A RINGING TOUR IN IRELAND

A rowded Week with Fred Dukes and Co.

AUGUST 10th, at 7 a.m. Our boat began to go backwards—we were surely approaching Ireland—land of romantic, charming history, of which one of her sons might well say 'down the untrodden steps of time I see the footprints of an unseen hand'—land of Christian sites so ancient and, in some cases, so little changed that, as you stand amongst their round towers and groups of tiny churches, you can soon lose sense of time and feel yourself back with the early saints busy making their wondrous jewellery and illuminations and preaching God's word, assisted by a great Cross of 15ft.-high granite behind them. Above all, land of the charming, witty Irish.

There, on the quay at Dublin, were the smiling faces of Fred Dukes—one meeting with whom is a joy to be long remembered—and his friends, Jack Campbell and John Fielding. The cars soon appeared, and off we drove to Glendalough. Here amidst the 'Seven Churches' (a title given to the groups of tiny churches on early Irish Christian sites—they may number more or less than 7 but never 71) sacred to St. Kevin and others, we saw our first round tower. These remarkable buildings were originally used for the ringing of handbells (amongst other purposes) so we rang rounds round the round tower—better bells than ever Kevin knew!

Then on to the Meeting of the Waters, where a voluble French lady asked, 'Ou est le Meeting of the Waters?' Monsieur Eric Dodds obliged Madame and conversed 'en Français' to her gratification. Soon afterwards we were eating a grand lunch of sandwiches prepared by Mrs. Dukes, Fred's mother. During lunch, Fred Sharpe with Mrs Sharpe and Elizabeth, who had arranged to 'meet' us en route, appeared 'behind' us, the fairies having evidently directed them.

THE FIRST PEAL,

On to Arklow, where Fred said he had arranged for the non-swimmers to go on the beach whilst the others rang a peal. After parking the cars—carefully avoiding the 'P' signs which in some towns mean 'Parking Prohibited'—Geoff Dodds called a nice peal of Double Norwich in 3 hours 25 minutes, despite the fact that one ringer at the start felt 'most peculiar,' and the necessity of taking the brake off the 7th. This eight by Taylor (tenor 22 cwt.) were very nice. The peal was in memory of Charles T. Evans, late President of the Irish Association and a ringer at Arklow. Afterwards Mr. Samuel Evans and family most kindly gave us tea.

On to Waterford, where Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Harris met us in the evening at our hotel. Next day, August 11th, to the Cathedral, where one can climb down into the ringing chamber as well as up into it. Possibly this fact, as well as the alarm clock which went off during the preliminary rounds, helped us to 'bust' Cambridge after 45 minutes. However, this eight (tenor 20 cwt.) were very pleasant, and we were very glad to have the curate, the Rev. S. W. Reede, to ring rounds with us. Then to Kilkenny, where we much enjoyed the eight, rehung by Mears and Stainbank in 1925 (tenor 22cwt.), at St. Canice's Cathedral. That this is a very ancient Christian settlement is indicated by the round tower close to the Cathedral; this tower has lost its conical top, but this fact enabled us to ring Grandsire Caters, etc., perched dizzily on the parapet. Brian Miller, aged 12, rang handbells with us in the churchyard later.

We had tea on the roadside, near a holy well, close to which was a tree from which all manner of small pieces of rag were hanging. This is a custom of very great antiquity, and in pre-Christian times was both a way of attracting the attention of the local god, and of thanking him for benefits received. Tea being over, 'hell for leather for Cork' was the order, and it would have been hell for the leather being driven round the next corner for milking had brakes not been good. However, all was well, and over the Knockmealdown Mountains we went to Lismore. The eight tubes and one bell here did not provide much excitement, and eventually Cork was reached.

BANDON PEAL AND THE CLOCK

Next day, August 12th, some rang a peal of Minor at St. Peter's, Bandon, to celebrate the centenary of this church, while others visited Roscarberry Cathedral. The Bandon peal was interrupted each quarter hour by a ripple of mirth, and each hour by a crash of lewd laughter from the clock; our notice on the door, 'Please do not disturb ringers,' was doctored by the replacement of the last word by 'us.'

At Roscarberry, the Dean described himself as 'peppery,' as well he might be, for we thought he had allowed us to raise one of the bells, whilst he thought he had only allowed us to sound it. However, the tower stayed up and all was well. After lunch, to Blarney Castle, where most of us kissed the Blarney Stone. Then to Shandon, whose famous bells can now only be chimed. That evening was one to be long remembered, for Michael Howard, of Gillett and Johnston's, who had most sportingly joined the party though he could only manage two days, had arranged for the carillon at Cobb Cathedral to be played by Dr. Staf Gebruers, the carillonneur. He learned his job at Malines, and to see him at the keyboard of Ireland's greatest carillon—42 bells ranging from 3 tons 7½ cwt. to 12 lbs—transported one in thought to the Netherlands. Fred Sharpe played Grandsire, etc., the undersigned played Christmas carols on the bottom octave whilst Dr. Staf put in fine carillon effects above. Dr. Gebruers showed himself equally expert on the organ, and, afterwards, Father Murphy showed us round the Cathedral and entertained us in his home.

Next day, being Sunday, started with Holy Communion at St. Finbarre's Cathedral, Cork, whose fine eight, alas, only chime to-day. Then to Doneraile, where it was a great pleasure to meet Mr. Evans and the other local ringers—nine in number out of a Church population of only sixty! He was born within the sound of Bow Bells. The nice six (tenor 10 cwt.) were soon going to Cambridge and other methods, and afterwards we met, on her way to service, Mrs. Kerr, nee Squirrell, who formerly lived at Hitcham, near Lavenham, at which latter tower her brothers rang. Doneraile steeple was the winning post of a horse race which gave its name to 'steeple-chasing'—how fast they had to run to catch the steeple I do not know. On to Killarney, where some rang handbells whilst others sought out the famous beauty spots. Before leaving Killarney, a call was made at the Cathedral. Here we were pleased to meet Mrs. U. Fergusson and her daughter, who were on a sketching holiday in Ireland. The former is a ringer at St. Peter's Church, St. Albans, where her husband is Vicar. On to Limerick.

AT LIMERICK.

On Monday, August 14th, Bob Royal on the fine bells at Mount St. Alphonsus Monastery went west after 2½ hours. This ten (tenor 21 cwt.) are a great pleasure to ring, and for a change, you can play draughts, darts, quoits or ring one of the world's largest handbells (diam. 11½ inches) if you like. Then to St. Mary's Cathedral, for Little Bob, Grandsire, etc., on a fine eight (tenor 24 cwt.). Some visited Shannon Airport to see Michael Howard off home, whilst others saw the great power station at Ardnacrusha. That evening, Cyril Galbraith, the district secretary, and the St. Mary's ringers arranged a most delightful social, at which St. Alphonsus ringers and some from Doneraile were present. The Dean of Limerick joined us at tea, and, in a charming speech, welcomed the ringers 'from Norwich and neighbourhood.' The undersigned said, in reply, that 'Norwich and its neighbourhood' was evidently a wide term, including as it did Charlie Kippin from Southampton, Harold Whitton from Surfleet, York-Bramble from Netley Abbey, Anne Stockdale from Berkhamsted, and Eric Dodds from Isleworth, besides those already mentioned. Later in the evening we heard our voices and handbells reproduced on a recording machine, which will go on repeating your missed dodge until you superimpose another touch on its recording wire.

No ringing next day; instead, a most delightful drive into Galway and Mayo. On the way, a brief call at Ennis Cathedral and Gort Parish Church, which is the pro-Cathedral for the Diocese of Kilmacduagh; here Elizabeth Sharpe (aged 13) played the organ. Then to Galway, where the Provost of Tuam (which really means Provost of Galway) showed us his most historic collegiate church. Grandsire and other music were soon being chimed here on the chiming keyboard, and then a delightful drive brought us by Lough Corrib to the grand mountains of Joyce's country and Connemara. Past Killary Harbour (which is more like a Norwegian fjord) to the River Erriff, beside whose falls handbells were rung, then through Cong (where the world-famous Cross of Cong was made 1,000 years ago) to Tuam. Here is a fine cathedral, with a Romanesque chancel arch and Italian choir stalls, though most of the building is modern.

That night was spent at Ballinasloe, and next day, August 16th, our first call was at Clonfert. Here is a cathedral, quite tiny, yet with what are perhaps the finest Romanesque west doorway and east window in Ireland, also a remarkable sacristy with an ancient vault originally formed by being built on a staging made of Danish wattles, the marks of which are still on the mortar. Then on to Clonmacnoise, perhaps the most historic of all the early Christian settlements we visited, with its Cathedral, its 'seven churches' its round towers and ancient crosses, on a low hill by the Shannon. Lunch was had at the Volunteer Hotel, Kilbeggan.

A one-time landlord here found himself knighted by a former Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who had partaken too freely of the hotel's hospitality. Next morning the Lord Lieutenant, in repentant mood, asked whether the landlord would forget about the previous evening's events; he was quite willing to treat it as a joke, but his wife was not at all pleased to give up her new and unexpected honour of being 'Lady Townsend,' so, the law being what it was, 'Lady Townsend' she remained. We wondered whether to make the present landlord an honorary member of the Irish Association, but the water and tea provided there did not lead us on to such frivolities.

On to Dublin, where on the fine eight at St. George's, Charlie Kippin called a nice peal of Kent in 3 hours 20 minutes. This was in celebration of the Royal Birth, and to celebrate the engagement of Fred Dukes' sister who is, of course, a keen and competent change ringer herself.

Next day, August 17th, eight of us having rung Grandsire Triples for an hour at St. Patrick's Cathedral (with the most welcome assistance of Ernest Buchanan) Fred suggested that we try the minor ten! This, however, was not possible at the moment, but later, others arrived, and the minor ten and the twelve were rung. With a 45½ cwt. tenor, they are very fine. Our last day was marked by presentations in the belfry; shamrock brooches to the ladies who had so kindly arranged for our picnic meals, and two books on England to Fred Dukes for his magnificent work in arranging the tour. Part of the day was spent in shopping and in visits to Trinity College Library to see the Book of Kells, a 1,000-year-old illuminated book which may well claim to be the most lovely book in the world, also to the National Museum where is a thrilling collection of Irish antiquities including St. Patrick's bell and other really ancient bells, made like Swiss cow bells, of iron coppered over. Later, those who survived a heavy shower reached Christ Church Cathedral and rang Grandsire Doubles on the back six of the 10 (43 cwt.) and Stedman on 1, 2, 3, 6, 8, 10.

After a final meal, Fred saw us off to the boat, and we left quite thrilled with the beauty and interest of Ireland, delighted with the bells, charmed with the most happy welcome which the ringers had given us at the various towers, and, above all, full of deep gratitude to Fred Dukes for the way in which from the first he had entered into the planning of the tour with zeal and delight, and from the moment he met us until the moment of departure had looked after our every need with the greatest possible kindness. Jack Campbell and John Fielding were delightful companions also, and we all look forward to the time when we shall ring together again.

A. G. G. THURLOW.

In the composition of 5,008 Plain Bob Major on page 522, August 18th issue of 'The Ringing World,' there are two errors, writes Mr. Nolan Golden, Norwich. The fourth course should read 45263, and, in the note, for 'Repeat B five times' read 'Repeat C five times.'

Mr. W. A. J. Knight informs us that the peal of Plain Bob Major, rung at Oakford, Devon, is not the first in the method. The late Mr. James Hunt called a peal in the 20's.

The peal of Yorkshire Surprise, rung at Portsmouth Cathedral on August 26th, was a farewell peal to Mr. A. T. Greenwood, who sails on September 6th to take up a three years' appointment in Malta.

The peal at Llanfrehfa on August 26th is the first in the history of the Llandaff and Monmouth Association in which three resident Monmouthshire clergy have taken part. They are the Revs. I. J. Richards, F. A. Oswell and R. A. Sluman.

The peal of Bob Major 'in hand,' rung on August 22nd, at Bournemouth for the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild, was a 75th birthday compliment to Mr. A. H. Sherry, chairman of E. Sherry, Ltd., Homerton, London, and Sherry and Haycock, Ltd., Bournemouth. The ringers wish to thank Mr. Sherry for his 'liquid' generosity after the peal.

The handbell peal of Doubles at Adelaide, South Australia, by the Adelaide University Guild, on August 19th, is interesting for several reasons. It was the first peal by all the band, the first to be rung 'in hand' in the State of S. Australia, and the personnel was the youngest (19 years) band to ring in Australia.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. Francis B. Lowe writes to us as follows: 'Re my 50th peal for the Derbyshire Association, this was rung at Youlgrave, Derbyshire (Bob Major) on Thursday, August 3rd, 1950, and not, as stated in a recent publication of 'The Ringing World,' at Clay Cross, Derbyshire, a Minor peal—rung on August 4th, 1950.'

Ringing at St. James', Teignmouth, Devon, is suspended for about six weeks in order that internal repairs may be carried out to the tower.

The peal at St. Mary's, Pembroke, on August 19th, is believed to be the first peal on the bells, and is the first peal by any Sunday service team of St. Peter's Church, Carmarthen.

The identical band that rang the peal of Minor on the six bells of St. Michael's, Aughton, on August 22nd, in memoriam Mr. James Taylor, who collapsed and died during ringing practice on August 16th, rang for Mr. Taylor's 70th birthday in February last year.

A note appended to the report of a ½ peal of Doubles at Turramurra, N.S.W., Australia, on Aug. 27th, says that the veteran ringer on the treble, Mr. C. Parr, formerly of Ilfracombe, Devon, has rung on every royal occasion since Queen Victoria's Jubilee in 1887. This was his first quarter on the treble.

Mr. E. Morris writes: Re earliest 'royal birth' peal finish, that rung at Packington, Leics, began at 5.20 p.m. and finished at 8.5 p.m. Afterwards the band were entertained by the Vicar and local Toc H group. The conductor was then taken to Ashby-de-la-Zouch and was on his way home to Leicester by 8.50 p.m.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A DEFENCE OF RINGING

Dear Sir,—I seem to be luckier than your correspondent, Mr. Harford, for in this theological college I have met no such opposition as he describes. But perhaps these observations may be helpful.

Firstly, minorities always make far the most noise when they think they have a grievance, and I don't think more than a few people really object to bellringing in the ordinary way. I was passing through Trowbridge two months ago, when a peal attempt was going on—Bob Royal (and very nice striking, too, whoever it was!). The town was full of people, many of whom were standing about listening to the ringing. I spoke to several people about the bells, and heard nothing but praise; the music certainly added much to the charm of the place for all to whom I spoke.

Secondly, the bells are hung and dedicated to the glory of God, and whatever the motives of the ringers, the dedication of the bells themselves is present and active whenever they speak. Christianity has always been a public nuisance to those outside, and so it should be: 'These men do exceedingly trouble our city.' My own usual reply to complaints from non-churchgoers is that the bells sound better from inside the church!

But, if a lot of people, not habitual grouseers, are liable to be worried—such as spectators at a first-class cricket match, as in the example—then discretion must be used in choosing the time and place for peals and record lengths. If ringers can avoid giving grounds for serious, justifiable complaint, they can afford to ignore the regular grouseers—or convert them!—Yours faithfully,

JOHN G. M. SCOTT.

Cheshunt, Herts.

Dear Sir,—I know there are many in the Exercise who can, and will, put up a better defence than mine; but here it is.

In fact, I think Mr. Harford gives his own sufficient defence in his last paragraph, if any is needed, viz., 'ringing is his hobby.' Moreover, 'he offers his hobby to God's service.' If that is not sufficient reason—and defence—we ring for pleasure, and physical exercise; and there are not many physical exercises open to people from 40-50-60 years of age. One cannot participate in rugby, soccer, athletics, cycling and dirt track, to name only a few. Moreover, why should we have to defend ringing any more than the patrons or participants of those just mentioned?

On the score of noise alone, does anyone complain about the Hampden roar, the Wembley cheer, the Twickenham shout, or, nowadays, the Lords (cricket ground) barracking? Providing we observe ordinary codes of conduct, we need not be too apologetic.

With regard to record lengths of peals, England is full of records, national and international, as also is Oxford and Cambridge; and a simple answer to 'What are records for?' is they are to be beaten (I wish I could knock one-tenth of a second off the sprint record). Usually those who are loudest in their condemnation of other people's hobbies, especially ringing, are the first to complain if the bells are missing.

Just one perfectly true story which happened right under our tower. A man came to the ringing chamber one Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and asked the ringers not to ring as his father was very near his end. At 10.30 the father, who was conscious, asked the son the time, and when told it was 10.30 asked the son why were the bells not ringing. The son dared not tell him he had asked them not to ring. The father passed away at 11 a.m. The son told us this on the Monday.

'UNORTHODOX' PERFORMANCES

Dear Sir,—I cannot recall from the report of the recent Central Council meeting published in 'The Ringing World' that there was any specific recommendation not to publish so-called 'freak' peals. However, there was apparently some discussion on the matter at Eastbourne, and it has also figured in recent correspondence in these columns. One writer even alleged that such suppression had already been enforced, and I have not seen this allegation refuted. Where do we stand? What is the position?

I think most ringers, and I certainly include myself in this, are prepared to accept the Central Council as the legislative and governing body of the Exercise, and are therefore prepared to abide by its properly constituted rules and decisions. We know, too, that 'The Ringing World' is the official journal of the Central Council, and under normal circumstances a governing body has every right to decide what shall and what shall not be published in its official journal.

But we must not forget that 'The Ringing World' is the only ringing publication available to members of the Exercise, and consequently its freedom to publish news of performances—even if they do not conform to the rules of the Council—should be jealously guarded.

Suppression of ringing news in the only ringing publication available would indeed be totalitarian. If 'freak' peals, i.e., those not conforming to Central Council decisions, are to be suppressed, then the next stage may easily be the suppression of 'freak' theories, such as Round Blocks, Grid Analysis, or both, because they, too, might not conform to some Central Council decisions on Method Extension, etc. This journal would then rapidly cease to be a 'Ringing World,' and the Exercise would suffer an irreparable loss.

By all means, then, let the Council make, alter and remake its rules, but at the same time let the ringing world see what its non-conformists are doing in the way of experiments and publish them—as Mr. Butler has suggested—under 'Unorthodox Performances' or some other such heading. A democracy does not suppress its minorities, but safeguards their ability to exist as minorities. Let our Central Council then be truly democratic.—Yours faithfully, Preston.

C. CROSTHWAITE.

PEAL WITHDRAWN

Dear Sir,—I wish to withdraw the peal of Kent Treble Bob Major rung at Bollington, Cheshire, on February 11th, 1950.

The composition was a 5,184 by Nolan Golden, which has since proved to be false.

I trust you and the members of the band will accept my apologies.—Yours faithfully,

FREDK. W. GROCOTT.

Bucknall, Stoke-on-Trent.

Dear Sir,—Mr. Harford asks for a defence of ringing in your issue of August 25th.

I think that there can be no doubt that none could condemn the practice of bellringing, from the ringer's point of view, that it is good exercise for mind and body, not only as an individual but as a member of a team, with a co-operative rather than competitive spirit.

From the point of view of others, to wish to prohibit ringing other than for actual services and short practices is like muzzling the ox which treads out the corn. If ringers sometimes take advantage of their privilege and cause excessive disturbance, any criticism they deserve is as thoughtless Christians rather than as ringers.—Yours faithfully,

CECILY C. ROBERTS.

Petersfield, Hants.

PEALS FOR ONE ASSOCIATION

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. Barton's letter fearing dictatorship on the part of the Central Council by withholding publication of peals sent to 'The Ringing World' as rung for more than one Association, I venture to suggest that if this was done it would considerably ease the job of the overworked Peals Analyses Committee in compiling their analyses. Even in the past, in the case of the well-known conductors mentioned by Mr. Barton, who recorded peals rung for two Associations, the committee in their analyses credited the peal to the first-named Association only. If this was not done it would lead to a confusion of footnotes of explanation, such as 'including a peal of — rung for the — Association and — Diocesan Guild, etc.'

No one wishes to deny the band the right to mention that the ringers were also members of another Association, but could this not be mentioned in the footnote to the peal? It is usually assumed that the peal is rung primarily for the Association in whose area the peal is rung, and any other claim of the band in belonging to another Association is purely coincidental (this fact no doubt influenced the Council in its desire to count the performance to the credit of the first-named Association). On several occasions as conductor of a peal the performance could have been published as rung for a diocesan Guild, a county Association and also the College Youths. If we are to pursue this where is it going to end? I do not think we shall harm the structure of our ringing Associations and Guilds in their relationship to the Central Council if we try to simplify its work, but rather we shall receive its thanks.

Cosham, Portsmouth. F. W. ROGERS.

DIMENSIONS OF CHURCHES

Dear Sir,—While not denying the claim of the R.C. Cathedral of Westminster to be included in any computation as to size, surely your correspondent, Mr. M. F. R. Hibbert, has lost sight of the fact that the discussion was on the relative dimensions of parish churches.

He is, of course, also wrong in stating that our old cathedrals and churches were once R.C.

There has ever been a Church of England, and the fact that it was once in fellowship with Rome does not entitle that body to the credit for the building of our essentially English churches.—Yours sincerely,

Bristol. ROGER MORTLAKE.

ANOTHER AUSTRALIAN TOUR?

Dear Sir,—I feel sure that I voice the opinion of most Australian ringers, when I say that we are all hoping for the day when another Ringing Tour is made in Australia. Next year is the Jubilee Year of the Commonwealth, and in 1952, we hope for a royal visit. Surely either event would be appropriate for such a tour. As you know, ringing in Australia has advanced considerably in the last few years, and a repeat of 1934 could not fail to be very successful. There is no doubt that it would be far more profitable for a team of English experts to tour the Australian States than for few of us to visit England. The former plan would be of great assistance to all Australian ringers, whereas the latter would not. It is the experience of ringing in with a good band that we need most, and clearly it is more helpful for all Australian ringers to do this, than for only a few to do so.

If a trip like this has been done before, as in 1934, then surely it can be done again. Every Australian ringer is anxiously awaiting a move in this direction. When will it be? How long do we have to wait?

Finally, could any of your readers sell me a copy of 'A Great Adventure'?—Yours sincerely, PHILIP L. COOPER.

KENT RINGERS' DEVONSHIRE TOUR

HUNTSHAM: MEMORIES OF C. A. W. TROYTE.

From a peal-ringing point of view, the high spot of the week was the chance of a peal at Tiverton on Friday morning. They are certainly a really splendid ring (eight, 25½ cwt.), and we were delighted to score a good peal of Double Norwich. The usual comments were passed—which are the best, Heavitree, or Tiverton? A very difficult question to answer. Both have connections with John Taylor—Heavitree a new ring in 1897; Tiverton recast in 1924. The general opinion of our party seemed to be that inside the tower, Heavitree were the better; outside, Tiverton. Still, what matters? Both are perfect rings for tone and 'go.' If the writer may be allowed to express a personal opinion, both rings must take second place for tone to Bridlington, Yorksbire (eight, 26 cwt., Taylor 1902). Much of these bell tones depend on the acoustic properties of the tower. Very best thanks to Mr. E. J. Taylor, who met us before the peal to wish us good luck—we appreciate the opportunity placed at our disposal.

A visit to Calverleigh (six, 7 cwt.), a prettily situated church, a quick lunch, and we were on our way through well-wooded country, to Oakford (eight, 12 cwt.). The Vicar had mentioned that the tenor might require some attention, and the peal of Bob Major was started for with some trepidation. A long draught, poor ropes, and a bad-going tenor earned credit to the band for sticking it, especially Geoffrey Waters.

While this was in progress, a visit was made to Huntsham (eight, 13½ cwt.). We picked up Mr. E. H. Oxenham at Bampton—he had rung peals with several members of our party while living at Crayford, Kent, before the war, and we were very pleased to see him again. Huntsham lies in a very isolated part of Devon, and is famous as being the home of C. A. W. Troyte, of Huntsham Court, author of the book, 'Change Ringing.' His grave, alongside other ringing members of his family, lies just outside the tower. What is remarkable is that Troyte augmented the bells to eight in 1873, employed only ringers on his estate, and rang a lot of peals of Grandsire, Stedman, and Kent Treble Bob, these being the first in the methods in the county. All these are recorded on peal shields which used to hang in the old ringing chamber under the bells. Ringing now takes place from a gallery overlooking the church, and Mr. Davey, local captain, is shortly going to hang them up again.

Returning to Bampton, Mr. Oxenham had kindly arranged a nice tea, and afterwards we rang Cambridge, Plain Bob and Double Oxford on the 'long draught' ring of six, tenor 16 cwt. Picking up the successful peal band again, we returned home calling at Silverton (eight, 16 cwt.) where Mr. A. G. Selley had been patiently waiting our late arrival. Bob Major, Grandsire, and a good course of Ashstead were rung on a fine Taylor octave.

WIDDECOMBE AND BUCKFAST ABBEY.

It was hoped that Saturday's weather would be fine as our route lay over the wild beauty of Dartmoor. However, rain and mist spoilt the day from the scenic point of view, but we made up for it in our ringing. The final peal attempt was at Chudleigh (eight, 12½ cwt.), a handy ring recast in 1923 by Gillett and Johnston, and two trebles added. Cambridge Major came round at three hours exactly, Miss Angela Carter ringing the treble really well to score her 'first in the method' along with Malcolm Cloke. Non-pealers went to King's Teignton, another fine octave, tenor 16½ cwt., by Gillett and Johnston.

Mr. S. H. Green met us, we had a bread and cheese lunch, and then over the moor to Widdecombe-in-the-Moor. Misty, wet weather spoilt the view, but we enjoyed Grandsire and Cambridge on the splendid six, tenor 12½ cwt. The church is particularly fine, reminding one of some of the lonely Romney Marsh ones. But there's nothing lonely about Widdecombe. Modern coaches, taking the place of the 'grey mare,' come in large quantities every day, and the fair is still held in September.

A short run through narrow lanes brought us to Buckland-in-the-Moor (eight, 7 cwt.) and this delightful Taylor ring (1930) was soon ringing out Stedman and Bob Major. A most delightful situation for a church anywhere. Continuing through Ashburton, we arrived punctually at Buckfast Abbey (twelve, 41½ cwt.) at 4.30 p.m. and found Mr. Aubrey Bennett awaiting us. We admired the splendid workmanship of the builders, and climbed the staircase to the ringing chamber. There are fourteen bells here, with the 7½ ton Bourdon hanging in the centre, and the first touch was Grandsire Cinques, followed by a good course of Cambridge Major on the back eight. More Grandsire Cinques and rounds finished the ringing and most of us went 'aloft' to inspect the really perfect hanging which Taylors have effected.

In addition to getting permission for us to ring, Aubrey Bennett had also fixed us up for a lovely 'cream' tea at the Abbey canteen, which delighted everyone. We finished the day's ringing at Ashburton (eight, 22 cwt.), and before getting out of the coach for this, a hearty vote of thanks and a practical reminder of our appreciation were passed to Aubrey, for his valuable work in obtaining permission for our peal travels, with no hitches anywhere. Afterwards we rang Stedman, Grandsire, Ashstead and Superlative on a good ring and when we had said 'Goodbye' to Aubrey, we hurried back to Exeter just in time for S. H. G. to catch the last Tiverton bus.

QUEEN CAMEL.

Sunday arrived all too quickly and we had to leave on our homeward journey. We left Exeter at 9.10 a.m. and arrived at Chard, Somerset (eight, 23 cwt.), in good time to receive a warm welcome from the local band and permission readily given for our party to ring for morning service. Mr. R. Gillard remembered meeting the writer when he rang the tenor to the first peal of Major here in June, 1937. He has since learnt change ringing, while stationed at Salisbury, and is hoping to instruct some of his fellow ringers, including a lady, in the mysteries of 'scientific.' This tower was the 200th for Geoffrey W. and Malcolm C.

The last place to be visited was another of the 'tit-bits' of the week—Queen Camel (six, 36½ cwt.), the world's heaviest six—and Mr. Fred R. Reeves, local captain, gave us all a hearty welcome at 12.15 p.m. We achieved the best 'rise' of the week here, with Fred J. R. leading us up, and two men on 4th, 5th and tenor, the time taken being nearly twelve minutes. All agreed that these fine 'old-style' bells were the finest tone of the tour, and we enjoyed Grandsire, Plain Bob, Cambridge and London (with Jack Weller making a really good job of the tenor).

Sandwiches and tea at Zeals, Wilts, very kindly provided by Fred Macey, votes of thanks to the organisers, and appreciation of our non-ringers' patience, especially to Mrs. R. E. Lambert, who made it her job to obtain enough picture postcards for everyone at each tower we visited. We had said 'goodbye' to Ernie Orland on Friday—an example of a conscientious district secretary—who returned to his advertised meeting. Kilby Holm left us with Malcolm Cloke at Zeals, and Reg Rex at Andover, and the Kent contingent dropped the writer near his home at 8.15 p.m. He would like to thank everyone very much for a jolly fine week, with good ringing, and, more important still, good company and friendliness.

OBITUARY

MR. ISAAC CAVIL

The death of Mr. Isaac Cavil, which occurred at Haymeades Hospital, Bishop's Stortford, on August 14th, at the age of 88 years, removes a grand old ringer from North-West Essex.

Mr. Cavil was born at Stanstead, Essex, and learnt to ring at the early age of nine and continued a regular service and practice ringer until he was 80, and he had to give up then because rheumatism prevented him climbing the steep steps to the belfry.

After ringing many years at Stanstead, during which time he rang peals with most of the leading ringers in the surrounding district, he moved to Roydon, Essex. Here he set about teaching the local band change ringing, and for over 30 years was captain. He conducted the first peal on the bells by a local band.

During his stay at Roydon he found time to teach change ringing in the surrounding districts; he taught a band at Epping Uplands and Nazeing, Essex, and helped a great deal at Hoddesdon, Herts.

From Roydon he went to Harlow Common, where for several years he was a regular service and practice ringer, and he then returned home to Stanstead, where he again became a regular ringer. He was a first-class striker and conductor. He was a welcome visitor at any tower, and those who rang with him must still have many happy memories of his company.

No record of Mr. Cavil's peals can be found but they must have been a great many and varied.

The funeral took place on August 18th at Stanstead, and in the evening touches of Bob Major, Kent Treble Bob and Stedman were rung on half-muffled bells by friends from Bishop's Stortford, Harlow Common, Roydon and Stanstead. B. G. B.

MR. GEORGE FLINTHAM

The passing of Mr. George Flintham, which occurred at a nursing home near Nottingham on August 14th, after an illness lasting two years, removes from the Lincoln Diocesan Guild and its Cathedral band a very good and well-known ringer. He was a member of the old North Lincolnshire Association, which preceded the present Guild, now in its fifty-first year, and was a member of the Society at St. Peter-at-Arches, Lincoln (then the City Church), when such men as Gabriel Lindoff, Arthur Craven, John Austin and Joseph Fenton rang there. After 22 years there, he was elected to the Cathedral company, where he gave 33 years' valuable service. It is doubtful whether he kept a complete list of his peals, which included the first peals of London Surprise Major, Stedman Cinques, Grandsire Cinques and Spliced Surprise Major in four and ten methods for the Lincoln Guild. He was a very quiet, unassuming man, seldom absent, never late, and set a fine example to all ringers.

The burial service, which took place at West Bridgford, was attended by Mr. J. Walden, secretary of the Cathedral ringers, and it seemed quite fitting that the last rites were carried out, quite by coincidence, by Canon Wilkinson, president of the Southwell Diocesan Guild. A course of half-muffled Stedman Cinques was rung by the Cathedral ringers at their practice on August 18th as a tribute to his memory.

OBITUARY

MR. HENRY R. NEWTON

A FOUNDER MEMBER OF CENTRAL COUNCIL.

As briefly recorded in our last issue, Henry Robert Newton passed into higher service on Tuesday, August 29th, in his 86th year. He had a remarkable ringing career, and will be remembered as probably the finest exponent of heavy-bell ringing the Exercise has ever seen. He was one of the founders of the Central Council and collaborated with Sir Arthur Heywood in London before the Council was formed.

Henry Newton was born in Pimlico on February 12th, 1865, and went to St. Stephen's School, Westminster, one of his schoolmates being William Hughes, who became Prime Minister of Australia. Mr. Hughes visited his old schoolfellow when in this country on a visit.

Being connected with St. Stephen's, it was natural that Newton should be among the first who volunteered to learn the art of ringing under the instruction of the famous John Murray Hayes, and very soon a good band was established at Rochester Row. On the death of Murray Hayes, Newton became leader and continued to be so for many years, during which time a great deal of ringing history was made by the famous Rochester Row band. He joined the College Youths in 1886, and was elected Master in 1898, and again in 1925. At his death he held the honoured office of trustee of the Society. He was a member of the London County Association for a long time and took an active part in its affairs. He was elected Master in 1890.

Among Mr. Newton's notable feats were turning in the tenor of St. Michael's, Cornhill, to Superlative Major, Bow tenor to London Surprise Major, and Southwark tenor to Superlative and Cambridge Major. He turned St. Paul's Cathedral tenor into Treble Twelve, which he also conducted. He took part in several 'silent' peals of Surprise, and was in the famous company which rang peals of London, Cambridge and Superlative in three counties in one day; also three peals of London in the same way. He was in the band who rang the first peal of Cambridge Maximus in London. He was in the record peal of Stedman Caters, 21,363 changes, at Appleton, in 1922, and in the following year rang the eleventh at Southwark to 12,675 Stedman Cinques. On one occasion he took part in a peal at Evesham, when no less than three men, including James W. Washbrook, were required to ring the tenor! Single-handed, he attempted to turn in Exeter tenor to Treble Ten, but failed after 2½ hours when the bearings ran dry.

Equally at home at the light or heavy end, on tower or handbells, or as a conductor, Bob Newton set a standard of excellence which for many years has been an example and inspiration to all College Youths who were privileged to ring with him. His style and stance at the end of a rope were delightful to see.

He followed his trade as a carpenter until within a few weeks of his death, and as recently as 1947 took part in a peal of Stedman Triples at Westminster Abbey to celebrate one of the royal occasions. He was a member of the St. Paul's Cathedral Guild, and also of the Abbey company.

On Friday, September 1st, the body was borne to the Abbey, there to lie in state during the night. A short service was conducted by Canon Adam-Fox, and was attended by his widow, nephew and the whole of the Abbey company, also many College Youths, headed by the Master. On Saturday the remains were taken from the Abbey to Streatham Park Crematorium, and the lesson was read by Canon Jocelyn Perkins, of Westminster Abbey. A last tribute was paid on handbells, a course of Stedman Triples rung by H. Langdon 1-2, T. H. Taffender 3-4, A. B. Peck 5-6, H. N. Pitstow 7-8.

So ends the story of one of the finest ringers ever to take up the art, but he will not be forgotten by his fellow College Youths, and his memory will be treasured.

Mr. Newton's peals totalled 349, of which he conducted 97, and are as follows: Grandsire Triples, 19; Grandsire Caters, 9; Stedman Triples, 79; Stedman Caters, 23; Stedman Cinques, 30; Treble Bob Major, 20; Treble Bob Royal, 20; Treble Bob Maximus, 10; Double Norwich Major, 15; Double Norwich Royal, 4; Superlative Surprise Major 23; Cambridge Surprise Minor, 1; Cambridge Surprise Major, 18; Cambridge Surprise Royal, 3; Cambridge Surprise Maximus, 7; London Surprise Major, 59; London Surprise Royal, 1; Plain Bob Major, 1; Duffield Major, 1; Westminster Surprise Major 3; St. Stephen's Surprise Major, 1; Bristol Surprise Major, 1; Bob Maximus, 1.

MR. WILLIAM WHEELDON

We regret to record the death of Mr. William Wheeldon, of Bucknall, Stoke-on-Trent, Staffs, which occurred at his residence on August 17th. Mr. Wheeldon had been a member of the North Staffordshire Association for 60 years. He took part in the first 'silent' peal of Surprise Minor ever rung in seven methods, which was rung at Bucknall on April 6th, 1897. In 1927-1928 his band at Bucknall rang a 720 of every method in the book of Collection of Minor methods. His brother, Mr. John E. Wheeldon, is now the only surviving member of the band who rang the 'silent' peal.

Mr. W. Wheeldon was a staunch churchman and a most popular leader in the belfry, where his cheery disposition will be greatly missed, not only by his own ringers but by all members of the North Staffordshire Association.

R. O. P.

MR. WILLIAM SHORT

We have just received news of the death of Mr. William Short, of Clent, Worcs., a well-known ringer in the district, which occurred in Bromsgrove Hospital on August 27th.

Mr Short was a member of the St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, for many years, and was Deputy Ringing Master for some time.

In 1901, at St. Martin's, deceased conducted the then record peal of 11,111 Stedman Cinques. The funeral took place at Clent on August 30th.

PEAL RINGING IN 1949

THE year 1949 will unquestionably go down in history as the most prolific one in the art of peal ringing. The total of 2,906 peals is far ahead of any previous accomplishment, and records to date for 1950 indicate that it is unlikely that this total will be reached during the current year. The popularity of peal ringing can be judged from the following progressive figures:—1945, 1,304; 1946, 1,795; 1947, 2,174; 1948, 2,639; and 1949, 2,906.

Of the 2,906 peals rung in 1949 2,524 were on tower bells and 382 in hand. There was a pronounced increase in peals of Maximus, the number being 47 against 17 in 1948. The cult of Surprise Maximus is a sign of progress, there being no fewer than 37 peals, recorded chiefly by the Leicester Diocesan Guild and the St. Martin's Guild. Many of these were first essays of the method on 12 bells. Peals of Cinques totalled 43, the same as last year, the honours being shared by St. Martin's Guild, the Ancient Society of College Youths, and the Archdeaconry of Stafford. Opportunities for 12-bell ringing are relatively few.

Peals on ten bells also showed an increase with Royal 109 (against 92) and Caters 99 (82). No fewer than 32 Associations scored peals on ten bells with Leicester again predominating. The list contains 14 different Surprise methods, and we are likely to see more extensions in the future. In regard to peals of Major there was a definite advance in aggregate and also some fine performances, the total being 1,052 against 957 in 1948 and 861 in 1947. In this field there was an expansion in Surprise ringing with 561 peals against 426. Cambridge maintained its popularity with 133 peals (107), followed by Yorkshire 88 (62), Superlative 69 (63), Bristol 62 (41), London 53 (45) and Lincolnshire 21 (9). Spliced Surprise Major showed another advance with 38 peals against 25. These peals were distributed among 19 guilds, an indication that this form of ringing is becoming more widespread and not confined to two or three bands. The best effort was a peal in 14 methods by the Oxford Diocesan Guild.

With the growth of Surprise ringing there has been a drop in other Major peals which numbered 491 against 531. Plain Bob decreased from 222 to 197, Double Norwich Court Bob Major from 152 to 133, and Kent Treble Bob from 103 to 98. Can one assume from these figures that progress is more marked from medium ringers than from new entrants? This should be examined in conjunction with the drop of Triples from 346 to 335. Grandsire maintained its popularity with 190 against 199, but Stedman, for the third successive year, showed a decline, the totals being 129 in 1947, 124 in 1948, and 110 in 1949. Peals of Stedman Triples are so easily lost that many young conductors prefer to go for a Surprise peal for safety! In the Guildford Guild Stedman was for years the most favoured method; last year's record was two peals, partly due to a famous conductor being laid aside from peal ringing.

There was no diminution in five and six bell ringing, the number of peals being 839 against 821 in 1948 and 605 in 1947. Guilds that were in evidence were Lincoln Diocesan 53, Kent County 52, Chester Guild 48, Bath and Wells 48, Leicester Diocesan 48, Peterborough Diocesan 41, Worcestershire and Districts 40. Work of the Lincoln Guild was outstanding, with peals of 35, 32 and 26 methods and in the realm of Doubles ringing the Oxford Diocesan Guild had a peal in 25 methods.

Regular handbell ringing was largely confined to two centres—Bournemouth and Leicester—where enthusiasm almost reached fever pitch. There were 382 peals 'in hand' rung, and of this number 95 were recorded on behalf of the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild and 82 for the Leicester Diocesan Guild. In the previous year handbell peals totalled 274. Of special mention are the four peals of Spliced Surprise in four methods by the Hertford County Association.

Leicester Diocesan Guild had the amazing total of 267 in 1949 (against 141 in 1948), a figure never previously reached. Kent County Association, who, for the previous three years, had been the leading Association, dropped to second place with 168 peals (against 158), closely followed by Lancashire with 161 (146). Other leading positions were: Yorkshire 150 (111), Winchester and Portsmouth 148 (72), Chester 143 (128), Worcestershire and Districts 108 (62), Suffolk 106 (73), Norwich 94 (96), Oxford Diocesan Guild 94 (124). The Ancient Society of College Youths rang 25 peals and the Royal Society of Cumberland Youths 11. Of the Universities, Cambridge with 17 had a distinct lead over Oxford's 10 (the same as last year). The latter had the consolation, however, of scoring more peals on tower bells.

A word of praise is due to the Peal Analysis Committee, with Mr. Walter Ayre as convener. It is most exacting work compiling these tables. Nevertheless, they are well worth the labour as giving an indication of the trend of ringing in the British Isles, although it is to be regretted that our friends 'over the border' failed to score a peal for the Scottish Association.

FOUR GUILDS' FESTIVAL

The old market town of Wokingham was the centre of this year's joint meeting of the Ladies' Guild (Southern District), Guildford Diocesan Guild (Farnham District), Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild (Basingstoke District) and Oxford Diocesan Guild (Sonning Deanery Branch). Some 80 members from these districts were joined by visitors from a wide area, including Purton (Wilts), Crayford (Kent), Leicester and Norwich, making a total of about 140.

Proceedings opened unofficially at Finchampstead at 1 p.m., where the six bells of St. James' Church were rung for about half an hour for the benefit of a well-known ringer from Norwich, who was later to play an important part in the day's programme. The local band attended in strength and continued ringing after the visitors departed. At 2 p.m. the towers of Easthampstead (6), Binfield (6) and St. Paul's, Wokingham (8), were open and were made good use of by local and visiting ringers. At All Saints', Wokingham, a wedding held up ringing until 3.20, but as soon as the happy couple departed, the ringing chamber felt the full force of ringers eager to ring before service.

It was good to see the church so full for service, which was conducted by Rev. G. Kenworthy, Rector, and at which the preacher was Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow, formerly curate at this church and now so well known at Norwich.

Tea followed at the Church House. The number present, many of whom had failed to notify, gave the officials of the Sonning Deanery a busy time finding odd chairs and tables, but eventually all were seated and a good tea, provided and arranged by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brooks, of All Saints', enjoyed.

At the conclusion of the meal, the chairman of the Sonning Deanery Branch welcomed the visiting ringers to Wokingham and expressed the hope that all would enjoy their visit. Votes of thanks were expressed to the Rector of All Saints', the organist and caterers, and all who had worked to make the meeting a success.

Following tea, a course of Grandsire Caters was rung on handbells by Miss A. Diserens 1-2, Mrs. B. C. Castle 3-4, A. H. Pulling 5-6, N. Shepherd 7-8, H. J. Poole 9-10.

The Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow then entertained the company with some films taken at Whitechapel Foundry and Norwich, and, although the sun did its best to beat the black-out curtains, some really interesting films were shown accompanied by an even more entertaining commentary from the producer, who made everybody understand that, now its bells are in order, the Church of St. George, Colegate, is the most famous church in Norwich.

At 6.30 everyone began to make their way by coach, car or cycle to the six towers open in the evening. On the pleasant six at Binfield, the not-too-tuneful six at Arborfield, and the rings of eight at Hurst, Warfield, St. Paul's and All Saints', Wokingham, touches, some good, some not so good, were rung to suit all present, and at all these towers local foremen and their ringers were in attendance to ensure that no one arrived and found an empty tower. Thus ended at 9 p.m. the first such festival to be held in Wokingham, and, it is hoped, the first of many more.

Beverley & District Society

Sixty members and friends of the Society attended the meeting held at the Priory, Bridlington, on Saturday, August 12th. During the afternoon and evening visitors coming from as far afield as Darlington and London were welcomed in the belfry and joined in the ringing.

Canon Lamb conducted the service in the Priory Church and the Rev. G. Storer read the lesson. Canon Lamb welcomed the Society and visitors from other areas, and spoke of the fellowship between ringers which was so evident in his own belfry by the large number of visiting ringers who helped with the ringing during the holiday season.

The tea and business meeting were held in the Church Institute. The Rev. G. Storer thanked the Society for the help he had received at the dedication of Hutton Cranswick bells, and requested that a record of the event be placed with the Society's minutes.

The ringers returned to the tower and the bells were kept going until 9 p.m.

Mr. R. G. Rayfield, of the Dartford band, is now out of the County Hospital, Dartford, after his sudden serious illness, but regrets it will be some time before he is able to take his place with his many ringing friends. He thanks those who have made inquiries as to his progress.

Mr. Blondell, the ringer of the treble in the peal of Double Norwich at Warnham on September 2nd, is in his 81st year, a 2nd last rang in a peal, in the same tower, in 1913. It was Cambridge, with Alfred H. Pulling as conductor. On that occasion the band were attempting four peals in a day. A peal of Bristol had already been rung before breakfast. Then came the Cambridge, and after lunch a peal of London was lost after 2½ hours owing to two bells crossing over.

Princess Elizabeth has shown her interest in the peal rung at Naseby. In a letter Her Royal Highness asks her thanks to be conveyed to all the ringers.

It should be pointed out that the bells at Oakham, Rutland, are a Gillett and Johnston ring, not Taylors as stated in the recent report of the Roving Ringers' tour. The recast tenor is 24 cwt. 2 qr. 9 lb., not 22½ cwt. as printed; 22 cwt. 3 qr. 8 lb. was the weight of the old tenor.

Although Mr. L. A. Wilson, of Wootton Bassett, has been ringing for 60 years, the peal of Stedman Triples in his home tower on September 2nd was his first peal with members of the fair sex. Never too late to mend!

Barwell ringers and friends, accompanied by ringers from Hinckley and Earl Shilton, visited Netherseale for an evening outing and they rang touches ranging from Grandsire to Cambridge Major on the fine bells of the Parish Church. They were met at the church by ringers from Overseale, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Repton and the local tower, including the Rector, to whom many thanks are extended for the use of the bells. The evening concluded in a social atmosphere, during which handbells were rung to the delight of the local inhabitants.

BELFRY GOSSIP

We have heard of 'change ringing' and 'scientific,' but a new one is recorded by a correspondent. Recently a young ringer enquired, at a call-change tower, of one of the ringers after Sunday service, when practice was held. The reply was, 'We don't have no practice, but you should go to Isleworth; they allus ring them new-fangled changes there.'

Mr. R. H. Addis, of St. Mellons, Cardiff, is anxious to ring a 'Masonic' peal in S. Wales. He wonders if there are enough ringers who are members of the craft in South Wales who will respond.

To her great disappointment, Mrs. P. A. Corby was unable to go on the recent Sussex tour as her small son decided to develop measles the day before the tour was due to begin. He is quite well again now.

Mr. Clem Glenn writes: Jack Worrall has slipped up with his French. In the last paragraph of his letter the verb 'attirer' (to attract) should surely have the future, not the preterite, tense, and be spelt attirera, not attira.

Mr. John E. Bibby writes from Frodsham, with reference to the youngest ringer in royal birth peals, that his son, William G. Bibby, aged 12, probably has this distinction. The peal the latter rang in was at Runcorn on August 23rd.

Congratulations to Miss Joan Beresford, of Lichfield, who at the age of 18 has called her first peal of Stedman Triples. It is a long time since Henry Johnson, who was born in Lichfield, first called Thurstans'. It would be interesting, writes a correspondent, to know how many ladies have conducted a peal of Stedman Triples.

CARBIS BAY RINGING WEEK

THE annual Carbis Bay ringing week was held this year from Aug. 19th to 26th, and was, in the opinion of some of the 'regulars,' the most enjoyable of the series.

As usual, most of the party were accommodated in the Vicarage, a building which seems to be able to absorb ringers out of all proportion to its cubic capacity. An excellent programme had been arranged, enabling visits to be made to 26 local towers, while a peal was attempted each week-day, usually in the morning. Transport, so essential in Cornwall, was fortunately available, and a small convoy of cars was in use daily. These factors all contributed to the success of the week, which will be remembered, not only for the enjoyable ringing, but also for the spirit of comradeship which prevailed.

The first peal (Plain Bob Major) was at Carbis Bay on Saturday evening, and its success was ascribed by some to be due to the unusual opening command of 'Go next tuft.' This saying, attributed to Lancashire, became the talisman of all future peals!

On Sunday, in addition to the normal service touches, the visitors rang during the afternoon at St. Hilary's (6), where one of the party apparently lost his way during heavy rain, while listening to the bells. From there some, tempted by an additional tower and a grand Cornish view, went to Gulval (8) to ring for the evening service. During the evening what must be surely the 'smallest handbells in captivity' appeared from their case, and patient efforts were made to steer the 'Delight' band through a course of Bob Minor. Subsequently the handbells were used for more advanced methods, tune ringing and crazy ringing.

A successful peal of Grandsire Triples at Towednack was rung on Monday morning in such record time that the sightseeing remnant, stealing a visit to Land's End, only returned just before we departed. Afterwards we drove over the moors to ring at Zennor (6), where we renewed acquaintance with the mermaid. Leaving the north coast, we then turned south to have a short ring on the six at Ludgvan before spending a most enjoyable hour on the lovely eight of St. Marv's, Penzance.

COMPETITION.

There was much competition for the peal of Double Norwich at St. Gluvias on Tuesday, and threats were made of poisoning the early morning cups of tea. However, the original band survived to make the attempt, but, sad to say, the peal was lost after about an hour. We then visited St. Budock, where some unfortunate workmen were pointing the tower just outside the louveres. Not wishing to cause an accident by any too sudden descent from the scaffolding when the boom of the ring of eight burst on their unsuspecting ears, we felt it our duty to warn them. Undaunted, they decided to continue work at all costs, but took the opportunity of canvassing for orders to repair all the towers represented by the party! The delightful six at St. Mabe next received general approval, and it was there that it was discovered that, in the opinion of one member of the party, organ snatching was almost as important as tower snatching! The convoy then moved on to Perranwell, where the six bells were considered by one ringer to be so good that it was difficult to persuade him to leave at the correct time. The day's programme culminated in a visit to Truro Cathedral, where we were given a warm welcome by Mr. Southard, the Diocesan Ringing Master. We left with the sound of these glorious bells still ringing in our ears as we began our long drive back to Carbis Bay and the usual 'good square meal.'

On Wednesday our start was delayed as one car developed a distaste for Carbis Bay hill. Eventually, however, we reached Crowan, but an attempt at Plain Bob Major came to grief after 2½ hours. After an enjoyable ring at Wendron (6), we proceeded to Helston, of Furry Dance fame, and from there on to Phillack, another excellent ring of eight. It was there that the party was introduced to Cornish call changes and found it difficult to remember to lead in the local fashion.

THE BEST PEAL.

On Thursday we rang the best peal of the week on the magnificent bells at St. Keverne (18½ cwt.) Having failed here in each of the three previous ringing weeks, the band this year was determined to break the spell, and to strike Grandsire in a manner worthy of such bells. It was generally agreed that this had been achieved. Indeed, one listening ringer spent most of the three hours walking slowly round the church, murmuring with a beatific smile, 'Beautiful, beautiful!' Then we drove through lovely Cornish country to St. Anthony-in-Meneage (8) in its beautiful situation overlooking the Helford river. The famous whipping stone in the churchward will long be remembered by those who witnessed the position assumed by two popular members of the party! The next stop was at Manaccan (6), famous for the fig tree growing out of the wall. 'We rang there until hunger (or was it thirst?) drove us in search of tea. We then proceeded to Mawgan where the treble ringer's attempt to adjust the strap of his sandal while ringing led one to believe that he was dancing a jig. The last ring of the day was on the new six at Paul. We were all impressed both by the quality of the bells and by the progress made by the local band—all of whom are new to the Exercise.

Friday morning began with high hopes of a peal of Plain Bob Major at Tuckingmill, but, in spite of some enjoyable ringing, it was lost when only five courses from the end. A visit to Stithians followed (another recently hung six), and from there to two detached towers, Gwennap (6) and Llogan (6). Perhaps it was the wait in the rain while the key was procured—or was it merely the culminating point in a week of hilarity that accounted for some of the crazy ringing that followed? One ringer even decided that in the confined space it would be simpler to sit while ringing! Friday evening saw us in a more normal mood at Carbis Bay practice.

It had been decided that Saturday should be reserved for a second attempt at Double Norwich. The band, mostly with packed luggage, visited Kenwyn, and this time the peal was successful. Unfortunately this was our last venture, and after tea the party regretfully dispersed.

All were unanimous in their agreement that it was a most enjoyable week, and we would like to express our deep gratitude to the Rev. and Mrs. Roberts for their delightful hospitality and for arranging and organising such a tour.

BATH AND WELLS ASSOCIATION

A joint meeting of the Crewkerne and Ilchester Branches at Drayton on September 2nd was well attended by ringers from Yeovil, Martock, Drayton, Curry Rivel, Shepton Beauchamp, Kingstone, Puckington, Langport, Leminington, Stoke-under-Ham, Hardington Mandeville, Buckland Newton, Piddlehinton, Templecombe, Milverton, Wellington, Stalbridge, Clevedon, Taunton, Kenn (Exeter) and Melksham and Chippenham (Wilts).

The Vicar (the Rev. R. W. Philipson) conducted the service and gave an address. Preb. G. W. Saunders (chairman of the Ilchester Branch) thanked the Vicar, the organist and the local ladies who had provided an excellent tea. He remarked that the attendance proved that joint meetings could be a success.

Curry Rivel bells were available in the evening.

Freedom Bell Completed

On Aug. 25th the giant 'Freedom Bell,' cast recently in the factory of the Croydon firm of Gillett and Johnston, Ltd., in the presence of the American Ambassador, left the firm's foundry on the first leg of its lengthy trip to its final resting place in the heart of Berlin. After being exhibited in America and Germany, the 8ft. high, ten-ton bell will be hung in Western Berlin as a symbol of the new Crusade for Freedom, an American organisation of which General Lucius Clay is chairman.

The bell is decorated with five symbolic figures representing the five races of the earth, each holding jointly a torch of freedom. These were modelled to designs sent from America by a well-known London sculptor, Atri Brown, and in addition the bell is inscribed round the lip with the words, 'That this world under God shall have a new birth of freedom,' a paraphrase of Lincoln's words at Gettysburg.

The bell, which has a counterbalanced clapper and headstock, swings frame high, and despite its size, clappers correctly when ringing. It can be rung easily by a man on each wheel, but when installed in Berlin it will be rung electrically by two 2 h.p. motors.

The pitch of the bell, which is E, compares well with Big Ben, its lowest tone being nearly two octaves below middle C. It has been tuned on the Simpson principle. The permanent frame in Berlin will be of heavy enough construction to allow for open ends so that the bell may be better seen.

In America it is intended to transport the bell assembled in a frame specially made at Croydon for the purpose, and to ring it in all the cities which it will visit and possibly also when it is on the move from place to place. Moneys subscribed during this campaign will go towards the broadcasting stations to penetrate the Iron Curtain.

The dedication of the bell in Berlin is expected to be on United Nations Day, October 24th, when its voice is to be broadcast throughout the world.

ST. AUGUSTINE'S, KILBURN

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. E. M. ATKINS.

The peal of Bob Major rung at St. Augustine's, Kilburn, reported in 'The Ringing World' of Sept. 1st, was a farewell peal to the conductor, Mr. E. M. Atkins, who is retiring from the Patent Office to live in Teignmouth, Devon.

After the peal the ringers, joined by other members of the belfry and friends, had a dinner and then adjourned to the Parish Room. The proceedings were opened by Mr. D. C. Birkinshaw, who said that the belfry would miss Mr. Atkins after 28 years as conductor. He reminded them that they had had as their leader one of the most prominent members of the Exercise, who had in all these years given up his time in the most unselfish manner to training bands of young ringers.

The Vicar, in making the presentation, said that for his part he had not only to thank Mr. Atkins for his work in the belfry, which he thought was rather the equivalent of Dennis Compton giving up his time to training the boys' club to play cricket in Paddington Recreation Ground, but also for his work in the church and especially as Vicar's warden. He then presented Mr. Atkins with an electric drill equipment.

Mrs. Atkins was also thanked for her work on the social side of ringing, for the many happy evenings the ringers had enjoyed at the Atkins' home, and presented with a large bouquet of flowers. They were then presented jointly with a standard lamp and several other gifts subscribed for by ringers and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Atkins responded suitably.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FESTIVAL OF BRITAIN, 1951

Dear Sir,—At a general meeting of the Universities' Association at which I was privileged to be chairman, during the recent ringing week in Lincoln, some ideas were put forward about the part which ringers should take in the 1951 Festival of Britain. This Festival and the contribution which ringers can make towards it seem so important for the future of the Exercise that any good ideas on the subject should be put before the whole Exercise quickly, and acted upon as soon as possible whilst the preparations for the Festival are going on. So here is the contribution from the above meeting, in the form of six suggestions:—

1. A special day, possibly the opening day of the London Festival Centre, might be appointed for the ringing of peals wherever possible throughout the country.

2. An effort should be made as soon as possible to ensure that demonstrations of ringing should be included in the published programmes of events issued by the various local authorities.

3. A cheap and popular pamphlet should be published which could be distributed in large quantities, at many local centres, to the public. The material could be supplied by the Central Council, and worked up into popular form, possibly by some really well-known writer whose name could be attached. This could be published by the Central Council and bought by local companies at something like 7s. 6d. per hundred. It could be distributed to the public gratis. This should be prepared now.

4. The authorities of the various dioceses, who already often have exhibitions at country shows, should be invited to sponsor exhibitions of bells and ringing at these. A similar exhibition should be prepared for now at the London Festival Hall, and similar exhibitions at the Imperial Institute, and St. John's, Waterloo Road, the Festival Church.

5. A film of bell founding and ringing, even better than any hitherto produced, should be produced for general exhibition at cinemas.

6. Individuals in every place are urged to use their own initiative, now and not later on, to see that they get ringing into the programme. It is useless to wait for invitations and then wonder why they are not forthcoming.—Yours faithfully,

GILBERT THURLOW.

A UNIVERSAL BADGE

Dear Sir,—In connection with the Festival, may I suggest to the committee and to the Exercise in general that this would be an excellent opportunity of inaugurating a universal ringers' badge, which could be of a general design (thereby reducing the cost of dies, etc.), with provision for the name of the Association, Guild or Society to be engraved as required.

If the suggestion already put forward, that the bellfounders jointly erect a ring of bells in London, were to materialise, it would be a considerable help to the general public to see and recognise ringers by such a badge. It would also identify ringers to each other, as there is no doubt that many will visit London and other places during the period of the Festival.

Each Association, etc., could circularise its members and form a good idea of the number of badges required in a very short time, and so enable the committee to decide whether such a project would be worth while.

Perhaps other members of the Exercise would care to express their views on the matter.—Yours sincerely,

S. SCATTERGOOD.

Chesterfield.

RINGING IN DEVON

Dear Sir,—Mr. Corby's reference to 'stiffen the bells' is new to me. I think it refers to the fact that round ringers rather 'over-ring' their bells and turn them quickly, keeping a very tight rope. Thus the bells race round and round.

When Mr. Corby conducted a peal of 'Spliced Surprise' at Okehampton two years ago the comment of a good local ringer was, 'I sat in my garden and listened; the ringing was fine, but I don't understand the pauses.' On the other hand, when a peal of Grandsire Triples was rung by quite an ordinary band, a ringer said, 'Never heard the bells rung better.' Call-change ringers do not understand Major ringing and prefer the tenor behind.

Quite recently, the captain of a good local band said, 'I like scientific changes if the bells be struck well.' There is no doubt that many round ringers have respect for scientific ringing and would be pleased if they could ring Grandsire or Stedman well. But all call-change ringing is not good. I know of a ringer who continued ringing for a long time after the clapper of his bell had dropped out. When asked to chime his bell, he was surprised, but even so, a bad striker has a sorry time with a good captain. Call-change ringing, however, requires alertness. It is not exactly easy to stand in with a good call-change band. Nor is it easy to keep a bell striking statically round after round. The lack of dynamic is stultifying. Are method ringers wise in neglecting good rounds before embarking on changes?

The prejudice of call-change ringers in Devon probably dates from the early days of the Guild when it was the practice to follow the course bell without regard to taking each bell in order with due care. 'Clipping' offends anybody's ear. Change ringers know this, and round ringers have ears.

In prize or certificate ringing, referred to in another article, the striking of a band comes under expert review, and the effect of Devon ringing festivals is to improve striking. After all, service ringing, whatever the method, meets with public approval if well done. Our president, Prebendary Cox, insists on good striking, and this means something more than rope-sight and knowledge of method. The blows must be struck with musical effect, little bells wide of big bells, and of this the ear is the only judge.

I think often of an old friend who was keen on Cambridge Major. In his workshop I often saw the 'zig-zags' of his favourite bell. At a meeting, Dick stood in for a touch. He successfully negotiated his bell through to half-way, and then, when the ringing was going quite well, he set her. When asked why, he replied, 'Couldn't remember the rest.' Was Dick right or wrong?

RINGERS AND CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

Dear Sir,—Recently I have aroused the interest of a very good friend of mine in the art of ringing. However, there is a serious drawback to his taking up our noble and ancient craft: he is not a member of our Communion, and as such he would be unable to participate in Sunday ringing—our primary aim.

What I would like to know is what would be the attitude of clergy, ringing Masters and ringers in general to such a person, who would only attend practice nights and meetings, yet didn't ring for service?

Thanking you for the use of your columns for this enquiry,—I am, yours faithfully,

P. B. DERBY.

Ancient Churches

Dear Sir,—I am in entire agreement with Mr. Felstead that 'The Ringing World' is not intended for religious argument, but as the ball has been thrown I feel it my duty to return it. He states in his letter that the inhabitants of this country would not see any break in religion at the Reformation. Why then was it necessary to dissolve the monasteries and despoil the churches? Why the penal laws which lasted for three hundred years? The 'Anglo-Catholic' and continuity theories were only introduced with the Oxford Movement during the last century, and some of the most energetic protagonists of that movement, and thousands of humbler followers, have realised the error of their ways and made their submission to the Catholic Church.

I really cannot understand how educated and intelligent people can lapse into such wishful thinking and delude themselves with the idea that the ancient church of this country was not the true Catholic and Apostolic Church in complete union with Rome. That church was suppressed in the sixteenth century due to the political situation (just as is happening in Eastern Europe to-day), and the Church of England, 'by law established,' set up in its place. Now some people are realising the folly and malignity of the legislators of that time and are wanting to be Catholic but cannot 'swallow the Pope.'

I have had my say, Mr. Editor. If the ball comes back, and I have no doubt it will if you allow it, I shall leave it to abler brains than mine in the ringing fraternity to defend the Catholic viewpoint, and I don't mean 'Anglo.'

CHARLES MCGUINNESS.

BOTH CHRISTIAN

Dear Sir,—I had not expected that a statement of historical fact would evoke the letters of Messrs. Caple and Felstead, and beg your indulgence for a brief reply.

All our old cathedrals and great churches, practically without exception, were built by the Normans, usually on the site of a smaller church (the natives of that period, and long afterwards, not having the ability to plan and erect such edifices), and it is certainly news to myself that these people, invaders from a foreign country, were Englishmen and C. of E.!

I am aware of missionary effort earlier than Augustine, but they came from Rome, direct or via the Continent. The statement of both that we were in communion with Rome and not of it is amazing. Rome then, as now, does not tolerate part-timers; it has to be all or nothing. This attitude was reaffirmed by the Pope in December last, and by Cardinal Griffen again in Lent of this year, as an answer to the Anglo-Catholic movement. All Archbishops of Canterbury, up to the reign of Mary, were required to take an oath (of which I have seen a copy) recognising the Pope as their temporal and spiritual head, and agreeing to observe all the rites and ordinances of the Roman Church.

But why get agitated over the matter? I have always understood that both R.C.'s and C. of E.'s claim to be Christian!—Yours sincerely,

M. F. R. HIBBERT.

ANGLICANA ECCLESIA

Dear Sir,—'Anglica ecclesia libera sit,' 'Let the Church of England be free.' This is mentioned in the clauses of Magna Charta, 1215 A.D., and, moreover, signed by King John, Bishops and Barons. Evidently there was a Church of England in 1215. St. Hugh, Bishop of Lincoln, was a signatory, but politeness forbids me to repeat what he said of the Bishop of Rome.—Yours truly, HISTORICAL STUDENT.

THE BEARD

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. Clegg's protest at the 'repeated correspondence'—three letters in all during the past few months!—concerning 'The Beard,' may I point out that, although Mr. Clegg may not personally be acquainted with Jack Worrall, yet he is well known in ringing circles throughout different parts of the country, not only because of his late lamented beard but mainly owing to his ringing prowess. Therefore, I maintain that mention of any ringing personality in our journal is news and not solely 'personal correspondence of the few.'

Mr. Clegg's suggestion that the beard should be exhibited on our next Rag Day is rather belated, considering that the said beard is now non-existent!—Yours faithfully,

'SANS BARBE AUSSI.'

IS IT HUMOUR?

Sir,—We seem fated to have to endure the efforts of would-be humorists. The 1920's produced a wearisome succession of inane letters from individuals like 'Sammivell Peppery' and 'Irenæus Pistor.' In the 1930's we had to suffer numerous references to 'Kate' (whoever she may have been). Now we are having a spate of imbecilities about someone's beard. May I remind you, sir, that the function of this paper should be to deal with ringing matters. The owner of the beard and his associates are probably too immature to understand that no one else is interested in the private jokes of a few school children, but you, sir, have the means of enlightening them.—Yours, etc.,

F. I. HAIRS.

ENGENDERING INTEREST

Dear Sir,—May I thus briefly reply to recent correspondents and to others interested. Mr. Cleaver—Method Extension.

1. There is no disagreement on 'results obtained,' i.e., as to the theoretic form of extension. This is as invariable as any other straightforward mathematical operation. Examples to which he refers are simply modifications of the theoretic forms.

2. The introductory illustrated lecture on Grid Analysis, which indicates the process, was first given before the Universities' Association's summer meeting at Exeter in August, 1949. It is hoped that the full thesis may be completed and published later.

3. As far as I am aware, I have made no statement in this connection that I cannot substantiate. And Mr. Cleaver may be glad to know that in this case, Mr. Editor, the G.A. proof diagrams were sent you in all good faith, although space does not permit of their publication, of course.

4. It is not my intention to presume to 'compare' my humble efforts to help others with those of the authors Mr. Cleaver mentions, but, again, my results and work are open to any serious investigation.

Mr. Hodgson—Group Theory.

1. Calling one's honest efforts to help others 'wildest phantasies' is hardly likely to contribute towards the common good, especially when the innuendo is unfounded.

2. The article to which he complains certainly did not ascribe to Lederman a book on composition. As may be seen on reference, I indicated that his valuable work applies rather 'in the field of composition than of method structure.'

The foregoing corrections seem due to those who have so kindly expressed their interest in and the help they have derived from what one is trying to do.—Yours very truly,

A. YORK-BRAMBLE.

THE SWASTIKA

Dear Sir,—I was very interested in the article written about the Swastika in 'The Ringing World' (August 25th), and would like to tell the little story of my Swastika.

The symbol first caught my eye when I purchased in India some years ago a small mosaic trinket box, with a small Swastika incorporated in the design on the lid.

Some years later, when working a tablecloth in drawn-thread work, I decided to work a Swastika in the centre.

During World War II. an exhibition of handicrafts was being held to raise funds for a benevolent cause, and it was with some trepidation I decided to show my cloth with its emblem of Germany (as the Swastika had by then become) thereon. However, perhaps the viewers knew more of the ancient history of the emblem than myself. My cloth came through unscathed.

Being a bellringer myself, the article has cheered me considerably. Henceforth I shall be the possessor of a bellringers' tablecloth.—Yours faithfully,

M. M. GROVES,
Queen's Nursing Sister.

IRISH ASSOCIATION
EASTERN DISTRICT.

A meeting of the Eastern District of the Irish Association was held in Blessington on Saturday, September 2nd. Blessington is a village on the western border of the Wicklow Hills and is 19 miles from Dublin. It was the first occasion a meeting had been held there.

There are six bells in St. Mary's Parish Church with the tenor 16 cwt. They were cast by Thomas Bartlett in 1682 to the order of Primate Boyle, who was also Lord Chancellor of Ireland. All the original bells remain intact with their canons.

Thirty-seven ringers from Arklow, Blessington, Bray, Drogheda and Dublin (Christ Church Cathedral, St. George's and St. John the Baptist, O.S.A.) were present.

The bells were in continuous use during the afternoon, when call-changes, Grandsire Doubles and Plain Bob were rung. A number of local parishioners and holiday-makers remained in the tower throughout the ringing. Some of them were so keenly interested that they requested to be allowed to ring. They were given opportunities under the guidance of the 'experts.' One little girl, aged seven, refused to be deterred and had to be mounted on a box to ring the treble. Unfortunately, in the final ring before tea, the crown staple of the fifth bell broke—having been very much eaten away with rust—which prevented further six-bell ringing during the evening.

Tea was very kindly provided by the parishioners in the Church Hall and was presided over by the Rector (the Rev. J. Blackwell, M.A.). In all, 47 persons partook of the good things.

The Rector welcomed the visitors to Blessington and thanked the ladies for providing the tea. A vote of thanks was passed to the Rector and parishioners for their welcome, the use of the bells and the excellent tea arrangements.

Handbells were produced after tea, when the ringers rang touches of Plain Bob Minor, Grandsire Doubles and Triples. The locals, including the Rector and the seven-year-old girl, then took the handbells and rang some tunes for the entertainment of the gathering. So ended a very enjoyable day spent in pleasant surroundings.

RINGERS' ROLL OF HONOUR

Dear Sir,—I should like to remind secretaries of associations that the final date for sending in names for the Ringers' Roll of Honour is September 30th, 1950. H. MILES.

OBITUARY

MR. WILLIAM SHORT

As briefly recorded last week, Mr. William Short, of Clent, passed away on August 27th, in his eighty-third year.

Mr. Short was born in Pershore, Worcestershire, on Easter Sunday, 1868, and came to Clent with his parents as a small boy. At the age of sixteen he commenced to learn ringing, and his energy and keenness soon placed him in the forefront of his fellow practitioners in the north of Worcestershire. His work in the building industry took him far afield, and he continued adding to his laurels through the years. His peals totalled nine hundred and twenty-seven, and the outbreak of war in 1939 prevented him from scoring his thousand, for by the time peal ringing was once more a possibility, chronic arthritis precluded his climbing belfry steps and eventually completely incapacitated him.

His prowess as a conductor was too well known to need mention here, one of the high-spots being the 11,111 Stedman Cinques at St. Martin's in eight hours and two minutes on December 26th, 1901, during the time of his mastership of St. Martin's Guild.

For some years in the early part of the present century he was official instructor to the Hereford Guild, during which time he taught change ringing to upwards of eighty bands.

As a raconteur, his genial personality (very seldom ruffled except by slovenly ringing, which he could not tolerate) enabled him to present past episodes in his ringing career and that of many others in their most amusing light. These and the handbells have fittingly rounded off the proceedings of many very happy meetings.

The funeral took place at Clent on August 23rd, the Vicar, the Rev. Gwynfor John, conducting the service, and a course of Grand-sire Triples was rung over the grave by John Bass, Albert Walker, Clifford Skidmore and Bernard Ashford.

Afterwards 504 Stedman Triples was rung upon the tower bells, half-muffled, by William Dowding (treble), John Bass, Albert Walker (conductor), Reginald Chance, Clifford Skidmore, Derek Watson, John Lloyd and Thomas Hemming (tenor). A half-muffled in memoriam peal of Stedman Triples is to be attempted. B. C. A.

REV. S. N. DUDLEY

APPRECIATION.

At West Deeping, on August 28th, a quarter peal was rung with the bells half-muffled, as a last token of respect to the late Sheldon N. Dudley, M.A., Rector of West Deeping, 1925-35, who died at Lincoln on August 23rd.

Sheldon Dudley was not a ringer, but no ringer ever visited his church without a welcome from him. An Irishman, he entertained us with his good old Irish stories, told in his beautiful Irish accent, and always with the joke against his own kinsmen. His marvellous tenor voice was often heard and greatly enjoyed at concerts, ringers' suppers, etc.

How many of us thought, when we rang to welcome him to West Deeping in 1925, when we hoped him to sing in his church, when a parishioner had passed away, that beautiful hymn, 'Days and moments quickly flying,' that we should meet 25 years later to pay tribute to his memory as only ringers can. I was only a boy, but a ringer, when we welcomed him among us, and I am very pleased to think that one other member of that band was able to be with me to pay our last respects.—R.I.P.

Memories

OLD TOM'S NEW IDEA

Old Tom rang the 'ting tang' at the church for many years, but one day he found eight new bells in the churchyard. He did not like 'new fangled' things, so he contented himself with the duties of unlocking and locking the tower door. He would watch the new band of ringers at work and also the chiming for minor services, but Tom would never take a rope. When the Vicar found that Tom was not carrying out his duties, he asked the writer to instruct him regarding the five-minute bell. After explaining everything to him and devoting several evenings to practical instruction, it was realised that Tom would never be able to handle a bell satisfactorily, so he was given the choice of tolling or using a single chime.

One evening I heard the tenor sounding for a mid-week service, so I went up to see how Tom was progressing. The ringing room showed no signs of Tom, neither did the chamber above, but I went up and there, to my surprise, was Tom sitting in the tenor pit. In his hand he had a hammer, and each count of five he would land the bell a hearty blow on the sound-bow. When I sharply told him to stop, he said, 'Don't put me off my counting and stroking'!

PEALS AT 2s. 6d. EACH

Seeing Mr. Albert Walker's list of peals reminds me of one occasion we attempted a peal of Stedman Cinques at Birmingham. For some unforeseen reason the peal was lost, but one of the band kept on wailing and moaning about it. At last Mr. Walker said to him, 'Look here, I've got over 500 peals; I'll let you have as many as you like at 2s. 6d. each.' I don't think he sold any!

A WAYWARD ROPE

Once I had a very queer experience when I was raising the bells ready for ringing prior to the other ringers coming to the tower to ring for service. When I was raising the second bell I had the misfortune to miss catching the rope when the bell was nearly raised, so you can guess the result when the rope flew about the tower in all directions and, coiling round my neck in my struggle, took the skin off my chin. Of course, this upset me very much, as the choirboys were watching me. This incident happened about the year 1905, when I first started to be a bellringer.

RINGERS' OUTINGS

ASHCOTT AND SHAPWICK.

On August 19th the Ashcott and Shapwick bellringers, with their wives and friends, made a tour of various towers, leaving Ashcott at 1 p.m.

They first of all visited Nether Stowey and rang for about an hour. Afterwards they travelled through the lovely country towards Selworthy, stopping at Minehead, where some of the party alighted. At Selworthy the ringers were welcomed by Mr. Arscott, captain of the local ringers. The church is situated on the top of a hill in a lovely spot, and the surrounding country is most picturesque. Here the tourists rang for a while, and afterwards had a splendid tea in a cottage garden. After tea they rang for a short while before continuing their journey to Timberscombe. On the way they passed through the village of Dunster, one of Somerset's most beautiful spots.

The church at Timberscombe, which is very old and well cared for, and which has a lovely carved altar screen, has eight bells. Here the ringers rang until about 8.30. After this they made their way home, via Taunton, after a most enjoyable day. It is hoped that this outing will be made an annual event.

ST. MELLONS RINGERS.

On Tuesday morning, August 29th, a party of 33 ringers and friends from St. Mellons and Cardiff set off from in front of Reg's house for yet another of their annual outings. At Castleton, next village on the way to Newport, a young lady joined the party, and at Newport there was none other than J. W. Jones himself, looking very well and not his age.

The road to Ross was by now becoming familiar to the regulars, as it had been followed on at least two previous outings. This year we stopped for a ring on the fine eight, but the Stedman Triples, Grandsire Doubles and Triples and Bob Major did not do them full justice.

Next stop was Malvern, the road taking us through some very beautiful countryside. A very fine lunch was served at the Winter Garden Restaurant before the ascent to the Priory tower, where an hour's ringing was enjoyed on the eight bells. It was but a short trip to Malvern Link, where the light eight were fully appreciated. Among other methods rung here was a course of Kent Major. Tea was at a nearby restaurant.

It was a slow course to Hanley Castle, the only six on the programme, as no one was too sure of the route. Various methods were attempted on these bells, but not with the success that usually accompanies such efforts at home. The non-ringing members of the party regaled themselves on 'scrumpo' and other beverages at the nearby inn, and this stop was enjoyed by all. The last port of call (for ringing) was at Upton-on-Severn, where the light and easy-going eight were much appreciated. Here the ringing was the best of the day, with Stedman Triples the chef d'œuvre.

The journey home was broken but once, in response to many requests, and afterwards one young member of the party could be heard 'drying them home' in the back seat. 'Fireman Bill' delighted those in the rear of the coach with some of his ditties, and in such wise did the day draw to an untimely close.

Memories of this year's outing are once again the excellent arrangements made by Mr. Reg H. Addis, captain of St. Mellons ringers, and to whom all thanks are due, and the sight of J. W. Jones catching hold in every tower for a touch of Stedman. Here's to 1951.

LINDLEY RINGERS' TRIP.

On Saturday, September 2nd, several Lindley ringers, with others from towers in the Huddersfield area, enjoyed a half-day trip to Skipton and Kildwick. Leaving at 2 p.m. in two cars, the forward party arrived at Skipton on time, but the rear party was delayed, owing to the car, or maybe the occupants, running dry. This fine eight were eventually going to a well-struck touch of Treble Bob, which, however, had to be curtailed owing to tenor rope beginning to snap below sally. While a splice was being made, a touch of Spiced Minor was rung on the top six.

Further touches in Major, Triples and Minor were enjoyed until time for tea.

Proceeding to Kildwick, this handy octave was soon going merrily to a quarter peal. Following a further short touch, the nearest tavern was located, yarns were exchanged and handbells brought out and rung. Altogether a very enjoyable half-day.

A RINGERS' CRICKET MATCH

Ringing and cricket have as much in common in their attendant social sides as they have in contrast in the manner in which they are performed. Thus, when on August 27th the ringers of the Oxford Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild played the Banbury Branch ringers at cricket we had a very enjoyable afternoon and evening of pleasant contrasts and harmonious splicing of two activities. In fact, the splicing was so natural that this writer, at any rate, was never quite sure when he was supposed to make thirds or bowl, so familiar did he find the atmosphere to that normally experienced at both ringers' meetings and village cricket matches.

If the whole of England had been searched, no place for this event could have been found superior to Great Tew to hold it. The bells can scarcely be surpassed, a finer cricket ground scarcely exists, and the village, the pub and the beer are what they can only be in Cotswold country.

The Oxford District batted first and quickly compiled a useful score, mostly made up of a most attractive innings of 60 by Jim Honey. During the innings a well-known conductor of this locality, who was umpiring, showed that his ability in counting courses is not matched by his ability in counting the balls in an over.

A short shower precipitated a declaration, and so it was then the turn of the Banbury ringers to bat, and it soon became apparent that whereas some of the Oxford ringers very obviously spent more of their summer-time Saturday afternoons on the cricket field than in the tower, this could not be said of the Banbury ringers. A few mis-struck blows soon put them in trouble until tea was announced. This tea was the sort of meal to which only cricketers and ringers can do real justice, and over it the talk was of cover-drives, tenors, the county championship, and peals achieved. One member of the Banbury Branch expressed some doubt as to whether all the Oxford Branch team were bona fide ringers and if some of them were not really local club cricketers surreptitiously introduced into the side. This doubt was, however, soon dispelled when we adjourned to the adjacent tower to enjoy a ring on the magnificent ring of eight.

Battle was rejoined after ringing, and the Banbury ringers once again tried their luck with the bat. This time a varied attack was hit as it deserved to be, and so, when it was time for the Oxford ringers to bat again, they had to press their former umpire and two lady members into their side to strengthen it. After half an hour, in which one lady member showed the men how to bat, it was realised that the Falkland Arms was no longer closed, and so the evening was enjoyably concluded therein.

A BYGONE PERFORMANCE

ONE of those interesting sidelights on early ringing has been forwarded to us by Mr. Arthur J. Farr, of Spalding, Lincs, in the form of a newspaper cutting dated 1826 relating to ringing at Morton, Lincs, the parish church of which has to-day six bells with a tenor of 17 cwt. As was typical of the period, the ringers' achievement was commemorated in verse. The following is from the newspaper cutting, including the verses:—

'From the parish of Morton, near Bourn, in this county—a parish "famed for many strange events"—we have received the following account of a feat, which we think is best related in the exact words of our correspondent:—

Was rung by the Morton ringers on the first morning of the New Year, a merry peal of considerable length, it being a custom of the ringers of that parish church to welcome the coming of the New Year with a peal upon the well tuned bells of Morton Church; at which time the five ringers thought proper to try their skills in the art of ringing; to which purpose they succeeded in raising the bells, and ringing forty-seven five bell peals, and settling the bells not stopping. The work was completed by Robert Lister 1st bell, John Sandall 2nd bell, William Turner 3rd bell, Michael Boyer 4th bell, William Butler 5th tenor bell—the tenor bell weighing about a ton. This work in the art of ringing is well deserving the notice of the public, of which some person has made in their study in composing a few lines of poetry upon the same subject, which are as follows:—

The five church bell ringers of Morton five bells Assembled together for to try their skills
On the last new year morning, it was the time fixt,
They intended to ring through peals forty six.

With raising and ringing complete without stopping a bell
It was declared by their hearers they went through their work well,
For they went through their work and struck their bells even,
And completed the peals of forty and seven.

In the morning at five was the time they begun,
Five thousand six hundred and forty changes they rung.
They rang through the peals as well as lay in their powers,
And completed their work ten minutes under four hours.

It appears their all perfect, and they need no instructor,
For they completed their work without their conductor,
For the five other ringers they can strike their bells even,
And ring better without their conductor than with him.

Their conductor is absconded if the truth I must tell,
He never was able to conduct but one bell,
For when they ring without him they have no 'stomping' nor 'grining,'
Which makes it more pleasant for them that is ringing.

Morton ringers was advertised about two years ago,
For ringing through peals of twenty and one,
But he that wrote the advertisement thought himself head instructor
And gave himself the grand title of being conductor.

It seems evident that the peal consisted of 47 extents of 120 of Doubles. We cannot imagine that more than one method was employed, and it is likely that the same 120 was repeated 47 times in view of the absence of a conductor. The question of non-conducted or silent peals is under discussion in our correspondence column this week, and this peal at Morton certainly has a claim to notoriety by being the first non-conducted peal recorded. Would the Morton peal go down to fame as a silent peal? The verse clearly indicates that there was no stamping or grinning and the ringing was 'all perfect.' No such claim is made, but then it must be remembered that the peal was rung in an age which knew not the finer niceties of silent and non-conducted peals and the absence of umpires was not even questioned.

The 'stamping' conductor apparently is hereditary and not a breed of the present century. The verse also brings into being the differentiation between 'bob callers' and conductors, and we suppose it is true to say that from the advent of change ringing there have been so called 'conductors' whose perception is limited to the sight of one bell. What would make interesting reading would be the absent conductor's opinion on the performance!

Another interesting point is that the peal was started at 5 a.m. Peals rung before breakfast are not unknown, but to-day are seldom attempted. There are ringers living who have rung at 5 a.m. for a church festival, but with the change of habits of the people such ringing is not acceptable to-day. It must be remembered that consideration in all peal ringing is due to the community at large and the future of church bell ringing depends on the tolerance of those that have to listen to the bells being rung.

LATE NEWS.

We regret to hear of the death of Mr.
G. S. Mayers, of Norwich, who had a long association with St. Peter Mancroft. The funeral was on September 12th at Mancroft and interment was at Trowse.

The ring of eight bells at Cranborne, Dorset, is to be restored to make it worthy of the church and tower. The 5th bell, cast at the Salisbury Foundry about 1400, is to be retained and hung as a service bell. It is to be replaced by a new bell, and the remaining bells recast with extra metal to form a ring of eight, tenor about 17 cwt.
The order has been placed with Messrs. John Taylor and Co., who hope to complete the work by Christmas.

The local band which rang the peal of Bourne Surprise Major at Barnby Don, Yorks, on September 7th were all taught to ring by Mr. John Wardle.

Coincidence.—Mr. John E. Bibby rang his 400th peal and Dr. J. C. E. Simpson his 500th together at Newchurch on September 9th.

With reference to the peal at Sherborne
Abbey, special credit and thanks are due to
Mr. W. P. Lambert. It was intended to ring
Bob Major, but meeting one short, Mr. Lambert kindly stood in, rang an almost perfect peal, and became the first local ringer to score a peal at the Abbey.

Sir Graham Greene, of Harston, Cambs, who died on the same day as Field-Marshal
Smuts, and was a personal friend of the great South African statesman, took a great interest in Harston bells and ringers. When Harston bells were augmented and rebung in 1937 by Messrs. Taylor and Co., Sir Graham gave the second bell and his sister, the late Mrs. Phillips, the treble of the present ring of six. A quarter peal (720 Oxford Bob and 540 Plain Bob) was rung half muffled to his memory by R. H. Lawrence 1, J. G. Gipson
2, C. W. Cook (conductor) 3, W. A. Theobald
4, E. H. Finch 5, F. Harper 6.

BELFRY GOSSIP

To mark the 88th birthday of Mr. George Stacey,
hon. secretary of the Dun-ster Deanery of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association for 47 years, 1,260 Grandsire
Triples was rung at Minehead on September
13th by L. Mason, G. Maidment, J. Pugsley, J. Haydon, J. Hill, I. Farmer (cond.), A. R.
Tudball and J. Herrods. Other touches of Cateters, Major and Triples followed.

Correspondence arising from a paragraph in
Mr. Hibbert's letter relating to the English
Church is now closed.

The Lancashire Association have added to their list of firsts recently by Rutland Surprise at Douglas-in-Parbold, New Cambridge Surprise at Moorside and four Spliced Surprise methods at Newchurch.

Mr. Charles E. Borrett points out that the Leicester Diocesan Guild's record of 267 peals in 1949 was surpassed by the Norwich Diocesan Association in 1913 when they rang 291 peals, of which 277 were tower bell peals and 14 'in hand.' He adds his congratulations to members of the Leicester Guild on their fine score.

Mr. Arthur J. Farr, of Spalding, has in his possession a book entitled 'Campanology, or The Art of Change Ringing.' There is a date of 1703 written in pencil and references to 'J. D.' and 'C. M.' He enquires whether the date is correct and also if 'J. D.' and
'C. M.' refer to John Dolman and Charles Mason.

From Canada we have received news this week of a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples rung at Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria,
B.C., on August 12th. The ringers were Mary Emmertson (first quarter), Margaret Izard, T.
Arkel (first quarter), D. Boniface, A. King,
A. Izard, E. W. Izard (cond.), and T. Turner
(first quarter).

A PEAL RINGING TOUR IN SUSSEX

A Full Programme

THE success of any ringing tour is almost assured. For a party of friends to spend a week's holiday together in pleasant surroundings in pursuit of a well-loved pastime must always be a promising foundation upon which to build. The 1950 Sussex tour was certainly no exception. Fifteen 'resident' ringers, five wives and one or two 'casuals' on holiday in the district, together with Mr. William Rogers, of Rotherfield, comprised the party. Headquarters were at the Warren Hotel, Crowborough, a delightful country house surrounded by a large estate at the end of a mile-long private road.

The tour started and finished just over the border in Kent, the first success being at St. Peter's, Tunbridge Wells. The remainder of the party attempted Watford Surprise at Rotherfield, unhappily lost after two hours' fine ringing.

On Sunday morning service ringing at Rotherfield was from 9.30—11 o'clock and was much enjoyed in the company of a strong contingent of local ringers. The Rector (the Rev. H. E. Collins) came to the belfry and had a kindly word for the visitors and afterwards, at divine service, explained to the congregation the purpose of the tour, and expressed his pleasure that it was beginning and ending at Rotherfield. Sunday afternoon saw peal attempts at Withyham, when Bristol was unfortunately lost about half-way, and Coleman's Hatch where Berkshire, the first for the association, was knocked off in good style. Peter Bond was encamped nearby with a troop of scouts and was suitably mystified in trying to identify the method being rung on the bells. He came up after the peal and joined the tourists in a course of London for service.

Bexhill was the first call on Monday, a bright, sunny morning. It was here that the tourists had the great pleasure of seeing an old friend of several of the party, Mr. Leonard Stilwell, who came along to listen to the ringing in several of the peal attempts during the week. The Rev. Philip J. Boulsover was not to be seen when the party arrived but he was up aloft examining the ropes and generally looking after things. Those not in the peal of Ashted, the first in the method on the bells, had a pleasant hour or two by the sea, and afterwards all were joined by Mr. Boulsover and various members of the Rogers family at lunch. Those who spent the morning at the seaside heard what they thought to be an explosion, but later on it transpired that Eddie had called a bob rather loudly, for which, we were told, he immediately apologised. The ringers were disturbed, as they were lowering the bells in peal, by a loud knocking at the door, which George Fearn alleged was the work of one of the party. One does not know how he arrived at such an unkind conclusion, as the supposed culprit appeared almost immediately afterwards at another door of the church. However, George had a theory that only a ringer would have sense enough to wait until the bells were nearly down before attempting to interrupt the ringing.

MASTERY PERFORMANCE.

On Monday afternoon George Fearn gave a mastery performance on the rough-going tenor at Battle, where a good peal of Yorkshire was rung. He was wet from head to foot when he had finished but the writer, at any rate, has never seen a finer piece of heavy-bell ringing. The rest of the party went to Salehurst when, after some very good ringing on a lovely ring of bells, Bristol once more proved elusive.

Tuesday started with the disappointing news that St. Mary's, Eastbourne, would not be available, as the tenor clapper had broken. The bands for that day were, therefore, rearranged so that all had one attempt. Both peals were successful—Rutland at Hailsham, and Aldenham at Christ Church, Eastbourne. The former gave considerable pleasure to Frank

Hicks, who lives at Hailsham, and he rang the 7th to his first peal of Rutland in a creditable manner. At lunch, in Eastbourne, the party were joined by the local secretaries of St. Mary's and Christ Church, and those not in the peal spent most of the time by, or in, the sea. One ringer, at least, found that walking over the shingle beach in bare feet was rather like ringing a 90-cwt. bell with sore hands. Fortunately, perhaps, the expression on his face at the time was not photographed. We are also assured that it is as well no record was made of what he said about the shingle. It was on this afternoon, at tea-time, that Eddie Rapley made some startling revelations about some long peal he proposes to take part in. The details were not quite clear, but it seems he had been so thrilled with the recent record of Bob Royal that he was thinking of asking the conductor of the future long peal to go for 40,000 of Double Norwich instead of 30,000 as planned. There was a good deal of talk about upturned quart beer bottles that Eddie proposed to rig up over the bearings of the bell (we understood the 7th) that he was going to ring. It did not seem certain whether the bottles were to contain beer or lubricating oil (one wit thought the terms were synonymous).

Wednesday proved to be the most successful day. Of the three attempts planned all were successful and, in addition, permission was given for lost honours to be retrieved at Rotherfield where the band who had attempted the Watford Surprise on the previous Saturday, made good their loss, and achieved the first in the method for the association. The rest of the company journeyed to Fletching, where they were privileged to ring the first peal, London Surprise Major, on the recently augmented and restored ring of bells. It was here that Mr. Frank Lufkin thought he recognised the Vicar, and it turned out that the Rev. R. W. Burns-Cox had been curate at St. Mary's, Prittlewell, during Frank's choirboy days. The ringers were most hospitably received by the Vicar, who kindly had coffee and biscuits arranged for them at the conclusion of the peal. He was particularly happy that history had that day been made by the ringing of the first peal in over a thousand years' existence of the tower, which is of Saxon origin.

After lunch at East Grinstead, where the party were joined by Miss Shepherd, eight members had the great privilege of ringing a peal of Bristol on the melodious bells at St. Swithin's Church. In a light, airy belfry, where the acoustics are perfect, ringing was indeed a pleasure even though one or two of the bells were a little stiff towards the end of the peal due to lack of oil. The others of the party, meanwhile, rang a peal of Lincolnshire at Turner's Hill.

On Thursday morning the party were pleasantly surprised to be met at Cuckfield by George Cecil, master of the Sussex Association. A peal of Bristol was attempted and began to show promise, but alas, the rot set in after a time, and a little trip developed into a big one. A little bit of sorting-out was necessary, and it is alleged that the windows steamed up as a result of the conductor's activities. The sixth man said he enjoyed the trip, but the seventh man felt he was in danger of physical violence due to his nearness to the conductor. At all events, the bells were put right, but it was decided to stop and try again another day. In the meantime a peal, not on the programme, was slipped in at Slaughtam. It is said that George Fearn was most reluctant to stand in and only yielded to extreme pressure! Lunch was at Brighton, and the party were most happy to entertain Mr. Bill Hart, who reported that a good deal of work had been necessary on the eighth and tenor to make a peal attempt possible at St. Peter's. At all events, his work had been well done, as both bells went like the proverbial tops. Aldenham Royal was attempted, but in spite of its great similarity to Cambridge Royal, the twiddly bits seemed to want a lot of fitting in and, although a peal would certainly have been possible, the conductor decided to stop after a course and change the music, as it was a pity not to ring a good peal on such lovely bells. Ditchling had been obtained for the rest of the party but they came back with a story about the tenor being lighter than the treble, or something of the sort. One gathered that but for this, and the fact that the circle was the wrong way and the sixth slipped wheel, all might have been well.

A peal at Bristol, Tom Lock's first in the method as conductor, on the fine, light ring at Brightling, was a promising start for Friday. However, there was a disappointment at the same time, as an attempt for Cambridge Minor, not on the official programme, failed at Warbleton after the fifth 720. In the afternoon, at St. Leonards, Yorkshire was attempted but was abandoned after a course or two as the band found it impossible either to hear the bells properly or ring them. The others of the party rang a peal of London at All Saints', Hastings, where the bells are at the top of a high tower, and the ringing room immediately under them. They were found to be somewhat noisy, but went very well.

On Friday evening the party began to break up as Mark White had to go to work on Saturday (we have heard it called that before, but we hope she's nice!) and George went forth to capture other pastures in the north.

There was another peal at Rotherfield on Saturday morning—Double Norwich for a pleasant change, by request of the conductor. In the afternoon Bristol was attempted at Burwash and, unhappily, lost two courses from the end. This was a great disappointment as the bells are a lovely light ring, restored last year by Messrs. Taylor; the acoustics in the tower are perfect, the circle good, and the ringing some of the best of the week. The rest of the rather depleted party proceeded meanwhile to Rolvenden, Kent, where, assisted by Pat Murphy and Arthur Richards, they rang a peal of Yorkshire.

Bright and early on Sunday morning, some of the long-distance people commenced their journeys home and others attended at Rotherfield Church for the morning ringing. On Rotherfield station, whither he had escorted them, Bill Rogers explained the single-line system of railway working to some of the party waiting for the London train. It seems that it was in connection with this particular line that all legendary stories about cows on the line and the driver picking daisies and mushrooms growing between the station platforms and all that sort of thing originated.

Thus another happy week, long anticipated, but all too quickly passed, has come and gone. High praise is due for the excellent local arrangements made by Mr. Rogers: not a detail was missed, not a point forgotten. The ready permission and cordial welcome everywhere received, were also much appreciated. Here's to the next time!

SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

The annual cup contest was held at Wentworth on September 2nd in glorious weather. The six teams competing were Sheffield Cathedral, Bolsover, Whittington, Whiston, Rotherham Parish and Handsworth. The test piece was 360 Bob Minor. Whittington, who rang Kent, and Handsworth, who rang Cambridge, were disqualified.

Sixty sat down to tea in the Rockingham Arms, and at the business meeting which followed the chair was taken by the President, Mr. H. O. Chaddock. The two judges, Mr. J. Thorley and Mr. H. Chant, gave their verdict to Sheffield Cathedral, who were declared the winners. The cup was presented to Mr. S. F. Palmer by Mrs. Chaddock, wife of the President.

60 Years After

MR. I. EMERY.

'Erith.—The Kent County Association.—On Saturday, August 30th, 1890, in 2 hours 52 minutes, a peal of Grandsire Triples, 5,040 changes (Holt's Original): Henry Cornish* treble, Isaac Emery* 2, Edward E. Richards 3, Thomas Harford* 4, Walter Smith 5, George Conyard 6, Edwin Barnett, sen., 7, Charles Barber* tenor. Conducted by Edwin Barnett. *First peal.'

The passage of 60 years has left one survivor of this peal, Mr. Isaac Emery, for many years leader of the band at SS. Peter and Paul, Bromley, which was destroyed during the war. Now 79 years old, Mr. Emery was able to ring the same bell to a commemorative peal on the 60th anniversary of his first, and, curiously enough, both peals occupied 2 hours and 52 minutes. The band was made up mostly of ringers with whom Mr. Emery has been associated over the years, Messrs. Bennett, Barnett and Hewett among them having rung their own first peals over 61, 51 and 44 years ago respectively. The peal was rung on August 30th.

In the intervening years Mr. Emery has taken part in 362 peals, 306 having been for the Kent County Association. They have included 50 of Double Norwich, 64 of Grandsire, 61 of Sudman Triples, 42 of Cambridge and 35 of Superlative. He is very fit, and still cycles on occasions, but whereas in 1890 he and Messrs. Cornish and Harford walked the seven or eight miles from their home village of St. Mary Cray for the peal, and home again afterwards, Mr. Emery did not repeat this performance!

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION

It was hoped that the two trebles on order for Berrington would have been available for the meeting on September 9th, but the village and ringers must perforce wait a little longer.

Good ringing and good practice in Standard Methods and Cambridge Minor were enjoyed by the company of 30, and the very warm welcome of the Rector and ringers was much appreciated, as well as the tea prepared by the ladies of the local company.

After some discussion it was decided to alter the date of the November meeting, due on the 11th, to the 18th, and the secretary was asked to obtain an eight-bell tower if possible.

A collection was taken for the tower fund of the neighbouring village of Condover, where ringing has been suspended temporarily.

Stafford Archdeaconry Society

MEETING AT HOAR CROSS

Situated in a delightful corner of Staffordshire, the pretty village of Hoar Cross, with its magnificent church, was the venue for the meeting of the Society on August 26th. Few villages in England can lay claim to a finer parish church than the one at Hoar Cross. This lovely church of the Holy Angels is a veritable cathedral in miniature. The tower and the bells are in keeping with the rest of the church, the former being a landmark in the well-wooded countryside, and the latter a majestic ring of six with a tenor of 28 cwt. Considering the remote situation of Hoar Cross, the attendance of 36 at the meeting was very satisfactory. The service was conducted by the Vicar and a very nice tea followed.

After tea some of the ringers went on to Christ Church in Needwood, where the ring of five bells was available. The church there is situated on high ground opposite Hoar Cross, from which it is separated by a narrow valley. Standing outside Needwood church, the melodious sound of Hoar Cross bells coming across the valley was particularly fine.

Altogether this was a most enjoyable meeting and those who made long journeys to reach Hoar Cross were amply rewarded.

The next meeting of the Society is at Coseley on October 21st.

ADELAIDE UNIVERSITY GUILD

The Adelaide University Guild, formed a short time ago, is probably the only university change-ringing guild outside the British Isles. At present, there are 14 members, six of whom are capable tower bellringers. On August 16th they rang a quarter peal of Doubles to mark the royal birth. The band was: J. F. Eggleton (cond.) 1—2, P. L. Cooper 3—4, Miss C. Lamphree 5—6.

At present the main aim is to learn Bob Minor 'in hand.' The ringers are using the Central Council's 'Change Ringing on Handbells' as a guide, and find it extremely useful. At the same time, some of the members are being taught tower ringing. This should eventually be a great help to ringing in Adelaide. It is the members' hope to be in control of the ring of eight in the Town Hall. These bells are by Warners, with a tenor of 13 cwt. They have not been rung for 50 years, and the problem of persuading the City Council to spend money on reconditioning the bells is a difficult one.

The officers of the Guild are: President, Marc Clift; Master, Philip Cooper; Secretary, Miss Catherine Lamphree; Treasurer, Ronald Nogare.

It is possible the Adelaide ringers will possess shortly a set of eight handbells. If their efforts to procure this fail, however, no doubt a second-hand set can be obtained from England. Such is their hope, at any rate.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL SWINDON BRANCH

A meeting was held at Wanborough on September 9th, and nearly 50 ringers attended to try the new ring of six bells recently restored and augmented by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. Wanborough is one of the few churches with west tower and central spire, and now possesses a good six with a tenor of 18½ cwt.

At the business meeting the Master of the Association (Mr. W. B. Kynaston) presented the Vicar with a cheque for £15 from the Belfry Repair Fund, and the Vicar was congratulated on his enterprise in restoring and augmenting the bells.

It was proposed that meetings be held at Stratton St. Margaret, Brinkworth had Swindon during the next three months. Several local ringers were elected members of the Association and an attempt will be made to create a change-ringing band. Methods rung ranged from Grandsire Doubles to London Minor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PUZZLED

Dear Sir,—I have read with interest the 'peal columns' in last week's issue, but find myself somewhat puzzled by the manner in which several of the peals rung during what was obviously a very successful tour of the Midland Counties Guild are set out.

I notice, for instance, that four of the tower bell peals are described as 'non-conducted,' while the peal of Yorkshire at Kegworth is called 'silent.' May I ask where the difference lay? Were the other four intended to be silent, but some instruction was found to be necessary? Surely, if so, whoever gave the necessary instruction should be mentioned as the conductor. Furthermore, I have always understood that one should have an umpire in the tower if it is desired to ring a strictly silent peal.

Secondly, I do not approve of the curt manner in which many of the compositions are described. While a case may be argued for putting 'Middleton's' at the head of a peal of Cambridge Major, surely 'Washbrook's' Stedman Triples should be styled Washbrook's variation, while I have a strong suspicion that Parker, Hattersley and Pritchard composed other peals in the various methods concerned than the well-known ones actually rung during this tour. And whereas 'Parker's,' 'Hattersley's,' etc., do convey some meaning to me, I must plead ignorance of the significance of 'Trotman's' in connection with New Cambridge. To me, this method of indicating the composer savours of presumption; surely it is more dignified to say, 'composed by———, conducted by———.'

I hasten to add that I am not questioning the integrity of any of the composers or ringers concerned, but I do feel that there must be several, besides myself, who would like some explanation of these points.

It is also a little surprising to find a peal on the back eight of a ring of twelve bells described as being on 'the heaviest in the country.' Surely a ring of bells should be considered as a whole; if not, the heaviest six in the country are not the well-known bells at Queen Camel, but the back six at Exeter!—Yours faithfully,

F. E. HAYNES.

UMPIRE NECESSARY?

Dear Sir,—On reading 'The Ringing World' of September 9th, I was surprised to find that there was a list of non-conducted peals, which, in my opinion as a young ringer, ought to have been umpired. This in itself shows that the ringers concerned little respected the usual formality of having an umpire present, and publishing his report with the peals, as did the Chester ringers.

What must be the views of the older and more experienced exponents of the Art!—Yours faithfully,

W. A. L.

73 STEDMAN TRIPLES

Dear Sir,—In reply to 'A Groper' in your issue of July 21st, 72 or 73 Grandshire Triples are impossible without putting in 2, 3 or 4 odd changes either at the beginning or at the end.

73 Stedman Triples are possible, but not with the usual Stedman start. Beginning the changes with the first change of a quick six call, a single at the end of the 4th six, a bob at the end of the 7th six, and singles at the end of the 9th and 12th sixes, and the bells will come round at hand at the first change of the next six.—Yours truly,

C. CHAMBERS.

'THE NATURE OF THE UNIVERSE'

Dear Sir,—Many of the statements in the 'Ringing World' of September 8th, under the heading of 'The Nature of the Universe,' are as foolish as they are startling, and your readers should be warned against believing that 'which changes the Truth of God into a lie' (Romans 1, 25).

Ringers, by the very work they do in support of the Church, make an open profession of being Christians; we are therefore under obligation to accept the Word of God as the 'rule' by which these things are 'measured.'

According to these new theories, the sun is getting hotter so that eventually the Earth will be melted. The Bible states that not only did God create the Heavens and the Earth, but that 'the Earth abideth forever' (Eccl. 1, 4), and the 'Earth which he hath established forever' (Psa. 78, 69). Evidently God doesn't intend to destroy, or permit to be destroyed, His own glorious Handiwork.

You also state that 'planets such as our Earth are a normal product of stars.' This is utter rubbish, and all right-thinking people will believe the Word of God, which states that 'God created the Heavens and the Earth,' and that He 'made the stars also,' (Genesis 1, 1 and 16), and that these 'lesser lights' were created by God to be a guide for man and to give him light upon the Earth during the hours of darkness.

The statement about a cricket team to match the Australians may well be treated with the contempt it deserves.

During the days of the Early Church, Greek philosophy, astronomy and fables were so rife that St. Paul many times had occasion to warn the Christians to 'refuse profane and old wives' fables, but exercise thyself rather unto godliness (I. Timothy 4, 7), and that 'the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God' (I. Corinthians, 1). Such a warning needs to be given to-day to 'all who profess and call themselves Christians,' and space in the 'Ringing World' used to this end would be more profitably used than being given to articles like the one under discussion.

—Yours faithfully,

R. S. HUNT.

AN INTERESTING SIGNBOARD

Dear Sir,—Adjoining Kendal Parish Church in Westmorland is the 'Ring of Bells' Inn. While it is common for a public-house to be near a church and to be called the 'Ring of Bells,' I have not seen a painted board on the wall of any other public-house showing a team of ringers at work, as is the case with the 'Ring of Bells' at Kendal.

The painted board contains no words and shows ten ringers (for I believe there are ten bells at Kendal), but the ringers are standing in three groups, and each group appears to be ringing its own method. The ringing chamber is about average height, and immediately above the roof are shown three bells. I thought it an interesting though somewhat inaccurate picture to motorists and passers-by, for the inn is on the A6 main road to Scotland and the Lake District.

It would be interesting to know if there are any similar paintings elsewhere in Britain, and if these give a reasonable idea to non-ringers of ringers at work.—Yours sincerely,

PAUL BIRKETT.

SYSTON, LEICS. — On Aug. 29th, 1,260 Grandshire Doubles: Jean M. Kirkman (first quarter) 1, B. S. Payne 2, Mary C. Payne (first quarter 'inside') 3, H. Humphreys 4, E. F. Payne (cond.) 5, D. Sver 6. A birthday compliment to the treble ringer.

No Defence to Ringing Needed if Three Conditions Prevail

Dear Sir,—To my mind, no 'defence' of ringing is called for provided that these three conditions are satisfied: (1) that the bells themselves are reasonably musical and pleasant to listen to; (2) that the volume of sound in the immediate neighbourhood of the church is appropriately controlled, and (3) that the standard of striking is high. In these days, the first condition is almost always satisfied by the bellfounders, the second usually, although not quite so reliably; the fulfilment of the third condition depends upon ourselves, particularly upon the conductor. And it is here, of course, that some defence or 'apologia' is called for only too frequently! For that matter, other English pastimes, at the moment, call even more obviously for 'defence,' e.g., county cricket!.

For myself, throughout my ringing career I have been fortunate in coming into contact with ringers of high ability, both as ringers and as conductors. From my '6-bell' days, the names of Albert Austin of Stapleford and of Robert Howard of Barley come readily to mind. At the university I was guided in the right path by Chris Woolley, the late Stephen Wood (especially on handbells), and Wilfrid Hooton. On the annual tours of the Cambridge University Guild, I have been privileged to ring with such men as the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, the Rev. H. L. James and others almost equally famous. Since 1929, part of my ringing has been done with the St. Martin's Guild, in and around Birmingham, when, in common with several of my contemporaries, I have profited from the help, advice and inspiration of Messrs Albert Walker, Paddon Smith, George Swann, Harry Withers, etc.

Peal-ringing—number according to taste—increases the enjoyment derived from his hobby by the competent ringer to an almost incalculable extent. It leads to an improved standard of ringing, to interesting exploration of our country and the beauty of its churches and cathedrals, to an ever-growing circle of friends in the Exercise; in time it brings a store of memories, both of success and failure, which provides matter for interesting contemplation for oneself at all times, surprisingly often for others. Even a cursory perusal of my own modest achievements has caused me to take up for more of your space than originally intended. A more detailed study would lead to the writing of a book, something that would indeed call for a 'defence.'—Yours faithfully, Smethwick.

FRANK E. HAYNES.

MR. BAKER'S REPLY TO MR. LINDLEY

Dear Sir,—It has been well known to me and other composers for over forty years that London Surprise does not extend beyond Major with coursing order lead-heads, therefore extensions can only be something as near as possible to the Minor and Major.

There is one plain method with the same lead-heads as London Surprise Minor and Major that extends perfectly to Infinity, i.e., Double Oxford and the pivot bells have backward coursing order, 5-7-9-e. The round blocks of Double Oxford, when compared, have a mathematical progression of 312-231 throughout from Minor to Maximus, and as No. 3 Version London Royal and Maximus have the correct pivot bells and have a similar mathematical progression to Double Oxford, I have a perfect right to say that it is a true extension as near as possible to London Surprise Minor and Major. To argue that 4th is the correct pivot bell for Royal and the 7th for Maximus, as York-Bramble does, is simply a travesty of the truth, and there are only 22 round blocks in his so-called London Royal and Maximus that have 312-231 progression.

OBITUARY

MR. WILLIAM SHORT

AN APPRECIATION

As recorded in last week's 'Ringing World,' another of the old stalwarts, Mr. William Short, of Clent, Worcester, has passed on at the ripe age of 82 years.

William Short was outstanding as a ringer and conductor on tower and handbells for very many years, he having rung his first peal (Grandsire Triples) at Hagley in November, 1888, and his first peal as conductor, also at Hagley, only two months later. Since that time, William Short had spent 60 years in encouraging and helping others in the art of change ringing.

With the late John and William H. Barber, also of Clent, he came to Birmingham, and on the death of Henry Bastable, the then conductor at St. Martin's, he succeeded him as the Deputy Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild from 1899 to 1906. He conducted the then record peal, 11,111 Stedman Cinques at St. Martin's on December 26th, 1901, and also took part in the then record peal of London Surprise Major, 14,112 changes at King's Norton on May 11th, 1903. He also took part in several other record lengths, notably 10,176 Double Oxford Major at Brierley Hill, December, 1909, and 9,728 Superlative Surprise Major at Clent, December, 1910.

Mr. Short, during a ringing tour in Ireland in 1901, conducted the first true peal of Kent Treble Bob Royal at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, and also took part in the first peal of Surprise rung out of England.

He also conducted the first peal ever rung on the sea, a peal of Stedman Caters on handbells while crossing from Dublin to Holyhead on May 29th, 1901, and a photo of the handbell peal band hangs in St. Martin's ringing chamber, Birmingham.

Mr. Short was also instructor to the Hereford Diocesan Guild from 1902 to 1915, but it was the Worcestershire Association with which he was closely associated for over 60 years, and for his many services he was made the first Freeman and a Lay Vice-President. He served as Master from 1934 to 1938, also as their representative on the Central Council for nine years and was a member of the Central Committee of the Worcestershire Association for 25 years.

Much more could be written about this grand and talented ringer and, for those who are interested, his photo and his ringing career were published in 'The Ringing World' on January 6th, 1939, under the heading, 'Leading Conductors.' He had rung approximately 930 peals and conducted at least a third of them, and it was ill-health in his later years which prevented him reaching his 1,000th peal. A. W.

MR. H. R. NEWTON

A last tribute of respect to the memory of St. Paul's Cathedral Guild's oldest member, Mr. H. R. Newton, was paid on Tuesday, September 12th, when the bells of the Cathedral were rung half muffled, the 'whole pull and stand' denoting the age of the deceased. To ring these heavy bells in this manner is, indeed, a formidable task, but it was successfully accomplished (as it should have been) in memory of a fine ringer and a great friend.

Those who took part were: E. G. Fenn 1, W. H. Pasmore 2, T. H. Taffender 3, H. N. Pitstow 4, R. W. Green 5, H. Langdon 6, H. Belcher 7, J. F. Smallwood 8, J. Bullock 9, J. H. Waugh 10, J. Phillips 11, A. B. Peck and W. Langdon 12.

Afterwards three perfect courses of Stedman Cinques were rung, with H. Langdon conducting.

MR. J. NICHOLLS

We are sure the many ringing friends of Mr. Josiah Nicholls will learn with regret of his passing away on September 1st. He was 85 years old, and had been a ringer at All Saints' Church for 54 years, most of these as foreman of the tower. He retired from active ringing four years ago, when he found the stairs to the bell chamber too much for him to climb. He was then made hon. foreman for life. He had been vice-president of the Beds Association for 25 years. Mr. Joe Nicholls was always willing to help all learners and most of the local band were taught by him. He was not an ardent peal ringer and only rang 19 peals during his life.

The funeral took place on September 4th. The Beds Association were represented by the president, Miss Steel, and vice-president, Mr. D. Harris. Mr. F. Vickers represented St. Barnabas', Linslade, and members of the local tower also attended. In the evening a half-muffled quarter peal, 1,331 changes of Grandsire Caters, was rung in one hour by the following band: J. H. Conquest 1, F. J. Plummer 2, Miss V. Willard 3, F. Vickers 4, H. B. Whitney 5, R. Piron 6, V. W. Conquest 7, E. J. Conquest 8, J. E. Arnold (cond.) 9, W. Insley 10.

MR. JAMES WELLS

A familiar figure has been removed from local ringing by the death of Mr. James Wells, at the age of 89, which occurred at his home at Potterne, Wilts, on August 31st.

Mr. Wells was born in the village and succeeded his father, who had served for 44 years, as verger in 1906. He was a ringer for 60 years, and for many years was also in the choir. Two sons, a daughter, eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren are left in bereavement.

There was a large congregation at the funeral on September 4th, and the Devizes Branch was represented. On the same day a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung half-muffled in memoriam by the following: A. T. Weeks 1, J. S. Weeks (cond.) 2, W. P. Mead 3, R. Smith 4, W. Mortimer 5, W. Burden 6.

PEAL WITHDRAWN

Dear Sir,—I wish to withdraw the peal of Plain Bob Royal rung at St. John's, Leicester, on February 11th, 1950.

The composition was 5,040 by Harry Poyner, which has been discovered to be false.

I trust you and the members of the band will accept my sincere apologies.—Yours faithfully,

TERENCE A. THORNER.
Leicester.

DEDICATIONS

PAIGNTON, DEVON.

On Sunday, September 3rd, before a large congregation at Evensong, the Archdeacon of Totnes the Ven. E. F. Hall, rededicated the ring of eight bells of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Paignton.

The bells have been tuned, fitted with modern clappering and rehung on ball bearings in the old frame by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, who were also responsible for the installation of a modern tower clock fitted with an electric winding system. The firm were represented at the service by Mr. Don Bradford.

The 22 cwt. tenor in F was cast by Pennington of Exeter in 1641. Five further bells are dated between 1748 and 1871. This ring of six was increased to eight by the addition in 1902 of two trebles cast by Mears and Stainbank.

After the service the bells were rung to rounds and later to Grandsire. The ringers were very pleased with the result of the work carried out and with the great improvement in the tone and 'go' of the bells.

The Archdeacon took as his text the verse from Psalm 19, 'There is neither speech nor language; but their voices are heard among them,' stating that for centuries bells had called people to prayer and worship; and emphasising how great an honour and privilege it was for the present generation to restore bells in order that they might continue to ring out the Christian message to all parts of the land.

SOUTH WIGSTON.

On Sunday morning, September 11th, at a special service, the Vicar, the Rev. R. W. Woods, rededicated the bells of St. Thomas', South Wigston, after the work (carried out by the founders, Messrs. John Taylor and Sons) of placing on new ball bearings and general overhaul.

At the same service a peal tablet to the respected memory of Charles Marshall and J. Leslie Willars was dedicated.

For evening service, 1,264 Plain Bob Major was rung by: H. Bray 1, H. Kilby 2, J. J. Morris 3, F. E. Wilson 4, S. Cox 5, A. E. Bodycote 6, A. Patrick 7, W. A. Riddington (conductor) 8.

GUILD OF DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

MEETING AT TEIGNMOUTH

The Mid-Devon Branch held a by-meeting at St. Michael's, East Teignmouth, on September 9th. There was not a large attendance, but some very good ringing was indulged in during the afternoon, this consisting of Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Plain Bob Major. After tea at a nearby cafe, a move was made to Bishopsteignton, where Grandsire and Stedman Doubles were rung for about an hour.

RINGERS' EXHIBIT

In Pembrokeshire a Hobbies Exhibition was held at Haverfordwest, and the bell ringers of St. Mary's were asked to stage a show amongst exhibits of textile, models, art, crafts and collections to show how interest was sustained in bell ringing beyond its primary purpose.

The case was considered, and the stall displayed muffles, bell ropes, Central Council publications, 'Ringing World,' Method Sheets, and Mr. Frederick Sharpe called in on his way back from Ireland to deliver 50 of his mounted photographs.

In the evenings of the three days the ringers rang some tunes and changes and drew most of the assembly to their stall. Many questions were asked, particularly as to what the muffles were for, and one young lady gave a lecture on the runic characters used for the inscription on the Hugh and Sybilla Gargat bell.

Outings

BEXHILL-ON-SEA.

Owing to the occupations of several of our ringers, we were unable to arrange a full day's outing, but we were determined to get the most into a half day.

There were ringers from Eastbourne, Helmingly, Hastings, St. Leonards and Aldershot. Our first call was Lydd where we soon heard Stedman being tapped out. The more agile of us went on the top of the tower and enjoyed the wonderful vista. Handbells were rung in the coach but every time the tenors were parted we seemed to strike a tremendous bump in the road and that was the end of Bob Major.

The next tower was New Romney where we had already received a letter from the Vicar saying we had better ring the bells well or else—and I think our striking was fairly good. A much-needed tea came next, and then on to Warehorne where the Vicar was waiting. Most of the ringers rang here, but some were more interested in the organ which had to be blown by hand, and they queued up to be 'blowers.' Our last tower was Appledore. Double Norwich came to grief, but as all the belfry lights had fused we blamed the obvious, otherwise striking was good.

Our thanks are due to all vicars and captains of the towers for meeting us, and to the Rev. P. J. Boulsover and Mr. C. Verdon for making all the arrangements. B. R. C.

EAST RETFORD.

On August 19th a party of ringers from East Retford, Sutton-on-Trent, and Gamston left in two cars for an outing in Lincolnshire.

The first stop was at St. Giles', Lincoln (8), where the bells were raised in readiness. Here a nicely-struck quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung.

The next stop was Washingborough (8), where a quarter peal of Bob Major was successfully brought round. Here a kindly soul made us a jug of tea, with which we had our sandwiches on the village green.

A move was then made for Metheringham (8), where it was intended to ring from 1.30-2.45, but owing to a funeral at 2.30 we just had half an hour on these bells.

After this the back eight at Ewerby (10) were soon set going for a quarter of Oxford Bob Triples, but unluckily this was lost at almost half-way.

Tea was kindly arranged for the party at Sleaford by Mrs. Wray, which was followed by ringing at the Parish Church.

The last call was Caythorpe (8), where we accomplished a quarter of Oxford Bob Triples, this time without a hitch. We also had a few short touches with the local band, and then off for home, everyone agreeing it had been a really good day. K. B.

FRENCH PRESIDENT'S THANKS

An illuminated peal card was prepared and sent to the President of France recording the peal rung by the Kent County Association at the Church of SS. Peter and Paul, Borden, Kent, on Saturday, March 11th, 1950, in honour of the visit to London of the President and Madame Auriol.

The following is a reply received from le Secrétaire Général of the President:—

Monsieur, — Monsieur le Président de la République me charge de vous remercier très vivement de l'envoi que vous avez fait du programme musical qui a été exécuté le Samedi 11 Mars 1950, en l'honneur de sa visite à l'Eglise St. Pierre et Paul.

Il m'a prié de vous dire combien il avait été sensible à cette attention qui est un précieux témoignage de l'amitié qui unit nos deux pays.

Veillez agréer, Monsieur, l'expression de mes sentiments distingués.

(Signed) JEAN FORGEOT.

Electronic Bells

The following appeared in the 'Horological Journal,' August, 1950, and is forwarded to us by J. L., of Derby, 'without comment':—

When the ancients of the village, accompanied as a rule by one or two younger addicts, gather in the clock tower to ring a Triple Bob Major, age and enthusiasm or perhaps a failing of memory introduce a number of timing errors and the swinging bells have a Doppler effect on the notes. These variations are part of the appeal of bell ringing to the hearer.

The Synchronome Co., however, have introduced what they call the Carillone electrical bell chiming generator which does away with not only the bell ringers but the bells themselves, yet reproduces the human and musical failings of each.

The Carillone system, which was mentioned in the B.I.F. report in 'Horological Journal,' May issue, introduces all the pure tones and harmonies, such as the hum note, nominal, quint and tierce, by electronic methods. The timbre of the bell notes can be adjusted and the minor interval formed by certain harmonics in a conventional church bell can be incorporated at will.

Mechanical exactitude is avoided in the electrical automatic change ringer which will produce changes without repetition for about 35 minutes. If the apparatus is shut off before this period, it will automatically change to 'rounds' before finally stopping.

One unit generates all the necessary frequencies for 12 bells and can be added to a Synchronome turret clock for striking and chiming as well as for operation by a keyboard, change-over being effected by a switch.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

MEETING AT ABBOTSBURY.

The quarterly meeting of the Dorchester branch was held at Abbotsbury on August 12th.

The six bells of the Church of St. Nicholas were raised soon after 3 o'clock, and were rung until 4, when the Guild service was held, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. A. Phillips), who gave a most interesting address to a congregation of just over 30 ringers and friends.

The Vicar traced the history of the bells from Saxon times, through the various stages of their development and use, from the ringing of the curfew bell to the change-ringing of the present day, and from the single bell to the great rings of 10 and 12 which are heard to-day. The lesson was read by Canon A. W. Markby, branch chairman.

Tea was served at the Ilchester Arms Hotel, and was followed by a short business meeting, presided over by the chairman, who thanked the Vicar for allowing the branch to visit Abbotsbury church for the meeting, and also for his address.

Mr. Phillips said, in reply, that the guild were always welcome, although it was only right that all towers should be visited in turn and therefore quite a long period must elapse between visits, the last meeting in Abbotsbury being in 1948.

Following the meeting, ringing was continued until 8.45 p.m. under the direction of the Ringing Master, Mr. F. Precey, the methods rung being Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Reverse Canterbury and Kent Treble Bob Minor.

The London area was represented by a young holiday-maker, who cycled from Bridport to Abbotsbury and back, just for a few minutes' ringing.

A TREASURE RETURNS TO MANCROFT

BY GILBERT THURLOW.

THE recovery of treasures known to have been tantalisingly lost is always an exciting experience, whether it be the raising of gold from a Spanish galleon, or the tracing of valuable documents or the lifting of Roman valuables from Norfolk fields. Mancroft has had such an experience lately. Here is the story.

Old pewter is always interesting and attractive. With a tradition behind them dating to Roman times, the pewterers of England were for centuries a highly honoured and proud class of men. The Pewterers' Guild was constituted in 1348, and its story is one of very human interest. Its rules, modified through the centuries, for protecting its members and keeping the standard of work high, have resulted in the production in England of some very fine pewter plate, mainly 17th century, and some 18th century.

A large number of fine old pewter plates and flagons are to be found in parish churches, for, after the Reformation, when so much valuable gold and silver was stolen from the Church, pewter was allowed for Communion plate by an ordinance of 1603. In later years most churches have acquired silver again, and pewter is rarely used, though many churches still possess pieces.

It might be thought that collectors of pewter might prove a menace to church plate by casting envious eyes on it, but nothing could be further from the truth. Collectors sometimes manage to bring to the notice of church authorities the value of their neglected pewter, and occasionally the generosity of some collector results in the return of some lost piece to the church.

A few months ago Mr. C. A. Peal, of Norwich, a member of the Society of Pewter Collectors, was offered a large lidded flagon with an interesting inscription by a Norwich antique dealer. It was dated 1764, but as Mr. Peal's chief interest is 17th century pewter, he got in touch with a friend, Mr. Roland J. A. Shelley, of Southport, who he knew was interested in church pewter of this kind, and Mr. Shelley bought the flagon

Although many pewter flagons may have been domestic in origin, owing to the softness of the metal, probably most domestic flagons may have been destroyed, so any flagon in an antique shop is likely to have an interesting history, as having been the property of a church, or of some kind of society. This flagon is inscribed: 'Campanæ Sonant Canore. Edw'd Crane, Headman; Saml Sewell & John Keepus, Supervisors. Love as brethren,' together with a bell as part of the ornamentation.

Mr. Peal wrote to me about this, and I felt sure it must belong to the Society of Norwich Scholars, the famous Society who rang Mancroft bells and who claimed to have been founded in 1603. This Society, after a very interesting and honourable history (see 'Church Bells and Ringers of Norwich,' A. G. G. Thurlow, 2nd edition, no increase in price), disbanded itself over 50 years ago, and the corporate property was distributed amongst individual members. Much of it has been lost, but this leads to the occasional excitement of tracing and recovering a piece. Walter Rye, the famous Norwich antiquary, discovered the parchment roll containing the Society's rules, at Exeter, and it is now back at Mancroft. The 'Purse Book' and the 'Book of Accompts,' dated 1737, are in Mancroft ringing chamber, and some of the tokens are in the vestry.

How delightful it would be if the newly-discovered flagon might return to Mancroft! I ventured, during a long and interesting correspondence, to put this possibility before Mr. Shelley. Would he see fit to allow Mancroft to have it? After all, the acquisition of such a piece is a great joy to a keen collector, and as Mancroft had lost it once before, what proof had he that it would find there the loving appreciation which he was giving it? However, he came to feel that Mancroft now values its treasures keenly and intelligently, and, making an act of very great kindness and self-sacrifice, he has presented this treasure to the church, earning the gratitude of all who love Mancroft.

Mr. Peal has most kindly and expertly cleaned and repaired it. Although its home is settled, its origin remains a mystery. Mr. Peal cannot trace the maker, for the maker's mark, in the base, is hitherto unrecorded, and the 'hall marks,' other than an 'M,' are not legible. It may, Mr. Peal thinks, have been made in Norwich, perhaps by a descendant of the pewterer Melchior, who worked in St. John's Alley. Who knows?

Friday last was the 79th birthday of Mr. Ernest Weatherby, late of Market Drayton, now of Los Angeles, California.
To mark the event the Leicester ringers rang a peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major on a set of handbells specially sent to England for repairs by Mr. Weatherby. All friends will wish him 'very many happy returns.'

Re the correspondence on the difference between 'silent' and 'non-conducted' peals, a bright young thing enquires if a silent peal is one rung without clappers!

Conductors will find the 'Collection of Major Method Peals,' the latest publication of the Central Council, invaluable. For details see back page.

St. Luke's, Bromley Common, was the 100th tower in which Mr. Thomas E. Sone has rung a peal. The band was kindly entertained to tea by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lyddiard after the peal.

First lady member of the National Police Guild is Miss Betty Lee, of Manchester. Attending the annual meeting of the National Police Guild in London, she was waylaid by photographers and reporters in a fashion befitting a Hollywood film star.

Last year Mr. J. H. Brothwell rang a peal of Yorkshire on his 75th birthday. A peal was to be arranged this year on his 76th birthday, June 2nd, but unfortunately he spent that day in a far less pleasant manner on the operating table in a nursing home. He made an amazing recovery, was back in Handsworth belfry only a fortnight after the operation, and only a few weeks later still made up for not getting his 76th birthday peal by standing in the above peal for his golden wedding. Mr. and Mrs.
Brothwell were married at Sutton-in-Ashfield on August 21st, 1900.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The claim of the first peal of Spliced Maximus in hand is almost 19 years too late, as the first was rung on October 15th, 1931, at Leverstock Green and conducted by Mr. Walter Ayre.

Ordained a deacon last Sunday at Exeter Cathedral was Mr. N. F. D. Coleridge. He is now living at Newton Abbot.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sone, of Linton, Kent, who celebrated the 56th anniversary of their wedding on September 15th.

The Ringers' Roll of Honour which the Central Council are preparing contains just under 220 names.

Mr. Richard Newman, of London, N.4, has rung 100 quarter peals with the late Mr.
George Charge and also with his brother, Mr.
Reuben Charge.

Mr. T. E. Sone writes withdrawing the peal of Treble Bob rung at Brenchley on February 21st, 1948, as the composition which appeared in the K.C.A. Report, 1949, was recently found to be false by the composer, Mr. Nolan Golden.
He tenders his apologies to the band.

Mr. J. Perrett, of Steeple Ashton, Wilts, has completed 60 years as a ringer and chorister. In honour of the event 1,260 Grand-sire Doubles was rung on Sept. 12th by H. A.
Gummer (cond.) 1, Miss E. Bennett 2, J. D.
Rowley (first quarter) 3, V. H. Rose 4, C. G.
Turney 5, C. Jordan 6.

Miss Christine Dunnington corrects the claim that the peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major at Terrington St. Clement, Norfolk, was the first in the method for the Ely Diocesan Association.
The first peal in the method for the Association was rung at Longstanton, Cambs, on April 14th, 1950, conducted by Mr. Mansfield Ginn.
All the participants in that peal were resident members of the Association.

OPERATION SOUND-BOW

Young Ringers in East Anglia

SUCH was the code-name by which our tour of East Anglia became known. On Saturday, August 19th, our party collected from various parts of Bedfordshire, seven at Bedford, one at Sandy and two at Wrestlingworth.

For the next week we would be cycling through the counties of Cambridge, Suffolk and Essex, taking advantage of the chain of Youth Hostel stretching along our route for our nightly accommodation.

With a following wind we reached Trumpington early, and met Miss Kitty Willers, who introduced us to the bells, and also C. G. Woodhead, our guide for the rest of the day. We rang a good bit here, it being our first experience of ringing together. We also rang handbells after our sandwich lunch in the park opposite.

Our guide met us again in Cambridge, and together we made our way to the tower of Great St. Mary's. Some of the landmarks of Cambridge were pointed out to us from the tower, and then we got down to ringing a touch of Grandsire Caters.

After tea on the banks of the River Cam, the Saxon tower of St. Bene't's was visited; Oxford Treble Bob would not go until the third attempt, but the bells apparently knew how to ring Stedman. An interested Canadian came in, and after our leader had explained some of the principles, he had plenty to think about.

A CRACKED HANDBELL.

Soon it was time to sign on at our first Youth Hostel, where we discovered to our horror that the warden used a badly cracked handbell. After supper we wandered round the town before seeing Christopher, a most efficient guide, safely on to the Ely train.

On Sunday morning after breakfast we cycled through a shower of rain to ring before and after the 9.45 service at St. Andrew's the Great, where we were made very welcome by the Vicar. The eight here are rather rough and odd-struck, but we did finish with a good touch of Grandsire.

On the way to Stapleford, we had lunch, and after some trouble we found the church surrounded by trees. The six run well and we tried as many Minor methods as we had memorised. By the time we had to leave Stapleford the sun had established itself and we had a pleasant ride back to Cambridge, in time to visit the impressive Chapel at King's.

After tea on the Banks, in which the ducks participated, we again rang at Great St. Mary's for a short time before evensong; before going up we heard some well-struck Stedman Triples sounding out over the vast lawns and courtyards of the university town.

On returning to the Youth Hostel we found the 11th member of our party, the latecomer, lying recumbent on his bed; our party was now complete.

Another fine evening ought to have warned us that the next morning would be wet, and so it was—just when we intended starting. As the more feeble objected to getting wet, we were delayed for 15 minutes.

It had been arranged that should there be five of us who felt energetic that morning, they should push on to Cavendish, where the Rector's daughter was getting married. We pushed the pace, but we were just too late to ring the bride out of the churchyard. After half an hour, the rest of the party caught us up and together we rang for a short time. The Rector had provided us with suitable refreshment at The George, and after calling there, we rang Spiced Treble Bob and Hereward Bob Minor all the better for it. Thanks are due to the Rector and the tower captain for a pleasant stop.

It was a scorchingly hot day and we had our lunch on the green at Long Melford.

Whether because of the heat or of our meal, we couldn't manage much on Long Melford bells, which are hung in a diagonally-placed frame. However, we had a good look round the church.

THE ECSTASY OF LAVENHAM.

By a roundabout route, we reached Lavenham rather late, and S. H. Symonds and E. Cracknell were waiting for us. After a quick look round the church, we went up the massive tower, and discovered the ecstasy of ringing these bells. Whatever our expectations of them may have been, they were more than fulfilled. Most of us found an opportunity to sneak on to the roof of the tower; the bells sound best from here.

After tea we arrived at Monks Eleigh, another impressive tower. Here the collection of six bells is rung from a wooden gallery with a centre pit, and they take some ringing. On falling them in peal, the clappers showed great reluctance to strike at all when no more than half-way down.

By now with sore hands and weary feet, we left the village amid a chorus of brakes down the precipitous hill for Naughton Mill Youth Hostel, our base for the next two nights. We said goodbye to E. Cracknell at Bildeston, where three laggards lost themselves, arriving only just in time for supper. The mill is an interesting old place and we spent a couple of good nights in it.

On Tuesday we left our heavier baggage at the hostel and cycled to Ipswich for the day. At St. Matthew's we met Mr. F. Bowell, who was to be our guide for the day, and the bells here were rung to Ipswich Surprise. At the five-bell tower, St. Lawrence's, we gave our stock of Doubles a good airing, and we were entertained by Mr. Bowell's skill in ringing four handbells to Double Court Minor.

The afternoon's arrangements started with a visit to St. Clement's Church—the only one of that dedication in Suffolk—and here St. Clement's Bob was the favourite method. On the roof of the tower afterwards we were shown the landmarks of Ipswich, and on the way down a special demonstration of the tune-playing apparatus. Then down past the implement factory of Ransome, Sims and Jefferies to the Bowell Bell Foundry with its roof timbers silhouetted against the sky; it was sad to think that this building, which has given birth to hundreds of church bells, is soon to be demolished under the town planning scheme.

Tea was forgotten as we made our way to St. Margaret's, and courses of Cambridge and Double Oxford were rung on this grand eight; with the help of the local ringers a course of Yorkshire made a good finish to our visit. Refreshed by ices, we arrived at St. Mary-le-Tower to be met by Mr. G. Symonds. Ringing on the twelve bells was confined to rounds, this being the 'first touch on twelve bells' for many of our party, including the organiser. Methods rung were Bob Royal, Grandsire Caters, and a touch of Stedman Caters which mysteriously came round far earlier than was expected! The hour for departure came all too soon, and after a speech of thanks to the Ipswich ringers, and in particular Mr. Bowell, we left for a meal in the town. At nine o'clock it poured with rain and it was a damp group of cyclists that returned to the hostel ten minutes before lock-up.

IN ESSEX.

The first visit next day was to East Bergholt, which we felt we must not miss; we were unable to see any ringing on the bells, however, but we will remember the place by the postcards bought. We soon crossed the county boundary into Essex and by some skilful map reading we found Langham Church tucked away in the trees. Nobody felt disposed to ring much on the light ring of six, so we soon continued down the Colchester road towards Ardleigh. After a roadside lunch—with hot bread straight from the oven—a ring was had on the octave. The bells are rung from the ground floor, and in spite of having the west door open the bells were very hard to hear.

From here we cycled against a strong wind to Colchester, and after a snack at a milk bar known by one of the party, we felt fit enough for another spell of ringing, this time at St. Peter's, Colchester, where we were met by Mr. H. Pye and Mr. Millatt. This tower was put first among those we visited during the week as regards all-round ringing qualities. We soon discovered this when we tried many methods, including Stedman, St. Clement's Triples and Double Norwich. A short call at the Youth Hostel here, and then we rang at St. Leonard's; sore hands and uneasy stomachs prevented some from making full use of our visit here, but that did not weaken the band too much to prevent London Surprise being rung with some local help.

Thursday's first call was at Wivenhoe; here the bells are noisy to the ringer, but we were complimented how fine they sounded outside. At 10 o'clock we left the church, and looked in trepidation for the ferry across the Colne. We hardly expected to be carried across in a 14ft. dinghy! The crossing was rather amusing, to say the least.

With a strong wind still right in our teeth, we reached Tollesbury, where some pews had to be moved before we could ring. An interested onlooker was a lady archaeologist, who afterwards pointed out landmarks from the tower roof.

In the afternoon we visited the churches of Goldhanger and Great Totham, where we met the local ringers. On these two rings of six a variety of methods was rung, including Spliced Minor.

As late as we could, we pushed on to the Maldon Youth Hostel. After supper the menfolk were cunningly lured off by two of the ladies to see the town. We certainly enjoyed the walk down to the fishing boats leaning on the sunset-tinged mud. It was only when we went to bed that we found the arms and legs of our pyjamas sewn up!

Friday morning had to be the last for two of our party, so we made the most of it. Our first stop was at Danbury and during our ring there we were welcomed by the Vicar. Danbury lies on high ground and to the west our road lay clear across the rolling countryside to Writtle. Here we had a little difficulty with the clock-hammers before we could ring the fine-toned eight in this spacious tower.

We then prepared for ourselves a grand lunch, followed by a presentation of Arthur Mee's books on Suffolk and Essex to our leader, Michael Stephens, who had so ably organised the tour. The unhappy moment came for us to say goodbye to Pat Gilbert and Susan Osborn, so while they rode off to Chelmsford in one direction, the nine who were left cycled in the other direction to High Ongar. We reached the height of our achievements in Minor methods here. After the Rector had showed us his interesting church he invited us all to his Rectory for tea; we were very grateful for this hospitality. With reluctance we left High Ongar, calling at Fyfield on the way to the High Roding Youth Hostel, a 16th century corn-barn.

Next morning we cycled along the quiet Essex lanes to Great Dunmow and rang the ring of eight to Stedman, Grandsire and Kent. It did not take long after that to reach Great Easton, where we spent some minutes examining the mediæval bell lying on the floor in the tower, and afterwards rang the six bells to London Bob and London Surprise.

TOWER CORNER (15)

'SELECTIVE LISTENING, AND HUNTING'

Dear Ringers,—In the brief 'summer recess' since our last article appeared with its expressed welcome for criticism, we have been much encouraged by what we have overheard of this series, in moving around amongst ringers in their various towers and elsewhere. Criticisms there are, of course, but, strangely enough, not from those for whom the articles are intended; and of kinds quite opposed. Obviously, in a series of an instructional nature such as this, we are catering for the beginner, both in ringing and in instructing. Help seems to have been derived in each class. But the criticisms were heard from more advanced ringers—some finding the articles too protracted and simple, yet others considering that simpler phrases might have been used instead of terms thought to be too contracted for a beginner. The intimate style of presentation of fictional characters under instruction seems to be in general favour, especially with beginners; but in all fairness we should say that this treatment was intended for only the first three sections of the whole course; dealing, as they have, with the physical handling of the bell. The remaining sections are planned in more condensed factual form.

It will be realised that a true appreciation of these first three sections calls for review, as a whole, of the sixteen instalments in which they will have appeared. And incidentally the summaries given at the conclusion of each section are intended, as we indicated earlier in the course, for the aid of those instructors and 'self-teaching' bands wishing to follow the course through in practice. (The summaries, cut out and pasted on a card, may help.)

Let us return, then, to our instructor friend, Tom Truetouch, who is in the middle of Section 3—'Tone-telling and Rope-sight,' with his Lesson IX.—'Transits and Selective Listening.' Last time he explained the meaning of the useful term—'transit,' and had put us through Ex. 28, on handbells,—'Which bell-sound is mine?'

Now in Ex. 29, 'Which bell follows mine?' the pupil is told to tap his handbell at a given position, say, 4th in the eight. (Remember that the pupil has his back to the other handbells.) The instructor taps the remainder in any order he pleases, but with the tenor covering. At each tenor stroke the pupil is required instantly to call out the number of the bell which followed his, judged by its note. (Some will succeed almost at once, but others will need concentrated practice and must persevere.) The next change-row is tapped off, and so on. Those finding difficulty at first, may limit their identification to 'above' or 'below' their own bell-note.

Tom then explains that this 'ear-sight' must be developed to function instantaneously, so that, in ringing tower bells, the listener automatically and instantly swings his eyes in the direction of the given bell-rope. Thus only can the pupil follow the maxim taught last time, viz:

First: Listen for which bell-sound it is;
Then: Look for its bell-rope;

And thus: Check your new place among the other bells.

'Now,' says Tom, 'the thoughtful pupil may already have realised that, in actual ringing, one cannot hold up one's bell to wait, whilst listening and looking, for an unchecked sound or an unspotted rope. In fact, one's bell must be kept swinging in steady rhythm throughout, quickening slightly, i.e., not rising quite so high in moving "down," and slowing slightly, i.e., rising a little higher on towards the balance-point in moving "up." The development of this rhythmic pulling is as essential to good change-ringing, (i.e., striking positively into the correct position at each blow), as is the practice of "listen-look." The additionally-acquired art of striking well then gives the finished performance.'

Next comes Ex. 30—'Which bell did mine follow?' This is similar to Ex. 29, save that the pupil has to name the (hand)bell preceding his own, each time.

'Some of you,' Tom continues, 'may be feeling disappointed that we have so far given you little practice on an open or sounding tower bell; especially when you hear that some beginner at another tower has been set to try ringing in rounds at his second visit to the tower. Our modern view of teaching bell-control conforms with that of teaching any other musical instrument. Learn first to handle it and to make individual notes with clarity and certainty. Then—simple exercises before tuncs are attempted. And definitely plenty of private practice (silent bell), before a public performance! (Rounds open.) We consider that beginners are often seriously handicapped by being allowed to attempt open rounds before they have mastered bell-control. Thus I have impressed upon you the need for acquiring:

- (a) Good ringing style, leading to
- (b) Absolute control of the bell, before attempting rounds on any open bell; and then
- (c) Tone-telling exercises on handbells and
- (d) Rope-sight exercises.

'The plan obviously reduced the inexcusable amount of "bell-bashing" often associated with beginners' instruction, and it ultimately turns out better ringers. Now for your first steps in change-ringing. But don't neglect to continue practice with your "selective listening" exercises.'

Ex. 31. Making transits at call—UP. Here the pupil takes 3rd bell in six, with five other ringers all experienced. Instructor calls 'Up' at a hand-stroke and pupil makes a transit-up at the next hand-stroke. After a few strokes in this position, Instructor calls 'Up' again and pupil makes another transit-up, bringing him into 5th position. Other bells remain relatively 'fixed.' After a few more strokes thus, bells stand.

Instructor now explains that while in this exercise the 'hunting up' through two places for the 3rd bell has been done in two separated steps, thus giving the pupil time to find his next bell and check his position afterwards, it must, in fact, be done by transits made at each successive stroke, and without calls except 'go' at the start. Next we tackle:

Ex. 32. Making transits at call—DOWN. Here the pupil takes the 4th bell in six. The Instructor calls 'Down' at three intervals, the pupil making a transit-down at each call, which brings him down through three positions to the leading one. The five other bells remain relatively 'fixed' as before. Instructor reminds pupil that normal hunting down is continuous, as is hunting up. This leads to:

Ex. 33. Continuous transits. Here the pupil repeats exercises 31 and 32, but on the Instructor's call 'Up' he makes the two transits-up and on 'Down' the three transits-down, without pausing. Instructor explains that in normal plain hunting the position-changing would continue downwards, after working out behind with a whole pull there, and thus reach the leading position, for a whole pull there, before working up again.

Ex. 34. Plain hunting, minimum. Now the pupil takes the treble in the six. He is told that he will do no more than he did in Ex. 33, except that he will start from first position instead of 3rd, and that his two transits-up will bring him into third position. Here he will strike two blows only, and then make two transits-down to return to the leading position. Meanwhile, he is told, all the other bells this time will be 'working.' The 2nd and 3rd will make transits with him; while the 4th and 5th will make transits with each other only, and the 6th will remain steadily behind.

At the end of Ex. 34 Tom explains to the pupil that while he has performed the first and simplest form of change ringing, namely, the plain hunting minimum; i.e., on three bells, he has, in fact, been participating in the Stedman principle on five bells with tenor covering.

'Next time,' says Tom, 'the exercises which come into Lesson X will take the pupil through the basic forms of the five-bell work, which are the fundamentals of the Stedman method for all 'stages'.—Cordially yours,

CORN. R. STONE.

THAXTED'S CRACKED SEVENTH.

Thaxted was reached in time for lunch under the timbered arcades of the Guildhall. As many will know, the seventh bell at Thaxted is cracked, but we had permission from the Vicar to ring the front five and to see the bells afterwards. The minor five that we rang seemed to ring in mourning for their silent sisters, so melancholy they sounded. Our climb up the tower to see them was well worth while, for the bells, recast by Gillett and Johnston, are masterpieces of the bell-founders' art. At Radwinter we were not able to ring because the clock was under repair, but the Rector showed us the church and parish records dating from 1,600.

We arrived at Saffron Walden well in time for supper at the Youth Hostel. It was the Youth Hostel Association's 21st birthday party that night and our contribution to the celebrations was handbell ringing.

Next day the early birds among us attended the 9 o'clock service at the church. All of us rang on the 12 bells for Matins; we joined the local band in one or two touches on the back ten and call-changes on twelve.

Homeward bound now, we crossed the undulating countryside of Hertfordshire, being lucky enough to find a cafe open for lunch in Royston, and stopped at Ashwell for a strenuous half-hour on the ring of six. At last we entered Bedfordshire and made tracks towards Sandy, where a fine tea was waiting for us at Joan Ashton's house. During this meal one topic of conversation was next year's tour; although we could not decide where to go, it was unanimously agreed that there should be another.

In thanking all those ringers who kindly met us at their churches we would like to take this opportunity of wishing them good ringing during the coming year, and we hope that we shall see their faces again before long—in Bedfordshire perhaps.

Methods rung by our band during the week included Stedman, Grandsire and St. Nicholas' Doubles, London, Hereford, Fulbeck and St. Clement's Bob, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, London, Cambridge and Ipswich Surprise Minor, Stedman, Grandsire and St. Clement's Triples, Double Oxford, Wellington, Gainsborough and Little Bob, Oxford Treble Bob and Cambridge Surprise Major. MEMORIAL TABLET AT LYONSHALL

Dear Sir,—May I, through the medium of 'The Ringing World,' thank the many friends of my husband who so kindly sent donations towards a memorial tablet to be placed in Lyonshall Church?

The work has been long delayed, but it is now completed, and the tablet has been placed in the belfry of the church. A dedication service has been arranged to take place on Sept. 30th, 1950, at 6.30 p.m.

I would like to add a special word of thanks to Mr. Preece, of Staunton-on-Arrow, who has carried out most of the arrangements for the memorial.—Yours faithfully,

ELSIE C. CHANDLER.

THREE DEDICATIONS

LORD MAYOR RINGS AT YARDLEY.

It was a sad day in 1948 when the ringers at St. Edburgha's, Yardley, Birmingham, felt compelled to recommend to their Vicar and churchwardens that all ringing should stop because of the ravages of the death-watch beetle in the 300-year-old timbers.

An appeal fund was already in existence for £10,000 to provide a new Mission Church, a Church Hall, a new organ in the Parish Church, and renovations to the tower and spire and rehanging of the bells. Money was coming in very slowly, but the silence of the bells spoke louder than the parson, and greater efforts were made to raise funds, until at last the Church Council felt able to place the order with Messrs. Taylor and Co. for recasting and rehanging, with two trebles given to complete the octave.

The work of dismantling the old frame, lowering the bells to the ground and dispatching them to the foundry was done by the local ringers. Then on September 9th the new ring was dedicated by the Ven. Michael Palmer, Archdeacon of Aston.

The Archdeacon welcomed the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Birmingham, Canon Cochrane (the former Vicar of Yardley), the Rector of Sheldon and the Vicar of Stechford.

He said that some people associated bells chiefly with weddings and funerals, but their main purpose was to call people to worship Almighty God. He also pointed out that it is laid down in the Book of Common Prayer that the curate shall cause a bell to be rung at a convenient time before a service is due to begin. Not so many years ago Yardley bells rang over fields and farms, while now they will be heard over a vast housing area: so let the bells ring and call together all who will work hard to bring the people of the new areas into Christ's Church.

The dedication rounds were rung by the following members of St. Martin's Guild: E. Shepherd, W. Dowding, A. D. Cook, J. Harvey, G. Chaplin, A. H. Fitter, F. Haynes and G. E. Fearn.

The opening touch of Stedman Triples was rung by H. Fearn 1, E. Shepherd 2, F. Haynes 3, A. Walker (conductor) 4, A. D. Cook 5, J. Pinfold 6, the Lord Mayor of Birmingham (Alderman A. Paddon-Smith) 7, G. E. Fearn 8. Afterwards the bells were kept going from rounds to Yorkshire.

HISTORY OF THE BELLS.

In 1638 Aylmer Polliot, of Blakesley Hall, which still stands not far from the church, gave three bells to replace two bells reported as 'hangynge in ye steple,' also he bequeathed in his will to the Vicar of Yardley his 'best hatt.' These three bells are the present 4th, 7th and tenor, and were cast by Hugh Watts, of Leicester. They must have sounded rather peculiar, so in 1653 another one was given (viz., 5th) by an unknown person. This bell was cast by John Martin, of Worcester. The initials 'IA' below the inscription are those of the Vicar at that time, John Archer. About a hundred years ago this bell was struck by lightning and the canons burnt through, consequently holes were drilled through the crown and bolts put in to fix the bell to the headstock. Another bell was added in 1691 (6th) by William Bagley.

In 1902, Barwells, of Birmingham, were commissioned to cast a smaller bell, repair the old frame and put the old five on new bearings. This was done by putting great stay bolts through frame which was probably being already attacked by the death-watch beetle. It has been said that the treble, as it was then, was the best bell the firm ever cast. It certainly could speak out.

Five peals have been rung on the old six. The first in 1925, a peal of Kent Treble Bob Minor for St. Martin's Guild. The other four were Grandire Doubles rung by the local ringers for St. Edburgha's Society, as they called themselves before the war.

The consensus of opinion, freely expressed, was that the new bells are a fine musical ring which could hardly be surpassed. They are a great credit to the founders and everyone concerned.

BLYTHBURGH, SUFFOLK.

Since 1608 there has been only one bell in the tower of the well-known 15th century Church of Holy Trinity, Blythburgh, Suffolk. The earlier history of the bells is rather obscure, but we know that there were five bells in 1553. As the old wooden frame was made for four bells, it is presumed that the reference to five bells must mean four tower bells and a 'Jack' bell. This 'Jack' bell exists and is still in use. The bells were rendered unusable by a storm in 1577, and the one bell referred to above was rehung in 1608. The other three bells were sold in 1759 for £77 4s. 8d. The record of this sale is still extant in the churchwardens' accounts.

In 1945, Lady Thomson, who lives in the parish, conceived the idea of again having a ring of bells in the tower. She made herself responsible for raising the necessary money (£1,350, of which £200 is still required) for recasting this old bell and adding five new ones. The order was given to Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and on September 17th the service of dedication took place. The old cage has been left in its original position and a new steel frame has been erected immediately below. The tenor bell, which was given by Mr. J. B. Charlesworth in memory of his father and brother, weighs 10½ cwt., and the old bell is now the new fifth. The treble bell was given by the widow and daughter in memory of the late Mr. H. Becker.

The service was associated with the thanksgiving for the harvest. The dedication was performed by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese (St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich), who also preached the sermon. A very large congregation was present with the result that, although extra chairs had been brought in, many people had to stand. Immediately after the dedication, the opening rounds were rung by members of the newly-formed local company under the captaincy of Mr. John Blythe, who is training them and is now tower captain and steeplekeeper. About seventy ringers from Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex were present, and at the end of the service participated in the ringing of standard methods. Mr. A. A. Hughes was also present and received many congratulations, not only on the standard of craftsmanship, but also on the mellow tone of the bells.

WEEK ST. MARY, CORNWALL.

The bells of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, which have been recast and restored by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, were rededicated by the Bishop of Truro on September 17th.

The ring is one of six bells originally cast by Abraham Rudhall, of Gloucester, in 1731, the tenor bell then weighing 8 cwt. Two bells were recast in 1887 by John Warner, of London. One bell, according to local tradition, having been sold many years ago to a neighbouring parish, a new treble bell, cast by Mears and Stainbank was given to the church in 1910 in memory of King Edward VII. In consequence of this sale the local nickname of the parishioners is 'Week St. Mary's beggars.'

The bells have been rehung with new fittings on ball bearings, and the oak frame, which was built of local wood in 1887, has been tightened up and secured more strongly to the beams of the flooring.

The ring should now be in very good condition for many years to come. This is much to the delight of the people of Week St. Mary, who are keen ringers.

ST. DAVID'S DIOCESAN GUILD

On September 9th, a quarterly meeting of the Guild was held at St. Mary's Church, Pembroke, the bells being available at 2.30 p.m.

The Vicar, the Rev. D. Reece, officiated at the service, after which the ringers were entertained to a nice tea at the Church Hall. The usual business meeting followed.

Although the bells had only been rung intermittently for the last couple of years, the ringers found the 'going' fairly good, except the second, which sounded flat owing to a piece being knocked out of it.

The Guild are very grateful to the Vicar for permitting the visit to Pembroke, and as there are only three ringers there at present, we hope that before long there will be a complete band to ring the bells permanently.

The Guild take this opportunity of thanking Mr. H. Jenkins and Co., of Tenby, for getting the bells in ringing order for the meeting, and we hope that our visit will encourage the Pembroke ringers to get on with the job. Thanks are also expressed to Mrs. Reece for giving such a cordial welcome at the tea.

The next quarterly meeting will be held at Haverfordwest.

JOINT MEETING AT DARLEY DALE

A very successful and well-attended joint meeting of the Ladies' Guild (Leicester and Sheffield areas) and Derbyshire Association (Peak District) was held at Darley Dale, Derbyshire, on September 16th. The bells were rung to a well-struck touch of Treble Bob preceding a short service in church, conducted by the Rector of Darley, the Rev. R. J. Stanford, who is an honorary member of the Derbyshire Association.

During the afternoon a variety of methods was rung, ranging from Plain Bob to Cambridge Surprise, and several touches were by all ladies bands. Some 50 ringers and friends sat down to tea.

A vote of thanks to the Rector and the local ringers for the use of the bells and the arrangements made for tea was proposed by Mrs. Thomson, a vice-president of the Ladies' Guild, and supported by the rest of the ringers. The monthly meetings of the two associations were then held, followed by ringing until 8 p.m.

SURREY ASSOCIATION

The North-West District meeting at Chertsey on September 9th was a disappointment as far as numbers were concerned, but those who attended had some first-class ringing. The Vicar, the Rev. G. S. Archibald, welcomed the ringers. The secretary announced the combined meeting with the Kent Association to be held at Chislehurst on October 7th.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

LADIES WHO HAVE CALLED STEDMAN

Dear Sir,—I would like, if I may, to add my congratulations to Miss Joan Beresford on calling her peal of Stedman Triples.

I have no knowledge of how many ladies have called peals in this method, other than Mrs. Fletcher, but at least two have taken part in non-conducted peals of Stedman Triples, Mrs. R. F. Deal and Miss Marie Cross.

Mrs. Deal's was a particularly fine performance, inasmuch as she had never called a bob in the method (and, I think, never has since). Although this peal took place in 1924 it is still spoken of by survivors of the band whenever they meet.

Mrs. Deal has, I believe, one regret with regard to her performance, that is that Mr. J. W. Washbrook, who taught her to ring, had passed away when it took place.—Yours faithfully,
E. BARNETT.

Crayford, Kent.

NOTE.—Mrs. C. C. Mayne, then Miss Phyllis M. Moss, conducted a peal of Stedman Triples at West Wycombe in 1927.

ANOTHER WAYWARD ROPE

Dear Sir,—We went to Bottesford for a peal of Double Norwich. The rope of the 'parson bell,' the 2nd, coming through the floor, had a tangle of knots on the end as big as a man's fist, and was hitched on to the tail-end of the 2nd through one of the bights. The parson-rope being freed dropped to the floor. The big knot keeping it from vanishing through the hole.

All went well for a time, then the tail-end of the 2nd caught under the knot, which was jerked on to the table with a thump and dropped back again. No further hitch occurred for about an hour, when the knot was caught again, this time in a bight. Although the lady ringer battled valiantly to free her rope, 'Stand' was reluctantly called, as any further antics were unpredictable.

We ought to have known better. The drop-rope should have been drawn across the floor and hitched to one of the posts of the gallery.—Yours sincerely, CLEM GLENN.
Cotgrave, Nottingham.

RINGERS AND CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

Dear Sir,—The letter from Mr. P. B. Derby can be misunderstood and requires at least two answers. First, if the friend is a fervent believer in some opposing religion and a regular attender of Sunday services elsewhere the answer is easy. It is better to spend time on practice night on a learner who will ring for Sunday service in due course than to waste time on a learner who will not.

Secondly, the friend may be a highly respectable citizen who can be briefly described as an outsider by religious people. If so, the answer is in the Bible. A feast was prepared, the invited guests refused to attend, so the servants were sent on a successful search of the highways and they brought in a less desirable company.

This story has been appropriate many times during the 40 years I have been ringing. The Vicar in the pulpit invites someone to fill a vacancy in the belfry. Months go by and the invited guests are still absent, so the servants (i.e., the ringers) make a quicker and more successful search among the outsiders. It is my suggestion that Mr. Derby should discuss the Bible story with his Vicar, after which the friend may be permitted to ring on Sundays.

Those who point at the outsider who rings and walks away should have filled the vacancy before the outsider had the chance to do so.—Yours sincerely,
JOHN SEGAR.
Retford.

'UNAMBIGUOUS'

Dear Sir,—What does Mr. York-Bramble expect to gain by misquoting himself, and who does he hope to deceive?

Referring to W. H. Thompson, Dr. Rankin and Dr. Ledermann in the issue of August 4th he wrote: 'Yet, of all these, it is true to say their work lies rather in the field of method-employment or composition than in that of structural design of methods or method analysis.' This sentence is perfectly clear and unambiguous. It says that Dr. Ledermann's work lies in the field of composition; it does not say, as Mr. York-Bramble now pretends, that it applies in the field of composition.

And what does he mean by the 'foregoing corrections' in the last paragraph of his letter of September 15th? That letter makes no corrections to his article, 'More haste, less speed.'—Yours sincerely,

MAURICE HODGSON.

Kenton, Harrow.

ST. PETER'S, NORTHAMPTON

Dear Sir,—In 1734 a ring of eight bells was installed in the beautiful Norman Church of St. Peter, Northampton, by Abraham Rudhall, Gloucester, a gift of the then Sir Arthur Haselrigg, whose residence was the old Elizabethan house nearby. Five years later a band of College Youths rang a peal of 5,040 Bob Major, conducted by Benjamin Annable, believed to be the first on the bells.

In 1939 a peal of 5,040 Bob Major was rung in commemoration of this early peal by the Northampton Branch of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild, conducted by Tom Tebbutt.

A beautifully executed record of the two peals in coloured Old English writing and framed in medium oak has been placed in the belfry by St. Peter's ringers. The bells had been promised on a Saturday afternoon for the unveiling and dedication service, but an appropriate Saturday is not available. The ceremony has been arranged to take place during evensong on October 8th. Any ringers who can pay us a visit on that Sunday evening will be very welcome. Ringing is normally from 5.30 p.m. to 6.20 p.m., but if any ringers would like to come at 5.15 and let me know I will do my best to complete the band at that time.—Yours faithfully,

G. S. VALENTINE, Hon. Sec.,
St. Peter's Ringers.

A MARKET DRAYTON MEMORY

Dear Sir,—I am very much indebted to Mr. Farmer for his description of the Market Drayton ringers in 'The Shropshire Magazine' and 'The Ringing World,' and it brought to my mind an incident that occurred when ringing on New Year's Eve.

There was a young man named Joseph Clark, who came to ring the old year out and the new year in. Joe arrived late and the bells were pealing out.

The night was cold and Joseph wore a heavy coat, and, coming to the belfry, hung it on the coat pegs close to the key that turns on the gas.

The light went lower and lower with calls to Joe to turn on the gas, but the room was almost dark before Joe turned the key, much to the relief of the ringers. Joe has now passed on, but the incident is still remembered by a few of his old friends.—Yours, etc.,

E. WEATHERBY.

Reminiscence

ALAMEIN RINGING AT KIRKWALL

I think that I must have had as unique an experience as anyone. I was stationed in the Orkney Islands on the defences of Scapa Flow when Mr. Winston Churchill's historic message was received that our forces had been successful in the Battle of El Alamein and that the church bells throughout the country would, on the following Sunday, be rung to celebrate the turning point in our fight for freedom.

Being an ardent ringer, I, of course, looked round in these desolate regions of the British Isles to see where I could play my part in the celebrations. I telephoned the Vicar of St. Magnus' Cathedral, Kirkwall, and he informed me that his church had bells and that his 'ringers' would be pleased to welcome me on the Sunday. I obtained leave of absence from the O.C., and my journey had to consist of a three hours run on one of the small drifters which provided a ferry service between the numerous small islands, and it meant leaving our camp on the Saturday afternoon.

Saturday morning arrived with high seas running, which resulted in the cancellation of all ferry services, but later in the afternoon the sea subsided, though still leaving a nasty swell. Drifter services were resumed and I started on my journey. The sea was still running high and I was nearly seasick, and, owing to the bad docking conditions at the harbour nearest to Kirkwall, it was necessary to land about eight miles from this point, and I was then faced with the walk to Kirkwall. Upon arriving at Kirkwall, feeling very weary, I tried to obtain accommodation for the night, but all hotels and hostels were full, and I had to resort to sleeping in a hut at the rear of the Police Station, which had every appearance of a doss house.

After a sleepless night caused by the rowdiness of the other occupants, I was up early and after a scanty breakfast I made my way to St. Magnus' Cathedral to await the arrival of the 'ringers.' I stood outside quite a long time at the entrance to the tower, and then I heard a faint tinkling. I thought to myself, 'Well! I have missed the ringers and they are just about to raise the bells,' so I made my way into the churchyard, enquired the way from the verges to the ringing chamber and started to climb the steps, and behold, what did I find at the top? A very fine looking old gentleman with an even finer large white walrus moustache seated on a high-backed chair resembling a throne, with one rope on his foot and one in each hand, in addition to which there was a large music stand with sheets of numbers each named by some reference to the praise of God. My heart sank and, after conversing with the fine old gentleman, I bade him farewell and resorted to the nearby canteen where, over the radio, I was able to hear the broadcast of church bells from all over the country.

I was sadly disappointed and my troubles were still yet to be added to, in that the sea had again turned rough with no ferry services and again I had to seek the shelter of the Police Station hut for the night. In 'The Orkney Blast' (the forces' newspaper in that area) reference was made to my visit to Kirkwall Cathedral to ring the bells, the report having been sent into the press room by our unit's reporter before my return with my story. Needless to say, it was the subject of comment by a ringer on a neighbouring island, who said that if a ring of bells existed at St. Magnus' Cathedral, he would have been there too.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY GUILD WEEK

THIS was held from August 28th to September 2nd and, in accordance with tradition every five years, was held in Cambridge. We were most grateful to Selwyn, of which college our president, the Rev. A. C. Blyth, is Vice-Master, for putting us up, also to our president for accompanying us most of the time.

The afternoon of August 28th opened stormily, with a peal of Rutland at Long Stanton, during the first hour of which thunder raged around. We survived and, joined by other members, rang with the Cambridge Youths at Great St. Mary's that evening.

On Tuesday 5,088 changes of Kent were rung at Bourn. After an hour it dawned on some members that the 'peal' was false; however they, with admirable courage, continued to ring, like Arctic explorers who struggle on, knowing that survival is impossible, whilst more innocent members guily persisted with what they supposed to be a peal.

Meanwhile, wiser members rang Oswald-twistle, etc., at Hemingford Grey (six, tenor 14 cwt.), a pretty church by the Ouse, followed by Oxford T.B., etc., at Hemingford Abbots, a nice six with a lovely spire above, then to Godmanchester with its fine heavy eight (tenor 21 cwt.). That afternoon to the lovely eight at Eaton Socon, a church so beautifully rebuilt after fire; a nice touch of Spliced went well here. Then to the grand tower and bells of St. Neots (oddly dedicated to St. Mary, not St. Neot), Double Norwich sounded well here; after tea to the nearby suburb of Eynesbury where the six in an oddly placed tower went well to Cambridge. We hope the roof here will be made watertight soon. The lovely woodwork in the church must be preserved. Not content with Great Grandsen, our seventh tower that day (a pretty church, this), some must needs 'bag' Caxton, also, where Bob Minor was a novelty to the bells which, I think, had not seen so much activity for some time.

SUDBURY'S GRAND CHURCHES.

On Wednesday we went to Clare (dare it be mentioned that some 'snatched' two sixes on the way, Haverhill and Stoke-by-Clare). The fine heavy eight at Clare were much admired, as was the grand church with its splendid woodwork, ringers' jug and glass. To Sudbury with its memories of past greatness in its three grand churches all with towers prominent from near and far. At St. Peter's, Mr. Finch of Walthamstow joined us for Superlative. These bells are not too easy to strike well. Then to St. Gregory's with its fine font cover and the head of Archbishop Simon of Sudbury in the vestry. The undersigned withdrew at this point, to marry someone at Norwich, so could not sample Sudbury's third fine eight—at All Saints'. He gathers, however, that the grand eight at Lavenham lived up to reputation, and that after Pudsey and Bristol had come round, members were thanked for 'playing the bells.' Long Melford with its glorious church, Lady Chapel, Clopton Chapel, fine glass, and many other memories of past greatness, also proved a memorable place.

None the worse for his experience, the undersigned was there again for supper, and next day, after Holy Communion, celebrated by the president at St. Edward's, we went to Trumpington, whose fine tower had but one imperfection—a certain 'hook' was not on the shelf! However, Miss Willers has added to her kindness by remedying that situation now. Chase and Spliced Grandsire and Stedman were rung here. Then to All Saints'. Harston, with a nice rehung six, and a cracked mediæval bell on the floor. At Barrington, with its peal board recording a visit by the Guild on 5th February, 1904, London and Cambridge with Bobs made with the treble at the back, were performed. To Foxton where the five bells are not very often rung now. Back to Cambridge (magic phrase) where that afternoon a peal of Stedman Caters was rung at Great St. Mary's. We are wondering now whether to put the nice peal board, commemorating a similar exploit by the Oxford University Society, on a hinge like a palimpsest brass and to paint out effort on the reverse side, so that supporters of either University can turn the one which pleases them best, to face the room. During this, it is said that 'Others more mild, retreated in silent valleys rang, with notes angelical . . .' (to parody 'Paradise Lost'), on the three sixes at Chesterton, Histon and Cottenham.

The annual summer meeting was held that evening. At this, it was planned to hold the next Guild week at Oxford, August 27th to September 1st, 1951, also, if possible, to hold another annual dinner in Cambridge on February 3rd, 1951. Messrs. Lindley and Thurlow were charged with the task of investigating the possibility of printing a new edition of Tyrwhitt-Drake's History of the Guild, brought up to date (we shall now have a race with the builder of the ringing machine to see who gets finished first). Films finished this evening.

On Friday, Cambridge was rung at Ickleton for 40 minutes. The Vicar here most kindly wrote on the church door, 'It is dangerous to approach or to speak to the ringers'—material for a cartoon here by one of our artists—some did ring with tooth and claw . . . The milder ones were at Stapleford and Sawston. We all joined at Duxford, where the Rector, the Rev. J. B. Boyce, rang rounds with us. Then, at Saffron Walden, we found that a café we had never heard of before was expecting us. They did us well, and then Little Bob Maximus, Stedman Caters and Cinques, etc. went happily on the fine twelve in a really grand church. Eventually we found Stanstead Mountfitchet church (though Helion Bumpstead, Messing, Mucking, Fobbing, Chignal Smealey, Good Easter and Shellow Bowels are Essex names not in our register as yet) and London, etc., went nicely here. The day (and the week for several members) finished with Littlebury, the intervals of whose six bells I will not attempt to describe.

Those who remained for the final evening are said to have 'had a good time': one who thought he knew the way home found himself in four feet of water, another member got mixed up with a fire extinguisher; however, despite man's two most powerful enemies, the 'first' of Lincolnshire for the Guild was a fitting climax to a grand week, at Norton, Herts, next day.

Numbers present this week presaged a good future for the Guild. Those present for all or part of the time were the President, the Master Tim Watt, the non-resident secretary, Paul Williamson, Revs. G. Benson, B. F. Sheppard, Gilbert Thurlow, T. P. Hearn, Messrs. R. Speed, B. White, S. Darmon, Bill Ridgman, Ted Lindley, M. Harford, B. Threlfall, G. Dodds, F. Haynes, J. Butler, R. Leigh, R. Guy, and Misses A. Stockdale, B. Whistler and G. Anderson Smith. It was a great delight to have with us Rognwald Wilson, of Edinburgh University.

GILBERT THURLOW.

GUILD OF DEVONSHIRE RINGERS
EAST DEVON BRANCH.

A meeting of the East Devon Branch was held at Broadhembury on September 16th. There was a good attendance and over 70 ringers and friends sat down to tea, provided by Mrs. Pleasance at the Drewe Arms.

The Rev. C. Crowhurst, Vicar of Broadhembury, who together with Mrs. Crowhurst are ringers, took the service and spoke on 'tone,' saying when ringers, like the bells they rang, were in tone with each other all was well.

Various methods were rung during the afternoon on a ring which goes backward.

Certificates were presented by the president, Preb. E. V. Cox, to five members of Payhembury, and three new members were elected. Ringing finished about 8.30 p.m. and everyone voted it a pleasant afternoon.

OBITUARY

MR. GEORGE S. MAYERS

In the passing of George Southgate Mayers, Norwich and the Norwich Diocesan Association lose one of their finest characters. His connection with Norwich ringing was very long indeed. He learnt to ring at Hindringham, Norfolk, and came from there to Norwich about 1894. Though he was soon interested in St. Miles' and St. Peter Parmentergate (whose bells have since been disgracefully allowed to become unringable), he came to make Mancroft his chief interest.

He became a grand heavy-bell ringer. Amongst the 549 peals which he rang for the Norwich Diocesan Association were included 7,000 Double Norwich at St. Miles' in 1920; a peal of Double Norwich Royal at Aylsham in 1923, the first in Norfolk since 1769; the tenor at Mancroft to Cambridge Major in 1927, a farewell peal to George Cross, one of his many fine pupils; and on several other occasions he turned in the tenors at Mancroft and St. Nicholas' Yarmouth, to peals of Major, Royal and Maximus. He rang about 100 peals with other associations.

He was a member of the historic Purse Club of the Mancroft ringers, and when the old Norwich Scholars who rang there disbanded in the '90's, he helped train up the new band which succeeded them about 1900 and which, with various natural changes, has rung there ever since. He became steeplekeeper at Mancroft in 1925 in succession to Douro Potter, and held this post until about 1945; he always kept the bells in perfect order.

He did a great deal at other towers as well, notably at St. John de Sepulchre's, where he trained the band which rang the eight bells installed in 1909. The many ringers trained by him constitute one of the greatest debts we owe him, and I am proud to say that the last time he ever rang was at the opening of St. George Colegate bells on May 20th, 1950, for the main purpose in opening these bells is to provide just such an easy training ground for beginners as George would rejoice in.

The funeral was at Mancroft on September 12th; it was taken by the Rev. Gilbert Thurlow, and the Rev. A. St. J. Heard, president of the Norwich Diocesan Association, read the lesson. The interment was at Trowse, where a course of Grandsire Triples was rung round the grave by G. Thurlow, Ben Thompson, Nolan Golden and Bert Gogle. May he rest in peace.

GILBERT THURLOW.

CANON GEORGE DIGBY SCOTT

The death occurred on September 14th of the Rev. George Digby Scott, formerly Rector of Christ Church, Bray, Co. Wicklow, at the age of 85.

He took his B.A. degree in 1887 and subsequently M.A. in 1891 at Cambridge. He was ordained at Auckland in 1889 for the curacy of Bishopwearmouth, Sunderland, Co. Durham. In 1893 he became his father's curate at Bray and in 1910 he succeeded his father as Rector of Bray, where he remained until his retirement in 1943.

Canon Scott learned his bellringing at Bray in 1890, and took up ringing at Bishopwearmouth. He was one of the keenest bellringers in Ireland, although he never rang any peals. He could stand in with his local band to Plain Bob and Grandsire. He was president of the Irish Association from 1906 to 1908 and was a member of the Central Council from 1919 to 1933.

He attended the inaugural meeting of the Irish Association in 1898 and thus became one of the original members, only two of whom now survive. The Association conferred the honour of life membership on him when this class was instituted in 1945. The funeral was at Enniskerry on September 18th.

West Sussex Ringers in Hampshire

A small party of West Sussex ringers, composed mainly of the younger generation, spent an enjoyable ringing week-end in Hampshire over September 9-10th. Most travelled on cycles, though three went in luxury, by car!

The party met at 10.15 on Saturday morning at the fine cruciform church of South Harting, where we were welcomed by the Vicar. The bells, a ring of six (tenor 12 cwt.), are rung from the centre of the church, and the long draught proved to be a little difficult. After ringing some well-struck Grandsire Doubles, we adjourned to Petersfield for lunch.

The next tower on the programme was the light six at Steep (tenor 6½ cwt.), which hang in a wooden belfry with apparently little support underneath! However, the bells went well to Grandsire and Stedman Doubles and Bob Minor. At East Meon we had the pleasure of ringing for a wedding, rather to the surprise of the happy pair! This grand octave was well used to Stedman and Grandsire Triples, though the unusual ascent to the belfry via an iron ladder and small platform proved rather alarming to at least one member!

The light octave (tenor 12 cwt.) at West Meon came next. Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Cambridge Minor were rung here, but it was felt that the bells would benefit from a judiciously applied spanner to the frame. Those with sandwiches enjoyed a picnic tea in a nearby field, while the others eventually found some welcome food and refreshment in a hostelry at Cheriton. The final tower of the day was the very fine recently restored six (tenor 7½ cwt.) at Titchborne. Ringing here was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and included rounds and call changes for the local captain, Mr. Russell, who very kindly met us.

The day concluded with a seven mile run through a rather wet evening to Winchester, where the night was spent (under somewhat crowded conditions) at a C.T.C. hostel. The following morning saw us en route for New Alresford, where we rang for service. The bells, a very good eight rehung by Taylors (tenor 15½ cwt.), were put to good use in Grandsire and Bob Major. The party attended the service and received a welcome from the Vicar at the commencement of the sermon, which was much appreciated. After an excellent lunch at the Volunteer Arms, kindly arranged for us beforehand by the Vicar, we went on to Ropley. Here we found a fine six (tenor 15 cwt.) by Gillett (1927), which go and sound very well. The tower is partly built of shingle-covered timber and is very picturesque. After ringing Grandsire, Stedman, Plain Bob Minor and Kent Minor here, the car party went on ahead and had the pleasure of ringing the back three of the five at Newton Valence for the children's service.

The cyclists met the motorists at Selborne, where we inspected the church, well known for its memories of Gilbert White, the naturalist. Then on to Hawley. After a hasty dash into Liss for tea, we all enjoyed ringing on the recently augmented octave (tenor 7½ cwt.), which go well and sound very fine. We were welcomed by the Vicar and the local captain, and again the hearty welcome was appreciated.

This was the last tower of the tour, and the party returned to Chichester, with several intermediate halts for refreshment.

The party, which included ringers from Bosham, Chichester and Felpham, passed a hearty vote of thanks to Norman Smith, of Chichester Cathedral band, who made all arrangements for the tour, and to the various incumbents and local ringers who met us at the different towers. P. N. B.

GERMAN BELLS

HITLER'S search for metals during the eventful years of 1939-45 resulted in his removal of the church bells not only of many of the occupied countries, but in Germany itself. According to the 'Manchester Guardian' about 130,000 bells were removed and taken to the foundries to be melted down. About 100,000 of these went to Hamburg and most of them went into the melting pot. Singularly enough, there was an examination of the bells, and the oldest and most valuable, some of which were more than 700 years old, were temporarily exempted and survived the war.

The process of returning the bells to their silent steeples and towers has now taken place and only those removed from churches beyond the Oder-Neisse line still languish in the Hamburg 'bell-knackers' yards. The opportunity of studying such a collection of bells was not neglected. The Hamburg collection was carefully catalogued in all their physical aspects, and about 300 of the finest in shape and tone were intensively studied by experts who have not yet published their findings.

There has been established an Advisory Committee on Church Bells in Germany, consisting not only of campanological experts and managers, but of art historians and physicists. The outcome of their deliberations is that the various foundries should cast bells in different alloys, to prescriptions determined in Hamburg. It is proposed to hold a competition next spring at Limburg and the bells which then for the purity and duration of their note win the prizes are to be the pattern for those that will go into the many silent churches in Germany.

We are surprised that the Advisory Committee on Church Bells in Germany have not consulted the three leading bell founders of this country on the fundamental principles of bell design and tuning. The position of England to-day in the art of bell-founding is pre-eminent. The composition of bell metal is no secret; the Advisory Committee of experts in Hamburg can have that for the asking, and while knowledge on any subject is not exhausted, research into this matter is not likely to bring about the coveted prizes. The inquiries of the late Lord Grimthorpe into the correct alloy for the casting of a bell covered a very wide field, and his conclusion was that the existing formula for bell metal, i.e., approximately 13 parts of copper to four of tin, could not be improved. That formula is accepted by metallurgists of to-day.

There are two main factors in producing the perfect bell—shape and tuning. Since the researches of Canon Simpson into the art of tuning, an exhaustive study of the subject has been made, and the practical application of his deductions have resulted in the bells given to this country being on a far higher plane than ever before. Probably only one past founder ever amassed the secret of perfect tuning—Heemony, the famous Dutch founder of the 17th century. His knowledge died with him.

The beauty of a ring of bells is not to be found in the characteristics of one bell, but in the blending together of the octave, ten or twelve. Change ringers of this country know only too well how the music of a ring of bells has been spoilt in many instances by an over-powerful tenor which dwarfs into insignificance the other bells. This is particularly noticeable when the tenor is turned in. Many of these unsatisfactory rings are the product of augmentations in the last century when trebles were added too light for the tenor. These errors of the past are not likely to be repeated in this country. A careful study has been made not only of tuning, but the proportionate weight of bells, and the generally accepted principle in a ring of eight is that the seventh bell should be two-thirds of the weight of the tenor and the sixth one half.

Removal of church bells by invaders during the war took place in the Channel Islands. The ring of six at St. Anne's, Alderney, was taken to France. Fortunately, it has been recovered and returned to the Island. The bells are now in a wooden frame in the churchyard and are chimed for Sunday service. They were cast by Mears in 1852, and it is hoped that when sufficient funds are available they will be rehung in the tower. Alderney had complete evacuation during the war, and much money is required to repair other defects to the church. The Island has only 1,270 inhabitants at present and resources are extremely limited.

SUBSCRIPTION REMINDER.

The last quarter of 1950 starts with this issue. Will quarterly subscribers please remit 5s. 6d. to Mrs. E. K. Fletcher, The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk, without delay?

The latest Central Council publication, 'A Collection of Compositions in the popular Major Methods,' was wrongly described in the back page advertisement of 'The Ringing World.' Any reader who purchased the book under a misapprehension will get his money back if it is returned in reasonable time and in good condition. The Editor regrets the error.

Mr. John E. Usher rang his first peal for 23 years at Buckley, Flintshire, on Sept. 23rd.

Another inn having the sign of 'The Ring o' Bells' is at Norton Fitzwarren, Somerset. An interesting letter on the Kendal inn will appear in our next issue.

The peal of Bob Major at Chilvers Coton on September 19th was a thanksgiving peal for the successful operation on and subsequent recovery of the young daughter of Mr. J. Lloyd, the treble ringer, after a serious illness.

Coincidence.—The peal rung at Folkingham, Lincs, for the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. Wilkinson was Mr. James H. Musson's 25th peal as conductor. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson kindly entertained the band after the peal.

To the ladies who have called Stedman must be added the name of Miss Margaret E. Richards, of Swindon Parish Church. She called Brooks' Variation of Thurstans' at Stratton St. Margaret on November 19th, 1948. This was her first peal as conductor.

Congratulations to Mr. George Burdett, of the Kirby Bellars, Leics, tower, and Mrs. Burdett on their silver wedding. In honour of the event 1,260 Plain Bob and Grandsire Doubles was rung on September 23rd by H. Jones (first quarter) 1, J. Morris 2, H. T. Bonshor (cond.) 3, F. J. Williams 4, G. Tyler 5.

BELFRY GOSSIP

A double anniversary has just been celebrated at St. Paul's, Stalybridge, in the completion of 50 years' service ringing by Messrs. Charles Wood and Alfred Roberts. Congratulations, and may they have health and strength to continue the partnership for 60 years.

The name of the ringer of the third in the peal at Navenby, Lincs, on September 2nd, was Louis Wilders and not as submitted.

Can any reader identify a quarter of Doubles rung on September 19th and conducted by E. Pimlott? The name of the tower, the method and the sender's name are all omitted from the report.

Regarding the peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major at Terrington St. Clement, Norfolk, on September 2nd, this was not the first peal in the method for the Association. Eight Ely members rang a peal of Yorkshire Major in 1934 and the first recorded peal was at Long Stanton this year.

The enthronement of the new Bishop of St. Albans was commemorated by 1,301 Stedman Cinques on the Abbey bells on September 28th by H. E. C. Goodenough (cond.) 1, C. F. Sayer 2, Mrs. T. J. Lock 3, T. J. Lock 4, Miss O. Martin 5, A. Day 6, W. J. Arnold 7, A. Hatten 8, B. C. Johnson 9, A. W. Coles 10, W. Ayre 11, B. Cornell 12.

Last week we recorded the bereavement Mrs. D. E. Beamish has sustained by the death of her mother, Mrs. L. Lewis. The bells of Chilvers Coton were rung half-muffled to her memory on September 27th to 1,260 Stedman Triples. The ringers were J. E. S. Moreton 1, J. Draycott 2, A. H. Beamish (cond.) 3, J. F. Clarke 4, J. Ford (first of Stedman Triples) 5, H. Harris 6, J. A. L. Thompson 7, J. E. Lloyd 8.

A YORKSHIRE TOUR

17 Peals out of 21 Attempts

A NOTHER enjoyable and highly successful ringing tour has recently taken place in Yorkshire. Organised by Mr. J. E. Cawser, the tourists scored a total of 17 peals out of 21 attempts.

The party, which finally numbered 14, met at Doncaster, which served as their headquarters for three days before moving northwards to spend two days in Hull and a further three days in Malton. As usual, Mr. Cawser was determined to keep his tourists busy for the first few days, and no fewer than four peals had been arranged for the first day, and with the kind help of local ringers two bands both scored peals of London at Thorne and Tickhill respectively to set the tour off to a good start. Whilst the tourists had more transport at their disposal than possibly any other touring band has had, it was very unfortunate that one ringer was left behind on the first day. However, Mr. Milton Fowler kindly stepped into the breach at very short notice, and a good peal of London came round at Tickhill—too late for a decent lunch.

The party which went out to Thorne scored a very nice peal on that musical octave, which was cast at Loughborough in 1924, and were pleased to have the assistance of Mr. Gibson Jackson, the father of those two young ringers, Bill and David, whose ringing favourably impressed the tourists later in the week.

In the afternoon Bristol at Doncaster came to grief, but the other party made history by scoring a very good peal of London Royal (No. 3) at East Retford, there being at least four 'firsts in the method.' The tourists were welcomed at the tower by the local ringers, who had everything in readiness, and Mr. J. Seager demonstrated his ability by tapping a few touches of Caters and Minor on handbells.

On Sunday morning six of the tourists went off to Conisborough for service ringing, whilst the remainder climbed the 'umpteenth' steps of St. George's, Doncaster, where the local band showed them how to rise a heavy eight in peal.

The afternoon found the tourists again divided into two parties—one to Hatfield and the other to Epworth (Lincs), both very musical rings of eight by Taylors. At Epworth, after a little maintenance to the ropes, a good start was made for Bristol, but after about 90 minutes' ringing the conductor set up, having called 'Before and Fifths' instead of 'Before and Wrong.' Being a conductor of some repute, this unfortunate error appeared unpardonable to some of his friends, and his leg was pulled unmercifully until the early hours of the next morning—in fact, it is thought that he may never live it down.

However, this incident gave the party a chance to slip over to Hatfield to hear some of the ringing there. Fortunately, they had Mr. Fred Dunkerley with them with his Hummer Super Snipe, so everyone piled into it and reached Hatfield in a matter of a few minutes. Here the ringing was first class, and the second part end of Hattersley's Bristol was easily checked by the critics, so after listening for about half an hour, it was generally agreed that it was in 'the bag' and the party returned to Epworth for service ringing. On arriving back at our hotel we were pleased to see Mr. George Fearn, of Birmingham, who had come to join us straight from a strenuous tour in Sussex.

Early on Monday morning saw the tourists, complete in five cars and a motor-cycle, leave their comfortable headquarters in Doncaster and travel northwards. At Howden three cars and the motor-cycle pulled up beneath the magnificent tower of Howden Minster. The other two carloads continued on as far as Hedon, about three miles east of Hull.

Howden Minster possesses as perfect a ring of eight as one could wish to hear or even see. This ring (tenor 22½ cwt. in E flat by Taylors, 1929) are hung about one third of the way up this lofty tower and can easily be seen swinging by passers-by in the road. Here a very good peal of London was scored without incident except that Mr. J. C. E. Simpson was 'detailed' to call this peal from the seventh, the tenor having been booked some 12 months previously.

The Hedon party were welcomed by the Vicar at this magnificent church, generally known as 'The Cathedral of Holderness,' and here no difficulty was experienced in ringing an excellent peal of Bristol, being the first peal of Surprise on the bells.

A DISAPPOINTMENT AT HULL.

In the evening ten rather over-ambitious ringers met at Holy Trinity, Hull, for an attempt for Rutland Royal, but unfortunately most of the band had only a rough idea of the method and so a good opportunity of hearing this fine ten at their best was lost after an hour's rather indifferent ringing; the conductor mercifully calling 'Stand' when it was obvious that the ringing did not look like settling down. After a good course of Cambridge Royal the bells were lowered in peal and a disappointed band descended the tower having learned a lesson.

On Tuesday morning a party of eight went out to Patrington and were given a hearty welcome by Mr. L. Rodmell, who had everything in readiness. St. Patrick's Church, the Queen of Holderness, is undoubtedly a gem, but the entry to the ringing chamber is most unusual, as was described by Mr. Pat Cannon in his report of last year's tour in this district. It can be truthfully said that Mr. John Worth, conqueror of many heavy towers, such as Wells and Sherborne Abbey, left Patrington belfry on his hands and knees after ringing a 3 cwt. treble. Had not the band witnessed his entry and exit they would not have thought it possible to have done it.

Whilst the tourists were naturally disappointed at not being able to attempt peals at three well-known towers in this area, namely, Bridlington, Selby and St. Mary's, Beverley, they were fortunate not to be denied the opportunity to ring on the very fine ten at Beverley Minster, where several bands in recent years have failed, generally owing to the tenorman giving up, but it is not so much the weight of the metal, but swaying of the tower that causes this bell to play the most unusual tricks, and as the tenor rope falls less than 2ft. from the wall, it is difficult to put in any extra effort unless the ringer stands sideways. Although rung from quite a large box, this was not wide enough for Mr. J. C. E. Simpson's stance, so with the aid of three or four smaller boxes piled on top of each other he was able to take his stand with his back to the ringers of 7, 8 and 9. Any doubts as to Mr. Simpson's ability to handle and strike this bell accurately were soon ended as 'roll up' after 'roll up' delighted all those taking part. Trips were negligible and a really first-class peal brought round in 3 hours and 46 minutes. Should the tenor ringer have wished to give up it was decided to have an eleventh man in the tower so that Mr. John Worth, who was ringing the eighth, could have taken over from Mr. Simpson, but his services, like that of the 12th man at Wells two years ago, were not required, although in this case it was appreciated, having had a psychological effect.

COTTINGHAM'S SEVENTH.

Having achieved the chief prize of the week, the tourists set out in good spirits on Wednesday morning for Cottingham. As these bells have not a very good reputation, it was decided to ring Cambridge on them, and perhaps as well, for they are very noisy in the belfry and far from tuneful, and even one or two of the more serious ringers were forced to smile when they heard that peculiar noise from the seventh—it could hardly be called a note. However, a peal was scored and the band were welcomed by Mr. Lawson, who kindly arranged for a good lunch.

Spliced Surprise at Malton in the afternoon did not sufficiently attract two of the tourists that day, as it was the first day of Beverley races, so, hoping they might be able to make up their expenses for the week, off they went; but it can only be said that they didn't lose on the day. The peal at Malton was scored without much trouble, although the time taken, 3 hours 19 minutes, on paper, appears to be rather long, but the racegoers, who arrived in Malton to hear the last hour, considered the speed to be about right. Mr. H. Long gave the tourists a sincere welcome, and permission to ring a peal here was appreciated, as it was only a short time after a previous peal had been rung.

At this juncture we bade farewell to Mr. Fred Dunkerley and Mr. J. C. E. Simpson. Mr. Dunkerley left to practise for an air race near Coventry, which, to the delight of the tourists, he won. The result of Mr. Simpson's visit to Southampton should appear in a later edition of this paper.

At Norton on Thursday morning the tourists were welcomed by the Vicar and Mr. H. Rawsley, who had the bells up ready. Here an excellent peal of London was scored on a really splendid ring of bells and could easily be heard by those who stood down, from the hotel grounds. Those who made the short journey to Pickering in the afternoon were much less fortunate, for after about 50 minutes' ringing it was apparent that the band would not have lasted out, as the bells had not been oiled for some months, so the call, 'Stand,' was made.

SCARBOROUGH'S WELCOME.

After a pleasant run from Malton to Scarborough on Friday morning, the tourists were welcomed at St. Mary's Church by the Vicar and Mr. Bert Sutton, and the Yorkshire members of the party were pleased to renew acquaintance with Mr. G. Halksworth, formerly of Doncaster, who despite his 80 odd years still looks hale and hearty. A good peal of London was scored on these bells, which are shortly to be rehung.

From a scenic point of view, the afternoon run across Fylingdales Moor was easily the most pleasant journey of the week, only to be marred by several signposts warning visitors of unexploded bombs that lie amongst the beautiful heather which at this time of year was looking its very best. The steep hill down to Robin Hood's Bay was carefully negotiated, and at least one driver was relieved to know that he did not have to return that way.

Fortunately a false start was made for Bristol on this somewhat noisy but tuneful eight by the Croydon foundry, for whilst those taking part were arguing as to what had gone wrong, the towerkeeper, Mr. Fawster, dashed up to the tower to explain that he had not been warned of this visit and had not oiled the bells. This he very kindly did and a good peal of Bristol was conducted by Mr. Walter Allman. During the peal the writer had the pleasure of visiting Whitby, where 10 years previously he learned to 'Present arms' and 'Get fell-in in threes.' The tower door of St. Mary's, Whitby, was locked, but the sound of activity inside suggested that the new ring of ten should be heard very soon. The tourists were very pleased indeed to be able to spend half an hour after the peal in the company of Mr. Fawster and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander. The journey back to Malton via Whitby and Goathland Moor was not appreciated, for this was done in darkness and heavy rain—all three cars having to get down to bottom gear to climb the many steep hills. Despite several thrills and a little anxiety during the course of this journey, the 'Methods Committee' sat up until a late hour discussing various subjects which will be on the agenda at Chester next Whitsuntide.

The last day, Saturday, saw the tourists divide into two parties, each to be reinforced by the help of some Yorkshire ringers. One party, aided by the two young Jackson brothers, rang a peal of Superlative at Eserick in the morning and Bristol in the afternoon on a good eight at Goole. The tourists regretted not being able to meet Mr. F. W. Robbins, of Eserick, who had made arrangements for ringing. He had unfortunately been taken to hospital. At Goole the party were welcomed in the tower by the Vicar and towerkeeper before the peal, and Mr. C. K. Lewis was able to redeem the position of East Cheshire by calling the composition that had been lost at Esworth earlier in the week.

TADCASTER'S BELLS AND BREW.

The 'second team,' aided by Messrs. Jackson, Fowler and Reed who had the bells up ready, scored a peal of London at Weatherby, but not without some difficulty, as the ringers of 6, 7 and 8 had a warm time towards the end of the peal. In the afternoon this party were welcomed at Tadcaster by Mr. Hick and enjoyed a good peal of Yorkshire on a really grand ring of bells (tenor 20½ cwt. by Taylors). It was stated by one member of this band that the quality of these bells was quite in keeping with the local brew, for which this town is so famous.

And so the end of the tour, agreed by all to be the happiest we have ever had. We can't quite tell why, but if we could we would certainly have more—but it was! Our warm and hearty thanks we offer once again to Mr. J. E. Cawser; without his genius for organisation I doubt whether we could attain such happy conditions. R. G. E.

MONMOUTH CLERGY RINGERS

On Sept. 16th a peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung on the bells of All Saints' Church, Llanfrechfa, Monmouthshire, by six clergymen serving in parishes in the diocese. The peal is the first ever recorded in the history of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association by a band consisting solely of clerical ringers. It is thought that the peal is the first by clergymen of the church in Wales.

The peal was rung in honour of the ordination to the priesthood of the Rev. R. Hallett, curate of Llantarnam, at St. Woolos' Cathedral, Newport, Mon., by the Lord Bishop of Monmouth. The remainder of the band are incumbents in the diocese: Rev. N. C. Weight (Llanddewi-Fach), Rev. F. A. Oswell (Rector of Machen), Rev. R. A. Sluman (Vicar of Blaenavon), Rev. I. J. Richards (Vicar of Crumlin), Rev. Rhys Morris (Vicar of Llanfrechfa and Rural Dean of Pontypool).

It is interesting to note that four of the clergy are in the Pontypool Rural Deanery. After the peal the band were entertained to tea by the Vicar of Llanfrechfa and Mrs. Morris, and were joined by the churchwardens, Messrs. G. D. Stevens and R. E. R. Smith, and their wives. The band wish to express their sincere thanks to the Vicar of Llanfrechfa for the use of the bells and for the kind hospitality at the Vicarage and to Mr. R. E. R. Smith, captain of the Llanfrechfa band, for making arrangements for the peal and showing such keen interest in the attempt.

AN AUSTRALIAN TRIBUTE

To the memory of Mr. William Short, a quarter peal of Doubles (120 Norfolk, 120 Old, 360 Plain Bob, 420 Antelope and 240 Grandsire) was rung at All Saints', Parramatta, N.S.W., by the following: W. H. Short (his son, St. Mary's, Sydney) 1, K. G. Stacey (St. James', Turramurra) 2, A. R. Botting (All Saints', Parramatta) 3, E. B. McDonald (St. Mary's, Sydney) 4, W. M. Rowe (conductor, St. Jude's, Randwick) 5, T. Howell (All Saints', Parramatta) 6.

Lincoln Diocesan Guild

SUBSCRIPTION RAISED TO 4s.

The Lincoln Diocesan Guild half-yearly meeting was held at Spalding on September 9th, over 90 members attending. The Vicar (the Rev. M. H. R. Synge) welcomed the meeting to Spalding.

A very welcome visitor was Mr. W. Pratt, president of the Irish Association, who spoke of his pleasure at being present and offered greetings from the members of his Association. The Guild Master, Mr. J. A. Freeman, who was in the chair, said he was sure the members all hoped that Mr. Pratt would have a happy holiday in England and asked him to take back to the Irish Association best wishes from the Lincoln Diocesan Guild.

The chief business was the passing of a new draft of Guild rules replacing the ones that had been in existence since the Guild's formation. The only controversial rule was that dealing with finance. The hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. Bray, explained that the cost of the annual report and other expenses had so greatly increased that it was impossible to maintain the present standard without a substantial increase in the members' subscriptions. After some discussion it was unanimously decided that the annual subscription for ringing members should be raised to 4s.

The four retiring representatives on the Central Council, Messrs. J. Bray, G. E. Feirn, J. A. Freeman and John Freeman, were re-elected.

It was agreed to send a letter to Mr. G. H. Clark, of Heckington, the Guild's oldest member, expressing best wishes.

Mr. A. Farr made excellent arrangements, the ladies provided a grand tea, there was ringing for every taste, all contributing to a very successful meeting.

BARNLEY AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

The annual cup contest was held at Monk Bretton on September 9th. Six bands entered the draw and the result of the ringing was as follows:—

	Faults Penalties
Mixed Band	497	0	497
Sandal	218	0	218
Shelley 'B'	145	35	190
Cawthorne	95	0	95
Shelley 'A'	93	5	98
Silkstone

Runng out

Cawthorne were the winners and hold the cup for twelve months. Mr. H. Roberts, of Kirkburton, and Mr. E. Short, of Sprothborough, were the judges, and Mr. L. A. Williams, Monk Bretton, was the marker.

The Vicar (the Rev. G. Hodgson) presented the cup to the conductor of the winning team.

DEDICATION

AMBERLEY, SUSSEX

The restored ring of five bells at St. Michael and All Angels' Church, Amberley, silent for 16 years, was rededicated by the Lord Bishop of Lewes (the Right Rev. G. H. Warde) at morning service on Sunday, September 17th. Ringing preceded the service.

The Bishop congratulated the parishioners on their effort in raising almost all the money necessary for the complete restoration of the church roof and bells within 18 months.

As a reply to those who considered the Church of England dead, the Bishop instanced the effort made in the Archdeaconry of Chichester alone, where over £100,000 has been raised for restoration work, apart from normal church expenses.

The bells are a ring by Robert Catlin, dated 1742, and have been tuned and rehung with new fittings by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, with the addition of the push down bar type of Ellacombe ringing apparatus.

The Rev. H. D. Mullett, Vicar, was assisted in the service by the Rev. J. Mullett, M.A., his son, curate of All Hallows', Tottenham. The collection was allocated to the Diocesan Ordination Candidates Fund.

Extracting False Courseheads in Treble Bob Methods

HALF-LEAD SYSTEM.

Ever since method ringing was first practised there has been a relatively small number of men who have interested themselves in composition with its problem of avoiding repetition of rows.

With the introduction of the Treble Bob Hunt this problem became more involved since Treble Bob provided alternative positions for the recurrence of rows.

In the early days the procedure for producing the Proof Scale of a method was haphazard and often resulted in error, and until comparatively recent times was so laborious that only a few enthusiasts took any interest in the subject, which remained a closed book to the great mass of ringers.

But during the last twenty years or so an increasing number of ringers have been attracted to this branch of the art with the inevitable result that the procedure of the early days has been superseded by systems which are much shorter and (if we exclude the human element) infallible.

One such system was placed before the Exercise by Mr. G. L. Joyce in 1928, and was later modified by the late A. G. Driver. More recently alternative systems have been produced by Messrs. C. K. Lewis and M. Hodgson. These three systems have now been presented together in Mr. A. J. Corrigan's latest publication, Mr. Driver's modification being described by Mr. E. A. Barnett and the two later systems by their respective authors.

Each system is lucidly described in detail, examples shown, and the necessary tables given in full for Mr. Hodgson's procedure the application of which to Royal and Maximus as well as Major is dealt with. The booklet also includes a system for determining legitimate lead-heads from the half-leads.

The expert will find much food for thought in a comparison of the systems, while the novice will find an easily comprehensible introduction to a field of investigation wherein much remains to be explored. This is indeed a most valuable little booklet for those who are interested in the fascinating subject of Method Proof and is a worthy addition to the excellent series of booklets published by Mr. Corrigan.

This, I understand, will be the last to be issued until the Collection of Peals is ready in a year or two, and the thanks of the Exercise are due to Mr. Corrigan for having undertaken (at severe financial loss to himself) a series of publications covering subjects not hitherto dealt with by official books.

It would be a pity if these publications had to be dropped through lack of support with the consequent loss of a source of much valuable information.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION

SOUTH-WEST DIVISION.

In spite of the bus strike, the last quarterly meeting of the year held at Wanstead on September 23rd was exceptionally well attended. Wanstead is very much alive these days and its people are becoming very bell-conscious, largely due to the efforts of the Master, Mr. J. Chalk, the evidence being the large number of honorary members from this area.

The service was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. —. Gates, who extended a cordial greeting to the large congregation.

Excellent arrangements had been made by Mr. B. Petty, the local towerkeeper, and the sumptuous tea was 'on the house.' Many of the younger members took the opportunity of trying their hands at spliced ringing on this charming six.

Ringing continued at Woodford in the evening, and here the art is being kept very much alive by the enthusiasm of Mr. C. Morss. Altogether a very enjoyable meeting.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES TOUR

THE third annual August Bank Holiday peal week started on Saturday, August 5th, in glorious weather, and the handy octave at Thurcaston was the first tower on the list.

Thurcaston, a small village 4½ miles north-west of Leicester, situated in a delightful spot at the foot of the Charnwood Hills, was the birthplace of Hugh Latimer, son of a local farmer. Here was the first church he saw, its Norman doorway the first through which he passed, the font with a shallow bowl at which he was baptised, and its tower has the grinning gargoyles he may once have gazed upon in childlike wonder.

Six members of the party had an opportunity to make notes of the church, waiting some 45 minutes for the arrival of the 'Pot Bank twins,' which they did, only after the six had started for Cambridge Minor.

Back at St. Margaret's, Leicester, by early afternoon, minus our 'Ernest' and plus 'Alan,' the band split up into two quartettes for simultaneous handbell peals. The 'race' resulted in the youngsters finishing first, which was to be expected because two of the 'old uns' are now 'converts.'

AMBITION REALISED.

After tea, John Bramley bade us good-bye and good hunting until the following Thursday. However, with Ernest back again, the party made off to the Loughborough Foundry. How fortunate to have such a handy ring of bells and, as one member added, smoking allowed in the belfry, too! Ernest was on the spot with 'Let's try Cambridge non-conducted,' which he said had been on his shelf for close on 30 odd years, and so, as recorded in the peal columns of 'The Ringing World,' was the first non-conducted peal of Surprise in the diocese.

Sunday morning found the P.B. twins travelling by Midland Red bus at 8 a.m. for the Trotman residence in Warwickshire, Stedman Triples being rung on handbells conducted by the host in the absence of wife and family.

The afternoon found the party in St. Margaret's Schools. There we welcomed a new visitor in Joe Ling, from Carlisle Cathedral. Various touches from Minor to Maximus on handbells were rung until tea time, after which we met for evening service ringing on the twelve at St. Margaret's.

The second day of the week we met at Kibworth, which bestrides the main Leicester-London road. The church, dedicated to St. Wilfrid (often erroneously printed Wilfred), is in the Decorated style. Here the bells were raised in peal and set going to Stedman Triples, young Alan calling 'ye bohs.' The surprise of the peal was that it was the first of Stedman on the bells, which have been an eight for over 40 years.

Outside we were met by Sam Pinder and his son. Then followed a 16-mile journey to Kettering, where Messrs. Charles W. Bird and Pat Chapman, of the local band, and Harry Pettitt (Wellingborough) welcomed the tourists. Kettering belfry contains a tablet recording a peal of Grandsire Triples in 1729. The peal we rang here was performed under ideal conditions, and was Pat Chapman's first peal of Stedman.

Ashby Folville Church, set in pastoral surroundings, contains an octave difficult to beat for its weight. Here 'Go Bristol' was called by J.W.F.T. and the bells came into rounds after 3 hours 3 minutes. Some critics might wonder at the time taken. Would that they had heard parts of the peal, and we recall the words of a famous ringer (now passed hence): 'Until a band can vary the "tempo" by so much as a nod can they be classed as ringers.'

The late arrival of 'the colts' at Loughborough Campanile necessitated Ernest leaving. Alan decided to ring 6-7 to Grandsire Triples with another colt conducting. After 30 minutes' ringing it was 'curtains,' the seventh having been called in the hunt and (never let it be said) out at —.

Kegworth, some 17 miles north of Leicester, was the objective on Wednesday. At the church gate we were met by Mr. F. Sutton, who has been a ringer here for 60 years. The peal was the highlight of the week. After bidding good-bye to Mr. Sutton, the party wended its way to Loughborough Campanile. Ernest had other things to attend to, reducing the party to seven. With the help of Mr. J. P. Fidler we started for non-conducted New Cambridge Major. After 1½ hours' ringing a change course spell finis.

The fifth day of the week saw the party at Hugglescote, where Mr. H. Over greeted the visitors. The bells 'go like tops,' and we found conditions best when opened out. Pistow's Superlative came round non-conducted after 3 hours 18 minutes. After a run through the heart of Charnwood Forest, Sibley was reached. New Cambridge was brought round on these, the heaviest pealable eight in the diocese, after 3 hours 43 minutes. We certainly did not 'thresh 'em' (to coin a saying of an old M.C.A. stalwart), and the ease with which the tenor ringer put his bell in its place was a pleasure to see.

Mr. Joseph W. Cotten, of Overseal, had made arrangements for Friday—Measham in the morning and his own tower for the afternoon. Measham, formerly in Derbyshire, was transferred to Leicestershire in 1897. The peal, Bristol Surprise, was rung non-conducted, and in the afternoon Superlative was tapped off in quick time. John Bramley scored his first in the method at both towers.

A FIRST CLASS JOB.

Saturday, the last day of the tour, saw the party assembled at St. Margaret's, Leicester, where Fred Grocott called and also made a first-class job of turning in the heaviest bell in the diocese to Yorkshire Surprise Major. This was the first of Surprise Major on these bells (not the first of Major as supplied to 'The Ringing World'). Young Alan proved to be a first-class right-hand man on the seventh.

Claybrooke was the final tower, and our new discovery tenor man called Cambridge Surprise Major. This is certainly one of the most remarkable octaves—a tenor in E flat and under 14 cwt. and not as some would think without 'breath.' The church possesses a chancel comparable with that of any small church in the land. The beauty of its proportions is enhanced by the lovely flowery tracery of the seven windows which shed light so serenely upon it. The base of the mediæval screen, with its sculptured foliage, has been preserved, and the nave is remarkable for its ancient roof with its great gallery of heads and figures, men and women, saints and grotesque, all sculptured here with piety and fantasy.

A farewell handbell peal of Double Norwich was ticked off by the malingers on Sunday, giving a total of 12 tower-bell peals and four peals 'in hand'—another record in the history of peal ringing in the area. Even Ernest with nearly 1,250 peals to his credit had never rung so many in so little time before.

Those taking part in the tour were Fred E. Wilshaw and Fred W. Grocott (Stoke-on-Trent), Joe Ling (Carlisle Cathedral), Frank Trotman (Nuneaton), Ernest Morris and John Bramley (St. Margaret's, Leicester), Alan Cattell (All Saints', Leicester), John J. Morris (Countesthorpe) and W. P. Whitehead (Barwell). The thanks of the hand are extended to incumbents and local ringers of towers visited who helped to make the tour such a success.

National Police Guild

FIRST LADY MEMBER

The annual meeting of the above Guild was held in London on September 16th with the usual success associated with this event. Members were present from Manchester, Leicester, Birmingham, Bristol, Northants, Kent and other places. The early arrivals were catered for on the ring of eight at St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark.

Lunch was taken at the Euston Tavern, about 90 being present. Amongst the distinguished guests were Mr. E. M. Lewis, president of the C.C., Mr. T. G. Fox, Master of the College Youths, Mr. G. M. Cross, Master of the Cumberland Youths, the Rev. C. E. V. Bowkett, Rector of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, and Chief Superintendent T. W. J. Walters, of 'C' Division, Metropolitan Police. The guests and visitors were welcomed by the president, Inspector H. J. Poole.

Mr. Lewis humorously observed that his only police association was in his capacity in early business days as a copper refiner. Mr. Walters also responded and said he hoped, when leisure permitted, to take up active ringing again.

During the afternoon ringing took place at St. James', Clerkenwell, St. Giles-in-the-Fields, St. Margaret's, Westminster, and St. Martin's-in-the-Fields. The ringing ranged from Grand-sire to Bristol and London Surprise.

The business meeting was held after tea at the Euston Tavern. The president read letters of apology for inability to attend from Mr. O. J. B. Cole, Chief Constable of Leicester, and others. Ex-Superintendent F. R. Williams, a vice-president, was unable to be present owing to a family bereavement, and Mr. A. W. Heath, of Cardiff, owing to the illness of his wife. It was directed that letters of sympathy and condolence be sent in each case.

A special welcome was accorded Miss Betty Lee, of the Manchester Force, the first lady member of the Guild. Evidently some of her Manchester friends thought she was worthy of distinction as she was waylaid by photographers and reporters. She was one of two new members.

There are 115 ringing members and an up-to-date balance of £12 2s.

Inspector T. R. Butler, of Liverpool, gave a report of his attendance as the Guild's representative at the C.C. meeting. He referred to the welcome given and the hospitality shown at Eastbourne, and spoke of the admirable efficiency with which the business of the meeting was conducted. It was decided that officers and committee should hold office for a term of three years. Ex-Sergeant Jenney expressed a desire to give up the secretaryship to a younger member and P.C. C. Knight, of Leicester, was appointed and will take over at the end of the year.

Ex-Sergeant Jenney was thanked for the services he had rendered as secretary and treasurer. He was elected to the committee together with P.C. Robinson, of Northampton, they superseding P.C. Gilbert and Ex-P.C. F. Page.

The death of P.C. F. Draycott, of Leicester, and of ex-P.C. G. Charge, was reported, the latter taking part in the first police peal ever rung as a member of the Metropolitan Police. The meeting stood in silence as a tribute.

It was decided that the next annual meeting be held at Birmingham on September 15th, 1951.

A social evening followed the meeting when an excellent programme was provided, the singing of a section of the Metropolitan Police Male Voice Choir being greatly appreciated. The handbells were brought into use in changes with some excellent tune ringing by the Carter family of Leicester.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Station Sergeant J. A. Prior and P.C. N. Bagworth, of the Metropolitan Police for the successful arrangements.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SILENT & 'NON-CONDUCTED' PEALS

Dear Sir,—I cannot believe that Frank Haynes is really serious when he pleads ignorance of the difference between a 'silent' and 'non-conducted' peal. Surely it is obvious that—

(a) A silent peal is one during the course of which neither bob nor single nor any word of correction to any ringer by any ringer is made, or any effort made to correct errors in any way; and

(b) A non-conducted peal denotes that everyone on an 'inside' bell was familiar with the calling of that particular peal, and it was, therefore, unnecessary to make any calls. However, this does not mean that it was not necessary during the duration of the peal to correct the wanderings of one or more of the ringers, but this is not necessarily done by the man who would probably have been the conductor: in fact, it could have been done by several of the ringers throughout the peal, but it was still non-conducted. Errors do not always occur at calls.

Regarding umpires for these peals, I myself would be more ready to accept the word of eight ringers that a peal had been rung silent or non-conducted than I would one conductor whose calling may have been at fault without anyone else being aware of the fact. If we cannot accept the integrity of ringers or any conductor, then Mr. Haynes seems to suggest umpires for peals. However, I doubt very much whether those taking part are concerned with Mr. Haynes' views, but rejoice in the knowledge that their peals were as published—silent or non-conducted.

A final word about the abbreviations. Surely it is up to you, sir, whether you print abbreviations of compositions as sent in or put them in full.

I remember suggesting in your columns some time ago that St. Martin's, Birmingham, should display times of ringing in the church porch so that visitors could be enlightened. The reason it was not possible to do so, we were told by their captain through 'The Ringing World', was that there was a shortage of paper! Perhaps the same reason applies now when we should endeavour to keep our peal reports restricted to a proportion in relation to far more important happenings in the daily round and common task of a ringer.

'TRAVELLER.'

MIDLAND COUNTIES TOUR

Dear Sir,—As one of the members of the recent Midland Counties Tour, may I be permitted to reply to Mr. F. E. Haynes, of Smethwick?

(1) The number of ringers available for the tour was at a minimum. I personally wrote to invite eight more to join us, with no avail, as they were already committed either to work or holiday arrangements.

(2) I wrote out and submitted to Mr. W. P. Whitehead what I considered to be a fair and accurate description of our activities, which was self-explanatory as to the reason for our non-conducted efforts. As above, there was no one available to act as umpire; so few ringers, in fact, it was once decided to ring Grandshire Triples with Alan Cattell ringing two bells!

(3) If the 'stars and daggers' had been fully used in the peal columns it would have been very apparent that our treble ringer, although no one would fault him on his striking, was not an experienced Treble Bob man, and occasionally 'dodge with me in 5-6 or 3-4' was indicated by a wave of the hand.

I would like to say here that in the peals in question there was not a single occasion in which any indication was made by those concerned, although in two cases at least they only had the composition five minutes before the start and every bob was made perfectly.

(4) Mr. Haynes has apparently misread his 'Ringing World' with description of the 'heaviest bells in the country.' Mine reads 'First peal of Major on these bells, which are the heaviest in the diocese.'

Perhaps 'W.A.L.' can let me have his address and I will write and ask him to umpire at least one peal on August Monday, 1951, as already we are hoping to 'have another go' next year.—Yours sincerely, FREDK. E. WILSHAW.

Hartshill, Stoke-on-Trent.

'THE NATURE OF THE UNIVERSE'

Dear Sir,—I feel I must defend my comments on 'The Nature of the Universe,' which earned Mr. Hunt's tirade.

Firstly, let me say that the article was written by one who professes to be a Christian, that it was written in all seriousness, and that it quite obviously is conjecture.

Secondly, I do not see any proof in quoting selected passages from the Scriptures. I once tried to find a proverb to illustrate brotherliness, but couldn't; there are plenty against it.

Thirdly, it is my own experience that the greater one's knowledge of science, the more is one's conviction of God's presence. The more one knows of nature, the more one realises what one doesn't, and this is a startling demonstration of God's infinite wisdom. Darwin's Theory of Evolution was, and still is by some, greeted with uncompromising unbelief, yet to many thousands of thinking Christians it is a revelation of Creation.

Lastly, Hoyle's own criticism of Christianity in his book is, in my opinion, hopelessly ill-reasoned. Perhaps this will convince Mr. Hunt that I can think for myself.—Yours sincerely,

B. D. PRICE.

WHICH VERSION OF THE CREATION?

Dear Sir,—Having listened with interest to some of Fred Hoyle's broadcasts and subsequently noted with approval your leading article on 'The Nature of the Universe,' it is obvious that under Mr. Hunt's terms I stand cast out from among all 'right thinking' people. Such summary ejection is my excuse for writing in protest to his letter in the issue of 'The Ringing World' dated Sept. 22nd.

Mr. Hunt demands that we accept the story of the creation in Genesis. May one ask which one? The one given from Genesis, ch. i., v. 1-ch. ii., v. 4, or the one ch. ii., v. 4-ch. ii., v. 25? All of it is, I suppose, the answer. How then are we to account for the fact that animal and vegetable life having been created in Genesis, ch. i., v. 25, and followed by the creation of man and woman in v. 26, we are then told in ch. ii., v. 5 that man was not yet created, and so God formed man first and followed this by the formation of animal and vegetable life? This is, of course, one of many, and by no means the most glaring, contradictions in the Old Testament.

I suggest that it is far more reasonable to accept modern Biblical scholarship with its theories of the amalgamation of different oral traditions and legends than to suggest that the Almighty couldn't make up his mind whether He created human or animal life first.

Mr. Hunt seems to think that science must stand in contradiction to religion. Because the writer of Genesis has been proved unacceptable as a scientist his religious sense is not thereby diminished. The important truth which he was stressing was that God was responsible for the universe, the earth and the life on it. The manner of its occurrence is a subject of secondary importance, for which each age will, doubtless, have its theory. Consequently it is quite possible to accept modern thought on the nature of the universe and at the same time be in complete accordance with the religious essentials of Genesis, ch. i. and ii.

'Campanalogia'

Dear Sir,—I have some information which may be of interest to Mr. A. J. Farr, of Spalding, Lincs.

The earliest book devoted to ringing as an art is 'Tintannalogia.' Its date is 1668, and there are probably no more than three copies in existence. Next came 'Campanalogia,' published in 1667. Further information about these books can be found in J. Armiger Trollope's scholarly treatise, 'The College Youths,' page 18, et seq. A second edition of 'Campanalogia' appeared in 1702, and a corrected edition of this in 1705. There was a third edition in 1733. There was at least one copy of each of these books in the collection of the late Rev. W. C. Pearson, of Henley, Suffolk. It is interesting to recall that the British Museum gladly accepted the Cambridge University Guild's offer of his 'Tintannalogia' in 1942, as they had no copy. I should say that Mr. Farr's book is a second edition 'Campanalogia'—probably the 1702 edition.

In 1788, the first edition of the 'New Campanalogia,' by Jones, Reeves and Blakemore, was printed. There were only 500 copies of this. A second edition of this was published in 1796, having additional poetry on bells at the end. In 1776 appeared a 'Campanalogia' by Monk. All these books are of interest to the connoisseur. I have copies of the 1788 and 1796 editions, the former being incomplete, and Monk's book. Any book on change ringing before 1800 is, I think, a comparative rarity, but books printed in the nineteenth century are to be found occasionally. There were still further editions of the 1788 book in the course of the last century, but they have no great value except to ringers personally.

I have held over mention of Shipway's 'Campanalogia' until last. It appeared in 1816. Trollope had a high opinion of it (vide 'History and Art of Change Ringing,' by Ernest Morris, page 527), and called it 'the best of its kind we possess.' I have no idea of the number of original copies existing. Perhaps someone interested in this aspect of the art will come forward with fuller information about the early books?

LEARNERS AND OTHER BELLS

Sir,—I have always been of the opinion that until a learner is fully capable of handling a bell in his or her tower, the learner should not under any consideration be allowed, even under supervision, to touch a rope in another tower.

After the unfortunate accident at St. Albans Abbey, I hope that Ringing Masters will insist that the necessary standard has been reached in all cases, without exception.

Fortunately accidents in a belfry are rare, but it is suggested that a small medicine chest might be considered as an essential item in every ringing chamber.—Yours faithfully,

F. W. HOUSDEN

THE COLLEGE YOUTHS' DINNER

Dear Sir,—I note that the College Youths' annual dinner has been arranged for Saturday, November 11th, which is the day before Remembrance Sunday, and there were, I think, similar arrangements last year.

The selection of this date will probably mean that some members from the country will be unable to attend the dinner if they are to be in their own church for the Remembrance Sunday morning service.

I think this point might be considered by the committee in future years, as there must be some of us who feel that our rightful place on this important Sunday is in our own belfry and, possibly, choir, instead of spending the Sunday morning travelling home and possibly 'enjoying' a meal supplied by British Railways, Western Region.—Yours truly, Bridgwater. H. J. CANN, Major.

OBITUARY OF THE WEEK

MR. JONATHAN CORBETT.

Guildford Diocesan Guild has lost one of its most popular officers by the death on Sept. 27th of Mr. Jonathan Corbett, of Sunnyside, Bagshot, Surrey. He had been in failing health for several months and was 74 years of age.

Bagshot was his native village. Here he spent his life as a builder and as a faithful servant of the church, singing in the choir for almost 60 years and also rendering service in the belfry for an equally long period.

Before the formation of the Guildford Diocesan Guild he was a member of the old Winchester Guild. Although Bagshot was difficult of access, he attended many meetings in those distant days and took part in a number of peals. He brought friendliness wherever he went, and his love of ringing and bells gained for him a wide circle of friends.

A close friend of Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, the founder of 'The Ringing World,' he was appointed hon. treasurer of the Guildford Diocesan Guild in succession to the late Admiral P. T. Walker about 1932. He held this office until his death, serving the Guild in a most conscientious manner.

Mr. Corbett was also a prominent Freemason and held provincial rank. He is survived by a widow and three daughters.

The funeral service was held at Bagshot Parish Church last Saturday and was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. Banks Jones). The church was filled to capacity.

Among the members of the Guildford Diocesan Guild present were Mr. A. Harman (Master) and Mrs. Harman, Mr. G. L. Grover (hon. secretary) and Mrs. Grover, Messrs. A. H. Pulling (vice-president), C. Hazelden (hon. librarian), C. W. Denyer (Master, Farnham District, also representing Major H. J. Cann), S. Joyce (hon. secretary, Farnham District), W. Viggers, A. Chaffey, E. Coward, T. W. White, C. Ayres, H. Hunt, F. Hall and E. Dowson (Bagshot).

After the service the bells were rung half-muffled to Stedman and Grandsire Triples by members of the Guild. The interment was in Bagshot Cemetery.

MR. W. H. SEABROOK.

Mr. W. H. Seabrook collapsed after driving to business on the morning of August 31st and passed away on September 5th at his home at Surbiton, Surrey, in his 66th year. His remains were cremated at Streatham Park on September 9th, and the service was conducted by the Provost of Southwark Cathedral.

Mr. Seabrook was a 'Friend of Southwark Cathedral' and had been a ringer there for many years. He set a good example of 'loyal friendship,' the quality most needed, and was always ready to make up the band. He had enjoyed ringing in 607 different towers and often referred to the many friendly ringers he had met especially during the tours of the Bristol United Ringing Guilds. He gave special praise to Mr. Mabbs and ringers at Hartlip during his visit to Rochester and district last Easter Monday, and, again, last Whit Monday he was pleased to have his friends, J. Hawkins and A. Coles, with him during his visits to Wicken and surrounding towers. He was with us at a reunion of St. Andrew's, Holborn, ringers, arranged by Mr. Hawkins at St. Giles-in-the-Fields on July 23rd last.

We will remember his company with pleasure, as will his business colleagues at Messrs. Vickers-Armstrongs, Ltd., with whom he served without fail for 36 years. It was always his wish that Southwark Cathedral bells should be open to all ringers, and it is hoped that that will ever be possible. JOHN EUSTON.

MR. HARRY PRICE.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Harry Price, of Stratford-on-Avon, on September 21st, after a short illness.

Born at Netherton, Worcs, 72 years ago, he learnt to ring in his native village. Later his work in connection with the brewing industry took him to Lamberhurst, Kent, where for some years he enjoyed ringing with his old friend, Albert Relfe, and the local band.

On moving to Bromsgrove, he rang many peals, most of which were conducted by the late Mr. Bob Matthews. His coming to live in Stratford-on-Avon 16 years ago was a big help to the local band, who mourn his passing. A first-class striker, he was quick to condemn in-different ringing. He rang nearly 200 peals in a large variety of methods. The only peal he conducted was one of Minor in seven methods at Lamberhurst.

The funeral service was held in the Parish Church, Stratford-on-Avon, on September 25th and was followed by cremation at Perry Barr, Birmingham.

In the evening the bells of Holy Trinity were rung half-muffled to 1,277 Grandsire Caters by W. Cocking 1, F. C. Lyne 2, J. A. Print 3, C. A. Manning 4, J. Findon 5, R. C. Chapman 6, H. Huxley 7, V. B. Hunt (cond.) 8, C. R. Steed 9, F. Kinchin 10.

SHEPTON BEAUCHAMP, SOMERSET

An outing which had been long awaited by the ringers of Shepton Beauchamp and several from the surrounding towers took place on September 9th. The coach took the road at 4.30 a.m., and after a circular tour of the villages set off with a full complement at 5.30 a.m. for Loughborough. A stop was made at Cheltenham for breakfast, and after a long but pleasant run, we arrived at Loughborough at 12.10.

Here we were met by Mr. J. P. Fidler, who had made all the arrangements for us. An excellent lunch was taken at the Eagle, and then we were escorted to the foundry, where several people told 'Great George,' the bourdon bell for Liverpool Cathedral. After an interesting tour of the foundry, most of us made our first acquaintance with the foundry bells, which caused some trepidation when they were tried for the first time.

We next went to the Park, where we had a good look round the War Memorial Tower (surely one of the best war memorials in the country), and were then privileged to hear a recital on the very fine carillon. At the Parish Church we were met by the Vicar, who spoke most kindly to 'we Zummerzet folk,' and we rang on the glorious ten. An excellent high tea was enjoyed at the Eagle, and then we returned to the foundry for the last hour. Everyone had a ring on these bells, and after the initial strangeness of ringing this extremely light ten had worn off, most of us acquitted ourselves quite well.

We said regretful goodbyes to Mr. Fidler, and set out for home (185 miles distant) at 6.30. The journey was uneventful, except for a slight departure from the route at Coventry. We arrived home at 2.30 a.m. on Sunday, tired but happy, after a very pleasant day. We should like to express our very grateful thanks to Mr. Fidler, and to Mr. R. Beale, who first raised the idea of this ambitious and most successful outing. J. W. D.

STANFORD-LE-HOPE, ESSEX.—On Sept. 17th, 1,260 Plain Bob Minor: A. D. Howell 1, Miss J. E. Hills (first of Minor) 2, Miss C. Chinnery 3, A. Reeves 4, A. Hammond (first of Minor) 5, J. Armstrong (first as cond.) 6.

WAVERTON, CHESHIRE.—On Sept. 15th, 1,320 Plain Bob Minor: Miss Heather Logan (first quarter) 1, B. Harris 2, G. K. Dodd 3, G. F. Sperring 4, S. Holmes (first of Minor) 5, R. G. Corby (cond.) 6.

Oxford Diocesan Guild

EAST BERKS AND SOUTH BUCKS.

The August meeting at Cookham, despite the 'Four Guilds' counter-attraction, was the usual successful gathering of about 60 persons, Superlative, Cambridge, Bristol and London being rung.

The September meeting at Penn was also attended by about 60 ringers. Over 20 new members were welcomed to the branch, and an excellent tea (and supper) was provided by the locals. Methods and rounds were attempted to suit all, but one lot of Spliced came 'unstuck.'

A local Society has been formed, and the Deputy Branch Ringing Master, Mr. R. Biggs, is doing some most useful work instructing the beginners. The hope was expressed that it would not be long before the party revisited Penn.

ELY DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

HUNTS DISTRICT.

What is said to have been the best meeting in the Hunts district of the Ely Diocesan Association for many years took place at St. Neots on September 23rd. More than 40 ringers from the county and from Beds, Cambs, Northants and Norfolk took part in the ringing during the afternoon and evening.

Surprise methods were very popular and Cambridge, Yorkshire, London, Bristol, and Superlative were all rung with success, as well as methods such as Stedman, Grandsire, Double Norwich, Plain Bob, and rounds for the less advanced.

At the business meeting, the Rev. L. Galley, Vicar of St. Neots, was in the chair, and Great Staughton was selected for the October meeting.

The Hunts district now holds regular monthly meetings and has quite a high membership for so small a county. The meetings are very popular and never fail to attract visiting ringers, who always find a warm welcome. S. G.

CREWE RINGER'S WEDDING

At Crewe, on September 23rd, a peal of Grandsire Caters was attempted to celebrate the wedding of Mr. W. Kerr, a local ringer, to Miss Kathleen Youde. Unfortunately, after three hours' good ringing, with only four courses to go, one of the bells cast rope and the peal was lost.

The happy couple left for London, and thence to Switzerland, while the ringing was still in progress, and the band would like to take this opportunity to offer their congratulations and wish them health and happiness in their marriage.

The following ringers took part in the attempt: J. Holloway 1, R. D. Langford 2, I. Nichols 3, H. Holding 4, R. T. Holding 5, T. W. Lamb 6, G. A. Packer (conductor) 7, E. V. Rodenhurst 8, J. N. Lindon 9, W. Edge 10. G. A. P.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Despite bad weather, there was an attendance of 40 members at the East Norfolk Branch meeting at Norton Subcourse on September 9th. The Rev. O. Morris conducted the service and tea was arranged by Mr. G. Walpole and the local company.

At the business meeting ratification took place of belfry elections of G. A. Cook (Ashstead), W. Sidwell (Carlisle) and G. R. Poules (Winterton), and new members elected were Miss Joy Randing (Lowestoft) and H. J. Smith (Halvergate). Tribute to the memory of Mr. G. Mayers was paid by the Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow, and the members stood in silence. A joint meeting with the Suffolk Guild at Beccles on November 4th was announced.

Votes of thanks to the Vicar and those who made the tea arrangements were proposed by the president (the Rev. A. St. J. Heard). Ringing was resumed after tea, and some of the company visited Raveningham Church.

Outings

GUILDBOROUGH BRANCH.

Guildborough Branch of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild had their second outing of the 'season,' when a party of 28 toured Bedfordshire.

Ringings took place at Sharnbrook, Milton Ernest, Bromham (where they were joined by Mr. R. C. Noon and Mr. H. Wooding) and Turvey, which had been visited the same day by the Willesden band. Tea was served at Bedford. Thanks are due to all who welcomed the party to their towers.

CYCLING TOUR IN KENT.

Youthful Essex was well to the fore on Sept. 2nd, when nine representatives from Barking, Dagenham, Hornchurch and Stanford-le-Hope set out for a tour of North Kent. Transport was strictly limited to bicycles, although doubts were expressed about one 'pantehnicon' brought along!

The rendezvous was Tilbury Ferry, where the Hornchurch trio were joined by the rest of the party in time to see the last two cars taken aboard. The passenger ferry was pressed into service, however, and the party arrived safely at Gravesend.

The first tower was Milton-next-Gravesend, where Mr. Mitchell awaited us and Stedman Triples was satisfactorily brought home with his assistance. The ringing was unfortunately curtailed owing to a wedding.

The party adjourned to a nearby cafe for 'elevenses' before proceeding to Cobham. Here the rather heavy-going six were rung to Plain Bob, Grandsire and Kent, although more than one person had difficulty in striking the fifth properly! After the fine tomb and brasses in the church had been inspected and admired, a start was made for Meopham, lunch being partaken beside a haystack.

The party, minus one, then went on to Meopham, where the delightful eight were rung to the standard 'three' as well as call changes for the members of the local band, who very kindly met us. The odd member, sad to relate, had lost his pipe and returned posthaste to Cobham in an attempt to retrieve it. This vital mission being successfully accomplished, he rejoined the main party in time to stand in a touch of Stedman.

The advent of the man who has to work for his living now made the party up to its full strength of ten, and the cavalcade headed for Ash-by-Wrotham, where it was met by two charming young ladies. Ringing on this light six included Spliced Kent and Oxford and Cambridge Minor, the latter being a welcome chance for most of the band, since opportunity for ringing this or other Surprise methods is rare in the home territory.

Tea was obtained at Farningham en route to Bexley. An advance party was pushed ahead as we were getting behind schedule, but 120 Bob Doubles with the aid of three of the local band soon brought along the remainder of the party. Some good ringing on this merry eight included Erin Triples.

A final push brought the party to Eltham, where some of the best ringing of the day was heard on this delightful light eight. The ringing here concluded with three well-struck courses of Stedman.

Home was now the main objective, but those who were still thinking of 'eats' enjoyed a light supper at a roadside cafe. There it was unanimously decided that the tour had been a great success and the ringing well above average. A vote of thanks to David Beard for organising the trip and producing some very pretty time-tables was unanimously passed. The route home was by way of Woolwich Tunnel.

LANGFORD BUDVILLE, SOMERSET.—On Sept. 16th, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles: Mrs. W. Harris 1, H. Commins 2, Miss J. Tattersall 3, D. T. North 4, C. W. J. Tarr (cond.) 5, F. Burton 6. Rung prior to the opening of the church fete.

WHITBY PARISH CHURCH

A MONG the historical churches associated with bells St. Mary's, Whitby, Yorks, holds an honoured position. Next Sunday the Archbishop of York is re-dedicating the bells at a special service after their absence for several months. The ring of ten has been recast by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, the cost having been met by Mr. and Mrs. P. Shaw Jeffery, of The Old Hall, Bagdale, near Whitby.

Whitby's claim to fame is that in association with the Monastery here there was the first recorded reference to a church bell in England. The Venerable Bede, in his 'Ecclesiastical History of the English Nation,' tells of the vision which made known the death of Abbess Hilda on November 17th, 680 A.D., at Whitby, to a nun called Begu, who was sleeping in the Monastery at Hackness. 'Begu,' he states, 'heard the well-known sound of a bell in the air, which used to awaken and call them to prayers, when any one of them was taken out of this world, and on opening her eyes, as she thought, saw the top of the house open, and a strong light pour in from above: looking earnestly upon that light she saw the soul of Hilda attended and conducted to Heaven by the angels.'

That is the legend which has survived some 14 centuries. And it is to be perpetuated on the recast tenor at Whitby by the following inscription:—

'To commemorate the Holy Woman Begu who heard at Whitby in 680 A.D. the first recorded church bell in England this peal of ten bells has been recast through the generosity of Alice & Percy Shaw Jeffery, 1950. Norman A. Vasey, Rector of Whitby.'

The original six at Whitby was by Messrs. Lester & Pack, of the Whitechapel Foundry, and were cast in 1762. The bells were augmented to a ring of eight to commemorate Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897 and another two were added for the Coronation of King George V. in 1911. The weights of the bells are: Treble 4½ cwt., second 4¾ cwt., third 5 cwt., fourth 5½ cwt., fifth 6 cwt., sixth 6¾ cwt., seventh 8¼ cwt., eighth 10 cwt., ninth 14 cwt., tenor 19 cwt.

The contract of Messrs. Taylors has also included strengthening of the steel frame. An open meeting is to be held on the Saturday following the dedication and an invitation is extended to all ringers to test the new bells which it is claimed will be, for their weight, one of the finest in the country.

SILENT FOR 20 YEARS

FOR 20 years the ring of eight in the Norman tower of Sibsey, Lincs, has been silent. Now a concerted effort is being made by the vicar and the captain of the erstwhile bell ringers, Mr. W. C. Wilkinson, to raise £900 to restore the bells. The wooden frame has been badly attacked by death-watch beetle and the tower also needs strengthening, the work proposed being a concrete girdle level with the frame. The bells also require attention, and there is a complete absence of bell ropes and other furnishings for the ringing chamber. Sibsey parishioners have already raised £5,323 in the past five years for extensive repairs to the roof and fabric of the church and feel that in raising money for the bells an appeal on a wider basis is justified. The first outside contribution is £3 2s. collected at a meeting of the Eastern Branch of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild at a meeting at Wigtoft.

Sibsey bells are of considerable antiquity, the first entry in the churchwardens' accounts being in 1698. In 1770 the five bells were recast by Henry Harrison, of Barrow, Lincs, the agreement still being in existence. The price then quoted was 24s. per cwt. to 'give them a full tone and tunable sound.' The bells were augmented to six in 1773 and to eight in 1816, the contract for the new tenor and treble being placed with Mr. James Harrison. The tenor weighed about 15 or 16 cwt., and was within ½ in. in diameter of the size of the Boston tenor. In the mid-Victoria period Sibsey ringers included seven members of the Mawer family, and methods rung at the tower included Treble Bob.

In connection with these bells there is a tradition in Stickford, a village some four miles away, that Sibsey bells were originally theirs. The story goes that Stickford bells were being taken away for repair and were dropped carelessly into the water or dyke by the roadside and lost; some time afterwards they were discovered, picked out of the mud and taken to Sibsey and set up in that town. The late Rev. F. Besant, a local historian, can find not the slightest trace of any evidence of this; if there is any foundation to such a legend it is prior to 1719.

Any gifts addressed to the Rev. D. R. F. Creighton, The Vicarage, Sibsey, Lincs, will be gratefully acknowledged.

All peal ringers will take special interest in the announcement of the attempt of 22,208 Double Norwich Court Bob Major at Debenham, Suffolk, on October 21st.
Mr. Nolan Golden is conducting and Mr. A.
Patrick Cannon is turning in the 21½ cwt.
tenor. Our good wishes to the band who are attempting to add another pinnacle to long lengths in English ringing.

Mr. Frank Hopgood, of Isleworth, writes in terms we like to read: Very many congratulations to the Folkestone band on such beautiful striking. It was a pleasure to listen to, so once again, thank you, Folkestone.

There are only five vacancies for the Guild-ford Diocesan Guild dinner on October 21st, which also commemorates the services to the Guild and Exercise by the late Mr. John S.
Goldsmith. Details are advertised in this issue.

The sum of £115 was raised by a gift day at Bicester, Oxfordshire, for urgent repairs to the church. In the evening 1,260 Grandsire
Triples was rung by H. Clifton 1, C. A. Kinch
2, J. Walton 3, E. Pearson 4, W. Bagget 5,
H. Hatfield 6, E. J. Smith (cond.) 7, L. Ward 8.

In the 'Burton Daily Mail' of September
23rd, Mr. W. Frank Stenson, of Crewe, writes:
'I was visiting St. Paul's Church, on Sunday, with its beautiful ring of ten bells, and was surprised that there were only six ringers present. I was even more surprised when I learned that the bells of the other two churches were temporarily silent. At least four ringers could have had a ring on bells well worthy of the best that can be got out of them.
Incidentally, it was Battle of Britain Sunday.
Some nine months ago Mr. Stenson called attention to Montgomery's silent bells. There was a peal attempt there on September 30th with a view to re-creating the old interest.

BELFRY GOSSIP

We regret that a typographical error occurred in the clerical peal at Llan-frechfa. The ringer of the fourth was the Rev. Roy Hallett and not as printed. According to a well-known authority, this is the first peal to be rung by the clergy from one diocese.
If there is any evidence to the contrary, the Editor would be pleased to be informed.

With the peal of Cinques at Walsall on September 30th, Mr. Sidney H. Jones has rung peals of Stedman from Doubles to Cinques.

After a membership of 36 years in the Royal Society of Cumberland Youths, Mr. Leonard Stilwell, of Horsham, has resigned to join the Ancient Society of College Youths.

Dr. Jenny Pym, whose address is at the Women's Christian Medical College, Ludhiana, E. Punjab, North India, would be pleased to hear of any ringers in India. She has a set of handbells, but no one who can ring them.

The ancient Church of St. Andrew, Wanborough, near Swindon, has had three of its five bells recast and a treble added by Messrs.
Taylor and Co., the tenor of the restored ring being 18½ cwt. The dedication ceremony was performed recently by the Lord Bishop of Bristol. Visitors included Mr. F. Sharpe and Mr. J. P. Fidler, representing the founders.
Ringers and non-ringers expressed their high opinion of the bells and workmanship.

A happy family occasion was the 1,260
Grandsire Doubles on Oct. 1st at Mangotsfield, Bristol, when Mr. J. G. Jefferies rang his first quarter with his two sons and two grandsons.
His ambition is to ring a peal. The ringers were Miss B. Cooksley (first quarter, who is leaving Mangotsfield to take up nursing) 1, T.
Jefferies (first 'inside') 2, M. Jefferies 3, Miss
B. Poole 4, C. E. Jefferies 5, J. W. Jefferies 6,
J. G. Jefferies (cond.) 7, E. Cooksley 8.

Record Peal Attempt

22,208 DOUBLE NORWICH COURT BOB MAJOR.

Dear Sir,—Permission has kindly been granted for a long peal attempt at Debenham, Suffolk (tenor 21½ cwt.), on Saturday, October 21st.

I wish to give notice that, commencing at 7.30 a.m., members of the Suffolk Guild will (p.v.) attempt on that day to ring 22,096 changes of Double Norwich Court Bob Major. Mr. C. W. Pipe, hon. secretary of the Suffolk Guild, has kindly consented to act as umpire.

It will be recalled that at this tower on Whit Monday, 1892, the late James Motts, with Frederick J. Tillett, happily still with us, ringing the tenor, called a 16,608 of Oxford Treble Bob Major in 10 hours 32 minutes.

The composition is appended.—Yours faithfully,
NOLAN GOLDEN.

CAMBRIDGE SURPRISE MAJOR

Dear Sir,—Can any of the experts enlighten me on this method? I was always given to understand that two bells only were allowed to lie still in any method. Cambridge Surprise Major has four:—

I would be very pleased to see an explanation through 'The Ringing World' why this is so.

A GUILDFORD AND DISTRICT TOUR

ON Saturday morning, September 16th, a party of ringers from Lincolnshire, Birmingham and Whitley Bay gathered at the Lion Hotel, Guildford, which was to be their headquarters during a week's ringing tour. It was a smaller gathering than had been anticipated. Withdrawals had been caused through illness, and almost treason on the part of the organiser, who had married and squandered his holidays on a honeymoon, having declined to combine his honeymoon with the peal tour.

Augmented by four local ringers, two bands were soon en route to the neighbouring towers of Shalford and West Clandon to commence operations. At Shalford the nice light ring of eight was enjoyed to a successful peal of Spliced in four methods, but at Clandon the band could not master the noise and Rutland was lost in less than an hour.

After service ringing on Sunday morning at the Cathedral and S. Nicolas', Guildford, most of the party joined the local ringers for coffee. The idea of a blank afternoon was too much for three of the party, who went into Sussex and were granted permission for an afternoon attempt at Ruspur. Yorkshire was the method chosen, but George Fearn's hopes of slipping an extra in the programme were foiled when after only three courses his rope broke and time did not allow a restart. Tea—and the party moved off to ring at Leatherhead for evensong.

On Monday morning the coach arrived and Chiddingfold was soon reached. There Lincoln Surprise Major was successful, in spite of two George Fei/earns proving too much for the local captain, who locked the Lincoln edition in the Forge. After lunch at Hindhead, Gray-shott (8) was visited before returning to Guildford, where Bristol on the Cathedral bells was surprisingly lost after 2½ hours' ringing.

Lincolnshire was rung on the light eight at Betchworth on Tuesday morning before lunch. At Dorking, Sydney Holloway demonstrated his skill at replacing his rope on the wheel during a peal of Yorkshire on the 25 cwt. eight.

New territory was explored on Wednesday, when the party moved into Berkshire. Rutland was enjoyed at Warfield. A few hours off duty were granted after lunch at Reading, but by 4.30 p.m. assembly was called at the Church of St. Laurence, where Mrs. C. J. Matthews and Richard Speed joined the party for Stedman Cinques on those very attractive bells.

Aldershot was Thursday morning's tower, and Bristol was rung at St. Michael's. Mr. E. J. Bragg co-operated and renewed his war-time acquaintance with Lincoln friends. London was rung at Farnham in the afternoon. There ringing had to be rather steady owing to the slow struck tenor. The party joined the S. Nicolas', Guildford, ringers in their weekly practice in the evening.

An attempt at Shere failed on Friday morning after an hour's good Pudsey owing to a shift course, but in the afternoon the official part of the tour ended as it had begun with Spliced in four methods; this time at Ewhurst. During the evening 'Au revoir' was said to Guildford friends.

On Saturday morning, as the party broke up, financial chaos was prevented by the Birmingham maestro, who handled the joint hotel account in a masterly way, proving his wizardry with more than one sort of figures. Some returned home, while other ringers made their way to Croydon and Stedman Cinques was rung on these fine products of the local foundry.

Everyone had enjoyed their week, and thanks are due to local incumbents for the use of the bells and their ringers who made everything ready. Thanks, too, to Mr. J. Freeman for the arrangements.

The party have no wish to compete with twenty questions or to anticipate the Christmas Quiz, but did John Pinfold catch up with his sleep when he lost his snoring companion? Does Owen Needham have a larger head measurement after all his 'firsts'? Why did George Fearn go to the cinema two nights in succession after a year's absence? Did Mrs. Pinfold's request for John not to ring above the fourth mean from the front or back? And did she know he spent the week with two George Fei/earns?

DEDICATION

FYFIELD, ESSEX.

The sun shone brightly over the pretty little church in the delightful Essex village of Fyfield on the morning of October 1st. As the folks were gathering themselves together the five bells were ringing Grandsire Doubles.

We were all astir to give thanks for the fruits of the harvest and to assist with the dedication of the new treble to increase the ring to six.

The Rector came into the tower and, supported by the local and visiting ringers, dedicated the new bell to the glory of God and in memory of the great victory over the forces of evil.

Following the dedication the local band rang the six bells to rounds and changes until the Rector had returned to the chancel, where the congregation joined in prayers for the bells and for those whose privilege it would be to ring them.

In his sermon the Rector referred to the church and the bells, the centuries that the church had stood as the spiritual home of the village, and the great number of years that some of the bells had rung their message out over the surrounding countryside, mentioning that the bell christened 'Margaret' had been the gift of a rector who had been dispossessed and turned out of the Rectory at the time of the Reformation.

During the afternoon the bells were open to all comers. Everyone agreed that the bell-founders should be congratulated on the splen-

A YOUNG YORKSHIRE BAND

Dear Sir,—May I, through the medium of your columns, congratulate the young band of boys and girls who rang the peal of Bob Minor at Thryburgh, South Yorkshire, on September 28th?

Mr. Gibson Jackson and myself listened to a good part of the peal, including the first part, and the last 1,000 changes or so, and were delighted at the very fine performance of these youngsters—all members of the Southern Division of the Yorkshire Association and whose average age is only 15 years 3 months.

After the peal they received the praise of the Rector (the Rev. G. K. Dixon), who expressed his amazement and pleasure at the efficiency of such a young team.

Though such a performance naturally requires 100 per cent. team work, a special word of praise is due to 15-year-old Bill Jackson, who so ably captained these youngsters through the peal (his first attempt to call a peal on tower bells).—Yours faithfully, did splice they had made and on the 'go' of the bells.

NORMAN CHADDOCK.

Whiston, near Rotherham, Yorkshire.

The Master and the local ringers are to be congratulated on their efforts to raise the money for the whole of the work, which allowed for the bells to be opened entirely free from debt.

UNIVERSITIES' ASSOCIATION LINCOLN WEEK

AUGUST 18th-26th, 1950

THE Universities' Week opened on Friday evening in the Cathedral ringing chamber, when Mr. John A. Freeman welcomed us, both as Master of the Cathedral company and of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild. Before this we had listened to a perfect touch of Stedman Cinques, half-muffled, as a last tribute to a colleague, and the quiet dignity of the Lincoln ringers spoke oceans. The subsequent ringing varied in quality, but we all did our best under conditions which could not have been more favourable and delighted in a course of Bristol on the 'back eight.'

There are recognised traditions of our summer week, but their pattern is no hindrance to display of local colour, and each year the result is accordingly quite unique in character. At Lincoln we invaded a hotel for the first time, and from the outset it was apparent that the tempo of life at the Oxford was in marked contrast with the hustle and bustle of U.A. This had its compensations, however, for the enforced leisure of eating, plus half-pull change-seating, ensured constant randomisation between the eleven universities.

Saturday morning was spent in discovering the glories of the Minster and ascending the mighty tower of St. Hugh to see Great Tom of Lincoln and afar off on the horizon the Stump of Boston. After lunch peal bands set out for Grantham and Walesby, while the residue, after a ring on the six at St. Botolph's, Saxilby (tenor 12 cwt., please observe), joined in the Gainsborough District meeting at St. Helen's, Willingham-by-Stow (same weight of tenor!), John Hatcher reading the lesson at service. This meeting was to have taken place at Stow Church, but the bells had just been reported unfit for ringing, though some of us, to our exceeding great pleasure, saw over the 'Dowager Minster,' traditionally the Saxon Cathedral of the ancient Diocese of Lindsey. After tea we heard from participants that Stedman Triples had been lost at Walesby Old Church (12 cwt. tenor iii.), but at Grantham, Cambridge Royal for Princess Anne was achieved. A late evening ring at St. Giles', Lincoln—a first-class octave, tenor 18 cwt.—completed the day's belfry programme.

On Sunday came the complex manoeuvre of deploying the large party for service ringing, seven towers being manned—good staff work by the committee the previous night: In Lincoln itself the Cathedral (where we joined in Cambridge Maximus), St. Giles' and St. Peter-at-Gowts' (6 bells, tenor 8 cwt.), and further afield the octaves at Washington and Harmston, both morning and evening, as well as two six-bell towers, a morning trip to Navenby (home of U.A. member Philip Addison), and an afternoon one by over twenty of us to the well-kept little Church of All Saints, Eagle, where we were entertained to tea. After supper our Lincoln friends and their wives came and had coffee with us, and we filled the hotel lounge as it is never likely to be filled again.

The week stretched out long before us. On Monday we went south to Grantham by cars and motor-bikes, with a small cycling party taking the train. St. Wulfram's Church is a noble structure with a fine ring of ten and a 32 cwt. tenor bell, and we fully appreciated the privilege of peal and party visits within the space of three days. Striking east we came to Heydour with its light octave and, yes, 12 cwt. tenor iv. St. Denys', Silk Willoughby, lay en route to Ewerby and was 'grabbed,' but somehow we did not find the ten Ewerby bells easy to strike. Tea was taken at Sleaford before trying the bells. An enjoyable eight with tenor approaching a ton. Westward, cyclists into the wind, to Caythorpe, where at the Church of St. Vincent we found a half-ton octave much to our liking, whence homewards. Films by Gilbert Thurlow provided late evening entertainment in the works canteen of Messrs. Fison's, by invitation of Charlie McGuiness, our 'on the spot' member. These included scenes at Buckfast Abbey on the 1949 U.A. tour, others of the bells and church of St. George, Colegate, Norwich (with shots at the Whitechapel foundry), and the main feature, Gilbert's recent travels through Europe (visiting Oberammergau, Italy and Cyprus) to the Holy Land, all enlivened by inspired commentary.

Both Tuesday's peal attempts were unsuccessful. . . . Stedman Triples again, this time at St. Wilfred's, Metheringham (a very light octave, 7 cwt. tenor), and Yorkshire Surprise at Walesby, though in the latter case a jammed chime wire, necessitating an hour's amateur belhanging, followed by a 'slipped wheel' after only a course of good ringing, were the responsible 'gremlins.' Non-pealers sampled a group of lightish sixes, All Saints', Nettleham, St. Chad's, Dunholme, St. Mary's, Welton (12 cwt. v.), and St. Germaine's, Scotcherne, the Stedman band enjoying themselves with the nearby five at St. Peter's, Dunston. After reunion at St. Lawrence's, Bardney, still another six, came a delicious ham and salad tea, Lincoln being reached via Washington with its pleasant ring of eight and inevitable tenor—12 cwt. vi. In the evening more ringing was sought at St. Peter-at-Gowts', and on the six bells at Branstow.

AT BOSTON.

Wednesday was an extremely full day, beginning with our Corporate Communion in the Ringers' Chapel at the Cathedral, then embarking by coach and cars for a veritable ringing feast. First stop was at Heckington (home of Ronald Pocklington, another U.A. member) with its superb octave, perhaps the finest of the whole tour, and soon we were climbing the Stump at Boston with its ten ropes circling the dome of the ceiling below, too remote from each other for ringing comfort. At quiet Bicker the Norman pillars at the west end of St. Swithin's Church caught our imagination, and the light octave sounded richly for their weight. Mrs. Rupert Richardson met us at famous Surfleet with its leaning tower and the world's lightest ring of twelve, yes, 12 cwt. tenor viii! The tower of St. Mary's, Pinchbeck, also leaned, and here we found the ring of eight (tenor 18 cwt.) much more manageable than the Surfleet bells. Ringing ended as it began on another fine octave, that of the Church of Our Lady and St. Nicholas at Spalding, and after the 40 mile drive the Oxford was reached at 8.30. Late dinner over, a general meeting of the Association was expeditiously presided over by Gilbert Thurlow, matters of interest including the information that the board recording the peal of Stedman Cinques at Canterbury Cathedral in 1946 had now been placed in the ringing chamber, a decision to extend a hearty invitation to members of the recently-formed Adelaide University Guild to join U.A.C.R., the acceptance of the University of Bristol Society invitation to hold the 1951 week at Bristol, and a discussion on the Festival of Britain, already reported.

Thursday's peal attempts succeeded—Yorkshire at Heydour, thus compensating for earlier misfortunes; Lincolnshire at Caythorpe. Non-pealers took the road south to Harmston, and the sixes at Navenby, Wellingore, Leadenham and Fulbeck (including 12 cwt. tenors, viii. and ix.), the whole party then striking west to St. Oswald's, Blankney (6 bells, 9½ cwt.), and the nearby Metheringham, where an excellent 'home-made' tea at the Star and Garter preceded ringing. At the Cathedral after dinner we realised that our 'week' was now galloping to a finish, our ringing reflecting the good effect of the last few days. We joined in Yorkshire Maximus, rang Soliced Surprise Major, and then Stedman on the light octave formed with the Rupert Richardson memorial bell. This last ring with the Cathedral band was made the opportunity for a small presentation to the Master, and then we sang, unaccompanied, the Office of Compline in Mr. Freeman's own church, St. Peter-at-Gowts', so conforming to one of our accepted traditions.

Northwards on our last day towards the 'Isle of Axholme,' ringing first at St. Helen's, Lea (tenor 12½ cwt., x.), and then on the heavier six at Haxey. The 'snatch' at Owston Ferry was more an excuse to advise than to ring: the incumbent and the aged local captain met us at this rather neglected tower and we were surprised to know that five of the bells were rung regularly, but not the tenor, a 12 cwt. bell, needless to say (xi.). Practising what we had just preached, we did not ring, but hope that the bells soon get some much needed attention. At St. Andrew's, Epworth, Mrs. Charlie McGuiness succumbed to persistent persuasion and rang Stedman Triples, and then back through Gainsborough to St. Lawrence's, Corringham, the last six-bell tower and a 12 cwt. tenor, the twelfth. After tea 'swan song' at All Saints', Gainsborough, a fine ring of eight, tenor 18½ cwt., to complete our schedule. The farewell social that evening was in Charlie's works canteen, Denis Layton assuming the role of compeer to entertainment extracted cleverly from the company which steadily grew less and less self-conscious and met its responsibilities nobly. On the morrow we dispersed, leaving two peal bands, one to lose Plain Bob at Harmston, the other to succeed in Superlative at Gainsborough.

So much for the tour itself, and here are a few comments and some thank you's. It was our most representative 'week' so far, our venture northwards bringing encouraging support from the Universities of Durham and Sheffield. For the first time Mr. Jones was not with us, this good friend of ours having recently deserted the Metropolis for the Midlands. The general standard of ringing was high, the one or two members in the early stages benefiting considerably from the tour. As well as ringing there was evidence of associated interests, singing, of course, Ronald Clouston and all his works, the sketch book, the camera, the organ and stained glass. Throughout the fellowship of the belfry was experienced in full measure, for which the Universities Association owes much to the Lincoln Guild. In particular we would thank once more Mr. John A. Freeman, who from the first moment did so much to advise us about the planning of the week and then undertook the responsibility of all the intricate arrangements. To our own Lincoln member, Charlie McGuiness, we take this opportunity of expressing our united thanks for all that he did, and finally a word for our committee, who late most nights could be found somewhere about sorting out peal bands or coping with the other 'irksome' details so important to the smooth running of such a tour: As for 12 cwt. tenors, perhaps their preference for Lincolnshire can well be understood. OBITUARY

MR. W. O. S. HEATHCOTE.

In the passing of Mr. William C. S. Heathcote of Edinburgh, the Scottish Association of Ringers loses its oldest member (he was in his 82nd year) and one of its first ringing masters. He learned to ring in St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh, and became conductor in St. Cuthbert's Parish Church when the bells were installed in 1902. This post he held up to the time of his death, although ill-health prevented his taking an active part for the last two years.

He was made a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths in 1885. He was never keen on peal ringing, although he had rung quite a number. He always aimed at good service ringing. He was a most patient and efficient teacher and must have instructed very many learners in the art of campanology.

Dedication

ST. PAUL'S, SKETTY.

In connection with the centenary festival of St. Paul's, Sketty, Swansea, the bells were rededicated by the Archdeacon of Gower (the Ven. Harold Williams) on September 23rd.

Originally cast by Messrs. Mears and Co., London, in 1850, the bells have now been completely rehung, fitted with new headstocks, modern clapping, ball bearings and retuned by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. After the act of dedication and as the procession went back to the chancel the bells were rung in rounds by members of the local band.

The Archdeacon, in his address, spoke of how the bells expressed the various moods of human life. At times of rejoicing they emphasised joy; at times they soothed and comforted, and when an outstanding character in the community had passed on, the muffled peal expressed their feelings in a way that nothing else could.

After the service a special touch of Stedman Triples, composed and conducted by Mr. A. J. Pitman, was rung by members from Cadoxton, Port Talbot, Porthcawl, Margam, Newport, Cowbridge and Sketty. Specially included in the band was the grand old man of Welsh ringing, Mr. J. H. Jones.

PRESENTATION OF REGALIA

Immediately following the dedication the company went to the Stewart Hall, where the Archdeacon presented the Ringing Master of the Swansea and Brecon Diocesan Guild with regalia of office. The gift, an anonymous one, came as a pleasant surprise to the members.

The Guild were represented by the Ringing Master (Mr. G. I. Lewis) and the general secretary (Mr. D. J. Williams). Mr. J. Fidler represented Messrs. John Taylor and Co.

Ringers were present from all parts of South Wales. The bells were rung until 8.30 p.m., when they were lowered in peal, making a good ending to a most enjoyable day. The local arrangements were made by Mr. Fred Buttery.

THE LADIES' GUILD

CENTRAL DISTRICT AT ST. ALBANS.

The meeting of the Central District at St. Albans on September 23rd brought together members and friends from as far afield as Chester-le-Street and Swindon.

During the afternoon the bells of St. Peter's, St. Stephen's and St. Michael's were available, the proceedings at St. Peter's being enlivened by the arrival of a Press photographer from one of the local papers.

A splendid tea, prepared by the local ringers, was followed by the business meeting, at which two new members were elected. One of the most important items discussed was the apparent lack of enthusiasm among members and their laxity in attending meetings. Although we welcome visitors, they are your meetings, and we want to see you at them. So do come along and bring a friend with you. There is nothing to suit everyone. The next meeting is to be held on November 25th.

Votes of thanks were accorded to the Dean and other incumbents for permission to ring at the Cathedral and the other churches, and to Mr. H. Frost and Miss A. Bailey for making the arrangements and preparing tea. D.E.L.

Beverley & District Society

Forty members of the Society attended the meeting at Hutton Cranswick on September 9th. They were welcomed by the Vicar (the Rev. G. Storer), and invited to raise and try out his new ring of bells.

The service was conducted by the Vicar, Mr. F. Wilkinson read the lesson, and handbells were rung at the appropriate place in the psalms.

The Vicar based his sermon on the use of bells for certain religious services and emphasised the value of good and accurate striking by the ringers so that the meaning of the message was not distorted or lost.

After tea, which was served in the Church Hall, the Vicar was thanked for the use of the bells and the arrangements for the meeting, which he had personally supervised as he has not yet a band of local ringers.

ST. PAUL'S, SKETTY.

The bells, a heavy ring of six with tenor 18½ cwt., were rung again in a variety of methods until 9 p.m. People in outlying districts and isolated farms have reported to the Vicar their pleasure in being able to listen to the bells from the extreme bounds of the parish.

HALIFAX AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

A quarterly meeting and six-bell contest were held at Ripponden on September 23rd. Five teams entered to ring 120 changes practice and 600 changes test piece, any method. The result of the contest was as follows:—

Silkstone, 91 faults.
Shelley, 107 faults.
Friezland, 33 faults.
Lindley, 61 faults.
Liversedge, 34 faults.

The judge, Mr. H. Roberts, of Kirkburton, declared Friezland the winners.

All members absent, please note, they missed a lovely tea, a good afternoon's ringing, and an enjoyable meeting, plus good Ripponden hospitality.

TIVERTON, DEVON.—On Sept. 17th, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: E. J. Taylor (cond.) 1, F. Norris 2, L. May 3, P. Mayne 4, W. Ware 5, E. Richards 6, J. Upton 7, A. Kerslake 8.

Birthday Greetings Broadcast

FROM LEICESTER TO LOS ANGELES

The 79th birthday of Ernest Weatherby, late of Market Drayton and now of Los Angeles, California, was marked with unique proceedings. It will be recalled that Mr. A. A. Hughes, of Mears and Stainbank, visited Canada and U.S.A. some three years ago, and among other places spent some time at Vancouver with Mr. A. C. Limpus and the ringers there. Also at Victoria Cathedral, Mr. E. W. Izard and his company arranged some good ringing. Ernest Weatherby flew up from Los Angeles to meet the ringers and Mr. Hughes for a few days, then flew back after spending a very happy and delightful time.

Earlier this year Mr. Weatherby sent over to Whitechapel a set of eight handbells, tenor 7 in D. He had the three smallest scrapped and the remaining five completely overhauled, after which seven lower bells were added to make a ring of twelve, size 14 in D flat. To these were added a sharp second and flat sixth.

Before being sent back to Los Angeles these bells were sent to Ernest Morris, of St. Margaret's, Leicester, for a peal to be rung on them for Mr. Weatherby's 79th birthday. An excellent peal of Double Norwich Major was rung on the back eight (see peal columns), and on the following Monday Grandsire Cinques was attempted, but unfortunately lost after about a quarter peal; then a long touch of Stedman Cinques was rung. Before returning the bells it was arranged for Mr. Josiah Morris (who is 83 and Leicester's oldest peal ringer) to ring a peal on them, and this was successfully carried out in fine style, 'old Joe' having lost none of his famous rhythm!

The B.B.C. (Overseas Service) got into touch with Ernest Morris and a full account of the proceedings were broadcast direct to America. Perhaps Mr. Weatherby himself will give his impressions on this, and also tell us what the inscription, '1820-1860. E.W. 1918,' on one of the bells implies. All his old friends in England and elsewhere will wish Mr. Weatherby 'all the best' and greetings from us all. E. M.

DEVON RINGERS IN SOMERSET

On September 14th, ringers from Sidmouth, East Budleigh, Woodbury, Broadclyst and Ottery St. Mary had a half-day trip into Somerset.

The first stop was Stoke-under-Ham, where we were met by Mrs. Powell. After an enjoyable ring, Mr. Jack Arbury, on behalf of the party, placed a spray of flowers on the grave of the late Rev. E. S. Powell, past president of the Devonshire Guild. Mrs. Powell joined the party and a short journey brought us to Martock, where ringing continued for an hour on the fine eight. Queen Camel, with its heavy six, followed.

A short run brought us to Yeovil with its lovely ring of ten. A well-struck touch of Grandsire Caters here was the highlight of the afternoon. A good lower in peal crowned the ringing in this fine tower.

After traffic delay caused by the Yeovil Show, Chard was reached a little behind schedule.

Methods rung during the day included Grandsire, Stedman, Kent and Plain Bob, and the conducting was shared by eight of the party.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A 40th ANNIVERSARY

Dear Sir,—It may be interesting to recall that 40 years ago, on October 11th, 1910, the first and only peal of Stedman Caters by priests was rung at St. Mary's, Warwick. The band stood as follows: G. F. Coleridge, J. F. Hastings, H. S. T. Richardson, C. Carew Cox, E. V. Cox, F. J. O. Helmore, C. D. P. Davies, H. Law James, C. W. O. Jenkyn, H. A. Cockey. The peal was of 5,067 changes, composed and conducted by C. D. P. Davies. Of that band, Preb. E. V. Cox and myself are the only survivors.

The next day we rang the Rev. H. Earle Bulwer's irregular ten-part peal of Stedman Triples at Mickleton, which the Rev. H. Law James conducted from the treble, J. F. Hastings and C. W. O. Jenkyn standing out. This latter was the second clerical peal of Stedman Triples, the first having been rung at Drayton on October 2nd, 1884, under the conductorship of the Rev. F. E. Robinson.

The photograph of the Caters band which appears in Morris' 'History and Art of Change Ringing' was rather a remarkable achievement. The eight who rang at Mickleton were photographed with my cousin's camera in rain, a space being left for the two absentees. This negative was smashed in the post, but an untuned print had been taken of it and this was re-photographed and the two added. Under those conditions all credit was due for the quite recognisable result.—Yours very truly,

C. CAREW COX.

Lyne Regis, Dorset.

SPLITTING HAIRS

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent, Mr. Frank E. Haynes, writes in a recent issue of 'The Ringing World,' 'but find myself somewhat puzzled by the manner in which several of the peals rung during the tour of the Midland Counties Guild are set out.'

I would kindly ask him to refer to 'The Ringing World' of a certain peal rung in the Midlands some time ago. This should give him the answer 'where the difference lay.'—Yours faithfully,

W. P. WHITEHEAD.

Barwell Lane, Hinckley.

'THE PERFECT PEAL'

Dear Sir,—I was pleased to read Mr. Barnett's letter, in which he expresses appreciation of our 'silent' peal of Stedman Triples rung at Dartford in 1924. He states, quite correctly, that Mrs. Deal had never called a bob in the method, and has not called one since. I carefully coached her in the Four-part a few evenings beforehand, and on the day found myself planted on the seventh—but consoled myself with the reflection that the seventh man in a peal of this kind bears as much responsibility as anyone else—others will probably rely on his accuracy! After one false start, we nearly, if not quite, attained what I always contend is the nearest thing to the impossible—the 'perfect peal.'

May I point out that Mr. Barnett is not quite right in saying that J. W. Washbrook taught Mrs. Deal to ring? She acquired the rudiments from our old friend, Joe Hall, at Miles Platting—she was then known as Emma Tonge. Washbrook called her first peal of Stedman (at Birch-in-Rusholme), and we were closely associated with him for the four years I spent in Manchester. He was a splendid chap, both in theory and practice, and his perfect striking and correct handling (weight of metal did not seem to matter) were worthy examples for any young ringer.

Washbrook had a rather hard time in his later years. He kept a dairy, and had to be out very early in all weathers to collect his milk at London Road Station—in fact, he died while on his milk round. He lost three sons, all, I believe, first-class ringers, in the 1914-18 war.—Yours faithfully,

East Ham, London. RICHARD F. DEAL.

'THE RING O' BELLS,' KENDAL

Sir,—The original signboard of 'The Ring o' Bells' at Kendal was painted in 1818 by William Fothergill, a local artist, portraying the Kendal ringers who took part in a peal of Grandsire Caters at the Parish Church in that year. It was for some years the property of one of the ringers, but eventually it came into the possession of the brewers.

Unless the board has been repainted, repaired or redesigned during the past year, I cannot agree with the description given by your correspondent, Mr. Birkett.

The original painting was of part of the exterior of the tower, and one can see two of the side buttresses and the clock face. The louvres have been omitted, so one is able to see four bells and five wheels in the bell chamber. The west window was similarly cut away to reveal the ringers in the ringing chamber.

All the ringers were holding the sallies and were facing in the same direction, that is towards the artist. They are, in fact, equidistant from each other and are standing in a perfect circle. The impression of three separate groups is caused by the artist's attempt to give a true perspective.

A photograph of this board appears in 'The History and Art of Change Ringing,' under the heading, 'Kendal Ringers in 1819.'

The Kendal ringers were good enough, during the ringing tours in the northern counties in 1925-1931 and 1933, to give a photographed copy of the board to visitors.

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP & RINGING

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. P. B. Derby's letter asking our attitude to training a ringer who will not be able to ring for Sunday service because he is not a member of the Church Communion, I would suggest the following alternatives:—

(1) That the difficulty be overcome by him becoming a bona-fide member of the Church Communion.

(2) If some exceptional difficulty prevents this, perhaps he could take up ringing at some other church, where he would be able to ring for service.

There is little point in him being trained unless there is some prospect of him attending for service ringing, as meetings, practices and peals have the ultimate aim of improving and stimulating the Sunday service ringer.

Whilst illness, shift work, family responsibilities and Sunday morning transport difficulties are reasons that must be accepted for non-attendance on Sundays, it is as well to choose beginners who will be able to attend with reasonable regularity on Sundays.—Yours, etc.,

NORMAN CHADDOCK.

Whiston, near Rotherham, Yorkshire.

MEMORIAL PEAL BOOK

Dear Sir,—The relatives of the late Mr. A. Rolph, of Hornchurch, have asked that something should be placed in the tower in memory of him and in thanksgiving for the many happy hours that he spent there.

To comply with this request it has been decided to purchase a peal book, inscribed suitably, and house it, and to enter all peals rung on the bells of St. Andrew's.

I should be very grateful if you would bring this to the notice of peal secretaries of any guilds or associations who have rung peals at Hornchurch, and I would ask them if they would kindly let me have the details of such peals so that they may be included in the book.

I anticipate completing the work by the end of October.—Yours faithfully,

F. V. GANT.

A Defence of Ringing

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent, W. F. S., raises another point in this discussion, viz., the case of serious sickness or death when ringers come to ring in a parish. More than once at a ringing meeting when I was chairman, a message has come from the incumbent that he has been requested to ask the ringers not to ring, or curtail it as much as possible, owing to a parishioner near the church being seriously ill or just passed away.

With regret I have had to inform the ringers that the incumbent's wish must be legally obeyed, he being the only person who can say the bells may be rung, or may not. The sympathy of the ringers for the sick one and the relatives is always most marked, and they bear the disappointment with Christian fortitude without a murmur, being content with the church service, the tea, the business meeting, handbell ringing and the fellowship one with another.

But what of the patient who loves to hear the bells and is disappointed they are not rung?

I have heard of a dying Scotsman who had a remarkable recovery when he heard the sound of his beloved bagpipes. And, as regards myself, if I were sick unto death, the sound of the bells would revive me; I would not wish them to cease. My aged grandmother was just the same. She told her children, 'When I die, ring out the bells and not that mournful dead bell.'

If that dying father had heard the bells he longed to hear, who knows but what he might have been alive to-day. We never hear the opinion of a doctor in these cases, and whether he requests the bells not to ring. I can imagine the Radio Doctor, a man after my own heart, saying, 'A pad of cotton wool in each of the patient's ears will do the trick and prove a solution of the whole problem.'

Tiverton.

J. M. TURNER.

JUST—THANK YOU!

Dear Sir,—The 1950 season of ringers' outings and tours is drawing to its close. Many of these outings have been reported in your columns, many have not; but they would all seem to have been thoroughly enjoyed.

With few exceptions ringers have no doubt found that someone was at the tower to greet them and look after them, and in some cases arrangements for meals were made as well. I wonder how many of the organisers of these outings remembered to send a 'thank you' postcard after they got back? Of course, one knows that verbal thanks are given at the time, but that is so easy, isn't it, and the least one can do. We get many visiting hands to our tower, not infrequently two in a day, but once only last year and not at all this year has anyone taken just that little extra trouble to send a note of thanks.

Of course, when, as it does happen occasionally, the tower has forgotten that one is coming or no one bothers to be there to unlock the ringing chamber or show one how to put off the clock or chiming apparatus, the omission of a note of thanks may be justified. But when everything possible has been done to make the visit a happy one I should like to commend to outing organisers that little extra courtesy of a postcard of thanks.

BELLS AND GUNS

Dear Sir,—As a pendant to Mr. Ernest Morris' article on 'Bells and Guns,' the story of the bells in the little Austrian village in which I have just been staying is instructive. Briefly, it is as follows: 1750—2 bells; 1850—4 bells; 1916—all melted down; 1922—all replaced; 1942—melted down; 1947—replaced. The Pfarrer and I shook hands on the hope that the bells might now be allowed to remain in peace. WILLIAM MORLAND.

RINGERS' OUTINGS

PUTNEY.

On September 9th, the Putney ringers and many old friends from other towers who filled a 32-seater coach made a tour through the fruit orchards and hop fields of Kent. Although the morning was dull and damp, a prompt start was made from Putney Church at 8.45 a.m., and after picking up more ringers and friends at Hammersmith and Charing Cross, we proceeded with a full coach for Sevenoaks.

Sevenoaks was reached at 10.35 a.m., and those who first climbed the well-worn steps to the ringing chamber of St. Nicholas' Church found the bells already raised and were given a very warm welcome by the lady secretary of the tower. The first touch of Stedman Triples was conducted by Mr. W. T. Elson, our organiser. This was followed by a course of Cambridge Surprise Major, a touch of Grand-sire Triples and a further touch of Stedman. Our short visit was thoroughly enjoyed. Our next appointment was at the Bear Hotel, West Malling, where lunch had been booked.

After a good lunch everyone was pleased to find the ringing chamber on the ground floor at St. Mary the Virgin's, West Malling. Here the eight were raised in peal and touches of Stedman Triples, Grand-sire Triples, Bob Major and a course of Superlative were brought to a successful conclusion before the bells were lowered in peal.

Our next tower was Leeds, where the ring of ten was soon going for a touch of Stedman Caters. The first two attempts came to grief and adjustments had to be made to ropes and the band. After this a good touch of Grand-sire Caters and half a course of Cambridge Royal were completed before we left at 4 p.m. to find the café at Harrietsham, where tea had been arranged.

Tea over, we made another short journey by coach to ring at St. John the Baptist's Church at Harrietsham. Many of us thought when raising the bells that they were not going to be very musical, but after some good touches of Stedman Triples, Grand-sire Triples and Double Norwich we came away with changed opinions. Our last ring of the day was at Marden. During the day 19 touches in 10 methods were rung and only three came to grief.

Before entering London and before the party started to break up Mr. F. Hawthorn proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. W. T. Elson, who had made all the arrangements and given us such an enjoyable day.

TEWKESBURY BRANCH.

North Worcestershire was chosen by the Tewkesbury Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association for their annual outing on September 16th.

Ringing took place on the fine eights at Dodderhill and Harlebury, and after an excellent lunch at Bewdley the bells of the Parish Church were sampled.

At Areley Kings the bells, a nice ring of six, were raised and rung to a six-score of Grand-sire and partly through a touch of Bob Minor before it was realised that the third had been mistaken for the treble! (Tower Corner has not been studied.—Ed.). A prominent member of the party, a man of great ringing ability, was very puzzled, being quite unable to identify the method. This did not prevent the party from enjoying the excellent tea which followed.

Some of the best ringing of the day took place in the last tower visited, Ombersley, where on this six the Terley contingent were in their element. On the homeward journey a pleasant hour was spent at Eckington with Leonard at the piano. Group Capt. Lister, who was responsible for organising the outing, deserved the vote of thanks proposed by Mr. T. Steward. It was a very good day, well organised.

MELKSHAM.

A very wet morning on September 9th did not seem to be a good omen for an outing, but a start was made at 9 a.m., with a lady and gentleman sitting as close to the engine of the coach as possible to 'dry out' after a 9 mile cycle ride. With a very pleasant run behind us we eventually arrived at Faringdon, where the lovely-toned octave was quickly raised and some well-struck Triples were heard.

At Appleton, Mr. George White was on guard at the door of the ringing chamber. Having rung with some of the party in the past, old times were talked over; meanwhile the rest of the party raised the fine old ring of ten and tried a course of Grand-sire Caters. It was not really good striking, and Mr. White informed us that most visitors suffered the same for the first few touches. Later on, a course of Stedman Caters came much better.

Oxford, being only seven miles away, was voted the best place for lunch. This was followed by ringing on the grand eight at Dorchester, our 'turner in of tenors,' C. F. Andrews, really enjoying a course of Major. The new ropes were a little hard on the ladies' hands, but this was the only complaint. On past Culham Aerodrome to Abingdon, where we took the wrong turning, but were spotted by Mr. A. E. Locke, who expended a great deal of energy chasing us on his bicycle and leading us back to the Abbey Church. Here we tried out the light six while our captain (Mr. W. C. West) talked over old times with Mr. Locke.

A short interval for tea, and then came St. Helen's fine ring of ten. Caters went much better here, and we were delighted with the 'go' of the bells. At Wantage it was difficult to reach the church for roundabouts, swings, etc., but the heavy eight were soon sounding above the noise of the fair.

A little late, we left Wantage to its fair, and proceeded to our last tower, Hungerford, where we found a very patient Mr. Oram waiting for us, thinking we were lost. This easy going eight sounded really well and was put to good use as long as the daylight lasted.

HUNTINGDON.

On September 9th, Hunts ringers, accompanied by friends, left Huntingdon by coach on a very wet morning for Lincolnshire for their day's outing.

The rain had stopped when Crowland Abbey was reached. The ringers were met by Mr. Strickland, and ringing included Cambridge and London Minor and Plain and Treble Bob methods. A disappointment awaited the party at Spalding, where ringing was limited to a touch of Cambridge owing to a funeral.

In consequence Gosherton was reached ten minutes late, but the ringing was enjoyed on the heavy six. Bicker was reached on time, although the coach had to be turned round twice on narrow roads and back seat drivers armed with maps were free with advice. The striking here was not all that was desired and blame was given to the light bells. Mr. Bernard Dalton arranged tea for the party at Billingborough, which was followed by a visit to the tower, where London, St. Clement's, Plain Bob and Grand-sire Doubles were rung.

Edenham was reached on time. Mr. Brian Sims acting as navigator. The bells here were up and we were met by four local ringers. Cambridge, Stedman and Double Norwich were enjoyed on this musical ring.

Mr. H. Day guided the party to Deeping St. James, the last tower of the day. The pleasure of ringing on these heavy bells was commented upon, and Surprise and plain methods were rung before a good fall brought ringing to a close. Huntingdon was reached at 12.30 a.m. Thanks are due to the incumbents and Lincolnshire ringers who helped us and to Mr. H. S. Peacock for making the arrangements. S. G.

THE ROLL OF HONOUR

THIS week we publish the Roll of Honour of those ringers who went forth from the towers and belfries of the country and gave their lives in the second World War. A decision to commemorate in a tangible form this sacrifice was taken by the Central Council. The preliminary work has reached its final stage, Mr. Harry Miles, of Carbis Bay, St. Ives, Cornwall, being entrusted with the task of compiling the list.

To date the list contains 221 names. Readers will note the heavy loss of the Kent County Association with 32 names, followed by Oxford Diocesan Guild with 17, Guildford Diocesan Guild with 14, the Lancashire Association with 13 and the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association with 12.

The list is not complete. There are a number of Guilds and Associations who, for some reason or another, have not been able to complete their lists. We trust that the majority have a nil return. These include the Essex Association, the Hereford Diocesan Guild, the London Counties' Association, the St. Martin's Guild for the Diocese of Birmingham, the Shropshire Association, the Stafford Archdeaconry and the Surrey Association. It is not too late for them to take action and respond to the request that has been published in this journal on a number of occasions.

While the primary purpose of publication is for a permanent record, the secondary reason is for corrections and omissions from the official list. These should be forwarded to Mr. Miles without delay, and we trust that ringers will individually co-operate and inform their guild secretaries of errors.

After the 1914-18 war a Book of Remembrance was compiled and the names written on parchment. This book was deposited at St. Paul's Cathedral and special precautions were taken as to its safety during the years of the blitz. When the list is presented to the Central Council at Chester next Whitsuntide a decision will be taken as to the form of the memorial—either to incorporate the names with the Book of the First War or to prepare a separate volume. With many memorials the two lists are incorporated, and it should not be impossible to follow this precept in regard to the Ringers' Roll of Honour.

THAXTED BELLS

THE dedication of Thaxted's restored ring of bells was, as our readers will remember, the subject matter of a pleasing report in April, 1949, from the gifted pen of Ethelind Fearon. We have now received a beautifully illustrated pamphlet dealing with these bells, written by Francis W. Steer, F.R.Hist.S.

The writer has found a wealth of detail from the long series of accounts belonging to Thaxted Church which are now deposited in the Diocesan Record Office at Chelmsford and also from the archives at the Essex Record Office.

Particularly valuable from an historical point of view are the accounts for the years 1617 and 1619 when the bells were recast. The new wooden frame cost £4 2s., timber 4d. a foot and a journeyman, working nine days, 10s. 6d. It appears that the bells were recast at Cambridge, probably at the foundry of Robert Holdfield, and the Mayor went to the University town to supervise the casting.

We do not know what our churchwardens of to-day would say if such items as shoes for the bell-founder 2s. 2d., an apron for the bell-founder 8d., two shirts for the bell-founder 5s. 6d., a pound of candles 4d., were to be included in the bell-founder's bill. The total amount spent on the bells and frames during 1617-19 amounted to over £50, which Mr. Steer estimates on a conservative basis to represent £750 to-day.

Four of the bells were renewed by Thomas Gardiner, of Sudbury, in 1734, and in 1778 the great tenor, weighing 22 cwt., was so damaged by one of the ringers that its metal, with some from another bell, was recast by William Mears into a new tenor and bells 1, 2 and 3. This made a ring of eight.

Of the three he's recast by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, the most interesting is the fourth with its frieze of Folk Dancers. This heme is based on an Old Cornish poem, 'This have I done for my true love', which tells the story of our Lord's life on earth, and after each episode occur the words: 'To call my true love to the dance.' The last lines are:—
Then up to Heav'n I did ascend,
Where now I dwell in sure substance,
On the right hand of God that man may come into the General Dance.
Sing, oh my love, oh my love, my love, my love,
This have I done for my true love.

'Thaxted Bells' may be obtained from Mr. F. W. Steer, Patmers, Dutton Hill, Great Dunmow, price 1s. 2d.

SUBSCRIPTION REMINDER.

If your friend has not received his postal copy this week the reason is probably due to his subscription (5/6) not having reached Mrs. Fletcher, The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk.

In October, 1910, at St. Wilfrid's Church, Kibworth, Leics., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Staniforth were married. Fred's school pal, Ernest Morris, stood by as 'best man'! The bells on that occasion (then six) were rung, and Ernest—after leaving the bridesmaids to fend for themselves—went and conducted the ringing. To celebrate the 40th anniversary once again Kibworth bells were rung. The 'bridegroom' rang the tenor and the 'best man' called from the 6th, when a very good peal of Bob Major resulted. The whole company were afterwards entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Staniforth, and we now look forward to the 50th jubilee.

The peal rung at Chiddingfold on Sept. 18th was Lincoln Surprise Major and not Lincolnshire as published.

With the peal at Kelston, Somerset, Mr. T. F. King has now rung peals of Kent Treble Bob from Minor to Maximus.

The peal of Doubles at St. Breoke was in honour of the silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Northey. Mr. Northey has been a lone supporter of method ringing in that part of Cornwall for many years, and has cycled long distances to get what ringing he could. Of late years he has been rewarded with a few peals. Mrs. Northey provided an enjoyable tea after the peal, and the band was able to express good wishes for many more years of happiness.

Mr. J. B. Fenton, who was Ringing Master of St. Andrew's, Rugby, for 21 years, has celebrated his diamond wedding. His colleagues in the belfry rang a quarter peal of Doubles (420 Grandsire, 360 Stedman, 120 St. Simon's and 240 Plain Bob) in honour of the event. They were Mrs. W. Vann 1, C. Underwood 2, W. Betley 3, E. Hunt 4, W. Vann (cond.) 5.

BELFRY GOSSIP

What is believed to be the first quarter peal on tower bells rung completely double-handed was rung at St. Peter's, Hersham, Surrey, on October 9th, when 1,440 Bob Minor was accomplished on the back six (tenor 8½ cwt.): W. Simmonds 1-2, C. W. Denyer 3-4, Tony Price (cond.) 5-6. Witnesses: W. Denyer and A. E. Price. This tower is one of the very few where all four pairs of bells can be rung double-handed, and it is hoped that further progress will be made in the not too distant future.

The Rev. M. C. C. Melville is coming home on leave from Brazil at the New Year and hopes to pass through Canada en route.

There is a change of venue for the St. Albans district meeting to-morrow. It is at Kimpton and not Wheathampstead as previously announced.

Oxford University Society have elected Mr. R. B. Measures as their representative on the Central Council, following the resignation of Miss Betty Spice. The meeting was held on October 9th at Jesus College.

Mr. George Prescott, the popular Ringing Master of the Axbridge Deanery of the Bath and Wells Association, spent a profitable week's holiday in the Worcester area recently, scoring five peals out of five attempts, including his first peals of Stedman Caters and Double Norwich.

After the memorial service to Field Marshal Smuts at Great St. Mary's, Cambridge, 1,259 Grandsire Caters was rung by the members of the Cambridge Youths, assisted by the Cambridge University Guild. The ringers were: P. Pigg 1, A. T. Chenery 2, T. R. Dennis 3, C. Hurst 4, W. Ridgeman 5, A. W. Cleaver 6, C. W. Smith (cond.) 7, H. L. Martin 8, J. W. R. Quinney 8, H. F. Brown 10.

8 YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION

EASTERN DISTRICT.

The autumn meeting of the Yorkshire Association, Eastern District, was held at Howden on September 30th, on a pouring wet day, which limited the attendance to about 25, although many more had intended being present and were no doubt prevented by the weather. Those present, however, enjoyed good ringing on the fine ring of eight bells.

Capt. Hobbs, of Howden, conducted the service and welcomed the Association again to Howden. An excellent tea was provided in Mrs. Tasker's cafe, and was followed by the business meeting, presided over by Mr. A. H. Fox (vice-president).

An invitation to hold the December meeting at York Minster on the day of the rededication of the Five Sisters' Window in the Minster was accepted. A collection for the Association's Bell Repair Fund realised 11s.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

CENTRAL BUCKS BRANCH.

The quarterly meeting of the Central Bucks Branch was held at Blechley on September 9th. This was the first meeting held here since the bells were rehung. Fourteen towers were represented, and the service was conducted by the chairman, Canon Dixon, and an excellent address was given by the Rev. R. M. Davies, Rector of Great Horwood.

An excellent tea was provided by the ladies of the Church Council. Among the members present were the local band, including eight learners who since the bells had been rehung have taken up the art. A miniature of the old frame was on view; this had been made by the captain to scale. Ringing continued until 8.30 p.m., everybody participating.

The splendid 'go' of the bells was the admiration of all, and Mears and Stainbank were complimented on a splendid job of work.

Durham & Newcastle Assn.

NEW PRESIDENT ELECTED.

The annual meeting of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association was held in Newcastle on September 30th. Ringing took place at the Cathedral and St. John's, also at St. Mary's, Gateshead.

The festival service, held in the Cathedral, was conducted by the Provost, the Very Rev. N. M. Kennaby, Mr. J. L. Keen, organist of St. Aidan's, Newcastle, being at the organ.

Tea was served in the Cathedral library, and was followed by the annual meeting. Mr. W. N. Park's term as president has now drawn to a close, and on the motion of Mr. J. Anderson, seconded by Mr. R. Park, Canon H. S. Stephenson, Rector of Gateshead, was unanimously elected president. Mr. Anderson spoke in glowing terms of the good work the Canon has done for the ringers in the North-East since he became an honorary member of the Association in 1907. Mr. W. N. Park, investing Canon Stephenson with the president's badge of office, congratulated him on his election, and wished him a successful term of office.

All the other officials were re-elected with the exception of Mr. W. E. Robinson, who has relinquished his post as Northern District secretary owing to pressure of business. Mr. S. Hewitt was elected to the vacancy.

Thanks are due to Mr. W. E. Robinson, of the Newcastle Cathedral Guild, for the arrangements he made for the excellent meal.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

YOUTH TO THE FORE AT MARSHAM.

The meeting of the North Norfolk Branch at Marsham on Sept. 30th was attended by 27 members. The Rector, the Rev. H. G. Lillingston, conducted the service, and the Ringing Master, Mr. F. Nolan Golden, read the lesson.

At the business meeting ratification took place of belfry elections of Miss E. K. Fulton (Stanmore), G. Hunt (Harrow Weald), J. A. Cox, F. H. Hicks (Horsham), W. Walker (York), Miss C. A. Harding (Downham Market), Miss Sheila Barker and Miss Ellen Hickling (Hethersett) and David Heighton (Mancroft). Tribute to the memory of Mr. G. Mayers was paid by Mr. F. Nolan Golden, and the members stood in silence.

During the ringing youth was well to the fore, and one band stood as follows: Janet Goodman, Mulbarton (aged 12.7); Alfred Burrell (12.6) and John Richardson (13.5). Northrepps: David Heighton (15.10), Mancroft; Michael Goodman (14), Mulbarton; M. J. Beardwood (12.2); M. G. Evans (13.11) and J. Woodcock (15.2), St. George's, Colegate.

Votes of thanks to the Rector and Mrs. Lillingston for entertaining the members to tea, also to the Rector for conducting the service and the use of his bells, were passed.

The next meeting will be at St. George's, Colegate, on Saturday, January 6th.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL

BRISTOL RURAL BRANCH.

Over fifty members attended a most successful meeting held at Henbury (8) on September 30th. After the service (conducted by Canon Lloyd), all proceeded to the nearby Blaise Castle Civic Restaurant for a most enjoyable tea, followed by the business meeting, with Mr. Harding in the chair.

The chairman welcomed the Association Master (Mr. W. B. Kynaston) and his wife, as well as the other visitors from outside the branch. The outstanding business dealt with was the 'fixing' of the next two monthly meetings—Alveston for October and Coalpit-Heath for November.

Members afterwards returned to the tower for ringing, from rounds and Queens, Grand-sire Doubles, up to Surprise methods, under Mr. F. Skidmore's supervision. Mr. F. Bromwich kindly arranged the tea, and the other details, to make it a happy time for all.

OBITUARY

MR. HARRY CHANDLER.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Harry Chandler, of Heston, Middlesex, on October 5th, at the age of 81 years.

He started ringing at St. Paul's, Hounslow, in 1887, and was made a member of the Heston band in 1892, where he had been a regular ringer until January, 1950, when he had to retire owing to bad health. For the last four years he was captain of the band.

Mr. Chandler was one of the founder members of the Middlesex Association and was secretary to the Association from 1909-1917, and Master in 1931. He was on the committee and instructor for many years, and was made a honorary life member about 1946.

MR. W. ROSEWELL.

Mr. William Rosewell, of 10, Hunstrete, Pensford, near Bristol, who died on September 17th, aged 62, will be remembered by his colleagues in the Bath and Wells Association for his keenness despite his infirmity and suffering during the past 25 years.

Marksbury ringers always remembered him at their annual ringers' service. He was conveyed in his wheeled chair in Major Buller Popham's brake to the church. Unfortunately this year he was too ill to come.

Mr. Rosewell had rung about 50 peals, 31 of them for the Bath and Wells Association, of which he had been a member since 1921. He was in the band that rang the first peals at Croscombe and Kilmersdon and the first of Minor at Queen Camel (the heaviest six in the country). He conducted the Coronation peal at Marksbury and his last peal was at Kilton, near Bath, on May 29th, 1939, which he conducted.

The funeral service was held at St. Peter's, Marksbury, on September 21st, and was conducted by the Rev. E. Wells. Mr. W. A. Prescott represented the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association and the Marksbury ringers. The bells of St. Peter's were rung half-muffled to 1,260 Grand-sire Doubles by G. Hasell 1. Miss A. Tibbotts 2, Miss R. Smith 3. Miss B. Prescott 4, R. Smith 5, W. A. Prescott (cond.) 6.

MRS. P. C. WILLIAMS.

We regret to report the passing of Mrs. P. C. Williams, wife of the hon. treasurer of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, who died on October 5th, after a long illness, at Portishead. The funeral was held on October 9th at Portishead Parish Church, followed by cremation at Arno's Vale, Bristol.

Besides the family mourners, the Association was represented by the following: Mr. J. G. Jefferies (vice-president), Mr. C. E. Jefferies, Mr. C. R. Harding (chairman, Bristol Rural Branch) and Mrs. Harding, Mrs. A. A. Hilliar, Mr. F. G. Leaker (chairman, Bristol City Branch), Mr. A. Prince (Management Committee), and Mr. F. Skidmore (hon. secretary).

The floral tributes included one from the Master, officers and members of the Association.

In the evening a tribute was paid by ringing 1,260 Stedman Triples, with the bells half-muffled, at St. Ambrose's Church, Bristol, by the following: Miss Ann Clarke 1, F. G. Leaker 2, Miss Miriam James 3, C. R. Harding 4, A. Prince 5, F. Skidmore (cond.) 6, J. G. Jefferies 7, R. G. Hooper 8.

Mrs. Williams was an associate member of the Association for many years, and her charming quiet disposition endeared her to all who knew her, and our sympathy goes out to her husband, son and daughter.

KIRK ELLA, E. YORKS.—On Sept. 25th, 1,260 Grand-sire Doubles: Miss N. Bond 1, H. E. Nicholson 2, G. Dods 3, I. Cowperthwaite 4, G. R. Hessey (cond.) 5, T. Peat 6. First quarter for 3, 4 and 6. In memoriam Rev. H. Snowdon.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ringing Fees

Dear Sir,—I would like to thank those who contributed letters in reply to that of mine on the above subject, which appeared in your issue of July 7th.

As I anticipated, I have heard of no other instance similar to that which we experienced on that particular occasion. The nearest example is that of a church in Cheshire, where I am told the fee for ringing at a wedding is five guineas—three for the use of the bells and two for the ringers. In that case, so long as the ringers are satisfied with the arrangements, it's no one's business except that of the incumbent and churchwardens as to the disposal of the three guineas for the use of the bells. At any rate, the ringers are catered for.

There is one point about the letters published that does not appear quite clear, that is they seem to infer that we should take some definite steps on future occasions. We were not local ringers, but a visiting band, as there are no local ringers.

I think it would be a grand thing if the Vicar of the church we visited could meet the Rev. J. M. Turner, who could doubtless give the former some good advice and instruction.

It seemed to me a coincidence that the Rev. J. M. Turner should mention the use of the organ. I did not mention it in my letter, but in the course of my conversation with the Vicar of the church he told me that he charged a fee of two guineas for the organ, of which the organist received 10s. 6d.

There was at one time quite an enthusiastic band of ringers at this church. After the arrival of this vicar the band collapsed and (so I have been informed since I wrote my letter on the subject) all over a wedding.

In reply to Mr. Turner's suggestion, I have already informed the district and general secretaries of the Kent County Association of our experience, and they, having read the correspondence in 'The Ringing World,' may perhaps think fit to bring the matter up at a committee meeting.

In conclusion, I must add that the bridal couple for whom we rang, on hearing that we had had no share of the 'three guineas,' promptly sent us our fee of 7s. 6d. each as originally agreed, although we had no intention of pressing for it.—Yours faithfully,

Chatham. V. A. JARRETT.

PLAIN BOB AT THROWLEY

Dear Sir,—The following account may be of some interest to your readers in the peal of Bob Major at Throwley, where the ringing chamber is lit by an oil lamp. It was noticed that the light was beginning to fade, and as the lamp flickered things looked pretty grim. The ringing had been very good and we had another part to go (the peal was a four-part), the time being about 6.30 p.m. The lamp went out at 6.35 p.m. and all the light we had then was from a very narrow window blocked by the form of the treble man, who very obligingly turned himself sideways. It became darker and darker: we couldn't see each other, only a white shirt here and there and Eileen Wyles' light frock. Fortunately it was Plain Bob and the bells fairly rang themselves home, coming round in good style at 7.14, it being pitch dark.

My congratulations to the two first pealers for sticking it so well and striking their bells all the way through so well. Also to the conductor, who wanted to call his first Bob Major.—Yours sincerely, GEORGE A. NAYLOR.

Inn Signs

Dear Sir,—With reference to Mr. Paul Birkett's letter in your issue of September 22nd, I am sending you a photograph of the sign of 'The Six Ringers' at Felmersham, Bedfordshire. The sign, which is of solid copper, shows five bells—the number of bells now in the tower of Felmersham Church. But the inn is the 'Six Ringers,' so two men are put to the tenor.

There is a legend that Felmersham once had six bells, but one was stolen by monks from the neighbouring village of Odell and taken away by boat on the Ouse. The boat, however, sank under the weight of the bell, so the story goes, and boat, bell and monks were lost in the river.

I also have a photograph of the painted sign of the 'Ring of Bells' at Kendal, mentioned in Mr. Birkett's letter, but I do not think it would reproduce well. The sign is rather high up on the wall and the painting of the ringers is somewhat faded with age.—Yours faithfully,

H. J. SMITH.

Mears Ashby, Northants.

FIRST COMPOSER

Dear Sir,—The peal of Bob Major in 'The Ringing World,' September 15th, by E. W. Tipler, was given to me by the late York Green, August, 1896, after ringing a peal at St. Thomas', Brentwood, my first tower-bell peal.—Yours truly, C. FENN.

Barking.

DODDERHILL, WORCS.—On Sept. 24th, 1,280 Superlative Surprise Major: G. E. Large (cond.) 1, R. G. Morris 2, Miss C. A. Harding 3, A. Morgan 4, R. W. M. Clouston 5, W. H. A. Compton 6, R. Woodyatt 7, T. W. Lewis 8.

Folkestone Bells Broadcast

Dear Sir,—What a treat was given to us in Ireland on Oct. 8th to hear the bells of Folkestone Church on the wireless. The reception was very clear, so that one could distinctly hear the bells 'tap-out.' The B.B.C. was very generous in giving such a long duration, and we hope that they have at last ended their interruptions of the ringing.

As far as the ringing was concerned, it was of a high standard, and except for one or two trips, was perfect. The leads and rhythm were an object lesson, and if we had more broadcasts like this one a great deal of work would be taken off instructors.

Thank you, Folkestone, for an excellent performance and B.B.C. for a good long ring.—Yours sincerely, FRED E. DUKES.

Drogheda, Co. Louth.

LADIES WHO HAVE CALLED STEDMAN

Dear Sir,—With reference to your note in Belfry Gossip regarding ladies who have conducted peals of Stedman Triples, the following may be of interest:—

Miss Annie Brown, of the SS. Philip and Jacob Guild, Bristol, called Washbrook's irregular ten-part at All Saints' Church, Corston, on June 13th, 1925. Incidentally this was the first peal of Stedman Triples conducted by a woman for the Bath and Wells Association and, I think, in the West Country.

Congratulations to Miss Joan Beresford.—Yours faithfully,

Bristol. EDWIN J. BROWN.

Dear Sir,—With reference to ladies who have conducted a peal of Stedman Triples, Miss Betty Spice and Miss Margaret L. Tutt have both conducted Heywood's Transposition, both from a non-observation bell, which, in my opinion, is a more creditable individual performance than taking part in a 'silent' peal of Stedman Triples.

W. F. JUDGE.

FIRST PEAL OF YORKSHIRE FOR ELY ASSOCIATION

Dear Sir,—Your Belfry Gossip has been rightly described as one of the most interesting features of 'The Ringing World,' but surely the paragraph referring to the above is rather vague; either the peal rung at Long Stanton was the first or otherwise. I have been through the Ely Report for 1934 and can find no mention of any peal of Yorkshire, the details of which would be interesting to—Yours faithfully, Newton, Cambridge. C. W. COOK.

THE BANISTER FAMILY

Dear Sir,—May I, through your columns, thank Mr. Alfred Grove for his letter re the Banister family, July 28th, 1950? It is very interesting and has cleared up misunderstandings. It was not my good fortune to visit St. Mary's, Woolwich, so had not the pleasure of reading the peal boards. Banister records only four peals in 1861, as follows: 5,120 Kent Treble Bob Royal, 3 hours 30 mins., St. Clement Danes'; Strand: 8,580 Stedman Cinques, 6 hours 41 mins., St. Michael's, Cornhill; 5,040 Grand-sire Triples, 2 hours 59 mins., St. George's, Gravesend; 5,040 Grand-sire Triples, 2 hours 58 minutes, St. George's, Gravesend.

Kind regards and best wishes to one and all from your fellow strings in Australia.—Ashfield, N.S.W. A. R. BOTTING.

LIMERICK THE BEST STRIKERS.

The finalists of the three District Cup competitions, viz., Holywood Parish Church, Co. Down (Northern), St. Mary's Cathedral, Limerick (Southern), and St. Peter's Parish Church, Drogheda (Eastern), met at Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, on September 30th, to decide the destination for the Murphy Cup for the next twelve months.

Drogheda team were the first to ring, and after a very shaky start settled down to some nice ringing, but not before the total of 20 faults were debited against them. They rang all changes.

Holywood then entered the field, ringing Stedman Triples. A few trips, but otherwise good ringing, brought a total of 13 faults.

The present holders, St. Mary's, Limerick, were the last to compete. It was evident from the start that the destination of the cup had been decided. Their ringing was a treat to listen to, the rhythm perfect; the only real fault was in leading. The number of faults was five. Thus St. Mary's Cathedral, Limerick, retain the All-Ireland Cup for the best striking team for 1950-51.

The judges, Messrs. R. S. F. Murphy, P.C. (donor of the cup), and W. E. Lynch, in their report, said that the standard of ringing by all teams was exceptionally high and that the only real faults were at hand. Mr. Frank Stephens acted as ringing master in the tower during the actual competition.

After the competition, 55 competitors and their supporters sat down to an excellent tea, kindly provided by the Christ Church Cathedral Society. The tea over, the cup was presented by Mr. R. S. F. Murphy to Mr. Brian Brislane, the conductor of the winning team, who said that they were delighted to bring back the cup to Limerick. He also proposed a vote of thanks to the judges, which was seconded by Mr. H. Brown, conductor of the Holywood team.

Mr. William Pratt, president, thanked the Dean of Christ Church for so kindly placing the bells of his Cathedral at the disposal of the ringers, also to the Christ Church ringers and their ladies for so kindly providing the tea.

The bells of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, were made available for the visitors during the early afternoon, when touches of Grandsire Caters and Stedman were rung.

THE CUMBERLAND YOUTHS

MEETING AT BURNHAM.

The quarterly meeting of the Royal Cumberland Youths was held at Burnham on September 30th.

The Master (Mr. G. H. Cross) presided over the business meeting, which was attended by some thirty members.

Four belfry elections were ratified—Mrs. N. O. L. Manchip (Enfield), E. Edmondson (Hatfield), S. F. Carter (Bengeo) and H. M. Heaton (Guiseley). Three new members were made, Margaret Tutt (Oxford), H. E. Wells (Nettlebed) and P. Coward (Adelaide).

The Master welcomed Mr. L. Baybut, home again from Kashmir, after 16 years' absence.

Suggestions made for future meetings at Reading and Guildford were deferred to the annual meeting, and the subject of the re-opening of Shoreditch bells was also discussed.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. George Gilbert for arranging the meeting and tea.

Mr. Cross said it was a pleasure to come to Burnham and to hear the lovely ring of bells. He would like to congratulate Mr. Gilbert on what he had done to get them in order.

Ringing was very enjoyable, and methods ranged from Stedman to an attempt for Spliced Surprise.

HOLYWELL, HUNTS.—On Oct. 1st, 1,080 Cambridge Surprise: H. W. Pratt 1, F. Warrington (cond.) 2, F. R. Nicholls 3, A. Clements 4, G. L. Perkins 5, G. H. Dunnington 6.

Guild of Devonshire Ringers

SOUTH-WEST BRANCH.

The president of the Guild, Preb. E. V. Cox, and visitors from Croydon, Reigate, Exeter, Newton Abbot, Liskeard, Buckfastleigh, Meavy, Kelly, Plympton St. Maurice, Plymouth (Emmanuel and St. Andrew's), together with a party of university students under the care of Mr. John G. M. Scott, of Washabrooke Mill, Kingsbridge, supported the autumn meeting of the branch, held at Shaugh Prior on September 30th.

During the afternoon and evening the grand ring of six were rung to rounds, Grandsire, Stedman, Plain Bob, Kent and Cambridge Surprise, an excellent standard of striking throughout the day being largely attributed to the efforts of an efficient Ringing Master.

The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. T. F. Rider), who gave the branch a very warm welcome. A sumptuous tea was served to 60 members and friends.

The Rev. H. E. Bennett (branch chairman) presided at the business, supported by Mr. G. H. Myers, vice-president of the Guild, and was notable for the presentation of proficiency certificates to two promising young lady ringers of Plymouth Emmanuel band, the Misses A. Thomas and J. Thomas.

The hon. secretary reported it would not be possible to hold their annual meeting at Milton Abbot on January 6th. Three alternatives were proposed, and it was decided to seek permission to go to Buckland Monachorum on January 13th.

During the morning special ringing was 'put on' at St. Andrew's Plymouth, where touches of four standard methods were rung; and at Emmanuel, Cambridge Surprise Major, Double Norwich and Plain Bob were brought round.

CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD

CREWE BRANCH.

Despite the fact that there were three meetings in adjoining branches, 50 ringers representing 21 towers were present at the meeting of the Crewe Branch at Nantwich on October 7th.

Ringing during the afternoon and evening was in charge of the branch Ringing Master (Mr. J. E. Brough), and ringing extended from rounds to the four principal Surprise methods.

The Rector (Canon Tyler Whittle) conducted the service, and at the tea supplied by the ringers' wives welcomed all present and commended the good fellowship among ringers.

Thanks were voiced to those who contributed to the success of the meeting by the Rev. Parry Williams (Acton), seconded by Mr. R. D. Langford, who said they were lucky in Cheshire in that there were plenty of facilities for ringing and plenty of ringers.

Mr. A. E. Richards (Farndon), as a visitor, thanked all for a lovely meeting.

Mr. Elkins (chairman of Bowdon Branch) gave thanks for the splendid welcome and thanked the clergy for their part in making the Guild so successful.

Congratulations were offered to Mr. and Mrs. W. Kerr, who were married recently.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

VISIT TO RADCLIFFE-ON-TRENT.

The Nottingham District of the Southwell Guild had an enjoyable meeting at Radcliffe-on-Trent on October 7th. All visitors were made welcome, including a party from Lincolnshire and the evergreen Jack Brothwell from Sheffield way. Rounds and methods to suit all tastes up to Superlative were rung.

One is always proud of one's 'first', from a six-score upwards, but the following inscription on a tablet in the ringing chamber is probably unique as a record of 'length':—

'The four and twenty Changes were Rung for the first time correctly on the Four Bells in this Tower on Sunday, Nov. 25, 1883 (Time, 1 min. 5 sec.): W. H. Pumfrey Treble, Thomas Rose 2nd, R. H. Rushton 3rd, Ed. Carnall Tenor.'

Scottish Association

HALF-YEARLY MEETING.

The half-yearly meeting of the Scottish Association, held on October 7th at St. John's, Alloa, was very well attended in spite of the fact that several of the regulars were prevented from coming at the last minute.

The bells are the only light ring of eight in Scotland, and the learners especially found them much easier to manage their own more weighty local bells and made good attempts at method ringing. Grandsire, Stedman and Kent were the favourites before tea, and afterwards they were ousted by Plain Bob and Cambridge Minor.

The members stood in silence when the president mentioned the death of Mr. W. C. S. Heathcote, the oldest ringer in Scotland and past Master of the Association, and the loss and sorrow felt by the members on this occasion.

Mr. Stafford, of Glasgow, brought up the question of peal ringing and the front page remark by the Editor of 'The Ringing World' in a recent issue, in which the Editor regretted that they had not scored a peal for the Association. Although one peal has been scored so far (this year, it was generally agreed that more should be done to enable the peal enthusiasts to have the use of pealable towers for more frequent attempts.

The Rev. C. Harwood Dixon, Chaplain of St. Paul's Cathedral, Dundee, was the only ringer present from an unaffiliated tower, as the Leith contingent had withdrawn at the last minute. It is to be hoped, however, that when the next meeting comes round they will then be keen change ringers and therefore not be so diffident in joining in. R. St. C. W.

OUTINGS IN MANY COUNTIES

BURES AND DISTRICT.

This year's outing on September 16th embraced ringing in six towers in Surrey, Berks, Oxfordshire, Bucks, Herts and Essex.

The two coaches reached Colchester in good time to pick up the Thorington, Mistley and Colchester contingents, and a party of nearly 60 ringers and friends set course for Egham, via London and Staines Bridge. Ringing on the good toned octave was not all that it should have been. The route then lay through Windsor Great Park to Bray, where we were welcomed by the Vicar and Mr. Fred Russell. These were the heaviest bells of the day, and the younger members had some difficulty in striking them. A good course of Superlative was rung before adjourning for lunch at the George Hotel.

The prettily situated church at Shiplake was being decorated for the harvest festival when we arrived, and the non-ringers had plenty to see, including the ringing which is carried out in the ground floor belfry. The bells, a light handy eight, were just right for the youngsters, and rounds, Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob and Cambridge Major were rung. It was a short run to Marlow, where we found the local men and lady ringers awaiting our arrival. Both the bells and the well-kept belfry were much admired, although the touches had to be short to allow all to have a ring in the limited time available.

Tea was partaken at the Queen's Cafe before saying farewell to the Thames and proceeding to Watford, where Messrs. Bell and Crooke had everything ready. This fine ten were the best bells of the day, and ringing concluded with a good course of Stedman Caters. At Loughton that grand old Essex veteran, 'Teddy' Bacon, was patiently waiting our arrival. Here was another fine-toned octave in a broad cathedral-like tower. All the ringing here was good, especially a touch of Stedman Triples, and 86-year-old Mr. Bacon joined us in the last touch.

The best thanks of the party must go to Mr. Leslie Mills, who carried out all the arrangements in his usual efficient manner, and also to Mr. Alan Andrews, who was ringing master for the day.

ST. MARY'S, EWELL.

So popular have the ringers' outings of St. Mary's, Ewell, become that two coaches were required for this year's excursion. Ringers from Epsom, Banstead and Leatherhead were included in the party as well as members of the choir and congregation.

A tour of Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire had been planned by Mr. J. E. Beams (the captain). Contrasts were provided by the first two towers—Nettlebed (6 cwt. tenor) and Watlington (24 cwt.). We were surprised to learn that this was the first time Watlington bells had been rung.

Lunch was served at Bicester, followed by ringing on the bells at the fine old church. The visitors were impressed by the huge ringing chamber at Buckingham (tenor 27 cwt.) with forms in the centre of the circle. Winslow, the next call, has only room for ringers of the six bells and a few onlookers in the ringing chamber, but the church compensated with its ancient books and medieval wall painting. After tea in the Church Room there was a long ride to the 18th century church of West Wycombe. Here a short evening service was attended in the church. Interest was divided between the bells and the hollow ball on top of the tower which can accommodate ten people.

Darkness prevented the party from enjoying the beauties of Buckingham Church, though we much enjoyed ringing the bells. Thanks are due to Mr. Beams for his careful planning and the clergy and others who made us welcome at the churches visited.

DORSET RINGERS IN DEVON.

Recently a combined tour in the Tiverton area of Devon was made by ringers from Piddhinton, Hazelbury Bryan, Stalbridge and Sturminster Newton, Dorset, and Hardington Mandeville, Somerset.

The coach, with Lester Knight, a ringer, at the wheel, left Hazelbury Bryan at 7.30 a.m., and after picking up en route arrived at Halberton at 10.15 a.m., where the local captain met the ringers. This heavy six was enjoyed till 11, although the hands of some of the band suffered from the hard ropes.

Calverleigh was soon reached, where Mr. Hill, the local captain, welcomed the ringers. The bells here are a lovely six, although some of the 'heavy bell' experts found the weight (tenor 5½ cwt.) and long ropes a bit tricky. After an hour's ringing an alfresco lunch was partaken in or out of the coach.

At Thelbridge weather typical of the 1950 summer prevailed and continued for the remainder of the day. Here full use was made of another handy six for about an hour. A fireplace in the ringing chamber caused much speculation as to how the ringer of the treble would prevent scorching of his trousers should it be lighted.

Cruwys Morchard was the next tower on the list and this was soon reached. The bells were soon raised, but although the six go fairly well, the long ropes and deep setting fifth and tenor made ringing a little difficult except for the most experienced.

Clapps Cafe, Tiverton, was the next objective, where a very good tea was awaiting the band. Cadeleigh was reached after a grand effort on behalf of coach and Lester up true Devon hills. All agreed that these bells were the tit-bit of the day and there was no desire to make a move. However, there was one more on the list and Cadbury was reached as daylight was failing and the Vicar and most of the local band were waiting at the churchyard gate to give the ringers the heartiest welcome of the day. Oil lights in the belfry were lighted and the bells were raised and set going. After a short period of ringing the true meaning of the Parable of the Foolish Virgins became obvious and the bells were hastily lowered, the ringers beating the failing light by a small margin. So ended the ringing of the second combined outing which all had enjoyed.

E. T. P. F.

ANOTHER DEVON TOUR.

On October 7th, about 25 ringers enjoyed an afternoon and evening tour arranged by Mr. J. Lilley, of Highweek. The first tower was Kingsteignton, where the Rector met the band and stayed all the time of ringing in the ringing chamber. Full use was made of this glorious octave for an hour, after which a move was made to Chudleigh, where there is another fine 'eight.' After another enjoyable hour of ringing the band adjourned to The Whistling Kettle for a very good tea.

The first tower after tea was Moreton-Hampstead (8). Here, however, ringing was abruptly curtailed owing to the Rector wishing to take evensong and signifying his intentions by extinguishing the lights in the ringing chamber. Fortunately the more experienced members of the band were ringing at the crucial moment and the touch of Bob Major in progress was safely brought home in the semi-darkness, after which the bells were hurriedly lowered more or less in peal.

Chagford (8), five miles away, was soon reached and full use of the bells (tenor 18 cwt.) was made for about an hour, although a few found the long draught a bit trying. The next tower on the agenda was Manaton (6), but this visit had to be cancelled as the clapper of the second had been broken earlier in the week. Arriving at the last tower of the tour, North Bovey (6), half an hour behind schedule, a search had to be made for the sexton and the belfry key. Happily both were found soon enough to allow of all the band having a short touch each on this handy ring before 9 p.m. called 'That's all' to a very enjoyable outing. The ringers taking part represented about eight Devon towers, a Dorset band and a visitor from London.

Thanks are due to Mr. J. Lilley for arranging the towers and to Mr. A. Bennett for circulating the ringers.

KEYMER, SUSSEX.

The ringers of Keymer, Sussex, together with their wives and friends and visiting ringers from Hurstpierpoint and Bosham, held their annual outing through East Sussex and Kent on September 16th. The coach left Keymer at 8 a.m. for the little village of Sedlescombe. The pleasant ring of six (tenor 10 cwt.) here was put to good use for half an hour.

The next part of the trip was through the old town of Rye, and across Walland and Romney Marshes to New Romney, calling at Brookland en route to inspect the very quaint wooden belfry. Unfortunately, time would not allow of any efforts to obtain permission to 'snatch' the tower, rather to the disappointment of the younger members. Ringing on the anti-clockwise octave at New Romney (tenor 19½ cwt.) was much appreciated, and one member of the party also enjoyed being allowed to try the new electronic organ!

Lunch at Hythe followed. The next tower was the six (tenor 12 cwt.) at Willesborough—another anti-clockwise ring—where we were very pleased to meet Mr. E. S. Ruck, the only surviving foundation member of the Kent County Association. While ringing was in progress here, the non-ringers visited the shops in Ashford, and after rejoining forces, the coach went on to Charing. A former Rector of the parish had passed away only an hour before our arrival, and the fine ring of six (tenor 13½ cwt.) was rung half-muffled to various methods. All were much impressed with the beauty and solemnity of half-muffled ringing.

To Maidstone for tea and a short stroll round the town before the run up the Medway Valley to the last tower, the recently rehung six (tenor 8½ cwt.) at Wateringbury. Everyone was impressed with the good tone and easy running of these light bells, and methods up to Kent Minor were rung, with the assistance of three members of a band which had unsuccessfully attempted a peal in the tower that afternoon.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Backshaw and to Peter Romney, the tower secretary, for arranging such an excellent outing.

P. N. B.

CAMBRIDGE YOUTHS.

On September 30th, the Society of Cambridge Youths had their annual outing to Messrs. Taylor's foundry and were joined by friends from Over, Harston and Melbourn.

The first call was Market Harborough, where good use was made of the bells for 45 minutes, and more good ringing was enjoyed at Wigston Magna. At Loughborough the party were met by Mr. J. Oldham and Mr. P. Taylor. A brief visit to the foundry was followed by lunch at the Eagle Inn, arranged by Mr. Oldham.

In the afternoon the bells of the Parish Church were rung for an hour and the foundry was again visited. The bells of the campanile caused great fun, one member actually smoking his pipe during the ringing.

Leaving pleasant memories of Loughborough, the party proceeded to Leicester and enjoyed ringing at the Cathedral and St. Margaret's. During tea at the Rex Restaurant, the Rev. Hopkins thanked Mr. Quinney for his excellent arrangements. An hour's ringing at Kettering brought the end of a perfect day.

Methods rung included Bob Major, Double Norwich, Cambridge, Superlative, Treble Ten, Grandire Triples, Caters and Cinques and Stedman Triples and Caters.

Thornhaugh, Northants

Behind the ringing of the first peal at Thornhaugh on Saturday, September 23rd, 1950, lies a somewhat interesting story. The writer over a period of years has tried to impress the importance of more frequent visits to the five-bell towers, otherwise the country might be faced with hundreds of these towers with no life in them, with the bells hanging derelict.

That they are as much a part of the Exercise as the higher numbers, and worthy of better consideration than a mere collection of ringers' subscriptions to their guilds, must be recognised; but often little more about them is done.

No meeting had ever been held at Thornhaugh prior to April 22nd, 1950—and that was largely brought about by pressure from the writer; in fact, previous to this it had never occurred to many ringers that five bells existed at Thornhaugh. Others interested in nothing less than six had rumoured them 'unringable' without even going to see what they were like. One look at them soon convinced me that this was just a prejudiced hoax. The first peal has now been rung at Thornhaugh.

A steel frame for five (three trebles above two tenors) put in in 1889 by John Warner and Sons was an ambitious restoration—there were then only three bells, the present 2nd, 3rd and 4th. The same firm had recast the 4th in 1860 from an earlier bell by Tobias Norris, jun., of Stamford, dated 1684, whose father, Thomas Norris, cast the present 3rd in 1634. Thomas's father, Tobias Norris, sen., cast the 2nd in 1619. In St. George's Church, Stamford, is a plaque to the memory of the last named, who died in 1626. Thomas died in 1674, and Tobias, jun., in 1699. The treble and tenor to complete the five were added by John Warner and Sons in 1909. The 32in. tenor is 6 cwt. in B. P. A.

Sheffield and District Society

The October meeting at Sheffield is always an attractive feature and this year was no exception. In the afternoon the belfry at St. Marie's R.C. Church was packed with the local ringers and visitors, who came from Stockport, Warsop, Barnby Don, Otley, Blackwell, Worksop and Retford.

Many methods were rung and included was a course of Primrose Surprise and a tea-time attempt at Bristol which failed to materialise. Tea was served in the Wolstenholm Hall, when 50 sat down, and the Precentor of Sheffield Cathedral (the Rev. A. H. Mays) was in the chair at the business meeting which followed.

The twelve-bell ringing commenced at 7 p.m. with rounds for the learners, and a lot of others, followed by Royal and Caters and Kent and Little Bob Maximus. The day ended with a good course of Yorkshire on the back eight.

THIS RECORDING BUSINESS

ACCORDING to the 'Nottingham Evening News,' the bells of St. Peter's, Rome, will soon be echoing over the rooftops of Bulwell, Nottingham. The Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Succour has no bells of its own. Recently, the parish priest, the Very Rev. B. A. Short, installed an amplification system. Now he has a wire recorder, and as the choice of records of church bells for use in his 'belfry' is very limited, he is going to make his own recordings.

One of the first will be the bells of St. Peter's, for a friend in Rome has sent him a disc from which he will re-record, and in consequence will be able to repeat 'the peal' as long as he requires without having to 'restart' the record. 'When people hear them they won't know the difference,' Father Short told the 'Nottingham Evening News.'

This recording business is in no sense confined to the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Succour. 'In one area of about two square miles in Nottingham,' writes Mr. J. K. Wagstaff, 'there are at least three Church of England churches fitted with these amplifiers. They are no longer a novelty here, but indeed a nuisance; this fact is proved by the number of complaints which have appeared in the same paper. I would not knowingly stand in any touch being recorded if I thought it would be thus used. However, if this priest stood outside St. Mary's or St. Peter's, Nottingham, he could soon make a record and none would be any the wiser.'

'One of my colleagues, at the Canon's request, is at present instructing a young band at Bulwell Parish Church to ring changes. It seems quite likely that in the near future we may hear a record of either one of the two rings in the city playing in competition with the bells of the parish church of Bulwell.'

Mr. Wagstaff concludes his letter by stating: 'I am of the opinion that these contrivances are undignified for the purpose they are used; harmful to our relations with the public; and deceptive and not consistent with the Church's teaching.'

Bells have their own individuality. It is incongruous to hear, as the writer has frequently, a recording of the bells of York Minster coming from a small suburban tower; it is a sham. And, however revered in the eyes and ears of Roman Catholics may be the bells of St. Peter's, Rome, a recording in a Nottingham suburb calling the faithful to prayer is not in accordance with the English tradition. There are some beautiful rings of bells in Roman Catholic cathedrals, abbeys and churches in this land. The twelve at Buckfast Abbey are heard with reverence and appreciation by all ringers who have visited this Devonshire village; they are a characteristic of the Abbey, and to our way of thinking it would be wrong for a record of those bells to be amplified on a church occasion in every church throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Probably the craze for these 'synthetic' bells would not have been so prominent to-day but for the heavy financial undertaking that is behind the provision of a ring of bells, and also that a recording apparatus can be provided for less than one-tenth of the cost. But bells have never been cheap; the cost of Thaxted's bells in the early half of the 17th century recorded in our last issue was an indication of the sacrifice that is necessary to provide the instruments of God's message. We admire particularly the courage of small communities of towns and villages who fearlessly and with faith launch appeals to restore their bells, and we feel it is our bounden duty to give the prominence that is within our power to publicise their efforts. We trust that ringers themselves will not be unmindful of their responsibility of individually supporting, according to their means, these worthy efforts. These restorations are the first of the great bulwarks against 'synthetic' bells and deserve every encouragement.

There are, however, two others. The second is an ever-constant supply of men and women who are ready to dedicate themselves to the service of the Church in ringing bells for the Sunday services in accordance with the highest traditions of English ringing embodying perfect striking. It is always disturbing to read of neglected towers—although it cannot be denied that change ringing has made big strides in this country since the war. There is no better service that can be rendered to English ringing than in instructing and helping new bands.

The third is the firm stand that is being taken by a number of Diocesan Advisory Committees in refusing to sanction these applications for the installation of amplifying apparatus in various towers and steeples. We are encouraged by the number of dioceses that have taken a firm stand on the matter. But we would impress upon the Exercise at large that such a policy is contingent on the second bulwark. There must be no silent towers with ringable bells on God's day.

SUBSCRIPTION REMINDER.

If your friend has not received his postal copy this week the reason is probably due to his subscription (5/6) not having reached Mrs. Fletcher, The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk.

From 'Ringing Towers,' the journal of the N.S.W. Association, we learn that the six bells to complete the eight at Hamilton Cathedral, New Zealand, have arrived and work on hanging them has been started.

Ringing at St. Mary's, Willesden, has been cancelled until further notice.

With reference to Mr. A. Champion's query about four bells lying still, a Kent reader suggests he consults the Rev. C. D. P. Davies' book on Surprise methods.

'If A. Champion wants to be enlightened on Cambridge Surprise Major, about four bells lying still, he has only to look at the book on Surprise Methods by the Rev. C. D. P. Davies.'

—W. A. J. Knight, Gillingham, Kent.

The band at Tunbridge Wells defied superstition when they met for a peal of Superlative on Friday, 13th. But the date proved a good omen as the ringer of the fifth rang his first in the method, and the conductor his first as conductor.

Congratulations to Roger O. Fry, of Bath, on ringing his first Surprise peal. He had made no less than 23 previous unsuccessful attempts. His personal association in the south-west with John B. Bennett (now in the R.A.F.) resulted in them spending John's nine days' leave amongst the bells, and ringing in Leicestershire. As might be expected, they had very few idle moments.

A Liverpool policeman has twice recently lost members of a ringing party when escorting them home. Not content with taking the bus to Wigan instead of Liverpool on his way home from a peal at Douglas-in-Parbold, he nearly lost a company of Liverpool ringers returning home via Southport from Preston. In spite of asking the number of the platform they finished up at Blackburn!

BELFRY GOSSIP

The gallant attempt at Debenham last Saturday to establish a record length of 22,208 Double Norwich Court Bob Major was lost after seven hours' ringing through the illness of the tenorman. Our good wishes for better luck next time.

Mr. R. B. Meadows, not Measures as stated in our last issue, has been elected the representative of Oxford University Society on the Central Council. We regret the error.

Miss J. Smith, who rang rounds for the first time on April 16th, rang her first peal at Warsop, Notts, for her 16th birthday.

The Leicester Cathedral ringers are wondering how many years too late they may be in thinking that the peal of spliced Belgrave, Cambridge and Yorkshire Surprise Maximus is the first peal of spliced Surprise Maximus to be rung in three methods!

The band from St. Mary's Cathedral, Limerick, that won the Murphy Cup for the best strikers in Ireland at Dublin last month consisted of B. A. Brislane (capt.), G. Bingham, G. H. Ellis, C. W. Galbraith, V. R. McCormack, D. T. Brislane, J. Cox and K. G. Brislane.

Mr. W. H. Hewett writes that 'the first Surprise peal at Enfield was 5,024 London Surprise Major on Feb. 23rd, 1924, conducted by W. Pye, and in which I had the pleasure of doing three hours' hard work. The bells went very badly at that time, but have since been rehung.' Mr. Reuben Sanders also took part in this peal. The claim in regard to the peal of Yorkshire on September 30th last thus appears to be false. But even Mr. Hewett did not ring the first Surprise peal there. Mr. Sidney Wade, of Hornsey, writes that 'a band of the Middlesex County Association rang a peal of Superlative Surprise Major there on April 27th, 1911, conducted by yours faithfully.'

WHITBY'S RING OF TEN RESTORED

HALLOWED BY ARCHBISHOP OF YORK.

THE restored ring of ten at St. Mary's Parish Church, Whitby, Yorks, was hallowed on Sunday, October 15th, by the Archbishop of York (Dr. Cyril G. Garbett). The tower of the ancient church had been silent for several months while the bells were being recast at Loughborough by Messrs. John Taylor.

They were returned towards the end of last month to be rehung in a new iron frame. The bells were recast through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. P. Shaw Jeffrey.

An hour before the service was due to commence a recording of the new bells, made on the previous Friday evening, was heard in the B.B.C. radio programme, 'The Week Ahead.'

The service was conducted by the Rev. Norman A. Vesey (Rector), and the lessons were read by the Revs. J. W. B. Moore and R. C. Treasure. During the hymn, 'We love the place, O God,' the Archbishop was conducted to the ringers' chamber, under the tower, where he was handed the bell ropes by Mr. J. R. Storr (Rector's warden), on behalf of the church. Dr. Garbett then hallowed the bells and handed the ropes to the Rector, who distributed them to the ringers. A plain course of Grandsire Caters was rung, the ringers standing as follows: C. Tindale, J. Waller, A. Hunter, A. V. Coates, G. White, W. A. Breckon, H. Short, H. Waters, S. R. Elwick (capt.) and J. Hodgson.

ARCHBISHOP'S MESSAGE.

The Archbishop of York said it was a great day in the history of the parish. The bells, which had been silent for several months, once again were ringing forth in all their beauty. The people had come together to thank God for the restoration of the bells and to thank Him for those whose generosity had made it possible for them to be recast and rehung, also for all those associated with the bells. They had in their bells a wonderful peal, one of the best in Yorkshire, one of the best, he thought he could safely say, in England, and they were grateful also for the skill of the famous firm who had recast the bells.

Bells were a characteristic feature of English life. They heard bells when they went on the Continent, bells sometimes of great beauty and depth of tone, but they did not hear the bells rung there as they were rung in this country. A stranger coming to England for the first time was always struck by the beauty of the bells. They were a characteristic feature of churches both in the country and in the town.

He remembered as a child walking sometimes on Sunday evenings along a ridge of the Downs in Surrey, and on each side of the Down there were the little villages from which the bells rang out calling people to prayer. Bells had had their influence on history, on architecture and on religion, in fact at times bells had actually made history.

The bells of the cities of central Europe were used to warn people of invaders and to save their own houses if fire had broken out. One of the first acts of the invader when he captured a town was to destroy or take away the bells so they should not be rung to incite insurrection. Bells no longer made history but recorded history. They rang out as bells of rejoicing on occasions of national thanksgiving and deliverance, and rang out a muffled peal in times of national sorrow.

TOWERS AS TABERNACLES.

The bells had their influence on architecture and all kinds of art. At first churches seemed to have had only small turrets, and later the towers and steeples were built mainly to house the bells. It was true that the great solid towers on borderlands were built so that people could take refuge in them if suddenly raided, the cattle occupying the lower part. Some of the towers that could still be seen between England and Scotland were places of refuge, places turned into fortresses, but the main reason for building towers and spires was to turn them into tabernacles for the bells.

Many poems again and again referred to the bells, and one of the most beautiful references he knew was to be found in a poem by Dante describing the entrance of himself and Virgil into the region of the Mount of Purgatory. Other well-known references were in the poems of Milton and Tennyson's 'Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky.'

SPEAKING TO MEN OF GOD.

Most of all, bells were associated with religion. Sunday by Sunday they called people to worship. They rang out for weddings, they tolled for funerals. When he was a boy there was a custom of ringing the bell when anyone in the village was dying—the passing bell—so that people might pray for the person. The bells not only spoke to the church-going, but to all who lived within their hearing. In this world full of jangling sounds, full of distractions, the bells sent their message speaking to men of God and telling them of a world which was not their own. Often people hearing the bells had their thoughts turned to heavenly things. There was a custom still observed in some countries of ringing the Angelus, the bell which called people to think of the coming of our Lord. There was a valley he knew high in the Alps where regularly at one o'clock the bells rang the Angelus and the whole valley seemed to be alive with sound.

Sometimes when people heard the bells they were unable to go to church, but they listened to the call to them to offer to God some brief prayer. The bells had a message. They spoke of God and the duty of worship. The bells also spoke of unity and peace. There was nothing more irritating than bells which jangled out of tune. If the bells were well rung there must be unity, order and harmony among those who rang them. They gave a message of peace and unity which God desired men to have. One of the most earnest desires to-day was peace. The peace which they hoped would have come with the end of the war had not come. The 'cold war' continued with all its alarms and terrors. They prayed that war might cease, and when it did the dangers of the shooting war would be the further removed.

The sound of the bells should call them to offer to God a prayer for peace that all sections of the nation might live together in peace and unity, that all class strife might be removed, that unity should grow between the various churches who all served the one God who was over all, and that the nations should come together in unity in the one fellowship of the great family of God. So while they thanked God for the restoration of the bells they must remember the message which the bells gave, the call that they should serve and worship God, and that they should find and follow the ways of fellowship and peace.

During the hymn, 'Lift them gently to the tower,' a collection was taken for the York Minster Appeal Fund and this realised £50 19s. 3d.

PLAIN BOB CINQUES

The peal of Plain Bob Cinques at Ipswich is supposed to be the first to be rung. This was arranged to enable Mr. George E. Symonds to complete his conducting of calling peals in this method on 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 bells, being the first to do so. George A. Fleming and Cecil W. Pipe have also now rung peals on the above number of Plain Bob.

The composition arranged by G. E. Symonds is as follows:—

Repeated, omitting the second bob at 5.

Debenham Record Length Attempt Fails

BUT PEAL OF 11,568 CHANGES RUNG.

The attempt to establish a record length of 22,208 Double Norwich Court Bob Major at Debenham, Suffolk, last Saturday, failed after 11,568 changes had been rung, owing to the temporary indisposition of the tenorman, Mr. A. Patrick Cannon.

Ill-luck dogged the company. After ringing one hour and 20 minutes and completing 1,904 changes, a shift course necessitated the conductor, Mr. Nolan Golden, calling a halt.

The company discussed the position and 20 minutes later at 10.5 a.m. decided to attempt a peal of 19,984 Double Norwich Court Bob Major.

Ringings was good until the last half-hour, when Mr. Pat Cannon complained of pains in the back and stomach. The conductor decided to abandon the record length and complete a peal of 11,568 changes. This was successfully accomplished about 5.23 p.m.

After sitting down for five minutes and having a cup of tea Mr. Cannon felt better. To demonstrate to the pressmen present that he was not fatigued and the company could still go on, a plain course of Double Norwich was rung.

Mr. Cannon's story of the attempt will appear in our next issue. He assures us that the pain was of a temporary character and he is now quite fit. The company hope to make another attempt at a later date.

NEW ATTEMPT AT RECORD LENGTH

21,600 BRISTOL SURPRISE MAJOR.

Dear Sir,—Permission having been kindly granted, it is proposed to attempt 21,600 changes of Bristol Surprise Major on Saturday, November 4th, 1950, at St. Chad's, Over, Cheshire (tenor 13½ cwt.), commencing at 8 a.m.

Enclosed is the composition by the late T. B. Worsley.—Yours faithfully, Macclesfield.

GUILDFORD GUILD REVIVE THEIR ANNUAL DINNER

A Remembrance of John S. Goldsmith Mr. W. Shepherd's Tribute Holiday Camp Ringers' Competition Progress of the Guild Funds for New Cathedral Bells

GUILDFORD Diocesan Guild revived its annual dinner on October 21st, the last Guild dinner being in 1939, when Mr. John S. Goldsmith, the then editor and proprietor of 'The Ringing World,' presided. The dining hall of the Lion Hotel, Guildford, was filled to capacity, a company of 138 being present.

There was ringing at Holy Trinity Cathedral Church during the afternoon, followed by a memorial service to Mr. Goldsmith held in the crypt chapel of the new Cathedral. As the company were assembling, touches of Grand-ire and Plain Bob were rung on handbells by H. A. May 1-2, A. H. Pulling 3-4, F. A. Munday 5-6, T. M. White 7-8.

The service was conducted by the Rev. W. F. Doe, assisted by the Rev. K. C. Davis, and the lessons were read by Mr. A. C. Hazelden. While the congregation were kneeling the minister, followed by the Master and a representative from each of the four districts of the Guild, processed to the Goldsmith Sanctus Bell, which was rung by the Master 22 times, thus signifying the age of the Guild.

The Lord Bishop of Guildford presided at the dinner, supported by the Master (Mr. A. Harman) and Mrs. Harman, the Provost (the Very Rev. R. S. B. Sinclair), the Rev. and Mrs. A. Hoskyns-Abraham, the Rev. K. C. Davis, the Rev. H. M. Insley, the Rev. W. F. Doe, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Pulling, Mr. G. L. Grover (Guild secretary) and Mrs. Grover and Mr. W. Shepherd. The excellent arrangements were made by a committee, consisting of the Master, Messrs. W. Viggers, S. H. Joyce and C. W. Denyer.

Mr. W. Shepherd proposed the toast of 'The memory of John S. Goldsmith and the continued prosperity of the Guildford Guild.' They were honouring the memory of a great pioneer in the world of campanology. There were many in that room who knew John Goldsmith for many years, others knew of him from his leaders and others still by repute.

'Forty-eight years ago a young ringer like myself greeted me outside a tower and said, "Welcome to Surrey." That was John Goldsmith, and until his death John Goldsmith and I were close friends. Shortly afterwards he introduced a ringers' column in a Surrey newspaper, on which he was a reporter, and he asked me for copy to keep the feature going.'

In the 1870's the only ringing information was in a journal called 'The Bell Life,' which also dealt with pigeon racing, dog racing and cock fights. Then came 'The Bell News,' first a monthly and then a weekly paper. In the early years of this century that paper was carried on with increasing difficulty.

FRIENDS EVERYWHERE

The danger of the ringing Exercise being left without a journal was noted by John Goldsmith, who in 1911 founded 'The Ringing World' and remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942. During his life he accomplished more for the art of the practical ringer than any other man. He travelled widely and set a wonderful example not only by his enormous energy, but by his lifelong devotion to campanology. His tact and good humour won him friends everywhere.

John Goldsmith was a very cheerful character, but he never saw him more cheerful than when their Guild held its first meeting on December 31st, 1927. After he had accomplished much by hard work he saw the dawn of a new Guild and undertook the great work of being the general secretary. He later became a vice-president of their Guild and at their last annual dinner in 1939 he presided. And it was fitting that they should have held that memorial service that afternoon and heard his memorial bell, which in the years to come would always perpetuate his memory.

During the lifetime of the Guild they had had only two secretaries. Their old friend, Mr. George Grover, succeeded Mr. Goldsmith in 1938. They had also had only two masters—the late Major Hesse and the present popular Master, Mr. Albert Harman.

Mr. Albert H. Harman, the Master, who replied, said: 'While we have the same enthusiastic committee the name of John Goldsmith will be remembered, and while we have the captains in the towers keeping their hands up to the standard for Sunday ringing, the Guildford Guild will continue to prosper.'

The toast of 'The Church and Ringing Exercise' was submitted by the Rev. K. Davis, who said that they should all remember that the Guildford Diocesan Guild stood for the art of change ringing to the glory of God and not for their own amusement. There were complaints at times that ringers did not attend the services they rang for. To the clergy he would say if they got to know their ringers they would find that they would respond. He thought church ringers were as loyal a body of church workers as any others. He thanked the Bishop for his interest and help to the Guild and promised him that the Guild would try to do its best to help in these difficult days by reminding people of the Church in their midst.

The Lord Bishop said he thought he was very unsuit to reply to the toast because, looking back on all the parishes he had been either vicar or rector of, he found that he had avoided any church where there was a ring of bells. It was not on purpose; it was accidental. Latterly he was made rector of a church where there was a ring of bells, but when he got there the bells were taken down and buried in a cave in Somerset. That again was nothing to do with him, but the war.

While he did not pretend to be an authority on the subject, he must add that from time to time he got abused because of bells. The other day he was taking an early morning service and the ringers rang a merry peal for that service. The result was that the next day he received letters from people complaining about their slumbers being disturbed.

BUTLIN'S PROPOSAL

That week he received a letter from the Senior Chaplain, Butlin's Holiday Camp, Skegness, stating that with the view of inducing more young people to offer themselves as ringers, they contemplated organising a ringing competition. The preliminary contests would be held at their camps in May or June and the final in September. They were proposing to give a silver cup and £50 to the winner and £30 and £20 to the runners-up.

The Bishop added jocularly if the bellringers of Guildford did not pull that £50 off he would be disappointed. 'But,' he added with emphasis, 'you don't ring for £50 or silver cups. You ring for the glory of God, and, as Mr. Davis said, in calling people to their church you are doing a great work, and in that I wish you every possible success.'

The toast of 'The Visitors' was submitted by Mr. George L. Grover. After according a welcome to the visitors, Mr. Grover recalled losses since their last annual dinner in 1939. Apart from Mr. Goldsmith and Major Hesse, they lost Mr. Walter Harrison, who although not a practising ringer was of very great help to the Guild; Mr. Jonathan Corbett, who had been their well-loved treasurer for 20 years, and in the Great War they lost 14 members.

At Mr. Grover's request the company stood in silence while their names were remembered.

The Guild had provided a sacring bell for the new Cathedral to the memory of Mr. Goldsmith and had opened a special fund to provide a ring of bells for the new Cathedral. In that fund they had over £50. Apart from that the Guild had subscribed over £150 for various bell restorations and augmentations. Of the new ringers who had joined the Guild since the ban was lifted in 1943 many had outstripped their older brethren, and among them were ringers of administrative ability and more enthusiasm than some of the 'ancients.' He paid a tribute to Mr. S. Joyce and other members of the organising committee for the success of the arrangements.

The Rev. A. Hoskyns-Abraham (Aldershot), who responded, said ringers were a secret but very friendly society. He had been struck by the friendship extended by Aldershot ringers to young soldiers who found their way to St. Michael's Sunday by Sunday. Those boys came and rang and by the example of his ringers afterwards attended the service.

Mr. John P. Fidler, of Loughborough, also replied.

'The Ladies' were honoured on the call of Mr. W. H. Viggers, who said he thought the Guildford Guild had a greater proportion of ladies among their ringers than in any other guild.

Miss W. A. Oliver, district secretary of the Ladies' Guild, who replied, said it was not solely for the purpose of providing teas that they attended ringers' meetings, but because they enjoyed ringing. 'We ladies have had our successes. The Ladies' Guild has been thriving since 1912; they had their giantesses of the Exercise. Not only had they been victorious, but they had conquered the most stubborn of all enemies—masculine intolerance (laughter).

The concluding toast, 'The Ringing World,' was proposed by Mr. Frank E. Hawthorne and acknowledged by the Editor.

Handbell tunes and songs were played by the Farnham District Glee Club, but the hit of the evening was the topical verse sung by Messrs. W. H. Viggers, J. Bragg and C. W. Denyer. Mr. S. Tonks was the accompanist.

BISHOP LATIMER'S BELLS

In 1940, St. John's Church, Deritend, Birmingham, was demolished in a street-widening scheme and the old ring of eight was given to Bishop Latimer Memorial Church.

A public meeting in May unanimously decided to make every effort to have the bells recast and rehung as a war memorial. The cost will be about £1,500, and towards this just under £500 is in hand.

These bells were originally cast in 1776 by Robert Wells, of the Aldbourne, Wilts, foundry. Only one other octave was cast by this foundry at Newbury, Berks. The contract for the new bells has been placed with John Taylor and Co., Loughborough.

The Vicar (the Rev. Cecil H. Smyth. The Vicarage, Handsworth New Road, Birmingham 18) appeals for the generous support of all ringers. His parish is not a rich one and he adds, 'If we are ever to hear bells ringing out from our church, we have to ask, and receive, financial help outside the parish.'

BARKWAY, HERTS.—On October 6th, 1950 Grandsire Triples: H. Whitby 1, H. P. Heathfield 2, W. J. Houghton 3, W. Bysouth 4, A. Bradford 5, C. Bysouth 6, E. W. Roberts (cond.) 7, A. Bysouth 8.

BLEWBURY, BERKS.—On Oct. 5th, 1950 Grandsire Triples: E. J. Grace 1, C. Corderoy 2, A. R. Greenough 3, I. Gardner 4, F. James (cond.) 5, C. Aldridge 6, H. Aldridge 7, C. Corderoy 8.

TOWER CORNER (16)

'HUNTING, PLACE-MAKING AND DODGING.'

Dear Learners.—As we meet for the last lesson (i.e., X.) of Section 3 of the Course, our instructor, Tom Truettouch, reminds us that we have been led by carefully planned steps in succession: Drill for good style in bell-handling; gaining of positive bell-control; thence to the art of striking; and now, towards acquiring the skill of hunting or guiding one's bell into its successive sound-gaps, according to the method being rung.

'In your latest exercise, No. 34,' says Tom, 'you learned how to link up the making of what we call "transits," or the exchange of places with a bell striking next to yours, into hunting—hunting on a minimum number of working bells—three. And I want you to realise that we had got you along successfully to this stage without showing you any "paper-work" or figures of change-rows at all.

'But now, here on the blackboard, we want you to see what was happening when all three bells made transits together. (See fig. 1.) Notice the path you made on the treble, amongst the other bells. First look at your own transits. The first was with 2, and the second with 3.'

Here Tom slides a pointer along the path of the '1's' until he stops at the star. 'Here,' he says, 'you laid two blows, or "made a place," as we say, before returning to the front, or the lead.' And he runs the pointer on down the path of the treble through another transit with 2 and another with 3.

'Now notice the letters "h" and "b" respectively marking the handstroke and backstroke rows. Note the backstroke to start. This is because the last blow of rounds before entering changes is always, of course, on the backstroke. Observe, at the star, that your first blow in 3rds was the last of your hunting up, and that the second blow in 3rds was the first of your hunting down. Note that this was a handstroke blow. The result is that you were brought to lead at a handstroke blow. This way of hunting, i.e., bells coming to the lead on the handstroke, is known as "direct" or "forward" hunting. We may put it into "rule" form by saying, "In forward hunting when coming down to lead your handstrokes are in the odd positions and your backstrokes are in the even ones; and when hunting up it is vice versa." We will call the six rows we produced by this forward hunting, "A Quick Six."

'Now look at this group of figures. (See fig. 2.) Note that in the first change-row from rounds the treble remains at the lead, and moves off in the next row, at backstroke. The other bells move accordingly and the treble's first transit in this case is seen to be with 3. We see here that in hunting down the handstrokes come in the even-positioned column and the backstrokes in the odd ones. This, you will realise, is the reverse of the arrangement of rows we considered just now. It is known as "backward" or "retrograde" hunting. Note that here the bells come to lead at backstroke. We will call these six rows, produced by backward hunting, "A Slow Six."

'Now, in Lesson VI.—"Development of Bell Control," you may recall, continues Tom, 'Ex. 23—"Dodging," and that we did single, double and triple dodging to order—on silenced bells in that exercise. At our last practice, when you tackled the minimum plain hunting, in Ex. 34 (that we have been discussing), while you were working your transits on the treble among the first three bells, two other bells, 4 and 5, made repeated transits with each other. This meant, of course, that 4 and 5 were dodging just as you did in Ex. 23.

'Here, then, are the starting rows of what happened in Ex. 34. (See fig. 3.) Now, in Ex. 35, "Double Dodging Up," you will take the treble again and start off exactly as you did in Ex. 34; but when you have made your second transit up, and have reached 3rds place at backstroke, this time, instead of making a place there (see fig. 4), you will continue straight on with your hunting up, making two more transits, and bringing yourself into 5ths place. Here you will proceed to dodge twice with the bell you find there, when I shall call "Stand!" We will then pull off again in rounds and repeat the exercise.'

This exercise is carried out with only one novice at a time standing in, while Mary Makebob, Tom Truettouch and three other experienced ringers make up six, tenor covering. Our most promising pupil, Will Wellstruck—you may remember—accomplishes it without serious error at the first attempt, and on standing, Tom gives a word of praise. 'The secret of success in learning hunting,' says Tom, 'is that, having used the ear to give you your first clue to the bell you are next to pull after, and swung your eyes round towards its rope to check your pull, you must instantly listen, and instantly look for the next rope, thus saving that valuable fraction of a second which enables the trick to be done in time. Will has learnt to do this consistently, and so finds his place. In other words, he has mastered "hunting." Well done, Will! We cannot but notice that Will goes straight over to Mary, that Tom joins them with significant whispering, and that they all shake hands. What goes on? Perhaps Tom will tell us later!

'Now here,' says Tom, pointing again to the blackboard (see fig. 4), 'are the figures of what you have just been doing in Ex. 35. Referring to Fig. 3, you will see that we start with the figures of Ex. 34, as arranged. Then below the line drawn at the place where you crossed over from the three-bell work into the dodging, you see your dodging work on the treble in 4-5 positions. First you made a transit with bell 4, then another with bell 5, thus getting into fifths place at your backstroke. Then you dodged back twice on your handstrokes, finally coming back into 5ths. Meanwhile the other three bells were hunting together on the front, and since they are seen coming to lead at backstroke, they must have been hunting back-wards. Indeed, they have been working through the pattern of the slow six. This should be checked by referring to figure 2, above, where, while of course the figures themselves are different, yet their pattern of position and movement, or "grid-pattern," is identical.

'At the end of that exercise,' continues Tom, 'you were left on the treble in 5ths place. In Ex. 36, "Double dodging down," you will take the treble and work back towards the front, beginning with dodging down. Here are the figures of what we shall do. (See fig. 5.) We shall pull off in the order in which we were ringing when we stood up, namely, 34251. On "Go!" the pupil on the treble in 5ths place will strike one more blow there at handstroke and will find that another bell has come next to him. He will then make a transit-down with this new bell (2nd, in fact), then dodge twice back twice on your handstrokes, finally coming back into 5ths. Meanwhile the other three bells were hunting together on the front, and since they are seen coming to lead at backstroke, they must have been hunting back-wards. Indeed, they have been working through the pattern of the slow six. This should be checked by referring to figure 2, above, where, while of course the figures themselves are different, yet their pattern of position and movement, or "grid-pattern," is identical.

'At the end of that exercise,' continues Tom, 'you were left on the treble in 5ths place. In Ex. 36, "Double dodging down," you will take the treble and work back towards the front, beginning with dodging down. Here are the figures of what we shall do. (See fig. 5.) We shall pull off in the order in which we were ringing when we stood up, namely, 34251. On "Go!" the pupil on the treble in 5ths place will strike one more blow there at handstroke and will find that another bell has come next to him. He will then make a transit-down with this new bell (2nd, in fact), then dodge twice

MR. GEORGE LEWIS.

It is with deep regret that we record the death of Mr. George Lewis of Ecclesfield, which took place at Sheffield City General Hospital on October 9th. He was 73 years of age.

Mr. Lewis took a keen interest in the work of the Yorkshire Association and served as vice-president of the Southern District for 14 years, when owing to ill-health he resigned the office in 1945, and announced his retirement from active ringing. Subsequently he was able to partake in outdoor exercise, and nothing serious was anticipated until a sudden relapse necessitated his admission to hospital for an operation, from which he succumbed.

A native of Bromsgrove, Worcestershire, he emigrated to Yorkshire in his early days and became a member of the Yorkshire Association in 1899, for whom he rang 148 peals in numerous Plain and Surprise methods from Minor to Maximus, 33 of which he had conducted on tower and handbells. He was a good striker, a safe ringer and conductor, and among his notable performances was the conducting of 11.232 Kent Treble Bob Major at Wortley on February 17th, 1906, the then record length by the Association. He had also rung a number of peals for other associations, including the Midland Counties and the Lincoln Diocesan Guild.

In his later years he took up the art of composing, in which he became proficient first in the Plain methods and then in Surprise, and many of his compositions are being rung to-day. Being of a genial disposition, he was always ready to offer advice and give a helping hand to anyone who took interest in this branch of the art.

He was for many years an active member of the Ecclesfield Company and also St. Marie's (R.C.), Sheffield, and at both places was a regular attendant at Sunday service ringing.

The interment took place at Ecclesfield, when the handbells were rung over his grave by S. F. Palmer, G. Holmes, J. J. L. Gilbert and J. R. Brearley, and the tower bells rung half-muffled immediately after the service as a last tribute of respect to his memory. The bells of St. Marie's (R.C.), Sheffield, were also rung half-muffled on the following evening, their practice night.

Thus, the Yorkshire Association have lost another of its stalwarts and are the poorer for his passing.

S. F. P.

MR. W. HONEYWOOD.

The death occurred on October 13th of Mr. W. Honeywood, of Mistley, Essex. Mr. Honeywood, who was 86 years of age, learnt to ring at Mistley when the bells were installed in 1897, later becoming towerkeeper, a position he held for over 25 years. He rang about 20 peals.

The funeral was at Mistley on October 17th when the bells were rung half-muffled before and after the service by the local band with the help of ringers from Harwich, Thorington and Parsons Heath.

A course of Plain Bob Minor was rung at the graveside by C. A. Andrews 1-2, G. W. Moss 3-4, N. Foakes 5-6.

MR. E. A. BACON.

It is with very deep regret that we record the death at his home of Mr. E. A. Bacon, Master and towerkeeper at St. John's, Loughton, Essex, who passed away on October 9th at the age of 86.

Mr. Bacon had been a ringer for 69 years and was a life member of the Essex Association and a member of the Royal Society of Cumberland Youths. His death was rather a surprise to those not knowing him intimately, as only a fortnight before he had rung well in a touch of Stedman Triples.

The funeral was on October 13th at St. John's, Loughton. Representing the Essex Association were Messrs. Heazel, Chalk and Gant, while neighbouring towers were represented by Messrs. Dawson, Crampin, Smith, Morley, Morss, Taylor, Cousins, White, Brighty, Scase, Rann and Mrs. M. M. Osborne. —At the graveside a course of Grandsire Triples on handbells was rung by G. Dawson 1-2, R. Heazel 3-4, F. V. Gant 5-6, E. D. Smith 7-8, and the local tower, represented by J. Rann 1-2, Mrs. Osborne 3-4, C. Morss 5-6, D. Scase 7-8, also paid their tribute. As the mourners left the cemetery muffled Stedman was rung on the tower bells.

AN APPRECIATION.

If a man relives his life in his last few days then 'Teddy' Bacon surely relived his, for his last few hours were spent in calling touches, arranging bands and generally doing all those things so common in the life of a Ringing Master, but that was Teddy's life. He lived bells.

Small in physique yet big in character, Teddy was well known all over the county, and was always ready to welcome any visitors to Loughton.

For 69 years he had rung at Loughton and had seen the countryside change greatly, but somehow he did not change. It was the same old figure, aided by his stick, that used to trudge up the hill to the church he loved so well.

A good churchman, admirably summed up by his Rector, '... he gave every consideration to others—a loyal and helpful colleague.' May he rest in peace.

MR. W. J. RAWLINGS.

The Gloucester and Bristol Association has lost a very loyal and useful member by the sudden death on October 6th of Mr. Walter John Rawlings, of Bristol.

A pupil of the late Mr. Stallard, he learnt to ring about 40 years ago. He was out of ringing for a number of years, but just prior to the last war he joined Clifton Parish Church band.

Following the destruction of the church by bombing, the band moved to Emmanuel, Clifton, where Mr. Rawlings was appointed captain, a position he held for five years.

In 1947 he transferred his allegiance to St. James' Church and was a member of this company at the time of his death. He was also an associate member of SS. Philip and Jacob's Guild and regularly attended their Surprise practices. In both these towers his keen sense of humour and loyalty will be missed.

An energetic Association member, he was always to be found at the branch monthly meetings. Never one to seek the limelight, as recently as last December he was persuaded to accept his first branch office, that of representative to the Management Committee of the Association. Records show that he rang in three peals for the Association, but he was known to have rung in several for neighbouring associations.

The funeral service on October 11th was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. C. H. Smith), and the ten bells were rung half-muffled before and after service. The congregation included ringers representing most of the towers in the branch. After the interment at Canford Cemetery a course of Grandsire Caters was rung on handbells by F. G. Leaker 1-2, Miss Brown 3-4, E. J. Brown 5-6, R. G. Bryant 7-8, T. Harris 9-10.

He will be greatly missed at the St. John's School of Ringing, where he had been an assistant instructor for 54 years. His skill and knowledge, coupled with unlimited patience, made him a firm favourite with all learners. As a last tribute a quarter peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung at the school on the evening of the funeral by the following six past and present pupils: R. Hooper (first as cond.), 1, Miss B. Johnson 2, Miss M. Winter 3, Dr. Brocklehurst (first quarter) 4, B. Mason (first quarter 'inside') 5, R. Calvey 6. A sad loss to the branch.

MR. WILLIAM BOSHER.

A unique record of long service to his village tower had Mr. William Boshier, of Church View, West Hendred, Wantage, Berks, who died on September 19th.

For nearly 70 years he was a ringer at this church and was foreman for just under 60 years. Mr. Boshier was one of the oldest members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild and one of the oldest readers of 'The Ringing World.'

with it, stepping back into 5ths at each dodging handstroke before arriving in 4ths place at the end of this second "six." While this double dodging has been going on in 4-5 the other three bells have been plain hunting on the front, but this time they are seen coming to lead at handstroke, so they must have been hunting forwards. They, have, in fact, been working through the pattern of a quick six. This should be checked by referring to fig. 1 above, where, though figures differ, the grip-pattern is the same.

The rest of Lesson X., learners, will come next time.—Cordially yours,

CORN. R. STONE.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

COMPOSITIONS IN MAJOR METHODS

Dear Sir,—I would like to call attention to certain mistakes in the new 'Collection of Compositions in the popular Major Methods.' These are as follows:—

Page 15. Peal No. 17. 7th course—end, for '32564' read '32546.'

Page 43. Peal No. 11. In starting course, given at foot of page, insert 'M' between 'In' and 'W'; the calling to read 'M W In M W 4th H.'

The above three mistakes were pointed out to me about October 7th, and have been corrected in all collections sent out after that date.

Two further mistakes were pointed out by Mr. A. J. Pitman, and have been corrected in all copies from about October 10th.

Page 61. Peal No. 9. The calling of the 11th and 12th courses (35426 and 43526) is given as 'LBBXSC.' This should read (for both courses) 'LBBXCSC.'

Page 62. Peal No. 11. The calling of the 19th course (45236) given as 'BBBBCS' should read 'BBBBSC.'

I would ask all those who purchased copies before the dates given to make their own corrections.

Further, should anyone find any further errors, I would be most grateful if he would let me know as soon as possible, so that copies may be corrected before being sent out.—Yours faithfully,

C. W. WOOLLEY.

SILENT AND NON-CONDUCTED PEALS

Dear Sir,—May I trespass upon your space once more in connection with the question of 'silent' and 'non-conducted' peals? The distinction between the two was discussed as long ago as 1933 at the meeting of the Central Council, and those interested will find information in a leading article of 'The Ringing World' of June that year. Substantially, the conclusion arrived at would seem to agree with the view put forward by 'Traveller' in his reply to my original query. And I was pleased to be able to infer from Mr. Wilshaw's letter that this was in fact the distinction between the 'non-conducted' and the 'silent' peals recently rung in the Midland Counties' tour. Nevertheless, however unconcerned with my views 'Traveller' himself may be, I am confident that most experienced ringers will agree with me that it is, to say the least, desirable that a competent umpire should supervise the ringing of a peal to be claimed as 'silent.' In ringing one without an umpire Mr. Whitehead has made some contribution to that 'devaluation' recently mentioned by yourself.

I must apologise for misquoting 'the neaviest bells in the diocese.' I myself, in error, wrote 'county' which became in your columns 'country.' Nevertheless, the principle, although admittedly not of great importance, remains true.

I have referred to the records of several peals rung by the St. Martin's Guild but so far as I can discover, we have never used the word 'silent' unless there has been an umpire. Indeed, on one occasion, in 1948, the phrase 'strictly non-conducted' was inadvertently applied to a peal that was, in fact, 'silent.'

In conclusion, may I assure Mr. Whitehead and/or 'Traveller' that no letter of mine to this journal has ever been inspired either by personal animosity or by a love of 'splitting hairs.'—Yours faithfully,

FRANK E. HAYNES.

THE NATURE OF THE UNIVERSE

Dear Sir,—I cannot allow Mr. R. S. Hunt's letter in 'The Ringing World' of September 22nd to go unchallenged. Such pettifoggish obstinacy, under the cloak of religious conviction, is what brings true religion into disrepute. There were similar outbursts of indignation when it was postulated that the world was round. That theory, too, was scouted at the time by quoting short passages of Scripture without regard to context or main purpose; you can prove or disprove, justify or condemn, anything you like in that way.

There is no inconsistency between science and religion; they both tend to the same end—that the truth should be known to man. What is distasteful in the knowledge that the earth and similar planets were formed out of their parent stars? Here God has vouchsafed to reveal to mankind a little of His methods of creation, in so far as they can be grasped by man's intellect at its present development, to increase our wonder and praise of His mighty works. Yet man dares to describe such revelation as 'utter rubbish'!

That the earth will eventually become too hot for life, and melt, is not irreconcilable with Divine policy. It has always been God's way, when sin has become too great, to humiliate man by removing him, either temporarily or permanently, from his habitation. The expulsion from Eden, the flood, and the captivities in Egypt and Babylon are examples. It would not be irreverent to suggest the possibility that God may in time dispossess us of the earth by increasing the temperature of the sun, and ordain a fresh start, either by migration of men from the earth, or by life springing up afresh, on another planet farther from the sun. It is commonly believed that fire will be the eventual means of purging what grows foul.

As to the possibility of many other planetary systems containing life, it is surely extreme conceit to assume that God made this universe for us alone, and not to admit that the sun, though so important to us, may be just one of the lights by night for countless other worshipping creatures in their worlds throughout space. If it is foolish to imagine an invincible cricket team, or peal ringers of prodigious capacity, among these worlds, let us at least hope that there is a race with a livelier faith, more ready and grateful to receive God's truth as revealed through their wisest.—Yours faithfully, Lansdown, Bath.

Dear Sir,—I would like to reply to a few points arising in the correspondence on 'The Nature of the Universe.'

The Bible does not profess to be a scientific treatise and dismisses in a few verses events which modern science would take several volumes to describe. Many scientific theories are not contrary to Biblical teaching, and, in fact, only serve to show the inspired nature of the Holy Writings, through the large measure of agreement between the Bible and science. Astronomical theories, suggested to fit observed evidence which may contain factors unknown to us, should be viewed with suspicion when contrary to Biblical teaching. Our Saviour, Jesus Christ, died for us on the Cross so that by belief in Him and through accepting personally His sacrifice for us, we might be given eternal life. Human life on other planets (as suggested by Hoyle) would entail either creatures there being sinless or Christ dying many times!

In her brief references to Old Testament contradictions and to modern Biblical scholarship, Mrs. Croft seems to refer to the Wellhausen theories which were popular 50 years ago and are now largely discredited, partly through archaeological discoveries of the past 30 years. The two creation accounts in Genesis are not contradictory, but supplementary. The former corresponds in a remarkable way with the discoveries of science, as in the priority of light, the velocity of which is fundamental in Einstein's theory of relativity. The stages in which water and land, vegetation, water life, flying creatures, animals and man appear correspond closely with the geological record. If this were mere chance it would be more 'miraculous' than any view of the inspiration of the record. The second narrative commences where the first leaves off. It tells in one sentence of the creation of heaven and earth and comes at once to a time when God created man and planted a garden for him to cultivate.

The Bible claims a divine supervision which constitutes it, as a whole, the Word of God. Christ Himself used and quoted the Old Testament, including the early chapters of Genesis, in a manner which showed His acceptance of their divine authority. That which must be firmly held by Christians who honour the Bible as the Word of God are the facts that God is the Creator of heaven, earth and all living things, whatever methods He may have used; that the Creation narrative in Genesis is a true account, and that man is a special creation of God.—Yours faithfully,

JOHN D. NIBLETT.

Dear Sir,—From the text of Mr. R. S. Hunt's letter it is apparent that he holds the opinion that all knowledge should not progress farther than that contained in, or rather dictated by, the Bible. Such belief is, of course, a fallacy, as nobody (even a Christian) who is not a religious fanatic can accept the dicta of the Bible, distorted into mere legends as they are.

Indeed, the earlier books of the Old Testament may be safely regarded as curiosities only; one of the sincerest Christians I have ever met was also of that opinion. I, in common with countless others, am certainly more ready to have faith in the findings of present-day scientists than the untenable theories of semi-literate peasants.—Yours faithfully,

C. A. BARRON.

CLAIM REFUTED

Dear Sir,—On page 662 of this week's 'Ringing World' a peal of Grandsire Doubles at Newland, Gloucestershire, on October 7th, 1950, is claimed to be the first peal on the bells for 20 years.

The writer took part in a peal of Stedman Doubles on these bells on August 14th, 1937, conducted by W. Poston. The weight of the tenor is given in R. H. Dove's book as 16 cwt. 1 qr. 14 lb., and not 17½ cwt. as in 'The Ringing World.'—Yours faithfully, Newmarket. A. E. AUSTIN.

ANNUAL MEETING—NEWBURY BRANCH.

At the annual meeting of the Newbury Branch of the Oxford Guild, held at Newbury on October 7th, over 70 members and visiting ringers were present, including the Master of the Guild and general secretary. Branch towers were well represented and visitors attended from towers as far apart as Aldershot and Swindon.

The Guild service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. Bertram Russell), who took as his text, 'No man, having put his hand to the plough and turning back, is fit for the Kingdom of God.' In the ringers' case, he said 'rope' could be substituted for 'plough.' He stressed the importance and responsibility attached to ringers' work. He exhorted all never to be weary of well doing and to keep ever in mind the motto, 'It all depends on me.'

At the business meeting the Rev. W. Kingsley Kefford was re-elected chairman and Mr. R. Rex the Ringing Master. The secretary regretted her inability to continue the secretaryship, and Miss Joan Mathews was elected to fill the post. Mr. H. T. E. Curtis was elected to his late father's post as a representative on the general committee.

The Master wished to know the feeling of the branch with regard to the proposed memorial to Canon Coleridge, late Master of the Guild, which was to improve and put in order the ring of twelve bells in Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

The meeting agreed with the chairman in thinking that with the large area covered by the diocese something central was essential and that the proposed improvement of Christ Church bells would be a fitting memorial.

It is hoped to erect in Newbury Church in the near future a fitting memorial to Harry Curtis, a former branch secretary and ringing master, also foreman of Newbury tower for many years.

The next meeting will be held at Beenham on November 18th.

RINGERS' SUNDAY AT BURES, SUFFOLK

This event, which has been looked forward to with much interest locally, took place on October 1st. In its main object, of increasing the interest of the public in ringing generally, it is considered to have been a great success. It was felt that the public would prefer a Sunday afternoon service to one held on a Saturday, and this service was made the centre of the whole proceedings. About 150 people attended, including a good company of ringers and the Parish Church choir.

The service followed the pattern of the Essex Association ringers' service (the parish of Bures extends also into Essex): it was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. C. H. Sharp, who also preached. Taking as his text Ephesians iv., 11, the Vicar pointed out that bellringers would probably have been included with the other church workers in that verse, if bells had been in use in connection with Christian worship in St. Paul's day.

The lesson was read by Mr. E. P. Duffield, of Colchester, one time Master of the College Youths; and the special hymns, from the Essex service, were much enjoyed, particularly by the non-ringers present, most of whom were singing the words for the first time.

Another novel feature was the handbell ringing by Miss Snowden's company from Bocking: this consisted of a perfectly-struck course of Grandsire Triples at the beginning and a similarly executed course of Bob Major at the end of the service.

At the tea which followed, the guest of honour was Dr. Thomas Wood, a great friend of ringers, who gave a welcome to the visitors. Mr. Duffield responded.

As an outcome of this successful day, a fund has been opened, having as its object the completion of the octave at Bures.

St. Martin's Guild

QUARTERLY MEETING AT ERDINGTON.

Erdington is one of those favoured districts where there are two modern rings of eight bells within easy walking distance of each other. This, no doubt, accounted for the large number of ringers who attended the quarterly meeting on October 7th. The bells of the Parish Church were installed nearly fifty years ago and are still in beautiful condition. The Roman Catholic Abbey bells are quite new, and for many visitors it was the first opportunity of hearing and ringing them. The ringing rooms at both towers are of small dimensions, and were rather too full of ringers for comfort. Shall we offer this as an excuse for the ringing not being so good as one might expect?

Before the commencement of the business meeting the Master (Mr. Albert Walker) referred to the passing of Mr. William Short, of Clent. During a long life Mr. Short had worked hard for the cause of ringing and had rung 930 peals. For seven years he was Ringing Master of the St. Martin's Guild, and during his term of office he had taken part in some notable performances, including the 14,114 London Surprise Major at King's Norton and the 11,111 Stedman Cinques at St. Martin's, which he conducted. At one time Mr. Short acted as instructor to the Hereford Diocesan Guild, and for his services to the Worcestershire Association he was made the first Freeman and a lay vice-president of that society. The Guild had also suffered the loss of Canon S. Blofeld, late Vicar of Edgbaston, who was a vice-president and an honorary member of the Guild, and was well known to the many visitors to the Henry Johnson Dinner. The members stood in silence for a moment as a token of respect to their memory.

The following new members were elected: Arthur F. Burley, of Lozells, L. E. Willday, Eric Johnson and Robert Johnson, of Handsworth; and the tower elections, as life members, of W. Eric Critchley, of Doncaster, and Graham McKay, of St. Bees, Cumberland, were duly ratified.

The next meeting, being the annual, will be held in the City on January 6th. It was formally proposed and agreed that the annual Henry Johnson Commemoration shall take place on March 3rd, 1951.

The decision of the National Police Guild to hold their meeting in Birmingham in September next year was commented upon, and, on behalf of the members of the Guild, the Master assured the police of a hearty welcome.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

DORCHESTER BRANCH.

The fourth quarterly meeting of the Dorchester Branch was held at Wool on September 23rd. The bells were rung during the afternoon, and the Guild service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. A. L. Edwards), assisted by the branch chairman, Canon A. W. Markby, who read the lesson.

Tea in the Village Hall was followed by the business meeting, conducted by the chairman, Canon A. W. Markby. Towers represented were St. Peter's, Dorchester, Fast Lulworth, Preston, Upwey, Wool, Wyke Regis and Yettminster, also visitors from Breamore, Hants, and Oldham, Lancs.

Methods rung included Grandsire, Stedman, Plain Bob Minor, Kent Treble Bob Minor, London and Cambridge. Thirty-nine members were present.

AN AUSTRALIAN TOUR

ACCUSTOMED as ringers in this country are to making long journeys, the enthusiasm of the St. Jude's Society, Sydney, Australia, who covered 1,317 miles by road during the last week-end of September, is worthy of record. The party consisted of Messrs. W. M. Rowe (captain), J. Duncan, E. Wright, J. Cummins, T. Goodyer and E. Fowell. The details of their tour are supplied by Mr. W. M. Rowe.

The party left Randwick at 5.45 p.m. on the Friday, and an uneventful trip (although care had to be taken at Razorback as the road had been washed out after the recent heavy rains) took them to Yass (188 miles), which was reached at 11.40 p.m. Here the party were met by the members of St. Clement's band at the home of Mr. H. Curll, where Mrs. Curll provided an excellent supper for the gathering. The band left again at 1 a.m. with the good wishes of the Yass folk for a good trip over the last long leg of the journey.

Albury and the border of N.S.W. were passed at 5.45 a.m. (367 miles) just 12 hours after leaving Sydney. The next stop was Rushworth, a country town in Central Victoria, which was reached at 9 a.m. (511 miles). Here the party had breakfast and left again at 9.55 a.m. after a telegram had been sent to Ballarat to notify the ringers there as to the band's progress.

A call was made at St. Paul's in Bendigo, a large city in Victoria, where the bells of this fine church were inspected. It was found that the wheels were in a bad state of repair, otherwise frame and fittings appeared in good order. The band departed from Bendigo at 12.25 p.m. (560 miles), after spending 1 hour and 25 minutes inspecting the bells.

Ballarat was reached at 2.40 p.m. (637 miles), 10 minutes behind the estimated time of arrival. There the band were given a civic welcome by the Mayor (Ald. J. C. Rowe). Afternoon tea and refreshments were served to the Ballarat ringers and the travellers, during which three members of St. Paul's, Melbourne, Mr. J. Spencer (capt.), Mr. A. Bennett (secretary) and Mr. Frank Broughton, arrived. The Mayor expressed a wish to hear handbell ringing, and four of the visitors rang a touch of Grandsire Triples, which was very well received. All then adjourned to the belfry. Some good touches of Grandsire Triples were rung and a few touches of Doubles. Tea at a restaurant in the city and a quarter peal of Doubles concluded a very long day for the tourists.

Sunday, October 1st. During the previous day some of the Ballarat men had placed the ropes brought over by the St. Jude's band on the bells at St. Peter's in Sturt Street. These bells are a ring of eight by Mears and Stainbank, of which two are fixed for chiming. The tenor is 22 cwt. They had not been rung for 36 years, and the only peal rung on them was a peal of Minor in seven methods in 1905. In the short time available it was found that the bells were in good order and only needed a set of ropes and some slight adjustment to the slides to make them in first-class condition. As it was, the treble was without a stay, and during the first touch a shake in the slide of the tenor caused it to break with the result that Messrs. Duncan and Rowe had to hold their bells on balance between touches. The bells are very musical and Ballarat people are very fortunate indeed to have two such glorious rings in their city.

After ringing at St. Peter's, the ringers went back to the City Hall and finished their ringing at Ballarat on this fine ring, saying farewell to a host of new-found friends at 12.20 p.m.

A quick journey was made to Melbourne with lunch on the way, and the band arrived at 2.45 p.m. in Melbourne, where they were welcomed by the ringers of St. Paul's Cathedral band. There the St. Jude's ringers were given their first opportunity to ring on ten and twelve bells. During the afternoon, touches of Grandsire Caters were rung and the afternoon was concluded with an excellent quarter peal of Grandsire Triples.

The tourists rose at 4 a.m. on the Monday morning and left Melbourne at 4.50 a.m. The first stop was at Chiltern at 8.25 a.m. (912 miles) to view the passing of the Spirit of Progress, the crack Victorian train. At 8.50 the journey was continued to Albury across the border into N.S.W. (937 miles). Here the party had breakfast, leaving at 10.40 a.m. on the next part of the journey to Yass. On the way they stopped and inspected the Dog sitting on the Tucker Box, five miles from Gundagai, made famous in a poem by Jack Moses, and then proceeded on to Yass, where they arrived at 2.20 p.m. (1,166 miles). Here the tourists had lunch and rang a good quarter of Doubles on the bells of St. Clement's. From there they again went to the home of Mr. H. Curll, where four of the party entertained the guests of young Master Curll (who was celebrating his birthday) with a touch of Grandsire Triples on the handbells. As usual, Mrs. Curll, although in the midst of a children's birthday party, provided the assembled company of ringers with a most enjoyable afternoon tea.

The party said farewell to their Yass friends at 5.10 p.m. and started off on the last stage of their journey. Tea at Mittagong at 7.25 p.m. (1,228 miles), departing at 9.15 p.m. and arriving back in Sydney at 12 midnight with mileage at 1,317.

This trip will live in the memories of those members who were fortunate enough to make it, and it is hoped that the goodwill and fellowship which were found in the belfries of Victoria will long continue and thus firmly establish the one aim of all bellringers in these, our so distant cities where bells are to be found. The experience gained by the band in ringing in the different towers will no doubt help all who made the trip. The mileage and times of departure and arrival at the different points will help our ringing friends in England to realise the great distances the ringing towers are apart in Australia and should help them understand the difficulties under which the ringers 'down under' labour.

In closing, the St. Jude's Society wish to record their grateful thanks for the hospitality extended to them by the Mayor of Ballarat, the captain and members of the City Hall Bellringers Club, Canon Yeo and the members of St. Peter's, Ballarat, the captain of St. Paul's Cathedral, Melbourne, Mr. Jack Spencer and Mr. Allan Bennett, the secretary of St. Paul's Cathedral and members of the Cathedral band. Especially do they thank Mr. Gullock, of Ballarat, for the trouble he took in arranging accommodation and placing the ropes in St. Peter's tower, and Mr. and Mrs. Curll and the Yass band for their hospitality on both visits to their town.

The Hesse Anniversary week-end was held on October 14th. Ringers and friends attending were Mrs. Hesse,

Messrs. A. A. Hughes, J. T. Dyke, Stafford
H. Green, E. J. Taylor, T. W. Kimber,
A. E. Reeves, H. J. Sanger, L. F. Derrick,
Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. C. H.
Dobbie, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kingcott, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Knight. Two peals were rung this year, Plain Bob Royal at Evercreech, and Grandsire Caters at Wrington. All wish to express their thanks to Mrs. Hesse for her very kind hospitality during the week-end.

A fine peal of Plain Bob Royal at St. Mary's, Redcliffe, Bristol, on October 14th, saw Mr.
Jack Worrall complete Minor to Maximus in the method.

Correction.—The peal of Stedman Caters on October 13th at Loughborough Foundry was rung in two hours and forty-seven minutes, composed and conducted by Shirley Burton.

By taking part in the peal at Stoney Stanton, Mr. L. E. Towers makes a welcome return to peal ringing after 21 years. His first peal was in the same tower where he started ringing with Mr. A. Ballard under the instruction of the Rev. R. P. Farrow, now at East Lulworth.

The Bishop of Leicester personally congratulated the ringers at the conclusion of the peal, the band including five local members.

To mark the 72nd birthday of Mr. Joseph
H. W. White, of Coventry, a peal of Bristol was arranged at Bedworth, Warwickshire, but owing to a last minute hitch, one of the locals kindly stood in and a good peal of Grandsire Triples resulted. Many friends will wish Joe, who rang his bell faultlessly throughout the peal, many happy returns.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Probably the first school to have a ringers' outing is the Humphrey Perkins School, Barrow-upon-Soar, Leicestershire.
Their Campanological Society's all-day tour included ringing at Saddington, Foxton, Husbands Bosworth, Hallaton and Great Glen.
Touches in five methods were rung during the day. A highlight was when the record secretary ripped his trousers and these had to be repaired in the coach.

Southwell Diocesan Guild ringers wish 'Paddy' Preston, who has to go overseas with H.M. Forces, a speedy and safe return.

There are relatively few towers with lady captains. Mablethorpe, Lincs., had one in Miss Dorothy Clarke, whose wedding was commemorated by a peal at Whatton-in-the-Vale, Nottingham, on October 18th.

Mr. W. Poston, of Ross-on-Wye, writes re the peal of Doubles at Newland, Glos., on October 7th: 'May I remind our friend, Mr.
L. Barry, that a peal of Stedman Doubles, two callings, was rung at Newland on August 15th, 1937, conducted by myself.'

Ringers of Emmanuel, Plymouth, note with pleasure the quarter peal rung by Miss Margaret Izard at Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria, B.C. They recall her holiday in England two years ago and how she came regularly to ring at Emmanuel and accompanied the band on their outing.

Among the secular towers in the Exercise is Morpeth Watch Tower, Northumberland, which was built in 1309, and whose first bells were installed in 1705. By means of a carnival and other methods, the corporation have raised £2,000 to meet the cost of repairing the tower and restoring the bells. The eight bells are now in the hands of Messrs. John Taylor and Co., Loughborough.

WORCESTERSHIRE & DISTRICTS ANNUAL DINNER

Coincides with the Bishop's Mission Mr. Fred Bennett Recalls Early Days A Yorkshire Quip

WITH the exception of the first dinner—held to mark the jubilee of the Association—the 13th annual Worcestershire dinner, held in the Assembly Room of the Guildhall, Worcester, on October 7th, attracted a record gathering of 119. The date happily coincided with the inaugural service of the Bishop of Worcester's mission—at which the Cathedral was crowded with representatives from all over the Diocese—and, in addition to ringing at the Cathedral, special efforts were made to keep the city bells going throughout the afternoon.

With the evening's arrangements, several experimental innovations were tried, including taking the complete toast list without interruption immediately after dinner, and with each speaker keeping within time limits and adding a spice of humour. This proved very popular.

The president, the Very Rev. W. E. Beck, D.Litt., Dean of Worcester; presided, and he was supported by Mr. W. Skidmore (Master), and Mrs. Skidmore, the Rev. H. Hartley (chaplain), the Rev. L. J. Birch (clerical vice-president) and Mrs. Birch, Mr. J. D. Johnson (general secretary) and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. J. R. Newman (vice-president) and Mrs. Newman, Mr. W. B. Cartwright (vice-president) and Mrs. Cartwright and Mr. J. Bass (vice-president). Among the visitors were Mr. and Mrs. F. Bennett and some of the band from Claverley (Archdeanery of Stafford); Dr. S. E. Darmon, Leeds; Messrs. F. C. Lyne and R. C. Chapman, Stratford (Coventry Diocesan); Mr. C. Rouse, Prestbury (Gloucester Diocesan) and Mr. J. P. Fidler (representing Messrs. J. Taylor and Co.). Apologies for absence were announced from Bishop B. Lasbrey, Messrs. E. E. Barber and E. F. Cubberley (through indisposition), Mr. B. C. Ashford (on holiday) and a letter was received from Mr. S. T. Holt, who had recently undergone an operation and sent his apologies and good wishes from convalescence at Torquay.

The Loyal Toast having been honoured and the National Anthem sung, the toast of 'Church and State' was proposed by Major G. H. Derrington. They had, he said, often heard preachers complain of Church of England schools being taken over by the State under the guise of progress, but the Church and progress could and should march side by side.

The Dean of Worcester said he probably had a dual qualification to reply. In his last post as Principal of a training college for men, he was not only a minister of religion but also an official of the State. His present post was an appointment by the State and the State paid his salary. Probably if all clergy were paid by the State, they would not be so impoverished. Some people thought it was scandalous that the State should have the authority to make such an appointment and when they wanted to cite an example, they said, 'Look at the Dean of Worcester.' (Laughter.) But it did provide a bond between Church and State. Bonds need not mean bondage; there might be limitations of freedom, but there were compensations. For instance, bachelors may have better quarters, but married men had better halves. The State, like the Church, was responsible for its members to God.

FRIENDLY GREETING TO ALL.

In proposing the toast of 'The Worcestershire Association,' Mr. Fred Bennett said that he was not a stranger to the county as his first post was at Upton-on-Severn, where, as a junior clerk, his biggest job was fetching the manager from the 'local' when wanted. Acknowledging the honour of proposing the toast, he did not flatter himself it was due to his ability as a ringer, but it was typical of Worcestershire that a friendly greeting and welcome were extended to all, whether it was the humble Grandsire ringer or the London Surprise expert. The success of an Association depended mainly on two things—the quality of its officers and the enthusiasm of its members. These the Worcestershire Association had in full measure; high standards set in the past had been maintained and improved upon; among their personnel were some of the very best in the Exercise and to-day the Association was second to none in the country.

In a charming speech, Miss Jean Southerst said she hardly felt qualified to reply after only 12 months' residence in Worcester, but of the sentiments expressed by Mr. Bennett, she could echo all of them herself. She had had the same experience of Worcestershire comradeship, welcome and friendliness, and from her own observations the Association was a flourishing organisation. She had been one of a party to visit Worcester on a university week outing some years ago, and the welcome then was the same for all, whatever their ringing abilities.

The Rev. H. Hartley proposed 'Kindred Associations,' and said that although he might not be a lot in touch with practical ringing, he could extend a welcome and greeting to neighbouring Associations and especially to those with whom that evening. He appealed to all to take every interest in new entrants to the art and encourage their keenness—the younger ones would carry on when they were gone.

Dr. S. E. Darmon, in reply, said that the toast 'Kindred Associations,' called to mind all that was best in the comradeship and freemasonry of ringing. Only during the last 50 or 60 years had we had the organisations as we knew them to-day. The territorial associations—of which no better example existed than the Worcestershire—and the Central Council were responsible for the remarkable advance, and it was good for the Church that such associations existed. He referred to the difference in the tempo of life in Worcestershire as compared with the county of his adoption, and told of the Yorkshireman who, after residence in another county, was obliged to return to the West Riding periodically 'in order to sharpen his wits.' That county could not have been Worcestershire, and in thanking the Association for its welcome, he expressed very best wishes for the future.

The entertainment side of the programme was ably compered and controlled by Messrs. D. H. Watson and T. W. Lewis as M.C.'s. Songs were sung by Messrs. G. J. Hemming, G. Allibone, A. Richardson and E. Barber and were all well received. Mr. J. P. Fidler entertained the party and sang the 'Yorkshire National Anthem,' 'On Ilkley Moor,' while Miss J. M. Hemming made a willing and efficient pianist.

The Brierley Hill handbell band (Messrs. C. Skidmore, T. Hemming and J. Lloyd) gave selections of tunes, and their spectacular 'rise and fall' on handbells was a popular feature. A course of Stedman Caters was rung 'in hand' by: Miss J. Southerst 1-2, Mr. J. W. Johnson 3-4, Mrs. J. Thomas 5-6, Mr. J. Thomas 7-8 and Miss M. Rowland 9-10. The singing of 'Auld Lang Syne' brought a successful gathering to a close.

Kent County Association

MAIDSTONE DISTRICT.

The annual district meeting was held on October 14th at All Saints', Maidstone, and over 40 ringers from 20 different towers took part. Afternoon ringing over, the company dispersed for tea, which had not been organised party fashion. While this violation of the Laws of the Medes and Persians was perhaps regrettable, everyone managed to find sustenance, and if the experience of one small party was any guide, the innovation had its favourable points.

We reassembled in the College Room for the business meeting, presided over by the Vicar, Canon C. B. Sampson. In his report, the secretary said that a total membership of 180 was unchanged from the previous year, so that the 20 new members, including the complete East Farleigh band, were counterbalanced by the lapses of a similar number, mostly of young people who had been recruited since the war. In parallel with this tendency, which had been evident now for two years, was drop in attendance at meetings. Paradoxically the standard of ringing had steadily improved.

After presentation of the provisional balance sheet and the election of three new members, A. L. Eiffert and A. T. Pearce, of All Saints', and Miss June Monckton, of Bearsted, the meeting proceeded to re-elect all its officers for another year: Secretary, Dr. E. S. J. Hatcher; representatives on the Central Committee, Mr. G. F. Cantrill and Mr. A. Waddington.

The suggested meetings for 1951 were accepted without modification, but the direction of the summer coach tour led to discussion, the general feeling being that it should be further afield than East Kent, either into Sussex or beyond London to Hertfordshire. Final decision was postponed.

Following an appeal for more contributions to 'The Belfry,' the acceptance of an offer of Mr. Cantrill to type out the annual returns of ringing information from affiliated towers for the district tower record ('The Chronicle') and a decision to alter the date of the Wateringbury meeting from November 25th to December 2nd, we returned to All Saints'. In the lovely choir evensong was sung, with a course of Grandsire Triples on the handbells after the Third Collect, and to end the singing of 'Unchanging God' to 'Belfry Praise.'

CANTERBURY DISTRICT.

The annual meeting of the Canterbury District was held on October 14th. The usual large crowd rolled up representing 26 towers in the district and visitors coming from Bobbing, Folkestone, Bexhill and Rye.

Ringing was held during the afternoon at St. Stephen's, St. Alphege's and St. Dunstan's, at which church the service was held, this being conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. F. A. Brown, assisted by the Rev. T. G. Rutherford. A collection for the Association's Benevolent Fund amounted to over £2.

Tea was held for the first time in the new Church Room, which had been built to replace the one blitzed during the war. The large attendance almost filled the place. The annual business meeting followed, the chairman, Mr. J. A. Russell, Birchington, and the secretary, Mr. B. J. Luok, being re-elected unopposed by nomination. A ballot, taken during tea, for the offices of representatives and Ringing Master, for each of which there were four nominations, resulted in Messrs. C. E. Buesden and H. R. French being returned as representatives, and Mr. R. G. French as Ringing Master.

Faversham was selected as the place of the quarterly meeting, and Whitstable for the bi-meeting previous. The secretary's report showed that there was a slight drop in the total number of members with fully paid subscriptions, though there was an increase in the number of honorary members.

CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD DINNER

Free Church Members Admitted Welcome to Central Council Princess Elizabeth's Visit A Wife's Lament

THE annual dinner was held at the Bar's Hotel, Chester, on October 14th. There were over eighty present, drawn from every branch of the Guild. The company included the Bishop of Chester and Mrs. Crick, the Dean and Mrs. Tubbs, the Archdeacon and Mrs. Burne, and we were greatly honoured this year by the presence of Mr. Edwin H. Lewis, president of the Central Council, and Mrs. Lewis.

After an excellent meal and the loyal toast, the Bishop proposed the toast of the Guild and once more emphasised the importance of its members being regarded as church officers and expressed his appreciation of their services.

The Master (Mr. J. W. Clarke), in replying, spoke of the continued prosperity of the Guild, which, he said, must act as an incentive to yet further advance. He made special reference to the increase of lady ringers and to the recently revised rules, in which ringers at the Free Churches were no longer excluded from membership, and incumbents of churches with towers were now vice-presidents of their respective branches. He went on to refer to the 1925 report, in which the total of 97 peals for the year was described as 'an almost impossible feat,' whereas last year the total was 143, many of which were in advanced methods. He spoke, too, of the Guild's many social activities, outings and tours, and concluded by exhorting the young not to forget the great debt they owed to the older ringers who had laid so good a foundation for them.

'NOT RINGING THE BISHOP.'

The Secretary (the Rev. J. Kingdon) proposed the health of the visitors, to which Mrs. Burne replied. In an amusing speech she spoke of the large part bells played in life from school bells onwards and then referred to the 17th century custom of ringing the Bishop (who lived at Wigan) in and out of Chester and to an incident culled from the wardens' accounts for St. John's in 1937: 'Paid to the ringers for not ringing when the Bishop came to view the church, 3s. 4d.' This was a Puritan protest against his insistence on the use of the surplice and Prayer Book.

Mr. A. R. Elkins proposed the toast of the Central Council. He spoke of the events which led to the formation of the Central Council in 1891 and of the great work it had done and was still doing, emphasising that the greatest tribute we could pay to it was our loyalty to its decisions.

He offered a cordial welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and said they were proud of the fact that the former's path to the high office he now held was through Cheshire. He recalled some of the peals Mr. Lewis had conducted, in particular at Frodsham, including the last peal on the old six (7,200 of Minor, being 720 each of 16 methods) and the first peal on the new eight (Superlative). He also referred to the way the president had put his technical knowledge of strains and stresses and swinging towers at the disposal of the Exercise. In concluding, he mentioned how much the Guild was looking forward to the visit of the Central Council next year—the year of its diamond jubilee.

Mr. E. H. Lewis, in returning thanks, said that nothing could have been better for the health of the Council than the invitation to come to Chester next year. He told of his early association with Cheshire, which included his first peal at Pulford on November 4th, 1905, and spoke of the great strides which had been made since those days, particularly in methods rung, but he made a strong plea that the plain methods should not be neglected.

Mr. Lewis also gave a most interesting outline of the history of change ringing during the past 300 years. Starting with Roan's composition of Grandsire Doubles in 1650, he continued with a vivid description of the state of the Exercise 100 years later in 1750 when ringing was purely a sport and entirely divorced from church worship.

Passing on another 100 years to 1850, he spoke of the gradual change which had come about since that year when churchpeople began to realise that the bells were church bells and ought to be used as such. Since 1850, he said, ringers had been increasingly integrated into the life and worship of the church. It was significant that at the Central Council at Eastbourne this year about 90 per cent. of the members present came to the early celebration preceding the meeting. He looked forward to next year's meeting in Chester and suggested that it would be appropriate if, after the manner of King Edgar, the president were rowed by eight Masters up the Dee to Eccleston and proceeded to the church for a peal.

The toast of 'The Clergy' was proposed by Mr. John Worth, who spoke of the close relationship which now existed between the clergy and the ringers and stressed the importance of their helping each other. He pointed out the great value of visits of the clergy to the belfry and wished such visits were more general. He also thought it desirable that there should be more clerical ringers—the diocese of Chester being somewhat deficient in that respect.

LADY RINGERS WANTED.

The Dean, in his reply, agreed that great progress had been made on both sides towards mutual understanding and co-operation, and then expressed some of his thoughts about ladies in the belfry. He mentioned the visit of the King and Queen to Chester a few years ago when he presented the ringers to their Majesties, and their obvious surprise at the sight of a lady amongst them. He hoped that when the proposed visit of the Princess Elizabeth took place there would be as many lady ringers as practicable in the band which would sound forth the city's welcome from the Cathedral bells.

The toast of 'The Ladies' was entrusted to Mr. G. E. W. Griffiths, who was evidently in his element. He covered a good deal of ground in a racy speech, the pièce de résistance being his reference to the emergence of glamour and romance in the belfry, of which the recent marriage of two young ringers in a neighbouring church afforded concrete evidence.

Mrs. C. Kenneth Lewis replied. A ringer herself, she nevertheless had (she said) the greatest sympathy for the poor uninitiated wife who was deprived of her husband's company at breakfast, not by the morning paper, but by a strange looking scrap of paper over which he poured in silence, save for intermittent murmurings of 'wrong' and 'home,' till she began to feel something must indeed be wrong with him and he ought to be in a home. She thought the glowing picture of the proposer should bring comfort to wives on such mornings as well as on those evenings when the husband's arrival was unduly late, or, as sometimes happened, unduly early.

The speeches were interspersed with handbell ringing, courses of Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob Major and Oxford Treble Bob Major being excellently rung by Messrs. J. Worth, J. E. Bibby, R. G. Edwards and C. K. Lewis, and by comic items contributed by Mr. J. H. Brookes.

Before dispersal the Master thanked the secretary for his work in organising the dinner, the ringers of the handbells, and Mr. Brookes, the special entertainer. Thus concluded a most enjoyable evening.

Dedication

MAULDEN, BEDS.

On Saturday afternoon, October 7th, a large congregation of ringers and parishioners attended St. Mary's Church, Maulden, Beds, when two new treble bells were dedicated by the Archdeacon of Bedford, the Ven. D. B. Harris.

This was the culmination of 18 months' hard work by the ringers and their hon. secretary (Mr. M. J. Lockety), who, assisted by many kind contributors, had raised the sum of £800 for the new bells and the entire rebanging of the existing six bells, which had been undertaken by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of London.

Some weeks ago some £30 was required, but an anonymous donor came to the rescue and the account has been paid.

After shortened evensong, conducted by the Rector (the Rev. C. Millington), the choir went in procession to the tower, accompanied by the Rector, the Rev. R. P. Stacey Waddy (Amptthill), the Rev. J. Adams (Silsoe) and the churchwardens, Mr. H. Woodward and Mr. C. W. Sinfield, who conducted the Archdeacon and handed him the bell ropes with the request that he should dedicate the two bells ('to the glory and praise of God'). The dedication completed, the procession returned to the chancel while the opening rounds were rung by the Maulden ringers.

At the chancel steps the Archdeacon announced that he had a very pleasing duty to perform. This was to hand cheques to two old ringers of the church who were presented by the Rector. They were Mr. William Fisher and Mr. Sidney Sharp, who had both completed over 50 years as ringers at St. Mary's, a duty which Mr. Sharp still performs, and he also took part in the opening rounds.

The Archdeacon congratulated both ringers on their wonderful record, which, he said, was a great example of loving and devoted work for their church.

After the service the opening touch was a well-struck course of Yorkshire by R. Kendall (Luton) 1, C. Izzard (Kempston) 2, A. C. Sinfield (Maulden) 3, R. J. Sharp (Maulden) 4, C. H. Harding (Blunham) 5, W. Theobald (London) 6, B. Sims (Biggleswade) 7, L. H. Bywaters (Henlow) 8.

Tea was provided in the Church Hall by ladies of the congregation, and over 100 ringers and friends were provided with a good spread.

Among those present were Miss E. Steele, of Biddenham (president of the Beds Association), Mr. A. King (Luton), Mr. W. Stapleton (Bedford), Mr. C. J. Ball, Sandy (vice-presidents), Mr. A. J. Woodward (donor of one of the bells), Mr. A. A. Hughes (representing Mears and Stainbank), and ringers from many parishes in Bedfordshire and neighbouring counties, including Coventry and London.

After tea the bells were kept going until 9 p.m. to various methods, including London and Bristol, and all agreed that the bells were a nice musical ring and the 'go' excellent.

ODD FELLOWS' PEAL

The Odd Fellows' peal at Montgomery on September 30th was rung as a compliment to Brothers J. E. Tomley, 70 years' membership of the Order, S. Jones, sen., 64 years, Richard Mansell, 66 years, and Arthur Shone, 60 years. It was also for the 68th wedding anniversary of Mr. John Davies, retired sexton of the church. It is of interest to note that four of the band in the Montgomery peal—Brothers R. T. Holding, H. F. Holding, W. T. Holding and R. D. Langford—stood in the peal at St. Bertoline's, Barthomley, Cheshire, on October 15th, 1910, rung by brethren of the Manchester Unity of Odd Fellows to mark the centenary of the Order. Other survivors of the Barthomley peal are John Brassington and Arthur Allman, and they are still ringing.

Amplification of Bell Records

Dear Sir,—Ringers may be interested to know that the Chancellor of the Diocese of Ripon has attached the following conditions to his recent grant of a faculty authorising the installation of amplification equipment for relaying recorded bells in a church near Leeds.

1. Chimes or peals of bells may be reproduced only:—
(a) for periods not exceeding fifteen minutes on any one occasion.
(b) before Matins and Evensong on Sundays; on Christmas Day; at midnight of the thirty-first of December; on Ascension Day; on the Patronal Festival; and after weddings.
2. Reproduction shall not be so loud as to be:
(a) audible beyond the boundaries of the parish or an area in which a peal of bells rung by hand is audible or
(b) a nuisance or annoyance to neighbours.
3. The apparatus shall be kept under lock and key and its use supervised by a responsible person.
4. Care shall be taken that no worn needles or records are used.
5. No reproduction of any sound other than that of chimes or peals of bells is authorised.
6. The use of the apparatus shall be subject to such further conditions and restrictions as may from time to time be prescribed in writing by the Bishop, which conditions and restrictions may be withdrawn, varied, abrogated or added to as the Bishop may from time to time think fit.

Yours faithfully,

C. O. ELLISON,
Archdeacon of Leeds.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

COLLEGE YOUTHS THROUGH AMERICAN EYES

Dear Sir,—Your readers will know of the new film, 'The Mudlark,' featuring Irene Dunne as Queen Victoria, which is shortly to be shown at the command performance. The book of the same title, by an American author, Theodore Bonnet, contains a character, Sir Gilpin Jarvey, the Master of the Household at Windsor Castle. Members of the Exercise may be interested in these extracts relating to him:

'One of the great passions of his life was bellringing, and he belonged to that noisiest of civilian companies of England known preposterously as the Ancient Society of College Youths, which met fortnightly for practice in the belfry of St. Paul's Cathedral. There, on the evening of Wheeler's escapade, he and his colleagues had been heaving at it in deafening devotions, coats off, sweat shining on their happy faces as they yanked away at the ropes, and the twelve great bells of St. Paul's had crashed out of the darkness like a Volcanic anvil chorus, driving to cover every dog in the City of London; after which the brethren had adjourned to their regular tavern for ale all round and a jolly little go on the handbells.'

and later

'he propagated his opinion not only through the castle, but among all the bellringers of St. Paul's Cathedral. What allies were there! Think of those doughty Youths, many of them with snow-white locks, but as spry as monkeys, apple-cheeked, taut-bellied, tough of thew and bright of eye, ready at a moment's notice to call London to arms or to worship, to peal out the tidings of history, come death or Te Deum. Think how they walked with beadsles and sextons, vicars and vergers, deacons and archdeacons, prebendaries and canons, and drank their ale fortnightly in the Amen Tavern, at the corner of Paternoster Row and Ave Maria Lane, not far from Fleet Street; and how in the course of their daily living they must have penetrated into banks and exchanges, the Inns of Court, Parliament, and probably into the British Museum, the Bible Society, the Royal Academy, Guildhall and the Abbey, country houses and bell foundries and musical teas, and kept running down to Oxford, if only to see how Great Tom was holding up and haply give him a clang.'

The action of the book takes place in the 1870's. I understand that Sir Gilpin's bellringing proclivities are not dealt with in the film.—Yours, etc., WILFRID G. WILSON.

HALF-MUFFLED RINGING

Dear Sir,—After ringing here at a funeral service with the bells half-muffled at backstroke, I was told by an old inhabitant that the custom has always been to muffle the tenor the reverse way, i.e., at hand. Do any of your readers know of this being done? It is difficult to imagine the result, but it would hardly seem to be so effective as that of the usual way of muffling.—Yours faithfully,

C. CULLEN.

UNIVERSITY ASSN. LINCOLN WEEK

Dear Sir,—I was interested to read in your issue of October 13th of the above ringing tour. As a Lincolnshire Yellow Belly, I am rather perturbed at the activities of the U.A. in moving Great Tom from the central tower of Lincoln Cathedral to St. Hugh's Tower, the south-west tower, where hangs the ring of 13 bells. I hope they had a faculty for the removal!—Yours sincerely,

J. MARTIN PAGE.

RINGING FEES

Dear Sir,—In approaching this question I can only be guided by the legal aspect as laid down by Phillimore in 'Ecclesiastical Law' and other lawyers. On the moral aspect it is not always wise to say what one thinks. A bell is the 'property' of the parishioners under the care and guardianship of their representatives, the churchwardens elected in vestry. When anyone pulls the bell rope and rings it, it is in use. And the use is in the incumbent. Phillimore I., 1,484: 'The property in the goods of the church, e.g., bells or bell ropes, is in the churchwardens.' Phillimore I., 1,386: 'The bells cannot be rung without the consent of the incumbent.' See Canon 88: 'neither the bells to be rung . . . at any other times without good cause to be allowed by the minister. . . . ' Phillimore I., 727: 'The parishioners at their own charge shall find bells with ropes.'

My mode of procedure would be as follows: The party requiring the wedding peal approach the incumbent, he gives permission and states the amount the ringers would require, according to custom or belfry rules. He then informs ringers of date and time. The representative of the wedding party pays out the fees due to incumbent for wedding, the parish clerk, organist, blower and choir if employed, and last, but not least, the ringers.

The incumbent may refuse the use of the bells unless a fee is paid for their use. For church services he is compelled 'to cause a bell to be tolled a convenient time before he begins that the people may come to hear God's Word and to pray with him.' See Prayer Book Preface.

The fee for 'the Passing Bell' is due to the sexton, who usually is asked to ring it and is paid by the undertaker.

Curious people may ask what the incumbent does with the fee he demands. Does he pay it in to some church fund or put it into his pocket? It all depends on the sort of incumbent and his belief, for they are of two kinds. No. 1 believes it is more blessed to give than to receive. No. 2 believes it is more blessed to receive than to give.

And there we must leave it. A meeting would serve no useful purpose. Kent is a long way from Devonshire and I am not a bishop nor desire to be one. Mr. V. A. Jarrett has my sympathy.

PUZZLED LEARNER'S QUERY

Dear Sir,—Could someone possibly inform me why frequently the Major method bears no resemblance to the Minor method of the same name? To give only two examples, Norfolk Surprise Minor bears no resemblance to the Major and neither does Lincoln Surprise.

The first-named method is merely Cambridge without 'seconds or fifths,' that is to say, sixth's place is made on the treble's whole lead in front, and first's place is made on the treble's whole pull behind. As can easily be seen, the method is quite readily extendable, Lincoln Minor is also extendable, although it would not produce a very good method, due to the long front work.

Why, then, have Minor methods been completely ignored when naming Major methods? Are not Minor methods suitable 'basics'?

There are countless names of towns and villages yet to be used as names of methods, so why the encroaching on the Minor preserves? Long and heated discussions have often taken place in 'The Ringing World' as to whether a Royal or Maximus extension is fit to be called by the same name as the Major method. Nothing is ever said, however, of the obvious breach from Minor to Major.

I would, therefore, be very pleased if someone could give me a reason for all this.—Yours sincerely, PUZZLED LEARNER.

TOWER CORNER (17)

'READY FOR METHOD RINGING.'

Dear Learners,—We continue with Lesson X. from the point where the pupil, ringing the treble in five with sixth covering, had been shown on the blackboard the figure-work of Ex. 36—double dodging downwards.

This exercise is carried out by pulling off in the terminal order of Ex. 35, namely, 34251; and by working through to a 'stand' with a terminal order of 34512.

To make this clearer, fig. 5 of the previous instalment is repeated here, alongside. In standing at the end of this exercise, then, the pupil is left in 4ths place, as may be seen. The small letters to the right hand side indicate the 'stroke,' and provide a ready check on the nature of the hunting, by which bells come to lead either at handstroke or at backstroke.

Fig. 5. (Ex. 36.)

'Each pupil in turn, on the treble, has now worked up from the front to the back, with double dodging up, as in Ex. 35, where the three-bell work on the front formed a "slow six." Then followed Ex. 36, with its double dodging down, where the three-bell work on the front formed a "quick six," as we have seen. If we continue this arrangement we shall have slow and quick sixes coming along alternately, i.e. we shall have six rows of backward hunting followed by six rows of forward hunting; nothing else whatever on the front three bells, and simple dodging on the back pairs.

'Since the pupil's bell (treble) has just finished dodging down in a quick six (see Fig. 5), it must enter the front work in a slow six. That is to say, it will start its three-bell hunting backwardly. The pattern for this was shown in fig. 3 in the previous instalment, where it was seen that the bell in position 3 in the first row of that six, remained there for one more blow, and then worked plain hunting.

'So in the next exercise, No. 37, the pupil, on the treble still, will re-enter the front work after the double dodging down, and will perform backward hunting, brought about by making the 3rds place, on the way in.

'It will be a good thing, however, having got so far, to pull off this time in rounds, and to work again through Ex. 35 (shown at fig. 4 in previous instalment), going straight on through Ex. 36 (as in fig. 5 above), and then without break into the work just described. This constitutes Ex. 37 and is shown complete in fig. 6. At the end of this slow six which we have just added we will stand, leaving the treble in second position, as may be seen.'

When each pupil has worked through this exercise (the other five ringers being experienced ones), Tom announces that this concludes preliminary exercises in hunting (both ways), place-making and dodging, and that we are now ready for method ringing. To conclude the lesson, however, he directs our attention to the figures of Fig. 6, and more closely continues:—

'First of all we must realise that although we have fixed our minds particularly on the path of one bell, the treble, yet all other "working" bells (i.e., excluding the tenor which has been covering), have been following exactly the same sort of path as ours; but each has started off at a different part of the path.

'Second we observe that if we raise the line drawn under the round-row at the start, placing it above that row, we now have three rows which are found to be of the pattern of the last half of a quick six. The very important significance of this fact will come out in your study of method structure, later on; but bear it in mind, as arising from the principle of "symmetry."

'Third, we see that at each six-junction one bell leaves the front work for the dodging behind, so that at the same time one bell must leave the dodging behind for the front work.

'Fourth, the bell entering a quick six runs down to lead and out again at the same six-end, whereas the bell entering a slow six appears to stay in the front work for the next few sixes. In fact, it is there for five sixes in all and is said to be in the "slow work."

'Fifth, that the entire path, or "course," of a bell is this scheme of things is seen to consist of a cycle of: Quick work, Dodging up and Dodging down, Slow work, and Dodging up and Dodging down again. Indeed, this is known as the "plain course."

'In point of fact,' continues Tom, 'while we have been learning the rudiments of all method ringing, i.e. hunting forward, hunting backward, place-making and dodging, we have actually learnt something of the fundamentals of one of the most famous of methods—the Stedman principle. This introduction to method ringing is considered by many to be the best.

'And with this we come to the end of Lesson X. and the end of Section 3 of the Course. You should now feel able to take your place anywhere in rounds, and to attempt, at beginners' practices, method ringing—always provided you have learnt the method!'

'Before we leave,' says Tom, 'let me give you a bit of advice. Keep in mind all the finer points of good ringing style that we've tried to teach you; for by this means only can you hope to maintain 100 per cent. bell control. Without bell-control you'll never be a good striker, and without good striking you're no good as a ringer! So determine to keep on improving, and, above all, listen!

'Lastly—a social note. You remember that I had a private word with Mary and Will earlier in the lesson after Will had just got through his first bit of hunting? Well, it gives me pleasure to tell you that William and Mary have become engaged. Apparently Mary wouldn't say "Yes" until Will had mastered hunting, so now all's fine! Good luck to them both, in marriage and in ringing.'

At this Tom steps forward and turns over the blackboard, on the reverse of which he had written out the summary of Section 3, just concluded. Here it is:

New Company at Emmanuel, Plymouth

On October 7th, the ringers of Emmanuel Church, Plymouth, with their wives and friends, had their third ringing tour this year. This was a half-day trip in Cornwall, visiting and ringing at Pelynt (6), Lanreath (6), Lannallos (8) and Morval (6).

On July 8th, they had their annual outing, leaving at 7.30 a.m., and rang at Teignmouth East (8), Exminster (8), Withycombe Raleigh (8), Littleham (8), Ottery St. Mary (8), Sidmouth (8), Sidbury (8) and Honiton (6). Their first tour was a half-day, and took place on May 13th, when they again kept to Devon.

When ringing was resumed after the war a very mixed gathering assembled at Emmanuel and included two or three pre-war Emmanuel ringers, two or three who had previously rung at Charles, where the beautiful ring of ten was destroyed by enemy action, two or three others who had not rung for years, or had come to Plymouth to live during the war.

From this assembly the foundation of the present band at Emmanuel was formed, but it was a ship without a rudder, the captain of Emmanuel ringers having died during the war. Mr. Tom Myers, of St. Andrew's, was appointed temporary leader with Mr. J. Simms (like the writer, formerly of Charles) elected deputy leader. Much time was spent in training beginners. They had much assistance in those days from fellow-ringers from various parts of the country serving in one or other of H.M. Forces, and one young man in H.M. Navy rang his first quarter peal of Grandshire Doubles (4.6.8 covering) before being demobilised in 1946.

The band grew and became stable, and in 1945 Mr. Simms was elected captain, with Mr. W. Hatch vice-captain, and Mr. R. Bennett, an old Emmanuel ringer, hon. secretary and treasurer. They have at all times received and still receive great assistance from Mr. Myers.

They are always well represented at meetings of the Devonshire Guild of Ringers, and since 1943 have visited and rung as a band at 73 towers. A visitors book was inaugurated in October, 1946, since when they have welcomed into the belfry 230 ringers from all parts of the country. At the top of each page of the visitors book is written 'A hearty welcome is extended to all visiting ringers.' Will any ringer visiting Plymouth please note.

Ringings take place twice each Sunday, with Thursday the practice night, and during the winter months a 'tied' practice is held on Mondays.

At the present time there are 16 ringers, including five girls under the age of 18, four of whom have received their Guild certificates.

THIS DEBENHAM BUSINESS

Journalistic fantasy had its full sway over the record length attempt at Debenham. The harrowing picture presented in one of the national Sunday newspapers that 'after several hours' ringing the tenor bell began to "fade" and finally became silent' has caused a degree of amusement among ringers. But to a gullible public this fancy sub-editorial writing creates the wrong impression of what happens. There were sufficient experienced ringers at Debenham to give visiting journalists full information. The facts were available and 'The East Anglian Daily Times' of the following Monday gave an accurate and interesting account of the attempt, which put everything in its proper perspective.

That talented writer on Suffolk dialect and matters, X.Y.Z., in his column, 'Round About Ipswich,' makes the record length attempt his main theme in 'The Suffolk Chronicle and Mercury.' Here are some of his observations:—

That's a very bad sign, such as an inquest or a weddin', when a brace of reporters is seen in the Street at Deb-num. And when a covey of 'em comes in over-night and photographers are creepin' around at seven in the mornin' with headlights on their cameras you bet somethin' pretty dreadful's goin' to happen.

And you're right. Sat'day was the time chosen by eight bellringers to break Bob Major's record of 17,000 and a bit made at South Wigston 44 years ago. Though many former inhabitants of that Leicestershire village no longer have headaches from income tax, church bells or the occasional night out, we who live in the shadow of church towers must hold them in regard for their stoical endurance of 17,014 changes of Double Norwich, even if it's one of the more joyful peals.

Anyhow, the reporters, photographers, ringers and the Bor Dearvud, who'd motored overnight from his seat in Cheshire to enjoy 14 or 15 hours of continuous bellringin', milled around the entrance to the ringers' caboose at seven in the mornin'.

Inside there're eight ropes with nooses at the ends, danglein' through holes in the roof—one apiece for the ringers who'd each eaten a hearty breakfast. And very sensible, too, seein' that they're hopin' to fast until nearly midnight. I hear of one ringer who started with four eggs, followed 'em up with a nice bit of fat and lean, and then had his ornery breakfast.

Anyhow, there's an old English tradition that nooses and hearty breakfasts go together. So the ringers sling the nooses of their ropes round their arms and face F8 fearlessly—the lenses of the Press cameras.

Ever had your photo taken at half after seven in the mornin' when you look as awful as you feel, and know it'll be starin' back at you, bags under the eyes an' all from a Sunday newspaper or Monday's at the latest?

Funny how I know about it, not bein' there at that hour, but the Press then goes for a shave and breakfast, there bein' little else to do in Deb-num before openin' time. About elevenses numerous strangers appear, cock their lugs at the bells, and gather round in little knots. Let's listen to the conversation piece of two experts who're leanin' on the churchyard wall.

Nice bit of ringin'?

Ah.

What time they start?

Five to eight.

Nice bit of ringin'?

Ah.

So informative and unanimous! The Bor Dearvud hasn't the heart to tell 'em there've been a false start and that the ringers are now back in the peal to where they were about five past nine. . . .

It's now become known that I ventured into Deb-num on Sat'day with a roll of lug wool, and was visible in the churchyard, a cafe and another public place. Certain ringers have therefore debited the tenor's tummy to me as a hostile influence—pretty much like the night I upset the spirits at the seance. Told me then I wasn't co-operative—so I gave 'em the share number in the Ipswich Society to disprove it.

But it's a pretty hostile influence that'll penetrate the flints of the Deb-num church tower, behind which the Eight could have defied a siege if only they'd had some grub. Besides, Deb-num didn't seem to object. Bless you, folks livin' within 40 or 50 yards of the tower had their windows wide open—so they shouldn't miss a note.

At the risk of again bein' told of a peculiarity of the magpies, I'm still wondering why eight grown men travel many miles for the sole purpose of makin' a longer din than eight other men made half a century ago—when there was less to amuse 'em. Does anyone really care how many Bob Majors are rung in our day, when science has given us pneumatic drills, motor horns, next door's wireless and Meteor jets? If that's not enough an enterprisin' chap can find eight-penn'orth of Wurlitzer organ or a bob hop to a six-piece jazzery.

As a bright young reporter says to me on Sat'day, 'this ringin' is all very wonderful and no doubt very clever; but to me it's just daft.' Monday mornin' a ringer says pretty much the same after he's read in a newspaper how the collapsed tenor man's carried out of the tower by his seven companions. For there ain't all that of Pat Cannon for seven blokes to get a holt.

Readers will agree that X.Y.Z. has a very shrewd insight into those foibles that go into a ringer's character. Because an individual is able to swim, it does not follow that his ambition lies in swimming the Channel. It is the same with the ordinary ringer. In 99 cases out of 100 there would be a blank refusal if the chance came the ringer's way to stand in a record length, and the majority would agree with the bright young reporter, 'It's just daft.' But, then, there are a lot of daft things in the world such as standing at the wicket in the broiling sun and making a couple of centuries at cricket, swimming the Channel, driving a golf ball farther than anyone else and so on. These unusual happenings make news, and the two ladies appointed by the Central Council to compile these record lengths in change ringing for posterity probably had a tinge of excitement at the prospect of adding Debenham, October 21st, 1950, to their list. But it was not to be!

An attempt for a peal of Stedman Triples at Bourn, Cambridgeshire, on October 28th, came to an abrupt finish when a good-size piece of plaster fell from the wall and struck
Miss Dunnington on the head and shoulder.
After a brief respite, she pluckily decided to carry on, but it was too late to start a peal.
A quarter of Stedman was rung.

We understand that the contract for recasting Evesham bells has been placed with Messrs. John Taylor and Co. It is proposed to augment them to 12 with a tenor of about 36 cwt.

The ring of eight bells at Bengoe, Herts, is to be recast by Messrs. John Taylor and Company, who hope to commence work in the summer of 1951.

We received this week a quarter peal rung in honour of the christening of Queen Anne.
There seems to be something wrong with the old adage, 'Queen Anne is dead.'

Mr. P. Amos has taken over the leadership of Weston Favell tower. 'Twenty years ago,' he writes, 'this tower had the best five bell band in Northants. It got down to not a solitary ringer. Within three months I have had seven recruits come forward.'

Birthdays of members of the Piddlehinton, Dorset, band come all in a heap. To celebrate four, Betty Allen (21), Doris Walden (12), Ivan Read (15) and Norman Davis (13), a quarter peal was attempted but proved elusive.
We shall want a peal, Piddlehinton, next year.

Mr. John Bass, veteran ringer of Wollaston, Stourbridge, was returning home from work on the evening of November 2nd when he was knocked down by a motor-cycle combination and sustained abrasions and bruises. He has been ordered by his doctor to rest. We all hope that he will have a speedy recovery.

To prove that they had not one-track minds, a darts match took place at St. Albans between the Western and St. Albans districts of the Herts County Association. We do not propose to feature darts (except Cupid's), but, as a matter of interest, the visitors won.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The Treasury have made an order, operative from October 16th, 1950, that bells of a kind suitable for installation in a campanile or belfry, and parts thereof and accessories thereto (including playing mechanism), are exempt from purchase tax.

The peal of Minor at All Saints', Parramatta, N.S.W., was conducted by Mr. T. W.
Goodyer and not Mr. R. W. Ferris, as stated in our issue of September 8th.

With a peal of Cambridge Surprise Minor at Wanstead, Essex, Mr. F. W. Housden has completed the sequence of Cambridge from Minor to Maximus.

The peal at Melbourne, Derbyshire, on October 28th, was rung at the request of the Vicar (Lt.-Col. The Rev. R. E. Morris, D.S.O.), to enable two local ringers, Miss Olive Smith and Mr. G. Tivey, to ring their first peal.

Mr. A. R. Botting, of Ashfield, N.S.W., rang in 720 Plain Bob Minor when Buckland, Surrey, bells were augmented to six on October 14th, 1893. The anniversary was remembered on October 13th last at Turramurra, N.S.W., when he participated in 720 Plain Bob Minor.
Other English ringers taking part were C. Parr (Ilfracombe) and W. Smith (Melton Mowbray).
Their Turramurra colleagues were J. Rainsford,
K. Stacey and L. Butcher.

As a tribute to the memory of his wife, who died recently, and to his aunt (Mrs. Martin), Mr. E. C. Pearson, of Banbury, rang in a family quarter peal of Plain Bob Minor at Gestingthorpe, Essex, on October 22nd. The band included Mr. Pearson's two sons and two cousins and an old school friend, and stood as follows: E. C. Pearson 1, R. G. Martin 2, O.
E. Broyd (conductor) 3, A. C. Ripplingale 4,
C. H. Pearson (first in method) 5, E. E.
Pearson 6.

Guild of Devonshire Ringers

MID-DEVON BRANCH AT WOLBOROUGH

The Mid-Devon branch held a quarterly meeting at Wolborough Parish Church, Newton Abbot, on October 28th, when there was a good attendance.

Ringing commenced about 3 p.m., and included touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Plain Bob Major, as well as rounds for the less experienced ringers.

A short service was conducted by the Rev. N. F. D. Coleridge (Assistant Priest) who is a member of the Guild.

After tea, the usual business meeting followed with Mr. J. E. Lilley in the chair. He extended a welcome to the Rev. Coleridge and the visitors from other branches. The chairman expressed satisfaction at the settlement which had been reached regarding the future of Kingsleighton bells, where difficulty had been experienced through visiting teams altering the ropes, against the instructions of the church authorities. Thanks were accorded to Mr. A. H. Birley for his help in the matter. Arising out of a letter from the B.B.C. regarding the broadcasting of bells, the secretary was requested to write them further on the matter.

One associate member from Dartington was elected, and the resignation of one honorary member was received.

It was agreed to hold the following meetings in 1951 (subject to the necessary permission): Paignton, February 3rd; Littlehempston with Totnes, April 21st; Joint meeting with the South-West Branch, Diptford and North Huish, June 23rd; Dartmouth, July 21st; Branch Outing, August 25th; St. James, Teignmouth, September 15th; Harberton, near Totnes, October 25th; and Brixham, November 24th.

Discussions took place regarding ringing facilities at Wolborough and St. Michael's, East Teignmouth, and on the question of a Ringing Festival in Exeter in connection with the Festival of Britain.

The usual votes of thanks concluded the meeting, and the visitors returned to the tower for further ringing, this being followed by a visit to East Oggwell, where a light ring of five bells was found to be in good going order.

EXETER BRANCH AT ALPHINGTON

A meeting of the Exeter Branch was held at Alphington and attended by members of most of the branch bands, by other Guild members and by ringers from adjoining counties of Somerset and Dorset.

At the service in the Parish Church, Preb. B. C. Bennett (hon. member) officiated. Mr. A. Brewer was the organist and over fifty ringers and friends attended.

No ringing was possible at Alphington after tea owing to the bells being used by another gathering of ringers. The hon. secretary, however, had arranged for use of those at Exminster (8), Ide (6) and St. Thomas', Exeter (8).

Mr. E. J. Biffin, the genial Ringing Master, during the afternoon at Alphington and in the evening at St. Thomas', was able to manage for all who wished to indulge in various touches and rounds. Mr. T. Bartlett presided at the business meeting following the tea.

St. Thomas', Exeter, on December 16th, was chosen for the annual meeting of the branch.

New Record Length

21,600 BRISTOL SURPRISE MAJOR.

The Cheshire Diocesan Guild last Saturday established a new record length in the art of change-ringing by successfully accomplishing the peal of 21,600 changes of Bristol Surprise Major. This is the longest length ever rung by one set of ringers.

Announcing this great achievement, Mr. John Worth, of Macclesfield, writes that the peal was successful. 'We went into changes at 7.56 a.m. and a good peal was completed at 8.54 p.m.'

The ringers were Peter Laffin 1, Wilfred Stevenson 2, Henry O. Baker 3, John E. Bibby 4, C. Kenneth Lewis 5, Walter Allman 6, Fred Dunkerley 7, John Baker tenor.

We hope to publish a full report of this outstanding performance in our next issue.

Dear Sir.—Please allow me, through your columns, to congratulate Mr. J. Worth and his band on successfully ringing the record length of 21,600 Bristol Surprise Major. This assuredly constitutes a dual record, in that it is a test of both physical and mental endurance and in this great achievement not only has ringing history been made, but those taking part have indelibly inscribed their names on the scroll of ringing fame. More power to their elbows, and onward to fresh conquests!—Yours faithfully

L. W. G. MORRIS.

Heaton, Bradford.

The president (Preb. E. V. Cox) handed certificates to four members of Thorverton band, viz., Mrs. A. Langabeer, Messrs. F. Copp, F. Gilpin and J. Rashley; to Miss Mariella Mundy (St. Thomas') and Mr. S. Sharland (Newton St. Cyres).

The sympathy of the meeting was extended to Mr. C. Glass and Mr. W. J. Biffin, who have both been indisposed of late.

Preb. Bennett, replying to the vote of thanks, welcomed the ringers to Alphington and commended the art of change-ringing as the highest form of bell-ringing.

A number of very well-struck touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob Minor and Major were brought round, whilst time was given for rounds.

Kent County Association

ROCHESTER DISTRICT

All the towers in the district, with the exception of Gravesend, Swanscombe, Meopham, Minster, Sheppey and Hoo, were represented at the annual meeting of the District at Rochester on October 21st. The general secretary (Mr. G. H. Spice) and the treasurer (Mr. F. N. Mitchell) were also present. The Cathedral bells were rung and most of those present attended evensong.

The Dean of Rochester and his wife joined the ringers at tea and the Dean presided at the business meeting. In welcoming the company to Rochester, the Dean expressed his thanks to the Cathedral band for their regular Sunday ringing.

Mr. B. W. May (district secretary), in his annual report, stated that three more towers in the District had joined the Association—Meopham, Milton Regis and Stockbury, and that membership had increased by 67 during the year, bringing the total to 213. This is the first time that the District had passed the 200 mark. The total was further increased when eight new members of the Rodmersham Band were elected to be members.

The district secretary and the two district representatives were re-elected to office, and thanked for their past services.

A letter from the Lord Bishop of Rochester, asking for the feeling of the members towards a letter he had received from the Senior Chaplain of Butlin's Holiday Camps, called forth some very caustic remarks.

In this letter, the Chaplain deplored that the art of campanology was dying out owing, he thought, to the lack of support from the younger generation, and he made a tentative suggestion, already approved by Butlin's Organisation, that ringing competitions be held throughout the Holiday Camps during May and June next year, with the finals later in the year at Skegness, the prizes suggested being a silver cup and £50 for the winners and £30 and £20 respectively for the runners-up.

The meeting was wholehearted in its disapproval of the suggested competition, and also of any suggestion that campanology was a dying art.

After a brief discussion on ringing for the forthcoming Festival of Britain, the meeting closed with congratulations all round on the very healthy state of the District and the happy atmosphere among its ringers.

THE NEWLAND PEAL

Dear Sir,—I wish to thank Mr. A. E. Austin, of Newmarket, and Mr. J. Webb, of Ross-on-Wye, re the peal at Newland, Gloucestershire, on October 7th, 1950, for the correction of the date of last peal and weight of tenor. It was from one of the local ringers that I had the information, which I thought would be correct.

—Yours faithfully,
Gloucester.

HORNCHURCH, ESSEX.—On Oct. 8th, 1,280 Double Norwich Court Bob Major: C. E. Wright 1, A. J. Salisbury 2, H. Worboys 3, D. W. Beard 4, H. Long 5, S. Penfold 6, T. East 7, F. V. Gant (cond.) 8. First in method for ringers of 2, 3, 6 and 7.

DEDICATIONS

MELDRETH, CAMBS

The new memorial bell at Meldreth Parish Church, Cambs, was dedicated on October 21st by the Ven. H. E. Kirkpatrick, Archdeacon of Ely. The bell, which weighs 4 cwt. 2 qr. 27 lb., is inscribed 'Honour the Fallen,' and is to the memory of men of Meldreth who died in the two world wars. Mr. A. A. Hughes, of the Whitechapel Foundry, who executed the work, was present.

Ringers from Cambridge, Ely, Sawston, Fulbourn, Duxford, Melbourn and Cambridge University Guild attended. After the ceremony the visitors were entertained to tea by the Parochial Church Council. Various methods were rung from Plain Bob to Cambridge and London Surprise. All ringers agreed that the tone and go of the bells was excellent.

Meldreth has a young and enthusiastic band who are already ringing the six bells for all services.

HOLFORD, SOMERSET

On Sunday, October 29th, the Lord Bishop of Bath and Wells, who was visiting the Church of the Blessed Virgin Mary at Holford to preach at the Sung Eucharist, consecrated two new bells. Of these, the smaller (4 cwt.) is inscribed 'MCML. H.A.B. STE. IOH. BAPT. ORA.' and the larger: 'MCML. AVE GRA. PLE. ORA PRO NOBIS.'

The following details of the older bells are given by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank:

Tenor: 7½ cwt., cast, or rather recast in 1640, probably by William Purdue of Bristol. Inscription: A AR HW P Ano Do Mi Ni 1640.

2nd: Weight 6 cwt., cast at the beginning of the 16th century by Thomas Geffries of Bristol. Inscription: Sancta Anna T.G.

Treble: Weight 5½ cwt., cast about 1550 by Roger Semson of Ash Priors, Somerset. Inscription: Sancte Reter (Peter) Pavle RS

The bell frame is a fine example of 17th century construction and is being retained. The old bells have been retuned and will soon be rehung together with the new ones.

There is great enthusiasm among the ringers and several men and boys are anxious to learn. Previously, with only three bells, change-ringing has been impossible; but we hope that in due course, and with hard work, we shall be able to acquit ourselves creditably.

E. R. S.

STOKE-ON-TRENT RINGERS AT MEMORIAL DEDICATION.

On Sunday, October 22nd, a quarter peal, 1,280 changes of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung at St. Peter's Church, Broughton, Staffs, on the occasion of the unveiling of a tablet to the memory of Philip Roderick, youngest son of Mrs. J. Hall. Stoke Parish Church ringers were invited to ring, as Kent Treble Bob had been specially asked for, and the local band is not yet quite competent in Major ringing.

The tablet reads 'To the dear and loved memory of Philip Roderick, Lt., R.N. Fleet Air Arm, H.M.S. Argus, 14th June, 1942, killed in action protecting convoy to Malta. Twice mentioned in despatches'

The service was conducted by Bishop of Lichfield and the Rector (the Rev. R. I. N. Edwards).

The late Mr. J. Hall, of Longford Hall, Newport, Salop, was a most generous benefactor to St. Peter's Church, in providing two new trebles and a new frame complete with fittings.

The ringers were Miss M. Rigby 1, F. E. Wilshaw 2, Miss C. M. Trist 3, A. H. Lawton 4, R. Barlow 5, A. Peake 6, N. R. Holland (conductor) 7, F. W. Grocott 8. The ringers were afterwards entertained to tea, kindly provided by Mrs. J. Hall, in the Parish Hall, and also conveyed back home by taxi, as Sunday bus service on this route is non-existent.

OBITUARY

MR. H. CHANDLER

The funeral service for Mr. Henry Chandler, of Heston, whose death was reported in 'The Ringing World' on October 20th, was held in Heston Parish Church on October 10th, prior to cremation at Mortlake. The Vicar (Preb. F. W. Ferrars) officiated and, in an address, spoke highly of the loyalty and love Mr. Chandler had for the church he had served in his capacity as bellringer for the past 60 years.

The bells were rung fully muffled, both before and after the service.

In the evening, Stedman Triples was rung half-muffled. Those taking part were F. Blondell 1, W. W. Webb 2, W. T. Godfrey 3, K. Gristwood 4, M. W. Norman 5, E. R. Gladman 6, W. A. Lewis (conductor) 7, W. J. Winter 8.

MR. J. NOBES

The Oxford Diocesan Guild has suffered the loss of a most loyal member through the death of Mr. John Nobes, of Stevenston, Berks. He had been ill for some time and finally went to stay with his daughter at Mursley, Bucks, where his death occurred on St. Luke's Day, October 18th.

Mr. Nobes had been a member of the Oxford Diocesan Guild for nearly 50 years and was for many years the captain of the band at Stevenston. He was also the vergier there and a member of the choir. As the Vicar of Stevenston said at the funeral, 'It is impossible to imagine Stevenston Church without him.'

Although he was not a prolific peal ringer by modern standards, yet Mr. Nobes had rung peals ranging from Doubles to Royal. He will be remembered in the North Berks area chiefly for his unflinching loyalty to the Oxford Guild, his great kindness of heart, his unselfishness and cheerful spirit, his loyalty to his church and his unflinching honesty in all things. To the writer he will be always remembered as one of those who gave unselfishly both of his time and energy in helping to teach new bands. Of him truly can it be said 'his work liveth after him.'

The funeral service was conducted by the Vicar of Stevenston (the Rev. G. W. Bowker) at Stevenston Parish Church on October 21st. The service was choral and included his favourite hymn 'Abide with me' and the Nunc Dimittis.

After the interment, Grandsire Doubles was rung on the Guild handbells by Miss M. R. Cross 1-2, A. E. Lock 3-4, Mrs. A. E. Lock 5-6. The congregation included ringers from Wantage, the Hendreds, Cholsey, Sunningwell and Drayton, while the Oxford Guild was represented by the librarian, Miss M. R. Cross, and the North Berks Branch by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lock.

The bells were rung half-muffled after the service by both the visitors and the local ringers. The latter also rang again during the evening while a quarter peal of Bob Doubles was rung at Radley by some of those whom Mr. Nobes had helped to teach during the past 18 months.

TRIBUTE TO LEICESTERSHIRE ORGANIST

In the spring of 1888, Miss Frances Mary Hunt started to play the organ at St. Mary's, Broughton Astley, Leics., and continued voluntarily and unpaid until September 10th last, when she collapsed in church after playing for the morning service. She died 14 days later at the age of 83. During her over 62 years of service it is believed she was only absent from about three services.

The appreciation of the village was expressed on October 15th, when 1,260 Grandsire Doubles was rung for the memorial service by C. E. Carr (cond.) 1, W. R. Drury 2, J. A. Flint 3, A. J. Timson 4, A. E. Bodycote 5, T. C. Scarborough 6. Afterwards the bells were 'fired' as a thanksgiving for a long life devoted to the service of the Church.

History is made at Rugby

St. Andrew's Church, Rugby, is one of the few in England to possess both a tower and a tower with spire separately. More than that, however, it is the only one to possess two distinct rings of bells. Several cathedrals have bells in more than one tower, but none have more than one peal or ring. The original small church of St. Andrew, Rugby, had a West tower containing a ring of five by Joseph Smith, of Edgbaston, erected in 1711 with a tenor 9 cwt. 19 lb. in G. When the church was enlarged some 70 years ago the old church was incorporated in the building, the nave becoming a side aisle. A new massive tower with spire was erected and a ring of eight bells placed therein by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank in 1895, with a tenor 24 cwt. 3 qr. 8 lb. in D. On these bells many peals have been rung, but now they are practically unringable, except for short touches only.

The old tower with its ring of five remains, thus giving Rugby the distinction of being the only church with two complete sets of bells. No known peal had been rung on these bells until Monday, October 30th, when they were rung muffled to the memory of the Lord Bishop of Truro—Dr. J. W. Hunkin—who died suddenly on the 28th. Dr. Hunkin was Rector of Rugby from 1927 till his elevation in 1935. The conductor of the peal, Ernest Morris, of St. Margaret's, Leicester, thus becomes the first ringer ever to have rung full peals of 5,000 on two rings of bells in two separate towers in one church. He took part in the last peal in the new tower—Cambridge Surprise Major, in 1937.

PETERBOROUGH DIOCESAN GUILD WELLINGBOROUGH BRANCH.

A company of 78 ringers and friends attended the meeting of the Wellingborough branch at the 13th century parish church of Irchester on October 28th. The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. P. J. Bryant) who, in his address, urged the members to regard their ringing with reverence. A collection for the Bell Restoration Fund amounted to £1 6s.

After tea, served by church workers in the school, the Vicar presided over the business in the absence of the branch president (the Rev. J. C. R. Creagh Coen). Higham Ferrers was selected for the annual meeting in January.

Mrs. O. W. Partridge received a Guild certificate for ringing her first peal on a working bell and the general secretary (Mr. R. Noon) announced that Guild badges were again available. A copy of 'The Bells of Preston Deanery' was presented to the branch by the author, Mr. P. Amos.

Thanks were expressed to all who had made the meeting a success, by Mr. W. Callis, seconded by Mr. J. King. After the meeting a course of Grandsire Caters was rung on handbells by J. Skerritt and A. Bigley (Irthlingborough), G. Care and R. Noon (Brafeld) and J. King (Wellingborough).

BATH AND WELLS ASSOCIATION CHEW DEANERY BRANCH.

A quarterly meeting of the above branch was held at St. Andrew's Church, Chew Magna, on October 21st.

Ringing on the heavy octave there preceded a short service, which was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. C. M. Luxmoore-Ball.

Some 27 members sat down to an excellent tea, after which the Vicar took the chair at the business meeting. It was decided, subject to permission, that the November practice meeting should be held at Clapton-in-Gordano and the annual meeting in December. One new member from Winford was elected.

After the meeting a return was made to the tower, where ringing, which ranged from Grandsire Triples to Cambridge and Yorkshire Surprise Major, was under the supervision of the Ringing Master, Mr. H. W. Knight.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CIRCULATING RELIABLE INFORMATION

Dear Sir,—I think you will agree that after the nation-wide publicity of the long peal attempt at Debenham in the leading Sunday newspapers, giving false facts and impressions of the performance, it is not at all surprising that someone has been tempted to 'air their view' through the medium of another paper. I refer, of course, to the misstatement that 'after several hours' ringing, etc., the tenor bell began to "fade" and finally became silent,' and afterwards of finding the ringer in question 'slumped' in a chair.

Surely if ringing events are to be given publication outside our own 'Ringing World,' it is up to those responsible to see that the reporters concerned are given true and reliable information, and not, as is generally the case, a hash up of misconstrued statements which does no credit to those taking part and creates a most undesirable impression on the public.—Yours faithfully,

J. FREDERICK MILNER, Ringing Master,
Southwell Minster.

Accompanying the letter is the following verse by 'Lucio' that appeared in 'The Manchester Guardian' of October 25th, 1950.

RING OUT, MILD BELLS.

Heavens above! he deserved to be Extremely and most unwell;
His was a task of bigotry
And common lust to excel.
With the human race it has its place
Among ancient traps and gins,
But Pride is nowhere a sign of grace
In the various deadly sins.
'No more is Sloth,' you may make reply,
But the answer will not do;
Pride is a challenge to heavens high
But Sloth concerns (mostly) you.
You may test your strength to its utmost length,
O vain and collegiate brothers,
But a ghastly row is not, nohow,
A gesture of peace to others.

But perhaps I'm wrong in this random song
Against rash East Anglian ragers;
They may have wisely damped the gong
Of their Double Norwich Bob Majors.
If you must by bell raise merry hell
But would leave your neighbours untroubled,
Twere a gracious act as a matter of fact
To keep your chimes well muffled.

A REMEMBRANCE

Dear Sir,—What a lovely gesture (presumably yours) it was to include the photograph of Mr. Goldsmith in the report of the Guildford Guild annual dinner.

It was a treat to once again see his amiable and smiling features.

I wonder if I dare suggest that the same photograph be printed each year, on the anniversary of his death, for most assuredly, as Mr. Shepherd said, Mr. Goldsmith did more for the art of the practical ringer than any other man, and I think we ought to do everything possible to retain his memory.—Yours truly,

ROBERT WHITTINGTON.

Cranleigh.

FOLKESTONE BELLS BROADCAST

Dear Sir,—May I tender thanks through your columns, on behalf of the Folkestone ringers, to Mr. Hoggood, Mr. F. E. Dukes and to the many others who have offered congratulations on a successful broadcast?

We realise, of course, that the ringing of a short touch of Grandsire Triples for service is a very small matter. Service ringing is carried out every Sunday by more skilful ringers and in more intricate methods than we could attempt. But we are fortunate in having a

THE CLOCK TOWER, MORPETH.

The first part of this ancient edifice was built in 1309 and the top part to receive the six bells in 1705 presented by Major-Gen. Sir Edmond Main, who was Governor of Berwick and M.P. for Morpeth. Two trebles were added about 1805 when Morpeth appointed its first Mayor.

The eight bells have been sent to Messrs. John Taylor's foundry and are being recast. It is hoped to have the bells back and ringing for the Festival of Britain. The Durham and Newcastle Association have advised Morpeth Corporation in the restoration work, and they are looking forward to the time when this secular tower will again be in commission.

grand ring of bells, and for this broadcast seem to have been allowed more time on the air than is usual before a service.

Mr. Dukes heard what he describes as 'one or two trips.' We do not know how he would define a 'trip,' but surely most ringers understand by this term the clashing of two or more bells and consequently the breaking of the rhythm of the touch. As far as we could hear, this did not happen.

Anyhow, we did our little bit as well as we could, and we are glad that the many ringers whom we have been privileged to welcome as visitors, and those whom we look forward to seeing in the future, were able to hear Folkestone bells so well on the air.—Yours faithfully,

JOHN WILLIS
(for Felkestone band).

By-laws and Amplified Bells

Dear Sir,—Your leading article on the use of amplified recordings in lieu of church bells prompts me to suggest that this practice is illegal.

'The Evening Standard' last September reported a ban on the bells of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Chelsea, 'because they were not real bells.' The police told the incumbent that 'a Westminster by-law prohibits the playing of recorded bells.'

On looking at the local by-laws here, in Stratford-on-Avon, I discover that 'No person shall in, or in connection with, any shop, business premises, or other place which adjoins any street or public place, and to which the public are admitted, operate or cause or suffer to be operated, any wireless loudspeaker or gramophone in such a manner as to cause annoyance to, or disturbance of, occupants or inmates of any premises, or passengers.' A similar by-law is probably to be found in most towns.

There are people who might object to church bells on similar grounds. But the local by-law relating to 'any unusual or noisy instrument' (a fair description of bells and their ringers) makes an exception in the case of 'properly-conducted religious services, except where the request to desist is made on the ground of serious illness.'—Yours faithfully,

R. B. MEADOWS.
Stratford-on-Avon.

THE NATURE OF THE UNIVERSE

Dear Sir,—The interesting and imaginative article inspired by Professor Hoyle's broadcast lectures has evoked much controversy in your columns, but it is a curious fact that not one of your correspondents appears to have noted that the end of our planetary system envisaged by Hoyle as the result of modern research was precisely predicted in Holy Scripture some 19 centuries ago. In II. Peter iii, 12, it is written: 'The heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat.'—Yours faithfully,

F. LL. EDWARDS.

Kington Magna.

Dear Sir,—Your correspondents seem confused concerning what science tells us about the nature of the universe and what the Bible tells us. When we say that the writers of Genesis were inspired, we do not mean that their inspiration conveys infallible information on questions of science and history. God respects personality and gives to each age only such truth as it can appreciate; so Mr. Niblett's statement that the Creation narrative in Genesis is a true account needs amplifying. Of course it is not true historically, but it contains profound religious truth. There are, as he says, two narratives; the second is the earlier one. The writer is using an ancient Babylonian theme and embodies in it his own religious beliefs on the relations between God and man derived from the eighth century prophets. A writer of the 5th century priestly school has prefixed the earlier narrative containing ideas differing slightly in emphasis. Perhaps, compared to Mr. Barron, these writers were semi-literate peasants, but they had a profound insight as to God's dealings with man; that is what we mean by saying they were inspired. Science and history can tell us how man came to exist, but they cannot tell us why.

Mr. Barron thinks Genesis is a curiosity only, and Mr. Hunt thinks it should be believed literally, word for word. Many people would agree with both; that is because they have not discovered what the writers of Genesis are really trying to say about the relations between God and man, and have not sifted the writers' beliefs from the ancient dress in which they are clothed. Your correspondents may find S. H. Hooke's 'In the Beginning' of value.

My conclusion is that all who apply their intellects to change-ringing should apply them equally to the study of the Bible with the help of a good commentary and that they are perfectly free to apply them to Hoyle if they so wish.—Yours faithfully, ERIC B. WOOD.

Cuddesdon College, Oxford.

Dear Sir,—While realising that the controversy re your leading article, 'The Nature of the Universe,' is not directly concerned with ringing, I hope you will be kind enough to find space for me to have the lady's privilege of the last word, especially as Mr. Niblett infers that I am 'out of fashion'—a deadly insult to a woman!

Wellhausen's books, published in German in the 1890's, I have not read, but in so far as the theories I put forward may be his originally, they are also the views of such scholars as T. H. Robinson and W. O. F. Oesterly who are by no means discredited as Biblical authorities.

Mr. Niblett's contention that higher criticism has been confuted by archaeology is best answered by a quotation by Dr. Blunt, the Bishop of Bradford's introduction to the archaeological book, 'Bible and Spade,' by Caiger:—

'It is unfortunate that the recent discoveries in Palestine, which have shed so interesting a light on the earlier history of the Hebrew invasion, have at times been misused in the interests of an unscholarly prejudice against the work of those who are vaguely called the higher critics, or even the so-called 'higher critics,' and we have been treated to such statements as 'that archaeology has disproved the higher criticism.'

It is a serious mistake thus to set archaeology and criticism against one another. Both are needed as helps to understand the Bible story. Without higher criticism, Old Testament history would still largely be chaos. Criticism has introduced order and development into the story. Archaeology does not disprove criticism: it only contributes additional data for the problems which criticism has to solve.—Yours faithfully,

MADELINE M. CROFT.

ADVERTISEMENT

Sir,—Quite incidentally in the issue of October 5th, 'Traveller' mentions advertising the times of ringing by notices displayed in the church porch for the information of visiting ringers. I am aware that this matter has been raised in correspondence in 'The Ringing World' before, but always, I believe, from the point of view of the visiting ringer, when, as I will endeavour to show, other aspects which appear trivial may well be of much greater consequence.

Following the suggestions given from time to time in these columns and the examples by Aldershot and other progressive towers, a notice detailing the additional times of ringing has been fixed to the campanile door at Chichester Cathedral. It is hoped that visiting ringers will find all the information they need, but more has been attempted.

Such a notice will attract attention, even if only a cursory glance, from far more people than need the information about times of ringing. The notice has, therefore, been worded in English which is intelligent to most people and not in technical abbreviations reminiscent of the shrouded civil and other services which evoke no comprehension from the poor layman but a despairing BATS or N.U.T.S.

The notice has been framed like a picture and screwed to the door, but a space has been left in the bottom right-hand corner, and a slit in the side of the frame enables a card to be slid in behind the glass listing the special occasions during the ensuing month on which the bells are to be rung.

Most ringers from personal experience and most educationalists from concentrated study know that intelligent people who hear bells ringing at unusual times seek to satisfy their curiosity by asking the simple, natural, child-like question, 'Why are the bells ringing?' If a reasonable answer is not forthcoming the chances are that the ringing in question does more harm than good, not only to the Exercise, but, what is far more important, to the church.

Rings of bells were placed in churches by members of the Church as instruments for conveying true messages and, in particular, that truth which the Christian Church exists to establish—the message of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

People know the regular summons of the Christian to his duty of worship on Sundays, they will guess that the bells are re-echoing their national pride and joy when the news is appropriate, and those in the neighbourhood of a church will know the night on which the ringers practise (provided it is regular and this is only one minor reason why it ought to be). It is the odd periods of ringing on Saturday afternoons and at other unusual times which confuse.

Is it not worth the trouble to have a notice on the tower door and possibly also in the parish magazine or local newspaper in terms which the layman can understand and to announce that on such and such a day a meeting of ringers from the district will be held at the parish church to ask God's blessing on their work in a corporate act of worship and to assist each other by practising together, thus drawing attention to an excellent example of co-operation even between churchmen of different denominations which is so vital?

What about peals? Permit me to take two examples from 'The Ringing World' of Oct. 6th quite at random. In neither case do I know anything of the bells or ringers except the details published.

On September 23rd, Stedman Triples at Overseale—rung for the patronal festival. How very worth while! The conductor is to be congratulated on calling his first peal in the method, but the peal was not rung merely for personal reasons. Good ringing like this (a first as conductor in Stedman Triples could hardly have been otherwise) on so appropriate an occasion is action springing from the love of God which is shown by the interest taken in this special festival of his church at Overseale and the forethought given to ringing for it. The person who asks why the bells are ringing will have his attention drawn to something deeper, and even if he doesn't accept the special welcome extended by the church at this festival he may well think on these things.

On the same day at Skipton a peal of Bob Major was rung as a birthday compliment. Consideration now makes me regret that I should have put such a footnote to a peal myself. What would the man in the street think if he were given that as a reason for the ringing? Might he not well be jealous that some people are permitted to ring the church bells for such occasions in their own lives, yet others, more worthy perhaps, cannot? Might he not rightly be indignant that the instruments of God's house are being used for selfish ends? It would surely have been more justifiable to treat this purely as a 'practice peal' calculated to give the four firsts confidence in a uniformly high standard of ringing this method on other occasions. Unfortunately there are other occasions worse than this when there is no reason whatever for ringing apart from the selfish desire of some to out rival others in the number of their ringing performances. This is really far worse than a false touch; it is a false message; and the folly of those who deliver it is as great as that of a person who wrongly sounds a fire alarm.

It is strongly to be recommended not only that regularity in ringing for services and weekly practices be maintained, but also that any deviations from these arrangements should be advertised for the information of the public. This necessitates a finer standard of discretion on the part of tower secretaries and ringing organisers to ensure that the ringing will be justified in the minds of the public. Ample occasions when the bells ought to be rung can be found in connection with the activities of any church, and where more initiative is shown in this direction I know from personal experience that the clergy are more willing to co-operate. Such action will inevitably be of mutual benefit to the Church and the Exercise.—Yours faithfully,

Chichester. PETER R. BLACKMAN.

RECORD LENGTHS: A PROTEST

Dear Sir,—Surely attempts to ring peals of record length such as that held recently relegate the art of bellringing to the level of pole squatting and pie eating contests.

It is easy to imagine the storm of protest which would result were some orchestra to announce that it proposed to play all the works of Beethoven without pause.

I do feel that pulling a bell rope is merely a means towards an end, this being the music, which should, of course, be of such duration that the mind is capable of appreciating it without becoming bored.

This latest attempt only serves to confirm in the mind of the public an opinion which is already held, to wit, that bellringers are an odd, eccentric section of the community whose aim in life is to get locked in a belfry, there to pull willy-nilly on a rope's end until they collapse through sheer exhaustion.—Yours faithfully,

'MUSIC PLEASE'

PEAL WITHDRAWN

Dear Sir,—I wish to withdraw the peal of 5,201 Grandsire Caters, rung 'in hand' on September 8th, 1950, in Bournemouth. The composition, in which the back bells are turned twice in every four courses, has been found to be false.

My apologies to 'The Ringing World' and the other four members of the band.—Yours faithfully, Bournemouth. D. T. MATKIN.

Leeds and District Society

VISIT TO LIVERSEDGE

The October meeting was held at Liversedge on October 28th. The members were somewhat slow in turning up but, once having round the way in to the churchyard, the visitors soon had the bells moving in the true Liversedge style, which has won for the local company many awards in the District contests.

Tea was provided by the local company in the nearby Church Institute and one's eyes were held by the magnificence of the tea tables.

After tea a return was made to the tower for more ringing, which throughout included Bob Major, Little Bob, Kent Treble Bob, Stedman Triples, Double Norwich Court Bob Major, Superlative, Cambridge and London Surprise. Most of the ringing was of a high standard and gave the learners a good lead towards future endeavours.

The business meeting was under the president's control and members attended from Armley, Batley, Bradford, Drighlington, East Ardsley, Guiseley, Headingley (St. Chad's and St. Michael's), Idle, Leeds Parish Church, Liversedge, London, Pudsey, Rothwell, Tadcaster, Wakefield and Woodlesford.

One new member, Mr. B. Sullivan, of Pudsey, was elected.

A vote of thanks to the Vicar, churchwardens and local company for the splendid arrangements throughout the day was proposed by Mr. H. Lofthouse and seconded by Mr. T. Hill. Mr. F. Hodgson replied for the local ringers and said that the meetings at Liversedge were concerted efforts, and if these were enjoyed by the visitors then they were amply repaid.

The next meeting is due to be held at St. Chad's, Headingley, on November 25th.

OPEN MEETING TO TEST WHITBY'S BELLS

An after-rededication open meeting was held at St. Mary's Parish Church, Whitby, Yorkshire, on October 21st. During the short service the Rector talked to the ringers of the history of the church, and he explained how the development of the port of Whitby (once fifth largest in the country) had necessitated the erection of the many galleries to house the growing congregation in what was then the only church in a wide district. About 40 visiting ringers, together with Mr. and Mrs. Shaw Jeffrey, who donated the £2,000 for the renovation of the ring of ten, were entertained to tea.

In a short speech Mr. Shaw Jeffrey—one-time headmaster of Colchester Grammar School—told how Whitby was without any church bell during the 50 years following the dissolution of the Monastery until one was obtained for the Parish Church in 1590. 'But,' he said, 'the bells of the Monastery Church of St. Peter and St. Hilda, which had been sold and were being removed to London by sea were wrecked just outside the harbour and from then on, as on any calm night now in June, one can stand on the east cliff at Whitby and hear them ringing under the sea.'

He went on to say that he and his wife had enjoyed the adventure of paying for the re-casting and rehanging of the bells and he was glad that the ringers found it had turned out all right. A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. R. Sutton, Scarborough, and seconded by Mr. Sellers, Beverley.

As the visitors made their way back up the 199 steps to the church to continue their enjoyment of the recently completed work of Messrs. John Taylor and Co., several of them have recalled Mr. Shaw Jeffrey's little story mixing history and lore and legend and wondered if the old bells of the monastery might be salvaged from the North Sea.

Stedman Caters in Winter

A long conductor with a short manner had fixed the date many weeks ago. His last words, 'Start three o'clock sharp,' still sounded in my mind, and now I was on my way. Normally I enjoyed our two or three visits to this delightful ten each year, and especially the Major's hospitality after. This particular January Saturday, however, I was not so happy. Two days before a sudden fierce winter had arrived, and now I had in the front of my mind the fifty odd miles I must do, over snow and ice, in my light car, before the warm comfort of home would close the day.

Three o'clock start. Well, we all know what that means, but half an hour after that time the music of Stedman Caters was pushing the thought of my night drive into the background, and had caused an expression of rapture to appear on the face of the L.C. with the S.M. We had often noticed that Stedman, and Stedman only, could bring on that look of ecstasy.

The belfry of this church cannot be locked, so the church door is secured when a peal is attempted. Also there is a hospital near, and an understanding exists that ringing can be stopped, should the doctors wish it, by knocking on the door. About half-way through this particular peal there came a mighty bashing at the church door. Rapture departed from the face of the L.C. with the S.M., and he looked across to the Major. 'Let 'em knock again.' Knock again they certainly did. We stopped. Trying to look sad, I was inwardly exultant. Good, I thought, now I can get along before it's too late and we have more snow. These comfortable thoughts were soon shaken, as, unnoticed, the Major had slipped out to open the door. We suddenly heard a great shout. 'Damn you, man, you've spoilt our peal.' A few of us cautiously looked into the church, and there beheld the Rector, lamb-like before the raging Major. Some words of the Rector's explanation could be heard. '... Didn't want to spoil your peal'... 'only wanted one of you to let me in'... 'my notes.' Black thunder now stared out of the Major's face. '... How on earth could we leave our bells'... 'you know better'... 'here, get your notes and GO.'

The Rector grabbed his notes and left hurriedly, his manner suggesting he was thankful to escape with his life. Before his feet were off the doorstep the door was shut and locked with tremendous emphasis, and the Major returned to the ringing chamber with brow black as thunder. As he crossed the floor we understand he thought one parson, unnamed, had no chance of salvation, but as I was getting ready some word of consolation. I was paralysed to hear the Major say, 'Come on, we'll go for it again.' 'But Major,' I began, 'the time... icy roads... journey...'

No notice was taken of my weak protest. We all took our ropes and began again. After a few courses I looked around. The magic of Stedman had once more cast its spell. On the face of the L.C. with the S.M. was an expression of the highest spiritual quality. The thunder had gone from the Major's face and a look of serene calm was in its place. As far as I could judge, I alone had thoughts of ice and snow to come.

When we came out of the church after the peal, King Winter was the undoubted Lord of the Realm, with the burnished moon as his orb and the canopy of the hard starry sky above. Soon we were enjoying the Major's hospitality—tea, warmth, good fellowship. On my way home, sliding and skidding, I smiled to myself. It was a peal we had worked for, but one more in the bag and with a little something to it that some others hadn't got.

RINGERS' OUTINGS

CHEW DEANERY BRANCH.

On October 7th, several members of the Chew Deanery Branch of the Bath and Wells Association, combined with a party from Longbridge Deverill, Wilts, held a 'tower grabbing' expedition in the Mere district.

Upholding the principles and traditions of the N.U.T.S. (National Union of Tower Snatchers), the first tower, Bourton, was reached 25 minutes late! Here, however, despite a search of feverish intensity, the tower key could not be found and all hopes of ringing had to be abandoned.

The next stop was Zeals, a tower selected mainly for its virtue of filling up vast spaces at the end of tower books! The bells proved to be a good ring of six, cast by Mears in 1876.

A visit to Stourton (where the original Bristol high cross stands while Bristol itself has to make do with a copy) then followed. The church here was originally designed as a fortress and is battlemented, while the box pew, set aside for the Lord of the Manor, possesses its own fireplace. The ring of six bells in the tower 'go' quite well, but several members of the party showed a strange tendency to walk round the tower while ringing, intent on finding their respective 'sallies'!

Tea was followed by ringing on the fine octave at Mere. The tower here also contains an old clock and 'chiming barrel' as well as a modern clock installed in 1947. The party was met here by two of the local ringers, and the only regret was that time did not allow a longer stay.

On again, this time to East Knoyle, where the six bells, rebung in 1933 on ball bearings (tenor 12 cwt. 8 lb.) go the wrong way round.

The heaviest 'ring' of the day, at Semley, was next visited, with the tenor weighing 26 cwt. 12 lb. After some little difficulty some of the larger members of the party were pushed, pulled and otherwise propelled up the ladder and through the hatch into the ringing chamber for a very strenuous half-hour's ringing!

The final tower of the day, Hindon, has a fine little six, cast by A. Rudhall in 1754. It is interesting to note that the tenor here is only $\frac{1}{2}$ cwt. heavier than the treble at Semley!

Sincere thanks are due to Mr. W. Avery for fixing up towers and tea and to the respective incumbents. M. J. H.

SS. PHILIP AND JACOB GUILD, BRISTOL

On October 7th, the above Guild started out by coach for their annual ringing trip, this time into the lovely Cotswold country. Cirencester was the main objective, and on reaching that old world town the twelve bells of the Parish Church of St. John the Baptist were soon set swinging to Stedman Cinques. The sudden death of Mr. W. J. Rawlings, a much respected associate of the Guild, only a few hours prior to the trip, rendered Cambridge Maximus out of the question, but some good Cambridge Royal was rung on the back ten.

After tea, the party walked to Holy Trinity Church, Watermoor, where some magnificent Surprise ringing was indulged in on the fine eight bells, the methods rung being London, Bristol, Cambridge and Aldenham, followed by a well-struck course of Grandsire Caters rung on handbells in the nave of the church.

The party then proceeded to 'Hogsnorton,' where a halt was made for refreshment and some merry handbell music. The thanks of the Guild are due to Mr. F. J. Lewis, of Cirencester, whose willing co-operation contributed very largely to the success of the trip.

IFFLEY, OXON.—On Oct. 1st, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles: M. Harding (first in method) 1, D. Woodley 2, L. Busby (cond.) 3, W. Fern 4, T. Bowles 5, J. Adams 6.

CHATHAM, KENT.

After a lapse of some 25 years, the St. Mary's, Chatham, ringers revived their annual outing and, accompanied by their wives and friends and augmented by a few ringers from neighbouring towers, set out on October 7th for a tower in each of five counties.

A start was made at 7.30 a.m. first to renew acquaintance with George Gilbert at Burnham, Bucks. Light refreshments were very welcome here after the three-hour journey. A wedding prevented any ringing until 11.15 a.m., and the bridal couple were sent off to a touch of Stedman followed by Grandsire, Plain Bob and Double Norwich. The bells did not settle down so well as was hoped, the best effort being the final three leads of Kent. Perhaps the 'go' of the bells was too good. A short run to Windsor and we found Mr. Glass awaiting us at the Parish Church. Here, in addition to other methods, a good touch of Double Norwich was brought home.

At Staines, Middlesex, Mr. Parker welcomed the party. Lunch at the Cinema Cafe was the only occasion during the day that the organiser could allow time for three courses. A good course of Cambridge was brought home at St. Peter's, in addition to touches in other methods. An hour's run brought us to Beddington, Surrey, where Mr. Reece, of Carshalton, was waiting to introduce us to the lovely ring of 10. We soon settled down to a touch of Grandsire Caters, followed by Stedman Caters and Kent and Bob Royal. The next call was Beckenham, Kent, where Mr. Rawlings had tea awaiting us. Another splendid repast was partaken of almost under the tower of St. George's Church and an enjoyable hour's ringing followed. It was much regretted that an old Chatham ringer in the person of Jimmy Bennett (late C.S.M., Royal Marines) should arrive at the tower just too late to have a pull with some of his old cronies. It was a matter of regret that, owing to ill-health, Mr. Fred Richardson, one of the Chatham ringers (who, years ago, was a ringer in the Staines area) was unable to join the party. This was, however, somewhat offset by the presence of Mr. Trevor Cross, who was on embarkation leave from the R.A.F. V. A. J.

SEELY OAK, BIRMINGHAM.

The ringers of St. Mary's, Seely Oak, Birmingham, had their outing on September 30th. They decided on a trip into Oxfordshire and Berkshire, but unfortunately chose a typical English summer day—or was it an autumn day?—anyway, it rained from the moment of starting (7.55 a.m.) to the time we returned (11.30 p.m.). The party was made up of some 17 of our own members and their friends, a total of 26.

The first call was Oxford, where, after having coffee, the bells of St. Ebbe's Church were rung to Grandsire and Stedman Triples. Ringing at the Abbey Church of SS. Peter and Paul, Dorchester, followed, and was much enjoyed. After calling at Henley-on-Thames for lunch, we ultimately arrived at St. John's Church at Windsor, where Grandsire and Stedman Triples were rung.

Our last call was at Old Windsor, some two miles out of Windsor, where tea was arranged followed by a walk along the towpath of the River Thames to Old Windsor Church, where we had the use of the bells for an hour, leaving for home at just after 7 o'clock.

In spite of the rain, everyone voted the trip first class. Whether our Vicar thought much of it when he was roused from his slumbers to let in a member of his household who had forgotten her key—well, I wouldn't know!

ADELAIDE WELCOMES THE ARCH-BISHOP OF CANTERBURY

The bells of Adelaide Cathedral were rung in rounds and Queens to welcome the Archbishop of Canterbury when the train he was travelling in arrived from Perth. His Grace said that that was the first occasion since his enthronement that bells had been rung specially in his honour.

Autographing the record book of an Adelaide ringer, the Archbishop said that he had got as far as learning to control a bell in his student days, but had to give up ringing later.

The Adelaide University Guild held its first annual meeting on October 12th and elected the following officers: President, John West; Master, Philip Cooper; secretary, Catherine Lamphree; treasurer, Judith Hollands.

The Master reported the receipt of a letter from Dr. Hatcher, of the Universities Association, and another of congratulation from Mr. Jack Worrall. The Guild has a membership of 13, most of whom can ring touches of Bob Minor 'in hand.'

Arrangements were made to give instruction in tower bell ringing during the long vacation, from November to March, and it is hoped to raise money for the purchase of a set of hand-bells. The Guild extends its best wishes to similar Guilds in England.

Any ringers contemplating writing South Australia are asked to write to Mr. P. Cooper, 2 Penton Road, Enfield North, Adelaide, S.A.

TWENTY-EIGHT YEAR RECORD BEATEN

FOR more than 28 years the record of 21,363 Stedman Caters, rung at St. Laurence's, Appleton, Berks, has remained unchallenged. This, as we announced last week, was surpassed on November 4th by the peal of Bristol Surprise Major of 21,600 changes rung at Over, Cheshire, in 12 hours and 58 minutes. To Mr. John Worth, of Macclesfield, and his band go the credit of ringing the longest peal by one set of men. And a good peal it was, too, from the accounts that have reached this office. The phrase 'by one set of men' is added because of the performance at Leeds, Kent, on April 7th and 8th, 1761, when relays of men rang the full extent of Plain Bob Major of 40,320 changes. That is, of course, outside the definition of a peal as recognised by the Central Council.

It is appropriate to record the names of the company who rang in the Appleton peal, which was under the auspices of the Oxford Diocesan Guild and the Ancient Society of College Youths. The band was Challis F. Winney treble, George Holifield, jun. 2, William Hibbert 3, Herbert Langdon 4, George Holifield, sen. 5, Henry R. Newton 6, Alfred B. Peck 7, Richard T. Hibbert 8, Richard White 9, Fred White tenor. The conductor of that peal, Herbert Langdon, is still with us, together with a number of his colleagues, including the veteran secretary of the Ancient Society, Mr. A. B. Peck. The performance at Over, however, only lowers one of their records; they still hold the palm for the longest peal of Stedman, Caters and on ten bells, and these performances are not likely to be surpassed in a hurry.

The bells of St. Chad's, Over, have figured in a previous record of 17,280 Kent Treble Bob Major, rung on July 21st, 1923, in ten hours. This peal was conducted by Robert Sperring. The band on that occasion was Robert Sperring treble, George R. Jones 2, John Hayes 3, Harry F. Holding 4, Edward V. Rodenhurst 5, James Swindley 6, Samuel Jones 7, James H. Riding tenor.

To the Cheshire band, plus one from over the border in Lancashire, the aviator, Mr. Fred Dunkerley, the Exercise, through 'The Ringing World,' offers its congratulations.

Peal ringers know what is behind this effort. As Mr. L. W. G. Morris wrote last week: 'This is a test of both physical and mental endurance, and in this great achievement not only has ringing history been made, but those taking part have indelibly inscribed their names on the scroll of ringing fame.'

Somewhat singularly, the performance did not receive the same national publicity as the Debenham attempt, although it received a mention in 'The Times' and other national journals. 'The Irish Times' however, marked the occasion by a second leader. Of course, coming from Ireland and being written by a layman, we naturally expect something in an entertaining vein. 'In the first place,' says 'The Irish Times,' 'the stern challengers locked themselves in the tower of the church, so that nobody could interrupt them and, presumably, in order to prevent any faint-heart from attempting to escape. In the second place, they denied themselves both food and drink until the peal had been rung. It would be interesting to know how the changes were measured. Perhaps some kind of meter was attached to the ropes, or a scorer was installed within the belfry to note down the changes like so many runs at a cricket match. At all events, the record was broken with a resounding crash—or peal.'

'The Irish Times' sees a possibility of this record becoming infectious and writes, 'Proud villagers and townsmen from all the coloured counties will spit on their hands, lock themselves in their bell towers, and pull away as energetically as though they personally were responsible for warning the world of an impending invasion from Mars.'

But these record lengths are no light undertaking. There is a vast amount of preparatory work and, in addition, the susceptibilities of the neighbourhood have to be consulted. In the Over performance not only was the co-operation of the church authorities secured but also of the local Council. It is when ringers show this dual sense of consideration that the reputation of the Exercise is enhanced.

Next Saturday another long length attempt at St. Woolos' Cathedral, Newport, of 15,840 Plain Bob Maximus had been planned, but through illness has had to be postponed. In the field of 12-bell ringing the record is not so formidable, and the peal of 15,312 Cambridge Surprise Maximus rung at Ashton-under-Lyne on August 6th, 1929, holds the field.

'THE RINGING WORLD'

The Official Journal of the Central Council of Church Bell Ringers

EDITORIAL OFFICE: c/o Woodbridge Press, Ltd., Guildford, Surrey.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: 12 months, £1; 6 months, ros. 6d.; 3 months, 5s. 6d. Send remittance to Mrs. Fletcher, The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

EDWIN H. LEWIS, M.A. (President of Council).

GEORGE W. FLETCHER (Hon. Secretary and Treasurer of Council), The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk.

A. A. HUGHES, J.P. (Hon. Treasurer of 'The Ringing World'), 34, White-chapel Road, E.1.

MRS. E. K. FLETCHER.

EDITOR: T. W. WHITE.

The quarter peal at Shipton-under-Wychwood, recently published, was conducted by C. T. Richards and not T. W. Timms.

Seven officials of the Ely Association participated in the peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major at St. Ives on November 4th. It was Mr. F. Warrington's 400th peal.

'The Ringing World' appears in a new face this week. We hope our elderly readers will appreciate the increased legibility of the new type.

Mr. H. T. Rooke enquires for dates of previous peals at Tibshelf, Derbyshire.

The number of changes in the peal of Spliced Major in eight methods, rung at Bournemouth and reported on page 695, should be 5,024. The error is regretted.

Mr. A. P. Cannon informs us that another attempt will be made soon at Debenham to recover that which was lost. No other tower in Suffolk is available, he adds.

The ringer of the 6th in the quarter peal at Pelsall, Staffs, on October 22nd, was R. Derry and not R. Chilton, as forwarded for publication.

We regret to report the passing of the Rev. R. F. R. Routh at Beaconsfield on November 5th, at the age of 61 years. An appreciation of his services to ringing will appear in our next issue.

Mr. W. Poston, of Ross-on-Wye, writes that the peal of Stedman Doubles rung at Newland, Glos, in August, 1937, was rung with ten different callings, three times repeated, not in two as published.

The peal of Stedman Cinques at St. Martin-in-the-Fields on November 4th was rung as a welcome home to Leonard Baybut after fifteen and a half years' absence in Kashmir. It was also a welcome to Hilary Joan, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Ling, who was born in nearby Charing Cross Hospital the previous day. The bells can be heard very distinctly in the hospital, and Mrs. Ling listened to the peal from beginning to end.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The attempt at 15,840 Plain Bob Maximus fixed for Saturday, November 18th, at St. Woolos' Cathedral, Newport, Mon., has had to be postponed due to sudden illness in the band.

The Universities Association annual dinner will be held on Friday, December 29th.

Fifty years ago Mr. B. Greatorex rang his first peal at Wirksworth, Derbyshire. He took part in the anniversary peal on October 30th, which was in the same method and by the same composer.

There are many choristers among our ringers, and to them the Nicholson Memorial, to place the Royal School of Church Music on a sound and permanent basis, will make an appeal. The sum of £60,000 is needed, and gifts should be sent to the Nicholson Memorial, Roper House, Canterbury.

The ringers of St. Matthew's, Upper Clapton, London, E.5, are going 'all-out' to meet a £76 estimate for the repair of bell fittings and sound-proofing the belfry. Donations would be gratefully received by Miss J. Friswell, 43, Casimir Road, London, E.5. In this connection a Parish Party is being arranged by the ringers to be held in the Church Hall, Warwick Grove, E.5, on Saturday, December 2nd, at 7 p.m., to which any ringers will be welcome.

The Master of Oxford University Society asked us to record a muffled quarter peal his Society rang at St. Mary Magdalen on Sunday, November 6th, in grateful memory of Guy Fawkes. But why 'grateful'? The quarter consisted of Plain Bob, Reverse Canterbury, Grandsire and April Day Doubles and the band was Patricia Wareham 1, M. Elizabeth Brown 2, J. B. Guy 3, F. Wright (conductor) 4, P. Border 5, G. McCrum 6.

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS

313th Anniversary Dinner The Stepney Boy who Made Good Westminster Abbey; Dr. Perkins' Reminiscences 58 New Members Memories of Three Famous Masters

FOR the first time since the war the plate of the Ancient Society of College Youths was on view at the 313th anniversary dinner of the Society held at Pimm's Restaurant, London, last Saturday. It was a great re-union, a capacity assembly welcoming the Master, Mr. T. G. Fox, as he took his seat.

Proceedings were delayed owing to the late arrival of the principal officers who had attended evensong at Southwark Cathedral. There the Provost made special reference in his sermon to the long service of the Ancient Society.

Supporting the Master were the officers: Mr. A. B. Peck (secretary), Mr. A. A. Hughes (treasurer), Mr. H. G. Miles (trustee), Mr. J. F. Smallwood (senior steward) and Mr. J. G. A. Pryor (junior steward).

The Master, in proposing the toast of 'The Church,' said it must be obvious to everybody there that without the Church there would be no Ancient Society, and in the toast they desired to record their debt to the Church. He remembered hearing in a sermon that lay members were no less ordained to do the work of the Church as clergy. They took a pride in their work and were thankful to serve the Church as ringers. To ring bells properly, a good band was required and a good band was not built up in a day. Good team work was essential and in submitting to them the toast, he felt that the Society would do their duty loyally to the Church.

The Rev. D. H. Booth, Rector of Stepney, who replied, said for him the evening was of a local lad making good. 'I am sure,' he said, 'you are proud of your Master, and we are proud of him, and I extend to him our warm congratulations from the ancient parish of Stepney.'

Admitting that he was an ignoramus about bells, the Rector said he only once rang a bell and that was on an historic occasion when the Eighth Army recaptured Tobruk and he rang the bell in that broken-down tower.

STEPNEY TOWER REBUILDING

It might interest them to know that within a year the tower of his ancient church would be repaired. At the moment they were pulling it down, but he hoped it would not be long before it was rebuilt and he looked forward to the day when members of the Society would ring again in East London.

A bellringer, a close relative of the Master, after ringing for service, locked the belfry door and left the key at the Rectory while the service was in progress. In doing so he surprised someone making an attempt on the life of the speaker's wife and child in the Rectory, so he had reason to be thankful for that bellringer even if his duties were not quite orthodox.

The toast of 'The Ancient Society of College Youths' was proposed by the Rev. Dr. Jocelyn Perkins, of Westminster Abbey. He said he felt very honoured to stand in the place of his old friend, the late Canon Coleridge. His memory would remain for ever green in the hearts of College Youths all over the country. He was one of the finest men he had ever known. While saying that, he could not help reminding them of the loss they had sustained at the Abbey by the death of that splendid old veteran, Robert Newton. They were all very attached to him and he remembered Mr. Newton said to him after they rang for the arrival of Prince Charles that that would be the last peal he would ring. He remained his same cheery presence until the end, and Dr. Perkins added that he saw him a day or two before his death.

Dr. Perkins said he was brought up as a choirboy at St. Paul's, Bedford, where there was a very fine ring going back to the days of George II. The present bells did not seem to him like the old ones were. From there he went to Magdalen College, Oxford, with its fine ring of ten. Never did he miss going up the tower at 4.30 on a May morning to take part in that service and then to feel the tower gently rock as the bells were rung.

Then he came to the Abbey with its traditional ding-dong before the service and the 40 strokes on the tenor for the sermon bell. He often wondered whether the bell induced people to come to listen to the sermon or keep away. This old bell was given in Elizabethan times by Dean Goodman, a generous and wealthy man.

There were six bells and the frame for eight and nobody took any interest in them. They only sounded on various occasions: they took no notice of the great festivals of the Church: the times of their ringing were mainly political. Sir Christopher Wren complained to the Dean about the bells, but he had been in his grave some 20 years when two minor bells were added.

FOUR TIMES IN TWENTY YEARS

At the time he arrived, the tower was supposed to be insecure and in his first 20 years the bells were only rung four times—for the coronations of Edward VII. and George V., the return of the Prince of Wales from India in 1922 and 32 years ago that day, when people went wild after the restraint of the war.

Following complaints that the Abbey bells were not being rung, a generous benefactor came forward in Lord Lee of Fareham, and their friends at Whitechapel got busy and the bells were dedicated by Bishop Ryall in 1919. At that time the Dean was good enough to make him superintendent of the belfry and of all the jobs he had had to do, he did not think anything had given him more pleasure.

The great ring at the Abbey had given birth to a son or a daughter. In 1936 an exact replica of the Abbey bells was placed in the great cathedral at Victoria, B.C. That was a great occasion. Practically all Vancouver Island assembled at Victoria for the dedication of the bells and the emotion created when the people heard the bells was quite indescribable. People were sobbing in the streets as the bells reminded them of the homeland. Ringers were doing a piece of God's work in reminding people of higher things, for man did not live by bread alone. Ringers had a work to do comparable to what was done in the pulpit; they could help to bring people nearer to those higher things which in the stress and strain of modern life were overlooked.

The code of ringing at the Abbey was based on the custom of ringing at Magdalen College, Oxford. There people were assembled for matins and evensong by the ding-donging of the bells. They fixed on certain ringing days connected with the Church—23 in all—and they also rang the bells after service.

Mr. A. B. Peck, the veteran secretary of the Society, who replied, disagreed with Dr. Perkins on the modern bells at St. Paul's, Bedford, on which he learnt to ring and he regarded them as one of the finest rings of ten in the world.

He owed the company two apologies—one was because a rope broke at Cornhill, and the other for being late owing to the length of the service at Southwark Cathedral.

Stuart, W. D. Taylor, W. H. Barber, G. Condict, E. Cassell, W. Pickworth, C. D. Heginbotham, J. Ladley, G. Charge, H. R. Newton, R. Hayes, J. S. Wilde, T. Miller, D. H. Elliott, J. H. Shepherd, H. W. Curtis, Rev. Tilney Bassett, C. F. Johnston, H. J. Ford, E. T. Exeter, W. Short, G. Hintham, W. E. S. Heathcote, H. Chandler, W. J. Rawlings and Rev. J. M. Routh.

Mr. Peck recalled that the Society had had only two secretaries in 60 years. They had received apologies for absence from the Dean of St. Paul's, Provost of Southwark, Mr. W. H. J. Hooton, Mr. G. H. Cross, Mr. and Mrs. Hairs and the Rev. L. Edwards. A message of good wishes had been received from Mr. G. R. Newton, of Liverpool and a telegram from Mr. E. J. Rowe, Sydney, Australia, reading: 'Best regards to the Society on its anniversary. Wish I was with you.'

The toast of 'Kindred Ringing Societies and Visitors' was submitted by Mr. A. A. Hughes, In welcoming the Rector of Stepney, Mr. Hughes said the Society looked forward to the time when they could revisit Stepney and repeat the good peals they had rung before. They had also Mr. Jarvis, librarian to Customs and Excise, Mr. Romer and Mr. Le Fevre, Dean's verger at St. Paul's.

KINDRED SOCIETIES.

The kindred ringing societies they looked on as Diocesan Guilds and County Associations which had developed by stages from the early bands such as the Society of College Youths and the Cumberlands and the various bands at Norwich and Birmingham and other centres. They all knew of the very great progress of the kindred societies and what they had done for ringing right through the country and to place ringers on a better footing as practising members of the Church.

Mr. G. E. Fearn replied and brought to the company the greetings of the St. Martin's Guild who had, he believed for the first time, a practising member as Lord Mayor.

Mr. H. Miles, proposing the toast of 'The Press,' commented upon Press references to the recent long peal attempt at Debenham, which stated that a man must not take his hand off the rope for any purpose whatever. He wondered how Joe Dyke would do his antics! He had rung many peals with the Rev. F. E. Robinson and, as they knew, he received a good deal of sustenance when ringing from raisins. He thought that the long peal at Debenham had demonstrated that raisins were not 'cannon' fodder.

Mr. Miles concluded by paying tribute to the two former editors of 'The Ringing World,' Mr. J. S. Goldsmith and Mr. J. A. Trollope. It was amazing, he said, the amount of information contained in its 16 pages and he thought it was very appropriate that the protest about Jack Worrall's beard should have come from Mr. Hairs (laughter).

Mr. T. W. White replied and mentioned that since the last dinner 'The Ringing World' had secured 160 new subscribers.

Mr. Alexander Young gave the concluding toast 'The Fragrant Memory of the Masters of 300, 200 and 100 years ago.' In 1650, the Master was John Newton, who came up to the Inns of Court from Devonshire. His name appeared 'boxed' in the peal book, a tribute to outstanding ringers. Newton was elected a member in 1646. Theodore Eccleston, the Master in 1750, was an associate of Annable, and if it had not been for his death, the great schism would not have taken place. A native of Suffolk, he gave two rings of bells to that county, a bell to Mortlake, where he died. two bells to Winchester Cathedral and 22 bells in different parts of the country.

James Dwight, the Master in 1850, was a member of the crew of St. Paul's, and he did much to raise ringing at St. Paul's from the slump into which it had fallen. James Dwight

RECORD PEAL OF 21,600 BRISTOL SURPRISE MAJOR

By ringing 21,600 Bristol Surprise in 12 hours and 58 minutes the Chester Diocesan Guild have beaten all existing records, for this is the longest peal rung by one set of men, the longest time rung by one set of men, the longest Surprise peal, and so on. Previous records which have stood for some time and which were broken are 21,363 Stedman Caters at Appleton in 12 hours and 25 minutes on April 22nd, 1922; 15,312 Cambridge Surprise Maximus, August 5th, 1929 (longest Surprise peal); 15,264 Bristol Surprise, May 27th, 1912; 17,824 Oxford Treble Bob, April 18th, 1927; and 18,144 Plain Bob Major, June 5th, 1933.

The attempt had been contemplated for some time, and early this year application was made for permission, and after discussion by the local Council as well as the Church authorities it was granted.

A CHANGE IN COMPANY

On the Wednesday night a trip was made to adjust ropes, etc., so that there would be no delay on the Saturday morning, and the band were sorry to learn that one of their number, Mr. J. Whittaker, was unfit, but were pleased that a very willing substitute had been found in Mr. Fred Dunkerley.

Early on the Saturday morning the different contingents set off to rendezvous at Over Church for 7.30 in preparation for an 8 o'clock start, and for a change not one was late. The ringers were met by Mr. Sadler, who had previous experience of escorting long-length parties, for it was at Over in 1923 that Mr. R. Sperring called 17,280 of Kent Treble Bob. Final adjustments were made, and at 7.56 the bells went off into changes.

The first part was rung in 1 hour and 56 minutes and the second in about the same time, but succeeding parts were a little quicker, and at about 5.20 the Hornchurch record was passed, and no one wished to stop. At 17,856 the conductor again enquired if the band felt fit, and received an affirmative and dogged response. It was obvious that they were all determined to ring the lot or 'bust.'

GUY FAWKES DISPLAY.

All went merrily on, including a Guy Fawkes display outside, which was witnessed mainly by the ringer of the seventh until at 8.54 p.m. the bells ran round, and after twenty or thirty rounds the bells were set at rest and everything was quiet for the first time that day.

Several of the listening ringers came up to the ringing room to congratulate the band on their achievement, while others waited until they descended the tower. The local lady ringers had very thoughtfully provided tea and sandwiches for the band, and these were enjoyed in the vestry. A Press photographer then took a photograph of the band being congratulated by the Vicar and another of the band.

The band wish to make public their appreciation of the interest and assistance of the people of Over, particularly the Vicar and wardens and local ringers, without whose willing co-operation no attempt could have been made. They would also like to couple with this the names of Alan A. Potts who, but for being on military service in the Far East, would have been one of the band; Mr. J. Whittaker who, as mentioned above, was un-was one of the first to have his name on the ringers' tablet at St. Paul's. He rang the tenor to 8,580 Stedman Cinques at Cornhill in 1861.

Veteran members present were Messrs. J. C. Mitchell, 65 years' membership; R. Stannard, 60; I. Emery, 59; W. T. Elson, 58; T. Groombridge, 57; W. H. Pasmore, 55; A. Walker, 54; C. Fenn, 54; R. Fenn, 54; E. Fenn, 52 C. Dean, 52; able to take part; and Mr. Edward Jenkins, who handed the figures of the peal to them.

With the exception of Mr. Dunkerley, of the Lancashire Association, the band all reside in Cheshire. Although called in at short notice, he rang as well as any Cheshire man, and it is in itself a tribute to the cordial relations which exist between the Lancashire Association and the Chester Guild. The onerous duty of calling the peal was very ably sustained by Mr. Worth, who called it as though it were a normal one.

C. KENNETH LEWIS.

HEARD BOTH ATTEMPTS

Dear Sir,—After experiencing the bitter disappointment when the bells became silent at Debenham, it was thrilling to hear rounds come up to a fine finish at Over.

Unable to include the method in my repertoire, any attempt to rate the performance would be ridiculous, but the quality of the ringing heard in the last hours deserves the praise of the whole Exercise, and I personally would like to congratulate the band on their wonderful feat.—Yours sincerely,

DAVID VINCENT.

Hale, Cheshire.

P.S.—As a long sufferer at the 'hands' of those taking part, I hope I too may be excused the painful duty of lowering in peal in future.—D. 'C.' V.

THE BAND'S THANKS

Dear Sir,—On behalf of the band and myself, I would like to thank all those who have in any way contributed to the success of the record peal and also express our thanks for the numerous letters (one an official letter of congratulation from the Mayor of Macclesfield) and phone calls, congratulating us on our success.—Yours faithfully,

J. WORTH.

Macclesfield.
We hope to publish next week biographical details of the band and a photograph taken immediately after the performance.—Ed.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON SOCIETY

At the annual general meeting of the Society held at St. Giles-in-the-Fields on October 28th the following officers were elected for 1950-51: President, Dr. J. C. E. Simpson; Master, Mr. D. N. Layton; secretary and treasurer, Miss M. Martin; auditor, Mr. P. R. Layton.

It was decided to hold the annual dinner on Saturday, February 10th.

Ringing in the afternoon started with London Surprise and included most of the standard methods. It was followed by a short service conducted by the Rector.

THE BROCAS BELL

Dear Sir,—Few of the visitors who have rung on the fine octave at St. Mary's, Axminster, Devon, are aware of the existence of a ninth bell in the tower, known locally as the Brocas bell. In 1663 John Brocas, whilst ringing, was killed by the rope of the 4th bell.

A suit was brought against the churchwardens in the Court of the King's Bench, and the bell was claimed for the King as a Deodard. Having been taken from the ring and replaced by another, the bell now hangs over the existing ring and has never since been rung. This is the only bell of its kind known to me, and I should be interested to know if any reader has the knowledge of an experience similar to this.—Yours faithfully,

NORMAN MALLET.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

RINGING OUT THE OLD YEAR

Dear Sir,—In a few weeks' time the bells of most of our cathedrals and of many of our parish churches will be ringing out the old year and ringing in the new. This is an occasion when 'The Ringing World' might 'sound the same note' by conforming to a set pattern.

In some towers the bells are just rung—as they would be for any ordinary service—with only a slight pause at the midnight hour; while in others the bells are rung half-muffled for the closing few minutes of the old year and, after the twelve strokes have been struck on the tenor bell, then the open bells ring in the New Year.

The observance of this ancient custom could be given greater significance if some accepted ideal, or standard, to which every band of ringers might be asked to conform, was adopted. To get the contrast between 'the old' and 'the new,' the bells need to be rung half-muffled, and then open. That makes the point of the ringing quite clear to those who hear it.

Further to that, there should be a definite pause for an act of recollection and dedication. This, of course, is made easier in those churches where a watch-night service is held. But even where that is not so, it is possible for a small group in the belfry itself to observe such a period of silence with those intentions in mind.

At the year's end, then, there might be two programmes which fulfil the purpose of our ringing:—

- (1) Where there is watch-night service.
 - 11 to 11.30, ringing half-muffled.
 - 11.30 to 12, watch-night service.
 - 12, striking of the midnight hour.
 - 12.1, ringing in the New Year on open bells.
- (2) Where there is no watch-night service.
 - 11.15 to 11.45, ringing on half-muffled bells.
 - 11.45 to 12, short act of recollection and dedication (conducted, if possible, by the incumbent).
 - 12, striking of the midnight hour.
 - 12.1, ringing in the New Year on open bells.

Let us, once a year at any rate, make the purpose of our Exercise clear, even though many may object to 'standardisation' in an age of rules and regulations.—I am, yours sincerely,

A. C. F. DAVIES.

'STEDMAN CATERERS IN WINTER'

Dear Sir,—With reference to the letter in the November 10th issue entitled 'Stedman Caterers in Winter,' and written by 'R. P.' I feel it is a disgrace to 'The Ringing World' and ringers in general that such a letter should ever be written and published.

There is much talk in 'The Ringing World' at present about relations between ringers and the public, and the general opinion seems to be that these relations should be improved, but if a non-ringer were to read 'R. P.'s' letter, I quite fail to see how the description of a ringer damning a Rector in his own church could elevate the Exercise in his eyes. In fact, quite the reverse would surely occur, and its effects would be far-reaching, for such things spread rapidly.

If 'R. P.' had the misfortune to witness such an incident he would do better to keep quiet rather than broadcast it in print, for although this modern world is falling about our ears, respect for the clergy and the Church is surely something worth holding on to.

As for 'the Major,' God forbid that such men should be allowed to ring on the Church's bells (note that the Major said 'our bells') and the sooner he and those like him leave the Exercise the better it will be for everybody.

If he is an Army Officer, I suggest that he be sent to the Korean front immediately.—Yours faithfully,

J. V. LONSBROUGH.

Brighton, Sussex.

NOTE.—The incident took place many years ago. The Major has since passed to his fathers.—Ed.

WIDECOMBE-IN-THE-MOOR

Dear Sir,—In the peal columns of 'The Ringing World' dated November 3rd there is a report of a peal rung at St. Pancras' Church, Widecombe-in-the-Moor, in which the tenor is given as 16 cwt. The weight of this bell, however, as supplied to me by Messrs. Taylor and Co., who rehung the bells in a new oak frame in 1932, is 12 cwt. 3 qr. 14 lb.

The treble and second bells are by C. and G. Mears, London, 1848; the third, fifth and tenor by Thomas Pennington, of Exeter, dated 1632, 1663 and 1632 respectively; and the fourth by Thomas Bilbie in 1774. The inscription on the third bell includes the words, 'Fyftene pounds,' this presumably being the cost of the bell.—Yours faithfully, Nailsea, Bristol. M. J. HORSEMAN.

ROUND BLOCK EXTENSIONS

Kent County Association

LEWISHAM DISTRICT

The annual meeting of the Lewisham District was held at St. Mary's Lewisham, on October 28th. Sixty members and friends attended and the bells, recently rehung by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, were given a thorough 'try-out,' emerging triumphantly from the ordeal.

The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. P. D. Robb), who extended a warm welcome to his hearers in the course of a very interesting address. The unaccompanied singing of the hymns indicated that a large percentage of ringers had been, or are, choristers!

A sumptuous tea, arranged by the captain of Lewisham ringers (Mr. J. Dafters), was despatched in St. Mary's Hall.

Mr. E. A. Barnett (Crayford) presided at the business meeting. Seven ringers were elected practising members of the Association, and three others non-resident life members.

The district secretary's report and balance sheet, read by Mr. P. A. Corby, were adopted.

Mr. A. G. Hill was re-elected district secretary and Messrs. A. S. Richards and G. V. Murphy reappointed district representatives. Customarily, the office of Ringing Master changed hands, Mr. P. J. Spice (Bromley) succeeding Mr. J. Dafters (Lewisham).

Mr. J. Dafters, replying to a cordial vote of thanks for his meritorious services during the past year, congratulated Mr. Spice and hoped members would accord him full support, and pleaded with tower-keepers and captains of bands to ensure that their companies had timely reminders of dates of district meetings and encouragement to attend them. Eltham was chosen as the place of next meeting, to be held on January 27th.

Members registered their pleasure of the company of Mr. T. Groombridge, now of Slough. Sincere good wishes were extended to Mr. J. Wheadon (Dartford) whose departure from the county was imminent. He would be greatly missed from the Lewisham District, where he had for so many years taken his full share in all activities promoted or seconded by the Association. Mr. Wheadon fittingly replied and wished the District continuing prosperity.

Votes of thanks were accorded the Vicar, the caterers and local ringers for all they had done to ensure a successful meeting. The belfry was then revisited for further ringing during the evening.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION

NORTHERN DISTRICT AT FELSTED.

On October 28th the Northern Division held a very successful meeting at Felsted, there being 53 members present from 22 parishes. At the service the Vicar (Rev. F. D. Kidner) gave the ringers a welcome to Felsted and commended the importance of ringers' work for the Church. Tea was served in the Old Boates Cafe.

The meeting followed in the Old School, where it is interesting to note four sons of Oliver Cromwell were educated. Owing to the unavoidable absence of the District Master (Miss H. G. Snowden), Mr. R. C. Heazel, the Association's hon. general secretary, occupied the chair. Forty-three new members were elected, including 20 honorary, three of them life members, one being Miss Dorothy Sayers, the well-known novelist, who wrote the famous novel, 'The Nine Tailors.' This is believed to be a record number of new members to be elected at any district meeting of the Association.

Bocking was selected for the next meeting, which will be the annual for the district, on January 13th. Votes of thanks were passed to the Rev. F. D. Kidner, Rev. A. C. Telfer, Mr. W. Farrow and Mr. R. C. Heazel. Ringing during the afternoon and evening ranged from rounds to London Surprise Major.

'INTRODUCING "PAPER WORK."'

Dear Improvers,—Having passed the 'Beginner' stage you are now introduced to Section 4 of the Course—Method Appreciation, or 'Learning the Music.'

So far you have learned to handle your instrument (the bell), and in order to play its music (change ringing) you must learn the notation (study the first principles of method structure).

In Lesson XI., which now follows, we try to give a general picture of the modern way of learning methods. Although this is given in general form, yet its points are of the utmost importance if you are fully to grasp the development of the scheme, in its application to methods with which we shall deal in turn, later.

Theory is often less interesting than practice, but we shall endeavour to make things as clear as possible. The subject is not easy to handle in logical fashion; in fact, you may investigate for yourselves that such treatment has been more often neglected than pursued; but please persevere with our line of argument, because, once grasped, method learning becomes an easy pleasure.

Very many ringers have succeeded in taking their part in change ringing simply by studying the working path of one bell and learning the order of succession of place-makings and dodgings. We have already seen, in our final exercises in hunting, place-making and dodging, that in any given method all working bells traverse the same sort of path, though each starts at a different part of it.

This path is often called the 'Blue Line,' from the fact that in Snowden's Diagrams of Standard Methods the path of a working bell is traced out in blue ink. And the complete blue line, or course, for any one bell, as we learned in Lesson X, is contained in a block of change-rows known as the 'plain course.'

Such a group of rows is often called a 'round block,' because it works round to end up with the row at which it started. In the case of the plain course this is of course, the round-row or 'rounds.' If you care to refer to the previous article (17), you will see that the path of one of the bells is marked (in the group of figures) by printing it in heavier type. In this sense we marked a bit of the blue line of that method, for it was a method!

An improved way of learning the method by the blue line is to learn it in 'divisions.' This is a term employed in the Central Council's publication—'Rules and Decisions'—at present under review. By 'division' is meant a group of rows in number equal to that obtained by dividing the total number of rows in the plain course by the number of working bells in the method. We will explain this further in a moment.

But first let us observe that in most methods there is what we call a 'hunt-control' bell; that is, a bell which has a fixed, regular hunting path, not varied by occasional place-makings, etc. To this regular path we can relate or 'fix' the path-variations of the other, or 'working' bells. From this fact the 'fixed' bell is often thought of as 'dominating' the work of the other bells.

Since such fixed bell is invariably (though not essentially) the Treble, this type of method is alternatively called 'Treble-dominated.' Thus, in methods which are hunt-controlled (or treble-dominated) the divisions above-mentioned are marked off by the rows in which the hunt-control bell comes to lead. From this fact a Division is often called a 'lead.'

But this is NOT a good use of the word 'lead'—for two reasons:—

First, because there are other meanings for this word in ringing parlance; hence there is risk of doubtful meaning, or ambiguity in discourse. There may be some readers, more experienced ringers perhaps, who may say to this, 'Nonsense!' But the fact remains that in the history of technical argument in ringing matters a large part of it has been needless, and was the result of a lack of precise and unambiguous terms, leading to misunderstanding, misrepresentation and grave mistakes. Secondly, and this reason is even more cogent, in those methods which are not hunt-controlled, i.e., in which the treble performs exactly the same work or path as all other bells, the divisions are obviously not marked by the continued return to lead of any one particular bell; so how can they be, in any sense, 'leads'? Accordingly, in this course of instruction we shall never use the word 'lead' in reference to a particular group of change-rows. We shall use the C.C. term 'Division' for this, as already explained.

Now to return to our previous statement, as to the number of rows in a division, for which we promised further explanation. Take an example. The plain course of the method 'Bob Minor' contains 60 change-rows. The method is hunt-controlled, so with the Treble out of the six, five working bells remain. Divide 60 by 5. Result 12. So there are 12 change-rows in a division of Bob Minor. And since the method is hunt-controlled, the Treble must be returning to lead after every 12 rows. This is inevitably so, of course, because the plant hunt up and down through six bell-positions gives 12 rows, including the return blow out behind.

We have already said that an improved way of learning a method is to learn the blue line by its divisions. Reverting to our example of Plain Bob in the Minor Stage, we find there that any given working bell is in a different position at the end of each succeeding division. Since rounds is the first row of the first division, the last row of the first division is where the treble strikes at lead again. So the first row of the second division is the succeeding row. Those who have ready reference to this plain course may check that the second bell, for example, is in second position at the first division-head, in the fourth position at the second division-head, in the sixth position at the third division-head, and so on. In other words, this improved way of learning the blue line is to learn also how it is divided up by its successive 'divisions.' The order of succeeding positions at successive division-heads we call 'Position Sequence,' and this is a vital factor which we shall discuss later on. Its knowledge is invaluable in advanced method ringing, known as 'Spliced.'

A still further improvement in learning a hunt-controlled method is to learn also the hunt-control signals. This is commonly known as 'Where you meet the Treble.'

The various positions, in which you do this, give positive indication of the next bit of the blue line to be performed. At this stage we shall not do more than mention these ways of tackling the learning of a method, because they all depend, for best use, on the appreciation of a more important factor not yet mentioned. This will be discussed in the conclusion of Lesson XI., next time.—Cordially yours,

CORNELIUS R. STONE.

Coventry Diocesan Guild

MEETING AT MONK'S KIRBY.

The October quarterly meeting was held at Monk's Kirby, near Rugby, and was attended by about 40 members and friends. Ringing on the fine eight, service in the beautiful church, conducted by the Vicar with a Guild member from Meriden acting as organist, followed by tea at the local hostelry, occupied the afternoon. The business meeting, handbell ringing and tower bell ringing filled the evening hours.

Apologies were read from the president (Rev. R. R. P. Rigby), Mrs. Hinde (hon. member), Mr. J. L. Hinde (Bulkington), Mr. J. H. W. White, Mr. J. Taylor and Mr. J. W. T. Taylor (Allesley) and Mr. H. C. Burt (Leamington). The January quarterly meeting was fixed for Chilvers Coton on the 20th of the month with a social to follow. Warwick was selected for the annual meeting in April. New members elected were:—Miss Mary Bliss (Allesley), Mr. G. A. Peck (Rugby) and John Underwood (Rugby) a junior member. Ratifications of elections prior to peals were:—C. Turner (Hinckley), S. Pinder (Nottingham), H. Lewins (Hucknall) and F. Powell (Mickleton, Gloucestershire).

Members stood in silence for a few moments to the memory of Mrs. L. Lewis (hon. member, Chilvers Coton) and Mr. H. Price (ringing member, Stratford-on-Avon), who had both worked for the Guild in different spheres.

BEVERLEY AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

Thirty members of the Society met at Barton-on-Humber for the October meeting.

The bells of St. Mary's were rung during the afternoon in the standard methods. Very musical, with a tenor of 16 cwt., they were a pleasure to ring.

Owing to the Vicar of Barton being away it was not possible to hold a service, but the ringers were welcomed by one of the churchwardens, Dr. Burtwhistle. After tea, Dr. Burtwhistle spoke of his connections with Beverley: his grandfather, Canon Burtwhistle, was a past Vicar of Beverley Minster, and his wife's family had been connected with the Minster and Keldgate Tannery for a long period.

Ringers who take an interest in ancient churches were delighted at the chance to study the architecture of Barton churches which between them cover styles of building through five centuries.

After tea the bells of St. Peter's were rung to Stedman, Oxford, Double Norwich and St. Clement's.

OBITUARY

MR. ERNEST C. LAMBERT

Mr. Ernest C. Lambert, whose death at Cosgrove, Northants, was announced in 'The Ringing World' of November 3rd, will be remembered by many friends over a wide area. A good ringer and striker, he was always ready to help young ringers.

A member of the well-known family of Lambert, of Horsmonden, Kent, he started ringing with his father and brothers and soon proved himself to be a good conductor. Mr. Lambert took part in a number of family peals, among them being Plain Bob Minor at Lamberhurst, Kent, in 1911, by six brothers, and the peal he conducted of Plain Bob Major on November 2nd, 1921, when eight Lamberts took part.

It seemed particularly fitting that a peal to his memory should have been rung by his nephews on November 2nd, the 29th anniversary of the Lamberts' peal at Mitcham, Surrey.

Mr. Lambert had rung 208 peals in 400 different churches, in 19 counties. His list is as follows:—

Doubles, 7 (conducted 5); Minor, 50 (28); Bob Triples, 1; Bob Major, 24 (13); Grandsire Triples, 45 (19); Stedman Triples, 28 (3).

Double Norwich Court Bob Major, 23 (1); Kent Treble Bob, 11 (5); Canterbury Pleasure, 1; Cambridge Surprise, 6; Superlative, 5; Bob Royal, 1; Stedman Caters, 6.

Total 208 (conducted 74).

MR. WILLIAM SHERATON.

The sudden death on Saturday, October 28th, of William Sheraton has deprived the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association of its oldest active ringer member. He was in his 83rd year, and had been a member since 1886.

Mr. Sheraton had enjoyed excellent health all his life and retained to the end a fine, erect figure which was often to be seen at district meetings. He was active to the last, having attended the practice at Houghton-le-Spring earlier that week and it was while waiting for a bus to return home from some business at Burnmoor Rectory that he collapsed and died.

The funeral at Burnmoor on November 1st was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. A. J. Gadd), assisted by the Rector of Houghton-le-Spring (the Rev. O. N. Gwilliam) and the curate (the Rev. F. Streatfield).

Former business colleagues and ringers were present in addition to the family mourners, and handbells were rung at the graveside by Miss M. Fidell and Messrs. F. Ainsley, J. A. Brown and S. C. Walker. The bells of Houghton-le-Spring had been rung muffled on the previous Sunday and on the evening of the funeral a memorial peal of Bob Major was rung there. The ringers were met in the belfry by the Rector who conducted a short service before the peal began.

Mr. Sheraton was born in Chester-le-Street and spent his working life in the service of Chester-le-Street Co-operative Society and retired as manager of its Shiny Row branch. He was the last surviving member of the original band at Chester-le-Street, formed after the installation of the original six in 1883. He rang in the first peal on the bells in 1896 and conducted the first local peal the following year. After 35 years' service at Chester-le-Street, he moved, and gave 30 years' service to Houghton-le-Spring. He rang 24 peals, of which he conducted three. The last two, in 1946, were, appropriately, Bob Major at Chester-le-Street and Grandsire Triples at Houghton-le-Spring.

Mr. Sheraton was a good, steady ringer, regular in attendance—the type that forms the backbone of the Exercise. Since the war he had been assisting his son in the training of a new band at Houghton-le-Spring, and his loss will be deeply felt, especially at that tower.

Mr. Sheraton's wife died some years ago and he leaves two sons, one of whom is a ringer and secretary of the Eastern District. His brother, Frederick Sheraton, still rings regularly at Chester-le-Street. D. A. B.

NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION A RECORD YEAR FOR PEALS.

The annual committee meeting and ringing meeting of the North Staffordshire Association was held at Bucknall on November 4th.

The secretary (Mr. W. Carnwell), in his report, stated that twelve meetings had been held during the year, two at ten-bell towers, six at eight, and four at six-bell towers. All these had been well attended, the average being 41 per meeting.

Two resident ringing members had been elected, one honorary member and 22 non-resident life members. It was with regret he recorded the deaths during the year of three old members—Mr. C. Morley (Newcastle), Mr. W. Wheelodon (Bucknall) and Mr. W. C. Lawrence (Norton).

The past year had seen a record established in peal ringing with a total of 57. Included in these were the first peal of Maximus and the first of Cinques to be rung for the Association, and he tendered the Association's thanks to Mr. F. E. Wilshaw, Ringing Master, whose arrangements had made this record possible.

Peals on tower bells are as follows: Maximus 1, Cinques 1, Caters 2, Major 16, Triples 9, Minor 8, Doubles 3. Handbells: Major 2, Triples 2, Minor 8, Doubles 4.

F. E. Grocott headed the list of conductors with a total of 30, followed by A. Peake 7, F. E. Wilshaw 4, N. R. Holland 3, H. Howell 2, J. W. F. Trotman 2, W. Carnwell 2 and C. H. Page, A. W. Hall, C. S. Ryles, W. P. Whitehead, J. C. E. Simpson, J. Worth and E. Nixon one each.

The statement of accounts showed a credit balance of £65 19s. 11½d.

Officers elected for 1951 were as follows: Chairman, Mr. R. S. Anderson; hon. secretary, Mr. W. Carnwell; assistant hon. secretary, Mr. W. Edwards; auditor, Mr. A. W. Hall; Central Council representative, Mr. R. S. Anderson; Ringing Masters, Messrs. G. A. Moore and W. Hazledene.

Meetings approved for 1951 were: January, Wolstanton or Silverdale; February, Newcastle; March, Kidsgrove; April, Cheadle R.C.; May, Leek; June, Kingsley; July, Stone; August, Cheddleton; September, Uttoxeter; October, Hanley; November, Bucknall; December, Stoke.

To conclude the committee meeting, the chairman thanked the hon. secretary and assistant hon. secretary for their work during the year.

The meeting was followed by a service conducted by the Rev. K. T. Pearce, who was recently inducted to the living of Bucknall. Rev. R. S. Anderson read the lesson.

Some 45 members then adjourned to the schools, where a splendid tea had been arranged by the ringers' wives and friends.

The Rector extended a hearty welcome to all present. Mr. R. S. Anderson proposed a vote of thanks to the Rector and ringers of Bucknall. This was seconded by Mr. A. W. Hall. Mr. G. Jones thanked the ladies who had kindly prepared such a bountiful tea.

BYGONE MASTERS

ONE of the pleasing features of the reunion dinners of the Ancient Society of College Youths is the honouring of the Masters of 100, 200 and 300 years ago. This 'Fragrant Memory' toast has reached its 13th year, and its proposer, Mr. E. Alex. Young, by research, has endeavoured to make the memories of these men as full as possible. In his observations the tireless activity of the late Mr. J. Armiger Trollope has been most helpful.

Of the senior of the trio honoured last week, John Newton, the Master in 1650, is largely unknown. A John Newton, of Craberton, Devon, was enrolled as a law student at the Inner Temple in 1640, and it is thought by Trollope that this is the same John Newton who was elected to the Society in 1647 and became Master three years later.

Of the second Master honoured, Theodore Eccleston, who was born in 1715 and died in 1753 at the age of 38, there is a wealth of information. He was elected to the Society in 1744, served as steward in 1747 and became Master in 1750. He came of a landed family from Crowfield Hall, Coddington, Suffolk. Though by upbringing a Quaker, he became a churchman. He evidently did his ringing at Coddington and the nearby Stonham Aspal, and to both of these towers he gave a ring of bells, viz., 8 and 10 respectively.

Theodore Eccleston appears to have been an admirable and much-liked man. Trollope says of him: 'In the history of the Exercise there have been many who were devoted to bellringing and, though not themselves very expert, were content to play the role of patrons and derived satisfaction, not so much from their own skill as from that of the bands they got together. One of the best known of these was Theodore Eccleston.

He lived at Mortlake, where he was interred, and in 1741 he added two trebles to the existing ring of six there. He built up bands from employees on his estates and even brought out ringers from London. Of the three peals he rang none were for the College Youths, as he began his ringing career with the Eastern Scholars. Eccleston joined the College Youths at a very critical period in its history; the blaze of glory which had been enjoyed for half a century, especially the latter years under Benjamin Annable, seemed to be fading. The only peals being achieved, some two a year, were still being conducted by their great leader. But the cloud upon the horizon was getting darker and darker. And the early death of Theodore Eccleston was a great loss at a critical time, i.e., ere the striving parties snapped asunder, leaving two societies to share the name of 'College Youths.'

Of James Dwight, the third Master honoured, the information is more definite. He was born in 1816 and died in 1892, being a wheelwright by trade. Dwight was three times Master of the Society—in 1850, 1852 and 1858. At the turn of the century the fortunes of the Society were at a low ebb, but in the 1830's Richard Mills infused a new spirit into its ranks, and attracted such young, clever and enthusiastic new members as Tollady, Stockham, John Cox and Haley (the two rivals), Brittan, Landsdell, Clay, Cooter, Dwight, Haworth, Matt Wood, Ferris, Muskett, Pettit, Hayes and several others.

Many of these were members of St. Paul's Cathedral 'Scroof' and at their deaths had their names placed upon the College Youths' memorial tablet in the ringing room. James Dwight's was the first to be so honoured in 1892. Also painted on the wall is the record of the Memory Peal, rung on All Saints' Day, 1878, being the first on the new bells. In this peal Dwight rang the eighth. His first peal was rung in 1847 (Stedman Triples) for the St. James' Society. Of his many peals, the one outstanding was the record peal of 8,580 Stedman Cinques at St. Michael's, Cornhill. Dwight composed a song so popular for years after and which he would sing at the annual dinner.

Their memories might best be hallowed by the quotation from Holy Writ, one used by Mr. Trollope in closing his book on 'The College Youths':—

Let us now praise famous men and our fathers that begat us.

All these were honoured in their generations and were the glory of their times.

There be of them that have left a name behind them that their praise might be reported; and some there be which have no memorial.

Their bodies are buried in peace; but their name liveth for evermore.

'WHERE GEORGE DO SIT'

An occurrence in Somerset some years before the war may be of amusement to your readers. Having arranged an afternoon and evening's outing, we duly arrived at Huish Episcopi, armed with the Vicar's permission to ring, but finding the belfry door locked and no one to meet us, I made enquiries of an old lady in a cottage nearby, and was given the following reply: 'You'll find the key in a box under the seat where George do sit.' Being strangers, none of us knew where the redoubtable George sat, but a careful search under most of the seats at last revealed the box with the key inside.

On another occasion we went to ring at a church in Wiltshire where again, although having the Vicar's permission, we found no one to meet us, but the ringing chamber door was unlocked. All ropes nicely coiled, we prepared to raise the bells in peal only to find that it was impossible to move them at all. On investigation in the bell chamber it was discovered that generations of jackdaws had filled the frame with sticks to the level of the headstocks. After ejecting about a wagon-load of sticks through the louvres and a generous application of oil, the bells went reasonably well. E. T. P. F.

MUFFED THE MUFFLE

Just before the last war, the bells of our neighbouring village were to be rung half-muffled for a Good Friday morning service, and as a keen beginner I went over to help. I took the fifth to raise in peal, and after a couple of blows the captain barked at me, 'She is wrong, get her down and start again.' I did so, but with the same result. At the third attempt, I received a glare and was told, 'Get her up and I will go up and turn the clapper.' When he came down from aloft he was full of apologies, for he had put the muffle on the wrong side of the clapper. C. A. B.

Reminiscences

VERGER TRAPPED UNDER BELL

Arriving at Twickenham Parish Church, Middlesex, to ring the old year out some years ago, we learnt that the verger was trapped under one of the bells and was crying out for help.

We found him in the bell chamber lying face downwards across the frame with the bell rests on his back. He was still conscious.

By candle-light, a spare rope was fixed to the wheel and, hauling from the doorway, the bell was drawn away. The unfortunate verger was released by easing him down into the pit and then out through the frame. We carried him down the winding stairs to the ground floor where the ambulance was waiting to take him to hospital.

It appears that he had gone up to fix the muffles to the clappers and had, apparently, slipped. In so doing, he had pushed, or pulled, the bell over. He was a small man, which might account for his injuries not being greater. He eventually recovered sufficiently to get about again, but I believe he was partially crippled to the end of his days.

The moral is the danger of passing over the frame whilst the bells are up, G. H. H.

AVERSION TO HORSE TRANSPORT

It is interesting to recall an amusing incident which occurred on the occasion of an augmentation and rehang of Woburn bells in 1912.

The late Charles Herbert was invited to take over a band to ring at the re-opening ceremony. A horse and wagonette was the only means of transport available. It so happened that Mr. Herbert had a strong aversion to riding in a horse-drawn vehicle of any description, and would walk for miles to attend meetings in outlying districts and in the course of his business or other secretarial appointments. However he consented, after much persuasion, to travel with the party on this occasion.

Imagine his horror, when less than a mile of the journey had been covered, and they were descending a short decline, one of the front wheels of the wagonette became dislodged and went careering off down the road. Almost before the horse had been pulled up, he hopped out of the vehicle on to the road, and although the wheel was duly recovered and replaced securely, no amount of coaxing could get him back again.

However, as befitted one of the veteran pioneers of an earlier generation, such a contretemps did not deter him from carrying out his purpose, so he immediately set out to walk the whole way there and back, a distance of about twenty miles.

The first peal on the recast bells of Whitby Parish Church was rung last Sunday afternoon. When the belfry door was opened at the end, the first person over the threshold was a messenger to tell Mr. J. Hodgson, who was ringing the tenor, that his wife had been safely delivered of their first son.

Mr. A. Pat Cannon writes:—With reference to Mr. H. Miles' remarks at the A.S.C.Y. dinner, I am well aware of the fact that the Rev. F. E. Robinson used to chew raisins—it was from him that I got the idea myself! Debenham was the first time I had tried them—and the last too, as I did not digest them properly! What suited 'the Rev.' didn't suit 'the Cannon'!

Mr. Edgar C. Sheppard has written a delightful book, 'The Tower and Bells of Solihull Church,' which we hope to review next week.

Mr. Rognvald Wilson travelled from Edinburgh to Chester-le-Street to participate in his first peal of Major on November 11th.

Birthday greeting next Monday to Mr. James George, of 30, Wimborne Road, Poole, Dorset. Reaching the age of 97 years is a great achievement.

Mr. R. O. Fry, of Bath, has rung peals of Stedman from Doubles to Cinques. He left the Doubles to last, at Worle, on November 11th.

Mr. Walter Weston, of East Road, Sleaford, is making satisfactory progress in Lincoln County Hospital (Robey Ward) from a broken leg due to an accident at work on October 13th. He is ringing captain at St. Denys', Sleaford, Lincs.

The peal of Plain Bob Maximus at Christ Church Priory on November 11th, enabled Mrs. F. J. Marshallsay, Mr. W. C. Shute and Mr. F. L. Harris to have rung Plain Bob from Minor to Maximus on tower bells.

We thank those readers who have written expressing their appreciation of the introduction of the 'Times Roman' in 'The Ringing World.' Their pleasure as to legibility is shared by the editorial staff.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Tricks with the lighting were played as the band rang the peal of Stedman Caters at Melton Mowbray on November 11th. Four sixes from the end the lights were switched off and on five times. Each time the 'on' was a brief flash. The final bob at 16 and rounds came up in total darkness.

The ringer of the 6th in the peal of Grand-sire Triples at Stalybridge on November 4th was John T. Walmsley and not Halmesley.

It is 24 years since the Sunday service band at Holy Trinity Cathedral, Guildford, had rung a peal of London Surprise Major until Nov. 13th this year. Messrs H. Hulton, W. J. Robinson and A. H. Pulling are the only members who rang in both peals.

Between October 14th and November 15th, Barwell, Leicestershire Society, rang six quarter peals for Sunday services. All 15 members rang in at least one quarter and there were 13 'first in method.' The ages of the band range from 13 to 75.

On November 11th a peal of Bob Major was rung at St. Nicholas' Church, North Bradley, Wilts, as a compliment to Canon S. D. M. Davys, who has completed 21 years as Vicar of this parish. During this time he has been responsible for two major improvements in the tower, i.e., the rehanging of the bells in 1935 and the augmenting from six to eight bells in 1950.

The christening of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kingcott took place at All Saints' Church, Wrington, on Sunday. The baby was given the names of Patricia Anne and the godparents were Miss Elizabeth Faulknall (Leicester), Miss Prescott and Mr. T. Mark White (Guildford). After the ceremony a quarter peal of Grandsire Caters was rung.

The Men who Rang the Record Length of 21,600 Bristol Surprise Major

Below we give brief biographical details of the band which rang the record length of 21,600 Bristol Surprise Major, at Over on Saturday, November 4th

PETER LAFLIN.—Sixty one years of age on December 5th next. The 'father' of the band has a long and creditable career behind him. A Suffolk man by birth but Cheshire by adoption, he rang his first peal at Debenham, where he learnt to ring, on May 26th, 1906. His peal total is 333 of which 89 have been rung on handbells. He is not a conductor although, undoubtedly, he would have made a sound one, but prefers to support the conductor by always giving of his best. His selection for the treble was no accident for it was realised that the treble ringer must be above all a reliable man. His ability has long been recognised, for he took part in the 17,824 Oxford Treble Bob Major at Heptonstall in 1927, and on April 14th in the following year was one of the band which, after ringing over 18,000 Double Norwich, had the disappointment of knowing that the shortened 'peal' which they were obliged to ring could not be true. He and Edward Jenkins have the distinction of being, so we believe, the only living ringers who have thrice rung over 17,000 changes, and to Peter Laflin alone belongs the honour of being the only man to score two peals of over 17,000 changes. From 1919 to 1926 he was in Canada and while there was with the late Harry Withers at the opening of the Metropolitan carillon in Toronto in 1922. His peals include 10,080 Bristol, the first peal of Superlative at Debenham, rung in 1907 by the Sunday service band, and his handbell peals include many firsts in the method for both the Lancashire Association and the Chester Guild. He rang in the first peals of Stedman Cinques for the Chester Guild on hand and tower bells. He is in charge of the Beeston library of the Chester Guild and is steeple keeper at St. George's, Stockport, and the state of the library and the condition of the bells are a credit to the loving care which he lavishes on them both.

WILFRED STEVENSON, who will be 42 years old on December 19th next, is a ringer whose ability is unquestioned for he took part in the peals which led up to the record Spliced Treble Bob Minor peal in 73 methods, the greatest number of Treble Bob Minor methods which can be spliced into seven true and complete extents. His first peal was Grandsire Doubles in 1929 and his first as conductor Grandsire Triples in 1930. He has rung 269 peals of which he has conducted seven. He took part in the 10,080 of Bristol at Over in 1948, and in the first peal of Spliced Surprise Major for the Guild as well as in several firsts in the method for the Guild. For a few years just before the war he gave up ringing because of the pressure of business but since his return he has quickly taken up the slack and his critical faculty, always acute, is not at all impaired. He can be relied upon to do his utmost in any peal or touch and his return to the belfry where he learnt to ring gave greater strength to the already capable band there. He rings at Christ Church, Macclesfield.

HENRY O. BAKER.—A proud Salopian by birth, 42 years of age, he is, nevertheless, a proud and enthusiastic member of the Chester Guild. He rang his first peal in 1925 and his first as conductor (Stedman Triples) in 1947. He has rung 111 peals and conducted eight. Willing and obliging by disposition, he is always ready to help by either standing in or out of a peal as occasion demands and when the departure of Alan A. Potts on military service left a gap in the band he volunteered to fill it. Although it is only of late years that he has gone in for the higher flights of method ringing, he has gained a reputation for being a safe and sound method ringer and in this, his first long length, he rang like a veteran. His service ringing is done at St. Mary's Church, Handbridge, Chester.

JOHN E. BIBBY has a long and established reputation for long length ringing for he was in the record 11232 Superlative Surprise Major at Bolton in 1927, and in the unsuccessful attempt at Double Norwich which failed after over 18,000 changes had been rung. In 1948 he rang the 10,080 of Bristol at Over and in 1949 in the record length of Spliced Surprise 6,496 at Frodsham. Forty-nine years of age, he began to ring under the guidance of Mr. E. H. Lewis at the age of 11 and rang his first peal, Grandsire Triples, in 1920, calling his first (Bob Minor on handbells) in 1922. He has rung 406 peals of which he has conducted 150. He has a penchant for ringing fourths to peals and it was thought advisable to exploit this at Over to ensure the success of the peal. His expression in peal ringing is generally impassive but occasionally his face lights up as some familiar landmark is safely passed. He took part in the first silent peal of London Surprise Major for the Chester Guild and in the first silent peal of Bristol. He carries on the family tradition of service ringing at Frodsham and his young son William has already started on a peal ringing career which it is hoped will eclipse even that of his father.

C. KENNETH LEWIS.—At 37 is the youngest member of the band and rang his first peal in 1934 and his first as conductor the following year. Since then he has rung 353 peals and called 143 of them. He conducted the record Spliced Treble Bob Minor peal in 73 methods and also the first peal of Spliced Surprise Major in 14 methods for the Chester Guild. His records include many firsts in the method for the Guild, including Cambridge Surprise Maximus and Stedman Cinques, silent London Surprise Major and the first silent peal of Bristol. Not content with practical ringing alone, he has spent many hours at the study of composition, particularly in those methods for which it is difficult to obtain a peal. By temperament he belongs to that class of person who says 'We do the possible at once, the impossible takes a little longer.' He is a service ringer at Bowdon and report secretary of the Chester Guild.

WALTER ALLMAN, who is 40 years of age, rang his first peal in 1937 and his first as conductor in the following year. Of a long line of ringing forbears, he has rapidly come to the front through his ability to learn methods quickly and his genius for organisation, particularly those gatherings after peals. Of a genial disposition, he takes everything in his stride and his peals, which total 233 (conducted 28) include several firsts in the methods for the Guild, i.e., Cambridge Maximus, silent London Surprise Major and the first silent Bristol. By dint of hard work he has, with other ringers, built up a good Sunday service band at his home tower of Runcorn.

FRED DUNKERLEY.—Ringing secretary of the Lancashire Association, he has made rapid strides in method ringing in the past two or three years and there was at no time any doubt as to his ability to ring the length required although it was his first long length. Forty-five years of age, Lancashire born, he rang his first peal in 1922 and his first as conductor (Stedman Triples) in 1933. Soon after that he gave up ringing for a period of ten years to devote himself to his business interests and came back to it after the war-time ban was lifted. His peal total is about 220 of which he has conducted about 100. Practically all his Surprise peals in new methods have been rung without previous practice and he has called Carter's Odd Bob peal and J. O. Lancashire's peal of Stedman Triples. He has also scored three Surprise peals in one day. But it is not only in ringing that he has made his mark, for he has also learnt to fly and he is very proud of his flying record. He has flown in eleven races, including the King's Cup, and been placed in nine of them. This year he won two out of the four national air races he entered and obtained a place in the others. In fact to stand in the peal he cancelled a trip to the Isle of Man by air, and on the Sunday morning flew over in a single seater plane. His home tower is Moorside, Oldham.

JOHN WORTH, the conductor of the peal on whom the burden rested, so it seemed, very lightly. As is well known to many readers of this journal, he is a conductor of high capability and no mean psychologist. Both these qualities are the fruits of a long and hard experience for he rang and conducted his first peal in 1929; in fact all the band were first pealers, and since that date he has rung 532 peals of which he has conducted 238. Forty years of age, he is chairman of the Macclesfield Branch of the Chester Guild and whilst he gives some time to the higher flights of method ringing he also devotes considerable time and thought to the learners on whom the future depends. His peals include the 73 Treble Bob Minor record, the first peal of Spliced Surprise in 14 Major methods for the Chester Guild, many firsts in the method for the Guild, silent London Surprise Major and the first silent peal of Bristol. It may be said that he introduced Soliced Surprise Major ringing to Cheshire, for he called the first peal in the four standard methods in 1933. He is Ringing Master of Christ Church, Macclesfield, and the number of ringers shown in the last annual report of the Guild is a tribute to his genius for teaching and keeping ringers, for there are no fewer than 19 members at that tower, to say nothing of those he has taught from other neighbouring towers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CONGRATULATIONS

Dear Sir,—Please allow me, through the courtesy of your columns, as conductor of the band which rang 18 144 changes in 1933 to add my congratulations to the band successful in their attempt to ring 21,600 changes of Bristol Surprise. A great peal and worthy of praise.—Yours truly, Hertford.

THE RECORD PEAL

Dear Sir,—On behalf of those who took part in the recent Debenham peal attempt, I wish to congratulate heartily and sincerely John Worth and his band on their magnificent performance.

The dearth of raisins in the Cheshire District undoubtedly contributed to the success of the venture but, nevertheless, a summit has been reached by a difficult path and possible aspirants to long length records may well be daunted by the magnitude of the task. It is, indeed, a fine thing that the longest peal ever rung by one set of men should be rung (and in a fairly difficult Surprise method) by men, with one exception, from one Diocesan Guild. The Cheshire Guild has reason indeed to be proud of its members.—Yours sincerely,

Norwich.

NOLAN GOLDEN.

RECORD LENGTHS IN SECRET

Sir,—Do those members of our fraternity realise the incalculable harm they are doing to our cause in the recent record length attempt.

I am not, of course, attempting to belittle their magnificent achievement, and it is a magnificent achievement, when looked at from a ringer's point of view, but the majority of the population are unfortunately absolutely apathetic to that which we hold dear.

The undue publicity brought on by this attempt has brought on our heads a spate of ridicule never before known to us. In my office I am daily inundated with newspapers, brought in by people who know I am a ringer, all of which have amusing and some insulting reference to the fact that eight men should desire to pull a bell for twelve hours or more, in fact till one collapses under the strain—bad luck to A. P. C.

As you are aware, it is hopeless to try to explain to the layman why these things should be, but might I suggest that should any further attempts of this nature be contemplated, an isolated tower be chosen, and no intimation be given to the lay press. The result, success or failure, could then be published only in 'The Ringing World,' and the adverse publicity would be avoided.—Sincerely yours,

ERNEST J. ROWE.

MR. JAMES GEORGE'S RECORD

Dear Sir,—If my life survives, by Almighty God, to November 27th, 1950, I shall, on that date, reach 97 years of age.

I am thankful to inform you that my health is improving and I hope to ring another peal in the warm weather next summer.

On August 24th, 1939, I rang a tower bell peal at the age of 85 years and nine months and am the only surviving veteran ringer in the world to ring a tower bell peal at that age. I am also the oldest veteran ringer in the world to ring a handbell peal at the age of 95 years.

I have rung 1,281 peals in 420 different cathedrals, churches and other places in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales.

Poole, Dorset.

JAMES GEORGE

SUB-EDITING

Dear Sir,—Many who have suffered at the hands of irresponsible sub-editors will applaud your recent leader, in which you deplore the fanciful account in a Sunday newspaper of the Debenham peal.

Quite recently a report of our annual outing was sent to a weekly paper known to many ringers. It contained the information that 'this was the first time these fine bells (St. Leonard's, Watlington) had been rung for six months.' After the sub had finished with it the sentence appeared minus the last three words and must have caused some bewilderment.

KIBWORTH TENOR

Sir,—In the report of a peal rung recently at Kibworth, Leicestershire, the weight of the tenor is stated as being 14½ cwt.—½ cwt. more than reported in one or two earlier peals there, and over two cwt. more than one I rang in, reported in the old M.C.A. yearly report for 1931. In that year, in a letter sent to me from Messrs. Taylors, the weight was given of Kibworth tenor as 12 cwt. 1 qr. 9 lb.

ORIGIN WANTED

Dear Sir,—Since having a newspaper cutting given to me the other evening, I have been rather interested to find out if this is the complete 'Old Somerset Rhyme,' and also if anyone could help me with any information as to its origin:—

Ye rascals of ringers, ye merciless foes,
Disturbers of all who seek calm repose.
How I wish, for the peace and good of the land,

Ye would wind round your neck what ye hold in your hand.

Yours faithfully,

R. G. FIELD.

Yeovil.

WIDECOMBE-IN-THE-MOOR

Dear Sir,—Might I add to the information given by Mr. Horseman. In 1553 Widecombe had four bells and at a later period the number was increased to five. The old tenor became cracked and out of the old metal, Messrs. C. and G. Mears cast the two present trebles in 1848. I noted the fifth, a 1633 bell—not 1663 as given by Mr. Horseman—and its inscription is SOLI DEO DETER.

Regarding the third bell I leave your readers to form their own views. Here is the full inscription:—Robert Hamlyn, Sonne of John Hamlyn, Chittelford, gathered of young men and mayds fyftene. T.P.1632.

OBITUARY OF THE WEEK

THE REV. R. F. R. ROUTH

The news of the death of the Rev. R. F. R. Routh was received by his many ringing friends with much regret. He passed away at Beaconsfield, his old parish, on November 5th at the early age of 61, after an illness lasting for several months.

The funeral service, which took the form of a Requiem Mass, was held at the Parish Church on Thursday, November 9th, when the Celebrant was the present Rector of Beaconsfield (the Rev. C. R. Warner). The service was preceded and followed by half-muffled ringing, which included a quarter peal of Stedman Triples by the following:—H. Wingrove (cond.) 1, D. R. Fletcher 2, J. Harrison 3, R. Buckland 4, J. Howard 5, A. Bridges 6, W. Lee 7, S. Hatfield 8. Others who took part in the ringing were Miss M. Wingrove and Miss E. Gordon.

The Oxford Diocesan Guild was represented by the Rev. E. C. S. Lowman, who succeeded the Rev. R. Routh as chairman of the East Berks and South Bucks Branch of the Guild when he left to take up the living of St. Ambrose, Bournemouth. Other members of the Branch wrote to express their regret at being unable to be present owing to illness, and the difficulty of making arrangements, due to the early hour of the service. The bells of St. Peter's Church, Bournemouth, were rung half-muffled on Thursday evening as a tribute to his memory.

Mr. Routh endeared himself to all ringers with whom he came in contact by his friendliness, his youthful spirit and wholehearted enjoyment of ringing. He came to Beaconsfield from Hitchin in April, 1937, and while he was Rector of Beaconsfield he always found time, even on the great festivals, to take part in service ringing. During his nine and a half years in this parish, he found increased opportunities for peal ringing, which he enjoyed to the full. He rang his first peal in each of the following Surprise Major methods:—Cambridge, New Cambridge, Yorkshire, Superlative, Lincolnshire and Beaconsfield, and also took part in the first peal of Stedman Triples rung by an entirely local band.

He rang on these bells for the last time at All Saintside last year, when he visited the parish to preach at the Patronal Festival, and took part in a quarter peal.

His keen sense of humour and his unflinching sympathy will be missed by those who were privileged to call him friend, and they are the poorer for his passing.

D. R. F.

Mr. Arthur Davis, of Bournemouth, writes:—Mr. Routh came to St. Ambrose shortly after the war and I remember we rang a touch of Grandsire Triples in his new church after his induction. He was particularly pleased with this for, although St. Ambrose possesses a fine tenor bell for ringing and a frame for eight bells, local inhabitants have prevented the full ring being placed there.

As soon as he settled in his new parish Mr. Routh identified himself actively with the ringing in the District, attending practices at John's and St. Peter's regularly with his sons when they were available. He was attached to St. John's, Surrey Road, as that church was nearest to his own but I think he missed his Sunday ringing. Mr. Routh held office in the Christchurch District as representative on the Contest Committee and as Assistant Ringing Master. He enjoyed a peal attempt and rarely refused a rope if his duties at St. Ambrose permitted. We miss him very much at Bournemouth but we looked forward to his going to Winchester (as he did) for we hoped his interest in bells may have resulted in the Cathedral bells becoming more accessible than than they are at present, but it was not to be.

His passing leaves a gap which will not be easily filled. Bournemouth and District ringers extend their deepest sympathy to Mrs. Routh and family at this time. Tributes were rung on the bells of St. Peter's and St. John's and a peal of Maximus was rung at Christchurch to his memory. His wise counsels and friendliness brought happiness to us all in Bournemouth during his all too short time amongst us.

MR. J. H. CHARLESWORTH

We regret to announce the death on November 6th, at the age of 72, of Mr. James Henry (Harry) Charlesworth, the oldest of the ringers at St. Mary's, Bolsterstone, Yorks. By his death is dissolved a partnership which must have been almost unique in its way. Five men, all members of the Yorkshire Association, who all learned to ring under the late Mr. David Brearley, and had rung at Bolsterstone ever since, had been together for over 35 years.

Harry Charlesworth belonged to that rapidly diminishing band who joined the Association in the last century (1897) and had been a regular ringer and chorister at Bolsterstone ever since. He was an enthusiastic bell man, that is, anything appertaining to bells was of great interest to him. He was tower keeper at St. Mary's for many years but, on removing some distance away from the village, he was compelled to give up that job although nothing could stop his usual regular and most punctual attendance at service ringing. His jovial personality made him deservedly popular and he was of some renown in the place as a singer of both sentimental and comic songs.

An excellent striker, he liked mostly to be at the 'heavy end,' although he was equally at home anywhere. Indeed, it was a saying of his that he would take 'what's left.'

He had rung 74 peals, all for the Yorkshire Association, in Plain and Treble Bob methods, and rang in the Association's longest length of Double Norwich (8.064) as well as in the longest length of College Single Major (8.336).

He died in the Sheffield Royal Infirmary, after being there some weeks, and was cremated at the City Crematorium on November 11th. Representatives of various organisations were present as well as the relatives. The Bolsterstone ringers were represented by Mr. William Harrison and Mr. J. R. Brearley. The service was taken by the Vicar of Bolsterstone (the Rev. Surtees) and the bells of St. Mary's were rung half muffled by his fellow ringers of his own tower on Sunday, November 12th.

MR. J. W. HOLLINGWORTH

For more than 50 years Mr. John William Hollingworth, of Spalding, had rung Lincolnshire bells. His death occurred on November 6th after an illness of a week's duration.

He learnt to ring at Whaplode, Lincs, when five carpenters rang the bells about 1898. He afterwards lived at Surfleet, where he became a pupil of the Rev. H. L. James with whom he did most of his peal ringing. In all he rang about 60 peals and had a reputation as a good striker. Later in life he moved to Spalding and joined the local company. Only eight days before he died he was in his customary place and ringing for service. His wife, who died several years ago, was a sister of Mr. Rupert Richardson.

Four of the local ringers—Messrs. G. W. and A. Mills, R. Stevenson and G. Bennett—acted as bearers at the funeral on November 9th. Wreaths were received from the local band and the Elloe Deaneries Branch of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild, of which he had been a member for many years.

In the evening 1,260 Stedman Triples was rung half-muffled by A. F. Farr 1, Mrs. A. Richardson 2, G. Bennett 3, G. W. Mills 4, M. Bennett 5, A. Mills 6, F. G. Ames (cond.) 7, Miss A. Lawson 8.

DEDICATIONS

BRANDESTON, SUFFOLK

The rededication of the six bells of Brandeston, Suffolk, took place on October 28th in the presence of a large congregation including some 50 ringers. The bells, which had been silent for over 40 years, had been taken to the foundry of Messrs. John Taylor where the second and fifth were recast and the others retuned and hung in a new iron frame and fittings.

After the rededication the Bishop of the Diocese, Dr. Richard Brook, said the sound of church bells appealed to him more than any other form of music. He related the various uses of bells and was glad to see so many recruits taking up the art and he appealed to the young folk of Brandeston to commence ringing. Tea was provided for all visitors and the bells were kept going until a late hour. The bell-founders were represented by Mr. John Fidler who was congratulated on a very fine job considering the tenor, in G sharp, weighs only 7½ cwt.

C. W. P.

TILNEY, CAMBRIDGESHIRE

The bells of Tilney All Saints were dedicated on November 4th by the Rev. Sturgis-Jones, Vicar of Terrington St. John. The dedication took place after shortened evensong, conducted by the Vicar of Tilney (the Rev. Bodley). The preacher was the Vicar of Walpole St. Andrew (the Rev. H. J. Scott), the lesson being read by the Rev. Bacon-Phillips, Vicar of Clenchwarton.

After the service a few short touches were rung until tea was served in the Church Room by the lady members of the church. After tea, the Rev. Sturgis-Jones congratulated the local band and the people of Tilney on carrying through the restoration.

Replying, Mr. W. Rose (local captain) said that they had had many disappointments and had to wait a long while but he thought that it was worth it. He thanked all those who had helped and Messrs. Mears and Stainbank for the grand job they had made of the bells.

Various touches and rounds to suit all-comers were rung, everybody remarking on the wonderful transformation the bellhangers had made.

J. E. F.

ESHER, SURREY

After many months of silence, the bells of Christ Church, Esher, were dedicated on November 5th by the Rector (the Rev. E. A. Hone). The original ring of six has been retuned by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank and two new bells added. The latter are the gift of Mr. Van Beugan Bik and his mother-in-law, Mrs. A. Thompson, given in memory of Mr. Bik's wife.

Following the Sung Eucharist, the Rector mounted to the ringing chamber where the captain of the ringers, Mr. W. Massey, handed him the ropes and requested him to rededicate the bells to the glory of God and to the use of His Church. After this dedication Mr. Bik presented the ropes of the two new bells to the Rector with a similar request. The bells were then rung.

In the course of his sermon, the Rector said the same firm of bell-founders who cast the bells had carried out the repairs and made the two additional ones. The bells of Christ Church contained some of the metal of the old bells used at Esher Parish Church.

OBITUARY—continued.

MR. W. WOOD

It is with regret that we record the death of Mr. W. Wood at his home at Great Hale, Lincs, on November 9th. Mr. Wood had had trouble with his eyes for a long time and latterly was unable to ring, but he was always interested in anything connected with ringing and always willing to give good advice to a learner. He served the Exercise well and will be greatly missed.

The funeral took place on November 11th.

LEICESTER GUILD ANNUAL FESTIVAL

ENCOURAGING THE YOUNG RINGER

THERE was an accent on youth at the annual festival, dinner and social of the Leicester Diocesan Guild held at the Bull's Head, Loughborough, on November 4th. During the afternoon the bells of the parish church and the bell foundry were available.

The president (Mr. H. J. Poole) was in the chair at the dinner supported by Mrs. Poole, the Archdeacon of Loughborough (the Ven. W. J. Lyon), Mr. P. L. Taylor (vice-president), Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Rowley, Mr. and Mrs. S. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. C. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Fidler, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ballard, Mr. N. Chaddock and Mr. T. Mark White.

The president extended a hearty welcome to Archdeacon Lyon and thanked him for the continued support he gave to the Guild. He also remarked on the number of young ringers present saying 'The young ringers of to-day are the ringers of to-morrow,' and appealed to the older members to give them every encouragement. Mr. Poole also congratulated the band in the Loughborough District who were ringing the multi-method peals.

GUILD'S FORMATION JUSTIFIED

Referring to remarks which had been made to him, when visiting outlying Districts of the Guild, that the meeting would never have been held under the old M.C.A., the president said this fully justified the formation of the Guild. He stated that the hon. secretary (Mr. W. A. Wood) was expecting to enter hospital during the week and that he would not be available for a period of approximately six weeks. The hon. treasurer had undertaken to deputise for him during that period. He knew he was voicing the wish of everyone present in wishing Mr. Wood a speedy recovery.

Archdeacon Lyon briefly replied, and said he represented the whole of the clergy in the diocese who all appreciated the amount of work put in by the ringers. They were always proud to welcome visitors to Loughborough, having, as they had, such a lovely church and one of the finest rings of ten in the country.

Mr. P. L. Taylor proposed the toast of 'The Visitors' and said that these included Mr. N. Chaddock, representing the Yorkshire Association; Mr. M. White, representing 'The Ringing World' and the Guildford District Guild; Mr. R. Noon, Peterborough Guild; Miss Christine Dunnington, Ely Association; Mr. W. Smith, Peak District, and others, all of whom were heartily welcomed. Mr. Taylor said he hoped all these would take back to their own Associations the best wishes of the Leicester Diocesan Guild. He also welcomed the wives and friends of the ringers, all of whom helped to make these festivals such a success.

Mr. N. Chaddock, replying, said that he had been to Leicester on several occasions, but this was the first time that a visit had coincided with the Festival, but he would make an effort to come again. As a north-countryman he was much impressed by the enthusiasm of the younger members and also by the splendid way the belfries were kept.

It was always a case of 'sharpening your wits' before coming to Leicester, added Mr. Chaddock, as he was always being invited to take part in some feat or other as the ringing possibilities of the Guild members knew no bounds.

Mr. E. C. Turner proposed the toast of 'The Ringing World' in his own inimitable manner. He said that although not a big peal ringer himself, it always gave him pleasure to read the accounts of peals rung, meetings, tours and outings held. He very often felt like answering some of the letters inserted.

Mr. M. White briefly replied and conveyed the best wishes of the Editor to the Guild.

The president expressed his pleasure at having old Joe Morris with them again and as Ernest was also present he asked them to join Jill and himself in ringing a course of Stedman Triples on the handbells. This was much appreciated.

Dancing and games followed and all present stated that this was the best Festival ever since the Guild was formed. A. E. R.

BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION

MEETING AT MILTON ERNEST

On November 4th a meeting of the Bedford District was held at Milton Ernest. Ringing on the ring of six bells here, with its ground floor pull, is not always an enviable task for the conductor as the floor of the belfry is of stone which transmits the sound very easily; however, the 'go' of the bells is fair and we managed to bring several methods round successfully.

The church has many interesting features for the non-ringing wife or boy friend and is well worth a visit. On the right-hand side of the tower arch there can be seen a wall-case where bread is still placed for the poor of the parish. At present the ancient rood-screen is in the north aisle serving to partition off the Vicar's vestry from the church. The Vicar, the Rev. A. R. Ennis, has started a Church Restoration Fund, and one of his objects is to move the screen to its original position under the chancel arch. Another project of his is the building of a ringers' gallery, so that the floor space may be used as a choir vestry.

After a service conducted by the Vicar, we walked down to the church schoolroom for a fine tea prepared by the local ringers' wives. Our president, Miss E. Steel, was chairman at the business meeting, and Amptill was chosen for the next meeting on December 2nd. We were told that our annual general meeting would be in Bedford on February 3rd.

Our evening ringing had been fixed at Bletsoe and while we cycled the couple of miles there we were reminded that it was Guy Fawkes' night. In our part of the country the custom of ringing in thanksgiving for the exposure of the Gunpowder Plot is, unfortunately, dying out. However, it was not hard to imagine the village ringers of a bygone age climbing the spiral staircase to ring on the old ring of five bells housed in the Norman tower. True, there is now a clock-case in the tower by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, and electricity has been installed, but, strange though it may seem, a stirrup still hangs on the wall to remind us of the past when 'scientific' was in its infancy and 'firing' was the order of the day.

Winchester and Portsmouth

PORTSMOUTH DISTRICT

About 40 members, friends and visitors were present at the quarterly meeting of the Portsmouth District, held at Fareham on November 11th. The fair sex were in the majority—so much so, in fact, that one wag (male) asked if he had made a mistake and come to a Ladies' Guild meeting by mistake!

A wedding delayed ringing until 3.30. The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. B. C. Daniel) with Mrs. Linter, wife of the District chairman at the organ. A sumptuous tea followed in the School Hall.

At the business meeting, seven young ladies from Fareham and one young man from Portsmouth Cathedral were elected as ringing members. (If we continue to get new members in this ratio, the mere male will soon become an oddity in the belfry, as ladies were at one time!) The election of Mr. P. J. Eves, of Chelmsford, as compounding member, was also ratified. It was announced that the annual District meeting will be held at Portsmouth Cathedral on the third Saturday in January, 1951.

Before departing for more ringing on the tower bells, the gentlemen were called on to perform on the handbells, so three of them, with the help of a lady visitor from Chichester, rang a course of Grandsire Triples. Afterwards, the three males rang a good 120 Plain Bob Minor.

Methods rung during the day were:—Rounds; Grandsire, Stedman and Erin Triples; Plain Bob, Double Norwich Court Bob and Cambridge Surprise Major.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD BICESTER DEANERY BRANCH AT CAVERSFIELD.

The first meeting of the Bicester Deanery Branch to be held at the charming and well-kept Church of St. Lawrence, Caversfield, took place on November 4th. The fine ring of five was rung to Stedman, Grandsire and Plain Dob Doubles, and the bells of Bicester Church in the evening.

The Vicar, the Rev. C. Cowland Cooper (branch president), conducted the service, the lesson was read by Mr. F. Sharpe (vice-president), and a real ringers' sermon given by the Rev. Nott, of Bucknell. Launton choir led the singing, which was accompanied by handbells, and the Blessing was pronounced by Bishop H. J. Buxton, Rector of Launton.

Tea was served in the library of Caversfield House (by kind permission of Col. and Mrs. Wyndham). The business meeting was presided over by the branch president. The next meeting was arranged for Islip on the last Saturday in January.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks by Mr. Sharpe, to Col. and Mrs. Wyndham, the handbell ringers, the choir, the Rev. Nott, the Vicar and churchwardens and all who had made the meeting a success.

SUMMER TOUR, 1950

It had been intended this summer to make a waterborne incursion into eastern England by way of the River Ouse. News of the nautical training undertaken last Whitsun had apparently leaked out, however, in spite of the efforts to keep secret the methods of disembarkation practised. The natives of those parts have not forgotten the traditions of Hereward the Wake, and with the skill of long generations of repelling raids they prepared their counter measures. The Great Ouse Catchment Board rendered the river impassable at several points, and all craft suitable for our purpose were withdrawn beyond reach.

The element of surprise was considerable—only a few hours' notice of changed plans was given to most members—and the most vigorous action was therefore necessary to prevent a rout. Two members, indeed, fled the country, and the original organiser was admitted to hospital a few days later. The rest of the party assembled on Saturday, July 29th, at a remote house near Luton which was taken as a base. The men slept in tents in the garden while the women slept indoors—and only, while, for until they had gone to bed, and once they had woken in the morning, sleep was impossible within a radius of about a hundred yards. On Sunday the party split up and joined in service ringing at several local towers. On Monday morning a peal of Plain Bob, instead of Cambridge, which the band could not settle down to properly, was rung at Knebworth. In the afternoon the sixes at St. Paul's, Waldon, King's Walden and Olney were visited. At King's Walden, Major Harrison kindly invited the party to visit the garden of Kingswalden Park.

The first stop on Tuesday was Luton where there is a fine ring of ten in an equally fine church. Houghton Regis was visited on the way to Dunstable for lunch. After an enjoyable hour on the bells of Dunstable Priory, the party set off for Flamstead where the Vicar showed them many of the treasures and interesting features of the church before ringing. In the evening, visits to Harpenden and St. Albans Abbey (for the local practice) concluded the day's activities.

By Wednesday sufficient motorised transport had been collected for a move to Cambridge. Five towers were visited on the way—Ashwell, Royston, Ickleton, Sawston and Whittlesford. The lovely eight at Ickleton would have been even more appreciated had we realised what was in store at Whittlesford where the 'go' of the six bells left much to be desired. The tallest and shortest male members of the party claimed that they turned in the tenor to Double Court and Plain Bob respectively, claims which no other members of the band had enough breath to dispute. A stay of three days was made at Cambridge, the Master and secretary of the Cambridge University Guild having arranged ringing for Thursday afternoon and Saturday. They explained their presence by some vague reference to Long Vac. Terms—a degrading habit of these parts, but fortunate for us.

On Thursday morning part of the original programme was kept, the pleasant eight at St. Ives and the sixes at Holywell (an unsuccessful peal attempt) and Hemingford Grey being on or near the river. The return in the afternoon was by way of Over, Longstanton and Histon. In the evening the birthday of one of the party was celebrated at the Railway Vue, Histon, with a supper, accompanied by selections on the Victorian equivalent of the 'nickelodion,' followed by a darts tournament. Skittles and a rather noisy vocal party whose choice of song was considered by the Master to be subversive to good order and belfry discipline.

Only two towers were visited on Friday—St. Mary's, Ely, and St. George's, Littleport—though this had nothing to do with the previous evening's activities. The rest of the time was spent in Ely Cathedral and by and in the river

On Saturday the bells of Cambridge were available at St. Andrew's (where a rope broke during the last touch, but the bell set to the gratification of at least one ringer), the Roman Catholic church and St. Bene't's, well known for its association with Fabian Stedman. That evening the party returned to near Luton, and rang locally again on Sunday.

The problem of Monday's ringing was solved by the hospitality of some local ringers who kindly let us join them on a trip to Wingrave, Aston Abbotts, Stewkley, Drayton Parslow, Newton Longville, Blechley and Fenny Stratford. That evening most of the party returned home though two or three remained to strike camp the next morning.

Our thanks are especially due to Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, our hosts near Luton, and other friends.

SOLIHULL CHURCH AND BELLS

EDGAR C. SHEPHERD has given to the Exercise a book in which it can take a just pride—'The Bells and Tower of Solihull Church.' It embodies far more than an historical essay or catalogue of the history of a ring of bells, some of which date from the 16th century. Woven into the story are some of those famous personalities who created change ringing as it is to-day and who knew Solihull tower and bells. Solihull has a lifelong connection with the author and few ringers of to-day could have had his 'baptism.' More than 50 years ago Charles Fairfield, the towerkeeper, of Solihull, so he tells in the Preface, carried him into the bell chamber and there laid him inside the upturned tenor bell. Thus began a long attachment and out of the affection engendered 'by years of this genial bondage' came the desire to write this book, which is dedicated to his brother, Hubert Shepherd, who was for more than 50 years a chorister at Solihull Church.

It was in the early part of the 13th century that the first church at Solihull was built. First came a wooden spire and then a stone edifice on the top of the central tower to a total height of 190 feet. This spire crashed in a hurricane on March 15th, 1757, into the church roof, leaving a jagged, grotesque stump squatting upon the tower. The rebuilding of the spire was not completed until 20 years after and then it was some 22 feet shorter than the old one. Since those days Solihull Church has constantly been in the hands of the builders, the last big restoration scheme being completed as recently as 1948.

In pre-Reformation days Solihull had its 'custod campanor' (towerkeeper), and there are records of payments to him for repairs to the three bells. It was when Henry Greswold was Rector that Solihull was provided with a ring of eight. A friend of his from his university days was Anthony Scattergood, whose son, Samuel, a friend of Fabian Stedman, brought a company of 20 Leicester ringers to Solihull for the opening and testing of the bells on August 27th, 1686. Samuel Scattergood was then minister of Blockley, Worcs, and the certificate he gave as to the worthiness of the bells is quoted by Mr. Shepherd. What better praise could be given than the following: 'Ye said 8 Bells to be well and workmanlike made, every way right for tone and metall, ye chearfullest and best Ring of Bells for their weight that I ever heard?'

Mr. Shepherd deduces that this opening ceremony was the first time when Solihull bells were rung to changes.

Scattergood, he reminds ringers, was a contributor to Stedman's book, 'Campanalogia,' was a member of the Society of College Youths, and an accomplished ringer and composer. The Leicester Scholars were established some years before in 1669 and Fabian Stedman stayed with them several days explaining his 'artes and mysteries.'

The first peal on the bells was 5,184 Bob Major, rung by the St. Martin's Youths, Birmingham, in three hours and ten minutes. The composer and conductor was a famous personage, Samuel Lawrence, who was then 26 years of age. Lawrence was said to have attained the weight of 32 stone and there were many churches at which he could not ring because the stairs were too narrow for him to ascend. The historic incident in his life was his visit to St. Alkmund's, Shrewsbury, where he got stuck on the belfry stairs, and, according to the story, it took five ringers to get him out—two to push and two to pull and Lawrence in the middle.

Modern ringing at this tower dates from May 2nd, 1891, when a preliminary meeting was held and the outcome was the formation of the Solihull Guild of Amateur Ringers. Mainspring of this Guild was Geoffrey Martineau. The bells were then in a deplorable condition. An appeal for funds was issued, two bells, the 3rd and 5th, recast by Messrs. Barwell, and two new trebles added. A new wooden frame was also made. The ring of ten was dedicated on July 6th, 1894, by the Bishop of Marlborough, and ten members of the St. Martin's Guild from Birmingham were invited for the opening ringing. Their peal attempt failed after 2 hours 25 minutes, the tenorman being overcome by the heat.

The present ring of ten, with a tenor of 21 cwt. 1 qr. 11 lb., came into being following a report in August, 1930, by the late Major J. H. B. Hesse, who found the bells extremely faulty in their harmonics and other defects. The contract was placed with Messrs. John Taylor and Co. and the ten rededicated by the Bishop of Birmingham on Oct. 1st, 1932. It was the author who composed the first peal on the new ten—5,057 Grandsire Caters—rung on Dec. 9th, 1933, and conducted by his old friend, Mr. Albert Walker.

We close this brief review with the words of Mr. John Burman, who wrote the Foreword: Mr. Shepherd's book may easily become a classic of its kind, and will certainly be read as long as the bells of Solihull are heard on the Warwickshire air.

By ringing a peal at Little Petherick last Saturday, the Rev. A. S. Roberts is the first to ring a hundred peals in Cornwall. Ninety-nine have been for the Truro Guild and one for the Devon Guild.

Herrick B. Bowley has realised one of his ambitions, that of ringing a peal on handbells. His question of 'What can I do to get my name in Belfry Gossip?' has been a standing joke with the Leicester Cathedral members for some time. It was his 150th peal and on the way to P.H.Q. he was collided into by a youthful cyclist and received a nasty cut on his leg. What Herrick said and did does not concern the Ringing Exercise, but to add to his soreness he raised a blister on his finger and this broke during the first quarter peal and he finished the peal with a very sore finger which was bleeding. He little thought the start of a handbell career was so cruel. Needless to say there was abundant sympathy extended to him.

Will readers please note that there was an error in the numbering of 'The Ringing World' on November 3rd. There will be no issue No. 2065.

In honour of the 81st birthday of Mr. Anderson Y. Tyler, of Irthlingborough, a peal of Minor was rung at Great Addington, Northants. on November 9th. Mr. Tyler is still ringing and working and is as cheerful as ever. He rang two peals of Superlative in 1949 and hopes to ring more. He has been known to make an excellent job of turning in to Surprise the 30 cwt. tenor of St. Neots and other heavy tenors in recent years.

In honour of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Nichols, of Rectory Cottage, Ducklington, near Witney, Oxon. 1,260 Doubles (480 Reverse Canterbury, 240 Bob Doubles, 120 April Day and 420 Grandsire) was rung at St. Aldate's, Oxford, on November 18th, by D. Woodley 1, Miss A. Rodwell (first quarter 'inside') 2, Miss M. Biederman 3, A. F. Barrett 4, W. Fenn (first quarter as conductor) 5, T. Bowles 6.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Last Tuesday was the 25th anniversary of Mr. James George turning in the tenor of St. Mary-le-Bow to a peal of 5,040 Kent Treble Bob Maximus in four hours and seven minutes. The tenor weighed 2 tons 13 cwt. 22 lbs. Mr. George was then 72 years of age; he performed a feat unsurpassed for a man of that age.

Miss Rosemary Seabrook, the latest life member of the Essex Association, impressed the company by the way she rang in a peal of Minor in four methods at Great Yeldham, Essex, on November 18th. 'She never made a single mistake,' writes the conductor.

Our friends at Piddlehinton, Dorset, are progressing. Ruth Jeanes (aged 12) and N. B. Davis (13) rang their first 720 on an 'inside' bell of Plain Bob Doubles on November 19th. Also in this young company were B. Cheeseman (16), I. T. Read (15), E. T. P. Field (conductor) and F. C. Davis.

Handbell ringers will appreciate the very fine performance at Burton-on-Stather by Mr. George E. Feirn and his band in ringing a peal of Spliced Major in 36 methods. It is the greatest number of Major methods yet rung to a peal. Congratulations to all concerned in setting such a high pinnacle of achievement for the Exercise.

After 12 months' exile in London, Mr. Percy W. Cave is back again in Liverpool ringing peals with his old friends. He has been travelling to London every Monday morning and back to Liverpool on Friday evenings. While he had been able to keep up his regular Sunday ringing at Halewood, he had not been available for many peals. Now transferred back to Liverpool he looks forward to resuming his old 'habits.'

A NEW EIGHT IN NEW ZEALAND

Hamilton Cathedral's Long Awaited Day Christchurch Ringers' Long Trip for Opening Peal First Ringing Meeting in Dominion

ST. Peter's Cathedral, Hamilton, New Zealand, has now a ring of eight with a tenor 20 cwt. 2 qr. 6 lb., in E. The Cathedral has had this tenor since 1933 and in 1948 received a treble, the gift of the junior Ladies' Guild of the diocese. By Christmas Day, 1949, the fund to provide the remaining six was complete and an order was placed with Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. The bells arrived in August and, after a ceremony of blessing, were installed in the tower, the work being completed early in October.

For the opening ceremony six members of the Christchurch Cathedral Society—Messrs. N. Sloan (secretary), A. Lancefield (Master), N. Reeve, C. Hollobon, D. Sloan and C. Ward—set out on October 19th. There was first a 180 mile sea trip to Wellington, where a visit was paid to St. Peter's Church with its ring of eight (tenor 15 cwt.) which has not been rung for 20 years owing to the instability of the tower. Opportunity was also taken to see the National War Memorial Carillon, and Mr. S. Baker, carillonneur, explained the system of playing the 49 bells. The afternoon was spent in the home of Mr. S. H. Barnett, a 'long distance member' of the Society.

Wellington was left at 7.15 p.m. by the Night Limited express and Frankton Junction reached at 7 a.m., where the Very Rev. Dean Chandler, of Hamilton, and respective hosts awaited the visitors.

The first assembly of ringers was at 10.30 a.m., the visitors being joined by Squadron Leader Mason, R.A.F., who had travelled up from Wellington the day before to check the bells, and John de Lambert of the Christchurch Cathedral Society, who had made the journey by car. Other ringers present were Mr. A. J. White, of Auckland, formerly of Mitcham (his farewell peal was rung in 1908), Mr. Roberts, of Plymouth (formerly of Gravesend), and the Hamilton Cathedral ringers who, with the exception of Mr. D. Caldwell, had previously been taught the rudiments of changering at Christchurch.

The bells, all on ball bearings, were rung silent for a while in order to get used to the feel of them and then lowered to unlash them and to allow an inspection of the handiwork of Mr. A. C. Caldwell, district hydro electric engineer, who had installed them.

After lunch a short service was held in the Cathedral and the Te Deum sung by the large congregation.

Promptly at 2 p.m. the music of the bells was heard in rounds and Grandsire Triples for the first time over the city of Hamilton and the broadcasting station I.X.H.

CHERISHED AMBITION FULFILLED

Important though this moment was for everyone, it was particularly momentous for the Dean and Vestry of St. Paul's Cathedral, for it spelt the fulfilment of their most cherished ambition. It was on October 21st, 1948, soon after the induction and institution of the present Dean, that he first mentioned publicly the desire of the Bishop and Chapter to complete the ring of bells in the Cathedral. He named this as his first objective and it was indeed fitting that they should ring out for the first time on the second anniversary of the appeal.

The initial ringing over, the tower was unlocked to admit the other ringers and a number of visitors anxious to see how it was done. The Hamilton ringers all rang in rounds, the majority for the first time, and for the remainder of the afternoon an enjoyable Ringing Meeting was held, believed to be the first of its kind in New Zealand. To terminate it on a good instructional note, a slow, well-struck touch of Bob Minor was rung on the back six by the more experienced ringers. It was acclaimed by the Dean and all listening, both inside and outside the belfry, as our 'show piece' of the day, and obviously served to convey to all potential campanologists present some of the excellencies of the Art.

In the evening, all members of the Christchurch Society except two, who were visiting friends, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Caldwell who, we fancy, were keen to see and hear the Society's set of handbells which our worthy secretary had been guarding well. This set of handbells (a fine 17 by Shaw) was bequeathed to the Society by the late Mr. J. Wilde, of Dunedin. Grandsire Caters, Bob Major, Grandsire Triples and Grandsire Doubles for the learners, all too quickly tapped the evening away and all retired at 10.30 p.m. happy, if very tired, to their places of rest.

The next day, Sunday, October 22nd, ringing commenced at 8.30 a.m. for choral communion service at 9 a.m., Grandsire Triples being the method rung. All ringers stayed to the service, the sermon of which was preached by the Rev. K. Liggett, of nearby Cambridge.

After the service the bells were rung again for half an hour until 11 a.m., as a friendly and appreciative gesture from the Dean to the other churches of the city.

THE PEAL

It was expected by the Dean, and previously mentioned in the local Press, that a peal attempt would be made by the Christchurch

Society while in Hamilton, and the Dean had kindly consented to our request that it be on Sunday afternoon, to allow more time on the Monday to put the Hamilton enthusiasts through their paces. The question was what to ring and be assured of a good chance of success! We all realised that the chances of being together again as a band in this north region were slender. Grandsire Triples was the favourite but the Master considered that, owing to lack of practice by all in the method, it would not be a 'first time bet.' and so Bob Minor on the back six was finally decided upon.

The afternoon was warm, 76°, causing the lucky six to strip off and prepare to sweat. This they were doing freely by the end of the first 720, but the bells were going well and everyone looked safe. Looks did not belie, for apart from an occasional irregularity of pace and a missed dodge or two, the peal was successfully accomplished in three hours and seven minutes. This made everyone happy, the large gathering of anxious listeners more so, it seemed, than the few blistered ringers, but who would care to say! Ringing for the evening service at 6.30 concluded our activities for the day, and a quiet evening, strolling round and drinking innumerable cups of tea, was had by all.

A PROGRESSIVE DAY

Monday was devoted to practising, both the Hamilton and Christchurch ringers having a progressive day. Good progress was made by the former in rounds and hunting and the latter rang touches in Grandsire, St. Simon's and Bob Doubles, St. Clement's and Bob Minor and Grandsire and Bob Triples. All wished that the company could be longer together, for a strong enthusiasm for new and better methods was rapidly taking form. Ringing terminated at 4.30 p.m. to allow everybody to 'get spruced up' for the parish tea at 6 p.m. This was a very jolly affair, the culmination, one might say, of the happy and friendly spirit of true Christian hosts, and an evening that we will long remember. All appropriate toasts were honoured, including 'Mears and Stainbank,' 'The Dean' and 'Visiting Ringers,' and speeches of various lengths and texture, but all on a very grateful note, were made and replied to. The Master of the Christchurch Society thanked the Dean and Wardens and people of Hamilton for making the trip for the opening ceremony of the bells possible and for the great welcome received. Some good handbell ringing was given by the Society during the course of the evening.

As a means of relaxation before departing south for home, a trip was arranged for the following day by Mr. A. C. Caldwell, to the Lake Karapiro and Arapuni dams and power houses. This was most enjoyable through countryside green with lush spring grass and hedges of blossoming hawthorn, with a stop at St. Andrew's Church, Cambridge, where the Rev. K. Liggett and ringers welcomed us and allowed us to have a go at chiming the Vickers ring of six.* The same evening virtually marked the ending of 'The Little Adventure,' for four members of the party boarded the south-bound express at 9.40 p.m., one had already gone north and one west, and the remainder were 'on vacation.'

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION

VISITS BIRTHPLACE FOR 75th ANNIVERSARY MEETING

The 75th anniversary general meeting of the Association was held on Saturday, November 4th, at Birstall, birthplace of the Association on October 30th, 1875. It was to this West Riding overgrown village that the late Jasper Whitfield Snowdon assembled a handful of enthusiastic ringers who had formerly held small meetings amongst themselves, mostly at private houses, culminating in the birth of the Yorkshire Association.

He became its first president, and it is a singular thing that, despite his early death, the Association has only had four presidents since its inception.

By kind permission of the Vicar, the Rev. F. G. Patterson, the bells were available from 2.30 p.m. and made good use of during the afternoon and evening, the methods rung ranging from Plain Bob to London Surprise Major.

A meeting of the committee was held at 3 p.m. followed by a most enjoyable service, at which the address was given by the president, very appropriately so, as since the last meeting he had been appointed Archdeacon of Leeds, bringing attendant prestige to the Association.

AN HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION

Tea followed in the schools, after which the Vicar of Birstall was accorded a hearty vote of thanks, together with the churchwardens, for the use of the bells. In reply, the Vicar said he was delighted to have the Association at Birstall, and was glad to welcome them. It was the first church that he had had charge of that possessed a ring of bells, and he felt proud to have as his charge a tower with such historical associations. He had to leave for another engagement and wished the Yorkshire Association success and continued prosperity.

At the business meeting which followed, the chair was taken by the president, supported by the general secretary (Mr. L. W. G. Morris), the hon. treasurer (Mr. F. S. Palmer) and the retiring peal secretary (Mr. W. Barton). Apologies for absence were received from J. B. Hutchinson, A. H. Fox, R. B. Smith, J. Ambler and H. Chant.

After confirmation of the minutes, the president said how glad they were to have the Western District secretary, Mr. W. Ambler, with them again, and congratulated him on his recovery from illness. They mourned the loss of the former vice-president, Mr. George Lewis—a household word in the sphere of composition—and Mr. Joseph Kellet, of Birstall.

A hearty vote of thanks to the local company was accorded on the motion of Mr. P. J. Johnson, seconded by Mr. H. Loffhouse, and suitably acknowledged by Mr. S. Britton.

The president announced that in the absence of any specific invitation, the committee proposed that the next meeting should be held at Guiseley on January 20th. Mr. P. J. Johnson moved and Mr. W. Barton seconded that the committee's proposal be accepted if the necessary arrangements could be made. Mr. A. C. Walsh, of Guiseley said they would be pleased to entertain the Association as suggested, and it was unanimously decided to accept.

The president reported that the committee had considered an application from Harfield to be transferred from the Eastern District to the Southern District, and had agreed to the transfer. An application for a grant from the bell repair fund by the Scarborough company had also been accepted to.

NOW 1,520 MEMBERS

Some considerable time was then spent in an historical picture of the life and development of the Association, the president reading the minutes of the first meeting, and giving a list of the founder members. Mr. P. J. Johnson had vivid recollections of many of the early ones, and Mr. J. W. Moxon said he was particularly glad to be at this meeting as his father attended the foundation meeting 75 years ago. The past 75 years had seen the Association grow from 53 members to 1,520.

Mr. C. McGuiness brought fraternal greetings and best wishes from the Lincoln Diocesan Guild, which was greatly appreciated by all present.

The president remarked on the coming Festival of Britain, and suggested, where local festival weeks were arranged, ringing wherever possible should be included in the programme.

SNOWDON DINNER

Mr. H. Walker said he had made enquiries about the possibility of arranging the Snowdon Dinner at York next year, and was confident it could be done. This was very well received, and will have the earnest attention of the committee at its next meeting.

The following new members were elected: Charles Thornton, Edwin Hirst and Tony Hudson, of Mirfield; Mervyn Storey and Miss Mavis Macvean, of St. Chad's, Headingley, and Jack Turner, of Northwram.

Mr. E. Hudson rose to congratulate the president on his appointment as Archdeacon of Leeds, pointing out that their former president, Canon C. C. Marshall, had been appointed an Hon. Canon of Ripon Cathedral, and that the Venerable C. O. Ellison had brought a new prestige to the Association by virtue of his new calling in the same diocese.

In acknowledgment, the president said he regretted that, in the Press reports of his appointment, little or no mention was made of the fact that he was the president of the Yorkshire Association, but the whims and fancies of editors were unpredictable. He was grateful for the speaker's kind references, and hoped that, in spite of the increased responsibilities attendant upon his new appointment, he would be able to serve the Association as they would wish.

ROLL OF HONOUR

Mr. P. J. Johnson said he was very perturbed in reading through the names published on the Ringers' Roll of Honour, and was certain that there must be more than the two given for the Yorkshire Association. He appealed to all members and tower secretaries who knew of any member, either Forces or Civilian, who had paid the supreme sacrifice to send particulars to the general secretary immediately.

This concluded the business, and an adjournment was then made to the tower by most of the younger members for further ringing, whilst the goodly muster of older ones continued their reminiscences of early events in the life of the Association.

L. W. G. M.

ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS

At the meeting held on November 25th, at the Whitechapel Bell Foundry, the following officers were elected for the ensuing 12 months.

Mr. J. Frank Smallwood, Master; Mr. A. B. Peck, secretary; Mr. A. A. Hughes, treasurer; Mr. J. G. A. Prior, senior steward; Mr. F. E. Collins, junior steward; Mr. H. G. Miles and Mr. W. H. Pasmore, trustees.

RINGERS' SERVICE AT MITCHAM

A well-attended ringers' service was held at Christ Church, Mitcham, on November 19th and 27 took part in the ringing from 5.30 to 6.30 and 7.45 to 8.30.

The towers represented were: Christ Church, Mitcham; St. Mary's, Wimbledon; St. Leonard's and Emmanuel, Streatham; Merton; Bushey; Ruislip; Battersea; Lewisham; Putney; Kingsbury; Northaw and Southwark. Ringing consisted of touches of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob Minor Kent T. B. and Cambridge Minor.

A course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells during the service by four Streatham ringers, which was much appreciated by a large congregation. Thanks are due to all who helped to make the service a success.

OBITUARY

MR. P. O. BAKER

The ringers of Gillingham, Dorset, have suffered a severe loss by the death of Percival Osmond Baker, for many years captain of the band.

Born in the neighbouring village of Semley, Wilts, he learnt to ring there at an early age, and last New Year's Eve he revisited his native place and joined with the local band in ringing in the New Year in the same tower where he had first had that experience 50 years before.

Over 40 years ago he settled in Gillingham as a garage proprietor and soon began to take an active interest in the eight bells of the Parish Church. His enthusiasm and genial disposition made him a welcome personality among the ringers of the district, and while he exercised a stimulating influence in his own belfry, he frequently visited neighbouring towers and made it his habit to join in practices at Mere. It was a great shock to his many friends when after six weeks' illness he passed away at the age of 68.

The funeral service on November 15th was conducted by the Rev. E. L. Seager, Vicar of Gillingham, assisted by the Rev. F. L. Edwards and the Rev. W. Uphill, secretary of the North Dorset Branch of the Salisbury Guild, and was attended by a large gathering which included ringers from ten parishes in Dorset, Somerset and Wilts.

In the evening many members of the Salisbury Guild and the Bath and Wells Association joined with the Gillingham band in ringing muffled touches as a last solemn tribute to a keen ringer, a loyal churchman and a valued friend.

F. L. EDWARDS.

MR. W. G. THORPE

Mr. William George Thorpe, whose death at the age of 63 years, at Grantham, Lincs, was announced in 'The Ringing World' of last week, will be remembered by many friends over a wide area, especially in Grantham and district.

A regular Sunday service ringer, a good striker and very capable conductor, he was always ready to help young ringers.

He had been a member of St. Wulfram's band, Grantham, for 41 years, and had rung just over a hundred peals. He was a member of the Lincoln Diocesan and Midland Counties Guilds.

The interment took place at Grantham Cemetery on November 15th, following the funeral service at the Parish Church. A good number of ringers and other friends attended.

In the evening the bells of St. Wulfram's were rung half-muffled by members of the local band and visiting ringers from Bottesford, Caythorpe and Hough-on-the-Hill, as a token of respect to a good ringer.

H. R. W.

DR. T. WOOD, Mus.Doc

The whole country will mourn the loss of Dr. Thomas Wood, Mus. Oxon., of Bures, Suffolk.

He was a great friend of all ringers and was due to countersign the contract for the new trebles to be installed in St. Mary's tower to complete the octave. Dr. Wood and his wife were giving the treble and the second was being given by public subscription to commemorate the Festival of Britain.

It has now been decided that the augmentation shall be to Dr. Wood's memory.

His passing will be received with great regret throughout Australia, where he was greatly loved. He returned from one of his many visits to London in connection with music by the midnight train on November 18th and passed away very suddenly just before the ringing for Matins on Sunday. He was 58 years of age.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE AXMINSTER TRAGEDY

Mr. E. H. Lewis recalls that in his presidential address to the West of Scotland Iron and Steel Institute in 1924 he quoted to a Mr. W. A. Millar the case of Re v. Churchwardens of Axminster 16 Chas II. (1676) and received back the following verses dedicated to E. H. L. :—

This simple tale that you restage,
From Ellacombe's archaic page—
Its spartan briefness, drama, tense,
Have touched my poor historic sense,
And I can see 'mid lawyers' wrangling,
'One Brockhurst' from the belfrope dangling, (Town of Axminster, famous reckoned For Carpets; Time: King Charles the Second),
So full of beer or pious frenzy
That in a twinkling his life ends he,
'Caught up,' like old Elijah, Bitter?
Why, no sir! Sic ad astra itur.

Perchance—a martyr—he foresaw
A problem in the ancient law,
And flung his neck, with the halter,
Upon the sacrificial altar,
Hoping his death, thus greatly planned,
Would help define the Deodand.

Alas, my pen records with pain
That gallant Brockhurst died in vain!

For though 'twas banded to and fro
Whether the Bell was 'fixed' or no,
And wardens of the Church were bent
To prove it 'hereditament':
While Rex's Counsel made great battle
To show it but a 'Tenant's chattel':
The Church's case being—blunt and bold—
That it was fixed to the freehold,
While answer came for Rex and people
That Bell was only tied in Steeple,
And bound—so rang the further pleas—
With paltry pines and cunning keys,
Four Judges of King's Bench Division
Quite failed to reach a clear decision—
(Poor Brockhurst's shade, oh how incensed!)—
For two were 'For' and two 'Against.'

And to this day throughout the land,
Such Bells are doubtful Deodand.

EPILOGUE.

And still we seek, with pen and parchment,
To solve such problems of 'attachment'!

Two hundred years and fifty gone
The seekers then went searching on:
Two hundred years and fifty hence
Our Trades and Courts and Parliaments
Will still conform to 'wont and use',
And what is 'fixed' and what is 'loose',
W. A. M.

The old English law whereby a personal chattel which caused death was forfeited to the Crown as deodand was repealed in 1846.

CHRIST CHURCH, OXFORD, RECORDED

Dear Sir,—We thought it might be of interest to the Exercise to know that the B.B.C. has recently made a recording of the bells of Christ Church Cathedral which is to be relayed by the New Zealand Broadcasting Company some time in December in connection with the Canterbury Settlement Centenary Festivities.

We rang a very nice touch of Grandsire Cinques for this and afterwards heard it back in the Great Quadrangle of Christ Church from the B.B.C. recording van and it sounded very good. A piece of ancient stone from Christ Church Cathedral here has been sent out to New Zealand to be built into the Cathedral of Christ Church, New Zealand.—Yours faithfully,

BROCAS BELL

Dear Sir,—I was interested in the letters of Messrs. N. Mallett and M. J. Horseman in a recent issue, but at once looked up the late Rev. H. T. Ellacombe's 'The Church Bells of Devon,' from which I quote a few extracts.

Axminster: February, 1662 (not 1663), 'One Brockhurst (or Brocas) ringing a bell in the church was strangled by the rope of the third bell (one of the original six). For the King it was argued that the bell "shall be forfeited as a satisfaction for blood to be disposed of by the King to other pious uses." Two judges were of opinion that the bell was not a deodand (i.e., must be forfeited to the Crown for pious uses), the other two seemed of a contrary opinion; but nothing further was done in the case.'

In a Revised Supplement to Charles Pearson's 'Ringers' Guide' it is stated about the present eight bells that 'the old fifth (which has a curious history) is hung above.'

Widcombe-in-the-Moor: Ellacombe gives the inscription on the third bell as follows: 'Gathered of The Young Men and Mayds Fyftene' (the word 'pounds' does not occur), and inserts a footnote to the effect that there is a bell at Fordingbridge, Hants, inscribed 'Young men and mayds made me 1665.' In the light of the above can Mr. Mallett tell us why the bell was replaced, and did Mr. Horseman read the inscription himself or only see an alleged copy of it?—Yours faithfully,

E. V. COX.

PEALS AT TIBSHELF

Dear Sir,—I may be able to help Mr. H. T. Rooke regarding his enquiry in last week's issue of 'The Ringing World' as to dates of previous peals at Tibshelf, Derbyshire.

I have taken part in two peals there, i.e., one of six methods on June 6th, 1931 (conducted by H. Lowman) and one of three methods on July 1st, 1933 (conducted by J. England).

As far as I am aware, the previous peal to those was rung in July, 1909, and I have no knowledge of any other peal having been rung on the bells.—Yours faithfully,

W. TOMLINSON.

MAKE THE OUTSIDER WELCOME

Dear Sir,—May I, through your columns, express my regret that so many ringers, while lamenting the lack of understanding of ringers' tastes shown by non-ringers, do nothing to establish a contact which would probably encourage that understanding.

I feel very strongly that when a non-ringer asks to be allowed to watch the ringing, he should be made as welcome as any Surprise ringer. We welcome ringers who are often strangers to us, therefore why should we not welcome our fellow townsmen or villagers, even if they do not share our interest? We do not have to be able to play an orchestral instrument to attend a concert, why then should we have to be a ringer to enter a belfry?

Bellringing is one of the oldest of our English arts and if more people knew 'how it worked' there would not be the number of ignorant statements made which throw so many ringers into a state of rage!

When non-ringers are welcomed to the ringing chamber, I think it is essential that they should be shown how a bell works and told a little about change-ringing. I am quite aware that in many cases this is not practicable through the bells being inaccessible to all but the very steady-headed, but where a staircase leads right into the belfry, it needs only one reliable person to conduct a small party thither. Failing this, why not have a working model in the ringing chamber? It would save a lot of trouble.

Finally, I would like to say that I know there are many bands of ringers who put into practice all I have said, and I admire those tower leaders who always have a few minutes for the outsider, however crowded (or empty) the belfry may be.—Yours faithfully,

STELLA M. WICKENS.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

I do not think any tribute has been rung to mark the passing of this great writer and it does seem to me some reference to the late G.B.S. should appear in such a journal as ours.

No two people will agree concerning this man; he has been described as an atheist yet his writings and lectures seem to reveal that the sage had a more intimate knowledge of God than is vouchsafed to the majority of us.

What did Shaw think of church bells? If one reads and studies his masterpiece—'St. Joan'—one gets the impression that he was deeply moved by the sound of them. Joan says—'It is in the bells I hear my voices, not to-day when they all rang, that was nothing but gangling.' Had Shaw heard some bad striking or had he detected the great difference between Continental ringing and our English method? Joan goes on to say—'Where the bells come down from heaven, and the echoes linger, or in the fields where they come from a distance through the quiet of the countryside. . . .'

Later in the play when St. Joan pictures the life she will have to lead in perpetual imprisonment, she said she could renounce the material comforts of life 'if only I could still hear the wind in the trees, the larks in the sunshine, the young lambs crying through the healthy frost, and the blessed, blessed, church bells that send my angel voices floating to me on the wind.'

Did the most ardent campanologist ever write a greater tribute to our church bells? A peal 'in memoriam' G.B.S. would not be out of place, preferably rung by a notable company.—Yours faithfully,

ARTHUR V. DAVIS

PROGRESS FROM WALES

Dear Sir,—It is now six months since Porthkerry, in the Vale of Glamorgan, had two trebles added to its ring of four, and readers may be interested to hear of progress since.

We made a start on Grandsire, but did not stay long on it before moving to Plain Bob Doubles, noting the similarities. As soon as we could ring Plain Bob competently we made the slight alteration necessary to turn it into Reverse Canterbury. April Day was then rung to combine Grandsire and Plain Bob before moving on to St. Simon's.

Having rung Double Bob Minimus on the old four, St. Simon's front work gave us no trouble, and knowing Plain Bob made the rest of the work simple. We had, in between times, rung several courses of Bob Minor, so with St. Simon's Double accomplished, we rang our first plain courses of St. Clement's Minor. We want to ring New Doubles, with its St. Simon's front work, before settling down to consolidate the ground gained; we then propose to learn Stedman.

It will be noted that the methods rung lead on from one another, but for a band starting almost from scratch we think it a good six months' work. We have 14 ringers, including learners; only a few, of course, have done all the work listed, and some are only now picking up plain hunting.

The ringers have creosoted all the woodwork in the tower, limewashed the inside walls, and installed electric light. The bells and fittings receive regular attention from the steeplekeeper, and continue to go well.

We extend a warm welcome to anyone wishing to visit the tower.—Yours faithfully,

L. J. MALINGS.

TOWER CORNER (19)

'METHOD-LEARNING: DIVISIONS AND LINKS.'

Dear Improvers.—Continuing with Lesson XI. We shall examine the blocks of change-rows which we have come to know as a 'Division,' such blocks being 'linked' together to form the larger block of rows, known as the 'plain course' of the method.

TERMS.

But first, a reminder, that we are making a special effort in this course of instruction to avoid using ringing terms in more senses or meanings than one. Such words include 'lead,' 'course,' etc., to which we shall give one particular meaning only. Other words such as 'changes,' 'lead-ends,' etc., we shall avoid using altogether as even more misleading, and because there are preferable substitutes, e.g., 'change-rows' and 'links.' Moreover we shall try to make statements of general, rather than of particular, application; so that you may form your conclusions more independently. For example, our reference to 'methods' will imply both 'principles,' by which is generally understood omni-working systems such as Stedman, and hunt-controlled methods, having one or more bells with an unvaried hunt, such as Grandsire.

METHOD STAGES.

At this point we give a table of names of the various 'stages' of methods on both odd and even rings of bells.

Odd-numbered Rings of bells	Stage-name	Even-numbered Rings of bells	Stage-name
3	Singles	4	Minimus
5	Doubles	6	Minor
7	Triples	8	Major
9	Caters	10	Royal
11	Cinques	12	Maximus

It is interesting to note that the names of the 'odd' stages are derived from the number of transits normally occurring from change-row to change-row.

ANALYSING A DIVISION

Older ringers will recognise the C.C. term 'division,' which we introduced last time, as meaning what they often call a 'lead of changes' in a 'treble dominated' method, e.g., Plain Bob. But it also stands for 'sets' of change-rows, as we saw, in a 'principle,' i.e., a method with no hunt-control bell, such as Stedman.

GRID PATTERN.

Now we have already learnt that a change-row is formed from its preceding row by the introduction of one or more transits: a transit being the mutual exchange of positions of a pair of neighbouring bells. The number and arrangement of transits between one row and the next, and the form in which these arrangements succeed one another constitutes the character or pattern of the method. If the numbers representing the bells be written out in rows vertically successive, the figures will form columns also. In fact they may be written down most conveniently on squared paper. The rectangle of squares to accommodate the figures is known as a 'grid.' The name is derived not only from the grid-like structure of this frame-work, but also from the fact that for detailed analysis of the framework a system of notation of its squares is employed similar to that used for a grid of map-squares. (The application of this scheme comes in a later Section of this Course, but it has been briefly explained in passing.) Now if lines joining all figures of the same denomination be drawn neatly from square to square, an interesting network pattern of the method results. This is known as the 'grid-pattern.' It is far easier to study a method by its grid-pattern than by any other known means.

TYPICAL HUNT-CONTROLLED GRID.

Let us take a look at a division, first of all, of a hunt-controlled method. (See fig. 7.). We will take, as typical, the Minor stage of the method known as 'St. Clement's Bob,' simply using d-h row, 142635, is also given to show the form of Link (a second's place one) between the divisions in this method. Positions of Links (L) are marked by continuous transverse lines. The dotted transverse line (J) marks the position of the Junction of the two halves of the Division, for indeed every Division comprises two similar halves.

AXIS OF SYMMETRY.

This dotted junction-line across the grid is also called the 'axis of reflection' or 'axis of symmetry' of a Division; and it is important, now, to see why. At the close of our previous instalment we spoke of appreciating 'a more important factor to be discussed next time.' This factor is that of the symmetry in the structure of a Division—a symmetry about the axis of reflection just mentioned. If you take a thin pocket mirror, such as from a lady's handbag, and place it edgewise along the junction, facing the upper half of the Division but leaning back slightly, the reflection of the upper half of the pattern may be seen to be identical with the pattern of the lower half on the paper behind the mirror. Thus the two halves are mutually reflective. (See * below.) Or again, if you place a piece of translucent tracing paper over figure 7. above, and draw in the grid-pattern and the axis; then remove the paper and 'reflect' it, (bend it backwards) along the axis line, you will observe, on holding the folded paper up to the light, that the two halves of the pattern of the Division coincide exactly. In short, the structure of a Division is symmetrical about its junction. From this it follows that the same pattern features are to be found in change-rows equidistant from the junction, above and below it. (Test this!)

SECOND AXIS.

Before leaving this material question of symmetry of Divisions, it is important to note that in a group of change-rows extending through more than one Division there is a second position where an axis of symmetry can be drawn. This may be visualised more readily by reference, again, to fig. 7. The rows in the first half-division are bracketed as 'G,' this portion being what is called the 'Grid' of the method. The rows in the second half are bracketed as 'G-r' (grid-reflect), being simply the reflection of the rows in 'G.' From this it follows that all we need for making out a method in any given stage is the group of rows in 'G,' or the Grid. (This is often unwisely called a 'half-lead.' It is unwise because 'half-lead' usually means the row either just above or just below the Junction; but more especially because in methods like Stedman, with no hunt-bell, it is meaningless.) However, please imagine another Division following on below the one in fig. 7. Now consider the group of change-rows beginning with the G-r set of rows and continuing with the following G set of rows. We saw above (see * in previous paragraph), that these groups are mutually reflective; so that the line between them must also be a reflection-axis. This is the Link, as we have seen. So that axes of reflection are found at both the Junction and the Link. Test this by (a) inspection, (b) mirror, and (c) tracing paper.

HALF AND HALF.

It follows that in any and every method (according to established practice), whether it be hunt-controlled or otherwise, there are two positions in the row-succession where the grid-pattern reflects upon itself. In the same way we shall discover that there are two positions in the blue line of any and every method where the pattern of the bell-path 'reflects' upon itself. In this highly-important conclusion lies the basis of the modern system of learning methods. Indeed, you may now recall that in Lesson X, we drew attention to the way in which the Stedman figures start off with half a 'six,' and we said that the very important significance of this fact would come out in our study of method structure, as arising from the principle of symmetry.

In our next lesson we will study the structure of the Stedman method, with which we began, noting particularly the arrangement of its Division.—Cordially yours.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD NORTH NOTTS BRANCH AT EDWINSTOWE

The meeting of the North Notts Branch at Edwinstowe on November 11th proved to be an attraction, some 34 ringers, including a newly-formed local band and visitors from Lincolnshire, Derbyshire and Yorkshire, representing 17 towers, were present.

The bells, a light ring, 6½ cwt., were raised just after 2.30 and kept going until 5 p.m. when tea was served.

Afterwards a brief meeting was held in the church, preceded by a short prayer by the Rev. W. B. Evans, who was most pleased to welcome the members to Edwinstowe. The place of the December meeting was arranged for Barlborough on December 9th. The collection for the Bell Repair Fund amounted to 13s. 9d.

Thanks were accorded to the Rev. W. B. Evans for the use of the bells and there seemed every hope of the local band joining the Guild. It is 12 years since this tower had a Guild member.

Some sixteen Minor methods were rung during the day including six in Surprise.

JOINT MEETING AT BECCLES

A joint meeting of the Suffolk Guild and East Norfolk Branch of the Norwich Association was held at Beccles on November 4th, 40 members attending. Ringing started at 2.30 and tea was served at the Co-op Restaurant.

The Rev. A. S. J. Heard, president of the Norwich Association, thanked the churchwardens for the use of the bells, and also Mr. B. R. Goate, Master of Beccles tower, for arranging the tea.

It was proposed by members of East Norfolk Branch to hold their annual meeting at Gorleston on February 24th, 1951.

Ringling was resumed after tea until about 9 p.m. Stedman and Grandsire Caters, Kent and Plain Royal, Bristol, Cambridge, Double Norwich, Plain Bob Major, Grandsire Triples and rounds for learners were rung. Ringers from Isleworth were also present.

THE SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION

The last meeting of the year of the Shropshire Association was held at Church Stretton on November 18th.

Some enthusiasts had arranged an hour's ringing at the nearby Hope Bowdler where Plain Bob, Kent, Grandsire and Stedman were rung on the light six.

These standard methods were afterwards practised on the eight at Church Stretton, the attendance being below the average on account of the atrocious weather conditions.

Returning along the main Shrewsbury Road afterwards, about two feet of water was encountered, and we have yet to learn what the two motor-cyclists said about this.

Surrey Association

A well representative meeting of the North-Western District of the Surrey Association was held at Ewell on November 18th; the Vicar conducted the service and gave an address in which he welcomed the ringers. Mr. Miller gave his service at the organ.

Fifty-one ringers sat down to tea. At the commencement of the meeting, Mr. F. Collins announced the death of two members—Mr. J. Corbett and Mr. W. H. Scabrook. Five compounding and three ringing members were elected.

The following were nominated for 1951. District officers—Master, F. E. Collins; secretary, R. Lathbury; treasurer, H. N. Pitstow; auditor, C. Dean; committee, Miss J. Smith, D. Parsons, R. Davis and E. G. L. Coward.

The sum of £1 12s. was subscribed toward the New Bell Fund. A vote of thanks to the Rev. V. P. Davis, Mr. Miller and Mr. Beams, for their various services was carried. Further ringing was carried on till 8.30.

'ROUND BLOCKS'

SHALL WE UNDERSTAND THEM?

By GEORGE BAKER

There is no better method for this purpose than the method of Norfolk Surprise, first published in 'Bell News' in 1897 by the writer of this paper as Arundel Surprise but later claimed as the work of the Rev. E. B. James and as having been practised at Gloucester under the title of Norfolk Surprise.

Following are half leads of the Minor and Major. In the Major the tenors (7-8) are dodging behind for the first 12 changes, so an exact replica of the Minor can be seen in the Major without the help of Round Blocks but the latter gives a mathematical proof that Minor and Major are perfectly related with a progression of 4321—3412 throughout and the Round Blocks will be given and compared in the next paper when the editor can find the space.

A DIARY OF INTEREST

THIS week we publish the first instalment of the diary of the late Mr. W. H. Fussell, of Slough. The diary now under notice is for the period of 1880-1890 and was written in ten small books. A shrewd observer and with a strong sense of humour, Mr. Fussell's observations cover a particularly interesting period in the art of change ringing. They coincide with the development of the movement for belfry reform and there are many indications of the need for placing our art on a higher plane if it was to secure the respect of the Church and the confidence of the public.

Mr. Fussell was one of the great figures in English ringing over a very long period. Although he was never elected to the Central Council, he was very much of what might be described as 'the man behind the scenes.' His work was in three categories, as an instructor, an organiser of ringing tours and a peal ringer.

The invitation to English ringers to visit Australia in 1934 came to Mr. Fussell. He perceived what a wonderful opportunity this was. A preliminary meeting of probabilities and possibilities was held in London in April to discuss prospects. A peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major was rung at St. Giles-in-the-Fields and six of the eight ringers who took part in it eventually made the trip 'down under.'

The day before the 'Barrabool' sailed on September 14th, 1934, Mr. Fussell rang his 1,000th peal, one of Superlative Surprise Major at Slough, conducted by Mr. George Martin. It took 'Old Bill,' as he was affectionately known to his friends, 52½ years to ring his 1,000 peals. His record was rather amazing, the peals being rung for no fewer than 44 societies. He was the first to ring a peal in every county in England and in Wales (except Anglesey).

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith gives an insight into his character in his book, 'A Great Adventure,' telling of the Australian tour. The day after the 'Barrabool' sailed Mr. Fussell celebrated his 73rd birthday, and, looking back on his career, gives these pointers: 'Never broken a stay or a slider; never been run in by the Police Guild or "sent down" by the College Youths.' Of his 1,000 peals he has a special word of thanks for four Georges, viz.: George I (Newson), George II (Williams), George III

(Martin) and George IV. (Pye). He also expressed the hope that he would never ring a peal with a band of 'Pussyfoots.'

For editing this Diary the Exercise is indebted to Mr. Ernest Morris, of Leicester. After Mr. Fussell's death his books and papers were rescued by one of the leading Slough ringers. All his bound literature is preserved in a special bookcase in his native tower of Slough, where he had so many connections and gave a bell. Mr. Fussell's loose papers and oddments were sent to Mr. Morris to look through and destroy any that were not of value and to preserve all which were deemed of historical interest.

Among the papers sent were two notebooks of the late Mr. Cornelius Charge with his compositions and peal records, which were given to Mr. Fussell for preservation following his Australian tour; also a book containing the peal records of 'John C. Truss, sen., and John C. Truss, jun., of Great Marlow,' with a note added 'from Mrs. Truss, of Marlow, June 29th, 1942.' The correspondence connected with the great Australian tour, shipping company's letters, souvenirs of various places visited, photos and menu cards signed by all present at the various functions were also included. It was Mr. Morris' deep regret that he was unable to take part in this historic tour, although Mr. Fussell extended to him a most pressing invitation.

BELLS AND NOISE

While ringers have to face many critics, it is extremely gratifying to know that Lord Horder, chairman of the Noise Abatement League, is not against church bells. 'We never do anything about a noise if we find from a sort of rough canvass that as many like it as do not.' Lord Horder was last week lecturing to the League on 'Cities Without Noise,' and we hope in this issue to publish a precis of his speech.

The Central Council of Church Bell Ringers has for many years recognised that the nuisance that can be caused by bells ringing can be abated by various methods for deadening sound. The co-operation of all ringers in this matter is desired. It is a question upon which the Council is prepared to give expert advice, and if any tower has any peculiar difficulty which cannot be met by the orthodox methods, the Council is prepared to assist them.

From 'Punch' Charivaria:—'During the afternoon, visiting teams of bellringers rang short peals on the bells, which cost about £1 7/0 to repair.'—'Irish Times.' They are hardly likely to be asked again Culled from a Midland paper:—The Rev. Alan L. Holt, Vicar of Streetley, Staffs, fears that American visitors to the golf course near his church will be distressed by the sound of the 'cans and kettles' when the bells ring. So he is appealing for £200 for a set of electronic bells.

With a peal of Kent Treble Bob Royal on November 25th, Mr. John Dearlove completed the circle of St. Peter's, Brighton, for the second time.

Send your Christmas Greetings to ringing friends through 'The Ringing World.' (Charge 2s. 6d.) Special page in issue of December 22nd.

Miss Joyce E. Taylor, a student at the Edinburgh College of Domestic Science, whose home is in Sedburgh, joins this week's list of those who have rung their first peals. Her peal was rung at Alloa, Clackmannan.

In the small parish of Kingston Seymour, Somerset, the ringers have been working hard for some time to raise funds for the tuning and rehanging of their bells. They have raised all but the last £100. If any tower would like to encourage them by helping them over this last hurdle, donations will be thankfully received and acknowledged by Mr. E. Norton, Gout House Farm, Kingston Seymour, Clevedon, Somerset.

Doyen of Bath ringers is Mr. A. E. Baverstock, who celebrated his 78th birthday recently. Mr. Baverstock rings regularly on Sundays at St. Mary's, Bathwick, and has taken part in several quarter peals recently. It was not possible to attempt a tower-bell peal, but a peal 'in hand' was rung in honour of the occasion.

For the peal of Grandsire Caters at Abergavenny on November 25th, Mr. Ernest Stitch travelled back to Wales from Wolverhampton. This was the first peal on the new ten.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The report on the Festival of Britain has been circulated to members of the Standing Committee for their observations. It is a very comprehensive document and, if accepted by the Standing Committee, it will be published in 'The Ringing World.'

Mr. Eric T. Lee has resigned the hon. secretaryship of the Guildford District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild. He has accepted an appointment with the Harpenden Urban District Council.

Mr. B. S. Nicholls, who has been organist and choirmaster at Burford Parish Church (Oxon) for over 18 years, has been appointed to a similar position at St. Mary's Parish Church, Witney. He is due to take up his duties in the New Year.

Congratulations to Mr. J. Nudds on ringing his 500th peal at the age of 82 years. The method chosen, Oxford Treble Bob Major, was the same which he rang for his first peal over 60 years ago.

Members of the Towcester Branch of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild had hard luck in an attempted peal of Beverley Surprise Minor on Nov. 25th at Middleton-Cheney, Northants. After three hours, fifteen minutes' good ringing with one and a half courses to go, the ringer of the treble missed his sally and the bell went over and stuck. The band was A. Hinton 1. E. Lines 2. W. J. Chester 3. G. Burton 4. G. W. Holland 5. W. Yates (conductor) 6.

Mr. James George, of 30, Wimborne Road, Poole, Dorset, has received so many letters and telegrams of congratulation upon his 97th birthday that he finds it impossible to reply to them individually. He, however, desires to thank sincerely all those who have sent him such kindly messages.

THE STORY OF A GREAT RINGING CAREER

Diary of the late Mr. W. H. Fussell

Edited by ERNEST MORRIS

Among the many 'treasures' that have come into my charge, there is a series of small note books that belonged to the late Mr. W. H. Fussell, dating from 1880, the first of which is titled 'Notes and Scraps of Ringing by W. H. F., previous to 1880, from the time he began to ring.' The opening page has the stanza:—

'O all ye bells and ringers thereof,
Praise ye the Lord;
Ring unto Him, and sing unto Him
For ever and ever.'

Like all the old-time ringers (and even in my own experiences), his first beginnings were not so easy, nor opportunities so many, as is experienced by youngsters to-day. They are not without humour, however, and I know it would not be against his wish or desire that these notes be published.

He begins at 1874 by saying:—

August 23rd. My brother was married to A. Leader, the Slough steeplekeeper's daughter. They went to live in one of my father's houses in Park Street, opposite the 'Queen of England.' It was through my brother I learned to ring.

It was about the end of the following year I first entered a belfry (1875). About the month of November, one evening, I was playing with some boys in Church Street, near by Bartlett's Corner, High Street, when my brother, going on his way to the church to ring, stopped and asked me if I should like to ring. He gave me a long yarn about having to 'stick to it,' the trouble and difficulty of learning, and no end of advice. Accordingly, I was taken to the tower with another boy, the son of a ringer, who was playing with me. We were allowed to pull one of the bells at handstroke a few times, and then had a sit, quiet as mice, while a melodious string of Stoney was yelled out by W. Leader.

OLD RINGERS OF SLOUGH

The names of the ringers then, as far as I recollect:—

Snob Allen, a bootmaker and repairer, living near the 'Greyhound,' Upton; he used to have a room by the 'Red Cow' to work in.

William Allen, no relation, a tinker by trade, living in the Windsor Road close by the 'Rising Sun,' a public house then kept by a Mr. Cheer, who possessed a set of handbells. This was the house of call, mostly. Tinker Allen, as he was nicknamed, was a good man for his time, and had some idea of change-ringing; he was particularly fond of Plain Bob, and would lap touches for hours.

Harry Pinnafore, a general gardener at Eton College for one of the masters, living in Ragstone Road, Chalvey; fond of breeding birds and drinking beer.

I. Ship, foreman and manager at the Slough Gas Works, a fat man, very fond of telling unusual lies and exaggeration of the truth, i.e. while ringing down his home way (the belfry being on the ground floor and the door opening on to the road), on one occasion the 5th clapper came out of the bell and broke through the roof and fell outside. He had just time to set the bell and run out in the street and catch the clapper!

G. Joynes, a maltster, living at the Malt Houses in Alpha Street; a very straightforward man. He owned a set of 12 handbells (Simonds make, old-fashioned but in good tune and condition); these bells my brother gave him 30s. for, and sold them three or four years later to J. J. Parker, of Farnham, for £3. Joynes used to get a few in his place and sit round the furnaces on chairs during the winter months, ringing lap touches and tunes. He used to grow a special potato on a piece of garden adjoining the Malt House. He was fond of putting a lot in the furnace and raking them out when the ringers arrived, when they used to present a very comfortable appearance, seated on sacks of malt and eating these hot 'murphys.' He was never without a stone jar of ale, filled from the 'Greyhound' to drink from.

A MEMORIAL BOARD

1872. My brother learned to ring through Mr. Joynes; they met on some business, Alf being a painter and decorator, and, while talking, Joynes spoke of a board that was to be written for the Slough belfry, with the names of all old, departed ringers on. This board Alf wrote. Afterwards, by his going up to fix it, Joynes talking, and his seeing the ring-up going on, he was tempted to try, with the result he soon got on, and was made a parish ringer a year or so after.

1873. This board is now in the tower but other names have since been added. While learning to ring, he had several footings to pay. A gallon when first pulled up a bell alone; another when he rang in rounds, and one more when he finished a peal.

Father Allen, a son of Snob Allen, who had just learned to ring; he being a young hand and just starting, led to my being allowed to start.

William Allen, jun., a son of Tinker Allen. He went up for the first time with me. Neither of these last two stuck to ringing. After about three years of it, they stopped away altogether. But I must say that from 1875 to 1878 the chiming was done most even and regular by us 'three boys,' as the old hands called us, and leaving us to do it.

William Maisey, a carpenter and wheelwright jobber, living in Park Street, not a very good hand. Both Maisey and Ship stayed away a good deal after us young ones got on a bit.

William Leader, a small man, found of beer. Very pompous as steeplekeeper, living in Buckingham Gardens with a big wife (very homely) and a large family.

So much for the company I was introduced to before I made any progress in the Art. Most of them, however, left one by one, until only Leader and my brother remained, others coming up to fill their places. I. Pursey and W. Wilder were principally taught by Pinnafore and Alf.

Mr. Pefryman, of Hencroft Street, and John Steel, of The Dutchman's Farm, also began to come up although they were parish ringers at St. John's Church, Windsor, Perryman having learned to ring at Farnham, and Steel at Langley, when young men.

OPENING OF FARNHAM BELLS

1877. June. Whit Monday. The Slough ringers opened the Farnham Bells, the tower having just been rebuilt and the bells restored. Call changes rung. A good dinner was provided for us in a large tent adjoining the schoolroom opposite. The Slough ringers at this time became very popular as good ringers, visiting numerous towers round about. A party of us went to Clewer the latter end of the year, the handbells being taken and used well. Beaconsfield was also visited, a numerous company driving over in a wagonette and pair, but, as we got to the church and began to pull the bells up, word was sent to stop the bells as a woman, lying near the church was very ill: she died afterwards. We put up at the 'Saracen's Head,' and there staid (sic) the rest of the day. Some suggested we should go on to Woburn or Wycombe. Numerous tunes were rung by W. Leader 3-4, Street 5-6, Alf 7-8, and myself 1-2, Perryman Slip, Pinnafore and all the Allens being with the party.

About this time, a trin was made to Hurst on the August Bank Holiday, via train to Twyford, and walking the rest. Here we ordered a good dinner, afterwards some tunes and a game of bowls were played out on the bowling green, which was in beautifully-kept order and well stocked round with flowers. The public house we put up at was opposite the church, and a very old-fashioned place.

Harry Pinnafore and Alf often used to take a walk together to some neighbouring church on a Sunday afternoon. I went to Old Windsor on one occasion and to Burnham also with them.

Langley was very frequently visited as there were several good handbell tune ringers there. Many a crowded roomful of smoke-dried ringers have sat in the parlour of the old 'Red Lion,' opposite the church.

MEETING AT BRIXHAM

The Mid-Devon Branch held a by-meeting at Brixham on November 25th which was attended by the president (Prob. E. V. Cox) and friends from Buckland Newton, Kenn, Teignmouth, Newton Abbot, Ashburton, Buckfastleigh, Dartington, Totnes and Paignton, as well as the local ringers.

The bells were kept going throughout the afternoon to Grandire and Stedman Triples and Plain Bob Major, this being followed by an excellent tea in the schoolroom.

There was no speaker business to be done but the president, in a few well chosen remarks, expressed his pleasure at being present. It was announced that nominations had been granted to the Branch to hold practices at Welborough on the second Tuesday evening in each month, whilst one associate member, Mr. R. Denham, was elected.

Heartly votes of thanks were accorded the Vicar of Higher Brixham who sent his apologies for absence, and to the local ringers for the excellent tea arrangements.

A visit was afterwards paid to Churston Ferrers Parish Church where ringing of Grandire, Stedman and Reverse Canterbury, Pleasure and Bob Doubles were rung. The annual meeting of the Branch is to take place at Paignton in February. A. L. B.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

RECORD PEALS

Dear Sir,—The letter written by Ernest J. Rowe prompts me to write and point out that campanology does not receive sufficient publicity in this country to-day and that is why the layman looks at us askance—he cannot understand nor enjoy the mysteries of the magnificent hobby of bellringing.

Some years ago I wrote to the B.B.C. suggesting that as they were concerned with things auditory that they should give some time to bellringing. I am glad to say that my letter bore fruit and they did two broadcasts—but, upon my word, I received many letters from readers wanting to know how they could start bellringing. Were there lectures? What books were there?, etc. This brought home to me the fact that there must be hundreds of potential ringers about.

As for record peals—we want much more of this so that ultimately bellringing is included in the Olympic Games and then we could show the world who were the masters in this!

As a medical man I should like to know what advice Nolan Golden's and John Worth's band took with regard to training for this long ring at one stretch. I have heard it voiced that people should not drink (water) for some days before the event. This is of course ridiculous and even dangerous. In most towers I believe, attendants are present who can revivify the ringers. Could somebody confirm or deny this? I have some ideas of my own which may help.

May I add my congratulations to James George on having reached his 97th birthday and on having rung 1,281 peals which surely must be a record?—Yours faithfully,

P. H. A. JONASON.

East Harling, Norfolk.

RECORD LENGTHS IN SECRET

Referring to the letter of Mr. E. J. Rowe in your issue of November 24th, I doubt very much if the publication of good ringing achievements does in fact do incalculable harm to our cause. In Mr. Rowe's case it seems he is a sufferer, but I do believe that there would be no dearth of ringers if the ringing art received much greater publicity.—Yours truly,

THOMAS D. WINYARD

OLD SOMERSET RHYME

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent may be interested to know that in his book, 'The Bell,' published in 1848, the author (The Rev. Alfred Gatty) quotes the following French stanza:—

Persécuteurs du genre humain,
Qui sonnez sans miséricorde,
Que n'avez vous au cou la corde Que vous tenez en votre main!

which he translates:—

Disturbers of the human race,
Your bells are always ringing,
I wish the ropes were round your necks
And you upon them swinging!

The origin is not given, but it seems to take it a little further afield than Somerset.—Yours faithfully,

NORMAN PEARSON.

Warminster, Wilts.

Dear Sir,—I enclose another version of the 'Old Somerset Rhyme,' sent in by Mr. R. G. Field. Unfortunately I cannot recollect from what source I obtained the cutting. I have a feeling it was from 'The Ringing World' itself.

Ye ringers who, in deafening bands

No pity have for age or sex,

Would that the ropes, pulled by your hands,

Were fastened round your cursed necks.

—Yours faithfully,

H. D. HARRIS.

MR. JAMES GEORGE'S BIRTHDAY

Dear Sir,—On Monday, November 27th, Mr. Fred Price and I visited Mr. James George, to extend to him personally our congratulations upon attaining the age of 97 years. We found him in reasonably good health and excellent spirits. His bed was strewn with letters and telegrams of congratulation, and he informed us that Mr. A. F. Martin Stewart, from Fern-down, had called to see him the previous day. During our visit, the Rev. Goodrich (sometime curate at Aston Parish Church, Birmingham) brought in an iced birthday cake, on the icing there being 97 currants.

Mr. George proved by his accurate observations of happenings (past and present) in the Ringing Exercise that, despite his great age, he is still very mentally active.

We wish him many more such happy anniversaries.—Yours faithfully,

DANIEL T. MATKIN.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MR. JAMES GEORGE

Dear Sir,—May I, as conductor of Mr. James George's last tower-bell peal, offer my sincere congratulations to him on attaining his 97th birthday. He will be pleased to know that we in Leicester rang his composition of Stedman Caters to mark the event, and he will be interested to learn that this was my 1,250th peal. Carry on Jimmy!—Yours sincerely,

ERNEST MORRIS

St. Margaret's, Leicester

Dear Sir,—In 'The Ringing World' of November 24th, Mr. James George stated that he was the only surviving ringer to ring a tower-bell peal at the age of 85 and nine months: I am sorry to disappoint him, but Mr. James W. Wilkins, of High Wycombe, rang in a peal of Grandsire Triples at Hughenden, Bucks, on May 13th, 1950, two days after his 87th birthday, and he is looking forward to next May so that he can try for another peal for his 88th.

We all sincerely hope Mr. George will be able to ring another peal in the summer.—Yours sincerely,

R. BIGGS.

Hughenden, Bucks.

GOOSTREY, CHESHIRE

Dear Sir,—Previous to 1945 no local ringers had taken part in any of the few peals rung on the bells of St. Luke's, Goostrey. The Sunday service ringing consisted of plain courses of Grandsire Doubles or 120 of Plain Bob Doubles, the figures of which were painted on boards fixed to a kind of music stand. Each man had his own bell and the striking was good; none would change his bell.

All this pre-war band has left now, and last year the first lady joined the local band (another lady ringer joined a few weeks ago). Miss Cooke is the first local lady ringer to score a peal on the bells.

The change over to method ringing is slow and uphill work but it is showing results now. The attendance for service ringing is looking up with very often eight or nine ringers present. Visitors are made very welcome and since 1944 the tower has been in union with the Chester Diocesan Guild.—Yours faithfully, Goostrey, Cheshire.

B. J. ONGLEY.

NOTE.—We congratulate the three local members who rang in the peal recorded in this issue.—ED.

AN EXAMPLE FROM READING

Dear Sir.—On November 18th, the Reading Branch held a very happy quarterly meeting at St. Mary's, Reading. This meeting was unique from a secretarial point of view, in that I had nothing whatever to organise. I commenced by asking Mr. Dyke (captain of St. Mary's ringers) for permission to use the bells. He came back later with the meeting arranged. The Vicar offered to take the service for us, the organist offered to play for us (and produced a choir), one of the ladies offered to make herself responsible for the tea (more than ample!), the verger arrived at the hall in the morning and set up all the tables. None of these people were asked to do all this.

I hope you will be able to find space in your columns for this short report, not only is it a heartening sign in the life of a branch when the ordinary members volunteer unasked, but it may, I trust, also help the Exercise to reflect that our Guilds and Associations exist not only to further the art of ringing, but also to foster the ideals of Christian brotherhood and service to others.—Yours sincerely,

THOMAS N. LANAGHAN, Hon. Sec.,
Reading Branch, Oxford Guild.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

Dear Sir,—There is little doubt G.B.S. was an atheist. On of the last things he did during his lifetime was to direct that no clergyman attended his funeral, neither did he want a burial service.

I have always understood that 'in memoriam' peals are arranged and rung for some person who had, at least, some connection with the Church. I respectfully suggest that Mr. Shaw's self-admitted attitude towards religion puts him outside this class, and an 'in memoriam' peal as suggested by Mr. Davis would be out of place.

Regarding the reference to bells: G. B. S. was a brilliant man, and in his writings (plays and otherwise) made full use of all facts and happenings in every-day life. He may have been fond of bells, I know many people who are so, but they are not persons who merit an 'in memoriam' peal.—Yours faithfully,

DANIEL T. MATKIN.

AVERSION TO HORSE TRANSPORT

Dear Sir.—There is a slight error in the incident under the heading 'Aversion to Horse Transport.' It should have referred to Maulden bells. Mr. Herbert took the party over from Woburn, and I understand the account was sent in as a tonical footnote to the report on the recent augmentation to Maulden bells. Incidentally I was greatly disappointed, owing to being confined indoors with a severe cold and sore throat on the day, I was unable to take part in the first touch on the new eight as I happen to be the sole remaining active member of Mr. Herbert's band at the previous augmentation.

THE LADIES' GUILD

CENTRAL DISTRICT

A most successful meeting of the Central District of the Ladies' Guild was held, in spite of adverse weather conditions, at Clapham Park and Streatham on November 25th.

Ringling during the afternoon was at St. Stephen's, Clapham Park, whither the sound of the bells directed many members through the murk and gloom of a foggy afternoon. In the evening a variety of ringing was enjoyed by all present at St. Leonard's, Streatham.

At a very short meeting, four new members were elected and it was decided to hold the next meeting at Havering-atte-Bower and Romford on February 10th. All members please note and book the date now.

NOISE ABATEMENT LEAGUE NOT AGAINST BELLS

LORD HORDER'S LEAD

Bells as a noise nuisance in the modern city were mentioned by Lord Horder, chairman of the Noise Abatement League and extra physician to the King, in a lecture on 'Cities Without Noise,' at the Royal Society of Arts, in London, on November 29th. Lord Horder was introduced by the chairman, Mr. Alfred C. Bossom, M.P.

The speaker referred to bells in reply to a question put by Dr. Greenhouse Allt, principal of Trinity College of Music, who, in stressing that everyone loved making a noise said, 'Men love banging with bells. A child loves banging a drum.'

Lord Horder explained that the members of the Noise Abatement League had had a difference of opinion about church bells and, as was their custom in such cases, decided to do nothing about it. 'We never do anything about a noise,' he said, 'if we find from a sort of rough canvass that as many like it as do not.'

It was time, he felt, that people did get a kick out of bellringing and he told the story of a clergyman about whose church bell he had made 'comments which were not absolutely favourable.' The parson had replied, 'I don't like it myself, I always put cotton wool in my ears.'

The speaker felt that this illustrated a case where a person got a kick out of making a noise. He was making his job conspicuous, advertising his office, and it was this which gave him the kick.

A large part of Lord Horder's talk was taken up with tracing the history of the Noise Abatement League. Since the war efforts to revive interest in it had failed and in the autumn of 1949 it decided to make over its autonomy to the Royal Council for Health and Hygiene.

THE INTERMINABLE LAST WORDS

Some progress had been made towards securing silence in our cities but, as Lord Horder put it, 'there were still the riveters, pneumatic drills, the screech of the tram, the noises of the milk delivery and dust collection. There were the interminable last words of friends standing outside the house of their all too hospitable hosts and clocks striking during the night every quarter of an hour.'

It was the sensitive person who was most hurt by noise. Noise jarred and fatigued the nerves and lessened and made poorer the quality of a man's work. This had been proved by scientific tests and the medical man was in no doubt of the wastage noise produced in the human nervous system.

At night, too, the human being suffered from the effects of noise, impairing the quality of his sleep. From the angle of preventive medicine, Lord Horder had no doubt that noise wore down the human nervous system and caused a lowering of the power of recovery from disease.

Some important steps had been taken towards silencing our cities. Lord Horder instanced the introduction by Mr. Hore-Belisha of the '7½ hours relief from motor horns at night.' It had been shown that the number of accidents during these hours had dropped with the introduction of this measure.

In the everyday world Lord Horder said, building operations could be carried out noiselessly and road making and road breaking could 'lose their terrors,' if we set our minds to it and if we were prepared to pay for it.

Summing-up, the speaker said that the elimination of noise could never be achieved by an Act of Parliament. It could only come about by people realising their own lack of thought for others.

CHRISTMAS PUBLICATION

Guild and District secretaries are advised that notices of meetings to appear in 'The Ringing World' issue of December 29th must reach the Editorial Offices by Friday, December 22nd. The issue of this journal for that week will go to press early on Saturday, December 23rd.

It is important that all editorial communications, including peals, should be sent as early as possible to facilitate publication.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

MEETING AT WYKE REGIS

The Dorchester Branch held a very well-attended meeting at All Saints' Church, Wyke Regis, on November 25th, upwards of 50 ringers and friends being present.

The service, at 4 o'clock, was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. F. E. Pratt) who gave a most interesting address, during the course of which he emphasised the fact that throughout the length of the Bible the sense of hearing is called upon on most occasions in order that the people may receive the Word of God, therefore the ringing of church bells is a call to all who hear.

Following the service, tea was served in the Hall by a band of lady helpers and at the conclusion the hon. secretary of the Branch, Mr. J. H. Hayne, asked the company to stand for a moment in silence to the memory of Mr. G. T. White, of Dorchester, who passed away recently. He had been a member of the Guild for 55 years during which period he had been for some time Ringing Master of the Dorchester Branch.

Another former Ringing Master, Squadron-Sgt.-Major P. H. Toccock, who is on a short visit to the district, was then presented with a Guild badge as a small token of regard for his untiring energy in all ringing matters connected with the Branch.

Mr. Duke proposed a vote of thanks to all who had helped to make the meeting a success and also apologised for the absence of the chairman, Canon A. Wilkinson Markby, of St. Peter's, Dorchester.

Sgt.-Major Toccock paid a special tribute to the choirboys for their attendance and said that he could not recall a ringers' service where so many boys had turned up.

Ringers were present from the following towers in the Branch: Abbotsbury St. Peter's, Dorchester, Milton Abbey, Preston, Upwey, Wool and Wyke Regis with visitors from Yetminster, Oldham, Stoke-under-Ham, Yeovil, Hazelbury Bryan, Childe Okeford and Clapham (London).

Methods rung during the afternoon and evening included Grandsire and Stedman Doubles and Triples, Plain Bob Minor, Cambridge Surprise Minor and Kent and Oxford Treble Bob Major.

Ringing was under the direction of the Ringing Master, Mr. F. Precey, and his deputy, Mr. F. Stedman.

RINGERS' NOTEBOOK AND DIARY

This popular little publication, the Ringers' Notebook and Diary, has made its third appearance. The contents have been revised, and evidence of its usefulness is apparent at most ringing meetings.

An innovation this year is production of copies in a choice between rexine and leather, and the latter is a really handsome gift to any ringer for Christmas.

Mr. W. H. Viggers and Mr. Maurice Hodgson are to be congratulated on producing such an essential requirement for the average ringer.

OBITUARY

MR. G. T. WHITE

One of the leading bellringers in South Dorset for more than half a century, Mr. George Thomas White, of Dorchester, died on November 17th, at the age of 76.

Coming to Dorchester from Ottery St. Mary, in 1896, Mr. White was well known in the town as a boot and shoe maker. He joined St. Peter's ringers in March of that year and was elected captain in 1897, a post he held with the exception of one year, until 1921. In 1902 he conducted the first peal rung on the bells and was the last surviving member of the band that took part in that performance. He had since rung a number of peals in his own and various other towers and had conducted five of the seven peals which he subsequently rang at St. Peter's with the local band.

He was a past Ringing Master of Dorchester Branch of Salisbury Diocesan Guild of Ringers and did much to foster the art of change-ringing. In 1946 when celebrating his 50 years' membership of St. Peter's, a peal of Stedman Triples was rung in his honour by a band of past and present Ringing Masters of the Salisbury Guild.

Before and after the funeral service half-muffled touches of Grandsire Triples were rung by ringers from St. Peter's and the Branch. The service was conducted by Canon A. W. Markby, Rector and chairman of the Branch.

Members of St. Peter's band present were: Messrs. H. Steed (captain), J. W. Smith (correspondent), J. T. Godwin (churchwarden), W. J. Simons, R. H. Duke, H. W. Gale, D. W. Gale and C. S. House.

Representing the Branch were: Messrs. F. Precey (Ringing Master), F. Stedman (Deputy Ringing Master), J. H. Hayne (hon. secretary), Mrs. M. M. Godley (Yetminster), K. W. Hewitt and J. B. Whalley (from the neighbouring tower of Fordington St. George). The Master (Rev. C. C. Cox) was unavoidably prevented from attending.

MR. A. BERRILL

The death took place on November 18th of Mr. Arthur Berrill, aged 85 years, of Yardley Hastings, near Northampton. He started ringing at the age of 15, and had been a ringer at Yardley Church of 70 years.

He was a most faithful member of the band, and was scarcely absent from any ringing. He took part in the first peal known by any Yardley ringer, Grandsire Doubles, in 1922, the only peal he ever rang. He was also very fond of music and possessed a wonderful ear for it.

Six fellow ringers acted as bearers at the funeral and also rang a 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor in the evening with the bells half-muffled.

AN OUTING IN NOVEMBER

A party of Essex ringers had an outing in November 11th, three cars coming from Stebbing and one from Bocking.

The first call was at Moreton where there is an old ring of six. Despite the rattles and groans from above, as if in protest at being disturbed after a long rest, ringing on these bells was enjoyed. From the position of the ropes, the last ringers were either dwarfs or else were accustomed to ringing kneeling down.

The recently-augmented ring of six at Fyfield was the next call. Congratulations must be extended to the local ringers on raising the money required in ten months.

Tea, toast and cakes at a roadside cafe were followed by ringing on the fine six at North Weald, which were a delight to all the company. Harlow, Potter Street, was the last church visited. Although most of the band were six-bell ringers they found ringing on this light eight enjoyable. It is hoped to arrange another trip in the not too distant future.

TOWER CORNER (20)

'METHOD LEARNING—STEDMAN'

Dear Improvers.—In our previous lesson (XI.) we considered in general terms the form and structure of a Division of a method, and how Divisions are 'linked' together to form the Plain Course. We also saw that every Division falls into two halves, each being the reflection of the other; and that they show this feature not only about the 'Junction' of the two halves, but also about the 'Link' of two adjacent Divisions.

TWIN POSITIONS OF REFLECTION.

We remarked accordingly that just as there are two different positions, in a succession of change-rows, at which the method-pattern itself reflects, so also we should find that there are two different positions in the Blue Line of a method, about which the bell-path pattern reflects.

First method—STEDMAN.

These and other features we shall now discover in our study of methods in particular: beginning in this current lesson, No. XII., with the method already encountered, Stedman.

From the GENERAL to the PARTICULAR.

It is worth while recalling not only how we made the acquaintance of this method, but also what we gathered of it in general form. Indeed, this will be our way of approach to learning all methods we select; that is to say, first a general idea of the form of structure, then the sequence of the detail.

ELEMENTS OF METHOD RINGING.

It will be recalled that our approach to practical ringing was NOT to start upon any particular method but to learn to perform the three elements of all method-ringing, namely: (a) Hunting—both 'forward' and 'backward'; (b) Dodging; (c) Place-making. Our hunting was learned upon the smallest possible number—three bells, and our dodging upon two others behind them; while our place-making was learned on passing from the dodging to the three-bell hunting again, thus causing the hunting to be reversed to 'backward'.

SPECIFICATION for the STEDMAN METHOD.

In following that practice, we had encountered, so we discovered, the fundamentals of the method called Stedman; which, briefly summarised, give this general specification:—

- Plain hunting on the minimum number of bells in front
- Dodging on remainder of bells, in pairs, for the row-extent of (a).
- At the end of this row-extent or 'set,' exchange a bell from the front-work with one from the dodging, and start a new set.
- But reverse the form of hunting in this new set, so that the hunting in successive sets is alternately 'forward' and 'backward.' (Called respectively 'Quick' and 'Slow' sets)

THIS SPECIFICATION IS COMPREHENSIVE.

Now this is not only the complete specification for the method for the method on Stedman's Principle, but also the specification for its application on all numbers of bells both odd and even. The only difference between odd and even stages of the method occurs under (a) above, where the minimum on odd bells is three and on even bells is obviously four; and again under (b) above, where the extent on three bells is six rows and on four bells—unmodified—is eight rows.

STEADFAST.

Attention was drawn in these columns, early in 1950, to this 'mathematical' application of the Stedman Principle on all numbers; and details of the even-bell form were then given the distinguishing name of 'Steadfast.' Students of method structure may recall with interest that later, through the attention this publication had attracted, the C.C. was persuaded to declare that Shipway's Principle is the same method.

EVOLUTION of the WORK.

At the time of our practising the elements of method-ringing as above-mentioned (Exs. 34, 35, 36, 37 refer—as given in instalments 16 and 17), we discovered that what we called the sequence of alternate quick and slow sets gives rise to the 'work' of a bell recurring in cyclic order thus—Dodging, Slow work, Dodging, Quick work. We saw precisely what was entailed in the dodging and the quick work; but all we gathered of the slow work was that the bell in it was there for five sets working alternately in backward hunting and forward hunting. (Please refer to instalment 17, conclusion of Lesson X. for reminder.) It remains, therefore, for us to see in what sort of path our bell is involved, in these five sets of the slow work. Then this path, added to what we know to be the path in the dodgings and the quick work, will give us the complete Stedman Blue Line. Before coming to this, however, we must find and examine a Division in Stedman, bearing in mind all we have learnt about Divisions in general, in our previous lesson.

A DIVISION in STEDMAN.

Without much reflection the student might at first think that a set or 'six' might constitute a Division in this method. A quick set and a slow set will each be found to be symmetrical in structure about its half-way line or 'axis of reflection' as we have come to know it; but the portions of grid-pattern in each set are different. It is useful to test this for yourself by making up and comparing their grid-patterns, from the change-rows given in instalment 17, in figure 6. Clearly then, neither a quick set nor a slow set can alone constitute a Division of the method. Moreover if two complete sets together (one quick and one slow) be considered as a Division, there is found to be no symmetry about the line at the junction of the two sets. So by the C.C.'s definition of a Division this would be out of order. Now it is a matter of history that some measure of argument has proceeded about this question in the past; some holding that there are sets of two types there must be two kinds of Division in this method; while others have maintained the irregularity of such a concept and that the two sets together constitute an asymmetrical Division. (But of course, that is equally irregular!)

ONE SYMMETRICAL ARRANGEMENT.

The truth, however, is simple, and fairly obvious on reflection. A Stedman Division, like any other Method-Division, contains a number of change-rows equal to that obtained by dividing the number of rows in the plain course by the number of working bells. (See definition in instalment 13.) Take the Doubles stage of Stedman. Here the plain course comprises 60 change-rows. All five bells are working bells, of course. As sixty divided by five gives twelve, there must be twelve change-rows in a Stedman Division, and the first Division must comprise the first twelve rows of the plain course.

DIVISION and 'SIX' NOT COINCIDENT.

Many experienced ringers and even some writers on ringing have stated that Stedman began his plain course with the 'last two changes' of a quick six. Manifestly this is not true. Such folk commit the error, unfortunately found even in some current ringing publications, of putting the dividing line between Divisions just one change-row out of place. The position of this line, marking the parting of the Divisions (or as we prefer to call them—the Links), varies with the class of method, according as to whether it has one hunt-bell, two hunt-bells or none at all. This aspect of our subject is of sufficient importance to demand a special note on it. This we will give later. Reference to figure 6 in instalment 17 (or to the figures in any publication on Stedman) will show the starting rows of the plain course of the Doubles stage in this method, exactly as Fabian Stedman set them out. And the simple and obvious

LEEDS & DISTRICT SOCIETY

NOVEMBER MEETING AT OSSETT

The Society's November meeting was held at Ossett on Saturday, November 25th as local conditions prevented the meeting being held at St. Chad's, Headingley.

The bells were raised at 3 p.m. and ringing was enjoyed until 5 p.m. when an adjournment for tea was taken. Tea was served at the Church sale of work held in the Town Hall. On returning to the tower ringing continued until 7 p.m., the time for the business meeting.

Mr. F. Hutchinson was chairman owing to the president (Mr. Hill) returning home, as Mrs. Hill was ill in bed. The vote of thanks to the Vicar, churchwardens and local company was proposed by Mr. J. W. Benten and seconded by Mr. F. Hodgson, who thanked the local company for allowing the meeting at short notice and making arrangements for tea when the number attending was three times larger than the number sent in requesting tea.

Mr. Fisher replied for the Ossett company and said they were pleased to have the Society at Ossett to ring the bells when most of their own ringers were busy working at the sale of work.

Following the Society's usual practice no meeting will be arranged for December and members are requested to look for the next meeting announcement in 'The Ringing World.'

A committee was formed to draw up a list of towers for the Society's future meetings. During the afternoon and evening members were present from Armley, Batley, Almondbury, East Ardsley, Headingley (St. Chad's and St. Michael's), Idle, Leeds Parish Church, Liverseed, Ossett, Pudsey, Rothwell, Tadcaster and Drighlington.

WILLESEBOROUGH, KENT

After a spell in the summer, during which they confined their activities to short touches in order to accommodate visitors and on account of local ringers being away on holiday, the band of St. Mary's, Willeborough, has once more settled down to providing the best possible ringing for Sunday services. Recent achievements include:—

Sunday, October 29th.—Matins: Quarter peal, St. Clement's Bob Minor; an attempt at a quarter peal of Kent Treble Bob in the evening failed in the last course owing to a failure of the second row.

Sunday, November 5th.—Matins: Quarter peal, Double Bob Minor. Evensong: Quarter peal, Kent Treble Bob Minor.

Sunday, November 12th.—Matins: Quarter peal, Plain Bob Minor. Evensong: Quarter peal, Double Court.

The above two quarter peals were rung half-muffled in memory of the fallen in two world wars.

Sunday, November 19th.—Matins: 1,020 Double Bob Minor.

Sunday, November 26th.—Evensong: Quarter peal, St. Clement's Bob Minor.

At the other services when there has been insufficient time for quarter peals, extents have been rung in Double Bob Minor, Plain Bob Minor, Double Oxford Bob Minor and Kent Treble Bob Minor.

fact is that he began his plain course just exactly half-way through a quick set or 'six,' i.e., with the last three change-rows. As in most other methods, the first row of this plain course is 'rounds,' and the dividing line comes above that row. The first twelve rows, i.e., 1st Division, may now be seen to comprise the last half of a quick set followed by a slow set and then the first half of a quick set. The succeeding four Divisions are all identical in form with this first, and each is perfect in its symmetry of structure. Moreover each has another qualification, which we shall discover next time, when we study the Stedman Grid-pattern.—Cordially yours,

CORN. R. STONE.

REMINISCENCE

RINGING DURING THE BAN

I suppose I am one of the few ringers who can claim to have rung during the time of the 'ban' in the early part of the war.

I lived then in Hampshire, and the Rector and I, being both on the phone, were appointed to ring the invasion alarm should it ever be required.

At 2 a.m. one very dark morning the phone rang and a message came through that enemy paratroopers were suspected to have landed in our district and we were to ring the alarm. I stumbled down to the church with beating heart, where I found the Rector. We groped our way to the bells (they were rung 'downstairs') and at the Rector's suggestion we took the 5th and 6th respectively, rang them half-up and let them come down. We repeated this for about ten minutes, and an eerie experience it was to hear them clashing out in those strange circumstances.

I had then to go and warn various air raid wardens and it was not without some trepidation that I set about the task. Every tree seemed to be a lurking foe. One warden thought I was too, for he promptly bolted and barred his doors against me!

My task finished, I was going home down a dark lane when I became aware of footsteps behind me and, dawn just breaking, I perceived dimly a figure armed with a rifle. I thought my last hour had come and, quite defenceless, wondered how I could sell my life as dearly as possible. At that moment the 'foeman' called 'Halt!' and I soon recognised a local Home Guard, his loaded rifle pointed directly at me. His disappointment at recognising me was intense.

'Lor' lumme,' he said 'It's you!' And laughing heartily he added, 'I nearly put a bullet in you just now.' And with that he went off in search of further victims.

SIMPLE SIMON IN THE BELFRY

Simple Simon thought he would like to be a ringer so he ventured for the first time in his life into the belfry and this is what he said to his chum.

'Do you know, Bill, the ringers have a different language from ours (not bad language, mind you) but it was like a foreign language to me. One ringer was talking about touches, touches of Bob Major, touches of Double Norwich, touches of Cambridge, quarter peals of Bob Minor. He was telling them the conductor pricked out a touch. When they start ringing, one shouts out, "Here goes the treble! Going, going, gone." And they are always talking about some girl named Sally, though I never saw her and about some ringer handling his Sally nicely, and that someone broke her stays.

'Another ringer said he nearly broke her slider. I was told Number 4 bell was known to fall on her ringer. I looked up at the ceiling and moved away from Number 4. But she was said to have been called in quick by someone named Stedman whose name was frequently mentioned.

'Next I heard that Number 6 was in the hunt and then out of the hunt, made a double dodge and bobbed home. Number 3 was in the hunt and Number 6 coursing. Number 2 lying still. I fancied I was in the Pytchley Hunt following the hounds. Number 4 gave a blow, snapped with the treble. They all seemed a snappy lot. Someone yelled, "That's all," and they told me the bells were brought round, but I don't know where to. And then someone yells, "Stand." I was told they all stood at hand stroke and that Queen's change and Tittums had been heard. Someone remarked the bells were well controlled and were well tapped, but I don't know who tapped them.

'And if you know what it all means and what it's all about, I'm hanged if I do.'

'THE DIOCESAN HUMORIST.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

CANTERBURY DISTRICT

A most enjoyable meeting of the Canterbury District, Kent County Association, was held at Whitstable on December 2nd. Always a popular venue for a meeting, All Saints' again lived up to its reputation, for 80 members attended from 22 towers in the District, with a welcome visitor in Mr. Ted Allen, of Frindsbury. Ringing on the six bells took place during the afternoon.

The service was held in the church and was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. C. E. Waynforth), assisted by his curate (the Rev. S. T. Easter). The feature was the attendance of the full surpliced choir attached to the church; this, together with a most capable organist, added greatly to the enjoyment and beauty of the worship. A collection for the Association's Belfry Repair Fund amounted to 35s.

Tea was taken in the Church Hall, members sitting down to yet another 'Dilnot Special,' this time with a difference: they were being entertained by Mr. C. C. Dilnot himself. At the conclusion of tea the District's chairman, Mr. J. A. Russell, on behalf of those present, cordially thanked Mr. Dilnot for entertaining the members to tea. He also expressed thanks to the Vicar, Curate, Choir and Organist for their great help during the afternoon.

One new practising member was elected, and Mr. Russell stated that the Quex Park Society had been re-formed by ringers in that area, and the present owner of the estate had consented to become an honorary member of the Association together with his agent, Mr. A. G. Graham. The election of Mr. C. Powell-Cotton again forged a link between Quex Park and the Association, as his father was a life member for many years.

A return was made to the tower and further ringing enjoyed until a late hour. Many young members were again present and these were looked after by Mr. R. G. French, attending his first meeting in his capacity as Ringing Master; other methods were practised, going as far as London Surprise.

MIDLAND COUNTIES GUILD

MEETING AT OVERSEALE

About 40 members, friends and visitors from as wide an area as Kingsbury, Duffield and Ibstock were present for the last meeting of the year held at Overseale on November 25th.

This handy ring of eight, a 1914-18 war memorial, was made full use of from 2.30 p.m. to 8 p.m. and although no great variety of methods was rung, good practice was put in by the younger members. One performance worthy of note was that of Plain Bob Minor by six members of the fair sex.

The service was conducted by the Rev. F. V. Wallis, with Miss Wright at the organ.

A sumptuous tea prepared by the local ringers' wives followed, in the Robin Hood Hotel.

At the business meeting the belfry election of two members (one non-resident) was ratified. It was decided to accept the committee's recommendation and visit Repton for the annual meeting on January 13th.

The meeting closed with thanks to all who had made the meeting so successful.

YORK MINSTER

LADIES' GUILD TO RING SERVICE TOUCH

To-morrow (Saturday) the famous Five Sisters Window in the North Transept will be rededicated at a Welcome Back service at 2.30 p.m. The service will be sung by members of the Yorkshire Women's Institutes.

With the approval of the Dean and Chapter the Minster ringers invited the Ladies' Guild to ring the service touch on the middle eight. The response has been so good that this will now be possible and it will be the first time in the history of the Minster that a band of women has rung for a service in the Minster.

THOMAS POST Ringer, Shepherd and Poet

LAST Christmas our editorial, 'Lord be thankit,' was based on a painting of the old shepherd who 'for three score years he rang his simple praise.' Inspired by this, Mr. George H. Head, of Hampton, Middlesex, has forwarded to us a selection of verses written by Thomas Post, of Wye, Kent, and published when he was aged 84. Post was of such a character as the aged bell-ringer; he was a shepherd, poet and ringer.

Perhaps some of our older readers in the Kent and Sussex border country knew him. Mr. Head did and had rung with him. The story of the publication of Post's verses is of interest. In December, 1899, an appeal was launched for widows of men killed in the war in South Africa. Thomas Post walked into the office of 'The Kentish Express,' Ashford, and to the editor said: 'I have come to see if I can help your War Fund. I have no money, but everybody should do his little bit. I wish to help if you will only let me.' Then from his capacious pocket he drew a scroll of manuscript. 'There,' said he, his eyes glistening with pardonable pride, 'I wrote those lines myself. I should like to sell them and give the money to the soldiers' widows and orphans.'

The late Mr. Charles Igglesden, the then editor of 'The Kentish Express,' describes Post as being entirely self-educated. After spending a few years in the Army, he became a shepherd. His manuscript was written in capital letters, as these were the only letters he understood. Rhyming has come naturally to him—a gift which in a highly educated man might have led to the loftiest steps of the ladder of fame. But for the alteration of a word here and there, the verses in the volume are left just as he wrote them—crude, but strangely flavoured with the intense earnestness that characterises their author.

For seventy years Thomas Post was a bell-ringer, and he is reputed to have rung peals in 53 different churches in Kent. Even as a child he had a marked predilection for bells, and he tells of the days of his boyhood when he produced his first chimes on some old scythes he had found in an outbuilding. The most notable event in his ringing career was the establishment of a ringing record in East Kent in May, 1846. This took place at St. Leonard's, Hythe, where 13,440 changes were rung in 7 hours and 55 minutes.

Mr. George H. Head adds his recollection of Post. He writes: 'It was about 50 years ago, after an unsuccessful attempt for a peal of Bob Major, that I visited the dear old chap in his humble home and spent some time with him. I well remember him showing me the manuscript of his poems. I only remember ringing with him once, at Ashford, and the way he handled the tenor was a lesson to me as a beginner. He was then about 70.'

Typical of Thomas Post's verse is the following, entitled, 'To all my brothers strings':—

Many miles I have walked
To meet my brother string,
And for to meet
It was a treat
To make the bells to ring.

Many ringers I've taught to ring,
As you may understand:
Some of them
Be good men
And captains of a band.

Let us meet, we ringers all,
And ring within the steeple;
They hear the sound
For miles around,
We call a waiting people.

Christmas Day; rejoicing day!
We make the bells to ring.
The people hear
And all come near
To praise the Lord and King.

Four score years are gone and past,
Old age has come, you see.
Brother string,
When you ring,
Pray sympathise with me.

When ringing days are over,
I pray the Lord to bless
All his faithful ringers
When they lay down to rest.

EDITOR: T. W. WHITE.

A notable event reported this week is the first peal in nine Surprise methods on handbells at Stanmore, Middlesex. It was composed and conducted by Mr. H. G. Cashmore and involved 139 changes of method.

Miss Jean Southerst, of Worcester and Leeds, has scored a double event in two days. At Hanley Castle, Worcs, on Dec. 2nd, she completed the Stedman range by a peal of Doubles, as did also Mr. G. J. Lewis, of Powick. On the following day at Hanbury, a peal of Cambridge Minor completed this method on all numbers for her, as well as for Mr. Terry Hampton, of Birmingham.

Mr. H. T. Rooke expresses his thanks to those who replied to his query re peals at Tibshelf, Derbyshire.

Congratulations to David Verrier, who rang his first quarter at St. Maurice's, Winchester, after about five weeks' tuition.

The vigour of Mr. Joseph T. Dyke, the hon. secretary of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association, is unabated. He has just turned in the 50½ cwt. tenor of St. Mary's, Redcliffe, to a peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus!

Bakewell (Derbyshire) Parish Church ringers will be heard on the B.B.C. Northern programme on December 21st at 10.45 p.m. in a programme of tower bells and handbell (tunes) ringing.

Following Leicester's recent performance of Spliced Surprise Maximus, St. Martin's Guild are in our peal columns this week with Spliced Cambridge and Yorkshire. The occasion was memorable for Mr. Albert Walker—his 450th peal on 12 bells, a feat never before reached.

The peal of Plain Bob Royal at Kingston-on-Thames on November 11th was rung as a farewell to Mr. H. W. Barrett on leaving Kingston after 20 years' service, and the time taken was 3 hours and 33 minutes. Mr. Barrett is now living at Fernhill, Loddon, Norfolk, and has been privileged to continue his peal-ringing proclivities with the Norwich Diocesan Association.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Chester Diocesan Guild are having a vintage year in 1950. Latest achievement is the first silent peal of Spliced Surprise Major, and the umpire, Mr. H. O. Baker, in his report, published in another column, states, 'This was a perfect peal without a single trip.' The Exercise should be very proud of the Chester Diocesan Guild.

The peal at Henley Castle celebrated the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Lewis, of Worcester. Tom Lewis, the happy father, is a member of the Worcester Cathedral band and well known in ringing circles. His wife, a member of the Johnson family of Hinton-on-the-Green (Evesham), is also a ringer.

By fitting 'Davis' silencers, a peal has been rung at St. Peter's, Bournemouth; otherwise the authorities would not have permitted a peal attempt. The occasion was four first peals, including the Rev. John Coutts, who is the first clergyman on the staff to take up ringing.

Peal ringers will notice with this week's issue a change in the printing of the title of a peal to enable a modern type face to be introduced which is in keeping with the text. We trust that the omission of the word 'changes' will not cause consternation among those accustomed to the traditional style of printing peals.

St. Laurence's, Reading, has suffered a great loss by the departure of Mr. and Mr. C. J. Watts to London. Cyril Watts and Nancy have been for over 20 years most loyal Sunday service ringers. At the weekly practice they could be relied on to strengthen the band in ringing from rounds to Surprise. As a farewell and symbol of appreciation of their good fellowship, 1,323 Stedman Cinques was rung by the local company.

STORY OF A GREAT RINGING CAREER

DIARY OF THE LATE MR. W. H. FUSSELL

Edited by ERNEST MORRIS

Among his 'general notes' Mr. Fussell says, 'In 1877 I bought a small sketch book at Mr. Herbert's in High Street. This I frequently used in my visits to all country places, my sketches at that time being very rude and in quite an amateur style. After carefully putting my name on the first page I used it at Stoke Poges to make a sketch of several two-light windows, these being my first attempts.' After giving notes of several churches he rang at and sketched, he has pasted in several 720's received from J. J. Parker at Farnham Royal.

BULLDOG IN BELFRY.

An amusing entry is given under date 1878: 'Joynes of the Malt House was the means of my brother having a bulldog—a terror to everyone but a faithful companion to me, a big-hearted, ugly, ferocious-looking beast. After he had had him (Jack was his name) for about two years, he took to biting people. While ringing at Burnham the dog walked round the belfry and got caught in one of the ropes. He was immediately jerked up about 12ft. high. When he got his wind again, he at once fastened on to the trousers seat of the man who was ringing the tenor, with a tight grip. This quite alarmed the man, for he could not tell quite what had happened as the rope of the tenor came down right in the corner, and to ring the bell conveniently the ringer always faced the corner, turning his back to the others. There was a general commotion at this! At last the dog was got away, but soon after, while in the Slough tower, he caught hold of Joynes' leg. The dog was then sent to Stoke to a man to try and cure him of this habit of biting people, but one day he bit a man's arm and was shot soon after.'

Under the date 1874 he writes: 'The previous tower to the present one at Farnham was a very dilapidated place. The old peal of six were stacked in a barn where they were chipped and knocked about very much by farm labourers and others. The children threw stones at them until at last they were about to be sold when the relations of the late Dodd (to whose memory there is a fine tomb in the churchyard) had the tower rebuilt and the bells were consequently reinstated. From the time the bells were opened till last year, I had not failed once to attend the anniversary meeting there on Whit Monday.'

RINGING FOR NEW HATS

'At the time I learned to ring I was living in Church Street, Slough, not more than 120 yards from the tower. I continued a parish ringer up to 1881. I often heard Mr. Steel speak of ringing for new hats which took place at Langley every year. Both him and Tom Joy had won one in competition.'

'At the time Datchet bells were being fixed Steel went over to see the work and found the builders building the frame and timbers in with the stone work and masonry. He told them no one would be able to ring the bells, but the workmen offered to throw him down if he didn't mind his own business.'

'When the Slough men went to open them, they had to leave the tower and the bells anyhow, for it rocked so much that they expected to see it fall. Nothing further was done. They are now chimed by a machine (and in pencil) and have never been rung since!'

Under date 1878 Mr. Fussell has this amusing note: 'During one of our visits to Burnham, Mr. Pinnafore got the worse for drink and had some difficulty in getting along. He always went out in a high box hat, but this dropped into a ditch. On going to pick it up he fell on top of it, making it a shape like a concertina. I believe he passed the night there. The Burnham ringers found that gentleman and his high box hat in the morning early.' A pencil

ST. MARY'S, SLOUGH

Where Mr. W. H. Fussell did so much of his early ringing. Later he made a gift to the church of the tenor, the bell being inscribed 'The gift of William H. Fussell, to the glory of God. A humble thankoffering to St. Mary's Church by a native of the town. "The curfew tolls the knell of parting day."' note states: 'His hat was one of those discarded by the Provost of Eton, Dr. Hornby.'

ROPE ROUND NECK.

Under date 1875, 'The old brick tower of our church had the lower part used as a vestry, the ringing room being over. This was reached by a staircase in a turret on the south side of the entrance and a walk along the gallery. There was rather a long draught, and my brother got the rope of the 4th while ringing under his arm and round his throat. Had his arm not been in the rope he would certainly have been hung. As it was, he was not allowed to work for two weeks, the arm, side and neck and throat being skinned and rasped with the rope and very painful. He rings left-handed, and the door then opened close by the 4th, that then causing the mishap.'

Mr. Fussell then gives a drawing of the ringing room.

BELFRY REFORM.

Mr. Fussell goes on to say: 'The popularity of the Slough Ringers' Society gradually increased, more especially about my ringing, as I was only on 13 years old when I started to learn. While on a visit or outing, for me to be seen handling a church bell or ringing handbells equal to some of the old fogeys who had been at it for about 40 years, seemed very unusual at that time of the world. During this year (1878) belfry reform was gradually creeping into several towers close by, and young blood was speedily brought to the Exercise. The West Middlesex Association had been in existence since 1874. The East Berks and South Bucks Association was also in existence. Both were very much talked about in Slough belfry as well as elsewhere, many vows made against them and objections raised out of mere nothings. The good of them and their use was fully discussed, and not much faith expressed—not the slightest wish to learn change ringing. But, as old John Steel told them, "it's bound to come some day, you'll see."

'Another trip to Burnham made, melodious call changes rung as usual. When out on a ringing excursion our friend, Mr. Leader, used to carry a long roll of white paper with some Stedman changes figured on it. Both ends of the sheet had a small roller. This was also produced for him to call the changes from and created quite an impression in the country towers. He had two rolls, one for Grandsire besides the Stedman.

'A visit to Stoke Poges was also enjoyed during this year. This place was a regular infernal hole for beer, tobacco, swearing and pitch and toss up to very recently. The beer was carried all the way from the Dog and Pot, a public-house quite 1½ miles away. When the new treble was added to the old five previous to being hung, it was fixed mouth upwards in the Red Lion Inn and filled with ale to christen it. Anyone could go and dip a mug and drink. It was propped up with sacks of corn round it. The bell itself is very much out of tune and spoiled the peal. It was presented by Squire Coleman.'

FIRST STEPS IN CHANGE RINGING.

Mr. Fussell gives an account of his early career by stating that in the latter part of 1879 he and his brother Alf very frequently rode to Maidenhead and walked to Boyne Hill, where they rang plain courses of Grandsire Triples—Alf on the 4th and himself on the 2nd. In 1880 the Slough men, able to ring Grandsire Doubles, began to practise Minor. In April that year the bells were rehung by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and Mr. Fussell says, 'I little thought I should work in the same foundry with the man who came to hang them—John Collier.' He adds: 'I had no work on change ringing at this time, and had to borrow my brother's book (Troyte), from which I copied out the Grandsire method rules. I bought a copy of Troyte's "Change Ringing" at Luff's, High Street, for 3s. 6d. (November, 1880).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FIRST SILENT PEAL OF SPLICED SURPRISE

UMPIRE'S REPORT ON PERFECT PERFORMANCE.

Dear Sir,—I have the pleasure to enclose herewith my report of the silent peal of Spliced Surprise Major rung at Frodsham on Friday, November 24th, 1950.

The peal was rung strictly silent from start to finish without a single word being spoken or sign being made by any ringer.

Throughout the peal I kept a careful watch, noting all bobs made and checking every lead end. I was the only one to speak, and I only uttered two words, viz., 'Go' and 'Stand.'

This was a perfect peal without a single trip, and the ringers should be congratulated on this fine performance. Incidentally this was the same band that rang the first peal of Silent Bristol last March at Hyde.—Yours faithfully, HENRY O. BAKER.

Chester.

Umpire.

KNEBWORTH PEAL SURVIVORS' CONGRATULATIONS

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me the medium of your pages to extend my hearty congratulations to the band that rang the 21,600 of Bristol Surprise Major at Over on the 4th ult.

I can well appreciate the high merit of the performance, as I had the privilege of ringing in the first long peal in the method, 12,160 at Knebworth on April 8th, 1912.

This, the extent with the tenors together, was eclipsed a few months later by a 15,000 odd at Hornchurch, but it has taken close on 40 years for these figures to be exceeded.

This last performance leaves our figures a long way behind, and has set up an amazing record.

The physical endurance of 13 hours' ringing is stupendous, and Bristol is a method that has traps for mind wearied by long concentration and bodily fatigue.

Whatever the opinions in the Exercise may be towards long peals, everyone must admit the high merit of this great achievement and join in a meed of generous praise.

I am sure the surviving members of our Knebworth peal will join me in saying 'Well done.'—Yours faithfully,

F. WHITE.

Luton.

AN APPEAL FOR MUFFLED RINGING

Dear Sir,—I have been learning ringing for the last six months at the beautiful 15th century church of St. John the Baptist, Cardiff, where we have a glorious ring of ten bells (tenor 27 cwt. in D). I also regularly take 'The Ringing World,' and notice that in most copies there is a notification of a muffled peal being rung either at a ringer's funeral or in memory of a ringer who died some time ago.

This is a very fine gesture on the part of the ringers and a practice that should have a wider field of scope. Why isn't it made a rule by all Diocesan Guilds that the bells be muffled whenever a sad festival or season comes round, e.g., Lent and Good Friday, the six weeks in the Church's year when all church bells throughout this land should be muffled, Good Friday especially?

Remembrance Sunday is another day when muffled bells should be the order of the day, as Great Britain then goes to church and to the war memorials to pay tribute to her fallen.

We cannot emphasise enough the indispensable part bells and their ringers have played in Church ritual down the ages to the present day. They are a part of the Church and its services and, therefore, should ring clear and muffled as the occasion demands.—Yours truly,

PETER J. ROBERTS.

Barry, Glam.

'YE RASCALLY RINGERS'

Dear Sir,—The 'Old Somerset Rhyme' I believe to be of Norfolk origin!

James Hooper, in his 'Notes on the Church of St. Peter Mancroft' (1895), says that 'An old parish clerk of Mancroft was so exasperated by the ringers starting at six on Sunday mornings that he vented his spleen in the following lines:—

Ye rascally ringers—inveterate foes,
Disturbers of those who are fond of repose;

I wish for the peace and quiet of these lands,

That ye had round your necks what ye pull with your hands.

Unfortunately, I am unable to say precisely when this worthy flourished. Was the old parish clerk guilty of plagiarism? Another version, endorsed by many wishers, is:—

Disturbers of the human race,
Your bells are always ringing.
I wish the ropes were round your necks,
And you upon them swinging.

Yours sincerely,
NOLAN GOLDEN.

Norwich.

DOGS AND BELLS

Dear Sir,—What is the effect of church bells on dogs? My little terrier howls pitifully if she hears one bell, but does not mind when all our bells are ringing.

As soon as we lower the bells on a practice night or after a peal she comes to the church to greet me.

A few weeks ago she was missing from home. After a search of two hours she was found asleep on the matting in the ringing chamber, which is on the ground floor.—Yours sincerely, JAMES H. MUSSON.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

Dear Sir,—Mr. Hesketh Pearson, in an obituary article in 'The Listener' (November 9th, 1950), writes:—

'He declined honours of all kinds, including the Nobel Prize for Literature. He told me that when the first Labour Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald, offered him a peerage, he said, "I cannot afford to be a Duke, and you cannot decently offer me anything less." "In that case," returned MacDonald, "we must give you the Order of Merit." "I have already conferred it on myself," replied Shaw, an example of his whimsicality.'

It is very doubtful, therefore, that, were it possible to ask him, he would favour the idea of an 'in memoriam' peal.

But I think my old friend Dan Matkin is mistaken in describing him as an atheist.

Hesketh Pearson recalls a visit to G.B.S. just after his 90th birthday:—'I asked him if he would write his own obituary for the postscript which I was preparing for my biography of him. "But I am not dead yet," he exclaimed. I replied that a man could not very well write his own obituary unless he were alive. He saw the point and at once began to dictate a synopsis of his philosophy; which was equality of income and equality of truth between men, and a belief that God was in every one of us.'

St. John Ervine, in a companion article writes: 'His serenity of mind endured to the last; he faced his end without fear. I said to him one day that Thomas Hardy had told me that death meant no more to him than removal from one room to another. Shaw nodded his head. "That's how I think of it," he said.'

The Editor, in his leading article, writes: 'Shaw was a worthy fraction of that Life Force which he worshipped.'

The idea of God admits of many interpretations.

Edgbaston, Birmingham.

OLDEST LIVING TOWER-BELL PEAL RINGER

Dear Sir,—Referring to Mr. R. Biggs' (Hugghenden) statement in 'The Ringing World' of December 8th, I do not agree with his remarks. I still claim to be the oldest tower-bell peal ringer on the peal at 85 years and nine months.

I lost my left leg on July 2nd, 1940, at the age of 86 years and seven months and I rang a record peal on handbells on my 95th birthday. This proves that I am mentally active with my intellect, and that, as I rang a handbell peal at 95 years, with one leg, I could easily do it if I had my two legs, so no ringer will disappoint me doing it with two legs. I still make my claim until any ringer does it with one leg. Therefore James W. Wilkins, of High Wycombe, has no claim.

I lost a peal of Stedman Triples at the age of 92 years on the second bell at the tower of Bishop Ryder, Birmingham, when the ringer on the treble broke down after ringing two hours and twenty minutes.

JAMES GEORGE.

Pool, Dorset.

THE FOUR GEORGES

Dear Sir,—It is very interesting to read from the diary of the late Mr. W. H. Fussell. The four Georges referred to were the late Mr. George Williams, Mr. George Martin, Mr. George Pye and myself. It was during Mr. Frank Bennett's Newcastle ringing tour in August, 1936, that a peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal was rung at North Shields. Prior to starting, Mr. Fussell commented on the fact that we had four Georges in the band and they stood in consecutive order.

Please forgive me for interposing, but I felt that I would like the correction. The 'George Newson' referred to was most probably given in mistake for my name.—Yours sincerely,

GEORGE R. NEWTON.

Liverpool.

DUDLEY AND DISTRICT GUILD

A well-attended meeting was held at Wednesbury on December 2nd in very wintry weather, when 40 members and friends braved the elements.

The bells were kept going in various methods until the service, which was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Dr. Lavelle, who gave a very interesting address and afterwards conducted the party around the beautiful church and explained many of the interesting possessions, which included a valuable picture and a Jacobean pulpit.

After an excellent tea the business meeting took place, the Vicar presiding. It was decided to hold the annual meeting at Dudley on March 10th.

The usual votes of thanks were passed to the Vicar, organist, and the local ringers for their assistance, and members returned to the belfry for further ringing.

ST. MATTHEW'S, CLAPTON

The ringers of St. Matthew's, Clapton, held a parish social on December 2nd in their Church Hall, which was well attended both by ringers and parishioners. Over 100 turned up and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The aim was to help reach a target of £76 for repairs to, and soundproofing of, the belfry.

Games, dances and raffles, etc., helped to fill the evening, but the gathering nearly didn't have refreshments as a certain person crashed into the table of crockery during a blindfold game and most of the cups came to a sad end. However, after several persons had gone for more cups, refreshments were served. An additional collection was made and over £1 was collected for new cups and saucers.

At the end of the evening, the organisers were able to add £12 to the repair fund. Thanks are due to all who kindly helped in the effort: for their donations and by their presence at the social.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILDWEST DORSET BRANCH

At the annual meeting of the West Dorset Branch held at Bridport on December 2nd, some eight affiliated towers were represented with visitors from Abbotsbury and Axminster, totalling about 50.

The Rector of Bridport, Canon G. C. Clare, conducted the service in church, the Master of the Guild (Rev. C. Carew Cox) giving the address.

Following tea in the Church House, the Rev. C. Carew Cox presided over the business meeting, supported by Canon Clare, the Rev. A. W. Wheeler, Vicar of Beaminster and Mr. Chapman, churchwarden, of Bridport.

The chairman asked that the Branch might consider electing someone in his place as he had now occupied the office for 21 years. On the motion of Canon Clare, however, the members unanimously voted for his re-election; also for the Rev. O. L. Willmott's re-election as vice-chairman. Mr. C. H. Lathey, the hon. secretary, wished it to be known that he would be undergoing hospital treatment in the near future and would not be able to carry out his duties for a period. Tribute was paid to his invaluable work with the best wishes of the members for his speedy recovery, and Mr. Critchard, hon. assistant secretary, kindly agreed to act for him during the emergency. The Ringing Master, Mr. H. D. W. Bishop, with his deputies, Messrs. H. G. Keeley and J. Barrett, were re-elected unanimously.

The following new members were welcomed: Messrs. L. A. Follett and K. R. Gardiner (Bridport); Miss A. Ivis, Messrs. G. Bird, F. Cartwright, J. Fox, W. Lucas and K. Knight (Evershot) and Mr. H. J. Arcsott (Whitchurch). Little Cheney, Beaminster, Evershot and Netherbury were chosen as the towers for the four quarterly meetings next year. The Branch voted for Mr. G. S. Morris as its nominee for the next election to the Central Council.

The chairman expressed the thanks of all to Canon Clare for his welcome and the use of the bells, to Mr. B. Elsworth, the Branch organist, and to Mr. C. H. Lathey for his arrangements for the meeting.

Ringing during the afternoon and evening included call changes, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob Major, Double Norwich and Yorkshire Surprise Major, the latter being, it is believed, the first touch in that method on the bells.

BATH & WELLS ASSOCIATIONCHEW DEANERY BRANCH

The annual meeting of the above branch was held at Wrington on December 2nd.

The Association service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. Chetwynd-Talbot) who gave a short address.

Forty-five people sat down to a sumptuous tea followed by the usual business meeting. All the branch officers were re-elected for the ensuing year. One new member from Portishead was elected as well as two life members from St. Ambrose, Bristol, and one honorary member from Winford.

Subject to necessary permission being given, it was decided to hold meetings as follows:—Practice meetings for January, February and March at Clevedon (St. John's), Piblow and Tickenham respectively. Should the tower repairs at Tickenham not be complete in time, this meeting will be transferred to Butcombe and Nemmett Thruwell. There will be a corporate communion at Chew Magna on April 1st and a quarterly meeting at Long Ashton on April 21st.

In addition to branch members, ringers were present from Abbots Leigh, Bath, Bathwick, Bristol, Kewstoke, Leicester, Locking, Marksbury, Stonehouse and the University of Bristol Society.

Ringing on the ten bells in the tower was then resumed in standard methods up to Little Bob and Cambridge Royal and was under the direction of the Ringing Master, Mr. H. W. Knight.

OBITUARIES OF THE WEEKMR. JOHN L. GORNALL

Ringing in Lancashire has suffered a loss by the death of Mr. John L. Gornall, of Penwortham, Preston, on November 24th, after an illness of ten days' duration.

Mr. Gornall was a faithful ringer for over 53 years at St. Mary's, Penwortham, and head ringer for ten years. For one period of ten years he was neither absent nor late for a service.

Of a retiring disposition, John was at all times dependable, slow to anger and the possessor of infinite patience; he was the true embodiment of the ideal church bellringer.

The funeral was on November 28th, the coffin being borne by four local ringers. On December 3rd, a quarter peal of Plain Bob Minor was rung to his memory on the bells he loved so well.

MR. EDWARD STEELE

It is with regret that we announce the death of Mr. 'Ted' Steele, of Longton, Stoke-on-Trent, on November 25th, at the age of 60. 'Ted' had been a ringer at Longton St. John's for about 40 years, and had been leader for about 16 years. Always of a quiet nature, he at all times made visitors and friends feel at home in his company. He was truly one of nature's gentlemen.

He played a big part in teaching a band of ringers at Draycott-in-the-Moors, where he gave the second bell (in memory of his first wife), when the bells were augmented to eight in 1939. He would go miles to teach would-be ringers to set a bell; nothing was too much trouble to him where ringing was concerned. Being a potter, he became infected with that disease peculiar to his trade, silicosis, and had not done much ringing for the past two years.

He had been treasurer for a great number of years for the North Staffs Association and was very interested in his work for that Association, for which he had rung over 60 peals.

The funeral took place at Draycott on Nov. 30th. Ringers from Draycott and Cheadle acted as bearers and the bells were rung half-muffled before and after the service by ringers representing several towers in the Association. He has left a good sum of money for the upkeep of the bells at Longton, Draycott and Dilhorne, and he will be greatly missed in the district. May his soul rest in peace.

CANON G. D. OAKLEY

The ringers of St. Mary's, Walthamstow, much regret to record the death of the Vicar of St. Mary's, the Rev. Canon G. D. Oakley, on December 2nd, in his 80th year.

He was inducted to the living in February, 1927, for which occasion the local band rang a peal of Grandsire Caters. Although he knew little about ringing affairs, during the whole of the period he was with us he was popular with all the ringers. The request for the use of the bells was always readily given, and he was very interested when the record length of Cambridge Royal was rung in the tower many years ago.

The various Associations were made very welcome by him on the occasions when meetings were held at St. Mary's, and he was most generous with catering for hungry bellringers. We shall miss him and his charming personality, as indeed will all the parish.

The funeral was on Dec. 6th, and during the evening a half-muffled quarter peal of Stedman Triples was rung to his memory.

MR. H. C. WALTERS

Pontefract has lost an able ringer in the death of Mr. Harry C. Walters, which took place at Northgate Lodge Infirmary on Monday, November 27th.

Six months ago Mr. Walters had a major operation in Pontefract Infirmary, from which he only made a partial recovery. After treatment in Leeds Infirmary, he returned home and was removed to Northgate Lodge Infirmary three weeks before his death.

Mr. Walters joined the Yorkshire Association in 1905, and was a member of the general committee, and at one time was Ringing Master of the Eastern Division of the Association.

Business prevented him being a great peal ringer; his total, however, was 115, of which he had conducted 43. His favourite method was Stedman Triples, which comprised half of his peals.

The funeral took place at the Pontefract Cemetery on November 30th, after a service in the Parish Church, conducted by the Vicar of Pontefract (the Rev. J. Peel) assisted by the Rev. J. A. Griffiths, assistant priest. As the cortege approached the church, the local ringers rang a short touch of Stedman Triples with the bells fully muffled.

There was a large congregation present, The Yorkshire Association was represented by the president, the Ven. C. O. Ellison, Archdeacon of Leeds, and the local ringers.

The Vicar, in a short address, spoke of Mr. Walters' devoted service to the church and belfry over a period of 47 years. He was only 17 years of age when he took up ringing, and through all these years he was always at his post of duty, helping learners and setting a great example.

Mr. Walters was funeral director for the Pontefract Industrial Co-operative Society, Limited, with whom he was employed for 28 years. The secretary of the Co-operative Society, announcing the death of Mr. Walters, on behalf of the Society, wrote: 'His unselfish life, his kindly, unassuming manner, and his genial temperament, endeared him to us all, and we shall sorely miss him.'

Mr. Walters leaves a widow and three sons. His eldest son was killed during the last war.

In the evening, a quarter peal of Stedman Triples was rung at the Parish Church with the bells fully muffled by A. Walker 1, J. H. Lenton 2, B. Moody 3, W. Hawley 4, H. Newton 5, J. E. Atkinson 6, F. Newton (conductor) 7, A. Heckingbottom 8.

'DAVIS' SILENCERS

The peal at St. Peter's, Bournemouth, reported this week, was rung with 'Davis' silencers.

In response to our enquiry, Mr. Arthur Davis, the local captain, writes that they are of the same type as used at St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate, and were designed by J. E. Davis. 'We made our set locally to a pattern sent to us by Messrs. John Taylor and Co., Loughborough.'

'They consist of a thick piece of leather over which is laid a sheet of steel plate and are tied by cords in much the same way as you double-muffle a bell clapper.'

'The effect is a little different from full-muffled ringing, the blow being sharper but the noise of the ringing is much reduced and the tone rather pleasing. In fact, many people like hearing the bells with them on as they give a distant bells effect quite near the tower.'

'In the belfry we have to open up a door or two and then we hear the bells quite well.'

'I sometimes use them for practice when our hall is in use, which is much better than cancelling the practice. We do not overdo it because some people would want them always in use.'

TOWER CORNER (21)

'STEDMAN—THE GRID-PATTERN.'

Dear Improvers,—Continuing with Lesson XII., on learning Stedman as a first method, we have first to look at the Grid-pattern, so as to get some idea of the inter-working of the bells themselves. Then we shall develop the Blue Line, and finally derive some tips for ringing it.

The Division.—Recalling all we said, at the close of the previous instalment, of the perfect symmetry of a Stedman Division, let us examine this as illustrated in figure 8, and let us compare carefully the annotation with that of figure 7 in instalment 19. (There we gave the diagram of a Division of a typical hunt-controlled method—St. Clement's Bob.)

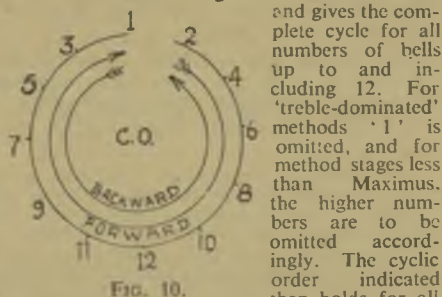

You will recall that we showed that the 'sixes' are not coincident with the Divisions, in Stedman, and here we see how this comes about. But note that the arrangement of the Stedman Division into the two symmetrical halves, is identical with that of any other method Division. Note at J the form of the Junction in this method, a 3rds place one; and note at L the form of Link, a 1sts place one.

Position Sequence.—In a hunt-controlled method we find, at each Link, the same bell (the Treble) coming to lead there. In an omni-working method (all bells doing same work), such as Stedman, we find, at each Link, a different bell coming to lead there. In Stedman it is as though the Treble got mixed up with another bell in the 4-5 dodging and lost its identity, coming down to lead as the fifth, at the first Link. A glance at figure 8 should illustrate this point. Now the order in which these bells come to lead at the Links is in that of the Position Sequence, and if you have forgotten what this implies, turn back to instalment 18. For Stedman Doubles this order is: 5-2-3-4-1. (Cyclic.) This fact may be checked by examination of the d-h (Division-head) rows themselves. For the full plain course—five divisions—they are as given in figure 9 alongside. Note that the figures in each column are of the cyclic order just quoted, i.e., the Position Sequence.

Basic Coursing Order.—Now examine something equally, if not more, important, a feature we know as 'Basic Coursing Order.'

Fig. 9. The as 'Basic Coursing Order.' Division - heads This is often referred to as of the plain 'Bob Major Lead Ends'—course of Sted- a bad name indeed. 'Bad,' man Doubles. because the principle involved is not applicable only to Bob Major, nor are the rows quoted those which come at the 'end' of a so-called 'lead' of rows. (We pricked this bubble, anyway, in a previous instalment.) However, the important thing is to grasp just what is implied by 'Basic Coursing Order.' It has become a convention in ringing that methods should, in the main (there are a few exceptions) have the bells turning up at the Division-heads in a certain cyclic order. In a plain course this order appears as ascending even numbers and descending odd numbers. This is the order for forward hunting only. For backward hunting it is the reverse. Figure 10 illustrates this and gives the complete cycle for all numbers of bells up to and including 12. For 'treble-dominated' methods '1' is omitted, and for method stages less than Maximus, the higher numbers are to be omitted accordingly. The cyclic order indicated then holds for all cases. Accordingly, from figure 10, the order for Stedman Doubles should be 24531.

Basic C.O. of the Division-Heads.—Test the Stedman Doubles d-h's (refer to figure 9) for the presence of this basic C.O.—2-4-5-3-1. As these Division-heads are all in 'quick' sets, the hunting is all 'forward' at the Links. To read off the order for forward hunting start with the second figure of the row, as that is the next bell to come to lead; and in the order in which bells come down to lead is to be found their 'coursing' order. (Correspondingly, for backward hunting, start with the first figure of the row.) From the starting figure continue with alternate figures to the right, and return likewise to the left, in the row. For example, applying this to the first d-h (rounds) we get the order 2-4-5-3-1. The second d-h gives the order 3-1-2-4-5. And so on. In fact, these and the remaining d-h's are all in the cyclic order we derived from figure 10, i.e., the Basic C.O. We may now remind you that at the end of the previous instalment we promised to indicate another qualification for the way of 'dividing' the Stedman method; and you have now seen that the Stedman Doubles Division-heads are all in Basic Coursing Order.

Starting Row of Stedman.—To more experienced ringers—and there are some!—who say it is not known why Stedman started his Doubles from inside a 'six,' you will now be able to show that it was evidently to provide his method with Divisions having symmetry of structure and with head-rows in basic coursing order. They may refer you to the Triples stage, and, whilst agreeing about the symmetry, point out the absence of basic coursing order in the d-h's there. To this you may reply that the extension to Triples was of later origin, and that it is one of the few exceptions above-mentioned. Union Triples is another.

Deriving Blue Line from Grid.—Having studied the Grid-pattern (see the rows bracketed as 'G' in figure 8) and note particularly the symmetry of the grid-pattern throughout the Division and the inter-working of the bells themselves, we pass to the development of the method's Blue Line. And later we can apply the test of a statement we made in instalment 19, where we said, 'All we need for making out a method in any given stage is the group of rows marked "G," i.e., the rows in the Grid.' This is true, of course, only if we have positioned the Link correctly amid the successive rows. That we have done so in the present case is already apparent from the test just applied, for there are no other positions of symmetry with basic C.O. head-rows anywhere in the plain course of Stedman Doubles.

Omission of Conventional Information in these articles.—To conclude this instalment, we digress a little. By now it will have become apparent, especially to more experienced readers, that, although it may not be unknown to those who have devoted some rational thinking to these matters, yet some of what we have to say has not, up to now, been published. It is no part of our policy in these articles to 're-hash' conventional information that is already available in the several good ringing publications. But it is our object to present a new approach on a logical basis, with fresh matter that is fundamentally sound, and is calculated to help in the attainment of a broader outlook on the study and practice of ringing as a whole, with a closer correlation of viewpoints.

Bibliography.—We shall assume that beginners who have followed us thus far will be able to gain access to some of such ringing publications; to which, therefore, we shall from time to time refer them. They may thus study those fundamentals which not only would take up, unnecessarily, valuable space in these columns, but also could not be better put.

References to the method now being studied, then, may be found in:—

BEVERLEY & DISTRICT SOCIETY

The Society held its November meeting on the 18th at Pocklington, 34 members coming to ring on the six bells (tenor 16 cwt.) with friends and visitors from York, Loughborough and Walmer and Hawkhurst, Kent.

The Vicar, Canon Richardson, welcomed the ringers at the service held in All Saints' Church and gave an interesting talk on the link that bells formed between the church and the people.

Tea was taken in the Sellar's Hall and served by the wives of the ringers who had brought along large quantities of their home-made pastries.

The bells were rung again in the evening to Grandsire, Stedman, Bob Minor, Kent, Oxford and Cambridge, and settled at 8 p.m. after a good meeting.

CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD

WIRRAL BRANCH SOCIAL.

The fourth annual social of the Wirral Branch was held on November 25th, at St. Hilary's Parish Hall, Wallasey, and proved equally as successful as previous functions. The event attracted a company of over 230 ringers and friends.

An innovation this year was the fancy dress competition, and there was a fair sprinkling of costumes throughout the hall. Prizes were awarded to Miss Houston as 'The Bell Tower' and to Mr. C. B. Pemberton as 'Robin Hood.' The programme of dances and games proved very enjoyable, young and old being able to participate with equal facility.

Excellent refreshments were provided, and many persons are still trying to fathom how so much could be provided at so little cost. After the interval, the Rector, Rev. J. R. Spencer, welcomed the company and thanked those responsible for organising the function.

The second half quickly passed and midnight and 'Auld Lang Syne' came all too soon for the happy throng.

GUILD OF DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

EAST DEVON BRANCH.

A branch practice was held at Payhembury on December 2nd, when about 30 members attended from Buckerell, Honiton, Broadhembury, Payhembury, Ottery St. Mary, Sidbury and Sidmouth.

The six bells (tenor 15½ cwt.) were kept going to Grandsire and Stedman, and several had the pleasure of ringing through their first 120 of Stedman. Talaton (six) and Buckerell (six) were also visited by several members.

These practice meetings are arranged to encourage change ringing amongst the scattered towers in this area.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS TO MR. J. W. JONES

Eight members of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association were unsuccessful in their efforts to ring a peal of Grandsire Triples, in honour of the 85th birthday of Mr. J. W. Jones, of Newport, Monmouthshire. The peal came to grief after ringing for 2 hours 50 minutes, and with only 400 changes to go. The peal attempt took place at All Saints', Newport, where Mr. Jones has rung ever since the church's dedication in 1898.

Mr. Jones, who is widely known in ringing circles throughout the country, still takes an active part in ringing, and a regular attendant at the Sunday services as well as practice nights. He also faithfully attends all Association meetings.

Mr. Jones has rung over 500 peals and rung in well over 600 towers. He has been a prominent member of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association throughout the Association's history, and was secretary for 43 years, during which period he held the interests of the Association close at heart.

Born in Caerleon on December 5th, 1865, Mr. Jones was taught bellringing by the late Mr. Evan Davies, schoolmaster at Caerleon, and rang his first peal at Caerleon in January, 1889.

Throughout his life, Mr. Jones has been of great assistance in all matters concerning bells and ringing, and has shown unfailing energy in the tuition of new ringers, and teaching them the art of change ringing.

The many friends and acquaintances of Mr. Jones throughout the country will be pleased to hear that he still enjoys fairly good health. To him, on his 85th birthday, go the good wishes of all who have met him.

Those taking part in the unsuccessful peal attempt were Donald C. Clarke 1, L. F. G. Bainham 2, G. Large 3, Rev. Roy Hallett 4, A. W. Heath 5, Rev. I. J. Richards 6, R. E. R. Smith (conductor) 7, Norris Watkins 8.

SWANSEA AND BRECON GUILD SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

In fine weather the annual district meeting was held on December 2nd at St. Paul's Church, Sketty, Swansea.

The recently hung bells were kept going until four o'clock, when the service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. H. Williams. In his address the Vicar thanked the local ringers for the work they were doing for the church and also all ringers who were doing the same in their own towers.

At the business meeting, with the Vicar in the chair, the officers elected were: Hon. district secretary, J. A. Hoare; hon. district auditor, T. Roderick. Five new members were elected.

It was the desire of all members present that Mr. E. Stitch continue as a ringing member for life without payment of further subscriptions in appreciation of his long service to the Guild. An invitation from Baglan Church for the next quarterly meeting was accepted.

The members then returned to the tower for further ringing and brought to a close a very enjoyable meeting.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL

SOUTH FOREST DEANERY BRANCH

There was a record attendance, 83 sitting down to tea at Lydney, on December 2nd, for the annual meeting of the South Forest Branch. At the opening, the company stood in silent tribute to the late Mrs. E. Shelswell, wife of ex-Supt J. F. Shelswell, who presided, and expressed his gratitude for the many expressions of sympathy he and his son Frank had received in their bereavement.

The Rev. H. F. Heal, Vicar of St. Briavel's, in proposing the re-election of Mr. Shelswell as chairman, said that both in stature and heart he was the ideal leader of that Association and they were greatly indebted to him for the most happy position they were in—he was unceasing in his efforts to make their work a most valuable contribution to church life in the Deanery.

Mr. Shelswell, in accepting the office of chairman for the 12th year, said it was a position that gave him a great deal of happiness. The attendance that afternoon, easily a record, proved how real was the advancement they were making. It was good for themselves, but more especially for the Church, which, in these most anxious days, needed all their help and interest. He thanked the Incumbents in the Deanery for the encouragement they were extending to them in their work and he gave a warm welcome to the Rev. R. J. Blakeway-Phillips (curate), Mrs. C. O. Carson, Mrs. Wild and Mr. Frank Skidmore (secretary of the Gloucester and Bristol Association), who were present.

Mr. Skidmore said the South Forest Branch had a fine record, and he paid high tributes to their officers.

The Rev. H. F. Heal was re-elected vice-chairman, Mr. J. C. Goulding, re-elected secretary. In his report of the year's activities said there were 106 performing members, 12 honorary members, two life members and 11 affiliated towers, an all round increase. Receipts totalled £18.

Dr. C. O. Carson, Lydney, Col. R. G. M. Street, Brockweir, and Mr. A. H. Carter, Cheltenham (Deputy Chief Constable, Gloucestershire), were elected honorary members, and there were also 14 new performing members elected. Mr. J. L. Smith was elected Ringing Master and to serve on the management committee of the Gloucester and Bristol Association.

The next meeting will be held at Tidenham. Mr. Shelswell thanked the many lady helpers who had provided an excellent tea, and the meeting closed with the singing of a favourite old hymn—'The day Thou gavest, Lord, is ended.'

The Rev. R. J. Blakeway-Phillips officiated at the church service and gave a most interesting address. During the afternoon and evening the bells of St. Mary's Church were rung in various methods.

Towers represented: St. Briavel's, Tidenham, Hewelsfield, Lydney, Staunton, Newport, Littledean, Bristol, Ross, Llanbradach, Monmouth, Chenstow, Cheltenham, Gloucester, Westbury-on-Severn, Awre, Buckland Newton, Dorchester and Clearwell.

SWINDON BRANCH

The annual meeting of the Swindon Branch was held at Christ Church, Swindon, on December 9th, nearly sixty attending. The usual ringing and service were followed by tea, Christ Church ringers being the hosts.

At the business meeting it appeared that members were satisfied with the way in which the Branch was run, and all the retiring officers were re-elected. It was proposed that meetings be held at St. Mark's, Swindon, Stratton-St. Margaret and Rodbourne Cheney during the next three months.

A hearty welcome was extended to Mr. Frank Skidmore, general secretary of the Association. Other visitors were present from Aldbourne, Shrivenham, Thatcham, North Bradley, Richborough, Cannings, Wootton Bassett, Melksham, Fairfield and Faringdon. Ringing ranged from rounds to Cambridge Royal.

4th CENTENARY OF STAFFORD GRAMMAR SCHOOL

On December a special service was held in St. Mary's Church, Stafford, to commemorate the Fourth Centenary of the founding of King Edward VI. Grammar School, at which service the Lord Bishop of Lichfield was the preacher.

It had been decided to ring the bells for this service when the head ringer, Mr. R. J. Warrilow, himself an 'Old Boy' of the School, suggested that it would be very appropriate if, including a boy from the present-day scholars, a band representing past scholars could be arranged.

The suggestion was very favourably received by the ringers who had no connection with the School and who offered to co-operate by 'standing down,' or 'standing in' if not enough 'Old Boys' could be found. Contacts were made, with the result that all ringers for this purpose had connections with the School.

The service ringing was Grandsire Doubles with 7, 6, 8 covering. The ringers were A. B. Garbett (representing present scholars), H. F. Evans, B. A. Yeates, R. J. Warrilow, F. R. Wiggin, H. Slinn, N. Greenwood and A. Page (representing 'Old Boys'). Messrs. Garbett, Warrilow, Slinn and Page are regular Sunday service ringers.

The headmaster has expressed his gratitude and thanks for the ringing of the bells and that those taking part were associated with the School. A. E. G.,

RING OUT, WILD BELLS!

LEICESTER PRESS AND REMOVAL OF PURCHASE TAX

The decision of the Government to remove the purchase tax on church bells was announced in one of the Leicester newspapers under the heading 'Ring Out, Wild Bells!' as follows:—

Any day now, the housewife toiling from shop to shop in the chill autumn mists and reflecting bitterly that the only thing that seems to be going down is the thermometer, is due for a surprise. Without warning she may encounter a horde of her fellow-citizens hurrying down the road with purposeful intent.

They will not be on their way to protest at the latest cut in the bacon ration or to demonstrate against the increased cost of woollen underwear or rayon nighties, for they will be a happy band of pilgrims. Indeed, if she looks twice, she will see that their faces are wreathed in smiles as they hurry onward, calling down many a kindly blessing on a Board of Trade that has treated them so handsomely.

Carefree campanologists, they will be hastening to the nearest foundry, there to cash in quickly on the latest blessing to be conferred by a sympathetic and understanding Government. True to its avowed intention to reduce the cost of living as soon as possible, it has taken a bold step to benefit the community.

With one stroke of the pen it has removed all purchase tax on the sale of church bells—and this in plenty of time for our Christmas shopping. So celebrate this notable contribution to the common weal by ordering your set of tax-free church bells right away, and thus avoid disappointment.

And Bob Major's your uncle!

GREETINGS

PROBABLY the uppermost thought in most adult minds as Christmas approaches is 'greetings,' good wishes for every happiness to friends far and near. And such greetings and remembrances are all the more treasured when times are troublous. The first Christmas came in troublous times; a whole country was in a turmoil over a census which a harsh invader had imposed on the Jewish people, for which each head of the family had to go to his native village. It was a time when conveyances were primitive. Imagine such circumstances to-day if each had to go to his birthplace, with a complete disregard for housing conditions. Amid such an upheaval came the infant Christ to this earth. Although the circumstances of His birth were of the lowliest, yet His reception was accompanied by heavenly grandeur as heavenly hosts sang their praises and greetings—'Peace on earth and goodwill towards men.'

It is this message of 'Peace on earth and goodwill towards men' that the bells will be saying to mankind as Christmas Day is ushered in. Try and visualise the picture in that New Zealand belfry where the first Christmas bells of 1950 will be rung. Probably it is a young New Zealander, who has been trained by those who have settled in the Dominion from this country, who, in the time-honoured phrase, will say, 'Look to, the treble's going, she's gone.' The global message has been started on the bells of Auckland, Christchurch, Hamilton, Papanui and Wellington, and with it go the greetings and best wishes of those New Zealand ringers.

Within three hours the refrain will be started again in Australia. Mr. W. H. Rowe has assembled with his band at St. Jude's, Randwick; there are also other companies in action, including those at Turrumurra and Parramatta, names now familiar to our readers through our peal and quarter peal columns. They had not finished their music before the twelve at St. Paul's Cathedral, Melbourne, with its tenor of 31½ cwt., take up the message, to be followed by the bells of St. Peter's Cathedral, Adelaide, with its tenor of 41 cwt. There is new life at Adelaide; Mr. P. L. Cooper has created enthusiasm among undergraduates at the university and they have linked up with the Universities Association. Before leaving Australia we get the greetings from Mr. A. R. Wilson on behalf of the two rings at Hobart, Tasmania, separated from the mainland by a rough sea crossing.

We would like to think that the four rings of bells in India are rung to-day, but while we have readers there, letters indicate that they are ringers in exile as far as a practical contribution is made to the Exercise. The message, however, will be relayed from South Africa. It will be warm ringing in Durban now, where Mr. Chambers endeavours to keep the torch burning. There are also bells at Capetown Cathedral, Grahamstown and Woodstock.

The full majesty of the bells will be heard, however, in this country. How we would like to peep into the different belfries. As the white cliffs of Dover were reached we would see Mr. C. Turner, of Dover; upright and grey-haired, Mr. John Willis in a neighbouring sea-side port. The mind goes along the South Coast to Hastings, to Eastbourne with our many new friends made as the result of the Central Council meeting, to Brighton with its past traditions where 50 years ago some of the greatest ringers of the land added new chapters of fame to English ringing.

We would pause one minute in the Campanile of Chichester Cathedral before passing to that of Portsmouth and St. Mary's, Portsea, and hope to hear the bells of All Saints', Ryde, wafted across Spithead. On to the great port of Southampton as the glorious ten of St. Mary's ring out the message, and also picture the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead greeting his ringers at St. Michael's. At Christchurch Priory we hope to find that fine old veteran George Preston, ringing from the back of a chair and proceed on to Bournemouth with enthusiastic young ringers thronging the belfries of St. Peter's and St. John's, Surrey Road.

Greetings to that fine old College Youth, Mr. A. Macdonald, at Poole, before proceeding through the six-bell towers of Dorset, not forgetting, of course, the ten at Wimborne Minster and the eight at Lyme Regis with the Rev. C. Carew Cox and Mr. Stedman Morris (whose mind is doubtless with his Leicester friends). On into Devon with Mr. Aubrey Bennett at Buckfastleigh to Exeter with its famous towers apart from the Cathedral. We recognise Mr. C. G. Glass and Mr. E. W. Biffin before passing on to much-bombed Plymouth, the home of the Myers family, who have done so much for the maintenance of change ringing.

Cornwall, like Devon, gives much of the message of the bells in rounds and call changes, but change ringing is making progress. At Carbis Bay there will be the Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Roberts and Mr. Harry Miles with other new friends ringing out across the wide Atlantic. Then come our Welsh friends—Mr. J. W. Jones, of Newport, with his long association with the Llandaff and Monmouth Association, Mr. F. J. Hannington, of Cardiff, and then into the area of the Swansea and Brecon Diocesan Guild, with Mr. J. A. Hoare, of St. John's, Sketty. The message is taken up by the scattered towers of St. David's Guild before crossing the Channel into Ireland. Mr. F. E. Dukes will be waiting to greet us and at Holywood there will be Mr. John Dunwoody. We have other faithful ringers in old Ireland, and as we listen we can hear the bells of Limerick, whose team, conducted by Mr. B. A. Brislave, are the champions of all Ireland.

Across the Atlantic and into Canada. It is in distant Vancouver and Victoria, British Columbia, that our art is chiefly practised, thanks to the enthusiasm of Mr. E. W. Izard and his band. To them falls the honour of giving the concluding notes of a great pæan of adoration and worship. And as the scene gradually fades out we picture sitting in his chair at Los Angeles, one far distant from his beloved bells, Ernest Weatherley. His contribution is now one of memories, and these fragrant memories of Christmasses past and present remain constant with those who realise that they are in a sense one with the angelic host, singing 'Glory to God in the highest; peace and goodwill to all men.'

ENROL AS NEW SUBSCRIBER

We are now enrolling new postal subscribers for 1951. Send £1 to Mrs. Fletcher, The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk, and have your 'Ringing World' each Friday morning during 1951.

Mr. F. Cooke, of Uxbridge reminds us that the claim that the peal of Chiltern Surprise at Ewhurst on November 15th was the first for the Guildford Diocesan Guild cannot be substantiated. The first peal of Chiltern Surprise ever rung was by the Guildford Diocesan Guild on January 25th, 1934, at Egham, Surrey. It was conducted by Mr. Alan
R. Pink, and the late Mr. John S. Goldsmith rang the third.

The Editor and staff of 'The Ringing World' send their Christmas greetings to all ringers, far and wide, and especially to correspondents who, week by week, provide the journal with such a varied assortment of news of interest to the Exercise.

One of the many encouraging letters this week is from 12-year-old Doris Walden of Piddlehinton, Dorset, who expresses her thanks to all those who have given her a chance to ring in over 150 towers and especially to Mr.
J. Lilley and Mr. W. Panter for arranging outings.

Mr. Claude Cousins was in an unaccustomed role when he rang the treble to a peal of Minor in five methods at Terrington St. John on December 2nd; in fact, it is 29 years since he rang that bell to a peal. In the same peal Mr.
E. Masters was ringing the tenor to a peal for the first time. Their purpose was to 'circle' the tower.

The Good family, who made three of the band for the peal at Apsley End on December 4th, would like to say how much they appreciated the spirit of the remainder of the band in turning up when travelling conditions were so bad. Besides being a birthday compliment to Mr. Walter Ayre, this peal enabled a father to call his son's first peal and his daughter's first 'inside.'

BELFRY GOSSIP

A non-ringing friend of Mr. G. Kenward had expressed a wish to watch a peal being rung. Mr. Kenward invited him to watch the peal at Snodland, Kent, on December 2nd, and he sat it out with apparent interest.
On being asked at the conclusion of the peal if he was 'bored stiff' he replied he was a little stiff but not bored! We hope on that score he will go a step further and become a ringer.

There will be no practice ringing at St. Matthew's, Clapton, until the first Wednesday in 1951.

On December 30th an attempt will be made at Frodsham by the Chester Diocesan Guild for a peal of 8,032 Spliced Surprise in eight methods
(A. J. Pitman). The attempt will start at 2 p.m.

The band which rang the peal of Treble Bob Minor at Hallaton, Leicestershire, on December 9th, wish to acknowledge the excellent hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Russell.

The bells of St. Giles', Willenhall, Staffs, will be broadcast on Christmas morning. Ringing starts at 9 a.m. and the service, at which the address will be given by the Bishop of Lichfield, at 9.30 a.m.

Will conductors of quarter peals desirous of publication please write same in the style appearing on page 807 of this journal. After the town and county give the date and method. Thank you.

Mr. E. Sutton, of St. Ambrose's Church, Bristol, celebrated his 21st birthday on December
9th. In honour of the occasion, a peal of Bob Major was rung at Bitton, six of the band scoring a 'first' of some sort. The band and friends and relations of Mr. Sutton were entertained after the peal, at Bristol. Handbell-ringing and party games finished a very happy day.

13. Which two rings of bells are nearest together of all hung anticlockwise? State distance apart.

14. Which two churches with rings of 12 are nearest together?
15. Which two churches with rings of 12 are farthest apart?
16. How many of the changes on six bells are divisible by 11 (treating each change as a number of six figures)?
17. How long is the longest touch of Grand-sire Triples obtained by using an ordinary bob or single at every lead?
18. Solve the following anagrams. All the solutions are phrases connected with Stedman's Principles:—

WINCH BOOT TUB
WILSON
OOLUG-BEDDED SHALLOW NUTTER
PLUG WREN HOLLOW
DAMN TRIPLES PINCES

19. Having rung the extent of Plain Bob on their ring of bells, the ringers of Ursa Major augmented their ring with two more trebles and then rang the extent on their new ring. The number of changes in the second peal exceeded twice the number of changes in the first peal by 15 times the number of blows in the first peal. How many bells have they now?
20. Six youngsters rang a plain course of Bob Minor on our ring of six, which is hung clockwise and in a good circle. Alec rang next to Jill. Tom and Alec did not dodge together. John was on Jean's left, and Tom was opposite Jean. Mary cannot ring the tenor, neither can the other girls? Which bells were they ringing?

THE BELFRIES OF ENGLAND

The Churches' call to prayer
Of God's great goodness tells,
As Gospel tidings
Fill the air
With music, from the bells.

List to their merry peal,
They lilting changes ring
As lovers wed
(For woe or weal)
Their festive offering.

Or doth one lonely bell
With quiv'ring sadness sound?
Then know a friend
Bids thee farewell,
For he our hope hath found.

Our bells strict vigil keep,
They mark each useful hour
That in God's time
Who works may reap
The blessings of His power.

Yet they in silence wait
Man's aid each voice to raise.
One, two, three, four,
Five, six, seven, eight
Then blend in songs of praise.

Long may our bells be heard.
Long may our ringers' skill.
In constant witness
Of God's word,
Each one his task fulfil.

50 PEALS AT APSLEY END

The bells of St. Mary's were installed in 1871 by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank but it was not until 1902 that the first peal was rung. This was in seven methods—two Treble Bob and five plain—being conducted by George Price, who rang quite a number of peals around this district about this time.

Another lapse, this time until 1923, when Walter Ayre called a peal of Plain Bob. Then on to 1926, when two peals were rung—Grand-sire Doubles and Plain Bob. Things started moving a little now, but owing to the bad 'go' of the bells not many peals were attempted.

Walter Ayre now became a regular visitor to Apsley and joined the local band. His influence made a vast difference to progress, until in 1936 a peal in 14 methods was successful. Peals were now rung in various numbers of methods and, in 1938, peals in 25 methods and 24 Surprise methods were brought round.

After the war a new start had to be made and what an uphill task it was! However, progress has been made, several peals of seven Surprise, one of 14 Surprise and one of 21 methods having been rung.

We come to the 50th: several attempts were made for 30 methods without success. The golden wedding anniversary of a one-time ringer approaches—a peal must be rung for this—so it was decided to ring seven Surprise—and a good peal it was. The conductor could be none other than Walter Ayre, who conducted 43 of the 50.

In these peals 43 different methods were rung. Twenty-four of the peals were in seven methods, one each in 10 and 11, four in 14, one each in 21, 24, and 25. May the next 50 be as varied!

YORK MINSTER

Ladies' Guild in Memorable Service

In a service of rare beauty, the women of Yorkshire on December 9th welcomed back to the north transept of York Minster the famous Five Sisters Windows, which were removed for safety when war broke out in 1939.

Many women's organisations were represented in a huge congregation of 2,500. At the invitation of the Dean and Chapter the service was sung by a special choir of 100 supported by 800 massed singers from the Women's Institutes of Yorkshire.

The lessons were read by a Girl Guide, members of the Girls' Friendly Society, the Mothers' Union and the Women's Institutes, and a Sister of the Order of the Holy Paraclete.

In his address the Dean described the architect or mason who conceived the windows as a genius who had created a masterpiece of architecture unparalleled in the world. Tracing the history of the windows from the 13th century, he said: 'There is nothing in architecture like this row of slender giantesses, each 53½ feet high and each five feet and one inch broad. Even without their stained glass they were bound to be five of the most renowned windows in Christendom simply from their enormous height unbroken by any stone mullions or tracery.'

BATTERY OF CAMERAS

Some months ago the Minster ringers had requested the Dean and Chapter to be allowed to invite the Ladies' Guild to ring the service touch on the middle eight, and for the Yorkshire Association (Eastern District) to hold a meeting. Permission was readily granted with the result that between 79 and 80 ringers crowded into the ringing chamber.

Advance publicity had attracted press photographers and before the bells could be raised, the ladies had to face a battery of cameras and flashlights. As a result, several well-known lady ringers found their pictures in the local and national press on Sunday and Monday mornings.

The Ladies' Guild members rang exceptionally well and found the long draught of rope (80 feet), plus the weight of metal (tenor 25 cwt., treble 9 cwt., approx.) no apparent handicap. The way they handled their ropes and struck their bells earned the praise and admiration of the men. Before the event, several 'Doubting Thomases' had thought it was too much for the ladies to attempt. The following took part in the service touch of Grand-sire Triples:—Mrs. D. E. Kelly 1, Miss I. B. Thompson 2, Miss G. Burchnall 3, Miss K. Burchnall 4, Miss F. Laffin 5, Mrs. K. Lewis 6, Miss J. Poole (conductor) 7, Mrs. H. Poole 8. This was the first time in history that a complete band of ladies had rung for a Minster service.

Before the start of the service the Minster Sacrist, Rev. A. J. McMullen, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Dean and Chapter.

BUSINESS MEETING

After tea, a short business meeting was held in the belfry at which Mr. Fox, vice-president, expressed thanks to the Dean and Chapter and the Minster ringers for being allowed to ring the bells and hold a meeting. Mrs. D. E. Kelly, Northern Branch secretary, Ladies' Guild, added her thanks on behalf of the ladies and said how much they had enjoyed the visit. Mr. H. Walker replied and said that as soon as the Minster knew about the service, they thought it a wonderful opportunity to invite the Ladies' Guild to ring the service touch, and for the Yorkshire Association to hold a meeting. He hoped they would all come again next year when, without doubt, the Yorkshire Association dinner would be held in York.

As this was mainly a ladies' event, a fashion note would seem to be appropriate. The method diagram jumper worn by the wife of a well-known composer and conductor was much admired. Patterns are, however not available.

Now, ladies, what about a hand for twelve next time? H. W.

STORY OF A GREAT RINGING CAREER

DIARY OF THE LATE MR. W. H. FUSSELL—3

Edited by ERNEST MORRIS

Mr. Fussell's diary labelled 1881 is actually dated September, 1885, and has this note on the first page: 'Having resolved to make up my Diary Complete from the even year 1880, the following is the result of all notes and memorandums collected in my various notebooks connected with any ringing I have taken part in for the year 1881:—

'O all ye bells and ye ringers thereof,
Praise ye the Lord.
Ring unto Him, and sing unto Him,
For ever and ever.'

He begins on Saturday, January 1st: 'Measured myself, at the time with God's help being in good health: chest cir., 33in.; nape, 25½in.; thighs, 18½in.; calves, 12½in.; right arm, 9½in.; wrist, 6½in.; height, 5ft. 8½in.; weight, 9st. ½lb.

'Rang the old year out last night at 12. Got up this morning at 10 to 9, had no breakfast, got to Windsor at 10, heard the Curfew and Parish church bells ringing. [Next day] Sunday received for ringing during 1880 from W. Leader 30s.; chimed for morning service at Slough and staid to it. Rang at 6 o'clock service. A party in at my brother's.'

Then followed varied notices of ringing and chiming at Slough with handbell practices, etc.

On January 16th, Sunday, he went skating at Langley Park and 'spoke with Sir Robert Harvey,' and on the Tuesday, January 18th, 'a remarkable day! Heavy storms of snow, railway blocked and traffic all suspended. The worst day known for 30 years. 1½ hours riding by train as it had to be dug out. Wednesday I walked to Windsor. The Dutchman's Farm completely snowed up to the roof eaves, and the river nearly blocked.'

It must be appreciated that at this time there were no buses or suchlike conveyances for getting about as there are to-day. Most of the journeying was done by walking very long distances or cycling through hail, rain, snow, or sunshine, and the return journeys in the dark along the country lanes speak much for the great enthusiasm shown by such a pioneer of bellringing.

A typical Sunday's occupation noted many times at this period is 'went to service in the morning, chimed in afternoon and evening at Slough, and afterwards rang handbells at Alf's, "pricking out G minor—see Troyte, p. 46-51." On Saturday, February 5th, 1881, 'went to Slough church and rang with Baron and others from 7 till 8.30. Went to Gater's, "The Crown Tap," and rang the bells till 10. Rang 720 Grandsire Minor first time being the West Middlesex Association meeting there, conducted by the Instructor to the Association, W. Baron.' The next day for service he records 'three 120's of Grandsire Doubles called by me.' At this time Mr. Fussell was in the Volunteers, and he records many instances when he went to drill with them. On February 13th he records, 'Hutchinson preached a good sermon at Slough in morning. Had a walk after coming out of church. Went to Staines by train in evening.'

He states during next week 'my employer P. J. Byrne an Architect of Windsor laid up!', and on several occasions he reports 'went sketching.' On February 26th, 'rang at Slough with Wilder, Woodley, Pursey, Steel, Alf Leader and others till 8.30. Gater's room was full so went to Nallis's at the Royal Hotel ringing handbells till 10, came home with J. Perryman.

The next day he 'chimed and staid to the morning service at Slough with F. Simkins, walked to Chalfont St. Peter and back with C. Sargeant and rang for evening service. Rang with the Vicar's son, a very fat boy. Got home from Chalfont at 10 to 10, made rough sketch in my 1st pocket book. Was told the Vicar's son often walked about at night to try and reduce the enormous quantity of flesh he makes, causing him great inconvenience, which was the reason he took to ringing.'

THE 'BELL NEWS' PUBLISHED.

Mr. Fussell records February, 1881, 'The 1st no. of a journal called "The Bell News and Ringers' Record" came out this month, a paper devoted to ringing matters alone. Gave order for it at the booksellers (Herbert).'

On Sunday, March 6th, 'chimed and staid to service at Slough in morning. C. Sargeant and I walked to Beaconsfield in the afternoon at 3, staid to service. I made a sketch or two, saw some of the ringers, got home ¼ to 11, tired. Called in Chapman's at Farnham, went among the bells at Beaconsfield.'

On the Wednesday he 'walked 2 miles in 19½ minutes, heavy boots, leggings and usual clothes on for training. Strong wind. Making an etching of interior of Langley tower?' The next day, March 10th, was the Prince of Wales' marriage, and he rang at Slough, then walked to Beaconsfield and made sketches. The following Saturday he 'had bicycle ride in afternoon. Walked to Uxbridge and to St. Andrew's 7.15 by enquiring for Hillingdon church was led out of my way to old church there. After ringing at St. Andrew's with Rev. C. Mayo we went to the old church of St. Margaret and rang, then returned by train.'

WORKING IN LONDON

Mr. Fussell then went to work in London, and he records 'packing things to go to Town March 16th; St. Patrick's Day, 17th, this being the first time I ever went to London to work. Got to 303 Strand at 10.13 a.m., called on W. Baron in evening and saw St. Martin's church—walked about generally. On Saturday went from Waterloo to Staines, got to Egham 5.40 and rang the 6 bells there. Baron present and nearly tight! Left Egham 10.18. At Staines while waiting for train played some tunes on handbells in waiting room. I left my carpet bag and stick there. Walked from Datchet to Slough, got to bed 11.30 p.m.'

He records that he recovered his lost bag, and rang for the first time at St. John's, Waterloo, the 3rd to 1,000 Grandsire Triples. The weather was wet and miserable and he 'walked all the way home to Finsbury Park and got to bed 12.20 with my old chum Jim'!

On Sunday, March 27th, he rang for first time at St. Andrew's, Holborn Viaduct. 'Went to Hopkins' house in Plough Court and rang handbells. Hopkins showed his peal book with about 60 peals entered. Rang trebles to Grandsire Royal and saw their old black dog. Next day to St. Clement Danes, where ringing stopped owing to broken rope, but saw their peal hook at the meeting room.'

On April 1st 'went to Cumberland Headquarters, met J. Cox, Stack, Baron and others and saw them ring a touch of Stedman Cinques with J. Hayes, a College Youth. Got home 12.30 p.m. April 2nd my sister Flo's birthday. Went home to Slough and got book left by Mr. H. Appleton called "Hubbard's Campanologia."

The following Saturday he went by train to Isleworth—took notes, etc., and rang in touches of Grandsire Triples. Afterwards

'went to the pub by the Windmill Bridge for awhile and got home midnight.' Next day 'went to the "Olympic"—my first visit to a Theatre.'

During the Easter week-end he rang for all services at Slough and on the Friday following while at work at 303, Strand, 'I could hear St. Clement's bells ringing during the afternoon as my office window looked out into Holywell St. Went up the tower at 7 and let two of the bells down—walked home.'

On Sunday, April 24th, 1881, he went to St. Andrew's, Holborn, and rang both morning and evening, 500 and 700 Grandsire Triples, and the next week rang at St. Clement Danes the 4th to Grandsire Caters. 'H. Hopkins stood behind me.' Mr. Fussell went to St. Martin's-in-the-Fields and rang on eight, then heard some Stedman Cinques, there being 33 members present. Mr. Appleton, a ringer at the Curfew tower at Windsor, 'gave me a copy of Hubbard's Work (1868 edition), which he had come across at a furniture sale!'

WITH LONDON RINGERS

During the next few weeks Mr. Fussell mentions many walks and cycle rides to practices, services, etc., including visits to churches in the city of which we hear little these days. Thus on May 4th, 1881, he rang at St. Dunstan's, Fleet Street, a touch of Triples, 'went up on hearing the ring while passing.' Next day he rang 'call changes' at St. James', Clerkenwell, and later at St. Anne's, Highgate. Other places visited were St. Andrew's, Uxbridge; St. Stephen's, Hampstead Heath; Kensington, where he rang Grandsire on the back eight of the ten, with Baron, Barrett, Newton, Hopkins, Dains, Cox, Nelms, etc., names well known in ringing history. He also rang at the Chapel of Ease, Holloway, when he 'received of Dains 4s.,' and a similar sum on a later occasion here. On one occasion he heard St. Clement's ringing while at work, and met Hopkins, Dains and others coming down, 'and we all went to St. Bride's and rang back ten—received 1s. of Dains.'

In June he records 'some Minor at Slough. Farnham men over. W. Leader in a wax about it. Walked into Windsor and saw Steel and Woodley in Eton. Rang at the Curfew tower, and then saw the firework display from Eton Bocus fields.' On the 29th he had a cycle ride of nine miles and, nearing home, fell over the handles and broke his lower jaw bone. He says, 'I had little sleep or rest for many nights afterwards: my jaws were bandaged, my teeth wired, and everything to swallow was in liquid form, being unable to masticate anything for some weeks.' One day a short time after the accident he 'said goodbye to my kind old landlady and returned to Slough, greatly surprising my parents when I walked indoors, they having known nothing of what had happened. Thank God the fall was not worse.' When out once, he continues, 'I was nearly taken up for a notorious murderer named Lefroy, my features being disguised by the bandages. The said Lefroy having coldly murdered an old gentleman in a Brighton train, and had made his escape from detention for some time.'

We have recently seen correspondence on 'wedding fees,' and an interesting instance is quoted by Mr. Fussell in September, 1881. He says, 'Went up and oiled the bells and rang at 12 and 3 o'clock. Met again at 6 and rang till 8. Received 5s. for ringing' [for Miss Charsley's wedding].

About this period Mr. Fussell seems to have been out ringing nearly every evening, and his diary is abundant with walks and cycle rides to neighbouring towers. A typical example is quoted on September 3rd, 1881:—

'Rode to Twyford and walked to Hurst from there in company with some Farnham and Boyne Hill ringers. Arrived at church 11 a.m. and rang Grandsire Minor. From

BELLS IN EGYPT AND PALESTINE

A destroyer on which my brother was serving had put into Alexandria just before V.E. Day. He rang me at Kasfariet, we met in Cairo and, to our joyful surprise, Grandsire Doubles broke through the noise of traffic. On a previous Sunday evening I'd heard a 12-bell record, and it sounded very good to me, from All Saints' Cathedral tower, but this five-bell music was certainly no recording.

My brother had been out over five years; myself much less. We just looked at each other, said 'Grandsire Doubles,' and accelerated with all speed in the direction. We arrived, somewhat breathless, at St. Joseph's Cathedral. Our hopes should never have been allowed to get so high; we were disappointed to find but one brown-robed English Franciscan chiming, and quite by ear, what he'd heard years before.

When passing through Ismailia some months later, my train stopped long enough for me to hear this very English memory again. I wonder if our Cairo friend had moved, or taught the distinctive air to another Friar of the Order.

Visiting the Copt Church of Abu Sarga, built over the cellar in which the Holy Family lived in Cairo, apparently a very poor church without even one bell, we found a priest walking up and down outside, clashing cymbals together to announce divine service.

When in Palestine I climbed some 150 feet up the Jerusalem Y.M.C.A. Byzantine tower and walked round the 35-bell carillon from Croydon. On Easter Saturday evening I heard, across the city, this fine carillon play through just once, 'Jesus Christ is risen to-day.' Immediate enquiry revealed that this was for a recorded broadcast to America on Easter Sunday morning. I was sorry not to hear more of these bells and thought the operators' technique perfect.

The place of Crucifixion is not definitely known. The Church of the Holy Sepulchre stands on the site believed by Constantine in A.D.300, to be Calvary. In the Greek tower are ten bells brought from Russia 75 years ago; they were not hung for ringing and I did not even hear them chime. Six different services are regularly held at the same time in this one church, one in Aramaic, the common tongue of 2,000 years ago.

Four bells, rung electrically, in the nearby St. Saviour's Convent, are frequently heard. On the other side of the city, beyond the Damascus Gate and past the Tomb of the Virgin Mary and Joseph, the Church of all Nations, built over the betrayal rock in the Garden of Gethsemane, has three bells which came from Italy 27 years ago. They are bolted by their canons to wooden headstocks, to which are fitted iron wheels. The bells are rung half circle only, to and fro.

In the garden, tended by a small Arab boy, were flowering, when I saw them in April, marguerites, lupins, snapdragons, carnations, sweet peas, tulips, violets, pansies, wallflowers, iris, geraniums, lavender, cyclamen, with rosemary hedging. Olive trees in the garden are reputed to be 2,000 years old.

The road to Bethlehem from Jerusalem leads past the field of the Shepherds. The Y.M.C.A. carol service is held here on Christmas Eve. The Christmas Eve service in the Church of the Nativity lasts up to five hours, with only a very few chairs provided for the very old and infirm. The church has three towers, the Greek tower, with ten bells; the Armenian tower, five bells bolted to girders, and ropes tied on the clapper flight: the Franciscan tower with five bells (these I was told are the Christmas bells bolted by their canons to wooden headstocks and swung by means of rope and lever). Their wheels had been removed some time previous to 1945. The church is built over the stable of the inn, the stable being a rock cavern with numerous passages. This very unusual stable is regarded as being one of the few authentic sites of Christian reverence in Palestine.

Quarrying underground and leaving caverns is not confined to Bethlehem. Stone for the Pyramids left tremendous caverns across the Nile, and Solomon would appear to have obtained stone for the first temple from under Jerusalem itself. I saw stones being shaped in this cavern just as they were 3,000 years ago. King Solomon's temple was built on a hill over and around the stone on which Abraham, some 800 years before, had offered Isaac as a sacrifice. The stone is now the centre of the Mosque of Omar. The high, empty, untidy temple area, but for this mosque, is large enough to allow every cathedral and abbey in this country to stand side by side. So much for Solomon's architecture. There are no bells there, I'm sorry to report.

THE SABBATH BELLS

Across the scented air came stealing
The sound of church bells gently pealing.
Sounding the message far and near,
Come, worship, and lend thine ear.

This lovely, peaceful way of life
Seemed to me so far from strife,
Just as if Thy presence there,
Was in that garden fresh and fair.

Those bells for centuries have been rung.
Like to the hymns we all have sung;
May it be Thy almighty will
For evermore to sound them still;
So all concerned, whate'er position,
Shall carry on this great tradition.

OBITUARY

MR. G. RADLEY

The ringers of Broxbourne, Herts, have suffered a great loss in the death of Mr. George Radley at the age of 74.

He joined the band at Broxbourne in 1905, and two years later was elected Master of the band, a post he held continuously till his death. He was well known in ringing circles in Hertfordshire, being a past president of the County Association. He was also a veteran of the Royal Cumberland Youths, and he will be missed at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, as much as at the Hertfordshire towers.

The funeral service, conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Lane, took place on December 4th at St. Augustine's Church, Broxbourne, and the interment took place in the churchyard.

The bells were rung open by the local band before the service and were conducted by Mr. C. Gouldsmith, 65 years a ringer in the tower, a lifelong friend of Mr. Radley.

Visiting ringers present included Messrs. Newman and Scott (Chesham), Mumford (Hoddesden), A. S. Carter (Hertford County Association, Eastern District) and Messrs. Edmondson and Page (Cumberland).

DEDICATION

HELLINGLY, SUSSEX

Sunday, November 26th, was a memorable day for the village of Hellingly, Sussex. After two years and three months the bells were heard once more.

They were dedicated by the Right Rev. E. G. Reid, the Archdeacon of Hastings, during the morning service. After the second lesson and during the singing of the hymn, 'We love the place, O God,' the Archdeacon and the Vicar, the Rev. R. W. Shaw, M.A., accompanied by the choir, led by the cross bearer, proceeded to the west end of the church.

The choir then remained below while the Archdeacon, the Vicar and the cross bearer ascended the stairs into the tower, where the Vicar, addressing the Archdeacon, said that it was through the generous gifts of the congregation and parishioners that had made this scheme possible, and asked him to bless the bells in the name of Almighty God.

The Archdeacon then gave charge of the ropes to the captain, Mr. Ben Stepney, telling him that by his example he would keep the ringers ever mindful of the service which they render to God and His Church.

Immediately the bells were rung to 36 changes of Bob Minor by the following local ringers: C. Booth 1, G. Beency 2, B. Stepney 3, E. G. D. Tonkin 4, G. J. Piper 5, F. H. Hicks (cond.) 6.

After the service, the bells were rung for an hour by the local ringers, and with the assistance of Mr. W. A. Kitchenside, of Mayfield, they rang a variety of methods up to and including Ken Treble Bob Minor.

The founders, Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., are to be congratulated on the excellent job they have made in recasting the 3rd and 4th and rehanging the bells on an entirely new iron frame. The weights of the bells are as follows:—

BELLS AND RINGERS OF ST. OSWALD'S, OSWESTRY

By W. A. FARMER

THE ancient towns and villages of England are renowned the world over for their parish churches, the architecture of which reflects the spiritual and material well-being, or otherwise, of the district through the ages.

One aspect of our churches is the ring of bells contained in many, and certainly Shropshire is not lacking in such churches or bells.

The characteristic sound of bells, rung as they should be rung—one man to each bell and each bell swinging a complete circle each time it sounds, is peculiarly English.

It can only be found in isolated examples outside the British Isles, notably in Australia and New Zealand.

Many of these bells have been sounding the grave and the gay for upwards of two centuries. Their secular use has declined with the separation of the corporate life of the community from its original centre, the church; but these same bells still call, Sunday by Sunday, from our ancient churches, and more rarely on civic and national occasions.

CAST IN 1717

Oswestry, as befits a town of great antiquity, boasts an imposing church dedicated to St. Oswald, a King of Northumberland. The massive tower has housed a ring of eight bells since 1717. In that year these bells were brought from the famous foundry at Gloucester. The inscriptions cast in each bell are given below. It will be noticed that three have since been recast.

Treble: John Rudhall, Gloucester. Fecit 1809: John Taylor, Loughborough, Refecit 1880.

Second: A.R. 1717.

Third: A.R. 1717.

Fourth: Prosperity to all our Benefactors, A.R. 1717.

Fifth: C. and G. Mears, Founders, London, 1846.

Sixth: Abra Rudhall, of Gloucester, Bell-founder, 1717.

Seventh: Jno. Jones, Jno. Dawson, Richard Troy, Jno. Rogers, Churchwardens, A.R. 1747. Tenor, marked 16 cwt.: God save the church, Edwrd. Parry, Vicar, Richd. Lloyd, Esq., Richd. Owen Gnt., Hump Kynaston Gnt., Nath Price Gnt., Churchwardens Anno Dom 1717.

The newer bells match their companions in tone, an octave of mellow notes quite different from the more strident notes of modern tuning.

The ring was rehung in 1880 by Taylors of Loughborough, and was in continuous use until 1933, when the bearing of the fourth bell broke, effectively stopping ringing for a short time.

This also stopped the clock chiming, as the same bells are used. Immediate and widespread interest was shown throughout the town, and it is refreshing to read in a newspaper report of the time: 'Several Oswestry workshops state, on their returns to the Board of Trade, that they time their working hours by the Oswestry Church Clock.'

A subscription list was opened by the Mayor, Councillor J. H. Profit, with Mr. W. B. Broughall as treasurer. Amounts large and small poured in from parishioners, business firms, townspeople and Oswestrians everywhere, and in the same year Messrs. Taylor installed a new frame and new bearings, which are expected to last another century or so.

What of the men who rang Oswestry bells through this period?

Enough is known to show that the assiduous practice which is necessary to produce English change ringing, when each sequence occurs only once, giving immediate place to another, has seldom or never been lacking in Oswestry.

In 1731 the full peal of 5040 changes, still recognised as the standard performance, was rung in three hours sixteen minutes. The names of the ringers have come down to us:—Thomas Edwards, Robert Kitchiner, John Lloyd, Charles Jones, Matthew Burton (the conductor), John Avance, John Price, Richard Tomley.

The method of producing these changes, Grandsire Triples, is still used almost exclusively at Oswestry, and in many towns today. These ringers were necessarily local, and the performance ranks as a notable one from a national standpoint.

HOLT'S GRANDSIRE

In 1785 members of an 'Anacreontic Society' rang 'Holt's Grandsire' in three hours fifteen minutes. This society was named after a Greek poet, and met at the George Inn to discuss the topics of the day.

We may imagine that convivial evenings followed, and it seems clear that the members were of some social standing, as names from London, Wrexham, Shrewsbury, Shifnal, Anglesey, are given in records.

Bellringing was a pastime of 'gentlemen' at that time, and it is not surprising to find the famous Shifnal ringer Samuel Lawrence conducting a peal of Bob Major here in 1800.

Probably the ringers were collected from various centres as far afield as Birmingham and Wrexham, as it seems unlikely that Oswestry ringers knew this method.

Mr. Griffiths Whitfield, a solicitor and churchwarden, appears to have revived the change-ringing band in 1887, as detailed records have been kept of the formal business meetings with the incumbents, and also of members joining, their progress week by week, and the performances of the band as a whole.

Two evenings a week were required for practice either on the tower bells or on handbells, but we also find outings to Shrewsbury Floral Fete, to London, to Welsh beauty spots as well as other churches with rings of bells.

The bells were heard three or four times on Sundays for many years, and 6 a.m. on Christmas Day. Mayor's Day, birthdays of the Royal Family, etc., are recorded in great detail.

HANDBELLS

As might be expected, the full peal of 5,040 changes was the object of much effort, and various Oswestry ringers rang such peals at Llangollen and Whitechurch; and finally Holt's Ten-part peal of Grandsire, conducted by Mr. David Davies, was rung by a local band in 1894. The ringers were Messrs. W. Morris 1, David Davies 2, R. Martin 3, Ed. Jones 4, W. H. Jones 5, Richard Edwards 6, Robert Evans 7, J. R. Wellings (tenor).

Tune ringing on handbells was also much practised, and very much appreciated too, if we may again refer to newspaper cuttings of the time, Park Hall, then the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wynne Corrie, was frequently visited, but at Christmas time their carols were in great demand everywhere.

During the next few years many of the band rang in peals of the usual length at Oswestry and elsewhere, and other methods of more intricacy were practised and rung, particularly Stedman's Triples, a more difficult method than Grandsire and generally considered more musical, although similar in many respects.

Coming to more modern times, we cannot help noticing among the names of present-day ringers that of Mr. David Davies, who rang his first three-hour peal in 1893, 'five months after he first pulled a bell.' His record since then as ringer and conductor is one of which he may well be proud.

In the same year Mr. Morris J. Morris rang his first peal, at Llangollen. He rang and conducted peals at Oswestry for many years, afterwards removing to Birmingham, where he now lives, aged 83. He does little ringing now, but has amassed the huge total of 426 peals, many on twelve bells and of twice the usual length.

The name of Kynaston is associated with north-west Shropshire from the earliest times, and among the ringers were the brothers H. and R. Kynaston.

Another brother, Mr. W. B. Kynaston, was at Oswestry and then Shrewsbury, and is now at Swindon, Wilts, and Master of the Bristol and Gloucester Association of Change Ringers. He has conducted and rung peals in many methods, as well as spending a great deal of time instructing learners in the district.

A sister used also to belong to the band at Oswestry, but to-day the only representative of the fairer sex is Mrs. James.

60 YEARS RINGING

Finally, we must mention Mr. John Hughes, Master of Oswestry Bellringers since 1929. To-day, after 60 years as a ringer, and at 80 years of age, he no longer rings long peals, but takes a rope when required. He is also a sidesman, churchwarden, vergier and deputy clerk to St. Oswald's, so that we may well endorse his wish 'to stand behind a learner to see that he doesn't go wrong.'

His son, Mr. Harold Hughes, is at hand to deputise when necessary, and with the added experience of Mr. David Davies, the bells of Oswestry will continue to sound as they have done since 1717.

The ringers to-day are Messrs. J. Hughes, H. Hughes, R. Kynaston, H. Kynaston, F. Dickinson, E. Griffiths, J. Warton, D. Mann, G. Beaton, E. Jones, A. Casewell, and David Davies (conductor).

KNOW THE FIVE-MINUTE BELL

Dear Sir—Some years ago I had a Yorkshire terrier who would stay in her basket while all the bells were ringing, but as soon as the five-minute bell was rung, she would always make straight for the front door and sit until I came home. While on tour in Somerset, she would pull the wife to the tower where we were ringing.

BELLRINGERS' SUNDAY

The third annual Bellringers' Sunday was held at Barwell on November 26th and, throughout the day the Barwell ringers' own hymns were sung and special prayers offered.

The Rector, preaching at the morning service, reminded the congregation of the message of the bells in their tower, and that they were fortunate in having one of the most enthusiastic and regular bands of ringers in the country.

Mr. Ernest Morris gave the address at Evening and his most interesting discourse was all too short. Collections for the day were devoted to the Belfry Repair Fund.

EAST GRINSTEAD GUILD

As the Tonbridge District of the Kent Association did not hold a meeting in December, the East Grinstead Guild thought it an opportune time to visit that area and the meeting at Sevenoaks on December 9th proved a great success.

Owing to a wedding, the bells were not available until 4 p.m., but good use was made of them in the hour before tea with rounds, Grandsire and Plain Bob for the beginners, while the more expert knocked off Stedman, Double Norwich and Superlative.

Mr. E. J. Ladd presided over the meeting in the belfry, when three new members were elected, and the next meeting announced as Speldhurst, in January, with Maresfield proposed for February.

After the usual votes of thanks, the company of over 30, from 14 different towers, manned the ropes once more. Cambridge Major went like clockwork and with the help of two locals, who had returned from an unsuccessful attempt for a peal of Yorkshire, a well-struck course of that method was brought round.

CHESTER CATHEDRAL BELLS

THOSE interested in the antiquity of bells have in the past year been fortunate in a number of surveys which add materially to knowledge. A gratifying feature is that most of these surveys have been undertaken by practical and practising ringers. The latest survey is by Mr. J. W. Clarke, the Master of the Chester Diocesan Guild, and deals with Cheshire bells.

Part I., which has now been published, having been reprinted from the 'Transactions of the Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquarian Society,' deals with the bells of the city of Chester. Here there are seven rings of six or more bells, but unfortunately four are derelict. Mr. Clarke makes a strong point in his introduction of the relationship between change ringers and the preservation of old bells. Change ringing, he writes, has been frequently blamed for the destruction of old bells, but, looking at the matter in a proper perspective, there can be little doubt that but for its influence the average belfry to-day would contain cracked and unringable bells in rotting frames. If change ringing made demands which were the cause of some old bells being recast, it has also been the means by which many have been preserved.

Centrepiece of Chester's bells is naturally the ring of ten at the Cathedral, which was once a Benedictine abbey. There were originally five bells, three in the great central tower and two in the smaller tower at the south-west. Of these five bells nothing definite is known as to their casting. A sixth bell was added about 1510, which has always been associated with Abbot Birchenshaw, and bore his name on the inscription. After the Dissolution, the Cathedral Chapter found themselves in financial difficulties, and in 1551 Abbot Birchenshaw's bell was sold to Mr. William Aldersey and Mr. Seth Rosemgreve, of Chester, for £34, which at modern values is equivalent to nearly £700. The partners sold it to Conway Church, where it became the tenor of a ring of four, and it can still be seen in this neighbouring Welsh church, although two of its former companions have been destroyed. The sale of this bell necessitated Nicholas Buksey, the clerk of the Chapter, appearing before the King's councillors on June 9th, 1553, to answer for the loss of the bell. The findings of this court are not recorded.

The bells were recast and placed in a new frame in 1605 by Henry Oldfield II., of Nottingham. The work was not satisfactory; within a year four of the five bells were recast, the treble only remaining. Mr. Clarke suggests that the explanation is that the bells were not a good ring musically, and the founder, having guaranteed them to be 'tunable,' had to recast the faulty bells at his own expense. Another bell, referred to as the 'four o'clock bell' and the 'prayer bell,' was added in 1626, the founder being William Clibury, of Wellington, Salop. The tenor was cracked in 1738 and sent to London to be recast by Samuel Knight, who had a foundry in Shoe Lane, Holborn. Then followed a sad chapter in the history of these bells. It is recorded that on June 17th, 1814, 'Cathedral bells which had not been rung for sixty years heard again.' But the bells held no attraction for change ringers—there were two rings of six and one of eight in Chester which received the attention of the 'Society of Gentlemen Bellringers,' who operated in Chester in the 18th century.

Although two of the Cathedral bells were recast by John Rudhall in 1827, there is no evidence that the bells were rung as we know them to-day. Precentor Deacle, writing in the early sixties, mentions the deplorable state into which the bells and belfry had been allowed to fall. The climax came on November 9th, 1866, when an attempt was made to ring a welcome to the new Mayor and at the same time to honour the birthday of the Prince of Wales. With the chiming of three bells (one of them cracked), it was decided to swing the tenor, which was thought to be in good order. In a few moments the crash came. A clapper which had been made too long took a piece weighing 36 lb. from a bell already weakened by a deep groove. Thus came the end of Knight's tenor—destroyed, as Mr. Clarke puts it, 'through neglect and carelessness.'

The destruction of the tenor brought matters to a head and a complete restoration scheme was decided upon. This included the recasting of the treble and tenor with the addition of three more bells to make a ring of eight. A proper ringing chamber was also constructed and the bells raised by some 15 ft. The work was carried out by Messrs. Warner, of London, at a cost of approximately £800, and the citizens of Chester were responsible for the recasting of the tenor bell as a memorial to Dean Anson, who died in 1867. The bell was well known as the Curfew and had long been part of the life of the city. In 1927 the bells were overhauled by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank and modern roller bearings were fitted to the tenor (29 cwt. in C). The jubilee of the Chester Diocesan Guild in 1937 was marked by the provision of two more bells to make the present ring of ten. These were cast by the Whitechapel foundry. At the same time many improvements were effected in the ringing chamber.

The volume also deals with the unfortunate history of the bells of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Chester. The north side of the tower crashed on April 14th, 1881, and the tower has never been rebuilt. The tower contained a ring of eight by Rudhall and the bells are now hung 'dead' in a turret built in 1887. These bells were associated with the activities of the 'Society of Gentlemen Bellringers.' In 1733 the Society sought permission of the Vestry to augment the ring of six to eight, and so pleased were the parishioners that they passed a resolution that 'the Society of Gentlemen Bellringers have free access to ring the bells of St. John's and have a key to the belfry door.' The Gentlemen evidently made the most of the opportunity, for three years later the resolution was rescinded and the ringers were allowed the use of the bells by leave of the churchwardens only. In spite of restrictions, writes Mr. Clarke, the Society managed to continue its activities and remained in a flourishing state for a very considerable time.

ENROL AS NEW SUBSCRIBER

We are now enrolling new postal subscribers for 1951. Send £1 to Mrs. Fletcher, The White House, Caister-on-Sea, Norfolk, and have your 'Ringing World' each Friday morning during 1951.

Featured in the centre pages of 'Punch' last week was a subject dear to the hearts of all ringers. Illustrating the verses, 'Their sound is gone forth into all lands' is a typical country church and a belfry sketch by that eminent artist, E. H. Shepard. The belfry in question is Holy Trinity, Guildford, and among the ringers that caught the artist's eye were Messrs. A. H. Pulling, W. J. Robinson, T. Mark White and H. Hutton.

A quarter peal of Minor was rung at Thorne, Yorkshire, on December 12th by Mr. James Thorley with his three sons and two brothers.

Mr. Harry F. Holding, with a peal at Marchington on December 9th, has rung Stedman from Doubles to Cinques.

Mr. Austen Kemp, who has been a Sunday service ringer at St. Nicholas', Ash, Kent, since 1910, rang his first peal on the bells on December 16th. Great credit is due to him for the way he rang the tenor.

Mr. A. H. Pulling has called at Holy Trinity, Guildford, 100 peals of Stedman Triples. He has rung in all 110 peals of Stedman in this tower, the last being exactly 50 years after his first peal in the tower for the method.

A handbell peal was rung at Chesterfield on December 10th when the average age of the four ringers was 74 years, six months. Has this been exceeded? These veterans also enquire what is the oldest average age for a tower bell peal.

Last April honourable mention was made in this column of 14-year-old William H. Jackson on ringing his first peal of London. Now at Campsall, Yorkshire, his 13-year-old brother, David, has scored his first peal in the method and with the same mastery. 'Two grand young ringers with a most promising future,' writes the peal conductor, Mr. J. E. Cawser.

BELFRY GOSSIP

We regret to announce that Mr. T. H. Reeves, the former secretary of the St. Martin's Guild for the Diocese of Birmingham, is seriously ill in Sheffield. While staying at a hotel there he had a seizure on December 12th, and he was taken to a local hospital. The latest information is that he is a little better, but he will be there for some weeks, as he is too ill to move even by ambulance to Birmingham. His family are with him.

Mr. Reginald Woodyatt, with the peal at Claines, Worcs, on December 15th, has rung each bell in the tower to a ten-bell peal.

With reference to 5,079 Stedman Caters on page 798, the last turning course should read 2 7 S9 15 16

The ringer of the 3rd in the peal of Bob Minor at Rainhill, Lancs, on November 18th, was A. Ronald Pocklington, and not Donald as stated.

The footnote to the peal at Hethersett reported on page 787 should read: 'First peal in seven Plain Major methods for the Association.'

Has a ringer ever rung a tower-bell peal in evening dress? This took place at St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, on December 6th. Mr. Harold E. Harrison rang in such garb complete with 'dickie.'

Mr. A. J. N. Rance, of Bracknell, Berks, rang his 13th peal at the 13th attempt at Hurst, Berkshire, his last peal being in the same tower 2½ years ago. The band, in congratulating him on at last breaking his run of bad luck, also congratulate Mrs. A. Diserens, of St. Mary's, Reading, who kindly stood in at short notice and rang her 100th peal.

RINGERS AND THE FESTIVAL OF BRITAIN

REPORT TO STANDING COMMITTEE

A COMPREHENSIVE SURVEY

I. INTRODUCTION

Recently there was circulated to each member of the Standing Committee the following report prepared by the Festival Sub-Committee. This report has not yet been approved by the Standing Committee, but in view of the widespread interest in the Festival, we publish the comprehensive survey of the subject and congratulate the sub-committee on a fine piece of work:—

1. The Festival of Britain Sub-Committee was formed at the 1950 Council meeting held at Eastbourne, and instructed to study the part which the Ringing Exercise should play in the Festival of Britain, 1951, and report with recommendations to the Standing Committee who were empowered to approve and to act on the recommendations placed before them. The Festival Sub-Committee was composed of Dr. E. S. J. Hatcher and Mr. G. H. Spice.

2. Their Majesties the King and Queen will open the Festival on May 4th, 1951, when they visit the South Bank Exhibition, which will then continue until September 30th, during which period the whole of Britain will be on show. So from an idea born in 1947 to celebrate the centenary year of the Great Exhibition of 1851 has grown and taken form the fine conception of demonstrating to ourselves and to the world something of the traditions and character of British culture and civilisation. The Christian Churches have given their full support from the outset, and in sharing in this expression of national faith we, as ringers, must ensure that our own form of Christian praise and worship, the sounding of bells according to our unique English art of change-ringing, shall witness to the achievement of this Ringing Isle in a Festival destined to lasting memory in the annals of its history.

II. SCOPE OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE'S WORK

3. After a preliminary study, the aims of the Sub-Committee were expressed in a letter of invitation to ringers to contribute ideas ('Ringing World,' August 10th, 1950), from which we quote:—

4. 'The work of our committee falls into two broad divisions, corresponding to the official Festival organisation on the one hand, and to the countrywide local celebrations on the other.

5. 'Regarding the first, liaison has been established with the Festival authorities, and two facts of some importance have been ascertained through this channel. They are, that there is absolutely no possibility of erecting a synthetic tower on the South Bank Exhibition site, but that the Church of St. John, Waterloo Road, adjoining the site, is being rebuilt as the Festival Church; and that, just as the Royal School of Church Music is arranging for visiting choirs to sing at services in the Festival Church, so should we arrange for visiting bands to ring the bells.

6. 'It is the second division of our work, however, which is likely to offer most to the individual guild or tower, not only by the suggestions we offer, but also in our capacity as a clearing house for ideas.'

7. Corresponding to these broad divisions, our work will now be described, leading on to a short discussion on the implementation of our suggestions, and to a final summary of the recommendations made.

III. THE FESTIVAL IN LONDON

(a) The South Bank Exhibition and the Festival Church

8. Link with the Festival authorities was made through the Liaison Officer for Voluntary Associations, and later through the Secretary of the Festival Advisory Committee of Christian Churches. In this way we found our general bearings, and were able to examine the possibility of erecting bells for ringing actually at the South Bank Exhibition, an idea developed in some detail by Mr. A. York-Bramble ('Ringing World,' May 19th, 1950), who suggested transparent walls to the temporary tower to enable the bells and the ringers to be seen in action. Such a project would have involved considerable technical skill and the collaboration of the bell-founding firms who were invited to offer comment. Any possibility of their co-operation was, however, eliminated by a firm 'no' from the Festival authorities, whose plans for the South Bank were rigidly fixed; and though the idea was not finally shelved even then, the announcement that St. John's was being rebuilt as the Festival Church meant that an alternative scheme was open to be developed.

9. When St. John's was damaged the tower was not seriously affected, and the eight bells came to little harm. The tenor weighs 18 cwt. and the bells were refitted in new bearings by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank as recently as 1935, so that they should prove most suitable for their honoured role in the Festival. It was, therefore, great encouragement to find that the Rev. L. W. Harland, Secretary of the Advisory Committee for Christian Churches, agreed that our bellringing art should be suitably represented. To this end the correspondence on the matter has been passed to the Committee responsible for the Festival Church, with whom further negotiations will take place.

10. There will be regular services at the Festival Church, and we feel that it should be possible during the Festival period for many ringers to visit St. John's, and by proper organisation, for every Guild and Association to send representative bands. A special bell-ringing festival in early summer has been suggested as especially appropriate. We are glad to know, too, that the local band at St. John's will be playing its part, and this will be a great help in developing the visiting scheme outlined. One of our principal recommendations is that every effort should be made to ensure that the bells of St. John's sound forth their message throughout the Festival.

11. The question of peal attempts at the Festival Church has been raised. With effective shutter arrangements the sound of the bells over long periods might be controlled so that is no more than a pleasant background to visitors to the Exhibition, but every care should be taken to avoid any reasonable criticism, and some limit on peal attempts should be fixed. On the other hand, quarter peals might be a wiser plan, as this would give a worthwhile ring under good conditions without being too persistent.

(b) Exhibitions on Ringing in London

12. The Sub-Committee was very glad to receive a letter from Mr. William Shepherd, of Addlestone, Surrey, who recalled the Festival of Empire in 1911, the Coronation Year of King George V., at the Crystal Palace. The Ringers' Day in London, organised by the new journal, 'The Ringing World,' may also be recalled. Messrs. Warner had a stand there, but only after the innovation of handbell ringing were the crowds drawn. As a result, handbell concerts were given on three evenings a week, which were highly popular. Mr. Shepherd would like a 'ringers' corner somewhere in the 1951 Festival, where demonstrations, models, handbell ringing, even talks, could entertain the crowds. Mr. York-Bramble likewise envisaged his tower to be the scene of similar activities, and Mr. C. Cullen, in a letter discussed the desirability of a suitable exhibition.

13. It is doubtful if such projects could be arranged at South Bank, but there might be an exhibition at the Festival Church, and the Imperial Institute is another possibility. The Royal Festival Hall has also been suggested, and exploration of the position should be made if the idea is acceptable.

(c) Visitors to London

14. We like the suggestion put forward by Mr. T. J. Lock, of the Middlesex Association, of a hospitality scheme by London area ringers, in conjunction with a special effort to provide ringing at all London churches during the Festival. We recommend that Mr. Lock be invited to co-ordinate such a scheme, but think it should be on a proper financial footing, for visiting ringers will only be too thankful to have accommodation found, and would not wish their hosts to be out of pocket.

15. Regarding overseas visitors, those who ring will be glad of all opportunities offered to take part in ringing events associated with the Festival. But any visitor from across the waters should have the opportunity of seeing English ringing at its best, and Mr. A. A. Hughes has suggested that with the Dean and Chapter's permission, invitations could be extended to St. Paul's Cathedral on Sundays. The Ancient Society would, we feel sure, willingly operate such a scheme.

(d) A Commemorative Ring of Bells in London

16. Lansbury, a newly-named district of the blitzed East End, is being redeveloped as a model 'neighbourhood,' some thirty acres of which will be completely rebuilt for the Festival, including shops, schools and two churches. Mr. T. J. Lock makes an unexpressed suggestion ('Ringing World,' June 30th) that one of these churches might be equipped with bells. Unfortunately, one of the churches is Roman Catholic, the other Congregational, but the Sub-Committee would welcome the Standing Committee's views on the possibility of a Festival installation, which would remain a permanent ringing feature of the Festival of Britain.

IV. THE COUNTRYWIDE FESTIVAL OF BRITAIN

(a) The Individual and His Own Tower

17. The aim of the Festival organisers is that everyone should play his or her part in the celebrations of 1951, and that every phase of British life, every art and craft, every creative instinct, should find its full expression. To this end, all ringers should be encouraged to take full responsibility for seeing that in their village or town the local Festival committee is not only aware that the bells are an essential feature of the English 'make-up,' but that every opportunity is taken of introducing ordinary folk, residents and visitors, to the belfry. As was urged by the Rev. A. G. G. Thurlow in a letter recently ('Ringing World,' September 15th), individuals must use their own initiative now and not later on, for it is useless to wait for invitations and wonder why they are not forthcoming.

(b) The Guild or Association

18. Corporate ringing life finds expression in the work of our guilds and associations whose rapid development in the last half century have assured the future of our Exercise. It is the guild which should seek to further co-operation with the more central Festival enterprises in their own county or diocese. These include the Festivals of Art at such historic cities as Canterbury, Norwich and York, in addition to the special Festival programmes in the large towns and cities. The sponsoring of ringing exhibitions by diocesan and county authorities should be an important aim, and this offers scope for considerable enterprise and originality. The invitation of the general public to ringing meetings could form a special feature of next summer, and the holding of a special Festival ringing meeting would be a worthy departure from normal. In many cases the formation of a special committee to study local possibilities would encourage action.

(c) The Central Council

19. As the representative body of the Exercise, the Council must be responsible for undertaking a number of projects designed to further the widest possible participation in the Festival.

Peals

20. As ringers, our own expression of festival will be the ringing of peals, and the Sub-Committee recommends that the Central Council appoint the opening day of the Festival, Friday, May 4th, and the day following, Saturday, May 5th, as special days for ringing commemorative peals.

A Festival Method

21. The Sub-Committee further recommends that a method should be selected and named after the Festival as its permanent expression in the ringer's art. It does so in the belief that the events of 1951 will be unique in our country's history, and worthy of commemoration. The great arts of painting, music, literature, drama and the ballet, are all following such a course, and it should be emphasised that what is being honoured is not the name of one person, or victory on the field of battle, but the expression of our nation's spirit and culture.

22. While the Sub-Committee is not, at this stage, in a position to suggest a method for such distinction, it would like to acknowledge one suggestion from Mr. York-Bramble, and some valuable technical comments from Mr. Denis N. Layton, who points out the scope offered by both Treble Bob and plain unnamed Major methods. If this recommendation is accepted, the Exercise should be given a voice in the selection of the Festival method, with the final recommendation resting with the Festival Sub-Committee.

Literature

23. In addition to making every effort to get ringing mentioned in as many Festival printed programmes as possible, the Sub-Committee strongly supports a suggestion emanating from several sources that a pamphlet should be carefully prepared and produced in large numbers for distribution to the public at every suitable opportunity. The cost of this should be shared by every guild undertaking to purchase copies. One estimate puts the probable cost at about 10s. per 100, and at this price many guilds could afford to purchase at least 2,000, though, in turn, individual towers could purchase from their own guilds. An edition of 50 to 100 thousand would not be beyond the bounds of practicability. Great care would have to be taken to see that an interesting account was given of our ringing art, so that from it a layman would enjoy and appreciate the bells of England, and be let into some of their secrets.

A Ringing Film

24. The Sub-Committee recommends that an attempt be made to encourage the production of a first-class feature film on bells and ringing for general exhibition at cinemas.

Other Activities of the Central Council

25. It is recommended that every opportunity shall be taken by the Council to foster, officially, all projects to further the aims of ringing. In certain respects it is to be regretted that the tradition of holding the first meeting of a new Council in London is to be broken in 1951, but perhaps the visit to Chester, only a week after the opening of the Festival of Britain, will be made the occasion of a special tribute.

V. THE IMPLEMENTATION OF FESTIVAL RECOMMENDATIONS

26. In the preparation of this report, the Sub-Committee has not exercised its power to co-opt, though it has been only too glad to receive ideas and suggestions from ringers. In the implementation of its recommendations, however, there will be considerable opportunity for inviting the assistance of others, and it will be essential to do so if the work is not to prove too arduous. Thus the organisation of ringing at the Festival Church, the arranging of a ringing exhibition in London, the hospitality scheme for London, the preparation of a ringing pamphlet, and the study of the feature film project, are all excellent examples of where one or more persons can be made responsible.

27. In submitting this report, the Sub-Committee, bearing in mind the relatively long period which has inevitably elapsed during its preparation, hopes that it will be possible to obtain the views and the approval of the Standing Committee quite quickly. It ventures to think that most of the recommendations will be accepted unreservedly, but would like comment again on four of them.

(v.). The idea of a Festival installation of bells must clearly be investigated further before any decision can be contemplated.

(viii.). The appointment of the two opening days of the Festival for commemorative peals would be one of the most effective means of signifying the historic nature of the events, and would be appreciated by ringers and non-ringers.

(ix.). The naming of a method after the Festival is a recommendation on which much thought has been given because of possible diversion of opinion. As a result, it is our strong wish that such a method be named, as in this way only can our change-ringing art itself be an expression of the Festival.

(xi.). Like (v.) the idea of a feature film on ringing must be explored before the final outcome is known. This must, in the last resort, depend on practicability rather than desirability. In this sense, provisional approval could be given by the Standing Committee.

VI. SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS

29. The Festival of Britain Sub-Committee has much pleasure in making the following recommendations to the Standing Committee of the Central Council. The numbers in brackets after each refer to the numbered paragraphs in the body of the report.

(i.). That every effort should be made to organise representative ringing at the Festival Church including full consideration of a possible Ringing Festival Day, and the question of peal attempts (9, 10, 11).

(ii.). That at least one central exhibition of ringing should be organised in London, to include photographs, literature, models, talks and handbell ringing (12, 13).

(iii.). That a hospitality scheme should be operated in London, in which it is hoped that all associations and societies in London and the Home Counties will join (14).

(iv.). That overseas visitors should be given the opportunity of seeing ringing at its best, and welcome the suggestion of invitations to Sunday ringing at St. Paul's Cathedral (15).

(v.). That the possibility be explored of a national bell installation scheme in London as a permanent ringing memorial of the Festival of Britain (16).

TEWKESBURY BRANCH

The annual meeting of the Tewkesbury Branch was held at Tewkesbury Abbey on December 2nd. Some 34 members and friends were present including the Master, Mr. W. B. Kynaston, and Mrs. Kynaston.

The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. B. Purefoy), with the Curate (the Rev. M. Seacombe) at the organ.

At the meeting, which followed tea, Group Captain T. V. Lister was again appointed chairman. Mr. E. T. Newbury intimated that he did not wish to seek re-election as secretary and asked the Branch to appoint someone in his place. Mr. J. Beech, 6, Abbey Terrace, Tewkesbury, was appointed.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Newbury, for his services as hon secretary to the Branch since 1945, was proposed by the chairman. The name of Mr. H. Ball was also coupled with Mr. Newbury's in this vote of thanks, as they together were responsible for restarting the Branch after the ban on bellringing was lifted following the war.

Mr. Kynaston also, on behalf of the Association, thanked Mr. Newbury for his services, and wished Mr. Beech 'all the best' in his new job.

Thanks were also expressed to Group Captain Lister for arranging the annual outing, to the Vicar and Curate for their hospitality, etc., and use of the bells, and to the Master, Mr. Kynaston. Several new members were elected. Mr. E. T. Newbury was appointed representative on the management committee.

Ringing during the afternoon and evening ranged from Grandsire Doubles to Cambridge Maximus.

DEDICATION

SANDFORD, DEVON

The Lord Bishop of Crediton dedicated on December 9th the bells of St. Swithin's, Sandford, which have been rehung on a steel frame and a treble added, the gift of the late Miss Halten. The contract was carried out by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

Sandford bells had been silent since 1938. The tenor of this ring of six weighs 12 cwt. Seven visiting teams from the Cadbury Deanery took part in the ringing which followed the dedication and were complimentary on the 'go' of the bells. Mr. W. G. Dyer represented Messrs. Gillett and Johnston at the opening ceremony.

(vi.). That through 'The Ringing World' all ringers should be invited to take individual responsibility for ensuring that the bells play their full part in local Festival activities (17).

(vii.). That a letter be sent to all guilds, associations and societies, inviting them to make every effort to sponsor schemes for participation of bells and ringers in the main Festival events of their own areas (18).

(viii.). That the opening days of the Festival, Friday and Saturday, May 4th and 5th, 1951, be appointed as special days for the ringing of commemorative peals (20).

(ix.). That a method should be selected and named after the Festival (21, 22).

(x.). That a ringing pamphlet be prepared for distribution to the public on the widest scale, to be sponsored by the Central Council and supported by all guilds and associations (23).

(xi.). That an attempt should be made to encourage the production of a first-class feature film on ringing (24).

(xii.). That every opportunity should be taken by the Central Council to foster, officially, all projects in Festival Year designed to further the cause of ringing (25).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE OLDEST TOWER-BELL PEAL-RINGER

Dear Sir,—Come, come, Mr. James George! As one of your great admirers, I urge you to get down to 'brass tacks' and reasoning. You claim to have rung a tower-bell peal at the great age of 85 years and nine months; Mr. James W. Wilkins, of High Wycombe, rang a tower-bell peal when he was two days past his 87th birthday. Well, it is obvious you are not the oldest tower-bell peal-ringer only on the grounds that you are at present 97 years and Mr. Wilkins nearly 88 years old, but Mr. Wilkins was older than you were when you rang your last tower-bell peal, therefore the claim should be his.

To have rung a tower-bell peal at the great age of 85 years and then, in spite of the sad misfortune to lose a leg, still be hale and hearty at 97 years is a truly wonderful record, and should it be the happy and fortunate experience of the writer such things would not be bothered about. You have had a wonderful ringing career, and no doubt have done much to help less fortunate persons to master the art of change-ringing. So please do not mar that career by 'ifs' and 'buts' and what you could still do but for your unfortunate disability. You have done your share nobly and well. Now enjoy the evening of your life.—Your faithfully,

R. NEWMAN, S.E.A.N.

Holloway, N.7.

PRESTBURY BELLS

Dear Sir,—Following the report by bell-hangers, the Church Council have decided that the eight at Prestbury, Gloucestershire, will have to be rehung, and that until they have been rehung, the bells are only to be used for service ringing and the weekly practice.

Visitors will always be welcome on Tuesday evenings or Sundays, but there can be no peal attempts.

Members of the local band are to start the fund for the rehanging by touring the village this Christmas with handbells, and hope to be able to get a peal on the bells when enough money has been raised for the job to be done.

—Yours faithfully, CHARLES ROUSE.
Cheltenham.

THE FOUR GEORGES

Dear Sir,—I am writing entirely from memory but I am sure my old friend George Newton is mistaken in thinking he is the George referred to by the late Mr. Fussell in his diary. If he refers to the first issue of 'The Ringing World' published after the tourists sailed for Australia in 1934, I am sure he will find the paragraph, word for word, which is quoted in your leading article of December 8th.

George Newton was the gifted conductor of the Cumberlands from approximately 1880 until his death some 15 years later and with whom Mr. Fussell was very closely associated during that period. Incidentally, George Newton called my father's first peal—Grandsire Triples at West Ham in the early 1880's and his first peal of Double Norwich some 10 or 12 years later.

Among the many peals he conducted was the then record length of Treble Bob; the number, I believe, was 8,864, and the composer, William Harrison. The composition was published on the Friday, and at the St. Martin's practice that evening, the band was arranged and the peal rung on the following day at Highgate. He also conducted the 13,440 of Double Norwich which the Cumberlands rang at Romford in 1894. He died the following year from (so I have been told) what we now know as appendicitis, but what was then known as a 'twisted gut,' and for which, at that time, there was no cure.

There are still a few ringers living who rang with George Newton. I remember, as a small boy, seeing him once when he came to Crayford for a peal, shortly before his death.—Yours sincerely, E. BARNETT.

Crayford, Kent.

'YE RASCALLY RINGERS'

Dear Sir,—If possessors of Snowdon's 'Double Norwich' will turn to page 47, they will see these lines were printed in the 'Norwich Mercury' somewhere between 1817 and 1821. They were sent by John Twiddy, the parish clerk at Mancroft, who lived close to the tower. Between these dates the Norwich Scholars, under Robert Chestnutt, used to practise Court Royal at 6 a.m. on Sundays during the summer season. Small wonder, therefore, that Twiddy turned to poetry! Snowdon remarks that he had seen other poetic efforts bearing a great resemblance.—Yours truly,

CHAS. E. BORRETT.

Sheringham, Norfolk.

MR. FUSSELL'S PEAL AT BEAUMARIS

Dear Sir,—With regard to the publication of Mr. Fussell's diary, I expect others will have already written to you to say that he did, in fact, ring a peal in every county in England and Wales. He completed this task on Saturday, July 9th, 1938, when we were able to arrange for him to ring a peal at Beaumaris, Anglesey. Mr. R. Sperring called Parker's 12 part from the second and Mr. Fussell rang the sixth. He had waited many years to get this peal.—With good wishes for Christmas, sincerely yours, J. W. CLARKE.

Chester.

A VETERAN TOWERKEEPER

Mr. S. Jones, of Eccleston, Cheshire, who celebrated his 82nd birthday on December 13th (and participated in a quarter peal in honour of the event), is one of the few one-armed ringers in the country. At 82 he is still going strong, having been towerkeeper at Eccleston since the bells were opened in 1907. Eccleston is one of the finest sights in the country and will be one of the attractions at the Central Council meeting next Whitsuntide. Two of Mr. Jones' sons rang in the quarter with him, while a third was prevented by indisposition. We express our congratulations to Eccleston's veteran towerkeeper and wish him many more happy years of service to the Church.

TOWER CORNER — 22

'STEDMAN—THE BLUE LINE'

Dear Improvers —In this Lesson, No. XIII, we begin to learn our first method—Stedman—by means of its Blue Line. We already know quite a bit of this method, but those of us who have turned up any of the references mentioned in our previous article will have found out, no doubt, quite a bit more about it.

General form of B-L to be appreciated.—Before we can draw out the Blue Line, however, we must (a) understand the general arrangement of all Blue Lines, and (b) work out and list, from the Stedman Division (given under figure 8 in the previous instalment), the pattern features of this particular B-L.

All B-L's in two parts.—As to (a), the general arrangement, you may recall that we have said (at the close of instalment 19, in fact), that there are two positions in the B-L of any method where the pattern of the bell-path 'reflects' upon itself. From this it follows that every B-L falls into two main parts, each of which has a mid-way pivot point, not unlike the 'axis of reflection' in a Division. So that the second portion of each part is, respectively, the 'reflection' of the first portion of that part. Accordingly, knowledge of the first portion gives the whole of this same part. These two main parts respectively pivot about work (a) chiefly 'on the front,' and (b) chiefly 'on the back.' From this fact we derive the names 'Front Path' and 'Back Path.' Every method's B-L is so constructed.

Unequal lengths of Front and Back Paths.—In hunt-controlled methods the Front Path is centred or 'pivots' upon the place where the Treble is leading and the Back Path 'pivots' upon the place of the Treble's lie. These two places will be recognised as the Link and the Junction of a Division, respectively. In omnivorking methods, such as Stedman, the Front and Back Path pivot points may be reversed; in other words, the Front Path may be found to pivot round a Junction, while the Back Path pivots round a Link. Except in 'Double' methods, where the two Paths are of equal length (and where, incidentally, the pivot positions may be found as in omnivorking methods), the paths are of unequal length, due to the fact that the number of working bells in a method and therefore, of Divisions, is generally odd; so that there will be one more Division in one Path than in the other.

The Stedman Two Paths.—In Stedman Doubles, with its five Divisions, the Front Path includes the whole of the Slow Work, which is comprised (with its three initial and three terminal dodging rows), in three Divisions or 36 rows. This leaves, for the Back Path, which is comprised in two Divisions or 24 rows, the rest of the dodging in 4-5 which 'sandwiches' the brief excursion down to the front of the Quick Work. So here, as generally, the Front Path is the longer of the two. This is indicated on the B-L diagram which comes later.

Developing B-L from Grid-pattern.—Those who have to hand a reference book giving the plain course of Stedman Doubles may turn to it for illustration of what follows; but it is preferable to turn up the previous article and study figure 8 (which gives the Grid-pattern of a Division of Stedman Doubles) for this purpose. i.e., for our actual 'make-out' of this blue line. The simplest way of using the Grid-pattern to develop the blue line is this:—Start with a given bell-position at the d-h row and work down the line of the bell-path, jotting down every departure from plain hunting, including the blows at lead and lie. In a hunt-controlled method note also the meeting places with the hunt-bell (Treble). On reaching the Link at the end of the Division, draw in a dividing mark in your list, and note the position in which you have arrived at the new d-h row. Now revert to the original d-h row and start again from this newly-derived position, working down the new bell-path and jotting down the method features as before. Repeat this process until you have traversed all bell-paths in the Division, and find yourself back at the position from which you first began.

The next step is to rule narrow vertical columns in number equal to the number of bells in the method stage, and to 'head' them according to bell-positions, i.e., '1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, etc.' (Note that these numeral headings are not bells, but bell-positions; and that this distinction is fundamental in analysis of the Grid, which we may consider later in the Course.)

The third step is to translate your jottings into the complete bell-path, by means of the zig-zag line drawn from column to column. Where a place-making occurs the line is drawn down the middle of the column for a short length. Meetings of a hunt-bell are indicated by short cross-lines, preferably in red. As each Link is reached (denoted by the dividing marks in your list), you enter a small circle on the bell-path for the new d-h position. This shows not only what part of the bell-path comes within any given Division of the plain course, but also, at a glance, the 'go-offs' or starts of the work for each position at the d-h.

Omission of first step inadvisable.—More experienced workers on methods may suggest the omission of the first step, and the making-out of the Blue Line directly from the Grid-pattern. But for students (and this Course is intended mainly for such), experience shows it preferable to write out the list of method features, with 'encounters' of any hunt-bell, and with Link positions, before attempting to draw in the B-L: as being both more informative to the learner and less likely to engender mistakes in the bell-path. Moreover the student can check, from the list, the pivot positions of both Front and Back Paths, together with the starting places, i.e., the Links, for each Path. The Blue Line may then be started from the most appropriate bell-position, i.e., the 'go-off' of the Front Path. In the B-L diagram, given in figure 11, 'F.P.P.' indicates 'Front Path Pivot,' and 'B.P.P.' indicates 'Back Path Pivot.'

Drawing the Blue Line.—We saw (para. 5 above) that the Stedman Front Path comprises the Slow Work, so we start from the bell-position in the d-h row at which we find a bell, in that Division, entering the Slow. This is seen to be from the 4th position. (In rounds of course, this is the 4th bell itself.) From our list already made out we shall thus pick up these directions: 'Dodge in 4-5. Cross into front-work at slow six (which means enter a set of backward hunting, i.e., the whole pull is at the back of the 3-bell work (3rd's place) instead of in the front), so make 3rds: . . . etc.' (We need not continue the directions, as everything is marked in the diagram in figure 11.)

Cause of Pattern of Slow Work.—At this point the discerning student will have realised that Stedman Slow Work is no more and no less than just plain hunting, reversed after every six change-rows — forward hunting in one six, backward hunting in the next six, and so on. Inside every six, however, there is nothing but plain 3-bell hunting.

At the junction of the sixes the change of kind of hunting causes a momentary reversal (dodge) or place-making, which occurs as between a six-end row and the ensuing six-head row, giving rise to 'snapping blows' at lead or in seconds as the new six opens; but otherwise the hunting is plain. The reversals give rise to the characteristic 'Whole Turns' and 'Half Turns,' seen to be symmetrically arranged about the 'middle thirds' of the Slow Work.

Extending a Plain Course.—Except on the smallest stages the extent of change-rows obtainable is not contained within the plain course. To obtain the extra change-rows fresh d-h's, not occurring within the plain course, must be brought up. This is done by changing the form of Link, i.e., the type of permutation (arrangement of transits) employed between the d-c and the ensuing d-h. This change is effected by the conductor making a 'call,' the word employed being 'Bob.' The effect is to alter the coursing order of an odd number of bells, as appearing in the new d-h row. But even this device will not give the full extent in some methods. Later we shall go further into this matter of 'calls.' For the present we simply say that a further device changes the nature of the succession of rows, and is called 'Single.' In Stedman Doubles the plain course yields half the extent of rows, and a 'Single,' employed instead of a plain Link, suffices to change the nature of rows and yield the other half. This, and tips for ringing, we'll discuss next time.—Cordially yours, CORN: R. STONE.

E. DERBYSHIRE & N. NOTTS

The quarterly meeting of the East Derbyshire and North Notts Association was held at St. Mary Magdalene's, Sutton-in-Ashfield, on December 16th and was attended by members representing most towers in the Association. During the afternoon the bells were kept going to Minor and Major methods.

An excellent tea followed, given by Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Sollis, to mark their birthdays which fall during the ensuing week, also their 12th wedding anniversary; also for the birthday of Miss M. Heathcote (ringer, local band). The guests included the Rev. W. E. A. Pugh (Vicar) and Mrs. Pugh, Rev. G. Neville, Mr. Piggot (warden) and Mrs. Piggot and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Heathcote.

At the business meeting, appreciation and good wishes were expressed to all concerned. Ringing ended late in the evening with a quarter peal by members as a birthday compliment.

STORY OF A GREAT RINGING CAREER

DIARY OF THE LATE MR. W. H. FUSSELL — 4

Edited by ERNEST MORRIS

MR. Fussell's diary for 1882 starts off with his opening remarks: "Here commences a diary of my ringing and any performances done worth noticing at the several towers I have visited. The first two pages are devoted to a list of 720's rung during the year, and once again Grandsire is favourite with a total of 30, mostly rung at Farnham and Slough. He records nine of Plain Bob and one of Kent T.B.

He states "On the last day of the old year I went to our parish church to ring in the new year. Heard St. John's, Windsor, and those of the Curfew tower, the night being clear and frosty and moonlight. The grand and solemn tones of the Curfew bells gave one an awful reminder of the close of another year and how soon, too, we may go. Commenced ringing at 11.20 (I had been ringing at Farnham till 9 o'clock). Flaxman tolled the tenor for mid-night, Doubles rung before and Minor after. W. Leader having been steeple-keeper ever since bells put up, made 25 years this Christmas.

"Wished the ringers goodnight and went for a walk—Windsor still on—got to bed 1.30. Only ringers can imagine the state of my feelings after having done some well-struck changes on eight fine toned bells on a still, clear night, although only called changes. I have done very little ringing worth mentioning last year although I joined the "Cumberland Youths" on September 22nd, and the "Waterloo" on October 26th, but I hope to do more this year with God's help."

As in the previous records, Mr. Fussell seems to have been out at practices and handbell-ringing almost nightly, walking in many instances to the various neighbouring towers, usually to ring Doubles and Minor.

A JOVIAL EVENING

On January 16th he went to London by train and called re the Hornsey peal board, "thence to St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, the bells being muffled; pulled up several bells and rang fifth in rounds on the 12 bells for the first time—usual "whole pull and stand" and Manfield tolled on the tenor the age of the gentleman rung for. Saw Cox; Nelms; Rogers; Stackwood; Dains; Newson; Hoverd; Hopkins and others, who rang Stedman Caters." Next day at St. Anne's, Highgate, he rang some Treble Bob and Grandsire Triples. "Went to their house below and had ale and staid till 12.30 singing, etc., together in the little side parlour.

"It appeared to me that this was one of several jovial meeting nights. The occasion of dividing the funds. Mr. Page attempted an elaborate speech. Mrs. Tichener, who came in with two lady friends during the evening, caused a little unpleasantness; then some roughs who desired a row and tried to make out old Page was trying to insult the ladies during his verbose speech. Newson and Jacob had a fair harney all the evening, acting about. Griffin, Jacob and I came home with Mrs. Davis, who had the nickname "Archer Up," on account of her jockey cap. I lost myself in Hornsey owing to thick fog and had a job to find Griffin's house—long after two o'clock before I did. After knocking him up, I slept with his boy—a lad 12 years of age. Griffin and Jacob were almost run in coming home by Crouch End, by a policeman who was watching for some burglars."

On January 18th he walked or rode to Kensington where he pulled up a few bells and heard the start of a successful peal, composed and called by J. Cox. Newson and Stackwood changed their bells while ringing on account of the latter coming over queer. Later he went to Uxbridge and rang Grandsire Triples with Rev. Shears and the Vicar, Rev. Mayo. "Bad striking all the evening, as usual. Two of their men have given up ringing for some unknown reason."

Later in this month he says: "Tried some handbell ringing and, by a struggle, got 120. Akery and H. King will turn out fair ringers, I am sure, while Chas. King will never be worth anything as a change ringer—he'll never see it, everything he's told seems no good. He is like Woodley, who has been two years at it—too thick to see and too lazy to give time to it. John Steel found an old note book in which he wrote some tunes in 1847. King senr. seemed pleased with the ringing although he could not take part in it, having cut the top nearly clean off his finger."

On January 28th he says: "Parker lent me "Snowden's Treatise on Treble Bob." I sat up till two a.m. reading it at home. Wilder and Flaxman went to Isleworth to hear a peal that lasted 2 hours, fifty minutes."

Then follow many notes of touches at various places and a typical entry is "This morning I walked to Langley and back. Copied the inscriptions on the bells and saw Fred Mattingley. Told the 4th bell for a death. A nice little fellow called Gerald Barnby came with me and assisted. He often had many long walks with me." "Walked to Denham—made notes, etc. One College Youths' peal board fixed high up in the entrance way under the belfry. Saw the tomb of the Marshall family who were murdered by a blacksmith." At this time Mr. Fussell mentions many trips to various churches where he copied bell inscriptions, did sketches, etc. and on one occasion, when out at Denham and Iver, found he had no money. "Poor Barnby never had much as he is poorly situated. We therefore had to wait till I found my friend Squeelch of Uxbridge—a landlord of a public house: he obliged me with some ale, bread and cheese, which we made do till we got home. At Uxbridge we ferreted out an old codger named Tiny Hastings, the steeple-keeper. Dirty tower; I got smothered over with grease and dirt."

THE McLEAN TRIAL

On March 10th he walked to Windsor and rang at St. John's on the occasion of the marriage of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. An order came from the magistrates to stop the ringing and Mr. Fussell says "and no wonder when the Town Hall is so near and belfry windows so open. Besides, an unusual trial was going on—that of McLeans, for attempting to shoot the Queen." "Rang at Slough; after evening service. I lent Akery, King and Steel copies of the "Bell News" each and persuaded them to take a copy weekly." As has already been explained, Mr. Fussell was a very clever artist, and many of the early illustrations of churches in the "Bell News" were drawn by him—usually he placed his initials in the crazy pathways or foliage at the foot of the picture. To show his enthusiasm, he not only records many occasions of chiming, ringing call changes and pulling bells up, but in March, 1882, he records: "Visited Langley last Saturday and rang six plain courses of Bob and Grandsire Singles on the front 4."

About this time Mr. Fussell, who had designed the West Middlesex Association certificate, went to Windsor and called at the lithographer's works. "The man showed me the final proof, the printing looked horrid. What a pity no one can get good work done by a country lithographer. He had altered a good many points in my design according to his own ideas which do not give him credit. The thing looked fairly spoilt: he promised to alter some, but what's the use. I don't expect to see it improved." He rang some Triples on handbells at Mr. Newell's place at the back of the brewery in a loft. "We seldom came down without being covered in whitewash and meal-dust."

He went to Reading, and at St. Mary's School had a handbell practice. The Curate with Messrs. Bonney and Little came in and heard the ringing. "Old Alder, the steeplekeeper of St. Mary's, came into the schoolroom in a temper as we were ringing, and began blustering out about change-ringing—damn it—'taint no use to anyone—not knowing the clergy were there, for which he apologised and kept quiet."

In April, 1882, he walked from Reading to Wokingham, starting at 2.20 and arrived at 4.20. Had a ride along the road in a trap and found the driver to be a ringer of Appleton. A funeral was proceeding when I reached the church, the remains being that of a young man who was highly respected, by the quantity of flowers sent to be placed on the grave. The Revd. F. H. Brown, Rector, read the service and I had a chat with him and the Sexton, Blake. Went in the tower and had a look round."

A VISIT TO OXFORD

About this time to took out an office friend named Silver on his many walks and on Saturday, April 8th, says: "Got up at 8, Silver, from the office, called, and we started to walk to Oxford at 8.30 a.m. Our first stop was Wallingford, where we had a light lunch and started out again at 1.30, my companion complaining of his feet slightly. At 2 o'clock he changed his socks, his feet being blistered and we continued walking till the 20th mile was passed, but we had to stop again, his feet being very painful, the back of his boot rubbing his heel and making it red and sore. I gave him some wadding to pad the shoe with, and we again proceeded—my feet in good condition—at 2.50. I made a spurt at the 22nd mile and continued on to Nuneham, leaving Silver some way behind. He found his way into the village pub where I had rested, not before putting away a glass of milk and having one in readiness for him. Once more we made a start and reached Magdalen Tower, Oxford, at 5 o'clock."

"Hearing a bell tolling, I made my way up the tower after many enquiries and going through various courts, etc. Saw the Steeplekeeper and Sexton, who gave me Mr. C. Hounslow's address, he being a relation. Called at No. 2, Ilfrey Road and saw Mrs. Hounslow, who made us welcome, and after tea took us to the Ringers' Meeting Room after taking us round the town, into the Market place, and about the Colleges, just as if we had not had enough walking already. Stayed in the rooms until 9.30 ringing handbells with S. Hounslow, Smith, Bastow, Thomas and others. Mrs. Hounslow made arrangements for us to sleep at a friend's next door to a public house by the name of "The Cape of Good Hope," and no sailor shipwrecked ever longed to see that outlandish part of "America" more than I longed to lay in the bed that was shown to us at 11.30, and we slept soundly till 9 the next morning: my friend passed a restless night."

HIS FIRST PEAL

Next day—Sunday—he rang at Holywell both morning and evening, at the latter a 720 Treble Bob. A peal was fixed up for Magdalen next day, but news came that a peal of Grandsire Triples was also on at Bicester, so we decided to go there. The party met at 11 a.m., the Rector and local ringers from there took them to the Red Lion for refreshments. They started for the peal at noon, but failed after 25 minutes—started again and concluded the 5.040 at 3.43 p.m. Mr. Fussell says: "The ringing was well struck and we received the congratulations of all around. I felt delighted, it being my first peal. We again adjourned to the Red Lion, the Rector had kindly provided dinner there for us. Fields and others—all good ringers from Oxford—had arrived and sat down to dinner with us. At 6 o'clock went again to the tower for an hour and rang a date touch (1882)."

A REDUNDANT BELL MADE INTO TWO TREBLES

In the heart of Northampton stood a church for 111 years, dedicated to St. Katherine. During recent weeks it has fallen under the hammer of the demolition squad—a regrettable step in the eyes of many people with the crying need in this ever-expanding town for a large hall in the centre for religious meetings, a use to which it could have served a fine purpose.

St. Katherine's had but one bell in its strange-looking steeple of three sections—a short broach tower surmounted with an octagonal bell-chamber and a short spire built at the south-west corner of the church erected in 1839, which date was to be seen on the bell.

For a single bell, it was somewhat unusually large although not so heavy as many were led to believe. Its diameter across the lip was 43½ inches, and for years was rumoured at weights varying from 15 to 17 cwt. Its strike note was F, and little difference could be told between it and the seventh of the nearby church of All Saints should the two be heard sounding together—except that St. Katherine's gave out a rather dull note, accounted for by its shortness in the waist and rather flat crown—typical of most of the early Taylor bells. Since taken down, it has been found to weigh between 12 and 13 cwt.

It was one of the last bells cast at Oxford by the brothers John and William Taylor, the sons of Robert, most of whose bells are also cast on this pattern—all six at Rushden, and the tenor at Great Houghton, for example. Cast at the same time as St. Katherine's bell was the tenor of Grafton Regis, dated 1839, which weighs 9 cwt. 2 lb., and also rumoured for years to be heavier.

In 1840 John Taylor moved to Loughborough. William following in 1843. During those three years not all the records of the bells cast at Oxford by William were kept, and a few years ago the writer was able to assist the Loughborough firm in establishing that one of William's last castings at Oxford, of which they had no record, was a bell at St. Andrew's, Northampton, dated 1842. Like St. Katherine's, this is another short-waisted, dull-toned bell, but much lighter—only 4½ cwt.

The St. Katherine's bell has now been recast into two new trebles to add to the fine six at Weedon. Northants: any surplus metal is to go towards their cost of installation.

Centuries ago, Northampton had several churches like St. Katherine's, which were destroyed. There was a St. Mary's in the vicinity of St. Peter's (the famous Norman church) with a St. Gregory's close by. A St. Michael's stood in what is now Wood Street. On the south side of the town stood a St. Leonard's, from which St. Leonard's Road, Far Cotton, takes its name. This church stood on the site of the present Pomfret Arms, where traces of the old stonework have recently been seen. There was once another St. Edmund's Church on a site a quarter of a mile from the present one. St. Bartholomew's once stood at the north end of the town in what is known as Kingsthorpe Hollow.

Most of these churches disappeared about the Cromwellian period. They were built in the Crusade period by Simon de Senliz, the famous Crusader, who built the round church of St. Sepulchre. Some were actually chapels of ease!

SHEFFIELD & DISTRICT SOCIETY

The final meeting of the year took place at Rawmarsh on December 6th and was very well attended by members from the surrounding districts including Mr. J. Rock, of Hereford. The ringing was of a high standard throughout the day and ranged from rounds to London and Bristol Surprise Major. A touch of Spiced Surprise in three methods was also successfully brought round. Tea was served in the Church Hall and, at the business meeting which followed, the chairman was the president, Mr. H. O. Chaddock.

'THE BOY WHO LEFT MARCHINGTON'

In connection with the peal of Stedman Doubles rung at St. Peter's, Marchington, on December 9th, it was the first in that method on the bells; and it was rung as a compliment to 'the boy who left Marchington for Australia, 74 years ago,' William John Stretton, and his two former playmates, Mrs. Whyman and Mr. Slater, both 86 years of age.

After the peal, the ringers were entertained to tea by Mrs. Whyman and were joined by Major Alan Bishop Stretton, son of the late William John Stretton, who is attached to the Australian Army, and who came from Melbourne early this summer, visited Marchington to see where his father was born and to make some enquiries into his ancestry. His father was born at the Dog and Partridge. Major Stretton came up from Cheam, Surrey, for the peal. The Vicar (the Rev. Oswald G. Ede) also joined the gathering. Owing to the inclement weather Mr. Slater was not able to be present; neither was Mr. George Wainwright, the leader of St. Peter's ringers, owing to pressure of business.

After tea the Vicar, in moving the toast to 'The boy who left Marchington 74 years ago' and his two former playmates, said it was thoughtful of the ringers to ring the peal as a compliment; it forged another link between Australia and the Mother Country.

Major Stretton proposed the toast to the ringers, and thanked them for the compliment and said it would be greatly appreciated by the family in Australia. Mr. Barnabas Key, who conducted the peal, responded for the ringers and Mr. Frank Stenson for Mrs. Whyman, Mr. Slater and the late 'William John Stretton.'

Repeat seven times, omitting the second single (plain lead instead) in all but 1st and 5th parts.

Contains the extent of the 468's, all at back-stroke, 80 per cent. of the 678's and 60 per cent. of the 748's.

This eight-part plan cannot be used for a peal, as there would be an odd number of sixes in each part.

GRANDSIRE TRIPLES AN INTERESTING QUERY

A West-Country ringer, anxious to call his first peal of Grandsire Triples, asks for a 6, 10 or 12 part peal, conducted from the fifth, and having all the parts of the same regular callings and, if possible, bringing the sixth and seventh together at all part ends.

We submitted the letter to Mr. Brian D. Price, who replied:—

Your letter set a very interesting problem I found that it is impossible to get the part ends you wanted in Parker's peal; I also found a very curious thing—that the regular calling of the peal is reversible (a very unusual thing in Grandsire) but that the singled-in bob block cannot then be incorporated. It it could, there would be a reverse variation with the desired part ends. However, I set to work and produced the enclosed peal which, though it has 60 more calls, has the desired properties. It is a distinct peal and cannot be regarded as a variation of Parker's peal.
