

“Dear Sir, I am sending you a report of what is, I believe, the first quarter to be rung in an air raid”

“Tea and meeting 5pm. Butter for those who advise for tea, margarine for others.”

When Ringing Had To Stop ...

– the astonishing, exciting and highly entertaining story of ringing during the Second World War.

Based on his painstaking research of the National Archives – together with the letters, diaries and newspapers of the time – Steve Coleman brings this fascinating and long-untold story to life – with the aid of six first class readers Mary Bone, Mike Trimm, Kath Johnson, Mike Winterbourne, Emma Rouse and Fred Bone

at the London 2019 Mini-roadshow
Sunday 8th September

To view the programme and register
Google CCCBR London 2019 or scan the QR Code

