. George 'I-alone-understand' Baker and Mr. E. A. '120-years-too-late' Barnett do the Exercise a service, in that they furnish an excellent example (and warning) of what has too often occurred (sadly enough) in the past—i.e., fruitless controversy, falsely based, giving readers generally wrong impressions.

Perhaps I may surprise them by adding further apparent support to their contention, and recalling (what even Mr. Baker's omniscience seems to have overlooked!) that long ago in the 'Bell News' William Hale, on page 65 of Vol. 6, quoted figures which superficially give the same method as that which, in Shipway's 'Campanologia,' is called his 'Principle.'

The fact remains, of course, that of all these methods the fundamental principle is attributable solely to Stedman. No originality on that score was, or could be, claimed for Steadfast. This method has a new feature, however, as reaffirmed below, and, as such, was no doubt rung for the first time last year.

But no serious student of method structure to-day would attribute originality to Shipway for the principle inherent in his method, any more than recognise his Royal version as genuine 'Superlative.' It is a function of Grid Analysis to extract the residual values in these things; and it yields Steadfast, as a method of portraying Stedman's principle on even numbers, entirely symmetrical in structure. This is quite true in spite of the flat contradiction of Mr. Baker, who apparently has not realised that two distinct methods, Original and Plain Bob, for example, may have the identical grid pattern, with differing grid-links. (A further example is Cambridge and Primrose.)

If the Steadfast figures already published are compared with these here, Hale's above-mentioned (Mr. Baker's, of course, are his own version), readers may see for themselves that it is Steadfast that conforms with the fundamental principle of Stedman, in having simply forward hunting in the quick sets and backward hunting in the slow sets, i.e., in the work of the front group. In this sense it was offered as something new 'for practice' in the New Year. Mr. Baker achieves no technical improvement by what is simply, in plain language, splitting up the sets so as to give the good old 'magic circle' set-end figures. And surely he has not forgotten that even some peals of Stedman are rung starting, not in the conventional way, but at the parting of the sixes!—Yours very truly,

A. YORK-BRAMBLE.

LAVENHAM RECORDING

Dear Sir,—I am rather at a loss to understand how a ringer could mix up Grandshire and Stedman, also Westminster Abbey bells, with those of Lavenham, as the Abbey bells are lacking that soft mellow tone which makes Lavenham the pride of Suffolk.

The recording in question has been used by the B.B.C. on quite a number of occasions, in fact it's a close runner to the Bow Bells signal.

It was made for and broadcast for the first time in the 'St. George's Day' programme in 1948, the producer being Mr. Maurice Brown. It is a complete plain course of Stedman, the band being all pupils of the late Arthur Symonds.

As the B.B.C. seem to realise it is good, I mark it as one of the finest memorials a man could have, especially as there were 58 more of his pupils who could 'strike 'em' just as well.—Yours sincerely,

LESLIE MILLS.

IN DEFENCE OF STEDMAN

Dear Sir,—The last sentence in the postscript of Mr. T. R. Butler's letter this week, 'Are we to take it that Stedman is now becoming extinct?' is something which I have been wondering for some time. Why is it that so (comparatively) few peals of Stedman Triples are rung nowadays?

It is never wasted time to ring peals of Stedman Triples (in fact, if Stedman were the only method in existence ringing would still be worth while), and no matter how many peals of it one has rung, there is still the feeling of 'something accomplished' every time.

And what of the conductor? If the ringer can be proud of his performance the conductor can be doubly so. The conductor of one peal of Stedman Triples has accomplished far more than one who has called 40 peals of Surprise.—Yours faithfully,

E. BARNETT.

Crayford, Kent.

CHIMES IN 'HAMLET'

Dear Sir,—The B.B.C. and the Americans are not the only ones with an astonishing lack of knowledge concerning bells.

In the famous British film, 'Hamlet,' there is a scene during which the 'Westminster' chimes can be heard. The action of the film takes place in Denmark somewhere about the 10th century, I believe, but the Westminster or more properly the Cambridge chimes were not composed until 1790.

THE FIRST FOUR PEALS IN A DAY

Dear Sir,—I should like to congratulate the ringers under the conductorship of Mr. Poole for their achievement in ringing four peals in one day. I know what it is, as I was the conductor in ringing four peals of Minor when living at Sheerness-on-Sea, referred to in your last issue of 'The Ringing World.' It does, as you say, require a good bit of stamina, both mentally and physically.

No doubt the travelling facilities are much different now to what they were when we rang our peals. I expect they had cars to take them to their separate towers, whereas we had to depend on cycling. There were no buses running at that time. I had 13 miles to cycle across country roads to start our first peal at 6.45. This meant rising at 4.30 to have breakfast. Between each peal there was a distance of 4 to 5 miles to cycle, sometimes more. The last peal was started about 7 in the evening, and then an 11-mile ride back home, which I reached just before midnight, well satisfied with our day's enjoyment.

Two or three of the ringers taking part are still doing a bit of ringing for service and peal ringing as well as myself. Good luck and success to the Leicester band.—Yours sincerely,

W. H. B. WILKINS.

INSTRUCTORS

Dear Sir,—The remarks of Mr. Lewis at the recent Lincoln dinner are worthy of attention. He did not say how the standard could be raised, and he might also have added that the men or women capable of doing the job are not as plentiful as they used to be.

Nearly every association has as one of its objects the provision of competent instructors for towers where they are needed. This is very rarely carried out, as witness Mr. R. H. Dove's tilt last summer, viz., that associations are more concerned in building up huge bank balances than in providing instruction where it is badly needed.

Here is something which all association committees could look into. A panel could be prepared of those willing and competent to teach. Expenses should be granted or recovered from the people concerned. This is controversial, but everybody's circumstances are not the same, and if the tutor does not want his expenses, so much the better. The great thing is that an effort should be made to wipe out the black spots.—Yours faithfully,

AN OLD BELL

Dear Sir,—Referring to Mr. Flint's letter, I would say, without going very deeply into the matter, this bell would probably be a sanctus, and most likely from the Nottingham foundry of Oldfield, which flourished at this period. We have an example of a 'Madonna stamp' on the tenor bell at Thurstaston, Leics., which came from this foundry, c. 1560.

ERNEST MORRIS.

Leicester.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the letter by Mr. Flint in your last issue, it is not possible from his description of the small bell to tell for what reason it has been used. It may have been used for any purpose requiring a small bell of this type. If Mr. Flint would send me a photograph of the bell and a rubbing of the date letters, I will do my best to identify its founder. From the description he gives, however, I strongly suspect that the bell is foreign.—Yours truly,

FREDERICK SHARPE.

ST. CUTHBERT'S, EDINBURGH

Dear Sir,—Sorry for the delay in not writing before to point out an error (or a misleading sentence) in No. 2,019, December 16th, re 'The Bells of Scotland.'

I spent a week in Edinburgh in September and really enjoyed ringing Grandsire Triples for Sunday service, both morning and evening, at St. Cuthbert's, an excellent eight. They ring regularly on Sundays and, I understand, practise in the winter months.

The statement, 'Proximity to important building prevents them being rung except on national occasions' is misleading to anyone visiting Edinburgh and would be a pity for a ringer to miss such a fine ring and beautiful bell.—Yours faithfully,
C. GIMBERT.
Sutton, Ely, Cambs.

P.S.—Wife says my visit could not have been 'a national occasion.'—C.G.

THE PEAL AT LISKEARD

Dear Sir,—While on tour with a band with the late W. Pye, I took part in a peal of Cambridge on these bells on September 8th, 1913. The peal was rung for the Devonshire Guild. The footnote states, 'The first peal in the method in the county.'

MAINLY FOR BEGINNERS (2)

(A Series of Open Letters)

Dear Beginners,—Since my last letter that successful instructor, Tom Truettouch, has kindly offered to take us on in his tower. So let's go along. As one of the preliminaries to the first stage of 'bell control,' Tom's intelligent approach is to take us up to the bells themselves. So, leaving one of his band, Mary Makebob, with certain instructions in the ringing chamber below, we go aloft, following Tom's instructions implicitly.

First we note the size and obvious weight of the bells, all 'hanging' in the strongly-built 'frame,' their 'headstocks' mounted in 'bearings,' allowing free swinging of each bell in its 'pit.' We observe the large 'wheel' fixed to the headstock, with the rope running in its rim channel and down through the floor. Now Tom takes hold of the rope where it leaves the wheel and pulls down on it. The bell swings a little and strikes its note as the rope goes down. Tom tells us this is 'chiming.'

Now it stops and Tom gives a few short lifts to the hanging rope, as a sign to Mary below. We stand clear as the bell begins to move again, chimed by Mary from the ringing chamber. This chiming seems a little overdone by Mary! Her bell swings higher and higher, and now sounds as the rope comes up, as well as on the down-stroke.

The bell is being 'raised,' says Tom, as it turns completely mouth upwards and pauses at the top of the swing, held balanced there by Mary's skill. Between strokes Tom tells us this is 'ringing' proper. Now the bell goes just over the top position and stops altogether. Tom says it's 'up' and 'set,' and he points out how its 'stay' engages its 'slider' against the 'stop.'

We look into the upturned bell and notice the clapper-bell resting against the lower side of the bell, while Tom tells us that heavy bells need raising with care to prevent them being 'clappered wrong,' i.e., going up with clapper resting on the upper side. He lifts the rope up from below, showing us that Mary is no longer holding the bell in balance, and he points out the possible results of over-pulling, with broken stays!

But we stand back, since the lifted rope was also a signal to Mary. A pause, and off goes the bell again, swinging less and less high at each quickening stroke until 'down.' Having been 'lowered,' she is now chiming once more. Now that we've seen what is 'up top' and what happens at the upper end of a rope, Tom tells us we'll go down and have a pull ourselves. This encourages us; and although it will be just to try chiming, at this very early stage, yet we are to be allowed actually to make a bell sound 'by ourselves,' right away!

Back in the ringing chamber Tom points to the 'circle' of ropes (we'll suppose there are eight) running round in musical scale order from the highest note—the 'treble'—to the lowest note and heaviest bell—the 'tenor.' Reminding us that the bells are all 'down,' he takes hold of the tufted part of the treble's rope—its 'sally'—and chimes the bell. We observe Tom's action for this and listen to the bell's note. On eight bells, of course, this is the upper 'doh' of the scale. Tom now points to the rope of the bell we have seen rung (say, the third), and asks us to hum its note, which we attempt by reckoning down three from 'doh'; thus, 'doh, te, lah.' We listen as Tom chimes her. Were we right in 'lah'?

This is perhaps the most important part of our introduction to change ringing, for it is our first step in tone-felling, or picking out a bell by its note. It is the foundation of good striking, as Tom tells us, for we must get that particular note of our bell to sound correctly in a set time-interval as small as one-quarter of a second!

Now, says Tom, it's our turn. He indicates the long part of each rope below its sally, called the 'rope's end,' tied up in a loop to keep it off the floor, and the mat immediately below, to save the rope from floor-chafing and dust collecting during actual 'ringing.' We learn that it's part of our job to set the mat right before we start ringing; but more important still is our own position and action.

So we follow Tom's example and step up to our rope (the third). But before we touch it we get our position right, as this is the same for chiming as for ringing. Standing on the outside of the rope-circle, with the nose about six inches from the freely-hanging rope, we face the centre of the circle. We now place one foot slightly in advance of the other (right foot if right-handed and vice versa), so as to increase our 'balance-base' fore and aft. Tom says experience will show us quickly that this stance is less fatiguing to the trunk muscles in ringing for long stretches. Without turning the head from facing centre, we swing our eyes at sally level from side to side and check whether we can see all ropes in turn. 'First watch Mary and me,' says Tom, 'then, when I call, try to join in as third bell. Remember, only a short pull and check!'

Then, 'Stand to for chiming!' he calls, and he on the treble and Mary on the second raise their arms and reach well up the sally and grasp it with both hands close together, touching in fact, leaving the rope's end hanging below, still tied in its loop.

'Treble's chiming!' calls Tom, pulling shortly and checking his rope, followed by Mary. We watch closely their action and we listen carefully to the rhythmic 'doh, te, doh, te, doh, te,' and we think we might manage to follow suit. 'Bring in the third!' calls Tom. So we reach up, grasp the sally and follow Mary. After a pull or two we manage to make our bell 'speak,' so we listen carefully and try to fit in our note of 'lah' after their 'doh, te,' so that we should hear, 'doh, te, lah, doh, te, lah,' in steady repetition. 'Cease!' calls Tom, and as the gently oscillating ropes come to a standstill we feel rather thrilled with our sweet, though short, very first stand-in to ring bells.

'That's only chiming, of course,' says Tom. 'Real ringing has quite a different rope action, as I'll demonstrate in our next lesson. Still, you've made a bell speak. Now don't rest content until you can make it speak just when and where you wish in relation to the other bells. But before you begin to learn to manage a "ringing" bell, I'll introduce you to the "pole and pigtail,"'

Wondering what that can be, we look forward to the next lesson, and in the meantime we try to recollect at least two dozen terms and tins introduced to us in this first visit to the tower.—Yours till next time,

CORN. R. STONE.

CHURCH AND LOYALTY

Dear Sir,—Two of our ringers, Mr. Frederick Blunden and Mr. William Curtis, have just completed 30 years' service as ringers at Storrington Church. This period was completed on New Year's Eve, when to celebrate the occasion they both took part in ringing a quarter peal, Grandsire Doubles, 1,260 changes. Both these gentlemen take a full part in the life of the church here, as do the other ringers.

Since ringing restarted after the war, our bells have been rung regularly twice every Sunday and on other special occasions. The enthusiasm of the older ringers has caused a junior band of ringers to start, and consequently we are never in want of ringers. The church here owes a big debt of gratitude to them for their loyal service.—Yours very truly,

W. G. FROSTICK

Rector and Rural Dean of Storrington.

PEAL RINGERS, 1949

WE make no excuse for presenting in this issue the records of the leading peal ringers of 1949, although there are some of our readers who would prefer such records to be unpublished and unsung. They are obsessed with the opening words of the Epistle of last Sunday, 'Be not wise in your own conceits,' and assume that achievement is a pandering to the vanities of the flesh, overlooking the sheer enjoyment of achievement.

The past year has been phenomenal in the number of peals rung, and the fact that five ringers have rung 100 peals or more is an indication of the degree of enthusiasm attained. The history of ringing contains very few century makers in one year, viz.: Alfred W. Grimes, 136 in 1913 and 114 in 1932; J. W. Washbrook, 127 in 1888; G. R. Pye, 100 in 1933, Bertram Prewett in 1912; and George E. Fearn, 108 in 1948. The record of Mr. Harold Poole is unique with 143 peals to his credit, of which over 100 were conducted by him. Perhaps more striking is his performance of 100 peals in the last six months of the year. The president of the Leicester Diocesan Guild has set a pace that is not likely to be surpassed for many years to come. There is also quality among his peals, which indicates not only his personal powers but the clever band of ringers associated with him at Leicester Cathedral.

High on the list as regards the total number of peals are those two Bournemouth enthusiasts, Daniel T. Matkin and Mrs. F. J. Marshallsay, with 121 and 113 peals respectively. Their peals were mainly 'in hand.' At 23, Wellington Road, no fewer than 103 handbell peals were rung during the year, in which 30 ringers participated—13 'locals' and 17 visitors. Mrs. Marshallsay is the first woman to reach the century mark in a year. She is at business during the daytime and has also a home to look after. In the previous year she rang 43 peals.

The Leicester Guild have also another century maker in Mr. Alfred Ballard, of Burbage, with 118 peals to his credit. This has been accomplished without neglecting the work of the Guild. Mr. Ballard has attended every meeting in his own district as well as Guild general meetings and special practices for the district. He was one of the participants in the recent four peals in one day.

Another Leicestershire man, Walter P. Whitehead, a staunch supporter of the Midland County Guild, also reached the century mark. His 100 peals include three long lengths of Bristol, 9,344, 10,976 and 13,024, all of which he conducted. In two of these Ernest Morris participated. This Leicester veteran is the only 1,000 peal man to appear in this year's list, and his 88 ranged from five to 12-bell peals.

Mr. George E. Fearn, who headed last year's list with 108 peals, rang 91 this year, of which 88 were on tower bells. His tower-bell record for 1949 was only exceeded by Mr. Harold J. Poole, with 102. Three other members of St. Martin's Guild figure in the list—John Pinfold 56, Henry H. Fearn 45, and Arthur D. Cook 43.

The Leicester Guild is rich in youngsters of promise who will have an important influence on the Exercise in years to come. Alan Cattell, who was associated with many of Mr. Ernest Morris' peals, rang in 77. The Leicester Cathedral band had a strong contingent, with Alan Jacques (18) 76, Herrick B. Bowley 70, Peter J. Staniforth 64, Shirley Burton 56, John R. Smith 55, Sidney O. Cheney 51, Miss Jill Poole 50, and Brian G. Warwick (who rang his first peal on November 6th, 1948) 42.

As usual, the Chester Diocesan Guild also made a valuable contribution to ringing. In the list are Walter Allman (Runcorn), John Worth (Macclesfield), John Bibby (Frodsham), C. Kenneth Lewis, Dr. J. C. E. Simpson (Sale) and Ralph G. Edwards (Birkenhead).

An interesting list has Arthur V. Pearson, of Wolverhampton. Of his 55 peals, 40 were in Surprise methods, and included 23 different methods or extension. His list contains 155 ringers who had obtained 'stars' for 'first in the method.' Two Stoke-on-Trent ringers deserve congratulation for their year's work in Frederick W. Grocott (41) and Frederick E. Wilshaw (42). Oxford University ringers will note with satisfaction the name of Wilfrid F. Moreton (54), of Hereford, in the list. F. W. Frank Trotman, of Nuneaton, has improved on his last year's total of 40, reaching 52, and including the three long lengths of Bristol.

Heading the East Anglian list is Nolan Golden, who conducted 60 peals. In most of his peals he was accompanied by George Sayer. The Suffolk Guild had three representatives, George A. Fleming, William J. Button and 14-year-old George W. Pipe, whose mother's name appeared in last year's list. The Lincoln Diocesan Guild had two in the honours list, Jack L. Millhouse (52) and George E. Feirn (44). The sole representative of London and the Home Counties is Philip A. Corby, with 41 peals. He has maintained an average of 51 peals a year over the last five years. From Ireland appears the name of Fred E. Dukes (41), with eight 'firsts' on tower bells. Mention should also be made of Howard Howell with 41 and Ernest W. Rawson (Leicester) with 40.

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

LATE NEWS

Coventry Diocesan Guild have accepted the design of Mr. W. B. Ellender, of Stoke Coventry, for a Guild badge.

Farnham District of Guildford Diocesan Guild had an increase of 25 members last year.

The Royal Exchange Chimes, London, are now electrically operated. The Lord Mayor officially inaugurated the new equipment last Friday.

Congratulations to the new band at Mapledurham, Oxon. They started from scratch on February 14th and have now rung their first peal. Handbell ringing is also indulged in. Carolling on four evenings before Christmas (playing tunes and Grandsire on the handbells), £13 8s. was raised for tower funds. Hopes are entertained for progress in other methods during 1950.

Mr. Michael D. Staniforth, who is 17 years of age, took part in three peals of Surprise (Major, Royal and Maximus) in a day. Congratulations.

Mr. A. S. Pyke has completed 50 years as a ringer at Trull, Somerset, 27 years of which he has been captain. A peal of Stedman Doubles, his favourite method, was rung on December 31st in honour of the event.

An unusual feature during the peal at Whitworth, Lancs, rung for the centenary of the church, was that during the ringing the church, including the tower, was floodlit. Mr. Heginbottom, who rang his first peal, was responsible for the floodlighting.

The peal of Plain Bob Triples at Bengoe, Herts, by the Bengoe Society was the first peal on the bells for nearly 15 years. This band decided to go over to change ringing in February, 1948, and there has been practically no service at which changes have not been rung.

Mr. C. W. Pipe, of Grundisburgh, is arranging, in co-operation with Mr. J. Dyke, four days' ringing in Somerset during July or possibly August. He plans to visit seven or eight towers a day. No peals will be attempted unless specially requested. He requires about 10 good ringers to complete the party. The headquarters will be either at Glastonbury or Wells. The journey will be made by coach, leaving Clopton about 8 a.m. on the Monday.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. George Cross was re-elected Master of the Royal Society of Cumberland Youths on Saturday. Mr. Peter N. Bond is the new secretary of the Society, Mr. G. W. Steere carrying on in the less onerous role of treasurer.

Another instance of a son conducting his father's first peal occurred at All Saints', Basingstoke, on October 1st, 1938, when Mr. C. W. Munday called the first peal of the late Mr. H. Munday.

This is the season of ringers' suppers. The Vicar of Wellow (Somerset) has revived the function after a lapse of 40 years, due to the bells being silent through 'death-watch' in the tower. For the first time the Vicar of Christ Church, Ebbw Vale, and his wardens entertained the ringers and their wives on January 14th.

Mr. William Packer, of Lewisham, celebrated his engagement by standing in a peal of Double Norwich, his second peal, at Eynsford. The peal could not be attempted at Lewisham, as the 7th bell there has been condemned for ringing owing to a cracked gudgeon plate. An earlier attempt was made at Cubitt Town, but was lost because the ringers concerned thought one of the bobs sounded like the rattling of a rope guide and so ignored it!

Mr. Albert F. Hughes, of Bangor, who unfortunately is in the County Hospital, Bangor, writes of Mr. Harry Withers: He never forgot a face he had once seen. I was with him the whole of the time he took down the lead ends of the long peal of London at Kingsworthy. When the peal was completed he handed the figures to Gabriel Lindoff and said, 'That's the peal you have rung to-day.' There was a sealed copy at 'The Bell News' office. I took back to Birmingham two borrowed bell ropes after the peal.

But the rest of the band
Went on ringing and finished the peal.
There was a peal-grabber of Seale,
Rang all day and all night with no meal.
When rounds came as planned
He didn't say 'Stand,'
But launched out again with great zeal.

MARRIAGE OF MISS RICHARDSON

The wedding took place at St. Peter's, Parkstone, between Miss Dorothy T. Richardson and Mr. Ralph Gardiner on Jan. 14th. As St. Peter's has only tubular bells, handbells were rung afterwards by the bride and her three sisters. Mr. E. H. Lewis and Miss Betty Spice also joined in ringing Bob Major.

The bridal toast was proposed by the bride's uncle, Mr. E. H. Lewis. Among the presents was a dinner bell cast in the shape of a church bell, presented by Mr. A. A. Hughes, of the Whitechapel Foundry.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner will be living in Bristol.

The University of Bristol Society rang its first peal of Major as a compliment to the bride, who was one of its stalwart members.

MAINLY FOR BEGINNERS (3)

(A Series of Open Letters)

Dear Beginners,—It seems that other ringers—even instructors—are reading our correspondence! And finding this feature interesting and useful. But some, possibly, think little of it and some may even consider what they find new to them as 'quite daft.' Still, the steps in tuition here detailed will prove their worth, and, in any case, we like to hear all views. As we said in our first letter, there are more ways than one of teaching a pupil ringer, and what proves excellent for some learners under one instructor may not be so successful under another, and vice versa. One thing is most encouraging: owing to the increased interest our new-found friend, Tom Truetouch, is running our special practice night for beginners only. So let's get along to the tower.

This week Tom begins with a short talk, reminding us that he started our training by showing us the bells themselves and then letting us handle one—gently, in chiming attempt only. He maintains this has proved best in awakening early a keen and intelligent interest in all his successful pupils, and he then surprises us by saying we shall not touch a bell-rope again during these next two 'practices.'

Now we all come under a series of quick-fire questions as Tom asks us what we remember from last week of each of these: Frame, pit, headstock, bearings, stay, slider, stop, wheel, rim-channel or wheel-groove, sally, rope-end, chiming, raising, clappered wrong, ringing, bell up, bell set, bell raised, lowering, bell down, Treble, Tenor, tone-telling striking, ringing-mat, correct stance, balance-base, and 'Cease!' Tom is not very lenient, I'm afraid, with those who have forgotten. Indeed, he tells us that any of us who haven't made up our minds, by the end of this practice, to learn thoroughly from week to week, determining to stick to it so as to become reliable change ringers, had better drop out; thus avoiding a waste of everyone else's time and making way for others.

Having introduced our other new friend, Mary Makebob, to this week's newcomers, Tom tells us she is the most promising of his last batch of pupils and that he is training her as a Beginners' Instructor. They are now going to show us what the rope action of 'ringing proper' looks like, Mary ringing, while Tom explains.

We get up from our seats round the ringing chamber and go and stand opposite the rope of No. 3 that we chimed last week, and watch Mary carefully as she takes her stance at that rope. Tom reminds us that to 'ring' a bell she must have been 'raised' from 'down' to 'up'; and that when raised she swings full circle, her large wheel taking up the rope until the full length is in use. So Mary will have to undo the rope-end loop for this demonstration.

Setting the mat and taking her stance, Mary coils the rope-end in her left hand and grasps the sally, well up, with both hands. Tom tells us not to worry about the coiling up at this stage, nor how it is let out as the bell rises, since we shall learn this after we have acquired bell control. As Mary's chiming action extends into longer pulls, with the sally rising higher and higher and the striking interval widening, we notice the coils disappearing, until the last is out and the sally is high up with Mary's arms unstretched at the rope-end. Now a pause, with the bell held 'up' at 'back' before Mary pulls her off the balance with a downright pull called 'back-stroke.' As the sally 'dances' at the bottom of the stroke Mary catches it and checks its rise to pause with the bell 'up' at 'hand,' before she pulls her off again, this time at 'hand-stroke.' The bell is now being truly 'rung,' and is performing the full-circle motion we observed last week in the bell chamber itself.

'Watch carefully this action of "ringing,"' calls Tom to us, 'noting especially: (1) the reaching well up at both "hand" and "back."

(2) The touching of the two hands when they grasp the rope at both "hand" and "back."
(3) The dead-straight full-length down-pull action at both "hand" and "back." These are the secrets of absolute bell-control of even the heaviest bells.'

We observe all this as Mary's apparently effortless performance arouses our admiration. 'Stand!' calls Tom. And as the sally comes up to pause at 'hand,' Mary holds the bell steady for a moment, then eases up on tip-toe as she sets the bell, and ties up the rope-end loop as before.

'Now,' says Tom, 'any questions?' Well, of course, we have many things to ask. Most questions Tom answers right away, but to some he promises an answer later when we have learnt more about the whole thing. 'You've seen raising and ringing,' he goes on, 'now Mary will lower. Being the reverse of raising, as the bell drops lower, the spare end-rope is gathered up in loops again. But don't worry about that now, as you'll learn how to do it later.'

As Mary lowers the bell Tom tells us to take our seats again, as he's going to introduce us to the promised 'Pole and pig-tail,' a useful device for giving us safely and accurately the preliminary instruction and practice in the action of 'ringing' that Mary has just demonstrated so well.

But I see that we've used up our space, and I must stop, anyway, to catch the post, so, till next practice, Yours ever,

CORN. R. STONE.

GUILD OF DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

The annual meeting of the North-East Branch was held on January 7th at Tiverton. A very pleasant feature of the service was that it was conducted by two past chairmen of the branch, the Rev. F. Carter and the Rev. J. M. Turner, the latter giving the address. Visitors came from near and far, about 40 sitting down to tea.

At the subsequent business meeting the hope was expressed that the Guild president, Preb. E. V. Cox, who was prevented by illness from being present, would speedily be restored to health. Ten new members were elected, and the retiring officers—chairman, Mr. E. J. Taylor; secretary, Mr. C. J. Dymond; and Ringing Master, Mr. A. G. Selley—were re-elected. The meeting stood in silence in memory of Canon Coleridge and Mr. John Heard.

Tiverton's grand ring of bells was kept going to a variety of methods during the afternoon and evening, some of the striking—notably that of the service touch—being very good.

The spring meeting will be held at Huntsham on April 15th.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD DEVIZES BRANCH.

The annual meeting of the Devizes Branch was held at Devizes on Jan. 7th and was attended by some 80 members and friends.

The service was conducted by the Rev. E. S. Dabbs, of St. John's Parish Church. An excellent tea was served, being followed by the business meeting.

Six new ringing members and one life ringing member were elected. The secretary's report and accounts were presented and accepted. The retiring officers were re-elected for another year, and Mr. S. G. Grant, Bishop Cannings, was added to the list of ringing masters.

Bradford-on-Avon was chosen as the place for the next quarterly meeting, with Devizes for the annual meeting in January, 1951.

Ringings at all three churches in the town was of a good standard, methods up to Cambridge Surprise Major and Minor being rung.

Television Features

Twice recently ringers who have access to television sets have had excellent features presented. The visit of Richard Dimbleby to St. Paul's Cathedral was one of the finest new features presented. The ringers were introduced to Mr. Dimbleby on the steps of St. Paul's by Mr. Herbert Langdon. They were seen climbing the stairs and finally in the ringing chamber. Here Mr. Frank Smalwood explained points to the famous broadcaster. Then came rounds and Stedman Cinques, followed by shots of the bells revolving.

The second was the dedication of Burnham bells, which was shown last Friday. The handing over of the bells by Mr. P. L. Taylor to the churchwarden and their dedication by the Bishop of Oxford were well done. Mr. George Gilbert was clearly seen receiving from the Bishop the bells for his care and attention. The young ladies of Burnham performed in a manner which must have given Mr. Gilbert a sense of pride. At any rate, they were unperturbed by the glare of the lights and added grace and charm to the general scene. Shows were also taken of the bells in motion.

Bells as news features are undoubtedly popular, and the televising of performances should add materially to general interest.

WELSH BROADCAST

In connection with the broadcast in the Welsh Home Service on January 10th, a ringer narrates his experiences as follows:—

For the 15 minutes of radio time some 25 ringers were drawn from their usual routine. Some spent from 7 to 8.30 p.m. whilst a plain course of Grandsire Doubles and a few rounds were recorded. A dance band burst upon the microphone during a 'cut' and in the change a ringer wandered. Motor-cycles and screaming children caused some delay. Even the clock had to start chiming (without bells) during an interview. Ringers going in for a broadcast must not arrange any other pursuit or pastime for the evening!

At the second church flies were a nuisance and settled on ringers and speakers frequently.

Microphone nerves affected our champion caller. After a booming instruction to an errant ringer to move rapidly from 4th place to lead it was hard to realise that it was the same timid voice at the microphone.

It is hoped that many ringers will express their appreciation or otherwise of 'Plain Bob Minors' (as it was called). If there is a great demand for a more advanced talk we can get it.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION SOUTH-WESTERN DIVISION.

About 67 members and friends attended the annual meeting of the South-Western Division at Hornchurch on January 7th, when some good ringing was heard on this grand night.

The very impressive service was conducted by Canon Courthope, and Mr. Page was at the organ.

The liveliness and virility of the Division was reflected at the meeting which followed, when many provocative arguments were debated.

In his report, the secretary reported a satisfactory financial position, with ringing membership standing at 227, honorary membership at 28 and three new towers in union—Haverhill (6), North Ockendon (6) and South Benfleet (6). Appealing to towers where Sunday ringing was irregular, the secretary said that bells on Sunday were a part of the English way of life and he hoped that very soon all towers in the Division would be ringing regularly for divine service. Crusader meetings had been well attended and much good work had been done.

The following officers were re-elected: Master Mr. J. Chalk (Wanstead); secretary, Mr. F. V. Gant (Hornchurch); committee, Mr. J. Grove (Leytonstone), Mr. J. Sitch (Brentwood).

ST. MARTIN'S GUILD, BIRMINGHAM

MR. G. W. CRITCHLEY NEW RINGING MASTER.

An extremely well-attended meeting of the St. Martin's Guild for the Diocese of Birmingham was held on January 7th at the Tamworth Arms, Birmingham, the Master, Mr. Albert Walker, presiding.

The Chairman referred to the loss the Guild had suffered by the deaths of Ernest Mansell and Harry Withers, and asked all present to stand in silence as a mark of respect to their memory. Ernest Mansell had been a loyal member of the St. Martin's Sunday band for many years, whilst Harry Withers was famous throughout the ringing Exercise for his exceptional abilities.

HENRY JOHNSON DINNER.

It was decided to invite the Rev. S. Harvie Clark, Archdeacon of Birmingham, to preside at the Henry Johnson dinner on Saturday, March 4th. Criticism having been received regarding overcrowding at last year's dinner, it was agreed to restrict the number to the capacity of the Connaught Room, tickets to be issued in order of application. All other arrangements in connection with the dinner were left in the hands of the Guild's officers.

The balance sheet was presented by the treasurer, and, in view of the heavy expenditure during the year, the finances were considered to be satisfactory. The treasurer drew attention to the cost of writing up peals, and estimated that some 300 awaited recording in the books.

Mr. J. Pinfold, having given notice of motion at the previous meeting, proposed that the subscription be raised by 1s. per annum. This was seconded by Mr. W. C. Dowding, and carried unanimously.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The president and vice-presidents were re-elected en bloc on the proposition of Mr. F. W. Perrins seconded by Mr. J. Pinfold. On the proposition of the hon. secretary, seconded by Mr. T. H. Reeves, Mr. Albert Walker was unanimously re-elected Master for the ensuing year. In acknowledging his re-election, Mr. Walker thanked the members for their continued confidence.

The Ringing Master, Mr. E. C. Shepherd, gave a resumé of the peals rung during the past year. They numbered 61, and included Lindsey, Prittlewell and Albanian Maximus. The practices, said Mr. Shepherd, had been well attended by numerous young ringers, who had been helped by more experienced Maximus ringers. He thanked the Master and the hon. secretary for the assistance they had given him towards making it a successful year. Unfortunately, owing to increasing professional duties, the calls upon his spare time had grown considerably, and he regretted that he could not possibly hold office for the ensuing year. The Master expressed his regret that Mr. Shepherd found it impossible to continue, and thanked him for his valued services during the past year.

The hon. secretary proposed and the chairman seconded that Mr. G. W. Critchley be elected Ringing Master. Mr. Critchley, said the hon. secretary, was an excellent conductor who would have the support of every member. No other nominations being received, Mr. Critchley was elected, and returned thanks to the members.

The trustees, Alderman Paddon Smith and Mr. E. T. Allaway, were re-elected. Mr. H. H. Fearn was re-elected auditor, and Mr. S. O'C. Holloway was elected in place of Mr. Critchley. The librarian, Mr. J. F. Harvey, and the hon. secretary and treasurer (Mr. G. E. Fearn) were also re-elected.

NEW MEMBERS.

Fourteen full ringing members were elected, including eight ringers attached to Hampton-in-Arden Church, and the following life members were duly ratified: Miss J. E. Askew (Osterley) and Messrs. J. E. Turley (Sheffield), J. A. L. Thompson (Nuneaton) and W. H. Pickett (Edinburgh).

Mr. A. Short gave a warm invitation to the Guild to hold the next meeting at Aston on April 1st, which met with approval.

Sympathy was extended to Mr. J. W. Pemberton and Mr. S. Grove, who were both suffering from long illnesses, and the hon. secretary was asked to write and express the best wishes of the members for their speedy recovery.

The Master said how pleased he was to welcome back to Birmingham Mr. William H. Barber, who, after leaving many years ago for Dublin, Edinburgh and Newcastle, had now found his way back to Birmingham and had joined the St. Martin's Sunday band.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman proposed by Mr. V. A. Hemming, and carried with acclamation.

MR. DANIEL T. MATKIN, of Bournemouth, who created a new handbell record with 109 peals in 1949.

BATH AND WELLS ASSOCIATION
ILCHESTER DEANERY BRANCH.

The annual meeting took place at Martock on January 7th, attended by members from Martock, Stoke-under-Ham, Limington, Drayton, Yeovil, West Coker, Hardington Mandeville, Shepton Beauchamp, North Cadbury, Templecombe, Castle Carey and Ditchat.

The service was conducted by the Vicar and branch chairman, Preb. G. W. Saunders. Mr. R. Higgs was the organist. An excellent tea was served in the Church House by Mesdames Moorey, Strickland, Richards and Miss Strickland, followed by the business meeting, presided over by the chairman.

The retiring officials were re-elected, namely, Preb. G. W. Saunders, chairman; T. Setter, vice-chairman; F. Farrant, secretary; W. H. Poole, Ringing Master. Six new members were elected, which included the Rev. D. Ballard, Vicar of Stoke-under-Ham.

East Coker, Stoke-under-Ham and South Petherton were chosen as meeting places. The next annual meeting will be held at Yeovil. Preb. Saunders warmly welcomed those present, and, reviewing the past year, made special reference to the augmentation and restoration carried out at Stoke-under-Ham. The meeting closed with thanks to the organist and the ladies who had served tea.

OBITUARY

MR. ALLEN BROWN.

The death occurred on December 28th of Mr. Allen Brown, of Gorseinon, at the early age of 16 after a few days' illness. He will be a great loss to Gorseinon, as he was always at service ringing.

The funeral took place on January 2nd. On the following Sunday a quarter peal of Grand-sire Doubles with the bells half-muffled was rung by the following with 1 and 2 as leading bells: R. Edwards 1, B. Thomas 2, A. Trew 3, A. Jones 4, R. Dobbins 5, W. Dobbins 6, J. T. Williams (cond.) 7, C. Pettit 8.

MR. RICHARD HAYES.

For over 40 years a ringer at Haslemere (Surrey) Church, Mr. Richard Hayes died suddenly on January 13th, aged 71. A Nottinghamshire min, Mr. Hayes came to Haslemere in 1901 and was for many years associated with the late Mr. J. H. B. Hesse.

An accomplished ringer, he served his own tower as captain and secretary at various times and was for a period ringing master of the Guildford district of the Guildford Diocesan Guild. A skilled craftsman in wood, many of the peal boards in West Surrey churches were his handiwork. He is survived by his wife, a son and two daughters, the younger of whom, Miss V. Hayes, is a missionary in India.

The funeral service was at Haslemere on January 17th, the Rector (the Rev. Gordon Shelford) officiating, assisted by the Rev. K. Jardine and the Rev. R. Newham. A course of Grand-sire Triples was rung over the open grave by C. Hazelden 1-2, A. H. Pulling 3-4, F. Bowden 5-6, Mrs. Hazelden 7-8. A number of other ringers attended the service, and in the evening 1,260 Grand-sire Triples was rung with the bells half-muffled by H. Mullahd 1, C. Hazelden 2, G. Grover 3, Mrs. Bowden 4, A. J. Bartlett 5, F. Radford 6, F. Bowden (cond.) 7, F. Maybee 8.

MR. W. SPARKES.

The death is announced of Mr. Whitted Sparkes, of Streatham, S.W., after three weeks' illness, at the age of 66. He was a native of Chippenham, Cambs, where he learnt to ring, and was a member for many years of the Surrey Association.

Mr. Sparkes was a member of the Mitcham Parish Church band until the bells were put out of action by fire in 1915. He then joined St. Leonard's, Streatham, band and was most regular in ringing for the Sunday services. He took part in a number of peals of Triples, mostly at Mitcham, and was a good striker.

The funeral took place at Streatham Cemetery on January 8th. Ringers present were Messrs. R. Charge, J. Chapman, S. Howard (Streatham), A. Miller, T. G. Miller (Christ Church, Mitcham).

ESSFX ASSOCIATION
NORTHERN DISTRICT.

Bocking was the venue of the annual meeting of the Northern District on January 7th. Only a small number of members attended, which was disappointing to the local ringers, as they had a bountiful tea prepared. The service was Solemn Evensong for the Epiphany, conducted by the Dean, who also gave an address. Tea was prepared in the Workman's Hall.

Miss H. G. Snowden presided over the business meeting, supported by the Dean, Sub-Dean and Mrs. Rush. At the outset, the company stood in silent memory of Mr. H. Collins, of Braintree, who died the previous Thursday night.

The following were elected to serve for the ensuing year: District Master, Miss H. G. Snowden; district secretary and treasurer, Mr. H. A. Pratt; committee, Messrs. G. Trendell and H. W. Smith.

Pebmarsh was chosen for the next meeting on March 18th. Afterwards handbells as well as the church bells were rung.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A REALLY FINE PEAL

Dear Sir,—I am pleased to congratulate Mr. J. C. E. Simpson and his band through 'The Ringing World' on their success in ringing the peal of 6,486 Spliced Surprise Major, rung in six methods, at Frodsham on December 31st. I had the great pleasure of being in the vicinity most of the time, only leaving for a cup of tea. The striking was simply grand, a good beat being kept up. Having a copy of the lead ends with me, I was able to check them as they came up quite distinctly. It was a really fine peal.—Yours sincerely, Port Talbot. A. J. PITMAN.

THOSE OUTSIDE THE PALE

Dear Sir,—Having read 'The Ringing World' for at least 20 years, and having been a member of the Central Council and travelled many miles, more than most working men, I feel rather disappointed reading Mr. Lister's letter. Does he really believe what he wrote? Is it just so around Apperley? What is most required (it would appear) is for someone of Mr. Lister's ability to get around and educate. My ringing history and records tell me that it would be tragedy if the Central Council and 'The Ringing World' stopped. We are all cogs in a great ringing machine—associations, branches to the small village band. One God, one service.—Yours faithfully,

FRANK WARRINGTON.

St. Ives, Hunts.

PERSONAL ANIMOSITY

Dear Sir,—Your editorial of the first issue of 1950 warns readers to eschew spleen in their correspondence, yet in this same copy you print a glaring example of this regrettable trait.

As a non-ringer, I have no interest or side to take in the argument started by your correspondent Lister, and for all I know the reply from Theobald is a very good answer, but I am sure the Services rank of Mr. Lister has no bearing on his views or ability to conduct his case. Mr. Theobald's gibe is just another example of the bigotry now and then displayed by ringers.

The next obvious step is for some mud-slinger on the other side (possibly an amateur psychologist) to enquire what rank Mr. Theobald attained in the late war, or whether he secured a comfortable job in civil life of national importance, and so it goes on. For all I know, Mr. Theobald may have been a Marshal of the Air Force, but nothing excuses his cheap sneer.—Yours truly,

CHURCHWARDEN DARK.

Bristol 7.

ITCHINGFIELD SLOW COURSE

Dear Sir,—Is there somebody who can give me the origin of the method, 'Itchingfield Slow Course'? I found the method in a book which had been written completely by hand, and I do not know if it is a recognised method. The book was in Shipley Church, and the parish of Shipley joins Itchingfield. The method is for five bells, and there are five bells at Itchingfield. Has this any connection with the church at Itchingfield? The Itchingfield ringers have never heard of it, and I should be very glad if someone would give me some information of its history.

I should also be very glad if somebody could quote for me a rhyme about ringing in Bugbrook Church, Northants. It runs something like this:—

He who rings and breaks a stay
Shall have half-a-crown to pay.

There was also a line:—

He who rings in hat or spur.

These are the only lines I know. — Yours sincerely,
C. HONE.
Takeham.

CHANGE RINGING IN SPAIN

Dear Sir,—Mr. T. R. Butler, of Liverpool, writes in your issue of December 30th that neither Spain nor Portugal has ever possessed a ringing ring of bells.

There is a church in Madrid—I think, St. Francis—which possesses eight bells hung for ringing. A full account of the story can be found in 'The Bell News'—I am afraid I cannot quote the volume without search—and it is interesting to note that the English bell-hangers sent by the firm to Madrid remained after completing the work, in order to teach a band of Spaniards to ring. The extent of their efforts was certainly no more than Grand-sire, but the art did not catch hold, and it was reported that the band died out.—Yours faithfully,
K. S. B. CROFT.

Lincoln.

SPANISH JANGLING OF BELLS

Dear Sir,—The correspondence headed 'Christopher Columbus Greeting' prompts me to write as one of the few who read these letters with the background of Spanish bells. If only those who at home protest about practice and peal ringing could have a sufficient dose of Spanish jangling and clashing, incumbents would be saved many a difficult interview. 'The Ringing World' week by week both keeps us, who are at present exiled from active participation, in touch with the Exercise, and is a valuable medium for promoting interest abroad.—Yours faithfully,

ROBERT J. COBE.

Bella Vista, Minas de Rio-Tinto,
Prov. de Huelva, Spain.

GROUPED NAMES—A PREVIOUS ATTEMPT

Dear Sir,—Seeing Margaret Woolley's recent letter reminded me of a job never done. When Mr. Ernest Morris was compiling his book some 20 years ago he sent me a short list of grouped names. The list covered about 40 pages of foolscap and I was fairly flummoxed. Ernest needed a few verses for a preface, but had to go without. This is what I think he was after:—

Said Pye to the Baker,
That Miller's a Quaker,
With his Beans, Barley, Wheat and Oats,
He'll go for a quarter
When he know's he didn't oughter.
He'll send them Whiteheaded
Before they are half Breaded, Leaving the Tarts and the Cakes in the Poole.

'A FLAT.'

FOUR PEALS IN ONE DAY

Dear Sir,—To my mind, no further comment is necessary when one observes that 2 hours 25 minutes was the time taken for the peal of Surprise Royal.

Any ringer of experience can draw certain obvious conclusions regarding the quality of the peal. I am not suggesting for one moment that it was false in any way.—Yours faithfully,

HERBERT G. ANDREWS.

Kingston-on-Thames.

A MEMORY OF CANON COLERIDGE

Dear Sir,—I am not a ringer, but I had the privilege of playing at the service when Canon Coleridge dedicated the war memorial in his native village of Cadbury after the first world war. During the ringing, in which he took part, one of the team collapsed. Still ringing, Canon Coleridge caught him and placed him on a chair, and went on ringing. I, for one, much deplore the passing of such a personality.—Yours truly,
S. A. WELCH (Miss).
Thorverton, near Exeter.

Holsworthy Celebrations

NEW OCTAVE AND CARILLON.

Since 1904 the old carillon ceased to function, though the Mears octave (tenor 12½ cwt.) were regularly rung. But Holsworthy people loved their carillon, and, led by their Rector (the Rev. E. Royle), a committee of townsmen, with Mr. A. E. Axtell as secretary, decided on a job worthy of the fine old granite tower and the town. The bells must be recast and a new electrical carillon installed. The work was done by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, and Dr. Mortimer, Bishop of Exeter, dedicated the bells and carillon on Dec. 20th last.

On January 14th, the 500th anniversary of the building of the tower was celebrated, with thanksgiving for the recast and rehung bells and new carillon.

More than a hundred ringers from Devon and Cornwall rang the bells during the day, and the firm of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston was represented by Messrs. M. Howard and B. Newson.

In the morning Eucharist was sung and a special service of thanksgiving was held at 3.30 p.m. This was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. W. H. Ravenhill, R.D., read the lesson, and the Rev. J. A. Durling, Rector of Bideford preached. Mr. Fulford Oke, a prominent Free Churchman, gave an account of the tower and the choir sang the anthem, 'Holsworthy Church Bells,' composed by Dr. S. S. Wesley and set to words by Mr. F. J. Sluman, the Rector's churchwarden. The sum of £60 was realised from the public luncheon and tea, and the work, costing over £2,100, is now clear or nearly so.

There is no question of the excellence and 'go' of the new bells, which, in the opinion of good judges, will rank high amongst Devon's many first-class octaves. The Croydon firm must be congratulated on doing a fine job.

A broadcast of part of the service, the carillon and the bells will occur on February 5th, West Regional. Details of the bells:—

'CHURCH BELLS OF CORNWALL'

Dear Sir,—With reference to Mr. Stuart Worth's enquiry, 'The Church Bells of Cornwall' was published by Bemrose and Sons, of Derby, in 1878, being reprinted from a series of articles in 'The Reliquary.' The author was E. H. W. Dunkin. The book is extremely rare, and is now much out of date in view of the extensive work done in Cornish towers in recent years.—Yours truly,

FREDERICK SHARPE.

PROGRESS IN IRELAND

Good news from Ireland. Surprise is now being practised by local resident members for the first time as well as most of the Plain and Treble Bob methods. Last Saturday week there were three peals being rung in Ireland at the same time—an indication of the advance in change ringing.

THE OLDEST BELL

CAVERSFIELD, near Bicester, has the oldest dated bell in England. The story of this bell is told by Mr. Frederick Sharpe in the first part of 'The Church Bells of Oxfordshire,' which has now left the printers. This will be a monumental work when completed, as this volume of 112 pages only embraces the towers from A to C. Its value is enhanced by the many illustrations and drawings, and the Oxfordshire Record Society, who are publishing the work for the benefit of their members and not the general public, are to be congratulated on securing such a knowledgeable author and practical ringer for the work. At the moment no copies are available for ringers.

The old bell of Caversfield is disused and cracked. It now hangs with its fittings of elm headstock and strap gudgeons in an oak frame on the ground floor of the church, and has been in that state since 1927. An attempt was made in 1874 to save the bell by having it quarter tuned, but this was too late to prevent the development of the crack. Had it been done a century or two earlier this disaster would not have happened.

While the actual date of its casting is not inscribed on the bell, its authenticity is well established. The inscription is in two parts. On the shoulder inscription band appears, in Latin, 'In honour of God and Saint Lawrence,' and above the sound bow appears: 'Hugh Gargate and Sibilla, his wife, had these bells erected.' Now, Hugh Gargate was Lord of the Manor of Caversfield in the first years of the 13th century, having inherited it from the father, Roger. He is mentioned in the Close Rolls for 1216; but in 1219 his wife is described in a deed published in Parochial Antiquities as 'Sybil de Kavarsfeld, widow of Hugh de Gargat.'

Characteristics of the Caversfield bell are as follows: Weight, 1 cwt. 3 qr. 24 lb.; principal dimensions, diameter 20½ inches, height from lip to crown 20½ inches, from top of crown to top of canons 5½ inches, top of crown to top of argent about 7 inches, and thickness of lips 2 inches. As to the lettering of the inscription, while it is mainly uniform, some letters, such as A, E and M, are Gothic in character. Owing to roughness in the casting other letters are badly formed. The inscription implies that at least two bells were then given to the church by Hugh Gargate and his wife.

How was such a bell cast? Mr. Frederick Sharpe explains that in ancient times the 'core,' or inner mould, was constructed of stonework, plastered over with clay, shaped by a 'crook' or 'strickle,' to the inner dimensions of the bell and baked dry. On the finished core was built a full-size clay model of the bell, likewise shaped by means of a strickle, but to the outer dimensions, the inside of the model taking its shape from the core. On the model were placed in relief the inscriptions and mouldings as they were to appear on the bell. When dry, the model itself was coped with a sufficient thickness of clay to form the outer mould, or 'cope.' After drying, cope and model were lifted from the core, the model broken out and the cope replaced, leaving a cavity between the two moulds. The 'cap' or canon mould was fixed last, having in its top the hole through which the molten metal was to be poured.

A simple form of reverberatory furnace, often constructed in the churchyard, sufficed to melt the alloy of tin and copper, which, after the tapping of the furnace, was run by gravity to the mouth of the mould. Mr. Sharpe adds that it is often possible to trace fire-reddened stones in the masonry at or near the base of a church tower which may have formed part of a temporary furnace. To-day the moulds are made independently, without the use of a model; specially prepared loam takes the place of clay; inscriptions are impressed into the mould by means of stamps; steel cases are used in which to form the copes; and modern reverberatory furnaces and mechanically operated foundry ladles are employed.

A few bells of similar shape to the 13th century Caversfield bell are found in other counties, but the majority of these lack inscriptions or marks to prove their age. Mr. H. B. Walters noted a bell at Marton-cum-Grafton, Yorkshire, which he considered somewhat later in date than the Caversfield bell. These two bells are the only known examples in England of mediæval bells with inscriptions in Roman lettering. In Oxfordshire uninscribed bells of the same shape as Caversfield's are found at Kelmscott and Shifford.

Congratulations to Wm.
J. Button on reaching his 100th peal; this was rung at Debenham on December 27th. Also to Ralph Bird at Eynsford on January 7th, Eric J.
Gilbert at Newchurch, Lancs, Ivan Kay at Saddleworth, Yorks, and Leonard H. Bowler at Willesden.

Mr. Francis R. Lowe has 'circled' Ockbrook, Derbyshire, tower.

All tickets have been sold for the Henry Johnson dinner.

Wrighton bells will form the background to the broadcast on February 5th to the 'Week's Good Cause' on the West Regional.

The peal of Spliced Minor in 11 methods at Terrington St. John, Norfolk, was accomplished at the fourth attempt. Previous ones failed half-way through the fifth 720 and in the last 120 changes of the sixth 720.

The peal of Double Norwich rung at Hughenden, Bucks, on January 7th, was specially rung as a 21st birthday compliment to David Cox. He also took part in the peal. Also by ringing the tenor to the same peal Mr. A.
Reginald Blaby has now 'circled' the tower.

The University of London Society of Change
Ringers in 1948 rang peals of London Surprise
Major and Little Bob Royal. In the Analysis Table they appear as 'Unattached,' as they have not a direct Central Council representative.

Hampshire seems to lead the way with lady ringers, Mr. George Pullinger, Master of the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild, informed the Christchurch annual district meeting. The late Mrs. George Williams was the first lady to ring a handbell bell, Miss Alice White the first lady to ring a tower-bell peal, and now Mrs. F. J. Marshallsay the first lady to accomplish 100 peals in a year.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. F. H. Birks, who rang his 25th peal at Buckley, Flintshire, on Jan. 14th, rang his first peal, on the treble to Grandsire, on May 31st, 1948. Since then, with the exception of one other peal of Grandsire
'inside,' no peal has been repeated.

The peal of Plain Bob Minor at Whitworth, Lancs, on January 3rd, was conducted by Mr.
Allan Smith and not Mr. James Taylor as stated in our last issue.

Correction.—The name of the bridegroom in the footnote to the peal of Stedman at Whittle-le-Woods should have read Walter Mansley.
Apologies for the error.—E.R.M.

Aldridge, Staffs, band, who rang a peal of Plain Bob Doubles on January 7th, with the exception of the conductor, could not ring by ropesight until last September. The band is now practising for a peal of Plain Bob Minor.

The officers of the Midland Counties Guild opened 1949 with a peal and had hoped to complete the year with a peal on December 31st. At the last moment the chairman had to withdraw owing to his wife's indisposition.
Mr. P. W. Grice deputised for him at short notice.

The late Mr. W. W. Worthington, of Maple
Hayes, Lichfield, who left £1,469,006 gross (death duties £1,092,325), bequeathed £200 to the rector and churchwardens of Netherseale for the upkeep of the tower, bells and belfry, and £150 for ringing the curfew bell 101 times each evening. The executors have informed the Rector that it is not likely, on account of the heavy death duties, that the setting up of a trust for ringing the curfew will be practicable. To the following bellringer friend he left £25 each: E. W. Beadmoore, Ashby-de-la-Zouch; John Hough, Burton-on-Trent; and Herbert Hurdman.

SOCIETY OF ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS

Resignation of Mr. G. W. Steere as Secretary

Hon. Secretary of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths since 1928, Mr. George W. Steere tendered his resignation of the office at the annual meeting of the Society at St. Martin's Hall on January 21st. He is remaining in office as treasurer.

Mr. George Cross, the veteran Master, was in the chair, supported by the Rev. Charles Edwards (Vicar of St. Martin's), Mr. G. W. Steere and Mr. Peter N. Bond (assistant secretary). The congratulations of the company were voiced to the Master on his recovery from his operation, but Mr. Cross had to admit that he was not yet fit for ringing. He thanked those people who wrote to him and made enquiries while he was away from home.

The accounts were presented by Mr. Steere, which showed that the balance from 1948 was £35 19s. 2½d., and the year concluded with a balance of £78 19s. 8d. cash in bank and £20 in hand. Subscriptions from 40 new members totalled £10. The accounts were approved, subject to audit, on the proposition of Mr. E. Barnett.

The secretary reported that it had not been an exceptional year, but from the peals point of view it had been a good year with 11 peals, including one of 10 different Surprise methods, a peal of Cambridge Surprise Major by a band of ladies, Cambridge Maximus conducted by Mr. Cross, Stedman Cinques at Reading and Yorkshire Surprise Major.

During the year they had lost their oldest member in Mr. George Williams and another old friend in Mr. Robert Warner, who was responsible for casting many bells, including those of Shoreditch. The Exercise had suffered a great loss by the death of Canon Coleridge.

NEW MEMBERS.

The following new members were elected: Miss Jean Durrant (Uckfield), Miss Mary Walshaw (Manchester), Miss Jill Brierley (Winslow, Cheshire), Mr. Frank J. Matthews (son of two esteemed members), Mr. John A. Hilton (Broadstairs), Mrs. Hawthorne (Thames Ditton), Messrs. Michael Denham, John Hill and Alfred Patten (Erith), Miss Margaret Addison (Thornaby, Yorks) and Mr. Eric Naylor (Rainham). There were also three ratifications—Miss Eileen Arthur, Miss Joyce Cox (Southampton) and Miss J. Askew (Osterley).

NO INCREASE IN SUBSCRIPTION.

Miss P. Holmes introduced the question of increasing the membership subscription from 5s. to 7s. 6d. Immediately a discussion ensued on the eligibility of most of those present to vote in view of the Society's rule: 'At any annual meeting no member shall be allowed to vote on matters of finance unless he or she has paid in steeples the sum of 2s. in the previous year.'

Mr. Matthews argued that it was not a matter of voting money out of the Society, but into the Society. This view was eventually accepted and all members present were allowed to vote.

The resolution to increase the subscription was moved by Miss Pat Holmes and seconded by Mr. Frank G. W. Knight. The resolution had only 14 supporters and was heavily defeated.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Mr. George Cross was re-elected Master, and, in returning thanks, said he was afraid he would not be able to do much for a while, but with their help they would get through the year.

Mr. G. W. Steere announced that he was unable to continue as secretary, in view of pressure of work. He was prepared to continue as hon. treasurer and to stand behind the new secretary.

Mr. Frank Hawthorne voiced the appreciation of the Society to Mr. Steere for his past services and proposed the election of Mr. Peter Bond. This was seconded by Mr. T. Bevan and carried unanimously. Mr. Steere was then elected hon. treasurer.

Other officers elected were Mr. C. J. Matthews and Mr. Paul Winterton, trustees; Mr. Tom Bevan, senior steward; Mr. Frank Hawthorne, junior steward; Mr. Tom Francis and Mrs. Deal, auditors.

ANNUAL DINNER.

Mr. Steere reported that on the last dinner there was a deficit of £1 4s. 6d.

Mrs. Davis proposed that an annual dinner be held on the second Saturday in October at the Old Bell, Holborn. This was agreed to and the dinner committee was reappointed.

Mr. Geoffrey Carter's opinion that the paid artistes be dispensed with and that the company rely for their entertainment on their own talent was accepted.

Meetings for the coming year and suggested dates were: Luton, April 29th; Westerham, July 22nd, Burnham or Bray, September 23rd. A meeting might also be arranged at Guildford.

Mr. T. Francis announced that he would be unable to attend the Central Council meeting at Eastbourne at Whitsun, and tendered his resignation as a member of the Council. Mr. Frank Hawthorne was elected to fill the vacancy.

Mrs. Davis said she understood that the Society had not a gavel. She had pleasure in presenting one to the Society which was among her late husband's possessions. The Master thanked Mrs. Davis for her gift.

The Master proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields for his continued interest in the Society. The Vicar had suggested that the windows on three sides of the tower be blocked up to reduce the sound from the bells to neighbouring houses, leaving open those facing Trafalgar Square.

Miss Lidbetter agreed to represent the Society on the following Saturday at Finchley at the dedication of the memorial bell to the late Mr. C. T. Coles.

Previous to the meeting there was ringing at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, and the big company present enjoyed the excellent tea arrangements that were made.

CENTRAL COUNCIL AT EASTBOURNE

The Central Council meeting will be held at Eastbourne on Whit Tuesday, May 30th. All members have been advised by post of hotel accommodation. If any member has not received a copy please communicate with the hon. secretary.

The Imperial Hotel is the headquarters. Any ringer who is not a member of the Council, but who wishes to visit Eastbourne at Whitsun, may have a list of holiday accommodation, published by Eastbourne Publicity Department, on application to the hon. secretary, G. W. Fletcher, White House, Caister-on-Sea, Great Yarmouth.

Will secretaries of affiliated societies please note that the affiliation fee is now due.

CHRISTMAS QUIZ

Dear Sir,—In the current issue of 'The Ringing World' the answer to Question No. 5 of Kewsett's Christmas Quiz—'Which English county town has only a ring of six bells?'—is given as St. Lawrence's, Appleby, Westmorland.

May I point out that Brentford, which is the county town of Middlesex, also has only a ring of six bells, and, oddly enough, the church here too is dedicated to St. Lawrence.—Yours faithfully,

KATHLEEN M. LOCK.

North Mimms, Hatfield, Herts.

[In awarding the prizes, Brentford was taken into consideration as an answer.—Editor.]

Royal Exchange Chimes

NOW ELECTRICALLY OPERATED.

The old hand-wound weight driven chiming mechanism in the tower of the Royal Exchange in the City of London, which has been out of commission since 1939, has now been replaced by electrically operated equipment. The new equipment was officially inaugurated on Jan. 20th by the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Fredk. Rowland.

A more or less normal clock mechanism, with a series of bells which are over 100 years old, is used to chime each hour, half hour and quarter hour. In addition, a motor-driven chime can be used at will to play a series of tunes on the bells, of which there are 13 altogether. This is operated by a cylindrical drum or barrel which turns slowly through gearing from an electric motor of 1/30th h.p. The exact tune played is determined by a number of spikes or projections on the cylinder, very similar to those on the barrel in a musical box or barrel organ.

As the barrel revolves, the projections close electrical contacts causing steel rods to move and hammers to strike the bells in the tower above. Each hammer is at once returned to the striking position by means of a compressed air mechanism. The compressed air is supplied at 45 pounds square inch from a compressor driven by a 2½ h.p. motor. Sufficient projections are provided on a barrel to enable four different tunes to be played, but the repertoire can be extended in a few minutes by changing to another barrel.

In another chamber above is the clock mechanism. This is gravity-driven by means of a falling weight which is wound up at intervals by an electric motor. Associated with the clock mechanism is a number of mercury switches and relays which provide for the compressor starting up to fill an air vessel, before another motor starts which drives the barrel.

The modernisation of the mechanism and the retuning of the bells have been carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, Ltd. The work is somewhat of an achievement because of the confined space in the tower and the narrow winding staircase leading to it. This necessitated the equipment being built and tested at the works, after which it was dismantled, transported to and carried up the tower, where it had again to be reassembled and tested.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

NEWARK DISTRICT.

About fifty members and friends attended the annual meeting of the Newark District on January 21st. Ringing on the Cathedral bells ranged from rounds to Double Norwich, but the standard of striking was rather low owing to most of those present being unfamiliar with these unusual ringing chamber conditions. The wide spacing of the ropes and the obstruction caused by the 'cage' thoroughly tested the ropesight of the large number of young ringers present.

After tea the Provost apologised for his leaving, and Mr. R. T. Vessey deputised in the chair. At the business meeting which followed the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chairman, Mr. R. T. Vessey; hon. district secretary, Mr. P. N. White; Ringing Master, Mr. A. E. Chilton; committee, Mr. F. Vernon, Mr. H. Closton.

Mr. J. W. Raithby, the retiring district secretary, presented his report, which was approved, there being a net gain of 10 members during the year. He excused his retirement by pointing out that he also had on his hands the general secretaryship, and his burden would be reduced if a separate district secretary was appointed. Twelve new members were elected.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the Provost for conducting the service and for the use of the bells, and to Mr. F. Pickard for carrying out the excellent tea arrangements.

Midland Counties Guild

ELECT A NEW PRESIDENT.

The fourth annual meeting of the Guild was held at Repton, when a good muster of ringers and friends attended. This historic town lies in South Derbyshire, situated on rising ground above the Trent, and the church, dedicated to St. Wystan, with its tall slender spire, 210ft. high, is a feature of the Trentside landscape.

Most of the fabric of the church was rebuilt about 1340, but the chancel of the old building was retained. Beneath this is a unique Saxon crypt, which has always been regarded as a remarkable example of ancient Saxon work.

Ringing commenced at 2.30 under the supervision of Mr. B. G. Key (Ringing Master), and touches in various methods were rung before the Rev. J. G. Pope (Vicar of Ticknall), in the unavoidable absence of the Vicar of Repton, conducted a short service, giving an inspiring address from the text, 'There is neither speech nor language, but their voices are heard among them.' Miss Noble (a Repton ringer) was at the organ.

Later in the Court Room the company were entertained by the local ringers to an excellent tea.

The annual business meeting followed, with Mr. W. H. Curson in the chair. One honorary and three ringing members were elected members of the Guild. The yearly report was presented by the secretary (Mr. J. W. Cotton), who stated 10 meetings had been held and 63 peals rung. Noteworthy peals were the officers' peal of Bob Major at Repton on January 1st, the non-residents' 13.024 changes of Bristol Surprise Major at Gilmorton on September 17th, and the peal of Stedman Triples at St. Paul's, Burton, on December 3rd, rung by members of St. Paul's Society.

The treasurer (Mr. J. H. Brittan) presented the statement of accounts, which showed a deficit of £15 6s. 6d. owing to the purchase of 500 Guild certificates, an item of expenditure which would not recur again for many years.

Election of officers for 1950 was as follows: President, Ven. H. E. FitzHerbert, Archdeacon of Derby; chairman, Mr. W. H. Curson; Ringing Master, Mr. S. H. Jones; treasurer, Mr. J. H. Brittan; secretary, Mr. J. W. Cotton; auditor, Mr. T. Pryce; committee, Miss R. Hemmings, Messrs. E. W. Beadsmoore, W. F. Woodward and W. G. Soar.

It was agreed to alter three of the meeting dates on the rota system in order to avoid overlapping with the Derbyshire Association.

The meeting closed with the usual votes of thanks, in particular to the Rev. J. G. Pope and the local ringers for their kindness and generosity.

On returning to the tower, Mr. B. G. Key (Ringing Master) ably catered for all tastes of ringing that brought out the beauty of this very fine octave.

NORTH WALES ASSOCIATION

A quarterly meeting of the North Wales Association was held at Mold on January 14th, attended by members from Rhyl, Buckley, Hawarden, Wrexham, Gresford, Holt and the local ringers.

The service was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Thomas, who gave the members a cordial welcome to Mold, and wished them good luck and a good meeting, and said how much their services were appreciated.

At the business meeting which followed, and presided over by Mr. S. Birks, mention was made of the serious illness of Mr. J. Randles, Gresford, and the secretary was asked to convey to him the sympathy of the members and wish him a speedy recovery.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Holt on April 15th, subject to permission being obtained.

The business concluded with the usual votes of thanks.

Ringing during the afternoon and evening ranged from rounds to Kent Minor.

A Century-Maker of 1949

MR. ALFRED BALLARD,

Ringing Master of the Hinckley District and a representative of the Diocesan Guild on the Central Council, who rang 118 peals in 1949. He never missed a meeting of his district during the year.

GLOUCESTER RINGERS' DINNER:

On January 14th, after a lapse of several years, the Gloucester Branch met at the Saracens Head Hotel, Gloucester, for their annual dinner. Under the chairmanship of the Rev. de Lacy Mann, of Brockworth, who himself is a ringer, 36 ringers, including visitors from Wotton-under-Edge and Cheltenham, with their friends, sat down in anticipation of a good evening.

An excellent dinner put the whole party in the right spirit to let themselves go, and between the various toasts entertainment was provided by three friends on the piano, dialect and guitar. The party joined in community singing. No such evening would be complete without a touch on the handbells, so a short touch of Grandsire Triples was tapped out by four of the regular band of ringers, but they declined to show their paces in tune playing. It was a very merry party that joined in the singing of 'Auld Lang Syne.' It was unanimously voted a successful event, with the express wish that it was the forerunner of many more. Responsible for the evening's arrangements were Mr. H. Newman, Mr. L. Barry and Mr. C. C. Lerner.

BATH AND WELLS ASSOCIATION

Members of the Chew Deanery Branch attended the dedication of a peal board in All Saints' tower, Long Ashton, on January 14th. The peal board is of solid natural oak with letters in gold leaf recording the peal rung on February 18th, 1949, commemorating the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. G. Yeo.

After several touches on the bells a service was held, when the board was dedicated by the Vicar of Long Ashton (the Rev. H. W. Knapman). Tea followed in the Church House, when Mr. G. Yeo thanked the donors for providing such a splendid memento of the occasion. The tower was again visited and various methods rung during the evening.

Peterborough Diocesan Guild

WELLINGBOROUGH BRANCH.

There was a large gathering at the annual meeting of the Wellingborough Branch on Jan. 14th. The Guild service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. M. M. Clarke), who gave a short address, and the branch organist, Mr. E. J. Holloway, was at the organ. The collection, amounting to £2 2s. 1d., was for the Guild Restoration Fund.

Eighty ringers and friends were present at tea. The Rev. J. C. R. Creagh Coen presided at the business meeting. The branch secretary, Mr. A. Bigley (Irthlingborough), reported a balance in hand of £4 16s. 7d.

It was decided to hold the next quarterly meeting at Mears Ashby, and a summer meeting at Yardley Hastings.

New ringing members elected were: The Rev. J. P. Bryant, Basil Shives, John Manning, Robert Mole, Miss Valerie Maycock, Miss Hilary Leach, Irchester; Miss D. Hacksley and Mr. W. Sidwell (Wellingborough); Mrs. Morris, Brian Rollings, P. W. Craven (Stanwick). Honorary members elected were: The Rev. M. M. Clark (Wellingborough), Mrs. J. King (Wellingborough) and Mrs. A. Bigley (Irthlingborough).

The Rev. J. C. R. Creagh Coen (Vicar of Wollaston) was elected branch president. Other officers were re-elected.

A vote of thanks to all concerned was proposed by Mr. W. G. Callis (Ringing Master).

PIDDLEHINTON, DORSET

For the first time this century the custom of ringing out the Old Year and ringing in the New was celebrated in Piddlehinton. For many years—estimates given are 55-70 years—the bells have been silent, but early last summer they were completely restored and augmented to six.

During the last evening of the Old Year the bells were rung open for about an hour, and at 11.30 they sounded out half-muffled. After the hour of midnight had been tolled on the tenor, the New Year was greeted with 20 minutes of open ringing.

With the assistance of a Guild instructor, the ringers taking part were: Miss Dorothy Walden (13), I. Read (14), B. Cheeseman (15), F. C. Davis, T. Jeanes, G. Lord, R. Walden and W. Tatchell, the last named having just recommenced ringing after a lapse of 50 years. With the exception of Messrs. Walden and Tatchell and the instructor, all the ringers have learnt to handle a bell within the last few months, so only rounds and call changes were possible, but all are determined that 1950 shall be honoured at its passing with a '720,' rung by all locals.

If any ringer has a record of the last time these bells were rung, the information would be gratefully received. Also concerning a tablet in the ringing chamber which states that 'On Christmas morning, 1820, a peal was rung in 4 hours 2 minutes.' It hardly seems possible that there was a change ringing band at Piddlehinton at that date, and in any case the time seems very long for a 5,040 with a tenor of about 12½ cwt. E.T.P.F.

DEDICATION

DITTISHAM, DEVON.

The ring of six (tenor 12 cwt. 1 qr. 8 lb.) at Dittisham, Devon, has now been rehung with modern fittings in a new cast-iron 'A' type framework by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, Ltd., of Croydon. Nos. 3, 4 and 5 were found to be badly cracked and have been recast and the whole ring put into absolute tune.

The rededication service was held on Nov. 23rd, and the ceremony performed by the Lord Bishop of Exeter. Many ringers were present and the firm were congratulated on doing a first-class job.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SPEED OF FOUNDRY PEALS

Dear Sir,—Personally, I think it would have been wiser if you had blue pencilled Mr. Andrews' letter in last week's issue. If he had rung with the band he would not have questioned their ability to ring fast and well. These bells are not heard by the outside public and ringers consequently can go at the pace they desire. In a church tower speed must always be secondary to good striking and studying the interest of the general public.

In 1913 it took us 3 hours 41 minutes to ring a peal of Triples at the foundry; in these days, no doubt, if you took 2 hours 30 minutes they would think you had a sleep on the way.

One more record for the Leicester friends to lower, Stedman Triples 'in hand,' 1 hour 44 minutes, December 11th, 1911, with an umpire. —Yours sincerely, A. H. PULLING, Guildford.

FOUR PEALS IN A DAY

Dear Sir,—In your issue of January 6th you stated that four peals in a day have only been rung on two occasions before the latest achievement by the Leicester Guild. My brother, Mr. R. Howard, of 2, Flint Cottages, Church End, Barley, near Royston, Herts, rang four peals in a day. He also took part in the 18,144 Bob Major at Benington, Herts, on June 3rd, 1933, which, I think, is still the longest peal of Bob Major.

The peal of Bob Minor at Christ Church, Mitcham, was not my first peal of Minor. I rang the treble to a peal of Cambridge Surprise Minor at Barley, Herts, on August 23rd, 1928.—Yours faithfully, S. HOWARD. Colliers Wood, S.W.19.

SCIENTIFIC TRIPLES

Dear Sir,—I would like to second the letter of Mr. Barnett in the issue of January 20th re peals of Stedman. I have been partial to Surprise peals myself, chiefly because they offer a greater and more complex variety than other classes of methods, but coming back to Stedman is like dropping back to plain beef after a surfeit of rich food, it never palls! Some wonderful performances have been accomplished by bands in the line of Cheshire, Birmingham, Leicester and Lincoln, but there is a bigger job yet to be done which has been waiting accomplishment for 44 years.

And it is only Triples! Seven men to ring the method, and a tenor man. In fact, just the thing for the Ladies' Guild to do and outshine the men, as it only requires a light eight and only a 5,040. Or those cerebral giants, the Universities Association?

I refer to Scientific Triples, by John Carter, published in 'The Bell News' of July 21st, 1906. The band who ring this will, in my opinion, have accomplished the acme of mental effort in bellringing, any branch or numbers. So, my multi-Surprise method friends, here is a challenge for you, something that really requires thorough chewing before you can digest it, if ever! I consider any attempt should have a competent umpire.—Yours sincerely, Bushey, Herts. M. F. R. HIBBERT.

A LEEDS PEAL?

Dear Sir,—I have in my possession Benjamin Thackrah's book on change ringing, printed in 1852.

It contains the list of names as stated below. Is this a peal band, with a peal of Kent recorded at Leeds? After six of the names appear strokes or dashes, probably indicating peals rung.—Yours sincerely, St. Albans. G. W. CARTMEL.

Leeds peal, Kent, 1864: Treble, Richard Gibbs; 2, Abm. Salmon; 3, L. Tomlinson; 4, C. Wood; 5, R. Barnett; 6, C. Hobbs; 7, Wm. Stone; 8, Alfred Burke; 9, Solomon Haigh; tenor, Ernest Mears (25 cwt.).

PEALS AND VISITORS

Dear Sir,—I was reminded, on reading the account of the Irish peal on page 28 of your issue of January 13th, of a similar incident that happened when I was ringing the tenor to a peal of Grandire Doubles some time ago.

On that occasion while we were ringing the church had perforce to remain open and the ringing chamber was on the ground floor, open to the church.

The church in question is a perfect gem and in consequence had many visitors. The summer evening on which we rang the peal was no exception and several persons came in. These persons, quite naturally, began talking in a normal voice. This prompted the conductor of the peal to shout, in a very rude manner, I thought, at them to stop talking.

I don't know what these visitors thought of us and ringers in general, but I do know that they immediately left the church not to return.

In conclusion I would like to ask is the gaining of a peal sufficiently important for persons to be driven from the house of God by people who are supposed to be its servants? I sincerely hope that the ringers of the Irish peal apologised handsomely for the manner in which they treated the local ringers, who were, after all, in their ignorance of peals and peal ringers, only attempting to welcome visitors to their church and refresh them with cake.—Yours faithfully, A. JAMES VINCENT. Tuckingmill, Cornwall.

PEALS AND SERVICE RINGERS

Dear Sir,—May I suggest a way to end the occasional unpleasantness about peal ringing? It is that the incumbent, when asked for permission for an attempt for a peal on his bells, shall ask the applicant for an assurance that all taking part in it are regular Sunday service ringers. This, I think, might discourage 'peal grabbers' and encourage peal ringers.

I am not a peal ringer, but ring for Sunday services, and have no objection to peal ringing as such. Also I consider Grandire, Stedman and the simpler methods, well struck, sound far better than fancy higher methods indifferently rung—I am, yours, etc., 'FAIR DO'S.'

Oxfordshire.

[Probably 98 per cent. of those who ring peals are Sunday service ringers.—Editor.]

A NEW SOMERSET COMPANY

Dear Sir,—The bells of St. Julian's, Wellow, near Bath, have been out of action for 40 years, due to the ravages of the death-watch beetle, and were rung for the first time in June last year. Instruction of the new band began from scratch in early September, and weekly practices take place on Wednesdays (7.30 to 9.15 p.m.); and, in addition, theoretical instruction, backed up by handbell practice, has been held twice a week in the ringers' homes in rotation. Regular ringing for services on Sundays was started late in October, and, of course, is still confined to rounds, Queens and a few call changes.

Emphasis is being placed on the importance of accurate striking, and although we are hesitant of trying to run before we can walk, there is a great determination to get beyond the first stages before the end of the long winter evenings, and this new band is looking forward to being able to join the great fraternity of change ringers.

We have ten regular ringers in the new band, and another beginners' class has been asked for. This is gratifying response in an isolated village of only 260 inhabitants.—Yours faithfully,

D. S. E. ROW, Lieut. (E), R.N., Tower Master.

Wellow, near Bath.

Ringing Instructor and Education Committee

Dear Sir,—Re paragraph on page 41, Jan. 20th, 'In West Norfolk the Education Committee was paying a ringer a guinea a week to teach ringing.'

I have been on the books of the Norfolk Education Committee as an instructor for nearly two years. At present I am teaching a band at Mundford, Norfolk, where there is a ring of six, tenor 6 cwt.

On October 26th, 1949, I commenced a class with 12 pupils of the local youth movement, and after seven lessons they rang rounds without any assistance (two ringing minus stays), and all are now raising, setting and lowering their bell with the confidence of an old ringer. Unaccompanied, they rang for Christmas services, and as we have arrived each week since then the bells have been ringing.

For the benefit of those churches without ringers I understand that if the schoolmaster or the youth warden arranges a class of 12 pupils, the Education Committee will pay an instructor a fee and travelling expenses.—Yours faithfully, ERNEST H. MASTIN. Downham Market.

CONGRATULATIONS, BOURNEMOUTH

Dear Sir,—I would like to be able to congratulate Mr. Daniel T. Matkin, Mrs. F. J. Marshallsay and the rest of their band on their very fine peal performances during the year 1949. To Mrs. Marshallsay on being the first lady to ring a hundred peals in one year and to Mr. D. Matkin for the wonderful hospitality one receives at 26, Wellington Road, a special tribute and a vote of thanks are due.

It has been my very great pleasure to take part in several of these handbell peals, and I was very surprised at the exceptionally high standard of ringing which they expect before they will call it a peal. There is not a doubt in my mind that every one of the peals they rang last year was a 'good 'un.' May they carry on this good work. It's very nice to know when in Bournemouth like myself, a 'visitor,' you will always be made welcome, and if you want to ring in a handbell peal they will always ask you what you would like to ring. Wishing them every success for year 1950, I remain, Yours sincerely, W. ROGERS. Rotherfield, Sussex.

QUALIFICATION OF MEMBERS

Dear Sir,—At a recent annual meeting of the diocesan guild branch of which I am a member, the question of qualification for admission as a ringing member was raised and discussed at some length.

At this meeting it was finally resolved that new members be admitted to the branch only on condition that they could handle a bell, whereas it had been contended that new members should be admitted if they satisfied the tower captain as to their ability to ring, say, 120 changes of Grandire Doubles on the treble bell. It was pointed out at this meeting that were all the branch members liable to this elementary qualification, then the finances of the guild would be sadly depleted, and this is undoubtedly true, for in the West Country quite a good deal of 'stone' or 'call-change' ringing is practised.

I am of opinion that it is very necessary to maintain a good standard of scientific change ringing throughout the country, and can think of no reason why each recruit should not serve a probationary period, during which he or she should 'qualify' in some sort of manner as outlined above. The time taken to become proficient as a change ringer on the treble bell in one of the basic methods is not lengthy, and surely it is preferable to have quality rather than quantity at the outset. Perhaps other readers of our 'Ringing World' have ideas on this controversial subject.—Yours sincerely, Swanage, Dorset. H. R. PINK.

Winchester and Portsmouth

PORTSMOUTH DISTRICT.

The annual district meeting was held at Alverstoke on January 21st, when over 40 people attended, including Mr. George Pullinger (Master of the Guild), Mr. N. Andrews (Andover District), Mr. C. H. Kippin and Miss N. Leahy (Southampton District), and Mrs. Guy (secretary, Isle of Wight District).

The service was conducted by the Rector (Canon Windsor-Roberts), after which tea was served at St. Faith's Institute.

The district chairman (Mr. W. Linter) presided at the business meeting. The secretary's report contained an appeal to the members for early payment of annual subscriptions, and also to send names for tea by the date on meeting cards.

All retiring officers were re-elected, details being: Chairman, Mr. W. Linter; secretary, Mr. John H. Hunt; auditor, Mr. F. W. Burnett; representatives on Central Committee, Mr. L. P. Cook and Mr. Tom Page.

Ratifications were approved of four new compounding members (Mr. R. Crook, of Yattenden, and Miss Pamela Collis, Mr. Herbert Colcombe, Mr. James A. Brent, all of Hershaw, Surrey).

The secretary's three-year rota, whereby all towers in the district would get a visit during the period, the country places in the summer and the towns in the winter, was adopted unanimously.

A vote of thanks to the Rector, Mr. Nobes, the lady helper and to the district secretary for his year's work was moved by the chairman.

The types of ringing during the day ranged from rounds to Spiced Surprise Major in four and six methods.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

HUNTS DISTRICT.

The annual meeting of the Hunts District of Ely Diocesan Association was held at Huntingdon on January 14th. Both St. Mary's and All Saints' bells were used during the afternoon and evening. The ringers' service was conducted by the Rev. A. Morris at St. Mary's Church.

At the business meeting the Rev. J. M. E. Bagley, Rector of All Saints', acted as chairman. The secretary reported that 15 meetings had been held during 1949 and 22 peals were rung by the district.

Officers elected for 1950 were: Mr. S. Gilbert, re-elected secretary; Mr. F. Warrington, re-elected Ringing Master; committee, Messrs. F. W. Lack, F. Newman, F. Baker, Miss C. Dunnington, T. Austin, H. Fields, S. Peck, C. Young, W. Ransome; diocesan representatives, F. Warrington and F. W. Lack.

Tea was kindly arranged by Mr. H. Peacock, of Huntingdon, and was served by local ladies.

Mr. Lack proposed a vote of thanks to the two incumbents (who always made the ringers so welcome to Huntingdon) for allowing the use of the bells, to the organist and to Mr. Peacock and the ladies who worked so hard to prepare the tea.

WISBECH BRANCH.

The annual meeting of the Wisbech Branch was held at Wisbech on January 14th. Members and friends attended from Tilney, Shouldham, Downham, Hileav, Terrington St. John, Leverington, Tydd, Walpole, Elm, Long Sutton, King's Lynn and Walsoken.

Officers elected for 1950 were: President, Archdeacon Evans; secretary, J. E. Fox; Ringing Master, C. Cousins; Deputy Ringing Master, E. H. Mastin.

Methods rung during afternoon and evening ranged from Bob Major to Stedman Caters.

SITTINGBOURNE, KENT.—On Jan. 8th, 1,260 Stedman Triples: Miss D. G. Dobbie 1, W. H. Dobbie (cond.) 2, S. V. Ravfield (first in method) 3, W. A. Wood 4, G. E. Eastman 5, G. Kenward 6, S. B. Dobbie 7, G. Wood 8.

Guildford Diocesan Guild

FARNHAM DISTRICT.

Twenty-five new members were gained by the Farnham District during the past year. This satisfactory progress was reported at the annual meeting on January 21st, presided over by Mr. A. J. Stedman. The company of 55 stood in memory of Mr. A. J. Chuter (Frensham) and Mr. R. Hayes (Haslemere).

Mr. C. W. Denyer (Ringing Master) reported that Frensham bells were in a bad state, and he understood that a donation of £50 had been received towards opening a fund for their overhaul. Messrs. Taylor's had removed Ash bells for their recasting and rehanging in a new frame.

Mr. G. S. Joyce (secretary), in his report, stated that the average attendance at meetings was 58 from 18 towers. There was a balance in hand of £11 18s. 8d.

Officers elected were Mr. C. W. Denyer (Ringing Master), Mr. G. S. Joyce (hon. secretary and treasurer), Mr. P. Eldridge (hon. auditor), and Mr. F. J. Bragg (committee representative). New ringing members elected were E. Quick, E. Smith and Miss C. Islers (Aldershot), C. Hall (Bentley), J. White and Miss A. Butler (Frensham), J. Farquharson and N. Tovey (Worplesdon).

Meetings were arranged for Crondall, Grayshott, Pirbright, Worplesdon, Frensham, Ash and Aldershot.

The Rev. K. C. Davis voiced the thanks of the Hawley company to Mr. C. S. Joyce for help given during the year, and the chairman thanked the officers for their work. Thanks were also expressed to the Rector (the Rev. G. N. Selby-Lowndes), who conducted the service, and to Mr. C. Wells for his help as steeplekeeper and in the tea arrangements.

COVENTRY DIOCESAN GUILD

Chief business at the quarterly meeting of the Guild, held at Chilvers Coton on January 14th, which was attended by 60 members and presided over by the Vicar (the Rev. R. R. P. Rigby), was the discussion on designs for a Guild badge.

These had been prepared by Mr. W. B. Ellender (Stoke, Coventry, band), and one was approved. An order was placed for two gross. The badge would be in enamel and chromium, and the estimated cost was 3s. each.

A design for a new Guild certificate, also prepared by Mr. Ellender, did not appeal to the majority of members, who preferred one on similar lines to that formerly used by the old Warwickshire Guild, which incorporated photographs of important churches in the diocese.

Mr. F. E. Pervin, a former Master of the Guild, on behalf of all the members, wished Godspeed to Mr. T. W. Sheppard, of Coventry, who would be leaving England for America for a period of two years on a science scholarship. Mr. Sheppard responded, saying that he hoped to find Guild affairs in an even more flourishing position than at present upon his return from Lafayette, Indiana, U.S.A.

A social followed the business meeting, about 200 attending, an enjoyable time being spent in whist, games and dancing.

NAVAL WEDDING AT DEBENHAM

On January 21st, the wedding took place of Lieut. Cyril Arthur Caudle, of Cambridge, and Miss Lilian Maud Rumsey, of Debenham, only daughter of the late William C. Rumsey and Mrs. Rumsey. Prior to entering nursing the bride was organist at St. Mary's, Debenham, and learned to pull a bell.

A guard of honour of naval officers attended, and the bride and bridegroom on leaving the church passed under an archway of crossed swords. The bells were rung and fired by the Helmingham service band. Afterwards 448 Kent Treble Bob was rung.

OBITUARY

MR. J. S. WILDE.

News has reached us this week of the passing of Mr. James S. Wilde, of Dunedin, New Zealand, on November 10th, aged 87.

A prominent ringer in Cheshire before he went to New Zealand some 57 years ago, Mr. Wilde maintained his love of ringing and was for many years a subscriber to 'The Ringing World.'

To his great regret there was not a ring of bells at Dunedin, so he secured a fine set of handbells and trained a band to ring them. Some 17 years ago a peal of Plain Bob Major was rung by J. Wilde, sen., C. Wilde, J. Whipp and J. Grimes. It was accomplished after 24 years of practice and was the first peal 'in hand' to be rung in New Zealand. A peal of Minor 'in hand' was also rung, consisting of 720's of Plain Bob, Court and Double Court, Double Oxford, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob and a Surprise method.

MR. H. W. ELSE.

On January 14th, Mr. H. W. Else, of Hitchin, died after a recurrence of the illness that was the cause of his stay in hospital nearly 12 months ago. He made a good recovery from this and was again able to visit the tower and ring short touches.

He was one of the oldest ringers at St. Mary's, Hitchin, being elected a member of the local band in 1916. Mr. Else was a regular service ringer and was steeplekeeper for several years. He was a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths.

A quarter peal, half-muffled, was rung for evening service on January 15th, and the bells were rung fully muffled, with the tenor half-muffled, for the funeral service.

SONS WHO CONDUCTED FATHER'S FIRST PEAL

Mr. Percy Webb, of Ickleton, Cambs, writes that he conducted his father's first peal in 1900 at Ickleton. It was the first peal on the bells and first by all except the conductor.

Mr. R. J. Hicks, of Marhamchurch, Cornwall, writes that 'my son, A. J. Hicks, conducted my first peal (Grandsire Doubles) on August 12th, 1947, being then 15½ years old. He has now just started his National Service and is at present in the R.A.F. at West Kirby, Cheshire.'

Mr. Ernest J. Ladd, of Tunbridge Wells, states: 'I had the privilege of conducting my father's first and only peal when he was 70 years of age. The peal was rung in honour of the Silver Jubilee of H.M. King George V. on May 5th, 1935. Although now 85, my father still rings for Sunday services at East Grinstead, Sussex, and is able to attend meetings in the district.'

Mr. R. J. Black, of Geddington, Kettering, writes: 'On June 11th, 1947, at Weedon Bec, Northants, Mr. J. H. Webb, at the age of 15, conducted his first peal. This was also the first peal by his father (Mr. G. H. Webb).'

HAWKHURST AND DISTRICT GUILD

A pleasing feature of the annual meeting at St. Lawrence's, Hawkhurst, on January 21st, was the number of beginners who were catered for by rounds and call changes. A band of ladies also performed.

Officers elected at the business meeting were Mr. W. Gorringe, chairman and Ringing Master; Mr. G. Billenness, vice-chairman; Miss H. Gorringe, hon. secretary; Mr. W. Gorringe, hon. treasurer. Vacancies on the committee were filled by the appointment of Miss F. Wood and Mr. C. A. Levett.

A VINTAGE YEAR

LAST October in one of our national dailies there appeared an article headed: 'There really is a boom in bells.' The view was there advanced by one spokesman that the young men in towns as well as the country were getting a bit tired of the pictures and turning to bellringing as a new hobby with plenty of interest and physical effort.

Relatively few young people have forsaken the silver screen for pictures, but this we know, that 1949 was a year of great progress, and that where keen bands exist there has been a steady flow of young people into the ranks of ringers.

It is, however, in the realm of achievement that the Exercise has had an unprecedented 12 months. Never before have so many peals been rung, and the total of 2,895 has never been surpassed in the history of change ringing. The monthly totals for the past three years are a striking commentary on the progress:—

January	242	207	140
February	234	193	101
March	199	188	138
April	232	253	180

June	209	177	161
July	199	184	137
August	249	231	170
September	238	177	167
October	270	236	184
November	251	334	349
December	368	225	246

While the amazing performance of Mr. Harold Poole in ringing 143 peals in a year and the enthusiasm of the Bournemouth ringers in bringing round 118 peals 'in hand' accounts for a substantial number of the increase of 256, it cannot be said that peal ringing was confined to a relatively few ringers. A large number of ringers regard themselves as lucky if they can maintain an average of one peal a month. Very few bands can look back on the year with 100 per cent. success; in fact, it was a striking feature of the peal tours of 1949 that only one company had the satisfaction of securing a maximum success. There is no means of checking peal failures, and we have no desire to compile such a list, but we know of cases of men who have gone well into double figures before securing their first peal of Stedman or a particular Surprise peal.

It is the many factors that have to be taken into account for the scoring of a true peal that add zest and interest to the Exercise. Success in peal ringing is dependent on others besides the individual—the conductor, the rest of the company, the mechanism of the bells and outside interference. While many young ringers feel justly proud of being able to say, 'I rang my first peal at my first attempt,' the many other influences outside the control of the individual lessen the glory of the performance. We know of ringers who, having rung their first peal, have had the mortification of being told the peal was false!

In analysing the record for 1949, tribute must also be paid to the skill and development of the mechanical side of ringing in the work of our bell foundries. There is no comparison between the modern bells of to-day with those of 50 years ago; still less with those of 100 years. It was then a case of 'By sweat of thy brow . . .' We know of ringers who search for bells typical of past generations and glory in their endurance. Ball bearings and other contrivances have added to the pleasure of peal ringing and the popularity of the Exercise.

Another factor of 1949 ringing was that there was no special occasion for national rejoicings. The high November figures of 1947 were on account of the wedding of Princess Elizabeth, and those of 1948 were due to the birth of Prince Charles. The absence of any great occasion makes the peal record of the year more meritorious.

Later we shall have available the records of the different Guilds and Associations. There is no question however, that the place of honour as regards numbers has been secured by the Leicester Diocesan Guild. They and their president will receive the congratulations of the peal ringing fraternity. It will be many years before the ringing of 100 peals in six months by an individual will be surpassed.

The Universities Association will hold their week this year at Lincoln from August 18th to 26th. Through the good services of Mr. J. A. Freeman, Master of the Guild, Dr. E. S. J. Hatcher has arranged accommodation at the Lincoln Training College. A true Lincoln welcome awaits the visitors.

Congratulations to Mr. Roger Leigh on his 100th peal.

J. Frederick Milner makes a welcome re-appearance in the peal columns, following his operation, with a peal of Yorkshire Surprise Maximus at Leicester.

The quarter peal of Grandsire Triples at Stratford-on-Avon, reported in our issue of January 20th, was to the memory of Mr. H. Withers. A composition of Mr. Withers was selected for the tribute.

There must be scores of ringers who have been to Morecambe for their holidays and have met Mr. Herbert Palmer. Recently he celebrated his 70th birthday, and to mark the occasion his friends in the area joined with him in a peal of Bob Major.

Mr. Frank V. H. Sinkings, of Slough, attained his 85th birthday on January 30th. He still rings regularly every Sunday, having started 73 years ago. On Saturday he participated in a peal attempt of Stedman Triples in honour of the event. He learnt to ring at St. Mary's, Slough, in company with the late Mr. W. H. Fussell.

Congratulations to Anne B. Stockdale and Geoffrey Dodds on ringing their first peal of Surprise Maximus. They travelled to Leicester on the Sunday and had their preliminary run in the method for evening service. Miss Stockdale had previously only rung three peals on tower bells, being Major and Royal in the plain methods.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Tettenhall Church, Staffordshire, which contains the best ring of eight in the county, in the opinion of many, was destroyed by fire on February 3rd. The greater part of the church was built in the 10th century and was one of the finest examples of its era. The tower and bells, according to our report, have been saved.

Mr. Urban W. Wildney has three times 'circled' Kirby-le-Soken tower, and Mr. H. Purchase that at Chipstable, Somerset, once.

Thieves have stolen the lead from the church roof of Middleton Stoney, Oxfordshire, and water coming through the roof has damaged the organ. The Bicester Deanery Branch at their last meeting expressed their regret at such a dastardly act of sacrilege.

Following the peal at Lancaster Priory on January 28th, the Vicar, the Rt. Rev. B. Pollard, Suffragan Bishop of Lancaster, entertained the band to a sumptuous tea at the Castle Hotel, a gesture which was much appreciated.

Lay interest in ringing seems to be developing in the Southampton area. Recently there was considerable correspondence in the local paper on the subject of the newly-installed ring of ten at St. Mary's and the ringing of them. Now the Rotary Club of Southampton has invited Mr. York-Bramble as a guest to luncheon and to give an address (which is to be illustrated) on 'Campanology.'

The peal of Double Norwich at Melbourne, Derbyshire, was rung in honour of the visit to the town of Miss M. Deans, whose great-grandfather was Vicar there from 1831-1887. When he first came to the parish he was pleased the bells were being rung, as he thought, to welcome him. To his mortification he later discovered that they were rung to celebrate the victory of a local prize-fighter. The Exercise has now made amends.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

Progress Reviewed at Annual Dinner

THE second annual dinner of the Southwell Diocesan Guild was held in the Town Hall, Newark, on January 28th. The Parish Church bells—a noble ring of ten, tenor 32 cwt. 3 qr. 27 lb.—were rung during the afternoon in methods ranging from Surprise Royal to Grandsire.

Canon R. F. Wilkinson (chairman of the Guild) was in the chair and was supported by the officers. The guests of honour were the Mayor of Newark (Councillor B. L. Maule) and the Vicar of Newark (the Rev. G. W. Clarkson).

The close links between the Southwell Guild and her powerful neighbour were further cemented by the presence of the Master of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild, accompanied by a strong party.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Freeman, Mr. John Freeman and friend, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGuinness, Mr. and Mrs. John Walden, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, Mr. Harry Squires and son and Mr. John E. Cook, all of the Lincoln Guild; Mr. Albert Ward (Derby), Mr. Ernest H. Mastin (Downham Market, Norfolk), and Mr. J. P. Fidler (Loughborough). Also Mr. R. V. Appleby (Borough Chamberlain of Newark), Mr. W. C. Woodhouse and Mr. E. C. Thrale.

The dinner itself took place in the ballroom of the Town Hall, which is famed for its wonderful ceiling, the work of the famous Adam brothers. Illuminated by enormous chandeliers and scores of concealed lights, the ballroom made a perfect setting for a function of this nature.

RINGERS TO FIGHT INDIFFERENCE.

The toast of 'The Church,' coupled with that of the Vicar of Newark, was given by Lt.-Col. J. Anderson Smith, O.B.E. He traced briefly the history of church bells in relation to the Church. The speaker spoke of the need of the Church to be openly honoured and to be actively supported. Abroad in many countries the Church was being persecuted as she had not been for many centuries, and at home she was confronted by what might well be a greater danger—that of indifference. The Church, therefore, claimed the active support of all Christians; and bellringers, who were in a special sense servants of the Church, could not lag behind.

In the speaker's view the principal object of bellringing was to summon people to church. To ring for service and then to turn one's back on the whole proceedings was rather a cynical, not to say stultifying, thing to do. It was on par with putting up a large advertisement for somebody's backache pills and writing in slightly smaller print across the face of it, 'Mind you, I have no faith in them myself!'

Moreover, such conduct made for indifferent relations with the Vicar, with whom it was most important they should be cordial. It was at his instance the bells were rung, and indeed it was illegal to do so without his permission.

An ideal arrangement was to have the Vicar as a member of the band, and it was also desirable for ringers to be represented on the Parochial Church Council.

Col. Anderson Smith concluded by saying that it was the wish of all present that night that the Church might ever flourish, that the shadows of her towers might never grow less, nor the sound of her bells ever cease.

A CALL TO LISTEN.

The Rev. G. W. Clarkson, in response, complimented the proposer on the dignity of his words and the skill of his tongue. The Church asked for support. He (the Vicar of Newark) never asked in vain from his ringers. Sunday after Sunday the bells rang out at 9 o'clock.

MR. HAROLD J. POOLE,
President of the Leicester Diocesan Guild, the outstanding peal ringer of 1949, with 143 peals to his credit. He is an honorary lay canon of Leicester Cathedral.

It was a hard job, it called for sacrifice. They did splendid work calling people to worship, and calling those who were too idle to worship, to listen.

Referring to mixed bands of ringers and the long dark staircase at Newark Parish Church, the Vicar slyly remarked (amidst laughter) that he hoped that whatever happened in the dark might be fit to happen in the light!

'The Mayor and Corporation' was admirably proposed by Mr. W. C. Woodhouse, who spoke of the message of the bells. Did they not bid Dick Whittington, the failure, to return, and did he not hearken and make good? So it was with his Worship: he had come to Newark to seek his fortune and become a successful business man. He recalled that the bells were rung to welcome the first Alderman of Newark in 1549, and in 1626 the first Mayor, and for hundred of years the Parish Church bells had proclaimed to townsmen the accession of the new Mayor.

His Worship, Councillor B. L. Maule, made appreciative references to the Guild in his reply.

SOUTHWELL GUILD'S PROGRESS.

In proposing the toast of 'The Southwell Guild,' Mr. F. A. Salter outlined the circumstances giving rise to the formation of the Guild and the progress that had been made since the creation. He also spoke of the formation of the Newark District and likened it to a little landing field midway between two large areas, the Nottingham and North Notts Districts.

In 1947, went on the speaker, the Guild was well established, and the Association had begun to make its influence felt. Meetings were held in towers that had never been visited for years, more and more peals were rung, fresh bands sprang up and new members flowed in.

The year 1948 came in; more advanced methods were being practised, and then in May the Guild suffered its first great loss by the tragic death of Mr. T. Groombridge, jun. His dynamic personality and leadership were suddenly removed from their midst, leaving a void. For a time the Guild was thrown out of gear, and it was some time before it recovered its momentum. Then Mr. J. W. Raithby was elected general secretary, and in the speaker's opinion he did not think the Guild could have found a better or more hard-working secretary.

By the end of 1948 more peals had been rung than in the previous year and things were beginning to hum again. The year 1949 opened very well. The Guild was expanding in all directions, and one peal by the Guild was rung for the very first time anywhere, namely, Grandsire Triples spliced with Double Grandsire. Now they were well established they were bent on creating a bigger and better Guild.

NEWARK BELLS.

Canon R. F. Wilkinson covered a good deal of ground in his reply, and, amongst other things, mischievously drew the Mayor's attention to the necessity of putting Newark Parish Church bells into a first-class condition. Money was the only stumbling-block, and in other towns had not Mayors opened appeals for similar purposes? covertly questioned the Canon.

The toast of 'The Visitors' was adequately proposed by Mr. H. Pailing and responded to by Mr. John Freeman, of the Lincoln Guild, who referred to the warm ties between the two Guilds and the duty of all members to support such functions. He urged that after peals the band should spend some time together and get to know one another better. John Smith might be an indifferent striker, but he was most likely an excellent fellow in other directions.

Entertainment included handbell ringing, items by a concert party and a poem with a moral, recited by Mr. Clement Glenn, entitled 'The happy discovery' or 'The culprits found out.'

DAVID'S BIRTHDAY

The Christmas season over, our thoughts in Sudbury turn to January 14th (David's birthday). Owing to indisposition, David is unable to come to the belfry this year, so Arthur suggests we all go to David's at Grotton Place.

We arrive dead on time to find our host looking somewhat better. After several minutes being occupied with greetings, all eyes gaze at the magnificent carved oak ceiling which was undoubtedly there in 'Stedman's' time, followed by guesses as to how many cart-loads of logs it takes to make a fire in the old English fireplace.

We start handbell ringing, methods being Plain Major, Stedman, Grandsire Caters, with David handling the two tenors to Double Norwich in that expert manner which is the envy of us all. We sit down to a good old English supper, Mrs. Elliott mothering us all and carefully watching every need.

The time then arrives that we have all been waiting for (our host relating his ringing experiences of nearly 60 years ago). One of the most amusing is that of a party from his local tower who walked some distance to a ring of six where a meeting was being held. The rule was that you paid 1s. for every first 720 in a new method. A good 720 of Oxford Treble Bob was rung, but one of the party was left with 10d., having bought a pint for 2d. on the way, so the visitors did not 'split,' as they were thinking about a drink on the way home.

Charlie (72) and David get really settled down to swapping yarns when Arthur suggests that the hour is getting late for a sick man, so with a final plain course of Major we prepare to leave, and as we pass out of the hall we take another quick look at the grand old stairs made with solid blocks of oak and arrange to meet on Sunday for a quarter peal in his honour.

So ends the 74th birthday of a great ringer whose efforts in the past have contributed so much to make the Exercise what it is to-day.

MANGOTSFIELD — VILLAGE OF HAPPY RINGERS

By F. SKIDMORE.

ABOUT five miles to the north-east of Bristol is situated the village of Mangotsfield, which, although in close proximity of a large city, still retains its old rural aspects. It is about Mangotsfield ringers that I wish to portray some of the things of interest that have occurred during the past few weeks.

On December 28th, Mr. W. Seers celebrated his 90th birthday, and on the evening of that date a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung by the following: W. Seers 1, Miss Brenda Sheppard 2, Miss Betty Poole 3, F. Skidmore 4, C. Jefferies 5, W. Ritchings 6, J. G. Jefferies (conductor) 7, E. Cooksley 8.

Mr. Seers is a regular Sunday service ringer at Mangotsfield, walking two miles every Sunday to ring. We wonder if this is a record. He also attends the Association branch meetings whenever possible.

Mangotsfield has a band of about 22 ringers of all ages, and the success of the Guild is largely due to the genial personality of their captain, Mr. John G. Jefferies. Nothing is too much trouble for him, and his reward is in seeing the young ringers progress. The bells are part of his life. Mr. Jefferies has been a ringer for 50 years and has been captain of Mangotsfield Guild for 28 years (ever since the ring was augmented to eight). He has two sons and two grandsons ringing with him. Three generations in one band, quite a unique occurrence. Can this be equalled or beaten?

Many well-known ringers can recall with pleasant memories the cordial welcome that is extended to all ringers visiting Mangotsfield.

FAREWELL SUPPER.

On January 12th, the Guild met at the Vicarage for a farewell supper to one of their young ringers, Miss Brenda Sheppard (who is leaving this country for Australia early in February), to which Mr. C. R. Harding and myself were invited. After the supper the Vicar, the Rev. W. Beard, made a presentation to Miss Sheppard on behalf of the Mangotsfield ringers in the form of a 'Miniature Belle' brooch. They had tried to get a real bell brooch, but were unsuccessful. In the course of his remarks, the Vicar referred to Brenda as one who had come amongst them, about three years ago, a perfect stranger who wished to learn bellringing; but now she was one of them. Her personality and lovable disposition made her many friends amongst the ringers and the youth movement, and Mangotsfield's loss, undoubtedly, would be someone's gain. Down Under.

Mr. Jefferies also referred to Brenda as one of his large family of ringers whom he would be sorry to lose, but was sure that wherever she went Brenda would find and make a lot of friends, especially amongst ringers; in fact she had already started by getting in touch with Mr. Bennett, of Melbourne, who had extended to her a very hearty welcome to Australia, on behalf of ringers, and had promised to give her all the assistance possible.

50 YEARS A RINGER.

Mr. Jefferies also referred to the team spirit and cordial atmosphere which always prevailed at Mangotsfield, which was the foundation of their present happy position. He also mentioned that during his 50 years as a ringer there had been four vicars, all of whom had been very helpful and encouraging to the ringers, especially their present one. He was also pleased to say that during the 28 years that he had been captain, Mangotsfield bells had been rung twice every Sunday (with the exception of the ban during the last war), and change ringing up to the capability of the band present had always been their objective. Mr. C. R. Harding also responded, saying that it was largely due to the tuition he had received from Mr. Jefferies that had made him take the keen interest he did in ringing.

In conclusion, I would like to add that there is a great deal to be drawn from these happenings. First, that it is through the efforts of such companies as Mangotsfield that the Exercise has to look for their recruits, and if recruitment is going on all over the country in the same way, and meeting with the same degree of success, bellringing is not one of the dying English arts, but very much alive; and, secondly, the ringers of early 1900 were either short-sighted or jealous, as it is undoubtedly due to their not training someone to take their place that so many of our towers have not a band of their own.

I am pleased to see that associations are now realising this and that some have schools of instruction in bellringing, such as the Gloucester and Bristol have in Bristol.

Winchester and Portsmouth

PRESENTATION TO MR. G. PULLINGER.

In recognition of his work as hon. secretary of the Southampton District since 1932, members presented Mr. George Pullinger with an oak barometer at the district's annual meeting at St. Michael's, Southampton, on Jan. 14th.

The meeting was presided over by the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead and there was an attendance of 60, including Mr. Paul Field and three pupils from Buckland Newton, Dorset.

At the conclusion of routine business the chairman announced that as Mr. Pullinger had been elected Master of the Guild, he was not eligible to be elected district secretary, a post he had held with much faithfulness since 1932. He expressed thanks to him.

Mrs. Kippin, before making the presentation of a barometer, said the success of a guild or district depended to a great extent upon the secretary, and they in the Southampton district owed a deep debt of gratitude to Mr. Pullinger.

The barometer was inscribed: 'Presented to Mr. Geo. Pullinger, Master of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild of Church Bellringers, by members of the Southampton District, in appreciation of his services as secretary, 1932-1950.'

Mr. Pullinger, in reply, said that the presentation came as a complete surprise to him. He appreciated their kind thought. What little he had been able to do was due to his interest in ringing and its advancement.

The following district officers were elected: Chairman, Rev. K. W. H. Felstead; secretary, Mr. M. Butler; auditor, Mr. H. Higson; representatives on committee, Mr. R. Brown and Mr. R. Faithfull. Meetings were arranged at Eling, Sherfield English and Mottsfont, with the annual for 1951 at St. Mary's, Southampton.

Members were kindly entertained to tea by the Rev. and Mrs. Felstead.

SONS WHO CONDUCTED FATHER'S FIRST PEAL

Mr. William R. Birchall, of Huyton, Liverpool, writes:—

I also have had the privilege of conducting my father's first peal on St. George's Day, April 23rd, 1949. It was rung as a compliment to my father (Mr. William Birchall), who had celebrated his 80th birthday ten days previously; it was the first peal for all excepting myself, and the first by a local service band. It was also my first peal as conductor, and was rung at Huyton Parish Church, tenor 19 cwt.

Mr. A. W. Rolfe, of Chevington, Bury St. Edmunds, writes that he conducted his father's first peal about 1916 or 1918 at Chevington. It was a peal of Grandsire Doubles.

THE LATE MR. C. T. COLES

MEMORIAL BELL DEDICATED AT FINCHLEY.

WELL over 100 members and friends of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild attended St. Mary's, Finchley, on January 28th, to take part in a service held to dedicate two new bells. One of these was installed as a memorial to the late Mr. C. T. Coles and bore the following inscription: 'In memoriam Charles T. Coles, 1882-1946, secretary of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild of Change Ringers 1910-1945.'

The service was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. M. Ridley, and the Association's president, the Rev. P. Gough. In his address the Rector said how proud they were at last to possess a complete octave. The organist was Mr. A. T. Parker, an unattached member. Immediately following the dedication of the new bells, several whole-pulls of rounds were rung by a representative band.

Among those present were Mrs. L. Coles (widow), Messrs. C. T. W. and A. Coles (sons), Mrs. L. Hurle and Miss D. Coles (daughters), Mr. B. Hurle, Sonia and George Coles (grandchildren), Mr. A. W. Coles (brother), Mrs. A. W. Coles and Peter Coles. Mr. T. Bevan represented the Cumberland Youths.

After the tea the Rector referred more fully to the bell provided locally and stated that the money was collected over many years almost entirely through the efforts and enthusiasm of Mr. B. F. Tubb, the captain of the local ringers.

In his tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Coles, the general secretary (Mr. Ernest C. S. Turner) said: 'Mr. Coles joined the Middlesex Association in 1903 and soon became one of our foremost members. When Mr. A. T. King, who had been secretary of the North and East District, retired from that office in 1910, Mr. Coles was elected in his place. The office of secretary in those days, when the Association was comparatively young, entailed a considerable amount of work, and during the 35 years he held that office many of our bands reached a standard of ringing as high as any in the country.'

'Mr. Coles was an excellent striker, a competent conductor and a superb organiser. He took a great interest in the work of the Central Council, to which he was one of our representatives from 1921 to his death. He soon became one of the more influential members and his opinions commanded the respect of all. During the last few years we have greatly missed his guidance and help.'

'We are all, I am sure, very pleased to see his widow and members of his family here to-day. They already know of our great regard for the late Mr. Coles, and the memorial bell, which has been installed in St. Mary's, Finchley, tower, is a tangible expression of our respect and affection. We considered this to be the most appropriate tower to house this bell, as it was among the original towers to be affiliated to our Association when it was founded. The fact that there was already a frame to take the extra bells was an important consideration, and, due mainly to the efforts of Mr. B. F. Tubb and the local ringers, a fund was already in existence to defray the cost of the other bell.'

Mr. C. T. W. Coles thanked the ringers on behalf of the family for the tribute paid to the memory of his father.

The bellfounders, Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, who were represented by Mr. F. C. W. Stevenson, were congratulated on the quality of the two new bells, which blend so well with the original six.

The bells were rung to the usual variety of methods during the evening under the direction of Mr. A. Cutler, the Ringing Master of the North and East District.

THE LATE MR. C. T. COLES.

HILLINGDON RINGERS' SUPPER

The ringers of St. John's, Hillingdon, held their third annual supper on January 20th at the Windsor Restaurant, Uxbridge. A happy party of 31 sat down, with the new Vicar of Hillingdon (the Rev. F. C. Tyler) in the chair. He and Mrs. Tyler were guests of the Guild, and he expressed his pleasure at being with his ringers, and his belief in the value of bellringing to the Church.

Mr. F. W. Goodfellow, in his reply, referred to the fact that he had recently completed 21 years as secretary of the Guild. He expressed the regret of the company at the absence of Mr. W. Honor, who had been a ringer at Hillingdon for over 60 years, and Mr. Frank Blondell, a frequent visitor to Hillingdon, both of whom were prevented by indisposition from attending. It was reassuring to hear of Mr. Blondell's continued progress after his recent serious illness.

The toast of 'The Middlesex Association' was ably proposed by Mr. W. N. Genna, and replied to by the general secretary, Mr. E. C. S. Turner. 'The Guests' was dealt with by Mr. W. H. Coles in his inimitable way. Handbells were rung in changes and to tunes, while songs and choruses were performed by one of St. John's choir.

A happy evening came to an end all too quickly about 11 o'clock, and it was felt that most cordial relations had been established between ringers and the new incumbent.

BATH AND WELLS ASSOCIATION CHEW DEANERY BRANCH.

The monthly practice meeting was held at Easton in Gordano on January 21st. From 30 to 40 members attended.

Wraxall was the venue for the quarterly corporate Communion on January 22nd, and this fine octave was set ringing soon after 7 a.m. The ringers attended parish Communion, at which the Rector, the Rev. H. S. Briggs, celebrated. Twenty ringers then sat down to an excellent breakfast, and afterwards a return was made to the tower to ring for morning service.

Ringings on both occasions was under the direction of the Ringing Master, Mr. H. W. Knight.

Shropshire Association

ANNUAL MEETING AT SHREWSBURY.

The Shropshire Association again held their annual meeting in Shrewsbury, on Jan. 28th.

Officers elected were: Ringing Master and peal secretary, Mr. E. V. Rodenhurst; deputy, Mr. F. H. Bennett; secretary, Miss E. A. Carter; treasurer, Mr. W. A. Farmer.

The necessary business proceeded very smoothly with Mr. A. Bayley in the chair. Life memberships of Messrs. C. Ingram, G. Turner, H. Parker, A. Peake and F. W. Grocott were confirmed, and Mr. C. Golding was elected a ringing member.

The biennial report being due, the necessary expenditure was authorised, and meetings for the year, subject to the necessary permission, were decided as follows: Oswestry, March; Market Drayton, May 27th; Clive, July; Broseley and Much Wenlock, August; Berrington, September; Bridgnorth, October; Westbury, November. All will be held on second Saturdays except as stated, and after due notice in 'The Ringing World.'

Members and visitors enjoyed the fine ten at St. Mary's during the afternoon, although the original eight were considered superior to the later trebles. Some enthusiasts tried the six at St. Michael's, but as might have been expected, were soon back at St. Mary's for the Association service.

An all too brief period of ringing at St. Chad's closed the events of a successful day with attendance of over forty.

Methods rung included several periods of rounds on ten and twelve for beginners, standard methods up to Cinques and Cambridge and Double Norwich Major.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD SONNING DEANERY.

The annual meeting of the Sonning Deanery Branch was held at Wokingham on January 28th. Ringing commenced at 3 p.m. and the service followed in St. Paul's Church, conducted by the Rector, assisted by the Rev. C. E. Wigg (Master of the Guild). The Rev. C. Sparshott, Rector of Arborfield, preached. About 80 ringers sat down to tea.

At the business meeting, presided over by the branch chairman, the Ven. Thorndike Shaw, the secretary reported an active year with increased membership and well-attended meetings.

All the officers were re-elected and eight new members. Meetings for practice were fixed for the first Saturday in each month, with a summer meeting at Sandhurst. The secretary spoke of the forthcoming four guilds festival, to be held at Wokingham in August, and asked for full support from the branch.

After a few words from the Master of the Guild, the meeting closed, and ringing took place at All Saints' and St. Paul's Churches until 9 p.m.

LEICESTER DIOCESAN GUILD LOUGHBOROUGH'S JOINT MEETING WITH LADIES' GUILD.

Approximately 70 ringers and friends were present at a joint meeting of the Loughborough District and the Midland District of the Ladies' Guild on January 28th at Loughborough.

The bells of the Parish Church and the Foundry were rung to various methods, from rounds on ten to Cambridge Surprise Royal.

A short service was conducted by the Ven. Archdeacon Lyons, who was afterwards entertained to tea with the rest of the company in the Fearon Hall.

After votes of thanks had been expressed by Mr. P. L. Taylor (chairman of the Loughborough District) and Miss I. B. Thompson (vice-president of the Midland District), the company divided for their respective Guild meetings.

The next meeting of the Loughborough District is to be held at Ibstock on February 25th, and Melton Mowbray was the place decided upon by the Ladies' Guild for March 25th.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FOUR PEALS IN A DAY

Dear Sir,—As conductor of the peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal, rung in 2 hours 25 minutes, may I assure Mr. Andrews that there was nothing wrong with the peal and that the striking was good. Any ringer with experience on the foundry bells will know that fast ringing must be good to succeed at all. The two essentials for good ringing, and particularly good fast ringing, on the bells are (a) recent experience in peal ringing; (b) recent experience in ringing the foundry bells.

In regard to (a), the total number of peals rung in 1949 by the ten ringers exceed 550. In regard to (b), no less than 40 peals were rung during the year on the foundry bells and the majority of the ringers in the Royal rang in most of them. In the light of this wide experience, it is hardly fair, I suggest, for anyone to conclude and much less allege that because the ringing was quick it must be bad striking.

Maybe Mr. Andrews is basing his judgment on tenors of 20 cwt.—the more usual for peals of ten. The tenor at the foundry, as many will know, is only 9 cwt.

A few months ago a young band—average age just under 21 years—rang Cambridge Royal on these bells in 2 hours 29 minutes. The average time for the 18 Surprise peals of Royal rung last year is 2 hours 38 minutes, and some of those peals included visitors unaccustomed to the bells, in which instances the pace obviously had to be slowed up.

I do not wish to say anything unkind to or about Mr. Andrews, but I suggest that remarks such as those in his letter should be confined to personal knowledge of the event and not based on imagination or lack of it whichever the case may be.—Yours truly,

Leicester. HAROLD J. POOLE.

'PERFECT STRIKING'

Dear Sir.—The pace of the peal of Surprise Royal at Loughborough has been criticised. The truth is, of course, that such a performance presupposes a very expert band accustomed to ringing together, and absolutely perfect striking. We may not all want to ring at such a rate and, indeed, many of us have not the skill. But let us not seek, either from ignorance or jealousy, to belittle an outstanding feat of ringing.

There is a tendency for contributors to your columns to give vent to ill-informed criticism and even to snipe. This is all very regrettable and presumably comes from those who will one day be old enough to know better. ('I also knew when I was young.')—Yours,

'FORTY-SIX YEARS A RINGER.'

'CHURCH BELLS OF CORNWALL'

Dear Sir,—Dunkin's 'Church Bells of Cornwall' (1878) gives details of sixty-four 3's, fifteen 4's, forty-two 5's, fifty 6's and seven 8's. At present (I take into account two new sizes in hand and two pending) there are thirty-two 3's, seven 4's, eight 5's, ninety-four 6's and forty-three 8's. The augmentations of the additional thirty-six 8's may be of interest: sixteen have been from rings of six, six from fives, eleven from threes, one from one bell, and two complete 8's in new towers. Something like 38 of the 8's have been in bell-founders' hands this century, so there has been much recasting, and metal frames predominate, whilst ball bearings are common. Much the same story could be told of the sixes, although to a lesser degree.

Th extent to which Dunkin's book needs revising can be judged from the above. It may be possible to produce something in a few years' time, but such a book would be more for the practical ringer than for the antiquarian. This, I believe, would make the book more saleable.—Yours faithfully,

Carbis Bay, Cornwall. A. S. ROBERTS.

CENTRAL COUNCIL AT EASTBOURNE

Dear Sir,—It is proposed to organise motor-coach trip or trips to towers, Lewes, Brighton, etc., on Whitsun Monday for delegates and friends. If any delegates would let me know that they would like to be included I can make the necessary arrangements. I would be glad to have the information as soon as possible.—Yours faithfully,

O. SIPPETTS.

Crawley, Sussex.

DECLINE OF STEDMAN

Sir,—Referring to recent comments and letters in 'The Ringing World' on the subject of the decline in the number of peals of Stedman now being rung, I will quote an incident from my own experience which may throw some light on the matter.

A party of us, including a prominent peal ringer and conductor, was discussing what method should be chosen for a peal attempt on the morrow. Knowing the grand quality of the bells on which the attempt was to be made, I suggested Stedman Triples. The P.P.R. before-mentioned thereupon said, 'No, we don't want to go for Stedman: it is too easily lost.'

As one who seldom stands in a peal attempt, but who follows the activities of the Exercise with very great interest, it does appear to me that at the present time far more stress is laid on the scoring of a peal rather than on the quality of the ringing which goes to make up the attempt. I will even go so far as to suggest that 'The Ringing World' helps to foster this outlook by the undue prominence and adulation which it gives to every sort of peal ringing activity.

I, for one, hope that the Exercise may eventually regain a more balanced outlook on this subject, when the quality of the ringing will count as the first consideration, and the actual scoring of a peal as only incidental.—Yours faithfully,

A. R. POYNTZ.

SHIPWAY'S PRINCIPLE

Dear Sir.—It is difficult to understand what Mr. York-Bramble is talking about. If, as I gather, he is endeavouring to imply that, by starting what has become known as Shipway's Principle in a different place, and presenting it with a different name, he has produced some 'new feature,' he is giving your readers the 'generally wrong impressions' of which he accuses Mr. Baker and myself. This, of course, is nothing fresh.

The similarity between Shipway's Principle and Stedman has never been questioned, to my knowledge. I previously quoted some of Shipway's remarks: here they are in more detail: 'This system being nearly allied to Stedman's Principle, it will not require much additional explanation; for as that is founded on the principle of ringing the changes on three bells before, while those above thirds place make double dodging: so this principle is founded on that of working the changes on four bells before, while those above fourths place make treble dodging. . . . It being necessary to give a name to this system, the author has been induced to call it after himself, not merely because it was invented by him, but also for the sake of distinction.'

We would not now say that Shipway 'invented' the principle, but at least he did not reproduce someone else's figures a century late under the heading, 'Something New for the New Year.' Moreover, he was able, in a few sentences intelligible to any ringer, to describe the principle perfectly, whereas Mr. York-Bramble, for all the supposed advantages of his self-invented jargon, was quite unable to do so in one and a half columns.—Yours faithfully,

E. A. BARNETT.

Crayford, Kent.

Inferiority Complex

Dear Sir,—The leading article of 'The Ringing World' of January 20th is most remarkable and outstanding in its significance. It is to be hoped it will be well read and thought about by the Exercise as a whole.

To be confident in all that one attempts is indeed a great blessing. But what of those who lack this self-confidence? It is usually accompanied by that awful obsession, 'inferiority complex,' which is often present at the time a different and difficult task is attempted. Inferiority complex usually takes root during childhood by some form of nervousness: as the child grows so does this obsession until by the time adult stage is reached the person is fighting a battle within himself.

To feel one is not so good as the other person in whatever he attempts, by way of sports, in the factory and, last but not least, in the ringing room, is indeed a great handicap. A ringer enters the ringing room, either the home tower or another, with every intention of enjoying a pleasant ring, but one or more famous ringers may be present. The victim of this obsession is instantly affected, in spite of the fact that all are jolly good friends: there is no 'magnetic' or 'evil' eye. The unfortunate one usually tries to give of his best, but the result, alas, is a lamentable failure. He cannot control the bell properly and makes silly 'method' mistakes.

It is here that the expert can do a great deal of good. It would indeed be kindness itself if these experts would give a word of encouragement, not begin to shout or pass unkind remarks behind the person's back while ringing. Try to make a psychological summing up of the person involved. Fortunately, there are expert ringers who do.

Strange ringing rooms sometimes have a great effect on these sufferers of inferiority complex, more so if the room is small, for claustrophobia (the dread of enclosed places) can at times be linked with inferiority complex. No doubt there are people who will say this kind of people should not take up ringing or social activities, but that would be entirely wrong, for the more active these unfortunate compel themselves to become the better it is for them to overcome their trouble. But it never entirely vanishes.—Yours faithfully, Holloway, N.7.

R. NEWMAN.

ST. CUTHBERT'S, EDINBURGH

Dear Sir,—With regard to Mr. Gimbert's letter about ringing at St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, I would like to take this opportunity of clarifying the position. In my booklet on Scottish rings of bells the following sentences appear: 'As in other Scottish towers, a silent practice mechanism is provided and is regularly used on practice nights. Peals have been rung on these bells, but the proximity to the most important street in Edinburgh prevents them being rung except on important national occasions.'

The latter sentence was inserted for the benefit of those who may in the future hope to organise peal ringing tours of Scotland and does only refer to peal ringing.

As made clear in the first sentence quoted, there is a regular Sunday service band which is trying hard to keep change ringing going in that part of Scotland.

It is an unfortunate fact that few natives of Scotland are able to appreciate good change ringing, and it is because of the letters of protest received from time to time that a silent practice mechanism is installed in a number of the towers, a device which is very rare in England. So, alas, ringing for as long as three hours continuously is looked on in Scotland as a bad thing, especially when the tower is near a business centre and offices are open. The last word, of course, rests with the Minister and Kirk Session.

AN EXAMPLE FROM NORTHANTS

Dear Sir,—Behind the report of the peal of London Surprise Minor rung at Helmdon, Northants, on Jan. 18th, lies a story that may be of encouragement to keen bands living in remote country districts.

Helmdon lies in a part of Northamptonshire where change ringing is almost extinct, and where anyone who can knock off a 120 of Grandsire Doubles is considered a very useful ringer. Even this moderate achievement could not be indulged in unless several villages joined to form a band.

Thus it was that in 1945 six keen ringers drawn from five different villages arranged to meet one night a week during the winter months for practice.

Bob Minor was tackled first and a peal in the method was rung in November, 1946. After practising Oxford and Kent, the weather became too bad for the band to meet again until the following winter of 1947-8. These two methods and Stedman Doubles were thoroughly digested then, although no peals were rung. The following season of 1948-49 brought with it a windfall in the shape of a native of the district, who, after having spent some years in Shropshire, returned a polished Surprise ringer, and this fact at a time when Cambridge Minor was being tackled. Consequently rapid progress was made in the method, and a peal was rung in February, 1949. Before the winter ended London had received a fair amount of practice.

The present season has brought with it the flood tide of success, and within the space of ten days, in addition to the peal of London, quarter peals of York, Beverley and Carlisle have been rung, and a peal in seven Surprise methods is in prospect for the near future.—Yours truly, 'PROGRESS.'

HE CAME SECOND!

Dear Sir,—I thought perhaps you might like to pass on to readers of 'The Ringing World' one of the best ringing howlers I've heard.

As the recent quarter peal of Grandsire Triples rung at Faversham was a local effort, it appeared in 'The Faversham News' on the following Friday, given in the usual 'Ringing World' style.

On returning to work the next Monday morning one of the ringers was greeted with, 'See you came 2nd in the bellringing, Harry.'—Faversham. W. S. PALIN.

THE OLDEST BELL

Dear Sir.—Your editorial, 'The Oldest Bell': 'Caversfield has the oldest dated bell in England. . . . While the actual date of its casting is not inscribed on the bell. . . .'

I beg to submit it is not a dated bell, as it does not bear any date. You can't have it both ways. J. R. Nichols in 'Bells Thro' the Ages' states the oldest dated bell is at Cloughton, Lancs, and bears the date 1296. For further details (including Caversfield), see above book. W. B. KYNASTON.

NORTH DEVON RINGING

Dear Sir,—I was interested to read ('Ringing World', Jan. 6th, 1950) of the work of the Combe Martin band. Two deaneries in North Devon have, I believe, only two change ringing towers between them: Combe Martin and Ilfracombe. These gave a very kind welcome to one novice last summer, and sent him back to his own method-ringing county a good deal wiser.

Better for North Devon ringing, and amply rewarding, would be more visits from experienced ringers among the numerous holiday-makers. Combe tower itself is as lovely as its surroundings.

In spite of its situation, Mr. Hayward's outpost has left our six-bell band standing. Both in post-war quarters and in methods.—Yours, Bristol. GRAHAM WATT.

ITCHINGFIELD SLOW COURSE

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. C. Hone, the late Mr. Henry Burstow, of Horsham, was the originator of this method and the Itchingfield ringers of his period used to ring it.

I paid a visit to Itchingfield in 1903; there was then no local band. When at Shipley in the same year my attention was not drawn to the book he mentions, but it is highly probable it is the work of Mr. H. Burstow.

Mr. H. Burstow was a most remarkable man, who thought nothing of walking the 10 or 12 miles to Bolney to teach the local ringers. He took part in the record peal of 13,440 Canterbury Pleasure Major at Warnham. He once pricked out the whole 5,040 of Grandsire Triples to satisfy the doubts of a local lady, who thought the number of changes not possible. He could also sing 365 songs.—Yours sincerely, 90, Hall Road, Hull. G. F. WILLIAMS.

A DORSET APPEAL

Dear Sir,—May I, through the courtesy of 'The Ringing World,' make an appeal for Mappowder, a small agricultural parish of about 160 inhabitants in the beautiful Blackmore Vale in Dorset.

Hanging in the tower of the lovely little church are five bells, all cast by Knight about 1735, which have not been rung in living memory. Estimates have been received for re-hanging in a new frame and with all new fittings, recasting at least one bell and augmentation to six, but the task of raising the necessary funds is herculean for so small a parish and will take years to accomplish.

May I appeal to ringers throughout the country to help by sending what they can, however small, to Dr. S. F. Jackson, Mappowder Rectory, Sturminster Newton, Dorset, who will gratefully acknowledge every donation.—Yours fraternally, Dorchester. E. T. PAUL FIELD.

CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD

The annual meeting of the Crewe Branch was held at Christ Church, Crewe, where there is a ring of 10 bells, on January 21st.

The company present numbered over 80, and included the Master of the Chester Guild, Mr. J. W. Clarke, and Mrs. Clarke; the hon. secretary, Rev. J. Kingdon; the Rev. W. Gwynne John, Vicar of Christ Church, Crewe; and ringers from many places in Cheshire, North Staffs and Shropshire. Ringing took place under the guidance of Mr. J. Brough, Nantwich, Ringing Master.

Later, a service was held in Christ Church, the preacher being the Vicar. The company were afterwards entertained to tea as the guests of the Parochial Church Council.

The business meeting followed, the Master of the Guild being in the chair.

The following appointments were made for 1950: Chairman, the Rev. C. Parry-Williams; hon. secretary, Mr. Rich. D. Langford; hon. treasurer, Mr. Wilfred Kerr; member of General Committee, Mr. George Packer; Ringing Master (8 bells), Mr. Jack Brough (Nantwich); Ringing Master (6 bells), Mr. Fred Sutton (Acton); instructor, Mr. George Packer (Crewe).

LEEDS AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

The Society's January meeting at Drighlington was very well attended. Ringing started early and various methods were successfully rung when a halt was called for tea. Further ringing took place after tea until 7 p.m., when the business meeting was held in the tower. Mr. T. Hill presided, and a vote of thanks to the Vicar, churchwardens and the local company, especially naming Mr. Barron, who had arranged the meeting at short notice, was proposed by Mr. J. W. Benton and seconded by Mr. H. Davison. Mr. Barron suitably replied and hoped that all present had enjoyed their visit.

Essex Association

SOUTH-EASTERN DIVISION.

Notwithstanding the increase to 2s. 6d. of the annual subscription, the number of paid members had grown to 148. During the year 3 honorary members, 17 ringing and 13 probationers had been elected. This satisfactory statement was contained in the annual report of Mr. A. H. Everett (hon. secretary) at the annual meeting at Great Waltham on January 14th. Forty-five members attended, the service was conducted by the Rev. B. Jukes (Vicar) and Mrs. M. R. French entertained the members to tea.

Other points from the report were that 16 peals, including an officers' peal (Superlative) to mark the 70th anniversary of the Society, were rung; Mr. Peter Eves had joined the ranks of conductors and two members had rung their first peal.

During the past three months, Saturday afternoon and evening practices were arranged for the benefit of the less experienced. The quicker learners were taught to take a real active part in ringing, the less would be the losses amongst pupils, which now probably stood at 75 per cent.

The veterans of the Association continued to give faithful service—Mr. G. Green and Mr. Harry Allen, both with 64 years of membership.

The election of officers was as follows: Master, Mr. H. W. Shadrack; secretary, Mr. A. H. Everett; committee, Mr. R. Thrift and Mr. W. Barrett. The Rev. B. Jukes was elected an honorary member; Messrs. B. Sydenham and R. Sutton, of Great Baddow, ringing members; Messrs. Butcher, Day, Nottidge and Wallace, full ringing members; the Misses S. Bone, D. Forbes, J. Lightfoot and C. James, of Galleywood, probationer members.

Mr. L. J. Clark expressed the thanks of the meeting to Mrs. M. R. French for her generous hospitality, and to the Rev. Jukes. Dr. Spencer-Phillips seconded and also thanked the local ringers for making the arrangements.

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH GUILD

WINCHESTER DISTRICT.

The annual meeting of the Winchester District was held at the Audry Tea Rooms, Winchester, on January 7th, the attendance being 47 members, with visitors from Swindon, Bournemouth, Guildford, Newbury and Southampton.

Mr. G. Pullinger, Master of the Guild, presided and paid tributes to two well-known ringers who had passed away during 1949, Mr. W. Andrews, of Winchester Cathedral, and Mr. W. Melville, of Wonston, both of whom had done very good work in teaching new ringers in the Winchester area.

The Rev. J. S. D. Mansel, of Winchester College, was elected chairman for the coming year; Mr. L. A. Tremear (Alresford), secretary; Mr. W. C. Lampard (Winchester Cathedral), treasurer; Mr. R. Smith (Wonston), Master; Mr. H. Newnham (Alresford) and Mr. S. J. Sanders (Twyford), representatives on Central Committee; and Mr. G. Smith, of Twyford, auditor.

Quarterly meetings were arranged for Alresford in April, Micheldever with Wonston in July, and King's Somborne with Stockbridge in October. Good change ringing progress was reported from Twyford, Ropley and Alresford, and new ringers had started in several towers.

After the meeting and tea, the Guild service was held in conjunction with evensong at the Cathedral.

The bells of the Cathedral were rung until seven o'clock, then a move was made by a small party to Twyford, where permission to ring was given by the Vicar, the Rev. Beynon, at very short notice, and this was very much appreciated by all concerned.

OBITUARY

MR. W. J. POWELL.

We regret to record the death of Mr. William James Powell, of Llanfrecfha, Monmouthshire, aged 69, after an illness of more than three years' duration, borne with great patience.

On two occasions he had been Master of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association, and he and his young band were familiar figures at all association meetings. In all he had taken part in 16 peals, including one of Cambridge Surprise Major.

Mr. Powell had taken an active interest in the welfare of the Church, serving as a chorister at the Parish Church since boyhood, a member of the Parochial Church Council and a sidesman. Parishioners will miss his good-humoured personality at local functions. He was instrumental in augmenting Llanfrecfha bells from six to eight, but was never happier than when ringing on six bells.

A peal of Kent Treble Bob Minor was rung at Llanfrecfha to his memory.

MR. J. A. RANGLES.

Mr. John Arthur Randles, of Coed-y-rae, Gresford, North Wales, passed away on Jan. 25th in his 58th year. He had been a ringer at All Saints' Church, Gresford, since he was 12 years old. For 46 years he had been a most loyal and regular service ringer, and had rung 25 peals of Grandsire and Stedman.

His courtesy and kindly welcome to visitors to the tower, his interest in ringing meetings of the North Wales Association, and the Wrexham and District Branch in particular, will long be remembered by his many ringing friends.

He followed his father, Richard Randles, who had been for many years a ringer on these famous bells. Four of his brothers still ring and his son and daughter are learning. He and his daughter took part in the recent broadcast of Gresford bells.

He was a very loyal churchman and had been a member of the church choir for 49 years.

The funeral took place on January 28th, attended by ringers of neighbouring towers. The service, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. Glyn Jones), was fully choral. After the service touches of Grandsire and Stedman were rung with the bells half-muffled.

Sympathy is extended to his wife and two children.

RINGER AS LORD MAYOR

BIRMINGHAM, now the second city of the country, is to have a ringer as its Lord Mayor next year. Last week at a special meeting of the Birmingham City Council Alderman Alfred Paddon Smith, J.P., was elected as Lord Mayor designate of the City. Birmingham has been famed for the high standing of its chief citizens, and the services of the Chamberlain family in this office—Joseph and Neville—are known far and wide. The congratulations of the Exercise will be extended to Ald. Paddon Smith on the high honour conferred upon him, and with them their good wishes for a happy and successful year of office.

Since his boyhood days, Ald. Paddon Smith has lived at Handsworth. He came of bellringing stock, his father, grandfather and great-grandfather all being ringers. At Handsworth Old Church about 50 years ago he learnt to ring, and as a young man cycled in to St. Martin's, Birmingham, to master 12-bell ringing with this famous company. In those days St. Martin's was the only 12-bell tower in Birmingham, and attracted the enthusiastic young ringers of the neighbourhood, among whom was Mr. T. H. Reeves.

While still a young man, he was appointed hon. secretary of the St. Martin's Guild for the Diocese of Birmingham, and the 20 years he held the office coincided with an expansion of the Guild and of its towers. His boyhood friend, Mr. T. H. Reeves, succeeded him and held office for a like period. Birmingham ringers knew his worth, and for many years he has been one of the Guild's representatives on the Central Council. Ald. Paddon Smith knows the bells of England well; he has travelled extensively and has a creditable peal record, although of late years this has had to give way to the call of civic and public work. He is also a past Master of the St. Martin's Guild.

In the industrial life of the great city of Birmingham Ald. Paddon Smith has played a prominent part. He is a director of Joseph Lucas (Sales and Service), Ltd., and commercial manager of Joseph Lucas, Ltd., and in the interests of his firm he has travelled overseas extensively. The recognition of his ability has come in many ways. He is a past chairman of the National Union of Manufacturers and is now a vice-president. He is also hon.

treasurer of the Economic League. For more than 30 years he has been associated with the Motor and Cycle Trades Benevolent Fund (Midland area), and is vice-chairman of that body.

Ald. Paddon Smith's membership of Birmingham City Council dates back to October 3rd, 1935, when he was elected as a Unionist member for the Sandwell Ward. A keen and able debater and never at a loss for a word, he was soon recognised as one of the most effective speakers in the Unionist Group on the City Council. One of his outstanding jobs on the Council was that of chairman of the Transport Committee from 1943-46, and under his guidance Birmingham's transport services were successfully piloted from a war-time organisation, with good foundations laid for expanding necessary services and for replacing worn-out and uneconomic ones.

His list of other public offices is formidable. He is chairman of the Birmingham District Tame and Rea Drainage Board, chairman of the governors of Handsworth Grammar School, governor of Handsworth Parochial Charities, vice-president and one-time secretary of the Birmingham Savings Committee, chairman of the Handsworth Chrysanthemum Society (one of his hobbies is gardening), chairman of No. 491 (Handsworth) Squadron A.T.C. during the war, and until the National Health Service came into operation was president of the Handsworth District Nursing Association. He was added to the Commission of the Peace for Birmingham in 1942, and last May was elected an alderman.

At the Henry Johnson Commemoration Dinners he is a popular figure. A master of epigram and a raconteur with a wit appreciated by ringers, his speeches are full of interest. But in the midst of a busy life he still finds time to participate in his Sunday ringing, and follows with the closest interest the happenings of the Exercise. To his ears Stedman Cinques is the sweetest of all music, and he usually rings the seventh or eighth bell with sureness and perfect mastery, the characteristic of the St. Martin's band.

Alderman Paddon Smith is a widower, and his daughter-in-law, Jean, wife of his eldest son, Lieut.-Colonel Donald Paddon Smith, will act as Mayoress. They have two children, a son aged seven and a daughter aged 2½ years. We feel certain that never will the bells of Birmingham ring out more joyously than next May in honour of the new Lord Mayor, and we trust that the event will be duly recorded in our peal columns.

'THE RINGING WORLD'

The Official Journal of the Central Council of Church Bell Ringers

EDITORIAL OFFICE: c/o Woodbridge Press, Ltd., Guildford, Surrey.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: 12 months, £1; 6 months, 10s. 6d.; 3 months, 5s. 6d. Send remittance to Mrs. Fletcher, The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

EDWIN H. LEWIS, M.A. (President of Council).

GEORGE W. FLETCHER (Hon. Secretary of Council), The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk.

A. A. HUGHES, J.P. (Hon. Treasurer), 34, Whitechapel Road, E.1.

Mrs. E. K. FLETCHER.

EDITOR: T. W. WHITE.

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

Owing to the regretted illness of Mr. W. H. J. Hooton, Central Council publications are now being dealt with by Mr. C. W. Woolley, 39, Titan Avenue, Bushey, Herts. Will readers ordering books kindly note the change of address?

The joint meeting of the Middlesex Association and the East Berks and South Bucks Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild will be held at St. John's, Hillingdon, on Sept. 16th.

The bells of St. Andrew's, Chippenham, Wilts, have been removed to Messrs. John Taylor's foundry for turning and retuning. They will be rehung on ball bearings.

Mr. Arthur V. Pearson, of Wolverhampton, has started his next 200 peals with a new Surprise method rung for the first time — Somerset Surprise Major.

The Oxford University Society rang courses of Double Oxford Royal at New College and Steadfast Minor on the heavy six at St. Mary-the-Virgin's on February 5th. This was the first in the method for all and probably the first in Oxford.

To hand is the January number of the Maidstone District's quarterly magazine. Tower snatchers will be particularly interested in the map of the district. A feature article deals with West Malling Church. Instructional articles and bright chatter complete an interesting number.

Twelve-year-old Jean Marshall stepped in at the last minute to complete the band for London Surprise at Southport. This was her first attempt for a peal and she handled a bell never easy to ring in an expert way. This was the first peal of London for the Wigan Branch of the Lancashire Association.

Mr. Albert Relfe has now rung 12 peals of Minor on each bell in Lamberhurst tower.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The ten bells of St. Mary's Parish Church, Whitby, Yorks, have recently been removed by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., Loughborough, bell founders, to be recast and, later in the year, to be rehung on ball-bearings in a new metal frame.

The many friends of Mr. F. Warrington will be pleased to learn that Mrs. Warrington is now out of hospital and progressing favourably.

Bunwell, Norfolk, where a peal of Minor was rung on January 29th, had its last of Minor 44 years ago to the day. Three of the original band are still living.

By ringing the treble, Mr. Jack L. Millhouse on February 4th completed 'the circle' of Metheringham tower. Mr. Geoffrey M. Mayer at the same time completed the Cambridge 'family' from Minor to Maximus.

Mr. A. H. Pulling writes that the time taken in the peal of Triples in 1913 at the Loughborough Bell Foundry was 2 hours and 41 minutes, and not as published in his letter on page 75 of 'The Ringing World.'

Mr. William G. Young has left Bournemouth upon his appointment as chief clerk at the Hants and Dorset Bus Depot, Winchester. 'As the treble man in our spliced efforts,' writes Mr. D. T. Matkin, 'we shall miss him. The treble was always "there," no easy job in Soliced Plain Major. We all wish him the best of luck in his new position.'

The George Williams Commemoration Dinner will be held at the Pavilion, Bournemouth, on May 6th, at 7 p.m. Full details will be advertised in March, but Mr. Arthur V. Davis, the hon. organising secretary, asks ringing friends to book the date and to remind them that Bournemouth is very beautiful in early May. A coach tour and a full programme of ringing is being arranged.

UNIVERSITY REUNIONS

Oxford University Society

The annual lunch was held on January 28th in Oxford. The Society was pleased to welcome as guests Mr. Ernest Morris (Leicester), Mr. D. N. Layton (Master, London University Guild) and Mr. B. D. Threlfall (Master, Cambridge University Guild), Messrs. W. F. Judge, V. J. F. Bennett, E. Moore and P. Walker from the Oxford Society of Change Ringers, and of the Oxford clergy the Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Lee, the Rev. J. Lucas and the Rev. J. C. Stephenson.

Ringling in the morning at St. Thomas-the-Martyr's and St. Mary Magdalen's was followed by a service at St. Mary-the-Virgin's, conducted by the Rev. R. S. Lee, at which the Rev. C. E. Wigg, president of the Society, gave an address.

After lunch at the Forum Restaurant, at the suggestion of the president the company stood for a moment in silent tribute to the memory of the late Canon G. F. Coleridge, vice-president, a fine ringer, whose encouragement and example have been an unfailing inspiration for as long as any present could remember.

Miss Margaret Tutt then proposed the toast of 'The Guests.' She warmly welcomed Mr. Morris, whose reputation had, of course, preceded him. There could be few there who had not heard something of this great man and his works. She also expressed the pleasure which members felt at the presence of the clergy, without whose forbearance the Society could not function, and the city ringers, without whose co-operation its standards of performance would sharply deteriorate.

Mr. Ernest Morris, in replying, gratified his audience with a speech rich in lore and anecdote. He reminded members of the interesting field for study that Oxford bells and ringers provided, and commended it to those with an inclination towards research. The importance of the universities in training as ringers those who were to be clergymen was worth emphasising again and again. Ringing parsons were all too rare at present. He wished the Society every success. Once ringing was ingrained in them, members should, on leaving Oxford, join the local tower wherever they might be and help in spreading the art.

Mr. Denis Layton proposed the toast of 'The O.U.S.C.R.' He congratulated the Society on leading other university societies, at any rate chronologically. He had attended the last six annual lunches. Great names in the Society had come and gone. Some had said that without them it would not last. But, in fact, it had and he would like to pay tribute to the work of those masters who had carried on John Spice's work and brought things to their present flourishing state. An outstanding conductor was a great advantage, but not an essential.

The Master, Mr. M. E. H. Barrow, in thanking Mr. Layton, briefly reviewed the year's activities. He singled out particularly a quarter peal of Grandsire Doubles rung one evening in Michaelmas Term by a resident band from St. Edmund Hall, in which there were five 'firsts.' The ringing week at Cheltenham in 1949 had been an unqualified success. The 1950 week was to be held in Shropshire from April 13th-20th, based at Shrewsbury. Old members interested were invited to communicate with the secretary.

In the afternoon the bells of Christ Church were rung to rounds, Grandsire and Stedman Cinques and Cambridge Maximus. At Magdalen this programme was varied with well-struck courses of Plain Bob Royal and Yorkshire Royal. In the evening at St. Martin's and All Saints' standard eight-bell methods were rung, culminating in Spliced Surprise. At these three towers Mr. Judge's conducting was the mainstay in the ringing of the more difficult methods.

The success of the day's ringing was due not least to our distinguished guests and to those whom we were pleased to welcome as visitors, Messrs. P. M. J. Gray, E. P. Rock, S. E. Darmon and R. F. B. Speed. The loyal support of old members was most heartening and we were particularly glad to see again the Rev. F. L. Edwards, who had journeyed up from Dorset, and Mr. H. Miles (vice-president), spending a week in Oxford renewing his many friendships with ringers both inside and outside the University.

Bristol University Society

The annual ringing day and dinner of the University of Bristol Society was held in Bristol on January 28th. During the morning a peal attempt of Grandsire Triples at Henbury was lost owing to an omission in the calling. An excellent practice of Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Plain and Little Bob Major ensued. After lunch ringing at St. Mary Redcliffe ranged from rounds and Stedman Cinques, and at SS. Philip and Jacob's a well-struck course of Cambridge Major was rung. The service, conducted by the Rev. D. A. R. Allen, was held at St. Michael's.

Some 37 members and visitors sat down to dinner at the Full Moon Hotel. The honorary president, Dr. S. H. Piper, having proposed 'The King' and 'The Church,' raised the toast of 'The Exercise.' He spoke of the keenness of the members and the leadership of the officers, in spite of the difficulties occasioned by the loss of All Saints', and later St. Michael's owing to the tower becoming unsafe. He expressed the Society's appreciation of the fine hospitality of the ringers in the towers used during the year.

The secretary, Miss Mary Bliss, proposed 'The Visitors,' and conveyed greetings from Cambridge, Oxford and London. The several visitors from the Bristol City Branch were welcomed, also Mr. Kynaston, Master of the Gloucester and Bristol Association, and Mr. Geoff Carter and Mr. Ronald Clouston from London.

Mr. Carter, in reply, mentioned the fact that Bristol was the first provincial university to form a ringing society, and expressed pleasure at the close relationship existing between the U.B.S.C.R. and other societies.

Mr. Leaker, chairman of the Bristol City Branch, in proposing 'The U.B.S.C.R.,' brought greetings to the Society and congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner (née Dorothy Richardson) on their recent marriage. He was sorry about the loss of the Society's two towers, and suggested that the Lord Mayor's Chapel might prove to be a suitable 'home tower.' It was, he said, a pleasure to ring with the Society and the standard of ringing was remarkably good.

The Master, Mr. Jack Worrall, replied, and reaffirmed the Society's indebtedness to the City ringers. He reviewed the year's activities, which included several first peals for members in both Minor and Major methods, a first peal as conductor for Mr. Ivor Truman, and various new methods for the Society. Membership was up to sixty, comparing favourably with Oxford. He stated that the objects of the Society are to further the art of change ringing by helping other towers as the occasion offers, and by training leaders as well as ringers.

The meeting ended with the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner of a morning tea set as a wedding gift from the U.B.S.C.R. Mr. Eric Taylor, in a brief speech, expressed the hope that the gift would be useful, and also that Mr. Gardiner would be persuaded to learn to ring. Mrs. Gardiner suitably replied.

On Sunday morning ringing took place at Christ Church, where some well-struck Grandsire Caters were rung, and at St. John's-on-the-Wall. In the evening members joined the resident ringers at St. James' in ringing Stedman and Grandsire Caters.

6,496 Spliced Surprise Major

Commenting on this peal, which was rung at Frodsham, Cheshire, on December 31st, Dr. J. C. E. Simpson writes:—

In its own small way, this 6,496 is a record length. Mr. A. J. Pitman has composed a 9,600, but from the ringing point of view the latter does not compare with the 6,496 in six methods.

The band who rang this peal were much impressed by the composition, which will always stand as a tribute to the composer's ingenuity. It employs the 60 course ends, and it thus seems unlikely that a longer length will be obtainable on what is essentially the three-lead course plan. The beauty of the composition lies in the extremely regular manner in which the 60 course ends are introduced.

After the peal, the band were entertained, first by Mr. and Mrs. Claybrook and later by Mr. and Mrs. Bibby. All this hospitality was greatly appreciated and was a very pleasant sequel to what was felt to be a memorable rounding off of a successful year's peal ringing activity.

Ringling in South Australia

In forwarding a copy of the first quarter to be rung in South Australia, Mr. Philip L. Cooper, of 26, North Street, Collinswood, Adelaide, writes that it was rung by a combined team from the two towers in the city, viz., St. Peter's Cathedral, where a Taylor eight (tenor 41 cwt.) was hung in 1947, and St. Andrew's, which has a Mears and Stainbank six, hung in 1886, and for most of the ensuing time was the only ringing tower in the State.

Mr. Cooper continues: We also have a glorious ring of eight, tenor 13 cwt., by Warners, in our Town Hall. Unfortunately, these have not been rung for nearly 50 years, but we hope to get them going again soon.

Change ringing has only been practised thoroughly here since a year ago, and we feel pleased with our progress, as we have had to struggle on by ourselves. The nearest ringing bells are about 600 miles away. The progress was made possible mainly by my having the opportunity of a trip to Sydney last February, where I gained considerable experience.

It is worthy of note that except for the treble (37) and tenor (35), the other ringers are comparatively young. The second is 22, third 23, fourth 18, and myself 19.

With this success we hope for many more quarters in the future and eventually we hope to get to peal standard, after venturing through Doubles and Minor, to Triples.

I receive your paper weekly, and I can assure you that it is full of interest. Later this year I hope to publish a book giving the history of all the Australian ringing towers, of which there are about 30. I hope that it will be popular in England. In preparation, I recently re-read the late Mr. Goldsmith's 'A Great Adventure,' and was greatly stirred by it. Would another such tour be possible some day? Since 1945 change ringing in Australia has made great advances—as in the recent peal of Minor you recorded from Sydney—and another such tour would be of inestimable value to the Exercise out here.

I fully realise the great expenses involved, but, like the previous tour, could it not coincide with the proposed Royal Tour? All Australian ringers would warmly welcome such an event, and we would benefit from it greatly, much more so than in 1934.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD BICESTER DEANERY BRANCH.

St. Mary's, Launton, with its small ringing chamber that will only hold nine ringers and is reached by an outside iron ladder, was selected for the quarterly meeting on Feb. 4th.

Bishop H. Buxton, Rector of Launton, preached, and the local choir was augmented by members of the branch. A company of 60 sat down to an excellent tea provided by the Mothers' Union.

Mr. F. Sharpe, branch vice-president, was in the chair at the business meeting. The branch annual meeting was fixed for Saturday, April 1st, at Kirtlington. Bishop H. J. Buxton was elected an honorary member; one non-resident and seven ringing members (five ladies) were also elected, believed to be a record for a similar meeting.

Mr. Alan Pink pointed out that he was writing an article in 'The Oxford Diocesan Magazine' each month under the heading 'Campanology Corner,' and would be glad of any articles of interest for publication to be sent through the branch secretary.

Miss Cross (the Guild librarian) congratulated Mr. Sharpe on his very fine exhibition, consisting of photographs of bells, frames, etc., and a small bell complete in a frame, two old treble bells and a very fine set of handbells. These were displayed in the Village Hall for the benefit of the members and visitors present.

The Launton bells were available again in the evening and also the eight at Bicester.

DEVON RINGER'S WEDDING GIFT

Aylesbeare Deanery Branch of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers is a particularly strong and vigorous unit. Much credit for this circumstance is due to Mr. Brian Pidgeon, of East Budleigh, hon. secretary and treasurer, so the branch seized the opportunity afforded by his wedding to present him with a handsome canteen of cutlery.

The Rev. H. V. Christie (chairman) made the presentation at the annual meeting and expressed appreciation of Mr. Pidgeon's services for many years and his readiness at all times to promote the interests of the branch and Guild.

Mr. Pidgeon, loudly applauded, remarked that the gift would be among the most treasured of the two hundred odd presents he had received. He would always do what he could for campanology, but continuance of the support of the members generally for developing activities was indispensable.

The meeting, held at Withycombe Raleigh (8 bells), heard that membership and finances had increased. All officers, including Mr. J. L. Glanville (Ringing Master), were re-elected, and Woodbury (8) was chosen for the next meeting on a date to be arranged.

Salisbury Diocesan Guild

DORCHESTER BRANCH.

Twenty-nine new members, including 23 from Piddlehinton, where the six bells have been recently restored, were elected at the annual meeting of the Dorchester Branch at Dorchester on January 21st. Over 100 ringers and friends were present, the Guild service being conducted by the branch chairman, Canon A. Wilkinson Markby, assisted by the vice-chairman, the Ven. J. C. Chute.

The hon. secretary (Mr. J. H. Hayne) reported on the progress made during 1949. Five meetings had been held and two peals of Bob Major and one of Minor rung for the branch.

The balance sheet showed a credit balance of £36 and a reserve fund of £20.

The following officers were re-elected: Chairman, Canon Markby; vice-chairman, Ven. J. C. Chute; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. H. Hayne; Ringing Master, Mr. F. Precey; Deputy Ringing Master, Mr. F. Stedman; assistant secretary, Mr. R. H. Duke. Mr. E. T. P. Field was elected Deputy Ringing Master in addition to Mr. Stedman.

Meetings were provisionally arranged for 1950 as follows: Upwey, Piddlehinton, Maiden Newton, Sydling, and an invitation was extended by the Rev. Edwards for the branch to visit Wool when the repairs to the tower were completed.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

GUILDFORD DISTRICT.

Youth is now at the helm as regards the officers of the Guildford District. At the annual meeting on January 28th, Mr. Eric T. Lee was appointed hon. secretary and Mr. Harold A. May Ringing Master. The Rev. Ken Davis, who presided at the business meeting, said 'Thank you' to Mr. A. C. Hazelden for his nine years in office—'a labour of love,' Mr. Hazelden described it in returning thanks. His report was brief owing to his illness during the past year, but it recorded an increase in membership and a satisfactory financial position. Mr. F. A. Munday was appointed to the Guild Committee and Mr. Leslie Hunter hon. auditor.

A company of 95 enjoyed a ringers' tea, provided by Miss W. A. Oliver, with the help of Mr. and Mrs. Hazelden. While the company enjoyed a social evening arranged by the Southern District of the Ladies' Guild, the Guild secretary (Mr. G. A. Grover) and the Editor of 'The Ringing World' washed up the tea things.

There was plenty of fun and competitions at the social evening, including 'spotting the towers.' Miss Y. Elvie, of Salisbury, gave a very amusing rendering of 'The Lay of the Ancient Ringer,' by the late Mr. J. A. Trollope, and another entertainment was given by a non-ringer, a lady of 83, who recited with verve, which won her much applause and a special prize, a monologue entitled 'The Hole in the Road.'

The service was held in the afternoon at St. Nicolas' Church, the Rev. Ken Davis officiating. For the 'not so young' a motor-coach was provided to convey them to the meeting place, St. Nicolas' Hall.

CHURCH DESTROYED BY FIRE

We briefly announced last week the destruction of Tettenthall Church, near Wolverhampton, by fire and its great loss to Staffordshire ringing.

The bells (8) were recast and rehung by Gillett and Johnston in 1923 with the tenor 14 cwt. 3 qr. 25 lb. They were originally a six by Thomas Mears (tenor 13 cwt. 2 lb.) and were installed in 1841. Two trebles were added by Mears and Stainbank in 1911.

An appeal has been launched for £50,000 for the restoration of the church to augment the £34,000 for which the church was insured.

Guild of Devonshire Ringers

ANNUAL MEETING AT TORQUAY.

The annual meeting of the Mid-Devon Branch was held at All Saints', Babbacombe, on Feb. 4th. Ringing took place throughout the afternoon and was followed by a service, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. R. A. H. Bate).

After a bountiful tea at the Tudor Cafe, St. Marychurch, the usual business meeting followed, with Mr. J. E. Lilley in the chair.

A letter was read from Ippepen parish concerning the raising of funds for the restoration. After a short discussion it was resolved that it be left to individual members to subscribe.

Two new members—Miss Olive Briggs (Torquay) and Master Anthony Parnell (Dartington)—were elected, the latter being the youngest member of the branch.

The secretary's report was adopted, and the treasurer's report, showing an increased balance in hand, approved.

The officers were re-elected as follows: Chairman and Ringing Master, Mr. J. E. Lilley; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. L. Bennett; auditor, Mr. B. H. Cooper; and three members to serve on the General Committee, Messrs. C. F. Austin, F. Turner and W. C. Wakley.

The next meeting will take place (subject to permission) at Lustleigh on April 22nd. The secretary was asked to write to Mr. B. H. Cooper sympathising with him in the illness in his household.

Hearty votes of thanks were accorded to the Vicar, the organist, the caterers and to the branch secretary for his work during the past year. There was further ringing in the evening.

ESSFX ASSOCIATION

NORTH-EASTERN DIVISION.

St. Peter's, Colchester, proved a popular venue for the annual meeting, when 50 ringers were present from 18 towers, their ages ranging from 12-year-old lads to that active veteran of 80, Mr. 'Dick' Stannard, of Barking.

Good use was made of the fine ring of eight during the afternoon, and the Vicar (the Rev. T. Hollingdale) conducted the service, the collection for the Bell Restoration Fund realising £1 7s. 6d.

After an excellent tea in the Parish Hall the business meeting was held, with the Vicar taking the chair.

The secretary's report for 1949 showed that both membership and number of peals rung had increased.

The District Master (Mr. G. Waterman) and district secretary (Mr. H. J. Millatt) were both unanimously re-elected, as were also the committee members (Messrs. A. Andrews and G. W. Moss). Eight new ringing and one honorary member were elected, and Great Bentley was chosen for the spring meeting.

The Vicar, who spoke of the cordial relations existing between the local ringers and himself, was thanked for allowing the meeting and giving a fine address.

Further ringing took place after the meeting, ranging from rounds to London Surprise, and the six at St. Leonard's were also in use during the evening. H.J.M.

YARDLEY BELLS

Owing to the ravages of the death-watch beetle, ringing at Yardley Parish Church, Birmingham, was stopped. A church restoration appeal for £10,000 was launched.

The local ringers undertook to dismantle the bells and frame. This has been successfully accomplished. The bells have been lowered to the ground and now await despatch to Loughborough. They will be rehung in a new steel frame and two new trebles added to make a ring of eight.

It is necessary that the tower and spire should be repaired, repointed and treated owing to the advanced state of erosion, and the ringers hope that this will be completed by the time the bells are ready.

MAINLY FOR BEGINNERS (4)

(A SERIES OF OPEN LETTERS)

Dear Beginners,—We had to break off last time (remember?) just as our instructor, Tom Truetouch, announced the introduction of the 'Pole and Pig-tail.' Evidently there has been adapted, for ringing-training, the modern idea of a 'synthetic training apparatus,' as they call this artificial device which simulates the real thing, for safe and inexpensive training.

First, Tom brings forward an ordinary, plain, Windsor type of chair, with a hole drilled through its wooden seat; and then a sort of scout-pole, about 7ft. long and 1½in. thick. The pole is slightly tapered near the lower end and cut off 'square' at the upper end. Tom inserts the tapered end of the pole through the closely fitting hole in the chair-seat, which hole is in the middle, though slightly nearer the front edge. The tapered end fits tightly into a slightly smaller hole, immediately below, in a strip of wood tacked across the side-spars of the chair legs. The pole is now rigidly held upright, its flat top being about 7ft. 9in. from the floor.

Slipped over the pole itself is a tube about 18in. long, painted in corkscrew-like strips of red and white. Closer inspection shows it to be a bit of cardboard tube (such as is used to protect drawings, etc.), measuring about 1½in. across, inside, and so just fitting loosely round the pole. Near the upper end of the tube, through two small holes one on either side, are tied two pieces of elastic about ¼in. wide and 3ft. long, as obtainable at any draper's. The upper ends of the elastic strands are tied each to a small screw-eye, run into the pole on opposite sides about an inch from its top. So the tube is hanging on its two yard long elastic strips, and if pulled down and released will slide up the pole until checked by the screw-eyes at the top.

Two further screw-eyes are run into the pole, on opposite sides, at about 1ft. 4in. from its lower end, which will set them at about 2ft. from the floor itself. These prevent the tube from being lowered too far, the round heads of the screw-eyes being smooth to the hands if contacting them.

Stepping on to the chair seat Tom reaches up and places, edgewise on top of the pole, a match-box. Finally he produces a short length of bell-rope, seen to be doubled back and threaded through itself and tied off at the ends; the whole being about 12 or 14 inches in length, and just as though cut from the end of a standard rope. 'The Pig-tail,' says Tom briefly, hanging its curving form over the chair-back.

(In my next letter, Beginners, I will try to include a sketch of this device; but I hope you have understood the foregoing description sufficiently to follow what Tom goes on to explain.)

As you see,' continues Tom, 'the whole thing is simple, easy to make up, and costs next to nothing. It should be available, I think, to all learners of ringing. But before we go any further with it, let us be quite clear about its purpose.

'Bad habits formed in the early stages of any kind of training are very difficult to get rid of. They prolong the learning period and yield only unsatisfactory results in the end. This is especially true of learning bell control. The simple device before you, properly employed, warns the learner of faulty action and nips the bad habit in the bud. This paves the way for acquiring perfect bell control, to result in the good striking which is so essential.

'Now I'm not saying,' Tom goes on, 'that this gadget is essential in learning to ring. In the past all good strikers learned their bell control without it. Indeed, even the scheme of training I shall put you through could dispense with the pole part of it; but the "pig-tail," as a training aid, is not new. What I do say, however, is that a surprising number of indifferent, and even bad, strikers might have become good ones if they'd passed their initial training on this thing. A valuable feature is that it avoids the risk of your losing confidence in bell management at the start; and, in conjunction with the particular steps by which we shall be taking you over to the real rope-action on a bell, it builds up that confidence until good striking becomes an automatic accomplishment.

'The coloured tube represents the sally. The pole is simply a pull-guide, and, in conjunction with the matchbox, a fault indicator. The pig-tail, of course, represents the rope's end. If the pull is incorrect the pole position is disturbed and the matchbox is displaced. But there's no harm done, no fear of mishandled, flaying rope, and no need for an instructor to spend time standing by while you practise on it.

'Pull-error may arise from incorrect grip, incorrect stance, incorrect body posture and incorrect arm action, all resulting in direction of rope-thrust not truly vertical, as it must be. The resulting error may be lateral (least common) or fore-and-aft (more common) or a combination of both; and the matchbox may be positioned at the pole-top to check any particular form of these errors. Set fore-and-aft, it shows up, particularly, lateral pull-error. Set cross-wise it will indicate, especially, fore-and-aft pull-error. The most severe test is with the box standing on end and inclined mid-way between fore-and-aft and cross-wise. If, through reaction vibration, due to the "sally" hitting the upper stops, the matchbox tumbles off, it may be weighted with a little lead shot or sand, to suit. In the very early stages it may be dispensed with altogether.

'Now let me show you the apparatus in use. Afterwards, Mary will demonstrate the stages of exercise you will take on it. Each pupil will have to pass a stage satisfactorily before going on to the next.'

And there, Beginners, we must leave it till next time.—Yours ever,

CORN. R. STONE.

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH GUILD

Some forty members attended the district annual meeting, held at Christchurch on Jan. 28th. At the service, held in the Priory, the Vicar of Bournemouth, the Rev. A. L. E. Williams, preached. The Vicar of Christchurch, the Rev. R. P. Price, took the service and presided at the meeting.

The hon. secretary, Mr. Arthur Davis, reported steady work during the year, during which six meetings had been held at the different towers. Members endorsed his congratulations to the handbell band in Bournemouth upon the progress made during 1949.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Chairman, Mr. J. M. Turner; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. Arthur V. Davis; joint ringing masters, Mr. W. E. Cheater and Mr. D. T. Matkin; representatives to Central Committee, Mrs. F. J. Marshallsay and the Rev. R. F. R. Routh; hon. auditor, Mrs. E. W. Newman; representatives to Bournemouth Dinner Committee, the Rev. R. F. R. Routh and Mr. J. M. Turner.

Dates and places for the quarterly meetings for 1950 were fixed and general business discharged.

The meeting regretted the absence of Mr. George Preston through indisposition, the first annual he had missed since he started ringing. Miss Valerie Willard, of Bedfordshire, was a welcome visitor.

MANGOTSFIELD, BRISTOL.—On Jan. 29th, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: T. Jefferies (first quarter) 1, Miss B. Sheppard 2, Miss B. Poole 3, Miss N. Gardner 4, M. Jefferies 5, J. W. Jefferies 6, J. G. Jefferies (cond.) 7, A. Rodway 8. A farewell to Miss B. Sheppard, who left for Australia on Feb. 1st.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

720's OF PLAIN BOB MINOR

Sir,—Some months ago one of your correspondents wanted to know how many different 720's of Bob Minor there were. No one has replied to his question. I would not like to answer it, but I am sure that if singles be used freely the number must be very large.

As an example of how they can be produced in quantity take this simple three-part:—

S 35624	3

By putting in calls which do not alter the work of 5 and 6, at least 26 other 720's can be obtained and 13 more if —, S, —, — be used to replace five consecutive singles.

One of these variations has 36 singles. From it the well-known three-part with 42 singles can be got by adding two singles which affect the 5th in each part, and again 17 more variations can be made.

All these 58 720's contain 65's at backstroke, and, therefore, may not be considered to be worth ringing except in parts of Yorkshire. If any of your readers want the callings I shall be glad to forward them.

I do not remember having seen the figures of any regular six-part 720's published. The following might be of interest.

THE OLDEST DATED BELL

Sir,—In your first paragraph in the current issue, you state that Caversfield has the oldest dated bell in England. Your third paragraph stated that this bell is 'undated.'

St. Chad's, Cloughton, Lancashire, has the oldest dated bell in England (1296). The characteristics of the bell at Cloughton are diameter 21in. and the inscription is as follows:

+ ANNO · D N I · M · C · C · NONOG · AI
E. JENNINGS.

Braintree, Essex.

CAVERSFIELD BELL

Dear Sir,—If you are challenged on the first sentence of your leader, the answer is that the Caversfield bell is the oldest dateable inscribed bell in England.—Yours sincerely,

FREDERICK SHARPE.

Bicester, Oxon.

JARROW'S BELL

Dear Sir,—With reference to the oldest bell. I have been reading a book from the local library, 'In the Steps of the Anglo Saxons.' The writer mentions Jarrow, where he discovered a foundation stone dated 685, claimed to be oldest of any Christian church in Europe. A small stained glass Saxon window, dated 685, is still brilliant in colour and is claimed to be as old as any in the world. In the tower there is a Saxon bell inscribed 'Pray for us all St. Paul.' Three of the letters are upside down, and two reversed, but no date mentioned. Can any of our antiquarians enlighten us on this one?—Yours truly, Epsom.

J. HOYLE.

RECORDINGS AND PLAYS

Dear Sir,—I am sorry if I have upset Mr. Leslie Mills by suggesting that bells which proved to be Lavenham's were those of Westminster Abbey, apparently a much inferior sounding ring.

I had not previously heard the former and, on the one or two occasions I have 'listened in' to the latter, they certainly did not seem such a bad lot!

Mr. Mills may receive some consolation from the fact that the excellent standard of ringing in the Lavenham recording heard during 'Saturday Night Theatre' on November 19th somewhat assisted my erroneous conjecture that they were the Abbey's bells, and, although the record was 'faded out' in the seventh sixth of the plain course of Stedman Triples, I agree with him that it is difficult to understand how two of your correspondents have confused the method with Grandsire.

Incidentally, during another recent wireless play (on January 7th, if I remember correctly), I also heard some fairly well-struck 'Whittingtons' on a comparatively nice-sounding 'eight.' I wonder which tower this was from?

It is, indeed, interesting to learn from Mr. K. S. B. Croft that a church in Madrid possesses eight bells hung for ringing and that, at one time, a Grandsire band comprising Spaniards rang there. After this, I shall not be surprised to hear that Joe Stalin conducts a double-handed handbell band at the Kremlin!

Finally, may I deplore, along with Mr. E. Barnett, that, in the pursuit of alleged progress or glory, we appear to be sacrificing good old worthwhile Stedman Triples for what I, personally, consider are often far less musical products.—Yours faithfully,

T. R. BUTLER.

Orrell Park, Liverpool 9.

RINGING AT CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z.

Dear Sir,—I have pleasure in informing you that a good peal of Bob Minor was successfully accomplished on the 'light six' at the Cathedral of All Saints, Christchurch, New Zealand, on January 24th. This was the first peal of Minor rung in the Dominion of New Zealand, and the first peal on tower bells since 1903.

The tenor bell at All Saints' has recently been rehung on ball bearings and now runs perfectly. Numbers 7, 8 and 9 are badly in need of similar attention, and it is hoped to have them done before the opening of the centennial year of the City of Christchurch in August. There will then be no obstacles to prevent the band from going ahead with Triples and Major ringing. In the meantime, it will be my endeavour to further the band's interest in Minor ringing.—Yours truly,

ALBERT J. LANCEFIELD.

Christchurch, N.Z.

AUSTRALIAN GIFT PARCELS

Dear Sir,—I have received a gift parcel for the third successive year from the New South Wales Change Ringers Association, and I appreciate very much this kind thought of Mr. Will Rowe, the Editor of 'The Ringing Towers,' and all those who supported his efforts. It is encouraging to read of the success of the Association in the art of change ringing and the fine spirit that is revealed.

There are many ringers in England who closely watch the activities of the Association, especially those who received such a grand reception when on duty with H.M. Services in the last war.

CHARLES TURNER, Captain,
St. Mary's Ringers, Dover.

Qualification of Members

Dear Sir,—Having read my friend, Mr. H. R. Pink's, letter re the above in your issue of February 3rd, and knowing that my nomination of 22 members from a certain tower was largely the cause of the discussion mentioned, I feel I should like to make a reply.

Last summer I was approached as a Guild instructor by the incumbent of the parish in question asking whether I would undertake the training of a band of ringers. This I gladly undertook, and at the first lesson and again subsequently I told the recruits that there were only two conditions to my teaching them, viz.: (1) That they joined the Guild. (2) That they all learnt change ringing in due course. To these they all readily agreed.

In the Guild to which both Mr. Pink and I belong, to be a change ringer is not, as he states, a necessary qualification, but the promotion of change ringing is one of its objects. As another member said at the meeting, surely the prime object in any tower is to have a band of ringers who officiate regularly twice a Sunday. With this I heartily agree, and this is now an accomplished fact in the tower where I am teaching. I feel, too, that to have a whole band of 22 to join a guild is to encourage them in change ringing, even though at the time of joining they may not be change ringers. I feel certain that at the meeting doubts were in the minds of some whether all the recruits could handle their bells. At that time only four were not quite 'safe,' although many were too nervous to try in a strange tower.

If those members, who at meetings very nearly discourage young recruits by questioning their qualifications, were to give up three or four evenings a week training or assisting young bands, there would be far fewer complaints regarding the lack of progress in change ringing.—Yours sincerely,

E. T. P. FIELD.

Buckland Newton, Dorset.

MEMBERSHIP—SOMETHING TO WORK FOR

Dear Sir,—I agree wholeheartedly with the letter in your issue of February 3rd, which raises the question of qualification for guild membership.

The Guild to which I belong requires a ringer to ring 120 half-pull changes on treble or tenor before he attains full membership, but I am afraid that, for the sake of the number of members, this qualification is sometimes passed over when new members are elected. This I consider to be wrong, and I think that it gives a false picture of the strength of any guild which has for one of its objects the promotion of change ringing.

I also think that it is a very good thing to set a standard which people must reach before becoming eligible for guild membership, as it makes membership something to work for, and, as such, much more worth while than something which comes without any effort.—I am,

Yours sincerely,

JACK W. DREW.

Stoke-under-Ham, Somerset.

A SHROPSHIRE EXILE

Dear Sir,—I was very interested in the letter by 'Progress' in your issue of the 10th inst. As an exile from London at present domiciled in Shropshire, I would like to know the name of the tower where the ringer mentioned in the letter learned to ring Surmise. In a year's ringing and attending meetings, I have stood in one plain course of Cambridge, and then the band was mainly composed of visiting ringers from Bedfordshire.

Anyway, I envy the ringers of Helmdon; at least it is possible to get six keen ringers together. After my sojourn here I am beginning to wonder if there are six keen ringers in Shropshire; at least in this district anyway.—Sincerely yours,

ERNEST J. ROWE.

Broseley, Salop.

STEEL BARS FOR BELLS

Dear Sir,—I append a copy of a letter, which I discovered during my researches into Irish church bells, which may be of interest to readers. It was published in 'The Irish Ecclesiastical Journal' in August, 1844:—

'Dear Sir,—Will you allow me to inform the clergy through the columns of "The Irish Ecclesiastical Journal" that they can substitute cast steel bars for the ordinary church bell with very considerable advantage as regards both tone and cheapness. I have after several experiments ascertained the fact that any clergyman can procure for thirty shillings a bar of cast steel producing a better tone than the ordinary small church bells, which cost from four to six pounds. I can furnish any person, who wishes it, with a drawing of the manner of suspending the bar, the dimensions, etc.

'Perhaps some of your correspondents may be able to inform me as to the reason of a fact, which I never yet met anyone who had himself discovered, namely, that all bells produce a common chord with flat third, also the reason that some bells sound one note of the chord predominant and some another note, but I am not yet aware which note is most general—I fancy the third.—Yours, dear Sir, very truly, W. M. Crosthwaite, Dunn's Glebe, Bantry. August 16th, 1844.'

No replies appeared in subsequent issues of the journal, nor did there appear to be any further interest in the matter in Ireland, anyhow, for I have not come across any 'steel bars' in place of ordinary church bells. I have, of course, found quite a number of cast steel bells, most of which were very badly rusted. Is it possible, therefore, that, just as a humble Irish saint was responsible for the introduction of bells to England for Christian worship, a humble Irish clergyman gave the idea to England of cast steel bells? Also, could he have been responsible for the idea of improved tuning methods of our church bells?—Yours faithfully,

FRED E. DUKES.

Jenkinson, Dundalk.

SCIENTIFIC TRIPLES AND HARRY WITHERS

With reference to Mr. Hibbert's letter, I agree that the band who ring the first peal in this method will achieve something to be proud of, yet I heard my old friend, Harry Withers, tap a course of this method on his dulcimer at one of the Henry Johnson dinners round about 40 years ago. I think this was at the Old Royal, Temple Row.

This course consisted of about 252 changes in which each of the seven bells do the same work. I had a typed copy of the figures of this method in my possession at the time, and, aided by this, I was able to trace or check the path of the treble as tapped during the performance, which was perfectly struck. No doubt other Birmingham ringers will remember this occasion.

While on this subject I should like to express my appreciation and admiration of the obituary report of the late Harry Withers in 'The Ringing World.' I have heard him tap London and other Surprise methods and I have called quite a number of touches of Stedman, which he tapped on the dulcimer or piano. The strange thing about it was he used to say he didn't know how he did it.

A remarkable man who will be sadly missed.
—Yours faithfully, ALFRED DAVIES.

Dedication

MOREBATH, N.E. DEVON.

This little church with its unusual slate-roofed tower standing amidst fields, in a parish on the border of Devon and Somerset not far from a point of Exmoor, will again hear bells ringing.

By her will, Mrs. Shorney, a former resident, bequeathed a sum of money and directed that Morebath bells be made in a ringable condition. Her late husband, who died twenty years ago, was a lover of bells and a conscientious call change ringer. For a long period he was head gardener on Morebath Manor Estate.

On January 14th, the Lord Bishop of Exeter rededicated the bells after rehanging and re-tuning, together with a memorial window in memory of Major Rothwell. A crowded congregation was present. Invitations to neighbouring teams included Bampton, Oakford, Dulverton, Huntsham and Dunster. The work was carried out by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. Tea was provided.

The Dunster party, on their return journey in the evening, called at Bampton Church. Some good touches of Stedman Doubles and Bob Minor were also brought round here.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION CANTERBURY DISTRICT.

All records for attendance were broken at the quarterly meeting of the Canterbury District, which was held at Birchington recently. A company of 120 was present, of whom very few were non-members. They came from 22 towers in the district as well as three more towers being represented from other districts of the Association. One enterprising ringer had booked a special coach, a thought that was much appreciated by those who had a seat.

Ringings were held prior to the service, which was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. N. M. Granville-Sharp, who also gave a short address, keeping it, as he said, away from bells.

Tea, very generously provided by the Vicar and churchwarden, who were both present, was followed by the usual business meeting, at which 12 new practising members were elected; also four honorary members. Good-nestone was chosen for a quarterly meeting, and from a nap hand of towers Chartham got the vote for a by-meeting.

The donors of the tea were gratefully thanked, also the ladies who waited at table. Further ringing was held until late in the evening.

FILM STRIPS WANTED

Dear Sir,—I am wondering if any of your readers can help me with regard to films or film strips about ringing.

In the near future we hope to arrange a social evening for a small number of ringers, and we thought that if we could hire a cine-projector film or any film strips they would be very much appreciated.—Yours faithfully, Aldington, Sussex. HARRY W. BROWN.

OBITUARY

MR. GRAHAM LINRIDGE.

St. Michael's, Braintree, suffered another sad loss on January 31st with the death of Mr. Graham Linridge, aged 68 years.

Graham Linridge came to Braintree about 35 years ago from Ashford in Kent, and although not a very great peal ringer, he attended Sunday service ringing and practices very consistently, and was able to take his part in most methods up to London Surprise Major.

The funeral took place on February 4th and was attended by Miss H. Snowden and Mr. H. Pratt, the Master and secretary respectively of the Northern Division of the Essex Association. In addition, the majority of the Braintree company were present.

While the cortege was proceeding from the Parish Church to the cemetery, touches of Bob Major and Superlative Surprise Major were rung with the bells half-muffled.

TRIBUTE TO MR. J. S. WILDE.

Mr. George Baker, of Brighton, writes: I was grieved to read in a recent issue of the death of my old friend, J. S. Wilde, of New Zealand. He was one of the all too few ringers who understood Round Blocks and Transpositions in Methods, Principles and Systems and what they stand for.

For many years he and I corresponded, and the last time I heard from him was in December, 1945, and now he has passed away at the age of 87, five years my senior.

SURREY ASSOCIATION SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

Ill-health is responsible for two important resignations among the officers of the Southern District. To the regret of members attending the annual meeting at Horley on February 4th, both the Ringing Master (Mr. J. Jeal) and the hon. secretary (Mr. J. W. Knight) tendered their resignations. The new team of officers elected are: Ringing Master, Mr. J. Crouch; hon. secretary, Miss R. M. Foreman; hon. treasurer, Mr. A. Gear; hon. auditor, Mr. H. Jordan; committee, Messrs. J. W. Knight, G. Olliver and A. P. Cannon.

Although many of the less experienced ringers found difficulty at first in completely controlling the bells, methods rung during the afternoon and evening included Grandsire, Plain Bob, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, Stedman, Cambridge and Superlative. Thanks are extended to Mr. A. J. Bull for the tea.

NORTH-WEST DISTRICT.

The annual North-Western District meeting, held on January 28th at St. Martin's and Christ Church, Epsom, was attended by 60 ringers, representing 13 towers in the district, with visitors from St. Albans, Rickmansworth and Coventry.

The tea and meeting was held in the Church Hall, Mr. F. E. Collins presiding. The members stood in silence in memory of Mr. W. Sparkes, of Streatham.

District officers elected for 1950 were: F. E. Collins, Master; R. Lathbury, hon. secretary; H. N. Pitstow, hon. treasurer; C. Dean, hon. auditor; committee, R. Davies, D. Parsons and Miss Joan Smith.

Mr. Collins, in announcing the closing of the Benhilton Bell Fund, thanked those who had subscribed the grand total of £10 10s. Mr. Gosden also thanked all for their response. A new report for 1951 was also proposed.

Ashted was chosen for the Easter Monday meeting. Further ringing was indulged in at Christ Church.

WESTBURY, WILTS.—On Jan. 23rd, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: R. Gale 1, P. Chapman 2, Mrs. F. Penn 3, T. Dawe 4, F. Brown 5, T. B. Holloway (cond.) 6, F. Penn 7, H. Wordley 8. First quarter for 4 and 8. A birthday compliment to Miss Jean Brown.

A-ROVING

That with this bright believing band
I have no claim to be,
That faiths by which my comrades stand
Seem phantasies to me,
And mirage-mists their Shining Land,
Is a strange destiny.

THE 'mirage-mists' of Thomas Hardy are still alive to-day. The Society of Roving Ringers believe in them and so do their forerunners of previous days. A-roving, a-wheel, with pleasant companions and opportunities to indulge in their favourite pastime amid the glorious countryside and in some of the grandest of ecclesiastical architecture in our land is, indeed, a holiday to fire the imagination of any young ringer.

It was outside Winchester Cathedral in July, 1947, that the society first met. The majority of the company were strangers to each other; their standard of ringing was then not particularly high; some were just wrestling with Stedman. They had met for a week to a fortnight's holiday of cycling and ringing and finding their accommodation in youth hostels. The average age of the party was 18 to 19; everything was planned within the slender resources of the youthful pocket. That afternoon there was a preliminary get-together at an eight and two six-bell towers. The testing time came the following (Sunday) afternoon in the spacious belfry of Winchester Cathedral. There in the corner, unbeknown to them, was one of the critics of the Exercise, who is known throughout England as a master of heavy-bell ringing. He spoke not; but the members of the society just wonder whether they, as representatives of the next generation, as they rang a modest touch of Grandsire Triples, made the mark.

The tour that followed averaged 30 to 40 miles a day cycling, and among the towers visited were Romsey Abbey, Wimborne Minster, Sherborne Minster, Queen's Camel with its heavy six, and Bath Abbey. Double Norwich Court Bob Major was the highest flight of ringing, but the Master, Roger Fry, looks back with pleasant memories on the Plain Bob Major at Sherborne and the Grandsire Caters at Bath.

Exeter was the meeting place of the society in August, 1948. It was here that Roger Fry and Mark White rang the tenor and 'Bill' Kingcott the ninth to Plain Bob Royal. The tour was amid the leafy lanes of Devonshire and over moorland. The three-mile climb to Buckland-in-the-Moor, where a peal attempt was unsuccessful, is still remembered. Peal ringing has been limited on these tours to one a week, but it was at Broadclyst that the society's first peal was scored—one of Plain Bob Major. There were new faces in the society, but the standard of ringing had improved, and a selection of Surprise methods, including London, were brought home.

The West Country was again favoured for the 1949 tour. The company numbered 23, although not all the members attended for the full fortnight. This tour was a unique opportunity for 12-bell ringing, and among the towers visited were St. Mary Redcliffe, Cirencester, Painswick, Cheltenham, Tewkesbury and Worcester Cathedral. Perhaps the crowning achievement of the society this year was the Stedman Cinques and Cambridge Royal on the mellow bells of Worcester Cathedral—a ring that requires experience of heavy bells to bring out their true beauty. Standard Surprise methods were rung on this tour and also Cambridge and Yorkshire Surprise Royal. Cambridge Maximus was gallantly attempted.

On February 4th the society held a reunion in London. Of the 39 members eligible to attend, 24 were present. The coming year's programme was planned, and it was decided to limit the party to 20. A waiting list of prospective members was started. The fundamental principles of the society were endorsed—a cycling youth hostel tour. 'Tower snatching,' it was agreed, should not be a principle of the society's activities—a general limitation being imposed of four towers a day and approximately two peal attempts a week. Last Saturday the society had the pleasure of ringing a peal at Hatfield in honour of the marriage of J. Martin Page, the first member of the society to be married.

Such holidays are to be commended for our young ringers. Not only do they result in improving the standard of ringing, but they widen the conception of the individual of the beauties of our countryside, the glories of our churches, and establish that spirit of friendship which contributes so much to the great family of ringers the world over.

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

Congratulations to Mr.
Ernest Morris on completing 1,000 peals on tower bells. We believe there are only three other ringers living who have this record—Messrs. J.
George, F. Bennett and J. Bennett. Mr. A. H.
Pulling has yet to join this select company.

His failure to secure a peal in January broke a sequence of a peal a month from April, 1945, by Mr. Harold A. May, of Guildford.

Mr. W. F. Woodward has now completed the circle of his home tower, Netherseale, Derbyshire.

By the peal of Stedman Doubles at King's Bromley, Staffs, on February 11th, Miss Joan Beresford, Mr. Walter J. Cope and Mr. G. E.
Oliver have now completed the Stedman family from Doubles to Cinques.

Mr. John E. S. Moreton, captain of Chilvers Coton (Warwicks) band, rang his 100th peal by ringing the treble to the local band's first peal of London. Well done, the local band, all of whom live within one mile of the church!

The peal of London at Helmingham was the first touch in the method by that young and enthusiastic ringer, Mr. Frank Bloomfield, of Hadleigh, Suffolk. It was 44 years ago that Mr. William Wightman rang his first and only peal of London.

In reply to Mr. F. Dukes' enquiry re steel bars for bells, Mr. R. H. Dove writes: There are modern chimes of steel bars at Allerton Bywater Church, near Leeds (8 'bells' erected as a 1914-18 war memorial), also at Goldthorpe Church, near Rotherham (5 clock 'bells').

Mr. Albert J. Hughes, of Bangor, writes that he is now home again from hospital and recovering. He writes adding his congratulations to his old friend, Ald. A. Paddon Smith, with whom he rang his first peal in 1902. 'May he have health and strength to carry on his social work and his ringing for many many years.'

BELFRY GOSSIP

The current issue of 'The Church Times' tells of the changing in West

Berlin of mortar shells to a cast iron alloy, which is being turned into bells. Made in parabolic form, the bells are claimed to be equal in tone to the normal bell. Tests have proved that the new bells can be tuned to existing bronze bells.

The peal at Bromham, Beds, recorded in last week's issue, was the 100th peal for the Bedfordshire Association for Mr. Ronald J. Sharp and not as stated in the footnote last week.

Mr. R. D. Langford has completed 'the circle' of Nantwich tower. Participating in the peal were the officers of the Crewe Branch of the Chester Diocesan Guild, viz.: R. D.
Langford, secretary; G. A. Packer, instructor;
W. Kerr, treasurer; F. S. Sutton, Ringing
Master on six bells; and J. E. Brough, Ringing Master on eight bells.

Mr. J. Pearson, who has been a ringer at Great Ponton, Lincs, for over 50 years, rang his first quarter peal on February 6th. Several unsuccessful attempts have been made to ring quarter peals on these bells owing to the fact that the bells have had no repairs or attention, with the exception of oiling, for over 70 years.
The 'go' is far from good.

The late Rector of Cranford, Middlesex, the Rev. Maurice Child, in whose memory a muffled peal was rung at Cranford on February 4th, was a great lover of bells and a friend of ringers. He was responsible for the restoration in 1945 of Cranford bells, which include the oldest bell in Middlesex, dated 1380, and for beautifying this ancient church and the churchyard. The ringers felt it a great honour to be able to pay this last tribute of respect to a priest they knew so well. At the conclusion of the peal a prayer was offered for the repose of his soul.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY GUILD REUNION

By THE REV. A. G. G. THURLOW.

THE annual dinner (optimistically described thus by the organisers) was held in Cambridge (oddly enough) on February 11th. Everyone turned up on the correct day, although the final notice gave no date but that of its publication.

We find it easier than our contemporaries at some other university cities to ring all the ringable bells in our city in one afternoon. After Stedman Triples, Bob Maximus and half a course of Cambridge Royal at Great St. Mary's, we adjourned to Great St. Andrew's, where half a course of Cambridge Major was followed by London. Then Stedman's bells at St. Bene't's were rung in methods up to London. A quick tea prepared us to cope with the dancing sallies at the Roman Catholic Church, and whilst some conquered these with spliced London, Bristol, Cambridge and Superlative, others sought sounder doctrine in evensong at King's.

THE DINNER.

Dinner was at the Dorothy Cafe. The president (the Rev. A. C. Blyth) presided with his usual charm. The guests were Canon A. L. Woodard, the new Vicar of Great St. Andrew's, Messrs. T. R. Dennis, H. L. Martin, J. Quinney and E. Hibbins, of the Cambridge Youths, Mr. Dennis N. Layton, of the London University Society, and Miss Ruth How and Mr. M. E. H. Barrow, of the Oxford University Society. About 13 non-resident and 14 resident members were present.

The president lamented the absence of people like E. H. Lewis, Major Freeborn, Dr. Poole, W. H. J. Hooton and Chris. Woolley, whom we hope to see next year; he also thanked the organisers, including the hon. treasurer, 'to whom we all owe so much.'

Tim Watt, the secretary, proposing the toast of 'The Visitors,' hoped they were finding Cambridge a superior town, and that the academic 'method maniacs' were finding a brotherly spirit. He expressed deep appreciation of our happy relations with the Cambridge Youths.

Mr. Dennis Layton, Master of the London University Society, replied. Recalling his visit a fortnight previously to the Latin Quarter of Cowley, he expressed admiration of the compactness which Oxford and Cambridge have and which the Metropolitan University city lacks. Continuing, he said, 'I don't believe in long speeches — (hear, hear, from the writer) — some people make out their speeches by advertising their books for sale (laughter). I hear that one such has just written a new and interesting one which is selling at 2s. 6d. plus 3d. postage — (atmosphere of expectancy) — he won't tell me what it is called — (atmosphere of disappointment) — but you can find out if you buy one — (atmosphere of consolation).' Mr. Layton then told a story which I refrain from reporting.

RECOLLECTIONS OF 36 YEARS.

The Rev. B. F. Sheppard, proposing the toast of 'The Guild,' said, 'I have been hanging around Cambridge for 36 years, which you can all do by the mere lapse of time, if you can keep out of the churchyard. I recollect the old stalwarts — first and foremost our beloved president, the Rev. A. H. F. Boughey, feverishly attempting to get beginners through courses on the handbells; then H. Law James, who said, "That's that," when he finally set a bell at backstroke with the rope eight inches above his hands; then E. Bankes James with his amazing compositions. Then the conductor who shouted corrections at someone and received the reply, "I knows where I be, but I baint there." Then the rage of the fire brigade at Middlewich, who, having been very late for a fire three weeks before, turned out on time the moment we raised the bells. Memories are specially happy about Long Stanton, where the Rev. H. B. Woolley always welcomed us; I remember Chris Woolley as a very small boy, but otherwise exactly as he is now, ringing the tenor behind with both hands to a course of Grandsire Doubles "in hand." He spoke most feelingly of what the Guild had meant to him in friendship.

TEACHING AT 94.—For 78 years Mr. S. Quintrell, of West Street, St. Columb, Cornwall, has rung the bells of the parish church, not missing for more than 20 times through ill-health. Now, at the age of 94, he climbs to the belfry twice on Sundays and once a week for the practice, and is captain of the tower. He says that the family tradition must not die out, so he is here seen giving Ronald Roberts, his 16-year-old grandson, a lesson.

Mr. Brian Threlfall, the Master, in reply, spoke of the Guild's doings since the last dinner. Thirteen peals had been rung during the past year, of which the most interesting was St. Clement's Caters at Saffron Walden, in which all but two were resident members. During the Junior Week in the Isle of Wight (a revival of an old custom), a handbell peal of Bob Minor had been rung in (i.e., during)

St. Mary Redcliffe, Bristol

On January 29th, the first ringers' day was held at St. Mary Redcliffe, the work of the ringers and the use of church bells being the theme of the services throughout the day.

The grand ring of twelve was heard prior to the parish Communion service at 9.30 a.m. in a well-struck course of Plain Bob Maximus. The service, at which all ringers were present, was choral, and in his address the Vicar (Canon S. E. Swann) spoke of the use of bells, especially when used during a Communion service. Breakfast was served in the Undercroft, where the ringers had the opportunity of meeting members of the congregation.

Evening service was devoted entirely to ringing, the hymns and lessons having been specially chosen. In place of the anthem a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells at the chancel step by the following: B. F. Hancock 1-2, Miss M. Hilliar 3-4, S. Riches 5-6, F. G. Leaker 7-8, preceded and concluded by rounds and Queen's.

The Vicar gave an inspiring address on the history of Redcliffe bells and upon the uses of bells in general. He pointed out the immediate desire of a regular band of ringers at Redcliffe so that the bells should ring not once a fortnight, but every Sunday. This was an accepted fact by everyone, but as the Ringing Master and steeplekeeper had told the Church Council only the previous Friday evening, to bring along a young band of ringers at Redcliffe an extra bell was required to give them a lighter ring of eight bells. Something would have to be done about it.

At the end of the service the ringers ascended the tower to ring touches of Stedman Cinques and a course of Plain Bob Maximus, at the request of the many members of the congregation who had climbed the steps to see how church bells are rung. The look of astonishment on the faces of some told its own story.

A wonderful day, in which the spirit of fellow-ship and thanksgiving was felt by all, is, we hope, to be repeated for many years to come.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A meeting was held at Denver on February 11th, members attending from Terrington St. John, Elm, Wisbech, Hilgay, Shouldham, Downham Market and Walpole. In his address the Rector (the Rev. I. G. Jones) welcomed the ringers, it being the first meeting to be held at Denver since his induction.

The Rector was elected to the chair for the business meeting. He and Mr. R. Dugay, of Denver, and Mr. H. Burton, of Elm, were elected ringing members. At the Rector's request handbells were rung to Grandsire Triples and Bob Major before members returned to the tower, where a variety of methods up to London Surprise were rung.

Two days, being the first handbell peal for all, including the conductor. The Guild week had also been very successful. (The scribe's kind chauffeur called him away to Norwich at this moment, so he takes no responsibility for reporting or participating in whatever happened later. Cambridge Proctorial reports may perhaps usefully supplement mine at this point.)

A peal of Kent was rung at Sawston the previous day, and Cambridge at Royston on the 11th went west owing to a rope coming untucked.

MAINLY FOR BEGINNERS (5)

Dear Beginners.—Have you realised that the full description of a one-hour tuition period would take pretty well one hour to read, and that this would occupy too much space in one issue of our paper? I mention this as it may seem that because we are still only in our second lesson, after five letters, we are not getting on very fast. Well, take heart, for this course of instruction is designed (and will be found) to give fairly rapid progress. But remember that we can only cover about one-third or one-half of a lesson in one of our letters.

Last time I promised you a sketch of the simple training apparatus Tom Truetouch had described and was about to demonstrate. Well, here it is, and we'll let him proceed.

'I'm right-handed,' says Tom, 'and we'll assume most people are the same. But those who are left-handed must substitute, throughout, "left" for "right" and vice versa.

'First we learn the end-grip. Hundreds of people have tried to ring without bothering about this all-important first step. So pay attention to Exercise No.

Lifting from the chair-back the pig-tail, Tom places it across his left palm, thus: The palm is held face upwards with fingers together and extended and the thumb stretched out at right angles to the palm. The pig-tail lies across the palm just below the base of the fingers and the thumb now closes down on it, with a grip that brings the thumb in line with the first finger. We all note this carefully and hold out our hands in similar manner.

Suddenly Tom twists his left forearm. The hand now being palm downwards with the fingers still fully extended. Yet the pig-tail does not fall.

'See how the rope is gripped,' he says, 'between the thumb and the side of the first finger. This is the part of the grip that is maintained throughout the ringing, while the hand opens and closes round the sally.'

Suiting action to word, Tom now closes and opens his fingers while maintaining the thumb-grip.

'Exercise No. 2,' he continues, 'is a slight advance on this,' and we see that he now combines the opening and closing action with a steadily rotating action of the forearm; so that whether the palm is facing up or down the grip is maintained and the rope-end securely held; yet all the while the fingers open and close quite freely.

'In actual practice,' Tom goes on, 'the thumb itself also closes round the sally as well as the fingers, yet the rope-end is gripped in the "fork" of the thumb and palm-edge.'

While we are all trying these motions with our extended left hands, Tom's able assistant, Mary Makebob, comes to each of us and directs us to take our stand at one of the actual bell ropes as though about to ring.

'Now,' says Tom, 'after you had a cut at chiming I told you you wouldn't be touching a rope again for two lessons. Well, I meant you wouldn't be using the rope to move the bell. But now you will attempt the two exercises I've just shown you. Undo the loop and lay the rope's end across your left palm, just as I did with the pig-tail. Continue with Exercises 1 and 2 while Mary and I come round and pass you out.'

In about five minutes' time Tom is satisfied that we have acquired sufficient skill to pass on to Exercise 3. He takes his stand at the treble rope with the rope-end held in the left hand as for Exercise 1, and tells us to follow his action to order. This No. 3 exercise is called 'The two-hand grip practice.' We hold our ropes at the 'ready,' in our left hands, at waist height.

On the word "Back," says Tom, 'grip the rope also with the right hand touching the left immediately above it and raise both hands above the head to the full extent, thus.' He goes through the motions and we follow him. 'On the word "Hand" lower both hands, still gripping the rope-end, to waist height, then raise them again to full extent, but this time let the right hand release the rope-end and grip the sally. At the same time let the left hand, using the thumb-fork grip you have been practising, grip the sally and rope-end combined, immediately below the right hand, thus.' He goes through these motions and we follow him again.

'From this hand-position,' says Tom, 'and on the next word "Back," simply release the sally grip and drop the hands to waist level, both coming to grasp the rope-end again before you raise them to the back-stroke position as before.' Again he demonstrates and again we follow him. Then we pause. Throughout all this, of course, we have put no pull upon the rope and the bell has not moved in the slightest. We are simply getting the 'drill' of the grips and arm motions. This is essential before we attempt bell movement, for true 'ringing.'

Mary now takes Tom's place on the treble and Tom keeps to the middle of the circle and looks round at us. 'Ready!' he says, and we lower our rope-ends to waist height with left-hand grip only. 'Back!' he calls and up go our hands to the back-stroke position as before. 'Hand!' and down come our hands to rise again and grip the sallies as before. And so the exercise continues, while we keep an eye on Mary to see exactly what we should be doing, and Tom keeps his eye on us to check everything. Then, 'Stand!' Tom calls and we pause at the sally grip.

'Now tie off,' he calls, and this is a real teaser for some of us. But Tom and Mary make sure that we can all tie our rope-end loop. Then we take our seats again.

'Now for the pole and pig-tail,' says Tom, taking his stance correctly before the pole, just as if it were a rope. His right foot is placed slightly forward, with the right knee almost touching the front edge of the chair-seat, his face being about six inches from the pole, his glance straight ahead over the chair-back opposite. In his left hand he grasps the pig-tail. He continues:—

Note that this tube, the sally, hangs, by design, rather lower on this pole than the true sally hangs on the virtual bell-rope. This is to do with the elastic recoil, but you can forget about it. We start by grasping the tube, at about its mid-position, with the two-hand grip we have just been practising on the dead rope, the hands in contact, right above left, and the pig-tail, gripped in the thumb-fork of the left hand, clasped against the sally. We now raise the arms to the full extent, and we are in the "set-at-hand" position. The motions will be as in the No. 3 exercise on the dead rope, except that, as you have seen, the sally, here, moves.

'Whereas,' Tom goes on, 'the dead-rope (Continued in next column)

Chester Diocesan Guild

STOCKPORT BRANCH.

On January 28th the members and friends of the Bowdon, Stockport and Mottram Branch of the Chester Guild called upon 'the parson who calls' at his church, St. George's, Stockport, and were delighted to find him in. In spite of the great demands upon his time, the Rev. Wilfrid Garlick not only conducted the service, but climbed the many steps to the belfry, accompanied by his two curates, before the service, and presided over tea and the long business meeting.

His address referred to the fact that ringing is one of the oldest and peculiar crafts, peculiar in that it binds ringers together. Much of our country's social history is written in the annals of ringing. Our Christian bells are a reminder of the deeper things of life and because we live in a secular world they do not appeal to all of the people. No one would ring the dinner gong and then provide no dinner, so we ringers cannot leave it at the ringing of a bell. We must carry out the message in our daily lives. Ringers did a great service for the Church.

Tea in the nearby Manor Cafe followed and was enjoyed by the 70 members and friends of the branch.

The report, presented at the annual meeting, disclosed quite a healthy position; it urged, however, that members should not rest on past laurels, but try to create their own opportunities and not to depend upon others. The officers of the branch were re-elected with the exception that the Rev. W. Garlick was invited to be president in place of the Rev. Canon D. H. Saunders-Davies. Twenty-eight new members were elected from seven different towers. The meeting closed with votes of thanks to the retiring officers, the Vicar and clergy of St. George's for their ready co-operation, the organist (Mr. Harold Dawber, of the Halle Chorus), and to the local ringers.

exercise gave you the drill for the motion sequence only, this exercise gives you the correct action for that motion sequence. In other words, here you learn to apply the correct pull-motion. Watch carefully!

Tom's hands begin to lower the tube on the pole, until the elastic strands become taut and then stretch until the lower end of the tube is almost down on to the screw-eye stops at the lower end of the pole. Here, however, Tom's grasp of the tube is relaxed, both his hands instantly closing round the pig-tail. Immediately, of course, the 'sally' slides upwards, and Tom's hands, grasping the pig-tail, rise after it, with his knuckles gliding lightly upwards against the side of the pole, until they pause at what is, of course, the 'up-at-back' position. From here, down they slide again, leaving the pole at waist height, while the tube, falling from the pole-top when their support was removed, 'dances' at the bottom of the stroke. As this rise of the sally begins, Tom's hands quickly grasp it, and raise both it and the pig-tail, as before, to the 'up-at-hand' position. This looks easy enough, but we suddenly remember that match-box. It's still on the pole-top!

Your turn next lesson,' says Tom. 'That's all for to-night's practice.' So, till then, Yours ever, CORN. R. STONE.

ONE THOUSAND TOWER BELL PEALS

MR. ERNEST MORRIS' RECORD.

By conducting the peal of Cambridge Surprise Minor at St. Margaret's, Leicester, the verger, Mr. Ernest Morris, completed his 1,000th tower-bell peal. These were rung on all numbers from five to twelve inclusive and comprise Doubles 96 (conducted 91); Minor 151 (126); Triples 192 (102); Major 371 (142); Caters 69 (29); Royal 58 (15); Cinques 28 (4); Maximus 25 (2); total 1,000 (conducted 511).

Included in the above are many record long lengths, thus: 12,633 Stedman Cinques; 7,008 and 12,896 Cambridge Surprise Major; 9,344 and 10,976 Bristol Surprise Major; 9,600 Worcester Treble Bob Major. Mr. Morris has called 6,600 Doubles; 7,200 and 10,080 Minor; 7,008, 7,488, 9,760 (all singles), and 13,440 Bob Major; 6,720 Little Bob Major; 6,720 Little Canterbury Major; 10,912 Kent Treble Bob Major; 7,840 Oxford Treble Bob Major; 9,120 Ilkeston Treble Bob Major.

Last year (1949) Ernest Morris scored 88 peals, besides which he gave over 30 lectures on campanology. As is well known, he is author of several books and many articles, and recently contributed the section on bells to the new edition of Chambers' 'Encyclopedia.' For this and works in other spheres he has been elected to the Royal Society of Literature.

Footnote.—Within three hours of ringing in his 1,000th tower peal Ernest Morris was taking part in his 1,001st. By a coincidence this happened to be Grandsire Triples, and the composition was the same as his very first peal (rung in 1906), and he rang the second bell on both occasions.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

CAMBRIDGE DISTRICT.

The annual meeting of the Cambridge District at Sawston on January 21st was honoured by the presence of the president of the Central Council (Mr. E. H. Lewis). The ringers' service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. R. Bircham. Tea was very kindly arranged by the local ringers.

The Rev. R. Bircham presided at the business meeting, and the election of officers for 1950 was as follows: President, the Rev. R. Bircham; Ringing Master, Mr. C. Hurst; Deputy Ringing Master, Mr. Gipson; district secretary, Mr. H. L. Martin; committee re-elected, Messrs. C. W. Cook, T. R. Dennis, E. G. Hibbins, F. Hurry, A. Hurst and C. Hurst. Mr. Gipson and Mr. Hibbins were nominated to represent the district on the General Committee.

The following new members were elected: Mr. A. T. Shelton, of Reigate (non-resident life member), Messrs. G. C. Smith and H. F. Brown, of Cambridge, Messrs. F. Griggs, R. Griggs, W. Smoothery, A. Smoothery, S. Keeble, D. Keeble and D. Bonham, of Ickleton.

Mr. Dennis proposed votes of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells, to the organist and to the local ringers and lady helpers for arranging the excellent tea.

MR. ERNEST MORRIS.

Mr. G. W. F. Trotman, Nuneaton, writes: I had the pleasure of ringing in Ernest Morris' 1,000th and 1,001st tower-bell peals on Saturday, Feb. 11th. It is by sheer coincidence that Ernest's first peal was Grandsire Triples, Groves' Variation of Parker's Twelve-part, to which he rang the second. His 1,001st tower-bell peal was the same composition and variation, to which he again rang the 2nd.

The peal attempt was certainly not arranged with this thought in mind, and Ernest knew nothing of the attempt until the previous Thursday evening.

This peal was E.M.'s 1,189th, so we can soon expect to see an asterisk against his name in the peal columns for his 1,200th.

LEICESTER CELEBRATION PEAL

Dear Sir,—I feel I must write a few lines of interest to 'The Ringing World' concerning the peal at St. John's, Leicester, on Saturday, February 11th.

Actually I considered it a privilege to be invited by Mr. Terence Thornber to ring a peal on these excellent bells. Young Terry, at 16 years of age, deserves every congratulation in ringing this 21 cwt. tenor to Royal and in calling his first peal. Although one or two of the band felt a certain amount of apprehension before the attempt, a really well-struck peal was rung and an even beat maintained throughout.

The conductor finished in as fine condition as when we started and certainly felt no ill-effects at the Leicester Cathedral ringers' celebration dinner, for which connection the peal was originally arranged. Young Terry must have been working too hard because at 2 a.m. the next morning several pieces of stone fell from the top of the spire—one piece falling in the side chapel and another in a house opposite.—Yours faithfully,

BRIAN G. WARWICK.

WENTWORTH, YORKS.—On Jan. 21st, 1,440 Minor: G. West 1, N. Chappel (first quarter) 2, G. Hiner 3, S. F. Wilson 4, F. Pickering 5, H. Mortimore (cond.) 6.

London County Association

The London County Association and North Southwark Diocesan Guild again held a successful annual general meeting at Southwark Cathedral. Other towers at which ringing took place were St. Mary Magdalene's, Holloway, and St. Mary's, Lambeth. The service was conducted by the Association's Honorary Chaplain, the Rev. H. Ashdown, Provost of Southwark Cathedral, who also addressed the Association at the commencement of the business meeting. This was held in the Chapter House immediately following the tea.

The Provost commented most favourably on the work of the Association during the year and particularly in regard to the fact that missionary bands of ringers were travelling round on Sundays and ringing bells which would not otherwise be heard.

One company in particular organised by the General Master, Mr. T. H. Taffender, had visited eleven towers in rotation for 48 Sundays in the year and had rung 39 quarter peals. On the occasions when quarter peals had not been rung it was mostly due to some breakage or mishap with the bells, ropes or fittings.

New members elected during the year totalled 35 and four had passed on. Among these was Canon G. F. Coleridge, who was elected on June 23rd, 1877. Mention was, however, made by the General Master of an even older member who is still alive and joined the Association on February 7th, 1876. He is Mr. David Wright, of Southgate. Needless to say, that grand old veteran, Mr. T. Alexander Young (elected a member in 1891), was present.

Among the list of peals rung were two by entirely local companies—Grandsire Triples by Battersea, conducted by Mr. S. J. Hart, Southern District Master, and Cambridge Surprise Royal by Isleworth. Bands formed basically from Isleworth had, in addition to ringing seven peals, given the Association its first peal of Erin Caters and the first peal at St. Stephen's, Westminster, for 35 years. Many first peals and first in various methods had been achieved, and in all five women and 35 men had taken part.

HANDBELL COMPETITION.

Great interest was shown in the handbell competition, in which three teams took part—two from St. Luke's, Chelsea, and one from All Saints', Isleworth. The silver cup for the best course was won by one of the Chelsea teams with an exceptionally well-struck, slowly rung course of Grandsire Triples. Other methods rung were Duffield Major by the other Chelsea team and Bob Major by Isleworth.

Nominations for officers made at All Saints' Fulham, in January, were confirmed and resulted in re-election of the 1949 officers as follows: Messrs. T. H. Taffender, I.S.O., Master; G. F. Strickland, treasurer; H. W. Rogers, secretary; N. G. Hollingworth and Miss Audrey Castle, assistant secretaries; C. M. Meyer and E. T. Beauchamp, stewards; A. H. Keighley and T. W. Taffender, trustees. The Master reported satisfactory attendance and progress at the 1949 meetings and hoped that the two regular monthly evening practices in 1950 would be well maintained. There is a general practice at St. Mary's, Lambeth, on the first Monday in each month at 7.15 p.m., and a special advanced methods practice at St. Stephen's, Rochester Row, on the third Wednesday in each month at 7.45 p.m.

WOOLTON HILL, HANTS.—On Feb. 12th, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles: M. J. Dodd 1, F. W. Walker 2, P. E. Dodd 3, B. C. Sirlind 4, G. K. Dodd (cond.) 5, J. W. Dodd (first quarter) 6. WYF, KENT.—On Feb. 5th, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles, with 6.7.8 covering: Miss H. Pendrill 1, Miss M. Holmes 2, G. Medley 3, C. Head 4, F. Good (cond.) 5, G. Bonnett 6, J. Thomas 7, W. Curtis 8.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

RINGING IN SHROPSHIRE

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. Ernest J. Rowe, I must say that I at least had no difficulty in identifying the Shropshire tower which recently produced 'a polished Surprise ringer' as Market Drayton. The ringer indicated is no doubt Mr. W. J. Chester. Cambridge, Superlative and London have been rung at Market Drayton for several years now. Cambridge Minor is regularly practised at Berrington at the present time. I cannot speak with certainty about the position at Bridgnorth now, but Superlative was usual fare at St. Leonard's before the war. Occasional courses are rung at St. Chad's on practice nights, but I think that that exhausts Surprise ringing by local bands.

There are, however, many ringers in the county who ring it when the opportunity offers. I do not attend many Hereford Diocesan meetings, but understand that three or four Surprise Major methods were heard at Ludlow last Saturday.

I can, however, speak with certainty of Shropshire Association meetings. At Wellington last November, Cambridge and Superlative were rung, and Cambridge at St. Mary's, Shrewsbury, on January 28th. Mr. Rowe was present during part at least of the ringing on both these occasions, and it is to be regretted that he missed these opportunities.

As for his comment about lack of keenness, I agree that far too many bands only aspire to Grandsire and Plain Bob, but the Shropshire Association at least appoints a different method for practice at each of its seven or eight meetings. I note that we are due at Broseley this year, so perhaps our Ringing Master will take the hint. W. A. FARMER.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF YOUTH

Dear Sir,—I have recently attended meetings of three different guilds (Southampton, Ilminster, Somerset, and Babhacombe, Devon), and on each occasion have taken three learners, aged 14, 13 and 11. Through 'The Ringing World' I should like to thank publicly Messrs. Pullinger, Locke and Lilley respectively for the welcome extended by them to the youngsters and for the opportunities given for a pull, albeit at present that they are capable of rounds only. If only more of the experienced ringers were to give youngsters similar encouragement I am sure we should not have recruits 'jacking up' because they are discouraged and feel that they are not wanted at meetings. My special thanks are also due to Mr. Lilley for his remarks at the business meeting regarding the encouragement of young recruits.—Yours sincerely,

F. T. PAUL FIELD.

Buckland Newton, Dorset.

CENTRAL COUNCIL PUBLICATIONS

Dear Sir,—On my own behalf and on behalf of the Council I should like to acknowledge in your paper the services rendered to the Exercise by my wife and by Miss Rosemary Smith in distributing Central Council publications since the end of last October. This has not been done without considerable sacrifice of time: for with the increase in interest in ringing demands for books keen at a much higher level than was formerly the case.

Until I can resume my duties Mr. C. W. Woolley has most kindly consented to take over the fulfilment of orders. May I ask ringers to help him by being particularly careful to send the right amount of cash with order, and by ordering from the official list only, the one printed on the back page of the current number of 'The Ringing World'? It is no uncommon thing to receive orders for books which have not been available for months, sometimes for years.—Yours faithfully,

W. H. J. HOOTON, Hon. Librarian.
Central Council of Church Bellringers.

RINGING IN SCOTLAND

Dear Sir,—Mr. Clouston, in his reply to a criticism of a statement in his pamphlet on the bells of Scotland, mentions that he drew attention to the restriction on ringing at St. Cuthbert's Church, Edinburgh, primarily for the sake of any who may be thinking of ringing tours in Scotland.

If there are such people, I would advise them to give up the idea at once. The last ringing tour in Scotland was by a band of ringers from the South a few years before the war, and it took the local ringers a very long time to live down the furious opposition to ringing aroused by the action of the tourists. Except at Inveraray, every tower in Scotland where a peal is feasible is in a densely built-up area.

Ringers in Scotland are only too glad to welcome visitors for service ringing and practice, usually silent. But, as Mr. Clouston states, peal ringing is almost entirely restricted to the celebration of special events, and even then there is objection.

R. O. STREET, President,
Scottish Association.
Glasgow.

THE ELUSIVE FIRST

Dear Sir,—Re your leading article of Feb. 10th on peals rung and checking of peal failures, you may like to know that here at Harlow Common no peal has been rung since the war as we are all determined to get that 'first of Stedman' before any others.

Most of the band have upwards of 15 attempts for it, and the lowest number of attempts—by the youngest ringer—at least six. We are still trying with another go this next Saturday. The whole peal has been rung—in parts—but always the human element has failed after nearly always some excellent ringing of up to 2½ hours.—Yours faithfully,

W. H. ALEY.

CAN IT BE COUNTED TWICE?

Dear Sir,—As the total of the towers in which I have rung had reached 249, I was checking my list to see whether I had missed one to bring the total to 250, when I came across the following conundrum.

Under K is St. Andrew's, Kingsbury, while under London I find St. Andrew's, Well Street, W.C. As many of your readers know, this latter church was removed from Well Street and re-erected at Kingsbury. My list is of towers in which I had rung. Am I wrong to count this one twice? There must be many who have rung at both places, so what do your readers think?—Yours truly,

F. W. GOODFELLOW.

Iver Heath, Bucks.

CONGRATULATIONS, MANGOTSFIELD

Dear Sir,—It was most interesting to read Mr. Skidmore's account of the happy band of Sunday service ringers at Mangotsfield. Congratulations to Mr. W. Seers on celebrating his 90th birthday with a quarter peal. On May 14th last year at Newton St. Loe I had the pleasure of ringing with this grand old gentleman. I stood between a young lady of 14 or 15 on the treble and Mr. Seers on the third, a unique experience.

Mr. J. G. Jefferies is to be congratulated on his fine band of ringers: incidentally, we have three generations ringing regularly for Sunday service, my father, F. J. Bailey (78), myself and my son. My wife, another son in the Royal Navy and two of my brothers are also ringers.—Yours faithfully,

FRED BAILEY.

Ancient Rules

Dear Sir,—Enclosed is a copy of some ancient rules kept in our tower. I think perhaps they are the ones C. Hone asked about in 'The Ringing World' on January 27th.—Yours truly, J. ARBURY.

Ottery St. Mary, Devon.

Whoever in the place shall swear,
Sixpence he shall pay therefor.

Whoso rings here in his hat,
Threepence he shall pay for that.

3
Who overturns his bell, be sure,
Sixpence he shall pay therefor.

Who leaves his rope under feet,
Threepence he shall pay for it.

5
A good ringer with a true heart
Will not refuse to stand a quart.

6
Who will not to these rules agree,
Shall not belong to this Belfry.

Dear Sir,—Regarding Mr. Hone's letter in the issue of Jan. 27th, relating to the rhyme at Bugbrook Church, the difference between the enclosed and Mr. Hone's is no doubt due to lack of grammar on the part of early ringers.

He that rings and breaks a stay
Will have half a crown to pay,
And if he rings in spurs or hat,
Shall pay a quart of ale for that.

Yours faithfully,

JOHN A. HILTON.

Broadstairs, Kent.

The same rhyme has also been submitted by Mr. W. P. Cleaver, St. Lawrence-in-Thane, and Mrs. A. M. Collins, of Lower Heyford, Northampton.

ANOTHER DEVONSHIRE RHYME

Dear Sir,—Re letter by C. Hone (Thakeham) on rhymes about ringing. I herewith enclose a copy of a rhyme preceding the rules for ringers hung in our tower.—Yours sincerely,

A. C. THORNE.

Colebrooke, Crediton, Devon.

COLEBROOKE CHURCH, 1894.

Old Articles for Ringing.

Aloud let silence first proclaimed be,
And by consent let's make it our decree,
And fix such rules in our Society,
Which, being observed will keep sobriety;
Who curs'th or swears, or in an angry mood
Quarrels or strikes, although he draws no blood,
Or wears his hat, or spurs, or turns a bell,
Or by unskilful handling mars a peal,
Let him pay sixpence for each single crime,
'Twill make him cautious at another time,
So a blessing let us crave on Church and King,
And now let's peaceably begin to ring.

ALSO AT KESWICK

Dear Sir,—I think the rhyme that Mr. C. Hone means ('Ringing World,' Jan. 27th) can be found, in varying form, in many different parts of the country. We, in Keswick, have a copy in the belfry, which is as follows:—

You ringers all observe these Orders well,
He eight-pence pays who overturns a Bell:
He who presumes to ring without consent,
Shall pay one Shilling and it shall be spent:
And he who rings with either Spur or Hat
Shall pay his eight-pence certainly for that:
He who in ringing interrupts a Peal
For such offence shall pay a Quart of Ale:
In falling Bells one penny must be paid,
By him who stops before the signal's made:
And he who takes God's holy Name in vain
Shall pay one Shilling and this Place refrain.
You Ringers all take care, you must not fail
To have your forfeitures all spent in Ale.
With heart upright let each true Subject ring

OBITUARY

MR. TOM MILLER.

With the passing of Tom Miller, Birmingham and the Ringing Exercise generally have lost a most talented ringer.

Born in London, July 6th, 1858, he died at St. Joseph's Home, Harborne, Birmingham, on January 5th, in his 92nd year, and was buried in the cemetery connected with Oscott College on January 9th. It is to the extreme regret of his many friends that owing to the absence of his only surviving son on the Continent, his passing was not made known to them, and thus they were prevented from showing that last mark of their esteem by attending his funeral.

Although born in London, he was brought to Birmingham as a baby and had lived there all his life. He took up ringing at an early age and was associated with the celebrated William Chattell and his company at St. Philip's Church (now the Cathedral), and later with Henry Johnson and the Holt Society at Aston, and afterwards with the St. Martin's Guild.

Being an R.C., he was in charge of the bells and service ringing at St. Chad's R.C. Cathedral, ringing his first peal there in February 20th, 1878, also his last peal on the new bells there on July 6th, 1938, on his 80th birthday. He took part in many peals throughout the country and in his day was an outstanding heavy-bell ringer and exceedingly keen on good striking.

On handbells he was particularly proficient and could ring any pair of bells. He took part in many handbell peals with such men as William Kent, Tom Russam and John Carler. He rang in the first handbell peal of Grandshire Cinques and in the second handbell peal of Stedman Cinques (the first being rung in London). He also took part in a course of Grandshire 16 rung at St. Martin's headquarters, the Tamworth Arms.

By profession he was a bell tuner and so was associated with bells all his life. For some years he was employed by Messrs. Blews and afterwards by Messrs. Barwell, both of Birmingham.

In his youth he joined one of the Guards regiments and was at times on guard duty at Buckingham Palace. Whilst stationed in London he met many of the older members of the Ancient Society of College Youths in their various towers and at the Society's headquarters, the famous Goose and Gridiron close to St. Paul's Cathedral.

Tom Miller had many qualities which endeared him with all his many friends. He had a ready and peculiar wit so that whenever you were in his company you were sure of a laugh and joke. He had a peculiar habit of coining nicknames, i.e., Henry Bastable, who had a peculiar gait, was 'Stedman Triples legs.' Ernest Allaway, who had—and still has—a deep voice, was 'The man with the grocer's voice.' As a youngster Tom used to go for his mother to a local shop, where the man had a voice 'like the day of judgment.' Bernard Witchell was a short-tempered man with black hair; he was 'The Black Villain.' Mr. W. H. Godden, a stout man, who could never ring a heavy bell, was 'Flimsy.'

In about 1904 a Birmingham band went for a peal of Bob Royal at Exeter Cathedral with A. E. Peglar on the tenor. After about 24 hours Peglar was in distress and called on Tom to take the tenor off him while he cooled down a bit. Tom, who was sitting in the tower, stripped down and got on the box while the tenor was at the back. He only rang it for a minute or so. He said afterwards that 'he free-wheeled her down to lead, but then the prisoner lay down in the gutter and kicked; he could not get her to the station.'

On November 16th, 1907, a band from Birmingham rang a peal of Stedman Cinques at Sheffield. It was a good peal, and as soon as the bells were set up Tom turned round and stood on his hands with his feet against the wall, just as boys do to-day. When asked why, he said he had stood so long (3 hours and 57 minutes) the other way up, he thought he would rest his legs a bit.

On another occasion, when in London, on Lord Mayor's Day, he was ringing at Cornhill. They had rung rounds for several minutes and he was beginning to wonder whether there was a conductor in the band, when suddenly the man next to him shouted out in a very loud voice that made Tom jump, 'Gow, Stedman, Bawb,' which he described as 'like bosting a tennipny ball.'

He was also famous as the composer of two songs, 'Bob Major,' in which he describes the long peal of 15,360 at Aston, when Joshua Short rang the tenor, and 'Stedman Caters,' relating to a long peal in that method.

Visitors to the Henry Johnson Commemorative Dinner of 15 to 20 years ago will also remember the anecdotes he used to tell when proposing the memory toast of incidents in the life of Henry Johnson.

Thus was this great ringer of outstanding personality and charm.

MR. G. ADES.

We regret to record the death of Mr. George Ades, of Croydon, who passed away on Feb. 5th at the age of 88.

George Ades had been a member of the Croydon Parish Church band for 11 years and had endeared himself to all the ringers in the neighbourhood by his genial disposition. Although only a tenor ringer, he was most regular in attendance on Sundays and practice nights until about six months before his death.

The funeral took place on Feb. 10th, when the bells were rung half-muffled before and after the service in the church.

Kent County Association

LEWISHAM DISTRICT.

Lewisham District's quarterly meeting was held at St. Mary's, Woolwich, on January 28th, forty members participating in ringing, service, tea and business meeting.

The service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. Thompson), and included an inspiring address. Mr. J. H. Portes was at the organ.

Tea and the business meeting were held in the Rectory Room, the Rector presiding until called away to another engagement. Cordial votes of thanks were accorded him before departure.

Mr. E. A. Barnett (Crayford) happily and successfully superintended the business meeting. Nine ringers were added to the Association's adherents, including a new band at Hayes, and Mr. J. A. Robertson, of Lewisham, was elected an hon. life member.

The recent social meeting at Christ Church, Erith, was voted a real success and cordial thanks extended to its organisers, especially to Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Palmer, of Sidcup.

Mr. E. Barnett paid a tribute to the late Mr. J. Couchman and Mrs. Couchman, of Farningham. Mr. Couchman was an old and valued member of the Association and Mrs. Couchman a true friend to all ringers who visited Farningham. The meeting revered their memory in the traditional manner.

Mr. G. V. Murphy gave a comprehensive report of proceedings at the November committee meeting, held at Maidstone. Bexley was chosen as place of next meeting, to be held on April 22nd or 29th, and Chislehurst was suggested as venue of the combined meeting with N.W. District, Surrey Association, on Saturday, October 7th.

Thanks were accorded Mr. A. S. Richards for hard and successful work in instructing a band of ringers at Hayes, a task undertaken in addition to the sustained work at his own tower of West Wickham, where efficiency and progress continued to be made.

Concern was expressed at the decline in interest and ringing standards in the Lewisham District. This was the third successive meeting where the attendance had been forty or less, and it was noticeable that the bulk of even that small number were members of three towers. Various points of view were expressed; publicity or rather the lack of it was suggested, but no concrete suggestions were put forward. One or two members undertook to make enquiries among their contracts to see what could be done to stimulate attendance at meetings and increase the bands of ringers at towers at present depleted.

Mr. J. Dafters, Ringing Master, informed members that the bells of St. Mary's, Lewisham, needed attention from the bell-hangers and during the interim ringing would be restricted.

News of an improvement in health was received concerning Mr. H. Hoverd, and the meeting's good wishes were again extended to him and his family.

Votes of thanks to the Rector, organist, caterers and the chairman concluded the meeting, and members returned to the tower for further ringing.

Gloucester & Bristol Assn.BRISTOL RURAL BRANCH.

About 60 members attended the annual meeting of the Bristol Rural Branch at Almondsbury on Jan. 23th. Visitors included Mr. P. C. Williams, general treasurer of the Association, and Mr. E. F. Hancock, Ringing Master of the Bristol City Branch. The ring of eight bells was made good use of during the afternoon and evening, and the service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. Radcliffe Cox). Tea was provided in the Schoolroom.

The business meeting was presided over by the branch chairman (Mr. C. R. Harding).

The secretary (Miss Hilliar) presented her report and balance sheet, which showed that the number of members now stood at 160. Eleven meetings had been held during the year with an average attendance of 44. All the towers in the branch were affiliated. The balance sheet showed that £21 10s. had been paid to the general treasurer.

The Chairman, in his report, said that the standard of ringing had improved very much, the striking being better. He had been pleased to see the young members had attended the monthly meetings regularly, which was surely a step in the right direction. He thanked Miss Hilliar, the branch secretary, for her work. The chairman said there were still some members in the branch who never attended a meeting; they did not know what they were missing.

The chair was taken by Mr. J. G. Jefferies for the election of officers. Mr. C. R. Harding, who was re-elected chairman for the twelfth year, thanked the members for their confidence. Mr. N. Denson (1, Quadrant East, Fishponds, Bristol) was elected branch secretary; Mr. S. Riches (Stapleton, Bristol) representative on Management Committee; Mr. F. Skidmore Ringing Master.

The chairman proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells, and to Mr. V. Wills, local captain, and Mr. H. Robbins, tower secretary, for making the arrangements for the meeting.

The next annual meeting will be held at Mangotsfield, and quarterly meetings at Bitton in March, Olveston in June, and Henbury in September.

SLIMBRIDGE'S RECORD

Slimbridge, Gloucestershire, has a record it is justly proud of and would like to hear if any other tower has a similar record. Since the lifting of the ban on Easter Day, April 25th, 1943, Slimbridge ringers have not failed to ring for the Sunday services twice every Sunday. As a matter of principle they attend each service and all 12 are communicants.

In a letter to the Editor, the captain, Mr. H. J. Hobbs, writes: We are not a band of experts by any means; just an ordinary village team of three or four ladies, two lads and seven men. Ours is a very scattered village consisting of three or four hamlets, several ringers living three or four miles away from the church. During the last two years we have lost four good ringers by removal and the Forces.

'Two years ago we had in our band the parson, the policeman, the chairman of the Parish Council, the vice-chairman, the parish clerk, president of the Women's Institute, the organist and members of the choir. We never noticed it till one night someone happened to say, "All the parish is here to-night."'

Some three dozen ringers and friends attended the annual bellringers' dinner recently, when the Rector (Canon Thomas) presided. Among the guests were the Rev. A. H. D. Allan (Vicar of Cromhall and chairman of the Wotton-under-Edge Branch) and Miss D. M. Drew (secretary). A full toast list was followed by a musical programme, handbell ringing and dancing.

WHEN RINGERS WERE HIRED

BUNBURY, near Tarporley, Cheshire, with its fine ring of eight bells, which includes a pre-Reformation tenor, has provided the subject matter for a booklet on the parish history which is being published under the title of 'The Bunbury Papers.' The Editor has secured the services of Mr. J. W. Clarke, Master of the Chester Diocesan Guild and an antiquarian of repute, to be responsible for the publication of this section, and it makes particularly attractive reading to those who love bells.

The papers available have enabled Mr. Clarke to give interesting sidelights on ringing in the 17th and 18th centuries. One of the first duties which the churchwardens carried out at Bunbury on assuming office was the election of the ringers. Such an item as 'Spent when we hired the Ringers . . . 0 2 6,' appears in the account books.

What sort of competition existed is not apparent, writes Mr. Clarke, but financially the appointment was attractive enough. There was a collective salary of 135s. a year, with many extra payments for ringing on special occasions, which included the royal birthdays, the anniversaries of accessions and coronations, Restoration Day, at Christmas and New Year (probably at midnight), on Easter Monday, when a parish feast was held, and on November 5th, when the village celebrated on a grand scale.

It is rarely that names of village ringers of two centuries ago can be recorded, but in Bunbury a list of the ringers of 1732 has been fortunately preserved. When John Fenna and James Done, churchwardens, held the customary meeting to elect this company, they entered a minute in the account book:—

'We . . . have hired the following Ringers for this present year and will allow 'em the usual wages: William Large, sen., John Large, Robert Burton, William Large, jun., Ralph Walker and Richard Spencer.'

Each man came to the table and signed his name in the book—the last-named with some difficulty. William Large was a carpenter, and his name occurs frequently in the accounts, for he did many repairs about the church and belfry. In 1746 he made the lych-gates. The others no doubt followed various occupations in the village, then very much a self-contained unit.

A glimpse of ringing in Bunbury in the late 19th century, writes Mr. Clarke, comes from Mr. Windsor, who was a ringer long before the two smaller bells were added in 1895. The dav-bell by this time had gone, but curfew still rang solemnly at eight, and another custom of considerable interest was the ringing of the treble bell at one o'clock on Sundays. The bell was probably associated with Sunday dinner in those days, but its original use was probably that of the 'Sermon bell' being sounded to announce that a service with sermon would take place later in the afternoon. Many parishes observed such a custom at this time.

On Christmas Eve the ringers did the rounds of the village with handbells and lanterns in traditional style, ringing changes and seasonable tunes to the delight of all who listened. Reaching the church shortly before midnight, they waited for the clock to strike and then rang the bells to herald Christmas Day, often remaining in the ringing chamber for the rest of the night in readiness for more ringing before the first service at six o'clock. On New Year's Eve there was ringing at eight and ten o'clock to speed the departing year, while at midnight a merry welcome sounded from the tower in greeting to the New Year.

Bunbury tenor, which weighs 14 cwt. 3 qr. 11 lb., was cast at the Nottingham foundry of Robert Mellour (1510-1525), and bears the typical Nottingham mark, a shield with a saltire cross. It also has a second foundry stamp, that of Robert Crowh, a London founder of the mid-fifteenth century, whose stamps seem to have been acquired by the Mellour family at the turn of the century. Although shorn of its cannons, the bell still remains as a fine example of mediæval craftsmanship.

The seventh, which Mr. Clarke dates circa 1610-12, was from the foundry of George Lee, of Congleton, the only foundry ever worked in Cheshire. The bell was 'turned' in 1713, and the cannons have since been removed, the crown being drilled and bolted direct to the headstock. The sixth bell was first cast in 1615, and deductions from the inscription, 'CANTATE DOMNI CANTICVM NOVIM, 1615,' and the use of Roman capitals with floreated backgrounds suggests that it was cast by William Clibury, of Wellington, Shropshire (1605-42). Clibury had in the same year cast bells for Hanley (with the same inscription) and Stoak in Wirral. The bell was recast by Mears and Stainbank, of London, in 1893. No clue remains as to the original fifth bell. Its inscription on the shoulder is, 'T. Mears, of London, Fecit 1817.' An allowance was made by the foundry of 13d. per pound for the metal on the old bell.

Readers will find 'The Church Bells of Bunbury' interesting and well illustrated. Copies can be obtained from the Rev. M. H. Ridgway, Bunbury, Cheshire, price 2s.

Mr. J. W. Clarke, Master of the Chester Diocesan Guild, will be publishing shortly the first part of his 'Cheshire Bells,' which deals with the bells of the Cathedral and two other churches in the City of Chester. By arrangement with the Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquarian Society, copies will be available to ringers.

East Hagbourne has a company of 25 ringers with a Double Norwich band.

The average age of the band who rang at Hatfield for the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. Martin Page was 20.1 years.

Wateringbury, Kent, bells have been retuned and rehung on ball bearings by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. Their rededication is fixed for March 18th.

Commiserations with the four ringers who were attempting their first of Superlative at Over, Cambs, on Feb. 17th. The peal was lost after 2 hours and 40 minutes through the treble rope snapping.

Cambridge Surprise Major rung at Framden was a silver wedding peal for Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Miller, to whom the band tender their thanks for the kind hospitality afterwards. A telegram, referring to watercrest, fog, drizzle and rolling dots, took some splicing.

The band who rang six spliced methods 'in hand' at Bushey Heath wish to record their appreciation of the assistance given by Mrs. Telford (mother of the ringer of 1-2) in mind-ing the baby during the peal and during previous attempts.

Feature article this week is the Leicester Cathedral band's dinner, at which mention was made of Mr. Harold J. Poole's 143 peals last year. In these peals there were 484 'firsts' and only 10 peals without a 'first' of some kind.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Ringers from St. Mary's, Maulden, Beds, saw their two new trebles cast at the Whitechapel Foundry on February 14th. It is hoped to have them installed and the present six rehung on ball bearings by Easter. Mr. Hughes, jun., acted as cicerone. The evening was spent at the London Hippodrome.

Mr. A. J. Corrigan, who has been on the sick list for nearly three months, hopes soon to publish 'Dates of Performances.'

Mrs. G. R. H. Nugent, the wife of the new Member of Parliament for Guildford, is a ringer at Dunsfold Parish Church.

The many friends of Mr. Peter Crook, for the past 31 years secretary of the Bolton Branch, will congratulate him on his 300th peal.

The newly-formed band of St. Augustine's, Thorpe Bay, are trying to raise £50 this year towards the new floor required in the tower. They have made a good start with £6 10s. from a whist drive and £8 10s. from a dance.

There was considerable comment over the peal of three spliced methods rung at Willesden published last week, when Mr. C. W. Roberts was credited with ringing the treble and the tenor. The tenor was rung by Mr. Philip A. Corby. We regret that we did not spot the error in the copy submitted.

Mr. R. J. Rayfield, of Rye, Sussex, is about again after an unfortunate accident in the bell chamber of St. Mary's Church, Rye. He had removed the silencer from a bell after instructing a pupil. In closing the heavy trap door he lost his footing on the ladder and fell 20ft. His leg was fractured and he injured his left elbow.

Regarding the peal of London at Chilvers Coton reported last week, we should state that all the participants were born within a mile of the church. They do not live within this radius as was erroneously stated last week.

LEICESTER CATHEDRAL SOCIETY—RECORD YEAR

Bishop Attends Dinner

ON Saturday, February 11th, the Leicester Cathedral ringers and friends assembled for a dinner to celebrate the achievements of 1949. In the unavoidable absence of the Provost, the Lord Bishop of Leicester presided.

The company included Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Jenney, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Poole, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Bowley, Mr. and Mrs. S. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Rawson, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Root, Mr. and Mrs. L. Greenhow, Mr. and Mrs. H. Broughton, Mr. and Mrs. R. Grant, Messrs. F. H. Dexter, J. Grant, G. Straw, A. Jacques, P. J. Staniforth, J. R. Smith, B. G. Warwick, D. Goodman, H. Poyner, the Misses Jill Poole, Dorothy Udale, Kathleen Tilley. Visitors included Messrs. J. F. Smallwood, A. Walker, G. E. Fearn, L. W. G. Morris, Miss Elizabeth Faulkner, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ballard, Messrs. P. Taylor, G. Freebrey, A. Thompson (Derby), J. Morris, J. S. Carter, H. Carter, R. H. Carter, K. Roe, F. Cheney, T. A. Thornber.

In proposing 'The Leicester Cathedral Society,' Mr. J. F. Smallwood referred to the 1949 achievements and said it was a very fine record, one of which any band should justly be proud. He mentioned the former leaders of the Cathedral company, George Cleal and Frederick H. Dexter, who had done so much to lay the foundation upon which the present band had been built. It was the latter who taught Harold Poole, and the present Cathedral ringers were fortunate in having such a leader. He congratulated the present Ringing Master upon his personal record of 143 peals during the year.

THE FOUNDATION.

Mr. H. J. Poole replied, and, in expressing thanks to everyone concerned, had special mention for Fred Dexter and Harry Broughton, the former secretary of the company, whose enthusiasm and ability as leader and secretary respectively were responsible for the introduction and progress of Surprise ringing in Leicester. Without the foundation laid by them there would not have been the subsequent achievements in the advanced methods. Mr. Poole also referred to the progress of youth in the Leicester district, and congratulated Terry Thornber (16 years) on turning in St. John's tenor (21 cwt.) that afternoon and calling the peal of Plain Bob Royal.

'The Church and State' was proposed by Mr. H. G. Jenney, who suggested that, having regard to the present election position, the least said about the State the better. He did not wish to be accused of any political advertising or bias. He compared the position of the Church to-day with that of his youthful days, when the churches were usually full and that church on Sundays was part of the family life.

The Right Rev. G. V. Smith, D.D., Bishop of Leicester, replied and spoke of the much more difficult task of the clergy to-day as compared with years ago. He thanked the ringers for the very important part they played in the life of the Church.

By Courtesy of 'The Leicester Chronicle.'

Mr. W. A. Thorpe, Cathedral Warden, proposed 'The Visitors' and extended a very sincere welcome to them. Although not a ringer, he did appreciate the sound of church bells and thought nothing sounded better than the village church bells echoing across the meadows.

BIRMINGHAM'S GOOD WISHES.

Mr. Albert Walker replied and endorsed all that had been said by Mr. Smallwood concerning the 1949 record. He also referred to the peals of Cambridge Surprise Royal and Cambridge Surprise Maximus rung at Leicester on handbells. He spoke of the very close friendship between the Leicester Cathedral ringers and the Birmingham ringers, and extended an invitation for the band to visit Birmingham again before long.

In between the toasts a 'touch' of Spliced Surprise Major (London, Bristol, Cambridge (Continued in next column)

Eastbourne Ringers' Dinner

The ringers at Eastbourne, having combined through shortage of ringers to ensure that the four rings of eight in the town are rung regularly, held their first annual dinner on Friday, February 3rd. It was a most enjoyable evening, and among many other guests and friends were the Vicar of Eastbourne (the Rev. L. E. Meredith, M.A.), who presided, and the Rev. J. N. Marcon, M.A., Vicar of Christ Church. The churchwardens of St. Mary's Church were also present, and apologies were received from the Vicar of All Saints' and his churchwardens, who had other engagements.

The Rev. J. N. Marcon, in proposing the toast, 'The Eastbourne Bellringers,' said that, apart from a few complaints, the ancient art of bell-ringing was appreciated in all quarters and was an integral part of church worship. Mr. F. H. Dallaway suitably replied. 'Our Guests' was proposed by the Vicar of Eastbourne, who warmly welcomed ringers from Bexhill, Hailsham and Hellingly.

No ringers' function would be complete without handbell ringing, and this event was no exception. Courses of Grandsire Triples and Bob Major were rung between toasts, to the obvious enjoyment of all present, and in particular the non-ringers. After dinner, entertainment was provided from among the local ringers, and this was interspersed with various games, which caused considerable amusement to those participating as well as to the onlookers.

It was generally agreed that as the evening had been so successful and enjoyable, the 'Eastbourne Ringers' Dinner' would have to be an annual event in the future.

MARRIED COUPLES' PEAL

Another married couples' peal took place on February 11th at St. Mary's, Handsworth, Sheffield. Two of the participants, Mrs. Ryder and Mrs. Haywood, took part in the first peal to be rung by an all ladies' team. This was at Handsworth 22 years ago.

and Superlative) was rung on handbells by Jill Poole, H. J. Poole, A. Ballard and P. J. Staniforth, and tunes on handbells were rung by the Carter family of Wigston Magna.

A social evening followed the dinner and brought to a close one of the best functions ever to be held in connection with the Cathedral band. One of the very pleasing features of it was that every one of the 25 members was present.

BURNHAM, BUCKS, DEDICATION

A Memorable Day

The occasion of the dedication, on Sunday, January 15th, of the new ring of bells, cast by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., by the Lord Bishop of Oxford will long remain in the memory as one of the outstanding occasions in the long parochial history of Burnham.

More than an hour before the service was due to commence people were converging on the church from all directions, and, in consequence, the building was not only completely filled, but many members of the congregation had the disappointment of returning home without gaining admission. It is hoped that the recorded parts of the service as seen on the B.B.C. Television News Reel gave some compensation, but nothing could reflect either the spirit or the success of this great day.

Preceded by the crucifer, the choir, followed by the servers, the ringers of the church, and the clergy, the Bishop of the diocese, with his servers and chaplain, and attended by the churchwardens, left the vestry and encircled the church and, facing the news cameraman, entered by the west door. The congregational singing of the Introit hymn must have assured the Diocesan not only of his welcome, but of the enthusiasm of all local people on the occasion of yet another great achievement.

Evensong was sung to the third collect, and the choir merited much praise for all they did to ensure the success of the service and as a tribute to the ringers, whose share towards the activities of the church is not always so apparent, but always appreciated. The lessons were read by the Vicar of Bray (the ringing chairman of the branch, Oxford Diocesan Guild) and Col. J. M. Wadmore, the hon. treasurer of the Tower and Bell Restoration Fund.

THE DEDICATION.

The first part of the service being completed, the Bishop, preceded by the Vicar and churchwardens and accompanied by the Ringing Master, processed to the ancient south chancel, where hung the solitary rone of the service bell which was to represent the others in the belfry. Mr. Paul Taylor, on behalf of the founders, took the rone and handed it to the people's warden to signify the completion of the work, and Dr. Summers then invited the Bishop to dedicate the bells. Taking the rope in his hands, his lordship then performed the dedication and, afterwards, handed it to the Vicar as a token that the bells were placed in his keeping. In turn the Vicar passed the symbolic rone to Mr. Gilbert as his appointed deputy, and this part of the service, which was televised, concluded by the small procession reforming and, to the pealing of the bells by eight of the Burnham girls, returning to the sanctuary.

In his address, which followed, the Bishop pointed out the rightful place of the bells in the worship of the church and reminded his listeners of the various messages they take to the parish. They call the faithful to worship, they herald the great festivals of the year, they ring out a glad message on personal occasions and they also mark the sad passing of the years. In all the varied aspects of life they have a message: the message of God's love to mankind and of mankind's fellowship one with another.

The service ended with the Blessing by the Bishop, and thus ended a great day in local history. In due course, parts of the service, including the ringing in the tower, were included in the Television News Reel and were seen by viewers throughout the country. It is hoped that a copy of the film may be obtained in order to retain the record of the day's events and for a wider showing within the parish.

After service quite a number of visiting ringers tried out the new bells before departing for their own evensong ringing. Ringers were present from Brafield (Northants), Boyne Hill, Bray, Bucklebury, Great Missenden, East Ilsley, Farnham Royal, Hersham, Hillingdon, High Wycombe, Hughenden, Stoke Poges, Loughborough, Reading, Slough, Thatcham, East Hagbourne, Reading, Waltham St. Lawrence, Hurst, etc., including the general secretary of the Oxford Guild (Mr. William Hibbert) and the general treasurer (Mr. A. D. Barker). Ringing was kept down to maximum of 168 in order that all could have a pull in the short time available.

RINGING DAY PLANNED.

On the completion of the work and debt (there is still a fair deficit, and the hon. treasurer's address is Col. J. M. Wadmore, Woodlands, Linkwood Road, Burnham, Bucks) it is intended to have an all day ringing day, which, we hope, will be kept up annually. The new bells are now all on one level with a tenor of 12 cwt. 3 qr. 13 lb. in F sharp, and are a real pleasure, both to listen to and ring. An anonymous donor bore the cost of the treble and all bells carry the inscription, 'Recast by John Taylor and Co., 1949.' All old inscriptions have been reproduced, and the tenor has the following addition: 'This ring of eight bells was recast by John Taylor and Co., 1949. James Wildman, Vicar. Maxwell H. Summers, D.S.O., T.D., D.L., Anthony Packe, Churchwardens. George Gilbert, Ringing Master.'

EARL SHILTON RINGERS

For sociability and comradeship Earl Shilton ringers rank high among Leicestershire towers. A company of 88 attended their annual dinner on February 3rd, at which the Vicar (the Rev. A. Tewksbury) presided. Those present included Mr. C. Turner (vice-president of the Leicestershire Diocesan Guild and chairman of the Hinckley District), Mr. W. Wood (secretary of the Hinckley District) and Mr. A. Ballard.

Mr. G. Newton (head ringer) welcomed the gathering, and the Vicar, in reply, spoke of the enthusiasm of the ringers and their attentances at services, which were the best he had ever known. The way ringers helped out with any odd job that wanted doing in connection with the church was commendable, he said.

A social evening followed, in which the veterans took their full share. Tom Friar, who has 43 years' service, rang, and two old faithfuls, each with over 45 years' association with the company, delighted with a balloon-blowing competition. And then there was Sam Coe, the old Leicestershire county cricketer, who can look back upon 60 years' service as a ringer and chorister: he received a special cheer from the company.

The Vicar contributed a West Country yokel song, Mrs. F. Lawrence (wife of a ringer) also sang, and Mr. C. Clew gave a recitation. The churchwardens followed with traditional hospitality by paying for drinks for the ringers, and the evening concluded with a song by Mine Host, Mr. Len Bonsir. Earl Shilton ringers are convinced that this will be the first of many annual dinners.

THE TROUBLES OF DOUBLES

O thou who burnest midnight oil
Conceiving changes—spare thy toil.
Whilst ye that a true six-score
Be oft-times 5 times 24.
As runic art that runneth free
So every line must balanced be.
Thou too couldst woo a 12 times 10
Or flirt with 8 fiftens—but then Hast thou brought forth thy 'bobs' aright?
Or a lonely 'single' bred?
Else down alone shall thee enlight
So hunt thee—to thy bed. G. G.

A Devon Restoration

TEDBURN ST. MARY.

Another Devonshire bell restoration was celebrated on Shrove Tuesday, February 21st, at Tedburn St. Mary, a village on the Exeter-Okehampton road. The event was out of the ordinary, for the six bells had not been rung for more than 80 years, so no one really knew their qualities.

A scheme for restoration was started nearly five years ago by Prebendary E. V. Cox, president of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers, who was then Recor. Hearty support was soon forthcoming from parishioners and friends, irrespective of their religious views, and a contract was placed with Messrs. Mears and Sainbank, from whose foundry the treble and tenor were supplied early in the last century. Unfortunately delays arose through restrictions on materials.

The work has included the provision of a metal frame and new fittings throughout as well as the erection of a ringers' gallery with panelled front. A curiosity is the fact that the treble is slightly heavier than the second, third and fourth, but this in no way affects the general merit of the ring, which has a very good tenor of 10 cwt. in F. The whole cost, including the gallery (which was a separate contract with a Crediton firm), has amounted to over £900.

The service of rededication and blessing of the bells was attended by an overflowing congregation. The Bishop of the Diocese (Dr. Mortimer), who performed the ceremony, was accompanied to the tower by clergy and the churchwardens (Messrs. T. Pile and E. F. Phillips), and on leaving there he dedicated a tablet recording the fact that the tenor bell was 'rehung in loving memory of Henry Rusbridger, Rector of this parish 1917-1939, by his wife and family, 1950.'

The Bishop, in his sermon, said that the pealing of bells formed part of English country life. They were the common possession of the whole parish and expressed on different occasions the feelings of the whole community. Never was money better spent than on the bells.

There was much regret that Prebendary Cox could not be present either at the service or in the ringing chamber owing to renewal of leg trouble, for the occasion marked the fourth scheme of restoration or augmentation undertaken by him, the others being at Bampton, Littleham (Exmouth) and Brampford Speke.

Many hands of change and call-change ringers were represented, but owing to lack of time some could not get a pull. The captain of the local band (Mr. R. J. Wroth) invited the Cheriton Bishop ringers to ring the opening rounds during the service as a mark of appreciation of their kindness in allowing the Tedburn novices to hold practices at their tower over a long period.

Vice-President A. W. Searle, a Guild octogenarian, deputised for Prebendary Cox, and had the assistance of Messrs. B. Pidgeon, J. L. Glanville, G. Retter, W. G. Burrows and J. Arbury (representing different branches) in some excellent six-scores, which won complimentary remarks from call-change competition ringers, who also themselves showed good form. All were delighted with the 'go' and quality of the bells.

Refreshments were provided for all the ringers at the Rectory by the kindness of the Rector (the Rev. G. H. Hackett), the Parochial Church Council and many other friends, who also entertained a gathering at the Village Hall, where the Bishop met parishioners.

MEETING AT HOLSWORTHY.

The North-West Branch met at Holsworthy for their annual meeting on February 11th, and ringers from Chittlehampton, Croydon (Mr. Fred Collins) and Plymouth, with members of bands in union, attended. The Rector, the Rev. E. Royle, conducted the service, and the Rev. W. H. Ravenhill read the lesson.

After tea the company stood in silence to the memory of Mr. W. Shears, a member since the inception of the branch. The report and balance sheet for 1949 were accepted. The Rev. W. H. Ravenhill (chairman), Mr. J. W. Sangwin (treasurer and secretary), Mr. Fred Sangwin (Ringing Master), as well as the Rev. W. H. Smale, Mr. W. H. R. Smale and Mr. Fred Sangwin (representatives), were all re-elected.

The next annual meeting was fixed for Bridgerule, and the summer meeting is to be held at Bideford on July 29th. The Rector kindly gave permission for monthly practices to be held at Holsworthy on the second Saturdays. This will not occur on April 8th because of a peal attempt on Easter Monday. Will this be called the 'Pretty Maid's Peal'? Votes of thanks were given the Rector, the organist (the Rev. E. P. James) and the local captain.

EXETER BRANCH.

When the Exeter Branch met at Newton St. Cyres on February 11th, Mr. T. Bartlett presiding, the hon. secretary (Mr. E. J. Ryall) reported on the general progress of the branch. Instruction of learners was taking place at Thorverton. St. Thomas', Exeter, and Heavitree for the band that will be required for the new ring of eight to be installed at St. Mark's, Exeter.

The balance sheet showed £12 in hand, and Tedburn St. Mary was selected for the next meeting on April 29th.

Votes of thanks were given to the Vicar (the Rev. W. Ward), who took the service and gave the address, the organist and the Tea Committee, the meal being provided by relatives and friends of the local band. The collection at the service will be devoted to the Bell Fund to increase the present six at Newton St. Cyres to a ring of eight.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

SOUTH NORFOLK BRANCH.

Soliced Cambridge and Suerelative Surprise Major was the crowning achievement of the ringing at the annual meeting of the South Norfolk Branch at Diss on February 4th. A company of 60 attended and enjoyed the bells of the Parish Church, the programme being arranged to suit all tastes.

The service in the Parish Church was conducted by Canon J. A. Appleton (Rector), assisted by the Rev. A. St. J. Heard, Canon T. A. Nock (Rural Dean) and the Rev. E. Taylor, with Mr. W. C. F. Brundell, A.R.C.O., at the organ.

A large company afterwards assembled in the Magistrates' Room (Corn Hall) for tea, after which the meeting took place, with Mr. W. L. Duffield in the chair, supported by the Rev. A. St. J. Heard (president), Canon Appleton (vice-president) and Mrs. Appleton, Canon Nock (honorary member), the Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow (general secretary), the Rev. E. Taylor, Mr. Nolan Golden (Association Ringing Master), Mr. F. Whiting (Branch Ringing Master), Mr. A. G. Harrison (branch secretary), and Messrs. E. G. Bennett, C. E. G. Banham, F. C. Roper, W. Saunders and W. C. F. Phillippo (members of the committee).

The branch officers were re-elected, with the addition of Mr. Archie Lock to the committee and Mr. Wilfred Saunders to the Standing Committee. Mr. A. G. Harrison gave a brief review of the successful work of the branch during 1949 and also read a telegram from Mr. F. S. Wilson, of Lillinut, Dorset, formerly of Diss, sending his greetings.

MAINLY FOR BEGINNERS (6)

'RE-CAP. AND PRE-VIEW.'

Arrived at the ringing chamber for our third lesson, we find Tom Truettouch, our instructor, with the Pole and Pig-tail he demonstrated last time, set up ready for practice.

'As I told you last time,' says Tom, 'this device is not essential, but it is most useful and makes for more thorough and rapid training in correct pull-motion. And while it is safe in action, it shows up your faults. Now, who'd like to show us what he remembers of my demonstration on it last week?'

Without hesitation, one of the pupils we've noticed once or twice making himself rather obvious yet without much success, Sim Slack-pull by name, steps forward, picks up the pig-tail, takes his stance with feet together rather like standing to attention, and grasps the cardboard 'sally.' Raising it a little way, he pulls it down, lets go of it, pauses slightly, then grips pig-tail with free hand, while the match-box falls off and even the pole rocks. Looking somewhat crestfallen, Sim remarks that something went wrong.

'Yes,' says Tom, 'everything was wrong. You got no further than pulling off at hand, yet you've made no less than five bad mistakes already. You're not giving attention to what we tell you. Now who can tell what was wrong?'

We give our views and Tom confirms these five errors:—

- (a) Stance. Too far away from the rope.
- (b) Stance. Feet together giving inadequate 'balance base,' causing loss of trunk control in the pull down.
- (c) Sally grasp much too low, giving a short jerky pull-off.
- (d) No 'give' at elbow and shoulder joints during pull, thus giving a 'forward throw' of the rope in its downward fall. (Pole rocks.)
- (e) No instantaneous transfer of right hand to rope's end as sally was released. (Paused before gripping pig-tail with free hand.)

At Tom's request, Mary Makebob, his assistant, steps forward and repeats Sim's performance, but this time in 'slow motion.' As she does so Tom explains in detail what is going wrong, and we actually see it all. Especially do we see, as Mary's arms descend, the mistake of not pulling the upper arms slightly sideways, and of not bending the elbows, thus pushing the pole forwards, until even the chair itself tilts! Tom explains that the same errors, in the pull down from back-stroke, result in the sally dancing in front, out of normal reach, with the inevitable missing of it, common to so many beginners' efforts.

'Now, that little demonstration by Sim,' says Tom, 'should be a lesson to all to pay attention to the little details right from the start. Neglect them and your bad faults will prevent you from ever becoming a ringer! We shall now get right ahead with our scheme of instruction by stages, each of which we shall demonstrate in turn, first. Before we begin, however, let's have a "re-cap." (as they say in "Twenty Questions") of what we've done so far, and see what the next few lessons will include.'

Standing against the wall, on the floor behind some chairs, is a blackboard. Tom lifts it out, turns it round and hangs it on a couple of nails in the wall. This is what Tom has written on it—

SCHEME OF RINGING INSTRUCTION.

Section I Bell Control:—

Lesson 1.

- (a) Viewing and understanding bell mechanism.
- (b) Learning names and parts and phrases in ringing.
- (c) Demonstration of difference between chiming and ringing at the bell itself, in bell-chamber.
- (d) Listening to bell-sounds. Tone-telling begun.
- (e) Watching, then trying, chiming, at the rope.

- (f) Watching only, the action of ringing, at the rope.

Lesson 2.

- (a) Introduction of synthetic trainer for ringing.

- (b) Rope-handling motion-sequence. Exercises on a 'dead rope:—

Ex. 1. The End-grip, with hand steady.

Ex. 2. The End-grip, with hand rotating.

Ex. 3. The Two-hand grips, sally and rope-end.

- (c) Demonstration, by instructor, on Pole and Pig-tail, of Lesson 1 (f), i.e., correct pull-motion in ringing.

Lesson 3.

- (a) Preliminary trial, by pupil, of P and P.
- (b) Practice on P and P without fault indicator:—

Ex. 4. Motion of sally-stroke to rope-end.

Ex. 5. Motion of rope-end to sally. (Catching).

Ex. 6. Combining Ex. 4 and 5. Motions complete.

- (c) Repeat Exs. 4, 5 and 6 with fault indicator, until proficient. (No progress otherwise!)

Lesson 4.

- (a) Instructor's demonstration of ringing action on a silenced bell. (As before, but now detailed.)
- (b) First practices on a 'live' rope (silenced):

Ex. 7. Pupil holds rope-end only, facing circle-centre; Instructor, back to centre, handles sally entirely. Start with bell set up at back. Pupil pulls off, Instructor catches sally and pulls off, pupil checks up at back and pulls off, and so on.

Ex. 8. Pupil works sally only, standing with Instructor as in Ex. 7, who now retains rope-end. Pupil holds Pig-tail, pulls off at sally. Transfers free hand to Pig-tail and raises both hands, in time with Instructor's hands on rope-end, and lowers ditto. But pupil catches sally, checks and pulls off again.

Ex. 9. Pupil takes rope-end again, as in Ex. 7, but this time bell is set at sally, and pupil does all but actual sally catching, which is done by Instructor, who sets at sally each time.

Ex. 10. 'It's all yours!' The whole sequence, for the first time, under pupil's control. Instructor still stands facing pupil to give confidence. Later, he should stand towards pupil's right side.

(End of Section I of the Scheme.)

'In the issue of "The Ringing World" numbered 2,022, Jan. 6th, 1950,' says Tom, 'our friend Cornelius began a series of articles for you, and gave what he called the main branches of our art under ten headings. The scheme of instruction we are undertaking follows those ten sections, and here, on the blackboard, is the whole of the first section, called "Bell Control." As you see it comprises the first four lessons of the course, and we have now reached this stage.'

'We have covered,' he continues, 'the whole of the ground up to this point, and now we shall work steadily through the exercises you see listed here. Notice that the numbers of these exercises follow consecutively right through. If a pupil begins to develop a fault, I shall put him back on to the exercise best suited to correct it, or even back on to the P and P! When we have worked through this section, I will set out the details on the blackboard of Section 2. Now let us get on with Exercise 4.'

And here, readers, we will leave them until they have completed Lessons 3 and 4, and Section I. of the course.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

REMAINING—STEADFAST

Dear Sir,—Since we find ringers as practising Steadfast, and, indeed, asking for compositions in it, perhaps I may be allowed to reply to Mr. Barnett's rather sweeping condemnation. He may yet live to see recorded peals of Steadfast from Minor to Maximus; whereas, as the C.C. Glossary tells us, the figures to which Shipway gave his name have been rarely practised. Why?

Most of us have no objection to a little leg-pulling, as such, but perversion of fact provokes instant reaction. Interested readers may look again at Mr. Barnett's second letter (page 92 of No. 2,027) and find some dots after the words, 'Treble dodging.' This is where Mr. Barnett has deliberately omitted something which Shipway himself said, namely, that his method employs 'four blows or two whole pulls in 5ths place, to have it on an odd number.' In short, Shipway, one and a half centuries after Stedman, reproduces something which is based on the true Stedman principle, and which he conceives as applicable on all numbers. gives it his own name, and uses these 'four blows' in one place in order to 'make it fit.' This is on a par with the way in which previous attempts, to make Stedman fit on even numbers (with three blows in 4ths place), have been made. Shipway's four-blow idea is, of course, a distortion of the Stedman principle, a fact which Shipway himself apparently later realised. (See his 'Campanologia,' part 3, page 279, where he says this 'is not generally approved,' and he gives no compositions for it.)

But, to quote Mr. Barnett's figure, '120 years' after Shipway the process known as Grid Analysis has shown beyond question that the principle attributable solely to Stedman applies equally to even as to odd numbers. The application to even numbers is not quite the same as Shipway's. The slight difference, however, is fundamental. See 'Campanologia,' Part I., page 106, and Part II., page 287, and note how Shipway first planned the application. Then turn to Part III., page 280, and observe how he has changed the mode of application. Indeed, he there gets the treble moving straight up from rounds, as in Stedman, but, and this is the crux of the whole matter, Shipway has his front work arranged with this direct or forward hunting in a slow set and his retrograde or backward hunting in a quick set. This is precisely the opposite of the hunting throughout the Stedman principle.

In our recent discovery that the correct hunting nature of Stedman can be retained with Stedman on even numbers, we have something new and different from both Shipway's and Hales' versions, even if it be merely the strict adherence to the rudiments of the Stedman Principle! But since the name 'Stedman,' by ancient usage, implies an odd-number method, a distinguishing name had to be found for the application of the principle on even numbers. The due precaution was taken of giving it an impersonal name, and one with an associated sounding.

If it be true that none are so blind as those who won't see, then Mr. Barnett can blame no one but himself for his defective vision in this matter. Shipway himself admits that the figures, as he gives them, are merely 'nearly allied to Stedman's Principle.' Steadfast, on the other hand, is Stedman's Principle, on even numbers.—Yours very truly,

A. YORK-BRAMBLE.

P.S.—We hope shortly to be able to offer compositions in Steadfast, as requested. The compositions for Shipway's Principle are unsuitable, though the plan is adaptable.—A.Y.B

HENRY BURSTOW

Dear Sir,—Apropos mention of Itchingfield Slow Course and the name of Mr. Henry Burstow, your readers may like to hear more of Henry Burstow.

This Sussex worthy, who died about 1916, I think, in his eighties, was a bootmaker, and towards the end of his life someone collected his reminiscences and had them published as a book to help his finances. I read this book in the days of my youth and very regrettably have forgotten its title! The frontispiece was a full length portrait of our friend, and a fine figure he looked.

He used to walk to other places besides Bolney, one place being Newdigate, about 10-12 miles from Horsham. The Newdigate ringers thought so much of him that they offered to provide him with a cottage and find him a job if he would consent to live there. However, Henry would not do so. One practice night the Newdigate ringers were waiting for him outside the lych gate when he was seen striding up the road towards them and with a set face strode past without speaking. They thought they had upset him and wondered what they had done. However, it turned out that Mr. Burstow didn't speak to them because he was busy counting the number of steps he had taken right the way from Horsham to Newdigate!

When learning a new method or a touch or peal he used to work this out while walking, left foot being hand stroke and right foot back stroke. Very effective this. In addition to his great knowledge of folk songs mentioned by your correspondent, he had a vast fund of reminiscences of life of the Horsham of his youth about 1840 onwards. One such will do here. In those days there was an official known as the 'pooker out.' The 'pook' was a hook on the end of a long pole, and whenever a person came into the Borough of Horsham such as a vagrant who would be likely to become a charge to the city fathers, it was the 'pooker out's' duty to remove the undesirable person over the boundary with his pook!—Yours faithfully,

BERNARD H. WELLS.

LORD MAYOR DESIGNATE

Dear Sir,—White congratulating Mr. Alf Paddon Smith on his election as Lord Mayor of Birmingham (in which I am quite certain all ringers will join), might I recall one amusing incident which occurred during the ringing of a peal of Stedman Cinques at St. Martin's, Birmingham (in 1924), in which I had the happiness of taking part.

The ringing was perfect—not a sound from any of the ringers save the conductor's call here and there—when, all at once, after well over two hours had passed and quite spontaneously and dramatically A.P.S. exclaimed out loud, 'What are we doing it for?' It so startled everyone that we very nearly lost the peal. However, A.W. soon called us to order and a good peal resulted. Every good wish from

CRANFORD'S ANCIENT BELL

In the paragraph on page 120 it is stated that a bell in Cranford tower is the oldest in Middlesex and is dated 1380, but while the claim regarding the most ancient bell in the county is not disputed, I would point out that the bell is undated. The inscription is XTE PIE FLOS MARIE (Christ most holy Flower of Mary), and the founder was probably William Burford, of Aldgate. It was cast in the reign of Edward III., before 1380.

Membership Qualification

Dear Sir,—The Association to which Mr. Drew belongs, and of which I have the honour to be general secretary, admits any churchmen or churchwomen to its ranks, provided they are willing to learn change ringing, and they are known as probationers. When they have mastered the elements of change ringing, they can be admitted as full members. The test, as mentioned by Mr. Drew in the issue of 'The Ringing World' of Feb. 17th, is not a standard as he mistakenly supposes, but merely an earnest that the candidate for full membership has the determination to continue in the art of change ringing. It would be worse than futile to set a standard of attainment. If good striking were a condition of membership, I am afraid that the ranks of all guilds would suffer depletion. I have written before, and I write again, that the strength of a ringing association lies in the number of those who ring for Sunday services, whether they be probationers or experts.

Twelve months ago I was present at a branch meeting, when four or five 8-10-year-olds, together with one older boy of 14, were admitted as probationer members. Recently these boys were admitted into full membership, and marched proudly, one by one, to receive from the chairman their certificates of membership. Henry Sanger, who taught them, with some assistance from me, should be proud, too. But the point that I wish to make is this. With one exception, these boys have rung twice every Sunday since their bells were installed. They rang them with another youth of 16 for the first service of Christmas Day. Would Mr. Drew deny membership to such?

I took two years to teach a whole call change band to ring Grandsire Triples well. They were probationer members for two years and paid their subscriptions to the Guild, while the Guild taught them. A very good quid pro quo, one would think. I could give many instances where the value of the probationary period has been proved. To suggest, as Mr. Drew does, that ringers are admitted into this Association as full members before they have attained a purely arbitrary standard just in order to swell the ranks is mischievous, if not downright silly.—Truly yours,

J. T. DYKE.

ITCHINGFIELD SLOW COURSE

Dear Sir,—This method was published in 'The Ringing World' on June 16th, 1939, having been rung in what was then the Doubles record for the Oxford Diocesan Guild at Little Missenden on June 2nd, 1939, as Cheersley Slow Course, in honour of the Master of the Diocesan Guild, who was then Vicar of Cheersley.

In my note to the paper I was cautious enough to suggest that this and other methods rung at Missenden had probably been published before and asked for the help of the historians in the matter. The silence of the latter and the other readers seemed to imply that Cheersley, St. Nicholas' and Winchendon Place had not before been rung to a peal.—Yours faithfully,

A SHROPSHIRE FIRST YEAR

Dear Sir,—Regarding the letter by 'A Shropshire Exile' of the keenness of ringing in Shropshire, I have been change ringing for a little more than twelve months and can master on six bells Grandsire, Bob Minor, Little Bob, Kent and Oxford, and am now practising Double Court and Double Oxford. I think that is quite progressive. I am sure if Mr. Rowe looked around he would find six ringers keen enough to practise Cambridge if, of course, he himself could give a little advice and help.

Dear Sir,—Having read Mr. E. J. Rowe's letter in your issue of February 17th, in which he expresses a doubt as to whether there are six keen ringers in Shropshire, I feel bound to assure him that there are.

Although my home is in Shropshire, I am away from home most of the time, and so cannot count myself as a true Shropshire ringer. But when I have been at home, I have always found Shropshire ringers willing and eager to arrange peal attempts and extra practices. Admittedly the standard of ringing in Shropshire is not very high and very little surprise is rung, but I could tell Mr. Rowe of a number of keen but struggling bands not far from Broseley who would doubtless welcome him as they welcomed me.

During the last few weeks I have been arranging a tour for the Oxford University Society in Shropshire, and this has brought me into contact with a large number of Shropshire ringers, whom I have found to be, without exception, most friendly and eager to help.—Yours sincerely, CATHARINE M. TRIST.

LAVENHAM BELLS

Dear Sir,—In attempting to answer Mr. T. R. Butler's letter and the large number of other letters sent direct to me, I must point out that I never intended to give the impression that the Abbey bells are so much inferior to Lavenham's. I merely said that Lavenham possesses a soft mellow tone which is lacking in the Abbey. To sum up, in my opinion, the Abbey's bells are very good, but Lavenham's are excellent.

Recently I met a ringer who did not care for this type of bell, and when he mentioned various rings of his choice I noticed that he preferred more of the very hard type, which, to my mind, produce far more noise than music, but it's a good thing for the world that we are not all alike.

To conclude that the bells were those of the Abbey because of the standard of ringing was a great mistake. There are quite a number of companies that I've heard that are up to that standard. A few miles from here a local company used to practise Yorkshire, etc., but on Sundays it was invariably Plain Bob or Grandsire, being approximately 1,000 of the best changes possible with an absolute perfect rhythm from 'Go' to 'Stand'.

A peal attempt is a great occasion; one was rung a few years ago and was timed, the three part ends coming up in exactly the same time.

Whilst congratulating the Royal ringers on their efficiency, it is only fair to mention that I have found ringers in some remotest places who walk or cycle Sunday by Sunday over bleak country lanes and arrive on time to steer their bells through a service touch with uncanny accuracy.

Concerning my being upset over the matter, well, nothing could be farther from the truth. My only object in writing was to explain where this recording was made in answer to previous letters in 'The Ringing World' asking this question. As I was responsible for the arrangements for the recording, i.e., tower position of mike, etc., I assumed it was my duty to clear this matter up.

This record was used in some American type programme last year, and if anyone can persuade the R.B.C. to part with a copy of it, also three leads of Kent, I would be most grateful and am sure the band who rang in it would like one to put in their library.

With many thanks for letters of congratulation and otherwise, Yours sincerely,

LESLIE MILLS.

Ringer's Wedding

PAGE—HICKSON

The wedding took place at St. Ethelreda's Church, Hatfield, on February 18th, between Mary Louisa, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hickson, of Hatfield, Herts, and James Martin, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Page, of Willingham, near Gainsborough, Lincs. The service, which was fully choral, was conducted by Canon Lovell.

On leaving the church, the bride and bridegroom were greeted by the sound of the bells rung by the local band. The reception was held at the Red Lion Hotel, and afterwards the happy couple left for their honeymoon in Sussex amid the hearty congratulations of the many relatives and friends present. The best man was Mr. Eric Edmondson, a fellow ringer of the bridegroom's at Hertford.

In honour of the happy occasion two peals were attempted. A very well-struck peal of Stedman Caters was successfully rung by the Society of Roving Ringers on the Hatfield bells. The second attempt, Double Norwich by the Hertford County Association at All Saints', Hertford, was unfortunately lost after about an hour's good ringing.

In addition to the above named societies, the bridegroom is a member of the Royal Cumberland Youths and many other associations and guilds.

BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION

A 65th BIRTHDAY PARTY.

On February 11th, Mr. W. J. Jeffs, who is one of the most popular ringers in the district, invited the ringers of St. Barnabas', Linslade, and All Saints', Leighton Buzzard, to his 65th birthday party.

During the afternoon the local ringers, strengthened by Mr. Arthur Sharman, of Dunstable, and Mr. Douglas Harris, of Woburn, rang touches of Grandsire and Stedman Caters and Cambridge Surprise Major. It was disappointing that Mr. J. E. Arnold, although present, was unable to conduct owing to a poisoned finger.

The ringers then adjourned to Linslade for the tea party, where they were joined by Mrs. Jeffs, the Vicar of Linslade, and relations. A first-class meat tea was enjoyed by all, and to complete the spread an iced cake, decorated with 65 candles, was illuminated and blown out in fine style. Mr. and Mrs. Jeffs were suitably thanked for providing such a splendid meal, and Mr. Jeffs was appropriately congratulated on reaching his 65th birthday.

After a few courses on handbells the ringers visited St. Barnabas' tower, where touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Double Norwich and Cambridge Surprise Major were rung. The handbell ringers then adjourned to Rosebery Avenue and entertained the household by ringing various methods in good style.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD

ELLOE DEANERIES BRANCH.

The newly-appointed Vicar of Spalding, the Rev. Michael H. R. Syngé, conducted the service at the annual meeting at Spalding on February 11th. Approximately 70 ringers and friends enjoyed a good ring, a pleasant service and an interesting meeting.

The Rev. Syngé presided over the business meeting, at which the secretary presented the balance sheet, showing a credit balance of £38 in the General Fund and £30 in the Belfry Repairs Fund.

The Rev. Syngé was elected president and all the other officers were re-elected.

The following rule was passed: 'When a peal is completed successfully a payment of one shilling per rope shall be made to the tower captain or incumbent for the use of the bells.'

The quarterly meetings were arranged as follows: April 22nd, Gosberton; June 10th, Long Sutton; August 12th, Moulton; November 11th, Pinchbeck.

Presentation to Dover Ringers

To mark the completion of 50 years' service at St. Mary's, Dover, by Mr. Charles Turner (captain and steeplekeeper since 1911) and Mr. Herbert J. Saunders, presentations were made to them by the Vicar (the Rev. A. Stanley Cooper) on behalf of the ringers. The gifts consisted of a Duofold Victory Pen, made by the Parker Pen Co., decorative stationery and a booklet containing the names of the ringers in the tower.

During that period there have been five vicars, and it is interesting to mention the many times the bells have been rung for Royal occasions from the muffled bells for the passing of Queen Victoria in 1901 to the joyful bells for the first birthday of Prince Charles in 1949. Both ringers have taken part in ringing for six installation ceremonies of the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports.

A quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung to commemorate the occasion by Mrs. H. George 1, F. A. Rye 2, C. George 3, C. Turner (cond.) 4, E. J. Walker 5, E. T. Ellender 6, H. J. Saunders 7, F. H. Dennis 8.

HINTON SURPRISE MAJOR

The Hin'on-on-the-Green, Worcs, band would be interested to learn how far it creates a record for a village Sunday service band to ring a peal of Surprise Major in the tower from which the method takes its name, population considered.

With the exception of the conductor of the present peal, who lives 100 yards outside the parish boundary, all the band are resident in the village, which has a population of 220. All the band are regular attendants at divine worship and communicants.

Included in the band are the two churchwardens, four members of the Parochial Church Council, two members of the choir, the parish clerk and sexton, and the secretary of the local branch of the Mothers' Union. All except two learnt to ring in the tower, and the two exceptions—the only two ready-made ringers to be 'imported'—married Hinton girls, themselves ringers.

Another interesting feature is that the band have no official ringing master, towerkeeper or conductor—all take and accept an equal responsibility in any arrangements. Five of the band have called peals.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL ASSN.

CHELTEMHAM BRANCH.

The Cheltenham Branch meeting at Winchcombe was very well attended by an unusually large but very welcome number of learners from several towers; there were 32 present representing 15 towers. Toddington and Winchcombe towers are now affiliated, and seven new members were elected. The Vicar briefly outlined the history for over 1,000 years of the present fine 15th century building and of the Norman church which was replaced by it; he also presided at the meeting. Ringing ranged from rounds to Cambridge.

STOCKTON PARISH CHURCH

Dear Sir,—The following appeared in the February edition of Stockton-on-Tees Parish Magazine ('Monthly Review'):

'The proceeds of the carol ceremony were towards the repairing of the church bells, which require cleaning, oiling and rehang-ing, due to war-time disuse!'

I am told that the bells are a good ring of ten, tenor approximately 23 cwt. Since coming to Stockton a few months ago I have been trying to persuade the powers that be to get the necessary work put in hand, but so far without success.

I am finding it extremely difficult to make the people concerned realise that bellhanging is a very specialised job. I have been told on one occasion that the work was to be carried out by a local iron founder!—Yours faithfully, 'TAYLORITE.'

OBITUARY

MR. ARTHUR BOWLER.

The death occurred on February 14th at his home in Chappells Terrace, Lichfield, after a short illness, of Arthur Bowler, aged 75 years. He was a member of the Lichfield Cathedral band for over 50 years, and in 1948 he was made an hon. life member of the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford, having joined in 1891. He had rung about 30 peals.

The funeral took place at St. Michael's, Lichfield, on February 17th; his remains were borne by six old ringing friends, W. Cope, S. Gregory, G. Oliver, F. Sedgwick, A. Smith and L. Smith. A plain course of Grandsire Triples was rung over the grave by W. Cope 1-2, Joan Beresford 3-4, G. Oliver 5-6, F. Sedgwick 7-8. Among the floral tributes was one from local ringers and the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford.

A quarter peal of Doubles with bells half-muffled was rung at St. Michael's on the same evening, and a half-muffled quarter peal of Grandsire Caters was rung at the Cathedral on February 20th.

MR. A. W. HANDOLL.

A loyal member of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association for some 45 years, Mr. Arthur William Handoll, died at Cheltenham on February 2nd, aged 74. He had been ill for the past three years.

He was a native of Wickwar, where he learnt to ring, but had been a member of the Cheltenham Parish Church band for 25 years and also a member of the choir. A cooper by trade, his other hobby was bowls, but his main interest was in ringing and the church.

The funeral service, followed by cremation, took place on February 7th.

MR. GEORGE ILLMAN.

We regret to record the death on February 11th of Mr. George Illman, of Horley, Surrey, aged 89 years.

He was at one time a ringer at Worth in Sussex, but came to Horley to live and joined the church ringers in January, 1907. Until his health prevented him, he was a very active and esteemed member of the band.

Mr. Illman had a good number of peals to his credit and was always ready to help young ringers, visiting a number of towers for this purpose.

The funeral took place at Worth on February 15th, and after the service the bells were rung half-muffled. Those taking part included J. Laker, A. Laker, E. Knapp, O. Sippetts, Miss F. Wyman, W. Taylor, W. Hunt, C. Stoner and A. J. Bull.

PROPAGANDA

CONSTANT attention should be given by all ringers to the question of propaganda. The 'sealed book' of bellringing must be made intelligible to the non-ringer. Various opportunities occur with the local Press, who are invariably willing to co-operate with items of news and often descriptive articles. Probably the most common question the public ask when the bells are being rung is, Why? And it behoves local ringers to give the answer when the ringing is not on the ordinary practice night or on a Sunday for a church service. We would like to see a purpose behind every peal, and it is not difficult to associate a ringing occasion with some important anniversary, either national or local. The reason should be made public, either through the medium of the local Press or the Parish Magazine.

In the 'Oxford Diocesan Magazine' Mr. Alan R. Pink contributes monthly a 'Campanology Corner.' The February issue contains a report of the Banbury Branch quarterly meeting at Bloxham, not in the semi-technical style of reports appearing in 'The Ringing World,' but in a way that will appeal to the ordinary reader. After referring to the fact that fully 60 ringers were present from a wide area, Mr. Pink proceeds:—

'Bloxham's magnificent church is, of course, well known. Its fabric is of the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular periods, but its crowning glory is the glorious 14th century tower and spire, one of the three which stride across the Cherwell valley in a straight line, the other two being Adderbury and King's Sutton, in Northamptonshire. Many of our readers will have heard this quotation: "Bloxham for length, Adderbury for strength and King's Sutton for beauty." It refers, of course, to the three spires. Bloxham tower has an added attraction for ringers in that the ring of eight bells is the heaviest in the diocese. The tenor bell, cast by Richard Keene, of Woodstock, weighs 28½ cwt. and is thought to be the heaviest bell actually cast in the diocese. Unfortunately this grand ring of bells can only be rung together for ten minutes at a time owing to the violent oscillation set up in the tower and spire. This is largely due to the badly constructed bell cage, and it is hoped that before long the bells will be rehung in a new frame. It is a melancholy fact that the heaviest rings of six bells (Wing, in Bucks) and eight bells (Bloxham) in the diocese are unringable for any length of time.'

Then follows a description of the meeting, the service, the corporate tea and, finally, the business meeting. The strength of Mr. Pink's propaganda comes in the concluding paragraph:—

'If this word picture of a typical ringers' meeting has fired the imagination of someone who has thought they would like to ring but did not know how to make the approach, we would advise them to get into touch immediately with their incumbent. No tower is so full of ringers that it won't accept any more, and in many cases the bells are often silent for lack of ringers. There is a wonderful spirit of comradeship existing between ringers. To incumbents we would say, Invite your parishioners to attend these ringing meetings and encourage them to visit their belfries. We believe that every Christian desires to do some special piece of work for God. There is unlimited scope in bellringing for men and women to indulge in their latent desire.'

Another valuable form of propaganda is by letters to the local Press. There should be a constant watch against adverse criticism. Last year Mr. George Gilbert, in the Slough newspapers, carried on a voluminous correspondence in defence of bells, and it was only pressure on our space that prevented appropriate extracts being given in 'The Ringing World.' Perhaps what delights the ringer more than anything else are the unsolicited testimonials. The following is one that appeared in the 'Yorkshire Evening Post' of February 20th:—

Passing through Leeds bus station the other Sunday evening on my way home from Castleford, I was suddenly lifted above the gloom and bitter cold by the joyous sound of church bells. It is a long time since I heard anything so beautiful. For some minutes I stood and listened, for the sheer joy of listening.

Harrogate, with all its beauty and charm, has few church bells, and those Leeds bells were a tonic and inspiration. Thank you for the great pleasure they gave me!

Articles in the National Press are also of great value. About a fortnight ago the 'News Chronicle' had a feature story relating to Messrs. J. Taylor and Company's foundry at Loughborough, with illustrations of the casting of bells. The process is familiar with most of the members of the fraternity, and the visits arranged for different towers have never failed to be of absorbing interest. Our other two foundries—Messrs. Mears and Stainbank and Messrs. Gillett and Johnston—are equally co-operative in this respect. The danger of the 'synthetic bell' is still very great, despite the firm stand that various diocesan advisory committees are taking, and it is essential that the public should know the difference between the real thing and the sham.

News editors of other publications have also been paying increasing attention to ringing generally. Enquiries for information reach this office in increasing numbers, and the Editor endeavours to be as helpful as possible. His greatest poser came the other day from America: a request for biographies and photographs of all the ringers who had 1,000 peals or more to their credit. He had to draw the line, and felt like asking, Who is writing this article?

*'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who
death in 1942.*

Two stalwart Rochester ringers, Charlie Norris and Bill Knight, wished to mark several years' membership of the Ancient Society of College Youths by ringing their first peal for the Society. At their invitation a peal of Stedman Caters was rung at Rochester Cathedral on February 25th, believed to be the first peal there by the Ancient Society. The peal proved to be a suitable 55th birthday compliment to Mr. Knight and a birthday compliment to Mrs. P. A. Corby.

Eight Lincolnshire farmers have rung a peal. Mr. George E. Feirn asks what other trades have been able to raise a band of peal ringers.

Congratulations to Miss Doris G. Dobbie on ringing her 100th peal. Two other members of the family participated, brother Walter 'calling the bobs.'

Next week we hope to publish the first of a series of articles on change ringing machines by Mr. Brian D. Price. It should prove a valuable contribution to ringing literature.

The 62nd Henry Johnson Commemoration Dinner last Saturday was a great success, the speeches being of a high order. Birmingham, apart from acting as hosts, can produce after-dinner speakers of a high order. St. Martin's is certainly a guild of all talents.

A misprint over the peal of Cambridge Surprise Major last December at St. Chad's (R.C.) Cathedral caused the Editor much heart-burning at Birmingham. Mr. George E. Feirn received congratulations on having assumed the role of a seer.

Ald. A. Paddon Smith will not be the first Birmingham ringer to be Lord Mayor. The office has been held by Ald. Theodore Pritchett, and it was his privilege to propose Ald. Paddon Smith as Lord Mayor. Ald. Pritchett still rings and attends practices at St. Martin's.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Oldest Norfolk ringer with continuous service is Mr. Robert Freezer, of Gressenhall, who celebrated his 86th birthday on February 21st. He first entered the tower in 1879 and learnt change ringing on handbells, while the bells in the tower were being rehung. In 1880 the latter were handed back by Day's, of Eye, and he has been a member of the local company ever since.

The peal of Cambridge Surprise Major at Caythorpe, Lincs, on Feb. 18th, was arranged for the 47th anniversary of the first peal of Mr. John Cragg and Mr. F. W. Stokes.

Among the peals rung during the Birmingham festival was a fathers' and daughters' peal at Selly Oak. Concerned were the Davis, Whitehead, Beamish and Cartwright families. The method was Grandsire Triples.

Grayshott (Hants) ringers held a very successful social evening on February 25th, visitors attending from Haslemere and Godalming. Organisation was in the hands of Mr. Ronald Beech and catering was supervised by Miss Betty Gill, the only resident lady ringer.

Mr. A. Pat Cannon spent his half-term holiday in Northamptonshire and came away with three peals in the bag. At Maidwell the band was entertained by Mr. Dixon, captain of the ringers and churchwarden, a thoughtful act in a village without refreshment facilities.

An unusual experience took place during a peal attempt at Emmanuel Church, Plymouth, where new ropes were provided last July. After half an hour's ringing the tenor rope 'opened up' underneath the sally, three strands becoming untwisted. The bells were brought round at half-way when it was found that the rope underneath the sally was completely 'open' for more than 2ft. The general opinion was that the rope left the makers with an invisible flaw.

HENRY JOHNSON COMMEMORATION DINNER

LORD MAYOR DESIGNATE OF BIRMINGHAM BRINGS HONOUR TO ST. MARTIN'S GUILD MR. HAROLD POOLE ON A RINGER'S DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES DR. JAMES SIMPSON URGES FURTHER ADVANCES IN RINGING

BIRMINGHAM was the Mecca of the Exercise last Saturday, when the 62nd Henry Johnson Commemoration Dinner was held. It was a happy occasion, with special felicitities being offered to Alderman A. Paddon Smith on being selected as the next Lord Mayor of Birmingham. Owing to restrictions on seating, the company was limited to 180; nevertheless, it was very representative of English ringing, ringers coming from long distances to participate in this happy reunion.

The Archdeacon of Birmingham (the Ven. S. Harvie Clark) was an admirable chairman, handling a long toast list with skill and dexterity. The secretarial arrangements were most efficiently carried out by Mr. George E. Fearn. Birmingham gave its visitors a royal welcome with a full programme of ringing.

Mr. Harold J. Poole, in proposing the toast of 'Church and State,' thanked the organisers for the privilege of proposing the toast at the most popular function in the ringing Exercise. As far as the Church was concerned he was a lay canon of Leicester Cathedral, and as to the State, a police inspector—a unique combination in respect of the toast. In order to remove any misapprehension, he would say that the police were not State controlled; they had not been nationalised and did not make any profit in their business (laughter).

Bellringers had certain responsibilities and duties in respect of the Church. It was clearly their duty to see that their bells were rung properly for Sunday services, and to the credit of the ringers that duty was undertaken regularly and conscientiously. It was also their duty to see that the bells were rung for special occasions, such as church festivals, and it was also a good thing that they should ring the bells for landmarks in the life of the incumbent. They had also responsibilities for the care of bells. Generally speaking, their clergy had no knowledge of bells, and it was their duty to see that these costly things were maintained. Bells, like all other sorts of machinery, would tend to rust out rather than to wear out, and the campanological doctor would tell them that they were best preserved by being rung regularly.

CLERGY'S RIGHT.

What were their rights and privileges as bellringers? Actually they had no rights, as the right to say who should ring the bells rested with the clergy. That fact must not be overlooked. So far as their privileges were concerned, they received permission to ring the bells for their own entertainment and amusement, and they should see that that privilege was not abused.

As to their rewards, no one would suggest that they received any financial benefit. It was true that there were some nominal payments on occasions, but ringers for the love of bells went far and wide and disregarded any financial consideration. Another reward they received was fellowship such as they shared that night. The fellowship of bellringing was the finest in the world; it extended to all corners of the country; they were constantly meeting old faces and making new acquaintances.

As far as the State was concerned it was their duty to ring for national occasions, could only pray that it would never come to pass in this country.

The Rev. Bryan S. W. Green, Rector of Birmingham, who replied, commented on the choice of the song between the proposing of the toast and his reply—'Two Beggars.' It was most appropriate for both the Church and State. He welcomed the idea of marking landmarks in the life of the incumbent. When his silver wedding took place in two years' time he would expect four hours' ringing because he understood it was the minimum time to do anything worth while.

The Church was extremely grateful to the ringers for the service they rendered, and it was important that ringers should ring proper bells for Church and State occasions. They were living in a mechanical age; some churches were putting in loud speakers and playing records of St. Margaret's, Westminster. It was wrong; bells should be rung properly.

To-day only one person in ten went to church and many of those for important occasions in life, 'hatching, matching and dispatching.' Unless the men of the country rallied round the Church it would be a poor look out for the country, and he implored them when they rang the bells not to forget that the service took place afterwards.

The toast of 'The Memory of the late Henry Johnson' was submitted by Mr. Frank E. Haynes, who said the name of Henry Johnson was one that came to his mind as one of the famous ringers of the 19th century for which Birmingham was noted, and which, perhaps, it had more than its fair share. For about 40 years from roughly 1845 to 1885 Henry Johnson was the leader of ringing in Birmingham—a man held in national esteem and honour. Not only was he a man of excellent moral character and sincerity, but in ringing he was a good striker and he imagined he could ring Stedman Cinques very well.

Mr. Haynes said he had only lived in Birmingham 20 years and there was a time when he expressed doubts as to the wisdom of continuing the association of the name of Henry Johnson with that dinner, but he must confess now that he was quite converted and they did right to honour his memory. The first dinner was a banquet given in his honour by Sir Arthur Percival Heywood. At that gathering Stedman Cinques was rung 'in hand' to a touch of five courses, with Henry Johnson ringing the tenors. To the majority of the company it was the first time they had heard Stedman Cinques rung 'in hand.'

'CHOP SUEY.'

That morning he had the honour of ringing a peal at Sutton Coldfield of Spliced Surprise—which had been referred to as 'Chop Suey.' One gentleman commented that he preferred a joint and two vegetables to this chop suey, implying that he preferred a peal of Stedman.

whether for rejoicing or mourning, and the enthusiastic bellringer would not be lacking in his duty in that respect. There was also a responsibility to the public to see that there was no unnecessary annoyance to them from bells. 'Don't forget that people must listen to bells whether they want to or not, and it is our duty to make suggestions to the Church authorities as to means of reducing that noise if necessary.'

The sound of the bells reached the hearts and souls of the people, many of whom never came to church. The bells to them was something to distinguish Sundays from weekdays and make them realise that it was a day set apart. The bells also reminded people that the Church was still there. They had seen from time to time what had happened when the State disregarded the Church, and they

the name of Henry Johnson with that dinner, but he must confess now that he was quite converted and they did right to honour his memory. The first dinner was a banquet given in his honour by Sir Arthur Percival Heywood. At that gathering Stedman Cinques was rung 'in hand' to a touch of five courses, with Henry Johnson ringing the tenors. To the majority of the company it was the first time they had heard Stedman Cinques rung 'in hand.'

Cinques. In ringing as other things customs and manners changed; things did not stand still. There were, nevertheless, many who preferred the old style ringing, while the younger enjoyed the new—the two had to be reconciled and that was what they tried to do in Birmingham.

The toast was drunk in silence. In the company were two who had rung with Henry Johnson—G. T. Mitchison and C. Williams. They stood up at the chairman's request and were honoured by the company.

Mr. Albert Walker (Master) proposed 'Continued prosperity to St. Martin's Guild.' In a welcome to the new Rector, Mr. Walker assured him that when his silver wedding came or there was any 'hatching or matching' in his family, the ringers would be there and they would ring a four-hour peal. 'We may have a practice at one or two before then,' he added to the merriment of the company.

Their Rector in the time he had been with them had taken a great interest in the restoration of St. Martin's Church, which was badly blitzed. A considerable sum of money had been spent on the church. They hoped that before long the tower would be put in good order, as before the war it was one of the finest in the country.

This year the Guild had lost four old members. Ernest Mansell, who died in July, was a ringer at St. Martin's Church for practically 40 years. Many of them would remember that he brought his handbell ringers to these dinners. Another severe loss was Harry Withers, who died on Christmas Day. He would never be replaced. No one could tap changes like him; he had tapped London and Scientific Triples. On January 5th, Tom Miller, one of their oldest members, passed away in St. Joseph's Home, Harborne. Unfortunately, they were not informed at the time of his death. He was a remarkable man—a ready wit and a superb ringer. Recently they lost Samuel Grove, a member of the Guild for 40 years, who rang at Harborne.

As a mark of sympathy the company stood in silence.

During the year, continued Mr. Walker, the Guild had prospered. The main purpose of the Guild was to see that there were sufficient ringers to ring the bells and to see that young ringers were coming forward. He was very glad to say that they had some good youngsters. As regards peals, it was not a record year—they did not equal the Leicester year—but they did congratulate them on their achievement. Their rivalry with Leicester was of the friendliest.

A number of restorations were either in hand or were needed. Mr. Walker mentioned in particular Yardley, where the six bells were to be recast and two more added to make eight. The ringers had helped by taking out the bells and frame from the tower. He thought their chairman had some scheme in hand for Handsworth.

Another pleasing duty was to record that a member of the Sunday service band at St. Martin's for many years had been elected as the Lord Mayor of Birmingham. It was a great honour to the Guild and he wished Ald. Paddon Smith a very successful and happy year of office (applause). They also extended their good wishes to his daughter-in-law. With them that evening was Ald. Theodore Pritchett, who was Lord Mayor in 1939-40. Ald. Pritchett came up for ringing practice regularly on Tuesdays.

At the annual meeting there was a change in the Ringing Master. Mr. Edgar Shepherd, who had been Master for the past 12 months, found that his duties would not permit him to continue in office. They had elected Mr. Critchley as the new Ringing Master.

Mr. George E. Fearn, the hon. secretary, thanked Mr. Walker for proposing the toast. Among the apologies for non-attendance were those from the Bishop of Birmingham, the Lord Mayor, Canon Guy Rogers (who wrote recalling his happy memories of 23 years in Birmingham), Mr. James Shepherd and Mr. Frank Yates (who was making progress), Messrs. Don Meers, Jack Millhouse, Roland Brand, Miss Marie Cross and others.

Mr. Edgar C. Shepherd proposed 'The Visitors' in felicitous terms. He mentioned a number of the guests by name. He congratulated Mr. Harold Poole on his 143 peals last year and also Mrs. Marshall on being the first woman to ring 100 peals in a year. Some of them could recall what the old Editor of 'The Bells News' said about Miss Alice White when as a girl of 13 she rang her first peal. Mr. D. Matkin, his old friend, had rung 123 peals last year. He was a Solihull man, and he would recollect 32 years ago when he witnessed his first handbell peal and consumed at the same time a very large pork pie. To their visitors he would say in the words of Dick Swiveller, 'May the wing of friendship never moult.'

PEAL RINGING.

Dr. James Simpson (Chester Diocesan Guild) replied and said his only excuse for being chosen was that his name appeared in the peal columns of 'The Ringing World.' He would like to say a few words on peal ringing and its value to the Exercise. It was a two-sided question. Some people thought that peal ringers were the salt of the earth and others the scum of the earth. Probably neither was correct. Whatever one's private view might be, all would agree that since the war there had been a great increase in peal ringing—an increase both in the number rung and the complexity of methods. He thought that many ringers were thinking that they had now reached the zenith of achievement and that there was no reason to aim any higher. Such thoughts, he felt, would be a disservice to the Exercise.

Three things had contributed to the advance of peal ringing. The first was that there were many more rings of bells; secondly, the bells were very much easier to get, and, thirdly, they had inherited a vastly greater fund of knowledge and experience than existed 50 or 100 years ago. To peal ringers he would say, 'Continue aiming high; try and make your peals non-exclusive and try and bring in extra recruits.'

Mr. George Cecil also replied, representing ringers from the South of England.

The toast of 'The Ringing World' was proposed by Mr. S. O'C. Holloway, and replied to by the Editor.

Ald. A. Paddon Smith was called upon by the chairman for a speech. He recalled the fact that he was secretary of the Guild for 20 years before Mr. Reeves held office for a similar period. In reminiscent vein he mentioned the masterly speeches at those distant dinners by the late Ald. Pritchett and that the present Ald. Pritchett was his nephew. In congratulating the Rev. Bryan S. W. Green, the new Rector, on his appointment, he reminded him of some of his distinguished predecessors. Their new Rector had made one mistake. He said that the Church and the State were both beggars. The Church might be a beggar, but he assured him the State was not—it was a thief (laughter).

It was an honour to be chosen as Lord Mayor and he hoped that the Guild would feel that it was also an honour to them.

Ald. Theodore Pritchett was also added to the toast list. He spoke of the very happy feelings and friendships among ringers, and said he found it was not an easy thing to go back to the belfry again and try to recall what he had forgotten. One of his masters was Mr. Edgar Shepherd, who was apt at quotation. He reminded him one day of the inscription on the bell he was ringing: 'I will sing a new song unto the Lord,' and, having heard the Alderman ring, Mr. Shepherd assured him that his bell was singing quite a new song which he had never heard before!

The toast of 'The Chairman' was proposed by Mr. Thomas H. Reeves, who said that older ringers would recall that 30 years ago it was their custom to have a distinguished ringer in the chair, and he mentioned such names as Sir Arthur Heywood, Mr. Charles Hattersley and Mr. F. E. Dawe. Later on they decided to have Birmingham people. There had been Canon Willick and Canon Guy Rogers, who for 23 years was their beloved Rector. That evening their choice was the Archdeacon of Birmingham, the Ven. S. Harvie Clark, who was also Vicar of Harborne and in charge of the Cathedral Church pending the appointment of a new Provost. They had all been very happy under his chairmanship and he trusted that he enjoyed his office.

The Chairman, in his acknowledgment, said he came to the dinner last year for the first time and was amazed at the gathering and its friendliness and that people had come there from all over the country. The fellowship through ringing was of real significance—not only for themselves, but for all churchpeople. The bells at Harborne were seriously in need of attention. If anyone would care to send a contribution for their restoration and also for the musical nerves of himself and his family he would be only too pleased to acknowledge the same.

The entertainment included a course of Stedman Cinques by E. C. Shepherd 1-2, F. W. Perrens 3-4, A. Walker 5-6, F. E. Haynes 7-8, F. E. Pervin 9-10, G. E. Fearn 11-12. Duets were sung by Mr. Albert F. Barley and Mr. David Gee, tunes on handbells by ringers of Edgbaston Parish Church with the assistance of Mr. Harold Poole, and a monologue by Miss Russell. Mr. E. J. Woodhall was the accompanist.

BARWELL SOCIETY

A year of progress was reported at the annual meeting of the Barwell (Leics.) Society, when the following officers were elected: Captain, C. R. Belton; vice-captain, G. P. Garner; secretary, T. C. Belton; treasurer, Miss B. Colver; towerkeepers, J. Armstrong and R. Coleman.

The secretary reported that for Sunday ringing and practices 1,450 attendances out of a possible of 1,670 had been made by the 12 members. First peals of Stedman and Double Norwich were rung by an entire Barwell band. In 1946 it was difficult to raise a Grandsire Triples band, and credit for the progress was particularly due to Mr. W. P. Whitehead. Two new members were elected.

Peal statistics were: First peal in a method 22; first in method as conductor 3; new conductors 2; first peals 3.

The Rector, who presided, said he was pleased to notice that all ringers were observing his suggestion of attending at least one service every Sunday.

BEVERLEY AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

Fifty members were present, with visitors from Barrow-in-Furness and Lincoln Cathedral, at the meeting of the Society at Hull on February 11th. In the afternoon ringing took place at St. Mary's, Lowgate, and in the evening at Holy Trinity.

The Rev. L. O. Kenyon conducted the service in Holy Trinity Church, taking as his text the ringing terms, 'Tone, Tune and Time.'

Mr. G. F. Williams presided at the business meeting, when votes of thanks were passed to the Vicars of Holy Trinity and St. Mary's, Mr. A. H. Fox (organist) and the local ringers. Learners showed much improvement and there were good touches of Caters in the evening.

Mr. H. Cook, of St. Mary's, Chipping Norton, has celebrated his 79th birthday. He has a record of 60 years' service at St. Mary's, attending regularly twice on Sundays.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATIONSOUTH AND WEST DISTRICT.

The annual meeting of the South and West District was held on February 18th at St. Andrew's, Hillingdon, an excellent attendance being recorded, with representatives from almost every tower in the district.

Ringling under the supervision of the Master and Deputy Master ranged from rounds to London, and the striking of the higher methods reached an unusually high standard for meetings.

The service, which was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. R. Home), who is also a ringer, was well attended. Tea, arranged by Mr. F. Corke, Master at St. Andrew's, was taken at the Regal, an excellent meal being provided.

The business meeting, held in St. Andrew's Hall, with the vice-president, Mr. W. H. Coles, in the chair, proved that the family spirit which has always been a feature in the district is as strong as ever, and the interest displayed in the business and the number of nominations for office speak well for the future.

The district secretary, in presenting his report, spoke of a very successful year in every aspect; the attendances at meetings averaged 44, compared with 40 for the previous year. Peals recorded were a record for the district. Quarter peals for service, although not so numerous as last year, ranged from Bob Minor to Spliced Surprise Major, with many new names sharing the conducting. One quarter worthy of note was that of Plain Bob Major, conducted by Mr. A. Harding, of St. Mary's, Ealing, who, with 50 years of loyal service at this tower, called his first quarter. Membership was on the increase, and the statement of accounts showed a record balance.

The officers elected were: District secretary, Mr. F. A. Finch; assistant secretary, Mr. T. G. Bannister; Ringing Master, Mr. T. Price; Deputy Master, Mr. G. M. Kilby; Central Committee, Messrs. J. E. Lewis Cockey, H. W. Impey and W. W. Webb; auditor, Mr. E. C. S. Turner. The chairman congratulated the meeting on their choice of officers, with a special word for Mr. G. M. Kilby, that prince of ringers, on taking up office once again.

New members elected were Mr. B. M. Turk (Ruislip), Mr. P. M. Branch (South Harrow), Miss O. M. Green (Sunbury), Mr. F. T. Blagrove (Stanwell), Mr. A. R. Turley (St. Mary's, Ealing), and Mr. E. Preston (Slough) as a non-resident life member.

The Chairman accorded a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar, Mr. F. Corke and all those who helped to make the meeting such a success.

NORTH AND EAST DISTRICT.

The North and East District annual meeting took place at All Hallows', Tottenham, on February 18th, and was attended by a representative gathering. Ringling, which also took place at St. Ann's, Stamford Hill, was under the guidance of Messrs. C. W. Roberts and A. Cutler, Ringing Masters.

At the business meeting, over which Mr. A. W. Coles, vice-president, presided, the hon. secretary's annual report and statement of accounts were adopted. The former indicated that the average attendance at district meetings was 42; that two successful joint meetings had been held; that one honorary life, six non-resident life and 20 ringing members had been elected; and that St. Mary's, Hornsey, was now affiliated. The accounts showed a balance in hand of £29 18s. 3d., slightly less than last year, although comparison supplied the reason.

Elections of new members included G. W. Slack (Waltham Abbey), D. Harman (Holloway), G. A. Hill and D. H. Kingston (Hornsey), R. Stoddard and the Misses M. Russell and A. Triscott (Kingsbury) and Miss M. Richards (Monken Hadley). The district officers and committee representatives were all re-elected. It was voted that the next district annual meeting be held at St. Giles-in-the-Fields.

Thanks were accorded to the Revs. A. F. W. Clarke and F. Finch for permission to ring the bells and to Messrs. A. E. Hoare and H. Howson, local tower leaders.

CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILDRECORD GATHERING AT WEST KIRBY.

The spring-like weather enticed a record gathering of 84 ringers and friends to the annual meeting of the Wirral Branch, held at St. Bridget's, West Kirby, on February 18th. Twelve Wirral towers were represented and there was a welcome contingent of visitors. The Guild form of service was conducted by the Rector (Canon S. J. Marston), assisted by the Rev. J. F. Southworth. Later the company was entertained to an excellent tea.

At the ensuing business meeting a favourable balance sheet was adopted. The hon. secretary's report showed a membership increase of 22, bringing the total to 159. Monthly meetings had been held as customary and there was an average attendance of 61—three meetings having topped the 70 mark.

During 1949 branch ringers rang 23 peals, including the first peal of Spliced Surprise Major for the Guild by a band composed of resident members of one branch. Eleven ringers scored their first peal, whilst three others had joined the 'bob calling' brigade.

Social activities were well supported—83 attended the first annual branch dinner, entertainment and dance; two coaches were required for the summer outing; over 230 ringers and friends attended the third annual social, the year's outstanding function.

Attention was drawn to the far from satisfactory state of service ringing in certain towers, and members were urged to devote thought to the solution of certain problems necessary to the improvement of same. The officers were re-elected, although there were changes in representatives on the Guild Committee.

Bromborough was selected as the venue for the 1951 annual.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CONGRATULATIONS TO MR. E. MORRIS

Dear Sir,—Congratulations to Ernest Morris on achieving another milestone in his honorable ringing career. Although I deplore the ambition of ringers whose foremost object is to amass a great number of peals, the willingness and help which Ernest has always offered in assisting raw learners in five and six-bell towers, in addition to higher numbers, makes one feel that here is one man who has contributed his peal ringing to the promotion of campanology right from the bottom rung.

I know of one typical case when one of Leicester's youths searched diligently among his 'betters' for a conductor in his first peal, which was on six bells. In despair he turned to Mr. Morris, who obliged, simply because, as his analysis shows, the method was of secondary consideration to the purpose of the peal.

I also was privileged to be invited to ring in Ernest's 1,001st tower-bell peal, conducted by one of Barwell's young conductors, and I look forward to many more pleasant hours in this great ringer's company.—Yours faithfully,

TOM C. BELTON.

Barwell, Leics.

FIRST OF STEDMAN AT STONE

Dear Sir,—In the February 17th issue of 'The Ringing World' a peal of Stedman Triples, rung at Stone St. Michael's on Saturday, January 24th, 1950, is stated to be the first peal of Stedman Triples on the bells.

This, sir, is not correct. I took part in the first Stedman on the bells on Saturday, Oct. 16th, 1936. The band who scored the peal in October, 1936, was C. Templeton 1, H. Hodson 2, H. Thacker 3, A. Thompson 4, C. Page 5, A. Rowley 6, A. Crawley 7, W. Buckley 8.—Yours sincerely,

H. HODSON, Ringing Master,
Stone St. Michael's.

CHRISTENING OF BELLS

Dear Sir,—We hope to reopen St. George's, Colegate, Norwich, bells on Saturday, May 20th, next. On Saturday, May 6th, we hope to revive the old custom of christening them inside the church at a special service. The main reason for doing this is that it will give the general public a chance to see the bells, a thing they rarely do. This should lead to a more intelligent interest on their part. The service must be arranged very soon, and I should be most grateful for any copies of hymns, tunes and prayers suitable. They will, of course, be duly returned when finished with.—Yours sincerely,

A. G. G. THURLOW.

SALOP CRITIC RECEIVES INFORMATION

Dear Sir,—Might I crave your indulgence to answer as briefly as possible Mr. Farmer's letter of February 24th? I have learned from several sources that the tower in question was Market Drayton.

As regards lack of enthusiasm, I would like to point out that if my letter implied criticism of the Salop Guild, perhaps I was guilty of an exaggeration about the six keen ringers, but I think Mr. Farmer will agree that there are many bands hereabouts that are capable of more advanced ringing than Grandsire of Plain Bob, but whose leaders are quite satisfied to remain in the old groove year after year, because it is too much trouble to use a pencil and paper at home. It is this attitude that I am attacking and will continue to do so.

I might add, in conclusion, that we will soon have a Cambridge Minor band in this area.—Sincerely yours,

ERNEST J. ROWE.

Broseley, Salop.

MOST MUSICAL METHOD

Dear Sir,—As I go around to meetings, etc., I hear people say that so and so method is very pretty or another sounds good and so on, and I wondered if this is a subject upon which a little discussion might be interesting.

Most people will agree that those rows which have the lighter bells in the front and the heavier ones at the back are the most musical. As, for instance, the Queen change, Doh, Lah, Fah, Ray, Te, Soh, Me, Doh, which is, in effect, two rows, with a certain reflexive action. This probably explains why Triples with a covering bell are high in the list of tuneful methods.

I very much like the touches of Oxford and Kent, where the heavier bells are kept away from the front. When listening to this I have the impression of looking at a coin or picture or what you will, turning it over and finding it totally different on the other side. With a Surprise method the picture is not quite so different, accounted for by the fact that each bell remains in adjacent places for a longer time.

The Stedman impression is that it is more surprising and that you cannot imagine what you are going to see, or hear, on the other side. This may account for a great deal of its popularity, but the build-up of the method being so different from others, Stedman may appeal more to the mathematical side of one's nature.

I expect I shall be told that a well-struck touch of Plain Bob is very nice and, of course, I agree. Undoubtedly the striking is the prime factor in the music-making.

In conclusion, this is the view of a ringer of not many years' standing who is trying to use his ears and I hope your readers will be patient with me in my ignorance.—Yours sincerely,

R. F. BAKER.

Brampton, Huntingdon.

'CAN IT BE COUNTED TWICE?'

Dear Sir,—With reference to above query by my friend, Mr. F. W. Goodfellow, published on page 124 of your issue of February 24th. This would be a rather novel idea of 'snatching' a tower to make the number up, but I don't think it will work out quite right. In my list of towers I count this as one only.

I have had the pleasure of taking part in two peals on St. Andrew's bells, one of Stedman Triples, rung half-muffled, on November 11th, 1927, when the church stood in Wells Street (off Oxford Street), W.C., and one of Cambridge Major on August 24th, 1935, since its removal to Kingsbury, Middlesex, ringing the 6th on both occasions.

I'm open to correction, but I feel sure the last mentioned is the only one rung on these bells at Kingsbury. Very few (possibly about five) have been privileged to take part in a peal at this church, standing on both sites.

Go ahead, Fred. You can surely 'snatch' one more to make your total round figures!—Yours truly and sincerely,

J. BENNETT.

Beckenham, Kent.

EARLY PEAL ATTEMPTS

Dear Sir,—In 'The History of Grandsire Triples,' by J. W. Snowdon, it is stated that on January 17th, 1689 or 1690, a peal of Grandsire Triples was rung at St. Sepulchre-without-Newgate by members of 'The Ancient Society of College Youths,' the source of this information being obscure.

In 'The College Youths,' by J. Armiger Trollope, reference is made to a peal of Bob Triples rung at St. Sepulchre's on January 7th, 1690, and that this information came from Oxford many years later.

Is anyone able to throw any greater light on this Oxford source?—Yours, etc.,

J. C. BIRD.

Waltham Abbey, Essex.

Stedman's Superiority

Dear Sir,—It seems that we are to assume from last week's issue that we may live to see Steadfast rung from Minor to Maximus in our time: also we are assured that this method is Stedman's Principle on even numbers of bells.

I venture to suggest that, as Stedman's Principle rung as it is at present with the tenor behind, is superior in musical qualities to any even bell ringing, it will continue to be so rung long after Steadfast has lapsed into the oblivion from which it seems reluctant to be dragged.

K. S. B. CROFT.

Southampton.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF YOUTH

Dear Sir,—I should like to say that I must agree with Mr. E. T. P. Field in his letter on 'Encouragement of Youth.' I, too, am sure that many more young recruits would stay on after a few months' ringing if a more friendly attitude to them was adopted by all ringers.

The ringers in Devon seem to be particularly friendly. Last Easter, after ringing at Highweek on their practice night, I, as given a car ride back to Torquay by one of the ringers. This made me feel that I was really welcome. Would any young ringer travel about in foreign country looking for ringing if he thought that he would not be wanted? If he did it would only be once! Whether at a practice or a meeting all young ringers need to really sense that they are welcome. Too often have I seen young ringers being offered only rounds when they are capable of much more.

All efficient young change ringers should be given the opportunity to conduct a few touches instead of being sometimes discouraged; then we would have younger and, perhaps, more capable conductors.—Yours sincerely,

P. NEWING.

Littlebourne, Kent.

University of London Society

REUNION DINNER.

The annual dinner of the University of London Society was held on February 18th at the Prince's Head, Westminster. During the day the Society rang at the churches of St. John at Hackney, St. Mary, Walthamstow, and St. John the Baptist, Leytonstone, and attended evensong at the last-named church. Ringing ranged from rounds for learners, of whom the Society has a gratifyingly large number, to Spliced Surprise.

After the toast of 'Church and King' had been given by the Master, who was in the chair, the secretary read apologies from those unable to come, referring particularly to the president (Dr. J. C. E. Simpson), the Master of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths, and the Master of the Oxford University Society.

Mr. Philip Gray then proposed the health of the visitors in a thorough manner. He welcomed Mr. Tom Bevan, Mr. Hardy and other local ringers, whose help at the Society's practices was greatly appreciated, and referred, in passing, to the relative merits of the two great ringing societies. He was also pleased to see wives present, and mentioned that his attended in her own right. The Bristol University Society was represented by Mr. Barwick and Miss Bliss, and the Cambridge University Guild by Mr. Threlfall (the Master) and Mr. Speed.

After a brief discussion of the relative ringing—and non-ringing—achievements of the various universities, the speaker referred to the services of Miss Cross, to whom the Society was especially indebted for her help during last summer's tour. He then finished with a few general remarks as a Past Master of the Society and an experienced visitor to other people's dinners.

Mr. Brian Threlfall replied, thanking Mr. Gray for his more or less kind remarks and congratulating the Society on its flourishing condition. Mr. Tom Fox (Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths) also spoke briefly and conveyed the good wishes of the College Youths to the ringers of London University.

NOT A ROYAL ACADEMY BANQUET.

Mr. Peter Foote, silently singing, no doubt, 'Memory, hither come, And tune your merry notes,' proposed the health of the Society in a scholarly speech with frequent reference to English and Icelandic literature, and ably maintained his thesis against those who queried either his quotations or the opinion of women contained in them. He stressed particularly the social side of ringing.

The Master, Mr. Denis Layton, replied. After sharply reminding some of his hearers that they were not at the Royal Academy banquet, he obtained as good discipline as a speaker as he had done as a conductor, and was even more successful in keeping people awake. He reviewed the progress of the Society and said that it now had 60 paid-up members as well as some learners who had not yet suffered the financial misfortune of meeting the secretary.

The formal business being completed, the summer tour for 1950 was discussed, and Mr. Geoffrey Carter (in a speech substituted for a loudly requested song) pointed out that unless a few more women applied there would be difficulties in accommodation on the two launches in which it was proposed to travel from Bedford to Ely.

The meeting broke up shortly before closing time.

WALSALL, STAFFS.—On Feb. 19th, 1,299 Stedman Caters: J. S. Eastwood (cond.) 1, A. Botterell 2, Miss J. Cotterell (age 14) 3, E. T. Smith 4, J. Cotterell 5, A. T. Dutton 6, H. E. Green 7, G. W. Hughes 8, H. Howell 9, A. Elsmore 10. First quarter of Caters for 3 and 5. A birthday compliment to the Vicar (Canon Jenkins) and the conductor.

OBITUARIES AND APPRECIATIONS

MR. STEPHEN BINFIELD

Captain of the ringers at Folkestone Parish Church for 55 years, Mr. Stephen Thomas Binfield died on February 18th, aged 84 years.

Born in Folkestone—records of the Parish Church show that there were Binfields in the town in 1650—he was apprenticed to a builder in Exeter, where a branch of the family was then living. He spent a considerable part of that time working on repairs to Exeter Cathedral.

On his return to Folkestone Mr. Binfield was, before establishing his own business, a foreman builder. For many years he was steeplekeeper at the Parish Church. In 1903 he conducted the first peal rung during the present century by a local company. Mr. Binfield gave up ringing in 1945 owing to failing health.

Mr. and Mrs. Binfield celebrated their golden wedding in 1936 and three years later Mrs. Binfield died.

In memoriam 1,260 Grandsire Triples was rung half-muffled on February 26th by A. Kedwell 1, F. Orris 2, P. Crook 3, A. Binfield (son of the deceased) 4, J. Willis 5, T. Anderson (conductor and one of his pupils) 6, T. Farley 7, W. Evers 8.

Cremation took place on March 2nd. It was deceased's wish that his ashes should be scattered in the churchyard of Folkestone Parish Church as near to the tower as possible.

AN APPRECIATION.

Mr. Charles Turner, of Dover, writes: I am proud of the honour to pay a small tribute to Stephen T. Binfield, who passed away on February 18th in hospital at the age of 84 years. He commenced his ringing career when quite a young man at Exeter while engaged on restoration work at the Cathedral.

For many years he was a prominent ringer in the various towers in East Kent. He was for some time captain of the Folkestone ringers and his great ambition was to get two more bells added to the beautiful ring of eight now in the tower. To my knowledge he was almost successful.

An admirer of 'Holt's Original' peal of Grandsire Triples, he made a special study of the calling, which he accomplished. He was a lover of the bells and also a critic. In business he was well known as a builder, and the many houses on the Dover road now stand as an example of his fine work.

MR. D. H. ELLIOTT

The news of his death on March 1st at Groton, Suffolk, in his 75th year, of Mr. David Harold Elliott was received with much regret by all who knew him, particularly at Sudbury, where he was, until his health failed him a year ago, captain of the Sudbury company for over 30 years.

Wonderfully fit for his age, he had by dint of many years' hard work risen from a small-holder to a well-known and successful agriculturist with a large acreage at his farms, and his huge mansion was the annual setting for a real old English dinner for his brother ringers on his birthday, the last on January 14th this year, when he summoned sufficient strength to ring a pair to a touch of Double Norwich.

Unfortunately, he had not kept an up-to-date account of his peals during the last 25 years. His peal book contains over a hundred entries, mainly Double Norwich and Surprise peals, most of which he conducted in his thorough manner from the box. He was widely travelled and had rung in very many towers throughout the country. It was nothing to him even in recent years to walk the five miles to Sudbury and back to ring for service, and to Hadleigh also. He learnt to ring as soon as he could reach a rope and has left behind him 60 years of ringing, and woe betide those who ever got out of course. He leaves a widow, a daughter and four sons.

The funeral on March 4th was marked by a full church of sympathisers, including a very large number of ringers from a wide area. It was much regretted that owing to a misunderstanding no handbells were available to ring at the graveside.

At St. Peter's, Sudbury, in the evening, 1,284 Plain Bob Major was rung as a last token of respect with muffled clappers by G. Dixon 1, A. A. Fitch 2, W. Scott 3, C. W. Clarke 4, L. Mills 5, L. Johnson 6, T. Bird 7, A. J. Haynes (cond.) 8; and at Hadleigh a peal was commenced immediately after the interment.

APPRECIATIONS.

Mr. W. E. Box, towerkeeper, St. Chad's Cathedral, Birmingham, writes:—

Whilst congratulating you upon your admirable obituary notice of the late Tom Miller, may I intrude upon your valuable space for the purpose of making one or two corrections and additions?

Tom's last peal on July 6th, 1938, was rung on the old bells at St. Chad's Cathedral and was also the last one rung on them. Thus he took part in both the first and last peals on the old ring, which were opened as a ring of eight bells on Easter Sunday, 1877, the original five being rung for the first time on August 2nd, 1849, by William Chattell and his band from St. Philip's Church. Although Tom did not actually ring a peal on the new Taylor bells, he did hear them on one occasion either in 1942 or 1943, and his comment was that 'the old 'uns are scalded'.

I understand that Mr. R. H. McDonald, of Sydney, Australia, is now the only survivor of the 1878 peal, but in this I stand open to correction. In speaking of this peal I recall Tom Miller saying that Samuel Jarman, who rang the 4th, 'looked like Christ at the Last Supper,' whilst another member of the band 'had a face like the first Sunday after Epiphany.'

In speaking of other peals in which he took part I note that you do not mention the last peal at St. Michael's, Coventry, on June 9th, 1883, in which he rang the 6th. In 1927 he formed one of the deputation of ringers which opposed the granting of a faculty to recast the Coventry bells.

With his passing a great link with the past, not only of ringing, but of Birmingham and the Midlands generally, has been severed.

Mr. Clem Glenn writes: Tom Miller's passing on brings back a happy memory of him after the peal at Sheffield in 1907. We Sheffield and Rotherham ringers, with the Birmingham band, enjoyed a dinner and social evening, when Tom sang the two songs mentioned in his obituary notice.

Some time ago Mr. Albert Walker, in response to my request, was kind enough to visit Tom and obtain the words of the songs for me. 'Bob Major' went to the tune of 'In the Sweet Bye and Bye,' and the chorus of 'Stedman' goes like this:—

Stedman, Stedman, that is what we ring,
Stedman is the method, it's just the very thing:
On 8, 10 or 12 bells, don't you think it's grand
Is a well-struck touch of Stedman by a competent band, the chorus of the last verse finishing with:—

Is a well-struck touch of Stedman when it's bobbed round at hand.

BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM has for more than a century held a unique position in English change ringing. Probably no provincial centre has had a greater influence on the Exercise, and from the city, generation after generation, there have gone forth men with the hall-mark of Birmingham, carrying with it a reputation for good striking and sound, honest-to-goodness method ringing. It is in the blood, and it is in the training received.

We do not wish to imply that Birmingham has a monopoly of the country's sound ringers. London could produce a band, and always could, to equal Birmingham in prowess and other attributes that ringers hold dear. To-day Leicester would be prepared to challenge Birmingham on 12-bell method ringing. We have no desire, however, to stress or stimulate inter-city rivalry which was such a characteristic of the last century, or to cast comparisons between one centre and another. Nevertheless, it must be frankly admitted that Birmingham ringers set an example which other centres try to emulate, and their example is an inspiration to young ringers.

To have the privilege of ringing with the St. Martin's Guild is an aspiration of most progressive ringers. For that reason the Henry Johnson Commemoration Dinner makes an equal appeal to the young and the old. Looking at the long tables at last week's dinner, one could not fail to observe the accent on youth. The young generation was well represented. They came to Birmingham as the pilgrims go to Mecca, to rub shoulders with the great and to try their prentice hands on the bells that have added so much glory to English ringing.

But the Henry Johnson Commemoration Dinner is more than a ringing ritual for young and old. To-day it is one of the two great social reunions of the Exercise; the other, the dinner of the Ancient Society of College Youths, is largely a closed shop. The dinner originated 62 years ago through the initiative of Sir Arthur Heywood to commemorate the life and work of Henry Johnson. In its original concept it was a gathering of ringers from all parts of England to pay homage to Birmingham's 'grand old man,' the first being held on his 80th birthday. With the passing of years, 'Henry Johnson' becomes largely a legendary title, although it was gratifying to see present two veterans who knew him in the flesh.

Nevertheless, the view expressed by Mr. Frank E. Haynes, who proposed the toast to his memory, that the name of Henry Johnson should be perpetuated is sound. Even if the personal attributes of this worthy become legendary in character—and he has been surpassed by others equally as famous in their day and generation—the continuance of tradition is a great thing. Such gatherings set a hall-stamp; they are a constant reminder to the present generation. This can be said of Birmingham ringers of to-day: they have not failed Henry Johnson. The same moral standard and devotion to the art remain steadfast.

A characteristic of Birmingham to-day is that leadership does not rest with one man. The present master, Mr. Albert Walker, has those lovable traits which draw men unto him. As an exponent of Stedman Cinques, with over 400 twelve-bell peals to his credit, he is without a peer, and perhaps, to use a simile, he is the chief matador of 'the bullring.' In the secretary of the St. Martin's Guild, Mr. George E. Fearn, there is the prince of organisers, whose ringing ability and knowledge enable him faithfully to discharge his office. Although well under 50 years of age, George has rung nearly 700 peals, and in 1948 led the country with over 100 peals. The 'paper' man of St. Martin's Guild is schoolmaster Edgar C. Shepherd, whose treatise on Double Norwich Court Bob Caters is regarded as a standard work. This year he retired from the post of Ringing Master on account of pressure of work in other directions. His successor belongs to the next generation in Mr. G. W. Critchley.

A characteristic of the Birmingham ringers of to-day is that they are good community men. Their life does not revolve around ringing, but it forms a part of their lives. This true balance is very essential in life. St. Martin's Guild has two members of the City Council, and one of them, Ald. A. Paddon Smith, will in May become the Lord Mayor. One of the chief criticisms ringers have to meet is that they have a lop-sided mentality and life is viewed from one angle only, that of the belfry. The example of Birmingham refutes that criticism. As Henry Johnson was held in esteem as a man of high moral standing, so are the leaders in Birmingham enjoying the confidence and respect of their fellow-citizens.

EDITOR: T. W. WHITE.

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

It is a peal ringer's lot to experience many disappointments. March 8th was not only the 65th birthday of Mr. Frank E.
Pervin, of Coventry, but the 50th anniversary of his first peal. The peal attempt commemorating this interesting double in his life unfortunately was lost. Nevertheless, this does not prevent us from saying, 'Happy birthday, Frank, and may you live and have the strength to enjoy many more good peals.'

The peal of Minor in three methods rung at Pevensey, Sussex, on January 9th, was the 250th peal for Mr. F. H. Hicks, of Hailsham, not Mr. Gavan D. Tonkins as published.

Writes a Kent ringer: 'Your photograph of Mr. Harold Poole's band has surprised several ringers, who had been thinking what a good ringer (Miss) Shirley Burton must be!'

The passing of Mr. J. H. Shepherd will be regretted by a wide circle of friends. His hobby of measuring tenor bells—it is said that he inspected nearly 4,000 belfries—made him a well-known figure. He cycled hundreds of miles in quest of new tenors. It is to be hoped that his records will be preserved.

The last quarter on Slough's bells before the installation of a ring of ten took place on March 5th. The work has started and there is a promise from Messrs. Mears and Stainbank that the ten will be ready by Easter. Slough will then have the only ten in Buckingham-shire.

Apropos Mr. L. C. Wightman's claim that the peal at St. Mary's, Framsdon, on February 18th, was his 100th peal on the bells, Mr.
R. W. Steward writes that the same footnote was claimed by Mr. Wightman in his peal at Framsdon on December 9th, 1948, and since then he has rung another four peals on the bells. We trust that it was a matter of arithmetic and not of false compositions.

BELFRY GOSSIP

In renewing his subscription, Mr. W. Smith, of St.
James', Turramurra, New

South Wales, writes: Our team is 50 per cent.
Australian lads and 50 per cent. Englishmen.
The latter are from towers in Devon, Northumberland, Surrey, Warwickshire and myself from Leicestershire.

Owing to the regretted illness of Mr. W. H.
J. Hooton, the Central Council's lending library is not in operation. Readers' queries can always be addressed to the Editor, who will endeavour to meet their wants through the columns of 'The Ringing World.'

We publish this week the first of a series of articles on Change Ringing Machines, by Mr.
Brian D. Price. Readers are advised to keep the page of diagrams as they will be referred to in subsequent numbers. The articles are not all technical in character.

Mr. James George, although past 96 years, is busy composing peals. He sends us a peal of Plain Bob Maximus.

The ringer of the 11th in the peal of Stedman Cinques at High Wycombe on February 11th was Mr. Frank Corke.

Congratulations to John Grant, who rang the tenor to a peal of Stedman Caters at the Loughborough Foundry Campanile on his 70th birthday, and to George Straw, for whom a peal of London Surprise was rung on the same bells on his 75th birthday. Both are 'old soldiers' of the Leicester Cathedral company.

Apropos the married couples' peal at Hands-worth, Mr. N. Chaddock writes: My report to you should have read that Mrs. Ryder and Mrs. Haywood took part in the first peal of Major to be rung by an all ladies' team (at Handsworth 22 years ago), as I am informed that Minor and Triples had been rung previously by all ladies' teams.

MR. HERBERT LANGDON'S SERVICE.

The peal of Stedman Cinques recorded last week at St. Michael's, Cornhill, marked the completion of Mr. Herbert Langdon's 50 years' continuous service as a ringer at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Many famous names have been associated with the St. Paul's Guild of Ringers, such as H. W. Haley, W. Cooter, James Pettit, Robert Hayworth, Edwin Horrel, G. Muskett, Matthew A. Wood and John Murray Hayes, all of whom took part in the first three courses of Stedman Cinques when the bells were opened in 1878.

James Pettit was the leader and conductor in the early days, and held that position until his death in 1912. He was succeeded by William T. Cockerill, who was for many years also secretary of the Ancient Society of College Youths. He died in 1938 and was succeeded by Herbert Langdon, who has maintained the high standard of ringing set by his famous predecessors, and is himself a very fine ringer and an expert conductor.

Mr. Langdon called the longest peal ever rung by one set of men at Appleton, Berkshire, over 21,000 changes. He also conducted the long length of Stedman Cinques at Southwark Cathedral—over 12,000 changes, which unfortunately turned out to be false—but the performance was one of the finest, if not the finest, efforts on twelve bells, the striking being of the most perfect order, and which held absolutely spellbound the very large gathering of ringers who had assembled to hear it.

Probably the performance of which Mr. Langdon is most proud was that of ringing the eleventh at St. Paul's to Cambridge Maximus with A. B. Peck conducting from the 62 cwt. tenor. At that time the eleventh was going far from well—indeed, she has never been an easy job, but on this occasion she was worse than usual. Langdon, after a few courses, intimated to Peck that he doubted whether he could finish the peal. 'Well,' said Peck, 'call stand when you've had enough!' Langdon continued until the end of the course, and as she was going no worse decided to try for another, and then to his joy found a slight improvement, which continued until they finally succeeded and concluded an effort which will stand out as probably the greatest heavy bell performance on twelve bells.

It may not be generally known that Stedman Cinques is always rung for services at St. Paul's by order of the authorities. Sir John Stainer, who was organist at St. Paul's, gave it as his considered opinion that this method was the most musical and most suitable one for the bells, and this ruling has never been departed from.

There is no more capable conductor in this method than H. Langdon, and it is the sincere wish of all his friends in London that he may be spared for many years to lead and inspire by his example those who are privileged to ring at this important Cathedral.

Opportunities to ring peals at St. Paul's are few and far between, and the present condition of the bells, which have received no comprehensive restoration since they were installed in 1878, would provide a difficult task to ring a peal on them. Nevertheless, it would have been more fitting if Mr. Langdon's 50th anniversary had been celebrated by a peal at St. Paul's.

DEATH OF MR. A. A. SAVAGE

News is conveyed in the February issue of 'Ringing Towers' of the death of Mr. A. A. Savage, late of St. Paul's Cathedral band, Melbourne. With his passing goes another link with the early ringing in Australia.

Mr. Savage's last peal was of Grandsire Cinques at Melbourne during the visit of the English tourists in 1934. It was rung on Nov. 11th to commemorate the dedication of Victoria's Shrine of Remembrance, the unveiling ceremony being performed by H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL ASSOCIATION

BRISTOL CITY BRANCH.

On February 18th, the branch added yet another event to its ever increasing social activities in that the first dinner was held in the evening at the Crown and Dove Hotel.

Ringing in the afternoon at St. Mary Redcliffe, SS. Philip and Jacob's, St. Stephen's and St. John's was followed by a service held in the last-named church. This was conducted by the Vicar of St. James', the Rev. C. H. Smith.

About 103 members and friends sat down to the dinner. Mr. F. G. Leaker, branch chairman, presided, ably supported by Mr. A. Bennett, hon. secretary, and Mr. E. F. Hancock, Ringing Master. Canon Swann pronounced grace.

An announcement from the chair that the next drink was 'yours for the asking' was greeted with great enthusiasm. Throughout the closing stages of the meal much amusement was occasioned by the desire of some members to collect signatures on their menu cards, and the results thereby obtained caused many a laugh.

The Chairman, after proposing 'The King,' raised the toast of 'The Church,' and expressed a cordial welcome to the clergy present. He mentioned the difficulties now being experienced by the Church everywhere, not the least of these being the building of new churches in newly-populated areas. During the war, he continued, their city lost several churches, some of which contained well-known and well-loved rings of bells. He expressed the hope that two of these rings would be rehung, not necessarily in the same church, but somewhere in Bristol. Why not hang one of them in the Mother Church, which, although it had the towers, did not possess a ring of bells? he suggested. Ringers, continued Mr. Leaker, were playing a big part in Church activities, and at Redcliffe there was very close co-operation between clergy and ringers. In this respect the local band were very fortunate in having as their Vicar Canon S. E. Swann.

Canon Swann, replying in a witty vein, said he had made a few discreet enquiries about ringers and had been told that they could be recognised by their own peculiar characteristics. He mentioned the man seen coming down the street, looking very serious and appearing to be muttering to himself—well, he definitely was a ringer. Congratulating Mr. E. J. Brown, captain of the ringers of SS. Philip and Jacob's, on the excellent menu card, which he had designed and printed, he trusted that they rang their bells equally as well, although he could not quite understand how they could ring bells without ropes, there being none shown on the bells printed on the card. However, it was a beautiful job well done.

Canon Swann went on to stress the importance of happy relations between the vestry and belfry, adding that at Redcliffe these were so good that it was now almost certain that the extra bell, to give a lighter ring of eight, would be installed. This was due, he added, in a large part to Mr. Hancock, their steeple-keeper and Ringing Master, whose convincing appeal for an extra bell to the Church Council obviously made one wonder why he was not a parson. He wanted to hear Redcliffe bells ring on every Sunday.

Three leads of Kent Treble Bob Royal then followed on handbells. This was well and truly rung by members of the SS. Philip and Jacob's Guild of Ringers, conducted by Mr. E. J. Brown.

Mr. W. B. Kynaston, Master of the Gloucester and Bristol Association, proposed the toast to 'The Bristol City Branch.' He referred to the suggested amalgamation with the Bristol Rural Branch in 1946 and said how glad he was that it had not been carried out. He noted with pleasure the large number of young people present, adding that he hoped they would make every endeavour to become good ringers and thus carry on the ringing in Bristol which before the war was of a high standard. Last, but not least, there was need for tolerance by the more experienced ringers with the learners, but that did not mean that they were to allow bad striking.

In his response, the secretary, Mr. A. Bennett, briefly reviewed the history of the branch since its re-forming in 1942. Outstanding dates were 1943, when the School of Ringing was formed at St. John's-on-the-Wall (a great debt of gratitude was owed to the founder, who was present), 1948, when the newly-elected Ringing Master, Mr. E. F. Hancock, started advanced monthly practices, which were a great success. He wanted all towers with rings of bells in Bristol to ring for service.

He also mentioned the successful social side of the branch's activities, and once again paid tribute to the Ringing Master's tireless efforts in organising outings during the last two years. In conclusion, Mr. Bennett stressed the need for loyalty, firstly to members' own towers and secondly to the branch.

Mr. E. J. Brown proposed 'The Visitors,' and in extending them a hearty welcome, reiterated the need for a close liaison between church and ringers and between ringers themselves. As the quotation on the menu card stated, 'And give them welcome everyone.'

Mr. F. Skidmore, Ringing Master of the Bristol Rural Branch, replied, and expressed his warm thanks for so fine a welcome, adding that it was always a pleasure to come into Bristol to ring.

Mr. Brown then rose again to propose 'Absent Friends,' and recalled some of the great names of the past, William Cave, John Burford, Henry Porch, James Hinton and George Daltry. They were the men who lit the torch of Bristol ringing, and it was the duty of all present to see that its light should again shine forth with the same intensity.

On the lighter side a feature was the introduction of the popular radio game, twenty questions. This provoked much leg pulling and enjoyment. It was rather appropriate that the 'Baby's Bottle' was got by the voice of experience. Team: Marv P. Hilliar, Jean McDowall, Frank Hansford and Emlyn F. Hancock. Question master (without experience) Jack Worrall.

The highlight of the evening was tune ringing on handbells by Miss A. Brown and Messrs. E. J. Brown and T. W. Kimber. This was a truly remarkable performance and was much applauded. The ringers are to be congratulated upon the amount of hard practice they must have put into it in order to perform in such a manner.

'Wizdardy and Wisecracks,' by Will Townsend, provided great amusement, and songs rendered by Mr. Cecil Barnes (tenor) and Mr. William Morgan (bass) were much appreciated.

A most successful and enjoyable evening came to an end with 'Auld Lang Syne,' sung in the acknowledged manner.

APPLETON RINGING DAY

In the traditional style, the 132nd anniversary of the opening of the bells at Appleton, Berks. was observed on March 4th. Proceedings started with a peal of Grandsire Caters.

The bells were made good use of during the afternoon, when ringers from Oxford, Swindon, Reading, East Hagbourne, Abingdon, Kennington, Launton, Eynsham and other towers attended. The Oxford Guild was represented by Mr. A. D. Barker (hon. treasurer) and Mr. W. Hibbert (general secretary), and among others present was Mr. J. Bennett (Lewisham).

Following tea at the Thatched Tavern, the White family gave some tunes on handbells and lapped a course of Grandsire Caters. Numerous songs by F. and C. G. White brought a pleasant day to a close.

CHANGE-RINGING MACHINES

By B. D. Price.

INTRODUCTION.

With the advent 150 years ago of the machine age, man applied his intelligence to all kinds of problems, and nowadays any orderly task is within the scope of a machine. It is not surprising that several machines have been constructed for carrying out change ringing mechanically.

It is interesting to speculate on the possibility of someone planning a machine prior to John Carter's successful attack. One of the more noteworthy attributes of change ringing is that it is almost entirely dissociated from money gain, and anyone tackling the task of constructing a change ringing machine must do so purely from the joy of doing so, and seeing the finished article working. In addition, by its nature such a machine is not simple to construct, and needs a mechanical mind to design it and a craftsman's skill to execute it. It is, therefore, not surprising that only two men (to my knowledge) have at the time of writing this successfully completed their plans. John Carter, of Birmingham, a gunsmith by profession, first completed a ringing machine, and his machine, a beautifully executed piece of work, now remains in the South Kensington Science Museum, London. The Central Council appoints two trustees, and only certain authorised persons are allowed to operate it. As an historical treasure and a piece of mechanical craftsmanship it is priceless.

Mr. G. F. Woodhouse, of Sedbergh, has for many years been carrying out valuable experiment and research on various types of mechanism and has built altogether nine machines to date, of which the last three survive.

GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

The general principles underlying the construction of a machine are not difficult to understand—it is the designing and making of the necessary mechanisms to execute the principles that is the tedious part.

To the uninitiated it would appear an easy task. Simply make a recording on some medium, in the fashion of a gramophone or a film sound projector. But the change ringer will know that this is no solution to the ringing machine. For any ringing machine worth its name must be capable of ringing bobs and singles at the will of the operator, and, moreover, must ring any method desired (within reasonable limits of complexity) without being reconstructed. How can a machine ring any method?

Supposing the reader writes out, say, a plain course of Double Norwich Major on paper. What he does is roughly what a ringing machine does when it rings a plain course. One writes down 12345678, then observing that at the beginning of any lead of Double Norwich the bells in 1sts and 2nds places, 3rds and 4ths places, etc., change places, one writes underneath 21436587, and next 24135678, making the bells in 1sts and 4ths places lie still while the other pairs cross over. The slang word 'swoop' is so useful that it will be used for 'to change places.' Whatever leadhead we commence with, we can write down a lead of Double Norwich merely by observing what places and swoops to make between each row and the next. No notice is paid to the work of individual bells, although each bell will, in fact, perform the work of the method. It is interesting to note that ringers who ring Surprise methods on handbells double-handed use a similar place method of ringing and do not follow the work of individual bells.

The ringing machine works in precisely the same way. It consists broadly of three sections. One section stores up information of what places and swoops are made in a lead of the method being rung (this section must be pre-set for the method desired). Another section interprets the information and constructs the changes one after another, and the third section rings the changes on bells as desired. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that a machine could work from a skeleton diagram of a method, but it would be extremely complex.

It is the interpreting of the swoops and places and the construction of the changes that is the difficult problem in designing a ringing machine. But first let us examine the way used both by Carter's and Woodhouse's machine for holding the change being rung and of ringing it. In diagrammatic form for four bells it is as in Fig. 1 (see block of diagrams).

The eight brass strips A B C D E F G H are set in an insulating base and are joined up electrically by the sliding strips J K L M which rest on them. The arm N revolves and makes contact in turn with contacts P Q R S. In the position shown, N will touch Q next and the 2nd bell will ring, the current flowing through N, Q, B, L, G to the 2nd bell. As N touches the contacts P Q R S the change 4231 is rung. If another change is desired, the positions of the strips J K L M must be altered. Now,

1. Each movable strip represents a bell. Thus the strip J controls bell No. 4 and governs in what place it will strike.
2. The strips E F G H are convenient only for feeding the current to the moving strips (better than having a flexible wire).
3. The strips A B C D represent positions of bells. Strip A will conduct current only when N touches P and is responsible for making the bell in 1sts place, whichever it might be, sound.

Now, at first sight it would not really matter whether or not the strips A B C D are in order of striking in the change. But as a matter of fact it is of great advantage to do this. Why, we shall see now.

The strips J K L M must be moved to fresh positions by some mechanism before each new change is rung. Thus, for example, the strip J governing the 4th bell must run over the strips A B C D according to the work of the 4th bell in the method being rung. If the strips A B C D are in the order of positions in a change, the strip J will have to move one strip only at a time, just as a bell in any method moves only one position between changes. Keeping strips A B C D in order simplifies the mechanism as it then has to move the strips at the most one position at a time.

Supposing a little flag were stuck on each of the strips J K L M, the mechanism viewed sideways would look like Fig. 3, and the change 4231 would be read, which is, in fact, the change rung.

It is apparent that this way of 'constituting the changes' will work for any number of bells.

John Carter when he first started his machine (about 1890) had some purely mechanical scheme of ringing the bells, but this was abandoned and the above electrical scheme (identical in essence with Carter's arrangement) was adopted. Some curious unused slots on his machine are the remains of the relinquished plan.

Mr. Woodhouse, too, uses this electrical method, having a lay-out identical with the above in earlier machines, though, of course, incorporated with other mechanism.

But how are the strips moved between changes? That constitutes a problem of absorbing interest. Consider the strips in an 8-bell machine as in Fig. 3. This view is from above, and each moving strip (henceforth called 'bellplate,' as it represents a bell) is labelled with the number of the bell it controls. The change being rung is 32167584. If we are near the end of a lead of Double Norwich the next change will be 31265748, that is the bells in 1sts and 4ths places remain stationary, and the other bellplates have to interchange positions in pairs. The machine knows what places are to be made (this being stored up in the machine). What it has to do is

1. To seek out which bellplates have to be moved.
2. To move them.

It is not sufficient for the machine to know it has to make 1sts and 4ths places. It has to find out which bellplates are there, for during the progress of a touch any two bells might be there.

The general working of a machine is, therefore, according to the following synopsis:—

- (a) An apparatus for storing the places and swoops to be made, and for feeding them in the right sequence.
- (b) An apparatus for selecting which bells are in the required positions to be moved, prior to moving (this I call the Pre-selector Mechanism).
- (c) An apparatus for moving the bellplates between changes.
- (d) The assembly of bellplates and their contacts.
- (e) The switches, current supply, bells.

No mention has been made of calling bobs or singles, or of open leads. They are attendant details. The open lead is simply obtained by having a double rotating commutator. Thus in Fig. 1, the arm N would not merely touch in turn P Q R S, but a further four contacts wired to P Q R S would follow, and then a gap before the arm N returns to P, thus giving a whole pull and open lead with one revolution of N.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

AN INVITATION TO MR. ROWE

Dear Sir,—With reference to the recent correspondence regarding Surprise ringing in Shropshire.

The local band of St. Mary's Church, Market Drayton, extend a cordial invitation to Mr. Rowe to join them in Surprise ringing on their weekly practice night (Wednesday) or for the service ringing on Sunday.

Due to the absence of two members of the band, at present serving with the Forces, we are not able to get much practice, and the presence of another Surprise ringer would be greatly appreciated.

One of our serving members, Mr. R. Tyler, stationed at Plymouth, was recently home on leave and our ringing for morning service consisted of a few call changes for the learners, a course of London Surprise Major, followed by a course of Superlative Surprise, and, to fill in the available time, a course of Little Bob.

No lack of keenness here, and if Mr. Rowe cares to accept our invitation at any time, we can promise him a pleasant session of Surprise ringing, and would no doubt help to dispel any thought in his mind that there are no keen Surprise ringers in Shropshire. — Yours faithfully, FREDERICK PRICE.

Market Drayton, Salop.

SHROPSHIRE NOT SUCH A BAD PLACE

Dear Sir,—While I am not in a position to contradict what Mr. Rowe says in his letter in Feb. 17th issue concerning the state of change ringing in Shropshire generally, I am very pleased to be able to name the tower where the ringer I referred to in my letter learnt his Surprise methods. It is Market Drayton, and he tells me that when he left, Cambridge, Superlative and London were rung regularly for Sunday services there. He also took part in a peal of Superlative there about six months ago when spending a week-end in the town.

I can assure Mr. Rowe from my own personal experience that he has a very sound knowledge in these methods which could only have been acquired by considerable practice. So, maybe, Shropshire isn't such a bad place to live in after all.—Yours truly,

'PROGRESSIVE.'

A NEW SPLICE IN MINOR

Dear Sir,—The discovery of a new splice in Minor is evidence that the Exercise can still offer rewards to the patient investigator in fields in which it is thought there is nothing new.

Mr. J. Segar, jun., of Retford, has pointed out to me that Thirds Place Delight No. (1-11) and (2-12) splice in complete courses with Surprise (18-26).

Mr. Driver in compiling his tables apparently missed this splice, and I am sure that all interested in this aspect of ringing will be grateful to Mr. Segar for his discovery.—Yours faithfully, C. KENNETH LEWIS.

RICKMANSWORTH'S RHYME

Dear Sir,—Re Mr. Hone, there appears in the belfry at Rickmansworth a rhyme which runs:—

Gentleman ringers far and near,
That are disposed to ringing here,
Mark these rules and note them well,
The man that overturns his bell,
Unto the Sexton sixpence pays,
Before he passes hence away,
And he that ring with Spur or Hat,
Shall pay likewise fourpence for that,
Ropes cost, Oyl is dear,
Likewise make pay or come not here.

Yours truly,

DONALD R. BARTHOLOMEW.

Rickmansworth, Herts.

PEALS AT LITTLE MISSENDEN

Dear Sir,—Regarding Nolan Golden's letter, March 3rd, I would like to know for my own personal record what were the methods rung at Little Missenden on the date he mentions. I remember the peal being rung, but was away from the village on that day. I was not then a member of the Oxford Guild (as all the ringers of this church are now).

I would also like to know if any other peals have been rung on the bells. Perhaps some of your readers could tell me. No peals have been rung since the ring was augmented to six in 1948, but we hope to remedy this in the very near future.—Yours faithfully,

S. J. ORCHARD.

Amersham, Bucks.

IN DEFENCE OF THE ORDINARY MEMBER

Dear Sir,—It occurred to me, whilst reading Mr. Dyke's reply to the letter appearing in a recent issue of 'The Ringing World' under the heading 'Membership—something to work for,' and signed J. W. Drew, that perhaps the general secretary's 'Ringing World' was a different edition from the one I received. I can see nothing in Mr. Drew's letter to have raised the ire of anyone, least of all the general secretary's. His letter undoubtedly was written whilst he was hot under the collar. He certainly hadn't cooled off by the time he had reached his last few lines either. Doesn't he like constructive criticism? I'm sure he does. But I'm forced to conclude that the criticism would have been accepted had it come from someone other than an 'ordinary member.'

Mr. Dyke went to great lengths to explain his attitude towards membership, particularly the probation period. I do not think this was necessary. Everyone knows that there must, or should be, a period of probation for learners. Mr. Drew didn't mention probation or probationers. It's an accepted fact, sir, but it is not carried out strictly to rules. That is as I see it.

Mr. Drew's criticism is that it is no use drawing up a set of rules if they are to be broken left and right. Mr. Dyke says, 'If good striking were a condition of membership, I am afraid that the ranks of all guilds would suffer depletion.' Granted, Mr. Dyke. But how can this be reconciled with the statement made at the annual meeting held at Yeovil, 'That the bad strikers, etc., should be weeded out,' or words to that effect? The general secretary says that he has taught a call change band to ring Grandsire Triples well within two years. I notice that they were probationers for that period. They are, if they are not already, entitled to full membership and they jolly well deserve it.

Which would Mr. Dyke prefer? A band of ringers like that or persons scarcely able to handle a bell made full members? I would suggest that Mr. Dyke should come West, or is it South-West, a little more. He would see that there are people who are justly proud of their achievements in relation to the teaching of our art. Modesty prevents them from making a song about it.

In conclusion, sir, may I add that no one doubts the capabilities appertaining to the ringing of Mr. Dyke. I know of no one in the Bath and Wells Association who would dispute this. I understand also that it is impossible for him to be at every meeting to see for himself. I would beg of him, then, not to treat an 'ordinary member' as a very naughty boy for having the courage of his convictions and expressing them.—Sincerely yours,

R. BEALE.

Shepton Beauchamp, Somerset.

Membership Qualifications

Dear Sir,—I read Mr. Dyke's letter in the issue of March 3rd with interest, and, as the sting seemed to be in the tail, I will answer that first.

I must admit that when my letter appeared in print I realised that one sentence could be misconstrued, and from the tone of Mr. Dyke's closing sentences I was right.

I did not mean to suggest that members were being roped in just to make the figures look more impressive, but as this construction has been put on a sentence in my letter, I withdraw it unreservedly.

What I did mean was that ringers were being elected as full members without any probationary period. I am sure that it is only a question of the rule being overlooked, but the fact remains it is overlooked, and members who should rightly be probationers, attain the status of full members straight away.

Mr. Dyke quotes the case of young lads taught by Mr. Sanger and himself who were admitted as probationers. This obviates any question of denying them membership, as they were brought into the Guild in the correct way and evidently qualified in the correct way for full membership. This is obviously the proper procedure and one that should be followed throughout the Association. — Yours sincerely, JACK W. DREW.

Stoke-under-Ham, Somerset.

THE PIGEONS OF LONG STANTON

Dear Sir,—The thanks of the band who rang the peal of Superlative at Long Stanton, Cambs, on March 3rd, are due to Messrs. M. Ginn and G. E. Crisp, who spent several hours during the week clearing out the accumulated rubbish of years of bird life from under the bell frame.

We hope that the church authorities, who have made a splendid job of cleaning and re-decorating the church, will be able to have the wire refixed in the tower, to keep out the pigeons, whose misguided efforts will, we hope, do the churchwarden's garden a world of good.—Yours faithfully, C. W. COOK.

Newton, Cambridge.

FIRST ALL-LADIES' PEAL

Dear Sir,—A paragraph in your issue of March 3rd mentions 'the first all ladies' peal . . . rung at Handsworth (Sheffield) 22 years ago.' (1928?)

Peal boards in the belfry of St. Peter's Church, Portishead, commemorate the following:—

(1) At Christ Church, Cubitt Town, London, on July 20th, 1912, a peal of Grandsire Triples, being the first all ladies' peal (including two from Portishead).

(2) At Portishead, on Jan. 30th, 1915, a peal of Grandsire Triples, the first peal for the Ladies' Guild, and the first rung by eight ladies from one tower.

(3) At Portishead, on Jan. 5th, 1918, an all ladies' peal of Grandsire Triples, all but one being local members. (In memoriam Miss Maud Pigott.)—Yours faithfully,

M. E. MCGUIRE.

Portishead, Somerset.

LONDON AT HELMINGHAM
44 YEARS AGO

Dear Sir,—I well recall the peal of London mentioned in Belfry Gossip of Feb. 24th at Helmingham 44 years ago, connected with one recorded in the March 3rd 'Ringing World.'

It was one of those performances that stands out in one's career. The four local ringers—G. Wightman, W. Wightman, W. G. Crickmer and E. Lanham—had not till then rung a touch of London, and so far as my memory serves, the brothers Wightman rang without a trip. 'Jimmy' Motts, of Ipswich, was the conductor.—Yours sincerely, Braintree, Essex. LEWIS W. WIFFEN.

OBITUARY OF THE WEEK

MR. J. H. SHEPHERD.

A well-known personality in the Exercise, Mr. James Horace Shepherd was found dead in bed at his home, 10, Gloucester Street, Swindon, on Sunday, March 5th. He was 80 years of age.

Mr. Shepherd was a native of Ilminster and was educated at Bristol University when he obtained the Whitworth scholarship, then regarded as one of the highest engineering qualifications. He came to Swindon at the age of 19 to serve as a pupil with the G.W.R. When he retired in 1935 as assistant out-station manager, he had completed 46 years with the G.W.R.

Bellringing was his great hobby. He had rung in nearly 4,000 churches in all parts of the country. Until a serious illness some six years ago he was a bellringer at Christ Church, Swindon. A Freemason, Mr. Shepherd was a member of lodges at Swindon, Bath and Reading.

The funeral service was held at Christ Church, Swindon, last Friday.

MR. R. STREDWICK.

An old Sussex ringer, Mr. Richard Stredwick, died suddenly on February 15th at the home of his daughter, Dial Point, West Grinstead. He was 78 years of age.

He learnt to ring on the five bells at Aldrington when a lad in the choir. He retired from Aldrington in 1896 and joined St. Peter's, Brighton with whom as well as with St. Nicholas', he rang many peals. Later he became an independent member of the Sussex Association and rang with various towers in the county, including West Grinstead, East Grinstead, Hurstpierpoint, Storrington, Shipley and Pulborough. He rang 104 peals, his first being on November 6th, 1897, and his last on November 24th, 1947.

A service in St. Leonard's Church, Aldrington, preceded the interment at Hove Cemetery, the Rector (the Rev. M. T. Moggridge) officiating. The bells were rung before and after the service and a touch of Grandsire Doubles at the graveside by A. Bond 1-2, F. Bennett 3-4, H. Stalham 5-6.

MR. R. TREHEARNE.

We regret to record the death on February 24th of Mr. R. Trehearne, of Cotterell Street, Hereford. For over 70 years he was a ringer, of which 42 years were spent at St. Nicholas', Hereford, where he was also a sidesman.

The funeral service was held at St. Nicholas', Hereford, on March 1st. In the evening a quarter peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung half-muffled by the following members of the local band: W. Yates 1, H. Johnson 2, W. Ritson (cond.) 3, W. Farr 4, F. Downes 5, P. Bruce 6.

MR. H. R. THORPE.

With regret we record the death on January 7th of Mr. Hugh Reginald Thorpe, of Buckland, Surrey, after a long illness. He was 67 years of age.

He had been connected with Buckland Church for many years, being the conductor of the local band. He had rung many peals of Treble Bob and other methods.

The funeral was at Buckland on January 11th, the service being conducted by the Rector (the Rev. A. H. W. Sanders). Apart from the family mourners, there were present many friends, including ringers from Buckland, Reigate and Betchworth.

MR. JOHN RAPLEY.

An old Sussex ringer, Mr. John Rapley, of Thakeham, died on Feb. 24th in his 91st year. He was not a great ringer, but rang in the last century.

It was largely through his initiative that the then five bells at Thakeham were recast and rehung. He was churchwarden for about 50 years and clerk to the Parish Council for the same period and headmaster of the village school from 1889 to 1924. His high example will long be remembered in the village.

To his memory 1,260 Grandsire Doubles was rung half-muffled on March 5th by Miss K. Robinson 1, C. Skinner 2, Miss J. Gumbrell 3, C. Hone 4, B. Farhall (cond.) 5, J. Robinson 6.

MR. GEORGE WILLIAMS' WILL LIBRARY TO WINCHESTER AND PORTSMOUTH GUILD.

A library of books on bellringing and literature connected with ringing have been left to Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild by Mr. George Williams, of Eastleigh, who died on January 28th, 1949.

Mr. Williams left £3,582 8s. 8d. gross, £3,531 13s. 1d. net value.

Among other bequests were:—

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD LEATHERHEAD DISTRICT.

About 50 ringers attended the Leatherhead District's annual meeting at Leatherhead on February 18th, representing most of the towers in the district, including the three just transferred from the Guildford District, and these were given a warm welcome by the Ringing Master, Mr. H. N. Pitso, before the commencement of the business meeting.

Tea was served at the Institute, following a service, conducted by Canon F. A. Page, with an address by the Rev. M. R. Buckley. The usual business meeting followed, with Canon Page in the chair. The committee's report on the year recorded the death of Mr. A. Hadley, of Ewell, the assistant secretary's first peal and the continuance of a local Sunday service band at Ashted.

Commenting on the bad 'go' of Ockley bells at a meeting held there, Mr. Grover said that the meeting had done some good, as he had had a letter about the bells and the tower, and saying that an estimate was being sought to overhaul them. There was no sign of anything being started at Capel yet, though it had been hoped that a start was to have been made early in the year.

A grant of £2 from the district funds was voted to the Cobham tower repair fund, which repair had cost over £200.

The meeting ended with the usual votes of thanks to Canon Page and the Rev. Buckley, to E. Bugden (organist) and G. Marriner, and ringing was resumed until nearly 9 o'clock, though, as is usual with a large attendance, the striking suffered on the whole.

Mr. Frank E. Pervin

Mr. Frank E. Pervin, of Coventry, celebrated his 65th birthday on March 8th, which was the 50th anniversary of his first peal. During his half-century of ringing he has rung 527 peals, of which he has conducted 146. His list is appended:—

DEDICATION

LONG BUCKBY, NORTHANTS.

The service of thanksgiving for the restoration of the bells of St. Lawrence's, Long Buckby, was held on Saturday, March 4th.

The singing so ably led by the choir, the thanksgiving prayers of the priest from the ringing chamber, and the presence of a large congregation, which included approximately 40 ringers from neighbouring towers, all combined to make the occasion one which will long be remembered.

Immediately after the service the opening touch was rung by members of the local band. The other ringers then took part in short touches.

The ladies of the church kindly provided tea, after which the Rev. T. W. Long expressed the thanks of the company to the Vicar and all of the parish who had assisted.

The monthly meeting of the Guilsborough Branch followed, with the Rev. T. W. Long in the chair. It was decided that the next meeting be at Yelvertoft on April 15th, and that arrangements be made to visit Taylor's bell foundry on June 10th.

The bells of St. Lawrence's, Long Buckby, are a ring of five (tenor 15 cwt. 1 qr. 27 lb.) and were rehung in an iron frame in 1900 by J. Taylor and Co., and have now been further restored by the same firm by rehanging on ball bearings. Messrs. Taylor's were represented at the service by Mr. J. P. Fidler.

A WARWICKSHIRE VILLAGE

THREE weeks ago we featured certain characteristics of the old Cheshire village of Bunbury. The article has inspired an interesting letter from Mr. H. R. Leach concerning the Warwickshire village of Bilton, near Rugby. Much of the glory of English life is to be found in villages and their bells. Time moves slowly in many of these communities, and they bring a hallowed restfulness to the town dweller whose mind is not dulled by the artificiality of the age.

It was back in September, 1948, that St. Mark's Church, Bilton, was restored, and the shingled spire surmounting the sturdy tower made safe. At the same time the five old bells were rehung in an iron frame and a sixth bell added as a memorial to the men of the village who gave their lives on service during the 1939-45 War. The work was carried out by Messrs. Taylors, of Loughborough. The dedication service had a special hymn written for the occasion:—

Back six hundred years in history

Men whose names remain unknown,
Raised this House of strength and beauty,

Craftsmen wrought in wood and stone:

Willing hands, inspired with worship,

Faltered not when times were dark,

Till at length this Church was standing Dedicated to St. Mark.

Three of these bells are of considerable antiquity and were cast circa 1460. The present third, bearing the inscription, 'Sancta Katerina Ora Pro Nobis,' was made by John Sturdy or John Kebyll, of London, and weighs 4 cwt. 1 qr. 7 lb. The fourth and fifth were both cast by John Danyell, of London, and are respectively inscribed, 'Wox Augustini Sonet in Aure Dei' and 'Beata Katerina Ora Pro Nobis. Ihu Merci Ladi helpe.' Their weights are 5 cwt. 13 lb. and 7 cwt. 14 lb. The tenor was cast by the first Henry Bagley, of Chacombe, near Banbury, in 1662, and is in A flat. An unusual feature is that it is lighter than the fifth, being 7 cwt. 12 lb. The second is dated 1722, and was made by Richard Sanders, of Bromsgrove. The donor's name is inscribed on the bell, 'The gift of the Honourable Countess of Warwick.' The five bells have still their cannons and have never been recast; the only work undertaken on the original bells was to have them quarter-turned.

Bilton seems to have maintained its age-long tradition for ringing. Mr. Leach informs us that the local customs are as follows:—

On Sundays the bells are chimed for Communion service and rung for morning and evening service. Ringing also takes place at Christmas, Whit Sunday, Trinity Sunday and

New Year's Eve and also on November 5th. The death knell is sounded as soon as convenient, the usual tellers being followed by 15 minutes' tolling. The fourth bell is rung for an adult and the treble for a child. At funerals the fourth bell is tolled slowly for 10 minutes before the service and at the conclusion the tellers. An unusual custom is to ring a bell for choir practice.

Bilton has hitherto not figured prominently in 'The Ringing World.' None of the ringers had had any experience of change ringing prior to the rehanging of the bells, so they are at present a struggling band but, adds Mr. Leach, keen. They are only ringing plain courses through lack of instruction. The circumstances of this village are frequently met, and the solution is not easy. Progress can rarely be achieved without a competent instructor, although we did hear of a case in Berkshire where six young people by grim determination succeeded in ringing passably well, starting from scratch without an instructor.

Unquestionably it is one of the primary functions of Guilds to provide instructors. It was only recently that we gave details of work being accomplished in certain Norfolk villages where evening institute classes are being held in ringing. This is a relatively new angle of approach to the subject, and we trust that as time proceeds other educational authorities will take similar action. There are countless classes being held to foster and encourage the old English pastime of folk and country dancing, and there is no reason why change ringing, which is so characteristically English, should not receive the same support. Nevertheless, the main responsibility is with the Guilds themselves. We know of ringers who have dedicated their leisure to the purpose of advancing these struggling bands. Their names are honoured in their Guilds and Associations.

But all the help for these village bands must not come from outside. The keen beginner will not remain in his own tower but will be prepared to travel to neighbouring towers and district meetings to assimilate as much as possible. The greatest stumbling block on the part of many beginners, particularly when they have passed the first blush of youth, is a wrong impression that they are not wanted. It cannot be too strongly emphasised that the big programmes of meetings weekly advertised in our columns are held for the advancement of all stages of ringing. What is desired are two essential factors—keenness and good fellowship. Most Guilds will strain every nerve to help a struggling village band providing there is a genuine desire to learn and a reasonable aptitude to respond to the instruction. Lastly, there is no easy path to ringing. It cannot be accomplished satisfactorily without determination and application.

Mr. E. Barnett, of Cray-offer my sympathy to Mr.

pointment, having on May 18th, 1949, lost a peal specially arranged on the 50th anniversary of my first.

Mr. H. C. Weaver has completed the circle of West Tarring (Sussex) tower.

Miss Margaret E. Richards rang the treble to a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major at Water-moor, Cirencester, without a stay!

Mr. John Worth rang his 500th peal at Hyde, Cheshire. It was a memorable occasion, being the first silent peal of Bristol.

Mr. D. T. Matkin has now called peals of Plain Bob from Minor to Maximus, both on tower bells and 'in hand.'

Ringers at Silk Willoughby, Sleaford, Lincs, precede their weekly practice during Lent with a service from 7 to 8 p.m.

A word of praise comes from Frodsham to Mr. Peter N. Bond for the way he handled the sixth bell at Perry Barr, Birmingham, in a peal of London on March 3rd.

We regret to learn that Mr. Percy Bray-shaw, a former member of the St. Peter's, Bournemouth, band, lost his life in an air crash while serving with the R.A.F.

Kevin S. Hohl (14), who rang his first peal at Hartfield, Sussex, is one of several promising youngsters who are being taught by Messrs. E. J. Ladd and B. Collison at St.
Peter's, Tunbridge Wells.

Mr. Charles W. Roberts, who conducted the peal of Spliced Surprise Major (Bristol, Bolton and Peterborough), writes that the actual date of the performance was February 2nd and not 26th, as stated in 'The Ringing World' of February 24th. He regrets the error.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Another fine handbell performance comes from Burton-on-Stather, Mr.
George E. Feirn conducting a peal of 17 Major methods spliced. Mr. John E. Spice rang 'in hand' 21 Major methods at Oxford, but we understand that this peal was not 'spliced' according to the Central Council's Decisions.
If that is the case, Mr. Feirn's band has created a new record in spliced ringing 'in hand.'

His many friends will be pleased to learn that Mr. Sam Hector, of Trowbridge, is now much better.

We understand that the papers and records of the late Mr. J. H. Shepherd have been left to the Central Council.

Four of the century makers of 1949 rang in a handbell peal of Plain Bob Maximus at Leicester. They were Mrs. F. J. Marshallsay, Messrs. D. T. Matkin, A. Ballard and H. J.
Poole.

With the peal at Ashton-under-Lyne on March 4th, Messrs. D. Ogden, F. Barraclough and I. Kay have rung Plain Bob from Minor to Maximus, whilst Mr. P. H. Tocock has now conducted Plain Bob from Minor to Maximus.

On March 12th, Mr. William H. Male, of Warwick, tapped a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples without the aid of figures on his miniature chime of bells, in 45 minutes. The performance was witnessed by his father, Mr. T.
Male.

The claim that the peal at Hazelbeech on February 19th was the first on the bells has been refuted from several sources. Mr. G. E.
Watson, of Burton Latimer, writes that at least two peals were rung after 1933 for the Midland Counties Association, viz., Stedman Triples on June 13th, 1937, and Double Norwich Court Bob Major on July 9th, 1939.

First Silent Peal of Bristol

UMPIRE'S INTERESTING OBSERVATIONS.

Congratulations to the Chester Diocesan Guild band who rang the first silent peal of Bristol Surprise Major at Hyde, Cheshire, on March 11th.

The umpire, Mr. T. Wilde, Ringing Master and instructor, Stockport and Bowdon Branch, Chester Diocesan Guild, makes the following interesting report on the proceedings:—

The peal was rung strictly silent and without any kind of signalling from one ringer to another. I warned the band before the start that I should stop the peal if there was any attempt to assist anyone who should make a mistake.

The 'slips' could be counted on the fingers of one hand and none went more than three or four changes before the culprit recovered himself. It was really a clever performance of peal ringing. I watched very carefully throughout the peal, saw every bob cleanly made, checked every course-end and the coursing order of the bells from the time I called 'Go' until I called 'Stand' at the conclusion of the peal.

I did not call 'That's all' as the bells came into rounds; I waited to see if anyone carried on, but, of course, that did not occur. It would, perhaps, have raised an argument if it had happened. I would not have certified the peal correct if this had occurred. Should I have been right in my decision?

It is essential that we observe the highest standard of integrity in our peal ringing, and peals such as this indicate the perfection to which we should all aspire. We can make some allowance with a youngster ringing his first peal or two, but when the 'brass hats' start ringing silent peals of London and Bristol they won't be allowed to flicker an eyelid if I'm the umpire.

I should like to have the opinions of other ringers on the above matters. I know that we cannot set a definite standard of what can be allowed in mistakes in a peal—it must be left to the ringers' conscience; but we can guide ringers at large by voicing our opinions in 'The Ringing World.'

SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

The annual meeting was held at Ranmoor, Sheffield, on March 11th, when only a small gathering of members rang on the light ring of ten in methods ranging from Bob Minor and Major, Cambridge and Yorkshire Major and Plain and Little Bob Royal, with a touch of Grandsire Caters.

Tea was served in the Church Hall, with 27 members sitting down. Canon Foster, who was in the chair for the business meeting, remarked how pleased he was to welcome the Society to Ranmoor.

In his report the secretary announced that 119 members were financial, including 20 new members, with three losses by death, also 24 peals had been rung, including the first of Stedman Doubles in Yorkshire.

The officers elected for 1950 were: President, Mr. H. O. Chaddock; treasurer, Mr. S. F. Palmer; Ringing Master, Mr. N. Chaddock, with his assistant, Mr. G. C. Briggs; secretary, Mr. J. E. Turley, with his assistant, Mrs. J. E. Turley. It was decided to raise subscriptions from January 1st, 1951.

CENTRAL COUNCIL & EASTBOURNE

Dear Sir,—I recently wrote regarding arrangements for coach trips for delegates and friends attending the Central Council at Eastbourne at Whitsun. Owing to the very poor response to my letter the project has been abandoned. Will the few who wrote me kindly note?—Yours faithfully,

Bolton Parish Church

WHEN RINGERS PAID THEIR FOOTINGS.

The following article by Mr. Alan Pendlebury on the bells of Bolton Parish Church will be read with particular interest by young ringers. It tells of an age when ringing was regarded as a great privilege.

Our Parish Church has many old treasures, among which are the bells, five of which are 250 years old this month. In our tower there is a ring of eight bells, five of which were cast in 1699 by one Henry Bagley, of Ecton, a travelling bell-founder, who recast the three existing bells and added two more to the ring. The inscription on the tenor bell is:—

I to the Church the living call,
And to the grave do summons all.
Henry Bagley made mee, 1699.

The octave was completed during the incumbency of the Rev. T. Bancroft in 1806, when three treble bells cast by John Rudhall, of Gloucester, were added. The church records include many fascinating reports concerning the bells and the ringers, and it is from these records only that we are able to deduce anything about the history of the bells.

It is thought probable that the 'tenor' or the 'great' bell has been rung in the church since very early times and there are references to three bells throughout the 17th century. In 1659 it was 'resolved ye great bell, which now is burst, shall be maid new this year with all speede may be.' In 1677 the churchwardens provided 'Oyle for the bells in the whole year 3 times at 4d. a time; and 6d. for a man's pains and hyre of a horse to look for a piece of wood to be a headstock for a bell.' The ringers of former days had many more responsibilities than we have to-day, as is shown on an old board hung up in the belfry; it is not very clear, but it is possible to decipher the following:—

'BOLTON PARISH CHURCH,

April 29th, 1783.

At a parish meeting herein held it is ordered by the Vicar, churchwardens and other parishioners present that whereas the ringers in their turn are allowed the benefit of tolling at funerals, the ringer whose turn it is shall, as soon as the corpse arrives at the church gates, come down out of the belfry and remain in the church while the funeral service is performed and do his endeavour to prevent noise and disturbance through crying children or rude and disorderly boys and others who too often crowd the church at these solemnities and that the ringer who refuses or neglects so to do shall forfeit his aforesaid privilege.'

Moreover, it is said to think in these days, when ringers are few and less keen than their predecessors, that at one time people were so eager to learn to ring that the ringers had to impose fees to stem the rush! These were the

Before the opening of the railway to Manchester, passengers on the packet boat service to Manchester via the canal were reminded of the time of departure by a veteran campanologist tolling on one of the church's bells. He was known as 'Old Bob Astley,' and the 'Shipping Company' gave him a small remuneration. In more recent times a peal of Superlative Surprise Major of 11,232 changes was rung in seven hours and ten minutes. At the time it was a record number of changes ever rung in that method anywhere before!

Mr. Percy W. Brayshaw

YOUNG BOURNEMOUTH AIRMAN KILLED.

The sudden death in a flying accident of this keen and popular young ringer came as a tragic blow to his relatives and many friends. Mr. Percy Brayshaw's parents had recently left Bournemouth to make their home in Jersey, but he was accustomed to spend his short leaves from the R.A.F. in Bournemouth, and so was frequently at his post in St. Peter's tower.

Deceased was a member of the young band who practised on handbells and learnt to handle a bell during the ban so that there might be a full company at St. Peter's ready to ring once the bells were freed. He was a first-class pupil, a good handler and striker, and always a little ahead in the matter of learning a new method. Percy had joined the church as a choirboy, afterwards becoming a server, bellringer and a member of the senior choristers.

Towards the end of 1947 he joined the R.A.F. as a regular and went to South Africa for his training, but, cheery as his letters were, it was obvious that he missed the bells very much. Upon his return he rang what proved to be his last peal on December 12th last year, taking 3-4 through Parker's Twelve-part perfectly and without any previous refresher practice. He rang 28 peals in all, mainly in the standard methods, although he was a safe ringer in Double Norwich, Stedman and Cambridge. He was 20 years of age.

The whole Exercise will wish to join St. Peter's company in extending to Mr. and Mrs. Brayshaw, his sister (also a ringer) and his brother their heartfelt sympathy at this time of tragic loss.

The funeral service took place at St. Peter's Church on March 18th, and the body was laid to rest in the Garden of Memory in St. Peter's Churchyard. The full choir attended, together with servers, bellringers and a large congregation. The Rev. J. Coutts gave a short address and a member of the local company of ringers was the organist. Immediately after the interment the bells of St. Peter's were rung half-muffled by a young band of Percy's contemporaries. Afterwards members of St. John's Surrey Road band assisted in ringing a touch of his favourite method (Kent Treble Bob Major) and the 'whole pull and stand' 20 times.

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION

MEETING AT OSWESTRY.

The meeting at Oswestry on March 11th produced a considerable variety of methods, although numbers attending were not large.

These historic bells, five of which were in the original Rudhall eight of 1717, have been in regular use since that date, as detailed records prove.

Visitors from Chester and Birmingham contributed to the methods rung, while beginners enjoyed periods of rounds. Among the local ringers present were Mr. J. Hughes, with 60 years' service in the tower, and Mr. David Davies, who called his first peal in 1894 and obliged with a touch of Grandsire Triples.

Methods rung included Cambridge, Superlative and London Surprise Major, Plain Bob, Little Bob and the special method for practice, Double Oxford Major.

CHANGE-RINGING MACHINES

By B. D. Price.

MOVING THE BELLPLATES IN CARTER'S MACHINE.

Before we make some further general considerations, let us examine the mechanism which moves the bellplates in Carter's machine, that is the mechanism which comes under category C of the previous synopsis.

Fig. 4 shows a perspective view of a single bellplate A. It slides lengthways in the frame (one side only shown, at B). It is capable of assuming twelve positions corresponding to the 12 places the bell it works can be in, and these 12 positions are made definite by a double spring C fixed to the frame and working in sets of notches D D in the sides of the bellplate. The plate carries a wooden pillar E (also Fig. 6), which carries the electrical contacts added later. The smaller metal button at the top of the pillar makes contact continuously with a wire F set in an insulating strip, while the other button-like contact G runs across 12 parallel wires H (of which only 4 are shown in Fig. 6). These wires run the length of the machine and serve all 12 bellplates. The two buttons on each pillar are sprung internally and connected electrically. To the long wires is fed in rotation the current for striking the bells, which passes via the wires F to the correct bells. It will be seen that this system is really the same as that described, so no further description is necessary. This system of contacts does not seem to do justice to the machine, and clearly shows that it was added as an afterthought.

The plates are moved by eleven long rods which run the length of the machine (Figs. 4 and 5). Two are shown at J J. These rods are responsible for making pairs of bells change places. When any rod J moves along its length, it causes two bellplates to move, these two changing positions. For example, a particular one makes the bellplates in 4ths and 5ths places swap. We can call the J rod which does this the 4x5 rod (there are only 11 and the first and last are 1x2 and 11x12). Each rod had 12 boat-shaped lugs K, one opposite each bellplate. These lugs clear the bellplate and do not touch it when the rod J slides lengthways, but they engage with 'clicks' on the underside of the bellplates. Fig. 5 is an underview of the bellplate. The clicks L L are pivoted on the bellplate A at M M and are held in position by a light spring N. (This has been simplified in the figure.) If moved to left or right either will return to its former position exactly. If the boat-lug K (the rod it is on is dotted as it does not foul the bellplate) advances towards the bellplate it will engage the left hand click and in doing so will push the bellplate to the left. The springs O (Fig. 4) will then ensure that the bellplate assumes its new position accurately. As the lug K advances it will also, in moving the bellplate, push against the right-hand click, which will simply move slightly and return doing nothing. When K returns, the clicks will be restored to their usual positions by the spring N. Now the rod which carries the lug K will also have a lug somewhere on its length which is opposite the right-hand click of another bellplate, which occupies the position next on the left. This bellplate (whichever it is) will be moved to the right, just as the one we have considered would be moved to the right if the lug P advanced. Thus it is that the rod J on which lug K is placed moves two bellplates and causes them to swap. If the lug K advances again and again, the bellplate will alternately move left and right, in other words, dodge with some other bellplate.

Note that there are only eleven rods with lugs, while the bellplate has twelve positions. When it is in an end position (1sts or 12ths) one of the clicks will have no lug K opposite it. This is quite in order, as a bell in 1sts place cannot hunt down, neither can a bell in 12ths place hunt up!

This system of movement deserves careful study. It requires a high standard of accuracy for successful working. It has one great advantage, and one great disadvantage.

The advantage is that at one swoop it banishes all the difficulties of preselection. One might say of it that the bellplate moves itself, as it automatically places itself opposite the correct rod. If the 3x4 rod advances to make the bells in 3rds and 4ths places swap, then the corresponding bellplates in those places will have their clicks correctly placed and will be moved. All, therefore, that is needed (see previous synopsis) is section A, to feed the right sequence of swops to the rods which carry the lugs (herewith called preselector rods, J J in Fig. 4).

But there is a great disadvantage to this system, and this lies in a difficulty as to when the movement is to take place. Obviously the electrical ~~switching~~ concerned with striking of the bells must be left stationary when they are functioning. A bellplate cannot be moved in the period when its bell is striking. A solution is to move all the bellplates to be moved in between changes. This allows a considerable time between backstrokes and handstrokes due to the open lead, but for the other stroke there is a very short period available for movement, and any device must jerk the bellplates rapidly into their new positions. This, unfortunately, is apparently not possible with the Carter arrangement. Mr. Woodhouse has experimented with these 'clicks' and finds they will not function rapidly. It has also occurred to me that the original mechanical device for ringing the bells on Carter's machine may have needed a much longer period for operation while the bellplates are still. Thus when the bell in 12ths place is striking, the modern electrical impulse to do this is brief and the bellplate for that bell may be moved immediately afterwards for the next change. On the other hand, if a mechanical striking arrangement is used attached to the bellplate, the striking action of the bell in 12ths place may not have finished functioning before the striking action of the bell in 1sts place in the next change has started. In this case no time at all is available for the bellplates to move together.

The solution of the problem is best understood by watching Carter's machine working. It involved a great deal of the complex control mechanism. The method adopted is to make the movements of the preselector rods smooth (Carter uses eccentric cams, explained later) and to 'stagger' their action so that they are not all working at once. When the machine is working, while the last bells of a change are being struck the bellplates which struck first are already being moved in readiness for the next change, so that although their movement is slow and smooth, there is ample time for it to happen. Thus supposing all eleven preselector rods were to move (which is not possible) a wave of movement would travel along the row, a smooth movement for each. This is sufficient to impart an even movement to the clicks and to move the bellplates correctly. This staggering solves the difficulty one must have had with the time lag of mechanical striking.

This explanation of why the staggering was adopted is my own. We may never know the truth, but I believe mine is a reasonable assumption. One can imagine that a swift movement of the lugs K might send the bellplate two places instead of only one.

But this staggering of the movement produces complications. That part of the mechanism which stores up what swops to make for each new change cannot be continuously feeding its information to the preselector rods, as these latter never cease operation together. Thus it is that Carter sub-divided the controls into two sections, one for handstrokes and one for backstrokes. While one set of controls is operating the preselectors, the other set is re-setting for the next change.

CARTER'S MACHINE: THE CONTROLS

Figs. 8 and 9 illustrate the mechanism used. Both are side views of the mechanism. The preselector rod J (Fig. 8) is one of the eleven running the length of the machine. Three boat lugs K K K are shown, the end one being incorporated into the thickened end of the rod J, which carries on its underside a square notch. A spring on the other end of the rod J (not shown) keeps it to the right. It is pulled left when the bellplates are to be moved by a rod A, which is driven by an eccentric cam B on a shaft which revolves once per change. There are only 6 cams, not 11, and all but one work a pair of rods such as A. Thus there are 11 rods A, one for each J, but only 6 eccentrics B and 6 levers C. The 6 eccentrics are staggered on their shaft, giving sufficient staggering to the action of the J's. It is probable that this staggering has to be very carefully adjusted so that the machine may ring changes on any number of bells with equal dexterity.

Much depends on the fact that two preselector rods J next to one another are never required to work at the same time (because, e.g., the bells in 4x5 cannot swap while the bells in 5x6 swap). Therefore, two consecutive J's never work together. If they did, a pair of clicks on a bellplate would jam and stop the machine. The rod A is lifted at the exact instant needed to engage J, by a cam D which is on a revolving frame of rods. This cam D is responsible for moving two rods such as A and normally passes between them as the 'squirrelcage' E revolves. The cage E carries 12 rods, only one fully shown, which are spaced out evenly around the cage in 13 equal spaces. This sounds Irish! The extra space is occupied by a fixed rod with 6 pins, F, which does not run the length of the cage, although there is a similar one at the other end of the squirrelcage (not shown). The function of these fixed rods will be described later. The 12 long rods run the width of the machine, and each carries a cam such as D which has a shaped foot sliding over the brass shank of the cage. Thus, although each rod can slide, it cannot revolve. As the cage revolves, the rods in turn pass the region marked G G, and the outside frame of the machine is shaped so as to push a rod in if it projects at either end. Thus the frame lines up the rods as they pass G, and in this position the cams D do not lift the rods A at all.

As the rods rise up on the right-hand side of the cage, they are possibly moved sideways by a mechanism to be described, pushing a pin H (each rod carries one) and so moving the rod to one side or the other. Then the cam on this rod, in rising over the summit of the cage E, will lift a rod A and so actuate a preselector rod. All the 11 rods A lie over the centre section of E.

Each rod is responsible for moving a pair of preselectors, as follows. The rods are numbered in the diagram in the order in which they can act.

Rod No. 1	1x2	or	2x3	handstroke
2	3x4	or	4x5	handstroke
3	5x6	or	6x7	handstroke
4	7x8	or	8x9	handstroke
5	9x10	or	10x11	handstroke
6	11x12	only		handstroke
7	1x2	or	2x3	backstroke
8	3x4	or	4x5	backstroke
9	5x6	or	6x7	backstroke
10	7x8	or	8x9	backstroke
11	9x10	or	10x11	backstroke
12	11x12	only		backstroke

The eccentric cam B and the cam D together are responsible for moving a pair of A's and via these a pair of J's. The six rods 1 to 6 have their moving pins H on the near section of the cage. They control the swops for handstroke; the rods 7 to 12 control the backstroke swops. Thus the whole revolution of the cage corresponds to a whole pull and the cams on rods 1 and 7 work with the same rods A. It will be seen that the function of the cage is of timing the rising of the rods A to the correct moment at which they will engage rods J, and also to combine the handstroke and backstroke controls. The cage stores up the swops necessary in sideways movements of its rods until they are needed. The cage is the price paid for the use of the clicks.

Fig. 9 shows how the sideways movement of the rods is attained. It represents the mechanism on one side of the machine only. A is a control box which has a forest of little levers capable of being set so that a particular one, B, will press on a lever C when the box moves downwards. There are 11 of the levers C, made of thin steel, pivoted at D, and they correspond with the 11 swops 1x2 to 11x12. When this lever C is pressed down it pulls down the lug E, shown exaggerated in diagram, and causes the shaft F to rock. This makes the scoop G on the end of the shaft to incline towards the viewer, and so when the cage H (the same as the squirrel-cage E in Fig. 8) carries the rod with its pin J past the scoop G, the whole rod will move sideways. The lug E has a lever C each side of it, and so can move left or right. The scoop G can move J either way. The whole sequence is—

In Fig. 9 the 6 pins J are passing through the 6 scoops G for half a revolution of the cage H. Therefore the control box A has to remain pressed on the levers C for half a revolution. The rest of the revolution of H is occupied in the box rising, setting maybe a new row of pins opposite the levers C, and pressing down again. Obviously one control box cannot do all this and look after the other 6 rods of the cages as well; the whole system of Figs. 9 and 10 is duplicated on each side of the machine.

The row of fixed pins on the fixed rods F (Fig. 8) is merely to assist the return of the scoops G (Fig. 9) to their central position.

CARTER'S MACHINE. STORING THE SWOPS.

Fig. 10 explains the rest of the working, the mechanism which makes the control box A rise and fall.

The control box A has two movements. Firstly, it rises and falls regularly every two changes as just described. The pair of rods B (one behind the other in figure), on which it slides, is attached to an arm C and pivoted at D. This arm is worked by a cam E on the same shaft as the squirrel-cage. Thus the control box rises and falls, pressing down on the levers under it at the right moment. The pins in the control box are in 15 rows of 6. The six pins in any row are arranged as in Fig. 7. They are normally upright and do not press down on the levers underneath. It will be seen that any required combination of swops may be set in any row.

When a method is being rung, all the necessary sets of swops are set in the control boxes. Each box A (Fig. 10) slides along the rods B so that any desired row of pins on it is brought to bear on the levers underneath. The selection is controlled by a control drum, not previously mentioned, at the other end of the machine (there are two separate control drums, one on each side of the machine). Each drum consists of two discs (one shown at F) revolving on a shaft G. The discs hold a cylinder of 48 rods such as H. These for convenience are set in pairs, but they work independently, each being capable of sliding along its length.

The cam J (Fig. 10) holds back the system of levers K L M, which is pivoted at N N, the spring P holding them against the cam. The curiously shaped rack Q, which is pivoted at R, is held down by a heavy spring T attached to the lever L. When the cam J releases the levers K L M slowly (pushing control box A along rods B while so doing), the spring T rises and releases rack Q, which, due to a light spring S, also rises, until one of its teeth is stopped by a rod H which is directly above it. Thus the position of the rod H governs how far the rack rises. (This is similar in action to a well-known movement in grandfather clocks.) Then, when the lever L moves farther over, it is arrested at its lower rack-like end by the prong or rack R.

The whole arrangement stops moving, the cam J leaves its lever K, and so the control box is left in the position determined by the setting of the rod H, and descends to do its work. When it rises again, the cam J, in pushing the lever K, returns the whole assembly to its former position, as in Fig. 10, and a small pawl pushes the drum F G H round one position. Thus the 48 rods H are one by one brought to exert their selective action. The shaft G has a clockspring on it and a dial at the outer end. This dial can be set at any number from 0 to 48, and when the drum F G H has gone the set number of steps around, the pawls are released and the spring returns the drum to zero. When ringing a method the drum usually returns to zero at the end of each lead. As there are two whole assemblies of Fig. 10, the machine is capable of ringing any method of up to 96 changes per lead!

Suppose we wish to ring Double Norwich Major. We set first a revolving contact arm (as in Fig. 1 but on a larger scale) to ring 8 bells, and set 8 of the bellplates to their home positions. The machine will now ring rounds on the 8 bells. Examine a lead of Double Norwich. All the handstroke swops are the same—four pairs of bells crossing in 1x2, 3x4, 5x6, 7x8. Set this on row 3 of the pins in the handstroke control box. Rows 1 and 2 are reserved for bob and single, and are not used by settings of the control drum. They are brought into action by pressing small buttons at the side of the machine. Then set the first slide of the handstroke control drum to give this row of pins, and set its dial at 0. Then the drum will not go round at all and the four pairs of bells crossing will come up at every handstroke as desired.

For backstroke swops, there are in Double Norwich four regular ways of swopping: (2x3, 4x5, 6x7) set on row 3 of the backstroke control box, (2x3, 5x6, 7x8) on row 4, (1x2, 4x5, 7x8) on row 5, (1x2, 3x4, 6x7) on row 6. Set row 1 (for a bob) at (2x3, 4x5, 7x8) and row 2 for a single at (2x3, 4x5). Set the control drum slides to bring up in order rows 4,5,6,3,6,5,4,3, and set the dial at 8 to return the control drum to zero at the end of the lead.

There is a button for calling bobs and singles at each side of the machine according as to whether they are at hand (Stedman) or at back (most methods). When pressed they stop the control box advancing so that the first or second row of pins is brought into action. The machine, by the regular mechanism of Fig. 10, does not use these rows at all.

Switch on the electric motor, which is in the box-like base of the machine. This sets the wiper arm going, delivering current to the bells, and rounds is rung. The bells are in a separate cabinet wired up to the machine by a cable. They were made specially for the purpose, and are struck by small hammers worked by electromagnets.

A clutch operated by a handle will start up the whole assembly of Figs. 8, 9 and 10, and the machine rings Double Norwich. Bobs may be called by pressing the button at the right moment. This needs some skill and practice, as there is little time-latitude given to the conductor.

ST. DAVID'S DIOCESAN GUILD

The quarterly meeting in this sparsely 'belled' area (11 rings in three counties) was held at Burry Port, Carmarthenshire, on March 11th. The bright sunshine brought members from Haverfordwest, Pembrokeshire (50 miles), Llandilo and Llanstephan (30 miles), as well as from the nearer churches at Carmarthen and Llanelly. Visitors from Glamorgan were also present.

The Church of St. Mary is comparatively new, less than 100 years old, but is unfortunate in having only five bells, six being considered a bare minimum for a ring. Nevertheless, when going well on Saturday in Grandsire and Plain Bob Doubles the light bells were tapping through the changes prettily. Perhaps the sixth bell will be found one day.

The special form of service was conducted by Canon D. J. Morgan, with the assistance of Rev. A. Morgan and Mr. Scathe (lay reader). In his address the Canon referred to the passing of the late Archbishop of Wales, the Guild's president, and said that the Guild could never have a president with greater interest in and sympathy with the Guild.

He referred to the exchange of gifts, from the one side the competition shield and the gift of the Guild to the retiring Archbishop of a silver bell-shaped inkpot.

Refreshments were provided in the Parish Hall by the lady hon. members, after which the Canon presided over the meeting. Reference was made to the ringing competition in May at Llanelly, but a discussion on the provision of refreshments, free or otherwise, brought no decision.

A vote of thanks to the Canon, lady helpers and all who had made the visitors welcome, was proposed by D. H. Betts, of Haverfordwest.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

MOST MUSICAL CHANGES

Dear Sir,—Having for over 60 years listened to changes and bells from 6 cwt. to over 60 cwt. tenors, may I give a few observations on Mr. R. F. Baker's letter in your issue of March 10th?

The late Mr. Arthur Knights, when asked his opinion on the best musical method, said Little Bob, especially Royal. I remember words from the late Mr. William Pye somewhat as follows: The interior of a course is like the verse of a song, and the course-end is the chorus.

Speaking to a friend recently, he said that if he were condemned or sentenced to ring only one method, he would choose Stedman before any of the Surprise methods, to which the writer readily agreed, as in my estimation Stedman Caters in the Tittums and 5.6 in 1.2 at course-ends produces a continuity of grand music, with 6.8 behind at the 7th six, 9.7.5 at 11th, 7.6.5.9. at 12th, 9.6 at 13th, and 9.7.8 at course, with the tenor covering, much more to be desired than the jumble often heard in some so-called higher methods.—Yours truly,

GEORGE E. SYMONDS.

A TERRITORIAL'S WELCOME

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent P. Newing, writing in the issue of March 10th, would seem to have met the same happy spirit in the West Country as I myself found.

On attending T.A. annual camp at Bude, in Cornwall, I contacted the tower captain at Marhamchurch, and on my second day in the locality attended practice night at that church. The kindness and hospitality with which I was greeted were truly amazing. A casual enquiry as to the number of bells, if any, in a tower which I had observed, brought forth the offer to 'make up a set' and give me a pull there one evening. In all, I added five new towers to my list in that fortnight—Marhamchurch, Poughill, Kilkhampton, Bridgerule and the glorious heavy eight at Stratton. In almost every case, a member of the band would ensure my safe return to camp—somewhat isolated—by car. Small wonder that I left Cornwall with a warm glow of gratitude in my heart, and their 'Come again' ringing in my ears.

Incidentally, dear sir, the Territorial Association is this year depositing us at Tonfanaun on the north-west Welsh coast. Is there any ringing in this out-of-the-way neighbourhood?—Yours sincerely,

JOAN E. M. HILLS.

Stanford-le-Hope, Essex.

ST. MARY REDCLIFFE

Dear Sir,—With reference to the report of our Ringers' Sunday which recently appeared in 'The Ringing World' and to the mention of the 'flat sixth' which is required to give us a light ring of eight, I am happy to state that this has now become a reality and the order has been placed for same.

A number of ringers have asked to be allowed to contribute towards the cost of this bell, and it prompts me to believe that it is possible that there are others who desire to do so. The bell is to be hung in memoriam to the late Ralph Morgan, organist at the church for over 40 years, and a considerable portion of the money has already been subscribed.

If there should be any ringers who desire to subscribe to this fund, will they please forward their contribution to me by not later than March 31st? My thanks to those who made the original offer.—Yours sincerely,

E. F. HANCOCK.

A 'STORMY PETREL'S' CONGRATULATIONS

Dear Sir,—Permit me to join Mr. T. C. Belton in congratulations to an old friend, Mr. Ernest Morris, on his latest achievement of having rung 1,000 peals on tower bells. The experience thus gained cannot be a mere personal record—it is of immense value to the Exercise because of the unbiased way in which Mr. Morris has gone about his work. It has been my pleasure to share in some of these peals.

I remember the first time we met—23 years ago. I was looked upon as a 'stormy petrel' (and still am by some, but of that I care not twopenny). I wanted my first peal on eight. No one around here would conduct it, so I wrote to 'our Ernest.' 'Yes,' came the reply. 'Tell me where and how I get there!' And he travelled from Leicester to Stony Stratford on the North Bucks boundary to call it, and it was only Grandsire Triples.

Since then we have rung peals together on all numbers except 12, some being in remote five-bell towers, where many of Mr. Morris' experience would have scoffed at the very suggestion, and the towers have profited as the result. 'Seed has been sown on good ground' and brought forth fruit in the form of awakened interest, new ringers, new bells, old ones restored, and so on.

Would the same have been possible had Mr. Morris took the attitude of some twelve-bell ringers, and looked upon it as lowering their dignity to ring a peal in anything less than an eight-bell tower—five in particular?

There are many to-day who snub five-bell towers, and yet they never snub five-bell ringers' subs. to their Guild or Association.

Northampton. P. AMOS.
[NOTE.—We feel certain that Mr. Amos is wrong in suggesting that those who ring on 12 bells snub those who ring peals on five bells. The example last year of the Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild is fresh in most readers' memories, and the endeavours he made to create new interests for ringers in five-bell towers are most praiseworthy.—Ed.]

GOOD MANNERS

Dear Sir,—In reply to Master Newing's letter in your issue of March 10th, I should like to say that I, too, am a young ringer, and during the past five years have visited many towers in Kent and others in Surrey and Sussex, and have always received a cordial welcome and every assistance. When I first started ringing I was one of a band of six young ones who attended an annual general meeting and were privileged to ring Grandsire Doubles on the front six of a fine ring of ten. This is only one instance, but if this is not being made welcome, what is? All young ringers are welcome if they adopt the right attitude. It is not good ringing that makes one welcome: it is good manners.—Yours sincerely, Canterbury, Kent.

D. CHATFIELD.

THE GAP IN GRAY'S 'ELEGY'

Dear Sir,—In looking through the current number of the 'Spectator' I came across the following:—

A prize had been offered for the best three verses to fill the gap which is supposed to have been left between the 6th and 7th stanzas of Gray's 'Elegy in a Country Churchyard,' and some lines submitted were so good that I decided to send them on to you:

'Never on Sabbath morns with duteous heed,
Will they again yon belfry's call obey,
Gath'ring, in fealty to their simple creed,
Within those sacred walls to kneel and pray.'

The author is Edith Baneroff, and her three verses took the first prize in the competition.—Yours sincerely, WILLIAM A CLARK.

Moseley, Birmingham.

The East Grinstead Guild

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The 23rd annual meeting of the Guild was held at East Grinstead on March 4th and attracted over 60 ringers. The fine octave, in one of the best towers in Sussex, was kept going in the standard methods until 4.15, when the Vicar of East Grinstead and president of the Guild, Dr. G. Golding-Bird, came up into the belfry to dedicate the board recording the peal by the officers for the Guild's 21st birthday. Although the board is of oak, it has been made to blend in with the stone peal tablets in the tower.

With this little ceremony over, a move was made downstairs for the service, conducted by the president, with an inspiring address by Mr. George Moone, a lay reader.

Tea in the Small Parish Hall was given as usual by the president, who afterwards took the chair and conducted the business in his own inimitable way. His witty remarks and funny stories between each item of the agenda prevented any dullness from creeping in. This year, however, a reply from the treasurer really had him stumped, to everyone's great amusement.

In his opening remarks, Dr. Golding-Bird thanked Miss Shepherd and her helpers for arranging the meeting and serving the tea, and went on to say how pleased he was to see the new peal board. He liked to see the doings of people recorded in this way and did not like churches with bare walls, as was the modern trend. He then congratulated Mr. F. Cullen on his work in preparing the board and for the time and trouble that he had taken with the new peal book, a fine blue morocco bound volume, with the contents in illuminated writing.

The report and balance sheet were adopted, there being a general feeling of satisfaction as to the Guild's financial position, for although expenditure was up by some £13 the balance remained about the same, and it was agreed that the Guild had had its most successful year.

Three new members were elected and all the officers were re-elected, with the exception of Mr. A. L. Ryman, who had left the district. Mr. G. D. Burroughs was appointed the new auditor.

On being told that the annual meeting of the Sussex County was on May 13th, the Guild meeting for that date was fixed for Westerham, as far away from Brighton as possible, and it was agreed that a letter be sent to the county secretary, asking if the Western and Southern Divisions could revert to their original Saturdays to avoid the clashing of meetings.

The summer outing caused the usual prolonged discussion, but after a choice of routes had been passed round, the date was fixed for August 19th, and the route via Canterbury, Faversham and Sittingbourne.

This concluded the business, and after the usual votes of thanks the president said that he had forgiven Mr. Oliver (the treasurer) and closed the meeting.

OBITUARY

MR. A. DAVIES.

The death occurred suddenly on March 6th of Mr. Alfred Davies, at 19, Crescent Road, Netherton, Dudley, in his 68th year.

He started ringing at Clent, Worcs, and then moved to Dudley, rang his first peal there in 1903, and after five or six years there joined the St. Andrew's, Netherton, band about 40 years ago, and, until an accident at work in 1945 caused him to resign, had been leader for about eight years.

He rang 159 peals altogether, in 43 towers (conducted 28), which included 10,176 Double Oxford Bob Major, December 27th, 1909) and 9,728 Superlative Surprise Major (December 26th, 1910), also 5,040 Erin Triples (conducted), a first by all the band, on the bells, in the county and for the Worcestershire Association (all ringers were members of the local band), February 22nd, 1912.

His interest in bells and bellringing never waned, and he would follow with great interest any peals in the local tower. His experience included quite a large Surprise family; indeed, his greatest number of peals in one method being 28 of London Surprise Major, conducted two.

The funeral was at Netherton Church on March 11th, the service being conducted by the Vicar, Rev. R. C. Stevens. A number of local ringers, and friends from farther afield, attended.

After the service, as a last mark of respect, 1,260 Grandsire Triples was rung with half-muffled clappers by: L. Prestidge 1, J. Bass 2, J. W. Cooper 3, H. Shuck 4, S. Prestidge 5, T. A. Townsend 6, R. J. Lees (cond.) 7, D. Watson 8.

MR. HARRY CURTIS.

Newbury tower has lost its foreman of over 20 years' standing, and the Newbury Branch a true comrade, in the person of Mr. Harry Curtis, who passed away on March 10th at the early aged of 61. Although ill for thirteen weeks, his death was unexpected and came as a great shock to his fellow-ringers and friends.

Born in the little village of Beadon, in the folds of the Berkshire Downs, he was taught to ring at the age of 10 by his brother Tom, and on coming to Newbury as a young man he became a member of the Newbury band and later their foreman. He was branch secretary for 13 years, Ringing Master for 10 years and a branch representative on the general committee of the Oxford Diocesan Guild.

Owing to the many organisations to which he belonged he was unable to indulge in peal ringing to any extent, but welcomed visiting ringers to his tower, whether for Sunday service ringing, on practice nights or for a peal attempt. He had attended all branch meetings in the 35 years he was a member with the exception of two, one of those being due to his last illness. His familiar figure, his genial disposition and his cheerful personality will be sadly missed.

The funeral was at Shaw, where the large congregation at the service testified to the great esteem in which he was held. The service was conducted by the chairman of the branch, the Rev. W. Kingsley Kefford, assisted by the Rector of Newbury, the Rev. Bertram Russell. After the interment half-muffled touches were rung on the bells by members of the branch who were able to be present.

LICHFIELD, STAFFS.—At the Cathedral on Feb. 20th, 1,277 Grandsire Caters: Miss B. Crossman 1, Miss J. Brindley 2, A. F. Sedgwick 3, P. Beresford 4, Miss J. Beresford 5, J. B. Webb 6, D. Beresford 7, W. J. Cope 8, G. E. Oliver (cond.) 9, M. N. Culling 10. Rung half-muffled as a token of respect to A. Bowler.

TO HELP BEGINNERS (7)

In our article last published we left the Beginners working through the remaining lessons and exercises of Section 1 of the course of instruction. So this week, for a change, we sum up, for those who may be newly-helping beginners, some useful conclusions born of experience in teaching the first stages—bell-handling:—

1. Don't put a beginner straight on to a raised bell. First show and explain to the pupil the working of the bell itself. Experience shows over and over again that otherwise pupils get some rather queer ideas about what is going on out of sight, and consequently make strange and often dangerous mistakes. With an intelligent appreciation of what is happening 'up top,' progress in handling is invariably about 30 per cent. quicker and anything from 50 per cent. to 70 per cent. safer!
2. Let the first pulls on a rope be a brief attempt at chiming. This gives the raw novice some idea of the 'feel' of a bell's weight, and thus of initial pull-resistance. (Explain that in 'raised' ringing that resistance is brief only.)
3. Realise your pupil still knows nothing (as a rule) of what ringing action looks like. So next demonstrate and explain, by ringing yourself, the complete action sequence and the 'stand' and lowering.
4. Now the 'preliminaries.' Don't neglect these if you want to turn out a good ringer. Show: Rope-approach for correct standing position; correct facing-angle; stance; eye-level at mid-sally height; correct arm-action in detail, and, lastly, go through the motion sequence of ringing on a 'dead' rope, letting the pupil follow you on a rope beside him.

(These four stages 'pay good dividends' and yield good results.)

5. Now silence and raise a bell, preferably the third in the ring, setting it up at back. If you have worked through the four preceding stages you will have no trouble with what follows. Start with Exercise 7, as given in the course. (See last article.) Note that, although there we described the use of the 'P and P,' yet here we have not referred to it. This is so that the advice given may be followed even if a 'P and P' is not available; but note that a 'pig-tail' is employed. This should be easy to get. A useful tip for Exercise 7 is that the instructor should rest his right hand lightly on the pupil's wrists as they go up on the back-stroke and come away again,

MR. ERNEST EVEREST.

A well-known and expert bellringer, Mr. Ernest Everest, of Chiddingstone, Kent, died on March 11th, after a long and painful illness borne with courage and without complaint. During all that time he was tenderly and skilfully nursed by his wife, a fully-qualified nurse.

Mr. Everest was the leader of the band and steeplekeeper at Chiddingstone, where he had rendered long and faithful service. Only a few weeks before his illness he was training young ringers at Penshurst. There were not many belfries in Kent which he did not know, and he will be much missed by his friends in the Kent County Association. He leaves a widow and a young son and daughter, and also an elder son by a former marriage.

The funeral service took place on March 16th, when many relatives and friends were present. In the evening the bells were rung muffled to a peal by eight old friends who came from Chiddingstone, Penshurst, Hever and Leigh.

and promote a slight forward and downward flick as the pull-off from back approaches the end of the down-stroke. This gives the pupil the 'feel' of maintaining tension on the rope (keeps a 'tight rope') and, unless arm action is at fault, promotes a straight fall of the rope—and confidence!

6. Work through to Exercise 10, in which the pupil has it all to himself. Most pupils, having had the four first stages, will run through Exercises 7 to 10 in one hour's tuition and make quite a good hand at managing a bell in that time.
7. Watch especially for the following faults that are common with beginners not trained with care. (They prevent the cultivation of good style and skilled handling.)
 - (a) Standing off the plumb-rope spot position.
 - (b) Feet tight together—reducing balance-base.
 - (c) Not facing the centre of the rope-circle.
 - (d) Looking 'up the rope.' Eyes not at sally level.
 - (e) Hands not touching in the grips. (Mal-aligned pulls.)
 - (f) Sally not grasped at full height for pull-off and for subsequent catching. Result—reduced length and time of pull-stroke, reducing control interval.
 - (g) Free hand after sally-stroke not transferred instantly to rope-end grip. Result—reduced control at back-stroke.
 - (h) Rope-end not gripped at position to give a full upward stretch of arms at back. Result—reduced control at back and often a poor 'rise' at sally.
 - (i) Pull-off from back not straight down with hands passing quite close to chest. Result—rope-throw and sally missing.
 - (j) Pull-strokes, both at sally and back, unfinished, i.e., not continuing on down to waist level. Results—loss of control; heavy-bell ringing very difficult then, if not impossible.
 - (k) Failure to maintain tension, i.e., to feel the bell up to the balance at the end of each stroke. (Keep a tight rope!)
 - (l) Bending the body about and twisting the neck. Keep head still and swing eyes from side to side. Slight bend only, of trunk, if necessary.
 - (m) Holding the breath. This is only an occasional fault, but watch for it and check it at once. Encourage breathing in such cases, in time with the movements, i.e., IN as arms go up and OUT as they come down, or 'in at sally' and 'out at back' strokes. This will usually lead to normal breathing in pupil's own time.
7. Lastly, don't miss a single point. Tell your pupil of his faults immediately. But give a word of praise and encouragement if any when the job is going well. It helps!

Our next article will be for the beginners themselves, again, who will now have become 'Learners.'

NEWS FROM SUFFOLK

MOST of the Guild secretaries in their annual reports do not confine themselves to factual details but incorporate general advice of a helpful character. Mr. Cecil W. Pipe, in his report for 1949 of the Suffolk Guild, makes a point of referring to striking. 'This all-important phase in our art,' he writes, 'is far more important than the ability to ring intricate methods or to pile up the peal totals. Good striking is only attained by the perfect rhythm of all the ringers and the ability to keep the same pace usually set by the tenorman.'

'If the tenorman is inclined to quicken or slacken his pace good strikers automatically sense the change and no one suspects the difference. As a rule bad striking is the result of bad handling, and a bad handler should be quickly noted by the rest of the band, who will be wise to ring to the pace of the offender. I again stress the importance of ringing rounds until a good beat is reached before calling the bells into changes. The greatest contribution to good striking is bold Open and Closed leads. Alas, not all our ringers can "open and close" the lead, and the striking suffers badly. Many ringers have no idea how to open and close, and I ask our more fortunate brethren to teach them.'

The question Mr. Pipe raises is very important; it is a problem before every Guild. The degree of interval in the Open Lead is defined in the textbooks accepted by the Exercise, although there is not a Decision of the Council on the subject. In many peals there is a tendency to curtail the Open Lead to the minimum, so much so that it is hardly perceptible. The craze for speed by some bands is partly responsible for this neglect which is to the detriment of rhythmic ringing. It is obvious that if the Open Lead is neglected the time taken by a peal of Major or Triples is reduced by one-eighth, and in a peal of Minor by more. On the other hand, an exaggerated Open Lead is detrimental to good ringing. We feel that the subject is of sufficient importance for consideration by the sub-committee dealing with the revision of Rules and Decisions of the Council.

Returning to Suffolk matters, the year 1949 was one of progress. The reports of the 16 district secretaries indicate that more church bells were rung for services on Sundays; membership of practical ringers and recruits had increased, and meetings on the whole had improved through larger attendances. Very little difficulty had been experienced in obtaining subscriptions, and nearly all members had paid before the end of the year.

In regard to the care of bells, there were two restorations during the year—the six at Bredfield (Messrs. Gillett and Johnston) and the ten at Grundisburgh (Messrs. John Taylor and Co.), the lightest ring of ten in any church in the world. About Easter it is expected that the new ring of six at Blythburgh will be dedicated—a product from Messrs. Mears and Stainbank—which should prove a great acquisition in a lonely part of Suffolk. Other work planned is the overhaul of the six bells at Brandeston, the recasting of two bells at Woodbridge and the adding of two new trebles at Cotton. In a general observation Mr. Pipe writes: 'Many of our once famous rings are showing signs of wear and tear, and there is much work for the bell foundries in the county. Funds for all these rings should be started now and not left until the bells are totally unringable.'

During the year 107 peals were rung for the Guild. Messrs. George A. Fleming, William J. Button and George Pipe qualified to having their names recorded in 'The Ringing World' as having rung 40 peals or over. Mrs. Pipe headed the list of conductors and would probably have doubled her total had she not been incapacitated by a sprained arm. Of the peals worthy of mention, the report notes that at Rickinghall, conducted by Mr. James Bailey; Hasketon, conducted by Mr. William Sawyer; Tuddenham, in honour of the diamond wedding of Mr. Charles Parker (aged 84); Stedman Triples at Afford and peals of Holt's Original, conducted by Mr. Frank Fisher; two peals at Southwold; those on the new bells at Bredfield and Grundisburgh, and the Little Bob at Bungay and Fressingfield, conducted by Mr. E. Whiting; the handbell peals conducted by Mr. George Wightman (aged 83), and the wonderful performances on the peal tour by the Yorkshire and Cheshire ringers.

The year has not been without its loss to Suffolk ringing. Among the deaths recorded are those of the Rev. W. H. Trickett, who served as clerical secretary; Mr. W. J. Groom, of Debenham, well known as a good ringer, a splendid striker and conductor; Mr. R. J. Steed, of the Stowmarket district; and Mr. John Hall, of Framlingham, who was one of the old school.

'The Ringing World' is now taking postal subscribers for the new quarter starting April 7th. Remittances: 20s. 12 months, 10s. 6d. six months, 5s. 6d. three months, to Mrs. Fletcher,
The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk.
Quarterly subscribers are reminded that their subscriptions are now due.

Mr. Ernie Stitch, who for over 22 years has been secretary of the Swansea and Brecon Guild, has resigned on leaving the district for Wolver-hampton. Writes a correspondent: 'We have grown to rely on his dynamic personality where ringing was concerned, and no stone was left unturned to obtain the use of bells when required. In his own tower at Aberavon, he is leaving a young band at ringers (both sexes), who, we hope, will continue to keep the bells of St. Mary's ringing.'

Mr. F. West, of Tyringham, Bucks, has just rung his first quarter peal after 48 years a ringer.

An all-youth company rang a quarter peal of Plain Bob Major at Kempston, Beds. They are now contemplating a peal!

Mr. S. J. Elliott, of 8, Sunny View, Yardley Hastings, Northants, is anxious for a loan of 'Among the Bells,' by the late Rev. F. E.
Robinson. Can any reader oblige?

Mr. James Bennett has passed another milestone with his 1,100th peal. The occasion was a happy one—the wedding of Miss R. Cullum, the daughter of the popular Kent ringer, Mr.
F. J. Cullum.

Mr. John Worth has completed the circle of the tower of Christ Church, Macclesfield, and Mr. Trevor M. Roderick that of Neath, Glam.

Mr. William Bottrill has now rung Kent
Treble Bob from Minor to Maximus.

Refraining from guessing the weight of the tenor at Polesworth, Warwickshire, Mr. George Oliver writes that he had heard conflicting reports ranging from 14 to 19½ cwt. Judging from the 'go,' he doubts whether it is over 14 cwt.

We welcome the return to our peal columns of Mr. S. W. Chapman with a peal of 21
Minor methods at Copt Oak on March 18th.
This was his first peal for 22 years after an absence from ringing for 20 years.

BELFRY GOSSIP

His many friends will regret to learn that Mr.
Claud Parks, the retiring secretary of the Surrey Association, has met with a road accident, and at the time of the annual meeting was in hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Owing to duplication of meetings, the Leeds and District Society have cancelled their meeting for April 1st.

The Exercise will express its condolences with Mr. W. H. Shuker, of Fallowfield, Manchester, the esteemed secretary of the Lancashire Association, in the loss he has sustained by the death of his wife on March 24th.

The peal of Grandsire Caters at Leeds on March 18th was the first in the tower since 1901. It formed a fitting in memoriam peal to Tom Dexter, the bellhanger, who hung these bells in 1932 and who rehung the tenor after the accident, so shortly before his tragic death.

Those interested in five-bell ringing will congratulate Barkby, Leicester, ringers on their quarter peal of Doubles in five methods. This is believed to be the first time that any Barkby men have rung a quarter peal on their own bells and is the result of months of hard work and practice by a band of learners on a heavy going ring. The ringers were W. Illston 1, B. S. Payne 2, G. A. James (cond.) 3, T.
Earley 4, E. F. Payne 5. It was the first quarter by all except the fifth.

At the other end of the scale comes a report from St. Mary Redcliffe of 1,056 New Cambridge Surprise Maximus, which was the first touch of Surprise Maximus by nine of the band.
The company was L. C. C. Warren 1, A. E.
Reeves 2, Miss B. Jordan 3, E. J. Brown (cond.)
4, E. F. Hancock 5, H. W. Knight 6, T. W.
Kimber 7, W. G. Brown 8, W. Parker 9, J.
Carman 10, N. Coombs 11, R. C. Seager 12.
First of Surprise Maximus for 1, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12.

Methods Committee and 'Steadfast'

Dear Sir,—The Methods Committee has been asked to give its opinion on 'Steadfast.' We, therefore, state that we consider this method to be fundamentally the same as 'Shipway's Principle' and that it does not depart from the latter sufficiently enough to justify being called a new method.

By the usual practice of nomenclature the name must remain Shipway's Principle since at least two peals have been rung in the method.

May we suggest, to avoid further misunderstandings and hurt feelings, that the Methods Committee be approached before the Editor is asked to print new methods in the future? They may only be a 'rediscovery.'—Yours sincerely, K. W. H. FELSTEAD (Convener).

Dedication

WATERINGBURY, KENT.

The village of Wateringbury is situated astride the Tonbridge road, five miles out of Maidstone, where the River Medway, the railway, the road and the line of hill all run parallel. North over the hill brings you in sight of the Medway gap through the North Downs and the tall chimneys of paper factories and cement works, but in Wateringbury itself the more homely setting of a brewery and oast houses, hop gardens and fruit orchards preserves the traditional Kent scene.

It was, therefore, a truly village gathering at the Church of St. John the Baptist on March 18th, when the Rt. Rev. Bishop Tonks, now Rector of Leybourne, rededicated the ring of six bells (tenor 8½ cwt. in B flat) after quarter turning, retuning and rehanging in ball bearings. The service, conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. R. H. Soar, opened with the ringers' hymn, 'Unchanging God,' after which the procession moved to the organ gallery, from which a few stairs lead up to the small ringing chamber.

After the dedication the choir sang the carol, 'Ding dong, merrily on high,' and the bells rang out. At the ropes were D. Driver, C. Bennett, F. Wickham, A. Kelvie and S. Saxby, of the local band, together with Mr. G. H. Spice, general secretary of the Kent County Association.

In his address, Bishop Tonks talked about bells of many lands recalling personal memories of the island of Grenada, where he had served as Archdeacon. A reference to Belgium as the home of campanology produced a stir among the ringers present, but we know what the Bishop meant.

After the service had ended the bells were set going for the remainder of the afternoon and evening. A break was made while about twenty of us partook of an excellent repast at the Railway Hotel, when it was generally agreed that Messrs. Mears and Stainbank had put the bells in really fine order.

To mark the rededication of the bells a well-struck 720 of Cambridge Minor was rung by E. A. Allen 1, Miss G. Anderson Smith 2, G. H. Spice 3, E. S. J. Hatcher 4, F. P. Wright 5, P. C. Wright (conductor) 6. Altogether, a dozen or so methods were successfully attempted.

It was quite late when the bells were rung down, and, homeward bound, we hoped that the village of Wateringbury would long continue to hear its bells ring out their message Sunday by Sunday, while behind the scenes the local band progress steadily in the art of change ringing. E.S.J.H.

THE SURREY ASSOCIATION

RETIRING SECRETARY IN ROAD ACCIDENT.

The annual general meeting of the Surrey Association was held at Reigate on March 18th.

Proceedings commenced promptly at 3 p.m. and the fine ten of St. Mary's were rung to a variety of methods, including a good course of Cambridge Royal, which preceded the service at 5 p.m. This was well attended and the Vicar of Reigate extended a hearty welcome to the ringers. He gave an interesting address in which he traced the history of bells from earliest times in this country, emphasising the important part bells play in the work of the Church.

The company adjourned to the Parish Hall and the Vicar joined the 66 members and friends who sat down to tea ably arranged by Mr. W. Claydon. After tea the Vicar took leave of the meeting owing to another engagement. Prior to his departure a hearty vote of thanks was expressed for his welcome and for conducting the service.

Before commencing the business meeting, the Master, Mr. Dan Cooper, said he was sorry to inform the members that the general secretary had met with an unfortunate road accident the previous Monday and as a result was in hospital. He was glad to say, however, that Mr. Parks was making steady progress and he felt sure the meeting would wish him to convey their best wishes for a speedy and complete recovery. In the secretary's absence, the assistant secretary, Mr. E. G. Talbot, deputised.

Arising out of the minutes, mention was made of the summer meeting of the Association, which was first held in the Limpsfield District on July 16th. The support given justified the venture and it was hoped that it would become an established event.

In the absence of the treasurer, Mr. Talbot read the statement of the accounts, which on the year's working showed an increase in the balance in hand of approximately £9. The statement was adopted.

Due to his unfortunate accident, the secretary had been unable to prepare the usual committee's report. The Master explained, however, that this comprised in the main the information given in the district reports which had been presented at the respective annual meetings. In the circumstances he hoped the meeting would overlook the temporary omission of the committee's report, mentioning that a steady rate of progress had been maintained during the past year, the usual number of district meetings having been held and being well supported. The report would be produced in due course. On the proposition of Mr. F. E. Collins, seconded by Mr. A. J. Bull, it was agreed to waive the report.

The following were proposed as ringing members and duly elected: Messrs. D. Parr, H. W. Skinner and J. W. Crawley (Old Coulsdon), T. Norman (Banstead) and W. Parrott (Benlilton). The election of Messrs. M. O. Thomas and J. Lanbrough as compounding members was ratified.

With the exception of the general secretary, who had signified his intention not to seek re-election, all the retiring officers were re-elected. On a ballot being taken for the two nominations, viz., Messrs. W. Oatway, of Croydon, and Mr. A. J. Adams, of Banstead, for the post of general secretary, Mr. W. Oatway was elected.

BELFRY REPAIR FUND.

The Master raised the question of the inauguration of a Belfry Repair Fund. He reminded the meeting that both districts at their annual meeting had expressed themselves in favour and he felt sure that the general meeting would add its approval. He, therefore, proposed that, subject to control being in the hands of the General Committee and to the fund being entirely separate from the General Fund, the scheme be brought into being. This was seconded by Mrs. Lathbury and the motion carried. It was decided to make the first collection on behalf of the fund forthwith and this realised the sum of £2 12s. 3d.

It was then decided that the next annual meeting be held at Kingston in preference to Beddington, which had also been proposed.

FORMATION OF LIBRARY.

Under the heading of 'Other Business,' it was agreed that the Association's bound volumes of 'The Bell News' and 'Ringing World' should be housed in a cabinet to be installed in the belfry of St. John's, Croydon, this to form the basis of an association library.

Request was made for ringing books of an historical or useful nature to build up a library for the benefit of members.

Mr. F. E. Darby suggested that a duplicate set of all Association reports published should also find a place in the library.

Mr. E. G. Talbot recommended that the contents of the library should not be confined to books alone, but that members sufficiently interested should make copies of interesting data, peals, rules, etc., which might be found in their respective towers. These might be usefully kept in an Association scrapbook of interesting items and be the means of preserving old records.

Mr. Cooper gave a hearty welcome to the three members of the Old Coulsdon band who had joined the Association, and on their request it was agreed that the tower be affiliated to the Southern District.

It was then suggested by Mr. D. Layton, of Banstead, that the Association report be now produced upon an annual basis. As, however, it was now too late to produce one for the year 1949, the Master proposed that a report be issued to take in the years not previously covered and to include 1950 and to be ready for the 1951 annual meeting, when it would be decided if production should be resumed on an annual basis.

SOUTHWARK PEAL ATTEMPT.

Mr. F. E. Darby informed the meeting that of the peal attempts made at Southwark Cathedral only one per year was allocated to the Association. Of attempts made he contended that all those members wishing to ring a peal at that tower had not been approached.

Mr. F. E. Collins, who had arranged the peals on the last two occasions, denied this was so and that as he had been unable to obtain sufficient Surrey ringing members he had been forced to utilise the services of some compounding members.

Mr. Darby thereupon proposed and Mr. D. Layton seconded that the question of the annual attempt for the Southwark peal be made part of the Association's official business and that a suitable item appear on the agenda. This, however, did not gain the meeting's support.

Mr. F. E. Hawthorne maintained that as the peal was apparently an Association affair, the only proper person to be responsible for its arranging was the Master, and he made a proposition to this effect. This was duly seconded and received the unanimous support of the members present.

The opportunity was taken of placing on record the Association's sincere appreciation of the services rendered by Mr. Claud Parks, the retiring secretary, who had held that office for a number of years, and it was proposed that when writing him, as had been announced earlier, the thanks of the Society should be suitably expressed.

The Master then proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the organist for his services and also to Mr. W. Claydon for supplying the tea.

Members then returned to the tower, where ringing was enjoyed up till 9 p.m.

CHANGE-RINGING MACHINES

By B. D. Price.

HISTORY OF CARTER'S MACHINE.

John Carter was born at Darlaston, Staffs, on April 30th, 1854. About the time of making his machine (1890 onwards) he was in charge of the revolver section of Messrs. Webber and Scott, Weyman Street, Birmingham. This firm is still in existence. During these years he held patents on his revolver inventions which brought him a considerable income. Mr. Albert Walker, of Birmingham, one of the machine's two trustees, has given me valuable information. He states: 'I believe he had all the facilities required when he commenced his machine to make all the necessary parts. In the early years of the construction Carter did not allow any details of its principle to be known to anyone here in Birmingham, and to the best of my knowledge it was not published in any form until 1925 (in the 'Model Engineer').'

John Carter lived in Aston when I first knew him, near the Parish Church, and the house which he owned was named 'Forward Villas.' The house is still there. Later he moved to the Sparkbrook district of Birmingham at 130, Walford Road, and I lived at No. 180 until December, 1898. Tom Russam, an old St. Martin's ringer, lived at No. 114. 'I remember Carter had a workshop in the top storey of his house, where he worked on his ringing machine. He would carry it down to the dining room when he wished to try it out. My job was to keep a gas engine going in an outhouse, which generated electricity to drive the machine. When he had the machine set to the desired method and working rightly he would send for Tom Russam to come and hear the machine. If at times alterations were required it would be taken upstairs again and we would only see it when tried out again. The attachment which he fitted for figure printing was in cylindrical form with numbers one to twelve. Each figure would be connected to each particular slide (bellplate) and would operate on the paper roll. He had considerable trouble at first with this mechanism, but he eventually overcame any difficulty. In 1920 Carter retired to 25, Lessing Street, Honor Oak Park, S.E. 23.'

John Carter started ringing in 1873. He soon became an experienced conductor on handbells and on tower bells, and 'The Bell News' about 1890 contained many of his new and unique compositions. An account of him appears in 'The Bell News' for April 9th, 1892, page 13:—

'He is at work during spare hours upon what he calls a bellringing machine, which is to ring a peal in any method the onlooker demands. It will be some time before this invention is perfected, though several courses and leads in various methods have already been rung upon it.' The same account also states that owing to increasing deafness he was compelled to relinquish leadership of the 'Birmingham Amalgamated Society,' a society which at that time rivalled the St. Martin's Guild.

The following description of the history of Carter's machine is due to Mr. E. Alex Young, formerly one of its trustees, and is reproduced by his kind permission.

'Mr. John Carter took up ringing in 1873 when nearly 20 years of age, he having been born in 1854, and soon gave evidence of a natural aptitude for the art. . . .

About the year 1890, Mr. Carter, using Birmingham as a centre, was wont to organise bands of ringers to travel to the bell towers of the surrounding district in order to ring peals. . . . It was upon one such occasion, having arranged a peal at Perry Barr, he was travelling to his destination by tram-car (some 3 or 4 miles). To pass the time he reverted to an idea that had struck him casually that morning and soon found himself deeply absorbed in it. So much indeed did he concentrate his mind upon it that it excluded all else. The idea was The Ringing Machine, and by the time he reached Perry Barr, it had already taken practical shape in his mind, so far as the working principles were concerned. It need only be added that the peal broke down, for the inventor was too full of his new idea to conduct a peal, and was indeed to the surprise of his band of ringers hardly able to ring at all. To follow in Mr. Carter's own words, "I was so anxious, that when I got home I wished to start plotting it on paper, and it was only lack of materials that made me wait until Monday; however, that morning I bought my drawing paper before going to work, and that night I got out my drawing board and instruments and started my workshop drawings. These amounted in time to some 30 sheets, but I was soon able to determine the frame and let the finer details wait. I made a model of the frame in lexwood, and Mr. W. Godden, who worked for Messrs. Barwells, the bellfounders, got it cast for me in gunmetal."

It would appear that though the work was thus well started it was the labour of many years before it was brought to completion. . . . Mrs. Carter says that it absorbed the whole of his own time and many a Saturday and Sunday. . . .

"When I had got it into shape and was satisfied that it was working, I invited some of my ringing associates to see it. . . . It was then being driven by a foot-lathe, and I rang a course of Duffell Maximus, they being all much impressed."

If at this time the inventor had let well alone, the machine to-day would have presented itself in all its completeness and showing his idea finished with a unity far more telling than we find it to-day. At that time the present 12 gongs . . . were not used, but 12 cup bells were fixed along the top of the machine, on a common spindle, and they were struck by hammers actuated from below. The reason that this arrangement was abandoned was due to Sir Arthur Heywood . . . (who) though delighted with the machine, thought the bells poor in tone and the striking movement too noisy. The result was that the bells were taken off the machine and placed in a fan-shaped table box and connected electrically with it. Sir Arthur also arranged for a gas-engine and an electric motor. . . .

In 1920 (December), Mr. Carter came to reside at his present address (London, S.E. 23), bringing his machine with him and adapting it to be driven by accumulators. Being desirous of ringing a peal (very long deferred), he availed himself of the offer of a neighbouring friend and ringer, Mr. E. Alex Young, to move it to the latter's house. This enabled Mr. Carter to use the public electricity supply.

He now thought he could again turn to Mr. Taylor's gongs and this time built them up successfully into their present box.'

The Carter Machine is now permanently deposited in the South Kensington Science Museum, where it is under the immediate care of Mr. D. H. Follett, of the staff. With the machine is a manuscript book compiled by the former trustees (from which the quotation in this chapter was taken), giving directions for the working of the machine and details of its history.

Permission to see the machine working must be obtained from one of the trustees. It is gratifying to know that the machine is so well guarded against authorised would-be workers. Occasionally it is demonstrated at the Central Council annual meeting, and a report on its condition is given to that body yearly by the trustees. At present (early 1950) it is being overhauled. The mechanism is as good as it ever was, but the attendant motor and current supply for the bells are being replaced with modern equipment. The only other part that has been renewed is the wiper arm and studs for delivering current to the bells (N P Q R S in Fig. 1), which was completely replaced due to wear about fifteen years ago.

It is clear from all accounts that John Carter went to an extraordinary amount of trouble to perfect his machine. The existing machine itself shows signs of alterations, and the mode of striking the bells has changed many times. Mr. Peter Lafin, of Stockport, asserts that Carter scrapped his mechanism several times and started again. It would appear that the machine was built in the period 1890-1925, the perfection covering most of that period. Mr. Alex. Young states that Carter had in mind a machine much smaller and of different design, being circular and made of aluminium. It is possible that this would have had the bellplates circular, revolving on a central vertical pivot instead of sliding, and that he might have adopted the 'all moving together' system as he was by then conversant with the use of electricity.

HISTORY OF WOODHOUSE'S MACHINES.

Mr. G. F. Woodhouse, of Sedbergh (Yorks), has for years been carrying out valuable research into various ringing machine mechanisms. Being formerly physics master at Sedbergh School, he retired in 1930 at the age of 55 and a great deal of his time since has been devoted to making change ringing machines, in the workshop basement of his house. He is one of the early members of the Cambridge University Guild, ringing the treble in the first Guild tower-bell peal, and conducting many peals, including a peal rung on Seage's Apparatus at Great St. Mary's. He became a famous climber, and his name is to be found in many Guides on the Lake District and Skye. At least one route is named after him, a crack that the majority of persons would think impossible to climb.

He states: 'My very first attempt was to fix up an arrangement to ring Bob Minor only. It didn't really work, so I thought a ringing machine wasn't possible. Then I heard that Carter had made one, and I started again.' It is with the kind permission of Mr. Woodhouse, and of Mr. Ernest Morris, of Leicester, who provided me with old correspondence, that I am able to reconstruct the story of Mr. Woodhouse's machines.

Of the nine machines he has made, the first eight rang up to eight bells, but the last machine which is still under construction rings up to twelve bells, and has already drawn diagrams of hundreds of methods.

Machine No. 1 was made prior to September, 1933. A letter dated September 18th, 1933, says: 'It's working quite well and has already done plain courses in 16 methods and making bobs. These methods include Cambridge, Superlative, London and Bristol. I think I can make it still more certain, but at the moment I've an idea for another which will only occupy 1ft. x 1ft. about.' It seems that this optimistic statement conveys the true spirit of zest that Mr. Woodhouse has always had. No. 1 stored up its method on a barrel with pins inserted. The pins pressed on electrical contacts and the connection with the bellplates was electrical. The latter were moved by a number of rods, which were released by electromagnets working from the barrel contacts. The barrel reversed itself so that (as in all Mr. Woodhouse's machines) it was only necessary to set half a lead of the method desired. This machine was scrapped. It was the only one with electrical selection of the bellplates.

Machine No. 2 was made prior to May, 1934. Thus, May 20th, 1934: 'No. 2 Machine has now rung 104 methods and drawn diagrams of most. It very seldom makes a mistake. However, being out for perfection, I've built a No. 3 with some detail improvements in the hope of eliminating sources of error. I have just about finished it.' July 12th, 1934: 'My No. 3 is now, I think, as perfect as possible. At any rate, I've rung 324 plain courses in 324 methods. It tripped occasionally, perhaps 1 in 1,000 or so.' August 2nd, 1934: 'Having now done all the methods published by the Central Council and about 25 Surprise Major and other methods, I've run out of methods! 412 altogether in a portfolio containing a diagram of each.' In 'The Ringing World' for August 10th, 1934, there is an article on No. 2 machine, and a photograph of Mr. Woodhouse with it. The first peal ever rung on a machine was rung on No. 3 at Highfield, Sedbergh (Mr. Woodhouse's home), August 19th, 1934. It was 5,024 Double Norwich, rung in 2 hours 52 minutes, conducted and composed by G. F. W. It was absolutely perfect, he states. Ringing long lengths has a curious effect on the performer. During this peal he went asleep on one occasion, and woke up just in time to call a bob at 6! Subsequently a peal of London Surprise was lost after 4,000 changes for the same reason. This No. 3 machine also rang 5,024 Cambridge Surprise and 5,040 Stedman Triples in the same year. As far as is known, no peal has ever been rung on Carter's machine, though at least one quarter peal has been rung on it.

No. 4 was a remade No. 3. Thus, October 18th, 1934: 'I am now making a properly finished one, replacing odd bits of metal bolted together, by castings.' A booklet was published describing this machine, which was sent free to all who desired it. Mr. Woodhouse still has a few copies left. While stock lasts he has kindly offered to supply copies free. Send a stamped addressed foolscap envelope to him at Highfield, Sedbergh, Yorks.

Most of Mr. Woodhouse's machines have been capable of drawing diagrams, using a stylus pen moving over a strip of paper. The diagrams from the early machines were shaky and imperfect, but the ones produced by the later ones almost perfect. Carter's machine also draws diagrams, but imperfectly. The paper motion in Carter's is continuous and the pen movement in jerks, so that plain hunting does not draw a straight line. Indeed, one can see no simple way of adapting Carter's machine to draw good diagrams, as the movements of the bellplate to which the pen is attached are carried out at varying times due to the staggering of movement. Diagrams drawn by Carter's machine are reproduced in Mr. Morris' book, 'The History and Art of Change ringing.' In all Mr. Woodhouse's machines the bellplates move rapidly (as will be described) and the paper movement can be synchronised with the bellplates to give good diagrams.

Machines Nos. 3 and 4 also worked a type-writer electrically, and on it one could type a lead or course by simply turning the handle of the machine and returning the carriage after each change. About this time Mr. Woodhouse made a temporary machine in order to print changes. The type was rubber (cut from a date stamp?) and each figure was mounted on its bellplate. By a system of sliding plates and hooks these bellplates (unlike those on the other machines) actually changed places and the paper then descended and the change was printed. Mr. Ernest Morris has half a course of Duffield Major printed on this machine, dated January 18th, 1935. It was scrapped as being cumbersome, but it was an interesting departure in design. Early in 1949 he made a similar experimental mechanism.

No. 5 was the first machine to have a moving panel instead of a barrel for swap storage. This was a great advance; the machine, however, was not a good one, according to Mr. Woodhouse. Nos. 6 and 7 were somewhat similar. No. 7 has undergone many changes. At first the panel was below the bellplates. This was altered, and the panel was placed at the side, sliding lengthways. Then an attempt was made using Carter's clicks and making the preselectors drive them. This was not satisfactory as the movement happened rapidly and all at once (not being slow and staggered as in Carter's machine), so it was altered again to resemble No. 8, which was by then made. Lastly, a system of bellplate movement used on Nos. 3 and 4 was introduced, and it is now permanently connected to a typewriter and does about 20 changes per minute.

68 YEARS CATHEDRAL SERVICE RINGER

To mark his completion of 68 years as a service ringer at Manchester Cathedral, his fellow ringers presented Mr. Charles Fairly on his 82nd birthday (St. Patrick's Day) with a pipe and tobacco.

It was intended that the Dean should make the presentation on the Sunday previous in the belfry, but unfortunately Mr. Fairly was in bed with influenza. The presentation was made at his house on the day of his birthday. Mr. Fairly throughout his long service was never late.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

OLDEST CHURCH BELL

Dear Sir,—Appearing in the February issue of 'Chamber's Journal' is an interesting article by Mr. Arthur Gaunt, F.R.C.S., upon 'Old Bells,' in which he expresses the belief that St. Chad's, Cloughton, possesses the oldest bell in England. He also makes mention of the Caversfield bell, along with one at Goring, Oxfordshire, and Chaldon, Surrey, as being examples nearly as old.

However, your leader of February 3rd last establishes beyond any reasonable doubt that Caversfield's is the most ancient by reason of the fact that Sybilla Gargate, joint benefactor with her husband of the bells, was widowed as early as 1219. Such records prove most interesting.

'The earliest reference to church bells in England,' writes Mr. Gaunt, 'is a statement by Bede that the death-knell of St. Hilda, Abbess of Whitby, was heard at Hackness 13 miles away. Bede records the incident as something of a miracle and it certainly seems remarkable, in view of the fact that bells in those days were not much bigger than hand-bells.'

After writing much that is interesting relative to bell lore, Mr. Gaunt continues: 'A consideration of some of these old beliefs and legends can be absorbing. There is, for instance, the story that certain monastic bells were shipped abroad at the Dissolution, and that they were lost when the vessels carrying them foundered. The tale is too widespread to be dismissed peremptorily.'

Is it not reasonable to wonder whether, in some cases, the monks hid the monastery bells in village churches before they could be confiscated, and that the rumour about their being lost at sea was circulated to account for their disappearance?

The monks expected that the dissolution of their monasteries would be only a temporary setback, and that they would be able to return to these places, after a few years, when the hidden bells would be recovered.

It is surely significant that certain village churches to-day have bells reputed to have come from abbeys, nunneries and priories. Hackness Church, in North Yorkshire, is said to house a bell from Whitby Abbey, the monks having taken it there when they heard that their monastery was to be closed.

I wonder if any of your readers could furnish me with any information relative to the latter part of my letter, for which I shall be most grateful.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE H. CORNER.

ST. MATTHEW'S, UPPER CLAPTON

Dear Sir,—Having seen from time to time in the pages of 'The Ringing World' appeals on behalf of various churches throughout the country, we, the bellringers of St. Matthew's, Upper Clapton, in North London, decided to write to 'our paper' and give details of our appeal, which our Vicar has called 'Save Our Spire' Fund. Our spire, which we think is one of the most beautiful in North London, has had to have 25ft. removed as it had become cracked and dangerous. This leaves a hitherto graceful spire looking very sorry for itself.

The new fund, it is hoped, will enable us to have it rebuilt as soon as possible, and this, in turn, will allow us to have our ring of eight bells repaired and overhauled. If any reader feels inclined to send a small donation to this stately church in North London to assist in putting the spire back, it will be greatly appreciated and will be acknowledged. The treasurer for the fund is Miss J. Friswell, 43, Casimir Road, Clapton, London, E.5.

C. F. NEAL, Hon. Sec.,

THE LATE MR. R. TREHEARNE

Dear Sir,—May I, through the medium of your columns, offer my most sincere sympathy to relatives and friends and all ringers at St. Nicholas' Church, Hereford, on the passing to higher service of Mr. R. Trehearne, as reported in 'The Ringing World' of March 17th.

When I first rang at St. Nicholas' in October, 1948, he was the first to make me welcome, and he continued to do so all the time I was at R.A.F., Credenhill. Truly a great veteran.—Yours sincerely,

R.N.H., Plymouth. F. STUART-WORTH.

ROYAL MARINES AND CHATHAM

Sir, — It is a matter of regret that the Admiralty have decided to close down the headquarters of the Royal Marines here, apart from the fact that it breaks an association this famous Corps has had with the town since 1708.

It also breaks an association with the ringing fraternity here after nearly 50 years, as it was at Chatham that the late Flight-Sergt. F. A. Holden, then serving with the Royal Marines, on being posted here from Deal, took our 'stone band' in hand and called the first local peal on St. Mary's bells, Holt's Original, with six first pealers, on March 5th, 1910.

It was whilst serving at Chatham that my esteemed friend and famous peal ringer, C.S.M. James Bennett, R.M., rang his first peal on April 10th, 1912, and called his first peal on May 9th, 1914.

Lt.-Col. Jerram, R.M., a West Country ringer, I think, came to Chatham and collected the R.M. detachment which commissioned H.M.S. 'Raleigh,' which was lost off the coast of Labrador between the wars. Another Royal Marine who served here was Col.-Sergt. Percy E. Clarke, of Ealing, who was Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths in 1930.—Yours, etc.,

CHARLES E. J. NORRIS.

Membership Qualification

Dear Sir,—I write with reference to the correspondence in your columns of Messrs. Drew, Dyke and Beale regarding the above, particularly as my name has been mentioned.

In his first letter, Mr. Drew wrote regarding certain qualifications required by his guild of new members, 'I am afraid that for the sake of the number of members this qualification is sometimes passed over when new members are elected.'

I contend, and without doubt many others do likewise, that this statement was a direct challenge as to the genuine numerical strength of our guild. Mr. Dyke most certainly took this view and replied accordingly in defence of his own integrity and that of the branch secretaries.

Mr. Beale, a close friend of Mr. Drew, has seen fit to defend 'the ordinary member' and in a long epistle wanders far from the point in question. Regarding his introduction of class distinction, I would quote the closing phrase of Mr. Frank Warrington's letter in your issue of January 27th, 'One God one service,' a good motto for the future for us all. Having had the pleasure of being in Mr. Dyke's company on a number of occasions when what it would appear Mr. Beale would like to call the upper classes of the ringing fraternity have been present, I can assure him that I have never known Mr. Dyke wilt before the best of them. I would rather say, 'The worthier the foe, the greater his zest.'

Mr. Drew has now withdrawn the implication of the sentence in question, but that does not alter the fact that Mr. Dyke's letter was fully justified. May we hope that anything further that has to be said on this subject may be said at the proper place, the annual meeting of our guild on Easter Monday, and not in the columns of 'The Ringing World'.—Yours sincerely,

H. J. SANGER

OBITUARY

THE REV. H. E. TILNEY-BASSETT.

Rector of Beechingstoke, near Devizes, from 1908 until he retired last June, the Rev. Hugh Effingham Tilney-Bassett died at the Devizes and District Hospital on March 16th after a short illness, aged 82.

As one always interested in bellringing, he was a representative on the Central Council from 1906 to 1914, and Master of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild of Ringers from 1913 to 1919.

When he lived in the parish of St. James', Devizes, in 1902, he was a member of the committee who were responsible for augmenting the ring of four bells to the ring of six, as it is at the present time. He was at one time assistant secretary of the Bristol Diocesan Guild of Ringers.

He was ordained priest in 1897 in Bristol Cathedral, and held curacies in that diocese till 1900, when he was appointed chaplain to the Roundway Hospital, Devizes, till 1908.

The funeral was at Beechingstoke on March 21st, and the Salisbury Guild was represented by ringers from Devizes and district.

MR. C. W. BRIDGEFORTH.

A lifelong connection with Manchester Cathedral had Mr. Charles William Bridgeforth, whose death in his 92nd year we report with regret. He was in turn scholar, Sunday School teacher, superintendent of ringers and leader of the ringers until the ban.

The funeral service was held at the Cathedral prior to the interment at Southern Cemetery. The bells were rung half-muffled and the whole pull and stand as the family mourners entered the Cathedral. The Lancashire Association was represented by Messrs. W. H. Shuker (secretary), A. Barnes, R. F. Williams, P. H. Derbyshire, H. Barlow, H. Lees and the Cathedral band. There were also many Fellow Freemasons present, Mr. Bridgeforth having been a member of three Lodges.

MOST MUSICAL METHOD

Dear Sir,—With reference to your report on 'Most Musical Changes' appearing in 'The Ringing World' dated March 24th, I am in full agreement with the opinion of the late Mr. Arthur Knights when he said that the best musical method is Little Bob, especially Royal.

A mixture of Treble Bob and Plain Bob, with the treble never above 4ths, cannot fail to give the most musical changes, especially with the course-ends coming up every 56 changes in Major and 72 in Royal.

Little Bob rung on a fast merry ring is a delight to any ear. In my opinion, Double Norwich, with its double dodge behind and places in 3-4 and 5-6, ranks a very close second.

Yours sincerely,

JACK CLEGG.

Fallowfield, Manchester.

IN RESPONSE—STEADFAST

Dear Sir,—Those who have kindly requested, or are awaiting, compositions in Steadfast will have noted the 3-part, bobs only, variable peal in the Major, published a fortnight ago.

May I draw attention to the interesting, simple 6-part, using two singles, also variable, sent me by the same author and published this week in another column?

As to extent compositions in the Minor, may I say that with only one pair of dodging bells and with the ordinary singles the extents inevitably contain repetition, unless modification is introduced. With such modifications, however, true 720's have been obtained.

Further investigation, with a view to reducing the alterations to an acceptable minimum, seems desirable, however, before publication is contemplated.—Yours very truly,

A. YORK-BRAMBLE.

MAINLY FOR BEGINNERS (8)

Dear Beginners,—This is your chance for first promotion! Those who pass successfully through this lesson will get their 'L-plates,' becoming 'learners.'

Assuming you have duly completed Section 1 of the course of instruction (see article 6), we meet our instructor, Tom Truetouch, once again, and give all our attention to what he calls the transition from Section 1 to Section 2 of the course—the completion of bell-handling, viz., raising and lowering.

Some instructors, Tom explains, do not teach this important step until later; but Tom believes that as soon as a pupil can 'manage' a bell he should be taught how to 'manage' a loose rope, in case he finds himself with one! It's a wise policy of safety first here. But more to the point, it is a fact that it is during the early stages of ringing that learners are less inclined to control a bell consistently well, and this is just when they need to be able to regain control quickly and efficiently, so as not to increase their difficulty of keeping place.

First Mary Makebob, Tom's assistant, takes her stand at the treble's rope, and Tom tells us each to take a rope and to imitate her movements one by one. Then Mary demonstrates, as Tom describes, the coiling in the left hand of the rope, from the end up to the sally, and the holding of all the coils in the 'thumb-grip' only, showing the fingers fully extended, ready to grasp the sally also. We follow suit.

Now Tom explains that we are to try chiming only, with the coils all held up to the sally, so as to get the 'feel' of the start of the process. Mary reaches well up with her coils and we do the same and, as she calls 'Treble's chiming' and begins the pulling, we follow in rounds. The result is NOT rounds! But we all have our bells well on the move when Mary calls 'Cease!' and we stop and tie off. Mary retains coils in left hand ready for next step.

This, Tom explains, is the 'Half-wheel exercise,' which Mary will first demonstrate. So we take up a position on Mary's right so as to see more easily what is happening to the coils.

Reaching well up the sally with the coils as before, Mary begins the chiming again, but pulls harder than previously at each stroke, so that rope movement increases. We notice that almost at once the last of the four coils made in her left hand begins to tighten up. Then it slips from her hands, leaving three. Now the next coil tightens, and, in turn, slips away as the rope movement goes on increasing. By now the sally is just pausing at the bottom of its stroke, and Mary still has both hands remaining on the end part of the rope, the left hand holding the remaining two coils and the sally going untouched. The bell is now almost at 'half-wheel.'

'Lower!' calls Tom, and Mary stops pulling, but maintains her arm movements so as to keep a tight rope.

But as the bell swings less and less high there is rope to spare, and a loose rope would soon develop. So she begins the 'take-up.' On the down-stroke her right hand slides up the rope about 18 inches, grips it there and comes back quickly to the left hand, forming a loop, with the fingers of the left hand closing round the rope immediately below the grip of the right. She now has three coils again and the rope is still increasing its 'spare.' Repeating the process, therefore, she takes up the final coil, and now has the bell gently chiming again.

'Notice that she doesn't drop her coils and rope-end to the floor,' says Tom, 'in fact, no good ringer will do that.' Now we will try this out, first on a dead rope. Take your ropes, coil up, and grasp the sallies.' Mary goes through motions as example and we follow.

'Now slide your grip down the sally, allowing the last coil you made to close up to the fingers of the left hand, but let it slip away before it gets really tight. Continue with the downslide and release the second coil. That's about as far as you can go without rope movement.' We pause, holding the motionless ropes with hands just below waist level.

'Next, the take-up,' Tom continues, 'and let me explain, in passing, that when a bell is swinging full-wheel the take-up process from there down to half-wheel is slightly different, as you will see, later. But now, keeping the left hand steady, in what is really the bottom part of a downstroke, slide the right hand about 18 inches up the rope.' We all do so, following Mary's example.

'Now raise the left hand slowly, with its coils, towards the right, forming a loop between the two hands, and, opening the fingers of the left hand while retaining the coils in the thumb-grip, grasp the rope immediately below the right hand.' Again, following Mary, we do this. 'Repeat,' says Tom, and we find ourselves back on the sally-rip.

'Mary will now take one pupil and I will take another, and you will take the exercise on the live rope just as you saw Mary demonstrate it at first,' Tom goes on, 'but if you'd like to practise a bit more on the dead rope first, do so.'

Eventually we have all half-raised and half-lowered a bell, more or less successfully, all except Sim Slackpull, that is; and he thought he could do last week's cross-word while he was waiting. So no wonder! There's never time for anything in the ringing chamber but—ringing; even if it's only standing beside a ringer and trying to follow what he is doing.

Next Tom explains, while Mary demonstrates, the full raising and full lowering. The difference in the process emerges as an 'intake' of spare rope (when the right hand goes to steady the sally before the bell is down to half-wheel) by the thumb and fingers of the left hand, a neat little trick which we all practise on the dead rope first, following Tom's instructions and Mary's demonstrations. This process gathers up a loop in the left hand, larger than is conveniently retained there, until the right hand is ready, after leaving the sally, to seize the rope just above the left hand and, drawing the larger loop through the left fingers till it is normal in size there, makes another loop of the spare to add to the left-hand grip. (This may sound a bit complicated to readers, but the instructor will soon clear it up.)

'Now for the pass-out,' says Tom with a challenging look round at us. 'Those who can raise, set, then lower, unaided, one of the lighter bells this evening, will be graded as "Learners." The secret is to keep your mind on the job and take it steady.'

Somewhat to our surprise, perhaps, we all manage it by the end of the practice—all, of course, except Sim, who remains a beginner still. Our greatest surprise is Will Wellstruck, who has raised, set, then lowered his bell almost like an old hand. 'Concentration!' comments Tom, approvingly. Even Mary (though rather blushing!) compliments him. 'Next time, as learners,' says Tom, 'we shall tackle real bell-control, leading to the art of striking.'

Yes, Learners, we're getting on!—Yours ever,
CORN. R. STONE.

EASTERTIDE

The world itself keeps Easter Day,
 Saint Joseph's star is beaming;
 Saint Alice has her primrose gay,
 Saint George's bells are gleaming;
 Alleluya, Alleluya;
 The Lord hath risen, as all things tell:
 Good Christians, see ye rise as well.

THIS Easter carol of J. M. Neale, written about 1854, is perhaps little known in this generation. The opening line, however, exemplifies a thought which is applicable to-day as when the clouds of the Crimean War shrouded the country. 'The world itself keeps Easter,' with the countryside gay with spring flowers and the freshness and joy of spring in bird, beast and man.

There is for us a special injunction in the last line: 'Good Christians, see ye rise as well.' It is a challenge to us to rise as Christ rose to enter upon the new Christian year with vigour, understanding and courage. Easter is for ringers a special festival, and whether at home or on holiday we feel certain that there will be no neglect on our part to perform our allotted duty to the Church.

We shall ring for three things. The proclamation to the people of the Risen Christ, for although 'The world itself keeps Easter,' the vast majority are indifferent, except at periods of stress, the great act of sacrifice and redemption that was brought to mankind by the first Calvary and made a reality on that Easter morning. We shall not know the reaction to those bells, but there will be thousands who will hear them and many will perhaps ponder and think.

The second will be a personal dedication on the part of those who ring. Service ringing for the great festivals of the Church is not a perfunctory act. There must be a consciousness of the service we are performing. It is something far far greater than ringing a touch or quarter peal. Into that ringing will go our best as in an act of worship, and the expressed hope and prayer that the bells will give to the people the same message as the angel in the Garden.

But earlier still the angel sped
 His news of comfort giving.
 And 'Why,' he said, 'among the dead
 Thus seek ye for the Living?'
 Alleluya, Alleluya;
 'Go, tell them all, and make them blest;
 Tell Peter first, and then the rest.'

Lastly, we shall ring for sheer personal joy. It would be hypocritical to suggest otherwise. While a sense of duty prevails in all service ringing, it is accompanied by individual love of ringing. Frequently we hear and read of ringers being thanked by the Church for their loyal and devoted service. But we would assure the clergy that the benefit is mutual, arising from a love of ringing. Love of bells and ringing grows with the passing of years, and it is always a sad day when infirmity or other circumstances break the sequence. The Sunday-by-Sunday fellowship becomes a very real thing, and we implore all young ringers to cultivate it. Once the break occurs, ringing is not the same thing. The first seeds of disintegration of a village or tower band is when the individual neglects his Sunday ringing. Occasional attendance at district meetings cannot replace the love promoted by the regularity of Sunday ringing.

The love of bells cannot be really divorced from the love of the Church. There are a few ringers who regard ringing purely from a secular point of view, and are no part of the Church. They have not come under the mystic influence and they share not the spiritual joy of Easter ringing which brings with it a sense of corporateness with the Risen Christ. It is only to be expected in this godless age that there should be such a section. Nevertheless they are members of the great family of ringers, and by that membership subscribe to the fundamental principles of the Central Council of Church Bell ringers, who in 1912 passed the following resolution: 'That the primary aim of all Associations should be the encouragement of ringing for Sunday services and on the Festivals and their Eves.' In keeping steadfast to this primary aim, our unity to the Church is cemented and we become Her servants. May all of us this Eastertide be conscious of Christ's Presence within the belfry, and as we ring, whether it be a touch of Grandsire Doubles or in the realms of Surprise, remember the lines of Henry Newbolt:—

'To set the cause beyond renown,
 To love the game beyond the prize.'

Mr. Raymond H. Idle, an enthusiastic member of the Peterborough Guild, left for two years' farming training in New Zealand on March 31st. As a farewell, a peal of Stedman Triples was attempted at Rothwell, Northamptonshire, with Mr. Idle as conductor, but it was lost half-way owing to a shift course. Various ringing followed on the tower bells and on handbells, all forming a suitable farewell to Mr. Idle, who left with all good wishes.

Mr. Percy Massam has completed the circle of Rothwell, Yorks, tower; Mr. E. J. Ladd, Withyham, Sussex.

Worthy of note was the peal of Grandsire Triples at Northowram, Yorks. It was the first of Grandsire Triples by all except the treble ringer.

Miss Gillian A. Smith, of the Cambridge University Guild, has a warm compliment paid to her in our correspondents' column for her ringing in her first Surprise peal.

The Society of Roving Ringers are planning to go to Lincolnshire and Yorkshire for their tour this year, with excursions into neighbouring counties.

We understand that a peal attempt—of Stedman Cinques—will be made at Exeter Cathedral towards the end of the month. It is being promoted by Bristol area ringers who are members of the Ancient Society of College Youths.

A letter addressed to 'A. H. Pulling, Cam-panologist, Guildford,' was delivered by the Guildford Post Office without delay, although he has removed fairly recently from his domicile at Guildford Grammar School. In a town of 50,000 people this is good work. There are few ringers who would care to have their letters so addressed and expect a normal delivery.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The Rev. F. Llewellyn
Edwards, of Kingston
Magna, Dorset, is retiring on May 13th from the post of hon. secretary of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild. He has held this office for 37 years. The Guild Festival at Trowbridge this year will in consequence be an historic occasion.

Quarterly subscribers are reminded that subscriptions are overdue. Send 5s. 6d. forthwith to Mrs. Fletcher, The White House, Caisteron-Sea, Norfolk.

In connection with the peal of Rochester Surprise Royal at Leeds on February 18th, the ringer of the second was James Fernley and not William Fernley as printed.

In connection with the annual meeting of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association at Taunton, on Easter Monday, tea as well as lunch will be provided.

Last Saturday was a memorable day at Speldhurst, Kent, when two local ringers—Mr.
Anthony Turley and Miss Evelyn Hyman—were married.

Ringers in the Bournemouth area will regret to hear of the death of the Rev. C. A.
Phillips, who for 48 years was hon. secretary of the Wimborne Branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild. A memoir will appear in our next issue.

The bells of Whitby, Yorks, were recast by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., on February 15th, the cost being met by a gift of £2,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Shaw Jeffrey, of Bagdale Old Hall, Whitby. We commend to our readers a booklet on this church containing two sermons preached by the Rector (the Rev. Norman A. Vesey), of special interest to DEATH OF MR. CYRIL F. JOHNSTON, O.B.E.

MEMORABLE INCIDENTS IN

A BUSY LIFE RECALLED

We regret to record the passing of Mr. Cyril F. Johnston, O.B.E., of Croham Valley Road, South Croydon, which occurred with tragic suddenness on Thursday, March 30th. Mr. Johnston collapsed at a London railway station, where he was waiting to welcome home his wife who had been spending a holiday in Austria. He was taken to Westminster Hospital; there he was found to be dead.

In recent years Mr. Johnston had been a victim of arthritis. In August, 1948, he retired from the board of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, Ltd., breaking an active partnership with the firm which extended over 40 years. It was while he was serving with the Grenadier Guards in France in 1916 that his father died. Mr. Cyril Johnston was 65 years of age.

The development of the bell foundry side of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston's business was largely due to his initiative. As a young man barely out of his teens, Mr. Johnston decided to master the principles of scientific tuning introduced by the late Canon Simpson and to incorporate his own ideas of tuning. The first big contract that he landed was Wimborne Minster, and from this beginning started a large business which included about 50 carillons in all parts of the world. Mr. Johnston was unsparing in his work; the tuning of the bells he regarded as his special responsibility.

NOTED CARILLONS

Two of the largest carillons with which he was associated were provided through the munificence of John D. Rockefeller, jun., who made a personal visit to the Croydon works. The first was at Riverside Drive Church, New York, and contained 72 bells in a tower 400ft. high, with ascent by four elevators. Here the big bass bell weighs 18½ tons. The sister carillon in the chapel of Chicago University has also 72 bells with a bass bell of 17 tons in C.

Another carillon with which he was associated was that in the Houses of Parliament at Ottawa. This comprises 53 bells, with the largest weighing 10 tons, and they were installed in 1927 to mark the 60th anniversary of the Confederation of the Canadian provinces. At the inaugural ceremony a squadron of 12 American planes, led by Col. Lindberg, attended, and one of the planes crashed. From the new carillon, Lefevre, the celebrated carillonneur, played the Funeral March at the burial of the dead airman.

Another famous carillon with which Mr. Johnston was associated was that for the Wellington War Memorial, New Zealand, in 1930. Before being taken overseas, these bells were installed in Hyde Park, and it was one of the features of London that summer to hear the recital given by Clifford Ball, of Bournville.

ROYALTY AT CROYDON.

It was the privilege of Mr. Johnston to entertain royalty at his works on a number of occasions. Most memorable was the day in May, 1925, when King George V. and Queen Mary visited the Croydon works and saw a number of bells cast, including a ring for Great Haseley, Oxfordshire, and a bell for Buckingham Palace. After the royal visit the works were open to the general public, and the firm had some 10,000 visitors that day. Other royal visits include those of Princess Beatrice to see Carisbrooke bells cast, the Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Kent.

Mr. Johnston was noted throughout the Exercise for his hospitality. Many of our readers will recall the three mammoth tea parties he gave to bellringers, the most outstanding of which was that in 1932, which was attended by a company of 2,300. For the occasion he recruited 70 of the prettiest girls in Croydon to act as hostesses and talk glibly in ringing parlance to the amusement of the company.

A PRACTICAL RINGER

Mr. Johnston was a practical ringer, having been taught by the late Dr. Carpenter. He was elected to the Central Council as a representative of the Surrey Association in 1898 and served until 1911, and again as their representative from 1914 to 1932. Afterwards hon. membership was conferred upon him, and he was a member at the time of his death. In 1905 he was appointed hon. assistant secretary of the Surrey Association, a post he held until 1921, when he assumed the hon. secretaryship and, despite a busy life, held office until 1925.

In all Mr. Johnston rang 32 peals, his first being at Croydon Parish Church on May 16th, 1905. Among his peals was one of Grandsire Caters at Croydon on July 9th, rung by serving officers in the First World War. Another interesting peal was that of Stedman Triples at St. Giles-in-the-Fields on February 7th, 1925, in which all the participants were 6ft. in height or over. At Edenbridge, Kent, he took part in a peal by members of his own firm, which was called by Mr. W. G. Smith. He was a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths and a number of territorial Associations.

In the First World War he served with the Grenadier Guards and saw service in France. He continued his association with the regiment, and in the last war commanded a Works Home Guard Company, for which he was able to procure the services of Guards instructors from Wellington Barracks.

Mr. Johnston was a liveryman of the Worshipful Company of Clockmakers, and in 1944, the year of the centenary of his firm, was elected Master. On that occasion the Right Hon. Oliver Lyttelton, who was his adjutant in France, was his principal guest. Mr. Johnston was also Master in 1945. He was also a liveryman of the Worshipful Company of Musicians, being a good pianist and singer, and also chairman of the Horological Institute from 1921-24.

About 18 months ago, while he was on holiday in Switzerland, he received the news that he had been appointed an officer of the Order of the British Empire 'for work done in development of the art of bell founding and tuning in this country.'

The sympathy of his many friends is extended to his widow, his son, who is at Winchester, and his daughter.

The funeral service was at Croydon Parish Church on Monday.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSN.

VETERANS HONOURED.

The ninth annual supper of the South and West District, held at the Church Hall, Heston, on March 18th, was a great success, the attendance being considerably greater than last year.

An excellent meal had been prepared, at which the Vicar of Heston, Preb. F. W. Ferraro, presided, supported by Messrs. Gurney and Aysford (churchwardens of Heston) and the officers of the South and West District.

After the loyal toast, the chairman asked for glasses to be raised in honour of Mr. E. R. Gladman and Mr. A. Harding, who happily were there that evening, they having loyally served the Association for over fifty years. A similar honour was accorded Mr. C. S. Bird and Mr. H. C. Chandler, each being founder members of the Association, who unfortunately were unable to be present owing to ill-health.

The social which followed will long be remembered for its gaiety, both young and not so young having a go at everything in the true family spirit, which has always been a feature of the district.

Special mention must be made of Frank Price for his work at the piano and the other youngsters for a bit of fiddling and tune ringing on the handbells. Altogether a very fine evening's enjoyment, was the verdict.

EASTERN DISTRICT ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Eastern District was held in Arklow on St. Patrick's Day, March 17th, and was attended by 48 members from Arklow, Bray, Drogheda and Dublin, as well as the president, Mr. William Pratt.

The first competition for the Gabriel Lindoff silver challenge cup for good striking was held on the bells at St. Saviour's Church, with Messrs. W. Pratt and T. McGowan as judges. They awarded the cup to Bray with sixteen faults, defeating Drogheda with twenty faults. Bray thus secured the honour of meeting the winners of the Northern and Southern Districts for the Murphy cup.

Lunch was taken in the Malborough Hall, presided over by the Rector, Rev. Wm Carroll, M.A., himself a practical ringer. The Arklow Society kindly entertained the meeting to lunch and tea.

The business meeting was presided over also by the Rector, in the absence of the district chairman, Mr. Daniel Kennedy.

At the meeting the president presented the Lindoff cup to Miss A. C. Dukes, the only lady ringer in the Bray team. Bray was also presented with the attendance shield, per Mr. R. Corson, which they won for 1949 with 100 per cent. bells rung for Sunday services.

The election of district officers resulted as follows: District chairman, Mr. R. Corson, Bray; district treasurer, Mr. J. F. Fennell, Bray; district secretary, Fred E. Dukes, Jenkinstown, Dundalk. Representatives on executive committee: Messrs. S. J. Evans (vice-president), W. Lynch, F. Simpson and Miss A. C. Dukes.

The next annual meeting is to be held at Bray, when it is hoped that Messrs. J. Taylor will have completed the restoration of this fine ring of eight bells, tenor 23 cwt. It is interesting to recall that, due to a subscription of £50 from the Rt. Hon. William Gladstone, a fund was opened to put a ring of bells in the fine tower of Christ Church, Bray, in 1880. An interim meeting is to be held at Blessington, where there is a ring of six bells by T. Bartlett, 1682.

During the morning and afternoon the bells of St. Saviour's Church, made famous by Mr. J. W. Washbrook and his family, were put to good use when touches of Grandsire Doubles and Triples and Plain Bob were rung. Handbells were also available when Grandsire Doubles and Plain Bob Minor were demonstrated.

In the secretary's report references were made to the historic visit to Drogheda in particular and Ireland in general of the band of ringers from Leicester, led by Mr. Harold J. Poole, and to the peals rung. Four out of the thirty peals rung for the Association in 1949 were rung in the district, and in addition one for the Leicester Guild to commemorate the first peal on Arklow bells by Midland Counties Association 50 years previously.

FATHERS' AND DAUGHTERS' PEALS.

Dear Sir,—Re footnote to fathers' and daughters' peal at Selly Oak on March 3rd, on December 10th, 1932, at Walkden, four fathers and their four daughters rang a peal. On December 16th, 1933, at Manchester Cathedral, five fathers and their five daughters also rang a peal.

It was one of the late Rupert Richardson's ambitions to ring a peal by six of each. Some preliminary arrangements were made at Norwich when the C.C. met there.

CHANGE-RINGING MACHINES

By B. D. Price.

About April, 1938, Mr. Woodhouse finished No. 8 machine. At the suggestion of Mr. A. G. Driver (now deceased) it was made to splice methods. 'This has a double panel, the centre row of pegs (which store the method) is the lead head, on each side are 16 rows of pegs.' When the machine is ringing one method, the panel moves so that only 16 rows on one side, plus the centre row, are in use. When a button is pressed for change of method, the panel keeps on moving across the centre row and the method set on the other half of the panel is used. Then while this is in progress, the side out of use may be reset quickly for a new method. In this machine a new way of pegging the method was tried out. Instead of pegging for swops needed, the pegging is made for places, which by ingenious selective mechanism converts these into the normal swops for feeding to the bellplates. Mr. Woodhouse claims that this device eases considerably the task of setting a method. If nothing is set on a row, the four pairs of bells 1x2, 3x4, 5x6, 7x8 will swop automatically. Also, the pegging panel is like a vast pushbutton wireless panel. These buttons are pressed and stay in. To wipe out the setting of a row a lever is pressed at the side. Thus the setting may be rapidly changed. Labelling the buttons in any row 1 to 8, excluding 6 as there is no button for 6th place, their effect is shown in the following table. Remember that if no buttons are pressed, pre-selectors 1x2, 3x4, 5x6, 7x8 will act.

Button pressed	Preselectors
	OFF	ON
1	1x2 3x4	2x3	4x5
2	1x2
3	3x4	4x5
4	4x5
5	5x6
7	7x8
8	5x6 7x8	6x7

There is no button 6. The numbers on the buttons correspond more or less with the places made. When 3 and 4 are pressed together the 4x5 preselector is in the off position. This arrangement of the buttons seems very empirical, but apparently it is simple to arrange.

A diagram drawn by this machine is very good indeed, and I have seen a diagram of spliced Whittlesey, Richmond, St. Clement's, Windsor, Halifax, Plain Bob and Double Coslany Court Major. In 1947 I spliced Bristol and Double Norwich on the machine with ease. The two methods are set on the two sides of the sliding panel, and pressing a button changes over the method at the lead-head. In 1948 Mr. Woodhouse revised the diagram drawing mechanism, and it now draws a smaller diagram, the effect of which is more pleasing to the eye. Another novel feature of the machine is the automatic reversing of the control panel. Only half a lead is set, and the panel reverses at the half-lead according to whether one of the buttons has been set or not. Thus when half the lead is set, the last row has an extra button pressed which reverses the panel at this row. The panel also reverses at the lead-head row unless one has actuated the splicing button, in which case the panel continues into the other method. Then, while the other method is being rung, the first method may be rapidly reset for yet another method. In former machines one had to change a gear wheel if the length of lead had to be altered.

Mr. Woodhouse reckons that the chief advances he has made are—

1. Selection scheme just mentioned for setting the places.
2. Sliding panel with half-lead only, self-reversing.
3. Altering lead-length by button on the panel.

In 1949 Mr. Woodhouse built a ninth machine for ringing up to twelve bells, primarily for executing diagrams of the collection of Royal and Maximus methods of Mr. Corrigan. It is more or less an extension to twelve bells of the No. 8 machine. All other machines of his have been for ringing eight bells.

None of his machines have remained power driven. Mr. Woodhouse sticks to the primitive handle as being foolproof and independent of electricity. The current for ringing the bells is provided by accumulators. He has experimented with the use of transformed A.C. current of low voltage, but gave it up as the magnets 'dithered' and there was bad sparking at the wiper arm contact. Experiments with condensers to eliminate sparking did not meet with success.

WOODHOUSE'S MACHINES. BELLPLATE MOVEMENT.

We have seen that Carter chose to move his bellplates slowly and in a staggered fashion. All Mr. Woodhouse's machines have a rapid movement of the bellplates with consequent simplicity of the control mechanism.

Let us consider the principles underlying this system of 'all moving together.' The mechanism for moving the bellplates (whether rods, cams, gears, electromagnets, etc.) must have certain properties:—

1. It must be capable of rapid, decisive movement.
2. It must move the bellplates accurately, within reasonable limits of length displacements.
3. It must by some means be capable of being brought into action when needed, or left inactive according to the way the bellplate is to move.

Now, the movement is to take place rapidly. It must also be selected, i.e., only those needed to move the bells desired for the next change must be brought into action. We have thus the following scheme:—

- a. While a change is being struck the bellplates are stationary. But already a selection mechanism is in operation for preparing the bellplates to be moved.
- b. When the change has been struck, the bellplates suddenly move.
- c. The action is restored to normal for the next selection.

Note that when a change is being struck there is plenty of time for the selection apparatus to work.

Now refer to Figs. 11 and 12 ('Ringing World' for March 17th, page 171). Here we have compared two ways of moving the bellplates, invented by Mr. Woodhouse. That in Fig. 11 is the earlier one, while that in Fig. 12 was used on machines 7 and 8. Of the two earlier, one is stated to be the more reliable.

Both Figs. 11 and 12 are side views. In both figures are the following features. A is the bellplate moving lengthways to left or right. There are eight of these, one for each bell, side by side. One end runs on the eight contacts B which deliver the current from the rotary contact arm. Each bellplate is shown in 4th place (resting on the fourth contact). The spring brass contact C serves both to carry the current to the bell and to collimate the bellplate so that it assumes one of the eight positions exactly. The contacts on the right-hand side of the bellplate are insulated from the rest of the bellplate. (This is, of course, necessary, but not shown in either figure.)

Over each bellplate are two long rods, one shown at D. These rods are attached to levers E (only the upper end of one shown), which by means of rotating cams impart movement to the rods. When the time comes for the bellplates to move, the pair of rods over each bellplate move in opposite directions. One rod can make the bellplate under it hunt up, the other to hunt down. Originally they were driven by the same cam, but Mr. Woodhouse found that this made the diagram drawing suffer as the movements for hunting up and down differed slightly. This was corrected by having individual cams for the sets of rods for hunting up and down.

These rods D do not normally move the bellplate at all. They are brought into action by strips F, seven in number, which run at right angles to the bellplates and serve all eight of them. They are capable of rising about half an inch, and the seven correspond to the seven swops 1x2 to 7x8, and cause the corresponding pairs of bells to change places. These strips F are worked more or less directly from the panel which stores the swops to be made. The mechanism to do this is not complex, and will not be described. It is obvious that the right sequence of swops to be made must be fed from panel to these strips F.

The strips F rise to preselect the bellplates to be moved, and then drop back so that they do not foul the moving parts when the actual movement takes place. In Fig. 11 we have the first method adopted. The inset of Fig. 11 is a detail of the mechanism seen looking along the bellplate. The two pins G G are really behind one another as well as over consecutive strips F. The right-hand one has a similar mechanism and works the other rod behind D, not shown.

When the strip under the pin G rises, the pin is pushed up and causes the catch H to pivot and allow the rod D to drop, as the rod was formerly resting on the catch. When the rod drops, a projection J on it engages with one set of ridges K on the bellplate. All this happens with the bellplate stationary. When the lever E moves, the bellplate will be pushed one place to the left by means of J and K engaging. The rod L (seen end on) then rises and lifts all the rods D that had dropped to their original positions, and the rods D slide back for the next stroke. When any F rises, it will, of course, actuate two bellplates and these will change places.

In Fig. 12 we see the later method. The rod D has seven teeth of rod brazed on to it. These teeth are horizontal, seen in perspective in the figure. The rods D, unlike those in Fig. 11, have a more complex movement provided by two cams as before. When the strips F rise, they lift curious catches MM. These are staggered behind one another and only the left-hand one will engage with the rod D shown. When the catch M is lifted, the rod D moves a little to the left so that one of the wire prongs on D engages with the slot on the catch. Thus the catch is held up, and when the strip F drops again the catch remains engaged. This is the essential act of preselection. The rod D then moves again to the left and so the bellplate is moved. This movement must not take place while F is raised as the other catch M on the bellplate would foul F. When the rod D returns to its ready position again the catch M drops as nothing remains to hold it up. These catches M slide in square cups and have square shanks so that they cannot turn. It will be seen that this movement needs greater critical accuracy than the earlier one, probably the reason why it is not so reliable.

In Fig. 11 the bellplate runs on rollers. The right-hand roller carries the current to the bellplate, and Mr. Woodhouse found that the roller sparked badly. He therefore adopted sliding contacts for later models.

METHOD STORAGE AND CALLS.

An essential part of any ringing machine is that part which stores the method being rung. Some assembly of switches or levers, etc., must be capable of being set so that the machine may ring any desired method. In Carter's machine, the control boxes, in conjunction with the control drums, perform this function. In Mr. Ernest Morris' monumental work, 'The History and Art of Change Ringing,' facing page 549 (1931 edition) there is an illustration of the Carter machine with its maker. The control boxes are on the extreme right and the rods on which they slide may be clearly seen. The control drum on the near side of the machine is left centre, the pairs of sliding rods which are set for the method appearing as bars. Three gear wheels can be seen in the centre. The middle one revolves once per change and is on the shaft that carries the eccentric cams in Fig. 8. The left-hand gear wheel revolves once per whole pull, and at the other end of its shaft is the distributor arm which sends the current to the bells. The right-hand gear wheel, also revolving once per two changes, is on the same shaft as the squirrelcage in Fig. 8, and in front of it appearing black is the cam that causes the near control box to rise and fall. Behind the gear wheels may be seen the lever system which connects the control drum to its control box. A noteworthy feature of the machine is its fantastic capabilities. As each control drum has 48 sliding rods, methods with up to 96 changes in the lead can be rung on the machine. It is interesting to note that Champion Maximus, a method Carter himself constructed, is possibly the only method ever rung with such a long lead. Probably Carter had this in mind when he constructed the control system. In Champion the treble has a three-pull dodge in each position.

Mr. Woodhouse has adopted several ways of storing methods in his machine. No. 4 had a fibre barrel revolving. Pegs were inserted in holes in the barrel which pressed down on levers governing the pairs of bells swopping. The barrel was revolved a small amount at each change to bring into action a new row of pegs. A system of cams and gears provided the movement to the barrel for leads of varying length. No. 7 had a sliding panel in the lower part of the machine. It had rows of brass pegs which could be lifted so as to be vertical. In this position they actuated the swopping mechanism. The panel was pushed along by a ratchet at each change, and when the half-lead was rung a pin inserted at the half-lead worked a reversing mechanism which then pushed the panel one step at a time back again. Thus it was only necessary to set half the lead of the method. All methods or principles rung to-day are symmetrical, even though they are not constructed in leads, though the panel may need to commence its movement at different points.

In No. 8 machine a similar mechanism reverses the panel. The photograph of Mr. Woodhouse with his machine ('Ringing World,' March 31st, p. 203), taken by the 'Westmorland Gazette' (by whose permission it is reproduced), shows the panel of press buttons immediately in front of him. The whole panel of push buttons slides along its length and two methods may be spliced as described earlier.

In all machines that have been made, each individual lever, pin or plunger on the control causes a pair of bells to change places when brought into action. (The setting for places on No. 8 machine has to be construed into swops by the machine in this way.) In order to make the scheme quite clear, here is the setting of a panel for Bristol Surprise:—

Changes	Panel
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8	o	o	o
2 1 4 3 6 5 8 7	o	o	o

2 1 4 3 8 6 7 5	o	o	o
2 4 1 3 6 8 5 7	o	o	o
4 2 3 1 6 5 8 7	o	o	o
2 4 1 3 5 6 7 8	o	o	o
4 2 3 1 5 7 6 8	o	o	o
2 4 3 5 1 7 8 6	o	o	o

Each o represents a peg, and causes a pair of bells to change places. Note carefully that the pegs do not cause particular bells to swop, but the bells in particular positions. The first and last rows of noughts are at places of symmetry in the lead, and are where the panel reverses. These rows are only used once at each reversal.

The question of making calls raises my only criticism of the existing machines. In my opinion a ringing machine should be fully automatic, especially in call making. Calls should be made by pressing buttons marked 'bob' or 'single,' and that any time during the lead. The machine should help itself to the call at the proper moment, and not depend on the operator to press the button at the exact moment required. The Carter machine call-making buttons are not in a prominent place, and need a skilled conductor for their operation. There is very little margin of time allowed for correct pressing; and in Grand sire at a single, buttons must be pressed on each side of the machine.

In Woodhouse's machines, too, the call-making does not entirely satisfy me. In his earlier machines one had to press buttons which effected special 'swops' at a bob. In the later machines one has to reset the required row on the panel while it is in action. Although this is simple to do, in my opinion it is not in keeping with the automatic nature of the machine. The following is my ideal system of controls:—

'Go next time' for starting the method off from rounds. Must be self-synchronising so that the machine cannot start wrongly or at backstroke.

'Bob,' 'Single.' May be pressed with plenty of notice.

'Rounds.' This causes the machine to strike rounds automatically whatever change it may be ringing beforehand. It will also serve for 'This is all.'

In all existing machines the bellplates must be adjusted by hand to their home positions so that rounds may be struck before ringing is commenced.

Many further schemes of storage may be suggested. From the point of view of ease of setting, one could have a disc for every method which it is desired to ring. One scheme I worked out proposed a disc about the size of a gramophone record with radial rows of holes. Holes drilled would correspond to the swops required, and fine wires allowed to press against the disc would move through the holes and so work a mechanical preselection system. The disc would be attached to a shaft with a friction drive, while an escapement would allow the disc to revolve correctly if a tooth be opposite each row of holes. Various refinements could easily be added; for instance, 'This is all' could alter the pitch of the escapement so that the disc is free to revolve until a larger tooth stops the disc at the correct row for recommencing ringing. Calls could be effected by realigning the wires opposite rows of holes which have no tooth for normal use. There is no limit to the scope for ingenuity in solving this interesting problem of the ringing machine. It all depends on what one wants for a particular machine—what limit of complexity required, and a choice between ease of operation for the uninitiated or greater complexity with greater versatility. The electrical ringing machine I am at present making copies Mr. Woodhouse's half-lead setting. There are 21 normally used rows of press buttons on the front control panel, thus giving a maximum of 40 changes per lead. As the machine will ring up to ten bells it will be capable of ringing Surprise Royal, but nothing exceeding 40 changes per lead. The buttons are in horizontal rows, ten in each row. The end button on the right-hand side is a cancel button. If pressed, it throws the row out of use entirely, so that much simpler methods may be set using only a few rows of buttons, and the other rows are cancelled. The other nine buttons are for places 1 to 9, and there is an electrical mechanism which translates this information set into swops. (This is quite easily done with nine relays.) It is never necessary to set 10ths place; it follows automatically. Thus, if button No. 3 is pressed the corresponding places made are 3rds and 10th, but if the 3rd and 6th buttons be pressed then 3rds and 6ths places are made. This arrangement has proved to be very useful, as in setting a Caters method only one button in each row need be pressed, 10ths place for the tenor covering following automatically. If no buttons at all in the row are pressed then, as in Mr. Woodhouse's No. 8 machine, the five swops 1x2 to 9x0 follow automatically. The buttons are of the wireless press-button type, and when pressed in stay in. But if any other buttons in the same row are pressed, the others immediately spring out. It is possible to set a Royal method from Mr. Corrigan's collection in half a minute.

In addition, nine selected rows (chosen so as to meet all occasions) have jack sockets on the right-hand side. Coloured telephone jacks are inserted in the sockets for calls, as follows. White jacks are for 'plain' rows, that is, rows used at a plain lead but not when a call is made. If the Bob or Single button on the control box (a box with five buttons connected to the machine by a cable) is pressed, then the machine does not use the row, and passes to the next set. A green plug is inserted for a row to be used only at a bob, and the end cancel button is also pressed on that row. If, however, the Bob button is pressed on the control box, not only does it cut out the Plain row but it also causes the machine to use the Bob row instead. A similar arrangement works for the Single rows, which have red plugs. The call making is therefore entirely automatic, and may be put into action well before the time required, or a split second before the row is actually in use. The usual time for calling a bob or single gives ample warning for the machine. The five buttons on the control box perform the functions listed earlier, the extra one being used only for restoring the other buttons to normal. The scanning of the rows of buttons is effected by a gang of unisector (Continued on page 220.)

PETERBOROUGH DIOCESAN GUILD NORTHAMPTON BRANCH.

The monthly meeting was held at Brixworth on March 25th, with an attendance of 30, which included members, friends and visitors.

The Guild service was conducted by Rev. Freeman, Vicar of Brixworth, whose address, being most appropriate, was based on the five inscriptions of Brixworth bells. The organist was Mr. Campden. Tea was served in the Crown Inn, the business meeting following. The branch chairman (Mr. G. S. Valentine) presiding, supported by the secretary (Mr. E. Nobles). The next meeting was arranged for Wootton on April 29th.

A vote of thanks was extended to Rev. Freeman for the use of the bells and conducting the service and for his address, and to those responsible for a splendid tea.

Ringing was resumed and, although the bells were a little hard going, good use was made of them with Stedman, Grandsire, Plain Bob, St. Simon's and Spliced Doubles to complete a successful meeting.

ADDRESS TO ROTARIANS

'Bellringing often takes a man down a peg' was the heading given to a talk by Mr. A. E. York-Bramble to the Southampton Rotary Club. Pointing out that peal ringing required great mental concentration and a fine sense of teamwork, Mr. York-Bramble said: 'It often took a man down a peg when he saw someone who had not the same advantages as himself in life who could concentrate so much more on the job and make fewer mistakes.'

OXFORD UNIVERSITY'S PEAL IN 21 METHODS WAS SPLICED

Dear Sir,—I expected to see some comment in 'Ringing World' of March 31st on the previous week's statement in Belfry (gossip that the peal of Spliced Plain Major rung at Oxford 'was not spliced according to the Central Council's decision.'

It seems in very bad taste to claim that this new peal in 17 methods contains the most ever rung spliced 'in hand' without substantiating it.

In the peal in 21 methods the methods were rung in complete courses and the method was always changed at a lead-end. The composition was published in 'The Ringing World' in 1931 and, so far as I know, has never been criticised as not being spliced.

Quite a number of peals have been rung in which the number of changes of method has been very small, and against which it would be possible to direct many other criticisms if one were so inclined. However, why do so? The question of Kent and Oxford Treble Bob has been settled by the rule that splicing can only be done at lead-ends, and this seems quite adequate. If the Central Council has made other decisions on the subject, I suggest they be given a little more publicity.

Finally, let me say I in no way wish to detract from the merit of ringing the 17-method peal, which was undoubtedly a fine performance, but would suggest that the band ring 22 before claiming to have rung the largest number.—Yours sincerely,

R. F. B. SPEED.

A MEMORABLE FIRST SURPRISE PEAL

Dear Sir,—I should like to record my compliments and thanks to Miss Gillian A. Smith for standing in at the last minute and helping us out in a peal of Aldenham at Rotherfield on March 22nd.

This young lady was a complete stranger to us all and was in the district on holiday. She rang me up to know if there was any ringing in the district. I asked her if she could ring Aldenham Surprise, as I was one short for the peal, and she said that she had not rung a Surprise peal, but would like the opportunity of trying. I asked her to look up Aldenham and come along, which she did.

I would like to congratulate her on the way she handled her bell and also the most efficient manner in which she rang the method. She certainly is a credit to whoever taught her to ring, and I shall look forward to ringing with her again.—Yours faithfully,

W. ROGERS

(Conductor of the peal).

SHERBORNE'S RHYME

Dear Sir,—Re correspondence in your columns about rhymes connected with various churches, belfries, etc., here is one I collected at Sherborne Abbey, Dorset.

This is a belfry free
For all those that civil be.
And if you please to Chime or Ring,
It is a very Pleasant thing,
There is no music played or sung
Like unto bells when they are Well rung.
If that to ring you do come here,
Then ring your bell well if you can,
Silence is best for every man.
Keep stroke of eight and go not out.
Or you will forfeit out of doubt,
But if you ring in spur or hat,
Sixpence you pay be sure of that,
And if a bell you overthrow,
You pay a shilling before you go.

Yours truly,

R. G. FIELD.

Yeovil.

PEALS AT HAZELBEECH

Dear Sir,—Congratulations to the band who rang the recent peal at Hazelbeech, but whoever gave them the idea that it was the first on the bells since 1933?

A peal of Grandsire Triples (Thurstans' five-part), conducted by Ernest Morris, was rung there on January 4th, 1936, in which I rang the 3rd, and unless my memory serves me very badly there have been two or three other peals since 1933 (not necessarily Peterborough Diocesan Guild peals). Mere guessing at things like this can be very misleading to future generations when put into print.

In addition, I would like to know who gave Mr. Cannon the idea that Hanslope tenor is 'in D', which he stated in a peal report a few months ago? To be in D this bell would have to sound the same note as St. Giles', Northampton. Anyone who has rung both bells, if he has anything of a musical ear at all, knows perfectly well there is quite a difference. Hanslope tenor is E natural. These may seem unimportant errors to some people, but I'll repeat, they can lead future generations astray!

Another absurdity is the claim of 'first peal on the bells' because no living being can recall a peal there. One of the few towers where such a first could be claimed is Long Buckby, where since 1814 there have been five bells (four dated 1624), and a record is kept of what in 1856 would have been the first peal but failed only 12 changes from the end. The bells then had no stays, and one went right over. The names and order of this band are still kept by a very old inhabitant, who himself and his father before him can recall all peal attempts in this tower (incidentally my own family native home, where I can claim relations going back 108 years).

Where no record like Long Buckby is kept, would it not be more strictly in order to put 'believed' first peal on the bells?

switches which connect the rows of buttons one by one to the other sections of the machine. As each row of buttons is in use, an indicator lamp on the left lights up. Only the half-lead is set on the 21 rows, and the rows are used in order downwards and then upwards again. The top and bottom rows thus correspond to the turning rows of the method, e.g., in Bob Major when the treble is leading and lying. In order to make calls at the turning row (as in practically all even-bell methods) two extra rows of buttons top the panel and are not normally used. They have no cancel buttons as they are permanently out of use and can only be used by insertion of a call plug. The other seven rows with call plug jack sockets behave normally if no jack plug is inserted.

There is also an arrangement for returning the row being used to the correct one for starting ringing, when 'Rounds' is called.

Synthetic Bells

The following, under the heading of 'Synthetic Bells,' appeared in 'The Harwich and Dovercourt Newsman' of March 24th:—

There has been some complaint recently in our correspondence columns about Harwich Church bells. What about the noise at Dovercourt on Sunday mornings? The inconsiderate volume that issues from Kingsway Hall is one of the most trying seaside noises that I have ever experienced.

A gramophone record is no substitute, surely, for a genuine peal of bells, and to me it sounds ludicrous to hear all the bells of St. Margaret's, Westminster, gushing from the slender turret of this chapel at Dovercourt, which would not carry a small treble bell, let alone the whole ten of one of the principal peals in the land.

Synthetic bells are not one of the joys of old England, and there can be no excuse for disturbing the peace of this quiet seaside town with an amplified gramophone recording.

QUALIFICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP

Dear Sir,—I had no intention of furthering the argument re 'Qualification of Membership' in the columns of 'The Ringing World.' Mr. Sanger's letter in this week's issue, however, leaves me no option but to ask for a space in reply. It is extraordinary how easily some can 'misconstruct.' The surprising thing about it in this case, to me at any rate, is how Mr. Sanger fell for it. I should have known better, I suppose, than try to defend the 'ordinary member' and not clearly define who he is, for in not doing so Mr. Sanger accuses me of 'introducing class distinction.' I dispute and categorically deny ever thinking of such a thing. My letter bears no suggestion to that alleged introduction.

Of course, in a sense there is no difference between 'ordinary members' and members. We all belong to a Guild. Some know what for, others do not. We pay our subscriptions, attend meetings sometimes, and are entitled to suggest and criticise and endeavour to raise the standard of ringing, and with everyone combining to reach one end—the betterment of Sunday service ringing. But this will not be accomplished if the selected few, happily very few, will not accept a little helpful criticism.

Mr. Sanger says that I wandered from the point in question. Well, perhaps I did. I can only say that I was trying to follow Mr. Lyke's letter point by point. Luckily for me, I stopped in time.

I fully endorse Mr. Sanger in quoting Mr. Frank Warrington's 'one God, one service.' My many friends will endorse it, too. That is the Guild's ultimate end, isn't it?

I hope that the misconstruction 'bug' hasn't bitten me, but am I to assume that we as members are to store up our criticisms and suggestions for twelve months and bring them to the annual for ventilation? I am sure that there are many members who do not, for various reasons, attend meetings. They rely on the good offices of 'The Ringing World' to keep them in touch with their Guilds, and, indeed, it is the only link some have. Mr. Sanger, surely, doesn't want to break that link.—Sincerely yours,

R. BEALE.

WIRRAL BRANCH ANNUAL DINNER.

The second annual dinner, entertainment and dance of the Wirral Branch, held at The Cathedral, Moreton, Wirral, on March 18th, proved even more successful than the previous venture, there being a 25 per cent. increase in attendance.

Over 100 persons sat down to the meal in the ballroom, presided over by the branch chairman (Mr. J. Cooke), supported by the Ringing Master (Mr. T. Rogers), hon. secretary and treasurer (Mr. A. J. Martin) and ringers from Bebington, Bidston, Birkenhead St. Mary's, Bromborough, Eastham, Wallasey St. Hilary's and Wallasey St. Nicholas', together with relatives and friends.

Speeches were drastically curtailed, 'brevity and levity' being orders for the night, and the toastmaster, Mr. G. F. Pickthall, speedily and ably dispensed this part of the programme.

The company then relaxed, after posing for photographs, to enjoy the excellent entertainment. Billy Yorke proved to be a capable pianist and vocalist, and Vic Wade mystified all with his conjuring. Lawrence Catterall showed himself to be the possessor of a baritone voice of great power and flexibility, whilst once again 'Professor' Bing Briscoe amused all with his patter and topical sketches.

Tables were then whisked away, the dance orchestra was installed, and dancing followed until midnight, with only a slight pause for refreshments.

Older members consorted in the private lounge available and reminisced to their hearts' content. Later they were once again entertained by the artistes.

All present thoroughly enjoyed the function and are looking forward to next year's event.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

WEST DORSET BRANCH.

Loders, nestling between the hills not far from Bridport, was visited on March 11th by the West Dorset Branch for its quarterly meeting, some 35 members attending.

The church is very ancient and contains many features of peculiar architectural interest, and at the entrance to the chancel is preserved a pre-Reformation bell, dated 1461, which for 300 years called the village people to worship.

The Rector, the Rev. O. Willmott—himself a ringer—conducted the Guild office, the lesson being read by the Rev. C. Carew Cox, chairman of the branch. A most delightful address on 'Manliness' from the Rector captured the attention of all.

After a sumptuous tea, provided by the local ringers, had been enjoyed at the Rectory, the chairman presided over the business meeting. Mr. C. H. Lathey, hon. secretary, presented the final accounts for 1949, showing a balance in hand of £23 2s. 5d. The next meeting, to be held at Lyme Regis, was fixed for April 15th. Arrangements were provisionally agreed upon for the engagement of a coach to convey members to the annual festival of the Guild at Trowbridge on May 13th.

An enthusiastic vote of thanks was given to the Rector for his welcome and address; to Mr. B. Elsworth, organist; to the local ringers for their generosity; also to the ladies who had prepared and served the tea.

The good-toned ring of six bells (tenor 20 cwt.) was put to good use during the afternoon and evening in call changes and methods ranging from Grandsire and Stedman Doubles to Cambridge and London Surprise Minor.

Symmetry in Methods and the Truth it Stands for

BY GEORGE BAKER.

Two of the rules laid down by the Central Council are:—

1. Methods must be symmetrical.
2. Asymmetrical methods are illegitimate.

Shipways Minor Principle arranged symmetrically	Reciprocal Proof of same.	Shipways Minor Principle. Proof arrangement.	False.
123456	(1) 546213	123456	(1) 142653

243615	(5) 546213	432156	(5) 142653

634215	(8) 546213	312645	(8) 321654
643251	(7) 546213	321654	(7) 263154
462315	(6) 546213	236145	(6) 612354
426351	(5) 546213	263154	(5) 136254
246531	(4) 546213	621345	(4) 321654
425613	(3) 546213	612354	(3) 263154
452631	(2) 546213	163245	(2) 162354
546213	(1) 546213	136254	(1) 136254

564231 316524

In the Symmetrical Shipway Principle there is only one 'even' false course head when proved by Reciprocal proof (with the 6th a fixed bell), i.e., 213546.

In the Asymmetrical Shipway Principle there are twelve false course heads when proved by Reciprocal proof, i.e.:—

'Even.'	'Odd.'
34251	13452
35142	42153
14523	32514
21354	15234
53124	31425
43215	24135

These facts of themselves prove that the Asymmetrical arrangement would not produce the extent of 720 changes, but there is more to it than that, because in Principles where all the bells work alike each 'Even' row can be compared with any other 'Even' row, and each 'Odd' row can be compared with any other 'Odd' row, and for this we require another kind of proof, which I call 'Equivalent' proof, and this latter proof is also made use of in Treble Bob and Surprise methods to find the false course heads, as well as in Principles, but that belongs to another chapter altogether.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE ASSN.

A large company of ringers assembled at the Church of St. Ignatius, Sunderland, on March 18th, for the Joseph W. Parker commemorative meeting. The Association's service was conducted by the Rev. G. H. Marshall, Vicar of St. Ignatius'. Tea was served in Meng's Restaurant, after which the president, Mr. W. N. Park, thanked the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells. The Vicar, replying, said that it was a delight to him to welcome the ringers to St. Ignatius', and he hoped that they had enjoyed their visit.

TUNE RINGING

EXCEPT in the case of the carillon the musical world takes little cognisance of the contribution the bell can make to the realm of music. Nevertheless, the bell has as sweet a note to the ear as any instrument. Attention to the contribution of the bell in the realm of music has been focused by a little book written by the Rev. J. M. Turner, Rector of Washfield, Devon, and late president of the North-East Devon Guild of Ringers, entitled 'The Art and Science of Hand Bell Ringing.'

This publication is timely. Frequent inquiries have been addressed to the editor for information regarding tune ringing on handbells and appropriate music. While this might be regarded as outside the purview of change ringing, he did make inquiries in the musical publishing world, and had with regret to report that there was nothing helpful. While there is no lack of evidence as to the popularity of tune ringing, the initiative has rested with the individual conductors and trainers of the band or such accomplished artists in handbell ringing as Mrs. Albert Hughes.

Change ringing and tune ringing on handbells are two different arts and it does not follow that handbell ringers, as we in the Exercise know them, are able to oblige with a musical interlude at a parish social or similar function. To many members of the public the inability of ringers to provide musical numbers is not understandable, and their failure to render such airs as 'The Bluebells of Scotland' or 'Drink to me only' is regarded as childish behaviour. Nevertheless, there are companies of ringers capable of and specialising in giving musical performances of a high standard. The late Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, in his book on the Australian tour, mentions how the English tourists practised popular airs in secret to give a turn at the ship's concert and, judging by all accounts, it proved to be highly popular.

The Rev. J. M. Turner points out that several methods have been adopted for the instruction of tune ringers, some being very complicated and difficult by their signs and figures; some ringers play from memory, others by a scheme of numbers, others by enlarged notes on the copies of each ringer, circular or squared. He advocates strongly the old musical notation universally used and points out that it frees the conductor from the laborious task of copying out figures, which, when done, gives no indication of key or tune. In ringing from musical notation every ringer is able to follow any tune and ring his bell at the proper time, neither too quick nor too slow. If the set is large enough the parts treble, alto, tenor and bass may be put in and thus add to the richness of the music.

The art of ringing a handbell is familiar to many, probably the majority, of our readers. The points the author makes are: The strangeness of holding the bell by a leathern strap handle; the motion of the clapper to and fro; the bell should be rung simply by a wrist movement; and the regulating of the volume of the sound of the bell—loud or soft. The last-named process is accomplished by regulating the swing of the clapper.

The ringing of a handbell is not learned in five minutes. The bell must be firmly grasped by the strap close to the top. As the motion of the hand is normally up and down, the bell should be so held that the clapper rises and falls. The up stroke, generally the harder, is accomplished by putting on a kind of brake with the thumb pressed on the top of the bell.

An essential accomplishment in tune bell ringing is to ring two bells in each hand. The explanation given by Mr. Turner is as follows: 'Place the four bells on the table left to right, up the scale like the notes of a piano, e.g., A, B, C, D. Put your forefingers in the form of a V sign, slide them down the straps A and C, palm inwards, grasp B and D firmly in the hollow of the thumb and lift each with mouth upwards. You will find that the clappers are at right angles. A downward movement will ring one bell alone, and a sideways movement the other alone. Remember that it is the wrist movement that is essential, not from the shoulder or elbow.'

A team of ringers should always stand having the lower bells on the left hand and the higher on the right, corresponding to the position of a pianist or organist. Each individual ringer should have his bells in each hand accordingly. If he is ringing two bells in one hand, the lower bell should be the one with its strap between his forefinger, with the strap of the higher bell in the hollow of his thumb. The position of the bells in hand will now indicate higher or lower as well as the sound or letter note on the strap. The lower bell clapper will strike up or down and the higher bell clapper sideways.

The range of performance depends on the number of bells the band possesses. A set of 14 bells will only take in the treble and alto, but a set of three-octave bells with all the semitones, numbering 37 bells (the chromatic scale), will perform wonders in music. It is advocated that the most expert ringers should be placed in the middle section and able to follow whether a bell is alto or tenor. Copies may be obtained from the author, price 3s. 6d. post free.

Australian Electronic Carillon

BY ANGUS BRAMMALL.

An electronic carillon, developed and now being mass produced by Amalgamated Wireless (Australasia), Ltd. (A.W.A.), is based on a model made from chimes found in a Sydney pawnshop. It is believed to be the only carillon in the world with a 'touch responsive' keyboard which enables the player to vary light and shade effects. Carillons in Britain and the U.S. are magnetically operated and do not respond directly to hand pressure.

The inventor of the Sydney carillon is Mr. John Ernest Benson, an A.W.A. engineer.

Although the first model was not built until late in 1944, many of these carillons are now installed in churches and other buildings overseas and in Australia. The original model has been sent to the Cathedral of the Holy Spirit, at Dodoma, Central Tankanyika.

The cost of the carillon varies from £A700 to £A1,000, according to the amplification range. Except for the tubular bells, which come from Britain, the instrument is Australian made.

Blurred and confused chimes relayed over an ordinary public address system at a Sydney suburban church led Mr. Benson to start work on his original model, which took two years to build. He used mainly junk material, including a set of second-hand chimes and a wrecked piano, bought from a dealer for £A1.

The finished carillon, installed at St. Anne's Church, Ryde (a northern suburb of Sydney), caused such interest that Mr. Benson submitted his invention to A.W.A., who agreed to sponsor its manufacture.

The carillon, with a keyboard like a miniature piano, is seven feet high and four feet wide. It has 21 piano notes in chromatic scale, and the musical range covers one and a half octaves (C to F, including half-tones), enabling a variety of compositions to be played.

Pressure of the player's hand moves a leather-faced hammer which strikes one of the tubular bells. The chime is picked up in a microphone and amplified through two superimposed loudspeakers. Its greatest audible range is six miles.

ANGELUS NOW AUTOMATIC.

A.W.A. engineers have perfected another device, a 'ghost finger,' by which the angelus may be rung automatically on an electronic carillon. This was recently installed at a Darlinghurst, Sydney, church.

The angelus chimes do not have the too-perfect tones of a mechanical instrument. They ring with a slight tone variation, similar to the human errors of manual bellringing.

And, going further, variations have been introduced to the original cycle of 'errors' to ensure that the chimes do not ring out in identical fashion whenever they are sounded.

A.W.A. has done a great deal on research on carillon techniques. When Prince Charles was born on November 15th, 1948, an electronic carillon on the 425ft. high steel tower of the A.W.A. building in Sydney's York Street chimed for the baby.

According to A.W.A. technicians, it was one of the greatest concentrations of sound ever broadcast from one focal point—a 540 watt 'boost.' (The power behind an ordinary public address system is 15 watts.)

Another A.W.A. carillon broadcast for the royal birthday from the Town Hall in Melbourne, capital of the southern Australian State of Victoria.

A Speldhurst Romance

On Saturday, April 1st, the bells of Speldhurst, Kent, rang out for the wedding of Mr. Anthony Turley and Miss Evelyn Hyman, both members of the local band and regular attenders at the Kent County and East Grinstead Guild meetings.

The happy couple left the church to the strains of Grandsire Triples rung by four locals and four Guild members, but a long touch was not possible then, owing to a following wedding, so the ringers went across to the George and Dragon for the reception, and by the time this was over no one really cared about a peal!

While the bride was changing to go away, the groom joined in a touch of Bob Major, then eight Guild members settled down to a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples, thinking that the bells would be going nicely when the couple left for their honeymoon in the Isle of Wight but, unfortunately, after 17 minutes a rope broke and the couple had to leave in silence.

A spare rope was soon put on, and the second attempt was successfully brought round by: G. D. Burroughs 1, Mrs. B. A. Bassett 2, H. N. Vaughan 3, E. J. Gadd (cond.) 4, L. W. Giles 5, E. J. Oliver 6, A. Richardson 7, C. A. Bassett 8.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION SOUTH-WEST DIVISION.

A very successful and well attended meeting was held at Brentwood on April 1st, when approximately 70 members and friends sat down to tea. The visitors included a large number from the adjacent S.E. District.

The service was conducted by the Vicar of Brentwood who, in an interesting address, told of an experience a friend of his had had in a certain parish. This friend had received many abusive letters from a certain gentleman decrying the church and bells in general. In due course of time the 'abusive gentleman' had emigrated to Canada, but the abusive letters still continued to arrive, only this time it was the absence of the bells which was the trouble. The Vicar was quoting this in emphasising the part bells play in the lives of people and the church.

Although the ringing chamber became very congested, ringing was much enjoyed on this rather difficult though pleasant eight.

The thanks of the district are due to the local band, particularly Messrs. J. Sitch and A. Pryke for arranging the meeting at short notice after the cancellation of the arrangements at Rayleigh.

GUILD OF DEVONSHIRE RINGERS SPECIAL VISIT TO TEIGNMOUTH.

In response to a request from the Parochial Church Council, Mr. J. E. Lilley, of Newton Abbot, who is chairman of the Mid-Devon Branch of the Devon Guild of Ringers, visited St. Michael's, East Teignmouth, recently to look over the bells and to see what the prospects were of their being rung, as they have been silent for several months.

Following his visit, he gathered together some members of the Mid-Devon and Exeter Branches and visited the tower on April 1st to ring. The bells were found to be in good going order, and some excellent touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Plain Bob Major were rung during the afternoon and evening.

Tea was very kindly provided by the church authorities, after which Mr. Lilley voiced the hearty thanks of the visitors to the authorities for their hospitality, and for allowing the bells to be rung. Several recruits have come forward and have expressed their willingness to learn to ring there.

Dedication

NORTH BRADLEY, WILTS.

Saturday, March 25th, was an important day in the life of North Bradley, Wilts, when two new trebles, augmenting the ring to eight, were dedicated by the Bishop of Salisbury.

North Bradley is a typical Wiltshire village and was bathed in glorious sunshine. The 13th-century Church of St. Nicholas stands on the highest part of the village, where the lovely meadows fall away to the fair hills of Salisbury Plain.

The two bells are the Parish Church's thanksgiving for victory in the two world wars and are inscribed, 'Glory to God in the Highest, 1914-1918, and Peace on Earth and Goodwill Among Men, 1939-1945. Canon S. D. M. Davys, Vicar. E. W. Godwin and H. Ludlow, Churchwardens. P. W. J. Harding, Ringing Master.'

The Bishop, in his sermon, spoke of the very important service of dedicating these bells, which will possibly ring out for hundreds of years, reminding people of their duty to God by their worship in church. The eight ringers who rang the bells, he said, were not individuals but worked as a team, and if anyone went wrong the others were calling across the tower, putting them right. Even so, the members of the church were not individuals but members of a corporate body, serving under their God's command.

The opening rounds on the bells were rung by eight members of the local band: P. Harding, F. Slafford, Ron Harding, L. Hitchins, J. Hunt, J. Giddings, D. Lee and Roy Harding, and the after-service touch of 238 Grandsire Triples was rung by J. Hunt, F. Slafford, L. Hitchins, D. Lee, F. Penn, G. Harding, P. Harding and Roy Harding.

After the service a party of about 80 people did justice to an excellent tea, served by the ladies who had charge of the refreshments for the social events in connection with the Bell Fund. A birthday cake, inscribed, 'The Bells of St. Nicholas,' which was the gift of Mr. S. Adams, was cut amid great ceremony by the Vicar, Canon Davys. The Vicar spoke of this great day in the life of the church, and said how proud they were to have completed the octave. He paid great tribute to his band of ringers, under the leadership of their captain, Mr. P. Harding, who were responsible for getting the funds for the bells, and also how proud he was to have four officers of the Salisbury Guild in his tower.

Captain Wilson, seconding the Vicar's speech, congratulated the church and village on their go-ahead spirit.

Mr. S. Adams, a great friend and generous donor to the fund, mentioned how pleased he was to be back again in North Bradley and to hear the bells of the church where he worshipped as a boy.

During the evening good use was made of the bells, and methods ranged from Grandsire to Cambridge Major. Ringers attended from many parts of the South and West of England. Messrs. Mears and Stainbank were the founders and are to be congratulated on a good splice. They were represented by Mr. W. Theobald.

7th. Remittances: 20s. 12 months, 10s. 6d. six months, 5s. 6d. three months, to Mrs. Fletcher,

Quarterly subscribers are reminded that their

The in memoriam handbell peal to the Rev. C.
A. Phillips recorded in this issue was rung at Ferndown Hill at the wish of Mr. A. F. Martin Stewart, who was a close friend of Mr. Phillips for 48 years.
The Rev. C. A. Phillips was godfather to Mr.
Stewart's only son. The peal is believed to be the first peal of Grandsire Caters 'in hand' in the county of Dorset.

His many friends will regret to learn that Mr. G. W. Steere, hon. treasurer of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths, is in Sutton and Cheam Hospital for observation.

April 18th is the 56th anniversary of the 13,440 Double Norwich Court Bob Major rung at Romford, Essex, conducted by George Newson. The characteristic of this peal was the extent with the tenors together.

According to 'The Observer' an order for a carillon of 51 bells is to be given for the Culver Military Academy, Indiana, U.S.A., to be provided by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon.

We thank correspondents who have called our attention to the fact that if an open lead was eliminated the time saved in a peal of Major or Triples would be one-seventeenth.
At the rate of striking at 28 changes to the minute, the 'open lead' is mathematically
.252 secs., and the time saved in a peal would be 10.584 minutes.

Incorporated in the annual report of the Irish Association is a section on change ringing dealing with plain hunting, compiled by Mr. F. E. Dukes, the hon. secretary. This is for the benefit of remote country teams which are without proper instructors. In one case the nearest instructor is over 200 miles away, and others about the 150 mark. These bands are keen to learn, and Mr. Dukes is hoping to arrange for their instruction in this manner.

BELFRY GOSSIP

We commend the B.B.C. on their choice of rings of bells for the Easter Sunday broadcast. Their adviser knew the bells of the British Isles well, and it could not have been a chance affair. The broadcast started with St. Paul's Cathedral, London, and included the University Church of St. Mary-the-Virgin, Oxford, St. Giles', Wrexham, St.
Mary's, Shrewsbury, St. Donard's, Belfast,
Moulin Parish Church, Pitlochry, Scotland,
Skipton Parish Church, Yorkshire, and St.
Mary's, Southampton.

The choice for Northern Ireland was the bells of St. Donard's Church, Belfast. This ring of six was installed by Messrs. John Taylor and Co. last November.

Skipton Parish Church has only occasionally appeared in our columns. Here the two oldest ringers are Mr. F. Metcalfe (76), who has been ringing since 1890, and Mr. Walter Bailey (75), the steeplekeeper, who started in 1891. Skipton tenor weighs 22 cwt.

The bells of Walpole St. Peter, Norfolk, which have been rebung and retuned, were dedicated on April 8th. We regret the error in last week's announcement.

Mr. Godfrey Winn, in his popular Saturday night broadcast on 'My Week,' visited Lavenham Church, Suffolk, and had a talk with Mr.
Stedman Symonds on ringing.

Another broadcast relating to bells was 'In Town To-night,' last Saturday. Brian Johnston, in 'Let's Go Somewhere,' visited a Dockland church, where the bells were apparently hung dead. He persuaded the ringer in charge to let him 'have a go.' We hope that our readers will emphasise to the B.B.C.
the danger of permitting non-ringers to 'have a go' in a belfry. It is fraught with danger to the inexperienced and has been the cause of a number of accidents.

THE KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

SEVENTY AND STILL GOING STRONG SECRETARY AND IMPORTANCE OF SUNDAY RINGING RECORD PEAL YEAR PEALS AT ANY PRICE TACTICS DEPRECATED

ROCHESTER was visited by the Kent County Association for its 70th annual meeting on Easter Monday. Over 200 members were present, and the reports presented indicated the strong and flourishing position of the Association.

The service was held at the Cathedral Church, the Dean giving the address and the Archdeacon of Maidstone reading the lesson. The hearty character of the singing was commented upon by the Dean.

A full programme of ringing was arranged for the visit, the bells of the Cathedral and a number of other churches being available. Local arrangements were made by Mr. E. A. G. Allen.

Mr. E. H. Lewis, a vice-president of the Association, presided at the luncheon held in the Market Buildings. Guests of honour were the Mayor and Mayoress of Rochester and the Dean and the Archdeacon of Rochester.

CIVIC WELCOME.

The Mayor, in according a civic welcome to the company, said he had often thought, when he had the pleasure of listening not only to the splendid ring of bells in the Cathedral but also in other churches throughout the South of England, how much they would miss the bells if they were suddenly taken away. He was sure ringers had not succeeded in perfecting their calling without a good deal of hard work and study and many hours away from home. Ringing had much behind it—the many friendships and splendid comradeships created by ringing in different churches.

If there was one thing in Rochester for which they thanked the Almighty it was the preservation of their grand old Cathedral.

The Dean also addressed a few words of welcome to the company and congratulated them not only on their ringing but the heartiness of their singing. He congratulated Mr. Spice on the arrangement for such a successful function. 'I have heard of the spice of life,' added the Dean, 'and I am sure that Mrs. Spice is the spice of this Association.'

The thanks of the Association to the Mayor and the Dean were voiced by Mr. J. Willis.

At the business meeting the hon. secretary read apologies from Mr. R. A. Constant (Gravesend), Mr. E. Ruck (Willesborough) and Mrs. F. White. The last-named wrote resigning his position as trustee of the Association as he was leaving the county to live with his son.

A FOUNDATION MEMBER.

Mr. G. H. Spice prefaced the annual report by reminding the members that within a month the Association would have reached the advanced age of three score and ten years. The sole surviving foundation member was Mr. E. Ruck, of Willesborough, who still took an active part, not only in service ringing but also in encouraging and guiding the younger members in his district.

Over the past 70 years progress and advancement had been made in various directions. The standard of ringing on the whole had improved; more intricate methods had been evolved; lady ringers had taken up the art energetically and with marked success; belfry reform had not been neglected; social and recreational activity among ringers was noticeably on the upgrade; by means of wireless, bells had been brought into the homes of millions of people, and a go-ahead ringers' weekly, 'The Ringing World,' completed the picture.

In a warning against complacency, Mr. Spice said they were living in an age when there was a tendency to expect results without working for them. Example beat precept, and if to mark this 70th anniversary of the founding of their Association ringers made Sunday service ringing their fixed duty, there was not the slightest doubt that toppling bands at present being held together by a conscientious few would soon get back to a strong and healthy condition.

MEMBERSHIP SLIGHTLY DOWN.

As against their total paying practising members of 1,033 for 1948, the 1949 total stood at 1,015. Seventeen non-resident life members were elected during the year and subscriptions were received from 53 hon. members—two less than last year. Subscriptions were received from 134 towers, as against 124 last year.

New practising members enrolled in 1949 were: Ashford District, 22 adults, 5 juveniles; Canterbury, 20, —; Lewisham, 12, 7; Maidstone, 24, 2; Rochester, 6, 1; Tonbridge, 27, 1.

LOSSES BY DEATH.

The company stood as the following names of those who had died during the year were read: Practising members: William Bidnell (Hythe), Reginald Smith (Boughton), Harry Hogarth (Chatham), A. H. Jones (Penshurst), G. Baker (Tunbridge Wells) and W. Berry (Greenwich). Non-resident life members: Eric B. Hartley, Canon Coleridge and George Williams.

There had been only one change in officers. Mr. Cyril Buesden, in the Canterbury district, had been elected to serve as co-representative with Mr. French in place of Mr. J. W. Unwin, resigned. The thanks of the Association were expressed to Mr. Unwin for his seven years in office in the Canterbury district.

MISCELLANEOUS

The local band at Ashford now ring London and Bristol Surprise Major regularly for Sunday services. Congratulations.

Congratulations also to Mr. Albert J. Lancefield, late of Willesborough, who in 1949 conducted the first peal of Minor to be rung in New Zealand, at Christchurch Cathedral.

Mr. Robert Edwards, of Tenterden, is now 85 and still rings regularly. He has completed 65 years' membership of the Association and is believed to be the runner-up to Mr. Ted Ruck.

The average attendance at meetings in the Canterbury district during the year was 69. Well done, Canterbury.

Friends of Mr. Harry Hoverd, who has been on the sick list for many months, will be pleased to learn that he is making steady progress towards recovery.

The work of reconstructing the new Parish Church at Bromley has been commenced. The foundation stone was laid by H.R.H. Princess Elizabeth.

Mr. Waddington, of Egerton, has provided a new attendance book for meetings of the Maidstone District. Thanks!

Congratulations to the Maidstone District on producing a quarterly magazine, 'The Belfry,' and to the Editor, Mr. F. Wright.

The morning service on Remembrance Sunday was broadcast from Hollingbourne Church. The local band was responsible for the ringing.

After repairs, Cobham bells are now in good going order, as are those of Meopham, which have been augmented to a ring of eight.

The report was adopted.

HEALTHY FINANCES.

Mr. F. M. Mitchell, who was elected hon. treasurer 21 years ago, presented the accounts.

He said the Belfry Repair Fund was started in 1895, and since then they had met 70 appeals, and grants made totalled £334. The Benevolent Fund was started in 1912, and 109 grants had been made, totalling £432 16s.

When he took over the treasurership, the total of the Association funds was £834 18s. 4d.; it now stood at £1,234. The statement of accounts for 1949 showed a balance in hand of £90 18s. 7d., against £54 7s. 2d. at the beginning of the year. From the Benevolent Fund nine grants had been made during the year, and the balance carried forward was £422 12s. 2d., against £450 0s. 2d. The Belfry Repair Fund had just held its own, the balance being £240 17s. 3d. Grants of £10 to Hannington and £5 5s. to St. Luke's, Bromley, had been made during the year. The accounts were adopted.

PEALS AN ALL-TIME RECORD.

Mr. P. A. Corby, peal secretary, in his report, stated that 166 peals were recorded in 1949. This was an increase of 10 on 1948, and an all-time record for the Association, and was achieved without the aid of peal-ringing tours

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL

The Third Session of the Twentieth Council (53rd Annual Meeting) will be held at Eastbourne on Whitsun Tuesday, May 30th, 1950.

All notices of motions signed by the proposer and seconder must be forwarded forthwith for inclusion in the agenda.

or of any national peal-ringing occasion. Despite this increased activity, however, they would lose their place at the head of the Central Council's list due to the high figure attained by various Midland and Northern Associations.

The peals fall into 41 categories, including the first peals ever of Wye Surprise Major and Biddenden Surprise Major, both of which are light variations, but not necessarily improvements, of Yorkshire Surprise. There has been a considerable range of activity, and peals included a goodly proportion in the simpler methods, whilst friends in the Ashford district further enhanced their reputation with many performances in the higher methods. Handbell ringing has become almost non-existent.

There were 47 conductors, including five 'first as conductor.' The peal secretary heads the list with 15, and Messrs. F. J. Cullum and R. L. Sills follow up with 13 each. Mr. Sills and the other young conductors of the Maidstone district have maintained well the increased activity referred to last year.

Of 220 towers with five or more bells, peals were rung in 86 as follows: Ashford District, 18 peals in 11 towers; Canterbury, 15 in 13 towers; Lewisham, 47 in 16 towers; Maidstone, 29 in 18 towers; Rochester, 28 in 17 towers; Tonbridge, 20 in 11 towers. Three peals were rung in Sussex, one in Middlesex, and three in the London area. Two peals were rung 'in hand,' a decrease of four on 1948.

CHANGE-RINGING MACHINES

By B. D. Price.

It obviously adds to the attraction of a ringing machine if it can draw diagrams. As Mr. Woodhouse points out, a visitor is doubly interested in a machine if he can take away with him a memento of its performance.

Carter's machine is capable of drawing a diagram of the work of a bell while the machine is in operation, but the execution of it is not to be compared with Mr. Woodhouse's perfection. On page 550 of Morris' book appear diagrams of Duffield Maximus and Stedman Cinques drawn by the senior machine. The roll of paper on which the diagram is drawn may be seen clearly in the plate illustration on page 549. The loose end of the paper is doubled back over a roller and attached to a second roller which is driven continuously by an endless cord from an interior shaft. The pen is attached to an arch-shaped spring which is clipped on to the ends of one of the bellplates, the weight of spring and pen pressing the pen on the tautened paper. Thus the paper moves more or less vertically driven by the roller, while the pen follows the horizontal movement of the bellplate, and a graph is drawn. However, since the bellplate movements are irregular and the paper movement continuous, the resulting line is not straight. Plain hunting looks like worn stairs and places are not easily distinguishable from the normal step. This could be corrected by causing the paper to move only when the bellplate is moving, but this is not easily done as the bellplate movements do not occur at regular intervals (due to the staggering of the cams as explained).

The diagrams illustrated were drawn by Mr. Woodhouse's No. 8 machine after the diagram-drawing apparatus had been revised recently. The bellplates are moved in between changes, so that paper movement may be synchronised with bellplate movement. The result is a far better approximation to a straight line. In the illustration of No. 8 machine ('Ringing World,' March 31st, page 203) the roll of paper can be seen clearly being pulled forward by a pair of rollers actuated by a pawl and sprocket. The pen rests on the paper by its own weight and is directly attached to the 7th bellplate by a lever. The simpler the lever the more accurate the diagrams. The bellplates move three eighths of an inch per place, and the diagrams used to have a total width of just over 2½ inches. The recent alteration has made the diagrams narrower and the diagrams in this article were drawn under the new conditions.

In August, 1948, Mr. Woodhouse drew half-courses of all the 370 Surprise Major methods in Mr. A. J. Corrigan's Collection. This was rendered simple by the place notation of the catalogue and the push button panel of the machine. One shudders to think of doing this on Carter's machine, as all swaps would have to be set and worked out beforehand. Recently (August, 1949) Mr. Woodhouse has drawn diagrams of all Mr. Corrigan's Royal and Maximus Surprise Methods Collection on his No. 9 machine.

When the author planned his electrical machine it was clear that unless various advances were made and new experiments tried it would not be worth while building a machine at all. Therefore the whole scheme of diagram drawing was reconsidered and an entirely novel way of tackling it produced. The obvious way of getting an even more accurate straight line is to make the movements of both pen and paper continuous, which evidently requires considerably more mechanism for driving the pen. The paper is pulled slowly along by a heavy metal roller pressing on a driven rubber roller. The pen, a Wypac Stylus, as used by Mr. Woodhouse, is supported by a rather involved and concealed system of levers (which was scrapped twice during making!) and traverses a straight line across the paper. It is driven by a piece of twine which is wound round a shaft. This shaft is driven either way by a differential gear system. The centre cage of the gear is locked to the shaft and the side bevels revolve independently of the shaft but are driven in reverse directions by clutches. Normally the bevels do not move as catches engage with pins attached to them and the clutches slip continuously. If, however, one of the catches is lifted the corresponding clutch drives the bevel gear half a revolution, which in turn causes the shaft to revolve one quarter of a revolution, and the pen moves one place. Instructions for the diagram drawer are received from another section of the machine in the form of electrical impulses to 'Hunt up' or 'Hunt down,' and these work the catches directly by electromagnets. As this differential gear is incorporated in one unit with the other co-ordinating contact gear of the machine, synchronising of the impulses and movement presents no difficulty, and the system works perfectly. The impulses are derived from the relays working the ninth bell, which becomes the 7th for Major or Triples and the 5th for Minor or Doubles. A refinement is the homing device which causes the pen to hunt automatically back to its correct starting position when 'Rounds' control button is pressed, and when the setting is altered 6, 8 or 10-bell ringing, the pen moves its starting position so that the diagram remains in the centre of the paper strip. It was originally intended that the pen should drop on to the paper and the paper start moving automatically when 'Go next' was pressed, but the mechanism for dropping the pen acted so viciously that ink was scattered liberally and it was scrapped! This turned out to be a blessing in disguise and the space vacated was needed later. In its final form the pen remains lifted or on the paper as desired but has to be altered by hand, and the paper can be stopped by removing the metal roller. The resulting diagrams are of a high standard. The system has its drawbacks, however, as normally it draws the work of the ninth bell only, and much wangling is needed before a method diagram can be persuaded to start anywhere else. Mr. Woodhouse's system can do any required acrobatics.

Two anecdotes may be fitting at this point. We had been repairing a broken spring on Carter's machine, and to test it we set it to ring Bristol Royal (the version shall be nameless to prevent trouble), and left it to draw the diagram. When we returned, the machine had rung a complete course and had managed to get through half of another in addition! On another occasion I had just completed the diagram drawer on my machine and could work it by feeding in the required impulses 'up' or 'down' by hand. I resolved to ring a course of Cambridge Royal on it, and spent a feverish time with eyes tightly closed tweaking a switch. When this had been done, I discovered I had not lowered the pen!

THE ACT OF PRESELECTION

To the uninitiated the problem of constructing a ringing machine is simple. Merely have a paper roll much as in a pianola, working bells instead of piano strings. Every method rung needs only a few feet of paper for the plain course, and call-making can be added easily. Not so easy! Call-making cannot be dismissed as being a simple extra. This matter I have always found very confusing to analyse, but it can easily be verified that a simple interchange of the connections from paper tape to bells cannot effect calls. This is seen quickly by considering Bob Maximus. There are over 36 million leads of Bob Maximus that could be rung and these are not going to be produced by any simple combination of switching.

Mr. Donald Cliff several years ago showed me a paper strip punched with holes. When telegrams come into a large post office too fast to be dealt with by the teleprinters they are stored up automatically on paper strip about two inches wide. The strip he showed me was intended for this, but by fixing bells to a teleprinter (!) he was able to ring a course of Bob Major from the strip. Such an experiment is amusing, but it does nothing to solve the ringing machine problem.

In 1935, the John Compton Organ Company of Acton, well-known makers of both pipe and electric organs, were experimenting in producing a machine which would ring church bells electrically in changes. Their chief of research, Mr. L. E. A. Bourn, was responsible for the apparatus, which rang only plain courses of Oxford Treble Bob Major.

The apparatus was fitted on a standard Post Office rack for telephone equipment, six feet high and 21 inches wide. It was entirely self-contained, and there were no actual bells. The apparatus made the bell noise itself, synthesising it from the constituent tones in a similar way to the electric organ. Mr. Bourn has very kindly supplied me with much information on the subject: 'The machine produced a series of pure tones, any of which could be sounded in combination, and the attack and decay constant of each could be adjusted. The compass of the notes covered four octaves in semitones, and it was therefore possible to set up various combinations of frequencies corresponding to the tap, nominal, hum tone, etc., and giving each its own decay time. A few good and realistic bell tones were possible, also a great many peculiar bell tones. It was found that a certain monotony of tone existed, partly due to the fact that the result was analogous to a stationary and not a swung bell. This latter effect was very realistically reproduced by causing all frequencies to vary momentarily at the moment of striking. . . . The apparatus was demonstrated at a British Association lecture by Dr. Kaye, of the National Physical Laboratory.'

The apparatus also contained switches which automatically rang Oxford on eight of the non-existing bells. The open lead was adjustable! It was temporarily installed at St. Martha-on-the-Hill, Albury, Surrey. It could be heard for twelve miles, and Mr. Bourn himself rang in the New Year of 1936 on the apparatus. 'Complaints were raised that the ringing was far too perfect, and provision was made to inject small current impulses into the slugging condenser (which timed the striking) to cause the impulsing to be slightly irregular.'

An examination of the circuit diagram kindly supplied by Mr. Bourn shows that the apparatus was not a true change-ringing machine. It could have been rewired to ring any Surprise Major method, and simple extension would render it capable of ringing plain courses of any method. Extension to carry out short touches would also be easy, but this is an entirely different matter to being capable of ringing any touch without previous preparation, as a change-ringing machine could. Thus for over ten years, while ringers have styled ringing machines as dusty museum pieces unworthy of consideration, the problem of practical application had in part been already solved, and there is no doubt whatsoever that a change-ringing machine could be used to produce faithfully a copy of change ringing in our belfries. It is not my intention to advocate such a thing; in fact, I do not think it is likely to happen, but there seems a danger that machines could be used to reproduce a standard touch at will. It would be comparatively simple to produce a touch, say, of Grandsire Caters, of any desired length, but the mechanism would not be able to produce anything else.

These two diverse experiments of Messrs. Clift and Bourn illustrate a reproduction of a set pattern of changes which does not constitute a change-ringing machine. The approach to the change-ringing machine is altogether different. Here, logical reasoning shows that one must solve the problem by devising some mechanism which will 'hold the changes,' that is, fix by some means what change is being rung at any particular time. Both Carter and Woodhouse have adopted the obvious idea of having a slide (a bellplate) for each bell, the positions of the slides recording the positions of the bells in the change. But it is by no means necessary to adopt this mode.

It seems that there are two distinct ways of approaching this problem. The first is to have a number of objects representing the bells and to continually resort their order. Here is one Heath-Robinson scheme: Have twelve ball bearings of graded sizes representing the twelve bells. These bearings continuously run round a closed path, first being lifted by a slowly rotating wheel with holes in its rim and then running down a chute back to the bottom. As the bearings pass upwards in the wheel their sizes are felt by some mechanism which rings the corresponding bells, so that the change being rung depends on the order of the bearings. One could easily get an open lead by having 24 holes in the wheel with a gap. As the bearings fall down the chute they could be resorted in order according to the method being rung.

Another analogous method is to have twelve wooden discs with felt bases on a smooth table, arranged in a line with a bell on each; rounds is struck by hammers on long shafts so that the hammers are well out of the way except when the bells are being hit. The bells are interchanged as in handbell lapping by S-shaped scoops pivoted between the discs which revolve and swop round the bells as desired. The effect would be that of lapping, and the interchanges of the bells would have to be staggered so as not to interfere with the striking.

The other way of approaching the problem is to have a complete mechanism for each bell capable of definite positions governing the striking position of the bell. The bellplate is the obvious example of this, but by no means the only way. Valve circuits such as are used in modern electronic calculators could be used. These calculators perform feats far in advance of change ringing, and on present achievements could probably ring a peal in a few seconds (that is, if one could persuade the Central Council to recognise it!). The author's electrical machine uses telephone relays, as will be described later. But there is apparently a necessity for this second approach to the problem—the act of preselection, a seeking out of the movement required to take place for the next change before it is actually effected. Carter's clicks provide a very simple way of automatic preselection with difficulties in their wake. Mr. Woodhouse's catches, actuated by the rising bars underneath, carry out the required preselection before the bellplates actually move. It is this problem which is the very core of the problem of the change-ringing machine. There is probably no limit to the number of ways of solution, but several important points emerge. Firstly, whatever replaces the bellplate must take up definite positions; errors are apt to build up and may lead to slips. Secondly, movement of the bellplate or substitute must be sufficiently precise to cause movement to the next position and must not interfere with striking.

A Chinese Impression of Bells

In one of the Cambridge College magazines a Chinese student gives this concluding paragraph of an article on 'First Coming to England':—

'Finally, a word must be said about the bell. Of all things here (Cambridge), I like the ringing of the bells best. Every evening it resounds through the town, and on Sundays the bell at Great St. Mary's lasts as long as half an hour at dusk. It usually makes me homesick, but sometimes it gives me food for thought.

'In my country, bells and Buddhist monks are closely related. Whenever you hear the bell you are sure that some monks are doing their morning or evening prayers. Here the bell seems to exist without the monks.

'While the bells are ringing, those who should be at their prayers are either sitting in the halls engaged in heretical talk over cups of beer or chatting at home with their wives and children. You may congratulate yourselves on the progress of civilisation, but you cannot help thinking of the loss of meaning in the bell.'

SELBY AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

The monthly meeting of the Society was held at Goole on March 18th. Towers represented were York, Leeds, Selby, Hull, Beverley, Howden, Hemingbrough, Carlton, Snaith, Doncaster, Barnby Don, Thorne, Fishlake and Goole. There were several hours of excellent ringing from early afternoon, the methods rung being Stedman Triples, Double Norwich Court Bob Major, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob Major, Little and Plain Bob Major, Oxford Bob and Grandsire Triples.

A short service, conducted in the Parish Church by the Vicar (Canon E. H. Rawlins) preceded tea.

The business meeting was held in the Church Schoolroom, Mr. H. S. Morley presiding, when the secretary reported that the Whitsuntide outing was being organised, and it was proposed to visit Wetherby, Skipton, Gargrave, Ilkley and Otley. The next meeting is to be held at Eastrington jointly with the Yorkshire Association.

Votes of thanks were tendered to the Vicar for the use of the bells and to the local company for arrangements.

STEAD-y, not so FAST!

(A CHALLENGE TO THE METHODS COMMITTEE.)

Dear Sir,—Views, of course, we respect, but pronouncements delivered as official, particularly with a 'must' label attached, cannot fail to invite critical examination. The Methods Committee's three-paragraph letter on Steadfast raises the three questions of fact, of principle and of policy. In the interests of truth these questions should be examined—conveniently in reverse order.

POLICY.—None will disagree that a method designer would do well to refer, before publication of his methods, to some source of records for checking originality or authenticity. As a technical author of some experience one is well aware of the need for, and value of, checking carefully before publication; but the M.C.'s implication that Steadfast should have been referred to them first is without justification, especially in view of the scant attention they have obviously given it so far. The first reaction to the application of Grid Analysis to the Steadman principle in respect of even numbers was surprise that the resulting figures might be those of the method indicated in the rather imprecise note in the Central Council's Glossary, as 'Shipway's Principle'—a method he claimed as his own, of course. But a careful comparison of our derived result with the actual figures of Shipway's as given in his 'Campanologia' showed at once the fundamental difference. (See under Fact below.) Hence the publication of Steadfast as Steadman on even numbers came rather as a duty to students of method structure, lest Shipway's Principle itself (and not Steadfast) might be 'rediscovered' (to quote the Methods Committee) as such. Time will no doubt confirm this.

PRINCIPLE.—As to this, the second paragraph of the M.C.'s letter contains the operative and dangerous word 'must.' As we all know, the M.C. is no parliamentary assembly, i.e., is not constituted to lay down the law. It is, of course, an advisory committee to its parent organisation, the Central Council. It is superfluous to ask for their mandate from the C.C. to deliver judgment to the Exercise on Steadfast (or anything else!) with a 'must' attached. Under existing constitution they would never possess such. But there is something more in this than violation of principle. There is confusion of thought. Steadfast does not seek to supplant Shipway's Principle, otherwise we should have referred to it on publication. By all means let S's P. lie undisturbed with its two peals, but let there be no confusion of it with Steadfast or Steadfast compositions. S's P., as published, will not run, in fact, to Minor; but the last of Steadfast on this point is not yet published. (Vide my letter in the issue dated March 31st.)

FACT.—On the simple question of fact we can be even more positive. Are these two the same method, or is there any difference between them? Even the M.C. admit, though grudgingly, that there is a difference (c.f. lines 5 and 6 of their letter). But is this difference trivial or fundamental? Any ringer may decide for himself. The difference will be seen to be greater than that between, say, Original and Plain Bob, or Cambridge and Primrose, in which cases the grids (all rows from lead-head to lead-end) are absolutely identical. What, then, is the nature of the difference? It is, in the main, two-fold, and practical. First, in Steadfast the calls are made, they take effect, and they are pricked for setting out, all as at one and the same set-parting. In S's P. they are called and made at one and recorded or pricked at the next. This is because Shipway treated his method as though it were an odd-bell one, pricking set-end, instead of set-head, rows. And if Steadfast compositions do not apply to Shipway's Principle, how can the methods be the same? Second, consider a fairly distinctive method such as London. What is its main distinguishing characteristic? Simply the preponderance of retrograde or backward hunting! The practical ringer at once recognises this from the way the method forces him to 'lead wrong,' i.e., back-then-hand. Now in Steadman, as every ringer knows, bells come to lead 'right' in the quick sets and 'wrong' in the slow sets. So they do also in Steadfast. But in Shipway's Principle? Oh, no! There you find this state of things completely reversed, throughout! Yet the Methods Committee are trying to make us believe this is a negligible difference! Now what would happen in 'London' if ringers decided that it really would make no difference as they came down to lead 'wrong' if they put in a lead 'right' instead? Yes, of course, absurd even to contemplate it; but this second difference is just that!

CHALLENGE.—Now all this is a 'straw in the wind.' The newer, critical, more scientific view of ringing theory has come to stay and to develop. The day of ambiguity and confused thinking is passing. The M.C.'s glancing view at Steadfast is a vital case in point. To focus attention it seems opportune to issue a challenge to them. Let them attempt to disprove the statement above in black type. If they succeed there are 5 guineas available for any deserving ringing cause to be named by 'The Ringing World' Editorial Committee. (Cheque enclosed in good faith.) But if they fail in this, then, instead of a guinea each from them, all we ask is that as responsible investigators of ringing matters in method, they discard prejudiced sentiment in favour of scientific truth.—Yours very truly,

A. YORK-BRAMBLE.

Netley Park, Southampton.

SPLICED MINOR

Dear Sir,—Can the peal at Copt Oak, published on page 198 of your issue of March 31st, be really termed a peal of Spliced Minor, seeing that four of the extents were of one method only?

A similar performance at Horton is recorded on the previous page of the same issue but not claimed as a spliced peal.—Yours faithfully,

W. J. G. BROWN.

Ipswich.

Spliced Peals

Dear Sir,—I should like to congratulate the Burton-on-Stather band on their handbell peal in 17 plain Major methods. At the same time I feel I must point out that the handbell peal in 21 plain Major methods, rung at Sittingbourne for the Oxford University Society on January 2nd, 1945, does, in fact, comply with the Central Council's resolution on method splicing:—

'That any composition which contains more than one method shall be called "spliced," provided that the methods are so joined that the fundamental units of which they are constructed (i.e., the "Leads" in the case of treble-dominated methods, the "Sixes" in the case of Steadman, Duffield and similar methods, etc.) remain intact.

'That reports of all spliced peals shall include a reference to the number of methods rung and the number of changes from one method to another during the peal.'

As far as I know, this motion remains the Council's last word on the subject. Of course, the matter is of no great moment, as I am quite sure that Mr. Feirn and his band will not rest content for long with only 17 methods!

It is a great pity that there is not more interest in plain Major methods. Many are as difficult and interesting to ring as any Surprise method (though, of course, there is not the glamour of the name), and I should imagine that the scope they offer for spliced compositions is considerably greater. For instance, any band which can ring Double Norwich could learn to ring the 21 methods contained in the peal we rang at Sittingbourne (this was composed by the late Stephen Wood—see 'R.W.' for April 11th, 1930), and this peal is well worth ringing again. It is not a difficult composition (there are only 50 changes of method), but the 21 methods form a very satisfying unity, for they are, I believe, the only plain Major methods (except for Bastow Little Court and 'Alliance' type methods) in which the tenors are never parted by more than three other bells and in which all the places are made 'right.'—Yours sincerely,

JOHN E. SPICE.

IN DEFENCE OF RINGING

Dear Sir,—I once lent an old Hubbard's 'Campanologia' to the late W. T. Peglar and it was never returned and could not be discovered. So I don't know if it exists or who has it. My uncle's name was on the fly leaf, Edward J. Hughes, of Leighton, Welshpool, who was a ringer, as was my father and grandfather. My son, too, used to ring but rarely does now. He rang one peal of Double Norwich C.B. Major. Here are some of the lines in the book as far as I can remember:—

How oft mankind exert their utmost powers
To find amusements for their leisure hours;
Some in bowls or cricket will unite,
And in such healthy exercise delight.
Others in chess or music fix their mind,
Requiring practice of no trifling kind;
While some to far less noble arts descend,
Their time thus wasted oft in ruin end.
Then why should ringing be set down as nought

By some who never gave the science thought.
Its exercise amusement doth impart,
To those who are proficient in the art.
In it our energies are all required,
Mental and physical and zeal untired.
Then let those critics who our choice condemn Leave us to follow it; we grant the same to them.

This may not be correct exactly; it is over 40 years since I saw the book.

All good wishes.

CHURCH BELLS of BRITAIN

ORDER AT ONCE from—

WILLIAM H. VIGGERS
37, HIGHFIELD GARDENS, ALDERSHOT

OBITUARY OF THE WEEK

DERECK ANSELL.

The many friends of Mr. S. Ansell, of Tarring, Sussex, will be sorry to hear that after a very short illness the death occurred of his eldest son, Dereck, aged 15, on March 26th.

The funeral was at Worthing Cemetery on Wednesday, March 29th, after a short service at St. Andrew's, Tarring.

The bells of this church, on which he had just started to ring, were rung half-muffled before and after the service by the local band, assisted by Mr. E. Treagus.

MR. CYRIL F. JOHNSTON.

Bellringers and carillonners from all parts of Britain and from the Continent were among the large congregation attending the funeral service for Mr. Cyril F. Johnston at Croydon Parish Church on Monday, April 3rd.

Previous to the service the bells of the church were rung half-muffled to Grandsire Triples, Mr. Dan Cooper, the local captain, conducting. The bells were again rung after the service.

The Vicar of Croydon (the Ven. C. F. Tonks) officiated, assisted by the Vicar of Shirley (Canon G. C. Rawlins). Singing was led by the choir of the Parish Church, with Mr. E. Shakespeare at the organ.

The family mourners were Mrs. Cyril Johnston (widow), Mr. Arthur Johnston (son), Miss Nora Johnston (sister), Mrs. A. D. B. James (sister-in-law), Capt. A. D. B. James, R.N., Mr. Arthur A. Lyon (cousin), Mr. and Mrs. Dru Drury (cousins), Mr. John C. Norman (nephew), Mrs. John C. Norman. Miss Rosemary Johnston, daughter, owing to illness, was unable to attend.

Representing Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, Ltd., were Mr. Michael Howard (managing director), Mr. F. C. W. Stevenson (sales manager), Mr. J. Knight (clock department), Mr. W. Dyer (general foreman), Mr. Don Bradford (outside representative), Mr. B. Newson (inspector), Miss V. C. Cottrell (purchasing agent), Mr. P. Bampton (one of the firm's oldest bell founders) and employees from most of the departments of the company.

Among the ringers present were Mr. E. H. Lewis, president, Central Council, Mrs. G. W. Fletcher (representing Mr. G. W. Fletcher, hon. secretary, Central Council), Mr. C. Dean, Messrs. A. H. Pulling, A. B. Peck (representing the Ancient Society of College Youths), D. Cooper, F. E. Collins, H. Humphrey, T. Blow, E. M. Atkins (Cambridge University Society), Mrs. Oatway, Miss Cottrill, Messrs. H. Skeet, and G. W. Steere.

Mr. B. Eijsbouts, bell founder, representing the firm of Eijsbouts, Lips, Holland, arrived by air. Mr. James Lawson, of California, represented American carillonners.

Messrs. F. W. Elliott, Ltd., clockmakers, Croydon (of which Mr. Johnston was chairman), were represented by Mr. Horace Elliott (managing director), Messrs. R. J. Elliott, L. F. Elliott and E. E. Brown (directors). Mr. Horace Elliott also represented the British Horological Institute, of which Mr. Johnston was formerly chairman.

Interment followed at Queen's Road Cemetery, Croydon.

THE REV. C. A. PHILLIPS.

The death occurred suddenly at Bournemouth on March 27th of the Rev. Charles A. Phillips, who amongst many activities had been secretary of the Wimborne Branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild for 48 years.

He was the son of the Rev. J. H. Phillips, Rector of Okeford Fitzpaine, Dorset, and was educated at Sherborne school. He learnt to ring at his father's church, and his enthusiasm in the art caused him to be elected secretary of the Wimborne Branch, a post he held until his death. He will be greatly missed in all branches of the Salisbury Guild and in the Bournemouth District.

Of late years he had been voluntary assistant priest at Holy Trinity, Bournemouth, at which church the funeral service was held on March 30th, which was attended by a representative gathering. Ringers were present from Bournemouth, St. Peter's and St. John's, Hampreston, Dorchester, Poole, Swanage, Salisbury, Wimborne, Ferndown, including the veteran Master of the Wimborne Branch, Mr. F. W. Townsend, who had served with the Rev. Phillips for over 40 years.

As the cortege left the church a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells by a band representing the Salisbury and Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guilds.

With the muffles on, the whole Pull and Stand was rung in the evening on the ten bells of St. James', Poole, followed by touches of Stedman Caters and Grandsire Caters by the local company and Mr. A. F. Martin Stewart, a lifelong friend of the Rev. Phillips and past Master of the Salisbury Guild. Thus passes a great benefactor and a real English Christian gentleman.

May his soul rest in peace.

MR. JOHN THORPE.

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of Mr. John Thorpe, which took place at 96, Bowfield Road, Sheffield, on March 30th, in his 71st year.

Mr. Thorpe was employed as a gold and silver smelter, and enjoyed good health up to his retirement some three years ago. Subsequently he developed heart trouble, which took a serious turn in the early part of this year, Mr. Thorpe eventually passing peacefully away as stated.

He commenced to ring at Walkley, Sheffield (six bells), in 1901, and conducted his first peal (one of Minor) at Treton in May 1903, afterwards graduating to the Sheffield Cathedral company (then the Parish Church) a year later, where he remained a staunch member and most regular attendant up to the latter part of last year.

During his 45 years' membership, he held the official position of steeplekeeper for 27 years, and was also the recognised conductor for the same length of time.

In all, he had rung 222 peals (215 for the Yorkshire Association), of which he had conducted 37. Of these, 45 were on handbells, the first being conducted by himself. His record included peals in all the standard methods from Minor to Maximus, and many in Surprise, including the first peal of Lincolnshire Royal ever rung. Also he took part in the first peals of Oxford Treble Bob Maximus and Little Bob Maximus for the Yorkshire Association. He had circled the Cathedral twelve, but his one disappointment was that Cambridge Maximus always eluded him.

Being well built and of great strength, he was looked upon as one of the finest big-bell ringers in the North. As a conductor he was safe, quiet in manner, but firm, and carried the confidence of all who rang with him.

As nature had endowed him with a rather reserved disposition, he was never in the limelight as judged by present-day celebrities, but he earned the respect of all with whom he came into contact, and was always ready to impart his knowledge and give a helping hand to all practical and theoretical aspirants.

By his passing the Sheffield Cathedral company has lost a devoted, colleague and one of the pillars, whose place it will be very hard to fill.

Following the cremation, the bells of the Cathedral and also those of St. Marie's (R.C.) were rung half-muffled as a last token of respect to his memory.

Kent County Association

There were 33 first peals, four less than in 1948. The 'first pealers' include surnames well known in former generations, and to all 'first pealers' and their instructors congratulations are offered. The number of first peals is one of the best guides to the health of the Association, and all members are urged to see that this number is well maintained.

It is also to be hoped that all members and conductors in particular, will strive for a high standard of performance in peals. The only excuse for ringing a peal is to ring a good one, and conductors should not hesitate to set the bells up if the standard of striking is not the best that can be expected from those taking part. 'Peal-at-any-price' tactics are a discredit to the Association itself and not less to the individual performers.

In addition to the peals rung by the Association, the following were rung in the county by other associations: Royal Society of Cumberland Youths 4, Hawkhurst and District Guild 3, Ancient Society of College Youths, Oxford University Society, Sussex County Association and East Grinstead and District Guild 1 each. This total of 11 compares with 12 rung by other associations in the county in 1948.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The president and vice-presidents were re-elected en bloc. Mr. J. Willis was elected a Master in place of Mr. F. White. The other officers re-elected were: Hon. secretary, Mr. G. H. Spice; hon. treasurer, Mr. F. M. Mitchell; hon. auditor, Mr. G. H. Cross; hon. peal secretary, Mr. P. A. Corby; and the committee, Messrs. E. Barnett, G. J. Butcher, R. A. Constant, G. H. Cross, T. Groombridge, J. Wheadon and J. Willis, was re-elected.

The secretary announced that a clock had been purchased as a memorial to the Rev. H. J. O. Helmore, and would be placed in the ringing chamber of Canterbury Cathedral.

The provision of a badge for the Association was raised by Mr. French. A show of hands indicated a general desire for a badge, and the committee was instructed to make inquiries as to cost.

Thanks to the incumbents for permitting the use of bells were expressed by Mr. J. Willis, and the meeting also decided to minute its appreciation of the services of Mr. F. White to the Association as a trustee and in other capacities.

The proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman, proposed by Mr. P. A. Corby.

SURREY ASSOCIATION

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

The quarterly meeting of the Southern District was held at Charlwood (6) on March 25th. The fine weather tempted many to the meeting, although some found that they had to walk from Horley, a distance of about three miles. Members came from many towers, including those as distant as Old Coulsdon and Oxted. In all, 39 sat down to tea.

Seven new members were elected, five of whom belonged to the local band. In accordance with the resolution passed at the annual meeting, a collection was made for the Surrey Association Bell Fund.

Ringings during afternoon and evening included Grandsire, Plain Bob, Treble Bob, Cambridge, London and Woodbine, with some rounds for beginners.

NETTLEBED, OXON.—On Mar. 29th, 1,260 Plain Bob Minor: R. Grove 1, J. Pinchin 2, R. Hope 3, A. Diserens 4, E. Belson 5, H. Wells (cond.) 6. First quarter of Minor for all except the 4th.

W. H. Thompson

A FORGOTTEN STUDENT OF COMPOSITION.

William Henry Thompson, son of Frederick Elijah Thompson, of London, was born in the parish of Marylebone, on September 26th, 1840. He was educated at King's College School and at Rugby.

He proceeded to Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, to take mathematics, being scholar 1860-1866. He gained his B.A. in 1863 (23rd wrangler) and M.A. in 1869. In 1863 he entered the Indian Civil Service and was Assistant Magistrate and Collector at Dacca. He retired in 1868 and was called to the Bar, Inner Temple, in 1872. He practised for some time as a barrister in the Punjab. By 1898 he had retired to 4, Sillwood Street, Brighton.

Probably while still at College he became interested in the theory of composition, and in 1886 he published 'On Grandsire Triples,' a pamphlet proving that a peal by common bobs only is unattainable. This pamphlet is reviewed on p. 197 of 'Grandsire' (Snowdon Series). The proof, although not difficult when understood, clearly shows the mathematical mind, as it considers oddness or evenness without specifying actual value. It was Thompson himself who dubbed a 'Q-set' by its unusual name.

Later, but before 1906, he conducted an almost complete analysis of the composition of Grandsire Triples in parts. It is clear that he was interested only in Triples methods, where all the changes must be used in a peal, and he demonstrated how the process of composition of peals in parts can be economised in regard to thought and paper by means of diagrams. It is obvious that he made no vigorous claims about the originality of his research, and his delight was in showing others how to use his diagrams. One cannot imagine him making such a statement as in the third paragraph, p. 197, of 'Grandsire.' Thus, in his paper on Union Triples (1893) he says, p. 15, 'Thus I preclude myself from finding more than one-quarter (of peals) of the whole system, but I have pointed out how the remaining three-quarters may be found.' This paper is not widely known as Union Triples is not popular, but it shows the same analytical mind, and a complete exposition on a particular type of peal.

He also deal a little with Stedman Triples. In 'Stedman' (Snowdon Series, first edition, 1903) appeared a proof by Thompson that not more than 20 true plain courses could be had together. The proof is incorrect. Subsequently, in 1908, John Carter quoted 30 true courses, and less than a month later three men (Carter, J. J. Parker, J. W. Parker) quoted 40 in the same copy of the 'Bell News.' Thompson immediately apologised, and in June, 1909, produced two amended proofs, the second one being simple, and showing that not more than 40 may be had true.

Until his death in 1934, Thompson remained with his landlady, Mrs. Varney, at 4, Sillwood Street. In the latter years of his life he rarely went out. His last year was spent a total invalid, and he refused to leave Mrs. Varney, who had so well looked after him. That he was a methodical man is shown by an envelope I have, addressed to him. He had written on the back, 'By the afternoon post on Monday, May 9th, 1932. Wrote thanks same day.'

He died aged 93 on July 10th, 1934, and was buried three days later in the Brighton Extra Mural Cemetery, in the same grave as one Theophilus Jones, probably a relation. There is nothing on the grave to show that he is buried there, but the cemetery records show the facts.

Where is the wealth of material on change ringing that he must have produced? Enquiries with landlady, relatives, and solicitors have failed to find anything. The Central Council library has only his printed papers. Where are the papers and model he sent William Snowdon? These and other questions must be answered before it is too late and as many of his papers as possible should be preserved with those of other men that are treasured. To many he is just name, but just because his work lay in directions that have not modern popularity, we should not forget his monumental work.

I am indebted to Caius College, Cambridge, to Miss Lumsden, and to Mrs. Varney (both of Brighton) for valuable information.

CHURCH BELLS OF BRITAIN

NEVER before has such a comprehensive survey in an epitomised form been presented to the Exercise as in 'A Bellringer's Guide to the Church Bells of Britain.' The compiler, Mr. R. H. Dove, of Leeds, deserves the warmest congratulations, and also the publisher, Mr. W. H. Viggers, for not only his enterprise and initiative, but for bringing to bear his typographical skill and knowledge in producing such an attractive book.

The magnitude of the work and research necessary can be gauged from the fact that there are in England 5,226 rings of bells made up as follows: 12 bells 54 towers, 10 bells 158, 8 bells 1,482, 6 bells 2,484 and 5 bells 1,048. With 169 rings of bells in Wales and Monmouthshire, 12 in Scotland and 32 in Ireland the grand total for the British Isles is 5,439. These are not only listed in alphabetical order, giving the dedication of the church, the weight of tenor and the practice night where known, but listed again in counties according to the number of bells, and finally there is a summary by counties.

Mr. Dove points out that the work is not, as had been supposed, the first of its kind. He learned when his book was ready for printing that about seventy years ago the Revs. J. E. and R. H. D. Acland-Troyte published their 'Change Ringers' Guide to the Steeples of England.' There is, however, little comparison between the two works, as details of only about 600 rings were given in the first publication as against nearly ten times as many in the present.

On the vexed question of the weight of tenors, Mr. Dove states absolute accuracy in a first edition of this nature cannot, of course, be guaranteed, but, as far as can be determined, the weights shown are the authentic ones, which, in most cases, have been supplied by the bellfounders. A number of these will be found to differ from the accepted weights which have been published in 'The Ringing World' and are shown in various Guild reports.

This is a book that ringers will delight to browse over. In the appendices there is one devoted to the Cathedrals of England. With the exception of Bristol, where there are only four bells, all the Cathedral Churches of England possess five bells or more. The author points out that at Coventry a chime of 14 bells replaces a former ring of ten, and while the new bells were cast to ringing weights and drilled for fitting to ringing headstocks, the chances of their ever being hung for ringing are infinitesimal.

Also must be ruled out for ringing purposes the five bells at Ely, Norwich and Salisbury, as these are clock bells. The five bells at Peterborough, while hung for ringing, are not now rung, owing to fears for the safety of the fabric. The ring of eight at the Cathedral Church of St. German, Peel, Isle of Man, cannot now be rung owing to the obstruction by carillon hammers. These bells are sounded by Ellacombe hammers, and the tenor weighs only eight cwt. In Wales four of the six Cathedral Churches possess rings of bells. The two which do not are St. Asaph (two bells) and Bangor (three). Of the seven Episcopal Cathedrals in Scotland there are rings of bells at five; in Ireland only nine of the thirty Cathedrals have ringing bells.

What are the heaviest and lightest tenor in each category of bells? The position of Exeter Cathedral among twelves is known to every ringer, but it will have to take second place when the new twelve for Liverpool Cathedral is erected with a tenor of 82 cwt. 11 lb. The lightest twelve is at Surfleet, which will for ever be associated with the names of the late Mr. Rupert Richardson and the late Rev. H. Law James. This tenor is 12 cwt. 9 lb. Among the rings of ten the pride of place is held by Wells Cathedral (tenor 56 cwt. 1 qr. 4 lb.). The lightest ten is at the Loughborough Bell Foundry, where last year a record number of peals was rung. The new ring at Grundisburgh, Suffolk, with a tenor of 8 cwt. 23 lb. is the lightest ten in a church tower. Of the 1,604 rings of eight, which include 36 overseas, the heaviest tenor is at Sherborne Abbey (46 cwt.) and the heaviest at Lye, Worcs., where there are Belgian bells with a tenor of 3½ cwt. Queen Camel, Somerset, has the heaviest six with tenor 36 cwt. 3 qr. 7 lb., and as far as can be ascertained the lightest is at Brockenhurst with a tenor of 4 cwt. 1 qr. 12 lb. Of the rings of five bells—and the number of these at the time of going to press is 1,069—the heaviest is at Tass, New South Wales, with a tenor of 26½ cwt., followed by Isleham, Cambs, and Walton, Somerset, each with a tenor reputed to be 25 cwt. At the other end of the scale is Wootton Rivers, Wilts., and St. Paul's, Papanui, New Zealand, where the tenors are given as 3½ cwt. These are closely followed by Hascombe, Surrey, with a tenor of 3 cwt. 3 qr. 17 lb.

There are other interesting features in the book, such as lists of Roman Catholic, Nonconformist and secular towers with rings of bells. There is very good value for the charge of 5s. in this handy book, and we hope it will have the popularity it deserves.

DEDICATIONS

BURFORD, OXFORD.

The proceedings for the hallowing of the restored ring of eight bells, and the dedication of the two replacement bells (Nos. 3 and 4) on March 25th, the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, were fittingly initiated by a celebration of the Holy Communion at Burford Parish Church at 8 a.m.

Later in the day, at 2.45 p.m., a very large congregation had assembled for the service of dedication, performed by the Bishop of Dorchester, and a procession, which was fully representative of the County and Diocese of Oxford, the town of Burford, the Central Council of Church Bellringers, the Oxford Diocesan Guild and local ringing branches, and of all associated with the work of renovation, was marshalled by the ceremoniarus (Mr. John Collett), assisted by four servers.

At 3 o'clock the procession moved by way of the south aisle to encircle the church, the hymn, 'O God of Abraham, praise,' meanwhile being sung. The Central Council was represented in the procession by Mr. Frederick Sharpe, and the Oxford Diocesan Guild by the Master (the Rev. C. Elliot Wigg), the Deputy Master (Capt. A. R. Poyntz), the general secretary (Mr. W. Hibbert) and the treasurer (Mr. A. D. Barker). The Chipping Norton Branch was represented by Mr. E. Pearson, and the local band by Mr. F. Soden, foreman, and Mr. W. J. Dixon, deputy foreman. Mr. B. S. Nichols, organist and choirmaster of Burford Parish Church and secretary and treasurer of the Burford Guild, presided at the organ. Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, who were responsible for the work of restoration, were represented by Mr. Michael Howard and Mr. F. S. C. Stevenson.

The service of evensong for the Feast of the Annunciation followed, and was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. R. F. Scott Tucker. The first lessons were read by the Master and Canon Bale. The Bishop was then conducted to the space under the central tower, where he performed the ceremony of hallowing and dedication. The fourth bell, given by Mrs. L. R. Conway, was dedicated in memory of her late husband, Leonard Russell Conway. After this ceremony the ropes were handed by the Bishop to the Vicar, and it was a very moving moment when at this point a touch of 42 Grandsire Triples was rung by C. Hibbert 1, F. Soden 2, E. G. Moore 3, P. Walker 4, B. S. Nichols (conductor) 5, T. W. Timms 6, C. Coles 7, W. J. Dixon 8. Evensong then proceeded, and during the next hymn, 'O praise ye the Lord,' the Bishop was conducted to the pulpit, where he preached appropriately to the day.

While the last hymn, 'Now thank we all our God,' was being sung, a collection, which amounted to £14, was made for the Fabric Fund, and the Bishop's Blessing brought the service to a close.

The service was followed immediately by tea in the Grammar School Assembly Hall (by kind permission of the governors), where the Vicar, supported by the churchwardens, presided over a gathering of 200 people.

In introducing the speakers, the chairman first thanked the Bishop of Dorchester for his kindness in coming to perform the ceremony of dedication, and paid appreciative testimony to the bell founders, the consulting architect (Mr. J. B. S. Comper) and the builder (Mr. S. E. Groves).

Mr. G. F. Smith (churchwarden), to whom the Vicar paid a glowing tribute for fostering the appeal, announced that more than £1,600 had been subscribed in just over a year, and he hoped this truly remarkable sum would cover the cost of the work.

The chairman of the Burford Parish Council (Councillor B. A. Vick) referred in feeling terms to the late Mr. Leonard Russell Conway, a widely respected and much loved citizen of Burford, in whose memory one of the new bells, No. 4, had been presented by his widow.

The Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild spoke on behalf of the ringers and emphasised the high privilege to which they were called in ringing church bells.

Last, but not least, the Chancellor of the Diocese congratulated the authorities of Burford on their successful achievement.

Ringling followed the tea, and ringers from various parts of the diocese and country testified to the excellent work carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, the tone and 'go' being perfect. The 'match' of the new 3rd and 4th and the improved clappering of the already fine pre-Reformation tenor reflect great credit on their workmanship, and the bells are now a fine ring of eight, the blend being all that can be desired.

The original 3rd and 4th bells, which are of historical interest, are being preserved in the north transept of the church in Bellfounder's Aisle. They were cast in 1635 by Henry Neale, who established a foundry in Burford in 1635.

The following gives the inscriptions (excluding ornaments) and weights of the present ring in a metal frame (note different spellings of same names):—

WALPOLE ST. PETER.

The day for which he had been waiting for years was how Mr. W. Hammond (tower captain) described Easter Saturday, when the bells of Walpole St. Peter, Norfolk, were dedicated after being retuned and rehung in an iron frame by Messrs. Taylor and Co.

The service, which was choral, was conducted in the absence of the Vicar owing to illness by Canon Mowbray Smith (Vicar of St. Mary's, Wisbech), who in his address congratulated the people of the district on carrying the restoration through, and reminded them that it was mainly through the efforts of his father some 45 years ago that the neighbouring Church of St. Andrew's bells were rehung and augmented to six. He also said that it gave him great pleasure to dedicate the bells of St. Peter's, as it was here as a youth he rang his first 720 of Minor on the treble (with, he admitted, a good deal of assistance).

After the service tea was provided by the local band, after which the bells were kept going until nine o'clock to a variety of methods.

Everybody expressed complete satisfaction at the 'go' of the bells, and Messrs. Taylor are to be congratulated on giving Walpole St. Peter a fine set of bells to match an equally fine church.

Will any 'Fred's' who are interested in an attempt for a 'Frederick' peal of Stedman Cinques at Canterbury Cathedral on August Bank Holiday, starting at 4 p.m., please communicate with Mr. F. J.
Cullum, 78, West Street, Erith, Kent?

Mr. H. W. Howard has now completed the circle of Sandbach, Cheshire, tower.

Mr. J. A. Freeman, Master of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild, has been ill in bed. We are pleased to hear that he is now recovering.

At the age of 81 Mr. H. Buckingham, of Marlow, has rung his first quarter on a working bell. He has several peals of Triples to his credit on the tenor.

Sunday and practice ringing at St.
Matthew's, Upper Clapton, will be resumed from Wednesday, April 19th, after the enforced stoppage six months ago.

Congratulations to Terry Thornber for ringing 7-8 to a peal of Plain Bob Royal. This is a further achievement for this 16-year-old Leicester youth, as he had previously only rung one odd course on this pair. He is, of course, well known as a 'back-pair' ringer.

The Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow is arranging a ringing tour in Ireland, starting at Dublin on Thursday, August 10th, and finishing at Dublin on August 17th. There will probably be one or two vacancies, and Mr. Thurlow would like to hear from anyone interested. His address is 3, Colegate, Norwich.

Participating in the quarter peal of Oxford
Bob Triples at King's Norton, Birmingham, on Easter Day, was Mr. James Betterton, who has been a ringer at this church for 70 years.
Easter Day was the eve of his 86th birthday, and although his hearing is not so good as formerly, he rang the tenor faultlessly.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Recorded in this issue is the peal at Edenham, Lines, in honour of the 56 years of continuous service by Mr. A. I. Holmes.
Through his inspiration the bells of this church have been augmented and recast—first from 5 to 6 and later from 6 to 8. He is a foundation member of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild and a fine example, both as a ringer and instructor.

At the Easter vestry meeting at St. Mellon's parish, Cardiff, Mr. Reg H. Addis, the popular belfry captain and also church lay reader, was re-elected people's warden.

Miss J. M. Broomfield, the only lady to ring the old 16 cwt. tenor at Burnham, Bucks, to a peal, is the first to ring the new tenor to a peal.

Peal Conductor writes: I find that usually the band begin to get restless after about 24 hours. It would help a lot at this crucial stage if someone were employed to ring a bell when they commence the last lap!

The ring of six at Ightfield, Shropshire, which has been tuned and rehung in an iron H type frame for eight by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., were rededicated by the Lord Bishop of Lichfield on Palm Sunday. Ringers were present from most of the towers in the district and all were very pleased with the improved tone, easy running and 'even clappering' of the whole peal.

At a meeting of the South Forest Branch, held at Littledean, Glos., on Saturday, it was revealed that no new bell ropes had been purchased for Littledean tower ring of six bells for over 40 years. Regular ringing takes place in the tower of this early English church, and it is highly creditable to Mr. Felix Carter, captain of ringers, for his exceptional care of the ropes and the bells for such a long period of years.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL AT SWINDON

A YEAR OF PROGRESS AND ENTHUSIASM

THE annual meeting of the Gloucester and Bristol Association was held at Swindon on Easter Monday, and the bells of Swindon and district were made good use of for the greater part of the day. The meeting was held at Christ Church Hall, about 120 members being present; nearly every branch was represented, charabancs arriving loaded from Bristol and Cheltenham.

The Master, Mr. W. B. Kynaston (Swindon) presided. The Rev. D. Allen (Cromhall) opened with prayer. The secretary, Mr. C. R. Harding, read the minutes of the last annual meeting, held at St Ambrose's, Bristol, which were confirmed, after an omission of the motion made at St. Ambrose's, Bristol, that the work which Mr. D. G. Clift had done in the interests of the Association at St. Mary Redcliffe be placed on record, had been added.

The Master, in his report, stated he had attended branch meetings during the past year in most of the branches, and said how pleased he was to see the enthusiasm that existed, and the number of young people who were taking up the art, which spoke well for the future of the Association. To those branches he had not been able to visit he offered his apologies, and said it was not lack of interest, but time that was the reason. He was pleased to see the improvement in the general standard of ringing. He thanked the hon. secretary and the hon. treasurer for their loyal support during the past year, which had made his duties a pleasure.

NEARLY 1,000 MEMBERS.

The hon. secretary, in his report, reviewed the working of the Association during the past year, and was pleased to report an increased membership, which was getting very near the thousand mark. He thanked the Master and the hon. treasurer for their support during the past year, and also the branch secretaries for their efforts, without which the results could not have been achieved.

He made special mention of the wonderful rally that had been made by the South Forest Branch, chiefly due to the unceasing efforts of the recently appointed branch secretary, Mr. Goulding. He regretted that there were 'no returns' from the Stow Branch, despite repeated letters which had been written, to which no reply had been received.

The Chippenham Branch has staged a recovery, and it was to be hoped that it would now continue to function as a live unit.

He then struck a rather discordant note by saying that he regretted that he could not see his way to carry on with his post, and asked the meeting to elect a new secretary. This was a great pity, as Mr. Harding has worked very hard during the past four years, and it was largely due to his untiring efforts that the Association was in such a good position.

The names of members who had died during the past year were read, and the Master asked those present to stand as a mark of respect.

The treasurer presented his accounts, which showed a deficit of £18 on the general account due to heavy cost of printing reports. The Belfry Repair Fund showed an increase. The accounts and balance sheet were adopted. He thanked the Master, hon. secretary and branch secretaries for their support during the past year.

PRESENTATION TO HON. TREASURER.

The next item, which was not on the official agenda, was a presentation of a wallet and notes to Mr. P. C. Williams, who has served the Association faithfully and well as hon. treasurer for the past 21 years. The Master, making the presentation, referred to the untiring work put in by Mr. Williams, and thanked him very much on behalf of the Association. Mr. Williams suitably responded, and said it was a complete surprise to him that such a thing was being done, but said how much he appreciated it.

The election of officers followed. The vice-presidents were re-elected en bloc. Mr. W. B. Kynaston was re-elected Master for the third year of office, no other name being put forward for nomination.

Mr. Kynaston thanked the meeting for re-electing him, and said that he had obviously given a certain degree of satisfaction, despite his rather sharp manner, and, if, when he came amongst the members, he had cause to speak rather sharply, it was his way, and what was to be said was said, and he was afraid it was rather late to try and amend his ways, but if they were satisfied with the way he had carried out his duties, he would endeavour to give another year of faithful service.

MR. F. SKIDMORE NEW HON. SECRETARY

The Master said he regretted that Mr. Harding had resigned as hon. secretary, as he had given such excellent service during the past four years, and he had tried to induce him to carry on, but as Mr. Harding was adamant, he asked for nominations for a new secretary. Mr. F. Skidmore, Bristol, was proposed and seconded, and asked by the Master if he was willing to stand, the answer being in the affirmative, no other name being put forward, he was unanimously elected. Mr. Skidmore thanked the meeting for the confidence they were prepared to put on him, and promised to uphold the prestige of the Gloucester and Bristol.

Hon. treasurer.—Mr. P. C. Williams was unanimously re-elected, and thanked the meeting for their confidence.

Auditors.—Mr. E. F. Hancock (in place of Mr. F. Skidmore) and Mr. J. E. Stallard were elected.

Management Committee.—Mr. T. Boreham elected in place of Mr. Hancock, who would not be available for the coming year. A sub-committee was appointed, consisting of the Master, hon. secretary, hon. treasurer, Mr. O. E. Hill and Mr. A. J. Corrigan, to go into the matter of compiling the annual report for 1950, with a view to finding the best way to reduce cost, and still retain the general outlay, which was considered generally satisfactory. It was agreed, after some discussion, to publish a report for 1949.

The next annual meeting will be at Stroud, Easter Monday, 1951.

This concluded the business, and the Master thanked those present for their kind attention.

A move was made to Christ Church for service at 4.30 p.m., conducted by the Rector (Canon Gilbert), the address being given by the Archdeacon of Swindon (Canon Cornwall), which was greatly appreciated. Tea followed in the hall.

The meeting was preceded by lunch. At tea the usual votes of thanks were made, and at about 6.30 p.m. the meeting broke up to see about getting home.

Thank you, Swindon, and especially Mr. Kynaston, for a really good day! F.S.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

The annual general meeting took place in Norwich on Easter Monday, and was highly successful. Ringing took place at Mancroft from 10 a.m. onwards, and St. Giles', St. Miles' and St. John de Sepulchre were also open. Methods up to London and Bristol Major and Cambridge Royal were rung.

The service was at Mancroft at 12, the preacher being the Rev. K. O. Morris, Vicar of Norton Subcourse. Lunch and the business meeting were in Mancroft Youth Centre, and were attended by ringers from Long Stratton, Norton, Saffron Walden, Diss, Mulbarton, Framdsen, Helmingham, Redenhall, Wroxham, Bunwell, Northampton, Northrepps, Norwich, Wighton, Watton, Caston, Attleborough, Pulham Market, Pulham St. Mary, Cossey, Somerleyton, Kesslingland, Blo' Norton, Beccles, Dickleburgh, Wymondham, Caister, Leytonstone, Framlingham, Badingham, Great Yarmouth, New Buckenham, Hethersett, Snettisham, Desford (Leics.), Dereham, Ealing, Fakenham and Buxton, 79 in all, besides many others who attended during the day.

The president, the Rev. A. St. J. Heard, presided at the business meeting. In accordance with notice given last year, it was decided to incorporate in the rules provision for branch ringing masters. Four new members were elected, Kathleen Harrison, Diss (who has been a de facto member for some time); Selina Moor, Norwich; Marina Boldy, Buxton; and Reginald Crane, Intwood.

The officers were re-elected as follows: President, the Rev. A. St. J. Heard; general secretary and treasurer, the Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow; Ringing Master, Mr. Nolan Golden; auditor, Mr. George Fletcher; the vice-presidents were re-elected en bloc, with the addition of the Revs. W. G. Bridge and E. W. Blyth.

Presenting the accounts for 1949, the auditor commented on the striking difference between the number of members in the annual report and the number of annual subscriptions paid, also on the very small amounts claimed by the secretaries for expenses, showing that they were running the Association's affairs largely out of their own pockets.

It was agreed to put the Association's outing on an official basis, with Mr. Nolan Golden as organiser. Mr. Golden stated that he still had one or two vacancies for the outing he was planning for May 13th. The question of re-issuing the Association badge was deferred for another year.

It was noted that two names had been put on the Roll of Honour for the war of 1939-45—Ronald Kemp, R.A.F., Winfarthing, and Gordon Greenacre, of Wroxham.

SECRETARY'S HONORARIUM.

As the general secretary had not received his honorarium for some time, it was agreed in place of this to donate a further £20 towards the bell being given to St. George Colegate by the Association, making £50 in all for this.

Thanking members, Mr. Thurlow said that this had the fortunate result of making true the statements both in two books of his and on the bell concerned, that it was given by the Association.

It was agreed to pay the third-class return rail fare of the Association's Central Council representatives in future. It was also agreed to give £2 2s. towards Worstead Bell Restoration Fund, and £1 1s. to Cotton (Suffolk) Bell Fund.

Hearty votes of thanks were passed to the incumbents for the use of their bells, the preacher, the organist and the Rev. J. A. H. Waddington, Vicar of Mancroft, for the service. Mr. Waddington, in reply, said he was most grateful to the ringers for keeping Mancroft bells going on Sundays.

Members stood in silence as a token of respect to the memory of Mr. James Taylor, of Reedham.

The General Secretary said that the halloving of St. George Colegate bells would take place on Saturday, May 6th, at 7 p.m., by the Bishop of Thetford, when the general public would have an unusual opportunity of seeing the bells, also that these bells would be reopened by the Archdeacon of Norwich on Saturday, May 20th, at 3 p.m. Mr. Thompson noted that the tablet to the memory of Samuel Thurston at Mancroft needs cleaning.

During the afternoon the new bell frame by Mears and Stainbank, temporarily erected in the Lady Chapel at St. George Colegate, proved an interesting object, complete with new guide book (2s. 6d.), whilst ringing continued at the city churches until evening.

CHANGE-RINGING MACHINES

By B. D. Price.

AN ELECTRICAL SCHEME OF PRESELECTION.

The author's electrical machine, which is practically complete, uses telephone relays almost entirely for 'holding the changes.' Telephone relays consist of an electromagnet which when magnetised by the passage of a current opens and/or closes contacts on it. These contacts are interchangeable and a vast variety is available. They are essentially adaptable switches which have an almost endless application; 'Electric Relays,' by J. Rosslyn (Pub. Newnes), is an excellent small handbook on the subject.

Each of the ten bells is controlled by twenty relays. The wiring circuit shows only part of the circuit for one bell, where A, B, C, D are the coil windings of the first four Main Relays and P, Q, R, S, the coil windings of the Slave Relays. The ten main relays for any bell replace the 'bellplate' and at any moment only one relay is on in the row. Relay A when on (that is, when current is flowing through it) causes the bell to strike in 1sts place and corresponds to the bellplate being in the first position. Relay A has four pairs of contacts on it, labelled a1, a2, a3, a5. These for convenience are not shown by the relay coil, although in fact they are close to it. Supposing for a moment relay A is on, then contacts a2 will close and current will flow from Main Relay Supply + via contacts a2 and b4 to the coil, and so maintain the current. Thus relay A, or any other main relay, remains on or off unless disturbed. The negative wires from the relay coils are not shown. In addition, if Relay A is on, then contacts a1 close and the Place Current, delivered by a rotating wiper arm, causes the corresponding bell to strike in 1sts place. If now Relay B is caused to come on, contacts b4 will open and switch Relay A off. This means that the bell has hunted up into 2nds place. It will be seen that if any Main Relay comes on, it prevents the Main Relays on either side remaining on. Preselection is effected by the Slave Relays, which construct the next required position of the Main Relays before it actually happens. The Slave Impulse + comes on for a brief moment while the last few bells in the change are being struck. Meanwhile, as described earlier, the row of buttons on the control panel of the machine conveys to the pairs of contacts marked 1x2, 2x3, 3x4 what swops will be required for the next change, and the corresponding contacts close. Suppose that Main Relay A is on (that is, the bell strikes in 1sts place) and that the instruction comes through for the swop 1x2 to take place. Then both the contacts 1x2 and a5 will be closed, and when the Slave Impulse + comes on, the Slave Relay Q will be switched on. Once this happens, contacts q2 close (being, of course, on Relay Q), and this gives a second supply of current to the Relay Q from Slave Relay Supply +. Thus when Slave Impulse + ceases, it has performed the preselection of bringing Relay Q on.

This, of course, means that contacts q1 also close, and the time is now ripe for the next change. In the brief interval between changes Main Impulse + comes on, and this causes Relay B to come on via the contacts q1. Once this happens, contacts b4 open, switching off A and providing an alternative supply for B via b2, a3, c4. Then when B is on and the next change has commenced, Slave Relay Supply ceases for a moment, which wipes clean the Slave Relays ready for the next cycle.

Thus there are 200 relays for controlling the bells, 20 for each bell being made up from 20 Main and 20 Slave Relays. The Slave Relays concoct the next change and hold it waiting ready to feed it to the Main Relays when needed.

The beauty of this system is its complete adaptability. Thus, when 'Rounds' control is pressed, the Main Relay Supply is cut off from all relays excepting those for Rounds, and the Slave Impulse is diverted to the ten Slave Relays which will give Rounds. The result is that Rounds comes at the next change. This is not possible with bellplates. There is no worry of readjustment. One could make the machine wave a flag when Queens comes up by providing contacts on the relevant Main Relays, but this temptation was severely resisted. Another considerable advantage is the reliability of the telephone relay, which has been perfected for other purposes. A snag is weight—the machine is far heavier than existing machines and takes two to lift it.

The instructions to the Diagram Drawer mentioned earlier are derived from the circuit controlling the 9th bell, by inserting relays adjacent to contacts b6, c6, d6, etc., and a5, b5, c5, etc. Then the Slave Impulse as well as bringing on the Slave Relays works the extra relays which pass on the instructions.

I will append a short outline of the whole machine. It is in an aluminium cabinet 4ft. 6in. high, 2ft. wide and 1ft. deep. At the base is the power pack, with a 15 amp 28 volt transformer supplying the small synchronous motor in the mechanical unit, and three 5 amp selenium rectifiers which supply the 24 volt current for all switch-gear. Also, a small transformer supplies low voltage for the indicator lamps.

Immediately above the power pack at the front of the machine is the mechanical unit, which can be removed for servicing. It is connected to the other parts by plugs with 8, 12 and 24 pins. A small synchronous motor drives three sections of the unit—the diagram drawer, the rotating wiper arms for 6, 8 or 10 bell ringing, and the five cams working contacts for controlling the supplies to the relays. Behind the mechanical unit and permanently fixed is a gang of three uniselectors which are responsible for connecting up the rows of buttons on the control panel in turn. Their machine-gun like noise is damped by rubber mounting and padding.

The control panel, with the 23 rows of buttons to be set, jack sockets and plugs, indicator lamps, etc., occupies the greater half of the front, and hinges outwards for access to the interior. Nearly 300 wires connect the buttons to the uniselectors, apart from other wiring. At the rear of the control panel on one side are the relays which govern the stepping uniselectors, and on the other side the relays which control the Go next time—Rounds functions. Opposite the control panel 220 relays are fixed on a frame, 200 being the slave and main relays controlling the bells, 10 for diagram drawing and 9 for concocting swops from places to be made. (The extra one is an overload cut-out.) The wiring of the relays is seen from the rear with the back panel removed, and there are over two thousand tags wired together. Needless to say, all wires connecting different parts of the machine are numbered to help fault finding.

The diagram drawer, which is incorporated as part of the mechanical unit, appears in a recess at the front of the machine just below the control panel.

A switch similar to a wavechange switch on a wireless set alters the setting quite simply from 6 to 8 or 10 bell ringing. As it is connected to the mechanical unit by 44 wires, it is removed with the unit, but is placed on the control panel.

There is some justification for the criticism that my machine is far too heavy and bulky. One ringer suggested I would have to get a crane! The real answer is that I have used ex-radar equipment, which I have been able to buy cheaply, and very little of the machine was actually made. Again, much of the complexity is a sacrifice to complete ease of setting and control.

THE FUTURE.

It is only 60 years since a change ringing machine was first planned. Ringing has progressed for three centuries, and we hope it will continue to do so. Why, then, consider ringing machines to be museum pieces?

In defence of the ringing machine against the inevitable criticism, I would like to put forward three facts in its favour. Firstly, the making of a ringing machine is a labour of love, and for that reason if for no other the finished machine is to be cherished. Secondly, a machine if treated properly could be an inspiration to other ringers, especially to young composers and method concoctors, who can hear their own efforts. All these things go to make up the general interest of change ringing. What would-be composer has not looked at 'The Bell News' to recapture the palmy days of composition when every pen turned out something new, and the method concocter was heeded? Thirdly, I am convinced that a machine could be a real aid in learning to ring advanced methods double-handed, and possibly also in inspiring beginners to good striking by rhythm. I am not trying to advance the ringing machine as a general cure, but a good machine which is accessible would have its advantages.

Many ringers are conscious of the fact that to dabble with ringing machines is to court disaster to our art. There is truth in this, but surely the crisis has passed us. There have been many attempts by firms to market automatic ringers, but none as yet has met with widespread success. It is a chastening thought that if any commercial gain were to be had from making ringing machines, they would have been perfected years ago. Obviously given the money one could go far beyond present attainments, but such progress is of academic interest only. Nothing is likely to replace our art, with its personal flavour and its fellowship, and the rot must be looked for in other directions. I am sure that progress and attainment with change ringing machines will play its small part as a stimulus to our Exercise.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILDBICESTER DEANERY ANNUAL MEETING.

Forty-six members and friends attended the annual meeting of the Bicester Deanery Branch at Kirtlington on April 1st.

The service was conducted by the incumbent (the Rev. L. Gutch), the lesson was read by Mr. F. Sharpe and the address given by the Acting Rural Dean (the Rev. D. F. Horsfield). Visiting ringers formed the choir. After the service an excellent tea was provided by Mrs. Scarrott, who is now aged 81.

Mr. F. Sharpe presided over the business meeting, and those present included the Master (the Rev. C. Elliot Wigg), the Deputy Master (Capt. A. R. Poyntz), Miss M. Cross (Guild librarian), Mr. B. Threlfall (hon. secretary, Cambridge University Society), Mr. E. Pearson (hon. secretary, Banbury Branch) and Mr. C. H. Kinch (hon. secretary, Bicester Branch).

The company stood in silence as a mark of respect for the late Canon Coleridge and Mr. Albert Beesly, of Piddington, captain, ringer and churchworker for many years.

The secretary reported that steady progress had been made during the year and a number of recruits had been found for Bicester, Brill, Islip and Stratton Audley towers. The branch membership remained at 72. The quarterly meetings had been well attended.

The following were re-elected to office: President, the Rev. C. P. Cowland Cooper; vice-presidents, the Rev. Hugh Benson and Mr. F. Sharpe; hon. secretary, Mr. C. H. Kinch; representatives to the Guild Committee, Messrs. B. Gunston and C. Stockley. Four new members were elected.

The Master and Deputy Master addressed the meeting, which then closed with a vote of thanks to all those who had made the gathering a success.

Methods rung included Grandsire Doubles and Triples, Stedman Triples, Plain Bob Major, Double Norwich, Cambridge Surprise Minor and Major.

Yorkshire AssociationWESTERN DIVISION.

The annual quarterly meeting was held at Earsheaton, when ringers were present from the following towers: Almondbury, Armley, Batley, Brighouse, Denholme, Drighlington, Guiseley, Haworth, Headingley (St. Michael's and St. Chad's), Horbury, Kirkheaton, Leeds Parish, Liversedge, Osselt, Pudsey, Queensbury, Rippondon, Rothwell, Tadcaster, Woodlesford, Wetherby and Bawtry, near Doncaster.

The bells were rung in many methods throughout the afternoon and evening.

At the business meeting Mr. P. J. Johnson was in the chair, and apologies for absence were received from Mr. J. Ambler and Miss P. Barton.

The Vicar gave a hearty welcome to the Association and thanked them for their services to the Church.

Mr. William Ambler was re-elected as district secretary for a further term of three years and was heartily thanked for his past services. Hope was also expressed to him that he would maintain (after his recent operation) the good health which he was now enjoying.

The retiring committee, Messrs. J. Ambler, P. Birkett and F. Hodgson, were re-elected, and Mr. J. Ambler was elected to serve on the General Committee.

Mr. Barton expressed a desire to have a set date for the district meetings so that ringers could make other arrangements without a clashing of interests, and it was resolved to try and keep to the third Saturday in the month.

The secretary is now in a position to give an advanced notice that the next meeting will be held on June 17th at Denholme, near Bradford. A vote of appreciation was given to Mr. Lofthouse (the secretary of the Leeds and District Society) for the very kind gesture in postponing his meeting in favour of this one.

Ten new members were elected and a collection was taken in aid of the Belfry Repairs Fund.

Occasion was taken to make a presentation of a pipe and tobacco pouch to Mr. W. H. Senior in recognition of his services to the Association, and to Mrs. Senior of a handbag.

The meeting expressed warm thanks to the ringers and clergy at Mirfield Parish Church for so kindly placing their bells at the disposal of visitors throughout the day.

MARRIAGE OF MISS R. BRADING

Ringers from Guildford and Haslemere rang handbells in Busbridge Church, Godalming, on April 13th, prior to and after the wedding of Miss Rosemary Ann Brading and L.-Corpl. Arthur Dennis Howard, R.A.P.C., two local ringers.

The bride previous to her marriage held a clerical appointment with 'The Ringing World.' She was also secretary of the Godalming Deanery Youth Council and until recently a Sunday School teacher. A guard of honour was formed by the SS. Peter and Paul Brownies, of whom the bride is Brown Owl.

The Rector (the Rev. A. J. de C. Studdert) officiated, and the choir led the singing. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a white moiré dress, veil and headress. Her seven attendants included Miss Margaret Gill, a Grayshott ringer. Mr. A. F. Lawrence was best man, and Mr. Basil Messenger, also a Godalming ringer, groomsmen.

As the bride and bridegroom came down the aisle they passed under an archway of handbells held by Mr. A. H. Pulling, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hazelden and Mr. F. Bowden.

After a reception at Busbridge Institute with 70 guests, the bride and bridegroom left for Swanage, Dorset, for the honeymoon. They are making their home in the vicinity of Windsor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

21 SPLICED MAJOR METHODS

Dear Sir,—I should like to make it quite clear that it was not our intention to belittle that very fine performance of John E. Spice and his band who rang the peal in 21 Major methods 'in hand' at Oxford. We know too well how much time and practice has to be put in to ring such a peal.

What was in our minds was the belief that the Central Council had made a resolution that a 'spliced' peal was one in which no more than one full course of any one method should be rung without a change of method. This was discussed at a Council meeting during the 1930's.

In the 17 method peal we did not ring more than one course in any method. The most that was rung without a change of method was three leads. In the second half of the peal methods were changed at every lead.

In the 21 method peal, which was the composition of the late Stephen Wood, there were as many as three full courses rung without a change of method. Again I must make it quite clear that we do not wish to under-rate this composition in any way. It is a very ingenious one. It contains a full course of each method, which another school of thought deems desirable in multi-method peals.

The late A. G. Driver, with whom I had some correspondence on Spliced Minor compositions during 1938-9, was very emphatic as to what we should claim as 'spliced.' I may add that the peal of Minor in 104 methods, rung at Bigby in July, 1939, and some of the peals leading up to it were not claimed as spliced peals. This was because one extent contained three full courses of Little Bob without a change of method and also nine leads of Crayford Little Court.

We apologise for making the claim, which we now know to be wrong, but we assure Mr. Speed that we made it in good faith, because of the views expressed by A. G. Driver.—Yours sincerely, GEORGE E. FEIRN.

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD'S SILENT BELLS

Dear Sir,—This year the Parish Church of St. Mary, Hemel Hempstead, is celebrating the 800th anniversary of its dedication. The magnificent Norman church, with its 200ft. high lead spire, is in a very fine state of preservation, but alas! the grand old bells are silent, in need of urgent repairs to the frame. It was in November last year that the Parochial Church Council, in view of the dangerous state of the bells, decided that ringing must cease, and since then various makeshift methods of chiming have had to suffice each Sunday.

The oldest bell in the tower is the 5th, with the much battered inscription, 'Lawdate Domini'; its exact age is unknown, but I think some time about 1520 is a reasonable date. Of the others, the tenor, a mere youngster, is a recasting by Lester and Pack of 1767, while the trebles were added in 1758 by the same founders. The 6th was cast by Robert Mot in 1604, the 7th, a most beautiful bell, and the 4th by Robert Oldfield, and the 3rd in 1688 by Chandler, of Drayton Parslow.

Keeping these veterans company is a chime-barrel installed (at a total cost of just over £13) in 1761, while a new clock, still in perfect condition, was given in 1783.

Let us hope that it won't be too long before ringing is resumed in this tower. — Yours sincerely, JOYCE LEWIS.

Hemel Hempstead.

PATTISHALL, NORTHANTS. — On April 1st, 1,260 Doubles (360 April Day, 360 Plain Bob, 540 Grandsire); Ivor Dickinson (first quarter) 1, V. A. Perry 2, Miss M. E. Roe 3, H. H. Shives 4, E. G. Bennett (cond.) 5, K. Perkins (first quarter, aged 12) 6. For the treble ringer's 14th birthday.

WHEN BELLS ARE HUNG DEAD

Dear Sir,—Herewith enclosed is a cutting from our local paper which I am sure will interest you.

This ring of five consists of very old bells and was out of order for a great many years. Last year the Vicar started a fund to put the bells in order, and the money was readily forthcoming, but in spite of many protests from ringers in this district, they were rehung dead.—Yours sincerely, LESLIE MILLS.

Bures, Suffolk.

Extract from 'Suffolk Free Press':—

Sir,—About two years ago I was one of many who subscribed towards the rehanging of the bells at Great Cornard Church. I would suggest to whoever is responsible for the ringing of these bells that he uses a little more tact in his selection of the tunes he plays on these bells every Sunday.

We have heard 'Three Blind Mice,' 'Drink to me only with thine eyes,' 'Home, Sweet Home,' and at the morning services we have had 'Now the day is over.'

Surely it is not too much to ask that we, who like to hear the church bells on a Sunday, should not have to listen to such selections, and I would suggest that whoever is responsible should think it over.

'BELL LOVER.'

PEALS AT HAZELBEECH

Dear Sir,—As I was responsible for the footnote to the Hazelbeech peal, may I apologise for the error made? Had I added 'for the Peterborough Guild,' it would have been correct, but I had omitted to check Midland Counties peal reports.

However, it has done no harm, as I have long discovered that if you want to find out any information, make a claim, and if it's not disputed, you can be pretty sure it's correct!

Regarding the note of Hanslope tenor, I must have copied this from an old peal report without checking it with my ear! For the future I will endeavour to be careful!

St. Martin's Guild

A very enjoyable quarterly meeting of the St. Martin's Guild was held, by the invitation of the local ringers, at Aston Parish Church on April 1st.

About fifty ringers attended, and the modern ring of twelve bells was kept going in a variety of methods to suit the requirements of a mixed company.

The Vicar, the Rev. F. F. G. Warman, conducted a short service taken from the Guild's newly-revised service paper, the organist being Miss Audrey Timms, a young lady ringer from Coventry.

An excellent tea was followed by the business meeting, at which the Master, Mr. Albert Walker, presided. Reference was made to the loss the Guild had sustained by the death of four members since the last meeting—Messrs. Thomas Miller, Samuel Grove, James H. Shepherd (a vice-president of the Guild) and Cyril F. Johnston. The Master asked all present to stand in silence for a moment as a tribute of respect to their memory.

Mr. H. F. Holt, of Handsworth, and Mr. J. L. Gray, of Aston, were elected full ringing members, and the following tower elections, as life members, were duly ratified: Miss Joyce England, Wallington, Surrey; Messrs. Harry Parkes, Ashford; Peter N. Bond, London; David Parsons, Carshalton; Wm. J. Rawlings, Beckenham; R. V. Webb, Letchworth; and James Daniels, Bournemouth.

Mr. John H. Jones extended an invitation to the Guild to hold its next meeting at Tanworth-in-Arden on July 1st, which met with general approval.

For some years past the Guild has been represented on the Central Council by Alderman Paddon Smith, but the membership of the Guild having increased sufficiently during the past few years, it was decided to elect an additional representative, and Mr. Frank E. Haynes was duly elected.

It was proposed by Mr. T. H. Reeves, and supported by the Master, that the following be recorded in the minutes: 'That this meeting congratulates Alderman Paddon Smith, J.P., a past master and a vice-president of this Guild, upon his election as Lord Mayor-designate of the City of Birmingham, and wishes him a happy and successful year of office. It also appreciates the added honour this preferment confers on the Guild.'

A hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells and for conducting the service was enthusiastically accorded by all.

200 PEALS AT ST. MARTIN'S

MR. ALBERT WALKER'S RECORD.

In May last year, Mr. Albert Walker rang his 200th peal on the bells of St. Martin's, Birmingham. His first peal on this ring was on January 31st, 1899.

These 200 peals include three on the back eight and one on the front eight. The original 12, tenor 36 cwt., were cast by Mears in 1758 and were recast by Mears and Stainbank with tenor 37 cwt. in 1928. Mr. Walker has rung and called several peals from every bell of the two rings of twelve, including the tenor to Maximus.

Mr. Walker's 200 is as follows: Bob Royal 1 (conducted 1); Bob Maximus 1; Grandsire Cinques 2; Erin Cinques 1; *Stedman Cinques 166 (76); Stedman Caters 5 (4); Stedman Triples 2; Cambridge Surprise Major 2 (1); Cambridge Surprise Royal 2 (1); Cambridge Surprise Maximus 6 (1); *Forward Maximus 2; Kent Treble Bob Maximus 3 (2); Kent Treble Bob Royal 1; Double Norwich Court Bob Major 1; Rutland Surprise Royal 1; Yorkshire Surprise Royal 1; Belgrave Surprise Royal 1; Belgrave Surprise Maximus 1; Lindsey Surprise Maximus 1; total 200 (conducted 86). *One each non-conducted.

OBITUARY

MR. WILLIAM T. PALMER.

We regret to record the death of Mr. W. T. Palmer, of Staveley, near Chesterfield, on March 30th, at the age of 73 years. He had been in failing health for some time, never having regained his former robustness after the death of his wife two years ago.

He had been a regular and consistent ringer for about 56 years and could always be relied upon for Sunday service ringing. He had also rung 80 peals.

At the funeral service he was carried shoulder high to his last resting place by four of the local ringers (Messrs. S. Smedley, A. White, F. Adams and W. Dickinson), and a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells by Messrs. F. Adams, A. E. Parsons, L. G. Palmer (brother) and W. Dickinson.

In addition to the family mourners, the church was represented by the churchwardens (Messrs. W. J. Kittridge and J. W. Hodson), the Derbyshire Association by Mr. F. Adams, and the Sheffield District Society by Mr. W. Allwood.

A half-muffled quarter peal of Bob Major was rung in the evening after the funeral.

MR. JOSEPH SADDINGTON.

We regret to record the death on March 31st of Mr. Joseph Saddington at his home, Station Road, Burton Latimer, Northants.

Mr. Saddington, who was 83 last October (when a peal of Superlative was rung to celebrate the event), was a well-loved and respected chorister and ringer for 70 years, first at Cranford, and later at Burton, where he resided from 1919.

At Cranford he had been mainly responsible for the installation of the fine ring of six and had also trained the band which started from scratch and scored a seven-method peal of Minor within a year, which he suitably conducted.

Three of Mr. Saddington's sons became ringers, in addition to his granddaughter, Mrs. R. Dacre, and he was very proud of a quarter peal in which he and his granddaughter took part and which his son, Mr. Bernard Saddington, conducted.

The fully choral funeral service took place at Burton on April 4th, and was attended by a large number of friends and ringers, in addition to relatives.

The ringers' hymn was rung on handbells in the church during the service, and afterwards the bells of St. Mary's were rung half-muffled to most of Mr. Saddington's favourite methods, including Stedman, Grandsire, Double Norwich, Cambridge and Kent.

The local tower and the Diocesan Guild will sadly miss a ringer who gave of his best to all his activities, was a fine striker and was, until about two years ago, at his post in the belfry every Sunday and practice. G.E.W.

OUTING

CHRIST CHURCH, MACCLESFIELD.

A party of 17 ringers and their wives and friends had their annual outing on Easter Monday, the journey being to the Dukeries via Glossop, Snake Pass, Bamford, Grindleford, Chesterfield, Cresswell, Cuckney and Mansfield, returning via Derby, Ashbourne, Leek to Macclesfield.

The first halt was at Chesterfield, where the ring of ten was set going to Treble Bob Royal, Grandsire and Stedman Caters. After a really good lunch at Mansfield the party went to the church and rang several good touches of Plain Bob, Double Norwich and Cambridge Surprise.

The next call was at St. Andrew's, Derby, another ring of ten. Dinner was served at the York Hotel, followed by a social hour in the lounge. Macclesfield was reached at 10.30 p.m., the outing being voted a great success.

TOWER CORNER (9)

'DEVELOPMENT OF BELL CONTROL.'

Dear Learners, — Our new general heading and sub-title this week mark the stage of your promotion from 'Beginners.' As a matter of fact, 'Tower Corner' is the title originally chosen for this series, but, up to this stage, 'Mainly for Beginners' has seemed more likely to encourage your interest.

Back in the tower, for further instruction, then, we find our old friend, Tom Truetouch, busy at the blackboard on the wall. 'Here,' he says, 'is a summary of last week's Lesson V. You will remember I called it the transition between Sections I. and II. of the Course.' LESSON V. (Transition—Sections I. to II.)

'Raising and lowering a bell.'

- Ex. 11. The start of raising. Chiming with a coiled rope-end.
- Ex. 12. The let-out. (On a dead-rope.)
- Ex. 13. The take-up. (On a dead-rope.)
- Ex. 14. The half-wheel raise and lower.
- Ex. 15. The beginner's pass-out. (Raise, set and lower.)

(Note: For the benefit of readers who may have missed some of the earlier articles we may recall that Article 1 indicated that a full course of instruction in all branches might consist of ten sections, each of so many lessons, the lessons containing practical exercises serially numbered. Then, in Article 6, we summarised the first Section under the 10 Exercises of the first four lessons. Above is the continuation. Each Section will be summarised in turn.)

'From this,' says Tom, indicating the blackboard, 'we go on now to Section II., dealing with the variation of bell-control, and leading to the art of striking. The first thing to realise is that though you may manage to ring a bell, and even to raise and lower it, yet until you can so vary your control as to make the bell perform exactly to your desired time of beat—and this means to within a time interval of as little as one-fifth of a second—that is, until you can strike your bell properly, you cannot become a ringer in the acceptable sense.

'In actual ringing, your bell is controlled to give a varying rate of stroke. Even in ringing rounds, except for call changes as practised in some districts, the bell swings up to a pause which is slightly longer at sally than at back. The effect of this is that after all bells have sounded at backstroke and before any bell begins the next handstroke there is a gap in the sound sequence. How long is this gap? And has it a name?

'Yes. It is called, "The open hand-stroke." Many a beginner is told to make it, but is given very little real guidance as to its length or period. Now this is of the greatest importance, and we will first show you why; then we'll indicate how to gauge the period.

'When bells go off into changes with the tenor covering, there would be no difficulty in recognising the completion of each change even if the striking were very irregular: the tenor sounding behind each rearrangement of the others would mark it well enough. But if the changes include the tenor, i.e., if the tenor is "turned in," then, unless some sort of pause or gap is employed to mark the end of a change-row, the row sequence would tend to become lost. In practice it is found unnecessary to have such a gap at the end of each row or group of strokes; it is employed only after each pair of stroke-groups, that is at the end of the group of back-strokes. This is a sort of full-stop after every change-rung sentence.

'As to the length of the gap, there is always at hand a yardstick, as it were, for measuring it. It is equal to the average time-interval between any two bell-sounds in the ring concerned.'

Here Tom turns again to the blackboard and draws a circle with seven marks equally spaced around it. Against the marks he writes round the circle 'A. B. C. a. b. c. P.'

'This,' says Tom, 'represents the time cycle of rounds on three bells from one handstroke to the next, the three letters representing Treble, Second and Third, respectively. The capitals are handstrokes and the smalls are backstrokes, while the "P" is one-bell-beat pause before the leading bell's next handstroke.

'If we let "n" represent the number of bells in any particular ring, then the time cycle of beats for that ring, between handstroke and handstroke, is always "twice n plus one." And this cycle is maintained in rounds and changes alike. On 8 bells, for instance, this cycle becomes 2×8 plus 1, equals 17. On five only—11; on twelve—25; and so on.

'For example,' Tom continues, drawing a second and third circle, 'if we go off into changes from the rounds position I show in circle 1, we get what I show here in circle 2, namely, "B.A.C.b.c.a.P.," then this of circle 3—"C.B.A.c.a.b.P.," and so on. Now notice that in rounds the interval from any one capital to its relevant small (i.e., h/s to b/s) is always 3; and similarly from small round to large is always 4; providing what we may call a constant variation in the beat; but as soon as changes begin this beat variation itself alters from change-row to change-row, as you may check for yourself by counting the intervals between corresponding letters, round the other circles.

'It is clear, then, that in rounds we have a consistent variation of the beat or striking time, but in changes we have an inconsistent (or altering) variation. From this it becomes obvious that the most careful timing of the beat or striking interval is essential if the bells are to sound evenly spaced, from change-row to change-row. So far we have considered only three bells, but the principle is true for any number, though on higher numbers the degree of precision required is correspondingly higher. The achievement of this in practice is known as the art of striking.

'The exercises in this lesson,' Tom goes on, 'and in the next two are designed to develop skill in this art. The essential foundation for it is 100 per cent. bell control.

'Many good strikers, asked how they get their results, feel at a loss to explain how they do it, and say, "It comes by practice," or "You just have to ring by listening." The truth of the matter, of course, includes both these things, with others. There are, in fact, five main factors of good striking:—

1. Compass audibility.
2. Automatic registration of pull-off point within that compass.
3. Ear-check.
4. 100 per cent. bell control consistently maintained.
5. Applied control adjustment.

'The visibility factor, i.e., the effect of following visibly the preceding rope, is of less importance in precision striking than the beginner may imagine. It is little more than a rough check. Reasons for this include the facts that many bells are "odd-struck," and that the pull-off point (see 2 above) varies as between smaller and larger bells.

'Later on,' Tom explains, 'we shall deal in detail with those five factors of good striking. But now for these exercises in bell-control, for which purpose we've silenced four of the bells.'

And there, Learners, we must pause, having used up our Corner space.—Yours ever,

CORN. R. STONE.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL MEETING AT TAUNTON.

About 100 members met at 12 noon at the Church of St. James for the annual service, which was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. E. Hirst. In his address he told of the uses of bells and paid tribute to the services rendered by ringers. Ringing, he said, was a co-operative effort.

Luncheon, which followed, was a fine example of such an effort. The food had been transported across the county from Yatton and Wrington, and even the flowers which graced the tables came from the latter place. These arrangements were made by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Knight, Mrs. Norton and Mr. L. Pullin. The amenities at the Taunton end were provided by Messrs. W. Gigg and A. H. Reed. The long distance visitors, of whom there were eight, agreed that the meals provided—tea was served, too—were well worth the journey.

The business meeting, which was chiefly of a routine character, then took place. The Master, the Rev. A. J. Hook, commenced his report by congratulating the secretary on the completion of 25 years' office. He regretted that he was unable to attend as many meetings as he would like to do, but he had been to meetings of the Bridgewater Branch, which was now making rapid strides, and to meetings of the Dunster Branch, where the attendance and enthusiasm were marked features. As a member of the Diocesan Advisory Committee he had been struck by the number of towers where the business of getting the bells into ringing order had been tackled.

He reported that the number of towers affiliated showed an increase of six, making a total of 175. The number of resident ringing members had risen by 84 to 1,515. Increases were most marked in the Axbridge, Bridgewater, Cary and Chew branches. A new branch secretary in the person of Mr. E. J. Chivers had taken over the Frome area.

The broadcast 'From Tower and Steeple' had roused considerable interest, and he had addressed the Minehead Rotary Club on Somerset bells. Two of the recordings made had been processed and were occasionally used as interval signals on the West Regional programmes.

The Master concluded his report by urging that recruits should be young, so that when they had to do their National Service they would be capable ringers and would return with added experience. He stressed the importance of Sunday service ringing, which was the primary reason for church bells.

The secretary then made a short statement, in which he said that the Association would be able to pay for the forthcoming report and for the war memorial without disturbing its investments. He regretted that with only 14 gallons of petrol for bellringing during six months, he was unable to do as he used to do, to visit each of the eleven branches at least once a year. He had attended 12 branch and some 60 practice meetings during the year.

Miss Williams then told of the Central Council meeting at York and gave an account, for which she was thanked by the meeting.

Mr. W. A. Osborn then recounted the work that, as belfries' adviser, he had done during the year. He emphasised the importance of good steeple keeping. He, too, was thanked for his work and report.

Mr. S. S. Woodburn then reported on the war memorial, which was at last fixed. He paid great tribute to the Rev. W. Beaumont Russell, who had so patiently overcome the many obstacles which had lain in the way of its successful completion.

The officers of the Association were re-elected en bloc, the Master and the secretary returning thanks.

Greetings from the Middlesex Association were conveyed by Mr. W. H. Coles, once of Somerset. Mr. A. Payne, of Tiverton, spoke for the Devon Guild, while Mr. H. J. Poole, who with Mrs. Poole, Jill and Peter attended the meeting, spoke for the Leicester Diocesan Guild. Other visitors were Mr. G. S. Morris and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Cannon. These were all welcomed by the Master.

After numerous votes of thanks, the meeting dispersed to the eight towers which were available. Handbells were put to good use by the visitors, and the rise and fall on them appealed particularly to the Somerset audience.

COMBINED MEETING AT ECCLESTON

The Chester Branch of the Chester Diocesan Guild and the North Wales Association held a combined meeting at Eccleston, Chester, which attracted an attendance of 45. Ringing in several methods was performed before the service, which was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. C. Musgrave.

After the service the excellent ring of eight was kept going until 7 p.m., when it was necessary to close the tower because of a concert which was being held in the Village Institute nearby. Nothing daunted, however, the ringers betook themselves to Handbridge St. Mary's, where the eight were kept going until approximately 8.30 p.m. The popularity of these combined meetings is such that it was agreed by all present to hold another meeting later in the summer at either Llangollen or Buckley, Chester.

GUILD OF DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

EAST DEVON BRANCH.

Over 60 members and visitors from Cornwall, Chittlehampton and Bristol attended the annual meeting of the East Devon Branch at the lovely old church of Ottery St. Mary on Easter Monday.

The Vicar (the Rev. B. C. Jackson) conducted the service and the address was given by the Rev. C. H. Bray. The tea was arranged by the wives of local ringers. A welcome to the visitors was extended by the Rev. H. Taylor, to which Mr. Field replied.

In his report the hon. secretary stated that the branch had had a most successful year, due, he thought, to the number of bell restorations in the branch's area which had helped to create interest in ringing. Just on 50 new members had been elected during the year, 23 at one meeting. The branch had 125 performing members, five honorary and three unattached. The branch was in a sound financial position, with a balance in hand of £36 11s. 5d.

Officers elected for 1950 were: Chairman, Rev. H. Taylor; vice-chairman, Mr. G. C. Woodley; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. Arbury; Ringing Master, Mr. C. J. Turner; Guild Committee, Messrs. P. Davis, L. Baker and C. J. Turner.

The bells were rung to various methods, and everyone thought the Loughborough Foundry had done a very good job at Ottery. A collection for the Guild Restoration Fund amounted to £2. J. A.

ANNUAL MEETINGS

SINCE Easter we have been in the throes of annual meetings of Guilds and Associations. It is a time for stocktaking, and almost without exception the reports make good reading. Numerically, there is no decrease in membership; in fact many Guilds report an increase, and practically all of them report a very live organisation directing their affairs.

Correspondence previous to the meeting of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association meeting at Taunton suggested that there might be criticism of the general policy; these happily have been smoothed over and reports received indicate that sweet accord marked the proceedings. The Bath and Wells is probably our largest Association, with a membership of 1,515, an increase of 84 during the year. Somerset is a county of some of the finest towers in the land, and visiting ringers know only too well of the hospitality it extends. The Association operates through eleven branches. The Master and General Secretary are greatly dependent on their chief lieutenants.

Their neighbours, the Gloucester and Bristol Association, with a membership of nearly 1,000, are also a vigorous body, but they have one or two branches which are not displaying the general enthusiasm of the main body, Mr. C. R. Harding, the general secretary, has retired, and Mr. F. Skidmore, a well-known and popular member of the Central Council, is his successor. Mention should be made of Mr. P. C. Williams' 21 years as honorary treasurer. The Association did not overlook his coming-of-age in office, and he was the recipient of a suitable presentation.

Another hon. treasurer to come-of-age this year was Mr. F. M. Mitchell, of the Kent County Association. There was no lack of cordiality at Rochester on Easter Monday on the way he fulfilled his stewardship. Kent are among the wealthy, with assets totalling £1,234, and during his tenure of office these increased by £400. This Association has a membership of 1,015, of whom 127 are new practising members during the current year. With one member in eight a first-yearer, the importance of the instructional side of ringing cannot be overlooked.

The question of ringers' badges was raised at a number of meetings. Last year Oxford Diocesan Guild designed their own badge and the year before that Guildford Diocesan Guild did the same. Southwell Diocesan Guild and Coventry Diocesan Guild are both grappling with the question and Kent are making inquiries. We live in an age when people love to be labelled and if it gives pleasure why say nay? Ringers can rarely disguise their love of bells—it is said that practised eyes can pick them out by their gait and other peculiarities. We have not this detective genius! The idea of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association of providing a badge of office for the Master is to be commended. The chains of office worn by the Masters of the Ancient Society of College Youths and the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths do give a touch of dignity. There are other Guilds where the office is similarly honoured.

Irish ringing before the war was not conspicuous. In Northern Ireland in recent years there has been marked progress in the art of change ringing and also enthusiasm for peals. A resident company is now ringing Surprise. Another sign of progress was the election of 20 new members at the annual meeting of the Northern district on Easter Monday. The pioneer work of Mr. F. E. Dukes and Mr. J. T. Denwoody is bearing good fruit, and interest in ringing is far from dormant in other parts of the country.

In these days there is a desire to hold commemoration dinners, probably modelled on the Birmingham tradition. The George Williams commemoration dinner is being held at Bournemouth next month. A suggestion that the Guildford Guild should revive their annual dinner and call it the John S. Goldsmith commemoration dinner found opinions very divided. In no sense was there any desire among the critics to belittle the great work the founder of 'The Ringing World' did for change ringing. Their point of view was that his work should not be an excuse for a dinner. The art of compromise was graciously introduced and the title of this revived function is to be 'The Guildford Diocesan Guild dinner commemorating John S. Goldsmith.'

in a masterly manner by the new president, the Rev. Percival Gough.

The Copt Oak, Leicestershire, band is progressing. This week we record a peal in 40
Minor methods. Congratulations!

Mr. A. E. Lock, of Abingdon, who conducted

His friends send him greetings and wish him well.

Visitors to South-East Kent coast resorts

lege Youths was successful and a good peal was rung. Details will be given in our next issue.

Congratulations to Mr. William A. Wood, the general secretary of Leicester Diocesan Guild, on his 150th peal. By this peal he completes the 'circle' of Croft tower for the third time!

Festival of Britain

SUGGESTIONS AS TO RINGERS' CONTRIBUTION.

Dear Sir,—The centenary year of the Great Exhibition of 1851 will be celebrated throughout the land with the Festival of Britain, putting the whole country on show, both to its own people and to the world. Ringers everywhere will be anxious to play their full part in this historic and unique expression of the British way of life, for every locality and interest is being encouraged to participate actively.

Planning and working hard in preparation for the celebrations of next summer are many festival committees set up by or under the auspices of local authorities; and cities, towns, urban and rural districts, counties and villages are preparing for great happenings in 1951. In all these plans emphasis lies on the future, for it is intended that opportunities should be seized on to initiate or complete projects of lasting value, the rehunging of bells being one of the suggestions put forward in festival literature.

How then can ringers play their most effective part in this great national festival? It might be thought that the answer was the obvious one: just ring the bells; and that little else could be said or done. Certainly it is not easy to develop a discussion on this topic (as was our recent experience at a local ringing meeting), but the explanation of this surely is that a necessary basis for such a discussion is full knowledge of the festival aims and plans.

Everyone is aware of the 'centrepiece' of the festival, the South Bank Exhibition, but in addition to this there will be

(a) Two travelling exhibitions, one housed in the naval escort carrier, H.M.S. 'Campania' (note the name, please!), which will tour the ten main seaports of Britain, the other going overland to visit the cities of Birmingham, Leeds, Manchester and Nottingham, the visits varying from ten days to three weeks.

(b) Festivals of the arts at many historic centres such as Bath, Worcester, Canterbury, York, etc.

(c) Numerous local festivals organised by local authorities of a very varied nature indeed.

The whole festival season will last from May to September, and there will be many opportunities for ringers to participate in these events, at all levels, from the village band to the guild or association as a whole, to the national level sponsored by the Central Council, thus ensuring that our traditional English art is suitably depicted.

There are many ways in which our Exercise could display itself, such as—

(1) By small demonstrative exhibitions held in conjunction with local festival events.

(2) By inviting the public to ringing meetings, etc. (this might well prove a most rewarding recruiting drive).

(3) By festival peals.

(4) By special festival ringing meetings.

(5) By great ringing rallies associated with the travelling exhibitions and the arts festivals.

(6) By special ringing Sundays.

But quite clearly the whole position must be studied, liaison established with the festival organisers and the local festival committees, and also with the Festival of Britain Advisory Committee of Christian Churches (whose chairman is the Dean of Westminster). To this end at the recent committee meeting of the Kent County Association it was decided to give notice of a motion to be tabled at the forthcoming Eastbourne meeting of the Central Council requiring that the Council should undertake this study and liaison and determine for the ringing Exercise how it can best play its part in the Festival of Britain.

Yours sincerely, E. S. JOHN HATCHER.

Ditton, near Maidstone.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

ANNUAL MEETING AT NEWARK.

The fourth annual general meeting of the Southwell Guild was held at the Parish Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Newark, on April 15th.

This magnificent church, with its wonderful tower and spire, is familiar to countless thousands of travellers by reason of the fact that it dominates the spot where two ancient highways, the Great North Road and the Fosse Way, intersect.

Prior to 1713 there were six bells hanging in the tower. That year they were taken down, recast and increased to eight by the addition of new metal. The next important date is 1842, when they were recast by Messrs. John Taylor and Co. and increased to ten, fresh metal again being added. The tenor is now 1 lb. short of 33 cwt.

The last time the bells were rehung was about 1913, since when they have been efficiently maintained by a succession of local steeplekeepers, to whom much credit is due for their general condition. Naturally this old ring cannot compare with modern rings of comparable weight either for 'go' or tone, but, nevertheless, the 'right hands' find them both pleasing and satisfying to ring.

An account of the proceedings of 1942 makes interesting reading to-day. The new bells were brought by boat and eventually opened on May 25th, and the Notts Society of Change Ringers were appointed by the churchwardens of Newark to open the new ring. The bells were raised at 8 o'clock in the morning and 600 changes rung. The Sheffield Change Ringers then raised the bells, and after accomplishing nearly the same number of changes, desisted. The bells were then oiled and short touches rung at intervals during the day. The hard going nature of these fine old bells certainly seems to be founded on a long tradition!

Winthorpe bells were also available during the afternoon, providing a light six by way of contrast.

Between 60 and 70 ringers attended the meeting, which is still a long way short of the ideal, but one which shows a distinct improvement over last year's total.

A short service was held in the Parish Church, conducted by the Vicar of Newark, the Rev. G. W. Clarkson, who spoke of the need for as much well-ordered noise as possible for Sunday service ringing to awaken the slothful and proclaim to Christians the glorious Resurrection.

The Vicar referred to the beauty of English church music and English bells and spoke of the losses sustained in two devastating world wars and of the need to counteract that loss by training young people.

THE BUSINESS MEETING.

At the business meeting, presided over by Canon R. F. Wilkinson, apologies of absence were voiced on behalf of Mr. F. A. Salter and the Misses Katharine and Grace Burchall through illness and Messrs. Arnold Hill and Oswy Street.

The officers, auditors and trustees of the Guild were all re-elected, namely, chairman, Canon R. F. Wilkinson; vice-chairman, Mr. H. Pailing; hon. treasurer, Mr. Walter Nichols; hon. secretary, Mr. J. W. Raithby; auditors, Messrs. F. W. Brown and P. E. Ball; trustees, Canon Wilkinson and Mr. Nichols.

Arising on the minutes, the secretary produced an estimate submitted by Messrs. Denton and Down, of Holborn, to provide a multi-coloured enamelled badge at a cost of 2s. each. The cost of the steel die for this attractive badge, designed by Mr. Ernest Morris, would be £5 10s., and the secretary was directed to place an order with the manufacturers.

The last annual dinner resulted in a loss of £6 11s. 4d., which had been met out of general funds, but despite this setback, it was resolved to continue with the function and to hold the next dinner at East Rexford on Jan. 27th, 1951. A committee, consisting of the North Notts District Committee, plus the hon. treasurer, was appointed to conduct next year's dinner.

The hon. secretary submitted his report and referred to the remarkable increase in the number of peals during 1949, no fewer than 63 having been rung, the phenomenal increase of 50 per cent. over last year being solely attributable to peals on the higher numbers.

One peal of which the Guild could feel particularly proud was of spliced Grandsire and Double Grandsire Triples, rung for the first time.

TEN FIRST PEALS.

Ten ringers scored their first peal and something fresh was accomplished in no less than 104 cases. Mr. Clement Glenn headed the list of conductors with 34 peals, a record for the Guild that would probably remain unchallenged for many a year.

The financial side was healthy, and in his account the hon. treasurer showed a net balance in hand on general account at the end of the year of £133 0s. 11d., in addition to £12 6s. 1d. in the Bell Repair Fund.

Throughout the afternoon and evening the quality of the ringing was generally satisfactory and in both towers ranged from rounds to Surprise. Mr. A. E. Chilton and Mr. H. J. Cloxton were in charge of the ringing and showed considerable skill in keeping the bells going. A course of Double Norwich Caters was rung in good style at the Parish Church to the astonishment of the dismal johnnies with their mournful prognostications.

The number of youngsters of both sexes present at the meeting was highly gratifying and can be regarded as a source of strength and a good omen for the future. J.W.R.

SURREY ASSOCIATION

NORTH-WESTERN DISTRICT.

Despite the unsettled weather, ringers and friends representing 27 towers visited Ashted on Easter Monday. The tea and meeting was held in the Peace Memorial Hall and 80 ringers enjoyed a splendid meal.

Preceding the meeting, Mr. F. E. Collins announced the deaths of Mr. Ades, a regular service ringer at St. John's, Croydon, Mr. W. Conning, of Merton, and Mr. C. F. Johnston, O.B.E., of Croydon. The members stood in tribute to their memory.

Mr. Collins spoke on the loss to the Association in Mr. Johnston's death, saying ever since his youthful days he had been a keen supporter of the Association, and at one time held the office of general secretary. It was by his efforts that St. John's were provided with a splendid ring of twelve bells. The thirteenth bell was his personal gift to commemorate the Allied victory in the World War. He spoke with personal feelings of Mr. Johnston, having been in close contact with him for many years in the relationship of employer to employee. This relationship was always a happy one, and he considered a fitting epitaph to his memory would be, 'He was just to those he employed.'

At the meeting ten ringing members and three compounding ringers were elected. On a vote Walton-on-Thames was chosen for the meeting on June 24th. Two combined meetings were confirmed, viz., with the Kent Association, Lewisham District, at Chislehurst, on October 7th, and the Surrey Association, Southern District, at Lingfield, on July 22nd. The sum of 36s. was collected towards the new Belfry Repair Fund.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Vicar for use of the bells, and to Mr. A. G. Cook for making the arrangements.

Mr. A. P. Cannon has rung his 250th peal (conducted 142). These have been rung in 227 towers, in 33 counties with 682 ringers. We doubt whether any other ringer has had such a varied assortment in his first 250 peals.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

REVIVAL OF ANNUAL DINNER PLANNED

The Guildford Diocesan Guild at their annual meeting on April 15th discussed at length whether the revival of their annual dinner should be associated with the name of Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, first secretary of the Guild and the founder of 'The Ringing World.' It was eventually decided that the title of the dinner should be 'Guildford Diocesan Guild Dinner commemorating the name of J. S. Goldsmith.'

Proceedings started with ringing at Holy Trinity Cathedral and S. Nicolas' Church previous to the service, which was conducted by the Provost, the Very Rev. R. S. B. Sinclair. The address was given by the new Bishop of Guildford, the Right Rev. J. C. Montgomery-Campbell, who asked the ringers present to examine themselves in their capacity as guests of the Divine House. 'When you come to worship in His house, you bring your talent and delight in your bellringing. It is something in which you can serve, and you should say, "Lord, I am presenting this act of service to the glory of God and as an adornment of His worship." It is for this purpose the bells of His house are rung. Ringing is an offering to God. It is not just a healthy exercise or a pleasurable entertainment. It is a gift that you bring to help yourself and others in their worship.'

Following tea, the Rev. K. C. Davis, of Hawley, presided at the business meeting, supported by the Master (Mr. A. Harman) and the hon. secretary (Mr. G. L. Grover). The secretary reported that Mr. J. Corbett, the hon. treasurer, had had a setback during the past week, and although he was a little better that day, he was unable to attend.

Officers of the Guild were re-elected, and Mr. A. Harman was appointed as the representative of the Guild on the Surrey Association.

ASH CONGRATULATED.

The report of the Executive Committee gave the membership of the Guild as 572 (ringing 461, honorary 111). The report stated that no major restorations had been completed during the year, but congratulated Ash ringers and people on the enthusiasm and courage with which they had faced the tremendous task of raising £1,000, a task now almost satisfactorily completed.

A move had been made with regard to the recasting and rehanging the eight at Heresham. An order for restoration work at Capel had been placed and an adjustment made to one of the bells at Crondall. At Frensham an effort was being made to secure funds for rehanging and retuning the six bells. As regards Godalming bells, the report states: 'We are sorry to record, however, that only a "patch-up" job is being contemplated. In our opinion, anything less than a clean sweep (new frames, new fittings and recast bells) will be a waste of money and effort.'

The members stood in silence in memory of the death of the following members during the year: A. J. Chuter (Frensham), William Daborn (Horsell), R. Hayes (Haslemere), A. A. Hadley (Ewell) and R. J. Bailey (Grayshott). Mr. Bailey was tower secretary at Grayshott for 12 years and tragedy was associated with his passing, for, although he died from natural causes, his wife, who visited him in hospital just before he died, was knocked down by a car and killed after leaving him.

Mr. C. E. Smith emphasised that the work contemplated at Godalming was only a 'patch-up' job. It would be much better if the whole lot were 'boiled up' and a new frame provided. These bells had been patched up on two or three occasions, with no satisfactory result.

Mr. F. E. Hawthorne said that Esher bells had gone to the foundry, and two more were to be added to the ring.

The hon. secretary presented the financial statement, which showed that the year started with a balance of £73 18s. and finished with £40 3s. 3d. He pointed out that the Guild could not keep solvent on the present subscription, and the committee proposed to increase the subscriptions from 2s. to 2s. 6d., and for compounding members from 3s. 6d. to 5s. Subscriptions for members under 16 would continue at 1s. This was seconded by Mr. C. E. Smith, and the meeting approved of the increased subscription to operate from January 1st next year. The new rate for compounding members is to be introduced forthwith.

The question of revival of the annual dinner was introduced by Mr. W. Viggers, who said he had received a satisfactory quotation for a dinner at 7s. 6d. He felt that the dinner should be associated with the name of Mr. J. S. Goldsmith.

Mr. A. H. Pulling said if the Guild wanted a dinner they should call it the Guildford Diocesan Guild dinner. They should not make the name of Mr. Goldsmith an excuse for the dinner.

Mr. F. E. Hawthorne said it was one of his pet schemes that the work of Mr. Goldsmith should be commemorated.

Mr. C. W. Denyer suggested a compromise in that the dinner should be called 'The Guildford Diocesan Guild commemorating the name of J. S. Goldsmith,' and this was carried. It was left to the Master, Mr. Viggers and Mr. G. S. Joyce to make arrangements for the function, the date suggested being in October.

A comprehensive vote of thanks to all concerned in connection with the meeting was given by Mr. F. E. Hawthorne.

LLANDAFF AND MONMOUTH ASSN.

ANNUAL MEETING ST. WOOLLOS' CATHEDRAL.

A pleasing feature of the attendance at the annual meeting of the above Association was the large number of young ringers among the 80 odd ringers present. Ringing started at 2 o'clock on the twelve bells of St. Woollos' Cathedral, which were kept going in various methods from rounds for the learners to Cambridge Surprise.

The service was taken by the Rev. Edgar; the Dean was present, but asked to be excused taking the service owing to feeling unwell. Tea, which was kindly provided by the local ringers and friends, followed the service.

At the business meeting the Rev. Ivor J. Richards, Vicar of Crumlin, was voted to the chair.

The secretary gave his report, which showed an increased membership of 21, making a total of 265. Sixteen peals had been rung during 1949. There was a debit balance of £13 11s. 9d., due chiefly to the cost of printing the new forms of service and to grant to Llandaff Cathedral Appeal Fund.

Mr. G. Large was elected Master for the ensuing year. The secretary (Mr. F. J. Hannington) was re-elected, and Mr. Addis and Mr. T. Roderick reappointed auditors.

Mr. J. W. Jones proposed that a badge of office, to be worn by the Master on official occasions, be purchased. After some discussion it was decided to do so, £20 being the limit of cost.

Cardiff was selected as the place of the next annual meeting, and Abergavenny and Aberdare the next two quarterlies. Mr. J. Worrall proposed a hearty welcome to the visitors, who were present from Wednesbury, Croydon, Soberton, Ifley and Swansea. Ten new members were elected from Whitechurch, Cardiff, Chpstow, Penhow and Bedwellty.

Members then returned to the tower for more ringing, some going on to All Saints', where the bells were also available.

Bedfordshire Association

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting was held at Bedford on Easter Monday. In spite of the inclement weather, ringers attended from all parts of the county and the bells of St. Paul's and St. Peter's were kept going throughout the morning.

A late lunch was provided in St. Mary's Hall by Mr. Foskett and his band of helpers. About fifty members and friends sat down to a generous but amazingly cheap meal.

The business meeting which followed was presided over by the president, Miss Steel, who opened the meeting by welcoming the members and friends present. Apologies for absence were read, and they included Canon Rust, Mr. J. Nicholls and Mr. A. King, who were unable to attend through ill-health. The minutes of the last annual meeting were then read by the secretary (Mr. F. J. Plummer), and after a short discussion adopted. In proposing the annual report and the balance sheet it was pointed out that membership had again increased, handbell ringing had been revived in the Bedford District, and there was a small increase in the balance in hand. The report and the balance sheet were adopted.

Miss Steel, who tried to vacate the chair, was immediately re-elected president and returned amongst loud applause. After a discussion it was decided not to re-elect the vice-presidents en bloc, but with a show of hands all the past members were re-elected. The secretary remained in office. Mr. Herbert, the hon. auditor, was not re-elected owing to ill-health, and Mr. Harris proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. E. Herbert for his past services. Miss Steel associated herself with the vote of thanks, and then proposed that Mr. Mason should be elected. This was carried unanimously.

Bedford was again chosen as the place for the 1951 annual meeting, and the summer festival was fixed for Maulden in late June. The suggestion by Mr. Spavins that the Association should have a badge was referred to the secretary to make arrangements with Mr. Spavins and report in due course. Mr. Foskett, the librarian, then gave a report explaining that little business had been undertaken during the year, but that the number of books was gradually increasing.

The president then proposed a sincere vote of thanks to Mr. Foskett and his helpers for providing such a splendid lunch, and asked all present to show their appreciation in the usual way. The meeting then closed with thanks to Miss Steel for taking the chair, and to the clergy for the use of the bells during the day.

The two rings in Bedford and the six at Elstow were then visited, and ringing from rounds to Surprise continued until a late hour.

OBITUARY

MR. H. J. FORD.

Mr. H. J. Ford, who died on April 6th, aged 77, had been a ringer for over fifty years. For most of this time he had been a member of the Sevenoaks band; of which he had been captain for nearly thirty years when he resigned in 1944.

He was a member of the Kent County Association and attended its meetings regularly until the beginning of the war. During the years he was captain at Sevenoaks he also acted as steeplekeeper, and gave regular and careful attention to the bells and ropes.

He was buried on Thursday, April 13th, and in the evening the members of the local band rang a quarter peal of Grandshire Triples, half-muffled, several of those taking part having been taught to ring under his guidance: Miss D. Corke 1, P. Turley 2, Miss A. Hinds (first quarter 'inside') 3, Mrs. H. Baker 4, L. Turley 5, Miss D. Colgate 6, R. Collins (cond.) 7, H. Baker 8.

WORCESTERSHIRE & DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting at Worcester on Easter Monday was well attended, over 100 members and friends being present during the day, and a pleasing feature was the unusually large number of visitors from distant parts of the country. Some 80 attended the special service, held in All Saints' at 11 a.m., at which the Right Rev. Bishop B. Lasbrey and the chaplain, the Rev. H. Hartley, officiated, with the Rev. J. M. Wayle at the organ.

For the first time since his installation and induction, the new Dean of Worcester (the Very Rev. W. E. Beck) presided at the general business meeting, held, through the kindness of the headmaster of King's School, in College Hall, and he was supported by the Master (Mr. C. Skidmore), the chaplain (the Rev. H. Hartley) and the general secretary and treasurer (Mr. J. D. Johnson). In extending a welcome to the members, the Dean described himself as a 'campanological ignoramus,' a state of which he had every intention of doing his best to remedy.

In his 'foreword' to the sixty-fifth annual report, the Chaplain reminded members that during 1950 the 'Bishop of Worcester's Mission, 1951,' would be launched and appealed to every ringer to place himself or herself at the disposal of the Vicar of the parish.

A PEAL RECORD.

On the business side of the report, the general secretary referred to the fact that for the first time in its history the Association had rung over 100 peals in a year, the total being 109, of which nine were rung on handbells. Thirteen of these and two on handbells were rung by a Lincolnshire touring band during a week in September, but of the peals rung by resident members, a pleasing feature was the number rung by complete local Sunday service bands, while several new conductors' names appeared.

Reference to the balance sheet showed that membership had increased by 31 during the year to a total of 512, an increase shared by all three branches. As was anticipated under the old subscription of 1s. 6d., the general fund showed a loss on the year of £9 2s. 5d., and members were reminded that the new rate of 2s. 6d. per annum, with 1s. 6d. for juniors up to their 17th birthday, came into force on January 1st this year. The Belfry Repairs Fund had increased in value by £15 14s. 3d. to £171 3s. 9d., and the total value of Association funds now stood at £219 2s.

The secretary reported that the annual dinner had been fixed for Saturday, October 7th, and the Guildhall booked for that date. The librarian, Mr. C. W. Cooper, reported that during the year he had received 10 applications for the loan of 12 books, and it was decided to purchase the new Directory of Towers for inclusion in the library.

The Dean of Worcester was unanimously re-elected president of the Association, and all other officers were re-elected, with the addition of the Rev. L. J. Birch (Rector of Hanbury) to the clerical vice-presidents, and Mr. John Thomas as a representative of the honorary members on the Central Committee.

Arrangements for the annual peal were left to the Master, and a proposal that the next annual meeting be held at Evesham received very little support, Worcester being selected by an overwhelming majority.

A resolution by Mr. D. H. Watson, 'That the Central Council representatives be instructed to move that the Exercise be represented at the Festival of Britain, 1951,' received unanimous assent.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. H. Shuck, of Cradley, thanking the Association for the grant of £10 towards the rehanging of Cradley bells. The chairman remarked that he was interested in these appeals, as he would be shortly launching one for 400,000 shillings—the amount needed for the restoration of the Cathedral tower. Some work had been done to the pinnacles, during which the bells could not be rung, but more was necessary to ensure the safety of the tower.

The meeting closed with sincere votes of thanks to the president, Dean and Chapter, headmaster of King's School, Bishop Lasbrey and the Rev. Wayle, and the incumbents of the following churches whose bells were extensively used during the day: Cathedral (12), All Saints' and Claines (10), St. John's (8) and Kempsey (6).

EAST DERBYSHIRE & NOTTS ASSN.

ANNUAL MEETING AT SWANWICK.

The annual meeting of the East Derbyshire and Notts Association was held at Swanwick on Easter Monday. The bells of the church were raised in peal a few minutes after 2 p.m. and were put to good use by members present, with rounds for learners and methods ranging from Plain Bob to Stedman.

The Vicar of Swanwick conducted the service and in his address thanked the Association for their visit and welcomed the ringers. Mr. C. Stannard was the organist.

Presiding at the business meeting, Mr. J. W. England (president) expressed the thanks of the members to the Vicar, the Rev. L. H. Roper, for his welcome and hospitality. He also thanked the young members for their attendance and expressed the hope that they would become regular Sunday service ringers and also regular church members. The president congratulated Mr. H. Draycott (Tibshelf) on attaining his 82nd year, and of being a member of the Association for over 50 years, and his regular Sunday service ringing for a longer period than that.

Mr. J. W. Price (secretary), reporting on the year's working, stated that nine meetings had been held. He appealed for a better attendance at meetings.

Meetings for the coming year were decided by ballot, these being: June, Pentrich; September, Clay Cross; December, Sutton-in-Ashfield; with the 1951 annual, Easter Monday, South Normanton. The May monthly meeting will be held at Blackwell.

Morton were decided as winners of the Jubilee Shield, presented annually to the most progressive tower, the marks being on a percentage basis, namely, 55 per cent. Sunday service ringing, 36 per cent. progress and 10 per cent. Association meeting attendance.

Eighteen young people were elected members.

Officials elected were as follows: Mr. J. W. England (South Normanton) president; Messrs. W. Dobb (Selston), H. Draycott (Tibshelf) and J. E. Hobbs (Watnall), vice-presidents; Mr. C. E. Heathcote (Sutton-in-Ashfield), treasurer; Mr. C. Evans (Sutton-in-Ashfield), Central Council representative; Mr. J. W. Price (Clay Cross), secretary; Miss F. M. Price (Clay Cross), assistant secretary; Messrs. H. Doughty and F. Davis (South Normanton), auditors; Messrs. A. L. Rawson (Selston), T. Jennings (Heath), A. Smithson (Blackwell), J. Cooper (Ault Hucknall), T. Radford (Tibshelf) and E. Sterland (Morton), executive committee.

Mr. J. E. Hobbs proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells, and to the ladies for their kindness in catering for tea.—Mr. T. Radford seconded.

The Vicar, in acknowledging, said until that meeting he knew nothing of bellringing. He had been greatly interested in all that had been transacted and wished the Association every success. At any time they wished to visit Swanwick they were at liberty to do so.

WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.—On April 10th, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles: K. Cross (first quarter) 1, G. Gammon (first 'inside') 2, G. Salter 3, G. Walford 4, D. North (cond.) 5, W. Stevens 6.

Dedication

PIDDLEHINTON, DORSET.

For 70 years the five bells at Piddlehinton had been unringable until in 1949 they were rehung by Messrs. John Taylor and Co. in a new frame with entirely new fittings, two being recast and a sixth added.

A tablet is to be erected bearing the following inscription: 'Charles Broughton Clay Swayne, Commander, Royal Navy, died while serving as Assistant Harbour Master, H.M. Dockyard, Chatham, 7th November, 1942, aged 47. To his beloved memory the bells in this tower were rehung and a sixth added in the year 1949 as a gift of his wife. God's Name be praised.'

The gift is also a tribute to the memory of Louise Elizabeth Thompson, who died on June 8th, 1944, at Piddlehinton Rectory, faithful friend and some time nurse to two generations of Mrs. Swayne's family.

The lovely old church was flooded with spring sunshine when on Sunday, April 16th, in the presence of a large congregation, the Rt. Rev. Neville Lovett, formerly of Salisbury, re-dedicated the bells at the request of Mrs. Swayne and gave them the safe keeping of the Rector, the Ven. J. C. Chute.

The Bishop took Easter as the subject of his much appreciated address. The service was fully choral, the singing being ably led by the choir of children.

The twenty members of the local band having previously drawn lots as to whom should take part, the dedication rounds were rung by I. Read 1, Shirley Allen (12) 2, Betty Allen 3, B. Cheeseman (15) 4, T. Jeanes 5, R. J. Walden 6; all except the tenor ringer having learnt to ring within the past few months.

Immediately after the service the first 720 of Plain Bob Minor on the bells was rung by H. C. Cluett 1, C. H. Smart 2, J. Bryant 3, W. C. Shute 4, R. H. Duke 5, E. T. P. Field (cond.) 6.

A sumptuous tea was served in the school, the bells then being available till 9 p.m. During the evening the methods rung included Grandsire, Stedman and April Day Doubles, Plain Bob, Double Court, Reverse Canterbury Pleasure and Kent Treble Bob Minor, and rounds and call changes for the beginners.

In addition to the local band, ringers were present from Beaminster, Dorchester (St. Peter's), Upwey, Preston, Hamnreston, Yeovil, Hazelbury Bryan, Okeford Fitzpaine, Childe Okeford, Yemminster, Sturminster Newton and Doncaster (Yorks).

All ringers present agreed that the founders had made an excellent job, both of the restoration and the 'splice.' E.T.P.F.

BELLS OF ST. MARGARET'S, LEICESTER DEDICATED TO ERNEST MORRIS.

A lovely summer evening,
The sky a cloudless blue,
Across the Abbey Meadows
The bells ring clear and true.

Within St. Margaret's Tower
The ringers work with zest,
God and mankind are listening
As each one gives his best.

Cascades of music tumbling
In eager jostling queues,
Like waterfalls enchanted Telling the joyful news.

Happy the Ringing Master,
Famed specialist on bells,
Hearing the rhythmic music
In him contentment dwells.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

RINGING AND THE PRESS

Dear Sir,—Following the annual meeting of the Worcestershire Association at Worcester on Easter Monday, reports appeared in several of the national dailies under such large type headings as 'Their aim is a ringing good time,' 'They queue to ring' and 'Women join queue for bellringing.'

Such publicity is welcome and all to the good, provided that the statements are substantially correct, but at least two of the reports stated that 'scores of belfries in the county were unsafe,' painting a black and quite wrong impression of conditions in the diocese. I hasten to correct this and can only infer that the reports started from references at the meeting to various towers where restorations were either complete, in hand or contemplated.

As far as Easter Monday is concerned, I can understand the 'queue to ring,' for with a large attendance ringers preferred the church or the belfry stens to facing the cold wind outside, but the Worcestershire is still just an average association with average conditions and can still do with all the recruits it can obtain.—Yours faithfully,

J. D. JOHNSON, Hon. Gen. Sec.,
Worcestershire Association.

EASTER BROADCAST

Dear Sir,—Regarding your note in 'Belfry Gossip' of April 14th issue, commenting on the excellent choice of bells for the B.B.C. broadcast on Easter morning, I am afraid I do not feel completely in agreement with you, and I imagine a great many others must feel likewise.

I am surprised that no one has yet drawn attention to the invariably poor impression made by broadcasts of St. Paul's Cathedral bells. Probably the microphone is badly sited, but, if so, surely this could and would have been remedied before now.

If no improvement is possible, I think the B.B.C. would be well advised to replace St. Paul's with Southwark Cathedral bells (which come over remarkably well) when making similar broadcasts.—Yours truly,

E. LINES.

THE HANDSTROKE LEAD

Dear Sir,—Surely the author of the admirable Tower Corner is at fault when he states that the handstroke lead gap is equal to a one bell beat pause in the ring concerned. If that principle were carried out, the open lead on twelve bells would be too little, and that on five bells too great. Would it not be more correct to say that the open lead should be the distance between two bells rung properly in rounds or changes, plus a factor which is a constant for any particular ring of bells, depending on the length of draught of rope or to the extent to which the ropes are 'drawn' from the vertical? Good striking can only be achieved by taking advantage of the natural difference in the height of swing between handstroke and backstroke.—Truly yours,

J. T. DYKE.

Chilcompton, Bath.

FIRST PEAL AT WALTON-ON-THAMES

Sir,—I wish to establish when the first peal was rung at St. Mary's, Walton-on-Thames, on the eight bells. These were made into eight by the addition of two trebles cast by Messrs. Warner in 1883. In 1885 a peal of Holt's Original was rung by the Surrey Association, conducted by James Strutt; there is no mention of this being the first peal on the eight bells. Perhaps the Ancient Society of College Youths or some other society rang one before this. If any information is forthcoming I should place a record of the same in the tower.—Yours sincerely,

R. LATHBURY.

TUNE RINGING

Dear Sir,—I do not wish to intrude in a journal devoted to change ringing on church bells, but I would like to mention that my team of tune ringers were all church bell-ringers and I have seen their names in successful peals. The girls soon went on from handbells to church bells and were proficient in both.

The three bell founders tell me that although they make handbells, they have never seen any publication as to how to ring them and it is time there was one. Handbell ringers in America had no book on the subject. They have one now.

A poor chap wrote me last week. He had bought a set of handbells and did not know how to ring them as he could not get a book. He has one now.

Twenty-five years ago I had never seen a handbell and could not ring one if I saw it. I searched libraries and catalogues for instruction books, but have not found one yet. I made handbells my lifelong hobby until I went on the air twice with my team, was invited a third time, but I moved to Devon and my bells with me.

'The Musical Times' published an article of mine on the subject July, 1933, and said they had never heard of handbells or how to ring them.

Not being able to discover a book, I wrote my own. The hobby has not hindered me standing in with our ringers twice on Sunday before I go to the prayer desk.—Yours sincerely,

J. M. TURNER.

YORKSHIRE—THE REAL HOME

Dear Sir,—I was glad to see your leading article on tune ringing, because I have felt for some time that tune ringing on handbells has not been fully appreciated by the general public or even by most change ringers. It is quite evident that the B.B.C. know nothing about it, for the few small attempts at tune ringing that they have broadcast from time to time are really only approaching the beginning of real tune ringing.

The home of handbell tune ringing is, of course, in Yorkshire, and especially in the West Riding, although it has declined somewhat this last twenty years. The annual handbell contest, held at Belle Vue, Manchester, regularly for a great number of years, used to attract as much attention as the brass band contest, and that is saying something, for everyone knows what brass bands mean to 'Yorkshere Fowk.' I have not read the Rev. J. M. Turner's book, but one statement that you make, that 'an essential accomplishment in tune bell ringing is to ring two bells in each hand,' is very old-fashioned, and is never done nowadays by our crack bands, unless they are out somewhere, we'll say, ringing carols out of doors at Christmas time and had nowhere to put down their bells. No, sir, the real tune ringing is done on a table, with the bells all laid out on a padded cloth, where each man can get his own and ring them one at once. Bands number anything from ten to twenty, with often over 100 bells, ranging from an egg-cup to a small bucket in size, and a lot of the smaller bells duplicated.

Any sort of music is rung, mostly specially copied out for the various parts and all in one clef, so that the bass and treble parts can interchange without any trouble. As all the bell straps have their own note stamped on them, there is no need for numbers, and all the players are readers of music. But, apart from that, it is quite easy to get familiar with every note needed for a particular tune (that is, your own part in it) and automatically pick up each bell, in its right order, place and time. The spectacle of the lightning-like movements of the ringers is quite as much a part of the show as the tune.

When I say that such things as the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's 'Messiah' are often rung, with every part and every note correct and to perfect time, you will see that we know 'summat abaht' tune ringing in Yorkshire. The music is sweet and mellow and would delight the most critical ear, and is a pastime quite distinct from change ringing. Of the ringers, not one in fifty knows anything whatever about change ringing, although they would learn to 'swap 'em' in no time.—Yours, etc.,

JOHN R. BREARLEY.

SHIPWAY-STEADFAST CONTROVERSY

Dear Sir,—The letter in last week's 'Ringing World' from Mr. York-Bramble has at last caused me reluctantly to enter the Shipway-Steadfast controversy.

The Methods Committee exists an expert committee to advise its parent body (the Central Council) on matters concerning new or supposedly new methods. As such it is within its rights in publishing its views on any question referred to it, but should the Council require to do so, it is quite capable of deciding the matter finally when accepting or rejecting the committee's report when presented. Any criticism of their decision on a question should therefore only come from the members of the Central Council when they meet. I feel that 'The Ringing World,' being 'the official journal of the Central Council,' should therefore not devote space to letters such as that appearing this week, since it is clearly 'out of order.'

No one is forced to abide by the rules made by the Central Council nor by its committees. Those who refuse to accept the ruling are perfectly at liberty to ring 'Steadfast' by themselves.

I do not wish in this letter to take sides in the main controversy whether or not the two methods are the same, but Mr. York-Bramble's letter is bound to make many people now sympathise with the Methods Committee who would not have done before.

As a last point, does not science make progress by virtue of its own ultimate truth, and not by monetary inducements?—Yours faithfully,

P. W. B. SEMMENS.

MORE ABOUT SHIPWAY PRINCIPLE

Dear Sir,—Mr. York-Bramble is to be congratulated on his remarkable discovery that, by starting Shipway's Principle one change later than the author did, he has caused the backstrokes of one to be the handstrokes of the other, and vice versa. One can imagine the hours of patient research necessary before this was revealed to him, and the Methods Committee, poor misguided individuals, will indeed find it hard to controvert!

For both his and their benefit, perhaps I may point out that the same result would be achieved by beginning three, five or seven changes behind Shipway. I do not claim any originality for this discovery, as according to Professor Lancelot Hogben, the properties of odd numbers were referred to in one of the earliest treatises on numbers, the 'Chinese Book of the Permutations,' written about 1100 B.C.

Some time ago I had to spend a considerable period in the company of the same body of people. One idea to prevent tempers becoming too frayed was the presentation of a wooden spoon to anyone guilty of what we called 'stirring'; in other words, it was awarded solely on 'nuisance value.' I venture to suggest that if such a trophy were in existence in the Exercise, Mr. York-Bramble would be unanimously acclaimed as the winner.—Yours faithfully,

'LIBRA.'

CHEW DEANERY AT BACKWELL.

The April meeting of the Chew Deanery was held at Backwell, one of the 'show' churches of North Somerset. Succeeding generations of worshippers have striven to beautify this church, and from the 12th century font to the 20th century oak pews it is evident to the most casual observer that craftsmen have given of their best to this end.

But Backwell Church is no mere museum of beautiful things, it is the centre of a really live parish; when the ringers assembled at 5.30 a.m. to ring for the first Communion on Easter Day, they found an octogenarian parishioner, who had walked two miles, already waiting in the church. Backwell tower, a landmark in a county famous for its tall towers, has glee arches, unusual in these parts, and for many years its six bells, with a tenor just under a ton, were considered very good; on the eve of World War II. two new trebles were cast at the Loughborough Foundry, the six having been tuned and rehung some years earlier, thus making a really delightful octave.

The Rector, Preb. H. S. Urch, conducted the office, but, being within the octave of Easter, hymns suitable to the festival were chosen instead of those printed on the service papers, and well the singing went, helped by the fine acoustics of the lofty church, and, perhaps, the skilful registration of the lady organist, who clearly knew that mutations make men sing.

The Rector and Mrs. Urch were hosts at high tea, laid out in the rectory dining room, and Mr. Urch presided at the business meeting which followed. In welcoming the ringers, the chairman commented on an item on the agenda which had not been there when last they met at Backwell, namely, the venue for the next quarterly corporate Communion; this was truly a progressive step forward in the work of the Association. Portishead was chosen as the place of the July meeting, with intermediate practices at Kingston Seymour and Dundry. The branch corporate Communion will be at Backwell on June 25th, with ringing for the 8 a.m. celebration, followed by breakfast. Ringers attended from Wrington, Chew Magna, Yatton, Clevedon, Publow, Long Ashton, Wembdon, Woolavington, Nailsea, Easton-in-Gordano, Ditchat, Gurney Slade and the local tower.

Some of the stalwarts were missing from the evening ringing session, but they were busily engaged in the neighbouring parish of Wrington, ringing a quarter of Grandsire Caters in honour of 'Bill' Kingcott and Hilda Prescott, two popular members of the Association, who had been married that day. AN ESSEX GOLDEN WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR SAUNDERS.

On April 22nd, several ringing friends had great pleasure in joining Mr. Arthur Saunders and his wife on the occasion of their golden wedding, the reception being held at the Five Bells, Colne Engaine, Essex, kept by Mr. Saunders' son-in-law.

After the reception Miss Snowden, Master of the Northern Division, expressed the good wishes of the ringers, and said she hoped they would be able to ring again in ten years' time for Mr. and Mrs. Saunders' diamond wedding.

Mr. F. Ridgwell, of Earls Colne, supported Miss Snowden, and handed over a small appreciation in the form of a cheque on behalf of the ringers.

Mr. Saunders replied, and gave an interesting talk on ringing in North Essex over the last fifty years.

During the evening handbells were rung to Bob Major, Grandsire Triples, Kent Major, Grandsire Caters and Bob Royal, Mr. Saunders taking part in two or three courses. — R.S.

Irish Association

NORTHERN DISTRICT ANNUAL MEETING

That twenty new ringing members had been elected and that Surprise ringing had now been reached for the first time by a resident band were features at the annual meeting of the Northern District, held at St. Donard's, Belfast, on Easter Monday.

In the morning the first competition for a beautiful cup, presented by Mr. James Cunningham (ex-president of the Association and Ireland's oldest active ringer at 92), for good striking, was held. The Rev. F. J. Mitchell and Mr. F. E. Dukes judged the seven teams and awarded the cup to SS. Philip and James', Holywood, who had 30 deductions. Runners-up were St. Thomas', Belfast, 36, and St. Donard's, Belfast, 39. The winners will meet Bray and Limerick, winners of the Eastern and Southern District Cups, for the Murphy Cup.

After lunch at St. Donard's Hall, the Rev. F. J. Mitchell presided at the business meeting, when the following were made life members for services rendered to the Association: Edward W. Evans, W. Pratt, H. S. Lightbody, Miss McAuliffe and R. W. Adamson. All towers in the district, it was mentioned, were now affiliated to the Association, and membership was steadily increasing.

The election of district officers resulted as follows: District vice-president, Mr. W. Rogan (St. Thomas'); district secretary, Mr. John T. Dunwoody (Holywood); district assistant secretary, Mr. J. J. Fielding (Londonderry); district treasurer, Mr. J. Dixon (Coleraine); Ringing Master and chairman, Mr. H. Brown (Holywood); representatives on Executive Council, Messrs. J. Campbell (Londonderry), F. Burrows (St. Thomas') and the district secretary; auditors, Messrs. D. Barbour (Coleraine) and J. Campbell. The next annual meeting is to be held in Coleraine.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

A company of 48 ringers attended the annual meeting of the Southern District, held at Bandon, Co. Cork, on St. Patrick's Day, March 17th. Canon Cochrane, M.A., Rector of St. Peter's, Ballymoden, Bandon, welcomed the visiting ringers and hoped they would enjoy their visit.

The following were elected officers for the coming year: Chairman, Mr. W. Boyce (Waterford); hon. secretary, Mr. C. W. Galbraith (Limerick); hon. treasurer, Mr. G. E. Jones (Kilkenny); committee, Mr. J. E. Harris, Mr. J. Morton, Mr. R. McCormack, Mr. A. H. Holloway and Mr. W. Evans.

The Southern District Challenge Cup for striking was won by St. Mary's Cathedral, Limerick, after a very keen competition.

The ringers were entertained to lunch and tea by St. Peter's, Ballymoden, Society.

Suffolk Guild

ANNUAL MEETING AT IPSWICH.

The annual general meeting took place as usual at Ipswich on Easter Monday, when seven of the town's towers were available for ringing from an early hour. Some good Cambridge Royal and Stedman Caters at St. Mary-le-Tower and the four standard Surprise methods at St. Margaret's and a 720 of Minor at the bomb-wrecked Church of St. Mary Quay were successfully brought round.

A committee meeting was held at 11.30, and at the service in St. Lawrence's Church over 80 ringers attended. The lesson was taken from the parable of the talents and splendidly read by Mr. Edward Ellenger, the district secretary of Ipswich.

In his address to the ringers the Rev. C. P. Newell emphasised the words, 'What have ye in your hand?' He said it was a saying 'The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world,' but it was also true to say, 'The hand that holds the bell-rope tells the world.' The service was greatly enjoyed and considered the best ever.

Over fifty sat down to a good lunch, and at the business meeting which followed the Rev. C. P. Newell, who is the Guild's clerical secretary, was elected chairman.

Reports were received from the Ringing Master (Mr. C. J. Sedgley) and from the general secretary and treasurer (Mr. C. W. Pipe). Membership of the Guild had increased and the finances were in a healthy condition. All officers were re-elected, and Mr. Charles G. Sherring and Mr. Derek Woodward were elected to the committee.

All other business was dealt with quickly and smoothly and the meeting closed before 3 p.m. The absence of Mr. Fred Tillet and Mr. W. J. G. Brown due to illness was regretted and it was hoped their health will improve.

Many visitors from other counties were welcomed, and further ringing was indulged in until a late hour.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

In spite of the inclement weather, a goodly number of members drawn from all parts of the diocese attended the annual meeting at Whittlesey on Easter Monday, together with several visitors from other associations.

Places represented were as follows: Cambridge, Long Stanton, Meldreth, Huntingdon, Brampton, Over, Sutton, Somersham, Glinton, Great Staughton, Market Deeping, Lewisham, Peterborough, Bedford, Luton, Downham Market, St. Ives, Ely, Shouldham, Walpole St. Andrew, Spalding, Roydon, Terrington St. John, Long Sutton, Tilney All Saints, Sawston and Whittlesey.

The bells—St. Mary's (8) and St. Andrew's (8)—were available from 11 a.m. For the convenience of non-resident members and visitors, ringing was permitted during the holding of the business meeting. At this meeting the following officers were re-elected: General secretary and treasurer, Mr. W. W. Cousins; peal secretary, Mr. M. Thurmott; auditor, Mr. T. R. Dennis.

Since the last annual meeting the Association's rules have been extensively revised by the committee, and the rules in their new form were unanimously adopted.

Cambridge was chosen as the venue for next year's annual meeting. During the day a large number of methods were rung to suit all comers until 9 p.m.

REPRESENTATION

ALL Associations and Guilds in affiliation with the Central Council will congratulate the Middlesex Association on the courageous way they have settled the difference of opinion over the vexed question of representation for a triennial period. Personal pride has been pocketed for the sake of harmony. The decision arrived at at the Clerkenwell meeting was a hard one for the individual members, and the fact that those who did not see eye-to-eye with the conclusions of the President (the Rev. Percival Gough) could be almost counted on the fingers of the hand was striking testimony to the desire of the Association to work in comity with ringers the world over.

The point at issue arose over Rule 3 of the Central Council which reads:—'That, except in the event of a vacancy, in which case the new member shall be elected only for the unexpired period of the three years, the election of Representative Members shall take place triennially, before the end of the year.' The triennial election of honorary members last took place in London in 1948. On that occasion Mr. Ernest C. S. Turner, the hon. secretary of the Middlesex Association, failed to secure re-election. The Association quite naturally desired that he should continue to remain on the Council. To decide who should give way the existing members resigned and new nominations were sought. This method was done at the time in complete innocence, the principle implied by Rule 3 that a person elected for a triennial period cannot resign and then offer himself for election for the same period for which he has been previously elected being overlooked and not appreciated by the chairman or any other member present.

The unfortunate sequel, alas, is too well known, in that those who had resigned and were irregularly elected were deprived at York of the privileges of accredited representatives. But there had been a warning. The Hon. General Secretary of the Council did write to the secretary of the Middlesex Association calling attention to Rule 3, and the latter frankly admits that he misinterpreted the letter.

The infinite pains taken by the new President of the Middlesex Association to sift the conflicting views and to secure legal guidance on the correct interpretation of the rule will commend itself to all those with independent views on the subject. The steps he proposed to remedy the breach that might possibly have existed were most praiseworthy. 'I was the culprit,' he told the meeting, 'because I took the chair and conducted an irregular election, although I was not aware of it at the time.' The Middlesex Association are not to lose their full representation at the last meeting of the triennial session at Eastbourne. Three new members have been elected, and they can make their journey with good heart, knowing that they will be kindly received by the President and his officers.

The Guilds and Associations of British change ringers are so interlinked that it is impossible for one territorial Association to remain outside. The whole structure of the Exercise is built up upon this principle. The Middlesex Association embraces in the Diocese of London one of the great pillars of English Church life, and it is unthinkable that such an Association, with its honourable tradition and the great men it has contributed to all branches of the Exercise, should be divorced. Any separation would be a slur on their memory. Apart from the rank and file of the Association, there are the hundreds of non-resident members — men and women who have felt it is a real privilege to have rung peals for this Association.

One final point the Editor feels should not be permitted to pass unnoticed. One of the speakers said: 'In the past we had a free Press, but, with the Press tied to the Central Council, one could not get views expressed if they were not complementary to the things they (the Council) do.' The Editorial Committee has entrusted the present editor with a measure of editorial discretion similar to that enjoyed by editors generally. The purport of 'The Ringing World' is to be the family journal of ringers the world over and to promote and stimulate the art of church bell ringing. We have exercised a reasonable degree of latitude; we have permitted ideas to be propounded that are contrary to accepted principles of committees of the Central Council. The guiding principles behind our judgment are good fellowship and unity among the church bell ringers of England and to keep constantly before the Exercise our sense of vocation. As another speaker at the meeting said: 'Our main object is to ring our church bells on Sundays.'

LATE NEWS.

The sudden appearance of the verger in the last course of the peal attempt for Stedman Caters at Sheffield Cathedral on Saturday so startled some of the ringers that the peal was lost in the last few changes. The attempt had been in progress nearly 3½ hours.

During the recent visit of their Majesties the King and Queen to Stratford-on-Avon they met the ringers and showed a keen interest in bells and ringing. They had a special word for the learners, asking such questions as 'Have you been taken up with the rope yet?' Her Majesty expressed a wish to see the bells, but the Vicar explained to her that he was afraid it might spoil her pretty dress having to climb so many steps.

Mr. George W. Pipe has completed Kent
Treble Bob from Minor to Maximus.

Mr. L. Barry has circled the tower of Hardwicke, Gloucestershire, and Mr. J. Church that of Henlow, Beds.

The peal of Kent Treble Bob Major rung at Melbourne and published in our issue of April 7th was 5,056 changes and not 5,088.
This was the composer's error.

Mr. John P. Fidler informs us that the lightest six in the country are at Wormhill, Derbyshire, with a tenor of 1 cwt. 1 qr. 14 lb.
These were cast by John Taylor and Co. in 1863.

Regarding the Trowbridge broadcast last Sunday, Mr. Cecil W. Pipe, of Grundisburgh, writes: 'Congratulations to the ringers, the mike setter and the bell founders. That was ringing. That was. The ringers' names and bell founders deserve publication.'

After nearly forty years in South Wales as 'maintainer of ringing enthusiasm' and 'convener of peal bands,' Mr. Ernest Stitch has taken up residence at Wolverhampton. A peal of Double Norwich at Cowbridge, Glam., on April 15th, came to grief, but 1,260 Stedman
Triples was rung to mark the occasion by A.
Hannington 1, E. Stitch 2, A. Hoare 3, A. J.
Pitman 4, R. E. Coles 5, J. Lovett 6, T. M.
Roderick (cond.) 7, H. Blick 8.

BELFRY GOSSIP

A new triumph for youth was established at Trowbridge last Saturday, when a peal of Stedman Cinques was rung. The average age of the band was 19 years 8 months.
John E. Chilcott was the conductor and there were three ladies in the party—the Misses Joyce England, Jill Brittain and Audrey Diserens. They claim that this was the youngest band to ring a peal on twelve bells.
The peal was composed by a member of the band, David E. Parsons. The majority of the band came from the Metropolitan area, and they trust that their success will serve as a spur to their friends at Leicester.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bray, of Burton-on-Stather, have the distinction of having taken part in the greatest number of methods rung
'in hand' to a peal of Minor, Major, Royal and Maximus and also of Minor on tower bells.

In the April issue of the East Anglian Magazine, Mr. R. W. M. Clouston contributes an interesting article on the ancient art of bell-ringing. It is illustrated by pictures of Lavenham tower and other explanatory pictures of bells.

He points out that in Suffolk alone there are 233 rings of bells, numbering between five and twelve. 'Although all but 40 of them are ringable, it is sad to record that very few are rung regularly for Sunday services, despite the fact that the working parts are in first rate order.'

The trend, he comments, may be largely due to the longer hours worked by the agricultural community as compared with their counterparts in industry. But the interest was certainly there in the past, so it is hoped that the present trend will stop and that the typically English art of change ringing will recover its popularity in East Anglia.

tunity of considering the names of the new representatives (but they were not new) and pointed out that elections to the Council were triennial, and vacancies could only be filled when a representative resigned. A representative could not resign and then seek re-election during a triennial period. The letter concluded, 'I should be glad if you would tell me now under what rule the election was made.'

That letter was so serious that a general committee should have been called. Unfortunately, nothing was done and those members were allowed to go to York. Mr. Turner replied to the letter and pointed out he was elected unanimously, but that was not the point. It was not questioning Mr. Turner's election, but questioning the election of the other three who had resigned.

EXPRESS REGRET.

'I feel I cannot recommend any other course than that we, as an Association, should express our regret to the Central Council for that infringement, and we should, if we can get permission, which I have, elect three new representatives to the meeting at Eastbourne to complete the triennial session. I should like the following letter, signed by myself, to go to the secretary of the Central Council:—

'Dear Sir,—I enclose the names and addresses of the three new representatives on the Central Council who were elected at a general meeting on April 22nd in place of those whose election last year infringed rule three of the Central Council. In forwarding these names, I am instructed to express the regrets of the Middlesex Association that this infringement took place, and assure the Central Council of our desire to co-operate with the Central Council and accept their decision.'

'I believe that no other way is Christian or proper.'

Mr. C. W. Roberts proposed that the president's statement go forward and be complied with.

In reply to a question, the President said it was not the responsibility of the chairman or the president of the Central Council to apologise to anybody. He assured him that those three representatives at Eastbourne would be received kindly and he would take steps to put them at their ease.

Mr. C. W. Roberts said he felt this subject very keenly for the prestige of the Association, and at the appropriate time he would like to thank their president for what he had done. He felt that the time had come for them to let 'bygones be bygones.'

Mr. G. L. Joyce, of Hornchurch, Essex, said that for 40 years he had had many disagreements with the decisions of the Central Council in various matters. In the past they had had a free Press, but with the Press passing to the Central Council, one could not get one's views expressed, unless they were complementary to those of the Council.

Mr. B. Hewitt suggested that the meeting should take no action as to filling the three vacancies. He moved that as an amendment, 'PLOT ALLEGED.'

Mrs. Mayne asked the president if when he met Mr. Lewis and Mr. Hughes, had they given him any information of the plot to depose Mr. Turner and get him off the Central Council.

The Chairman: 'I am afraid we did not discuss any plot, and I was not aware that there was any plot.'

Mr. C. C. Mayne: 'As a point of information I can tell you what that plot was.'

Mr. Turner: 'I have never complained to anybody that I have been badly treated, and I hope it will be forgotten.'

The Chairman thought that this discussion was entirely out of order, and expressed a wish that the meeting would avoid personalities.

Mr. W. Wilson said he was at York, and he held that even if the Association committed a technical breach of the rules, it was not fair for the secretary of the Council to bar those members who had travelled all the way to York from taking part in the proceedings. He alleged that the action taken at York was an insult to their Association.

The Chairman: 'I gravely deprecate any talk of an insult to our members. It was not an insult.'

Mr. Wilson then moved as an amendment: 'That this association regrets that it may have committed a technical breach of the rules of the Central Council, and that for the remainder of the triennial period the Association does not elect representatives in place of those who were considered to be not eligible.' He knew that Mr. Cockey had written a letter of resignation. He had spoken to him, and he thought that if they agreed not to elect somebody in their place, they might succeed in keeping Mr. Cockey as a member. If they showed disloyalty to their own people then they lost Mr. Cockey.

Mr. Alec Cutler seconded the motion proposed by Mr. C. W. Roberts.

The amendment that no action be taken to fill the vacancies was then put and received only six supporters, being defeated by an overwhelming majority. The motion to send three representative members was carried, there being only four votes cast against.

Mr. Clarke proposed a vote of thanks to the president, the vote being carried with acclamation.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The following officers were elected: President, the Rev. P. Gough; active vice-presidents, Messrs. W. H. Coles and A. W. Coles; Master, Mr. C. W. Roberts; treasurer, Mr. W. H. Oram; secretary, Mr. C. Ernest Turner; assistant secretary, Mr. Norman Genna; auditor, Mr. Maurice Hodgson; trustees, Messrs. T. J. Lock, E. C. S. Turner and W. H. Oram; representatives on the Central Council (after a ballot), Messrs. W. H. Coles, F. A. Finch and F. Goodfellow.

The secretary, reporting on the memorial to Mr. C. T. Coles, stated that the amount subscribed was £124 16s. and expenses 19s. 11d. The bell had cost £150, and the committee had decided to close the fund and meet the deficiency from the funds of the Association.

Mr. T. J. Lock said some weeks ago an appeal was launched for St. Paul's, Shadwell, providing the bells were hung for ringing, and he would like to move that the Association make a donation of £5 towards the fund. This was agreed to.

On the proposal of Mr. Lock, it was decided that a committee be formed to consider what arrangements could be made for ringing in connection with the Festival of Britain. This was agreed to.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the Vicar of Clerkenwell and those responsible for making arrangements for ringing and for the meeting.

NO PARTY TO RESOLUTION

Dear Sir,—I understand that a resolution was passed expressing regret at the action taken last year relating to the election of members to the Central Council.

In fairness to myself, will you please make it quite clear I was in no way a party to such resolution and that I dissociate myself entirely from it. Further, that in view of the treatment to which we were subjected at the meeting in question, I repeat the comments made at the time.—Yours faithfully,

J. E. LEWIS COCKEY.

Edgehill Road, W.13.

Within the last two years the Alford (Lincs) ringers have paid compliments by ringing quarter peals to their organist with fifty years' service, their treble ringer with fifty years' service and recently to a chorister with sixty years.

Coventry Diocesan Guild

ANNUAL MEETING AT ALLESLEY.

The annual meeting of the Coventry Diocesan Guild was held at Allesley, Coventry, on April 15th. The Rector (the Rev. F. W. Moyle, the famous broadcaster), gave a warm welcome in his fine address to about 100 members and friends. A splendid tea, arranged by the junior members of the Allesley band, was partaken of in two sittings in a room at the Rectory.

The committee discussed matters which were later brought up at the business meeting. The Rector presided for a short time, the chair being taken afterwards by the Master (Mr. A. H. Beamish). Apologies were read from the president (the Rev. R. T. Murray, Rector of Southam), Canon F. S. Herbert (Vicar of Nuneaton), the Rev. J. H. Dingley (Vicar of Bulkington), both vice-presidents, and Messrs. F. Brassington and R. J. Edden, ringing members.

The retiring president not seeking re-election, the Rev. R. P. Rigby (Vicar of Chilvers Coton) was elected, and Canon F. N. Didsbury, Rector of Bedworth, was elected vice-president to fill the vacancy left by the removal from the district of Canon O. M. Jones. All the remaining officers were re-elected en bloc.

Southam was selected as the meeting place for July 8th. New members elected were G. Tallis (Nuneaton), A. Wilson (Stoke), H. R. Leach (Bilton), H. L. G. Haywood, J. Flowers (Southam) and G. Measures and H. M. Windsor, both of Harbury.

A member of St. Andrew's, Rugby, band referred to 'The Ringing World' leader of March 24th last, when portions of a letter sent by Mr. H. R. Leach, of Bilton, near Rugby, were published complaining that the band there was only ringing plain courses through lack of instruction. 'Unquestionably it is one of the primary functions of guilds to provide instructors,' quoted 'The Ringing World.'

The nearest band to Bilton was that of Rugby, St. Andrew's, and they had visited Bilton, giving up their own practice to do so, but were made to feel unwelcome and had, therefore, not proffered their services as instructors again.

Mr. Leach refuted this, and to prevent further argument Mr. F. E. Pervin (Coventry and Rugby District secretary) said he would hold a district meeting there in June and endeavour to smooth out any difficulties.

Reports for 1948 and 1949 were distributed and also Guild badges had been purchased to the design decided upon by the members at the previous quarterly meeting and were on sale at 3s. each.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

CANTERBURY DISTRICT.

With a bus service once a week, Goodnestone, far from a main road, was the venue of the latest meeting of the Canterbury District. In spite of the difficulties of travel, 83 members and friends attended, thus keeping up the splendid record of the district. These came from 22 towers.

Ringing commenced shortly after 2.30, and continued until service time, while those who were not ringing took a walk through the park and the avenue of horse chestnut trees, just coming into leaf.

The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. W. R. Davies), who gave a short address of welcome to all.

The district's good friend, Mr. Cecil Dinlot, of Whitstable, came to the rescue again with the tea, after which the usual business meeting followed. Two new members were elected, Hernhill for a by-meeting, with Eastry as the next quarterly were chosen, and the meeting closed with thanks to the Vicar, the organist and the 'Mayor of Goodnestone' (Harry Stringer) and his wife for all the local arrangements.

OBITUARY

THE REV. J. R. VINCENT.

With the passing of the Rev. Joseph Robinson Vincent at the age of 86 years, the former Rector of St. Mary's, Shenley, near Bletchley, Bucks, from 1901 to 1922, the North Bucks Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild has lost one of the great figures so well known to many of the older generation of ringers. The Rev. Vincent held the office of chairman of the branch from 1908 until 1922, in which year he left the parish.

Living entirely for his vocation, the Church was his first thought in every matter. Everything had to be the best possible in this connection, and during his incumbency the Rev. Vincent raised the standard of the church, and beautified it in such a way that Bishop Gore declared it to be one of the most beautiful in the Diocese of Oxford.

The bells were taken in hand during 1907, and a scheme was suggested to recast the 3rd of the ring of five, as this bell had two large pieces out of the sound bow, worn thin and knocked out by the clapper.

The Rev. Vincent was wholeheartedly in favour of a more ambitious project, and through his great leadership and enthusiasm the complete restoration was put in hand, the work being undertaken by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, who made such an excellent job and provided the church with a ring of six of which we are justly proud to be the custodians. In passing it is worthy of record that the tenor is in its original state as when cast circa 1350 (except for losing its cannons about the year 1870). Strange to relate, the tenor was the only bell which had no defect.

On the reopening of the bells on June 6th, 1908, the North Bucks Branch annual meeting was fixed for Shenley; and so delightful were these meetings that the 'annual' was held regularly until the year of the departure of the Rev. Vincent. And what meetings they were! Quite apart from the business, there is the happy memory of the bright and cheerful service, with many robed clergy and choir; and such a rich volume of men's voices singing the familiar hymns as printed on the service leaflets, which, by the way, are still in use at the present time!

After the service there was always the tea, held under the cedar tree in the rose garden of the lovely grounds of the Rectory, presided over by the Rev. and the Hon. Mrs. Vincent. The ringers were 'their guests,' and such preparations were made in advance that this day became known locally as 'The Ringers' Day.'

This well-loved Rector had lived in Higham, Colchester, for 12 years, and on April 15th we heard of his death. The funeral took place at St. Mary's, Shenley, and after a Requiem, with a large congregation and choir in attendance, the Rev. Vincent was laid to rest in the same grave as his beloved wife.

To show their great regard for the memory of such a well-loved Rector, the ringers rang fully muffled touches of Grandsire Doubles before and after the service.

A quarter peal of Plain Bob Minor was rung in the evening. This was half-muffled and conducted by Mr. H. Daniels, the first child to be baptised by the Rev. Vincent when he came to the parish of Shenley in 1901. E. A. C.

MR. E. T. EXETER.

We regret to record the death of Mr. E. T. Exeter, of Balcombe, Sussex, who passed away on April 21st at the age of 73. He was a member of the Sussex Association and College Youths. Although he was not a great ringer, he was most loyal and faithful to his Sunday service ringing.

The interment was at Balcombe on April 26th, after which the bells were rung half-muffled to Plain Bob Major by D. Laker 1, S. Wood 2, R. Johnson 3, J. Laker 4, C. Stoner 5, J. Gardner 6, E. Knapp 7, A. E. Laker 8.

MR. GEORGE W. STEERE.

The sudden and unexpected death of Mr. George W. Steere, of Sutton, Surrey, on April 23rd, is deeply regretted by a wide circle of friends. Mr. Steere, who was 55 years of age, had been in indifferent health for some months. He recently entered the Sutton and Cheam Hospital.

Born at Shalford, near Guildford, he learnt to ring on the bells of the village church where he was also a chorister. In the First World War he served in the R.A.S.C., and in 1919 joined the Holy Trinity, Guildford, company, and quickly became one of the foremost members of this band. With them he rang his longest length, 9,600 Double Dublin Surprise Major on April 6th, 1931.

He was a civil servant in the Customs and Excise and towards the end of 1927 he moved to the Metropolitan area. Then started a long association with the St. Martin's-in-the-Fields company. He was elected hon. treasurer of the Society of the Royal Cumberland Youths in 1928 and held that office at the time of his death. In 1936 he took over the duties of secretary, resigning last January.

He served the Cumberlands with great faithfulness in all departments. His ringing was sound and accomplished, but his friends will value him particularly for the sound common-sense he brought to bear on the problem of the moment, and that friendliness and ready smile for all who came in contact with him. He represented the Cumberlands on the Central Council, and his viewpoint was always listened to with close attention.

Mr. Steere was a Freemason and a chess player. The sympathy of the Exercise is extended to his widow, son and daughter.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral service was held at Cranleigh Parish Church on Friday, the Rector (the Rev. H. L. Johnston) officiating. Previous to the service the bells were rung half-muffled, and at the graveside a course of Grandsire Triples by Mrs. F. I. Hairs 1-2, A. H. Pulling 3-4, F. I. Hairs 5-6, G. Cross 7-8. Afterwards the whole pull and stand was rung by H. Hutton 1, W. J. Robinson 2, Mrs. Matthews 3, D. Cooper 4, F. J. Hawthorne 5, T. M. White 6, W. T. Beeson 7, P. N. Bond 8.

There was a large attendance of personal, ringing and Masonic friends at the service. Among those present were Mr. A. H. Pulling (representing the Central Council), Mr. G. H. Cross (Master), Mr. P. N. Bond (secretary, Society of Royal Cumberland Youths), Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Hairs, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawthorne, Mrs. Matthews, Messrs. D. Cooper, R. Whittington, W. T. Beeson, C. G. and H. Charman, C. Stevens, L. Warner, A. Tidy, J. Elliott, E. Barnett, sen., W. J. Robinson, H. Hutton, L. Hunter and T. M. White (also representing T. W. White).

Fast Peal at Exeter Cathedral

SCORED BY WEST COUNTRY RINGERS.

This week in our peal columns we record the peal of Stedman Cinques rung on the bells of Exeter Cathedral on April 22nd. The attempt was made by a West Country band for the Ancient Society of College Youths, and was accomplished in 3 hours 50 minutes, a fast time for the bells.

The seeds of the attempt, writes a correspondent, were actually sown in July, 1948, when the Bristol ringers visited the tower and rang some excellent Stedman Cinques.

Permission was obtained towards the end of 1949, and efforts were made to build up a band composed of a number of prominent London ringers. This, however, was not possible, and it was decided to make the attempt with an all 'West Country' band, whose efforts were rewarded by the scoring of a good peal, which, with the exception of no more than four missed dodges, was rung without a trip.

From the word 'Go' the bells settled down to a 'cracking' pace, which was maintained throughout the 26 courses in the titum position. There was a natural slowing up in the handstroke, but the attempt was never in doubt, and at the finish a very happy band received the congratulations of Messrs. Glass and Laver and the steeplekeeper, to whom grateful thanks are tendered for their help in raising the bells, adjusting the ropes, etc.

Incidentally, the ringers of the treble (D. G. Clift) and fourth (A. H. Reed) have now completed a trio of peals on the existing heaviest eight, ten and twelve in the country.

SCOTTISH ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL MEETING AT EDINBURGH.

The annual meeting of the Scottish Association was held on April 22nd at St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh. The attendance of ringers was the best ever in the history of this scattered association, where towers are few and far between.

The fine heavy ring of ten (tenor 41 cwt.) was rung to Caters and Royal as well as Triples, and rounds were provided for those unaccustomed to ringing ten. It was a true delight to the Cathedral ringers to hear their ten bells ring out, as at the present time it is only on such rare occasions that sufficient ten-bell ringers can be mustered at one and the same time.

During the service, held in the Cathedral, the Very Rev. H. B. Gooderham, Provost of Edinburgh, spoke shortly of the task of ringers and how it was an impersonal one compared with that of the choristers, as few outside the tower ever knew who rang the bells. He pointed out that ringers had the greatest impact on those outside the church, for the bells would not ever let the indifferent forget that the church was still alive.

After tea, which was provided by the Cathedral Society, the annual business meeting was held, the Provost ably presiding in the unfortunate absence through illness of the president, Professor Street. It was felt that the Master and president should remain in office for another year in order to conform to the constitution.

Mr. Charles Raine intimated that he wished to resign from the office of secretary and was thanked for all his labours during the last 13 years. Mr. Rognvald Wilson was appointed to take his place. It was decided to hold the half-yearly meeting in October at Alloa, as it is central for all towers, and the next annual at Paisley.

After the business was over the party split, some returning to the Cathedral and the others, going to St. Cuthbert's nearby, where there is an easy-going ring of eight (tenor 21 cwt.).

Ringings lasted at both towers till 8 p.m., and everyone enjoyed the ringing opportunities and chance of meeting old friends.

MOTIONS.

Dedications

RINGING CHAMBER AT WOOTTON BASSETT.

Members of the Calne Branch met at Wootton Bassett, Wilts, on April 22nd, for the dedication of a new ringing chamber. The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. R. L. Sharpe), who also gave the address, and the act of dedication performed by the Rural Dean (the Rev. H. V. White).

After the service the ringers, who numbered 70, were entertained to tea at the Vicarage. The Vicar and churchwardens thanked all for their co-operation which had enabled Wootton Bassett to have one of the finest ringing chambers in the county.

Mr. L. A. Wilson, Ringing Master, in reply, gave a brief account of his 52 years' service in the tower, and said it had been a dream of his to get this floor erected. By a legacy left by Mr. W. T. Baxter, captain of ringers from 1898-1925, and with the help of past and present ringers and friends, he saw his dream come true. He hoped that when he had passed on those who followed would see that the bells were rung for divine service and take the same care as he had of the bells and ringing chamber.

Ringing ranged from Grandsire to Cambridge Surprise Major.

KILBRONEY, CO. DOWN, N.I.

The six bells of Kilbroney Parish Church, Rostrevor, Co. Down, were rededicated by the Rt. Rev. W. S. Kerr, D.D., Lord Bishop of Down and Dromore, on April 25th, in the presence of a packed congregation.

After the opening prayers and psalm the Bishop was conducted to the base of the tower. Here at the request of Mr. H. S. Lightbody, churchwarden and a ringer for over 50 years, he performed the act of dedication. The bells were then rung by F. E. Dukes (conductor), J. Purdy, W. Morrow, W. Rogan (Belfast) and Mrs. F. E. Dukes.

In his sermon the Bishop referred to the bell of St. Bronach, still preserved in the sister church at Rostrevor. This bell dates back to the ninth century and was for over two centuries 'lost' in an ash tree at the site of a former parish church.

At the conclusion of the service the bells were rung by visiting ringers from St. Thomas', Belfast; Lurgan; St. George's, Dublin, and Holywood. This was followed by an excellent tea in the Lecture Hall, to which clergy, congregation and ringers were invited.

The bells were installed in 1880 by Messrs. Taylors, the tenor weighing 13 cwt. They have now been rehung in ball bearings and a clock provided with a perspex dial—illuminated at night—through the generosity of Mr. Edward W. Evans, who bore the entire cost of the work. The bells were rehung by Messrs. Taylors and the clock restored by Messrs. Smith, Derby. The Rostrevor people are very grateful to Mr. Evans for this magnificent work. The ringers expressed themselves pleased with the 'go' of the bells.

It was the regret of everybody present that that G.O.M. James Cunningham, aged 92, and who is still an active ringer at Rostrevor, was unavoidably absent from the ceremony, due to an indisposition. Mr. Cunningham was one of the first ringers at Rostrevor when the bells were installed originally, and has continued right through their 70 years' existence to ring them Sunday after Sunday.

VOTES OF THANKS.

On the President's motion, grateful thanks were accorded to the Dean, the Yorkshire Association, its president and officers, and Mr. George Horner and York company for arrangements, tea and hospitality, and the incumbents of the many churches for the use of bells.

Thanks to the President and officers were expressed by Mr. R. S. Anderson.

Oxford Diocesan Guild

EAST BERKS AND SOUTH-BUCKS BRANCH

When the East Berks and South Bucks Branch held its annual meeting at Bray-on-Thames on April 22nd, the Village Hall—where tea had been arranged—was overcrowded, and some ringers had to visit a riverside cafe. A hundred members attended altogether. There was ringing on the grand eight, tenor 27 cwt., in the tower of St. Michael's during the afternoon and evening, and the service was conducted by the Vicar of Bray and popular chairman of the branch (the Rev. E. S. C. Lowman). Mr. A. D. Barker, of Stoke Poges, secretary and treasurer of the branch for 26 years, and treasurer of the Oxford Guild, read the lesson.

Presenting his annual report, the Ringing Master, Mr. T. J. Fowler, of Cookham, said that 40 towers and 250 ringers were affiliated to the branch, making it the largest in the Guild.

Monthly meetings obviously could not visit every tower in the branch during a year, but were distributed as fairly as possible throughout the district. Everyone present at meetings had been catered for; advanced methods were invariably followed by simpler ones or rounds. Attendance at most had been quite good, but some of the striking not too good. 'I am convinced that the only way to become a good striker is by good handling and good listening,' continued Mr. Fowler.

Mr. George Gilbert, at Burnham, Bucks, had at last 'got rid of his old pots' and now had a fine Taylor eight. George had worked hard to raise the money for the job and was to be congratulated on his efforts. Two trebles recently added at Slough had given Buckinghamshire an excellent ten, and made Bill Birmingham 'another happy man.'

The annual meeting was being held at Bray for the first time, said Mr. Fowler. The branch was fortunate in having the Vicar of Bray as chairman. He took a keen interest in all activities, attending meetings and taking part in ringing.

Concluding, the Ringing Master said: 'Let us never forget that our first duty is to give of our best for Sunday service ringing. Regular and punctual attendance and good striking are something for a band to be proud of.'

Members stood in silence in memory of Canon G. F. Coleridge, who was described as 'the best known ringer in England, if not all the world.'

Officials elected were: Chairman, the Rev. E. S. C. Lowman; Ringing Master, Mr. T. J. Fowler; Deputy Ringing Master, Mr. Roland Biggs, of Hughenden; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. D. Barker. Mr. Fowler, who is entering his 22nd year of office, has missed only three branch meetings during 21 years.

A WEST COUNTRY WEDDING

Many ringers were in the congregation that overflowed the village church of Marksbury, Somerset, on April 15th, for the wedding of Mr. William H. Kingcott, of Wrington, and Miss Hilda M. Prescott, of Timsbury.

The bride is vice-captain of the Marksbury band, of which her father is captain and also organist at the church. The bridegroom is towerkeeper and vice-captain of Wrington.

The choral service was conducted by the Vicar of Marksbury and included the Ringers' Hymn ('Unchanging God'). Mr. W. A. Prescott gave away his daughter. The bride was attended by the Misses Brenda Prescott and Eveline Kingcott (sisters of the bride and bridegroom), and Mr. T. Mark White was the best man. A reception followed at Kingwall Hall Hotel, and the honeymoon was spent at St. Ives, Cornwall.

In the evening a quarter peal of Grandsire Caters was rung at Wrington by W. R. Kent (first on 10 bells) 1, H. H. Yates 2, D. Yeo 3, R. D. Shot 4, T. Brice 5, A. Ferris 6, T. M. White 7, H. Vowles 8, H. Knight (cond.) 9, M. Collins 10.

Guild of Devonshire Ringers

NORTH-EAST BRANCH.

The little village of Huntsham may well be called the cradle of the Devon Guild, for it was here that Col. C. A. W. Troyte and his brothers trained the band who rang the Guild's first peal in 1875.

Huntsham was looking its best on April 15th for the Spring meeting of the North-East Branch. The lawns of Huntsham Court were gay with daffodils and narcissi, whilst the little church looked very beautiful with its Easter decorations. After the service over 40 sat down to a bountiful tea, which included cut-rounds and cream. Among the company were visitors from Dorchester, Combe Martin, Exeter, Wellington and Highweek, as well as the Rev. J. M. Turner, whose recently published book on handbell tune ringing bids fair to become the Troyte of that branch of our art, and incidentally is helping with the dollar drive.

The chairman, Mr. E. J. Taylor, welcomed the Rector of Huntsham, the Rev. J. M. Jones, into the branch, and expressed the hope that he would follow his wife's example and learn to ring.

The meeting agreed to accept the proposal of the North-West Branch to hold a joint meeting at South Molton in October. There will be a joint meeting with the Taunton Branch of the Bath and Wells Association at Wellington on July 1st, and the next branch meeting will be at Washfield on July 8th.

MID-DEVON BRANCH.

A quarterly meeting of the Mid-Devon Branch was held at Buckfastleigh on April 22nd. The bells were rung throughout the afternoon, and this was later followed by a short service, which was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. J. W. Timms).

After tea the usual business meeting took place, with Mr. J. E. Lilley, of Newton Abbot, in the chair. It was reported that the meeting had been transferred to Buckfastleigh from Lustleigh at the last moment owing to the death of a Lustleigh ringer.

The following associate members were elected: Messrs. R. G. Crang, E. Hodge, H. Rogers and Master A. Rogers, of Dartington.

It was reported that a joint meeting with the South-West Branch would be held at South Brent on June 24th, and that the next quarterly meeting would be held at Dean Prior on July 22nd, both subject to the necessary permission being obtained.

GRANTHAM RINGERS' DINNER

Ringers from Grantham, Ancaster and Great Ponton met together for ringing, a service and a dinner recently, the company, which included wives, numbering 31.

The Rev. P. J. F. Simpson presided and the speeches were witty. Proposing 'The Ladies,' Mr. V. Scales sympathised with the wives over the absence of their husbands out ringing, to which Miss J. Brandon (Ancaster) rejoined that if wives objected they should come along and learn bellringing.

'The Beginners' were toasted by Mr. F. Parsons (Grantham), who reminded them of the usefulness of a little homework. Mr. R. Chadburn (Ancaster) dutifully replied by thanking the instructors for their patience and spoke of the friendly atmosphere in the belfries.

This theme was echoed by Mr. E. Hawley (Ancaster), who thanked Mr. J. M. Simpson for organising the meeting. In his acknowledgment Mr. Simpson suggested that another year a visit might be paid to Stratford-on-Avon or some other district.

The chairman concluded the speeches by giving statistics to show how Great Britain far exceeded the rest of the world put together in the number of bells and ringers. He suggested that ringers might justifiably look for better results from their efforts and 'give people a nudge' if they did not respond to the call of the bells on Sundays.
