Determined not to miss the chance of ringing on these bell "open," Mr. Marchant flew up from Atlanta on Sunday, April 30th, and this time there were no less than three "foreigners" present—Geoff Davis (Birmingham, now on a three-year university course at Boston), Mr. F. G. Rawson (Windsor, on an extended holiday at Windsor, Connecticut) and himself. Geoff Davis turned the tenor in for a course of Bob Major, the first time the tenor has been turned in "open," we were informed.

At Groton on May 7th Mr. Marchant was welcomed by Mr. Russell Young and rang Stedman Triples on the back eight and call changes on the ten.

An invitation to lunch with the school was gratefully accepted, and then back to Boston for a visit to Advent Church and a quick look at the bells. Unfortunately the offer of money for restoring these bells was never accepted but, in the gloom, the fittings did not appear to be in an extremely bad state. The bells are chimed by ropes attached to the clappers but sound to be a very tuneful ring—has anyone any further details?

U.B.S.C.R. SUMMER REUNION

Fewer non-residents attended the U.B.S.C.R.'s summer reunion in Bristol than for some years. Nevertheless the week-end proved very successful. Peal attempts were introduced for the first time and three peals were scored. The rest of the time was packed with activity. A most enjoyable outing in Monmouthshire in ideal weather was followed by the usual skittles evening, the residents again being thrashed by over 30 pins. At the Corporate Communion on Sunday the Lord Mayor of Bristol found time to celebrate and also joined the visitors at breakfast. It is rumoured that the residents celebrated the disappearance of the Society grandfathers with a riotous farewell party to round off the week-end.

KINGSTON'S GREAT LEAP FORWARD

Kingston upon Thames, Surrey, has now fulfilled the hope expressed recently in this column that eight-bell ringing would soon be the norm for Sunday service ringing (after years of six-bell efforts only). Grandsire Triples are now rung regularly on Sundays, and even the imminent departure of two members will not affect this unduly. The reason is Kingston's deliberately aggressive approach to recruitment and training, which has in less than two years doubled membership to over 30 and increased the number of eight-bell ringers from five to eleven.

A new captain, Bernard Stone, will soon take over, with the declared objective of building up to regular ten-bell Sunday ringing in the not too distant future. We wish you well, Bernard!

JUNE 18th, 1967, AT EAST ILSLEY

June 18th is a very historical date, being the anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo, and this year it was also a big day for the Hibbert family of East Ilsley, being the 90th birthday of Mrs. Florence Sanderson, youngest sister of the late Tom and "Buffer" Hibbert, quite well-known ringers in their day. Mrs. Sanderson is the aunt of Cyril and Marjorie Hibbert, Edward Sneller and Dick Wells, and her erring nephew William, and great-aunt of "Tich" and John Hibbert.

On June 18th a quarter peal of Stedman Triples was rung at her native church by Patricia Hibbert 1, Cyril J. Hibbert 2, Marjorie Hibbert 3, Edward Sneller 4, Eileen Wilson 5, James Wilson 6, John Hibbert (cond.) 7, and Richard Wells 8, six of the band being relatives.

It was a very happy day for Mrs. Sanderson, as she received plenty of good wishes and callers, who drank quaffs of homemade wine and toasted a wonderful young lady of 90. William Hibbert was unfortunately unable to get to Ilsley but would like to be associated with the happy occasion.

A.G.M. AT ST. LUKE'S COLLEGE

The first annual general meeting of the newly-formed St. Luke's College Society, Exeter, took place on June 5th Twelve members attended to elect next year's committee as follows: President, Rev. T G. Grigg (College chaplain); Ringing Master, John N. Longridge; treasurer, Roger Butterworth; secretary, Clive George; tower secretary, Bruce P. Jarvie.

The Master reported that good progress was being made by the learners in bell handling and that he hoped to have a Society band ringing rounds by the end of the term.

Practice meetings: St. Mark's Church, Exeter, on Wednesdays between 6.30 p.m. and 8 p.m. All ringers welcome. G. H. B.

MARCH RINGERS LEARN ABOUT BELL FOUNDING

March ringers held a most enjoyable outing to Loughborough and Charnwood Forest on June 3rd. A principal feature was the visit to Messrs. John Taylor's bell foundry, and all departments in the fascinating world of bell founding were inspected. After ringing the campanile bells the ringers had lunch and travelled through very picturesque countryside revealing craggy landscapes and forested hillsides and babbling brooks. They rang at Rothley, Woodhouse Eaves, Barrow-upon-Soar and Wymeswold. At Barrow the local ringers and their wives had prepared a most delicious tea. Thank you, Barrow! And also thanks to Messrs. Taylor's, particularly Mr. Fidler, and ringers and incumbents at the respective churches.

LAVENHAM'S ANNIVERSARY

Thirty ringers representing towers from Norfolk, Essex, Camoridgeshire, Oxford, Lincolnshire and Suffolk attended to keep up the Lavenham annual ringing anniversary, which dates back to 1811, when two treble bells were added to complete the octave in this tower. These anniversaries have only been broken by the two world wars.

Methods rung were Plain, Double Norwich, Kent, Little Bob, Yorkshire Surprise, Grandsire and Stedman Triples. M. T. S.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

Tucked away off the beaten track, the Church of the Holy Rood, Ossington, was ideal for the Newark District's round of the Crawford Cup on May 20th, as a District meeting had never been held there. The light six are not easy to ring and it was to be expected that faults incurred would be high. Mr. and Mrs Frank Bradley judged Newark the winners with 123½ faults, followed by Sutton A team with 131½. The Bishop of Sherwood closed the proceedings with his Blessing, and the Bishop's wife and her helpers were thanked for preparing tea.

The usual musical touches of Grandsire Caters exploit the Tittum and Handstroke Home positions. Here are two touches of a more unusual type, and both of them present features of interest.

The first one, set out in full, makes use of the pleasant 9768 and 7 9. 68 positions. The second one is a simple variation of the first one, bringing up a fine 7968 lead, and then proceeding very much as the first. The only difference in the two touches, in fact, is in the treatment of 79.

In the first touch it may be noted that at the third single (which brings up 35729468), it 6 and 8 were the other way round we could get rounds at the following lead without any more calls. The block of four calls that follows is necessary in order to reverse 6 and 8.

BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION

A very successful meeting of the Biggleswade District was held at the two five-bell towers at Compton and Meppershall on June 10th. With the newly-elected Ringing Masters doing a fine job, the many varied abilities were catered for at both towers. A fine tea at Meppershall refreshed everyone for the business meeting and ringing in the evening. The District was unanimous in deciding to put its Belfry Repair Fund into the Association's central account, and also accepted their committee's recommendation for the proposed striking competition to be arranged by Miss L. Ellison.

Next meeting Potton July 8th.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION

Normally meetings of the Blackburn Branch are held on the first Saturday of the month, but because of the holidays the date was advanced to June 24th. Whalley was an excellent choice and after starting with Plain Bob more advanced methods were rung with the help of visiting ringers from Preston and Rochdale Branches. On this site it is believed there has been a church for one thousand years: in the sunshine it was very beautiful.

Cups of tea were provided by local ringers, and at the business meeting Mr J. Pilkington, Ringing Master, presided. The Branch outing is to be to North Wales; it was also decided to arrange quarter peals for beginners.

Ringing after was helped along by visitors from Liverpool, Bolton and some new residents in the Branch from Northampton.

A THREAT TO AN OLD FOUR

Writing to express regret at the possible loss of St. Alkmund's bells, Derby, Mr. Peter S. Abbott, of Brampton, Hunts, states: "I do know, near where I live—at St. Andrew's, Woodwalton—there is an excellent four, containing two examples of the beautiful work which Joseph Eayre turned out. In the future this church is to be demolished and a new one nearer the village erected. Has any provision or will any provision be made to retain these bells? I wonder, but I think I can guess the answer."

TRURO DIOCESAN GUILD

On June 24th the Truro and Penzance Branches met at Probus for a cricket match and the Truro Branch won by eight wickets. Man of the match was undoubtedly Alan Dengler from Constantine, who scored 51 not out as well as capturing the wickets of Penzance's top scorers. A superb tea was served by Barbara Duck, and Probus bells were rung in the evening.

Truro: 82 for 3 (A. Dengler 51 not out, G. F. Dunstan 27 not out).

FARNHAM DISTRICT STRIKING COMPETITION

Ten teams were entered for the striking competition of Farnham District of the Guildford Diocesan Guild, held on June 24th, on the back six at Aldershot. Mr. F. Darby, Master of the Surrey Association, adjudicated, and in his remarks said: "What I have heard has been by and large very good ringing; methods ranging from London Surprise to Plain Bob Doubles. Competition gives even weak ones a chance." Placings were: Aldershot, 17 faults; Grayshott, 24; Farnborough, 29. Ash and a team of under 16 tied for fourth place, with 32 faults each.

WARMINSTER OUTING

Warminster ringers and friends continued their friendship with Mr C. N. Pearson, one-time headmaster of the Minster School and now living at Haslemere, by their annual outing into Surrey and Sussex. Once again Mr Pearson had planned this happy event and entertained the company to tea at Haslemere.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson and Catherine met the party at New Alresford (8) and guided them to Cheriton (6). By the lake at Petersfield a picnic lunch had been provided by Mr. and Mrs Norris, and it was with some reluctance that the journey was continued to ring at Hawley and Grayshott and then at Haslemere, where some of the best ringing of the day, including a touch of Grandsire Caters, took place.

Tea was followed by the usual game of cricket, and the last tower was St. Mary's, Easebourne, where a touch of Oxford Bob Triples was exceptionally well struck. Supper was taken at a well remembered spot just east of Stockbridge.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

No. 2934. Vol. LXIII FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1967 9d

SURREY ASSOCIATION REMEMBERS ITS FOUNDATION 87 YEARS AGO

THIS issue has as its main theme the Surrey Association of Change Ringers and the front page picture is of St. Mary the Virgin's Church, Beddington. This church has an honoured place in peal ringing and many well-known ringers have been associated with the tower, which contains ten bells with a tenor of 18 cwt. 14 lbs. in E flat.

The Surrey news story relates to the historic Church of St. John the Baptist, Croydon, compiled by Richard C. Stevens, its present ringing master, the Society having been formed as for back as 1730, and a peal of Bob Triples was rung in the old church in 1734. On the third page of the cover we give an epic picture of the burning of the old church on January 5th, 1867, and another as it appeared about 1820.

This tower had a long association with the Croydon bell founders, Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, who cast the 12 bells in 1937, and the first peal on these bells was in honour of the Coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. To mark the Allies' victory in 1946 the late Cyril Johnston presented a flat six thus providing a middle octave.

The Surrey Association recently expressed its keenness and enthusiasm by an outstanding co-operative act. May 21st was the 87th anniversary of the foundation of the Society and to mark the occasion 19 towers rang quarter peals and there were also two peals. The quarter peals are appended below.

Members attending the Oxford Diocesan Guild Festival on July 1st were pleased to see that Mr. Alan Pink was well enough to attend the service though he did not stay for the meeting.

The Oxford Diocesan Guild have made an offer to purchase for £900 the bells of St. Peter-in-the-East, Oxford, which are a Rudhall six with two additional trebles. Their petition is now before the Chancellor of the Diocese.

Croydon Parish Church—Past and Present

Notes on the history of the Parish Church of Croydon, compiled by the present Ringing Master, Richard C. Stevens.

CROYDON Parish Church, which stands in the old part of the town, will be best known to ringers as the twelve-bell tower of Croydon. This church, which was reconsecrated after a disastrous fire in the 19th century, has a most interesting history and I would like to share some of its past with fellow ringers through these columns.

The first evidence of religious life in Croydon is to be found in an Anglo-Saxon Will dated A.D 960, where reference is made to "Elfsies preostre of Croydon." Although no proof of the existence of a church can be found, it is generally considered unlikely that a priest lived in the town without a building of some nature where he could carry out the duty of his office. This is, however, purely assumption and must only be regarded as such.

IN DOMESDAY BOOK

The first proof of the existence of a church in Croydon is to be found in the Domesday Book, where an entry recorded in A.D. 1086 reads—"iba eccla, here a church." This building in all probability stood on the same site as the present church, a fact of which one can be fairly certain, as had the church been built on any ground other than already consecrated ground, it would have been entered in the register of the Archbishop in whose time it was built. (Canon Law provides that no church shall be consecrated unless it has been previously consumed by fire, or desecrated, or is built on unconsecrated ground.) No such record is to be found in the registers of the Archbishops. Research after the fire in 1867 which destroyed the building erected in the 14th century, showed the transition from the Decorated to the Perpendicular styles with traces of Norman work. Part of it is dated from the time of Archbishop Courtenay (1381–1396), whose arms were formerly carved over the north entrance, and part of it was built and completed in the time of Archbishop Chicheley (1414–1443), whose arms were carved over the west door.

The general picture of the earliest church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is that it stood on low ground, very close to the source of the River Wandle. At this time the church would have been surrounded by water, aspecially as at one time there was a mill near the church. The River Wandle still exists to this day, but is no longer around the Parish Church. Instead it passes through part of Wandle Park (about half a mile away) and flows through to Beddington Park.

This early church was rebuilt in the 14th century in the Early Perpendicular style. It consisted of a nave, three aisles, north and south porches, a chancel and two chantry chapels, a sacristry or vestry and a massive western tower

ARCHBISHOPS OF CANTERBURY

It was in this 14th century building that no less than six Archbishops of Canterbury were buried. They are as follows:—

Edmund Grindall	1519—1583
John Whitgift	1530—1604
Gilbert Sheldon	1598—1677
William Wake	1657—1737
John Potter	1674—1747
Thomas Herring	1693—1757

The Old Palace (now a girls' Grammar School) was a residence of the Archbishops of Canterbury, and Croydon to this day is part of the Diocese of Canterbury. The Archdeaconry of Croydon forms an island between the Dioceses of Southwark and Rochester. The Archdeaconry itself was formed in 1930 and prior to that date Croydon was in the Archdeaconry of Maidstone.

THE GREAT FIRE OF 1867

On January 5th, 1867, the Parish Church of Croydon was burnt to a smouldering ruin. Rather than attempt to recreate the scene myself, I have copied the following article which appeared in a "Croydon Advertiser Special—Old and New Croydon Illustrated," published in May, 1894:—

"Saturday, January 5th, 1867, will ever be a memorable night in the history of Croydon. At about a quarter to eleven o'clock, Mr. James Skinner was wending his way home when he observed a light at the north end of the Parish Church, and shortly after, meeting Mr. Kilmaster, the then sexton, mentioned it. As Mr. Kilmaster knew the gas had not been lighted, he at once went to the building and discovered that a beam leading towards the roof had ignited. He raised an alarm, and the Volunteer Fire Brigade speedily set out from their station at the summit of Crown Hill and appeared in a few minutes at the church.

"A heavy snowstorm had covered the water-plugs, and a hose was attached to a plug inside the building as a temporary precaution while the other plugs were discovered. But a grave mistake had been made—someone had blundered. In the excitement and hurry in getting first to the scene of the fire, everyone had forgotten to call the turncock, and 35 minutes elapsed between the 'call' and the first flow of water, the sequel being that with the exception of the tower and the north and south walls, the entire fabric fell prey to the flames, and a victim to brigade mismanagement. The scene was surprisingly grand. Amid a plethora of devastation, a blinding snowstorm, accompanied by a heavy gale of wind, added to the terrors of the night and on every hand the fury of the elements—fire and water, hail and snow, wind and tempest—presented a spectacle that will never be forgotten by those who witnessed it.

BAFFLED DESCRIPTION

"Showers and sparks mingled with the snowflakes, and made a scene which baffles description. At half past eleven o'clock the roof fell in—an awful sight. Nor were the stained glass windows seen to such advantage as when lighted by fitful gleams from within presenting fantastical and weird devices without. The nave, the aisles, the chancel, the sacristry, the porches and the well-proportioned tower were now in the grip of a relentless master and before midnight the fine peal of bells had been silenced and displaced. Half an hour later the carcase of the west tower and two walls remained to mark what had an hour before been the pride of the town, and the product of a hundred generations.

"The fabric, including the organ and chancel, was insured for £10,800—a sum totally inadequate to cover the financial loss.

"As we have observed, the calamity took place on a Saturday night, and it is not, therefore, surprising to learn that but very few people knew of the disaster until service time on the Sunday, and many singular and some rather incongruous contretemps were experienced. Many who had braved the elements to attend divine service on the Sunday morning—old men and maidens, young men and children, and old ladies in pattens too—trotted along manfully (or womanly) regardless of frost, snow and wind, and only realised the disaster that prevented their intended devotions as they got to the precincts of the ruined edifice.

"Sixty volumes of registers and parish books escaped, but the tithe map and every document relating to tithes perished, save one. Deeds dating from 1277—1644 were destroyed."

And so ended an era of history in Croydon. As mentioned in the "Croydon Advertiser" report, the building, including the organ and chancel, was insured for only £10,800, which was totally inadequate to cover the cost of the loss involved. Yet the people of Croydon set their hearts to the work of rebuilding their Parish Church.

THE NEW PARISH CHURCH

And so it was, exactly three years after the fire that the Bishop of London, Dr. Jackson, came to Croydon to reconsecrate the church which is to be seen today. It was completed upon the old foundations in the same Perpendicular Gothic style under the direction of the late Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A., who then lived in Croydon. The eastern end of the building is 18 feet longer than the previous building, and is built of stone from the Ancaster and Godstone quarries, together with blue corsham Casterton stone which is intermixed.

Recent alterations to the church and its surroundings include the laying out of the churchyard as a garden of remembrance in memory of those who lost their lives in the last war, and the building of a new Church Hall. The pinnacles on the battlements of the roof have mostly been removed when it was found that their condition was becoming dangerous, and it was decided not to replace them. Inside the church, the tomb of Archbishop Sheldon has recently been restored to its condition before the fire. During an interregnum after the death of Archdeacon Tonks, who was Vicar of Croydon from 1948 until 1957, the church was cleaned internally and some of the stonework of 100 years ago looked like new once more. And so the life of Croydon Parish Church carries on amongst the people of the town. It is indeed a fine building and the people of the town are proud of their Parish Church. At the present time we have just remembered the fire of 100 years ago (without another fire!), and in three years time we shall be celebrating the centenary of the present building. All that remains for me now is to give a brief history of the tower and bells of the church.

In fact we know a fair amount about the first bells in the tower of the church, although we know nothing of their quality or weight. An entry in the Archiepiscopal Registers of Thomas Arundel, who was Archbishop of Canterbury from 1395 until 1414, records that "One John-de-Aldermaston, who was buried in ye Church, left by his will, XX sheep for the purchase of a Saunce (Saints) bell."

During the 16th century, it became the custom for Cathedrals to be allowed a ring of seven bells, and parish churches five bells. Croydon Parish Church was thus honoured with the full ring of five bells, evidence of which is to be found in the following entry in an inventory of the boy-King, Edward VI—"There are fyve belles in ye stepel and a Saunce bell."

THE ANCIENT SOCIETY OF CROYDON PARISH CHURCH BELLRINGERS

Later records show that this Society was formed in 1730, and there must have been eight bells in the tower by this time, as we have evidence that a peal of 5,040 Bob Triples was rung in the tower on January 17th, 1734, conducted by Joseph Levens. In 1738 a new octave was hung in the tower by the Whitechapel Foundry. The tenor became cracked in 1836 and was recast in that same year by William Mears, the weight being 22 cwt. 3 qr 7 lb. According to all accounts, these bells were highly thought of, as many records indicate a melodious ring of bells.

As recorded in the extract from the "Croydon Advertiser," regarding the fire, these bells were melted and ruined by the intense heat. So a new ring of bells was required for the reconsecration of the church. The new octave was installed by Messrs. John Taylor and Son of Loughborough in 1869. The new tenor weighed 30 cwt. and 21 lb. and was tuned to E flat.

THIS year at its 55th annual meeting, held at Lincoln on July 1st, the Ladies' Guild took on a "new look," which had a strong accent on the social side. The Lincolnshire District, who were hosts, laid on a wonderful programme which included a service in the Cathedral choir stalls, a buffet luncheon of home made delicacies in the Chapter House, a meeting in the Consistory Court, and a dinner and dance at Moor Lodge, Branston.

This was the third dinner the Guild had held, the last being five years ago for the jubilee. It was a happy moment for the president, Mrs. Jacqueline King, from Chepstow, in welcoming two founder members—Mrs. F. I. Hairs and Mrs. Mitchell. For the convenience of those travelling a distance, the Diocesan Hostel, adjoining the Cathedral, had been booked and the 33 beds available were taken.

The service was held in the choir of the Cathedral. More than 100 members and friends were present to be welcomed by the Dean (the Very Rev. Michael Peck). The sermon was given by the Sub-Dean (Canon P. B. G. Binnell), who asked the company to beware of "campanological snobbery." "There is many a village church where the bells are silent. It may be that some of you who can ring bells can make them speak again. Don't despise them. Remember they are the means by which God's people can be called to worship."

THE ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting, held in the Consistory Court in the Cathedral, was the shortest on record, proceedings being limited to 25 minutes. Because of a Confirmation in the Cathedral the meeting had to conclude by 2.30, and while the president was in the position to offer alternative accommodation the members preferred to adhere to the original venue.

Upon the proposal of Mrs. E. A. Barnett, the three retiring officers were re-elected, viz: Mrs. Jacqueline King, president; Miss Doris Coleman, hon. secretary; and Miss Joan Beresford, hon. treasurer. The hon. secretary, however, reminded the meeting that a new president would have to be found next year as the rules limited the period of office to three years. Nominations would have to be submitted four weeks before the annual general meeting.

Presenting the accounts, Miss Beresford said there had been an excess of income over expenditure of £1 16s., compared with a profit of £15 8s. 2d. the previous year. An unfortunate mishap had cost the Devon Branch £9, but this had been met locally by raffles and competitions. The Guild had a balance of £171 13s. 1d.

After the accounts had been adopted, Mrs. Jelley said the Leicester District thought that some of the money invested in the Post Office could be reinvested to produce a higher rate of interest; it could have made all the difference that year between a profit and a loss. It was agreed that Mrs. Slade be approached to make suggestions.

The meeting considered it was not necessary to raise the subscriptions (ringing 2s., under 16 1s., non-ringing life 5s., other life members £2 2s.).

The next annual meeting is to be held at St. Albans on the first Saturday in July. The proposition was made by Miss Valerie Ware, supported by Miss Freda Cannon. The North Western District would be hosts for 1969.

Proceedings concluded with a vote of thanks to the Dean and Chapter, Mr. P. Marshall and Mr. Jack Millhouse and Mrs. Richardson and her helpers for the excellent buffet. The hon. secretary was also thanked for her services.

Apologies for absence were received from Mrs. Lock, Miss Andrews, Miss Earl, Miss Stevens, Mrs. Slade, Miss Wain, Mrs. Llewellyn, Mrs. Coles, Mrs. Lucas, Mrs. Dobbie, Mrs. Hairs and Mrs. Feirn.

THE DINNER

A company of more than 100 attended the dinner at Moor Lodge, Branston. Speeches were bright and entertaining and an interval was provided by a touch of Stedman Triples rung by Mrs. E. A Barnett, Mrs. F. I. Hairs, Mrs. P. Staniforth and Miss J. Beresford. The president was in the chair, and the guest of honour was Canon P. B. G. Binnell. Mr. Peter J. Staniforth was the toastmaster.

After the loyal toast had been proposed from the chair, Mrs. H. L. Parfrey (vice-president of the Western District) proposed the toast of "The Church." "What do we mean when we think of the Church?" she asked. "I think if we are truly honest and as we are ringers our first thought is 'How many?' and our second 'How heavy?'

"In our more serious moments we are led on to think of how these wonderful bells we are privileged to ring came to be there. Not by accident, but as the result of the love and energies of churchmen and churchwomen through the ages who believed so strongly in what they had found that they wanted to share it with all those who had ears to hear.

"These beautiful buildings stand as a witness to the faith of generations of Christians, and what better example could we have than the faith which enabled men to have the vision to build the magnificent Cathedral here in Lincoln and to continue to maintain it! But these churches are only buildings and whether they are beautiful cathedrals or tin mission huts, should they be destroyed services would go on amongst the ruins and the true Church would rise triumphant.

"The true Church was the people, and whether we are always worthy of our calling is doubtful, but members we are and whether we meet and worship in a church or in the open air in whatever part of the world, whether we are Church of England or any other denomination matters not; we are the Church, and that is the toast I now give you."

Canon Binnell, the Sub-Dean of Lincoln, replied, describing himself as the "toastee." Bellringing, he said, always seemed to be a form of activity of which there were two aspects—the practical and technical of which he knew nothing, and the social and the moral about which he knew something and about which he had learned a lot in the last three-quarters of an hour.

One of the oldest set of ringers' rules was in a little church near Gainsborough and one of them read "If you quarrel in this place you shall not ring in any case." It was a rule to remember in these days. The ringers, however, were such a united body of men, women and children that the Church owed them a great debt of gratitude for the wonderful amount of work they did in reinforcing the ministry. The Church tried to teach that work done to the glory of God was the highest form of human endeavour.

The world would not stop if they stopped ringing; people would still go on making money, but he could not help feeling that, like artists, they did an enormous amount of good, and on behalf of the many thousands of members of the Church he thanked them very much.

Mr. John Freeman, vice-president of the Central Council and secretary of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild, proposed "The Ladies' Guild." He recalled that the previous visit of the Guild to Lincoln was 17 years ago and as a result it was then that his hair started turning grey!

Probably associated with an ancestor of one of their esteemed members was an old bell inscribed "Gill Poole Christened Mee 1620." Around the soundbow was "My candle burns at both ends, it will not last the night, but ah I close and oh my friend it gives a lovely light."

Their Guild had existed for nearly 55 years and at the time of its foundation the following poem was written:

Like a breath of summer laden,
Like a cheery ray of hope,
Is the sight of gentle maiden,
Deftly handling of a rope.
Welcome girlhood to our science,
Sunlight sweet our pathway cross,
You can win by the alliance
All the silver from our dross.

FAMOUS LINCOLNSHIRE LADIES

When that poem was written many doubted if women would make good in the belfry, but events had proved otherwise. In Lincolnshire they had Mrs. Richardson, who took part in Great Adventure I and rang in the third peal even rung by a band of ladies. Then there was Mrs. Jack Bray, who rang in the first peal of 100 Minor methods and, after the war, in the first peal of 100 methods "in hand." Later came Betty Brown, who took part in a peal of Surprise Major in 32 methods.

Despite these achievements, the Cathedral band would not have lady ringers and preferred to keep the company all male. In the 1950's they realised that this was wrong and they had a young lady who was equal to Betty Brown and now they had a second lady.

The ladies had established themselves in the ringing Exercise and their organisation had played its part. They found in the Guild (Lincoln) that attendances at meetings were not as they should be and he thought it was time that Guilds should change their outlook. Whatever the pattern might be in the future the male members would wish the Ladies' Guild prosperity in the future.

The president, in reply, thanked Mr. Freeman and said they had enjoyed their "new look" meeting; everything had gone well and their business meeting was over in a record time of 25 minutes. Their thanks were due to Mrs. Richardson and her hard-working band of helpers and Mrs. Staniforth for this "new look."

TWO FOUNDER MEMBERS

Those present were gathered from all quarters of the country—from England and Wales. They had people with them who had covered a distance of 200 miles and some got up at 3 a.m. that day to be with them. Although being in existence for 55 years they were still active and prepared to make changes. They still had 11 Districts and over 400 members. They were fortunate to have with them two founder members—Mrs. Hairs and Mrs. Mitchell, and she sincerely hoped that they would continue to enjoy their membership.

As Mr. Freeman had said, when the Guild was first formed gentlemen were opposed to having ladies in the belfry, and now their best supporters were the gentlemen, who contributed to the attendance at their meetings by exceeding the ladies by three or four to one. They were delighted to have them.

A Vicar of Chepstow wrote in 1887 concerning ringers: "If the greater glory of God is the true motive of the work then it must be crowned with success." The presence of ladies in the belfry had helped to crown that success.

"Let us have a few more lady representatives on the Central Council," implored the president. "There are some things men know more about and some that women can do better."

"The Visitors" were toasted on the call of Mrs. Staniforth, who in particular welcomed Mr. and Mrs. E. Rawson, of Leicester, who were present at Washington for the wedding of Mr. Dirksen and met two of their members—Miss Betsy Proctor and Miss C. Kelsey.

Mr. A. J. Poyner, secretary of the Leicester Guild, replied, and congratulated the ladies on their touch of Stedman Cinques at the Cathedral and also the ladies who rang the touch so well at Exeter Cathedral.

A pleasing ceremony concluded the speeches by the president making a presentation to Mrs. Richardson of a box of chocolates.

Thanking the Guild, Mrs. Richardson said she had had support from every member of the District, and to them and her daughter the thanks were due.

The evening concluded with dancing.

THE COMPANY

The president and her husband (Mr. David King) were supported on the top table by Mr. and Mrs. John Freeman, Canon P. G. B. and Mrs. Binnell, Miss D. Colgate, Mrs. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bray, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Staniforth, Mrs. Joan Beresford, Mr. and Mrs. Parfrey, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. White, Miss S. Chesterton, Mr. A. J. Poyner and Mrs. B. Jackson.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

West Dorset Branch

Loder was the tower chosen for the West Dorset Branch meeting on June 24th, when five towers were represented. The Guild service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. O. L. Willmott. Tea was partaken in the Vicarage, where the kindest of welcomes was given by the Vicar and Mrs. Willmott.

The business meeting followed and in the absence of the chairman the Rev. O. L. Willmott (vice-chairman) presided.

Two new members were elected—Miss Verity Penney (Beaminster) and Frank Goad (Loders). Members stood in a silent tribute to Wilf Paul (Bridport) and Mrs. Mead (Bradpole), who rang in the only all-ladies' quarter peal for the Branch. Later in the evening a band of ringers from Devon rang the bells, in the traditional Devon style, rise—call changes— and fall, which produced some good striking.

Next quarterly meeting: Whitechurch Canonicorum, September 24th. Practice meetings: Melbury Osmond, August 9th; Thorncombe, September 13th; and Halstock, October 11th; all subject to confirmation. J. D.

Teaching a Class Handbell Ringing

In response to an inquiry from someone with no experience of how to introduce tune ringing on handbells to a class of 42 eight-year-olds, Mr. Norman Chaddock makes the following suggestions.

THE FIRST FOUR LESSONS

ASSUMPTIONS

(1) Teacher knows little or no music.
(2) Class is about 40 in number.
(3) Twenty-two bells are available, probably diatonic scale (no sharps or flats). The key does not matter unless other instruments are to accompany the bells. Notes will thus be (up the scale) Doh—through three octaves to top Doh.

Lesson 1.—Select eight pupils and have them face the class. If possible, include any pupils known to have musical experience (recorders, etc.). Train them to ring down the scale, ring-the bell either up or down only. For the beat, count (aloud at first) 1, 2, 3, 4; 1, 2, 3, 4 (not 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8).

Deal suitably with any difficulties in handling and striking the bells. Give larger bells to larger pupils. A pupil may need both hands for a big bell.

Repeat the above with a set of eight girls, then with a set of eight boys.

Now choose eight pupils who have not had a go. When they can strike the bells, drill them to produce a tune in the following manner. (The teacher must know the notes of the tune or have previously written them down on a bit of paper in the sequence in which they should be sounded.)

Tell pupils to ring their bell once each time you point to them distinctly. Now do the necessary pointing, possibly aided by the bit of paper on which the sequence has been written down.

By now all have had a go at something and much fun will have ensued. Appetites will have been whetted for the next lesson.

Lesson 2.—Give out all 22 bells, one between two pupils. Count aloud four beats to a bar, 1, 2, 3, 4; 1, 2, 3, 4; 1, 2, 3, 4, and first instruct those with a bell to ring it on every first beat. (Disregard the disharmony.) Change bells to other pupils and have them strike on the third beat. Now try half-class ringing bells on the first beat and the other half do hand-claps on the third beat. Develop this further using other beats and variations until sense of rhythm is satisfactory.

Now divide the bells into two sets, 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, 11, 13, 15, 17, 19, 21, and 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22 (numbered down the scale). Each set alone will roughly harmonise. Call one set "Reds" and the other "Blues."

Chalk up music staves (five lines) with bar markings and four beats to a bar on the blackboard Put red "blobs" on some beats and blue "blobs" on others to represent notes. Now count aloud 1, 2, 3, 4; 1, 2, 3, 4 and moving pointer progressively in time along the bars chalked on the blackboard. Instruct pupils to count to themselves in time and the "red" set to ring when you point to red "blobs" and the blues to ring when you point to blue "blobs."

Develop this further to more complicated arrangements, letting all pupils take turn.

Now add the leger line for note C to the five-line stave and teach the pupils that each line and each space represents a note, and show how to represent notes C, D, E, F, G, A, B, C (Doh, Ray, Me, Fah, Soh, Lah, Te, Doh) on the staves.

All a pupil needs to know is which line or space represents his particular bell, e.g. pupil with "E" (or note Me) in a tune only watches for notes on the bottom of the five lines.

Now put some notes on the board as before but representing down the scale (Doh, Te, Lah, Soh Fah, Me, Ray, Doh) on beats 1, 2, 3, 4; 1, 2, 3, 4. Now point in sequence and get the pupils playing down the scale. As we have three octaves, three bells will ring simultaneously on each beat. Now try other sequences (Queens, etc.).

Before the next lesson, prepare a blackboard music score of a tune known to children. A little harmony may be included. Use colour to help pupils identify their own notes.

Lesson 3.—Practise the prepared tune, pointing and counting as before All bells may be used by repeating the melody an octave lower or higher. Give all pupils a turn at the tune. Now practise pupils in emphasising first beat and to play loud or soft as required.

Non-playing pupils may perhaps hum softly to retain interest.

At this stage the teacher may have recognised talented pupils and be able to start an after-school group, which could make rapid progress in handbell tune ringing.

Lesson Four.—This may be devoted to:—

(a) A new tune.
(b) Explanation and a little practice in ringing on the half-beat (the "and"), e.g.: 1-and-2-3-4, etc.
(c) Practice in other rhythms (1, 2, 3; 1, 2, 3, etc.).
(d) Training in ringing two bells (one in each hand).
(e) Ringing a bell "across" instead of up and down.
(f) Scales on exercises leading to "changes" (five or six or eight beats to a bar).
(g) Practising "introductions," such as ringing down the scale, ending with a chord on top Doh, Soh, Me and bottom Doh.

OBSERVATIONS

Aims of the above lesson include:—

(1) Quick sense of achievement.
(2) Achievement of rhythm and sense of pitch.
(3) Introduction to reading music.
(4) Concentration and co-ordination.

The lessons may be linked with folklore (bells and tunes) and movement.

The help of the music teacher should, if necessary, be sought.

The above material, with additions, could be spread over a greater number of lessons. It may have to be adapted to bells available. It may be possible to mix with other instruments such as recorders, chink bars, melodicas, etc.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

The beautiful church at Langar, often called the Cathedral of the Vale, attracted over 40 ringers to the Bingham District meeting on June 10th. Twelve towers were represented, the most at any District meeting this year, despite the long draught to the bells.

The Rev. G. Turner (Holme Pierrepont) conducted the service. Tea was rather crowded in the small village school, and the collection for the Bell Repair Fund realised £2 15s.

Next meeting: Cotgrave, July 15th. Joint meeting with Melton, possibly at Eaton, on August 19th.

Letters to the Editor

ST. AUSTELL'S BELLS

Dear Sir,—One is tempted to ask exactly what Mr. Dawson is getting at in his letter in the June 30th issue. Is he perhaps suggesting that this is a case of a local firm interfering in the Church's affairs for the sake of publicity, and thereby depriving specialist bell-hangers of what they consider their rightful jobs? If he is, he can hardly be aware of the facts. Messrs. English, Clays, Lovering, Pochin and Co. are by far the largest employers in the St. Austell area, and for generations the majority of worshippers at Holy Trinity Church have been clay workers. Thus there are very close ties, both social and economic, between the clayworks and the parish, for, after all, china-clay has brought trade and employment to an otherwise depressed area; in fact in the Church of St. Stephen-in-Brannell a few miles away, there is a stained glass window dedicated to the clayworkers. What, then, could be more apt than that these already close ties should be strengthened by the generous action of ECLP in overhauling the bells of the Parish Church?

To judge by his remarks, Mr. Dawson also seems to suggest that a cheapjack job was done. However, ECLP have considerable experience of heavy engineering, and if Mr. Dawson had seen some of the machinery they deal with he would soon realise that re-hanging an 18 cwt. eight was child's play to them.

There would hardly be room to recast the bells in the churchyard, but in spite of Mr. Dawson's remarks, Messrs. ECLP would no doubt overcome this with typical Cornish skill and resourcefulness and produce a first-class job!—Yours faithfully,

BOB BUNKER
(of St. Austell stock).

CASTLE CARY SURPRISE MAJOR

Dear Sir,—This is not the first peal in the method (page 459) notation. The same notation appears on page 463 under the name Greybury rung at Edenbridge on September 24th, 1966.—Yours faithfully,

G. E. THODAY.

SUPPORT FOR "SEMI-LEARNERS"

Dear Sir,—I would like to associate myself with the letter "Semi-learners' Grievance" (page 436). Some ringers not only expect a learner to jump from Plain to Surprise but what is more they soon tire of giving any more help. Even in trying to teach plain methods the displays of temper met with today were not even dreamt of years ago, and continual shouting disheartens any learner. It is not unusual to see the bells at a meeting used for long touches of spliced, as if in demonstration, and poor learners wander off in disgust, perhaps without a ring.

Bells are expected to be at their disposal for some Surprise peal without any consideration for local bands or learners.

Let us see more friendly welcome for learners any time and the return of quiet words of guidance, and less of shoddy loose ways of ringing, as much can be gained from example as precept.

Take heart then all you semi-learners because to have attained a peal of Surprise is not to have reached the heavens.—Yours sincerely,

A. W. H. RAXTER.

Droitwich.

SEMI-LEARNER'S STORY

Dear Sir,—Re the letter from "Semi-Learners" on June 23rd; I know exactly how they must feel, as I still regard myself as a semi-learner.

I have been in contact with people who as soon as they graduate to ringing "inside" to Grandsire, etc., feel they are beyond the beginner stage and then set about criticising the way other people ring, but are not prepared to impart their wealth of knowledge to the benefit of their own tower. This happens so often in the area where I ring. I must admit that when visiting other towers I have always found most of the ringers very helpful. I do meet the occasional one who believes he is a cut above everyone else, but if asked to call a touch of Grandsire usually says "Sorry, I'm afraid I don't know how to." I usually find that the more elderly ringers with whom I come into contact are most helpful and always prepared to give guidance in my struggle to progress.

I think the most embarrassing moment I have had when visiting a tower is when someone in a very loud voice for all to hear criticises your ringing and then, after you have curled up on the floor, says "You don't mind me telling you, do you?"

Perhaps if the critics would use a little more tact when they have a point to make, they would probably get better response from the learner. As far as our Branch meetings go, we do get quite a good response from all grades of ringers. Sometimes I'll admit the Ringing Master may take advantage of this and call for the more advanced methods instead of encouraging those ringers to stand by a learner. But this is not always their fault, because in ringing, as in many other things, if you don't ask you don't get.

Your correspondents will probably ask themselves whether or not it is worth continuing with their ringing; they must remember that they are doing a service to the Church and ringing to the glory of God, and must be patient and not take any show of temper by the more advanced ringers too much to heart. As long as they feel they are doing their best, then with patience they will win through.

Their point about ringing in Surprise methods after just progressing from badly-struck Plain Bob and the like doesn't really make a lot of sense. Surely if you can only ring badly-struck Plain Bob then the thing to do is to insist that you are not encouraged or forced into ringing Surprise methods until you are sure in your own mind that you are able to ring the simpler methods well. If of course you get pushed into these things and you are not sure of yourself then tell the conductor that you are not sure of the methods and then they have only themselves to blame if you go wrong.—Yours faithfully,

STILL LEARNING.

SILEBY PARISH CHURCH

Dear Sir,—I would like to draw attention to an error in the notes on the bells of Sileby Parish Church (page 430). The date of the fifth bell given as 1590 cannot be correct. George Oldfield, whose mark is on the bell, was in charge of the Nottingham foundry from 1620 to 1680, when he died. — Yours faithfully,

GEORGE A DAWSON.

Nottingham.

SWEEP THE FLOOR TEST

Dear Sir,—While "The Ringing World" provides some very interesting ringing news it also prints its fair share of tripe as well, and one such point lately has been about which hand should or should not be in front. Five of the West Down team are what we call 'left hand afore" and I think I can fairly say that as ringers they are as good as the right-handed men. This "clipping back stroke, "stronger right arms" and "the way ropes are twisted" is about the biggest load of bull ever.

When we have a learner come into the tower the first thing we do is to give him or her the sweeping brush and ask them to sweep the floor, and which hand "afore" they are—that's it. Then we show them how to coil the rope and then to raise the bell and lower it; by doing this the learner finds the weight of the bell, and unfortunate accidents like the one recently reported will be less likely to happen. Surely these people who learn to ring from the set position don't learn to drive a car from the top of the nearest hill in top gear. If bells were meant to be rung from the set position the bell founders would surely hang them that way. —Yours faithfully,

MERVYN PHILLIPS.

West Down North Devon.

WANTS SET CHARGES FOR PEALS AND QUARTERS

Dear Sir,—I look forward to the time when there is a set charge for the insertion of quarter peals and peals. It has always seemed inequitable that there should be any differentiation in this matter. Quarter peals are as often as not rung for some local event or service, generally purposes for which one would suppose the bells are there. Peals, on the other hand, are usually a performance personal to the ringers only.

In my experience, it is the large proportion of "The Ringing World" devoted to the publication of peals that discourages the new non-peal-ringing reader On the other hand, people who ring peals often, it seems to me, consider these reports the most important part of the paper. As this section probably forms the greater part of your readers it would be difficult to depart from the status quo and for this reason to increase the circulation.

You have my sympathy and best wishes!—Yours sincerely,

FRED GOODFELLOW.

Ivet Heath.

SCOPE OF A NEW BOOK

Dear Sir,—The most recent publication of the College of Campanology (late) receives kindly mention in the annual report of the Council's librarian, as seen in the issue of "The Ringing World" dated June 16th, where it is noted as "Method Structure in Change Ringing Part II." Unfortunately this would imply that the work is in two "parts," which is incorrect.

It is, however, the second of a series of nine projected works under the general title of "The Ringers' Manual of Reference," and this sub-title as to the nine parts may have given rise to the misnomer.

We hope this explanation may satisfy intending purchasers of the book on method structure that it is, in fact, complete in itself.—Yours sincerely,

A. YORK-BRAMBLE.

Southsea.

A GOSPEL OAK DISSOCIATION

Dear Sir,—Re the letter by Mr. Hutchinson in the "Ringing World" for June 23rd on the subject of the Gospel Oak peal, may I ask readers to note the following points:

(i) I am no longer secretary of the U.L.S.C.R. and my views should not be taken as those of that Society; even if I was, personal views should not be a reflection of the policy of a Society.

(ii) The fact that I said I had never heard of the gentleman concerned does not mean that I have denied his existence.

(iii) The remark I made was made to Mr. John Pladdys (not Mr. Hutchinson) in a casual vein. As that remark was used in the letter without my permission, and as I wish to dissociate myself with the peal entirely, I ask readers to disregard this section of Mr Hutchinson's letter.—Yours sincerely,

DAVID J. CAWLEY.

Whitstable.

ROPE FLY-OUT

Dear Sir,—May I make an observation on "Tuition Teasers" No. 4—Rope Flyout?

The main reason is that the hand holding the tail-end is allowed to travel behind the ringer at the end of its backstroke pull (when the hands are at full stretch downwards). This can be avoided simply by ringing with both hands always held in front of the body.

I do not pretend that this is the only cause of rope fly-out—you should see me on practice night!—but it is the main cause.—Yours faithfully,

KEITH J. WALPOLE.

Liverpool.

LINCOLNSHIRE SURPRISE

Dear Sir,—I would like to comment on Simon Humphrey's excellent composition of 5,376 Lincolnshire Surprise Major, which appeared in the June 23rd issue of "The Ringing World." I feel that its simplicity and musical qualities should make it a standard Lincolnshire composition, but it has the slight disadvantage of being longer than the "normal" peal length. I would like to point out that it can be reduced to 5,152 by omitting the first Wrong in each part and omitting the first pair of singles in any one part. It then contains the same number of combination courses with 83 roll-ups and the first part-end is 23564.

I give notice of an attempt for 6,048 Lincolnshire Surprise Major at Gressenhall, Norfolk, on Saturday, July 22nd, starting at 5.30 p.m.—Yours sincerely,

TIMOTHY G. PETT.

Herne Hill, S.E.

HINDENBURG LINE STORMED

Dear Sir,—I was very interested in the article by Lt.-Col. C. F. Jerram, of the storming of the Hindenburg line by the 46th Division. I was in the 57th Division who, combined with the 52nd Lowland Division and 63rd Naval Division formed the XVII Corps under Lt.-Gen. Sir G. Fergusson.

We attacked this line on August 27th, 1918, on a front 2,000 yards wide, at Hendecourt and Riencourt. At the end of a week of hard fighting we had advanced to Inchy. Our Division took 1,780 prisoners. Our casualties were 73 officers and 1,630 other ranks, killed and wounded. I am still happy to be able to do a little ringing.—Yours faithfully,

WILLIAM G. LAVERS.

Plympton.

LEARN YOUR METHOD FIRST

Dear Sir,—In a recent issue a group of ringers calling themselves "Semi-Learners" wrote complaining about the treatment they receive at meetings, but have they considered the other side of the argument. Only too often at meetings the ringing is ruined by people catching hold to ring in methods about which they have only vague knowledge. If you are a learner there is no harm in having someone standing behind you to help with the ropesight, but this is all they should be there for. If you do not know the method well enough to ring it without constant prompting, then you should not be ringing it.

This applies even more so to Surprise ringing, for although most prospective Surprise ringers have adequate ropesight, far fewer have a proper knowledge of the method they are ringing. Hasty glances at the blue line, only knowing the start of one bell, and utter confusion when a bob is called are examples of this. To my mind anybody attempting to ring Surprise should first of all learn the method properly, and this means knowing not only the blue line, but all the starts, and consequently the work at a bob. So, "Semi-Learners" first of all learn you methods properly before coming to meetings and then you will find the more expert ringers ready to encourage and help you.—Yours faithfully.

ROBIN COLLIS.

Twickenham.

INCORRECTLY NAMED

Dear Sir,—It seems that the peal of Castle Cary Surprise Major rung at Castle Cary on June 10th (page 459) is incorrectly named and cannot claim to be the first peal in the method A peal in the method was rung at Edenbridge on September 24th, 1966, under the name of Greybury (page 658). In fact Greybury itself appears in the synopsis of new methods rung to peals last year (No. 16C) published in the same issue as this peal at Castle Cary.—Yours sincerely,

PETER H. MACKIE.

Wellesbourne, Warks.

NEW METHODS NAMED

Dear Sir,—In the report of a peal at Barrowby, Lincolnshire, rung on May 4th, 1967, and published on page 382 of "The Ringing World," two methods were designated "A" and "B." Names for these have now been suggested:

Stedman Slow Course with an Old Bob single as the call ("A") is Barrowby.

Coxwell Place ditto ("B") is St. Wulfram.

Also, St. Botolph ditto is Barkston.—Yours sincerely,

DENIS A FRITH.

Grantham.

METHOD NAMES

Dear Sir,—I would like to point out that the method rung to the peal at Castle Cary and published on page 459 is in fact Greybury Surprise Major and not a new method. It is somewhat ironical that the correct name for it appears in the same issue in Appendix C. While writing, Method 20C in that list should read Erewash.

Incidentally, one of the corrections to Cyril Wratten's collection of Surprise compositions is incorrect in that g. should read "54263 2M. 2W H LBWWWWWBL" and not 2H.—Yours sincerely,

DEREK E. SIBSON.

Putney, London.

HALLOWING OF WYMONDHAM ABBEY'S RING OF TEN

By the REV. J. G. TANSLEY THOMAS

SOME four years ago the task of repointing the great west tower at Wymondham was begun. The tower had to be completely surrounded with scaffolding from the ground to the top. When the work had been commenced very serious cracks were discovered in the fabric of the tower. They were mainly vertical cracks, some of them up to 20 feet in length and showing daylight right through the massive walls. One crack, when cleaned out, was over a foot wide in one place.

This meant that the Church Council had to take expert advice as to what had caused this severe and dangerous cracking. The findings of the three experts, consulted quite separately, was that the most likely cause, and the only one which could be taken seriously, was the fact that when the magnificent new oak frame was put in, in 1902, and the ring increased from five bells to eight, the frame was built much too near the top of the tower. We were therefore instructed that it would be unsafe to ring the bells again until the bell frame could be re-erected at a lower level, at least 15 feet below its original position.

It was decided to put this work in hand, and meanwhile the fabric of the tower was completely restored under the direction of the Abbey architect, Mr. Bernard Feilden, who is also the architect of Norwich Cathedral and York Minster.

Lowering the bell frame meant the provision of a new floor to hold it. This floor is made of reinforced concrete and weighs, together with the ring-beam let into the walls all round, some 52 tons.

Since the bells had to come out of the tower while this work was in progress it was felt the opportunity should be taken to have them tuned at the same time. But it was realised by the Church Council that once the bells were back in the tower there would be no question of them coming out again just for recasting, for several generations. If they were going to be recast, or made into a first-class ring, this was the only opportunity Wymondham would have of doing it for very many years. Consequently the order was placed with the Whitechapel Bell Foundry to recast the eight bells and return them in tip-top condition.

The next phase introduces into the picture the generous offer of the Wymondham and Attleborough Round Table to provide the Abbey with an extra bell, and this was capped by the anonymous offer of another to increase the ring to the perfect number of ten. This last bell has been inscribed with the name of our late Ringing Master for 31 years, William Clover, who held this office from 1936 till 1967, but who died suddenly before the casting of the two extra bells had been carried out. It will be a fitting tribute to his memory and to his devoted and wonderful work as a ringer.

The bells are to be hallowed by the Bishop of Thetford on Saturday, July 29th, at 3 p.m., when Canon Gilbert Thurlow, president of the Central Council of Church Bellringers, will preach.

In all the task will have cost about £20,000 and we are still looking for the last £1,000. The bells will ring out soon again over the ancient town and parish of Wymondham. They will be lovelier than ever before, a witness to the faith there is in us, and they will be a fitting ring for Wymondham's incredibly beautiful Abbey Church, 860 years old this year.

Anzab Annual Meeting and Festival

THE two Victorian towns of Ballarat and Bendigo were hosts to the sixth ANZAB Festival of Ringing and annual Council meeting on the holiday week-end of June 10th–12th. As Ballarat has the reputation of being one of the coldest towns in Australia everyone came prepared to do a quiet freeze from the feet up, but the weather all over the continent was unseasonably warm and the week-end was fine and mild.

There were 14 ringers from New South Wales and nine from South Australia as well as about 15 who came up from Melbourne. Add to these two itinerant ringers returning to the mainland from Tasmania and two visitors from Canberra. Then, with the local Ballarat ringers you have nearly 50 people to accommodate in two eight-bell towers. Somehow it was done. Starting with a pre- and post-wedding ring at St. Peter's before lunch, the ringing went on during the afternoon, the retiring president, Bill Pitcher, taking half the number at the City Hall while Tom Goodyer supervised the ringing at St. Peter's. In mid-afternoon the two bands switched towers. Although it did not work out quite according to plan, there was a lot of ringing from rounds to Cambridge Surprise Major.

THE COUNCIL MEETING

Ringing finished at 5 p.m. and after a brief respite between 50 and 60 ringers sat down to an excellent dinner in Craig's Royal Hotel. Guests at the dinner were Councillor and Mrs. Roff and Fr. and Mrs. Cracknell of St. Peter's. When the meal was finished the annual Council meeting began, chaired by Bill Pitcher. Because of an ambiguity in the present constitution, every chairman has to decide afresh each year whether to confine business to the delegates or to allow other members present to take part as well. The president said he would limit it to the delegates, but soon showed that he was quite prepared to change his mind when events more or less demanded it.

The committee appointed last year to review the constitution could not present a report as one of the members had not replied to the convener's draft. The chairman outlined the various views and then gave Bill Watson the opportunity of expressing in his inimitable way his ideas of how a democratic Society should operate. It was soon obvious that the majority of the members at the meeting were in favour of abolishing the delegate system.

Although supplies of the Association badge are still not yet ready, a discussion on exactly to whom they should be available produced a chairman's dilemma when three motions covering pretty well all contingencies were successively lost. The chairman adjourned the meeting for ten minutes and on resumption threw the question open to the whole assembly. It was quickly apparent that almost everyone was in agreement with the suggestion that the badges should be available to all members of State branches of ANZAB and to any other such persons as the Branch might decide.

THE CANBERRA CARILLON

The president reviewed the correspondence he had had with the Prime Minister and with Canon Thurlow and read out the unanimous resolution of the Central Council supporting the plea that a ring of bells at least be included. This had been transmitted to him by Victor Sheppard. The meeting seemed to think that as much had been done as could be done at this stage and while awaiting developments it was agreed that all members who felt able would approach their local Members of Parliament.

The St. George's, Perth, Restoration Appeal was considered and it was decided to donate $50 from the Association's funds. Neville Gower offered to pass round a hat, which he did the following evening and collected $13 As it appeared almost certain that the St. George's Cathedral bells will not be available next years, the offer of the S.A. Branch to hold the next meeting in Adelaide in June, 1968, was accepted.

REPORTS

Philip Gray's report on the Central Council meeting at Nottingham, with its news of a fierce "Ringing World" debate, was read. The treasurer revealed that the Association's bank balance was higher than last year, and likewise the "Ringing Towers" report showed a profit of $18 against a very small loss last year. The circulation of the journal of 220 copies for May, 1967, was a small advance on that of May, 1966. The president in his report said that he saw encouraging signs for the future in the young bands that were being built up in various centres.

NEW OFFICERS

The elections resulted in Jack Roper, of St. Paul's, Melbourne, becoming the new president—his second term of office. Richard Jolly was re-elected secretary with Phillina Lamphee his assistant, and Ken Minchinton remains the treasurer. Neville Gower, of St. Andrew's, Walkerville, was elected peal secretary, and then came what might have been the crux of the meeting, the election of a new editor of "Ringing Towers" to replace Bill Pitcher, who had held that post for five years but who had intimated that he could no longer carry on. On behalf of the New South Wales Branch, Tom Goodyer announced that Jack Cummins, a former editor of "Ringing Towers" when it was the journal of the N.S.W. Association, was willing to offer himself as editor with the assistance of certain other members of the N.S.W. Branch—and was promptly elected, the president expressing his heartfelt thanks that "Ringing Towers" would go on, and in such capable hands.

CHANGE OF LOCATION

On Sunday morning, while some were ringing for service at St. Peter's, a band with ringers from three States completed a quarter peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major at the City Hall, rung in honour of the centenary of the "Ballaratt Courier," which newspaper had always been kindly disposed to the local ringers. Some general ringing followed and then everyone piled into motor cars of all descriptions for the 75-odd mile journey to Bendigo. Here the tower at St. Paul's was even more crowded though a great deal of ringing was accomplished, both then and on Monday morning, Grandsire and Stedman, Kent Minor and Major, Cambridge Surprise Minor and Major and Yorkshire and Superlative Surprise Major being among the repertoire. The highlights of the ringing were a fast but cleanly-struck course of Cambridge, a fine three-course touch of Stedman Triples as a service touch before the 5 p.m. Evensong and a grand course of Superlative which closed the ringing on Monday morning.

That attractive affair, a progressive dinner, occupied the Sunday evening when in turn the Robertsons, the Martins and the Wilsons suffered ravenous hordes to tramp in and out of their houses for the various courses of the meal, the progress from one part of Bendigo to the other taking the form of what must have looked like a fast-moving night funeral without a hearse. There was certainly no solemnity; it was all extremely enjoyable and convivial and finished with a showing of some of Warne Wilson's and Bill Pitcher's ringing films, though Jack Roper had the final say on the piano.

Lunch on Monday took the form of the traditional barbecu held at Lake Eppalock, an irrigation reservoir some miles out of Bendigo. A stream of cars drew up in more or less orderly fashion in a very pleasant setting where the cooks were already turning the chops and snags. No sooner had Bill Watson remarked on the absence of birds when a noisy miner and a number of lorikeets fluttered into the trees, and Tom Goodyer was handing him field glasses and an open copy of "What Bird is That?" Claret or soft drink in hand, a great gathering of ringers filed past the barbecues and side tables and enjoyed a wonderful meal—when they weren't dodging the cameras. It was perhaps the best barbecue we have seen and was a fitting climax to an excellently organised week-end. If they did not remark on it, everyone must have realised what a debt of gratitude the Association owes to Bill Robertson and his fellow workers in Bendigo, and Warne Wilson and Alex Herrmann in their workers in Ballarat.

The meeting slowly broke up during the afternoon as the journeys home began—to Melbourne, Adelaide or Sydney. W.B.F.

OUTINGS

ST. AMBROSE'S, BRISTOL

Taking advantage of the Severn Bridge, ringers and friends of St. Ambrose's, Bristol, spent an enjoyable day in Wales on May 13th. The first tower visited was at Monmouth, reached via the Wye Valley; then came a good 12 cwt. six at Cwmcarvan. Before ringing at Dingestow (5), the Vicar kindly inviting us to have coffee with him at the Vicarage. Tregare (a 10 cwt. ring of five) was the last tower before lunch at the Cross Keys Inn at Usk.

The first tower of the afternoon was at Llangibby, a ground-floor eight, with broken stays on two of the bells. We were met here by Mr. Bill Stoat, of Coventry, and ringing up to Cambridge Major was enjoyed. Tredunnock (6) has another ground-floor ring, also the eight at Llanfrechfa, where the trebles are the only bells that can be heard, as they are hung at a lower level. After tea we sampled the excellent steel bells at Bassaleg and the good eight at All Saints', Newport. Supper was taken at the Greyhound Hotel, Chepstow, and this was followed by handbell ringing. Chepstow was left at 10 p.m. and Bristol reached half an hour later.

ADVENTURE IN SUFFOLK

Another memorable outing for St. Mary's, Peterborough, and many friends took place on May 29th. The round trip of 11 very fine towers in West Suffolk, covering approximately 270 miles, was ably organised by our vice-captain, Mr. Geoff Davis. Earl Soham, Laxfield, Yoxford. Southwold, Blythburgh, Kelsale, Saxmundham, Aldeburgh, Woodbridge, Otley and Ashbocking, all with excellent rings, provided us with pleasure well worth the effort of an early start (6.30 a.m.)

First tower on the list was reached at 9 a.m. and, to our great surprise, 14 turned up. By the time we reached the third tower our numbers totalled around 30.

Ringing throughout the day, supervised by Mr. Cowlin (who had broken his Lincolnshire holiday to join us), was good except for Aldeburgh (8), where we could not seem to settle down. Justice was certainly not done to this fine ring.

Our apologies to Ashbocking, our last tower, and only mishap. Treble going! Stay gone!

The end of a tiring but very happy day and home we go. Thank you for making us to welcome, Suffolk, and thanks to all tower captains and incumbents for the use of your bells.

No one told us that the ring at Laxfield was anticlockwise. Ever tried raising in peal backwards? P.A.S.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Accompanied by the Association president (Mr. E. Newnham) the Eastern District had a successful outing into Essex and Suffolk on June 10th.

Ringing started on the easy-going eight at Braintree, followed by Sudbury, with a 26 cwt. tenor, and here the clappers of the seventh and eighth had to be swung over before ringing commenced. At Hadleigh the back bells were hard-going to Kent and Little Bob, but Grandsire Triples and Bob Major were well struck.

After lunch at Ipswich, the 32 cwt. twelve at St Mary-le-Tower were rung to Grandsire Cinques and Bob Maximus—as well as rounds. Then came Lavenham for Stedman, Kent and tea, followed by the six at Haverhill and Saffron Walden, where more Cinques and Maximus were among methods rung. For this enjoyable day we thank the District secretary, who was responsible for the arrangements.

IT'S WEST DOWN AGAIN

A WEEK before the final of the Devon six-bell contest at Ilfracombe the form seemed far from certain. West Down must always be among the favourites, but in the North Devon round they had been soundly beaten by ten faults by their old rivals. Down St. Mary; and in South Devon some very low marks at Stoke Fleming had made it seem possible that the Ross Shield might go south for the first time in several years. The people in the know, however, never underestimate West Down's capacity for rising to the really important occasion, and they were not wrong. In an afternoon of very fine ringing on the back six of Ilfracombe's excellent bells the top four teams finished as follows: West Down 15¼, Down St. Mary 19, Swymbridge 23, Plymstock 25; West Alvington came fifth.

Down St. Mary ringers said afterwards that they were fairly beaten, mainly through a failure to settle down after the rise; an exceptionally good lower failed to make good the deficit. We have remarked more than once on West Down's uncanny ability to find the pitch of a ring of bells immediately the bells are up; there is no feeling around, a little higher, a little lower, and then at last just right; the bells go straight up to the exact place and away they go, and it was thus at Ilfracombe, where West Down had a slight advantage through being more familiar with the bells than most people.

There was some argument last autumn at the Devon Association of Ringers' annual general meeting about the possibility of allowing six-bell bands to enter for eight-bell competitions. In the course of this, Mervyn Phillips, of West Down, commented that it was a poor job if the eight-bell people were afraid of six-bell bands. Point to his words was heard at Pilton early this month, when he and the West Down band, with one local ringer, making a recording for the Beaford Centre, rang a peal of changes on this heavy eight which would have walked away with the Devon eight-bell contest in 1967 and in a good many other years. Owing to the interference from a gale which was blowing at the time it was not possible to make a good recording of this peal, but your correspondent can vouch for the fact that that lower, which took nearly ten minutes, was the finest on eight bells he had ever herad.

DURHAM & NEWCASTLE

Mr. Tom Cooke was re-elected vice-president of the Southern District at the meeting held at Brancepeth—a tower which the District will lose under the proposed reorganisation of he Association's Districts.

Between 25 and 30 ringers attended, and spent an enjoyable afternoon and evening, especially as the weather stayed fine long enough for a picnic tea in the grounds of the Castle (in which St. Brandon's Church stands) to be taken in ideal conditions.

An encouraging number of learners at the meeting had the opportunity to ring rounds and Plain Bob. Other methods rung included Double Norwich, Stedman Triples and Surprise Major, including London and Bristol.

Such is the personality of Jackie that she was elected captain of the new Whitchurch band within three months of learning to handle a bell. Although she will be living in neighbouring Overton, she intends, on returning from her honeymoon, to continue as the active and energetic captain of Whitchurch for as long as she is wanted.

OBITUARY

MR. A. W. FROST

With much regret we hear of the passing of Mr. A. W. Frost, of Didsbury, Manchester, at the age of 82. A well-known and highly respected figure in ringing circles throughout Lancashire and Cheshire, he had spent some 60 years in a keen and enthusiastic pursuit of ringing.

He started ringing at St. James', Didsbury, and at Christ Church, West Didsbury, until ringing at these two towers ceased, when he became a regular service ringer at St. Mary's, Cheadle. His absolute devotion to ringing, especially within the ringing chamber, will always be remembered.

The bells at St Mary's Church, Cheadle, were rung half-muffled for a quarter peal of Plain Bob Minor to his memory on June 11th by the following: Joan Adlard 1, R. Benson 2, Dorothy Johnson 3, H. Cook 4, S. Livesey 5, A. Cairns (cond.) 6, C Bell cover.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Twenty-six members attended the N.E. District meeting held on June 17th at the ancient Parish Church of St. Mary, Finchley. Ringing ranged from Grandsire to London. Although the start of ringing was delayed by a wedding there was plenty of time for all between 3.45 p.m. and 8 p.m.

In the absence of the Vicar, the service was taken by the Rev. G. R. Renwick, who gave one of the best addresses heard at a ringers' service for a very long time. Two new ringing members were elected—Mrs. A. R. Sharpe, the new secretary of the Monken Hadley band, and Mr. A. Windridge, of Harrow Weald. The vote of thanks included Mrs. A. Hodson, organist, and Mesdames Taylor, Fuller, Holmes and Holman for providing the tea.

SUSSEX UNIVERSITY GUILD

Sussex University Guild held its fourth A.G.M. on the beach at Eastbourne on May 13th and elected the following officers for next year: Master, Robert H. Newton; treasurer, David L. Nibbs; secretary, Peta Allen, c/o Union Office Pigeonholes, Falmer House, Falmer, Brighton. The annual dinner followed at the nearest Chinese restaurant and thence to other social activities.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The time taken in the peal at Bamburgh for the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association (page 479) was 2 hours and 46 minutes.

Mr. A. Colin Banton asks us to state that the peal of Norwich Surprise Minor at Sutton-on-the-Hill (page 459) was his 50th as conductor.

We learn that Mr. John Willis, vice president of the K.C.A.C.R., has now left St. Saviour's Hospital, Seabrook, and is now resting at his son's home at Tree Tops, 25a, Highfield Avenue, Waterlooville, Portsmouth. He is expected to be back at home in two or three weeks' time.

Miss Vera Robinson, a daughter of the Rev. F. E. Robinson, first Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, was present at both the service and luncheon at the Guild Festival on July 1st.

The ringers of the recent peal at Exeter Cathedral are extremely grateful to Norman Mallett for standing in at such extremely short notice. Members of the band would also like to thank Norman for his hospitality over the week-end and also thank the Exeter ringers for their very friendly welcome to all who took part in the peal.

FAREWELL TO EASTBOURNE

Since the days when the "tenor king" passed through its portals, Eastbourne College of Education has changed its name, enlarged considerably and restricted its intake to ladies only. From it and from the other training colleges in the town the local towers have been pleased to welcome a sprinkling of trained ringers as they passed through their courses, and in turn many girls have been taught to ring. Apart from the obvious benefit to the Exercise, firm friendships and more than one wedding have resulted.

As the 1964–67 course came to its last few days a farewell party was arranged by the girls at the college. Forty or so ringers from the area consumed cheese snacks and "non-alcoholic" ale. With a preponderance of youth, just a few over-30's (and a little bit!) were to be seen cheating at the games, which had a strong ringing flavour. Handbell ringing included Grandsire Caters, four-in-hand tune ringing and several attempts at "lapping" Maximus.

The ladies, now fully-fledged teachers, depart to fresh fields, and we hope that the social evening so ably arranged by Katey, Brenda, Audrey, Julia and the rest will help them to remember Eastbourne, just as Eastbourne will surely remember them. H. R.

"THE BELLS OF BRITAIN"

Featured will be the Lord Mayor's Chapel (6), Bristol Cathedral (8), St. Stephen's (10) and St. Mary Redcliffe (12). The record, with a leaflet giving the history of ringing, is priced at 12s. 11d., and will be available this winter. Orders are being taken in advance.

WORSHIPPING THE PEAL

Oh, cannot you see
What ringing will be
If we worship the peal

Someone may see fit,
And that will be—it!
They'll bring in a law
With a very long paw.

So watch it, good Gladys,
Don't copy John Pladdys.
Once at Pimlico,
Or down you may go.

Where houses abound,
And noises around,
We need to be fair,
Not hint "We don't care!"

Where bells never heard,
They may spread the word
Of the Spiritual Teacher
If not from a preacher.

So discretion we need
To spread the right "feed."
Such a ring now and again
May raise a right strain.

If we study the Psalms
We need have no qualms
The answers are there,
We need not impair.

"A CEREMONY OF BELLS"

During the course of its annual general meeting week at Torrington this year, the Devonshire Association paid a visit to the Beaford Centre, a focus for cultural activity set up in the small village of Beaford last year under the auspices of Dartington Hall to serve a culturally underprivileged area in North Devon.

Part of the programme arranged for the Association by John Lane, the director of the Centre, was an entertainment entitled "A Ceremony of Bells." Illustrated by black-and-white and coloured slides, the programme covered the history, character and use of bells in North Devon. The script was written and spoken by the Rev. J. G. M. Scott and the recorded illustrations included ringing by the Down St. Mary and West Down bands from Down St. Mary, Northlew, Ashwater (sixes), Honeychurch (3), East Down (4), North Molton (6) and Pilton (8), and also the Northlew bellinging song sung by Cyril Tawney. Both ringing and recordings were of very high quality, the recordings being made by Eric Levett, of Beaford.

It is proposed to improve this first version of the entertainment by the addition of further recordings and pictures, and to present it to the general public at Beaford and elsewhere during the winter.

COLEGATE SOCIETY, NORWICH

The ringers associated with St. George's, Colegate, Norwich, were again beaten in their annual bowls match against the Tradesman's Arms, Mulbarton, played on June 21st at Mulbarton. But the Society's ability improves on each encounter and the defeats become less severe—the very optimistic might even suppose the Society will one year produce a winning team. We are grateful to Peter Adcock for arranging the fixture and to the players and landlord of the Tradesman's Arms for their hospitality. D. C.

TOLLER WHELME BELLS

Mr. Jesse Davis, hon. secretary of the West Dorset Branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild, writes that the Toller Whelme bells were not an unknown five. Local ringers knew they were there and some 30 years ago one or two did have a "rope"—perhaps for tolling. The church at one time belonged to the owner of a farm. An old Beaminster ringer remembers going there but could not now say whether the bells were chimed or struck by a hammer.

MR. ARTHUR WHITE

Mr. Stanley F. Webb, of Staverton, Daventry, writes sending his congratulations to Mr. Arthur White on his 89th birthday. He had the pleasure of ringing with Arthur on many of the Thursday evening practices at Loughton in the years before the last war. Among the company then enjoying the fine ring at Loughton were "Teddy" Bacon, young Jim and old Jim Ramm and Mr. Perry.

Concluding, he writes. "Many of the old stagers have passed on but I am pleased to know that Arthur is still with us and active in his ringing. I hope he will be able to do so for some years yet."

TUITION TEASERS — No. 5

Q. How soon can the instructor safely let the pupil handle the bell on his own? And what is then the preferred procedure?—"Student-Tutor."

A. Here, as in flying training, the learner is not suddenly to be left in full control. This "going solo" is a point in the training to which the pupil has been carefully advanced; the degree of his control increasing steadily, while that of the instructor diminishes proportionately. This exchange of control, if properly carried out, is almost imperceptible to the learner. It justifies the claim, borne out by experience, that no stay need ever be broken, nor personal injury be suffered, by a normal pupil under instruction.

The secret of this happy state of affairs is often derived intuitively, but can (and should) be taught directly. It is this: In ringing, when the rope is being caught on a rise-stroke—either "hand" or "back"—the pupil must learn to gauge the rate of rise of the rope as it comes up to its point of reversal, i.e. to begin its descent. If the preceding pull-stroke has been too light the consequent rise-stroke will slow down earlier, and the stroke reversal will occur at a lower point in space in front of the ringer. The rope is then to be kept taut (down) from the moment of catching, and a slightly heavier pull given, to maintain the rhythm of the swing. On the other hand, if the previous pull-stroke has been too heavy, the rise-stroke will feel "fast," the "slow-down" will occur later, and the stroke reversal will occur at a higher point in space in front of the ringer. Failure to teach the pupil to detect and check the fault may remove the stay!

An aid to getting the "feel" of bell-movement near the point of reversal is the practice of "balance and set"—one of the many exercises used with success; also pausing "on the balance" just before pull-off. The pupil's early appreciation of the normal rope-speed and reversal point makes for an early "going solo," with no contingent trouble. Of course the instructor's final exchange of control (mentioned above) must be at a compromise between delay (not to be unsafe) and haste (not to lose pupil's interest). The point in time will be gauged by his own "feel" of the pupil's moving rope. This point will have been reached when the 'feel" indicates no need for "braking" any 'overpull." and with perhaps a very occasional light touch on the stay.

As to the second part of the question: As soon as the pupil can safely be left to ring the bell unattended (and while it is still silenced) he must practise "bell-balancing"—another useful exercise. The pupil aims at putting the bell on the balance—both ways—and holding it there for a few seconds, and achieving an 80 per cent. result for, say, ten strokes. This accomplished, he takes the "Following" exercise, i.e. "following" his instructor on an open bell. Then, and not till then, he can stand in, for the first time, with others—for rounds and call changes, including being called to "lead." A. Y.-B.

WILLIAM REDDING'S NOTEBOOK

Among the records in St. Wulfram's Church, Grantham, is a notebook of a certain William Redding, of Langtoft, near Bourne. Langtoft has now an unringable five.

Dated 1837, this book comprises a collection of Doubles methods, notes on conducting, bellframe layout of some neighbouring churches and a "Dove's Guide" of that generation. How this book came to Grantham, or any further details of Redding, is not known.

The collection of Doubles methods seems fairly complete for that date and includes Dream, Success, Grand Paradox, Jack-on-both-sides, etc. Some are written out in six-scores, to show the calling, as is a 720 of Plain Bob Minor.

Regarding the second half of the book, William Redding must have been a well-travelled man, as it precedes the Ackland-Troyte's "Guide" by some 40 years. First all the 12-bell towers are named, with designation of the church and weight of the tenor, though in neither alphabetical nor weight order. Then come the ten-bell, eight-, six-, five-, four- and three-bell towers. Though the collection could not be complete for towers with less than six bells, it does not appear to be wrong on the higher numbers.

Next comes a county round-up of towers, followed by Ireland, Wales and Scotland. The only tower outside the British Isles mentioned is one of seven bells in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), Russia, with a tenor of 17 cwt.

After this comes a section on bellframe layout of some of the towers in the Bourne area, with founders, plus a few bell inscriptions.

Finally there is a piece about Pinchbeck Church.

PINCHBECK

The following curious bill for work done in the church at Pinchbeck, and for other services, was recently discovered among the parochial records. It appears that some objections had been made to the account, which, however, were overcome by the rhyming powers of the village carpenter, who ultimately obtained payment.

Note.—What leantores are in the third verse is not known, but Redding's handwriting is perfectly clear and legible. Another curious thing: Thos. Stiles' arithmetic is not very good!—D. A. Frith.

A CAMPANOLOGICAL HEARSAY

STRANGE COINCIDENCE . . .

Culworth has an unlucky tower. One day in 1863 the parish clerk, walking beneath the belfry, narrowly escaped with his life when one of the bells, parting company with its fellows, plunged downwards at the horrified man. Years before that occurrence, a gentleman named Elsden had been killed by a falling bell at Culworth Church. This incident had been magnified a little, for it was stated with relish by old inhabitants that the unfortunate victim had his blood scattered over the tower walls! The parish register recalls this accident, which happened on Tuesday of Easter Week, April 10th, 1694. Incidentally, these two accidents occurred on the same day of the same month!

OBITUARY

MR. GEORGE WELLER

The bells of St. Bartholomew's Church, Leigh, Surrey, were rung half-muffled for about half an hour on June 30th in memory of Mr. George Weller, whose funeral had taken place the day before. George was born at Leigh in 1902 and learned to ring there at the age of 11, his father being a member of the local band. Between the wars ringing flourished at Leigh, Alf Bull and others cycling over from Horley to help the locals master change ringing.

George Weller did not often visit other towers but he was a loyal attender at Sunday service and practice ringing at his own church. He was captain and steeplekeeper for some 20 years up to 1953, when he felt that somebody younger should take over. Two largely unsympathetic incumbents and the deterioration of the "go" of the bells (which had never been easy to ring) helped to break up the band a few years later. When ringing was revived and the bells were to some extent overhauled in 1962–63, George gave us encouragement and help as far as his health would allow. He was a gentle man and will long be remembered with affection and gratitude.

It was decided to arrange ordinary ringing rather than a quarter peal attempt so that as many as possible of the Leigh ringers could take part. C. J. N. D.

LATE NEWS

Mr. Timothy G. Pett informs us that the date of the attempt of 6,048 Lincolnshire Surprise Major at Gressenhall, Notts (see page 495), has been changed to Thursday, July 27th, starting at 5.30 p.m.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Florence Coles, wife of Mr. W. H. Coles, has undergone an operation and is in the Kennedy Ward, Hillingdon Hospital. Latest report is that she is making progress.

Found in St. Mary's Church tower, Usk, on Monday, June 25th, 1967, a wallet containing notes. Will the owner please contact Lionel Jones of Heathfield, Usk, Mon.

Found in the belfry at Northowram after the Ringing Festival on June 17th—one Ringer's Notebook and Diary. No name and address inside. Apply W. G. Turner, 4, Marldon Road, Northowram, Halifax.

The first peal on these bells was not rung until November 6th, 1879, when Mr. Henry C. Haley conducted a peal of 5,040 Grandsire Triples. Many peals were subsequently rung on these bells, but owing to the unsatisfactory "go" it was often found necessary to have two men on the tenor. Many founders tried to improve the faults but their success was limited.

THE NEW TWELVE

In 1936 it was decided to recast the bells and the Taylor octave was dismantled and removed to the Croydon Foundry of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston. The old frame was dismantled and it was decided that this should not be retained.

Croydon Church and Vicarage circa 1820.

The new ring of bells emerged as a ring of twelve with a tenor of 36 cwt. 3 qr. 18 lb. in C sharp. Once more, Croydon Parish Church was the possessor of a fine ring of bells, as many visitors to the belfry will know. For this grand ring a great debt of gratitude is due to Cyril Johnston, whose untiring efforts helped in the provision of the bells. Even after this ring of twelve had been installed, Cyril Johnston presented a flat sixth in 1946 to complete the thirteen ringing bells and to provide a middle octave with a tenor of 15 cwt 3 qr. 13 lb. in F sharp. This bell was given by Cyril Johnston to commemorate the allied victory in 1945.

The first peal on the new twelve was rung on May 12th, 1937, in honour of the Coronation of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. The first peal on the middle eight was not successfully completed until December 18th, 1965.

With acknowledgments to the "Croydon Advertiser" Group of Newspapers, the head librarian, London Borough of Croydon and Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

THE RINGING WORLD

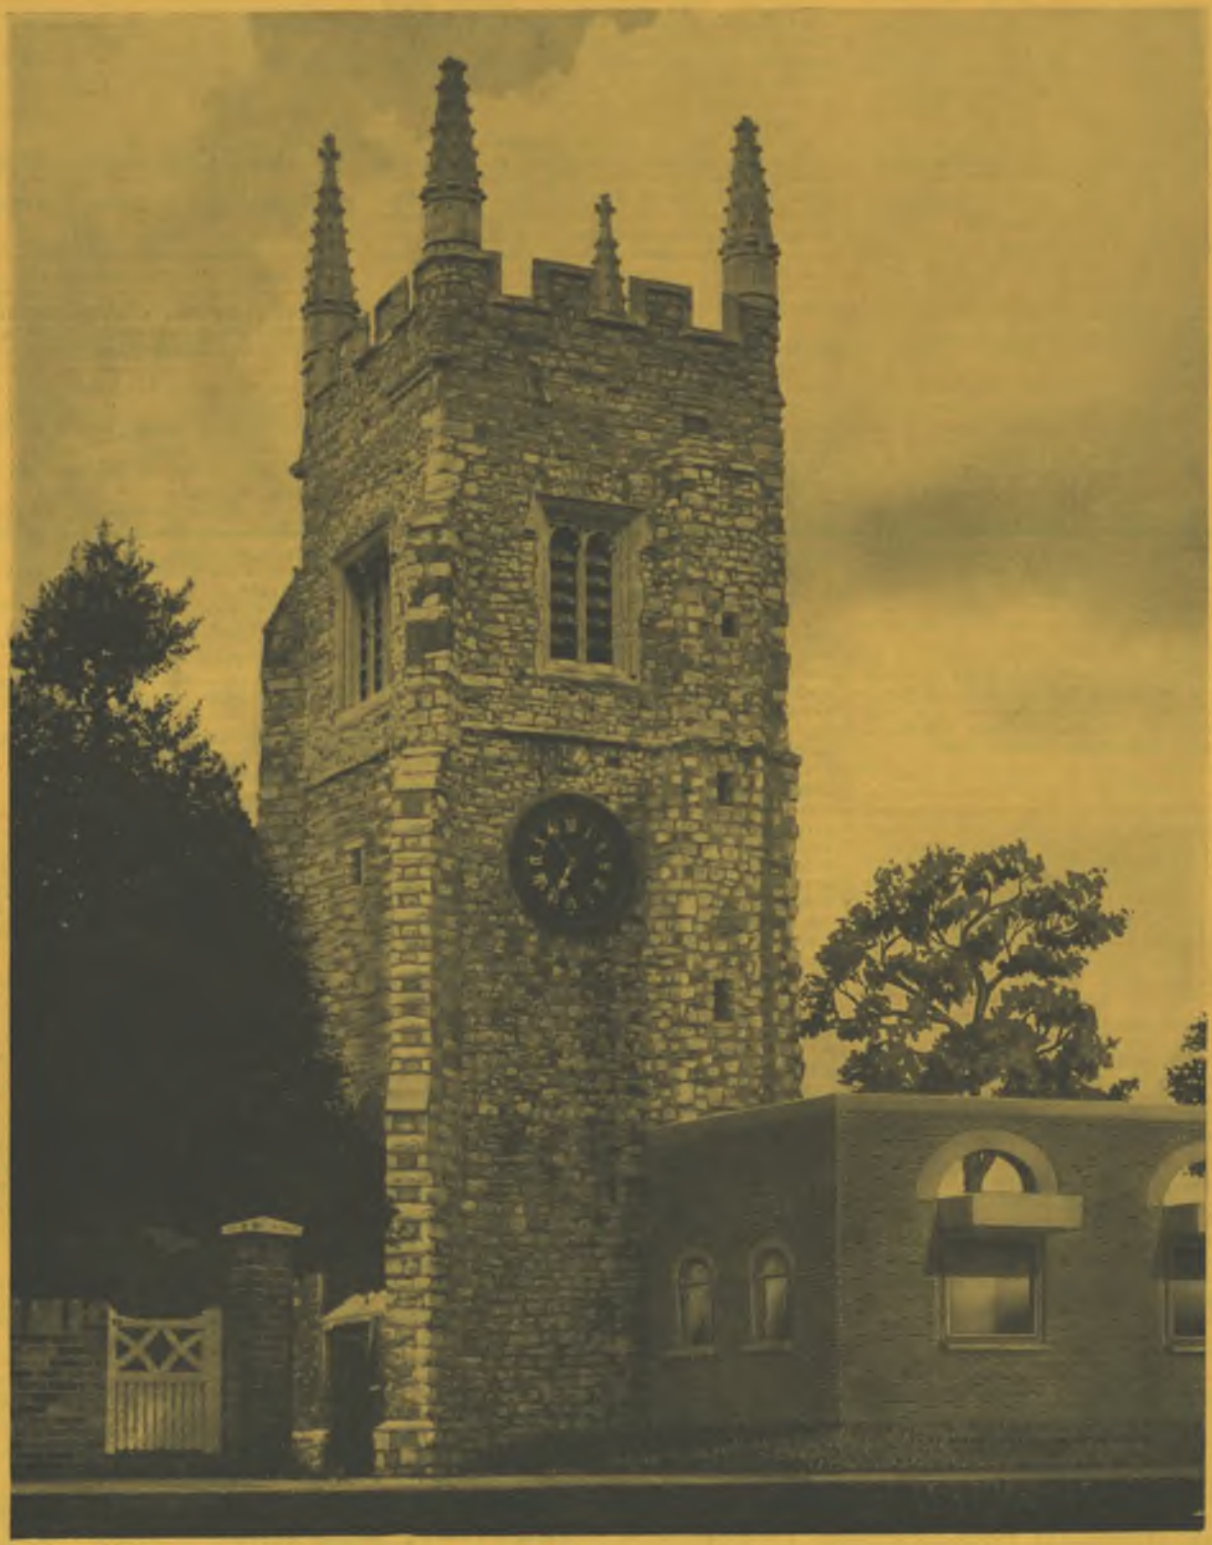
No. 2935. Vol. LXIII FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1967 9d.



"BEWARE OF CAMPANOLOGICAL SNOBBERY"

A sermon preached by Canon P. B. G. Binnell, Sub-Dean in Lincoln Cathedral, on July 1st to members of the Ladies' Guild from the text "Make a cheerful noise unto God." (Psalm lxvi, 1.)

The percussion of bells is one of the oldest forms of instrumental music and the folklore and social history of a large part of mankind is punctuated by the sound of bells. Sheep bells, ship bells, cow bells, clock bells, school bells and, above all, church bells, have been part of the life of man in this country for centuries and nearly all the poets of the English language have written of them at one time or another. You will remember, for example, Longfellow's lines in "The Wreck of the Hesperus":

"Oh father! I hear the churchbells ring,
O say what may it be?"

Tennyson's "Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky," and Matthew Arnold's "Down swung the sound of a far-off bell." But principally bells are a means of turning men's minds to God—peals for joy, muffled peals and knells for sorrow.

"The praise of God I sing and triumph of the king,
The marriage joys I tell and sound the dead man's knell."

(Thornton Curtis, Lincs, 1761.)

And, above all, ringing for worship:

"I sweetly sounding men do call
To taste of meats that feed the soul."

(Aunsby, Lincs, 1612.)

It is no wonder that, in olden days, Britain was known as "The Ringing Isle."

Two kinds of skilled people are necessary where bells are concerned—founders and ringers, and from both we may learn a similar lesson.

In the bellfounder's craft, a chip, a crack, a tiny error in the composition or quantity of the metal used can ruin the tone of a bell, so he must be meticulous and thorough, dedicated to the discipline of his craft.

But, however good the bell, it is dead if there is no hand to ring it—like the great bell at St. Petersburg, 12 feet in diameter and never even hung.

So we come to you, the ringers, who again must be meticulous and dedicated to the discipline of your craft.

I have long admired the becoming modesty with which even the most expert ringers always speak of "attempting" a peal, and in this "attempt" they observe (especially in change ringing) the greatest precision.

Here, then, is the lesson—all the skills which God has given to us must be used to the utmost of our power, each playing his part humbly but vigorously and enthusiastically, as doing it, not primarily for the natural satisfaction which it brings or even for the edification of men, but for the glory of God.

I venture to bid you always to keep this dedicated and modest attitude to your mystery and to beware of campanological snobbery. There is many a village church where the bells are silent but it may be that some of you can make them speak again. Don't despise them because they are too few to ring changes on or because they are inferior in tone, but always remember that they are a means, in your hands, of sounding God's praises and calling His people to worship.

CAMPANOLOGICAL HEARSAYS

THE "LOWING" OF A BELL

At Brigstock, an old tradition has it that the third bell, inscribed "John Barton gave me worship to God in Trinitie 1647," had been likened to the lowing of a cow. Barton, a plaintiff, petitioned Sir John Zouch to recover rights of common concerning lands in neighbouring Benefield. Sir John, very displeased, warned Barton that he would be ruined if he persisted in claiming this right. It is said that plaintiff retorted that he would leave a cow which, being pulled by the tail, would low three times a day and be heard all over the common when Sir John and his heirs would have no influence on the matter whatsoever. Brigstock's third bell was installed, "lowing" at 4 a.m., 11 a.m. and 11 p.m.

. . . AND BELLS THAT BLEAT

Whiston Church was built in 1534 by Anthony Catesby According to tradition the cost was so great that he was unable to afford bells for the tower. Not to be outdone by those circumstances, Catesby sold his flock of sheep. Consequently bells were hung. On hearing the chimes, Catesby remarked to his wife: "Hark, do you hear my lambs bleating?"

RELIABLE TIMEPIECES?

The pretty village of King's Cliff at one time relied to some extent on the 7 or 8 o'clock bell, this being rung each morning supposedly as a summons to scholars of the Free Schools. Other bells were also sounded during the day for the guidance of charcoal-burners, keepers and woodmen, who worked in nearby Rockingham Forest. For some reason these practices were discontinued, but the labourers who relied so much upon the bells protested vehemently and the ancient custom was re-established. One such bell, rung at 4 a.m. for awakening farm labourers, on one occasion was heard at 3 a.m., and the clerk, thoroughly annoyed at his "untimely" mistake, never rang the bell again. Victorians were immensely keen, but this error may have been a Godsend to the clerk and those who were so rudely awakened.

A MISCHIEVOUS CLAPPER . . .

Oundle's beautiful church almost met with disaster on August 16th, 1868. The belfry and its insulation material caught fire, but fortunately the outbreak was confined and extinguished before serious damage to stonework could materialise. Nevertheless the heat was so great that the bellframe and clock were destroyed. Various people thought that the sawdust became overheated, but others believed the outbreak began accidentally by workmen who had repaired the clapper of the tenor bell, at the same time enjoying a bit of shag. This same clapper parted company from its bell a few years later, but caused no damage on that occasion.

WAYS AND MEANS

Stoke Albany's old bells were recast in 1790, but not without a great deal of trouble. Two schools of thought prevailed at the time; one that two bells only be recast, the other determined that each of the five bells be introduced to the melting pot. The latter won the day. Persons entered the belfry at night, lifted the undamaged tenor from its frame and let it fall to the floor below. However, the bell withstood this incredibly rough treatment. Nothing daunted, its assailants, armed with sledge-hammers, again entered the church when all was still and broke off the canons. Needless to say, all five bells were recast! T. A. B.

OUR PICTURE

Isleworth Parish Church (All Saints')

By Harold Rogers

PICTURESQUELY situated on the Middlesex shore of the Thames, the bells send back answering music along the river to the distant bells of Richmond and across Kew Gardens and Old Deer Park. Although the precise history of the Parish Church has become misted and vague with the passing of the centuries, associations of the site on which it stands can be traced back to the Roman invasion. A Compitum or small wayside chapel was the first place of worship erected there about A.D. 80. Since this time the site has been used almost continuously for the purpose of worship. In the Domesday Book reference is made to the Priest of Isleworth and his holding of "three virgates of Land."

The oldest part of the present church is the Perpendicular tower built of Kentish ragstone about A.D. 1400, when the Benefice was the property of the wardens and scholars of Winchester College. Apart from the addition of four pinnacles, the appearance of the tower is now generally as when built. The present window and doorway are of a later date but they follow the general lines of the originals.

In 1679 a lanthorn or cupola, containing a "Saints" bell was erected at the top of the tower. This addition was, however, comparatively short-lived as its removal took place in 1864 and the bell which is still used for the striking of the clock was, until 1949, mounted on iron brackets on the flat roof. This bell is now hung inside the bell chamber.

SOUND CONTROL

An important change, however, took place in 1962 and many churches up and down the country would do well to follow suit. An effective sound control system was installed which allows the sound of the bells to carry over the whole parish and at the same time modulates it in the immediate vicinity, to the extent that a perfectly normal conversation can be conducted comfortably anywhere around the tower. The system consists of:

(a) Blocking up the insides of all louvres with three-inch concrete blocks and rendering in cement and sand. The external dummy louvres still remain.

(b) Constructing on the roof in Western red cedar a nine feet square by five feet high sound lantern with 45 degrees louvres on all sides.

THE BELLS

The earliest reference we have to the original bells is that they were removed from the tower in 1684 and recast into a ring of six by William Eldridge of Chertsey. Then came the removal and recasting of these with the addition of two more in 1767 by Lester and Pack of Whitechapel. These bells were brought to the church on February 11th, 1768, the tenor bell then weighing 18 cwt. 1 qr. Retuning and rehanging in an H section steel frame was then effected by Taylors of Loughborough, the reopening ceremony taking place in 1903. Finally two trebles were added in 1931 by Mears and Stainbank of Whitechapel and dedicated by the Lord Bishop of Kensington on June 13th, 1931. This left the bells a very musical ring of ten, and only three other towers in South West Middlesex contain this number.

The first recorded peal on the bells was rung in 1768 and consisted of 5,040 changes of Plain Bob Major.

Records of 250 complete peals have been traced between this date and January, 1967. A full report on these was published in "The Ringing World" of March 31st, 1967. Nearly half the peals were rung by the London County Association and for some ten years after World War 2 the tower had one of the most proficient local companies of Surprise Royal ringers in the country.

THE CLOCK

The church clock was installed in 1774 by Messrs. Thwaites of Clerkenwell and, quite apart from its unusual movement, it is strange in that it occupies space around three interior walls of the tower. At the extreme north west corner of the tower hang the weights; the cables from these lead to the north east corner, where the main mechanism is accommodated. From thence shafts and bevels convey the movement around the south east corner to the face and hands which are on the south wall of the tower. Good time is still kept by this original clock, which was completely overhauled by a local firm in 1962.

REBUILDING

The nave and chancel were destroyed wilfully by fire in 1943 and a temporary church inside the walls has been in use ever since. 1967 has, however, seen the start of the rebuilding of a new and exciting church which tones in with the famous old tower and which will form an attractive Christian community centre on this site which dates back to Roman times.

Our front page photograph was taken by Mr. Collis, sen., and prepared for reproduction by Mr. R. F. Summers.

CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS MEETING ATTENDANCE

A check of the Nottingham attendance roll has revealed that two members who were absent were counted as present because of misuse of the roll. The correct figures are:

5	" not "	—	5
Life members		6	1

I am happy to confirm that the attendance was a record one, notwithstanding.

The risk of errors of this nature will be reduced if members will refrain from using the roll to describe the condition or whereabouts of absentees.

REDUNDANT BELLS

I am compiling a register of redundant bells and I shall be obliged if readers will furnish me with as much information as possible when bells become casualties in this manner. The object is to avoid the destruction of bells and to make information available which may lead to their transfer to new locations.

I shall use "The Ringing World" for publicity when the appropriate occasion arises and I hope I shall be appraised of any events which will affect the contents of the register.

THE VETERAN'S REUNION

How many ringers' Guild or Association meetings have you attended, and which was the most pleasant and profitable?

I have attended scores, and the nicest and best was the last—the above, the Veterans', embracing some of our finest composers, conductors and ringers—yes, and some quite ordinary ringers—held in London on June 24th.

Originated and organised by that stalwart, John Euston (St. Margaret's, Westminster), there is always a beautiful servive, usually at St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate, with a lovely address by the Rector (the Rev. Stanley Moore). And this year as no exception, despite the former's unavoidable absence. The service, which was taken by the Rev. J. Thompset, suffered nothing by comparison and he remembered and prayed for all those "called home."

After a splendid tea—through the generosity of a band who gave their proceeds of a wedding — the meeting, at wich I don't think John Euston misses anyone, either absent or present.

A sincere reference to all, and appreciation of the work done for the Exercise—also including the ladies, especially Mrs. Davis. All stood up to acknowledge the tribute and appreciation due, and be fully recognised.

Greetings and good wishes were conveyed from Ernest Weatherby (96), formerly of Market Drayton (Shropshire), now in California, Dr. Harry O. Whipple and his wife Marjory, both well known to some of the Veterans, also the Railwaymen's Guild.

The Rev. J. Thompset, in moving a vote of thanks, said John Euston had mentioned all but one—and that was himself, who did this tremendous amount of work of love, not only for the Veterans but for everyone with whom he came in contact.

Due tribute was also paid to our "Ringing World" and all those who were doing all possible to improve it.

The average age of those present was 75¼.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD FESTIVAL

Reflections on Fellowship—Officers Re-elected—257 New Members and ten from Groton—St. Peter-in-the-East Bells—Guild's Offer to Purchase—Hoax Letters: the Rash of Irresponsibility.

THERE was, as always, a large attendance at the Summer Festival and annual general meeting of the Oxford Diocesan Guild held on the first Saturday in July at Christ Church, which began with a service in the Cathedral at 11. The Master (Canon C. Elliot Wigg) conducted the service, Mr. Fredk Sharpe read the lesson and a choir of ringers led the singing.

The Rev. S. A. C. Dickens (Vicar of Hughenden) preached, taking as his text a verse from the lesson, "Only the man who loves his brother dwells in light." (I John, v, 10.) He spoke of the very real fellowship among ringers, both in the encouragement of our learners and as a flame passing from tower to tower. Our fellowship brought out another fellowship, more ancient and most holy, founded by Our Lord in Galilee and perpetuated in the Holy Communion, which also devolves upon the doing of something together. The fellowship of the Church was and is intended to welcome in the stranger; but that is what the Church lacks today, very few churches are filled, the Gospel may be preached but it is not lived. From the practical point of view—ringers have a fellowship. Could it not be further beautified by the acceptance of the Saviour's invitation to the feast He provides with the words: "Except ye eat my flesh and drink my blood ye have no part in me." Couldn't all ringers attend and receive the Blessed Sacrament to know more deeply the mystery of His love?

THE BUSINESS MEETING

The business meeting followed in the Chapter House. The Master took the chair, supported by the Deputy Master, Mr. Fredk. Sharpe, the hon. general secretary, Miss M. L. Cross, the hon. treasurer, Mr. A. D. Barker, the hon. librarian, the Rev. E. B. Wood, and the assistant secretary, Miss D. Pollard.

The minutes of the last autumn meeting, held at Wantage in October, 1966, were read and confirmed. Apologies for absence were received from the Bishop of Buckingham, Messrs. Kinch, Pink, White, F. Price, T. W. White and others.

The officers' reports incorporated in the annual report, were adopted without discussion, as were the audited accounts, with best thanks to Mr. Barker for a wonderful year's work.

Canon Wigg, the only nominee for the office of Master, was re-elected with acclamation. All the other officers were also re-elected. The appointment of Mr. W. Hunt, Mr. H. Oglesby and Mr. J. Baldwin as stewards was ratified, and Mr. Hunt thanked the members on their behalf, making a plea that Branch secretaries should give them advance warning of meetings so that they could try to attend.

A grant of £50 was voted for Warfield, where rehanging and other work had been carried out at a cost of £658. Lambourn was still trying to get the money for necessary restoration and the meeting endorsed the General Committee's recommendation that the period for paying the grant voted to them should be extended to three years.

TEN MEMBERS FROM GROTON

The election of 257 new members was ratified. Mr. Barker proposed and Mr. Price (sen.) seconded ten new members from Groton School. This was carried with applause and each one was individually called up to receive the certificate of membership from the Master, with a handshake and a personal word of welcome.

The autumn general meeting is arranged for Reading on October 1st, but in 1968 there will have to be a change to the third Saturday in October, when it is hoped the meeting will be held at Bletchley. No amendment being offered to the recommendation of the General Committee, the annual subscription remains at 3s. 6d. for 1968.

GUILD'S OFFER TO PURCHASE A RING OF SIX

The secretary reported on the position of St. Peter-in-the-East, Oxford. The bells (a Rudhall six with two additional trebles) are to come out, and have been advertised for sale. The Guild officers at once went into action, with much help from Mr. Alan Pink and the Diocesan Board of Trustees. A petition is now before the Chancellor of the Diocese for the purchase of the bells by the Diocesan Guild at a cost of approximately £900, to be placed in due course in a tower in the Diocese. The trebles might possibly be given or sold separately, but the trustees have made a proviso that the Rudhall ring of six shall be kept intact. They are often mentioned in old minute books, and a number of peals have been rung on them. The Bishop is delighted with the idea that these bells should be in the care of the Guild. The only other problem at present is to find a suitable safe place of storage.

Mr. W. G. Wilson then made a point he thought the Editor of "The Ringing World" would have made, appealing to every member to do his best to stop the "hoax" letters because of which "the truth of the records of our Exercise is becoming more and more suspect. Those who write such letters are known (for what would there be in getting such a letter printed if one did not have a laugh about it with a few friends?) and if every ringer frowns on this practice, then it will stop. This kind of thing is a symptom of growing irresponsibility in the world in general—we are sure ringers will not want to have any part in it." An officer added that the committee would be asked to consider what action the Guild should take in regard to one of the hoaxers who is a member.

THE LUNCHEON

The business concluded, the company moved to the Hall for luncheon. Following the loyal toast, Mr. W. G. Wilson proposed "The Church and State." Referring to the sermon they had heard he would like to say how much some laymen were interested in the growth of the ecumenical movement. "I think ringers, in spite of our many differences, are far more ecumenical than many branches of the Church e.g. in Ireland, where Church and State are divided, there is only one Association of ringers for Roman Catholic and Church of Ireland, in Northern Ireland and in Eire. Longfellow spoke of bells as 'the voice of the Church'—we are glad of the privilege of making that voice heard and thank the Church for the opportunity."

The Rev. A. C. Sparling, Vicar of Spelsbury and Chadlington and Rural Dean of Chipping Norton, replied, also speaking of the strong band of fellowship between ringers. The fine thing about the bellringing community, he said, is that they do their service joyfully, and he prayed that their efforts might be richly blessed.

Miss Catherine Salter, a member of the John Mason School, Abingdon, then proposed the toast of "The Visitors," in particular Ronald Dove, Mr. and Mrs. Woolley and Christopher, the Archdeacon of Oxford, Miss Vera Robinson, daughter of the first Master of the Guild, the Rev. F. E. Robinson (who was present both at the service and the luncheon), and not least, members of "our overseas branch," Mr. Russell Young and members of Groton School; she hoped they would go back to America with many happy memories.

Mr. Peter Bundy, of Groton, replied in a humorous speech, letting us into some of the secrets of the "overseas branch"—"we talk in the tower—and it is good fun. We have a knack of memorising our courses—which is not done— and finally, we are awfully good at breaking stays!" They had made a lot of friends and they wanted to thank everybody who had helped them and made their visit so pleasant—mentioning particularly Mr. Arthur Barker, with whom they had spent three days at Stoke Poges, and Mr. Frank Price, who had got them to the point where two had rung a peal.

The Deputy Master then proposed votes of thanks to the Dean and Chapter, the preacher and the organist, Mr. Philip Walker, and his assistants for arranging the ringing, the team of choirboys from Winslow, Miss Daphne Pollard for organising the luncheon, the Master, and the one who always does the most in any organisation, the honorary secretary.

As members dispersed, Mr. Fredk. Sharpe took a party into Tom Tower to see Big Tom, and from 3 till 8 p.m. 23 towers in the city and neighbouring villages were open for ringing.

REORGANISATION IN THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

Both the Master (Canon C. Elliot Wigg) and the Deputy Master (Mr. F. Sharpe) referred to the question of the reorganisation of the Oxford Diocesan Guild in their reports presented at the Guild Festival.

Canon Wigg wrote: "The probability of the division of the Oxford Diocese in the not far distant future has led responsible people in the Guild to begin making tentative contures about the shape of things to come with regard to the future organisation of the Guild itself.

"Proposals of a very fundamental and progressive nature were put forward at the Branch secretaries' meeting in October. It was, for example, suggested that the Branches might become autonomous bodies, each sending representatives to form some kind of diocesan council of ringers. A less radical proposition envisaged a reduction in the size of the General Committee and endowing it with power to implement its own recommendations.

"I believe that all thinking persons would agree that our present system of conducting business leaves room for improvement. Much time at the business meeting at Christ Church is occupied with debating over again matters which have already been discussed in detail at the general committee meeting. Some of us think that this time could be better employed in getting to know each other in a more informal social atmosphere. Fellowship should surely be one of the main objects of the Guild, and the annual festival should provide a setting for fostering this spirit of fellowship.

REASSESSMENT OF AIMS

"In general I believe that the time is ripe for a reassessment of the aims and objects of our beloved Guild and some clear thinking on the part of every member about what we are really trying to accomplish. As in the Church of England as a whole, so also in such internal organisations as our Guild of Church Bell Ringers, the wind of change is beginning to be felt. This wind of change may well represent one manifestation of the working of the Holy Spirit of God, leading us on to new ways of service to Him and His Church."

Mr. F. Sharpe made this comment: "It came as a great surprise to me to hear at the informal meeting of the Branch secretaries that someone advocated the splitting of our Guild into a number of smaller organisations. No agenda is issued for these informal meetings and it is not possible to give carefully considered opinions without weighing up the situation. I said little on that occasion but the more I think of it the more I consider it would be unwise, particularly at the present time.

LOYALTY TO BISHOP

"In these days one constantly hears of amalgamations and mergers of companies, and the modern trend is to unite to form larger units. With the greater ease and facilities for travel today, ringers visit far more towers than their predecessors. Even in those towers where ringers take little interest in the affairs of those in other parts of the Diocese, I feel we should endeavour to encourage them to widen their own outlook beyond the boundaries of their own Branch.

'We owe the utmost loyalty to our Church and to our Diocese as a unit. Our Diocesan Bishop is the president of our Guild, and I feel we should endeavour to keep our territorial organisations to coincide with the boundaries of his diocese while it remtins as at present. . . . I strongly appeal to our members not to be hasty in dividing our Guild before we learn how the Diocese is to be reorganised. This is not the time to create divisions of our own."

The hon. general secretary (Miss Marie R. Cross) in her recent report said two other suggestions will be discussed by the General Committee in March. One concerns the revision of rules in the light of present day thought, and the other concerns the application for grants and the method in which they should be made.

MEMBERSHIP INCREASE

The membership figures for 1966 (with those for 1965 in brackets) were: Life 31 (29), honorary 62 (63), ringing 1,791 (1,750). Total 1,884 (1,831).

The hon. gen. treasurer (Mr. A. D. Barker) reported that the general funds of the Guild amounted to £2,062 13s. 4d., of which £1,747 was in the Restoration Fund. During the year £71 11s was contributed by 57 Parochial Church Councils. Grants were paid to Lane End, Easthampstead, Wingrave and Northmoor. The St. Peter-in-the-East, Oxford, Fund now stood at £232 9s. 4d., but was not included in general Guild funds

LEEDS RINGERS DOWN ON THE FARM

Leeds Parish Church outing on June 3rd entailed a journey of over 300 miles but the utmost use of the motorways and a coach driver who is not afraid to put his foot down brought Oxfordshire within the bounds of possibility.

The main attractions were ringing at Banbury Parish Church followed by an attempt to ring on Mr. Jarvis's miniature ten at Balscott. Some of us like to imagine we rang rounds—once—but even if we didn't it was good fun and we did so enjoy watching Mr. Jarvis's double-handed catch and let go style of ringing.

Bloxham's noble eight compensated for the loss of King's Sutton although the refusal here did savour of discrimination seeing that an Association meeting of longer duration had been allowed there earlier in the year.

Other towers visited were Tuxford and Deddington, where we followed the South Croydon ringers on similar bent.

Altogether it was a very successful outing. A member remarked: "If we spent half the time travelling we could spend twice as long ringing." A point to be considered. R. H. D.

The Bingham District Handbell Ringers

The Bingham District Handbell Ringers, three of whom are pictured above, ringing tunes at a recent garden party organised by the Balderton Scouts, were formed some four or five years ago by John Bennett. The object was to provide some information in the art of ringing to the general public by lectures and demonstrations in conjunction with the Rural Communities Council and the Education Committee.

The original band consisted of John and Barbara Bennett, David Clarke and Mick Exton with occasional help from other ringers, John giving the lectures. On the departure of John and Barbara to the Middle East, Brian Buswell and Peter Humphrey were added, Mick Exton taking over the lecturing. Later Brian Mills was added, and Peter Humphrey has since departed to Scotland, leaving the above three with the addition of Brian Buswell.

The bells are a set of 12 by Warners, with a tenor size 17 in A, and were presented to the Whatton ringers by Mr. F. J. March on December 16th, 1913. This was at a time when Whatton bells were rehung and augmented to six, and over the past three years over £100 has been raised with them towards the present restoration and future augmentation.

It is an unwritten rule that no tune ringing demonstration is ever given without a display of change ringing, and on several occasions a request is received for more change ringing.

BATH & WELLS ASSOCIATION

The Ilchester Branch held its monthly practice meeting at St. Martin of Tours, West Coker, on July 1st, when between 25 and 30 ringers attended in spite of various counter attractions—over 12 towers in the Deanery being represented.

Ringing on this good-going musical eight (tenor 12 cwt.) was under the supervision of the Ringing Master (Mr. W. E. Turner) and the Assistant Ringing Master (Mr. H. Gaylard) and included rounds, Grandsire Doubles, Grandsire Triples, Plain Bob Minor and Stedman.

The Branch is grateful to the Rector, the Rev. L. Bailey, and the tower captain, Mr. L. Guppy, for a very pleasant evening.

Next practice: Montacute (6, 23 cwt.), August 5th, 7–9 p.m. Also ringing at this same tower for the induction service of the new Vicar, July 31st, 6 p.m.

Letters to the Editor

5.30 a.m. PEAL CONDEMNED

Dear Sir,—I should like to congratulate the ringers of the peal mentioned in the "Belfry Gossip" column of the issue No. 2,932 of June 30th.

How anyone could be so stupid and inconsiderate as to ring a peal from 5.30 to 7.30 a.m. I do not know. They deserve all the criticism they get. In my opinion when they ask for permission to ring in future they should be refused. Why should incumbents leave themselves open to attack by their parishioners by allowing peal ringing by this peal-mad inconsiderate band?—Yours faithfully.

G. RICHARDSON.

Dewsbury.

JUSTIFIABLE COMPLAINTS

Dear Sir,—In "Belfry Gossip" (page 457) I read that a peal was rung between 5.30 and 7.30 a.m. at Huntington, Yorks. Having heard these bells, it is not surprising that complaints have been received, and why not? Who wants to be wakened up so early in the morning? After all, non-ringers in our population do need sleep!

Whose fault? The Vicar's for giving permission, or the ringers who rang so early? Quite frankly, it is the ringers who are at fault for lacking ideas of commonsense. Such a ridiculous act can only lead to a worsening relationship between ringers and the general public. Personally, I do not object to peals, having rung some myself, providing the peals are rung with due consideration to those who have to listen. In this case no consideration was given and, quite frankly, as a fellow Yorkshire ringer, I feel ashamed that such an act has been committed in Yorkshire.

Perhaps one of the band can write to "The Ringing World" giving their justification for ringing a peal at such a stupid time in a tower where there is a large nearby population. I do not think they will be able to find one just reason other than pure greed and ignorance.—Yours faithfully,

M. KING.

Rotherham.

NOT THE FIRST IN METHOD

Dear Sir,—The peal of New Durham Surprise Major rung by the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association at Darlington, is not the first peal in the method on tower bells.

A peal of 5,152 New Durham Surprise Major was rung at Bulwell, Nottinghamshire, on Saturday, September 28th, 1963, by members of the Southwell Diocesan Guild, conducted by Harry Poyner.—Yours faithfully,

BERYL N. REED.

Balderton, Newark, Notts.

SOMEBODY WAS MISSING?

Dear Sir,—Yet another noteworthy performance is recorded with the publishing of the peal of Yorkshire Surprise Maximus at Evesham on May 6th, 1967.

But surely you, sir, have missed an important footnote, for was this not the first peal on the bells rung by an all visiting band?—Yours faithfully,

D. A. WOOLLEY.

INVERARAY'S PLIGHT

Dear Sir,—I can see no reason why Mr. Hooton (June 30th) should not ring or listen to the bells at Inveraray at any time in the foreseeable future, providing that he makes arrangements for nine other ringers to be there at the same time as he is.

The tower, which with the bells was the only part of a grandiose scheme to rebuild the church to be carried out (immediately after the First World War, I believe), was not as well built as it might have been and has suffered from the climate; but its only serious troubles at present are a collapsed window arch in the west wall and the decayed wooden floor of the ringing chamber. The bells, frame and fittings, all by Taylor in 1920, are in first class order but lack ropes and even the chiming apparatus is not operational.

If and when the present ringing floor collapses it will still be possible—for those who can stand the noise and who are prepared to do something about the loose metal bosses—to ring the bells from the concrete floor above.

Glorious as the bells are (in spite of highly unfavourable acoustics), Inveraray is scarcely among the most suitable of places to have a ring of ten bells with a 41¼ cwt. tenor! It seems most unlikely that there can ever be any regular Sunday service ringing there until a ringer who is keen enough to train a local band goes to live in Inveraray. (Population 511; nearest ringing towers Glasgow (58 miles) and Paisley (55 miles via ferry).—Yours faithfully,

CHRISTOPHER DALTON.

Leigh, Reigate.

Dear Sir,—It would be interesting to know if Mr. Hooton has any suggestions to make regarding the ringing of Inveraray bells. The last sentence of his letter an page 455 seems to mean that the bells should be rung for Sunday services. By whom? I doubt if the congregation of All Saints' Church, Inveraray, numbers more than 50 people. Does Mr Hooton suggest that they could provide a band for a ring of ten bells with a 41¼ cwt tenor? The population of the town itself is not many more than 500.

Can any of your readers say why such heavy bells were hung at Inveraray in the first place? It was surely obvious that there would be little prospect of ever having a local band.—Yours faithfully,

E. BOUMPHREY.

MORE FROM TOYLAND

Dear Sir,—I refer to a letter from Noddy in "The Ringing World" of July 7th. As custodian of law and order in Toyland, I must write to state that your journal has once again been afflicted with a hoax. Noddy is too overcome with grief to write himself and has instructed me to expose the imposter claiming to have rung a peal on Nobby's bell: the first peal has yet to be rung. Indeed, the imposter has chosen an unfortunate time to spring the hoax since Noddy's hat has been silent for the last month while his bell is with the founders (Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough) for the installation of a new clapper. I hope this will not cause too much inconvenience to those responsible for the keeping of records.—Yours faithfully,

Mr. PLODD (Constable).

BELLS "POSITIVELY SHRIEK"

Dear Sir,—May I add a little to Geoff Dodd's account of our escapade at Toller Whelme, Dorset?

The belfry is indeed inaccessible without a 30-ft. ladder—this was kindly brought to the church for us by Mr. Haynes who, when I first called, was the sole inhabitant of Toller Whelme! The present Rector of Corscombe (Rev. J. W. H. Stileman) had realised that there were bells of some sort at his other church but knew nothing about them and needed no persuasion to join Mr. Haynes and myself on the ladder, when we first went up the tower last summer.

The bells were cast by Vickers, Sons and Co., Ltd., in 1866-8. The tenor is 26 inches in diameter and its strike note is about B flat. I wouldn't like to hazard a guess at its weight but three of us had no difficulty in inverting it by hand on my first visit.

The chief problem in trying to ring these bells is the small size of the wheels which makes the bells very difficult to control and all too easy to overthrow. The front bells double-clapper and the noise inside the tower is, of course, quite hideous. The bells have the wildest of harmonics and positively shriek.

Mr. Haynes was with us for the whole of the time that we were there and his enthusiasm and energy were tremendous—we were all very grateful to him for his help. I think it was Mr. J. T. Barrett, of Beaminster, who said that he had once been to Toller Whelme with a party to ring, but I don't think that anything was said about changes.—Yours faithfully,

CHRISTOPHER DALTON.

THE LATE MR. FREDERICK PAGE

Dear Sir,—I noticed with regret the reference on page 425 to the death of Mr. Frederick Page and would like to support the opinion of his ability as a handbell ringer. I heard quite a few of the handbell peals in which he rang at 23, Greek Street, Stockport, which ranged from eight to twelve bells, when he was happy at any part of the circle.

Whilst it is difficult to compare various peals, the Stedman Cinques he rang in were beautifully struck throughout, and I seem to remember a visit by Messrs. G. F. Swann and Morris J. Morris of Birmingham when I listened to a peal in that method, but cannot remember if Fred Page was in it—perhaps Peter Laflin may know.

In conclusion, may I congratulate those who ring handbell peals at the present time and respectfully suggest, especially to the younger members, that if they have the time and aptitude to maintain it, then keep it going, as a lapse may show that in later years it is not possible to find the previous ability.—Yours truly,

ERNEST BENNETT.

SOUTHWELL GUILD'S THANKS

Dear Sir,—On behalf of the Southwell Diocesan Guild of Church Bell Ringers I write to thank you, the editor of "The Ringing World," and your staff for all the help and assistance given to my Guild and myself in connection with the recent meeting of the Central Council of Church Bell Ringers. Nothing was considered too much trouble and nothing too trivial, and the coverage of the meeting has proved most interesting and informative.—Yours faithfully,

UNAUTHORISED RINGING

Dear Sir,—I regret the need to ask for publication of this letter. On July 5th I received a letter from Canon Noott complaining that on Sunday, as he arrived at Compton Abdale Church Glos, for Evensong, he found a group of six men ringing the bells without his permission.

The bells are not now rung at Compton Abdale as they are not safe. They had found the key to the ringing chamber, and when told that the bells were not safe replied they were only chiming them. Some damage has been found to have been done to the wheel of the tenor. None of the ringers stayed for the service.

I hope that those who did this will be good enough to write to Canon Noott and apologise. Such behaviour can only do harm to the Exercise, and had the identity of the ringers been known to me I would have informed the Association or Guild to which they belong.

We have a rule which could be invoked to deal with matters such as this. I hope never to be called on to use it, but would certainly do so to keep the good name of the Exercise if need be.—Yours sincerely,

CHARLES ROUSE,
Hon. Secretary,
Gloucester and Bristol Assn.

Note.—We hope that "tower grabbing" of this character will not occur again. An offence under Common Law has been committed; it could even be an indictable offence.—Ed.

ST. AUSTELL BELLS

Dear Sir,—For the life of me I cannot see the point of Mr. Victor M. Dawson's letter in your issue of June 30th.

Do you think Mr. Dawson would be so kind as to write in plain English and to the point just what he tries to imply? Yorkshiremen are noted for calling a spade a spade, so perhaps other ringers like myself who are not so well educated can get the gist of his letter without having to try to read between the lines. I notice with interest that he says he will stand by and watch if anyone was doing any digging. I wonder if this is usually the case with Mr. Dawson?—Yours sincerely,

JOE THORNLEY.

Farnworth, Lancs.

Dear Sir,—Further to the correspondence with regard to the rope-end grip (left versus right) may I put forward my method of determining the beginner's "natural" choice of grip, which I believe—as do some of your other correspondents—is the most important factor in this affair.

I determine this as soon as beginners are introduced to the belfry so that they shall not have come under any other influences. I try to make it as unexpected as possible so that their reactions are perfectly natural and I simply say to them, "Reach up as high as you can on that rope with both hands and give a good hard pull." The bell is, of course, down, and the beginner is, in fact, reaching up on the sally with both hands. However, all that is necessary to note is which hand is uppermost and the "natural" arrangement of the hands for a vertical pull is thus determined. In my experience, normally right-handed persons have the right hand on top and vice versa, but exceptions do sometimes occur.—Yours truly,

DAVID BEACHAM.

How Frome Tackles the Learner Problem

By EUNICE D. OVEREND

MANY different ways of teaching learners must have been devised to overcome local conditions. Our particular difficulty at Frome is that the bells are heavy (tenor 30 cwt.) and not the easiest to ring. If one waits for youngsters to become strong enough to manage them other interests have already filled their evenings, while the keen 11- to 12-year-olds find even the treble and second a struggle. The co-operation of neighbouring villages with lighter sixes is the answer to this, both in lending their bells (suitably muffled with slices of old car tyres) and in sharing their practices, through which both sides benefit.

Here we teach rising and falling right from the beginning. A group of learners needing individual attention can be kept safely and usefully occupied, if the bells are muffled, in pulling the bells up until the sally starts to bob, and down again, discovering the feel of bells of various weights below balance, the lengthening and shortening of rope, keeping it tight, and managing coils. Most can pull up a bell at backstroke at the second or third lesson and single-handed by the time they can ring rounds.

The advantage of this is that if they inadvertently let a bell down a bit they can shorten rope and pull it up again without getting a fright. Later they follow another bell up and down, learning to listen and keep an even pace, then take the middle place of three, learning to hear the bell behind as well as the one in front and to discover the practical results of pulling and checking—very difficult to sort out when first tried with all the bells going down in peal together.

CALL CHANGES

Rounds lead on to call changes called Cornish-style as they will be met on holiday, and "crosses and queens," which are used sometimes locally. This teaches leading, changing places neatly and the beginnings of good striking. Soon the two leading bells can make seconds over each other or snap, while the third decides which to follow, or 4 and 5 can dodge, the aim being for each ringer to learn a new manœuvre each week, the name, the feeling of the action and the line—an alphabet for future methods. The brighter sparks won't take long to reach Kent turns on the front or Stedman dodging behind.

Beginning plain hunt (from three bells to six) is the only time when bells may be followed by numbers—for how is a beginner to manage without? We have ropesight to pick out the right bell, can hear our place and feel our height, and we know the first lead of Plain Bob. They must use the figures to get first the feeling and ropesight and then rhythm and good striking.

With all this going on at the village practice the seemingly interminable waits for a turn on our own treble—inevitably with all the others to be catered for—can be made more bearable. Bells can be recognised (with a little prompting) to be leading or lying, snapping or dodging, making thirds or coursing each other to lead. The treble can be heard hunting up and down, or the ear tuned to Major. Sometimes a visitor with a peculiar style turns up to demonstrate that it is best to learn a way which will cope with all bells. Pencils and paper are there for those who can prick out changes to show those who can't, and so the eye, ear and mind are trained for future method ringing.

START WITH GRANDSIRE

As, because of the weight of our bells, it is unlikely that we shall have a Major band for Sunday ringing, we begin with Grandsire Doubles and the treble to Triples, each step accompanied by its line and different callings to prevent learning the bells by heart. There is no harm, however, in learning how to transpose the bells to know the first two at each lead of Triples—two less to choose from when ropesight is not yet very good, and useful towards later conducting. Grandsire is rung at all local towers, whereas Plain Bob is not, so as soon as it is mastered, independent visiting can be encouraged.

The six-bell practice progresses, with luck, to various Doubles methods and Plain Bob Minor, with everyone taking turns to conduct. Beyond this enthusiasts from different towers must get together either on each other's practice nights or at special practices, moving around the area. Here we have three-weekly practices. Minor one week, Surprise Major with the neighbouring Salisbury Guild the next, and the third week free for quarter peals. So there is a ladder from learner to Surprise conductor at each stage he can meet, ring with and learn from those more advanced, and as ringers move on other leaders and organisers emerge to keep things going.

BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION

July 8th was a beautiful sunny day for the Biggleswade District meeting, which was held at Potton. Unfortunately only 24 people sat down to an excellent tea prepared by the ringers' mothers. After a short business meeting handbells and tower bells were rung, Mr. A. W. Smith, the District Ringing Master, capably looking after all tastes and capabilities. The evening attendance grew to over 40, but it was rather sad to note the lack of support from District members.

Next meeting: Haynes, August 12, evening only. L. E.

CANTERBURY DISTRICT STRIKING COMPETITION

It would be hard to find a more pleasant place in the Canterbury area than Hernhill, where the District's striking contest was held. Away from the roar of traffic on the main coastal roads on either side of the village, outside the well-kept church and churchyard there is a village green, where ringers could relax after their labours or to try and soothe their nerves before going up into the belfry. Unfortunately only three teams entered.

Mr. Nicholas Davies, from Ashford, was the adjudicator and he gave his report after tea in the Village Hall prepared by the Mothers' Union. He awarded first place to St. Dunstan's, a very short head in front of the holders, Whitstable, with Petham (who had a bad patch in the middle of their touch) third. The cup was presented to the captain of the winning team (Mr. D. C. Chatfield) together with a certificate to hang in the tower, by Mrs. E. C. Streatfield-James, wife of the Vicar.

The hope was expressed that next year more teams would enter, and we felt that the contest should be plugged hard during the coming months at the District meetings. B. J. L.

SYDNEY BOYS' 2,000 MILE TOUR

FRIDAY evening, May 12th, was the climax of some eight months' patient waiting and saving of wedding money, for outside No. 3 platform at Central Railway Station in Sydney gathered a group of six excited young Sydney ringers for the beginning of a ringing tour to Melbourne and Adelaide.

Four of the boys, Ray Stanton, Keith Hendry, Craig Herbert and John Simmons, were ringers from St. Paul's, Burwood, and two brothers, Phillip and David Brown, were from St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney, and were the nucleus of the band to ring the first under-16 quarter peal in Australia earlier in the year. Accompanying the boys were Pam Gough, Judy Barr, John Brown and Ross Bampton (captain of St. Paul's, Burwood).

Finally at 8.10 p.m. after endless farewells to parents, brothers and sisters, our train, the "Spirit of Progress," pulled out of Sydney Station to begin a 2,000 mile journey to Adelaide and back, which was fully to occupy every minute of our time for the next eight days. Although an air-conditioned train and equipped with reclining seats designed for sleeping, this pastime was rather out of the question, with excitement running particularly high amongst the ringers, especially with a well-equipped buffet car on the train, serving food and cups of coffee at all hours of the night.

Next morning we were met at Melbourne by Jack Roper and a group of ringers from St. Paul's Cathedral. After the customary introductions we were soon on our way to the Y.M.C.A. Youth Hostel, where eight members of the party were to stay the next two nights—the two girls being at a private hotel nearby!!

FIRST ON 12

By 11 a.m. all had gathered in St. Paul's bell tower to begin a very pleasant afternoon's ringing with the local band, and apart from a brief lunch break at the traditional "Classic" restaurant opposite the Cathedral, the bells were rarely silent during the day. The boys made good use of the opportunity to ring on the only 12 in Australia, although plain hunt on 12 was the greatest achievement. However, Stedman and Grandsire Triples were the order of the day with the occasional successful plain course of Caters which surprised us all!! That evening saw the group at Luna Park, near St. Kilda, with a few of the more adventurous types enjoying rides on the big dipper, the river caves and dodgem cars to mention a few of the activities.

Sunday morning greeted us with the customary Melbourne rain but, not to be dampened, we were soon at the Cathedral, this time to ring for the 11 a.m. service which we were to attend, and being a liturgical welcome to the Primate of Australia, we were honoured to witness a Cathedral service in its full splendour. Lunch, again at the "Classic," and then we were on our way to St. Patrick's Cathedral to ring on the rather difficult eight with a unique reverse circle. Forty minutes in this tower proved sufficient time, Grandsire Triples being the most ambitious method attempted! Then it was back to St. Paul's Cathedral for afternoon tea and more ringing until Evensong. By Sunday evening the effects of but little sleep were beginning to show, and early to bed was the programme for all.

AT BALLARAT

Following a morning of sightseeing around Melbourne, destination Ballarat was the order of the day, and by 1.30 p.m. we were on the train enjoying a fast journey to the inland city, to be met on arrival by a group of local ringers led by Warne Wilson. For the next three hours we undertook a pressure-packed sightseeing tour of Ballarat and were soon convinced that we saw more of the City of Ballarat in three hours than the average tourist sees in three days. Following dinner at a small restaurant, we commenced some interesting ringing on the eight at the City Hall until 8 p.m., to be stopped by a meeting of the City Council, but not before attempting to let the bells down in peal!! Ringing then continued at the neighbouring tower of St. Peter's Church, where some very brisk plain courses of Bob Major were enjoyed. Following a delicious supper at Warne Wilson's home, we suddenly found ourselves in Ballarat Railway Station waiting for the "Overland" train to take us to Adelaide.

RAIL BREAKDOWN

The "Overland" was due in Adelaide at 9 next morning, but two and a half hours later we duly arrived, having spent the lost time in the Adelaide hills roaming the countryside, enjoying the pleasant early morning sunshine whilst the railway authorities attempted to make running repairs to the diesel locomotive. However, by lunchtime we had settled into our rooms at the Grosvenor Hotel and, being rather a warm day, we visited the seaside suburb of Glenelg to enable the boys to prove that the weather was ideal for swimming.

Tuesday evening, one of the highlights of the tour was practice night at St. Peter's Cathedral, where we enjoyed some very good ringing on the second heaviest eight in the world, followed by a delightful supper at Mary Devonshire's home and a quick visit to Windy Point to view the lights of Adelaide.

SAMPLING IN THE WINE CELLAR

Wednesday was to be the non-ringing highlight of the tour, a day at the Barossa Valley, some 50 miles north of Adelaide, where most of Australia's wine is produced. We of course visited a vinery and lunch was served in a wine cellar at Seppeltsfield amid endless barrels and bottles of every conceivable type of wine, and the boys took great delight in sampling the various wines with their lunch. Fortunately parents were over 1,000 miles away in Sydney!!

Ringing that evening at St. Andrew's, Walkerville, was again enjoyed by the Sydney visitors ringing with the local band on their pleasant-sounding six, as was the supper which followed at the home of Phillippa Lamphee.

The next day was to be our first non-ringing day since leaving home, and during the morning the boys soon found their way to the Torrens River and successfully occupied themselves manœuvring paddle boats up and down the river. After lunch we joined a coach to tour the Mount Lofty Ranges, which proved a very quiet and pleasant excursion until the coach driver and passengers discovered that ten bellringers were on board—then little peace prevailed!!

HEADING FOR HOME

Thursday evening saw us on the train again, this time heading back home towards Melbourne, to be followed by a day of sightseeing in that city.

On Friday evening we again boarded the "Spirit of Progress" for Sydney; this time a much quieter journey, and when the boys declined to walk through to the buffet car for breakfast next morning one was convinced there was little energy left in the group. What a different scene it was eight days earlier, when sleep was the last thing to be considered!

So Saturday morning, at Central Station amid reunions with families, brought to a conclusion a ringing tour which will not be forgotten for a long time and one that proved to us all that although the towers of Australia are few and far between, we received a wonderful welcome from the ringers wherever we went across the Continent. SWANSEA AND BRECON GUILD FESTIVAL

IN ideal weather conditions, the 39th annual festival of the Swansea and Brecon Guild opened on June 17th, with ringing at St. David's, and St. Mary's Brecon. The attendance, however, was very disappointing, and this was discussed at the business meeting later.

An impressive Evensong was held in the Cathedral at 4 p.m. and was fully choral, the choir singing the anthem "Rejoice in the Lord" (Purcell). At the service the Lord Bishop dedicated a new peals record book, given to the Guild by Mr. Gwyn I. Lewis, in memory of David Gwyn Lewis, of Cadoxton, Neath, who died November 9th, 1961, aged 24 years.

The Rev. Dudley White gave the address, and took as his text the last Psalm.

After a buffet tea, arranged by the Dean, the business opened with the Lord Bishop in the chair, and the first important item was the acceptance by the Guild, of the gift by Mr. G. I. Lewis. The Bishop proposed its acceptance and this was unanimously agreed to. The Bishop was sure it was the wish of all present, to think the Dean for the arrangements made for the festival; also the Rev. Dudley White for his sermon, and the ladies who assisted at the tea.

TERRITORIAL RIGHTS

The Hon. Secretary, in his report expressed the concern of most of the members of the Guild at the infiltration by border Diocesan Guilds. After a full discussion, it was proposed to arrange a committee meeting with the secretary of the Guild concerned, to sort the matter out.

Mr. D. J. Lewis, the oldest member of the Guild, was congratulated on his successful peal attempt, on his 86th birthday.

The notice of motion by Mr. M. R. Thomas, that the Master should hold office for three years, was lost. All officers were re-elected and were thanked for their services during the year.

In view of the missionary effort suggested it was agreed to hold the 1968 annual festival at Knighton, the date to be decided later. Miss Hazel Way called attention to the small attendance at this meeting, and asked the Bishop to consider arranging the date for next year's festival to be the first or second Saturday in July, as most of the young ringers were free of exams by then. The Bishop agreed to do so.

It was proposed to hold the 1968 ringing competition at Baglan, and this was agreed unanimously.

A vote of thanks to the Lord Bishop for presiding at the business meeting, concluded the meeting. J. A. H.

GUILD OF DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

The North East Branch held a quarterly meeting at Rewe on July 1st, the event being well attended.

Ringing in the afternoon included various standard methods and call changes and was followed by a service, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hodgshon, Rector of Silverton and chairman of the Branch.

Owing to a fault in the electric boiler a bountiful tea was delayed until after the usual business meeting. The chairman thanked the ladies for the meal.

Next meeting: Cullompton (subject to permission) on October 6th.

OBITUARY

MR. T. COLIN RYDER

Mr. T. Colin Ryder, who died at Great Gowerby, near Grantham, on June 2nd, aged 75, had a long association with Rotherham Parish Church, although he had not rung for about ten years.

He was taught to ring by the late Arthur Hague in 1912, in which year he joined the Yorkshire Association. He was also a member of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild, the old Midland Counties Association and of the Sheffield and District Society. He saw active service with the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry in the 1914–18 war and was in the Home Guard in the last war.

For 50 years Colin was a ringer at Rotherham Parish Church, including 40 years as steeplekeeper. He was deeply involved in Church activity, too, being for many years a member of the P.C.C., a sidesman, and for ten years secretary to the churchwardens.

He rang about 70 peals, including Surprise Major and Royal and Stedman Cinques, and some fine performances on the 35 cwt. tenor at Rotherham Parish Church, where he was captain for many years. His favourite method was Grandsire Caters, and he loved the bells of his parish church. A peal of Grandsire Caters was rung to his memory at Rotherham Parish Church on Sunday, June 11th, 1967.

Colin is survived by his widow, Mrs. Winifred Ryder, who also rang at Rotherham Parish Church, and a daughter. N. G.

MISS FRANCES HART

On July 6th Miss Hart was laid to rest in the churchyard at Weston-by-Welland, near Market Harborough, Leicestershire, where she had faithfully worshipped for over 60 years.

She rang several peals with Ernest Morris for the old Midland County Association, including the first on the bells at her own tower.

Failing health had prevented her from actively taking part in ringing for some years, but the writer was always impressed by her continued keen interest in ringing affairs, particularly in the progress in her own tower.

MR. WILLIAM UPTON

A wide circle of friends regret the passing on June 29th of Mr. William Upton, of Newport, Isle of Wight, in his 80th year. His death took place while talking to the ringers outside Carisbrooke Church. For 23 years he had been Ringing Master of the Isle of Wight District of the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild. He had taken part in 46 peals.

At the funeral service at Carisbrooke Church on July 5th Messrs. L. Bailey, H. Long S. Moody and F. Taylor acted as bearers. The service was conducted by the Rev. F. G. Fuller (Vicar of Newport), and Mr. F. Chiverton read the lesson. Other ringers attending the service were Mrs. A. M. Guy, Miss L. Bown, R. Ridett and W. Scott. A quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung after the service, with the bells muffled, by Mrs. E. Wyatt 1, L. Bailey 2, F. Taylor (cond.) 3, A. Harman 4, T. East 5, S. Moody 6, H. Long 7, F. Attrill 8. Cremation was at Whippingham, Isle of Wight.

MR. EDWARD WHITE

An old Bedfordshire ringer died on May 24th in the person of Mr. Ted White, of Goldington, Bedford. He was 79 years of age. After the service at the Crematorium at Bedford on the following Saturday the bells of St. Mary's Church, Goldington, were rung half-muffled by some of the local ringers.

Mr. White began ringing at Elstow and rang his first peal there on May 12th, 1910. He also rang his first peal as conductor on the Elstow bells on January 21st, 1920. Until a few years ago, when ill-health caused him to take it easy, he was a regular ringer at Goldington and was always willing to stand in any length up to a quarter peal. J. E.

OUTINGS

MAULDEN RINGERS WENT TO SOUTH GLOUCESTERSHIRE

The annual outing of the Maulden ringers took place on June 24th, when they visited South Gloucestershire.

It is regretted that the usual account of the day's activities is not available, but perhaps the appended remarks of a local ringer will be an acceptable alternative.

Well now, it were dree or vawer wicks ago, Vicar says to I he says: "Us be havin' some visitors from Bedfordshire a-comin' to ring yurr," he says.

"O are," I says, "well then I'll just have a look at the ropes an' that, an' putt a drop o' oil on the bearings, like, so as us can ginn they a traditional welcome," I says.

Well then, on June 24th, along um comes, these chaps and gels from Bedfordshire, an' they has a rare old time on our bells, um did, rung all sorts o' methods, um did, aye, an' um worn't a bad lot o' ringers neither, some on um!

There was one young lady, only a slip of a girl her was, and her gets 'old a' the tenor to ring un like—ginned I the surprise o' me life un did.

I says to chap in charge, I says "You baint a-goin' to let that girl ring tenor, be you," I says, "her'll never manage un," I says, "that bell weighs about a ton!" "Oh," he says, "don't you worry," he says, "her'll rin un alright." Aye and ring un her did, too, a fair knockout it were. Her worn't no bigger nor dree penorth o' copper!

Well, as I was a-sayin', they had a rare time on it altogether, an' they didn't forget to tell I so. They said as the country about yurr looked very pretty. Well, it didn't look no different from any other place to me, but us be glad as these vurriners enjoyed it!

Well, um certainly had a good run around—Dursley, Wotton-under-Edge, Cirencester, Bourton-on-the-Water, Varindon (that be in Berkshire!) and I don't know where else um didn't go. Oh and um said as I was to thank the Vicar and all our ringers for makin' um so welcome like.

Well, us was pleased to have they, and who can say but what us might some day return the visit. Aye, us'll maybe venture as vurr as Bedfordshire one o' these days. All us wants is a chap like Ron Sharp, what knows how to organise things like! A. E. R.

OTLEY BELLRINGERS SALLY FORTH

The present team of Otley, Yorkshire, Parish Church bellringers set out on their first outing on July 1st to five different towers in Yorkshire. The lovely weather revealed the churches most attractively.

At Collingham the bells were so light after Otley that it was rather like ringing on a ring of eight teacups. From Collingham we went to Whixley (near Green Hammerton), where the old church in its beautiful setting delighted everyone.

Ripon was the next stop, and after lunch at the Old Deanery there was just time for a quick glance in at the Minster across the road before leaving for Sharow, where the eight attractive bells were much enjoyed.

From Sharow across spectacular country to Pateley Bridge, where the six bells turned stiffly at the end of very long, springy ropes. Ruefully examining our hands at this point, it as agreed that for our next outing we should furnish ourselves with a set of portable Yorkshire ends with zip fasteners to put over the harsh rope-ends used by our sturdier brethren.

The climax of the day, from the ringing point of view, was a visit to Skipton, where the eight majestic bells spin nobly in their massive tower, singing of peace, prosperity, and a glory which is coming shortly. B. W. A.

WEST LINDSEY BRANCH VISIT ELY

Ringers and friends filled to capacity the large sized coach hired on June 10th for the West Lindsey Branch outing to Ely.

The first ring was at the little town of Long Sutton. A distinctive feature of the huge church is the tower and spire, only just attached to the south-west corner of the south aisle. We were met by a local ringer who rang with us on this very good ring of eight. Our second was in Cambridgeshire—Wisbech St. Mary (6).

A few non-ringers spent the afternoon in Ely, whilst ringers were sampling the 10 bells at Soham. Time had been allowed in our programme for a visit to Ely Cathedral, where the painted roof of the nave was much admired.

After an excellent salad tea in Ely we made our way to March (6). In this well-kept Church of St. Wendreda of particular interest is the beautifully carved angel roof. Ringing for the day concluded at Crowland Abbey, reputed to be the first church in England to have a ring of bells. A long draught of rope made these bells difficult to handle, but the exceptionally fine tone rewards ringers for their efforts. T. A. G.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Meldreth, Cambridge, bells are now at the Whitechapel Foundry. The second and fifth are to be recast.

Correction: To peal at Silsoe, Beds, published on page 459. The name of the treble ringer is Alan D. Norman and not Alan D. Morgan, as printed.

Mr. Christopher T. Osenton, of North Halling, near Rochester, rang his 300th peal on June 30th. It was Eryri Major, rung at Erith.

Isleworth have adopted the policy of attempting quarter peals on the first and second Sunday evenings in each month, and according to Mr. Harold Rogers it seems to work out very well.

Reading University Society rang at Warfield on July 4th a quarter peal to those of the Society who graduated this year. The three concerned, who rang in this quarter, were R. D. Gould, B.Sc., Hons., Agric.; Miss Mary E. Marshall, B.Sc., Hons., Dip.Ed.; and P. Norman, B.A., Hons.

The band who rang the peal of New Cambridge at Benington on June 10th wish Keith Walpole all success in his new job, which takes him away from the St. Albans District to Widnes. This peal was Keith's 49th for the Herts Association, a last-minute attempt to attain the half-century before his departure being unsuccessful owing to the inavailability of any bells at such short notice.

Mr. Jeater has received postal orders for £1 2s. 6d. purchased and posted at Bruton, Somerset, on July 10th, with no other enclosure. Will the sender please forward to him his or her name and address.

The peal Mr. Alan F. Lee conducted at Twerton-on-Avon on July 8th of Kennington Doubles was rung by five of his pupils. He hopes soon to ring an eight-bell peal with seven of his pupils.

During East Meon's Festival of Flowers at All Saints' Church from June 22nd to June 25th five quarter peals were attempted of which four were successful. The ringers taking part came from seven different towers, and some of the ringing was among the best heard in the village.

After ringing a quarter peal for the service of induction of the Rev. Eric Milner as Vicar of Bentley, the local company welcomed members of the Ossett company who had known Mr. Milner for many years. The two companies joined together for the remainder of the ringing before the service.

Due to an oversight the method rung on June 10th at Castle Cary, Somerset, was inadvertently named Castle Cary Surprise Major. This method was in fact rung for the first time at Edenbridge on September 24th, 1966, and called Greyling Surprise Major. The conductor would like to apologise to all concerned and thank George Massey for pointing it out.

A BRAINTREE 70th BIRTHDAY

The 70th birthday of Mr. Albert Wiffen, of Braintree—and he has been ringing at St. Michael's Church for 44 years—was not permitted to pass unnoticed. With Bert conducting a quarter peal in one of his favourite methods—Double Norwich Court Bob Major—was attempted. Unfortunately the attempt did not last very long and Plain Bob Major was substituted and successfully accomplished.

Afterwards Bert invited the band to his "local" where they found plenty of beer and sandwiches. There was also plenty of talking about old times, and the company agreed to ring a similar touch (with refreshments afterwards) for Bert's 80th birthday! Our correspondent concludes: "Two years or so ago Bert was taken ill, and after being in hospital was advised by his doctor not to do any more ringing, drinking or gardening. He does—and enjoys doing all three. Long may he do so."

TOMBSTONE RINGING INSCRIPTION

The Hoxne Deanery (Suffolk) magazine mentions John Jessop, a famous bell ringer, who was buried at Norlingworth in June, 1825. The inscription on his tombstone reads:

To ringing from his youth he always took delight,
Now his bell has rung and his soul has took its flight.
We hope to join the choir of heavenly singing
That far excels the harmony of ringing.

Comments the Rector (the Rev. W. Donnan): No doubt the author of these lines must have suffered from the jarring noise of bells badly rung on more than one occasion, and it is to be sincerely hoped that the heavenly choir came up to his expectations.

NOT FORGOTTEN AFTER 41 YEARS

On holiday from Canada, after an absence of 41 years, Mr. H. Hale, a former Urchfont, Wilts, ringer, raised, rang and lowered the tenor for morning service. During the week he rang the tenor to a quarter of Grandsire Doubles. The last time he handled a rope was 41 years ago.

THE NEWCASTLE CARILLON

"The Newcastle Journal" of July 5th contained a feature article about the City's controversial carillon of 25 bells costing £21,000, which it is expected will be in operation later in the year. The bass bell of 3 tons 11 cwt. is in A. The bells are a product of John Taylor and Co., Loughborough, and are now in position at the new Civic Centre.

The carillon is played in a room nearly 250 feet from the ground. "It all seemed very simple," writes Peter Anthony. "Twenty-five thin rods of high tensile steel between one-eighth and one-quarter inch thick descended from the ceiling to meet an instrument of handles and pedals."

The bells are all housed under a copper cupola with copper louvres "to angle the full blast below and not waste any of it on the heavens."

WYMONDHAM, SUFFOLK, A.G.M.

The annual meeting of the company was held on June 28th and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Ringing Master, Mr. H. Tooke; secretary, Mr. I. E. Spight, 34, Damgate Street, Wymondham, Norfolk. All correspondence to this address, please.

STROUD BRANCH SECRETARY'S FINE RECORD

At a garden party held in connection with Stonehouse patronal festival, Mr. T. Price was presented with a cheque from church people and friends at Stonehouse, Glos, as a mark of appreciation of the loyal and devoted service he had given as a bell ringer.

Replying, Mr. Price said on many occasions he had been asked why he rang the bells. Church bells, he replied, were rung to proclaim that Christ lives and to call people to worship. Their sound might be the only message that the church gave to many parishioners.

When he first started at Stonehouse in 1908, bellringing was at a low ebb. With the help of several others a new band was started and, after a while, the bells were being rung regularly. He had taught a good many ringers in his time and helped many towers in the district to form a band. He had been very fortunate, he considered, to have rung on bells in many parts of the country, ranging from Yorkshire to Cornwall.

In 1934, Mr. Price was elected secretary of the Stroud Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Association of Church Bellringers and had held that office for 30 years. During that time over 300 meetings had been held and he only missed one of these.

KINGSTON DOUBLE

An interesting double first was pulled off by two Kingston upon Thames ringers recently. Sixteen-year-old Ann Salvage was one of the two first-pealers in Bob Minor at Thames Ditton, thus becoming Kingston's first trainee for several years to score a peal. Coupled with her achievement was that of David Wilkins, one of Kingston's veterans (i.e. over 21s), who after many years' ringing decided to show his hand and notch up his first peal, too. Congratulations, Ann and David!

FROM HAND TO TOWER BELLS AT ISLEWORTH

At a recent concert of the Hounslow Schools' Music Association, conducted by the borough music adviser, a handbell item gained tremendous applause from the audience. The item was the debut of a group from the Marlborough Girls' Secondary School, ringing a selection of well-known tunes on a set of 13 handbells loaned for the occasion by Mr. H. W. Rogers.

Group training had been run by Miss Jennifer Bond, the school's music teacher, who learned to ring tower bells in Somerset. Most of the girls in the group are learning to ring tower bells at Isleworth and have just reached the stage of ringing rounds.

SHIELD CONTEST AT A FLOWER FESTIVAL

Flower Festivals in many of our beautiful churches are now extremely popular. One in the 15th century Church of St. Nicholas, Bradfield, near Sheffield, was a successful and happy innovation.

The church itself is of a uniform pattern, with a west tower, nave, north and south aisles and a chancel. The main treasures are perhaps the Saxon cross and the fine examples of carving as examplified in the lectern, pulpit and font cover. The natural beauty of the church was enhanced by the beautiful flowers which decorated practically every conceivable place in the interior. Obviously much work had gone into the arrangements, not only in the flowers, but for teas, parking, services, leaflets and, of course, the ringing of the six bells.

The festival lasted from July 1st to 9th and the bells played their part. A musical ring, cast by Taylors in 1847, they are rung from the ground-floor and as a result, when being rung, many visitors turned their attention away from the flowers to the ringers! The local ringers, with three visitors rang on Thursday and with Wentworth ringers on Friday. Came the Saturday and more people, this time four "expert" teams of ringers rang during the afternoon and early evening. The occasion was the Barnsley and District Society shield contest. A feature of this contest was the many curious onlookers watching the intent and concentrated looks of the ringers.

Then, prior to Matins on the Sunday, the bells were ringing out again over the lovely countryside bathed in the sunshine. This time it was to a quarter peal, the first in which four ringers in the team had participated.

Thus the Flower Festival came to an end. Pleasant sunshine, good crowds and quite a lot of very good ringing had all made the efforts of the arrangers most worthwhile.

A PLESSEY PEAL ATTEMPT

The peal of Cambridge at Hook Norton was originally fixed to be one by eight employees of the Plessey Co. Unfortunately due to illness one of the selected band was unable to ring and his place was taken at short notice by Barry E. Saunders. However, seven-eighths of the band was from the Plessey Co. and Barrie Hendry hopes to arrange an all-Plessey peal in the future.

SWANAGE RINGERS' SERVICE

At the ringers' annual service at St. Mary's Church, Swanage, on June 25th, there were more than 20 visiting ringers including two from as far afield as Warwickshire, who joined the local ringers before and after the service. There were many and varied touches, and rounds were rung for the beginners.

The service was conducted by the Rector; the sermon preached by the Rev M. R. Longridge, Master of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild; and the lesson was read by one of the local ringers. Four hymns were played on handbells, the "bellringers' hymn" being sung by the choir and congregation.

Afterwards, refeshments were served by wives of the local ringers to visiting ringers and guests. The ringing chamber was also open to the public so that they could see the ringers in action.

TREBLE BOB MINOR
HOW TO RING & SPLICE THEM

BY THE PROFESSOR

The object of these articles is to provide material for an individual, or a band, who, having begun ringing Treble Bob Minor methods, is anxious to have some systematic approach to ringing and splicing them. Much of the information given is based on practical experience, and theoretical matter is added where this has been found to illuminate practical ringing. Occasionally a little historic detail gratuitously added may serve, perhaps, to sugar-coat the pill.

LEARNING TREBLE BOB MINOR METHODS

Here are three well-known Treble Bob Methods:—

Historical Note.—Oxford T.B. was first published in "Campanalogia," 1677 (Stedman's), where it was described as "Oxford Triple Bob the Second Way" in order to distinguish it from Woodbine in the same edition which was called simply "Oxford Triple Bob." It was, therefore among the first "regular" methods to receive publication.

Kent T.B. First published as "New Treble Bob" in "Clavis." 1788. Later called "Kent New Treble (or Trebble) Bob."

Referring to Fig. 1 it will be found:—

1. Each lead of Treble Bob is divided into six parts, called "Sections."

2. The pattern of the second and fifth sections is identical in all Treble Bob methods (i.e. ignoring methods that contain 5ths place without the treble behind).

   This means that the "slow work bell" always lies on the first bell to lead, which latter bell, therefore, always leads full. Similarly in the 5th section, the bell finishing "slow work" always lies on the last bell to lead, which bell must, therefore, always lead full.

3. Because the pattern of the 2nd and 5th sections is constant each method may conveniently be divided into two parts, which may be called "Frontworks" (or lead-ends) and "Backworks." The art of Minor method Treble Bob ringing largely consists of being able to join Frontworks and Backworks together, as the number of both can be confined within reasonable limits, the number of the former being less than the number of the latter. Quite a lot of methods can be formed by manipulating a comparatively few groups of Backworks to different lead-ends.

4. Each Frontwork or Backwork has the following pattern:—

   (a) One bell makes a place the same time as the treble leads or lies full. This place-making, or "pivot," bell may be leading, or making 3rds or 5ths at the half-lead or making 2nds or 6ths at the lead-ends. The work that the bell has done up to making the place is repeated, in reverse, after the place has been made. See 2nd in Oxford and Kent and 4th in Sandal, Fig. 1. Although the reverse pattern is evident throughout the lead, it is better to deal with Frontworks and Backworks separately and learn them individually. Backworks are, of course, not affected as are Frontworks, with the bobs.

   (b). Two pairs of bells cross at the half-leads or lead-end) each doing the reverse of its companion in the same pair, e.g. in "Sandal" the two pairs in the Backwork are 3–5 and 2–6. Taking 3–5 we find that the 3rd does the following work: First bell to lead; three dodges in 3–4; pass the treble in 4–5. The 5th, its companion, does the following. Pass the treble in 5–4; three dodges in 4–3; last bell to lead, which is, as can be seen, exactly the reverse of the work of the 3rd. Similarly, opposed duties are done by the 2nd and 6th.

By learning the work in the manner of (a) and (b) above, the amount of memorising can be reduced to a minimum.

Coursing Order.—Coursing orders, although occasionally useful, are in many Minor Treble Bob methods of very little assistance. Of the 14 lead-ends available in normal Treble Bob methods, it will be found that in only six of them do the bells come up behind in continuous natural coursing order from the treble leaving behind to returning there again. Of these six, there are only two in which there is any possibility of the bells reaching the front in the natural coursing order. Consequently in many Treble Bob Minor methods, checking the position of the bells by coursing is such a hazardous business, especially within the lead, that this if often more efficiently achieved by "spot-checks." How this is done will be explained elsewhere when time and space allow.

Cambridge Sur.	2nds.
Primrose Sur.	6ths.
Old Oxford	2nds.
Neasden	6ths.
Trinity Sunday	2nds.
Killamarsh	6ths.

As the last two types of lead-ends, which are really Kent T.B. with 2nds and 6ths, are the only ones in which it is possible to have bells arriving both at the front and the back in the natural coursing order, fourths place Delight and Surprise methods are automatically ruled out.

CIRENCESTER IN SUBURBIA

I cannot imagine why it is that I have always chosen pursuits that involve rising from my bed at unreasonable hours of the morning! Yet here I was at 7.40 a.m. on June 10th walking down the road to the coach that was to take us so many miles that Saturday, and pretending that I always enjoyed this hour of the morning when usually I am happily asleep in bed.

Our first tower, at Tring, in Hertfordshire, contained a pleasant eight. Here we enjoyed a reasonably good rise and to my surprise a good touch of Stedman Triples—have you ever been happily lulled into peaceful meditation during a rise and then been given exactly one whole pull to consider the start of the second? At Berkhampstead another pleasant hour was spent on the "right" eight and a reasonable touch of our (Fred's) present method, namely Little Bob, was rung.

Next on to St. Albans for lunch and then to the Cathedral (12). The majority of the party were so interested in the majesty of this ancient pile that the various perspectives of Norman architecture distracted many on their way up the tower to the ringing chamber. However, we all arrived in time and were very impressed with this lovely 12, even though we considered that we did not do them full justice.

Quickly now on through a crowded Saturday market to St. Peter's (10), where another magnificent ring was enjoyed and some tolerable Caters were rung. Then on through seemingly endless miles of suburbia (at least to country eyes), arriving ultimately at Rickmansworth (10), where there was more tolerable Caters. Thirst was quickly assuaged at a nearby tavern before our schedule took us to High Wycombe for our last tower of the day. Many readers will have enjoyed the magnificence of this 12 and it was a great pleasure to be able to ring on them. Our best touch here was Erin Caters, which was probably the best we achieved throughout the day.

Thus we concluded our tour for this year, another happy day spent in the company of friends, and it remains for me to express our thanks to the many people who made our day possible—all tower captains and incumbents at towers we visited, but most of all to Messrs. Cooke and Jefferies, whose considerable effort and organisation made this outing possible.

EASTBOURNE—JULY 8th

It was the sort of day that every secretary dreams of when he is writing off for the towers. The careful arrangements made by Paul Fox paid off and everything clicked into place to provide a memorable outing. Even if Michael collected no new towers he added a new pub name to his list—the "Duke Without a Head."

We rang at Mayfield with Bill Kitchingside, Tonbridge with Walter Dobbie, Maidstone (the odd six at St. Michael's) with Martin Howe. A first-rate lunch put us in the mood for the best ringing of the day at Leeds, where Stedman Caters tapped out beautifully, better than we had dared to hope. On to Smarden, and a gasp went up as we spotted the tea laid out for us by the local ringers, bless 'em. And, to round off the day, Cranbrook and Ticehurst (with its difficult six). Our thanks go to the patient key-holders of all these towers.

On the way home we were able to gather round David and his guitar for the final renderings of men with mowers, miners dreaming of home, and Nellie Dean. And at the last stop of the day our two pianists and half-a-dozen handbell enthusiasts entertained, while the colts played "pig-in-the-middle" on the village green in the light of an idyllic sunset.

A COTSWOLD RINGING MEETING

When on my way to the Cheltenham Branch July meeting, I thought of the many people who travel long distances to see the Cotswold countryside I had additional pleasure ahead, but turning off the main road near Stow-on-the-Wold, first Lower and then Upper Ewell engaged our attention.

Our secretary was navigating with the aid of a large-scale map, and enlivened the journey with information about each wood, stream and hamlet, but we came upon the tiny Donnington Brewery, recently featured in the national Press quite unannounced. Time became pressing, but we parked and greeted the Rev. Peter Newing at Blockerley at the appointed time

The bells are more than pleasant, with a distinct character, perhaps in their handling as well as their tone. By graduating to Double Norwich and Cambridge the striking improved, although the general willingness to help ringers from Willersley who have been receiving instruction in Grandsire Doubles was a pleasure.

A further pleasure, to me at least, was the short choral Evensong in the spacious and beautiful church. A short climb to the Parish Hall enhanced the view, but of course the main purpose was refreshment which Mrs. Angela Lewing had provided.

New members from Willersley were proposed and, as I expected from the presence of the Association chairman, Miss M. Bliss, and Ringing Master, Mr. W. Scudamore, the Branch boundaries revision was on the agenda. A proposal to ask for a meeting with our neighbouring Branch was accepted.

A short trip brought us to Chipping Camden, where heavier metal awaited us, but there were some 30 ringers to share the labours of this majestic eight. As the ringing progressed, I became aware of some competition for the tenor in some Double Norwich which seemed to be imminent Amid discussion about the speed for these bells, a well-known Evesham ringer regaled us with anecdotes from a peal here.

A slightly faster pace in spliced Plain and Little Bob certainly improved matters, and I came down the tower to find my navigator with an alternative route through even more delightful villages, a fitting end to a pleasurable meeting. W. A. F.

EAST GRINSTEAD & DISTRICT GUILD

This month the Guild met at Hever on July 8th. Only 12 members were present (owing to holidays) and so no service was held. Members had a picnic tea on the football pitch nearby, followed by a game of four-a-side rounders, the chairman's team losing decisively.

Then the business meeting was held in the belfry. There was no important business except the chairman's announcement that he and the secretary were now collecting names for the annual outing to be held in October.

Ringing then continued until 8.30 p.m., and Mr. Bob Collins joined the party. R. J. E.

Stories for Ringers

A CALL OF A MEETING — BY B. O. REDMAN

He sat dejectedly upon the wooden bench which is situated outside the Fox and Hounds, the only pub in the small village of Chirton Matravers. His beer was slowly warming in the evening sun and the mosquitoes were beginning to satisfy their evening thirst for blood.

Slowly he lifted his head and squinted across the green at the squat Norman tower, which housed a fine ring of eight bells. Allowing a hiss of air to escape from between his pursed lips as the Grandsire Triples, to which he had been listening, progressed from intermittent to continuous firing, he made no effort to rouse himself.

He, Jonathan Westly, was the best ringer in the Moortown Branch of the Downshire Guild of Change Ringers. In fact he was probably the best ringer in the Guild. He smiled at this thought; it was not hard to become the best ringer in the Guild where ill-struck Grandsire Triples was regarded as the ultimate achievement.

He should go up into the tower and drop a few hints to certain people, point out the principals of striking to others, drag a few more through a touch of Bob Major, which only he could call, and refuse to take part in touches with more than two learners in the band. That he should do this he knew, but how to force himself to do so, he did not.

He allowed his mind to drift back to the proceedings of earlier on in the day. There had actually been some fair ringing early in the afternoon, the band consisting of himself and a couple of older ringers with a few keen youngsters from his tower. It had only been rounds and call changes but it was good ringing. However, apart from this, the rest had been abominable. Eager tower captains pushing ill-taught beginners into touches they were not capable of ringing—nothing came round, in fact even rounds had fired up.

Then the usual service. He mused upon the peculiar fact that he should now think of an act of worship with boredom. He had taken up ringing 13 years earlier at the age of 14, one year after his Confirmation. He had enjoyed "churchgoing" then, even doing five years as a server. Yet now he never set foot inside of the church, although he regularly rang twice every Sunday in his home tower. He entered by the tower door and had grown to consider the tower as not being part of the church. Apart from the odd meeting service he had attended for appearance's sake, he had not been to a service for three years. Had ringing done this for him? The pettiness and inefficiency he had encountered in Guild proceedings had bored him with mundane ringing activities. Had this led to his faith being destroyed?

John could not answer this question he asked of himself. He only knew that his sole interest was in good ringing. He cheered up at that thought. Why? Yes!! Did he not have a circle of good friends at least 50 strong, with whom he regularly rang peals and drank beer? He had lost his faith in the Church but had doubled many times over the number of his friends, who were scattered the length and breadth of the country.

Maybe this answered his question. His faith in the Church had somehow become entangled in the concept of every-day ringing with all its frustrations. Meeting short on Sundays, steady loss of learners after an arduous spell of teaching bell control and then, on top of that, the Guild meetings. Those Guild meetings, with the cajoling of the Ringing Master, polite noises of the chairman, bullying of the secretary and squabbling of the members—how he loathed them. When he thought of it the Church hierarchy seemed like Branch officers, vicars like ringing masters, P.C.C. members and hangers-on resembled members to be found at meetings. Perhaps that is why he no longer had faith in the Church.

Carrying the thought process further, he realised that although he disliked every-day ringing, his appreciation of good ringing had increased and his desire to make others good ringers had increased proportionately. Enough in fact to make him endure these meetings, enough to have brought him here today when he could have been standing in a peal of Surprise Royal. In the same way, although his belief in the Church had diminished, his basic faith in God had increased. Thus as he tried to pass belief in good ringing to others, should he not try to give others the faith in God that he now realised he possessed? Of course it would be expedient to use the framework of the Church in the same manner as he tried to use the framework of the Guild to spread his ringing beliefs. It would certainly require some thought.

As he arrived at this conclusion he found, to his surprise, that he had arrived at the entrance to the tower. With the appreciation of his whereabouts came the realisation that Grandsire Triples was again firing out.

"Ah well," he muttered with a shrug, "they need me up there."

BRAINTWISTER — No. 1

Set by A. S. HUDSON

SOME time ago I had occasion to visit friends in the village of Old Musty, and nearing one evening the sound of bells on the breeze I decided to investigate at the local church. Having found the tower and spent some little time discovering the way up, I eventually emerged through a low doorway into the ringing chamber, where the bells had just pulled off again into rounds. Subsiding on to a rickety bench in order to get my breath, I gradually became aware that there was something rather odd about this particular tower. It was not long before the peculiarity became apparent. Now although the sound coming from the bells was rounds, the ropes were not being pulled in clockwise order round the circle; in fact the order appeared to be quite random.

Unfortunately, before I had time to observe the order in which the bells were arranged the conductor called for Plain Bob Minor and the bells went into changes. Nevertheless it was possible to decide which was which from the changes being rung.

I followed most of the changes until the first call, at which the conductor ran out, and at this point one of the people sitting out came across and spoke to me, thus distracting my attention for a moment. I did however notice that at the lead-end following the first call the ropes went up at handstroke in anticlockwise order round the circle (the treble was of course leading at the time). Two leads after that, at the treble backstroke lead, the ropes again fell in order round the circle, but this time in a clockwise manner. Two leads later the tenor ran out at another bob, ran out again at the next lead-end and 56 came up the wrong way at backstroke during the following lead. There was a single shortly afterwards which the tenor made, and the bells finally came round with a single at home. The conductor afterwards told me that they had just rung a true touch of 180 changes.

If you can solve the problem of the correct numbering of the bells round the rope circle, then send your answer to: The Editor, "The Ringing World," Guildford.

THE PHANTOM TENOR by Colly Wocks (aged 9)

MY dad says that our ringers have had an outing every year since the war but there's never been anything in "The Ringing World" about it. He says nothing ever happens on our outings worth writing about. I said he'd have a smashing yarn to tell this year, but he says that's no good either because no one would believe it. Well, I've kept asking him to write about it but he won't, so now I'm writing in secret.

It happened when we went to a little church in the corner of a field. There was no one there to meet us but dad said we'd got permission to ring so we'd make a start anyway. Six of the men got hold of the ropes and started pulling away but they jolly soon stopped because instead of six bells we could all hear seven. Dad said something I wasn't supposed to hear, and Mr. Wilson said there's something queer going on. Then dad and Mr. Wilson went up the ladder to look at the bells.

After a time Mr. Wilson shouted down to chime the bells one at a time, which they did, then dad and Mr. Wilson came down and said they couldn't see anything wrong.

But as soon as they started there it was again—seven bells instead of six. Dad shouted to keep going and maybe it would work itself out, so they raised the bells and set them, and still there was seven. Were seven. Sorry.

Just then the Vicar came hurrying into the church in a pair of bike clips, and all puffing and panting. He said are you having trouble with our phantom tenor? He said years ago there used to be an old man who had rung there all his life, but he could never get on with the changes, so the others used to ring Doubles and the old man used to drum the tenor and everybody was happy.

Then a new family came to live in the village. There was the man and his wife and three sons and they were all expert ringers and couldn't be bothered with Doubles, and soon they had the others ringing Minor, and the old man was sort of pushed out of it. He used to go every Sunday and sit in a corner and watch the others, and they didn't often ask him to ring, and soon he was taken ill and died and some said he died of a broken heart because he couldn't ring any more.

Well, after the funeral some of the ringers went across to the church to ring a quarter half-muffled, and that's when the phantom tenor started, and they all got upset and soon there was no ringing except when visitors like us went. But the Vicar said it would be all right so long as they allowed room for the extra bell.

Just then Johnny Green (that's my pal) gave me a nudge and said look at Mrs. Robinson's eyeballs. They always stick out a bit when she's excited and just then they were sticking out extra bad.

Then Mrs. Wilson said she didn't think she'd like to ring there and she'd wait in the bus, and Mrs. Green and Mrs. Robinson went with her, and then Mr. Wilson said he'd see if Lizzie was all right, and soon there were only five ringers left. Dad said it seemed a pity to leave without having a ring and how about some Doubles on the back five. And then he said no. He said if there was going to be a phantom tenor it might sound better on the front five. So they rang some Doubles on the front five and there was the phantom tenor drumming away at the back all the time. It seemed a bit queer and I kept expecting to see the tenor rope start bobbing up and down but it never did.

Then they pulled the bells down and still the phantom was there all the time. Then Mr. Brown (I like him) said he'd pull the tenor down and he went over and took hold of the rope, then he said a rude word and that it was down. Dad went over and took hold of the rope and gave a little pull and then said come on let's get out of here.

Well, the other week dad had a letter from the Vicar and he said he didn't know what we'd done to the bells but they'd had some more visitors since we went and there was no trouble with the phantom tenor, and he was hoping to get the team together again soon.

P.S.—I know how to spell phantom because I asked my dad.

"TO HAVE A RIGHT JUDGEMENT"

BY EDGAR C. SHEPHERD

IT was one of those gatherings within a gathering, one of the several drifting together into groups that mark a stage in every informal social meeting. The little party that we joined sat near the fireplace, and smoked and talked of the parish business that had lately occupied our attention. There were two bell ringers in the group, but it was the people's warden who turned the conversation to the belfry and to ringing generally. As the topic widened, one of the ringers spoke feelingly of the friendship he found among bell ringers wherever he had gone, and of the sense of brotherhood that seemed to bind together ringers all over the land. It was, he went on to say, reasonably true to assert that no young ringer, going to live in a strange town, need lack friends and friendship if there were bell towers and bell ringers in that place. The members of the local company would welcome him and look after him. "And," said the churchwarden, "lead him off to the nearest public house."

It was a rather unexpected interruption, and whether to take it seriously or not held us silent for a moment. But the answer came aptly and very quietly from the second ringer, in words much as follows. "If that should be so, and it is by no means sure, he would at least be in intelligent company."

It is some years since the above gathering provided that interesting intermission, but thoughts of it are revived by the sturdy declaration of right made so bluntly and yet so correctly by Mr. George Pipe in "The St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich News of the Diocese." It is indeed time that the churchmanship of the vast majority of bell ringers was asserted and that much of the assumption of their standing, their work, and their habits was brought to its right proportion.

Mr. R. A. Daniell, that voluminous writer on ringing history, was a stout champion of the bell ringer, and was untiring in the task of defending both the ringer of his day and the one of olden time from some of the accusations brought by what he called uninformed opinion. He was at pains to point out that codes of conduct must be judged by the times in which they prevailed, and that what was considered right (and indeed, sometimes desirable) in one age could not be regarded as acceptable in another social environment. In the 17th century it might not be considered unfitting to use the cathedral for trade, for barter, for buying and selling; in the 18th century drinking in the belfry might be considered as a practice as normal as the squire's bottle of port in the family pew or the parson's brandy bottle in the vestry. No one could say that these were widespread customs, and, indeed, it might be argued that the only harm resulting was where excess or obsession overruled the considerations attaching to the church attendance and the church worship. To judge wisely on those men and manners is by no means easy, but a verdict must take into account the times in which they lived and the difference between liberty and licence.

It is probable that in the olden time it was the lack of attendance at Divine Worship more than his actual habits that brought the bell ringer so much adverse criticism; and today that ancient prejudice leads uninformed speakers and writers to assume that all ringers are absentees from the services at which they ring, and that the public house is the natural assembly point when ringing at service finishes. The latter point will not, fortunately, commend itself to any thoughtful person, and that for very practical reasons. It was well put by an old ringer in the Midlands, who was heard to say: "If anybody thinks we can go from our Sunday morning ringing straight to 'The Red Lion' he shows a deplorable lack of knowledge of the English licensing laws!"

The question of attendance at church services is, and always will be, a very difficult one. There are churches in the great cities that have no parochial ringing band. The ringing for their offices is often maintained by bands who must ring at one church and then go on to another to provide ringing at a later service. In many cases these same ringers are ringing at their own parish churches at Evensong. There are bands in some village churches that man the bells for three or even four services on each Sunday. Some are choristers as well. It would not be reasonable to require them to attend the full length of every service of the day.

We recollect the case of a Ringing Master whose custom it was, week in, week out, to attend Communion at 8 a.m., ring at a 9.30 service, hurry home to breakfast and get back to conduct the ringing at Matins. In the evening he was ringing again for Evensong and attending the full service. It is clear that criticism of his hurrying away from the church at 9.30 a.m. would be uninformed and entirely unjustified. Ringers know that there are many such devoted servants, and that they are found among the very greatest exponents of our art, among the many whose names rarely come before us, and in that great band of unknowns who labour on unhonoured and unsung.

There are, it must be said, ringers who never, or very rarely, attend the service of which their work is a part. Their number is probably few, and even they come to the church to make some offering once or twice a Sunday.

Liverpool Anglican Cathedral

BY DOUGLAS HUGHES

LIVERPOOL Cathedral is so beautifully proportioned throughout that one does not realise just how vast is the belfry which houses the heaviest ring of bells in the world. Two simple comparisons serve to illustrate its great size. There is ample room in the belfry for 25 rings of eight, with tenors of 14 cwt., all on one level with plenty of room for access and maintenance. The eight-louvred sound openings are each tall enough for an average church tower to be passed through standing up. To these, add the fact that the belfry floor is 219 feet above the nave floor, and you have some idea of the extraordinary engineering problems that faced Mr. Burnard Geen, the Cathedral's consulting engineer, who had to allow for the horizontal forces exerted by bells with a total deadweight of 16½ tons.

He solved it in a unique way by starting 40 feet below the belfry, with a reinforced concrete girdle six feet thick and just over six feet in height, completely encircling the tower; set diagonally on this, standing on roller bearings to allow for expansion and contraction,, he built two intersecting steel bridges roughly 20 feet wide by 21 feet high, which form the predominant feature in the ringing chamber. The floor of this chamber is slung from the lower members of these bridges, and the ceiling, which also forms the floor of the sound-deading chamber, takes its bearing on top, and in turn this floor supports through great concrete piers the belfry floor, concrete frame and bells. All this structure from the girdle up weighs over 2,000 tons.

The floors are insulated from the walls and the frame is insulated from the belfry floor. The radial plan of the frame is made possible by the enormous span, which is 72 feet, and allows the ropes to fall plumb from the wheels in a true geometrical circle. The order for the ring of 12 (tenor 82 cwt. 11 lb. in A flat with a sharp second to give a "light" eight in E flat, tenor 24 cwt. 2 qr. 17 lb.), together with the 14½ ton bourdon was placed with Messrs. Mears and Stainbank in 1938. The ring was the bequest of Thomas Bartlett, of Liverpool, who died in 1912, and the bourdon was the gift of Lord Vestey and his brother, Sir Edmund Vestey. The casting and tuning of the ring was completed in 1939 and they were moved to Liverpool for the duration of the war, as it was considered they would be safer there than to remain at Whitechapel.

Although work on the tower was suspended for the war, the building committee asked Mr. Hughes if he could proceed with the casting of the bourdon bell as they wished Lord Vestey, then an old man, to hear it. Two factors made it impossible to proceed with this at Whitechapel. The first was that the war by this time was hotting up, and the second was the loss of key men to the Services, and consequently Mr. Hughes asked Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, if they would undertake the casting of Great George. This they were able to do, but, ironically, before it was cast Lord Vestev died and the roof of the Whitechapel Foundry was blown off in a raid on London!

It was not until 1950 that the tower was sufficiently completed for work to proceed with the fittings, and the hanging of the bells, and this work was completed in 1951. Much remains to be done in the belfry when work of greater priority on the Cathedral itself is finished, notably in acoustics in the ringing chamber, which are certainly difficult for those unused to them. Undoubtedly these problems have been made more acute by the use of so much concrete, but there can be no question that this was the only suitable material. The Cathedral authorities are wisely doing nothing at the moment, for even an experimental scheme would run into four figures and may not even be effective. Time and further experience in the acoustic treatment of concrete surfaces will undoubtedly solve this problem.

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting was held at Shrewsbury on Saturday, July 8th, and the change of date for the first time from January was a success, as excellent weather was enjoyed. Market Drayton, Hodnet, Atcham and Wellington towers were open for the benefit of visitors travelling to Shrewsbury, and at Shrewsbury the ten bells at St. Mary's and the 12 at St. Chad's were rung.

A service was held at St. Chad's, conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. N. Lewis, and tea and the business meeting followed in St. Mary's Church Hall, at which 43 people sat down.

The Ringing Master's report was presented by the Ringing Master, Mr. E. F. Willcox, who stated that he did not wish to stand for a further term of office, and this was followed by the treasurer's report which showed a balance of £82 13s. 9d.

Mr. A. Pritchard took the chair for the business meeting, and the following officers were elected: Ringing Master, Mr. P. J. Evans; Deputy Ringing Master, Mr. R. H. Newton; secretary, Mr R. Brewin; treasurer, Mr. M. J. A. Orman; auditor, Mr. F. C. A. Bennett; trustees, Messrs. F. G. Beddow and A. E. G. Owen.

Mr F. C. A. Bennett proposed a vote of thanks to all concerned in the meeting arrangement. P. J. E.

CLERICAL PEAL-RINGING GATHERING

Following on a suggestion made during the Clerical Guild Ringing Week at Lincoln, a peal-ringing gathering was arranged by the Rev. Peter Robbins, Vicar of Charing, Kent, and prove! to be a very happy event

The party assembled on Monday afternoon, July 3rd, at Charing Vicarage, and consisted of the following: the Revs. Canon C. Elliot Wigg, R.D., St. John Smith (Guild president), S. M. Evans, R. Keeley, C. J. B. Marshall, J. B. T. Homfray, D. Sansum, P. T. Robbins and M. Hart.

There were four peal attempts in the programme, and though it was a disappointment that only one of these was successful, the ringing itself was of a good standard throughout.

The first attempt was on Monday evening—Double Norwich at Tenstall. After ringing for nearly an hour on this tuneful light eight, two bells were found to have crossed. On Tuesday morning Stedman Triples was attempted at Ospringe; this came to grief after an hour and a half. On Tuesday evening a fast, well-struck peal of Cambridge Surprise Major was rung at Wye, in three hours and two minutes. It was the first peal of Cambridge Major rung by the Guild since 1949, but without in any way detracting from this achievement it may be that St. Martin had something to do with it, as we had rung the peal (we discovered afterwards) in a church dedicated in his honour on the Feast of the Translation of his bones! Most certainly a great deal of credit must go to the conductor, Roger Keeley, for the masterful way he rang the tenor.

The last attempt was at Headcorn, where a second attempt at Stedman produced some of the best ringing but no peal. We also enjoyed practice rings at Throwley and Ashford.

We were specially grateful to the two hostesses, Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. Evans, for their warm hospitality, and look forward to another peal tour perhaps next year, if time and circumstances permit. J. B. T. H.

PRITTLEWELL FESTIVAL ATTENDED BY 4,000 PEOPLE

When the Prittlewell company arranged that their Ringing and Flower Festival should finish on July 10th they anticipated that the public's interest would have waned by the evening, and that they could enjoy a peaceful final practice night before the representatives of Taylor's moved in to take the bells down and away for retuning.

A measure of the success of the plans to decorate the church with flowers and to open the tower to non-ringing visitors may be gauged by the fact that almost 100 people made the ascent of the tower during Monday evening alone to watch the ringing. It was not merely idle curiosity which brought people into our "province" but, judging by their questions, a genuine desire to know what really happened when the bells rang out their message.

We were pleased to see many of our old friends among the ringers on Saturday, including Mr. A. Reeve and Mr. E. Furbank, our oldest members, as well as several new faces from North East Essex, London and Kent. All the towers were opened, especially for the day, among them Thorpe Bay, Leigh and Benfleet locally, and Purleigh and Stanford-le-Hope further afield, and they were visited by many ringers; in fact Thorpe Bay reported 60 people at the tower at one time.

It is most unlikely that St. Mary's has ever been more full of flowers and people than it was last week-end. Our ringers' service, on the Saturday, at which Canon Gilbert Thurlow preached, and the special Evensong on the Sunday when Archdeacon Welch, of Southend, preached, and which the Mayor and Mayoress attended, both saw the church filled to capacity. It is estimated 4,000 people viewed the floral displays during the three day festival. J. E. N.

KING'S LYNN WIN NORWICH DIOCESE STRIKING CONTEST

Twelve bands took part in the striking competition and handbell festival held at Drayton on July 1st by kind permission of the Rector, the Rev. Humphrey Squires. The judges were the Rev. Peter Bond, Mr. Leonard Last and Mr. William Theobald.

The Rev. P. Bond, announcing the results, commented on the good entry and some excellent striking, the first three bands being very close The others, he said, lost marks by leading too quick at handstroke and too slow at backstroke.

The following bands took part and placings were: King's Lynn, 5 faults; St. George's, Norwich, 20; St. Peter Mancroft, 22½; Aylsham, 47½; St. Giles' Norwich, 52½; Norton Subcourse, 63; Drayton, 65½; Wroxham "A", 80; Wroxham "B", 105; Holt, 120; Barnham Broom, 140. South Norfolk were disqualified for not ringing the full extent of 240 changes.

Mr. George Sayer, branch chairman, on behalf of the branch thanked the Rev. H. Squires for the use of the bells and conducting the service, the ladies for an excellent tea, Mr. Michael Frost for local arrangements, and the Association Ringing Master, Mr. F. C. Goodman, for organising.

After the service, in St Margaret's Church, the handbell festival was held in the Parish Hall. This included for the first time tune ringing and tape recordings of the Ecclesfield and Launton bands. There was also change ringing.

Tune ringers taking part included four pupils from Redenhall C. of E. Secondary School under the leadership of Mr. Archie Brown; also a band from Norton Subcourse and Wroxham. All provided a very enjoyable performance.

Mr. F. C. Goodman proposed a vote of thanks to all who had taken part to make it a great success.

Mr. F. E. COLLINS RETIRES

AN APPRECIATION

As many ringers in the Croydon area will already know, Mr. F. E. Collins (Ted) has now retired to his native Ringwood. For us who remain at Croydon, however, we feel that the occasion cannot go by without an acknowledgement in "The Ringing World" of his services in Surrey.

For those who do not know Ted, he was born in Ringwood just after the turn of the century. After leaving school he followed his father's footsteps as an engineer. His ringing career started in 1916, when he visited the tower to watch the ringers at work. He, together with a number of others, learnt to ring call changes and eventually learnt the art of change ringing.

Ted's interest in bells and ringing grew to such an extent that in 1925 he moved to Croydon and was employed by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston as a professional bell hanger. He spent some eleven years with the firm and travelled all over the country hanging bells, etc. It was in the early 1930's that he met Olive and they were married at this time.

In Croydon, the foundry tower was always St. Peter's Church and when Ted was at home, he would ring on the Gillett ten which at that time had a very good Stedman Caters and Kent Treble Bob Royal band. His duties enabled him to visit many towers and he can recall many interesting experiences.

Ted's last job with the Croydon foundry came in December, 1936, when he helped hang the twelve at Croydon Parish Church. Feeling the need for a more settled life, he resigned from the bell founding firm and was employed at the South Eastern Gas Board where he became foreman engineer. He retired from there earlier this year.

In 1937, Ted joined the Ancient Society of Croydon Parish Church Bellringers and has been a faithful Sunday service ringer at the Parish Church of Croydon for over thirty years. He was Master of the Society from 1954 to 1966. His wife, Olive, has also attended regularly and we owe them both a great debt of gratitude on this account alone. His steeple-keeping at Croydon Parish Church will be a sad loss as the bells are in perfect condition, thanks to his care and attention.

Ted does not confine his interests to his own tower. The Surrey Association had in him a very loyal member, who served in various capacities as Master and District Master. In 1945 he was elected as one of the Association's representatives to the Central Council, of which he is now an honorary member. Here he found an invaluable niche on the Towers and Belfries Committee, which entails travelling hundreds of miles each year inspecting and giving advice on bells and towers.

In another sphere, Ted has been a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths since 1926 and was Master in 1953. He has been a member of the Sunday afternoon band at St. Paul's Cathedral for fifteen years.

In short, many ringers all over the country will appreciate that Croydon is losing a valuable and respected ringer who has given much to the service of others, and there can be no doubt that he is going to be missed in Croydon. I know many ringers will join me in wishing Ted and Olive a good retirement and a happy time with whatever the future may hold.

R. C. STEVENS.

OVERSEAS NEWS

THE PAST YEAR IN RHODESIA

Mr. H. O. Earle, Master of the Rhodesian Guild of Bell Ringers, in his report for 1966-7 expresses the regret of all members at the sudden death of Fred Mason, who for a number of years was a familiar figure in the Salisbury Cathedral tower.

The change of name of the Guild at the special meeting following the A.G.M. to the Rhodesian Guild of Bell Ringers had been agreed to by the Bishops of each diocese, who had accepted the position of vice-presidents.

At the half-yearly meeting at Que Que it was a pleasure to have five members of the Salisbury band there for the week-end. Saturday afternoon was devoted to giving the visitors an opportunity to familiarise themselves with the handling of much lighter bells and quite good striking was achieved on the Sunday morning.

With regret they said goodbye to Frank and Monica Blagrove and later in the year to James Milford. The loss of three experienced ringers resulted in a very limited amount of change ringing during the remainder of the year. Before the departure of Frank and Monica a peal of Bob Minor was successfully rung at Salisbury and a quarter peal of Bob Minimus at Que Que.

Although the Salisbury band was somewhat depleted at the beginning of the year, the faithful few keep the bells ringing on practice nights and Sunday evenings. An inrush of recruits in the last few months had certainly increased the tower activities (including breaking of stays) and had increased the enthusiasm of the members generally. "Whilst all of the older members deserve credit for their part in helping to train the newcomers I'm sure that I speak for you all in giving special credit to the tower captain Ken Cross, for his patience and perseverance in the early stages of training."

"Progress at Que Que during the year has been rather slow. Quite a number of parishioners have shown interest but few have come forward. However, we have managed to keep the bells ringing on Sundays and other special occasions. Whilst it is difficult to progress far in change ringing with a band of learners we have rung on a few occasions the Single Court method in addition to our usual Bob Minimus.

"Of our visitors during the year I would especially mention John Chamberlain who, in next to no time, became one of us and was only too willing to attempt to improve our individual ringing at all levels."

SHARES RINGING WITH TRACTION ENGINES AS HOBBY

ARNOLD BENNETT CENTENARY

Everyone who lives in the Potteries, and a great many others, must be aware that this year is the centenary of the birth of Arnold Bennett, who is generally acknowledged as the areas most famous son. Various commemorative events were organised, and it seemed appropriate to add some quarter peals to the exhibitions and lectures. Not only was Bennett born in the Potteries, he wrote about them too, although the inhabitants of Fenton, one of the six towns that make up the City of Stoke-on-Trent, have never forgiven him for ignoring their town in the "Five Towns" novels. It would have been appropriate if quarters could have been rung at all six towns, but Burslem bells are practically unringable and so a series was planned to include the other five.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

Devizes Branch

The July quarterly meeting of the Devizes Branch was held at Christ Church, Bradford-on-Avon on July 1st. The attendance was poor, only 22 members being present, representing ten towers, but visitors were welcomed from Colerne, Chiseldon and R.A.F. Colerne.

The service was ably conducted by Mr. Nibbs, of Holt, the father of two of the best-known young ringers in the Branch, in the absence of the Vicar, who was attending the annual outing of his choir. The admirable tea which followed was served by the young lady ringers of Christ Church, who were given an ovation for a good job.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. A. T. Weeks (Devizes), vice-chairman, in the absence of Mr. C. Andrews, who was on holiday. Good wishes for a speedy recovery from illness are being sent to Mr. S. Grant. Tributes were paid to the memory of Messrs. C. Pretty, of Holt, and E. F. Marlow, of Warminster, who had passed away during the previous month, and the meeting stood in remembrance.

New members elected were Stephen Moore (Holy Trinity, Bradford-on-Avon), Christopher Wheeler (Rowde) and Richard Greenaway (St. James', Devizes). These were presented with Ringers' Handbooks by Mr. Weeks. Mr. G. Davis (secretary) read a letter of congratulation from the ex-general secretary, praising the Branch for the organisation of the Guild annual meeting in May. He also pleaded for outstanding subscriptions to be paid.

Ringing took place at Christ Church before tea, and at Holy Trinity in the evening, under the direction of Ringing Masters R. Purnell (in the afternoon) and N. G. Knee (in the evening). During the evening members from Steeple Ashton and visitors from Bristol, Weston-super-Mare and Wincanton joined in the ringing, which ranged from rounds to Cambridge Surprise Major.

Next monthly meeting: Potterne; striking competition, Corsley, in November.

OBITUARY

MR. J. T. C. BARNES

With much regret we heard of the passing on July 7th of Mr. J. T. C. Barnes at the age of 82. For 30 years he was a regular ringer at St. Mary's, Nottingham and during those years he endeared himself to all who knew him, by his kind and unassuming manner.

Cecil was a very conscientious and reliable ringer and rarely missed ringing for Sunday service or practice until some months ago, when through failing health he gave up his home in Nottingham and went to live with his daughter at Harlaxton, near Grantham, where the funeral service was held on July 11th. Among those present were W. Nicholls (Ringing Master) and R. E. Elson (secretary), representing St. Mary's ringers. R. E. E.

MR. T. A. MOULDS

A very faithful ringer at St. Michael's Church, Hose, Leicestershire, Mr. Thomas Alfred Moulds, died at his home on July 2nd, aged 72.

For 55 years he had been ringing at Hose, where he was captain, and took part in the only peal to be rung on the old bells—on July 9th, 1927, conducted by his father, Mr. Willie Sharpe. The new ring of bells were cast by J. Taylor and Son in 1937. He was a member of the Framland Association, the Midland Counties and the Leicester Guild.

St. Michael's Church will miss him in other ways as he took a great interest in its activities, serving as a sidesman and a member of the P.C.C. A large congregation attended the funeral service on July 6th, which was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. A. Willcock. Ringers were represented by Messrs. E. Tinsley and J. L. Day, and interment was in the churchyard.

In the evening a half-muffled quarter peal in three methods was rung on the bells by J. H. Cook (cond.) 1, Mrs. D. A. Day 2, J. Butcher 3, E. Tinsley 4, J. L. Day 5.

MR. A. V. J. PAPWORTH

The bells of Kelvedon, Essex, were rung half-muffled on July 13th during the funeral of Mr. A. V. J. Papworth, and again in the evening when a quarter peal was rung by the local band.

"Joe" Papworth died in hospital after a short illness, aged 59 years. He learnt to ring at Kelvedon about 1930, and from that time on he was one of the most regular and punctual members.

He never rang many peals, perhaps fifteen, but he rang a good many "quarters" and was usually to be found on the treble or the second.

Joe won't be remembered for what he said—he was a very quiet man; but he will be remembered for what he was, and what he did. His great hobby was bell ringing; he even had his own set of handbells so that he could ring at home too.

Joe was always at service on a Sunday evening; and when we had no ringing at Kelvedon he would make his way to Feering or Coggeshall to ring there.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

Farnham District

"An enjoyable day was spent by all." This best describes the annual outing of Farnham District on July 15th. Even St. Swithun was kind as we visited the towers at Denham, Chalfont St. Peter, Luton, Dunstable Priory and Berkhampstead. Only at the close of our last tower, Farnham Royal, did that wet saint remind us that it was his day.

May be it was the heat but in general the ringing was not up to our usual standard. Poor Mick could not get Grandsire to come round to order, but at least some good touches in other methods were rung. We were still in good spirits when thirst quenching time came, at Slough. Where did that lucky couple find the fish and chips? Others tried but failed.

To Beryl who organised, incumbents who gave permission and those long suffering tower representatives who met us, we say "Thank you, all." R. B.

STOOLBALL AND RINGING

The victorious team of College Youths and Cumberlands who beat the Northern Division of the Sussex Association at stoolball on June 3rd at West Grinstead. In the centre is the captain of the premier Societies, John Howard, holding the trophy—the ashes of the treble stay from Slaugham in a suitable container.

The divisional secretary, Jean Osbon, made the very successful arrangements. Condition of play was half an hour's batting for both sides, the men using the opposite hand for batting to the one they normally use. The game was not without its amusing incidents; one well-known gentleman had the embarrassment of splitting his trousers whilst fielding and had to have running repairs. Cows had only forsaken the field half an hour before the match and there was some reluctance to handle the ball.

There was ringing both before and after the match, a service conducted by the Vicar and a picnic tea.

LADIES MANNED THE BELLS 60 YEARS AGO

Reprinted from "The Fireside", 1905

THE Church of St. Andrew, Bradfield, has been described as the Cathedral of Berkshire. Perhaps it scarcely merits all the dignity of this title, but if it does not stand first in the county upon architectural grounds it does stand first among parish churches not only in the county of Berkshire, but probably in all England, as having a ring of six bells under the control of six lady ringers.

In "old times"—a period not necessarily very far removed from the present, but only just so far removed as to evince the neglect of an old custom—in "old times" the bells of Bradfield Church were the pride of the village, it might even be said of the valley, and there was never any difficulty about finding enough men and boys to keep up the art of bellringing. On high days and holidays upon any occasion in short—the Bradfield bells would awaken the valley to take part—if only a listening or an echoing part— in local or national celebrations and rejoicings.

But the "old order" changed; one cannot account for it, and the ringing of Bradfield bells gradually fell into disuse, until at last they were never "rung" unless by a team of visitors, members of some Guild. Even Christmas came and went, and year after year passed over our heads, without ever a word from those time-honoured orators of greetings, of blessings, of farewell, or of encouragement.

This was a state of things that could not last. Works of art, each one of them, the bells, with their legends carried this conviction with them. Though the legends are imperfectly worded upon one bell, only a date—yet when a bell still rings true that bears the date "1655" has it nothing to say to us in the 20th century?

To the parish clerk himself a ringer of those bells from his boyhood, is due the credit of having made the very necessary offer to teach any who might be willing to learn to handle the ropes; but to a woman is due the credit of kindling the first flame of enthusiasm and desire to learn. The flame, once kindled quickly spread, and more than enough pairs of hands presented themselves as pupils to make up the necessary team—enough ladies in fact, to make up a ladies' team had they wished to be exclusive.

"Bellringing cannot be learnt in a day" was the truism continually brought before the minds of the pupils by their master; but in spite of this, and though the century was already drawing to its close, it was from the first the unspoken intention in the mind of each pupil to master the art sufficiently to ring in the coming Christmas and New Year Festivals; and so seriously did each one set mind and body to this purpose that the thing was accomplished and the lost but cherished reputation of the belfry more than redeemed.

The following "legends" may be of interest, as attaching to the six bells severally:—

Treble.—"At proper times my voice I'll raise
An sound to my subscribers' praise." Robert Ford and Thomas Justice, Churchwardens. 1757."

Lester and Pack of London. Fleet.
Second.—'Samuel Knight, 1705."
Third.—"1655"
Fourth.—"Samuel Knight made me 1705."
Fifth.—"As forth I sound."
Sixth.—"As Tenar hum all round."

A LISS DISAPPOINTMENT

A peal attempt at St. Mary's Church, Liss, Hants, on July 2nd, in which six members of the Sunday service band took part, was unfortunately lost after 2¼ hours' ringing.

This attempt was for Grandsire Triples and had been arranged to mark the 75th anniversary of the dedication of the church, and also the 29th anniversary of the dedication of the new ring of eight bells.

Letters to the Editor

ST. AUSTELL BELLS

Dear Sir,—I read with great interest, but also with extreme disgust, the scathing, unnecessary and completely uninformed comments of Mr. V. M. Dawson ("Ringing World," June 30th), regarding the rehanging of the above bells.

As a person born in St. Austell and with considerable knowledge of the town and people, may I put a case (albeit from South Wales) on behalf of the town, especially as as I have just returned from a week's visit there.

I say town, because the people have a high regard and pride for its church and bells. It was therefore natural that when financial help was sought a considerable offer of practical help was offered by E. C. L. P. Ltd., who besides being a large china clay concern based on St. Austell are backed by a very competent engineering division.

Through family contacts I was able to read with great interest in the E. C. L. P. quarterly magazine an account of how the bells had been renovated. The article explained how the headstocks were removed from the tower, ball bearings fitted and clappers rebushed.

Like Mr. Dawson, I initially had doubts after the article in "The Ringing World," but the very detail given satisfied me that E.C.L.P. were made very aware of the pitfalls of bellhanging, i.e. there was a description of the elaborate precautions taken to align the bearings correctly

The proof of the pudding is in the "go" of the bells, which now go excellently. Time will tell regarding the efficiency of the job (other well-known names have done bad jobs) but I consider that a lot of thought went into the present job and that £300 approx. has been well spent.

As bells and headstocks remain unaltered, I doubt that the bells will come to any harm. If they did, I can assure Mr. Dawson that Cornish people do not dig holes in churchyards with clay shovels to cast church bells.

Unless Mr. Dawson can contribute more on the subject, I feel he owes the Vicar and ringers of St. Austell, and especially E.C.L.P. Ltd. an apology, explaining what prompted his insulting letter in the first place.—Yours faithfully,

D. J. LLEWELLYN.

Rhoose, Barry, Glam.

NEEDS MEDICAL TREATMENT

Dear Sir,—We have all fallen head first into a trap. I am, of course, referring to these hoax letter and peals which have been fooling our journal this last six months.

I think they are the work of a maniac ringer who needs urgent medical treatment. The end came when I opened the July 7th issue of "The Ringing World": it was full of letters from ringers tearing each other to pieces. It is about time we all grew up and realised that we are, or most of us call ourselves, Christians, so let us all stop acting like a bunch of school kids, as we appear to be at the present time.

I think the best thing we can do is to ignore all these hoaxes, because the more we blow the situation up the more our maniac friend will like it and write more hoaxes.—Yours sincerely,

TONY LEWIS.

Chislehurst, Kent.

BELLS OSTRACISED IN PLAIN BOB ROYAL

Dear Sir,—May I comment on the note under the composition 5,400 Plain Bob Royal —"2 and 3 never above 4ths place at course end" (page 488)? For the life of me I cannot understand why these two bells are ostracised with such vengeance; they are far more musical than the discordant 4th, which everyone knows is equivalent to the 2nd in Major, where she is treated with ignominy.

In Royal the 2nd is an octave above the 9th, and the 3rd an octave above the tenor, and they would, in my opinion, be far more popular from a musical point of view even when dodging with the tenor.—Yours truly,

G. E. SYMONDS.

Ipswich.

SOME FIRST HEREFORD GUILD PEALS

Dear Sir,—The peal of Oxford T.B. Minor rung at Wellington ("Ringing World," page 500) was not the first in the method for the Hereford Guild.

The late Mr. W. Porton, of Ross, conducted the first peal of Major at Bridstow on November 19th, 1932, in three hours.

At Eardisland on April 22nd, 1957, a peal of Major was conducted by Mr. G. Davis, of Hereford Cathedral, in 2 hours and 58 minutes. This was his first peal of Treble Bob Major as conductor, also the first peal in the method on the bells. Mr. W. F Moreton "completed the circle" and it was the 350th peal for Mr. L. Evans.

A peal of Oxford T.B. Minor was rung at Whitbourne on August 23rd, 1947, in 2 hours and 49 minutes, conducted by Mr. G. F. Large, of Claines, Worcester.—Yours faithfully,

E. C. CHANDLER (Mrs.),
Peal Recorder.

Kington, Herefordshire.

QUARTER PEALS

Dear Sir,—A great deal of time and effort must have gone into Mr. Alan Buswell's analysis of quarter peals (page 473), and I am sure his records make interesting reading. I cannot see, however, what is to be gained from an analysis by county and I feel the space could be better filled with more meaningful statistics, much of which Mr. Buswell's records must show, for example:—

(a) How many quarters contained a first quarter?
(b) How many were a first as conductor?
(c) How many were rung on Sundays?
(d) Which were the leading towers—say all over 25 quarters? (Only three towers were mentioned in the analysis.)

The details of methods rung were interesting but also rather depressing, since they show how unadventurous and unimaginative quarter peal ringers are. Of the total of 3,743 quarters at least 1,260 were of Plain Bob and 1,074 of Grandsire, leaving at the most 1,409 for all the other methods together. Mr. Derek Jackson in his letter (page 474) tells us that variety is the carrot that encourages a band. No wonder the Exercise loses so many promising ringers when it sticks to such well-trodden ground for the majority of its quarters If we all had a rule that every quarter must be at least one of the ringer's first in the method we would be progressing, if only slowly.—Yours faithfully,

E. G. H. GODFREY.

Addington, Surrey.

SUNDAY SERVICE RINGING AT BIRMINGHAM CATHEDRAL

Dear Sir,—The recent correspondence about Birmingham Cathedral's bells provoked by the letter by Joan M Coley seems to be misleading in places. This applies especially to the last paragraph of Mr. Eisel's letter and also to Miss Reay's letter. The statement by Mr. Eisel that "the band at St. Philip's has a very good Sunday service record" is frankly a lot of nonsense. The Cathedral bells are only rung on Sunday evenings, and even then only once a fortnight. The truth is that the Cathedral has virtually no Sunday service band as such, and when there is ringing nearly all the ringers have to be brought in from outside towers. Even then it is quite common for the full 12 not to be rung.

It is not my intention to blame anyone for this situation—it is obviously extremely difficult, if not impossible, to train a band from scratch on such heavy bells. But this does not alter the fact that Mr. Eisel and Miss Reay have given a very false impression of Sunday service ringing at Birmingham Cathedral.

The lady complainant, it seems to me touched on a rather sensitive subject as far as Birmingham ringers are concerned, and I think the truth ought to be stated. It is quite probable that the bells would not have been rung on Trinity Sunday even if the bells had been ringable at the time, since they are only rung every alternate Sunday. Of course, I stand to be corrected by Mr. Fearn, but his silence so far in the letters column tends to give my suspicious mind much food for thought.—Yours faithfully,

"BIRMINGHAM RINGER."

Name and address supplied.

Dear Sir,—Your correspondents J. Eisel and M. Reay ("Ringing World," July 7th) give, at least to my mind, a misleading impression of Sunday ringing at Birmingham Cathedral.

For several years now, these bells have, normally, been rung on the 2nd and 4th Sunday evenings in each month only.—Yours sincerely,

W. E. BOX.

Birmingham.

NEW NAMES TO OLD METHODS

Dear Sir,—I see that some more "new" Doubles methods have been named.

Methods with the same construction as "Barrowby" have been named at least twice before. Firstly it is one of the compositions given for Stedman Slow Course in Banister's book. Stedman Slow Course is not now usually considered to have a single, but it seems to me inconceivable that this calling has not been rung in the eighty or so years since the book was published.

Secondly, Bedfont Slow Course was named, I believe, by Mr. F. T. Blagrove in 1953. This method has the same construction (and extents) as Barrowby, but with plain lead for Bob, and vice versa. Barrowby can hardly be considered a new way of producing 120 changes, does it really justify a new name?

A different point was raised by Mr. Jackson's letter on page 474. "Sturdy Hill" was one of the methods in part "B" of the 1966 collection, the part which contained "names that it is hoped will be used." Are we to assume that these names were all thought up by the compilers, or are they names which have been used for methods, although the methods have not been rung to peals?—Yours faithfully,

JOHN DAVID.

THE U.L.S.C.R. PEAL AT GOSPEL OAK

Dear Sir, — In reply to Walter Knight ("Ringing World, July 7th), I find his personal history of himself, St Martin's, Gospel Oak, and every tower within a 2¼-mile radius, fascinating and extremely readable; however, he has ignored what I consider to be the crucial issue, that the members of U.L.S.C.R., in attempting the peal at Gospel Oak, knew nothing of the adverse circumstances which Mr. Knight describes in great detail.

As far as we were concerned, permission was sought, and obtained, through the proper channels, and a peal was duly rung without incident and without complaint.

I can understand Mr. Knight feeling a bit cut up when an outside party came along and rang the first peal after he had put in so much work getting the bells back in order; nevertheless John Pladdys (who organised and conducted the peal), the rest of the band and myself have no regrets—we did nothing underhand and our consciences are quite clear.

Incidentally, with regard to the broken stay and slider (I was aware that it was a stay and slider and not two stays, but I am not such a lover of detail as Mr. Knight), had he taken the trouble to have a word with the Vicar he would have found out who was responsible before publicly accusing U.L.S.C.R. of damaging church property, and talking all this nonsense of sending us a bill for £2 13s. 3½d.—Yours faithfully,

JOHN C. HUTCHINSON,
King's, London.

Sevenoaks, Kent.

SILEBY PARISH CHURCH

Dear Sir,—May I, through your columns, thank Mr. George Dawson for helping to correct our records. In his letter (page 494) he pointed out that the 5th bell at Sileby (page 430) could not have been cast in 1590, as George Oldfield, the reputed founder, did not cast bells in Nottingham before 1620.

The information in my possession had been passed on to me several years ago and I had not troubled to check it. On investigation, however, I find that the bell was cast not by George but by Henry Oldfield, who was casting in Nottingham between 1589 and 1620, therefore the bell in question could have been cast in 1590 as we have always believed. I am told that the date of 1590 was given to the present Vicar by the late Mr. Ernest Morris.—Yours, faithfully,

MICHAEL E. WHITE.

Sileby, Loughborough.

CROYDON PARISH CHURCH

Dear Sir,—I much enjoyed Mr. R. C. Stevens' notes on page 491 and I would like to add a little which might be of interest. On May 20th, 1538, Sir Andrew Corvehill, a secular priest, was buried in the church, one of the first to be recorded in the registers. His two brothers lived at Much Wenlock and the burial register there proclaims Sir William Corvehill as "skilled a good bellfounder and maker of frames for bells." It is possible that Croydon owes its first ring of bells to this bellfounder. In 1836 the tenor of T. Lester's octave became cracked and was recast at Whitechapel, but while being hauled up into the tower, the tackle broke and the bell fell down, doing great damage to the tower, and smashing itself to pieces. It was taken back and again recast and safely installed, its weight being 22-3-7.—Yours sincerely,

WILLIAM SHEPHERD.

Addlestone, Surrey.

THREE POINTS

Dear Sir,—I feel I must comment on three letters in the issue of June 14th.

(1) "Sweep the floor first" from Mervyn Phillips. This is the most sensible and, may I hope, the last, about "Right over left." The way which comes most naturally must be best, and it is difficult to understand how any intelligent person can think otherwise.

(2) "Semi-Learners," I have every sympathy with them, and have seen the sort of thing described happen; but of course they must do their homework.

(3) "Learn your method first" from Robin Collis. While it is true that ringing is often ruined at meetings in the way he describes, this is quite often because not enough "more expert" ringers will stand in for simple methods, and so there are too many beginners in at once.

Finally, to help with ropesight. How can anyone standing behind a learner see when his or her eyes turn in the wrong direction? This can be done better by someone ringing opposite.—Yours faithfully,

L. G. HAINES.

Goring, Reading.

PINCHBECK'S 1769 BILL

Dear Sir,—On page 504 the word "leantores" is unexplained, but in my notes I have the word recorded as "lean-toos" and the amount of the debit is 1s. 0d. instead of £1, therefore the total of £6 10s. 4d. is correct.—Yours sincerely,

WILLIAM SHEPHERD.

Addlestone, Surrey.

ST. MARTIN'S GUILD

A quarterly meeting of the St. Martin's Guild was held at Northfield on July 8th. The bells of St. Laurence's Church are an excellent ring of eight and have the distinction of being shown at the British Empire Exhibition in 1924 before hanging in the church tower. A large number of ringers attended—many to ring these bells for the first time.

A new band has recently been formed at Northfield, and it is pleasing to record that they were all elected members of the Guild: Roy Prescott Lawrence Black, Trevor Whitehouse, Kenneth Jones, Diane Hughes, Barbara Pittaway, Ann Castle and Edwina Evans. Mrs. Ann Broadhurst (Harborne), Carole Jones and Margaret Turner (King's Norton) were also made members, and the tower elections of the following life members wre ratified: Kenneth Lawson and Mrs. Margaret Lawson, Ann and Enid Lawson (Middlesbrough), Fred Beddow and Ernest Willcox (Shrewsbury).

The next meeting of the Guild will be the occasion of the Striking Competition to be held at Yardley on October 14th.

Memories of Harry and Jack Withers and Percy Laflin were brought back to some of the older ringers by a visit to the Great Stone where beer is sold by "the pound, the stone and the yard."

3,000 FREEMASONS AT WELLS CATHEDRAL

On Sunday, July 9th, a thanksgiving service was held in Wells Cathedral to mark the 250th anniversary of the founding of the Grand Lodge of Freemasons in England. The service, which was attended by approximately 3,000, was conducted by Lord Fisher of Lambeth. The bells were rung by a Masonic band, drawn from Somerset, Dorset, Gloucester and Middlesex.

OUTINGS

LUTON PARISH CHURCH

Accompanied by several old friends, and one or two new ones, the Luton Parish Church ringers held their annual outing on July 1st.

On the outward journey a welcome cup of coffee was enjoyed at Banbury, and the remainder of the day spent in leafy Warwickshire. Here, in the very heart of England, we found a superbly peaceful atmosphere, far from the hectic rush and the maddening noise of everyday life. In this beautiful and romantic Shakespeare country, it was delightful to see the cattle and sheep quietly grazing, and to feel completely relaxed and to be one with nature!

Oh, yes, we did some ringing, too, and the three excellent tens at Banbury, Warwick and Daventry were much enjoyed, but perhaps the best ringing of the day took place on the fine eight at Rugby, where Cambridge was rung quite gracefully (and what a lovely method it is!).

The imposing Church of St. Andrew, Rugby, can offer the unique attraction (I think?) of two rings of bells, and we did not neglect the fine ring of five in the east tower. There is a thick door mat at the entrance to the west tower, but no notice board reminding you to wipe your feet—nor, indeed, is any reminder necessary, as the pigeons, which seem to be particularly fond of this tower, drop frequent reminders of why the mat is placed there, indeed it is quite conceivable that more than one ringer has found it necessary to wipe his head, too! I don't know it the wide-brimmed headgear, so favoured by visitors to Ascot, originated at Rugby, but perhaps it is not such a silly fashion after all!

On the last stages of the trip we found time for a short pull on the bells of Stoney Stratford, followed by an even more pleasant "pull" in the local. Altogether, a really delightful and well-planned day's outing, with excellent meals, good bells, superb scenery and charming fellowship—this adds up to satisfaction!

Sincere thinks to clergy, local ringers, our organiser, Basil Hulatt, and all others who contributed to our enjoyment, not forgetting those taking part, whose splendid punctuality enabled the programme to be carried out so smoothly.

TO GLOUCESTERSHIRE

June 17th was chosen for the date of Michael Uphill's annual outing and, after a confusing start, cars from London, Hampshire and Worcestershire arrived at Fairford. Unfortunately a funeral had to be arranged at this church, and we were indebted to Mr. Godwin for kindly arranging for us to ring at nearby Coln St. Aldwyn instead. Touches of Stedman Triples and Cambridge Major were rung.

After lunch in Cirencester, the oldest ring of twelve bells was visited at St. John's, and touches of Stedman Cinques and Cambridge Royal were included in the ringing on these Rudhall bells. Thence to Stroud, where the ground floor ten was enjoyed, and the Cambridge Royal reached quite a high standard.

Tea was taken in picturesque Bourton-on-the-Water, and unfortunately caused a late start to the ringing on the pleasant octave. Moreton-in-Marsh bells were very much enjoyed and ringing here included a touch of London Major. The last tower of the day was St. Edward's, Stow-on-the-Wold, where there was very good ringing, including a touch of Spliced Surprise Major (five methods).

We were very grateful to Mr. Dowdeswell for allowing us to carry on rather later than intended, and also for making the arrangements for the last three towers. Incumbents and ringers who met us are also thanked.

The Church Bells of St. Helen's, Lancashire

BY JAMES HEDGCOCK

St. Helens is a very busy industrial town, being famous for the Pilkington Glass Empire, and is mostly a product of the Victorian era. There are four churches in the town which have towers with bells hung in them.

THE JESUIT CHURCH OF ST. MARY

By far the most imposing of these churches is the Roman Catholic Jesuit Church of St. Mary's Lowe House. The term Lowe House originates from a legacy left by an extremely wealthy benefactor. In the 160ft. tower hangs a carillon of 47 bells cast by Messrs. John Taylor and Company in 1929. The bass bell has a diameter of 6ft. 4in. sounding the note A flat. The compass is four octaves chromatic, omitting the two lowest semi-tones.

The carillon, together with the church itself, was raised as a thanksgiving to commemorate the centenary of Catholic Emancipation. This instrument is played from a clavier, or keyboard. It is operated by depressing the pegs on the clavier with the clenched fist, whilst the bass bells may also be played by means of a pedal board not unlike an organ.

There are no mechanical devices, except the clock chimes. The clock face is lettered by the words "Salve Regina," whose letters are used instead of numerals, the 12th hour being designated by a crown of gold mosaic. The quarters and hours are signified by the chiming of a portion of the 12th century "Salve Regina" hymn tune, on eight of the bells. The Angelus rings automatically at 7 a.m., noon and 6 p.m.

The instrument is played regularly at 3 p.m.–4.30 p.m. on Sundays and for weddings. It is third only in size to the instruments at St. Nicholas', Aberdeen, and Bournville Schools, Birmingham, and second only in weight to St. Nicholas', Aberdeen.

THE BELLS

Bass bell: "Ave Maria" to our ever Blessed Lady and dear Mother Mary—from her devoted children of St. Mary's Lowe House, and neighbouring parishes of St. Helens, and of other towns.

"Ecce enim ex hoc beatam me dicent omnes generationes." (Translation: For behold from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.) A.D. 1929. 84 cwt. A flat.

No. 2: Dedicated to the Twelve Apostles of Our Lord. SS. Peter, Andrew, James and John, Phillip, Bartholomew, Thomas, Matthew, James and Jude, Simon and Matthias—by devoted workers of Lowe House Parish.

"In omnem terram exivit sonus eorum." (Translation: Their fame has gone out all over the world.) A.D. 1929. 60 cwt.

No. 3: Laudes sono Sancti Joseph, casti sponsi Virginis Mariae "Ite ad Joseph." To Joseph Swift I owe my voice; May Joseph's gifts make him rejoice.

(Translation: I sing the praises of Saint Joseph, chaste spouse of the Virgin Mary. Go to Joseph.) 41 cwt.

No. 4: In honorem Beati Michaelis Archangelo et Beatae Martyris Margaritae Clitheroe. "Quis ut Deus."

(Translation: In honour of Blessed Michael the Archangel and of the Blessed Martyr, Margaret Clitheroe). "Who is like to God." A.D. 1929. 34 cwt.

All the bells are dedicated to the Saints and English Martyrs. The weights of the other bells are:—

No. 5 — 31 cwt.
No. 6 — 26 cwt.
No. 7 — 22 cwt.

From No. 8 to No. 26 the bells vary, from 18 cwt to 1 cwt.

From No. 27 to No. 47 the bells vary from 3 qr. 14 lb. to 14 lb.

THE PARISH CHURCH

The second largest church in the town is the Parish Church of St. Helen. This is a rather drab, unimposing (except in size) structure of the 1920's, built of rustic brick. It is said, though the statement is dubious, that this is the largst parish church built since the Reformation.

In the tower hangs a ring of ten, a product of the Whitechapel Foundry, which formerly hung in the former Parish Church of Liverpool, St. Peter's, later to become the pro-Cathedral of Liverpool. The church was demolished when the new Cathedral was consecrated. The bells were, however, in an almost unringable state in the 1910–1920 period at Liverpool and were rarely used. When St. Peter's was being demolished it was decided to hang them in another Liverpool tower. However, the architect of that church, who coincidentally was the architect of the new St. Helens Church, declared the tower unsafe. There was great outcry by the Liverpool men on losing their ten bells, which are the only ring of ten in the Liverpool Branch of the Lancashire Association.

Another strange factor concerns the bells whilst they were not housed in a tower. When St. Peter's was being demolished, Messrs. Taylor of Loughborough took the bells to their foundry yard for storage, where they remained for some time. However, when the new tower at St. Helens was ready, the job of rehanging them in a new framework was given to Messrs. Stainbank of Whitechapel. When the bells were put in the new tower they could not be rung because the tower had not "set" and the ringers, trained at Rainford, used to swing-chime them!

PREVIOUS RECORD

The bells were hung at Liverpool in April, 1830. From the Liverpool Parish records this extract concerns the bells: "At a specially convened vestry meeting on 29th October, 1829, it was resolved that the Church Wardens be empowered to provide by purchase, exchange or otherwise, a new peal of eight or ten bells for St. Peter's Church, if on a survey the tower should be found sufficiently firm to support a greater number."

In the Liverpool "Mercury" of October 30th, 1829, there is a statement similar to that above, but with the following small addition: "A new peal of eight or ten bells to replace those in the steeple of St. Peters. The old bells have been evicted from their tower and given to various Liverpool Churches."

The Liverpool "Mercury" of March 12th, 1830, states: "A very handsome new peal of ten bells intended to replace the old eight, has just been completed and will immediately be suspended in the Church of St. Peter. It is expected that they will be ready for Easter. They were cast by Mr. Mears of London. Tenor 25 cwt. sounding the note 'D.' (Dove gives them as tenor 22 cwt. 2 qr. 24 lb in E flat.) It is considered that this is an unusually low note for so light a bell."

THE 1830 BELLS

The bells were rung for the first time on April 11th, 1830, and at that time there were 115 rings of ten bells in England and Wales.

The Liverpool "Mercury" of April 23rd, 1830, states: "On Easter Day the new bells of St. Peters Church rang a joyous peal, and on Wednesday se'n night, ringers and many lovers of the science of bell ringing from various parts of the country assisted at what is termed the 'opening of the bells' and during the day rang several peals, much to the delight of all concerned with the subject. The Church Wardens have taken every care to render this peal as efficient as possible and they are most perfectly satisfied with Mr. Mears' conduct, throughout the fulfilment of his contract, and he has exceeded their most sanguine expectation." However, in 1839 it was found necessary to recast bells 1 and 2 because they were weak in tone. The original cost of the bells was £700.

They are inscribed thus:

1. In melody let each note reveal
   Mine being first to lead the dulcet peal.
2. The public raised us with a liberal hand
   We came in harmony to cheer the land.
3. May George long reign who now the sceptre sways
   And British Valour ever rule the seas.

Bells of St. Helen's Contd.

4. With loyal zeal we all rejoice to ring
For glorious Constitution, Church and King.
5. When vict'ry crowns the public weal
With glee we give the joyful peal.
6. When female virtue weds with manly worth
We ring with rapture, and we spread it forth.
7. Loud through the air extends each generous theme
Floating melodious down the Mersey's stream.
8. When for departed worth we toll the knell
Instruction take and spend the future well.
9. Through grandsires and trebles with pleasure men range
Till death calls the BOB and brings on the last CHANGE.
10. May all whom I summon to the grave
The blessings of a well spent life receive.

The Rev. Jonathan Brooks, A.M., The Rev. Augustus Campbell, A.M., Rectors of Liverpool.

Thomas Mears, Bellfounder, London. 1830.

The rhymes are the compositions of a schoolmaster named Wilding, of High Ercall, employed by Mears for this purpose. Around the shoulders in Roman capitals is:—

T. Mears of London Fecit 1830

The verses and names are on the waist.

On the shoulder of 1 and 2:

T. Mears of London Fecit 1839

On the 1830 bells are stops of a scroll pattern, there are none on 1 and 2.

The sizes of the bells are:

		c.	qr	lb.
1	Diameter 29in.	6	1	2
2	„ 31¼in.	6	3	7
3	„ 32in.	6	3	18
4	„ 33¼in.	7	0	17
5	„ 35in.	8	1	13
6	„ 38in.	9	1	26
7	„ 41in.	11	3	24
8	„ 43¼in.	14	1	14
9	„ 47in.	17	3	24
10	„ 53in.	24	2	7

The bells are hung with 3 and 4 above the rest in an oak frame. Records of some peals which were rung in Liverpool hang in the tower.

ALE MONEY

There is a story concerning these bells at Liverpool telling how the ringers used to get ale money! The fifth was hung just inside the door to the bell chamber. When any stranger came to the tower there was always a wager that he wouldn't set the bell. Whilst the unsuspecting victim "tried his hand" one of the other ringers would slip upstairs, open the door, and every time that the victim did get it to setting point, would push it off again.

Many peals, ranging from Doubles to Royal, have been rung on these bells at St. Helens, in most methods.

BELFRY GOSSIP

An article entitled "An A.B.C. of Bell-ringing" by Robert B. Smith will be appearing in the August issue of "Cheshire Life."

Mr. Robert E. Hardy, of 23, Culver Road, St. Albans, is the acting District secretary of the St. Albans District following Mr. K. J. Walpole leaving the area.

Touring Ireland.—Mr. Bernard Fairhead's party from the Colchester area July 21st to 30th; Mr. B. G. Key's from Staffordshire July 28th to August 6th, University of London August 26th to September 3rd.

From the "Irish Bell News" concerning St. Mascartin's, Enniskillen: "We suppose we would be correct in saying that the next ringing bell tower, west, would be in America."

In connection with the Canada Centennial Year, Fred and Rita Dukes were invited to attend the State Reception held in Dublin Castle on July 1st. There were 1,000 guests present.

A suggestion to Mr. W. Viggers from "Amazed"—a space in the Diary for notes on members of the opposite sex who have been "grabbed" or "dated" during the year. He writes: "It would meet the needs of many young ringers who seem to change partners (within the Exercise) almost as frequently as they grab a new tower.

Another handbell team is operating at Provincetown, Mass., U.S.A. From Bonney McDowell we have received a quarter of Minor, which she conducted. Congratulations to all concerned.

Four boys from Groton School, Mass, U.S.A., rang their first quarter peal at Radley, Berks, on July 2nd. They were A. Macdonald, J. T. Erichsen, G. M. Johnston and P. P. Bundy.

The peal of Stedman rung at Liss on Easter Monday was not the first in the method on the bells. The late Alfred H. Pulling conducted a peal of Stedman Triples there in January, 1936.

The wedding took place at Auckland, New Zealand. on July 18th, of Mr. David Tomlinson, son of Mr. Frank Tomlinson, a past tower captain at Binfield, Berks. In honour of the occasion a quarter peal was rung in the Berkshire tower.

Mr. Sam Scattergood informs us that while he was asked to resign from being in charge of Chesterfield tower, after 21 years' faithful service, he still has a connection with the church as he has to attend to the clock, which is under Mr. Ronald Dove's contract. He has good hopes of being invited to join the company at Sheffield Cathedral.

A WORKING MODEL OF A YEOVIL CHURCH

A wooden model of St. John's Church Yeovil, in which six bellringers will ring the bells after a halfpenny has been inserted in a slot, will come up for sale at Knight, Frank and Rutley's auction rooms at 20, Hanover Square, London, W.1, on Friday, August 4th.

The model, which is 2ft. 4in. long by 2ft. 4in high (when measured to the top of the tower's flagpole) is more than 100 years old It was among the large collection of "bygones" made by the late Vicar of Shepreth Cambridgeshire (1932–1955), the Rev. C. J Sharpe.

The following rhyme is on the model:—

Steady ringers here you see
Who will now try their skill;
A halfpenny only is their fee
To ring a merry peal.

The Parish Church of St. John, Yeovil, is 14th century and Perpendicular in design. It has one of the big towers for which Somerset is famous.

UNIVERSITY OF KEELE SOCIETY

At the Society's annual meeting the following were elected to form the committee for the year 1967-68: Master, J. A. Tandy; secretary, Miss J. A. Quickfall; committee members, Miss T. F. Webber and Mrs. S. J. Gay.

This year, the Society's second, has been a fairly successful one: notable for consolidation rather than spectacular progress. With only twelve members, of whom two were beginners at the beginning of the year, assistance from visitors on practice nights, held alternately at Keele and on the eight at Silverdale, has been much appreciated. Four quarters were rung and rather more than this lost, and it is worth noting that every member of the society took part in at least one successful attempt.

The Society has also been active outside its own tower. In January we visited the Loughborough foundry, and with a party reinforced by friends, we rang at the campanile and four other towers. Although in some cases the standard of ringing was disappointing much valuable experience was gained. The same is basically true of the summer outing, which was to five towers on the Staffordshire-Derbyshire border. The dinner was held this year on a Thursday and was not preceded by ringing, an arrangement which did much to contribute to its success.

In conclusion, we feel that our Society is justifying its existence by fulfilling what would appear to be the generally accepted functions of a University Society: regular Sunday ringing, widening its repertoire and teaching beginners, and promoting marriages between members. We can look forward to next year with a fair amount of confidence.

WELDING CRACKED BELLS

According to David Fishlock, scientific editor to the "Financial Times," a technique for repairing cracked church bells that restores their original tone, has been developed by the British Welding Association. The Association claims that it offers appreciable savings over the customary method of melting down and recasting the bell—which is often unacceptable when the bells are deemed to have antique value.

UP AND COMING YOUNGSTERS
No. 55

PETER C. RANDALL,
Coventry Diocesan Guild.

The Coventry Diocesan Guild now joins the list of Guilds and Associations who have contributed to this series, by bringing to notice the name of Peter C. Randall.

Peter was born in Warwick on November 14th, 1950, and both his father and mother are ringers. After passing his 11-plus at Coten End Junior School he went to Leamington College, and where he is in G.C.E. "O" level year.

He started his ringing lessons under the watchful eye of Mr. J. L. Garner-Hayward at St. Nicholas' Church, Warwick, and is a member of the Sunday service band, which rings for both morning and evening services. He also makes occasional visits to St. Mary's, Warwick, for ringing before Matins. Two of his brothers are ringers.

Peter rang his first peal just two weeks before his 14th birthday, when he rang the treble to a peal of two Minor methods at Harbury. This peal was conducted by I. C. Maycock. His first on an "inside" bell was Plain Bob Major at Mickleton, on his 14th birthday. Two years later he rang his first as conductor. This, a peal of Plain Bob Minor, was also rung at Harbury in January, 1966. This brilliant youngster now has some 65 peals to his credit, including Bristol, Yorkshire, Jersey, Lincolnshire, Superlative and Fordcombe Surprise Major. Minor up to 37 methods, and Doubles to 43 methods/variations. Thirty-two of his peals have been rung with his brother. A grand record like this from one so young is surely a credit to the Coventry Diocesan Guild, and it is hoped that Peter's ambition to ring a family peal when his young sister is old enough, will materialise.

NORVING.

RANG IN HIS 92nd BIRTHDAY PEAL

Mr. George E. Symonds, of 57, Mornington Avenue, Ipswich, was 92 on July 11th. In the evening he rang faultlessly in a peal of Royal at Grundisburgh. Later in the evening he entertained the patrons of the Dog Inn to a song. An account of his diamond wedding (July 17th) will appear later.

TUITION TEASERS.—No. 6

"GUARDIAN ANGELS"

Q. Five questions, please, on "Standing behind." (a) What kind of help is best given this way? (b) Should helper count places? (c) Should the bells be referred to by number, with risk of confusion with places? (d) Should bell to be followed be pointed at? (e) Is "Dodge with so-and-so." sufficient?—H. F.

A. Mixed views are held on acting as "Guardian Angel." The help offered is sometimes more of a hindrance to ultimate progress; but in a learner's home tower the Ringing Master can control the kind of help to be given, and so avoid unnecessary prompting.

Answer (a). If pupil's training has been on sound modern lines he should need no hind-help in performing the elements of change ringing, i.e. plain hunting, place-making and dodging. Practice in these he can have obtained through exercises, preferably initiated through handbells (single-handed) and rhythmic striking on tower bells, before practising any method. But it is in the next stage, i.e. passing to method ringing, in which the said "elements" are variously combined to produce the method's pattern, that a little hind-help can sometimes usefully be given. The crux of the matter at this stage is thorough, repeat thorough, learning of the method itself, through one or more of the recommended plans or ways. Then, theoretically there should be no need for hind-help. But we all, in varying degrees, make mistakes, especially in the earlier trials, and then brief correction from hind-help can sometimes ease the conductor's task. It is preferable to state the work, e.g. "Missed 4/5 dodge down," or "Full work on the front," etc.; and, if requisite, name the co-working bells. As aready said, this hind-help is given after the pupil has passed the initial stages.

Answer (b). As already explained, hind-help should not be required for this function, which should have been automatic in the stages before ringing on "open" bells.

Answer (c). In referring to specific bells other than the "Treble" and the "Tenor" it is preferable to use cardinal numbers for the bells themselves, e.g. "two, three, four, five," etc., as in "after four," etc., and to use ordinal numbers for their positionss, e.g. "second, third, fourth, fifth," etc., even adding the word "position" if in any doubt as to this. But if a place is being made, then add an "s" to the number, also the word "place," e.g. "fourths place."

Answer (d). This should be a sort of "last resort." But it is liable to to cause interference and even confusion. It is not to be recommended generally.

Answer (e). As already indicated, the learner should have progressed far enough to interpret this sort of instruction fully. It could otherwise be given as "Dodge under four at back" or "Dodge over six at hand," etc. A. Y.-B.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Frome Branch Quarterly Meeting

July 8th, a sunny day, and the beautiful tower at Leigh-upon-Mendip all helped to increase the turn-out at this year's summer meeting. Leigh have no incumbent at present so the Master, the Rev. A. G. Durston, conducted the service and provided an address which gave much food for thought. A really appetising tea, arranged by Derek Withers and expertly dealt with by the ladies, was very much appreciated.

Guests from Bath, Chew and Taunton Branches, and John Gilbert, the general secretary, heard "The Ringing World" praised by those who took it, and John pressed home the point that "The Ringing World" benefits considerably from postal subscribers as against sales through newsagents. All members are urged to become postal subscribers. Batheaston having hit the front page, with two Somerset towers to follow, the general secretary urged that extra copies be bought to help "The Ringing World" defray the extra cost or producing such front pages. These extra copies will be on sale through Branch secretaries—an excellent way of increasing subscribers.

It was noted that Somerset was second in the county list of quarter peals totals for 1966 with 275 quarters having been rung. Somerset rang the most Doubles methods quarters of all the counties—153.

A discussion as to whether this Branch should support the "Bell for Jamaica" appeal was doomed before it began. It was obvious that members could not commit themselves to support this venture voluntarily without knowing what the ultimate costs were liekly to be, and it was pointed out that the Bath and Wells would be most unlikely to support it from funds. Finding that they could say neither "Aye" nor "Nay," the meeting left the general secretary to chase two bells not now in use—though what will happen if he catches one is anybody's guess.

The Branch adopted a resolution that the winning tower—or first and second towers—of the striking competitions held by Frome, Chew and Bath Branches in 1966 should all compete for a "play-off" at a tower to be chosen in either Axbridge or Glaston Branches. Ted Chivers is to get the views of the other Branches.

Ruth Bevan ably proposed votes of thanks to all who had contributed to the success of the meeting. Ringing afterwards produced some good touches where everybody knew the method—and some not so good when they did not.

Best remark of the day—the chairman said that his local flower show took place in August and he would have to show himself.

Each two middle sections contain the same rows as each of the other two pairs, though not necessarily in the same order. The "pivot" bell makes 5ths and the two pairs fall into two groups which may be conveniently classified as "slowwork" and "middlework," i.e.:

(a) Slowwork pairs
- (i) Slowwork bell moves to treble in 3–4.
- (ii) 3–4 bell finishes slowwork.

(b) Middlework pairs
- (i) First bell to lead, after middlework, passes treble in 4–5.
- (ii) Bell in 5–4, after middlework, becomes last bell bell to lead.

On examining the four methods it will be found that:

(a) London Scholars and Sandal have their slowwork and middlework places transposed

(b) Kingston has London Scholars frontwork with Double-Kent places in 3–4.

(c) Capel usually presents most difficulty to beginners, especially to those unaccustomed to "backward" hunting. It must, however, be mastered, parrotwise if necessary The middlework is as Kingston with a double-dodge substituted for two middle places. Ringers acquainted with the Stedman whole turn may prefer to remember the slowwork pair as follows:
- (i) Bell coming out: Whole turn, lay, snap and up.
- (ii) Bell coming in: Snap, lay, whole turn and finish slow.

Ringers of plain methods will notice that the slowwork pair perform the same duties as the front pair in Childwall, etc.

The advantage of methods using these backworks is that a lead of one of the group with the same lead-ends can be substituted for any of the others at will.

The 'Oxford" Group may be combined with other lead-ends to form "regular" methods, as follows:

Group backworks	Oxford	Coll. Exercise
London Sch.	London Sch.	Coll. Exercise
Sandal	Sandal	Duke of Norfolk
Kingston	Kingston	Norbury
Capel	Capel	Ockley

Woodbine	Westminster Sur	London Sur.
St. Albans	Coll. Bob IV	Vale Royal
Neasden	Old Oxford	Combermere
Wragby	Willesden	St. Werburg
Charlwood	Newdigate	Crowland

Oxford and College Exercise are the 6th and 2nd place lead-end variations of the same method, as are similarly Woodbine and Westminster Surprise. London Surprise has, of course, no 6th place variation.

Here are the same backworks combined with other lead-ends to produce irregular methods:

Group backworks	New London	Tulip
London Sch.	Royston	Gladstone
Sandal	York Minster	Campanulla
Kingston	Penistone	Hemsworth
Capel	Bolton Abbey	Crofton

Berwyn	Primrose Sur.
Sth. Kirby	Queen Bess
Barnsley	York Delight
Felkirk	Hoylandswaine
Havercroft	Eyam

The lead-end New London and Tulip referred to in the table of irregular methods are identical with the lead-ends of, say, Fotheringay and Bogedone respectively. The methods are all worth ringing for themselves alone but may also be used to lead up to the "Chepstow" group. These 16 methods may, of course, be spliced in the same manner as regular methods but can also, in certain circumstances, be spliced with regular methods.

[Historical notes: College Bob IV appeared in "Campanalogia," 1677 (along with Nos. I, II, III and V, although it was the only regular one), London Scholars in "Campanalogia," 1702, by J. D. and C. M., College Exercise in "Clavis," 1788, and Duke of Norfolk appeared as "Grandsire T.B." in Annable's notebook before it was elevated to the peerage. Most of the others are of a later date and nearly all have at least two names.]

THE "CHEPSTOW" GROUP

This is a group of four backworks similar to the Oxford group, slightly more difficult but having the same qualities inasmuch as the rows in the four methods are identical although in a different order.

LEARNING THE "CHEPSTOW" GROUP BACKWORKS

It may be a help in some cases to compare these methods with others with which we are more familiar. Certainly the first two, Fotheringay and Balmoral can with advantage be compared with London Scholars and Sandal. There is a 3rds place made at the crosssection, but apart from the dodge on the front necessitated by this place, the backworks are, respectively, identical. The pairing of the bells is very convenient, as the paired bells work together throughout the two sections, and indeed those on the front almost throughout the lead. The pivot, as in the previous group, is in 5ths. The two bells in 3–4 may be called "middlework" and those on the front "longwork" or "longwork on the front"

It is important to remember when doing longwork whether, at the end of it, one has to stay on the front or go out passing the treble in 2–3, as many 720's have been lost and peal attempts frustrated after a mix-up on the front through two bells either attempting to stay on the front together or leave it both together, neither of which procedures contribute to good ringing.

It may be pointed out that Fotheringay longwork is identical with Hull (or Bourne) Surprise, and Balmoral is the same as Wath (or Westminster) Surprise.

The middlework of Chepstow is identical with that of Balmoral, and the longwork the same as Coldstream Surprise or Carisbrooke/ Donottar Delight

The middlework of Skipton is like the frontwork of Capel "lifted" into 3–4, and the longwork, which has no duplicate outside the group, is the same as that of Chepstow with a double-dodge in place of the two middle places. The longworks of the last two may be memorised in the following manner:

"Lead" bell: Whole turn right, lead, lay, whole turn wrong.

"Lead" bell: Whole turn right, double dodge, whole turn wrong.

A whole turn wrong means in this case lay, snap, lay; and a whole turn right is, of course, lead, snap, lead.

The "Chepstow" group backworks may be combined with three different lead-ends to form the following "regular" methods:

Group backworks	New London	Tulip	Leasowe
Fotheringay	Fotheringay	Bogedone	Leasowe
Balmoral	Balmoral	Wilmslow	Peveril
Chepstow	Chepstow	Rostherne	Melandra
Skipton	Skipton	Knutsford	Beeston

The number of irregular methods that may be formed from these backworks is even greater. Here they are:

Group backworks	Westminster Surprise	Cambridge Surprise
Fotheringay	Rhyl Sur.	Appleby Sur.
Balmoral	Luton Sur.	Beighton Sur.
Chepstow	Ripley Sur.	Redcar Sur.
Skipton	Thorne Sur.	Hatfield Sur.

London Sur.	Munden Sur.	Kent
Minehead S.	Grantham S.	March
Dronfield S.	Bangor S.	Boston
Retford S.	Sleaford S.	Selby
Spalding S.	Chester-le-St. S	Staveley

With the exception of Kent lead-ends the methods are all Surprise.

[Historical note: Chepstow and Balmoral have both been called "Queen Victoria" and the latter has also been called "Kettering" and Hawthorne." Skipton has been called Iinden," and Melandra "Waterloo." Some of the irregular ones are older. Both Luton and Rhyl Surprise appeared in Stedman's "Campanalogia" of 1677, the former as College Bob V and the latter as Redding Bob.]

OBITUARY

MR. A. E. MOORE

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Arthur Edward Moore, of Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk, who died at his home on May 16th, aged 84 years. He was an outstanding conductor and ringer and he called his first peal at the age of 14 years.

MR. W. J. TANSER

With the passing of Mr. Walter Tanser St. Margaret's, Leicester, has lost a loyal and faithful member.

Walter, who died on July 10th, aged 79 years, was very much a behind-the-scenes worker and it is to him that we owe a great debt for his work in keeping our bells and ropes in good order. Over the years he did a great deal of repairs to worn fittings and only recently overhauled the rope pulleys, making new ones himself where necessary.

He was a regular attender for Sunday service ringing and was always available for ringing at other times, not only at St. Margaret's but at any church which required to make up a band for any occasion.

An honorary life member of the Leicester Diocesan Guild, Walter will be sadly missed for his steadfast loyalty and good humour.

The funeral service took place at St. Margaret's on Wednesday, July 12th, before cremation, and a course of Grandsire Triples on handbells was rung beneath the tower as the cortege left the church, with the 11th (Walter's favourite bell) tolling from the tower.

Our spmpathy goes to Mrs. Tanser, who we hope will derive some comfort from the knowledge that Walter's life was a life well lived.

HERTS COUNTY ASSOCIATION

St. Albans District

The hot weather and the holiday seaon inspired a large number of members and friends to support the District meeting held on July 15th at St. Albans. The afternoon tower was St. Michael's and a good start was achieved by the treble rope disappearing up to the roof during some Cambridge Major! Fortunately it was only a matter of replacing a dowel, and normal ringing was able to continue. A course of the special method, Watford Surprise Major, was managed. A short service was held at 4.30 p.m., led by the Rev. D. G. Harpur, of St. Michael's. Then followed a short journey to the Abbey Institute for tea.

At the business meeting which followed, the president of the Association, Mr. E. T. Newnham, took the chair. Mr. Robert E. Hardy, of St. Albans, was elected acting District secretary until the annual District meeting, due to Mr. Keith J. Walpole leaving the area. Miss Helen Dodds, of St. Albans, was elected a full ringing member, and Misses Ann Ponsford and Valerie Paice were elected probationary members.

A good deal of discussion followed on the subject of presidential office. Some felt it was necessary to be able to honour a member of the Association and at the same time elect another member capable of running the business meetings efficiently; the person who is honoured is not always capable of the latter and may refuse on these grounds. Others felt that changes were not a good idea at all. No final ideas were reached and the matter was left for further discussion.

The next Surprise practice is on Monday, July 31st, at North Mymms; a punctual 7.30 p.m. start was asked for. The next District practice meeting is on August 10th at South Mymms. It was stressed that this is a different date from the earlier one, so would everyone please note the change.

The next meeting was to be at Wheathampstead on August 19th, but it was pointed out that the tower captain had asked for the date to be changed. It was decided to approach Sandridge if this was the case. The secretary asked all members in case of a refusal to watch for "The Ringing World" notice announcing details of the meeting and also to keep tuned-in to the local grape-vine!

A donation of £10 was received from the Cathedral Society to the fund towards the Central Council visit, and also £1 was donated anonymously. Thanks went from the District to all concerned.

A final vote of thanks went to the Abbey girls for the tea, to the Rev. Harpur for the service, to the organist, Robert Hardy, and to the Dean for permission to ring at the Cathedral.

The meeting was closed and evening ringing followed until 8.30 p.m. at the Cathedral, methods including Stedman and Grandsire Cinques and Cambridge Surprise Maximus.

However, the evening did not finish there. A barbecue had been arranged in aid of the fund for the Central Council visit. So it was back to the paddock behind St. Michael's Vicarage, where a trench had been dug and sausages were frying over a fire. Unfortunately most of the crowd managed to drop in at one of the numerous pubs between the Abbey and St. Michael's so things were rather slow in starting. There were sausage rolls, onions if desired, and cider to drink. And most of us had just got organised when it started to rain! We bravely ignored it for quite a while and at long last adjourned to the Church Hall. The last of the food was finished and at about 10.15 everyone disappeared back in the direction they had come from.

Our thanks go to Keith, Geoff and the St. Michael's ringers for a valiant effort.

BONUS . . .

Harvest-time at Wellingborough aroused mixed feelings among members of the agricultural fraternity. No clocking-in here! The method employed to get labourers at work in time was that of ringing one of the bells at the Parish Church at 4 a.m. Reapers and others endeavoured to arrive at the scene of their labours before the bell ceased its clamour. Their reward? A pint of beer before the back-breaking work began. Those who beat not the bell . . . no beer!

PETERBOROUGH'S "BANDED" BELL

In 1537 the tenor bell at St. John's Church, Peterborough, cracked, and in order to prevent it from worsening, holes were bored and an iron band passed round the bell. Understandably, the churchwardens were far from satisfied with the bell's resultant note. Who would be? They contracted with Robert Newcombe, Leicester bell-founder, exchanging the cracked bell for the great bell of Leicester Abbey, which Newcombe had apparently acquired during the early stages of the Dissolution.

BELLS SOLD TO REPAIR HIGHWAYS

At Colleyweston (Northants) in 1548, two bells were sold in order to repair a bridge and the church, and scouring of a well, to make up the highways, for the relief of poor people and setting forth of good work in the church. The economic situation at Collyweston must have been somewhat precarious in those days! One wonders how often this sort of thing was repeated at other parishes in the country.

MEMORIES OF A BROKEN BELL

Chancel of Wisbech St. Mary Church, Cambs, houses the remains of an ancient bell comprising headstock, clapper and three pieces of bell metal, inscribed "Nicholai Anno 1618." The bell was used by German troops during the first world war, and was taken by the 32nd Royal Fusiliers at Ploegsteert Wood, Belgium, who used it as a gas alarm.

CAMPANOLOGICAL HEARSAYS

AN EXCELLENT TONIC

Incidentally, the following was written by the late George Gregory, M.D., on the "Sanitary Influence of Bell Ringing and its Melodies in "Church Bells," November 1st, 1897: "I doubt if there be any physical exercise equal to bellringing for keeping the body in health; if there be, there are certainly not many. In bellringing the important muscles of the chest, the spinal column and the arms are brought into powerful, steady and regular motion—usually at regular intervals. The length of time which bell-ringers keep their muscles in exercise is generally sufficient to produce a wholesome effect; seldom, I presume, so long as to cause a feeling of exhaustion. . . . The mental effort to ring in order and the harmony of the bell sounds produce a beneficial effect both on the mind and body . . . To those who have an 'ear for music' the sound of bells has a cheerfully soothing effect, sometimes diverting thoughts from needless cares and anxieties, to calm and tender moods and pleasant remembrances; memories and scenes are brought back fresh and new almost as in days gone by."

THE FIRST RINGING M.P.?

Matthew Wyldbore, who died on March 15th, 1781, was possibly this country's first ringing Member of Parliament. His health was so much improved by the exercise that he made a bequest that "five pounds be disposed of on the day of my death to the ringers of St. John the Baptist's Church in Peterborough, part in money and part in entertainment . . . on condition that the said ringers ring one peal or more on the said bells on the same day."

NOT WASTED

At Stretham, Cambs, the old treble bell, cast by Thomas Draper in 1591, cracked, and part of the bell fell away. Eventually the bell was recast but the broken piece was used for many years in a farmhouse for flattening the breasts of chickens.

Walpole St. Peter's magnificent church is without rival in Norfolk Marshland. At the east end of the nave a cote shelters a little bell, happily rescued from a most undignified task. It had been used as a lime pot.

COW BELL WITH A DIFFERENCE

One is familiar with the Continental practice of attaching bells to necks of cows in order that the sound will be heard should the animals wander away. At Stanion, Northants a substantial rib of a dreadful dun cow was displayed in the Parish Church. The animal was said to ravage Rockingham Forest, and was frightening to behold. Next to the rib stood a large square rivetted bell, which, according to tradition, had been fastened to the creature's neck, that it may warn people of the beast's "terrible approach."

BITS AND PIECES

In 1700 Warkton, Northants, had four bells. Between that year and the late 1800s the third bell either fell to the floor or was deliberately broken. The pieces were laid out beneath the tower, but thieves carried these away unti nothing remained.

"QUAINT OLD FULLER"

Thomas Fuller, a notable 17th century author, was born at Aldwinkle St. Peter, a Northants village which he greatly loved. He admired church bells, the epithet "the ringing isle" being attributed to him. Thomas Fuller was undoubtedly inspired by numerous rings of bells in the valley of the Nene, and he surely had bells in mind when he wrote "Musick is the sweetest neare or over Rivers, when the echo thereof is best rebounded by the water." "Quaint Old Fuller," as he was known, created rare and beautiful thoughts. He died on August 15th, 1661.

A SQUARER DEAL FOR THE LEARNER

Some Visionary Thoughts

By Elizabeth M. Barber

SKATING, judo, gliding, playing the violin, life-saving. ringing; which of these ill-assorted activities is the odd one out?

Well, yes—ringing; but why? What have the other five got that campanology hasn't? Answer: A system of proficiency-qualifications for the learner—a standardised system whereby his progress may be assessed on its own merits and compared with that of others. It's true that the Duke of Edinburgh's Award Scheme caters for ringers; and it's true that the Scout and Guide movements do likewise. But these tests are not designed to stabilise levels of proficiency within the Exercise; they are supervised by bodies external to the Exercise; and only a comparatively small number of learners are in a position to take them So they can be safely left out of the argument.

It is quite possible for a chorister to become practised and useful without having undergone a test of any kind—except perhaps a preliminary voice test at entry. But the great majority of church choirmasters keep their choristers up to the mark by a system of proficiency tests. Similarly, it is possible to become an accomplished rider by tuition and practice alone; but large numbers of young riders attain a higher standard than they otherwise might by submitting themselves to the tests for the Pony Club's Grades D, C, B and A. Why not a system on these lines for learner-ringers? The benefits which such a system would confer, though subtle, would in the long run prove inestimable for both learners and instructors, and might do much to encourage that spirit of co-operation between experienced and novice, and that feeling of responsibility in the experienced for the novice which is so highly valued among the ringing fraternity and which, it must be admitted, is not invariably to be found.

The system I'm envisaging would work something like this:—

Young Johnny turns up on a practice night to see what goes on, is intrigued by what he sees and resolves to learn to ring. After attending three practices, during which he is allowed to get the feel of a bell, he is asked by the tower captain whether he wishes to continue. The answer being Yes, the tower captain then issues Johnny with a Class D test-card —exactly the same as any other Class D test-card to be issued to any first-stage learner in any tower participating in the scheme: for, to be really successful, the scheme must be sanctioned by the Central Council and standardised throughout the Exercise.

The test-card takes our learner through basic handling, raising, lowering, rounds and call-changes to the plain hunt on six and eight bells. He works through the items on the card at his own pace; on the completion of a satisfactory and confident performance of any one item the tower captain writes his signature and the date of the successful performance against the appropriate item in the space provided on the card.

Time passes, and at length all the items on the card have been satisfactorily performed by Johnny and duly dated and signed. The card is then produced on Johnny's behalf by his tower captain at the District meeting soonest following the accomplishment of the last item. His admission to Class D is ratified on the spot by the presiding officials and announced to the assembled members; he is then presented with a certificate to mark the event. (This formal ratification in the presence of the District will take place similarly on production of his completed test-cards for Classes C, B and A.) On attainment of Class D he becomes, automatically, a full member of his Association and able (as he has not been hitherto) to participate in Sunday service ringing at his own tower.

His next step is the attainment of Class C. In working for this he lays the foundations of his method-ringing, becoming competent in various useful accomplishments — Grandsire Doubles and Triples; Plain Bob from Minimus to Major; the Treble Bob hunt on six and eight; Stedman Doubles; and elementary bob-calling in the form of the six-call 120 of Grandsire. On the theoretical side he is expected to have a grasp of the principles underlying method-structure and to be able to utilise place-notation. And for completion of his test-card he must ring the treble to a quarter peal in any plain method on any convenient number of bells.

Even should Johnny decide to stick at Class C he'd be a reasonable ringer, acceptable in most circles; but no, he's ambitious and obtains from his captain a Class B test-card. For Class B he has to master Grandsire Caters ("inside"); Kent Minor and Major; Stedman Triples; a couple of Surprise Minor methods (of his own choice) and Cambridge Major. He must improve his knowledge of conducting with a six-score of Bob Minor; must know something at least of transposition and simple composition; and must ring "inside" to a quarter peal.

Certain of the Class B tests pose particular problems for Johnny. At home he rings on a lumpy eight which doesn't encourage Surprise Minor on the back six and there is no ten-bell practice in his immediate neighbourhood. He decides to patronise the practices of a nearby six-bell tower, learns and eventually pulls off without a trip his Cambridge and Beverley; the presiding ringer signs his test-card in the appropriate places, and he can impress his home band with positive proof of his successful enterprise. For his Grandsire Caters he has to wait until his captain can arrange a Class C visit to a ten-bell tower; but there is plenty to work at in the interim, and when at last his chance comes he is equal to the occasion.

On obtaining his Class B certificate our learner addresses himself to the task of achieving Class A status. To do this he must enlist the help of experts: his home tower is no stronghold of Surprise Major and to realise his ambition he must add to his Cambridge courses of the other seven standards and a course, or touch, of Spliced. He must also be capable of Double Norwich Major, Stedman Caters and at least a half-course of Cambridge Royal; must ring his first quarter as conductor, and take part in a peal.

Having arrived at Class A, Johnny officially takes leave of his learner-status and becomes independent of the grading system; it is entirely up to him what he tackles next.

Is this scheme too Utopian to become reality? It would certainly involve extra work for District secretaries and tend to increase the burden on tower captains; but the advantages are notable. Here are the most important results which would seem to follow from the implementation of such a scheme.

(1). The learner would be within his rights to ask for, and to expect, constructive and sympathetic guidance from his seniors. And his senior would have nothing to gain by withholding it—rather the reverse, in fact, since passes into each class, listed by Associations, would be published in this journal, and similar lists would appear in the Association yearbooks, listed by Districts.

(2) The trials of a ringing master, graphically described in the July 7th issue, could be if not eliminated at least alleviated by the operation of a grading system. A learner's capabilities could be quickly estimated by a glance at his test-card. The likelihood of all- or too-many-learners' touches would be lessened since it would be immediately obvious that a band composed largely of unsafe novices—all, say, aiming at their Grandsire Triples for their Class C—would be worse than useless for the purposes of advancement; in the ensuing muddle each novice would be effectively ruining his own and his fellow-learners chances of satisfying the ringing master with a piece of reasonable striking and thus passing the test. At the other end of the scale the Class B ringer hoping for his first course of Bristol would have no cause to be deterred by an expert Surprise band; the judicious ringing master would satisfy the latter by calling for a touch of six-spliced. Class A only, and the former by announcing a Class B course of Bristol—the definition of this being a course in that method rung by a band which must contain not more than two Class B first-timers, the rest of the band to consist of As in order to give the first-timers conditions as near as possible to the ideal. An established and accepted grading system might end for ever all the ill-feeling, frustration and downright despair so often caused by the use and abuse of the phrase "the wrong people must be prevented from catching hold."

As a semi-learner myself (Class B) and thus a decidedly interested party, I put forward these views in the hope that they may prove of some use to the ringing fraternity. They are intended to provoke serious thought; I shall welcome wholeheartedly any constructive criticism and comment, especially from those whose interests would be the deepest touched by the implementation of such a scheme—instructors and learners.

MEMORIAL TO TWO GREAT MASTERS DEDICATED

THE venue for this year's annual general meeting of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild was Portsmouth. On a glorious summer's morning (July 1st) members and visiting friends rang their way along two routes towards the city converging on the Cathedral. About 120 were present at the business meeting held in the Cathedral House. This was opened with a welcome to all by the Master, Canon K. W. H. Felstead. The meeting then stood in silence for a few moments in tribute to nine members who had died since the last meeting.

The honorary treasurer, Mrs. M. Chapman, presented a very satisfactory report which showed that the General Fund was down £30 on the year. Since a Triennial Report had been paid for, this was a healthy state of affairs.

36 FIRST PEALS

Mr. D. T. Matkin, the peal recorder, was unfortunately absent due to the illness of his wife; however, copies of his usual comprehensive report were circulated. Seventy-eight peals were rung during 1966, ranging from Plain Bob Doubles to Bristol Surprise Royal. An encouraging sign for the future was the fact that 36 members rang their first peal.

Mr. A. V. Davis, in proposing the adoption of the report, subject to the withdrawal of a false peal of Basing S.M., said that he was full of admiration for the meticulous detail Mr. Matkin applies to his work.

The honorary secretary, Mr. D. J. Forder, presented a summary of the Guild's activities and progress over the past year. This showed an appreciable increase in membership.

A report of the proceedings of the 1967 Central Council meeting was most amusingly presented by Mr. R. R. Savory; of most interest to members was the debate on the report of "The Ringing World" Committee.

Winchester and Portsmouth Guild's Master's Badge

The Master then expressed his appreciation, on behalf of the Guild, for the work which had been done by the officers during the past year; this was greeted by applause from the meeting.

BOUNDARY CHANGES

Canon Felstead outlined the details, decided by the Executive Committee in March, for the change in the District boundaries. The Southampton District would continue until December 31st and a winding-up meeting held early in January. The officers of those Districts that provided most towers in the new Districts would continue to serve until the end of the triennial period.

The Guild having decided to hold another striking competition this year, Mr. D. C. Jackson proposed that certificates should be presented to the winning teams. It was agreed that the Competition Committee should put forward proposals at the next annual general meeting.

Canon Felstead said that in view of their outstanding service to the Guild the Executive had recommended the election to honorary life membership of Messrs. H. Balaam and C. Ostler. On the proposition of Mr. J. Hill and seconded by Mr. L. Bailey this was carried unanimously.

Votes of thanks were then proposed to the Bishop of Portsmouth for agreeing to preach at the service and to dedicate the memorial, to the Provost for the use of the Cathedral bells and the Church House, to the Provost's secretary, Miss Lloyd, for all her help in making the Cathedral and catering arrangements, to Mr. L. Duguid, the Portsmouth District secretary, for his efforts in making the local arrangements, and to all incumbents who had allowed the use of their bells during the day.

MASTER'S BADGE DEDICATED

The Guild service followed in the Cathedral, conducted by Canon Temple. The Bishop of Portsmouth, in his address, said that he welcomed the opportunity to express his thanks to the ringers of the two dioceses for their work in ringing the bells.

Following the address, the Master (Canon K. W. H. Felstead)) presented the Master's badge of office, the memorial to two past Masters, Frederick W. Rogers and George Pullinger, to the Bishop for dedication.

The badge was afterwards worn at tea by Canon Felstead and was much admired by the members. A fitting memorial to two outstanding servants of the Guild. D. J. F.

OBITUARY

MR. F. STEDMAN DEVEREUX

The death has occurred of Mr. F. Stedman Devereux, of Kemerton, near Tewkesbury. Just two weeks short of his 80th birthday, Mr. Devereux, who was a native of Kemerton, gave a lifetime of devoted service to the Parish Church of St. Nicholas. He served under nine different Rectors, beginning as a choirboy at the age of six.

For almost 60 years he was a ringer, being tower master for the major part of that time—a post that was held by his father before him. These duties also included looking after the church heating and maintenance of the churchyard. His appointment as people's warden included the latter 13 years of his church work until failing health forced him to retire. A remarkable memory enabled Mr. Devereux frequently to assist those seeking information of bygone days. His familiar figure will be sadly missed by all who knew and respected him.

His ashes were laid to rest in the churchyard within the sound of the bells he loved and tended so well. May he rest in peace.

Price Increase — Loss of One in Five Readers Forshadowed

A report on "The Ringing World" census undertaken by Messrs. George Pipe and Dennis Beresford was submitted to "The Ringing World" Committee held at Derby on July 21st. The following statistical details were made available:—

Total number of replies received, 1,376, representing very nearly 25 per cent. of the total circulation.

The number of people reading the journal totalled 2,637 ringers, 559 non-ringers; combined total, 3,196, or 2.40 readers per copy. This implies a total readership of 13,500.

The sharing of copies is obviously a major problem. If people reading individual copies could be reduced from 2.40 to 2.00 per cent. the circulation would increase by 20 per cent. Many single copies had over six readers and one as many as 35!

FRONT PAGE POPULAR

An astonishingly high proportion of people replying—95.5 per cent.—liked the introduction of the photograph on the front cover. In fact only 34 replies, i.e., 2.5 per cent., said they did not like it; two per cent. expressed no views.

Sixty-nine per cent. said they liked tinted covers, although strong opinions were expressed as to the colours used; 23.1 per cent. did not like tinted covers—many asking for glossy white; 7.9 per cent. expressed no opinion.

Regarding the use of plain white, similar to paper used, 36.6 per cent. said they would prefer white, and many remarked that the photographs would stand out more clearly; 45.4 per cent. did not like white; 18 per cent. expressed no opinion.

AGAINST PAYING MORE FOR COVER

A percentage of 34.4 said they would prefer to pay more for a heavier quality cover, which was generally remarked on for better appearance and for reproduction of the photograph; 56.8 per cent. said they would not wish to pay more for the heavier weight paper; and 8.8 per cent. expressed no view.

To the question "Do you find a representative balance of interests is covered in this and other issues this year," 70 per cent. said they were satisfied, 17 per cent. dissatisfied and 13 per cent. expressed no view.

Replies were received from 45 people who said they were call change ringers only, including ones representing whole bands.

PEAL-RINGER READERS

Those who are or have been peal ringers constituted 83.6 per cent. (1,151 replies) and of these 13.5 per cent. (159) claimed to ring more than 20 peals a year (there were 230 people in the Wratten list of those who rang 25 or more peals in 1966).

Replying to the questions on the presentation of peals, 74 per cent. said they were satisfied with the present peal lay-out, while 16 per cent. were not, and 10 per cent. expressed no opinion. Ten per cent. said they would like to go back to the old peal style (before June, 1964; 80.6 per cent. said they would not; 9.4 per cent. expressed no opinion.

As to peals set in a simpler style, like quarter peals, 21 per cent. said they would like to see it and 70.9 per cent. said they would not; 8.1 per cent. expressed no opinion.

To the question "Do you feel the form of this paper will attract additional readers" 47.5 per cent. thought it would, 20 per cent. did not, and 32.5 per cent. expressed no opinion.

A percentage of 72.5 said they would pay 3d. per week extra for the paper; 6.3 per cent. did not know; 21 per cent. said they would not.

SALES DRIVE

A percentage of 53 said they would undertake to get one more subscriber; 19.5 per cent. said they could not; 27.2 per cent. did not know whether they could do so. This does represent, however, an additional potential circulation of nearly 750, which if only 30 per cent. successful would be very marked. On launching a sales drive a considerable sales pressure should be exerted on these undertakings.

The committee, in approving of these particulars being published, asked for its thanks to be publicly recorded to Messrs. Pipe and Beresford and their helpers in preparing the analysis of replies received. A synopsis of the large number of comments has been made; the document as it stands is partly illegible. It is being typed for circulation and the points made will receive the committee's consideration.

RIGHT BEHIND US

Dear Sir,—At our District meeting on July 22nd one of our senior members asked those present for their views on the new "Ringing World" format. The majority considered it to be a great improvement, and not one thought the quality had gone downhill.

After all the knocks "The Ringing World" has taken lately, we in this district would like to place on record our sincere thanks to you and all others responsible for the "new look" journal and to say that we are right behind you in your efforts towards progress. Thank you.—Yours sincerely,

ROY THREADGOLD,
Secretary, Northern District, Essex Assn.

LOOKING AHEAD

"The Ringing World" Committee decided on July 21st to approve of the Convenor's proposal, in consultation with the Editor, that from September until Christmas, 20-page cover issues should be provided weekly. Should there be an accumulation of urgent editorial matter, 24-page issues without covers will be published.

Guilds and Associations desirous of cover issues to coincide with special events or occasions that would give an opportunity for promoting sales are asked to communicate with the Editor.

TOO DAZZLING!

At the request of the Head Postmaster of Guildford, the Editorial Committee has decided to change the colour of "The Ringing World" cover. Sorters working on the issue of July 21st complained that it was too dazzling!

Moral: If you can't shine at one end, shine at the other.

WRATTEN'S WRINGERS' TOUR

The twelve peals scored by Wratten's Wringers in this year's tour are recorded in this issue. The tour was again highly successful as out of 14 attempts only two were lost—Shropshire Surprise Major at Condover and Swindon Surprise Royal at Leominster. In each case the bells were set up when the ringing failed to settle down in the first two or three courses.

Mr Frank D. Mack sends us this picture of his home, 7, Bapton Lane, Exmouth, Devon, where until December, 1966, the lightest ring of bells was housed. This honour, once held by Stourton, which was pictured in our issue of June 30th, has twice been surpassed. The present home of the "lightest ring" is the School House, Stedham, Midhurst. Mr. Mack informs us that there have been 381 visitors to 7, Bapton Lane, since the original opening in September, 1963. "We welcome visitors and peal attempts," he concludes.

Letters to the Editor

CONGRATULATIONS TO OXFORD GUILD

Dear Sir,—I once wrote a letter to "The Ringing World" mildly disapproving of the discussion on a financial item at an Oxford Guild annual meeting. Since then I have always read of their affairs with interest. Let me therefore be one of the first to congratulate them on their splendid gesture in offering to purchase the bells of St. Peter-in-the-East; I hope they succeed.

It would have been very easy, and understandable, in a city like Oxford, with its large number of bells, for the Guild to watch calmly the bells pass into oblivion. It is also fortunate that the Oxford Guild have available the necessary cash. The persons responsible for ensuring that the Oxford Guild Bell Repair Fund is in such a healthy state deserve every praise. I doubt if any other Association in the country is in such a wealthy position to emulate such an action.

Faced with a similar situation here in Derby, with the demolition of St. Alkmund's and the loss of the eight bells, the Derby Association has only been able to influence events by words and petitions, so far with only limited success. How much more notice would have been taken if we were backed by substantial funds!

Surely there really is a need for some central fund whose moneys could be used to save historical rings of bells from ending up on the scrap heap. Mr. Barnett, the then secretary of the Central Council, rejected the idea of a Central Bell Repair Fund managed by the Central Council as being too difficult to operate—and I agree with him. But a Bell Preservation Fund could be made to be free from the argument which would surround repairs and augmentations (which would probably take place anyway sooner or later) by confining its attention to such rings of bells as St. Peter's, Oxford, and St. Alkmund's, Derby, which would otherwise be lost for ever. —Yours sincerely,

GORDON A. HALLS.

Littleover, Derby.

THE LATE MR. FREDERICK PAGE

Dear Sir,—Mr. Ernest Bennett will be pleased to know that he acted as umpire, with Mr. W. Jackson, when Messrs. G. F. Swann and Morris J. Morris visited 23, Greek Street, Stockport, also that Mr. Fred Page was in the peal. The date was November 13th, 1930. G F. Swann rang 1-2 and conducted, Fred rang 7-8; this was Stedman Cinques. Another peal of Stedman Cinques was rung the following week, November 20th, in which Fred rang and Ernest Bennett umpired again.

In all, Mr. Page rang six or seven peals of Stedman Cinques in Stockport on handbells, to most of which I rang the tenors; Mr. Bennett rang in some of them. Mr. Page also conducted peals of Stedman Caters and at least one of Grandsire Cinques at that time, in addition to Triples, Caters, Royal, Maximus, etc., conducted by A. F. Bailey.

I should like to add my small tribute to what has been said of Mr. Page now that he is gone. He was one of the steadiest ringers of handbells I ever saw, completely without excitement. A pair of bells in his hands was safe enough and, having taken part in over 50 of his handbell peals, I feel I can safely add my word of praise to a grand ringer.—Yours faithfully,

PETER LAFLIN.

Stockport.

GIVE CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

Dear Sir,—Ringers everywhere will share your pleasure at the news that the circulation of "The Ringing World" is now topping 6,000. I think that most of us would agree with you that the splendid new cover has had a lot to do with this.

I was surprised, however, that you made no mention of the work of Messrs. Beresford and Pipe in this respect, and that these higher circulation figures are no small justification of the forecast which they made at Bath that a face litt for the paper would increase circulation.

Perhaps now we may expect their work to be acknowledged by "The Ringing World" Committee, and that more of their innovations be given serious consideration.—Yours sincerely,

HOWARD W. EGGLESTONE.

Henley, Suffolk.

Note.—Neither Mr. G. Pipe nor Mr. Dennis Beresford was present at the meetng of "The Ringing World" Committee at Derby on July 22nd, although the date was fixed to meet their convenience. In their absence the Editor was asked to express the committee's appreciation of the work they and their helpers undertook in connection with the census. The Editor was also congratulated on the improved appearance of the journal and the wider range of reading matter introduced since the committee had given him permission to increase the size of the paper on occasions to 20 pages. —Ed.

AN APPRECIATION

Dear Sir,—At the quarterly meeting of the Central District of the Suffolk Guild on July 22nd, members felt that a sincere vote of thanks should be accorded to the persons responsible for the great improvement of "The Ringing World." It now has a front cover, which in this day and age we feel can compete with magazines of a similar nature.

Now if alterations to the interior, with some more lively articles, are made, it will transform a very dry and outdated magazine into something that will stimulate interest in the young ringers of today, including the vast number of call change bands that are the backbone of Sunday service ringing throughout the country.

It came as no great surprise to Guild members that since the "new look" "Ringing World" has been in circulation an increase in copies being sold has been recorded.—Yours faithfully,

H. W. H. LEATHER,
Hon. Secretary,
Central District of the Suffolk Guild.

BEAMINSTER NOW WANT TEN BELLS

Dear Sir,—The P.C.C. have approved the request of some of the ringers for a frame to house ten bells for Beaminster, and although at present we do not foresee the presence of two new trebles, provision will now be made in the new frame. The fund now stands at £2.850 (still creeping up!).

Perhaps a "local" inhabitant will donate a memorial bell or bells for a relative—or maybe from further afield. Suggestions may be forthcoming.—Yours sincerely,

EDNA PANNELL.

Beaminster.

THE LOCALS BEAR THE BRUNT OF BAD RINGING

Dear Sir,—Are tower grabbing societies of any use to the art of bellringing?

On July 22nd I stood in a bus queue, some 27 strong, to go to a village meeting of a neighbouring Guild. About 200 yards away a visiting society was creating a most awful din—which even the heavy traffic on the A.30 could not drown—in some abstruse method with Treble Bob hunt, in which the hounds had caught the hare with its melee, at St. Michael's, Yorktown, at which church I am a ringer. The blue-pencil expletives coming from the queue were such that I became ashamed of the Guild badge I was wearing, and I surreptitiously removed it before I became involved.

Late the same evening, whilst awaiting my return bus, a business man and his wife from opposite the church in question arrived, with this remark: "Whatever blue-pencil clatter were you up to this afternoon on those —— bells? We came out here for a quiet drink and now find you here and these bells going." Quite good ringing was in progress on a not too easy ring in a tower noted for movement, especially in dry weather.

On Sunday I perused our visitors book in which our visitors had proudly put their signatures below a red rubber stamp of their Society. Among them were names not infrequently found in your peal columns. Most probably, in the next few weeks we shall read in your columns a glowing report of their exploits and achievements. All they accomplished at Camberley was to put our small local band into disrepute. Thank God I am only a Sunday service ringer with no aspirations for my first peal. I love quarters, though.—Yours faithfully, RAYMOND BATH.

Camberley, Surrey.

A FORMER ALL VISITORS' PEAL AT EVESHAM

Dear Sir,—With reference to the letter from D. A. Woolley in "The Ringing World" of July 21st, it would be incorrect to say that the Yorkshire Surprise Maximus rung at Evesham on May 6th was the first peal there by an all visitors' band.

Stedman Cinques was rung on these bells on September 9th, 1961, by the Cambridge University Guild.—Yours faithfully,

A. ROBIN HEPPENSTALL.

Gainsborough.

EVESHAM BELL TOWER

Dear Sir,—May I refer to Mr. Woolley's "armchair criticism" contained in his letter to you, published on page 514 of "The Ringing World"?

Many readers will not understand the implication contained in the last paragraph of Mr. Woolley's letter. Perhaps a full explanation from him, coupled with an apology for such "mouth-behind-hand" sarcasm concerning two of the very few ringers in South Worcestershire with any "go" in them, would not be out of place.—Yours truly,

G. W. R. LARDNER (Dr.).

Tipton, Staffs.

DID YOU ENJOY THAT OUTING?

The correct place to thank incumbents for the use of bells, the ringers who met the party and the organisers is in the Return Thanks or Personal announcements under Notices. Price 4s. minimum for 30 words.

The Church Bells of St. Helen's, Lancashire

BY JAMES HEDGCOCK

ST. THOMAS'S, ECCLESTON

The third church is the Parish Church of St. Thomas, Eccleston, St. Helens. Originally this was a small sandstone church in Victorian Gothic style, which contained a ring of six from the Whitechapel Foundry dated 1845. This church lasted until 1907, when the tower became unsafe, was demolished, and the conception of a new church came to light. The idea of a new church was that of the then Vicar, Canon Rich. First of all the chancel of the new church was built on to the old nave. The latter was then demolished and the new nave completed in Gothic style. However, funds ran out and the tower had to wait for 30 years before it was built.

The church was founded in 1839 by Peter Greenall, M.P., a member of the Greenall brewing family. In 1841 there was one bell in the church tower, as is indicated by an item in the churchwardens' accounts for that year:

"Paid to ringer and for new bell rope .. .. £2 0s. 0d."

No mention is made of the purchase of the bell. In the accounts of 1846 there is an item: "Repairs to bell côte 12s. 11d. It also appears that although the bells were cast in 1845 they were not hung in the tower until 1847—churchwardens' accounts 1847—Winding clock 5s. 0d. Cleaning Belfry and padlock 1s. 8½d. Six new ropes £2 2s. No mention is made of the purchase of the bells, as these were a gift from Mr. Greenall. It is, however, unlikely that a new set of ropes should be needed within two years, and this, coupled with the other information, suggests a later hanging. The ringers seem to have attained some skill at ringing, although there are no surviving records of their performances. Their pay varied from £6 in 1863 to £19 in 1867, probably due to numbers. The usual amount was, however, £9 These bells were opened by the Leigh ringers ringing a 720.

Another interesting item is that of 1857:—
and salary £4 13s. 4d (¼ year).

In 1864 Mr. Edward Greenall donated £12 17s. 2d. to the ringers. A rather strange entry is that of 1887:—

Glovers	—New bell ropes	£3 12 6
Matthews	—Caps for bells	17 6 (muffles?)

The bells seem to have had little professional work done on them, since small articles for repair to the bells appear, credited to a man named Peter Tickle. They continued to ring until one of the small piers of the tower collapsed, and the tower was condemned. It is strange that the bells were left in the tower for safe housing, but not rung. In fact they were taken out of the tower in 1901 and buried in the churchyard. The tower was not demolished until 1907! When the new church was raised (without a tower) the bells were lifted and put in the porch loft, where they remained until 1933.

In 1934 there was a large campaign to finish the church by erecting the tower and rehanging the bells. One of the main supporters of this campaign was the local butcher, whose premises were directly across the road from the church. When the tower was raised and the bells hung he was one of the first to complain, the tower being designed to give maximum sound exit facilities, which makes the bells very noisy outside. However, the money for the church was forthcoming, and it was decided to augment the bells. When they were examined by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, 1 and 2 of the old six were found to be cracked in the crown. These two were recast and two new trebles added. The back four were retuned.

The accounts state:—

Mr. R. S. Ellison, to amount of contract	£2,994	0	0
Messrs. Mears and Stainbank Contract for bells	£485	0	0
By saving in metal	2	16	6
Credit for 2 old bells	4	19	10
	£477	3	8

Much of the money was raised from the sale of War Stock. The bells were rung for the first time on May 5th, 1934, in the presence of Dr. A. A. David, third Bishop of Liverpool, and were opened by the Halewood ringers. Unfortunately, ringing had no sooner got under way when the war started. In post-war years the bells were rarely rung except for peals and meetings. In fact in 1960 the bells were almost unringable, there being no clapper in the tenor.

In 1960 the church was gutted by fire, reopened in 1961 at a cost of £60,000. At this time all iron work in the tower was replaced and the bells rehung. The bells are the second lightest eight in the Diocese of Liverpool and are acclaimed as one of the best rings in the area. Peal ringing is restricted because of the houses directly underneath the 100ft tower on all sides. Sound control is in the planning stage, and it is hoped that these lovely bells will be put to better use in the future.

INSCRIPTIONS

The bells are hung in a low side oak frame, supported on corbels set in the walls. They are hung with 2, 1, 5, 6 in the centre, swinging S.–N., N.–S. alternately, 3 W.–E., 4 E.–W. on the north side 7 W.–E., 8 E.–W. on the south side. They hang 60ft up in the tower, below the louvres.

They are inscribed thus:—

TOURS AND OUTINGS

FROME DISTRICT SURPRISE PRACTICE BAND TOUR, 1967

The Warminster-Frome District Surprise Major practice band held its annual tour on July 15th. Leaving Warminster at 7.30 a.m., the coach made its round of the numerous assembly points to pick up members and friends, and then headed for Newbury. The 40 miles from Melksham was covered in very quick time, the party arriving at St. Nicholas' Church nearly half an hour early. The young lady meeting us, however, chanced to be early also, and the ten bells (tenor 22¼ cwt.) were soon going to Grandsire Caters. Stedman Caters and Plain Bob Royal were also rung here before departing to Thatcham, where the eight bells at St. Mary's Church (tenor 13¼ cwt.) were waiting for us. Yorkshire and Bristol were well rung, but Rutland refused to "go" and we left, with a little to be desired.

At Reading an admirable lunch was provided at the Co-operative. Our ladies left to examine the shops while we repaired to St. Mary's Church, where the fine eight (tenor 25¼ cwt.) was well rung to Bristol, Rutland, Yorkshire and, finally, London. Having regained some of our self-respect, we located the coach and, travelling the two miles to Caversham, found ourselves ringing for a wedding on the very odd-struck bells at St. Peter's Church (tenor 13 cwt.) Bristol was not so good, but Rutland and a fine course of Cambridge heralded the arrival of the bride, who, incidentally, was early. Arranging for the "fee" to be forwarded, we returned to Reading, where tea was the order of the day.

St. Thomas's, Goring-on-Thames, was the next objective, where we were joined by Squadron Leader George Massey, who entered the tower as Bristol again went "up in the air." However, matters were soon put to rights and some of the best ringing of the day was then heard on this very lovely ring (tenor 8¼ cwt.), the only "spliced" to be achieved all day being rung here. Having overstayed our time the advice of tower foreman Haines, who had met us, was taken, and we altered our route to miss the traffic, and this actually resulted in early arrival at our last tower of the day, Dorchester Abbey, with its wonderful roses which were to be seen on either side of the approach path.

On entering the belfry a note was found asking us not to raise the 16 cwt. tenor owing to a defect in the chiming hammer; but on investigation this was found to have already been rectified. We got going to Cambridge, then London, Rutland and Double Norwich were nicely rung, and the only "lowering in peal" all day then took place, with a lady on the tenor. Repassing the lovely roses, we entered the coach and, bidding farewell to George Massey, steered for home, stopping at Devizes en route for a welcome break. Warminster was reached at 11.15 p.m.

Thanks are due to Fred Slatford for making the arrangements and also to incumbents and those who met us at the towers visited.

SOUTHBROOM, DEVIZES

The ringers of St. James', Southbroom held their annual outing on July 15th, and with those of neighbouring towers and friends filled a 52-seater coach. The first tower visited was at Theale, where we met Mr. Brian Gatwood, and after staying for half an hour we made our way to Englefield (6, tenor 9¼ cwt.), the church being situated in very pretty surroundings. Shiplake Cross (8, tenor 9¼ cwt.), the next tower, is only three miles from Henley-on-Thames Here we had tea and enjoyed a stroll on the banks of the river.

At 7 p.m. we arrived at Twyford, where Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith, former Melksham residents, met us. Ringing came to a close for for the day at Sonning (8, tenor 20 cwt.), the heaviest bells encountered. Home was reached at 11 p.m., 20 minutes' rain on the last part of the journey reminding us that it was St. Swithun's Day.

NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYME, STAFFS

The ringers at St. Giles', Newcastle, with friends from Norton and Wolverhampton, spent an enjoyable day on July 15th touring the Wye Valley—the first St. Giles' outing for over ten years.

We were delighted to have with us the Ringing Master, Arnold Moore, enjoying his first day out since his severe illness earlier in the year.

Trouble with the clock hammers at Ledbury restricted the ringing time and neither here nor at the next tower, Ross-on-Wye, did we get the bells going properly. Monmouth was the next stop, where the striking left much to be desired. Amends were made later at St. Mary's, Gloucester, where a range of methods from rounds to Yorkshire was much enjoyed.

The final call was at Tewkesbury Abbey, where the 12 were soon set going to call changes, but in the first touch of Stedman Cinques the tenor developed a bent shaft which put paid to further ringing—a great disappointment; we offer our condolences to the local ringers. This was a sad ending to an otherwise enjoyable day, for which we were much indebted to Mr. R. S. Ryles for his first-class organisation and to the local ringers and incumbents at all the towers visited. It is unlikely we shall have to wait a further decade before the next St. Giles' outing.

BROMLEY RINGERS IN SUSSEX

Following the success of our two previous outings, the Bromley ringers ventured this time to explore the lovely Sussex countryside. The morning started well in home territory at Edenbridge and, having crossed the border, we rang on the six at Ardingley. Call changes and Plain Bob were rung at Balcombe. Cuckfield was the last tower before our picnic lunch, and we found the bells slightly difficult to handle.

Our hunger satisfied, we visited the eight at Bolney before going on to Slaugham. Here we were joined by our tower captain, Mr. Spice. The light eight at Lower Beeding was a good test of our handling skill, especially round the front end.

The long draught at West Grinstead was viewed askance by several members but the bells proved easier than expected to handle, and a plain course of Cambridge was successfully brought round. After ringing at Cowfold we enjoyed a delicious tea at a picturesque cafe, for which we must thank Mr. Gates for arranging and subsidising. Our last tower was at Henfield, with an eight similar in weight to our own; a good course of Triples was rung.

Our thanks must go to Miss Sheila Copping, who organised the outing so efficiently, and to our three drivers. We all enjoyed an outing which gave valuable experience to our many keen learners.

A FIRST OUTING

On Saturday, July 15th, the newly-formed band at Wingerworth, Derbyshire, held their first annual outing, towers visited being Scarcliffe (5), Bolsover (8), Clowne (6), Chesterfield (10) and Clay Cross (6). Despite breaking a rope at Chesterfield whilst helping the local band ring for a youth pilgrimage service, a most enjoyable day was had by all. Grateful thanks are extended to all clergy and local ringers.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. R. A. Gage requests for any information as to the demise of a ring of bells installed during the Korean War in an Army chapel by P. Minchin.

To mark tthe 21st anniversary of the division of the Midland Counties Guild, a festival is to be held at Derby Cathedral on September 16th. The Derby Diocesan Association will be joined by the Leicester Diocesan Guild, the Southwell Diocesan Guild and the Midland Counties Guild—a non-territorial body.

After a lapse of over six months due to a bad attack of fibrositis, we are pleased to report Mr. Fred Adams, of Staveley, a popular vice-president of the Derby Association, is now actively ringing again and celebrated his return to good health by taking part in the first touch of Stedman Triples to be rung at Staveley this year.

The president of the Central Council, Canon Gilbert Thurlow, will be the chief guest at the annual dinner of the Leicester Diocesan Guild at Leicester on October 28th.

Mr. R. Speed writes that the first peal of New Durham Surprise Major was rung on May 11th, 1963, at Claybrooke under the name of "Dunelm," the original name of "Durham" having been rejected by the Methods Committee of the Council as not being a proper extension of the Minor method.

The front of the 17th century Red Lion Hotel, Truro, the headquarters of the Central Council on the occasion of their visit to Truro, was wrecked by a lorry carrying eight tons of concrete. The accident happened through a brake failure, and the driver was trapped for nearly two hours.

DOCTORATE FOR FORMER ROTHERHAM RINGER

On July 7th Mrs. F. N. Johnson (née Susan Chaddock), of 17, Herringthorpe Grove) had the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy conferred upon her at Birmingham University. She graduated Honour Zoology at Nottingham University three years ago, then took up post-graduate research in the Cancer Research Department of Birmingham University.

She is a former pupil of Rotherham High School and of Rotherham College of Technology.

CHESTERFIELD'S NEW CAPTAIN

Mr. Malcolm Phipps, secretary of the Chesterfield Branch of the Derby Diocesan Association, has been appointed captain of the ringers at Chesterfield Parish Church in succession to Mr. Sam Scattergood. For a number of years he has been a ringer at the Parish Church and is also one of the representatives of the Derby Diocesan Association on the Central Council.

Commenting on the selection of the new leader, the Archdeacon of Chesterfield (the Ven. T. W. Ingram) said: "We have every confidence that Mr. Phipps will be able to build up an adequate team of ringers so necessary to make use of these fine bells."

CRIERS' BELLS PEAL

Peals have been rung down coal mines, on a barge, in a railway carriage, a motor car, on board a ship, even in bed. These, of course, have all been on handbells, they are facts, and not gimmicks! Now comes the suggestion—anyone willing to try the first peal on criers' bells. Mr P. Amos has such a set of five which will be ready for such an attempt after removal of the rolling clappers and fitting with handbell clappers

Now you "peal grabbers and tower snatchers," he writes, here's your opportunity for "records"—the first peal on criers' bells, and—"the first peal in a one-bell tower." The offer comes from an incumbent who is prepared to lend his one-bell belfry for the attempt. Any offers?

RECTOR'S ACHIEVEMENT

When the Rev. E. P. W. Ainsworth came to Mitcheldean, Glos, as Rector, he found a church where the bells had been silent for many years. Though not himself a ringer, he immediately set about collecting the approximately £2.000 required for retuning and rehanging. The appeal made progress and he then set about creating a band to ring the bells. Thanks to the kindness of various neighbouring towers and ringers, a local band functioned at the dedication service.

Although the ringing was only rather wobbly rounds, it was a second achievement for the Rector, as he was by then one of the ringers. Now a quarter peal has been rung at Mitcheldean with the Rector on the treble, his first quarter, so a further goal has been reached. Except for three Sundays, when the band was depleted by holidays, the bells have been rung for both Sunday services.

His friends now wait for his first quarter "inside," as he is still learning hard, and commend him as an example of the good which can be done for the Exercise and for the continuation of ringing in our towers.

EXOTIC CHILD'S TOY

Regarding the model of St. John's Church, Yeovil, Mr. Douglas Hughes informs us that it is entirely made of wood, and in the top of the tower there are six clock gongs with hammers connected by wires which lead down into the body of the church.

This contains a large clockwork motor and the final drive to a wooden barrel is by means of rubber bands. The barrel has six pins in it arranged to ring rounds, and owing to varying pressure on the pins and knots in the rubber bands, the speed at which the barrel goes varies, consequently the striking is pretty chaotic. At the top of the tower there is a plate bearing the name Perry of Yeovil as the maker but there is no date. The general appearance is very shoddy.

Mr. Hughes does not consider the original model to be at all well made. It is no more than a child's rather exotic toy.

AN UNDERSTANDING DEAN

In the July issue of the Rochester Diocesan News the Dean (the Rt. Rev. S. W. Betts) writes: "If on a Sunday morning you meet the bellringers rushing from the Precincts, take heart from the fact that they are all heading for their parish churches of which they are all members. We in the Cathedral join the parishes in saluting those who serve us faithfully as ringers and worshippers.

AN 80th BIRTHDAY

The 80th birthday of Mr. Harry Barnes and his 54th wedding anniversary was marked by a peal of Minor at Tattershall, Lincs, in which Mr. Barnes participated. This was followed by tea at the Castle Inn, Coningsby, and then to crown the day all went to Mr. and Mrs. Barnes' home. Here the party were greeted by a magnificent cake.

LATEST FROM TOYLAND

Dear Sir,—I would like to thank P. C. Plodd for his kind action in exposing the recent hoax peal. The reason for this most unpleasant hoax is, I feel, just sour grapes. A few months ago a visiting ringer went for a peal on the bell on my hat—I myself listened to the ringing, but it was so awful that it was impossible to tell whether the bell was in the "hatstroke home" or "titter" positions, and one of the extents was actually miscalled, with the result that rounds came up in the middle of the peal. I remonstrated with the ringer afterwards about this, and presumably this latest hoax involving my name is an attempt on his part to get a cheap laugh at my expense.
—Yours faithfully,

NODDY.

Toyland.

"I MEAN NO HARM"

I come from near Yarm,
I mean no one any harm,
Not like that man
Who writes poetry when he can,
Who likes to cause troubles,
And only rings Doubles.
"The peal" may be "it,"
But although I'm not a nit,
I think I can say
We ring a lot on Sunday,
With equal zeal,
As when we ring a peal.

VISITORS WELCOME AT YORK

In reply to many questions to the Editor, Mr. Harold Walker informs us that the trouble being experienced at York Minster is with the central tower; the bells are in the south-west tower. Tests have been carried out and the architect is satisfied that ringers can continue Sunday ringing as from 9.30 a.m. to 10.25 a.m., and the company is always glad to receive visitors.

SCARBOROUGH SELECT GOOD TOWERS

Starting at 6.45 a.m. from Flamborough, the 41-seater coach carried on to Knaresborough via Scarborough and York, picking up ringers for the third annual outing of St. Mary's, Scarborough. When Mr. E. Hudson boarded the coach at Knaresborough we had a complement of 20 ringers.

An hour's ringing on Knaresborough bells, which went very well, made a good start. At Harrogate ringing was limited to 45 minutes because of a wedding; the bells were regarded as the best of the day.

After refreshments at a Chinese restaurant it was a pleasant journey to Birstall, the only ground-floor ringing. Then came a picnic tea at Ilkley and an hour on the good bells, and another hour was spent ringing at Guiseley, where we were visited by the Vicar, and Scarborough was reached just before 11 p.m.

Methods rung were: Call changes, Bob Minor, Grandsire, Stedman and Oxford Bob Triples, Bob Major, Little Bob and Plain Bob Major Spliced, Kent T.B. and Oxford T.B Major, Double Norwich and Cambridge Surprise Major.

Our thanks go to all the Vicars and to all who met us, also to Steve Wright, who ably took charge of the ringing, and to Mr. King for the organisation. G. D.

LAVENHAM RINGERS IN NOTTINGHAM

One might say "shades of the 1967 Central Council" as Lavenham ringers this year held their annual outing visiting a number of Southwell Guild towers on July 8th. It was a case of a 7 a.m. start and they were joined by ringers from Long Melford, Bures, Clare, Bury St. Edmunds and an enthusiastic young lady who made the long journey from Kent to be present.

There was a stop for coffee at Kinoulton before the first ring of the day at Colston Bassett. Then came Bingham with lunch at the Chesterfield Arms after ringing. A short run brought the party to Radcliffe-on-Trent (a very handy eight) and then to the light eight at West Bridgford. On the homeward journey tea was served at the George Hotel, Oakham, and the eight bells in Rutland's capital were regarded as the best of the day.

Methods ranged from Plain Bob to Superlative Surprise. After a short stop for refreshment at Newmarket, home was safely reached at 11 p.m.

To Mr. A. J. Haynes, the organiser, we accorded our hearty thanks and also to clergy and ringing friends who met us. M. T. S.

200 YEARS OLD THIS YEAR

The Hertford College Youths, which is 200 years old this year, rang the first peal for the Society since 1922 on July 1st. This marked the visit of the Queen Mother for the laying-up of the colours of the old 1st Battalion the Hertfordshire Regiment. The Master (Mr. John Kemp) writes that he hopes to repeat the performance.

Let us now turn our attention to the lead-ends; first the five that are used to produce regular methods with the "Oxford" group backworks.

The first four methods fall into two groups, being the 6th and 2nd place variations of Oxford and Woodbine lead-ends. The last lead-end, London Surprise, contains much backward hunting and in most cases will probably have to wait until the other lead-ends have been mastered. If the principle of pivot bell and two pairs of bells is applied, however, it will be found that London Surprise lead-ends are not difficult to memorise, or indeed to ring, once the backward hunting has been overcome.

The Oxford and College Exercise groups do not normally splice into the same 720 but the Neasden and Old Oxford groups will splice by using Parker's (or Relfe's) splice, as will be seen later. Although it is useful to remember the names of all the methods, this is an achievement by no means necessary. If the basic backworks are well known they can be coupled to different lead-ends without the name of the resultant union being required whilst ringing. If the lead-end is known and is being rung it is only necessary for the conductor to call out the name of the basic backwork.

Here are the three lead-ends which produce regular methods when combined with the "Chepstow" group

Balmoral (New London)	Wilmslow (Tulip)	Leasowe
261345	261345	251634
263154	263154	256143
621345	621345	521634
612435	612435	512364
164253	164253	152346
614523	614523	513264
165432	165432	153624
156342	164523	156342
513624	615432	516432
153264	165342	154632
512346	613524	514632
521436	631254	541362
254163	362145	453126
251436	361254	451362

Balmoral and Wilmslow are the 6ths and 2nds place variations of the same method. Balmoral lead-ends have often been rung as New London, which has a complete slow-work. Although irregular, it is an interesting method and is an excellent way to learn the lead-ends. New London appeared in "Campanalogia," 1702, as did also Tulip, which has the 2nds place lead-ends. The backwork of this old method is identical with Annable's London Surprise. Enough has been said about learning the methods, about thepivot and paired bells, to enable anyone to make his own analysis. J. T. White, the old Felkirk ringer, who rang and conducted 247 720's in 12 months, each in a different method, used to write the duties of each method out in longhand. Some ringers prefer the figures whilst others use a combination of these or other ideas. Perhaps trouble may be encountered in ringing the Leasowe lead-ends but this, like the ringing of London Surprise, is chiefly because of the backward hunting.

Having learned to ring the regular methods, there is no harm in ringing the irregular ones and many of these can be formed from the regular ones already learned simply by coupling backworks on the different lead-ends, e.g. the "Oxford" group backworks on to New London or Tulip and the "Chepstow" on to London Surprise, Kent or Westminster Surprise.

If, in ringing irregular methods, the conductor prefers to keep the tenor observation and the 5th sub-observation, he can always do this by calling what used to be known as "tenor without 5th." That is to say call a bob every time the tenor is in the position for standard calling, i.e. Wrong or Home in a 2nds place method, In or Out in a 6ths place method, unless the 5th is there also, i.e. either behind with the tenor or on the front with the tenor. Sometimes this results in "standard" calling, sometimes it does not. Here is the system applied to York Minster:

23456	52436	34256
65243	— 63425	Twice repeated.
34625	52643
52364	34562
— 46325	— 26543

This results, as can be seen, by the 6th being called Out, In, Out instead of the "standard" In, Out, In. Notice that there is no bob called at the first lead-end when the 6th is going into slowwork because at that juncture the 5th is coming out of slow-work. It goes without saying that the conscientious conductor will prick out and check over the calling beforehand

COURSE SPLICING

If two regular methods have the same rows in a course and both have 2nds or both have 6ths at the lead-end. then wherever there is a complete course of one method avtilable in a composition, the other may be substituted. There is a complete list of such splicers given in the "C.C. Collection of Minor Methods," 1961, but here is a list more suitable to our present requirements:

Course Splicers	Same rows in a course.
Oxford T.B.
Morning Star
Braintree	Identical "backworks.
Marple
Abbeyville
Castleton
Dover
Ely

On examination it will be found that with eight lead-ends and 14 backworks, 40 different regular methods can be combined.* As a point of interest it may be observed that Morning Star and Braintree are inverted Oxford T.B. and Kent T.B., and as such can be so remembered.

Braintwister No. 2 — Set by A. S. Hudson

THE TOWER SNATCH

No doubt many of you will have discovered by now the difficulties inherent in the organisation of tower snatches. It is desirable on these occasions to maximise the number of new rings for everybody in the party, and also to minimise the distance travelled between the various churches. Since the bells are never available at the time for which you ask, you finish up with a compromise, and this is what happened to the Little Bumpstaid outing which took place a week or two ago.

The Little Bumpstaid band had decided to hold an afternoon outing one Saturday and, not being ambitious folk, they included four towers only, with six ringers taking part, all travelling in one car. As it turned out, it was not possible to visit new towers for everybody, but in fact there were never more than three people who had been to any one place before. The first tower on the programme was Much Grappling, a very pleasant six according to David and Bill, who had rung a peal there a few weeks before. This view was not shared by Dennis, the only other member of the band who had rung there, since he had experienced a broken rope in the sixth extent of the only peal he had attempted there. Be that as it may, after a few touches at Much Grappling they proceeded to Steeple Twistead, where two of them had previously rung. Tea followed this tower, and after tea they went to Nether Jangling, where the tenor went up wrong, although they did not discover this until it was lowered. The final call was at Backwoodsbury, where three of the band had rung before.

It was here that I met the band, and since they had had such a busy afternoon we adjourned to the local inn for refreshment. At first the conversation turned upon who had rung where, and I recall some of what was said. It appeared that Bill had previously rung at two of the towers and John had also got one of these. Dick mentioned that he had collected three new ones, and Ann had two. Dennis and Ann did not say much, but I did gather that there was only one tower which both of them had previously rung at, and Ann was in fact the only one of them to have already rung at two consecutive towers on the outing.

Who had not rung at the various churches? Send your answers to the following address:— "Braintwister" No. 2, "The Ringing World," c/o Seven Corners Press, Onslow Street, Guildford.

WOOLTON HILL BAND'S PROGRESS

An unfortunate accident occurred to the tenor bell at Woolton Hill, Hampshire, last September, when the stay broke and wedged in the frame, causing the bell to become cracked in the crown.

Money-raising efforts were promoted by the local band to meet the cost of recasting. These included handbells at Christmas and a jumble sale organised by Mrs. Green in June, and eventually, in July, the bell was back in its place, sounding even better than before.

During the interregnum the local band continued practising Doubles on the front five bells and, with visits to other towers, they were proficient enough to attempt a peal with their own band. But to give encouragement to the younger members, three of whom only started in January, Mr. G. Dodd, of Highclere, was invited as guest conductor to shepherd five first pealers through their first peal of Bob Doubles on July 11th.

All went well until halfway, when one of the team became unwell, and "That's all" was called at the half peal. Ringers taking part were: C. Pack 1, Ann Newman 2, R. Sutton 3, R. Newman 4, G. Dodd (conductor) 5, N. Elkington 6

The successful peal was rung a week later with Mrs. Green coming in on the third, a good peal of Bob Doubles being scored in 2 hours and 50 minutes. The ringer of the fourth had the added difficulty of ringing his bell without a stay. This is probably the first time anybody has rung his first peal on a stayless bell.

We hope that Bob Minor will be the next step with this enthusiastic band. In a tower that in the 1930s could boast a London Surprise Minor band under the leadership of Harry Banham, who knows whether history might repeat itself? G. D.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION
Ashford District

Woodchurch, a village six miles south-west of Ashford, was the place of meeting for the Ashford District on July 15th. The bells were put to good use by the 50 ringers present, with rounds and methods.

The service was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. E. E. Price, assisted by Mr. D. L. Cowley. John Spree, of Bethersden, was the organist. Tea was enjoyed in the Village Hall and was kindly given by the Woodchurch ringers.

At the business meeting mention was made of the illness of Mr. J. Willis (vice-president of the Association), Mr. and Mrs. Daw, of Stone-in-Oxney, and Messrs. E. Town and R. Pellett of the local band. Mr. R. Pellett had made all the arrangements for the meeting and it was a disappointment that he could not be present. The vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. C. J. E. Wyld, of Wye.

Ringing continued after the meeting and more ringers arrived. For such a hot day and tricky bells the ringing was of a high standard. A. P. S. B.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

The July meeting of the Marlborough Branch was held at Chiseldon on the 15th. Due to the incidence of outings, church fetes, etc., the attendance was not so large as usual, members being present from Savernake (St. Katherine's), Aldbourne, Everleigh, Wroughton and the home tower.

Ringing, under the direction of Mr. T. A. Palmer (hon. secretary), continued at intervals until 4.30 p.m. when the Guild service was held, conducted by the Vicar (Rev. J. Collins), with Mrs. Hacker at the organ.

As is always the case at Chiseldon, a really sumptuous tea was prepared and served in the Youth Club by Mrs. Court, sen. Mr. and Mrs. R. Court, jun., and helpers.

The thanks of the company were afterwards expressed by Mr. N. Tilley to all who had contributed to the success of the meeting and was heartily endorsed by all.

Ringing was then resumed in rounds and various methods, as required. W. A. E.

THE RINGING WORLD

No. 2938. Vol. LXIII FRIDAY, AUGUST 11, 1967 9d.

THE NEXT STEP

LAST week an important announcement was made that from September until the week before Christmas 20-page issues of "The Ringing World," including a tinted cover, would be the weekly programme. This forward step was taken by the committee after hearing the results of recent issues in June and July and after debating at length the points raised by the recent census.

One member of the committee pointed out that there were three lines that could be taken—with vision, visionary or laissez faire. It was obvious that a standstill policy would not be in accord with the wishes of the Council. Indeed, the Editor since Bath had taken steps to brighten the paper, and at Nottingham, although it was not admitted by the critics, there was already a marked improvement, which had been commented upon favourably by many readers.

This does not satisfy Messrs. Beresford and Pipe. Their interpretation of the reader demands from the census embarks upon a visionary picture and this is their reading of the content as requested by the majority of readers:

> "We believe the consensus is for a larger paper of wider scope—a dynamic paper with broader range of contributors. We feel sure that having digested this synopsis you must inevitably come to the conclusions expressed in our paper on this subject. To cover the requirements almost certainly a 24-page paper weekly would be required."

We not only challenge the accuracy of this statement but state emphatically with long years of experience in the newspaper industry that the demand for a 24-page paper weekly, with the enormous amount of detail work, is more than is reasonable to expect from one working journalist and a part-time assistant mainly engaged on the requirements of postal subscribers—their wrappers and changes of address. The Editor is expected to deal personally with a post of from 50 to 100 letters each day, sub-edit copy, peals and quarter peals, deal with notices, select and prepare illustrations, make-up the newspaper, write editorial, as the occasion demands report big events in the Exercise and be ready to advise and counsel members of the Committee and officers of the Council. He is also expected to stimulate circulation and deal with difficulties arising from production and postal matters.

Not only the economic position prevents the employment of a second journalist, but the office accommodation is not available. This is provided free by the printers, but it is only sufficient for two people to work in comfort. A journal of the character of "The Ringing World" cannot be edited from afar. If the service provided by Notices is to be continued there must be an office at or close to the printers. A personal supervision of going to press is necessary.

A weekly 24-page paper would necessitate the surrender of a tinted cover. The actual paper itself can only be printed in multiples of eight-pages—thus with the 24 pages demanded there would have to be a four-page cover if the full effect (face lift, Mr. Pipe calls it) of the front page picture is to be secured. If it should be possible to obtain four pages of advertisements at £10 a page then such a course could be entertained, but not otherwise.

In embarking on the 20-page issues between September and Christmas, the committee are acting with vision. Such a procedure is within the compass of the present set up if part-time clerical help is obtained. But it will mean a loss for 1967 according to the calculations of one committee member of £245. Can this be met without indulging in a price increase? Nobody embarks on a sales campaign with the threat of a price increase—it is bad psychology. It must be the object of the committee to live within the present subscription rate until new postal charges are introduced.

The answer is with the Exercise itself. A modest donation, say 6d. a rope, with every peal submitted and a continuation of the very valuable help from quarter peals will enable the reserves of "The Ringing World" to remain intact. The Editor is very conscious of the large number of generous friends—the man who does not hesitate to send the hat round at an outing and bodies like the Clerical Guild who always remember the R.W. at their week. This stimulating friendship in days when organised criticism is rampant is greatly valued. The fact that many new features and new writers have been introduced has been ignored and some of these people have talents which are appreciated by the discerning reader.

The policy of the committee is "to hasten slowly." Subscribers who remain for one quarter only are of little use, and we frankly admit that to the non-change ringer and person who takes no interest in diocesan organisations and district meetings the appeal of the paper is very limited. After all, it is a technical paper and cannot ignore its responsibilities. One has to be a member of the big family of ringers to read with relish the peal and quarter peal pages and much of the general news, but we do study every type of reader within the compass of the objects—"a journal about bells and ringers, past and present, established to advance the art of change ringing."

PIPE'S PILGRIMS IN LEICESTERSHIRE

SEVEN glorious days of sunshine, 41 out of 42 good rings of bells to ring on, two nice hotels to accommodate the 40 all very nice people and not a word of disagreement formed the basis of Pipe's Pilgrims' 1967 tour of Leicestershire. Nor must we forget the speedy, affable "get us there in time" coach driver and all who met us at the towers with the bells already up for us.

Starting from Grundisburgh Green at 6 a.m. on Sunday, July 2nd, with Jim and Sylvia Pipe and Ernie Pearce, we picked up Michael Howes, Alan Munnings, Gilbert Goodship, Bernard and Doreen Fairhead, Paul Thompson, Neil and John Avis, Adrian Semken and Roy Stephenson in Ipswich, and did the 54 miles to Cambridge in 70 minutes, and were joined by Mark Damerell. We were due to ring at St. Peter's, Bedford, at 9.45 a.m. but arrived at 8.45, which allowed time for refreshments and a pull on the fine ten at St. Paul's through the kind graces of Avril Ivin.

Bert and Marion Kynaston, Dennis, Betty, Jill and Stephen Laud, Len North, Ian North, Pat Lockwood, Irvin Slack, Alan Newbould, Alan Clifton, Tom Clark and Ron Short met us here and on we sped to the Angel Hotel, Northampton, for a splendid lunch, joined by Norman and Elsie Bagworth and Richard Stevens.

We had a quick pull at Weedon but all were anxious to get to Daventry, where Pat Chapman had arranged for us to ring on the first-class ten, and were joined by Philip Johnson, Elizabeth Timmins and Gillian Smith. John Brain, Bill and Hilda Oatway met us at Lutterworth for tea and evening service ringing and finally on to Rowans and Merrivale Hotels, London Road, Leicester, our homes for the week, where we were pleased to see Ronald Edwards of the Loughborough Bell Foundry and Fred and Doris Bailey from Cardiff.

Whitwick, Cole-Orton, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Measham, Hugglescote, Anstey and the fine ten at St. John the Divine, Leicester, were the towers on Monday, and back to Rowans for supper, drinks and a couple of hours' social, formed the culmination of each happy day.

FOUNDRY A GREAT ATTRACTION

Tuesday morning saw us at Syston, Sileby and John Taylor's foundry, which proved a great attraction, viewing and hearing old and new bells and a general tour of the tidy workshops before a pull on the foundry bells. We were sorry Mr. Paul Taylor could not join us at lunch or tea at the Three Nuns but were delighted to see Mr. John Oldham looking as young and vigorous as ever.

The afternoon was spent at Shepshed, and back to Loughborough to ring on the glorious ten at All Saints. Grandsire Caters, Kent Royal, Cambridge Royal were well struck, and looking at the bell metal lifelike plaques of the Taylor family and listening to an almost perfect touch of Stedman Caters and remembering the ringers of the 18,027 Stedman Caters we felt the nearness and approval of those wonderful men whose names will never die. Evening ringing took place at Mount Sorrel and Birstall.

Earl Shilton was first on the list on Wednesday and Irvin Slack's 1,000th tower. Everyone agreed he should call a touch and his choice was a musical one of Stedman Triples, rung without a fault. Market Bosworth and Barwell completed the morning's ringing, and at the George Hotel, Hinckley, we met Arthur and Eva Beamish. Bulkington and Bedworth were visited in the afternoon, and at Claybrook a very good touch was rung by an all-ladies' band. Burbage bells and a quiet drink in the coolness of the village inn concluded the day.

GUESS WHO?

It is by no means uncommon on P.P. tours when young men and maidens, meeting for the first time, a romance develops. And what is nicer than to see two, four or six young people obviously in love finding even greater enjoyment in each other's company.

And that is how it was again—

Oh, kisses, sweeter than wine.

There was joy on Thursday morning. As the coach was about to leave the postman brought three copies of "The Ringing World." Cries of "Give me one, please," "After you," "Where did they come from," etc. We came to the conclusion the Editor knew of our tour and the pleasure the paper would give. We all said "Thank you, sir," and we were soon at Ashby-Folville and then Billesdon, followed by a lovely chicken lunch at Kibworth. We walked to the Parish Church and later rang at Wigston Magna and South Wigston. The highlight of the day was the beautiful twelve at Leicester Cathedral, where we spent an hour and a half, followed by a further treat for those who love good music, as an organ recital by Derrick Cantrell of Manchester Cathedral.

In the coolness of St. Martin's we listened to Bach, Franck, Cocker and McCabe. And again another treat, for while strolling back to Rowans, Norman Bagworth spotted an open door at St. James the Greater, where an exceptionally fine organ has recently been installed, and three young organists were trying it out. We were late for supper, but more than ample portions of good food, including strawberry flan, had been reserved for us. A drink or two among genial company finished another lovely day.

BAD MANNERS

The bells in the enormous tower at Ratby, with the local incumbent, the Rev. P. R. Blackman, were a nice beginning to Friday, followed by Enderby and Aylestone, where four married couples (Bagworth, Kynaston, Oatway and Pipe) rang a touch, and then back to Leicester for lunch and a visit to All Saints', which was the one and only occasion when anyone got hot under the collar, and the organiser at that. Due to the smallness of the tower, some of the party not ringing sat on the stairs and were anything but quiet, while someone paid a visit to the room above. Confusion came and the bells were called to rounds but, not to be outdone, the touch was again attempted as punishment by making the noisy ones wait. This, too, did not work as bobs and singles were called from the stairs, and finally the ringing came to grief. But it gave the "old man" an opportunity to say it is both rude and bad-mannered to talk or make a disturbance while ringing is in progress.

A courting couples' touch was rung at Belgrave, the Tuttums being a special feature, and we retraced our journey to Leicester and the majestic twelve at St. Margaret's, which included a good course of Cambridge Maximus. After supper we gathered in the lounge and Bert Kynaston said it fell to him to do what Arthur and Gladys Barker had done for several years, namely to thank Jim and Sylvia Pipe for another grand week and he asked "Nutty" Slack to make presentations to organiser, navigator and driver. In well-chosen words Irvin did his stuff admirably, followed by speeches of thanks, monologues and a song by Mark Damerell. A show of hands unanimously voted Yorkshire for next year's tour, with perhaps a visit out as far as Louth and Grimsby in Lincolnshire.

On Saturday morning we rang on the fine Gillett and Johnston bells at Tichmarsh, which included a touch of Spliced Surprise conducted by Sylvia Pipe, and made our way to Raunds, St. Mary's and All Saints', Huntingdon.

So ended another most enjoyable week, the writer being of the opinion that P.P. not only stands for Pipe's Pilgrims—it could also mean Perfect People.

PILGRIM.

Overseas News

Is Ringing in U.S.A. Confined to Three Towers?

Dear Sir,—This letter is prompted by a note ("Ringing World," page 478), concerning Mr. Geoffrey Marchant's visit to the Colonies. Unfortunately, change ringing has fallen upon evil times here. I do not know whether there are any ringable bells in the entire United States other than at Washington, Groton and Kent. There is supposed to be a ring at the University of Chicago, but nobody knew anything about it the last time I was there.

I do have very fond memories about the Church of the Advent on Brimmer Street in Boston. In the late '30s it was a very high-Church parish just off the Charles River Esplanade. Choral Evensong with a congregation that knew and sang the service was a very impressive experience. At that time they had a devoted band of bellringers, and I used to go and hear them ring during Advent and the Christmas season. What can have happened since then I can only speculate. Of course, the War. And probably a change of Rectors. Undoubtedly an architect who decided that ringing in peal would cause the tower to fall down. (Any such should be made to stand atop the tower of St. Mary the Great in Cambridge while ringing is going on.) So now the bells are being chimed by ropes attached to the clappers! One wonders how many have been cracked. Probably someone tries to play tunes on them.

There is another ring of bells in Boston, at the old North Church, of Paul Revere—Longfellow fame. I have never heard them rung. The church was restored after the steeple blew down in the 1939 hurricane, and a sprinkler system was installed. I understand the pipes meander through the spokes of the bell wheels!

Recently I had a chance to hear some change ringing at the Cathedral Church of St. Mary the Virgin in Vancouver. I am sorry to say it was pretty poor.

Have any of your readers any information about the status of change ringing in North America? I have a feeling a revival of interest is imminent.—Yours truly,

H. O. WHIPPLE.

FOR BEGINNERS

THOSE PUZZLING FIGURES

BY WILFRID G. WILSON

ONE of the many things members of "The Ringing World" Committee are always being told is that we must have articles for beginners I would be the last to deny that. Contrariwise we are also told that the notes we have written about this and that have all appeared before; that they are in books anyway; and that our journal is therefore uninteresting and has nothing new. You pay your money and you take your choice.

A very keen young ringer from Durham brings this point to our notice by writing that an article "would be extremely welcome which explained to up-and-coming ringers what on earth things like 'Wrong,' 'Home' and rows of figures such as the following mean":

23456	M	W	H
34256			2	(a)
52643	—	—		(b)
36245	—		—	(c)
43265		—	3	(d)

It is clear that we must ever keep in mind that there are always new recruits to be catered for and that we must expect to go back to the beginning every so often. If we examine, say, a gardening weekly we shall no doubt find the same seasonal planting or pruning tips are repeated year after year, so we will ask the experts to skip this article for the sake of Ann Whaley and her contemporaries.

It is the practice when ringing changes on eight (Major), ten (Royal) or twelve (Maximus) bells, to keep "the tenors" together — that is undisturbed or only very slightly disturbed by bobs and singles. By the tenors we mean bells 7 and 8 in Major, and this practice is extended in Royal to 7, 8, 9 and 10, and in Maximus to 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12. So we must first see at what leads in the course we can make calls without the tenors being involved in them.

6482735

Regular Major methods all have the same lead-ends as Plain Bob Major—call them lead-heads if you wish and then you will sound like an expert! If you look at a plain course of Plain Bob Major you will find that the lead-ends are as in Fig. 2 The treble (1) will be in front of each of these rows and the bells to the left of the vertical line are the ones which are affected by calls.

THE WRONG

You will see from Fig 2 that at the first lead-end (3527486) the tenors will not be affected by calls, so this is a calling position. In Plain Bob we could call it the first lead, or lead-end 1. But in many methods the lead-ends come in a different order, so we must find some other name for it. When the tenor (8) is dodging in 7–8 down, as it is when the bells come round at the end of a course or touch, we say it is at Home (H). This is also sometimes known as Right (R). By contrast, when the tenor is dodging 7–8 up, it is said to be dodging Wrong (W), so this lead-end is called the "W" position.

THE MIDDLE

If you look at the succeeding lead-ends you will see that either No. 7 or No. 8 (or both) are among those to the left of the vertical line, until you come to the sixth lead-end. when a call can be made without affecting 7 and 8. But so that the description of this lead can also apply in whatever order the lead-ends come, we do not call this lead-end No. 6, but "M" for Middle. The tenor is dodging in 5–6 down, which is somewhere near the middle.

THE HOME

The last lead-end of our table is also one in which a call can be made without affecting the tenors. They are both in the positions which they hold in rounds—that is they are at Home (H).

Now we know what the heading of Fig. 1 means. 23456 is short for 12345678, that is the rounds from which we start; and M, W and H mean the bob-calling positions Middle, Wrong and Home. Notice that they are not in the same order as the calling positions of Plain Bob Major (W, M. and H), so the method is not Plain Bob. It could be one of the many Surprise methods (Cambridge for example) where the M. W and H are at lead-end positions 3, 4 and 7, or as in London Surprise, when they come at lead-end numbers 1, 6 and 7. It might even be Kent or Oxford Treble Bob or Bristol Surprise, where, because a bob makes the back four bells (in Major) repeat their previous lead, lead numbers instead of names would be very difficult to use.

TRANSPOSITION ROWS

Fortunately then complications of order in which the calls can come do not matter to our figures. A call at Wrong or at Middle or at Home still has the same effect on the bells, so at our next step we are able to determine the correct transposition row for each of these calling positions. If you have not yet learned about transposition and how to do it, I am sorry, but that must be the subject of another article.

The Wrong. Starting with 12345678, write out a lead of Plain Bob Major. When the treble gets back to lead you will have the two rows

13527486

But if at this lead (the Wrong lead) you call a bob, you will get 13254768

12357486

Continue writing out the figures of Plain Bob Major from this new row or (if you have learned how to transpose) apply the transposition row for a plain lead-end (3527486) to the row 2357486 and repeat this with each subsequent row obtained until you come to the row 15243678. This is the course-end of our new course and it corresponds to 12345678 of the plain course. So you see that a bob Wrong produces the course-end 15243678. Nos. 1, 7 and 8 are always in the same places at the course-end, so that the "signature tune" of this course is known simply as 52436.

The Middle. Start again from rounds and write out six leads of Plain Bob Major (or transpose from 2345678 six times by 3527486). This will give you the lead-end rows

14263857

But if at this lead (the Middle) you call a bob, you will get 14628375

Continue writing out the figures of Plain Bob Major for one more lead, or transpose 6423857 by 3527486 and you will come to the row 14365278. This is the course-end of our new course and corresponds to 12345678 of the plain course. So we see that a bob Middle produces the course-end 14365278, the signature tune of which is 43652.

The Home. Write out a plain course of Plain Bob Major or transpose from 2345678 seven times by 3527486 and you will produce the course-end

12345678

At this point if you had called a bob (a Home because 7 and 8 are in their Home positions) you would have produced a new course-end

12436587
14235678

So we see that a bob Home produces the course-end 14235678—the signature tune of which is 42356.

TABLE OF COURSE-ENDS

A bob Wrong (W) produces 52436.
A bob Middle (M) produces 43652.
A bob Home (H) produces 42356.

This will be the same, whatever order the calling positions come in and will be the same for many ordinary regular even-bell methods on 8, 10 or 12 bells.

We are now able to explain our rows marked (a) to (d) of Fig. 1. But first let me say that a dash (—) in any of the columns of Fig. 1 means a bob at that calling position. A figure 2 or 3 means that number of bobs. We do not use "B" for bobs because it can also mean "Before,' another calling position I will refer to later.

Row (a): 34256 2H

At the end of a plain course a bob (H) is called. From 12345678 this produces 14235678. But we must now get used to using only the figures representing the "non-fixed" bells—so from 23456 we say a bob H produces 42356. From 42356 a second bob H (at the end of the next course in most methods) produces 34256 (42356 transposed by 42356). So we can see that row (a) is a short way of writing down two courses, each with a bob at Home.

M W
Row (b): 52643 — —

At the end of the two courses shown by row (a) we produced the row 34256 (13425678). In row (b) we call a bob when we reach the Middle position 34256 transposed by 43652 becomes 24653. So after the bob M we are ringing a course which would end in the row 12465378 if no more calls were made. But in row (b) we now have to call a bob Wrong. 24653 transposed by 52436 is 52643. We have now moved to the course which will end in 15264378 and as there are no more calls in that course we show the course-end as 52643.

M H

At the end of row (b) we produced the row 52643. In row (c) we call a bob Middle. 52643 transposed by 43652 becomes 62345. After the bob we are ringing the course which would end in 16234578, if no more calls were made. But when the Home position is reached a bob (H) is called. 62345 transposed by 42356 becomes 36245. W H

At the end of row (c) we had the row 36245. In row (d) call a bob Wrong. 36245 transposed by 52436 produces 43265. We are now in the course which, if no more calls were made, ends in the row 14326578. But at the end of the course a bob Home is called. 43265 transposed by 42356 produces 24365. At the end of the next course a second bob Home is called. 24365 transposed by 42356 produces 32465. At the end of the next course another bob Home (the third) is called. 32465 transposed by 42356 produces 43265.

You will see that these three bobs at Home take us out of the course 43265 and two courses later bring us back to it. Three consecutive bobs in the same calling position affect the same three bells and produce a round block, having added two more courses to the original one.

So our four rows (a) to (d) in Fig. 1 are really a shorthand way of showing seven full courses of a Major, Royal or Maximus method, which could contain as many as 3,696 changes (if it were Surprise Maximus). Like all shorthand it is only necessary to learn the outlines to remove the mystery.

I referred earlier to "B" standing for the calling position "Before" This in Major is a calling position (the fourth lead-end in our Fig. 2, where a bob can be called when the tenor should have made second place. Instead at a bob it will run out and the seventh will run in. The effect will be either to lengthen or to shorten the course according to the method and its lead-end order. The position is called "Before" because as you come up to it the tenor is coming to lead before the treble. More information about this must also await a further article.

Letters to the Editor

THE 5.30 A.M. PEAL WAS FULLY MUFFLED

Dear Sir,—We very much regret that your columns have yet again been sullied by unwarranted malevolent criticism (see page 514) and we feel compelled to answer the unjust charges laid against us.

First and foremost, your original correspondent appears to have omitted the key fact that the Huntington peal was rung fully muffled. Bearing this in mind, we consider that very few of the local population really live "nearby." Whatever conclusions be drawn, the fact remains that the peal was rung with the Vicar's consent (he could have refused!) and included two of the local band. It is scarcely to be believed that these showed "no consideration" for their own people.

Our reason for starting a peal so early was that we were attempting to ring six different peals in six different towers in one day—an achievement not to be accomplished lightly. If it was, in fact, heard by some of the inhabitants, we are surprised and extremely sorry, but sorrier still that it should come to our notice in so grossly discourteous a manner.

We fail to see what Mr. King means by "ignorance." It is he and Mr. Richardson who are the ignorant ones. Perhaps before they rush into print next time they will take the trouble to get their facts straight.—Yours faithfully,

DUAL HOBBIES

Dear Sir,—Re Mr. Pip Gare, who shares traction engines with ringing as a hobby ("Ringing World," July 28th). I, like many others, share railways with ringing and find it a very pleasant combination.

During the period September, 1963, to December, 1964, four railway enthusiasts from the Yeovil area, three of whom are ringers, made several visits to Swindon locomotive works. The day would start by visiting Westbury (Wilts) engine sheds, after which we would join in service ringing at one of the Devizes towers. On leaving Swindon Works we would visit the engine sheds in Bristol and Bath and finally join in evening ringing in a tower at one of these places.

I have had much pleasure in combining the two hobbies and hope to do so for many more years in spite of diesel and electric locomotives.—Yours faithfully,

JOHN CORNELIUS.

ST. DUNSTAN-IN-THE-WEST

Dear Sir,—I would be very grateful if any reader has any knowledge of the bells in St. Dunstan-in-the-West, Fleet Street. I am asking on behalf of the consultant architect.

Was there any cause other than a lack of ringers for the ringing to cease? When was the last peal, if any, rung on them? We have knowledge of the weight, date and founder, but not what they were like to ring or to listen to.—Yours sincerely,

J. M. L. HOOTON.

RINGING IN CITY CHURCHES

Dear Sir,—Before the current correspondence about service ringing at Birmingham Cathedral develops into a dispute between the "goodies" and the "baddies," may I suggest that the purpose of ringing in city churches needs rethinking.

In many cases the only people who hear the bells on a Sunday are those who are coming to church anyway, so that the ringing becomes yet another adornment of religion; accepted, welcomed, but, like the competing organ voluntary, of doubtful merit. On the other hand, bells can be important instruments in reminding those who would otherwise have no contact with the Church, of its message and its work.

To whom would ringing be more valuable: To a coachload of worshippers from Rowley Regis or to the large number of people making their way home past St. Philip's at six o'clock on a Thursday evening? I would suggest the latter.

I tend to think that with churches where nobody lives within the range of the bells it is much more worthwhile to make the effort to ring for Saints' days and festivals connected with the Church than for Sunday, when the only people who hear are coming anyway.

As far as city churches are concerned, the issue of Sunday ringing is not a simple one. Perhaps this would be more readily appreciated if there was not such a chronic shortage of one quality amongst members of the Exercise—openmindedness.—Yours faithfully,

RICHARD INGLIS.

TOWERS RINGABLE AND UNRINGABLE

Dear Sir,—After a recent afternoon outing "visiting" several little-rung towers, the following discussion commenced whilst taking refreshment.

One well-known ringer in the south commented that he had only to ring at two more towers to have rung at every ringable tower in Surrey, thus making three counties that he had completed. Immediate a "tower restorer" quoted several towers which though listed by Dove as "unringable" were in fact ringable for a short period if a few hours or days were spent in preparation. Thus how does one classify a tower "ringable" or "unringable"? Is it classed as unringable if one cannot just walk in and take hold, or does unringable really mean unringable, i.e. one pull and the bells fall from the frame or the tower collapses?

One further comment. Would not the time spent in making a tower ringable with extreme difficulty be better spent in resurrecting bands at towers where the bells are ringable. There are those who succeed in both, i.e. G. Dodd, but there are many more who do not.

INTERESTED SPECTATOR.

NOT THE FIRST

Dear Sir,—The peal of Oxford Treble Bob Minor rung at Wellington, Herefordshire, on June 17th (page 500) is not the first of Minor in the method for the Hereford Guild. The first was rung at Whitbourne on July 23rd, 1947, conducted by G. E. Large.—Yours faithfully,

L. EVANS.

"NOTHING NEW UNDER THE SUN"

Dear Sir,—I was most interested to see the composition of Bob Major in this week's "Ringing World" with "765s and 756s at handstroke, especially suitable for half-muffled ringing."

This is by no means a new idea, as years and years ago it was commonplace to use handstroke 5768s, 6578s, 7568s and 7658s in half-muffled ringing, owing to the very solemn and dignified music produced. The late George Bradley used to compose many touches of Grandsire Triples on this plan, and I can remember many a funeral and Remembrance Day when we have rung little else!

I still have an old edition of "Bell News" in which appeared a letter from George Bradley on the subject: "... use of 5768s, 6578s, 7568s and 7658s half-muffled at handstroke in this way .... tell with infinite solemnity and pathos .... of thwarted hopes, marr'd ambitions, the passing of loved ones dear ..."

Such sentiments would probably be scoffed at today, and probably with some justification, but the fact remains that very beautiful music is produced. You never hear of it these days, the same as you never hear of the "nine tailors" being rung to mourn a passing. I should be very interested to hear of any village where the custom still survives.

Nevertheless, the appearance of this composition, to my mind, only goes to show what is true all along, "There is nothing new under the sun."—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE FENTON.

Farnborough, Kent.

SPLICED MINOR

Dear Sir,—I was interested in Mr. Chant's spliced 720s in two methods (page 528) and I would like to submit a similar composition of my own for splicing 2nds and 6ths place plain methods (two to four methods). Its only claim would seem to be that it has the minimum number of calls (12) possible using regular methods.

Possibly it is not original, if not I daresay someone will point this out.

720

	23456		Double Oxford
—	23564	4	Hereward Bob
S	25364	5	London Bob
—	25643	5	Double Court
S	25463	5	Double Oxford

This may be varied in a number of ways, e.g. by substituting Plain Bob and Double Bob for Double Oxford and Hereward or by using any one 2nds and one 6ths place method, provided that both have the same row stature.

If other methods are used, the interval to the first bob should be checked so as to bring up the correct lead-head: thereafter calls are made at intervals of a full course.—Yours sincerely,

ROY THREADGOLD.

Braintree, Essex.

PLURAL, NOT SINGULAR

Dear Sir,—I would like to correct a minor inaccuracy in Tony Lewis's letter on page 534. Mr. Lewis refers to a maniac ringer who has submitted hoaxes but I know of three such "maniacs" who have independently contributed during the past few months—two reside in the home counties and one in Bristol.

I agree the "maniacs" will revel in the publicity they are getting—but would they if their names were exposed?—Yours sincerely,

JOHN HUNT.

Bristol.

"Alice" Meets the Bell-Ringers

BY ROBERT B. SMITH

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
To talk of many things:
Of 'Ringing World' and half-lead splice
And anyone who rings."

Tweedledee was about to continue when Alice intervened. "So you are a member of the Central Council, then," said Alice in admiration.

"Yes, I have been for 20 years, now," replied Tweedledee.

"And is that good?" said Alice.

"I think it's very good; I meet Tweedledum every year."

The brothers smiled at each other. They both agreed it was a very good thing.

Alice was going to inquire further but she checked herself. "I'd better be getting on to ringing now. Do you think it's going to rain?"

Tweedledum spread a large umbrella over himself and his brother and looked up into it.

"No, I don't think it is," he said, "at least not under here, nohow."

"But it may rain outside?"

"It may—if it chooses," said Tweedledee. "We've no objection. Contrariwise."

"Selfish things," thought Alice, and she was just going to say "Goodnight" and leave them when Tweedledum sprang out from under the umbrella and seized her by the wrist.

"Do you see that?" he said, in a voice choking with passion, and his eyes grew large and yellow all in a moment as he pointed with a trembing finger at a small white thing lying under the tree.

"It's only a 'Ringing World,'" Alice said, after careful examination of the little white thing. "Not an Income Tax return, you know," she added hastily, thinking he was frightened—"only an old 'Ringing World'—quite old and torn."

"I knew it was!" cried Tweedledum, beginning to stamp about wildly and tear his hair. "It's spoilt, of course." Here he looked at Tweedledee, who immediately sat down on the ground and tried to hide himself under the umbrella.

Alice laid her hand upon his arm and said in a soothing tone, "You needn't be so angry about an old 'Ringing World'"

"But it isn't old," Tweedledum cried, in a greater fury than ever. "It's new, I tell you—I bought it yesterday—my nice new 'Ringing World'"! and his voice rose to a perfect scream.

At this point Alice was beginning to take some interest in "The Ringing World." She became distracted from the topic however as Tweedledee had now picked up the poem he had been reciting:

"'But wait a bit,' the members cried,
'Before we have our chat:
For some of us are out of breath,
And all of us are fat!'
'No hurry,' said the Carpenter:
They thanked him much for that."

The above is basically a report of the proceedings of the Central Council at Nottingham, Bath, Northampton and Truro, etc. Isn't it time that somebody mentioned that the annual Central Council meeting, looked at from the point of view of business and decision-making, has been obsolete for a number of years now. Messrs. Corby and Ainsworth hinted at this in their articles following the Central Council meeting at Bath last year. ("Ringing World' 2,879, Vol. LXII), but we still see that the meeting was held on the Tuesday following Bank Holiday Monday. This is the time when people are in something of a holiday mood; to tangle with down-to-earth topics like the future of "The Ringing World" is to say the least a little distasteful between cups of tea and cream buns (this year between morning coffee and lunch).

The Central Council meeting is an extremely useful and enjoyable social event in the ringing calendar for those who attend. Business-wise it leaves much to be desired; new members who might have something useful to say speak awkwardly in an atmosphere which is a cross between the first day at Ascot and the opening day of the T.U.C. Members who have been on the Council for a number of years often seem to be out of touch with problems which they should be prepared for. In certain instances, e.g. half-lead splicing, specialist knowledge is required, but if the topics are debated properly there is no reason why members should not vote on a motion instead of referring it to a committee. After all, committees have an opportunity to prepare a case relating to motions before the Council, as prior notice must be given.

Selection of members to represent Guilds or Associations is not a topic which comes within the scope of the Council but it may well be worthwhile Guilds and Associations looking into selection of their representatives. Do you have representatives for the good work they have done in the past (near or distant) or in the hope that they will do some good now or in the future?

One could mention many other topics which require an "airing" but the most unfortunate question we can ask ourselves is: "Is the Central Council annual meeting fulfilling the purpose it was intended to when it was first presided over by the late Sir Arthur P. Heywood."

TOYLAND NEWS

Dear Sir,—As Noddy's friend, I am obliged, as a result of disclosures, to reveal the situation which now exists about the now-famous bell.

In the early days of this month a rotund, nay, bulging figure was observed leaving my friend's house by a rear window with great difficulty. On awakening Noddy, it was found that his favourite blue cap, and the bell which appends to it were missing. It must therefore be presumed that the perpetrator of this heinous deed is the ringer of the peal reported in your columns of July 7th.

Information as to the villain's whereabouts will be received most gratefully by Mr. Plod and his band of willing helpers.—Yours faithfully,

BIG EARS.

P.S.—As a fellow ringer, I fully appreciate Noddy's loss, and I therefore suggest that a fund be started to pay for eventual recasting should the bell return, and also to permit augmentation to a unique six.

P.P.S.—I also enclose a small donation towards the cost of producing your excellent publication.

Chesham, Bucks.

MINSTER, SHEPPEY.—On July 23rd, 1,260 Doubles (three methods): Ann Bryant (first quarter) 1, Jane Bryant 2, Marianne Leworthy 3, P. D. J. Beale 4, D. P. Leworthy (cond.) 5, D. Hunt 6. First quarter peal in three methods for all except the 4th ringer.

WANTS MORE TALKING AT COUNCIL MEETINGS

Dear Sir,—We have now had the full report of the Central Council meeting at Nottingham reported in "The Ringing World." Also I have had members and visitors report on the meeting. On analysing the contents of the meeting we see that there were the reports of the various committees and debates on these and three motions. We find, however, that no decisions were made or only half-decisions.

Surely it is about time the members of the Council got down to the business they were sent for and make the decisions that respective Guilds and Associations hold instead of their own personal opinions. I feel the members of the committees do a good job on the whole throughout the year, but the ordinary members do not seem to play their active part in the meeting.

For instance, "The Ringing World" debate. It was clear that the opinion of the floor wanted a new committee, but did this happen—no. They let the senior members sway them and through this lost two members with the most good ideas. We now have a committee under strength by two, so how can they hope to achieve anything new? It was suggested that two others be elected to replace the resigning two, but this was stated to be out of order, yet on three other committees new persons were elected. These new persons were elected either to replace a person who had died or because it was the wish of the Council.

In the debates on hoax peals and voluntary contributions to peals no decisions were reached. They were referred back and, I expect, next year, will be referred back again or not bothered with.

In the half-lead spliced motion we did at least get half a decision of recognising it as a peal and not a performance. We did not establish what it is to be called but referred it to the Methods Committee. A decision by the experts on this subject should have been taken. It seems it is up to ringers everywhere to make sure they are sending representatives who will get down to the business instead of going for just a long social week-end. Let's have a social time, but put the business first.

I suggest to improve the meeting that a day is not long enough to discuss everything fully, therefore increase it to one and a half days. Also microphones for speakers would help considerably; they have them at other conferences.

Although this may seem a personal opinion, I can assure everyone that these views are felt by a great number of ringers, some of whom are members of the Council.—Yours faithfully,

B. GROVES.

Maidstone, Kent.

NOTE.—Guilds and Associations appoint representatives, not delegates, who go to meetings with their hands tied. A representative has complete freedom. Following the Census, there is no shortage of ideas regarding "The Ringing World." Change in a journal of this character with a strong tradition, must be a gradual process. Unless a matter is urgent and widely acceptable, like the Canberra gift of bells, it is wise to refer it to a committee for investigation and mature consideration.—Ed.

The Church Bells of St. Helen's, Lancashire

BY JAMES HEDGCOCK

ST. MARK'S, COWLEY HILL

The fourth church containing bells is the Parish Church of St. Mark, Cowley Hill. This church is built on one of the highest points in the town and was, in the 1900s, the church to go to. The tower, a red brick construction capped with a sandstone spire, is a product of one of the original benefactors, Lt.-Col. David Gamble.

The writer had been endeavouring to gain access to this tower for many years and had always been refused permission. In fact all that was known about them was that they were a chiming eight, as stated in "Dove." However, the new Vicar gave permission to make an inspection. No one had been up the tower since 1956, when the bellfounder (Taylor) made an inspection of the frame and certified it unsafe.

On gaining access to the ringing chamber, a huge clock case confronted me. This contained an antiquated clock inscribed "Gillett and Co., Steam Clock Manufacturers, Croydon, 1884."

The bells are worked from an Ellacombe manual, with the ropes directed to the bells by pulleys. The clock weights had fallen down, narrowly missing the tenor, and crashing into the clock case. The bells are hung in two rows of three, in numerical sequence, with the third row containing the seventh and tenor. They are very heavily crusted with deposits from the Cowley Hill glass factory of Pilkington Brothers. They are very angular at the shoulder, not unlike some of Warner's castings, and are all cast with angular cannons. The bells are hung very close together, the sixth overlapping the lip of the tenor, which makes them almost inaccessible. It appears that they all have the inscription: "Cast by Gillett and Co., Croydon, London, 1884." The tenor also bears this inscription on the waist: "This peal of bells was presented to St. Mark's Church by Lt.-Colonel David Gamble of Windlehurst, St. Helens, 1884."

This tenor bell is 3ft. 3in. diameter with a strike note of F and weighs 12 cwt. The bells are hung on three huge beams, which are in need of repair. All ironwork is almost completely rusted away The chiming hammers are supported on wooden trestles, and strike the inside of the bells the clock hammers, which are rusted up, strike the outside. The bells were chimed individually and a cloud of rust descended. The fifth and sixth bells are well out of tune. The tenor only has a good tone.

Derelict still.

BRAINTWISTER No. 1

Comments by A. S. Hudson

The response to Braintwister has been very encouraging. Entries varied from a complete specification of the touch to plain postcards merely stating the solution requested.

As many readers have appreciated, the problem as set is trivial when all the superfluous information has been removed. The solution is obtained by writing the touch out backwards and it is not in fact necessary to know the first call or the number of changes. All that is required is the ability to prick out the lead heads and ends of Plain Bob Minor. The correct solution is 152364, the change occurring at the eighth lead head, and the first correct solution opened was submitted by Christopher Daws, of Trinity College, Cambridge, who receives the prize of a Ringer's Diary voucher.

My apologies to those readers with brains so twisted that they were insulted by the simplicity of this first problem. May I say in justification that it was set largely to test response. In spite of its simplicity, several incorrect solutions were submitted, most of them being variations on the 126543 theme. The error here appears to stem from confusion of lead heads and ends, so let it be said that a lead Head is the first change of a lead and occurs at backstroke, whilst a lead end, being the last change of a lead occurs at the treble's handstroke lead. I cannot agree with the reader who suggests that there is no unique solution. Neither can I agree that the clockwise and anti-clockwise orders in Plain Bob Minor are three leads apart rather than two.

MANCHESTER.—At the Cathedral, on July 27th, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: Miss I. E. M. Manby 1, P. G. Bellamy-Knights 2, I. N. Goldthorpe 3, D. M. Barraclough 4, A. G. Keen 5, G. Pye 6, A. Ward (cond.) 7, D G. Manby (first in method) 8. A 21st birthday compliment to Alan G. Keen.

Looking Back

ISLEWORTH MEMORIES

Your splendid front page picture of Isleworth Parish Church brings to my mind the days when the S.W. portion of Middlesex rang but few peals, and it was a pleasure to be invited for a peal of Grandsire in 1906 a birthday peal for King Teddy. Those local lads of Isleworth rang a well struck peal and the King's health was toasted rather hurriedly in order that the writer could get his train home to Hersham, via Clapham Junction.

In 1907 Frank Bennett asked me to turn the tenor in for a peal of Kent and in this peal we noted three firsts in the method, Messrs. Bill Hewitt, George Edser and John H. B. Hesse. In 1908 another peal of Grandsire contained two first peals, Edgar Webb and Walter Howlett, and we honoured the birthdays of J. Basden and F. G. Goddard.

The following year Bert Trewett gave me a rare chance to ring the tenor to a peal of Stedman, a real treat, and in November of the same year we scored another peal of Kent and the 5th ringer, William Welling, scored his first in the method. In 1913 that keen Treble Bob man, Alfred Grimes, asked for Oxford and he called a 5,088.

In July, 1914, another peal of Kent was scored and in this 5,024 Charles J. Tricker scored his first peal of Major. On April 19th, 1917, I was asked to conduct a half-muffled peal for the Vicar (Rev. J. H. Champion McGill) and a permit was obtained from the military. This happened to be my 100th peal as conductor.

My last two peals here were in 1919 and 1926, both Major, for the bells were not made 10 until June, 1931.

WILLIAM SHEPHERD.

ELMES TWIN A BRIDE

The marriage took place on July 29th at Lady St. Mary's Church, Wareham, between John William Blackwood, of Thornhill, Southampton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Blackwood, of Maidenhead, and Ruth Alison Elmes, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Elmes, of Mill Lane, Wareham. Canon J. Wallis officiated.

The bride was attended by her younger sister, Sarah, and the best man was Lewis F. Cobb, of Ringwood. About 80 guests attended the reception, which was held in the Church Hall. The couple are spending their honeymoon in Wales before making their home in Thornhill, Southampton.

Among the presents was an inscribed barometer from the Wareham ringers, where until recently the bride and bridegroom were members of the local band.

Following the reception, eight of the guests rang 1,260 Stedman Triples in honour of the wedding. The band stood as follows: P. Mehew 1, Mary E. Elmes 2, R. D. Bellamy 3, G. W. Elmes 4, W. T. Perrins 5, G. E. Bonham 6, L. F. Cobb (cond.) 7, R. W. Young (8).

Later in the evening a quarter peal was to be attempted by the local band at Boyne Hill, Berkshire, where the bridegroom first learned to ring.

Up and Coming Youngsters — No. 56

KEVIN M. PRICE,
Furness Branch, Lancashire Association.

Some people have a natural aptitude for ringing and such is their ability that other people's stumbling blocks are surmounted with ease. In this category falls Kevin M. Price, who in March, 1965, at the age of 12 entered the ringing chamber of St. Martin's, Bowness-on-Windermere, to be taught the rudiments of handling a bell. We feel certain the tower captain, Mr. Frank Wilson, has never had a pupil who made such rapid progress.

While the Lake District does not lack bells, good change ringing bands are not too plentiful and it meant miles of travelling for Kevin. He never missed a monthly meeting and he soon became adept at finding his way through many methods. Almost every night during school holidays he would be visiting some tower or another. At the age of 14 he is really proficient in Minor methods from Plain Bob to London, Oxford Single and Double, Double Court, St. Clement's and Cambridge. His mastery of Grandsire and Stedman extends from Doubles to Caters. Kent and Oxford T.B. he rings in Minor and Major, and his Major methods include Double Norwich, Cambridge Surprise and recently a plain course of Yorkshire Surprise.

A few months ago Kevin turned his attention to conducting. He has Plain Bob and Kent T.B. to his credit and early in July he attempted a four method peal which, due to the heat, collapsed 240 changes from the end of the last extent. A regular Sunday service ringer at Bowness, he also rings the carillon at his own church, St. Mary's, Windermere.

His list of towers visited is already formidable. They include all in the Furness Branch of the Lancashire Association and many in Cumberland and Yorkshire. Last year he organised a tour of Cumberland and this year he is planning one to the Fylde area of Lancashire.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whalley introduced him to handbell ringing on one of his visits to Hawkshead. He has advanced by leaps and bounds and with a practice once a week the trio have rung 25 peals together which have developed from Doubles to peals in seven Minor methods. Mr. and Mrs. Whalley are indeed proud to ring with him and help him in his ambitions.

Kevin's secret—A grit and determination to succeed. And with what he has accomplished in two years he gives every prospect of becoming one of the great personalities of the Exercise. His is a name to watch.

OBITUARY

MR. H. GREEN

Porthkerry tower (Glamorgan) has suffered the loss of one of its oldest stalwarts through the death on July 27th of Harry Green, at the age of 77. Born in Somerset, he moved to South Wales as a young man. He had been a ringer for many years but did not take up change ringing until the end of 1947, when he was getting on for 60 years of age; he was an apt and painstaking pupil.

Porthkerry had then only four bells, and when the two trebles were added in 1950 Harry progressed to learn about half a dozen Doubles methods and three or four Minor. At over 70 he would do his homework on a new method, and if the ringing were patchy one could hear him counting his place, determined to keep right.

Harry was a carpenter by trade and acted as steeplekeeper for 15 years; he was also a member of the P.C.C. for almost 20 years, and his skill as a craftsman was often used in the service of the church. We shall miss him as a ringer and a friend, and extend our sympathy to his widow and family. L. J. M.

LLANDAFF AND MONMOUTH

The Monmouth Branch held a very enjoyable and well attended meeting at Usk on July 8th. The bells were well used during the afternoon and evening and the service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. L. Rendle-Davies. Mr. Reuben Clench read the lesson, and Mr E. D. Sage kindly played the organ.

The Usk ringers hired the Memorial Hall in which to serve tea and for the business. They were warmly thanked by Mr. Richard Owen for their hospitality.

New members elected were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bennett (St. Woolos, Newport) and Michael Perry (Chepstow). A report was given of the cost of rehanging the six bells at Grosmont.

New meeting at Caldicot, October 14th (provisional).

BATH AND WELLS ASSOCIATION

At the Cary Branch's summer meeting at North Cheriton on July 22nd, a welcome was given to the new general secretary of the Association, Mr. J. H. Gilbert, and also to Mr. W. A. Stote, who had travelled from Coventry.

Mr. Gilbert announced plans for a half-day's ringing school to be held in the autumn, and he appealed for more postal subscribers to "The Ringing World."

The service was conducted by the vice-chairman of the Branch, Preb. O. H. Skipwith, assisted by the chairman, Rev. G. S. Robinson, and the address was given by Rev. R. Kinsey, a member of the Association.

Two new members from North Cheriton were elected, after which a move was made to Maperton, where the bells were kept going until almost 9 p.m.

DATE TOUCH

Mr. R. K. Williams, of Ledbury, sends us the following 1967 Minor touch:

Two extents of any Minor method or methods, one extent of a Little method (480 changes) and 47 changes of Grandsire Minor (called plain lead, two singles, rounds at handstroke occurring at the next lead).

BELFRY GOSSIP

The Professor's article on Treble Bob Minor and Splicing will be resumed next week.

The peal at Blewbury on July 15th was the 50th peal for David L. Wilcox and not the 500th that was inadvertently printed on page 540.

The peal of Kent Minor rung at East Woodhay was by Highclere Sunday service band, the lady on the treble also being a member of the Woolton Hill band.

From Grahamstown we hear that Robert B. Smith's articles on Plain Bob are being most assiduously studied in readiness for the day it is possible to ring the bells again.

The peal of Spliced Surprise Major at Deane on July 26th was arranged by the conductor as a compliment to Miss Margaret E. Fort, the ringer of the treble, who is a valued member of St. Mary's, Leigh, and recently secretary of the Bolton Branch of the Lancashire Association. She is leaving in the autumn and will be missed in both capacities.

Mr. David M. Hughes informs us that the first peal of Stedman Triples at Liss was on January 15th, 1939, and not as printed on page 537.

At the joint meeting between the Middlesex and London County Associations at Twickenham, views were exchanged on how to organise more regular ringing in the "isolated" towers of London—a big task which has no easy solution.

Nobody could remember how long the five bells at Pagham, Sussex, had been silent. Now it is a virile tower following the rehanging of the bells by John Taylor and Co. The Bishop of Chichester came to rededicate them and members of the Western Division of the Sussex Association have been giving instruction. This ring of five has a 10 cwt. tenor and are now rung regularly for Sunday services. Visitors will be welcome at the Tuesday practices.

BELFRY GOSSIP

A 14-YEAR-OLD GETS THE BELLS A-RINGING

Fourteen-year-old Alan Coombs had heard that the bells of St. Peter's, Marksbury, had been silent for about 15 years, through the absence of ringers and accordingly approached the Vicar (the Rev. W. C. Mason) and asked if he would like the bells rung.

Assent was readily given. "I think I was the saddest man in Somerset last Christmas," said the Vicar, "when I heard the other parishes around ringing and knew that the bells of Marksbury were silent."

Alan set about collecting a band and his father consented to be tower master and to teach the recruits. Twelve lads with an age range from nine to 15 years were forthcoming and the first practice was on February 10th. Miss Margaret Jones, who had had a little experience, joined the band and became the secretary. On Easter Sunday the ringers rang the bells for service for the first time.

In the long years of silence the belfry and the ropes had badly deteriorated. The church was unable to help financially so the new band courageously set about raising the money. Two beetle drives made a substantial start to the belfry fund and an auction sale swelled the funds to £48. The enthusiasm resulted in an anonymous donation from a gentleman to meet the cost of a new set of ropes. The tower has now been redecorated and the ropes hung. A dedication service was conducted in the belfry by the Vicar on July 21st.

"Although the past few months have meant a lot of work, we now have our reward—a happy and contented band of ringers, all hoping to have a big future in front of us in the ringing world," concludes Alan's letter.

Practice night at Marksbury is Fridays, 6.30 to 8.30 p.m. Assistance would be welcomed.

POOR OLD "RINGING WORLD" AGAIN

To hand is the last issue of "Overtones," Drax Hall, followed by a short business meet-English Handbell Ringers, a 16 page lithograph publication to members only with 5 dollar (35s.) subscription per annum or to groups five copies for 5 dollars. The subscription covers five issues a year and type setting is less than half a 16 page "Ringing World."

The front page picture is a beauty chorus of handbell ringers from the Second Congregational Church of Rockford, Illinois, and there are six other pictures of feminine charm of belles with bells. Of the three general articles there is one on "Change Ringing" by our old friend Capt. Marybelle Nissly. Two pages of musical scores are also provided.

No wonder in the two letters published George Pipe writes: "I've just read your January issue of 'Overtones'—how excellent it is in every respect. In fact it puts our own 'Ringing World' to shame I feel."

THE EXERCISE AT ROLLS-ROYCE

A band of ringers from Rolls-Royce Ltd. rang the bells of Derby Cathedral on July 26th for the memorial service to Mr. Adrian Albert Lombard. Mr. Lombard, who died the week previous, was a designer of international stature and a director of Rolls-Royce. The bells were rung half-muffled for three-quarters of an hour before the service, which was attended by the Bishop of Derby.

There is also at Rolls-Royce a flourishing group of handbell ringers who meet every day at lunchtime in the office of Gordon A. Halls.

A KENT WEDDING

A wedding of interest to Kent ringers took place at Holy Trinity Church, Queenborough on July 15th, of Linda Ann Rayfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Rayfield, of Main Road, Queenborough, and Keith Alfred Ross Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Fisher, of James Street, Gillingham.

The Rev. H. A. Daws officiated and the bride, who was given away by her father, wore a long white Empire-line satin dress decorated with embroidered flowers. Her headdress of pearl and crystal was attached to a short veil and she carried a bouquet of pink and white roses.

Four small nieces of the bride, dressed in long, turquoise-coloured dresses, were the bridesmaids. They were Tina Sheldrick, Alison Rayfield, Jacqueline Rayfield and Patricia Rayfield. The bridegroom and his best man, Robin Harlon, were in naval uniform.

Unfortunately the Queenborough bells cannot be rung at present owing to restoration work but the bridal party was not to be denied; as the register was being signed a recording of the bells was played. The congratulatory quarter peal was rung in the evening at Rainham.

The reception was held at the Castle Memorial Hall, Queenborough, and the honeymoon was spent touring.

QUARTER PEAL AT HOAR CROSS

If any reason for ringing a quarter is needed, other than a love of bells, we could say that our effort at Hoar Cross was to celebrate the first six months of our labours at the hall which is being developed as an Evangelist Centre for the Midlands, like Lee Abbey.

Our first workers were from Stretton, who heard about it through their local youth club. They were soon joined by contingents from Melbourne and Alvaston.

Initially we helped other groups to remove sodden plaster and dry-rot infected woodwork (the bonfires were great fun), but of late, with the improving weather, we have moved out into the gardens. We also organised a dance at the hall, which was a great success.

Steve Sherratt deserves special praise for his very steady ringing of the tenor, which at 28 cwt. is three and a half times the weight of the tenor at Stretton, his home tower. A. F. H.

MR. M. J. UPHILL'S FIRST 100

Ringing his first peal at Brentford, Middlesex, on November 18th, 1961, just prior to his 14th birthday, Mr. M. J. Uphill, of London, S.W.15, rang his 100th peal on July 1st at the Loughborough Bell Foundry. These have been rung in 64 towers in 18 counties. The list reads: Doubles 3 (conducted 2), Minor 26 (8), Triples 8 (1), Major 27 (4), Surprise Major 20 (5), Caters 5 (1), Royal 4 (1), Surprise Royal 3, Cinques 3, Maximus 1. Total 100 (conducted 22).

BRONLLYS' PEAL OF 102 METHODS

Mr. Colin A. Lewis sends the following correction to the Bronllys peal of 102 Doubles methods:—

Substitute a Pink's single where Grandsire Extreme is written in three variations: Cwmdu, Cathedine and Tal-y-llan. "A Grandsire Extreme is merely the back work of New Bob, of which this group is a variant, and therefore cannot be used as a call," explains Mr. Lewis.

GROTON'S EXPERIENCE IN EAST ANGLIA

President Gilbert Thurlow writes in the August issue of "The Norwich Churchman" on the visit of U.S. schoolboy ringers to East Anglia. Here is how he saw the visit:

One can imagine what it must have meant to an adventurous crowd of American boys, to share the life of unspoilt Suffolk villages, to see the ancient churches we take for granted or look on merely as "Problems" and to eat at ancient pubs with names like "The Ten Bells."

They rang Lavenham's famous bells, saw East Bergholt bells which, in the absence of a completed tower, hang at ground level in their "temporary" (16th century!) cage and are rung by grasping the headstocks instead of using rope and wheels; explored Groton (near Sudbury) with its ancestral air, and Blythburgh with its new bells.

They were televised at Cotton, where the tower arch is open to the air, as if the devil had turned the whole tower round. Bury Cathedral, Ufford where I first learnt to ring, Grundisburgh where George Pipe learnt as a boy, and many another of our ancient Suffolk churches. On their last day, two of them actually rang in a three-hour peal of 5,040 changes at Barking—a great achievement.

So young life came to the ancient churches, and the experience sent the boys home to America with memories enriched for ever.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE SYMONDS' DIAMOND WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. George Symonds, of 57, Mornington Crescent, Ipswich, received a message from the Queen and a visit and flowers from the Mayor and Mayoress of Ipswich (Ald. and Mrs. Arthur Lambert) and about 60 cards from relatives and friends on the occasion of their diamond wedding day on July 17th.

Their wedding took place at Wangford Church, near Southwold, and they have four children, five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Two married daughters live in Ipswich, a son in Norwich and another in Toronto, Canada.

The previous Tuesday he was 92 and he celebrated the day with a peal of Kent T.B. Royal at Grundisburgh (see page 541). To date his peal total is 472.

A reception was held at Castle Hill Community Centre, Ipswich, and a three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by his grandson's wife, Mrs. Heather Clarke, was cut with due ceremony.

The best wishes for many more years of married happiness together is the unanimous wish of all our readers.

ST. AUSTELL'S REHANGING—A "STEWARDSHIP" PARTY

Writing in "The Cornish Churchman," the Truro Diocesan publication, the Rev. T. W. Richardson, Vicar of St. Austell, states the idea of English China Clays rehanging the bells began with the stewardship renewal dinner party last November. The managing director was host at the party and afterwards suggested that his company's immediate response to stewardship might be in the field of rehanging the bells.

JOINT MEETING AT TWICKENHAM

The annual joint meeting held between the Middlesex County and London County Associations was this year held on July 15th at Twickenham, and was well supported. Afternoon ringing commenced at St. Mary's, Sunbury-on-Thames (8). Most of the visitors saw the church, as it now stands, for the last time because there is a rebuilding scheme soon to start which involves demolishing everything except the unusual but attractive dome-capped tower

The next tower, St. Mary's, Hampton, had its small ringing chamber also well packed. We all realised that not one touch here was nearly as good as the recorded Plain Bob Major which is often heard on the wireless on Sundays at 7.45 a.m. as a programme signal. A few touches at St. Mary's, Twickenham, heralded Evensong, led by the Vicar (the Rev. W. J. Davies). It is hoped that the rather heavy-going ring of eight will soon be a match to the lovely interior of St. Mary's, for a complete bell restoration scheme is in an advanced stage.

A tea, prepared and served by Mr. and Mrs. D. Lovell and other local ringers, gave much satisfaction and renewed the energy for the evening's ringing at St. Mary's and at All Hallows', but the ringing did not restart until officers of each Association exchanged welcomes and provided some food for thought—how to organise more regular ringing in the "isolated" towers of London, a big task which has no easy solution. ESSEX ASSOCIATION

Northern District

A meeting of the Northern District was held on July 22nd at Pebmarsh, where the six bells were, after a delayed start, kept ringing to a variety of methods. The service was taken by Canon M. N. Lake, assisted by local lay leader Mr. Cross.

After tea the District Master took the chair for the business meeting. A most encouraging sign was to hear of the start or resumption of practices at four silent towers (Greenstead Green, Foxearth, Belchamp St. Paul and Colne Engaine). An attempt was made to start a discussion on the subject of "The Ringing World" but owing to unanimity of support for the new design there was no repetition of the Central Council debate!

OCKHAM, SURREY.—On July 13th, 1,260 Plain Bob Doubles (with each bell 240 changes in the hunt): Jill M. May 1, M. Kirk 2, P. Henry 3, D. A. R. May 4, D. J. Tubbs 5. Silent and non-conducted. OUTINGS

NEWARK CLIMBED 516 STEPS ON THEIR OUTING

AFTER several years of travelling long distances on the annual day's ringing outing, Newark, Notts, ringers this year decided to visit neighbouring Lincolnshire. June 18th dawned bright as the coach full of ringers and friends set forth on what they hoped would be a nice leisurely day's ringing, but if they had thoughts of the glorious Fenland churches with long draughts and ground floor rings, they had a shock in store as some 516 steps were climbed during the day.

Donington was first on the list, the eight bells were soon set going and were enjoyed more than the morning coffee at a local hostelry, where our visit coincided with several coaches seaside bound. The bells of Bicker lived up to their excellent reputation, but let it be said that at least one of the more portly members of the party became stuck on the narrow stairway and required a push.

The long climb at Boston was achieved by most, and some of the more energetic members were disappointed in finding the stairway to the top of the lantern locked. Good use was made of the bells, the only ten of the day. Gosberton bells were declared excellent and everyone was sorry to leave. It was here that the good fellowship of ringers was demonstrated. On hearing the day before our visit that no reply could be had from the next tower on the list, Fulney (the local tower-keeper having presumably left the district), Mr. D. J. Chapman, of Gosberton, contacted the Vicar of Fulney who gladly gave his consent.

The eight at Fulney proved better than we had been given to understand, and it was here that an elderly lady from a nearby cottage sent 2s. 6d. "for the ringers," and there was some debate as to whether this was to encourage the ringers to ring more or otherwise to get on their way as quickly as possible.

The ladies at Crowland provided an excellent tea, and the bells of Croyland Abbey were exciting to handle. There was much speculation here as to the ways of replacing a rope on so long a draught and through so many sallie guides. It is to be hoped that these unusual bells remain unaltered. In these days of so much "drawing room ringing" the quaint rings of bells in our land should be preserved, each with their own peculiarity. The last towers of the day were Morton and Rippingale, both excellent sixes in their different ways.

Thank you, South Lincolnshire, for a wonderful day. F. W. M.

SILSOE, BEDS

St. James' Guild, Silsoe, went to Derbyshire for its annual outing and a company of 54 experienced the delights of ringing and sightseeing, combined with good food and company.

A 7 a.m. start was necessary and the coffee break was at "Leicester Forest East" on the M.1. St Mary's, Eastwood, an enjoyable eight, was in recent years the scene of a disastrous fire. A new building now joins the old tower. Another good ring followed at South Normanton and a splendid lunch at "The Minors Arms." We were only half-way through the day but someone was heard to say, "I wonder what the bedrooms are like here?" We just put it down to the hot day and the good lunch!

Through lovely scenery we reached Eyam, the plague of 1685 village and rang at the little Church of St. Lawrence. The Rev. St. John Smith met us at Darley Dale and here one of the party remarked: "I feel inspired to ring well in such a beautiful church." We stayed in "the Dale" for tea (Whitworth Hotel) and concluded ringing at St. Andrew's, Countesthorpe, Leics.

This was the 16th outing of the Silsoe Guild, and it was said by Mr. Wood (vice-president) at the dinner table, "It is a compliment to the organiser that this year, no less than six other villages were represented on the outing." Well, I suppose there might be a larger coach for next year? M. A.

YORK MINSTER'S BELL WINDOW

YORK MINSTER'S BELL WINDOW

WHILST most people from time to time visit and admire the ancient cathedrals and churches of England, very few of us ever stop to study the work of the mediæval glass painter. As a result of the nature of the material, and often as a result of the misplaced zeal of "reformers," countless thousands of such windows have been destroyed. But some have survived and, amongst all others, York Minster stands out as the nation's treasure house of mediæval glass.

One window at York is of particular interest to bellringers. Known as the "Bell Window" and situated second from the east in the north wall of the nave, it was given to the Cathedral by Richard Tunnoc around the year 1320. Tunnoc, who was himself a bell-founder, lived in Stonegate, York. He was one of the three bailiffs for the city and represented York in Parliament. He died in 1330 and was buried in the Minster. No known bells can be attributed to Tunnoc though local tradition has it that the two bells in Acaster Malbis Church, some five miles south of York, "were made bit' feller at gave t'winder int' Minster."

The Bell Window, like most other mediæval windows, has suffered the ravages of time, but in view of its 600 years the subject matter is remarkably clear.

The window consists of three lights, the two outer ones having a border made up of bells, alternately silver and gold, usually ornamented and often fitted to headstocks. The borders of the centre light display monkeys playing several kinds of musical instruments. Between the borders are two rows of coloured panels set between pearl grey bands of grisaille glass. Each panel of grisaille is ornamented with a lozenge bearing a bell, and there is a row of bells above each panel's canopy.

The top row of coloured panels all show the bridge over the River Ouse breaking under the weight of the vast crowd of people assembled to greet William Fitzherbert (St. William of York), as he rode to the Cathedral for his enthronement. But it is the lower row of panels which is of particular interest to us.

DONOR PORTRAYED

It was a common mediæval practice to portray the donor of a window in the glass, and our subject follows the pattern, for in the centre panel we see a very young Tunnoc kneeling before the figure of Saint William. The Saint is in full eucharistic vestments, including the pallium and mitre. One gloved hand is raised in blessing whilst with the other he holds his staff. Tunnoc wears conventional dress of tunic and hose, but from his belt hangs not only a sword but also a pouch ornamented with two bells. He holds in his upraised hands a scroll giving his name in Lombardic lettering. In the background stands his window which he is offering to the Saint.

At the bottom of the right-hand light the subject is the casting of a bell. The founder has just tapped the furnace, using a long pole, and the molten metal runs into the mould. The furnace is ornamented with a delightful Gothic window and canopy. A young assistant, wearing his curly hair down to his shoulders, watches the operation. (See front page picture.)

TUNING A BELL

The matching panel at the bottom of the left-hand light shows the tuning of a bell. The bell is suspended between two trestles by a shaft which apparently passes straight through the crown. Two further bells sit on the floor under the trestles. The two figures are now fragmentary, though a sketch made by Torre in 1692 indicates that the figure on the left is that of the founder, who presses a cutting tool against the outside of the soundbow, whilst his assistant on the right turns the bell by means of a handle on the end of the shaft.

One other feature of the window is worth notice. The glass, like almost all York glass, is pot-metal, i.e. glass coloured in manufacture and not enamelled. This gives it an extraordinary brilliance and beauty which must be seen to be believed.

Should you ever visit York, take a look at this remarkable work of art. It is not the largest nor the most important window in the Minster by any means, competing as it does with the three "walls of glass" in the choir, the great west window, the "Five Sisters" and the six great windows of the Chapter House. Even its neighbour to the east, the "Heraldic Window," is considered to be of more artistic and historic interest. All the same it provides for the Exercise a tangible link with the past, and bears witness to the piety of a bell founder who lived over 600 years ago. I. R.

We are indebted to York Minster for our picture. Readers who desire to join in the £2,000,000 Appeal to save the Minster should send their donations to:—

A FURNESS GOLDEN WEDDING

On August 6th Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Burles, of Barrow-in-Furness, Lancs, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, and to mark the occasion ringing friends from the Lake District and as far afield as Essex joined together in an attempt to ring a peal at Jim's home tower, St. James', Barrow-in-Furness. Unfortunately the attempt came to grief after 35 minutes' ringing, but after losing a quarter peal of Kent, the ringers successfully brought home a quarter of Bob Major to mark this auspicious occasion.

Jim is known throughout the Exercise, having attended the Central Council meetings for many years both as a visitor and as a Lancashire representative, and I feel sure his many friends will join with the local Furness ringers in congratulating Mrs. Burles and himself on this happy anniversary and in wishing them good health for the future. A LINCOLN DIAMOND WEDDING

Mr. Horace Hurst, Master at St. Peter-at-Gowts', Lincoln, and Mrs. Hurst celebrated their diamond wedding on August 3rd. Mr. Hurst has been a regular ringer at St. Peter-at-Gowts' for over 65 years and now, at 86, years of age, still attends twice each Sunday, very often ringing 360 changes and occasionally a 720.

As a compliment to him and Mrs. Hurst the following took part in a quarter peal of Plain Bob Minor at his tower on August 3rd: D. Simpson 1, F. Dixon 2, J. Graves 3, W. Tomlinson 4, P. Pitchford 5, G. Paul (cond.) 6.

BUSH BROTHERHOOD

THERE can be very few places more lost than this; six miles north-west of Hatherleigh, in the least visited, least picture-postcard-worthy, least lush part of Devon, in country where many of the parishes have no village at all, and where with the closing of the delightful (and economically disastrous) Torridge Valley railway people feel even more back-of-beyondish than they did before. There is no real village at Petersmarland; the cottages are not quite so far apart in one bit of the parish, and that is where the church stands.

Whether there are any bells in the country older than Petersmarland tenor and still rung regularly in peal with a ring, I do not know; certainly there are none in Devon. This beautiful casting was made by Walter de Wymbish in about 1345, and inscribed, "Protege Virgo pia quos convoco Sancta Maria" ("Protect, saintly Virgin, Holy Mary, those whom I summon") an inscription which Robert Norton, who cast the fifth bell here in about 1430, may have seen for the first time on this bell. Certainly he adopted it as one of his favourite inscriptions, but on his bell here he put another of his stock inscriptions, "Mysteriis sacris repleat nos dca Iohannis" ("In the Holy Mysteries may the doctrine of John fill us"). This is another very good casting, and any church would be proud to have two such remarkable bells. Maybe it is the very remoteness of Petersmarland and its poverty that prevented the recasting of these bells. The old four were not made a six until the days of wanton scrapping had passed.

For several years past this little six has been out of order; the tower was cracked and the oak frame suffering from the rain, which in this district drives through any masonry and keeps the ends of the beams in perpetual dampness. The bell-pits were full of jackdaws' nests, the gear gradually decaying until last year interest revived and the tiny parish set about putting their belfry in order. This year the work was done, and the Torridge Vale Association of Ringers held its annual festival there on the last Saturday in July.

It was the sort of day when farmers who have not yet started harvesting say: "Us've had a master dryth the last few weeks; time us had a drop of rain. T'will freshen things up brave," and farmers who have started corn-harvest are best treated with extreme tact and sympathy or left entirely alone. That is to say, it was raining with that fine, driving, incredibly wetting rain which is a speciality of West Devon. But the bells of Petersmarland went round merrily enough all afternoon, and some of the ringing was very good. As one might expect with a tenor cast in the days when modern bell profiles were only half-developed from the inverted flower-pot shape of the 13th century, they are not an outstanding ring for music. The tenor has a rather hard, rasping tone, and when she is halfway down produces an extraordinary rough bark, but with the bells running well they sound well enough.

Like many of the local Associations, the Torridge Vale has one competition for all-comers and one for members only. The favourites for the open cup were Down St. Mary and Swymbridge, and "Mary-Down" won it with a peal of 25 faults. The shield went to Dolton, with Alwington runners-up. Petersmarland is building up a local band of ringers itself, and perhaps in a few years we shall be hearing something of them. J. G. M. S.

"SIGHT READING" CONTEST

Novel Feature by Southwell Guild

Five teams entered—Whatton, Derby Cathedral, Warsop, "The Burchnall VI" and Wollaton. The test piece, 360 Stanhope Delight Minor, was only revealed to the teams 30 minutes before they began to ring. The method, which is Cambridge Surprise above the treble and Killamarsh Treble Bob below, produces irregular lead-ends and was chosen for the contest by the judge, H. Poyner.

All teams rang the same 360. The judge checked off the lead-ends and also marked the striking. The quality of the ringing was in the first instance less fundamental to the contest than the correct completion of the touch; in the event, all teams but one rang the touch properly and so striking decided the winners.

As an entry fee of 5s. per ringer was charged, the Guild Bell Repair Fund benefited by £7 10s.

Whatton rang first. The ringing was very fast (2 hours and 23 minutes for a peal) and never settled down. There were two serious mistakes, both quickly corrected, but one lead-end was incorrect; 81 faults.

Warsop rang very well indeed, with an average of just over two faults per lead; 33 altogether.

The Burchnall VI, who followed, improved towards the end but never found a steady rhythm; 68 faults.

Wollaton soon obtained an excellent beat, often flawless for 20 changes or more. With a total of 29 faults, their fault rate was just below two per lead. As the winners, they were accordingly presented with a certificate.

Thanks were expressed to the Rector, the Rev. E. S. Jessup, for permission to use his bells, which had been rung half-muffled for the contest in view of the tragedy at Ranby Camp a few days before; to Mrs. Jessup and her helpers for so kindly providing the tea, and to the ringers who had taken part so enthusiastically in the venture and also supported the Bell Repair Fund.

SINGLES RINGING

Further ringing took place after tea at Babworth and on the three bells at Sutton-cum-Lound, where apart from plain hunting, courses were rung of Treble Bob, Stedman and Sutton Singles (the last-named principle rung for the first time, it was believed). These are given below, for the benefit of those who may only have three bells in their tower—or, as may be more probable, more than three bells but only three ringers.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION

Blackburn Branch

The three target methods—College Bob, Primrose and Single Oxford — with many others, with Plain Bob for beginners, were rung at the Blackburn Branch meeting at Ribchester (6) on August 5th. Those not ringing were able to visit the museum containing Roman remains found in the area. Cups of tea were provided by the Vicar's wife and helpers.

Mr. J. Pilkington presided at the business meeting, when the Association's proficiency certificates were discussed, the subject being on the agenda for the committee meeting of the Association at Burnley. Plans for a Branch outing and a cricket match against the Preston Branch were also on the agenda and approval was given to a donation of £2 10s. to Accrington for two new ropes.

Ringing followed in Plain and Surprise methods and a good day ended with lowering the bells in peal at 8.15 p.m.

LOOKING BACK

Early Days of Peterborough Guild

The Peterborough Diocesan Guild was just two years old when this picture was taken at a Guild meeting at Great Brington, Northants, on April 3rd, 1926. At least seven in the group are now deceased, in addition to Thomas Wise, of Wootton, who took the photograph and in his short life of 41 years did much to advance ringing.

It will be realised that Erin will adapt to three bells in a similar manner, and that each method may be rung in reverse if desired.

The tenor at Sutton being in excess of 10 cwt., it was found easiest to ring the bells with leads open at backstroke as well as at hand.

H. P.

Alfred Pickford, of Kingsthorpe—an up-and-coming young ringer—died rather tragically about 18 months after the photograph was taken. His tutor, George Parker, died in 1948, and will go down in memory as the man who walked everywhere. On one occasion, in 1929, he walked six miles to Gayton to ring a peal after a Saturday morning's work, rang the peal and walked back to Northampton and a further one and a half miles to his home in Kingsthorpe. He was then 54 or 55 years of age. He always preferred a heavy bell to a light one, was a first-class striker and one who would not tolerate anything false.

Thomas Law, for 30 years captain at Weston Favell tower, died on December 1st, 1941. Mainly a five bell ringer, he rang peals on 6, 8 and 10, but had a habit of standing with his legs wide apart, which led some to wonder how he got good striking and managed to keep his bell up.

Isaac Bennett, although a native of Bicker, Lincolnshire, had lived in Northampton (where he worked first as a tram driver and later on buses) for many years. He died a few years after the last war. He, too, rang a lot with the late Thomas Wise.

Harry England, a blacksmith, of Moulton, was not so keen on peals though a good Sunday service ringer. He died some six or so years ago.

Roland Adams, a very keen ringer in his younger days and a one-time Guilsborough area secretary, died in 1965, at his home village of East Haddon, where he rang regularly.

Of Arthur Starmer, from Harpole, very little was heard after the war—he, too, died a few years ago. Still less has been heard of Bert Murby, a one-time ringer at Weston Favell up to the war, when the old band broke up and was never re-formed.

William A. Stote is not so prominent in these days. Maybe if Coventry Cathedral bells get rehung for ringing we shall be seeing his name included in the first peal on them.

Letters to the Editor

QUARTER PEALS

Dear Sir,—If the sole reason for ringing quarter peals is advancement, I suppose Mr. Godfrey's criticism of the 1966 Analysis is in part valid, but as this is not so, his conclusions on what was rung are a little unfair.

In many cases quarter peals are rung for church services and a number of others are connected with events in the parishes themselves, ranging from Confirmation services to inductions. In these instances some, if not all, the local band take part, and this will probably modify the method rung. This does not matter at all, because if the ringing is good and the quarter is scored the band are satisfied, and in this context the choice of method is of secondary consideration.

Again, a number of quarters are rung in the standard methods for up-and-coming youngsters. This is bound to swell the Plain Bob and Grandsire totals, because these are still the "nursery" methods in most towers. You do not start off ringing Bristol unless you are a genius.

Bearing these points in mind, I would hesitate to call the details of methods rung depressing. If 1,409 or 37¼ per cent. of a total of 3,743 are other methods, it is not a bad percentage. Surely those of us who like variety in methods are not restricted in trying out fresh methods. If people really want to progress they will always find a way, as Mr. Godfrey and his band obviously have.

Let us all go on ringing quarter peals in whatever method we like because we enjoy them; forget the idea of rules, and spare us a "leading tower" list, please—there's enough upmanship in the Exercise now without adding to it.—Yours sincerely,

JOHN BRAIN.

Backwell, Somerset.

Dear Sir,—The last paragraph of E. G. H. Godfrey's letter on page 534 shows, to my mind, a lack of appreciation of the reason for which a great many quarter peals are rung.

What sort of offering is it to God on a great festival, what compliment to bride and bridegroom at a wedding, or what comfort to the bereaved at a funeral if the ringing, whether touch, quarter peal or peal should come to grief because some aspiring ringer or conductor uses the occasion to attempt an unproven performance?

Both simplicity of method and experience of the band are contributory factors to certainty of achievement. Let there be adventure and progress by all means in practice quarters, but please let us admit of a high proportion of accomplished performances when the purpose is to mark a significant occasion.—Yours sincerely,

W. O. HAYTHORNE.

Southampton.

"TOO DAZZLING"

Dear Sir,—What a thoroughly crazy statement, from a thoroughly crazy person. Too Dazzling? After years of trying to improve—if not perfect—and after all our troubles and trials, if our Editorial Committee to withdraw the cover it will be equally crazy. What a glorious tribute—too dazzling.—Yours sincerely,

W. F. STENSON.

Crewe, Cheshire.

SEMI-LEARNERS AGAIN

Dear Sir,—The semi-learners obviously have a justifiable complaint, but I suggest that they are lucky in some ways; they can refuse to ring what they consider to be beyond their capabilities. When they want to progress to more advanced methods their band should be willing and able to help them on.

Although I shall be accused of remounting my favourite hobbyhorse, our problem is just the opposite. With the local band alone, we cannot ring much more than Plain Bob; with our neighbouring band, we might manage Kent and Oxford; with luck and some seasonal visitors, courses of Surprise Minor. The nearest tower at which we can be sure of ringing Surprise is 40 miles away. (And these bells were aptly summed up by a ringer who said: "Don't worry—not even the locals can shine on this lot!"). I cannot imagine we are the only area to be in this position, so stick to your guns, semi-learners, because you are quite right, but don't regard too lightly the chances which are available to you when you want them.

Also, should our own two towers be booked, our nearest pealable bells are 20 miles away, and we should probably have to go even further If we had to pay compulsory fees to the church, the Association and "The Ringing World" on top of our travel costs, the youngsters who most need the experience, with only their pocket money, would not be ringing many peals. In my experience, any older ringer worth his salt makes a voluntary donation to the Bell Fund after a peal attempt, whether successful or not.

May I add that it would disappoint me greatly were ringers ever to refrain from publishing their peals, although my own total is insignificant. My chief interest is in the peal columns, and has been so ever since I first struggled with call changes.—Yours faithfully,

CHRISTOPHER J. EASTON.

Scalby, Yorks.

INVERARAY BELLS—THEIR ORIGIN

Dear Sir,—With regard to the query of Mr. E. Boumphrey concerning the ringing of the Inveraray bells, it is very doubtful whether this ring has ever been rung by a local band.

These bells were planned for Inveraray in 1914, just before the outbreak of war. They were cast in 1920 and each one dedicated to a Celtic saint. A year later they arrived at their destination.

The cost, amounting to roughly £5,000, was cleared off by subscriptions organised principally by the Duke of Argyll, who was the prime mover of the whole project. Incidentally, he himself donated the bells one to seven.

For several years, whilst the belfry tower was in the course of construction, the bells, duly hung in their steel frame, were chimed in a temporary wooden shelter at the east end of the church. Perhaps the great Duke, as with the majority of non-campanological laymen, never realised the true implication of bellringing. However, one cannot imagine a more beautiful setting for the ringing of church bells, and their music, wind-borne across Loch Fyne towards "Rest and be thankful," must surely be delightful to hear. —Yours faithfully,

M. MAUGHAN (Mrs.).

Hartlepool.

DIARY PAGE FOR DATES AND "GRABS"

Dear Sir,—After reading about the suggestion to Mr. W. Viggers of having a space in the Diary for notes on the opposite sex (page 537), I gave the matter a great deal of thought.

For being a teenage ringer (female!) of average intelligence and quite attractive appearance, I began to wonder how many pages in the Diary would need to be provided. For if I was to change partners (within the Exercise) as often as I "grabbed" a new tower, there would certainly need to be at least four pages devoted to this "hobby."

For some months now I have remained the "best of friends" with one particular male, and remain (I hope!) "CONTENTED."

A WORTHWHILE HOBBY

Dear Sir,—I am writing to tell you how much I enjoy bellringing. Since I began, last October, I have rung two quarter peals of Grandsire Doubles, in one of which I rang the treble, the other in which I covered.

Our tower captain, Barry Corbishley, takes us visiting other towers, where we learn to ring on heavier or lighter bells than our own. We also learn different methods of change ringing at these towers.

Twice this year we have been on bellringing trips where we visited other towers. On the first one we went to three towers and rang during the course of the afternoon and evening. On the second one we went to New Brighton for the day and rang at two towers, one on the way to New Brighton and one on the way back.

I end this letter by saying that I think that bellringing is a very worthwhile hobby.—Yours faithfully, VALERIE GREEN (Miss).

Macclesfield, Cheshire.

IF THE CAP FITS, WEAR IT!

Dear Sir,

Who were the ringers who, having permission
To ring from eleven fifteen, gained admission
At well before ten past that hour, and then started,
Without meeting the Vicar, our six bells to raise,
And, late by a full 20 minutes, departed?
Disorderly conduct of this kind I'll not praise!

They were the ringers who, on having permission
To ring from eleven fifteen, had a mission
To grab a few towers, once they had all started
A full band from all parts of the Kingdom to raise,
And, late by a full twenty minutes, departed,
Leaving beer-mat and bikes! Their conduct I'll not praise!

To those whom the cap fits, do you wear it with ease?
An apology would be in order, you'll please!

A RAMBLING POET.

A CORRECTION

W 5/4 B M H

32456 x S 3

The composition contains: 22 56's, 22 65's and six 54's, not all the 56's and 65's, and eight 54's. I apologise for these mistakes. —Yours faithfully, M. G. INGRAM.

OBITUARY

MR. F. A. FINCH

An Appreciation

By the death of Mr Frederick A. Finch, on July 23rd, the Middlesex Association has lost another link in the chain of prominent ringers who have served it as officers.

Fred Finch, who had learned to ring at Loddon, Norfolk, came to Middlesex in the early 1940's In his home tower he rang in the first peals achieved by a local band in 1923, and although he reached much greater heights later he always remembered his old associations with pride.

He served the Middlesex Association in the South and West District as Ringing Master, and later became secretary and a representative on the Central Council in 1950. His Sunday service ringing was principally at Christ Church, Ealing, St. Stephen's, Ealing, and St. Mary's, Acton. Outstanding among his 109 peals was Spliced Surprise under the leadership of the late E. C. S. Turner.

Fred loved the social side of ringing and was an entertaining speaker at various functions and although he had been unable to take active part in ringing for some years he always kept in touch with events, and his life in recent times was considerably brighter when "The Ringing World" came or he could go out and listen to the bells. During a long and painful illness his faith never wavered and at the end he spoke of the joy of "going to meet some of his old friends."

It was fortunate for him that during his long illness his dear Sally cared for him in the comfort of his home. To her and the family we extend our sympathy.

The funeral service was at Holy Trinity Church, Southall, and later handbells were rung over his grave by W. G. Wilson, T. J. Lock, F. W. Goodfellow and W. H. Coles.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Lewisham District

The choice of St. Mary's, Woolwich, for a summer meeting was perhaps not ideal, but nevertheless nearly 40 ringers presented themselves at this church, now shared with the Presbyterians.

The lively Rector, the Rev. Nicholas Stacey, conducted the service, with the assistance of a visiting lady ringer from Lancashire at the pianoforte. Instead of an address, the Rector explained the various changes made to the building in recent years and then gave the assembly a conducted tour.

Following tea in the "coffee house" (formerly the north gallery), the company transferred to the south gallery lounge for the meeting, with Mr. E. A. Barnett in a very comfortable armchair. The business was transacted in nearly record time, Mr. H. E. Audsley providing an interesting reminiscence of an even briefer wartime meeting with five members present. Ringing during the day ranged from Grandsire Triples to Spliced Surprise Major.

Next meeting (annual): Crayford, October 28th (subject to permission). I. H. O.

OKEFORD FITZPAINE, DORSET.—On July 31st, 1,440 Plain Bob Minor: B. Ridout 1, F. Hillier 2, T. Bleathman 3, R. Ridout 4, B. Ridout 5, J. G. Rose (cond.) 6. Rung half-muffled in memory of Sydney Goddard, former ringer at this church.

CRICKETING RINGERS

"TANFIELD" 1967

THIS year's cricket-cum-ringing meeting was held on Saturday, July 15th, and it provided the keenest cricket of the revived series with an anti-climax to boot. Despite some doubts beforehand created by late advertising and the deluge of the day previous, a crowd of over 50 enthusiasts assembled at Okey's playing field near Stanley with ideal conditions prevailing. The president of the Durham and Newcastle Association, Mr. W. Tyson, was already there waiting to provide a welcome and to select his XI to oppose the hosts from the Western District.

To allow for a return to Tanfield for tea at 5 p.m., it was agreed to play the match on a time limit basis of 45 minutes each side, and as the nearby clock of Stanley Parish Church struck 3 o'clock the umpires, Bill Tyson and Tom Cooke, took up their positions, while Ann Whalley, of Lanchester, with sharpened pencil at the ready, prepared to record the scoring.

Winning the toss, the president had elected to bat first, and the innings was opened by Kenneth Arthur and David Cox to the bowling of Alan Walker and Duncan Davis. Runs came slowly and wickets fell cheaply, however, until Tom Sewell and young Christopher Rock came together and they scored freely to play out time with the score at 52 for six wickets.

Opening the innings for the home side were Jim Crowther and Duncan Davis, a redoubtable pair from Whickham, who faced the pace bowling of the equally formidable David Cox and Bill Maughan. It wasn't a day for Lucky Jim, however, for he flashed at the wrong ball and was soon bowled. The batting stiffened after this and the scoring proceeded steadily to the point where 15 runs were needed with 15 minutes to go. Phil Tocock was now brought on to bowl and with some wily deliveries this officer soon caused panic in the ranks, so that when the last over was announced the Western XI were still three runs short of their target. Then some do or die mighty swipes by Alan Walker eventually brought about the required result and victory was acclaimed again by the holders.

But this was not the end of the matter for on examining the score book it was discovered that at least two sixes had been marked down for the home side when, according to the umpires, none had been scored, despite extravagant claims by exuberant supporters at the time. Dux femina facti? With the result in doubt and no time left for a play-off, it was decided to record the match as "no contest" and to allow the "ashes" to remain buried until next year, when strict M.C.C. rules would be enforced!

Back at Tanfield we were greeted by the Vicar, the Rev. A. J. G. Ellery, and a party of lady helpers at the Vicarage, where a sumptuous tea was laid out for us. Hearty votes of thanks were accorded the Vicar, Mr. K. W. Cheeseman, C.C. and B.W.* and all others who had helped in the arrangements for the day. Evensong in St Margaret's Church then followed, with ringers helping to augment a robed choir and the Ringing Master reading the lesson In his address, the Vicar preached on the problem of trying to achieve holiness in this modern secular world. Ringing on the recently rehung octave completed the official programme, and visitors enjoyed the harmony and harmonics of the tower until a late hour.

SURREY ASSOCIATION HAVE RECOUNT

On July 22nd various members of the Surrey Association took time off from ringing to indulge in a game of "cricket" in Beddington Park with a team of officers captained by the Master, Frank Darby, challenging The Rest, captained by Jeremy Pratt. The Rest won the toss and the Officers were put in to bat in front of a rather sparse crowd consisting mainly of wives and young children.

At 17 for 7 wickets the Officers seemed to be in trouble, with the quality of the bowling being exceeded only by the amount of energy expended in Bill Shanks' marathon run-up. However, an eighth wicket stand of 30 runs between Alison Mann and Graham Clarke helped to steer the Officers to a final total of 52, with Alison scoring a fine undefeated 25 against the statutory underarm bowling for ladies.

The Officers then took the field and at the end of the first over seemed to be very much on top, with The Rest two wickets down for no runs. Strong batting by the third and fourth wickets enabled the score to rise rapidly, until with only two runs needed for victory Jeremy Pratt was caught and bowled by Nigel Thomson after scoring 37 runs. After two more wickets had fallen without any increase in the score the tension began to rise, but it was not long before Ken Newman and Bill Shanks ran the winning bye.

After a recount, The Rest were adjudged the winners by four wickets, and the players and spectators returned to more normal activities with ringing at St. Mary's, Beddington, followed by the celebrating of both victory and defeat in the Plough. J. R. P. et al.

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

Mansfield District

The Mansfield District meeting at Cuckney on July 22nd was not too well attended but the bells were rarely silent between 3 and 9 p.m. Several of the younger and less experienced members made considerable progress in view of the ringing they had to do.

Thanks were accorded to the Rev. R. Hack for the use of the bells and conducting Evensong. Picnic teas were then the order of the day.

At the business meeting, support both for meetings and for the Bell Repair Fund was requested and discussion followed with an invitation for any fresh ideas on the subject. A re-introduction of collections was envisaged for the near future.

Next meeting: Selston, September 23rd.

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH

Portsmouth District

The second meeting of the year was held at St. Mary and All Saints', Droxford, on July 29th. The service was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. T. G. Strangeways, and an excellent tea was served by the ladies. New members elected were Mr. T. Gooch and Mrs. P. Roberts (Havant), Mr. R. Slatter (Droxford) and Miss D. Lanagan (Fareham).

It was decided to adopt a new format for the next meeting. This would be (subject to the incumbent's permission): Short service 6 p.m., ringing till 8.30, followed by the business meeting to be held in the church.

THREE-LEAD SPLICERS

Before we proceed with the arrangements for five-method 720's let us have a look at those for including six, as the arrangement of the former if often influenced by the addition of the latter.

In three-lead splicing two bells, known as "Fixed Bells," do the same work in different methods and at the three leads throughout the 720 where this occurs one is substituted for the other.

Some of these three-lead extra methods splice with the "group" methods and some with the "course" methods, also in some cases the fixed bells are coursing and in others they are not. Both these factors, as will be seen, affect the arrangement of the group and course methods. Here is a table of three lead splicers suitable for our present purpose:

Fig 6a

Group or Course Method		3-lead Splice	Fixed Bells
Morning Star	(Course)	Disley Del.	4th & 5th
Braintree	(Course)	Humber Del.	3rd & 5th
Marple	(Course)	Taxal Del.	3rd & 5th
Knutsford	(Group)	Bourne Sur.	2nd & 6th
Skipton	(Group)	Hull Sur.	2nd & 6th
Old Oxford	(Group)	Elston Del.	2nd & 4th
Neasden	(Group)	Clarence Del	2nd & 4th
Castleton	(Course)	Bucknall Del.	3rd & 6th
Melandra	(Group)	Coldstream or Lincoln S.	2nd & 5th
Abbeyville	(Course)	Canterbury Del.	4th & 5th

The course splices Dover and Ely have no three-lead splice.

The "Oxford" Group (London Scholars, etc.), is the only one that has no three-lead splice either with the group or the course method. It will be seen that in the College Bob IV (St. Albans group) the course method Marple (Braintree) will three-lead splice with Taxal (Humber), whilst the group itself will three-lead splice with Elston (Clarence). Similarly, in the Beeston group the course method Castleton will three-lead splice with Bucknall, whilst the group itself will three-lead splice with Coldstream Surprise, Lincoln Surprise having the same rows in a lead as Coldstream. These facts have, of course, been made use of in multi-method splices.

In Fig. 7 we see the five "course" backworks that we have to learn, and below the first three the backworks that will three-lead splice with those immediately above. In each case the two "fixed" bells are picked out to show the identical work done by them in both methods. Seeing that the three leads are chosen in the 720 in which the fixed bells are in this position, this means that the two ringers concerned need not necessarily learn the new method. Ringing a method without having to learn it becomes more frequent as the number of methods increases.

In all three cases it is necessary to show the complete lead of both methods involved in the splice, as not only are the backworks but the leads also are different, the splice occupying the whole of the 24 rows. As pointed out previously, Lincoln Surprise has the same rows in a lead as Coldstream and may be substituted wherever necessary or desirable.

Seeing that the method changes when the treble is leading full, more alertness is required on the part of the ringers than hitherto, particularly those three not ringing the fixed bells, the latter, of course, having the same duties in both methods.

In order to ensure a smooth changeover there appear to be three ways to tackle the problem. The first is to memorise how each bell starts from rounds, and notice into which place one's bell falls on the backstroke of the treble's full lead when the change of method is called, then to start accordingly; the second is to memorise the individual duties at each changeover; and the third is to combine the two. Some Spliced Major ringers learn not only where individual bells start at the beginning of the lead but in what position they will be in at the end and so are prepared for the change of method whatever it may be. Personally I have never found this necessary in Minor ringing but each ringer will have to decide for himself.

Turning to the arrangement of methods in an extent, there are several points deserving attention. If two methods, A and B, will course splice with each other, it matters not whether we splice A into B or B into A. If, however, we intend introducing an extra method, C, by three-lead splicing, there are several factors to bear in mind.

(a) Seeing that a symmetrical three-part 720 is easier to ring or conduct than an asymmetrical one there is no point in having the latter if we can achieve the same results by the former.

(b) In a symmetrical three-part usually the 5th and 6th perform the same set of duties in each part; it is, therefore, customary to use these as fixed bells so ensuring the odd method occurs at the same position in each part.

(c) The three-lead splice will fit either into the group or into the course methods (see Fig 6a). The order in which the group or course methods are arranged will then depend upon whether the fixed bells are coursing or non-coursing. In some cases, in order to have a plain lead for the three-lead splice, it may be necessary to use the 5ths instead of the 6ths as observation.

SOUTH NORFOLK RINGERS' LONG DAY

Leaving Diss shortly after 7 a.m. and arriving back after midnight, such was South Norfolk's annual outing into Essex on July 15th.

The first of six towers visited was at Great Tey at 9.30 a.m., followed by Bocking, and lunch and a ring at Braintree.

During the afternoon Felsted was visited, and, on reaching Dunmow, half an hour was allowed for the ladies to do the "shopping," then tea, and ringing on the fine eight at the Parish Church. The last call was at Thaxted, where ringing finished at 8.45 p.m.

Before dispersing, Mr. Harry Fuller, Ringing Master for South Norfolk, and Mr. A. G. Harrison, of Diss, on behalf of all present, thanked Mr. William Flatt, of Harleston for once again arranging such a successful day in his usual efficient way. A. G. H.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

Dorchester Branch

The summer quarterly meeting held at Bere Regis was attended by 29 ringers from eight local towers and visitors from North Dorset, Wellington (Somerset) and Winchester Cathedral. A warm welcome was given by the Vicar (Rev. P. T. W. Tranter) who conducted the Guild service. Tea was served in the Drax Hall, followed by a short business meeting at which two new ringing members were elected from Charminster. Subject to confirmation, Branch practices will be held at Dorchester St. Peter's (August 12th), Piddlehinton (August 26th), Wyke Regis (September 9th), Piddletrenthide (September 23rd) and Fordington St. George's (October 21st).

Next quarterly meeting: Litton Cheney, October (provisional).

TOURS AND OUTINGS

SUSSEX UNIVERSITY TOUR AROUND BRISTOL

The first summer tour of the Sussex University Guild took place between July 21st and 28th and was centred on Bristol. With the help of the Bristol University ringers we obtained excellent "digs" in Clifton. After joining the practice at Henbury on Friday night we then rang at eight local towers on the Saturday, starting at Clifton and Kingsdown, with its lofty tenor box. Following the evening meal, we ventured out to Knowle, where the recent handiwork of some learners under the "guidance" of an ex-Brighton ringer made ringing a little more interesting with two stays missing. By this time the rain had set in, so we adjourned in search of rough cider.

Sunday service ringing started at St. Ambrose's, where two of our members were "borrowed" for an afternoon peal attempt, then on to SS. Philip and Jacob's (another good eight). Two of the week's best rings followed—the eight at the Cathedral and the glorious twelve at St. Mary Redcliffe.

The next day ringing started at Keynsham and we had difficulty in obtaining good striking, even using the renowned "infra-draw method," though a course of Yorkshire was quite respectable. On to St. Michael's, Bath (the bells tapped round very pleasantly), lunch, and Batheaston, recently featured on "The Ringing World" cover. We rang our first course of Bristol of the week, some Stedman with our hosts, and Duffield, which, like the Bristol, was the first on the bells. The rest of the day was uneventful except for the Master "tenoring" up in peal at Bathampton. In the evening we had a conducted tour round the new £1,000,000 University Union building, and admired the heated swimming pool and long bar.

A trip over the Severn Bridge on Tuesday to Caldicot, the easy-going 12 at Newport, Caerleon, where, having been told to ring the bells fast, we did so, and Grandsire Major disappeared down the hole in the middle. We slowed down at Chepstow and rang some good Stedman, Erin and Spliced Royal on this tuneful ten.

Wednesday was notable for the fine Bilby and Taylor eight at Portishead with a good course of Bristol, and afterwards we accepted the Rev. Roger O. Fry's invitation to coffee on the Rectory lawn. Then good bells at Kingston-Seymour and Yatton and the weighty challenge of Congresbury. The evening's celebration of Ray Talbot's 21st birthday will not be forgotten by some for a long time. The last full day was spent in North Somerset, where the tower at Dundry, the Bilby six at Chew Stoke, which are rung only a few hundred yards from the site of the foundry, and the fine ring at Long Ashton stick in the mind. M. S. L.

MARKSBURY'S YOUNG BAND'S FIRST OUTING

The young band at St. Peter's, Marksbury, whose story appeared in our last issue, had their first outing on July 22nd and were joined by colleagues from Dunkerton.

The first tower visited was Holy Trinity, Nailsea, and a special note was made of the octagonal stone pulpit projecting from the wall. The band's striking at Tickenham was praised by parishioners. A good ring was enjoyed on the five at Clevedon, as was the tea at the appropriately named cafe "The Towers."

The majestic tone of Yatton's octave (tenor 21 cwt.) gave pleasure, and finally on the way home the six in the quaint village of Kingston Seymour rang out merrily. Marksbury was reached at 9.15 p.m.

Our thanks are due to Mr. H. J. Coombs, tower master, and Miss Margaret Jones for organising the trip. A. C.

ALVESTON BELLRINGERS' TOUR

Alveston have just lost a valuable ringer in Miss Pamela Sturdy, who for the past five years has been a teacher at Thornbury Grammar School. Miss Sturdy will be greatly missed not only in the Alveston tower, where she has helped to teach a large number of young ringers, but also in the Thornbury tower, where she was a regular visitor.

As a grand finale to her stay in the area she, very capably, organised a ringing tour in Wiltshire on July 22nd. The coach left Thornbury at 10.45 a.m. and picked up many ringers en route to the first tower, at Marshfield. Here we found the ropes very long, which made things tricky for the novices. However, a good touch of Stedman was rung before leaving for Colerne. During the first touch here (Plain Bob Major) the fourth rope broke; it was soon replaced and ringing resumed.

Lunch was taken on the coach before we got to Chirton. Ringing round the font here we were joined by the Rev. and Mrs. P. Wooster, from Chippenham, who stayed with us for the rest of the day. Was it pure coincidence that the sun went in after our first attempt to ring Killamarsh? Further to this our attempts with the same method at Enford brought torrential rain! However, we finished up with a good course of Cambridge Minor, which did justice to these grand bells.

Following a good tea at the Antrobus Arms Hotel, Amesbury, Miss Sturdy was presented with a travelling clock in appreciation of all the help she has given to Alveston and Thornbury towers. We wish her well on her long visit to Canada and we hope that she will be able to come back to us on her return to this country.

Whether it was the effect of a good tea or the weight of the bells we did not ring well at Amesbury. After a short stop at Stonehenge and nearly calling at the wrong tower we arrived at Shrewton (6). Once again Killamarsh was attempted and this time we nearly made it.

Our final tower was St. John's, Devizes. The eight bells were voted to be the best of the day. Our efforts here did not do justice to the bells although three leads of Kent went well. The final lower made up for the ringing here and it was encouraging to see one of our young ringers making such a good job of it.

A tired party arrived home at about 10.45 p.m. after 12 hours of an extremely enjoyable tour. Most of our thanks go to Miss Sturdy but we should also like to thank all local incumbents and tower captains.

THE LADIES' GUILD

The quarterly meeting of the Devon Branch was held at Newton St. Cyres. Unfortunately the Vicar (the Rev. J. G. M. Scott) was on holiday. Despite a small attendance some good ringing took place on the eight bells under the supervision of Mrs. G. E. Retter (Ringing Master). Methods rung were Grandsire Doubles and Triples. Stedman Triples, Plain Bob Major and Minor and call changes.

An excellent tea was arranged at the Crown and Sceptre Inn, followed by a business meeting presided over by Mrs. H. Boobier. Mrs. P. Pavey and Mrs. Retter reported on the annual meeting of the Ladies' Guild at Lincoln.

Next meeting: Stoke Damerel, Plymouth, in November. A. E. R.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. B. Stedman Payne conducted five peals during his peal week in Leicestershire.

The peal at Cromhall (page 539) was Derek R. Livsey's first in two methods, not his first "inside," as printed.

Another record for Lancashire. Most methods in an "all the work" peal of Spliced Surprise Royal (8) at Preston, conducted by Neil Bennett.

The model of Yeovil tower with six bells fetched £300 at the auction of Knight, Frank and Rutley on August 4th.

Mr. Martin Clark, a ringer at Bagshot, Surrey, where his father, Mr. A. E. Clark, is tower captain, has entered Wells Theological College. He graduated B.A. at Durham University.

The first peal has been rung on Tollesbury, Essex, bells since augmentation to eight.

Hyde, Cheshire, is losing two good ringers in Margaret and John Booth. Their new home will be at Luton.

The peal of the University of Bristol Society of Change ringers, in our issue of August 11th, was Grandsire Cinques, and not Caters, as published.

Mr. W. Stote conducted a quarter of Double Norwich Court Bob Major at Allesley on August 6th to commemorate his silver wedding. Congratulations.

Will those submitting quarter peals write peals at different towers on separate sheets of paper, and never on the back. Can we remind correspondents that there is a uniform style?

TREASURER OF YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION MARRIED

The marriage of Mr. Christopher Moxon to Miss Christine Saville at St. Mary's Church, Westerham, Kent, on July 29th, was a very happy occasion. The octave at St. Mary's was rung after the wedding by the local band together with friends of the happy couple from Yorkshire.

Christopher, who is treasurer of both the Yorkshire Association and the Barnsley and District Association, taught his bride to ring at Cawthorne before she moved to Kent three years ago. Christine was trained to be a teacher at Neville's Cross College, Durham, and has been teaching at Limpsfield Primary School since last September.

Mr. and Mrs. Moxon are making their home near Penistone.

A quarter peal to mark the event was rung at Cawthorne on the day, and a peal at Kirk Deighton on the Friday afterwards.

FOURTH ANNIVERSARY BOB MAJOR EXTENT

On the fourth anniversary of the "coming home" of the extent of Bob Major at Loughborough it is pleasing to see that John A. Acres, one of the umpires, was suitably commemorating the achievement with a quarter peal of Major on handbells at Chigwell, Essex.

Although unable to ring tower bells, due to an infirmity, John still retains a very lively interest in ringing and enjoys a session with handbells.

It was his first "long" length for nearly a year and enabled three local ringers to score their first peal of Major "in hand."

QUEEN'S GUIDE HONOURED

In honour of Anne Carney, a member of St. Margaret's, Lowestoft, band, gaining her Queen's Guide award, a peal of Minor in seven methods was rung at Ranworth on July 16th. There was a previous attempt with Anne herself ringing at Lowestoft earlier in the week, but this came to an untimely end after two and a half hours' good ringing because of a certain lack of suspension in one of the ringer's trousers!

MODERN GLOSSARY WANTED

A reader writes that it must be many years now since any efforts were made to collect a dictionary or glossary for ringers. The C.C. Glossary is dated about 1904, and there was almost a word for word repetition in Morris's "History and Art," which is now so scarce that very few people can have a copy easily to hand in tower or home.

Our correspondent asks if anyone would be prepared to co-operate on a job like this and not just repeat the previous errors.

Another question she asks: "Why is the sally called the fillet in Cornwall?" The change in name is very marked; there must be other similar regional expressions that would be worth while recording. "Sets Light" and "Sets Tender" are another couple of idioms met in one area and not in another.

WORCESTER'S ANCIENT BELLS RING AGAIN

The quarter peal at St. Swithun's Church, Worcester, marks the first service ringing on these bells since early in 1965. In that year a renovation of the tower was initiated and the erection of scaffolding made the ringing of the bells inadvisable. A series of unfortunate delays prevented the completion of the rebuilding of the tower parapet until the spring of this year, and time was allowed for the stonework to settle.

While the bells were silent, a group of boys from the King's School Society of Ringers, under the guidance of Mr. P. Cattermole, performed repairs to the wheels, rehung the treble on new cannon straps which had been made by Mr. D. Beacham, creosoted the frame and removed over a ton of rubbish from the belfry. A thorough investigation of the tower was undertaken by the Advisory Committee of the Worcestershire Association, who recommended that the bells should only be rung for short periods as the supporting beams of the frame were found to be weak in places.

The ring of six bells is unique: all of them were cast within the city of Worcester. The third, fourth and fifth are mediæval, cast by a successful yet unknown founder c. 1400. The three remaining bells were added by John Martin in 1654. Their aggregate age is thus greater than any other six in the country.

ROSTOV CHIMES

Mr. John Illingworth, of Westhoughton Parish Church Ringers, Lancashire, sends us a copy of the "Moscow News," which gives an account of the Rostov Chimes. These consist of 13 bells in the bell tower of the Rostov Cathedral of Assumption. The deep-sounding "Sysol," which was cast in 1698, weighs about 32 tons and can produce bottom "C." Two others, the "Polie lei" (16 tons) and "Lebed" (8 tons), cast in 1682–1683, produce bottom "E" and "G." The record made of Rostov Chimes in 1963 is a best seller in U.S.S.R. It is claimed that the bells can be heard 20 kilometres away. There are five ringers and two men man "Sysol."

HE KNOWS HAMPSHIRE TOWERS

Mr. Fred R. Tonge, popular captain at Longparish, has fulfilled an ambition extending over 45 years, by ringing in all Hampshire ringable towers. The last to be captured was the six at Old Alresford.

His list includes the two eights at Dibden and Holy Rood, Southampton, which were both bombed during the war and not replaced; the six at St Maurice's, Winchester, transferred to Bitterne Park, Southampton; the five at Wherwell and the six at Liss, now unringable; and the six at Chawton, now unobtainable.

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

The small attendance at recent meetings of the Farnham District was commented upon at Bagshot on August 5th, when only five towers were represented. It is to be discussed at the annual general meeting.

Bagshot ringers provided an excellent free tea, the Vicar (the Rev. Guy Armstrong) conducted the service and Mr. T. Page was in the chair for the business meeting.

TUITION TEASERS No. 7

THE STRAIGHT-DOWN PULL

Q. In "Tuition Teasers" No. 4 you referred to the "straight-down" (vertical) pull. Although constantly being corrected on this point of bell-handling, some pupils still continue with their badly aligned pull-strokes, chiefly outward away from the body. Is there any direct way of overcoming this fault?—(Anon.)

A. Surprisingly, this fault is sometimes found in the bell-handling of even some experienced ringers. Nevertheless it can, and should, be corrected in the early learning stages. A useful means of correction is the "Hand-ring" exercise, in which the hands are guided up and down along a vertical line, as follows: Take the dummy rope's end as used in teaching bell-handling, and pass a bell rope through its "loop," as we shall call it. Then tie up the bell rope so that it hangs just clear of the floor, but with the knot below the point of lowest hand-reach; i.e. so that the rope is clear from the sally down to that point. Now take stance correctly at the rope (see "Tuition Teaser" No. 2) and, holding the "loop" in the two hands, just as they hold a rope's end, move the hands downwards to the fullest extent. If the stance is correct, with hands some four inches to six inches in front of the legs, the vertical hang of the bell rope will remain undisturbed. Now explain to the learner that the rope must remain so, while the hands move the "loop" up and down to the fullest extent. At each of these limits—upper and lower—the arms (straight) will form, at the hands, an angle of about 30 degrees with the bell rope.

At first the movements will be very slow, joints at the wrists, elbows and shoulders all coming into play to keep the hands moving dead vertically, as indicated by the freely-hanging vertical bell rope. The pupil must "get the feel" of this hand movement with all joints flexing, and must watch for and check any disturbance of the hanging rope. When this is achieved the movement must be speeded up to rapid rising and falling; in fact up to the speed of rope movement of a bell being rung, and still with no disturbance of the hanging rope.

If a dummy rope's end ("loop") is not available, the hands themselves can be used. Place the finger-tips together on the far side of the rope and the thumb-tips together on the near side of the rope, and thus form a "ring" to function instead of the rope "loop."

NODDY STRIKES AGAIN

Though some of us may think it odd,
The recent letter from P. C. Plodd
Uncovers yet another hoax
Too terrible for decent folks.
But that's not the reason why I write,
A rumour must be put to flight.
Some speculation's been aroused
Of where the lightest ring is housed,
Why? Surely it's in Noddy's hat.
About the note—oh, that's E flat.

UPCHURCH'S NEW BAND JOIN K.C.A.

Over 70 members and friends attended the Rochester District meeting at Upchurch on July 15th. For the past seven years the bells have been silent through restoration work and great credit is due to the local ringers who have redecorated the ringing chamber and provided a set of new ropes (which did not help the younger members). The Vicar (the Rev. W. McN. Bradshaw) conducted the ringers' service. Tea, provided by local ringers and friends, was served in the Village Hall.

At the business meeting, with the Vicar in the chair, eleven new members were elected to the Kent County Association, including the newly-formed Upchurch band under their captain, Miss J. Lacey. They were warmly welcomed into the Association.

The votes of thanks included a special one to Miss Joan Hayward, who in view of her pending departure to the West of England has resigned the office of District Ringing Master. She has been succeeded by Mr. C. T. Osenton, of Halling.

MEDIEVAL ITALY AND THE USES OF BELLS

"CAMPANILISMO" was a common fault in Italy in the Middle Ages, if fault it can be called. Originating from the word "campanile", it meant, not the belfrymanship of which we hear so much today, but a civic pride in one's native town and its bells; a cross, in practice, between a feeling similar to the traditional definition of a Cockney, as "being born within the sound of Bow Bells," and a hostility to those who were not.

But, why were the bells so important to the community? The reason is that they acted as a signal to all within earshot that something of importance was about to take place. In an age in which there was no standard time for people to keep, it was essential that some means of informing the population of times of religious services or civic events be provided. This the bells could do.

The use of bells in these days for secular purposes was often more frequent than for religious activities—perhaps a thought for those who today, in differentiating between religious and secular uses of bells, condemn the latter. The extent of the use of bells can be traced through the study of chronicles and legal documents of the period, and the quotations given below, translated from Latin, illustrate the point.

Pride in a city's bells was very great; they were often cast to celebrate some momentous occasion, in the same way that a special stone or monument would be erected today. Thus, in 1250 in Florence, after a Revolution in which an oligarchy was overthrown, and a popular system established, we read, "And they had a bell made, which the Capitano kept in the Lion's Tower." (The Capitano del Popolo was the elected leader of the Popular party.)

In 1260, during a war between Florence and Siena, the Florentines laid siege to Siena and captured the convent of Santa Petronella, just outside the city walls. "And there they brought them to a tower which could be seen from the city, wherein they kept their bell; and in contempt for the Sienese, and as a record of their victory, they filled it with earth and planted an olive tree in it." How often has one heard the expression that a particular ring of bells "are pots." This bell certainly was!

In the same war in 1260 between Florence and Siena, before the bell mentioned above had been captured, the campaigning season started in the May. "And when the host was to be assembled, a month before the time they were to set forth, a bell was hung upon the arch of the Por Santa Maria, which was at the head of the Mercato Nuovo, and was there rung by day and by night without ceasing. (How many complaints would that arouse today?) And this they did in their pride, to give opportunity to the enemy against whom the host should go forth to prepare themselves.

'And some called it 'Martinella,' and some the 'Asses Bell.' And when the Florentine host went forth they took down the bell from the arch and put it into a wooden tower upon a cart, and its sound guided the host."

The result of this great display and gentlemanly conduct was the capture of the Sienese bell, as explained above, but not the capture of Siena. The Sienese had taken the hint. As a result, the Florentine army had to return home for a couple of months to see to their crops and business activities. However, the war was by no means over for that year. July passed peacefully enough, but in August it was decided to attack Siena again and this time to capture the city.

"And the said people being assembled in Florence, the host set forth at the end of August, and for pomp and display they led out the carroccio (this was a huge red and white chariot, useless for warefare, but of great propaganda value) and a bell which they called 'Martinella' in a cart with a wooden tower on wheels."

However, this time the Florentines were unsuccessful, and suffered a great defeat, which forced them to flee from the walls of Siena in a great hurry, leaving 2,500 casualties and 1,500 captives, and "there was left the carroccio and the bell called 'Martinella,' with an untold amount of booty of the baggage pertaining to the Florentines and their allies." The loss of "Martinella" was a cause of greater distress in Florence than that of the dead, wounded and captured. There are other references to the bell being used to give an alarm, as when the Emperor Henry VII. lay siege to Florence.

Bells entered into the civic life. A meeting of the City Council was invalid unless the bells had been rung long enough to enable members of the Council to reach the Town Hall. Consuls elected in Genoa in 1145 had to swear on oath: "We will not levy a land tax, except with the agreement of the members of the Council who have been called to the Council by the bell."

In Ferrara, in February, 1264, a legal document began: "The full assembly of each and every citizen of the City of Ferrara, having been called together in the accustomed manner by the sound of bells, to the piazza of the said city. . . ."

The ringing of the bells often aroused the mob, for they were not classified as citizens, as it was felt that farm workers and unskilled labourers were not of a sufficient quality to take part in political affairs. Indeed, often unscrupulous politicians would ensure that whenever the bells rang to call the Council members together, the mob would come too. They would in this way be able to overawe the Councillors into agreeing to a measure which they wanted passed. The following extract comes from the trial of a despot who had been overthrown after he and his father had ruled the city of Treviso for over thirty years. "Lord Rolandino de Fraca, a judge, saw him (Gerardo da Camino, the despot's father) ruling and putting in podestà in the city, having those who pleased him elected, and running the affairs in the city without the wish or knowledge of the members of the Council of 300 of the city of Treviso, or by having the bell of the Council of 300 rung several times and calling together the peasants, labourers and others who were not in the Council, he had whatever pleased him ordered, just as if it had passed the Council legally."

Thus it may be seen that in Medieval Italy bells were of great use for all sorts of purposes. They were needed for the day-to-day working of the cities. Every citizen was proud of his city's bells. How far is this true today? In short, bells were not a luxury, but an absolute necessity. Nevertheless, "Campanilismo" determined that that necessity should be as luxurious as possible.

SYLVIA'S SYNCOPATORS IN WALES

I'VE opened a deckchair, filled me pen, wiped the whiskers off a sticky fruitdrop found in my pocket and am thus prepared to write a missive about Sylvia's outing. Now, where's my A.A. book? It's always handy when writing these things.

We all met at midnight the other Friday at a B. and B. establishment in Chepstow, straight to bed (sheets of staggering colours) and up again after what felt like only ten minutes' sleep, to breakfast—grapefruiters one end, cornflakers the other.

We toddled down the road into Chepstow (population 6,041) on the River Wye, and found the tower door only after two laps of the churchyard. Phil, Sylvia's spouse, was in charge and put us through some dreadful Grandsire Caters. Real syncopated stuff it was. We tried some call changes. With local help, some quite respectable Stedman was tapped out, followed by Bob Major with Peter Sloman as conductor. He was also our driver. Meanwhile Joe Muggins, co-driver, nipped off for the Ford customs van (as Sylvia called it), specially hired for the occasion. Phil navigated us along many miles of road to the next tower, only four miles by crow. We passed the "Tippling Philosopher"! No, Sylvia, he wasn't on a bike.

Caldicot (population 1,770, 8 bells, E.C. Wed., the church being Dec. and Perp. with a 15th century porch). Ah yes, I remember it now, vividly, the lovely hum notes of the bells. I've heard it said that Simpson's Tuning was rediscovered. I reckon old Rudhall was the one who had it first. Ever rung at Pershore, The bells are grand. Rudhall made them two and a half centuries ago. Now, where was I? Yes, Caldicot, Peter's brother David in charge, Little Bob and a good lower.

BOGGLES!

Then on further to Magor (population 531, a Norman church with a two-storeyed porch, angel-carved arcades, an eight-sided font and six bells rung from among the choir stalls). The mind boggles at the thought of ringing here for a wedding. Old Mrs. Somebody signals "bride arrived in porch." Action stations. Lower bells, haul up ropes, release clock chimes, shut trap door, move choir stalls back and vanish. All in the time taken for the bridal party to walk from the two-storeyed porch to the chancel step, and it's only a little church!

I digress.

We were met by a charming and interesting gentleman, an octogenarian not looking a day over 65. A West Country rise was attempted, with a "stick along the railings" start, followed by fast close-lead call changes. The result could have made any West Country ringer utterly demented. Joe Muggins' turn to be in charge so we had some Grandfather's Doubles, up-country call changes, a plain course of Cambridge and enjoyed a good lower. Phil directed us into Newport (population thousands). GOLF. (Why the capital letters? (Bells don't even get little letters.) It only describes one church which I don't recognise. We rang at two. The first was All Saints' (eight bells). Pete in charge again, rise, stedders, rounds, Plain Blob, down, key back, and on to the Cathedral Church of St. Woolos.

The magnificent tone of these 12 bells was breathtaking. Someone noticed a recent "Ringing World" on the table, the one with the picture of St. Mary's, Prittlewell, on the front, home tower of several syncopators. Prittlewell bells have just been taken away to be seen to. If they sound only half as good as these in Newport they will be glorious.

With Mike Hallett as Master, we tried, and more or less achieved, Grandsire Cinques, first of Cinques for five of us and it rather sounded so. Anne Willard drew our attention to the interior of the Cathedral, with its modern and most tastefully decorated chancel.

BETHLEHEM MEMORY

We turned northeastwards towards Llangybi, "St. Kybi's Church," spelt Llangibby in English on Phil's map. Where is Monmouthshire, anyway? Wales or England? It's such a beautiful county that I'm surprised one or other doesn't claim it. Llangibby, not in the A.A. book, no garage, hotel, not even GOLF I suppose. We were warned that two of the eight bells were minus stays, but all stood all right after a rise reminiscent of the Christmas bells at Bethlehem. David conducted Plain Bob, and Peter led the lower.

Usk came next. We are informed about early closing day, etc., and that the church has a Norman tower, Dec. nave and Perp. porches and screen. Yes, I remember that screen. We found the tower to contain a lovely eight and a neat. new ringing chamber. Call changes, Stedman for Merrilyn Chambers (back home from Perth, W.A.), Little Grandsire and melons to follow, produced by Anne and dissected by Joe Muggins' penknife.

Sticky fingers, valley of the River Usk, and Tregaer (our first five) The Rural Dean, the Rev. Ivor Richards, joined in for some Stedman, we fired up some call changes and lowered more or less in peal. The Rev. Richards escorted us to Dingestowe (another five, Sylvia in charge). We managed not to syncopate a plain course of Orpheus. Sounds impressive, but it's really only whole pull Stedman's. Actually it does sound impressive, particularly on half-muffled bells.

The Vicar, the Rev. Robin Newman, invited us round to the Vicarage and filled us with splendid perry. He also led us along a labyrinth of little lanes into Monmouth. We are most grateful, sir.

Monmouth. It has everything; GOLF, two market days, a river, associations with Shakespeare. birthplace of King Henry V and the Hon. C. R. Rolls of Rolls-Royce. St. Mary's Church, we are told, retains a Decorated steeple, in which we rang "Janet's Surprise," a new idea based on Grandsire with a new type of single known only to Janet Hallett.

We discovered a Chinese restaurant in Monmouth, ordered a portion of something each, and passed them all clockwise round the table, a bit of each for all. Personally I found the toothpicks much too large, but had to admire the intricate carving on them.

BATH CHARGED!

Back to Chepstow. park the bus, quick jar, up the hill, and so to bed. Up early to join queue for bathroom; did you notice, by the way, the notice on the bath? "This bath is charged." Could it mean dynamite or volts? Imagine turning the tap on and filling the bath with volts. You'd have a shocking bath. Whose famous grandmother was it who never left a light socket without the bulb in in case the electricity oozed out and made a mess on the carpet? Sorry, I'm off again.

Breakfast of bacon and 24 fried eggs (she must have quite a frying pan), then over that new bridge—it has a toll gate—into Gloucestershire. We muscled in on service ringing at Frampton Cotterell and Thornbury, later going on to North Nibley to ring on the six.

Sunday's ringing had been arranged by, I think, David Sloman and George Eve, and it was the latter who also twisted his cousin's arm into having the 15 of us to dinner. It was enormous and delicious. The dinner I mean.

Last tower was Coaley (6). Phil led the rise, "Stand," and overthrew his bell. Analysis aloft disclosed tiny iron peg-type stays sticking out of the headstocks like little thumbs, with little iron sliders to bash against. But the little iron slider on the treble was a little bent, and the stay slipped gently over it at handstroke, and got all caught up with it at backstroke. We untangled the treble rope and began some call changes. Suddenly, without warning or fuss, Peter's bell let itself down. Right down in one stroke. More investigations upstairs, a chime hammer this time, then Stedman on the back five, and at "That's all" miles of rope cascaded down in front of Janet. We were up and down those stairs like a fiddler's elbow, and from the state we got into it seemed logical how the village got its name. We owe much gratitude to Sylvia and Philip Bedford for organising the tour; Phil, by the way, strummed his banjo between towers, playing with his left hand outside in the cold. Thanks also to George for arranging the digs and eats, and to the A.A. for their book.

"DONG."

OVERSEAS NEWS

RINGING IN THE STATES—By A. V. Sheppard

IN reply to Mr. Whipple (page 566), there are ten rings of bells in the U.S.A. Whilst only Groton, Kent and Washington are active, the fate of the remainder may be of interest.

Boston.— Church of the Advent. Here the front five are unringable. A donor in 1963 was willing to pay for the restoration of the octave if a band of ringers was forthcoming. At Christ Church the pre-1871 Rudhall eight are immobilised by the sprinkler pipe system. The Perkins Institute has a good eight, lacking ropes.

Charleston.—Broken wheels and stays prevent ringing, but the eight are chimed for service.

Chicago.—The ten in the Mitchell tower of the University were unused from 1913 to 1958. However, the carillon is used, and in 1965 the carillonneur had hopes of raising a band from the University students.

The state of six rings in Canada was given in the Overseas Committee's Report for 1966. In addition, the old eight at St. James', Vancouver, are chimed for service. They badly need rehanging. Mr. Whipple is not quite correct in the dedication of Vancouver's Cathedral, which is a Roman Catholic foundation. It is interesting to note that all but two of the ringers at this Cathedral of the Holy Rosary are Anglicans.

In February Rick Dirksen, of Washington, was actively fostering the formation of the North American Association, but this has been interrupted by military service. When he returns in September we can look forward to the revival Mr. Whipple speaks of.

CHARLBURY, OXON.—On Aug. 10th, 1,440 Plain Bob Minor: C. F. M. Colleu 1, A. W. Lloyd 2, G. J. Collett 3, B. W. Hall 4, W. J. Dixon 5, T. W. Timms (cond.) 6.

History of Surprise Peals on Handbells

By ROBERT B. SMITH

PART 1 (1901–1930)

CHANGE ringing on handbells and the ringing of handbell peals is becoming, or should I say has become, much more popular in the ringing fraternity than at any time in the past In particular, people are attempting to ring peals in more complex methods or splicing more methods together than they have previously done. The field of Surprise ringing on handbells, which has been viewed from afar by the vast majority of ringers, is now being tackled by more ringers every day, and for this reason it is worth having a look at performances which have "gone before."

The first peal of Surprise to be rung on handbells, Superlative Surprise Major, was rung on Wednesday, June 26th, 1901, by members of the College Youths. The peal was conducted by Harry R. Pasmore, who rang 3–4, the remaining members of the band being H. Pasmore 1–2, Charles T. P. Brice 5–6 and John W. Golding 7–8. The peal was reported in "The Bell News" together with the following information:—

"Umpires—Henry R. Newton and Herbert Langdon, who ticked off every lead-end as rung. Mr. Taffender also heard two hours of ringing outside the room. This is the first Surprise peal ever rung double-handed, and was rung at the 25th attempt, during which over 50,000 changes have been rung."

ADVENT OF PYE BROTHERS

Mr. Pasmore's band was not alone for long, as William Pye's band rang a peal of Superlative Surprise Major for the Essex Association on Monday, October 7th, 1901, and at first attempt. They had had a considerable amount of practice, however, before attempting the peal. William Pye's band continued to make progress and scored a peal of New Cambridge Surprise Major on Friday, March 28th, 1902; this was rung at the seventh attempt. More peals of these two methods continued; the total number of Surprise peals on handbells reached 11 by the end of 1903. It should be noted here that one peal of Superlative was rung strictly non-conducted and silent, this being achieved at the third attempt; a one-part composition was used.

In "The Bell News" of February 6th, 1904, we find the report of the first peal of London Surprise Major on handbells, by William Pye's band. They sat as follows: George R. Pye 1–2, William Pye 3–4, Ernest Pye 5–6, William Keeble 7–8. It is interesting to see that of the first 20 Surprise peals on handbells, 18 were rung by this band and they always rang the same "pairs" of bells.

Together with the peal report was the following information: "The band have practised at every opportunity for the last nine months, and every time they met the distance walked averaged five miles a man, in addition to railway travelling, as the distance between them is nine miles, making the total number of miles walked about 1,000."

In praise of the achievement of ringing London "in hand," William Willson wrote a poem which appeared in "The Bell News" of March 5th, 1904. The following year produced the first Surprise peal "in hand" by four brothers—the Pyes, of course. This was a peal of Superlative in which Sergeant Major Alfred Pye rang the tenors instead of William Keeble, the remainder of the band ringing their usual pairs. This peal was rung as a farewell to Alfred Pye, who was leaving Woolwich for Salisbury, and probably explains why the brothers did not ring any further handbell peals together.

BRISTOL—25 PRACTICES

The year 1907 saw the first peal of Bristol on handbells, rung by three Pyes and William Keeble. This was rung at the first attempt after 25 practices. In November, 1907, William Keeble moved away from Essex, and the footnote to a peal of Bristol "Rung as a farewell to the conductor, who is leaving the neighbourhood, much to the regret of his many ringing friends," does not really show how much he was to be missed. None of the Pyes rang a peal of Surprise on handbells for the next 16 years, which seems to indicate that either William Keeble was the driving force behind the band or that there were no more ringers in the area capable of ringing Surprise peals on handbells. The former assumption would appear to be the correct one, as we find William Keeble ringing Surprise peals on handbells less than two years after moving north to Bolsover in Derbyshire.

In the year 1909 the first Surprise peal on handbells by members of the Hertford Association appeared. They too rang Superlative for their first peal, which was to be the forerunner of many excellent performances by bands from that area. We find a break of ten years without a Surprise peal being rung on handbells here, however! No doubt the 1914–18 war explains the reason for no peals being rung for five years, but what happened to the years 1910–14 we will never really know.

After the 1914–18 war the first Surprise peal on handbells was London Surprise Major rung by four brothers—the Goftons, of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association. This fine performance was recorded in "The Ringing World" of Nov. 12th, 1920, with a suitable congratulatory paragraph by the editor. It is interesting to note that the composition of this peal was on the "in and fifths" plan, whereas William Pye's band had preferred to ring "full course" compositions. The Goftons rang half a dozen peals of London on handbells but never bothered with any other Surprise methods, which is an unusual fact! The footnote to their third peal of London, to which Richard A. Gofton rang 1–2, was: "This is the first peal of Major on handbells by the ringer of 1–2. He had only one practice and rang the peal, at second attempt, five days before he attained the age of 17."

CENTRAL COUNCIL TOPICS

Dear Sir,—So much of the commentary by Bernard Groves on page 569 is inaccurate that I wonder whether he is the 35th in succession of that remarkable plural customer revealed by the census and that when the relevant copies of "The Ringing World" reached him they were so tattered as to be unreadable.

Take paragraph 3. If "the floor" had wanted a new "Ringing World" Committee, the desire would have become apparent in the normal course of procedure. There was certainly a suggestion that the two lately created vacancies be filled, but it is equally certain that this was not frustrated by any ruling on a point of order. Furthermore, there was not a single nomination. (I venture to suggest that in the present climate it is doubtful whether there exists a brave soul prepared to be Aunt Sally.)

As regards the "False Information" motion: this was passed with one dissentient and not referred back.

Coming now to the proposal to amend the Decision relating to spliced, the question of the recognition of a certain peal as a peal was not in any way part of the issue. I share your correspondent's disappointment that the Council was unable to deal with the motion conclusively. I am of the opinion that so many members of the Council were unable to understand fully the technicalities that they were afraid of getting to grips with the subject. Future sponsors of motions of this kind might do well to give a full recital of the principles in "The Ringing World" beforehand.

I must also deal with Mr. Groves' plea for the use of amplifying equipment. Many people do not share his enthusiasm for this aid and with this in mind acoustics were carefully checked before the meeting and found to be excellent. It was decided to try without microphones, which were available, and the president invited complaints from anyone experiencing difficulty in hearing speakers. None were made during the meeting, or afterwards, as far as I am aware, but I did hear many expressions of pleasure about this and other aspects of the arrangements made so competently by the Southwell Diocesan Guild.

Sir, we have long been absolutely regaled with a flood of criticisms in your columns and the quality of it merely emphasises how easy it is to criticise. It would be refreshing to have something in this category which contains an original thought.—Yours sincerely,

VERNON BOTTOMLEY,
Secretary, The Central Council.

MR. J. OLDHAM RETIRING

Dear Sir,—It was extremely nice of "Pilgrim" to make such kind remarks with reference to myself in the recent account of the Pilgrims' tour of Leicestershire towers when they called at the Bell Foundry. May I assure him that I was delighted to see old friends I had not met for many years.

After 60 years with the Loughborough Foundry I am retiring from active participation in the firm and would like to take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation and thanks to the many kind friends I have made and who it has been my pleasure to know during this long period.—Yours sincerely,

J. OLDHAM.

Shepshed, Leics.

GRADING TESTS

Dear Sir,—Whilst agreeing with Elizabeth Barber that a system of tests for learners would be a good idea, I think that it would only work if towers had almost the same standard of ringing.

In this article the learner does not meet many problems until the Class B tests, but what about the learner who meets as many problems when he has only come to the Class D tests? If he comes from a tower like mine he will accomplish call changes in his own time, but when it comes to the rest of the Class D tests he finds that only about three ringers from his tower can raise and lower a bell and only one can ring anything other than call changes (and this is only plain hunting on the treble). He then has to find another tower whose practices he can attend and this is often at the end of an expensive bus journey. The ringer who lives in the country might find that it is impossible to reach these towers by bus and they are too far away to cycle to. Money is not the only problem for the learner who finds a tower which he can reach by bus spends almost as much time travelling to and from this tower as at the actual practice that he has no time left for his homework on that particular night.

This shows that it would take some learners considerable time to accomplish even the Class D test. If a learner was not allowed to be a member of his Association until he had finished this test, I would still not be a member of my Association. (Although I can conduct touches of Bob Doubles, I can't raise and lower a bell very well, and certainly not in peal, as in my tower the bells are always left up.)

I have been a member of my Association for over a year and have found that a considerable amount can be learned just by watching other people ring and in fact the tower at which I now practise was suggested by a member of my Association.—Yours faithfully,

I. C. M. S.

Birmingham.

A SQUARER DEAL FOR THE LEARNER

Dear Sir,—If Miss Barber puts her proposition and constructive suggestions to next year's Central Council meeting she can count on my support. This is one of the best ideas for encouraging learners that has been put forward in my time as a ringer.

No doubt it is not necessary in those few towers where everything is done properly. No doubt in the worst towers it will be ignored. But for the majority of the run of the mill towers it will be a boon. Youngsters today are used to organisation and system and incentive and I am sure the introduction of such a plan would stop the awful wastage of learners.

Congratulations, Elizabeth.—Yours sincerely,

WILLIAM PARROTT.

Epsom.

ST. DUNSTAN'S-IN-THE-WEST

Dear Sir,—For Mr. Hooton's information, I have come across 21 peals at St. Dunstan's-in-the-West. The first was rung by the College Youths in January, 1726/27, Double Bob Major, and the last I have recorded was Grandsire Triples on January 11th, 1879, by the Cumberlands.—Yours sincerely,

K. W. H. FELSTEAD.

Southampton.

RINGING AT YORKTOWN

Dear Sir,—I would like to answer the rather acid letter of Mr. Raymond Bath (page 552).

A touring Society, and I resent strongly the term a tower-grabbing Society, does far more good to the people concerned than umpteen District meetings!

Those attending the tour benefit in many ways:—

(1) Many ring methods that they would not be able to practise at home and their general standard of ringing improves, both from the method and the striking point of view.

(2) The holiday is not a static one and it is of great interest to see and visit new churches in lovely settings.

(3) The comradeship and friendship that exist on tour cannot be properly understood by a person unless he has participated.

Our stay at any tower does not exceed one hour's duration. This cannot be said of peals or District meetings. Thus our nuisance value at any particular tower cannot be so great.

Now to the awful din charge. Mr. Bath is no doubt a perfectionist and the ringing at Yorktown clockwork in its precision. The standard of ringing on any tour of course depends upon the ability of those taking part. Our ringing on this year's tour was average compared with previous tours. We did manage to ring up to London and Bristol and to ring them well. In quite a number of towers we were complimented on our ringing.

I do not know the Society concerned in the awful din, but can I give them a word of advice? If a course starts to become "rough," bring it to rounds at once and try again at another place. Sweeten the previous clatter by ringing something that you can ring well.

Finally, may I ask Mr. Bath to join us on next year's tour to see things from first hand.—Yours sincerely,

JOHN E. COOK.
Ringing Master,
Society of Rambling Ringers.

Lincoln.

102 METHOD/VARIATION PEAL WITHDRAWN

Dear Sir,—I regret having to withdraw the peal of Doubles in 102 methods/variations which was rung at Bronllys for the Hereford Diocesan Guild on July 20th. The fifth extent was false, although Sedgefield has been rung to previous "peals." I apologise to the band and to all who keep records of peals for my carelessness in not checking that extent before the peal. I also made a mistake in typing out the calls for Cwmdu, Cathedine and Tal-y-llyn. The call used was, in fact, an Antelope single.—Yours sincerely,

COLIN A. LEWIS.

Glasbury-on-Wye.

SUNDAY RINGING

Dear Sir,—Richard Inglis's remarks on the ringing of city bells make very sensible reading.

I should suggest that the traditional approach to ringing could be reviewed. We are told that Sunday service ringing is the prime function of the ringing. I question this assumption on the ground that everybody knows why church bells ring on Sundays. Also, ringing is just as important a part of worship in itself as is attending at service. Ringing can stand alone because in itself it is an expression of belief just as is attendance at services. Therefore need it matter when bells are rung as long as they are rung?—Yours faithfully,

J. ANTHONY ELLIS.

TOWN OF SILENT TOWERS:

The Story of the Bells of Sandwich

By D. L. CAWLEY

IN his monumental work on the Parish Churches of England, John Betjeman observed that "after the splendour of Canterbury Cathedral, the Churches of Kent, Rochester Cathedral itself included, are something of an anticlimax." True though this may be, there are nevertheless many extremely fine churches in the county; ringers will know of the glorious fifteenth century church in Maidstone; of the stately towers of Lydd and Tenterden; the unexpected majesty of, say, Cobham, Ivychurch or Minster; or the simple dignity of Brookland with its fantastic campanile, or Fairfield. In East Kent the inquirer might have to look far harder for buildings of this calibre, though they are not lacking. One town is particularly remarkable for its fine churches, the town of Sandwich overlooking Pegwell bay, some fifteen miles east of Canterbury. To ringers the name of Sandwich will probably mean little today; but the story of its churches and its bells is a proud one and it should not be allowed to go unremembered.

To many it may seem slightly paradoxical that there are today so many churches whose size and magnificence is out of proportion to the population which they were designed to serve; many parishes will know only too well what the burden of keeping these buildings in repair means. Sandwich is today a small sleepy town, whose air is decidedly Flemish. Rising high over the roofs of the old cottages are two great towers, those of the Churches of St. Peter and St. Clement, while a short distance away is the now towerless Church of St. Mary, whose central tower collapsed many years ago. The interior of these churches testifies to the vanished importance of Sandwich as the busiest port in East Kent, situated as it is on the estuary of the River Stour. Silt and railways have long since driven away the trade which once came by water, but the churches remain silent witnesses to this vanished prosperity.

The largest of all these churches, St. Clement's, is still the Parish Church of Sandwich. The earliest part is the great Norman central tower with its massive circular stair turret at the north-west. Above the church roof this tower exhibits several rows of blank arcading characterised by the severe semi-circular arches for which the Norman builders were so famous. Within the church this great tower opens by four splendid Norman arches on massive piers to a church which was largely rebuilt in the early fifteenth century; the nave has a simple angel roof, a great rarity in Kent. The visitor could spend hours in this church with its many objects of interest, not least the fine Miserere seats in the choir. The early records of the bells here are not prolific; but we do know that in 1508 a bequest was made 'to the reparation of the bells vii s viii d." How many bells there were at the time of this reparation is not known. At this time the tower was surmounted by a timber spire, but in 1664 this was taken down and the lead sold; in its place a wooden balustrade and a small "onion" cupola were erected, similar to coeval examples at nearby St. Peter's, Deal, Ringwould and Woodnesborough, all reflecting the local Flemish influence. By 1672 the churchwardens were dissatisfied with their bells, and they were taken down and sent to Christopher Hodson in London, where they were either cast into or exchanged for a new ring of five. In this same year they were returned and hung up in the church, the method of conveyance to Sandwich being by water; they must have been one of the last cargoes on the London run landed at the now declining port. These bells all bore the inscription: * Iohn * Hodson * Made * Me 1672 Iohn Wheeler (row of coins) Isaac * Pearce * Chvrch Wardens Christopher * Hodson. As the treble of this ring was 32 inches diameter, the tenor must have weighed about 18 cwt., which would have made the bells one of the heaviest fives in Kent.

There are several mentions of payments to the ringers, which get thinner as the years go on. One of the last was in 1837 when the bells were rung for the accession of "Alexandrina Victoria." By 1865 the tower was unsafe, and the wooden parapet and cupola were removed, and all the stonework and internal arrangements restored. To pay for the work of restoration it was decided to sell the four largest bells, and in 1866 they were removed from the tower. What became of them is an open question; they probably went to the pot. Thus the tower too weak to contain bells became the strong tower with no bells to ring in it. The treble was retained and rehung, but that was all As if this was not disgraceful enough, at a later date a chime of eight tubular abominations by Messrs. Latham Harrington and Co., of Coventry, was installed, and it is much to be regretted that these are still in working order. Now only the old treble remains from the old ring, hung dead. So thorough were the restorers that they even removed the old bell frame. We shall never know what these bells sounded like; but if they were at all worthy of the church in which they were hung, they must have been magnificent.

RULES FOR DOUBLES VARIATIONS WANTED

Dear Sir,—In recent years there has been much interest in multi-method peals. May I suggest that for peals of Triples, Minor and Doubles the length of such peals be restricted to 5,040 changes. It is obviously far easier to fit more methods into a peal which exceeds 5,040 than to fit them into a peal of that length. Naturally the suggested 5,040 restriction cannot be applied to peals on eight or more bells.

Since the publication of the excellent Doubles collection in "The Ringing World," for which the compilers and editor deserve our gratitude, multi-Doubles peals have increased in number. Unfortunately many of the variations given (even some of those stated to be true) are quite false, good examples being the St. Simon–St. Nicholas group when used with a London extreme. Perhaps it is timely to remind ringers of these variations that they should check them before using them to peals, and that it is not sufficient to check the lead-ends or lead-heads. The best way to check many of these variations is to note whether the call alters the coursing order; unless it does the variation must be false.

The Central Council has avoided much comment on Doubles variations but the time has perhaps come when we should formulate some rules for them. Might I suggest that for a Doubles variation to be acceptable it must be capable of giving 120 true changes. In addition, when variations are used in a peal all the different types of call that occur in that variation must be rung if it is to be claimed that that variation has been rung. For example, if a Grandsire bob and single are used to give a variation on Plain Bob, as in Dedworth, then both calls plus a plain lead of Plain Bob must be rung. This would exclude using a pivot call, half of which is deemed to give one variation and half another.

No doubt many ringers will, on first sight, think I am trying to impose too many restrictions on Doubles ringing, but unless some rules are introduced the field of Doubles will become meaningless.—Yours sincerely,

COLIN A. LEWIS.

Examples may perhaps clarify these points. Fig. 9 (i) gives a two-course part with College Exercise (group) and Morning Star (course) splice. There are actually in the 720 three courses of College Exercise with the tenors coursing, and three courses of Morning Star with the tenors apart (non-coursing), although the latter courses are broken apart by bobs. If five methods only were required, the positions of College Exercise and Morning Star could be exchanged, or simply an odd course of Morning Star popped in between, say, the 3rd and 4th bobs. To keep each part symmetrical whilst introducing Disley Delight it is necessary to have the Morning Star with the tenors non-coursing because Disley splices into Morning Star with fixed bells in 4ths and 5ths place, which is a non-coursing position. This is shown in (ii) The third 720 shows a similar arrangement with London Surprise lead-ends; the lead-heads of (iii) being identical with (ii).

Four 720's, each in six methods. Each part twice repeated.

In Fig. 10 we have four 720's in which a three-lead splice is introduced into the course method in the first two and into the group method in the last two. The second is virtually the 2nds place variation of the first and the fourth of the third. It will be noticed that the 5th is used as observation in the first 720 (standard calling: Out, In, Out), because if the 6th was used the first bob ("In") would follow the lead in which the tenors were fixed in 2nds and 5ths, so that a plain lead of the odd method, Humber, would never appear.

In the 720's (iii) and (iv) the position of the course and group methods are the reverse of those in (i) and (ii). This is because in the three-lead splice methods, Clarence and Elston, which splice with the group methods, the fixed bells are in a coursing position, i.e. 2nds and 4ths, therefore the group methods must be used in those courses where 5-6 are coursing, whereas in the two previous 720's similar conditions applied to the three-lead splice and the course method.

Arrangements similar to those in Fig. 9 and Fig. 10 can be made with the Knutsford, Skipton and Melandra groups, their course and three-lead splices, but as these involve no new techniques they are not given here.

[Historical note.—On February 9th, 1935, after gradually increasing the number of spliced methods in peals on previous occasions, the Cheshire band, conducted by John Worth, rang 42 methods in a peal at Disley. The seven 720's each contained six methods, spliced in the same manner as these we have just dealt with, and were arranged by A. G. Driver.]

OBITUARY

MR. W. E. ALLEN

With much regret we announce the passing on June 17th at his home of Mr. W. E. Allen, of Billingborough, Lincolnshire.

Ted, as he was widely known to his friends, was born at Billingborough 86 years ago and had lived there all his life. On leaving school he served his apprenticeship as a blacksmith. A craftsman at his trade, he carried on his own business in a thriving agricultural district; he also had an extensive cycle agency business.

Closely ilnked with St. Andrew's Church all his life, he learned to ring there over 60 years ago. He could always be relied upon as a regular Sunday service ringer and in his younger days was tower captain for many years.

At the funeral service on June 20th a well-atended congregation was present, including ringers from the District, the service being conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. P. B. Hearn, who paid tribute to Mr. Allen's life's work in Billingborough and to his loyal service to St. Andrew's Church. His remains were laid to rest close to the foot of the tower which he had served and loved so well. During the evening the eight bells were rung half-muffled to his memory. A quarter peal was attempted but unfortunately failed due to a shift course. Sympathy is extended to his widow, his three daughters and his son, Mr. Jack Allen, a keen campanologist.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN

The Ilchester Branch held its August practice meeting at Montacute—the home tower of the Branch hon. secretary, Mrs. M. Legget. The meeting also coincided with the first week of the incumbency of the new Vicar, the Rev. R. M. Bevan.

Ringing on this majestic heavy six (tenor 23 cwt.), housed in the somewhat notorious "swinging tower," was under the direction of the Ringing Master and included rounds, Bob Doubles, Grandsire, Plain Bob, Stedman, Kent Treble Bob, Cambridge and Double Oxford.

The ringing chamber was full to capacity and included visitors from over 15 towers.

The Branch is grateful to the Vicar and the tower captain, Mr. Gordon Rendell, for a very successful evening.

Next meeting: Quarterly, at St. James', Preston Plucknett, Yeovil, on September 2nd. 3-9 p.m.

For the Non-Ringer

John Hunt Explains the Basis of our Art

IF the word "bellringing"—or to give it the correct term, "campanology"—is mentioned to the layman in the street, the odds are quite high that he will immediately draw mental pictures of bent old men in a dark, dingy ringing room pulling ropes for all they are worth. This might not have been too far from the truth 100 years ago, but how wrong these thoughts would be today! Ringing church bells is very much a young person's pastime and there are an ever-increasing number of girls and women taking it up. Nowadays with modern methods of hanging bells on ball bearings, the amount of effort required to ring a bell, once the technique has been mastered, is very small.

HOURS OF PRACTICE

But don't think that bellringing is easy—because it certainly is not. It takes many hours of patient practice to be able to control several hundredweights of swinging metal, and to be able to understand and put into practice the many methods used for producing the different changes. Few people seem to realise that when a bell is rung it swings through a complete circle starting from the mouth upwards position. Bells are usually lowered to the mouth downwards position when a session or ringing comes to an end as a safety measure—fatal accidents have occurred when non-ringers decide to explore a bell-tower and disturb a bell in the "Up" position.

The main purposes of ringing bells are to call people to worship and to celebrate royal or national events. However, ringing does not stop at being a Sunday duty in one's own church. Part of the fascination of bellringing is to ring on other churches' bells—in fact most ringers keep records of all the towers they ring at—very much like collecting train numbers!

CHANGES

The least number of bells on which change ringing is practised is four, and the maximum 12. The most common number of bells in a ring is six or eight. When changes are rung, each bell rings once in every change, but the order in which the bells ring alters from change to change. On four bells the maximum changes possible are 24, and this number, of course, increases as the number of bells increases until when you reach 12 bells there are 479 million changes available— all different. To ring the complete range on 12 bells without stopping would take about 38 years to complete!

The weights of bells vary considerably, ranging from a few pounds up to 82 cwt.—the weight of the tenor bell at Liverpool Cathedral. There are heavier bells, e.g. Great George in the Bristol University tower, which is 9½ tons—but this is hung "dead" and is only struck by a pivoted clock hammer. The art is almost entirely a British one, as there are very few churches outside the British Isles with ringing bells. On the Continent the church bells are only swung through part of a circle, and they are sounded at random, rather than evenly and rhythmically as the true act entails. It is also true to say that the bells are restricted to the Church of England, as there are only a few Roman Catholic churches in England possessing bells. It is hoped, however, that a ring of bells will be installed in the new Clifton Cathedral when it is built.

BRISTOL BELLS

Bristol ringers are very proud to be able to boast that their city possesses more church bells than any other city in the world, per head of population. There are 24 churches with bells hung for ringing, though unfortunately the bells of All Saints' and St. Thomas', City, have not been sounded for several years due to the fabric of the tower and the bell frame.

DEVIZES RINGERS' WEEK IN CORNWALL

During the third week of July a party of ringers and their wives from the Devizes area made a week's ringing tour of Cornwall. Bed and breakfast accommodation was at Truro, and after visiting various towers for service ringing on Sunday, the ringing programme started in earnest the following day at St. Stephen-in-Brannell.

The itinerary consisted of visiting 21 towers in different areas daily, while others were visited on their practice nights, where call changes with the local bands were very much enjoyed. Every tower was reached on time, and in most instances the Vicars or a local resident were waiting to give us a real Cornish welcome. The last tower was at Towednack, where some of the party had to leave to make the long trek home through the holiday traffic. The whole programme was completed without a hitch or mishap. The end came too soon, but everyone had enjoyed a pleasant week made possible by the consent of the clergy and the invaluable advice of Mr. A. J Davidson, to whom we offer our sincere thanks. H. G.

The first peal of New Durham Surprise Major was rung on handbells on Tuesday, February 5th, 1963. at The Wayside, 150, Narborough Road South, Leicester, and was conducted by John M. Jelley

BELFRY GOSSIP

The peal at Nettlestead, Kent (page 575), was conducted by Harold Evans and it was his first as conductor. Congratulations!

Congratulations to Mr. Harry Churchill and his wife, Ethel, on their ruby wedding anniversary. Harry is tower captain at Trull, Taunton, and a quarter peal was rung there on August 2nd in honour of the occasion.

Mr. R. A. J. White is leaving the Department of Horticulture, Ohio State University, Columbus, for the Horticultural Research Centre, Levin, New Zealand. He was at one time with the Department of Agriculture at Auckland, New Zealand.

A case of rapid progress is reported from Harlow, Essex. Janice Flight (15) first handled a bell a week after Easter. On July 16th she rang her first quarter of Minor. "She is to be commended for both her striking and handling," writes the conductor (Mr. W. Aley).

Mr F E. Dukes has completed 25 years as secretary of the Irish Association. A congratulatory peal was rung by English ringers at Doneraile on July 30th.

Two members of the young Sunday service band at South Mymms—Corinna A. Smith and Graham Sillis—are congratulated on a very creditable first peal on August 12th. The conductor (Mr. G. Penney) is looking forward to the time when more of this young band score their first peal.

The three newcomers to the old Marston band of multi-methods Doubles ringing—Ann Hunter, Brian Denmark and Bob Stokes—all rang with tremendous assurance and aplomb, and well deserved to score the peal at Radlett, on August 10th, in ten methods. There were only two major trips, which occurred early on, and three minutes were clipped off the previous record time achieved on these very fast-going bells.

GRADUATES "SPLICED"

Mr. John A. Harrison and Miss Anne P. Scruby.

The wedding took place on July 8th in the Lady Chapel, Guildford Cathedral, between John A. Harrison, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Harrison, of Kirkby-in-Ashfield, Nottingham, and Anne P. Scruby, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. W. Scruby, of Mark Way, Godalming. The service was conducted by the Dean, the Rt. Rev. George Clarkson.

The bride was attended by her sisters, the Misses Jennifer and Diana Scruby. The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Mr. E. Andrew Harrison, Master of the Manchester University Guild, and the ushers were Martin J. Kirk, ringer at the Cathedral, and Stephen Darvill, of the Cambridge University Guild.

The couple are graduates of Cambridge, where they met and where the bride recently learned to ring as well as being a women's rowing Blue.

Several peals were attempted in their honour: Yorkshire S.M. at Cranleigh was successful, but Stedman Caters and Yorkshire, the latter including the bridegroom, best man and ushers, were not successful.

The Cathedral bells were rung before the ceremony and as the couple left for the reception at the Clavadel Hotel, Guildford.

"AROUND PACKWOOD" WEEK

Outstanding last year was the tour headed "Around Portishead." This year practically the same distinguished band reassembled and some 20 peals were scored "Around Packwood"—a territory that embraced Leicester, Birmingham, Walsall, Evesham and Stratford-on-Avon. The peals included four Cambridge Surprise Maximus, two Stedman Cinques, four Surprise Royal, nine Surprise Major and one Minor (50 methods).

Thirty-four ringers participated and the conducting was shared between eight conductors, viz.: D. John Hunt (5), Tudor P. Edwards (4½) Howard W. Egglestone (3), John H. Fielden (2), Peter Border (2), Kenneth J. Hesketh (1½). George J. Hemming (1) and Ian C. Maycock (1). Next year the same company hope to assemble in the Preston, Lancs, area.

A REVIVAL AT ST. NICHOLAS', KING'S LYNN

Nearly 20 years ago Messrs. E. H. Mastin and R. Harrop and others decided to find out if the bells at St. Nicholas', King's Lynn, were ringable. After oiling, and adjusting the ropes, they succeeded in getting the bells ringing again and for some time they were rung for special occasions and evening services.

This petered out mainly because it was thought the church would become redundant and for 15 years they had been silent.

An inquiry for the use of the bells was made for the forthcoming wedding of the daughter of a previous churchwarden.

Once again the same ringers, plus one enthusiastic young ringer, climbed into the bell chamber and were surprised to find everything in no worse condition than 20 years previously except for the addition of several hundredweights of pigeon manure.

After oiling and several adjustments the bells were rung to call changes on the Queen Mother's birthday. The following day the bells were rung before and after the wedding. Ringing included three courses of Bob Minor with the tenor covering, several courses of Grandsire Triples and three courses of Bob Major.

During the ringing the architect was present and was quite happy that ringing should continue and was prepared to do all he could to ensure that this time the bells continue ringing.

The frame itself is in excellent condition and, mainly, the fittings are in fair condition.

It is the opinion of Mr. E. H. Mastin that if these bells were put on new bearings King's Lynn would have a ringable eight for many years to come.

COME AND SEE!

"The East Anglian Daily Times" carried a most critical letter on bellringing from a Framsden reader in which he stated: "Bellringers are, I suppose, Christians and in the pursuit of their hobby they show as little consideration for their fellow men as do Christians in most matters. . . . Certainly after two or three hours' din made by these selfish people we wish them hanged by their own bell ropes."

Mr. G. W. Pipe, as Master of the Suffolk Guild, gave a most vigorous reply. "It is our belief that with so many of our rural arts and crafts fast disappearing this is something really worth preserving. To us, it is, one might say, an external witness of the Church's message and is a similar complement to our services as that of the organ to provide music within the church."

The letter concludes: "I would like to invite Mr. Salmon (the writer of the letter) and his family to accompany my wife and me to a typical Suffolk ringers' practice night to see just what goes on, what our art involves and the wonderful fellowship it provides. I'll guarantee now that in three months' time we shall have a staunch advocate for the ringing of church bells."

DUBLIN ACTIVITIES

We have received an appreciative note concerning Mr. N. V. Harding's services during his holiday in Ireland, when three quarter peals were scored. Ringing with him was Miss Hilary Thick, from East Grinstead, who is holidaying with her uncle, Mr. R. I. George, the new president of the St. Patrick's Cathedral Society.

TOYLAND NEWS

Dear Sir,—I read with interest that "Big Ears" is hoping to start a fund for the recasting and augmentation of Noddy's bell.

In my old age I find my immense wealth useless, and would therefore wish to donate 75 per cent. of the cost entailed, the other 25 per cent to be found by public subscription. This, however, is on the one condition that the new six will be available for peals at any time that a band may decide, even at 5.30 a.m. I will undertake the cost of sound control if this is found necessary. — Yours generously,

A TOYLAND BENEFACTOR.

NODDY'S PROTEST

Dear Sir,—I must protest at the unwarranted liberties taken with my report of a peal on Noddy's (borrowed) bell. Instead of congratulations for my initiative in ringing this unusual and irregular peal, my act has drawn vilification from all sides and indeed has caused me to flee from Toyland and to fear for safety of life and limb from all sides.

Might I make an appeal for recognition of the peal and a safe-keeping for the return of the cap and bell? After all, it seems that there is some corroboration for my previous statements, by letters from a mistakenly-informed Mr. Plodd and a slightly abusive "Big Ears."—Pseudonymously,

NODDY, IN EXILE.

P.S.—I have been forced to escape from my normal habitat and to hide in fear of my life, and in fear of showing myself in any ringing tower.

NEW DOUBLES RECORD

Mr. Colin A. Lewis has established a new record in the realm of multi-method Doubles ringing with a peal at Staunton-on-Wye in 142 methods/variations on August 10th. Thirty-six new names are added to the ever-growing list of methods/variations. To those interested in this type of ringing, and the number is growing, it is a very fine achievement.

THE RINGING WORLD

No. 2941. Vol. LXIII FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1967 9d.

THE GREAT ABBEY OF WYMONDHAM

THE nave of the great Abbey at Wymondham, Norfolk, was filled to overflowing for the hallowing of the new ring of ten bells on July 29th by the Bishop of Thetford. The address was given by Canon Gilbert Thurlow, president of the Central Council. The congregation included Mr. J. Nolan Golden, president of the Norwich Diocesan Association, and officers from the four branches of the Association.

After the service of dedication and during the ringing, in which a number of representative bands took part, some 150 ringers and friends were entertained to tea provided by the Wymondham ringers, their wives and helpers.

In his address, Canon Thurlow said the value of Christ's teaching and example about giving is nowhere better illustrated than on this day and in this place. Here stands this great and glorious building through the centuries, a demonstration profoundly moving in the hearts of all who come to it, of what is giving to those who give.

What a waste it all was, from the point of view of Judas Iscariot, who said money was wasted when spent on something lovely. William d'Albini, who in 1107 gave this land and began this building, could have farmed it and made money instead. William Plomer, who gave 6s. 8d. to the bell fund in 1535 and John Drye, who gave it 20s. in 1538, could easily have done the same.

Those who gave new bells here during the Commonwealth (of all strange periods) and other donors down to the Bailey brothers in 1903 who completed the eight, and the Wymondham and Attleborough Round Table and other generous donors who have completed the ten this year, could easily have done better with their money, from the world's point of view.

INHERIT GENERATIONS OF SERVICE

Those who gave up profitable work to become monks in the Abbey need not have done so. Those who during eight centuries have given a vast untold tale of wealth and service and skill and love to maintain this place need not have done so. But they have done so, and we inherit a tale of generations of service, of giving, of glad working together, beyond all reckoning. "Give and it shall be given you" has been and is today the inspiration leading to the existence of this place.

A place like this shows what happens when men serve with their money. But even finer is the giving of service. How well this has been done in the past here. Ringers through the years have given freely of their skill to bring the tower to life. Musicians in the choir and organists have done the same, so it is today. We have here the result of the dedication of the finest skills of the 20th century in the strengthening of the tower so that it is now far stronger than ever before. Our bellfounders have cast us far finer bells than we have ever had before. They are tuned and hung in a way which shows the 20th century can produce in all these respects far finer work than any previous period.

"THE FINE GOLDEN THREAD"

I prophesy that the joy of giving service will continue here in the future as in the past. Do not be discouraged by those who say the Church is falling, the masses are deserting it, God seems dumb, His worshippers desperate, His prophets disheartened. . . . So, in a world where that which Wymondham Abbey stands for is despised, there will continue, I believe, the spinning of the fine golden thread of God's purpose amid the murky surroundings of men's selfishness; God's message will penetrate through the bells, to friend and foe and indifferent alike, and to all who heed the message and give of their service there will be given them the joy of life lived as Our Lord desired, more abundantly.

Mr. T. E. Spight adds a footnote: "It was a pleasure to welcome and make way for a band representing the Whitechapel Bell Foundry—to them we say a special "thank you" —and again thanks, Bill and Trevor, for a job well done."

Towers Ringable and Unringable

Dear Sir,—Replying to the inquirer who is too bashful to disclose his identity, there can be no hard and fast rule as to when bells may be classed as unringable, for there will always be those ringers to whom the report that any particular bells are unringable presents a challenge—it may be that they wish to dispel the myth, if it is a myth, or they may wish to show off or simply to add to their tower total, and I must plead guilty to falling into the later category.

As to those towers which are shown in "Dove" as unringable, this means "unable to be rung." By this I do not mean "not allowed to be rung" but physically impossible to ring for such reasons as derelict framework or fittings, tie-rods passing through the wheels or other structural reasons.

If a ring of bells is in such a state that a few days' work is necessary to render it ringable, in my view it is unringable. A correspondent once wrote to me to say that a certain ring was not really unringable as it could be rung if new headstocks and wheels were fitted, which put me in mind of a story I once heard of the man who took a pair of boots to be repaired and, apologising to the cobbler, remarked that the soles were bad and the uppers pretty well gone, but the laces were quite good. By the same argument Coventry Cathedral bells are not unringable, they merely require new fittings and a new frame and, of course, a tower.

The object of describing bells as unringable is twofold. Firstly to save ringers from wasting their time in applying for permission to ring where the bells are not in a fit condition to be rung, and secondly to spare the clergy the annoyance of having to say "No" repeatedly—one such Vicar wrote to ask in effect could the same medium which told ringers he had a ring of bells also please say that they were unfit to ring, as he was becoming tired of receiving repeated applications.

I am aware that certain reported unringable bells have been rung after a fashion, indeed I have myself rung at certain towers where I had been given to understand that the bells could not be rung, and if I can be told of cases where "unringable" bells have been rung properly I shall be only too pleased to delete "unringable" in the next edition of "Dove." I am all for "debunking" accepted unringables wherever possible.

I would dearly like to add "Vicar unringable" in certain cases, but I am not sure how the Law of Libel would apply. Then there is the case recently reported to me where the Vicar has removed the ropes and turned the ringing room into an office, and the Wiltshire six-bell tower where, until the arrival of the present incumbent, meetings were held, but he decreed that the bells were unsafe, and when I asked his permission to ring he told me a cock and bull story about the tower not being insured.

I do not class either of these as unringable in the hope that some day the parsons may receive the call to a more fruitful part of the vineyard and when the respective parishes are rid of them the bells may well be rung once more.—Yours sincerely,

R. H. DOVE.

OBITUARY

MR. C. WOODARD

We regret to record the sudden death of Mr. Claude Woodard whilst on holiday with his son in Anglesey, North Wales. He had been a member of the St. Margaret's, Ipswich, band for the last 37 years and will be greatly missed by his many friends.

On the day of his funeral a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung to his memory by P. Whittell 1, K. Whittell 2, A. Munnings 3, C. Sedgley 4, P. May 5, E. Bloomfield (conductor) 6, J. Morley 7, J. Munnings 8.

STEEL BELLS OF BICKNOR

Dear Sir,—What an interesting omission from "Dove" the ring of five at Toller Whelme seems to be; whoever will ring the first peal there? These bells are somewhat unusual but they are by no means unique. I thought that some ringers might be interested to read of a similar experience we had at Bicknor, in Kent. Here is a very light set of four steel bells, of which I append a description, hung in a dilapidated and isolated church nowhere near a house. Here also is a 30ft. climb to the bell chamber, though there is a fixed ladder in position. The bells hang in a frame for five—they form Nos. 1, 2, 4 and 5 of such a ring, and they are hung with all steel fittings, even fabricated steel channel wheels.

This leads me to believe—and I am sure that the Hampshire experts would bear me out—that such bells were never intended to be rung in full circle. The Bicknor bells—described in Grayling's "Kent Churches" as a "quackery of steel bells," were cast for the 1862 exhibition, and were purchased after that extraordinary event for Bicknor Church.

Treble.—14⅞in. diameter. Inscribed 8322.
Third.—19¼in. Naylor Vickers and Co., Sheffield. 2665. Patent (Royal Arms).
Tenor.—20⅞in. Naylor Vickers and Co., Sheffield. 8145. Patent (Royal Arms).

Perhaps someone will one day produce a complete article on the history and productions of the Sheffield Bell Foundry, of whose products Cocks, the Buckinghamshire bell-historian said: "Let us hope that nothing short of the removal of their miserable remains from the towers will check the progress of disintegration," the latter referring to the fact that they were rusting away.

A similar set of bells existed at nearby Wormshill, consisting of two steel and two bronze bells. Three of these bells were sold in 1962, leaving only a single bronze bell, for chiming.—Yours sincerely,

Whitstable, Kent. DAVID L. CAWLEY.

The second church in Sandwich of which we shall treat is St. Mary's. Like its companions it also had a central tower, and from what is left of its original architecture it can be assumed that it too was Norman. The early records of these bells are most interesting. The earliest payments are of course for bell ropes, these being specially frequent between 1444 and 1582, but by far the most remarkable entry is a payment in 1464 for a chiming clock which was made in the nearby village of Wingham. At this time there was a ring of four bells known respectively as (tenor) Great bell; (3rd) Mary bell; (2nd) Little bell; (treble) Fourth bell. There was also a "wackerell" or Sanctus bell. In 1516 two clappers were purchased for the tenor, and the wheels were "reset." Presumably these were only half-wheels. One frequent payment at this time is for ringing the bells during thunderstorms; in 1517, for example, the princely sum of 1d. was paid "for bread and drink for the ringers on St. Lambard's day at night when it thundered"; the sexton came off even better—he got 1½d.! After the Reformation Sermons replaced Superstitions; and entries for tolling the "sermon" bell on the "Sabbaoth daye" are not uncommon. By 1639 there were only three bells left; perhaps "Mary" and certainly the "wackerell" had been disposed of for religious reasons. But the others still went by their old names for the "fourth" (which by the old backward notation is the treble) was reported as being cracked.

To remedy this, the wardens called in John Wilnar, of Borden, who made a report which still exists. In it he estimated £16 for recasting the "fourth" bell; but to recast the three remaining heavy bells into a lighter ring of five, taking the remaining metal to his own use, would be only £36. The churchwardens agreed to the latter course, and the ring of five was cast and installed in 1639 and 1640. The wardens paid Henry Wilnar, the founder's successor, the sum of only £32; and also £1 3s. 8d. for the installation of the chimes. Evidently the clock of 1464 was still ticking away merrily.

The period 1660-1670 was a troublesome one politically and otherwise. After the troubles of the Commonwealth, the churchwardens of Sandwich seem to have been slow in repairing their churches As we have seen, St. Clement's lost its spire in 1664; in 1662 St. Peter's tower was described as "cleft or splitt from the very toppe"; and in a terrific gale in 1663 the tower of St. Mary's collapsed into the body of the church. So much for the tower; the bells, however, were undamaged. As only the outer walls of the church were left the whole building was thrown under one gigantic roof; no attempt was made to rebuild either arcades (of which there are still remains) or tower. To pay for the rebuilding, the five bells were sold to the church of Elham, near Canterbury

As late as 1757 Mr. Fausset, the Kent antiquary, was able to note at Elham "5 heavy bells all made by John Wilnar in ye year 1659." Assuming that he misread 1659 for 1639, we may be fairly certain that these were the Sandwich bells. Only six years later they were recast and made up to eight (tenor 16 cwt.) by Lester and Pack, and these are the bells which ring out from Elham Church today. No attempt was made to replace the ring at St. Mary's; in 1718 a turret was built over the south porch, and a bell by Richard Phelps was installed. This cost £14 15s. 11d. No other bells have ever been added, and apart from the recasting of the bell in 1876 by Messrs. Warner there have been no alterations in the tower. The vast church remains with traces of its ancient grandeur; the great roof still remains intact, a veritable maze of timber, and a tremendous piece of craftsmanship; go and see it if you are ever in Sandwich.

Highlights of Bristol University Society's Tour

THE usual ingredients of the average "most successful, thoroughly enjoyed by all" bellringers' tour seem to include at least some of the following: "This was a gentle start to a somewhat busy week ahead" or "we set off equipped with a 75-tower itinerary and an ambitious array of duplicated methods" and "Tuesday was our busiest day, and though we passed on at a hair-raising pace we were delayed by a mile-long traffic jam."

None of this for the Bristol University ringers, whose recipe for success is completely different. We travelled on bicycles, which for some seemingly undiscovered reason never find themselves stuck in traffic jams, and wended our way in the most leisurely and enjoyable fashion along the highways and country by-ways of Dorset and Hampshire in a 12-day tour.

IN AND AROUND SALISBURY

Friday, June 16th, marked the start of the tour, when we visited Woodford, and St. Paul's, Salisbury, before signing in at the Youth Hostel for the week-end. It was with regret that we rang at St. Thomas's at a time of sorrow for the passing of Mr. Harold Roles, for many years the tower's captain. On Saturday we made our way up the Nadder valley, ringing at Wilton and at Barford St. Martin before spending an hour at Dinton.

By Sunday we had been joined by our secretary, Pauline Bligh-Cheesman, Mary Suthers and Clarke Walters, and they brought with them a day of perfect weather. The morning was spent in Salisbury, first at St. Martin's for service (here Bristol Major was a speciality) and later at the 13th century hotel, the Rose and Crown, with lawns set on the banks of the gently flowing River Avon and almost in the shade of Salisbury Cathedral. That afternoon, at Coombe Bissett, a village which boasts of a somewhat awkward ring of six, someone saw the following advertisement on a notice board:—

"For sale, two dinner jackets with trousers.
One tall and slim,
The other not so tall and not so slim."

That evening, after ringing at Britford, many of us found heart and voice for a rousing chorus in the hostel common room, ably accompanied by Mandi McCallion at the piano.

ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONS

The first ringing on Monday took place at Downton, where the six provided some delightful music. We were sorry that Mary Suthers had to make a trip to hospital at this juncture, but it was fortunate that her ailment was not serious. We adjourned to the King's Arms for lunch before visiting Fordingbridge, and later we rang at Damerham, where the bells had a beautiful "go." Everyone beat a hasty retreat to the Youth Hostel at Cranborne (in order to secure the best beds), which was our base for the next three nights.

It was here that the Society's Anglo-American relationships were put to some very strenuous tests in the presence of a party of 30 American students. Our bond of friendship was hardly improved the next morning by a display of change ringing in the hostel kitchen. The equipment used included eight saucepans of varying size, age and layers of grease, eight hooks in a line along the wall at shoulder height, two potato peelers, four bottle washers and two hand-brushes. The other hostellers watched in amazement as mutilated Bob Major and a better course of Grandsire Triples emanated from those weird instruments.

A COLOUR CINE FILM

On Wednesday, whilst spending a day with us, Roger Fry placed his Morris Oxford Traveller at our disposal so that the film unit could turn mobile. We set off on the long climb from the Coote Arms, where we had stopped for lunch, and there is no prize for guessing that right from the start of that gruelling climb Richard Humphries appears in the lead. Some of the mentionable highlights include Mike Zobel in the middle of a morning wash, and Pauline Bligh-Cheesman about to be thrown into a stream on one of those twilight walks at Cranborne.

The following day we went farther afield to visit Wimborne Minster, which is a "Royal Peculiar"; to this day it bears the title because in 1318 Edward II declared the Minster his free chapel and as such to be exempt from all ordinary jurisdiction. In the main our ringing here was also beyond ordinary jurisdiction, but the best touch was one of Little Bob Royal. We proceeded leisurely, and after visiting Canford early in the afternoon made our way to Witchampton, a church famed for its wondrous contents.

In this extraordinary church perhaps the most fascinating feature was a door labelled "Parable of the Pitcher." On opening the door, there was a sudden whirring commotion, a flickering of lights, and out of the darkness would suddenly appear a trickle of water gurgling from a pitcher into a silver chalice mounted on a pile of stones and rocks. Filled with awe, we made a hasty departure, only to find ourselves leaving the village by way of a little bridge bearing a notice from the time of George IV saying that anyone damaging the bridge was liable to transportation for life (i.e. to Australia).

On Thursday we all rang at Ringwood and Sopley before cycling to the Youth Hostel at Burley. The hostel is situated in a wooded part of the predominantly open heathland, where the forest ponies roam at their leisure in small groups. After a superb breakfast on Friday, a trip was made to Christchurch Priory, where the magnificence of the church and the bells made this very memorable.

TWO THUNDERSTORMS

Friday was a rough day weather-wise, and in the face of menacing dark grey thunderclouds edging up over the horizon only half a dozen of us braved the cold waves at Milford-on-Sea, eagerly encouraged by Kay Moore, who had had the courage to take a previous swim at lunchtime. We rang at Lymington and, after weathering a ferocious thunderstorm, arrived for ringing at Milford looking more like a gaggle of wet geese than a party of bellringers. Our woes were aggravated at Norleywood Youth Hostel by the catering and air-conditioning arrangements, which proved unsatisfactory.

Undeterred, we made the best of both worlds, and Saturday's ringing was particularly good. Some cycled through part of the New Forest, via Beaulieu, where they called upon Lord Montagu, to Lyndhurst. A welcome and significant addition to our strength was enjoyed on the arrival of Kenneth Darvill and Richard Youdale. By the time everyone was under way to Southampton the heavens opened, thunderclaps resounded over the forests, and lightning flashed repeatedly over Southampton's mist-shrouded chimneys and factories The deluge was fast and furious and water lay inches deep on the main road. But lo, out of the flood rose the sweet pealing of St. Mary's bells, a fine Taylor ten housed in an equally splendid steeple.

On Sunday afternoon came the moment that many of us had awaited eagerly throughout the tour. Ringing at Winchester Cathedral, where the spacious belfry is crossed by large timbers and is walled by gracious stone arches, is a sight which stirs in a person that grand, majestic feeling. The Minster Cafe was a fine spot to say our farewells to Roger Powell, Richard, Clarke, Mary, Kay, Gill and Elizabeth, who had been with us for only the week-end, to the chagrin of at least one gentleman. The rest of us retired to the Youth Hostel, which is housed in the old City Mill. This was an excellent setting to hear a piano recital by Nicholas Simon, whose repertoire included the most rhythmic Spliced Surprise Royal, Spliced Plain and Little Maximus and half-muffled Stedman Triples and Caters.

On Monday we rang at Old Alresford, New Alresford and at Cheriton, where we were kindly entertained to tea at the Rectory by the Rev. Mr. Cholmeley. The tour concluded with a brief ring at Twyford on Tuesday morning. We thank Miss Bligh-Cheesman for making the excellent arrangements. J. T. (P.).

Letters to the Editor

YORK MINSTER BELL WINDOW

Dear Sir,—The writer of the article on the "York Minster Bell Window" is, I think, mistaken when he describes the other panel at the bottom of the left-hand light as showing the tuning of a bell.

This does, I believe, depict the earlier form of bell moulding as described in an earlier manuscript by Theophilus in "De Diversis Artibus," where the core mould is built up on a tapered oak spindle running between two trestles and, when dry, this core is used as the foundation for building up a full-size model of the bell in wax, which is carefully shaped and decorated. It is this latter process, I think, which is shown in this particular panel of the window. At a later stage the wax is invested with clay and allowed to dry, then heated, which process melts out the wax, which is collected, and into the space left by the wax the metal is poured after burying the entire mould in a pit to prevent it from bursting.

This whole process is very fully described in the book I have just mentioned, which has been retranslated and edited by C. R. Dodwell and published by Nelson and Sons in 1961.—Yours sincerely,

DOUGLAS HUGHES.

London, E.

"FILLET"

Dear Sir, — Under "Modern Glossary Wanted" (page 588), the question is asked "Why is the sally called the fillet in Cornwall?" One might, of course, wonder why it is called the sally across the border!

I cannot think of any reason for the latter. There is perhaps a possibility for fillet in a Cornish word for a sheepskin coat. But that begins with a P and not F. It is pretty far-fetched but there is just a slight resemblance.

I never heard of a sally until I crossed the border, and thought it rather silly; but it has spread into Cornwall with the advent of change ringing. Like everything else Cornish, we easily get laughed out of our ringing peculiarities. And "Stand" is now probably more common than "Up next fillet."

Here is another for the query "Sets Light" "Sets Tender." In Cornish towers I have heard "she sets dry" or "sets hard." That comes from rick buildings, where the side of a rick is "dry" if it does not stick out far enough and "hard" when too far.—Yours sincerely,

C. F. JERRAM.

Helston, Cornwall.

ACCURACY OF COMPOSITION PUBLICATION

Dear Sir,—It has been brought to my notice by Mr. D. Knox that a comment in my earlier letter on this subject (page 323) is only partly correct. I refer to the composition of Yorkshire Surprise Major by Richard J. Parker in the issue of December 30th, 1966 (page 868). There is repetition of the second lead of the fifth course, the same lead occurring after the second bob at fifths, in the seventh course. This repetition, of course, occurs in each part. Perhaps the composer would be good enough to enlighten us on the correct composition.—Yours sincerely,

D. E. SIBSON.

Putney, S.W.

EXPEDITING THE END?

Dear Sir,—Whether or not the 5.30 a.m. peal was fully muffled and rung with the Vicar's consent, there can be no doubt that such actions are regarded by the Press and non-ringing public as absolute madness.

Moreover, I recently heard of a tower where, after a peal rung by a visiting band (which, incidentally, followed quite a long false start), some drastically altered rope ends were thoughtlessly left for the local ringers to correct.

Further, it seems "The Ringing World" columns nowadays are crowded with bickering items, often over trivial and non-essential issues.

All too frequently we hear of silent towers, unsupported clergy, empty churchts—often amidst towering, crowded blocks of tenements or flats—small wonder one often hears it opined that, be it another generation or so, the end of our art is well in sight.

Acts of lunacy, selfishness, thoughtlessness, continual back-biting, the grossly illegal false peal reports—all of these can do nothing but expedite that end!—Yours faithfully,

T. R. BUTLER.

Orrell Park, Liverpool.

RUNG 35 YEARS AGO

Dear Sir,—The extent of Spliced Minor by Mr. Threadgold (page 468) was rung at Lamberhurst on January 1st, 1932. The methods we rang were Kilndown Alliance and Belvedere Little Bob.

The composition and methods were sent to me by the late Mr. A. G. Driver.—Yours faithfully,

A. RELFE.

SPLICED MINOR

Dear Sir,—I was interested to see Mr. Chant's extents for methods in Groups J/M but was struck by the lack of balance between the methods.

Some years ago I was asked for an extent of Court, Double Court, Oxford Bob and Hereward and produced that given as No. 306 in the Collection of Minor Methods. This extent can be adapted to accommodate Groups J/M only, as indicated below.—Yours sincerely.

ST. DUNSTAN'S-IN-THE-WEST

Dear Sir,—Some two or three weeks ago a correspondent wrote for information re the bells of St. Dunstan's-in-the-West and I waited for someone with far more knowledge than myself to answer the letter.

Fifty years ago my father and I occasionally stayed with W A Alps and his wife (when we were in London), who were caretakers of a block of offices in the vicinity of St. Dunstan's.

W. A. Alps, known as the "man of few words" because he could talk at knowledgeable length on any subject, suggested during one of the week-ends that we get permission to ring for Evensong at St. Dunstan's. This he did and we rang a quarter peal of Stedman Triples, conducted by that old London stalwart Challis F. Winney. I can remember W. A. Alps, T. Langdon, H. Langdon, R. Newton, my father and myself ringing, but cannot remember the eighth ringer.

It was the only time I was in the tower and I cannot even remember any other ringing at the tower (although, of course, there may have been), but I still have an impression that they were a good old-fashioned eight of about 22 cwt., but again I am open to correction. However, I did ring on the bells, and this is all the information I can give your correspondent.—Yours sincerely,

W. HIBBERT.

Basingstoke, Hants.

INSURANCE OF HANDBELLS

Dear Sir,—The "Late News" item on page 595 (August 18th) should raise the question of insurance of handbells by many of those who read the item concerning the theft of 21 handbells.

When I started to build up my own set of of handbells, which now total 23, I had them insured against theft.

The policy covers their location whether in or out of the home and the annual cost was £1 for a value of £100. With the rise in cost of material, I recently had the bells revalued, and the sum of £170 would now be required to replace the set if it were stolen, therefore I am having my policy amended.

Under an ordinary "Home" policy, the bells, or for that matter any property which is stolen from a motor car or outside the home, is not ordinarily covered unless the policy has been specifically endorsed.

I would strongly recommend those who own their own sets of handbells to have them revalued and adequately covered against theft under all circumstances, i.e. within the home and out of it, whether in a motor car, in the belfry or on loan to friends.—Yours faithfully,

FRED E. DUKES.

Drogheda.

LETTERS OF THANKS

Dear Sir,—I must take issue with you over the announcement in the issue of August 4th (page 552), that the correct place to thank local ringers, etc., is in the Personal Column. Surely the right way to thank people is to write a letter to them personally and enclose a donation to their belfry fund. Under no circumstances can an impersonal notice in "The Ringing World" ever replace a personal letter even if it does help the finances of the paper.—Yours sincerely,

D. E. SIBSON.

Putney, S.W.

Note.—We agree with reader Sibson, but add that a paragraph at the end of the report is not the proper place for an expression of thanks to people who do not see the journal.—Ed.

M.U.G.S. Sample 23 Towers in Devon and Cornwall

THE West Country, with its narrow lanes and steep hills, ice cream and cream teas, beer and pastry, provided the venue for the 1967 summer tour of the Manchester University Guild. After last year's highly successful tour on barges it was decided to rough it again—this time on a caravan site, which Stephen and John found at the happily-named North Morte, in Devon, so called, apparently, after the number of ships that have come to grief on the rocks of this peninsula.

Most of the party met at Evercreech, Somerset, on Saturday, July 1st, where some fair ringing was achieved on the ten bells. Another carload had arrived by the time the 12 at Taunton (which we found difficult) were tackled and some rather undistinguished ringing resulted. We fared much better at South Molton (8), however, and the sight of a crate of empty beer bottles in the ringing chamber seemed to convince some that another visit sometime might be worthwhile. And from South Molton it was back to the cars again to cover the remaining 40-odd miles to the caravan site, which was shrouded in a dark sea mist

Sunday, however, dawned bright and clear—but, please, not handbells at 7 a.m. After morning ringing at Ilfracombe we were free from ringing until Evensong at the other Ilfracombe church, where we joined the local band.

The North v. South cricket match in the afternoon resulted in a resounding victory for the North by 50 runs to 46, despite being outnumbered by seven to six. Jim proved to be the North's hero, ripping through the South's tail with two beautiful run-outs.

BEST RINGING

A touch of Grandsire Caters at Minehead (10) on Monday provided some of the best ringing of the tour. In the afternoon Dunster (8) was visited and then the cars set off in various directions over and around Exmoor. A series of misfortunes rendered a Devon cream tea somewhat of a farce for eight of us, but notwithstanding the mauve coloured boiling water that arrived for the pot, we all managed to meet for an evening ring at Lynton (6).

Tuesday found us in and around Exeter. The first stop was at Cullompton (10) and then on to the Cathedral, where the lack of experience on 12 bells for most of the Guild was again only too apparent. Chris turned the tenor in and the look of delight when he perfectly struck the 7-8 down dodge was one not to be forgotten The heavy eight at Crediton were tackled before the long journey back to the site.

The Guild has a long history of lost peals on its summer tour and on Wednesday it began to look as if 1967 was going to be no exception for after Pilton and Braunton has been visited in the morning an attempt for Spliced Minor at Morthoe in the afternoon came to grief ten minutes from the end of the last extent, when a rope broke. Georgeham (8) provided a fine start to an evening which ended with the girls soundly thrashing some of the boys at skittles.

Thursday, and into Cornwall. The long draught and springy ropes at Kilkhampton (8) (where the group photograph was taken) made handling difficult and an attempt to ring call changes in true West Country fashion proved to all concerned that it is not as easy as it might sound. The eight bells at Stratton were some of the best we rang during the whole week. The rest of the afternoon was spent sightseeing and Clovelly (6) was added to our list of towers on the return journey. A barbecue, of which much had been hoped, proved an expensive flop, but spirits were cheered in the usual way before everyone returned to the site.

PEAL HOODOO BROKEN

The peal hoodoo was broken at last on Friday at Appledore, when an excellent peal of Yorkshire was rung, whilst the rest of the party rang at Bideford. The long journey over to Tiverton in the afternoon proved well worthwhile, for the eight there were the best of all on the tour.

No little difficulty was encountered on Saturday in being out of the caravans by 10 a.m. Some of the party left fairly early but the majority stayed another night in the area. Yet another cream tea was inevitable for those who stayed, and a rather charming waitress brightened still further (for some) an already glorious day. Old Cleeve (8) proved a bit of a handful, but after a couple of false starts a fair course of London was rung. On Sunday morning the local band at Bridgwater were joined for morning service on their fine eight before those still remaining wended their way home.

All in all it was a most enjoyable week. The best ringing was achieved in the peal, as might be expected. In some towers the ropes were much longer than we were accustomed to and the striking suffered. Twenty-three towers were visited, which proved just about ideal. Thanks must be extended to all incumbents, to the local ringers and, of course, to Stephen and John for their excellent organisation.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION

MEMBERS and friends gathered at Bubwith (4), Eastrington (6) and Goole (8) for the August meeting of the Eastern District. Holidays and perhaps the switching of the date may have affected the attendance in the afternoon but more members arrived after tea at Goole.

We were very grateful to the Vicar of Eastrington for permission to ring, and the local ladies for serving such a splendid tea at fairly short notice, also the curate at Goole, the Rev French Chang-Him (from the Seychelles) for conducting Evensong at Goole.

Welcome visitors were the Association's general secretary, W. F. Moreton, and family, and Peter Payne, from Chiddingfold, Surrey. Also present were Mr. H. Rodmell (87) and Mr. T. Goodin (86), of Sutton-on-Hull, who though deprived of the annual "old members" gathering and cake, were presented with gifts of assorted fruit from Mrs. J. J. Taylor, of Goole. There was also fruit for Mr. Atkinson, of York, and Mr. L. Rodmell, of Patrington.

New members elected during the business meeting were Mr. R Moxon (Wetherby), Mr. J. Leary (Hedon) and Mr. P. Payne as non-resident life member. A collection for the Association's Bell Repair Fund realised 17s. 6d.

Treble Bob Minor and Splicing

BY THE PROFESSOR

SIX-LEAD SPLICE

This is similar to the three-lead splice, the important differences being:

(a) As its name implies, six leads are selected throughout the 720.

(b) There is only one fixed bell

A list of six-lead splices is given in the C.C. Collection of 1961 but the two 720's in Fig 11 will suffice for our present purpose

In both 720's the 6th is fixed bell in the six-lead splice; it is 4ths place fixed in (i) and 5th place fixed in (ii). In both cases it is the pivot bell making 5ths at the half-lead. On examination it will be found that the 6th carries out the same duties in the 6-leads that are introduced that it would have done in the original method In both 720's there is also a 3-lead splice present; Hull Surprise in the first 720 with the tenors fixed in 2nds and 5ths place, and Clarence in the second 720 with the same two bells fixed in 2nds and 4ths. It is not difficult to construct the 2nds place variations of the two 720's in Fig. 11.

PARKER'S ARRANGEMENT

If two regular methods such as Neasden and Old Oxford or Primrose and Cambridge Surprise are 6th and 2nds lead-end variations of each other, and they have either the 5th as pivot (as in the first two methods) or the 3rd as pivot (as in the last two), then they can be spliced together in an arrangement which was first made by J. W. Parker.

5th Pivot

In 720 (i) (Fig 12) with the 3rd place bell as pivot the order of leads in each course is 2nds, 6ths, 6ths, 2nds, and in 720 (ii) with the 5th as pivot, 6ths, 2nds, 2nds, 6ths. In both cases the two courses are linked together by a bob made by the tenor, the 2nd bob returning the bells into the course from which they started (plain course in the first part). The 3rd bob in each part is simply a "shunt" bob, whose purpose is to prevent repetition (e.g. the bells would come round at the end of the first part without it) The 720's could be regarded as six courses of similar pattern with a shunt bob in alternate courses. the first course starting at the beginning of its 4th or 3rd lead.

The 6th in either of the arrangements never makes a 6ths place or lies a 2nds place at the lead-ends. This knowledge, which is very useful for the conductor. can also be of assistance to other ringers. If in doubt as to whether a 2nds or 6ths place lead-end is coming up, a glance at the position of the tenor may help. If the 6th is finishing the slowwork or in a position to move to the treble and go into slowwork there must be a 6ths place lead-end, if the 6th is in a position to dodge in 5–6 it must be a 2nds place lead-end. The only remaining position is when the 6th is the bob-making bell, in which case neither 2nds nor 6ths is made.

In the early stages, or indeed at the later ones when the occasion demands, the conductor can be helpful by calling out the necessary instructions such as "Seconds" or "Sixths" as the lead-end comes up. Mr Wilfrid Moreton contented himself (and his band) with the words "With" or "Without."

Norfolk and Ipswich Surprise may be introduced between the first and second bob in each part if desired (see Fig. 13). They have the same changes in a course as Cambridge and Primrose, but as they have a fifth pivot instead of a 3rd the order of the leads is changed, as can be seen by comparing the two complete courses in the 720's in Fig. 12.

History of Surprise Peals on Handbells

By Robert B. Smith

PART II (1931 ONWARDS)

IT is surprising that the first peal of Cambridge Surprise Major on handbells was not rung until 1933, 32 years after the first peal of Surprise on handbells. It was rung by members of the Hertford County Association and was conducted by Harold Cashmore. They followed up the ringing of Cambridge with peals of London—seven of them in a row. In 1935 this band rang the first peal of spliced "in hand," London and Cambridge, and by 1937 they had increased the number of methods from two to six. During the years up to and including 1945 no new methods were rung to Surprise peals on handbells but it would be wrong to imagine that progress was not being made. More peals were rung during the years 1935 to 1945 inclusive than during the previous 35 years, mainly by one band, but by now 12 different ringers had taken part in these peals; provision was being made for the future.

The year 1946 saw the first peal of Yorkshire on handbells by the Hertfordshire band, who rang as follows: Henry Hodgetts 1–2, Christopher W. Woolley 3–4, Harold G. Cashmore 5–6, Frederick W. Brinklow 7–8. These four ringers had now rung more than 25 Surprise peals on handbells as a band over a period of some 15 years and were still "going strong."

LEICESTER—A NEW DIMENSION

A new dimension in Surprise ringing on handbells came into being in 1947, when the Leicester band came up with a peal of Cambridge Royal "out of the blue," so to speak, as none of the band had previously rung a peal of Surprise on handbells. The band was: Walter P. Whitehead 1–2, Jill Poole 3–4, Harold J. Poole 5–6, Albert Ballard 7–8, Edward R. Whitehead 9–10. The peal was conducted by Harold J. Poole, who soon had the band ringing further peals of Cambridge Major and Royal and, by September 28th of the same year, Cambridge Maximus, the 6th ringer being Peter J. Staniforth. Before the end of the year three of the band had completed peals of Surprise from Minor to Maximus, actually in a period of just over eight months. With bands in two centres now ringing Surprise peals, 1947 became an historic year for another reason; it was the first year in which the total reached double figures, when the number was 14.

We had to wait until 1950 for further developments, although peals were now being rung at a much higher rate than previously. The Hertford band increased the number of Surprise Major methods from six to eight, then nine. In the same year the Leicester band rang Yorkshire Royal and they too were bringing new members into their band. By 1953 the Hertfordshire band had rung a peal in 16 Surprise Major methods, which was to remain the record until 1964. The 1950's generally were very quiet from the point of view of new milestones being passed. One exception to this is that a band ringing Surprise Minor peals had started up in Hampshire and had increased the number of Minor methods to a peal from seven to ten by the end of 1956. Odd peals from other than the familiar areas began to creep in with peals in Lincolnshire, Derbyshire and Lancashire.

Up to the end of 1960 a total of 165 peals of Surprise had been rung on handbells over a period of 60 years. By the end of 1965 this total had increased to 333—an increase of over 100 per cent in five years! Why the sudden explosion? It is true that the great majority of these peals have come from the two main bands, i.e. the Middlesex/Hertford band and the Leicester band. We find, however, that no less than ten Guilds or Associations have been credited with these peals, involving some 38 ringers, showing that more people are now taking part in these peals than ever before.

PROGRESSIVE PERIOD

One might think that with an increasing number of peals being rung people are being conservative in methods they attempt but from the following it will be observed that new fields are being conquered each year. In 1961 the Leicester band rang a second peal of Cambridge Maximus and followed this up with peals of Maximus in the following methods in 1962: Yorkshire, York and New Cambridge. The year 1963 took over where 1962 left off, with a peal of New Durham Maximus and 10,440 Cambridge Royal being rung by the same band. The Hertford band in the meantime had increased the number of Surprise Minor methods in a handbell peal to 31. They were on the move, too, with a number of people taking part in peals of Spliced Surprise Major, and it was only a matter of time now before they would surpass the 1952 record of 16 methods. Towards the end of 1963 the first peal of Spliced Surprise Royal was rung by the Leicester band, although they tended to ring new methods rather than spliced.

In the three years 1964–67 the scene has been dominated by the Hertford/Middlesex band, which has taken the Spliced Surprise Major record from 16 to 25 and the Spliced Surprise Royal record from two to six. Peals of London Major and Bristol, in addition to the spliced peals, appear quite regularly, and it is good to see that new names keep appearing in the columns. What does the future hold for Surprise ringing on handbells? One could speculate, but I would just say that it now looks brighter than ever before!

(Concluded)

A choir of over 50 bellringers will lead the singing and render an anthem at the Three Counties Festival at Derby Cathedral on Saturday, September 16th. The anthem, "O thou sweetest source" (Wood), will be sung. A dinner and social evening will be held in the Albion Restaurant starting at 7.15 p.m.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. Christopher T. Osenton has "circled the tower" to peals at St. John the Baptist's, Erith, on four occasions.

A strange coincidence means that confusion could ensue. Both this year's and last year's secretary of the U.B.S.C.R. live in the same road in Wheathampstead.

Congratulations to Mr. Arthur G. Mason on the 50th anniversary of his first peal, which was rung at Crayford on August 19th, 1917. He returned to Crayford on the anniversary day and rang in a peal of Stedman Triples in honour of the occasion.

Mr. W. Viggers has had a week in Aldershot Hospital following an accident, when his motorcycle skidded over a manhole. He was rendered unconscious and had ten stitches inserted in his head. Will is now back at work, checking up (among other things) details for the 1968 Diary.

With the peal of Bob Minor rung at Westbury-on-Trym, Mr. D. John Hunt has now rung peals at all 22 towers within the Bristol City boundary that are allowed for ringing. The only ones that now remain unconquered are St. Thomas's (8), which were last rung in 1961 and where the frame is unsafe, and All Saints' (8), where the tower is reputed unsafe and the bells were last rung in 1951.

Correction.—The names of the ringers of the 5th and 6th in the peal at Deptford (see page 540) are given in the wrong order. The peal was composed by J. R. Pritchard.

The footnote to the peal at Rodmersham (page 590) should be under Mountsorrel, Leics (page 589). The error was made in transpositions after the pages had left the Editor, and were apparently unchecked due to a holiday-depleted staff.

After spending nearly a year in Israel and surviving the Middle East war, Jane Holden (15) returned to Jesmond to ring her first quarter peal of Minor. She rang remarkably well considering her long absence from ringing in her relatively short ringing career.

In a comment on the peal at Barking, Suffolk, Mr. Frank C. Price writes: "It was a first-class peal, very well struck. The American lads showed us what they can really do on church bells—yet another compliment to Russell S. Young, who taught them."

According to "The Sentinel," the magazine of the Ely Diocesan Association, there are 102 women members of the Association. Wisbech leads with 33 women and girls, followed by Huntingdon (30), Cambridge (26) and Ely (13).

MOORLYNCH FESTIVAL

A peal of Plain Bob Minor was rung at Moorlynch, Somerset, on Sunday, August 6th, on the occasion of the Festival held to mark the 650th anniversary of the induction of the first Vicar.

The Bishop of Bath and Wells and the Archdeacon of Wells rode to Moorlynch on horseback from a neighbouring village to commence the Festival, and their procession, dressed in mediæval costume of the 14th century approached the church as the peal came to a successful conclusion.

Costume was worn by the villagers throughout the week of festivities and included lady ringers with wimples, long robes and flowing sleeves; rather a mixed blessing when handling a bell!

The bells were rung each evening and at the end of the play "Six Bells for Moorlynch," an embroidery of fiction and fact, which was written specially for the festival. The Lord Abbot once offered a ring of bells to the first of the "Seven Sisters of Glastonbury" (seven villages on the Polden Hills forming one parish within the jurisdiction of the Abbey) to have three births and three deaths within its boundaries, and the play unfolds the story of how Moorlynch won her fine ring.

Altogether it was a grand week, enjoyed by local ringers and Bridgwater Branch helpers alike.

A No. 1 ISSUE READER

This week we had a nice letter from Mr. W. T Cox, who is leaving Burbage, Leics, to live at No. 5, Hinton Road, Gloucester. Now 85 years of age, he has been a reader of "The Ringing World" since its No. 1 issue. He was then a member of the band at St. Nicolas', Guildford, and rang with Mr. Jack Goldsmith on many occasions.

Mr. Cox started ringing at Dunsfold, Surrey, under the tuition of Arthur Bartlett, of Chiddingfold, but most of his change ringing was done in Coventry with Messrs Perrin, Perrens and Roberts. His last ringing tower was in Gloucester, where he had to give it up through heart trouble.

Looking back, he reflects: "I wonder more young people don't join the ranks. If they only knew how fascinating it is! With best wishes for the future of 'The Ringing World.'"

TRAINING QUARTERS AT BLACKBURN

The Blackburn Branch, to give a little extra practice combined with good striking to ringers who are beyond the "beginner" stage but not quite "experienced" ringers, is arranging a series of quarter peals in which only one such ringer participates with a good band.

The first of the series, a quarter of Kent T.B. for Ian Smith, of Darwen, was unfortunately lost through a miscall on the part of the conductor not far from the end. Mr. John Pilkington sends, through us, his apologies to Ian "as he rang so well." The second, for Douglas Deakin, was successful; he will now no doubt remember to make "places up" in the future.

RINGING AT EXPO 67

Mr. Paul L. Taylor has recently returned from a visit to Canada. In the British Pavilion at Expo 67 he had a surprise. There was a model of an English church with a wedding in progress. Looking through the window into the belfry one saw eight ringers in action and from the tower emerged the strains of Stedman Triples. "It was a very good model," he told "The Ringing World."

ENTHUSIASM IN BEDFORDSHIRE

August generally tends to see a big drop in attendance at meetings, but the evening meeting at Haynes on August 12th was very well attended To see so many enthusiastic learners was most gratifying, and the Ringing Master (Mr. C Mann) catered admirably for their capabilities and also for the wants of the more experienced ringer who dared to try many of the more obscure Doubles methods.

Next meeting: Ampthill and Maulden, September 9th. L. E.

SITE OFFER NOT ENTERTAINED

An offer in the region of £250,000 for the site of St. Peter's Church, Harrogate, from a firm of developers has been turned down. The Archdeacon of Leeds, the Ven. C. O. Ellison, issued a statement that the offer would not be considered. While the church stands on what must commercially be one of the most valuable sites in Harrogate, it is really the only central Anglican church in the town, states the "Harrogate Advertiser."

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSN.

The election of 17 new ringing members was the notable feature of the meeting held at Isleworth on August 5th. Seven of these were from Chiswick, where the new band is making good progress, and the others were from Bedfont, Ealing, Sunbury, Twickenham and Uxbridge. The meeting was also pleased to elect as an honorary member the Rev. W. J. Davies, Vicar of St. Mary's, Twickenham, whose bells are shortly to be rehung.

On a sadder note, the meeting stood in memory of Mr. F. A. Finch, who had at one time been District secretary. It was also disappointing to learn that because of complaints Feltham bells will no longer be available for peals or meetings, although the louvres are well boarded and the sound of the bells is often drowned by the passing traffic, trains and aircraft.

Ringing on the bells of Isleworth was enjoyed in the afternoon and evening, and the meeting expressed its thanks to the Vicar and Mr. H. W. Rogers, tower captain, for the use of the bells and Church Hall, and to the ladies who prepared the fine tea.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION

An enjoyable meeting with the Barnsley and District Society was held on August 12th. Ringing began at Wortley (8), where trouble with the chiming hammers delayed matters a little. The six at Hoylandswaine were also put to good use prior to tea—an ample spread—at Penistone..

The vice-president of the District welcomed all present, and the District warmly approved his suggestion of sending its congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Chris Moxon and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew King on the occasion of their recent marriages. The committee is to work out a further programme of practice meetings when it meets on October 7th at Rawmarsh, but two interim practices were announced—Silkstone (6) in September, and Wath-on-Dearne (8) in October.

Visitors were present from Burnley (Lancs), Heckington (Lincs), Lowestoft (Suffolk) and Brighton (Sussex) and the evening concluded on the excellent octave at Penistone.

Next District meeting: November 18th—Rawmarsh (8). Thrybergh (6) and Eastwood (8) (provisional).

IN DEFENCE OF FRAMSDEN RINGING

Another letter in defence of ringing Framsden bells appears in answer to Mr. Salmon (see page 604) in the "East Anglian Daily Times." This was from Mr. C. S. Bloomfield, of Hemingstone, Ipswich. He writes:—

"It is pretty obvious that he knows very little of the art of campanology. Framsden bells were there long, long before he ever lived at Framsden and were rung by many famous ringers, the Wightmans among them.

"I would suggest that these bells are not rung nearly as much as they ought to be and certainly not more than four hours per week, which is not much out of 168 hours, so who is selfish?

"I would remind Mr. Salmon that the present holders of the shield for striking for Suffolk come from the Framsden district, with Mr. L. Brett, of Framsden, as captain. Perhaps when the bells ring they remind your correspondent of the existence of the Church, and it makes him feel uncomfortable."

Another letter in defence of bellringing is from Mr. Alan J. Page. He writes:—

"As a Liberal and a free-thinker, I strongly object to this unjust criticism of freedom of thought and action and of what is also an old English art. Mr. Salmon's mind is so biased that he even finds it necessary indirectly to attack the village church.

"Long may they stand and long may their towers project the age-long message of tolerance, peace and goodwill towards men. If Christianity has inspired nothing more than the erection of these lovely, ancient buildings and beautiful music, then its message has not been in vain."

"THE SENTINEL"

Another attractive issue of "The Sentinel," the newsletter of the Ely Diocesan Association, the work of Mr. Trevor A. Bevis, of 150, Burrowmoor Road, March, Cambs, has been received. This is a photo-litho production and sales equal about one-third of the membership of the Association.

It has a coloured, hand-painted cover of the steeple of St. Mary Magdalene's, Warboys, and the story of its bells is featured.

Also there is the story of the Grand Old Man of Warboys, Mr. James Clack, who is now 88 and began ringing at the age of nine or ten. Unfortunately an accident last December has broken a record only a little short of 79 years. This includes having rung during six reigns, at the coronations of four monarchs, and victory peals after the South African and two world wars. Practically all his ringing has been done in his own parish church. Jim has indeed set a wonderful example of loyalty at home.

"The Sentinel" is sold at 2s. a copy. It is essentially a "labour of love," but what a lovely love! Good luck, Trevor!!

ALL SAINTS' CATHEDRAL, DERBY

OUR PICTURE

ALL SAINTS' CATHEDRAL DERBY

IN 1927 the Parish Church of All Saints, Derby, became the Cathedral, the seat of the Bishop and Mother Church of the Diocese. A Parish Church became a Cathedral. The great Perpendicular tower is all that is left of the mediæval building.

In 1723 the Rev. Dr. Hutchinson, who was then the Vicar of All Saints, facing the ruinous condition of the nave and chancel, demolished the whole building except the tower and began a complete restoration. James Gibbs, architect of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, was engaged for the job.

The earliest records imply that there were five bells at All Saints' as long ago as 1509. However, apart from the possible exception of the tenor, it is certain that these bells were replaced or recast in the next hundred years or so. In 1620 the five bells were augmented to six by the addition of a treble—the present fifth bell in the ring of ten. This bell was cast by George Oldfield of Nottingham and bears the inscription "Batchelers Bell" (several of the bells have inscriptions which are mis-spelt). The history behind the inscription is most interesting. It appears that a company in the town started a lottery and several young men of the parish "subscribed three guineas to be adventured in it." Their enterprise was rewarded and they won £12, which they donated towards the cost of the new treble. Until 1926, when the bells were retuned and rehung on an iron frame, the "Batchelers Bell" was a maiden bell, that is it was not in need of tuning when taken from the mould after casting.

TENOR OVER 500 YEARS OLD

The heaviest bell of the original six, and the present tenor, is the oldest bell in the tower and is well over 500 years old. The other four—the present sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth—were also cast by the Oldfields at dates between 1607 and 1655. Little is known of how or why these bells were acquired by the Cathedral, but they probably replaced the older bells.

The present eighth bell, however, has an unusual history. From parish records it appears that this bell became cracked in the year 1712 and a Mr. Hatton was engaged to recast it. Surprisingly, the present eighth bell carries the date 1632—not 1712, and, as stated above, is the work of Oldfield. The explanation for this discrepancy lies partly in legend and partly in the records of Ashbourne Parish Church—there is no clue in the Cathedral records. Legend has it that in the year 1815 the eighth bell was exchanged for a bell from Ashbourne. The records of Ashbourne Parish Church for that year reveal that their tenor had become cracked and the Church Council had decided on exchanging their ring of six bells for a new ring of eight. William Dobson of Downham Market was engaged to do the job. Fortunately, when the six bells were removed from Ashbourne their inscriptions were recorded. The fifth bell had the inscription "God Save the Church" 1632. This corresponds exactly with that on the Cathedral eighth. Thus it would appear that in 1815 Dobson exchanged the Cathedral 1712 bell for the old fifth bell at Ashbourne.

NONE RECAST

In 1677 the ring of six was augmented to ten by William Noone of Nottingham by the addition of four trebles. Thus we see that the present ten bells, apart from the relatively recent refugee from Ashbourne, have been at Derby Cathedral for nearly 300 years. None of the bells has been recast and, considering this, the bells are of surprising good tone. In this respect the ring is probably unique.

The bells were rehung on a wooden frame in 1687 and again, on the present iron frame, when All Saints' became a Cathedral in 1927.

In years gone by the Cathedral ringers were paid for their efforts. The parish records contain countless entries of such payments and from these we can see the occasions which were marked by ringing on the bells. The births, deaths and coronations of countless Kings, Queens and Princes, the failure of Guy Fawkes to blow up Parliament were all proclaimed. Victories by the score—to name just a few, Marlborough's victory at Blenheim in 1705, the taking of Quebec in 1759, the victories of Nelson and Rodney and the Battles of Waterloo and Trafalgar. The last entry in one book of parish records reveals that the bells were rung to mark the death of Wellington in 1852. Less than 60 peals have been rung on the bells but the first—Grandsire Triples—was rung over 200 years ago by an all-Cathedral band.

The present band of ringers is led by Harold Taylor, who took over as Ringing Master in 1948—the year he rang his first peal. Harold Taylor took over the leadership of a depleted band and over a period of years has built it up to its present strength. Of the present band of 15 ringers, 11 rang peals last year and no less than six of them hold responsible office in the Derby Diocesan Association.

The cover picture shows the Cathedral as it was a few months ago. Already changes are taking place, for the Provost of the Cathedral has launched a £200,000 appeal to pay for extensions and repairs to the building. The Derby Diocesan Association of Church Bellringers have pledged themselves to raise £1,000 towards this appeal. Already over £300 has been raised in less than six months.

Note.—If anyone wishes to help the Derby Diocesan Association in their efforts to raise £1,000 towards Derby Cathedral extension they should send donations to: D. W. Friend, 32, Parkside Road, Chaddesden, Derby.

FOUR GUILDS REVIEW 21 years OF PROGRESS

On Saturday, September 16th, a service is being held in Derby Cathedral to give thanks for the formation of four Guilds out of the Midland Counties' Association some 21 years ago. The new organisations were the Derby Diocesan Association, the Leicester Diocesan Guild, the Southwell Diocesan Guild and the Midland Counties' Guild.

These eventful 21 years in the lives of the three territorial bodies are reviewed below. Each is associated with a Diocese; each has received the benefits of association with the Bishop and diocesan life. Furthermore, each has gained by being a smaller unit with a wide measure of independence.

The response to these privileges has been most praiseworthy. Membership has shown an increase, there are fewer silent towers, and the art of change ringing has been advanced by better tuition, schools of ringing education and combined practices. While much remains to be accomplished before an efficient band of change ringers exists in every tower, it is with thankful hearts the ringers from the three dioceses will assemble at Derby Cathedral.

AT the extraordinary meeting of the M.C.A. in St. Margaret's Choir Vestry on October 7th, 1944, the Chesterfield District, which was rather remote and not well served by the Association, was in favour of splitting the M.C.A. into Diocesan Guilds, but the Derby District, which was quite active and enjoying good meetings, was against the dissolution.

The situation was resolved at the 1945 April meeting in Derby and at the beginning of 1946 the Derby and District Association of Change Ringers was formed.

The M.C.A. had about 750 ringing members in 1908 and around 1,100 on its dissolution in 1945, so perhaps from the review of the four organisations springing from the M.C.A. we can now judge, 21 years later, whether the break-up was, or was not, a good thing and whether ringing in the Midlands is a dying art.

ORGANISATION

In 1947 the Association was renamed the Derbyshire Association of Change Ringers and divided into four districts, namely Chesterfield, Derby, Ilkeston and Peak. Thus the basis of a true Diocesan Association was already established.

There are, however, several other organisations which claim the allegiance of bands in the diocese: these are the Chester Diocesan Guild, the Sheffield and District Society, the East Derbyshire and Notts, the Midland Counties Guild and latterly the North Leicester and South Derbyshire Association.

The Association flourished and lived in friendly relationships with the neighbouring organisations and in 1963 it was decided to rename it the Derby Diocesan Association of Church Bellringers.

It is not an easy diocese to organise as the county is very long, the towers in the Peak District widely dispersed and the south and south-west areas are weak and share allegiance between three organisations.

Each district has its own committee and organises its own district functions such as monthly meetings. Quarterly meetings are organised by the general committee.

It has been found that the regular monthly meetings on Saturday afternoons have not been popular in general and the District committees have not pressed these, taking the view that an unsuccessful meeting does far more harm than no meeting at all. Many alternative ventures have been tried with a great deal of success, for example, evening meetings, special District practices for advanced ringers and for learners separately, striking contests, outings, parties, dinners, coach outings to quarterly meetings, ringing courses both residential and one-day courses.

The annual Sir Arthur Heywood memorial dinner has been the highlight of the year since its inception and has grown in attendance from 70 to 240. The award of Capita Magnissimus held great interest for many years, but is now discontinued because the organisers have become jaded.

RINGING CENTRES

Between the two wars there were several strong centres of ringing in Derbyshire. Chesterfield had a fine treble ten band led by the famous Knight brothers and neighbouring Bolsover had a standard of eight bell ringing under the Mastership of John Flint which was second to none. Ripley had a good eight bell team aspiring to London and Bristol. Derby St. Andrew's had a 10 bell band ringing excellent Stedman Caters, but also proficient in even bell methods; Albert Ward is a name known to many of us today. Long Eaton had a good eight bell band and amongst six bell teams Sandiacre was quite well known.

In 1946 these traditional bands did not exist except perhaps at Bolsover, where the tradition of good striking on eight bells has been maintained, although the strength of the band has waxed and waned.

Whilst the Derby St. Andrew's band had virtually disappeared St. Peter's, Derby, led by the well balanced captain Jack Glew, who was Ringing Master for 50 years, soon, aided by the St. Luke's ringers, established a most popular practice which attracted ringers from as far as Ashby, Burton and Nottingham. This practice has continued under Alfred Mould, a highly qualified ringer of infinite patience, up to the present time.

By the early 50's the Derby Cathedral band, hitherto very weak, had grown and established a Surprise Royal practice and became the centre of ten bell ringing in the diocese. Harold Taylor achieved and maintained this situation.

Later on in the 50's George Freebrey established a good practice at St. Andrew's, Derby, and it was possible to attend three first class practices a week for those who were keen enough.

In the Chesterfield area there has been no sustained centre of ringing other than Bolsover, but at Old Whittington a very good standard of Minor ringing has been established for many years.

In the Peak District Darley Dale has always had a reasonable Sunday service band led by George Paulson and Herbert Taylor, but has varied in strength but now, blessed with the Rev. St. John Smith as Rector, there are signs of increasing strength.

Burbage and Fairfield, Buxton, are the only other two Peak towers with any continuity and these have produced several first class ringers of whom perhaps Brian Woodruffe is the most well known.

The Ilkeston District had fine practices at Ilkeston and Sandiacre for a few years after the war, but these declined. Sandiacre soon revived and in the last few years the Sawley band, following David Marshall's return, has provided a good practice for the area.

One other most important occurrence in the area was the establishment at West Hallam of an evening institute bell ringing class started by Gordon Halls in 1960 and continuing successfully today. This has gradually produced ringers in six bell methods and recently in eight bell methods to provide the nucleus of proficient bands in the whole District.

OFFICERS AND PERSONALITIES

The D.D.A.C.B.R. has never had a great ringing personality to dominate it which perhaps is a good thing since it is probably for this reason that it is administered by a strong committee.

The first officers were Jack Bailey as vice-president and who is still a vice-president, Walter Steen as treasurer and still a faithful member and William Lancaster who, as hard-working general secretary, did most to launch the new Association. He served for five years, then became vice-president until 1957.

The Association has been very fortunate with general secretaries having had only two—Arthur B. Cooper for eight years, followed by Burley P. Morris. The same can be said of the treasurers, each of whom has been very efficient, particularly the present one, Joseph C. Woolley, who does far more than his office demands in safeguarding the financial interest of the organisation.

Since 1957 the appointment of vice-presidents has been regarded as an honour for sustained service as an officer. To a lesser extent the status of honorary life member is awarded for sustained active membership.

Exclusively the successive Provosts of Derby have been presidents and the Very Rev. R. A. Beddows, occupying the office since 1954, has proved a great asset providing just the right stimuli to which the members have responded on each occasion It was he who, having heard the usual carping about finance for several years, galvanised the Association into appointing a financial action committee comprising Gordon Halls, David J. Marshall and Denis R. Carlisle, together with the secretary and treasurer, which had far-reaching effects on finance and increased activity in many directions. The financial problems were resolved. A Bell Repair Fund affiliation scheme was inaugurated which has made the fund most effective. An annual striking contest was introduced and proved very successful, coach tours to quarterly meetings proved popular and boosted attendance, ringing courses, both one-day and weekend residential, were well supported and in general much greater emphasis was put on the social aspects of bell ringing.

The Association now has three Central Council representatives, the longest serving one being Alfred Mould, who was representative for 15 years and always provided a most interesting account of the meeting.

During the years the following officers have become necessary, peal secretary, education officer, Bell Repair Fund treasurer and secretary, bell restoration consultants, architectural adviser and consultant to the Diocesan Advisory Board.

This latter office is held by Gordon Halls and in many other ways he has possibly made the greatest contribution towards making the Association the active body that it has become. The Association is pioneering in outlook and as an example of this dropped its non-resident life membership fee from 5s. to 2s. 6d., scorning to make a profit out of the enthusiasm of peal ringers who pay courtesy to the Association by ringing peals for it.

Another decision of which the Association is justifiably proud is in setting itself the target of raising £1,000 towards the Provost's Cathedral Appeal Fund, although it has yet a long way to go.

Each District has its own committee which together form the general committee. Notable in District officers are Malcolm Phipps, who has been invaluable as secretary of the Chesterfield District and Gladys and Alex Richardson who, together, have for many years made the greatest contribution towards keeping the geographically difficult Peak District active. About four general committee meetings are held each year at Matlock and these are extremely well attended despite long travelling distances, the number ranging from 25 to 30.

MEMBERSHIP

With regard to the numerical strength of the Association there were 180 members in 1946 and this rose to 287 by 1950. It must be remembered that the large majority of ringers at that time were trained before the war and there was very little effort put into training new recruits and inevitably the number dropped back to 250 between 1953 and 1956 after which the total once again rose due to recruitment and more enlightened teaching methods.

The total apparently fell back to 250 in 1960 but this was due to a more realistic appraisal of the numbers on the basis of those who actually paid subscriptions. Since 1960 the total has increased to nearly 400.

There are around 80 churches with five or more bells in the diocese and today 55 of these have some ringers who are members of the D.D.A.C.B.R. and about 38 have the bells rung reasonably adequately for Sunday service. This may seem deplorably low, but in 1947 the figure was about 24.

PEAL RINGING

There has always been plenty of interest in peal ringing in the Association, although it is not prolific. The total will reach 1,200 this year which indicates an average of 57 a year.

Even bell methods are the most popular on six and eight bells, advanced Surprise ringing being the target. On ten bells interest is divided evenly between Caters and Royal. Hardly any twelve bell peals are rung because there are no rings of twelve in the diocese.

Generally speaking the standard of striking is not good, but the technical standard is reasonably high amongst the peal ringing members. The standard of striking is improving as more interest in this is created by striking contests and more peals are "stood" for poor striking.

THE FUTURE

It is difficult to predict what will happen, but it is interesting to reflect that whereas church membership has seriously declined in the last two decades ringing has more than held its own.

Fewer rings of bells will become available because new churches are being built without provision for rings of bells and some churches with rings of bells are being pulled down. There is more tendency for requests to ring being refused probably because of the noise nuisance. For this reason the D.D.A.C.B.R. is paying some attention to sound control, and also to maintenance and augmentation of existing rings.

The Association appears to be firmly founded and there is reason to expect some expansion in strength.

From this review of the history of the Association it would appear that the diocese has benefited from the dissolving of the old M.C.A.

D. R. CARLISLE.

Southwell Guild Doubled its Membership

THE Southwell Diocesan Guild, like its compatriots, the Derby Diocesan Association, the Leicester Diocesan Association and the Midland Counties Guild, was founded in 1946. It was formed by the amalgamation of what was left of the Nottingham District of the Midland Counties Association and its near neighbour, the North Notts Association. These two Societies, which were all but derelict due in no small part to the recent war and the ban on church bell ringing, came together to form the two Districts of the new Guild.

The chairman of the old Midland Counties Association and Vicar of West Bridgford (the late Canon R. F. Wilkinson) became its new chairman, and the Bishop of Southwell (the Rt. Rev. Russell Barry) its president. Enthusiasm at a new venture was soon engendered by the hon. general secretary (the late Tom Groombridge, jun.), and before the end of the first year a third District in the Newark area was formed. At the end of the first year membership stood at 213, including 46 newly-elected members. No less than 60 of the present members can look back and say "I was a founder member of the Guild." These 213 members represented 37 different towers of the then 86, there being at this time four rings of ten, 17 of eight, 41 of six and 24 of five.

Peals in the first year totalled 31, the majority being rung in and around Nottingham, but the honour of the peal for the Guild belongs to Ordsall, with a peal in three Minor methods on January 12th, 1946.

The death of Tom Groombridge, jun., on May 24th, 1947, left a gap which, with the Guild in its infancy, caused no small setback, and it is much to the credit of his successor, Mr. J. W. Raithby, that this was soon overcome. Jim remained as general secretary for the next 13 years.

Membership, despite setbacks, continued to rise, slowly but surely, and the 300 mark was passed in 1950. Peals were becoming more widespread, and the 100th was rung at Greasley on November 24th, 1948, the average up to this time being around 30 per year. This was soon increased to nearly 50 per year, and the 500th was rung on January 7th, 1956, at Winthorpe.

With increasing membership a new step was taken in 1958, when a fourth District, centred on Mansfield, was created, and at the end of 12 years membership had reached 349.

The year 1960 saw the retirement of Mr. J. W. Raithby from the secretaryship and the election of his successor, Mr. W. L. Exton.

SUCCESS OF SMALLER DISTRICTS

The creation of smaller and more easily-worked Districts had its reward in much greater increases in membership, with a result that no less than 119 additional members were added in the next four years, and a further District, the Bingham District, was formed in 1962. The Guild now has five Districts in an area which contains only 92 towers with five or more bells.

The year 1962 also saw for the first time the installation of a ring of 12 bells in the Diocese, the old eight at Southwell being recast into a ring of 12 with a flat sixth by the kind generosity of Sir Stuart C. Goodwin. The almost unique but difficult ringers' gallery was filled in and a bright new ringing room created. The first 12-bell peal for the Guild, Stedman Cinques, was rung on September 21st, 1962, conducted by J. L. Millhouse and, thanks to the assistance received from neighbouring Guilds, contained no less than ten resident members of the Guild.

The year 1963 was a sad one for the Guild, in that its chairman, Canon R. F. Wilkinson, died on April 10th, and its first president, Bishop Barry, retired in October. Mr. F. W. Midwinter, the vice-chairman, was elected to the chair, and the new Bishop, the Rt. Rev. Gordon D. Savage, became its second president.

100 PEALS IN A YEAR REACHED

The 1,000th peal for the Guild, Stedman Triples on the light eight, was rung at Southwell on October 24th, 1964. The second 500 took just over a year less than the first. The year 1964 also saw for the first time a total of over 100 peals for the Guild in a year, the total being 120.

By the end of 1966 membership had again showed an increase and the 500 mark was passed, the year closing at 521. These now represent no less than 65 different towers.

Bell restorations and augmentations have taken place almost continuously and during the 21 years the bells in no less than 40 of our towers have been through the bellfounders' hands. Twenty-one have been rehung, including Balderton and Granby, which have since been augmented, and 19 have been augmented, the majority with rehangings. This has resulted in 47 additional bells being added, not including all those which have been recast, and there are now two rings of twelve, three of ten, 23 of eight, 45 of six and 19 of five.

What will the next 21 years provide? A membership of 1,000 with sufficient members to ensure that all our bells are rung Sunday by Sunday, more restorations and augmentations, perhaps 100 rings of bells? Who knows? Only the future and the efforts we are all prepared to make will eventually tell.

W. L. EXTON,
Hon. General Secretary.

21 years Achievement for Leicester Guild

FROM 1882 Leicestershire had been part of the Midland Counties Association and for many years was a very active District. After the lifting of the war-time ban on ringing many young ringers were enrolled and thoughts were expressed that the three M.C.A. Districts of Hinckley, Loughborough and Leicester did not effectively cover the diocese from an Association point of view. So were sown the seeds from which the Leicester Diocesan Guild grew, due to the untiring efforts of the late Harold J. Poole, who became its founder president.

From January 1st, 1946, when the Guild commenced as a separate organisation, covering the Diocese of Leicester, progress has been continuous. Three new Districts were formed which made a total of six Districts, and this resulted in towers being visited much more often than prior to 1946.

MEMORABLE FESTIVAL

During the years that followed many names and functions came to notice. In 1947 the Guild Festival was held on Saturday, October 25th, to mark the coming of age of the restoration of the Leicester Diocese. Thirty-three Associations and Guilds from all parts of the country and Ireland were represented at the dinner when 270 people were present. A dance followed at the De Montfort Hall, attended by 1,200 people, and as a result of the weekend the Bell Repair Fund benefited by £101 19s. 2d. It is interesting to note that the festival secretary for that occasion was Miss J. Poole, who is now the president of the Guild. A festival has been held every year since 1947, and the Guild, in celebrating its own 21st birthday in 1967, is also commemorating the ruby year of the diocese.

From the small donation received from the M.C.A. the Guild developed the existing Bell Repair Fund, and no less than 37 towers have received grants from between £5 and £50 each. Attempts are now being made to increase the source of income for the fund and it is hoped that even larger donations may be given to P.C.C.s within the diocese who will be attempting restorations or augmentations to their bells.

HIGH PEAL STANDARD

Leicester has always been noted for its prolific peal ringing on all numbers of bells—both 'in hand" and on tower bells—and in methods to suit the capabilities of all ringers—the total at the end of 1966 being 3,768. For many years the Guild was "top of the league" and many notable individual performances were recorded. Mention must be made of the performance of the multi-Minor method ringing by the Copt Oak band, and also the Cathedral band, which explored many new fields in Surprise Maximus. The tradition of handbell ringing, the standard of which had been set very high by members of the M.C.A. in the early 1900's, viz.: silent Stedman Cinques, was maintained under the leadership of Harold Poole, when the first peals ever of Surprise Royal and Maximus "in hand" were rung. It is pleasing to note that peals of these standards are still being recorded.

Two names will go down in history as "true sons of Leicestershire" Mr Ernest Morris, the author of many books of interest to campanologists, was the first person to complete 2,000 peals, which he accomplished in 1961. The other is that of Mr. Harold Poole, who reached the figure of 1,000 peals and had the distinction of ringing 100 peals in six months and holding the record for most peals rung in a year, namely 143. Other members have served the Exercise by their compositions; to mention but a few, Frederick H. Dexter, John O. Lancashire and Ernest Tipler.

NOTED HOSPITALITY

Much of the Guild's success has been due to the friendliness, hospitality and warm welcome its members have given to visitors from other areas. Indeed on two occasions in the same year two national Societies, viz.: the National Guild of Police Ringers and the Ladies' Guild, visited Leicester to celebrate landmarks in their history, the former 21 years and the latter 40 years.

The Guild, although comparatively young, felt its status was officially acknowledged when the Central Council accepted its invitation to visit the diocese for its conference in 1956. It also looks back with pride to July 27th, 28th, 1963, when the extent of Plain Bob Major was completed at the Loughborough Bell Foundry, conducted by Robert B. Smith (imported, matched and now exported!). The following year, recognition was again achieved when Peter Staniforth was included in the band who visited Washington, U.S.A., for the dedication of the Gloria in Excelsis tower.

In summing up the first 21 years of the Guild, foundations were laid by members of the M.C.A. and it is pleasing to note the younger element of the diocese taking over leadership. In particular, mention must be made of Brian G. Warwick, who held the office of general secretary for ten of these years when the Guild was at its transitional stage. His hard work must be an example for all to follow. In quoting the words of a former general secretary, Mr. W. A. Wood: "Let us take for our motto, 'Each for all,' not adopting a parochial attitude, but all working for the general good of the Guild and of ringers generally," we look forward with hope that our past glories will be enhanced in the future.

PETER J. STANIFORTH,
Member of the M.C.A. and Past President of the Guild.

MIDLAND COUNTIES GUILD

PRIOR to the decentralisation of the Midland Counties Association the Burton-on-Trent District—now Midland Counties Guild—was looked upon as the "Cinderella" District of the M.C.A., and that still applies as the present Guild still remains the smallest of the four Guilds formed 21 years ago.

In 1946 the M.C. Guild commenced with 14 towers and 138 members, with officials: President, Mr. W. W. Worthington; chairman, Mr. B. G. Key; treasurer, Mr. J. H. Brittan; and secretary, Mr. J. W. Cotton.

During the 21 years some progress has been made for the Guild now covers 21 towers. The membership remains about the same, and the finances continue in a healthy state. Meetings have been arranged at two monthly intervals, with attendances around an average of 30 per meeting, whilst 30 to 40 peals are rung each year.

Four years ago the Guild commenced an annual dinner festival, which each year has been well supported.

Over the 21 years the Guild has been well served by its three presidents: Mr. W. W. Worthington, Ven. H. E. FitzHerbert and Mr. B. Worthington, grandson of the first president. Likewise Mr. B. G. Key, Mr. W. H. Curson and Mr. R. A. Welton have acted as chairmen, whilst Mr. J. H. Brittan (treasurer) and Mr. J. W. Cotton (secretary) have been officers since the formation of the Guild in 1946.

BREDGAR NOW HAS A SIX

We hear that a first-class job of restoration has been made at Bredgar, Kent, by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. The four old bells are now, for the first time, in tune with each other and the two new trebles blend in excellently with them.

The rededication on September 16th will be performed by the Rural Dean of Sittingbourne, the Rev. Leslie Wilkinson, whose son, Peter, is a very keen ringer and who has a flourishing band at his own church (Eastchurch).

OBITUARY

MR. HERBERT GATES

AN APPRECIATION

Herbert Gates, or "Herby" as he was affectionately called, came to Hertfordshire, as far as I know, from Caythorpe, Lincs, after the first World War. He first went to Northaw, where he came under the wing of Bruce McKie and then, in 1919, to Hemel Hempstead. The writer soon found him out when he came to the area in 1922 and very soon included him in district and local peals. He was a very conscientious, regular Sunday service ringer, quite a reliable striker, but like others a difficult person to put right if he made a mistake. Herby was always ready to have a go at various methods, hence the variety in his 61 peals.

In 1944 and after the second World War he attached himself to the Apsley tower for a few years and helped with the "build-up" then taking place. He surprised the writer after a bout of 'flu by asking for London, and proved he had done his "homework" by ringing it faultlessly, even at 68. He was a member of the Cumberland Youths, ringing a peal in 21 methods, on the 5th, for that Society.

Latterly he was losing his sight, but this did not deter him from attending to ring, which he did until a few days before entering hospital. Fortunately he did not have a long stay there for he was soon called to rest. Some of his friends attended the West Herts Crematorium for the final act and later that evening rang a quarter peal in his memory at his own tower. Others who would have been present did not know of his demise as they were on holiday; but it is hoped to attempt a peal later on in his memory.

His wife predeceased him and there were no children, so the memory keeps on with his old friends in this District and in Lincolnshire.

His peal list is appended:—

Minor, one method to 21 (also Cambridge, London and seven Surprise), 30; Grandsire Triples 4, Plain Bob Major 16, Little Bob Major 2, Wellington Little Court 1, Single Oxford Major 1, Kent T.B. Major 4, Oxford T.B. Major 1, Double Norwich 1, New Cambridge Major 1. Total 61 (60 for Hertford County, 1 for Society of Royal Cumberland Youths).

W. A.

MR. NORMAN CHADDOCK'S 200 PEALS AS CONDUCTOR

These include many peals of Plain Bob Minor, Major, Royal and Maximus, also the following:—

Grandsire Doubles, Triples, Caters and Cinques; Stedman Doubles, Triples, Caters and Cinques; Surprise Minor, Major, Royal and Maximus; Little Bob Major and Royal; Double Norwich Major and Caters; Treble Bob Major and Royal; Spliced T.B. Major; Spliced Plain and Little Bob Royal; Plain Bob Triples; Minor in 2, 3, 4, 5 and 7 methods; peals in a variety of Single Surprise Major methods and Spliced Surprise Major including Pitman's four with all the work for every bell.

His peals as conductor include a "Family" peal of Minor, a married couples' peal of Major, a Sheffield Society all-officers' peal, a peal of Bob Major with all his own lady pupils and a peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major on Rotherham back eight with all his own pupils at that tower.

HERTS COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Visitors from the Northern and St. Albans Districts and also from Chelmsford were very welcome at the Eastern District's evening meeting at All Saints', Hereford, on August 12th, otherwise it would have been a poor meeting. In the absence of the Ringing Master, the secretary took charge, and ringing ranged from rounds for learners to Cambridge Major and Stedman Caters.

Letters to the Editor

YORK BELLFOUNDER'S WINDOW

Dear Sir,—I think that for the record someone ought to correct one statement in your most interesting article on the Bellfounder's Window at York.

The window shows, apparently, a bell mounted on a spindle passing right through the crown; on the end of the spindle is a crank which a boy is turning; and the bellfounder is holding a long curved tool against the surface of the revolving "bell." Your article describes this as "tuning a bell," but surely this is most unlikely. I have never heard of tower bells being tuned at all at this period, and even if they were occasionally tuned I have never heard of a bell being tuned by the removal of metal from the outside.

What is happening in this picture is more interesting than tuning, because it represents a technique which is no longer used in England—the use of a model for making the mould. On the spindle is built the core, and over this is built the full-scale model of the bell, either in clay or in wax or tallow; it is this model which the founder is shown shaping in the window. The technique is described by a German monk called Theophilus in his fascinating book "De Diversis Artibus"; the core is made, and then the tallow model laid on it; then the spindle is mounted on pivots with a crank at one end, and "with the boy who turns it sitting ready you shape it with tools suitable to the work"—exactly what the window depicts. Wax and tallow were still in use for small bells in 1320, but tower bells were mostly made from clay models.

When the model was complete more loam was applied to the outside to form the cope, and then the whole was baked, melting the wax or tallow and rendering the clay friable and easily removed.

The only discrepancy in the window is that Tunnoc is shown shaping a model which already has all its ornament applied. This must be artist's licence, enabling Tunnoc to be shown engaged in one of the most interesting and typical parts of his work, and at the same time showing what pretty bells he could make. One doubts whether his furnace was quite the elegant Gothic affair shown in the window, but after all this is a decoration, not a diagram.—Yours sincerely,

JOHN G. M. SCOTT (Rev.).

Exeter.

DOUBLES NAMES CORRECTIONS

Dear Sir, — Reference the peal rung at Bronllys and conducted by Colin A. Lewis (page 558), most of the methods named by Mr. Lewis have been named already:—

New Bob—Grandsire Single is called Hendred.
New Bob—All Saints Pl. is called St. Merryn.
New Bob—O.D.S. is called Sherewell.
Huntspill—Grandsire Single is called Radlett.
Huntspill All Saints Pl. is called Hadham.
Huntspill O.D.S. is called Shillingstone.
St. Vedast—Grandsire S. is called St. Breward.
St. Vedast—All Saints Pl. is called Chippingham.

As far as I know, New Bob, Huntspill and St. Vedast with Grandsire Extremes have not been named. Mr. Lewis's names for these have been noted.

Maseley should be Haseley.—Yours faithfully,

ROY H. JONES.

WEDDING RINGING CUPIDITY

Dear Sir,—When one of our local Sandiacre, Derbyshire, band announced that he was getting married, we naturally wanted to ring for the wedding. This would normally have been at Eastwood, but as the rebuilding of the church, recently gutted by fire, was not completed the wedding was tranferred to Greasley, Notts, where there is a good ring of eight.

Our tower secretary, the father of the ringer in question, wrote to the Vicar of Greasley for permission to ring the bells and to our surprise this was refused on the grounds of "fairness to our own ringers" and the requirement of "having a full team who are used to ringing together and who are familiar with the bells."

Explanatory correspondence followed and we were informed that we were not welcome to ring for the wedding but if we persisted we could ring but a fee of £5 5s. would still be imposed.

The Vicar of Greasley is most generous in granting permission for peals to be rung at this tower and I have no doubt that had I requested the bells for a peal after the wedding it would normally have been granted; I can only assume that the motive for this decision was one of cupidity. The Vicar, of course, is at liberty to do what he likes regarding the use of the bells, but I am astonished to see such an attitude in the ringers of Greasley, which is so much at variance with the spirit of our organised bellringing fraternity. —Yours faithfully,

DENIS R. CARLISLE.

Sandiacre.

FAKED PEALS OF 100 YEARS AGO

Dear Sir,—Are faked peals a modern idea? In the Osborne MSS. in the British Museum the following peals are mentioned:

Woodfield, Suffolk, January 27th, 1851, Kent T.B. Royal.

Leyton Undershaft, Wilts, January, 1852, Stedman Cinques.

I should be interested to know where these places are!—Yours sincerely,

K. W. H. FELSTEAD.

Southampton.

DOUBLES RECORD IS 180 M/V

Dear Sir,—I should like to point out that the peal rung at Staunton-on-Wye, Herts, on August 10th, did not contain the greatest number of Doubles methods and variations yet rung. A peal of 180 methods/variations was rung at South Collingham, Notts, on January 24th, 1966, in which I took part.

I was also under the impression that most of the variations listed on page 602 of last week's "R.W." have been both rung and named, although I have kept no comprehensive records.—Yours faithfully,

S. HUMPHREY.

London, S.W.

Mr. A. L. Bennett, of Buckfastleigh, is still holding his half day tours of Devon. His latest on August 26th visited the 6-bell towers of Ilsington, Coffinswell, Kingskerswell and East Allington. The Cambridge Minor on the last-named tower was the most enjoyable. The tea interval was spent at Totnes.

RIDGEWELL, ESSEX

Dear Sir,—Readers with copies of "Dove" may like to note that Ridgewell Church, Essex, has only five bells and not six. Although these are of considerable interest to the antiquarian (the third and tenor being 14th century bells), they are not at present of much interest to the ringer as the whole ring is hopelessly unringable and no doubt has been for a century or more. But a board on the wall of the tower records that on December 26th, 1814, "a true and compleat peal of bob major, of 5040 changes" was rung in 3 hours and 25 minutes "by the Ridgwell (sic) company of ringers." Only five names are given and there have never been more than five bells, so one can only guess at the meaning of "major."

Third by Robert Rider, circa 1375.

Tenor by "P. W.," 14th century. Weight approximately 12 cwt., strike note approximately F sharp.

The frame and most of the fittings no doubt date from circa 1600 and are in very bad condition. The rope circle, reading clockwise, is 1, 3, 5, 4, 2! All the bells have been "clocked" for years but the Rector agreed to my suggestion that the fourth should be disconnected immediately, as the indentation has become dangerously deep. The fact that points such as this so often escape the notice of archdeacon and architect, on their inspections, shows that there is a serious loophole in the Church's measures for the preservation of its heritage where bells are concerned. I believe that the Bath and Wells Association has tackled this problem; perhaps other Guilds and Associations could follow suit?—Yours faithfully,

CHRISTOPHER DALTON.

Leigh, Surrey.

RINGING A PART OF THE SERVICE

Dear Sir,—Some years ago a friend and I spent several hours getting a ring of six ringable; this resulted in a band starting which after a few years were a credit to the ringing world. A new incumbent came and ringing has had to stop.

At another tower the bells were sent to the foundry some years ago; money has been raised for many things but still no effort has been made for the return of the bells. Now on August 11th we read that bells are yet another adornment of religion and of doubtful merit. (This statement contradicts Psalm 150.)

The writer continues that those who hear the bells are coming to church anyway but, like others who prefer to separate bells from the rest of the service, he forgets that those same people once inside must hear the organ, the choir and the sermon.

It was therefore very uplifting to attend the S.W. District, Suffolk Guild, meeting at Hartest and listen to the Rector explaining that ringing is a very important part of the act of worship. How I wished afterwards that our secretary had taken shorthand notes of this sermon to enable me to send it to you for possible publication. Ringing is only made possible by a united effort, and many of those who continually complain about lack of support for the Church would do well if they examined the reason.—Yours faithfully,

LESLIE D. MILLS.

Bures, Suffolk.

AN IRISH RHAPSODY FROM STAFFS RINGERS

IT really started in 1958, when the Central Council visited Dublin. We decided then that a return visit was inevitable. The plans were discussed at Northampton in 1966 with a chat to that energetic man Fred Dukes. The members of the party were finalised to 14, and car ferry, sailing tickets and accommodation were acquired by the end of January this year. Things were mostly in the hands of the Irish Association secretary from then on and, as he had three parties to organise simultaneously, the result is a tribute to his ability. For our part, everything ran to the timetable like a well-oiled machine.

A week or so before the departure date we received a huge parcel of literature from the Irish Tourist Board, with brochures covering all the places we were likely to visit.

Although the car ferry ticket had been applied for in January, it had not been possible to obtain sailing tickets for all three cars on the same boat, so four of us travelled on the morning ferry and made a leisurely run from Dun Laoghaire to Limerick, arriving in time for an evening meal. The other two cars came on the evening ferry from Holyhead, leaving an hour late as the ship had to wait for the motor rail car, which had broken down en route from London. A further delay at the Irish Customs and it was 2 a.m. when they left the docks, and Limerick was not reached until 5 a.m.

SATURDAY NIGHT AT LIMERICK

Three hours' sleep and a hearty breakfast later and we assembled in the belfry at St. Mary's Cathedral. The Dean led us in prayer before we started to ring Bob Major. Unfortunately the peal was lost after two and a quarter hours. In the evening we had a most enjoyable hour at Mount St. Alphonsus. Here we were joined by some of the local ringers, who had come to ring for service. On leaving the belfry we were astonished to see the crowds of people attending service (this on a Saturday at 7 p.m.), so many that the church was packed with people unable to get inside.

On Sunday morning we had a quick run out to Bunratty Castle and Folk Park. A full day would not have been sufficient to take in all the beauty and history of this noble building and the houses which have been preserved for the edification of future generations. Then on to Doneraile (a pleasant six), where we rang seven 720's of Bob Minor in near tropical conditions. Cyril must have lost a stone judging by the perspiration on his shirt.

From Doneraile a long, picturesque run down to Bantry Bay to stay three nights at Castletownbere at the foot of the Slieve Miskisk Mountains. The Berehaven is the only hotel on this 30-mile-long peninsula, and if the water was cold the welcome from the locals fully compensated for it.

CATTLE AND THE NAVY

We awoke on Monday morning to the sound of cattle lowing and were told it was the monthly cattle fair, when all the farmers in the area bring their beasts and dispose of them by selling or by barter, all of this taking place in the main street. George viewed nthe various cattle with a distinctly jaundiced eye and did not appear very impressed. He certainly did not bid for any of them. We were advised that it was a good day to go sightseeing away from the village, so we motored round the wonderful "Ring of Kerry."

Tuesday was spent exploring the peninsula nearer to the hotel. Some ventured on the water in motor boats, but only Gordon faced the rigours of a dip in the sea. Arriving back at the hotel we found the Irish Navy in charge. A corvette had anchored in the bay and the boys in blue had been given shore leave.

Our hostess apologised for a slight delay in preparing our meal, as the fishing boat was a little late getting in! However, it was well worth waiting for! Our visit coincided with the annual regatta week, and a massive marquee had been erected in the town square and a dance arranged for each night. With the navy singing their traditional Irish folk songs and a dance band playing till the early hours, it was not such a tranquil scene as one may have expected in this isolated corner of Erin. Nevertheless, we would all gladly have stayed longer but the ringing programme was once more uppermost as we set off for Bandon. En route we stopped at Rosscarbery to look in the tiny Cathedral, where the five bells are silent. We saw scaffolding round the tower and hope this is an omen for good.

At Bandon the Rector and local ringers met us and joined in prayer before ringing the six (14 cwt.), where one peers round the clock pendulum framing to find the other ropes. Not all the ladies were able to negotiate the ladders to the ringing chamber. A short roadside stop for sandwiches, then on to Cork, passing on the way numerous horse-drawn caravans which can be hired in this area. At Cork we were met by Mr. Bogan. We were impressed by the tuneful eight, though they are somewhat noisy in the ringing chamber. Another long run brought us to Waterford, the bells here being pleasant to hear and easy to handle. Once again we were made welcome by the Dean. Dusk was drawing on by the time we reached Enniscorthy, where we were staying the night. This little town standing on the River Slaney possesses a castle and two fine churches, one of them housing a bell (about 30 cwt.) which would make an excellent tenor to a ring.

On Thursday we travelled to Kilkenny. The massive ringing chamber and its close proximity to the bells adds atmosphere to the musical ring.

BELLS WENT DRY

A peal attempt was scheduled at Arklow in the afternoon and we arrived to find Fred Dukes awaited us. A good start was made for Stedman Triples but the peal attempt was abandoned after one and a quarter hours when the third and fourth bells went dry.

Next morning we travelled to Blessington via the Vale of Avoca and Glendalough. We found the ring of six almost unringable and the ropes in poor condition. We were told later that the Dublin ringers visit the tower frequently to ring for service. Stout fellows! We all enjoyed our lunch at the Devonshire Hotel, which adjoins the church, and admired the view of the lakes from the Rector's gateway.

From Blessington a run over the Wicklow Mountains, covering mile after mile of glorious scenery before arriving at Bray. The disappointment at not hearing the tenor (due to clapper trouble) could not dim the spell of ringing on this magnificent ring, and all want to return to hear the full octave. We were met here by Peter Brown from Dublin, who had arranged extra ringing for us in the evening at St. George's, Dublin. After this, George Roobottom's unerring instinct led us to the Yacht at Clontarf, without doubt the finest hostelry on this coast.

Our disappointments at Limerick and Arklow were somewhat alleviated on Saturday, when we rang a good peal of Stedman Triples at Drogheda in memoriam to Albert Greene, the last surviving founder member of the Irish Association.

George and his passengers had to leave on Sunday afternoon, but with co-operation and organisation on the part of the Dublin ringers it was possible to visit St. Patrick's, Christ Church and St. John's (Augustinian Church) and ring at all of them before lunch at the Four Courts and saying au revoir. Although somewhat depleted by their departure, we were able to ring at Christ Church for Evensong and thence to St. George's to wind up the tour with an excellent quarter peal of Grandsire Triples for evening service, which was attended by all of us.

Space will not permit mention of all the names of those to whom we are indebted for a wonderful holiday as well as a ringing tour of all the available towers in Eire. Without the ready assistance of Fred Dukes it would not have been possible and without his efficient organisation it would not have worked out so smoothly. So to Fred we offer our sincere thanks.

Members of the ringing tour were from St. Lawrence's Church, Gnosall, Stafford, St. Paul's Church, Burton-on-Trent, St. Bartholomew's Church, Penn, Wolverhampton.

Treble Bob Minor and Splicing

BY THE PROFESSOR

Finally let us look at the system of splicing termed "grid" or "pattern" splicing and termed by A. G. Driver "Composite Courses."

If the path of the fifth in A. G. Driver's arrangement is traced through it will be found to follow the path traced by the individual bells in ringing Old Primrose Surprise from lead-head to lead-end. Reduced to its bare essentials it will be found that when the 5th bell is in:

(a) 2nds or 5ths, Primrose or Cambridge is rung.
(b) 3rds or 6ths, Norfolk or Ipswich is rung.
(c) 4ths, Hull or Bourne is rung.

The 5th itself rings, as it were, Old Primrose throughout, varying only the leads by 2nds or 6ths.

The policy pursued by the 5th in 720 (i) (Fig. 14) is followed by the 6th in 720 (ii) but I leave the ringers to work this out for themselves. There are quite a few 720's based on this system, many of which are quite interesting to ring.

I would, however, like to conclude by making one or two comments about the well-known 720 in 13 methods by A. G. Driver (Fig. 15).

It will be seen that: Oxford is rung with the 6th in 3rds and 4ths, Sandal or Duke of Norfolk, etc., with the 6th in 2nds and 6ths, and Wath or Pontefract Delight, etc., with the 6th in 5ths.

The difficulty encountered in ringing this 720 is the changeover in 3–4 from forward to backward hunting or vice versa. Although we have previously touched upon the transition at the lead-ends from one method to another and there are more difficult transitions to be encountered than those in this 720, nevertheless, once the principles of this have been mastered, there should be no great difficulty in tackling others.

Very little difficulty should be encountered in (i) and (iii) in Fig. 16, where 6ths place is made at the lead-end, the change from one method to the next being straightforward, but in (ii) and (iv) when 2nds is made, difficulty will probably be met in 3–4. If one tries to memorise the actual work done in 3–4 there are some rather peculiar duties to learn, but one of the chief causes of breakdown at these points is that in cases of misunderstanding one, or both, of the ringers tends to finish up going the wrong way. Normally, if there was no change of method in, say, example (ii), the 2nd would move to 5–6 and the 4th as first bell to lead and, if there is a muddle, ringers tend to persist in this general direction.

Strangely enough, if this lead-end was the end of a touch or a 720, and a change of method was made, most if not all of these difficulties would vanish. The moral of this is to learn how each bell starts from rounds and regard the new lead as a fresh start, watching carefully whether one's bell falls into 3rds or 4ths at the backstroke when the treble is leading. But I am repeating myself.

In conclusion, may I express the hope that these brief notes may be of service to some ringers, as, although far from being a comprehensive view of the subject, they will, I hope contain enough information and guidance for further progress.

BRISTOL.—At St. Ambrose's, on Aug. 13th, 1,260 Plain Bob Triples: A. C. Baker 1, N. Dawson (first "inside") 2, B. Martin 3, Mrs. G. M. Hunt 4, F. J. Sampson 5, T. Newlands 6, D. J. Hunt (cond.) 7, J. Williams 8. For Evensong.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. I. Hunt, whose letter was posted in the Bristol area, cannot expect publication unless he sends his name and address.

A busy committee convener of the Central Council makes an appeal to correspondents to enclose a stamped addressed envelope for replies. The suggestion is to be commended.

Robert C. Kippin appeals for a little less of "Noddy" correspondence. "A joke's a joke, but this has gone on far too long. Let's keep a sense of decorum in our paper," he writes.

In aid of Midhurst Bell Restoration Fund, a bell quiz has been organised with a shilling entrance fee. For details, write Goodman, June Lane, Midhurst. There are 70 questions.

To honour the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Poyner, a peal was attempted at Babworth. A broken rope, occurring too late for a second start, was a big disappointment.

Our story of a peal attempt at Lowestoft being lost through "lack of suspension" in one of the ringers' trousers (see "R.W.", August 18th) was prominently featured in the "Daily Mirror" of August 30th with an interview with Ralph Bickers, the ringer in the predicament.

There was a good response, particularly by people from other Districts, at the St. Albans District meeting on August 9th. Mr. A. R. Carter was transferred from the non-resident to resident ringing membership. Next meeting, King's Walden, September 16th.

Mr. Arthur G. Mason rang his 50th peal of Maximus at St. Peter's, Nottingham, on August 28th. It was Cambridge Surprise, conducted by Brian Harris. During the week-end he rang in peals also at St. Albans and Swaffham, Norfolk.

During the recent Lancashire Peal Week a peal of note was the one of Cambridge at Chorley, where the two ladies took control by ringing the seventh and tenor and calling the peal. Margaret Fort rang the tenor and Maryl Fielden rang the seventh and conducted. A splendid effort by both.

UPHAM'S CAPTAIN WAITS 54 YEARS FOR FIRST PEAL

There were two "firsts" for ringers in the peal rung at Upham, Hants, on August 23rd, one of which was Miss Valerie Rushforth, who rang the treble. She learned to ring at St. Peter's, Petersfield, and is now at Keele University where she belongs to the Ringing Society. She rang a good peal and the band wish it recorded as a 21st birthday compliment to her.

The tenor ringer, Mr. Walter J. Stubbington, also rang faultlessly his first peal: he is captain of Upham tower, where all his family have at some time learned to ring. Mr. Stubbington still lives in the house where he was born, and the only time he left Upham was to fight in the first Great War. He started to ring in 1913 at the age of 13, when he was taught by his brother. The captain of ringers at that time was Mr. W. Kimber.

LEAD-HEADS AND LEAD-ENDS

By A. YORK-BRAMBLE

MR. A. S. HUDSON does well to point out ("Ringing World," page 570) the confusion that can arise through imprecise use of the term "lead-end." But his statement regarding handstroke and backstroke rows relates only to single hunt-controlled methods. It needs qualification, i.e. as to whether the method be single or twin hunt-controlled, or omni-working. The following may be helpful to learners in clearing the point.

A plain course of changes is divided into groups of rows known as "leads" or "divisions"; "leads" in hunt-controlled methods (such as Plain Bob) and "divisions" in omni-working methods, i.e. with no hunt-control (as in Stedman or Duffield). Incidentally, the number of such leads or divisions in the plain course is equal to the number of "working" bells. For example, in Grandsire Triples five, with two hunt-bells; and in Stedman Triples seven, all "working." ("Division" is the term used in the Central Council's Handbook).

Fig. 1 shows a number of skeleton rows from a course, with one lead or division marked off between the two division lines. Clearly there can be no doubt as to which of the rows in the "lead" is its "head" row and which is its "end" row. But the question at once arises as to how the design itself of the method is set within the lead; i.e. where the treble's leading rows occur if it be a hunt-trolled method; or where certain "key" work occurs if it be a non-hunt-controlled method. The answer lies in the fact that there is a convention in method design that regular methods must have symmetrical setting of design within the lead or division. (For the remainder of the discussion let us (properly) use the term "division" as applying for "lead" also.)

This factor of symmetry means that a division has reflective design about its mid-line; in other words, the pattern of the changes in the lower half, folded up over the upper half, will fit it exactly.

Fig. 2 shows a single-hunt (skeleton) method with the path of the hunt-bell (treble) set symmetrically in the division, and, of course, in the parts of the contiguous divisions shown above and below it. This is the standard arrangement in regard to the division parting lines in all hunt-controlled methods having one hunt-bell (treble) only. Note the nature of the stroke for each row—hand (h) or back (b).

Now consider methods with a twin-hunt-control—e.g. Grandsire. Here we find something rather different. Our two hunt bells are the treble and the bell in the hunt. Again their paths are to be symmetrically set with respect to the divisions. Fig. 3 shows how this is done. The division parting line has two leading blows above it, the treble's; and two leading blows below it, the bell-in-the-hunt's. This symmetry is maintained at the lying position (the "half-lead") and, in fact, throughout the division. This is confirmed in the Central Council's Handbook, where it points out that the division parting is mid-way of the four rows of the leadings of the two hunt-bells. The same is true of their lyings, mid-way behind. Now note the nature of the rows, h or b. The lead-head row is now at handstroke, and the lead-end row at backstroke. This, as seen, is just the reverse of the case of the single hunt-control method.

This brings us to the crux of the discussion. Groups of change rows, from the small division, through the course, and up to the "part" may each be conveniently and briefly referred to or identified by a particular row representing the whole group. In hunt-controlled methods this is a row in which the treble is at the lead, and, in fact, at backstroke. Now look again carefully at Figs. 2 and 3, and note in each case where the treble's backstroke-leading row occurs. In Fig. 2 (single hunt-control type of method) it is the lead-head row; but in Fig. 3 (twin hunt-control type of method) it is the lead-end row. To generalise, we may usefully employ a term covering the concept of both rows, namely, "Index," and we may now formulate a relevant rule:—

"Divisions, Courses and Parts of compositions may be identified and indicated briefly by a method's Index rows. In all hunt-controlled methods these rows occur at the treble's backstroke leading, so if the method is of the single hunt type the index row is a lead-head row; but if of the twin hunt type the index row is a lead-end row. In omni-working (non-hunt-controlled) methods the index rows may be either div-head or div-end rows according to the design in the division."

The requisite qualification of or addition to Mr. Hudson's definition, referred to at the outset, may be seen to be expressed in the foregoing rule.

COLLEGE YOUTHS' SHREWSBURY PEAL

The 175th anniversary of the dedication of St. Chad's Church, Shrewsbury, was commemorated by a peal of 5,175 Stedman Cinques on August 19th, rung by members of the Ancient Society of College Youths, all of whom are associated with St. Paul's Cathedral, London. In the picture are:—

Front row (left to right): Rev. B. K. Lunn, J. Chilcott (composer and conductor), R. Cousins, W. T. Cook and James Phillips (who took the picture by remote control).

Back row: A. Kench, P. A. F. Chalk, M. V. Chilcott, J. A. Waugh, D. Randall, L. Overington and M. P. Moreton.

R.U.S.C.R. WANDERINGS

June 21st saw Reading University ringers in Gloucestershire. Had great fun visiting Compton Bassett (yes, we know it's in Wilts), Westerleigh, Frampton Cotterell, Mangotsfield, Bilton, Warmley, Marshfield and Chippenham St. Andrew. The minibus arrived a traditional hour late, and rather wrecked earlier proceedings.

After ringing at Mangotsfield we were greeted by a dear old lady who thanked us profusely for ringing the bells for her birthday. We rather disappointed Ronald because he saw no smocked yokels with straw in their ears and cider mugs in hand in the heathen wilds of Gloucestershire.

The glorious weather (acknowledgments to the Met. Office) proved too hot for most of us and envious looks were cast at the coupé driven by the élite of the Society! We plodded on in a fiery minibus, gallantly steered by Fred Scott.

Many, many thanks go from the Society to Fred for driving the bus, to all friends who met us at the towers, and incumbents.

GUILD OF DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

Although the attendance was small, the quarterly meeting of the Exeter Branch at Sandford on July 29th proved to be very enjoyable. The annual meeting was fixed for December 11th.

MISS DIANE STREET MARRIED

[Courtesy "Surrey Advertiser", Guildford.

A former secretary of the Guildford District, Miss Diane Mary Street, of Godalming, was married on August 19th to Mr. Stuart William Holland, who was a fellow teacher with her at George Abbot's School, Guildford. The ceremony at Godalming Parish Church was conducted by a former vicar, Canon A. C. G. Oldham. The bells of the parish church were rung by Diane's friends before and after the service.

The bride wore a full-length white satin dress with lace bell sleeves and full-length train. Her headdress was of Swiss gentians and she carried a bouquet of apricot roses, lilies-of-the-valley and miniature gladioli.

The reception for 130 guests was held at the Chichester Hall, Witley, and the honeymoon is being spent in the Lake District.

While at Bishop Otter Training College, Chichester, the bride wrote a novel mathematical thesis on the weights of tenor bells in the country, giving average weights per county and drawing certain deductions. A summary was published in "The Ringing World".

ECUMENICAL WEDDING BELLS IN EDINBURGH

Denominational differences have never been an obstacle to friendly co-operation between the two ringing towers in Edinburgh — St. Cuthbert's Church of Scotland and St. Mary's Episcopal Cathedral—and two recent weddings have strengthened the tie still further.

On April 1st June Phillips, of the Cathedral, and Magnus Peterson, of St. Cuthbert's, were married in the Cathedral, and on August 11th Elizabeth Graham, of St. Cuthbert's, and Harry Glover, of the Cathedral, were married in St. Cuthbert's, and for each wedding a combined band rang both before and after the service—the joyful noise produced compensating to some extent for the absence of sunshine.

Magnus has been appointed to a lectureship in the University; it is hoped he and June will still be ringing in both towers. The Glovers have settled in Alva, and all are sorry to lose them as Edinburgh ringers. Fortunately, however, Alva is only a few miles from Alloa, where there is a light ring of eight and a shortage of ringers, so Harry and Elizabeth will be a welcome additon to the strength there.

MR. AND MRS. N. CHADDOCK LEAVE ROTHERHAM

On the evening of July 31st, in Rotherham Parish Church belfry, Mr. Alec Holroyd, on behalf of the ringers at the Parish Church, presented a handsome electric clock to Elsie and Norman Chaddock as a token of esteem and good wishes to them on their imminent departure to the East Riding of Yorkshire. Mr. Chaddock is taking up a senior post at Market Weighton County Secondary School in September. After about an hour's ringing, including Stedman Caters and 5-Spliced Surprise Major, and Bob Royal for the latest recruits, the party adjourned to the Drawbridge Hotel, where they were joined by the Vicar and his family, senior church officials and churchwardens and a few other close friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Chaddock have been associated with the Parish Church since 1938, when Norman taught Elsie to ring there, and he has been in charge of the ringing there for the last 15 years. He has also been on the P.C.C. for about 12 years and a people's warden for the last five years. During this time, helped by Elsie, Susan, John and other experienced pupils, he has trained bands at four other local towers.

Mr. Alec Holroyd succeeds him as captain of the tower and P.C.C. representative, and Mr. Stuart Armeson as Ringing Master. A farewell peal of Stedman Caters was lost when there was a shift course in the last course, but a later attempt for Bob Royal resulted in an excellent peal being rung.

A SUSSEX UNIVERSITY ROMANCE

Esher Parish Church was the scene of the marriage on Saturday, August 26th, of two prominent ringers, Mr. Michael J. Bew and Miss Catherine M. Powell.

Catherine had already been ringing in Surrey for several years when she became one of the first undergraduates at Sussex University in 1962. Mike came up to the same university in the following year and they were both very active members of the St. Peter's, Brighton, band and founder members of the University of Sussex Society. Brighton was sorry to lose them to Essex when, last year, Mike moved to Colchester to start his post-graduate research at the new University of Essex and was shortly followed by his fiancée, who has since been organising the computer there instead of the one at Brighton College of Technology. They have already done much ringing in Essex and will doubtless make an impact on the Essex Association in the future.

The marriage service was preceded by a peal of Plain Bob Major on Esher bells. The officiant was the Rev. E. Bugden, and the best man was Mr. Paul Kenrick, who used to share a flat with the bridegroom in Brighton. There were three bridesmaids, dressed very prettily in blue. Catherine had made her own gown and her train, which she designed herself, was a masterpiece, beautifully decorated with gold and silver bells. A reception for about 60 guests, including a good smattering of ringers, was held at Oxshott Village Centre. After the cutting of the cake a course of Grandsire Triples on handbells was rung by Angela Newing, Angela Wright, Ray Talbot and Bernard Stone.

We wish Mike and Catherine the very best of good fortune, health and happiness in the years ahead. A. N.

LOOKING BACK ON THE PAST

The wedding took place on August 12th at St. James' Church, Weybridge, between Martin J. Kirk, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kirk, of Kirkby-in-Ashfield, Nottingham, and Ann Teresa Lee, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Lee, of Netherby Park, Weybridge.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Pierre Dil.

The bride was attended by her sisters, the Misses Barbara and Judith Lee. The best man was Mr. Peter Noble, and the ushers were Messrs. John A. Harrison and Keith Walker.

The couple met at college in Chichester and they are both primary school teachers in Surrey. The bridegroom is a member of the recently-formed band at Guildford Cathedral.

The bells at Weybridge were rung after the ceremony by relations and friends of the couple and a quarter peal of Cambridge S.M. was rung at West Clandon after the reception, which was held at the High Pine Club, Weybridge.

LOOKING BACK

W. Stote's Peterborough Guild Memories

The photograph of 41 years ago from Mr. P. Amos, in your issue of August 18th, brings back memories of many friends I made in the Peterborough Guild between 1926 and the start of World War II.

I had cycled from Southam to Great Brington, a distance of 18 miles or so, and was very grateful for the practice I obtained, as with all the meetings of both the Daventry and Guilsborough Branches of the Guild. Towers with expert bands of ringers and regular practice nights were really hard to come by. So, as an 18-year-old with very limited means and the determination to make the grade as a ringer, I just had to do something or "bust".

I had rung my first touch of Bob Minor a few weeks previously on a visit to Allesley, then a 6-bell tower, where I now ring most Sunday evenings for service. It was Mr. Fred Wilford, the first Master of the Guild, who first started me on the road to progress. We were at a meeting at Guilsborough and he was one short for Kent Minor. I was persuaded to stand in, despite the fact that I had never looked at the method. He told me every bell to dodge with for the first two leads. After then the rest came easily. Lack of opportunity to practise with a progressive band was my chief trouble. I had both Cambridge and Superlative Surprise Major "taped" 18 months before I had a chance to strike a blow in either of them!

THE HANCOCKS OF WILLOUGHBY

I became very friendly with the Hancock family of Willoughby which, although in my own county of Warwick, is situated next to the county boundary. James M. Hancock and his two sons, Fred and George, had a set of handbells which they used to some good purpose. It was George who first persuaded me to try 1-2 to a course of Grandsire Doubles. We rang it straight off and then he called my first six-score "in hand" with himself ringing 3-4 and his father 5-6. He also showed me how to transpose the lead heads of Grandsire Doubles. This gave me an insight into composition, for which George has my everlasting gratitude James Merton Hancock passed away early in 1941, having been predeceased by his good wife a few years earlier. I remember them both with esteem and affection because they were more like a mother and father to me when I visited their house at Willoughby. The Hancock family have always been regarded as resident members of the Guild and stalwarts of the Daventry Branch in particular! George has been Branch president for a long time now and his brother Fred the indefatigable Branch secretary.

It also brings back the memory of the late Rev. W. H. Fearis, Rector of Welton, George's predecessor in office. He was elected Branch president at a meeting held at this church on April 10th, 1926, and held the office continuously up to the time of his death, about 1941. Although not a ringer himself, he was always happy in the company of ringers. He was very proud of his office and missed very few of the Branch meetings during the years of his presidency. Indeed a clergyman after a ringer's own heart!

Ernest Augustus Marsh, of Husbands Bosworth, Leics, was a constant visitor to meetings. A man of lovable disposition, a churchwarden and a practising Christian, he gained the respect and admiration of us all. He passed away suddenly in February, 1935. A cortege of 150 ringers followed his coffin to the grave. Greater evidence of the esteem in which he was held would be hard to find.

Grandsire and Plain Bob and perhaps Stedman Doubles were as much as they could manage at most meetings; but, in their humble way, they taught me much that has stood me in good stead over the years, and not confined to the sphere of ringing either! I was proposed as a non-resident member of the Guild at a meeting held at Dodford on November 7th, 1925. In all probability I could have held such membership longer than any other living ringer. I don't say that this is actually the case, but it is certainly not impossible. I would indeed be pleased to learn of any other living ringer who was elected to non-resident membership of the Guild at an earlier date than this!

The date given for the photograph being taken is three months too early. It was taken on July 3rd of that year. I was not ringing anywhere on April 3rd, 1926, that much I do know. Both you and Mr. Amos have my best thanks for the publication of the photograph. It has caused me to delve into the past and resurrect memories which, though they may not be recorded here, are none the less worthwhile recalling.

REDEDICATION

QUORN, LEICESTERSHIRE

In October, 1965, the Church of St. Bartholomew, Quorn, was extensively damaged by fire. The work of restoration is now almost complete and a Festival of Rededication will be held in early September.

The bells have been recast by John Taylor and Co. with new frames and fittings, etc. This hardly needs saying as after the fire the tower was an empty shell! The total weight of the bells is now about 47 cwt. as compared with the old weight of 59 cwt. The weight has been lessened somewhat to make it easier to hang the bells on one level in the confined space. The original inscriptions have been replaced plus the words "Recast 1967" and on the tenor the names of the present Vicar, the Rev. Robin Everett, and the churchwardens.

Sunday, August 20th, was observed as the Patronal Festival and during evensong the bells were dedicated by the Archdeacon of Loughborough, the Ven. Dr. H. Lockley, in the presence of a full congregation.

After the Third Collect the Archdeacon, Vicar and choir assembled under the tower for the Prayers of Dedication; the choir sang "Ding-dong merrily on high" and the procession returned to the chancel whilst rounds were rung.

Then followed prayers familiar to us all, taken from a number of Guild services; so to the excellent sermon by Dr. Lockley on the text "Thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways: to give knowledge of salvation unto his people". Touches were rung as the congregation left the church by ringers from six other towers, including the president and other officers of the Leicester Diocesan Guild and representatives of the Bell Foundry.

The important work of teaching learners (including the Vicar!) has already begun and practice night is Tuesday at 7.30 p.m.

PERSONAL

"Pleasant words are as an honeycomb, sweet to the soul, and health to the bones."—Proverbs xvi, 24.

Mr. BERNARD FAIRHEAD'S IRISH TOUR

A PARTY of ringers from Colchester and district had an enjoyable tour of Ireland, embracing both North and South during the week commencing Friday, July 21st, efficiently organised by Bernard Fairhead, with Fred Dukes supervising arrangements the other side of the water.

The sea crossing from Holyhead to Dun Laoghaire occupied Friday. Our first engagement was with the magnificent eight at Bray but the absence of the tenor clapper limited ringing to the front seven. The coast was followed to Arklow and then on to the fine ten at Wexford, but it was necessary for us to put on two ropes before Bob Royal and Grandsire Caters could be attempted. The night was spent at Foulkmills, amusement being provided by Mick Howes and Stephen Humphrey having a collapsed bed.

Sunday dawned a beautiful day and we rang for morning service at Waterford Cathedral. A shift course spoilt both the Stedman and Yorkshire. Other towers visited that day were Kilkenny and Doneraile and we stayed the night in a farmhouse at Bandon. A good touch of London was rung on the noisy six at Bandon the next morning before proceeding to Cork. The superb heavy eight at St. Finbarre's Cathedral sounded well to our Superlative. The rest of the day was spent admiring the wonderful scenery around the Killarney lakes.

PEAL LOST

Tuesday should have been the highlight of the week for eight of the party because a peal attempt was scheduled at St. Mary's Cathedral, Limerick. It was not to be, as two bells shifted after an hour's good ringing. This setback was soon forgotten when we were ringing on Limerick's excellent ten, and it was here that the best striking of the week was produced. Our residence at Kells that night was another "best of the week."

On Wednesday we crossed the border into Northern Ireland, heading for Belfast, where we were to stay for two nights, and ringing at Drogheda, Rostrevor, Hillsborough and Lurgan on the way. The next day we were due to ring at St. Donard's, Belfast, and St. Mark's, Dundela, where a reasonable half-course of Cambridge Royal was rung, Holywood and Carrickfergus.

HIGHLIGHT

A good touch of Yorkshire was rung on Friday at Coleraine and afterwards ringing at Ballymena and Enniskillen, reached only after some hectic driving and shouts of "Mind the tyres." The highlight of the week was the Plain Bob Maximus and Grandsire Cinques rung on Saturday at St. Patrick's Cathedral. Christ Church Cathedral was then visited, but the odd-struck tenor proved to be a bit of a handful. That was the final night of the tour and it was spent in an appropriate fashion with St. Patrick's ringers. The crossing to Holyhead on Sunday proved to be too much for some members of the party. Our thanks to all who helped in this enjoyable week, especially Fred Dukes and Bernard Fairhead.

JACK AND ROVER.

WILLIAM A. YATES WEEK-END IN LINCOLNSHIRE

MR. WILLIAM A. YATES' annual week-end tour is eagerly anticipated by many ringers from South Northamptonshire and North Bucks. It may be said that "a splendid time is guaranteed for all," and this year's tour was no exception. The southern part of Lincolnshire was chosen, mainly because it was an area not well known to many of the company. This proved a wise choice, as we had the pleasure of ringing some very good rings of bells and travelling through interesting agricultural countryside.

Six members of the party started the tour rather early by ringing a peal of Watford Surprise Major on the delightful bells at Edenham on July 13th, being joined by Martin Thorley and Ron Russell, afterwards meeting the remainder at the headquarters in Spalding.

The real business of the tour began on Friday. We journeyed north, stopping first at Surfleet. We managed to keep the 12 going throughout our visit here despite the sceptics' view that the ringing would be better on the back eight or ten. After a short but pleasant ring at Sutterton we climbed the seemingly endless staircase to the belfry at Boston. Some of the older members had to stop for a breather halfway up, but after a short wait for the belfry key, during which the stupendous view from this famous landmark was admired, we succeeded in ringing reasonable Cambridge Royal and Grandsire Caters. Everyone seemed to have an inexplicable thirst after ringing here.

CLOCK HAMMER DAMAGE

After lunch we moved west to Heckington. Edgar Cole, who was well known to some of the party, due to his frequent excursions into Northamptonshire, met us here. Journeying further inland we came to Ewerby. The ten bells here hang in a very impressive tower with a church to match, standing in picturesque surroundings. After a cup of tea in Sleaford we rang, or rather tried to ring, the bells in the Parish Church. Unfortunately, however, even our strongest members could not manage to pull the seventh up. Inspection revealed that the clock hammers were not pulled off properly and were gnawing huge chunks out of the wheel as the bell swung. Time did not allow for repairs, so we moved off again to Billingborough.

We tried to ring a touch of eight-spliced on this handy light octave, but apparently the conductor was still mourning his missed ring at Sleaford and forgot to call Pudsey, so we only rang seven. Ringing for the day should have finished here, but a young local kindly offered to let us join the practice at Horbling and afterwards led the way to the Abbey of Sempringham, where we rang a number of Minor methods on the pretty six.

Saturday dawned bright and clear and some of the party were awakened early by the arrival outside the hotel of stalls for the market. Nothing however seemed to disturb Our Man from Stony Stratford, and we were slightly late in starting at our first tower for the day, Pinchbeck. The Lincoln Guild Report notes these bells as excellent. They must have a very astute assessor as they go and sound very well. We then retraced our route through Spalding to Fulney. The bells were not to our taste at all, nothing being rung very well. The next tower was at Holbeach. We arrived early and had time for a thirst quencher before tackling the eight bells in the Parish Church. Use was made of the well-known Bailey Patent Touch Cleanerupper to reduce a well-known composition of Yorkshire by Mr. Pitstow to a plain course. After lunch we continued along the A.17, busy with holiday traffic, to Gedney, a church likened by certain itinerant members of the party to a church in Suffolk; was it Long Melford?

Next came Long Sutton, a church with one of the few lead-covered spires, and also a very enjoyable ring of eight bells. Some of our efforts were tape-recorded here. By this stage of the afternoon there seemed to be more interest in the England–Pakistan Test Match than in ringing. However, there were still two more towers to ring at before the end of the day, and the first of these was at Lutton. The bells are only a light six but are difficult to ring quickly, as we found much to our discomfort. There seemed to be yards of rope flying about. King's Lynn was the last tower of the day, a noble ten. After driving through a very heavy rainstorm we arrived back at Spalding, where the tour's accountant, Mr. Vickers, told everyone how much they were in the hotel's debt.

During Sunday service ringing at Spalding, Bill Yates presented Ron Noon with a small "thank you' gift for all he had done to make the week-end so memorable. Ron then suggested that we ring at St. John's, Peterborough, for 11 o'clock service. This we proceeded to. (Our thanks to Ray Daw for allowing us to join in the ringing.) Farewells were said here before we split up for the ride home, some stopping at Islip for the final round of the crib championship, the cream coming to the top, as usual.

Our thanks are due to all tower captains and incumbents of towers visited, and Ron Noon and Bill Yates for such a satisfactory tour.

COMMENT

WHEN RINGING IS A NUISANCE

By M. KING

QUITE often we read of nuisance bells disturbing the general public, a public which is all too conscious of any extra noise, as is evident from the protests over the sonic boom tests. The public will, however, tolerate noises which must take place—the noise of traffic in the streets, the cries of children playing, the barking of dogs, the cackling of farmyard hens and the ringing of bells prior to Sunday services. Admittedly there are those who will complain of any noise if it so happens to disturb them.

I am no legal expert, but I contend that it would be difficult for a member of the public to complain in the law courts about bells on Sundays. Perhaps not so difficult would be the case of a complaint against ringers practising on their bells every week at a certain set time. Still difficult would be a complaint against ringers ringing a full peal at a tower where such an occurrence is somewhat rare, or, for that matter, a District Society's meeting.

So when are bells a nuisance?

They are a nuisance when they are rung without due consideration to the public who have to listen. One such instance would be to ring at a tower in the centre of a city amidst offices and shops during the hours of the working day for a period of over one hour. However, if a full peal was rung at such a time (providing it was not on a day of national celebration), then the public would have every right to complain, because the bells would be a nuisance. Even blocking up a tower in order to effect sound deduction would not prevent the bells being heard by someone working in the vicinity. Such complaints have been noted in the columns of the Press (e.g. a peal at Goole about two or three years ago was rung during working hour and caused adverse comments).

But perhaps the most obvious case for when not to ring our bells (dedicated to God and not to the purpose of ringers who wish to create their own personal records) is during the hours from 9 p.m. to 9 a.m. The majority of people are by then taking their rest and although some will tolerate half-an-hour's ringing at either end of this 12-hour spell they certainly will not tolerate bells being rung at 5.30 a.m., as was the case in a recent peal at Huntington, Yorkshire. At this time, the day-time noises are, for the most part, absent. Any unusual noise is bound to disturb, and this includes muffled bells. Even muffled bells make a noise, and for two and a half hours this can add up to quite a lot of noise. That the noise of the muffled bells caused so many complaints to the Vicar so as to make him reduce the amount of ringing at his tower in the future surely is quite sufficient to say that the ringing was being a nuisance. If it was not a nuisance, why were there complaints?

This surely was a case where ringing was a nuisance. The ringers made an effort (so they claim) to reduce the volume of noise but it seems it was not sufficient. It would therefore be better for them, or anyone else who wants to ring bells at such a ridiculous time, to take to their senses and to leave their "selfish" desires to their imagination and certainly not inflict them on a public that could not care less whether Mr. "X" had rung six three-hour peals in a day.

So when we aim to ring a peal, let us think carefully about whether we are going to be a nuisance to the majority of the public or not.

CAMPANOLOGICAL HEARSAYS

YARMOUTH BELLMEN

Bellmen of Great Yarmouth Parish Church were required, as was the custom, to walk about the town uttering prayers for the souls of those who left money for that purpose. A similar practice was established at Bury St. Edmunds, and also at Peterborough, where in 1477 the bellman received 2d. for performing such duty.

DISLOYAL TOWER

Queen Elizabeth I loved bells, and to commemorate her visit to Cambridge on August 4th, 1564, "a merry din" was created on almost every bell in the town—Great St. Mary's Church excepted. For their oversight or unwillingness to ring, the ringers suffered a fine of 2s. 2d. to the Queen's Almoner's servant.

MAINTAINED EXCELLENT REPUTATION

Kettering bellringers of the 18th century were known for their excellent ringing. On February 28th, 1729, they rang a peal of Grandsire Triples in three hours and 18 minutes, after which it was asserted by various people that such performance could not be completed in less than three and a half hours. With their reputation at stake, the ringers rang the same length again on April 12th 1731, before "skilled judges," this time succeeding in 2 hours and 48 minutes, to the utter astonishment of their critics.

BELLS AND BOMBS

During the 1939–45 war an enemy aeroplane, flying above South Lincolnshire, dropped 14 high explosive bombs on Bicker. None of the bombs, one of which fell 20 feet from the fine Norman church, exploded. As a thanksgiving two new treble bells were added to the village's original ring of six.

BOYS RANG BELLS

Shrove Tuesday was eagerly looked forward to by youths at Lowick. On that day they were allowed to ring the church bells — or rather it should be said, jangle them—as they liked and for as long as they liked. This practice was eventually discontinued, and the parish clerk undertook the task of ringing the pancake bell. At Stanwick, boys from the Free School were allowed to jangle the bells for the same occasion. A similar tradition existed at Thrapston. Women and children of Islip were permitted to try and ring the bells on Shrove Tuesday on payment of a halfpenny. This was bad practice, really, and one imagines that a proportion of the proceeds went for the provision of new stays!

THIEVES IN THE NIGHT

At 5 o'clock on the morning of Trinity Sunday, 1766, the steeple of All Saints' Church, Fulbourn, Cambridgeshire, collapsed with a roar that prematurely awoke the village. The bells lay among the ruins, some badly broken. Parishioners, fearful that the bells would be stolen, mounted guard for several nights, armed with cudgels and blunderbusses. However, nothing untoward happened, and the watchers withdrew to the comfort of a hostelry. It was then that churchwardens under darkness lifted two bells from the debris, placed them on a wagon and conveyed them to a bellfounder, who paid a sum of money to those who purloined the bells. The proceeds from this illegal sale was for the renovation of Fulbourn's other church, St. Vigor's (so it is said). Aggrieved parishioners of All Saints' were not easily calmed until an Act of Parliament united both parishes on May 9th, 1776.

OUR PICTURE

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH, STAMFORD, LINCS.

By J. H. BLUFF,
Master of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild

THE origins of this fine church are shrouded in the mists of antiquity, like those of the town of which it is so elegant an ornament.

The church stands well, on an island site, rising from west to east, and dominating the square or market place. It retains much of its 13th century glory in the arcading of the south and east walls. The imposing battlements date from the last quarter of the 15th century, when extensive restoration was carried out by the brothers William and John Browne, wealthy merchants of the "Staple of Calais".

Towards the end of this period must be assigned the present very fine tower and spire. The tower rises at the north west corner of the church in three plain stages above a basement with panelling in the lowest stage; within the battlemented parapet rises the beautiful crocketed octagonal spire, an object of delicacy and beauty which can be seen from all the main approaches to the town.

The tower contains a ring of six bells with a 14 cwt. tenor, the back five being cast by Tobias Norris, the Stamford bellfounder, in 1674. The inscriptions on these are:—

Treble.—Hic nova campana Margaretta est nominata.

Third.—In multis annis resonet campana Johanis.

Fourth.—Newcast 1726.

The present treble was cast by Eyres, of St. Neots, in 1808.

Special features are the remains of two holy water stoups in the west wall, one near each of the entrance doorways. The font is of grey Purbeck marble, octagonal in shape and elaborately carved, and dates from about 1500.

Over the chancel arch is a shield with a heart of gold and a letter B in the centre. This is believed to represent the name of Browne, the family whose association with the parish was of such lasting benefit.

The church possesses several good specimens of memorial brasses, mostly to the memory of members of the Browne family. One small headless brass now fixed on the south wall formerly lay in the middle of the chancel and is in memory of Henry Wykys, Vicar of All Saints' from 1479 to 1508.

All the stained glass is modern, some of it very good. I would like to draw particular attention to the great west window given in 1888 by C. J. Browne, of Boston, U.S.A. It depicts a company of saints with incidents from the lives of the more important ones; and the coat-of-arms of members of the Browne family and of the Borough of Stamford.

The Cambridge University Guild's latest handbell peal is noteworthy for two reasons: it was the first peal rung by Dr. J. B. Williamson for 41 years, and was the first Guild peal in which a member from the Lucy Cavendish College has taken part.

POINTS FROM 1965 PEALS

BY CANON C. K. H. FELSTEAD

IT has been quite a shock to realise that it is nearly two years since my last article appeared. One of the reasons why I hadn't realised the passage of time is that there has not been the usual dropping off of enquiries about peals lately. The general experience is of a sudden increase in letters about peals immediately after an article appears, gradually decreasing as time goes on. That makes me realise that another effort is due. But it hasn't happened this time and I am still getting quite a lot of correspondence (I am pleased that it is so since it means, I hope, that my records are of use to the Exercise. The only thing is that some correspondents have to wait for a considerable time for an answer sometimes—I hope they don't mind having to be patient.)

Even though this article has to deal with peals two year old, I hope it is not too out of date. It may bring to light some new knowledge for those who rang in them, and correct any records that may be kept.

OUTSTANDING MILESTONE

The most outstanding milestone at the end of 1965 was the 500th peal at Willesden on December 16th. Thus it becomes the fourth church tower to reach this total. Twelve peals had been rung before augmentation to eight at the beginning of the first war. The total at the beginning of the second war was 182. Thus there have been nearly 300 peals in the past 25 years. Of course, the variety of methods rung is greater than in any other tower. At the time of writing, it won't be very long before it has caught Crayford, if the present rate of peals continues. Hughenden claimed its 350th peal on September 2nd, 1965. I made it the previous one on August 19th. Here is a place to compare notes with the tower captain.

I confirm Accrington's claim for the 200th peal on August 8th. This was a 6-bell tower until 1954 and 58 peals had been rung when they were augmented. Since then 67 (practically half) of the 142 which have been rung were on six bells. So at heart it seems to remain a 6-bell tower. Two days after this, on August 10th, I make it that the 200th peal was rung at St. Ebbe's, Oxford. This was not claimed. Cheltenham had its 100th peal since "Bell News" started in 1881 on August 28th. But I have some earlier peals here from various sources to make the total 112. The same is true of Dereham, which reached the 50 mark since 1881 on August 18th. I have seven early ones there from 1754. But I think 50 is the true total for the following towers: Barrow-on-Humber, Tichmarsh, Bigby, Grimsby (St. James') and Huntingdon (All Saints'). Only the last of these was claimed.

FIRST PEALS

I think all towers where a first on the bells was rung had this claim attached and I confirm them. They were Froxfield, South Lopham, Turramurra, Claypole, Landewednack, Bryanston, Long Crichel, Preston (St. Mark's), Stowe and Shenstone (on the new bells).

Finally, we come to infrequent visitors to the peal pages. The two longest absent were not quite accurate in their footnotes. The peal at North Tawton was the first since 1901, not 1902. Similarly, that at St. Luke's, Bedminster, Bristol, was the first since 1902, not 1903. In both cases the only other peal I have was in 1900. It isn't often that a tower is peal silent for as long as over 60 years once it has had its first peal. It was about 40 years ago that the next tower last appeared—Ilfracombe, where I confirm the last peal was in 1926. There were peals here in 1897, 1905 and 1907 also. I had the last peal at Merthyr Tydfil in 1929, not 1928 as claimed. It was the first of Major, as suggested. In fact, of the previous 16 peals, 15 were of Grandsire and one was Stedman. West Lydford last had a peal in 1930. There were three earlier ones than that—1912, 1920 and 1928. Chesham had its only previous peal in 1933. I confirm that both Samlesbury and Wonersh last had peals in 1935. In the case of the former, ten peals were rung from 1900 to 1913 and 20 from 1919 to 1935. In the latter tower, I confirm the 1965 peal was the first on the eight. On the old six there had been peals in 1914, 1925, 1930 and 1933 as well.

Wylam-on-Tyne had not had a peal since 1937 until the one on December 28th, 1965. Previous peals were in 1898, 1902, 1903, 1905 and 1928 (two). All were of Minor in seven methods, except one of the 1928 ones which was Bob Minor. The last tower not appearing in the peal lists since before the second war is Chicheley. Here four peals were rung from 1905 to 1913 and six between the wars. A rare visitor to the peal pages, but which has not as long a silence as the previous ones, was Amberley. The first peal here was in 1893, then came two in 1895, since when there was only one rung until the 1965 one—in 1951.

One or two other points of interest arise. Chalgrove's claim for the first on the bells cannot be substantiated unless the bells have been recast. A peal in seven Minor methods was rung on February 25th, 1939. I have not recorded a previous peal at Letcombe Regis. If there was one in 1939, I should be very pleased to have information about it to complete the record. I can confirm the first of Surprise Major at Barthomley. Of the 59 previous peals, commencing in 1908, there have been 32 of Grandsire Triples, 24 of Plain Bob (19 of Major and 5 of Minor), 1 of Stedman Triples (in 1910) and 2 of Kent T.B. Major. Rather an unusual list.

I hope shortly, whilst I have more time during the holiday season, to deal with the 1966 peals.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

Marlborough Branch

In the idyllic sylvan setting of Savernake Forest on a perfect summer afternoon, the Marlborough Branch met for its monthly meeting at St. Katherine's Church on August 26th. The attendance was excellent and all were pleased to welcome Mr. W. West (Guild president) and Mrs. West. There was also present a high proportion of young people of both sexes, all keen ringers, which augurs well for the future of the Branch.

Ringing on the five bells was under the direction of Mr. F. Reed (Ringing Master) and the Guild service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. A. Currie); Mr. Alan Keen was organist.

A bountiful tea was served in the schoolroom by Mrs. Aldridge, Mrs. C. P. Tilley and helpers. Afterwards Mr. G. Newman (chairman) extended a warm welcome to the visitors and thanked all concerned for arrangements which had resulted in a most pleasant meeting. Mr. West briefly replied Mr. Newman also congratulated Mr. Alan Keen on his success in graduating at the Northern School of Music at Manchester and on gaining the Stuart Macpherson Memorial Award. He was loudly applauded. Mr. T. A. Palmer (hon. secretary) announced that the proposed meeting in September at Burbage was not now possible and an alternative tower was in prospect.

Ringing was then resumed until 8 p.m.

The quarter peal at Hailsham on Sunday, August 27th, was a 12th birthday compliment to the treble ringer, Janet Birch, ringing in her first quarter peal attempt. Congratulations!

OUTINGS

HIGHAM RINGERS' OUTING

Good weather for the second year running added to the enjoyment on the Higham (Leics) outing on July 22nd. After an early start our coach, laden with ringers, relatives and friends, headed north for the first ring of the day at Penkridge. The long rope draught was somewhat disconcerting for certain members of the party, but the bells handled surprisingly well and ringing (including London Major) was quite good.

On from Penkridge to Lilleshall (an easy-going 9 cwt. six), where several touches of Minor were rung. Being forewarned that the village lacked a certain establishment essential to the full enjoyment of a ringers' outing, Ken, our coach driver, set off to a hostelry just outside the village with several thirsty non-ringers.

A half-hour journey brought us into the ancient town of Shrewsbury and a break for lunch. Ringing followed on the pleasant ten at St. Mary's, although it was not as good as it might have been. However, Little Bob Royal and Stedman Caters were struck quite well.

All likely hiding places were tried before the key was found at the next tower, Hope Bowdler. We were then informed by the church gardener that the key was hidden in the lych-gate of the small church, which stands in a pleasant setting between Caer Caradoc and Wenlock Edge.

Structural weaknesses in the tower windows meant we were unable to ring at Ludlow, but a break was taken in the town for tea and a laze in the glorious sunshine.

The eight at Bewdley are not the easiest of bells to strike well and ringing was consequently not as good as it might have been. Cambridge and Bristol were among the methods rung.

The final tower of the day was at Areley Kings (an excellent 8 cwt. six), where ringing concluded with some well-struck Spliced Surprise Minor. It seems ironic, however, that such good bells are seldom rung.

After the customary stop for refreshment on the return journey, where plans were made for innumerable visits to all parts of the country, we finally arrived home at about 11.45 p.m.

We would like to thank all incumbents and tower captains for the use of their bells; Ken, our 'bus driver; all ringing friends from other towers who joined us; and Robin Gilliver for his customary rendering of "The Music Man" and for making the arrangements for yet another very enjoyable day. K. P. G.

WESTHOUGHTON RINGERS VISIT YORK

A 7 a.m. start was necessary when Westhoughton and District ringers and friends (the Fan Club) held their annual outing to York. The unfamiliar Yorkshire tail-ends on the fine eight at Skipton resulted in justice not being done to the bells, although a fairly good course of Grandsire Triples came round. On the good bells at Knaresborough we could only manage a rather lumpy touch of Stedman.

After an excellent lunch in York came the highlight of the day, a ring at the Minster itself. In spite of the 180 feet draught of rope we rang the middle eight (using the semitone) reasonably well to a touch of Stedman and courses of Plain Bob, Grandsire and Cambridge Surprise. After a brief visit to Acomb, where Grandsire Doubles and Cambridge Minor pealed forth, we returned to York for a chicken tea.

The last tower on the list was the very good eight at Otley, where a musical touch of Stedman was mutilated but Plain Bob, Grandsire and Yorkshire were successfully accomplished.

Special thanks to the courageous organiser-in-chief, Mr. Albert Greenhalgh. J. E. A.

RUTLAND

By P. AMOS

Rutland is the smallest county in England, having fought recently to keep its independence—and won! It is unquestionably one of the most picturesque of areas, for no matter to what part of it you may go you can find scenery to gladden the eye, heart and mind. Hills and vales, waterways and a reservoir, as well as lovely old churches and other historic buildings, all go to make those who, like myself, have travelled it from corner to corner and been in every one of its 52 churches feel relaxed there.

Only two have eight bells, twelve have six (one of these, at Ketton, without wheels, are swing-chimed), ten have five, eight have four (one of which, at Brook, has no wheels remaining since their last restoration in 1811), three have three (these include the chapel in Uppingham School), nine have two (one of these, at Wardley, used to have three) and eight have one.

In addition to the two at Tickencote, there is a cracked bell of circa 1500 preserved, not hung. The oldest bell in Rutland is the 7¼ cwt. tenor (34½ in. diam.) at Teigh, a three-bell tower on its northern border. This bell bears the inscription "In Noie IHS Maria" (In the name of Jesus, Mary), together with the Royal heads of Edward I and Queen Eleanor; it is undoubtedly early 14th century. Here the other two bells, it seems from records, were of similar age and casting prior to 1746, when the Church of the Holy Trinity suffered a great fire—only the one bell and the lower half of the tower remaining. The rebuilding was not completed until 1782, but in 1746 two bells were recast.

There is much history to be found at Lyddington, where parts of an early monastery saved from the wrath of Henry VIII can still be seen. Also, in the Church of St. Andrew, is a very unusual communion rail of 1635, where communicants kneel all around with the celebrant in the middle. The five bells here have been unringable for many years—with four others we did manage to get them up for a few rounds and a scratch 720 (such as it was) in 1931, the last time, it is believed, they were raised. The treble now has no complete wheel and the frame is, in my opinion, too decrepit to be retained. A chiming apparatus sounds the bells on Sundays.

Both here and in the neighbouring village of Caldecote the bells bear inscriptions of a famous Church of England rebel parson's descendants—John Browne, named on the tenor at Lyddington, and Peter Browne on the treble at Caldecote, were both descendants of the Rev. Robert Browne (born in 1550 and died in 1631), who was Rector of Achurch, in Northants, in 1585, and who broke away to form the "Brownish" movement—now the Congregationalists.

Burley-on-the-Hill, where there is a large tower with only one bell, of 14 cwt. (43½ in.), is also very historic, and Whissendine, close by, is a glorious church well worth a visit by any stranger. Langham, not far from Oakham, has a lovely toned six (tenor 14 cwt.) by Taylors. Here Messrs. Ruddles have been one of the few small brewers who have so far escaped being swallowed up by multiple concerns. Finally, a visit to Stoke Dry Church, which, like Whiston, Northants, is still lit by candles and is undergoing a big restoration. Some architectural pillars can be seen, and a reservoir close by gives scenery not to be missed. From Stockerston on the other side (just inside Leicestershire) it is even more beautiful. Stoke Dry has the last bell cast by Thomas Eayre, jun., before he went bankrupt. It is its only bell, dated 1761, weighing 9 cwt., 37 in. in diameter.

All in all, there is much to be seen and learned from Rutland.

OBITUARY

HARRY BENNETT

AN APPRECIATION

The death of Harry Bennett on June 27th, 1967, has been a sad loss to St. Stephen's, Bristol. At the age of 81 he had rendered 46 years of loyal service to his church as a ringer and as an active member of the congregation and P.C.C.

He learned to ring at Minchinhampton, Glos, and joined the St. Stephen's Guild in 1921. In the late '20s he was secretary of the local ringing branch. It was about this time his interest in peal ringing developed and among these was his first peal of Stedman Cinques on December 31st, 1929, at St. Mary Redcliffe. The band included such well-known ringing personalities as A. E. Reeves, W. A. Cave and J. A. Burford who composed and conducted the peal. Earlier that year he had rung his first of Stedman Triples with the St. Stephen's Guild in his own tower. Harry did not ring a large number of peals—his last, at the age of 72, was Grandsire Caters, half-muffled, at St. Stephen's, in memory of his ringing colleague William H. Parker; but his conduct and regularity of attendance for Sunday ringing and services provided an example we can only wish to emulate. Our sympathy is extended to his wife.

THE LADIES' GUILD

Central District

Members of the Central District visited the Church of St. Mary, Beddington, Surrey, for their meeting on July 29th. Ringing during the afternoon and evening catered for all tastes, ranging from rounds to Cambridge Royal and London Major.

After a short service, the company sat down to an enjoyable tea provided by the committee. The main subject discussed at the business meeting which followed was, of course, the 1968 A.G.M. which is to be held in the district. In view of the great success of the "new look" meeting at Lincoln, it was felt that a dinner could be arranged next year near Hertford, and that on the same day ringing could take place in St. Albans and along the route to Hertford. A further meeting is to be held on September 30th at North Mymms. J. H.

BUCKS RINGERS FACE ROAD TERRORS

ON the evening of Friday, August 4th, eight ringers in two cars set out hot-foot for Herefordshire and a week-end's camping and tower-grabbing. With Ann and Stephen Cass, Louise Evans and Ron Snack, from Little Missenden, went Christine Wilkins from Wendover, Angela and Tony Fortin from Amersham, and Sara Woolley from Bushey. Slight consternation ensued when it was discovered that a ninth ringer who had been hoping to come with an empty car wasn't coming after all, so that the two passengers who had been temporarily wedged in the back of Tony's van under conditions of great tightness would have to stay put. One of these was Angela, who shortly after leaving home realised that she'd forgotten her jacket and, not being allowed to go back for it, gloomily resigned herself to a week-end of borrowed pullovers.

We were somewhere near Oxford when the outing was nearly brought to a premature finish as the van hit a slight hump, leapt dramatically into the air, narrowly missed hitting some oncoming cars and swerved across the grass verge before coming to an abrupt halt in a ditch with a terrific crash of breaking glass. ("Sorry," said the driver, inadequately.)

Meanwhile, passers-by were leaping out of their vehicles and converging on the van from all directions. Having made tender enquiries after the health of the occupants and finding no injuries, they very kindly helped to heave it back on to the road. To everyone's relief there was no apparent damage except to the number plate, which was soon resecured with a bit of wire; the shattering noise had come from a small meths lamp—sad, but less immediately disastrous than the loss of a headlamp. Back on the road silence reigned until a small voice was heard to say: "Well, if we could stop for that, we might at least have gone back for my jacket," adding: "Nobody can say we haven't got off to a flying start!".

The tower-grab was launched with a ring at Windrush en route, where we were joined by Christopher Dalton, complete with his musical ear and his tuning forks. We were soon to learn to take in our stride such cryptic remarks as "This bell's got a flat hum note" and "That bell is the only one in the ring with true harmonics".

LITTLE SLEEP

A further halt, this time for refreshment, retarded us still more, and it was midnight before we drove through the gate into the camp site at Leominster. The tents went up by the light of headlamps — remarkably quickly under the circumstances. Besides being pitch dark, it was getting colder and colder, and the long grass was so soggy with dew that we were simply paddling. We were all in bed by 1 o'clock, but what with the strangeness of the surroundings and the low temperature and blankets that kept falling off, very little sleep was snatched by anybody—except Ron, who can sleep anywhere and has spent many a blissful night in the waiting room at King's Cross. Tony, who had bedded down in the van claiming that the snoring of a certain member of the party always made sleep impossible, was the first up—he went for a walk round the town at 5.30. Much scratching of heads when he was found to be missing—"Is he in there with you, girls?".

Breakfast and washing-up were soon over under Ann's capable management, and we set out for Cradley, the first tower of the day, with scornful backward glances at the caravans, whose slothful owners had been asleep when we arrived and were still asleep now we were up and away.

Cradley is certainly worth a mention. The six bells, which we much enjoyed ringing, are housed in a very wide, square tower. The tower stands on a hill, and everyone who had the nerve to ascend the steep steel ladders to the top agreed that the view was worth all the effort. The churchyard was immaculate—in fact Cradley had won the local best-kept churchyard competition two years running and was then disqualified!

DETACHED TOWERS

Later in the morning we visited Bosbury, which has a very interesting church with a detached tower. A rope broke at the start of some Grandsire, but a new one was soon fitted and ringing on the nice six began again, to the greatest distress of a small brown and white dog on the pavement opposite, which threw back its head and howled.

At Eastnor local ringers helped to ring some Spliced St. Clement's and Plain Bob Minor, and then followed us to Ledbury where there is another detached tower. The pleasant, moderately heavy ring of eight proved a bit difficult for the band; more experienced ringers would really have been needed to do the bells justice. But we managed Ledbury's fish and chips better, partaking of them twice during the week-end.

The highlight of the day as far as towers went was Eardisland, where some fairly respectable Grandsire Triples was rung on the frequently-pealed and beautiful eight, with a good —for us—lower in peal at the end. We rolled back to camp feeling very pleased with our day's work; there had been some good ringing on widely differing bells; our two tenor grabbers, Louise and Christine, had had a fruitful time, and two of us had notched up our 200th towers.

A better night was spent by all after this; we were tired and it was warmer, although raining, and we had become wise to the antics of blankets under canvas. By morning it was still raining, and it was decided to back Ann's estate car up to the entrance of one of the tents, cook in the back of it and eat in the tent. The manœuvring was carried out by Stephen who, although managing not to demolish the tent, filled it with exhaust fumes and nearly suffocated everybody inside.

EARFUL FOR LEOMINSTER

Two people nobly stayed behind to wash up while the rest of us went over to the church to raise the bells and give the natives of Leominster their first earful of our ringing. There was just time for some Bob Minor on the front six before the 9 o'clock service; we pelted back to the camp, did much clearing up, and then the whole band went back to the church where we produced the best striking of the week-end —rounds on the ten (with Tony ringing two as usual).

Grub-up was soon followed by tents-down and anchors aweigh; we were kindly given permission to ring on the sixes at Pencombe and Staunton on the way home. Chris Dalton then left us to go and investigate an "unringable" somewhere—without his picnic tea. Oh well, his loss was our gain.

Thus finished our week-end, which altogether had been a great success. Our especial thanks go to tower captains and incumbents; to Christine who wrote to them; to Ann who looked after us so well; and to Louise who opened all the tins.

RINGING IN THE STATES

Dear Sir,—"The Ringing World" of August 11th, 1967, carries a query from Mr. H. O. Whipple, of Santa Fe, New Mexico, about ringing in the United States. About two years ago I made a study of the total of ten towers containing rings of bells. Mr. Douglas Hughes gave much assistance in this.

If Mr. Whipple will communicate directly with me I will be happy to pass on what information I have obtained.

In a number of situations all that is needed is a band of bellringers to make them sound in their original glorious way. In most cases where they could be rung the problem also involves the high-density population and the likelihood that change-ringing would not be accepted by the neighbours.

I will be delighted to hear from Mr. Whipple.

—Yours faithfully,
FRANK ELDRIDGE,
Assoc. Prof. of Music.

School of Music,
Ithaca College,
Ithaca, N.Y. 14850.

SPLICED 720's

Dear Sir, — I was pleased to see that my spliced 720s in Double Court and Hereward elicited several replies. I suspected that extents in these two methods had been previously arranged, but mine were produced because I could not find any such arrangement in print and I felt sure that such a splice would be welcomed by many ringers.

As Mr. C. K. Lewis infers, his 720 is more "balanced" than mine, but I should not be surprised if many ringers prefer their "odd" method in three complete courses.—Yours sincerely,

H. CHANT.

Wakefield.

CASE FOR AMENDMENT OF RULES

Dear Sir,—I should like to draw attention to the decisions of the Central Council (published in the Handbook) relating to the use of bobs and singles in composition and, in particular, to the following:—

> "Calls may be made at any place within the lead, but the traditional practice of making them at the lead-end should be adhered to, and is recommended.
>
> "Only one type of bob and single may be used in any one composition."

To my knowledge there are at least three compositions, rung in recent months, which include bobs and singles at the lead-end, and either bobs or singles at the half-lead, making three types of call in all. This clearly contravenes the decisions I have quoted, so presumably peals rung using such compositions should not be recognised by the Central Council. The compositions referred to are as follows:—

1. 5,040 Cambridge Surprise Royal, by R. W. Pipe.
2. 5,024 Superlative Surprise Major, by R. J. Parker, published August 25th in "The Ringing World".
3. 5,120 Lincolnshire Surprise Major, by R. J. Parker. This has not yet been published although I believe it has been rung several times, so I am open to correction.
4. I believe there is also a peal of London Surprise Royal, by R. W. Pipe, with calls at the half-lead.

Perhaps, with our more liberal present day outlook, this rule should be amended or abolished altogether since in some methods there are desirable qualities that can only be achieved by the use of half-lead calls. This is well illustrated by the splendid peal of Cambridge Royal by R. W. Pipe, in which outstanding qualities are achieved (8790s, etc.) that would not otherwise be possible. In addition, so far as one may judge from the peal reports, this composition has achieved some popularity so that we are already turning a blind eye to the Central Council ruling. It would appear also that peals of "Real" Superlative and "Real" Double Norwich are excluded by this rule.

Perhaps the appropriate Central Council committee(s) (presumably the Methods Committee and Peals Analysis Committee) would care to comment.—Yours sincerely,

ROGER BALDWIN.

Watford, Herts.

INACCURACY OF COMPOSITION

Dear Sir,—I would like to thank Mr. Dennis Knox for pointing out the error in the peal of 5,088 Yorkshire Surprise Major "composed" by myself and published in "R.W." issue of December 30th, 1966. I apparently forgot to check it for the f.c.e. 23456. My apologies to Tony Lewis and the rest of the band who rang this composition at Helmshore.

I would also like to thank D. Sibson for his unfailing interest in suspect compositions and hope this now satisfies his query.—Yours sincerely.

R. PARKER.

Burnley.

NORWICH CATHEDRAL CHIMES

Sir,—What has happened to the pleasing and unusual clock chimes on the ancient bells at Norwich Cathedral?

They were certainly not working on August 15th, so has Canon Thurlow forgotten to wind the clock up recently or do I need a hearing aid?—Yours sincerely,

W. E. BOX.

Harborne, Birmingham.

DUPLICATE DOUBLES NAMES

Dear Sir,—I regret to inform Mr. Lewis that most of the methods contained in his list of those rung at Staverton ("R.W.", August 25th) have been named. They are:—

New Bob	Ant. Single	St. Samson
Huntspill	Ant. Single	Oake
St. Vedast	Ant. Single	Stowey
New Bob	Pink Single	St. Clether
Huntspill	Pink Single	Bradden
St. Vedast	Pink Single	Kelmarsh
Westminster II	Rev. Cant. Bob	Oakehampton
Blackburn	Rev. Cant. Bob	Northam
St. Hilary	Rev. Cant. Bob	Farewell
Westminster II	Grand. Single	Burton Joyce
Blackburn	Grand. Single	Lillingstone
St. Hilary	Grand Single	Brightwell
Westminster II	All Saints Pl.	Stoke Bardolph
Blackburn	All Saints Pl.	Arnold
St. Hilary	All Saints Pl.	Sandford
Westminster	Ant. Single	Epperstone
Blackburn	Ant. Single	Swalcliffe
St. Hilary	Ant. Single	Standlake
Westminster II	Pink Single	Iffley
Blackburn	Pink Single	Ardingly
St. Hilary	Pink Single	West Hanney
Westminster II	O.D.S.	St. Erme
Blackburn	O.D.S.	Veryan
St. Hilary	O.D.S.	St. Maurice

Other methods are named on page 322 of "R.W." dated May 12th, 1967.

As far as I know, New Bob, Huntspill and St. Vedast with a London Extreme have not been named and Mr. Lewis' names have been noted.

To the best of my knowledge Mr. Lewis' claim to have rung the greatest number of Doubles Methods to a peal is incorrect. At South Collingham in January, 1966, Mr. George Dawson conducted a peal in 180 methods ("R.W.", February 18th, 1966).—

Yours faithfully,
ROY H. JONES.

Marston, Oxford.

COMPOSITION FALSE

Dear Sir,—I have to point out that a peal of 5,103 Grandsire Cinques composed by me and rung at Newport in December, 1963, and later at Macclesfield is false. The falseness occurs at the 4th and 19th courses and in the 30th and 33rd courses.

I apologise to the respective conductors, Mr. T. P. Edwards and Mr. J. Nelson, and the other members who took part. Unfortunately the composition was not checked before being handed to Mr. Edwards or subsequently, and I accept the responsibility for not having done so.—Yours, etc.,

ALBERT M. TYLER.

ST. DUNSTAN'S-IN-THE-WEST

Dear Sir, — According to our Association's old list of non-resident members, the late Mr. W. A. Alps lived at 7 and 8, Idol Lane, E.C.3, which is in the vicinity of St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, and I feel that Mr. W. Hibbert probably rang his quarter peal at this church, where there was a fine Rudhall eight (tenor 28 cwt.) and the ringing chamber housed the blower motor of the organ. About 30 years ago I was told that some ringing was being done at St. Dunstan's-in-the-West by a curate and some boys, but perhaps one of the older London ringers could tell us when the bells were last rung.—Yours faithfully, H. V. FROST.

St. Albans.

RAVING RINGERS 1967 "ANNUAL"

On July 22nd we, the Raving Ringers, commenced our "annual". In the afternoon of that day two towers were on the programme prior to establishing ourselves in our base for the week at Tunbridge Wells. Ringing at both was not of our best, being unused to ringing together. Before we could proceed to the second tower Ron informed us that he thought he had left the gas on at his house. This incident reduced numbers by two, since Michael Church very kindly offered to drive him. A slight "technical hitch" prevented Ted Venn and Pete Heritage from joining us as well. In fact it was not until nearly midnight that Ted and Co. finally arrived at Tunbridge Wells.

Numbers at Warnham were sadly depleted as a consequence of these two mishaps, which factor did not, however, prevent us from ringing the first of many touches of spliced—only six maybe, but none the less a start.

Nine tired bodies sauntered down the road to ring at Tunbridge Wells the next morning, while the other half of the party trundled off to ring at Tonbridge. They came back reporting that they had not thought much of Tonbridge. We discovered why when we went there the following Sunday — they had rung the bells too quickly; we found them to be a very pleasant eight!

Following lunch at the hotel some handbell ringing was attempted, but only a few of our party were in practice and this venture was soon ended in favour of a visit to Bodiam Castle.

It was when travelling from here to Brookland (with its unusual five in a detached wooden campanile) that we had trouble with the navigator, who saw non-existent roads on the map!

Both at Brookland and Rye trouble of a different kind was experienced with rope control, it being thought that the effect of shorts on the rope at Brookland prevented one ringer from doing his best. However, shorts were the ideal garb for the paddle which took place at Winchelsea later that evening.

They say that accountants can manage money matters, and this proved very true for one accountant in our midst. This fortunate fellow won £2 5s. on the fruit machine in the hotel bar. As if not satisfied with this, "Midas II" succeeded in winning a further £2 10s. later in the week at another hostelry (all this had to be in kind). While all this was going on the Oxfordshire ladies were quietly winning hand after hand of crib against the Peterborough "A" team!

The minibus was 15 minutes late departing from the hotel on Monday for the first tower, Fletching. This church is one of many interesting Sussex churches with Saxon remains. In this instance it is the tower which is of Saxon origin. The bells themselves are rather oddstruck and ringing was not of the best. Little Horsted and Ringmer followed, some difficulty being experienced with Ringmer bells owing to the rather short draught! While ringing was in progress, Ray and Jill took over the local general store in an effort to purchase enough food for the 15 who were to feed in the "Whittlebury Café".

For once we forgave the navigator his inability to find the church at Lewes, since it is not on the map! This was the first ten of the tour, and as such ringing was quite reasonable, with methods ranging from Grandsire to Cambridge Royal. Newick followed Lewes and we had some fun with the excessively fluffy sallies and light bells.

In between ice creams at Uckfield some quite good ringing was achieved with methods up to spliced being accomplished. Inside the tower were pictures of the Monkees. From Uckfield we proceeded to the very pleasant bells at Fairwarp. Unfortunately they are more than a little loud outside. Three young girls heard the bells and went up to grab the tower, enabling the Peterborough Guild members present to experience a lesson in the art of call-change ringing.

The first tower on Tuesday was at Leigh, where we were met by the Vicar, and ringing proceeded quite well on the enjoyable six there. It was decided that Penshurst would be the place for renewing provisions, and while Ray took command of this the others started ringing. The bells are pleasing in sound, but fearfully springy in the ringing of them.

Competitive games in the pub at Cowden were followed by a competition in the tower. Three teams participated: pure Oxford Guild, pure Peterborough Guild and mixed Bucks. Herts and Surrey. Peterborough Guild were the winners, the mixed team being a close second. Ringing at Hammerwood (5) was varied and the Oxfordshire contingent showed themselves particularly adept at ringing Minimus.

Lunch time was spent in East Grinstead and, as on other occasions, the Ravers rode into town and there was a blast on the juke boxes and the thump of darts as they hit the board (or anywhere else). At Coleman's Hatch homage was paid to an absent friend, who must have put a jinx on us because nothing seemed to want to come round.

At least at the next tower—Hartfield—we had good support in the belfry and redeemed ourselves (the good support being offered because of the presence of some little boys with water pistols!). Our long day's ringing was rounded off by a visit to Withyham, where we were met by Mr. Frank Hairs, to whom we must offer thanks for recommending to us our hotel. Ringing at this tower was better than at Coleman's Hatch and Glasgow came round.

Wednesday was just right for the proposed programme. It was to be the day of our annual dip. Thus impatience was expressed when we were forced to keep to a leisurely pace along the road to Eastbourne, owing to the driver in front (a woman, sad to say), who insisted on braking at every corner. Mrs. Percy met us at Willingdon and while ringing was in progress explained to the various navigators just how to reach the rest of the day's towers.

Evening ringing was at Alfriston, but prior to ringing on the delightful six (the writer being a ringer from an infamous tower in Hertfordshire could not understand why they had guides for the ropes!) we held our meeting, during which it was decided that the few who had been to Ireland could very well face the idea of returning next year for the sake of the many who have never been.

Thursday's weather was not up to the high standard so far set in the week, but this did not mar the beauty of all the Kentish lanes round which our navigator directed us. Our first stop was to photograph the House of Whitbread, i.e., the oast houses wherein that beverage originates. The day's programme included three sixes, two tens and one eight. Ringing at the sixes was quite good, making it most enjoyable; at the tens we were not so fortunate, but the eight was the newly-rehung eight at Sevenoaks. They were delightful to ring and we managed some reasonable ringing, with one person ringing her first touch of 8-spliced.

Highlight of the day was a lunch-time game of football on the green at Bearsted. The teams were composed of mainly Peterborough Guild members with their star, Ray, and a mixed team, including one girl, from Oxfordshire, Buckinghamshire, Surrey, etc.

Once more, on Friday, there were two tens, and this determined us to ring London Royal or bust. St. Peter's, Brighton, though pleasant, did not lend itself to this, but later in the day at St. Nicholas' in the same town it was accomplished.

This year we were without our most eminent clerical friend Michael O'Coleman, but so as not to be without a representative from this Guild his place was taken by Peter Heritage, aided by Jill's black cardigan and one of Ron's clean (?) shirts.

The unique occurrence of two lots of spliced taking place at the same time in the same tower was experienced at Keymer. Roger Smith spliced the rope holding the ropes when down. Fellow countyman Graham (Smiler) Paul called a touch of spliced Surprise Minor.

More spliced, this time only eight, took place at Hurstpierpoint; but Ted was most disgruntled when it would not come round, until he realised that three and four had crossed as clean as a whistle in the change-over from Pudsey. A raging thirst on the part of rather a lot of ringers prevented the best at Slaugham, the last tower of the day.

We rang at six good eights on Saturday, our last full day. It is hard to say which were the best and there was certainly no worst.

While ringing at Blacklands, Hastings, was in progress members trooped four at a time over the way for tea at the house of David Floyd's aunt. We were regally entertained. Glasgow was to be the last touch so that the Glaswegians had to be finished their refreshments at 4.15 in order to return to the tower.

Eight-spliced was rung at Battle, without the three star (?) ringers who were once more refreshing themselves. Orders were issued by the Ringing Master for the day that they were to participate in the touch of the same at the next tower for the benefit of Sue. This next tower was the last of the day, and Howard and Francis Oglesby, who spent the day with us, said their goodbyes before trekking home.

Sausages on sticks washed down with beer or cider proved a substitute for fish and chips that evening. However, it was not enough to eat one's own sausage. Basher Saunders' sausage seemed much more inviting to one member of the party.

Throughout the week members of the minibus had been pleading with Basher to give a recital, but it was not until the effect of some unknown number of pints that he obliged us. Along with Jint, he proved that the suffering of listening to the other Barry had been unnecessary because in those two we had two very fine voices.

Goodbyes at the hotel and tower for Sunday said, Ravers proceeded in various directions. The minibus made for Oxford, stopping at two points on the way for dumping off of personnel.

Thanks are due to those whose recommendations prevented us from ringing at anything but the best of West Kent and East Sussex, to incumbents for permitting us to ring, to all the drivers, and to our two Ringing Masters Ron and Jim. Most of all we must thank Ted and Chris, without whom we could not have had a tour. If next year's tour is as good as this one has been, we will never stand the pace. Only one word would describe it—FANTABULOUS!

Singles in Standard Surprise Maj. Methods

By R. J. PARKER

Pudsey

Without using singles it is possible to obtain 30 roll-ups which include 5 and 6. By use of singles this number can be increased to 36, being 18 5678s and 18 6578s. These are obtained when 5 and 6 are in either of the two positions: 3 and 6 (two roll-ups in the 3rd lead); 4 and 5 (two roll-ups in the 5th lead); 5 and 6 (two roll-ups at the course-end). The following 18 courses give the 36 roll-ups:—

45236
25346 Six 5678 roll-ups in the 3rd lead.
35426

43652
32654 Six 5678 roll-ups in the 5th lead.
24653

23456
34256 Six 5678 roll-ups at the course-end.
42356

26345 Six 6578 roll-ups in the 3rd lead.
36425

43562

24563

23465
42365

An example of the type of composition that can produce these courses is Giles Thompson's 30-course block for Yorkshire. Two reduced forms of this can be obtained, still retaining the symmetry of an equal six-part, but these unfortunately have the disadvantage of being 24 courses in length.

Superlative

This is the only one of the standard eight Surprise methods that can produce all six of the courses with 56 in their Home position. However, a problem with this is that neither of the calling positions B, M or W_t can produce a course that is true to these six courses. This necessitates splitting the tenors, and by using the calling position 4½–5 (equivalent to a 5ths–4ths at lead-ends), a true course can be introduced. Roll-ups occur when 5 and 6 are in the positions: 3 and 5 (two roll-ups in the 1st lead), 4 and 6 (two roll-ups in the 7ths lead), 5 and 6 (two roll-ups at the course-end). The following 18 courses give 36 roll-ups:—

46352

These can be arranged in many ways, even compositions containing six consecutive calls in one position are possible, resembling compositions of Plain Major methods. A peculiarity of the falseness of Superlative causes compositions to be especially suitable for handbell peals, due to 5–6 coursing most of the way. An example of a composition is given below:—

For 5,024 omit two consecutive singles Home in second part.

Lincolnshire

Three 5678 courses and three 6578 courses are possible in Lincolnshire, giving 18–5678 roll-ups and 18–6578 roll-ups. No more are possible if the other four combination courses are to be included. A basic block of 18 courses is available, but difficulty is encountered when trying to add more courses, necessitating splitting the tenors. The 18-course block is given below:—

Another six courses are:—

These can be inserted by a bob at 5ths after the second single Wrong, but the original course cannot be returned to.

The resulting composition unfortunately uses bobs at 6½, where it affects 2, 3 and 4, whilst reverse roll-ups are produced on the front.

KENT RINGERS VISIT LONDON AREA

Ringers from seven towers in North Kent, viz. Faversham, Sittingbourne, Tunstall, Milton Regis, Eastchurch, Newington and Halling, spent a very pleasant day visiting towers in the South London area on August Bank Holiday.

The party of 38 travelled through the early morning fog via Dartford and Swanley to St. Mary Cray, where the six bells were soon put to good use. The very pleasant six at Hayes, Kent, were followed by the only ten of the day, at St. George's, Beckenham. Here nothing more adventurous than Grandsire Caters was attempted in order to keep the striking as good as possible, as many of the party were not very experienced 10-bell ringers.

Lunch was taken in the City of London, followed by a trip past St. Paul's, St. Clement Danes' and St. Martin-in-the-Fields en route for the easy-going eight at Barnes. Here it was difficult to maintain as high a standard of striking as possible owing to the organ being played by one of the party. Then came the heavier eight at Mortlake, where the iron-rung ladder giving access to the ringing chamber discouraged some of the ladies from ringing. St. Mary's, Hampton, bells, which are frequently heard on the radio on Sunday mornings, were also visited.

Tea was taken in a restaurant at the entrance to Bushey Park, where deer were in evidence. The last 6-bell tower of the day was St. Nicholas', Thames Ditton, where the recently-restored set were soon tapping round nicely. At our last tower, the eight at Ewell, some good ringing was enjoyed, including a very-well-struck course of Cambridge Major. Other methods rung during the day included Plain Bob, Grandsire, Stedman, Double Norwich, St. Clements, Cambridge Minor and two attempts at London Minor.

Laurie Mitchell was responsible for organising the tour and Nicholas Chesson acted as Ringing Master. L. M.

TOWN OF SILENT TOWERS:

The last of the three churches to describe is St. Peter's Church, whose brick tower still contains the only ring of bells left in the town today. The building on the whole is somewhat later in date than the other two, its windows being mainly in the Decorated style of architecture. It also has a central tower, though this, for reasons which will be apparent later, is not quite central! The bells of this church were always the principal bells in Sandwich; as early as 1534 we read of the "Brandegose" bell which was rung before every common assembly for half an hour on the fourth bell, and later we hear of the Market bell before the ringing of which no sales were permitted. For these jobs the sexton received four shillings each. He also received money for the ringing of the Curfew at 8 p.m. Originally this and the "Angelus" (at 4 in the morning!) were rung only from two weeks after Michaelmas to two weeks after Lady Day, Sundays or funeral days excepted, and for the twelve days after Christmas (for which £3 extra was due). Payments such as "candles and oil 6/8d." in connection with this are not uncommon. Today, however the curfew alone survives; and every night at eight the lovely tenor of Sandwich can be heard for miles booming out over the surrounding flats.

We do not know how many bells there were at this time; there must have been at least four. In 1546 there was an accident on the third of these, when one Henry Cosyn was killed by the bell rope, "being snayred therein in the ringing soe that his speache was taken from hym." By 1641 the tower was described as "splitt and cloven" and only fit for rebuilding. As we have read, it was much the same in 1652, though ringing carried on. In 1663 for some reason or other we hear that the "joye bells were much ringed"; and on the same night that St. Mary's tower gave way, St. Peter's steeple split open and the upper portion of the tower fell, completely destroying the south aisle. As the church was otherwise sound, the upper half of the tower was entirely demolished and dangerous crags removed, and the south arcade and south tower arch bricked up as they are today. For this reason the tower now appears to be half way along the south side of the church. Shortly afterwards the belfry was rebuilt with brick in the upper portions, which bricks were made from mud from the old haven. A new stair turret was built and the tower was surmounted by an onion cupola which is still a distinctive—if not particularly attractive—landmark today. Again the records do not tell us how many bells were installed, though doubtless there was at least one. Things really began to move, however, in 1726. In that year, the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury resolved to recast the heavy ring of six bells in the north tower of the Cathedral and add two trebles to make eight. Owing to the state of the north tower, it was deemed prudent to rehang the new peal in the south tower; and this already contained a ring of six bells, and also the great clock bell "Dunstan." The space problem was solved by placing "Dunstan" on the roof leads, and selling the other bells With the tenor recast by Samuel Knight—who had also cast the eight for the Cathedral—the bells were hung in the tower of St. Peter's Church. There they became known as the "Oxfords," for the two rings at Canterbury were known respectively as the "Oxford" (south) and "Arundel" (north) rings, after the names of the towers in which they hung.

In 1758 Mr Fausset was able to record five bells at St. Peter's, of which the four smallest were cast by Joseph Hatch, 1625, and the tenor by Samuel Knight, 1727. Whether there were any further additions or whether there was a separate bell in the tower already is not known, but in 1779 we find that the tower had six bells. As the total weight of these Knight's 1727 tenor had originally been much the tenor weighed some 15 cwt. Perhaps was 55 cwt. 1 qr. 16 lb. we may assume that heavier and had been recast into two trebles—not an unknown practice in those days. Whatever happened, it is clear that by that time the bells were regarded as unsatisfactory, and they were taken down and recast with additional metal into the eight bells at present in use at the church.

The work was carried out by Mr. William Mears, of Whitchapel, before he was taken in as a partner in the firm which was at that time trading as Pack and Chapman; strangely enough, Mears had first become interested in bellfounding while watching William Chapman casting the new Great Dunstan in the precincts of Canterbury Cathedral in 1762, and it was the old Canterbury bells that he was now recasting The only other bells cast by Mears before he was taken into partnership at Whitechapel are the treble and third of the splendid ring of six at St. Dunstan's Church, in the Mears family's native city of Canterbury.

The new ring of bells cost £366; to this was added £1 14s. for ropes, £59 for new fittings and alterations to the frame, and nearly £4 for carriage from London, making a total of just over £430; the old bells fetched £247, and the rates £36; the rest, nearly £150, was raised by voluntary subscription. Apparently the old frame was retained and altered by Mr. Forbes, whose name appears on the tenor, and who hung the bells. The particulars of these bells are as follows:—

Treble (27½" diameter, 4 cwt. 2 qr. 27 lb., F): I mean to make it understood that tho I'm little yet I'm good. Mears & Co. Fecit 1779.

Second (30", 5–0–13, E): To honour both of God and king our voices shall in consort ring. Wm. Mears & Co., London. Fecit 1779.

Third (32", 5–3–15, D): Whilst thus we join in chearfull sound may love and loyalty abound. Wm. Mears & Co., London. Fecit 1779.

Fourth (34½", 7–1–24, C): Music is medicine to the mind. Mears & Co. 1779.

Fifth (36" 7–2–23, B flat): In Wedlock bands all ye who join with hands and harts unite so snall our tunefull Tongues combine to laud the nuptials rite. Mears & Co. Fecit.

Sixth (38½", 9–2–1, A): Peace and good neighbourhood. Wm Mears & Co., London. Fecit 1779.

Seventh (42", 11–3–13, G): Ye ringers all tha' prize your health and happiness be sober merry wise and youll the same possess. Wm. Mears & Co., London. Fecit 1779.

Tenor (46½ , 15–2–9, F); Forbes. 1779. The Revd. Mr. J Conant, A. M., Rector. W. W. Bradley, W. Brice, Ch. Wardens. 1779.

These bells form an excellent sounding ring. The first full peal on them was by Squire Powell's Quex Institution on December 27th, 1823, when S. Carter conducted 5,040 Grandsire Triples. Whether there have been any other peals is an open question; the writer would be interested to hear of others. Work on the bells has been infrequent. In 1898 a new clock and chimes were fitted by Gillett and Johnston: and in 1932 the tenor bell was quarter turned. rehung and refitted with ball bearings by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank. The other seven bells retain their original fittings and are quite unringable; the writer has yet to find anyone who can reliably say that they have rung in this tower.

In 1966 the clock was rebuilt, a new aluminium ladder provided to give access above the ringing chamber in place of a rotten newell stair of wood, and the whole clock room and ringing room chamber cleaned, decorated and rewired. New clocking ropes were provided for the bells, though the dangers of this practice are known to the authorities. There is no prospect of the bells being rehung at present. The tenor is rung "up" on most nights at 8 p.m. for the curfew.

It seems that the days are gone when St. Clement's bells shouted across to St. Peter's splendid octave. no doubt reminding the people of St. Mary's of their long-lost ring. Only St. Clement's is in use as a parish church today. Would it be too much to hope that one day those splendid arches in that mighty tower will resound again, possibly with the music of St. Peter's bells responding in the distance, and the music of both rings is carried on the evening air across the open flats, onward and outward to the open sea?

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

The Ilchester Branch of the Bath and Wells Association held its September quarterly meeting at the Church of St. James, Preston Plucknett, Yeovil. The Guild service was conducted by the Rev. David Nye. The choir was in attendance, the organist being Mr. Graham Score. The tea and meeting which followed were held in the church itself—a new and very pleasant experience for all.

New members elected were Mr. George Guppy, Mr. John Hawkins and Mr. Simon Hooper (East Chinnock), Mr. M. Walker (East Coker), Mr. John Caller (West Coker) and the Rev. J. G. M. Scott (non-resident life member).

Certificates were presented to Miss L. Legget, Miss M. Baker, Mrs. R. Rendell and Messrs. E. T. Paul Field, Ivan Reed, Alan Woodhouse, Tim Shire, Nigel Hunt, Tom Tulk, Robin Geard, Andrew Strickland, Ian Bowron, Reg Hunt, Sidney White and Ronald White.

It was unanimously agreed that the name of the late Mr. W. Delamont, of Hardington Mandeville, be recorded in the minutes.

Ringing on the good-going, if somewhat noisy, six (tenor 11 cwt.) was under the direction of the tower captain, Ringing Master and assistant Ringing Master, and included Bob Doubles, Plain Bob, Grandsire Doubles, April Day, Stedman, Kent and London.

The Branch is grateful to the Rev. David Nye, the organist and choir, Mrs. Score and her tea ladies for the very excellent tea, and to the tower captain, Mr. Jim Taylor, for a most enjoyable evening.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Aldbourne, Wilts, appears to have some promising material. In a recent Sunday service quarter there were three firsts and a first away from the tenor.

Five members of the Collins family took part in a quarter of Grandsire Triples at Chobham, Surrey. There should be a Collins peal before long.

A welcome back as a peal conductor to Mr. Francis C. Mogford. He called his first on August 26th at Marksbury after his fracture of both legs last September.

The Central District of the Ladies' Guild has arranged a dinner in connection with the 1968 A.G.M. It will take place at the Mayflower, Hertingfordbury, near Hertford.

All inquiries regarding the bells at St. Peter's, Pentre, Rhondda, Glamorgan, should be made to Mr. Tudor P. Edwards, 5, Pleasant View, Pentre, Rhondda, Glamorgan (Tel.: Pentre 3705).

On July 7th the Exeter Branch of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers held their quarterly meeting at Sandford. Although the numbers were small a very enjoyable afternoon was spent. The annual meeting was fixed for December 16th.

In a recent peal rung as a compliment for Mr. George Waterman's 82nd birthday, Mr. Edward B. Smith took part on the first day of his retirement. He is extremely interested in work for his church, and fellow members of the ringing fraternity wish him well in the future.

BANK HOLIDAY COMBINED OUTING

The East Derbyshire and West Notts Association and the Mansfield District of the Southwell Guild combined in a very successful outing on August Bank Holiday in and around Beverley and Hull. Two bus-loads of ringers and friends made a start at 8 a.m. from Mansfield and 7.30 a.m. from Alfreton, arriving at Beverley St. Mary's at 10.30. These lovely bells were rung for an hour with rounds for the not-so-proficient and Grandsire Caters, Kent Royal and Bob Royal for the others. The party then went to Hull for a picnic lunch and afterwards to Holy Trinity for a pleasant ring on the only 12 of the tour. Rounds was again on the menu but some nice touches of Stedman, Plain Bob, Grandsire and Kent were rung.

Cottingham was our next tower and although the nice eight are a trifle noisy in the ringing chamber they sound very well outside. Here we rang Stedman Triples, Kent, Plain Bob, rounds and a final touch of Cambridge Major. After this we called at Beverley Minster (10), where an hour's enjoyable ringing was had by all the company with the mixture as before. Tea was had at the Beverley Arms Hotel, where full justice was done to a bountiful meal. The next tower contained the beautiful six at Walkington, where a nice touch of Cambridge Minor was rung, also Kent and Bob Minor and once again rounds. Our last ring was at Goole, where a nice ring was enjoyed to finish off a wonderful day. Home was reached soon after 11 p.m., and a tired but happy party dispersed after climbing over 400 steps during the tour.

Our thanks go to the incumbents and our ringing friends in Yorkshire, especially to Ben Cooper and Neville Pailing, and also to Eric Sterland and Don Beach for a well-organised outing. May it be the first of many.

BRAINTWISTER No. 2 SOLUTION

By A. S. HUDSON

The Tower Snatch has brought some interesting replies. Not quite so easy as the first problem perhaps, but nevertheless a number of people experienced no great difficulty. I had not realised, until I came to setting these problems, how difficult it is to set them unambiguously, and it would appear that problem No. 2 can be taken in two different ways. Fortunately only one person noticed that if you read it incorrectly there will be six possible solutions. However, if you read it the way it was intended, there is a unique solution. It all depends how many towers John had already got before the outing started, and it was intended that he should have only rung at one. In view of this ambiguity all the possible correct entries were included in the draw. The correct solution is

MUCH GRAPPLING	Ann, Dick, John
S. TWISTEAD	David, Dennis, John, Bill
N. JANGLING	Dick, Bill, John, David
BACKWOODSBURY	Ann, Dennis, Dick.

The prize this time goes to Mr. B. E. Matthews, of London, W.1, who receives a Ringers' Diary voucher.

One or two readers complained that it was a very bad outing; apparently there should have been twice as many towers and three times as many ringers. I agree entirely—but don't ask me to set a puzzle round it!

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH, HEADINGTON, OXFORD

The six bells at St. Andrew's Church commenced ringing again on Sunday, August 20th, after the rather long silence necessary for the bells to be rehung and for other work to be done. The bells have been tuned and rehung in a new iron frame in which provision has been made for the addition of two more bells at a future date. The work has been carried out by Messrs. F. A. White, of Appleton, Berks, and is another good example of their craftsmanship. The ringing chamber floor has also been renewed. Delays there were with this rehanging, the main one occurring after the bells had been taken down and the frame dismantled, when someone realised that no faculty had been applied for, and this resulted in a "standstill" for some time until the faculty had been obtained. I am pleased to be able to say that these bells are not now anti-clockwise although it seems that the architect tried to retain the old frame, despite its very poor condition, but common sense prevailed.

Of the bells themselves, Mr. F. Sharpe, in his "Church Bells of Oxfordshire", gives the following information. He says that the oldest bell in the ring, the fifth, is a beautiful bell by the successors of John Danyell, of London, c. 1470. The treble and third are by John Briant, 1792; the second, with the initials MD, is probably Michael Darbie's, 1654; the fourth is by Richard Purdue, 1624; and the tenor was cast by William Yare, 1613. The weights are now given as treble 4-0-5, second 4-2-15, third 4-0-2, fourth 5-3-7, fifth 7-0-14, tenor 7-3-6. It should be noted that the third is the lightest bell in the ring, three pounds lighter than the treble which is by the same founder.

It is intended that a thanksgiving service will be held in December in connection with the bells and the organ, which is also receiving attention at this time. Regular ringing takes place at this tower: 10.15 a.m. and 5.50 p.m. on Sundays with a practice each Tuesday starting at 7.45 p.m. Visitors are always welcome.

HANDBELLS—AND OTHER BELLS

Mr. P. Amos, Northampton, writes: "Re the Surrey ringer who had his handbells stolen, dealers are, at this moment, falling over each other to get hold of handbells, so beware! The laughable thing is that hardly any of them in second-hand shops, gift shops, or market stalls know the difference between handbells and auctioneers' bells or criers' bells (as we call them).

"I once advertised in a national newspaper to buy a set of handbells and was inundated with letters and callers, offering wooden-handled auctioneers' bells and even some shop door bells with springs still on. The would-be sellers look dumbfounded when you tell them, with a laugh, that they are not handbells!

"To those dealers, if anyone has got any handbells handy it is advisable never to let them see them."

Congratulations to Mr. Walter Ayre, convener of the Peals Analysis Committee, on conducting his 500th peal on August 26th.

After meeting short for a peal at North Mymms, Herts, Jennifer M. Judge, aged 17 years, was disturbed from her rest in bed, came with enthusiasm to score her first peal, and so helped Walter Wainwright, aged 69 years, to score his first "inside".

THE CHURCH OF ST. MARY AND ALL SAINTS, CHESTERFIELD

THE church — of cruciform design — was erected in several stages, the present chancel and chapels dating back to the early 1200's, the tower and south transept following in 1305–77.

The tower and spire are carried on four massive piers down to ground level and containing the "crossing" in which for some years now has been located the central altar. Above this is a vaulted ceiling having in the centre a very nice trap through which the bells could be brought down if necessary. Immediately above is the ringing room, then the clock room which, until 1946, housed an ancient treadmill used, evidently, to raise the builders' material for the erection of the tower.

Higher still, but still below the louvres, are the ten bells, carried in a modern steel frame resting on heavy steel girders built into the walls, the whole installation being some eight feet lower than the old ten with their wooden frame, and designed to greatly minimise the thrust of the bells when swinging.

The present ring of ten, with a tenor of 1 ton, 5 cwt. 1 qr. 5 lb. in E flat, was installed in 1947 and succeeds a previous ten installed in 1820, both being by the Whitechapel Foundry. Previous to this a ring of eight existed, having been recast in 1774, but there is not any record earlier than this.

The spire itself dates back to the latter part of the 14th century, 1375–1400, and is 228ft. high from ground level. The latest survey shows an "out-of-truth" vertically of 8ft. 7½in. on the north side.

On December 22nd, 1961, a disastrous fire occurred in the choir vestry, demolishing the famous Schnetzler organ, vestments and music, and completely ruining the ringing room and the room above. The bells were not adversely affected, and a new set of ropes from the bell foundry enabled the bells to be rung on Christmas morning as usual.

Renovations have now restored the tower to its former condition.

BRANCH OFFICER'S NEW APPOINTMENT

Mr. H. J. Rooney, Branch representative and assistant secretary of the Vale of White Horse Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, having recently obtained a new appointment, has now moved to St. Albans, Hertfordshire, and the Branch has lost a most valuable officer and member. Jack Rooney represented the Branch for several years and has given much time and effort in support of its activities. Always willing to help out where required and a regular attender at the Hinton Waldrist weekly practice, which he says he much enjoyed, Jack will be missed within the Branch, but he hopes to visit us from time to time. The Branch and his many ringing friends wish him well and success in his new appointment, and although our loss his move will be to the Hertford County Association a gain.

C. R. M.

Mr. Francis C. Mogford is welcomed back as a peal conductor since his fracture of both legs last September. On August 26th he called a peal at Marksbury, Somerset.

WEDDING

WOODRUFFE—BULLEN

The wedding took place on Friday, September 1st, 1967, at St. Mary's Church, Panteg, Mon, between Brian J. Woodruffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Woodruffe, of Fairfield, Buxton and Patricia Bullen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bullen, of Pontypool. The service was conducted by the Rev. Curtis Morgan. The bride was attended by a college friend, Miss Mary Gash, and Mr. Hugh Mason was the best man. A reception was held at the Bridge Hotel, Newbridge-on-Usk, after which the happy couple left for a honeymoon in South Devon.

The small Church of St. Mary, Panteg, is beautifully situated in the countryside and made an ideal setting for a wedding. It has a tower containing three bells, hung for ringing, and the temptation to ring them proved too much for the bridegroom's ringing friends and one of the band now claims to have rung the extents on 3 to 8 bells! The bells were rung both before and after the service.

On the eve of the wedding the bridegroom conducted a peal of Bob Maximus on handbells, the band comprising Miss Hazel Way, Arthur Hoare and Edmund Morris, of Swansea (these three rang many handbell peals with Brian during his stay in Swansea), and Bob Smith and Bernard Groves, who have been ringing friends of the bridegroom since schooldays. A good peal was scored, most of which was recorded on tape.

A peal of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung at All Saints', Newport, on the Saturday morning after the wedding, in which four of the guests took part. It is hoped that it will not spoil the honeymoon when the bridegroom notes that Bernard Groves has scored his 800th peal before him!

OUTING TO WILTSHIRE AND SOMERSET

The silence of some 15 years was broken at Berwick St. John's, Wiltshire, on Sunday morning, September 3rd, by a band of ringers from Wiltshire, Hampshire and London. The six bells, last rehung by Stokes of Woodbury in 1885, went remarkably well after the long idleness forced upon them by the state of the tower stonework, which has now been repaired. The ringing included a course of London. Afterwards we were very kindly entertained to coffee and biscuits at the home of Mr. Bartlett, one of the churchwardens.

The party moved on over the Downs to Sutton Veny, whose pleasant six were rehung and somewhat drastically retuned by Gillett and Johnston in 1928 (tenor 8-2-12 in F/F sharp!). The new Rector hopes to resume local ringing here. The more or less "minor" five at Norton Bavant proved something of a handful due to lack of oil; the three old bells here were augmented by Llewellin and James in 1894.

After lunch in Warminster we visited Berkley, a 10 cwt. four hung on two levels in the minute west tower of this unusual 18th century church. Ringing here is made more interesting by the ropes, all dropping an inch or two from the corners of the tower; however, we managed Reverse Canterbury Minimus. After a quick ring following a christening at Norton St. Philip we called at Freshford, a village typical of the Bath-Bradford district, with its maze of steep, narrow streets and lanes. The bells (Taylor, 1885-1935) are an enjoyable five.

On the light four at Farleigh Hungerford we rang Stedman Minimus and more Reverse Canterbury. We had to miss out the bells at Westwood, nearby, which for some obscure reason have been declared unsafe, although they were rung regularly until four years or so ago and the Rector wishes that they still were. For evening service ringing we joined the local bands on the two very enjoyable eights in Bradford-on-Avon—at Christ Church an excellent Gillett ring of 1923 and at Holy Trinity a grand heavy octave last rehung by Blackbourn and Greenleaf in 1891. Five of the party rang at Yatesbury on the way home and were glad to be joined by Mr. Fred Preston, the local captain.

LETTERS continued

ISLEWORTH CHURCH, MIDDLESEX

Dear Sir,—I must apologise for harking back to the issue of July 21st—I had expected that by now someone else would have put the record straight on two matters regarding the front page illustration of, and article about, Isleworth Church, Middlesex.

Firstly, the bells are a ring of ten in a major key of between E flat and D—the notes of the 3rd, 6th, 7th and tenor bells should therefore read E flat, B flat, A flat and E flat respectively and not as printed. The tenor bell, in particular, is rather light at 16-0-24 for its note, the old Lester and Pack octave having been very considerably reduced on the Loughborough tuning machine in 1902-3. Opinions of course vary on the present tonal qualities of these bells—some idea of what they must have sounded like pefore retuning can be gained from listening to Long Crendon, Bucks, bells which were cast by the same founders in 1768, the year after Isleworth's.

Secondly, from the front page illustration readers night reasonably have assumed that the "new and exciting church" mentioned in the article had already been built; however, as one who passes Isleworth Church on average twice a day, I can assume them that as vet not one brick has been laid upon another. The photograph was evidently retouched to show how the tower will look when—and if—the present rebuilding scheme is completed.—Yours faithfully,

CHRISTOPHER DALTON.

St. Margaret's, Middlesex.

THE RENEGADE RINGER

A Slight Element of Truth Pervades This Story

By T. A. BEVIS

THE Vicar thrust his hands deep into baggy pockets and watched the ethereal glow of a fenland sunset. The new aluminium sphere at the top of the church spire glinted spectacularly. In this sphere the Vicar had placed a number of objects, including a local newspaper, to commemorate the spire's renovation. In a day or two a weather vane would surmount the sphere and the job would be complete.

"Why are the ringers so difficult?" Mr. Abrams asked himself. "Did I really overstep my authority?" His was not a common problem. Some ringers were inclined to regard themselves as a society set more or less apart from the church.

It did seem quite out of keeping with Christian ethics when ringers performed their duty prior to service time—and then left whilst the first hymn was being sung.

The Vicar had done all he could to persuade his campanologists to join the congregation, mindfully recalling the adage; "When hand says come and feet say go..." It was most discouraging, especially as there was a promising number of young recruits involved.

A few bellringers sympathised with the Vicar, but the majority differed. Harold Milligan, the captain, was the principal tenor man. He was a descendant of Irish immigrants who had settled in the fens two centuries ago. Harold had inherited a strong portion of Irish stubbornness and temper, but he was an honest, straightforward man.

"What right," asked Harold one practice night, "has the Vicar to insist that we stay to service after sweating on his behalf! If he rang I'll wager he'd be thirsty too! Anyone wanting to leave can go as they've done for years— by the turret-door." At St. Andrew's there were two entrances to the steeple—one internally, the other externally.

The last time Milligan and the Vicar met had not been under entirely harmonious circumstances. The Vicar firmly intimated that he would seriously consider having the exterior entrance blocked up. Two weeks later the clergyman arranged for a local builder to carry out this threat, feeling that a bold front would serve a useful purpose.

Alas, the action had the opposite effect. Milligan and the senior ringers refused to ring the bells, and the young team began to drift away.

That was the Vicar's dilemma. His eyes rested on the horizon and a solution seemed to be as far away as the sun itself.

* * * *

The tower's shadow fell across the Plough Inn. The landlord bantered good-naturedly with a few of the regulars. Milligan, unusually preoccupied, sat moodily in a corner of the bar, looking at the tower through a window.

A bearded son of the soil muttered to his friend, "What's up wi' him tonight? Other times he's the life and soul of the place." Overhearing that remark, mine host commented: "Oh, Harold's got bell trouble. See how he listens to the quarter chimes. Like one real gone! I'll say this though, Harold's drinking like never before ... good for trade, y'know..."

Milligan sopped up his fifth pint, licked his lips and jabbed a podgy finger at the landlord.

"Vicar wants to look after his end; I can manage my own. The chancel's his concern—not the tower." All eyes were on him. "All he thinks about is that damned sphere at the top." He gripped the table edge. "Vicar had the cheek to put a no-good newspaper inside it... not the one I work for!"

Milligan went to the door and looked up at the dark mass of stone. The steeplejacks had left the grappling ladders attached to the spire. The bellringer drained his mug and put on his cap... "Cheerio, mates." He walked unsteadily.

* * * *

The Vicar had settled down at last. An oil-lamp cast a gentle, soothing light on a prayer book and a couple of Bibles. Littered over the desk were numerous pieces of paper on which were written references. He stabbed pen on paper in a flourish of instantaneous inspiration, quite unaware of a cock pheasant's harsh call to its mate, nearby in the fen. The sun reluctantly turned a deep red, and peeped over the horizon at a peaceful group of Lombardy poplars.

Cock pheasant called again. The church clock struck twice.

Mr. Abrams raised his head. "The clock struck two?" He scratched his head. "It cannot be the clock. There it is again! What on earth..." Adjusting his spectacles the clergyman hurried to a window.

His eyes were riveted to the church spire in incredulous wonder. "Surely not! But it is! Someone has climbed the steeple and... bless my soul, he's striking the sphere!"

Milligan did not fancy heights, which was surprising, really, considered he climbed towers to ring bells. He was certainly not interested in the fine view from the battlements—and even less from his precarious perch on the spire. He sat astride the new sphere holding on to a vertical shaft which was later to receive the new weather vane.

The chief bellringer, mightily fortified with an outsize dose of alcohol, had scaled the spire and was belabouring the round container with a heavy hammer for all he was worth.

He swung hard at the sphere and matched his voice with the crunching impact. "Sounds like the last lot of Double Norwich we rang... Here's to the Vicar...." (Clang!) "And this is for the daft things inside." Another blow descended on to the much-dented object.

Far away across the fen, the twinkling lights of Ely glinted like tinsel against the black mass of Norman church. Ditches gleamed like ribbons in web-like patterns. Churchyard chestnut trees hummed evensong in the strengthening breeze. Hair waving wildly, Milligan saw lights appearing all around.

He glanced down and shuddered. Earth seemed far away. A thin ledge offered little comfort—beyond that a sheer drop, 120 feet into a graveyard bursting at the seams with tombstones.

A sudden gust of wind hit Milligan. The ringer threw both arms round the shaft and the hammer dropped noiselessly into the darkening abyss.

It was cold, but Milligan perspired. His unenviable predicament sobered him. He listened in terror at the flapping of his jacket as it threatened to detach itself from its owner.

"Oh, God... I think I'll fall... can't move to the ladder... seems to be slipping." Fear clutched at him. He winced as the church clock chimed. The bells he loved petrified him now.

Harold was certain that the spire had moved, throwing him to one side. Imagination took a hand now... "I'm falling!" he cried, "I'm going over..."

"No, Milligan, you are not falling," a calm voice intoned from below.

The renegade ringer glanced sideways. From the corner of his eyes he observed a white head of hair. The composed face of the Vicar returned Harold's amazed stare.

Mr. Abrams placed a reassuring hand on Milligan's foot.

"You must do exactly as I say and, above all, man, do not panic." Milligan nodded.

"Work round slightly to the left," the Vicar said. With some difficulty, the ringer did so.

Talking quietly but distinctly, Mr. Abrams continued, "I will guide your feet on to the ladder, but keep hold of the shaft." Milligan proffered a foot which was taken and placed on the ladder, above his helper's head, followed by the other foot.

"Now, Harold, I shall hold you firmly by the legs." The Vicar shouted against the wind. "Your feet are on the second rung. Let go of the shaft, bend down and grasp hold of the ladder."

Milligan perspired afresh. "The wind, sir! The wind will blow us off the spire!"

Mr. Abrams spoke sharply: "Do as I say! We must not waste time. I have hold of you."

In the split second of relinquishing his grip from the shaft, Milligan felt that all eternity was before him.

Little by little, helped and persuaded by the Vicar, the trembling man descended the spire to the battlements where both rescued and rescuer were received by friendly hands.

Talking to his churchwarden a few weeks later, the Vicar said his experience of rock climbing while in Cumberland served him in good stead that eventful evening.

"My prayer was answered," he sighed thankfully. "Our bellringers are together again—they were lost and are found. But reward of rewards! they stay to the services. Milligan? A loyal and devoted man." He smiled. "Colours a little when passing the bricked-up entrance though..."

At the tip of the spire the disfigured sphere, green with the passing years, remains undisturbed.

THE RINGING WORLD

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

No. 2944. Vol. LXIII FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1967 9d.

THE CATHEDRAL CHURCH OF ST. MARY AND ST. ETHELBERT, HEREFORD

On a site which has had a church before 600 A.D. stands Hereford Cathedral. Welsh hordes burned down the church built by Bishop Althelstan in 1055, and twenty years later Robert Rosinga, of Lorraine, the first Norman Bishop, started the present building.

Few English Cathedrals have a more perfect series of different styles of English architecture than Hereford, which contains examples of all the fashions of architecture in use in this country during the five centuries preceding the 16th.

The massive central tower (1320–40), which is enriched with ball-flower ornament, was at one time surmounted by a timber spire. A second tower built over the west end in the 14th century collapsed in 1786 carrying with it two bays, one of which has never been rebuilt.

Inside the Cathedral, the most conspicuous piece of old work is in the Norman nave arcades with their cylindrical piers. The triforium and clerestory represent a Gothic design by James Wyatt, and his vault is a good version of a 14th century one, in painted wood and fine bosses.

The west front, reconstructed by Wyatt after the collapse of the tower, was replaced by work designed by John Oland Scott, 1901–7, which has added to the beauty of the building.

TELLING AUSTRALIA ABOUT THE CENTRAL COUNCIL

Philip Gray's report to "Ringing Towers"

I HAVE now been a member of the Central Council for ten years, firstly representing the old New South Wales Association and, more recently, ANZAB. It has been a great pleasure and honour for me to do this, and I am most grateful for your continuing support. After such a time one becomes, I suppose, more aware of what the existence of such a body stands for rather than the proceedings of any particular meeting. In truth, one meeting is very much like another, just as with our Churches, one service is very like another, and indeed with our ringing where one session is much like another. This is no criticism of what these bodies stand for however. The sense of continuity and stability needs to be very strong indeed in ringing as new faces appear on the ever-changing scene and older ones drop out. I have become convinced that the continued existence of the Central Council, its working committees and, particularly, "The Ringing World" are of more value to ringing than the transactions of any particular meeting.

Even after only ten years I think I can claim to have served on the Council for longer than perhaps two-thirds of those present at Nottingham. It cannot be truthfully said that it is always the same old crowd meeting year after year. You may feel, as do many ringers in England, that its business is repetitive, unimaginative and that it is shy of tackling the real issues. I think that there are most important issues about which the Council does too little, but in its quiet way it does tackle a lot of problems and I think that it is the awareness of the need of maintaining continuity that makes the quiet behind-the-scenes approach the best. Come what may, our bells must ring out every one of 52 Sundays in every year and "The Ringing World" must appear on every Thursday of every year. These are the absolute priorities. This background is not consistent with revolutions, resignations en masse and bitter personal feuds. Revolutions are for the very poor or the very rich but not for us.

This lengthy introduction to the Nottingham meeting is necessary to put to you the background to the debate on "The Ringing World," of which you will all be reading in due course in that paper. It was, at times, an angry debate because many of us on the Council last year believed that we had set a revolution rolling which would transform our paper within a year and make it immediately appealing to at least some of those very many ringers who do not at present buy it. Some real improvements have occurred, as you have seen, and the circulation has risen modestly, but the personality clashes of revolution brought us, I believe, perilously closer to the brink of disaster than most members realised before this meeting. But a revolution in "The Ringing World" has not taken place in the past year and the possibility of the Council being so displeased by this apparent flouting of its wishes, expressed at Bath in 1966 and calling for a bloodbath that might have destroyed "The Ringing World" was, I believe, a real one. Fortunately it shrank from this with good sense and adroit chairmanship by the President, but I am sure that the process of change which has now been set in motion will continue, though not at bush-fire speed. It is said that these stresses and strains have resulted in the resignation of George Pipe and Dennis Beresford from "The Ringing World" committee, for it is small reward for the great amount of work that they have put in; I cannot believe, however, that their work will not bear fruit in time. It is more serious that the "Ringing World" Committee has not had its infusion of new and younger blood which George and Dennis represented because it needs it as much as any Belfry, Association or Council just to carry on the work.

"The Ringing World" is, of course, owned by the Central Council and it is quite clear that the members of the Council take this responsibility very seriously. It is also quite clear that a substantial majority are still very genuinely concerned that the paper is not being used to the maximum advantage of all the ringers whom we represent. The Nottingham meeting was thus an instalment in an unfinished story and the Council did at least show that it was able to control its temper.

A totally uncontentious point was one of direct concern to all Australians; the possibility of getting a ring of bells installed in Canberra. Following a letter from Bill Pitcher, the President of the Central Council, Canon Gilbert Thurlow, has in the last few weeks been in correspondence with the Australian and British Governments and now believes that the situation is still open enough to allow for a ring of bells hung for change-ringing to be hung in Canberra, if sufficient pressure can be brought to bear. He arranged therefore for Fred Sharpe, the Convener of the Towers and Belfries Committee, to put a motion to the meeting requesting the Australian and British Governments to consider the installation of "8 or more bells hung for ringing in the English fashion" as part of the gift of the British Government to Canberra on the occasion of the City's Golden Jubilee. I had great pleasure in seconding the motion and every member of the Council had no hesitation in voting for it. This will now be forwarded to the appropriate high quarters by Gilbert Thurlow. Let us look forward to a fine ring of bells sounding out across Lake Burley Griffin and an annual meeting of ANZAB being held in Canberra soon.

INSTRUCTIONAL COURSE REPLACES MONTHLY MEETING OF BEVERLEY SOCIETY

EARLIER this year the committee of the Beverley and District Society considered the possibility of arranging a one-day course of instruction and a comprehensive questionnaire was issued, with suggestions for a very wide range of subjects, which members were asked to complete. The response was most encouraging and the course was duly arranged to take the place of the normal September monthly meeting.

Most of the administrative work was ably undertaken by Mr. D. S. Johnson and Miss J. Gray, and more than 50 members, including a large proportion of very young people, assembled at the Village Hall, Walkington, at 9.30 a.m. on September 9th.

After a short introduction by the president, Mr. K. Kirk, the party divided into two groups, one for a lecture in the Hall by J. Henry Fielden on learning to ring and conduct Surprise Major, and the other in Walkington Church for a demonstration on teaching beginners correct handling and ringing up and down in peal by W. F. Moreton.

After a short break for coffee and biscuits a lecture was given by John S. Rank on elementary change ringing and method construction, and there was a session of instruction in handbell ringing by R. Ducker.

The first part of the afternoon was taken up with a demonstration and talk by W. F. Moreton on bell maintenance, rope splicing, sound control and the organisation of a band, and later there was further instruction in handbell ringing by R. Ducker and a lecture by W. F. Moreton on learning and conducting Surprise Minor. A model bell was kindly loaned by Mr. D. Stipetic, of Holy Trinity, Hull.

A substantial tea was provided by the Walkington ringers and helpers and there was practical ringing in the evening of St. Mary's, Beverley and Walkington. The numbers present at the tea were 57 and Mr. Kirk thanked all those who had co-operated so well in the organisation of this first venture by the Beverley Society. A. C. C.

CHELTENHAM BRANCH VISIT A FOUR-BELL TOWER

Most of our Branch meetings are held in the evening. I still have reservations about this, but they are always well attended. Recently we were made aware of a ring of four at Brimpsfield, Glos, and arranged to call en route to Elkstone, a regular venue. Something over 30 ringers, at four a time, occupied most of the available period. The church is in a field, with quite a good path past a Norman moat and farm buildings incorporating bits of a former priory. It was no surprise to find the church a mixture of styles of architecture. The bells are in a central tower; they go quite well and sound well and moreover there is a local band

It was nice to have another bell at Elkstone to cover the Minimus and, of course, there were the usual and unusual Doubles methods. I don't much care for the one that starts 21345 and thereafter continues in like manner.

We were bidden to the home of the Association chairman (Miss Mary Bliss) for refreshments, and I thought that Branch business would never get under way. Apparently we are to be involved in a striking competition. I must ascertain the date, probably next summer, when I may be able to arrange my holiday. W. A. F.

HEREFORD CATHEDRAL

Mr. Frederick Sharpe, the author of "The Bells of Herefordshire," regrets that his article on the bells of Hereford Cathedral is not yet complete, as new points have arisen for research. As soon as the article is ready he has promised it to "The Ringing World" for publication.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

Devizes Branch

Once again the Branch had the pleasure on September 9th of a visit to Great Cheverell, one of Wiltshire's most charming villages. The Church of St. Peter stands on an eminence from which the prospect to the north east embraces part of the Vale of Pewsey bounded by the heights of Tan Hill, Milk Hill and Walker's Grave, while the view to the south takes in the great bastion of Salisbury Plain.

Great Cheverell is the home of Sir Charles Chittem, who gave the treble bell to the church and who delights to have the ringers there for meetings. As is usual when the Branch goes there Sir Charles entertained everybody to tea and kept the company of 30 alive and cheerful with his conversation It is encouraging to find that there are still some genuine patrons of our art, and we are profoundly grateful to this kind gentleman for all that he does for us.

The ringing at the tower was interesting. It ranged from rounds to London Minor, and it must be said that Mr. Knee provided a very astute and satisfying mixture. There was quite a lot of round ringing and much of it was assisted by the Surprise ringers. Mr. Graham Davis's learners showed up well, and one must congratulate them on their bell handling. Lovely weather, some good ringing practice, a very satisfying tea and a refreshing peep at Sir Charles' garden—all these merged to make up a delightful afternoon. E. C. S.

A DAY IN WENSLEYDALE

Lanchester, Co. Durham, ringers had adventures on their first outing into the Wensleydale area of Yorkshire on the Bank Holiday. After sampling the heavy six at Gainford we travelled through beautiful North Yorkshire dales to East Witton. There have been no active ringers here for a while, but the pigeons have been active. As the tenor rope disappeared through the ceiling, successive ringers were covered with a shower of pigeon droppings and, in one case, half a nest! We were thus forced to call it a day!

The sallies at Aysgarth provided plenty of amusement. We understand that at one time the belfry had no ropes so a plea went out to the locality One person said he had "ropes-a-plenty" and provided a long piece of rope. This was cut into six lengths and home-made sallies of colourful tassels sewn to the ropes. The sallies went up in the normal streamline fashion but descended with a wonderful parachute effect as each tassel flew out in a horizontal position.

Our last and most successful tower was at Grinton, where we met ringers from Cambridge and Sunderland who were passing through when they heard the bells.

Our thanks go to Harry Thompson for arranging this trip. A. H. W. and A. C. W.

HERTS COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Northern District

Knebworth (8 bells) was the venue for the September evening meeting of the Northern District held on the 2nd. The bells were raised in peal at 6.30 and, under the direction of the Ringing Master were kept going until 8.45, methods ranging to Superlative and London. A fair attendance was noted and it was encouraging to see the younger members taking advantage of the experts' help. The usual after-ringing activity was enjoyed in the "Lytton".

Next meeting, October 7th. Tower will be announced later as Baldock is still without a tenor. A new District secretary and "R.W." representative are to be elected at this meeting.

A Corner for Welsh Ringers

NORTH WALES ASSOCIATION

FOR most of the members of the North Wales Association who attended the half-yearly meeting at Machynlleth on September 2nd it entailed a journey of over 70 miles. An 8.30 a.m. start from Mold, and calling to pick up at Buckley, Hope, Wrexham and Llangollen, the coach party was complete for the journey via Oswestry and Welshpool and then on through the beautiful heather-covered mountains to Machynlleth in time for lunch.

The light ring of eight bells was set going at 2 p.m. to a well-struck touch of Stedman Triples, followed by Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob, Double Norwich and call-changes for the beginners.

The ringers' service was conducted by the Rev. John Evans, Vicar of Penygoes, and the lesson read by Mr. H. D. B. Millward.

An excellent tea, provided by the local ringers and served by their wives and helpers, was very much appreciated, so also were the prize dahlias grown by Mr. H. L. Fearn, the local captain, with which the hall had been decorated and greatly admired by all.

The business meeting followed, presided over by the Rev. John Evans and supported by the Ringing Master, Mr. F. R. Evans. In his address the chairman cordially welcomed the members and apologised for the absence of the Vicar of Machynlleth due to illness. The secretary was asked to convey the members' wishes for his speedy recovery to good health.

The arrangements for a ringers' day school to be held at Portmadoc on Saturday, September 16th, were finalised. This course was mainly for members in the Bangor area, and the Ringing Master said he was hoping the school would be well attended.

New members elected were Mr. B. Lloyd and Mr D. Armstrong (Machynlleth) and Mr. G. Jones (Dolgellau).

A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. D. H. B. Millward to the chairman and organist, also to the local ringers and ladies for their hospitality and for making it a memorable day in the history of the Association.

APPRECIATION

Following the report on the Irish tour, "Ringing World", September 8th, page 635, how very true this was. I write on behalf of the ringers and wives from Penn who took part in the tour; all express their thanks and appreciation to Mr. B. G. (Barney) Key for his excellent arrangements, both sightseeing and ringing. Also on the Irish side we would express our thanks to Messrs. Fred Dukes and Peter Brown for their part.

We all agree that this threesome must have had much correspondence, co-operation and patience to enable such a tour to be so successful. Once again, very many thanks to all for a most enjoyable holiday. Here's to the next.

C. F. W. E. and party.

ST. DAVID'S DIOCESAN GUILD

The quarterly meeting of the St. David's Diocesan Guild was held in glorious sunshine on September 9th at St. Mary's, Tenby, members attending from Burry Port, Cardigan, Carmarthen, Fishguard, Llanbadarn Fawr, Llandeilo, Llanelli, Pembroke, St. Florence and Tenby.

The bells were available from 2.30 p.m. The service at 4 p.m. was conducted by the Rev. Samuel Lowe, assisted by the Rev. John Hale, the lessons were read by Rev. R. W. Thomas (Master) and the organist was Mr. W. Gwyn Thomas, M.A.

An excellent tea was provided in the Church Hall by the ladies of the parish, followed by the business meeting.

The Master stated that a list of Guild officers would in future appear in the Diocesan Year Book. He extended a warm welcome to John and Marjorie Hill, of Hillingdon, who were on holiday in the district.

The Ringing Master gave a brief report on the Tarrington peal tour, in which ten St. David's Guild members took part.

The towers for the 1968 meetings were chosen and several new members elected. Applause greeted the election of six new members from St Michael's, Bosherston, a small village church which has had its three bells rehung for ringing.

Members were pleased to hear that the bells at Llandovery are once more being rung regularly on Sundays and practice nights.

Ringing was then resumed until 8.30 p.m. Methods rung included Grandsire, Stedman and St. Clement's Triples, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, Plain, Little Bob and Double Norwich Court Bob Major.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION

Ringers from most districts of Lancashire joined in the monthly meeting of the Blackburn Branch at Burnley on September 2nd, when local ringers provided an enjoyable tea.

At the meeting Mr. Roger Leigh reported that the dedication of Accrington's two new bells would take place the following day. Ringing in methods varying from rounds to Surprise Major followed until 8.15 p.m.

Next meeting, Rishton; special methods: Double Norwich C.B. Major and Gainsborough L.C.

HEREFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

The late summer meeting of the Bridgnorth Branch was held at Worfield on September 2nd. Ringing during the afternoon and evening was under the direction of Mr. A. Jones, Ringing Master. The service was conducted by the Vicar, Rev. C. S. Thompson, and this took the form of compline with ringers' hymns added, and was most effective. A nearby village tea room was the venue for tea. Thirty members and friends attended this enjoyable meeting.

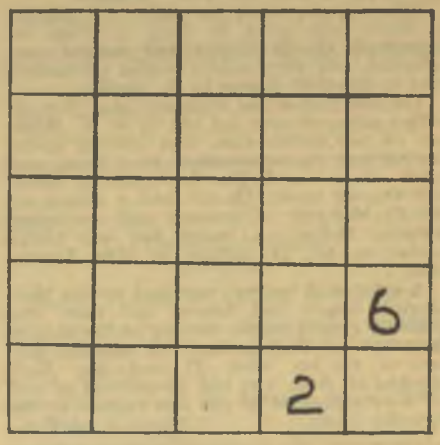
BRAINTWISTER No. 3

This week's Braintwister is Plain Bob Minor again, a rather diverting problem submitted by C. W. Daws, of Cambridge.

1 2 3 4	If you consider the attached touch of Plain Bob Minimus, which I know is false, and remove the 1 from each row, then the lead-heads (backstrokes) may be written in a square, rather like a crossword:—
1 3 4 2
1 4 2 3
S 1 2 4 3
1 4 3 2
1 3 2 4
S 1 2 3 4

2 | 3 | 4
4 | 2 | 3
3 | 4 | 2

and all the lead-heads are somewhere in the square, either reading along the line, or vertically down the column. This week's problem is to do the same thing with Bob Minor, and find a touch of 120 changes which will fit into the given square in a similar manner. Send the completed square, as usual, to the Editor, please, addressed Braintwister No. 3, "The Ringing World", c/o Seven Corners Press Ltd., Guildford.



SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

North Dorset Branch

Twelve of the Branch's affiliated towers were represented at the meeting held on September 9th at Lillington, a tiny village with a tiny church, a tiny ringing chamber, where the five ropes were put to good use, and a tiny exschool where a generous tea was served. The Rector, Canon S. B. Wingfield Digby, took the service and extended a warm welcome. The lesson was read by the Branch chairman, Rev. R. G. Chaffey Moore, and handbells were rung during the service by Susan Corry, John Longridge, Timothy Bleathman and Martin Corry.

At the meeting Miss M. D. Ouvry was elected an honorary member and Mr. James Alexander (Hazelbury Bryan) and Miss Pamela Churchill (Yetminster) were elected ringing members.

The chairman expressed the thanks of members to the Rector and his organist, to Mr. J. Stevens, the local tower captain, and to Mrs. Marks and her helpers who had prepared and served the tea.

Ringing continued at Lillington and then at neighbouring Thornford (6). Methods rung ranged from rounds to London Surprise Minor.

SPAXTON, SOMERSET.—On August 28th, 1,260 Grandsire Doubles: A. G. Kent 1, E. J. Pope (first "inside") 2, C. T. Clarke 3, G. Nabb 4, M. J. Stone (cond.) 5, E. T. Dibble 6. Rung for the Spaxton Flower Show.

From Down Under

RINGING FLOURISHING IN VICTORIA

Mrs. Helen Henderson writes most encouragingly about ringing in Victoria as in the last two weeks four quarters and a handbell peal of Surprise Minor have been rung.

"We have also made trips to our nearest towers — Ballarat and Bendigo. On Sunday, August 27th, about a dozen Melbourne ringers visited Bendigo for the dedication of their peal board (a Great Adventure II peal), which was supposed to have taken place during the ANZAB week-end. On Wednesday, August 30th, four of us joined the Ballarat ringers at the City Hall, Ballarat, to ring in the new mayor, a traditional ring.

"On Tuesday, September 5th, Ross Bampton, a Sydney ringer in Melbourne for a year, Ray Stanton, another Sydney ringer on school holidays, and I journeyed to Bendigo again to ring in a quarter of Bob Triples for Monica Marten's birthday. This was the second quarter of Triples on the bells and the first containing local ringers. We then joined the local practice after a hearty meal provided by the ringers.

"We have a new practice at St. Paul's Cathedral whereby, once a month on a Friday, we join with the ringers of our second nearest tower — Ballarat, some 70 miles away. They have few change-ringers at present, so Jack Roper suggested this idea and tonight will be the third group to visit for a practice night.

"Ringing now is probably the strongest that it has ever been at St. Paul's Cathedral. The Rossells have increased our numbers of experienced ringers and we ring touches of Stedman Caters (not always successful), some of Yorkshire Surprise Major and we even rang a successful course of Grandsire Cinques for service last Sunday."

Grouping of False Course Ends

By Roger Baldwin

MAURICE HODGSON has arranged the 60 in-course false course-ends into a number of groups, each of which has the property that if one member of the group is a false course-end of a particular method, then so also are remaining members of the group. These groups are now fairly well known and are set out in full in Wratten's Collection for example, and they provide a fairly powerful tool in assessing the potential of a method from the point of view of composition. However, if singles are included in the composition then a further problem arises in that each in-course course may be false against an out-of-course course, and Hodgson's grouping then gives no information. The object of the present article is to extend Hodgson's grouping to include the 60 out-of-course false course-ends, and to discuss some possible uses of singles indicated by the results.

The details of the calculations are out of place in the present article, so I will merely show the results, given in the table. Each group now comprises a set of in-course f.c.e.'s (which will be referred to as F (+)) and a set of out-of-course f.c.e.'s (referred to as F (−)), although it will be noticed that in some of the groups one or the other is absent. In the table, F (+) is the set of course above the horizontal line in each group, and F (−) below. The rule for the use of the table is, as before, that if one member of a group is a f.c.e. then so also are the remaining members of the group, that is the whole of the F (+) and F (−) sets of the group. Thus, in Group B, for example, if 32456 is a (out-of-course) f.c.e. of a method, then so also are 24365, 25436, 43256, 23654. It should be noted that the F (+) groups are identical to Hodgson's grouping, and the conventional notation has been adhered to, in order to avoid confusion.

One of the most important and fundamental properties that can be deduced from this table is that the falseness of a method is not uniquely determined by its in-course f.c.e.'s (i.e. the appropriate Hodgson group), This follows because of the six groups a—f, which have no in-course members, and hence would be marked as clean-proof-scale when only bobs are to be used. Thus, although one may be able to use the same composition for two different methods when only bobs are used, it does not follow that the same composition may be used when singles are included. This result also follows from simple intuitive reasoning, but it is worth underlining as it is one of the many pitfalls for the unwary.

It is interesting to examine sets of courses that are true to each of the different groups of f.c.e.'s. For a peal of Major we require 23 or more courses, and so we will restrict our attention to sets of that length. The most striking fact that emerges is that the 24 courses with the 6th the extent in 6ths are true to each of the groups C, E, G, H, I, L, M, N, O, R, S, b, e and f, and hence also to any combination of these. Thus for a method with f.c.e.'s drawn only from these groups, composition may be obtained by calls at Wrong and Home only.

The use of singles in Yorkshire Surprise Major has been fairly extensively exploited, by employing the 24 courses formed by the 12 in-course courses with the 6th in 6ths and the 12 out-of-course courses with the 6th in 5ths. This set of courses is true to the groups B, G, H. I, L, M, O, R, S, b, c, f. One would have difficulty in joining up these courses, but fortunately at least two courses are available with the 6th in 2nds for all except f, and this clearly resolves the situation.

There are several other sets that can be joined together, for example, the 24 courses with a fixed bell in 3rds, true to F, P and d, but it is not the purpose of the present discussion to give a catalogue. However, it is worth noting that some of the groups have no F (−) component, so that a set of 12 courses found to be true to the Hodgson group can be doubled by singles as in plain methods.

Some of the groups are distinctly unpromising, and it is difficult to find a set of true courses of any obvious value. One important group in this category is Group D, which occurs very frequently, including Cambridge and London. Since the F (−) f.c.e.'s (24356, 53426, 63452) are the courses produced by calling singles at Home, Wrong or Middle respectively. there is no means of joining whole courses together by singles, and hence the only way in which singles may be employed consists in splicing in isolated leads or parts of courses.

It seems appropriate at this point to make some remarks on the likely incidence of falseness in Surprise Major methods. Each of the eight positions of the treble's path is associated with at most one of the groups of f.c.e.'s, and if the sections are symmetrical then each section is associated with at most one group, the same for corresponding sections of the two half-leads. Thus for any method there will be at most eight groups, and for those with symmetrical sections (such as the right-way place methods) at most four groups. Some of these may coincide, of course. Now f.c.e.'s arise when course bells occur in the same position in two changes provided the treble is in the same position. In particular at least one group will be associated with any section in which the bells in 7–8 are course bells only. Hence most of the better methods, which almost exclusively have one of these properties, are potentially very likely to have considerable falseness when singles are used, although some of the groups may coincide in certain cases.

Some idea of the frequency with which the various groups are likely to occur in actual methods may be obtained from scrutinising Wratten's Collection Thus out of the methods so far rung, Group B occurs in about 65 per cent, D in about 30 per cent, E in about 20 per cent., and about 15 per cent. are clean-proof-scale. In addition, about 25 per cent. start with the places 58, right way or wrong way, which is always associated with Group c. However, there are relatively few methods in which the more interesting groups discussed above occur, such as those for which the 6th the extent in 6ths is true, and it would be very interesting if someone with a lot of time patience or insight could produce a method with these properties.

OBITUARY

MR. R. O. STREET

An active member of the Christchurch Priory band of ringers in his early days, Mr. R. O. Street died in the Royal Hospital, Sheffield, on Thursday, August 24th. He was 77 and was on holiday in Sheffield with his wife at the time of his death.

Mr. Street was one of the first pupils at the Bournemouth Grammar School for Boys, opened in 1902. This was the beginning of a brilliant academic career, for he went on to St. John's College, Cambridge, to gain his M.A. degree. He also obtained his M.Sc. and held lectureships at University College, Southampton, and at Liverpool University. From 1934–51 he was Professor of Mathematics at the Royal Technical College, Glasgow. Professor Street, naturally, had a flair for figures and loved to dabble in them or to conduct extempore touches on the ten bells at the Priory (before 1932 augmentation). He retired to Southbourne in 1951 and regularly attended the Priory Church although unable to climb the steps to ring. Nevertheless he retained his keen interest in the affairs of the Christchurch District of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild in general and the Priory band in particular.

The funeral service took place at Christchurch Priory on August 30th. Touches were rung on the half-muffled back eight Priory bells by Mr. and Mrs F. E. Collins and Mr. W. T. Perrins, of Ringwood, Mrs. M. Young (Sopley), Messrs. G. W. Scragg, H. Harrison, K. Derham, M. Stone and A. V. Davis before the service and as the cortège left the church for the interment in Christchurch Cemetery.

Letters to the Editor

GREASLEY WEDDING RINGING

Dear Sir,—If Mr. Carlisle's letter ("Ringing World," page 634) had been levelled at me alone I would have accepted it without comment, but as our Vicar is involved I feel bound to reply

I consider that wedding fees and arrangements are the personal prerogative of the church and the ringers where the ceremony is held. In fact a thing quite apart from peals and meetings, etc. This conception, rightly or wrongly, fostered the decision that any wedding ringing apart from, perhaps, one of our own band being married, should be accompanied by the usual fee. This would not, of course, be pocketed by the ringers but put into the tower fund, which, in our case, pays for the ropes, general upkeep and repairs of a minor nature.

Unfortunately, in this case, the first intimation of the request came verbally to the Vicar through the Eastwood Rector while I was away and, in anticipation of my reply, was refused. Not wishing to conflict, I confirmed this in writing on my return, but later this was modified to our original ruling.

Sometimes a decision is reached which, like this one, is unpopular. It can then be disregarded, an exception made and the easier way taken, or it can be upheld.

I can understand Mr. Carlisle's reaction which might have been mine had I been in his position but would remind him of the contents of the letter written by his tower secretary to the Vicar of Greasley. My reply to that would have been far less polite than the one received from the Vicar.—Yours faithfully,

D. J. BEACH.

Greasley, Nottingham.

HISTORY OF SURPRISE ON HANDBELLS

Dear Sir.—Regarding the giving up of Surprise peals by the William Pye band, it was not only the loss of William Keeble but also Ernest Pye, who after ringing a peal of Stedman Caters at Poplar on November 23rd, 1907, was taken ill and did no more ringing until December, 1908. Then he rang the treble to a peal of Bristol; he did not start prolific peal ringing again until 1910.

The other problem was finding someone willing and capable of taking the place of William Keeble. The only man capable at that time was Bert Prewitt, but the distance was too great for him to travel. — Yours faithfully,

E. W. PYE.

Sawston, Cambridge.

HOLY TRINITY, HULL

Dear Sir.—Whilst on the recent ringing outing organised by the East Derbyshire and West Notts Association and the Mansfield District of the Southwell Guild on Bank Holiday Monday, one of the towers visited was Holy Trinity, Hull. This church is 26,384 square feet in area and is the largest parish church in England. The ringing chamber is 950 square feet in area and the diameter of the ringing circle is 24 feet.—Yours sincerely, BRYNLEY R. RICHARDS.

Mansfield, Notts.

ST. DUNSTAN'S-IN-THE-WEST

Dear Sir,—I refer to my letter which appeared in "The Ringing World" on September 1st. My good friend Jim Prior (or I should now say Mr. James Prior, esteemed secretary of the A.S.C.Y.) tells me that many years ago he fell into the same trap as I have in confusing St. Dunstan's-in-the-West, Fleet Street, with St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, Idol Lane, Eastcheap. The confusion arose in both our cases because of St. Dunstan's, Stepney, which is in East London.

I find I have not rung at St. Dunstan's-in-the-West. Jim Prior also remembers W. A. Alps, who was caretaker of a block of offices, but in the Eastcheap area, and it was at St. Dunstan's-in-the-East where he rang the quarter peal of Stedman some 50 years ago.

To your correspondent and to "The Ringing World" generally I apologise for my erroneous statement, and again I should have taken more notice of "my dear old dad"—"When tempted to put pen to paper, either break the pen or upset the ink, because if you do write you're sure to find yourself in trouble."—Yours sincerely,

W. HIBBERT.

YORK MINSTER'S BELL WINDOW

Dear Sir,—Your contributor "I. R." cannot be identified by Minster ringers. He may, however, be excused in saying the left-hand light depicts the tuning of a bell as no less an authority than the late Dean Milner-White gives it this description in his "Guide to the Ancient Windows of the Nave". Steps have been taken to have this corrected in the next reprint.

A full description of the window with three excellent illustrations is given in Raven's "The Bells of England" published 60 years ago.

H. B. Walters, in his "Church Bells of England", uses a coloured illustration of the left-hand panel as a frontispiece and correctly describes it as "showing the forming of a mould".

Both Raven and Walters make reference to Ellacombe's "Bells of the Church". — Yours sincerely,

HAROLD WALKER.

Clifton, York.

ROSTOV CHIMES

Dear Sir, — On page 588, the Bellfounders' Page, is an item about the Rostov Chimes. I find this information quite fascinating. Would Mr. John Illingworth, from whom the information was received, be able to advise how to obtain the 1963 recording of the Rostov Chimes? If he doesn't have that information, perhaps another of your readers might be able to supply it.—Yours, etc.,

FRANK ELDRIDGE.

DOUBLES PEAL CORRECTION

Dear Sir,—In the peal at Barrowby, Lincs, on July 20th, in 95 Doubles variations, the seventh and eighth extents should read: (7) Hendred, Radlett, St. Breward; (8) St. Merryn, Hadham, Chippingham, instead of Bronllys, etc., and Landefalle, etc. — Yours sincerely,

DENIS A. FRITH.

FIRST FOR 20 YEARS AT THIRSK

Dear Sir,—It is with great pleasure that I record the first peal rung on the bells of Thirsk Parish Church, Yorkshire, for 20 years, by Mr. T. J. Lock's party of touring ringers on August 31st. Quite a few people have commented on the wonderful striking they heard in the peal of Cambridge Surprise Major rung in the time of 2 hours and 55 minutes.

The tenor bell, of pre-Reformation vintage, was known at one time as the Jesus bell, and tradition has it that it came from Fountains Abbey, near Ripon.

The last peal rung on the bells was Yorkshire Surprise Major by J. E. Cawser's party on August 30th, 1947, when the band stood as follows: Walter Allman 1, W. Eric Critchley 2, Leonard Trevor 3, J. E. Bibby 4, J. Edward Cawser (conductor) 5, J. L. Millhouse 6, Arthur Firth 7, Ralph G. Edwards 8. This was the first of Surprise on the bells.

As for future peal attempts, I would like to suggest to peal tour organisers and to my many friends in the Yorkshire Association and the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association that they make their attempts in the morning, starting, say, at 9.30 or 9.45, as to the north of the church lies a council housing estate with old people's bungalows, and most of the tenants are out at work, some returning mid-afternoon and early evening. To the front of the church is Thirsk Hall, which is the home of the Lord of the Manor, and Kirkgate, and to the east is The Holms, a kind of beauty spot, with the Codbeck flowing through it on its way to the River Swale. Cricket fans will be interested to learn that Thirsk is the birthplace of Thomas Lord, the founder of Lord's Cricket Ground.—Yours sincerely,

E. W. METCALFE.

Thirsk, North Yorkshire.

P.S.—All correspondence for peal attempts to be sent to the Rev. D. J. Hill, The Vicarage, Thirsk, North Yorkshire.—E. W. M.

1963 PEAL WITHDRAWN

Dear Sir, — I wish to withdraw the peal of Grandsire Cinques rung for the Llandaff and Monmouth Association at St. Woolos' Cathedral, Newport, on December 28th, 1963, and published in "The Ringing World" on page 25 of the issue of January 10th, 1964, as the composition of 5,103 by Mr. A. M. Tyler has been found to be false.

I wish to apologise to all those who took part in the peal and also to all those who keep records for any inconvenience I have caused.—Yours sincerely,

TUDOR P. EDWARDS.

SOMETHING OVERLOOKED

Dear Sir,—I hate to suggest this, but using Reverse Canterbury bobs to the Westminster/Blackburn/Hilary group of Doubles methods will bring up a row used in the previous lead. (See "Ringing World," page 602, August 25th issue).—Yours sincerely,

DENIS A. FRITH.

Grantham, Lincs.

UNRINGABLE INCUMBENTS

Dear Sir,—I fully endorse Ronald Dove's comments in "The Ringing World" of September 1st on unringable vicars and would like to add to it unringable P.C.C.'s, as is the case in one 6-bell tower in Hampshire, as three successive incumbents have all been controlled by a P.C.C. ruling "the bells shall not be rung". Apparently the Bishop has no authority to overrule this. Well spoken, Mr. Dove.—Yours sincerely, GEOFFREY K. DODD.

Highclere, Hants.

DURHAM UNIVERSITY IN THE LAKE DISTRICT

AFTER last year's highly successful tour of two of the Southern Counties (Leicestershire and Yorkshire), we decided this year to remain more or less at our own latitude and visit the Lake District. As an added attraction we began by joining in the Northern Universities' meeting at Liverpool on Saturday, June 17th—a day remarkable mainly for the fact that we visited more public houses than towers!

We stayed at Chester Youth Hostel on the Saturday night, and after searching around Chester the following morning for a service to ring for we eventually discovered the Church of St. Mary-on-the-Hill where, after a precarious climb up a pair of absolutely vertical ladders, we were made very welcome by the local band, who allowed us virtually to take over the ringing. From Chester we turned north to Bowdon, where an early arrival enabled most of us to add a new brewery to our collections before ringing on the excellent eight, and then on to Preston and to Beetham to ring for Evensong: the bells here have only recently been restored to working order and, as far as we know, we were the first visiting ringers for some years.

At Kendal we managed to find an establishment selling the wares of our favourite brewers but unfortunately the Youth Hostel closing time did not allow us to benefit from this as much as we would have liked.

Our first tower on the Monday was at Broughton-in-Furness — we voted these to be the best bells that we visited; unfortunately our ringing did not really do justice to them but we nevertheless managed to ring touches of Bob Major and Stedman Triples and plain courses of Cambridge and Yorkshire S.M.

AMBLESIDE TENOR

Ringing at Ambleside had to be curtailed owing to some difficulties with the tenor; it was rumoured in some quarters that Tony, our resident tenor king, had broken it, but it eventually transpired that the bearings had dried out due to the hot weather. Bill, who arrived after this discovery had been made, was asked to turn the tenor in to a course of Cambridge, but he was somewhat surprised (!) when he tried ("I couldn't do a thing with it. It just dropped," he was heard to murmur incredulously a few minutes later).

At Ambleside we said goodbye to David, who had to attend to the financial intricacies of his college, and were left to the mercies of Bill, whose first greeting to the van was to reverse it into the churchyard railings. Eventually we managed to proceed (forwards!) to Langdale and then to Hawkshead, where we were to spend the night. Malcolm (natural historian extraordinary) drew our attention to some of the interesting fauna on the way which, he assured us, included dozens and dozens of deer—attempts to persuade him that they were in fact newly-shorn sheep met with little success. At Hawkshead Church we were joined by Richard Parker, and Phil Crossthwaite and other Leeds University ringers, who helped to vary the methods rung.

COMBINING VOCATION

On Tuesday we made our way to Keswick, where we had a good ring on very nice bells, and then on to Cockermouth and to Thursby; here, on a light six with rather long ropes, Bill decided that he could combine his vocation as a priest with that as a ringer and succeeded in ringing the tenor to a course of Cambridge from the kneeling position. The situation at Carlisle Cathedral and at Hexham Abbey, however, was rather different, and we found that the best we could manage was Bob Major on bells that were too heavy-going for most of us.

Luckily enough, our arrival in Newcastle was sufficiently early to enable us to join in the practice at the Cathedral and then to adjourn to that Mecca of bellringers, the Post Office Inn, where we were able variously to recover from the traumatic experiences of driving, cooking for and chaperoning each other, before the last lap of our journey back to Durham.

In our thanks we must mention the Vicars of Beetham and Hawkshead for the interest that they showed, and the tower captains of Bowdon, Preston, Beetham, Keswick, Cockermouth and Carlisle for their help. Thanks are also due to Jean and her uncle for allowing us the use of the van, to Peter and his car for ferrying indispensable members of the company from place to place, and to David and Bill who drank shandies instead of beer (sometimes!) so that they could drive us safely from tower to tower.

CHRISTCHURCH DISTRICT RINGING FESTIVAL

The Christchurch District of the Winchester and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild ringing festival occupied three days, beginning with a short tour of some of the District towers on August 26th, followed by tea in the Priory Church Hall and ringing on the Priory bells in the evening. Sunday, thanks to the kind permission of the Vicar (Rev. Leslie H. Yorke), was observed as "Ringers' Sunday" at the Priory Church, and it was around this day that the festival was built.

Sung evensong at 6.30 that day, with special festival music by the Priory choir, under the direction of Mr. Geoffrey Tristram, organist and choirmaster, was a memorable service. It was conducted by the Vicar; two ringers read the lessons and the president, Canon Gilbert Thurlow, preached to a full congregation, which included the Mayor and Mayoress of Christchurch. A crowd of holidaymakers also gathered outside the open west door of the church to listen to the service. Service ringing took place on the Priory twelve during the day and again after Evensong.

On Monday, Bank Holiday, a party of 30, which included some visiting ringers on holiday, left the Priory by coach to visit Wimborne Minster, Yeovil, Sherborne Abbey, St. Martin's, Salisbury, and Fordingbridge for about an hour's ringing at each place. The weather was warm and sunny and the roads travelled through the beautiful countryside were surprisingly quiet. Bill Cheater, of Ringwood, had a strenuous three days for he acted as Ringing Master throughout the festival and managed to coax some passable ringing out of a very mixed band of experts, visitors and "beginners at all stages".

Sincere thanks are accorded to the clergy who so readily gave permission to ring the bells at 11 different churches, and to all those who contributed to the organisation of a most successful festival.

During the week-end a large floral bell was hung on the south wall of the Priory opposite the entrance to the church. It was the work of Mrs. Leslie Yorke and Miss Morris, who decorated a framework made by Arthur Davis with golden rod and red button dahlias. The bell was complete in detail, having headstock, stay, wheel and rope. Mrs. Yorke is the wife of the Vicar of Christchurch and is also chairman of the Highcliffe Floral Society, which has been responsible for two outstanding flower festivals at the Priory in recent years.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. D. John Hunt has conducted his first peal of Stedman.

Mr. John R Mayne has entered the last 50 for his 1,000 peals.

Marksbury ringers were the first band to ring a peal and a quarter peal with their new ropes.

Mr. Bryan D. Hill, of R.A.F., Wittering, rang his first peal for 14 years at Sempringham Abbey on August 7th.

Mr. Bernard F. L. Groves has rung his 800th peal—a wedding compliment to Brian J. Woodruffe and Patricia Bullen.

The first peal of London Surprise Royal on handbells was rung at Harrow on September 4th, conducted by John R. Mayne.

Wymondham Abbey bells have already been tried out by several visiting bands. Jack Millhouse's Lincoln band ringing the first of London Royal on the bells.

We were very pleased to see the name of Miss Iris Lemare in our quarter peal column again at York. This was her first since her ski-ing accident last March.

Mr. J. H Fielden has delved into something new. He has conducted Middleton's peal of Cambridge rung "backwards" with the same changes occuring in the opposite order—21436587 was the last before rounds.

In a peal of ten methods of Spliced Surprise Maximus rung at Ashton-under-Lyne on September 3rd, a new record was established. It was the greatest number of methods possible in an "all the works" peal of Maximus of standard length.

The Rev. K. W. H. Felstead was particularly interested in the article on Derby Cathedral in the issue of September 8th as this was where he was ordained His records show that there have been 66 peals recorded in this tower.

BELFRY GOSSIP

SERVING TWO GUILDS

All Saints' Church, Stamford, which we featured in our last issue, is just inside the Lincoln Guild boundary and its ringers are members of the Lincoln Guild. The writer of our article, Mr. A. H. Bluft, is a Lincolnshire man and is also Master of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild, with which he has had a long association, with both St. Mary's and St. John's Churches, Peterborough. This began in about 1924 or 1925, when he used to cycle the 12 miles each way to ring for either morning or evning service and for weekday evening practices.

Mr. Bluff recalls at least two occasions during the bad winter of 1947 when he was wanted at Peterborough to ring and no bus or train service was available. He appealed to the police superintendent at Stamford for assistance, who placed a patrol car at his disposal.

Things are different now as Mr. Bluff runs his own car and is able to ring first at All Saints' Stamford, on Sundays for morning service at 9.30 a.m. and then go to St. John's, Peterborough, to ring for 11 a.m. service.

A PUTNEY WEDDING

On September 9th two well-known Putney ringers, David Brookes and Lesley Eames, were married at their home church of St. Mary's, Putney. Many local ringers were present at the ceremony, conducted by the Rev. C. H. Carver, assisted by the Rev. M. Hart, the latter also a ringer. The bridesmaid was the bridegroom's sister. Miss Elizabeth Brookes, and the best man was Mr. Christopher Mew, who had hurriedly changed after conducting a successful peal in honour of the event. Top hats and tails were the order of the day and the bride, in a beautifully-embroidered gown, had a bouquet of orange and yellow roses, whilst the bridesmaid wore a very tasteful green dress. After a very pleasant reception the couple left for the West Country.

CAMPANOLOGICAL HEARSAY

During the Civil War the Rector of Southam, Warwickshire, Francis Holyoake, was a staunch Royalist. The townspeople, ringers included, were Parliamentarians. Consequently when the King entered the town two months before the Battle of Edgehill, the ringers refused to ring the bells to welcome him. The church accounts record the effects of the King's subsequent displeasure.

> "Paid to the King's footman who sealed up the church-door for not ringing when the King came to town, xiij s. iv d. (13s. 4d.)."

The Southam men were not easily browbeaten, however, as the next entry in the accounts shows:

> "Paid also to them for not ringing when the King went out of the town v s. (5s.)."

PETERSFIELD'S YOUNGSTERS

Carol Stacey, a 13-year-old Petersfield ringer who has just rung her first quarter "inside" at Froxfield, will not be able to rest upon her laurels as her 12-year-old sister, Sally, will be the next to ring "inside". It is hoped that both will make great strides during the next few months. Petersfield is very fortunate in having several more girls under 13 who have or will soon be ringing their first quarters on the treble. A very pleasant reward for the many hours put in by Ken Tipper, their captain.

STOP THIEF CHASE

Excitement after a peal attempt at Randwick, N.S.W., on July 1st. Some of the team were strolling past a florist's shop when a lady raced out and reported publicly the theft of her purse. Seeing three young scoundrels flying off in the distance, the conductor, Bill Watson, with Tom Goodyer hard on his heels, set sail and apprehended the youngsters, who were only too willing to hand over the loot. All was not lost that day!—"Ringing Towers".

A BRAY WEDDING

A ringers' wedding of interest to the Slough and Windsor area will take place at Bray Parish Church tomorrow (Saturday) at 2.30 p.m. The contracting parties are Derek Fowles (Cranford) and the Middlesex County Association), and Wenda Harris (Bray, Berks, and the Oxford Diocesan Guild). A peal attempt by a band consisting of four Middlesex Association members and four Oxford Diocesan Guild members is arranged to follow the ceremony. We are sure readers will join us in wishing Wenda and Derek every happiness.

GLINTON'S NEW BAND

The quarter at Glinton, Northants, on August 19th is believed to be the first rung there for many years. These bells, which are hung in two tiers, were not rung regularly for a long period, but recently Bernard Branston, of St. Mary's, Peterborough, has been working very hard to teach a young band there. Several of these youngsters can now ring rounds and when Bernard is married in a few weeks' time in this church it is hoped that his own learners will be able to provide the "wedding bells". Could a ringer ask for more on his wedding day? R. S.

A SPONSORED 1,000-MILE RIDE

The ringers at Randwick, Glos, hope to augment their four bells to six in the coming year. The Vicar (the Rev. N. R. Morrison) plans as a money-raising activity a 1,000 miles in ten days sponsored cycle tour from Truro to Thurso. The start will be from Truro Cathedral on the afternoon of October 2nd and the route will include Land's End, Randwick, John Taylor's foundry, Loughborough, and John o' Groats.

A SEVENOAKS RECRUIT

A recent recruit to the belfry at Sevenoaks is 16-year-old Philip Simmons, a relative of Miss Doris Colgate, the popular secretary of the Ladies' Guild. Philip started handling a bell at the beginning of the year and on September 10th rang very well in his first quarter peal—Stedman Triples. He also rings Grandsire Plain Bob and the treble to Surprise and has made excellent progress.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM MANCHESTER CATHEDRAL

The band at Manchester Cathedral, through the columns of "The Ringing World", would like to offer their congratulations to Allan Keen on attaining his degree at the Northern School of Music.

During the three years that Allan has been in Manchester he has attended the Cathedral regularly for service ringing. We hope that after a year's teaching course at Bath, Allan will return to Manchester permanently.

We would also like to offer our good wishes to Margaret Manby, who is leaving Manchester to commence studies at Cheltenham College later this month.

TUITION TEASER No. 8

A SMOOTH BACKSTROKE "RISE"

Q. My pupil occasionally has trouble with one of the four strokes into which you have analysed the complete ringing action. Her fault is in the "backstroke rise". Her "backstroke pull" is straight down, i.e., vertical, as you have described in your previous "Teaser No. 7"; but now and again as her rope rises after the "handstroke pull" movement, it appears to jerk sideways and towards her left side just before the rope straightens out into the fully up position "at back". What are the cause and the remedy?—"Would-be Tutor."

A. This is a not uncommon fault, arising usually when the tutor is not sufficiently vigilant over the pupil's rope-grips. The rope-jerk you mention will always be found to be towards that side of the learner which is the "upper" hand side. In your case, it being towards the left, your pupil will be a "left-hand" ringer, her "upper" hand being her left and her "lower" hand being her right. (See Teaser No. 3 in the "R.W." issue of June 16th last.) There are two causes of this "jerk", and either or both may be present.

The first is due to faulty holding of the rope's end in the lower hand grip, with the rope lying in the bends of the fingers instead of in the crotch of the thumb. In such case the rope leads away from the lower hand in the direction of the ensuing sideways jerk, and tends to form a loop upon itself as the rope-rise nears the top of the stroke. The remedy for this part cause is to hold the rope's end closely and firmly in the crotch of the thumb, with fingers closing normally in the grip.

But there is still the possibility of the second cause being present; namely, the wrong lie of the rope's end over the lower hand, as the backstroke movement downwards is completed. This wrong lie of the rope is, in fact, over the knuckles of the lower hand. The remedy here is to bend the wrist so as to turn the lower hand slightly inwards, so that the rope's end comes from the thumb-crotch to fall over the back of the hand, approximately where it joins the wrist. This ensues as the hands rise to take up the "at hand" position.

Care over this apparently small point makes all the difference in promoting a smooth backstroke rise. A. Y.-B.

LONG SUTTON, SOMERSET

On August 19th, in glorious weather, the local band, with friends from other towers, had a pleasant half-day amongst the sixes of East Devon. In the afternoon ringing took place at Hawkchurch (12¼ cwt.), Uplyme (9¼ cwt.) and Colyton (24¾ cwt.). Whilst most of the band remained in the slow at tea, a few went in and out quick at the sea at Seaton. A slight delay occurred after tea whilst the Somerton captain visited the local constabulary to report the number of a Mini which had pranged his car and went on without stopping. In the evening visits were paid to Musbury (14 cwt.), Kilmington (10¼ cwt.) and Chardstock (13¼ cwt.). After fish and chips at a café in Ilminster (where the Long Sutton captain left his cap behind) the party dispersed for home. Ringing during the trip ranged from rounds and call-changes for the beginners to Cambridge S.M. E. T. P. F.

RINGERS OF YESTERYEAR—IDENTITIES WANTED

From Mr. Percy E. Johnson, hon. secretary of St. Mary's Guild of Change Ringers, Gateshead, we have received the following picture. He writes: "We do not know any of the ringers on it, and I think it must have been taken in a tower in the South of England, re the peal board. Our members have had a lot of speculation on it and I think the readers of 'The Ringing World' could settle the issue."

A STORY FOR RINGERS — 10 YEARS AFTER

From the top of the bus, George looked across at the Cathedral Churchyard. It had been ten years since he had come this way. Ten years since that awful night the Cathedral tower had collapsed taking from him his beloved bells upon which he had lavished so much care and attention. He smiled, recalling his frantic attempt to have his bells recast and hung in the nearby Post Office Tower. He knew that some members of the Guild had thought him deranged from the shock at such a suggestion, and on reflection he had some sympathy with their thinking so. In any case, the whole idea had been flatly rejected by the Postmaster General.

As had been forecast at the time, the west end of the Cathedral had been bricked up in haste, the shattered bells had been stored and all campanological activities within the Cathedral precincts had ceased.

The Thursday band had been completely demoralised; what on earth could they do on Thursday evenings now? For a few weeks they even attempted to ring peals on lesser numbers of bells, but it wasn't the same; the interest factor was just not present any more and the old "first eight up the tower" system caused numerous disputes. Finally, the band grew tired of each other's company and dispersed, George retiring to his market garden although still retaining his secretaryship of the Guild.

Two uneventful years passed and then Old Bill died. For as long as everyone could remember Bill had been official tenor-bumper to the Guild. Sunday after Sunday he had drummed the tenor behind, a little slow at hand-stroke, perhaps, for some of the "moderns," but reliable nevertheless. No one had known much of his private life; he appeared each Sunday morning for ringing and disappeared shortly after the service-touch ended, having completed a minimum of social formalities. Of huge stature, Bill always made a point of shaking hands with the entire assembled company and many an unwary visitor left "Lyons" nursing bruised fingers.

The executor of Bill's last will and testament informed George that Bill had left the major part of his estate to the Guild which he had served for so long. A hastily convened meeting of the Guild officers appeared dumbfounded when the news was inparted to them. No one had realised that Bill's Sunday morning ringing had meant so much to him; such generosity might even be rewarded by half-muffled Stedman Cinques in memoriam.

The following annual general meeting was electrified when George proposed that their recent windfall be used to rebuild the Cathedral tower and recast the bells; this would surely be a fitting monument to a philanthropic tenor bumper. The meeting agreed to the proposal, as did the Cathedral authorities who, after a little gentle encouragement, agreed to a Gothic structure.

So much wrangling ensued over the choice of architect and design that it was two years later that the foundation stone was laid—salvaged from the debris and suitably inscribed.

Five years passed and the tower rose slowly from the ruins, and meanwhile the bells were cast—twelve, of course, plus a flat sixth in case not enough turned up, although the Guild had never been averse to the odd peal on the front eight.

Finally the opening day arrived and ringers from all over the country converged on the city for the dedication ceremony. George alighted from his bus and tottered towards the new building: arthritis had forced him to abandon his bicycle a couple of years back.

Choosing a band for what was to be his last peal had presented some difficulty; the old Thursday crowd had dispersed, but it must have been nostalgia which drew them all back to partake in the first peal on the new bells.

Some of the younger members of the Guild were dismayed at not being asked to ring in the first peal and some even had the temerity to suggest that George was "past it." George sensed this and understood their resentment. He had always said that he would cease ringing long before he was "past it," but failing health had forced him to retire earlier than he had planned but he would not announce this until after the peal.

With not a little effort he mounted the tenor box and caught hold of the rope for the last time, determined to show the younger men what peals were made of, but deep down he knew that the next three hours or so would be the greatest challenge he had ever accepted. With a look of grim resolution on his face they struck off into rounds and a few moments later he commenced his final peal. "Go Londinium," he said.

LITTLE JOHN.

West Country Call Changes

REVEL DAY AT REWE

WHERE other less favoured mortals used to have Feasts and Wakes, the people of the West Country villages had their Revels—generally on or about the Patronal Festival of the Church. Until the Puritans got their grip on the land, the Church Revel took the form of a Church Ale: every parish had its Church House, and in the Church House the wherewithal for brewing on a fairly large scale. Each year the parish would appoint—generally by turn—two people to be brewers for the year; they had to pay a fine to the Wardens if they refused to function. And before the Revel Day came round the parish would be "gathered" for malt, hops and anything else that anyone cared to give, so that when the big day came there would be barrels and tubs of ale all on the top of its form, and a good deal of other eatables and produce for the people to buy. Exactly what form the Revel took is hard to find out at this distance, and probably varied from parish to parish; the one immutable fact was the consumption of all the ale, a general holiday, and a profit in the Churchwardens' chest which was often sufficient to keep the church going—and very well looked after in every respect—for the next twelve months.

The Puritans put a stop to all this in the early 1600s, and in many places the Revel ceased to exist altogether, but generally the last lingering trace of it in the records is a payment to the ringers on what had been Revel Day. The brewing equipment was sold; the Church House became a pub if the parish was lucky, and a Workhouse if it wasn't—which is why so many pubs in Devon are alongside the church—and instead of keeping the Church in funds by having a jolly time the people were afflicted with the Church Rates which became more and more burdensome and hateful.

Very few Revels survived as an unbroken tradition to the present time: most of them have been revived during the past hundred years as another name for a Church Fete, but in many cases the Revel Day ringing is continued by the holding of a competition. This is the case at Rewe, a little village that stands right on the end of the spur of land that divides the Exe valley from that of the Culm. In a great many ways this is a typical Revel of these times; it's combined with Harvest Festival, and they've made a little Flower Festival of it as well; the Revel itself is held in the grounds of a big early-Victorian mansion which once was the Rectory and now, happily for the Rector, is not; there are sideshows and produce stalls instead of ale, with a Clay-Pigeon Shoot in the field next to the marquee; and there's an invitation ringing competition.

Most of the bands this year came from fairly near at hand, with Down St. Mary the one which everyone hoped by some marvellous stroke of luck to beat; but six keen men had come all the way from Knowstone in the Exmoor foothills, and Talaton, Alphington and Plymtree were there to promise us some very fair ringing.

Rewe bells are a Bilbie five with a modern treble; like some other light bells from Cullompton, they are not of the calibre of Bilbie's heavier stuff, and sound a little rough. In a modern two-tier frame in their very narrow tower they go well, though they're not all perfectly "square."

Down St. Mary rang second, and although their peal was not as good as we hoped to hear from them, it was good enough to get them the first certificate with 34 faults. After a rather disastrous peal from Pinhoe we had Alphington, who took second place with 46¾; they'd have been at least five faults better if only they'd allowed the bells to settle down to a good pitch in rounds before they went off into changes. As it was they didn't settle for some time, and were heavily dotted in the meantime—and they weren't the only ones to incur faults in this way. Especially with bells like these which need a little care in striking, there's every reason to give one's band time to find their bells' little foibles and let the bells settle to a good rhythm, instead of having the judges jotting down above the row of dots "too soon off; some bad changes early," which is what I wrote against Alphington.

Talaton settled down to a very good pitch, but their changing let them down, and they failed to beat Alphington, coming in third. Knowstone, after a not very good rise, got the bells going well until their 4th man caught the rope round his hand—not the only one to get caught that way—and pulled the bell half down. They were six or seven faults to the bad before they settled down again, but settle they did very very well, and gave us some nice music; judging by the way they catechised the judges afterwards they're really keen to learn by their mistakes, and that's how you get good striking.

It was a nice afternoon, but there is one thing that the call-change ringing fraternity will have to look into before long if competition-ringing is going to remain the very pleasant affair it is at present. There were two competitions on this day, one at Rewe and the other ten miles or so away at Bow, and many bands decided to bring at both. The results were that, first, the organisers had the greatest difficulty in getting bands to ring in the order they had drawn: second, that for much of the time there were only two or three bands around, and one missed the great pleasure of conversation and criticism around the tombstones on a beautiful late summer afternoon: third, that the judges had such a long tea-interval that after nearly an hour's wait they went over and had a ring themselves: fourth, that the parish which had gone to the trouble and expense of organising the event didn't get nearly the number of ringers at the tea and the sideshows that they'd reasonably expected: and fifth, that when the certificates were handed out at the end half of the people who'd won them weren't there.

One sympathises with the ringers who want to get all the silverware and illuminated cards they can in the 52 Saturdays in the year, but I can't help feeling that competition-ringing will run itself into the ground if it goes on in this way, and I hope that before long it may be possible to ensure that if two competitions do take place on same day they will be at opposite ends of the county, so that if ringers really want to win two shields in a day they can pay for them at 5/3¼ a gallon. Historical Background to the Bells of St. Mary's, Devizes

THE church bells of St. Mary's, Devizes, have had an interesting history. Mr. H. A. Gunner, of Devizes, writes: "These bells have had a most checkered existence but, most unfortunately, their rehanging in a steel frame with two additional pits was left about two or three years too late, which allowed the 1914-18 war to end the work until—as it was then thought—the end of that war, but, alas, nothing has been done about it since. Once again, if history is to be repeated, the ring is minus two."

They were founded in the county of Wiltshire, probably at Salisbury, their date being too early for the foundry at Devizes. The history of the bells being, as so often, also a history of the town itself, is a reminder that at the end of the 18th century there was scarcely a place of any size without its local foundry. That at Devizes was begun after these bells were cast, but Aldbourne flourished through part of the 17th, the 18th and early 19th centuries, while Salisbury was evidently in existence under a John Barber as early as A.D. 1400.

RAPACIOUS CHURCHWARDENS

The Rev. Lukis in "Church Rambler" II. page 460, writes:—

The history of these bells is curious. In 1552 one Thomas Hall complained that the Devizes churchwardens had two great bells in their private possession which they would not give up. Whether these rapacious gentlemen were compelled to disgorge does not appear, for some, if not all, of the bells were recast by J. Wallis, of Sarum, in 1606; and again one of them was recast in 1616. In 1640 the fourth bell was recast, and again in 1663 all the rest were recast by William and Roger Purdue. The fourth was recast by the Cors in 1696 and the third (for the third time in 95 years) in 1701.

The year 1663 is an early date for a ring of six bells, but Purdue's six at St. Edmund's, Salisbury, goes seven years better, to say nothing of the eight at Bishops Cannings.

The inscription on the sixth or tenor bell: "Fear God and Honour the King. 1663. Come when I call, To serve God all, to sing Halliuiah" brings us to another interesting year of history. The year 1663 was just after the restoration of the monarchy: 1696 and 1701 following a period in which a stand was made against the tyranny of James II and against Roman Catholicism. What more likely than that the loyal borough of Devizes should mark its loyalty in this way? When the bells were re-opened on Saturday, August 28th, 1915, by Archdeacon Bodington, he took as his text the words inscribed on the tenor bell: "Fear God. Honour the King." (II Peter ii. 17.)

Said the Archdeacon: "It would be seen that out of the six, four were of the date 1663; the other two were almost the same date as each other—1696, 1701. The bells of St. Mary's represented the period of 1663, and the period 1696 and 1701. The interest of these two dates was great, if obvious; he made no apology for the obviousness of his remarks; sometimes it was well to say obvious things.

ENTHUSIASM FOR CHURCH

"The year 1660 marked the restoration of the monarchy in this country, and these bells naturally expressed the enthusiasm which greeted the return of the Church into its own at that time. The English people had from time to time had fits of temper against their Church—not always, we were bound to admit, without some justification. But they had always returned to their affections sooner or later. In 1660 it could not be said that the Church altogether deserved its fate at the hands of the Long Parliament and Cromwell. He did not think that Milton's fierce onslaughts were always called for, even from a plan of his opinions. Like, he presumed, most of those he was addressing, he loved Milton's poetry, but the poet was, of course a fierce partisan.

"The fact was, Archbishop Laud was a much misunderstood man. 'He had an unfortunate manner (we are told), always seeming to be angry when he was not'—that threw an unexpected but very illuminating light upon him—and he suffered for his manner. But he was no Romaniser, and he did a greatly-needed and really most valuable work in pulling up, disciplining many of the clergy and laity, and in fostering the care of church buildings. Laud was 'a man with a broom' and such men were not always popular, but they were necessary. Laud, while not a great saint, was certainly not the opposite; he was undoubtedly a very good man and he was a very noble churchman; while Charles I, whatever his political mistakes, whatever his defects of character, undoubtedly laid down his life for the Church of England.

FROM ELEVATION TO ELEVATION

"The whole Church, in fact, in the first half of the 17th century, under its on the whole most excellent leaders—for it had some excellent bishops— was a Church, in the words of Mr. Gladstone, 'ascending from elevation to elevation.' The erection of the four bells of 1663 might be said quite fairly to testify that the people of Devizes—always a borough loyal to its King, and he hoped also to its Church—thought so too. The other dates, 1696, 1701, also marked a wave of enthusiasm for the Church, viz., that which passed over the country and the Church after the noble stand made by the Church in defence of its liberties against Romanism and against a Roman Catholic tyrant king—for James II was at heart a Roman Catholic.

"It would also be remembered for the trial of the seven bishops, after their committal to the Tower. The very last bells that he had assisted in re-opening contained a bell of 1697, marking the same wave of enthusiasm. Soon that enthusiasm was to be partly crushed; it was crushed for a time by the German dynasty, but today we wait and pray (went on the Archdeacon) that the rehanging of your bells may prove to be a preparation for the great day when we shall have done the terrible work to which we believe we have been called but which still is only in its first stages, and shall have made our great country's liberties once again safe against Germanism whether a system of Government or as a system of so-called civilisation. God grant that that may be on a basis of true Christianity."

THE INSCRIPTIONS

Dealing with the inscriptions, the Archdeacon said: "The first two are a little startling. (1) 'I am the first although but small, I will be heard above you all.' (2) 'I am the second in this ring, Therefore next to thee I will sing.' The sentiments were to be commended if taken for that irrepressible pluck and push which we were accustomed to look for from people of small stature, but not if they stood for conceit or self-assertion and self-advertisement.

"There was no inscription on the third bell, and passing on to the fourth: 'On earth bells do ring; in Heaven Angels sing Halaluiah.' This was an interesting instance of the traditional regard of bells as symbolical of the angels—it was a very ancient association—their functions as messengers being so far the same. And we might do well to form the habit of viewing all outward things as mystically embodying some heavenly counterpart: 'Two worlds are ours. 'tis only sin, Forbids us to decry, The mystic heaven and earth within; Plain as the sea and sky.'

"In the fifth we got, should we say, a more serious note: 'Give unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's; and unto God the things (incomplete). In 1663 it was one of the lessons which should have been learned in the sad times just gone by. We must raise no controversies today, but God grant that the war might teach us the folly and madness of trying to sidetrack the things of God in the supposed interest of the things of Cæsar, the tidings of State—for instance, in education and in public life generally.

"On the sixth and tenor bell was: 'Feare God and Honour the King. 1663.' Could we have a better motto? But to carry it out listen to the remainder of the inscription: 'Come when I call, To serve God all, to sing Halliuiah.'"

COMPLAINT TO BISHOP

The churchwardens of St. Mary's in the 16th century must have been men of initiative and great cunning for, as the following letter shows, they were not content with merely stealing two church bells. The mystery nearly equals that of "The Nine Tailors," but it is not a matter of "Who did it" but "How they did it."

"Thomas Hall to the Bishop of Salisbury, written from Devizes in Queen Mary's reign":

"The most humblewise I commend me unto your good lordship whose prosperous state God preserve, most humbly beseeching your honour to stand, good lord, unto these my neighbours the bringers thereof, for that they have been much misused by certain men of this parish which have been the churchwardens, to wit, John Smyth, Edward Haynes, James Francys, John Adlington, John Blandford and Edward Hellear. These aforesaid persons having the custody and bearing of the parish church stock, plate, jewels and other ornaments, have sold and otherwise consumed from the church and parish within ten years or thereabout, all these parcels following, that is, one fair great cross with Mary and John by estimation well worth thirty pounds, one pair of candle sticks, by estimation worth fifteen pounds, five chalices worth twenty pounds, two censors worth twenty pounds, one great pyx worth five pounds, two cruets worth forty shillings, one sylvate worth four pounds, one shep with a spoon worth five pounds, two great bells out of the tower worth twenty-five pounds, and as much brass and iron as go through to the worth of ten pounds, and the rent of the church, which is by the year eight pounds."

DEDICATION

ST. JAMES', ACCRINGTON

The two new trebles forming a ring of ten at Accrington were dedicated during morning service on Sunday, September 3rd. The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. W. A. Wood, and was attended by the Mayor and Mayoress and Deputy Mayor and Mayoress as well as most of the parochial organisations in the general congregation.

The dedication was performed by Canon Hodgson (Vicar of Goosnargh and president of the Lancashire Association of Change Ringers), who also gave the address

The two bells were given in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh and cast by John Taylor and Co. In order to accommodate them two of the older bells have been hoisted into an independent girder frame. An excellent "splice" has been achieved and the bells, although light, present no problems in handling even to ringers of moderate experience.

Bonham's Bashers in Derbyshire

"LET'S go to Derbyshire." What? No good bells there!

How wrong we were!! The bells were as good as the weather was bad. Derbyshire, though rich in beautiful scenery, greeted us with rain and more rain, but this failed to damp the spirits of the keen, mostly young, band.

The tour started in Burton-on-Trent with a peal attempt on its good-going ring of ten. The London contingent, being the only ones on time, amused themselves with a little street football until the police pointed out that it was cheaper to watch it! Once the rest arrived, the peal of Yorkshire Royal was rung, a fine effort by a not very experienced band, followed immediately by a ring on the musical eight at St. Modwen's Church. A merry time was had that evening, culminating in the conductor being thrown through a mirror, and another person finding a table even harder than his skull.

Shirtsleeves are apparently considered indecent at Ashbourne, hence the strange sight of ringers in little black jackets on Sunday morning, there even being one expansive enough to go round George. While some remained for service, the rest were instructed in the black magic of Double Norwich "conducting."

Afternoon ringing was on the good eights at Bolsover; Dore, Dronfield and Creswell, and for service on the fine ten at Chesterfield, where our lower must surely have added to the spire's twist. The first of Pat Cannon's "knock-knock" tower-grabs followed, being the splendid eight at Wingfield.

DARLEY DALE FAILURE

St. Peter's, Derby, was the first call on Monday, when a good peal of Lincolnshire was ably conducted on these fine bells by Philip, fresh from a night in his car ("Much more comfortable than a bed, y'know"). The afternoon's attempt was at Darley Dale, where we were told before the start that the bells ring themselves to Stedman. Unfortunately we were not told about the tendency for the second to shift course! That evening we had a ring on the heavy eight at Youlgreave, including a good touch of nine-spliced, after which Mary closed her eyes to win the darts match with a double-two. The rest of the evening was spent with Frank Smallwood at his local in Darley Dale.

Although Tuesday's first tower was at Ilkeston, we resisted the temptation to go for Treble Bob, but instead rang Superlative, the half-lead bobs foxing the only person who was never involved in them. During this peal, just after a bob at Wrong, George was heard to ask "That was a part end, wasn't it?" Cambridge was scored without incident at Melbourne, where the bells are rung from the chancel of a superb Norman church. In the evening all joined the Derby Cathedral practice, feeling on top of the world—four peals scored out of five attempts.

STOPPED BY THE VICAR

Next day saw our pride somewhat punctured. Bristol was the method at Sawley, but when the peal looked to be in the bag after two hours, there came a violent banging on the door. Philip's shout of "Go away—this is a church!" did no good as the intruder was the Vicar, who insisted we stopped. The afternoon's attempt at Attenborough never got off the ground, the long draught being too much for the band; a pity, as the bells are very good. The evening was spent on more "knock-knocks."

The run of bad luck continued at Fairfield Buxton on Thursday, when Philip ran out of coursing order with three courses to go in Yorkshire. This meant that we had had two blank days, as it was the only attempt of the day. Instead we rang at Bakewell (a good Taylor eight), and at the beautiful church at Tideswell—the "Cathedral of the Peak" That evening the Gun was outknocked by the Volkswagen, who got four towers to Pat's three.

PAT'S THEORY

Fortune smiled again on Friday, when Pat proved his theory that if the band can stand up for three hours he can get them through Double Norwich. This he did at Uttoxeter, where he had the additional bonus of a bell which dried up. An excellent peal of Rutland was rung on the best bells of the week, at Alton, in the afternoon, followed by the first unsuccessful knock-knock, at Rocester. After this the writer was one of three called to Higher Service in Lancashire, but not before George had been presented with a road atlas and a set of windscreen washers for his "new" car, in appreciation of his stalwart efforts in organising the tour. The rest proved us not indispensable by scoring both peals on Saturday—Yorkshire in the morning at Ashover, and Cambridge Royal with a bit of a struggle at Duffield.

The score for the week was quite good; eight peals were rung, four lost, including one when we were stopped. Most of the ringing was of a good standard, some being excellent, especially at Alton. Thanks are due to George for his excellent organisation, to the drivers, and to the Derbyshire ringers and vicars for their hospitality—with possibly one exception!

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Taunton Branch

The Taunton Branch held a quarterly meeting at Lyng on September 9th. It was preceded in the morning by a short tour for the benefit of Mr. R. H. Dove, of Leeds. Towers visited were Carhampton (6), Minehead (10), Dunster (8), Watchet (6), Stogumber (6), Bishop's Lydeard (8), Kingston St. Mary (6) and Othery (5).

Ringing on the five bells at Lyng started at 3 p.m. and consisted of a variety of Doubles methods. The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. L. S. Thorp, who spoke of Mr. Sanger's report on the bells and the target of £1,000 for the bell fund for recasting the cracked tenor and the addition of a sixth bell.

Tea was taken in the Village Hall. Due to the unexpectedly large attendance (about 45), the meeting was held in Lyng Church, the vice-chairman (Mrs. E. M. Williams) in the chair. Mr. John Brain gave some useful points in connection with the proposed striking competition, and Mr. Keith Beale was given the go-ahead to make the necessary arrangements. The Branch annual general meeting will be held on December 2nd at Milverton.

The general secretary, Mr. John Gilbert, asked the Branch to give the Association's dinner its full support on October 28th at the County Hotel, Taunton. He also spoke of the ringing school to be held at Barrington, near Ilminster, on October 14th. Fourteen new members were elected, including 12 from Lyng. Mr. Nigel Maggs (Ringing Master) announced that he would not be seeking re-election at the annual general meeting due to increasing work at Taunton School. The Branch secretary, Mr. Arthur Reed, proposed the vote of thanks.

Ringing continued at Lyng until 7 p.m., at Durston (5 bells) under the Assistant Ringing Master, Mr. Raymond Arscott, until 8 p.m., and at West Monkton (6 bells) under the charge of the Ringing Master, Mr. Maggs, until 9 p.m. G. H. B.

NORTH WALES ASSOCIATION

A one-day course for ringers not advanced in change ringing was held at St. John's, Portmadoc, on September 16th, ringers from Machynlleth and Dolgellau attending. The instructor was Mr. C. Kenneth Lewis, and all present enjoyed the day very much and without doubt were better ringers when they left.

Dr. Woodcock, of Hope, the Central Council representative, was present for the afternoon session and helped us greatly.

We wish to thank very sincerely the Vicar of Portmadoc for his kind permission to use the bells and for his very kind welcome and support, also to the Rev. Mr. Williams, who worked hard to learn to control a bell, this being his first opportunity to learn any bell-ringing. Our thanks also to Mr. C. Kenneth Lewis for his excellent instruction and patience, to Dr. Woodcock and to all who provided the tea. T. N. F.

SOUTHAMPTON UNIVERSITY GUILD BASK IN DEVON SUNSHINE

BRIDESTOWE, near Okehampton, was the base for Southampton University's Guild's summer tour, which started on July 6th, travelling being by minibus. From the hotel that evening we could hear well-struck cartwheel call changes at the local practice.

The real start of the tour was next day at Sourton and Lydford, where the Rector invited us to his home for coffee. Afterwards we enjoyed the bells and the wonderful view from the Rock at Bren Tor. At Marystowe we rang some London Minor before lunch. Coryton, Lewtrenchard, Stowford, Thrushelton and Bratton Clovelly were the afternoon's towers, and some Spliced Cambridge and London Minor were rung at Stoweford.

That evening we were joined by another ringer, so were able to graduate to a few eights the next afternoon after ringing at Broadwoodwidger, Ashwater, Boyton (where we were the youngest ringers the locals had ever seen), and St. Giles' in the morning. We rang at Werrington and St. Stephen's (both beautiful eights).

THANKED BY THE SQUIRE

On Sunday we rang for morning service at Bridestowe, for which we were thanked by the Squire and mentioned in the sermon! The afternoon we spent at Sandymouth—sunbathing, swimming and building sand towers—and tried ringing a plain hunt on thumbs underwater! We left the sunny beach reluctantly but soon cheered up with the beautiful Stratton bells. After the service a quarter peal of Cambridge Major was attempted and unfortunately lost. The evening was rounded off by another coffee session, this time at the kind invitation of the curate of Bridestowe.

Monday's ringing went well at Lifton, South Petherwin and Lezant before lunch, then Linkinhorne, where we found an excellent set of handbells as well. At Kelly we had such difficulty that even a touch of Stedman Doubles was barely recognisable. It sounded as if there were ghosts in hobnail boots upstairs giving certain bells the odd push, to the annoyance of the ringers concerned and to the amusement of the rest of the Guild. Investigating the cause of the trouble, we found the spiral staircase completely blocked by a mammoth-sized bird's nest or similar construction. Lawhitton we found to be overgrown—there was even a large weed growing in a bed of moss in the belfry windowsill. The bells were not so neglected, however.

INTO PLYMOUTH

Next morning we were driven across Dartmoor to Bickley for coffee with the Rector and a ring in the lovely church. We all admired the modern reredos and window behind the Dartmoor granite altar. Shaugh Prior, the two towers at Plympton, and Egg Buckland followed. The day was very hot indeed but when we arrived at St. Budeaux we forgot our discomfort and enjoyed the wonderful view. In fact, we revived sufficiently to ring Beverley Minor there before journeying on to Plymouth for a meal. The St. Andrew's practice was much appreciated and some Cambridge Major was rung.

Dartmoor was beautiful as we watched the sun set on our way back that night, and as we neared Bridestowe in a tiny, narrow, dark lane, our lights picked out sheep—a large flock filled the way as they meandered towards Bridestowe. We tried making all sorts of noises in an effort to shift them but they ignored us. Eventually some of our more athletic members jumped out of the bus and chased the silly sheep and we eventually passed them.

St. Dominic the next morning defied our map reader and, when found, it was nowhere near the spot on the map for which we had aimed.

The tour was rounded off with some lovely bells at Callington, Stoke Climsland (where we had yet another drink with the Vicar), Lamerton, and lastly St. Eustachius, Tavistock. Our last evening we celebrated with a steak supper—some of us had never seen such enormous steaks before. We all enjoyed the tour and would like to thank Heather Walters for all her hard work in arranging it for us. We also thank the incumbents and the tower captains who kindly allowed us to ring their bells and helped us to spend an interesting and enjoyable holiday.

THE LADIES' GUILD

Western District

The quarterly meeting at Bitton on September 9th was well attended, enhanced by a welcome return of summer weather to grace the occasion.

Several methods were rung during the afternoon, concluding with an all-ladies' band ringing a service touch of Grandsire Triples. The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. H. E. Baker, following which tea was taken in the church hall. Members from Newport were welcomed, and special mention should be made of the up and coming generation of, we hope, ringers-to-be, mostly under five, some dozen in all, who attended the tea and meeting.

At the meeting three new members were elected—Miss C. Davis and Miss S. Moxham, of Warmley, and Mrs. C. Mould, of Thornbury.

Thanks are due to Mrs. D. Chapman for chairing the meeting on behalf of the vice-president Mrs. de Jong, who unfortunately was "seen but not heard" having lost her voice.

Next practice meeting, Warmley, Wednesday, October 18th, 7.30 p.m. Will members please note the change of date for the practice at St. Cuthbert's, Wells, now on Wednesday, November 22nd (instead of 23rd as advertised)

OBITUARY

MR. HERBERT SHERMAN

A well-known Hunts and Bedfordshire ringer, Mr. Herbert Sherman, passed away on August 24th at the age of 85.

He started work as a gardener at Gransden Hall, Hunts, and eventually became head gardener to Major Whitbread at Southill, Beds, where he was tower captain and played a big part in getting the bells rehung. He lived at Southill for 34 years. It was here that he learned method ringing and he was particularly pleased to return to Great Gransden, where he learned to ring whole-pull from cards, to ring in a peal in seven Minor methods on September 17th, 1932. Altogether he rang in about 60 peals, mostly for the Bedfordshire Association.

When he retired he settled at Waresley, Hunts, where he cultivated his allotment and tended the roses in the village. A kindly man, he leaves behind his wife, Harriet, and son, Leslie

BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION

Highest attendance this year

A warm September day seemed to draw ringers from far and wide to attend the Biggleswade District meeting at Ampthill and Maulden on Saturday, 9th.

The District Ringing Masters (Mr. C. Mann and Mr. H. Smith) shared their duties and excellently handled the packed belfries both during the afternoon and evening.

Mr. M. J. Lockey and some ladies supplied a most delicious tea for nearly 40 hungry ringers, and after the short business meeting the company adjourned to the church for further ringing. The attendance book recorded a total of 60 names.

Next meeting: Stotfold. October 14th. Striking Competition, October 21st. L. E.

LETTERS

ST. DUNSTAN'S-IN-THE-WEST

Dear Sir,—I was resident in London in the early 1930's and I knew Mr. W. Alps very well, and at that time he was steeplekeeper at St. Dunstan's-in-the-East. During this period some of the ringers at St. Clement Danes' led by Mr. Alexander Young, who was at that time surveyor for Lewisham, inspected the bells of the West church and they were at this time completely derelict and appeared to have been so for many years. We swung some of them and had great difficulty in making them "speak." In addition, the wheels were all in a very bad state of repair. Mr. Challis Winney was with us and he said he was pretty sure the bells had not been rung this century. He himself had rung a peal there, but it was when he was a very young man during the late 1890's. I understood him to say the method was Grandsire Triples.

Apparently the bells fell into disrepair and this caused the cessation of ringing. I know lots of the older London ringers at that time, and the only ones I knew who had heard the bells rung were Mr. C. Winney, Mr. W. Prime and Mr. Ted Wallage, who at the time was steeplekeeper at St. Botolph's, Aldgate.

St. Dunstan's-in-the-East had a good ring of bells, readily available to all ringers. We understood the tenor to be 24 cwt. in D. This church was noted for its annual Harvest Festival of the Sea, when the church was decorated with fishnets, oars, fish, etc., and the fish porters and their wives attended in force.

I trust the above will shed a little light on the subject.—Yours faithfully.

E. G. GARRARD.

SALLY OR FILLET?

Dear Sir,—The use of the word "fillet" for the sally is very common in Devon and Cornwall, and I have a theory, for what it is worth, about its origin.

In the days of dead-rope ringing the rope passed through the soling of the wheel at a point 180 degrees or more round the wheel from the roller over which it ran. Instead of cutting a new hole in the wheel when the bells were converted to ring sally-way, the simplest course was to put a lashing round the rim of the wheel 90 degrees from the roller. Later a small bobbin was often bolted between the shroudings for the same purpose, and one sometimes sees wheels fitted like this even now.

The lashing was called in some parts of England the fillet (another word for a lashing) and in others the garter or gart, and the hole in the wheel which eventually replaced it is still called the fillet hole or the gart-hole.

In Devon and Cornwall it seems likely that being vary hardy the ringers converted their bells to ringing sally-way without the luxury of having sallies on the ropes, and the stroke which was made when the rope was pulling on the fillet came to be known as the fillet-stroke. When sallies came into use they took their name from the stroke which was made with them, and came to be called fillets, too.

The fact that West Country ringers generally use the terms "fillet" and "rope's end" for "handstroke" and "backstroke" makes me think that this is the likeliest explanation.—Yours sincerely,

JOHN G. M. SCOTT (Rev.).

SAME PRINCIPLES AS CHURCH ORGANIST

Dear Sir,—I regret to see the letter from Mr. Denis Carlisle in "The Ringing World" of September 8th. As an incumbent of some years' standing, I have received numerous requests for family friends to play the organ at weddings. Such requests I am, after consultation with my organist, always ready to grant; but I insist that the fee due is paid to my organist, since such fees form a part of the small remuneration which a church organist draws for his services. I would assume that such a principle should also apply in relation to the bells at a wedding, and that if a band of personal friends wishes to ring, the fee should be paid into the local band—a proportion of it most probably goes to a belfry fund for the maintenance of ropes, etc., anyway. This principle as applied to both organ and bells appears to me to be both logical and fair, and I fail to see that the suggestion of "cupidity" can in any way be justified. —Yours faithfully,

R. D. ST. JOHN SMITH (Rev.).

ALDERMASTON BOB MAJOR

Dear Sir,—I was interested to see a report of a peal of Plain Bob and Aldermaston Bob Major ("Ringing World," September 15th), although I am afraid I cannot see the logic of introducing a method such as Aldermaston.

There is nothing readily apparent about this method which can be said to its credit, whereas against it there are the facts that it has three blows in one place, sevenths without the treble behind, irregular lead-ends and the tenors the wrong way round.

Neither do I agree with the figures given, the lead-end shown (which gives only a six-lead course) is only correct if the 78 of the place notation is replaced by a cross in the second half-lead, but as there is no indication that this should be done, I assume that the correct lead-end (properly lead-head) is 13528467 (seven leads).

The designer, if such a word can be used in this case, of the method could have redeemed himself to some degree if he had used thirds place at the half-lead: this would at least have produced regular lead-ends, but as it stands the method is purely a mangled and very much inferior version of Plain Bob. Surely Mr. Wilcox need not have scraped the bottom of the barrel like this to find a second method for his composition.—Yours sincerely,

EDWARD C. STEELE.

A TRUE QUARTER OF MINOR

Dear Sir,—Can any of our more skilled practitioners enlighten me as to what constitutes a quarter peal of Minor? I have always been under the impression that such required a true 720 plus a true touch of the requisite length to make up the quarter peal length. I am now told that two true touches of 640 changes each will constitute a quarter peal: I find this suggestion interesting. Is it a fact that two touches of this length constitute a quarter peal?—Yours faithfully,

R. D. ST. JOHN SMITH (Rev.).

"NUTS AND MAY" BOB MAJOR

Dear Sir,—Of my own initiative I should not have had the temerity to put up my amateurish ideas. I don't profess to be a ringer. Even at my best I never rose above Kent and Stedman!

Now I can no longer ring I've turned to figures and got bitten with the idea of a meaning in bell music. Why not? All other music has a meaning, even if we don't understand it.

Of those I've got out, a very well-known peal ringer has advised me to send in "Nuts and May" Bob Major as a possibility. He liked the whole outlay including, which surprised me, the usual l.e.'s.

It's not very easy, but it does have pegs on which to hang one's hat. Notably the fact that it divides into four parts, each a whole lead—front, middle, back and quick work. Bells commencing in the order 2, 4, 6, 8 with 7, 5 and 3 on the reverse side.

I don't like the snap places in 4 and 5 but I can't get out of them and retain the "theme". To turn to that side: the theme is the children's dance and it's best seen by blocking in the centre bells, 4 and 5 in 1st lead. These are the "belles" chosen for Nuts and May and, at the end of the lead, 2 and 7 are sent to "fetch them away" whilst the rest skip on their own sides. The only liberty I've taken is to have the two hunt bells as pipers calling the tune! To go back to the ringing side, here are the figures and a lead:—

36.18—36—1458.36.18. 2nds 3527486. 4ths bob. Single 2, 3 and 4: that is Grandsire S. in front plus 4ths. Call as for Plain Bob.

BELFRY FEES AND VISITORS

Dear Sir,—Attending a meeting at Highgate recently, I was amazed when asked for a belfry fee of 6d. I replied I was not a member of the Association but was informed that this made no difference. It seems somewhat unfair for Associations to expect non-members to support them financially. Don't they have an annual subscription, or is this charge to discourage non-members from attending? Also, what happens when they have a joint meeting? Surely they do not expect to collect a load of sixpences from their hosts.—Yours faithfully,

THE BELLS OF SANDWICH

Dear Sir,—I was most interested in Mr. D. L. Cawley's well-written article on the above topic. The instalment regarding St. Peter's, Sandwich, brought back pleasant memories of this tower nearly 40 years ago.

During August, 1928, when I had just about learned how to handle a bell, I well remember walking the five miles from Deal (my home town) to Sandwich, just to ring the tenor "up" for the 8 p.m. curfew! The old curfew ringer was a Mr. Alfred Reynolds, a very small man, with large brass earrings, looking just like the old-time gipsies!

In 1934 there was an appeal by the Mayor and Council to collect money to have the bells rehung. Quite a good sum was raised but unfortunately the whole matter was left in abeyance. It was obvious that the tower would have to be strengthened first; the authorities refused to allow any of the money collected to be used for this purpose! There was even a lawsuit between the Mayor and the Vicar of St. Peter's! What happened to the money collected I do not know, but a well-known bellfounding firm submitted an estimate for the work required on the bells, and I have a copy of that estimate in my possession now.

Incidentally, regarding the first peal there (and probably the only peal), on December 27th, 1823, this was conducted by William Shipway, and not S. Carter, who rang the tenor. The composition of Grandsire Triples contained 194 bobs and 46 singles, and was obviously E. Taylor's bob and single six-part. The last time the full ring of eight was rung was about 1904. I am still hoping that an ambition to ring in the first peal of Major there will be fulfilled one day, before I am past it!—Yours sincerely.

"A SQUARE DEAL FOR THE LEARNER"

Dear Sir,—I have waited to see letters either praising or criticising "A Square Deal for the Learner" and am disappointed that so far only one has been printed. The idea of such a scheme has fired my imagination and I am sure it would be of great benefit to many learners since I, like Mr. Parrott, know very few ideal towers where learners naturally progress quickly and are enthusiastically encouraged.

Such a scheme would involve a great deal of hard work on both sides. Many tower captains may feel that this is unnecessary and that ringing is an "up-and-coming" hobby anyway. But how many learners stop coming because they are not really helped by captains who have a Surprise band to start with, and how many towers are silent on Sundays? In some towers a better form of attraction is needed, and this scheme could well be the key.

If the scheme eventually comes into operation, I believe that Elizabeth and I will no longer be learners but, having progressed the hard way, we will be pleased to help others to learn more easily and so will many ringers in Britain. Good luck for your scheme's success, Elizabeth.—Yours faithfully,

ANN H. WHALEY.

Surrey Ringers Tour in East Devon

A PARTY of 16 ringers from Surrey (of whom half were aged around 20), under the leadership of Mr. F. W. Housden, of Shalford, held a very successful ringing tour in East Devon during the first week in September, with the London Hotel, Ottery St. Mary, as headquarters. Admirable arrangements had been made by Group Captain G. J. L. Read, of Galmpton, Kingsbridge, and the only other Devon ringer in the company was Mr. A. L. Bennett, of Buckfastleigh.

On the journey down on September 2nd ringing took place at Wincanton, where Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Cambridge Major were rung on the very nice light eight on the ground floor.

On Sunday the Ottery ringers generously allowed the party the use of the eight bells of this glorious church (which is a smaller edition of Exeter Cathedral) and excellent ringing took place for morning and evening service, Grandsire, Bob Major, Stedman and Cambridge being successfully accomplished. Holy Communion was taken by the party at the morning service.

The first tower on Monday was at Cullompton, where Group Captain and Mrs. Read met the party and where Mr. Bennett was able to renew acquaintance with the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Mardon. Touches of Grandsire Caters and Stedman Triples were enjoyed on the fine ten, the next tower containing the glorious octave at Tiverton, where ringing included Kent Treble Bob Major and Cambridge Major. The lunch interval was spent at Bickleigh Bridge, where the scenery was very much admired. Ringing at Bickleigh followed, various methods being rung on the light six; thence on to Broadclyst, where the ringing on the very fine eight included Kent and Cambridge Major.

RANG WITH BUCKFAST BOURDON

Tuesday morning's objective was Buckfast Abbey, a visit to which had been eagerly awaited. The visitors were met by the Rev. Father Paulinus Angold, who was able to join them in a course of Bob Major. Other ringing here included Grandsire Caters, rounds on the twelve with the giant Bourdon swinging at the same time, which created a great deal of interest, and a course of Cambridge Major on the "minor eight," another unique experience. Besides being able to have a close-up of all the bells whilst in motion, the visitors also saw the wonderful new Blessed Sacrament Chapel with its remarkable coloured window incorporating a huge head-and-shoulders figure of Christ with arms extended, which was most impressive. The only other tower visited after lunch was Dean Prior; a course of London Minor was in the programme.

No ringing was arranged on Wednesday, the 6th, the day being spent at leisure.

On Thursday the first tower was at Pinhoe (a perfect little ring of six) with a church delightfully situated overlooking Exeter and the River Exe. The ringing here was much enjoyed, including a course of Cambridge Minor. The next tower was at Heavitree, where Norman Mallett joined the party. Ringing on this grand eight included Cambridge and Treble Bob Major. The lunch interval was spent at Woodbury, and some of the more energetic members managed to get a short ring at the Parish Church. In the afternoon Withycombe Raleigh was the venue, the ringing including Cambridge Major; and thence on to Littleham (a very light octave), with Superlative as the chief method. An hour was afterwards spent ringing on Frank Mack's "lightest six," the event proving a real novelty, and sincere thanks are due to Frank for providing this delightful opportunity.

INTO DORSET

Friday, the last day of the tour, was the best for weather. The first call was at Seaton, where Grandsire and Cambridge were rung, the visit concluding with a well-struck touch of Stedman Triples and a very good fall. Thence on to Lyme Regis (another splendid-going octave), the ringing including Plain Bob Triples and Cambridge Major. The lunch interval was spent here, after which the journey was continued to Axminster (a heavy-going eight). In addition to Grandsire Triples, Double Norwich and Kent Treble Bob Major were also rung.

The last call was at Colyton, with its curious double tower. Here there was a further delay, as only one man in the village knew the secret of disconnecting the chimes and he could not be found for a considerable time! The ring of six with a 25 cwt. tenor had a very awkward "circle" of ropes, and the ringing was confined to Grandsire Doubles and Bob Minor.

Ringing during the week was good, and in some cases exceptional, and all the party certainly profited by the experience gained. Ringing Masters for the four days were Doug May, Fred Housden, John Payton and John Collier.

The irrepressible youngsters found for themselves quite a few additional rings to those already provided on the tour, including Exeter Cathedral, and their practical jokes on one another at the hotel were legion. One avante garde member of the company collected masses of large round stones from the various beaches for his patio, and took home a veritable "Stonehenge" in his car.

Grateful thanks are due to John Read for the excellent arrangements made, and to all clergy for placing their bells at the disposal of the visitors.

BATH AND WELLS ASSOCIATION

Chew Deanery Branch

For the first time in many years the quarterly meeting of the Chew Branch was held at the Church of St. Quiricus and Julietta, Tickenham, on September 16th. The Rector, the Rev. S. J. Atkins, welcomed the Branch to the "Cathedral of the Moors," as the church is aptly named, and in an interesting address he outlined the part played by the founders, the patternmakers and designers, and finally the ringers themselves, in ensuring that God's message is heard by those outside the church.

About 30 members enjoyed tea in the Village Hall, and the the Rector took the chair at the short business meeting. Subject to permission, the Branch annual general meeting will be held at Chew Magna on December 2nd, and practice meetings at Barrow Gurney (October) and Backwell (November). Two new members, Christine Stone and Donald Pearce, were elected from Nailsea.

The secretary asked for a good measure of support for the Association's annual dinner to be held at the County Hotel, Taunton, on October 28th.

Evening ringing continued at Tickenham, and later at Nailsea until 8.30.

SOME OF THE OUTINGS

After outings in South Sussex, the Dover area and Westerham, the combined bands of Charing and Little Chart, together with the Small family of Sellindge, moved to the Isle of Thanet area.

So on September 6th our fourth annual outing commenced with ringing on the light eight of Hernhill. From here we went to Herne, both Birchington towers, St. John's and St. Peter's, and St. Lawrence-in Thanet and finally to St. Nicholas-at-Wade. Methods rung during the day included all the standard variety with Stedman on the 6-, 8- and 10-bell towers and Grandsire Cinques at Quex Park. Cambridge, Superlative and Yorkshire Surprise Major and Double Norwich were rung at Hernhill, Birchington, St. John's and St. Peter's respectively.

Special mention must be made of the London Surprise Minor at St. Nicholas-at-Wade (6, 21 cwt.). Here our tenor man, Pete, who had not revelled in the ringing of the tenors on this day, turned it in superbly and a well-struck course was achieved. At Herne, where our ability to handle and strike the bells was quite a problem, we soon showed the inhabitants what Charing could do, with our tenor man really excelling himself in Cambridge Minor.

Finally, I would like to express my thanks to the incumbents where we rang and to the ringers who came to meet us, and also to the Small family who gave us some much-needed support.

I don't know our plans for next year's outing, but I do know this: wherever we go, inland or by the sea, we shall always have a swim half way through the day! R. W. B.

PENARTH

A coachload of ringers and friends left Penarth at 9.30 a.m. for the long-awaited outing to North Somerset. Collecting several people en route, our first stop was at the motorport by the Severn Bridge to have coffee and enjoy the view.

Ringing started on the pleasant eight at Portishead, where we had a good ring. A picnic lunch was taken by the lake just outside the town (and some of the party thought it worthwhile to walk half a mile for a jug of ale). Then on to Portbury (6). Here one of our number proved that as well as being able to ring a bell he could also play the organ. Tea was at Clevedon, after which we made for the Parish Church. The ritual of taking the "ringers' photograph" being completed, we then tried our hands at the very nice ring of eight.

The last call of the day was at Wraxall, where some good striking was achieved. Penarth was reached at 10.30 p.m. after a very warm, sunny and enjoyable day. Thanks are expressed to the four towers visited for allowing us to ring. D. A. H.

ST. MELLON'S RINGERS VISIT OTHER SIDE OF THE SEVERN

St. Mellon's, Cardiff, ringers, for their annual outing on September 12th, crossed the Severn, and their first ringing was at Filton, Glos. Arriving at Henbury, they thought they had come into the country of giants, as the sallies were about two feet above the heads of the ringers, and their good old friend, Fred Bailey, was forced to stand on a chair to ring.

Lunch was at Portishead and later, at the Parish Church, they were given a hearty welcome by the Rev. Roger Fry, and some fairly good ringing followed. Other towers visited before tea at Bristol were Potbury, Easton-in-Gordano and Brislington. The best bells and also the best ringing was at Bristol Cathedral. Finally came joining in the practice at Frampton Cotterell. Home was reached at 10 p.m., with grateful thanks to incumbents and tower secretaries for an enjoyable day.

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH GUILD

Christchurch and Southampton Districts' Combined Meeting

September 16th was a beautiful autumn day on which about 45 members of the towers which are shortly to be merged into one District met for a get-together with ringing, service and tea at Fawley on the Southampton Water.

The six bells at All Saints' Church are somewhat noisy in the ringing room, a fault which is soon to be rectified, nevertheless they were kept going to a variety of methods until shortly before Sung Evensong, conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Noel Brewster.

A sumptuous buffet tea prepared by the ladies in the Church Hall provided an enjoyable social hour and gave opportunity to express thanks to the Vicar and all concerned with the arrangements of a successful meeting. The sympathy of the meeting was extended to Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Francis, who had suffered a family bereavement that day.

Further ringing took place in the evening at Lymington and Lyndhurst. A. V. D.

WESTON-BY-WELLAND, NORTHANTS. — On Sept. 9th, 1,440 Doubles (5 methods): R. N. Scholes 1, J. M. Thorley (cond.) 2, Katharine M. Thorley 3, P. Bosworth 4, C. J. Groome 5.

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr. Tom Lock's tour in Yorkshire proved very successful with 12 peals rung, including Cambridge Maximus at Hull.

Is it true that P. A. C. and W. H. D. are seeking other aerobatic ringers so as to form the Ancient and Cumberland Belfry Batmen club? ' inquires a Kent ringer.

Mr. Marlow Simpson, the tower captain at Randwick, Glos, has just completed 50 years' continuous work on the railway. He started at Ryeford, near Stroud, on September 14th, 1917. Congratulations, especially from the Railwaymen's Guild.

Old ringing friends will be sending congratulations to Darley Rectory. The Rector's 13-year-old son, Michael, rang his first quarter on September 13th. His sister was also ringing, and the Rev. R. J. St. John Smith conducted.

A peal ringing tour of West Wales has resulted in nine peals being rung for St. David's Guild. A number of local ringers participated and the principal conductor was Marcus C. W. Sherwood, who called seven of the peals.

A folk museum at Gloucester has a window display devoted to Rudhall, the Gloucester bellfounder, with five examples of his bells.

"I've found the last four or five issues of 'The Ringing World' most interesting—no one should grumble."—A member of the Central Council.

Miss Jennie Armstrong informs us that the curfew at Morpeth Watch Tower is now rung by Corporation employees at 8 p.m. and the market bell on Wednesdays at 11 a.m.

Nine peals were rung during the South Yorkshire peal week, when Miss Anne P. Leigh, secretary of the Doncaster tower, did much of the organising. An innovation this year was to hold a dinner halfway through the week at the Silver Grill, Doncaster.

Mr. C. Kenneth Lewis, who was instructor at a one-day course of the North Wales Association at Portmadoc on September 16th, continued his good work on the Sunday morning at Machynlleth. We are informed that Gwyneth and Marlene were in form and were delighted with their progress.

BELFRY GOSSIP

IN PRAISE OF THE DUKE'S AWARD

In thanking the many people who have helped her in the six months' bellringing course for the Duke of Edinburgh's Award, Miss Ann H. Whaley, of Lanchester, Co. Durham, writes: "My course has enabled me to help other people in struggling practices and in instructing learners. I feel that I, too, have gained a great deal in working for this award. . . . I have progressed from badly-struck Kent T.B. at the beginning of the course to peal ringing and to the aspiring heights of Surprise Major.

"Finally, I wish I could thank the Duke of Edinburgh for introducing this award. My ringing course has given me much, much more than a small badge; it has given me hard work, sometimes disappointment, new friends, a better approach to ringing, and intense satisfaction. Thank you, all who have helped!"

CIVIC RINGING AT BASINGSTOKE

To help raise money for the town's new sports centre, the Basingstoke Director of Town Development, Mr. Robert Steel, undertook a sponsored walk from Yetholm, in Roxburghshire, to Basingstoke (444 miles). As he walked the last quarter-mile into Church Square, St. Michael's bells rang out a welcome. After the official ceremony, at which the Minister for Sport, the Lord Lieutenant of Hampshire and the Mayor of Basingstoke were present, St. Michael's ringers rang a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples in Mr. Steel's honour. Listeners to South-East News on the B.B.C. Home Service on September 9th heard, in the background, some of the welcoming rounds and, later, the beginning of the quarter peal.

DIAMOND WEDDING AT GREEN'S NORTON

A great friend of the ringers at Green's Norton, Northants, is Mr. John H. Phillip, who for over 70 years has sung in the church choir. He was headmaster of Green's Norton Church School from 1905 until his retirement in 1946. To mark his diamond wedding anniversary his favourite hymn and psalm were sung at the Sunday morning service. The ringers showed their appreciation with a well-struck quarter peal.

HUGHENDEN RINGERS WED

The wedding of Mr. David A. Cornwall and Miss Joyce I. Barton at Hughenden Parish Church on July 15th was honoured by peals at Hughenden and Amersham, but the attempt at Beaconsfield failed after an hour's ringing. The Vicar, the Rev. S. A. C. Dickens, conducted the service.

The bride, who wore a full-length embroidered satin dress, was given away by her brother, Mr. Roy Barton. Her full-length veil was held in place by a single rose headdress and her bouquet was a selection of mixed flowers.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Susan North (chief), Beryl Smith and Judith Loten, and Mr. Warwick Cornwall was best man to his brother.

Over 80 guests were present at the reception in Hughenden Village Hall, and the honeymoon was spent in Suffolk. The couple's new address is 14, Heath End Close, Great Kingshill, High Wycombe.

CYCLING VICAR'S 1,000-MILE TRIP

Additional information has been received about the Vicar of Randwick, Glos, the Rev. the Hon. M. R. Morrison, who plans to augment the four bells in the Parish Church to a ring of six. To help forward the fund-raising he proposes to participate in a sponsored cycle ride of 1,000 miles in ten days from Truro to Thurso, including Land's End and John o' Groats and John Taylor's foundry at Loughborough.

The public are invited to sponsor any section at a rate of 1d. a mile. Sponsors of 1s. a mile for the whole journey will also be regarded as Bell Benefactors (£50) with the right to have their own name, or the name of their choice, inscribed on the sixth bell when cast. One of the conditions of the tour is that the entire distance must be completed for any claim to be made. (See notice.)

The proposed timetable is:—

Oct. 2nd.—Truro to Land's End Hostel, 46 miles.
Oct. 3rd.—Land's End to Exeter, 117 miles.
Oct. 4th.—Exeter to Randwick, 108 miles.
Oct. 5th.—Randwick to Nottingham, stopping at Loughborough to look round the foundry.
Oct.—6th.—Nottingham to Barnard Castle, 137 miles.
Oct 7th.—Barnard Castle to Edinburgh, 134 miles.
Oct. 9th.—Edinburgh to Braemar, 112 miles.
Oct. 10th.—Braemar to Bonar Bridge, 128 miles.
Oct. 11th.—Bonar Bridge to Thurso, 114 miles.

All amounts due to be paid by sponsors should be sent to Mr. A. J. B. Haines, Ashleigh, Randwick, Stroud, Glos.

An anonymous donor has given the fifth bell, and from the cycle tour it is hoped not only to meet the cost of the sixth bell but to bring the ringing mechanism into a tiptop condition.

LINCOLN'S ECUMENICAL EXPERIMENT

The Rev. S. E. F. Booth-Clibborn, priest-in-charge of St. Mary-le-Wigford and St. Mark's, Lincoln, will shortly be leading a new venture to be known as the City Centre Ministry, Lincoln. This is an ecumenical experiment involving Anglican, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational and Presbyterian Churches. At the licensing of the Rev. S. E. F. Booth-Clibborn a quarter peal was rung in which ringers from Roman Catholic, Baptist and Anglican Churches took part. Our correspondent, a Baptist, writes: "I count it a great joy and privilege to be able to share in the 'ministry of the bells' in this way. Since starting ringing a few years ago I have experienced a great bond of friendship between ringers—different from anything else."

ST. ANDREW'S KIRTON LINDSEY

For a long time the six bells at St. Andrew's, Kirton Lindsey, Lincs, have been silent. Time has made them unsafe. Now a determined effort is being made for them to ring again, and an appeal for £2,000 has been launched by the P.C.C. The proposal is that Messrs. John Taylor and Co. should rehang the bells in a new cast iron frame, fittings renewed and repaired, and the bells retuned.

These bells were cast in 1798 by James Harrison, of Barton-on-Humber. It is said that he cast his bells several feet below ground level at dead of night, lest any sound such as the braying of an ass or the crowing of a cock be communicated to the bell as the metal set.

In olden days the market bell was rung at 7 p.m. during the months of November, December and January on Tuesdays to guide travellers from Gainsborough Market, on Thursdays from Brigg Market and on Saturdays from Kirton Market. This continued until 1858, when a new Vicar changed the nights to Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays to suit his convenience. With some difficulty he was brought to see why the other nights had been chosen.

Any donation will be gratefully acknowledged by Mr J. E. Selby, Mount Pleasant, Kirton Lindsey, Gainsborough, Lincs.

STANDLAKE CAPTAIN NOW 81

Congratulations to Mr. B. Costar on his 81st birthday. He is the oldest ringing member of the Witney and Woodstock Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild and is tower captain at St. Giles', Standlake, where he has rung regularly for over 60 years. Well done, good and faithful stalwart. A quarter peal was rung in his honour and is recorded in this edition under the appropriate section.

A SUFFOLK SIX AT TAYLOR'S

The six bells at Kersey, near Hadleigh, Suffolk, have been taken to Loughborough to be cleaned, tuned and renovated and will eventually be installed in a new steel frame. This will cost about £2,500, but it is only the beginning, states "The East Anglian Daily Times," for the tower has to be strengthened and this will cost many thousands of pounds. The bells date from 1576 to 1716.

ST. ALBANS DISTRICT'S ACTIVITIES

The back-handed six at St. Paul's Walden, Herts, was the afternoon tower for the St. Albans District meeting on September 16th. Methods up to Norwich and London Surprise Minor were achieved before the service, which was held in the church. Tea was held at the local public house, and a vote of thanks went to Mr. Denison and the local ladies for the excellent food.

The Vicar took the chair for the business meeting. Mr. Geoffrey Dodds gave details of the District outing to Berkshire, to be held on September 30th. The next District meeting will be at Barnet on October 21st, with Monken Hadley as the evening tower. (Names for tea are essential.) A tentative arrangement was made with St. Paul's Walden to hold a District practice on Wednesday, December 6th.

Evening ringing took place on the awkward ground-floor six at King's Walden. Methods up to London were managed. J. A. F.

TECHNICAL

THE PROOF OF SEVEN PART COMPOSITIONS

By ROGER BALDWIN

THIS article outlines a novel approach to the proof of seven-part compositions, based on the Blue Line system of extracting f.c.e.'s devised by J. Segar. Its advantage lies in its simplicity and in the tremendous savings in labour and time in proving any given composition.

A regular seven-part composition of Surprise Major must contain at least 23 leads per part, and the part end may be any lead end which, when repeated six times, produces rounds: in practice the Plain Bob lead ends are most convenient. Existing methods of proof involve either proving one part against the entire set of leads constituting the peal, or proving any four parts between themselves. In either case an extensive table of the lead ends must be prepared and the labour involved in this and the subsequent search for false leads, or computation of false leads, is quite large. The method of proof outlined here involves the 23 leads of one part only.

Consider a seven-part composition, with part ends 2345678, 3527486, 5738264, etc., and suppose we now write down any lead end at random, say, 6753824, which we suppose to occur somewhere in the first part. At the same place in the remaining six parts, six other leads will occur, all different, which in this case may be obtained by transposing each part end in turn by 6753824. That is, the lead ends corresponding to 6753824 in the other six parts are 3527486 transposed by 6753824, 5738264 transposed by 6753824 and so on, giving the following results:

4875632
2687453
3468275
5246387
7324568

Table 1. Examples of the corresponding leads at the same point of a seven-part composition.

We now start breaking fresh ground. For each of the leads of Table 1 write down in turn the positions in which the bells 6, 4, 2, 3, 5, 7, 8 appear. Thus in 6753824 these bells appear in the positions 2, 8, 7, 5, 4, 3, 6. For future reference the sequence 2875436 will be known as the "Transform" of 6753824, and the sequence 6423578, by which the transform was derived, will be known as the "Initial Transform." (It is, of course, the transform of rounds.) The transforms of the leads of Table 1 are:

2875436
6287543
3628754
4362875
5436287
7543628

The reason for writing down Table 2 now becomes apparent. Each transform is a cyclic transposition of each of the other transforms. Thus, for example, the third transform 3628754 is the first transform 2875436 transposed by the cyclic transposition 7823456. This now gives us a very powerful tool, because we need to write down just one of the transforms to define the entire set. This is analagous to the way in which we write down a course end, to define the leads of the course, and in just the same way we can write down the "course end" of the cyclic set of transforms (that is 7543628 in the example of Table 2). To summarise then, we can now represent the set of seven corresponding leads of Table 1, the set of leads occurring at the same place in the different parts of a seven-part composition, by a single sequence of seven numbers, the "course end" of the cyclic set of transform, which will be known as the "characteristic transform."

Of course, we can now write down the characteristic transform for all the other leads of the first part, and the cyclic property will hold for the corresponding leads in different parts. Thus we end up with a set of 23 characteristic transforms in place of the 161 leads constituting the peal. Clearly, if two leads of the part have the same characteristic transform then the composition is false.

The above paragraphs describe the basic property of the transform-method of proof of seven parts. What I am proposing is that, instead of working with lead ends, course ends, or coursing orders, as many composers do, we work with the characteristic transforms of the lead ends, and then the cyclic property enables us to check very quickly for falseness. This is a very remarkable property, but it is even more remarkable than appears at first sight, because with an appropriate choice of initial transform, described in the appendix, the cyclic property is quite independent of the part end. In particular, it can be used with equal force in the proof of five-parts.

However, if the transforms are to be of real value we must have means of writing the transforms of successive leads without reference to the leads themselves, and also means of deriving the transforms of the leads false against a given lead from the transform of the lead itself. Given this, we need never write down the actual lead ends that occur in the peal, since each transform can be derived from the transform of the preceding lead. Fortunately there is quite a simple way of doing this which is derived from the following rule:

Suppose we transpose a lead-end which we will call lead A by a transposition B and the result is another lead end, C. Then the transform of C may be obtained by transposing the inverse of B by the transform of A. The inverse of B is that change which, when transposed by B (or vice verse), produces rounds, and may be calculated by writing down in turn the positions in which 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 appear in B. Fortunately, we only have a very small amount of inversion to do to prove a given composition.

Let us now work an example. In a course of Plain Bob, each successive lead is obtained by transposing the previous lead by 3527486. Consider as an example the lead 7863542. The next lead is 7863542 transposed by 3527486, giving 8374625. In the context of the transposition rule given above and the rule is:

B=3527486
C=8374625

Transform of C=inverse of B×transpose of A where × means "transposed by"
Now transform of A=4785623
inverse of B=4263857
and therefore
Transform of C=4263857×4785623
=6573842

which can be verified directly by writing down the transform of 8374625 (=C).

The same result would occur had we written the characteristic transform of A (=5623478) instead of the actual transform. The transform of C would then have been 3842657 which is just a cyclic transposition of the previous result, 6573842, and hence has the same characteristic transform.

Bob leads can be treated in the same way, replacing B by 2357486 (for Plain Bob) and the inverse of B is then 2364857. Incidentally, the Q-sets are just those characteristic transforms with the 5, 6, 7 and 8 in identical positions, and the 2, 3, 4 rotated, e.g.: 2563748, 3564728, 4562738 are the transforms of a Q-set. This is of considerable assistance in discovering whether leads can be joined or not.

False leads may also be found directly. Let "f.l.e.'s" denote the set of false leads extracted from the method (as opposed to f.c.e.'s for false course ends). The false leads of a particular lead are found by transposing the lead by the f.l.e.'s of the method and thus in the transposition formula C is a false lead, B is one of the f.l.e.'s and A is the lead itself. Hence the transforms of the false leads are found by transposing the inverses of the f.l.e.'s by the transform of the lead. In compositions of a single method, this inversion is unnecessary, since the set of f.l.e.'s includes, with each f.l.e., its inverse. This does not apply to spliced of course, where each f.l.e. must be inverted.

I will terminate this article by proving a five-course touch of a hypothetical method. This is set out in full: in practice one would only write down the transforms of the leads, and the inverses of the f.l.e.'s, and the plain lead and bob lead transpositions.

Method:
Lead end 4263857.
F.l.e.'s 7463852, 5436728.

Composition:
Part end 3527486.
Calling: Bobs at 1, 3, 5.

Inverses:

	Lead end transposition	Inverse
Plain lead	4263857	3527486
Bob lead	6423857	4537286
F.l.e.'s	7463852	8537426
	5436728	7432568

Initial Transform:
=6423578.

PROOF

Transforms of lead ends:

Actual transforms 6423578	Characteristic transforms 6423578
2345786	— 6234578
3527864	6435278
5748623	— 6235748
7826435	2643578
8642357	— 6423578

Since none of the characteristic transforms occur twice, the leads themselves are true.

Transforms of false leads

(Obtained by transposing the inverses of the f.l.e.'s by each characteristic transform of the lead ends in turn.)

1. Obtained from f.l.e. 7463852 (inverse 8537426):

Actual transforms	Characteristic transforms
4385726	5726438
4853726	5372648
4357826	2643578
4857236	5723648
8435726	4357268

2. Obtained from f.l.e. 5436728 (inverse 7432568):

Characteristic transforms (same as actual transforms in this case):

5374268
5743268
5342768
5742638
7534268

We notice that 2643578 occurs as the characteristic transform of one of the lead ends of the touch, and also as the characteristic transform of one of the false leads, and hence the touch is false.

Appendix. Choice of the initial transform. The initial transform is the sequence formed by writing down the bells which occur in a given position, say 2nds place, at successive part ends. It may also be the sequence of bells in 2nds at alternate part ends, or every 3nd part end and so on: it does not matter which is taken, and of course the sequence may be rotated. For example the initial transform for a method with part end 54632 could be any one of the following, or their cyclic transpositions:

23654
35264
56324

For seven-part peals of Major it is convenient to write down the sequence in which 7 and 8 appear in consecutive positions, because then the consecutive positions in the transform of a particular lead give the positions in which 7-8 will appear at that lead in the different parts.

POINTS FROM 1966 PEALS—By Canon K. W. H. FELSTEAD

WE now come to peals rung in 1966. During the year, no less than 30 towers appeared for the first time in the peal columns—rather more than usual, I think. And so the number of virgin towers gradually decreases. There are still several hundred left of 6- and 5-bell rings, but quite a number of these are listed as unringable. A rough count shows that there are about 740 towers still without a peal and that (according to Dove's book) nearly 270 of these are unringable. This leaves 470 or so which are, but other factors enter in then. Thus getting on for half of this number are in the call-change areas of the West Country and it is probably unlikely that permission for "scientific" peals will be given on many of them. Actually, when unringable towers are included, there doesn't appear to be a single county which can claim that every one of its towers has had a peal! Several can claim this for all their ringable towers—they are Bedfordshire, Hertfordshire, Middlesex, Northumberland, Nottinghamshire, Surrey and London. Five or six other counties have a single unconquered tower which is not mentioned as unringable. It seems a little surprising they have been left without good reason—I am sure the local ringers know what the reasons are, but it is difficult to do so when writing from a distance, as it were.

To return to the first peal on the bells list. I confirm this in the following towers: St. Agnes, Wotton Underwood, Lamerton, Abingdon (St. Nicholas'), Amblecote (a new ring), Bratton Fleming, Calgary (Canada), Ludgershall (Bucks), Malmesbury (one of the last few 8-bell towers to have a first peal), Leck, Langtree, West Down, Lyng (Somerset), Lydiard Tregoz, Wardington, Yarcombe, Harby, Padstow, Great Wishford, St. Endellion, St. Kew, St. Minver, Horfield, Hathorn (a new eight), Lodsworth, Melbury Osmund, Thursby. The following seem to have had first peals which were not claimed as such: Odcombe, Talaton, Tibberton, Thurston.

INFREQUENT VISITORS TO PEAL COLUMNS

Since a whole year is being considered, it is not surprising that there are quite a large number of infrequent visitors to the peal columns to mention. Only one, however, had not been seen for more than 50 years—Winsham, where the last peal had been rung in 1911. There were peals here in 1894 (two) and 1910. St. George-in-the-East, London, last had a peal in 1922. Before that there had been three rung in 1907. Of course, this tower has a peal history of over 200 years, although there has never been a great number of peals rung there (I have only 32 in all). Now that the bells have been restored we shall, no doubt, see it appear more frequently again. Both Kelmarsh and Hanmer were last mentioned in 1924. The former had peals also in 1905 and 1910, but the latter had only had this one previously.

The remaining towers were all last heard in peals in the 1930's. I confirm the claim that East Harptree had its last previous peal in 1930. There was also one here in 1924. Likewise Hopton and Stourton last appeared in 1930. The former had had peals in 1905 (two), 1912 and 1913 and the latter just one in 1927. Last heard in 1931 is Burrington, with previous peals in 1909 and 1930. Mitcheldean also, with a peal total now of eight spread over the years from 1887. St. Budeaux had its previous peal in 1933 with two before that in 1927 and 1931, whilst Manaccan's and Corfe's only peals before the 1966 ones were in 1935 and 1936 respectively.

Five towers last had peals in 1937. I confirm this in the case of Assington, where there had been peals also in 1910 and 1933. The other towers are Butterwick (where a burst of activity from 1926 to 1937 produced 24 peals—the only one before these being 6,000 Doubles in 25 methods in 1896), Thornford (peals also in 1935 and 1936), Witchampton (the only previous peal) and Bradford Abbas (one other peal in 1931). Towers last having peals in 1938 were Gosport (with only one before then in 1897), Mendlesham (peals also in 1902, 1927 and 1928), Lower Peover (the only previous peal) and Streatham (Emmanuel Church). In the latter case, there is a list of peals going back just over 100 years (the first was in 1865). From 1865 to the end of the century, 18 peals were rung, spread out over the years. From 1901 to 1914, I have 13 peals, and then eight between the wars from 1919 to 1938. So the grand total is now 40. One other tower was last heard before the second war—Drayton Parslow in 1939. There was also a peal here in 1938.

TOWER RECORDS

Turning now to milestones in a tower's peal record, we find that Loughborough Bell Foundry makes its customary annual appearance (annual because I note every 50 peals, and that is about the number rung annually on the average). The total passed the 1,200 mark in 1966. The leading church tower also comes into the picture again—Erith had its 650th peal during the year. Details of the peals here have appeared on several occasions and so I will not comment further.

Since "Bell News" commenced publication, both Leicester Cathedral and St. Peter's, Ashton-under-Lyne, have appeared 300 times in the peal columns. All the former's 300 peals have been rung this century, mainly due to the efforts of the late H. J. Poole. Both towers had earlier peals (I have 11 at Leicester and 22 at St. Peter's), so the actual totals are somewhat higher. In the latter's case, peal ringing activity was nearly as great in the 1880's as in the 1960's (only 29 peals were rung between 1900 and 1940), which is a little unusual. There were also two towers which reached the 200 peal mark in 1966. They were Grundisburgh and Netherton. At the former, the first peal was rung in 1891 and at the latter, 1888. In their early days, Netherton was a much more popular tower than Grundisburgh. Thus there had been more than 50 peals there by 1914 and only 12 at the latter, which only really "got going" in the 1930's. Netherton passed the 100 just before the second war, but Grundisburgh had to wait until 1953 to do so. Since then, of course, we see the name "Grundisburgh" more frequently than "Netherton". Actually, it was in 1961 that Grundisburgh caught up, so numbers must have been pretty equal since then.

Reaching the 150 peal mark in 1966 were Spalding, High Wycombe and Putney. In all three, early peals are included in this total. There is little to note about these towers except to say that at the second, 87 of the peals have been of Stedman. The third tower is enjoying a tremendous revival at the moment—50 peals since 1960! There was another good period at the end of the last century—50 peals from 1884 to 1900.

THE CENTURY MARK

Several towers knocked up their century, only one of which claimed the fact—Harrow Weald, which I can confirm. The others were Withyham; St. Peter's, Derby; Hanbury; All Saints', Pontefract; Heptonstall; Greasley; Farnworth-with-Kearsley; Pinchbeck; and a 6-bell tower—Bunwell. Leatherhead and St. Peter's, St. Albans, also had their names in the columns for the 100th time, but earlier peals (19 at the former and 14 at the latter) make their totals higher. As it happened, it was the long peal at Hanbury which was the 100th peal. I am not counting the one early "peal" I have come across at this tower—it was a "peal" of Grandsire Triples in 1848 which did not have a Single in it!

Many of these towers have very similar histories. Thus Bunwell, Farnworth, Hanbury, Heptonstall and Pinchbeck all had their first peals round about the end of the last century and had peal totals of 15 to 25 by the end of the 1920's. In most cases there was a slightly increased activity in the 1930's, but in all of them the bulk of the peals have been rung in the last 20 years. I notice that at Bunwell, only three of the peals were of Doubles and that only once has there been a peal in more than seven Minor methods (12 methods). Derby, St. Peter's, had almost exactly half its peals from 1906 to 1929, only one peal in the 1930's and the remaining 50 or so since 1945—quite a symmetrical pattern! Although the first peal at Harrow Weald was in 1901, only four more were rung before the last war—all in the 1930's. Thus 95 of the total have come from 1947 onwards. Withyham had six before 1914, commencing in 1902, 30 between the wars and the remainder since, mostly in the last ten years, for it is a frequent visitor to the peal lists at present. Greasley didn't have its first peal until 1926 and has been pretty consistent since—37 peals between then and 1939 (i.e., in 13 years) and 67 from 1943 to 1966. Only one or two years did not have a peal.

Quite a large number of towers reached 50 during the year—too many to say much about individually. They are (roughly in order of when the 50th peal was rung) Daventry, Chewton Mendip, Rochester Cathedral, Godstone, Oxford (St. Thomas'), Little Aston, Long Ashton (I confirm their claim), Lichfield Cathedral, Frampton, Penkridge, Darlington (St. Cuthbert's), Hemingbrough, Gosberton, West Wickham, Chiswick, Beccles, Leyton, Hoghton, Old Warden, Withycombe Raleigh (claim confirmed), East Grinstead, Doncaster, Heywood and King's Lynn (St. Margaret's). In the 1965 list I omitted Longney in the 50 peal list through a miscalculation. This tower is going great guns at the moment for although it has taken 100 years to reach the 50, the present rate of peals is six or seven a year. All but the first peal at St. Thomas', Oxford, have been rung since the last war. The first was in 1889, so there was nearly a 60-year gap before the second peal.

For a 10-bell tower, Beccles has had to wait a long time before the 50 came up. The first peal was in 1779—Bob Royal, and actually only seven of the peals have not been on ten bells. Thirty-four of Hoghton's 50 were rung between the two wars and it is only recently that this tower has appeared again in the lists. Withycombe Raleigh's effort is of interest. All the 39 peals rung

THE BELLS OF CHESTERFIELD PARISH CHURCH

[Extract from Ford's "History of Chesterfield" in the 1800's.]

In December, 1774, the church's eight bells were hung anew and the sixth bell was newly cast. In 1820 a new ring of six bells was put up in the tower of the church; the cost was between £400 and £500. The bells are considered a very excellent and musical ring and reflect the highest credit on Mr Mears, the founder, and Mr. Hanson, the bell hanger. The weight of the tenor is 24 cwt 2 qr.

The opening of the bells took place on Monday, May 22nd, in the same year by the undermentioned Societies, who each performed as follows:—

First.—The Society from Oldham, Lancashire, rang a complete peal of 5,147 Grandsire Caters.

Second.—The Society at the Parish Church, Sheffield, completed a peal of 5,003 Grandsire Caters

Third.—A miscellaneous band from the Societies of Leeds, Wakefield, Sheffield Independents and others performed a complete peal of New Treble Bob Royal consisting of 5,180 changes. This finished the first day's ringing.

On Tuesday morning the Ashton-under-Lyne company ascended the tower and rang a complete peal of 5,000 and upwards of Grandsire Caters. After them the Nottingham Society of Sherwood Youths performed a peal of 5,364 Grandsire Caters, and lastly the Society from Mottram, Cheshire, performed a peal of 5,000 and upwards of Grandsire Caters. This concluded the whole, each company having completed their peals at the first attempt, which is an achievement never before performed in the annals of ringing.

The following inscriptions were found on the bells when they were taken down:—

Treble.—"Many friends are numbered."—George Swift, P. Aldeborc, Church Wardens, 1718.

Second.—"The praise of the Lord flourishes by our motions." 1700.

Third.—"Sweetly tolling, men to call,
To taste on meats that feed the soul."
—George Oldfield, 1612.

Fourth.—"Jesus be our speed." 1612.

Fifth.—"God save this church." 1612.

Sixth.—John Wood Vicar, H. Withers. R. Marsden—Churchwardens. Thomas Hilton of Wath, Founder. 1774.

Seventh.—George Shaw, Peter Dowker—friends to this bell. Anthony Legat, Will Holland, Wardens. 1661

Tenor.—"Let this bell be made sacred by the Blessed Trinity." This bell was the oldest in the tower.

NOTED CHESTERFIELD RINGER

ARTHUR PERCIVAL KNIGHTS

Born May 26th, 1892. Died Sept. 3rd, 1967

AN APPRECIATION

The passing of Arthur Percival Knights is the end of a great Chesterfield ringing family.

I first met Percy in 1921, when I came to Chesterfield, and had many years of ringing with him and his father and brother, Ben.

Percy had the misfortune to be hit by the deep depression of the early 1920's and therefore knew little prosperity. Being a fellow ringer I was in a position to give him the help he needed, so creating a bond of friendship which lasted through the years, years in which I found Percy to be as reliable at work as he was in the ringing world.

I had the pleasure of ringing with him in peals on six to twelve bells, many of which he conducted.

TREBLE BOB EXPERTS

It is well known that the Knights family were Treble Bob experts and rang many of their compositions. I had the honour of being one of the "band" of that time and Percy was the one to get the bells and band together, for which there was always full support. The standard of ringing had to be high, or everyone had the lash of Percy's tongue.

The peals were mostly for the M.C.A. in Derbyshire, the Yorkshire Association if in Yorkshire, and the Sheffield District Society. I don't know how many peals he rang or conducted, but it was a good many.

In the passing of Percy, another great ringer and conductor has left us, and to me the passing of a great friend.

THE DURHAM FESTIVAL

90 YEARS ON AND OPTIMISTIC AS TO FUTURE

THE 90th anniversary of the foundation of the Durham and Newcastle Association of Church Bell Ringers was marked by a big assembly of ringers at Durham on September 23rd. The day started with ringing. There were two peal attempts at Darlington, one of which was successful, and College Youths, headed by their Master, rang a peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus at Newcastle Cathedral. Many towers were also open.

The service of thanksgiving at Durham Cathedral was heralded by a service touch of Stedman Triples in which the band was composed of descendants of the founders of 90 years ago. They were W. Tyson, the Association's president (father a member); Roland Parke, the conductor (father and grandfather); Philip Parke (father, grandfather and great grandfather); Ian Wintrip (mother); Jack Anderson (father and uncle); Iris Anderson (father); Peter Wishart (father); and Tom M. Cox (grandfather).

The service, which was incorporated with the Cathedral Evensong, was held in the choir and was set to Stalham in E. The opening hymn was "Unchanging God who lives!" and the anthem "Call to Remembrance" (Batteshill). Handbells were introduced and these were rung by representatives of youth—Ann and Enid Lawson, Malcolm Johnson and Andrew Craddock. The striking was in keeping with the occasion.

A VOICE WHICH SAYS NOTHING

Canon Gilbert Thurlow, the president of the Central Council, preached, taking as his text "God shall come and shall not keep silence" (Psalm 50, 3), and he brought to that 90th anniversary service the good wishes of the ringers of the English speaking world.

"From this service," said the Canon, "there is one activity which goes forth into the world, which presses its attentions on all people, a voice which says in a sense nothing, for it has no words, and for this very reason says everything for it is not limited by words, and that is the sound of the bells. They can do one thing of immense importance for all that hear: they can make people think.

"There is a question which presses itself on everyone 'What am I for?' It is the plain man's equivalent of the scholar's debate on the meaning and belief in God. Am I a work of art or a work of chance? This is the belief or unbelief in God to me.

"Today men face the question, not just of belief in God as discussed by wise men, but of the direction and purpose of life. You who ring may be the unknowing means of leading men to think, face life's meaning, to its final explanation. It may often be your personal wish merely to ring in a new tower, to attempt a new method, to complete a new peal. But the result of your day's work may be to achieve something far deeper than you will ever know, in the soul of many an inquirer. God shall come and shall not keep silence He may come through your efforts."

The Cathedral bells were again rung after the service.

THE DINNER

The commemoration dinner followed in the hall of St. Aiden's College, a company of 175 attending.

Canon Thurlow, who was accompanied by Mrs. Thurlow who is a graduate of Durham, presided over a distinguished company that included the Bishop of Durham and Mrs. Ian I. Ramsey, the Provost of Newcastle (the Very Rev. C. C. Wolters), Mr. Vernon Bottomley, secretary of the Central Council and president of the neighbouring Yorkshire Association, and Mrs. Bottomley, Mr. R. S. Anderson convener of "The Ringing World" Committee, and Mr. Alan Frost, Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths. With them on the top table were leading officials of the Association and their wives, upon whom much of the organisation fell—Messrs. William Tyson (president), Denis A. Bayles (secretary) and Kenneth Arthur (Ringing Master).

Following the loyal toast, Mr. E. Peter Rock proposed "The Church." "Although we are servants of the Church," he said, "we all get a great deal of pleasure from what is an enthralling hobby. Campanology was one of the choicest of hobbies and in practising our art we do as Dorothy Sayers said: 'Make one great noise to the glory of God.'"

In a reference to the two Cathedrals connected with the Association Mr. Rock pointed out that while Durham had the age and grandeur as a building when they turned to the bells of Newcastle it was a different thing and they were all very pleased that the peal was successful there that day.

The Lord Bishop, in his reply, said he thought of a bell as symbolising their involvement in the life of society around them. Bells were associated with great occasions, both family as in weddings and funerals and also in expressing great events of the Church and State.

Secondly the bell was a challenge. It said to the church that it must be involved with the society around them and was also a challenge to the many problems of belief which bewilder so many.

The Provost of Newcastle also replied.

The toast of "The Durham and Newcastle Association" was proposed by Mr. Vernon Bottomley, who said the presence of so many visitors was an indication of the esteem with which their Association was held right through the country. The prosperity the Association enjoys was a tribute to those early pioneers—Bill Barber and the Gofton family.

NEED—LEADERS AND TEACHERS

Mr. Bottomley expressed the view that it was doubtful if ringing would have survived were it not for the Associations and "The Ringing World." The greatest need of the Exercise today was for leaders and teachers. Leaders were born not made, but their parents were more likely to be developed within the framework of the Associations and it was gratifying to see that Durham and Newcastle was a pioneer in sponsoring instructional courses.

One significant thing was to look forward to 1977 . "and as you drink this toast remember all those who are and were in this Association and resolve that you will pass on the spirit you have had the good fortune to inherit."

In his reply, as secretary, Mr. Denis Bayles reviewed the happenings in the last 10 years. As to peals Cambridge Surprise Maximus had for the first time been rung and London Royal by a nearly all resident band; there had also been new record lengths of 15,520 Yorkshire S. Major on tower bells and 8,064 Plain Bob Major on handbells.

One important change had been made in their name and with it the corresponding changes in the rules regarding qualifications for membership. They now welcomed the call change ringer into the Association with the revised preface reading: "While the Association is especially concerned to promote scientific change ringing, it does not despise the contribution of the call change ringer." This was surely better than the earlier words: "To promote the study and practice of scientific change ringing, as distinguished from the dull, spiritless and ignorable performance known as 'call changes' and thus to elevate and improve the mental capacity of the ringer, while furthering the development of a beautiful science, which is peculiarly and exclusively British in origin"

Restorations had been carried out during this period at Benfieldside, Gosforth, Sanfield and Winlahon, but against this they had to record the loss of St. Mary's Gateshead as an eight due to the 7th bell being badly cracked. Looking ahead there were good prospects for augmentation at Shincliffe and restoration at Newburn and Sedgefield. They were pleased to record the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Association and Shildon tower since the change of incumbent. Present day ringers from this tower were with them that evening and a former Shildon ringer Mr. J. H. Lenton, who became a member in 1902.

"A WONDERFUL HERITAGE"

Although the Association has been getting older the average age of its members had been greatly reduced. Youth had been much in evidence, and especially at Christmas parties and ringing courses at Lumley Castle which had been innovations of this period. Concluding Mr. Bayles said: "I believe that we have a wonderful heritage from the past and that the Association is in good heart for the future. It is very encouraging to have received such wonderful support for these 90th anniversary celebrations."

Mr. Kenneth Arthur proposed "The Press" and extended a welcome to Mr. E. Pannell, editor of "The Darlington and Stockton Times." The ringing Exercise, he said, did owe its present position to the ringing press. There was "The Bell News" from 1880 and then "The Ringing World." They were grateful to the work of Hervey Reeves and Jack Goldsmith. It was gratifying to him to learn that the circulation of the "R.W." that week exceeded 6,000.

Mr. R. S. Anderson, in reply, said he had many nostalgic memories of some of those who laid the foundations of the Association. Lyn Routledge, Billie Story, Joe Keen, Joe Parker. Bill Barber and Alder Gofton. It was nearly 45 years since he was elected a member of the Association and he rang his first peal—Stedman Triples—at first attempt at Gosforth on March 17th, 1923.

"The Ringing World" has undoubtedly of late been one of the main talking points in the Exercise. At Bath, the committee was increased by two members, who promptly resigned 12 months after at Nottingham. "I did not then and I do not now propose to use a public forum as a battleground, except to say, that their resignations were only received by the secretary the evening before the Council meeting. Whether or not their actions were designed to throw the Council into confusion, I will not speculate. Suffice to say, that 'The Ringing World' continues to be published each week, and circulation is increasing."

"DO NOT LET US DOWN"

"You will have read, that from now until Christmas, there is to be a 20 page issue, including a coloured cover each week. Continuance of the paper in this style depends on you Increased circulation will pay the extra cost involved, and I personally hope and believe you will not let us down. A number of Associations are contributing to the extra cost, by paying for the first page block and by taking copies for sale at meetings. This is a project of the editor, and I ask that all Associations support us in this way, for special commemorative occasions, as did the Durham and Newcastle Association. It has been estimated that this venture may cost us £280, but we as a committee hope, that by increased sales, the figure will be less .... I believe that the majority of our readers feel they are getting value for money. Ninepence a week—the price of three tipped cigarettes—is not a lot to pay to get news of what is happening to ringing and ringers throughout the country."

The concluding toast, "The Visitors," was proposed by Mr. W. Tyson. Among those he mentioned were Messrs. Alan J. Frost, Alan Ainsworth, Rev. Frederick Ross, Alan Pattinson, Mr. and Mrs. Street and Mrs. Joyce Dobbs.

Reply was by the Master of the College Youths who, the chairman announced, was advising about St. George's, Jesmond. Mr. Frost said he was surprised at St. Stephen's, Newcastle, to read a notice in the porch: "There is a doctor in attendance at every service." In this part of the country where they had fewer towers than many parts of the country, the bells seemed to be more appreciated He thought they did a very good job in having so few silent towers.

A comprehensive vote of thanks to the many who had contributed to the success of the 90th anniversary celebration was proposed by the chairman

Interludes were provided between speeches by handbell ringing by the Lawson family from Ormesby and by College Youths.

Vicar on Sponsored 1,000 Miles Ride

The Randwick (Glos) ringers wish the sponsored cyclists well for the Truro to Thurso tour (details given last week). Left to right: Mrs. S. M. Morrison, M. Simpson (tower captain), Preston Pegler (cyclist), Brian Pegler, R. ("Dick") Barnett, Rev. and Hon. N. R. Morrison (Vicar), E. ("Ted") Barnett. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison's four children: John (4 on October 2nd), Neil (5), Mary (7) and Hugh (2) may possibly one day make up a family peal!

The journey is already worth over £200 if completed. With £500 the existing bells could be rehung on ball bearings and the two new trebles (one of which is being donated) provided. Mr. Preston Pegler, assistant leader, Randwick Youth Club, is accompanying the Vicar for the first three days.

WITS "SHARPENED" AT CHELTENHAM

The week-end of September 15th–17th was something of an experiment for the Gloucester and Bristol Association. The venue was St. Anne's Diocesan House in Cheltenham, the exact location of which is still a mystery to some members of the gathering. However, Friday evening saw the arrival of some 40 ringers, mainly members of the Gloucester and Bristol Association.

After an adequate supper, those of us who were not already with Fred Sharpe soon found out what we had been missing. He treated us to an absorbing talk illustrated with some of his collection of slides, entitled "Bells and Their History." One sinner admitted afterwards that he had prepared himself for one and a quarter hours of boredom, but has now joined the Fred Sharpe fan club. Came 9.30 and a nightcap was enjoyed (tea—much to the disappointment of the alcoholics amongst us !).

Saturday dawned grey, in direct contrast to the mood of the members of the course, whose appetites had been "sharpened" the evening before. After a breakfast of two lonely sausages, Cyril Wratten proceeded to explain some of the mysteries of method construction —more of this for our learners, please ! The rest of the morning was occupied with such diverse subjects as conducting (very basic), learning change ringing (even more basic), rope splicing, which was very popular (despite the fact that Fred Scudamore taught no one to make a noose), and belfry maintenance.

Saturday afternoon was spent in the belfry and this may have been more useful had there been a backbone of experienced ringers. The evening's activities included an exhibition of tune ringing on handbells by Fred Sharpe and a team of inexperienced course members, whose inexperience was soon translated into some quite recognisable tunes in four-part harmony (mediæval scales and all). After supper the organisers of the course were surprised to find that the Open Forum, instead of being the succession of painful silences that they had expected, turned into 55 minutes' interesting and controversial discussion on ringing topics.

Sunday passed in similar vein and most people were quite sorry when 4.30 came and they had to return to their respective towers to try and put some of their newly-acquired knowledge into practice.

This was a very successful course, well organised and enthusiastically supported. Anyone who learned nothing must be very difficult to teach ! Our sincere thanks are due to all those who contributed to the organisation and lecturing, particularly the Queen Bee, Mary Bliss, and Marjorie Wratten, her excellent domestic assistant.

HANDBELL PROGRESS AT PERTH

Tony Mann, in a letter from Perth, W.A., which he describes as the most isolated capital in the world, writes that the bells are not going the best now, and a committee has been formed, with Jenny Lees as convener, to get cracking with the restoration work. Fifteen thousand dollars is the minimum amount required so we hope for progress soon in that direction.

Two quarters of Major have been rung recently and the local band all rang very well. We find that if the ringers of 7 and 8 over pull at any time the front three drop like stones, so a reasonable pace must be set.

Handbells are my worry, although these Australians can pick things up. We ring courses of Grandsire Caters in the Cathedral now and again for exhibition and they are struck very well. The Friday band has reached short touches of eight-spliced Plain Major, which from scratch in nine months is a credit to them. We join Eileen Palin now for Bob Royal and have rung touches of 540 and 360 We expect Tom Goodyer in a month's time for a holiday, and I hope we shall have more for you.

Letters to the Editor

142 DOUBLES PEAL WITHDRAWN

Dear Sir,—Mr. David has kindly drawn my attention to the fact that there was a false exten. in the peal of 142 Doubles methods/variations which was rung at Staunton-on-Wye on August 10th. I therefore withdraw the peal with apologies to all concerned. I also apologise to Mr Dawson for overlooking his peal of 180 methods/variations.

Since so many people are now interested in this type of ringing I wonder if Mr. Dawson would be kind enough to submit the figures for some of the 120's he conducted, so that they may be published in "The Ringing World." Perhaps the figures for extents 40 and 42 of his peal would prove most useful.

In addition, when variations are rung to a peal which have not been published in "The Ringing World' Doubles collection, may we please be told what they are. Many of the names which Mr Jones has so kindly given in his recent letter, although used for previous peals, have only now revealed their identity. Incidentally, is it Iffley or is it Landsdowne Parva?—Yours sincerely,

COLIN A. LEWIS.

Glasbury-on-Wye.

ST. DUNSTAN-IN-THE-WEST

Dear Sir,—I was pleased to see Mr. H. V. Frost's letter. When I read Mr. Hibbert's I was sure he had confused St Dunstan-in-the-East with the one in the west because in 1910 the late Mr James E. Davis was asked to provide a band to ring at the latter for the Lord Mayor's Show Nobody could ever remember them being rung and when he made an inspection he found the bells and bearings in such a bad state that to attempt to ring them without a lot of repair work would have been an impossibility.

Mr. Frost could be right about some ringing there thirty years or so ago. At that time I used to meet a local clergyman, Mr Southgate, frequently during the winter months. When he was appointed Rector of St. Dunstan-in-the-West, knowing he had done a little ringing in his college days, I told him about the bells there and said what a pity it was they were never rung.

My father told me many years ago that he once rang there with the Cumberlands in 1880, when he first came to London. The Law Courts were opened about that time and I have wondered sometimes if complaints from Judges or barristers caused ringing there to cease.—Yours sincerely,

E. BARNETT.

SUSPENSE

Dear Sir,—It was most unfair of Little John not to tell us whether old George got his last peal or not. I am suffering greatly from that dangerous disease commonly known as suspense. If Little John could just enlighten us over this subject, I should be miraculously cured.—Yours sincerely,

GILLIAN M. RICHARDSON.

Haresfield, Glos.

UNRINGABLE INCUMBENTS

Dear Sir,—As a ringable Vicar may I just complete the picture painted by Mr. Dove and Mr. Dodd by saying that not only are there unringable Vicars and P.C.C.'s, there are also unringable ringers!—Yours faithfully,

CHRISTOPHER MARSHALL.

THE PYES ON HANDBELLS

Dear Sir,—I was interested in Mr. E. W Pye's letter on page 674 and though I did not take part in Surprise peals "in hand" I rang in many peals with the five Pyes between 1910 and 1920, viz. 40 "in hand" and 15 on tower bells. W. Pye was in 42, G R. Pye 42, Ernest 31, Alfred 2 and L. A. Pye 1. The numbers were Stedman Cinques 27, Stedman Caters 17, Kent (on 8, 10 and 12) 5, Double Norwich 3, two of which were "in hand" with W. Keeble on 5-6 All peals "in hand" were umpired in accordance with Central Council condition 7 on page 21 of the handbook, which seems out of fashion these days.

Time passes along quickly and at 84 I find my last peal "in hand" was 43 years ago and my last tower peal 20 years ago.—Yours sincerely,

WILLIAM SHEPHERD.

Addlestone, Surrey.

PLAIN BOB SINKS

Dear Sir,—Plain Bob is the foundation of our science of change ringing. From its simple rules have evolved the intricacies of so many of our advanced methods. How often, too, has its dodges formed a stumbling block for the beginner!

This was discovered very early on and the usual trip of "crunch" in 3–4 was given the name of Reverse Canterbury Pleasure (?). This has ensured the survival of this irregular method.

It took a certain Yorkshireman to discover (with delight?) that you can "crunch" in 5–6 on higher numbers. Hence Hunslet! These have, I believe, even been combined with successive adjacent places in 3–4 and 5–6!

Now surely it must be a subtle C.N.D. action to call the 7–8 adjacent place Major, Aldermaston! Irregular, three blows in succession in 8ths, either side of the lead-end—and the delights of 8–7's at backstroke! Such is progress!—Yours sincerely,

GEOFFREY DODDS.

K.C.A. TEACHING MEETING AT TONBRIDGE

Fifty sat down to tea at the Waterside Café, Tonbridge, on September 9th, when a joint meeting of the Lewisham and Tonbridge Districts was held There was no speechifying—not even a formal vote of thanks to the hard-working organisers. The whole day had been devoted to a teaching campaign. Half the party had visited four towers and the other half a different four

All converged for tea and took part in ringing at Tonbridge afterwards. Much good work was done, and although the experienced ringers went home tired they had the satisfaction of knowing that the whole time had been spent in teaching rather than the usual time-wasting diversions that so regularly attend ringing affairs.

Earlier in the year a day's ringing school was arranged jointly by the two Districts in the Lewisham area, and this second function was arranged in the Tonbridge District as a suitable follow-up

Walter Dobbie and his companions on the joint committee are to be congratulated on the excellence of their arrangements.

LONG LENGTH ATTEMPT

Dear Sir,—I wish to give notice that an attempt will be made to ring 24,119 Grandsire Caters on October 21st, 1967 at St Laurence's Church Appleton, starting at 6 a.m

The composition is appended.—Yours faithfully,

BRIAN R. WHITE.

Mr. T. J. Lock's Tour in Yorkshire

FRESH ground in that expansive county of Yorkshire was chosen for this year's annaual tour and reunion. The week is a reunion as the party gathers from such distant counties as Derbyshire, Devon, Durham and Sussex. There were also representatives from the Cathedral bands at Birmingham, Chichester, Derby, Exeter, Newcastle upon Tyne and St. Albans. Owing to distance to travel, on the first Saturday for the southerners a peal was arranged at St. Cuthbert's, Darlington, beyond the Yorkshire border, and in the end we were indebted to two local ringers, T. Cooke and E Pannell, for standing in to make up. However, the method and the performance were an adequate introduction to the week which followed and suitable to be recorded as a birthday compliment to Pat Halls, who with her two children remained with the party for the first half of the week

For Sunday service ringing the party scattered around to such towers as York and Beverley Minsters, Kirkby Moorside and Scarborough. At this latter place the ringing chamber is most inviting with the sallies in blue, green and yellow spirals to match the decoration of the room. Although no arrangements had been made to visit the tower, we were saddened to learn that little activity goes on at Malton Parish Church, where £1,000 was spent on restoration work about ten years ago.

MAXIMUS FOR FIRST TIME

On Monday, August Bank Holiday, morning one band visited Goole but after three-quarters of an hour of Spliced Surprise Major in six methods the rope of the treble slipped wheel. This unexpected occurrence caused an inspection to be made and as no reason could be found it was decided that the Romans would have the best phrase to describe it. The other band visited St. Augustine's, Hedon, known as King of the Holderness, where an extent of Rutland Surprise Major proved a suitable method for the bells. A late afternoon start for a peal at Holy Trinity, Hull, fitted in very nicely and other than to the most discerning, a very creditable performance resulted in a peal of Maximus being rung on this series of annual tours for the first time.

One peal attempt in a nearby tower, Norton, on Tuesday morning was completed with satisfaction whilst the remainder of the party visited St. Peter's, Harrogate. In the afternoon two peal attempts were also satisfactorily performed. At Collingham, a lively and musical peal of Superlative Surprise Major was rung on these well cared for bells, which were installed 60 years ago last May. Two members of the local band met us here and they both fully deserve being mentioned in this report. Mr. C. Hague has completed 58 years, and Mr. W Scheerer has completed 50 years, of faithful and conscientious duty at Collingham, so on behalf of the ringing Exercise we wish them many more years of active service. At Tadcaster York Surprise Major was well rung, which earned a few asterisks for "first in the method."

NO HANDBELLS

We said goodbye to the Talbot Hotel, Malton (where, incidentally, one of the notices reads: "If it is desired to evacuate the premises the warning will be given by ringing a handbell"—so that prevented us from bringing out our own set of handbells) on Wednesday morning, the numerical larger of two contingents journeying to Carlton-in-Cleveland, where a change in method from that programmed proved beneficial, as a good peal of Cambridge Surprise Major was rung. The smaller contingent visited the six-bell tower of All Saints', Hovingham. After the successful conclusion of ringing seven extents of Minor, the band was met by the Vicar, who generously supplied us with liquid refreshment, and Mr. Bishop, at which time it was confirmed that there is no local record of a peal having previously been rung on these bells. It was noted that the present bells were cast in 1878, being increased to six and installed with new fittings in a new wooden frame by J. Taylor, and later, in 1953, hung on ball bearings. So presumably there were bells in the tower before the casting or even recasting of the then existing bells.

In the afternoon, a journey north-eastward took us to our second seaside resort, Whitby, where it was really pleasant to take refuge in St. Mary's ringing chamber away from the crowded streets. But hundreds of people, we hope, must have been attracted by our efforts in ringing Yorkshire Surprise Royal. This success enabled us to complete peals in even-bell methods from Minor to Maximus. With this certain satisfaction we moved our headquarters to the Golden Lion Hotel, Northallerton.

FOUR FAILURES

On Thursday morning two peals were attempted, one rung, the one at Thirsk, where the previous peal was recorded just twenty years and one day ago, i.e. August 30th, 1947, and where only one Surprise peal (Yorkshire) had been rung, although the first peal in this tower was accomplished on May 16th, 1899.

The other attempt was at Ripon Cathedral, where York Surprise Royal was unfortunately lost by the breaking of a clapper with only ten more leads to go. Whilst, during the afternoon, another attempt, of London Surprise Major, at Bedale, was interrupted after two and a half hours by a visit to the ringing chamber by the sexton, who conveyed the Vicar's request that the ringing should stop, the remainder of the party were invited to ring at Northallerton, where a further visit was made in the evening to join the local company in practice, and to Kirby Wiske.

The morning of the last full day also proved unsuccessful in respect of peal ringing —Spliced Surprise Major in eight methods was lost after 40 minutes at Sharow, and Yorkshire Surprise Major was stopped at Masham when the tenor rope began to unravel after 30 minutes. In the ringing chamber at Sharow is one of the very few stained glass windows with ringing its subject matter. The afternoon session was more profitable with a very nice peal at Middleham, while other members of the party visited Grinton and Catterick to ring a few short touches.

For the last, homeward bound, day another peal was recorded on the bells of St James', Birstwith, earning a few more "first in the method" asterisks, whilst an unsuccessful attempt was being made at Easingwold. Here was the only occasion of the week where the ropes had traditional Yorkshire tailends but, for the information of Yorkshiremen, no one complained and in fact it was a pleasant experience for those ringers who had not previously handled the tufted end. A miscall in an unusual composition of Superlative Surprise Major was the reason for setting up the bells after one and a quarter hours.

So completed another week's gathering, where jovial contentment during this annual social reunion together with a consistently good standard of ringing are the top priorities and where the number of times each can get his or her name in the peal columns is not even considered. To those who may think otherwise, the expenses of the week for such items as hotel, meals, refreshments, travel, peal fees, contributions to tower funds, organisation costs and presents to take home total several pounds for each member, and the critics would do the Exercise well if they forwarded as many (say, thirty) shillings twenty times in the year to this journal—they could then have their names printed twenty times in the "Gratefully Acknowledged" column. In addition, their week could be spent at home writing some informative and useful articles for the benefit of the Exercise with the author's name in quite thick print.

To those clergy who afforded us the use of some very pleasant rings of bells, to tower correspondents and fellow ringers who met us or who were otherwise connected with this tour, we are most grateful and we assure them their co-operation was much appreciated.

Newark and North Notts Districts

The meeting held jointly between the Newark and North Notts Districts at St. Nicholas', Tuxford, on September 9th, proved to be very successful on all counts

Both the ringing on the eight bells in the afternoon and the singing at Evensong were accompanied with much enthusiasm. Tea was also a fairly noisy affair and, as agreed by the two secretaries, the business meetings were then conducted "in tandem" under the chairmanship of the Vicar, the Rev. T. W. Swift. A raffle organised by Mr. Harry Poyner for a 500-piece jigsaw puzzle spilled out the pennies, and the prize was carried off to the Newark District by Miss G. Burchnall, of Sutton-on-Trent

Spokesmen for both the Districts suggested that the joint meeting be a regular event.

KNUTSFORD RINGERS MARRIED

Two ringers from St. John the Baptist Church, Knutsford, Cheshire, photographed after their wedding on September 16th, in the church they serve so faithfully. They are Christopher J. Jones and Diana Bentley. The Vicar, the Rev. R. A. M. Harris, officiated. The secretary of the Grappenhall Branch, Mr. Michael Thomson, was the best man, and Terence G. Spragg and Brian Goulden groomsmen. Attending the bride were her sister Jean and Mrs. Janet Harper. [Photo by Edgar N. Livesley.

THE BRIDE FROM COMPTON BISHOP

For 13 years a ringer at Compton Bishop Church, Somerset, Miss Anne White, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George White, of Nottinghill Farm, Weare, was married at St. Andrew's Church, Compton Bishop, on September 16th to Dr. Gavin Williams, of Anglesey.

The Vicar, the Rev. F. J. Kell, conducted the service, assisted by the Rev. J. L. Heigham, Vicar of Weare. The bride wore a full-length dress of white crystal satin, and carried a bouquet of golden roses.

The bells were rung after the service by friends of the bride, and later in the afternoon a peal was rung by the Axbridge Branch of the Bath and Wells Association.

A LINCOLNSHIRE WEDDING

The wedding took place on September 16th of Mr. Brian Bull, Ringing Master of St. Mary's, Putney, and Miss Janet Hudson, also a Putney ringer and a native of Lincolnshire. Ringers from London, Lincolnshire and Nottingham converged on the parish church of Stow, where the ceremony was conducted by the Rev. J. Parker, assisted by the Revs. C. Carver and M. Hart, of Putney. The bride wearing a white dress and veil, made by herself, was attended by Miss Christine Cobb, another Putney ringer, who wore a turquoise lace dress. Both carried pink and white carnations. The best man was Mr. Michael Bull, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in Willingham Village Hall, where a sumptuous spread had been prepared by the village ladies. The couple later left for the Lake District.

A peal of Double Norwich was rung at Gainsborough prior to the wedding in honour of the occasion. Many of the ringers who had come from London made ample use of the weekend to visit new towers in the area!

WAVENDON, BUCKS.—On Sept. 1st, 1,440 Minor (Cambridge and Plain Bob): H. Whitney 1, Ann Houghton (first "inside") 2, Canon Elliot Wigg 3, M. Hooton 4, K. Jackson 5, A. Frost (cond.) 6. Rung as a wedding compliment to Martin Wigg and Stephanie Burt, married at Bengeo August 26th, 1967.

DEREK FOWLES—WENDA HARRIS

The wedding took place at St. Michael's, Bray, on September 23rd between Miss Wenda Harris and Mr. Derek Fowles. Wenda is a Bray ringer and Derek a member of the Cranford, Middlesex, band. Derek has also been chairman of the S. and W. District of the Middlesex Association for many years.

Friends of the bride and bridegroom rang before and after the service, which was conducted by the Vicar of Bray and included the bellringers' hymn. As the couple left the church the Bray ringers formed an archway of handbells.

The bride wore a white chiffon and lace over satin dress and carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis. The attendants were Mrs. Diana Cartman, sister of the bride, and Miss Mollie Edwards, friend of the bride. They wore dresses of emerald green wild silk and carried gold roses.

The best man was Mr. Peter Ruch, ringing friend of the bridegroom. After the reception the couple left for a honeymoon in Devon, and on their return they will make their future home at Holyport.

THE "YESTERYEAR" RINGERS WERE AT OXFORD

There is no secret now about the Yesteryear Ringers' picture published in the issue of September 22nd. It was taken in the belfry of Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford, when the Mayor, Ald. F. Bennett, unveiled a peal board commemorating a peal of Stedman Cinques, rung on July 20th, 1931, by the Oxford Society of Change Ringers.

The unveiling took place in April 1932 and the Mayor and four other members of the council were welcomed by a touch of 387 Stedman Cinques rung by S. Taylor 1, Mrs. A. E. Lock 2, Miss M. Reynolds 3, F. Exon 4, W. G. Brigham 5, W. Blake 6, F. Taylor 7, R. A. Post 8, W. F. Judge (cond.) 9, V. Bennett 10, G. Caudwell 11, W. Simmonds 12.

The Mayor was welcomed by the president of the Society (Mr. W. Collett) who said ringing was not so easy as some people thought; it was both difficult and scientific. The peal board commemorated one of the most important peals ever rung in the tower and one of which they were very proud.

Ald Bennett, in presenting and unveiling the board, thanked the Society on behalf of the City Council for the honour that had been done them and congratulated the ringers on their performance.

This information has been supplied to us by Mr. Walter F. Judge, who is still the Ringing Master of the Society. He and Mr. W. Simmonds, now living at Babbacombe, have written to us giving the following identities: Standing at the back: —, —, Herbert Badder, Harry Gardner, William H. B. Wilkins, Walter F. Judge (conductor). Holding the ropes are Ald. C. Brown (a well-known ringer), Ald. F. Bennett (the Mayor), Councillor A. Skipper and Councillor A. Cripps.

Others in the picture from left to right were: —, —, Arthur Hawes, Kenneth Walker, William Blake —, —, Samuel Hounslow, William Simmonds, Philip Walker (present secretary, Oxford Society), William G. E. Collett and Walter Brigham.

Mr. W. F. Judge, in his letter, states unfortunately the photographer did not succeed in getting all the company present into the picture. Other well-known ringers present were Harry Miles, Frankie Taylor, Sydney Taylor, Dick Post.

PROGRESSIVE SALES

Thanks to the generous support of the Hereford Diocesan Guild, we had a record sale of 6,059 copies for the issue of September 22nd. This tops a very fine effort by the Derby Diocesan Association, which resulted in 6,046 copies being sold for the issue of September 8th. Our Wymondham Abbey number, although without a tinted cover, missed the 6,000 mark by 14 copies.

SWANSEA AND BRECON GUILD

Quite unexpectedly the weather turned warm and sunny for the afternoon of September 2nd, when the quarterly mteting of the Southern District was held at Gorseinon. Unfortunately the attendance was poor, only six towers being represented.

The service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Trevor Evans, and the tea was served in the Church Hall. The Vicar and the ladies were warmly thanked.

A visit to Sketty for the annual District meeting on December 2nd was agreed to.

Mr. Glyn Thomas, captain of the Gorseinon ringers, was assured that help was forthcoming from the District if and when required.

Two new members were elected. J. A. H.

OBITUARY

MR. JAMES W. CHAPMAN

We have received, from his old friend John Euston, an appreciation of Mr. James W. Chapman, who died in St. Helier's Hospital on August 21st.

"Jim" came to London from Whittlesey, Cambs, in 1899 and joined the All Hallows', Tottenham, band. In 1903 he was ringing with J. Parker at Edmonton and soon rang his first peal—Superlative "inside." He moved to Clapham in 1905 and was made welcome by Mr. and Mrs. Hairs and their brilliant son Frank. Jim was very gifted; he could play the piano well and chime almost anything on bells.

His great work as a ringer was in connection with St. Leonard's, Streatham. He became captain and tower keeper in 1913, and when he retired 50 years later he was presented at a meeting of parishioners and friends with a cheque for £25.

In 1913 he joined the staff of Barkers at Kensington and except for his service in France with the R.A.S.C. during World War I, served them loyally until his retirement in 1948. He was very proud of his link with "the House of Fraser."

For many years he lived at 47, Stanford Way. "He was placed in an old people's home 'on holiday' and when he thought he was going back home, I had the unenviable task of informing him that his house and home was sold. Shortly afterwards he was moved to St. Helier's Hospital and I was with him for the last time on August 20th. He passed away peacefully the next day."

BELFRY GOSSIP

Mr L. R. Pizzey was ordained a deacon on September 24th. He is serving his title at Bramford, Suffolk, where a welcoming quarter peal was rung that day.

Congratulations to the Key family, of Gnosall. A family peal of Grandsire Doubles was rung at Swynnerton on September 14th by husband, wife and their son and three daughters.

Novello and Co. Ltd., the music publishers, of 27, Soho Square, London, W.1, are anxious to obtain a pamphet entitled "Quarter Chimes and Chime Times" by William Wooding Staimer.

The University of Bristol Society has two summer tours, one for those in residence and the other for non-residents, their wives and children. In this year's Devon tour of the seniors the kindergarten was very substantial.

On the cricket field at Mullion on September 9th the Penzance Branch of the Truro Diocesan Guild avenged their earlier defeat by the Truro Branch: Truro 49 (G. F. Dunstan 19), Penzance 50 for 5.

Newbury ringers entered into the spirit of the town's festival week. Five quarters were attempted, but only three were successful. Thanks are due to friends from neighbouring towers who helped out, some at very short notice.

The sympathy of his many English friends will be extended to Tony Mann, now in Western Australia, in the passing of his father, Cecil Robert Mann, on August 24th. An in memoriam quarter peal of Plain Bob Major was rung "in hand" at Embleton, W.A., conducted by his son, and a similar tribute on the Cathedral bells.

The ringers of the front five in the peal at Malvern Link on September 19th are members of the local band. The wives of the ringers of 1, 3 and 4 are also members of the band, and the birthdays of the daughters of the ringers of 1, 4 and 5 all fall within the week of the peal being rung.

"The Hampshire Hogs," headed by Geoffrey Dodd, had a great time in South Wales during three days in August spent in camp near Barry. So enthusiastic are they over their reception that their correspondent writes: "We shall be back again next year to sample some more of your lovely scenery and good bells."

At the joint meeting of the Essex Association and the Suffolk Guild at Bocking on September 16th there was present an American lady and her "kids." Call changes and Bob Minor was put on for their benefit and afterwards came a beautiful touch of Superlative. One mystery remains—did Harold Moore tamper with the tenor; he certainly enjoyed it every time anyone failed to stand first time.

THE LATEST 1,000th PEAL RINGER

Congratulations to Mr. W. F. Moreton, the honorary secretary of the Yorkshire Association, on ringing his 1,000th peal. It was one of seven Minor methods rung at Holy Trinity, Darlington, on September 23rd as part of the celebrations of the 90th anniversary of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association. Mr. Moreton was present later in the day at the Association's dinner at St. Aidan's College, Durham. This ringing milestone was not, however, disclosed otherwise a most cordial toast would have been added to the long list. He is the 29th ringer to gain this distinction.

SUDBURY TOWER TO REMAIN

The Riverside Church of St. Mary, Sudbury-on-Thames, is shortly to undergo major structural changes, in which much of it will be demolished and rebuilt to a different design. The brick tower, however, with its metal dome, attractive cupola and musical ring of eight bells (tenor 14¼ cwt.), is to be saved to serve, in the course of time the new church which will be bonded to it on the same three walls as at present, but at lower statures.

TWO CENTURIES AFTER

In March, 1767, a peal of 10,080 Plain Bob Major was rung in St Mary's, Debenham. A peal of the same length and in the same method was rung on St. Mary's bells on September 16th, conducted by Mr H. Egglestone. Others in the band were Messrs. L. Pizzey, L. Brett, R. Rogers, J. B. Pickup, T. J. Bailey, R. Whittell and M. Howes.

The time taken was six hours and four minutes, three minutes longer than the peal of 200 years ago. The conductor points out to "The East Anglian Daily Times" that the present tenor is two cwt. heavier than its predecessor.

LLANDAFF CATHEDRAL GUILD BEAT FRUSTRATIONS

Llandaff Cathedral Guild this week records its first ten bell peal, which was arranged to mark the retirement of the popular head verger after 32 years' service. But it nearly did not take place, as one of the original band dropped out on the day before. A Guild member was fortunately found to replace him, but she in turn had to call off on the day of the peal. The organiser had half an hour to find a Guild replacement. Miss Judith Ashcroft was rushed from home and rang very well to record her first peal "inside."

KENT M.P. WITH RINGERS

A combined meeting of the Ashford District and the Ladies' Guild was held at Wittersham on September 16th, the first since the bells were rehung. Appledore bells were also available before the service, which was conducted by the Rev. Graham Harrison.

A distinguished visitor was Mr. William Deedes, M.P for Ashford who, with the other visitors, was welcomed by the chairman, Mr. A. S. Phelips. Mr Deedes is an associate member of the Kent County Association.

The buffet tea, prepared by local ringers and friends, was of an exceptionally high standard and Mrs Mitchell expressed thanks on behalf of the Ladies' Guild for the very happy meeting.

THE JENNIE ARMSTRONG SONG

By JOHN BIBBY

(Sung by John and Katherine Bibby for Miss Jane Skee Armstrong at a school concert at Morpeth.)

The sun set o'er the Wansbeck:
Street lamps shone all about,
But it was a black day for Morpeth—
They locked poor Jennie out.

Chorus:
Tell me Jennie, if you can,
Who rings the curfew bell?
Is it you, or a clockwork machine,
That rings the curfew bell

Said Jennie to the Council:
"They've locked the tower door—
If they do it again, I'll pack it all in,
And ring the bells no more."

Chorus.

"We may not need you, Jennie,
Nor your brother Fred;
We may install an electric machine
To do the job instead."

Chorus.

Across the vale of Wansbeck,
Still comes the curfew ring.
But the bell would never sound the same
As when Jennie pulled the string.

Tell me Jennie, if you can,
Who rings the curfew bell?
Is it you, or a clockwork machine,
That rings the curfew bell?

BECKENHAM'S DAY IN RURAL KENT

If ever there was a suitable theme song for a band of ringers it must surely have been "When you come to the end of a perfect day" for the ringers and friends of St. George's, Beckenham, when they ended their annual outing in grand manner with a dinner at the well-named "Pilgrim's Rest" at Wrotham on September 9th.

About 9.15 a.m., within a radius of nine miles, five cars containing 19 people and one dog started converging on Biddenden, Kent, our first tower, and within a few minutes of 10.45, the scheduled time, everyone had arrived. The picturesque village of Benenden was our next stop. After an appetising lunch at Tenterden we rang there, the wrong way round, much to our consternation.

We arrived at Hythe just as the local ringers had finished ringing for a wedding, and a local ringer kindly warned a nearby cafe that a number of thirsty ringers would shortly be invading for tea.

The six at Sellindge—how lovely to find a belfry on the ground-floor—were in our next tower, and we ended our ringing on the lovely eight at Ashford, where the ringing chamber is a joy to behold.

Everywhere we went we were met by someone from the local band. We rang methods from Grandsire Doubles to Yorkshire Major, including a Beckenham Special Outing course of Duffield. There were no cross words, no inquests; the sun shone all day; no one got lost (roadwise!); parking spaces appeared as if by magic, even in the busiest towns, and I am sure this outing will long be remembered. D. J. L.

POLICE GUILD'S NEW PRESIDENT

The new president of the National Guild of Police Ringers is Mr. George Cousins, the honorary secretary of the Hereford Diocesan Guild. The annual meeting took place at Cheltenham on September 23rd at the Cheltenham Central Police Station, by kind permission of the Chief Constable of Gloucestershire, Mr. E P. White. The office of secretary and treasurer remains unchanged—P.C. Arthur Pearce, of 197, Wythenshawe Road, Manchester 23, being re-elected. The next A.G.M will be held at Grantham on Saturday, September 22nd. 1968

A good programme of ringing was arranged, bells being available at Leckhampton, Charlton Kings, Cheltenham, Prestbury and Tewkesbury Abbey

The dinner was held at Gupshill Manor, Tewkesbury, that evening and guests included the Rev. C G R. Pouncey, Vicar of Tewkesbury; Mr. W. A. Farmer, chairman of the Cheltenham Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Association; Miss E. M. Bliss, chairman of the Gloucester and Bristol Association. The Deputy Chief Constable of Gloucestershire (Mr. H. D. J. Smith) was unable to attend; he was represented by Sgt. W. G. Scudamore.

HEREFORD CATHEDRAL RESTORER

Mr. Julian W. Litten, of 42, Marlborough Drive, Clayhall, Ilford, who is writing a book on the Scott family of architects, asks for information concerning this talented family. John Olrid Scott, who worked on the restoration of Hereford Cathedral (1901-1907), was a son of the famous Sir George Gilbert Scott; he died in 1913 while working on the rebuilding of Selby Abbey.

TEWKESBURY BRANCH'S LONG DAY

The annual outing of the Tewkesbury Branch on September 16th was in Herefordshire and Mid-Wales, an 8 a.m. start being made. First ringing was on the fine eight at Burghill. Then came Staunton on the River Wye (a very nice six, tenor 13 cwt., rehung by Taylors in 1957). The Wye was crossed at Bredwardine, where nearly an hour was spent on a light six.

We now travelled on to the Welsh Hay, where lunch was had at the Crown Hotel. Our party then moved on to Clifford, where there was some very enjoyable ringing on the eight bells (tenor 12¼ cwt.). After safely negotiating the toll bridge at Whitney, the party eventually arrived at Eardisley, where some good Minor methods were rung.

Leaving the Wye Valley we proceeded along the Hay to the Leominster road, viewing the beautiful Herefordshire countryside with the fine apple orchards and the famous Hereford cattle, and eventually arrived at Weobley, where we indulged in a very welcome tea. Tewkesbury was reached at about 11.20 p.m.

Many thanks to our chairman for assisting me, Mr. J. Attwood for keeping to the programme times, and also to Mr. John Hope for helping with tower arrangements. L. C. P.

TOTNES OUTING

Totnes ringers had a successful outing into North Devon on September 23rd arranged by their captain, Mr. S. J. French. Ringing started at Hatherleigh and the journey to Ilfracombe for lunch was via Torrington, Bideford and Barnstaple. The towers visited on the return journey were Combe Martin, South Molton, Crediton and Exeter.

THE OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.
WARFIELD, Berkshire.—At The Willows.
On Wed., Aug. 23, 1967, in 1 Hour and 49 Minutes,
A PEAL OF 5040 MINOR
Comprising one extent each of Childwall Bob St. Clement's College Bob and five different extents of Plain Bob. Tenor size 28 in A sharp.

*Susanne Sargeant	1–2	Frank C. Price (cond.) ..	3–4
*Kenneth R. Davenport ..	5–6

* Most methods rung to a handbell peal.

before the last war (commencing in 1893) were of Triples — 35 Grandsire and four Stedman. Since 1945, there have been seven peals of Major and four of Triples. Exactly half of Heywood's peals were rung before the first war—19 of them in the 1880's. Until recently, there were long periods without peals, but now we have another burst of activity with 19 peals in the '60's. Nearly all of St. Margaret's, King's Lynn, peals have come in the last 15 years.

WRONG CLAIMS

Finally, we come to "odds and ends". The peal at Llantrisant was not the first of Surprise on the bells—Cambridge was rung in 1932 and Bristol in 1955. The peal of Maximus at St. Paul's Cathedral was only the third this century—there was Kent Treble Bob in 1904 and Cambridge in 1925. The peal at Netheravon claimed as probably the first on the bells was not so—there was Bob Minor in 1947 and Northumberland Minor in 1950. Other wrong claims were of the first of Spliced at Eardisland (one was rung there in 1963) and first of London Royal at Retford (a previous peal of this was rung in 1950). It was not the first peal at Ripe since 1961—one was rung in 1963. (N.B.—Is it worth claiming a first on the bells for five years?) At Bath Abbey, the claim was for the seventh peal on the bells. I seem to have recorded eight now. Perhaps the conductor would care to compare notes. Lastly, I noticed the usual peal at Long Stratton on Christmas Eve. This has taken place without fail since 1955. Usually it is the only peal in the year, only 1960, 1961, 1962 and 1965 having one more each during the rest of the year. It is a pretty good effort not to have lost any of these attempts. But beware this year—it will be the 13th Christmas Eve since 1955!
