The party cycled through appalling weather on the Sunday, ringing at Upton-upon-Severn (8), Leigh (8) and finally at Cirencester (12). The climb over Birdlip was awful! The country selected on Monday was some of the worst possible to ride in, and one young lady had a fall. The steel bells at Chalford (6) were not the discordant products anticipated. Then came the wind—a howling, shrieking gale and for 30 miles the party battled against it. Bedminster St. Thomas (8) was reached in the last stages of exhaustion. The party were, however, sufficiently recovered to 'gate-crash' the practice at St. Stephen's (10).

Tuesday was spent among weighty bells, ringing taking place at Easton-in-Gordano (22 cwt.), Wraxall (24 cwt.), Yatton (22 cwt.), Congresbury (35 cwt.) and Wrington (37 cwt.). In the last-named tower an attempt was made to kill the Master with an extremely fast yet well-struck course of Yorkshire Major. In the evening the tower-grabbing enthusiasts rang at Uphill and Weston-super-Mare.

Striking did justice to the wonderful six at Axbridge on Wednesday. The day developed into one of tug, grunt and sweat for the Ramblers rang at Cheddar, with its swaying tower, and Glastonbury, with all the faults of Cheddar plus a 70 foot draught of rope. The 'go' at Butleigh left much to be desired and the day ended at Street.

LADY ON SHERBORNE TENOR

'You are not in the North of England now,' was the greeting the party received the next day at Huish Episcopi. Later came Yeovil and Sherborne, two grand rings. At the latter tower Margaret A. Swann rang the tenor. Then over the stiff hill range to the Youth Hostel at Bratcombe — in the evening only three had sufficient energy to visit Sydling St. Nicholas (5).

Only 30 minutes were allowed the next day at Dorchester (8). There was more hill-climbing to Abbotsbury (6) and Litton Cheney (8) and the party were very thankful for the flat run to Burton Bradstock (6). Here the sallies were so low that the ringers were obliged to ring on their knees. The last tower of the day was Symondsbury (6).

Whitchurch Canonicorum (8) was the first tower visited on the Saturday and the depth of tone was much admired. Only five of the party visited Musbury (6), but after refreshment at the local, and refueling to two of the members a fast pace was maintained to Broadclyst (8). In the tower was a photograph of that bell of bells, Kolokol. What a tenor it would make! Alphington rounded off an enjoyable day.

SUNDAY'S CIDER

Sunday found us ringing at St. Mark's, Exeter, for Matins and we were intrigued by the call change ringing of the local band. At Silverton, local ringers joined in a touch, and at Cadeleigh a farmer, after showing us how to ring call changes, invited us to his farm to see where cider was made! The result was that we arrived late at Tiverton. Ringing at Brampton, the last tower of the day, was not up to the standard we should like.

By 10.30 a.m. on Monday we were ringing at Chipstable, a good light six, and at Milverton we met the Ringing Master of Rochester Cathedral, who was with us for the rest of the day. Other towers on the programme were Trull (6), Bishop's Lydeard (an eight famous for the antics of its bells, and Stogumber (6).

Spraxton (6) and Cannington were visited the next day and then to Bridgwater (much enjoyed) and Wedmore. A vast belfry and a cracked fifth were the only impressions of Wells St. Cuthbert. Some high-epeed ringing at Dinder (6) officially finished the day but tower-grabbers snatched Croscombe.

TWO VISITED HOSPITAL

On Wednesday the very fine eight at Chewton Mendip were visited, after which Radstock sounded rather feeble in comparison. Wellow bells were enjoyed and the cleanness of the belfry commented upon. Bath St. Michael brought to an end the official programme but some of the party rang at Wells Cathedral and others at Bathwick, and two members visited Bath Hospital.

Thursday was to be a long day's ride, starting at Chippenham. With the exception of two hardy members, the journey to Swindon (10) was made by train. Faringdon (8), Whitney (8) and, finally, Charlbury (6) rounded off the day.

A highlight of the visit to Chipping Norton was to hear a little girl play the organ beautifully. The tenor at Shipston-on-Stour, reminiscent of a dustbin, must be heard to be appreciated. Tredington bells (6) were rung, thanks to the kindness of the Rector, for the tower was not officially on the list. Sherborne, Glos (6), finished the day.

Saturday began at Alcester (8), a light ring with the names of the bells inscribed behind each rope. At Bromsgrove (10) we made a lucky grab when we were allowed to pull up the bells for a visiting band. This was a much-appreciated gesture after first being refused the bells. At Belbroughton (6) we were warmly greeted by the local band. Only seven bells could be rung at Lye as the wheel of the fifth was broken. Clent St. Leonard (8) finished the day. Some visited St. Martin's, Birmingham, on Sunday morning.

METHODS RUNG

Cinques.—Stedman.

Royal.—Cambridge, Kent and Plain.

Caters.—Stedman and Grandsire.

Major.—Bristol, London, Yorkshire, Superlative, Rutland and Cambridge, Braunstone, Southwell, New Cambridge, Watford and Lincolnshire Surprise, Kent, Plain, Double Norwich, Original and Little Bob Major.

Triples.—Stedman and Grandsire.

Minor.—London, Wells, York, Durham, Cambridge, Bourne, Norwich, Oswald, Kirkstall, Kent and Oxford, Plain, Little, Single Court, Double Court, St Clement's, Double Oxford and Original.

Doubles.— Grandsire and Stedman.

At a business meeting John E. Cook was elected Master, and Denis Mottershead and Geoffrey R. Parker Deputy Masters. Next year's tour will be in Norfolk and Suffolk. A reunion is to be held in Leicester at a date to be decided by the Master. It was also decided that a new method be rung each day while on tour.

A BANK HOLIDAY MYSTERY TOUR IN HEREFORDSHIRE

AT 11 a.m. on August Monday, a trio of cars assembled at Worcester, their occupants having arranged only the previous evening to go 'tower-hunting' with little idea where the hunting ground was likely to be. Two of the more 'ancient faithfuls' led off due west, leaving a fast 'A 40' to cover up behind.

The first arrivals at Bredenbury Church, having sought permission and key, reappeared just in time to witness the arrival of a bewildered 'A 40'—'also ran'! despite having given his passengers a taste of what he called speed. On the handy light six of 8¼ cwt. an extent of Grandsire Doubles was followed by a touch of Single Oxford, in which 'A 40,' now quite prominent round the back, received a demonstration of what speed really was.

Journeying again westwards the pretty village of Eardisland provided a pleasant setting for lunch. Observing a procession of cars adorned with white ribbon, a small delegation went off to renew acquaintance with the local captain and convince him that a wedding provided every reason for having a ring. The matrimonial ceremony completed, two of the 'hunters' rang their first courses of Grandsire Triples, local ringers adding comfortable support. Of the Bob Major and concluding Stedman on this lovely eight, one would say, 'It was nice while it lasted.'

After a game of 'hide and seek' between the cars, the tall steeple of Weobley was spotted. The early stages of the rise on this heavy six produced such queer happenings it had one wag asking if George's bell had only half a clapper in it. As the bells rose higher it suddenly dawned on the company that they were muffled and it was with some trepidation that the ropes were manned for Grandsire Doubles, succeeded by a stately touch of Bob Minor. At this stage a resident ringer appeared and quickly put one and all at ease by explaining that though the muffles had been on a fortnight, there had, in fact, been a funeral that day. A decent fall was neatly finished off with the best 'catch 'um rounds' of the day.

A suggestion about tea led to the discovery round the corner of a teashop called 'A Drop in the Bucket'—an ominous title for the corpulent one who, nevertheless, finished up with a huge tray of cakes near his elbow.

With cars now in tight formation for an intricate 'homing' course, the leader was seen to speed over a road junction oblivious of its existence. Arriving safely at Homer, the light six of some 9 cwt. were soon turning out Double Oxford which collapsed when the treble stopped for a gossip on her way to the front. The most peculiar ring of the day was at Stoke Lacy, where some of its six bells seemed to run off independently into different keys. If the instigator of a touch of Grandsire Minor was hoping to conjure some music out of them he must have been sadly disappointed. However, a measure of satisfaction was felt by one who endures recurrent comments on the musical qualities of his own local eight and now considers he has a veritable 'Chewton Mendip' by comparison. Winding up the proceedings with the call 'Catch 'um in Queen's' on this, of all rings, there came the question, 'And how?'

Having had a wonderful day, thanks to the clergy and local ringers, each car made its separate way homewards to drop passengers in districts around Gloucester, Tewkesbury and Worcester. I. G.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

BROADCASTING CO-OPERATION WANTED

Dear Sir,—At the last meeting of the Central Council, held at Newcastle, it was decided, as your readers are aware, to elect a new committee to deal with broadcasting and television.

If, as is the case in the West, a good relationship existed between the ringing fraternity and the B.B.C., the work of this committee would be able to be done smoothly and well. Unfortunately, this is not so, and whilst every effort is being made to put this right, we have in the meantime to rely on knowledge which comes to us from ringing sources to implement our work for the Council.

The purpose of this letter is to bring these facts to the notice of all ringers, and in particular to the general secretaries of all associations. On behalf of the committee I would ask that anything in the nature of broadcasting or television which is arranged should have details sent to the general secretary of the association concerned, so that they may in turn inform the member of the committee in their region, or me, the undersigned.

The committee at present comprises Mr. A. A. Hughes, 34, Whitechapel Road, London, E.1; Mr. J. T. Dunwoody, 11, Church Avenue, Holywood, Co. Down; Mr. G. E. Fearn, 92, Etwall Road, Hall Green, Birmingham 28, and

Yours very sincerely,

H. J. SANGER,
Convener of the Committee.

Evercreech, Shepton Mallet, Somerset.

A USE FOR OLD TYRES

Dear Sir,—A set of silencers made from an old car tyre has been in use for a year or two at St. Peter's, St. Albans, where they have been found very convenient for use in connection with dumb practice, raising and lowering quietly (when necessary), demonstration purposes, etc.

For small bells, a motor-cycle tyre is best, a piece cut off slightly less than the diameter of the clapper, with a square hole cut in the tread, through which the flight has to be forced, the walls of the tyre can then be used to silence the bell. One twist of the 'silencer' and the bell is open again. Several peals have been rung on our bells with the silencers in the 'open' position, without mishap, and even the muffles were put on without removal of the silencers!

If the silencers are put into action before lowering the bells, there will obviously be no need for the instructor to climb to the bell chamber twice on learners' night messing about in the pits with clapper-stays or ropes!—Yours faithfully,

H. V. FROST.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE PEAL

Dear Sir,—In browsing through back copies of 'The Ringing World,' I came across a peal claimed as the first by members of one college of a university. I refer to a peal of Double Norwich at Long Stanton on May 1st by members of Selwyn College of the University of Cambridge.

While admitting this may be the first of its type by the Cambridge University Guild, I must point out that a peal of Plain Bob Minor was rung at Great Glen, Leicestershire, by members of the University College of Leicester, all external students of the University of London.—Yours sincerely,

JOHN HILL.

Ewell, Surrey.

'RINGING WORLD' FINANCES

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. John Willis' letter, and with regard to an earlier one from Mr. Arthur V. Davis, to which he refers, so far as I am aware the question of a subsidy by Associations to this journal has not arisen. There certainly seems to be no reason for such a scheme to be turned down as impracticable.

However, as has been so often said, the ideal which is being aimed at is that the paper should be self-supporting, and the answer lies in more postal subscribers. 'The Ringing World' is by no means the only specialist publication which is faced with the alternatives of greater revenue or greater price; a photographic journal has only this week announced reluctantly that its price must be increased, and only a few months ago one of the foremost aeronautical journals made the same decision. I mention this in the hope that readers will understand that the present gap between revenue and expenditure is not, as has been hinted, due to incompetent management. In fact, I think it fair to say that if the work put into the paper were all paid for at its full value, this gap might well be doubled.

Another matter I would like to mention while writing is that it has sometimes been suggested to me that there would be more point in people becoming postal subscribers if the annual cost were less than that of obtaining the paper from a newsagent, with the addition of postage, instead of almost equal to that figure as at present. This is very true of course, but at the moment we just cannot afford such a concession; and in this we err in good company, because I find that, to quote two examples from papers which do not cater for the mass-market, both 'The Times' and 'The Church Times' charge their postal subscribers the full cost-plus-postage rate.

However, postal subscribers to 'The Ringing World' are fortunate this year, because there are 53 Fridays in 1954, and they will thus receive one issue gratis!—Yours faithfully,

E. A. BARNETT.

Crayford.

IN ZUMMERZET

Dear Sir,—May I correct a statement in an article in the current issue of 'The Ringing World,' headed 'Dree Days in Zummerzet,' which said, 'Mr. Farrant must have forgotten they were coming, so they had to fetch the keys before they could start.'

In fact, I had not been told they were coming that day. Had I known arrangements would have been made for someone to meet them. I was pleased to read they had some good ringing here.—Yours faithfully,

F. FARRANT.

Martock, Somerset.

WINCHESTER SURPRISE ROYAL

Sir,—With reference to the Winchester Surprise Royal, may I be allowed to point out, what doubtless the composer knows, that if the 2-6 places—necessary in the Major, but quite unnecessary in the Royal—are cut out and a four-pull dodge substituted, a clear proof scale results, and any composition of New Cambridge or Yorkshire Surprise Royal will go.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES J. SEDGLEY.

Ipswich.

THE LEGEND OF CORNHILL

Dear Sir,—If Mr. Symonds can refer to my book, 'Legends o' the Bells,' page 23, he will see there I repeat the legend as given by Stow and also give a very excellent photo of Cornhill tower by the late Mr. Francis E. Dawe.—Yours, etc.,

ERNEST MORRIS.

Leicester.

WEDDING BELLS AT LUNDY

Dear Sir,—According to 'The Times' on August 9th, the church bells on Lundy Island were rung for the first time in 28 years for the wedding of Mr. Donald Mayes, a commercial pilot, to Miss Eva Zoref, a sister-tutor at a London nursing college.

It would be interesting to know what condition the bells of Lundy are in now, and whether the peal rung on the bells by the Rev. F. E. Robinson was the only one (see 'Among the Bells' by F. E. R.).—Yours sincerely,

PATRICK CHAPMAN.

Kettering.

[Note.—The last information we had of the bells about two years ago was that they were unringable. two bells were off their headstocks, the wheels collapsed, the bearings rusted solid and some of the clappers were broken. Has any reader information concerning their restoration?—Ed.]

A HOSTILE LAND

Sir,—The anonymous writer about peal ringing in Cornwall is very wrong in saying that Cornwall is a hostile land. During August we are welcoming visitors to our land, our homes, our roads, our churches and our towers.

The Truro Diocesan Guild is one of the largest affiliated to the Central Council, but its members consist not only of half-pull ringers, but also of those who only ring call-changes.

Permission is rarely refused for visiting bands to ring in our towers, even in the Cathedral. Individual visiting ringers will get a far better welcome in Cornish belfries than they sometimes get in towers which practise very advanced methods. And to read in 'The Ringing World' that Cornwall is a hostile land is not likely to increase the circulation of the paper in this county.—Yours faithfully,

W. H. R. TREWHELLA,
Secretary of the Truro Diocesan Guild.

A WEEK AMONG SUFFOLK BELLS

Daventry Ringers' Experiences

FIFTEEN ringers from the Daventry district enjoyed a pleasant journey through Bedfordshire and Cambridge on July 24th for a ringing tour of Suffolk, pausing at Newmarket for lunch. The bells of Stowmarket (Double Norwich) and Barking (Cambridge Minor) provided a promising prelude before reaching the week's headquarters at Ipswich. Acquaintance was renewed with John Wiseman (who spent part of last year amongst us) and he introduced us to the practice at St. Margaret's Church. Superlative was elusive and this was attributed by the 'locals' to our failure to heed their advice to 'push 'em along'!

The Sabbath saw the entire contingent at Corporate Communion in the nearby St. Matthew's; during this inspiring family service the Vicar, the Rev. Brindly Jones, extended both welcome and blessing, a moving gesture. The belfry here carries the exhortation 'Let all things be done decently and in order,' and this was essayed both before Eucharist and for Matins, Cambridge Minor being satisfactory. It held no brief for the clerk of the weather, who taunted us with a deluge which forced the organiser to borrow an umbrella in order to obtain transport for the marooned party's trip to Felixstowe. Back in Ipswich for the impressive Evensong at St. Mary-le-Tower, Ernest excelled in a course of Cambridge Royal before leading his unofficial choir at the rear of the nave.

Monday's radiant hues tempted five (fool) hardy members to the swimming baths at 7 a.m., where the G.O.M. showed a fine disregard for Stedman's principle by entering the cold shower very slowly and out exceptionally quickly in an ungainly dive along the wet floor. This indifferent start was continued at Tuddenham, where the state of the ropes caused the only 'blank' of the week; also at Helmingham, when Gordon tried to dive through the trap door and the others mistook the numerous wall texts for diagrams of new methods. Maybe it was the influence of the nearby manor-house, the Elizabethan home of Lord Tollemache (surrounded by a moat with drawbridge still raised nightly), from whom a popular brand of Suffolk beer derives its name!

The lych-gate at Framsden invited us to 'enter into His gates with thanksgiving,' and a musical touch of Duffield supplied the response. The old-style Bridge House put us in the right frame of mind to do justice to the grand eight at Debenham, the rise and fall being in keeping with a worthy touch of Stedman. Several of the youngsters made their introduction to 'ten' at Stonham Aspal, and by restricting the choice of method satisfied the 'boss' with their efforts. The light eight at Henley increased the tempo and furnished an opportunity to try several new diagrams. The evening passed in leisurely contrast on the heavy six at St. Clement's, Ipswich, an appropriate tower for Ipswich Surprise Minor, and a bird's-eye view of the town with running commentary by Fred Bowell.

BROKE 'ONE OF DAD'S STAYS'

A hearty welcome to Rushmere on Tuesday morning by the Vicar and Mr. Wiseman sen. did not spell success for London Minor, but Oxford Treble Bob made amends before going on to picturesque Grundisburgh. The glorious double hammer-beam roof and a fine rehung ten inspired one of the 'terrible twins' to break his rope. This, in turn, ruined both his and the 'gaffer's' shirt and, while repairs were being effected, caused a youngster to pop his head over the school wall and 'pipe' an accusation at the tourists of 'breaking one of my dad's stays'! Little did the peal ringers of the previous evening realise that 5,039 Grandsire Caters had only 14 blows to spare until the event was recalled later at St. Mary-le-Tower.

A visit to the round tower (in typical Suffolk flint) at Hasketon formed an appetiser for a delicious lunch at the Bull Hotel, Woodbridge; subtle planning by the organiser to extract the best out of the majestic octave dedicated to St. Mary-the-Virgin, where Doug made the tenor literally hum! By way of contrast the light eight at Ufford did not produce ringing of a high standard and E. G. O. would probably have committed the offenders to the stocks, which still survive outside the church, had he not been so engrossed in the amazing bench-ends and the lofty font-cover. Bredfield St. Andrew fostered a new method in 'Brentford,' but the ringing seemed to be assuming a tired nature rather earlier in the week than expected. The practice at St. Mary-le-Tower was extended for our benefit by the kindness of Messrs. G. E. Symonds and C. J. Sedgley, and provided an opportunity to improve on Sunday's baptism on 'twelve.' With the help of three 'locals' we rang a fair course of Grandsire Cinques.

Wednesday's light programme started with a fine eight at Leiston, but the main interest centred in the spider-web roof arch over the crossing and this is, undoubtedly, a gem of the carpenter's craft. Aldeburgh produced the first course of 'Childwall' and spelled success for London Minor, Here, too, Ron Pocklington formed a welcome addition to the party and he made a clean start by leading Charlie into the North Sea. The bells of Hollesley need handling, but the other 'terrible twin,' uplifted by a cheerful letter from home, succeeded in calling round his composition of Bob Major, which had eluded him all the week. By way of celebration afterwards, he and 'the little noise' organised a 'young versus old' darts match at the local hostelry, where the 'different style of bellringing' seemed to have pleased the inhabitants (and the different style of dart playing brought success to the young 'uns).

EAST BERGHOLT

David Heighton came over from Norwich to join the party for Thursday's route, which started at Holbrook, Cambridge and Spliced Kent and Oxford being worthy of this good-going six. Curiosity took the contingent to East Bergholt to ply the Vicar, the Rev. G. W. J. Oram, with questions, and to pose in front of the quaint edifice for a photograph by an obliging passer-by. Stratford St. Mary just failed to produce Annable's London on the heavy six, but compensation came in the form of a memorable lunch at the Sun Hotel in nearby Dedham. Again the meal provided a stimulus for London at the little church of Langham, where we were welcomed by a Vicar who is justly proud of his Cathedral-like service sheet; we trust that he was not dismayed by our rendering of Crayford Little Bob!

Stoke-by-Nayland boasts a 'beautiful but large church'; what an anticlimax was its six bells, not in correct rotation and too unwieldy to attempt anything beyond Plain Bob or Kent. The last port of call in a busy day was Bures, where the belfry of St. Mary's is evidence of the labour of love bestowed on it by the Master and his family. The bells are good if handled expertly; we fear we did not do them justice even when the 'boss' donned his spurs for Stedman. Returning home, the 'terrible twins' found a skeleton reposing in their bed (a former occupant of room 12A, according to the legend attached) and we 'rejoyce' to learn that they did not resort to violence with their rubber hammer! Full marks to the boys for transferring the old lady so carefully to 'the prof's' bed. The evening was given over to lighter vein at Speedway or Hippodrome; there was, however, a feeling that one member had absconded in pursuit of secondhand bells!

The party was strengthened on Friday by the addition of John Wiseman for the trip to Sudbury. Both churches (St. Gregory's and All Saints'), where ringing is possible, were visited, Double Norwich being achieved at the first call and Cambridge at the other. A first-class meal at the Four Swans Hotel induced the right frame of mind for Long Melford, a magnificent church in a glorious setting; in fact, a Chipping Camden in flint. Possessing a fine octave, worthy of a famous name which adorns so many peal tablets in the belfry, it almost seemed that the ringing here was dedicated to N. J. Pitstow.

FAREWELL PRESENTATION

Another grand edifice, overshadowed only by the massive tower, which contains a good octave, is Lavenham; that it did not produce the best of striking must have been due to tiredness, which even the inciting of the 'boss' could not dispel. The last call of the day, Monks Eleigh, provided a Waterloo for a Nobby divested of his harness, and his failure to tantalise another tenor repelled the youngsters and left the old campaigners to maintain our reputation.

Our final evening found everyone assembled to enable John (the barman 'in a loose sort of way') to present a cigarette case to Ernest G. Orland as a slight token of our appreciation of his superb organisation. The opportunity was taken to drink a toast also to our hostess, Mrs. Meyer (and to her family), for their homely accommodation at St. George's Hotel.

Saturday's return was punctuated by a call at the Cathedral of Bury St. Edmunds for a ring in the detached Norman tower on what the peal boards describe as 'these harmonious bells.' We have no desire to dispute this assertion and hope that our efforts on ten were in keeping with their traditions. A halt was also taken at Eaton Socon to enjoy the delightful light eight which, among other things, produced a memorable fall terminating in Queen's (to Doug's entire satisfaction). This formed a fitting finale to a ringers' tour which is made possible only by the courtesy of the incumbents concerned, and we take this opportunity of expressing our thanks (as also to the ringers who prepared the freedom of their belfries for us) and of assuring them that we were ever mindful of the purpose for which their bells are installed.

A SHROPSHIRE RINGING TOUR

A Successful Week Amongst Grand Scenery and Interesting Churches

FOR the fifth successive year the 'Cannon-Sone' party of tourists visited a new county for their annual tour. This year the venue was Shropshire, and accommodation was booked at Church Stretton by Mr. F. Hector Bennett, of Shrewsbury. Our party consisted of 14 ringers plus Mrs. Sone, and transport consisted of four private cars and Benny's motor-cycle (when required).

Church Stretton is the recognised centre of the glorious hill region of South Shropshire, and the scenery provided can hold its own with both Yorkshire and Cornwall. And, of course, the county has the added advantage that it is not as well known as many counties and, therefore, less crowded.

From a ringing point of view the county is an ideal one for a comfortable peal tour, and there are numerous rings of six off the beaten track to satisfy those seeking the unusual in a fresh tower.

Most of our party met at Church Stretton on Saturday, August 7th, and seven of us commenced the week with a visit to Hope Bowdler (6, 9¼ cwt.), where we rang London and Cambridge. Sunday, August 8th arrived with the usual showers but cleared up sufficiently to allow us to walk to Church Stretton (8, 11 cwt.) and ring Cambridge and Stedman. As usual, we stayed for service and four of us, Messrs. Champion, Mchew, Morant and the writer, were invited to pjoin the choir.

In the afternoon we visited Clunbury (6, 10¼ cwt.), where we were welcomed by the Vicar, the Rev. B. T. Herbert, and Mr. E. H. Meredith, the local captain. The tenor is an interesting bell of good tone cast by William Clibury, of Wellington, in 1620, and cost £7 2s. 9d.! Continuing our journey we arrived at Clun (8, 13¾ cwt.), a very large, low tower. We rang Bristol and Superlative and admired the fine interior of the church. For evensong we were privileged to visit the magnificent church of Ludlow (8, 22¼ cwt.) and were met by Mr. T. Nash. The bells are hung very high in the central tower and consequently there is considerable movement when ringing. However, we commenced with a good course of Yorkshire, rung at a steady rhythm, followed by Stedman and Double Norwich. Ludlow is a very quaint town, with many fine timbered houses.

TWO PEALS ON MONDAY

Our first peal tower was an excellent one, Much Wenlock (8, 16 cwt.), Mr. Arthur Pritchard, Master of the Shropshire Association, met us here and we were delighted to have him with us for the rest of the week, not only for his ability as a ringer, but for his unrivalled knowledge of his home county, and good company.

The bells are a really good ring, an old six of Rudhall's, 1729, with trebles added by Taylors in 1931. The ringing chamber is comfortable and we rang a good (and fast) peal of Yorkshire with hardly any errors. Those not ringing visited Morville (6, 9 cwt.), where the bells are to be rehung in the future, and not before it's needed!

After lunch a short ride brought us to Coalbrookdale (10, 18¾ cwt.), well known to many ringers, and we rang a reasonable peal of Bob Royal in memory of Walter Lago, a member of the local band for 50 years, who was buried at another church that day. Mr. A. S. Bayley met us after the peal and welcomed us to the district. On our way home we rang at Broseley (8, 13 cwt.), the tall tower causing movement. However, we rang our first course of London of the tour.

THE HEAVIEST SIX IN SHROPSHIRE

The chance of a peal at Clive (6, 25 cwt.), on Tuesday, August 10th, enabled the writer to add another 'heaviest six in the county' to his present list of eleven. The bells were cast in 1894 by Taylors, and hang under an imposing spire, which, being on a hill, is a clear landmark. They are a good ring but sound better outside the tower. A good peal was rung in eight methods in the fast time (for these bells) of 3 hours and 12 minutes.

The remainder of our party visited Moreton-Corbet (6, 9¼ cwt.) with its deserted mansion, and Stanton-on-Hine-Heath (6, 8 cwt.).

After a good lunch at Wem (8, 13 cwt.) a band started for Cambridge but unfortunately only rang for 1 hour and 40 minutes. Others visited Prees (6, 12 cwt.) and were very pleased to meet Mr. E. V. Rodenhurst (of 17,280 Treble Bob fame). We rang London, Cambridge and Double Oxford, and Mr. Rodenhurst recommended us to visit Ightfield (6, 11¼ cwt.). Permission was kindly granted at short notice and we enjoyed Cambridge on a fine ring. Returning home via Shrewsbury, we visited St. Michael's (6, 7 cwt.); the bells hang in a very unusual tower, with two storeys of different size. The 'go' of the bells made them require careful handling, and one of them was reputed to have a 'square' wheel!

SCENIC TOUR INTO WALES

As a change from peal ringing, Wednesday, August 11th, was chosen for a whole day's tower hunting in lovely scenery. We were very pleased to have Mr. W. A. Farmer, of Shrewsbury, with us all day, and his car was very useful as Tom Sone and his wife took the opportunity of visiting Llandudno.

Our first call was at Lydbury North (6, 9 cwt.); the bells are in a large Norman tower recently restored. If the ropes had been adjusted it would have been possible to ring here at about 2 hours and 15 minutes speed! Next came Bishop's Castle (6, 9 cwt.), a good ring rung from the ground floor.

For most of our party the next tower, Montgomery (6, 12 cwt.), was their first ring in Wales, and the Rev. C. L. Jones, Rector and the captain of the ringers, came into the belfry and gave us a very hearty welcome to the tower. We crossed back into Shropshire again for a ring at Chirbury (6, 13 cwt.), but had to content ourselves with Doubles as the third clapper broke during our rise in peal!

After a good lunch we were in Wales again with a visit to Forden (6, 10 cwt.), a musical ring, and Leighton (6, 11¼ cwt.), a fine-sounding ring by Taylors, 1852. The Rev. S. M. Atherley, Vicar, met us here and we admired the splendid modern church standing on high ground, with a spire.

Our only eight-bell tower of the day was Welshpool (8, 13 cwt.), where we were met by Mr. Griffiths, the local captain. In 1914 Mr Griffiths took part in a peal of Stedman Triples at Welshpool, conducted by William Short. Until our visit he had not rung a touch of Stedman since the peal, but he enjoyed a touch with us without a mistake. We also rang a course of Spliced Surprise in three methods, probably the first in the county. At Westbury (6, 7 cwt.), the Vicar the Rev. A. G. Durston) welcomed us, as did the Rev. Canon R. Clayton at Pontesbury (6, 12 cwt.). Somebody shifted the tenor box to the fifth position with the amusing result that some of us pulled off in the order 6, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, much to the delight of those watching!!

After a high tea, close to the River Severn at Shrewsbury we visited St. Chad's (12, 39¼ cwt.), whose bells must surely rank as one of the finest twelves in the country. The circle and draught are ideal, and we enjoyed Bob Royal, Grandsire and Stedman Caters and a good course of Cambridge Royal with rounds on the twelve. Several members of the local band joined us, as it was their practice night, and we appreciated the opportunity of ringing on such a grand ring.

THREE PEALS IN A DAY

For Thursday, August 12th, the morning attempt was at Cheswardine (8, 8¾ cwt.). The bells are a merry ring, rung from the ground floor with a long draught, and our Cambridge was the first Surprise on the bells. Those not standing in the attempt had the opportunity of ringing seven Minor methods at Moreton-Corbet (6, 9¼ cwt.), thanks to Arthur Pritchard, who got permission for the attempt in he morning. A fast peal was rung in 2 hours and 23 minutes, and it was stated to be the fastest for the Association.

The bells of Market Drayton (8, 17¼ cwt.) are well known to many ringers, as the local band is one of the best in the Midlands, ringing Surprise for service. They are a fine Taylor ring and can be heard very clearly in the ringing chamber. A good peal of Braunstone Surprise was rung, the first in the county, and Arthur Pritchard rang the tenor like clockwork. Those not ringing were joined by Messrs. A. Hickman and S. Hughes, of Market Drayton, and Mr. W. Harrison, of Norton-in-Hales (8, 14 cwt.), where the ringing chamber is one of the smallest for eight bells in the country.

As a contrast, in the evening the whole party had the pleasure of ringing on the splendid ring at Hodnet (8, 12 cwt.) and again meeting Mr. E. V. Rodenhurst. We rang Superlative and Oxford Treble Bob, and the writer was very pleased to notice on one of the peal boards the name of a former Vicar, the Rev. J. R. S. Taylor, now Bishop of Sodor and Man, and his old headmaster from 1926 to 1928.

FRIDAY THE 13th—SUCCESS AND A BROKEN ROPE

The combination of Friday falling on the 13th August caused murmurs amongst the superstitious that there would be 'no peals today'!! However, we thought our luck was in during the morning as we scored a good peal of New Cambridge at Shifnal (8, 18¾ cwt.), another 'first in the county.' Some of the bells are rather odd-struck, and the third was reputed to require quite a lot of pulling. Sure enough during the opening touch for the non-pealers, its ringer had quite a lot of trouble with it! But during the peal Brian Bladen rang it perfectly and with no trips, though he did earn himself a blister!

Before starting the peal we looked at the grave of the famous Samuel Lawrence, who weighed 32 stone! The stone would require a good clean before the inscription could be read, and, going up the spiral staircase, we wondered how he reached the ringing chamber of the central tower!

Those not ringing in the peal visited Tong (6, 13 cwt.), with its Bourdon bell of 46 cwt., and Albrighton (6, 11 cwt.) and rang Cambridge, Kent and Spliced Minor in four methods.

The fears of the superstitious were confirmed in the afternoon, because after ringing 50 minutes on the splendid Gillett and Johnston ring at Claverley (8, 15¼ cwt.), Superlative was lost through a broken rope. This was a big disappointment to all as the ringing had been regarded as the best of the week. For the non-pealers the afternoon towers were Worfield (6, 15 cwt.), where several of the local band met us, and we inspected the weight hung under the spire. The bells are of good tone, all being cast by A. Rudhall in 1699. Then on to Stockton (6, 13 cwt.), where Mr. Dickinson met us and rang some Plain Bob on a fine six with a tenor in E. On the way home we rang at Bridgnorth, St. Mary's (8, 9 cwt.).

THE LAST DAY—AN INTERESTING TOUR

Saturday, August 14th, arrived all too quickly and before starting for 'Cannon's Doxology' at Church Stretton, we said 'Farewell and many thanks' to Arthur Pritchard, who had to leave us early to attend his Association meeting at Westbury. The five who were not ringing in the peal visited Willey (5, 5¼ cwt.) and succeeded in ringing a quarter peal of Doubles in 11 methods in the amazing time of 25 minutes! Those taking part were Jane Coates 1, Roland Morant 2, Colin Champion 3, Philip Mehew 4, Brian Bladen (conductor) 5, and this must surely rank as the fastest quarter peal ever rung! Any challengers?

After the morning peal Winnie Burton and Brian Warwick left for Leicester, and the remainder of us enjoyed a tour to seven interesting towers. We started at Condover (8, 13 cwt.), where the writer called a course of three Spliced Surprise to celebrate his 'Waterloo.' Next came Berrington (8, 13½ cwt.), where we rang London, and Mr. W. H. Lloyd, local captain, joined us in our only touch of Grandsire Triples of the week.

A five-bell tower had to be included, and Upton Magna (5, 9 cwt.) was chosen, as there is a fairly long draught and 1, 2 and 3 ropes are close together. An amusing time was had by all!

The roughest ring of the week was encountered at Wroxeter (6, 11 cwt.), not so much because of the 'go' of the bells, but because of a broken slider on the tenor and the very dark ringing chamber. At Uppington (6, 9½ cwt.) the Vicar met us and told us he had been there 25 years. Incidentally, at Upton Magna, dedicated to St. Lucia, the Rector (the Rev. A. H. Thursby-Pelham) has been there 50 years! Shropshire seems a delightful county for a quiet life as a country parson!

At Wrockwardine (6, 13 cwt.) Mr. Savage, local captain, met us and led the way up what must surely be one of the most tricky routes to a village ringing chamber in the country! The bells, in a central tower, are a fine six, rehung by Taylors in 1952, and Mr. Savage rang Cambridge with us, and we also rang Spliced Minor in five methods. The last tower of the day was Wellington (8, 16 cwt.), where a local ringer met us, and we rang London and Stedman.

THE WAY BACK

On Sunday morning, August 15th, we said 'Goodbye' to 'Benny,' and would add here that his help with meals, and suggestions for peal towers was much appreciated. The rest of the party were told by the writer that there was reputed to be a 'super' eight at Eardisland, Herefordshire (13 cwt.), so we decided to sample them. Members of the local band, Messrs. Leslie Evans (captain), E. P. Rock, J. D. Rock and F. R. Harris, welcomed us.

We continued our way home via Worcester, Pershore and Chipping Norton and decided to call at Charlbury (6, 14 cwt.) for a quick 'snatch.' Permission was readily granted, and we rang London and Cambridge on a fair six, with plenty of tower-sway. This was the writer's 1,823rd tower. It was also Brian Bladen's 500th. For Evensong we just reached Wokingham, All Saints' (8, 19½ cwt.) in time to join the local band in a touch of Stedman, and were shown the grave of the Rev. F. E. Robinson. A large and untidy bush unfortunately covers the view of the stone, but Mr. Wigmore promised to try and get this cut down.

Once again a very successful tour was concluded with eight peals out of ten attempts and visits to 46 towers. The writer would like to thank all those Vicars and local ringers who met our party and who kindly gave us permission to ring. Thank you, Shropshire, for a grand week! A. P. C.

OBITUARY

MR. HARVEY KYNASTON

It is with regret that we record the death after a short illness of Mr. Harvey Kynaston, of Oswestry, Shropshire, on August 12th. He was 62 years of age and had been a regular ringer for over 30 years, learning to ring with his two brothers when the band was revived after the first world war.

The funeral service took place at St. Oswald's Church on August 16th, conducted by the Rev. J. Walters, assisted by two old friends of the family, the Rev. D. R. W. Marsland and the Rev. J. Breese (Vicar of Llanymynech). The bells were rung with half-muffled clappers before and after the service.

MR. WALTER LAGO

His many ringing friends in Shropshire and the Midlands will learn with regret of the death of Mr. Walter Lago, which occurred at his home on August 6th at the age of 77 years.

A native of Staffordshire, he commenced ringing at the age of 12 at Tamworth and rang his first peal at Coalbrookdale on October 6th, 1909. He had been a member of the Holy Trinity Church, Coalbrookdale, band for about 50 years.

The funeral took place on August 9th with a service at Ironbridge Church, the interment being at Castle Green Cemetery to the accompaniment of his beloved Holy Trinity ten ringing nearby. The bearers were all ringers: Messrs. G. L. Hewitt, J. L. Stanier, B. L. Jones, A. Lloyd, B. Jarman and A. S Bayley. After the committal a well-struck course of Grandsire Triples was rung on the handbells by G. L. Hewitt 1–2, J. L. Stanier 3–4, A. S. Bayley 5–6, B. L. Jones 7–8.

On August 11th eight of his old ringing pals rang on the bells of Holy Trinity half-muffled 1,260 Grandsire Triples. The band consisted of G. Leonard Hewitt 1, Leo Evans 2, Harry Edge 3, Robert Savage 4, Joseph L. Stanier 5, B. Leslie Jones 6, Alfred S. Bayley (cond.) 7, Albert Lloyd 8. And so passes another old stalwart of ringing in Shropshire. A. S. B.

MR. JOHN WHEATON

With regret we record the death on August 9th, after a long illness, of Mr. John Wheaton, of Buckerell, East Devon, one of the oldest members of the East Devon Branch of the Devon Guild. A well-known figure at Branch meetings, his services to the Guild were recognised early this year when hon. life membership was conferred upon him.

A ringer since 1894, he was a regular Sunday ringer up to two years ago. He was captain of Buckerell tower from 1925 to 1945 and a keen churchman. The last time he rang was for the funeral of a churchwarden on November 18th, 1952, an old friend of his. This was the day before he celebrated his own golden wedding, when the local band rang their first peal.

The funeral took place at Buckerell on August 12th, conducted by the Rev. H. E. Smith (chairman of the East Devon Branch). Members from towers in the district attended. He was laid in the same grave as his wife, whose funeral was exactly seven weeks before. Among the many floral tributes was one from members of the local band.

A quarter peal, with the bells muffled, was rung to his memory in the evening by M. Broadhurst, F. H. Parr, R. Bokh, J. Broadhurst, W. Webb and F. J. Parr.

John Wheaton will be sorely missed, and much sympathy is expressed to his son and daughter.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2265 Vol. L. FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

THE CHESTER SCHOLARS OR THE GENTLEMEN BELL-RINGERS OF ST. JOHN'S

FROM time to time there has been published in our columns references to the Chester Scholars. Mr. J. W. Clarke, an authority on bells of Cheshire, has now published as a booklet the history of this ancient society which appeared in the Chester Archæological Society's Journal, Vol. 40. Material about this Society, which flourished for nearly a century, is scarce as all its books and papers have disappeared, but, nevertheless, Mr. Clarke tells an interesting story.

Trevelyan in his 'English Social History' records bell pulling as being among the recreations of undergraduates at Cambridge in the reign of James I., and in those days people saw nothing wrong in bells being installed not for the enrichment of the Church but for the advancement of a sport. The rise of the Puritans to power did much to alienate ringing from the Church, for it was considered superstitious to ring bells for services and wrong to break the sabbath by the indulgence in physical exercise.

While there is no evidence to suggest a date for the formation of the Chester Scholars, Mr. Clarke says they were plainly active in 1686 when two bells at St. John's were recast, a new timber frame constructed and other work done in the tower. This included the painting on a plaster panel of a rhyming version of some of their rules which referred to conduct in the belfry. The panel was destroyed when the tower collapsed in 1881, but the Rector had previously recorded the details. This reads:—

Ye ringers all observe these orders well
He forfeits 12 pence that turns off a bell,
And he that doth ring with either spur or hatt
His sixpence shall certainly pay for that.
He that doth spoile or doth disturbe a peale
Shall pay his 4 pence for a . . . . of ale.
And he that is heard to curse and sweare
Shall pay his 12 pence and for beare.
These customs elsewhere now be used
Lest bells and ringers be abused.
Ye gallants then that on purpose come to ring
See that ye coyne along with you do bring,
And further also that if you ring here
You must ring truly both hand and eare
Or else your forfeits surely pay
And that full speedily without delay.
Our laws is old and are not new,
The sexton looketh for his due.

In 1733 the Society became anxious to add two more bells to the six at St. John's and thus widen very considerably the scope of change ringing. At that time the only ring of eight in the neighbourhood was at Wrexham near the estate of one of its most prominent members, Watkins Williams Wynn, who was at one time M.P. for Denbighshire and a member of the College Youths. Here a skilled band of ringers had rung a peal of 5,040 changes on March 26th, 1729. This tower had probably been visited by the Chester Scholars. Two bells were ordered from Abraham Rudhall, who in 1709 had had hung a new ring of six in the tower of St. Peter's, Chester. The first of these bells was inscribed, 'Prosperity to the Society of Chester Scholars.' The vestry was so pleased with this gift that they passed a resolution 'that the Society of Gentlemen Bell-ringers have free access to ring the bells of St. John's and have a key to the belfry door.' There is no question that the Gentlemen took full advantage of the offer, for less than three years later the vestry recorded its feelings thus: 'That the Society of Gentlemen Club Ringers shall not have authority to ring St. John's bells when they please, nor at all, without leave of the Churchwardens.' With this episode, comments Mr. Clarke, the Gentlemen Bell-ringers fade from the picture, at least as far as records go. The Society later changed its name from Scholars to Youths, and in 1819 they visited Ashton-under-Lyne for the opening of a new ring, which 'merrily lasted four days.'

And what of these bells? When the north-east buttress and parts of the north and east wall of the tower crashed in 1881 the oak bell frame remained in position. The bells were safely lowered. A turret was then constructed at the north-east corner of the church and at the top of this the bells were placed. 'But they do not swing now; hammers operated by wires strike them at the sides and much of the beauty of their tone is lost. They can still be seen through the timbers of the superstructure, a reminder of the palmy days when the Gentlemen Bell-ringers stepped from their carriages at the north-west porch and climbed the winding staircase to the ringing chamber.'

GILLETT AND
LIMITED

No matter in which corner of the country you happen to be, as likely as not you will come across Gillett & Johnston bells or tower clocks. Gillett & Johnston craftsmanship is embodied in an all-embracing service — as much in the preservation and restoration of old rings of antiquarian interest as in the installation of new.

CROYDON

DESTROYED BY A MYSTERIOUS FIRE

By WILLIAM G. PIKE, F.B.H.I., OF SHERBORNE

[Reproduced by permission of the Editor of 'Home Words.']

It was in 1899 that the Dorset village of Cattistock first became famous, with its installation of what was considered the finest carillon in the country. Some 75 years before, the Rector (the Rev. A. K. Barnes), lover of bell music, decided to install a carillon similar to those he had heard on the Continent.

The original tower was a little higher than the roof of the nave and quite inadequate. In order to accommodate the 35 bells and mechanism, a new tower had to be erected, at a cost of nearly £4,000, which sum was defrayed by the Rector himself. A feature of the stately campanile with its louvre windows was an enormous skeleton clock dial. About 19 feet in diameter, this clock dial was almost as big as Big Ben. Heavily gilded and of unusual design, it stood out sharply from the sombre stonework.

The tower was divided into four stages: the first, the ringing chamber; above, the clock room with a fine, though small hour striking and quarter chiming clock. The third stage housed an octave of eight bells, which could be rung in peal, chimed, played by the tune-playing machine or operated by the carillonneur; and in the fourth stage were the remaining 27 bells, the tune-playing machine and the 'clavechin,' the keyboard by which the carillon was operated.

Thirty-three of the bells were cast by the celebrated bell founder, M. Severin van Aerschodt, of Louvain. The last two were cast by his son, Felix, and most of them were in position by the year 1882. They remained silent, however, for many years owing to the departure through ill-health of the Rector. His successor, the Rev. H. Stickland, soon became infected with a similar enthusiasm, and after increasing the number of bells, the carillon and all the apparatus were dedicated. At least 30 of the bells bore inscriptions, many with the names of the donors.

With the exception of eight, all the bells were fixed and struck on the outside by hammers connected to the tune-playing machine, and on the inside by clappers connected to the keyboard. So that the same note could be struck in quick succession, many of the bells were equipped with three hammers. All 35 were equipped with two hammers. The tune-playing machine, although set in motion by the clock, was an entirely self-contained unit. An 8-cwt. weight, which had to be wound daily, supplied the necessary power. The speed was controlled by a fan with four blades shaped like swans. The steel cylinder which carried the striking pins had no fewer than 7,000 square holes, allowing for a wide range of notes. The ram striking pins were made in 16 sizes to provide for the long, short and dotted notes.

Above the cylinder were 60 levers connected by wires to the hammers. To change a tune was a lengthy job, for, apart from altering the position of the striking pins, a change of bells was also often necessary. There were so many bells, wires, cranks and levers, that it almost seemed one would need to be a contortionist to change a tune! Originally, the tune-playing machine was silent between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m. Annual recitals by leading carillonneurs were a feature of the village life.

When I visited the village the machine was playing a wheezy 'John Peel' and 'Abide With Me' hourly, day and night. The recitals had been discontinued owing to the bells being out of tune, but the authorities were hoping to have them put right. But, alas, on September 15th, 1940, a mysterious fire totally destroyed the carillon. The fire service prevented the fire from spreading further than the tower, but the giant musical box had been reduced to a heap of twisted metal.

When what remained of the tower had been pulled down permission was obtained to carry out repairs. For nearly 12 years the village was strangely silent. Now a new tower has risen. Old buildings were purchased to provide much of the Ham Hill stone. Eight bells, with a tenor weighing 14 cwt., the only bell to bear an inscription, and a new electric chiming clock have been installed at a total cost of about £17,000. The famous Whitechapel bell founders, Mears and Stainbank, cast the bells, using what little of the original that could be recovered.

The only surviving link between the old clock and the new is the dial. The entire dial to-day was merely the centre-piece of yesterday. Many villagers thought the old dial was too big, but no one could deny that it was unique. I think it is a pity that the dial does not resemble the original. The tower is very similar. No longer is it necessary for the clockwinder to make the weary climb, for E. Dent and Co., Ltd., of London, have erected a modern synchronous electric motor movement which looks after itself. Attached to the hand wheels are cams which discharge mercury switches for the chiming of the quarters and the striking of the hour. Each of the five bells has its own separate electric motor and mechanism for lifting the hammers.

The bells of SS. Peter and Paul's, Cattistock, have always fascinated me, perhaps because the 15th bell was given by my godmother's grandfather—Prebendary Rooke—a fact of which I was not aware when the carillon existed. It is hoped that one day a new carillon will sound across the Dorset hills. A fund is in existence for this purpose. When this has been accomplished the inscription on the old twelfth bell will again ring true:—

'The step of time
Shall move to my melodious chime.'

Wedding bells have been prominent in Kent lately. Miss Lilian May, daughter of Mr. B. W. May, former secretary of the Rochester District of the Kent County Association and captain of the ringers and churchwarden at Bobbing, had peal honours accorded her after her wedding at St. Bartholomew's, Bobbing, on August 14th, to Mr. Vincent Jackson.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. P. Price, who was Dominion carillonneur at Ottawa, has been appointed Professor of Campanology and University Carillonneur to the University of Michigan, U.S.A.. Mr. Price writes that the term campanology is used in a much wider sense than change ringing.

The Rev. A. S. Roberts has been appointed Rural Dean of Penwith by the Bishop of Truro.

There were three Roberts in the peal at Carbis Bay, but none could claim relationship. Frederick J. has recently moved from Surrey to Cornwall and is an addition to the Kea band. Margaret A. was yet another candidate presented by Mr. Alan Carveth from Kenwyn, and she passed the test of her first peal with credit.

The Rev. Philip Lea, Vicar of St. John's Church, Erith, blames draughts in the belfry for the lack of bellringing volunteers.—National Press.

Congratulations to Mr. Trevor Reynolds, of Wolverhampton, on achieving his 1,000th tower at Whitchurch, Shropshire, on August 14th. He is probably the youngest ringer to have accomplished this.

A half-century of service has been given by Mr. J. Halsall, to St. Peter's Church, Hindley, Lancs, where he is captain. A congratulatory peal, Kendal Surprise Major, was rung on the bells on August 21st.

The quarter peal at Lambeth on August 21st was rung to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Len Bullock on the birth of twins—Janet and Andrew. Other ringers, we are sure, will join in the congratulations, as Mr. and Mrs. Bullock are well known among East London and S.W. Essex ringers. Mr. Bullock is the secretary of the Northern District of the London County Association and Master of the Romford band.

An unexpected honour was accorded the Universities Association at Hereford. When they set out for their first tower they found that the route had been sign-posted by the A.A. with 'U.A. Tour' in large black letters. The mystery was explained by the local A.A. patrol being a member of the Parochial Church Council. The U.A. feel they are the first ringing tour, even unofficially, to come to the notice of a national motoring association.

Mr. H. P. Reed, of Newbury, who called a peal at Aldermaston on August 2nd, conducted his last peal 18 years ago at North Stoneham for the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild.

New methods announced this week are Goscote Surprise Maximus rung at Leicester Cathedral, and Oakham Surprise Royal at Surfleet, Lincs.

Have any of our lady ringers 'circled a tower'? Mrs. H. J. Poole has rung a peal on each of the ten bells at the bell foundry campanile at Loughborough.

Mr. W. Neal, captain of the West Deeping tower, celebrated his 70th birthday on August 21st. In honour of the event his fellow veteran, Mr. Horace Day, of Market Deeping, who is 73 this month, conducted a peal of Spliced Surprise Minor. We wish Horace good luck in his own birthday peal to-morrow (September 4th).

Mr. Ronald Eccles, hon. secretary of the Lancaster Branch of the Lancashire Association, has wisely married into the Exercise. His bride, Miss Dorothy Schofield, is the chief ringer at Morecambe. The wedding, on August 21st, was honoured by a peal of Grandsire Triples on the bells of Holy Trinity, Morecambe.

BELL-RINGING — FROM A LEGAL VIEWPOINT

NOT IN LAW A PUBLIC NUISANCE

ALTHOUGH the subject of bells may seem far removed from any legal tangles or red tape the index of Halsbury's 'Laws of England,' under the heading of 'Bells,' has no less than 25 references ranging from 'Bells, church, care of' to 'Bells, door, ringing of offence,' and covering civil, criminal, equitable and ecclesiastical law.

As is well known, the incumbent of a parish, by virtue of his general control over the church, has absolute control over the ringing of the bells; the legal ownership of the bells and bellropes, however, is vested in the churchwardens as a quasi-corporation, though the duties relating to the care of the bells are now transferred to the parochial church councils by The Parochial Church Councils (Powers) Measure, 1921. These rules were applied many years ago in the case of Harrison v. Forbes and Sisson (1860), when it was held that although legal ownership of the bells was vested in the churchwardens, they had no right as such against the wishes of the minister of the parish to break into the belfry of the parish church and ring the bells, though there may be some very special occasions in which they would be justified in so doing, i.e., probably only on the occasion of divine worship.

RINGING FOR FOXHOUNDS

Two years later, in 1862, it was held that a meeting of the foxhounds was not a 'special occasion' that would justify such ringing. This case was Redhead v. Wait and was heard in the Court of Arches (Highest Ecclesiastical Court for the Archbishopric of Canterbury). It appears from the report that on a previous occasion of the meeting of the foxhounds at Thurnby, Leicestershire, the bells had been rung contrary to the wishes of the incumbent, and that shortly before the day in question the incumbent was informed that the defendants, who included one of the churchwardens and the clerk, were about to repeat the same offence. He accordingly gave due notice of his objection to ringing for such an occasion but, says the report, '. . . notwithstanding his remonstrance the defendants, on the meeting of the foxhounds at Thurnby, went to the Parish Church and with a crowbar broke open the belfry door and rang the bells.' It is recorded that the incumbent made further remonstrances but the only result was that he was excluded from the belfry (whether by forcible means or not does not appear!) and the ringing was continued. The incumbent, however, did not accept defeat and resorted to the aid of the law: the defendants, when brought to Court admitted the facts and that their conduct was unjustifiable in law, and the learned judge, the famous Dr. Lushington, 'admonished the defendants and condemned them in the cost of the suit.'

It is interesting to note that no damages were awarded, presumably because the only action the minister could have brought would have been in the tort of trespass and this could not be successful since the legal posession of the bells was vested, not in the plaintiff clergyman, but in the recalcitrant churchwarden.

The practical effects of the property being invested in the churchwarden appear in at least one case to act unfairly. In Jackson v. Adams (1835) the plaintiff contended that the defendant had uttered to him, in public, the words, 'Who stole the parish bellropes, you scamping rascal?' and that such words were defamatory of him. This action for damages failed, the Court holding that since it was impossible for a person to steal property of which he was, in law, the owner, the statement could not be defamatory.

CONDITION WITH FACULTY

Before bells may be hung in a church a faculty from the Diocesan Court is required; although a faculty will be granted in a proper case, one will not be granted where there is a risk of annoyance being caused by their being rung with unnecessary frequency or for an undue length of time. Moreover a faculty will be granted to sanction an agreement restricting the ringing of bells to certain hours on certain days. Such a position might arise on the gift of money, e.g., for an augmentation on condition that a bell is no longer rung for an early morning service. The incumbent must, however, cause a bell to be tolled for morning and evening prayer 'That the people may come to hear God's word and to pray with Him.' (B. C. P.)

The ringing of one of the church bells as a sanctus bell is an additional ceremony, and the Court has refused to sanction by faculty alterations to enable one of the church bells to be used from the interior of the church as a sanctus bell. It was further decided in the same case, following a previous decision relating to the use of a handbell in the body of the church that the tolling or ringing of one of the church bells of a parish church during the Consecration Prayer in the Communion Service at the moment of the elevation of each of the sacred elements as a sanctus bell is illegal.

A church sexton is a man (or, it was decided in 1739—a woman), who has many different duties to perform, e.g., in the care of the church and churchyard, but these duties almost invariably include the ringing of the bell or bells. His rights and duties usually vary from parish to parish, but by statute the Burial Acts Authority cannot deprive the sexton of his right to discharge the function of his office in the case of burials in its burial grounds and to earn any fees for such work by appointing any other person. Among such duties is that of tolling the bell (if any) and the sexton has an indefeasible right of entry to the chapel for the purpose of tolling and presumably thereby collecting the appropriate fee.

EXCESSIVE RINGING

No doubt such matters are more often merely of academic interest, but a point worthy of consideration by all ringers is whether a member of the public may apply to Court for an injunction to restrain the excessive ringing of church bells. As far as can be traced there is only one case reported where such an application has been successful and that was over a century ago, though it is believed that there has been a case of a similar nature a few years ago: unfortunately this case does not appear to have been reported in the legal Press. The only ground upon which such an action may be brought is that of the tort of Private Nuisance. A private, as distinct from a public nuisance, is one which affects those persons who are immediately within the scope of its operations but does not injure or inflict inconvenience upon others who are farther removed from it. 'Halsbury' says that as e.g., in the case of church bells the alleged nuisance may be even advantageous or pleasurable to those who are at a distance. Moreover private nuisance is actionable only if there is an injury to the property and thus only the occupier of that property would be able to sue.

The one reported case (Soltau v. De Held 2 Sim. N.S.133) was decided in 1851 by a highly-respected vice-Chancellor, namely, Sir Richard Kindersley. The plaintiff in the case owned and lived in a house immediately adjacent to a Roman Catholic church in Park Road, Clapham, and in May of 1851 a new ring of six bells was opened. The report described the ringing as follows:—

> 'The Chapel bell rang at five o'clock and a quarter before seven every morning and a quarter before and a quarter past seven every evening. On 13th May, 1851, a peal of six bells was rung at five o'clock, the steeple bell at a quarter to seven and again at a quarter to nine. The Chapel bell again rang at half past ten. A peal of chimes was rung at eleven and again at a quarter before one; again at a quarter before six and again at a quarter before eight. On Saturday, the 24th of May, the Chapel bell rang as usual the three times above mentioned and the steeple bell twice and, in addition, a peal of six bells from half past eight till a quarter to ten at night. . .'

The report then catalogues further dates and says that 'Subsequently the bells were rung daily upon an average as great a number of times as they had been rung on the several occasions before mentioned.' The ringing was held to be a nuisance and judgment was given for the plaintiff with 40s. damages and costs. During a period of three months while the action was in progress the bells were not rung at all but after judgment had been given the bells rang forth again and in a subsequent action for an injunction to prevent their ringing it was alleged that the defendant 'Caused the said bells to be rung in the same manner and for the same times and he threatened and intended not only to continue ringing the last-mentioned bells every Sunday in manner last aforesaid, but also to ring peals of the said six bells and to ring on weekdays and also to ring the Chapel bell.' The weights of all the bells were quoted, the tenor, weighing 9 cwt. 0 qr. 20lb., being three feet three inches in diameter.

NOT A PUBLIC NUISANCE

The learned Vice-Chancellor's judgment commenced with an exposition of the law, which is still acknowledged by lawyers to be of great authority, defining and distinguishing public and private nuisance and he decided that bell-ringing could, in law, amount to a private but not to a public nuisance. He then referred to the annoyance caused to the plaintiff by the six bells which he observed 'are not, in respect of size, such as are used in most Chapels and district churches in and near London, but they are unusually large bells.' Obviously the judge was not familiar with the weights of the bells in many of London's rings of bells. Moreover, he continued, in view of the proximity of the plaintiff's house to the church, the noisy ringing of these bells considerably reduced the value of the said house and on these and other grounds he considered that an injunction ought to be granted. An injunction accordingly issued restraining the defendant and all persons acting under his direction or by his authority, from tolling or ringing the bells so as to occasion any nuisance, disturbance and annoyance to the plaintiff.

Perhaps this case should be borne in mind by all ringers lest any citizen should to-day feel aggrieved by the exercise of our art: ringers to-day, however, are probably not quite so zealous as our brothers of the last century and most ringing to-day would probably be covered by this limitation to the judgment:—

> 'I cannot say that it is absolutely impossible that any of these bells may not be rung so as not to occasion any nuisance or annoyance to the plaintiff. It is possible: and therefore I do not think it is right to say that none of these bells shall not be rung again.'

PEAL RINGING IN DEVONSHIRE

By the Rev. K. W. H. FELSTEAD

AS most readers will know, Devonshire has the largest number of rings of bells in any of the counties—no less than 371, according to Dove's book. But most readers will also know that 'method' ringing is not practised as much as 'call-change' ringing in the county, and the majority of ringers are not interested in our way of change-ringing. They concentrate on accurate striking and raising and lowering the bells. That is their art, and our type of ringer has, very often, a great deal to learn from them in this. But there is a limit to 'stoney' ringing, which is soon reached and there is not the satisfaction of being able to go on to greater and greater achievements as there is in our ringing.

It will be no surprise, after the above remarks, to learn that there is a far higher percentage of churches where no peal has been rung than in any other county. Eleven out of the 88 eight-bell towers are still unconquered and since there are only 40 peal-less eight-bell towers in the whole of England, it will be seen that more of a quarter of them are in Devon. For those interested, these eleven are: Appledore, Barnstaple, Braunton, Culmstock, Exeter (St. Mark's), Georgeham, Hatherleigh, Honiton (St. Paul's), Ilfracombe (SS. Philip and James'), Kingsbridge and Witheridge.

Space would not permit to list all the six-bell towers where peals have not been rung, for only 67 out of the 242 have ever appeared in the peal lists. Actually, there are approximately 540 six-bell towers in England which are still unconquered, and since 175 are in Devon, it means that one-third of them are there. No peal has been rung on any five-bell tower, but the county has not as many of these as other counties, which is rather surprising, for it has half as many again six-bell towers as any other county. Actually, there are 36 of them and nine counties have more than this, but only Norfolk has more than that number still peal-less.

And now to turn to details. It will, again, be no surprise to learn that peal ringing has never been very flourishing in the county. Most peals have been rung by visiting bands, of course. Only one tower has reached the 50 mark—St. Michael's, Exeter (Heavitree, 8), where the last peal rung was the 50th. Twenty-nine of these were rung between 1898 and 1914 and, looking at the other Exeter towers, it seems that more peals were rung about that period than ever since. Thus St. Sidwell's (10), destroyed in the war, had 32 of its 39 rung between 1883 and 1912 (with a gap between 1892 and 1903), and St. David's had 21 of its 28 in the same period. This latter tower has not been heard for nearly 20 years now. It would seem that in the county as a whole, this is true, for the tower with the second highest number of peals, Withycombe Raleigh (45) shows the same trend. Eighteen of them were rung between 1903 and 1913, but there was a period of activity here just after the first war, when 14 peals were rung in the 1920's. Six have come since the last war, but none since 1949. Plymouth Charles' Church (10) is similar again, coming third in the list with 40 peals. Thirty were rung prior to 1913 and the remainder between 1919 and 1928. These bells were also destroyed in the war, but had been silent for more than ten years then (as had those of St. Sidwell's—the last peal recorded there was also in 1928). Two other towers have totals in the 30's—Clyst Honiton (33) and Exeter St. Thomas' (31). Both towers have been doing well since the war, the former having recorded 14 and the latter nine peals.

SIXTEEN PEALS AT EXETER CATHEDRAL

Turning now to well-known rings, we commence with the two 12-bell towers, Exeter Cathedral and Buckfast Abbey. Though the bells at the former are old, it was not until 1902 that the first peal was rung on them, largely because of their weight (until the Liverpool Cathedral ring, Exeter had the heaviest of all tenors). Sixteen peals in all have been rung there, seven since the war. Buckfast's are relatively new bells, and only five peals have been scored here. Two of the four 10-bell towers were destroyed in the war and have already been mentioned. The remaining two are Plymouth, St. Andrew's and Cullompton; 25 peals have been rung at the former church, 11 between 1903 and 1914, nine between 1926 and 1938, and five since the war. At Cullompton nine were rung from 1920 to 1939 and five from 1947 to 1951, making a total of 14.

Of the eight-bell towers, four with peal totals of 30 and over have been mentioned above, together with Exeter St. David's. Of the remaining 72 churches where peals have been rung, only ten have reached double figures. They are Broad Clyst (27 peals), Plymouth, Emmanuel Church (26), Tiverton (23), Sowton and Devonport, Dockyard Chapel (20)—the latter church was destroyed in the war. Thorverton (19) comes next, and then another war-destroyed church, Stonehouse (18). Wolborough (15), Plympton St. Maurice's (14) and Ottery St. Mary (13) complete the list. All these towers which still exist have been seen in the peal lists since the war, Broad Clyst and Wolborough especially so.

There is little to report on the six-bell towers. Only one—Holbeton—has reached double figures, 16 peals having been rung there. It is 25 years, however, since it last appeared in the peal lists, for seven were rung between 1910 and 1913, nine from 1921 to 1929 and none since. Two towers have nine—Harpford and Up-Lyme—but both have had most of these since the war. No less than 32 of the 67 six-bell towers have had but a single peal rung at them.

There is certainly plenty of scope in Devon, not least the missionary work of encouraging the 'stoney' ringers to take up change-ringing, which the Guild of Devonshire Ringers is valiantly trying to do.

His many friends in the Hornchurch area will be glad to know that Sid Penfold is making a good recovery from a severe abdominal operation and hopes to go convalescent very soon.

MISS ELIZABETH BIBBY MARRIED

A member of a well-known ringing family and a practising member of the art herself, Miss Elizabeth Mary Bibby, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bibby, of Frodsham, was married at Frodsham Parish Church on Monday, August 16th, to Mr. George Edward Daniels, of Oaks Road, Dilham, Norwich.

The Vicar, the Rev. M. W. Myres, officiated. At the organ, Mr. A. Collins played the bridal march from Lohengrin, and, as a recessional, Mendelssohn's Wedding March. As members of the bride's family were wedding guests, friendly ringers from other belfries made up the team for ringing and 'firing' the bells.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white brocade cut on Elizabethan lines with wreath and veil. Her bouquet was of cream roses and white heather. The bridesmaids were Miss Cynthia Bibby (sister), Miss Janet House, Miss Sheila Moss and Miss Ann Dennis. Mr. D. M. G. Janes was best man and Messrs. P. J. Daniels and P. Worral were groomsmen.

The reception was held in the Mersey View Pavilion.

The bride, besides her ringing activities, was a teacher in the Sunday School. She took a teaching post in Norwich and afterwards in London, where she also took a special course in elocution. Her bellringing capabilities provided an outlet in both cities.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Mysteries of 'The White House'

By the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fletcher, ringers and friends from the the locality spent an enjoyable afternoon and evening at White House, Caister-on-Sea, on August 14th. The weather during the preceding week had been wintry and did not augur well; however, the day broke fine and very warm, remaining so throughout.

Feverish activity was apparent to the early arrivals, who saw the finishing touches being given to the Mark I. version of the Exercise's 'secret weapon.' This enables six or eight ringers sitting comfortably round a table, with the aid of a wooden 'bellrope' (complete with sally) to reproduce faithfully the mechanical actions of handstroke and backstroke. Then by weird and wondrous means (to the experts, sound scientific principles) the aforementioned actions cause handbells, suitably mounted and modified, to ring at the precise time as tower bells.

The apparatus stood up well to its first handling, but as with every prototype, minor adjustments were found necessary, and it was thus not possible to ring that afternoon the first peal on it; time and a few extra volts from the national grid will tell!!

The gathering enjoyed a splendid tea during which the acrobatics of certain amateur photographers were highly diverting.

The president of the Norwich Diocesan Association (the Rev. A. St. J. Heard) voiced the thanks of those present to the host and hostess, the former replying suitably.

After tea the company dispersed to bowls, handbell ringing, horticultural study! and gossip!! During this period entertainment was provided alternately by the 'East Norfolk Lappers,' who lapped handbells to Plain and Treble Bob Minor and also the 'White House Method Dancers,' both organisations being open to offers of winter engagements!

There being a quorum of Eastern Branch members present, it was decided to hold the next quarterly business meeting at Acle on October 16th.

The happy throng broke up at last and all agreed for the second year a thoroughly wonderful and happy time had been enjoyed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS'

Dear Sir,—How many ringers, I wonder, have realised the opportunity which is at present offered to the whole Exercise by the broadcasting of 'The Nine Tailors' as a radio play in four parts? There will doubtless be a number of non-ringing listeners whose interest in our art has been aroused by the first two instalments, and there will probably be more as the play proceeds. Hence we have a source of potential recruits.

Why do I say 'potential'? Because in each branch of every ringing organisation the present situation is like a barrier containing a door that is locked. We ringers are on one side of the door and these recruits are on the other side. The broadcasts are our keys but it is up to us to do the unlocking. How? My own method has been to send in to our two local weekly papers a suitable letter, and I should like, through 'The Ringing World,' to pass this on as a suggestion to my fellow ringers. It must be remembered, however, that the people for whom such a letter is meant are not ringers yet and need a little shepherding. Hence one has to be careful in the choice of words when writing it.

Finally, do not expect anything like the gold rushes in the Yukon and the Klondike. You must sow before you can reap. Those who want recruits have now a chance to get them, and seldom, if ever before, has such an opportunity been given to ringers. Let us show our gratitude by following it up.

'Hit the nail aright, friends,
Hit it on the head.
Strike with all your might, friends,
While the iron's red.

Yours sincerely,
D. MOTTERSHEAD.

Wilmslow, Cheshire.

NOMENCLATURE

Dear Sir,—Outside ringing circles, when bell-ringing has been mentioned I have heard the subject referred to by the questions, 'Oh, that is campanology, is it not?' or 'Then you are a campanologist?' But ringers generally seem to be very little affected by these terms.

Reference to a dictionary reveals how closely connected the words are with bells, the one, the 'scientific name of bellringing,' the other, one skilled in the same.'

The word campanile is the name of a bell tower of the larger kind, usually applied to those detached from the church. (It. campana, a bell.) To those interested in horticulture or botany there is a genus of flowers, campanula, commonly known as bell flowers, usually blue or white, the common wild harebell, C. rotundifolia, is well known. There are several well-known, hardy perennial kinds in cultivation grown as rock plants or in the herbaceous border. The Canterbury bell, C. media, is a biennial species, and is a great favourite with garden lovers. Its homely name, associated as it is with our glorious city, seems somehow to a ringer to be decidedly connected with the Cathedral; it would be interesting to know the origin of the name.

An interesting reference to the word is made on an old peal board in the ringing chamber of St. Mary's, Ashford, Kent. I quote from memory:—

Campanolough art behold,
In feats that merit purer gold.
* * * * *
With'n this steeple well and true
This peal expos'ed here to view,
Those men whose names this board adorn
Compleatly did the same perform.

I believe this was a peal of Kent, but other particulars are missing.

GEORGE H. HEAD.

Hanworth, Middlesex.

PLAIN BOB DOUBLES

Dear Sir,—In my opinion Mr. Blagrove has wrongly interpreted Mr. Birmingham's letter. I thought that the point had been made quite plain, that if four blows were allowed in Doubles, why should they be barred in higher numbers, or for banning methods without Plain blows in thirds, and a Kent Bob with four blows in fourths, so why not four blows at a plain lead in Bob Triples? As to the remark about planning a peal of Bob Caters with which he credited Mr. Birmingham, I must claim that remark to be mine.

In all their letters the present Methods Committee have never yet stated a good reason for dismissing four blows in Plain Bob on odd numbers, or for banning methods without Plain Bob lead ends. The Exercise has just to bow its head and accept the 'tidying up' of this small group of men. Since no letters have been published lately from members of the Methods Committee it must be gathered that they are just sitting back waiting for the uproar to die down.

Returning to the last paragraph of Mr. Blagrove's letter, may I give him the Methods Committee reply? (It has been often enough in print for all of us to know it now!) 'We do not dictate what (Doubles) methods you should ring to peals, but we will only recognise what we dictate.' Only these peals will then be published in the Analysis'—which serves what useful purpose?

May I, before closing, give Mr. Scott my personal opinion as to why ringing standards in this area have declined compared with between the wars? I think that they depend on the peals. As most ringers cannot be bothered to arrange peals, it is left to one or two to arrange them all. If these people cease for any reason, unless someone comes forward to take their place peals die out except for special occasions. Usually another peal ringer can be found to fit in a band if one drops out, but if the organiser or conductor (usually the same) drop out then. . .'—Yours sincerely,

WILLIAM BUTLER.

Windsor, Berks.

'THIS RUBBISH'

Dear Sir,—The present trend of publishing new methods under the name of the composer of the peal—or without any name—is to be deplored.

It is noticeable that all these methods abound in faulty construction, such as four places being made in one row (two of which are bound to be adjacent), thereby causing a doubles change. This is in effect a single!

I notice in 'The Ringing World' of August 20th, Ventnor Surprise is attributed to J. W. Washbrook, and Winchester Surprise—no composer. Mr. E. Weatherby's letter includes other cases of this wrong ownership.

One wonders if these past masters of the art would have cared to have had their names connected with these so-called methods.

The perpetrators of this rubbish should be prepared to own it.—Yours sincerely,

T. E. HARROLD.

Wigston Magna, Leics.

'TOWER GRABBING' DOGS

Dear Sir,—With reference to the query in 'Belfry Gossip,' if sitting in the car outside a church whilst I am ringing constitutes a canine 'grab,' the score of 'Mischief,' my constant companion, is 294 since she first 'owned me' in October, 1952. She has collected these towers in 13 counties. Incidentally, the total mileage (for all purposes) which she has travelled in the car is about 50,000; is that another canine record?—Yours sincerely,

E. T. PAUL FIELD.

Buckland Newton, Dorset.

PEAL RINGING IN CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORLAND

Dear Sir,—The current series of articles by the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead dealt with Cumberland and Westmorland, and I wish to point out one or two errors.

The first peal rung in Cumberland was at St. Stephen's, Carlisle, but the date was May 31st, 1865, by the Ancient Society of College Youths, being Holt's Original Peal of Grandsire Triples, in 2 hours and 58 minutes. The band was: George S. Shury 1, Henry W. Haley 2, Robert Jameson 3, William Cooter 4, George E. Ferris 5, James R. Haworth 6, Matthew A. Wood 7, James Dwight 8. Conducted by Henry W. Haley.

The peal on May 18th, 1890, was the first in Cumberland by a local band, and so far as I can trace this is the only peal ever rung in Carlisle by a local band.

When I have been in Kendal belfry on past occasions I feel sure that there are peal boards recording peals rung in 1770 or 1790, so I am going to check on this matter and will write again later as I feel sure peals were rung at Kendal prior to the 1865 details given.

I can find no account of a peal in 1892, but I have been trying for some time to arrange a peal in Carlisle and would like to have details of the 1892 peal if available to amend the local records.

An attempt at St. Stephen's for the Coronation came to grief after 2 hours and 55 minutes through a disturbance at the belfry door, so I think there is every chance of recording one soon, after such a long lapse.

Best wishes for the success of 'The Ringing World.'—Yours faithfully,

J. BUTTERFIELD.

Carlisle.

CLOCKS WITH LONG PENDULUMS

Dear Sir.—In your recent issues I have been interested about clocks with 13 feet pendulums. Here at the Church of SS. Peter and Paul, Deddington, we have a clock in the ringing chamber with a pendulum of 18 feet 4 inches swinging in the centre of the eight bell ropes to the amusement of visiting ringers. The clock itself is a massive affair and was made nearly a century ago by a Deddington clockmaker by name of Thomas Hardon.—Yours faithfully,

G. E. DEELEY,
Sec., Deddington Church Tower.

Oxford.

A 'THANK YOU' TO SOMERSET

Dear Sir,—May I, through 'The Ringing World,' express my thanks to the Castle Carey and South Cadbury ringers for their friendship, kindness and for arranging ringing meetings for my benefit during my holiday in Somerset, also for inviting myself and wife to go on their annual outing to Torquay and Paignton. The friendship and fellowship among ringers should be valued and we again extend our thanks to them, and would like to return their hospitality should they decide to visit the north. —Yours, etc.,

JOHN T. WALMSLEY.

Oldham.

'ON CONDUCTING'

Dear Sir.—May I. through your columns, compliment Mr. Wilfrid Wilson on the excellence on his series of articles on conducting. I am a little surprised that no previous comment has appeared, but with so many ringers concerned with Bob Triples the articles may possibly have been overlooked.—Yours faithfully,

N. G. HOLLINGWORTH.

Richmond, Surrey.

OUTINGS AMID RAIN AND SUNSHINE

CUMBERLAND RINGERS

Members of the Cumberland and North Westmorland Association were joined by several members of the University of London Society on their outing on August Monday.

Ringing commenced in the morning at St. Cuthbert's, Great Salkeld (6), near Penrith, and later at St. Peter's, Shap (6).

After lunch the party crossed the moors to the Church of All Saints, Orton (8), where the fine Rudhall tenor was greatly admired. Unfortunately ringing was curtailed by a badly-fitted stay, and so the ringers went on to the small Church of St. Patrick, Bampton (5). Here the bells, cast in the 18th century by a local foundry, were raised for the first time in 16 years, and after the ringing the ringers were generously entertained to tea by the Church Council. The day's programme ended on the fine ring of eight at St. Andrew's, Penrith.

The thanks of the party are due to Rex Agg, who arranged an outing which almost kept up to schedule.

SOWTON, DEVON

The second Saturday in August has become, by tradition, the date of Sowton ringers' annual outing. This year the objective was Weymouth.

Leaving home at 8 a.m., Bradpole, Dorset (8, 13 cwt.), provided the first ringing, the bells being pronounced as quite good. At Abbotsbury (6, 12 cwt.) a little trouble was experienced by a chime hammer breaking as the bells were being raised. Two local ringers came and helped put matters right and the six were rung. A word of praise for the 'go' of the bells, which were hung by a local bell hanger, Mr. Stokes, of Woodbury, in 1894.

At Weymouth non-ringers stayed in the town while ringing took place on the excellent eight at Wyke Regis (17 cwt.). After tea two more very good eights were visited, Beaminster (26 cwt.) and Crewkerne (22 cwt.). A very good day was had by all. Thanks are due to incumbents and local ringers and in particular to the two ringers at Abbotsbury who not only put matters right but rang with us. W. C. P.

PINCHBECK

A party of ringers and friends left Pinchbeck at 7 a.m. on August 14th for Messrs. Taylors' bell foundry, Loughborough. Mr. Harrison met the party and conducted them on a very interesting tour of the foundry, and explained the process of casting and tuning of bells. After this an hour's ringing on the light ring of ten in the campanile was enjoyed.

Our next tower for ringing was Ashby-de-la-Zouch, after which we had a picnic lunch in the Castle grounds. On then to Burton-on-Trent, famed for its breweries, and its very fine ring of ten bells at St. Paul's, where we again enjoyed an hour's ringing. The next call was for tea at Tamworth, after which we visited the church for more ringing. On then to Hinckley and then our last tower at Croft. A short stop was made for refreshments at Uppingham and home reached at midnight.

Thanks are extended to the incumbents of towers, to Messrs. Taylor and Co., and especially Mr. Harrison and organisers. R. C. N.

PUTNEY

An important date in many London ringers' diaries was the highly successful occasion of the Putney ringers' and friends' annual outing to Berkshire and Buckinghamshire, when the towers visited were Wallingford, Harwell, Chilton, East Ilsley, Tilehurst and Slough.

Sharp disappointment was felt at Slough, the last tower of the day, where a misunderstanding allowed only a short time for ringing.

The arrangements made by Mr. W. T. Elson proved once again to merit the warm appreciation expressed by the whole party.

ST. AUGUSTINE'S, RUGELEY

Punctually at 7 a.m. on August 11th a coach set off from Rugeley bound for Rhyl, thus the annual choir outing had begun. Although this was a choir outing there were six ringers present, four from Rugeley, one from Little Aston, and the writer.

At Rhuddlan the party found a poor-going six (8¼ cwt.) and through the noise of the ropes, etc., they could hardly be heard. To add to this the fifth is sadly out of tune and the tenor sounds very 'dead.' In contrast, however, a very good six (8¾ cwt.) was made use of at Abergele.

Unfortunately at our last tower, St. Thomas', Rhyl (8, 17 cwt.), the treble rope had broken the previous night at practice, so we could only hear the back six. These are of very good tone and 'go,' and are probably the best eights in North Wales. Ringing for the day over, we joined the others for high tea and the journey home. Thanks are due to the incumbents for granting permission, and John R. Joyner for making the ringing arrangements. A. R.

TWO WEEKDAY TRIPS

Young ringers from St. Luke's, Wolverhampton, Walsall, Little Aston, and the writer, recently took advantage of school and business holidays for a spot of ringing. On August 9th the party set out by car for Warwickshire. The first tower was a unique one—Allenhall (8, 4¼ cwt.). These bells are hung in the louvres of the spire, two on each side. The belfry is extremely small, and added to this we found no stays on any of the bells, and ropes only on the back six, not to mention the pigeons. To any intending visiting band we suggest old clothes and a complete set of ropes (light weight) of at least 35 feet length. By the time we had made conditions fit for ringing and rung, the morning was over.

In the afternoon and evening we visited Butlers Marston, a good six (14¼ cwt.), Kineton (6, 11¼ cwt.), where the treble is heavier than the second, third or fourth, being 5 cwt., a good light five (5¼ cwt.) at Radway, and a five (7 cwt.) at Farnborough, where the Vicar joined in ringing. After a key hunt we managed to get into the belfry at Burton Dassett, where we found a six (13 cwt.) of good tone and 'go,' although the girls had difficulty in pulling them off as they are deep setting.

At Bishop's Itchington, the head ringer joined us in Grandsire Doubles on this good five (9½ cwt.), and so to the last tower, Harbury (5, 13¼ cwt.), where we managed Stedman Doubles, thanks to the help of the head ringer's son.

The second outing, on August 12th, was into Derbyshire. Our female representative from Little Aston was unable to come and we had a fresh face from Walsall, and were joined by John R. Joyner, from Rugeley. Doveridge, the first stop, was a very good ground-floor five (14½ cwt.), ideal for a peal. Sudbury bells (6, 14 cwt.) are not too easy to handle, although a more experienced adult band could probably do them more justice. A good six (8¾ cwt.) was found at Etwall, and a very good six (12 cwt.) at Sutton-on-the-Hill. At Osmaston-by-Ashbourne (6, 14 cwt.) the tenor was found to be loose on its bearings, but otherwise the bells are of good tone and 'go.'

Housed in a massive 13th century tower with a very tall, slender 14th century spire are an excellent six (14 cwt.) at Breadsall. The Vicar's daughter, Miss Elizabeth Grime, was here a welcome addition to our band. Brailsford's are an anti-clockwise five (12 cwt.) of good tone and 'go.' Our last ring for the day was on the six (12¼ cwt.) at Horsley, a very good ground-floor ring. A. R.

BALCOMBE, SUSSEX

St. Mary's, Balcombe, ringers and their friends were fortunate in having a hot and sunny day for their annual outing on August 14th. Travelling by coach to Portsmouth, by boat from there to the Isle of Wight, and by a second coach for a tour right round the island, the ringers were able to enjoy the full beauty of the picturesque countryside and the magnificent views across Shanklin and Freshwater Bay.

A stop was made at Brading for a short ring before going to Shanklin for an excellent lunch. Ringing during the afternoon was at Chale and Freshwater, the last-named bells being very much to their liking.

Thanks are due to Mr. R. Bailey, of Godshill, for his valuable help in arranging this and last year's outing to the Island. J. H. G. G.

WATFORD AND DISTRICT

Ringers from Watford and district, together with wives, friends and ringers from outside the district, had a most enjoyable day on August 21st touring the attractive countryside of Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire. The first tower to be visited was Burnham, where by this time the sun had at last appeared and showed promise of being a warm, sunny day. George Gilbert warmly welcomed us and for an hour various touches were rung on this pleasant octave.

The next tower was Hughenden, where the belfry is certainly an example to be followed. Here two attempts for Hughenden Surprise were tried, but unfortunately both came to grief! However, four Spliced Surprise Major was brought round, which more than atoned for the previous failure. On then to Kidlington, where an excellent lunch was partaken at the Black Horse Inn. Ringing followed at the conveniently nearby tower, after which we travelled on to Hook Norton to reach St. Peter's somewhat behind schedule owing to the winding roads which had baffled our driver (and others, also!). This fine ring was soon resounding to Stedman Triples and also included a good course of Bristol.

Arriving at Deddington (our last ring) we enjoyed a splendid tea.

Ringing at Deddington tower continued until 7.30 p.m., when a start was made for home via Bicester and Aylesbury, Watford being reached by 10 p.m. Our thanks are offered amongst many others to the organiser, Mr. S. H. Hoare, who must be congratulated on planning a most interesting tour.

Methods rung also included Grandsire Triples, Bob Major, Cambridge, London, Superlative and Yorkshire Surprise Major. R.

LADIES' GUILD IN KENT

At the first meeting of the Ladies' Guild at Marden on August 14th, Miss Doris Colgate presided. Guild members present were Miss Colgate, Miss Jill Haffenden (Marden), Mrs. Cullingworth (Maidstone) and Miss Walker (Upchurch).

Those unable to attend the meeting but who wished to join the Guild sent their names to the secretary, and these were elected with the majority of the ladies present.

Miss Haffenden is secretary of the Branch. Only two members of the committee were elected, Miss Walker and Miss Tapley (Harrietsham), as it felt that the county was not well enough represented at the meeting to elect the other four members.

It was decided to hold six meetings a year, one in each District of the Kent County Association. It is hoped to hold the next meeting at Bromley early in November if the tower is available. M. T.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

In bright sunshine, South Anston was visited on August 14th by the North Notts District. Ringing started about 2.30 and continued until 5 p.m., when a good tea was provided in the Old School, 25 sitting down.

The Rev. R. Lyne, of Anston, gave a hearty welcome to those attending, and with him as chairman the short meeting was soon disposed of. It was proposed to hold the next meeting at Clayworth on September 11th. The Bell Fund collection came to 15s. Votes of thanks to the Rev. R. Lyne for the use of the bells, and the ladies who served tea were accorded. Ringing again took place until 9 p.m.

Methods rung were a course of College Pleasure Minor (a request from Mr. H. M. Turner, who took part), Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob, Double Norwich, St. Clement's, Kent, Oswald, Cambridge, Yorkshire, Superlative, Duffield and Forward Major.

AN ENCOURAGING LETTER TO MRS. G. W. H. AND ALL LEARNERS

By Jill and Rosemary

'Will you pull a little gentler?' said the ringer to his wife,
'Cos if you break another stay it may cost you your life!
The rope, prehaps, is springy, or it may slip the wheel,
But if you go on at this rate you'll never ring a peal!'

'Oh well, you told me wrong again,' poor Georgie's wife replied,
'Just look at Mrs. Turner—why, she can ring 'inside'!'
Now let me try some Stedman, it's like a castle wall,
The slow work and the dodging, and quick bell in, that's all!'

'Would you like to fall the second? It's as easy as can be,
Just pull it in at backstroke, and follow close to me.
Mind how you make the coil now or you'll probably get hung,
That was so much better, dear, the best you've ever rung,'

'Oh, don't despair, my ringing friend, even Carter had to learn,
Who knows, perhaps one day you'll be as good as old George Fearn.
Superlative and Kent you'll ring in towers far and near,
Perhaps you'll ring a birthday peal for everyone next year!

So don't give up because you cannot even drive a car,
Or because you cannot cook with wine and caviare.
The house may be all upside down, the garden full of weeds,
And George may wear extraordinary corduroys and tweeds.

You say that Stella can do 'nowt' but bell-ring and write books,
Raff always runs on three legs—that's harder than it looks,
And Robert's Spaceman's O, mask may need an overhaul!
But we don't mind a little bit because we love you all.'

OUTING

MILTON-NEXT-GRAVESEND, KENT

What turned out to be one of the best days of this English summer was chosen for the annual outing of the Milton-next-Gravesend ringers and friends, their own county and Sussex being preferred for the tour.

In bright, sunny weather they travelled via Maidstone to Staplehurst, where an hour was spent by ringers in the belfry, while the non-ringers of the party enjoyed the glorious view of the countryside.

On through the Weald, with its lovely fruit gardens and hop fields, by way of Hawkhurst to Hastings, where they were greeted with brilliant sunshine. The eight bells at All Saints' were soon going to various methods, but the noise inside the belfry was rather disconcerting at the start. An excellent dinner had been prepared by mine host at Ye Olde Coach House Restaurant, to which ample justice was done.

On the road again, by way of Rye, through the Romney Marsh, so well known for its sheep. A halt was made at Brookland to view the quaint tower in the churchyard, where the five bells are installed. Unfortunately permission had not been obtained to have a ring—perhaps it was just as well—but the ringers would have liked to have had a try.

Beyond the Marsh, Hythe was next on the list, where this lovely eight were kept going for an hour by the ringers, while the non-ringers visited the crypt, where human skulls hundreds of years old were on view.

A short run to Ashford brought the last tower of the day. Previous to ringing, a splendid meat tea had been provided at the British Volunteer. This again showed the excellence of Kentish catering. The ringers were pleased to meet Mr. C. W. Everest, of Ashford fame, and Mr. Wickens, well known to some of them when at their neighbouring village at Meopham in bygone days.

After a short ring on this grand eight the coach was again boarded for home by way of Faversham and Sittingbourne. Mr. Cyril Jarrett, the Rochester District secretary, and his mother, who had joined the party, were dropped at Chatham, and Gravesend was reached and all home by ten o'clock.

The ringing during the day, although not reaching Surprise standard, was 'not so bad.' Best thanks are offered to the various incumbents for the use of the bells, the tower secretaries for their invaluable help, and to Mr. Fred Mitchell jun. for all his work as organiser in making this such an excellent day's outing.

BELL-RINGING—LEGAL VIEWPOINT

A distinction was made in the course of the judgment between bells in Roman Catholic churches and those in Established churches: the latter being privileged and entitled in law to have bells whether they are a nuisance or not, whereas the former, not being Established, have no right: it was not suggested, however, that it was unlawful for a Roman Catholic church to have bells, but merely that the same rights and privileges did not attach to a non-Established church. Leading jurists consider that, despite the wording of the judgment, there is no legal right to ring the bells of an Established church indiscriminately and that even here the bells must not be rung so constantly and at such hours as to constitute a nuisance.

OBITUARY

MR. T. B. NEWTON

Ambleside, Westmorland, has sustained a great loss in the sudden death of Mr. Thomas B. Newton on Sunday, July 25th. Mr. Newton, who started ringing at the early age of 11 years, was a member of Ambleside Parish Church ringers for 44 years, and for the last 20 years was the captain of the band.

The funeral service took place at the Parish Church, Ambleside, and was preceded by muffled touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples. Before the coffin left the church a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells by four members of the local band.

The funeral was attended by ringers from Blackburn, Barrow, Bowness, Kendal, Langdale and Leicester.

DR. F. C. EELES

Our quarter peal column contains a tribute of respect to the memory of Dr. F. C. Eeles, secretary of the Central Council for the Care of Churches for 37 years. He maintained a friendly liaison with our Central Council, and upon many matters ventilated our point of view before Diocesan Advisory Committees. Since 1936 he had resided at Dunster, Somerset, and it was upon the day of his funeral, August 20th, that the bells of St. George's Church there were half-muffled.—Ed.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2266 Vol. L. . FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

FIRE!

By P. AMOS

FIRE can be a friend. It can also be a terrible enemy. Its disastrous effects during the six years of war, 1939-45, can still be seen, and many a sad heart resulted from it. What will no doubt be a memorial for years ahead of those days can be seen hanging in the tower of the ruined Church of St. Lawrence, Old Jewry (furnished as a chapel)—a bell cast from salvaged metal of the old bells, bearing the inscription, 'Ecce Post Ignem Vox,' meaning, 'After the fire, a still small voice'!

Some of us can think back further and recall what fire did in 1931 to the church at Eaton Socon, near St. Neots, Beds. At Wellingborough since the war a towerless church was the victim of mischievous children—fire destroyed the building, which has cost around £18,000 to reconstruct.

I was delving into histories of another church, not far from here, the other day—Souldrop, Beds, where apparently fire took toll of the edifice, which had to be rebuilt early in the 19th century. Yet for all this, I found up in that bell chamber (as I did a short time previously at Pertenhall close by) enough highly inflammable material—twige, hay, feathers, etc., carried by birds—to start a first-class blaze should a few sparks from a nearby burning hay or straw rick blow into this bell chamber and fall on to that mass of rubbish.

At Souldrop there were no louvres or wire protection of any kind and birds could enter at random. This state of affairs sometimes goes on for years, for two or three generations, and every year at the Visitations the churchwardens, whose responsibility it is to give a true report upon the state of the fabric and church furnishings (which includes the bells and their fittings), will give an O.K. report, or a mention only a dilapidations on the ground level—not troubling to go up into the bell chamber to see, as their responsibility it is, the truth of things for themselves, or even to call in knowledgeable advice if there happened to be no ringers. There must be hundreds of cases like this, especially in towers with but one, two, three or four bells.

What of those towers with more than four? It was said a short time ago by another writer that ringers in far too many cases show no interest in what is up in the bell chamber so long as there are six or more bells and they go all right! Truer words were never written, and it bestows shame upon us as a community, or as individuals, that it should have to be said that this is so. Such ringers are equally guilty as are those wardens who make out an O.K. report year after year when 'O.K.' is just a distortion of facts. To them the bell chamber is out of sight, but—not always out of danger! The casual bell archæologist is all too often the only person to bring some alarming situation to light. That ought not to be!

It would seriously astound, and alarm, many a reader to see the state of some of the bell chambers I have been in when from time to time out searching for history. Not only highly inflammable material from birds up to the waist and sometimes the crown of the bells (as at Pertenhall), but frames and headstocks are so rotted that, apart from fire dangers, it is really a miracle that the bells do not crash under their own weight. Only a report on the presence of death-watch beetle will, as a rule, shake the authorities out of their complacency—as it has done after many years at Marston Trussell, Northants. Straight words can do no harm; in fact, they are, in the end, very often appreciated. I have had evidence of this through the post only this morning (July 26th). A certain rector writes, 'I had no idea that the situation was so bad. I am calling a P.C.C. meeting next week. Thank you for all you have told me!'

So much for the efforts of individuals; but as Guilds what are we doing to counteract these situations? Some (like the guilty churchwardens with their reports) are content to say, 'What's the good of restoring all these bells or adding more when there are not enough ringers to ring them?' At a Guild meeting these same ringers will sing, 'Fight the good fight with all thy might.' Where is their consistency?

'Fire-fighters'—yes, they'll be there like a shot if fire should occur. But preservation fighters—'Oh, well, leave it to Mr. Smith or Mr. Jones, he'll do the necessary,' is often their attitude. As Guilds, we have the Central Council with its literature on the care and maintenance of bells and belfries, but how many clergy, especially where with only three or four bells, ever hear of this publication? We could do worse than to set aside a sum of money to print a leaflet and send it to every incumbent pointing out all the dangers which I have stated in this article, and it would be money well spent! We ought not to stop at the number of bells in any tower: the three or four-bell tower of to-day may easily become the five or six-bell tower of a year or two hence. Who knows if we show sufficient interest and co-operation?

Finally, we should do all in our power to correct and counteract the erroneous idea obsessed of some clergy and church councils 'that the installation of a chiming apparatus is a cure and the answer to all their belfry and bell chamber evils.' The apparatus will not prevent bells crashing under their own weight if left in frames and fittings riddled with worm and death-watch beetle for generations, sometimes for an indefinite period altogether. Some of us are alive to these facts, others are just slothful.

ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD SOCIETY

Little Aston a Tower of Great Promise

The summer meeting of the Society took place at Little Aston on August 21st. The small but beautiful church of St. Peter is delightfully situated in a sylvan setting, and the tower contains a pleasing, easy going ring of six bells.

This was the first visit of the Society to Little Aston, and the Vicar (Rev. H. H. Follis) and his young ringers had gone out of their way to ensure the success of the meeting.

The fully choral service, accompanied by the organist, Mr. E. Porter, was bright and cheerful, with a good address from the Vicar, and is is worthy of note that the Little Aston ringers are choristers as well.

Tea served in the Parish Hall and very kindly given by the Vicar, his lady helpers and the local band, was one of the most sumptuous which the members of the Society have enjoyed for some time. Thanks and appreciation to all concerned were duly expressed by Messrs. B. G. Key, K. W. Knowles and F. Bennett.

Ringing during the afternoon and evening was under the direction of the newly-appointed Ringing Master, Mr. Dennis Holden. The attendance of 49 (including the local band) was below average, and those who failed to attend missed one of the Society's most enjoyable meetings of recent years.

St. Peter's, Little Aston, is fortunate in having such an enthusiastic band of young ringers, whose efforts, not only for their own church, but for the Society, deserve special commendation.

The next meeting of the Society will be at Brewood on October 16th.

BELFRY GOSSIP

A correspondent writes: 'I have to-day visited the three most famous reference libraries in the North of England, viz., Manchester Corporation, the John Reynolds Library, Manchester, and the Picton Reference Library, Liverpool. All have numerous copies of the "Church Bells" series (Bells of Kent, Suffolk, etc.), but there is no publication of the Central Council in Manchester, and Liverpool has an old copy of the "Triples Collection" (1911, I think). I think the Central Council should do something about the matter.'

Mr. George Baker, of Brighton, will be 87 next October, and not 89 as was recently stated.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Raymond Philpott died on Tuesday afternoon at the Farnham (Surrey) County Hospital.

Mr. A. Patrick Cannon, having rung his 400th peal, has set himself the target of reaching the 500 mark in the next two years.

A new ring of bells will be dedicated at St. John's, Farnworth, near Bolton, on Saturday, September 11th, at 3 p.m.

A bracelet was left by a member of one of the outing parties to Burnham. Will the owner please write to George Gilbert, Burnham, Bucks, and it will be forwarded.

After the peal at Ancaster, Mr. and Mrs. W. Towns entertained the band to an excellent supper. They also sent their car to Silk Willoughby to fetch Mrs. Musson so that she could join in a happy evening.

Mr. F. G. Wilton, of Swindon, expresses thanks, through 'The Ringing World,' to the ringers of the Guildford area for making his recent stay at Guildford Fire Station so enjoyable and profitable.

When Miss Maureen Gillott was married at Whiston Parish Church on August 28th her bridegroom, Mr. P. Coote, of Rotherham Parish Church band, and his best man, Mr. Robin Rhodes, took part in the ringing prior to the service.

Mr. Colin J. Champion rang his 25th peal at Much Wenlock on August 9th.

The bells of St. Mark's, Jersey, will be broadcast on September 19th at 7.45 p.m.

The second 720 of the peal at Clive (reported on page 546) should read St. Clement's and Plain Bob, and not Double Oxford and Plain Bob. The peal at Market Drayton of Braunstone Surprise, reported on the same page, was accomplished in 2 hours and 57 minutes.

We regret to record the death of Mr. W. E. Herbert at Woburn, Beds, member of the Bedfordshire Association for 65 years. Details will appear in our next issue.

Congratulations to Miss Christine Ford, of Loughton, Essex, who scored her first peal at Harlow Common on August 26th. Christine has show a great enthusiasm for ringing and has already reached the realms of Cambridge Surprise and Stedman Cinques. This peal will surely be the first of many.

St. Bartholomew's, Colne, has rarely figured in 'The Ringing World,' the last peal having been rung there well before the war, despite the fact that the 'go' of the bells is good. An attempt for a peal was made on August 21st (he nearest available date to the patronal festival) but a rope broke after 40 minutes and there was insufficient time for a fresh start. A quarter peal was, however, scored. Afterwards Mr. William Heaton, of the local band, who had to stand down at short notice, entertained the ringers to a very good tea.

A KENT RINGING TOUR

THE party from the North and Midlands which in former years was under the guidance of J. E. Cawser, chose for their venue this year the lovely county of Kent, and right well it merited the choice. The party this year had one or two new faces, and some old friends had rejoined us, making ten in all from the upper part of the country.

The long journey south began at London Road Station, Manchester, whence the now familiar Dormobile had been piloted by Ann Worth. At about 12.30 p.m. we got under way with three of the tourists on board, stopping at Macclesfield to pick up our driver for the week, John Worth; then on to Newcastle-under-Lyme, where after a few minutes wait Fred Wilshaw joined us, and on we rolled to Birmingham, where near the Cathedral a tea-less trio of Birmingham ringers waited patiently at 4 p.m., while we had tea. Soon we were once more on the road, to our haven for the night, the Bell Hotel, Aylesbury. There dinner was ready for us and, needless to say, we were ready for it. This disposed of, a certain quartette expressed their desire for a stroll (?), and sallied forth on what turned out to be a remarkably short stroll, for a painted sign of some male animal beckoned them into a very comfortable room, and a rather hilarious evening ensued, to the delight of Rosemary, who, it is hoped, did not hear all the yarns swopped.

ROAD CONGESTION—A MISSED ATTEMPT

Saturday morning found us on the road in good time heading for Gillingham, and all went well until, some few miles from Rochester, it became evident there were other vehicles on the road beside ourselves, and eventually we found ourselves in an outsize traffic jam, which must have been some miles in length, and after nearly two hours there we moved slowly on to Gillingham, arriving at 12 noon, far too late to start for the first peal of the tour. So no ringing was to be had there, and the inner man having been fortified at a nearby cafe, we fought our way back through a rather lesser traffic block in Rochester, reaching Northfleet in time to find two more of our party awaiting us. Soon the bells were rolling out to Middleton's Cambridge, whist the organising secretary was highly delighted to encounter old friends who had turned up: Arthur G. Mason, who was to be with us for a few days, Herbert Audsley, whom the organising secretary had not met for some 26 years, and Wilfred Williams. The peal over without incident, the road was used once more to take us to our headquarters for the week, the Royal Oak, Sevenoaks, depositing on the way the Birmingham trio at a rather lesser 'pub,' on the pretext that the Royal Oak was full up.

Sunday found us at the Parish Church of Sevenoaks, where Miss Colgate and Mr. Collins warmly welcomed us to a comfortable ringing room, and we soon had this mellow old ring going to the tune of Bristol, Spliced Surprise, then Stedman. A morning stroll of great interest was then taken in the precincts of Knole House, now in the care of the National Trust, and when, watching the almost tame deer in the park, the organising secretary referred to the animals' head adornments as 'horns,' he was promptly informed that they were called antlers; he now knows that when he meets a bull he must take care to avoid its antlers!

The tower for the afternoon was Sittingbourne, and here we were very pleased indeed to meet Harry Parkes, the organising secretary getting into such deep conversation with him that he had to be reminded that a peal attempt was waiting. Yorkshire was duly rung, thus completing for George his century each of Cambridge and Yorkshire Surprise Major. Meanwhile Harry took the two 'spares' on what proved to be a very successful tower-grabbing expedition, together with a certain amount of grabbing of any local ringers who showed up, to augment the party. The peal over, some of the local company joined us to ring for evening service. A violent thunderstorm cut short the gossipers afterwards, and soon we were heading back to headquarters.

TENTERDEN NOT CHILD'S PLAY

On Monday morning we were heading south for Brenchley (via Kippings Cross!), the latter part of the journey being enlivened by a technical discussion between two method-minded ringers, probably invoked by the sight of signposts marked Capel and Horsmonden. After an inspection of the ropes and some minor adjustments, the bells were quickly set rolling to the sound of Bristol, with almost mechanical precision. The peal successfully accomplished, there remained only time to pay a very brief visit to the only other building of any size, undaunted by the large notice which declared, 'Gipsies not served here.' So very soon we were on our way to the next port of call, Tenterden. Lunch over, we had an inspection of this interesting town, the tower coming in for a great deal of attention.

At 5 p.m. we ascended the roomy tower, and the experts were taken upstairs by Harry to inspect the bells. It was then that we realised that this attempt was not going to be child's play. Tenterden's are a distinctly heavy ring, the treble weighing about 7 cwt. They are hung on the old-fashioned system of deep headstocks, which with big wheels carrying much rope means that good handling is essential. Harry's attention to the bearings ensured that the bells went well, and we appreciated his kindly thought for our comfort. Soon London was being heard, the conductor choosing one of Worsley's compositions with parted tenors, which may have sounded unfamiliar to the listeners for quite a while. This promised to be a peal to be remembered, though about half-way there seemed to be a bit of quarrelling going on upstairs, but this was the only blot on what otherwise was a grand performance. After the peal a tired band sought refreshment in the shape of an excellent meal at the Spinning Wheel, and after dissuading some of the members from seeking other places of rest, we made our way back to Sevenoaks.

AT CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL

On Tuesday the route lay along the Canterbury road as far as Chilham, where we were welcomed by the incumbent, the Rev. Sir Reginald Champion. After a look at the bells and a sorting out of possibles and impossibles, Superlative was chosen and was soon under way, while Muriel and the organising secretary watched the antics of a film unit making a reel of Chilham Square; unfortunately, as this was vision only, the Superlative will not be heard throughout the land. Canterbury was the next stop, and after a late lunch at the County Hotel the city was duly inspected despite the narrow, crowded streets, until at 4 p.m. we were guided to the ringing room by Mr. Unwin. The bells were raised, ropes adjusted, and a start was made for Cambridge Maximus; but after a few leads 'Stand' was called, the tenor man calling for a slower tempo. Perhaps he was tired after his efforts at Tenterden on the previous evening. After 3 hours and 51 minutes 'Stand' was called by the conductor, and we were all very pleased to have rung a peal in this historic Cathedral. Mark Lancefield rang the treble for us, his previous twelve-bell ringing having been limited to rounds, Fred Wilshaw had rung his first of Surprise Maximus, and Arthur Mason had renewed acquaintance with the method on twelve after a lapse of 30 years. It was also the conductor's 100th peal on twelve bells.

On Wednesday morning Wye proved to be a tower well suited for an attempt at Spliced, and all seemed to be going well, but it turned out to be our first failure. The Vicar met us afterwards and proved to be very understanding of the needs of man after a peal attempt. The Bridge Cafe attended to our more substantial needs, and we rolled on to Ashford to ring an almost immaculate peal of London, albeit rather slower than peals rung by the resident ringers. Mr. Everett, who has worked hard for so long to keep ringing going here, met us, and saw that everything was in readiness. Without wasting any time, we hurried back for dinner at headquarters, so that advantage could be taken of Miss Colgate's success in obtaining permission for us to have three-quarters of an hour's ringing at Sevenoaks; after which a pleasant evening was spent in the company of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Collins and Wilfred Williams.

A GOOD PEAL AT QUEX PARK

Thursday morning found us en route for Wingham, where the incumbent met us and provided audience for the preparations. The band then settled down in earnest to ring a peal of 4-Spliced, which was never in doubt, another good peal resulting, while the spares, together with Arthur Mason, went in search of a 'cuppa.' After the peal Arthur piloted us to the Beresford Hotel at Birchington, where he invited us to a splendid lunch, a gesture deeply appreciated by all. Tracks were then made for Quex Park and a hunt made for the Bell Tower, which proved to be rather elusive, until some one spotted the weather vane above the trees! After a look at the bells, and a hunt for oil lamps, the bells were raised, and an attempt made to adjust the sound effects, but this was not very successful, the four sound turrets, which are built right up to the bells, defeating our efforts in that respect. After settling down, a good peal resulted in rather slow time; despite their lightness, these bells are not to be hurried. Mark Lancefield rang his first of Surprise Maximus on an 'inside' bell, and the feat of progressing from rounds on twelve to Surprise Maximus in three days is a record to be proud of. Perhaps it is not too much to expect to hope that this might be the foundation stone of a peal of Surprise Maximus by an entirely resident band, though it will not be easy; it means unity of purpose of an unprecedented order.

Friday was a long trek, and we were not surprised to be late at St. Lawrence-in-Thanet, where Arthur Mason and the local company already had the bells raised for us. Here we were pleased to meet George Butcher on holiday—we had missed him at Northfleet, but this now made amends. Rope adjustments made we were soon going to the tune of Cambridge Royal in the tittums, and with that redoubtable pair from Birmingham, George Bannister Fearn and Clifford Landy Barron, on the tenors, quick going was indicated, and the bells ran round in just under three hours. Lunch at the Rising Sun was enlivened by dialogue in Cockney (genuine) and Yorkshire (synthetic) dialects, which proved to be highly amusing.

Leeds was our next stop, and the bells in this huge tower proved to be quite good going, in spite of the fact that it is nearly 50 years since they were restored by Bowell. This tower has no louvres, and it may well have been the first tower to have an acoustic lantern. Two of the ropes here are rather tricky, and it caused amusement when one ringer lost his sally, ultimately finding it behind him! Ralph Edwards joined us here, and after much persuasion kindly consented to ring the tenor, which he did in his usual immaculate style; Tom Cullingworth also joined us, to ring his first peal of Yorkshire Royal, though the organising sec-

HERTS COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Northern District at St. Ippolyts

A most enjoyable meeting was held at St. Ippolyts on Saturday, August 28th. The church is dedicated to St. Hippolytus, but the signposts all spell it Ippollitts.

Ringing commenced promptly at 3 o'clock, followed by a service conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. A. A. Symmington.

Tea was provided by Mr. A. Harris, leader of the local band, and Mrs. Harris and helpers, and this once again proved too much for the younger generation, as plates of food were left over.

The Vicar took the chair for the business meeting, when it was proposed to hold the next meeting at Rushden, Sandon and Wallington with the special method, Dunedin Delight. If this goes as well as Kirkstall the District will do well.

Owing to unforeseen circumstances, it was agreed that the joint meeting with the Biggleswade District be held at Hitchin on October 23rd and not October 30th.

The meeting closed with the usual vote of thanks to the Rector and to the ladies who had provided the tea. This was greeted with acclamation.

Further ringing continued until 9 o'clock, when the bells were lowered in peal. Methods rung ranged from rounds to London Surprise. The sum of 17s. 6d. was collected for the General Fund.

Towers represented were Baldock, Biggleswade, Cardington, Clifton, Enfield, Great Wymondley, Hitchin, Henlow, Houghton Conquest, Norton, St. Albans, Silsoe, Stotfold, Walkern, Welwyn and the local tower.

retary thought that by the way he rang he must have rung a dozen.

A BROKEN ROPE AND CLAPPER

For Saturday we had Edenbridge and Westerham. The former's are the peal ringer's dream, soft in the ringing room, quiet outside, just the right weight, and perfect 'go.' All seemed set for another peal of Spliced, but it was not to be, for after two and a half hours of really good ringing the conductor called 'Stand,' with the major portion of a broken rope around his feet We were all very disappointed, but this is all part of a ringer's day. After an enjoyable lunch at Westerham we made out way to the Parish Church. For this attempt the band had been made a mixed one, being strengthened by Messrs. T. E. Sone, H. E. Audsley and A. G. Mason. Soon Yorkshire was on the way to a steady beat, but this was unlucky, too, for after 50 minutes' ringing a broken clapper put an end to the tour in Kent. Soon we went our devious ways, and the last occupants of the Dormobile found their destination at 2 a.m.

We hope we satisfied our Kentish friends; they more than satisfied us, and everything possible for us was done, and probably more would have been done for the asking. Our attempts were spread out over the county, for we did not wish to concentrate on a small area, though that would certainly have meant far less travelling; as it was we covered over a thousand miles, but with the satisfaction of not spoiling the residents' own limited opportunities for peals, hoping to match in this respect the great efforts they made for us. For a week they gave us the freedom of their lovely county, its soft summer air, and, by a miracle, its sunny weather. We shall not easily forget this very English Corner of England. E. J.

EXPLORING THE UNKNOWN

By P. AMOS

CHOOSE the corners of any county and you are almost sure to find towers seldom visited, too wide of the mark for many Guilds' activities, or where lack of such activity has resulted in no progress so far as bell restorations and augmentations are concerned.

In my travels to over 1,000 churches (298 of these with under five bells) I have gleaned much history, and the north corners of Bedfordshire are no exception.

From a point north of Sharnbrook it can be said that no ringing activity exists. Except for the unringable fives at Wymington and Swineshead practically all the churches in the two bulges of North Bedfordshire have three, four, and in some cases two or one bell.

EAYRES OF KETTERING

Let us take first of all the case of Yelden with four bells ! When I visited this low broached steeple I found what I had been looking for for a long time—one of the very first bells of the Eayres of Kettering, dated 1717, the year in which it is said they added bell founding to their trade of clock-making. I had previously found one of 1718 at East Farndon, Northants, and many of later dates, but from this bell at Yelden I learned two things; the Eayres had evidently not made up their minds as to how and where to inscribe their names on their first bells. On the bell at East Farndon (the third of their five) is T. E.—the initials of Thomas Eayre sen.—inscribed on the rim of the bell. On the bell at Yelden (the third of their four) is T. and J. Eayre inscribed on the crown, where the cannons join, of all places—the first I had seen with an inscription on top of the bell.

A learned friend of the Archives Committee, from whom I often get requests for bell history, having earlier asked for details of the Eayres' first and last bells, naturally found this, and one other, with which I shall deal later, of immense interest. On the waist of this Yelden bell is inscribed 'October, 1717.' Can this be the first bell of the Eayres'? If not, it must certainly be one of their first. The question may be asked, 'Who was the J designated to, John or Joseph?' It is most sure to have been John, who was the uncle of Thomas sen. and of Joseph. Joseph does not come into the picture until 1735.

John, who was a clockmaker with Thomas sen died in 1718, shortly after the Kettering bell foundry was established, and so this Yelden bell must go down in history as being one of the very few which John took a hand in casting. Of the other three bells at Yelden, the second, bearing the inscription of John Taylor, of Loughborough, 1885, is actually a recast of 'a very bad bell' by Bryanus Eldridge (probably from his Coventry foundry rather than his Chertsey foundry) dated 1660.

HUGH WATTS, OF LEICESTER

Both the treble and the tenor are bells by that renowned founder, Hugh Watts, sen., of Leicester—the treble, dated 1617, and the tenor, which is 1610, bearing the letters of the alphabet, A, B, C, D, E, F, G, etc., together with Watts' stamp of three bells and a crown inside a shield. John Taylor fitted all four bells with new framework in oak, and new fittings, in 1885. The tenor is about 6½ cwt. in B flat. They are ringable.

Next we come to Shelton, noted for its inn with the peculiar name—The Cat and Custard Pot. The church here is a gem of antiques in a number of ways. Its antique pews and its old porch straightway catch the eye, as does its low, west-end tower, capable of five or six light bells, but with only three, the tenor again in the region of 6½-7 cwt. This is another of Watts' bells with his favourite inscription, 'Nazarenus Rex Ideorum File Dei Miserere Mei,' and 1634, around the rim The treble, with 'Praise the Lord, 1599,' is possibly one by Francis Watts, predecessor of Hugh. This bell is one of a few which the firm of Barimar, of London, in 1926, tried their skill at scientific welding, like the seventh at St. Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich, and the old tenor at Stoke Goldington, Bucks, which had to be recast two years ago. I must say that this bell at Shelton shows no sign of where it was cracked and welded, and its note is not all that bad as one would imagine.

Of the second, we again come to some more history of the Eayres. Whereas the bell at Yelden is possibly their first casting, the second at Shelton is likely to be their last, for it bears the inscription, 'Joseph Eayre, 1770.' In that year Joseph died, handing on his business at St. Neots to Edward Arnold. The Kettering foundry of Thomas, sen., and later Thomas, jun., ceased early in 1762, when Joseph, who left his brother in 1735 to go to St. Neots, had to be called in to finish the work upon the bells of Lilbourne, Northants, which Thomas, jun., had in hand at the time when he is said to have been bankrupt. Lilbourne's bells (4) were in 1761-62 made five and here again was a bad bell by Eldridge of 1658—the then tenor. It is likely that this second bell at Shelton was originally the same as the tenor—a 1634 bell, and that Joseph Eayre recast it in 1770.

A DEPLORABLE SIGHT

Pertenhall is another North Bedfordshire steeple which holds a gem of history—the first (or one of the first) bells which Thomas Russell, the bell founder of Wootton, Bedfordshire, cast. Russell was in business at Wootton from 1716 to 1745, and this bell, the second of Pertenhall's three, is dated 1716.

Never before have I seen so much rubbish as I witnessed in this steeple—a disgrace to such a fine broached structure (capable of eight bells) with a fine church in picturesque surroundings, out of all keeping with what I found immediately I tried to open the door leading up to the belfry. I had to use force to enter — twigs up the stairs and under the bells enough to fill a three-ton lorry. A letter of mine to the Rector pointing out the danger in the event of fire, brought the reply, 'I blush at the sight of what you point out, but I can get no one interested to move it.'

These three bells are a minor three. The tenor is by the Chandlers, of Drayton Parslow, Bucks, inscribed, 'Chandler made me. 1863.' The second bears the names of the churchwardens as well as Thomas Russell, of Wootton, 1716. It is a disgrace to see this historic bell engulfed in rubbish half way up to the waist, and the treble is even worse—rubbish right up to the crown. This bell's inscription reads, 'Robeart Smith, Edward Pecoke, churchwardens. William Hull made me. 1666.' Hull was a London bell founder from 1654 to 1672. The tenor is about 9 cwt.

I hope as the result of a 'straight from the shoulder communication' to the Rector (who also serves Swineshead, with five derelict bells), I have 'planted an acorn' in these two parishes, which we may see grow into an 'oak tree' very soon, despite the fact that Pertenhall has an appeal for £1,620 for roof replacement.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

BY FERRY TO RING

Dear Sir,—I have gathered some very happy memories during my 34 years' ringing career, but I think 1954 will prove the most interesting.

Our summer holidays were spent at Salcombe, in South Devon. After the usual investigations concerning ringing facilities, I found that the lovely floodlit tower of Salcombe Parish Church only contained one bell. However, I also found out that East Portlemouth, across the estuary, had a ring of bells.

Out early one Sunday morning, my wife and I got down to the ferry landing stage. Twelve passengers a time is the order, but we were soon across and climbing the very steep lane to the church. It was hard going but well worth the effort to see the marvellous view from the top. I found a very handy six in the 'Tower on the Hill' and was invited to stand in. We pulled up in peal, rang Devon call changes for 25 minutes, and down again in peal.

After an enjoyable service we descended and caught the ferry back to Salcombe, just right for dinner. So very nice, we repeated the excursion the next Sunday. Many thanks to Devon call change ringers.

ARTHUR BIGLEY.

'A HOSTILE LAND'

Dear Sir,—May I, through the columns of 'The Ringing World,' thank my friend, the Rev. W. H. R. Trewhella, for so ably replying to the anonymous writer who called Cornwall 'a hostile land.' As a 'foreigner' who has spent many happy holidays in the Delectable Duchy I have always found the Cornish a very friendly and hospitable race of people, and wherever I have gone to ring I have always been welcomed, both by the incumbents and the local ringers. If anonymous letters are not permitted, neither should anonymous articles when they are used for abuse.—Yours sincerely,

E. T. P. FIELD.

Long Sutton, Somerset.

'THE NINE TAILORS'

Dear Sir,—On August 24th, practice night at Bowdon, Cheshire, started half an hour earlier than usual, so that neither the ringing practice nor 'The Nine Tailors' should be missed. At eight o'clock prompt, ringing ceased; all sat round a portable wireless set, kindly brought up the tower specially for the occasion by one of the ringers.

The play was enjoyed by all, especially the three leads of Kent Treble Bob which, besides being a joy to listen to, set the example for the rest of the evening's ringing, when the striking showed signs of great improvement.

As the last touch came round, two gentlemen entered the ringing chamber, one an American on a short visit to this country; their interest had been aroused by Dorothy Sayers' play.

It would be interesting to know if any recruits are enlisted through this radio advertisement.—Yours faithfully.

A. J. BROWN.

A PRIME NUMBER!

Dear Sir,—I would like, through the columns of 'The Ringing World,' to congratulate Pat Cannon on reaching another landmark in his remarkable ringing career. It must give him great satisfaction to have at last rung in his 1,823rd tower. I am sure all your readers look forward to his next achievement. Incidentally, the only thing I can find of interest about 1,823 is that it appears to be a prime number.—Yours faithfully,

RICHARD F. B. SPEED.

THE BELLS OF LUNDY

Dear Sir,—Mr. Patrick Chapman's letter in your issue of August 27th is most interesting. 'The Times' appears to have published a report which is not correct. I did not see any account in 'The Daily Telegraph,' which is the paper I usually rely on.

The Editor's note is quite correct; yes, Mr. Editor, quite correct, and I can add little to it except to say that you have put it somewhat mildly.

The tower of the Church of St. Helena is a disgrace, and nothing is done from year to year to remedy the defects, most of which are caused by heavy seas and salt water spray.

I know of no restoration scheme and, if there happened to be one, who would ring, there being a population of about 20 on the Island, and that includes the staff of two lighthouses?

More and up-to-date information might be obtained from the priest-in-charge, the Vicar, The Vicarage, Appledore, N. Devon.

I visit the Island most summers, and last year found the board recording the peal rung in 1905 to be in bad condition. I went over again armed with turpentine, linseed oil, etc., and spent some two hours cleaning it up as well as I could, but further attention is required if the board is to be preserved, as I hope it will.

I should have gone over last week had not the steamer developed paddle trouble in the Bristol Channel, but I have every intention of making the voyage within the next few weeks, and then I can give more up-to-date information, although I feel certain there will be little to add to previous reports and the Editor's note.

You may ask, what is this to do with me—someone who is not interested in peals? The answer is, I have the photographs and records (which belonged to the late Canon Coleridge) of the memorable trip to the Island on August 23rd, 1905, when I was a boy of 9 years.

A full account of the journey was published in 'The Bell News' of September 2nd, 1905.

Nearly 50 years have passed by and can we, on the 50th anniversary, which will be August 23rd next year, do something about the peal board and possibly arrange a visit, with handbells?

H. J. CANN (Major).

Bridgwater, Somerset.

Dear Sir,—When staying on Lundy Island in 1951 I climbed the tower and found that the bells were unringable and that obviously some hundreds of pounds would be required to put them in order. I was, therefore, astonished to read Mr. Chapman's letter in 'The Ringing World' of August 27th, in which he says 'The Times' reported that they had been rung recently for a wedding. Accordingly I wrote to Mr. F. W. Gade, the manager of the very comfortable hotel on Lundy, to find out what had occurred, and his reply, received August 31st, says that Mr. S. Johns, one of the ringers of Stoke, Hartland, who has been working on Lundy, attached cords to the clappers and showed some amateur ringers how to chime for the wedding.

Unfortunately, it seems extremely unlikely that this ring of bells can ever be rung again in the true sense of the word, as long as it remains on Lundy, firstly because of the prohibitive cost of rehanging, and secondly because the population of Lundy could not provide the necessary ringers. I have, therefore, wondered whether the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have ever considered disposing of them and using the proceeds towards the badly-needed renovation of the church itself.—Yours faithfully.

EDITH LOMAS.

BELLS RUNG IN 1927

Dear Sir,—Like your correspondent, Mr. Patrick Chapman, I was interested to read in the press that the church bells on Lundy were rung for a wedding recently.

I visited this wind-swept island two years ago and recall seeing in the porch of St. Helen's Church the board recording the first, and I presume the only, peal to take place there. It was one of 5,040 Stedman Triples, in which the Rev. F. E. Robinson and Canon G. F. Coleridge took part. The words on this weather-beaten board were just legible, and I think the date was about 1908.

Quoting from the 'Guide Book of Lundy,' by J. Watt Smyrk, 6th Edition (February, 1950), which was the latest in 1952, 'No rector was formally inducted until 1927, when the Bishop of Exeter visited the island with a choir and band of bellringers from Ilfracombe. The ring consisted of eight bells, which have since been taken down because the frequent gales rendered their presence in the tower unsafe.'—Yours sincerely,

D. A. NEWCOMBE.

A STATE OF DECAY

Dear Sir,—Some two years ago I was talking about Lundy and its bells to Mrs. Keast, wife of the headmaster of Frensham Heights School, Surrey, whose father is the owner of the island.

She said the church, dedicated to St. Helena, was under the jurisdiction of the Vicar of Appledore, but that a good deal of neglect was apparent in the church and that rats and mice had caused much damage to curtains, kneelers and the back of the organ.

Mrs. Keast did not seem to know much about the bells but I should imagine that if there is such a state of decay in the church itself there would not have been much done in the way of bell restoration.

W. J. PAICE.

BELLS WERE CLOCKED

Dear Sir,—I am in a position to be able to answer Mr. Chapman's query ('Ringing World,' August 27th, 1954).

On the occasion of the wedding on Lundy the bells were 'clocked' by a local inhabitant.

The fittings and frame are in an advanced state of decay.

I can assure any would-be 'snatchers' that if there were any chance of ringing these bells, it would have been taken some time ago.—Sincerely yours,

E. J. ROWE.

Tottenham, N.15.

A NATIONAL SERVICE REMEMBRANCE

Dear Sir,—Having recently completed National Service my I, through 'The Ringing World,' express my appreciation for the very pleasant time spent during my 17 months in the Huntingdon area.

During my stay I had the pleasure of partaking in several peals, quarters and regular Sunday Service ringing in and around the county, due mainly to the keenness of Harold S. Peacock, that very efficient secretary of the Hunts District of the Ely Diocesan Association, of whom the Branch should be proud. Thank you, also, William J. Ridgman, of Arrington, ringers at Somershall, Holywell, Hemingford Abbots, and many others with whom I had the pleasure of ringing.—Yours sincerely,

NORMAN MALLETT.

ANSWERS WANTED

We propose to start a column of questions and answers. Those replying should write as concisely as possible.

(1) Who is (or was) E. W. Tipler, and can any of his works be purchased? If so, where?

(2) What was the origin of Erin Triples?

B.B.C. TAKE ACTION

Dear Sir,—I note that in your issue of August 27th Mr. H. J. Sanger complains of the lack of co-operation which the Central Council of Church Bell Ringers has received from the B.B.C. in the matter of information about bell broadcasts.

We have now taken steps to ensure that you are kept as fully informed as possible of all broadcasts of church bells, in connection with broadcast and televised services or otherwise.

We are, of course, most interested to hear that the Council has elected a committee to deal with broadcasting and television and would like to assure you of our desire to give all the help that we can.—Yours faithfully,

F. L. COBB,
Publicity Officer.

ROCHESTER CATHEDRAL BAND

Dear Sir,—Through the columns of 'Tthe Ringing World' I should like to express my regret to Mr. Cyril Jarrett, of Chatham, and Mr. Trevor Cross, of Rainham, that owing to the bad striking of the Ringing Master and myself at Rochester Cathedral they are unable to attend any ringing there.

The statement was made to the secretary of the Cathedral Company after a practice at St. Mary's, Chatham, on August 25th.

After 50 years at Chatham and 32 years at Rochester. I would be glad of some advice on the matter. I am not anxious to stand in any peals he may arrange. The Dean of Rochester is the deciding factor for granting permission to use the bells.—Fraternally yours,,

CHARLES NORRIS,
Steeplekeeper, Rochester Cathedral.
Chatham.

'WINCHESTER SURPRISE'

Dear Sir,—No doubt Mr. Sedgley will be told that the method of Royal he suggests is entirely a different method from the Major, which is quite true. Should the author of Major and Royal, as published in 'The Ringing World,' be one and the same person, I beg to tell him; or her, that judged by the mathematical progression of Double Bob Major the Royal given contains only 20 round blocks related to the Major, the first and last ten rows of the Royal.

Double Bob has a mathematical progression in its round blocks of 3412—4321 to infinity.

I have extensions to Royal and Maximus, with a different lead head, of Winchester Major with the same progression as Double Bob!—Yours faithfully, GEORGE BAKER

Brighton.

RINGING IN CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORLAND

Dear Sir,—The author of the above article may be interested to know that the first peal to be rung in the county of Westmorland was at Kendal in 1796.

From 1796 until 1894 exactly 12 peals of Triples and one of Caters were rung at this tower by local bands.

The 1796 peal and several others are recorded on boards in the ringing room, and all these boards are in excellent condition.—Yours, etc., EDWIN JENNINGS.

Braintree.

NOMENCLATURE!

Dear Sir,—I am not a dog breeder, but in case I should decide to become one later, I have registered the name 'Treblebob' at the Kennel Club for my exclusive use. My present cocker spaniel, although generally known as Sally Ann, rejoices in the exotic official name of 'Lady Vega of Treblebob.'

Unlike Miss Churchill, nobody has yet asked me what it means, as not many people know.—Yours sincerely, V. T. O. BOASE.

Wallasey, Cheshire.

WEDDINGS

Mr. A. J. L. Bradshaw—Miss J. J. Black

The wedding took place at Geddington Parish Church on Saturday, Aug. 28th, of Mr. Arnold James Lewis Bradshaw, only son of Mrs. Bradshaw, of Kettering, to Miss Jennifer Jean Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Black, of Geddington.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended by Miss B. Bradshaw and Miss M. Baxter. There were two child train bearers—Miss Linda Glennis and Master D. Hearn.

The bride is a Sunday School teacher and a bellringer at Geddington, and the bells were rung as they left the church by her fellow ringers. After the reception at the Village Hall a quarter peal was rung and is recorded on page 583.

On returning from their honeymoon at Penzance they will reside at 89, Midland Road, Wellingborough.

Mr. J. D. Clarke—Miss P. C. Martin

At Whatton-in-the-Vale Church, Notts, on Saturday, August 28th, the wedding took place of Mr. John David Clarke, of Whatton, and Miss Pamela C. Martin, of Stapleford. The bridegroom is a prominent member of the local band, and his bride is learning to ring. Following local custom, the pair were rung both 'in' and 'out' of church, the ropes being manned by the local band and Nottingham friends.

Ringers also officiated as best man (Mr. Allan Simpson) and chief bridesmaid (Miss Joan E. Hoodless) and the former complimented the ringers on their striking both before and after the ceremony.

Guests at the reception, numbering 100, sat down to a bountiful repast. After the toasts, the guests were delighted to hear the handbells rung by the chief bridesmaid, best man and two Nottingham ringers, all of whom, following the departure of the bridal couple to Bournemouth for their honeymoon, finished off a good day by taking part in a peal of Stedman Triples at Daybrook as a parting send-off to their happy friends.

Rev. J. G. M. Scott—Miss C. A. Isles

A member of the Central Council representing the Guild of Devonshire Ringers, the Rev. John Gilbert Mortimer Scott, of St. Thomas', Exeter, was married at the beautiful new Church of All Saints, Hanworth, Middlesex, on August 26th to Miss Claire Alice Isles, of Hanworth.

The bridegroom's father, the Rev. John Mortimer Scott, officiated at the wedding service, which included the hymn 'Father, hear the prayer we offer' sung as a processional with the entry of the bride, who was attended by her sister. Psalm 67 was sung, and following the Benediction, the hymn, 'May the grace of Christ our Saviour.'

A celebration of the Holy Communion to the setting of Merbecke followed with the Rev. Mr. Shergold as celebrant. During the signing of the register the chorale prelude, 'Sleepers, Wake!' (J. S. Bach) was rendered and the Bourree from the 'Water Music' (Handel) was played by the organist as a recessional. Mr. H. Reed, of Exeter, was best man.

As there is only one bell at All Saints' Church ringers could not make their usual contribution to the service, but a peal in honour of the event was rung at Exeter.

It is understood that the bridegroom has accepted the appointment of priest-in-charge of Wolborough, near Newton Abbot.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION

Bolton Branch at Newchurch

For some time now Bolton Branch of the Lancashire Association have enjoyed successful meetings and, as in other matters, there are outstanding features, the meeting at Newchurch, near Warrington, on August 28th was in this category.

The church, rebuilt on the site of an old church, is not dedicated to a patron saint. It has a low tower with eight very good bells and a ringing chamber like a parlour. The walls are beautifully panelled in oak and the floor carpeted.

There was a large attendance, both sexes, very young and not so young. There were visitors from the neighbouring branches, College Youths, Cumberlands. Three Guilds were represented, viz., Manchester and London Universities and Chester.

The early arrivals rang quite a number of Minor methods, followed by Grandsire, Stedman and Erin Triples, and in the Major methods were Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob, Spliced Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, Double Norwich, Cambridge, Superlative, Bristol and London Surprise.

The striking in the higher methods was of a very high order, which drew out many complimentary remarks. This striking must have created in the minds of the learners something which they hope to achieve. There was something for everyone, every request was fulfilled, the learners got just as much as the more accomplished. Nobody envied the Ringing Master, Peter Crook, his job.

A splendid tea was provided by the Parochial Church Council, and all received a cordial welcome from the Rector, who himself is a pupil in the art.

A vote of thanks was accorded to all who had helped to make the meeting a success, also for providing and serving the food.

Members were reminded that a new ring of bells will be dedicated at 3 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 11th, at St. John's, Farnworth, nr. Bolton.

OBITUARY

DR. F. C. EELES

Reference was made in our last issue to the death of Dr. Francis Carolus Eeles, of Earlham, Dunster, who died at the age of 78, on August 17th, the day before his resignation from the secretaryship of the Central Council for the Care of Churches was due to take effect.

In 1917 Dr. Eeles was appointed hon. secretary to the Central Council for the Care of Churches, and two years later became full-time paid secretary. In conjunction with Sir Cecil Harcourt and others he was the creator of the system of Diocesan Advisory Committees for the Care of Churches, which in 1938 were given statutory authority.

During the 37 years he was secretary he had inspected and advised on the restoration or maintenance of some 10,000 churches, cathedrals and other buildings. In the early months of the last war one of the responsibilities that fell upon Dr. Eeles was to arrange safe storage in Somerset of London church treasures of historic or artistic importance. As the result innumerable lorry loads of such objects were sent. These ranged from church bells, which were sent to Cleeve Abbey, to precious artistic fittings and important archives, the latter being stored at Earlham.

Another war-time task of Dr. Eeles was to build up on systematic lines a collection of photographs, plans, sketches, etc., and other records of the churches of the country, so that in the event of any of them being damaged or destroyed by enemy action, they could be completely restored. This collection came to 170,000 files and was kept in safe custody at Earlham and Dunster Priory.

Dr. Eeles was a noted antiquarian. The degrees of D.Litt. of Oxford University and LL.D., of St. Andrew's University had been conferred upon him and he was appointed an O.B.E. in the Birthday Honours of 1938.

A TRIBUTE

Dr. Francis C. Eeles had a life-long interest in church bells. Almost his earliest publication was 'The Church Bells of Kincardineshire' in 1897, and in 1913 he added an equally careful and meticulous account of 'The Church Bells of Linlithgowshire.' At his death he had a great deal of material in hand towards listing the bells of other Scottish coupties which he longed to complete. However, by the time the Linlithgowshire inventory was published he had moved South, and was working in the Victoria and Albert Museum. He joined with the late H. B. Walters, perhaps the greatest bell-antiquary we have had in this country, in making a MSS inventory of the church bells of Middlesex, which never found publication, and must still be in existence somewhere. His love of church bells was part of a wide interest in everything to do with churches and their furniture. During the first war he became hon. secretary of the Central Council for the Protection of Churches, of which he was also a founder, and through it gradually brought into existence the Diocesan Advisory Committees for the Care of Churches which now exist in 42 of the English and several of the Welsh Dioceses, as well as, in a rather different form, in Scotland. In 1924 he was appointed secretary. Through this system he strove for 38 years to safeguard all that was best worth preserving in our churches, the ancient and beautiful goods they contain, and the good old customs connected with them. Old ringing customs especially interested him, and he always encouraged their continuance.

Dr. Eeles knew the bells of most of the principal founders by their marks and characteristics to a remarkable degree, and could never resist climbing about in the belfry of any church he was visiting, even towards the end of his life when severely hampered by a deformed spine. The preservation of old bells he fought hard to enforce, and at his instigation the Central Council passed some strong resolutions against the recasting of bells earlier than 1750, scrapping of old and interesting wooden frames if they could be in any way preserved and kept in use, and more especially against the mockery of mechanical bell-substitutes. Nothing made him more angry than a parish whose ringers did not know the date, the founder and the historic value of their own bells, or a bell founder who failed to state these facts in a specification for recasting. Dr. Eeles was awarded the O.B.E. for his work on the care of churches, and its great value was also recognised by two honorary degrees of Doctors of Letters from Lambeth, and Doctor of Laws from St. Andrew's for his work in Scotland.

It was very appropriate that after the funeral on Aug. 20th the Dunster ringers should pay their tribute by ringing a half-muffled peal on the bells of St. George's Church, where Dr. Eeles frequently assisted in the Sunday services until ill-health prevented him from doing so.

MR. HERBERT JERMY

Survivors of the ringing company of the 'blitzed' Church of St. Nicholas, Great Yarmouth, lost one of their stalwarts when Mr. Herbert Jermy died on August 20th, aged 70 years.

A native of Bungay, Suffolk, he moved to Yarmouth in 1920 and became a member of St. Nicholas' band in the following year. He had taken part in nine peals for the Norwich Diocesan Association.

Never aspiring to great ringing heights, Herbert Jermy was a devoted Sunday service ringer and although he invariably 'blew the tenor' from Doubles to Cinques, he could occasionally on practice nights be persuaded to hunt the treble. When he was 'on the box' for a touch or a peal the rest of the band knew the 30½ cwt. tenor would set the pace with a sure and measured beat.

It was, however, as steeplekeeper, which he was in every sense of the word, that he was perhaps best known and truly found his mark. Not many Saturday afternoons passed without his ascending the tower to attend to one or other of the several maintenance tasks in which he took a just pride.

His ringing career ceased with the war-time ban, and when his charges were destroyed in June, 1942, he felt it keenly and after the war he could not be prevailed upon to ring elsewhere, although he read 'The Ringing World' to the last.

So passed another faithful servant of the Church and of the Exercise. J. G. W. H.

MR. ALBERT EDWARD NORMAN

The announcement in 'The Ringing World' of the death of Mr. Albert Edward Norman, of Worcester, at the age of 52 years, came as an unexpected shock to his many friends in the Midlands, particularly to those in Birmingham.

'Bert' or 'The Pup,' as he was familiarly called, passed way suddenly early on July 24th, he having been at work until his usual time the previous day. During the night he complained of feeling unwell. This he thought was indigestion. He arose early, as usual, and was found dead in his chair by his wife. The cause of death was coronary thrombosis.

A man of fine physique, Mr. Norman was a carpenter by trade and came to Birmingham from Swindon early in 1917. He joined the St. Martin's Guild with whom he rang many peals on tower- and handbells. The deepest sympathy of his friends is extended to his widow, son, daughter, daughter-in-law and his aged parents, left to mourn his loss.

Bert was a splendid ringer and conductor, equally at home in the tower at the light or heavy end, and a very reliable handbell ringer on any pair of bells. His first peal, Stedman Triples, in December, 1917, was followed by many on eight, ten and twelve bells. Among them he rang 11-12 in the famous peal on handbells, Stedman Sextuples, by the St. Martin's Guild on June 24th, 1922, this being the first peal ever rung on 14 bells. His 100th peal, Stedman Cinques, on handbells, he conducted from 3-4 on his 21st birthday, April 5th, 1923. Others of his peals included the first on the augmented 12 bells of Exeter Cathedral rung by the Guild on July 5th, 1924, the 'silent' peal of Stedman Cinques rung by the Guild on handbells when the position for the first five pairs of bells was drawn for out of the 'hat' (December 15th, 1933) and a 'silent' peal of Stedman Triples on tower bells at Erdington on October 23rd, 1938.

In 1939 Mr. Norman left Birmingham for Worcester and only rang two more peals—Stedman Cinques at Walsall and Evesham. His list of peals totals 178 on tower- and handbells in a variety of methods, and is of interest:—

Tower bells:—

Triples.—Grandsire 6, Stedman 30 (conducted 6 and one non-conducted).

Major.—Plain Bob 6, Double Norwich 9 (3), Kent Treble Bob 3 (1), Cambridge 4 (1), London 1, Bristol 1 (1).

Caters.—Grandsire 6 (4), Stedman 8 (1).

Royal.—Kent Treble Bob 1, Cambridge 6 (1).

Cinques.—Grandsire 1 (1), Stedman 39 (5).

Maximus.—Cambridge 6.

Total.—127 (conducted 24 and one non-conducted).

Handbells:—

Triples: Stedman 1. Caters: Grandsire 1, Stedman 5 (1). Royal: Kent Treble Bob 1. Cinques: Stedman 41 (7 and one non-conducted). Maximus: Kent Treble Bob 1. Sextuples: Stedman 1.

Total.—51 (conducted 8 and one non-conducted). A. W.

MR. S. HOOPER

We regret to record the death of Mr. Sidney Hooper at the age of 62. He was a lifelong ringer at St. Andrew's Church, Stratton, Cornwall. Although not a change ringer, he was most regular at all practices and Sunday ringing.

Mr. Hooper was first taken ill when pulling the tenor on Sunday, August 22nd, and died on the following Wednesday morning. A half-muffled peal was rung immediately after the burial service. his fellow ringers acting as bearers. The Marhamchurch captain (Mr. J. Hicks) was represented by his son, Mr. A. Hicks. A. E. B.

Norwich Diocesan Association

A very enjoyable afternoon and evening were spent at St. Nicholas' Church, Dersingham, on August 29th, when 30 members of the Western Branch, including the vice-president, branch chairman, ringing master and secretary, met to hold the second quarterly meeting. The numbers were a little low, as the fine weather found many ringers busy in the harvest field.

Divine service was conducted by the Rector of Dersingham (the Rev. Mr. Tippen). Tea was served in the Church Rooms.

At the business meeting four life members and one hon. member were elected. An interim meeting is to be held at Holme Hale on Saturday, October 2nd, and the next quarterly meeting at North Creake on November 27th.

THE CORNWALL AND DEVON BORDER

Combined Outing Amongst the 'Sixes'

At 10 a.m. on August Bank Holiday a party of ringers, representing the counties of Cornwall, Devon, Dorset and Somerset, converged on Davidstow in Cornwall for the start of a day's outing. A thick drizzle prevailed everywhere, and although it continued throughout the day with varying intensity, the spirits of the party were in no way damped.

Davidstow's (tenor 9 cwt.) are quite a nice ring, but the protective grease on the ropes, both above and below the sallies, made handling somewhat awkward. Laneast (9¼ cwt.) were a real job, and a touch of Stedman Doubles here was the fastest the writer has ever taken part in, about 36 per minute! Over into Devon for the next tower, North Petherwyn (9 cwt.), where a 'demonstration' course of Cambridge was rung.

After a short break for refreshments, back into Cornwall again to Lawhitton (9 cwt.) and Lezant (7 cwt. 3 qr. 25 lb.), both with nice going bells, although at the former a wall monument was so placed as to be liable to make an impression on the ringer of the 5th! Over again into Devon to Bradstone (7 cwt.), a lonely church with only a farm as a neighbour. Then to Kelly (8 cwt.), where once the Rev. Maitland Kelly, a pioneer of change-ringing, was incumbent. The bells go well, but there is so much rope rattle that one looked apprehensively at a tablet on the wall which stated that the tower had at one time collapsed, but the party left the church intact!

Milton Abbot was the next tower and, although the tenor is only 13 cwt., the bells are none too easy to ring. This was officially the last tower of the day, but it is rumoured that some of the band went back into Cornwall for further ringing at St. Stephen's-by-Launceston.

During the day 18 methods were rung (nine each of Doubles and Minor), including a mystery Minor method by Alan Carveth and Co. Despite the weather, the outing was conspicuous for the good humour and friendship of the party and also for the standard of striking, particularly the rises and falls. Best thanks are due to all incumbents, local ringers, etc., who helped to make such a happy time.

ST. JOHN'S, LOUGHTON, OUTING

On August 21st ringers of St. John's, Loughton, with their wives and friends, had an enjoyable outing into Kent. The first stop was Aylesford, then on to Marden, where there is an excellent example of cleanliness in the ringing chamber.

After lunch at Hawkhurst the badly bomb damaged church of St. Lawrence was visited. This might almost be called a tower without a church. Next came Goudhurst, then Hadlow and finally Wrotham, where we more than satisfied our appetites at tea before visiting the church. This was voted the best ring of bells of the day.

Methods rung were Grandsire, Stedman, Kent Treble Bob and Plain Bob.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2267. Vol. L. FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

NATIONAL SERVICE

MOST issues of 'The Ringing World' contain a farewell quarter peal to some ringer joining 'Her Majesty's Forces.' We picture the regret of the conductor in losing a promising recruit and the uncertainty in the mind of the 18-year-old ringer as he hears at the end of the 1,260 'And that is all.' In a great many cases it is in no sense the end for two years of a promising ringing career. Many young men have found that while in the Service a new vista has been opened out to them. They have come in contact with ringers of all types—good, bad and indifferent; they have gained an insight into the great fraternity of ringers; and they have often profited and advanced their knowledge of the art.

This question of the National Service ringer resolves itself into two parts. The first relates to ringers of those towers near to an Army, R.A.F. or Navy camp, especially those where basic training takes place. To those ringers J. A. A. writes: 'Do not lessen the welcome I am sure you give to the bewildered recruit. The belfry, speaking from personal experience, helps to convince him that the world has not come to an end. If possible invite him into your home for a meal perhaps after the Sunday ringing. Such an act giving a touch of home life is more than welcome.'

In some areas there is a direct contact between the towers and the camp. There is, however, scope in many areas for a closer liaison between towers and the camp chaplains. Information should be available as to the prospects of Sunday ringing in the neighbourhood and local practice nights. If Guilds provided this information to chaplains we feel sure it would be circulated. There are ringers who take their 'Dove' with them on service, but, even so, the information is not always up to date. As is only too well known, towers advance or wane, and in some areas practices are seasonal.

For the Service man the advice of J. A. A. is: 'Do not hesitate, whatever your capabilities, to seek as much ringing as possible. If you are a six-bell ringer, go to an eight-bell tower, if convenient, and try to master the ropesight and also the eight-bell methods. If you are already a capable ringer and conductor of most standard methods, then try and learn about other aspects of ringing, such as the organisation of the Guild or Association in whose area you are stationed and different methods of teaching learners. If the ringers of the district are content with a mediocre standard of striking and ringing only the usual methods, then try and introduce new ideas, at least into the practices and meetings.

'Another point is that the barrack room is an excellent place for missionary work on bells. Do not hesitate to get out a pencil and paper and draw diagrams of a bell and the principle of plain hunting. If anyone starts asking questions about where you disappear to on a Sunday and if he seems sufficiently interested, invite him to accompany you on one of your Sunday jaunts. We feel certain he will not be disappointed.

'Above all, don't neglect advancing your knowledge of your art when serving. Many a leisure half-hour can be profitably employed in mastering a new method. Maintain your subscription to "The Ringing World." There is always something of interest, apart from the information about meetings. By local contacts opportunities will come for peal ringing if you let local people know that you are keen on attempts. Most weeks the name of some National Service man appears in our peal columns and it is a pleasure to the Editor to acknowledge from time to time the pleasure and friendship those in the Services have derived from ringers in the neighbourhood of the camp. We know of a number of young ringers who have enhanced their knowledge of our art beyond recognition during the two years they have been in the Services. Some will say they have been lucky. Perhaps so, but just remember your ringing in the Services will not be just served up to you like "char and wads." The initiative to seek out the towers rests with you, and the keen ringer stationed in this country is rarely disappointed.'

MR. C. H. CHAMBERS

Stanwick, Northamptonshire, has sustained a great loss by the death of Mr. C. H. (Harry) Chambers, aged 52. Although he had been very ill for over 12 months, of late there seemed an improvement. On Friday, September 3rd, he was taken again to Kettering Hospital, and died suddenly on Saturday, September 4th.

He was taught to ring by Mr. A. Y. Tyler at Irthlingborough round about 1920, and scored his first peal, Kent Treble Bob Major, on June 24th, 1922, at Irthlingborough. This was followed by peals in the Standard Surprise Major methods, etc.

The Irthlingborough band was depleted when Harry and his family, the oldest son, John, being also a member of the band, left the town and went to keep the post office and general stores at Stanwick in 1950.

The funeral service was at Stanwick Church on September 8th. Messrs. A. Y. Tyler, A. Bigley, M. Munton and P. Smart, of Irthlingborough, and F. Kirk and F. Stubbs, of Raunds, all members of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild, acted as bearers. Other ringing friends were present from Stanwick, Bozeat, Lavendon and Leighton Bromswold. A course of Grandsire Triples was rung by the graveside after the service by Messrs. A. Y. Tyler, A. Bigley (branch secretary), E. Whitmore (Guild Ringing Master) and J. J. Mawby.

The five bells in the belfry at Stanwick, of which Harry was in charge, were rung half-muffled after the service, and the eight at Irthlingborough, half-muffled, the Tuesday previous.

OBITUARY

MR. WILLIAM ERNEST HIBBERT

A familiar name has been severed in connection with the long history of the Bedfordshire Association from its foundation by the death which occurred on August 30th of Wm. Ernest Herbert at his residence in Leighton Street, Woburn, after a long illness, at the age of 77.

He was the younger son of the late Charles Herbert (the well known 'Father' of the Association), and its oldest member, having joined 65 years ago on April 22nd, 1889. Mr. Herbert was a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths for 53 years, having joined in November, 1901, and of several other County Associations and Guilds. He was a vice-president of the Bedfordshire Association up to the time of his death and its hon. auditor for many years until 1949, when ill-health obliged him to relinquish the office.

He rang altogether 82 peals in all the standard methods, mostly before and immediately following the first world war. Twenty-two of the peals were on handbells, including one of Bob Maximus and a 'silent' peal of Plain Bob Triples, both 'records' for the Beds Association and County. The latter was rung in March, 1903, just previous to the relegation of the method to the scrapheap of illegitimate outcasts. This latter, by the way, was the only 'conducting' he ever did.

Ernest (as he was known to a wide circle of ringers) was an immaculate 'striker' and a model of how to handle a bell with the least exertion. He scarcely ever was known to make a 'trip,' certainly not enough to upset a peal.

The funeral took place at Woburn Old Churchyard on September 1st, when the Bedfordshire Association was represented by Miss E. Steel (president) Messrs. H. D. Harris (vice-president), E. J. Hobbs (also representing Mr. Alfred King, vice-president), and C. Matthews (also representing Mr. A. E. Sharman, vice-president). Amongst the numerous floral tributes was a wreath from the Bedfordshire Association.

MR. W. C. PARKER

We regret to record the death of Mr. Wm. C. Parker, of Staines, which took place in Staines Hospital on Saturday, September 4th. He was 88 years of age.

The funeral service was held at Staines on September 9th. Among the ringing friends present were Messrs. W. Welling, W. W. Wolstencroft, W. A. Peck, F. V. H. Sinkins, F. G. Fairhead, G. Michelson, D. F. Froome, J. B. Hessey, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Hiscock, Miss N. E. Shorter and Mr. and Mrs. R. Lathbury.

The bells of St. Peter's were rung half-muffled.

ERRATA

The inscription on the tenor at Pertenhall, North Bedfordshire, should read 'Chandler made me 1683.' Through a typographical error on page 586 the date was given as 1863.

The ringer of the sixth in the peal on August 17th of Superlative Surprise Major at Chilham, reported on page 578, was Mr. George E. Fearn.

In the peal of Cambridge Surprise Major rung at Allesley, Coventry, on August 14th, the ringer of the 5th was Raymond Winter, and not W. A. Stote as submitted in the report.

A quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung at Colerne, near Bath, on September 8th as a 70th birthday compliment to Mr. Reginald O. Fry, of Bath. Mr. Fry was for many years one of the band at St. Andrew's Church, Bath, and was tower master there until the church was destroyed by fire in 1942. He is still keenly interested in ringing, and has an occasional pull.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Some forthcoming broadcasts: Chipping Norton Parish Church on Sunday, October 3rd, at 7.45 p.m. in the Midland Home Service: Duloe Parish Church, Liskeard, Cornwall, same day and time in the London Region and West Home Services; Sunday, Oct. 10th, before the service from Huntspill Parish Church, Highbridge, at 9.45 a.m. in the West Home Service.

For those interested in Lundy Island bells the last trip of the season is on Wednesday, September 22nd, sailing from Clovelly at 12.50 p.m.

Wishes for a speedy recovery from a serious illness are extended to Mr. R. Warner by his friends in the Chertsey District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild.

To mark the birth of a daughter to Mr. A. R. Turley, steeplekeeper at St. John-the-Baptist Church, Hillingdon, a quarter peal of Grandsire Caters was attempted by the local band on September 9th, but, unfortunately, the bells shifted in the last course. Mrs. Turley is also a ringer at this tower.

Associated with the peal at Chester-le-Street, Durham, for the 75th birthday of Mr. Fredk. Sheraton, were birthday greetings to Brenda Softley (Sept. 1st), Mr. W. F. Sheraton's son (Sept. 4th), Mr. D. A. Bayles, brother-in-law (Sept. 4th) and Mrs. F. Sheraton (Sept. 7th). To all of them we say 'Happy birthday.'

At Fenham, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, on a recent Sunday morning a lady, uncertain of the time, sat at home waiting for the bells to ring for service. Unfortunately, owing to holidays, the bells did not ring and she did not get to church! Moral: always arrange for at least one bell to be chimed for service.

When a hurricane struck Long Island on August 31st the steeple of the historic Christ Church in Boston fell. This church is reputed to contain a ring of eight bells. Perhaps one of our American readers can inform us whether the bells crashed with the steeple.

The peal at Gisburn, W. Yorks, on August 21st (see page 565) was the second on the bells. The first peal, one of three Minor methods, was rung on May 13th, 1913.

Miss Hilda G. Snowden has 'circled' several towers in North Essex, including the eight bell towers of Halstead and Bocking with tenors of 14¼ cwt. and 18¼ cwt. respectively.

During an outing in Kent on September 4th Mr. Ernest J. Rowe rang at his 1,200th tower at Stowting. Nearly all these towers he has visited since the end of the last war.

The scribe of Pipe's Pilgrims' tour asks: Is the distance between Birmingham and Grundisburgh likely to put a damper on the affections of two young people who met for the first time this tour?

While engaged in a 'phone conversation at Bournemouth, the bells of Christ Church, Crewe, were heard distinctly by a Crewe resident. This is not unusual, but such an occurrence brings a real touch of home in an unexpected fashion.

Mr. Brian G. Warwick writes that the peal of Braunstone Surprise Major which he conducted at Market Drayton on August 12th was rung in 2 hours and 57 minutes. He adds: 'To have rung these bells (17¼ cwt.) at 2.45 speed might not have been impossible, but I am sure the standard of ringing would have been deplorable.' We can only publish what is submitted.

THE UNIVERSITIES' ASSOCIATION

WEEK AT HEREFORD

FOR this year's Ringing Week, the Universities' Association visited Hereford area, from Aug. 13th to Aug. 21st, where a comprehensive programme had been mapped out by Wilfrid Moreton. Excellent accommodation was provided by the Hereford Training College, and a most enjoyable time was had by all.

The secretary started well: preferring always to go by train, he turned down a lift from London—and was later very glad, as the car in question arrived at midnight! For those who were in time, there was ringing at All Saints', Hereford.

Saturday, to our surprise, was fine, and a convoy of cars set out from Hereford towards Eardisland. On the way, we were a little surprised to see a (somewhat battered!) A.A. direction sign reading 'U.A. TOUR,' but, after a little discussion it was agreed that it must be a mistake, it couldn't be us. However, we realised on meeting a second one that it must be true and a photograph was duly taken. The mystery was explained at the tower—the local patrol is a member of the Church Council and had been primed by the Vicar's sons, both members. Our second tower, Leintwardine, supplied a suitable contrast for those who argue about foundries' respective merits—and the presence of one of the founders in question merely made the discussion hotter.

After lunch, at a pleasant inn overlooking the Teme Valley, the party split for peals at Clun (Yorkshire) and Leominster (Cambridge Royal), while 'the rest' visited Presteigne, Knighton and Pembridge. Both peals were successful, but an unfortunate accident involving one of the cars, which put it out of action for the remainder of the week, rather marred the afternoon for the others.

The usual service ringing was the main activity on Sunday, and five towers were visited in the morning; three in the city, Burghill and Lugwardine. At lunch, we welcomed a number of guests: Canon and Mrs. Moreton, Rev. H. G Thomas, the new secretary of the Hereford Guild, Mr. A. W. Davis, Ringing Master at the Cathedral, Miss Daniell, Principal of the College, Leslie Evans from Eardisland, and Geoff Lewis from Powick, Worcester. A fine afternoon made most people want to see the countryside, and a large party set off towards the Golden Valley. The bait for the tower-snatchers was Clodock, but there was also Abbey Dore to be seen and a large tea to be eaten. Another party also went tower-and-tea-snatching, to Bridstow, and some even stayed indoors to ring a handbell peal. The local towers were again manned in the evening, though the organisation broke down somewhat, for there was rather a crowd at the Cathedral and none at All Saints'!

'COOL YOUR RADIATOR . . .'

Although the transport was a little depleted, the longest day was successfully negotiated on Monday (despite an argument between the secretary and the organiser as to who had altered the time of supper). The choice of bells was really appreciated this day: starting at Usk, we went on to Abergavenny, Blaenavon and Ebbw Vale, all very pleasant. At the top of the 2-miles-at-1-in-7 hill out of Abergavenny, a notice 'Cool your engine and slake your thirst' was obeyed with alacrity—at least two radiators were boiling merrily by then! Ebbw Vale ringers entertained us to a delightful tea, much enlivened by the Vicar, who raffled a large photograph of the church. The tea must have been good—the secretary went into the belfry and immediately broke a rope!

The general meeting on Monday evening, presided over by Miss Cross, was over in record time, and 20 new members were elected. The 1955 and 1956 ringing weeks were discussed, and it was decided to hold the former in the South and the latter in the North.

Both peal attempts on Tuesday morning, Double Norwich at Clifford and Spliced at Eardisland, failed after two hours due to conductors' errors. According to the local critic who recorded most of the latter on his tape machine, the standard was high, and it would have been a very good peal. Non-pealers this morning visited Wellington, Bodenham and Stoke Prior; and all were reunited at Leominster after lunch—all, that is, except the would-be spliced conductor, who was said to be drowning his sorrows. He was later found, rather damp, sheltering under a tree in the way to Weobley, having walked by a 'short cut' suggested by a local ringer.

The afternoon towers, after Leominster, were Weobley, where we had tea, and Burghill, where the President joined us. After supper, Holmer was visited; and it was heard that there were some who were unable to find their way home later in the evening!

Wednesday's peals were better: Grandsire at Holme Lacy and Double Norwich at Lugwardine both came round, both with 'firsts' despite the well-and-truly-cracked fourth at Holme Lacy. The rest enjoyed their morning at Withington, Stretton Grandison, where the Vicar gave us a great welcome, and Stoke Edith. The secretary's wife had cause to curse the peal organisers, as she had to spend the morning 'ferrying' passengers owing to lack of transport.

TAPE RECORDING

Lunch this day was at the College, and several took the opportunity to miss the afternoon's first tower, Bridstow, to go shopping in Hereford. However, we all met for tea in Ross and were very pleased with the bells there after tea. An early supper preceded the Cathedral practice night, where Mr. Davis very kindly gave us the run of the tower. Another tape recorder was in evidence, and Stedman Caters under the tower sounded better than either inside or outside it!

We went further afield on Thursday, towards Worcester, the first tower being Mathon. On the way, the reason for one member wanting to buy a traction engine became more obvious when his car was found stalled halfway up a hill. (Is it easier to change down on traction engines—or doesn't one have to?) After Mathon we went on to Colwall, the only really disappointing ring of bells we met. An attempt to make off with the organiser's lunch was unsuccessful—it was noticed that he did not offer his sandwiches to the lady who lost hers!

Malvern Priory and Malvern Link were on the programme for the afternoon, and many people preferred the Link to the Priory bells. After tea in Malvern, a band returned to Hereford for a (successful) peal attempt at All Saints', where a good peal, if a bit slow, was rung. The majority rang at Ledbury and returned to dinner, but a few also seceded to Eastnor and Upton-on-Severn. Another handbell peal was still in progress at the College when the band returned from All Saints', and there was also a practice at St. Nicholas', Hereford.

A CLOUDBURST

Another long day looked a bit unpromising on Friday. The rain held off as far as Cheltenham, the first tower, but during lunch at Painswick, after ringing on the famous twelve, the downpour started. By the time we got to Stroud, it had turned into a cloudburst and rather complicated the difficulties of parking in the narrow streets. Tea was 'freelance' and some had it in Stroud, others in Gloucester. However, we all met punctually at Gloucester Cathedral for the long climb, including a visitor who was later of great use.

After waiting for five o'clock to strike (!) the bells were rung up and we started to ring, but the sixth proved a little difficult. On investigation, a clock-hammer was found to have worn a deep groove in the wheel and was itself somewhat bent. The amateur bell-hangers (watched with some amusement by the professional) got to work and bent it almost straight; then, 'one more heave' and—snap! Still, it was out of the way and the sixth went much better. A course of Cambridge was a little marred by six o'clock, but the conductor managed to make himself understood, if not heard, and it came round.

By very kind invitation of Canon and Mrs. Moreton, a most successful social evening was held at their house in the Close. The tape recorder from Eardisland was there, and great fun was had recording a course of 'lapped' Stedman Cinques, where not merely the bells but the ringers also had to move. It actually came round (or rather, straight) too. Unsuspected talent came to light, especially in a long recitation concerning a pair of young lovers, and in a selection of 'howlers'; and several rounds (not the campanological sort) were sung with varying success—the simplest, with no words, was the best! The evening closed with an expression of thanks by the President to Canon and Mrs. Moreton, to the Training College, to the local ringers and, most of all, to the organiser, Wilfrid Moreton, for a very happy week.

Peal attempts on Saturday would not go—not surprising, perhaps, at the end of a week: Stedman Cinques at Tewkesbury lasted half an hour, and Minor at Aston Ingham a little longer. However, tower-grabbing ardour was not entirely quenched: a few from Tewkesbury visited Deerhurst, and the Aston Ingham band rang at Longhope before some of them attended the meeting at St. Briavels. Rotherham Ringer Married

The marriage of Miss Maureen Elizabeth Gillott to Mr. Philip Coote took place on Saturday, August 28th, at Whiston Parish Church. The bride, who was given away by her father (Mr. R. Gillott), wore a ballerina length dress of white satin.

Ringers from Whiston, Thrybergh, Handsworth and Rotherham Parish Churches were present, and Mr. P. Coote (Rotherham Parish Church) joined in the ringing prior to his wedding. The best man (Mr. Robin Rhodes) also took part in the ringing, which included Plain Bob, Little Bob and Kent Treble Bob Major.

NORTH WALES ASSOCIATION

Popular Meeting at Llandudno

Llandudno with a fine, warm late summer afternoon proved to be an ideal setting for the half-yearly meeting held at Holy Trinity Church on September 4th.

Wives and friends accompanying the ringers were able to enjoy all the beauty and facilities which Llandudno has to offer while ringing was in progress.

The bells were raised beforehand and ringing started sharp at 2 p.m. A service was conducted by the Rev. F. W. Jones, in the absence of the Vicar (Canon Rowlands). A moving and inspiring address was given by Canon Cwbi Jones, in which he spoke of the message of the bells to the people outside, and to the great and special work bellringers were called upon to do for God's Church on earth. He recalled the great works of ringers of other days, notably the Peglar brothers, whose efforts to train him as a ringer when he was at Bangor were not successful, due to his inability to master the intricacies of method ringing. Present day ringers were following in the footsteps of such men as these, some of whom had been ringing bells for 50 and 60 years.

The service over, the business meeting followed, and all stood in silence in memory of Mr. J. W. Best, who passed to his eternal rest in late July. Mention was made of the fact that Mr. Albert J. Hughes, of Bangor, an old and stalwart member, had been confined to his bed for the past twelve months, and that some improvement in his condition had now taken place.

After a vote of thanks to all who had assisted and worked to make the meeting a success, especially to Canon Rowlands for so kindly giving us the use of the church, bells and schoolroom, the meeting adjourned for a very nice tea.

Ringing continued until after 7 p.m., and among other methods rung were Cambridge, Kent, Double Norwich and Little Bob. Visitors were welcomed from various parts of the country, such as Market Drayton, Alvechurch, Reading, Stourbridge, Rugby, Middlesbrough and Southend-on-Sea, and finally one from Manchester who, arriving in Llandudno late, couldn't resist coming up for a pull. Apart from the visitors members were present from Rhyl, Wrexham, Bangor, Llandudno, Abergele, Buckley and Chester, and all were agreed that it had been a very successful meeting, with ringing to suit all tastes. MR. F. SHERATON'S 75th BIRTHDAY

On September 3rd, 1949, Frederick Sheraton took part in a peal of Kent in his home tower of Chester-le-Street to celebrate his 70th birthday. In the interval Fred has given up peal ringing, although he still rings for Sundays and practices with a regularity and punctuality that put many a younger one to shame, but he has taught his grand-daughter to ring, and when his 75th birthday was celebrated with a peal of Bob Major on the following day, Kathleen, who has only just left school, rang the treble in worthy fashion. Fred's nephew also maintained the family representation by ringing the 4th.

The band was kindly entertained to tea after the peal by Mr. and Mrs. Sheraton. This was much appreciated, and the hope was expressed that the five-yearly habit might be continued to enable a return in 1959 to celebrate the 80th birthday and the golden wedding.

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION

The bells of Westbury, Salop, were in great demand recently. They were included in Pat Cannon's Shropshire itinerary during the same week as the Shropshire Association paid their first visit to this tower.

The Rector, the Rev. A. Duston, had left Stanton Lacy early this year, where the bells were put in order after 30 years' silence.

The village is almost on the edge of the county to the west, but 20 ringers assembled for service and tea, after which the number was considerably augmented.

Mr. A. Pritchard, Ringing Master, referred to the recent deaths of Mr. J. Best, life member, and Mr. Walter Lago, who had given such fine service to Coalbrookdale over a period of 50 years.

Mr. Lago's abilities included fine striking on any tower bell and considerable dexterity with handbells, he having rung peals on each.

Ringing ranged from instruction in Grandsire Doubles to London Minor, a distinguished visitor, Mr. Tony Price, demonstrating his acquaintance with the latter by finally ringing 3-4 to one course.

Towers represented were as follows (excluding a youthful party of 'tower grabbers' who arrived, rang two touches and rapidly disappeared in the direction of Worthen):—St. Chad's, St. Michael's and St. Mary's, Shrewsbury, Hodnet, Oswestry, Ellesmere, Clive, Wellington, Kempston (Beds), Feltham (Middlesex), Norton (Staffs) and members of the local band.

CATTISTOCK BELLS AND THE MORRIS FAMILY

In connection with the article on Cattistock (Dorset) tower and carillon (page 536, Sept. 3rd) it might be of interest to note that the father of Leicester's G.O.M., Josiah Morris (now 87), used to ring on the old three bells in the old original tower of Cattistock. This tower formed a porch entrance to the church, and the congregation passed by the ringers, who stood in a line facing the wall, down which they threw their ropes!

William Morris, great-grandfather of Ernest and George Stedman, was born here on September 30th, 1805, and was here married in 1830. George (his son) was born here on July 8th, 1832 and married here in 1855.

When on a visit to Lyme Regis, where Geo. Stedman now resides, a peal attempt was specially arranged for Ernest to ring at the ancestral home. A band was fixed at great trouble and travelled over long distances—but alas! on arriving at the tower they were not allowed to ring as there was an unburied corpse in the village! The old custom still prevails, and it was not permitted even to ring muffled, much to the disappointment of the brothers Morris.

GUILD of DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

Newton St. Cyres Meeting

The attendance at the practice meeting at Newton St. Cyres on August 14th was very disappointing from the Exeter Branch point of view. About six members of the branch actually attended, and they were very pleased to welcome friends from as far afield as Combe Martin and Barnstaple and other surrounding districts. A very pleasant afternoon's ringing was had by all, and the methods practised were Kent, Little Bob and Plain Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples.

It is hoped that on future occasions members of the Exeter Branch will support their meetings and thereby help members and the Guild in their aim for better striking and progress towards the more advanced methods.

ARCHDEACONRY OF HALIFAX GUILD

Kirkheaton was the tower for the meeting held on September 4th. Although the bells are rarely rung owing to the absence of a local band, the ringing chamber had been recently redecorated in bright colours and the bell fittings greased. The result was that this tricky ring of six was in good order and some good striking was obtained. Ringing took place until 4.30.

The service was conducted by the Rector, Dr. Dawson, whose address was applicable to this atomic age.

Justice was done to an excellent tea, and the business meeting followed. Mr. P. Birkett ably proposed a vote of thanks to the Rector and to the ladies for all that had been done to make the Society so welcome.

A letter from the Rev. A. L. Minns (former chairman) was read, thanking the secretary for the small gift sent him in appreciation of past services to the Guild. He has now taken a living outside the district. The programme regarding the dedication of the two new trebles at Marsden in a few weeks' time was noted. Further ringing then took place until 9 p.m. Methods rung ranged from Grandsire Doubles to Cambridge Minor. A. W. B.

HALIFAX AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION

The quarterly meeting and six-bell contest were held at Lightcliffe on September 4th.

Three teams entered to ring six-score practice and 600 changes test piece, any method and any calling. The judge, Mr. J. Buxton, of Shelley, gave his decision as follows:—

	Penalties	Faults	Total
Meltham ..	10	137	147
Friezland ..	10	149	159
Silkstone ..	20	198	218

Meltham were declared winners of the silver challenge cup but Mr. Buxton stated that the ringing had been of an inferior standard throughout the contest and he had had no need to look for faults—they had been obvious.

The president, Mr. Earnshaw, congratulated Mr. F. Popplewell on his silver wedding anniversary and for the excellent arrangements he had made for the visit of the Association, saying that it was a pity that more members had not attended to make the celebration more of a success.

Business discussed included a tower for the April contest and meeting and a suggestion by Mr. C. Byrom to hold the annual meeting and prize contest during the course of an annual trip. As the meeting was not the annual, no rules could be altered, so the proposition fell through without a seconder. A. F.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A DERBYSHIRE EXPERIMENT

Dear Sir,—The N.E. Derbyshire Education Authority has sanctioned the running of an Evening Class in Bell Ringing at the Eckington County School. This will commence on September 29th at 7 p.m. and run for 22 weeks.

The class is open to all who have left school and upwards. The tutor will be Mr. N. Chaddock, of Rotherham, a member of the Central Council. The whole field will be explained and the practical side made efficient. The curriculum includes both tune and handbell ringing. All this area is asked to give support not only to promote a successful class, but also to enthuse a more general interest in the subject.

The cost or the class will be 7s. 6d. for the full session; 2s. 6d. if any further classes are attended by the student under the same authority (on production of the first 7s. 6d. receipt). Boys and girls under 18 years of age come free.

Further particulars can be obtained from the headmaster of the school, Mr. Booth.

Let us hope that this class is not only successful, but that we glean a great amount of experience which can be handed on to others who follow the same example. — Yours faithfully.

PEALS AT ST. STEPHEN'S, CARLISLE

Dear Sir,—I was very grateful for the information Mr. Butterfield gave in his letter—he will have received the details he asks for about the 1892 peal at St. Stephen's, Carlisle.

In my first article or two, I pointed out that my observations commenced from 1881—the year that 'Bell News' was first published. This applies to all the articles (unless an earlier date is occasionally mentioned, e.g. the peal at Dunham Massey in Cheshire). Consequently, the peal at Carlisle in 1865 comes before the period I review. My mention of the 1890 peal as being the first in the county was due to the footnote to the peal in 'Bell News' which states 'supposed to be the first in the county.' Apparently it wasn't, and I am pleased to learn of this earlier peal for my records. Mr. Butterfield is quite right about Kendal. From various sources I have 11 earlier peals (there may be more), the first being in 1796. I apologise for misleading ringers on this point.

I am wondering if Mr. Butterfield believes the 1892 peal is the last one at St. Stephen's? His letter seems to suggest it. Actually, two have been rung since then—Superlative Major on November 4th, 1925, and London Major on September 25th, 1931. But very best of luck for another peal in the future.—Yours faithfully,

K. W. H. FELSTEAD.

Southampton.

HONEYMOON IN IRELAND

Dear Sir,—On behalf of my wife and myself I would like, through the medium of 'The Ringing World,' to thank the Irish ringers for the hospitality extended to us during our recent holiday in Eire. We were enabled to 'grab' half a dozen new towers and given valuable advice for our sightseeing tour.

I would like to thank Eire for naming one of its principal pot still products after my wife.—Yours sincerely,

J. MARTIN THORLEY.

Leeds, Yorks.

POINTS ABOUT PEALS

Dear Sir,—May I be allowed to comment briefly on various points which have arisen in the past few weeks—peal footnotes, belfry gossip and letters?

(a) I have recorded one previous peal of Stedman Cinques at Oldham on April 12th, 1913.

(b) There are slight errors in the note about Double Norwich Major at Liverpool Parish Church. Two peals had previously been rung of this method on the front eight, both conducted by Mr. G. Newton, on October 17th, 1922, and on September 22nd, 1924 (not July). Mr. T. Hammond was also in both peals, whilst Messrs. Larkey and Lintott were in the second. If the first peal was false, of course, the note would have been correct except for the date. I would be interested to learn if this was the case.

(c) The peal at Canford Magna was the first on the bells.

(d) The peal at Leiston on August 14th was the 299th there, the first on the bells being on December 26th, 1884.

(e) The peals at both Betley and Glemsford were the first in the towers since 1932.

(f) I have only one recorded peal at Lundy Island—August 23rd, 1905.

(g) I was very pleased to read Mr. Birmingham's interesting letter filling in the background of the bare figures which I give (having no knowledge of local conditions usually). For his information, Buckingham has only 15 peals to its credit. That is why it was not mentioned as compared with the other towers.

(h) I regret that my flippant reference about 'hostile' land in Cornwall has caused hurt, and apologise to my Clerical Guild friend, Mr. Trewhella, and all Cornwall ringers for this inadvertence. My articles are, of course, solely on peal ringing, not on ordinary ringing, and I think there is a big difference. In the latter case the vast majority of towers in Cornwall and elsewhere welcome the visitor, but in the case of a visit of a peal ringing band, which would require the tower for three hours, it is not quite the same, and my experience is that quite often call change ringers at such a tower are not very keen for a peal to be attempted. It is one thing joining with them for a few minutes in their ringing, it is quite another doing something they cannot do in their own tower for three hours. Hence I think I have some little excuse for the statement in my article. But it certainly did not refer to individual visiting ringers who, as Mr. Trewhella says, are assured of a warm welcome in his county.—Yours faithfully,

K. W. H. FELSTEAD.

Southampton.

FIRST LADY TO 'CIRCLE' A TOWER

Dear Sir,—In answer to your query whether Mrs. Poole is the first lady to 'circle' a tower, in the 1930's Miss M. Redpath 'circled' Crayford tower, but there is little doubt that Mrs. Fletcher accomplished this at Edmonton nearly 20 years earlier. I remember in her very early days she rang the tenor there and conducted a peal of Stedman Triples.—Yours sincerely,

E. BARNETT.

Crayford, Kent.

Dear Sir,—With reference to your inquiry, 'Have any of our ladies "circled" a tower?' I 'circled' the tower at St. Laurence's, Surfleet, before the war, having rung a peal on each of the twelve bells.—Yours truly, (MRS.) A. RICHARDSON.

Surfleet.

PEAL RINGING IN CORNWALL

Dear Sir,—We should be grateful to Mr. Felstead for the interesting articles he is giving us. In such a stupendous task there are bound to be occasional errors, but those with a fuller county knowledge can correct them. Truro Cathedral has been credited with 17 peals. The correct number should be 16. Three rung since the war, and not four. Kenwyn Parish Church, Truro, should read 16, and not 15. One of Kenwyn's peals seems to have been credited to the Cathedral. As I write, two more peals have been rung in Cornwall, making the total 315. One was at Kea. It is interesting to note that Truro Cathedral, Kenwyn and Kea (the two eight-bell towers on either side of the city) now all stand equal with 16 peals each. Carbis Bay has gone ahead from 18 to 19, this last being, apparently, the 275th peal for the Truro Guild. Let the competition continue!

Reference to the six-bell tower of Perran-ar-Worthal and the eight bells there between 1927 and 1937 made me delve into records, and I found I rang in all these, but there were six different conductors:—W. H. Southeard and C. E. Lanxon (two each), W. H. Sleeman, A. R. Pink, F. N. Golden and myself (one each).

Of the 315 peals rung in Cornwall, 272 have been rung for the Truro Guild, 41 for the Devon Guild and two for the College Youths. The Truro Guild total of 275 is made up by an additional three peals rung outside the county. One each at Emmanuel, Plymouth, Yeovil and Plymstock. Although the Truro Guild was founded in 1897, the first peal was not rung for it until 1907, and then at Emmanuel. The Plymouth life members had word that the late Rev. F. E. Robinson was arranging a tour in Cornwall that year, and they wanted to ring the first peal for the Guild and did so. The late William Pye, when on a tour in Cornwall in 1913, rang his peals for the Devon Guild, but he made amends for this in 1934 when on his way down by ringing the first peal of Surprise Royal for the Truro Guild at Yeovil. He followed it up by ringing the tenor at Truro Cathedral and conducting his last peal of Royal, which was also the first of Surprise Royal in the county.

It has been stated that the majority of peals rung in Cornwall have been by touring bands. This may be true to a point, but the tables are now being turned by the Truro Guild. Of the 275 peals I find I have rung in a fraction over half (138), 55 in twelve years before the war, and 83 in nine years since. The pace is quickening. Younger and freer enthusiasts should soon weigh down a good balance against the past. The totals of a few are rising pleasingly quickly compared with the past. There was a strange omission in 1947 when the jubilee of the Guild passed by unnoticed. It is almost certain that when the diamond jubilee is observed in 1957 resident Cornish peal ringers will have the satisfaction of rejoicing in the fact that they have at last done more for their own land than the visitors who, by the way, are always welcome.—Yours faithfully,

A. S. ROBERTS.

ROCHESTER CATHEDRAL BAND

Dear Sir, — As a past secretary of the Rochester District, and of the Kent Association, I was distressed to read Mr. Norris' letter. As he asks for advice, I should advise him and all concerned to turn up the K.C.A. Handbook for 1939 and read paragraphs 5 and 6 of the report I submitted to the members at Erith when I was hon. secretary of the Association; and try and follow out that homily.—Sincerely yours,

F. M. MITCHELL.

SOME CHESHIRE BELLS

Dear Sir,—The publication of a peal of Cambridge Surprise Minor at Rostherne, Cheshire, in the issue of 'The Ringing World' dated August 20th, focuses attention on a book which I happen to be reading entitled 'Old Cheshire Churches' by Raymond Richards. The author, in the section devoted to the Church of Lower Peover, gives some facts about the bells, and he quotes this rhyming couplet:—

Higher Peover kettles, Lower Peover pans,
Knutsford sweet roses, Rostherne great drones.

In another section of the book, dealing with the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Middlewich, and with particular reference to its bells, he quotes another rhyming couplet:—

Barthomley kettles, Alsager pons (pans),
Sandbach big Britons, Middlewich dons.

Not being familiar with the bells of this part of Cheshire, I am vastly intrigued to know what a 'Big Briton' is. One might hazard a guess at heavy bells, but Dove's Guide tells us that the tenor at Sandbach is only 13 cwt. I can understand the 22 cwt. tenor at Rostherne being referred to as a 'great drone.' As a don is high up in the world of education I should imagine the bells of Middlewich are receiving some praise, and Knutsford's 'sweet roses' has a pleasant ring. But what about the kettles and pans which remain; do these bells deserve such disparagement?

Perhaps one of our Cheshire friends could give us a considered opinion, and perhaps at the same time we might hear of more of these interesting couplets.—Yours sincerely,

ALAN R. PINK.

Kennington, Oxford.

PEAL RINGING IN DEVONSHIRE

Dear Sir,—The article by the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead on 'Peal Ringing in Devonshire' is not entirely correct.

According to Guild records the first peal on the bells of Appledore was rung on March 24th, 1913, by 'The St. Sidwell's Society.' It was Holt's Ten-Part peal of Grandsire Triples, rung in three hours, and conducted by Mr. Arthur W. Searle, Exeter's veteran ringer, and was peal 309 for our Guild.

Further in his article Mr. Felstead states:—'Most peals have been rung by visiting bands, of course.' I have checked through the first 500 peals (rung for the Guild between 1875 and 1928), and I find that only in 74 did visitors predominate.

Another error I would like corrected, please, concerns Plymouth St. Andrew's, where, is is stated, 25 peals have been rung. Guild records can prove that 26 peals have been scored on these famous bells.

As I read Mr. Felstead's remarks it seemed probable to me that he has lost the peal of Grandsire Triples rung in 3 hours and 14 minutes on February 2nd, 1920, conducted by Mr. G. H. Myers, my father, who has taken part in 18 of the 26 peals.—Yours truly,

T. G. MYERS.

Plymouth.

FIRST PEAL OF HEREWARD BOB

Dear Sir,—I was much interested to see the extract of 'Forty Years Ago' in the issue of August 27th. The method mentioned was given to the Rev. A. T. Beeston by our present president of the Central Council, Mr. Edwin H. Lewis, and the peal was rung for the 80th anniversary of Sir William Houldsworth, who built the church (Reddish, Stockport) and gave the bells.

I am sure it will cheer the heart of Mr. Lewis, if it is not too late to mention that fact.—Yours sincerely,

WALTER W. WOLSTENCROFT.

Stoke Poges.

R.A.F. HAVE CHURCH WITH RING OF BELLS

Dedication at St. Eval, Cornwall

It is very doubtful whether there are many Royal Air Force stations throughout the United Kingdom that can boast of a church in their midst, complete with a ring of bells. This, however, is the case at the R.A.F. coastal command station at St. Eval, on the north coast of Cornwall.

This quaint, little church, with its sturdy pinnacled tower built of Cornish granite, was once the centre of a typical country village. It now stands alone, on the edge of a vast airfield, its tower being a notable landmark, visible over an area of several miles.

Twelve months ago the church was in a sad state of decay, and the few remaining parishioners decided that it was about time to carry out extensive restoration work in order to save the building from ruin. The tower was renovated from top to bottom, electric lighting installed and new altar cloths were given.

Many months of hard work went into the restoration, helped by large sums of money donated by the Royal Fir Force, and the climax to all this work came, when, on Saturday, August 21st, the Assistant Bishop of Truro, the Rt. Rev. John Wellington, came to St. Eval to rededicate the restored ring of six bells.

Long before the dedication service was due to begin the church was packed to capacity, and among the congregation were numbered many officers, airmen and airwomen of the station on which the church stands.

The bells were rung up in the dedication rounds by a band of ringers from the neighbouring parish of St. Merryn. After the service the bells were kept going throughout the remainder of the day by visiting teams from far and wide, including one team from Plympton St. Maurice in Devon.

The bells, which were rehung and tuned by John Taylor and Co., Loughborough, were heartily acclaimed by all present, both for music and 'go.' The inscriptions on the bells are as follows:—

Treble. Mears and Stainbank, London. A.D. 1906.

Second. Mears and Stainbank, Whitechapel, London. 1892. W. Aggett, Bellhanger, Chagford, Devon.

Third. Samuel Trewbody. Vicar. 1733.

Fourth. Francis Llewellin Gent. Samuel Eplett. Wardes. 1733.

Fifth. Mears and Stainbank, Whitechapel Foundry, London. 1892. W. Aggett, Bellhanger, Chagford, Devon.

Tenor. Simon Leach de Trethewell Armiger Erogator. Maxime Libera.

Weight of tenor 9 cwt. approx.

An effort is being made to start a team of ringers among the service personnel on the station. It is hoped, some day, to be able to send proudly to 'The Ringing World' the first peal on St. Eval bells by an R.A.F. team of ringers.

Beverley and District Ringing Society

On August 14th the Society held the monthly meeting at Bridlington, at the invitation of Canon Lamb and the local ringers. Twenty-four members attended, and the bells were rung to standard methods.

The service in the Priory Church was conducted by the Rector, Canon Lamb, assisted by the Rev. G. Storer.

The tea and business meeting took place in the Church Hall, and the President, Mr. A. E. Sellers, welcomed the visitors from London, Ambleside and Edinburgh.

Further ringing took place until 6 p.m.

LEEDS AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Society at Otley on August 28th was fairly well attended, members being present from Armley, Batley, Bramley, Bradford Cathedral, Collingham, Elland, Guiseley, Headingley, St. Chad's and St. Michael's, Leeds Parish Church, Pudsey, Sowerby with the local company and visitors from Eastrington, Howden and West Tanfield. Tanfield.

The bells were raised in peal shortly after 3 o'clock, and ringing, ranging from Bob Minor to Cambridge Major, enjoyed till shortly after 8.30, with the usual breaks for tea and the business meeting.

In the unavoidable absence of the president (Mr. C. W. Strangeway), who sent his apologies, the duties of chairman were very ably carried out by Mr. W. Dixon, one of the vice-presidents.

Four new members were made, viz., Mr. and Mrs. M. Thorley, Mr. D. E. Barker and Mr. J. Cartwright.

The vote of thanks to the Vicar, churchwardens and local company was ably proposed by Mr. J. Gibson in his usual forthright, breezy and humorous manner. Jack has a way of stepping into the silence that usually falls when this stage of the meeting arrives, and in a light-hearted but nevertheless very sincere way conveyed the thanks of the members to all those who help to provide the facilities necessary for members' enjoyment at these meetings. This proposition was seconded by Mr. F. Gibbard.

Mr. P. Whitaker apologised for the Archdeacon not being present and promised to pass on thanks to all concerned, and gave the members a hearty welcome to Otley.

It was proposed, owing to the congestion of meetings in September, that the Society's meeting for this month should be cancelled, and that members accept the invitation of the Sowerby company to join the Western Division of the Yorkshire Association at their meeting on the 25th.

As the Snowden Dinner was to be held on the last Saturday in October, it was agreed that the October meeting should be brought forward to the 23rd and held at Liversedge, subject to the usual arrangements with the local company.

Under any other business, announcements were made about a whist drive at Collingham and the open day at Marsden in connection with the augmented ring of ten there.

SWANSEA AND BRECON GUILD

Lovely summer weather kept many members away from the Southern Section quarterly meeting held at Gorseinon on September 4th. However, it was quite understandable after such a bad summer. Most of the younger members took advantage of being out in the sunshine, but in spite of this, 30 members attended a very enjoyable afternoon's ringing.

The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Sidney H. Morris, who also took the chair at the business meeting. The good wishes from Mr. Ernie Stitch were read, also an apology for non-attendance from Mr. C. Rowles, the Master, who was indisposed. The place of the next meeting will be decided at a joint meeting with the Llandaff Diocese.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Vicar, churchwardens and to the ladies, who with their support made the meeting such a success.

It is hoped that very shortly the bells of St. Catherine's will once again ring regularly as Mr. Dobbins, the tower captain, is having full support from the Vicar.

'PIPE'S PILGRIMS' IN CORNWALL

THE coach with that veteran of past tours, Leslie Woods, at the wheel, left Grundisburgh at 6.5 a.m. on Sunday, August 1st en route for Cornwall, picking up at Ipswich, Bures. Colchester, St. Paul's, London and Staines.

Winchester was reached on time, despite traffic blocks. After an excellent lunch beneath the oak rafters of a very ancient building, now a restaurant, we were privileged to ring for service on the musical twelve at the Cathedral. An attempt for Cambridge Maximus came unstuck early on, but Treble Twelve, Stedman Cinques and Cambridge Major went well.

Outside Ringwood Church we were met by the Rev. and Mrs. Verity, who expressed their wishes for a successful tour. A hurried tea at Wimborne preceded ringing for service at the Minster. This consisted of Cambridge Ten, Treble Ten and Grandsire and Stedman Caters.

Through rain and fog to Exeter, arriving at the Bystock Hotel at 9.27 p.m. Sylvia, businesslike as ever, was soon busy allocating bedrooms for the night, as per list. Hot drinks and sandwiches, followed by a chat on ringing and things relating thereto, and so to bed!

BANK HOLIDAY

Our first tower on Monday was St. Mary's, Lifton. This ring must be unique, as all were cast at the Oxford foundry of William Taylor in 1827, and restored by his Loughborough successors in 1930. At Launceston we arrived in time to ring a newly-married pair out of church. The bells were a pleasure to listen to in spite of the long draught of rope. The only call-changes of the tour were rung here to enable a few local ringers to have a pull with our party.

On to Bodmin for lunch. (No ringing here as permission had not been forthcoming.) Fowey was the objective for the afternoon. Here we met Arthur and Mrs. Beamish, and picked up their daughter, Margaret, for the remainder of the tour. A course of Superlative at this tower was the first blow in the method for Janet Spurgin (15), and her performance was one of which a much older and more experienced ringer could have been justifiably proud! Five Spliced Surprise, Plain Bob and a half course of Superlative. A good lower-in peal, then on to St. Austell, where a cafe was kept open just for our benefit. A visit to the tower after tea revealed that the fourth would not go to the upright position. Apparently the toggle on the end of the Hastings stay was sticking and, though several locals were there to watch us perform, none had the key of the staircase to enable one to go up and put matters right! A fast course of Stedman Triples with the bells only three-quarters up was the only ringing worthy of note here.

The fine tower of Probus followed. Ringers who have heard both these and Debenham bells outside vote the former a close runner-up to the well-known Suffolk ring. Alphabetical choice of methods was introduced here—Barker, Stedman Triples; Beamish, Double Norwich; Bennett, Yorkshire; Crapnell, Plain Bob. A nice fall-in peal and on to Truro. We found sleeping arrangements somewhat disorganised, owing to other guests at the hotel staying beyond their allotted time. This meant that some of us had to be boarded out for sleeping, but everyone was settled in the end.

A VETERAN OF 99

Tuesday's first tower was St. Columb Major, with a musical octave. Methods rung were Superlative, London, Stedman, with two leads of laminated Oxford and Kent. We met Mr. Samuel Quintrill (99) in the churchyard. St. Enoder, the next tower, has a ground floor ringing chamber. The sallies were rather high, and some of the visitors had to stand on pieces of sawn tree trunk to reach them! An excellent lunch at Newquay and, for those who wished it, 1½ hours by the sea. In response to a phone call to Crantock Rectory, Mrs. Trewhella consented, in the absence of her husband, the general secretary of the Truro Diocesan Guild, to a small party visiting the tower. Cambridge Minor, Kent and Spliced Treble Bob and Plain were rung on this pleasant six. By the time we finished ringing, we had an interested audience of two dozen visitors watching from the aisle! After tea at Perranporth, Kenwyn, situated amid lovely surroundings, was visited. A course of Cambridge was rung here with several Cornish ringers standing in!

At Truro Cathedral Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Edwards joined us. Ralph had just travelled 300 miles for the sole purpose of listening to these bells from outside! And who can find fault with his argument that they are disappointing to ring on, but grand to listen to outside? These bells are not over tenored as some one suggested! Several of us walked up the rise of the Cathedral and every bell could be heard perfectly. The final treat for the listeners was a course of Bristol on the majestic back eight, rung at 21 changes to the minute!

THE OLD BELLS OF ST. KEVERNE

An early start was necessary on Wednesday, St. Anthony-in-Meneage being the first ring. These are a back six from Croydon, augmented by a pair of trebles from Loughborough. The Rev. A. S. Roberts, accompanied by 10-year-old Evangeline, met us here. Methods rung were London, Superlative, Bristol, Stedman, and, lastly, Grandsire Triples, to which Evangeline rang the treble.

St. Keverne has a pleasing ring which it would be sacrilege to tune on the five-tone principle. They were much in demand for more than an hour before we moved on to the boulder-strewn beach at Coverack for our picnic lunch. The most southerly ring in the British Isles, Landewednack, was the next objective. We found a pleasant six that ran well. Six ladies rang a course of Cambridge. On to the Lizard Hotel for tea, where the proprietor informed us that we were in the only part of the British Isles that came below the 49th parallel! An hour on Helston bells concluded the day's ringing programme.

TO LAND'S END

On Thursday, Ralph Edwards and Jim Pipe made a dash in the former's car to St. Mary's, Penzance, to get a rope spliced in time for the arrival of our coach. Several buoys that had been towed ashore were noted, and on the top of one was a 2 cwt. bell cast by J. Warner and Sons, London. So this is what happens to some bells on their removal from redundant towers! Penzance has the heaviest octave in Cornwall — a grand ring. We were down in time for a service at 10.30, and a short ride brought us to Gulval. The ringing gallery here is a credit to Mr. Woods, whose loving care keeps it on a par with many drawing rooms in private houses. Whilst a band boarded the two cars and went on for an advance ring at St. Sennen, the coach took the rest of us round St. Michael's Mount, and the powerful field glasses, carried by Harry Millet, enabled us to view it as a close-up from Marazion. In the bay we saw the wreck of "H.M.S. Warspite.' In due course we arrived at Land's End and, after lunch, spent an hour admiring the rugged coastline and buying souvenirs! St. Sennen has a delightful ring of six (tenor 5 cwt. 3 qr. 22 lb.), reputed to be the lightest in Cornwall and the most westerly ring in England. We enjoyed various touches here for an hour, six ladies ringing a short touch of Plain Bob!

The Rev. A. S. Roberts met us at Carbis Bay and gave us a real Cornish welcome by presenting each 'Pilgrim' with a postcard giving a close-up view of the church tower! A half-course of Superlative by eight ladies was the highlight of the ringing here. Camborne bells are hung in a low pinnacled tower, and sound better at a distance! The concluding touch here was Spliced Surprise in six methods, in which Roderick Pipe (14) and Pat Clarke (17) took part.

Friday was a beautiful sunny morning. Egloshayle Parish Church (8, tenor 12 cwt.) has a ground floor ring. We arrived on time for lunch at Stratton. These bells are reputed to be the finest octave in Cornwall. The ringing was limited to 45 minutes. Whilst the majority intended going to Bude for two hours by the sea, one, who shall be nameless, put through telephone calls to several incumbents and hired two taxis from the local garage for the afternoon! The six at Marhamchurch, the 1950 restored bells of Week St. Mary and the six at Poughill were rung.

Back to Stratton in time to join the 'seasiders' at tea, and then aboard the coach for the 50-mile journey to Exeter. We arrived at the Bystock Hotel on time. The party split up to visit the excellent octave at Heavitree and the heavy twelve at the Cathedral. The clapper came out of the tenth while rounds were being rung, but was soon fixed firmly into position by the Exeter ringers, who had obviously had to cope with the same situation before. George Pipe and John Mayne showed us what they are made of by turning in the 72¼ cwt. tenor, between them, to three leads of Treble Ten!

Back to the Bystock for a social hour with handbells, etc. The nameless one had again been busy and fixed up a short ring at St. David's on Saturday morning for those who wished.

At 9.15 came the parting of the ways. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beamish, together with Margaret and John Stallard, whom they were giving a lift as far as Bristol, all stood on the Bystock steps to wave us good-bye! First halt on the homeward journey was Blandford Forum for lunch. After boarding the coach again Mrs. Barker made small presentations to Sylvia, Jim and the driver, thanking them for the hard work they had put in. A small presentation was made by Janet to Mrs. Barrett on behalf of those for whom she had so persistently hunted for postcards during the week! Grundisburgh was reached at 10.10 p.m.

LLANDAFF AND MONMOUTH

The Monmouth Branch quarterly meeting was held at Usk on September 4th. The afternoon was fine and sunny and some 50 ringers attended, including visitors from Bristol, Gloucestershire, Wiltshire and Herefordshire.

The Master, Mr. David King, arranged suitable ringing for all. The service was conducted by the Rev Glyn Davies, Rector of Gwernesney, and Canon E. T. Davies, Llangibby, read the lesson.

An excellent tea was provided by the Usk ringers and their wives in a nearby hall. These ladies were most sincerely thanked by Mr. Jack Worrall. Four new members were elected from Chepstow, one from Bedwellty and one life member. Mr. David King reported progress from the monthly Surprise practice held at All Saints', Newport.

Llanfrechfa was chosen as the place of the next meeting.

NORTH WALES BORDER COUNTRY VISITED

Ringers representing St. Luke's, Wolverhampton, Little Aston, Yoxall and Allesley, Coventry, and the writer, assembled at Norton-in-Hales Church, North Shropshire, on August 14th, for a day's trip in the Border Country.

The bells at Norton (8, 14 cwt.) were found to 'go' well, but care was needed in striking them as no two are the same. At Market Drayton (8, 17¼ cwt.) we were informed that Mr. Pat Cannon and his band had scored a good peal there the previous week. We certainly envied them and were only too sorry that we could not stay longer.

A brass plaque on the ringing room wall at Prees (6, 12 cwt.) stating that the bells had been 'retuned and rehung by Mrs. Sandford, of Sandford Hall' caused amusement. We feel certain she had a little help from the bell-founders but they don't appear to be worthy of mention.

Two good sixes followed at Calverhall (13¼ cwt.) and Ightfield (11¼ cwt.). An eight that 'go' all their weight (19¼ cwt.) were found at Whitchurch, but nevertheless our stay was enjoyed.

Having disposed of our packed lunches, we were ready to cross the Welsh border into Flintshire to try the 17 cwt. six at Hanmer. These are of good tone but one can feel their weight. A contrast was provided at the next tower, Chirk, Denbighshire (8¼ cwt.). The head ringer met us and congratulated us on the striking of the odd- and even-bell methods, both of which, in his opinion, had charms of their own.

Back into Shropshire again to sample the 5½ cwt. five at Selattyn. Sample is the right word; the Vicar told us the tenor only had been rehung on ball bearings just before the war. He was right, for the front four, especially the treble, are 'grim,' and a plain course of Grandsire Doubles sufficed. The band were somewhat disappointed at not being able to ring at Alderbury as it is a very peculiar looking place, but we were informed by the Rector that the bells had not been rung for 30 years, owing to the bad condition of the tower.

After a hot meal in Oswestry the band called in at the Shropshire Association meeting at Westbury, where on arrival they were intrigued to see Mr. Tony Price ringing 3-4 to London Minor. Thanks are expressed to the Ringing Master for allowing us to 'barge in.' At Worthen we found the bells up ready and we enjoyed this good six (7½ cwt.). Chirbury was our last tower and owing to the clapper of the third being broken, we had to be content with Doubles.

Methods rung were Plain Bob Major, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Cambridge Surprise, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, Single Oxford, Double Court, St. Clement's, and Plain Bob Minor and Grandsire and Stedman Doubles. During the tour Miss Ann Barr, of Little Aston, achieved her first two courses of Cambridge Minor.

A 64th Anniversary

Mr. Isaac Emery celebrated the 64th anniversary of his first peal by ringing his first quarter of Doubles at Old Headington, Oxford, on September 4th. With his host, Mr. W. M. Wilkins, he attended the dinner of the Headington ringers. A special welcome was also extended to Gordon Collett, R.A.F., on leave from Germany, who was celebrating his 21st birthday, and received a gift from his colleagues. Gordon is the fifth Headington ringer to come of age in about 16 months. Three of these are in the R.A.F. and a fourth will shortly commence training for the Ministry.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2268 Vol. L. FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

STEEPLEKEEPER AND RINGER

By WILLIAM SHEPHERD

I SOMETIMES think, when pondering over the various branches that help towards the smooth running of ringing, that we are apt to underrate the work of steeplekeepers, more especially those who are known as steeplekeepers and ringers combined. In the last century many visiting bands of ringers were at the mercy of men who imagined that because they held the key of the tower they had the right to decide who should enter and who should be refused. How different are conditions to-day, due in many ways to the keen ringer who also holds the position of steeplekeeper.

'A shining example over a number of years is that well-known ringer, the late Mr. William C. Parker, of Staines, whose 88th birthday took place on August 9th, which event was celebrated by a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples in the evening. Unfortunately, Mr. Parker has been ill these last two years; in fact he only came out of hospital on the afternoon of his birthday, but he was pleased to see the writer and two other ringing friends in the early evening. Being a man who never sought the limelight, the writer feels that some of the data he culled may be of interest to his many ringing friends, old and new.

Born in the parish of St. Dunstan, Stepney, London, on Aug. 9th, 1866, he came to Staines in 1888 when he was 21, following his trade as a pork butcher. After three years in the riverside town he returned to London, and after eight years of London life he again went to Staines to live. During his absence St. Peter's Church had been built, and shortly after his arrival in 1899 one of the ringers invited him to the tower where ringing on the two bells, the largest and smallest of the present octave, took place. Mr. Parker, then 33, was keen to learn change ringing, and he went to St. Mary's Parish Church in order to make progress. Here he met Mr. W. E. Butler, and it is remarkable to record that these two well-known ringers were the mainstays in Staines for over half a century, and were both towerkeepers.

In 1902 St. Peter's had a ring of eight installed, and Mr. Parker had charge of them until 1952 when at the age of 86 he was forced by ill-health to retire. During the 50 years the bells were in his care they did not need any attention from a bell founder or bell hanger, and considering the number of peals, quarter peals, etc., rung at this popular Middlesex tower it is a great tribute to his efficiency, keenness and thoroughness. As a peal ringer he never entered for a prolific list of peals, and from his first in 1904 to his last on his 80th birthday in 1946, which the writer had the pleasure of calling, his total was 66. Ringers are not measured by the number of peals they ring, and in William Parker could be found many good qualities which made him a popular figure wherever he went, but Sunday ringing in his own tower came first.

During my visit to him on his 88th birthday he recalled his 80th birthday peal where, for three hours, only the voice of the writer was heard making the calls, there being no trips. Pointing to a neatly worded appreciation on his bedroom wall, he bade me read it, and I found it recorded with thanks the appreciation of the parish for 50 years' faithful service as steeplekeeper and bell ringer, dated October 31st, 1949.

BELL RINGING IN SPAIN

By A. S. D. GRAHAM

DURING a recent visit to the Aragonese town of Huesca for the festival of St. Lorenzo, I noticed that the church bells, hung as is usual there in openings round the tower where the louvres might be, were 'up.' On the appearance of the procession, they began to revolve, round and over, producing a rather disconcerted clangour. After enquiries inside the church, three small boys guided me up a long and ruinous flight of steps to the belfry, where I met the ringers.

The bells hung in the walls of the tower, round the outside of an open floor, on bearings that looked ready to drop them at any moment into the square far below. The most striking feature was the headstocks, built up to balance the size and partly the shape and weight of the bells, which must have weighed up to half a ton; in spite of which they were raised by a direct pull. A peg in the wall provided a stay, while the clappers were secured with leather straps.

When the procession returned from its tour of the town a toothless old man let his bell swing down, out of the tower, sounding twice as it went. When it completed its swing he ducked in to seize a handle at the top of the stock, heaving it towards him to bring the bell right over. Every time it missed his head by inches, striking a foot or so above him. Little wonder that each of the three ringers —a fourth bell hung silent—rang apparently oblivious of the others. Once one of them even left his bell to make a couple of swings unattended while he nipped over to peer down at the priests, images, Morris dancers and military band as they vanished into the church.

I gathered that this is not the only method of ringing these bells; often they are chimed, from the centre of the floor, by a man pulling a spider's web of ropes attached to the clappers, in more or less regular sequences. All the bells for quite a large area around seem to be hung for ringing in this way, the massive variously-shaped wooden stocks, bound by a fan of iron bands securing the ancient canons, looking very well in the earthern-coloured towers. When next I find myself pulling a 'sticky' tenor I shall remember these men, deafened and in apparent danger of decapitation, in a 'ringing room' open to the four whistling winds.

Apropos bells heard over the 'phone, mentioned last week, Danbury ringers had a similar experience. Passing through London on her honeymoon, Mrs. Owen 'phoned her parents, the Rev. F. S. and Mrs. Hopkirk, at Danbury Rectory and clearly heard the peal (recorded on page 614) being rung to celebrate her marriage at the church earlier in the day.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The Exercise will extend its warmest congratulations to Mrs. H. J. Poole on ringing her 500th peal on September 8th. She is the third lady to accomplish this feat, the first being Mrs. John Thomas, who rang her 500th on January 31st, 1953, at Salford Priors, Warwickshire, and the second Mrs. Marshallsay, of Bournemouth, later in the year.

Mr. R. Warner thanks his friends of the Chertsey District for their good wishes. He is making a recovery, but progress will be slow.

Mr. W. J. Paice, of Wokingham, is in Reading Hospital. His friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. C. Crossthwaite, of 45, Herschell Street, Preston, has been appointed 'Ringing World' representative to the Preston Branch of the Lancashire Association.

His friends in the College Youths and the Guildford Guild will congratulate Mr. F. A. Munday, captain of Holy Trinity, Guildford, tower, on ringing his 100th peal. This was particularly elusive, some five attempts being necessary to reach the century mark.

Mr. Derek P. Jones, of Hitchin, has been giving instruction at Guilden Morden for some months. On September 10th two of his pupils —Alfred Mynott and Thomas Leonard—rang their first peals. There are other promising recruits coming along.

A farewell quarter to Mr. P. Bates before joining H.M. Forces was planned at St. Matthew's, Widcombe, Bath, his own tower. Proceedings, however, were terminated by a rope breaking. Nothing daunted, he and another ringer went to another Bath tower whose practice night coincided. Permission to ring was granted and a quarter peal with four locals was achieved.

Members of the Central Council and their friends in the Exercise will join with us in congratulating Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Pulling, of Guildford, on their golden wedding anniversary, which takes place next Sunday. For his 74th birthday and also for the 73rd of his friend, Mr. W. J. Robinson, Mr. Pulling rang in a peal of London Surprise Major at Holy Trinity, Guildford, on September 16th.

Errata. — The conductor of the peal at Durleigh, Somerset, on August 28th was Mr. Ronald D. Short and not as published on page 581. The age of the treble ringer, Geoffrey R. Marchant, is 14.

At the joint meeting of the Middlesex and Oxford Guilds at Hillingdon on October 23rd it is hoped to dedicate a memorial to Mr. William Honor, ringer at Hillingdon for 68 years.

Is the peal at Old Warden, Bedfordshire, on September 13th, the first to be rung by combined Public Schools? The band was composed of members of Bedford Modern School and Bedford School.

A great friend of Northamptonshire ringers was Canon W. S. Pakenham-Walsh, who has just retired after 60 years in Holy Orders, of which 30 have been spent as Rector of Sulgrave. In 1928 he was instrumental in having the old five at Sulgrave recast and rehung in a new frame, and in 1931 a new treble was added.

The silver wedding of Mr. Oliver Wood, captain of the Seaford band, and Mrs. Wood was celebrated by a gathering of Seaford and Southover ringers. On September 1st a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung, and ringers and friends were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Wood. The gathering was overshadowed by the death the day before of Mr. W. Hurst, an old and respected member of the Seaford band.

MR. ERNEST MORRIS RINGS HIS 1,500th PEAL

Verger-Author of St. Margaret's, Leicester

Another milestone was accomplished in the life of Mr. Ernest Morris, of St. Margaret's, Leicester, on September 6th, when he rang his 1,500th peal. This feat has only been accomplished in the history of change ringing by four other men—W. Pye 1,969, G. R. Pye 1,878, F. Bennett 1,600 and G. Williams 1,508.

Probably no man has done more by his writings—for journals, magazines and by books—to bridge the gap between the general public and ringing. Most of our readers are familiar with his books, which include 'History and Art of Change Ringing,' 'Legends o' the Bells,' 'Bells in English Life,' 'Chimes and Chime Tunes' and 'Bells of All Nations.' His latest book, 'Towers and Bells of Britain,' will be published in the course of a month or two.

Bells are not the only subjects that he writes on. From his pen have come articles dealing with door knockers, fire backs, horse brasses, wool weights, locks and keys, church fonts and village crosses. He has also written books on the histories of St. Margaret's and Knighton Churches and St. Margaret's Select Vestry and its work. He has MS. ready for publication of 'Church Bells of Leicestershire,' 'Crosses and Monoliths of Leicestershire,' and is now engaged in collecting photographs and material for 'The Church Fonts of the Leicester Diocese.'

Mr. Morris served as general hon. secretary of the old Midland Counties Association from 1925 till it divided into Diocesan Guilds in 1945. He serves as a consultant for bells on the Leicester Diocesan Advisory Committee.

His 1,500 peals contain many that are of special interest. Of the 632 he has conducted are the longest lengths for the Midland Counties Association of 6,600 Doubles, 7,200 and 10,080 Minor; twice 7,008 and 13,440 Bob Major and another of 9,760 with 400 Singles. He also conducted 10,912 Kent Treble Bob, 7,840 Oxford Treble Bob, the record for Little Bob (6,720), Little Canterbury (6,720), Spliced Treble Bob (Ilkeston), 9,120 and (Worcester) 9,600.

Among the peals he has taken part in are 7,008 and 12,896 record of Cambridge Surprise Major; 12,663 Stedman Cinques at Oxford Cathedral; 9,344 and 10,976 Bristol Surprise Major; the peal of Stedman Cinques at Southwark Cathedral by twelve secretaries; Cambridge Surprise Maximus on the old Bow bells; Stedman Caters on the old ten at Manchester Town Hall called by the late James W. Washbrook and a peal of Cambridge Maximus on the new twelve.

He conducted the quickest tower-bell peal yet rung (5,040 Cambridge Surprise Minor in 1 hour 50 minutes), also the only 'Ernest' peal of Major, and took part in peals with four sets of brothers, four fathers and sons, also five fathers and sons.

WEDDING OF PREB. E. V. COX

On Thursday, September 9th, the wedding took place at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Withycombe Raleigh, Devon, of the Rev. E. V. Cox, Prebendary of Exeter Cathedral, and Miss Alison Hylda Pope, of The Maldens, Exmouth. The ceremony was performed by Canon C. Carew Cox, cousin of the bridegroom, assisted by the Rev. G. Bateman, Vicar of Withycombe Raleigh.

Prebendary Cox, who has spent nearly 40 years of his ministry in Devon, is one of the best known and well-loved ringers in the county and has been for the last 21 years president of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers.

After the wedding a quarter peal of Stedman Triples was rung by the following band of Guild officers: E. J. Taylor 1, E. W. Biffin 2, B. Pidgeon 3, E. M. Atkins 4, J. E. Lilley 5, C. J. Turner 6, J. L. Glanville (cond.) 7, S. Elliott 8.

RINGING AT A COUNTY SHOW

This year, for the first time, a group of priests of the Diocese of Peterborough under the chairmanship of Canon G. Turner, of Rothwell, organised a 'Church Tent' at the County Show at Overstone Park, Northampton, on September 11th.

Many aspects of the Church's work were shown by an exhibition of the produce of the earth, and the work of men's hands, the title of each group being a verse of the Benedicite.

The altar of the chapel was made of bales of straw, and two fencing hurdles did duty as the communion rails.

Eight members of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild rang handbells for half an hour before evensong at 6 p.m. in the fenced off area in front of the tent.

The ringing, which consisted of Grandsire Triples and Caters and a 448 of Bob Major, was seen and heard by literally hundreds of people, and we are pleased to think that this excellent opportunity of showing the public the ringers' work was not lost.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY GUILD WEEK

In South and Mid-Wales

THIS was held during the usual period, from August 30th to September 4th, and was ably organised by Brian Price. For those able to take part, the 'week' was preceded by a romantic pilgrimage to St. David's. The atmosphere which belongs to so many places of pilgrimage in the far west—Iona, Santiago da Compostella, and the Cornish shrines, far from men's quarrelsome haunts — belongs in full measure to St. David's. The place can only be reached by long journeys by road, strangely desolate for the last seventeen hills, and what a thrill it is, having travelled for hours over mountain and moor, to find the village at the end of the road possesses a great Cathedral, as venerable and full of history as any in these islands, and furthermore alive to-day. Despite the machinations of those who in recent years have diverted the money dedicated to the worship of God to baser purposes, the purple Cathedral in the village is the centre to-day of a vigorous life of worship and music. It was a joy to share in this for an all too brief week-end.

The St. David's contingent met at the Swan, Abergavenny, at '4 p.m.' on August 28th, to allot transport. After the most adventurous part of the day's journeyings, all arrived at St. David's about 8 p.m. Despite the smallness of the village-city, it took some time for all to sort themselves out, and to find the friendly accommodation allotted to them. The organiser's circular had modestly stated that Sunday would be 'relatively quiet.' This proved a decided understatement. The undersigned's programme, which was typical of most of the party, included ringing at the Cathedral, 7.20 a.m.; Holy Communion at the Cathedral, 8; ringing there again, 10.15; Mattins, 11; a visit to the ancient harbour in a tiny fjord of Norwegian type (the importance of which probably led St. David to found the Cathedral there 1,350 years ago) after lunch; the Cathedral library, 3-4; ringing at the Cathedral, 5.15; Evensong, 6; more ringing, 7.15-8; climbing the local 'mountain' 600 feet high which gives a fine view of hills, moors and sea, 9 p.m. What with the friendliness of the Cathedral ringers, the organist, and the choir, we felt impressively at home, with all the ages of British history and the best of British culture, in this lovely far-distant place.

A WHIRL

Monday was simply a whirl, what with jumping into cars and out again, desolate mountain roads, crowded streets, parking in impossible places, lightning introductions to charming ringers and welcoming bells. . . First the Seventeen Hills to Haverfordwest. Negotiating the 'houseroof' roads of the town, to the grand church, one of the finest examples of an 'Early English' parish church in Britain, Cambridge on the fine eight (tenor 19 cwt.). A dash over unfamiliar roads to Tenby. Brief glimpse of lovely sands, rocks and bathers—in the drizzle. Legal parking virtually impossible. A dash round the church to find (a) the tower, (b) its entrance (why are the entrances in so many Welsh towers difficult to find? Was this to bamboozle the English in earlier days?). Stedman on the eight (tenor 14 cwt.) here. Then to Carmarthen for lunch (ad lib, i.e. not organised), followed by Double Norwich, etc., on the grand eight (tenor 22 cwt.) at St. Peter's. A dash to Llandeilo (St. Teilo—what charming local saints so many of the Welsh parish churches, like the Cornish ones, are dedicated to), for Cambridge, etc., on a nice six, followed by a further dash to Llandovery (St. Dinget) for Cambridge on another very nice six

Tea was most kindly provided on a generous scale in the Parish Hall by charming ladies, who were in some doubt as to whether they were the Mothers' Union, the Women's Institute, or the Girls' Friendly Society, but who surely combined the virtues of all three. So to Abergavenny, where the less adventurous members were already ringing at the grand Abbey Church on its magnificent ten. We were honoured at dinner at the Swan (where we stayed, virtually monopolising the building and overflowing into other hotels) by the Mayor and Mayoress of Abergavenny, who accompanied us afterwards to the Abbey again for the local practice night, in which we had the pleasure of joining. The Vicar had welcomed us in a charming speech at 6, but had to tell us at 8.45 that a 'gentleman' nearby was complaining that we were interrupting his business, and that curtailment of ringing was advisable. Any business carried on at such a time seemed likely to be fictitious or nefarious—we suspected the former. Had we discovered who he was (like other mischief makers, he appeared to be anonymous) we might have added to his business by further phone calls till a late—or early—hour. But the warmth of the welcome by the Abergavenny ringers, as well as the Mayor and Mayoress, outshines all else in memory.

GUILD'S 400th PEAL

On Tuesday members rang the Guild's 400th peal — Cambridge (appropriately) Major at Caerphilly. The rest had a memorable if from ringing's point of view unusual morning, touring the great Ebbw Vale steelworks, and seeing all processes from the Bessemer converter to finished steel plates, both tinned and plain. Amongst unforgettable impressions was the amount of heat still radiated over a considerable distance of a twenty-ton ingot after it had been under dozens of rollers and had gallons of water on it. If politicians realised more the amount of discomfort involved in such industry they might devote less of its products to war. Dangers there are in plenty. A worker fell into a crucible one day, leaving no visible trace. The contents, several tons, were cast into an ingot which was buried. Who undertook we did not hear.

In the afternoon, we rang at Llanbradach (8 cwt.), then at St. Sannan's, Bedwellty. The ringers gave us a magnificent tea at Ebbw Vale, for which we were truly grateful. There followed a peal of Superlative on the magnificent eight at Ebbw Vale, which are a real pleasure to ring. Others rang at St. Elli, Llanelly, on the six (tenor 10 cwt.), which are not in Dove's Guide.

A PEAL ATTEMPT AT BRECON

First tower on Wednesday was St. Tydfil, Merthyr Tydfil, the entrance to whose tower (fine eight), with welcoming locals, was eventually found. Then to St. Elvan, Aberdare, whose nice eight were rehung in 1935 by Taylor's. A nice six at St. John Baptist, Cefn Coed. A magnificent drive over the mountains, past Storey Arms, with the Brecon Beacons on our right, and a glorious day for seeing them, to Brecon. At St. Mary's a peal of Bristol was attempted, but we had not been permitted to lock the door, and a local appeared rather disconcertingly and stood around until the band broke down. He seemed a bit surprised and apologetic about the connection between the two facts. Then he let the band lock themselves in, but a colleague of his appeared later through another door, the existence of which we were ignorant, wound the clock, and quietly closed the trap door which had been carefully opened to make the trebles audible. A gramophone record might have ploughed unconcernedly through all these distractions, but not so the peal band. Those wanting peals might have a clearer understanding of the matters involved another time.

Non-pealers rang on three nice sixes, at Llanfaes, a suburb of Brecon, Bronllys, with a nice detached campanile, and Talgarth. Then to the lovely light eight at St. Meugan, Llanfigan, where we'd have loved a peal. That evening the annual meeting was held. Matters discussed at this included the printing or duplicating of the Guild history from the time of the late Rev. B. H. Tyrwhitt Drake's history, 1929, to the present. The next Guild Week was agreed to be at Cambridge (in accordance with the custom of going there every five years), August 29th to September 3rd, 1955. The Annual Dinner to be in Cambridge at a date (probably the Lent term) to be fixed later. Brian Price was warmly thanked for his organising.

THE POLICEMAN'S DIRECTORY

On Thursday a band found a number of circumstances, each small but cumulative, made a peal at St. Cybi, Llangibby, a bit too hard. A kindly local here had told us that the 2nd was the treble. 'Others, more mild, retreated in a silent valley' ('Paradise Lost,' Book 2), climbed 1,400 ft. up to ring at Blaenavon, then on the light eight with long draught of rope at Trevethin. All gathered at Tredunnock (an old six), where the tenor wheel was loose and the 4th slider slid too far with the usual consequences. In the afternoon to the glorious eight at Usk, for spliced, etc. The organ here (from Llandaff Cathedral) has reeds sticking out horizontally as in Spanish organs, with dramatic effect when you play them. At St. Cadoc, Caerleon, ringing was sandwiched between visits to the remains of the Roman city—the amphitheatre, museum, etc. A local policeman here told some of us to 'take that road, it's the right direction and it goes to the mental hospital.' The connection wasn't obvious. At Blaenavon was noted 'Rule 13. No objection is made to female ringers.' This in these enlightened days happily expresses the University Guild's attitude, an improvement on former days. Then to Llanfrechfa, where what you hear is 1 and 2 against background noises. After another visit to Abergavenny tower, the evening finished with a dash up a valley to ring the first 720 on the fine six at St. Clydog, Clodock.

On Friday we rang at St. Michael, Lower Machen (8), then on the fine 12 at St. Woolos' Cathedral, Newport. After this the undersigned left for home, and therefore takes no responsibility for the accuracy of the rest of this record. A peal was attempted (and perhaps got) at All Saints', Newport, and a glorious week concluded with the six at Nash, the six steel bells at Bessaleg, and the eight at Marshfield. We departed feeling most grateful to all in this locality for the kind welcome they gave us and the plans they made for our comfort.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

E. W. TIPLER.—Ernest William Tipler was born at Kettering in 1889. Arrived at Lutterworth (via Leicester) 1902 (still here). Learned to handle a bell in 1903 and joined the Sunday service band 1904. The ringing then was call changes. The year 1910 saw the birth of a change ringing band under the direction of the late William Willson, of Leicester. Rang first peal, Grandsire Triples, 1922. Up to date has rung 88 peals in the four standard methods. Took up, as a hobby, juggling with figures about 1928. With the kind assistance of such good men as the late Arthur Craven, A. G. Driver and the grand old man of them all, George Baker, attained the position he now holds. He is afraid that the only works available are a few scraps of paper and a notebook.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PEAL RINGING IN DERBYSHIRE

Dear Sir,—I should like to supplement the article on 'Peal ringing in Derbyshire' by the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead, which appeared in 'The Ringing World,' page 553. The number of peals rung at Holy Cross Church, Morton, was not mentioned in the article. However, 30 peals (one less than at Blackwell) have been rung there and I think this should have been included with the six-bell towers.

It may be interesting to note that 19 of the peals rung at Morton (all the peals are Minor) were rung in the period 1924–1931, 10 during 1947–1950, and one this year. A new treble was added to the old five bells at Morton in 1923 and apparently no peals were rung on the original five bells prior to 1923.

At Blackwell the sixth bell was added in 1946, and out of the total of 31 peals rung there probably 20 or more were rung on the five bells. This is worth mentioning since the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead seems to infer that five-bell peals are practically non-existent in Derbyshire.

If it has not already been done, I should like to correct the statement that no peal has been rung at Wingerworth. At least one peal has been rung there, that being since the last war.—Yours faithfully,

B. A. RICHARDS.

Morton, Derbyshire.

ST. HELEN'S, DARLEY DALE

Dear Sir,—With reference to the article on peal ringing in Derbyshire by the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead, I would like to mention the Church of St. Helen, Darley, which has a long record of change ringing. The bells were made into a ring of eight in 1902.

We have no records of any peals on the old six, but there were numerous 720's of Minor, including Treble Bob, from about 1880 to 1902. On the eight bells 90 peals have been rung, including several first peals in the method for the Midland Counties Association.

Twenty-two peals have been rung since the last war, the majority of them by the Sunday service ringers. It is interesting to note that in all but two peals local ringers have taken part.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE H. PAULSON.

Darley Dale.

PEAL RINGING IN DEVONSHIRE

Dear Sir,—With reference to peal ringing in Devonshire, may I send the following correction that has been caused by augmentation? This increases the proportion of six-bell towers. There are now 86 eight-bell towers, 248 six-bell towers and 31 five-bell towers. If you subtract the unringable rings of bells the proportion becomes still greater, as there are 2 eights, 2 sixes and 8 fives, leaving 84 eights, 246 sixes, 23 fives plus 2 twelves, and 2 tens, making 246 sixes to 111 others.—Yours faithfully, W. C. PANTER.

Pinhoe, Exeter.

5,008 DOUBLE NORWICH C.B. MAJOR

Dear Sir,—The peal of 5,008 Double Norwich rung at Bures, Suffolk, on August 28th, and published on page 580 in the issue of September 10th, should have contained the footnote: Composition rung for the first time.

This peal was published in 'The Ringing World' in February, 1953, and I can find no trace of it being rung before. Several of the band are interested to know if our claim is correct.—Yours faithfully,

DONALD L. MILLS.

Bures.

NAMING THE PUPPIES

Dear Sir,—I am a campanologist who has fairly recently taken up the fascinating hobby of breeding and exhibiting dogs, my choice being Pembrokeshire Welsh Corgis. The idea of combining both hobbies occurred to me when I had to register the first litter of puppies at the Kennel Club early last year.

I do not aspire to such academic heights as Miss Churchill does in choosing names—my registered prefix, 'Saffid' is derived from my maiden name and the Latin form of my married name. By adding such ringing terms as run smoothly and pleasantly off the tongue, I can 'brand' my dogs with both my husband's and my own family name, and a hobby practised by both families. For example, one of my bitches is registered as 'Saffid Primrose Delight,' whilst 'Maximus' was chosen as more suitable for a dog.

Our ringing friends are most helpful when names are required, and we are now busily engaged in choosing appropriate titles for our next litter.—Yours faithfully,

(MRS.) BETTY M. FAITHFULL.

ST. ALFEGE CHURCH, GREENWICH

Dear Sir,—This historic church was burnt out by enemy action in 1941, and has been beautifully restored by the War Damage Commission, though the parish had to raise £6,000. Since this work was completed we have put in hand the restoration of the bells, and when they were removed ot the foundry of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank it was found that all except the tenor bell would have to be recast. This has been done and they are now being rehung, and we have arranged for the dedication of the ring to take place at 6.30 p.m. on Sunday, October 31st, 1954.

The original ring of eight was made by R. Phelps in 1731 and cast by Mears and Stainbank at their Whitechapel Foundry, one of them being inscribed as the gift of Her Gracious Majesty Queen Caroline. Two more were added in 1734, and the tenor (25 cwt.) was cast in 1824. It may also be of interest to note that this ring of ten bells is exactly the same weight, bell for bell, as the ring recently rehung by Mears and Stainbank at Chesterfield Parish Church.

The total cost of this work is £1,330, all of which the parish will have to raise, as it is not deemed to be war damage, and we would, of course, be grateful for any help which those interested in the preservation of such ancient bells can give us.—Yours sincerely,

C. S. NASON (Rev.).

FIRE

Dear Sir,—I was greatly interested in this front page article. In my father's time it was a nightmare to keep the dust of years down in Morpeth Watch Tower. I remember how he and my brother scraped among the bells and my sister washed the floor of the ringing room.

The bells were recast in 1951, and after three years when the dust of years was quickly showing the Council decided to have the belfry painted throughout. I am afraid the bell loft has not been done. One painter said to me, 'I am not going up there; a bell might fall on me.' I never thought of a bell falling on me in those days of unringable bells when I climbed over or crawled under them to fix cords for clock chiming. I wish I had asked Mr. Fidler, of Loughborough, how to keep that bell loft clean.—Yours sincerely,

JENNIE ARMSTRONG.

Morpeth.

THE FULL EXTENT OF MAJOR

Dear Sir,—Can anyone at Loughborough enlighten us re the following? Two or three years ago at Peterborough a strong rumour was going round of an attempt at the Foundry for the full extent of Major. I heard nothing further until about six weeks ago when a paragraph appeared in a national paper stating that eight ringers were going to ring for twenty hours at the Foundry last month, as there was no annoyance at that tower to the public.

Now if my memory serves me correctly the middle four bells of the back eight do not allow much room for a relief to take over, and to ring for twenty hours is rather a tall order. Someone must have sent the information to the Press. I certainly think our own Press should have been the first to receive the news. Is it wishful thinking or a leg pull?—Yours,

A. H. PULLING.

Guildford.

HOSPITALITY IN CORNWALL

Dear Sir,—I should like to support Mr. Paul Field's statement with regard to Cornwall and its hospitality, which I have enjoyed over a number of years.

Five ringers, including myself, made up the Somerset party which joined him on the August Bank Holiday 'border outing.' Spending the week-end at Launceston, we shared of this hospitality to the full, thanks to Mr. Wilf Boucher, of St. Mary's, who, until we met him on the Saturday, was a stranger to us. At short notice he arranged 'digs' for us and ringing at six towers, where we found warm welcome, although we were 'scientific chaps.'—Yours faithfully,

R. D. SHORT.

Bridgwater.

'THIS TIDYING UP'

Dear Sir,—It appears that Mr. Butler has the same interpretation of Mr. Birmingham's letter as I had, viz: four consecutive blows are allowed in Doubles, but not in higher numbers, therefore, as sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, start kicking at the Doubles ringers. But is the meat of a goose to that of a gander the same as Doubles is to higher numbers? Far from it, and I say that to try to apply the same rules to all numbers of bells is just sheer bunk. As for the remark about the peal of Plain Bob Caters, Mr. Butler was there when Mr. Birmingham gave me his reasons for suggesting it.

Is it the Methods Committee and the Central Council that are dictating and 'tidying up'? I personally think that there are one or two puritanical individuals who are satisfying their personal whims by using the 'gift of the gab' in the very short time that the Council sits for discussion after two or three days' 'tower-grabbing.'

Finally, at the risk of getting a 'M.Y.O.B.,' may I ask when the 'Collection of Doubles Methods' will be published? Will it be complete or will it be the same as the Collections of Minor, Triples and Major (incomplete)?—Yours sincerely,

F. T. BLAGROVE.

Stanwell, Middlesex.

PARSONS AND MUTED BELLS

Dear Sir,—It is certainly to be deplored that there exist incumbents who dislike the ringing of church bells, but even more to be deplored are the ill-advised and unworthy sentiments expressed by your correspondent, Mr. E. J. Rowe, in the sentence which concludes his letter appearing in a recent issue. No doubt there will be many, with myself, who hope that, after seeing it in 'cold' print, its author will regret it as casting an adverse reflection upon himself and bell ringers in general.—Yours truly,

B. E. BARTLETT.

LETTERS—Continued

A KENT TOUR AND RINGERS

Dear Sir,—May I congratulate Mr. Jenkins and his party on their successful tour in Kent. Having rung peals in all the towers they visited except Quex Park, and in many other Kent towers as well, I was most interested in the account of their activities.

Reference to my friend Mark Lancefield's entry into the sphere of twelve-bell ringing prompts me to recall his first entry into serious peal ringing in 1945. On a peal ringing week in Kent he and his brother Albert stood in a peal of Bob Major at Cheriton—the first of the week. This was their first peal on eight bells, but before the week was over they had rung peals of Treble Bob Major, Double Norwich, Grandsire Triples, Grandsire Caters and Cambridge Major. In all these peals they rang creditably and without prompting, and I doubt whether this amount of progress in peal ringing within a week has ever been equalled. Since those days Mark has established himself as a conductor and it has been a thrill to follow the activities of his friends and himself in the Ashford district.

I would share Mr. Jenkins' hope that some day a peal of Surprise Maximus will be rung by a resident Kent band. Ironically enough this has been possible many many times through the years and Kent is one of the very few counties that could have raised a resident band for Surprise Maximus before the war. (I doubt whether even Middlesex could have done this.) I amused myself recently trying to recall the names of past and present resident Kent ringers who either have rung peals of Surprise Maximus or had sufficient experience on twelve bells to enable them to ring it. My list, written from memory, is certain to have some glaring omissions, but even so I dare say some of your readers will be interested to recall these ringers —some, alas, gone before, but many still actively with us—Edwin Barnett, sen., Edwin Barnett, jun., Edwin A. Barnett, Thomas Groombridge, sen., Thomas Groombridge, jun., Herbert E. Audsley, Harry Hoverd, George H. Cross, Jas. Bennett, Fredk. J. Cullum, Jas. E. Bailey, Norman Summerhayes, Geo. J. Butcher, Edwin H. Lewis, John H. Cheesman, Edward J. Beer, John E. Spice, Betty Spice (now Mrs. Robbins), Thomas E. Sone, Stafford H. Green, Frederick White, Geoffrey V. Murphy, Arthur S. Richards, Arthur G. Mason, Harold Clark, Edwin F. Pike, Harry Parkes, Mark S. Lancefield, Thomas Cullingworth,

And dare I add?

PHILIP A. CORBY.

Melton Mowbray.

P.S.—My list includes two 'thousand pealers,' John H. Cheesman and James Bennett; a ringer who took part in the long peal of Cambridge Maximus at Bow, Herbert E. Audsley (who in other circumstances would by now have rung 1,000 peals), and the present president and secretary of the Central Council.—P. A. C.

'CIRCLING' OF TOWERS BY LADIES

Dear Sir, — On Wednesday, October 31st, 1951, the tenor at St. Mary's Church, Rodbourne Cheney, Swindon, was rung to a peal by Miss Bernice Strange, thus completing a peal on each of the six bells. She was then 18 years of age.

W. B. KYNASTON.

Rodbourne Cheney, Swindon, Wilts.

1823

Dear Sir,—Undoubtedly 1823 is a peculiar number to record, but not all ringers view with such obvious scorn these odd items of information. An indication of the size taken in hats, scattered occasionally here and there among the footnotes, would be interesting, too. —Yours faithfully,

K. S. B. CROFT.

BEDFORDSHIRE TOUR RUTLAND

Beautiful countryside, excellent bells, interesting churches, helpfulness and friendliness of local ringers and clergy (with many of whom we were pleased to meet and ring), all combined to make a most enjoyable outing for a few members of the Bedfordshire Association touring Rutland on August Monday.

An unforeseen halt, when one of the cars developed a puncture, did not prevent a punctual arrival at the first tower, Caldecote (5), to enjoy Grandsire, Stedman, St. Nicholas' and St. Simon's Doubles; we were surprised to hear from the Vicar that although these old bells have been rehung, the bells themselves have never had anything done in the way of retuning, etc. A second delay, and not on the programme, was to pay a well-worth visit to the interesting old church at Brook—this has not been altered in detail at all since the days of Queen Elizabeth!

What a joy to ring at the next tower, Oakham (8)! Stedman couldn't sound better than here; we also rang Grandsire, Little Bob and Cambridge. Then on to nearby Langham (6), where methods rung included Plain Bob, Cambridge, London, Double Oxford and Kent. Next a break for picnic lunch before ringing some more Doubles, this time on the five at Market Overton; here one enters the belfry under an old Saxon arch and to ring stands an wooden steps which apparently originate from the days when the choir sat there.

A variety of Minor methods came next on the easy-going six at Cottesmore; then over hill and dale to Edith Weston, where after a stop for tea we enjoyed yet another hour of Minor method ringing. Our last six-bell tower was Glaston, a very light ring: a central tower here so ringing is from the chancel. An unexpected and interesting tour of Uppingham School preceded ringing at the Parish Church (8). Having heard various reports, we were pleasantly surprised at the 'go' and tone of these bells and just had time to go for a touch of Grandsire and one of Cambridge before having 'supper' and making tracks for home.

A. R.

BLUNSDON, WILTSHIRE

Ringers from Swindon (Christ Church, St. Mark's and St. Mary's) and Highworth accompanied Blunsdon ringers and friends on their first outing on August 28th around Gloucester. A late start, owing to the non-arrival of the coach, caused the programme to be curtailed. Visits to Witcombe (6) and Brockworth (6) had to be omitted to enable Gloucester to be reached in time for tea at the Saracen's Head Hotel. We were sorry to miss these two towers and disappoint the local ringers, to whom sincere apologies are tendered.

Ringing at St. Mary-de-Lode (where we were met by one of the local company) also had to be curtailed, but was enjoyed by all. After an excellent tea ringing at Quedgley on the handy eight went with a swing. On to Standish (6), with some good ringing on this nice six. Two visitors from South Africa on tour in England came into the tower during the ringing, and were very impressed with their first experience of change ringing. Our last call was at Minchinhampton (6), and we were pleased to see Messrs. Ponting and Barratt and other members of the local band. These bells proved a little too tricky for some of our party, but a course of London Minor brought forth praise.

Ringing during the trip comprised Plain Bob, Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Double Court, Cambridge and London Minor, Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Cambridge Major. The Rev. L. A. Knight, Vicar of Blunsdon, accompanied the party. Thanks are extended to incumbents and local tower secretaries for their assistance. W. H. T.

BY AIR TO RING A PEAL

A Day's Visit to Ireland

History was made on September 4th, when seven ringers left Ringway Airport, Manchester, for Collinstown Airport, Dublin, in a chartered Rapide aircraft piloted by Mr. Swift. Much thought and planning by Fred Dunkerley and John Worth lay behind this day trip to ring a peal at Bray, where the bells so impressed six of the party last year that they wished to pay a return visit. At 10 o'clock the party hurried across the tarmac to the aircraft, where the pilot supervised the loading of the heavy weights; he was not very concerned about the feather-weights, and a few minutes later the plane was airborne. Mr. Dunkerley was already in Ireland, having flown there earlier in the week.

Those of the party who had not flown before were agreeably surprised at the absence of motion and settled down to enjoy the aerial view of Cheshire and North Wales. As the pilot turned to cross the Irish Sea one sensed a heightening tension, but in a very few minutes all were busily engaged in spotting the Isle of Man and the Irish Coast, and in no time at all we were taxi-ing along the runway to the airport buildings, where the remaining member of the band was waiting. Customs formalities completed, we piled into two cars and were whisked away through Dublin to Bray. Lunch at the Royal Hotel preceded the peal, and on arrival at the church we were met by the Rector, who welcomed us. The bells had been raised by the local band and soon ropes were adjusted and the band set off to ring A. J. Pitman's fine composition, which was completed after 3 hours 31 minutes of excellent ringing, during which there was nothing which needed the conductor's intervention, although occasionally someone would prove that his ability in arithmetic was not equal to counting five.

At the conclusion of the peal the band returned to the hotel for a hurried dinner, some by rather devious routes to sample the local 'water.' Shortly after 7.30 Bray was left behind and this time all eight piled into a large car and urged the driver to 'get a move on' as Fred had to catch the London plane leaving just after eight o'clock. Needless to say, we made it and the Rapide was in flight soon after 8.30. The return journey proved more interesting than the outward one, for Lancashire and Cheshire, viewed from the air, proved to look almost fairylike.

It is believed that this is the first time in the history of the art that a complete band has flown in order to ring a peal.

The band are indebted to Fred Dunkerley for the transport facilities, to John Worth for other arrangements and general co-ordination, and to the Rector and local ringers for their ready co-operation.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From 'The Ringing World' of Sept. 25th, 1914

TERRITORIALS' SUNDAY AFTERNOON EXCURSION

Sgt. C. H. Russell, 4th Hants Regt., sends an account of a trip arranged by some of the Territorials while in camp. . . . A party of us arranged to walk [to Amesbury] on Sunday last. . . . With the help of Mr. F. Precey (Salisbury) the following rang two courses of Bob Minor: L/Cpl. C. Bunch 1, Pte. G. Pullinger 2, Pte. G. Butler 3, F. Precey 4, Cpl. Worsfold 5, Sgt. C. Russell 6. . . . To finish up, the following all-Territorial band rang a six-score of Stedman Doubles: Pte. C. Butler 1, L/Cpl. C. Bunch 2, Pte. G. Butler 3, Sgt. C. Russell 4, Cpl. Worsfold 5, Sgt. Mells 6.

[Since, at that time, there was no conscription, and the size of the Army was not very great, it was rather remarkable that seven ringers should have been in one camp.]

CHESHIRE AND NORTH WALES TOUR

Ringing in Eight Counties

IN an endeavour to complete that long cherished ambition of a peal in each Welsh county and to provide once again the opportunity for C. 'Hilary' K. to reach the summit of Snowdon, this year's venue of the Welsh enthusiasts was again Cheshire and North Wales

The failure of the former ambition is another story, but we must pause here to express regret that at the last moment C. H. K. was unable to join us owing to an attack of shingles. Ere this appears in print we trust that he will be able to commence training for those higher 'peals' next year.

As last year, two parties set out from London and the other from the West Country with Coalbrookdale as the rendezvous. A late train at Newport delayed the return to the fold of our 'bell-hanging friend,' complete with tools, and a multiplicity of bedtime stories.

Pausing at Usk to take on bellropes we progressed rapidly to Hereford, where we took on board the namesake of that famous Stedman swinging cleric, who was our replacement for the sick C. H. K., then on through Leominster, Ludlow, past the ancient ruins of Bildwas Abbey, to Coalbrookdale, where, at the church, we received a warm welcome from Mr. A. S. Bailey. Preliminaries completed, this fine tensome was soon going to Yorkshire Royal, an excellent peal resulting, though not without incident, as a thunderstorm with terrific flashes of lightning which seemed to run down below the level of the windows, followed by heavy peals of thunder and torrential rain, almost ended the proceedings.

However, after our first taste of Wrekin ale, it was into the rain for Shrewsbury, where we picked up W. F. M. after an almost sleepless night on the U.A. tour. Then once more into the rain for Chester and the Talbot Hotel, which was to be our headquarters until the Thursday.

Sunday morning saw us ringing at the Cathedral for the annual Mons Day service for the Cheshire Regiment. Then, off through the Mersey tunnel to Southport, where ringing had been arranged on two nice eights by Joe Ridyard who, together with Margaret, met and rang with us on a pleasant Mears eight at Christ Church. Then on to Emmanuel with its nice Taylor eight, where we were pleased to meet the local ringers.

SECOND FAILURE AT GRESFORD

Our first attempt for Monday was in one of the required Welsh counties, Gresford being the venue. We were welcomed by the Vicar and Mr. Griffiths, who had everything in readiness, and we were soon ringing Cambridge with almost faultless precision on this fine eight, reputedly one of the seven wonders of Wales. At the end of three hours and fifteen minutes we had six leads to ring, but it was not to be—the tenor rope broke without any previous warning. It was a great disappointment after such fine ringing. Four of us have now spent over six hours in this tower without success. An excellent lunch was arranged by Mr. Griffiths and we were once again on the road to Liverpool, where we were privileged to have an attempt for Stedman on this magnificent twelve by John Taylor and Co. Here we had the pleasure of the company of Doctor John Spice, Percy Cave and Gordon Benfield, but we were still suffering from the disappointment of the morning's failure and were not Stedman-minded. However, it was a treat to ring on such a fine twelve. Here, after an interval in a 'local' with the 'locals,' we took leave of Selwyn, who unfortunately had to return to his duties of safeguarding the nation's gold.

PEAL AT CHESTER CATHEDRAL

The Dean and Chapter gave permission for a peal attempt at Chester Cathedral. After being interviewed by the local Press a start was made for Cambridge Royal, this time with success, a good peal being rung. Peal ringing here is no easy job as on damp days the tenor rope is liable to perform all sorts of contortions and this day was no exception.

After the peal we posed for photographs for the local Press, which duly appeared under the heading of 'Relaxation after the long day's ringing.' Then we were off to Port Sunlight, a nice eight but rather noisy. Here we were pleased to make acquaintance with Anne Muirhead and to have her pilot us by devious routes to Bidston, where unfortunately there proved to be no ringing.

Wednesday saw us at Frodsham, where Jack Bibby had everything in readiness, and a start was made for Pudsey. The sight of ships passing down the Mersey as seen from the ringing chamber window proved too much for one of the band, and after two hours and twenty minutes of somewhat indifferent ringing a shift resulted, which heralded our third failure. After a fine lunch, all laid on by Jack Bibby, we proceeded to Eccleston, where we were met by Sam Jones, Henry O. Baker and Ralph Edwards, who had come to hear his beloved bells and who was quickly invited to take part. Bristol was the order of the day and some excellent ringing resulted, the last half-hour being characterised by the tension one might expect from four 'firsts in the method.' Eccleston's are a magnificent eight and surely rank with any of the fine eights in the West Country. Thursday saw us take leave of Chester, but not before we had visited Pulford, and with Wilf H. as conductor, scored a good peal of Lincolnshire; a nice eight but somewhat spoiled by excessive pulley noise.

THE TREBLES AT RUTHIN

After lunch we traversed through delightful scenery to Ruthin, where we had arranged to ring for an hour. Here the two trebles have the shakes and, as one member put it, are reminiscent of a man with D.T.'s. It certainly gave one member much pleasure to see the 'Governor' performing on the treble, and to hear the remark, 'Jeeze, what a bell!'

Leaving Ruthin we proceeded via Bettws-y-Coed and Capel Curig to Bangor and during this delightful journey received from our geography master a running commentary of all peaks, together with heights, and the best way of climbing them. Arriving in Bangor, our headquarters for the night, we made a quick visit to Mr. A. J. Hughes, then spent a pleasant half-hour on a nice but rather heavy-going six at Llandegai.

On Friday morning, with a new conductor, we started for Cambridge at Glanadda, but a remark which by now had become notorious produced an attack of 'Jeezitus' and we were called to stand.

A quick run across Telford Suspension Bridge over the Menai Straits enabled some of the party to visit Llanfar P.G., and we were on the long run to Portmadoc through more delightful scenery. Here Wilf H. successfully called Pudsey on this pleasant eight and so redeemed our failure at Frodsham. By this time it was raining as only it can rain in the Welsh mountains and in front of us was a 60 miles' journey to our last headquarters, the Wynstay Arms Hotel at Machynlleth, where we had a pleasant time last year.

A TUNELESS EIGHT

Saturday morning saw us early on the road to Llanbadarn Fawr, in Cardiganshire, the scene of a failure two years previously. After fitting new ropes Cambridge was well rung in a determined manner in this vast tower, which gave Wilf H. his 500th peal, at 30—surely one of the youngest ringers ever to reach this total. Lunch in Aberystwyth and a stroll on the sea front, and we were wending our way back to Machynlleth for the last attempt of the tour. Here we were welcomed by the Vicar and local ringers. London was the order here and with four 'firsts in the method' a good peal was rung, though one member will never forget the expressive contortions on the face of another member as London unfolded itself on this tuneless eight. The rest of the evening was spent in celebrating, among other things, Wilf H.'s 500th, and many were the stories unfolded by our 'bell-hanging friend.' On Sunday we rang for morning service at Knighton, in Radnorshire, a distance of almost 60 miles. We arrived promptly at 10.30 to enjoy some good ringing on this lovely light Mears eight. So ended a most successful and happy week.

Finally we should like to express our regrets that this year Roger Fry was unable at the last moment to be with us, also to record our thanks to all who met and helped us in the arrangements of a most successful week.

SHEFFIELD & DISTRICT SOCIETY

The annual silver cup contest was held at Killamarsh on September 4th, and, in addition to competing teams, the following towers were represented: Doncaster, Thorne, Eckington, Staveley, Bawtry and Shireoaks.

Mr. Harold Chant, assisted by Mr. Fred Adams, judged Warsop to be the winners with 40 faults, and Bolsover second with only one more fault. Other teams competing were Sheffield Cathedral, Rotherham, Whittington and Handsworth. The cup was presented by Mr. Jim Thorley, of Thorne, and was later 'suitably christened.' All teams except one included lady ringers.

After an excellent tea, a course of Grandsire Caters was rung on handbells by Messrs. J. Thorley, H. Chant, J. J. L. Gilbert, W. Robinson and N. Chaddock at the special request of the Rector (the Rev. John Milner), who later presided at the business meeting.

An appeal for more 'Ringing World' postal subscribers produced three new promises to subscribe.

In response to an invitation to the Ringers' Day at Marsden on November 20th, it was decided to organise a coach trip there if there was sufficient demand.

It was announced that the next meeting, joint with the Derbyshire Guild (Chesterfield District) at Chesterfield, would be held on Oct. 9th (not October 2nd as originally planned).

The meeting concluded with suitable votes of thanks, especially to Mr. F. Parr, who so ably handled the local arrangements, thus ensuring such a happy and successful function, which by good fortune coincided with local Feast celebrations.

DURHAM & NEWCASTLE ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Southern District was held on September 4th at St. Mary's Church, Barnard Castle. Methods that were rung were Plain Bob Major, Grandsire Triples, Kent, Plain Bob and Cambridge Minor. Mr. Willows, of Retford, was a very welcome visitor. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Wright, curate of the church. At the business meeting the members stood in silence in remembrance of Mr. G. W. Park, who recently passed away.

EDGBASTON RINGERS HONOUR ORGANIST

When ringers at St. Bartholomew's, Edgbaston, decided to honour the 21 years' service to the church of the organist, Mr. Russell Green, by a peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major, Mr. Green came from his home 10 miles away to listen to the peal from start to finish. He afterwards expressed his deep appreciation to the band for the honour paid him. The peal was also of special interest to Mr. Christopher Wallater, a member of the band, as his parents were married at this church about 72 years ago.

OBITUARY

MR. R. S. PHILPOTT

A brief reference was made in a previous issue to the death of Mr. Raymond Stuart Philpott, of Fairbourne, Runfold, Surrey, in the Farnham County Hospital on September 7th, aged 52 years.

As a young man he joined the band of Holy Trinity, Guildford, and for a number of years was an enthusiastic and successful peal ringer. He rang in the peal of 9,600 Double Dublin Surprise Major at Guildford in 1931, and in 6,144 Guildford Surprise Major, both of which are the longest lengths yet rung in the methods. Of a studious nature, he was a genial companion, and his early death is mourned by many friends.

An ophthalmic optician by profession, he was a Fellow of the British Optical Association and a Fellow of the Worshipful Company of Spectacle Makers. A Freemason, Mr. Philpott was installed as Master of a Woking lodge last year.

The funeral service was held at Seale Parish Church on September 13th, the Rector (the Rev. E. D. Ginever) officiating. The bells were rung half-muffled before and after the service, and at the graveside a course of Grandsire Triples by Messrs. A. H. Pulling 1-2, C. W. Denyer 3-4, R. Overy 5-6, W. H. Viggers 7-8.

Among the ringing friends present were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Pulling, Mr. and Mrs. R. Overy, Messrs. C. E. Smith, G. Wootton, C. W. Denyer, W. Denyer, L. C. W. Hunter, J. W. Carter, Miss M. Cass and Miss B. Stewart.

MR. BERT CHALLEN

On September 13th the half-muffled bells of St. Mary-ad-Haura, Shoreham-by-Sea, marked the funeral of Mr. Bert Challen, a respected and long-standing leader of the local ringers, who died on September 8th, aged 82.

When Shoreham possessed only five bells, Bert, then ten years of age, first learned to handle a bell, and in 1880, when the bells were increased to six, he started change ringing. In 1896, when two more bells were added, he was elected leader, a position he held, except for two short periods, until his death.

A good ringer and striker, and above all a regular Sunday service ringer, he will be sadly missed. The family ringing tradition will be carried on by three sons and a grandson. He rang in about 50 peals, from Grandsire to Cambridge, mostly in his own tower.

Ringers from various towers attended his funeral, and a course of Grandsire Triples on handbells was rung by A. W. Bond 1-2, F. Bennett 3-4, F. Page 5-6, H. Stalham 7-8. During the evening the half-muffled bells were again manned by his old friends as a final token of respect.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2269 FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

MY FIRST RINGING TOUR

By A. MURIEL REAY

LOOKING back on my first ringing tour, several events stand out in a crowded week. The party was quite a varied one. There were three teachers who occasionally exchanged methods of introducing a little knowledge to the young. Then there were those said to keep their room-mate awake half the night discussing peal compositions and method construction. One ringer had a 'Mum' whose sayings would fill many volumes, while another well-known ringer was said to be unable to read.

Rochester stands out for the traffic jam in which we were involved. It was a hot morning and the ice-cream vendors were wandering in and out of the waiting cars making the most of this opportunity to sell their wares. We arrived at Gillingham in time for lunch instead of a peal.

From Gillingham to Northfleet we had views of the river and its shipping and dockyards. This was one face of Kent, but before the week was over we were to see most of this pleasant county. There were flattish areas near Thanet, with wide fields of wheat and oats rippling in the sunlight. The Weald was hillier and had hopfields with the vines trained up tall supports. In the orchards the apple trees were laden. Worcestershire has been called the Land of the Heavenly Spring, but the Garden of England must be her twin in blossom time. Added to all this natural beauty there were the villages with their old houses, inns and churches. Many of the churches had a sturdy tower with a turret over the stairs. Some had a broach spire, and one, High Halden, a tower and spire of wood. There were also the conical oast houses. No weald village seemed complete without one or two of these peeping out among the trees or behind a farmhouse.

We soon met the local ringers, and what a friendly crowd they were! They seemed pleased to have us there and gave us the freedom of their belfries. When they could, they came to listen to us, some rang with us in our peals and took us on 'tower-grabbing' excursions, the first of these being on the Sunday afternoon. On this occasion I was not in the peal. We locked the eight ringers in the belfry and my companion pocketed the key. We heard the start of the peal and then accepted Harry's invitation to try the bells of some nearby churches. Gathering up some more ringers, we set off, taking the key with us. 'If the peal breaks down,' we said, 'we shall at least know where to find the others when we return.' Perhaps it was fortunate for us that the peal did not break down.

I found Canterbury Cathedral a place of contrasts. When we arrived it was crowded with sightseers and echoed to the sound of their footsteps and whispered conversation. When we finished our peal the Cathedral was empty and very peaceful. Dim and mysterious in the evening light and now silent, it was incredibly lovely with the vaulted roof soaring up from the tall piers. Later, as we left Canterbury, I saw the floodlit Cathedral rising above the dark roofs of the city.

Quex Park was another highlight of the week. This tower is in the middle of a field and surrounded by trees. It has a ground floor belfry and no electric light. The bells are light with a fairly long draught of rope and, in spite of four sound shoots, are not very clear in the belfry. As the peal progressed and the daylight faded, the shadows became more prominent and the ropes less distinct. You often wondered whether you were coursing a shadow or a bell, and were tempted to ask irreverently, 'Art thou (s)he that cometh or look we for another?'

At Northfleet, where the first peal of the tour was rung, the men entered the belfry and had their coats off and shirt sleeves rolled up in no time. At Westerham, where the last attempt was to be made, it was rather different. By this time some of us were feeling rather tired and, as we were being joined by friends, had privately decided to relinquish our ropes in their favour. We tried the bells, ringing a few rounds. Then, while the others were talking six of us slipped out. I was the last to go, and as I did so someone inside called out, 'Come back, you're ringing this afternoon. Bring them back, George, we're one short.' Discretion being the better part of valour, I fled. Before me three ringers, solid, substantial men, simply vanished into thin air. Behind me the luckless victim was caught and drawn back into the belfry protesting volubly. The door closed on his threats and protests. Only one other ringer remained in the trim little churchyard and he was looking very virtuous. He had to catch a train home in half an hour. We waited for several minutes before the bells began to ring. Not until they were safely in changes did the other three truants return.

Yes, a ringing holiday is certainly an entertaining one. You will have little time for lazing, and none for shop-gazing or sunbathing, but you are not dependent on the weather. You will meet old friends and make new ones with interests similar to your own. You may be tired when you return home, but if you like ringing and an energetic holiday you will have had a most enjoyable time.

WOODCHESTER BRIDAL COUPLE HEAR BELLS ON TELEPHONE

A Woodchester (Glos) couple, who were married on September 18th at their Parish Church, sat in their honeymoon hotel at Paignton, South Devon, at about 6.15 p.m. the following day and listened to the bells of their village church ringing out a quarter peal in honour of their wedding.

Both had expressed a wish to hear the bells and it was arranged that at that time a telephone call should be put through to a house near the church. The 'broadcast' was a great success, the ringing being heard quite clearly.

The bridegroom was Mr. Robert L. (Bob) Brunt, and his bride Miss Valerie Blakesley. The service, which was fully choral, was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. H. D. Woolcott), and during the ceremony four young ringers—Ron Bowley, Nigel Birch, Anthony Burford and Brian Vanstone—played the hymn 'Love Divine' on handbells.

There was ringing on the tower bells both before and after the service, and the happy couple were later photographed with the bridegroom's ringing friends in the belfry.

Before they could attend the reception they had to negotiate a gate well tied up with a bell rope—this being achieved, much to the amusement of a large crowd of villagers.

On the Sunday a quarter peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung before Evensong:— W. J. S. Brunt 1, G. Latham 2, F. Garland 3, S. C. Thain 4, R. J. Thain (cond.) 5, L. Cordwell 6.

The couple were presented with a hall set by the Woodchester ringers, who themselves—as is the custom—received a bottle of whisky from the bridegroom.

Weddings

MR. R. PEARCE—MISS B. BROWN

On September 4th at the Church of St. Peter-at-Gowts, Lincoln, Mr. Richard Pearce, of Regina, Canada, was married to Miss Betty Brown, of Lincoln. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended by five bridesmaids.

The reception, which was held at Eastgate Court, was attended by many relatives and friends.

The bride was, without a doubt one of the outstanding lady ringers in Lincolnshire and had a number of peals in advanced methods to her credit. Those meriting particular mention are Spliced Surprise Major in 32 methods, Wembley Surprise Royal (the first ever rung) and London Surprise Major (as conductor, at the age of 14). In all these peals she rang a working bell

The bells at St. Peter-at-Gowts Church were rung before and after the wedding service, and at Lincoln Cathedral later in the day a peal of Stedman Cinques was rung to celebrate the event

The couple will make their home in Regina and sailed for Canada on September 17th.

MR. ALAN SHEPPARD—MISS MARY THORNTON

The wedding took place at Sherburn-in-Elmet Parish Church on September 4th of Mr. Alan Sheppard, a Sunday service ringer, to Miss Mary Thornton. After the ceremony the bells were rung in rounds and 'fired' by Miss D. M. Hawley 1, Alan Thornton 2, Miss Pat Render 3, J. F. Potts 4, L. Thornton 5, H. Paul 6. Derek Render 7, E. M. Bradley 8. The honeymoon was spent at Scarborough.

WORSLEY'S BELLS RING MERRILY

On September 20th, Mr. Alan Pearson, the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Pearson, of Worsley, was married at St. Mark's Church, Worsley, to Miss Mary Ann Hollowood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hollowood, of Winton. The Vicar (the Rev. T. Billington) officiated, and in a reference to the bridegroom's ringing activities, expressed the wish that his husbandly duties would not unduly interfere with his hobby.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gold and parchment brocade ballerina length dress and carried a posy of pale yellow tea roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Marjorie Fletcher, carried pink carnations and was dressed in pale blue embossed nylon. The best man was Mr. Brian W. Hindley.

On the preceding Saturday the bridegroom rang his first peal, one of Stedman Caters conducted by Mr. P. W. Cave, and he also participated in a touch of Stedman Triples before the wedding service. Members of the local band assisted by ringing friends from Walkden, Bowdon, London, and also the bridegroom's brother, Geoffrey Pearson, now of Ashford, Kent, rang a course of Grandsire Caters before the service, and afterwards this famous and musical ring of bells pealed out a message of congratulations and good wishes in the time-honoured manner of rounds, Queens and 'firing.' This was followed by a well-struck course of Grandsire Caters.

Many congratulatory telegrams were received, including one from the local ringers, as follows:—'Here's one gone—no more single—Heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a long plain course in Doubles.'

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson will be living in St. Helens at 13, Canterbury Street.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The sale of the Marble Arch Pavilion, London, and its demolition will possibly remove another of our carillons. The theatre organ here was unique for this country in that it contained a carillon of 32 bells (Bourdon, 10 cwt.) cast at the Croydon Foundry in 1929. It was mechanically played from the organ console.

We thank a ringer who forwards us his wage packet, for ringing at a wedding, for our 'Gratefully Acknowledged' list.

Best wishes of many friends will accompany R.Q.M.S. P. Tocock, who is leaving this country for a spell of duty in Germany.

A custom at Woodchester, Glos, is for the ringers at a wedding to receive a bottle of whisky from the bridegroom. Is this generally prevalent in Gloucestershire?

Errata.—In the report of the peal of Yorkshire Major rung at Brentwood, Essex, on August 28th last, and reported on page 579, the ringer of the third was Ernest W. Furbank, and not James, as printed.

By ringing the tenor (which she did excellently) at Syston, Leics, Mary C. Payne has now rung a peal on each bell in this tower. Her father, 'Ernest,' and brother, 'B. Stedman,' have already done this circle. Quite a family record! Owing to illness, Mr. E. Payne was unable to take part in this peal, but acted as timekeeper from his sick-bed!

We hear that some visiting ringers at a famous Suffolk tower recently did not exactly cover themselves with glory. It cannot be stressed too strongly that bands visiting strange towers on their outings should confine themselves to ringing, and methods well within their capacity. It often happens that practised ears are listening to their efforts.

Accompanying a quarter peal by the Combe Martin ringers on the occasion of Prebendary E. V. Cox completing 21 years as president of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers was a note which reads: 'We are very glad to have the opportunity of showing in a small way our very real appreciation of all our president is doing for the Guild and the help and encouragement he has given to us personally.'

Mr. T. Hammond, of Liverpool, now well over 70, has made a remarkable recovery from his recent serious operation, and last Friday, to the delight of the band, took part in a touch of Stedman Caters at St. Nicholas', Liverpool.

Mr. K. Dunstan, of 8, Bridge Road, Hunton Bridge, King's Langley, has succeeded Mr. R. Bell as 'Ringing World' representative of the Watford District of the Herts County Association.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. W. J. Paice, of Wokingham, is now back at home after his operation. In thanking friends for kind inquiries, he writes: 'My progress back to normal health is slow but, I trust, sure.'

To mark the silver jubilee of the ordination of the Rev. P. Sands, Rector of Upton, Torquay, the bells were rung to Queens and Tittums on September 22nd. Both the Rector and Mrs. Sands were present in the ringing chamber during the ringing.

A correspondent writes:—'It should be noted that "Pipe's Pilgrims" tour of Cornwall was not the first time of meeting of the two young ringers referred to in the "Scribe's" comments. The affections shown on the tour have in no way been dampened, as has already been proved. This included an unsuccessful attempt for a peal of Cambridge Maximus at Birmingham Cathedral, in which both took part.'

SEVENTEEN PEALS IN A SUFFOLK WEEK

T. J. Lock's Tourists' Fine Achievement

"THE week in Suffolk was a week well spent —this was the verdict of a party of annual tourists who this year had decided to visit the eastern side of the country. And there we found sunshine, smiling faces, better countryside than we had expected, interesting and historical buildings and a warm welcome.

Although primarily a peal-ringing tour, with 17 attempts successful out of 25, the party of 27 rang in 36 towers in nine days, for some wished to take no part in lengths of 5,000 changes. Only two towers visited—Diss and Colchester—are not in Suffolk.

Commencing the tour on Saturday, August 28th, our headquarters, the Great White Horse Hotel, Ipswich, were reached after we had started the programme. Bury St. Edmunds was the first stop and there, in the detached Norman tower of the Cathedral, we found that father and son, 'Jim' and George Pipe, had already spent some time in preparing the bells and ropes, and it was due to their efforts that we were able to record success—a peal of Yorkshire Surprise Royal. At the same time another band were taken to Horringer, where after 45 minutes the ringing was stopped due to a miscall.

On Sunday morning we assisted in service ringing at St. Margaret's, Ipswich, and in the evening rang at Diss, where Albert Harrison welcomed us and had arranged a nice tea on arrival. Eight of the party, however, had stayed at Framsden to attempt a peal of London, but this failed after one and a half hours so, joined by Leslie Wightman, the band rang a touch of Spliced for the evening service, after having had an impromptu tea at the very kind invitation of an elderly lady.

Monday arrived and the party had to leave headquarters early to journey to the north of the county and there to meet some 'neighbours,' Nolan Golden and Bert Gogle, who shared in our peal attempts for three days. A peal of Bristol was registered on the pleasing octave at Halesworth, where ringing takes place on the ground floor. After luncheon we were Yorkshire 'happy,' recording a peal of Royal on Beccles' grand ten, and a peal of Major at Pakefield, where the churchyard is being encroached upon by the sea. The church building was subjected to war damage, and reconstruction work included covering the whole of the nave with thatching, or Norfolk reeds. Incidentally, Beccls afforded opportunity to ring a peal in a second detached tower within two days. In the evening we were welcomed to Lowestoft Parish Church, with its 120 feet high steeple, to join in the practice ringing.

AT LAVENHAM

The next day, with the weather still warm and morale high, the party set out eagerly with the score 4—2. One band rang an extent of Yorkshire at that delightful spot, Lavenham, with tenors renowned and with the bells hung in an anti-clockwise circle. Stedman H. Symonds welcomed us to the tower and the ringing was under the conductorship of Mark Lancefield, who may be regarded as one of the brilliant young men in the Exercise to-day. The other band visited St. Gregory's, Sudbury, and set out with the intention of producing the music at Watford Surprise, but it was either the ringers or the bells did not know the tune, and eventually a 5,088 Superlative was accomplished, which marked the 25th anniversary of Canon Hughes as Rector of the parish.

In the afternoon a much more formidable task confronted those chosen to attempt a peal of Cambridge on the heavier eight at the neighbouring parish of All Saints, but this was successfully concluded and earned the congratulations of the remainder of the party who had prematurely returned from Long Melford after ringing one and a half hours of London.

One of the principles adopted by Tom Lock in organising these tours is to include in the programme a peal attempt in the method named after the county being visited, and Long Melford was the tower chosen in which to ring Suffolk Surprise. This is one of the more difficult methods and although a few leads of the method were rung, there was clear evidence of 'stage fright,' and even London was decided upon with relief. No excuses are offered but the bright sunshine coming on to the faces of two of the ringers did not improve matters and it proved that for the first time in the series not one peal of London was to be rung. Upon our return to Ipswich in the evening we all had sufficient reserve to join in practice at St. Mary-le-Tower's to ring Cinques and Maximus.

To ring in the new month on the Wednesday we first called at Henley, where everyone was able to have a pull on the easy-going and pleasant light octave, and where within a stride of a tower wall we halted to read on a gravestone 'Rev. W. C. Pearson, M.A., died 1942, for 48 years vicar of this parish.' An attempt for Yorkshire was made but failed after one and three-quarter hours. Another morning attempt was at Stonham Aspal, and here an extent of Cambridge Royal was soon recorded on the lovely ring of ten bells which has recently been rehung on ball bearings. The non-peal ringers and those not engaged were conveyed to two rings of six at Otley and Ash Bocking, where various methods were rung.

TWELVE-BELL PEALS ELUSIVE

A fair amount of travelling was incurred for the afternoon attempts, but the visit to Cotton will not easily be forgotten by the band who rang the peal at Aldenham. Ringing takes place on the ground floor and the chamber really has only three walls, the fourth side being formed of wrought iron gates of open design which allows all kinds of weather, fine and foul, to enter. Having left the band at this remote village, the coach returned to Ipswich, where an attempt for a peal of Stedman Cinques was scheduled at St. Mary-le-Tower. Messrs. G. E. Symonds and C. J. Sedgley, two very young stalwarts with years of experience, completed the band and the latter was conductor. Although we did have a second start, everything went nicely until after the turning course, when the demon came and spoilt the effort which had lasted for two and three-quarter hours. Disappointed, though undismayed, the band had done their best and whilst some good twelve-bell ringing has taken place on these series of tours we have never as yet enjoyed the good fortune to record success.

With half the week gone by we still had plenty of famous place names to visit and on Thursday morning we first stopped at Debenham, where the Vicar was waiting to welcome us to his church. Here we recorded a peal of Cambridge whilst another band went to Framlingham to attempt a peal of Lincolnshire, but unfortunately experienced the first and only breakdown of the week when after one hour and five minutes, ringing was stopped through a broken clapper.

The afternoon session provided for ringing at Wilby and Fressingfield. At the former tower were the steepest winding steps and with the narrowest treads that the band had ever negotiated, and instinct dictated holding on to the rope which wound around the centre post when ascending to or descending from the ringing chamber. An extent of Rutland was rung here on the pleasant octave which gave the Vicar and churchwardens much pleasure as they had heard nothing quite so pleasing before. At the latter tower, the second visited with the bells hung in an anti-clockwise circle, a very good peal of Lincolnshire was achieved.

GEORGE PIPE EARNS A MEDAL

Friday was heralded with a degree of silence, the party being less communicative at breakfast table than had been usual, but there was a sufficient reason. A few extra copies of 'The Ringing World' had arrived and so reading took the place of talking. Travelling north-eastward we arrived at Kelsale, where, again ringing from the ground floor, a 5,000 of real Spliced Surprise, in which the composition made every bell do all the work of each method, was brought round in good style, George Pipe earning a medal by his excellent performance, this being his first peal of Spliced. Mark Lancefield again did a good job as conductor, and apropos the report of the ringing tour in Kent, we have no doubt that he would conduct the peal of Cambridge Maximus and know every lead end from start to finish. Whilst one band was enjoying itself at Kelsale another band was recording a peal of Cambridge at Leiston, the home of the Bailey family.

After lunch we had two pleasant rings to look forward to, at Ufford, where an extent of Ipswich Surprise was recorded, and at Woodbridge, where this very fine ring of eight was rung for three hours and 21 minutes to Southwell Surprise, no less than five of the band earning stars. In Ufford Church is a fine cover to the font, which rises like a decorated steeple right up to the roof with no visible means of being lifted.

The last full day of the tour still held fruits in store, but by evening time our average of successes had fallen. We saw a wet Suffolk for the first time although the weather improved to an extent indicated by a later related incident. Our first disappointment came after ringing for a little over one hour for a peal of Oakham Surprise Royal on Grundisburgh's light ten. For some reason we had not settled down to a desired rhythm and eventually we paid the penalty. We held ourselves responsible, for there can be no adverse comment regarding the bells, which are ideal for their weight.

A second band had visited Hollesley and had arrived before schedule, but by the time the necessary inspection of the bells had been made and attention given to the ropes an informant told the conductor that a wedding was to take place later, which meant no time in which to ring a peal. So the party eventually gathered at 'Easta,' where Mrs. Pipe had very kindly and generously invited all to partake of some substantial refreshments.

THE SIXPENNY PEAL FEE

The last opportunity of paying the newly imposed sixpenny peal fee on this organised trip arrived when one band visited Helmingham, and another band visited Stowmarket, whilst there was still another six-bell tower at Buxhall for the remainder. The former band were saved financially, for Yorkshire was lost after three-quarters of an hour. The second band willingly committed themselves to the fee by completing a good peal of Rutland on bells which went better than had been expected.

Many names have not been mentioned but who shared in ensuring that the tourists should have an enjoyable and successful tour. We thank them, the incumbents of the churches visited, Jim and George Pipe, and everyone who did anything towards what, we can sincerely assure them, was a thoroughly happy tour.

A MANY COUNTIES TOUR

Mid-Essex Ringers' Interesting Week

A TOUR which embraced ringing in six counties started from Danbury on August 14th by a party of mid-Essex ringers accompanied by Mr. H. J. Hazell, of Enfield. After lunch at Oxford, ringing took place at Burford and Northleach and the journey was via Evesham and Pershore to the Hop Market Hotel, Worcester, the headquarters for a busy week.

Sunday's programme included service ringing at Worcester Cathedral and All Saints'. The Worcester Beacon was climbed in the afternoon and some good Cambridge was rung at Great Malvern Priory for the evening service.

Monday's route was through the Vale of Evesham to Salford Priors (8, 15 cwt.), a village of black and white timber cottages. Then came the 15th century tower of Chipping Campden, towering above a village built of Cotswold limestone. The bells (tenor 24 cwt.) required some handling due, we think, to the sway of the tower. Lunch was partaken of at the model village of Bourton-on-the-Water, but the bells were not very good, Mr. J. D. Johnson and Mr. John Thomas met the party at Hinton-on-the-Green and the first course of Superlative on these superlative bells was, in our opinion, excellent. At Evesham bell tower, although we enjoyed these grand 12, our ringing was not up to standard.

The course of the Severn southwards was taken on Tuesday, proceedings being marred by trouble to our coach. Towers visited were Upton-on-Severn, Tewkesbury Abbey (which excited the admiration of architectural enthusiasts), St. Mary-de-Crypt, Gloucester (and a visit to the Cathedral), Cheltenham, where Stedman Caters was rung on these tip-top bells, and finally Pershore Abbey.

Wednesday's programme started with a very pleasant hour at Malvern Link, followed by timber-gabled Ledbury and a reluctance to leave this fine octave. At Ross-on-Wye our best touch was Stedman Triples. Lunch was at the Wye Valley beauty spot, Symonds Yat, and afterwards a river trip was enjoyed. Belvedere Surprise was rung at Sandhurst, on the outskirts of Gloucester, and after dinner at Worcester we joined the local ringers at St. John-in-Bedwardine.

Thursday saw us heading in a westerly direction. Grandsire Caters and Plain Bob Royal were successfully brought round at Leominster Priory. The five bells in the pretty village of Eardisland were enjoyed. Lunch was at Ludlow, and it was our regret that these supposedly fine bells were not available. The first six of the week were in the massive tower of Stanton Lacey, then came the warped and twisted wooden spire of Cleobury Mortimer, containing an excellent six on which were rung York and London Surprise. The ten at Claines were found to be tricky to ring.

By 9 a.m. on Friday were were again on the road heading for Warwickshire. We regarded Holy Trinity, Stratford-on-Avon, as one of the finest tens in the country for its weight (19 cwt.). Grandsire Caters was splendidly rung and also an excellent course of Cambridge Major. In pouring rain we arrived at Sherbourne, on the outskirts of Warwick. In Warwick a pleasant hour was spent on the fine ten at St. Mary's. Henley-in-Arden and Great Hampton were rung in the afternoon, and in the evening Powick.

There were glum faces as we packed for home on Saturday. On the homeward journey we rang at Hook Norton, where we met Mr. Ernest Pearson, Chipping Norton and All Saints', Oxford. Danbury was reached soon after 9 p.m., thus finishing a very pleasant tour of magnificent countryside and excellent bells. A gift was presented to Mr. A. H. Everett for his excellent arrangements, and also to Mr. J. E. G. Roast for his assistance. Thanks are due to incumbents, local ringers and our driver, Mr. Clarry.

BEACONSFIELD BELLS

With the ringing of a peal to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the opening of Beaconsfield bells as a ring of eight, it is interesting to read the programme on September 9th, 1884, when the bells were dedicated.

A new treble and tenor were added to the original six, the treble in memory of Edmund Burke, and the tenor in memory of the Earl of Beaconsfield. The programme was as follows:—

3.30 p.m..—Christening Beaconsfield Church bells.

4 p.m.—First peal in honour of the 28th anniversary of Mr. G. A. Charsley's marriage.

4.30 p.m.—Second peal in honour of the marriage of Mr. F. W. Charsley with Emily, youngest daughter of General Gascoigne, C.B.

5 p.m.—The fatted calf pulls at the telegraph post, but not succeeding in pulling it down, is killed, quartered, sub-divided, and distributed amongst the deserving inhabitants, and especially the poor of Beaconsfield.

6 p.m.—Races between girls and boys. 12 prizes given by Mr. F. Charsley.

In the future—Clock erected in lieu of telegraph post on its site.

[As a clock was placed in the church tower shortly afterwards, the last item was not carried out.]

BARNSLEY DISTRICT SOCIETY

The annual Hoylandswaine Cup contest was held at Hemsworth on September 11th. Three bands entered. The test piece was 720 changes and each band rang Oxford Treble Bob Minor. Mr. H. Chant was the judge and Mr. E. Atkinson the marker. The result of the ringing was as follows:—

	Faults	Penalties	Total
Cawthorne ..	65	5	70
Shelley ..	101	0	101
Royston ..	132	10	142

The Rector presented the trophy to the Cawthorne team, and a ball pen to each member of the winning team.

A SHEFFIELD GOLDEN WEDDING

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Watkinson, of Handsworth, was celebrated by a peal on these bells on September 15th, of which he was the instigator of their installation in 1920 and was Ringing Master until the war.

During his Mastership not only did he bring the local band up to Surprise Major standard, but many other ringers in the Sheffield District owe much to him.

When the ban was lifted in 1944 he retired owing to ill-health. An improvement in health has enabled him to return to the fold and his successor values his assistance in training a band of youngsters and in trying to maintain the good standard which Mr. Watkinson started at Handsworth.

LLANDAFF AND MONMOUTH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

The quarterly meeting of the Llandaff Branch at Whitchurch on September 11th was attended by 40 ringers, who included three from Worcester. The Branch Master, Mr. F. Bailey, saw to it that the youngsters had their full share of the bells, and ringing ranged from rounds to Cambridge and London Surprise Minor.

The service was conducted by the Rev W. D. Lewellyn, who also presided at the business meeting.

One new member and two life members were elected. The next meeting will be held at Cowbridge on December 4th, which will be a joint affair with the Southern and Brecon Guild.

The company were generously entertained to tea. Mr. Fred Hannington thanked those responsible for this kind gesture.

A NEW LANCASHIRE RING DEDICATED

Saturday, September 11th, was a great day in the history of St. John the Evangelist's Church, Farnworth and Kearsley, when the new ring of eight bells and new clock were dedicated.

The scene in the church was one of great beauty, the soft sunlight shining through the lovely stained glass windows on to the High Altar with its glistening central Cross and lighted candles.

The Bishop of Middleton, the parish priest and their attendants with full choir processed into the chancel and the service opened with the singing of the hymn 'All people that on earth do dwell.' After prayers and responses the 150th Psalm was sung. The lesson was taken from Numbers x. During the singing of the Cantate Domine the Bishop and clergy, headed by the great Processional Cross, were conducted to the west door immediately under the tower.

One of the churchwardens then asked the Bishop to dedicate the recast bells and the new clock. The blessing of the bells was followed by the singing of the Doxology and immediately the eight bells were rung in rounds by the Parish Church ringers.

The Bishop, in a most inspiring sermon, mentioned that he once lived in Croydon and had a knowledge of the art and expressed a wish to visit the tower after the service and see the bells and ringers. He congratulated the church authorities on the fine effort which had been made to put the tower in order.

The opening touch on the new bells, one of Stedman Triples, was rung by Joseph Thornley 1, John Fidler 2, Sidney Leatherbarrow 3, Joseph Leatherbarrow 4, Albert Greenhalgh 5, Percy H. Derbyshire 6, Peter Crook sen. (conductor) 7, Henry Prescott 8.

The old bells were in F sharp (tenor 12¼ cwt.) by Thomas Blackburn, of Salisbury; they were in a very good state as regards 'go' and tone. Messrs. Taylor have transformed them into a ring of eight in G (tenor 12¼ cwt.) The new clock, by William Potts, of Leeds, replaces one which had been in use for 130 years. Messrs. Taylor were represented by Mr. John Fidler, and William Potts by Mr. R. H. Dove.

Tea was served in the School after the service, about 300 people participating.

The donors of the new bells are:—

Treble.—The Parish Church Ringers.

Second.—Family of the late Frank and Gertrude Warburton.

Third.—Mrs. E. G. Botham in memory of her husband and son.

Fourth.—Family of late William and Sarah Ellen Watson.

Fifth.—Edith Whittaker in memory of her father and mother.

Sixth.—E. M. Coope in memory of her father, mother and sister.

Seventh.—John Proffitt and Clara Rostron in memory of their parents and William Rostron.

Tenor.—Parishioners in honour of the Coronation of Elizabeth II.

The bells are in two tiers as the tower is small, and are hung in what was formerly the clock room. The clock in turn has been placed in the former ringers' room. The ringers are now at gallery level in a comfortable room complete with modern lighting and carpeted floor. The sound of the bells is perfect and all can be heard distinctly.

The ringers are a young band under the leadership of Mr. Joseph Thornley, who is secretary of Bolton Branch.

A great number of visitors tried the bells and all expressed their complete satisfaction with them. Ringing was continued until 8 p.m.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'ON CONDUCTING'

Dear Sir,—Those who, like Mr. N. G. Hollingworth, found much both interesting and instructive in Mr. W. G. Wilson's recent articles on conducting, will be glad to know that, by arrangement with Mr. Wilson, these are being published by the Central Council in book form, and may be obtained from the hon. librarian at the modest price of one shilling, post free. (See the advertisement for C.C. publications on the back page of this issue.)

Mr. Wilson has very kindly offered that any profits arising from the sale of the book shall be given to 'The Ringing World.' I hope, therefore, that it will find a ready sale.—Yours faithfully,

E. A. BARNETT,
Hon. Secretary,
The Central Council of Church Bell Ringers.

DOUBLE NORWICH AT ST. NICHOLAS', LIVERPOOL

Dear Sir,—I am writing to confirm the statement in the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead's letter ('The Ringing World,' September 17th) regarding peals of Double Norwich at St. Nicholas', Liverpool. The error and the omission in the note in 'Belfry Gossip' are regretted by those of us who were responsible for sending in the note to 'The Ringing World.'

If we had turned back a few pages in the St. Nicholas' peal book we should have discovered the 1922 peal, which incidentally was not a false peal. There were those of us who, relying on our memories, were certain that there could only have been one peal and, having found it, did not bother to search any further.

What amazes us, however, and compels our admiration, is the painstaking research on Mr. Felstead's part to find the true facts presumably from 'The Ringing World' reports. A system to enable one to allocate peals to towers, peals to Associations, peals to individuals, etc., etc., would tax the resources of a card index expert—so how did he do it?—Yours faithfully,

Liverpool. P. W. CAVE.

PEAL RINGING IN DEVON AND CORNWALL

Dear Sir,—I am most grateful to Mr. Roberts and Mr. Myers for their assistance in correcting errors in my records. Mr. Roberts is quite correct in his surmise—I had credited Truro Cathedral with the peal of Grandsire Triples in 1948 instead of Kenwyn. I know all will wish the Cornish ringers well in their attempt to pass the visitors' total of peals before their Guild's diamond jubilee.

In the case of Appledore, Devon, I find the peal Mr. Myers mentions had been credited to Appledore, Kent! I have tried to be careful about places with the same names, but I fear I slipped up on this one. I have checked on all the other peals I have recorded for Appledore, Kent (with one exception, which is in a volume of 'The Ringing World' I don't yet possess), and find no more errors, so it would appear that this 1913 peal is the only one ever rung at Appledore, Devon. If Mr. Myers knows of any more there I should be very pleased to learn about them. His surmise about the peal I have missed at St. Andrew's, Plymouth, is also correct. However, I wonder if this appeared in 'The Ringing World'? I have had a quick look at the issues in which it normally would have been recorded, but cannot find it. My figures are, of course, based entirely on the peals that have appeared in the ringing press.

Finally, I must ask the forgiveness of the Devonshire ringers about visitors ringing most peals there. I am happy to learn that I was wrong in this.—Yours faithfully,

K. W. H. FELSTEAD.

BOB TRIPLES

Dear Sir.—I suppose it is inevitable that the emphasis in the discussion on Bob Triples should have shifted to a consideration of the merits or demerits of this particular method. More important, I think, is to consider the position of the Council members who will next Whitsun be called upon to give a definite ruling (deferred from the last meeting) on whether or not the peals of Bob Triples rung in 1953 should be included in the Council's analysis.

I would here contend that it is impossible for the Council to make an intelligent decision in this matter until members have had an opportunity to consider all rules and decisions made in the past on this and all other technical matters, so that any contradictions and anomalies may be properly sorted out. Otherwise if we make yet one more blind decision on a matter of this kind we shall again hold ourselves up to ridicule if it should afterwards emerge that there are any inconsistencies between the decision of 1903 or 1904 to which we have been referred and any that may have been taken later. Can we, therefore, be told by those responsible for the publication of the proposed handbook whether this will be available before the next Council meeting?

I would, incidentally, express sympathy with those who have now undertaken the production of this book. This onerous task is not made easier by the fact that others have tried to produce the book and have apparently failed. It will be realised, however, that it is virtually impossible for rank and file members of the Council to contribute intelligently to the Council's affairs without being able to acquire knowledge of the Council's rules and past decisions.

I feel that if it is impossible for the handbook to be available before the next Council meeting the Bob Triples decision should be deferred to 1956. Otherwise we shall only lend further point to charges levelled against us that we are a laughing stock of the Exercise.

I would in conclusion add that if ultimately it is decided to discount the 1953 peals from the Council's analysis we should be consistent and amend the analyses of all previous years from the time the decision was originally made in 1903 or 1904. In my personal opinion there is very little reason why people who wish to ring peals of Bob Triples should not do so, but the important point as far as the Council is concerned is that it is senseless to make decisions and recommendations if these are afterwards to be ignored without further consideration. For my part I would gladly support those who would like the 1903 or 1904 decision repealed if it has not already been at some time in the intervening years. If, however, it still does stand as a decision, do please let those of us who in the name of our Associations pledge loyalty to the Council honour our desire. — Yours faithfully,

P. A. CORBY.

A NOISY LITTER

Dear Sir,—You may be interested to know that the Campanologia Cairn terriers are in the news again—this time a brace of puppies are sailing to Trinidad, British West Indies, in October. These two are called 'Campanologia Called Wrong' (with apologies to Stedman) and 'Campanologia Cacophony' (with apologies to bad strikers). The other puppies from these litters are called 'Campanologia Into-the-hunt,' 'Campanologia Artful Dodger' and 'Campanologia Calliope.' Not, I think, unsuitable nomenclature for a very noisy crowd.—Yours faithfully,

M. SYBIL CHURCHILL.

ST. SAVIOUR'S, SHANKLIN

Dear Sir,—Whilst on holiday recently in the Isle of Wight I visited the Church of St. Saviour-on-the-Cliff, Shanklin, which has a ring of eight with the bells in two tiers. I ascended the tower and found the belfry to be in a sorry condition. The bells themselves appeared to be in order but the fittings, especially the pulley wheels, were corroded and the usual havoc caused by pigeons was apparent. I also noticed that there were no ropes and the bells were chimed by an Ellacombe apparatus.

I was later informed by a churchman at Carisbrooke that Shanklin bells were not rung at the tower was unsafe. Remembering an article in a recent edition of 'The Ringing World' I am wondering if this is really the case or if it is just an old local story that has come to be regarded as true over the years. The tower and spire seem to me to be very solid and safe.

I should be interested to learn the truth about this as it seems a pity that Shanklin bells should remain silent on an island of keen bell-ringers.—Yours sincerely,

C. F. NEAL.

FOUR GUILDS FESTIVAL AT BASINGSTOKE

The Four Guilds Festival held at Basingstoke on August 28th was attended by over 120 ringers from a very wide area. Great enthusiasm was shown in visiting all the towers open for ringing, and the weather being on its best behaviour, the visitors were able to enjoy the beauties of the countryside as well as the fine churches and bells.

The service was held in St. Michael's Church, Basingstoke, and was taken by the Rev. R. H. Arnold; the sermon being preached by the Rev. V. R. Ireland, Rector of Dummer. The Archdeacon of Basingstoke, the Ven. A. W. Chuter, was unfortunately unable to be present owing to unforeseen circumstances.

An excellent tea was provided by the Ladies' Committee under Mrs. E. P. Austin's direction, and those present very much appreciated the reasonable price. Ringing was continued until nine o'clock in a variety of methods, and most agreed that for meeting old friends and having a good day the Festival had been once more a success.

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION

First Visit to Cheswardine

The Shropshire Association, making their first visit to Cheswardine on September 11th, were given a cordial welcome from the local ringers and the Vicar (the Rev. J. F. Forester Gardner). The beautiful old Church of St. Swithun with its magnificent views were much admired, as were the bells which most of the ringers were hearing for the first time.

Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Bob Major were rung, followed by Cambridge Surprise on the arrival of the Ringing Master, Mr. A. Pritchard. These were followed by a short service in the church conducted by the Vicar.

A substantial tea, served in the Parish Hall, was enjoyed by 40 ringers. It was arranged by Mr. C. Edwards and fellow ringers with the help of ladies. At a short business meeting the Cheswardine ringers were proposed and accepted as members of the Association.

Mr. Pritchard mentioned that an invitation to visit Welshpool next year had been received, and suggested consideration of this before the annual meeting.

Mr. Farmer proposed that final discussion about 'The Ringing World' should take place at the last meeting in 1954, that at Clive on October 9th.

Returning to the church, the party found more ringers waiting, and Yorkshire, Superlative and London were rung.

THE COUNTRYSIDE IN AUTUMN

BURES AND DISTRICT

Promptly at 6.30 a.m. two coaches left Bures Church en route for Oundle (Northants), where the party were welcomed by Mrs. Clarke and some of her pupils. This being the first tower and the bells being very odd struck with an awkward circle, only the Stedman was up to our usual standard.

The long awaited Oakham (Rutland) tower was reached dead on time, where a very cordial welcome was received from Det.-Sergt. Hoy. The programme started with a good course of Rutland on these, a bell founder's masterpiece from the Croydon Foundry (1911). At the request of the 'locals,' we finished with Stedman.

Arriving at Market Harborough (Leics), Mr. Hector and Mr. Tyler stood in for Superlative. What promised to be perfectly-struck London was marred by one member trying to ring Rutland after making the thirds. Crossing the border into Northants, we discovered another good ring at Rothwell, where Mr. Baxter and Mr. Loke assisted in the raising and lowering in peal. Wellingborough was our next call, where neither Harry Millatt nor Edwin Hynard could be persuaded to turn the tenor in to Superlative, but Yorkshire sounded very nice. These are really Triples bells, and Mr. Lilley and Mr. Plowman enjoyed some Stedman with us.

The structure of the tower at Higham Ferrers was much admired, and the bells, in spite of the long draught, are a joy to ring. Mr. Deighton was full of apologies for keeping us waiting for three minutes, such is the grand feeling of fellowship to be found in this area.

Tea was taken at the Central Hall, Kettering, which proved a memorable occasion. Mr. James H. Edwards, on behalf of the company, expressed thanks to the organiser (Mr. Leslie D. Mills) for this, the seventh annual tour, which had been so enjoyable, and it gave him very great pleasure to ask him to accept a travelling clock as a token of esteem. Mr. Mills suitably replied.

In all 260 miles were travelled through eight counties. L. M.

WINTERBOURNE, GLOUCESTERSHIRE

Three towers in Somerset were visited on August 14th by 33 ringers and friends of St. Michael the Archangel's, Winterbourne, for their annual half-day outing. After a pleasant coach ride through Burrington Combe and Cheddar Gorge the six-bell tower of St. John-the-Baptist's, Axbridge, was reached on time. The pleasant-toned bells were soon set going to Plain Bob Minor and Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, with rounds and Queens for the younger ringers.

The journey was then continued to Burnham-on-Sea for tea. The next village to hear the skill of the Winterbourne ringers was East Brent, where the six bells of the Church of St. Mary-the-Virgin rang out to Stedman Doubles and Little Bob Minor without error.

The last call of the day was to the Old Church, at Uphill. It was here that the younger ringers found difficulty in handling the very light six, and the older ringers found they had no energy left after the steep climb up to the little church. In spite of this, touches of Grandsire, Stedman and Kent Treble Bob were brought round with only slight mishap. Home was reached by midnight. W. F. S.

ST. GEORGE'S, CAMBERWELL

The ringers of this tower had their first annual outing on September 11th, when Mr. John Sansom at short notice enabled the party to ring at St. Mary's, Harmondsworth (with a glorious view from the roof), St. Leonard's, Heston, and St. Dunstan's, Cranford. Thanks are due to Mr. Cansom and Mr. Brooke Lunn for a really grand outing.

FINCHLEY

On September 11th the Finchley ringers with their families and friends climbed aboard the coach and set off for Berks and Bucks. Our speed was rather slower than estimated for, and St. Paul's, Wooburn, was reached 25 minutes late. The ringing period here had to be cut to half an hour but everyone enjoyed the bells.

Leaving at 10.30 a.m. we then went over the hills to Blewbury, where at St. Michael's Church some good ringing was again enjoyed.

The next run took us to lunch at Kingsclere, but once again running late, and to many members' utter dismay, we reached the Crown Hotel at exactly one minute past two o'clock. The proprietor was unable to quench thirsty throats and made his apologies. He said that the village had only that week been endowed with two new police constables. New brooms swept clean, and a good many of the local people, to their sorrow, had been made aware of this fact by the new recruits' alertness. An excellent hot lunch was enjoyed.

Before leaving the table Mr. F. Barker spoke of the Finchley ringers' pleasure at having the visitors with them. He spoke to the tower's eight youngsters, five girls and three boys, and said that it was only due to their keenness and their fast-improving progress that the outing this year was made possible. It gave him great satisfaction to know that the future of the band was so promising, and, most of all, that Sunday service ringing would, when the 'old 'uns' had disappeared, continue in capable hands. This year he would have completed 50 years at a Sunday service ringer at Finchley, during which time he had made many friends and had a good many experiences. He recalled the days when the Finchley outing consisted of a day, in the then country, with a horse-brake, and if they got as far as Mimms (approximately ten miles) they had had a wonderful trip.

Having 'dined,' but not 'wined,' we then made for St Mary's, at Reading. The bells were a joy to everyone, a very fine ring to handle and listen to. Here the menfolk were treated to an all-ladies' course of Grandsire Triples, our young girls being backed up by Mrs. A. Diserens, Miss A. Diserens, Mrs. P. Levington and our lady visitor, Mrs. Saunders. Reluctantly leaving the tower, a fine meat tea was taken at Parslow's, in West Street.

Our last tower was Burnham, where we were met by our old and genial friend, George Gilbert. Plenty of ringing here was enjoyed by all, after which the amenities of George's adjoining club were enjoyed to the full. L. E. T.

NORTH MUSKHAM, NOTTS

North Muskham ringers, with friends from Sutton-on-Trent, Southwell, Newark and one enthusiast from Duffield journeyed into Northamptonshire for their annual outing.

A late arrival and a wedding curtailed ringing on the exceptionally fine bells of Holy Trinity, Rothwell, which have recently been rehung. A fair show was made of Grandsire Caters at SS. Peter and Paul's, Kettering, and with the aid of some local ringers Stedman Caters was rung.

Four towers were visited at Northampton—St. Edmund, King and Martyr (a good eight), St. Giles' (an exceptionally good ten), St. Peter's (a complete Rudhall eight), and All Saints' (where the fine tea just previous resulted in striking not being so good as could be expected).

On the homeward journey a call was made at Moulton to ring on the five bells of SS. Peter and Paul's. The party were very pleased that the local Vicar joined them in the ringing. Method and tune ringing on handbells enlivened the rest of the journey via Stamford and Grantham. Thanks are accorded incumbents and local ringers and also Mr. F. W. Midwinter, the organiser.

HARROW WEALD

The summer of 1954 lived up to its reputation when the Harrow Weald ringers left in heavy rain for their annual outing on September 4th. This in no way damped their spirits, although it was much appreciated when the sun broke through at lunch time, and continued to shine for the rest of the day.

The towers visited were Bicester, Adderbury, Banbury, Wicken and Woburn. As a wedding was in progress when the coach reached Adderbury, the ringers were able to wish Godspeed to the newly-married couple as they left the church with a course of Yorkshire Surprise Major.

Lunch was taken at Banbury and tea at Stony Stratford, both meals being much appreciated after the early start and strenuous exercise.

The ringing at Woburn was half-muffled, happily not being any reflection of the party's spirits, but in memory of Mr. Ernest Herbert, who was interred there on the previous Wednesday. The ringing for the day concluded with two courses of Superlative, specially rung as a memorial touch to him. Mr. Douglas Harris, the well-known local stalwart and for many years a colleague of Mr. Herbert, took part in this act of homage.

The ringing throughout the day was good and ranged from Stedman Triples to Spliced Surprise Major, with Grandsire and Stedman Caters and Cambridge Royal at Banbury.

MARKFIELD AND DISTRICT

Thirty-four ringers and friends from Markfield, Copt Oak, Whitwick, Ibstock and Oaks-in-Charnwood visited Derbyshire on September 12th for their annual outing.

At the first tower, Eckington (8) the party were met by good friends from Bolsover, who escorted them to Clowne (6) for 30 minutes' ringing and then to Bolsover. Here wives and friends of the ringers had prepared a grand reception for the visitors and around the tea table the Vicar of Bolsover accorded a warm welcome. Ringing ranging from rounds to Double Norwich followed at the Parish Church.

Accompanied by Bolsover ringers, Mansfield (8) and Mansfield Woodhouse (6), two excellent rings, were visited before farewells had to be said. The cordiality of the reception and the kindness of the many, coupled with the excellent weather, made the outing one not quickly forgotten.

ST. CHAD'S, SHREWSBURY

Fine weather, good bells and a warm welcome everywhere made the outing of St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, on September 4th, a memorable occasion. Instead of a coach four cars were used, these including the runabout of the Vicar (the Rev. F. A. R. Chapman), who contributed greatly to the proceedings.

Caters at Kidderminster was very much to our liking, but we could hear little of the trebles when ringing. The delightful church, village and bells of Claines were difficult to leave.

A visit to the Cathedral at Worcester was frustrated by a rehearsal of the Three Choirs Festival. A pleasant run brought us to Hanley Castle, where the Vicar (the Rev. M. Dean) entertained us and his ringers to tea. There is also a light, tuneful six by Mears at the Daughter Church of St. Gabriel. At Powick, the last call, the heavy bells were raised in peal and rung to standard methods. W. A. F.

BALDOCK AND NORTON

These two bands held the last of their outings for the year on September 18th and the journey took them into Bedfordshire and Hunts.

Ringing took place at Sandy, where the bells were rehung last Christmas, St. Neots, Godmanchester and St. Ives, where the long draught made control difficult for the inexperienced. Incumbents and those who met the visitors are thanked for their help and co-operation.

OBITUARY

MR. D. REES JAMES

With the passing of Mr. D. Rees James on September 17th at the age of 76 years, Bridgend, Glam, loses one of its oldest and best-known ringers.

He was a member of the Bridgend band for 45 years, but in recent years he was unable to ring owing to ill-health. He took part in most peals rung in this tower, his favourite method being Stedman Triples.

As a tribute of respect, touches of Grandsire Triples and a quarter peal of Grandsire Doubles, half-muffled, were rung to his memory. W. T. P.

CRANFORD'S MEMORIAL TO A BELOVED RECTOR

The memory of the Rev. Maurice Child, a great friend of ringers and lover of bells, has recently been perpetuated at Cranford, Middlesex. He was Rector here from 1935 to 1950, and the restoration of the beautiful little church in Cranford Park, for which he worked so hard during his incumbency, included the augmenting and restoration of the bells into a delightful ring of six.

It was at his request that the first peal on the bells was rung on a Sunday, when he knew that a peal was the height of achievement in ringing; he expressed the opinion that nothing could be better than to ring a peal to the glory of God on a Sunday. This peal was rung in 1943 on the Feast of the Assumption and on the anniversary of the death of Dr. Thomas Fuller, who was once Rector of Cranford.

On August 15th, 1954, the following members of the local band assisted by Mr. W. H. Coles (conductor of the first peal) rang 720 Bob Minor to mark the anniversary date:—Miss G. Zanelli (first 720) 1, Miss B. Thrush 2, Geoffrey Thrush (first 720 'inside') 3, Derek Fowles 4, Peter Woodgyer 5, William H. Coles 6.

On September 11th a beautiful Church Hall was opened at Cranford by Mr. Justice Vaisey, and dedicated in memory of the late Rector by the Lord Bishop of Kensington. As published in our peal columns a peal of Plain Bob Minor was afterwards rung, especially to record gratitude for the life and work of a beloved Rector and friend.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2270 Vol. L. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

AMONGST THE VILLAGE BELLS IN DEVON

By F. C. SMALE

IN Devon it is a case of 'up hill and down dale' if you travel from village to village 'tower hunting.' The winding lanes flanked by high hedgerows are often narrow and the motorist has to take each bend and corner with care. But the villages are quaint with white-faced thatched cottages dotted here and there by the wayside. All this adds interest even to a change ringer, and the charm of such village churches as Loxhore or Shirwell in the Exmoor country and the quaintness of Stoke-in-Teignhead or Combe-in-Teignhead remain in memory. Each of our trips this summer has finished up, over a parting drink, with the remark, 'This tour is the best ever,' which is an indication of what our party think of such outings. Remarkably, each has been favoured by beautiful sunny weather.

On April 28th we assembled at Honiton St. Paul's (eight, 13 cwt.), which Mr. E. W. Biffin, Mr. Atkins and the Rev. J. G. M. Scott thought was St. Michael's; Messrs. Myers from Plymouth, Miss B. M. Boyle's party from Combe Martin and Mr. W. H. R. Smale with Mr. E. W. Ryall were in good time. After touches of Triples our itinerary took us to Offwell (9 cwt.), recently rehung and treble added to make six, Cottleigh (8 cwt.), also treble added, Stockland (14 cwt.), a fine six, Upottery (19 cwt.), a fine six by Mears 1819, Monkton (7 cwt.), Plymtree (11 cwt.) and Clyst Hydon (11 cwt.). It was whispered that there was some very good cider in Stockland.

On May 19th we visited Churston Ferrers (13 cwt.), a good six; Brixham (16¾ cwt.), a good octave with spacious ringing chamber; Dartmouth St. Saviour's (18 cwt.), another fine eight; St. Petrox (9 cwt.), a handy six, near the entrance to the harbour, and Townstall (8½ cwt.), another six. Here Mr. Atkins, Mr. Poyntz and Mr. P. Crook left us and we went on to Slapton (five, 9 cwt.), near the famous beach, and to Malborough (11 cwt.), a good six. Crossing the ferry with cars on board, the tide-filled harbour of Dartmouth and the wonderful stretch of Slapton sands are phenomena to be seen to be realised.

We met at Crediton (27 cwt.) on June 30th. After raising the octave piecemeal, we rang respectable touches of Triples and proceeded to Sandford (9 cwt.), a tuneful six, and Poughill (11 cwt.), another good six. At Cruwys Morchard we were met by the Rector, the Rev. G. J. Bidgood, who gave us a hearty welcome. The 14 cwt. tenor was experimented with, for even the full weight of some of the less heavy members would not pull her out. The 16 stone writer, however, had no difficulty. Good touches were rung on the tuneful six. Passing through South Molton, we came to North Molton, which has a most beautiful church and a very fine six with tenor 20 cwt. Some of the best striking of the day was done on these bells. After tea the Rev. J. H. B. Andrews left us and we went to High Bray (12 cwt.) and thence to West Buckland (10 cwt.).

That doyen of Devon ringers, Mr. A. W. Searle, met us at Goodleigh (8 cwt.) on August 4th. We were indeed pleased to have Mr. Searle with us once more, though he rings very little now. The Goodleigh (8 cwt.) six go well and some good touches of Doubles came round. The next point of call was Bratton Fleming, a favoured place for well-to-do residents. The six (tenor 16 cwt.) are notorious as going badly and we found this true. There is a very low doorway from the church to the ringing chamber and there was much merriment amongst the young agile members of the party when Uncle Fred was compelled to enter walking on his knees. Our next call was Loxhore (6 cwt.). We were directed to this interesting church by an octogenarian tailor who cycles six miles or so to ring at the Barnstaple Parish Church each Sunday. Loxhore Church was approached through a farm lane and what Prebendary Cox and Mr. J. Arbury thought of the rough watery ride we only imagine!

On the west side of the deep valley we found Shirwell (14 cwt.), with the low tower at the south-east corner of the church. The bells went like tops and the church had much of interest. The transept arch of wood is unique and the porch, which has a dropping roof, attracted attention. Following the main Lynton road, we came to Arlington (11 cwt.), a very handy six. At Kentisbury we were met by the Rector, the Rev. H. G. Ayre, who had so kindly organised tea for us in the church schoolroom. The newly-hung and augmented six, tenor 7 cwt., were very pleasing. Here Mr. A. W. Searle rang a few rounds on the treble with all his old skill. After tea, so ably provided by Mrs. Ayre and lady helpers, some of the party proceeded to West Down (10 cwt.). The church, with its Norman font found buried under the floor, is of peculiar interest. Here we rang touches of Doubles and Minor and the round ringers present listened without criticism, and these men have a fame for good striking. Two of them, one a ringer in Newport (Mon), accompanied us to Braunton and helped us to ring quite good touches of Grandsire Triples.

Our last trip, on September 8th, took us to Bishopsteignton (11 cwt., cast by Mears 1840), Stoke-in-Teignhead (10 cwt.), Combe-in-Teignhead (10 cwt.), Coffinswell (11 cwt.) and Abbots Kerswell (10 cwt.), all interesting sixes. We admired each of these churches, especially the columns of sandstone and limestone at Stoke-in-Teignhead. The combes are of romantic interest. We found Coffinswell Church almost in the courtyard of the old manor house. We concluded the trip with an hour's ring at Chudleigh (12¾ cwt.), a very good octave. So ended a very happy series of ringing tours for 1954.

GILLETT AND
LIMITED

No matter in which corner of the country you happen to be, as likely as not you will come across Gillett & Johnston bells or tower clocks. Gillett & Johnston craftsmanship is embodied in an all-embracing service — as much in the preservation and restoration of old rings of antiquarian interest as in the installation of new.

Truro Diocesan Guild

The first ringing festival of the newly-formed Stratton Branch was held at Week St. Mary on September 11th and was very successful, between 60 and 70 ringers attending from the following towers:—Stratton, Poughill, Launcells, Morwenstowe, Poundstock, Marhamchurch and Week S. Mary with visitors from Launceston and Crantock.

The service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. N. A. F. Townend, M.A.), the lesson read by the Rev. A. T. M. Jasper (Rector of Marhamchurch), and the sermon preached by the Rev. W. H. R. Trewellan (Vicar of Crantock and hon. secretary of the Truro Guild). A collection for Branch funds amounted to £1 10s. 6d.

A grand tea was served by a committee of ringers' wives and friends. In a speech the Rev. W. H. R. Trewellan said it was a memorable occasion as it was the first meeting of the new Branch. He thanked the Rector for the use of the bells and conducting the service, and all who had helped to make the afternoon a success.

Ringing during the afternoon consisted of Stedman, Grandsire, call changes and rounds.

R. J, H.

Beverley and District Society

Twenty-two members attended their Society's meeting at Patrington on September 11th, the Vicar (the Rev. J. A. E. Jones) conducting the service.

Tea was taken in the Church Room, followed by the business meeting at which the president, Mr. A. E. Sellers, welcomed the visitor, Mr. R. Birch, of Sheffield.

Further ringing took place until 8 p.m., bringing another successful meeting to a close.

Miss Margaret Taylor Married

The wedding took place at All Saints' Church, Corston, near Bath, on August 28th, of Mr. Lionel J. de Jong and Miss Margaret J. Taylor. The bride, who is the Master of the South-West Branch of the Ladies' Guild, was given in marriage by her father, Mr. L. R. G. Taylor, who is a member of the Corston band of ringers. As the bride and bridegroom left the church in brilliant sunshine the bells rang out a musical touch of Stedman Triples.

The many ringing guests at the reception included the general secretary of the Bath and Wells Association, Mr. R. O. Fry. The health of the bride and bridegroom was proposed in witty vein by the bride's uncle, Mr. E. J. Taylor, the general secretary of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers. Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples were rung on handbells during the cake-cutting ceremony.

After the happy couple had left for the honeymoon at Maenporth, near Falmouth, a peal of Grandsire Triples was attempted at Corston, but unfortunately came to grief after two hours' good ringing.

Herts County Association

Two towers—Rushden and Sandon—were available for the Northern District meeting on September 25th. The service at Sandon was taken by the Rector (the Rev. D. Bickerton), and 22 ringers and friends enjoyed the tea provided by Mrs. Coles. At the business meeting Mr. T. Leonard was elected a non-resident life member, and arrangements were made for the meeting at Hitchin on Oct. 23rd, and Norton on November 27th. Methods rung ranged from rounds to York and London Surprise.

A Loughborough Wedding

Mr. Arthur Fidler, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Fidler, who, like his father, is in the employ of Messrs. John Taylor and Co., was married to Miss Jean Margaret Lee at the Church of the Emmanuel, Loughborough, on September 25th. The Rev. E. Smith officiated at the service, which was choral. Numerous friends were present.

Following the reception at the Scout Hall, Nanpantan, the couple had a rousing send off. A 'decorated' car with fittings attached that were never designed by a motor engineer, but were more suitable for the dust bin, took them to Adderbury on the first stage of their journey to the Isle of Alderney, where the honeymoon was to be spent.

During the afternoon the bells of Loughborough Parish Church were rung. There was also a peal attempt at the Bell Foundry but this unfortunately came to grief about halfway.

A Day in Northamptonshire

Twelve young ringers from the Bedford area spent an enjoyable day on September 7th cycling and ringing in Northamptonshire.

Towers visited were Bozeat, Castle Ashby (the heaviest five in the Peterborough Diocese), Whiston (where the only bad ringing of the day took place and one of the party gave an excellent demonstration of fly fishing as he tried to catch the sally), Cogenhoe, Earl's Barton (the only eight of the day), Wilby (an anti-clockwise six), Great Doddington (where the Vicar led the party in prayer before ringing), and finally Wollaston to end a perfect day. Thanks are expressed to incumbents and tower captains.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The many friends of Mr. Ernest C. S. Turner, now in No. 5 Ward, Colindale Hospital, N.W.9, will be pleased to learn that he is now making steady progress after his severe operation. Mr. Turner hopes to be out of hospital by the end of November.

Geographical note.—Gislingham is in Suffolk and not Norfolk. (Page 426 under Peal Boards.)

The new Coronation treble at Tannington weighs 3 cwt. 1 qr. 24 lb., and not 1 cwt. 1 qr. 24 lb. as appeared in the form of service at the dedication. (Page 333.)

The dedication of the new ring at St. Alfege's, Greenwich, will take place on October 31st at 11 a.m. The Archdeacon of Kingston (the Ven. P. D. Robb) will officiate.

Inst. Commander R. G. Cross, R.N., has taken up an Admiralty appointment in London. His help would be much appreciated in many of the struggling towers.

The Master of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association, the Rev. M. Hurst-Bannister, will preach at the Branch meeting to be held at All Saints' Church, Weston, Bath, on October 9th.

The peal of Doubles at Bearsted, Kent, was rung following the wedding of Miss June Monckton, a popular member of the tower. Immediately before the ceremony it was found that Minor could not be attempted owing to the absence of one of the band, so the ringer of the treble, a local learner aged 14, was pressed into service. Afterwards the ringers were entertained by the bride's parents.

Referring to Mr. Wilfrid Moreton's achievement in reaching his 500th peal at the age of 30, a correspondent suggests that the youngest ringer to accomplish this would have been either Bertram Prewett, who reached 700 in 1911 at the age of 32, or Mr. E. A. Barnett, who was 27 when he rang his 500th in 1946.

For months a certain ringer wished to become a postal subscriber to 'The Ringing World' but did not like to cancel his long-standing order with his newsagent. Eventually he plucked up courage and did so. The next week his newsagent sold up and went into retirement!

Congratulations to Bryan E. Carson, of Llangranog, in gaining a place at Harper Adams Agriculture Colleges. His friends are looking forward to seeing his name in the peal lists for the Archdeaconry of Stafford.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. William Judd, a former leader of St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington, is seriously ill at his home at Boyne Hill. Mr. Edward Harding (87), of Fulmer, is in St. Luke's Hospital, Maidenhead, and is also seriously ill.

Fourteen-year-old Miss Stella Hughes rang her first peal, one of Stedman Cinques, at Walsall, on September 25th. To her delight another member of the band was Mr. Herbert Knight, of Wolverhampton, who is nearing his 82nd year.

During Evensong service on September 19th a Coronation peal board in the belfry of All Saints' Church, Sapcote, was dedicated by the Rector (the Rev. C. G. Powell). The board was unveiled by Mr. C. W. Brown, former Ringing Master for over 25 years, and was beautifully hand-carved by Mr. W. Grain, of Sapcote.

Misfortune came to the band who attempted to ring a commemoration peal of Double Norwich Caters at Chilvers Coton, Nuneaton, Warwickshire, on September 25th. The peal was to have been in honour of the 60th anniversary of the first peal in the method on Saturday, September 22nd, 1894. It is proposed to make another attempt in the near future which it is hoped will be successful.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting at Scarborough

THE autumn general meeting of the Yorkshire Association was held at St. Mary's, Scarborough, on September 18th, and attracted some 50 members and friends covering the four Districts. Fortunately the weather was most considerate and did much to make the visit to one of Yorkshire's most famous seaside resorts all the more enjoyable.

Following the committee meeting the Vicar of Scarborough (Canon F. E. Ford) conducted a ringers' service and extended the Association a most cordial welcome. During the course of a most interesting address he referred to people who complained about the bells, saying that it always struck him that the root cause of the complaints was in most cases a guilty conscience, and a sense of resentment at being thus reminded that they were failing in their duty to God.

Mr. Sutton had arranged an excellent tea at the Northcliffe Hotel, and had most kindly used his good offices for the meeting to take place there immediately afterwards.

In the unavoidable absence of the president (the Ven. C. O. Ellison) the chair was taken by Mr. P. J. Johnson, who, with Mrs. Johnson, was looking quite refreshed after spending a fortnight at this delectable spot. The date proved to be an unfortunate one for most of the principal officers and District secretaries, and apologies for absence were received from the president, the hon. treasurer, Mr. G. Benfield, the hon. peal secretary, Mr. W. E. Critchley, Messrs. A. E. Marsh, H. S. Morley, E. Hudson, J. J. L. Gilbert, S. F. Palmer, W. Barton, A. E. Sellers and H. Chant.

A vote of thanks to the Vicar (Canon F. E. Ford), the churchwardens and organist was moved by the chairman, who recalled a former Association meeting there at which the Association was to be accorded a civic welcome. Unfortunately on that occasion also, the attendance was very disappointing. Mr. J. Ambler seconded and this was carried with applause.

A similar vote of thanks to Mr. Sutton and the local company was moved by Mr. H. Lofthouse, seconded by Mr. A. Johnson and carried. In acknowledgment Mr. Sutton said he was sorry the Vicar was unable to attend the meeting, but would gladly pass on to him, also the churchwardens and organist the vote of thanks that had been accorded. The local company were always glad to do whatever they could to entertain the Association.

Mr. J. Ambler moved that an invitation from St. Chad's, Far Headingley, Leeds, to hold the next meeting there on January 22nd be accepted. This was seconded by Mr. S. H. Steel and carried.

The secretary reported that the committee had considered applications for grants from the Bell Repair Fund received from Sowerby, near Halifax, and Acomb, near York, and had voted a £5 grant in each case. Correspondence from the Marsden company concerning the dedication of the augmented ring of bells (eight to ten) was read, and the hope expressed that it would be possible to arrange a general meeting there next year. The launching of the augmentation scheme and the successful culmination of it was largely due to the commendable enthusiasm of the local ringers, who were to be heartily congratulated upon their exemplary efforts.

The secretary reported that the committee had decided to postpone until the next meeting a recommendation that a further supply of Association badges be purchased.

Mr. F. A. Staveley reported that arrangements were well advanced for the Snowdon Dinner, which is to take place at Doncaster on October 30th. They aimed at putting on the best possible show and hoped that members and friends would help to ensure its success by supporting it. Mr. P. J. Johnson said he had been actively associated with these affairs for many years and hoped that the members would rally round and make it as great a success as their Sheffield friends had done last year.

John Lilliker and Horace Hall, of All Saints', Sheffield, were elected members of the Association.

Mr. H. Lofthouse raised the matter of railway fares, pointing out that he was able on this occasion, by travelling on a morning train, to obtain a return ticket for 11s. 6d., but to anyone travelling on a later train, and incidentally having less time to spend at Scarborough, was charged 19s. 10d. It did seem to him an anomaly which quite often was reflected in the attendances at meetings.

This concluded the business and a return to the tower was then made, where members were able to enjoy more ringing on these recently-restored bells.

MR. HERBERT BULLOUGH GOING TO LEICESTER

It is with mixed feelings that North Staffordshire ringers and particularly the members of the band at St. Giles', Newcastle-under-Lyme, learned of the promotion of Mr. Herbert Bullough, at present District Commercial Superintendent of the British Railways, London Midland Region, at Stoke-on-Trent, to the corresponding post at Leicester.

Mr. Bullough came to Stoke-on-Trent in 1946, and since that time has been an active ringer at St. Giles', Newcastle-under-Lyme. He is not a peal ringer, but one of that steadfast band of regular Sunday service ringers so invaluable to the Exercise. Except when out of the district on business or more rarely on pleasure, he seldom missed attending the belfry for practice and on Sundays.

During his stay in Stoke-on-Trent he has taken a very active part in the business life of the city. He is a member of several transport consultative and other bodies as well as the North Staffordshire Chamber of Commerce.

When he leaves to take up his new duties early in October he will carry with him the warmest congratulations of North Staffordshire ringers on his promotion as well as their regrets at losing a good friend and counsellor.

A SHEFFIELD STALWART

Friends from all over the country will extend their good wishes to Mr. Sidney F. Palmer, of Totley, near Sheffield, who celebrated his 80th birthday on September 19th. He is one of the remaining links between the days of C. H. Hattersley, W. Lomas and other stalwarts of half a century ago, who were regarded as the aristocrats of the Exercise.

Born at Great Bowden, Leics, where he learned to handle a bell at the age of 12, he moved to Sheffield in 1901. He became a change ringer on the six at St. Mary's, Walkley, and was later invited to join the band at Sheffield Cathedral. Except for a break during World War I. his service has been continuous to this tower.

His work for the Exercise is outstanding. Apart from his membership of the Central Council, he was hon. treasurer of the Yorkshire Association for 18 years and is still a trustee, hon. secretary of the Sheffield and District Society, secretary to the Cathedral Company for 25 years and a member of the Sheffield Diocesan Advisory Committee for matters relating to bells.

During his wide experience he has rung in over 300 towers and his peals total 292, including one of Stedman Cinques at Canterbury Cathedral in 1925.

NATIONAL GUILD OF POLICE RINGERS

Annual Meeting at Little Dorrit's Vestry

THE National Guild of Police Ringers met in London on September 18th for their annual meeting. A conducted tour of the Houses of Parliament had been arranged by Inspector Prior, of the Metropolitan Police, who was at Victoria Tower to meet members and their friends upon arrival for 11 a.m.

The party then visited the South Kensington Science Museum, where Mr. Douglas Hughes demonstrated the Carter Ringing Machine. This ingenious masterpiece of engineering skill proved to be a real attraction and kept the party keenly interested. After Mr. Hughes had explained the working principle of the machine a few adjustments were made and some Stedman Cinques were heard with uncanny perfection. The President, Inspector H. J. Poole, called a touch of Stedman Triples, and thanked Mr. Hughes for the demonstration. By this time the Manchester members had joined the party and lunch was taken in a nearby Corner House.

The business meeting was held in the 'Little Dorrit' Vestry of St. George the Martyr Church, The Borough. The Secretary reported that two serving members had joined the Guild and the membership stood at 109.

The funds of the Guild remain good, and the year ended with a balance of £16 13s. 2d. No peals were recorded during 1953. The committee were re-elected en bloc. The President gave a brief account of the Central Council meeting at Newcastle.

Sixteen new members and one policewoman were elected members of the Guild.

The President proposed that the next annual meeting be held at Northampton; this was agreed to, the date being September 17th.

It was then decided to amend the rules to transfer members who had reached a great age or contributed valuable service to the Guild to life membership. The President proposed ex-P.C. J. Sanderson, of Blackburn, and ex-P.C. J. Carter, of Oldham, be elected life members. On the proposition of Inspector Prior, seconded by Inspector Mead, it was agreed to amend Rule 2 to enable past and present members of the Special Constabulary and Police Cadets, whilst serving as such, to become associate members of the Guild subject to certain conditions.

Ex-Chief Inspector Bottrill reminded the meeting that it was at this church the Guild was formed, and he believed it was their first meeting there since. This concluded the business and members made their way to the belfry and to Southwark Cathedral, where some good ringing was enjoyed during the afternoon.

Dinner had been arranged at Bridge House Restaurant, London Bridge, where a good company enjoyed an excellent meal.

The guests included Mr. H. P. Ralph (Deputy Commissioner No. 3 District), the Rev. C. E. V. Bowkett (Rector of St. George the Martyr), Mr. J. E. Chilcott (Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths) and Mr. F. E. Hawthorne (Master of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths).

The President, in welcoming the guests, said it was a feature of the Police Guild to be informal. It was a great pleasure to see the Church, the Force and two of the oldest Societies of Ringers represented at the dinner. Mr. H. P. Ralph, Rev. C. E. V. Bowkett and Mr. F. E. Hawthorne suitably replied.

The social evening had been arranged by P.C. Norman Bagworth with members of the Metropolitan Police Choir. An excellent programme was supported by handbell ringing and tune ringing by the 'youngsters' of the Manchester party.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Ashford District Ringing Master Retires

The annual meeting of the Ashford District brought 60 members and friends to Ashford on September 25th. The bells were available from 3 p.m. and were soon put to good use. At 4.30 the Vicar (Canon H. Duncan Bowen) conducted the service in the Parish Church, assisted by the Rev. Cyril Munt (one of the Ashford band).

Tea had been arranged in the Parish Room and the catering was most efficiently (one might almost say overwhelmingly) carried out by the verger (Mr. Harris) and his wife.

The business meeting followed. The secretary, in his report, stated that although there had been a slight increase in the number of members during the past twelve months, it was of vital necessity to maintain a steady flow of recruits to all towers. Once a band disintegrated it was extremely difficult to build up again. A number of towers in the district were instructing recruits, but there were others which would be silent if efforts were not made to introduce fresh blood. After paying a tribute to the co-operation of the clergy in the district he said he hoped the quantity and quality of Sunday service ringing would at least equal that of practice nights.

Peal ringing in the District had been an improvement on that of last year. Thirty-three peals had been rung in 33 towers, and they included the first for the Association of Whitchurch Surprise and eight Spliced Surprise Major. An agreeable feature of the peals had been the progress made by two of the younger members — John Cooper and Geoffrey Pearson.

Before the election of officers, Mr. Walter Everett, who was retiring from the position of Ringing Master after holding it for over 30 years, was presented with a cheque. Mr. Willis spoke of the esteem in which Walter had been held by all over this long period, and the Vicar, in making the presentation, endorsed these sentiments. Mr. T. Cullingworth was elected the new Ringing Master, whilst Mr. W. P. Garner continues as secretary, and Mr. J. Cooper and Mr. G. Waters carry on as District representatives.

Geoffrey Waters has arranged a series of practice meetings to be held on certain Wednesday evenings in the western half of the District.

The meeting concluded with votes of thanks to the Vicar, the organist and to the verger and ladies who had arranged and served the tea.

A Visitor's Helpfulness

The peal of Kent Treble Bob Major rung at Hethersett on September 12th was a farewell peal to John Moore, of Heston, Middlesex, who for the past 18 months has been working in the Norwich area and has been a regular Sunday service ringer at Hethersett. John has set the very fine record during that time of ringing for no less than 182 services there. This is all the more creditable as it has, on most occasions, entailed a round trip of ten miles for each service ring. John has been presented with a leather-bound 'Peal Record Book' by the Rector, churchwardens and the St. Remigius Company

GUILDFORD GOLDEN WEDDING

THE golden wedding smile of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Pulling, of 144, Woodside Road, Guildford, who celebrated 50 happy years of married life on September 26th. Their wedding was at Warboys, Hunts.

At the age of 12, 62 years ago, Mr. Pulling started ringing at Holy Trinity Church, Guildford, and he has a continuous record of Sunday service. His peal tally has now reached 1,491, and he is looking forward to the day when he can join that exclusive band of those who have rung 1,500 peals. He was a member of the band of 1,000 pealers who rang a peal of Cambridge Surprise Major at St. Olave's, Hart Street, on February 15th, 1936. Of the band only Mr. F. Bennett and Mr. Pulling are now with us.

MR. & MRS. A. H. PULLING

Heading his list of long lengths is the record peal on handbells of 19,738 changes. He has rung handbells in the Market Square at Dunkirk, at the Menin Gate and was one of the party to ring at the tomb of the Unknown Warrior at Westminster Abbey in the early 1920's.

His membership of the Central Council extends over 40 years; the Guildford Diocesan Guild have honoured him by electing him a vice-president. In his prime he was one of the leading conductors in the country—he sensed a trip before it was made!

For the golden wedding anniversary Mr. Pulling called a quarter of Stedman on his much-loved bells of Holy Trinity before evening service. Ringing with him was his friend of boyhood days, Mr. Harry Hutton. The association between the two is unique. Mr. Hutton rang in the peal for Mr. Pulling's wedding and also in the peal for his silver wedding anniversary, and finally in the golden wedding quarter.

His other great interest in life is the Royal Grammar School, Guildford, of which he was caretaker from 1908 until 1949.

PETERBOROUGH DIOCESAN GUILD

Summer Festival at Stamford

The historic town of Stamford was the scene of a great gathering of ringers from a wide area on September 18th, on the occasion of the Guild's Summer Festival.

Members and visitors from the surrounding Dioceses of Lincoln, Ely, Coventry, and Leicester, to the number of 140 or more, assembled in St. Martin's Church for the service arranged and conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. K. P. Stewart, who has been in the parish but a few months and was experiencing his first ringers' meeting.

The Church Room, which was intended to be the place for tea, was found to be too small, and last minute accommodation had to be provided in the assembly room, which was also taxed to the limit. Before dispersing, the Guild Master, Mr. E. E. Whitmore, expressed thanks to the Vicar, Mr. J. H. Bluff, of Stamford, the incumbents and steeplekeepers of the towers open for ringing, and all others, including the general secretary, who had made the day so enjoyable.

Twelve towers in the Peterborough, Oundle, Kettering and Rutland branches, on the Eastern, Southern and Western approaches were open at various times and at least one party visited ten. Quite a number of 'First in this tower' were recorded.

The parish of St. Martin's, Stamford, is the only one in the town which is in the Diocese of Peterborough, the others being in the Diocese of Lincoln. The church contains the tomb of the great Elizabethan statesman, Cecil, the first Lord Burghley, who began the building of nearby Burghley House, now the home of the Marquis of Exeter.

The town itself was, of course, well known over 300 years ago, when the bell foundry of Tobie Norris was supplying bells to churches in the area. He lies buried in the north aisle of St. George's Church, his death having taken place on Nov. 2nd, 1626.

EBBW VALE ANNIVERSARY

The annual ringing week-end at Christ Church, Ebbw Vale, was held on the 17th anniversary of the dedication of the ring of eight bells. On September 11th the ringers visited Hereford and district, where they were met by Wilfrid Moreton, who had kindly organised the day's tour. Ringing took place at Lugwardine and Withington, and Canon and Mrs. Moreton entertained the 16 ringers to a sumptuous tea at their home in the Cathedral Close. After tea there was ringing at All Saints', Hereford, and at Burghill, which included a course of Cambridge Surprise Major.

On Sunday, called locally Bell Sunday, the Evensong was a service of thanksgiving for the dedication of the bells. During the service a plain course of Grandsire Triples was rung at the chancel steps by four of the young lady ringers, viz: Avril Evans 1-2, Audrey Stephens 3-4, Delwyn Evans 5-6, Barbara Stephens 7-8. The Archdeacon of Newport, the guest preacher, said that it was good to hear the bells taking part in the service in days when so many activities had become separated from the Church.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'RINGING WORLD' FINANCES

Dear Sir,—Some weeks ago Mr. E. A. Barnett, hon. secretary, Central Council, was good enough to give some information on this matter. He states that 'the question of a subsidy by Associations to "The Ringing World" has not arisen,' and adds 'There certainly seems to be no reason for such a scheme to be turned down as impracticable.' Coming from such a source there can be no question as to correctness, and we may now proceed to discuss another method of ensuring financial security without anyone being able to state that this has been considered already and turned down as unsuitable.

Mr. Barnett seems to express a belief that security lies in a big increase in the number of postal subscribers. By all means let us get as many postal subscribers as we can, but the statement to date shows only 293 newcomers, and the field of recruitment is a very limited one, determined by the special nature of the journal. Few people outside the Exercise could find anything of interest in 'The Ringing World.'

The report of 'The Ringing World' Committee presented at Newcastle contains these words:—Every possible economy has been effected, but without the generous support which has been given by the Exercise in donations and voluntary levies we should have ended the year with an adverse balance.' Yes, Sir, £264, and the year before, £185. Mr. Barnett's figures, but available to all in the Income and Expenditure Accounts. Lower down, the 1953 report continues: 'It would be unwise to expect that the donations, voluntary levies, etc., will continue indefinitely . . . . we cannot reasonably continue to depend on them.' A permanent solution of the problem is urgently needed.

No one will dispute the fact that when the late John S. Goldsmith passed away he left behind him a magnificent achievement in the work he had done, for all ringers, in the establishment of a highly-specialised publication, and that the Central Council did the only sensible thing open to them when they secured possession, again for all ringers. In taking over the rights and duties of publication the Council acted on behalf of all the members of their constituent Guilds, Associations and Societies, and we should do well to remember the feeling of relief and satisfaction which pervaded the Exercise when the decision became known, and we realised that 'The Ringing World' would carry on, instead of dying untimely.

The owner of a property of any description is usually charged with the duty and cost of maintaining it. And since the members of all bodies affiliated to the Central Council are part owners of 'The Ringing World,' the responsibility for maintenance rests alike on all.

The only reasonable and businesslike method of maintaining 'The Ringing World' will eventually be found, when all the temporary expedients have petered out, in a contribution from the funds of each associated body, based on numerical membership.

I suggest that at the next Central Council meeting at Bristol, the Editorial Committee should be instructed to estimate annually income and expenditure for a year ahead. This has to be done by all the sub-committees of public bodies such as County Councils. Education Committees, Borough Councils, and the like, and with the existing accounts as a guide should present no difficulty. If the original terms of reference or instructions to the Editorial Committee are not wide enough to cover this action, revision by Central Council resolution would settle that point. Having arrived at an approximation to the amount required in full, this figure divided by 20,000, which Mr. Barnett gives as a reasonable figure for the total membership of all affiliated Societies, would show the very small contribution per member which is required to keep 'The Ringing World' on a sound financial basis. For example, 1953 deficit without donations, £264. £264 divided by 20,000 = just under 3¼d. Contribution required from a 500-member association would be 500 x 3¼d. = Approximately £7 5s.

Having been a ringer for nearly 60 years I know full well that any scheme which involves a regular payment from Association Funds is usually regarded with dislike and suspicion, but the plan put forward has at any rate the merit of spreading the expense over the widest possible number of potential contributors, and ensures that the burden is equally shared.

Now, come on the critics!—Yours faithfully,

JOHN WILLIS.

Folkestone.

NATIONAL SERVICEMAN'S THANKS

Dear Sir,—As a National Serviceman I appreciated J. A. A.'s article on 'National Service' ('Ringing World,' September 17th). Two years spent in different parts of the country afford great opportunity for making new friends, expanding tower and peal totals and bewildering companions with diagrams and figures.

To a raw recruit the occasional evening practice is a solace from the apparent 'hell let loose.' To any ringers the generous welcome afforded at every tower brings home the fact that ringers are friends everywhere. Finally, frequent impromptu lectures in the billet—aided by 'The Ringing World' and diagrams—help to dispel the widespread ignorance of our noble art, and perhaps to gain a much-needed recruit.—Yours sincerely,

GEORGE E. RUCK.

RUGELEY'S EXAMPLE

Dear Sir,—I would like to support the advice to towers in the vicinity of Service camps in your leading article of September 17th.

We in Rugeley have had the pleasure of welcoming many young ringers who have been doing their basic training at the R.A.F. camp at Hednesford, and we hope they have happy memories of their visits to us. We do know, also, how they appreciate the glimpses of home life we have been able to give to them.

We have found that on account of the many changes which are always taking place in the staff of the camp, it is difficult to ensure that information about ringing is always available to recruits arriving at the camp. However, as the natural thing for a ringer to do as soon as he can get out of camp is to find churches where, either from his copy of 'Dove' or the appearance of the tower, it seems likely that there is a ring of bells, we have placed a notice in our church porch giving details of Sunday ringing, practices and the name and address of the tower captain. This we have found very useful, not only to ringers in the Services, but also to other ringers on holidays, etc., in the district. We know this is done in many churches, but we would commend the suggestion to all towers, especially those near Service camps or in holiday resorts.

We have a greater than ever interest in this question now that one of our own ringers has joined the R.A.F., and we are confident that he will find the same welcome in other towers that we have always extended at Rugeley.—Yours sincerely,

J. H. JOYNER.

Rugeley.

THE EXTENT OF MAJOR

Dear Sir,—Although Mr. Pulling addresses to Loughborough his query concerning rumours of an attempt at the Foundry for the full extent of Major, I feel that I ought to clarify the position. I have been considering for some time the possibility of arranging this attempt, and in fact have plans for it made before the end of the year. Proper notice will be given, of course, in 'The Ringing World' at the appropriate time. I agree with Mr. Pulling that it is a tall order, but we intend to have no substitutes. This scheme is connected in no way with Peterborough.

I agree most emphatically that our own Press should be the first to receive news of any attempt of this nature, and would recommend this view to whoever was responsible for passing on premature information to the daily papers. I can assure Mr. Pulling that it was not my doing, nor do I think any other member of the band wittingly gave the information.

With regard to his last question I can assure him that it is by no means a 'leg-pull'; though it may well turn out to be wishful thinking.—Yours sincerely,

W. E. CRITCHLEY.

Doncaster, Yorks.

THE BELLS OF LUNDY ISLAND

Dear Sir,—Since writing my letter which appeared in your issue of September 10th, I have been over to Lundy, and can only confirm what has been stated by the Editor and myself. I would add that we have both put the facts somewhat mildly and to give a full account would occupy too much space.

Mr. Gade, the agent on the Island, takes little interest in the church and states that it is not his responsibility, but he will generally let a ringer have the key of the tower after due warning of the risks involved in going up aloft.

Edith Lomas suggests that the bells might be disposed of. I am inclined to agree, but who would bear the heavy costs involved and what is the use of a mass of rusty metal to anyone?

D. A. Newcombe quotes 'the guide book of Lundy,' which states that the bells have been taken down. This is not correct, they have never been taken down but some are supported by wood joists to prevent them falling down due to rust having eaten through the gudgeons and bearings.

Mr. Paice is correct as regards the general state of the church. I would add that the main west window has glass missing, and rain from that quarter (which is the prevailing quarter) pours in and does damage to the seats and other fittings.

Mr. Rowe states that the bells were clocked for the recent wedding. It must have been a very risky business and one which I would not have liked to attempt.

The east end of the church was in better condition than last year and, above all, the brass was clean, which is something I have never seen before.

The peal board is all the better for the attention given it by my son and myself last year. Can we make a proper job of it next year?

H. J. CANN, Major.

Kilve, Somerset.

'WINCHESTER MAJOR AND ROYAL'

Dear Sir,—Why does the author of 'Winchester Major and Royal' hide his light under a bushel. There is nothing in the method more objectionable than there is in Cambridge, and that is not likely to be thrown out by the Exercise as 'rubbish.' Perhaps the author will now come into the open and make known his identity.—Yours faithfully,

E. W. TIPLER.

PEAL RINGING IN DERBYSHIRE

Dear Sir,—I am grateful to Messrs. Richards and Paulson for their comments on my articles on Derbyshire. I am sorry I omitted to mention the towers they name. One of my difficulties in the case of a county where there is so much material to talk about, like Derbyshire, is to know where to draw the line. In this case it seemed a peal total of 90 was indicated, but since I mention all 10-bell towers, Derby St. Andrew's came in with 89, and Netherseale and Overseale were brought in as examples of the most flourishing towers to-day, although their totals were under 90. Looking back, I realise I ought to have slipped Darley Dale in, for it was very near the 90 (88 as I wrote, 89 now—Mr. Paulson says 90, and if he would kindly write to me I would like to check up on the total). For his information I came across no peals on the six bells. The first eight-bell tower I have was on September 12th, 1903, and I recorded 49 in all up to 1915. I have 21 since the last war, so it would appear the discrepancy lies here. (Mr. Paulson says 22.)

As for the six-bell towers, Morton and Blackwell, I can confirm there were no peals at the former when it was a five-bell tower. Again my count is one less than Mr. Richards' for I make it 29 (18 between 1924 and 1931 and 11 since the war). Perhaps he, too, would be so kind as to check up with me on this. I have now 32 at Blackwell, and Mr. Richards is correct in his guess about the number rung when it was a five-bell tower. Twenty-two were rung then, which is a very high number for a five-bell tower. When my article on Essex appears, it will be seen that the highest total of peals in any five-bell tower in the country is 31 at Warkton (Northants) and only one other such tower has more than 22. So Mr. Richards' note is timely.

Finally, I should be grateful for information of a peal at Wingerworth. I have looked up my records and cannot find one. Perhaps all the discrepancies are due to peals not being published in 'The Ringing World'! If 'The Ringing World' ceased publication I should be 'sunk'!—Yours faithfully,

K. W. H. FELSTEAD,

Southampton.

P.S.—The next peals I record at Coalbrookdale and Chester Cathedral will be the 100th and 50th respectively. The peal at St. Eval (Cornwall) was, I think, the first in the tower. —K. W. H. F.

COUNTY ASSOCIATIONS AND CAMBRIDGE MAXIMUS

Dear Sir,—Mr. Corby's letter prompts me to ask how many of our County Associations could raise a resident band for Cambridge Surprise Maximus at the present time? An Essex band rang Cambridge at the Chelmsford Cathedral practice on September 25th, although the standard of striking was below that required for a peal. If our promising younger ringers are given the right encouragement, it may not be so long before such a peal is rung in Essex.—Yours faithfully,

D. W. BEARD.

East Ham.

A LINCOLNSHIRE RHYME

Dear Sir,—The following is an old couplet describing the bells of four Lincolnshire villages:—

'Marton's cracked pancheons
And Torksey's egge-shelles,
Saxilby's ding-dong
And Stow Mary bells.'

Yours sincerely,

C. GLENN.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From 'The Ringing World,' October 9th, 1914

STEDMAN

'. . . Turning to Stedman, what is usually rung and called Stedman Triples, Caters and Cinques is not Stedman at all, it is not even a principle. Stedman is a real legitimate principle, and must consist on 7, 9 and 11 bells of the same elements as Stedman's own six-score. The six-score consists of quick sixes, which are equivalent to bobs; slow sixes, which are equivalent to plain leads; and singles which cause three bells to make places in 1-2-3 in the middle of a six. . .

'I cannot repeat the proofs, it would fill up too much space, but I would again ask the Exercise to put prejudice aside and study the proofs, and, while I hope to go on ringing Norwich Stedman Triples and consider it well worth ringing, I can never admit that it is really Stedman Triples at all.—Yours truly,

H. LAW JAMES.'

[The theory that the extensions or Stedman Doubles which we ring are incorrect was propounded by the Rev. H. Law James with much vigour for a number of years, but he never gained any support for it.]

CHURCH AND STATE RINGING

Since last May a peal attempt had been arranged at St. Nicholas', Newport (Salop), as a compliment to 'a very gracious lady,' Councillor Mrs. I. E. Stephens, J.P., in appreciation of her third term of service as chairman of the Urban District Council, and also to Mr. Albert Crawley, former ringer of Crewe, who celebrated his 76th birthday on September 26th.

A band representative of the Shropshire and North Staffs Association and the Chester Diocesan Guild met on September 25th at Newport to attempt a peal of Stedman Triples. All went well for the first hour and then, without warning, 'up it went.' As the conductor, Mr. R. D. Langford, afterwards remarked, Stedman Triples is one of the most inflammable methods to ring—it only requires a spark and up it goes.

The band consisted of Mr. A. Pritchard (Ringing Master, Shropshire Association), Mr. F. H. Bennett (Deputy Master), Mr. E. V. Rodenhurst (former Ringing Master), Miss Shelagh K. Seery (Uttoxeter), Messrs. L. Hewett (Hadley), R. D. Langford, G. A. Packer and W. Frank Stenson (all of Crewe). After the failure a quarter peal in the method was rung in 46 minutes.

After the ringing Councillor Mrs. Stephens kindly entertained the ringers to tea at the Bull's Head. The function was also attended by the Rector (the Rev. P. H. L. Bradley), the hon. sec. of the P.C.C. (Mr. D. Keddie) and Mr. Stephens. Thanks to all who had made the attempt possible were voiced by Mr. A. Prichard, who especially mentioned Mrs. Stephens, Mr. T. Talbot, the local tower keeper, and Mr. E. Wickstead.

Mrs. Stephens, in acknowledging, said she thought the thanks should be the other way round—to the ringers— especially the organiser. She greatly appreciated the thought that prompted the peal in her honour. The Rector also replied and hoped the visitors would come again and be more successful.

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH GUILD

A welcome visitor to the summer District meeting at Overton on September 11th was Major J. G. Stilwell, a former Branch hon. secretary, who has been away for a long period and unfortunately has moved from the district.

Overton ringers did everything to ensure the success of the gathering. The Rector (the Rev. F. R. Sanders) conducted the service, and the tea provided was much appreciated, especially by the young ringers. Standard methods were practised and every help possible given to the beginners.

DEDICATIONS

HAMBLEDEN, BUCKS

On September 26th the restored ring of six bells of St. Mary's Church, Hambleden, Bucks, was rededicated by the Rural Dean (the Vicar of Great Marlow), assisted by the Rector of Hambleden (the Rev. W. E. Watts). During and after the service the bells were rung by the local band of call change ringers.

The bells and inscriptions are as follows:—

Treble.—'Georgius Rex A: D: 1724. D: Iones, R: Lane, Ch:W: R: Phelps Made Me. 4 cwt. 3 qr. 14 lb.'

Second.—'Feare God X634. 4 cwt. 2 qr. 10 lb.'

Third.—'George Deane Gave Thxs Bell X634. 5 cwt. 1 qr. 0 lb.'

Fourth.—'John Warner & Sons, Crescent Foundry, London. 1857. (Royal Arms) Patent. 6 cwt. 2 qr. 5 lb.'

Fifth.—'Pack & Chapman of London. Fecit. 1778. 8 cwt. 1 qr. 6 lb.'

Tenor.—'Ora Mente Pia Pro Nobis Virgo Maria (Crowned Capitals). 11 cwt. 0 qr. 25 lb.'

The second and third bells are by Ellis Knight, of Reading, and the tenor is from the Wokingham Foundry c. 1420.

The bells have just been eighth-turned, tuned and rehung with cast iron headstocks and all new fittings by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. Previously the ravages of woodworm had made them unsafe to ring and they had been silent for a year.

A new bell is to be added as a treble to a future octave, it will be inscribed: 'Thomas de Cantelupe, Sainted Son of Hambleden.' This is to commemorate England's last pre-Reformation saint, born here in 1218.

The tower has been modified to improve sound dispersal, and the ringing circle has been much improved.

An interesting feature of the restoration was the rediscovery of the old saunce bell, stolen from the church in 1793.

Everyone who has tried the bells since the restoration agrees that the Whitechapel Foundry has turned out yet another excellent job, both tone and 'go' being much improved.

PACKINGTON, LEICESTERSHIRE

A new treble bell was dedicated at Packington, Leicestershire, on September 9th by the Archdeacon of Loughborough (the Rev. R. B. Cole) and the Vicar (the Rev. J. E. Rigg), assisted by the Rural Dean (the Rev. A. R. Meakin). Representatives of the Leicester Diocesan Guild and the Midland Counties Association were present.

The new bell was cast by Taylors and brings the ring to six bells. A new frame had been made and the old bells retuned and hung on ball bearings. Much of the £850 needed was given in the will of Mr. George Hatton, a local ringer. The church clock has also been overhauled; it was made by John Decon, a local craftsman, about 1700.

Packington Church dates from Saxon times and the first known mention of the bells was in 1552, when there were three. These were recast and increased to four in 1685, at Nottingham. The present fourth bell is the only one of these remaining and bears the inscription, 'Let the Gospell Florish. 1695.' In 1790 the bells rang out during the night and it was found that the tenor had been broken by lightning. This was recast and bears the inscription, 'Robert Hastings, Vicar. Thomas Potter and Richard Harrison, Churchwardens. E. Arnold Leicester, Fecit, 1793.' The third and fifth were recast and the second was added by Taylors in 1876. The treble has the inscription 'Sound Forth God's Praises. 1954.'

A MISCELLANY OF OUTINGS

FARINGDON, BERKS

Ringers from All Saints', Faringdon, Shrivenham, Marcham and Buckland had a most enjoyable outing on September 11th, visiting Burford, Stroud, and St. Mary-de-Crypt, Gloucester. Tea was taken at Gloucester. The outing was a great success and was arranged by Mr. F. H. Whipp and Mr. D. Vincent. F. H. W.

CARDIFF

On September 25th ringers from Cardiff, Hillingdon (Middlesex), Porthkerry and Whitchurch enjoyed an outing in the Llynfi Valley. Faulty map reading landed the 'convoy' into a mountainside farmyard, the renowned 'Green Van' taking a beating up one in six or seven. The Church of St. Cynwyd, Llangynwyd, on the mountain top was eventually reached. In the chancel of this old and historic church is the grave of 'The Maid of Cefn Ydfa.'

After an hour's ring on this delightful six, rehung by Gillett and Johnston last year, the party doubled back to Bridgend for tea. Thence to St. Mary's, Coity, another splendid-going but rather noisy six. Many Minor methods were rung for the first time by the party, who wish to thank Messrs. J. Hale and C. Gerrish for assisting in the arrangements. F. J. B.

LICHFIELD

The Dean of Lichfield, the Very Rev. W. S. MacPherson, accompanied the Cathedral ringers on their outing on September 11th, the first time a member of the Cathedral Chapter had participated in such a function. His presence, with that of Prebendary H. S. Cresswell (Vicar of St. Mary's), was much appreciated.

Ringing took place at Grantham, Boston, Surfleet and Newark. At the tea at Newark the guests were welcomed by Mr. G. E. Oliver. The Dean and Prebendary Cresswell replied, and Mr. R. Wealthy, on behalf of Alrewas ringers, and Mr. D. R. Carlisle, for the Derby party, also spoke. Mr. Oliver was thanked for his excellent arrangements.

The outing was regarded as 'the best ever' in the history of the Cathedral ringers.

SOMERTON, SOMERSET

On Saturday, September 18th, ringers and friends from Somerton and neighbouring villages sallied forth into the north-west of the county to visit three eight-bell and three six-bell towers.

The day began well at Chewton Mendip with a good touch of Grandsire Triples, but Bob Major was not a success; perhaps this glorious eight should have been reserved for later in the day. One more 'Chew' before lunch—Chew Stoke (6), where we hope the 100 or more carved angels were not too much offended by our efforts!

After lunch, overlooking the Channel at Portishead, we had a good ring on the eight bells there, recently overhauled and going beautifully. The Rector even suggested we might eat our tea off the newly-painted frames! Another good light eight at St. Andrew's, Clevedon, was visited before going to Kingston Seymour (6), which had been chosen because of the programme televised there some time ago.

After our own rather heavy bells some of us were a little afraid of the light six at Locking (7¼ cwt.), but we need not have feared, and this was voted by some the most enjoyable ring of the day.

Home was reached at a late hour; suffice it to say that the street-lighting had been switched off some time before our return. S. M. A.

TWERTON-ON-AVON, BATH

Twerton ringers, accompanied by friends from Chew Magna, Corston and Weston (Bath) held their outing on September 11th, the first for many years.

The first tower was Uphill, where the party were met by Mr. George Prescott, the Ringing Master of this area. The bells are a good six and hang in a church situated at the top of a hill overlooking the sea. The bells at St. Paul's, Kewstoke, the next tower, go very well and sound very quiet and mellow to those in the ground floor ringing chamber.

Tea was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Prescott, and we owe them and their helpers a sincere 'thank you' for the magnificent spread they provided.

The last tower was St. John's, Pilton, where the party were welcomed by the Master of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Association (the Rev. M. Hurst-Bannister), the Vicar of Pilton. The bells here are a pleasure to ring.

Thanks are extended to Mr. Roger Fry, for organising the outing, and the incumbents. Methods rung included Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Double Court and Cambridge Surprise Minor. A. L.

SOCIETY OF CAMBRIDGE YOUTHS

The Society of Cambridge Youths held their annual outing on September 18th, a party of about 30 travelling to Suffolk.

Debenham was reached on time and here everyone had a pull. At Grundisburgh Mr. and Mrs. Pipe and George were waiting to welcome the party. The pleasure of ringing here was equalled by the joy of reminiscences with old friends.

After an excellent lunch at Woodbridge the keen young men rushed to ring before a wedding ceremony. Here also one of the older members missed a pull on the bells because he could not do without his after-dinner nap; he was awakened by the 'firing' of the bells as the couple left the church!

Mr. C. J. Sedgley met the party at St. Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich, and was not too critical of the attempts on the 12. What a record of 12-bell peals is seen on the peal boards here!

After tea St. Margaret's was visited and more old friends met. Then faces were turned homeward and Stowmarket was the last call of the day.

Mr. J. W. R. Quinney, the secretary and organiser of the outing, expressed the hope that all had had an enjoyable time. Mr. M. Ginn, on behalf of the visitors, Mr. E. G. Hibbens and Mr. J. R. Dennis replied, saying how much all owed to Mr. Quinney for making such excellent arrangements.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

Dorchester Branch

St. George's Church, Fordington, Dorchester, beautifully decorated with flowers, fruit and vegetables in preparation for the coming harvest festival, was the scene of the autumn meeting on September 25th, when the Vicar of Fordington (the Rev. G. L. O. Jessop) conducted the Guild service and gave a hearty welcome to the ringers.

Tea was served in the Moule Institute by Mrs. Hewitt, Mrs. House and other lady helpers, and the business meeting which followed was conducted by the Branch chairman, Canon A. Wilkinson Markby.

Mr. Derek Cox and Mr. Richard Sturmey, of Charminster, were elected ringing members of the Guild.

Canon Markby stated that Mr. S. J. Bryant, son of the Rector of Upwey and for many years a ringing member of the Branch, was being ordained a deacon by the Bishop of London at St. Paul's Cathedral on Sept. 29th. This was the first instance he could recall in all his long connection with the Branch of a ringing member offering himself for ordination, and the meeting agreed that when writing to Mr. Bryant, the chairman be asked to convey their good wishes. Mr. Bryant will also be remembered for his athletic prowess during his Army training and also as a member of the Oxford University team.

An invitation to visit Litton Cheney for the next meeting, November 13th, was accepted, and the next Branch practice was fixed for October 9th at Cattistock, if convenient.

Canon Markby thanked the Vicar for his welcome and the address, and the ladies for a most excellent tea, and also Miss E. Kingman for her services at the organ.

Mention was made of the quarter peal of Grandsire Triples recently rung at Wyke Regis in honour of the birthdays of Mr. F. Stedman (80) and Mr. F. Precey (70), Deputy Ringing Master and Ringing Master respectively, also to mark the engagement of two well-known members of the Wyke Regis band, Mr. R. F. Symonds and Miss Doreen Hill.

St. Peter's bells being available, ringing was resumed at both towers in the evening. J. H. H.

NORWICH ASSOCIATION

South Norfolk Visit Attleborough

A meeting of the South Norfolk Branch at Attleborough on September 18th attracted 33 ringers, including Mr. Rodenhurst, of Shropshire. The Rector (the Rev. I. F. Webb) conducted the service, which was fully choral with the choir in attendance, after which the tea and meeting took place in the Church Hall.

The Rev. F. E. Vokes presided, supported by the president, the Rev. A. St. J. Heard, the Rev. I. F. Webb, Mr. A. G. Harrison (Branch secretary), Messrs. C. E. G. Banham and C. F. W. Phillippo and ringers from 14 different parishes.

Miss Bridget Mutimer, of Saxlingham, and Mr. Peter Ireland, of Saxlingham, were elected ringing members.

Congratulations were extended to the Rev. Gilbert Thurlow and Miss Hook on their recent engagement. It was decided to visit Bergh Apton for the last meeting of the year on December 4th.

Mr. C. Banham and Mr. L. Lawrence were thanked for making local arrangements.

NORTH FOREST CHURCHES

Six ringers from St. George's, Brockworth, joined by a member of the R.A.F. at Gloucester and an ex-member of the same station, had a tour of North Forest churches on August 28th.

Ringing took place at Hartpury (6), Corse (6), Staunton (6), Eldersfield (6), Tirley (6) and Hasfield (6).

OBITUARY

MR. GILBERT PEARCE

Bristol has lost one of its ringing personalities by the passing of Mr. Gilbert Pearce, who died on September 13th, aged 85 years. He was for many years a member of St. James' Guild and until quite recently turned up for Sunday service ringing regularly.

In his early days he visited America and was one of the band to ring the first peal in the Dominion of Canada—a peal of Grandsire Triples at Vancouver in 1911 for the Coronation of King George V. The actual number of peals Gilbert rang has not been recorded but they ran into hundreds.

The funeral service was held at St. James' Church on September 17th, followed by cremation. Besides the family mourners there was a very representative gathering of ringing friends. Those attending included Mr. Percy Portch, Mr. H. Way and son, Mr. Frank Gooding and Mr. George Trew (past members of St. James' Guild), Mr. Coles, Mr. Mason, Miss Barbara Johnston and Mr. A. V. Bennett (present members), Professor J. R. Brocklehurst (chairman of the Bristol Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Association), Mr. Edgar Guise (past hon. secretary), Mr. and Mrs. J. Brown, Mr. F. G. Leaker, Mr. Frank Hansford, Mr. A. A. Hilliar, Mr. A. E. Reeves and Mr. F. Skidmore.

The bells were rung half-muffled before and after the service.

MR. RAYMOND PHILPOTT

Mr. H. Badger (Thame) writes: 'I was very sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Raymond Philpott. I knew him many years ago at Basingstoke, and he and Mr. George Gilbert, who were for a time in camp near Basingstoke, were both of great assistance to us in St. Nicholas' belfry.

'In our Masonic peal at Berkhamsted earlier in the year we had intended ringing it for W. Bro. Philpott's installation, but, unfortunately, owing no doubt to ill-health, he was unable to "stand in" at the last moment.

'He must have died during his year of office, being installed, I believe, last October.'

MR. W. C. PARKER

Mr. F. W. Goodfellow writes: 'I read in the issue of September 24th Mr. William Shepherd's appreciation of the services to ringing, particularly at St. Peter's, Staines, of the late William C. Parker. It was a kindly tribute to one who gave so much time and labour to his tower, to one whose bells were his pride and joy and who was never more happy than when able to offer the hospitality of his tower to visiting ringers.

'I have joyful memories of the fun and banter that used to pass between Bill Parker and his old friend, Jack Preston (the long and the short of it!), and one felt in those days that a visit to Staines would always be enlivened by these two. Alas! one seldom meets such characters nowadays!

'By an unfortunate twist of circumstances many of his Middlesex friends were unaware of his death until it was reported in "The Ringing World." An intimation of his death and funeral was sent to me, as District secretary, when I was away from home for a few days, and it did not get into my hands until after the funeral.'

Neglected Painting!

When the steel frame was installed at Helston Parish Church, Cornwall, about 50 years ago, says the Rev. A. D. Moon, it was not thought necessary to give it a coat of paint. Now the elements, abetted by the salty winds, have eaten into the metal to such an extent that it would be dangerous to ring the bells. In consequence the bells will remain silent until £850 is raised to provide a new frame of oak.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2271 Vol. L. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

MY GREATEST JOY IN RINGING

By JOHN E. COOK

WHAT vast and inexhaustible sources of pleasure we gain from our art. Its branches are almost too numerous to quote. Yet I should like to dwell on one branch that gives me the most pleasure. I shall for clarity put it in the form of an account of a tower we visited.

We cycled along a narrow country lane, and the calm and peacefulness of the whole scene made a marked impression upon us all. Then, as if breaking into our train of thought, appeared the village and dominating the scene was our objective, the church. Not a magnificent building as some of its city brethren, but nevertheless possessing a quiet dignity all of its own.

After obtaining the key from the ivy enshrouded rectory, we proceeded from the warmth of the summer's day into the refreshing coolness of the old church. Here one could certainly rest and feel at peace with man and nature.

The key we had obtained was rusty and turned with a protesting creak in the lock of the tower door. The door swung open groaning on its hinges as we began to climb the dust-covered stairs; the windows are but pale murky lights, the dust of years clinging to them. At length the ringing chamber is reached. Here we find a picture of stark desolation. Two bell ropes hang down from their holes in the ceiling and the remaining few holes stand out like eyeless sockets. On the wall stands a peal board bringing back the memory of a generation of ringers long passed away, and everywhere is dust and decay as if this room itself died with ringers who shared its day of glory.

After leaving the ringing chamber we made our final climb to the bells. Here the birds had certainly found a resting place, and here in comparison with the rest of the tower life still goes on.

After an hour of hard work the bells are cleared of their encumbering shroud of sticks. Tools are brought out, headstocks tightened, rims nailed back on wheels and bearings cleaned and oiled. At last after almost three hours on the bells we descend to the chamber to adjust the new rope which we have brought with us. 'Look to' is called and the bells one after the other rise in peal, and out across the village and countryside the bells sound their message for the first time in this century. After a quarter has been rung the bells are lowered, the ropes being left behind as a gift.

The Rector is delighted to hear his bells for the first time and promises to do all in his power to provide the bells with ringers. One day we shall probably hear of the bells being rehung and a new generation will carry the torch which went out so many years ago.

This illustrates my greatest joy in ringing; probably by many I shall be dubbed a crank. But, nevertheless, true happiness is found in doing that which you love the best.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From 'The Ringing World' of October 16th, 1914

THE 'G.O.M.' OF RINGING

The ringers of Sheffield and district on Saturday honoured, in the person of Mr. Charles Henry Hattersley, one who for many years has been looked upon as one of the pillars of the Exercise. Last month Mr. Hattersley reached the age of 70 years, and it was but natural that his friends should desire fittingly to mark the auspicious occasion . . . . for Mr. Hattersley has merited as few men have done the appreciation of ringers throughout the country. . . .

[Though best remembered by his compositions, Mr. Hattersley was a highly skilled practical ringer. He called his first peal in 1863 at the age of 19, which was considered a clever performance at that time of day, and altogether took part in some 200 peals, among them the 120 course-ends peal of Stedman Caters at Cheltenham in 8 hours 20 minutes, in which he related that for a period of five hours no word of correction had to be spoken.]

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

Farnham District

It is a good thing that the Farnham District have Joint Ringing Masters as was proved at the meeting on September 11th at Holy Trinity, Hawley. Owing to a slight mishap Mr. Tom Page was unavoidably late in reaching the meeting, but Mr. John Wells was able to 'hold the fort.'

Despite the shocking weather and the traffic for Farnborough Air Display there was a good attendance. After the ringers' service, conducted by the Rev. K. C. Davis, tea was served in the Church Hall, followed by a short business meeting during which five new members were elected.

The ringing during the afternoon and evening was fair, methods ranging from rounds to Double Norwich Court Bob Major. The bells were 'rung down' at 8.30 p.m. M. A. C.

HERTS COUNTY ASSOCIATION

The first autumn meeting of the St. Albans District was held on September 18th at Hatfield. During the afternoon several young ringers from Kimpton and Hertford made full use of the opportunity of ringing with more experienced ringers.

After a service, conducted by the Rector (the Rev. S. E. Woods), about two dozen ringers sat down to an excellent tea kindly provided by ladies of the parish. During the business meeting it was announced that Kimpton has altered its practice night to Saturday, 7 to 8 p.m. The District now has a tower to visit whenever there is no other meeting in the area.

Methods up to Cambridge Royal were rung before having to lower the bells at 7.30 p.m., when handbells were rung to round off the evening. G. D.

SURREY ASSOCIATION

Northern District

Twenty-six members and friends visited Benhilton on September 25th for the quarterly District meeting. In the absence on holiday of the Master, Mr. F. E. Collins, ringing was under the direction of Mr. A. J. Adams. An encouraging feature of the meeting was the high proportion of learners present.

Following tea at the Red Lion, Sutton, the General Master, Mr. R. Davies, took the chair for the routine business meeting. One new member was elected. 'The Ringing World' representative expressed the opinion that the response for new readers in Surrey was disappointing and in such a densely populated district better results ought to be attained.

After the meeting those present took part in Evensong at Benhilton, followed by ringing to 7.45. Carshalton bells were also available.

A FIRST PEAL IN CHESHIRE

Inspired by the article of the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead, the first peal has been rung at Little Budworth, Cheshire. The bells are a mixed lot—three of Rudhall's, one of Barwell's and one of Warner's—and they swing in an oak frame. A short run revealed defects. A thorough examination in daylight followed. The clappers were taken out, greased and packed and replaced, the bearings were well greased and the frame tightened and wedged. After a couple of extents of Doubles the bells went better than expected and a good peal was rung. As the result of the peal an attempt to teach a new band will be made in the near future.

RINGERS' STAND AT CHELTENHAM EXHIBITION

Prestbury ringers had a stand at the Cheltenham Hobbies Exhibition, which was visited by over 9,000 people. To show the public how a church bell rings a flat wood model of a bell, complete with wheel, stay and slider, and hung on plain bearings, was exhibited..

Four posters were made and headed 'Why We Ring,' 'What We Ring' and 'Our Organisation,' and a plain course of Grandsire Doubles set out in full with an explanation. Members of the public interested were invited to visit us at practice. The artist member of the band made a lovely banner to head the stand, which was decorated with red, white and blue crepe paper twisted to resemble sallies.

Twenty-four copies of 'The Ringing World' were used to paper the table, showing various pages, and also the following books were fixed so that they could be studied by those who were interested: The Central Council's 'Handbook on Preservation, Etc.' 'Hints for Instructors and Beginners,' 'Village Bells,' W. G. Wilson's 'Notes for Beginners,' A. Waddington's 'Beginners' Grandsire' and 'Hints on Girl Guide Badges—No. 4, Bell Ringer.'

The stand was manned each evening except on Tuesday, and most people in the hall had a look; quite a large number read the posters and asked questions. One man wanted to know of a book containing all the changes possible on eight bells, so that he could learn them. It transpired on questioning him that he was responsible for chiming the hemispherical bells at Brilley, in Worcestershire, and wanted to be able to ring the changes there. He went away satisfield that it would not be possible, but with a list of books to get so that he can chime plain courses in various methods by making out charts. C. R.

BELFRY GOSSIP

With deep regret we announce the death of Flying Officer Eric A. Dench, when a Marathon crashed near Calne, Wiltshire, on September 30th. He was 26 years of age. An appreciation of his life will appear in our next issue.

With a peal at Edgware on September 29th Mr. John R. Mayne has rung peals of Cambridge Surprise from Minor to Maximus.

Congratulations to Mr. L. Stilwell, of Horsham. He conducted a peal at Pulborough on October 6th, which was the 50th anniversary of his first peal.

September 24th was an important landmark in the ringing record of Mr. J. Thomas, of Hinton-on-the-Green. It was the 50th anniversary of his first peal. He conducted a peal of Stedman Triples at Norton on that day.

'Market Harborough Advertiser' had a feature article on the Peterborough Guild meeting at Guilsborough. Here there are only four ringers for the six bells. We trust the article will stimulate recruits.

At the Hatfield ringers' annual service on September 12th a peal book, presented 'in memory of past members of the Hatfield Guild of College Youths called to higher service,' was dedicated. The first peal for the Guild was in 1790.

Mr. Tom Collins, who has held several offices in the Middlesex Association and is a well-known Cumberland, was thanked for his 50 years' work in the belfry for St. Martin's Church, Ruislip, by the curate (the Rev. Lloyd Jones) prior to the sermon at Evensong on September 26th. Tom is captain and secretary of the Ruislip ringers, and his friends wish him many more years of active service.

Two ringers who left England many years ago and are now living in Toronto, Canada, paid visits to their old towers last week. Mr. Bernard Swinson, a well-known St. Albans Cathedral ringer and composer, proved he had forgotten very little in the way of methods. Mr. Harris Burgess, who helped to introduce change ringing to Harpenden and left there 27 years ago, handled his bell well despite his age of 79. Neither knew the other was in England or in Canada!

Mr. F. Nurden, of Dumbleton, who has been in Tewkesbury Hospital for the past two months suffering from severe burns, is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

The peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major at Loughborough Bell Foundry on September 1st was the first peal in the method for Ernest J. Jelley and the 200th peal for John A. Acres. There was a transposition in the report appearing on page 595.

On account of the weight and 'go' of their bells, the Powick band of ringers rang a farewell peal to David Trumper, who is taking up his studies at Birmingham University, at Mathon, Herefordshire, on September 26th. The permission of the incumbent was much appreciated.

Cycling overnight on September 11th, three Leicester Guild enthusiasts arrived at Winchester Cathedral at 10 a.m., only to find that the service had started earlier than expected. This was a prelude to a cycling tour of the Isle of Wight, in which ringing was enjoyed at Ryde, Freshwater and Godshill. At the last tower they were impressed by the ability of a gentleman to ring Surprise methods although he had been totally blind for several years.

THE CUMBERLANDS AT DINNER

Ringers' Service to St. Leonard's, Shoreditch

From as far afield as Newcastle-on-Tyne, members attended the annual dinner of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths at the Old Bell, Holborn, on October 2nd. Mr. F. E. Hawthorne, the Master, was a genial chairman; he was accompanied by Mrs. Hawthorne. Other officers of the Society present were Mr. T. H. Francis (senior steward), Mr. F. J. Matthews (junior steward), Mr. P. N. Bond (hon. secretary), Mr. W. R. Winterton (hon. treasurer), Mr. C. J. Matthews and Mr. A. R. Ling (trustees) and Mr. R. F. Deal and Mr. H. E. Audsley (auditors).

Mr. Peter Bond, who proposed the toast of 'The Church,' reminded the assembly of 'the diversity of gifts' in the service of the Church, and he felt that theirs, as ringers, was no small one. Service ringing was their main task, although they all found ringing a fascinating hobby. Their thanks were due to incumbents for the use of bells—and at times it was a case of short notice, as some of those who indulged in 'tower snatching' knew. He had never been refused permission to ring on bells.

To-day there was a great movement towards synthetic or recorded bells, particularly in small towers. Only that day he heard of a certain vicar at Lincoln who had installed such apparatus without a faculty. He was afraid he would be up against a famous ringer who was on the Faculty Committee. One great criticism of synthetic bells was that it took away people from the service of the Church. In coupling the Rev. Meredith Davies' name with the toast, he thanked the Vicars of St. Martin's and St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, for their friendship to the Society.

PUSH BUTTON BELLS IN THE STATES

The Rev. Meredith Davies, in his reply, said he had just returned from the United States. In the churches he visited there was never a belfry. It was 'push button' bells. They had no idea in the States of ritual in a service or that bell ringing was a form of service to the Church.

He would like to pay a tribute to the Cumberland Youths who came to St. Leonard's. They not only rang the bells but also greased them. One young man had scraped and painted the belfry—for the love of the Church. While they had men of that calibre he had no fear but that the Church would go on.

When he returned home the bells of St. Leonard's were rung as a welcome to him. Last year a recording was taken of St. Leonard's bells and he took it with him to America. When he met the English wives of G.I.'s they always spoke of the bells at home.

The toast of 'The Society' was submitted by the Master. He prefaced his remarks with the regret all felt that Mr. George Cross, the past Master of the Society, was not with them. In a letter to him expressing his regret, Mr. Cross wrote that this was the first he had missed since the dinners were recommenced in 1935. Another apology was from probably their oldest member, Mr. Albert E. Edwards, who joined the Society in 1894.

The current year had been most successful. Five peals had been rung and 32 new members made and there were others in prospect. Meetings had been held at Sevenoaks, Windsor, a joint one with the Middlesex at Twickenham, and at Croydon.

As to their Sunday ringing, he hoped that they would be able shortly to ring for one service each Sunday at St. Martin's and Shoreditch. That should not be impossible if they could all get together and let Mr. Tom Francis know if they had any spare time. One of his ambitions was to arrange with their co-partners, the Ancient Society of College Youths, to form bands to ring at most London churches on Sundays. That was a great task but it should not be beyond the realm of possibility if the two Societies got together.

The toast of 'The Visitors' was wittily proposed by Mr. F. J. Matthews. He had a special word of welcome for Cumberlands from Newark-on-Trent, whom he suspected of trying to get their Vicar back, as the Rev. Charles Edwardes came from Newark to St. Martin's, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGuiness from Newcastle-on-Tyne, to Mrs. J. D. Matthews and Mrs. Smith, the widows of two stalwarts of the Society, the singers and tune bell ringers, who were from the neighbourhood of Thames Ditton.

Two College Youths present came in for a special greeting from Mr. Matthews—Mr. W. T. Elston and the Master, Mr. John Chilcott. Speaking of the Master, he said he was the youngest Master in the history of the Society. He had shown that his standards were very high and he carried out his duties with skill and diplomacy. He also welcomed the Editor of 'The Ringing World.'

RINGER'S FIRST DUTY ON A SUNDAY

Replying on behalf of the visitors, Mr. Chilcott said there were many in the room who were just as much his friends as members of the College Youths. While the two Societies were, by tradition, rivals, that rivalry to-day was of a friendly and sporting nature—each trying to do a little better than the other.

Mr. Hawthorne, he said, had referred to the need for co-operation in ringing in City towers. That co-operation did exist because College Youths, Cumberlands and other Societies did ring on Sunday evenings in City churches. He felt very strongly that on a Sunday a ringer's loyalty was first to his own band, then to his Society and finally to ringing in general.

Mr. T. W. White also replied. In a reference to 'The Ringing World's' drive for new postal subscribers he mentioned that 300 had been enrolled. It was encouraging, but with goodwill and enthusiasm it could be easily improved upon. The responsibility rested on each one of them to increase the circulation of the journal.

The entertainment was delightful and varied. Two good touches 'in hand' were rung by St. Martin's ringers, Thames Ditton handbell ringers rang tunes, Mr. Norman Joyce was an able pianist of classical music, and Mr. and Mrs. Halsey delighted with duets.

BELL LOST 161 YEARS AGO, FOUND

Story of a Gambling Debt

In answer to an appeal to his parishioners for scrap iron, the Rev. Wilfred Watts, Rector of St. Mary's, Hambleden, near Oxford, has found a 51 lb. church bell, missing from his church for 161 years, in the clock at Greenlands, a Thames-side mansion.

The story revolves around an 18th century game of cards between the rectors of Hambleden and Fingest. The Rector of Fingest first lost his money, then his furniture and finally gambled away the church bells.

The winner decided that Fingest's bells should be melted down and made into one bell for his Church of St. Mary, Hambleden. But although he won at cards he thought he was the loser to the bell founder, whom he accused of stealing scrap metal from the bells he had melted down.

In retribution the bell founder made the Rector the small church bell, which later disappeared and has now been found. It will be used for christenings.

ANOTHER COLUMN OF BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. Raymond Overy gave a talk to the Burgess Hill Rotary Club on September 17th on bell-ringing. St. Peter's, Brighton, ringers kindly lent him a model bell for demonstration purposes.

After the peal at Borden on September 25th the Vicar and Mrs. Crouch were waiting for the band to take them to the Maypole Inn opposite the church. In good Kentish beer a silver wedding toast was drunk to them and also 70th birthday honours to the Rev. W. J. B. Crouch.

The Rev. K. W. H. Felstead writes: Peals at All Saints', Halifax, are few and far between. Eighteen were rung from 1891 to 1906, but the recent peal is only the third since then. The other two were in 1924 and 1926. The Shobrooke peal was the first on the bells.

In the band that rang the first peal of Surprise Royal for Oxford University Society at Macclesfield on September 25th was Miss Julia Preston, who was on three weeks' holiday from Switzerland. She has since returned for another year. The band thank Mr. John Worth for making the tower available. He had postponed a local attempt to make it possible.

A member of the Lawton, Cheshire, band for many years, Mr. John Boffey, was married at St. Mary's, Sandbach, on September 25th to Miss Vera Bourne, of Sandbach. The following ringers from Lawton took part in the ringing after the ceremony: Mr. and Mrs. W. Longman, Nancy Longman (13), David Longman (10), Mr. E. Harper, Mr. J. Booth and Mr. G. Bossons.

After a lapse of nearly nine years, a peal has again been rung at St. Peter's, Pentre, in which four junior members rang their first of Grandsire. Sixty peals have been rung on these bells since 1900, but this was the first rung for a harvest festival.

A new band, St. Giles', Ashtead, celebrated its second birthday on October 1st by a quarter of Grandsire Doubles. The last quarter of Doubles by a resident Sunday service band was rung here 50 years ago. They hope shortly to ring a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples. The Society have recruited a junior section from choirboys, who recently gave a recital on handbells.

A recording was taken of the ringing of the bells at Blunsden, Wilts, for the wedding of Mr. Donald H. Henge, an American ex-Service man, and Miss Pam Cresser for despatch to the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Heth, of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, U.S.A. Rounds, Queen's and Stedman Doubles were rung. The organist (Mr. J. Manners) and five members of the choir at the wedding were ringers.

The peal of Superlative Surprise rung at Buxted on Sunday, October 3rd, enabled Mr. William Rogers to complete the circle at this tower after 31 years. Fortune was kind to the band, for after about 45 minutes the 6th rope began unravelling, but it held to the end. Its ringer, Mr. Leonard Stilwell, was covered with fluff, and deserves credit for the way in which he handled his bell to avoid any unnecessary strain on the rope.

A week-end feature in the Irish ringing calendar is the annual service at St. Finbarre's Cathedral, Cork. The service on September 19th was attended by a large number of ringers. For one and a half hours before the service and for some time afterwards the eight bells of the Cathedral were rung. Tape recordings of the ringing were played back to the company, who assembled for a sumptuous tea in the school house, where they were welcomed by the Dean of Cork. On the previous day a peal was rung at Doneraile, a nice six upon which no peals had ever been previously attempted.

OXFORD GUILD VETERAN'S 78 YEARS' SERVICE

Mr. F. V. H. Sinkins Leaves Slough

At their practice on September 30th Slough Parish Church bellringers bade an official farewell to Mr. Frank Sinkins, whose long ringing career began and ended in their tower. Since the death of his housekeeper, 18 months ago. 89-year-old Mr. Sinkins has been living alone and, much against his wishes, his daughter has persuaded him to leave Slough and to live with her at Streatham.

Born in 1865, Mr. Sinkins learned to ring, in company with the late William H. Fussell, at Slough when he was eleven years old. He rang regularly every Sunday and practice night.

To mark his 78 years' service to the belfry, the Slough ringers presented him with an enlarged framed photograph of himself taken on their 1954 annual outing. The belfry captain, Mr. W. Birmingham, referred to his claim to fame as the son of Mrs. Sinkins, whose pink is known to every lover of flowers and which is incorporated in Slough's Borough Coat of Arms. His departure would sever an historical link with the town. He spoke of his work as a workhouse master, as a professional musician who knew Edward German, Lionel Monkton and Sir John Stainer, and said that despite his being a 'musician' he was an excellent ringer and striker, which didn't always follow. Not many people, he said, could fall downstairs and break a collarbone at 87 and get away with it. The augmentation of Slough bells to ten was, he said, entirely due to Mr. Sinkins' inspiration.

Mr. Sinkins had rung eight peals at Slough and was the last survivor of names on most of the peal boards. His first peal was rung at Slough in April, 1888, and although he had not rung a peal on the ten he came very near to it by ringing for over three hours before he was taken ill. He was still ringing quarter peals, having rung one the previous week, and was to attempt another as a farewell the coming week. It was a great pity his very old friend, Bill Judd, with whom he rang for many years at St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington, had recently been ill and could not be with them that evening.

The Rector of Slough (the Rev. Claude Williams) then congratulated Mr. Sinkins on his splendid record, and on behalf of his ringers presented Mr. Sinkins with the photograph, and from himself a gramophone record token.

In his reply Mr. Sinkins said how greatly he would treasure this gift and how much he wished he could remain in Slough, and promised, if possible, to visit Slough when he celebrated his 90th birthday in January.

A PEAL RUNG IN FOUR COUNTIES!

An outing to London on October 2nd will long be remembered by a party of ringers from the Kettering and Bedford Districts, perhaps not least for the handbell ringing in the back of the bus. After the last man had been picked up at Henlow it was suggested that a handbell peal of Minor be attempted there and then, and after one hour and 33 minutes, and after travelling through Bedfordshire, Hertfordshire, Middlesex and London County, rounds came up for the seventh time outside St. Dunstan's, Stepney. The band were fairly comfortable except when passing over the rough road in Enfield, when some of the backstrokes came down rather hard on to their knees!

The lovely ten at St. Dunstan's were very soon going well, and Cambridge Royal was among the methods rung. A run through Cable Street, over Tower Bridge, brought us to St. George's, Camberwell, where we were allowed to ring through the kindness of the local captain. After lunch came the fine 12 at Southwark Cathedral, where, after getting used to the bells, we rang some quite good Stedman Caters and half a course of Cambridge Major on the back eight.

Next came an hour on the lovely new eight at St. Matthew's, Bethnal Green, which had only been rung about six times before our visit since their rehanging by the Whitechapel Foundry. These bells were ideal for Major ringing, and we rang Superlative and Yorkshire in fine style. After tea in the Strand, we set off towards St. Luke's, Chelsea, where we were awaited by Mr. Lott and some of the local ringers. The ten bells obliged us by going well to a good course of Cambridge Royal and the standard methods. As the last tower of the day, we were privileged to use St. Margaret's, Westminster, bells for over an hour, and were delighted to renew acquaintances with some old friends.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION

Sowerby's New Bells Give Pleasure

Over 50 members of the Western District of the Yorkshire Association accepted the invitation of St. Peter's, Sowerby, to ring on the recently recast octave on September 25th. Visitors included friends from across the Lancashire border and Mr. Paul L. Taylor, who was complimented on another excellent job by the Loughborough Foundry.

The quarterly business meeting followed an excellent tea, and Canon Sykes (the Vicar) welcomed the Association to Sowerby and reminded the members of ringers' responsibilities to the Church.

The last item on the agenda was the presentation by the general secretary, Mr. L. W. G. Morris, of a donation from the Association's Bell Repair Fund towards the cost of the recasting of the bells. This was gratefully accepted by Mr. G. A. Briggs on behalf of the local company.

EASTERN DISTRICT AT BEVERLEY

Good use was made of the fine ten at St. Mary's, Beverley, on October 2nd, when the Eastern District held their autumn meeting at the church.

Four new members were elected at the business meeting presided over by Mr. A. E. Sellers (vice-president). These were Miss Lidgeley (Hull), Mr. C. Hart (Patrington), Messrs. P. Newstill and K. Heptonstall (Selby).

Sympathy was expressed with Mr. J. P. Powls, of Eastrington, in the death of his wife, and to the relatives of the late Mr. H. Lake, former leader of St. Mary's, Beverley.

Goole was selected for the next meeting, and the chairman appealed for support for the Snowdon Dinner to be held at Doncaster on October 30th.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY IN CANADA

A Meeting With Ringers

When the Archbishop of Canterbury and Mrs. Fisher arrived at Victoria, British Columbia, on H.M.C.S. 'Ontario' on September 7th, they were welcomed by the Cathedral bells, and stopped at the Cathedral on their way to Government House, where they were the guests of the Lieutenant Governor of the Province. During the evening the bells of Christ Church Cathedral were again specially rung from 8.30 to 10 p.m.

On Sunday, September 12,h, during the morning service, the Archbishop of Canterbury dedicated the memorial window in the bell tower to the late Bishop of London, the Right Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington Ingram, in whose memory the tower has been built. During his sermon His Grace specially mentioned his appreciation of the ringing of the Cathedral bells and how church bells formed such an important part of the church services in the United Kingdom, and how pleased he was to learn that the same tradition was being carried out in Victoria.

After the service the Premier of British Columbia, Mr. W. A. C. Bennett, presented His Grace with three British Columbia jewels, to be set in the Archbishop's special cross. Immediately after the presentation by the Premier, the bellringers were introduced to the Archbishop of Canterbury, who had a personal talk with each member. The ringers then returned to the belfry and rang a 30-minute touch of Grandsire Triples.

Owing to the large number of people who were unable to be accommodated in the Cathedral, the service was broadcast outside as well as on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation network all over Canada.

On the Sunday evening there was a special service held in the Memorial Arena and approximately 8,000 people attended. A broadcast ribbon of the Cathedral bell ringing was made a few days before this special service and this was put over the amplifying system of the Arena, so that the ringing of the bells was heard both inside and outside the building previous to the service.

Those taking part in the ringing were:—Mrs. C. C. Guthrie, Miss Margaret Izard, Miss Margaret Horne, Miss Ann Duggan. Dr. D. Longridge, A. Izard, C. Millard, J. V. Donaldson, Godfrey White, Alex. Hogg, Douglas Boniface, and Miss Mary Emmerton.

THE LADIES' GUILD

Midland District

Congratulations were extended by Miss Thompson (vice-president), who presided at the Midland District meeting at Bottesford, Leics, on September 25th, to Mrs. H. J. Poole on ringing her 500th peal. Good wishes were extended to Mrs. I. Hitchborne on her recent marriage, and the secretary was asked to write to Mrs. J. R. Smith, who has now left the Leicester district to live in Norfolk, and send her the members' best wishes. Mrs. Smith has been one of the most loyal members of the District since its formation in 1946 and both she and her husband, John, will be missed very much.

West Midland District

Good use was made of the ring of 12 at St. Matthew's, Walsall, when the West Midland District visited this tower on October 2nd. Preb. A. T. Jenkins conducted a service in the Lady Chapel and tea was served by members of the Church Refreshment Committee. Three new members—two from King's Norton and one from Walsall—were elected.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A SURVEY OF ALL RESOLUTIONS

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. Corby, I have not been able to consult Mr. C. K. Lewis before writing this, but I do not think he will object if I give an assurance that, even though the handbook itself may not be available before the next Council meeting, a survey of the various decisions made by the Council since its inception will appear in 'The Ringing World' in sufficient time for members and others to form their own opinions on them. I entirely agree that they cannot at present do so.

Mr. Lewis and I are in the process of listing all the resolutions which the Council has passed. I fear we are going over old ground here, but we judge this to be the only way to set about the job. The actual handbook as originally conceived is a rather ambitious project, but considerable progress towards collecting the material was made by Dr. Hatcher. Mr. Corby and ringers generally may rest assured that both Mr. Lewis and I are only too anxious to complete the task.

Perhaps I may at the same time comment on the recent letter from Mr. Blagrove. The Doubles Collection will be complete so far as methods are concerned—offhand I am not sure about principles—within the agreed limits (see 'Ringing World' of June 16th, 1950, page 378), and it is because a careful re-check that all are included is being made that publication has been delayed. I presume his reference to the incompleteness of the Minor Collection is to a number of Alliance Methods which were omitted when the third edition was brought out in 1939. The re-inclusion of these in the next edition is being considered by the Methods Committee. So far as the Plain Major Collection is concerned, I should have thought that the 359 methods which are given were likely to prove sufficient for most ringers, but if anyone wishes to go beyond this I can supply the figures of the remaining 469 which come within the scope of the Council's definition of a legitimate method.—Yours faithfully,

E. A. BARNETT, Hon. Sec.,
Central Council of Church Bell Ringers.

WHO DECIDED TO 'CLAMP DOWN' AND WHY?

Dear Sir,—I have read with interest Mr. Corby's letter in your issue of October 1st and agree with most of it. Whatever course they may deem fit to pursue in future, however. I do think it would be just too absurd for the Council to try to enforce in retrospect a decision which for some 50 years has been so consistently and generally ignored as to render it for all practical purposes obsolete.

Next Whitsun is still a long way off and there is as yet plenty of time to argue in these columns if necessary as to the wisdom or otherwise of accepting peals of Bob Triples.

As a preliminary, however. I am sure many of us would like to know who, after all these years, prompted the Analysis Committee suddenly to clamp down on Bob Triples and why?—Yours faithfully,

G. L. GROVER.
Former Member,
Peals Analysis Committee.

East Clandon, Surrey.

STEDMAN CINQUES AT OLDHAM

Dear Sir,—The peal of Stedman Cinques rung at Oldham on August 2nd was, as claimed, the first peal in the method on the bells. The earlier peal of which the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead has a note was, of course, rung on the old bells, which were recast some 30 years ago.—Yours, etc.,

S. H. DEARDEN.

Croydon.

ELFORD SUPPLANTS LINDOFF'S LONDON

Dear Sir,—It will have been noticed from the peal columns that we in Yorkshire rang the first peal recently of a method which to date has been known as Lindoff's London. The band felt that that name, although not absolutely unsuitable, did not really conform to present-day practice. We therefore decided to rename the method 'Elford,' which name has a certain connection with Lindoff himself. If anyone keeps records of compositions appearing in 'The Ringing World,' he might like to note that the name will need amending in some of my compositions of Spliced Surprise which have been published, viz.: 5,088 36-Spliced ('R.W.' 5.3.54), 5,120 32-Spliced ('R.W.' 26.3.54), 5,088 42-Spliced ('R.W.' 18.6.54), and 5,088 48-Spliced ('R.W.' 16.7.54). — Yours sincerely,

W. ERIC CRITCHLEY.

Doncaster.

THE CONDUCTOR'S APOLOGIES

Dear Sir,—May I, through the columns of 'The Ringing World,' apologise to the rest of the band who stood in a peal attempt for Bob Royal at Southover, Sussex, on October 2nd? There were six 'first attempts' for a ten-bell peal among them and it must have been very disappointing to have lost it through no fault of theirs. On checking up the figures afterwards I found I had miscalled it, and in bringing it into rounds we were three courses short of a peal.

This attempt had been specially arranged as a birthday compliment to Mr. C. J. Norris, who entertained the band to a delicious tea afterwards, and all I can say is I'm sorry to have let him down and hope to do better in the next attempt on December 4th.—Yours sincerely,

W. ROGERS.

Crowborough, Sussex.

QUEX PARK BELLS

Dear Sir,—I read with interest Miss Muriel Reay's account of her recent peal ringing tour in Kent, particularly her description of Quex Park bells, of which she says, '. . . in spite of four sound shutes are not particularly clear in the belfry.' Unless the recently recast trebles have made a big difference, this, I think, is an understatement.

I have rung quite a number of peals at Quex Park in days gone by with the brothers Pye and J. H. Cheesman, and the latter was always of the opinion that our peals would have been far better in every way if they had been rung from the floor above where the bells could be heard much more distinctly.

I have been told by some of the old Cumberlands who rang the first peals of Stedman Cinques and Kent Maximus on the bells in 1890 or thereabouts that they took ropes with them from Highgate and Battersea towers for their attempts. These were too short to reach the ground floor and they rang their peals from the floor above.

Writing of Quex Park reminds me of one of the most diplomatic answers I ever heard.

About 30 years ago, before Surfleet had a ring of twelve, we rang a peal of Kent Maximus at Quex. One of the band was the late Joseph E. Sykes, from Huddersfield. After the peal we were taken round the museum by Major and Mrs. Powell-Cotton, when Mrs. Cotton asked, 'What do you think of our little bells?' While some of us were doing some quick thinking to find the right thing to say in reply, Joe, without batting an eyelid, answered, 'Madam, they are the finest peal of twelve I have ever heard FOR THEIR WEIGHT'!—Yours sincerely,

E. BARNETT.

Crayford.

SOME MODERN RHYMES IN CHESHIRE TOWERS

Dear Sir,—Having read Mr. Alan R. Pink's letter in your issue of September 17th, I feel bound to bring to his notice four towers in South Cheshire, and I hope he will have the pleasure of ringing here some time.

As I cannot find any OLD couplets about the towers mentioned, I have done my best to supply him with some NEW rhymes, which I hope will suit him.—Yours sincerely,

E. J. HOLLOWAY.

Crewe.

WISTASTON

The ploughman homeward 'chugs' his homeward way,
Near Wistaston, at end of day;
And, from the Red-brick Tower
(To which the Ivy now no longer sticks!)
He hears, perchance, at times,
The bright and lively 'six.'

ACTON

At Acton's great Tower
Six great bells are swinging;
And good ringers all,
To sound them are willing.

NANTWICH

(The old name was 'Wich-Malbank')
Wich-Malbank's fine church
(The Tower's eight-sided!)
Has eight good toned bells,
Which much joy have provided.

CREWE

Turn Eastward to Crewe,
Amid bustle and Grime,
The ten Bells of Christ Church
Sweetly finish my Rhyme.

Dear Sir,—In respect of Mr. A. Pink's letter on some Cheshire bells, I have had the pleasure of ringing at all the towers he mentions except Peover.

I can only think that Sandbach big Britons were so called because they used to 'go' very heavily, but since they have been put on steel frames and ball bearings they 'go' beautifully. As for the kettles and pans, Barthomley bells are one of the best rings here both for music and 'go.' I expect those rhyming couplets were made up a long time ago, and since then most of these bells have paid a visit to the bell founders.

W. LONGMAN.

Stoke-on-Trent.

WADHURST BELLS

Dear Sir,—When we had the bells at Wadhurst the ringers were always in trouble. Being open to the church, they disturbed the worshippers, and when a peal was attempted there were usually a few complaints from those living near. But now that the tower is silent, the people say that it is uncanny to come to church and not hear the bells or the ringers, and they continually ask, 'When are the bells coming back?'

In an effort to appease them, the ringers have removed a ¼ cwt. bell from a disused mission church and have hung it in the tower. Its tang, tang, tang is horrible, but the parishioners seem satisfied.—Yours sincerely,

CHARLES A. BASSETT.

Wadhurst, Sussex.

A FIRST OF DOUBLE NORWICH

Dear Sir,—The composition of 5,008 Double Norwich rung at Bures, Suffolk, on August 28th, and conducted by Mr. Donald L. Mills, has not before been rung. I should like to thank Mr. Mills for taking such interest in one of my compositions.—Yours sincerely,

JAMES TOPP.

Frome, Somerset.

LETTERS—Continued

BOLSOVER CHURCH'S RECORD

Dear Sir,—The recent article on peal ringing in Derbyshire by the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead obviously created a good deal of local interest, and if it served no other purpose it has at least prompted several tower secretaries to verify their books and there is no doubt that more careful attention will be paid to future records of peals. The reference to the number of peals rung at Bolsover agrees in every detail with the tower peal book, and since reading the article the writer has spent some time compiling an analysis of the methods and conductors. Details of the methods reveal the following points which may be of general interest:—

(1) The following methods were rung to peals for the first time at Bolsover: Peterborough Surprise, Pudsey Surprise, Norfolk Surprise.

(2) Eighty of the 201 peals have been rung in Surprise Major methods.

(3) The popularity of Double Norwich Court Bob Major is indicated by the fact that 49 of the peals have been rung to this method.

(4) It has often been said that Bolsover bells will not ring to Triples and it must be almost unique for a tower not to have recorded a single peal of Grandsire Triples. Only two peals of Stedman Triples figure in the records, one of these being specially arranged for a visit by the famous Rev. F. E. Robinson.

(5) Those who knew Mr. John Flint would readily agree that it was never his wish to monopolise the conducting of peals at Bolsover, but it was mainly due to his influence and outstanding ability that such a variety was rung, and the records show that he called 103 of the peals. His maxim that where there are eight bells all should be rung in the method created a tradition which accounts for the fact that Triples methods do not figure in the Bolsover repertoire. The next highest totals for conductors are W. Keeble with 18 and S. Thomas with 13.

It is unfortunate that the early records do not show the names of the individual ringers who took part in the peals at Bolsover, but sufficient information is available to confirm the remarkable standard achieved in past years and which the present generation is striving to uphold.

A Belfry Romance at St. Ambrose, Bristol

Two members of St. Ambrose Guild of Ringers, Bristol, Mr. John F. Pedler and Miss R. Ann Clarke, were married at St. Ambrose Church on September 25th by the Vicar (the Rev. Michael Hocking) assisted by the Rev. Richard Easton. The service was fully choral.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white figured brocade, with a headdress of lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Jill Clarke, and Miss Jean Thompson were the bridesmaids. Dr. Alan Pedler was best man to his brother. The honeymoon was spent at Torquay.

AUGUST 4th, 1914

Dear Sir,—Re the 'Memoirs of Forty Years Ago,' on reading the account on page 620 of 'The Ringing World,' the following episode was brought to my mind:—

A peal attempt for Stedman Caters had been arranged to take place at Wimborne Minster on August 4th, 1914, by such well-known ringers as the late Messrs. George Williams (then at his best), William W. Gifford (my Ringing Master), Leonard Harris and others whose names slip my memory, including your humble servant, the novice of the party. I recall cycling from Salisbury to Wimborne, about 28 miles, against a headwind, and on arrival I learned that the priest-in-charge had given permission to make the attempt, but whilst waiting for the belated arrival of the tenth member, the churchwarden had contacted his priest, and advised him that to allow the bells to be rung on such an occasion would not be in the best of taste and probably rouse the parishioners' feelings against it, and on being approached we all wholeheartedly agreed to abandon the attempt. Then, after refreshments, we all departed by various ways and means from what would have been by first attempt and, up to date, my last, for Stedman Caters. I can only add that none of us regretted the decision.—Yours faithfully,

F. PRECEY.

COOKHAM BELFRY

Dear Sir,—Having been taught to ring in Cookham tower by John Fowler some few years ago, I have probably carried the same salient thoughts on its ringing chamber as have its many visitors. They are as follows:—

(1) The spacious, comfortably furnished and beautifully cared for ringing chamber.
(2) The very long draught of rope probably causing difficulty in bell control to the less experienced.
(3) The uncomfortable loudness of the bells, being hung just above the only floor, necessitating a deep breath being taken by the conductor before bellowing forth 'calls.'

On a very recent visit to my home tower I found that a false ceiling had been built, it giving a 14ft. draught of rope and bell control made very much easier. The bells can now be heard comfortably, and 'calls' need only be uttered in a normal speaking voice. It has also given a more cosy effect to the ringing chamber.

The supporting beams for the ceiling were erected by a local building firm, otherwise the whole of the work has been carried out by John Fowler and his ringers.

In my opinion, a rather necessary alteration has been excellently executed. Well done, Cookham! You have a ringing chamber of which you can be justly proud.—Yours, etc.,

P. TOCOCK.

Retford Grammar School

On October 1st King Edward VI. Grammar School, Retford, held their annual Founder's Day service at East Retford Church. For the first time in the history of the school the bells were rung before the service by members of the school—two members of the staff and seven boys.

The ringing began and ended with rounds on eight bells, and considering that some boys had only been learning a few months and the bells were strange to all except one boy, the striking was fairly accurate. Two plain courses of Bob Minor were also rung, but the striking was poor.

Next year it is hoped that a more ambitious ringing programme may be attempted and that the Exercise will gain more recruits from the school.

Mr. D. McNeil, a master of the school and captain of the ringers at West Retford, was in charge.

DEDICATION

ACOMB, YORK

Six bells which had been transferred from the disused St. Mary's Church, Bishophill Senior, York, were dedicated in Acomb Parish Church, York, on the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels by the Suffragan Bishop of Selby (the Rt. Rev. C. F. Knyvett).

The dedication was preceded by Evensong conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. D. Oxby Parker (Rural Dean of York), and the lessons were read by the curate (the Rev. J. T. Jackson) and the Vicar of St. Mary's, Bishophill Junior (the Rev. J. E. Foster).

During the singing of the hymn 'Ye holy angels bright' the Bishop, preceded by the crucifer, choristers, bellringers, bell-founders' representatives, clergy and churchwardens, walked in procession to the base of the tower. Then followed the usual dedicatory prayers and as the procession moved slowly back to the chancel the bells were rung in rounds, after which the ringers' hymn 'Unchanging God, who livest' was sung.

In his address the Bishop referred to the words of St. Luke, 'Take heed, therefore, what ye hear,' and said that on an occasion like the present he would prefer to read 'Take heed, therefore, how ye hear.' Those who heard and understood the message of church bells had a heavy responsibility if they failed to answer their call. The bells would bring to mind the most important things in life—the call to leave false ideals and worship God, and the reminder that in the domestic occasions of marriage and death, family life must be rooted and grounded in a belief in God.

The opening ringers, all members of the York Minster Society, were F. Atkinson, H. Forden, D. Forth, D. Holland, S. H. Steel and H. Walker. The contractors (Messrs John Taylor and Co.) were represented by Mr. J. P. Fidler.

The six bells were all cast in 1770 by Pack and Chapman. They have been cleaned, retuned and rehung in a two-tiered cast iron and steel frame. The tenor weighs 10 cwt. 3 qr. 26 lb. The oldest of the three original bells which formerly hung in the tower, and which is dated 1633 and inscribed 'Jesus be our speed,' has been rehung with new fittings and is to be used as a weekday service bell

The tower at Acomb is only small—the interior measurement is ten feet square—and is by no means an ideal one to hold a ring of bells. It only rises to the height of the nave roof and is surmounted by a spire. The original scheme was to bring the ropes down to ground level but as the tower forms the main entrance to the church this could not be agreed. Sufficient space has been made to form a ringing floor at gallery level. Messrs. Taylor are to be congratulated on making a good job of 'getting a quart into a pint pot.'

The most noteworthy feature of the scheme is that bells long silent in a disused church are now ringing in a populous parish which is very much alive.

Chester Diocesan Guild

The visit of the Crewe Branch to Nantwich on October 2nd proved to be a popular meeting with 52 ringers attending, including visitors from Bristol, Coventry and Lincoln. The Parochial Church Council hospitably entertained the company after the service conducted by the Rector, (the Rev. E. M. B. Southwell). New members elected were Miss Gillian Shrigley jun. (Wistaston), Mrs. W. F. Stenson (Crewe), honorary, and Mr. R. A. Morton, ringing member.

Mr. Ivor Nicholls supervised the ringing and there were touches on handbells. To the delight of the company Mr. H. O. Baker and his seven-year-old daughter Anthea rang a plain course of Bob Doubles, Anthea ringing 1-2 and her father 3-4-5-6.

OBITUARY

MR. VICTOR J. F. BENNETT

Mr. Victor J. F. Bennett died on Thursday, September 23rd, aged 62, at the Radcliffe Infirmary, after only four days' illness.

He learnt to ring at St. Giles' Church, Oxford, on leaving the choir at about the age of 14. He had been foreman of the tower since 1923 and was one of the mainstays of the Oxford Society for many years. He held office in the Society almost continuously from 1922 and he was treasurer at the time of his death.

He was not a prolific peal ringer, but, being a good musician, he most enjoyed his ringing when the striking was perfect. He rang in the 12,663 of Stedman Cinques at Christ Church, Oxford, and the 25 Spliced Surprise Major peals. He was very popular and had many friends both inside and outside the Exercise. He leaves a widow and one son.

The bells of St. Giles' Church were rung half-muffled for the funeral service on September 28th by the following: C. Coles (St. Ebbe's Church) 1, P. Walker (St. Giles') 2, H. Gearing (St. Giles') 3, W. H. B. Wilkins (St. Ebbe's) 4, D. H. Niblett (Master of the Oxford University Society) 5, E. A. White (Appleton) 6, F. Sharpe (Deputy Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild) 7, G. H. Webb (St. Martin and All Saints' and Steward of the Oxford Society) 8. As the procession left the church the tenor bell was tolled by E. C. Hughes (St. Giles'). The interment was at Headington Cemetery. An attempt for a peal on these bells the same evening came to grief after one hour and 35 minutes.

An excellent peal of Stedman Cinques was rung at Christ Church, Oxford, on September 27th, in 3 hours and 48 minutes with the bells half-muffled.

Dr. J. E. Spice writes: I was grieved to read of the death, at a comparatively early age, of Vic Bennett. I am sure that to all members of the Oxford University Society (birds of passage in Oxford ringing) he was the man most to be remembered out of the Oxford Society. University societies depend for their progress on the goodwill of the local ringers, and the Oxford University Society has always had this goodwill: from no one, perhaps, have they had it more than from Vic. His passing will leave a gap in Oxford ringing which may long be unfilled.

I always felt that he was a link with the past—with the Oxford of J. W. Washbrook and F. E. Robinson, though whether he ever rang with these worthies I cannot remember. Certainly no one else had such a keen sense of the great traditions of Oxford ringing. He was always ready to welcome those from 'The University,' whether to Christ Church, to St. Giles' or on one of the 'special' ringing days, and he was always glad to greet past members of the Oxford University Society on their periodical visits to Oxford.

I last saw him in February this year, when I was privileged to help record Christ Church bells for a television programme, and he seemed the same as ever. I have many memories of him—of a tense figure on the treble at Christ Church, intent on a perfect 'rise' ('. . . and finally by His mercy obtain everlasting life, Amen. Treble's going, she's gone'): of Vic on his autocycle, chugging up St. Aldate's from Christ Church on a Sunday morning, or from St. Giles' down to St. Barnabas': of Vic ringing the large bell at Phil and Jim: of Vic telling stories of Oxford ringers of the past, with a pint of beer at his right hand: and of Vic carrying a candle round St. Barnabas' in procession, on the Feast of the Purification.

Many more will write their memories of a man one felt the better for having known. You, sir, may care to publish this small tribute from one who was proud to know Vic Bennett. May he rest in peace.

ST. STEPHEN'S, EALING

Retirement of Preb. Harland

The ringers have lost a great friend and supporter in the recent retirement of Prebendary H. C. Harland, M.A., Vicar 1941-1954, and Rural Dean 1947–1954, who has recently been inducted to the living of Monken Hadley, where as Rector, in his own words, he hopes to find the scope of work more manageable and the pressure less insistant. Prebendary Harland, in spite of his many duties, often found time to come into the ringing chamber on a Sunday morning and conduct an opening Office; and he always made a point of coming up and welcoming any visiting bands, to whom he always gave permission to ring. A complimentary peal to him is recorded elsewhere.

A farewell social and presentation to Prebendary and Mrs. Harland was recently held at St. Stephen's Hall and was attended by about 250 people. Prebendary and Mrs. Harland received the guests and there then followed refreshments and music and the presentations. A cheque for over £280 was presented to Prebendary Harland by Mr. A. F. Gunning, Vicar's warden, together with other gifts, and Mrs. Harland received several useful gifts. On behalf of the ringers Mr. Cockey presented Prebendary Harland with a signed photograph of the very handsome peal board commemorating the Coronation, and bearing his name, a record of which he was very proud, and to Mrs. Harland a very fine bouquet was presented by the Misses Stephanie Bedborough and June Hunt, described by Mr. Cockey as two of the prettiest girl ringers in the Diocese!

Mr. Cockey, in making the presentation, remarked that in nearly 50 years of ringing he had come in contact with many incumbents, but he could truthfully say that their late Vicar surpassed them all in kindliness, tolerance and good humour, and the ringers deeply appreciated the manner in which both the Vicar and also Mrs. Harland had dealt with complaints, and the generous support which they had always received.

On his last Sunday morning the Vicar visited the ringing chamber and, after prayers, appealed to the young ringers to hold together in the work they are doing for the Church, and to back up those who are giving of their time to help them along.

ST. LAWRENCE JEWRY HAS A GUILD VICAR

An interesting service was held at St. Mary Woolnoth, E.C., on October 9th, when the Rev. John Francis Darrell Trimingham was licensed by the Archdeacon of London as the first Guild Vicar of St. Lawrence Jewry, E.C.

St. Lawrence Jewry, although the church of the Corporation by usage for about 300 years, is now the official church of the Corporation of London by Act of Parliament. The advowson had been held for about 80 years by Balliol College, Oxford, and for about 200 years it has been held jointly with the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's through the union of another parish. Under the new Act St. Lawrence Jewry becomes not only the official Corporation church but a Guild church.

Being the Corporation church a number of city bodies, including several livery companies, were represented and the Ancient Society of College Youths was represented by the Master, Mr. John Chilcott. One of the churchwardens of this church is Mr. A. A. Hughes, J.P.

POYNTON, CHESHIRE.—On Sept. 18th, 1,263 Plain Bob Minor: A. Snape 1, Miss M. Hall 2, R. Boardman 3, I. Jenkins 4, S. Sage 5, S. Hough, jun. (cond.) 6. In celebration of the wedding of Edward Houldsworth, of Poynton, to Sheila Cardin, of Sale, Cheshire.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2272 Vol. L. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

KEEPING THE BALANCE

EVERY Editor has his problems, but the editorship of this journal entails many that are not encountered in the ordinary run of provincial journalism. 'The Ringing World' is a specialist paper catering exclusively for a relatively small section of the public interested in ringing bells. Apart from its specialist responsibilities, it is the medium for knitting together ringers into one big family. In no other walk of life is there so much friendliness and personal interest in each other as in ringing. It is one of the things of which we are very proud.

But this friendliness in no sense dims our faculties for criticism, and throughout the Exercise there have been trenchant critics accustomed to receiving and giving verbal blows. There was a time when such utterances were given with venom, and bad blood did prevail in some quarters. This has largely ceased; except in an occasional isolated case there is a good-humoured spirit behind the criticism, a feeling that although we big to differ we can still be friends. To the outsider, not knowing the temperament of ringers, some of the letters received can well be construed as being in bad taste. An editorial blue pencil is at times exercised severely in an endeavour to keep within the bounds of modern convention.

At times there have been protests, and one correspondent blamed the Editorial Committee for exercising this censure. In this respect the Editorial Committee is 'not guilty.' Despite the resolution passed at Newcastle, the censorship is by the Editor. It is outside the bounds of practicability to submit letters in turn to Stoke-on-Trent, Somerset, Leicester, London, Sussex and elsewhere to the individual members of the committee. Complain to the committee if you feel you are unfairly treated by the Editor, but don't blame it individually.

One of the most difficult things is to keep the true balance in the sixteen pages allotted to us. Complaints are frequently made that there is nothing in 'The Ringing World' for the beginner. The answer is that we are not a text book. The beginner is catered for by many inexpensive text books. Our responsibility is to provide something new like the series 'On Conducting,' when the Exercise, through taking advantage of the type being already set for this journal, can obtain a useful treatise for one shilling.

In an endeavour to create space for articles we have in stock, reports of various bodies and outings have been curtailed. News for 'The Ringing World' fluctuates enormously. For example, this week the Editor received over 80 quarter peals with accommodation allotted for 48. Some naturally will have to be held over. But in the Editor's mind quarter peals are of value and not merely 'fill-up' space. They are invariably local and not only indicate progress but frequently tell of how ringers are meeting their Sunday obligations. To those who contribute to this page we would implore them to write each quarter peal not rung in the same tower on a separate sheet of paper and on one side only. Time is also saved if the style as printed is followed, otherwise there is additional work for the Editor.

It is to our regret that we have been unable to publish all the compositions and new methods we have received. There is no immediate prospect of the situation easing; to those who are disappointed we proffer our apologies. Some Guild reports make a very valuable contribution to ringing by their peal publications.

Among the features we hope to present at an early date is a comic opera, 'The Beast and the Bell(e) or The Tyrant of the Tower,' by S. A. Hill and Arthur Sullivan. Probably the authors had the Editor in mind when they wrote:—

Tune: 'If you're anxious for to shine.'

When you're anxious to advance you must lead them all a dance
With your ringing knowledge rare.
You must know your Jasper Snowdon and be sure of all Troyte's lowdown,
Strip the Central Council bare.

You must know your early history and have a mental list of the Forefathers of our intellectual craft;
Be able to review all methods old and new
However weird or daft.

And everyone you meet will gape as you repeat
How so-and-so did this and that at such and such a time.
Astonishing perhaps, but of irrelevance sublime.

And then if you are pally with Picasso, Klee and Dali
It will prove of priceless worth,
For it's easy then to sham a method diagram
Of surrealistic birth.

If you're able to devise a cubist York Surprise
Everybody will be eloquent in praise,
And nothing could be finer than a Double Court Bob Minor
In a purely abstract phase.

And everyone will stare at those lines of beauty rare;
And even though its bound to be away beyond them far,
Your skill they'll never doubt and so loud your praises shout
That your progress none can mar.

Lastly, the Editor would point out that interest in the journal's pages depends mainly on its contributors. Do not hesitate to write; some of the best contributions have come from unexpected quarters. Many an idea is culled from an unpublished contribution. To all who help in this journal, the correspondents who work for new subscribers, we say, 'Thank you.'

GILLETT
AND
LIMITED

No matter in which corner of the country you happen to be, as likely as not you will come across Gillett & Johnston bells or tower clocks. Gillett & Johnston craftsmanship is embodied in an all-embracing service — as much in the preservation and restoration of old rings of antiquarian interest as in the installation of new.

ST. ANDREW'S, KINGSBURY

St. Andrew's (Kingsbury) Guild and St. Mary's Guild had their second joint outing this year on October 2nd when 33 members and friends went by coach to Bexhill. After an hour's ringing, St. Nicholas', Brighton, was visited. The previous outing was on May 8th, when ringing took place at Chalfont St. Peters, Chalfont St. Giles and Penn.

OLD WHITTINGTON, CHESTERFIELD

The ringers of St. Bartholomew's with their wives and friends had their first half-day outing on September 18th. The party numbered 26 and included two long-standing friends, Mr. F. Adams (Staveley) and Mr. W. Allwood (Chesterfield), the latter being the coach and trainer of the raw ringers of 1925, when the bells were made into five. Later, in 1946, a sixth was added.

At both Royston and Felkirk the ringers were most cordially received and at Felkirk it gave great pleasure to meet Messrs. D. Smith and H. Chant. G. J. N.

PRESTON ST. MARY'S, SUFFOLK

St. Mary's ringers and friends held their harvest-tide half-day outing on October 2nd. At the first stop, Wilton, the party were met by the Vicar (the Rev. Dennis Page) and Miss D. Reeve. A short service and prayers were followed by some excellent ringing. The next halt was the flint-knapping village of Brandon, where more satisfying striking was carried out, followed by a fine tea at the Woodlynn Cafe.

At Mundford the party received a special welcome from a real jovial Vicar.

The party's handbell band, by kind invitation, had the honour of entertaining the Thetford Football Supporters' Club to some musical items on the handbells. Mr. Fred Day was M.C. and the 'live wire' of the outing. S. H. S.

OUTINGS

BICESTER DEANERY

This District outing on September 25th included representatives from Brill (the Vicar and six members), Piddington, Bicester, Launton, Stratton Audley and Steeple Claydon. Towers visited were Husborne Crawley, Ampthill, Sandy and Henlow. A ringers' tea was enjoyed at the Granada Cinema Cafe, Bedford.

Methods rung during the day were Grandsire, Plain Bob and Stedman and rounds for beginners.

LAVENHAM, SUFFOLK

On Saturday, October 9th, Lavenham ringers, accompanied by their wives and friends, held their autumn half-day outing, visiting Woodbridge, Hollesley and Ufford. Tea was taken at Woodbridge with refreshments and handbell ringing at Hintlesham. Thanks were extended to Messrs. C. Fisher and S. Woodard, also to P. C. Pearce and the various incumbents.

Methods rung included Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain, Double Norwich and Kent Major, Bourne and Netherseale Minor.

S. H. S.

PRESTBURY

To enable two members of the band to complete their honeymoon, the second half-day outing of Prestbury, Glos, ringers was delayed until October 9th. Towers visited were Hardwicke, Slimbridge, Cromhall (where the local band of ladies, some with pretty aprons decorated with little bells, had prepared an excellent meat tea), Wickwar and Wotton-under-Edge (the only eight, where some of the Cromhall ladies joined the party). Ringing ranged from rounds to Kent Treble Bob.

NAILSEA, SOMERSET

Very bright periods alternated with very heavy showers on Saturday, September 11th, when the Nailsea ringers and friends from Backwell, Wraxall, Long Ashton and Clutton went on their 'official' annual outing.

The first tower visited was Tytherington (12 cwt.), a five which went exceptionally well. Everyone commented on the enormous sheet of glass, covering one whole wall, which separated the ringing chamber from the church, and also the one-handed clock.

Horsley (6, 14½ cwt.) was our next tower, where we were met by the Vicar and a local ringer, who said that the bells were seldom rung. We did not find this surprising! The third and tenor seemed to be the worst offenders. In spite of the bells, however, we did manage a reasonable course of Bob Minor and the fall would have been 'passable' had the fourth not lost its clapper when we tried to chime Queens on the bottom!

At Avening (6, 12¼ cwt.) we had tea before ringing. In contrast to Horsley there is a particularly short draught and the bells go well.

The ringing chamber at Minchinhampton (6, 13 cwt.) was impressive, with clean white walls and cream gloss paintwork. Two of the local ringers rang a course of Cambridge with us.

A warm welcome was given by the Vicar and his wife, Mr. Barnett (tower Captain) and his brother, at Randwick. Stonehouse (17 cwt.), the last tower of the day, proved to be a very fine, heavy six. M. F.

WANLIP

Thirteen ringers and friends of Wanlip, Leics, had an outing on October 9th. Ringing took place at Barkby, Ashby Folville, Great Dalby, Twyford and Somerby, where the local captain and his sister joined in ringing Kent Treble Bob, Stedman and Plain Bob.

LATE NEWS

We regret to report the sudden death on October 15th of the Rev. F. Stuart, Vicar of Bledlow. An enthusiastic ringer, he was vice-chairman of the South Oxon and Mid. Bucks Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild.

BELFRY GOSSIP

A highly successful peal week was organised by Birmingham ringers for the visit of Messrs. E. Jenkins and Jack L. Millhouse. The seven peals scored included two of Cambridge Surprise Maximus and the first peal of Wombourn Surprise Major.

Mr. Nolan Golden has now 'circled' Hethersett tower to a peal 12 times.

Mr. Cyril C. Deem informs us that the peal of Minor at Shobrooke, Devon, on September 17th was the first on the bells.

Worcester Cathedral bells will be available for ringing at the annual dinner to-morrow from 3 to 5 p.m.

Miss Pamela Butcher is the new 'Ringing World' representative for the Maidstone District of the Kent County Association.

Prestbury, Glos, ringers find two half-day outings more popular than a full day's. The average cost of six of these is 8s. 6d., including tea, and is usually financed by a weekly contribution of sixpence.

Information reached 'The Ringing World' last weekend that there are two groups of ringers interested in the prospect of the extent of Major. One group has been discussing possibilities for upwards of two years and collecting names of those prepared to make the attempt.

To those interested in Winchester Surprise, Mr. C. H. Kippin writes: 'There was no suggestion of anonymity. It was "discovered" when the work was proceeding on extension for the Methods Committee report. It did not seem original enough to claim. A good many methods were discovered during the experiments, but I should hate to think they were "composed."'

A correspondent suggests that Mr. Frank Matthews' observation at the Cumberlands' dinner that Mr. John Chilcott is the youngest master in the history of the College Youths is incorrect. He states that he had always understood that Samuel E. Joyce, the Master in 1886, was 19 years of age when elected, and that this distinction belongs to him.

In connection with the Ladies' Guild meeting at St. Matthew's, Bethnal Green, on October 30th, will members please bring their own food.

Congratulations to Phillip Morgan, of Ross-on-Rye, who has not yet reached his 15th birthday and rang in his 150th tower on October 9th, when he visited Abergavenny.

Husband and wife ring 100 peals in a year together. Such a possibility is optimistically anticipated by many Leicester ringers as a 1954 record.

A postcard bearing a Birmingham postmark, but no address of the sender, gives details of a quarter peal of Plain Bob Minor rung on October 3rd. Will the sender please state where it was rung.

Miss J. Powell, of Bedwellty, Glam., and Mr. B. Stirland, of Fareham, Hants, were elected members of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths at the meeting at Croydon on September 18th. Miss P. Steere was thanked for organising the meeting.

Mr. Arthur V. Pearson, who completed his first 500 peals on October 1st, writes: 'I have to blame Charles J. Sedgley and Mr. and Mrs. Pipe for starting this, and Mr. George E. Fearn for the rest.' He has rung Surprise Major peals in 55 different methods.

POPULARITY OF GOLDSMITH COMMEMORATION DINNER

DESPITE RECORD ATTENDANCE MANY DISAPPOINTMENTS

THE Guildford Diocesan Guild annual dinner commemorating the name of John S. Goldsmith will now rank as one of the most popular functions in the ringers' calendar. This year applications far exceeded the increased accommodation to 171, and the organisers, Messrs. C. Denyer, W. Viggers and R. Mills, had regretfully to refuse about 30 applications for last Saturday's function at the Lion Hotel, Guildford.

The secret of the success of these dinners is the limitation of speeches to five minutes, and the brightness of the entertainment with its topical verse. The Lord Bishop of Guildford, who presided, was accompanied by Miss Montgomery-Campbell, and was supported by the Master, Mr. A. E. Harman, who again made himself responsible for the floral decorations, and Mrs. Harman. The Rev. and Mrs. A. L. E. Hoskyns-Abrahall also attended.

Mr. P. Eldridge, of Winchester, submitted the toast of 'The memory of John S. Goldsmith and the continued prosperity of the Guildford Diocesan Guild.' He said when he was a choirboy he was persuaded or roped in to join the bellringers. After some time he became sufficiently proficient to attend district meetings. There he heard of a man who was the general secretary of the Guild and the editor of 'The Ringing World'—in fact, one of the ringing aristocracy. It was natural that he went as a young ringer in fear and trepidation of such a man, but when he met John Goldsmith his charm of manner and approachability soon dispelled the awe he held of him He was never too busy to explain the various methods. Another side of his character was the loving care with which he looked after his wife during her long illness. 'May his memory be for ever green.'

'A FRIENDLY GUILD'

As to the future of the Guild he was told that the applications for dinner tickets that night far exceeded the supply and the membership showed a steady increase over the past year. That showed that the Guild was in quite a healthy state. From the beginning of the Guild there had always been a friendly atmosphere. It was apparent at the district meetings, and it was very apparent that evening. He would say to them, 'Cultivate this friendly atmosphere, be patient with your learners and encourage them in every way, so that they will become enthusiastic members.' By that means they would have a healthy and happy Guild.

Major E. J. Bragg acknowledged the toast.

Mr. J. Worrall, in submitting 'The Church and the Ringing Exercise,' said this was frequently two separate toasts at ringing functions such as that, but it was substantially one toast, since without the Church there would be no ringing. 'Ringing is primarily a service to God, but without the means to better our standards by ringing meetings, practices and peals, this service will not be of a very high order. In this respect we should always remember that ringing takes place in a church, not in a mere tower.

'Great clergy ringers, such as the well-known exponents of many years ago, are few and far between to-day. I do not attribute this to a lack of interest on the part of the clergy, but to a lack of time. Voltaire, the famous French writer, in his "English Letters," said: "The ideal of the Church of England is to install one gentleman in each parish." Nowadays, with the shortage of men in the Ministry and the consequent increase of work due to one priest having two or more parishes to care for, time is far more limited for pursuits such as bellringing.

'Our Guild has not a great number of clergy ringers, but I think I can truly say that the links between our incumbents and their ringers are very close and cordial. They take a very keen interest in the work of the Guild, and give proof of this by the warm welcome we receive at our meetings throughout the Diocese.

'The purpose of ringing Guilds such as ours is to further the art of change ringing and to help maintain bands for service ringing in churches. One of the original aims was that of belfry reform. Drunkenness was a common thing in the latter part of the 19th century and the early part of the present one. One of the usual articles of furniture in any belfry was a jug of beer, and a certain visitor to one church noted this with disapproval. After commending the ringers on their striking, he said that he was very shocked to see the beer in the belfry. "Why don't you keep it downstairs?" he asked. "Ah! you don't know our Vicar," was the ringer's reply.

PRESIDENCY OF CENTRAL COUNCIL

'We, as ringers, are fortunate in having several clergymen on the Central Council of Church Bellringers. It is due to their presence and timely contributions that a lot of ill-feeling is avoided and many wise decisions reached. The president of the Council has assured us that he will not stand for re-election again. What a wonderful thing it would be for ringing if a clergyman were chosen as his successor. We have a very worthy candidate in a certain South of England priest, a first class ringer and one who has devoted much of his spare time to the work of the Council. It is rather soon to put forward nominations for a new president, but it is a matter which must be given serious thought.'

Lastly, he would like to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Pulling on their golden wedding. 'I am sure I am voicing the wishes of the whole Guild when I say best wishes for the next 10 years.'

The Rev. H. M. Insley, Rector of Ash, in reply, said the bells did remind people that the Church did exist. Speaking for his own band, they were not only ringers, but they were good members of the congregation. Not only did they call other people to church, but they came themselves. It was not uncommon at festivals to see the ringers come to make their Corporate Communion. What he said of his own parish he was sure he was voicing the opinion of the whole Diocese in saying that the ringers not only rang the bells, but were good members of the congregation.

The toast of 'Ladies and Visitors' was honoured on the call of Mr. S. Russell, who said ladies not only helped in ringing, but many of their towers now had table cloths, vases with flowers and not so much dust on the lamp shades. With the help of the ladies they were now able to ring better and even their friends at Birmingham relied on ladies to get their quota of peals.

They welcomed the clergy present. They helped them not only by allowing them the use of the bells, but dealt with the grumbles of those people who did not like bells. They were also indebted to churchwardens for providing them with new ropes and repairing the bells. When dealing with repairs to bells he wished the churchwardens would consult with the Guild or ringers. There was an injunction in the Bible about patching an old garment with new cloth. Too frequently they found new bells being put in old frames.

Miss Oliver, who replied, said when her grandfather was a young man living in the wilds of a Devonshire village, he had three great interests—music, bells and cider. The Rector of his parish offered him the job of church organist, and was very pleased with him until he heard about the other two interests. The cider did not matter very much, but the ringing. . . ! The Rector made it quite plain that the Church couldn't possibly have a bellringer as an organist.

'Those bad old times are gone. Probably ringers are not quite so bad as they have been painted, at least not so very much worse than the rest of the people of that age. But I like to think that the advent of women in ringing circles has helped a little in bringing the art to gentler days and courtlier ways.'

Mr. P. Bevan, churchwarden at St. Michael's, Aldershot, also replied, and said it was an awful thought that many new churches would never have towers and bells.

Farnham District Glee Singers were in evidence with their topical verse, in which tributes were paid to Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Pulling and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hazelden on their golden wedding anniversaries. Handbell melodies were given by Cobham ringers, and Harold Cole's Irish songs were popular. Eileen and John Daykin sang duets and Major E. J. Bragg gave a monologue.

The annual commemoration service was held previous to the dinner in the Crypt Chapel of the New Cathedral and was conducted by the Rev. W. F. Doe. Handbells were rung by Messrs. C. A. Hopper 1—2, Tom Page 3—4, F. A. Munday 5—6, T. M. White 7—8.

THE LADIES' GUILD

Continued Progress in South Wales

The quarterly meeting of the South Wales District was held at Abergavenny on October 9th. Favoured with a sunny autumn day, some 50 ringers attended and enjoyed ringing on this glorious ten.

The service was conducted by the Vicar, Canon Davies. A bounteous tea was provided in the new Church Room by Miss Temlett, Mrs. Temlett and other Abergavenny ringers. Mr. R. E. Coles voiced the sincere thanks and appreciation of the company.

The vice-president, Miss Dilys Hulbert, thanked the Canon for his hearty welcome and kind permission to use the bells. The secretary thanked the gentlemen for their 'supporting presence.'

At the business meeting seven new members were elected, bringing the total District membership to 82, viz., Mrs. R. E. R. Smith (Llanfrechfa), the Misses W. Prince, Z. Lane, N. Hobbs (Usk), Miss M. Bridges (Whitchurch), Miss Pat Neil (Chepstow) and Miss A. Wainwright (St. Woolos').

St. Woolos' Cathedral, Newport, was chosen for the annual District meeting in January.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Tonbridge District

The annual meeting of the Tonbridge District took place at Tonbridge on October 2nd. The service was conducted by the Vicar (Canon Russell B. White) and he also took the chair for the business meeting.

In her report, the secretary (Miss D. Colgate) stated that the year had been one of the most successful the District had enjoyed for a long time, the average attendance at each meeting having risen to 42. From the financial point of view, too, the District had done well, having finished the year with a balance in hand of just over £30.

The officers—secretary, two District representatives and Ringing Master— were re-elected and thanked for their services during the past twelve months.

As usual at an annual meeting the agenda was a fairly long one but under the Vicar's guiding hand there was little wandering from the point. The programme for next year was agreed very quickly, as this is worked on a rota system so that all towers in the District are visited in turn.

A vote of thanks was passed to all who had assisted at the meeting, and particularly to Mr. R. Wood, who made the arrangements.

Although the attendance was not so large as had been hoped, it was a very representative gathering and included Mr. H. Markwell, of Tunbridge Wells, and Mr. I. Saunders, of East Peckham, who both have been members of the Association for over 50 years.

NORTH STAFFS ASSOCIATION

Newcastle-under-Lyme Bells 'Go' Better

The first meeting of the North Staffordshire Association at Newcastle-under-Lyme since the restoration of the bells took place on October 2nd. Ringers from the Association were joined by visitors from other Districts, although the total attendance was not what might have been expected on this occasion.

The bells were kept going until 4.45, when the Rector conducted a fully choral service. Ringing continued after tea and those taking part expressed their appreciation of the 'go' of the bells since they were rehung at a lower level in the tower by Gillett and Johnston, Ltd., of Croydon.

200 PEALS BY THE BURCHNALL TWINS

The Misses K. and G. Burchnall commenced ringing at Sutton-on-Trent in 1924 and received much of their early tuition from the late Mr. Herbert Haigh.

Their record is remarkable as they have never rung a peal apart. Three of their peals were conducted by Miss Grace and one by Miss Katherine. The peals have been rung in 44 different towers. Their record of towers is 285.

LIST OF PEALS

Royal.—Plain Bob 1.

Caters.—Stedman 1, Grandsire 2.

Doubles.—Stedman 3, one or more methods 6.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

Newbury Branch

The annual meeting was held in Newbury on October 9th. Ringing commenced at 2.30 p.m. and it was encouraging to see that of the 50 who had arrived by service time 47 were Branch members.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. James, assisted by the Deputy Master of the Oxford Guild, Mr. F. Sharpe. Mr. Sellick was at the organ. Tea was served in the Parish Room by Mrs. Curtis and helpers.

Before the meeting opened, the Deputy Master was given a warm welcome by the chairman, the Rev. Mr. Woodfield, who was re-elected for the coming year. The Branch Ringing Master and deputy chairman, Mr. R. Crook, said he would not seek re-election; Mr. H. Reed was elected in his place. Mrs. A. D. Cooper is to carry on as secretary, and Messrs. F. Tuffley, M. Rosier and R. Crook are to serve on the general committee. J. C.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

North Dorset Branch

Mr. A. F. Wren was elected a life ringing member at the meeting of the North Dorset Branch at Buckhorn Weston on September 18th.

A silent tribute was paid to the late Mr. Damen, who rendered faithful service as a ringer at Shroton and was regular in his attendance at branch meetings. Messrs. A. E. Cox, A. Cox, G. R. Cox, B. Cox, C. Bricksey and H. Bricksey were elected ringing members.

Thanks were expressed to the Rector (the Rev. F. H. Nichol-Griffiths) for officiating at the service, and to Mr. Fea and the ladies who served the tea. The ringing was under the direction of Mr. W. C. Shute (Ringing Master).

N.S.T.G. GET BUSY

Flying the flag of the N.S.T.G., four Somerset ringers arrived at mindnight on September 24th at the Railway Hotel, Harlow, to join others from Leicester, Exmouth and Crewe for a few hours' sleep before embarking on an extensive tower grab on the Essex-Hertfordshire border. The party was completed at Nazeing, the first tower on the Saturday morning, by Miss Audrey Bailey, the organiser, P. N. B. and other friends.

The old five at Manuden was the exception to the good-going rings sampled and here the Rector said 'There are two sackfuls of twigs in the bell chamber, but it won't matter, will it?' A wonderful supper was provided at Harlow on Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Bailey. Some 15 towers were visited.

ANOTHER COLUMN OF BELFRY GOSSIP

Maidstone Grammar School Society is flying high. At its first meeting it decided to explore the possibility of issuing a quarterly magazine!

Recently, at his father's induction service at Great Paxton, Hunts, which is now held in plurality with St. Neots, Mr. G. Galley rang his first 720 changes of Bob Doubles.

We have had an encouraging report of the Pentre, Rhondda, tower. At a recent practice there were 22 learners present. If this continues maybe a band will be formed of the same calibre as that which existed in Pentre in the '20s.

An attempt for a peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal at Reading on October 2nd came to an unexpected end one course from the finish owing to the sudden sickness of one of the band. With the exception of Mr. Rex, from Thatcham, the band were all resident in Reading.

The last hour of the peal at Chilvers Coton on October 5th was recorded. Afterwards, while the band was being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Beamish, they had the privilege of hearing the ringing as others heard them. The general opinion was that it was one of the best peals ever rung at Coton.

A party of half a dozen enthusiasts from Berkshire had an outing into the more remote parts of Berkshire and Wiltshire. Towers visited were Husborne Crawley, Ampthill, bourne, Pewsey, Cherton, Marden, Upavon and Enford. The day proved strenuous but enjoyable.

October 6th was the 60th anniversary of the first peal rung by a local band at Milverton, Somerset. These bells were made into an eight in 1893, and the peal, Grandsire Triples, was rung the following year. There were five Andrews in the band and Robert Scott was the conductor.

A recent advertisement issued by the Brewers' Society runs:—

'Dukes ring a bell for it,
Drill sergeants yell for it,
Good wholesome beer.'

Editor F. E. Dukes assures his readers of 'The Irish Bell News' that he has decided against a libel action.

In honour of the dedication of the new church of St. Michael and All Angels at Cross Heath to serve a new parish formed out of Wolstanton, a peal was rung at St. Margaret's, Wolstanton, Staffs. The dedication coincided with the 25th anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. S. Snell, Vicar of Wolstanton, and the Vicar's daughter was one of the ringers. She is probably the youngest girl to ring a peal in this tower, and perhaps in the North Staffordshire Association.

Two new trebles have been installed at Marsden Church, which will make the ring one of the finest tens in the North of England. The dedication will take place on October 24th at 2.30 p.m., when ringers are invited to be present. A ringers' day has been planned for November 20th. After the bells are lowered at 8 p.m. there will be old time and modern dancing and a pie supper.

The peal of Stedman Caters at St. Chad's Church, Shrewsbury, on October 2nd was the first on the present ring, cast by Taylors in 1914. There have been 12 bells here since 1798, when Thomas Mears provided the ring. Although The Union Society rang Grandsire Cinques and Bob Maximus, and several peals of Grandsire Caters have been rung during this century, this might well be the first of Stedman Caters to be rung in this tower, although Cinques are recorded on two occasions. Mr. W. A. Farmer would be glad of any information on this subject.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

RINGING FOR 20 HOURS

Sir,—I must confess that Mr. Critchley's letter came as a great surprise to me and also, I expect, to my old friends at Peterborough. If it had not been for the news in the national Press I should have taken it as gossip.

The point to my mind is that four bells at the Foundry could not be relieved and 20 hours is a long time, but on the other hand anyone in either of the last wars was very lucky if at some time he had not to go without proper sleep and meals for that time. In these days of vitamin tablets and a flask it is quite possible. Good luck! If Mr. Critchley can arrange a peal the whole Exercise will be interested.

Guildford. A. H. PULLING.

NEWSAGENT'S CANCELLATION COINCIDENCE

Dear Sir,—Referring to the paragraph in 'Belfry Gossip' ('Ringing World,' October 8th) regarding a certain ringer's cancellation of 'The Ringing World' through his newsagent and its rather humorous result, perhaps I can go one better for a bigger laugh.

A well-known ringer in the writer's county, wishing to become a postal subscriber, cancelled 'The Ringing World' through his newsagent, and a week later the said newsagent went bankrupt! K. R. DUNSTAN

MORE RHYMES

Dear Sir,—The Lincolnshire rhyme, by C. Glenn, is by no means unique.

A very old bellringer in the village of Teversal, Nottinghamshire, used to quote nearly 50 years ago to the village boys, including myself, the following verse:—

'Tipshal (Tibshelf) Tower Howlers,
Teversal Merry Bells,
Skegby Cracked Pancheons,
Sutton Egg Shells.'

Tibshelf has a very nice six, Teversal has the same very old five, Skegby the same old three, but Sutton-in-Ashfield. which then had three bells, now possess a very fine eight.—Yours sincerely, B. A. SOLLIS, Sutton-in-Ashfield.

CORNISH TENOR WEIGHTS

Dear Sir.—Three more Cornish rings have in recent months been restored by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. St. Eval has been reported and the weight of the tenor given as 9 cwt. The other two are Advent (5) and St. Minver (6). As all these bells have been to the foundry, it gives an opportunity to correct oral tradition which has so often guessed at what the weights should be. Dove's valuable book has recorded what tradition has established as truth. Two additional restorations of some three years ago might also be of interest to those who wish to correct their notes:—

Advent (5): 1831, C sharp, correct weight 3 cwt. 2 qr. 24 lb. (old weight 5 cwt.).
St. Eval (6): 1733, G–G sharp, 6 cwt. 2 qr. 8 lb. (9 cwt.).
St. Minver (6): 1875, G sharp, 8 cwt. 1 qr. 22 lb. (12 cwt.).
Little Petherick (6): B. 6 cwt. 2 qr. 22 lb. (8 cwt.).
St. Columb Major (8): 1825. F, 12 cwt. 2 qr. 24 lb. (15 cwt.).

Advent might almost claim to possess the lightest known tenor to a ring of five. Dove gives one at 3¼ cwt., but it is not a definite weight. The lightest 'known' tenor the book claims is 3 cwt. 3 qr. 17 lb., which is heavier than Advent's tenor.—Yours faithfully,

A. S. ROBERTS.

Carbis Bay, Cornwall.

WINCHESTER SURPRISE

Dear Sir,—Could the absence of an 'author's' name above Winchester Surprise be due to the person responsible for its having been rung being of the opinion that no one has the right to claim to have composed any treble-dominated method? Anyone with the time and paper could sit down and work out all the Surprise methods, so I fail to see how anyone can claim to have composed one of these methods.

Perhaps Mr. Tipler, and others, could justify their right to claim to have composed such methods as Cherwell S.M., Warwickshire S.R., Rugby S.C.D., etc. Let us have no more 'X town Surprise Major, composed by A. N. Other.' By all means give credit for having composed a peal, and also principles, but not treble-dominated methods.—Yours sincerely,

F. T. BLAGROVE.

Stanwell, near Staines.

SHANKLIN'S SILENT BELLS

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. C. F. Neal, at the end of the last century, when the Rev. Neville Lovett, afterwards Bishop of Salisbury, was Vicar of St. Saviour's, Shanklin, the eight bells were regularly rung. Mr. Mew was the Ringing Master. if I remember rightly, and a little elementary Grandsire was practised. After a change of incumbency, ringing was suspended on the alleged ground that the tower was unsafe. Whether it actually was, I do not know. but I had my suspicions. In any case, a report by a competent architect ought to be obtained. and if any defects in the structure be found to exist, steps should be taken without delay to recondition the tower and bring this musical octave into use again.—Yours faithfully,

F. LLEWELLYN EDWARDS (Rev.).

Kington Magna Rectory.

HOSPITALITY AT RUGELEY

Dear Sir,—After reading the letter by Mr. J. H. Joyner in last week's issue of 'The Ringing World,' I feel I must write in appreciation of true Midland hospitality.

As an airman who was 'sentenced' to eight weeks of 'square bashing' at R.A.F., Hednesford, I will for ever cherish happy memories of the warm welcome offered to me by Mr. and Mrs. Joyner, their son John and by the ringers of Rugeley.

I was not just a guest at the Joyners' home, indeed, I was treated by them as another member of the family, and Sunday for me was really a day out, commencing with ringing at Rugeley Parish Church for Matins, a trip in the afternoon to ring for Evensong on the glorious ten at Lichfield Cathedral, and concluding with ringing once more at Rugeley in the evening. More often than not, any R.A.F. lads attending Evensong at Rugeley were 'roped in' for an evening's entertainment, and the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joyner became an 'open house' for any Serviceman who wished to join in. To us raw recruits in a strange district this was really a taste of home. On behalf of all ringing Servicemen, both National Service and regulars, I would like to say a big 'Thank you' to Mr. and Mrs. Joyner and families like them, who, by their warm hospitality, are helping to make the Serviceman realise that his lot is not so bad after all.

In conclusion I would like to extend my sincere best wishes to John R. Joyner, who, I understand, has now entered the R.A.F. for his two years' training. May you be as welcome as I have been, John, wherever you go, and may you also find plenty of scope for peal and service ringing.—Yours sincerely,

ROBERT A. SOUTHWOOD
R.A.F., St. Eval,
Cornwall.

'RINGING WORLD' FINANCES

Dear Sir,—Mr. Willis, in his letter, has given Associations a great deal of food for thought as to their responsibility towards a solvent 'Ringing World,' and I for one agree wholeheartedly with his suggestions.

I doubt whether it is fully realised what a strong moral obligation Associations have towards a ringing journal for their existence. Almost all the Associations were founded in the 1880's, about the same time that Harvey Reeves founded the 'Bell News,' both were equally dependent on the other for thir survival, and the position is the same to-day. I am convinced that without 'The Ringing World,' Associations' days would soon be numbered.

There is another thing that concerns peal ringers, and particularly some of our peal-ringing tourists. There is also a strong moral obligation on their part to support 'The Ringing World' far more than they have done or are doing.

Quite recently I was informed by two members of 'The Ringing World' Committee (both printers) that to set up the type and present a single peal report costs nearly as much as half-a page of ordinary matter. Is it fair, then, for ten or perhaps twelve individuals to go on a tour, ring anything between 12 and 20 peals, and expect them to be published in 'The Ringing World' without contributing anything towards the cost?

To the committee, I would say, by all means publish every peal report sent in. To those who make contributions, publish these as they have always been. To those who do not do so, publish them in the same style as the quarter peals.—Yours sincerely,

E. BARNETT.

10, King's Close, Crayford.

'COME ON, CRITICS'

Dear Sir,—As a reader of 'The Ringing World' for 30-odd years I have been very interested in the articles concerning its finance, both by readers and by the committee. This is my first time as a correspondent, but not the first time I have made use of the journal, since I have entered peals and quarter peals in it for many years. When inserting these I have always made a levy of at least sixpence from each member, and I consider that ringers who wish the Association to know they stood in certain peals should be patriotic and pay for this service.

Now it is near to November 5th and I am ready for the fireworks!

Consider Suffolk Guild, for example. The other week their 19 peals filled a whole page and a half, a costly business to print, and not a penny was acknowledged as being sent to the journal.

Now if the person in charge of this ringing had collected sixpence per member the sum realised would have amounted to £3 18s., and if this were carried out throughout the country it would be far better than making a levy on Association funds, which are obtained from people like learners and Sunday service ringers. I suggest that these 'peal grabbers' pay to praise themselves. In this way during the first two weeks in October the exchequer would have been enriched by £16. Therefore, if this average could be kept up at the rate of sixpence per ringer it would amount annually to approximately £416, no mean figure to help the struggling Editor to meet his finances and give us, as always, his best.—Yours ap'peal 'ingly,

F. C. PUGH.

Hallow, Worcester.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, KENT.—On Oct. 1st, at St. Peter's Church, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: R. D. Divall 1, Betty Tester 2, H. Markwell 3, A. F. Wellington 4, C. Tester 5, K. S. Hohl 6, E. J. Ladd (cond.) 7, B. V. Collison 8. First of Grandsire Triples 2 and 5. For harvest festival.

ST. CHRISTOPHER'S GUILD

A Tour in Oxfordshire and the Cotswolds

FORMED in 1950 from a number of West Sussex young ringers, the St. Christopher's Guild have had two week tours this year—the first in Leicestershire, in May, and the second, starting on August 28th, in Oxfordshire. St. Christopher was selected as the patron saint of travellers as most of the Guild's activities are of an itinerant nature. Since its formation the Guild's membership has been extended beyond West Sussex.

The Ringing Master is Mr. Peter Bond, but unfortunately he was unable to take part in the second week. Mr. Norman J. Smith is the organising secretary, but this job will change hands next year as he is expecting to go abroad.

The party for the second week, which met at Oxford on August 28th consisted of six Chichester ringers—Shirley and Martin Richardson (Itchingfield), Frank Lewis (Reading), Michael Maisey (Highclere), John Ketteringham (Broxbourne), Julian Pawley (Leicester) and Charles Sangwin (Bude).

On the assembly day at Oxford, ringing took place at the University Church of St. Mary, Carfax tower and St. Andrew's, Old Headington, the night being spent at the Oxford Youth Hostel.

The party split up for Sunday service ringing. After lunch on the river, a visit was paid to the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, where a demonstration of change ringing was given to an American youth hosteller.

FARMER JARVIS VISITED

Farewell was said to the 'city of dreaming spires' on Monday morning. The first tower was the heavy anti-clockwise six at Yarnton, followed by Kidlington (8), where a uniformed police sergeant and constable visited the belfry, only to watch the proceedings. A quick visit was made to Tackley (6) before a picnic lunch. The afternoon's programme was Rousham (6), Deddington, Adderbury and Banbury. After supper at Hanwell Youth Hostel the pretty little five at St. Peter's Church were pealing out. A hasty dash through Oxfordshire lanes was made to 'The Bellringer's Dream,' Farmer Jarvis' pocket ring of six (tenor 1 cwt. 22 lb.). The campanile at Home Farm will not be quickly forgotten.

On Tuesday morning St. Mary Magdalene's, Wardington, was the first tower, followed by Chipping Warden (5), where on the first pull a rope broke and splicing operations had to be put into immediate action. Holy Cross, Byfield, came next, and the after lunch the sombre minor five at Preston Capes. The Vicar kindly took us to Fawsley Park and gave us an interesting conducted tour of the sister Church of St. Mary, which is a real architectural gem. Here we were able to chime the four bells. After supper at Badby Youth Hostel the more energetic enthusiasts cycled to Weedon Bec and were amply rewarded with the ringing on that delightful octave.

Holy Cross, Daventry (8), and St. Mary's, Staverton (6), were put to good use on Wednesday morning and in the afternoon we visited All Saints', Ladbroke (5), All Saints', Leamington (8), and St. Peter's R.C. Church, Leamington (8), with its swaying brick tower. During the evening a visit was paid to St. Margaret's, Whitnash (6), and here we were very kindly provided with refreshments in the Village Hall by the local captain and his wife.

The grand ten at St. Mary's, Warwick, made an excellent first tower for Thursday morning. At All Saints', Sherborne (6), one of the sallies had a most disconcerting habit of getting caught up with the clock pendulum case. We well and truly lost ourselves in finding Snitterfield (6) and consequently when we did eventually arrive, ringing time was rather cut short. Before long we were dashing along to Stratford-on-Avon, with its truly excellent ten at Holy Trinity Church. After supper at Stratford-on-Avon Youth Hostel, which, incidentally, is the largest in England, we rang on the four at St. James', Alveston.

DEAD RABBITS

The very light six at Clifford Chambers were first on the list for Friday, followed by the beautiful sixes at Quinton and Ilmington. Then we really started to climb the Cotswolds, the view of the surrounding countryside was superb; however, our journey was marred by the sight of hundreds of dead and dying rabbits littering the roadside. The rather difficult eight at Chipping Campden brought our minds back to pleasant thoughts.

At Blockley (8) visitors from Canada were deeply interested in the ringing and specially requested a demonstration on handbells afterwards. Another good climb brought us to Boughton-on-the-Hill (6) with its peculiar rope circle; the tenor rope falling immediately behind the treble rope. When we arrived at Stow-on-the-Wold Youth Hostel a large parcel of chocolates had been left for us as a token of appreciation from the Canadian visitors. In the evening we further improved Commonwealth relations by explaining ringing to a visitor from South Africa. It was hard to judge what he thought of the ringing, but he was most certainly impressed by the Youth Hostel and vowed that he would start a similar movement in South Africa.

Saturday morning brought the first rain of the trip and we were rather a wet and bedraggled party when we arrived at Addlestrop (5), where we found George Francis, who had motor-cycled in the rain all the way from Itchingfield, in Sussex, to join us for the day. Addlestrop bells proved rather a handful as the treble man had to face the wall and the tenor man had to sit on the window-sill! The superlative octave at Kingham came next, followed by the six at Churchill, where we were able to pack up our capes and enjoy the sunshine again.

After lunch Chipping Norton (8) bells were set going, followed by Chadlington (6), Spelsbury (6), Stonesfield (6) and finally the magnificent six at Combe Longa, where, after lowering, as the bells were caught in Queens the treble rope broke on the very last pull, and splicing operations were once again put into action. It was a gay night at Charlbury Youth Hostel, and on Sunday morning we all went our many ways with lots of happy memories. We should like to take this opportunity to thank all incumbents and ringers who so kindly met us and did so much to make our tour a success.

ST. MARTIN'S GUILD

Edgbaston is a very pleasant place in which to hold a ringing meeting and is within easy reach of the city centre. The ancient Church of St. Bartholomew, popularly known as the 'Old Church,' is surrounded by some of the largest residences of the prosperous city of Birmingham. The ringing room is on ground level—open to the church—and the tower contains a modern light ring of eight by Taylor. These were rung to a variety of methods, including Spliced Surprise, when the quarterly meeting of the Guild was held on October 2nd.

The Vicar of Edgbaston (the Rev. Canon R. Allen), in his address, said that he could not help feeling that church bells should not be rung to peals without a special reason, and suggested that an appropriate time (one which is often overlooked) was immediately following a baptismal service, especially in view of the recent tendency to combine this service with one of the principal Sunday services.

The Vicar joined the members at an excellent tea, which was prepared by two of the Edgbaston ringers, Miss Evelyn Fletcher and Miss Ruth Russell, whose efforts were greatly appreciated and who were heartily thanked for their trouble.

The chair was taken by the Master, Mr. Albert Walker, who, before commencing the ordinary business of the meeting, found it his sad duty to refer to the loss the Guild had sustained since the last meeting by the passing of three members. They mourned the loss of Thomas W. Abbotts, who, whilst in the prime of life, met his death in a motor-cycle accident when holiday-making in Cornwall. He had been a ringer at Shirley for many years but, at the time of his death, was a member of the band at Solihull Parish Church. Joseph W. Pemberton had been compelled by a sudden breakdown in health to give up ringing some five years ago, but prior to that he was a keen ringer and his peal list included a number on twelve bells. Albert E. Norman, who died at Worcester at the age of 52, was one of those rare ringers who had a natural gift for ringing and who, at a very early age, showed great proficiency. 'The Pup,' as he was known by his Birmingham friends, could handle a light or heavy bell or a pair of handbells with graceful ease. The most notable performance in which he took part was the peal of Stedman Sextuples on handbells. The members stood in silence for a moment as a token of respect to their departed colleagues.

It was formally resolved that the Henry Johnson Commemoration Dinner be held on March 5th, 1955. This occasion will also be the celebration of the bi-centenary of the Guild.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE ASSOCIATION

The heavy six with a tenor of 17½ cwt. at Hurworth-on-Tees was the venue for the Southern District's meeting on October 8th, which was attended by over 40 ringers. Before the meeting two Hurworth men rang their first quarter, the band in this 1,260 Plain Bob Minor being T. Hill (first quarter) 1, M. Stewart (first quarter) 2, F. Hodgson 3, D. R. Avery 4, T. Cooke 5, F. William Cooke (first as conductor) 6.

The service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. L. Piper), who spoke on the use of bells in communal life. The collection of £2 2s. 6d. was in aid of the belfry repairs. An excellent tea was provided by the local ringers' wives. At the business meeting the vice-president (Mr. T. Cooke) congratulated the Hurworth belfry on its progress in change ringing in the past year and on the enthusiasm of its members.

Methods rung were Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, St. Clement's, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, London, Cambridge and York Surprise.

BANSTEAD, SURREY.—On Oct. 3rd, 1,260 Stedman Triples: R. I. Parsons 1, G. R. Smerdon 2, Gillian R. Parsons 3, H. N. Pitstow (cond.) 4, A. J. Adams 5, T. Norman 6, A. E. Cheesman 7, M. F. Layton 8. For harvest festival.

OBITUARY

ERIC A. DENCH

Flying Officer Eric Arthur Dench, R.A.F., was killed on September 30th, when a Marathon aircraft crashed near Calne, Wiltshire, when on a practice flight from Thorney Island. Aged 26, Eric Dench was well known as a ringer, having been taught to ring at All Saints', Edmonton, by Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas during the war. He was one of a band of young ringers who, under the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, distinguished themselves on tower- and handbells.

Mr. Thomas taught a band of youngsters at Edmonton, when ringing restarted after the removal of the ban. Initially he intended only to raise a Sunday service band, but the youngsters gave such a keen response that, with so gifted an instructor, they made more and more progress and soon several handbell peals were being rung every week, and in those days handbell peals at Edmonton and Enfield 'stole the news' in the way that Leicester and Birmingham do now.

Of these youngsters several fell by the wayside as far as ringing was concerned, but Eric Dench maintained and developed his interest in the art. When he joined the R.A.F. for his National Service he devoted his exceptional ability to the instruction and encouragement of other Servicemen in the art of ringing. He had been trained as a school teacher before joining the R.A.F. but he found the Service life attractive and decided to make a career of it. At first he was in the education branch and was posted to Ceylon for two and a half years.

On returning to England in 1953 he started ringing again and rang one or two peals, although his opportunities were somewhat limited. By this time he had been transferred to flying duties and was stationed at Cottesmore, Rutland. He was a frequent and most welcome visitor at St. Mary's, Melton Mowbray, and other towers in the district.

In November, 1953, he was posted to Canada for nine months on a navigator's course and it was here that he met Miss Nancy Smith, daughter of the Rector of St. Jude's, Winnipeg. Before he returned to England in August, 1954, he and Miss Smith were engaged and she had hoped to come over to England for their wedding next year.

Eric's peal record is not immediately available but it is hoped that it may be possible to publish his list at a later date. He had rung about 150 peals in a considerable variety of methods, with a preponderance of handbell peals. Among the handbell peals were Stedman Cinques and Plain Bob 14. He had called several peals and had considerable ability as a conductor with a wide knowledge of composition. It is thought that his last peal was one of Superlative Surprise Major at Sileby, Leicestershire, on the occasion of the 1953 Leicester Guild dinner; this was conducted by Philip A. Corby, a close friend of many years. Mrs. Corby had also learned to ring at All Saints', Edmonton, under Mr. Thomas.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. S. W. Knight, the Vicar, in Edmonton Parish Church in the presence of a congregation representative of many church activities. Eric had been a choirboy as well as a scout and bellringer. He had a lifelong association with All Saints' Church and had grown into a loyal and devout churchman. The bells were rung half-muffled for the service by members of the Middlesex Association and other friends from further afield. The service included the singing of the 23rd Psalm, the hymn 'The strife is o'er,' and the Nunc Dimittis. The congregation included several ringers, who followed the cortege to the crematorium for the final committal.

Much sympathy will be felt for his parents and surviving brother and sisters and for his fiancée in Canada. Any who knew Eric will recall his happy nature, his courtesy, his friendliness and count it a privilege to have known him. Rest eternal grant unto him, O Lord, and may light perpetual shine upon him.

MEMORIAL PEAL

After the funeral a peal of Stedman Triples worthy of the occasion was conducted at Edmonton by Mr. John Thomas, who taught and encouraged Eric in his ringing.

A LINCOLN TRIBUTE

Mr John A. Freeman, Lincoln, writes that at the half-yearly meeting of the Northern District of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild on Oct. 16th the members stood in silence as a tribute to his memory.

When stationed at Cranwell Eric Dench frequently came to the Lincoln towers, where he proved himself to be a very likeable fellow and a good and very progressive ringer.

AN APPRECIATION

Mr. W. Hacker, hon. secretary, Calne Branch, Salisbury Diocesan Guild, writes:—

With deep regret the many ringing friends in the Calne and Chippenham district of Flying Officer Eric A. Dench received the news that he was a member of the crew of the ill-fated Marathon aircraft that crashed near Calne. Eric came to R.A.F., Yatesbury, in 1947 and, with Fred Jackson, already at Yatesbury, soon became well known in most towers in the district. They built up a change ringing band of R.A.F. members which at one time numbered 14 from two camps near Calne. Some of these were taught to handle a bell, and they rang a number of quarter peals in various towers in this part of the county, sometimes as a complete band or joining in with the local band; whenever possible they gave valuable assistance with Sunday service ringing.

Six members of the band rang a peal of Treble Bob at Broad Hinton, being the first all R.A.F. peal ever rung. The accident occurred well within the sound of Heddington bells, where the only peal ever rung was conducted by Eric A. Dench, and the board recording this will be a memorial to a great ringer and gentleman.

MR. HENRY CARNWELL

A founder member of the North Staffordshire Association and for many years a member of the committee, Mr. Henry Carnwell, of Kingsley, died on October 3rd, aged 85.

For 62 years he had been Ringing Master at Kingsley and although age and infirmity had curtailed his activity over the past few months, his interest in bells and ringing remained undiminished. A sound teacher and stern disciplinarian, he would not tolerate slackness or bad striking by his band. First and foremost a Minor ringer, he rang 44 peals, principally Minor, but also some Major methods, all for the North Staffordshire Association. His son, Mr. William Carnwell, is carrying on his father's work and is the present secretary of the Association.

The country church of Kingsley was full of mourners at the funeral service on October 6th, the Rector (the Rev. Mr. Aday) officiating. Mr. R. S. Anderson (chairman) and ringers from many towers attended the service. The bells were rung half-muffled before and after the interment.

MR. JOHN SANDERSON

The Blackburn Branch has suffered a great loss in the death of Mr. John Sanderson, aged 90, on Monday, October 4th. He joined the Lancashire Association in 1909 and rang 29 peals.

His conciliatory attitude towards matters arising made him popular amongst us, whilst apparently not seeking distinction for himself. He had taken no active part in ringing for some time but the wish to ring again induced him to climb the 50 steps to Blackburn Cathedral ringing chamber when the new bells were installed. He would then only ring short touches, which he performed with flawless dexterity.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2273 Vol. L. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

A PEAL TOUR OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

By L. A. WILSON

In these days of peal tours arranged with all the luxury of a modern age, the following experience of Mr. L. A. Wilson, of Wootton Bassett, Wilts, throws an interesting sidelight on ringing 50 years ago.—Ed.

ABOUT Easter, 1904, I received a telegram worded: 'Please report at Axminster. One short for peal.—J. E. Baker.' In those days money was short with me. Anyway, rather than let them down I had a 'sub' from my employers and off I went. Arriving at Axminster, I met my friend, and he took me to the residence of a Mr. Pitfield Chappell, where I found seven others. All of us were accommodated at the residence of another Mr. Chappell, who was able to ring the tenor, this being his way of enjoying ringing and incidentally he 'paid the piper.'

After an evening with the handbells and a good dinner, we set out next morning for Beaminster in a two-horse wagonette. We jogged along steadily and walked up the hills, eventually arriving at Beaminster with its glorious tower and a lovely ring of bells by Bilbie, which appears to be a maiden one. We started for Stedman Triples with Mr. C. Winney, of London, conducting. The music of the bells was glorious and the striking was all that Mr. Winney desired (which was saying a lot, as he was most particular as to the truth of a peal). All went well for 2¾ hours when our host, the tenor man, had a stroke and fell off the box. The rope took him up and dropped him again, while all the other ropes were flying around in all directions. I was sent for a doctor, but he was out. We got our friend down the tower and put him in the wagonette and so back to Axminster.

Fortunately, he recovered sufficiently for us to spend another convivial evening. The next morning we started for Winsham. Here the tower is at the east end, at the chancel steps. A candelabra hung about a foot from the third and fourth ropes. We again started for Stedman and after half an hour's ringing I missed the sally and my rope became entangled in the candelabra which brought most of the lamp down and fairly 'put the wind' up me. I felt still more in disgrace when Mr. Winney remarked, 'Please try and ring Stedman!' After a clear up we started off again. This time we rang for close on three hours when the sixth rope broke. That put an end to peal attempt No. 2, and we returned to Axminster for another evening of good fare and handbell ringing.

The next day we were off to Crewkerne, another lovely tower and bells. The ringing here was glorious and the striking as near perfect as possible, so much so that our conductor remarked after the peal that everyone had done his best. This was the end of the week-end, and Mr. Winney went back to London well satisfied. But oh, what enjoyment we got out of it—the wagonette rides, late dinners and the good fellowship! This was the first of several outings I had in my younger days. Such was the result of being well known in the Exercise.

THE BEGINNER

THE following article is intended to be passed on to any young person who is considered suitable to become a ringer. We will begin by assuming that you are a young person of either sex anywhere between 12 and 21 years of age. Also that you reside in or near a parish which possesses a ring of bells; how many in number does not matter just yet. It is better if the bells attract you as they ring Sunday by Sunday, for you are then a 'natural,' not needing to be taught to appreciate them. You feel that you would like to know something about the bells and see what sort of people ring them. Have a chat with your vicar or rector, who will readily give you permission to watch the ringers at work, and introduce you to the captain.

In due course you visit the tower and see the ringing in progress. Do not sit down, but stand and note carefully everything you see. The coloured 'sallies' rising and falling in various orders, or the set expression of the ringers absorbed in their task. Note particularly the ease and grace which some ringers have of handling their ropes, and make up your mind that if you learn you are going to be one of these and not a member of the 'awkward squad.' Note also the regularity or 'beat' of the ringing. If you have a sense of rhythm it will help you considerably later on. When the ringing is finished, if you feel like asking questions, do so. We hope you are impressed with your visit, so consider the reasons 'for and against' becoming a ringer.

On the 'for' side: You are joining a nation-wide brotherhood. You are taking up a hobby which will last a lifetime, and if you are prepared to get out of the rut, you can go on learning all the time. You are serving the Church and we hope you always look on ringing in that light.

Now the 'against' side: There is no short cut to proficiency; a lot will depend on your adaptability. It is a tie, but as you progress this feeling will disappear. So come along, you will be welcome, and now we'll hand you over to your instructor. Pay attention to him (or her) and you will become a credit to your teacher. R. M. P.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Maidstone District's Progress

A gratifying feature of the report of the secretary (Mr. R. J. Sills) at the annual meeting of the Maidstone District at Maidstone on October 8th was that 40 practising members had been elected during the year, including the whole of the band at Boughton, Monchelsea and Yalding, the latter tower also affiliating to the Association. Attendances at meetings had been mostly over 50, with a maximum of over 70 at Aylesford.

Mr. R. L. Sills was re-elected district secretary, and Mr. A. Waddington and Mr. W. R. Manser continue as district representatives. Miss Pamela Butcher replaces Miss Mary Tapley as 'Ringing World' representative.

Surrey was chosen for the annual coach tour next summer.

The new Vicar (Canon Frank Bennett) welcomed members in the tower, presided at the business meeting and conducted Evensong. Yorkshire Surprise was the special method for the day.

Canterbury District

Eighty-four members representing 28 towers attended the annual meeting of the District at St. Stephen's, Canterbury, where the Rector (the Rev. A. R. Barnes) conducted the service.

Following a buffet tea, Mr. J. A. Russell presided at the business meeting. The District secretary recorded that subscriptions were down due to slackness of some towers in not sending them in earlier. The seven meeting during the year had an average attendance of 46.

There is no change in the District officers. Eighteen new members were elected, including the young band at Northbourne, this tower being in union with the Association for the first time.

A PEAL OF GRANDSIRE CATERS
5,057 CHANGES
Tenor size 15

George Hollis	1-2
Clement Glenn	3-4
*William J. Thyng	5-6
Arthur Knights	7-8
George Davies	9-10

Composed and conducted by Arthur Knights.
* 100th peal. First peal of Caters on handbells in Chesterfield.

[Like Charles H. Hattersley, mentioned a fortnight ago, Arthur Knights' reputation as a composer tended to obscure his ability as a practical ringer. In fact, he took part in six or seven hundred peals, including more than two hundred on Chesterfield bells, a total for one tower which he was probably the first to achieve.]

MAIDSTONE GRAMMAR SCHOOL SOCIETY

While the first meeting of the Society at Mereworth on October 2nd did not attract as many people as had been expected it was quite successful. The Rector (the Rev. H. B. Mayne) conducted a short service. At the business meeting the following officers were elected:—President, Mr. G. I. F. Thompson; Ringing Master, Mr. M. E. Downs; secretary, Miss Pamela Y. Butcher; committee, Messrs. R. A. R. Lurcock, B. Brooks, D. Sayers and Y. Garner.

GUILD of DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

Fifty ringers, including visitors from Bridgwater, Ashbrittle, Kenn and Highweek, attended the meeting of the North-East Branch at Huntsham on October 8th. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. H. Jones (Rector and Branch chairman), and the lesson read by Mr. E. J. Taylor (Guild general secretary). A collection for the Guild's Bell Restoration Fund amounted to £1 3s..

After tea at Huntsham Court, arranged by Mrs. Davey and local ringers and their wives, the Rector presided at the business meeting. Silverton, subject to permission, was selected for the annual meeting on January 8th. On the motion of Mr. Bolt it was decided to hold monthly Branch practice meetings on the second Saturday of each month from 6 to 9 p.m. Bradninch was selected for the November practice.

Ringing in various methods was under the guidance of Mr. A. G. Selley (Branch Ringing Master). Some members also visited St. Peter's, Uplowman.

TRURO DIOCESAN GUILD

The Truro Branch Festival was held at All Hallows', St. Kea, on October 9th, when about 35 ringers attended, including several young ringers, two of whom were only ten years old. Among those present were the Ringing Master (Mr. Southeard), the Rev. A. S. Roberts and his daughter, Mr. H. Miles, Miss Lidgey and Mr. D. Burnett, from St. Eval (mid-Cornwall).

The service was conducted by the Rev. V. A. Callow (St. Kea) and was followed by a splendid tea given by the ringers' wives and friends.

Methods rung were Stedman, Plain Bob, Grandsire and call changes. C. W. J.

The bells of Bunbury Parish Church, Cheshire, will be heard prior to the morning service to be broadcast from there in the North Home Service at 9.45 p.m. on Sunday, November 14th.

BELFRY GOSSIP

While waiting to ring at St. Leonard's, Hythe, during their outing, some Ewell ringers descended to the crypt and there saw grinning eyeless skulls lining the walls. Silence was broken by a profound feminine remark, 'Now you know what it's like to be left on the shelf, girls!'

Mr. Michael E. Brown has 'circled' Claybrooke tower to a peal.

The 75th anniversary of the foundation of the Surrey Association will be celebrated by a dinner at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, on May 21st, 1955.

The first peal of Norfolk Surprise was rung at St. Peter's, Brighton, on March 14th, 1898, and not at Bolsover as stated by Mr. Cooper, writes a correspondent..

A peal of Original Triples has been rung at Ringwood, conducted by Mr. Frank L. Harris. The first peal in this method was rung at Bushey on October 16th, 1926, conducted by Mr. Maurice F. R. Hibbert.

Through a typographical error the name of Mr. R. F. Deal was given in our report of the Cumberlands' Dinner. It is Mrs. Deal who is one of the auditors. Mr. Deal is an esteemed member of the Ancient Society of College Youths.

Miss Vivienne Horton, who is 16, received many congratulations on ringing two peals on October 16th. The first was at Etwall, and the afternoon peal in her own tower, Duffield, Derbyshire.

Arranged by Mr. W. H. Ware, ringers from Bath, Twerton and Huntsham spent an enjoyable day on October 16th visiting the following towers in the Exe and Culm valleys:—Rewe, Stoke Canon, Poltimore, Pinhoe, Broadclyst and Cullompton. Mr. E. J. Taylor thanked the organiser.

An unexpected pleasure awaited G. B. Evans when he returned to Winchester for week-end leave from the Royal Navy on October 16th. At a few minutes' warning he stood in a quarter peal of Grandsire Caters at the Cathedral in honour of the 80th birthday of Mr. W. C. Lampard, the captain of the Cathedral band.

The peal of Yorkshire Surprise Royal at Stepney on October 16th was the 200th peal for the Middlesex Association by Mr. T. J. Lock.

A touch of London Minor was lost during the Baldock ringers' outing on October 16th because a spider ran across the floor in front of a lady ringer.

Lane End, Bucks, ringers rang quarter peals for morning and evening services when the harvest festival was observed. Mr. Walter Avery states that this is the first time two quarters have been rung on a Sunday by the local band since he started there in 1926.

A great achievement has been accomplished by the local band at Great Horwood in ringing the first peal on the bells. It was the first peal for all the band except their tutor and captain, Mr. F. G. Edmans. Success came at the third attempt.

At Netherbury, Dorset, where the six bells have been rehung on ball bearings, the following inscription appears on a tombstone in the churchyard:—'In memory of Thomas Curtis, which here in silence lie, it's known by this tenor bell did die, just as these bells when tuned all. Great was his pains we may be sure which he with patience did endure. But this observe above the rest, God taketh first whom He likes best. Who died March ye 11th, 1748. Age 33.'

THE COVENTRY DIOCESAN GUILD

First Guild Dinner a Big Success

THIS year has seen what may well come to be an annual event in Warwickshire ringing circles. The forthcoming 50th anniversary of the founding, in 1907, of the Warwickshire Guild (as the Coventry Diocesan Guild was then named) promoted the idea of holding a commemoration dinner. Some enthusiastic committee members, however, saw no reason to wait for such an excuse to hold a dinner and set about seeking support for an immediate festival. It was decided to hold the dinner concurrently with the autumn quarterly meeting on October 16th.

The festival commenced at 2.30 p.m. with ringing at Kenilworth and Chilvers Coton, and at 3.30 p.m. the bells of Keresley, Bedworth, Bulkington and Stoke were available. A short business meeting was held at No. 20, Broadgate, at 6 p.m., the salient feature of which was the carrying of a motion to contribute 10s. towards the Ringers' Roll of Honour. This meeting was preceded by a handbell practice.

A company of about 130 assembled at the Wine Lodge Hotel, Coventry, at about 6.45 p.m. In the absence of the president (the Rev. W. Maggs, Rector of Bedworth), the chair was taken by Canon Noel Prentice (Rector of Stratford-on-Avon, and a vice-president of the Guild). Guests of honour were the Deputy Mayor and Deputy Mayoress of Coventry (Alderman and Mrs. T. H. Dewis). Another guest was the Rev. D. M. Davies, the newly-inducted Rector of Stoke.

The Deputy Mayor, in his civic welcome to the Guild, said he had recently been in conversation with Mr. Basil Spence, the architect of the new Cathedral, who had told him that there were hopes of having the building completed in about five years' time. The first contracts were shortly to be placed. He, the Deputy Mayor, hoped that some of the ringers present would be able to officiate at the opening. He remembered the occasion in his native village of Exhall when the question of a memorial had raised a local controversy as to whether or not this memorial should take the form of three extra bells. The bells had won and Exhall now had a ring of six.

Mr. J. L. Garner-Hayward, the M.C. and toastmaster, then proposed the toast of 'The Deputy Mayor and Mayoress.'

Canon Noel Prentice proposed the toast of 'The Church' in an entertaining manner. He gave the opinion that a good ring produced a good congregation. Poor or surly ringing—including late starting—was a bad invitation and reflected in the congregation. Ringing was an act of worship and a great service to the Church. It also took pride of place, he said, amongst all church services, such as choir and organ, in the affections of the congregation. He always found it easier to raise money for work on the bells or for new bells than for any other Church purpose and he had managed to augment the rings in each of the three parishes he had had.

In thanking ringers for the fillip they gave to Church life, Canon Noel Prentice said this was especially so if they attended service too. He was always pleased to see a row of red-faced perspiring gentlemen mopping their brows at the back of the church. He didn't get that at his present church, his ringers were much too artistic to perspire over their ringing but he had a grand team of chaps and they did a good job.

FOUNDATION MEMBERS

In proposing the toast of 'Our Guild,' Mr. J. Frank Smallwood gave a reminder of the birth of the Guild. Some 48 years ago he had rung his first peal at Bedworth. This peal had had to be rung for no Association because there was no local Association, nor was there a quorum in the band for any other Association. The thought of having to ring this peal in this manner led logically to the idea of forming a local Association and so, a year later, in 1907, the Warwickshire Guild came into being. He called on all present foundation members to rise and, besides himself, three others rose—Messrs. E. Adams, W. Collett and J. Pinfold.

At the time of the foundation, continued Mr. Smallwood, their greatest support had come from the Rugby district. He was delighted to see so many young people present and expressed the hope that they would obtain as much enjoyment from ringing as he had. He proposed the toast to the Guild with best wishes for the future and especially for the coming golden jubilee.

The Ringing Master, Mr. R. J. Edden, proposed a comprehensive vote of thanks. He mentioned the Deputy Mayor and Mayoress, Canon Prentice for holding the chair, and Mr. Garner-Hayward and Mrs. Beamish for the organisation of the dinner. He expressed the hope that the dinner would become an annual affair.

Mr. Garner-Hayward replied and went on to introduce the musical entertainment which followed. A course of Stedman Cinques 'in hand' was well rung by Margaret E. L. Beamish 1-2, Frank W. Perrens 3-4, Albert Walker 5-6, J. Frank Smallwood 7-8, Frank E. Pervin 9-10, Hubert E. Ashley 11-12. Tall tales were told by Canon Prentice. Songs were sung by 'The Vagabonds' and handbell tunes were rung by Mr. and Mrs. Beamish and Margaret and Messrs. C. H. Webb, J. W. T. Taylor, H. G. Summers and P. Stone. Recordings taken during a farewell peal of Grandsire Caters at Chilvers Coton for Margaret Beamish was played by Mr. A. Faulkes. Some of the after-peal conversation was recorded with suitable sad songs by Arthur and supporters.

Other recordings taken during regular local practices were presented by Mr. J. L. Garner-Hayward. A 'rise and fall' 'in hand' was performed by Mr. and Mrs. Beamish and Margaret, Messrs. J. Draycott and J. A. L. Thompson. The singing of 'Auld Lang Syne' concluded a very happy evening, and many hopes were expressed that next year might see a continuance of the event.

BELLS

A sunny June morning,
And music of bells
Comes over green meadows
And high rolling fells.

The bells have a message
On this sunny day.
They call us to worship,
To praise and to pray.

Along the green hedgerow
Where tall grasses grow,
Are bells of the foxgloves
With colour aglow.

And nodding blue harebells
Of delicate hue.
These, too, have a message
For me — and for you.

Thank God for green meadows
And high rolling fells,
For beauty of flowers
And music of bells.

Mr. Victor Griffin, of Purton, Wilts, is leaving to take up National Service. Good wishes were extended to him when the Swindon Branch visited his tower.

In connection with the Snowdon dinner tomorrow we are asked to state that there are buses every 20 minutes (half-hour run) between Rotherham and Doncaster.

Four first peals and a first 'inside' were scored by the Woodbury, Devon, band in a peal at Aylesbeare on October 18th. One of the 'firsts' was Derek Gooding, who celebrated his 21st birthday.

Two 15-year old twins, Hazel and Hilary Lines, of Irthlingborough, have joined the Peterborough Diocesan Guild. Members at the meeting at Irchester could not tell the difference between them.

By the peal at Hugglescote on October 20th the local ringing master (Mr. H. O. Over) completed 'the circle.' He is the first to do this in this tower. The peal was an 80th birthday compliment to Mr. F. J. Wainwright, who was largely instrumental in raising the £800 for the provision of these bells in 1900.

Mr. W. Sidwell, chairman of the Swindon Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Association, has been appointed District Motive Power Superintendent, British Railways, at Worcester. Farewells were said at the branch meeting at Purton, and Mr. Sidwell, in reply, said he thought his ringing had improved during his stay at Swindon.

Secretary of the Oxford City Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild and a member of the Iffley tower, Mr. T. Bowles was married at Great Milton on October 16th to Miss N. Alviraz. Iffley ringers attended and rang Great Milton bells before and after the service and later were successful in a peal in honour of the event in their own tower. The couple's decision to make their home at Great Milton is unfortunate for the City Branch, and Iffley tower in particular.

PEAL RINGING IN DORSET

By the Rev. K. W. H. FELSTEAD

Although Dorset is not the 'stoney' stronghold as is Devonshire, it is close enough to be affected by this fact. It is also far enough away from the main centres of advanced change ringing to mean that only the simpler methods are practised for the most part. The main exception to this is Lyme Regis, where the enthusiasm of the last incumbent, Canon C. C. Cox (president of the Clerical Guild), has enabled a Surprise band to be built up. Consequently there is not a great deal to be said about this county. Of its 113 rings of bells there are two tens, 18 eights, 56 sixes and 37 fives. It will be possible to mention nearly all in the first two categories.

The two ten-bell towers are Poole and Wimborne Minster, both on the eastern edge of the county. The former, with 26 peals, has the largest number of peals of any church in the county (so it will be seen that peal ringing has never flourished to any extent). All except five of these were rung when there were only eight bells in the tower—nine from 1903 to 1913, and twelve from 1921 to 1936. Actually, only two of these five were on the ten bells. The last peal here was rung ten years ago. Wimborne Minster has recorded twelve (excluding a false peal rung in 1921). The first was in 1902, the last in 1952 (the only one since 1938).

Most of the eight-bell towers have reached double figures, with Bradpole and Sherborne leading the way with 23 each. At the former more than a third were rung before the first war, but five have come between 1947 and 1951 (the last peal). The latter tower has been doing well since the war for more peals have been rung there in the last ten years than in any other place in the county—15. The remaining eight are spread evenly over the years 1905 to 1939—a peal every four years or so.

Swanage has recorded 20 peals, the first two being in 1889—almost the first in the county. The remainder occur fairly evenly over the ensuing years with three since the war. Both Whitchurch Canonicorum and Dorchester have totals of 16 peals. At the former, 11 have come since the war, so this tower is also doing well at the moment (none this year so far, though). The latter had eight in the ten years prior to the first war, four between the wars and four since 1946 (none since 1951). Lyme Regis comes next with 14 (eight since the war) and then Bridport (12), where the first peal in the county was rung on May 5th, 1887. Beaminster has 11 (five since 1947), and Cranborne, Wareham and Wimborne St. Giles ten each. The only eight-bell tower which has never appeared in the peal list was destroyed by fire at the end of the war—Cattistock. All the remainder have had one or more peals since the war with the exception of Gillingham, where the only peal recorded was in 1938.

As for six-bell towers, 42 out of the 56 have had one or more peals rung at them. Lytchett Matravers leads the way with 19 peals— a respectable total in this county. Eight were rung between 1932 and 1939, and eleven from 1943 to 1949. There hasn't been one for five years now. Two other towers have reached double figures. They are Corfe Mullen with 13 (five in the last eight years) and Buckland Newton with ten. All these were rung between 1929 and 1936, so it is nearly 20 years since a peal was rung here. Nearly half the 42 towers have only had a single peal rung at them. In the case of the five-bell towers only three of the 16 where peals have been rung have had more than a single peal. They are Kington Magna, with five peals between 1930 and 1935, and Holwell and Lillington, with two each, all rung before the last war. Twenty-one five-bell towers remain to be conquered.

Actually, only 401 peals have ever been rung in Dorset—rather a contrast to the many thousands we find in some counties with similar numbers of rings of bells (say, Cheshire and Derbyshire).

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSN.

There were several outcomes to the North and East District meeting held at St. Dunstan's, Stepney, on October 9th, and they were varied in character. At business time and under the chairmanship of Mr. H. G. Hart, the meeting received with regret the news of the tragic death of Mr. Eric A. Dench. At the funeral service at All Saints', Edmonton, two District officers represented the Association, and ringing took place prior to the service and in the evening, when a peal was rung.

A message of good wishes was received from the general secretary, Mr. E. C. S. Turner, who is happily making good progress towards recovery from his illness.

Seven members of the St. Dunstan's band—Messrs. C. Malden, C. W. Ridgway, S. Smith and H. G. Weedon and the Misses J. Bancroft, J. Powell and S. Turner—were elected ringing members of the Association.

Discussion on the circulation of 'The Ringing World' and the methods of subscribing revealed that there are already a number of publications where the circulation is entirely postal.

A welcome was given to visiting ringers from Essex, Hertfordshire and Surrey, who helped to bring the attendance to well over 30, and who were able to join in some good Major, Caters and Royal ringing on the recently-rehung fine ring of ten. The ringers attended normal evensong service at 6 p.m.

Thanks were accorded to the Rector, to Mr. Len Fox and to the ladies who prepared tea, for their parts in ensuring a successful meeting.

DEDICATION

NETHERBURY, DORSET

A service of thanksgiving and rededication was held at St. Mary's Church, Netherbury, Dorset, on October 10th after the six bells (tenor 20 cwt.) had been rehung on ball bearing and new fittings provided by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank.

During the service and while the hymn 'We love Thy place, O God,' the choir, bellringers, churchwardens and the Vicar (the Rev. P. May) walked in procession to the belfry. The captain handed the ropes to the Vicar and after the rededicatory prayers the bells were rung in rounds by the local ringers. Mr. W. Theobald represented the bell founders.

At the close of the evening service a quarter peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung by J. Davis 1, W. Theobald 2, L. Glyde 3, J. Barrett 4, W. D. Bishop (conductor) 5, W. Lewis 6.

The following Saturday members of the West Dorset Branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild visited the tower. All were pleased with the 'go' of the bells and agreed that the Whitechapel Foundry had done another excellent job.

BALDOCK OUTING

Taking advantage of the bright October weather, Baldock band had a half-day's outing on October 16th. The first tower was the six at St. Peter's, Duxford, Cambs, where methods up to London were rung. A good course of Cambridge was rung at Ickleton. After tea at Chrishall an hour's ringing was enjoyed at the Parish Church. The last tower, Chishill, was a disappointment.

IN THE SMUGGLERS' COUNTRY

Ewell ringers, for their outing this year, selected a district boasting of the lowest rainfall in the country—Romney Marsh.

After ringing at the six-bell tower of Northiam, the two coaches threaded their tortuous way through the cobbled streets of Rye and drew up at the largest church in Sussex (strictly contrary to police regulations). Later there was a gradual exodus from the belfry to see the bell boys on the church clock strike the quarter-hour.

The peculiar octagonal three-tiered erection which stands beside Brookland's Church and holds five bells (tenor 12¼ cwt.) was next visited. Graphically our correspondent describes this tower in the following terms:—

'At first, as we opened the door and entered this queer, conical structure, it seemed too dark to see at all, but gradually our eyes became accustomed to the gloom—the place has no windows—and we discerned the ropes hanging down in the open space between the heavy timbers. We also located the oil lamp, which we let down and lit before hoisting into position. The sound of the bells is very loud, there being no louvres to let it out, and the bells could be seen in motion during the ringing from the ladders rising at the north-east side. Although difficult to ring at first, these bells could be mastered fairly soon, I think. We rang a fair touch of Grandsire on them before we came away.'

Luncheon was very much enjoyed at the George Hotel, Lydd. The fine Church of All Saints, sometimes known as the Cathedral of the Marsh, with its tower 132 feet high, will long be remembered. With the assistance of Messrs. Terry and Swift a touch of Stedman came round in fine style.

After ringing at St. Nicholas', New Romney—bells we liked—the next nine miles was by train on the narrow-gauge Dymchurch Railway. Ringing took place on the lovely eight at St. Leonard's, Hythe. Harrietsham was reached after dark and was the last, but not the least enjoyable tower of the day.

Missed on this outing was John Hoyle, who died from pneumonia in May. Born at North Molton, Devon, he was taught by his father early in life to ring. Later he moved to Ashtead, where he lived and rang for 40 years, and was in business as a builder and decorator. He also took his part in church affairs, being a school manager and church councillor. During this time he rang many peals. Ten years ago he retired and moved to Epsom and continued ringing intermittently until three weeks before his death.

PETERBOROUGH GUILD

A Visit to Irchester

Eighty ringers attended the Wellingborough Branch meeting on October 16th at Irchester, where, at the present time, there is not a full band. Good use was made of the ring of eight (tenor 21¼ cwt.).

The Guild service was conducted by the branch president (the Rev. W. C. Knight), who also gave the address. The organist was Mr. Brudenall. A collection for the Guild Bell Restoration Fund amounted to £1 13s. 9d.

Tea in the schoolroom was supervised by Mrs. C. Payne, and at the business meeting members stood in silent tribute to the memory of Mr. Harry Chambers (Stanwick).

The branch secretary, Mr. A. Bigley, announced that a total of £6 12s. had been subscribed by the branch towards a benevolent appeal by the general secretary.

Seven new ringing members were elected, as follows: Mr. R. Daniels (Bozeat), Messrs. R. Rockingham and B. Dickerson (Stanwick) and the Misses Hazel and Hilary Lines, Valerie Taylor, and Gwen Berick (Irthlingborough).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

NATIONAL SERVICE RINGING

Dear Sir,—I would like to add to George Ruck's letter of appreciation on the article of 'National Service.' I, myself, am now a National Service man and have been welcomed at every tower which I have so far had the chance to visit. National Service gives one a great chance of expanding one's list of towers and one also learns about other people's belfry ways.

As yet I have not had a chance for a peal attempt but hope to do so in the near future.

J. A. A. is quite right when he mentions that the billet is an excellent place for missionary work. I have often been asked where I go during evenings and at week-ends, and as a result I have often had a crowd of puzzled faces around me when I try to explain the art, especially when 'diagrams' come into view.

I would like to repeat J. A. A.'s statement that a new Service man should never be shy to enter a strange tower, be there six or twelve bells.—Yours sincerely,

ALAN E. HARTLEY (Dvr.).

R.A.S.C., Farnborough.

Dear Sir,—The Aldershot-Farnborough-Ash area is one of the main centres to which National Service men are sent for a period of their training, and increasing numbers are attending our towers, although they are frequently in the district for some time before they join us because they are uncertain of ringing times. One thing they may be certain about is that there is ringing at all the churches in the district for both morning and evening Sunday services.

If any ringer about to enter N.S. or who is visiting the district will contact me, I will provide full details of the ringing at the various churches.

Whether an expert or a learner, a scientific or a rounds ringer, there is a warm welcome waiting at any of the churches in the district. Opportunities for ringing are plentiful, with a practice each night of the week at one or other of the churches within a few miles radius.

G. SIDNEY JOYCE,

Hon. Dis. Sec., Farnham District of Guildford Diocesan Guild.

Ferneover, 130, Ship Lane, Farnborough, Hants.

LUNDY BELLS

Dear Sir,—For the information of readers who do not know Lundy I feel that someone ought to say a word in extenuation of the present state of the bells.

The church was built (my guide book says in 1889) in realisation of his lifelong ambition, by one of the Heaven family, who owned Lundy for many years. He built for the glory of God rather than for the needs of the island, for the church would seat the present population almost ten times over. It is a lofty structure in the familiar Gothic Revival style, built of brick faced with imported stone, looking utterly out of place on the storm-swept uplands of Lundy. The island has always been extra-parochial, which means (I take it) that there are no churchwardens or church council who may be held chargeable for the upkeep of fabric or furnishings.

The wonder (and the pity) is that the church was ever built. The pious builder would have been better advised to have rebuilt the ancient ruined chapel near the Old Light in a style more suited to local conditions. It could have been maintained at little cost, and would have been of more lasting use to the inhabitants and of more interest to visitors—except to the one band of ringers who scored their peal before the elements had time to ruin the fittings.—Yours truly,

Chittlehampton, Devon. J. H. B. ANDREWS.

MOORSIDE SURPRISE

Dear Sir,—On October 14th a peal of Moorside Surprise was rung at Birmingham Cathedral for the first time. Moorside, Oldham, Lancashire, is the home tower of Mr. Fred Dunkerley, where he first learned his ringing and rang his first methods to peals. It was my earnest wish that a peal named after the place where he did much of his early ringing and the tower which he so lavishly improved should be rung. Mr. George Fearn and his band at once decided to ring the method to do honour to one who has done so much for ringers. —Yours sincerely,

WALTER W. WOLSTENCROFT.

Stoke Poges.

A RINGER IN JORDAN

Dear Sir,—As a ringer doing his National Service in the Middle East I was interested in your article of September 17th. I have met ringers both in England and the M.E.L.F. and when we meet we have long discussions on the subject of ringing. Unfortunately these impromptu meetings are far too rare.

Of course being abroad for 15, 18 or more months does not give us the chances of ringing as a ringer stationed in England, but we are all eager to get back home and to 'the bells.'

I, myself, unfortunately get batches of 'Ringing Worlds' every five or six weeks, as they come by sea, but I look forward to reading them, especially any news of the Wigan Branch in Lancashire and about other towers which I visited while in the Army in England.

I am looking forward to seeing my friends in Lancashire soon and to be ringing with them, and also getting my 'Ringing World' on time!—Yours faithfully,

Aquaba, Jordan. B. WILSON (L-Cpl.).

CLAMP DOWN

Dear Sir,—There is no doubt that this 'Clamp Down' (others describe it otherwise in a not too complimentary fashion) is disturbing many bands, especially with struggling ringers. They feel that something useful is being taken from them.

If we go back to the early Central Council days we find that they avoided 'shall' and 'shall not' and favoured 'discountenanced' when methods were discussed.

A very popular description of peals was 'rang a true and complete peal of' etc., etc. No doubt the primary object in the Central Council's mind was 'true and complete,' and pointed out that freak peal ringing was not in good taste.

After all the education we have received from 'The Ringing World' I am sure that no band could be got together who would even attempt a freak peal. Who of us would face the scorn of others? It must be many years since a peal of Grandsire Major was rung. Why? There are many who favour a cover bell, and Bob Triples enables Plain Bob ringers to enjoy that fancy.

We know why some methods were to be discountenanced, and now we have a 'shall not' to methods which have not got certain course ends. Where is it going to end? Mr. Barnett informs us that there are 828 Major methods to choose from. Will these be of any useful service to a struggling band residing in a remote place where it would be difficult for anyone to go out and help?' Their forefathers were Plain Bob ringers and they carry on with the only information at their disposal.

If it's our lot, through business, tours or otherwise, to penetrate into these places let us point out to the local ringers what there is to offer and not have to inform them that there is a 'Clamp'

Bolton, Lancs. PETER CROOK.

'TIDYING UP' OF METHODS

Dear Sir,—Not wishing to create a vendetta with a ringing friend, I refrained from replying to Mr. Blagrove's earlier letter, but as he has completely misinterpreted my statements I must answer that I was most definitely not 'kicking at the Doubles ringers'—I am quite unqualified to do so, anyway—but at the Central Council's erratic legislating.

What I was endeavouring to point out was that the only thing in which the Council is consistent is its inconsistency, and went on to draw attention to a further example.

From 'The Ringing World' reports of the Central Council's debates it appears that a very small minority presents a report recommending new rules, accompanies it with a short statement too technical for the great majority to understand, and pressure of time forces the majority to accept it like faithful sheep, who don't know why they are voting for it except that if those people say it is for the good of the Exercise then it must be.

Technical reports such as methods reports ought to be published long before the Council meets to give representatives an opportunity both of learning something about the subject themselves before they pass legislation on it, and to acquaint themselves with the views of their own Association members, who will then be able to give their studied views. When Parliament has a technical matter to debate the members are provided with a White Paper to enable them to study the subject. Not so the 'Ringers' Parliament'—they must vote in ignorance of the subject and as directed by less than half a dozen experts.

Mr. Blagrove is impatient about the new Doubles collection; so are many more ringers. What the Methods Committee has 'under its hat' no one knows. What rules it has adopted in its selection of methods no one knows. How can Central Council representatives honestly vote on what Doubles methods shall be rung when none of them know what will be produced 'from the hat'? In a very recent conversation with a Central Council member he admitted that most of the members had little or no knowledge of these technical matters, yet they have the effrontery to vote on them!

We are constantly being told that the Council is not dictating what we ring, but it is. If peals rung in certain methods will not be accepted by the Associations under whose auspices they are rung, as they are bound by their rules to adhere to the Council's decisions, then those methods will not be practised and automatically drop out of the repertoire, and beautifully musical methods like Union Triples and valuable training methods like Bob Triples and Woodbine Treble Bob Minor are lost to the Exercise. I have also met supercilious purists who will not condescend to ring Bob Triples, say, even to help a learner. You cannot entirely blame them; that is what your Central Council has done!

And when the Council has completed its 'tidying up' programme what has it achieved? Precisely nothing. Hours will have been wasted and pounds squandered on books of methods of interest to five per cent. (or less) of ringers, whilst the restoration and maintenance of our bells and of our service to the Church as ringers will not have been advanced one iota. Rather let the Council cease meddling with trivialities which cause bickering among ringers, and make the Council obnoxious to them, and do something practical about silent bells and the recruitment and wastage of young ringers, and earn the respect of the Exercise and the Church.—Yours faithfully,

W. BIRMINGHAM.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Vitality Displayed at Annual Meeting

TAKING advantage of the choice of venue that was permitted by a modification of rule, the annual meeting of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association was held at Newcastle Cathedral, after an interval of four years, on October 16th.

Ringing was available from 10.30 a.m. until 9 p.m., except for the lunch and tea breaks, towers open being the eights of SS. James and Basil's, St. George's, St. John's, St. Stephen's and St. Mary's, Gateshead, with the ten at All Saints', Gosforth, and the Cathedral's twelve.

Members of the committee concluded their meeting and dashed upstairs to ring four leads of Grandsire Caters to precede the service in Newcastle Cathedral, conducted by the Provost, the Very Rev. N. M. Kennaby. The Provost, in his address, said, while a single bell could sound very well, its true beauty was only revealed in sweet co-operation with the other bells, and that, too, had its parallel in the Christian religion. Those with special tasks must not remain in isolation from the rest of the Church.

A collection realised £2 19s. and was donated to the Cathedral Funds.

Tea was served in the Library of Newcastle Cathedral, where the Central Council had met just over four months before. As a memento of that meeting a photograph taken by the local press has been framed to hang in the Cathedral ringing chamber, and that was on view at the meeting. The company of almost eighty included representatives from 21 towers with visitors from Feltham, Hillingdon, Leeds, Richmond and Ripon, and Mr. L. W. G. Morris, general secretary of the Yorkshire Association, and Mr. H. Walker, president of York Minster Society.

'THE BARBARIC NORTH'

The business meeting followed tea, with the President, Mr. Richard A. Gofton, in the chair. He welcomed all present, and said how glad they were to have with them the Provost and Canon Stephenson, their friend of so many years' standing. The increase in young ringers and lady ringers was most encouraging, and one of his successors might well be a lady! Alluding to the Central Council's visit, he paid tribute to the work of the secretary, and he thought that many visitors had been agreeably surprised by their reception in the 'barbaric North,' and the meeting had been a great success—not least in its stimulating effect on the Association.

The general secretary, Mr. D. A. Bayles, presented his report for 1953-4. He said that the outstanding event of the year had been the Central Council's visit, and he believed that the hope expressed in his previous report that 'Newcastle, 1954,' would pass into the Council's calendar as a memorable date had been achieved. The restoration at Stockton had given the Association a fine addition, for conditions outside had been improved so that the grand new ring of ten could be used without annoyance to the public. The controvery on synthetic and recorded bells had flared up again in their very midst. The Association had condemned the idea and set out its views in letters to the Bishops of the two Dioceses. The Bishop of Durham, in a letter, and the Bishop of Newcastle, in his speech to the Central Council, had expressed agreement with those views, and it seemed unlikely that the unworthy practice would be extended in their Dioceses. The committee believed that with the publication of a handbook in the near future it would be possible to restore the information not included in the abbreviated reports without imperilling the finances.

The hon. treasurer, Mr. F. Ainsley, presented his cash statement. This showed that the General Fund had improved from £40 2s. 9d. to £69 3s. 8d.

The hon. editorial secretary, Mr. J. Brewster, gave a detailed report of the peals rung. The total of 31 showed an increase of two, but four were rung by Central Council visitors. The peals were rung in 15 towers by 91 ringers, including about 20 visitors and seven first peals. D. A. Bayles headed the list with 11 peals, followed by Miss M. A. Softley with nine. P. G. Draffan was leading conductor with six, followed by R. Park with five.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The President was re-elected, and the remaining officers were re-elected en bloc. The list of officers for 1954-5 therefore reads as follows:—President, R. A. Gofton; general secretary, D. A. Bayles; treasurer, F. Ainsley; editorial secretary, J. Brewster; hon. auditor, J. F. Bird; Central Council representatives, F. Ainsley and W. N. Park; peal referees, W. J. Davidson, J. E. R. Keen, R. Park and W. N. Park.

The District Officers show two changes, and the list now reads: Northern, vice president, K. Arthur; secretary, G. S. Deas; Southern, T. Cooke and E. P. Rock: Eastern, A. Brunton and W. F. Sheraton; Western, S. Thompson and C. T. Lamb,

Mr. W. N. Park, in thankilng the Provost and Cathedral Chapter, mentioned the help the Provost had given with the Central Council meeting. The Provost replied, saying that he was genuinely glad to welcome the Association and his thanks were due in turn for his tea and the collection.

Mr. G. A. Pickering voiced thanks to the organist, Mr. J. L. King, who, while not himself a ringer, was the son of one of their oldest and best loved members. Mr. A. Brunton thanked the incumbents whose bells had been at the disposal of members.

Mr. J. Anderson proposed the vote of thanks to all the retiring officers, mentioning especially the work of Messrs. K. Arthur, W. N. Park and D. A. Bayles in connection with the Central Council's visit.

The President mentioned the voluntary helpers who had assisted with the tea and proposed a hearty vote of thanks to them.

The secretary announced that the committee had agreed that the rules be tidied up before being printed in a handbook intended to last for five years or so. It had also been agreed that the question of instruction and advancement in the art of ringing should be taken up on a much more definite and constructive basis.

Twenty-three new members were elected from Chester-le-Street (4), Consett (1), Fenham (2), Gateshead (3), Gosforth (4), St. John's, Newcastle (5), North Shields (3), and South Shields (1).

Mr. R. W. Leighton thought that it should be made known that anyone connected with the fallen recorded on the Association War Memorial could place flowers there. He himself took pleasure in doing that and thought that there might be others who would like to do the same. Mr. A. Brunton thought that the Association should supplement such individual efforts by placing a wreath annually on its memorial. His resolution to that effect was carried.

WINCHESTER CAPTAIN'S 80th BIRTHDAY

On October 14th Mr. W. C. Lampard, the popular captain of Winchester Cathedral band, celebrated his 80th birthday and such an event could not be allowed to pass unnoticed.

A quarter peal of Grandsire Caters conducted by Mr. Lampard unfortunately came to grief in the last five minutes. In the meantime several of his friends had assembled in a nearby restaurant for a dinner in his honour. They were joined by the participants of the quarter peal attempt and, when all were seated and ready, Mr. Lampard himself was ushered in, his appearance being greeted by a burst of applause. He was completely taken by surprise for, although he knew there was something 'on,' he had not anticipated meeting his closest friends like that.

Mr. J. A. C. King proposed the toast of 'Mr. Lampard,' and spoke of his personal record. Mr. Lampard, he said, joined both the Winchester Guild and the Cathedral band in 1891 and had thus given over 60 years' service to both organisations. He was still very active and only that summer had been on a week's bell ringing outing. Except for rare cases of illness or being away on holiday he had never missed an attendance at the Cathedral.

Mr. T. Parrot then presented Mr. Lampard with a book, 'The Bells of England,' by Tom Ingram—a present from the Cathedral band.

Mr. Lampard, in thanking the company, recalled his early days of ringing. The band in those days, he said, came mainly from Eastleigh and included four publicans. Every Sunday casks of beer could be seen in the belfry. Eventually the Dean discovered this and sent them packing. Another band was then recruited from Winchester under Mr. W. Andrews, who was captain for 50 years until his death, when Mr. Lampard took over.

The Dean (the Very Rev. Dr. E. G. Selwyn) and Mr. C. H. Kippin also spoke in praise of Mr. Lampard.

A second attempt for a quarter peal took place the following Saturday and was successful.

RINGING AND SCRAMBLING

Any ringer who is also a motor scramble enthusiast is well advised to join Wilf Panter, of Exeter, on any of his evening 'tower-snatching trips, when he can be assured of an enjoyable few hours combining ringing with some trials events.

On October 9th ringers from Long Sutton, Bridgwater and Wellington (Somerset) with others from Whimple and Exeter (Devon) met at Luppitt (Devon) for the first tower of the evening. Here the party was welcomed by the Rector, and the bells were soon in motion in the standard methods to Kent Minor.

The evening's 'trial event' was the journey from here to Cotleigh. On the map it lays just the other side of the A.30, but it was soon obvious that Wilf, in the lead, wasn't consulting the same map. His route led the convoy of five cars through narrow country lanes on which no roadman could have done any work for many a day, through a farmyard and plenty of mud, everything in fact except a water jump, but Cotleigh was reached just a few minutes behind schedule. The local captain was there to welcome the party and the ringing included a touch of E. P. T. F.'s version of Spliced Doubles.

From here the roads were quite sound to Upottery with its nice mellow six (tenor 18 cwt.) on which, however, visitors are banned from ringing Minor, so the party satisfied itself with Doubles, but secretly longing to hear the tenor go 'inside.' This was the last tower of the evening, the party splitting up to go its various ways with their grateful thanks to the incumbents and organiser.

OBITUARY

MR. FREDERICK TINGLE

The sudden death of Mr. Frederick Tingle at his home in Ripon has ended a connection with Ripon Cathedral belfry which had lasted for nearly 50 years.

Fred, as a young apprentice in the boot-making trade, learned to ring at Kettering at the end of the last century. He often spoke of the long struggle which the band of young learners faced when trying to master change ringing in the face of opposition from an old 'stoney' band.

As a young married man he set up in business in Ripon in the early months of 1905, and when he retired from business about two years ago he was one of the city's oldest tradesmen.

During his long connection with the Cathedral he was most regular in attendance at the belfry, and after his election as president of the Cathedral band of ringers in 1920 he retained this office until a few months ago, when he resigned in favour of a younger man.

The nature of his business prevented his attendance at many meetings and his participation in regular peal attempts, but he rang a few peals for the Cleveland and North Yorkshire Association and for some years he was a vice-president of that body. He was also a member of the Yorkshire Association.

Many ringers who were stationed in the Ripon area during their military service in either of the two world wars will remember with gratitude the welcome which Fred extended to them at the Cathedral, and the hospitality which they enjoyed at his home. During the 1914-18 war two of his soldier guests were the sons of the late J. W. Washbrook. Fred often talked of their skill with handbells; neither of these talented young men survived.

After his retirement from business because of a serious illness, Fred regained his health and was able to resume ringing. He rang for Evensong on October 3rd and died suddenly on October 9th. On October 2nd he rang for a wedding at Ripon Cathedral—the day was the 52nd anniversary of his own wedding.

It is interesting to record that he rang for four coronations, for the enthronement of five Bishops of Ripon and had served under four Deans at Ripon.

As a member of the R.A.O.B. he was very active and held the office of Past Provincial Grand Primo.

At the funeral service on October 12th the Cathedral bells were rung half-muffled to Grandsire Triples and Stedman; the ringers taking part were nearly all former pupils of the deceased.

The funeral service which preceded cremation at Townswood was conducted by the Very Rev. F. Llewellyn Hughes, Dean of Ripon, and Canon W. E. Wilkinson, Canon-in-Residence. The Cathedral organist, Mr. Lionel Bakers, was at the organ.

The Ripon Cathedral company of ringers have lost a valuable and cheerful colleague. They feel certain that many other ringers will wish to join them in offering their sympathy to the widow and family. R.I.P. E. H.

CANON P. G. WARD

Canon Percy George Ward, Rector of Westmill, Herts, and a Canon of Peterborough, died suddenly on October 6th. From 1927 until 1945 he was Vicar of Harston, and in 1937 he was instrumental in getting the bells of this parish augmented to a ring of six. The old tenor, a pre-Reformation bell by Austen Bracker, is kept in its original state on the belfry floor.

After the funeral service on October 8th, conducted by the present Vicar (the Rev. Mansfield Williams) in the presence of the Bishop of Ely and other clergy, a 720 of Plain Bob Minor was rung half-muffled by C. W. Cook 1, R. J. Housden 2, W. T. Cook 3, T. R. Dennis 4, C. M. P. Johnson 5, E. G. Hibbens (conductor) 6. C. W. C.

MR. RICHARD E. JONES

We regret to record the passing to higher service on October 13th of Mr. Richard E. (Eddie) Jones, of Norbury (Hazel Grove) at the age of 57 after a long illness. He had been a ringer at Norbury for over a quarter of a century and faithfully carried out his duties until ill-health prevented him from doing so.

His peal total was not large judging by today's standards but far more effort went into its composition than is apparent from the figures. A large number of his peals were on the treble, not from any lack of ability on his part, but rather from his desire to serve the band to the best of his ability. His treble ringing was masterly for not only did he put the bell in its place but by a glance or the raising of a finger would pick up the member of the band who had wandered. He was a tower of strength to the band and to the conductor, yet he never sought the limelight for himself and was always ready to make room for someone else. Of recent years when a peal has been rung at Norbury we have never been more satisfied than when we have heard that he listened to it and found the ringing up to standard.

His service to the community at large was none the less faithful and he was for some years the Superintendent of the Hazel Grove Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, and during the war years was concerned in A.R.P. work.

He was laid to rest within the sound of the bells he loved so well on Saturday, October 16th, and as the cortege approached the church the half-muffled bells were rung to 'whole pull and stand.' The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. E. Taylor) assisted by the Rev. W. Plimley and attended by many friends, ringers and members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. He was carried to his last rest by members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and a course of Grandsire Triples was rung at the graveside by four members of the Chester Guild, of which he was a member for over 25 years.

He leaves a widow, a son (Mr. Basil Jones, who is well known to many) and a daughter, and to them heartfelt sympathy is extended.
C. K. L.

THE LATE MR. J. F. PRIEST

Dear Sir,—It might be of interest to recall that I met the late Mr. Priest when on holiday at Cape Town in 1947. He was then living with relatives at Lansdowne, Cape Flats. I was taken there by his niece, a Mrs. Pfister, with whom he formerly lodged. He had the misfortune to lose a leg at the age of 81, as a result of an injury due to a fall. This was about 1945 and I believe he had been bedridden ever since.

Mr. Priest told me he had been a locomotive driver until he retired. He mentioned that the last peal he took part in before leaving England was one of Treble Bob Royal at St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington, in 1890, and he rang the treble. Ringing at Woodstock was then at a low ebb. Mr. Priest had not rung there since his fall.

In response to my inquiry about other survivors of the 1904 peal, I was able to meet Mrs. Murray, who told me her husband had passed away in June of the previous year. She mentioned that St. Mary's, Woodstock, was the third church dedicated to St. Mary at which her husband had been a regular ringer, the other two being at Edinburgh and Glasgow.

The only other survivor of the 1904 Woodstock peal whom I have met was Mr. Collins, who, I believe, shared the ringing of the tenor. I met him in Johannesburg about 1941 where he had a jewellery business. I do not know when he settled there, but he was from Australia originally.—Yours faithfully,
C. CHAMBERS.

Durban.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFEICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2274 Vol. L. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

ANOTHER NOTABLE CLERIC

AMONG the contemporaries of the immortal Fabian Stedman were two clerical gentlemen, both of whom were of some note in the Church and both of whom made no small contribution to the advancement of the art of change ringing. Of these two, the first, Richard Duckworth, is perhaps the more important, for he was, it is now accepted, the author of the first text book ever written on change ringing. The second notable priest was Samuel Scattergood.

Scattergood was born in 1646 at Winwick, in Northamptonshire, where his father, Anthony Scattergood, was Rector. Anthony was a well-known divine and one with influential friends; and his integrity and scholarship were recognised when in 1662 he was entrusted with the task of seeing the revised Book of Common Prayer through the press. Samuel, his son, was destined for the Church, and was, in 1664, admitted a student at Trinity College, Cambridge, at the same time as Isaac Newton. He graduated B.A. in 1665 and M.A. in 1669, and his progress marked him as a man of great learning and scholarship. He was elected a fellow of his college in 1668, and in the next year, at the opening of the Sheldonian Theatre, he and his father were incorporated members of the University of Oxford.

Having taken orders, he was for three years Vicar of St. Mary's, Lichfield, after which period he was appointed Rector of Blockley. Where he began his ringing is not known, but it is clear that his interest in the art was stimulated by his residence at Cambridge and his intimacy with Fabian Stedman, for when Stedman published his 'Campanalogia' in 1667 he included in it 'Seventeen Peals composed at Cambridge by Mr. S.S.' These 'peals,' which are, of course, extents of Doubles, are interesting in their construction and for their quaint names, but they are of little practical value to-day. One of them, Winwick Doubles, is clearly named after Samuel's birthplace, and another, called 'Jumping Doubles,' is an experiment in making the treble move into two positions at a blow. Perhaps the most interesting feature is the construction of six-scores by joining together different kinds of leads, the earliest examples we have of a plan that has led to the development of modern spliced ringing.

In 1672 Scattergood joined the College Youths, but he seems never to have resided in London. Little, of course, can be traced of his practical ringing activity, but there can be no doubt that he was no mean exponent of the art, and his connection with Stedman suggests that he visited Leicester with Fabian in 1669. This is made more probable by the fact that in 1686 Scattergood took a band from Leicester to Solihull to try out the new eight bells cast for St. Alphege's Church by Henry Bagley. There remains at Solihull a declaration in Samuel Scattergood's own handwriting giving testimony to the excellence of Bagley's work, in which document the worthy cleric says that he is able to 'judg all ye sd. 8 Bells to be well and workmanlike made, every way right for tone and metall, ye chearfullest & best Ring of Bells for their weight that I have ever heard.' Here is one of the very earliest, and one of the most downright, pieces of criticism we have of bells and bellhanging.

Samuel was a great scholar and a notable preacher, but he was far from a dull pedant, and the phrase 'cheerfullest and best' seems to carry in it some clue to his own vivacity and vigorous outlook. And in this connection it is interesting to read a passage quoted by Trollope from one of Scattergood's sermons, a discourse in which the long-faced puritan is reproved. It reads: '. . . The too hard censors of our age whose religion consists chiefly in sour looks, demure carriage and a different garb from the rest of the world; who will needs have Heaven peopled with none but morose and ill-natured persons . . . that will not allow a disciple of Christ to laugh.'

No portrait of this man survives, no record of his personal appearance or social habits. The 3rd bell at Blockley bears his name, and at this church they will show to the visitor a letter written by Anthony to his son Samuel when the younger man was at Cambridge; and comparison of this handwriting with that in the old book at Solihull provides an interesting study in heredity. Apart from this there remain only the volumes of sermons and the 'seventeen peals by Mr. S.S.' Yet in these few relics one seems to sense a briskness, a vitality, as if he found many things 'ye chearfullest and best' in the momentous days in which he lived. And one is left with the feeling that he would have been good to know.

Mr. Eric N. Harrison, one of Tyneside's most promising ringers, joined the Royal Marines near Exeter for his National Service this week. He took part in a farewell peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major on October 28th at St. John-the-Baptist's, Newcastle.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Good progress has been made at Cambridge since the bells at St. Mary's have been restored. Probably in their long history, which dates from 1724, Cambridge Youths have for the first time a Stedman Cinques band.

The ringer of the 3rd in the College Youths' peal at Bristol on October 2nd was John M. Stallard.

Assuming on instructions the conductor's duty of sending us a report of a peal at Heptonstall, our correspondent suggests that it is at week-ends that Ted does his Mum's washing!

The peals at Fulney, Wolstanton and Bramham (see issue October 22nd) were the first there since the last war and the peal at Coalbrookdale on October 2nd was the 100th on the bells, writes the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead.

Mr. Jack L. Millhouse, of Lincoln, will receive many congratulations on ringing his 500th peal. He writes: 'With regard to Arthur V. Pearson blaming George E. Fearn for his list, I am afraid I, too, must partly blame George E. Fearn and George E. Feirn.'

A machine compositor takes Mr. E. Barnett to task in suggesting that the cost of a single peal report costs nearly as much as half a page of ordinary matter. If column was substituted for page the statement would be nearer the mark.

When Commemoration Day was observed at Rye Grammar School on October 5th the bells were rung by a mixed band of past and present scholars. Ringing consisted of Rounds, Call Changes, Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, and Grandsire Triples. The band consisted of Pat Forster, Margaret Twidale, Christine Vollans, Jennifer Southerden, Jean Morrison, Ruth Carey, D. Jackson, D. Hodgson, R. Hodgson, J. Moore, J. Small and H. Bourn.

The Armistice Sunday broadcast service on the West Region is to be from Castle Cary at 9.30 a.m. on November 7th. The bells will be on the air prior to the service.

Mr. Roland F. Eccles, of 22, Walton Avenue, Morecambe, has been appointed 'Ringing World' representative for the Lancaster Branch of the Lancashire Association.

The Rev. K. W. H. Felstead writes that he has recorded 46 peals at St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, from 1762 onwards and not one is Stedman Caters, so Mr. Farmer is probably right in thinking the recent peal to be the first in the tower.

The appeal on behalf of Freshwater, Isle of Wight, bells last year was so successful that sufficient funds were available to provide an oak screen at the east end of the ringing chamber. This was dedicated by the Rector (Canon R. P. Dodd) at Evensong on October 24th at the request of the chief ringer (Mr. F. A. Green).

Of the 42 members who attended the joint meeting of the Northern District of the Herts County Association and the Biggleswade District of the Bedfordshire Association at Hitchin on October 23rd over half were under 21 years of age. Twenty towers were represented. Ringing included a course of Pudsey and Bristol Surprise.

Hearty congratulations to Tom Cullingworth, who rang the tenor at Dunstable, Beds, to Bristol, for his 250th peal. A member of the band writes that Tom's brilliant performance on the tenor and the faultless ringing of the ever resourceful Eddie Jeffries on the 7th resulted in a peal on that grand ring of bells that they would all long remember.

FIRST DINNER OF ESSEX ASSOCIATION

AT Chelmsford on October 9th another page in the history of the Essex Association was filled, when in the mellow surroundings of the Picture Room of the Shire Hall, with its gleaming silver and shining glass, members gathered to dine together for the first time. It was very fitting that the dinner should be held under the shadow of the Cathedral, the Mother Church of the Diocese, for it brought home to the members the foremost object of the Association is the worship of God and that its social activities take second place.

The festivities started with Choral Evensong in the Cathedral with the superb singing which is associated with Evensong in Chelmsford Cathedral. Afterwards the bells of the Cathedral and of the Parish Churches of Great Baddow and Writtle were available for use by members.

The Master (Mr. R. C. Heazel) accompanied by Mrs. Heazel, presided at dinner, supported by the following officers of the Association:—Messrs. L. W. Wiffen and L. J. Clark (vice-presidents), Mr. H. Turner (Deputy Master), Mr. F. V. Gant (hon. secretary and treasurer), Miss H. G. Snowden, Messrs. H. J. Millatt, J. H. Crampion and E. W. Roast (District Masters). The guests included the Provost of Chelmsford (the Very Rev. G. E. Gordon) and Mrs. Gordon, the Archdeacon of Southend (the Ven. W. N. Welch) and Mrs. Welch.

PART OF CULTURAL HERITAGE

The Master, before proposing the toast of 'Church and State,' reminded the assembly that this was the first dinner organised by the Essex Association and that thanks were due to the hon. secretary of the Association (Mr. F. V. Gant) for the hard work and long hours spent in organising the function. Dealing with the State first, Mr. Heazel referred to the British heritage, which was a noble one, and that Britain had the highest state of civilisation in the world. Bell ringing was an art peculiar to these islands and formed part of the culture of the British heritage. The British people had a superlative example in religious behaviour in Her Majesty the Queen, who found among her heavy and onerous State duties time consistently to attend Divine worship wherever she might be, and we should follow her great example. Turning to the Church, Mr. Heazel said it did not matter whether they rang in a humble steeple or in the stately tower, the aim should be that the bells of every tower should be rung regularly for service on Sunday.

In coupling the Provost's name with the toast, Mr. Heazel thanked him for the interest he had taken in the Association since he came to the Diocese, and for the enthusiasm and drive he was applying in formulating the plans to provide money for the building of a new Cathedral at Chelmsford, which would be worthy of the Diocese and which would provide a spiritual centre for the work which the Bishop had undertaken in this great Diocese with its many problems.

The Provost, in his reply, said that the Church of England was a great Church for tradition. While they clung to the traditions of the past they always welcomed the future and looked forward to new ideas and new blood infusing through the Church's veins. The aim of the Association should always be service to the Church, fellowship with each other, and loyalty to the nation. The motto which should always be before them should be 'We' rather than 'I'; the team rather than the individual.

ARCHDEACON'S HEINOUS CRIME

The toast 'The Essex Association' was proposed by the Archdeacon of Southend. He prefaced his remarks with a confession that at his last church he had installed an amplifying system, which broadcasted bells to the parish. In mitigation of what, to the assembly, appeared to be a heinous crime, he pleaded that the single bell in the steeple made such a discordant sound that extreme measures had to be employed.

The Archdeacon continued that just as the clergy practised their vocation in life, ringers should follow theirs. Ringers were just as much part of the Church as were the organists, the churchwardens, the choir, the sidesmen and the vergers. They all had a part to play in the worship and life of the Church. Just as an engine would not function correctly if a part was missing, the Church could not continue efficiently without the aid of bell ringers.

Mr. F. V. Gant, the hon. secretary, who replied, said that the foremost aim of the Association was that Sunday service ringing should be consistently carried out, and the Association should not rest until every church had a regular service band of its own. The gathering and the spirit of the evening more than repaid him for the time he had put into the effort. He trusted that this first annual dinner would be the beginning of a long line of similar functions, which would increase in magnitude and draw in many other of their civic and ecclesiastical friends in the years to come.

The toast of 'The Visitors and the Artistes' was proposed by Mr. H. Turner, the Deputy Master. He had a special word of welcome for the clergy present. The guests and ringers' wives gave great encouragement by their presence and the artistes by the splendid rendering of their various items had set a very high standard and gave great pleasure.

Replying on behalf of the visitors, Dr. Armstrong Gibbs thanked the Association.

The entertainment was delightful and varied. A course of Grandsire Caters 'in hand' was rung by Miss H. G. Snowden and Messrs. L. J. Clark, H. Turner, L. W. Wiffen and F. V. Gant. Dr. Armstrong-Gibbs gave his usual immaculate interpretation of two well-known extracts from the sonatas of Chopin, and other lovely melodies. Miss Joan Edwards splendidly rendered a number of songs in a serious vein, while Mrs. Horsnell sang lighter songs. The Misses Pauline and Jane Ashley proved a splendid combination on the violin and piano.

At the conclusion of dinner, bouquets of roses were presented by the Master, on behalf of the Association, to Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. Welch: the bouquets and floral table decorations were exquisitely carried out by Mrs. Blake, wife of the secretary of the North-Western District.

THE BELLE-RINGER

'Twas eight and twenty years ago
That I myself began to show
Some aptitude for belles.
'Tis true I've never rung a peal,
But all the same, that's how I feel—
Affinity with belles.
Although I've never manned a rope
I never quite gave up the hope
Of cultivating belles.
And then—upon one fateful day
A lifetime's chance just came my way.
I found a belle, with slender waist,
In form and fashion very chaste.
And, what encouraged me the more—
This belle a muffled clapper wore.
I've always loved a gentle voice—
And so I made my final choice.
The jeweller was firm but kind
And I, poor fool, was weak and blind.

Who cares? the Bank can go to ——!
By Gimini! I'll ring my belle.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Extract from 'The Ringing World' November 6th, 1914

THE BELLS OF LUNDY ISLAND

Dear Sir,—It is with regret that we note from your valued paper of the apparent impossibility of getting anyone over to this island for the purpose of making heard this beautiful ring of bells. For your information we may say that this ring was turned out of our foundry, and was made entirely to the design of Mr. Evans himself. We have received ample testimony of their beautiful and melodious tone from people who have heard them out at sea. To our minds it does seem a shame that something cannot be done to have these bells rung more frequently. Perhaps the airing of the matter may lead to some tangible suggestion being put forward for the elucidation of this problem.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES CARR, LIMITED.

[These bells were the subject of recent correspondence in 'The Ringing World.' Charles Carr, Limited, a Smethwick firm, are still in existence but have ceased their bellfounding activities.]

OBITUARY

MR. GEORGE READER BAILEY

The Norwich Diocesan Association mourns the passing of a very fine ringer and friend in Mr. George Reader Bailey, who died at his home at Wroxham on October 14th. He was 63.

Mr. Bailey learned to ring at Rickinghall, Suffolk, while a schoolboy and was elected a member of the Association in 1907. His first peal was rung the next year and the local band made such progress that George conducted a seven-method peal there early in 1914.

Returning from service in the first world war, Mr. Bailey lived for some years at Leiston and took advantage of the opportunities afforded by the talented band already established there. In 1927, moving to Norwich, George became a most helpful member of the St. Peter Mancroft Guild. Five years later he was living at Wroxham and there he trained and maintained a service band capable of ringing a number of Minor methods up to London Surprise.

A splendid striker, especially at the heavy end, George Bailey's 254 peals for the Norwich Association and 37 for the Suffolk Guild contained many fine performances. He had, too, conducted a number of peals of Major and Minor, but he was always ready to leave the calling to others.

Mr. Bailey was a constant supporter of Association meetings, and his quiet, unassuming disposition endeared him to all and earned their respect. The Association honoured him by electing him a member of the Standing Committee, and he served also for many years on the committee of the Northern Branch.

At the funeral service at Wroxham Church on October 18th, ringers were present from Northrepps, Norwich, and the local band. In the evening a memorial peal was rung at Hethersett, and muffled ringing took place at Wroxham.

There are too few men of the stamp of George Bailey in our belfries to-day; cheerful, modest men, striving for the highest standards, men with the ability and will to teach, with a deep sense of duty and devotion to the Church.

MR. RALPH TAYLOR

The death took place in his sleep after a short illness on October 16th of Mr. Ralph Taylor, conductor for 30 years at St. George's, Mossley, Lancs, and a ringer in the tower for 63 years. He was 80 years of age.

In his long period of service it is calculated that he climbed over a quarter of a million steps to ring St. George's bells. He had rung for four coronations and in 1951 conducted a peal in honour of his own golden wedding. Mrs. Taylor died about 12 months ago. Mr. Taylor was a 100 per cent. service ringer and had 23 peals to his credit.

The esteem in which he was held was indicated by the many ringers of the Lancashire Association who attended the funeral service on the following Tuesday.

On Sunday evening, October 24th, a quarter peal of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung by his fellow ringers assisted by Mr. A. Tomlinson, of Blackburn, and Mr. J. Burgess, of Greenfield. May he rest in peace. E. G.

MR. VICTOR BENNETT

An Appreciation

To know 'Vic' was to like him. You couldn't help it. I don't think he had an enemy in the world, and Oxford ringing will be the poorer without him. The tenth at Christ Church was his favourite bell, although during the last few years his preference was round the 'front end,' and in the record length of Stedman Cinques there he rang the second.

His first and best love was his own tower, St. Giles'. He was in the choir as a boy and foreman of the ringers for nearly 40 years. It was due to his enthusiasm and efforts that two trebles were added, and he rang in the first peal on the augmented ring of eight and in the last peal of Stedman in 1952. During the last year or two he gave up peal ringing, but it was impossible to keep 'Old Vic' out of a peal in his own tower. The bells cannot be judged by modern standards but he liked them, and if it were possible to quarrel with Vic you could come nearest it by criticising St. Giles'.

He was intensely loyal to his friends and to ringing. He rang the second in the first peal of 25 Spliced Surprise methods. 'The proper way to ring,' he said it was. 'We none of us knew what was coming next.' Only he knew what an effort it was. He used to go to bed and drop off to sleep ringing 'Spliced.'

For 30 years he was secretary and treasurer of the Oxford Society and a most jealous upholder of its traditions. He was a mine of information on Oxford ringing and justly proud of his part in it. If he was a specialist in any branch it was leading up or down, and those who knew him can see him now, bowing slightly from the waist, his eyes on the sally and his ear on every blow. Dear 'Old Vic!' Oxford is going to miss you sadly.

So many beginners will remember him. His patience was inexhaustible and you felt fresh confidence if he stood behind you. Many members of the University will remember him with affection and respect.

He liked his pint of beer, and it was only in the last few years he reluctantly compromised with a half-pint, and he still had his occasional lapses! Smoking he never gave up although he would have liked to. I think it is on our outings, and when we want some good ringing, we shall miss him most. Who is going to sing the ringers' songs, and where shall we find his equal in the tower? J. R. C.

MR. V. J. F. BENNETT'S PEALS

The following list gives details of the 88 peals rung by the late Mr. V. J. F. Bennett, of Oxford, since December 5th, 1908:—

Minor.—Seven methods 1.

Triples.—Grandsire 5, Stedman 18.

Major.—Little Bob 1, Plain Bob 1, Kent 2, Double Norwich 5.

Surprise Major. — Cambridge 3, Bristol 4, London 1, Lincolnshire 1, Yorkshire 1, Ashtead 2.

Spliced Surprise Major.—Four methods 3, five methods 1, six methods 1, eight methods 2, ten methods 2, twelve methods 1, fourteen methods 1, sixteen methods 2, eighteen methods 1, twenty methods 1, twenty-two methods 1, twenty-five methods 1.

Caters.—Stedman 6.

Royal.—Kent 1, Cambridge 3.

Cinques.—Grandsire 2, Stedman 12 (includes the 12,663).

Maximus.—Cambridge 1, Yorkshire 1.

Considerable amusement was caused at the joint meeting of the East Grinstead Guild and the Sussex Association at the tonsorial appearance of a very tall visiting ringer. His hair cut was more reminiscent of an institution than his scholastic profession, writes our correspondent.

A correspondent inquires whether any tower has had experience of nylon ropes, and how they compare with those in common practice.

REDEDICATION

CAWTHORNE, BARNSLEY

The rededication of the bells of All Saints, Cawthorne, was performed by the Provost of Wakefield (the Very Rev. N. T. Hopkins) on Sunday, October 17th, after Evensong. The work on the bells includes retuning, new wheels, pulleys, steel headstocks, ball bearings and clappers.

While the hymn 'Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven' was being sung, the choir, ringers, churchwardens, the Vicar and the Provost processed to the west end of the church, beneath the tower.

After the rededication the ringers ascended the tower and a description of each bell was read by the Vicar (the Rev. A. Barrie Flint) as each was sounded. The details are:—

Treble.—J. Taylor and Co, of Loughborough. Fecerunt. 1859.

Second.—Ditto.

Third.—Ditto.

Fourth.—Michaelis. (Cast at the Nottingham Foundry in the 15th century.)

Fifth.—I H S. (Cast by Godfrey Heathcote, Chesterfield. Circa 1550.)

Tenor.—Fili De Miserere Mei. 1620. (Cast by William Oldfield, of York). Weight 8 cwt. 2 qr.

Rounds were then rung on the bells and the procession returned to the chancel to the singing of the hymn 'Unchanging God, who livest.'

The Provost based his address on the text: 'Their sound is gone out to all lands and their words unto the uttermost parts of the earth.' He recalled the ringing of St. Paul's bells during the period he was on the Cathedral staff.

After the service several touches were rung by the local company and friends.

RINGERS' DAY

Visitors from far and wide came to Cawthorne the following Saturday for a Ringers' Day, and a company of nearly 60 enjoyed the excellent tea provided by wives and friends of the local company.

In the absence of the Vicar, Mrs. Flint welcomed the company and spoke of the great pleasure of hearing the bells after a long period of silence.

Mr. L. Dawson, of Friezland, Mr. D. Smith, of Felkirk, and Mr. J. W. Moxon, of Sandal, responded and testified to the excellent work of restoration by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co.

Mr. J. Fidler, representing the Foundry, recalled his early days of ringing in South Yorkshire with such stalwarts as Arthur Panter, Arthur Gill, Albert Nash and George Hill. A brief account of the work of raising the money for the restoration was given by Mr. N. F. Moxon. Retired ringers attending the celebration included Jack Fish, Andrew Hoyle, Harry Crossland and Fred Robinson. A course of Grandsire Triples 'in hand' was rung by H. Chant, J. Fidler, W. Moreton and D. Smith.

GUILD of DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

There was a good attendance at the Mid-Devon branch meeting at Kingsteignton on October 23rd. The Vicar (the Rev. S. H. Hodges) gave an excellent address.

The business meeting, under the chairmanship of Mr. J. E. Lilley, followed tea. Six non-resident life members were elected.

The following list of meetings for 1955 was approved after a discussion, subject to the usual permission being obtained: January 15th, St. Michael's, Teignmouth; April, Townstal, Dartmouth; June, joint meeting with the South-West Branch at Wolborough; July, Kingskerswell and Coffinswell; October, Paignton, with a visit to Babbacombe afterwards; November, extra meeting at Buckfast Abbey.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

BELL RINGERS' EPITAPHS

Dear Sir,—In Glemsford churchyard is a gravestone to James Albon, who died August 10th, 1791, and on it is this verse:—

'In ringing ever from my youth,
I always took delight.
My bell is rung and I am gone,
My soul has took its flight
To join a choir of heavenly singing
Which far excel the harmony of ringing.'

At Bildeston is a grave iron to George Whittel, who died in 1884, aged 83:—

'These tuneful bells for seventy years
He rang, he tolled, he chimed full well;
Births, weddings, deaths he thus proclaimed,
And others now have tolled his knell.'

I should be interested to know of any other bellringers' epitaphs in East Anglia.

Method No 208, Corrigan's Collection

Dear Sir,—An examination of the above method reveals that the f.c.e.'s are incompletely given in both editions of Corrigan's '370 Surprise Major Methods.'

In the first editions there are listed as bpqs (24365. 34562, 62345, 46325). This needs amending to abdpqrs (32546, 24365, 46253, 34562, 62345, 54263 and 46325).

In the second edition the groupings should read BDN of M. Hodgson's 19 groups given on page 17, Part C, and not just groups BN as shown opposite the method.

TOURISTS' CONTRIBUTIONS

Dear Sir,—In a recent letter entitled 'Ringing World Finances' Mr. E. Barnett makes reference to a strong moral obligation on the part of peal-ringing tourists to support 'The Ringing World' far more than they have done or are doing.

As one who jointly with my friend Wilfred Williams has been responsible for the organisation of peal-ringing tours over the past three years in South, West, and North Wales, I consider such a statement to be in bad taste.

For some time now there have been four independently organised peal-ringing tours per year. Who, therefore, is Mr. Barnett getting at?

For our part, over the past three years we have donated to 'The Ringing World' an average of 2s. 6d. per peal rung; to ring them an average of nine ringers travelled approximately 5,500 miles in two cars with its attendant expenses.

From personal experience I know that the total cost of such a tour is high, and under the circumstances consider that we have made a fair contribution to the extra cost of publishing these reports.

I do not wish to enter into any discussion regarding our moral obligations. Surely the moral obligation of any ringer is to take in 'The Ringing World.' If it does not pay then it is up to the proprietors to make it do so and not rely on charity.

Finally, though we have donated toward the extra cost of publishing our reports, I noticed that they have been 'blue-pencilled' to the tune of at least half a column. In this connection one might inquire as to the moral obligations of the Editor to publish in full any reports which contain a donation towards the increased cost of publication. — Yours faithfully,

DONALD G. CLIFT.

Harrow, Middlesex.

Note.—Every tour has been 'blue-pencilled' this year and some to more than half a column. If nothing is to be sub-edited, why have an Editor?—Ed.

'GIVEN CHEERFULLY'

Dear Sir,—Apropos the letter from Mr. E. Barnett accusing some peal touring bands of not contributing towards the extra cost involved in printing their peals, as a tour organiser, I wish to point out that every ringer who has ever been on a tour with me has always cheerfully given a donation for that purpose when asked for one. The amount collected is then forwarded to the Editor with the peals and tour report.

Who is Mr. Barnett anyway, to be told who has subscribed and who has not?

If the two committee members mentioned in his letter feel that some of the tourists are shirking their responsibilities regarding 'R.W.,' why not ask the organisers concerned to rectify this on future tours?

WILFRED WILLIAMS.

London.

THE LIGHTEST RING

Dear Sir,—With reference to the letter from the Rev. T. S. Roberts I would like to point out that the lightest ring of five in the world now appears to be that at All Saints', Foots Cray, Kent; the tenor here is recorded as being 3 cwt. 1 qr. This ring was restored and retuned by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston in 1951, and the scale of weights, as recorded by that foundry, is as follows:—Treble, 1 cwt. 1 qr. 26 lb.; second, 1 cwt. 2 qr. 23 lb.; third, 1 cwt. 3 qr. 16 lb.; fourth, 2 cwt. 1 qr. 16 lb.; tenor, 3 cwt. 1 qr.—Yours sincerely,

PETER N. BOND.

Hildenborough, Kent.

'RINGING WORLD' FINANCES

Dear Sir,—Two correspondents in last week's issue of 'The Ringing World' seem concerned as to what a certain few ringers are apparently not doing towards the upkeep of our weekly paper.

I would, first of all, wish to express by opinion that this correspondence would be unnecessary if 'The Ringing World' Committee and the Central Council in turn took the advice of Mr. G. W. Fletcher, who has stated, in plain English, words to the effect that a going concern must be managed upon a sound financial basis and be subject to an assured income—and, moreover, it must not rely upon any form of charitable income.

Under present obligations it is fair for any number of individuals to ring any number of peals and expect—to wait for or to look for as likely to happen—them to be published in 'The Ringing World' without contributing anything towards the cost. But if this remark concerns any present-day tourists, how do your correspondents identify those contributions which are sent anonymously?

One must not overlook the popular conception that peal ringers are the backbone of the Exercise, and the type of ringer most desired is he or she who rings regularly for Sunday services, attends practices and also rings a few peals for the betterment of himself or herself and the other ringers.

I feel sure that the solution to the problem of finance has already been put forward and it now requires a decision from the Central Council.—Yours sincerely,

T. J. LOCK.

North Mimms, Hatfield.

Dear Sir,—Mr. E. Barnett is to be commended for his outspoken letter of October 8th, in which he notes that some peal ringers sometimes fail to give 'The Ringing World' the financial support due from them.

Quite likely in most cases this is due to thoughtlessness rather than meanness. Often, after a peal attempt, many ringers of the band are in a hurry to catch a bus or train, and the conductor, preoccupied with other details, forgets to collect a donation towards the cost of publishing the peal in 'The Ringing World.' If this oversight meant that the peal could not be published in the normal way, I feel sure that the memories of peal ringers would be sharpened, and they would remember to enclose the odd shilling or two with their peal reports.

Mr. Willis's excellent suggestion re an annual contribution from associations is not a new one, but was contained in a letter of mine published in 'The Ringing World' of May 14th, two weeks before the last Central Council meeting. My letter suggested that each association, etc., might make an annual contribution of not less than £1 per 100 members.

More and more correspondents appear to be in favour of demanding financial contributions from those sections of the ringing community to which our paper renders special service.

In this connection, it is right to expect financial support from peal ringers and associations, who have a special interest in the contents of 'The Ringing World,' and in the need to secure its future.—Yours, etc.,

N. CHADDOCK.

Rotherham, Yorkshire.

LETTERS—Continued

A DUTY TO LEARNERS

Dear Sir,—Mr. Segar's reply on 'Scissoring' is, I fear, of little help to those on whose behalf I raised the query, namely, the learners or students of method structure, whose numbers are steadily increasing. A letter such as mine was submitted on the principle that it is preferable to invite the original author to explain a point than for someone else to attempt to do so for him.

My point for the student was, and is, that it is superfluous to speak of scissoring at the half lead, once the full implications of the structural nature of an orthodox form of method are realised. I had no complaint about the facts, but rather about the implications of his article. (And it was, of course, for general public interest.) Mr. Segar now, in effect, confirms my contention, when he says that the combining of half-leads of different design was not implied.

Neither have I, as he suggests, any complaint about Double Bob or Reverse Bob in relation to Plain Bob. (See below.) Nor, similarly, about Double Oxford vis-à-vis Double Norwich. Nor do we need him to send us the rows of Major, Royal and Maximus of which he speaks; for I would point out that these may be derived by anyone with the intelligent use of the 'Magic Circle.' (See Corrigan—'Half-lead System, etc.,' pages 66 and 67.)

In fact, it may be helpful here to mention that the number of such rows for any given stage may be generally given by the expression —(n—1) (n—2), where 'n' is the number of bells in the stage. (But there is an exception for the Royal stage owing to the particular combinations of intervals in the Magic Circle.) Thus:— Minimus (3 x 2), or 6; Minor (5 x 4) or 20; Major (7 x 6) or 42; Royal (9 x 8), less a number as mentioned above, or 72 less 18 (being two rows less for each of the nine divisions), equals 54; Maximus (11 x 10) or 110. Now, if these numbers be considered as a series—i.e., 6, 20, 42, 72, 110, the interval differences are seen to be 14, 22, 30 and 38; and that this second series is in Arithmetical Progression with a common difference of 8. In other words there is a mathematical order about this business.

The whole thing may be seen in a nutshell (without any possibility of misunderstanding about chopping up methods at their half-leads), by appreciating that a method may be, in any given stage, completely defined by three distinct factors— (1) The Grid Pattern, plus (2) The Link, plus (3) The Junction. Now these terms are merely conveniently brief ones for what would otherwise be rather a 'mouthful'; thus, the grid pattern includes all the rows in half a division (half-lead for hunt-controlled methods), while the link is the form of permutation linking together the divisions, and the junction is the form of permutation joining together the two halves of a division; the pattern of the second half being always a mirror image of the first. Incidentally, the 'permutation' is what happens between any two change-rows and is by far the more important consideration than that of the rows themselves, the symbols in the row succeeding the permutation being the result of its effect.

From these facts it may be seen that it is vital for the student to realise that the same grid pattern may be used for several methods, the differences in those methods being given by different forms of links and/or junctions.

For example, Mr. Segar's instances of the three methods referred to above, namely, Plain Bob, Reverse Bob and Double—these have all exactly the same grid pattern. The first and third, however, have the same link, but a different junction; while the second and third have the same junction but a different link; the first and second, however, having both link and junction differing. Nevertheless the identical grid pattern is employed in all three methods. Similarly in Double Oxford and Double Norwich, where, with identical grid patterns, both link and junction are different. Similarly in Cambridge and Primrose, where the difference is at the link only. (Other examples may be quoted.)

Mr. Segar's scissoring at the half-lead is merely the substitution of a different form of junction. And, incidentally, there are other forms of junction than the two he cites, all of which yield division-ends in 'natural' coursing order. Mr. Segar has thus quoted some particular instances of a general law.

I feel it cannot be too strongly stressed that technical articles should be, as far as possible, expressive of principles in general terms. There is here a duty to the learner or student, in so far as he should be given not merely something that is part of the truth, but a picture of the truth as a whole, as far as is known.—Yours very truly, A. YORK-BRAMBLE.

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION

A day of rare autumnal sunshine prevailed when the Shropshire Association met at Clive on October 9th. The village is not very easy of access, but for those who like heavy bells a visit is a joy indeed.

Punctually at 3 p.m. the bells were raised, and a variety of Doubles and Minor rung before the service. The Vicar, Rev. F. Franklin, conducted this, and gave a very warm welcome. Twenty-four ringers and wives enjoyed tea in the Vicar's Room, and the Ringing Master, Mr. A. Pritchard, who had been delayed by family illness, then arrived.

The promised discussion on 'Ringing World' finances was conducted with less divergence of opinion than is usual, and culminated in a resolution that all members should be urged to take out postal subscriptions.

Mr. Pritchard spoke of the very successful meetings of the year and the great improvement in methods rung. Some of this was due to visitors, who were always welcome, he said. He announced that suitable arrangements were in hand for the annual meeting at Wellington on January 29th.

JOINT MEETING AT MAYFIELD

A very successful joint meeting of the Sussex Association (Eastern Division) and the East Grinstead Guild was held at Mayfield on October 23rd, when about 42 members attended. This was the first joint meeting since 1945.

All ringers were catered for by their respective Ringing Masters, Mr. L. Giles for the Division and Mr. E. Ladd for the Guild. Ringing included rounds for the learners, Grandsire, Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob, and Stedman, Cambridge and a course of Superlative.

Tea was taken at Lester's Cafe, kindly arranged by the local captain, Mr. W. Kitchenside, after which ringing continued until 8 p.m.

LEEDS AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

Liversedge's Message to the Exercise

'These eight bells were cast in 1814 and 1815 with brass ordnance taken at Genoa.' Thus runs the inscription on the tenor at Liversedge, where the Society held its meeting on October 23rd. The inclement weather was probably responsible for the poor attendance but those who braved the elements certainly had a very good time both ringing and reading items framed on the walls. One reads:—

'How oft' when learning at the first,
I swallowed many a tempting curse;
And often when I tried to ring,
I thought I'd never learn the thing;
But perseverance is my motto—
Now the rudiments are blotto.'

Another gives this homily:—

'Regularity in attendance.
Industry in learning method.
Neat handling of the rope.
Good striking.
Enthusiasm.
Respect of brother ringers.'

The bells were raised in peal shortly after 3 p.m. and fully occupied till 5 p.m., when members were guests of the local company and their good ladies for tea. The business meeting followed with the president in the chair, when the usual routine affairs were quickly disposed of. The vote of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells, to the local company for their arrangements and generous hospitality, and to the ladies who served at the tables for their efficient ministrations, was ably proposed by Mr. H. Lofthouse and seconded by Mr. L. Drake. Mr. E. Betts replied and extended a hearty welcome to the Society.

Three new members were elected—Miss M. Fleeman and Messrs. T. David Jose (Bromley) and E. Burnett (Darlington).

The next meeting is due to be held at Headingley St. Chad's on November 27th.

After the meeting a well-struck touch on handbells was rung by T. W. Strangeway 1-2, F. Hodgson 3-4, R. B. Cooke 5-6, G. Benfield 7-8. Further ringing included a touch of Duffield. I. S.

ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD SOCIETY

It says much for the popularity of the pretty Staffordshire village of Brewood with its fine Parish Church and grand ring of eight bells that, despite a wet afternoon, the autumn meeting of the Society on October 16th attracted an attendance of 95. Brewood bells (tenor 21 cwt.) must rank among the best eights in the West Midlands.

A good service conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. S. D. Austerberry) followed by a bountiful tea kindly given by the Brewood ringers and their ladies, assured the success of the meeting, and Messrs. C. S. Dumbell and R. Hawksworth are to be congratulated and thanked for their efficient arrangements.

Ringing during the afternoon and evening was under the direction of Mr. Dennis Holden, Ringing Master, who made sure that all ringers present were catered for according to their various abilities.

The next meeting will be at Bushbury, Wolverhampton, on January 8th, 1955.

TETTENHALL, STAFFS.—On Oct. 22nd, 1,260 Doubles (Plain Bob, April Day, Grandsire): R. Humphries 1, A. Richards 2, R Cooke (cond.) 3, G. Newman 4, E. Southwick 5, M. Harris 6. Rung half-muffled as a token of respect to Mr. Ben Dalton, former ringer of the church, who died on October 18th.

OLD NORTH CHURCH, BOSTON, U.S.A.

Mr. Ernest Weatherby, of Los Angeles, forwards us the following particulars of the Old North Church, Boston, U.S.A., the spire of which was blown down in a gale. This was the second time the spire had been blown down.

'I was in Boston some 30 years ago,' he writes, 'and rang in all the towers that contained bells—Christ Church, Watertown, The Institute for the Blind, Groham School and Hungham (a ring of ten). Old North Church could not then be rung as a six-storey apartment had been built close to the church and people could not stay in their rooms when the bells were rung.

'I rang with Mrs. Shurcliff in three of the towers. She is a good ringer and has rung two or three peals in London. She is also a member of the College Youths.'

Old North Church of Longfellow's poem contained a ring of eight bells cast by Abel Rudhall in 1744, the tenor being 16 cwt. and the total cost £560. The Church was built in 1723 by English engineers. The tower was 85 ffet high, a substantial brick structure 24 feet square and walls 3½ feet thick. The design followed the drawings of Sir Christopher Wren and was similar to the Cathedral Church in Quebec, which was also built by English engineers.

The tower was surmounted by a spire, the total height being 175 feet. The spire was blown down in a gale in October, 1804, and rebuilt in 1807. The steeple was restored in 1912 by descendants of Paul Revere.

The lower part of the spire was formerly used as a 'Lantern Light' for ships at sea, and a light was flashed from there by the sexton.

Paul Revere, who was born in January, 1735, and died in 1818, formed a band of bell-ringers. In 1745 the ringers were Paul Revere, John Dyer, Josiah Flagg, Bartholomew Ballard, Jonathan Lait, Jonathan Brown, jun., and Joseph Snelling.

In 1913 the bells were restored in a new oak frame and fittings (supplied by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank) by Dr. Nicolls, formerly of London, and father of Mrs. Shurcliff. He was president of the Boston church and handbell ringers, who had a set of 30 handbells.

BELLS UNINJURED

Mrs Margaret H. Shurcliff, of Boston, writes:—

The square brick tower of the historic Old North Church (Christ Church) on Salem Street, Boston, Massachusetts, still stands, only slightly damaged by the hurricane 'Carol.' The wood steeple was blown over and demolished. There has been formed a committee to raise money to replace the steeple. Funds are rapidly being donated.

Fortunately the bells were uninjured, just thoroughly drenched. They are now temporarily protected from the weather. This peal of eight bells, cast by Rudhall, bears the inscription: 'We are the first ring of bells cast for the British Empire in North America, A.D. 1744.' Funds for these bells were collected in England and America.

Only a scanty undated record is left to prove a band of ringers was organised. In 1904, my father, Dr. Arthur H. Nichols, wrote a pamphlet on 'Christ Church Bells,' in which he says: 'A circle of eight deeply-worn depressions in the floorboards of the ringing chamber, observed by the writer as late as 1862, indicate that their practice must have extended over a period of many years. An undated petition, in which the offer is made to the warden to ring the bells for two hours one evening each week, and at such other time as might be desired provided that the whole care of the bells was assigned to them, bears among the signatures the name of Paul Revere.

There is no doubt that on April 19th, 1776, Paul Revere was responsible for hanging the lantern in the steeple of the Old North Church as a signal of an attack by the British. 'One if by land and two if by sea.' Later Revere became a famous bell founder and sent his son to England to learn the art of bell casting. Of the two hundred or so bells he cast many are still in use.

BATH AND WELLS ASSOCIATION

Ilchester Deanery Branch

At a meeting held at East Coker on October 23rd two officers of the Branch gave notice that they did not wish to be nominated for re-election at the annual meeting to be held at Yeovil on December 18th.

They were the Ringing Master, Mr. Walter H. Poole, and the secretary, Mr. F. Farrant, who would then have held this office for 41 years and, it was mentioned, had only missed two meetings. The chairman (the Rev. L. E. Walsh) commented that this was a remarkable record of long service. Seven towers were represented at the meeting. F. F.

THE SUFFOLK GUILD

It was appropriate that Mr. Ben Thomson, who learned to ring at Kelsale 60 years ago, should preside at the Saxmundham District meeting at Kelsale and Saxmundham on October 16th.

The hon. secretary cleared up a misunderstanding over the subscriptions. These were due on January 1st for the current year.

A long discussion took place on method advancement and it was decided to devote one evening each month for the practice of one method. The first of these will be held at Saxmundham on November 19th at 7.30, the method selected being Cambridge Minor.

Miss Marian Cook, who was elected a new member, has already rung 720 of Plain Bob Minor and 720 of Plain Bob Major.

THE MAJOR HESSE WEEK-END

The annual gathering at Wrington to honour the memory of Major J. H. B. Hesse was held on October 16th, the week-end nearest the anniversary of his death.

A peal of Stedman Triples, on the glorious eight at Chewton Mendip, was rung on the Friday night—conducted by Mr. J. Thomas—after which Mr. H. Baber, the local captain, gave the band a sumptuous supper.

The usual Saturday afternoon peal attempt at Wrington unfortunately came to grief after nearly three hours of good Grandsire Caters, after which Mrs. Hesse once again very kindly entertained the party to tea.

Mr. Knight announced that he had received apologies for absence from Messrs. E. J. Taylor, A. H. Pulling and R. O. Fry. He then thanked everyone for coming, the Rector for the use of his bells and Mrs. Hesse for her hospitality. Mrs. Hesse suitably replied, and said that she also had an apology from Mr. A. A. Hughes. After tea the handbells were produced and put to good use.

Those present were the Rector of Wrington, Rev. B. Lea, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kingcott, Mr. and Mrs. H. Knight, Mr. and Mrs. H. Sanger and Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas; Messrs. L. Derrick, J. T. Dyke, G. and A. Hemmings, G. Prescott and A. Reeves. M. J. H.

WILLOUGHBY, WARWICKS.—On Oct. 16th, 1,440 Plain Bob Minor: P. Westerman 1, Miss R. Pebody 2, Miss D. Elson 3, J. Kinchin 4, E. Orland 5, R. Wilson (cond.) 6. First quarter of Minor by all except 4 and 5.

OUTINGS

EIGHTEEN TOWERS IN A DAY

A party of enthusiasts from Bedfordshire, Essex, Herts, Kent and Northants in a day's 'marathon' tour of Essex, Herts and Cambs rang in 18 towers on September 11th.

The first tower was Clavering (6) with a chute-like entrance to the ringing chamber, followed by Arkesden (6), where a number of dead jackdaws in the ringing chamber aroused consternation as to the state of the bells. A quick inspection pronounced everything all right although a quantity of rubbish rained down on to the performing ringers. A contrast was provided at Elmdon, with a well-kept belfry but an oscillating tower. The last Essex tower was Chrishall (6), where a course of London Mnior was one of the best of the day.

The only Hertfordshire tower was Barkway (8)—tuneful and an excellent 'go.' Everyone had a good pull (for the bells certainly need it!) at Bassingbourne, Cambs (5), and felt that lunch was well and truly earned.

On the fine six at Melbourn the party were privileged to welcome a bride, and the bells at Meldreth were to their liking. A faulty chiming hammer delayed proceedings on the seldom-rung bells at Barrington (5). The five at Foxton are also silent too often. The party were enchanted by the merry six at Harston, and at Little Shelford five-bell experts showed that they had not exhausted their repertoire.

After a real ringers' tea the bells of Stapleford were enjoyed following which Evensong was led by the Vicar (the Rev. H. P. Hart). A quick run brought the party to Duxford and then at Ickleton (8) came the best bells of the day with a perfect circle of ropes at the entrance to the chancel.

Back into Essex the six at Littlebury were really deafening in the ringing chamber. Wendens Ambo (6) and the majestic six at Newport ended a memorable day.

BRENCHLEY AND HORSMONDEN

Brenchley and Horsmonden ringers with visitors from Marden, Burwash and Chippenham, had an enjoyable day's outing in Kent and East Sussex on October 16th. Towers visited were Northiam, Rye, Lydd, New Romney, Hythe, Cheriton and Woodchurch. Ringing ranged from rounds to London Minor and Superlative.

CORSTON, NEAR BATH

A good day's ringing, to reach which some beautiful country was traversed, was enjoyed by the ringers of All Saints', Corston, near Bath, on October 2nd.

During the morning ringing took place at Greinton and St. George's, Wilton. After lunch at the top of Brendon Hills at Raleigh's Cross, visits were paid to Timberscombe, Wootton Courtenay, Luccombe and Portlock. At Selworthy Mr. E. J. Taylor and his family joined the party and, after a welcome cream tea, the pleasant six at the Parish Church were rung.

The last stand of the day was at a 'local' at Glastonbury and here, after the usual rounds, Mr. L. R. Taylor thanked the organiser for planning a most enjoyable day.

Long Pendulums

Dear Sir,—If correspondents are interested in longer pendulums than 13 ft., the clock in the tower of St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, is fitted with a pendulum of 52 ft. 2 ins., beating four seconds a minute. The clock strikes ding dong quarters and was made by Briant, Hertford.—Yours truly,

ERNEST WEATHERBY.

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH GUILD

Winchester District

Because the bells are noisy in the neighbourhood ringing was restricted at the third quarterly meeting at Hursley on October 23rd, when close on 50 ringers attended; Mr. R. Smith, District Ringing Master, supervised arrangements.

The service was taken by the Rector (the Rev. A. H. Holthouse) and the Rev. W. D. Maundrell gave the address.

The tea was partaken and meeting held in a nearby hotel at which the Rev. C. E. C. Brinkworth took the chair.

Arising from the minutes, the secretary was thanked for his work in organising the District outing. Four new ringing members were elected—Mrs. Knight (New Alresford), Messrs. G. Ponton and S. Lovelock (Winchester, St. Maurice's) and Mr. C. Barnes (Winchester Cathedral).

Considerable discussion arose over the next practice meeting. Some considered that very little good was done for the local bands and urged the suspension of the practices during the winter. The secretary, however, urged the meeting to continue with the practices, but to ensure that the towers selected were within easy access of Winchester. The next three practices will be at Stockbridge (November 13th), Twyford (December 18th) and Alresford (January 15th).

The chairman appealed for financial help for the Preston Candover Bell Fund and was promised £5. A collection for this fund was also taken at the meeting, which realised £1 15s.

NORWICH ASSOCIATION

For their autumn meeting the Eastern Branch visited Acle on October 16th, where they were welcomed with an inspiring address by the Rector (the Rev. H. R. Chisnell), who also acted as organist. The service was conducted by the Association president (the Rev. A. St. J. Heard).

After an excellent tea the business meeting was presided over by the Rector, supported by the Branch chairman (Mr. E. R. Goate) and Mr. H. Walker Jones (churchwarden). Although no new members were proposed for election the Rector mentioned the heartening news that four of this year's confirmees were learning to ring.

A joint meeting with the Suffolk Guild at Beccles on December 11th was recommended.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2275 Vol. L. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1954. Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

SPLICED SURPRISE MAJOR — WHITHER ADVANCEMENT?

By LESLIE W. G. MORRIS

IN this modern age one is sometimes tempted to ask, Has the intrinsic value of Spliced Surprise Major ringing changed? If so, what change or changes could truly be said to represent progressive advancement?

Perhaps the best approach to the subject is to briefly review its history and development. Early in June, 1927, the late Rev. H. Law James published a Spliced Surprise Major composition on the now familiar three-lead course plan, incorporating for the first time the four standard methods, viz., London, Bristol, Superlative and Cambridge. At the time this was naturally regarded as unique, and the following editorial footnote by the late J. S. Goldsmith appeared: 'This ingenious production will be studied with interest by Surprise ringers; that a true peal containing these four methods is possible will come as a revelation to many.' After peals had been successfully rung by the Ancient Society of College Youths, the Middlesex County Association and others, a feeling gradually began to develop that all was not well with this latest contribution to the art—an understandable feeling that something was lacking, in that the tenors only rang the first and last leads of the course of London, the middle lead of either Cambridge or Superlative, and the middle and wrong leads of the course of Bristol—a mere six out of the twenty-eight leads contained in the four methods, or less than the number contained in the plain course of one single method. As time passed on, naturally improvements were made, and subsequently more and more methods were added by other composers. There was, however, very little departure from the original plan until two eminent composers—Mr. A. J. Pitman and Mr. H. G. Cashmore—produced compositions in the same four methods wherein ALL the bells did ALL the work of each method; in other words, ALL the bells rang the full complement of the twenty-eight leads contained therein.

These productions were rightly acclaimed as a tremendous advance in the sphere of Spliced Surprise Major composition, and since that time Mr. Pitman has produced compositions with identical qualities in five and six methods, adding Pudsey to the standard four in the first instance, and Pudsey and Watford in the latter. These masterpieces are quite rightly regarded as the cream of Spliced Surprise Major compositions, not only from a structural point of view but equally because, in order to ring them, it is absolutely necessary for ALL the 'inside' ringers taking part to possess complete mastery over each of the methods employed—a condition not hitherto demanded.

An examination of the Law James plan at once reveals that the same exacting mastery over all the methods used is by no means as necessary by the band as a whole and, as already pointed out, in particular by the ringers of 7-8; and, in the case of a conventional three-part peal, by the ringers of 2-3 as well; especially if the composition to be used is previously studied. In some quarters the view is held —and the writer identifies himself with it—that ringing a peal in the four standard methods on this plan does not exact the same measure of concentration demanded to ring an ordinary peal of London Surprise Major itself, given that the elementary principles of spliced ringing have been mastered.

The one advantage of the plan, however is that it permits of the inclusion of many more methods or, more precisely, odd leads of them, and the process may eventually reach a point when the product could be more correctly described as a composite course than a composition; in other words, a medley of odd leads joined together from numerous methods. Be that as it may, but from the point of view of performance the acid test must be, 'Could the band or bands ringing these multi-method peals claim as a WHOLE to have the same complete mastery over ALL the methods employed as they would need to have in order to ring Messrs. Cashmore's or Pitman's compositions described above?' This is extremely doubtful and, in any case, unnecessary.

Now, the purport of this short article is not so much to extol the virtues of the one plan at the expense of condemning the blemishes of the other, but rather an attempt to set the field of Spliced Surprise Major ringing in its correct perspective, so that the material facts emerging may be analysed with a view to answering the opening questions. The need for both plans must, of course, be recognised, but there can, I think, be very little doubt regarding the respective claim to merit in terms of positive advancement.

The foregoing will, I feel sure, permit of as many or more reasoned opinions as the Law James plan will permit of methods and, having had the first 'stir at the pudding,' I now propose to hand over the spoon to any interested takers, in the hope that by Christmas we may have the best 'stirred pudding' yet.

Conducted by Frank T. Blagrove.

First peal in 45 methods for all, on the bells and for the Guilds. This is the greatest number of Doubles methods yet rung to a peal; each method had its own plain course and each plain course conformed to Central Council requirements. There were no bobs used throughout the peal, and no method was the bob lead of another method.

LATE NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Poole, of Leicester, will receive many congratulations on ringing 100 peals together in the first 10 months of this year. Never before has the felicity of married life been expressed in this manner.

BELFRY GOSSIP

A performance of outstanding merit has taken place at Stanwell, Middlesex, by a peal of Spliced Doubles in 45 methods, the greatest number of Doubles yet rung to a peal. What is more remarkable is that the conductor, Mr. Frank T. Blagrove, rang two of the working bells. There were 345 changes of method and no bobs were used throughout the peal and no method was the bob lead of another method. There is no other word than 'uncanny' to describe this feat.

The peal at Heydour, Lincs, on October 30th was arranged for Mr. C. A. Manning and Mr. Harold Huxley from Warwickshire, and Mr. Harry Barnes from Stainton, near Rotherham.

The first peal of Superlative at Stranton (West Hartlepool) was rung there on June 27th, 1925, during a North of England ringing tour (see footnote on page 707).

A ringer who once rocked Stradbroke tower has offered to ring Debenham tenor to 27.000 changes. Any offers to stand in? Suffolk ringers wonder if Pat will ring the seventh for him.

By conducting the peal at Itchingfield Mr. W. L. Weller joins the ranks of the few who have called their fathers' first peal. Congratulations to Mr. F. L. Weller on ringing his first peal in fine style at the age of 58.

We acknowledge a donation to 'Ringing World' funds as the result of a bet. A budding author thought that the Editor would look askance at his contribution but his friend did not, and a bet followed. The Editor did not and the payment of the bet has been forwarded to us. Is this what is known in racing parlance as a 'double'? The bet was doubly beneficial. A part of the magnum opus appeared and 'The Ringing World' was enriched.

The back eight of Exeter Cathedral were rung for the first time to a peal of Major on October 30th. On the tenor was Mr. Cecil Pipe and his son, George. Miss Hilda G. Snowden was also a member of the band.

Mr. Leslie Evans, tower captain at Eardisland, Herefordshire, has been able to 'complete the circle' in the first eight peals rung on these bells.

With reference to the article on Samuel Scattergood, Mr. P. Amos points out that Winwick, Northants, has but three bells in its large church. It seems obvious that Scattergood could not have practised change ringing in the church where his father was Rector.

Mr. Alan Ward who conducted his first peal of Plain Bob Royal as a 21st birthday compliment to himself at Worsley, on October 30th, wishes to thank the ringers and friends of the Manchester District for the gift of a wrist watch to mark the occasion.

A banner heading in the 'Sunday Express' reads: 'I can't stand these church bells,' and is followed by a letter asking for a vigorous campaign against the monstrous din of church bells in the morning.' Mr. A. F. Wellington, who has replied to the letter, hopes that others will follow his example.

Tuesday, November 30th, should be a great ringing day in this country when Sir Winston Churchill celebrates his 80th birthday. Ringers will doubtless like to show their affection and esteem of one who through years of darkness and despair rallied the forces of freedom throughout the world and clothed in noble and inspired language the inarticulate hopes of millions of men and women.

BISHOP'S PRIDE IN HIS RINGERS

Dr. Williams' Encouraging Message to Leicester

AN encouraging message was given not only to his own ringers but to the change ringers of the country by the Lord Bishop of Leicester (the Right Rev. R. R. Williams) when speaking at the annual festival dinner of the Leicester Diocesan Guild on October 23rd at the Co-operative Assembly Room, Leicester. The capacity attendance represented all parts of the diocese with large contingents from Melton and Markfield. Visitors came from Nottinghamshire, Northants, Dorset and Surrey.

Supporting the president (Mr. H. J. Poole) and Mrs. Poole were the Bishop and Mrs. Williams, the Provost (the Very Rev. Mervyn Armstrong) and Mrs. Armstrong, Mr. P. L. Taylor and Mr. E. C. Turner (vice-presidents) and Mrs. Turner, Mr. S. Burton (peal secretary) and Mrs. Burton and Mr. W. A. Wood (general secretary).

Following the loyal toast Mr. H. J. Poole spoke of his great pleasure as president of the Guild to welcome the new Lord Bishop of the Diocese and the Provost of Leicester, together with their ladies. It meant a lot to the ringers for the head of the Diocese to be present at their functions.

Referring to ringing in the Diocese, Mr. Poole was proud of the bells, their ringers and their achievements since the formation of the Guild. It had meant much hard work, much practice and much enthusiasm. It was very necessary for ringers to have facilities for practice to ensure the bells being rung properly for service.

ST. JOHN'S, LEICESTER

In St. John's they had one of the finest rings of ten in the country. These had been nearly lost but, very fortunately, one of the first acts of the new Lord Bishop had been to make a decision regarding these bells. This decision—to save the bells of St. John's—had made an indelible impression in the hearts of all ringers in the Diocese, who were very appreciative. Mr. Poole hoped that ringers at St. John's, as well as other towers, would continue to be active and play their part in the church services.

New churches were being built in the new housing estates and it was unlikely that towers capable of supporting a ring of bells would be provided, therefore very great care should be taken of existing bells. The question of St. John's bells had been the subject of a formal resolution of the Guild addressed to the previous Lord Bishop. He was very glad that the bells of Church of St. John would remain to give, he hoped, service for many years.

The new Lord Bishop would meet ringers in the Diocese; their aim, he should know, was to man all bells with the best talent available. The heart and soul of every ringer should be devoted to that purpose in order to serve the Church in the best way they could. It was a great pleasure to have the Provost of Leicester with them. To the Provost Mr. Poole would stress the necessity of regular ringing practice to maintain the standard of ringing. Mr. Poole concluded by expressing a welcome to Mrs. Williams and to Mrs. Armstrong.

'TOWER WIDOWS'

The Lord Bishop expressed his thanks for being invited to such a pleasant function. He would like to thank all ringers for their services, not forgetting the ringers' wives, who often could be described as 'tower widows.' He greatly appreciated the ringers' contribution, by their services, to the work and life of the Church, and, indeed, to all in the Diocese.

The Lord Bishop spoke of his pride in the change ringers of the country and said ringers would have his fullest support. The art of change ringing was a splendid English custom and was part and parcel of church work, even a part of the worship itself. He thought of ringers in the same way as organists, the choir and the sermon; they were all part of the thanksgiving to God. If the bells did not actually bring people to church they certainly kept the church in the minds and hearts of people. He suggested it was a good thing to ring for a longer period before services, possibly to ring the evening before, to let the people know. It was reasonable to expect ringers to attend every service for which they rang, but he was sure ringers would want to do their full share of service. It was discouraging to see ringers walking out as the congregation walked in.

The Provost expressed his gratitude to the Cathedral ringers, who, he said, worked very hard. The Cathedral tower was kept in a beautiful condition. The Provost commented on the good timekeeping of the Cathedral ringing and once more expressed thanks to Mr. Poole and his ringers.

Mr. P. L. Taylor proposed the toast of 'The Visitors,' mentioning especially the Vicar of Old Dalby (a ringer) and the curates of Melton who were present, although not yet ringers. Other welcome visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Milner, Mr. and Mrs. G. Morris, Mr. Pat Cannon, Mr. Holtom and Mr. E. Orland, with whose name he coupled the toast.

AN EVENT HE LOOKED FORWARD TO

Mr. Orland, in reply, said it was the second time he had had the pleasure of replying. The Leicester Diocesan dinner was one of the most pleasant functions he attended and he looked forward to it each year. He congratulated the Leicester Guild on their achievements and, on behalf of the visitors, he expressed thanks and said they would all look forward to further progress of the Guild.

The president thanked all who had contributed to the success of the dinner and social, mentioning specially the beautiful decorations of the room, which had been carried out by the Cathedral band under the supervision of Mr. C. Knight. The effect was truly delightful and had transformed the room.

Referring to his earlier remarks on church bells, Mr. Poole said some bells were not so good, others in the Diocese were not working, some were unringable. They, as enthusiastic ringers in the Guild, ought not to be silent while bells were in this state. In the near future public attention would be called to this matter. Ringers themselves could organise sales and other efforts to raise funds to enable these unused bells to be restored to their proper use.

Handbells were used to demonstrate to non-ringers change ringing and the 'rising and falling' of church bells. A touch of Stedman Cinques was rung by Mrs. P. J. Staniforth, H. J. Poole, P. J. Staniforth. A. Ballard, H. Poyner and B. G. Warwick. On the successful termination of this touch a specimen 'rise and fall' was demonstrated by H. J. Poole, Mrs. P. J. Staniforth, F. Wilson, T. Thornber and P. J. Staniforth.

An enjoyable social evening followed. Music, dancing, many games and a sing-song made the time pass all too quickly and one more 'best ever' came to an end.

STONHAM ASPAL, SUFFOLK

On October 2nd Stonham Aspal and district ringers visited Norfolk on their half-day outing. Ringing from rounds up to Yorkshire was enjoyed at Swaffham, East Dereham, St. Peter Mancroft, Norwich, and St. Giles'. To the incumbents, local ringers, Bill Button and Nolan Golden the party tender sincere thanks for an enjoyable outing. R. E. L.

Mr. F. T. Blagrove informs us that Westminster Bob II. is the correct name for Accrington Bob.

The peal of Bob Royal at Bedford was rung on July 10th and not as stated in our issue of 'The Ringing World' of July 30th.

We welcome to our columns a peal of Grandsire Caters at Wimborne Minster, Dorset. It is about 26 years since a peal in this method was rung on these fine bells.

St. Michael's, Honiton, has previously defied successful peal attempts. Success came on Oct. 28th, and the band expresses its appreciation to the two back-enders (Frederick Wreford and John Quick) for retaining sufficient energy to last the peal, writes our correspondent.

One of the three Quidenham (Norfolk) ringers to score their first peal, Mr. George Herbert, is the son of the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Norwich. Mr. Herbert is one of a keen band of beginners which has revived the art in this tower, after a lapse of several years.

When Pamela Goodfellow, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Goodfellow, was married recently at Iver Heath, friends rang handbells outside the church porch to welcome the newly-wed pair. There are only two bells in the church tower!

Disappointment has been expressed to us that previous notice was not given that Leicester Cathedral bells, with its famous band, were 'on the air' on October 31st. May we again ask all towers the co-operate with us and notify 'The Ringing World' of forthcoming broadcasts.

Sixteen-year Peter Ketteridge will remember October 27th, the day of H.M. the Queen's visit to Sheffield. He, with Mr. S. F. Palmer, the 80-year-old veteran, and Mr. Gordon Chaddock, was in the band which rang at the Cathedral for the Queen's visit to the Cutlers' Hall. The bells were rung until the royal couple's arrival and a few minutes later the ringers were rewarded with a grandstand view from the roof of the Queen and the Duke as the royal pair came on to a specially erected belfry to acknowledge the salutations of the cheering crowd.

ANOTHER DOCTORS' PEAL

At the fourth attempt eight doctors have rung a peal of Bob Major at Great Baddow, Essex. After the peal of Bob Minor, the first to have been rung by doctors only, at Abbots Langley, Herts, in July, 1947, the idea of an eight-bell peal was given up on account of the shortage of ringing doctors. A letter to 'The Ringing World' from the present organiser and conductor early in 1953 brought only two replies, and those were already known. Research had, however, been going on and by that time there were about 20 names on the list.

The first attempt took place on the eve of St. Luke's Day, 1953. At the second attempt Kent proved too much for the band; while the third came to an untimely end with the breaking of a rope. Of the present band three rang in the peal at Abbots Langley. Great regret has been felt that Dr. E. L. Taylor, who stood in all the attempts at Abbots Langley (although living in Cornwall at the time), and in the first two at Great Baddow, was prevented by an accident from taking part in the last two. His place on the treble was taken by the only lady doctor known to be a ringer, who, it is understood, only started to ring last winter, and since the first attempts for the present peal.

If there are any other ringing doctors, unknown at present, who would care to take part in another peal attempt, would they please communicate with the conductor or with any of the present band, who would welcome further opportunities for the pleasant social reunions which these attempts have entailed.

VITALITY OF MAIDSTONE DISTRICT

Success of Second Annual Dinner-Dance

The Maidstone District not only run a newsy monthly magazine, 'The Belfry,' but also hold an annual dinner and dance. The latter was held at Chiesman's Georgian Restaurant on October 23rd and was attended by a company of 80 members and friends.

Mr. Alec Waddington, who proposed the toast of 'The Church,' spoke of the happy relations which existed in the District between ringers and clergy, and cited as an example the Vicar of his tower (Egerton), who climbed the many steps to their belfry to light a fire for them. Boxley recently welcomed the Archbishop of Canterbury in their belfry.

The new Vicar of Maidstone (Canon F. Bennett) replied and thanked the ringers for their kind welcome to him on appointment. He admired the work of the ringers and applauded their desire to have the bells of Maidstone rehung, but explained that there were many other things to be done in the town of higher priority. He urged the company to be proud of their membership of the Church of England.

The toast of 'The Guests' was honoured on the call of Dr. E. S. J. Hatcher, who mentioned in particular Canon and Mrs. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Pratt Boorman and Mr. A. B. York-Bramble.

Replying, Mr. Boorman, who is editor of 'The Kent Messenger,' said there was no greater enthusiast for bell ringing in Kent than Dr. Hatcher, and that the members of the Association were deserving of thanks for maintaining the ancient English tradition of bell ringing. Talking of bells, he said they bore the names of those who 'made me.' This denoted pride on the part of the founder, who knew it would remain down the years and was not afraid that people should know who founded the bell.

The toast of 'The Maidstone District' was proposed by Mr. A. York-Bramble, who said that the District had come a long way since it came into being in 1889. The membership of nearly 200 had probably never been higher. The District had a vitality of which any ringing society might be proud, and which, no doubt, sprang from the examplary energy and initiative of its officers, and not least from one who was until recently the District secretary—Dr. Hatcher, who was now promoted to the office of the Association's general secretary.

Talking about the District magazine, 'The Belfry,' he said that now that the ladies were taking such a practical part in ringing he would not be surprised if the Editor were asked to run a 'heartache advice' column! They might read: 'Advice to the Lovelorn,' and, for example: 'Is my ringing boy friend really religious, or is he trying to get rid of me? He has given me up for Lent.'

Referring to the varied activities of the District he mentioned, apart from 'The Belfry,' the planned programmes of meetings with printed fixture cards, the special methods at meetings, the two series of combined practices, the annual coach tour and the annual dinner and dance, and the recent formation of the Maidstone Grammar School Society. Some measure of credit for this flourishing state of affairs must go to the District secretary. The new one, Mr. Reg Sills, had distinguished himself by attaining this position at the comparatively early age of 23.

Mr. Sills replied, and, in a tribute to his predecessor, said that besides having a hand in everything, most of the unique features of their yearly programme were initiated by Dr. Hatcher. In fact he was the life and soul of the District and infected all with his enthusiasm. Finally, Mr. Sills thanked Mr. Mark Couchman and Mr. Bill Manser, whose committee had organised the function so efficiently.

Dancing followed, interspersed with handbell ringing, some of which was tape-recorded and played back. 'Auld Lang Syne' and 'The Queen' brought to an end at 11.45 p.m. a very enjoyable evening. R. L. S.

THE N.S.T.G. AGAIN

Nailsea was the rendezvous for ringers from three counties (Essex, Devon and Somerset) on Saturday, October 23rd. The primary object was a peal attempt, but the organiser had also, in typical N.S.T.G. style, arranged for visits to a few new towers.

The 'advance party' joined Clutton ringers at their practice on Friday night before continuing to H.Q. On Saturday morning two cars took ringers to Badgworth (5, 13 cwt.). These bells are very rough—the fourth was pulled up with the assistance of a strapper (both ladies!). However, the four bells of the next tower, Biddisham (9 cwt.) went well.

The peal band was completed in the afternoon by the arrival of Cyril Deem, but Stedman Doubles at Weston-in-Gordano were, unfortunately not successful. Undaunted, however they attended the Axbridge Branch meeting at Kewstoke (6) and were afterwards entertained to an excellent supper by Mr. and Mrs. Horseman.

On Sunday morning the six at Portbury (24 cwt.), where there is no service band, were rung. After a wonderful chicken lunch provided by Mrs. Strong, the visitors enjoyed the bells and a magnificent view at Dundry (6, 16 cwt.). Service ringing in the evening was divided between Bristol, SS. Philip and Jacob (8, 20 cwt.), Nailsea and Clutton.

Thanks for a very enjoyable week-end are due to the Nailsea ringers, and particularly to Mrs. Horseman and Mrs. Strong, who provided all the meals and accommodation, and to Michael Horseman, the organiser. M. E. F.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

Learners Prominent in Leatherhead District

Ashtead was the venue for the autumn meeting of the Leatherhead District and about 50 had a ring during the afternoon and evening. This included a large number of learners of both sexes, for whom the ring of eight was highly suitable, though it was a bit of a crowd for the small belfry. The Ringing Master, Mr. H. N. Pitstow, had a busy job seeing that everyone had a ring, but rounds and Triples with an occasional course of Major kept everyone happy.

At 4.30 the Guild's form of service was taken by the Rev. G. J. Halsey (Rector), who also gave the visitors a warm welcome to Ashtead. The lesson was read by Mr. J. T. Symonds, who combines the captaincy of the local band with that of choirman and churchwarden. A sumptuous tea had been prepared by lady helpers in the Church School, which had even the choirboys stumped, though numbers were up to expectations.

Mr. Pitstow presided at the short business meeting and praised the beginners for the way they handled their ropes—a credit to their teachers. In thanking the Rector for his address and use of the bells, he said he thought that ringers to-day were more appreciative of that duty to practise what they preached in calling people to church. Quite a large number of learners were elected.

DEDICATION

MARSDEN, YORKS

The beautiful Church of St. Bartholomew, Marsden, was nearly filled for the dedication on October 24th of the two new treble bells.

Weighing 4 cwt. 2 qr. 14 lb., the treble was the gift of the employees of John Edward Crowther (Holdings) Ltd., in memory of the late Phillip Dyson Crowther, the managing director of these well-known woollen mills, who died in a Leeds nursing home on October 19th, 1953. The second, which weighs 5 cwt., is the gift of Marsden Parish Church bellringers and is dedicated to 'The men of this Parish who fell 1939-1945.'

The congregation was composed of ringers from many towers from as far away as Doncaster and Wakefield, relatives of the late Mr. P. D. Crowther and of those men killed in the war, the chairman and Marsden members of the Colne Valley Urban District Council, and the staff, directors and employees of the Crowther group of mills.

The ring of eight was kept going by the visitors for an hour before the service, which was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. E. L. Facey), who also dedicated the bells following a procession to the tower from the sanctuary, and which included the four clergy, representatives of the other Marsden churches and chapels, John Edward Crowther, Ltd., the Marsden bellringers, Mr. J. P. Fidler (of John Taylor and Co.), the churchwardens and full choir. After the dedication and while the procession was returning down the main aisle, rounds on the new ring of ten were rung by: S. A. Jaine 1, D. E. Lodge 2, Miss S. Brown 3, J. Shrigley 4, J. A. Grace 5, S. Carter 6, H. R. Clegg 7, W. Hansom 8, D. B. Cater 9, J. S. Whitehead 10.

The lesson was read by the Rev. H. W. Facey, of Newfoundland, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. H. Tuff, Vicar of Lindley.

After the collection, which amounted to £27, had been taken by eight of the Marsden ringers, prayers and the Blessing were said by Canon Bellman, Vicar of Almondbury and patron of the living of Marsden.

Following the service the bells were rung until 4.30 p.m. The opinion was that once again the Loughborough firm is to be congratulated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FIRST OF MAJOR AT EXETER CATHEDRAL

Dear Sir,—I would like on behalf of the locals and myself heartily to congratulate the band on their achievement on the 'Grandisson Eight' at Exeter Cathedral on October 30th. Only those who know and understand the Exeter bells realise what a feat this was, bearing in mind that it took them three attempts to get Triples!

With my friend, Mr. W. A. Theobald, I listened to the whole of this peal and, after an hour of settling trouble, the bells were sending out really excellent Major.

Special mention must be made of Tony Price's efforts on 'Stafford' and the Pipes' ringing of 'Grandisson' with their two ropes idea, and I listened with envy and awe to Frank Harris's 'spot on' treble.

A stunt? Yes! But how many peals aren't? Such spirit keeps the Exercise alive.

To those interested here are the particulars of the bells:—

Fifth.—Pennington, 1658. 8 cwt. 2 qr. 'Pennington.'

Sixth.—Purdue, 1676. 10 cwt. 1 qr. 2 lb. 'Purdue.'

Seventh.—J. Taylor and Co., 1902. 18 cwt. 4 lb. 'Fox.'

Eighth.—Purdue, 1693. 19 cwt. 19 lb. 'Doom.'

Ninth.—Purdue, 1676. 28 cwt. 4 lb. 'Cobthorne.'

Tenth.—Evans, 1729. 33 cwt. 2 qr. 11 lb. 'Oldham.'

Eleventh.—Purdue, 1676. 40 cwt. 3 qr. 19 lb. 'Stafford.'

Tenor.—J. Taylor and Co., 1902. 72 cwt. 2 qr. 2 lb. 'Grandisson.'

Yours faithfully,

FREDERICK WREFORD.

TEN YEARS AFTER

Dear Sir,—Just over ten years ago you published a letter of which the following are extracts:—

(i). There are obvious practical reasons why bells may not move more than one position in each change (but I'm not so sure that I am clear as to why only two blows may be struck in any position when place-making).

(ii). Plain Bob Lead Heads. (The Snowdon series on Surprise methods (page 35) states:—'An investigation was made with a view to seeing if there were any other methods producible with similar qualities (as Superlative). Though there are several, many of these being doubtless excellent methods, they have, with one exception, lead heads other than those of Plain Bob.') Isn't it artificial, therefore, to allow only Plain Bob lead heads when there are excellent methods not having them? Surely the method and its music should come first.

(iii). Why is it bad to have bells lying in 7, 8, in Major?

(iv). Why is it bad to have back-handed places?

(v). Why the seemingly artificial dividing of methods by place-making into Surprise, Delight, Exercise and Treble Bob, giving the idea that the former are the most complex when they're not necessarily. And why the keen study of the first at the expense of the latter?

(vi). Why is it bad if the bells don't turn up at the back in their 'natural coursing order'? (And why this term—shouldn't it be Plain Bob coursing order?)

This letter was written by one of the present members of the Methods Committee. As, by the recent action of the committee, he has obviously satisfied himself on these points, could he please now enlighten myself and the remainder of the Exercise?—Yours sincerely,

Windsor. WILLIAM BUTLER.

PUBLICATION OF NEW METHODS

Dear Sir,—I should like to comment on one particular sentence in the Editorial 'Keeping the Balance.' The one I have in mind said, 'It is to our regret that we have been unable to publish all the compositions and new methods we have received.' I quite agree that it would be impossible to publish all compositions that are turned out, and all new methods that are discovered (not composed!). I do feel, however, that priority should be given to new methods which are rung to a peal. If such methods were omitted, it could lead to considerable confusion; it might become possible for the same methods to be rung in different localities, each being claimed as a new method, and each being given a different name. So far as I am aware, however, you have not omitted any such methods in the past, and I sincerely hope the sentence to which I have referred does not imply that you intend to do so in the future.

Relating to the need for economy in space, would it not be feasible for all methods to be published in place notation? This would result in a marked saving in space. To illustrate this with an example, the method St. Wolstan's Delight, published on October 15th, could have been printed in this form as 38x58, 14x58x18x14x58x16 HL7. LE 4263857. Compare this with the space it actually took—17 rows each of eight figures. To assist any readers who might not be familiar with this system, a short article could be written to explain it by any one of the many theorists who have used it for many years.—Yours sincerely,

W. E. CRITCHLEY.

'RINGING WORLD' FINANCES

Dear Sir,—You were good enough to publish a letter from myself on the above matter, and I emphasised the necessity of spreading the deficit in 'The Ringing World' accounts over the largest number of ringers possible, thereby reducing the cost per individual to about the equivalent per annum of two cigarettes.

While I appreciate Mr. E. Barnett's support for the plan, I must point out that he seems to seek to deal with the problem by imposing extra costs on a certain section only.

Mr. Pugh quite openly recommends the imposition of a 6d. fee on all peal ringers for each peal published, and he asserts that this 'would be far better than making a levy on Association funds which are obtained from people like learners and Sunday service ringers.' Well, well, Mr. Editor! So now we know where our Association funds have come from!! Mr. Pugh has told us!!!

I wonder what the accomplished and energetic ringers who figure week by week in the peal records thought of that disclosure by Mr. Pugh. And how does one distinguish a peal ringer from a Sunday service ringer? I have known hundreds of people who rang peals, but I cannot remember one among them who was not also a keen Sunday service ringer.

To classify ringers into sections of peal ringers and Sunday service ringers is impossible, and the plan I put forward of levying the vast sum of about 3d. per member annually on all affiliated Associations is the only sound and practicable method of ensuring the financial stability of 'The Ringing World.'—Yours faithfully,

JOHN WILLIS.

SHANKLIN TOWER

Dear Sir, — Shanklin tower was built some years after the church, and in order to avoid reducing the seating accommodation the buttresses came inside the roof and were gradually narrowed down till they finished off as a straight wall. There is also a cellar under the tower to house the heating apparatus, and one of the four pinnacles serves as a chimney for it.

I learnt to handle a bell there at the age of 16 and well remember when sitting out during ringing feeling the tower lurch like a ship in a heavy sea. The original intention, I understand, was to have four bells, but a ring of eight with an 18 cwt. tenor was installed in two tiers. If my memory serves me right, six of the eight bells swing the same way across the tower.

I noticed when I visited the tower last year that it had been reinforced inside the church. One peal has been rung on the bells. There was growing opposition to the bells before I left Shanklin, so perhaps the peal put the final seal.

Two years ago a student at Bishop's College told me there was some talk of putting the bells in a ringable condition. I sent a donation towards the fund which the Vicar promptly returned with the information that a large sum of money had been spent on the tower, and they were not thinking of doing anything about the bells. It is a great pity, as they are a grand eight.—Yours faithfully,

W. NEWNHAM.

COOKHAM BELFRY

Dear Sir.—It was with much pleasure that I read the letter under the above heading from P. Tocock. As a past member of the Cookham band, and having pleasant memories of the exceptional conditions that are met with in this tower, I would like to congratulate my old friend, John, on the latest addition towards the ideal that he has in mind. Here is to be found an example of what a ringing chamber can be and, dare one say, should be.

It may be of interest to mention the electric fan for use in hot weather and the electric heater for winter use. A very pleasant, homely touch is to be found on entering the room on Sunday. It is the vase of flowers on the table, and on occasion in other places as well. A custom at this tower is to leave the bells 'up' continuously: and only rung down for the occasional periodical inspection.

It is a great joy to the church officials to know of the good attendance of the ringers at the Sunday services. I have known of full attendance at Holy Communion at 7 a.m. after early ringing on festival days. Service ringing is always preceded by a belfry prayer.

Ringers who know John as branch ringing master of the Oxford Guild will remember his insistence on the importance of good striking, and can imagine what his attitude is on this matter in his own tower.

PEALS AT HIGH HALDEN

Dear Sir.—The peal rung at High Halden, Kent, on October 13th, was not the first in 13 Minor methods for the Kent County Association. A peal of Minor in 13 methods was rung at Lamberhurst on November 26th, 1932, and is recorded in the 1933 Kent County Association report, page 89.

When the summary of peals rung was published in the 1950 report, the omission of this peal was pointed out to the officials, but no action has been taken to include it in any later reports.—Yours faithfully,

A. RELFE.

LETTERS—Continued

MY GREATEST JOY IN RINGING

Dear Sir,—Although I don't think I have had 'a greatest,' all have been great joys to me. I tried to express 'one of the greatest' in the article which appeared in 'The Ringing World'—also a great joy—under the caption 'Church and State Ringing' (October 8th) and failed inadequately.

I have arranged a few peals. Early this year I set out to arrange another. I was granted the use of the bells, then the ringers from my home tower—including three in the peal attempt—visited the church on their outing; I was not with them. Imagine my surprise when on the Monday following I received a letter from one in the proposed peal to say he did not think it would be wise, or even possible, as the ropes were in such poor condition; also there were no ringing mats, nothing to sit on, and goodness only knows when the ringing chamber was last brushed out.

You remember the former radio character, 'Sid Walker,' who used to ask, 'What would you do, chums?' Now I ask you.

I immediately wrote to the Rector, enclosing the ringer's letter, which, to a great extent, was supported by the other two I pointed out, however, that whatever happened—short of withdrawing the use of the bells—the importance of the occasion of the peal—a compliment to a very gracious lady—we should go for the peal.

The Rector passed the letter on to the honorary secretary of the Parochial Church Council. His reply was that they were shocked by the letter and its implications, in view of the fact that they had recently had the bells reconditioned and rehung at a cost of £600.

Despite the shock, the secretary was very kind and helpful, and a firm friendship has resulted. He said the ropes had been changed where necessary, some new ones had been obtained in case of emergency, new ringing mats had also been obtained, and the ringing chamber 'swept and garnished.'

The Rector and secretary of the Church Council met and welcomed the ringers, also the gracious lady chairman of the Urban District Council; the local ringers also met and welcomed the peal band.

Whilst all this was going on, one of our 'Ringing Worlds' carried a splendid front page leader dealing with the preservation of bells and bell frames, etc.; it also mentioned the Central Council's handbook on 'Installation, Preservation and Repair of Bells, Bell Frames and Fittings.' I forwarded a copy of the latter, also a copy of 'The Ringing World.' I also forwarded, for their better knowledge, Ernest Morris's 'Bells of All Nations,' and his 'Legends o' the Bells,' and Nichols' 'Bells Through the Ages,' and asked the Rector, the 'gracious lady,' and the secretary of the Church Council, to change round after perusal.

Now, after all the trouble, I come to the object of, I think, 'My Greatest Joy in Ringing,' the letter of appreciation which I enclose.—Yours sincerely,

W. FRANK STENSON.

Crewe.

Note.—The letter to Mr. Stenson contains the following:—

'I am more and more convinced that the deep joy which you all so obviously derive from ringing, coupled with the sanctity of the belfry, makes an abiding impression on your characters and outlook towards life—or am I putting the cause before the effect? Is it your outlook on life which impels you to express through the bells your joy and belief in the creation of all things beautiful? Whichever it is, it has made a lasting impression on me.'

JOINT MEETING AT HILLINGDON

Memorial to Mr. W. Honor Dedicated

The annual gathering of the Middlesex County Association and the Oxford Diocesan Guild took place at St. John's, Hillingdon, on October 23rd. The church authorities and ringers at Hillingdon regard this visit as one of the important occasions of the year, and the service and tea reflected this mood.

The Vicar (the Rev. F. C. Tyler) conducted the service, during which he proceeded to the west end of the church and dedicated a ring of 15 handbells restored in memory of William Honor, who was for 68 years a ringer at Hillingdon, and who died at Christmas, 1952. The bells, size 21 in D, are a first-class ring and will hang in the ringing chamber in a rack specially made for them by a Somerset friend. Immediately after the dedication some of the bells were rung in rounds by five of the local ringers and Mr. H. W. Impey (son-in-law of Mr. Honor).

In his address the Vicar paid a wonderful tribute to Mr. Honor's personality and his services to the church and village as a ringer and churchman.

Mrs. W. H. Coles and other ringers' wives had prepared a very welcome tea in the Church Hall and over 70 persons plus the choirboys enjoyed the meal. In the course of the several speeches made, special welcome was extended to Mrs. Tyler, the churchwardens, members of the Honor family, and the son and daughter-in-law of the late W. C. Parker, of Staines. And, although not mentioned in the speeches, there was another important visitor present, the daughter of Evelyn and Tony Turley.

The evening social, organised by Mr. W. F. Butler, Branch secretary of the Oxford Guild, was much enjoyed. The Middlesex men wrested possession of the cup from their Oxford friends by winning the annual handbell contest (no blood this time, much to the fans' disappointment). Mr. Pidwell, a Pinner ringer, entertained with his violin, and the new handbells revealed their qualities in the tunes played on them by the St. Mary's, Ealing, handbell ringers. Dancing and some novel games were also in the programme. There was some ringing on the tower bells, of course, both at St. John's and St. Margaret's, Uxbridge, with Mr. F. T. Blagrove and Mr. R. Biggs, Ringing Masters, in charge

SELBY AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

The October meeting of the Selby and District Society was held at Acomb, Yorks, where the newly-dedicated ring of six was put to good use during the afternoon and evening. There was a representative attendance. A short service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. D. Oxby Parker, M.A.), who, in welcoming the visitors, hoped they would pay another visit in the not too distant future. A bountiful tea was provided by ladies of the parish.

At the business meeting Mr. H. Morley presided, supported by Mr. L. Woodhead (secretary) and Mr. F. Terry (Ringing Master). It was agreed the next meeting be held at Snaith and that no dinner be held this year.

Mr. E. Hudson proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar, churchwardens and ladies for the arrangements which had made the visit so enjoyable. Mr. H. Walker said a local company had not yet been formed but sufficient old ringers were coming out of retirement and a number of learners were coming along, to ensure that by Christmas there would be enough local ringers to man the ropes for each Sunday service. Meanwhile the York Minster ringers would continue to give assistance.

RINGING IN DURHAM AND NORTHUMBERLAND

By the Rev. K. W. H. FELSTEAD

AS in the case of their next-door neighbours of the north-west, Cumberland and Westmorland, it is convenient to take the two north-eastern counties, Durham and Northumberland, together, but not for the same reason. In the former case it was because peal ringing was not very extensive, but in this case it is because of the close association of the two counties as far as ringing is concerned, not for lack of peals, for the Newcastle district has a very good reputation both for numbers and variety of peals. The number of rings of bells concerned is not very large compared with some counties, but they have been put to very good use throughout the period under consideration.

There were not many peals rung in the 1880's (about 20 in all), but things were getting quickly under way and in the 1890's there was as much if not more peal ringing than there has been ever since. Thus at St. John's, Newcastle (8), no less than 68 were rung in that decade, and a similar proportion to its total number at St. John's, Darlington (8). The great majority of towers record their first peals about that time also.

It is St. John's, Newcastle, which holds the record for number of peals in the two counties —185. One hundred and twenty of them were rung before the first war. It is still the most popular peal ringing tower in Northumberland, for 27 have been rung there since 1946, but the present average is not as great as at the beginning of the century.

This is followed by Newcastle Cathedral, with 97 peals—37 being rung between 1892 and 1914, 45 between 1918 and 1939, and 14 since the war (only one in each of the years 1952 and 1953 and none so far this year, which seems to point to a decline in peal ringing this last year or two—there are indications of this in other places, too). The Cathedral is the only 12-bell tower in the area, but although its total is approaching the century mark as far as the period under review is concerned, I fear there cannot be any celebration, for several early peals are known at this tower and the 100 has already been passed.

Third on the list comes North Shields (Tynemouth), Christ Church, with 88. The heyday here was definitely before 1914, for 60 of them were rung between 1881 and 1912; 25 were rung between the wars and there have been one each in the years 1951, 1953 and 1954 since the last war. This church is one of the five in the two counties which have ten bells.

WHITLEY BAY'S ACHIEVEMENTS

Whitley Bay (8) follows very closely with 87. Most ringers will know of this famous tower connected for so long with the achievements of the Gofton family. It was a great pleasure to have the opportunity of a ring here at the Central Council meeting recently (as, of course, at all the towers we were privileged to visit). At the beginning of the century there were only six bells here, but 12 peals were scored on them up to 1910. The first on the eight was in 1913, and the war doesn't seem to have affected this tower much (least of any tower in the country, I think), for 21 peals were rung between 1913 and 1919. Thirty-nine were rung in the 1920's and ten more up to 1936, when there was a silence for ten years. Five have been rung since the war, in the years 1946 to 1949, but none since. The methods rung here (as at St. John's, Newcastle, and elsewhere) have been amongst the highest achievements of our art.

Bishop Wearmouth (Sunderland), St. Ignatius' (8), comes next with 79 peals. The period between the wars seems to have been most popular here, for 62 of them were rung then. There have been six since 1945. A six-bell tower follows closely—Holy Trinity, Darlington. Its total of 78 makes it among the leading six-bell towers in the country (for, as was said in the first article, only one of these has passed the 100 mark so far). Nine were rung between 1903 and 1910, then there was a gap until 1926, which started a sequence of 32 up to the war, and there have been 37 since 1945—the highest number of any tower in the two counties. There were only two last year, however, and none so far this—another piece of evidence of the decline mentioned above.

Having given the chief peal ringing towers in the area, we now turn to the towers in descending order of numbers of bells, as usual. The only 12-bell tower has been mentioned already. Besides Christ Church, Tynemouth, there are four other churches with ten bells. They are Gosforth, West Hartlepool, Stockton-on-Tees and Roker (Sunderland). As an eight-bell tower, Gosforth scored 29 peals between 1901 and 1914 with two more just after the war. The first on the ten was in 1921, and there were 18 rung between then and 1932. An odd peal was rung in each of the years 1936, 1948 and 1952. So peal ringing has declined here, too.

West Hartlepool shows three phases of activity. Its total of 33 is made up of 23 between 1904 and 1913, six from 1924 to 1932, and four from 1946 to 1951. Thus it was much more popular 50 years ago than now. Stockton has also had its ups and down. Four peals of Minor were rung between 1883 and 1887, then 16 on the ten bells between 1902 and 1909, and four odd peals in 1924, 1931, 1953 and 1954 since —a total of 24 in all. Roker's, of course, are new, and only two peals have been rung there, in 1949 and 1953. So much for the ten-bell towers.

CHESTER-LE-STREET

Several other eight-bell towers deserve mention apart from those above. First must be Chester-le-Street, which has the largest post-war total of peals on eight (and upwards) bells —31 out of a total of 62. This tower is now enjoying its best period in its history. Darlington, St. John's (already mentioned), has 60, 37 before 1914, 14 from 1921 to 1932, and nine since the war. Twenty-nine out of Gateshead's total of 56 were also before the first war and there have been six since the last war. This completes all the towers with more than 50 peals. Newcastle, All Saints', which was destroyed by fire in 1946, had a total of 47 despite the fact that the last peal rung there was in 1912. Also in the 40's is Bishop Auckland with 43.

As for six-bell towers, apart from Holy Trinity, Darlington, Whickham deserves first mention, for 43 peals have been rung here. Twenty-three were rung between 1944 and 1953, but it has not appeared this year in the peal lists. The other towers which have reached double figures are Stella (23), Benfieldside (14), St. Peter's, Jarrow (11, last peal 25 years ago) and Newburn (10).

One eight-bell tower has never had a peal rung at it yet—Newcastle, St. Matthew's. Three sixes are likewise unconquered—Hebburn, Newcastle, St. Andrew's, and Corbridge. Neither are the only two five-bell towers in the counties—Sedgfield and Willington. But six out of 64 is a very small proportion and is another indication of the popularity of the Exercise in the north-east. May it long continue to flourish there.

DEDICATION OF GREENWICH BELLS

The restoration of the historic church of St. Alphege, Greenwich, where Thomas Tallis was once organist, and which was badly damaged during the war, was completed by October 31st by the dedication of the bells during Matins by the Archdeacon of Kingston. The bells, an octave from the Whitechapel Foundry in 1731 and augmented to ten in 1734, have been recast by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank except for the tenor, a fine bell of 23 cwt., which was in good condition, and the ring rehung in ball bearings with iron headstocks. Whereas the old bells were mostly of poor quality, the tone of the new ring is excellent.

Among those present at the service were the Mayor of Greenwich and Mr. A. A. Hughes, of the Whitechapel Bell Foundry. In the course of his sermon, the Archdeacon likened the church up to that day to a patient recovering from a serious illness, but still unable to speak, and referred to the fact that the opening rounds after the dedication had been rung largely by a band trained by Mr. J. Dafters, steeplekeeper of his former church of St. Mary, Lewisham. After the service a quarter peal of Grandsire Caters was rung in 53 minutes by a band mainly representing different towers in the district, Mr. A. R. Ling, of Lewisham, very kindly standing out for a visitor. The ringers were E. B. Crowder (Eltham) 1, P. J. Spice (Bromley Common) 2, F. W. Richardson (St. John's, Deptford) 3, E. A. Barnett (Crayford) 4, A. S. Richards (West Wickham) 5, G. H. Daynes (St. Nichholas', Deptford) 6, H. W. Clark (Greenwich) 7, H. E. Audsley (conductor) (Dartford) 8, J. Freeman (Lincoln Cathedral) 9, F. J. Cullum (St. John's, Erith) 10.

A stone tablet in the belfry records a peal of Grandsire Triples rung right back in 1732, and the walls are covered with boards recording peals by other societies, such as the Eastern Scholars in 1828, down to more modern times. In many of the later ones a famous ringer and member of the local band, Isaac G. Shade, ringer of 1,450 peals, took part, and in the opening rounds was the grand-daughter of another well-known London and Greenwich ringer, the late Harry Hoskins. The local band of their day was something to be reckoned with.

OBITUARY

MR. ARTHUR A. SAUNDERS

The death occurred on October 14th at Black Notley Hospital of Mr. Arthur A. Saunders, of Greenstead Green, at the age of 77 years. He was well known in the Essex Association, having held the office of Northern District Master for several years before the war. Unfortunately ill-health had prevented him from taking an active part in ringing for several years.

Mr. Saunders' peals number round about 200; no record has been kept, but they include several of London Surprise. He had a reputation as a very good tenor man, one of his greatest achievements being the ringing of Great Waltham's tenor to a peal when the bell was not going too well.

Arthur cycled many miles for ringing and was always willing to help the young recruit. His cheerful outlook, in spite of his handicap, was a lesson to all; his interest in the art never waned, and week by week he read every page of 'The Ringing World,' keeping up to date with all that was going on. Whenever the opportunity presented itself at meetings near his home, he was brought along to sit in a chair and enjoy a pleasant hour or so amongst old friends.

So passes on another respected member of the ringing fraternity. May the ideals he so proudly taught and upheld be carried on by those who follow in his footsteps.

The funeral took place on October 18th at Greenstead Green. Several ringers were present, including Mr. R. C. Heazel (Master, Essex Association), Miss Hilda G. Snowden (Northern District Master), Mr. F. Claydon, Mr. W. Arnold and Mr. H. Sibley. In the evening a quarter peal was rung with the bells half-muffled. H. G. S.

MR. FRANK SLINGSBY

The death occurred on October 22nd of Mr. Frank Slingsby, captain of St. Martin's, Cheriton, Folkestone.

Aged 82, he had been a member of the band since 1902, when he came to Cheriton from his birthplace, Aldington. He was the son of Charles Slingsby, famous as the centenarian ringer ('Ringing World,' January 27th, 1939, page 54).

Frank continued ringing until 1951, when he became almost blind. He was able to resume after a successful operation for the removal of cataracts. A serious illness in 1953 again kept him from ringing and although he recovered sufficiently to walk to service his weakened heart would not allow him to ring.

A complete record of his peals is not available, but he is known to have rung at least 15 during the years 1925-1937, plus many quarter peals and 720's of Grandsire, Plain and Treble Bob.

A band drawn from Cheriton, Folkestone, and Hythe towers rang the half-muffled bells in rounds for the funeral on October 27th. The service, conducted by the Rector (the Rev. J. E. Robinson), included the ringers' hymn, 'Unchanging God,' and was attended by many parishioners and ringing friends.

Again in the evening fellow worshippers and ringers attended a special service of remembrance after which 1,344 Grandsire Triples were rung half muffled by: B. Heppenstall (Wath-on-Dearne) 1, C. Swan (Hythe) 2, Rosemary Longhurst (Newington) 3, Maisie Vantom (Lydd) 4, W. C. Chandler (Cheriton) 5, G. Pearson (Ashford) 6, J. R. Cooper (Ashford), conductor, 7, J. F. Soles (Cheriton) 8.

A peal of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung to his memory by a representative band of the Ashford District at Cheriton on October 30th.

MR. HARVEY WATSON

With deep regret we announce the death of Mr. Harvey Watson, of Shouldham, Norfolk, at the age of 72. A member of the Ely Diocesan Association for several years, Mr. Watson was not a peal ringer but was very interested in various methods. He will be missed at the Branch meetings.

At the Branch meeting at Terrington St. John the members stood in silence as a last token of respect to his memory.

At the funeral service Mr. F. C. Price (nephew) was the organist, and Messrs. A. V. Bowen and E. Barker represented the Ely Association. Afterwards a short touch of Bob Minor was rung hulf-muffled.

In the evening a quarter peal of 1,260 Plain Bob was rung half muffled by the following members of the Ely Association: A. H. Bridges 1, W. W. Cousins 2, C. Cousins 3, A. V. Bowen 4, E. Barker (conductor) 5, Claude Cousins 6. E. B.

MR. HENRY J. MEADS

Ringers of Turner's Hill and neighbourhood have suffered a great loss by the death on Oct. 22nd of Mr. H. J. Meads.

Despite his increasing years—at 89 he was the oldest ringing member of the Northern Division of the Sussex County Association—Mr. Meads was most regular in his service ringing and in attendance for practice.

He made no claim to ringing fame—indeed, for a period of almost 50 years he 'dropped out' of ringing circles, but peal boards at Balcombe and in nearby churches point to his prowess in Minor methods during the latter part of the last century. Of these peals he was particularly proud of two rung in one day for Queen Victoria's Jubilee in 1887.

When Mr. Meads returned to North Sussex, in retirement, he resumed his bell-ringing activities, and in 1952 rang in his first quarter peal for well over 50 years. It was at this late stage that he commenced 'eight bell' work, and in February of this year was overjoyed to take part in his first quarter peal of Grandsire Triples, thus celebrating his 89th birthday. His ambition, following this, was to score a peal in the method—a wish which, unfortunately, was never fulfilled because of his ill-health.

So passes one whose example in regular service and practice ringing will long be remembered by all who knew him well.

Members from his own and neighbouring towers met on October 30th, and paid their token of respect by ringing, half muffled, a peal of Grandsire Triples.

Foots Cray

Confirmation as to Foots Cray being the lightest ring of five comes from Mr. C. A. Wratten now serving in Vienna with the Allied Commission for Austria. He comments: 'The bells are by no means a good ring. They have quite a long draught and are rung from the centre of the narrow aisle—the situation when ringing for a wedding may easily be imagined.

'In addition, the front three bells suffer from "double striking" due, no doubt, to over-heavy clappers. I have always maintained that this is the only ring of five on which it might be possible to ring an eight-bell peal!'

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2276 Vol. L. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1954. Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

ON KNOWING WHAT IS GOING ON

AT the conclusion of a peal of Stedman Cinques, rung not too long ago, while coats and collars were being adjusted and the clock scrutinised, some comment was made on the unusual construction of the homing courses, and the ringers of the small bells fell into some discussion of types of compositions and their peculiarities. It was then that the ringer of the 7th remarked rather wistfully that he wished he could follow the course of a peal as (he said) "you chaps do." This is an extremely interesting expression of desire, for it leads immediately to speculation on how much the average non-conducting ringer really knows of what is going on in a peal or touch, and this in its turn leads to inquiry as to why men ring peals at all. Is it for the sake of getting to the end of the required number of changes, with a glance at the clock and a great sense of relief? Or is it for the purpose of enjoying the evolutions of the bells, to note the beauties of the music as they occur and recur, and to watch with interest the gradual unfolding of the composer's plan and its inevitable consummation?

There is, of course, no complete answer to these questions. Every peal ringer, be his knowledge great or small, has certainly at some time or other been conscious of beauties in the musical positions of the bells; and equally, every peal ringer has at some time breathed a sigh of relief when "That's all" has been called.

The ringing of a peal has much in common with the making of a journey with a fixed objective, and brief thought will show interesting parallels. The journey may be made in a closed guard's van or at night in a compartment with blinds drawn. In these circumstances the voyager is conscious to a very small degree of the progress of the journey beyond, it may be, the stoppings at certain stations on the route. The journey may, however, be made in daylight, with a view of the surrounding scenery and complete opportunity for enjoyment of the views unfolded as the train proceeds. Lastly, the trip may be made with a full pre-knowledge of the route, gathered either from a study of the map or from previous experience of the countryside, and with all the joy of anticipation and earnest looking forward to interesting landmarks and features of beauty along the way.

The parallel to be found in peal ringing is, one may venture to think, too obvious to need elaboration. But into which class of traveller peal ringers fall is worthy of speculation. There must be, one is forced to believe, a considerable body of ringers who ring for quite long periods without being acquainted to any useful degree with the plan of what is being rung. This is not to say that they are unconscious of the landmarks of lead-ends or course-ends, or that they do not appreciate the beauty of certain musical effects the bells in their courses produce. But it may be that with some small extra knowledge of the plans of methods and their callings such ringers would gain extra pleasure from their ringing.

Such extra knowledge and added ability may be secured without the practitioner aspiring to become a conductor. There are many who shrink from the responsibility of guiding a band through a peal; there are some who would say, as Alderman Paddon Smith has often said, "It matters little who conducts so long as the ringing is good." And it so falls out that there is a large body of ringers with no great desire to excel in the art of conducting. But to these it may be pointed out that more knowledge of what is going on both adds to the enjoyment and increases the safety of the ringing.

All methods do not, of course, offer the same opportunity for study or the same quality of interest in construction of compositions. The Surprise methods in Royal and Maximus, with their very rigid mould of form and limited musical plan, offer less fields for observation than Caters and Cinques. Without seeming to decry the construction of blocks of changes on 10 and 12 bells, the opinion may be ventured that methods adapted to 9 and 11 bells, with their greater freedom from rigidity and their flexibility in manipulation, provide more of interest to the non-conducting observer.

Thus some simple study of Grandsire Caters and of what happens to the big bells in a course called 9-3 or a course called 89 will give to even the average ringer an added interest in the progress of a course. Some simple investigation into the sequence of treble-place bells in Stedman Caters and Cinques is well within the range of ability of anyone capable of ringing these methods. There is nothing mysterious and certainly nothing difficult in these small matters, but the increased enjoyment in the progress of a peal that arises from this comparatively small amount of extra knowledge has to be experienced to be believed. With this knowledge we may indeed travel hopefully, and (we hope) arrive safely at journey's end, and perhaps cry with the joyousness of the late George Swann: 'I didn't want any clock: I knew what was coming.'

OBITUARY

THE REV. FITZWILLIAM CARTER

The Rev. F. Carter, who died, aged 81, on Oct. 23rd, will long be remembered in Devon as one of the kindest of men, the most helpful of teachers, and one whose quiet modesty concealed real ability.

After spending ten years in South Africa, during which time he became Principal of St. John's College, Johannesburg, he came eventually to Withleigh, near Tiverton, in 1915, and held Calverleigh in plurality from 1917. It was due to the influence of Mr. John Woodley that he became interested in the bells of Calverleigh Church and, after being taught to ring by Mr. Woodley, he made rapid progress and soon was a competent instructor himself. He was for 13 years chaplain to the nearby Ingleside School, many of whose pupils learned to handle a rope, and the school was often able to provide a service band at the church. He served the N.E. Branch of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers as secretary and treasurer in 1923, and as chairman from 1931 to 1940. In 1946 he was elected a vice-president of the Guild. He was also Rural Dean of Tiverton for four years.

At the funeral in Withleigh Church on Oct. 27th the Guild was represented by Prebendary E. V. Cox (President), who read the Lesson, Mr. E. J. Taylor (general secretary), Mr. W. H. Ware (hon. secretary N.E. Branch), and Messrs. A. W. Payne and W. Cockram. Two members of the Calverleigh band, Messrs. R. Hill and W. Greenslade, acted as bearers. The bells of Calverleigh Church were rung half-muffled during the evening.

HARLINGTON REMEMBERS GUY FAWKES

There are many towns and villages where Guy Fawkes Day is commemorated by the ringing of bells, but hardly one which is associated with a leg of pork supper. This is at Harlington, Middlesex, and in 1606 a lady now unknown was so overjoyed by Parliament being saved that she donated a piece of land (now part of London Airport) to a trust, which stipulated that Harlington bells should be rung at sunrise and sundown on November 5th, and the ringers enjoy a leg of pork supper afterwards.

The 347th anniversary was observed this year and it was a particularly happy occasion as the Harlington company of ringers had, during the past year, been recruited to full strength and the ringing, which included 'firing' the bells, was undertaken without outside help. The ringers were: J. A. Nelhams (capt.), L. Grice, J. Grice, G. Dell, Mumford, Ian Gatsford, H. Smith, L. Sudul, C. A. Portsmouth and Alan Sapsford.

The gathering at the Jolly Waggoners in the evening, when the traditional dish was served, was presided over by the Rector (the Rev. A. T. Morgan), supported by the Rev. H. W. Reindorp (former Rector) and the Rev. G. E. Reindorp (a well-known broadcaster). Other guests included Mr. W. H. Coles and Mr. F. W. Goodfellow. Among the many toasts was 'The Unknown Donor,' submitted by Mr. C. A. Portsmouth.

WIMBLEDON, SURREY.—On Nov. 7th, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles (7, 6, 8 covering): Mrs. Sinden 1, M. Sinden 2, F. Corfield (cond.) 3, H. Cox 4, P. Devenish 5, Mrs. Devenish 6, J. Brickell 7, J. Tomsett 8. For Remembrance Sunday.

RINGERS' WEDDINGS IN NEW SOUTH WALES

We send our best wishes to the following New South Wales ringers on their weddings:—

On August 28th, Tom Goodyer and Margaret Winter, at St. Patrick's, Church Hill. A tape recording was made for Margaret's parents in Bristol.

On September 9th, Ian Lipscombe and Betty Sloan, at St. Jude's, Randwick.

On September 11th, 'Bill' Wilson and Margaret Mills, at St. Stephen's, Sydney.

On September 11th, Harry Voss, of All Saints', to Lola Goff, at Lismore.

LATE NEWS

The first peal of Spliced Surprise Major in Scotland was rung on November 6th at Paisley by some of the band that rang the method in England, Ireland and Wales. The journey was made from Manchester by air.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Is bellringing an art of craft or a crafty art? asked the Dean of Worcester when he presided at the annual dinner of the Worcestershire and Districts Association.

The 'Franks' are in evidence this week with a peal of Kent Treble Bob at Kingston-on-Thames.

Mr. Roger Keeley, of Lyme Regis, is joining Her Majesty's Forces for National Service. He conducted his farewell peal at Whitechurch Canonicorum.

A ringing lesson in Aston Parish Church, under the instruction of Mr. A. Rainey, was a front page picture in 'The Birmingham Mail' of November 5th. Learners include choir boys and some of the ladies of the congregation.

Mr. Peter N. Bond, of Gaywood Stocks, Green Road, Hildenborough, nr. Tonbridge, Kent, hopes to arrange a Masonic peal attempt in London or the Home Counties early in the New Year. Brethren interested are asked to communicate with him.

A peal at Loughborough bell foundry was appropriate for the birthdays (all on October 15th) of Mr. E. A. Barnett, Crayford, Kent, the secretary of the Central Council, Mr. A. S. Richards, West Wickham, Kent, and Mr. L. W. G. Morris, of Bradford, Yorks, secretary of the Yorkshire Association.

Mr. George Marriner, of Leatherhead, will receive many congratulations on standing in a peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal at Leatherhead on November 6th. It was the 50th anniversary of his first peal, which was rung at Ashtead on November 5th, 1904, in which his old friend, Mr. A. H. Winch, took part. Mr. Winch was also in the 50 years after peal.

'The last two months have seen a 20 per cent. casualty rate among New South Wales ringers through engagements and marriages. We fear there will be no stopping Love's tide, and further victims may be expected.'—'Ringing Towers.'

In their disappointment at losing a peal at Newton St. Cyres the band did not forget the 'Ringing World.' Their contribution is much appreciated.

Mr. Edgar C. Shepherd rang his 150th peal on 12 bells on November 2nd. His first on 12 was in 1923, the band including Tom Russam, James George, Jim Shepherd (Swindon), Albert Walker and Albert Norman, who conducted.

Commenting on husbands and wives as ringers 'Ringing Towers' observes: 'If the home takes precedence then bellringing takes second place, and pity the poor husband who must choose between steak and Stedman on Sunday mornings.'

November 5th was the 84th birthday of Mr. Arthur Lewis, of Caldicot, one time Master of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association. He still rings for service and listens to a peal attempt. Unfortunately, his birthday peal came to grief this year, but a quarter peal was scored by the admirers of this grand old gentleman.

Few ringers can claim the distinction of coming back to peal ringing after an absence of 12 months and conducting their parents' 100th peal together (completed in 10 months). Such was the 'come back' made by Mrs. P. J. Staniforth in conducting her first peal of London Surprise Major which was rung at St. Mary-de-Castro, Leicester, on November 3rd.

COLLEGE YOUTHS' 317th ANNIVERSARY DINNER

MEMBER OF 70 YEARS' STANDING — RINGING A CRAFT — MORE YOUNG MEMBERS THAN EVER BEFORE — ST. GILES', CRIPPLEGATE: FORMER RECTOR'S ECCENTRICITY

THE accent at the 317th Anniversary Dinner of the Ancient Society of College Youths, held at the Bridge House Restaurant, London Bridge, on November 6th was on youth. The popularity of the Master, Mr. John E. Chilcott, was evinced by the presence of such a large number of young ringers in the company of 164. Nevertheless, there was an appropriate veneration for those not so young, and a great ovation was accorded Mr. John Christopher Mitchell when he rose to take wine with the Master as the representative of the College Youths of over 70 years' standing.

There were other long-standing members present, who received appropriate recognition—Richard Stannard with 64 years' membership, Wm. T. Elson and Isaac Emery, 63 years; Roland and Caleb Fenn, 58 years; George W. Price, 57 years; Ernest G. Fenn, 56 years; Henry Hodgetts, Alfred B. Peck and Joseph S. Hawkins, 53 years; and Albert A. Hughes, 52 years.

The Master, in proposing the toast of 'The Church,' said, when he was first elected Master of the Society, some of his predecessors warned him that the worst part of his year of office was the annual dinner. Facing such a distinguished assembly, many of whom had travelled a long distance, he felt it was a great honour to preside that evening. They had come because they had a great affection and sense of loyalty to the Society.

RINGING A CRAFT

Some ringers in different parts of the country referred to ringing as an art or an exercise. He preferred to think of ringing as a craft. When a man was a craftsman he had skill in that craft, and one of the essential features of a craft was that it was something that was handed down from generation to generation, and that was particularly true of bellringers. There were good ringers and bad ringers, and that there were the latter was often due to their tuition. A good teacher could produce a good ringer. To-day he thought there was too much sloppiness in tuition. Those who had learnt under a strict tutor looked back and felt they had something worth while.

The Master pointed out that while the craft of the stone mason and the wood carver were all blended together to make a beautiful building, so was their service ringing; it was a contribution with the choir that made for the beauty of that service. The churches where the College Youths were privileged to serve in London were all of a high standard; they were beautiful buildings with well trained choirs. It made them feel as ringers that if their service was not of a high order they were not worthy.

He mentioned that an essential of a craft was that it was handed down from one generation to the next. They saw in ringing the elderly and the young mixing together, and it was his joy that they could claim as real comrades members of the older generation. He could assure the clergy that as long as the Church needed their services they would be pleased to supply ringers and ring the bells as they should be rung.

The Rev. Cecil E. Young, Rector of Stepney, who replied, said he had no idea when he came to Stepney that he would find such friendship and comradeship among bellringers, who were some of the most helpful members of his congregation. He felt that one of the things they of the Church must do was to give ringers the facilities they needed, and help and encourage them in their ringing. Almost everyone in Stepney appreciated the sound of the bells and the skill of the ringers.

The toast of 'The Ancient Society of College Youths' was submitted by Mr. Frederick Sharpe. He said there was no other function that he attended in the course of a year which gave him so much pride and satisfaction as that dinner. Year by year they looked forward to coming there and meeting old friends, and joining in that bond of friendship of which they had heard from the Master. That bond of friendship had been called the freemasonry of the art of ringing.

AN OLD RINGER'S LAMENT

One old ringer did not agree with his Rector's sermons, and also complained bitterly that the Rector would never have his favourite hymn. At last he plucked up courage and asked the Rector for the hymn, A. & M. 575. 'But,' said the Rector, 'you don't want that hymn:—

'Within the churchyard side by side,
Are many long low graves.'

The old man implored the Rector to think of the fourth verse:

'They do not hear when the great bell
Is ringing overhead,
They cannot rise and come to church
With us, for they are dead.'

And then he added 'there is more sense in that than some of the things we listen to in the sermons.'

The same ringer attended the service when the Rector preached his farewell sermon. Afterwards he said, 'I am very sorry you are going, Rector.' 'Why do you say that? questioned the Rector, 'We never see eye to eye.' The old man replied: 'Well, I have never known a Rector go without a worse man come in his place!'

Their Society had had a long and interesting history, and history was one of the things in which he was interested. There were some societies as old and older—he was thinking of Bristol—but none had held the position of their Society. The Ancient Society was largely the liaison between the old societies like Oxford, Cambridge and Bristol. When Fabian Stedman and Richard Duckworth combined to bring out the first text book it was to the Noble Society of College Youths that they dedicated their book. One need not recount all the exploits of their Society, but it was a fact that for the opening of many of the famous rings of bells in the country the Society took part.

He was told by Mr. Hughes that there were possibly more young members of the Society now than at any time in its existence. That was very good news, and they congratulated the Society. To the young members he would say: 'Do read Trollope's book on the College Youths.' It made very good reading, and he always felt that Mr. Trollope knew a lot more than he committed to that book.

A TOWER GRABBER

Mr. Sharpe said he was not much of a bellringer—he had rung about 40 peals—but he was a tower grabber of another kind. He was quite happy among the owls and bats. He knew what it was like to be imprisoned in a belfry or to be chased out by a swarm of bees. He remembered one tower that nobody had been up for 32 years, and they had to smash the lock to get in. There he found a beautiful mediæval frame going to rack and ruin and an elderberry tree growing out of the parapet.

Mr. Sharpe said that as he travelled round the country he found an increasing interest taken in bells and ringers. He thought there had been progress since the war. The ban on ringing did a lot of good. It made people realise what a heritage they had and what they had lost, and once it was restored they realised that it was well worth keeping. They heard at times about recorded and synthetic bells. He did not think the danger from them was that bad. He also found that there was a deeper interest in church matters and spiritual matters for which they ought to be justly proud. He felt they had got over the period of apathy and, as far as the spiritual side was concerned, the tide had turned. He coupled with the toast the name of Mr. A. B. Peck, the secretary, who had been a member of the Society for 53 years.

'LIVE IN UNITY.'

In his reply, Mr. Peck said he would like to say a few words about the Masters that it had been his privilege to serve under as secretary. They were a grand lot; it had been a joy to work with them. In his opinion they were worthy successors of a long line of eminent men. These remarks also applied to the other officers and, indeed, to all the present members of the Society. 'I am happy to feel that there is a wonderful spirit of brotherhood in our ranks. We must always remember our motto: "Visamus Unanimeter" (Let us live in unity).'

During the year the usual monthly meetings had been held, the most outstanding one being the visit to Leicester, where they were the guests of Mr. Harold Poole and the Leicester ringers. They all had a most enjoyable day. Forty ringing practices had been held. The number of new members made during the year was perhaps not quite so high as the year before, but the standard was as good as ever it was. He thanked Mr. A. A. Hughes for his help at all times, particularly in connection with the dinner.

A very great honour had been bestowed on one of their members. Mr. Harold Pitstow had been invested as a member of the Order of the British Empire. It was an honour in which they all shared.

The company stood while the names of those members who had died during the year were remembered. They were: George M. Kilby, William J. G. Browne, Victor Jarrett, Joseph White, Martin Jackson, David Wright, Daniel Cooper, Wm. Poulson, Francis Gleaves, Albert E. Norman, Ernest Herbert, Edgar Russell, Victor Bennett, Robert Lingwood, Eric Dench and Charles P. Chalk.

They had rung 17 peals during the year, mostly in the provinces.

NEW MEMBERS

John Ashcroft (Warrington), William G. Bibby (Frodsham), Ernest J. Wells (Farnham), Henry G. Weedon (Stepney), Wm. A. Stote (Coventry), Allen P. Cave (Liverpool), Kenneth Timbury (Hitchin), Leslie D. Duguid (Portsmouth), David Hoare (Radstock), Frank E. Corfield (Wimbledon), John Waters (Penzance), Frank E. Roberts (Ross-on-Wye), Bernard Ongley (Holmes Chapel), James Rea (Balham), Clifford A. Barron (Erdington), Albert H. Hinton (Weedon Lois), Stewart Kimber (Wallington), Brian Grinter (Bristol), Francis C. Mogford (Bristol), Frank E. Hansford (Bristol).

Frank Stead (Preston), John Moore (Hounslow), Philip G. Draffen (Consett), Patrick I. Chapman (Kettering), Frederick J. Bailey (Cardiff), Reginald Hayden (Bishop's Stortford), A. G. Farndell (Mitcham), Cyril Savage (East Budleigh), Thomas Look (Yeovil), Arthur H. S.

Rainey (Erdington), Charles Ottley (Fulham), Frank Udall (Chelsea), Ronald J. Forster (Maidstone), John H. Lott (Chelsea), Ronald H. Gardiner (Wells), Victor G. Roberts (Wookey, Wells), Gwilym G. Salmon (Wells), Rognvald St. C. Wilson (Midlothian), Chris. H. Hawkins (Llanelly), Raymond Parsons (Carshalton), Horace P. B. Davis (Poole).

ABSENT FRIENDS

Among the apologies for absence was one from Mr. Albert Walker, who wrote: 'Kindly note at 9 p.m. I will raise my pint and drink success and congratulations to the Master and all members and friends present.'

At 9 p.m., on the call of the Master, the toast of 'Absent Friends' was honoured.

Other apologies were from the Provost of Southwark, the Rev. F. Llewellyn Edwards, Messrs. E. H. Lewis, A. York-Bramble, Kenneth Croft (who had been bereaved by the sudden death of his father-in-law) and J. M. Stallard.

Mr. George W. Cecil, a past Master, proposed the toast of 'Kindred Ringing Societies and Visitors,' and said that at their annual dinner they found one of the largest cross sections of the Exercise. That day they had 19 counties and 16 associations represented. On behalf of the Ancient Society he extended to the different associations represented a message of goodwill and fellowship and wished them a successful continuance of their activities during the ensuing year.

Mr. Harold J. Poole, who replied, brought the congratulations of the Leicester Guild to the Society. Much had been said that evening about youth. They believed at Leicester in encouraging youth. There were two kinds of members—good and bad or indifferent. Those who thought they could ring were the danger. Good ringers need not shout about their ringing; it was the bad ringers who needed to shout from the house-top.

ONE OF THE GRANDEST YOUNG MEN

There was a great value in tradition, and he thought it was important that the young men should realise the charm and beauty of tradition. They could not have done better than they had done that year in placing at the head of the Society one of the grandest young men in the country.

The Rev. Everett G. Turner, Rector of St. Giles', Cripplegate, also replied, and spoke with pride that his ring of 12 bells, which were destroyed in 1940, had been restored. The bells were inaugurated by a band from their Society with one lady, Mrs. Deal. It was a joy to hear those bells rung. He understood that the old bells of St. Giles' were sad bells, and it was said of his predecessor that he gave permission for ringers to ring his bells on condition that they paid him his expenses for a day out. He need not tell them where the bells came from—the head of the foundry was like Kipling said of Lord Roberts: 'He is little and is wise, and he does not advertise.'

The toast of 'The Press' was wittily proposed by Mr. E. J. Taylor, general secretary of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers, and responded to by Mr. T. W. White.

THE FRAGRANT MEMORY

The concluding toast was 'The fragrant memory of the Masters of 300, 200 and 100 years ago.' In the absence of Mr. E. Alex Young, particulars of these worthies were read by Mr. A. A. Hughes.

1654. — Daniel Clockwell, who joined the Society in 1649 with William Bishop, who was Master in 1653, and Brian Eldridge, the well-known bell founder.

1754.—James Watson, who joined the Society in 1733 and was elected steward in 1742.

1854.—Robert Jameson, who was born in 1818 and died in 1899. He joined the Society in 1845, and that year rang the first of the 23 peals he rang for the College Youths. He rang in the famous Cornhill peal of 8,580 Stedman Cinques, and was referred to in Dwight's song:—

Then Robert Jameson rang the 4th
A ringer good and sound,
And many miles you travel might
None better could be found.

Jameson was a member of the original band at St. Paul's Cathedral, and took part in the first peal on the bells.

During the evening touches of Stedman Cinques were rung on the new set of handbells presented to the Society by the treasurer.

THE COMPANY

Supporting the Master on the top table were the hon. treasurer (Mr. A. A. Hughes), the hon. secretary (Mr. A. B. Peck), Mr. J. C. Mitchell, Mrs. Mitchell, the Revs. E. G. Turner, A. Powell Miller, C. E. Young, H. V. Fynes-Clinton, Messrs. H. N. Pitstow, H. Miles, J. F. Smallwood, H. J. Poole, F. Sharpe, S. Foskett, B. P. Morris, L. Barry, E. V. Gower, F. E. Hawthorne (Master of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths), G. N. Price, H. Hodgetts (2).

Others present were Messrs. M. Fox, T. Boreham, C. Martin, A. M. Tyler, R. Hooper, L. Derrick, B. Grinter, F. Skidmore, T. Townsend, H. W. Bishop, W. C. Cook, J. Hawkins, A. A. Hilliar, R. Bowden, F. Hansford, D. Yeo and D. Clift.

MORE BELFRY GOSSIP

The peal at Dingestow, Mon., on October 23rd was the first on the bells.

The ringer of the second at the peal at Shiplake on October 9th was Francis G. Henbest and not as published.

Mr. Richard Benson, hon. secretary of the Manchester Branch, had the misfortune to break a toe while at work on Remembrance Day. His friends wish him a speedy come back to ringing.

Calling the attention of his parishioners to the annual meeting of the Hinckley District at Barwell, the Vicar writes: 'This gives a convenient chance to express the best thanks and appreciation of all Barwell people to our team of ringers for their constant loyalty.'

Due to threats of a bus strike each Saturday in the Manchester area ringers attending the meeting at St. Peter's, Ashton-under-Lyne, tomorrow are advised to travel by electric train from Manchester (London Road) to Guide Bridge.

Mr. Arthur Hoodless has rung in the first peals of three generations of the Crowder family. The last was grandson Michael, aged 13, who scored his peal at the first attempt at Barrow-on-Humber on October 30th. Mr. Walter Ayre has conducted peals for all three Crowders.

The enthusiastic tower master of All Saints', Newport, Mr. Donald Clarke, was married to one of his many pupils, Miss Maureen Moore, at Nash Church, Mon., on November 5th. Both Don and his wife are now ringing at Nash, starting anew to form a band. Their many friends in the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association wish them the best of luck.

Bronllys ringers have a lost a friend by the preferment of their Vicar (the Rev. W. J. Davies), who, with Mr. D. H. Bennett, was instrumental in getting the bells rehung and a treble added in 1939, making a ring of six. It was to the regret of the band that the Vicar's son, David, and his daughter, Ann, were unable to stand in the farewell quarter peal to Mr. Davies.

A parting gift of a leather wallet has been presented to Mr. Sidney Breeze, who, for the past 17 years, has been a valued member of S. Nicolas', Guildford, band. He is now living in retirement at Cawston, near Norwich. On November 1st a long touch of 2,256 Plain Bob Major was rung as a farewell by R. Kenward 1, E. Etheridge 2, S. Breeze 3, Miss M. Collins 4, Miss A. Cox 5, W. R. Morey 6, C. Hazelden (conductor) 7, R. W. Morant 8.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

RINGERS' EPITAPHS

Dear Sir,—Can you tell me whether the delightful epitaph to 'Samuel Snell,' quoted on page 186 of Miss Dorothy Sayers' 'Nine Tailors' is entirely fictitious?

While on this subject, surely the following epitaph is worth quoting. Although it has no connection with ringing, this century-old howler from Woolwich Churchyard must justify its being mentioned in this journal by its sheer ne plus ultra:—

'Sacred to the memory of Major James Brush, R.A., who was killed by the accidental discharge of a pistol by his orderly, 14th April, 1831. Well done, good and faithful servant!'

—Yours truly, IAN JONES,

Iver, Bucks.

Dear Sir,—Some years ago I saw a stone slab embedded in the churchyard wall at a point almost opposite the west door of the Parish Church at Maidstone, Kent, on which was the following:—

'Here lieth the body of John Wallace, who died Feb. 20th, 1745, aged 29 years.

Stop Ringers all and cast an eye,
You in your glory, so once was I,
What I have been as you may see
Which now is in the Bell-free.'

I wonder if there are any records in the belfry relating to the above.

GEORGE H. HEAD.

Hanworth, Middx.

IDENTITY WANTED

Dear Sir,—In answer to Mr. Stephen Ivin, I would say that No. 1 Method seems to be wrongly set. I believe that it was intended to read: 34—14—58—36—14—58—56—38—. As printed there is no finish. The false course ends for this are: 46253-32546, 62345-46325-54263-34562. No. 2 is rightly set, with false course ends 54263-34562-46325-62345-65432-53624. As far as my records show neither method has been published nor rung. There are methods recently rung of which, so far, I have no record.—Yours sincerely,

E. W. TIPLER.

BOB MAJOR AT EXETER

Dear Sir,—We feel it our duty to congratulate, through 'The Ringing World,' the band who rang the peal of Bob Major on the back eight at Exeter Cathedral (tenor 72½ cwt.).

On hearing of this attempt some months ago many of us here in the Devon Guild discussed the matter and anticipated an unsuccessful and ill-struck attempt. This was not so, however, and a magnificent performance was achieved with a good standard of striking.

To the many who appreciate the music of Major, listening to this from selected parts of the Cathedral environs created the effect of a mighty organ and was an impressive occasion. —Yours sincerely,

NORMAN MALLETT and FRED WREFORD.

PEAL RINGING IN DORSET

Dear Sir,—I would like to point out to the Rev. K. W. H. Felstead that there are, in fact, 19 eight-bell towers and not 18, as stated in his report.

He has probably been misled by 'Dove,' who places Bournemouth St. John's amongst the towers of Hampshire. Although the tower is affiliated to the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild, it is actually situated in Dorset.

Nine peals have been rung at this tower, thus the total for Dorset will be increased to 410.—Yours sincerely, MICHAEL J. BEST.

Bournemouth.

SURPRISE MAJOR—A CHALLENGE

Dear Sir,—Recent correspondence in the 'Ringing World' has tended to spotlight the problem of 'ownership' with the focus on Winchester Surprise Major.

The 'ownership of figures' in ringing is traditional, be it methods or compositions, not so much in the sense of achievement (like sticking a flag on Mount Everest) but as a question of responsibility for the products of mind and pen.

In the field of composition there are pitfalls for the unwary 'adapter' or transposer, so they should be prepared to take the responsibility and append their names.

In the production of new methods, particularly Surprise Major, recent efforts seem to vie with each other in the debasement of the term 'Major.' When two pairs only change and four bells make places, it is not a 'Major' change, being a Doubles change only. The producers of such methods, whether deliberately guilty or merely indifferent, should certainly not evade responsibility by failing to append their names.

Mr. C. Kippin, who has 'admitted' to Winchester, may also like to answer his other critics — C. J. Sedgley ('Ringing World,' August 27th, 1954) and G. Baker (September 10th, 1954). As a member of the Methods Committee and an expert on method construction there is surely no need for him (as E. W. T. has said) to hide his light under a bushel.

Mr. Blagrove may perhaps differ from the views expressed above but I challenge him to produce a Surprise Major method to the following stipulations:—

1.—Coursing pairs only in 7-8.
2.—Regular lead-ends.
3.—No adjacent places.
4.—To be pealable (i.e., must permit a 5,000).
5.—Not to have been previously rung or published.

I have noted his remarks 'anyone can write out all the Surprise methods,' so this should not prove too difficult for him. With the indulgence of the Editor, may we look for something a fortnight hence? An opportunity here to give a new lead to the Exercise.

After all this one wonders if many of the new methods recently rung would ever have seen the light of day if it was not for the label 'Surprise' that is affixed to them. The definition of 'Surprise,' no doubt useful in days gone by, seems to be detrimental to worthwhile progress to-day and should be amended. This is apparently where I came in—'Ringing World,' July 16th, 1954.

We are often reminded why we ring, sometimes about how we ring, but it is important, too, what we ring.—Yours sincerely,, K. A. ROE.

Wigston, Leicester.

THE FIFTH BELL AT CAWTHORNE

Dear Sir,—Your informant (page 714) in his account of the rededication of the six bells at Cawthorne, near Barnsley, is hardly correct regarding the fifth, which is described as having been cast by Godfrey Heathcote, of Chesterfield (circa 1550).

Granted the word 'circa' is stated, but Godfrey Heathcote does not come into the picture until 1588. He was a bellfounder for 55 years, from 1588 to 1643, being succeeded by Ralph Heathcote III.

Preceding Godfrey was Ralph II., from 1558; George, 1525 to 1558; Ralph I., 1510 to 1525; and William, the first of this long-established family of bellfounders, 1502 to 1510.—Yours faithfully,

P. AMOS.

THE LAST OF THE JOYCES

Dear Sir,—It is a great pleasure for me to write to you expressing the happiness I found when the College Youths met. I am not a ringer, but I am the last of the family of Joyces. Samuel Joyce was my cousin, my brothers Tom and Alfred (both deceased) were ringers. However, I have decided to help the bellringing spirit a little; hence I have 'The Ringing World' delivered each week and I can assure you I find it very interesting.

November 6th was my happiest day for a long time. I felt among friends as I mingled among the gathering at St. Olave's, Hart Street. I had to have a look at the now respectable tower, for when I used to chime the three bells there by myself for the old steeplekeeper some 46 years ago, he gave me the privilege of going into the belfry and taking what pigeons I wanted. They were good old days. Maybe with a less stern father I might have been a ringer to-day. (He, by the way, was steeplekeeper at All Hallows', Barking.)

It is my one wish now to visit as many towers as I can and be a friend among friends. It is a splendid memory to my brother Alfred. Last Saturday was my first visit to St. Michael's, Cornhill, and it was a joy to meet Mr. A. B. Peck, a friend of the family. My regret was that I could not ring; but it pleased me to see some youngsters, and I wish them all the luck.

In conclusion I must say that I shall be pleased to hear when a band is going to try a peal at West Ham. I shall be listening.

Wishing the 'Ringing World' success — Yours sincerely,

J. JOYCE.

London, E.15.

OMISSIONS FROM PLAIN MAJOR COLLECTION

Dear Sir,—We have investigated Mr. Blagrove's comments about the omission of methods in the Plain Major Collection and find he is quite correct. On behalf of the Methods Committee I thank him most sincerely for pointing this out and apologise to the Exercise for this error. It seems to have been a human and inexplicable lapse, for the methods concerned (except two) are in our original collection for insertion. The two are the little methods at the top of the right-hand column in Mr. Blagrove's letter—these do not have Plain Bob coursing order at the back, and we omitted all such except those already rung. The Plain method is Stanton Bob and should be numbered 65—its number in the former Plain methods book. The Little methods, apart from the two mentioned above could be numbered 84 (bottom left-hand column), 85 and 86 (bottom right-hand column), 87 and 88 (centre column).—Yours sincerely.

K. W. H. FELSTEAD.

Southampton.

COME ON, CRITICS

Dear Sir,—We note with interest F. C. Pugh's remarks concerning 'peal grabbers' paying to praise themselves. We heartily endorse all he says, but would also ask peal ringers and those who call at towers on outings to show their appreciation by each placing a small gift of cash in the box to be found in the church. The incumbents of parish churches seldom, if ever, refuse the use of their bells and would, we feel sure, welcome this tangible form of ringers' gratitude. We know of cases where, after ringers on tour have had the use of the bells, the amount left in the box has not averaged one penny per ringer. There was probably more left at the 'local.'—Yours sincerely,

H. and I. CARTER.

JASPER SNOWDON—THE GREATEST MAN IN RINGING

22nd Annual Dinner at Doncaster

THE Snowdon Dinner, which is held to the memory of Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and past officers of the Yorkshire Association, took place for the first time at Doncaster on October 30th. Prior to the dinner, ringing was available at Arksey and Rotherham, and both towers were visited by large numbers. Everyone regretted the fact that, owing to cracks having appeared near the top of the tower, the magnificent bells of St. George's, Doncaster, could not be rung on this occasion. At present the cracks are being grouted, and the Diocesan architect has recommended that there should be no ringing for three months.

The President of the Association, the Ven. C. O. Ellison, Archdeacon of Leeds, presided at dinner, which was held in the Co-operative Emporium. He was supported by the following officers: Messrs. P. J. Johnson, D. Smith and A. E. Sellers, vice-presidents; L. W. G. Morris, general secretary; G. Benfield, treasurer; W. E. Critchley, peal secretary; and J. J. L. Gilbert, H. S. Morley and A. E. Marsh, district secretaries. The guests of honour were Canon H. G. G. Herklots, M.A., Vicar of Doncaster, and Mrs. Herklots.

The President, having proposed 'The Queen,' Mr. H. Walker, of York, submitted the toast of the 'Church and State.' Mr. Walker said that, as an old Doncastrian, it was a great pleasure for him to have the privilege of making this toast. He spoke of the long connections between the town of Doncaster and the Christian Church, and said that over 1,300 years ago the first Bishop of York, Paulinus, having consecrated his Church in York, came to Doncaster and established the second Christian Church in Northumbria.

The Church and State in Doncaster had always been served by a succession of able men: it was traditional that the Vicar was also Chaplain to the Mayor and Corporation, and the people's warden was nominated by the Mayor. It was probable that at one time the Council meetings were held in the church vestry, as it is recorded that the sixth bell was rung to summon the Council to its meetings.

Mr. Walker recollected that a former Vicar of Doncaster was a ringing member of the Yorkshire Association, and well remembered him coming into Doncaster tower one New Year's Eve to demonstrate to his curate how a bell should be rung. He mounted the tenor box, and pulled, and the more he pulled the lower the bell swung, until he had to be given assistance to raise the bell high enough to set it again. Mr. Walker commented that that was the only occasion on which he had seen a gaitered and aproned Archdeacon performing on the tenor box. He then made mention of a former Mayor of Doncaster who had been a ringer, and of Edmund Beckett Dennison, later Lord Grimthorpe, who learned to ring at Doncaster. Lord Grimthorpe wrote a book, 'Clocks, Watches and Bells,' and when the Parish Church was being rebuilt in 1853 he was responsible for the design of the bells, bell-frame and clock.

BELLS HUNG TOO HIGH

Mr. Walker spoke on the difficulties which had arisen in connection with the tower of St. George's, and expressed his regret that the company were unable to ring there. He said that at the time when the present church was built there was a craze for central towers with lofty lanterns, and this had resulted at Doncaster in the bells being hung far too high in the tower, with resultant excessive strain on the structure. He recalled similar trouble with cracks in 1927, and said that, in his opinion the only remedy was to replace the Grimthorpe frame by one of modern design, and to fix it much lower down in the tower, even though it would mean sacrificing the lantern. Mr. Walker then formally proposed the toast of 'Church and State.'

In his reply, Canon Herklots said that he felt rather guilty that his speech had been preceded by ringing on handbells; he knew well that his sermon on Sunday would not be ushered in in the same way. He thanked Mr. Walker for his speech, and recalled one story of the ringing Vicar of Doncaster, Archdeacon Sandford. This Vicar was quite proud to insist that he could officiate at any service without recourse to a prayer book, and on one occasion was to take a wedding service. The verger offered him a prayer book, but he waved this aside, and went into church, to plunge straight into the funeral service!

JASPER SNOWDON

Mr. P. J. Johnson, vice-president, proposed the main toast of the evening, 'The late Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and Past Officers of the Association.' He said that without doubt Jasper Snowdon was the greatest man in ringing. His works were still read and quoted, and would be for many years to come. Mr. Johnson said that one of his most treasured books on ringing was Snowdon's 'Treble Bob,' and he considered it to be one of the most authoritative publications.

After surveying the history of the Yorkshire Association, Mr. Johnson said that one thing of which he was extremely proud was that all compositions rung for the Association had been published in the annual reports, and over 3,000 of them had been proved by Mr. W. Barton, past peal secretary. He spoke with feeling on the work done for the Association by Mr. Barton, and regretted very much that, owing to ill-health, he was unable to be present on that day. After the toast the President read out a greetings telegram from Mr. Barton, which said, 'Greetings to all. Best wishes for a happy gathering. Regret absence.'

Mr. W. E. Critchley proposed the toast of 'Visitors and Kindred Societies.' He said that one aspect of being a ringer, which was not realised by other people, was that a vast circle of firm friends was established in all parts of the country; there were few other interests which could compare to it in this respect, and one could go to any church in the country, and be sure of a welcome and an invitation to ring. He himself had made a very great number of friends all over England.

Mr. Critchley made mention by name of some of the visitors present, namely Mr. and Mrs. C. McGuiness, of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Mr. B. Harris from Cheshire, who for some strange reason was temporarily resident at some place in Yorkshire called Catterick, Mr. J. Scott, Cheshire, Mr. W. L. Robinson, Derbyshire, Miss E. M. Bliss, Cheltenham, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Raddon, Warrington.

After this toast the President remarked that from Mr. Critchley's speech he could visualise Mr. Critchley walking down a street in some far-off part of the country, and a hand from a belfry door grabbing him to take part in a peal attempt. Were peals arranged like that? He could not imagine it happening to himself! In connection with the toast to the visitors, apologies had been received from the Editor of 'The Ringing World,' Mr. J. F. Smallwood, and the Rev. G. G. Graham, of Bakewell.

Mr. Charles McGuiness, in reply, said he came to these dinners because he was sure of a great Yorkshire welcome, to get some good ringing, and good food and company—what more reason could he have?

Another visitor, Mr. W. L. Robinson, then proposed 'The Continued Prosperity of the Yorkshire Association.' He said that he was especially pleased to do this, as he owed a great deal to the Association, in that most of his experience in ringing had been obtained inside the county. One of his most treasured possessions was his certificate of membership of the Yorkshire Association.

The President commented that he was much cheered to know that the certificates of membership were appreciated to that extent. He had never seen any that compared in size to them, and he thought that only four of them were needed to be able to paper a wall of a room; in fact, when he took charge of a large batch of them, he had thought seriously of having the Diocesan architect's opinion as to whether the floor would stand the strain!

Mr. Staveley, of Doncaster, gave the final toast of the evening, 'The Chairman.' He said that, as organiser of the dinner this year, he was very pleased to see the large gathering, and he thanked all for their loyal support. He thanked the president for his most able handling of the position of chairman. After the president's reply, the company then gave themselves over for the remainder of the evening to games, organised by Mr. D. A. Chapman, and handbell ringing.

Interspersed between the more formal parts of the evening were vocal and musical items. These were provided by Mr. S. Bardell, tenor; Mr. A. Whittingham, bass; Mr. P. Powell, piano; Mr. G. Thornhill, guitar; the handbells rung by Messrs. J. J. L. Gilbert, N. Chaddock, W. L. Robinson, L. W. G. Morris and W. E. Critchley, and not forgetting the president, who 'drummed' a course of Grandsire Doubles in an unusual setting.

WORCESTERSHIRE ASSOCIATION ANNUAL DINNER

THE Dean of Worcester (the Very Rev. W. E. Beck), who, as president of the Worcestershire and Districts Association, was in the chair at the 17th annual dinner held at the Guildhall, Worcester, on October 23rd, told the 140 ringers and their lady friends that the Association had every reason to think something of themselves for the part they played in the service of the Church. It needed more than brains to weave their patterns of song. Campanology called for the qualities of obedience to the master and a great spirit of co-operation.

Supporting the Dean were Bishop C. E. Stuart and Mrs. Stuart, Rev. L. J. Birch (chaplain) and Mrs. Birch, Mr. C. Skidmore (master) and Mrs. Skidmore, Mr. J. D. Johnson (general secretary and treasurer) and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Newman and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cartwright.

Proposing the toast of 'Church and State,' Mr. W. B. Cartwright said if the toast only had the effect of reminding them of their shortcomings, then, perhaps, on reflection, they ought to have the toast.

In reply, Bishop Stuart said that when he first went to Africa he stayed at a college where the crest was the black and white keys of a piano. This was a lesson, because it is said that although a tune of a sort could be played on both kinds of key separately they both had to be used to obtain real harmony. It was just as important to have the Church and the State working in harmony. He continued:

'It is said, I know, in All Saints' that the bellringers sometimes prevent the children of the neighbourhood sleeping in their beds, whereas, I am told, parsons cause adults to sleep in their pews!'

'The State has certain advantages over the Church,' he added, 'in that it can compel obedience, such as paying income tax, but the Church cannot compel you to pay your Church dues.'

'The Worcestershire Association' was submitted by Mr. F. Bennett, hon. secretary for the Archdeaconry of Stafford.

He said the Association had a wonderful past with a record second to none. Paying tribute to the officials, he added, 'I see you have a number of young people here, and it is up to them to see you have the right officials in the future. It is up to them to see that your Association flourishes.'

In a happy reply, Mrs. L. J. Birch (wife of the Association's chaplain) confessed that she was probably the worst striker in the Diocese, but had every pride in the Association and its officers, and thanked Mr. Bennett for his remarks.

CALL-UP ADVICE

Mr. C. Skidmore proposed 'Kindred Associations and Visitors,' and said they were again pleased to see present a contingent from Claverley, Shropshire.

To the young campanologists about to be called up for National Service, he said, 'When you get to your barracks make for the first tower with bells at your earliest convenience.'

Mr. G. Goodson, of Claverley, who responded, said in his own tower they were always anxious to further the social activities of ringing, and if their ringing ability only equalled their desire for this, they would probably be the finest band in the country. Worcestershire had many fine ringers who had rung advanced peals, but all made the humblest of ringers feel one of them, and not least among the former he placed the proposer of that toast.

'We thank you,' he concluded, 'for the warmth of your welcome and privilege of being entertained. Your Association's excellent ringing is only surpassed by your love and charity.'

The Dean proposed a special toast to the Association's general secretary and treasurer, Mr. Joseph D. Johnson, in appreciation of all he did for the Association.

A further toast, 'The Dean,' was submitted by the Rev. L. J. Birch.

A varied entertainment was ably handled by Mr. D. H. Watson as M.C., and included the ever popular songs by Mr. G. J. Hemmings and piano accordion solos by Nick Capoldi (who also accompanied 'The Bluebells' on handbells). The Leigh handbell band were prevented by illness of one of their number from giving their selections, but, at short notice, Mr. B. C. Ashford and his band obliged. A course of Grandsire Caters was rung by: R. G. Morris 1—2, Mrs. J. Thomas 3—4, J. Thomas 5—6, D. Beacham 7—8, N. J. Diserens 9—10.

Some of the bright young sparks—determined on variety—produced a 'variation of a Welsh air' with a course of 'Saucepan Bach' Doubles, the covering note being produced by a somewhat 'tinny alloy' cooking utensil of a very doubtful E flat. The effect will probably be recognised by ringers of a former generation as a modern version of 'Skinny Lizzie'! The evening concluded with a communal rendering of 'Jack Bass's Anthem' and 'Auld Lang Syne,' Mr. L. G. Bedenham being the accompanist.

ARUNDEL RINGER'S WEDDING

A member of the band of Arundel Parish Church since 1950, when the bells were rehung, Miss Margaret G. Ellis was married at Arundel Parish Church on November 6th to Mr. Michael A. H. Gowler, of Chatteris, Cambs. The Vicar, the Rev. H. A. King, officiated at the choral service.

The bride, who was wearing white brocade, was given away by her father, Mr. Ralph Ellis, the well known Sussex artist.

A mixed band from Arundel and Lyminster rang for the wedding, and during the evening a representative band from the Western Division of the Sussex County Association rang a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples in honour of the event.

At the last practice before the wedding Miss Ellis was presented by the Vicar with a case of fish knives and forks from her fellow ringers of the district.

The bride and bridegroom are making their future home at Histon, Cambridgeshire.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2277 Vol. L. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1954. Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

IN 'QUICK,' OUT 'SLOW'?

By T. R. BUTLER.

THE recent report of the Shropshire tour contains no less than seven allusions to the fast speed of the ringing and, in one instance, actually invites challengers to what is believed to be the fastest quarter-peal on record (Doubles in 25 minutes). 'A good peal, if a bit slow,' is almost apologetically referred to in the account of the Universities' Association week, while the Kent tour report contains a similar 'defensive' reference to another good, but slow peal. A few months ago we read that a well-known, experienced band had been gently rebuked for fast peal-ringing by its even more well-known and experienced conductor.

In 'The Ringing World' of March 13th, 1936, we find the following comments by that forthright but excellent ringer, composer and conductor, the late William Willson, of Leicester:—

> I wonder, sometimes, what sort of mentality possesses the ringers who are always out for the quickest peal on the bells? In my opinion, they must be dead to all sense of music.
> Do they realise that bells are cast in different tones so that they shall be heard distinctly? How can they be heard distinctly if they are raced along until all tones are jumbled together in pandemonium? The time will come when we will have to consider it.
> It is doubly offensive when rung muffled at racing speed. What would we think of an orchestral conductor who boasted at having rendered Handel's 'Largo' at jazzy speed?
> Whenever a peal is rung with a 20 cwt. tenor in or about 2¾ hours I assert it is on the wrong side. There is something grand in the rhythm of stately rung bells, but I only feel pity when I hear a good band spoiling their work by racing bells along outside their proper gait.

It cannot, I think, be disputed that improvements in modern bell-hanging, added, perhaps, to a definite if insidious post-war tendency to introduce 'American hustle' in many of our British activities, have tended to gradually increase the tempo of peal ringing generally during recent years. The time may well have arrived, therefore, when, in Mr. Willson's words, 'we will have to consider it.'

One frequently hears the expression, 'Every ring has its own rate (or time)—this, of course, means average rate (or time)—and it is admittedly irksome and unnatural for any reasonably good band to endeavour to protract that rate. On the other hand, surely it is extremely doubtful whether some bells are heard to the best advantage if rung at the most comfortable and convenient speed.

Years ago I remember a well-known London ringer pointing out that a good slow peal (note the emphasis) is much more difficult and requires a far more experienced band to accomplish than a good quick one. It must also be acknowledged that, in the former, the slightest fault becomes immediately more manifest and pronounced. Nevertheless, in recalling the deep, æsthetic enjoyment experienced listening to some past masters of the art, one is prompted to suggest that, with some bells at least, the effort to imitate these bygone ringers would be well worth while and amply repaid by the better musical effect produced.

With what pleasure I recollect a peal at the Bull Ring well over thirty years ago! Ten minutes to go and I'm the only ringer present! (Actually, I'm not at all dismayed, having been previously warned about this 'last-minute' trait of the Birmingham men.) Three minutes to go and twelve ringers are hurrying into the ringing room. All seems bustle and confusion! Then Albert Walker's terse 'Come on, let's get on with this peal; you can talk after,' and, led by A. Paddon Smith on the treble, off we go. I remember my delighted reaction to the steady, dignified, unhurried striking when one would have quite expected otherwise, each and every bell clearly and distinctly heard for some three and three-quarter hours without 'slurring,' 'blurring' or 'snicking'! In those days, too, the 'Brum' men even seemed to extend this lovely, deliberate type of ringing to handbells.

Then again, a year or so later, my first experience of a Central Council gathering. While awaiting the 'bigwigs,' one of the locals asks me to call a touch and we knock off three quick courses of Stedman Triples in what we vainly imagine expert fashion. By this time some of the great' have arrived. With the late Canon Coleridge on the treble, Albert Walker and others take hold. They, too, ring three courses of Stedman Triples, but what a difference! Never shall I forget the grandeur of that calm, stately and again unhurried striking, all back-strokes above 5ths slightly, almost imperceptibly, opened, and assisting to produce a lovely effect.

At the same time a peal of Kent Major was progressing in a tower a few miles away. With others, I was in time to hear a good portion of it and, to me then, it sounded monotonously perfect. Later in the day, however, the ringers (mostly local men) were very tactfully but firmly taken to task by one of the clerical brothers James (I forget which) for not widening their back-strokes in 5-6-7-8. He called it 'the taper.' It is, of course, the reverse. To the best of my recollection the band—certainly no novices, having rung a mere 17,000 Treble Bob the previous year—took this advice with very good grace and, indeed, accepted the principle of it in the spirit it was given. During the last war this beautiful, expressive style of ringing was referred to several times in 'The Ringing World' by the late J. Armiger Trollope in an obvious effort to revive it, but I feel he did not put the matter too clearly and was, in consequence, misunderstood by some.

I believe, however, that those who have been privileged to hear this grand, slow, musical style of some of our forbears must appreciate there is a lot more in our hobby than ringing complicated methods at the fastest possible speed. In fairness, I should confess that I, too, have often been guilty of taking part in the quickest of this or that on the bells. In one tower I understand I hold the dual 'distinction' of having called (with different bands) the quickest and the slowest peal on the bells. Both were Stedman Triples, and I consider both came well within that somewhat flexible definition of 'a good peal.' Yet there was 33 minutes difference! I enjoyed each of these peals, but have sometimes wondered which the public would have voted for. After all, shouldn't we constantly bear in mind the public 'ear' in preference to our own, but can it truly be said we do this—always? The speed of peal ringing is a subject which must, sooner or later, engage the attention of the Central Council when it has finally disposed of other controversial issues.

No matter in which corner of the country you happen to be, as likely as not you will come across Gillett & Johnston bells or tower clocks. Gillett & Johnston craftsmanship is embodied in an all-embracing service — as much in the preservation and restoration of old rings of antiquarian interest as in the installation of new.

GUILD of DEVONSHIRE RINGERS
Coronation Peal Board Dedicated at Totnes

In the presence of the Mayor and Mayoress of Totnes and a number of members of the Devonshire Guild of Ringers, a peal board commemorating a peal of Grandsire Triples rung at Totnes Parish Church on June 6th, 1953, in honour of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II., was unveiled and dedicated in the tower vestry on November 6th.

The dedication was preceded by a short service conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. Gordon H. Samuel). The board was unveiled by Mr. E. S. Nott, who was Mayor during the Coronation year, and was the gift of Mr. George Harvey, of Totnes. A silver plaque recording the gift, which is beneath the board, was given by Mr. A. L. Bennett. Mr. Nott complimented the band who rang the peal.

The band consisted of Aubrey L. Bennett 1, James E. Lilley 2, Edward W. Biffin 3, E. Maurice Atkins (conductor) 4, Robert A. Southwood 5, Gerald A. Uglow 6, Frederick Wreford 1, William J. Harvey 8.

At tea afterwards, which was attended by the Mayor and Mayoress and the Deputy Mayor and Mayoress, Mr. J. E. Lilley, chairman of the Mid-Devon Branch, thanked the donor of the board, and the Vicar for conducting the service. He mentioned that his father, Mr. C. R. Lilley, conducted the 1901 peal, which was also commemorated by a peal board. Only seven complete peals had been rung on the Totnes bells. All except three of those who rang the Coronation peal had taken part in the ringing before that afternoon's service.

Mr. Lilley contended that the Totnes Parish Church bells were the finest eight in Devon, and the seventh was the purest toned bell that had ever been cast.

JOINT MEETING AT FARNINGHAM

Farningham was the venue of the annual combined meeting of the Lewisham District of the Kent County Association and the Northern District of the Surrey Association. A satisfactory attendence of about 40 ringers made up the congregation for the Kent Association form of service held in the church after the afternoon's ringing. The Vicar (the Rev. P. Maxwell Young) made the office very enjoyable and gave an interesting and inspiring address, including a warm welcome to Farningham.

Tea was partaken of at the Lion Hotel. Mr. A. S. Richards (West Wickham) welcomed the Surrey visitors and thanked them for their support. Mr. F. E. Collins (Croydon) replied in the very best vein of responses and looked forward to the Lewisham District visiting Surrey next year. Further ringing followed, many of the company travelling to Shoreham.

A KESWICK RINGING FAMILY

Bellringing is often a family affair. This is very well illustrated at Crosthwaite Parish Church, Keswick, in the centre of the English Lakes. The late Mr. Stephen Hogarth, who was bellmaster for 28 years, had four sons and one daughter, all ringers. His son, Mr. Tyson Hogarth, followed him as bellmaster and has just completed 30 years in that position. His daughter, Mrs. Tom Wilson, recently celebrated her 70th birthday and is still a keen change ringer with 43 years' service, and her husband has been a ringer for 54 years, and together they ring twice each Sunday.

They well remember being taught change ringing by their father at the dinner table with knives, forks and spoons. J. W. B.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION
Ashford District

A brilliantly fine day favoured the members of the Ashford District when they met at the little church of Sellindge on November 13th. The arrangements for the meeting had been admirably made by Mr. Peter Small, the mentor of the local band.

The Vicar (the Rev. R. Petty), who is a ringer, was waiting to greet the firstcomers at 2.30, a gesture which was appreciated. There was an unusually high proportion of beginners present. This is a welcome feature, as it shows that the learners are losing their shyness and are realising that the meetings are intended for those in all stages of experience.

The Vicar conducted the service, with Miss D. Salmon, the organist of the church, and another local ringer, at the organ. About 30 members and friends sat down to a grand tea in a cosy room of the old schools, the catering for and serving of which was carried out by the local band.

At the short business meeting which followed, nine new members were elected to join the Association as from next January—six from Sellindge and three from Willesborough. Thus Sellindge is reinstated as an affiliated tower after an absence of some years. The Vicar and all who had worked to make the meeting a success were thanked by Mr. J. Willis. Then came touches on the handbells, in some of which a promising young lady, aged 12, from New Romney, took part.

A collection for the Association's Belfry Repair Fund realised £1 3s. 6d. W. P. G.

LATE NEWS

Mr. Cyril J. Watts was elected the new Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths on Saturday.

BELFRY GOSSIP

A marble tablet to the honoured memory of Mr. D. Cooper, Master of the Surrey Association and captain of Croydon Parish Church band, was unveiled and dedicated by the Vicar (the Ven. C. F. Tonks), in the belfry of St. John-the-Baptist Church on Nov. 14th. The churchwardens, curates and the local band attended the ceremony. A quarter peal of Grandsire Cinques was rung.

Four local ladies rang in a quarter peal at St. Matthew's, Walsall, on November 14th—the first occasion.

Mr. Gerald Sandwell, an active ringer in the Southend-on-Sea area, is shortly leaving for East Africa on his National Service with the Crown Forces.

The ringer of the second in the peal of Bristol Surprise at Willesden on September 16th (page 670) was Miss Barbara A. Mitchell. It was her first peal in the method.

The quarter peal at Clifton-on-Dunsmore, near Rugby, was the first by the local Sunday service band. The 13-year-old treble ringer, who started to handle a bell six months ago, was warmly complimented by the Ringing Master, Mr. S. J. Merry.

Mr. G. Beeney, of Hailsham, Sussex, conducted nis first peal for the 20th anniversary of his wedding at Hellingly, Sussex. The ringers included his daughter Laura (aged 15), his son Frank (16), and the best man at his wedding, Mr. Benjamin Stepney.

Mr. E. C. Barton rang in the birthday peal for Mr. F. J. Cheal at Rainham, Kent, on November 6th, with two black eyes and a bruised nose, the result of an accident earlier in the week while at work driving a tractor. At the birthday spread, kindly provided by Mrs. Cheal and Frank, the tune of the evening was 'Two lovely black eyes.'

In answer to the questioners Mr. Harold Poole writes that no request was received for Leicester Cathedral bells at pre-service ringing before the broadcast. He had never encouraged any suggestion because (1) the amount of ringing actually broadcast did not justify the preparation, and (2) it would be an unenviable job to pick out the 12 out of the 24 Sunday service ringers.

The weight of the tenor at St. Mark's, Worsley, is 24 cwt. 9 lb.

We extend special congratulations to New Zealand ringers on their peal at St. Peter's Cathedral, Hamilton. Mr. Colin Ward is the first New Zealand born ringer to conduct a peal.

The floodlighting of the 169ft. spire of Chester-le-Street Parish Church on Remembrance Sunday was a remarkable silent witness to the surrounding countryside. Ringing followed the switching on of the lights by the chairman of the U.D.C. and a dedicatory prayer said by the Rector.

On Nov. 1st a peal was rung at Rotherham Parish Church. Unfortunately, the letter was lost in the post, and also the 4s. postal order for our 'Gratefully Acknowledged.' Fortunately our correspondent kept the counterfoil of the P.O., and this week he and 'The Ringing World' have been duly reimbursed.

A grand gathering of ringers attended the joint meeting of the Sheffield and District Society and North Notts District of the Southwell Guild at Retford on November 6th. At the meeting Mr. John Seager, of Retford, met Mr. John Seager, of the Sheffield Cathedral band, for the first time, although they live only 25 miles apart. There was some handbell tapping of Grandsire Caters, Kent Treble Bob Royal, etc., from Mr. John Seager, of Retford.

PEAL RINGING IN ESSEX

WITH Essex, we come to the first of the Home Counties, in alphabetical order, and since London has always been the main centre of change ringing from the earliest times, the neighbouring counties can be looked to to provide large numbers of peals to talk about. Actually, I suppose the City itself is at a lower ebb than at any time in its history because of the destruction during the war and the movement of population. But this loss is the gain of the outskirts, for ringers are ringing more peals there. After discussing the last county in the list, there will be an article on ringing in London itself, which will include towers in the various Home Counties already mentioned, for (as Dove's book indicates) they really go better altogether even though they must be mentioned under their particular counties as well. Another point to remember about the figures given for the counties near London is that they will usually not give the total number of peals rung because many of the eight-bell and upwards towers had peals rung at them before 1881. So it is especially important here to keep in mind that we are only considering the period 1881 to the present day.

Although there is no tower which has passed the 200 peal mark since 1881, there are nine towers in Essex which have reached the century, which is a high proportion amongst the counties. Only Kent, Lancashire and Suffolk can beat this. The tower with the greatest number of peals is Romford (8) with 176. This is closely followed by Walthamstow, St. Mary's (10), with 174. Both show very similar features, for both have been rung consistently throughout the period from 1881 with a slightly higher average per year between the wars than before the first war, and both have dropped off since the last war. At Romford, 96 peals were rung between 1881 and 1914, and there were 73 between the wars. At Walthamstow, 87 came before 1914 and 81 from 1919 to 1939. At the former there have been only seven peals since the war (1948 to 1952) and at the latter six (1945 to 1952).

Although it has only been heard twice in the past 20 years (in 1936 and 1948), Stansted Mountfitchet (8) comes 3rd on the list with 155. The first peal recorded was in 1889, when there were six bells in the tower, and 34 peals were rung on them in the next 13 years —a goodly number for a six-bell tower. After augmentation, the church was the most popular in the county for peals, no less than 86 being rung between 1903 and 1914. After the first war it still did very well, but not to quite the same degree, 33 peals coming from the years 1920 to 1933. Since then, only the two peals mentioned above have been rung, which is rather a sudden ending.

Prittlewell (10) has just reached the 150 mark and comes next. It is the post-war period which has shown the greatest activity here, for no less than 58 peals have been rung in the past nine years. But it has shown a consistent two or three a year since the first one in 1896, for 32 were rung before 1914 and 60 between the wars. Thus, in the first four are two 10- and two 8-bell towers. The remaining five are all 8-bell towers—Writtle (126—a consistent two a year since 1882). Bocking (116—94 from 1930 onwards). Barking (113—heyday before 1914, only 21 since). Widford (109—best period also before 1914 with 70 peals then), and Brentwood (102—65 between the wars and 20 since 1945). Nineteen towers are between the 50 and 100 mark—rather too many to mention individually, although some of the higher ones will find a place in the sections dealing with the towers by numbers of bells.

THREE 12-BELL TOWERS

All the three 12-bell towers have totals greater than 50, and Waltham Abbey is approaching the 100 mark (there are older peals here, of course). It has scored 94 since 1881 —55 between 1882 and 1914, when it was an 8-bell tower, 36 on the 12 between the wars and only three since (in the last three years). Chelmsford Cathedral has 61, 39 between the wars, which was the best period, and four since. Saffron Walden has 58. The 15 rung here since 1945 means it is producing a slightly higher average now than previously. Two of the three 10-bell towers have been mentioned above. The third is West Ham, which has also passed the 50 mark with 62 peals (28 came from 1882 to 1914, 30 from 1919 to 1939 and there have been only four since the war).

There are still two 8-bell towers which have not been conquered in the past 74 years—Dedham and Ilford. The former had a few peals rung there more than 100 years ago, but I have found no records of any at the latter. Of the remaining 50 8-bell towers, seven have been mentioned above. Those with more than 60 peals will be mentioned individually. The first is Galleywood with 91, more than half of them being rung between 1926 and 1939. Then comes Harlow Common with 85. The period 1905-1914 was the best here, for 42 peals were rung then. There have been 10 in the past three years. Feering follows with 81. This tower has not been heard since 1938, but previously to that 46 peals were rung between 1920 and 1934. Did the bells become 'difficult'? Great Baddow has 76 spread over the whole period, but especially from 1925 to 1940, when 44 peals were rung. Then comes Foxearth, whose best time was at the end of the last century—43 peals being rung between 1886 and 1899. The only peal since the war was last year, which broke a silence of 18 years.

At Coggeshall, we find 72 peals, the peak being between 1900 and 1913, when 32 of them were rung. This tower has not appeared in the peal columns since 1939. Twenty-nine of Braintree's 65 were rung in the 1930's, and there have only been three since the war, the last in 1949. Leytonstone seems to have been more popular as a 6-bell tower than an 8. Forty-five of its 62 peals were rung between 1897 and 1936, when the augmentation took place. It has, however, been doing better since the war, for 12 peals have been rung (although none this year so far, as I write). Of the 8-bell towers where peals have been rung in the period, Walter Belchamp has been silent the longest, for the last peal there was in 1913. In fact, this is the only peal this century when a false peal rung in 1912 is disregarded. Nineteen were rung between 1882 and 1896. Again disregarding the two peal-less towers, the fewest peals have been rung at Epping, for only two have been recorded there (one in 1914 and the other in 1919).

TEN UNCONQUERED 6-BELL TOWERS

In the case of the 6-bell towers, only 10 out of the 78 remain to be rung to a peal. They are Arkesdon, Ashdon, South Benfleet, Steeple Bumpstead, Great Chesterfield, High Easter, Helion Bumpstead, Littlebury, Ridgewell and Tillingham. Several 6-bell towers have very respectable totals of peals for such rings, the best being Stisted, which has passed the 50 mark with 56. The first peal recorded here was as far back as 1887, but the main activity has been since the last war, for 31 peals have come since 1944, including no less than 14 last year and nine so far this. Colne Engaine follows Stisted with 43. Only two have been rung since the war—the best period at this tower being from 1930 to 1939, which produced 28 of them. There will only be space to mention the 6-bell towers which have passed the 25 mark. Apart from the two mentioned above, there are seven of these, with Great Bromley joining this group with its next peal. Maldon, St. Mary, has the highest number of the seven with 36 peals. Twenty-three were rung prior to the first war and eight immediately after it. The remaining five were rung from 1926 to 1938, and it has been silent since. Two towers have 30 peals—Kelvedon, which has a record of four peals in 1896 and 1897, 20 between 1921 and 1938, and six since 1947, and Downham, where all the peals have been rung since 1948 (but only one this year as I write). This is good going for a 6-bell tower. Gestingthorpe, Mistley and Shenfield have each 26. The first peal at the former was in 1910, and the only period of silence since (except for the war periods) was from 1920 to 1931. Mistley had its first peal in 1904, but the second didn't come until 1923, which started a 'batch' of 23 peals in the next 15 years. There have only been two since 1945. Shenfield has been going consistently since its first peal in 1922. Fourteen were rung before the war commenced, and there have been 12 since. The seventh tower is Roydon, which recorded one of the earliest 6-bell peals in the county in 1888. Sixteen of its total of 25 were rung between 1898 and 1906. The remaining eight are spread out fairly evenly over the past 48 years, with two since the war.

Twelve of the 39 5-bell towers have had peals rung at them, and one has reached double figures—Hutton with 12. This is a good number for a 5-bell tower. As a point of general interest which I have not mentioned before, there are only 16 5-bell towers in the whole of the country which have reached double figures. Seven of them are in Northants (which will occasion no surprise considering the number of 5-bell towers there). All 16 will be mentioned in the individual counties—suffice it to say at the moment that the greatest number (31) is held by Warkton (Northants). Actually, only three have passed the 20 mark—all in Northants. Whitney (Hereford) being the highest outside that county. So Hutton has a good number for a 5-bell tower. Black Notley will soon join this select band with double figures, for nine have been rung there. Nazeing (now a 6-bell tower) recorded the first 5-bell peal in the period in 1900. Manuden, where three peals were rung in 1901 and 1902, has not had a peal since, and so qualifies for the longest silent tower.

SUCCESSFUL SOUTH LINCS MEETING

A very successful meeting was held at Folkingham on November 6th by the Lincoln Diocesan Guild (Southern Branch) and over 30 ringers and friends were present.

The service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. H. Evans) and the lesson read by the secretary of the Branch (Mr. James Haw). In the course of his address the Rector extended a hearty welcome to the visitors and continued to give an interesting address on bells, ringers and the church. Tea was served at the local cafe.

At the business meeting which followed, the Rev. H. Evans presided. Two new ringing members were elected, Mr. James Manton and Mr. Ronald Hobson, of Folkingham. The Rector was unanimously elected an honorary member of the Branch. At the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector, the organist and to those who had provided such an excellent tea.

Handbell ringing was then indulged in by some, while others returned to the tower for further ringing. A good variety of methods was rung ranging from Grandsire Doubles to London Surprise Minor, and rounds for those less advanced.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON SOCIETY

Summer Tour in the Lake District

AT the back end of October it is nostalgically pleasant (if not very acceptable from the editorial viewpoint) to summarise recollections in tranquillity of how, on July 24th last, twelve members of the University of London Society converged from various corners of the land on to the modest town of Whitehaven, Cumberland—the chosen centre of a week's ringing tour of the Lake District, which included all, except possibly one, of the ringable towers of Cumberland and a good many in Westmorland. Headquarters were at the Golden Lion. As usual the party took undisputed (after the first hour or so) possession of the residents' lounge and adjoining bar, other residents who attempted to gain entry being greeted by a volley of handbell fire. Here our organiser, Graham McKay, from nearby St. Bees, enlarged on the details of the week's programme.

On Sunday members attended Holy Communion at the bell-less but otherwise beautifully internally appointed Church of St. James. At breakfast we were initiated into the horrid local custom, which was dutifully observed in the high Roman fashion throughout the week, of eating buns with bacon and eggs. The fully-mechanised party thereafter proceeded to Cleator Moor to ring for Matins. Here we were welcomed by the Rev. H. T. Batey and two local pillars of the Exercise—Stanley Richardson and Geoffrey Tembey—whose good fellowship and valuable assistance were to be much valued throughout the week. In spite of a dangerously cracked tower in a very metastable landscape, ringing was enjoyed without incident on this agreeable eight. (We have since learned that we were the last to ring in this tower, which was last seen when we were heading in a westerly direction towards the Solway Firth.) Ringing for Evensong was on the cheerful eight of the charmingly-situated church at Arlecdon, whose churchyard is entered by a fascinating stone 'cattle-gate.'

On Monday the party was joined by Rex Agg (another local authority), David Little and Ann Field, whom we were gratified to find eligible for membership, and who led the convoy eastwards towards Carlisle. Only for the first mile or two, however, were we fully-mechanised; before any appreciable gradient had been reached the presidential car (doubtless in tactful anticipation of the shape of things to come) developed very audible big-end trouble in Cockermouth. The four passengers missed ringing on the light and rather noisy six at Thursby, but arrived in time, public transport and torrential rain, to ring on the venerable but eccentric eight at Carlisle Cathedral. Seven of the sadly derelict eight at St. Stephen's were rung with more curious amusement than real pleasure before going on to the handy eight at Aspatria, the last tower of the day.

On Tuesday, Workington—a town looking very like its name—with an appropriately awkward going eight (very much in F sharp) was first visited. The Rector welcomed us and introduced a reporter, who proceeded to interview the president on behalf of 'The Workington Star.' The resulting report swelled the circulation of that influential organ of local opinion by at least a dozen copies that evening. It was a relief to make our way to Bridekirk, where an enjoyable hour was spent on the rather brassy but good-going six. The inevitable buns were gratefully washed down with beer at lunchtime in Cockermouth before setting out on the magnificent run (for those who remained in charge of their transport) over Whinlatter Pass to Keswick for a ring on the very fine eight (judged by some as the best of the tour) at Crosthwaite. Ringing on the majestic eight at Penrith ended the day.

Wednesday was cryptically described on the programme as a 'day of semi-rest.' So, in fact, it turned out to be, but only on account of the weather. Fell-walking (for those fit enough) and one tower (for the one who wanted it) had been prescribed. Ironically the weather lifted on the way to Irton—the only tower of the day. The magnificent view from this isolated church, on a plateau, looking up the valleys of Eskdale and Wasdale, was enjoyed perhaps more than the ringing on the rather recalcitrant eight.

The president having retrieved his car, the party journeyed southwards on Thursday into the Furness district of Lancashire, where ringing in five good towers with relatively few distractions of scenery (apart from the magnificent climb past Devoke Water on the outward journey), had been arranged as a corrective to the lotus-eating of the previous day. At Broughton we found a brisk eight and a ringing chamber beautifully kept and decorated with reverent imagination. The excellently well-Taylored ten at Dalton (another fine ringing room) were rung with the assistance of Mr. Tom Metcalfe, our tower host, enjoyably to Grandsire Caters, ineffectually to Stedman and purposefully to Royal. After lunch the party set out under lowering skies for Barrow, where the worsening weather didn't seem to matter very much. Here the acoustically-odd eight seemed also to make striking a matter of relatively small concern. Our organiser was persuaded to allow us a brief interval for a cup of tea, which mutinously developed into a knife-and-fork orgy and consequent lateness at Kirkby-Ireleth. In this tower a charming six and yet another model Lancashire ringing room were just beginning to beguile us and to inspire the best striking and most interesting ringing of the day when we were sternly hustled on to our last lap to Millom. An unforgettable welcome awaited us here from the local band of learners (which included the Vicar), who met us in force. After a not very convincing demonstration of Cambridge Minor by the Society on this undistinguished and noisy six, the rest of the time was spent most enjoyably and with missionary fervour ringing call changes with our largely self-taught hosts. We were joined after dinner that evening by David Robinson, who had extricated himself from that military machine at Catterick.

Friday was Westmorland day, and the convoy, reinforced by Stanley Richardson and Geoffrey Tembey and their party proceeded to Great Langdale. Mr. Frank Birkett met us here, and ringing on his most attractive six included the now traditional touch of Original. We headed over perilous roads and inspiring scenery for the cosy town of Hawkshead, with its little hill-top church. We adjourned to a most pleasurable pub. Some fair ringing including a course of London was enjoyed on the mellow six. There followed a mad rush via Esthwaite Water to catch the ferry across Lake Windermere. The main body and its transport was duly waterborne, but our guests and their crews were left frantically waving from the shore, having been locked in the car park at Hawkshead. Kendal was reached in time for tea and an exterior inspection of the Ring of Bells (with its unique ringers' sign), before ringing on the ten fine originals in the imposing setting of Holy Trinity Church. We were met here by Mr. Jim Wilson, who helped us to strike some good Stedman and Treble Ten in an enjoyable hour's ringing.

Tables in the Golden Lion that evening were set rather more formally than usual for dinner, to which the Society entertained the distinguished guests and their ladies. After dinner tradition was again followed in a visit to the local fair, where the party as usual commandeered and shamefully mishandled the 'dodgems.'

On Saturday morning we rang on the easy-going eight at Egremont. Mr. Alfred Eilbeck (to whom we send our best wishes for a return to health very soon) got away from work in time to welcome us to his tower and usefully to strengthen our Stedman. Then we went over the hill to St. Bees and were welcomed by McKay pere and Mr. Harold Wilson. Ringing in the massive tower included recognisable Double Norwich, St. Clement's Major and Erin.

After lunch at H.Q. members digested their buns in tentative Duffield on the fast and noisy eight at Hensingham, the last official tower of the tour. Rex Agg then led a bell-weary, bun-heavy but otherwise enthusiastic party on a memorable scramble over Sty Head Pass to the tarn under Great Gable and Scafell. There are various unflattering photographs of this episode available, so that it is only necessary here to pay tribute to the commendable foot-poundage achieved by John ('Jumbo') Seager. At the farewell sing-song on Saturday evening John Crawley worked overtime on the piano.

On the last Sunday morning we returned to Hensingham to ring for Matins. The only peal attempt of the week (Plain Bob Major) was in the afternoon at Arlecdon. After a rather choppy quarter had been rung the closure was formally moved and presidentially applied when it had become obvious that the tenor did not altogether approve of being turned in.

Numerically, the tour was the smallest on record, both in the size of the party and the number of towers visited. The Society's thanks for the success of this much-enjoyed week are gratefully extended to the incumbents and tower-keepers who met and welcomed us and showed such tolerance of the vagaries of our time-keeping; to Rex Agg, Stanley Richardson and Geoffrey Tembey, who guided us so rewardingly into the heart of Cumberland ringing; to our genial host and hostess at the Golden Lion (Mr. and Mrs. William Berwick); and to Graham McKay for his fine organisation and a memorable example of tact and tolerance.

ARCHDEACONRY OF HALIFAX GUILD

About 26 members attended the meeting at Northowram on November 6th, and the pleasant octave was rung to Stedman Triples, Double Norwich Court Bob and Cambridge Surprise Major.

After the service, cups of tea provided by local ringers were served in a cosy room with a cheerful fire. They were thanked for making the Guild so welcome.

The business included a discussion on a proposed trip to be held next Whitsuntide. Details were left to the Ringing Master to work out. The annual meeting of the Guild will be held at Halifax Parish Church early in January.

LONDON COUNTY ASSOCIATION

St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, was visited by the Northern District for their quarterly meeting on November 13th. Grandsire and Stedman Cinques were the main methods rung with rounds for those less advanced.

After tea further ringing took place at St. Matthew's, Bethnal Green, until 7 p.m., when Evensong was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. A. A. Gorbold), who gave a cordial welcome to the Association.

The business meeting was held in the Parish Room with the Master, Mr. C. A. Hughes, in the chair. It was decided to hold a monthly practice meeting, which will be announced at a later date in 'The Ringing World.'

Further ringing was obtained from 7.50 to 8.30, when methods ranging from London Surprise Major to Grandsire Triples were rung.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SPLICED SURPRISE MAJOR

Dear Sir,—Mr. L. W. G. Morris's article, 'Spliced Surprise Major—Whither Advancement?' fully deserves the comment he invites, and I hope that this letter is only one of many in an interesting discussion on this subject.

The late Rev. H. Law James, like most men of genius, undoubtedly struck a vein more productive than he knew when he built up a peal on the three-lead course plan. In 1927, to ring such a peal must have presented a real challenge, and in my opinion the fine achievements of the late William Pye and his band in scoring peals in up to 12 methods almost as fast as they were published gave to this branch of ringing a value not wholly proportionate to its true worth.

Having taken part in a few peals on this plan, up to ten methods, I am sure that from the ringer's point of view, Mr. Morris is correct in saying that more concentration is required to accomplish a peal of London Surprise Major. Above ten methods—whatever the plan—a good deal of unfamiliar material has to be mastered, and I rate any peal of spliced containing upwards of about ten methods a very worthy performance indeed. Please note that I express a ringer's viewpoint here; I hope others will put forward the conductor's angle.

Those well-known composers who have produced peals containing all the work of all the methods are deserving of every praise; these excellent compositions were bound to appear in time—the solving of problems such as these are the life-blood of this branch of our art. They must present a real challenge to the conductor, but to the ringer, as six methods is the maximum so far included in this plan (I believe), I do not see that from his standpoint it is a performance of any greater merit than taking part in one of London Major. But I am open to correction here—I have not rung a peal on this plan.

'Has the intrinsic value of Spliced Surprise Major ringing changed?' asks Mr. Morris. The answer is in the negative—real values do not change. The Exercise generally needs to view all Surprise ringing with a more critical eye, and develop a right sense of values. Any peal of Spliced Surprise is a good performance, so is London Major.

What I fail to see is the point, week after week, of peals in new single Surprise methods —merely, it seems, to claim them as rung for the first time. Although some of these are undoubtedly good performances on the part of the bands, and something new is very refreshing at times, I hope I shall not be accounted conservative or even reactionary when I say that a peal of Stedman Triples is every bit as well worth ringing, and every one brought round a credit to the conductor. I should like to see in the peal columns more peals of Stedman—what a fascinating range of compositions there is here—and Holt's Original rung more frequently. Sometimes it seems there will be nobody left to call this! A great Lincolnshire friend of mine, well known and respected in the Exercise, has yet to call it, and he has already put a number of difficult compositions behind him! A sign of the times? But I am getting away from the point, and have said enough, I trust, to evoke some lively criticism on these topics.—Yours faithfully,

K. S. B. CROFT.

Southampton.

We desire to acknowledge 'The East Anglian Magazine' for the bellringers' epitaphs that appeared on page 715. They were sent to that journal by Mr. L. Sewell and forwarded by another reader to 'The Ringing World.'

THE EXTENT OF BOB MAJOR

Dear Sir,—Now that an attempt to ring the extent of Bob Major is to be made, no doubt interest in the previous peal will be revived. We are told James Barham and his band of thirteen accomplished this feat at Leeds in Kent in 1761. Is it on record what composition they rang, and who 'called ye bobs'?

When searching the record books of the Society of Cambridge Youths I found the extent of Bob Major composed by Thomas Steers. He was elected a member of the Cambridge Youths on February 6th, 1787, and is described as gentleman, an ingenious mathematician. He was also a good practical ringer, ringing the 6th to 6,600 Bob Maximus, the 2nd to 6,000 Oxford Treble Bob Royal and the 5th to 7,002 Grandsire Quaters, all rung at Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. There is no date on his composition of which I have a copy of the full peal, which is printed in a book dated 1770.—Your faithfully,

E. G. HIBBINS.

Cambridge.

DOUBLES METHODS AND THE CENTRAL COUNCIL

Dear Sir,—As Mr. Birmingham has explained that his statement 'Sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander' is an attack on the Central Council, I wish to withdraw unreservedly my allegation that he was kicking at Doubles ringers.

I must say, however, that I do, in part, disagree with his last letter. I feel sure that most Central Council members have no wish whatsoever to dictate, and that one or two committee members, knowing that most Central Council members have little or no technical knowledge, take advantage of it to get banned what they, the committee members, do not ring. Sometimes they do this in a very low manner, as, for example, when the members were led to believe that irregular Minor methods produce far more 65's at backstroke than do regular methods, this being achieved by quoting only the standard calling in Treble Bob methods, instead of producing the complete facts, which are very much different. No, Mr. Birmingham, the Central Council does not dictate, it is just the odd few satisfying their personal whims.

About Doubles methods. The rules that the Methods Committee are using have been published. The trouble is that no one has yet realised what they mean. Two of the most popular Doubles methods, All Saints and Reverse Saint Bartholomew, do not conform to these rules, and there can be no doubt that the Methods Committee and Peals Analysis Committee will do their utmost to get peals containing these methods excluded from the analysis. The average Central Council member will not want to do this, but as they have already passed these rules without knowing what they mean, they will not be able to do much about it. Cf. Plain Bob Triples.

Finally, I should like to appeal to all fellow Doubles ringers to stand firm against the Methods Committee. Do not be weak-willed like the Minor ringers and give way to suppression. Remember, nearly every Doubles ringer is a regular Sunday service ringer at his local tower. The same cannot be said for Surprise ringers.—Yours sincerely,

F. T. BLAGROVE.

Stanwell.

A VILLAGE PROBLEM

From a West Surrey village the following problem of the rector and ringers has been addressed to us for the opinion of other members of the Exercise:—

Often it happens that one is faced with a problem and, having made a decision, is afterwards troubled as to whether the course adopted was the right one.

Briefly, our story is this. Living in close proximity to our church, with its somewhat noisy ring of eight, is a lady who, during the last 20 years or so, has on every possible occasion voiced her objections to any ringing at all.

One tragic Thursday evening, two years ago, her daughter was killed in a road accident some miles away (our practice night is Thursday and we had finished ringing before the news reached us). Last year, on the night which was the anniversary (by the day though not the date) of the tragedy we suspended our practice on a last minute request.

This year, two days before the second anniversary, the lady in question again asked the Rector to silence the bells.

The lady's request was doubtless based on the facts that she hated the bells anyway; that they had been ringing while her daughter lay dead awaiting identification and during a time when she herself was suffering agonising suspense; that every week she coupled the sound of the bells with her daughter's death; and that on the anniversary day she felt particularly unable to bear the sound of ringing.

In discussing the matter with the Rector and in coming to a decision we had in mind the following:—That we all did at the time and still do sincerely sympathise with the lady in her sad loss; that two years have now elapsed; that ringing was not (except perhaps by way of association with ideas) anything to do with the tragedy; that our tower is visited regularly by learners and visitors with whom we could not quickly get in touch; that neither the lady nor any member of her family is a churchgoer at all; that we always do all that is reatonable to curtail our ringing by accepting visiting bands sparingly, by refraining from peal ringing and by keeping District meetings to the minimum; that we do suspend ringing in the case of serious illness or if anyone is lying dead in the vicinity: that having stopped for this particular reason we might be expected to on various pretexts on many future occasions; that there is no reason why the lady and her family should stop at home as they have relatives living within easy access but outside the sound of our bells; that it is unreasonable to expect the outside world to share private griefs indefinitely and that in spite of tragedy the world and life must go on.

Would other ringers like, through the columns of your paper, to tell us what they would have done in similar circumstances?

EARTH AS A SILENCER

Dear Sir,—There is a deep layer of earth under the floorboards of the bell chamber in the tower of Llanbadarn Fawr. Our ringers would like to know whether it is the custom to use earth in this way to deaden the noise in the belfry and whether such a practice is effective. There is one apparent disadvantage in that earth and dust are a breeding place for beetles and worms, which in turn may well attack the wooden frame of the bells.—Yours truly,

O. G. REES (Rev.).

The Vicarage, Llanbadarn Fawr,
Aberystwyth.

SPLICED SURPRISE MAJOR IN SCOTLAND

A border raid in modern fashion enabled eight Sassenachs to snatch the first peal of Spliced Surprise Major in Scotland on November 6th. Leaving Manchester Airport at 9.30 a.m. they had a not too comfortable trip to Renfrew, where they de-planed at 11.20 and proceeded forthwith to seek the lunch already arranged for them. At 12.50 a move was made in the direction of St. James' U.F. Church, Paisley, nearby where the local tower secretary (Mrs. Caldwell) and Mr. Scott were waiting to receive them. Everything was in readiness and the hosts were very solicitous that there should be no hitch and had obviously gone to great trouble.

Ropes were adjusted to the party's liking and the bells went off into a peal of 'real' Spliced Surprise Major (i.e., one in which all the bells do all the work of each method), Pitman's masterpiece in four methods. Of the peal there is nothing of note to report for it proceeded without a hitch and in spite of the difficulty some had in hearing the bells clearly, due in some measure to the intermittent intervention of British Railways, the striking was of a very high order. After some 3 hours and 11 minutes' good ringing the conductor had the satisfaction of saying 'That is all' to the first peal of Spliced Surprise in Scotland, and at the same time he, and other members of the band, completed the quartet of countries with this composition; that is to say they have rung it in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, being the first to do so, and in the case of the last three countries, they were the first band to ring the composition in the country. To enable those members of the band who have not already rung this Spliced Surprise composition in its native land, a trip over Offa's Dike is being arranged in the near future.

Such achievements cannot be accomplished without the ready co-operation of the local ringers, and thanks are due to the ringers at Paisley for their efforts to make the attempt successful and for the wonderful tea which they provided at its conclusion.

The organisation of transport to and from Scotland was arranged by Mr. Dunkerley and Messrs. Worth and Jenkins attended to the matter of bells, meals, band, etc., with the result that everything went off in clockwork fashion.

A 'STEEPLE CHASE'

The North Bucks 'steeple chase' on October 9th was enjoyed by 30 ringers, two coming from Sussex and the remainder from Buckinghamshire.

The first tower, Wingrave, was reached at 8.30 a.m. Aston Abbots, Woburn (Beds), Wavendon (where the party were welcomed by the Rev. C. Elliot Wigg, Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild), Milton Keynes and Wougton-on-the-Green were all visited before lunch. The embarking and disembarking was now much speedier and we had learned from Mr. R. Biggs how to deal with recalcitrant clock hammers.

Old Wolverton was the first tower visited after lunch. Here the bells were raised in the order 216543. Nobody told us they were anti-clockwise and we picked the wrong one for the treble.

Stony Stratford, Buckingham, Padbury and Winslow bells were sampled and enjoyed before a short break for tea. Later the five-bell ringers came into their own at East Claydon and Quainton. At the latter tower the rather long draught without guides and the bells falling in the order 13254 caused a little confusion. Fly-fishing described some of the ringers' antics here perfectly.

Hardwicke was the 14th tower, and some very nice ringing with a good fall in peal closed the day. W. L.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

Dorchester Branch at Litton Cheney

The recently-retuned eight bells at Litton Cheney were visited by the Dorchester Branch on November 13th, when the ringing was under the direction of Mr. F. Precey and his two deputies, Messrs. F. Stedman and H. Ford. Methods rung included Grandsire Doubles and Triples, Stedman Triples, Plain Bob Major and Kent Treble Bob Minor and Major.

Canon C. C. Cox, the Master of the Guild, read the lesson at the service conducted by the Rector (the Rev. W. H. Parson), who, in his address, spoke of the various uses to which bells had been put—to proclaim joy, sadness and disaster; but running through all was a note of salvation and hope for everyone. Mr. Sidney Trevett was organist.

Tea was served in the Sunday School room and much appreciated by the 35 ringers and friends who attended. The Rector presided at the business meeting. Forthcoming events agreed to were the annual meeting at St. Peter's, Dorchester, on January 22nd, and a Branch practice at Wyke Regis on November 27th. The question of joint meetings with other Branches was referred to the annual meeting.

Upon the suggestion of Canon Cox the meeting decided to send a letter of congratulation to the Branch chairman, Canon A. W. Markby, on his recent marriage.

Mr. Fred Precey said he was glad to welcome the Litton Cheney tower to the Dorchester Branch (it was transferred from West Dorset last February) and he assured the Rector and his ringers that everything possible would be done to encourage change ringing in their tower.

Mr. J. H. Hayne (hon. secretary) mentioned the loss of a ringing member, Mr. H. C. Butter, who died recently in hospital. A native of Wisbech, Cambs, he joined the Branch as recently as April, when working in the locality.

A vote of thanks to the Rector, the ladies and the organist and all who had worked hard to make the meeting a success, was moved by the assistant hon. secretary, Mr. R. H. Duke, and the Rector, in reply, said he could only repeat the welcome he had given in the church, and they all looked forward to the next visit.

Gratefully Acknowledged

OBITUARY

MR. GEORGE BAILEY

'F. S.,' of Leeds, writes regretting the passing of Mr. George Bailey, of Wroxham, Norfolk, and recalls one pleasant memory of him. It was on December 20th, 1913, when George cycled about 28 miles to meet the young band at Tibenham, Norfolk, for a peal attempt in seven Surprise methods. When the bells came home the delight on George's face was noted by the band—it was his first peal in seven Surprise methods. May he rest in peace.

The band consisted of Frederick C. M. Skinner 1, George Bailey 2, Bertie F. Turner (conductor) 3, George Snelling 4, John Snelling 5, Frederick Seager 6.

MR. WALTER WILLS

One of the oldest ringing members of the Leicester Diocesan Guild, Mr. Walter Wills died on November 7th, aged 84 years. For the past six years he had been a regular ringer at St. Andrew's, Aylestone, Leicester.

He took a keen and lively interest in all the activities of the Leicester Guild and his loss will be keenly felt in his local tower. He set a splendid example by his regular attendance and unfailing punctuality.

A native of Hinckley, he rang at the Parish Church in his younger days. In 1898 he moved to Leicester but took no active part in ringing for 50 years. He returned to ringing when the bells of St. Andrew's were augmented to eight in 1948, and it was at this church the funeral service was held on November 10th.

During the service a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells by Messrs F. E. Wilson 1-2, E. Morris 3-4, H. J. Poole 5-6, T. Bolingbroke 7-8. The service was conducted by Canon Cray prior to interment at the Gilroes Cemetery, Leicester. F. E. W.

THE LATE FLYING OFFICER E. A. DENCH

Eric A. Dench rang 190 peals—116 'in hand' (conducted 15) and 74 on tower bells (conducted 9). His first peal, Holt's Original 'in hand,' was rung at the age of 16, on November 20th, 1943, conducted by Mr. John Thomas, and his last, Superlative Surprise Major, at Sileby, Leics, on October 24th, 1953, conducted by Mr. P. A. Corby. He rang 120 peals with Mrs. John Thomas and 117 with Mr. Thomas. Details:—

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH GUILD

Andover District

A quarterly meeting was held at Woolton Hill on November 6th, when over 40 ringers were present throughout the day, visitors coming from distances as far apart as Winchester, Reading and Bishopstoke. Ringing took place during the afternoon on the eight at Highclere, when methods rung included Double Norwich and Cambridge Surprise.

The service and tea were held at Woolton Hill, the meeting taking place in the Parish Room presided over by the chairman, the Rev. M. P. Simcock. Three new members were elected from Woolton Hill—M. Davis, M. Mills and J. Knight—whilst Miss J. Goodyear was elected from Andover.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on December 11th at Goodworth Clatford, this being for those members less advanced in method ringing, whilst Andover would be available in the evening for practice in the higher methods.

After the secretary had read the letter on the finances of 'The Ringing World,' a motion was passed that he be instructed to write to the towers in the District, approaching them with a view to having a copy of 'The Ringing World' bought for the use of the members of the band by their Parochial Church Council.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2278 Vol. L. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

FOOTNOTES TO PEALS

By WILLIAM SHEPHERD

WHAT a vast change there is in the writing of footnotes for peals, a change which was certainly long overdue, not only because of their length but also on account of wording. Some ringers used to delight in writing lengthy footnotes, others preferred to abstain and leave readers to be the best judge of peals that were published, but to-day the general trend is brevity, due in some measure to our Editor exercising his discretion for our mutual benefit. One is especially pleased to see such footnotes as: 'Rung to commemorate 50 years' service by the captain of the local band,' and 'Rung by the Sunday service band,' both having appeared recently, but those of over 60 years ago should give some readers an insight into the days when peals were not so plentiful and there was no Central Council.

Bob Triples, that much discussed method of recent months, was popular with some bands even when they met one short, and the footnote tells us that 'the band meeting one short the second was left out and the tenor rung in.' The same footnote goes on to say that 'these bells have lately been rehung by Messrs. ——, but the going of them is far from satisfactory.' In the next footnote speed seems to have been uppermost in the minds of those who rang, for we read: 'This is the second peal rung on these bells and was rung in twenty minutes less than the other. The tenor goes very badly and Mr. B. had to give up at the end of half an hour, and Mr. S. finished it.' Another way of dealing with a bad-going tenor is told thus: 'The ringer of the tenor after ringing two hours was obliged to set his bell owing to it going so badly; after a rest of half an hour, however, he again took her and rang to the end of the peal.' In the next instance we are left guessing as to the reason why a change over was made, for it simply states that 'E. K. rang the tenor the first hour of the peal, then J. H. rang tenor to the remainder of the peal.'

A peal rung very early in the morning received the following footnote: 'This peal was finished just after seven o'clock in the morning.' Various comments were undoubtedly made on this peal even though it was rung on December 25th! Another unusual footnote is recorded underneath a peal of Stedman Triples, which says it was the 'first peal of Stedman rung by members of the Association without the aid of a professional conductor.' I leave my readers to digest those last two words. Ringing a peal of Grandsire Triples by leaving out the treble is explained thus: 'Meeting one short, the treble was left out and the tenor rung in.'

Many footnotes used to commence with the words: 'It is worthy of notice,' and here is one which relates to a peal of over 10,000 changes: 'It is worthy of notice that the average age of the company was only 21 years, as well as being all single men. Also that one of the ringers was only 17 years old. And great credit is due to the tenor man for the able way in which he rang his bell, he being only 20 years old.' Another 'worthy of notice' footnote refers to a peal of Stedman Triples and states 'that Mr. F. had long desired to ring a peal in this method ere he departed this life. The ringers one and all congratulate themselves upon having the pleasure to accomplish it with him.'

My last extract relates to a peal of Grandsire Caters which must have delighted both ringers and listeners on account of continued good striking and success at the first attempt. It goes on to say that 'Mr. C. officiated as umpire, and he pronounced the peal to have been well rung, not a single "slip" of any moment occurring from beginning to finish, his opinion being endorsed by several ringing friends who heard the peal from the outside.'

A lot of space could be taken up on the subject of footnotes to peals, but the samples already given should suffice to show the difference in the set-up of Victorian days and those of to-day.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the 'Ringing World' of December 4th, 1914

COLLEGE YOUTHS' NEW MASTER

If anyone were ever brought up among the bells, that description can be applied in truth to the new Master of the College Youths, for Mr. Albert A. Hughes, whose election we announced last week, first saw the light at the Whitechapel Foundry. Born in 1885, he first learned to handle a bell at a very early age, and used to practise on an old pre-Reformation bell which hangs on the roof of the foundry. At the age of 14 he began to accompany his father to St. Matthew's, Bethnal Green, where he received his first insight into ringing under the late Mr. Matthew Wood. . . .

[Mr. Hughes' first peal as conductor, in 1909, was the last by this famous old ringer, then in his 83rd year. Although his ringing has naturally been somewhat overshadowed by his work as head of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, Mr. Hughes is a skilled practical ringer, and numbers among his accomplishments at least one peal on the tenor at St. Mary-le-Bow. Another feat of a different kind was during the 12,675 Stedman Cinques at Southwark in 1923, when Mr. Hughes four or five times went up among the bells and oiled all the bearings.]

Salisbury and Winchester Meet

Members of the neighbouring branches of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild and Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild enjoyed a good afternoon and evening's practice on the fine eights at Fordingbridge and Downton.

After ringing at Fordingbridge, 40 members sat down to tea at the Riverside Café. The company included Mr. George Preston, former hon. secretary of the Christchurch Branch, and Mr. G. F. Martin-Stewart, past Master of the Salisbury Guild, besides the officers of the two districts.

Mrs. B. Hibberd, of All Saints', Martin, proposed a vote of thanks be accorded to the incumbents of Fordingbridge and Downton for the use of the bells and to those who had arranged the meeting. The vote was carried unanimously with acclamation.

Ringing in all methods from call changes to the popular Surprise Major methods was under the direction of the Ringing Masters of the two districts.

Guildford Diocesan Guild

The Chertsey District held its nomination meeting at Hersham on November 20th and although only one half of its towers were represented 27 sat down to an excellent tea in the Church House.

The chair was taken by the Guild's general secretary (Mr. G. L. Grover). Nominations for officers for 1955 were as follows:—District Ringing Master, Mr. J. Dodson; District hon. secretary, Mr. Roy Collins; Guild's Executive Committee, Mr. John King, Mr. W. Goldstone and Mr. R. Andrews.

A hearty vote of thanks to the priest-in-charge, the organist and the ladies, concluded the business, and handbells were very soon in use. J. F. D.

A Trip in the Taunton Area

Huish Champflower (6, 11 cwt. 8 lb.) was the first tower visited on November 13th, when 14 ringers (representing eight towers, mainly in the Bristol and Bridgwater areas) visited five towers in the Taunton district. This tower—proclaimed by its two peal boards as Huish C. Flower and Huish C.F.—was the 'pièce de résistance' of the trip. The ringers were pleasantly surprised by the fine tone of the bells.

At Combe Florey (6, 10 cwt.) the 'go' is excellent but they are very noisy. E. T. P. F. distinguished himself both by his 'sergeant-major-like' calls and a lightning touch of Spliced Doubles! Bagborough (6, 20 cwt.) was followed by the rough eight at Bishop's Lydeard (23 cwt.). At the last tower, Kingston (6), we found the muffles had been left on the bells from Remembrance Sunday! According to Dove this tenor weighs 15 cwt., but it is reputed to weigh a ton, and the tenor ringers of the party found no reason to disagree with the reputed weight!

Thanks for a most enjoyable trip are extended to Ron Short, who organised it. M. E. E.

Preston, Suffolk

The Preston, St. Mary's, ringers, held their fourth annual supper and social on Nov. 13th. During the afternoon St. Mary's bells were kept going to several Minor methods, including six Surprise. In the evening, the ringers with their wives and friends assembled at the Six Bells Inn and sat down to an excellent spread, after which the party were entertained by visiting artistes, including the Bell-chords Trio, and Stedman with his Fairy Bells. Votes of thanks were accorded the host and hostess, also Mr. Fred Day, the able M.C. and organiser (with musical honours).

Mitcham Says 'Thank You'

The ringers' service at Christ Church, Mitcham, which was held this year on November 21st, is an annual event which is looked forward to by congregation and ringers alike. The Vicar, the Rev. G. S. Johnston, said during the course of the service that 'this is the one occasion on which we publicly say "thank you" to our bellringers for their faithful service throughout the whole of the year, a service which is so regular that it is almost taken for granted.'

To the ringers themselves the service is also a reunion for there gathers together a company of ringers formerly members of the Christ Church band but who have now left the district. The visitors were invited to the Vicarage after the service, where light refreshments were kindly provided, and there was much handshaking and reminiscence.

A feature of the church service was a well-struck course of Plain Bob Major by a handbell team from St. Luke's, Chelsea. The sermon was preached by the Rev. A. G. Duckett, Vicar of St. Olave's, Streatham Vale.

The attendance this year was not quite so large as on previous occasions, but from remarks overheard in the belfry and from the departing congregation it was obvious that the event has lost none of it popularity.

Winchester Surprise

Mr. George Baker, of Brighton, points out that the extensions of Winchester Surprise Major to Royal and Maximus, as published in 'The Ringing World' in August, in addition to being Round Block Extensions are also Pivot Bell Extensions. This last feature has upset a theory that he (Mr. Baker) held for a long time, i.e., that Pivot Bell and Round Block Extensions could not exist together in one method.

LATE NEWS

The B.B.C. are keeping their Light Programme transmitters open until midnight on Saturday for the result of the Loughborough attempt for the extent of Plain Bob Major. If successful, the broadcast will occupy five minutes. An announcement will be made in the Light Programme during the evening.

BELFRY

Seventy-seven-year-old Mr. Horace W. Roberts, of Pirton, Herts, has just retired after 60 years' service as a bellringer, and the clock winder since 1902, because he can no longer manage the steep steps. An inscribed pewter tankard was presented to him from his fellow ringers by Mr. Kenneth Timbury, the ringers' captain. Mr Roberts is also verger at the church.

Mr. Harry Thorp, who rang in a quarter peal at Skillington on November 13th, rang his first peal on these bells 46 years ago. He was then so short that he had to stand on four basses.

Recently elected captain and vice-captain of the Pirton (Herts) band, Mr. Ken Timbury and Mr. Roy Head rang in the first peal on the bells together with their friends and tutors from Great Wymondley.

After scoring their first peal at Week St. Mary, Mr. Samuel Stacey and his son, Harry, entertained the band to a splendid supper. The bells were heard during the peal seven miles away.

Despite a pea soup fog, the first practice of the Saxmundham District for Surprise methods was a success. After a good evening of Cambridge Minor it was decided to hold the next at Leiston on December 11th, at 7 p.m., for Cambridge Major.

Members of the Worcestershire Association made their annual trip to Bournemouth for the week-end of November 13th. A peal of Bristol was scored at St. John's. Ringing for Sunday services took place at St. Peter's and St. John's.

On the way home the bells of Malmesbury Abbey, Wiltshire, were rung for Evensong. The party included the Master of the Worcestershire Association and the Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild, not forgetting the legal representative on the Central Council.

GOSSIP

While ringing a peal recently the following thought flashed across one of the ringers: Would it be possible for a 'Shepherd' to set out with a fast 'Walker' along the 'Meadows' and up to the 'Border' to meet the 'Baron,' who is fishing with small 'Fry' in a large 'Poole' beneath the shelter of a couple of 'Fearns,' quietly watched by a 'Dove.' The amazing thing is that the peal did not break down!

Mr. John A Acres has already rung 100 peals this year.

Mr. Ernest Morris has produced a second edition of 'St. Margaret's Select Vestry: Its History and Its Work.'

Through forgetting the lights, the last 20 minutes of the handbell peal at Bournemouth on November 21st was rung in practically complete darkness. It has now been suggested that the band go for a peal in the dark! One of the ringers, Mr. David Hoare, motor-cycled 60 miles each way to participate.

Congratulations to two young Essex ringers on ringing their first peal—Michael Edwards, of Great Baddow, aged 12 years, and Thomas Roast, of Danbury, who rang the second in the same peal consisting of six methods. Thomas, who recently celebrated his 14th birthday, has now rung in more than 150 different towers.

Mr. Derek Jewell, of Combe Martin, has been holidaying in London. Through the good services of Mr. David Beard he was able to score a peal at Downham, Essex, and enjoyed the practices at Harrow-on-the-Hill and St. Mary's, Lewisham. To all concerned he expresses his sincere thanks and assures them that a similar welcome awaits them at Combe Martin.

THE GREAT ATTEMPT

Capturing Public Imagination

Widespread interest, not only in ringing circles, but by the public generally, is being taken in the attempt which starts at 4 a.m. tomorrow (Saturday) to ring the extent of Plain Bob Major on the bells of the campanile at the foundry of Messrs. John Taylor and Co., at Loughborough. Not until nearly midnight will it be possible to complete this stupendous feat.

The band that Mr. W. Eric Critchley has enlisted for the purpose are all experienced peal ringers. They have not undertaken special practice for this attempt, although all of them are ringing peals regularly. With characteristic English reticence the names of the ringers are being withheld from 'The Ringing World' until after the attempt.

The band are planning to get in some sleep before the event, although some of them will not arrive at Loughborough until 8.30 p.m. on the previous Friday. Mr. Critchley will be leaving school as usual at 4 p.m., and then will have to travel from Mexborough, near Rotherham.

No refreshment will be handed to the ringers during the peal, but food will be placed around the belfry so that anyone who is able to ring one-handed for sufficient time will be able to grab what he wants.

At least three umpires have been appointed—Mr. Shirley Burton and Mr. Peter J. Staniforth, of Leicester, and Mr. Wilfred L. Robinson, of Eckington, Derbyshire.

It is understood that the B.B.C. Midland Region intend to take recordings of the attempt. Apart from the national Press, arrangements for coverage are being made by 'Illustrated,' the New York 'Life' and P.A. —Reuter Photos, Ltd.

Ringers throughout the country will wish the band success in this great attempt. We are hoping to give the full story of this unprecedented event in ringing history in our next issue.

THE MIDDLESEX VISIT EALING

A sparsely attended but very happy gathering of the Middlesex County Association was held at St. Mary's, South Ealing, on November 20th. St. Mary's tower has been described as the ugliest in the county. It is brick, built in 1792, and is unique in appearance. Oddly enough the parishioners do not see in it anything to be despised, but only a building regarded with the warmest affection. So it was quite to be expected that the visitors were received with warmth and friendliness too.

The Rev. G. H. Perman, Vicar of Ealing, in a short talk during service, compared ringers and himself in using dedicated instruments in the church, he with chalice and paten on the altar and the ringers with bells in the tower. A bountiful tea was served by Mrs. Fulwell and other ringers' wives.

At the business meeting the congratulations of members were accorded to Tom Collins on completing 50 years' service as a ringer at Ruislip. The ringers in two recent peals also came in for praise. The peal of Bob Major at Exeter included the Master and other resident members of the Association, and the meeting agreed that it was a wonderful example of heavy-bell ringing. The District Master, Mr. Frank Blagrove, had also just added to his laurels by his peal at Stanwell in 45 Doubles methods (two or three of these would require a larger 'Ringing World'!). Four new members were elected: C. V. Herriott and P. White, of St. Mary's, Ealing, F. A. Ranson, of Bury St. Edmunds, and Miss J. Barbrook, of Wickwar, Glos.

Ringing during the afternoon and evening ranged from the standard methods to London Surprise Major, all under the guidance of the District Ringing Master.

INSPECTOR HAROLD J. POOLE RETIRES

To mark the retirement of Inspector Harold J. Poole from the Leicester City Police Force after 29 years of service a peal of Stedman Triples was rung by members of the National Guild of Police Ringers at the Church of St. Mary-de-Castro, Leicester, on Nov. 20th.

Mr. H. J. Poole is president of the Guild of Police Ringers, and also holds a similar office with the Leicester Diocesan Guild.

A BROADCAST FOR YOUTH

On Tuesday, December 14th, in 'Parade,' one of the B.B.C.'s weekly younger generation series in the Light Programme, a Christmas festival of music-making by young people all over Britain will be broadcast from 6.15–6.45 p.m. This will include pre-recorded contributions by young handbell ringers of St. Giles' Church, Birmingham, and St. Dunstan's, Cranford, Middlesex.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD

A good sign for the future in the Elloe Deanery was the presence at the quarterly meeting at Gosberton on November 20th of 12 ringers of school age out of an attendance of over 40. The church here has a lovely central tower with a lofty crooked spire. Good use was made of the six bells (tenor 17 cwt. 3 qr. 17 lb.).

The new Vicar (the Rev. Mr. Tollitt) gave a thoughtful address at the service, and the Mothers' Union provided an excellent tea. Mr. Tollitt presided at the short business meeting.

A PATIENT'S GRATITUDE

The Dean of one of our Cathedrals has recently received the following letter:—

About a fortnight last Saturday I was lying abed in the Women's Hospital feeling very wretched after an operation, when suddenly all the bells in Heaven (or so it seemed) were ringing!

'What a sound, and what a pleasure!

'I immediately felt better and was equally delighted when they rang again the next day. I have never heard them before.'

[Note.—A reply to the 'Sunday Express' banner: 'I can't stand these church bells.'—Ed.]

ANCIENT SOCIETY OF COLLEGE YOUTHS

Election of Officers

At the conclusion of the ordinary business at the meeting held on November 20th, the Master, Mr. John Chilcott, vacated the chair and the members proceeded to elect the officers for the ensuing year.

Mr. J. F. Smallwood was voted to the chair, and the officers elected were:—

Master, Mr. Cyril Watts.
Secretary, Mr. Alfred B. Peck.
Treasurer, Mr. Albert A. Hughes.
Senior Steward, Mr. John S. Mason.
Junior Steward, Mr. Selwyn Dearden.
Trustees, Mr. Ernest G. Fenn,
Mr. J. Frank Smallwood.

Conducting the new Master to the chair, Mr. Smallwood wished him every success and happiness in his year of office. It was because the members had the greatest confidence in him that they had elected him to this high office. They believed that he would maintain the dignity and prestige of the Society and would preside over their affairs with fairness and impartiality.

The new Master expressed his pleasure at being elected and promised to do his utmost for the welfare of the Society. He paid a high tribute to the work of the retiring Master, who, he said, had set a very high standard to follow.

The other officers elected also suitably acknowledged their election.

LIVERPOOL CATHEDRAL BELLS

The third anniversary of the opening of Liverpool Cathedral bells was marked on November 20th by the ringing of the bells from 11.30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m. The Dean personally welcomed the ringers in the ringing chamber.

The bells were heard at their best with an opening course of Grandsire Cinques rung by a band of Cathedral and visiting ringers at 16½ changes per minute. Ringing throughout the day varied from Queens to Surprise Major, Stedman and Grandsire Caters and Cinques.

At the evensong service, attended by Cathedral and visiting ringers, prayers of praise and thanks were given for the bells, the service closing in remembrance of the Royal opening with the singing of the National Anthem.

It is hoped to make this anniversary day an annual ringing day on which bands of ringers will join with the Cathedral bellringers in an act of praise and thanksgiving.

First 'Four-Spliced' for Durham and Newcastle Association

This peal, on November 20th, at St. Ignatius', Sunderland, was achieved at the third meeting of the band. The first attempt in Newcastle was little more than a practice, for the band is so widely scattered that weekly, or, indeed, any regular practice, is impossible. The second attempt at Whitley Bay showed that the practice had been valuable and but for the intervention of the curate would probably have been successful, as five-sixths of the peal had been rung in splendid fashion up to that point. Perhaps it was appropriate that success should not come until the third attempt in the tower of the late J. W. Parker, the pioneer of Spliced Surprise Major.

The band is entirely resident within the Association area although Frank G. Bloomfield is only a temporary resident during his studies at Durham University.

In view of recent comments on Spliced Surprise on the LXL plan, it may be added that all the band have rung complete peals in all four methods with but one or two exceptions.

The band would like to record the peal as a tribute to the late J. W. Parker.

ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD SOCIETY

Youth—A Promise for the Future

THE third annual dinner of the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford took place at the Stork Hotel, Walsall, on November 13th. All the available 102 tickets were, as last year, again disposed of a fortnight before the dinner.

The Archdeacon of Stafford (Venerable W. A. Parker) presided, and he was supported by Mrs. Parker, Canon A. S. Jenkins (Vicar of Walsall) and Mrs. Jenkins, the Rev. H. H. Follis (Vicar of Little Aston) and Mrs. Follis, and the Rev. G. A. H. Rainbow (Vicar of Claverley, Salop) and Mrs. Rainbow. Other visitors included Mr. W. A. Farmer (secretary of the Shropshire Association), Mrs. Farmer, Mr. H. Bennett and Miss Jones (Shrewsbury), Miss Evelyn Fletcher (Birmingham), Mr. Frank Perrens (Coventry), together with ringers and their wives from Worcestershire and Shropshire. Apologies were received from the Rev. C. H. Barker (clerical secretary) and Mr. and Mrs. F. Colclough.

After a very good meal the chairman proposed the loyal toast. In his remarks which followed, Ven. W. A. Parker said it gave him great pleasure to see so many young people present that evening. With so much young talent available the Society should look forward confidently to the years ahead.

Proposing the toast of 'Church and State,' Mr. J. H. Joyner, of Rugeley, said ringers owed much to the clergy, as without their support ringing on occasions other than for Sunday services would be impossible. By ringing on national occasions ringers acted as a link between Church and State.

In a witty reply the Rev. H. H. Follis made reference to Ven. W. A. Parker's recent appointment as Residentiary Canon of Lichfield Cathedral. Mr. Follis's skit on life in a Cathedral Close had the company in fits of laughter. Mr. Follis said both he and his wife felt honoured to have been invited to the Society's annual dinner.

Proposing the toast of 'The Society,' Mr. W. A. Farmer spoke of the happy relationship between the Shropshire Association and the 'Staffords.' He went on to say how successful the joint meeting had been at Shrewsbury in July, and said he was looking forward to a similar meeting in the 'Stafford's' territory next year.

In reply, Mr. G. Darlington, of Wednesbury, appealed for an all-round improvement in striking. He said that to those listening outside the tower the method being rung was immaterial, but the quality of the striking was of paramount importance.

In proposing the toast of 'The Visitors,' Mr. K. W. Knowles said the presence of visitors from other Associations was essential to the success of a ringers' annual dinner.

In a charming speech of response, Miss Evelyn Fletcher, of Birmingham, said she felt just the same as if she was returning thanks to a personal friend after a really pleasant evening. Miss Fletcher said that she derived much satisfaction from the good fellowship she found amongst ringers wherever she went.

This concluded the speeches, and Mr. Fred Bennett, lay secretary, thanked the Archdeacon for so efficiently taking the chair, and the artistes for giving their services.

Entertainment was provided by the Tamworth Parish Church handbell ringers under Mr. G. H. Peers, jun., the Rev. G. A. H. Rainbow (baritone), Mrs. Dorothy Morris and Mrs. Kathleen Phillips (duets). Mrs. J. H. Joyner and Mrs. Rainbow acted as accompanists. Courses of Grandsire Triples and Caters on handbells were rung by Miss Joan Beresford and Messrs. H. Knight, F. Brotherton, H. Howell, E. Speake, B. G. Key and F. Perrens.

THE SUFFOLK GUILD

Sudbury and Lavenham Hold Their First Dinner

Reminiscences of the early days in the Suffolk Guild were forthcoming at the first annual dinner and social evening of the Sudbury and Lavenham Districts held at the Four Swans, Sudbury, on November 20th.

Mr. R. D. Mills was a genial chairman, and in submitting the toast of 'Church and State' he compared the team work required to run the Church and State in harmony with ringing. One bad striker, he said, ruined the whole effort and bad attendance would mar a good band.

Mr. A. J. Haynes replied, and said the State was represented by the general public and he felt sure ringers' efforts were generally appreciated except when they made the mistake of allowing two peals in one day in a town. He recalled the old story that when the Rector of St. Gregory's asked Dick Harper why he was not stopping for the service, Dick replied in true Suffolk dialect, 'We've done our bit, now you do yours.'

The toast 'The Suffolk Guild' was proposed by one of the oldest members, Mr. Ernest Ambrose, who, in his usual humorous vein, related some of his experiences before the Guild was formed. In 1894 he walked to and from Lavenham for a peal of Bob Major and after its successful conclusion the band adjourned to the Cock Inn for a pint and a good feed of bread and cheese with pickles, for sixpence. He spoke with pride at the tremendous advancement in ringing to-day; the way young people rang and conducted peals showed great promise for the future.

Mr. Archie A Fitch, in his reply, recalled the foundation of the Guild by the late Rev. T. Drake, of Ufford, the idea having originated from that grand old man, the late Arthur Symonds, of Lavenham, who walked thousands of miles to foster and teach the art. He thanked the chairman for arranging the function and hoped it would become an annual affair.

Between the speeches tunes were played on handbells by Donald Mills and Stuart Hume, and a course of Bob Major rung. Mr. Richard Seabrook sang 'The Farmer's Boy.' Games and musical items with Mr. Ernest Ambrose at the piano concluded the evening.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Lewisham District

The annual meeting of the Lewisham District was held at St. Luke's, Bromley Common. Fourteen towers were represented by the 60 ringers in attendance, together with one or two very welcome visitors. Ringing during the afternoon was directed by Mr. P. P. Brown, District Ringing Master.

The Association service was held in church, the Vicar (the Rev. R. Appleton) officiating. The service commenced with a course of Grandsire Triples on handbells rung at the chancel steps. Mr. E. Barnett, of Crayford, read the lesson. The Vicar's address was original and thought-provoking, and included a warm welcome to Bromley Common. The organ accompaniments heightened the attractiveness of the service.

Tea was served in the Church Institute, Bromley Young Wives' Club members efficiently and graciously arranged the catering and undertook its service.

The business meeting was presided over by the Vicar. Seventeen new members were enrolled into the Association and two life members' elections ratified. The District secretary's report of the year's work was read and adopted.

Mr. A. G. Hill was re-elected District secretary, and Messrs. A. S. Richards and J. Dafters were reappointed District representatives. Two nominations were made for the office of Ringing Master—Mr. E. Ball (Lewisham) and Mr. J. Cannell (West Wickham). Assured that Mr. Cannell was willing to serve, Mr. Ball asked leave to withdraw for this year, and Mr. Cannell was elected. A warm vote of thanks was accorded Mr. P. P. Brown (Bexley) for the exemplary discharge of his duties during the past year. St. Alphege's, Greenwich, was chosen as place of the next quarterly meeting to be held on Saturday, January 29th, 1955.

A word or two of welcome to Mr. E. Alex Young and to Mr. C. Wilkins (Oxford), followed by a very cordial vote of thanks to the Vicar, churchwardens and organist of St. Luke's, to the ladies for their willing help and to Mr. A. Purdom and the local ringers, concluded the business.

Further ringing on handbells and in the tower brought 8 o'clock and the termination of a successful and pleasant meeting.

LLANDAFF AND MONMOUTH ASSOCIATION

Monmouth Branch

Despite a dreary November day the Monmouth Branch quarterly meeting, held at Llanfrechfa recently, proved most enjoyable. Both the Vicar (the Rev. F. A. Oswel) and Mr. Bob Smith were there to welcome all comers. The bells rang out promptly at 2.30 p.m. and a variety of methods was enjoyed.

The Vicar conducted the service and gave, as a fellow ringer, a most interesting address. The Rev. Ivor J. Richards, Llorarth, read the lesson.

A bountiful tea in the Church Hall followed, prepared by Mrs. Oswel, Mrs. Bob Smith and other helpers. These ladies were most sincerely thanked by Mr. Fred Bailey, Master of the Llandaff Branch.

Three new members were elected—Miss Margaret Moss (Bedwellty), Ian Goatman (Ebbw Vale) and B. H. Williams St. Woolos'). Chepstow was chosen as the place of the next meeting in January.

HUNTINGDON.—At All Saints' Church, on Nov. 7th, 1,440 Plain Bob Minor: S. E. Dyer (first quarter) 1, Miss L. Allen 2, G. D. Whitehead 3, J. R. G. Spicer 4, M. J. Dyer 5, H. S. Peacock (cond.) 6. For the festival of All Saints.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE EXTENT OF MAJOR

Dear Sir,—In an article by ' C. R.' on page 663 of the issue of October 15th entitled 'Ringers' Stand at Cheltenham Exhibition,' it was stated that 'One man wanted to know of a book containing all the changes possible on eight bells so that he could learn them.'

In view of the forthcoming attempt to ring the 'extent' of Bob Major, it may be of interest to know that the late Charles Herbert, of Woburn, in order to convince a sceptic in the early days of his efforts to spread the art of change ringing in the district, wrote out the full peal of 40,320.—Yours faithfully.

H. D. HARRIS.

Woburn.

RINGERS' EPITAPHS, ETC.

Dear Sir,—Miss Dorothy Sayers' 'Nine Tailors' is fictitious in a sense, but to me, who knew the lady while at Bluntisham, where 'Taylors' made eight bells chime from the clappers, it appears many names are from Bluntisham and Earith (Hunts) families, while not a doubt should arise that Snowden's books were also used.

I have lived almost all my life within the sound of Bluntisham Church bells and have heard the Rev. Mr. Sayers chime the bells there many mornings, somewhere about 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., while he was Rector there.

Mr. Holliday, of Bluntisham-cum-Earith told me quite an interesting story why the bells were hung dead. He stated the ringers celebrated Christmas and the Rector visited the belfry and turned them out. The tower and spire of this church are not too good, but quite easily good inside corner building to the bells could have been done with efficiency. Bluntisham with Earith has a population of over 1,000, and the net income (Rector's) is somewhere near £950 a year, but, unfortunately, there appears little chance of bell rehanging. There are eight good bells (wheels removed), with tenor 11 cwt. 2 qr. (3ft. 2in. inside diam.) augmented from five to eight early this century. Here is a real need for applications for aid from the Pilgrims Trust and Andrew Carnegie Trust funds to help not too wealthy a church.—Yours faithfully,

FRANK WARRINGTON.

St. Ives, Hunts.

IN DEFENCE OF THOSE WHO APPRECIATE

Dear Sir,—I note with concern the letter by H. and I. Carter of the ingratitude of ringers on outings.

My experience has been the exact opposite. A party of ringers on their annual outing this summer called at Dersingham, and on leaving left me with an appreciation to hand to the church authorities.

Could I add, sir, the parish priest could only stay to welcome them.—Yours sincerely,

CECIL EBBERSON.

Snettisham, Norfolk.

'RINGING WORLD' FINANCE

Dear Sir,—It is interesting to note that in your last four issues 198 peals were published in 17½ pages. During the same period 184 quarter peals were printed occupying four pages.

The voluntary donations acknowledged were: peals £9 2s. 6d.; quarter peals £13 3s.—Yours truly,

G. L. GROVER.

East Clandon, Surrey.

BEDFORDSHIRE—A CLAIM

Dear Sir,—May I, through your columns, thank Mr. Tipler for his reply to my query, and notify you that with the consent of the ringers round this area we shall call Method 2 Bedfordshire, and we should be grateful if no one anticipates us in ringing the first peal in the method.

Also, may I point out that it fulfils Mr. Roe's specifications for his ideal Surprise Major method; although it has six f.c.e.'s, it is possible to get a peal with no 82's or 27's. I submit two more methods with no adjacent places, and course-bells behind, for his perusal.

(i.) mx. 38—14—58—36—14—38—16—58

(ii.) a. 38—14—58—36—14—58—36—58

These both have a mouthful of f.c.e.'s, and I doubt if they are pealable.—Yours sincerely,

STEPHEN IVIN.

Houghton Conquest, Beds.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS

'The Ringing World' Committee has now thoroughly reviewed this matter, and in the light of the discussion at the last Central Council meeting, and the fact that some contributors desire to remain anonymous, the Committee decided to advise the Editor to consider for publication letters and articles written over a nom-de-plume, PROVIDED they do not contain attacks on or unreasonable criticism of individuals or bodies.

It should be understood that in EVERY case the name and address of the contributor must be enclosed, not necessarily for publication but as a gesture of good faith.

BOB MAJOR AT EXETER

Dear Sir,—There is no duty to congratulate the band who rang Bob Major at Exeter; we all know they did a job for which even William Pye and his company would have congratulated them, but no duty is attached thereto. I have rung with them all except Mr. Marlow, and know they are 100 per cent. ringers. I also know there is at least one organist among them, but to compare Bob Major or even any Major to an organ on any bells there is no comparison. If your correspondents, Mr. Mallett and Mr. Wreford, were there all the time, it is a pity Royal was not rung, for it only shows that the peal was not Laus Deo.—Yours sincerely,

FRANK WARRINGTON.

St. Ives, Hunts.

IDENTITY WANTED

Dear Sir,—The chimes of the Parish Church of Stow-on-the-Wold ring the following quaint sequences for quarter- and half-hours (repeating first one and then both sequences for the three-quarter and full-hour respectively):—

E, C, D, A
C, E, D, A

These may not be the actual notes, but the intervals are correct if the key is wrong.

It was suggested to me that this is not a legitimate chime but a freak, due to incompetent fumbling after 'Westminster' chimes on the part of a workman of past days.

I have never heard our chimes anywhere else. Can you possibly give a name to them? Their effect is odd at first to the hearer, who expects 'Westminster,' but later acquires a markedly wistful character not without charm.—Yours faithfully,

H. C. M. POTTS (Rev.).

Stow-on-the-Wold, Glos.

SURPRISE MAJOR—A CHALLENGE

Dear Sir,—I read Mr. K. A. Roe's letter in 'The Ringing World' of November 19th with a good deal of interest, and I suppose I am one of those involved in the debasement of the term 'Major.' I would like to try and reply to some of his points.

Firstly, I would like to say that Messrs. Knights and Cashmore are not responsible for the methods Ufford and Olney, but only for the compositions. As originally submitted to you, sir, there was no ambiguity in this respect. I claim no ownership of the figures, but I do admit to having written them out. I do not admit ownership of the figures of methods; once the basic principles have been grasped it is an elementary procedure for anyone to sit down and go on writing out Surprise Major methods more or less ad infinitum; no particular skill is involved. Working out the false course ends is fairly simple, and in very many methods it is easy to say if a true peal can be produced.

I imagine Mr. Blagrove will not waste his time over the 'challenge'—here is a method which seems to meet it:—

—58—16—58—36—, 14—14, 38, 16—16, 38

2nds place lead end (peals of Watford will go). Incidentally, the second method sent to 'The Ringing World' a few weeks ago by Mr. Ivin is pealable, so that also would meet the bill.

Now we come to this 'debasement' business. I agree that the making of four places at a time is not in general a good thing; however, its use in a section is hallowed by the ancient example of Cambridge, which is fairly generally regarded as a very good method. Its use at a cross section seems to me rather more debatable for reasons too involved to go into here. However, one thing I will say: the making of four places in Cambridge does not offend my rather insensitive ear, while the making of three adjacent places in New Cambridge can sound horrible.

Mr. Roe obviously believes in never having any but coursing pairs in 7-8. May I suggest he goes and rings a few peals in methods with the work of Superlative above the treble and with the 6th 12 full courses home; he will then realise that there is some good music which cannot be got if the bells behind are coursing pairs. Personally, I like a bit of variety in the music.

To condemn adjacent places out of hand is quite ridiculous. The late Armiger Trollope said that Cornwall is one of the most musical of methods; I most heartily agree. Methods with the New Gloucester work above the treble also produce some excellent music, and, with the careful attention to the composition used, are very much more worth ringing than some more popular methods.

Next we come to the old argument about the label 'Surprise.' Where are all these wonderful Treble Bob and Delight methods? Now and again I have tried scribbling out some. Treble Bob is useless. Delight has some possibilities but there just don't seem to be the interesting methods available; if there is just one cross section with no internal places the number of possible sections on either side of this cross section is very much reduced, and so the number of possible methods is reduced. The restriction of having coursing bells in 7-8 also very severely cuts down the number of these methods. If you want to avoid adjacent places as well, there are no Treble Bob methods available!

I think a great many people do care what they ring. Unfortunately I fear Mr. Roe looks at the figures, writes out the places, says 'What a horrible method!' and then forgets about it. I suggest he goes and rings a few of them and when I say 'ring,' I mean a peal—not just a rather poor plain course.—Yours sincerely,

RICHARD F. B. SPEED.

Hampton Wick, Kingston.

LETTERS—Continued

SURPRISE MAJOR

Dear Sir,—I have noted with interest the recent correspondence in your columns concerning Surprise Major, and its classification into two categories, namely, 'good' and 'bad.' Mr. Roe's latest letter provokes me into making a reply.

My first point is this. It is ridiculous to make terminology the basis for any argument concerning relative merits. Let us assume that, at a given change, four bells make places, and consequently only two pairs reverse. Then no amount of bandying the word 'Doubles' can alter the fact that the change-row so produced is a permutation on eight and must accordingly be classified 'Major.' Whether the musical qualities of the method suffer by the inclusion of such double changes is a different matter, and each individual case must be judged on its own merits.

There then arises the question of how we are to decide which method is and which is not worth ringing. Two bands could have very different views on the qualities of the same method. Whereas one band might vow never to ring 'that rubbish' again, the other band might decide to give it 'a good working over' in the future. Whose opinion do we accept? The answer is, of course, that we accept neither, but we try the method out ourselves and draw our own conclusions. Certainly no method should be condemned merely because it contains changes at which contiguous places are made—there are many of these methods which contain plenty of good music for those willing to listen for it.

I pass over Mr. Roe's challenge to Mr. Blagrove, except in so far as to connect a remark contained therein with an earlier remark concerning 'ownership.' Certainly anybody can write out a Surprise Major method, and that being so, where is the justification for calling any method 'all my own work'?.

Lastly, if we look up Mr. Roe's letter in 'The Ringing World' of July 16th, 1954, we find that he advocates the abolition of the term 'Surprise,' and proposes to divide Treble Bob methods into two classes, simple and difficult. Consider the case of the two ringers A and B. A finds that he has reached the limit of his power of concentration at Kent Treble Bob, but it is well known that B could ring London Surprise standing on his head, if he could only manage his rope that way up. The futility of trying to make such a division should be immediately obvious.—Yours faithfully,

PETER BORDER.

Coventry.

INSPIRED FRIENDSHIP

Dear Sir,—There is an inspired friendship among ringers, and Mr. Frank Stenson, when I first met him, gave me such a feeling. It abounded in Friezland (Yorks), where I was brought up, and was there more prominently in the ringing chamber than among other church workers.

This was recalled to me when I attended the Rochdale Branch meeting at Moorside on November 13th, when the Vicar appealed in his sermon to the ringers to give of their best to the bells.

Such a thought has been my constant inspiration. The bells have given me joy and sorrow (not in a way of disappointment but a remembrance of my ringing pals). We are a great and varied society—not always seeing eye to eye—but nevertheless gain inspiration and friendship from meeting and ringing together.—Yours fraternally,

JOSEPH BURGESS.

Friezland, Yorks.

OBITUARY

MR. W. H. COOPER

Mr. William Henry Cooper, who died at Guildford on November 17th, aged 74, was for 35 years a ringer and chorister at Merrow Parish Church.

He learned to handle a bell at Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, and came from there to the Guildford area nearly 40 years ago, and until his health broke down about two years ago, he had for most of that time lived and been employed as a gardener at Levylsdene, Merrow.

Although Bill Cooper did not aspire to reach great heights in the world of method ringing he was always a regular and punctual service ringer and served faithfully, too, in his office of chorister.

The funeral was at Merrow on November 23rd, and in the evening a quarter peal of Doubles was rung half-muffled on the bells.

MR. FRED HILTON

Mr. Fred Hilton, who will probably be remembered in Lincolnshire, and in later years was well known in East Kent ringing circles, died on November 19th, aged 78 years.

He commenced his ringing career at an early age at Heckington, Lincolnshire, and went to live at Broadstairs, Kent, about 30 years ago, when he joined the St. Lawrence. Ramsgate, band. Mr. Hilton gave up active ringing in 1951 owing to ill-health, but continued to take an interest in ringing matters and was a regular reader of 'The Ringing World.' He was a devout churchman and rang regularly for Sunday services, but did not indulge in many peal attempts. He had a pleasant personality and was well respected by all who knew him. His eldest son and a grandson carry on what is now a family tradition.

The St. Peter's, Broadstairs, band rang half-muffled at morning service on November 21st and the St. Lawrence's, Ramsgate, band also rang a quarter peal half-muffled on November 22nd to his memory.

MR. SIDNEY J. PECK

The death occurred on November 12th of Mr. Sidney J. Peck, of Eynesbury, St. Neots, Huntingdonshire. He was in his 70th year and had been a member of the Ely Diocesan Association since 1902.

During recent years his ringing had been restricted owing to ill-health, but in his younger days he was a regular visitor at meetings in Huntingdonshire, Bedfordshire and Cambridgeshire. During this period he rang 34 peals (five on handbells) and conducted two. These included the first peal of Major and first in seven Minor methods in Huntingdonshire.

Mr. Peck was a regular Sunday service ringer at Eynesbury from 1900, and tower captain from 1921 until ill-health caused his retirement from ringing in 1953. For the whole of this time he was also a member of the church choir, being the tenor soloist for many years.

At his funeral on November 15th the choir was in attendance and a number of his ringing friends were also present. The wreaths included one from the Eynesbury church choir and bellringers and one from the Hunts District, Ely Diocesan Association.

During the evening a quarter peal of 1,320 Plain Bob Minor was rung, with the bells half-muffled, by S. W. Hawksford (St. Neots) 1, F. Warrington (conductor, St. Ives) 2, J. R. T. Spicer (Huntingdon) 3, W. A. R. Chamberlain (Eynesbury) 4, F. W. Lack (Great Staughton) 5, H. S. Peacock (Huntingdon) 6. S. G. P.

MR. JOSEPH WILLIAM PEMBERTON

With regret we record the death of another old member of St. Martin's Guild (as briefly announced in 'The Ringing World') in the person of Mr. Joseph William Pemberton, who passed away at his home in Sutton Coldfield.

Mr. Pemberton joined the Guild 36 years ago and rang his first peal in December, 1918, and his last in October, 1948. He unfortunately had a seizure from which he never recovered, and the deepest sympathy of his many friends has been extended to his widow and family.

The funeral service, which preceded cremation, was held at Boldmere Parish Church and conducted by the Vicar. The many friends present included members of the Masonic Craft, and the St. Martin's Guild was represented by Mr. F. E. Haynes (vice-president) and Mr. A. Walker (Master).

A prominent Freemason, Mr. Pemberton had attained high honours in the Craft. He was Worshipful Master of the Birchfield Lodge (No. 4549) 1934-5; also a founder and Worshipful Master of the Walmley St. John's Lodge (No. 6504) 1948-9. He took part in four Masonic peals.

Of his 115 peals he conducted 17 on five to twelve bells; 74 of these were with St. Martin's Guild. He was also a member of the Archdeaconry of Stafford, Worcestershire and Districts, Coventry, Gloucester and Bristol, Glossop, and Salisbury Guilds.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON SOCIETY

Dr. D. N. Layton presided over the tenth annual meeting of the University of London Society held at Halliday Hall, on October 30th, and attended by 24 members out of a total of 120.

Officers elected for the new session were:—President, Dr. D. N. Layton; Master, John R. Leeming; secretary and treasurer, Graham McKay; auditor, Peter Layton; committee, Geoffrey Bryant, Alan Hilton and Roselyn Crewe, The election of the following new members was ratified:—A. Rex Agg, David Little, Ann Field, David Priestley, John M. Harrop, Roselyn Crewe and Peter Davies.

The meeting discussed the need of a permanent home, especially for Sunday service ringing. The president and secretary were authorised to continue their negotiations with the Rector of St. Olave's, Hart Street.

The meeting stood in silence to the memory or Eric Dench, a life member, who died whilst on service with the R.A.F.

Essex was favoured for the next Whitsun tour with the possibility of another in West Kent as an alternative. For the summer tour Suffolk was suggested. The annual dinner was fixed for February 19th.

Congratulations were accorded to Philip Gray on winning a prize to the value of £100 for an essay on mineralogy.

There was ringing in the afternoon at St. Stephen's, Clapham Park, and the Society attended evensong conducted by the Vicar. Most of those present attended a dance at Halliday Hall after the meeting.

A Progressive Band

An indication of the progress made by members of the Ashtead Society of Change Ringers, which celebrated its second birthday in October, was given on November 20th, when four members rang in a peal of Grandsire Triples. This is the first occasion for more than 26 years that four local ringers have rung together in a peal. At the annual meeting of the Society, Derek Astridge, then aged 15, was appointed Ringing Master. Although by no means a record, it is an indication of the youth and virility of most of the band that so young a Ringing Master has been appointed. Previous to the meeting Derek had rung the treble to a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2279 Vol. L. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

TELLING A BELL-RINGER

By JUDITH ROBINSON
(From 'The Telegram,' Alaska)

LONDON.—Only a short experience as audience and it is easy to understand how bell-ringing gets hold of a person. Among the ringers in St. Michael's, Cornhill, Sunday morning two were girls who had come up from Kent to hear the ringing at St. Paul's. They were members of a band in a Kentish village which had not even a full ring of bells. But the fact that they were ringers was enough. Ten minutes after St. Paul's peal ended they were standing breathless and pink with excitement in the tower of St. Michael's, Cornhill, each with a bell-rope in hand.

Two of the band of London ringers had given up their places to the visitors. So they went home to Kent happy, having had twenty minutes of ringing Caters on London's oldest ring of bells.

At the George in Southwark, when morning service at St. Michael's was over, the lieutenant instructor who had travelled by early train from Portsmouth to ring his bell with St. Michael's band, explained how it was with ringers. The newcomers from Kent had made the ringing a little ragged, he said, because they were nervous, but they were visiting ringers so they had to be asked to ring. That was an obligation among ringers.

Two other ringers who had joined the party agreed. They said a man could go all around England and never fail for friends or a chance to pull a bell if he was a ringer. All he needed to do if he found himself alone in a strange place was find a church with a ring of bells and go lean against the tower until another ringer came along and there he would be with all the friends he wanted.

He would not have to lean against the tower long, either; real ringers couldn't keep away from their bells. Moreover, a real ringer could tell in ten words whether another man was a ringer or not. If he was that would be all he would want to know.

A senior ringer by forty years said he didn't even have to talk to a man, he only had to see how he took hold of a bell-rope. The most senior ringer of the three said his wife claimed she could recognise a ringer any place by the way he stood and walked. She claimed, he said, that all ringers shambled along as though they needed a bell-rope to hold up by. Thereafter all three tried to explain what it was about ringing. The senior said it was all mathematics, but the other two could not agree.

It is true that the sequence of bells and all the changes in every peal are worked out like a mathematical formula to ensure the proper harmonies. Since each bell sounds five tones, its true note and the under and over-tones, each formula must be exact to ensure against jangling out of tune. But there is more to it than mathematics. There is rhythm and timing and hands.

The lieutenant instructor from Portsmouth thought that hands were what made the ringer. The leader of a band had to have a perfect sense of timing, but he had to have hands, too. Every ringer in a band had to have the hands for it if bells were to be well rung. Sailing and riding were the only other sports, he maintained, which required hands in the same sense. A ringer had to humour his bell as you would a horse or a boat; to feel the moment to check its swing before the moment came. Good ringing was far more in the check than in the pull, and checking was what could not be taught. It had to be felt. The senior ringer said yes, but . . .

The argument went on from there, as arguments of the sort have gone on at the George in Southwark just about ever since the English discovered they could pull together and still argue.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From 'The Ringing World' of December 11th, 1914

A NEW ZEALAND QUARTER PEAL

Ringing at St. Matthew's Church, Auckland, New Zealand, is handicapped by the fact that the bells are going none too well, but we have just received the report of a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples rung upon them on Sunday, September 20th, the eve of St. Matthew's Day, by: P. Guppy 1, J. Heather 2, S. C. Hamblin 3, C. J. Hamblin 4, J. Davis 5, E. J. Hamblin 6, A. J. White 7, P. W. Barringer 8.

[The ringer of the 7th, now an octogenarian, still rings when opportunity offers, although not at Auckland, where the bells are no longer in use.]

A Somerset Wedding

A popular member of the band of St. John-the-Baptist's, Wellington, Somerset, Mr. Gordon Walford, was married in his own church on November 20th to Miss Sylvia Burton, of Runnington, near Wellington. Mr. David North, the tower captain, was his best man.

The bride, who was given away by her eldest brother, wore a turquoise dress with black accessories and carried a spray of orchids. A quarter peal of Stedman Triples was rung after the service on the parish church bells.

Whilst waiting for the train to arrive to take the happy couple to their honeymoon at Gulval, Cornwall, the bridegroom took part in a touch of Grandsire Triples on the station platform. They had a rousing send-off, the party being enlarged by the bridegroom's fellow-employes of the railway staff.

Ely Diocesan Association

Some twenty-one members and friends attended a practice meeting of the Hunts District at Buckden on November 20th. The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. J. H. Bradbury, who also gave a short address.

Prior to the commencement of the business meeting Mr. F. Warrington, District Ringing Master, requested the members to stand in silence in memory of Mr. S. J. Peck (Eynesbury), Mr. W. Cornell (Buckden) and the Rev. C. M. Cadman. Several belfry elections were ratified, and the next meeting will be at St. Ives on December 11th. The visitors were welcomed by Mr. Papworth and Mr. Mann, and thanks were expressed to the Vicar by Mr. F. W. Lack, seconded by Mr. R. F. Baker.

Peal Ringing in North Devon

Peal ringing in North Devon usually presents transport difficulties, as trains are rare, buses slow and the hilly roads steep and narrow. There are, however, some ringers there whose enthusiasm exceeds their skill, and the expert help of a conductor and one or two friends must needs be imported from elsewhere.

On November 20th the youngest member of the local band had his 15th birthday, and to celebrate the occasion all these difficulties were overcome to enable him and three other local ringers to ring their first peal of Major. The conductor and a friend were brought from Exeter to Barnstaple by British Railways on time despite fog, and a valiant Morris Minor transported a load of five, including a listener, over the hills to Combe Martin. A member of the R.A.F., relying on buses, was nearly late, but the peal was rung and the ringer of the 7th just had time to quench his thirst before being rushed off to catch the train again, supplied with a thermos and his supper in a paper bag.

During the peal the listeners had anxieties of their own as the street lighting failed, but luckily the belfry light shone steadfastly and all was well.

We are most grateful to all who made this peal possible, especially the conductor and the steeplekeeper and his son who took so much trouble to have all in good order for us and so willingly stood down from this peal. We hope they will be in the next when we plan to attempt one of the pealless North Devon towers. D. M. B.

5,067 STEDMAN CATERS

The first course end should read 234156978 and not 231456978.

Essex Association

Despite the foggy day on November 20th, 40 members attended the Northern District meeting at Sible Hedingham. The service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. G. M. Lister), who gave an encouraging address; Mr. A. Bragg was at the organ and the choir led the singing.

About 60 sat down to tea at the Rectory, provided by the Rev. and Mrs. Lister. A business meeting followed, Mr. R. C. Heazel, the Association's Master, presiding. A tribute was paid to the memory of Mr. Arthur Saunders, of Greenstead Green, who had been District Master for 10 years.

The next meeting will be held at Halstead in January. One honorary member from Kelveden was elected. 'Should peals of Bob Triples be rung?' was a subject fully discussed. It was announced that the Essex Education Committee were going to hold another week-end course on campanology at Clarence House, Thaxted, in June next year.

Thanks were expressed by Miss H. Snowdon to the Rector and Mrs. Lister for their kind hospitality, and the Rector also thanked the ringers' wives for their help with the tea arrangements. After the meeting the handbells were rung and recordings taken.

Visit to Buckfast Abbey

Despite atrocious weather, the meeting of the Mid-Devon Branch at Buckfast Abbey on Nov. 27th was well supported. Ringing in the afternoon mainly consisted of rounds on the twelve and touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Caters and an excellent course of Plain Bob Royal. Ringing in the evening was at Buckfastleigh Parish Church. A vote of thanks was passed to the Lord Abbot after the tea.

LATE NEWS

The Exercise will extend its warmest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Taylor on the birth of a son and heir last Sunday morning. The happy occasion coincided with the record peal attempt, and a peal was rung on the foundry bells later in the day.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Speed merchants will note that a peal of Major has been rung in 1 hour and 57 minutes—the quickest on record. Fortunately it was out of earshot of the general public—at Loughborough Foundry Campanile. It was at the rate of 43 blows a minute, and was well-struck throughout, reports the conductor, Mr. S. Anthony Jesson.

Mr. John Worth has rung 500 peals for the Chester Diocesan Guild.

Mr. Ranald Clouston, of Westerfield, near Ipswich, has been appointed a Bishop's representative on the Diocesan Advisory Committee for St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich.

We think Mr. E. S. Ruck, of Willesborough, might claim to be the 'father' of peal ringers on tower bells. He celebrated his 87th birthday last June and has this week rung another peal at Willesborough.

The peal to mark the retirement of Insp. H. J. Poole from the Leicester City Police Force was rung by four serving and four retired members of the National Guild of Police Ringers. Mr. Poole is the Guild's president.

Reports to hand indicate that the 80th birthday of Sir Winston Churchill was honoured by many peals and quarters, or even by ringing the bells, as the young band at Lakenheath, Suffolk, informs us. We hope that before long we shall have a quarter from this tower.

The Rev. K. W. H. Felstead writes: 'The last peal at Highworth, Wilts, was in 1921. At Quidenham, Norfolk, the last peal was 8,096 Double Norwich C.B. Major in 1930, and at Middleton Stoney the last peal was 22 years ago. The peal at Buckland, Glos, was the first peal on the bells. There was a previous peal of Little Bob Major at St. Marie's, Sheffield, on March 27th, 1926.'

An interesting peal was rung at Hadlow, Kent, on November 28th, which was the 100th anniversary of a peal of Bob Major in this church, conducted by Mr. W. B. Newman. His nephew, Mr. Lewis Newman, of Mereworth, Kent, a well-known ringer in the Maidstone District for over 60 years, conducted the anniversary peal. The way he rang the seventh won the admiration of the band.

A reader enquires for compositions of the extent of Major in Surprise peals.

Oxford University Society have rung their first peal of Stedman Cinques—at Aston, Birmingham, on November 20th.

Miss Lucy Allen, a pupil of Mr. R. Frank Baker, rang faultlessly all through her first peal, at Spaldwick, Hunts, reports the conductor, Mr. F. Warrington.

The peal at Chippenham, Cambs, on November 19th was the first of Surprise on the bells. Records show that there have been only two other peals at this tower—on April 13th, 1912, and December 27th, 1920.

The writer of the special article on the record peal attempt featured in this issue is Mr. R. F. Lowings, editor of the 'Loughborough Monitor,' who also describes himself as a ringer in a modest way. It is a graphic and complete story of a glorious failure and will be much appreciated by our readers.

Before the start of the monthly meeting of the Bristol Rural Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Dio. Association held at St. Saviour's, Coalpit Heath, on Saturday, November 27th, Mr. W. J. Coombs, in his 80th year, climbed two flights of steps to see for the first time the No. 2 bell which his pupils at the Manor School bought with their pennies and half-pennies 34 years ago.

Full Story of Loughborough Record Attempt

By R. F. LOWINGS

SELDOM in the history of bells can a 'ringing occasion' have aroused as much interest, both among ringers themselves and the public generally, as the attempt on the peal record, made at Loughborough last Saturday.

That day, the thoughts of ringers everywhere and (thanks to periodic bulletins broadcast by the B.B.C.) the attention of millions of non-ringers was focused on a band of eight men and on the tiny campanile of the Loughborough Bell Foundry, where an attempt was being made to ring the maximum number of changes (40,320) mathematically possible on eight bells.

This, then, is the story of a gallant endeavour to create change-ringing history, an attempt to accomplish a feat that has stood out as a challenge to ringers since the days of Stedman himself, a feat that has often been dreamt of yet always dismissed as being impossible to achieve.

Alas, it is a story without a happy ending.

'MISTER' BOB

As a sidelight on the Loughborough record peal attempt, credit should be given to Eric Critchley and his colleagues for their efforts to translate in lay terms a description of what they were about to news-hungry Pressmen.

At the close, Eric tried desperately to explain to one young lady reporter how it was that the attempt finally failed.

'You see, I missed a call—missed a bob,' said Eric, hopefully.

The young lady reporter tried her best to connect, but it was clear that the conductor's efforts were in vain.

'Was this Mister Bob the man who invented the peal, then?', she asked.

For, after 9 hours and 48 minutes, when the attempt was but 21,088 changes old, the order was given to 'Stand.' Never can the call have been given with greater reluctance.

Ringing Plain Bob Major, a start had been made at 4.14 on the Saturday morning, and the attempt ended abruptly through a missed call (scarcely through any fault of the conductor, paradoxically as that may seem) at 2.2 p.m.

About an hour earlier, No. 3 of the band, Anthony Jesson, of Leicester, had shown signs of distress, and it was in his concern for Tony that Eric Critchley, conducting, missed a vital bob. It was a dramatic moment as, realising his omission, two other members of the band called the bob for him.

But Mr. Critchley recognised at once the futility of continuing, and called the bells to stand. At that point, Mr. Jesson was rallying well, and there was every hope of his continuing long enough for the record to be broken, if not for the maximum to be pulled off.

So ended, somewhat as an anti-climax, an endeavour that had taken many months of careful planning, especially on the part of Mr. Paul Taylor, who acted as host to the visiting ringers and made a capable master of ceremonies throughout.

Exactly where the idea of organising an attempt on the record occurred to Mr. Critchley he cannot recall ('I think it was in a car on the way to a peal'), but the thought came to him some time last year. Early attempts to arouse interest in the venture failed, but Mr. Critchley refused to be discouraged, and eventually he found a band—drawn from various towers throughout the Midlands and East Anglia—prepared to ring alongside him in the venture. For the simple reason that a 20-hour stretch of ringing (it had been hoped to complete the peal shortly before midnight on Sunday) calls for stamina even on lightweight bells, Mr. Critchley looked to the physique of the men he chose, as well as to their ability as ringers.

AVERAGE AGE 27

Eventually, a young team, with an average age of 27, was briefed as follows:—

Treble: W. Eric Critchley, conductor, aged 31, Doncaster.
2: Clifford A. Barron (23), Birmingham.
3: Anthony Jesson (24), Leicester.
4: E. Alan Jacques (23), Leicester.
5: William Jackson (19), Hatfield, Yorks.
6: Norman V. Harding (45), King's Lynn.
7: Wilfrid F. Moreton (30), Hereford.
Tenor: Peter Border (22), Coventry.

All members of the team had, at one time or another, rung the foundry bells.

In preparation for the attempt, Mr. Paul Taylor and his colleagues at the Bell Foundry had made detailed arrangements at the Loughborough end to overcome various difficulties involved. In the first place, police permission was sought and secured for the bells to be rung for 20 hours; it was, in point of fact, on their recommendation that the early morning start was made. Sound-absorbing material was fitted to the roof of the bell chamber to make the sound inaudible except within a few feet of the tower walls. New bell ropes were fitted, the mechanism was doubly checked and shelves were erected around the walls of the ringing chamber and within a hand's reach of the ringers so that they might help themselves to food and thirst-quenching fruit during the course of the peal.

Nearer to last week-end, Mr. Taylor found a local hotelier willing to provide a hot breakfast at 3 a.m., with a midnight supper to follow should the attempt succeed. In fact, Mr. Harold Crutchley, manager of the King's Head Hotel at Loughborough, placed all the facilities of his hotel at the ringers' disposal, set accommodation aside for them and attended personally to their wants. Never have his guests been more grateful.

PRELIMINARY VISIT

Early on Friday evening, members of the band began to arrive at Loughborough, and before turning in for a few hours' sleep a preliminary visit was paid to the bell foundry to get the feel of the bells and make adjustments to the ropes, and to accustom themselves to the tiny chamber that was to be their quarters for the marathon. Three courses of Plain Bob were rung.

Only Tony Jesson was missing at this stage. He was recovering from an attack of influenza and, after spending the day at home, arrived at 9.30 p.m. to go straight to bed at the hotel.

So as to avoid ringing the peal into Sunday morning, it had been hoped to make a prompt start at 4 a.m., and after a 3 a.m. breakfast of bacon, eggs and tomatoes, the foundry was reached in good time.

But the organisers reckoned without the intense interest of the Press and the newsreel representatives in the venture. Precious time was given to last-minute interviews, and it was not until 4.14 (and 28 seconds) a.m. that Mr. Critchley called, 'Look to, treble going; she's gone!'

Mr. Shirley Burton, the well-known Leicester ringer, who, with Mr. Wilfred Robinson, of Eckington, Derbyshire, and Mr. Peter Staniforth, of Leicester, shared the arduous duties of umpiring the attempt, here takes up the story. By this time, all but the ringers themselves, the trio of umpires and a lone magazine photographer (who intermittently took photographs and slept as best he could beneath his overcoat on the chamber floor!), had been excluded from the tower.

After getting off to a good start, the first part of the peal, consisting of one-twelfth of the 40,320 maximum, was duly completed at 5.48 a.m. It is of interest to note that the first normal peal of 5,040 changes took just 2 hours 19 minutes.

The second part ended without incident at 7.20 a.m., and it was soon after the third part had been embarked upon that Queens came up at 7.27 a.m.

FEEDING PROBLEMS

After four hours of ringing, Mr. Critchley decided to explore the possibilities of the food shelf beside him. Snatching one or other of the morsels that Mr. Taylor had laid out in readiness proved in itself to be an exacting art, and it was only after several ineffective attempts—much to the amusement of his fellow-ringers—that Eric finally managed to grasp a ham sandwich.

Spurred on by his success, the others began to help themselves similarly to sustaining items from among the range of orange slices, glucose, boiled sweets, chocolate coated raisins, tomatoes and sandwiches on the shelves. Later, Tony Jesson was to prove himself adept at even drinking a glass of milk through a straw while the peal continued uninterruptedly!

The end of the third part came up at 8.53 a.m., by which time 10,080 changes—or two normal peals—had been accomplished. Then, at 10.27 a.m., came the end of the fourth part, one-third of the eight-bell maximum having by this time been rung in 6 hours 13 minutes. By 12.3 p.m. the fifth part had been completed.

It was during the sixth part that the drama arrived By the eleventh course Tony Jesson was showing very evident signs of uneasiness, which was not surprising considering his illness of a few days before, and that a very bad cold still hung over him.

To his dismay, Mr. Critchley began to realise as Tony's condition worsened that there was but little hope of achieving the full extent, and he omitted three blocks of five in order to bring himself in a position to call back to rounds should the need arise.

But by the time the peal had reached the crucial point where the bells could be brought home, Tony had recovered, and it was decided to carry on, the end of the sixth part (marking the halfway point of the attempt) being reached at 1.30 p.m.

The seventh part was embarked upon with the eight ringers still full of hope that they would be able to create a new distance record, even if not ring the full extent.

OMISSION SPOTTED

But it was obvious that Mr. Critchley's mind was still very occupied with Tony Jesson. At the end of the tenth course a trip occurred, and before it could be corrected Eric omitted a bob at fifths. Two other members of the team spotted his omission and called it for him, but Eric at once realised the pointlessness of carrying on in these circumstances and so called 'stand' after 21,088 changes.

Ironically, Tony was by this time feeling much revived through the effects of an opened window and a glass of fresh milk that had been put within his reach on the shelf. Moreover, at this point, the peal was going very steadily.

Throughout the striking had been good, with little variation in pace, each course having occupied an average length of 3 minutes and 10 seconds. The average time for 5,040 changes before the attempt was given up had been 2 hours and 22 minutes.

With the possible exception of Tony Jesson, the ringers looked astonishingly fresh after their feat of nearly 10 hours—particularly Eric Critchley, who was showing no signs of exhaustion whatever. The fitter seven certainly looked good for the second ten hours, and there can be little doubt that, but for the missed call, a new record would have been created with energy to spare.

GAINED EXPERIENCE

As the ringers stood back to be interviewed by Press representatives all over again, keen disappointment was expressed that the endeavour had ended so prematurely; but it was generally felt that what had been lost in the way of records had been gained in experience.

What the attempt did prove, and prove conclusively—as both ringers in and observers of last Saturday's venture have agreed—is that the eight-bell extent is within reach. With the lessons learnt on this occasion it should prove to be well within the capabilities of eight fit men. But they must next time be absolutely fit.

Eric Critchley takes a philosophic view of last week-end's failure. 'It was just one of those things—and that's how it is in ringing,' he commented afterwards. Eric is now hopeful of finding a band willing to join him in another attempt on the Loughborough Foundry bells next year.

As a preliminary to any further such attempt, however, it has been suggested that it would be advisable for the record-seeking band to ring two peals together. According to Mr. Burton the qualifications of toughness and ability to stick to the peal showed themselves on Saturday to be of about equal importance.

SELECTION OR METHOD

Whether Mr. Critchley was wise in choosing such an elementary method as Plain Bob for the attempt is a point that has raised a conflict of opinion. Mr. Critchley sticks to his view that Plain Bob offers the best chance of success. The reverse theory is that a more complex method would tend to assist concentration.

Another point that has been raised is that the band would have done better to choose a heavier ring than that at the Bell Foundry. Because of their very lightness, the Loughborough bells cannot be 'leaned upon,' and some consider that the 'support' afforded by heavier bells would have been in the ringers' favour in such an attempt.

Suffice it to say on this point that Mr. Critchley's team still consider the Loughborough Foundry bells to come nearest to the ideal for record purposes.

As a matter of interest from a Guild viewpoint, the Loughborough record, if it had succeeded, was to have counted for the Leicester Guild, by Mr. Critchley's own request.

PRESS INTERESTED

A sidelight that made a considerable impression upon all who were connected with the endeavour was the intense interest shown by the Press and the public at large in it. The B.B.C. kept its listeners in touch with the progress of the peal with bulletins throughout the day, and it had been intended, late on Saturday night, to break into the Light Programme with a commentary and the actual sound of the changes being rung.

Television newsreel sent equipment and a team to film the attempt, a cinema newsreel took early shots; the American magazines, 'Time' and 'Life,' had staff representatives standing by, and both the 'Times' and the 'Manchester Guardian' sent reporters to Loughborough.

Never can the Exercise have caught the public imagination so completely before.

MR. TAYLOR'S HOSPITALITY

As a consolation to the disappointed ringers, Mr. Paul Taylor entertained them and the umpires to dinner at the King's Head Hotel on Saturday night, and Mr. Critchley, on behalf of his team, took the opportunity of expressing warm thanks to Mr. Taylor for his work in connection with the attempt.

The Mayor of Loughborough, who had intended to visit the foundry tower shortly before midnight on Saturday to hear the closing changes, sent his best wishes, and the hope that Loughborough, 'the town of bells,' would again have the opportunity of welcoming them for a further attempt in the future. During the day, one telegram was received at the foundry from Elizabeth Grimes, Bath. 'Keep on pulling,' was the exhortation it contained. During the day, the ringer well-wishers arrived from Leicester to give their support.

The 21,600 changes rung in 13 hours at Over in Cheshire in 1950 still remains the record, and, so ends—but not quite—the story of a gallant failure.

It has been described earlier in this account as a story without a happy ending. But, strictly speaking, that is not true. For, in the telling of it, events took such a happy turn as to give it the most jubilant of endings.

A SON AND HEIR

At 6 a.m. on Sunday, at the Loughborough Foundry House, there was born to Mrs. Taylor, Mr. Paul Taylor's wife, a son and heir, a bouncing 'treble,' turning the scales at more than 10lb. Young John William Taylor, as it was immediately decided to call Mr. Taylor's third child and first son, perpetuates an illustrious name that has been connected with bells and bell founding since 1759, when Robert Taylor was born.

The visiting ringers had stayed at Loughborough overnight and heard Paul's good news when they arrived at Loughborough Parish Church to ring for morning service, and it was at once decided that the occasion should be celebrated with a birthday peal. A return visit was paid to the foundry tower later on Sunday morning, and there being this time no missed bobs, a peal of 5,056 changes of Cambridge Surprise Major was rung in 2 hours 30 minutes on behalf of the Leicester Diocesan Guild of Ringers.

Six of the band which had attempted the record took part, the ringers being as follows: Norman Harding treble, Clifford Barron 2, Eric Critchley 3, Anthony Jesson 4, Wilfred Robinson 5, David Vincent (Manchester) 6, Wilfrid Moreton 7; Peter Border (who conducted the peal) tenor.

WEEDON BEC, NORTHANTS.—On Nov. 15th, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles: Miss P. Boiling 1, Miss E. Hyham 2, F. Robinson 3, B. Barton 4, V. Perry (cond.) 5. For the engagement of Barry Barton and Edith Hyham.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A VILLAGE PROBLEM

Dear Sir, — Reading the item, 'A Village problem' in 'The Ringing World,' brings to my mind experiences of complaints which have occurred at my church here in North London.

Some two years ago the Vicar came into the ringing chamber and handed me a letter which was improperly addressed and bore a nom-de-plume for a signature, coming, as it did, from a block of flats a short distance from the church.

The letter contained a request to stop the bells being rung for 11 a.m. service on Sunday because the writer's husband wanted a 'lay in' on Sunday morning, having to get up very early on week-days for work, also a request to stop Tuesday evening practice because the children could not be got off to sleep.

On another occasion a stranger living nearby appeared in the doorway of the ringing room whilst a 'touch' was in progress, apparently boiling over with wrath at the ringing of the bells, but when he saw what was going on he almost became speechless with astonishment; his complaint was extremely mild in character. He would, after a short while, liked to have had a 'go' until it was explained to him that the average man in the street could not take part in bell-ringing in the same easy way in which he could take part in a game of darts. Needless to say, no more was heard from him.

The most persistent complaint comes from the local photographer in business a short distance from the church, but we are always able to tell him where he stands, knowing his eagerness to obtain business from weddings taking place at the church, especially those weddings where the bells are asked for.

In my opinion the West Surrey ringers have behaved in a most considerate and reasonable manner. Don't give way any more, West Surrey; it is just the thin edge of the wedge to stop you ringing altogether.

During the last war when bombs, accompanied by gunfire and shells, were bursting in London, I heard this remark more than once: 'Oh, Mr. Newman. May the time soon come when you are allowed to ring the bells again.' —Yours faithfully, R. NEWMAN.

AN EXAMPLE FROM LIVERPOOL

Dear Sir,—In the early 1930's a local resident (wife of a solicitor) made repeated complaints to the then Rector of Woolton regarding the bellringing at our Parish Church.

With our Rector's approval I telephoned the complainant offering to meet her and her husband to discuss her objection—apologising for any cause for complaint, whatever it might be, technical or general. However, this was not acceptable, it was just that she wanted us not to ring, to which I respectfully offered to let them know beforehand of any ringing other than Tuesday practice and Sunday service ringing, pointing out that without an odd peal or two each year necessitating perhaps an attempt every two months, we could not carry out these duties, and that as just previously Mr. Justice Goddard (now Lord Justice Goddard) had held a hearing on just such a case and had 'stated a case' for the bellringing, this offer of mine was the best I could do, sympathising most sincerely with her in her trouble.

Well, we heard no more; these people left their house just a month ago, so they must have settled down to the merry noise—the lady was a great breeder of budgerigars, I heard afterwards.

The case stated by the Lord Chief Justice was not quoted in your recent legal survey; surely a search of his cases, or 'Ringing Worlds,' would produce the information.—Yours very faithfully, E. L. HUMPHRISS.

SILENCERS

Dear Sir,—Referring to the Rev. O. G. Rees' letter in 'The Ringing World' of November 26th, I remember watching the late Mr. George Day, of Eye, rehang the five bells of St. Mary's Church, Brome, Suffolk, in 1886.

The tower was completely cleared and two new floors placed six inches apart. This space Mr. Day filled in with mortar and straw to soften the noise to the ringers. He said to the writer, 'There, boy, you will be able to tell future ringers how I quietened the bells.' This method should be preferable to a layer of earth.

The ringers were so near the bells that the sallies went on the wheels at backstroke. As soon as the bells were rehung I began ringing.

JOHN WALLIS, OF MAIDSTONE

Dear Sir,—With reference to the letter from G. Head under 'Ringers' Epitaphs,' in 'The Ringing World' dated November 19th, pertaining to John Wallis, of Maidstone, his name is recorded on a peal board in the belfry, as under:—

'On October 30th, 1743, in this place was performed a compleat peal of Union Trebles, 5,040 changes, in 3 hrs. 15 mins. by the following persons:—

Mich. Dove	Treble
John Wallis	2nd
John Hearnden	3rd
Thos. Sancho	4th
Robt. Hills	5th
Sam Tassell	6th
Thos. Hills	7th
William Bath	Tenor

This being the first of its kind ever performed in this County.'

John Wallis died 16 months after this performance at the age of 29 years.—Yours faithfully,

L. MANNERING.

DOUBLES METHODS

Dear Sir,—In reply to Mr. Blagrove's letter re Doubles methods, All Saints' has been included in peals and quarter peals on no less than 70 different occasions, all of which have been recorded in 'The Ringing World.' Mr. Blagrove feels sure that All Saints' will not be recognised by the Central Council, but appeals to all Doubles ringers to stand firm against the Methods Committee.

I, personally, am very grateful to him for his appeal. Over 300 copies of All Saints' have been sent to various parts of the country since October, 1952; supplies are now exhausted.

For those not familiar with the method I append a lead:—

SPLICED SURPRISE MAJOR

Dear Sir,—For the present I am concerning myself with only two paragraphs in Mr. K. S. B. Croft's letter. In the first one he observes that my article on the above subject deserves the comment I invite. I would like to thank him for this, and hope that his exhortation will not go unheeded. At the same time I would like to ask that the discussion be confined strictly to the subject, as I do feel that to invoke Stedman and Grandsire Triples for instance is going outside the terms of reference, and should form the subject of a separate debate, if Mr. Croft is desirous of initiating one. If the discussion is to proceed on these lines, we may expect to finish up with an argument on Bob Triples.

Secondly, Mr. Croft's reference to real values. Is he really suggesting that the value of Spliced Surprise Major ringing did not change with the advent of Messrs. Pitman's and Cashmore's productions? In my submission there can be little doubt about this, or that it was definitely in a positive direction.

I would like in conclusion to thank Mr. Croft for his interest, and to say that I have noted such of his views that are germane to the subject.—Yours truly,

L. W. G. MORRIS.

Bradford.

STEDMAN AND GRANDSIRE JUST CONDUCTORS' METHODS

Dear Sir,—Surely Mr. Croft's letter is a little contradictory? Mr. L. W. G. Morris writes a very good and timely leader on 'advancement,' or, in other words, have we, since the first introduction of spliced compositions (Surprise Treble Bob having been widely exploited) made an advancement proportional to the time, i.e., introduced to the full, 'pure' spliced as opposed to the three-lead plan?

Now Mr. Croft is in wholehearted agreement with a striving for something new and worth while—that goes for all of us, I think, especially in this sphere, and yet he boldly declares that he would like to see more peals of Stedman and Grandsire in the columns. Why?

I'm certainly not belittling peals in these methods, but no matter what compositions are used, they are plainly and simply conductors' methods. Apart from that, never a week goes by when at least a dozen or so peals of these fail to appear in 'The Ringing World'; that's a fair enough sprinkling, isn't it?

Take Stedman Triples; no matter whether the composition be the Four Part, Dr. G. W. Slack's Two Part, or the Odd Bob, it's still Stedman. Fifty bobs and singles instead of five make no difference to the ringers, because even with five one cannot very well relax to follow the calling perhaps, or really listen to the music, because one brief slip of the memory means chaos rarely rectified!

No, Mr. Croft, Stedman is a vogue, probably originating in London. Cinques is very pleasant, Caters is tolerable (on a good ring), but Triples—ugh, what boredom! In and out quick, in and out slow! Having taken part in a course of Cambridge at Norwich Central Council meeting (1946), I was asked to ring some Stedman. I confess I didn't know it. I'm lucky, though, to be able to say it; I was nearly 'eaten alive'!

No bands set better examples for this advancement than those ringing new methods, usually, too, with new compositions. Many require 'ringing,' and even if the vast collection of Stedman compositions was exhausted by a band, only one person would have advanced—the conductor; whereas in Zennor, Tyburn and Goscote Surprise, 25 have advanced!—Yours faithfully,

G. W. PIPE

LETTERS—Continued

REPLIES TO MESSRS. BUTLER AND BLAGROVE

Dear Sir,—I write as an individual and not on behalf of the Methods Committee, to answer one or two points which have arisen in letters recently.

Firstly, Mr. Butler's letter in the issue of November 12th. I was, of course, the author of the letter of ten years ago. I must confess I was tempted to try to reply in a humorous vein, but thought it might be misunderstood, so I will answer seriously in the hope that Mr. Butler is asking genuinely and not 'trying to be funny,' as some of his other recent letters make one inclined to think, I fear. Ten years ago I started to ring and first read books on the subject. The letter was the result. Mr. Butler seems to suggest that it is a crime to change one's ideas and that my views ought still to be the same, so that in holding different ones now, I am, perhaps, guilty of being a hypocrite (I hope I am not reading too much into what he implies). I must say that with ten years' experience, I would be peculiar if I didn't have different ideas.

Take (ii) for instance. Ten years ago Superlative was only a name to me. To-day, I would disagree with the quotation, which suggests that this method is the 'queen' of methods. Now that I can ring it, I think it is a poor method in more ways than one. Thus I am not so sure about the 'excellent methods' having the same characteristics. However, I know that it is not answering the question about Plain Bob Lead Heads. Suffice it to say about these that I have changed my opinion in the light of greater knowledge—not because of any one particular reason but through a combination of small points such as easier composition with such (against all others), easier conducting, symmetry of the method, music, etc.

These same reasons also apply to (vi). I'm not so sure I was right about (iv)—I think I was repeating the opinion of just one or two people, believing that it was a general opinion. Nobody seems to regard back-handed places as 'bad' now. As for (iii) and (v) my personal opinions are the same now as then. In the latter case, I think most ringers would prefer a better classification of methods, but for want of another, we keep to the present system.

This brings me to a very important point which Mr. Butler and others keep on forgetting. Most people have individual ideas which differ from those of the majority. When one belongs to an organisation, those ideas may have to be immersed under the majority view. That is being loyal to the organisation (of course, there will then be the problem of when to put one's own view first before that of the group—as in the recent Labour Party conflict—but that will normally only be necessary where a question of morality is concerned, not in a bell ringing question).

Thus the members of the Methods Committee may have various individual ideas which are contrary to the rules of the Central Council. But as loyal members of that body, their work is governed by the Rules and Decisions of the Council, and must be so. Consequently, any book of Doubles methods, say, will obey those rules and it is quite immaterial whether those rules are good or bad. A judge applies the laws of the land, but sometimes he admits that he thinks a certain law is a bad one and requires alteration. He still, however, administers justice according to that law and not according to his own ideas. It is the same here.

If ringers think a rule is 'bad,' let them see that it is changed in the proper way at a Central Council meeting, for it is futile and unfair to think that loyal members of the Council will do otherwise than apply its rules. This is not altered by the turning of a blind eye in the past to certain things—it only means that, perhaps, members are trying to be more loyal now than sometimes they have been.

Secondly, it has frequently been pointed out of late that nobody can say what ringers may ring. They can ring anything they like—Bob Triples, Canterbury Pleasure or anything with different 'rules' to those accepted by the Council. As far as I am aware, there is nothing to prevent two soccer teams playing with a different off-side rule to that now generally accepted (except probably the same sort of promise that we have, to abide loyally by the Rules and Decisions of the football authority) because they think such a rule better than the present one. I'm quite sure a match thus played wouldn't be counted. It is the same with us. Only peals rung according to the rules are accepted. I fail to see what there is wrong in that, or that the few are trying to impose their wills on the majority.

Some of these remarks also apply to Mr. Blagrove's letter appealing for 'rebellion' against the Methods Committee. I find his letter most extraordinary. He entirely forgets most of what I have said about the relations between the Council and its committees and about loyalty. Another thing he and others ought to bear in mind is 'compromise.' I fear that spirit is sadly lacking. We find it often in the world these days—labour disputes because some workers want it all ways, there's no 'give and take,' it is all 'take.' Letters a few months ago helped to show how chaotic was the field in Doubles methods and how order was needed. We are trying to produce that order and it seems to have been forgotten that, in the interests of five-bell ringers, the Methods Committee persuaded the Council to relax certain rules on their behalf. In producing order out of chaos, one would have thought it a small price to pay (by way of compromise) that one or two methods would have to be excluded, for there will be 97 true methods still for ringers to use.

May I also be allowed to say that I was especially surprised by Mr. Blagrove's letter inasmuch as he has been most helpful to us in getting together and naming those 97 methods, and recently rang an excellent peal using methods which were chosen with our ideas in mind.

Finally, I really must protest about his sweeping assertion that only Doubles ringers are Sunday service ringers and that most Surprise ringers are not. I'm sure you will receive many such protests. I have only been ringing for ten years, but I believe that is longer than Mr. Blagrove has. I also believe that I have greater experience in ringing in all parts of the country than he has. How, then, can he judge? His statement is simply not true.—Yours sincerely,

K. W. H. FELSTEAD.

REASONS FOR PEALS

Dear Sir,—Your leader on reasons for peal ringing has set me thinking. Obviously peal ringers who number their peals by hundreds must have a campanological sense beyond the ear and mathematical ability of those who number their peals singly. As a member of the latter group I list my peals for the following reasons:—

(1) The ringer's natural method of expressing
  (a) Prayer and praise, an Eastertide Peal;
  (b) Respect, a Coronation Peal;
  (c) Good wishes, a Birthday Peal.

(2) For the encouragement of younger ringers (a peal of Plain Bob Minor).

(3) For the personal satisfaction that I have rung a peal in the method (a peal of Grandsire Triples).

(4) For the sheer delight of ringing. But peals are not necessary for this.

The delight I find in ringing derives from the satisfaction of a service given to God's Church, a simple pleasure in, but little understanding of, the music of the bells, and a sheer physical contentment in the rhythm of the exercise.

I hope others will give us their reasons that we may share them.

BEATRICE M. BOYLE.

Combe Martin.

NATIONAL SERVICE MEN AT PLYMOUTH

Special congratulations from his friends in Plymouth are extended to Alan Ward, of Manchester, in calling his first peal of Plain Bob Royal at Worsley in honour of his 21st birthday. Most of Alan's two years' National Service was spent at Seaton Barracks, near Plymouth. When he returned to civilian life he was much missed by his friends at Emmanuel Church, Plymouth.

Another National Service man just lost to this tower is John Hough, of Barwell, Leics. Unfortunately, the farewell quarter for John came to grief in the last minute. Both John and Alan were close friends.

An Anthology

From America we have received an anthology on bell music entitled 'Chimes,' collected by Mrs. Lois Springer, of Elgin, Illinois, with illustrations by Catherine W. Springer. The collection is divided into sections dealing with 'Christmas Bells,' 'New Year Peals,' 'Chimes,' 'Five Legends,' 'The Angelus,' 'Animal Bells,' 'War and Peace' and 'Miscellany.'

ALVERSTOKE, HANTS.—On Nov. 7th, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: D. W. Nuttall 1, Kathleen Knight 2, Doris Banks 3, Ann West 4, R. Beale 5, F. G. Barron 6. H. A. Nobes (cond.) 7, S. A. Scott (first quarter) 8. Rung half-muffled on Remembrance Sunday.

A CORNISH HOLIDAY

In a leader recently Muriel Reay wrote her impressions of her first ringing tour, and now I would like to add mine of my first ringing holiday.

Thanks to kind Cornishmen and two or three other well known ringers who were staying at Bude, I'm afraid 'the seaside' part of the holiday took second place.

I arrived at 4 p.m., and by 6.30, after hurried greetings and ablutions, I was ringing on a very beautiful ring of six. This was on a Saturday, and from then until Thursday I ring in 28 towers; Friday, being Amami night, we had a rest.

On Saturday a well organised tour was arranged. Six new towers were added to my list, and a very pleasant hour spent with old friends from Plymouth.

Sunday was the highlight of the fortnight. Ringing call changes at Kilkhampton in the morning, calling a good quarter peal of Grandsire Triples at Holsworthy in the afternoon by the following: J. Rich 1, C. Sangwin 2, D. Burnett 3, R. Pearce 4, P. Lewington 5, J. Sangwin 6, W. Hibbert 7, H. Stacey 8. Then on to Bideford, where we rang call changes with such precision that I was in a bath of perspiration in case I was the one to spoil such beautiful rhythm. I have read with interest many comments by well known ringers about 'call changes,' and can now add my forcible observations that many of our method ringers could listen to call changes and, if honest, realise that their striking is not all that could be desired.

The second week was quieter, but on the Saturday six of us had a lovely afternoon, just chancing that we could ring in a tower on arrival, and such fun we had, looking for keys, borrowing ladders to surmount screens to get on to the ringing floor and going up amongst the bells to adjust the ropes after setting bells up with no stays, and it was at St. Teath where we heard the very plaintive voice of the tenor man saying, 'Speak to me, speak to me,' when three quarters of the way up there was no response from his bell.

To conclude a wonderful day we rang at Tintagel, and how I wish I had the ability to describe the beauty and mystery of this village, with its solid old church built on the edge of the cliff, the light and shade of a full moon, and winking lights from ships and lighthouses warning sailors of the ruggedness of this part of King Arthur's England.

The end of the holiday came all too soon, and I say a heartfelt 'thank you' to Cornish and Devon ringers for their great kindness and hospitality and good friendship to a 'foreigner.'

Maybe next year I shall ring in more towers and make more friends, but it will never efface this memorable first ringing holiday.

OBITUARY

MR. ALBERT MILLS

Rossendale ringing has suffered a sad loss by the passing of Mr. Albert Mills, who died at his home in Bacup on November 24th after only a week's illness, at the age of 63.

A native of Bacup, Mr. Mills had a life-long association with Christ Church, where he was a sidesman and church councillor in addition to being the head ringer. For 40 years he had been a member of the Lancashire Association, and at the time of his death had been for some years the Branch Ringing Master of the Rossendale Branch. Not only was he a capable and enthusiastic ringer himself; he was also an industrious teacher, and his readiness to help beginners at branch meetings will long be remembered.

The funeral service took place at Christ Church on November 29th, followed by cremation at Rochdale. The service, which was choral, was conducted by the Rev. R. W. Miles, curate-in-charge, in the absence of the Vicar through illness, assisted by the Rev. R. D. St. John Smith, president of the Lancashire Association, who gave the address, in which he spoke of Albert Mills as 'one of those who can least be spared.'

The bearers included two of the deceased's fellow-ringers, Mr. James Walsh, of Christ Church, and Mr. J. Porter (Bury), secretary of the Rossendale Branch. A number of other ringers were present at the service to pay their tribute to one who set a high example both as a service ringer and as a member of the Association.

MR. EDWARD G. GODLEY

Aldrington, Hove, records with deep regret the passing, on November 25th, of Mr. Edward G. Godley, who for 60 years had been a regular service ringer at this church. Only two months ago the local band rang a quarter peal of Kent Treble Bob Minor in honour of 'Ted's' 80th birthday.

A peal in which Ted took part was one of Plain Bob Minor by the local band in 1902. The most notable features of this well-loved ringer were his kindliness, humility and great interest in he progress of the beginners with always an encouraging word to help them on.

Members of the local band rang a half-muffled quarter peal prior to Sunday Evensong and the bells were rung half-muffled at the funeral service. We extend our sympathy to his widow and family. May he rest in peace.

WOOLWICH, S.E.—On Nov. 14th, 1,440 Plain Bob Minor: Miss C. Wakefield 1, A. Grove, sen., 2, R. A. Johnson 3, Gnr. D. Holland, R.A., 4, M. Perry 5, B. W. Aldridge (cond.) 6. For evening service, and as a birthday compliment to H.R.H. Prince Charles and to Miss Ann Smith, of the local band.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO, CHUMS?

We felt that way on November 27th at Lancaster. The same question came up, 'What would you have done?'

Most of us had travelled 40 miles or so to get to Lancaster for a peal attempt and we all arrived about 2.30 p.m. We discovered that there was the inevitable wedding to wait for but we didn't mind that, it just put us back three-quarters of an hour or so. What was far more serious, however, was that whilst we were waiting the electric lights went out in the tower. We phoned for the electrician and he came and inspected but, like us, he could do nothing until after the wedding.

We decided to start in the lingering daylight and trusted to the electrician to switch on as soon as he could.

We got going on Parker's 12-part peal of Grandsire and it was tapping along very nicely; all the same it was rapidly growing dark. By the first part-end the dusky looking sallies could hardly be seen.

We began to look for the ringers' hands as they went up. Numbers 2, 3 and 4 could be seen quite well as they were back to the big window, but 6, 7 and treble could hardly be made out as they stood in the gloom.

Towards the end of the second part all sorts of thoughts began to assail the conductor. How much longer could we go on? Should we wait for the crash that was bound to come, or should he call rounds when they got somewhere near? So he gave a warning, 'We can't go on much longer.' Even so there was always the possibility that the lights would come on within minutes of his calling rounds.

So, soon after the second part-end, he called rounds and stand. The lights came on within ten minutes of standing.

How exasperating it all was. By then it was too late to start again, and besides, Lancaster Priory eight are not exactly finger light. We had to content ourselves with a quarter.

Well? What would you have done, chums?

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Appreciation was expressed of the work of the Rev. J. L. Turney as branch chairman, and good wishes for work in his new parish at Milton Ernest, Bedford, at the meeting of the West Norfolk Branch at North Creake on November 20th. The Rector (the Rev. T. Elliott) conducted the service attended by about 30 ringers. Tea was provided by the wives and friends of the local band.

At the business meeting the Standing Committee was asked to have the observations of Plain Bob Minor printed in the annual report book. The next meeting was fixed for February 26th at King's Lynn.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2280 Vol. L. FRIDAY. DECEMBER 17, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

THE GALLANT ATTEMPT

THE public imagination in various forms was captured by the gallant attempt at Loughborough, reported in our last issue, to ring the extent of Major. It was turned into a popular story for the jaded palates of the public at large. From some of the Press there came ridicule; it was good fodder for those who dislike bells, but to some of our journals the feat was placed in its true perspective of human endeavour. This is how 'The Times' sums up the attempt:—

> 'Ringing "the extent" on eight bells was,' they claimed, 'like climbing Everest, something to be done because it was there. Roughly, they had reached the South Col, and the going had not been so hard or the unconquered terrain so difficult. At all events, this is one world record an Englishman can be somewhat leisurely in achieving. The Americans and Russians are not so keen on ringing bells.'

'The Manchester Guardian' had this to say:—

> 'The attempt failed after ten hours' ringing, which to the lay ear sounds as impressive as success. Not that the lay ear heard any bells. The tower in which the marathon peal was rung was boxed and insulated so that Loughborough's sleep might not be disturbed. The bells boomed inwardly, arguing through the long hours with themselves. This monumental act of introversion —as if an orchestra were to play every item in the repertory in a sound-proof hall from which the public had been excluded—might have been thought the outstanding example of campanomania since Paulinus, Bishop of Nola, first introduced the heartening clamour into the customs of the Christian Church. . . .
> 'So it went on, through half a silent night and half a day. The satisfying complications of the English art had been carried a further, if tongueless, stage. Not to be compared, no doubt, are the casual jangle of Europe's bells, or the automatic carillons, or the tree-top tinkling of mission churches in Africa, or the banging temple bells of the East thwacked with chunks of wood, even if these can be heard. And this morning, when the ancient and incompetitive parish church broke into silver voice like a rumour of Christmas, it sounded like some curious indiscretion.'

And what does the average English ringer think of this attempt? The prodigious feat of James Barham at Leeds Parish Church, near Maidstone, in 1761 is still held in veneration else the Kent County Association would not have restored the grave of this old worthy. As to the authenticity of this performance, it certainly cannot be questioned in this age, but according to the canons of peal ringing to-day it would not be recognised as a performance by the Peal Analysis Committee. When the attempt was first mooted one of our 1,000 peal ringers referred to the attempt as 'madness.' Another old veteran who had a number of record lengths to his credit discussed the event with a glint of enthusiasm in his eye.

There was throughout the country a feeling that Mr. Eric Critchley and his band were not attempting the impossible. Long length ringers regarded the attempt as within the compass of human endeavour. The necessary qualifications of those participating is not only physical fitness but a mentality to withstand the monotony. Would a more complicated method have been an antidote to the drugging effect of hour after hour of Plain Bob Major? Before making the attempt Mr. Critchley studied this question and he firmly held the view that his best chance of success was with Plain Bob. We are promised another attempt next year. There will be no shortage of recruits; a score or more ringers would volunteer to add another laurel to English ringing.

We feel certain that not only those who made the attempt but the Exercise generally is indebted to Mr. Paul Taylor for permitting the use of the bells and making such comprehensive arrangements at the Bell Foundry Campanile. That the attempt was made on secular bells removes an objection; also that as far as noise was concerned the bells could hardly be heard outside the foundry dismisses another possible source of criticism.

Opinions are divided upon whether such peal attempts harm the Exercise at large. With the careful precautions taken at Loughborough there can be no criticism. The attempt focused attention upon our craft, and when once the curiosity of the public is engendered there develops from some inquiring minds the question: What is this change ringing? This is the first step towards recruitment. As our readers know, ringing, once the elementary stages have been mastered, has a peculiar fascination. And it is not necessary to have the stamina and grit of Mr. Critchley and his colleagues to enjoy to the full the practising of our craft and make a humble contribution towards a higher motive than mere secular enjoyment.

When Mr. George William Park died, last August, it was not possible to arrange an in memorium peal in his own tower—Holy Trinity, Darlington. The peal attempt was left over until December 3rd, the 63rd anniversary of the installation of the bells and of his joining the belfry. The peal, London Surprise Minor, was his favourite method.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The temperature when the peal of Stedman Triples started at Melbourne Cathedral on November 28th was 99.2 degrees. Is this the warmest peal on record? It was a farewell peal for Miss Valerie Willard, who leaves for England on January 1st. The peal also made history, being the first of Stedman to be rung in Australia by a resident band.

There were four 'first peals' in the peal rung for Sir Winston Churchill's birthday at Cotleigh, Devon.

Mr. H. Gorton, of 152, Deane Road, Bolton, would like to get in touch with the ringer who rang the bells of Bethlehem. Mr. Gorton himself has rung these bells.

Five young girl ringers at St. Mary-the-Virgin's, Send, Surrey, ran a stall at the church's annual bazaar and raised £7 2s. through their self-inspired effort.

The peal at St. Mary-le-Tower on December 4th enabled 80-year-old George E. Symonds to complete the 'circle' and Miss Patricia Clarke has now rung Cambridge on all numbers.

The Rector of Great Bromley, Essex, the Rev. J. R. Ransom, has rung his first quarter peal. Except for the trainer, Mr. George Moss, the band was the regular Sunday service company.

We are informed that the first quarter on the bells of St. Paul's, Bedford, since the war, was rung on September 30th. It was conducted by C. E. Jeffries and was the first on eight bells for R. M. Lennard, P. J. Shipton and J. R. Taylor.

The Rev. K. W. H. Felstead writes that the peal at Shute, Devon (page 772) was the first on the bells. The only previous peal at East Brent, Somerset, was in 1930. A peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung at Week St. Mary on September 28th, 1929

Mr. J. W. Jones, of Newport, late hon. secretary of the Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association, celebrated his 90th birthday on December 5th. Now confined to his bedroom, he was greatly cheered by the many individual and collective birthday greetings received. He most sincerely thanks those who thought of him. Mr. Jones rang 535 peals, extending from his first at Caerleon on January 12th, 1899, to the last at Blaenavon on April 23rd, 1949.

The last peal at Milborne Port, Somerset, was rung in 1926.

The peal of Colchester Surprise Major published in the issue of October 22nd, 1954, is 23 in Lindoff's list and not 22 as given.

Mr. Neville Brown, who took up change ringing a year ago and is now 70, rang his first quarter at Loddon, Norfolk, on November 8th.

The quarter peal rung at Loughton, Essex, on November 27th, was the first for at least 30 years. Five of the ringers were from the Sunday service band, and hopes are entertained for an 'all-local' quarter before long.

So successful was the bellringers' service at St. Bartholomew's Church, Penn, Wolverhampton, on Advent Sunday, that it is hoped to make it an annual event. The lessons were read by the tower secretary and vice-captain, and the visiting ringers included the Association's secretary, Mr. F. Bennett, and his wife. The Vicar, the Rev. T. D. Boulton, officiated.

Somerton (Somerset) ringers are very proud of being able to include a plain course of Stedman in their quarter peal for the Premier's birthday. Their long-expected quarter of Bob Minor for the harvest festival failed to come round. 'We are still trying,' writes our correspondent. That's the spirit.

RINGING IN GLOUCESTERSHIRE

By the Rev. K. W. H. FELSTEAD

GLOUCESTERSHIRE is one of the counties where change ringing has been practised from the earliest times after the invention of the art, and we find some of the earliest peals ever rung recorded there. Thus Painswick has been a centre of the Exercise for well over 200 years, with several peals in the 1730's, and practically as many peals were rung there before 1881 (when my survey commences) as have been rung since that date. Gloucestershire can well be proud of its ancient traditions and the lead it has given to ringing throughout the land.

The main general impression from a preliminary look at the records of the different towers of the county is of a steady level of peal ringing throughout the period. There have not been, on the whole, very violent fluctuations as in some counties, and most towers have their peals spread fairly evenly over the years. This is supported again, I think, by the way the six-bell towers are gradually being 'conquered'—only two other counties have a greater number of these, by the way. Thus in the 30 years before the first war, 49 of them had one or more peals rung at them. Since 1919 another 50 have been added to the list—about the same rate.

BRISTOL, ST. STEPHEN'S

And now to examine the individual towers. Bristol, St. Stephen's (10), easily leads the way with the largest number of peals, having twice as many in the period as any other tower —217 in all. A footnote to the first peal recorded in 1887 says it is the second peal on the bells, the only previous one being rung on April 9th, 1936. Since 1887 there has been a regular average of three or four a year over the whole period. The only years when a peal wasn't rung are 1905, 1906 and 1935 apart from the war years.

Painswick (12), with 108 in the period, comes second. Of course, this tower is renowned for long lengths also, and at various times in its history has held the record for Grandsire Caters and Cinques, Stedman Cinques and Kent Treble Bob Maximus. Then there was the unfortunate occasion, 30-odd years ago, when one such record length was found to be false. The peals have been well spread out over the 70 years except for a gap between 1933 and 1945.

Quedgeley (8) has 107, and here more peals were rung in the 15 years after the first peal on the bells in 1891 than since, for 80 came from that period. At the moment it is doing well with 19 since 1947 (none this year so far and only one last year). These are the only towers which have passed the century mark—one 12, one 10 and one 8. Another of the five 12-bell towers comes next (Gloucestershire has more of these than any other county outside London, being equal with Lancashire)— Cheltenham, St. Mary's, with 88. 15,227 of Grandsire Caters was rung here in 1889 and this is still the record tower-bell peal in the method, I believe.

WAR LOSS

Three of the seven 10-bell towers follow: Stroud (83), Bristol, St. Nicholas' (72) and Gloucester, St. Michael's (71). The second of these was destroyed in the last war. The first had a rather larger proportion of its peals rung between the wars and the other two were more active before 1914, especially St. Michael's, Gloucester, where the last peal was rung in 1920—the only one since 1914. Prestbury (8) has also recorded 71 spread evenly over the period but with rather fewer since the last war than before it.

To mention the two remaining 12-bell towers—Tewkesbury has just reached the 50 mark (it was not, of course, a 12-bell tower at the beginning of the period—the first on the 12 was in 1934). Here again we find a pretty consistent average over the whole period from 1883; then Cirencester has 31, 21 in the 30 years before the first war, eight in the 20 years between the wars and two since— a slight preponderance on the earlier years.

There are three more 10-bell towers to mention. Bristol, St. James', has 45. There was a sudden burst of energy here just after the first war, for 25 peals were rung from 1919 to 1925. Only six have been rung since, including one since the war, in 1946. Bristol, Christ Church, has 42; 39 came from the years 1901 to 1914, so there have only been three since—in 1918, 1919 and 1953. The third 10-bell tower is Berkeley. This became ten in 1920 and six peals had been rung there as an 8-bell tower between 1900 and 1912. Only ten have been rung since then—six between the wars and four between 1945 and 1951. For a ten-bell tower it must rank amongst those which have recorded the fewest peals.

NOTICE

Beginning with the first issue in 1955, the price of copies of this paper obtained from newsagents will be 6d. per copy.

The 'Ringing World' Committee regret having to take this step, but rising prices leave no alternative if we are to remain solvent.

The terms for postal subscribers will, for the time being, remain as at present.

As for 8-bell towers there are three more which have reached the 50 mark. They are Bristol, All Saints' (57), Barnwood (51) and Upton St. Leonards (50). At the first of these 53 were rung prior to 1914, but there were two in 1948. Barnwood became an 8-bell tower at the end of the first war and peals are quite regular from then (there were two when it was a 6-bell tower). Thirty-eight of Upton St. Leonards' also came from before 1914 and there have been two since 1945. One 8-bell tower still remains to be rung—Chipping Campden.

FORTY-THREE UNCONQUERED TOWERS

In the case of the 6-bell towers there are still 22 unconquered, but considering the large number of these (121), that is a pretty good record of achievement. This number is rather too large to list. Haresfield has the highest number of peals in a 6-bell tower—24. This tower is going strong at the moment as compared with the second on the list—Hempsted, which has 23. Eighteen of these were rung in the last century, so there have only been five in the last 50-odd years. The last was in 1937. Sixteen of Hardwicke's 21 have come since the last war, so this tower, too, is doing well at the moment (but none this year, as I write). Cranham has 16, the first in 1888; Cromhall has 13, all since the war; Minchinhampton also has 13, all but the first between the wars; Brockworth, Coalpit Heath and Stonehouse all have 12 and all have been heard in recent years. Only seven of the 28 5-bell towers have had peals rung at them, and four is the highest number at any of these (at Elkstone and Tredington—the latter having its first peal as far back as 1886). Thus there are still 21 unconquered 5-bell towers in the county.

There are many more points of interest which could have been mentioned and which, perhaps, readers' letters may bring out. If so, I shall be pleased to amplify and comment, if necessary.

THEFT OF TENOR BELL

Unearthed on Blitz Site

A fine of £100 was imposed by the Exeter Magistrates on December 4th on Richard Henry Trevorrow (40), a carpenter, of Plymouth, for the theft of the tenor bell from St. Sidwell's Church site, Exeter. The bell was valued at £200.

The Chief Constable, Mr. A. E. Rowsell, said there were ten bells in the church ring. Nine were recovered after the 1942 bombing, but the tenor, weighing 25 cwt. 1 qr. 3 lb. remained undiscovered.

Trevorrow was employed by a Plymouth firm of contractors, who were taking limestone blocks from St. Sidwell's for use in a church at Plymouth. The bell was unearthed and, on Trevorrow's instructions, was broken up and sold to dealers in Exeter.

The presiding magistrate (Mr. R. P. Thrasher) told Trevorrow that he was fortunate the offence was not committed during the war. If it had, he would have faced a charge of looting, and the penalty would have been very heavy indeed.

Mr. Thrasher said that it was up to St. Sidwell's Parochial Church Council to take steps to recover damages from Trevorrow or his employer.

SURREY ASSOCIATION

Ringing at Barnes, Richmond and Twickenham

The quarterly meeting of the Northern District was held at Barnes on November 27th, when, despite a half gale, a good company of ringers turned up and enjoyed a pleasant afternoon's ringing on the handy eight.

After a short service the company adjourned to the Church Hall, where local ringers had prepared an excellent tea. This was followed by the business meeting which included nominations for 1955 officers. All the existing officers were nominated, with Mr. Mudd in addition, for the committee.

The usual votes of thanks being dealt with, a move was made for Richmond. This was the first occasion for many years that these bells had been available to the Association, and the opportunity to add a new tower was taken by many visitors. Under the guidance of the District Master, Mr. F. E. Collins, satisfaction all round was assured. The General Master, Mr. Roy Davies, was in charge at All Hallows', Twickenham, which bells were also available.

MORE BELFRY GOSSIP

There are three generations of the Warrilow family ringing at St. Mary's, Stafford. Mr. R. J. Warrilow is head ringer; his father, now in his 78th year, still attends regularly twice on Sundays and also on practice nights, cycling 3½ miles to do so; and his son, Robert, also rings.

Ringing at Carbis Bay for the Prime Minister's birthday started on November 30th at 7.30 a.m. for the 8 a.m. celebration of the Holy Communion. The ringers were the Vicar (the Rev. A. S. Roberts, R.D.), Mrs. H. P. Hurrell, Mrs. T. Sullivan, Marion Jones, Jill Swanne, Evangeline Roberts, Roger Sullivan, John Sullivan and Peter Rogers.

For some time Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Corby have been contriving for the former's 500th peal to coincide with her 100th. Success was achieved at Enderby, Leics, on November 22nd. On the same occasion Mrs. H. J. Poole scored her 114th peal in 1954, thus beating the record previously held by Mrs. F. J. Marshallsay of 113 peals in a year by a lady. The band was very much a family affair with three Stanifords, two Pooles, two Corbys and the Corbys' next-door neighbour for a makeweight.

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH GUILD

Winchester District Dinner

The third annual dinner of the Winchester District was held in Winchester on November 27th.

The bells of St. Maurice's Church were available during the afternoon and ringing ranged from rounds to Surprise. A special ringers' service was held in the church, conducted by the Rector (Bishop B. C. Corfield). In a short address the Bishop stressed that ringers held a sacred office and that no matter how many bells were being rung, their message always included the word 'Come' and not 'Go'—'Come,' 'Come in,' 'Come to church,' etc, and not 'Go,' 'Go in,' or 'Go to church.' Ringing was entirely spoilt if the ringers did not attend at least one of the services for which they rang.

The dinner was held in the Westgate Lodge Hotel under the chairmanship of the Rev. C. E. C. Brinkworth, supported by the District secretaries and treasurer. After the loyal toast from the chair Mr. H. Mansell proposed 'The Church.' He thanked the clergy for allowing the continued use of their bells and for the addresses they gave at the services. He also mentioned the difficulty of getting younger people to take up the art.

The Rev. J. R. Beynon, Rector of Twyford, in his reply, referred to the antiquity of bell-ringing.

Mr. H. Street, in submitting the toast to 'The Guild,' said he always thought bellringers were a friendly and sociable lot, but after three dinners he was beginning to wonder. The occasion of the first dinner was marked by high winds and heavy rain; the second by snow; and this one by a violent storm. Was it a sign of wickedness?

The name of Mr. W. C. Lampard, the Cathedral captain, was coupled with the toast. He recalled salient features in the history of the Guild and that this year it had celebrated its 75th anniversary. He finished by urging ringers to look after their Sunday service ringing.

'The Visitors' toast was honoured on the call of Mr. S. B. Carey, and Mr. R. A. Reed, replying, said that the Winchester District was doing a fine job under its secretary, Mr. J. A. C. King. He had found visitors always welcome and a very happy relationship existed.

Members then adjourned to a lounge for a variety concert which included impromptu performances by Mrs. C. H. Kippin and Messrs. S. B. Carey, J. A. C. King and R. A. Reed. Mrs. R. A. Reed officiated for these at the piano.

CHRISTMAS DAY BELLS

On the morning of the 25th each Region will present a radio Christmas card, prefacing it with a short 'touch' of bells from a tower in the area. A greeting in local speech will follow, with other items. Originating in the West Region, this nation-wide programme, 'God Rest Ye Merry,' will be heard in all the B.B.C.'s Home Services.

From Scotland the bells of Britain's largest carillon, in the tower of the East and West Churches of St. Nicholas, Aberdeen, will be heard. Heralding Northern Ireland's contribution will be the bells of the Assembly Hall at Belfast, while a pre-recorded peal from York Minster will bring in the North Region. Down in Devon ringers will 'sign on' the West Region from the tall tower of Widecombe-in-the-Moor Parish Church.

In the Midland Region two towers will take part: first the bells of St. Martin's Parish Church, in Birmingham's Bull Ring, will be heard, and later, the ring of eight in Bretforton Parish Church, Worcestershire, will be introduced by Mr. John Hall, J.P., a market gardener in the Vale of Evesham, who is chairman of his Parish Council and a keen ringer. From Wales will come the sound of a single bell, but the oldest in the country still in use, which dates from 1290, and hangs in the tower of Llanallgo Parish Church, near Moelfre, Anglesey.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Ladies' Guild Branch Contemplated

A quarterly meeting of the Sussex Association (Eastern Division) was held at Christ Church, Eastbourne on November 27th, when about 20 members attended.

Although the ringing during the afternoon and evening reached no great heights in method ringing it was enjoyed by those present and considerable help was given to the younger members in such methods as Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob Major and Kent Treble Bob. The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. J. N. Marcon.

At the business meeting which followed an enjoyable tea, Miss J. Earl and Miss S. Tonkin, of Hellingly, and Mr. M. Laidler, of St. Mary's, Eastbourne, were elected members of the Association.

A question was raised regarding the formation of the Ladies' Guild in Sussex. After some discussion it was decided to approach Mrs. Percy with the suggestion that she should arrange a ladies' meeting with the object of encouraging the ladies of the other Divisions to add their support to that of the ladies of the Eastern Division.

Good progress is being made towards collecting the sum necessary for the repair and overhaul of Bexhill bells, and it is hoped they will be ready for ringing some time during 1955. Wadhurst bells should be heard again soon after Christmas.

The general secretary of the Association (Mr. R. Percy) gave details of the 70th anniversary of the Association, which is to be celebrated at Brighton on January 29th. He also informed members that Association badges would not be available until after the anniversary. R. W. P.

Mr. G. J. Butcher, of Northfleet, has completed the quartet of peals in Plain Bob and rung handbell peals on all numbers from 5 to 12.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Standing Committee was held in St. Andrew's Parish Hall, Queen Street, Norwich, on December 4th. In the deeply regretted absence of the president (the Rev. A. St. J. Heard, who is ill), the chairman of the East Norfolk Branch (Mr. E. R. Goate) was in the chair.

The annual general meeting for 1955 was discussed. It was agreed to hold this on Saturday, May 7th, when the annual service in St. Andrew's Church (despite the continued unringableness of its bells) at 4 p.m., and the tea and business meeting in St. Andrew's Parish Hall (not to be confused with St. Andrew's Hall, the ancient monastic church, now a great place of meeting for Norwich). Ringing arrangements to be as far as possible as at the last annual meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Yallop, who run many delightful functions in St. Andrew's Parish Hall, undertook to do a good tea for 2s. 6d. (1s. 6d. to those at school), with assistance from ringers' wives. Agenda at the annual meeting not to include new members, who could be more conveniently elected at Branch meetings.

It was agreed that a new Norwich Diocesan Association badge be produced forthwith. Mr. Nolan Golden undertook to arrange its design and manufacture, and it is hoped to be able to sell it at 2s. 6d. each (2s. to those at school). It was noted that all members should pay their subscriptions to the branch secretaries, also their peal fees to the Association Ringing Master, Mr. Nolan Golden, in accordance with the rules.

It was agreed to send £5 from the Belfry Repair Fund to Great Bircham, which has recently spent £140 on bell restoration.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL ASSOCIATION

Cirencester Branch

The annual meeting was held at Cirencester on December 4th. Ringing took place at Watermoor (8) in the afternoon and the Parish Church (12) in the evening. The priest-in-charge at Watermoor took the service at 4.30 p.m.

The Association's Master (Mr. A. L. Barry) presided at the business meeting, when the retiring officers—chairman, Mr. W. A. Godwin; secretary, Mr. R. E. W. Wenban; and management committee representative, Mr. E. H. Jefferies—were re-elected. A rota of meetings to be held during 1955 was adopted. A very successful meeting was enjoyed by all. R. W.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

JAMES BARHAM'S PEALS

Dear Sir,—The recent attempt to break the record for the full extent of Major has drawn attention to the previous peal, rung at Leeds, in Kent, by James Barham, who completed the peal in 27 hours.

A broadsheet in the old ringing chamber of St. Mary's, Woolwich, was printed by George Naunton, of Ipswich. It is undated, but gives and 'Account of peals rung in different methods by James Barham, of Leeds, in Kent, in that and neighbouring county from 1744 to 1813.'

Among them are the following:—

December 30th, 1752.—14,500 of Bob Major rung in 9 hours and 30 minutes.

January 13th, 1753.—20,160 of Bob Major rung in 13 hours and 34 minutes.

March 31st, 1755.—16 hours.

April 7th and 8th, 1761.—40,320 of Bob Major rung in 27 hours.

Of the effort of March, 1755, a footnote states:—

'This number cannot be clearly ascertained nor can it be deemed a Peal, in consequence of the breaking of a clapper, when the said James Barham stood 14 hours 44 minutes under the 7th bell, drunk his glasses of wine and called all the Bobs. The proprietor of this work has a certificate signed by a respectable person who is willing to satisfy upon oath the truth of it.'

It would appear that this was an attempt on the full extent of Major, or, at least, a rehearsal similar to the 14,500 in 1752 in preparation for the half-way, rung in 1753. Likewise, it is reasonable to suppose that James Barham called the bobs in the successful peal, of which the footnote merely states:—

'The whole Peal of Changes on 8 Bells, having never been performed before, or since.'

No mention is made of the composition. If Thomas Steers was the composer he must have been a young man at the time, for it was 26 years after the peal was rung that he was elected a member of the Cambridge Youths, according to the date given by Mr. Hibbins in his letter to 'The Ringing World' of November 26th, 1954.—Yours sincerely,

A. GROVE.

Woolwich.

EARTH AS A SILENCER

Dear Sir,—We, also, have a deep layer of earth on the floor of our bell chamber at Long Crendon, which appears to have been there a considerable number of years. This makes a very effective silencer.

Unfortunately, we shall soon be faced with the problem of moving it, as the frame has to be treated. For this and other restoration work our Vicar has launched an appeal for one million pennies.

Perhaps a moth-proof felt, as is used in the construction of modern flats, would be more appropriate.—Yours faithfully,

G. J. TYLER.

Aylesbury, Bucks.

A COMPOSITION OF SUPERLATIVE

Dear Sir,—I am afraid Mr. William Thornley has made a slight error in claiming the peal of Superlative on page 784 of 'The Ringing World.' This peal on the commonest plan for peals of Superlative has been published under the name of E. Timbrell (Yorkshire Association Peal No. 4,201), C. H. Hattersley (Kent County Association report for 1910, Peal No. 1,530) and J. W. Washbrook, plus the usual selection of simple variations by Messrs. Knights and Lindoff too numerous to mention in detail.—Yours sincerely,

R. F. B. SPEED.

Kingston, Surrey.

THE EXTENT OF MAJOR

Dear Sir,—Reading in the issue of December 3rd Mr. Harris' interesting account of the late C. Herbert's stupendous achievement in writing the whole extent of Major, reminds me of a story told by the late George Martin, of Boyne Hill. As it was some time ago I might err a little in detail, but, briefly, this is as I remember it:—

A ringer of George's acquaintance got into conversation with a representative of an American firm of safe and lock makers. Apparently bells and ringing were discussed, and a plain course of Bob Major changed hands, with the explanation that 40,320 such rows of figures could be obtained without repetition. Some time later our worthy received a communication from America offering the sum of £300 if he would supply them with the extent but the poor man was then in a bad state of health and although financially embarrassed, was not capable of the task. His colleagues came to the rescue and, between them, brought the issue to a successful climax.

I believe I am correct in saying that some of our firms of safe makers possess copies of 'Standard Methods,' using the various diagrams in the construction of their craft.

An old friend once asked me for the calling of Holt's Original, and he eventually wrote the whole figures to convince his fellow workmates that it is possible to get 5,040 different changes on seven bells—not such a colossal task, but enough to show the pains that some ringers will take to prove that 'there is more in bell-ringing than meets the ear.'

Hard luck, long-peal band. Best wishes for success next time.

W. WELLING.

Old Windsor.

SAXILBY, LINCS

Dear Sir,—I notice reference was made to our tower the other week in one of your 'Letters to the Editor' concerning an old Lincolnshire rhyme. It may be of interest to your readers to know that in 1943 four of us taught ourselves to ring on the old four 'ding dongs' mentioned in the poem. By the time we had mastered Bob Minimus we had raised enough enthusiasm in the village to have the old frame taken out, the existing four bells rehung in a new steel frame and two new trebles added at a cost of over £700. The dedication was in April, 1947, and since then we have raised and maintained a small but keen band ringing Doubles and Minor methods. None of us have ever rung a peal, but since the bells were dedicated in 1947 the bells have never been silent before Matins, and ringing for Evensong has only been missed ten times; we regard service ringing as all-important.

Incidentally, our band of nine members consists of five choristers, four sidesmen, three church councillors, the organist and the church treasurer.—Yours sincerely,

JOHN M. BLAIKIE.

Saxilby, Lincoln.

Note.—We congratulate the band on their quarter peal, the last being rung over five years ago.—Ed.

STEDMAN CATERS

Dear Sir,—Mr. Topp's interesting composition of Stedman Caters recalls to memory a composition we rang in 1931 by the late G. Lindoff. He turned the bells every six courses in the Tittums and hand stroke position alternately, and had a 6.5 or 5.6 at every alternate course end through the peal.

A. H. PULLING.

Guildford.

UNWELCOMED PUBLICITY

Dear Sir,—Some time ago there was a spate of hostile criticism in the lay Press, brought on by the peal attempts of one of our prominent members.

You may recall that I wrote a letter, which you published, decrying the publicity which appeared in the daily newspapers, and I suggested that these matters should be confined to 'The Ringing World,' as publicity often does more harm than good.

This has been borne out in good measure in a recent issue of the 'Daily Mirror,' in which we come in for withering scorn from a tin god who assumes the title of 'Cassandra.' This abuse, and I do not believe we have heard the last, was brought on by the recent attempt at Loughborough.

Many ringers would be hard put to explain why one should want to ring for 20 hours. How, then, can we expect members of the public to understand? We are now being compared with pole squatters, marathon piano players, dancers, talkers and other crazy individuals, and what answer are we to give to the critics?

Believe me, many town towers have enough criticism as it is without this unnecessary storm of abuse being used to feed the flames. Please sir, may I, as a very humble, quite indifferent ringer, appeal to those more gifted performers to keep their prodigious feats of strength and concentration confined to the ringing Press, where at least it will be sympathetically received, if not entirely understood.—Sincerely yours,

ERNEST J. ROWE.

Tottenham, N.15.

INFORMATION WANTED

Dear Sir,—The Rev. K. W. H. Felstead has been misled, I think, by a misprint in Mr. Blagrove's recent letter re plain Major methods. This is in the two methods he rejected, which when corrected give Plain Bob coursing order in 7-8. They correspond to Crayford and Little Bob with places in 5-6 instead of dodging in the middle of the lead.

Could anyone please state the method rung at Anstey, Leics, on April 6th, 1935, which, according to Corrigan, was published as Huntington (which had already been rung) and renamed Wicken? Therefore, what is the 'Wicken' rung at Wicken, Northants, on July 12th, 1953?

Also, could the methods Evington Surprise Major and Framland Surprise Maximus be given, please? If they have been, and I've missed them, sorry !)

And does Gainsborough Surprise Major have places made in 1, 2, 3 and 6 simultaneously between the 14th and 15th rows in the first half lead? This is according to the description given in 'Belfry Gossip,' but seems odd.—Yours sincerely,

D. A. FRITH.

Grantham.

CHIMES AND CHIME TUNES

Dear Sir,—In the long series of articles I wrote under the above title in 'The Ringing World,' July 17th, 1942, et seq., I gave a large selection of chime tunes as played by clocks at many churches. I cannot remember any quite like those at Stow-on-the-Wold given in your last issue by the Rev. H. C. M. Potts—the nearest seems to be at Tideswell, where the following was adapted for six bells:—

1.	1 2 3 4
2.	3 2 1 4
3.	1 3 2 4
4.	2 1 3 4

No. 1 was played at first quarter, 1 and 2 second, 1, 2 and 3 at third, and all at fourth, with No. 6 as hour bell.—Yours sincerely,

ERNEST MORRIS.

St. Margaret's, Leicester.

LETTERS—Continued

REPLY TO THE SURPRISE MAJOR CHALLENGE

Dear Sir,—Mr. Roe makes out a case for the 'ownership of figures' on the basis of responsibility and a tradition, but also a right have composed a certain peal is not only a responsibility and a tradition, but also a right and a just reward for many hours of hard work.

The 'tradition' of claiming to have composed a certain method seems to lie with less than half a dozen men, two or three in the field of Surprise Major and the same number with so-called extensions of London Surprise to 10 and 12 bells.

Mr. A. G. Driver worked out all the Minor methods and all the Plain Major methods, but he did not claim to have composed any of them. I would suggest that these traditionalists follow his example. After all, Surprise methods can be written down systematically at a higher rate than one a minute, so I fail to see where 'composition' comes in. The responsibility of WHAT is rung lies with those who RING it, and not with those who WRITE it down.

There are over 200,000 Surprise Major methods with coursing order bells in 7–8 and triple and quadruple changes only, so there is really no need to ring methods with non-coursing bells in 7–8 or double changes.

Now for his challenge. I find there are 33 Surprise Major with coursing pairs in 7–8, regular lead ends and no adjacent places (in the Grid, Link, or Junction). They are, with 8ths place lead ends:—

Perhaps someone could supply the names of those that have been rung, as I do not possess any published collection.

If all these methods have been rung or published before, then his challenge was a pointless waste of time and paper. If any of them have not been rung or published, then I challenge him to prove that any one of them is not peralable.—Yours sincerely,

F. T. BLAGROVE.

GRAMOPHONE RECORDS

Dear Sir,—In answer to those who complain about the noise made by bells, I should like to state that of my heterogeneous collection of gramophone records, the quietest is Y——k M————r B——ls.

Or perhaps I have got the wrong gramophone.—Faithfully yours, F. A. CLUETT.

A WEEK-END IN FOUR COUNTIES

A Sequel to 'Dree Days in Zummerset'

(Ringing World,' August 13th, 1954)

For me it all began when I read 'Dree Days in Zummerset,' and saw the words, '16th ov October . . . . if any ov ee wants to cum wi us, just let's knaw . . .' October 16th happened to be within my holidays. Exchanging letters with the Editor eventually led me to the organiser and, to cut the story short, Friday, October 15th, found me Swindon bound.

I hadn't met them before but we introduced ourselves and I soon discovered that they were, in fact, 'purty vrendly.' A quarter peal at St. Mark's was successful and then adjournment for refreshment and to talk about the route for the week end.

Saturday morning we were well under way by eight o'clock, two cars with four in each, destination Nunney, in Somerset, about 40 miles way, where huge stones up to 20 feet high stand in the fields on both sides of the road, relics of the Druids. An hour's run and we were in Somerset, anon to Nunney where the church was under repair, and likely to be for some time, by appearances. There was nothing wrong with the bells, however, a handy six (tenor 12 cwt.). We had our ring and then made way for more of the 'vrends' who'd arrived from another direction. On to Wanstrow, for another ring of six, and here we were joined by another 'visitor,' who'd travelled from Bedford since daylight, with his non-ringing friend for company.

Eleven o'clock, therefore, found us a convoy of four cars, moving on to the third six, Marston Magna (tenor 13 cwt.), but we hadn't been there long before the 'gaffer' decreed that some of us move on to Mudford to keep abreast of the time-table. So on to Mudford to find a very warm welcome from the Vicar and a heavy ring of five. If you want to ring a peal there, make it a non-conducted one. Well, the next stop was Yeovil and here we had an hour for lunch before going up to enjoy that glorious ten at St. John's. Stedman Caters was among the best ringing of the day and I think everyone would have liked to stay longer than the generous hour permitted, but on again for the second half.

If C. S. had tried to find more picturesque names that week-end, I don't think he could have bettered those we had, e.g., Marston Magna and now (three more sixes) Preston Plucknett, Montacute (tenor 24 cwt.) and Stoke-sub-Hamdon, until we came to the first eight of the day—Shepton Beauchamp, as handy a ring as you'll wish to find. We 'moved them on a bit' to Stedman and then finished up with a good course of Yorkshire. One more six, Kingsbury Episcopi (another bonny name) made ten towers for the day and then off for the night to East Budleigh, in Devon, ultimate destination whenever the 'vrends of the Exercise' are out.

Well, we went to bed eventually, but it was a close night in any case, which was maybe why I was up before seven and out to have a look at this viewly village where Raleigh spent so much time. There's his pew in the church, where at eight o'clock six of us raised, rang and ceased for the Holy Communion. Then, after breakfast, to Harpford to ring for Matins, and elevenish on to Bradford Aboas, in Dorset, where we had yet another warm welcome and found another good six. Lunch this day was at Sherborne, but the 'gang' had rung at the Abbey previously, so I didn't have that pleasure. However, on to Milborne Port, and there's a weight of metal in that tower; a fine old church, too. We stayed until three o'clock and then on to Henstridge for the final ring of six (tenor almost a ton again) and as good as any for the last six, although they were all good bells that week-end.

Tea next (was it at Ilminster?) and then the last tower of the tour, North Bradley, back in Wiltshire, and appropriately enough the home tower of two of the lads. As spick-and-span a belfry as I've seen, and the bells just as smart with a peal to match (tenor cast in 1519 and the two trebles added only four years since). They made a good job of that splice we all agreed. We finished off by staying to the service and having a good sing, almost a choir on our own. From there it was back to Swindon—the end of a memorable week-end.

THE LADIES' GUILD

Midland District at Kettering

Despite the unfavourable weather, there was a good gathering at the meeting held at Kettering on November 20th. A party travelled by train from Leicester and district and the bells were set going during the afternoon and evening to a variety of methods.

A short form of service was conducted by the Rector, who, in his address, said that campanologists were fortunate in having an interest which drew them to the House of God so often, and he hoped that they found time to say a short prayer at each church where they rang. He stated how gratifying it would be for ringers to be able to say after meeting and tower-grabbing expeditions, not only that they have rung in a number of churches, but also that they have prayed in that number of churches.

An excellent tea was served in the nearby Church Hall by the ladies of the parish. Before the business meeting commenced Miss Thompson (vice-president) expressed thanks to all concerned, especially to Mr. P. Chapman, for making the local arrangements. Seven new members were elected.

The Leicester party, arriving back in Leicester, were met by Mr. H. J. Poole, who caused considerable hilarity on remarking that he was pleased to see the ladies had roped in several new members for the 'Supporters' Club'!

It is hoped to hold the annual meeting at St. Mary de Castro's, Leicester, on Jan. 29th.

IN THE FEN COUNTRY

The bleak and desolate prospect presented by the Lincolnshire Fens did not deter a keen party of tower snatchers from taking full advantage of the excellent programme arranged for them by Mr. Ron Noon on November 6th, when ten towers were visited.

Market Deeping, a tower famous in its 'Day,' was reached at 1 p.m. and quickly followed by the magnificent six of Deeping St. James' Church. The age-defying Abbey Church of SS. Bartholomew, Guthlac and Mary, Crowland, which has known the sound of bells for longer than most places, but now possesses only six bells, was admired by the band in the brief period allowed before the road was taken for Gedney Hill, where are five bells. Spliced Doubles were rung there and we were told that a long silence has only recently been broken.

Whaplode—lovely in its Norman nave as well as its bells—was reached in darkness at what would have been tea-time had there been time. Holbeach, though it has eight good bells, could not provide a cup of tea for the weaker brethren, who must, anyway, press on to Fleet. Mr. J. Hallifax, a hearty octogenarian and the ringing Vicar, made us welcome and warmed us in the detached campanile. Another Gedney, this time with six bells and a much larger church, came next and was enjoyed. Long Sutton heard our only course of Surprise Major of the day, Cambridge. Thanks, Lincolnshire!

OBITUARY

MR. FREDERICK W. TOWNSEND

With sincere regret we record the death in St. Mary's Hospital, Poole, on December 3rd, at the age of 87 years, of Mr. F. W. Townsend. He became crippled with arthritis before the last war, and was unable to continue ringing. For the last year he had been confined to bed, but, active in mind, he enjoyed reading his 'Ringing World' and talking on ringing right up to the last. He was not a big peal ringer and his peals did not exceed 50, his greatest object being to have the bells well rung for service.

Mr. Townsend learned to handle a bell at Bishop's Cleeve and his change ringing at St. Mary's, Cheltenham, and Charlton Kings, under Mr. W. T. Pates and Mr. W. Dyer. He was a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths.

He came to Poole in 1904 and at that time only call changes were rung at St. James', Poole. In 1906 he joined the Poole band and soon became captain. Under his instruction the Poole band became one of the best in the Salisbury Diocesan Guild. He saw the eight bells rehung in 1907 and was largely responsible for increasing them to ten in 1937, which he said was the most memorable event in his ringing career. The treble in the ten carries his name and is a lasting memorial to his memory.

A good handbell ringer, he was largely responsible for building up the band of handbell ringers in the Poole and Bournemouth District and his pupils appear to-day in many of the handbell peals rung in the area.

Mr. Townsend was District Master of the Wimborne Branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild for over 40 years. He spent a great deal of time in instructing bands in change ringing in days when transport was not easy. Amongst his pupils was one of our leading composers of to-day as well as several ringers who have made their name in the Exercise. During his long life he saw no less than six rectors at St. James', Poole.

The funeral took place on December 6th in Poole Cemetery and was conducted by the Rector of Poole, the Rev. G. H. W. Bevington. After the service a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells over the open grave by W. Young, Mrs. Marshallsay, D. Matkin and A. Davis.

Amongst the mourners and friends were his son, Mr. W. Townsend, Messrs. B. James, A. F. Martin Stewart, I. P. Davis, F. Hart, L. J. Lockyer, R. Willis and A. R. Macdonald. In the evening the Rector of Poole conducted a short service in the belfry of St. James' Church and gave a brief address in which he stressed Mr. Townsend's devotion to his duties as a ringer over the years.

The local company then rang the ten bells with half-muffled clappers to the 'Whole Pull and Stand' to the years of the deceased's age, after which touches of Stedman and Grandsire Caters were rung, in which ringers from Wimborne and Bournemouth joined. A. R. M.

AN APPRECIATION

I would like to pay a small tribute to this grand old gentleman, a tribute in which many ringers who knew him in this part of the country would like to join.

It will be difficult to measure the extent of Mr. Townsend's work to encourage the art of change ringing, both on tower bells and on handbells. When one visited Poole tower in his day one was always sure of a most cordial welcome, and that no time would be wasted for, if for some reason the tower bells could not be rung, the handbells were soon in evidence.

Freddie did not make extravagant claims, but he would insist on good striking at all times. His standard was extremely high, so that if he said the ringing was good it was a compliment indeed.

Peal attempts were frequent on the Old Poole eight, and the drill was always the same. Mr. Townsend would have everything ready and settle down to listen to the first quarter, then he would creep out of the belfry. But he would not be far away; he was the first one up at the conclusion of the ringing to congratulate or listen to the inquest.

When tower-bell ringing was banned in 1940, Mr. Townsend assisted the early efforts made in Bournemouth to practise double-handed change ringing. Through him the Bournemouth handbell band came into existence, and as long as a handbell peal is rung in the district, the name of Frederick Townsend will be remembered with affection, respect and gratitude.

MR. ROBERT ALSOP

Mr. Robert Alsop, a ringer at Christ Church, Ebbw Vale, died at Ebbw Vale Hospital on November 29th, aged 76.

A native of Cheddar, where he had learned to ring call changes as a young man, he went to Ebbw Vale when he was 23, but there was no opportunity for ringing until the ring of eight bells was installed at Christ Church in 1937. Then, at nearly 60 years of age, he took up change ringing for the first time, being a member of the service band throughout its existence.

He rang a few peals of Plain Bob Minor and Grandsire Triples. He was keenly interested in all aspects of ringing, and was learning new methods, including Cambridge, right to the end of his life.

He was a faithful member of his church in many of its activities. He was widely read and would often dig out and use a little-known word, with a mischievous glint in his eye. He wrote to 'The Ringing World' many times, often under a pen name, usually over some query of interest. A few years ago he made a table out of a walnut tree that he himself had planted when a boy.

He was the father of a truly Christian family, and was a few weeks from his golden wedding when he died. We extend our sympathy to Mrs. Alsop and her daughter and sons.

MR. P. T. CLIFT

We regret to announce the death at Rumney, near Cardiff, of Mr. Phillip Thomas Clift, father of Messrs. D. G. and P. B. Clift, at the age of 82.

Mr. Clift was taught change ringing by Mr. J. W. Jones, of Newport, in the latter part of the 19th century and was leader of the old six-bell band at Usk for many years. In 1925, when the old six had become unringable, he was associated with the late Canon Morgan and others in raising funds for the magnificent eight which now hang in the tower of St. Mary's Church.

Though he never took part in a peal and had taken no active part in ringing for many years, he nevertheless maintained a keen interest, and any ringer was made welcome at his home.

His first love, however, was rifle shooting, a sport in which he had achieved international honours, having shot for Wales on many occasions in the annual meetings between the four countries at Bisley. He had reached the final stage of the King's Prize on several occasions and had won the coveted silver medal of the National Rifle Association, also the then Blue Riband of the Miniature Rifle Shooting, Sir Eliott Lee's Shield. He was proud to have been one of a long line of notable sportsmen which the small town of Usk has produced.

He was interred on December 11th in the churchyard of St. Mary's Church, where the bells were rung half-muffled to touches of Grandsire Triples by the local band. D. G. C.

PEAL ATTEMPT IN AMERICA

Groton Scholars Learning to Ring.

On November 25th the ringers from Boston, U.S.A., visited the Memorial Tower at Hingham, Mass., where 564 Grandsire Triples was brought round after some very fair striking: A. Matthews 1, P. J. Allfrey (cond.) 2, Mrs. M. H. Shurtleff 3, C. C. Randall 4, J. Goodhead 5, J. F. Laker 6, W. Bashford 7, R. Newton 8. A 672 in the same method was also rung. . . .

On November 26th . . . . six members of the Boston Guild visited Groton School and enjoyed a very pleasant outing. . . . One or two short touches were rung before service at the school chapel, some of the pupils taking a rope . . . . and at 1.45 an attempt was made for a peal, the ringers standing as follows: S. Warren Sturgis 1, P. J. Allfrey (cond.) 2, W. Bashford 3, J. F. Laker 4, J. Goodhead 5, C. C. Randall 6, R. Newton 7, L. Adams 8. Owing to the noise in the tower, however, a trip which occurred after 50 minutes' good ringing could not be adjusted and the bells were brought to a stand.

[Mr. S. Warren Sturgis was classics master and L. Adams a pupil at the school. The former, a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, rang several handbell peals during visits to this country. Mrs. Shurtleff, the first lady member of that Society, and still living in Boston, also rang a few peals in England.]

Herts County Association

The rough weather probably accounted for the attendance dropping to 20 at the Northern District meeting ot Norton on November 27th. The special method for the meeting, Pudsey Surprise, was successfully brought round.

Mrs. H. Werrett and helpers provided a bountiful tea, and Miss J. Sanderson presided at the business meeting when the following members were elected: Messrs. J. Sinfield and D. Broyd (Houghton Regis, Beds) and Mr. and Mrs. W. Critchley (Hitchin). The annual meeting was announced for Hitchin on Jan. 22nd.

Evensong was said at 6.30 p.m. by the Vicar (the Rev. G. Kenyon). Further ringing followed until 8.15 when the bells were lowered in peal.

MR. R. G. MARTIN

There passed to higher service, on November 25th, Richard Gough Martin, a Diocesan Lay Reader, known in many Northants churches. In his younger days he had an aptitude for ringing, and up to a month prior to his death at the age of 86 often chimed for early Sunday Eucharist and daily evensong at his own church, Weston Favell. He was for many years secretary of the Peterborough Diocesan Lay Readers Association, and in private life was a retired schoolmaster.

The funeral took place at Weston Favell on November 29th, after which a quarter-peal of Doubles (1,020 Grandsire and 240 Plain Bob) was rung half-muffled by: W. Gummage 1, Miss G. Ashby 2, F. Rollings 3, M. Hollowell 4, P. Amos (conductor) 5.

MR. A. L. SIMMONDS

We regret to learn of the death of Mr. A. L. Simmonds, of Westfield, Patching Hall Lane, Chelmsford, a member for many years of the Cathedral band.

Before moving to Chelmsford he was a member of the Saffron Walden band. He will be missed by his many friends—through ringing he made life-long contacts.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2281 Vol. L. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

By The Rev. Canon C. CAREW COX

CHRISTMAS cards; Christmas presents; Christmas dinners; Family gatherings; Children's parties; Fireside stories, and all the other accompaniments of the festive season! How much they will occupy our time and thoughts! What thrills and joys they may be expected to bring! What memories they will stir!

But can all that be enough? Surely some other thoughts will be welling up; imbedded deep and, maybe, beyond expression; linking one with the Divine Wonderful Mystery and, at the same time, with the highest conception of human life imaginable yet altogether possible; 'Glory to God in the Highest, and on earth peace, goodwill among men.'

No finer song has ever been sung: no more glorious promise has ever been echoed: no more precious foundation for national and family life has ever been conceived. More than the mind of man, seeking this or that new achievement, shall ever surpass. Voiced that one night at Bethlehem so long ago when the Son of God was born of Mary.

'Born that man no more may die,
Born to raise the sons of earth,
Born to give them second birth.'

For that is what the Church has to say and has always had to say to the world on Christmas Day. That is why the church towers stand to rock in sympathy with the joyful ringing of the bells. That is why the bells are there to move us to 'sing merrily unto God our strength'; to be the double-forte accompaniment to the greetings being exchanged everywhere, notwithstanding that

'By day men go their ways
Hearing the music as they pass,
But deeming it no more, alas!
Than the hollow sound of brass.'

And if the association of the church bells with the proclamation from Bethlehem goes unperceived there must be a hollowness in the Christmas festivities: they must lose much of the old simplicity and be in danger of developing into something wild and coarse, unmeaning and unedifying. It is at least a shocking thought that there could be anything in the nature of a 'hang-over' after the keeping of Christmas Day. We do not wish one another a 'Merry Christmas' with that idea. First and foremost we give the greeting because it is the Feast of Him Who came down into this world with the Love to draw homewards and welcome such as the prodigal son, so that (if the poet will forgive a change of word)—

'Perchance some sleepless wight
May listen with a calm delight
To the Christian melodies:
Till he hears, or dreams he hears
Intermingled with the song,
Thoughts that he has cherished long;
Hears amid the chime and singing
The bells of his own village ringing,
And wakes, and finds his slumberous eyes
Wet with most delicious tears.'

And, to-day, the Feast of the new-born Saviour may be celebrated very simply in a mud and wattle church in some far off African or Indian village, or in some glorious lofty cathedral amid a busy city where the Eucharist is offered with more elaborate ceremonial. The one will be as real as the other, for what matters most is that the Feast begins at the Altar where the Babe of Bethlehem is now the King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

Therefore the bells will ring out the welcome which can truly be that of Bethlehem in our day to the multitudes far and near; and no doubt people in their hundreds will be streaming towards the churches for midnight or early services. Would it might be said that the buildings are not spacious enough nor numerous enough to embrace all the would-be worshippers!

We do not forget there will be those whose Christmas will be tinged with sorrow; with whom the memories will conjure up perhaps overwhelming longings; who will scarcely have the heart for joining with others who make merry. True, but the Love which came down at Christmas is for them as well and without it they would indeed be forlorn and bereft of hope. The myrrh was one of the significant offerings to the Holy Child, the prophetic symbol of the endurance of grief for the sake of sealing the joy which shall eclipse all earthly joys in the Heavenly Home.

And what of the ringers standing to the ropes for the Christmas services? We wish them, one and all, the real joys of the Festival and the best of music in their hearts. Sad it must be if any belfries are closed, or any ropes unmanned; either because of poor conditions or for lack of ringers: sadder still if for lack of comradeship.

But here and now we shall expect the song to penetrate through the belfry, 'Peace on earth, goodwill among men.' This is the time to sink all differences and to make good any breaches existing. That is the ringers' part at Christmas-tide, those who know that the instruments they handle are not giving out 'hollow sounds of brass,' but the sure and lovely tones of the Christian call to praise and worship the God and King of Redeeming and Consoling Love.

GILLETT AND
LIMITED

No matter in which corner of the country you happen to be, as likely as not you will come across Gillett & Johnston bells or tower clocks. Gillett & Johnston craftsmanship is embodied in an all-embracing service — as much in the preservation and restoration of old rings of antiquarian interest as in the installation of new.

SHEFFIELD & DISTRICT SOCIETY

Three towers were available at the last meeting of the above Society on December 4th at All Saints' (8) in the afternoon, and Sheffield Cathedral (12) and St. Marie's (8) in the evening. Ringing ranged from rounds to Surprise Major, Cinques and Maximus.

In his address of welcome, after tea in All Saints' Institute, the Vicar (the Rev. M. Penfold) said how pleased he was that his own ringers were always well represented at the church services, and he expressed appreciation of the ringers' services, which, he said, were an important branch of church work.

It was announced that the next meeting would be held at Dore on January 1st. The modern ring of eight bells at this church has not been rung for some time and it is hoped that this meeting will stimulate ringing activities there.

WALTHAM ABBEY BELLS

Ring Increased to Twelve

The dedication [of the new ring] took place on Thursday afternoon of last week . . . . and immediately after the service the following band of College Youths rang five courses of Stedman Cinques: E. Horrex 1, E. Gibbs 2, W. Garrard 3, H. Pasmore 4, H. Springall 5, W. A. Alps 6, E. Wallage 7, C. F. Winney (conductor) 8, C. Burden 9, T. H. Taffender 10, H. R. Newton 11, A. B. Peck 12.

[This was the third ring of 12 to be dedicated during a period of 15 months in Essex, a county which formerly possessed none at all, and which has had no further such augmentation since. Whether 12 bells in a tower are necessarily an asset is a matter of opinion, however.]

Gratefully Acknowledged

The Editorial Committee acknowledge with gratitude the following donations to meet the cost of producing 'The Ringing World':—

GUILD of DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

New Secretary for Aylesbeare Branch

The Aylesbeare Deanery Branch at its annual meeting on December 3rd at Woodbury elected a new secretary. Mr. Brian Pidgeon felt he could not continue in office as he was living out of the Branch's area. Mr. R. Perry was appointed his successor. The Ringing Master, Mr. J. L. S. Glanvill, who was re-elected, thanked Mr. Pidgeon for all the work he had done for the Branch during his 12 years in office. The chairman, the Rev. H. V. Christie, was also re-elected.

Three certificates were presented to members of the Branch by the Guild president (the Rev. Preb. E. V. Cox) and three new members were elected.

The chairman thanked the Vicar (the Rev. A. E. Osmond) for conducting the service, and also the organist. The ladies who provided such an enjoyable tea were also thanked. East Budleigh was chosen for the next meeting on March 5th.

Ringing during the afternoon and evening was directed by Mr. J. L. S. Glanvill.

BEVERLEY & DISTRICT SOCIETY

Forty-four members and friends attended the meeting at Pocklington on November 13th, a village noted for its good teas, which on this occasion well maintained the tradition, thanks to local ringers' wives.

Standard methods were rung during the afternoon and the service was conducted by Canon F. Richardson (Vicar). At the business meeting an address was given by Mr. A. Taylor, a member of the committee, on attendances and work of the Society. Further ringing on the bells concluded a successful meeting.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Sowerby, where a quarter peal was scored after two attempts for a full peal had come to grief, is the village in the West Riding of Yorkshire where William Sottenstall lived, and St. Peter's is the church where he rang when he compiled his book on 'Bell Ringing.' He was here laid to rest. The bells have been recast and rehung by Messrs. John Taylor and Co. and were dedicated by the Bishop of Wakefield on July 4th.

Miss Valerie Flint, daughter of the Vicar of Cawthorne, has scored her first quarter peal after only five weeks' experience of change ringing.

Mr. D. R. Whalley, of 77, Dunsdale View, Porthill, Stoke-on-Trent, is 'The Ringing World' correspondent for the North Staffs Association.

With the peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal on December 11th, Mr. Clifford A. Barron has rung Cambridge from Minor to Maximus in his native town of Shrewsbury.

Mr. A. Simpson, the conductor, has notified us that the peal rung at North Muskham on November 27th has since been proved false in the fourth 720. He apologises to the band.

The quarter peal at Queenborough, reported in our last issue, was also a compliment to Frank Fagg, the secretary of the Milton Regis band, and Brenda Harris, a member of the Queenborough band, on their engagement.

Mr. Trevor Reynolds, of Wolverhampton, has not only rung on all the ringable rings in Staffordshire, but by ringing at Leaton on December 4th also completed Shropshire. Congratulations. Leaton was also Mr. Clive M. Smith's (Lichfield) 275th tower this year. Has anyone rung in more than this number in any 12 months?

Mr. Sam Jones, of Eccleston, rang faultlessly in the peal for his 86th birthday and finished 'as fresh as a daisy.' The band joined in a birthday tea afterwards and sampled an excellent cake made by his grand-daughter, which carried the figure 86 in the icing, but not the appropriate number of candles!

There were ten first peals of Grandsire Cinques recorded in the peal at Lincoln Cathedral on December 11th.

Congratulations to John J. Jelley on ringing his 50th peal at the age of 16 years. He achieved this by taking part in a peal of Stedman Triples at Oakham, Rutland.

Congratulations to Mr. Charles E. J. Norris on completing 57 years' service at St. Mary-the-Virgin's Church, Chatham. He joined as a choirboy in 1897. At the laying of the foundation stone of the tower in 1904 he left the choir and joined the belfry. He has served under nine rectors of Chatham.

A peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major was rung on December 11th on the fine octave of St. Peter's Church, Pentre, Rhondda. The band would like to express its appreciation of the warm welcome extended by Mr. Harry Crabb and Mr. Joe Lovett, who had everything in readiness and who kindly entertained the band after the peal.

'One could hardly think that the 'oranges and lemons, said the bells of St. Clements', which used to peel out, would reappear, but if it did it would perhaps be a fitting monument to the bounty of the testatrix.'—'The Times' in the report on the bequest for restoration of St. Clement Danes' of nearly £27,000 which was held to be valid. A consolation to the Editor of 'The Ringing World' that some of the great ones at times have literals.

THE BEAST AND THE BELL(E)

or THE TYRANT OF THE TOWER

A COMIC OPERA IN ONE ACT

By S. A. HILL

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ

Despard (The tower captain).
Adam Brokenstay (An old ringer).
Jack Tittums, Stella Queens } (Strolling hand-bell ringers).
Anastasia (An old spinster ringer disguised as a bell-rope peddler).
1st tower snatcher.
2nd tower snatcher.
No chorus (Thank goodness).

The scenes take place before the tower of the small English village of Much Clattering.

Date: Before you were born anyway.

Any resemblance between characters in the opera and living persons is entirely intentional.

Scene: The tower of Much Clattering at the back and right. The tower captain's dwelling (a sumptuous villa) on the left. An old ringer (Adam) is seated outside the tower apparently asleep.

Enter Anastasia, and speaks through finale of overture which leads straight into first song.

An.: Bell-ropes. Who'll buy my fine bell-ropes?

She sees Adam, approaches him and, finding him apparently asleep, puts down her ropes, adopts a haughty attitude, advances to the centre of the stage and sings.

1. Tune: 'When our Gallant Norman Foes.'

Though in this ragged guise I stand before your eyes,
No gypsy I, no peddler woman stupid.
A ringer see in me, of highest pedigree,
But victim to the subtle shaft of Cupid.
A week ago or two determined I to woo
The son of our renowned tower captain,
Himself a ringer true, and in the future due
To inherit the glory that his father now is Wrapt in.

Chorus:

While ropes may rot and sallies wear thin
My love-lorn quest I'll never give in.
I'll follow him from tower to tower.
Until again he's in my power.

But this eligible son was not so easy won.
For he'd an infantile infatuation
For a paltry village maid who hadn't I'm afraid,
The advantage of my elevated station.
Wooing him availed me nought, so other means I sought:
His father's assent and co-operation;
And ere the week was out I'd dispelled his every doubt,
And secured the contract for our prompt unification.

Chorus:

The wedding day arrived. The father, in his pride,
Had spent a fortune on the preparation.
But when his son was sought, of his presence found we nought:
The lovers had effected an evasion.
Foiled of my amorous whim, I gathered news of him.
As strolling hand-bell ringers they are posing.
But disguised by these old ropes I mean to blast their hopes,
And catch my promised husband dozing.

Chorus:

A PLAGUE on all pretty maids. Time was when I was as fair as any of them. Once I was the most sought after maid in the parish, but none of my suitors was worthy of one so fair. But, just when I had made my choice and was awaiting the proposal, my father, then the tower captain and a person of considerable rank, authority (and means), happened to miscall a peal of Cambridge Royal after four hours and was demoted from captain to mat scrubber with corresponding reduction of income. For some incomprehensible reason my suitors deserted me in a body. I can only surmise that the shock of my father's fall caused a radical and disturbing change in my previous Venusian beauty. But ever since that day I have been seeking to regain my position in ringing society by marrying into a suitable family, and now that I have the marriage contract for my union with the son of a tower captain signed and sealed, no one shall thwart me of my desire.

I have reason to believe that the pair of them, Jack and his young lady, are even now in this village. I will to the local tavern to see if aught is known of them. EXIT.

Enter Jack and Stella left, carrying six hand-bells. Stella is leaning on Jack.

S.: Let's rest for a moment, Jack. I feel a little tired. (She sits down, exhausted.)

J. Very well. Stella, I suppose it is inevitable that one should feel tired after tramping 30 miles in a morning, but I dare not rest long while Anastasia is following us. I had hopes of tiring her out, but women of her calibre seem to have the wind of a horse—and the face. But I believe we have at last managed to evade her.

S.: Oh! Jack, I do hope so.
(Jack sits down beside her.)

J.: None shall part us, Stella. Let us see the vicar at once, and by noon, if all goes well, we shall be man and wife.

(They embrace.)

S.: (Suddenly jumping up.) Jack! I have just remembered. We have no money to pay the marriage fees.

J.: Good heavens. You're right. We must make some at once. But there seems to be only this old man that we could ring for, and he is sleeping so soundly it would be a shame to awaken him.

(Adam yawns, stretches, and rises. He sees J. and S., apparently only then aware of their presence.)

A.: Why, good morning. And who may you be, pray?

J.: This is Stella Queens, and I am Jack Tittums.

A.: Adam Brokenstay at your service. But did I not hear you say that you are hand-bell ringers?

J.: You did not, sir. But we are.

A.: Then I would hear you ring. Come, I will join you.
(They ring some rounds, very badly.)
Well done, well done. Here (He gives Jack a purse), buy the young lady a wedding ring.
(Jack looks at him in surprise.)

J.: Then you were not asleep after all. (A. winks.)

S.: We can never thank you enough.

A.: Come, we will ring some more.
(They recommence. Despard storms out of his house.)

D.: Whatever is this jangling din, this terrifying tintinnabulation, this . . . (sees Stella.) Oho! What have we here?

J.: We are two strolling hand-bell ringers, sir. I, Jack Tittums, and this, Stella Queens.

D, (looking hard at Stella): Delighted, I'm sure.

J.: And pray whom have we the honour of addressing?

D.: You don't know? Then listen, and I will tell you.

2. Tune: 'A More Humane Mikado.'

A more beloved tower captain never did exist.
To nobody second, I'm certainly reckoned a true campanologist.
(Aside) (I rule this tower and ringers cower beneath my biting tongue.
At any error they shrink in terror and wish they'd never rung.)
I any means employ, none can my intent cloy,
To make this tower a heavenly bower
and ringing here a joy.
A close community in perfect amity,
I and my band go hand in hand (unless they me annoy).
(The man who makes seconds a time too often
While ringing a touch of Kent,
The troublesome fellow will turn green and yellow
When I my anger vent.)
In concord we ring and will do anything
Each other to aid, and quite rightly;
If one loses his place I don't swear in his face
But merely correct him politely.
(The fool who runs in when he should have made 3rds,
Or behind for a time should have waited,
Dare not show his face again in the place
Until my fierce temper's abated.
And if in Bob Doubles he misses a dodge
Or something else quite as fantastical,
The rage I develop that will him envelop
Is positively demonastical.)
I any means employ, none can my intent cloy,
To make this tower a heavenly bower
and ringing here a joy.
A close community in perfect amity,
I and my band go hand in hand;
Our bond none may destroy.

J.: Why, sir, it is for such a happy and amicable community that we are searching. Would it be possible for us to join your band?

D.: But, of course. And until you find other accommodation pray use this, my humble dwelling, as your home.

J.: You are generosity itself.

D.: Think nothing of it. Now I'm sure you will not say no to a little refreshment. Adam, take these young people down to the 'Bob and Single' and buy them some dinner.
(He gives Adam some money.)

A. (gruffly): Aye. (Aside to D.) I think I see your evil intentions, Despard. Take thought ere ye do what you may regret.

D.: Keep thy advice for thyself, old man. Now begone.
(Exeunt Adam, Jack and Stella.)

D.: Meddlesome old bob-caller! But this Stella be as fair a maid as ever I set eye upon. And how lucky to have caught the eye of one of my wealth and position. Now that my ambition to become tower captain has been fulfilled, a wife is all I need to complete my conquests. When I was first introduced to a bell-rope, I swore I should reach the rank of tower captain whether worthy of the position or not, for only in such a position could I rule the ringing community and at the same time not have to do too much ringing myself. (I hate exerting myself.) I decided that, on the death of my foster-father, then captain, all I needed to do was to convince the other ringers that I was exceptionally well versed in the craft and I would be elected. So it turned out. When I quoted long passages of Troyte and Snowdon, and spoke in airy terms of Yorkshire, Superlative and London, I was elected at once. As they never ring anything but Plain Bob and Grandsire, I was on perfectly safe ground.

3. Tune: 'If You're Anxious for to Shine.'

When you're anxious to advance you must lead them all a dance
With your ringing knowledge rare.
You must know your Jasper Snowdon and be sure of all Troyte's lowdown,
Strip the Central Council bare.
You must know your early history and have a mental list of the
Forefathers of our intellectual craft;
Be able to review all methods old and new
However weird or daft.
And everyone you meet will gape as you repeat
How so-and-so did this and that at such and such a time.
Astonishing perhaps, but of irrelevance sublime.

And then if you are pally with Picasso,
Klee and Dali
It will prove of priceless worth,
For it's easy then to sham a method diagram
Of surrealistic birth.
If you're able to devise a cubist York
Surprise
Everybody will be eloquent in praise.
And nothing could be finer than a Double
Court Bob Minor
In a purely abstract phase.
And everyone will stare at those lines of beauty rare;
And even though it's bound to be away
beyond them far,
Your skill they'll never doubt and so loud
your praises shout
That your progress none can mar.

But soft. Here comes Stella alone. Now is my opportunity.
(Enter Stella.)
Stella—may I call you thus?

S.: Why, of course, sir.

D.: Stella, know that ever since I first set eyes upon you, I have been consumed by a burning passion. I love you, Stella, with a fervent, undying love. You shall have everything you desire. Your every wish shall be my command; and you will receive all the honours accorded to the wife of the highest official in the tower. Now, what sayest thou?

S.: Sir, please do not speak to me of love. Why, I have only known you a few minutes and—my heart is already given.

D.: Given? To whom?

S.: To dear Jack, my companion.

D.: Then you actually refuse me?

S.: It is for the good of both of us, sir.

4. Tune: 'Kind Sir, You Cannot Have the Heart'

Kind sir, you cannot have a mind our lives to bind;
I am a poor and lowly maid and unworthy.
You t'would degrade and probably bring misery
To many other loving hearts more suited for thee.
There must be many maids in Clattering
love you,
So why not seek a wife from those well-favoured ladies.
Before your own career you stem, do look at them
And pause ere you make up your mind and ere too late 'tis.
Ah me! 'Tis true though high and low
be wed,
That gulf no bridge can span until sweet life is fled.

(Exit Stella.)

D.: She spurns my love. This is an insult I cannot brook. But she will be my wife, that I swear. And as for her companion . . .
(Enter Anastasia, unseen.)
I'll break his bones, I'll rend him limb from limb. . . .

An.: What truly admirable passion. At last I have found a man worthy of my love.

D.: I'll hang him from the top of the tower and leave him till the crows peck out his eyes. . . .

An.: O rapture! O bliss!

D.: Worst torture of all: He shall be made to sit through a peal of Minor rung by our own band.
(He laughs devilishly at the thought.)

An.: O bliss! O rapture!
(She falls noisily in a fit of ecstasy.)

D. (noticing her for the first time): Why, whoever's this?
(He walks over to her.)

An. (faintly): Buy a bell-rope, sir.

D.: Bell-ropes? We've no need of thy wares here, old hag. Come. (Helps her up with considerable difficulty.) Take thy moulting sallies elsewhere. You're littering the street.
(She stares adoringly into his eyes for a moment and then exits slowly as if in a daze.)

D.: How very strange. But now I must retire for forty winks while my brain devises some devilish scheme to effect my desires. (Exits into his house.)
(Enter the two Tower Snatchers, wearing shorts, ankle socks and Y.H.A. badges, and with billies dangling from their belts to indicate their calling, with their coat collars turned up to indicate their criminal tendencies. They approach the centre of the stage furtively and sing:)

5. Tune: 'Twenty Love-sick Maidens We.'

(Both) Ruthless tower snatchers we,
Criminals against our will:
Twenty years hence we shall be
Ruthless tower snatchers still.
Ruthless tower snatchers we;
Damned forever now we be.
Ruthless tower snatchers we,
And of crime we drink our fill.
Twenty years hence we shall be
Ruthless tower snatchers still.

(1st T.S.) Babes, we were kidnapped and transported then.

(Both) Ah miserie.

(1st T.S.) By tower snatchers unto their dark den.

(Both) Ah miserie.

(2nd T.S.) Thus we, by stroke of fate, in that company were dropt;
We had no option that life to adopt.

(Both) Ah miserie.
Would that innocent were we,
But irredeemable we be.
Beyond hope now we are,
We have sunk down far too far.
Ah miserie.
Ruthless tower snatchers we,
Criminals against our will.
Twenty years hence we shall be
Ruthless tower snatchers still.
Ah miserie.

(1st T.S.) (In alarm.) Someone comes.
They hurry to the seat before the tower and hide behind it, raising their heads slowly over the back to observe. Despard enters, groaning and holding his head.)

6. Tune: 'Love unrequited robs me of my rest.'

Terrible nightmares numb my aching brain;
Bells, ever bells, my thoughts confused encumber;
Bells, and more bells; bells and more bells again,
Dozens, scores, hundreds, bells without number.

You're lying awake with a dismal headache, indigestion your torments enhancing.
You open your eyes and note with surprise a bell on the counterpane dancing.
It's followed by more until there's a score of them dancing Quadrilles on the sheeting.
With a jangling din they polka and spin; it sounds just like a Quarterly Meeting.
You think you're in bed but you find that instead you are ringing a quarter of Norwich
On bells odd-struck and tinny, which make such a din even you'd prefer eating cold porridge.
There's a pain in your head and your bell is like lead while the serpentine rope tries to strangle you.
You thrust it away but try as you may the slippery coils still entangle you.
A hideous face suspended in space, devil-featured, with horns like a viking.
Thrills you with fear as it screams in your ear that spine-chilling phrase: 'Watch your striking.'
You're beginning to reel when the rope slips the wheel and your wild clutching hands fail to check it;
The bell crashes back, hits the stay with a crack that is more than sufficient to wreck it.
While you're still in a daze all the sliders and stays shower down like a hail-storm around you,
While a rainbow-hued sally (who's been to the ballet) does dances that really astound you.
But now your spine tingles as fierce bobs and singles swarm into the belfry before you,
While headstocks and bearings with shriekings and glarings show plainly how much they abhor you.
Now the clappers appear, and they yell in your ear as their leader with malice arranges
With all of his might to madden you quite with some devilish forms of call-changes.
Amid lightning and thunder, the clappers fall under the galloping feet of the handbells
Who, with metal-parts gleaming, run off, brightly beaming, to a Sunday School Treat in St. Anne's Wells.

You're on your last legs, and your throbbing brain begs for just one minute's rest while the fear in your breast makes you tremble and sweat for what's to come yet as those torturing bells tolling, tolling their knells lead you plainly to see what the ending will be, for your sanity's going and rapidly flowing away is your strength and you know that at length you will have to awake or expire.
But the dream's at an end; your frayed nerves can mend;
The nightmare's been long, and so has my song, and thank goodness I now can retire.

But away with these fears and mournful thoughts. I must think of some way to secure Stella's hand. If only I could enlist the aid of some good honest criminals.

(T.S.s look at each other, and then emerge from their place of concealment.)

1st T.S.: Er . . . .

D.: (turning and noticing them) Well?

1st T.S.: We happened, purely by accident, to overhear your latter remark. You see before you two of the honestest criminals in the underworld. Can we be of any assistance to you?

D.: What a providential occurrence. Now this is the dirty deed I desire done. . . .
(They go into a huddle from which evil laughs and anticipative hand-rubbings emerge at intervals.) . . . Here are 20 crowns. Another 50 await you when all is accomplished.

2nd T.S.: The deed is good as done.

6.5 Tune: 'Hereupon we both agree.'

(T.S.s) Hereupon we are agreed
For a small consideration
To execute the deed
Without more investigation.
(1st T.S.) The maiden we shall find,
(2nd T.S.) Her companion there with her;
(1st) The latter we shall bind.
(2nd) And bring the maid hither.
(Both) Then returning,
(D.) I'll be yearning.
(T.S.s) With our capture.
(D.) Oh rapture!
(All) What a deed of villainy;
Worst we've e'er done, and we've done many.
Deed tremendous, Heav'n defend us,
What a deed of villainy.

(D. re-enters house, and T.S.s hide behind seat.)

(Enter Stella and Jack.)

J.: All is arranged. In half an hour, Stella, you will be my very own little wife.

S.: And you, Jack, will be my own tall, strong and handsome husband.
(They have a fervent embrace.)

7. Tune: 'What ought we to do?'

(1st T.S.) See them hug and pet. What a pretty sight.
We cannot bash him yet. 'Twould not be polite.
(2nd T.S.) Let us wait until they've done their bit of singing, and meantime we will discuss the local ringing.
(Both) Yes, yes, discuss the local ringing.
(1st T.S.) Are you aware dear brother mine
How very singularly fine
These bells of Clattering must sound
To anyone that's underground?
(2nd T.S.) Quite so, and with me you'll agree
How sweet their sound must also be
To all those people, overjoyed,
Who of their hearing are devoid.
(Both) Upon this point we both agree.
How joyful deaf and dead must be
That while in torment dire are we,
They of the ghastly din are free.
Yes on this point, etc.
(S.) Did ever learner under such a knowing tutor
Find in him an ardent, tender, loving suitor?
Was ever ringer, dodging being her usual duty,
Called to course with one of such exceeding beauty?
(J.) Ah yes, ah yes, I have exceeding beauty.
(T.S.s are about to leap out, but J. and S. embrace again. T.S.s repeat song.)
(1st T.S.) Are you aware, etc.
(J.) Did ever ringer in the hunt for love's devotion
Of such superlative loveliness e'er have a notion?
(T.S.s) Are you aware, etc.
(S.) Was ever ringer, dodging being her usual duty,
Called to course with one of such exceeding beauty,
Ah yes, ah yes, ah yes.
(J.) Did ever ringer in the hunt for love's devotion.
Of such superlative loveliness e'er have a notion?
Ah yes, ah yes, ah yes.

(T.S.s now leap on Jack. Stella screams and runs off, followed by 1st T.S. 2nd T.S. knocks Jack unconscious with his cosh (a sally), D. emerges from his house and helps him carry Jack inside. Enter Adam.)

A.: Very strange. I was sure I heard a great commotion. What could it have been?
(He looks round, and then draws into the shadow of the tower as D. and 2nd T.S. reappear.)

D.: (To T.S.) Quickly, follow them.
(T.S. exits.)
Now that Jack is safely under lock and key, I can proceed with my plans. I shall inform Stella that unless she consents to marry me, Jack will die in awful agony. She will have to consent.
(Enter T.S.s with Stella, struggling.)

S.: Unhand me, you villains.
(She tears herself free and runs to Despard.)
Sir, save me from these uncouth persons and help me to find and rescue poor Jack, whom they have cruelly and maliciously assaulted.

D.: There, there. (To T.S.s). Here is your fee. Now go, but do not leave the village. I may need you again.
(Exit T.S.s.)
Stella, once I asked you to marry me, but you refused.

S.: I did.

D.: I make you that offer again. Will you, of your own free will, accept me as your husband?

S.: Sir, you know that I cannot. But please help me to find and rescue poor Jack.

D.: 'Poor Jack' is in my power. In the tower behind you are, as you know, six bells. The tenor is at this moment up, and a noose in the end of the rope encircles Jack's neck. At a word from me the bell will be pulled off, and . . .

S.: (horrified) You monster.

D.: That is as may be. But as it only requires your assent to our union to bring about his immediate release, I am confident that he has many years of happy ringing ahead of him.

S.: You leave me no choice.
(Exeunt D. and S.)

(Enter Jack from Despard's house.)

J.: The villain. So he was misleading us all the time. And now he hires two assassins to liquidate me and bear Stella away. But I'll catch him yet. It takes more than a broken skull and strangled neck to incapacitate Jack Tittums.

A.: (Emerging from concealment) Young sir.

J.: Yes?

8. Tune: 'Kind Captain, I've Important Information.'

(A.) Young Sir, I've some important information:
Sing hey, the Tower Tyrant and the Belle.
About a certain forthcoming relation;
Sing hey, the Tower Tyrant and the Belle.
(D.) Good fellow, if my Stella it's concerning,
Sing hey, the Tower Tyrant and the Belle;
For any information I am yearning.
Sing hey, the Tower Tyrant and the Belle.
(A.) Young sir, that tyrant Despard is a-heading,
Ring hey, the merry, merry wedding bell.
Within the hour your Stella to be wedding.
Ring hey, the merry, merry wedding bell.
(J.) Good fellow, you have given timely warning,
Ring hey, the merry, merry wedding bell.
By supper time your captain you'll be mourning.
Ring hey, the doleful, doleful funeral bell.

(During the last chorus, Despard enters with the T.S.s and directs them to the seat, behind which they conceal themselves unobserved. He exits, and returns at the end of the song with Stella. When she catches sight of Jack, she runs to him and they embrace.)

S.: Oh Jack; Are you all right?

J.: Perfectly, apart from a fractured skull and lacerated larynx.

D.: Well, hug and kiss as much as you like. But remember, Stella, I have your promise and in a few minutes you will wed me.

J.: Stella. How could you?

S.: I had no choice, Jack. He told me that unless I assented you would be hung from the tenor bell.

J.: The scoundrel! He merely locked me in the bathroom, from which I managed to escape without assistance.

S.: But Jack, what are we to do? I have given my word, and must therefore marry him.

J.: There seems to be but one solution. Despard alive you must marry. But Despard dead. . . .
(He makes as if to attack D., but Adam intervenes.)

A.: Wait a moment, Jack. That will not help. If a dead Despard cannot marry Stella, neither can a Jack convicted of murder. No, there is only one solution. I am an old man and, although I do not wish to die, if in that way I can bring happiness to two young wives, it will be worth the sacrifice.

S.: Whatever do you mean?

A.: Listen, and you will find out.
(Anastasia has now entered and is also listening with interest.)

9. Tune: 'When Frederic was a Little Lad.'

Long years ago, twenty maybe, when I was fairly handsome,
My three small sons were kidnapped and held to a costly ransome.
I was an impecunious man (rope-splicing then my trade was),
And all my hard-earned savings but one third it I'm afraid was.
And so I managed to reclaim the eldest of my brood, sir,
The others ne'er saw again, though I did all I could, sir.

Now only child, the one redeemed received all my affection,
Spoilt he became, and soon 'twas clear to anyone's inspection
That his mad jokes were now beyond the realms of infant pranking,
And all were soon aware how ineffectual was spanking.
At last they caught him in the act of melting down the treble.
The penalty of death was duly passed upon the rebel.

One night I managed to release him from his prison cheerless.
For miles we galloped; through it all my infant son was fearless.
I left him on the doorstep of the captain in this parish,
Who took him in and on him all his loving care did lavish.
Return I could not as there was a price upon my head, sir;
Old Adam I became, and let my friends think I was dead, sir.

My true identity I ne'er revealed to my son though,
For even if he was exposed, yet I would still be safe so.
What love of mine for my own son at this sad time remained
Was lost when the exalted rank of Captain he attained.
For this oppressive despot, this tyrant is my son, sir.
And now you may do what you will. My story now is done, sir.

So you see that Despard is a wanted man, and I, as accessory, must suffer the same fate.

D.: (Who, as Adam's song proceeded, was more and more affected until he finally collapsed into Anastasia's arms) To think that for all these years my own father has been living in the same village but would not own me because of my despotic nature. What a monster I must be.

ALL: You are.

D.: I deserve whatever is coming to me. Here (he hands Stella to Jack), take her. She's yours.

A.: All that remains is for you, Jack, to hand us over to the appropriate authorities that the sentence passed upon us so many years ago may at last be executed.

D.: Pray don't use that word.

J.: But wait a moment. I see no need why your true identities need ever be made public. Despard, you have fully reformed, have you not?

D.: I have.

J.: And would you promise to be a good, kind, upright and honest Tower Captain in the future?

D.: Oh I do, I do.

J.: Well then. Stella and I may be trusted to keep your secret, and I'm sure that were you, Despard, to offer your hand in marriage to Anastasia, she would have no cause to betray you.

D.: Perhaps it would be better to give ourselves up.

A: Nonsense. (Grabs him firmly.)

J.: Then your secret is still safe.
(Stella turns suddenly and catches sight of the T.S.s peering over the seat. She screams.)

S.: Oh Jack, Jack. There are those awful men. (Jack leaps to the seat and hauls them out.)

J.: So you are still waiting to knock out my brains.

1st T.S.: (pointing at D.) He asked us to be around in case we were needed.

A.: One moment, Jack. Surely I have seen these men before. Why, of course. They look just like. . . . But no, they couldn't be. And yet. . . . Tell me, how did you come to take up such a dastardly profession?

1st T.S.: We were kidnapped in infancy.

2nd: And held to ransome.

1st: And the ransome wasn't paid.

2nd: So we had no option

1st: That life to adopt.

Both: Ah miserie.

A.: Then you are. Clarence, Claude. Don't you recognise me? (They look at him hard.)

Both: Father.
(They embrace him.)

10. Tune: 'Never Mind the Why and Wherefore.'

(T.S.s) We were lost, now we're discovered;
Ostracized, but now recovered;
From our deeds criminalistic we reformed now return.
And from felonology to campanology we turn.
Ring the merry bells in Clattering
Our reform to celebrate;
No more will we go a-battering,
Our past we'll eradicate.

(1st) So away with Cosh and D.A.

(2nd) Get ye gone Edwardian drainpipes.

(1st) Throw away your cut-throat razor,

(2nd) We are now respectable types.

(Both) Ring the merry bells, etc.

(D. & AN.) I was once a tyrant hated,
To oppressive power fated,
But Papa's unselfish sacrifice complete reform has caused.
(Though it probably would not have if for further thought I'd/he'd paused.)
Now a dreadful choice awaits me/him.
Aged wife or hangman's rope.
Either way it matters little,
Gone is all remaining hope.

(AN.) Gallows grim, or chair electric,

(D.) Or a waistline supermetric.

(AN) Guillotine or block and chopper,

(D) Or a wig of fading copper.

(Both) I/He might choose the rope provided
If the choice was mine/his alone;
But another has decided.
So she's/I'm now my/his very own.

(J. & S.) Once we feared that we'd be parted
By this person brutal-hearted,
But his ways he's changed and left us in our former happy state.
We'll be conjugally mated at the very earliest date.
Set the wedding bells vibrating,
Set the ringers to their job.
The event we're celebrating
With a peal of Oxford Bob.

(S.) We would ring a peal of Major
If it were within our power.

(J.) 'Twould be quite a feat I wager;
For it's but a 6 bell tower.

(ALL) Hear the tintinnabulation
Bring an end to all our troubles.
We'll begin the celebration
With a touch of Grandsire Doubles.
Ring with joy the air above
For the joy of fervent love.
Ring with joy the air above
For the joy of fervent love.

FINIS.

NORTH STAFFS ASSOCIATION

Resignation of Mr. W. Carnwell

The resignation was received with regret at the annual meeting of the North Staffordshire Association, on December 4th, at Stoke, of Mr. W. Carnwell from the post of hon. secretary, a position he had held for many years.

The president (Archdeacon P. Harthill) was in the chair, the meeting following tea, which was attended by 61 members. In welcoming the Association to Stoke the president said it was the 20th time the Association had visited Stoke.

In his report on the year's activities the secretary said that 11 meetings had been held during the year with an average attendance of 34. Ten new resident and two non-resident members had been elected. Sixteen peals had been rung (four 'in hand'), Conductors had been F. W. Grocott 8, F. E. Wilshaw 3, W. Carnwell, G. A. Hall, C. A. Page, D. R. Whalley and J. Worth one each.

The Association had lost by death five members, viz: A. Rowley (Stone), W. Fraddley (Bucknall), W. A. Fitchford (Wolstanton), G. Wainwright (Marchington) and H. Carnwell (Kingsley).

The accounts showed a balance in hand of £58 18s. 1d. The report and accounts were adopted.

The following officers were elected:—Chairman and Central Council representative, Mr. R. S. Anderson; vice-chairman, Mr. A. W. Hall; secretary, Mr. E. H. Edge; Ringing Masters: eight bells, Mr. W. P. Deane; six bells, Mr. W. Hazledene. auditor, Mr. C. H. Page; peal recorder, Mr. A. Gaunt; 'Ringing World' correspondent, Mr. D. R. Whalley.

The chairman (Mr. R. S. Anderson), in reviewing the past year, again stressed the need of all ringers becoming subscribers to 'The Ringing World.' If this was achieved those responsible for its issue would have no need for further financial worry. He was very sorry that Mr. W. Carnwell found it impossible to carry on with the secretarial work of the Association. He was quite sure that those present would wish him to say 'Thank you, for serving the Association during the years.' He also thanked Mr. W. Edwards (Kingsley), Mr. A. W. Hall (Cheadle R.C.) and Mr. A. Moore for their services as assistant secretary, auditor and Ringing Master (eight bells).

A fine tribute was paid by Mr. D. R. Whalley, on behalf of the Association, to the services given by two founder members who had died during the year—Mr. Henry Carnwell and Mr. W. A. Fitchford. Mr. Carnwell had been a ringer for 65 years, and leader at Kingsley for 50 years, having rung 44 peals (40 Minor and four Major). Mr. W. A. Fitchford had been a ringer for 67 years and had nearly completed 50 years' service as conductor at Wolstanton. He had rung 91 peals, mostly Triples, and had conducted 67. The company stood in silence in memory of them.

Ringing continued until 8.30 p.m. in various methods from rounds to Surprise.. D. R. W.

JOINT MEETING AT SHOREDITCH AND BISHOPSGATE

The Society of Royal Cumberland Youths and the Middlesex County Association held a successful joint meeting at St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, and St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate, on December 4th.

A truly magnificent tea was provided at St. Botolph's Church Hall by Mrs. Davis and her helpers. On behalf of the Cumberlands Mr. P. N. Bond welcomed the Middlesex County Association, and Mr. W. H. Coles suitably replied Thanks were accorded to Mrs. Davis and the incumbents.

So cordial was the joint meeting that it is hoped to make it an annual fixture.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'DELIGHT METHODS'

Dear Sir,—The writers of recent correspondence on this subject may be interested to learn that Kirkstall Delight (Cambridge 'up' and Morning Star 'in') will extend to 8, 10 and 12 bells. This is one of the most pleasant Minor methods in the Central Council Collection, and on higher numbers it should sound similar to Yorkshire.

Whilst methods in the 'Daffodil' group (Peveril, Leasowe, Melandra, etc.) apparently do not extend satisfactorily, the following contains the characteristic work of this group and is almost a Double method:—

12  12436587
38  12345678
---------
 X  21354768
34  12537486

Perhaps this could be named Daffodil Delight, thus adding a little variety to the present system of nomenclature.—Yours sincerely,

STEDMAN—HIGHEST PERCENTAGE OF CONCENTRATION

Dear Sir,—Mr. G. W. Pipe's reference to the monotony of Stedman fails to impress me. His reason is that all methods which contain Plain Bob lead ends are monotonous to the experienced ringer. Stedman has to be rung with the highest percentage of concentration because the treble is not leading at the lead end and the previous fixed observations are not available. I have rung peals in various Surprise methods, but Stedman is very elusive and I find that as I am unable to follow the composition, there is tremendous fun and entertainment in watching the working of the other bells.

He refers to mistakes being hard to rectify, but surely this only makes a peal of Stedman more valuable. I am unable to convince myself that people enter a peal band with the intention of relying on the conductor to correct mistakes.

A few years ago I was told that if I wanted a peal of Stedman Triples I should have to get Mr. So-and-so to conduct it. I promptly replied if that was the case then I did not want one.

The type of advancement Mr. Pipe refers to will be truly a credit to those who ring one with irregular lead ends, which the Central Council do not allow. The Rev. K. W. H. Felstead has very ably clarified the reason why we don't ring them.

We have this year attempted quarter peals in various methods with our local band. The last one, on December 1st, was Superlative for Confirmation, and what promised to be a perfect 1,280 was lost in the last five leads, which proves again concentration is the keynote of success.—Yours truly,

Bures, Suffolk. LESLIE D. MILLS.

ALL THE WORK OF SEVEN SURPRISE MAJOR METHODS

Dear Sir,—May I offer my congratulations to Mr. R. F. B. Speed and the band at Willesden on ringing a peal with all the work of seven Surprise Major methods.

In view of the interesting correspondence on this subject, perhaps I may say a little about the composition, which was published in 'The Ringing World' two or three years ago. The intention was, if possible, to produce a regular three-part, but in this I was not successful, although I do not doubt it is possible; however, I have not had time since to go much further into the matter.

As all the methods are of the same group, the problems which arise are entirely different from those which confronted Messrs. Cashmore and Pitman, and others such as Messrs. J. W. Parker and E. C. S. Turner, in their work on peals including the four standard methods. In some respects the task is much easier; for instance, one can take a simple basic composition, knowing that the absence of reversed course heads and of 2–3 from sixths place simplifies proof considerably. On the other hand there is much less room for manœuvring, as all the work of 2–3–7–8 in each of the seven methods would, in a completely regular peal, have to be contained in eight courses, one of which is shortened. I hope someone may feel encouraged to tackle this.—Yours faithfully,

E, A. BARNETT.

LEGAL CASES

Dear Sir,—I was interested to read the letter from my friend, Mr. E. L. Humphriss, in which he referred to a case stated for bell ringing by Lord Justice Goddard.

When writing the Legal Survey, which was published a little while ago, I made a fairly extensive search for any cases decided by the Courts with reference to the subject of bell ringing. Unfortunately I did not at that time find any reference to the case referred to, and since reading the letter I have made further search on the scanty information available, but have been unable to trace it in the Law Reports.

I am not in possession of any 'Ringing Worlds' for the relative period and have not been able to make a search there. I should, however, be grateful if any reader can throw any further light on the subject, either by giving more details of the case, e.g., the names of the parties and the Law Report in which it was published, or alternatively, by reference to the issue of 'The Ringing World' in which the case was reported.

I was also recently informed that another similar case was decided in a County Court in one of the southern counties. This case also does not appear to have been published in the Legal Press and I would appreciate any further information relating thereto. If any other information is forthcoming I shall be only too pleased to pursue the matter further and, if necessary, to prepare a further article on the facts as they then appear.—Yours faithfully,

A. P.

INDISPENSABLE

More and more ringers are finding the Ringer's Notebook and Diary an indispensable companion. The Diary for 1955 has been improved upon its predecessors in the light of the experience gained from past publications. The section dealing with touches and quarter peals is of great value to conductors, young and old.

OBITUARY

MR. R. ALSOP

Christ Church, Ebbw Vale, has sustained a distinct loss by the death of their first Ringing Master, Mr. R. Alsop, who died in hospital on November 31st after a short illness.

When the bells were installed in September, 1937, as a thanksgiving for the re-opening of the works, Mr. Alsop took on the leadership. He collected around him a band of ringers, several of whom are still alive. His genial character will be greatly missed in the circle of the tower.

Always an ardent service ringer and equally interested in all branches of ringing at meetings in the district and elsewhere—he really loved the bells.

The interment took place at Ebbw Vale on Thursday, December 2nd, after a service in Christ Church.

In the evening the bells were rung half-muffled as a tribute to his memory. To his widow and children his fellow ringers extend their heartfelt sympathy. E. S.

TWO WELSH ASSOCIATIONS HOLD JOINT MEETING

A successful joint meeting of the Llandaff Branch and the Southern District of the Swansea and Brecon Guild was held at Cowbridge on December 4th. The bells were made good use of very early in the afternoon, and ringing was in the very capable charge of Mr. Fred Bailey, Branch Master of the Llandaff Branch, well known for his excellent care of young ringers.

The service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. E. O. T. Lewis, R.D.) assisted by the curate (the Rev. R. L. Cole). An interesting address by the Vicar reminded ringers of their great responsibilities to the church.

A very appealing array of refreshments prepared by Cowbridge ringers' wives and friends was thoroughly enjoyed by all. For this, the Branch Master gave a hearty vote of thanks to those concerned in arranging such a welcome meal.

With the Vicar in the chair, the Swansea and Brecon Guild held their business meeting first. Prior to the Llandaff Branch meeting members were asked to stand in silence in respect of two late members—Mr. D. Rees-James, of Bridgend, and Mr. Alsop, of Ebbw Vale.

Mr. Fred Bailey proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for his sincere welcome to the two Associations and for taking charge of both business meetings. In this he was supported by Mr. T. M. Roderick on behalf of the Swansea and Brecon Guild. R. E. C.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Some 30 ringers attended the annual meeting of the Taunton Deanery Branch at St. James', Taunton, on December 4th. The Branch chairman (the Rev. E. Hurst) conducted the service and tea was served in the Church Room.

At the ensuing business meeting the following officers were elected:—Chairman, the Rev. E. Hirst; vice-chairman, Mr. A. Hayward; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. H. Reed; Ringing Master, Mr. W. Gigg. The A.G.M. for 1955 will be held at Wellington, with quarterly meetings at Trull, Wilton and Staplegrove.

In his annual report the Branch secretary reported that membership remained static at 106 and that during the year six peals had been rung in the Deanery. Ringing during the meeting included Double Norwich Court Bob Major and Cambridge Surprise Major.

THE LOUGHBOROUGH ATTEMPT

Seen Through American Eyes

The Loughborough record attempt, according to the Associated Press of America:—

'. . . . After 9 hours the sniffling Jesson was in trouble. But he refused to stop. All eyes were on Jesson, clinging grimly to his rope and appearing barely conscious as the clock showed that 9 hours 48 minutes had passed.

'Then it happened. Critchley, the caller—a man known to the ringing art as a perfectionist—failed to "call a bob." This snarled the ringing order and the umpire called a halt.'

BUNTER VOLUNTEERS

Dear Edditer.—I was thrilled to reed of the menyoo which the ringers had last week in the peel attempt. If Mr. Critchley writes to me, I will gladly aksept a posishun in the next long peel.

Agchully, I havvnt dun much ringing yet, but Tom Merry, who wrings the skool bell after lessuns (he misses two minnits of every lessun, the beest) will teech me if I ask him. When my postal order arrives, I will have enuff munney to pay my single fair to Lorburruh.—Yours faythfully,

WILLIAM GEORGE BUNTER.
Greyfriars Skool.

P.S.—Ask Mr. Critchley to get sum lemonade to drink during the intervals in the peel.—W. G. B.

In Defence

'The Bristol Evening Post' defends bell-ringing. Replying to the London journalist 'who worked himself into a tantrum about the Loughborough bellringers who recently tried to break the world's record of bell-ringing by "carrying on their murderous cacophony for a whole day and night,"' the writer says:—

'I cannot understand for the life of me why the inaudible practice of an art that combines music, science, accuracy and considerable athletic strength should have roused our vitriolic stentor to such flight of acid vituperation. It should be remembered that every person has points of difference—another way of saying that it takes all sorts to make a world—and the practice and interest of the campanologist is no more nor less praiseworthy than his neighbours' interest in the Test Match or football. Ah, you say, but the neighbours' interest is less noisy. Noise! Good heavens, this is the age of noise and we must learn to lump it. Can the melodious tinkling of church bells compare with the screaming roar and occasional explosions of aircraft and the bombination and bellowing of motors?'

A Suffolk Version

'X Y Z,' a popular dialect writer in the 'Suffolk Chronicle,' has these interesting observations on the record attempt at Loughborough:—

'When the long peal was rung at Deb'num a few years back, the bor Dearvud and I hung about in the churchyard to give the ringers a hand for breakin' the record. As it turned out, they brook down instead—and I'm still sure that it was the raisins that stopped 'em.

'A chap who starts ringin' at quarter-past four in the mornin', and expects to keep at it non-stop for about ten hours is likely to be a bit peckish come elevenses and dinner-time. Therefore he puts some sustenance handy in the belfry, and nibbles as he pulls. By the rules he mustn't be handed his grub by someone else.

'Well, there was another go at the record peal on Sat'day—at Loughborough. Accordin' to the reports the ringers' eats were varied. One account says they had glucose tablets, chewin' gum, ham sandwiches, and treacle tart; another tells us it was mainly raisins, grapes, chocolate and glucose.

'Now I've got nothin' against raisins, which are excellent in cakes and puddin's, but I'm pretty sure it was raisins that made the pains in the tum-tum of the tenor at Deb'num and stopped the long peal.

SILENT PEAL

This Loughborough peal was highly humanitarian. Held in the campanile of Taylors' bell-foundry, all the louvres and chinks had been bunged up, and unless the local lieges got within 30 yards of the tower they wouldn't have known the ringers were at it.

'Just a bit more science, bor, and someone'll invent a silent bell. That'd be much appreciated by such as the Ipswich theatre on practice nights at the Tower! Anyhow, when one of the Loughborough ringers turned up queer the windows were opened to let in some air, and in the general hubbub somethin' went wrong with the call.

'That's happened at solo whist, nap, and similar, and the result's always the same. The ringers came down, the record stands, and I look forward to another day out with bor Dearvud when the next attempt on the record is made here in Suffolk.

'But no raisins, please. I also have doubts about treacle tart, which lays heavy on the chest. Can't someone compound vitamins and so on in pills that the ringers can park in their weskit pockets?'

THE LADIES' GUILD

West Midland District

Members of the Ladies' Guild, together with the usual gentleman supporters, enjoyed the winter meeting, which was held at St. Barnabas', Erdington, on December 4th.

Canon W. S. Power (the Vicar) conducted the service, which was held in the Lady Chapel, and tea was served in the Church Hall.

New members elected at the meeting were three from Walsall, one from Lichfield and one from Little Aston. Methods rung were Grandsire, Stedman, Plain Bob, Kent, Cambridge and learners' rounds.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

The annual nomination meeting of the Farnham District was held at St. Michael's Church, Aldershot, on December 11th. Whether it was due to the cold weather or to the changing minds' of other Districts, the number catered for did not appear. Nevertheless there was a good attendance.

The ringing started at 2.30 p.m. under the leadership of the joint Ringing Masters, Mr. T. Page and Mr. E. J. Wells.

At 4.15 p.m. representatives' of the towers in the District met in the Church Room to report on their year's work. On the whole this was found to be quite satisfactory, most towers being able to boast of new recruits and Sunday ringers. This 'captains'' meeting was followed by an excellent tea, and after Mr. C. W. Denyer had proposed a vote of thanks to the tea organisers the whole gathering went back to the church for the ringers' service conducted by the Rev. A. L. E. Hoskyns-Abrahall.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

'The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.

No. 2282 Vol. L. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1954 Registered at the G.P.O. for transmission as a newspaper 4d.

OUR JOURNAL

By The Editor

WHEN the Central Council met at Chester in 1951, the old committee of 'The Ringing World,' who had skilfully shepherded the journal from private ownership into the hands of the Central Council and watched over its affairs for nine years, resigned. They then saw no alternative but a price increase. A new committee was appointed; they overhauled completely the machinery of production; they exercised the most stringent economies in which they had the full co-operation of the Editor in an endeavour to keep 'The Ringing World' as a fourpenny production. For three years they have held the fort nobly. In that period 'The Ringing World' has increased its sales by 600 copies. The sad thing to relate is that for the last two years the accounts of 'The Ringing World' have only been balanced by donations and those ringers of peals and especially quarter peals who voluntarily made a levy to enable the publication of their performances. Their contributions in aggregate have been very substantial and amounted in 1953 to £310 or about £70 less than the revenue from Notices. This measure of generosity appears to the Editor to have been maintained during the current year, although he is not in possession of the actual facts of the position.

We feel certain that the present Editorial Committee have come with great reluctance to their decision to increase the price of 'The Ringing World' to those readers purchasing their copies through newsagents to sixpence. The reason is that the only revenue-producing side of circulation is postal subscriptions. When the drive was embarked upon last March the number of postal subscribers was 1,582; this number has been increased to 1,903. There were great hopes that by the appointment of 'Ringing World' representatives by most Guilds and Associations a very substantial number of new postal subscribers would have been forthcoming. The fact is that more than twice the number of our readers prefer to deal with the newsagents than as postal subscribers.

Why has a price of sixpence been selected for sales through the newsagent while postal subscribers pay only at the moment £1 2s. 6d. a year? The committee view the position strictly from a business point of view and say that each type of circulation must produce a reasonable profit. The cost of paper and printing each copy of 'The Ringing World' is approximately 1½d. With a copy that is sold through a newsagent there is in the first place his trade commission of one-third; then there is a 10 per cent. in most cases to meet the wholesaler's charges, and finally there are the costs of the publishers, Rolls House Publishing Company, who since the inception of this journal have acted faithfully in this capacity. Their costs have increased in both freight charges and labour. The outcome of this is that no contribution is available from this side of our circulation. With a sixpenny 'Ringing World' there will be a chance of some revenue being received, but, even so, still not equal to that derived from the present postal subscriber. After full allowance is made for addressing and postage, there is a margin of 2d. a week from each postal subscriber to meet the overhead costs of production. The committee accordingly came to the decision that for the time being this class of subscriber should enjoy the same privileges as heretofore, but this may have to be altered shortly.

The prosperity of 'The Ringing World' is linked with that of the Central Council. While the fees payable by affiliated bodies and associations have been increased, they are still short of what a national organisation of this character should reasonably expect. To accept office for the Central Council is not merely honorary; it is expensive. While most of the Guilds and Associations make a contribution towards the expenses of their representatives attending meetings, no such provision appears in the accounts of the Council for its officers. The time has come, in the Editor's opinion, when reasonable expenses should be paid. The same applies to members of 'The Ringing World' Committee. From Bath, Leicester, Stoke-on-Trent, Hampshire and other places they travel to attend to the business of the journal without even a train fare being paid. No other organisation would treat its executive officers in such a fashion. Those who criticise should ponder over these things. As to the future, according to the resources at the disposal of the committee, so will the standard of the journal be. Editorially, ringers get a very cheap journal.

Ancient Bells and Interesting Inscriptions in Surrey

By J. CLARK, HASLEMERE

THIS article has for the most part been compiled from J. C. L. Stahlschmidt's book 'Surrey Bells and London Bellfounders,' nowadays an almost unobtainable work published in 1884, a copy of which I am fortunate enough to have in my possession.

I shall begin with the pre-Reformation bells, of which there are 22 in Surrey, although most of them cannot be dated exactly. The single bell at Chaldon is unquestionably the most ancient in the county and one of the oldest in England. At present it hangs in the south porch, where it can be closely studied. The bell is shaped somewhat like a flower-pot with scarcely any curve around the waist and sound-bow; it bears the inscription in beautifully-formed Gothic letters. 'Capana : Beati : Pauli.' The suggestion has been made that it was cast in Italy, or at least by an Italian founder. Stahlschmidt says: '. . . it may be certainly reckoned as not much later than 1250, and from its archaic shape may well be much older.'

The second at Bisley would appear to be the second oldest bell in the county, having been cast sometime between the years 1307 and 1346, when it is thought to have been presented by the great Abbey of Chertsey, which owned much property in Surrey prior to the Reformation. The inscription in Gothic lettering on this bell reads, 'Fraternitas : Fecit : Me : Honore : Beate : Mareie.'

The first and second at Wotton, which from their inscriptions would appear to have come from the same foundry, belong to the years between 1350 and 1400. The single bell at Chelsham and the fifth at Limpsfield, although this latter has been recast, are possibly the work of a London founder, William Burford, between the years 1371 and 1392. The second at Merstham dedicated to St. Katharine, was cast in all probability by his son Richard between 1392 and 1418.

A WOMAN BELLFOUNDER

The third at Stoke D'Abernon bears the letters 'J. O. S.' These are the initials of Johanna Sturdy, one of the few women founders, and the wife of Richard Hille (she was afterwards the widow of a person by the name of Sturdy) who cast the third at East Horsley and the bell at Headley; these three bells date from about the middle of the 15th century.

The fifth at Chertsey bears the inscription. 'Oro Mente Pia Pro Nobis Virgo Maria,' the same as that on the first at Wotton. The bell is thought to have come from the Abbey at the time of the Dissolution, but this and the bells previously mentioned form the only bells in the county with inscriptions composed entirely of capital letters. The first bells inscribed with small letters were the bell at Seale, the first at Clandon, the original third at Chiddingfold, which is not now incorporated in the present ring, and the third and fourth at Ewhurst. These bells all bear dedications to various saints, whilst that at Chiddingfold is inscribed. 'Sancta Trinitas Ora Pro Nobis'; one wonders to whom the Holy Trinity is supposed to pray! The above bells belong to approximately the middle of the 16th century. The second at Merton and the first at Burstow, dedicated to St. Margaret and St. Thomas respectively, belong to much the same period. The remaining pre-Reformation bells are the third and sixth at Limpsfield, the fourth at Walton-on-Thames and the third at Chobham, with the second at Thursley dating from 1450.

ARMADA BELLS

From the time of the Dissolution until the year 1600, there are 13 bells all dated and inscribed. Beginning with Barnes we have the second inscribed, 'This Bell Cast By Order Of Thomas Smythe,' The second at Dunsfold has a complete inscription in small letters, this:—multie anie reconet campanai iohan,' and is dated 1583. To the year 1585 belongs the fourth at Banstead inscribed, 'Robertus mot me fecit' Robert Mot, who died in 1608, was the first owner of the famous Whitechapel foundry. Another bell cast by the same man and bearing the same inscription is the seventh at Chertsey, this is dated 1588. It seems incredible that men and materials could have been spared for the casting of bells in so critical a year as that. Dating from the same year and bearing the same inscription we have the second at Fetcham. In 1591 Robert Mot cast the third at Walton-on-the-Hill, whilst the third at Merstham, dated 1597, is also his work. The Eldridge family are very important as regards bells in Surrey, for there are very many examples of their work throughout the county.

Richard Eldridge is the earliest member of the family of which we have any record. He had foundries at Reading, Wokingham and Horsham; his earliest work in Surrey is the fifth at Capel, inscribed 'Omnia habent finem. R. E. 1593.' His almost invariable motto is like that to be seen on the fifth at Chipstead, and the second and fourth at Chobham, all inscribed, 'Oure hope is in the lorde. 1595. R.E.,' and at Chobham, '1597. R.E.' The first at Weybridge is another of Robert Mot's bells, inscribed, 'R. M. 1597.' The last 16th century bell in Surrey is the fourth at Cranleigh, inscribed, 'Prais God. 1599. A. W..' It seems that Stahlschmidt is unable to ascribe the initials to any founder in particular, but thinks it cast by 'a local founder not improbably one casting at Horsham.' However, with the mention of this bell we pass on now to the bells of the 17th century.

THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY

I think it simpler to divide the 17th century into two parts. Taking the years 1600 to 1650, first we have many examples of work by the Eldridge family. Richard Eldridge has cast the fourth at Capel, 1605: the fourth at Chipstead, 1607: the second at Witley, 1604; the first at East Molesey, 1608: also the fifth at Seale in the same year: the fifth at Chobham, where he breaks away from his usual motto, and has, 'In trouble an adversitie the lord god heare thee. 1610. R. E.' The last bell cast by him before his death in 1623 is the first at Dunsfold.

We have many examples of the work of Brian Eldridge the elder, who died in 1640, and of his son Brian, who died in 1661. It is possible in most cases to distinguish the work of the two, because the former spells his name Eldredge. The first at Alfold, inscribed 'Gloria Deo In Excelsis. 1631. B. E..' and also the third, inscribed 'Brainvs Eldredge Me Fecit. 1625,' are his work, as also are the first at Banstead, 1638; the first at Compton, 1634; the second and fourth at Cranleigh, 1638: the third at West Horsley, 1621: the third at Merton, 1621: the second at Micklcham, 1624: the third at Morden, 1637; and the first at Petersham, 1620.

His son's work may be seen at Dunsfold, the third, 1649; the first at East Horsley, 1648; and the first at West Horsley, 1645; whilst a full ring of five was cast by him for Lingfield in 1648, a surprising accomplishment in the time of the Civil War. He also cast the first at Merrow, 1650; the fifth at Merstham, 1640; and the first at the same place, 1657; the sixth at Walton-on-Thames, 1651; and the first and third at Witley, 1648. A certain William Land cast the third at Fetcham, 1613; the first at Barnes, 1616; and the fifth at Dulwich College Chapel, 1633; the second, third and fourth at Frensham, which are the remains of an old ring of five, were cast by Ellis Knight in 1627; they bear rather quaint old mottoes: the second, 'I as second will ring'; the third, 'I as third will sing'; and the fourth, 'I as tenar hvm all rovnd.' There remain only about half a dozen bells of this first half of the 17th century which I consider not important enough to be worthy of notice.

I will now pass on to the second half of the 17th century, of which period there are 72 bells, but space will only permit the mention of the most interesting. There are one or two examples of the work of Brian Eldridge the younger during this period, notably the second at Chiddingfold, 1656: the second at Compton, 1660; and the sixth at Cranleigh dated the same year; also the first at Merstham, 1657; the sixth at Walton-on-Thames, 1651; and finally the first at Woodmansterne, 1661. Following his death in 1661, the ownership of the foundry passed into the hands of his brother William, and the majority of the bells cast during this period bear his name or initials; in a few cases he gives his name in Latin, as at Barnes on the third:—'Gvilielmvs Eldridge Me Fecit. 1667.' His other work includes the first and second at Abinger, 1674: the second, third, fourth and sixth at Albury, 1695: the sixth at Banstead, 1661: the second at Great Bookham, 1675; the third, fourth and fifth at Buckland, 1681; the fourth at Burstow, 1681; the third, fourth and sixth at Charlwood, 1697, 1668 and 1662; and at least another 25 spread fairly evenly throughout the county.

COULSDON'S RING

The Hodson family have cast a few bells in Surrey. Christopher Hodson cast the second at Addington in 1683; whilst John cast the first and second at Caterham in 1664: the first and second at Chipstead in 1658; the bell at Farley in 1663: and the complete ring at Old Coulsdon, which are all inscribed, 'Iohn Hodson. Hodson made me. 1675. Ch Thoms Wood, Iasper Wood Chvrchwardens,' and are reputed to be the oldest complete ring in Surrey that have never been renovated in any way. These bells, I think, are the most important of the period, although there are some dozen or more which I have not the space to describe.

There is a bell at Pyrford which I think has the most amazing inscription of all in Surrey; Stahlschmidt does not date the bell, neither does he profess to be able to translate the inscription. The only word of any meaning, could be the first, which to me appears as the Latin word 'Suas' in reverse but beyond that the inscription is meaningless. It would be interesting to hear if readers have any ideas about it. Another rather unlikely suggestion is that the founders wished to put on a Greek inscription, and not having any Greek letters, did the nearest thing they could with English letters.

Another peculiarity, chiefly to be found on late 17th century bells is the reversing of the letters S and N on numerous bell inscriptions. There may have been some particular reason for this, but I think it very conceivable that as the letters which were to impress the inscription into the bell had to be fixed into the cope so that they read from right to left it was very easy to make a mistake with the letters N and S, and affix them the correct way so that they came out in reverse on the bell itself.

However, with this interesting question still unsolved, I conclude my article on Surrey's ancient bells.

Ely Diocesan Association

The District meeting of the Hunts Branch took place at All Saints', St. Ives, on December 11th. The Guild service was conducted by Canon B. F. Sheppard, M.A., Rector of Somersham.

The business meeting was in All Saints' (St. Ives) belfry, Mr. F. Warrington presiding. For the February meeting it was hoped to obtain both Hemingford Grey and Abbots, and it was left to Mr. Warrington to see the Vicar of Hemingford Grey, where some doubt exists about the bells being in good going order. WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH GUILD

Over 50 ringers attended the annual meeting of the Christchurch District held at Christchurch on December 11th, and the company sitting down to tea at the Priory Cafe included the Vicar of Christchurch (the Rev. R. P. Price), Mr. George Pullinger (Master of the Guild) and Mrs. Pullinger, Mr. A. F. Martin Stewart, Mr. George Preston, Mr. J. A. C. King (hon. secretary, Winchester District) and Mr. Ivan Davies (hon. secretary, Wimborne Branch, Salisbury Diocesan Guild).

Mr. David Reed presided over the meeting, at which the hon. secretary was happy to report steady progress in all departments during 1954. Meetings, including a joint one with the Salisbury Guild, had been well attended. There was an increase in ringing members and in the credit balance, and the annual George Williams Commemoration Dinner, held in May, was a most enjoyable function.

The members stood in silence as a tribute to the memory of Mr. Frederick W. Townsend, Ringing Master of the neighbouring Branch of the Salisbury Guild, and of St. James', Poole.

Unfortunately the District will soon lose the services of Mr. David Reed (chairman), who is to take up residence in the Isle of Wight. The District's grateful thanks are due to Mr. Reed for his enthusiastic and valuable services as a member and officer of the Branch.

Officers for 1954 were elected as follows:—Chairman, Mr. J. E. Daniels; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. V. Davis; Ringing Masters, Messrs. W. E. Cheater and R. Marlow; hon. auditor, Mr. R. Hurst; representative, Mrs. F. J. Marshallsay.

Unanimous votes of thanks were passed to the Vicar of Christchurch, to the preacher and the organist. Congratulations were offered to Mr. George Preston in anticipation of his 85th birthday on December 18th. Mr. George Pullinger said that Mr. Preston is the oldest practising member of the Guild.

It was decided to hold the George Williams Commemoration Dinner on May 7th, and quarterly meetings were arranged for March 19th, June 18th and September 17th, 1955. Further ringing on the Priory bells continued until 9 p.m.

Launton Ringers On Television

Launton (Oxfordshire) ringers appeared in a television newsreel on December 13th in a programme of carols.

The picture opened with three views of St. Mary's Church, Launton. These were followed by a switch to the interior showing the Rector and ringers walking in procession from the chancel to take up their positions in the nave in front of the chancel screen. Here they played 'Once in Royal David's City' and 'It Came Upon a Midnight Clear.'

The ringers, who are all choristers at the church, were robed for the recording. They were Mr. F. Sharpe, Mr. S. Holtam, the Misses Stephanie Gilpin, Susan Clarke, Elizabeth Sharpe and Patricia Ayris.

Three octaves of handbells were used and the carols were played in four-part harmony. The bells were part of Mr. Frederick Sharpe's collection and included specimens from the 17th century to the present day.

Mr. T. Reginald Dennis, now 71 years of age, tried something new on December 18th with a peal of Fordham Surprise Major at Ickleton. This is the first time this method has been rung to a peal.

BELFRY GOSSIP

We welcome to our columns the peal of Grandsire Doubles rung at Hamilton Cathedral, New Zealand, which is the second peal to be rung by the St. Peter's Society, Hamilton. It was conducted by New Zealand born Mr. Colin Ward, who is the first native of that Dominion to call a peal in his own country.

Wadhurst bells were dedicated at morning service on December 19th. An application has been made for a faculty for two new treble bells.

Mr. T. H. Francis was the umpire for the handbell peal rung at St. Martin-in-the-Fields on November 29th for the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths.

Accrington Parish Church has now eight subscribers to 'The Ringing World.' They would be interested to hear of a tower that beats their record.

Although during the course of the recent peal at Eye by ringers from over the border there was evidence of bearings running dry, thre was no lack of 'lubrication' of another sort at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rush.

Errata.—The peal of Minor in seven methods rung at Stoke Bishop, Bristol, on November 13th, consisted of extents in the following methods:—Double Bob, Hereward Bob, Double Court, Single Court, Double Oxford Bob, Plain Bob and Single Oxford Bob. (See page 804.)

Mr. R. Claude Gifford, Ringing Master of Hamilton Cathedral, New Zealand, in sending seasonal greetings to English ringers, wants especially to be remembered to the Bristol Rural Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Guild, of which he was secretary for some 11 years. He and his wife recall many happy hours spent with the Branch and tower members of Coalpit Heath and Westerleigh. His greetings are heartily endorsed by other members of the Cathedral band

Mr. W. J. Robinson, who since 1926 has been a stalwart at Holy Trinity Cathedral, Guildford, is leaving in the New Year to live near Biggleswade, Bedfordshire. In appreciation of his good services to the tower and comradeship he was presented with a wallet at the tower's annual supper on December 20th. The tower captain, Mr. F. A. Munday, made the presentation, and tributes to Mr. Robinson's ability and helpfulness were paid by Mr. A. H. Pulling and Mr. R. H. Hutton. His departure will be a great loss to the tower and the district.

Mr. Roger B. Morris informs us that the peal of Doubles at Rampton, Cambs, on December 1st was not his first in the method.

The bells of Tetbury Parish Church, Glos, (tenor 16¼ cwt.) will be broadcast in the West Home Service on January 2nd.

Throughout the year many readers have informed us that the issues for April 9th and April 16th bore duplicate numbers, 2,245. To rectify the position the number 2,283 has been omitted and we start 1955 with number 2,284.

His many friends in Essex will be pleased to know that Mr. John Dale has reached the grand old age of 90. Apart from difficulty in getting about John is hale and hearty and retains a lively interest in the Exercise. The peal of Gainsborough Little Bob Major at Hornchurch on December 11th, in honour of his birthday, was one of unusual length and can be a leson to conductor and composer. To the former—check the number of changes, and to the latter—the danger of ambiguous instructions. A peal of 5,004 changes turned out to be 5,436 changes, so John got good value on a very auspicious occasion. One is almost tempted to claim 'the longest length in the method.' What about it, Records Committee?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

MR. FRED G. MAY

Dear Sir,—It was with considerable pleasure that I discovered the other day a man who, in the earlier years of this century, had been a leading ringer in the West Country.

Mr. Fred G. May was born near Cirencester in 1871 and was there taught to handle a bell by Mr. C. Bond. He was then 24, and his great aptitude is evident when, four years later, in 1898, he became Master of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association. A Cumberland Youth and member of numerous Guilds, he was on the Central Council from 1900 to 1909.

Noted as a composer and especially as a conductor, his peal total stands at more than 660, many being rung in his home tower of St. Nicholas', Bristol; amongst others were the first of Cambridge, and Gloucester, Surprise Major, also first of Forward Royal.

His last peal was at Stroud, Glos, in August, 1919, when he conducted his own composition of Grandsire Caters. In 1925 he came to a warmer climate for his health, and for a while captained and taught at St. Mary's, Woodstock, but the travelling nature of his work precluded any peal attempts.

To-day he is quite well, living in quiet retirement near Cape Town. If this should catch the eye of any friends who wish to write to him they could do so care of, Yours sincerely,

A. V. SHEPPARD.

P.O. Box 1073, Cape Town.

IDENTITY OF SURPRISE METHODS

Dear Sir,—From the list of Surprise Major methods given by Mr. Blagrove I can help in a very small way with supplying the names of Nos. 12 and 22—Essex (No. 12) and Clacton (No. 22).

The notation of No. 5 is Beaconsfield, and of No. 17 Guildford but both these have 2nds place lead ends, so cannot qualify, as Mr. Blagrove's are all 8ths place lead ends.

As my collection of these methods is only small, the above information is probably of little use, but I give it for what it is worth.—Yours sincerely,

J. H. BRETT.

Sible Hedingham.

FIGHT FOR OUR CRAFT

Dear Sir,—My old friend, Mr. Ernest J. Rowe, takes a very alarming attitude over what might happen over the Bob Major extent attempt, which ended in such a glorious failure at Loughborough. Instead of being an alarmist, I feel some good will come out of this peal attempt, for never in my lifetime do I remember bell-ringing gaining such publicity. I am optimist enough to think we shall get inquiries at our churches about this bell-ringing, which should mean recruits to take up the art.

The criticism Mr. Rowe fears should be met. The fault here lies with the ringers—yes! and with the bell founders as well and the craftsmen who help to make materials into bells and frames, etc. Both sections allow all sorts of unkind and ignorant criticisms to go unchallenged and unanswered; we just 'lie down' and 'take it.'

Ringers should take up the fight on behalf of the art of change ringing, and most certainly the founders should join in the fray to preserve their ancient art of bell founding which is their living.

I can hear some of my friends saying to me, 'Why don't you have a fight?' I have several times in the local Press here in North London, when nasty letters have appeared about bell-ringing.—Yours faithfully,

R. NEWMAN.

Holloway, N.7.

REPLY TO MR. FELSTEAD

Dear Sir,—With regard to Mr. Felstead's letter of December 10th, I must protest against his remark that Mr. Butler is 'trying to be funny.' Unlike the Methods Committee, who are concerned only with the 'purity' of methods, Mr. Butler, on behalf of Sunday service ringers in his area, is protesting against the stupid rules introduced by the Methods Committee.

It has been explained before to Mr. Felstead that there is no comparison between the laws of the land and the laws of the Central Council. The laws of the land are made for the good of the majority and are generally justified by the Ten Commandments, although they do occasionally bring hardship to a small minority. But the rules of the Central Council only do harm for the majority and satisfy the personal whims of a very small minority. What good has it done to ban Plain Bob Triples and 'irregular' Minor from the analysis? Try to get the Central Council rules ratified by the Guilds, Societies and Associations and you will soon see that the majority do not object to Plain Bob Triples and 'irregular' Minor being included in the analysis.

Football is a competitive sport, played for gain, and as such needs regulations. Peal ringing should be a duty to the Church and as such does not need regulations (concerning method construction).

Then he makes an amusing accusation, 'rebellion' against the Methods Committee. There can be no doubt that when the Doubles Collection is published, a motion will be put to the Central Council by the Methods Committee (directly or indirectly) that 'peals containing methods not in the collection be excluded from the peals analysis.' I therefore appeal to all Doubles ringers to stand firm against the Methods Committee, by getting their associations to instruct their representatives(?) to vote against such a motion. Perhaps Mr. Felstead could tell us how to rebel against any committee, let alone that infallible collection of purists, the Methods Committee.

He then says that the Methods Committee persuaded (by way of a compromise) the Central Council to relax certain rules for Doubles ringers. Where was the persuasion? It only needs a speech from the Methods Committee, a direction 'Don't waste time over this,' and like a lot of sheep the Central Council say, 'Yes.' Where was the compromise? Doubles ringers were not consulted. Those relaxations were the wishes of the Methods Committee, none of whom are five-bell ringers.

He then says that I helped in getting together the collection of 97 'true' methods. When I found out what rules the Methods Committee were using, I worked out that there were 100 methods conforming to these rules and sent them to Mr. C. K. Lewis to check. He replied that (in his quest for purity) 'he could not accept 19 of them.' I wrote back protesting that his exclusion of these methods was as illogical as the exclusion of Double Bob Minor and the inclusion of Plain Bob Minor because Double Bob Minor has its lead ends in a different order to Plain Bob Minor. He was, in fact, interpreting the rules to suit his own wishes. I received no reply.

In fact, we rang the peal at Stanwell under the impression that ten of the methods we rang would not be included in the collection, and it was not until after the peal that I found out that Mr. Lewis had changed his mind about them. Even now they are excluding three methods because they cannot find a bob to suit their puritanical ideas. Will these methods be included? Will all other methods be banned? Or will the few try to dictate only 97, 'which (quoting Mr. Felstead) is quite a good number when there are only five bells to play about with,' but which (quoting Sunday service ringers) 'is not enough.'

Finally, may I be allowed to enlarge on Mr. Speed's remarks on Treble Bob Major? He says that it is impossible to get a T.B.8 method with 'natural' coursing order in 7–8 and no adjacent places. The same is true on 10 and 12, and also, I believe, for Little T.B. In fact, there are only 343 T.B. Major with P.B. coursing order in 7–8 and triple and quadruple changes only. There are, in fact, only eight different works above the treble, all of which are 'place' variations on Kent, either Kent Places moved and/or seconds at the lead end.—Yours sincerely,

F. T. BLAGROVE.

W. Bedfont, Stanwell, near Staines.

ALL SAINTS' DOUBLES

Dear Sir,—Mr. Cavill is quite right—All Saints' Doubles is not one of the methods which will appear in the Doubles book. The reason is not far to seek—the method is simply Reverse Canterbury Pleasure using a Grandsire single at the lead end, whilst the bob lead is a plain lead of Reverse Canterbury. We have excluded all this type of method in the book. The sort of thing that can happen if you don't draw the line in the way we are suggesting is shown by the fact that Besthorpe, Old Doubles, Norfolk, Hudibras, April Day, Ready Money, Ludham and Kennington all have the same plain course, viz., Plain Bob (!) and their difference consists in the variation of bob.

I was interested to see that the peal at South Wigston on November 27th was claimed as the 100th on the bells. I make it the 103rd. Perhaps there have been some false ones rung of which I am not aware, and so I should be grateful if Mr. Warwick (or someone more directly interested, perhaps) would check up with me at St. Michael's Vicarage, Southampton.—Yours sincerely,

K. W. H. FELSTEAD.

Southampton.

AN EXAMPLE TO THE CLERGY

Dear Sir,—When recently attending the practice night at Brighouse Parish Church I was agreeably surprised to see that the Vicar and two of his curates are learning bellringing. The Vicar and one curate are in the rounds stage, whereas the other curate can ring Grandsire, both on the tower bells and 'in hand.' Brighouse is one of the most important and populous parishes in the Wakefield Diocese, and the clergy are, without doubt, kept fully occupied.

One of the local ringers told me that much of the future possibilities of the team depends upon these three reverend gentlemen, for otherwise there would not be sufficient members for regular ringing.

I believe that some theological colleges are giving elementary instruction in bell-ringing. This will no doubt result in an increase in clerical recruits in our belfries.

I would like to point this out as a 'striking' example of how the clergy are helping ringers in a busy industrial parish. Whether clerical or lay, are we not entrusted with one of the more important duties, namely, of calling people to worship and proclaiming to our parish that divine service is about to begin?—Yours sincerely,

PAUL BIRKETT.

Elland, Yorks.

A WEEK-END IN FOUR COUNTIES

Dear Sir,—I was interested to read on page 812 the writer's comments that any peal on the heavy five at Mudford should be non-conducted. Before the war I took part in a peal there and for about a week afterwards the conductor, my old friend, Bill Shute, appeared to be suffering from laryngitis and the rest of the band could hear the bells in their ears!—Yours sincerely,

E. T. PAUL FIELD.

Long Sutton, Somerset.

LETTERS—Continued

THOSE TON TENORS

Dear Sir,—In your issue of December 3rd 'M. E. E.' questions my published weight of 15 cwt. at Kingston, Somerset, but prefers local tradition of a ton.

This bell measures 42¼ inches in diameter, according to 'The Church Bells of Somerset' (and the late J. H. Shepherd's notes), and a bell of this size cannot possibly weigh anything like a ton—it would need to be well-nigh solid to do so. An experienced bellfounder estimates 13¼ cwt. as being more likely.

Local traditions are notoriously exaggerated where weights are concerned and it is not possible, as some ringers seem to think, to judge the weight of a bell merely by its 'go.'

Broadly speaking, it may be assumed that the precise weights (to the pound) given in 'The Book' are the authentic weights supplied by the founder and the approximate weights have been computed from the measurements. As, however, I used a scale of weights and measurements of modern bells the tendency may have been to overestimate in some cases rather than underestimate, a tendency which has been corrected as far as possible in the revised book now printing.

I am frequently met with 'You've got our tenor wrong, she is a lot heavier than you state,' etc., and as likely as not inquiries reveal that since tradition was established the bells have been away to the foundry and have been tuned and perhaps had the cannons removed and the exact weight has been obtained.

Even so it by no means follows that the bona fide weight given by a reputable bellfounder will be accepted. Indeed, I know one Yorkshire tower where if the tenor was weighed before their eyes the ringers would declare that the scales must be wrong!

I see also that 'Dove' is blamed for misleading Mr. Felstead in his article on peal ringing in Dorset, but since peals rung at St. John's, Surrey Road, have always been, and still are, recorded as being rung at 'Bournemouth, Hants—one was rung here only a few weeks ago—why 'The Book' should be blamed is not quite clear.

'Crockford' records this church as Bournemouth, Hants, but I have obtained a ruling from the Town Clerk, who states that while the greater part of the parish is in Bournemouth, and therefore in Hampshire, that portion which contains the church is situated within the Borough of Poole (Dorset).

In the new edition of the 'Guide' this tower will appear as Bournemouth, Dorset, with a cross-reference to Poole. Doubtless I shall be informed that Bournemouth is not in Dorset, but if I were to record the tower at St. John's, Poole, I should be told I had omitted St. John's, Bournemouth.

If any readers can suggest how otherwise to record a tower which is in one town in name and another town and county in actual fact I would welcome advice.—Yours faithfully,

R. H. DOVE.

FALSE PEAL

Dear Sir,—The handbell peal of Plain Bob Minor, rung for this Guild at Hucknall, Notts, on May 27th, 1954, is false, and should be deleted from the records in the Analysis of Peals.—Yours sincerely.

C. GLENN,
Peal Sec., Southwell Diocesan Guild.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Chew Deanery Branch was held at Winford on December 4th. Ringing took place on the fine ring of six (Mears, 1816; tenor 16 cwt) until 4.30 p.m., when the Rector (the Rev. A. J. H. Hobbs) conducted the Association form of service.

Ringers from Chew Magna, Clutton, Corston, Long Ashton, Marksbury, Nailsea, Timsbury, Winford, Wraxall, Wrington and Yatton 'signed the book' at the business meeting, which followed an excellent tea provided by the local ringers and their wives.

The Branch officers were all re-elected, these being:—Mr. H. W. Knight, chairman and Ringing Master; Messrs. L. Derrick and L. Pullin, Deputy Ringing Masters; and Mr. P. G. Yeo, secretary and representative on the General Committee.

The chairman announced that he had received an invitation from Mr. Bennett, of Clutton, asking if Clutton tower could be transferred to the Chew Deanery Branch. The meeting decided that, subject to the formal approval of the Frome Branch, this would be in order. A new member each from Clutton, Nailsea and Winford were duly elected and it was decided that, subject to permission being granted, the next quarterly meeting (April) should be held at Backwell, with practice meetings at Ubley, Weston-in-Gordano and Clutton for January, February and March respectively. There being no other business, Mr. G. Yeo proposed votes of thanks to the Rector for conducting the service and for the use of the bells, to the organist for her services, and to the ladies who prepared tea. M. J. H.

Gloucester and Bristol Association

The annual meeting of the Swindon Branch was held at Christ Church, Swindon, on December 11th. A special welcome was extended to Miss Marion Skinner, of Pinner, a former member of Christ Church band.

Those present were entertained to tea by Christ Church ringers and at the business meeting Dr. H. Craig was elected chairman in succession to Mr. W. Sidwell, who has left the district. All other Branch officers were re-elected and it was proposed that the next three meetings be held at Stratton-St. Margaret, Rodbourne Cheney and St. Mark's, Swindon. The secretary's report revealed a satisfactory state of affairs although there was a decline in peal ringing in the Branch area. Ringing at the meeting ranged from rounds to Cambridge Royal. W. B. EAST GRINSTEAD & DISTRICT

The annual dinner of the East Grinstead and District Guild was held on December 11th in Tunbridge Wells and proved to be the best ever. The recently overhauled bells at St. Peter's were available from 3 to 5.30 and everyone agreed that they now run perfectly and are much more audible in the belfry.

An excellent meal was served at the Culverden Arms. There were no visitors and no formalities except the loyal toast proposed by the chairman, Mr. E. J. Ladd, who afterwards spoke a few words of praise to the caterers and thanked everyone for their support.

In the meanwhile a parcel had been making its way round the tables and when it was opened by the recipient it was found to contain a toy trumpet, whereupon a wit got up and proposed a toast to Eddie Calvert.

When the tables had been cleared the company were entertained with dancing by Margaret Ladd, accompanied by her mother on the piano, and then, for nearly an hour, by Mr. Clarkson, from Tonbridge, who amused and mystified. The rest of the time was then passed away with method- and tune-ringing on the handbells. The arrangements were in the hands of Messrs. E. J. Ladd and A. F. Wellington, who are to be congratulated for making the event such a success. C. A. B.

ST. DAVID'S DIOCESAN GUILD

In spite of the dismal weather there was a good attendance at the quarterly meeting of the Guild held at Llanstephan on December 11th. The Vicar, the Rev. J. T. Jenkins, was in the belfry to greet the members as they arrived and it was very nice to see the Vicar of Llanbadarn Fawr, the Rev. O. G. Rees and the Rev. E. A. B. Hughes, curate of Llanelly, among those present.

The Vicar, the Rev. J. T. Jenkins, officiated at the service and the lesson was read by the Ringing Master, Mr. W. J. Harries, of Llanbadarn Fawr. The ringers were afterwards entertained to a very nice tea at the Central Cafe, about 70 members attending.

The Vicar presided at the business meeting and the usual touch on the handbells was given by the young ringers of the Llanelly Parish Church, and also a demonstration of lapping bells, a novelty to many of the members.

A collection for the Bell Restoration Fund realised the sum of £1 14s. Two grants of £5 each were approved to Llanbadarn Fawr and Llanstephan and the next quarterly meeting of the Guild will be held at Llanelly on Saturday, March 12th. The Vicar was thanked by Mr. C. H. Hawkins (secretary) seconded by Mr. E. J. Thomas (Carmarthen). C. H.

EXPLORING THE UNKNOWN

By P. AMOS

To some, the busy streets of any large city mingled with sight-seeing, studying of churches, etc., hold attractions. To others the countryside, with its woodlands, its landscapes and village churches, away from the smoke of diesel engines into the fresh air, makes a pleasant change. To those desiring the latter, few spots will be found to equal an area between Buckingham and Towcester. Churches may be scattered somewhat, but there is plenty to interest those who prefer the quiet.

Whittlebury has for centuries been a source of delight because of its parklands and its Royal forest, from which King Charles II. gave a thousand tons of timber to rebuild All Saints' Church, Northampton, after the Great Fire of 1666. Noted families have from time to time held residence at Whittlebury, including Sir Reginald Loder, who in 1887 was responsible for adding a new bell to four existing bells in this church and rehanging all in a new oak frame, the work by Messrs. Warners, of London—a firm which ceased to exist after rehanging the bells of Boyne Hill, Maidenhead, about 1922.

Very little ringing activity has existed at Whittlebury during my 33 years as a ringer and only once have I rung there. I well remember finding most of the bells loose on the headstocks afterwards, especially the third. I cannot ever recall a Guild meeting at Whittlebury! The tenor of these five bells is eight cwt.

To the south we come into Bucks to the quiet but pleasant village of Lillingstone Lovell, with its old saddleback tower dating from 1210, and a church which still retains its old horse-box pews. At the end of the war I well remember visiting this church, to find four bells, all cast by Alexander Rigby, of Stamford, Lincs, dated 1693. So dangerous did their frame and fittings appear that I wrote the then Rector, pointing this out, at the same time advising a restoration and a new bell to make five. A subsequent Rector followed up the advice, but instead of a tenor a treble was added, which made them into a minor five (the tenor of these is 6¼ cwt.). Messrs. John Taylor and Co. carried out the work some two years ago, but a great misfortune has befallen their keen, youthful, new team of ringers since—the tower has cracked and ringing is suspended. Whether a tenor to make six will now ever be added, as they hoped, is a matter for the diocesan architect, who evidently could not have detected a crack, which it is thought must have been present at the time of the rehanging, in a steel frame for six. It is very unfortunate for Lillingstone Lovell, with few more than 100 souls, who did rally to raise the money with such enthusiasm.

At the time of penning these notes I am tempted to think of Lillingstone Lovell's famous racehorse, 'Wot-no-Sun'! Many days have passed since it shone, around Northampton at any rate!

In a park about a mile to the west is Lillingstone Dayrell (pronounced Darrell locally), whose church has a low tower with a flat leaded roof, no battlements or pinnacles, giving it a somewhat strange appearance. It contains three bells with a tenor of nine cwt. by Richard Chandler, of Drayton Parslow, Bucks, dated 1674, the second by Edward Hall, who took over the Chandlers' business, is dated 1726, and the treble, by Warners, of London, dated 1868. The old oak frame is for three bells only. Here again I advised a restoration, and, if possible, an augmentation, for dry rot and wood worm have taken toll of both frame and headstocks. Despite this, the Lovell lads have had Dayrell's three bells up and rung sixes on one or two occasions. Typical of so many churches I visit, I found leaflets detailing the history of the church in both places, but not a mention of the bells as a guide to bell archæologists.

Over the Bucks boundary, to Passenham, on the very edge of Northants is a church recently threatened with a closure, where I think the Historic Churches Preservation Trust should step in and do something. Stony Stratford and Wolverton are very nearby, and only low-lying meadowland for about a mile separates them, and possibly prevents housing expansion. Thirty years ago I remember going over this Village Hall and boating on the moat surrounding it. I was then but a treble ringer and could not resist finding out about the bells, which I found were rehung by Bowell, of Ipswich, in 1907, in existing oak frame, they at the same time recasting a pre-Reformation treble. The tenor here is said to be 17 cwt., but is only 46 inches in diameter across the lip. The tenors of Wootton (Northants) and Claybrooke (Leics) are both 46-inch bells and weigh 13 cwt. 2 qr. 21 lb., and 13 cwt. 3 qr. 7 lb. respectively, and I am inclined to think this is nearer the true weight of Passenham's tenor, despite some people's story that 'she goes all 17 cwt.' I once visited Ashwell, in Rutland, where a 9 cwt. tenor 'went all 30 cwt.'!

However, a very interesting church with some of the old high pews is to be found at Passenham. The fourth is the most interesting bell, showing a unique inscription, 'A Trvsty Frende is Harde to Fynde, 1585.' It is a casting of Richard Benetlye, a travelling bellfounder, who, by means of temporary furnaces, cast all his bells on the spot. Benetlye was a native of Leicester, and possibly learned his trade under the Newcombe family of bellfounders. Other works of his can be seen in Rutland, at Seaton (1597), and several Midland parishes. When he cast this bell at Passenham, it is thought he must have been in a rather low spirited frame of mind—a somewhat sad man—hence the inscription.

Were he or the Attons of Buckingham alive to-day, I have an inclination that one of these would be able to divulge the secret of what happened to the four bells of Preston Deanery, near Northampton, which were sold between 1585 and 1622 by Jasper Hertwell, who during those 37 years occupied the Manor, plundered the church and sold the lead and the bells. In 1622 Charles Edmonds, who took this Manor, restored the church at Preston Deanery and installed one small bell, which Henry Penn, of Peterborough, recast in 1710, which still exists to this day in the old tower. This old tower is, inside, like a fuel cellar, used for storing coke.

Back to South Northants, Syresham is a steeple of which little is known to many ringers. I had an eye-opener when I visited this place back in the early '30's. There are five bells (tenor 8½ cwt.) in what is described as 'a weak steeple,' although it is of no great height, 60-70 feet at the outside.

Massive polished oak beams are built inside the tower from the ground up to the bell chamber in each corner. Upon these is built the oak bell frame, so that these carry all the weight and the tower actually only forms a casement (or shell). The back four bells hang one on each side of the tower, with the treble in a frame of its own above, set diagonal, so that its rope falls in the centre of the belfry, which is on the ground floor. The last rehanging here was in 1886. To-day the bells are totally unringable. At the time of my visit (one Sunday), the then churchwarden (who was himself a ringer) had the remarkable record of having served under 11 vicars. I have tried to persuade one or two in authority here to push for a restoration, and one day it may succeed.

Another steeple needing a bell restoration in this area is Evenley. Nothing has been done since 1865, when Mears rehung these five light bells (tenor 6 cwt. 3 qr. 26 lb.), one of which has the historic distinction of being the first bell of the Bagley family, of Chacombe, nearby.

Henry Bagley, born in 1608, cast this bell at the age of 24—in 1632—the date to be seen on it. This Henry had several descendants of the same name, besides two Matthews and a William. The family carried on bellfounding at Chacombe, Exton, and elsewhere, until 1771, when it became extinct. The back six of the unrung eight bells at Easton Neston, near Towcester, were the last bells of the Bagleys. A new vicar of Towcester is hoping to persuade Lord Hesketh to allow Easton Neston's bells to be rung again. These six bells were augmented to eight by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston in 1911. They have been unrung since the late '20's and are a ring of bells wasted.' The Hesketh family control the estate and are the patrons.

Whitfield, near to Syresham, has five bells rehung by Taylors in 1870. I cannot recall a meeting ever here, but some ringing interest of late has sprung up, although the belfry is anything but pleasant to ring in; ropes fall almost touching the walls. There are five bells (tenor 7 cwt.).

(To be continued)

A DAY IN SHROPSHIRE VILLAGES

A small band drawn from Allesley (Coventry) St. Luke's, Wolverhampton, and Little Aston, together with the writer, spent December 4th touring Shropshire villages.

At Burford it was discovered that the five bells here are hung 'dead' (Mr. Dove and others interested, please note). A local inhabitant at Tugford told us that this five had not been rung within living memory, and by the state of the frame and fittings we could well believe it. Not until nearly dinner time did we have our first ring, at Rushbury (5, 6 cwt. in B). Here the Vicar welcomed us but told us that the bells had not been rung for six years and that he himself had never heard them rung. After ascending the tower to ensure their safety, and one of our ropes had been fixed to the tenor, we managed some Grandsire on this somewhat tricky ground-floor ring, with a cracked 2nd.

There is a pleasant six at Hope Bowdler (9¼ cwt. in A) and an even better light 5½ cwt. six at Church Pulverbatch. They have recently been overhauled by Taylors and are a good job.

About three miles north of Shrewsbury is Leaton, with its broached five. These bells were considered by the two members of the band who had rung on every Shropshire five to be easily the best; they are a good ring by Taylors (tenor 14¼ cwt. in G) and some Stedman was enjoyed here. At Atcham we decided to check with the Vicar the report that the bells were unringable. He promptly informed us that this was not so and readily gave us permission to ring. Unfortunately the treble rope was broken but we enjoyed some well-struck Doubles on the back five (tenor 11 cwt. in G). This church is notable in being the only one in England dedicated to St. Eata.

The head ringer and his son welcomed us and joined in ringing with us at Albrighton. Here are quite a good six (tenor 11 cwt. in G). We found a pinnacled tower and spire rising 200 feet at Worfield, where the head ringer joined in some excellent Grandsire Doubles on this good six (tenor 15 cwt. in F). A good 'fall' ended the day's ringing. The band wish to express their sincere thanks to all incumbents and ringers who made them welcome.

OBITUARY

MR. F. J. RING

With great regret we record the passing of Mr. F. J. Ring, of Swanscombe, Kent, who died suddenly after a very short illness.

Mr. Ring, who was 68 years of age, was for many years leader and secretary of Swanscombe band. He followed his father as secretary of the band, thus constituting a record of 62 years of continuous service. A prominent Freemason, he was Immediate Past Master of the Anglo Saxons and also a member of the Lodge of Sympathy.

In Swanscombe Church there is a permanent memorial to his love of the church. He made and gave the beautifully carved oak screen which divides the vestry and ringing chamber from the main body of the church.

The funeral service in Swanscombe on Dec. 15th was attended by many mourners, including the local band and friends from nearby towers. The bells were rung half-muffled on Friday evening, and a half-muffled peal of Stedman, his favourite method, was rung on the Saturday. And so another stalwart of this church has passed to his higher reward. G. J. B.

REDEDICATION

WITHYHAM, SUSSEX

Reputed to be one of the most musical rings in Sussex, the bells of Withyham have just been overhauled by Messrs. Taylor. They have been fitted with new gudgeons and hung on ball bearings and the clappers have been rebushed. The organ, also, has been cleaned and overhauled, and on Sunday, December 12th, the completion of both jobs was celebrated by a thanksgiving service, which was preceded by an organ recital by Dr. A. W. Bunney, Director of Music, Tonbridge School.

The bells were dedicated by the Rural Dean, the Rev. J. R. Missen, Vicar of Coleman's Hatch, who gave them into the care of the Rector, the Rev. P. L. Scott, while an interesting address was given by the Rev. G. A. E. Cottam, curate of Wadhurst. After the service there was ringing by the local band and visitors under the direction of Mr. H. Vaughan, the Withyham captain.

VILLAGERS AFRAID?

The following headlines appeared in the Northampton 'Mercury and Herald' on December 17th:—'Syresham Villagers Afraid Bellringing Will Bring Down Their Tower.'

The village of Syresham, situated near Brackley, has but five bells with a 37 inch tenor weighing 8½ cwt., in one of the lowest broached steeples to be seen anywhere. Like Acle, Norfolk, the bells are hung almost independent of the tower, in an oak frame upon beams from the ground in each corner of the tower, which is a mere casement or shell.

The bells were last rehung (on oak headstocks) in 1886. They hang north, south, east and west, with the treble swinging diagonally in a frame on its own above the other four in the centre.

'Would these five light bells, if rehung, bring down the tower?' A visit by the Central Council Towers and Belfries Committee should supply the answer.

SAID 2,500 YEARS AGO

The Master said: To learn and to practise on occasion what one has learnt—is this not true pleasure? The coming of a friend from a far-off land—is this not true joy?

Refusal to instruct one who is competent to learn entails the waste of a man. Instruction of one who is incompetent to learn entails waste of words. The wise man is he who wastes neither men nor words.

From the 'Sayings of Confucius' (551—478 B.C.)

NORTH STONEHAM RINGERS

Preceded by supper, the annual meeting of the North Stoneham ringers was held at the Old Rectory Hotel, North Stoneham, near Eastleigh. The Rector (the Rev. H. Shail) presided at an attendance of 16 of the band. In his address he referred to the sound of the bells as a 'glimmering of sanity in a world becoming used to the scream of the jet engine and the crash of breaking through the sound barrier.'

Congratulations and good wishes were expressed to Mr. W. T. Tucker, who had celebrated his 78th birthday the day previous. Commenting on the year's activity the captain, Mr. R. A. Reed, said that the full ringing band now numbered 23 of mixed ages and ringing ability. To train the local band to peal standard had of necessity to be a slow task but the successful ringing of the first 720 for several of the band, and the equally successful quarter peal attempt that afternoon had been encouraging for all who took part, including himself.

Reporting on the financial position the treasurer and secretary, Mr. Norman Hayes, said that the Belfry Fund, after expenses, now stood at £41, nearly a quarter of which had been received from ringers' subscriptions. The steeplekeeper, Mr. C. Taylor, reported on the condition of the bells and the belfry.

Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted:—Mr. R. A. Reed, captain; Mr. N. Hayes, treasurer; Mr. L. W. Stead, secretary. Permanent officers were the Rector as president, and Mr. Taylor as steeplekeeper.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL

Cheltenham Branch

Nearly 40 members and visitors assembled at St. Mary's Church, Charlton Kings, on December 11th for the annual meeting of the Cheltenham Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association.

Ringing began on the eight bells at 3 p.m. and continued until 4 p.m. when a break was made for tea at which the ringers were cordially welcomed by the Vicar, the Rev. C. T. Deakin.

This was followed by the business meeting, presided over by the Master of the Association, Mr. Leslie Barry. Officers elected for 1955 were Mr. C. Rouse, chairman, and Miss E. M. Bliss secretary; Mr. F. Nurden was re-elected representative on the Management Committee.

After the meeting the ringers returned to the church for a service conducted by the Vicar, who spoke of the importance of ringers playing an active part in the life of the church.

Further ringing, ranging from rounds to Cambridge Major, took place until 8.30 p.m.

Australia's Oldest Bell

The oldest bell in Australia was cast 278 years ago and stands in the porch of St. Mary's R.C. Cathedral, Perth. It was presented to the Benedictine Abbey at Compostella, Spain, in 1676 by one Maestro Bustamante and was brought to Australia in 1853.

According to J. E. M. H. in 'Ringing Towers' the inscription round the shoulder of the bells is: 'Sancta Hagata, I.H.S. Maria Ora Pro Nobis.' The lettering has a background of fine tracery of leaves. On the body of the bell are two medallions—one of a knight on horseback and the other a head of Our Blessed Lord. On the opposite side of the bell from these is a cross carried out in little individual star shapes rather like those which one can achieve with a cake-icing nozzle. Altogether it is a most noble old bell—rather longer and narrower than the present-day shape—and it would be interesting to hear the note and tone of it.
